IMPOSTORS BUSY IN SLEUTH ROLES IN PHAGAN CASE

Representing Themselves as Pinkertons, Two Men Are Interviewing Leading Witnesses in Mystery.

DETECTIVES WORRIED BY PLANTED EVIDENCE

Men Working on Case Believe That Some Interests May Be Trying to Fix the Crime on Suspects.

What interests are promoting the planting of evidence in the Mary Phagan mystery?

This question confronted police headquarters yesterday. Further evidence of mysterious forces underhandedly at work on the baffling case was revealed when it became known that impostors, representing themselves to be Pinkerton detectives, had been questioning leading witnesses.

This new disclosure, coupled with past discoveries of obviously "framed-up" evidence, has stirred the police and solicitor's staff to action. Arrests are expected at any moment. If the bogus detectives are caught, Chief Lanford declared, they will be thrown into prison, held without bond or communication, and put through a gruelling third degree.

Why Such Methods?

Although many theories have been advanced, the police are at a loss to fathom the cause of such methods. It has even been suggested that the real murderer is at liberty, and, in the effort to avert suspicion which might be cast upon himself, is endeavoring to weave the web tighter around the suspects already under arrest.

Friday morning a suave, well-dressed man appeared at the home of Mrs. J. W. Coleman, mother of the murdered girl, and, introducing himself as a detective from the Pinkerton agency, put her through an hour's exhaustive examination relative to Mary's character and habits.

She told her husband of the incident. He later questioned Harry Scott, of the Pinkertons, regarding the man who had appeared at the Coleman home. Scott was astounded at the revelation. Aware that he was the only man from the Pinkertons at work on the mystery, he knew that the man who had questioned the dead girl's mother was an impostor.

Later, George W. Epps, a leading witness at the coroner's inquest, was visited by a man answering an entirely different description from Mrs. Coleman's visitor. George is the youthful companion of the Phagan girl, with whom he rode uptown on the morning of her disappearance. He was quizzed thoroughly of the girl's habits and character.

Evidence Is Being Planted.

The Pinkertons were informed of this. Descriptions of both men have been furnished a squad of headquarters detectives who have been detailed to the special assignment of searching for the impostors. A Pinkerton official said Saturday night:

"I am satisfied that evidence is being planted. The object of such operations is mystifying. The clock record is plainly a "framed-p" clue. The shirt appears to be, and there are numerous

THE COST OF LIVING IS WHAT YOU MAKE IT

Too many people shop without system. They buy here, there, everywhere, instead of being guided by the ads in their paper. Thus they pay more than is necessary, and often do not get full value for their money.

Go through this paper carefully and read the ads. Note how you can save 5 cents here; 20, 30, 40 cents, and even several dollars, there. Note how the merchants meet your needs with fine goods at unusual prices, due to their shrewd buying.

For instance, take these few examples:

Women's $2 Underwear $1.29.
Women's $10 to $17.50 Dresses $7.49.
$1.25 Glass Shelves 85c.
Children's 75c Rompers 50c.
Girls' $4 and $5 Dresses $3.50.
Women's $30 to $40 Motor Coats $25.
Women's $10 to $25 Hats $5.
3 cans Best Condensed Milk 18c.
6 long-handled Iced Tea Spoons 50c.
25c Dishpans 15c.
Linen, Ramie and Voile Dresses $5.
$1 Middy Blouses 69c.
59c Foulards 33c.
12 yards English Nainsook $1.15.

Jot down the items you can use, and figure the saving possible. Don't stop at today's paper, but read all the ads every day in The Constitution, and you'll prove the truth of the statement that "the cost of living is really what you make it."

S. S. THRONG FILLS AUDITORIUM TODAY

Today will see the climax of the unique Sunday school contest between the First Christian and the Second Baptist churches. Fully 5,000 people in their combined forces the two Sunday schools will meet on Washington street at the state capital about 10:30 o'clock and will march in one vast throng across the Washington street viaduct to the Auditorium-Armory, where one of the most remarkable mass meetings in the history of Atlanta will take place.

Not only will the big Auditorium contain these two mammoth Sunday schools—which are today the two largest in the south—but there will be thousands of other people present, many of them who have never been to Sunday school before in their lives, but drawn to this gathering just to see what these twentieth century Sunday schools are like.

Thousands at Auditorium.

If the weather is fair, and the promise is held out gloriously, it is expected that there will be fully 6,500 people under the roof of the Auditorium when Dr. Percy J. Starnes swells on the great organ the strains of the doxology and the voices of that vast multitude join in singing the praise of God.

Dr. L. O. Bricker, pastor of the First Christian, and Dr. John E. White, of the Second Baptist, will both make short addresses. The feature of the meeting, however, will be the announcement of the contest standing of the day, with the reports of the various departments of the two schools on this line next to the last Sunday of the contest.

"Movie" Men on the Job.

In the march from the churches to the Auditorium the most alluring incident—one that in itself will draw hundreds of spectators—will be the taking of moving pictures. The "movie" men have made all arrangements for having their machines in place at the capitol and taking scenes of the gathering at the same time that the two schools pose on the steps of the capitol for one big landscape photograph. Then the "movie" machine will be placed in an automobile and rushed across the viaduct to the auditorium, returning then slowly over the viaduct and taking an interesting film of the varied procession of people, young and old, that will journey in that rare throng. For the children this will be the greatest event of the year—to be in the "movies"—and there will be some "inchings" on the part of grown-ups, also, to get on the side of the crowd nearest the machine.

The films will be displayed on the moving picture screens of Atlanta within several days, and after that will be carried all over the world as a part of the "Animated Weeklies."

Program Announced First Time.

The detailed program, announced herewith for the first time, will be as follows:

Organ Recital—Dr. Percy J. Starnes.
Doxology—Joined in by the multitude.
Invocation.
"Stand Up for Jesus"—Hymn by audience.
Twenty-third Psalm repeated in unison.
Report of today's contest in both schools.
Solo, "Ave Maria"—Mrs. Percy J. Starnes.
Address—Dr. L. O. Bricker.
"Onward Christian Soldiers"—Hymn by the congregation.
Address—Dr. John E. White.
"Blest Be the Tie That Binds"—Everybody singing.
Benediction.

The congregational singing of this gathering promises to be the most enthusiastic ever heard in the Auditorium. There have been concerts, there have been grand operas and there have been religious gatherings, but never has there been a mass of 6,500 people with the enthusiastic spirit of the Sunday school over them as these will have. A large chorus composed of singers from both schools will be seated on the platform and will lead the hymns, but with such old-timers on the program as "Onward Christian Soldiers," everybody will join.

First Christian 7,500 Ahead.

With only one more Sunday for the contest to run, after today, the First Christian stands now with a lead of over 7,500, which it is believed the Second Baptist cannot possibly make up. The score in points stands 44,357 to 38,536.

The original plans were for the losing school to journey to the winning school on the last day, May 11, and be told "How we did it." But on account of the extraordinary and unprecedented growth of both schools this was rendered impossible, as no church in the city of Atlanta could contain both bodies at once. So the plans were changed to the big mass meeting today at the Auditorium.

Final details of the day were completed Saturday morning at a conference at which were present Dr. White and Dr. Bricker, the two pastors; John S. Spalding and C. V. LeCraw, the two superintendents; William Hurd Hillyer, of the Second Baptist, and A. M. Beatty, of the First Christian. In the hands of these six men will rest in a general way the supervision of the details of the big occasion.

EDITOR NELSON'S CASE UP TO SUPREME COURT

Jefferson City, Mo., May 3.—Arguments before the Missouri supreme court in the contempt case against William R. Nelson, editor and owner of The Kansas City Star, today was devoted largely to the action of Judge Guthrie, of the Jackson county circuit court, in writing an opinion adjudging Nelson guilty of contempt before the hearing was held. Members of the court asked the attorneys pointed questions about the propriety of Judge Guthrie's action and Attorney O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, and the judges indulged in an extended colloquy about the opinion.

The court, sitting en banc, heard the arguments in the habeas corpus proceedings brought by Nelson after Judge Guthrie had sentenced him to jail for one day for alleged contempt. The court will render the decision later

MAYOR DECLARES WAR ON CONTRACT FOR FIRE ALARM

"ATLANTA PAYING $100 TOO MUCH PER BOX"

Mayor Says Price of Boxes Has Dropped From $150 to $50, and Atlanta Is Entitled to Reduction.

After a stormy session with Fire Chief William B. Cummings in the executive office at the city hall yesterday morning, Mayor James G. Woodward declared unrelenting war on the $106,000 fire alarm system.

The mayor violently denounced the contract, and rapped those who participated in it in behalf of the city. He made open declarations that Atlanta was paying $100 too much on every box being installed along with the system.

"The city would be paying too much for the system if it cost only $80,000," the mayor said. "I am not going to stand for such an outrage, even if the work on the system has already started. I have learned something about the whole affair that gives it a mighty black eye."

Will Take Contract to Court.

Frankly, Mayor Woodward said that he will take the contract to court. He says he will let the people know what they "are up against." The mayor says that he is going to fight the contract along the same lines as he fought the $376,800 crematory.

The board of electrical control was in session in the ante-room of the executive office at 10 o'clock, when the mayor turned his wrath on the fire alarm contract.

First he called for Fire Chief Cummings, and was closeted with him in his private office several minutes. It is understood that the mayor asked Chief Cummings for certain information relating to the fire alarm contract, and it is also understood that the chief told the mayor or that he could get all the information he sought from an examination of the records.

That Mayor Woodward was riled is putting it mildly. His voice could be heard in the outer office. He pounded his desk with his fist and stamped the floor.

Suddenly, the door opened and Chief Cummings emerged. He declined to discuss what transpired in the mayor's private office, and referred those who asked about the interview to the mayor.

Was Denouncing Contract.

"The mayor did ask me about certain information relating to the fire alarm contract," Chief Cummings admitted to a Constitution reporter later. "He wasn't riled at me. He was denouncing the contract; not me."

When the mayor was seen he explained that he was not "mad with Chief Cummings." He said he had learned some things relating to the fire alarm contract, and asked Chief Cummings about it. He intimated that he was entirely satisfied with the response made by the fire chief.

"The patent on the boxes they are going to install in Atlanta under that contract expired sometime ago," the mayor said, "and I am informed on reliable authority that the price has dropped from $150 per box to $50 per box. If this is true, then Atlanta is going to pay $100 too much for every box installed. I contend that if the boxes are cheaper now by $100 than they were when the contract was entered into, the citizens and taxpayers are entitled to a reduction of at least $75 a box.

"I have always said that the city was paying too much for the system under the contract. If we were getting it for $80,000 we would be paying too much for it."

City Electrician R. C. Turner, who made the first attack on the specifications, submitted by the Gramwell company, a concern which bid $106,000 to install a system, and which is supervising the installation of the system by the Okenite company for $106,000, less $2,500 for the material taken from the old system, would not discuss Mayor Woodward's attack, except to state that he also believed the city was paying a little too much for the system.

City eGtting Best Material.

"Excuse me," Electrician Turner exclaimed, "I don't want to get into a fuss with any one. I have enough to do to keep my own office out of trouble.

"I will say this, however, that the Okenite company is putting the best material into the system, and it is going to be a good one. It will take care of Atlanta and the added territory for the next ten years or more."

Discussing briefly, the charge of Mayor Woodward that there had been a recent reduction of $100 on the boxes, Turner said that his information was that the boxes had been reduced to $80. He said that he thought the taxpayers were entitled to have something knocked from the prices of the boxes.

The specifications of the Gramwell company, proposing a system for $115,000, were attacked by the city electrician some time ago, and the board of electrical control called for bids. The Okenite company put in a bid of $106,000, agreeing to allow the city $2,500 for the old material, thus cutting $11,600 from the price.

Fire Prevention Congress.

Philadelphia, May 3.—A call for a national fire prevention congress in this city, October 13 to 18, was sent out today by Powell Evans, chairman of the Philadelphia fire prevention commission. The call was sent to the governors of all states, mayors, state fire marshals and insurance commissioners, trade bodies, insurance companies, labor unions and manufacturers of approved devices. All are asked to send delegates.

Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison Will Make Debut Behind Footlights Monday Night

MISS AGNES TINSLEY HARRISON.

Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. D. Harrison, of Fern Bank, Atlanta, Ga., will make her debut on the stage Monday night in the opening performance of "The Girl from Out Yonder" by the Billy Long stock company at the Atlanta.

The occasion is one in which there will be broad social interest as Miss Harrison, aside from her marked talents, is a member of one of the oldest and most aristocratic families in the South. She is related to the Harrisons, the Tinsleys, and the Hendrees, who have produced for many generations men and women of notable talent and scholarship.

She is the niece of the late Mrs. Robert Emory Park, and a cousin of Mrs. Virginia Clay Clopton, of Alabama and her sister Miss Emily Harrison is considered one of the most brilliant women in the educational world of the South. She is the sister of Mrs. Michael Hoke, of Miss Fanlie Harrison and Miss Courtney Harrison.

She is beautiful, bright, and charming, with the social graces for which the women of her family are noted. She attended school at St. Mary's, Raleigh, N. C., where she studied dramatic interpretation. Her instructors there insisted she pursue her studies in that direction in the broader fields of New York, and Miss Harrison went from St. Mary's to New York, where she studied for two years. She had a private rehearsal before the managers of Klaw and Erlanger, who at once offered her an engagement in the fall, which she will fill.

In the meantime she was offered the position in the stock company here, which will play the summer season at the Atlanta, and like all enthusiastic workers Miss Harrison will lose no time. She is going to work at once, that work to be started in her own home. She arrived in the city early the past week and has been constant in her attendance upon rehearsals.

It is probable that in the audience Monday night there will be a large number of the recently organized Atlanta branch of the Drama league, one of the purposes of which is to patronize the genius and talent which presents itself in the community, and to patronize good plays.

The play, "The Girl from Out Yonder," is a comedy of rare merit. Miss Long has the star role, formerly played by Adelaide Thurston. Miss Harrison will assume the role of a young society girl and be called upon to play the simple life of the usual society debutante.

MISSISSIPPI IS ROBBED BY CHIEF PRISON CLERK

Yerger Admits Shortage in His Accounts, and Gives $25,000 Bond.

Jackson, Miss., May 3.—Lawrence Yerger, clerk of the board of prison trustees, was arrested tonight charged with being a defaulter in the sum of $14,627. Yerger is said to have acknowledged to Governor Brewer that he was short in his accounts.

An affidavit was filed against Yerger late today by Attorney General Ross A. Collins, alleging Yerger had, by making erasures and otherwise defacing his books, covered up receipts that had been turned into the prison office and appropriated the money to his own use. This money was derived from the sale of products of the state farms. Yerger, it is charged, so mutilated the records of these transactions that it was impossible to trace the amounts paid, while in some instances no record of them appeared upon the books kept by him.

The affidavit filed against Yerger by Attorney General Collins charges that during the last four years moneys were paid to him on account of articles purchased through him of the state and are unaccounted for as follows:

By the Jackson Oil and Refining company, $1,847.17; Natchez Cotton Oil company, $6,136; Brookhaven Cotton Oil and Fertilizer company, $7,044.

Governor Brewer tonight said the amount of the alleged defalcation will probably develop to be gerater than the sum now given.

The gover nor said it will be impossible to determine the shortage until a thorough examination of the books and accounts has been made.

Governor Brewer stated tonight that Yerger had acknowledged to him that he was short in his accounts, but did not say what he had done with the money. The governor said that he had had detectives examining the books of the prison office for another purpose and the shortage of the clerk who had now been suspected, was discovered.

TO MARTIAL MUSIC OF "MARSEILLAISE" WOMEN MARCHED

Forty Bands Blared as the Suffragettes, 20,000 Strong, Swept Through the Streets of New York.

New York, May 3.—The woman suffrage army marched up Fifth avenue this afternoon 30,000 strong to the martial music of the "Marseillaise" blared from forty bands. In uniforms of white, gleaming with yellow streamers they paraded in the heat of a midsummer sun for 3 miles from Washington square to Fifty-ninth street. A forest of yellow banners appealed for "vote for women" to an unbroken wall of spectators estimated at a quarter of a million.

Inez Milholland, riding astride a mettlesome chestnut cob, directly behind an escort of mounted police led the marchers.

Behind her walked eight girls in blue with silken flags; after them came two women in yellow with the suffrage map and its one "yellow" states. And then came the long line of the rank and file, marching resolutely, unsmilingly, "for the cause."

All Sorts of Women.

Women with snow-white hair, children not yet out of rompers; girls from Sweden, women from New Zealand, negroes from the northern states, cow girls from Oklahoma; newsboys from the East Side, Wall street brokers—these and the artisans of many trades and callings marched in unbroken lines, eight abreast, disbanding finally at the

SIX PLEASURE-SEEKERS FIND GRAVES IN RIVER

Three Girls and Three Boys Drowned When Their Boat Is Overturned.

Boston, Mass., May 3.—When an overloaded rowboat sprang a leak in the Charles river ana, sank tonight, six of its youthful occupants, three girls and three boys, all of Cambridge, were drowned. Two other boys, the only ones in the party able to swim, were saved.

Those drowned, all between the ages of 8 and 16 years, were:

ANNA CARNEY.
FLORA SILVA.
MARY SHAW.
FRANK MURPHY.
JOHN COONEY.
JOSEPH BURGESS.

Those saved were: John Walker, 16 years, and Antonio Monsey, 15.

Walker, Monesky and Burgess were hosts of the little party. They hired a boat made to hold only four or five, crowded their friends in it and then started down the river. The children had rowed to the West Boston bridge and were on their way back when the boat began to take in water rapidly. Everybody screamed and the rowers headed frantically for the river wall. They were within 20 feet of the embankment when the boat went under and all of its occupants were thrown into the water.

Most of the bodies had been recovered at a late hour tonight.

Four Persons Drowned.

Wertlville, Ky., April 3.—Four persons were drowned this afternoon when the river steamer Sonoma sank at Glenmary. When being landed the boat struck a snag which caused it to careen and fill, then sink. A score of passengers and crew were pitched into the water. The dead are:

Mrs. Frank Kidwell and her baby.
Fred Sadler, who boarded the boat here, and a deckhand named McKinney. The government dredge boat Kentucky went to the rescue. The Sonoma plied between Louisville and Frankfort, Ky.

JAPS MUST GO: FINAL VERDICT OF CALIFORNIA

Secretary of State Bryan Makes a Last Appeal to the Legislature, But He Accomplishes Nothing.

LONG FIGHT IN COURTS PREDICTED BY BRYAN

Believed at Washington That Japan Will Try to Get the Question Before The Hague Court of Arbitration.

Sacramento, Cal., May 3.—The alien land ownership bill, previously passed by the senate, was passed by the assembly late tonight and awaits only the signature of the governor to become a law.

Sacramento, Cal., May 3.—Defeated finally in his diplomatic effort to dissuade the California legislature from enacting an alien land law affecting the Japanese, Secretary of State Bryan declared this afternoon that he looked to the people of the state to express a final judgment through the referendum before the act shall go into effect.

Mr. Bryan's statement was made before an open joint meeting of the senate and assembly, immediately before his departure for Washington. The assembly, which was even then in the midst of its debate on the land bill, passed late last night by the senate, paused for half an hour to hear him, and then took up its work of following the senate's lead.

All Suggestions Voted Down.

The procedure in the lower house today was almost identical with that which the administration leaders in the senate adopted yesterday. On the one side the democrats offered substitute resolutions and amendments, all seeking to delay action, and on the other side the progressive majority stood firm in voting down every suggestion.

That the bill would pass tonight was predicted by both sides. It will then be in the hands of Governor Johnson awaiting the signature that shall make it a law.

Apparently the only contingency that can arise to prevent the carrying out of the bill's provisions within approximately ninety days is the threatened referendum petition, which would require 20,000 signatures before the law could be temporarily nullified, pending an election. The matter could not be submitted to the people until the fall of 1914—a delay of nineteen months, in case the proposed referendum gains enough signers.

Early in the session, representatives of the board of directors of the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco gave notice to the legislature that the board would foster a movement to invoke the referendum against the anti-alien bill that might be passed. Recently the exposition company has been joined by several commercial and trade bodies in the larger cities, who fear Japan will levy reprisals upon California by abrogating present business relationships.

Final Plea by Bryan.

Secretary of State Bryan concluded his mission to the governor and legislature of California this afternoon with a message of farewell. To an open joint session of the two houses, attended by the governor, he gave renewed assurances of the friendly interests and co-operative attitude of the

NATIONAL CONGRESS OF MOTHERS AND PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATIONS GEORGIA BRANCH

WIDE OBSERVANCE OF MOTHERS' DAY

Now Generally Celebrated in All Parts of the Country.

Today, the first Sunday in May, is Mothers' day, and while its celebration did not originate with the Mothers' congress, it is appropriate that a few lines in explanation of the custom should appear in this department.

A few years ago it occurred to a Philadelphia woman that among all the holidays, fete days and other special days set aside to honor great men and women, saints, celebrated events, etc., no time had ever been set aside to honor mothers. It seemed proper to her that one day in the year should be set aside when men should think of their mothers, no matter where they were nor what they were doing; that there should be some public recognition of motherhood.

The idea was given publicity until now it has become a national custom, and on the first Sunday in May every year you will see men wearing white carnations in their buttonholes, and from the pulpits the clergy will make appropriate remarks on the beautiful sentiment behind this custom of observing a mothers' day. Every man is supposed to visit his mother on this day or communicate with her in some way. And if she has passed to the great beyond, flowers are taken to deck her grave.

It is purely a sentimental custom to honor motherhood.

GOOD REPORTS RECEIVED FROM VARIOUS CLUBS

Mrs. R. L. Bivens, president of the Parent-Teacher Association of America, has sent this department a most encouraging account of the work done in Americus by her club since its organization by Miss Mary Collins in March. She writes as follows:

"Miss Collins was with us in March and through her efforts the Americus branch of the Parent-Teacher association was organized, with a large and representative membership. Within two weeks from our organization there was held a bond election for the erection of some new school buildings. Our board of education had asked for $65,000.

"We at once took hold of the matter, appointed a committee to investigate and report on the condition of the present school buildings, and the need of other buildings as well. We called a special meeting, passed resolutions asking the voters to come to the aid of the children, and published our proceedings in the local paper. On the day of the election, the superintendent marched the school children, about 1,000 strong, through the streets, with banners bearing suitable mottoes. Great interest was awakened and the election carried almost unanimously. Superintendent J. E. Mathis, who is heartily in sympathy with us in our organization, and a working member of it, very kindly says that the Parent-Teacher association, with its efforts, turned the tide in favor of bonds.

"We confess, however, that we could have done very little without his co-operation, and that of his teachers as well. We are already a strong organization and hope to be the largest club in the city. Surely nothing should call forth greater endeavor or cause more widespread interest than the welfare of our children."

Augusta.

The Parent-Teacher clubs, of Augusta and Richmond county, are doing splendid work at present. Through the Central council, of August, the clubs are raising money for supervised play. They have never had playgrounds, and the idea is to fit up the school yards as playgrounds and to have a trained supervisor in charge of the playground system as soon as it can be organized. Mrs. S. B. Owen is chairman of the Central council and Miss Ethel Park is secretary.

The members of the Hord's Chapel school, of Richmond county, recently organized a Parent-Teacher club, which has already started on a broad work that of getting up a library for the school. This school is one of the most active district schools in the state.

Macon.

Mrs. James T. Wright has just been appointed chairman of the Central council of the Parent-Teacher association, of Macon, and will enter upon her duties this month. Since the organization of the council, the work has been in charge of Miss Florence Bernd, who, with the assistance of her able co-workers, has made the Macon organization one of the strongest in the state. There are already ten Parent-Teacher clubs in Macon, and two new ones in the Macon district have just been organized—one at Clisby and one at Newburg. Another is under consideration at Bellebue.

An interesting course of lectures has been given by prominent physicians of Macon for the clubs, the subjects being as follows:

Feeding of Infants.
Feeding of School Children.
Clothing of Children.
Sanitation in the Home.
Diseases of the Eye and Throat.
Preventable Diseases.

Subjects discussed by the members of the clubs have been: Home Amusements, Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls, Moral Education of Children, Rewards and Punishments.

Brunswick.

Miss Mary Collins, state organizer of the Parent-Teacher clubs, spent the first part of last week in Brunswick, where she organized all of the schools. Later she visited the Parent-Teacher club, of Thomasville, which was organized in January with sixty members.

This club was active in helping put through a bond issue for a new school building, the site of which has already been secured. The work of the club for the summer will be in beautifying this site so that it will present an attractive appearance by the time the school building is completed.

Miss Collins has suggested to all of the clubs that she has organized that they issue to their members a graded book list for children six weeks before Christmas, in order that the mothers may have helpful and proper lists from which to make their selections in buying books for Christmas presents.

SUGGESTS WORK FOR PARENT-TEACHER CLUBS

Mrs. A. E. Keenan, principal of the Virgil Powers school, of Macon, has suggested a work for the parent-teacher clubs, which the Macon clubs have already acted upon and which will eventually prove of great value to the state.

There is a large percentage of children of the school age who do not attend school, and Mrs. Keenan's plan is that all such cases shall be investigated by the parent-teacher clubs, each club taking up the cases in its own district. Committees are to be appointed to locate the children who have never been enrolled or who do not attend school and the reason for their non-attendance investigated. When poverty is the cause—lack of the proper clothing, inability to buy books or other school supplies, etc.—the clubs are to supply the necessary funds so that the children may attend school.

The great possibilities of this work are apparent and it is recommended to all the parent-teacher clubs for their consideration.

Picture Books For Little Tots

This department announced several weeks ago that it would publish from time to time a list of picture and other books suitable for children of all ages. Mrs. Edith Lyman Scott, the well-known children's librarian, and one of the most noted story tellers in this country, agreed to furnish these lists, the first of which is given this morning.

The list today includes only picture books appropriate for children who are too young to be read to, with a few descriptive lines to give the parents some idea of each book.

It is as follows:

"Clean Peter and the Children of Grubbylea," by O. Adelborg. A charming picture book with rhymes setting forth some of the maxims of the "Goops" and "Slovenly Peter" with more delicate drawings.

"Baby Days," published by Century. A book of poems, stories and pictures taken from the St. Nicholas. It serves as a delightful picture book, as well as a story book for little children.

"Golden Goose Book," by L. L. Brooke.

Part I. "Three Little Pigs and Tom Thumb."

Part II. "Golden Goose and Three Bears."

The most artistic and entirely satisfactory illustrating of these old favorites from the standpoint of both child and adult. The designs are full of imagination and suggestion, the drawings are simple and clear, and the color beautiful. Mr. Brooke, with the true artist's ability, has made the pictures tell the story independently of the text, which is itself handled with much imagination.

"The Panjandrum Picture Book." Contents: "Come, Lassies and Lads." "Ride a Cock Horse to Banbury Cross." "A Farmer Went Trotting Upon His Gray Mare." "Mrs. Mary Blaise." "The Great Panjandrum Himself."

"Mother Hubbard, Her Picture Book," by W. Crane. Contents: "Mother Hubbard." "The Three Bears." "The Absurd A. B. C." A very charming book with unusually fine color and a satisfying consideration for the dignity of these favorites.

"This Little Pig, His Picture Book." Contents: "This Little Pig." "The Fairy Ship." "King Luckieboy." It should be known to every child.

"Nursery Book," by D. C. Falls. A picture book for little children.

"Book of Cheerful Cats," by J. G. Francis. One of the most delightful humorous picture books. Illustrations are line drawings and appeared in early numbers of St. Nicholas. Will interest older children even more than the youngest.

J. M. HIGH COMPANY

national administration toward the peculiar problem of California, transmitting the president's latest criticism of the alien land act passed last night by the senate, and rehearsing again those objections already made public.

In reply, Senator Gates, speaking for the state, said:

"This legislature appreciates the honor that has been done to this state by the visit of the secretary of state. We realize that his coming is co-operate with us marks an era in American politics. It brings the federal government into close touch with the individual states.

"On the part of the legislature I wish to express our profound appreciation and gratitude for the interest taken by the national government in a problem confronting the state of California and to assure the president that, even if we ma. differ with him. We do it with the profoundest respect for the opinions and those of the secretary of state. And if we feel impelled to depart from that advice we do it with respect for that advice.

"I propose and desire on the part of this legislature to thank the president and his secretary for their assistance and I express the hope that this visit may be a forerunner of further activity by the national government in assisting the states in their work."

Bryan Vetoes Wilson's Opinion.

Secretary Bryan, in his address, voiced the president's opinion that the words "eligible to citizenship," substituted in the California attorney general's redraft of the alien land measure for the words "ineligible to citizenship," are equally discriminatory and the reform equally objectionable to Japan.

If a law must pass, he urged that it be limited in its operation to two years; that meanwhile diplomacy might so improve the international situation that re-enactment by the next legislature would be unnecessary. This suggestion, which had not yet reached the president, he said, was made "for the consideration of those who have yet to act upon the subject."

Secretary Bryan said in part:

"As I am departing this afternoon for Washington, I deem it proper that I should say a final word to you. My coming, at the president's request upon the mission that brought me, was unusual and yet, in the president's opinion, not only right in principle but wise in policy. It was in keeping with his own course in appearing in person to deliver a message to congress.

"I need not recount the experiences through which we have passed. The legislature, in so far as it has acted, has found it inconsistent with its view of its responsibility to follow the president's advice in the wording of the law which it regards as its duty to enact. While I shall not attempt to form a judgment as to the action of the assembly on this subject, I have so fully presented the president's views that I do not deem a longer stay necessary. On the contrary I feel that I can be more useful at Washington when the president has before him the bill, as it reaches the governor if it shall finally pass the assembly. I cannot, however, take my departure without giving expression to my appreciation of the spirit in which, as a representative of the president, I have been received, and of the courtesies that have been shown me at all times.

What Wilson Deems Unwise.

"The amity that has characterized our intercourse is in keeping. I think, with the course that should be pursued by those who, acting under a sense of responsibility about matters in which they are jointly concerned, are unable to agree upon the means to be employed for reaching the end in view. The president has impressed upon me at all times that I should emphasize the fact that his only purpose is to confer with the legislature as to the national and international phases of the question under consideration and that he confers as a not unfriendly friend who desires to aid to the extent of his ability in a matter where he has not only a constitutional duty to perform, but where he may be assisted to be able to judge of the effect of legislation upon our relations with other countries.

"He has pointed out the things which seem to him unwise in the bill that has passed the senate. The first words to which he calls attention are 'eligible to citizenship' which are as clearly discriminating as the words 'ineligible to citizenship' against which he so earnestly advises. In the second paragraph the property rights of those herein described are defined as they are defined in the treaty. He fears that this will raise a question of construction and involve the subject in a lawsuit that may be both irritating and protracted.

"I have submitted to him the suggestion—but owing to his absence from Washington just at this time have been unable as yet to secure an answer—that a time limit upon any bill which you pass might reduce to a minimum the unfavorable influence it exerts if that influence is unfavorable. If for instance any bill that you pass dealing with the subject is limited in its operations to two years—or even four years, but two years would give opportunity for the next legislature to act upon the subject—it would afford an opportunity for diplomatic efforts with the hope that the situation could be so construed as to make a re-enactment of the law unnecessary. Assuming that the people of California will be satisfied to reach the end which they desire by methods which will cause the least friction between this and other nations this suggestion is made for the consideration of those who have yet to act upon the subject.

Line Drawn at Another Point.

"If the legislature is willing to avoid the use of the words 'eligible to citizenship' or 'ineligible to citizenship' I am authorized to suggest that the line might be drawn at another point, namely, between those whose right to own land is defined by treaty and those whose right to own land is not defined by treaty, the former to be allowed to own according to the terms of the treaty and the latter to be allowed to hold land on the same terms that citizens of the United States hold land. But the president desires me to keep before you at all times the fact that he would prefer, if consistent with your state's interests, to have all action deferred for a time sufficient to permit him to employ diplomatic means.

"In summing up Mr. Bryan's rehearsed the objections and suggestions of the president, already made public and concluded:

"Having performed the duty imposed on me by the chief executive of the nation, my work is done. You have listened patiently and courteously and now the responsibility rests upon you to do what you deem necessary, recognising, as you doubtless do, that you act not only as the representatives of the state, dealing with lands lying within the state, but as the representatives of a state occupying a position among her sister states and sharing with them an interest in and responsibility for international relations.

"You are fortunate in this state in having the initiative and referendum. The initiative spurs you on to do that which you believe your people want done, while the referendum empowers those fro whom you speak to put their veto on your acts if you fail to reflect their wishes. It may be assumed therefore that if you feel it your duty to enact legislation on this subject at this time, your people will either manifest their approval by acquiescence or their disapproval by submitting your action to the judgment of the voters by means of the referendum.

"I leave you with renewed assurances of the friendly concern in the subject with which you are dealing and of my appreciation of the kind reception which wou have accorded me as his spokesman."

JAPAN WILL APPEAL TO HAGUE TRIBUNAL

Washington, May 3.—It was learned here today that the Webb anti-alien land bill, in its present form, is not satisfactory to the Japanese government. Although there is possibility of amendment in the lower branch of the California legislature or in conference, the conviction obtains that nothing remains to be done, from the Japanese point of view at present, but to await the return of Secretary Bryan.

Then it will be in order to take the matter up diplomatically, probably the first step being to ascertain whether the administration can be counted on to begin a legal test of the constitutionality of the new act.

If the question between the United States and Japan should not be settled within the next three months, it was intimated here today that Japan might make a formal request for submission of the issue to arbitration at The Hague tribunal.

The special arbitration treaty between the two countries negotiated in 1908, which is believed to cover the case, will expire by a limiting clause unless renewed on August 24.

The particular provision of the treaty is:

"Differences which arise of a legal nature or relating to the interpretation of treaties existing between the two contracting parties, and which it may not have been possible to settle by diplomacy, shall be referred to the permanent court of arbitration established at The Hague by the convention of July 29, 1899, provided, however, that they do not affect the vital interest, the independence or the honor of the two contracting parties, or do not concern the interest of third parties."

Diplomats here do not believe the question of Japanese honor, as it has been referred to in connection with the California situation, would be held to be of such a nature as to come under the exemption as referred to in the treaty.

Secretary Bryan telegraphed President Wilson he would leave California tonight and arrive here next Thursday. Until that time the president, it is understood, will make no comment.

Officials here hope no bill will be signed by Governor Johnson until President Wilson has had an opportunity to confer with Secretary Bryan, as well as the Japanese ambassador.

Mr. Bryan will bring to the president a detailed report and immediately after his return it is not improbable that Governor Johnson will be communicated with.

IMPOSTORS BUSY IN SLEUTH ROLES

other indications. Also, we are convinced that there are mysterious forces antagonizing our investigation. Sad will be the day that these men are caught."

Solicitor Dorsey Active.

Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey has taken a decidedly active hand in the investigation. His entire staff has been loosed upon the mystery, together with a number of private detectives in his employ. Coroner Donehoo is also giving his entire time and energy in assisting the detectives and police.

Saturday morning the coroner, solicitor, detective chief and a number of detectives revisited the scene of the murder. A minute examination was made of the pencil factory premises, and measurements were taken of the basement. From 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 6:30, the investigators were closeted in Chief Lanford's office, conferring over the evidence.

Headquarters was flooded with wild and groundless rumors throughout the day, a majority of which were to the effect that Mary Phagan had been seen on the afternoon of her murder. These stories were all found to be groundless. Chief Lanford declared last night that he had confined himself to the theory that the murdered girl never emerged from the pencil plant after entering it to draw her pay.

A number of new witnesses were subpoenaed from the coroner's office. Although their names would not be divulged, nor the character of the testimony which they will be expected to render, it is the general belief that they are former women employes of the pencil concern. New witnesses are being summoned daily. The total list, when the coroner's inquest is re-opened Monday afternoon, will probably reach 300 or more.

Will Examine Bloody Shirt.

Detective Scott Saturday turned over to City Bacteriologist Claude W. Smith the bloody shirt found at the home of the negro Newt Lee. It will be put through a thorough microscopic inspection to ascertain if the blood spots compare with those on the clothing of the murdered girl. Dr. Smith stated, however, that the examination could not be made until early next week.

Action by Grand Jury.

"I am not in a position to state when the grand jury will take up the investigation of the Phagan murder," Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey stated last night. "The new grand jury will be impanelled on Monday and it is certain that the matter can not be taken up that day. The coroner's inquest is to be continued on that day, but whether or not the grand jury will wait until this is completed or not, I can not now say.

"The only reason for my personal investigation of the case and my conference with police and detective heads," added the solicitor, "is because of the exceptional nature of the case. The duties of the solicitor's office prevent me from attending every inquest and police examination, but I feel that this affair demands that I should familiarize myself with every detail while it is fresh, for by that means I can better handle it when it becomes my business to prosecute the murderer, whoever he should appear to be."

From the manner in which the solicitor spoke of his conferences and with the police officials and the coroner it is inferred that there is yet as deep a cloud as ever over the murder and that nothing has been found out which has not already been published in the daily papers.

The grand jury when once sworn in, has the authority to take up its own examination at any time a majority of its members see fit and until it is impanelled and takes formal action, there is no way of determining what will be done, unless the solicitor should announce his intention of placing the matter before that body.

The usual procedure is for the jurymen to wait until the coroner's jury completes its action and then to take up an investigation for indictment of any parties bound over to it. In case its members see fit, though, the investigation may be begun at any time.

Scream Frightens Girls.

The employees in the National Pencil plant were badly frightened early Saturday morning, when a blood-curdling scream came from the basement. Girls stopped their work and thought of Mary Phagan and her tragic fate flashed through their minds.

An investikation was started immediately. Twenty officials of the plant, swinging lanterns, climbed into the basement. It was then found that a member of the solicitor general's staff was testing the range of sound from the spot in the basement in which the murdered girl was found. The cry penetrated the first floor and was just heard upon the second.

Believe Girl Was Gagged.

Did the murderer use the strips of his victim's underclothing to suppress her screams—convert them into a gag which he never removed?

Chief Lanford expresses his opinion that the strips were not the garrote with which she was strangled to death as at first believed, but were bound over the mouth to stifle her cries for help.

The detective chief also believes that the girl was alive when she was carried into the basement, but unconscious, and that upon regaining consciousness, a struggle ensued. Signs of scuffling were evident in the sawdust neighboring the spot in which the corpse was discovered.

WILL REMAIN IN ROME.

Hanks Foundry Company Not to Move to Macon.

Rome, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—The Hanks Foundry company announced today that instead of moving its large plant to Macon, as had been rumored, that the company had purchased a large tract of land in West Rome and would begin in two weeks the erection of one of the largest stove and range manufacturing plants in the south. The plant will be on the Southern railway and within a stone's throw of the Fairbanks company's large scale works, just at the city's limits.

The buildings, machinery and capacity of the present plant will be doubled and the line enlarged. The force of molders and other employees will be doubled and the output, with the addition of the most modern machinery, increased proportionately. The company has outgrown its present quarters and has been contemplating the erection of a new plant for several months.

Contracts for the new plant will be let in a few days and work started in two weeks. The new machinery will be in operation before September 1, and in the meantime, the old one will be operated in full blast to supply the demand for its products.

Women Fights Rated.

Rome, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Retaliating for the recent edict of council in revoking the pool room license of George W. Trammell, Mrs. M. E. Howland, owner of the building on Second avenue, where the proposed pool room was located, has announced that she will have the Cherokee hotel pool room's license revoked on the same ground as that of her tenant—failure to secure written permission of the adjacent property owner.

Trammell secured a license to operate the pool room, which was revoked when the owners of the Cherokee hotel next door protested that he had not obtained their permission according to the provisions of the city ordinance. He tried to evade the ordinance by erecting two small booths on the street to be used by a newsstand and a real estate office. The city attorney ruled that this would not stand the scrutiny of the courts and council revoked his license, on protest of the hotel owners, in whose building a pool room is operated.

Through her attorney Mrs. Howland announces that if the hotel company refuses to allow her tenant to operate such a place, she will refuse to let them rent their property for the same purpose.

Two Autos Stolen.

Joy rider thieves found a second victim in one week when they stole the automobile of Dr. W. F. Blackman, of 171 Capitol avenue. He left his car at the curb Friday night while attending the Atlanta theater, and when he came out it was gone. So far a diligent search has failed to locate the missing machine. Earlier in the week Will V. Zimmer's automobile was taken while he was at the Lyric theater, but it was found the next day standing on Capitol avenue where the near thieves had left it after using up all the gasoline.

REPORT ON THE COST OF RAW CANE SUGAR

Washington, May 3.—In the first report ever prepared by the government on the costs and processes of manufacturing raw cane sugar in the United States, just issued by the department of commerce, it is shown that the labor cost on the plantation is more than half the total agricultural cost, while in the factory the labor cost constitutes 66 per cent of the manufacturing cost. Wages on the plantation range from 40 cents to $3 a day, 75 per cent of the workers getting from 75 cents to $1.25, while 19 per cent get from 40 to 65 cents a day. In the factories the wages run from 50 cents to $3 and more a day, 53 per cent of these workers getting from $1.50 to $1.75 a day, while only 8 per cent get less than $1.25 a day.

Great Lumber Fire.

Watertown, Fla., May 3.—Fire today destroyed the planing mill of the Coast Lumber company here, entailing a loss estimated at $300,000. More than 1,000,000 feet of lumber was consumed. The origin of the flames has not been determined.

Stops Falling Hair

This Home Made Mixture Stops Dandruff and Falling Hair and Aids Its Growth

To a half pint of water add:

Bay Rum ..... 1oz.
Barbo Compound ..... a small box
Glycerine ..... ½ oz.

These are all simple ingredients that you can buy from any druggist at very little cost, and mix them yourself. Apply to the scalp once a day for two weeks, then once every other week until all the mixture is used. A half pint should be enough to rid the head of dandruff and kill the dandruff germs. It stops the hair from falling out, relieves itching and scalp diseases.

Although it is not a dye, it acts upon the hair roots and will darken streaked, faded, gray hair in ten or fifteen days. It promotes the growth of the hair and makes harsh hair soft and glossy.

PROPOSES MEMORIAL SCHOOL TO JAMES EDWARD OGLETHORPE

Among the new enterprises to be taken up during the coming year is a new educational work, as a memorial to James Edward Oglethorpe, and will be located at Fredrica, St. Simon's island.

This new work was presented to the state conference in August in a most earnest and zealous manner by Mrs. W. H. De Voe, of Brunswick. It was at once adopted and a number of the chapter volunteered contributions.

Mrs. De Voe introduced the subject of the Oglethorpe memorial as follows:

"At Frederica, on St. Simon's island, there resides one of the most lofty, self-sacrificing Christian women it is the writer's privilege to have ever known, Mrs. Anna D. Dodge.

"Her husband, the late Rev. A. C. P. Dodge, although possessed of considerable private means, gave his life's effort as priest in the missionary service.

"There was born to this good man and woman a son, who, when hardly more than an infant, was killed in an accident. Mr. and Mrs. Dodge went to an orphanage and adopted six little boys to raise, as a memorial to this child. After returning home other unfortunates plead for their children to be taken, and each case seemed so urgent that they soon had twelve instead of six, and if there had been accommodations sufficient there would be many more taken by these good people.

"Rev. Mr. Dodge established an endowment fund for boys at his death, some twenty years ago, and since then his wife, Mrs. Dodge, has remained at home in charge of the boys, consecrating her life's work to the care of these children with the same tender solicitude of a mother. The only qualifications necessary for admission to her protecting care is that the applicant shall be a white male child, bound unto her until he reaches his majority, and when committed there he shall not be adopted by others.

Carefully Reared.

"These boys have been brought up under careful influence and taught habits of industry, morality and economy, and in them is inspired the highest religious ideals. Such boys as show an inclination to receive a more advanced education are permitted by the country school have been sent to higher institutions of learning.

"In finding proper educational institutions in which her boys might be trained and advanced in their education, Mrs. Dodge has encountered difficulty, and her mind has naturally been directed particularly to this problem and its solution. She has found demonstrated that the opportunity of the poor boy for securing an education is indeed limited beyond that afforded by our public school system, and that for the youth to obtain even this education, he must be supported by parents.

Would Establish School.

"Therefore, it has occurred to her that there should be established in Georgia a school where the boy without means of supporting himself while he was securing his education, and regardless of whether he hails from the mountains of Georgia, or its lowlands, from the country or the city, may go and by his own efforts educate himself and become fitted as a citizen of our state. It is her idea to establish on St. Simon's island a school where a boy may go and become educated, and at the same time receive manual training along both industrial and agricultural lines; where he may, with his work, pay the expense of his tuition and maintenance, and where the result of his work will defray this expense.

"To this end she has, at her own expense, purchased a large tract of land upon St. Simon's island, upon which is to be erected this school. She asks the D. A. R. of Georgia to build a dormitory to accommodate fifty boys. She further proposes, from her own means, to contribute largely to the fund necessary to construct other buildings, and this school she proposes to establish as a memorial to James Edward Oglethorpe, the founder of Georgia.

"Upon the pages of the history of this nation and state is emblazoned a detailed account of those acts that have placed on the forefront of the great philanthropists of all the ages —James Edward Oglethorpe—the humanity of the man was uninspired by thoughts of self-glorification or of grandisment. He opened the door of the prison cell and lead forth into the clear sunlight of new opportunity and endeavor the man who was bowed down by the failure of his life and oppressed by the exactions of that creditor who stood demanding the pound of flesh, and went with him to the new land of promise, and there, with the unfortunates he founded this great commonwealth; and, attracted by the beauties, health, surroundings and advantages of the island of St. Simon, thereon he founded one of the most important settlements, beautiful Frederica, and here it is quite fitting that this great practical work of philanthropy, intended as a living memorial to this great philanthropist, should be established. It will be more enduring than cold marble shaft, and it will be in line with the practical work of this man who did good in a practical way.

Aim of New Institution.

"As he gave to the unfortunate of his day the new chance, a new hope, new opportunity and a new life, so will this institution mean, new hope, opportunity and life for the unfortunate of our time. And there by the undertaking upon which the Daughters of the American Revolution of this present generation can embark, they furnish great opportunity to do good in a practical way, or that will leave to posterity a more enduring monument of this great historical character and of their own honest and useful effort, than the establishment and maintenance of this great institution.

"Therefore, may we not hope that the Daughters of the Revolution of this state chapter will adopt this institution as their own work and this guarantee the success of its establishment and future maintenance. Mrs. Dodge is quite willing that it shall be their memorial to the founder of our state, to whose memory we all bow in reverence.

"In the event the daughters will take up this work, Mrs. Dodge promises her continued co-operation, and announces that when Georgians shall have demonstrated their interest in this work, she has assurances of most substantial assistance from friends in other states.

LUCY DILLON DE VOE.
State First Vice Regent, Georgia.

XAVIER CHAPTER MEETS WITH MISS BERRY

The members of the Xavier chapter D. A. R. were most delightfully entertained Saturday, April 19, by Miss Martha Berry and the girls of the Girls' school.

April is known as the Berry month, as this is the time each year that it is the pleasure of the chapter to be entertained by Miss Berry. After an inspection of the building, we were asked down to the spinning and sewing department, the former being a work of art. There we saw rugs, towels, etc., baskets of sweet grass and pine needles woven in the most artistic designs.

At 4 p. m. the girls, (numbering about 70 or 75) and visitors were called to the chapel. This is indeed an addition to the school, one to be proud of. It has been completed this year. Mrs. Annie Dowdell Chedsey, regent, presided. The following program was rendered:

Called to order.
Lord's prayer.
"Song of the Revolution," Mrs. Annie Jones Proctor.
History of D. A. R., by regent (in three sentences).
National Society.
Local chapter and work.
Analysis of the insignia.
Vocal (selected), Miss Beulah Adamson.
Reading—Miss Gussie Henderson.
Storiette—"The Chieftains."
Home of Maj. Jno. Ross, location near Rome, about a mile and a half on the banks of the Coosa river. Written by Mrs. E. P. Tredaway.
Mrs. A. A. Ronnsaville gave an interesting talk urging each girl to look back, get up family history and no doubt they each had inherited virtues that were far greater than riches —brave, noble, and loyal ancestors.
"The Girls in Blue" gave several vocal selections (in class).

After a vote of thanks we enjoyed delightful punch and cake "neath the shade of the old oak tree."

Our first visit to the Girls' school (as their guests), but one that will go down in the history of Xavier chapter as the most pleasant.

BRUNSWICK CHAPTER HOLDS BIG MEETING

Brunswick chapter, D. A. R., was very delightfully entertained on Friday afternoon, the 18th instant.

Mrs. Dean Dunwody Atkinson was a most cordial hostess. Our regent, Mrs. J. H. Morgan, gave a very interesting talk of her visit to the state convention.

The paper for the day was a sketch of "Sailette," a revolutionary hero of Liberty county, Georgia. Mrs. F. G. Stacy was at her best in this very interesting and instructive paper.

By request, Mrs. D. W. Winn, who is historian for the Dames of Georgia, gave the chapter the benefit of a paper which she had read during their last meeting in Savannah. Mrs. Winn's paper gave evidence of much historical research, and the story of part Oglethorpe played was most inspiring, and the role he played was most interestingly told.

Mrs. W. H. Deboe claimed the attention of the chapter in telling of her pastoral services in Thomson, the hopes of establishing the James Edward Oglethorpe Memorial school at Frederica. This school will be a great work when completed.

Mrs. Anna E. Dodge, who, as Miss Gould, has always lived on St. Simons island, has for years carried on her work of philanthropy until the work has grown to such proportion that she has put her ideas and work forth for this school. It is an ideal location for such a work.

Brunswick chapter, D. A. R., will lead with a large donation, and the entire chapter will unanimously lend their support to this work.

Resolutions were passed on the recent death of Mrs. Courtland Symmes, our ex-regent, and one of our most helpful and loyal members. A charter appointed to draw up resolutions of her work and intellect for the upbuilding of our chapter. A committee was appointed to draw up resolutions of sympathy for her household.

Stephen Hopkins Chapter.

Fragrant spring blossoms gave a festive appearance to the parlors and halls in the hospitable home of Mrs. J. D. Wade, which always lends itself admirably to such occasions, while the grace and beauty of the gathering was enhanced by the presence of the young daughters of the chapter. Musical numbers and readings were rendered by Misses Marian Timberlake and Elise Shappey. Interesting papers and talks were given by Miss Claudia Culpepper, of Fort Valley; Mrs. W. M. McKenzie, Mrs. I. C. Chastain, Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, of Montezuma, and Mrs. S. M. Timberlake, the regent.

Dainty refreshments of ices, cake, mints and salted nuts were served by Misses Mattie Richard, Evelyn Timberlake, Jennie Lou Jones and Ida May Timberlake.

U. D. C. Chapter Reports

Marshallville.

Memorial day exercises were held on Saturday morning from 10 to 12 o'clock, in the auditorium, before a large and enthusiastic audience. The invocation was offered by Rev. J. W. Kelly; the anthem, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," and the quartet, "Come Where the Lilies Bloom," were the musical numbers with the solo, "Oh, Ye Tears," sung by Mr. Harman Crocker, and the closing "Dixie," by the High School orchestra. "The Roll Call of the Dead" was read by Mr. W. P. Baldwin.

Rev. J. W. Kelly introduced the orator, Rev. A. J. Moncrief, and Dr. J. O. Boston was master of ceremonies. The speaker was paid an eloquent tribute to the men of the south descended from the cavaliers of Washington, Jefferson, Monroe, of all the wonderful statesmen and expansion under those cavaliers, of Robert Lee, the typical soldier and Christian gentleman. He congratulated the south that one of her sons was now in the presidential mansion, and four southern men in the cabinet. The star of the wonderful southland is again in the ascendant, and those whose rehabilitation is a miracle."

After the exercises the audience proceeded to the cemetery near by and decorated the graves of the hero dead with beautiful spring flowers. These graves are designated each Memorial day by a confederate flag which waves from each low mound from sunrise till sunset.

Macon.

All public offices, including the post-office, closed at noon, and several of the stores also declared a half holiday.

Conspicuous on the streets all of the morning were veterans, attired in gray, while at the cemeteries school children by the hundreds lovingly placed wreaths and flowers on the graves of the honored dead. The firemen were engaged by the ladies of the Daughters of the Confederacy to decorate the monuments with wreaths, flags and flowers.

During the morning Camp R. A. Smith held an annual meeting in the city courtroom, with Commander Ais Jones presiding. Colonel Nat Harris was the principal speaker. Members of the camp also attended the anniversary meeting.

From 1 until 2 o'clock over 200 veterans were served a delightful dinner by a committee of ladies in the recorder's courtroom. Mrs. A. E. Porter, Mrs. Jim Hicks, Miss Anna Bryant, Miss Ida Holt and others were in charge of the arrangements, and waited on the old soldiers in person. Mrs. Chapman and a number of the policemen also gave a helping hand.

The three military companies assembled at their respective armories at 2 o'clock, and at 2:30 o'clock marched to the auditorium, where they took seats upon the stage. The drum and bugle corps, representing the Thomas Hardeman camp, Sons of Veterans, Jones reserves, were seated upon the stage, along with the gray and grizzled veterans.

The exercises began at 2 o'clock, under the auspices of the Daughters of the Confederacy, with Miss Ida Holt, vice president, presiding, in the absense of Mrs. W. D. Lamar.

The following program was observed:

Invocation—Rev. R. G. Newsome.
Quartet.
Solo—Nelson Mallary.
Introduction of Speaker—Richard K. Hines.
Address—Judge Augustin Daly.
Solo, "Plains of Peace"—Mrs. E. H. Lafayette.
Delivery of Crosses of Honor—Miss Ida Holt.
Song by audience, "Dixie," led by Nelson Mallary.
Recitation—Rev. John S. Bunting.
Mrs. I. H. Adams, accompanist.

Cedartown.

Judge Moses Wright, of Rome, delivered the memorial address in Cedartown on Saturday, April 26. From here he went to Griffin, where he was to be the orator of the day at a similar occasion.

Hartwell.

Memorial day was fittingly observed in Hartwell. The exercises were held at the public school building. Rev. Dr. Howerton and Rev. Dr. Massey made addresses, and the line of march was formed on the grounds at the schoolhouse. The Daughters served luncheon to the old soldiers.

Butler.

Memorial day was appropriately observed here Saturday. The Daughters of the Confederacy carried out the following program:

Song, "America."
Prayer by Rev. J. T. Adams.
Song, "Dixie"—By pupils of Butler M. and F. college.
Introduction of the speaker by Professor A. S. Wallace.
Memorial address by Rev. O. B. Chester, of Columbus, Ga.
Song by audience, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."
Benediction by Rev. J. H. Stanford.

The graves of the fallen heroes were decorated, after which lunch was served by the Daughters in the Butler restroom.

Augusta.

During the morning the graves of approximately 400 veterans in the city cemetery had been decorated with wreaths and flags of the confederacy by the Ladies' Memorial association. Decorations were placed on the graves of twenty-one soldiers, who are resting in a plot provided by members of the association, of which Mrs. John W. Clark is president.

Flags of the fallen confederacy were flown from the windows of the main streets and the hundreds who crowded the streets throughout the day waved tiny banners. The banks and public institutions were closed during the day.

Addresses by Mr. James S. Bussey, Jr., and Mr. Wallace B. Pierce and a parade of veterans, military and civic organizations were the features of the day.

The members of Camp 435, United Confederate Veterans, assembled in the morning at the monument on Broad street, which had previously been lavishly decorated with wreaths, and marched in a body to the Richmond county courthouse, where the morning exercises were held in the Memorial hall. All members of the local chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, and a delegation from the Ladies' Memorial association attended the event.

The report of W. A. Clark, historian of the camp, was read by Rev. Frank Bliss, pastor of St. James' Methodist church. The report was particularly interesting both to the veterans and to the younger generation, in that it told of incidents of the war, on the battlefield, in the camp and on the march, bringing vividly to the minds of the hardy old soldiers the remembrance of the sufferings they had undergone and enlightened the others as to the horrors of the bloody struggle.

Immediately before Mr. James S. Bussey, Jr., the orator of the day, was introduced, tears were brought to the eyes of many veterans and members of the audience, which filled the hall, by the singing of "Tenting on the Old Campground," by the quaret.

To Captain Kent Bissell, at one time commander of the United Confederate Veterans, Camp No. 435, a tribute was read by Captain E. J. O'Connor. Following the reading of the memorial, the benediction was pronounced by Rev. M. Ashby Jones, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Thomasville, Ga.

As Saturday afternoon would have been an inconvenient time for the merchants and others to close their places of business here on Memorial day, it was decided to observe Friday instead, and a very interesting program was rendered.

Rev. Bryan Cellier, of Pelham, was the orator of the occasion, and Judge C. P. Hansell master of ceremonies.

Waycross, Ga.

Memorial day was observed in Waycross with exercises held under the auspices of the Francis S. Barrow chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy. The meeting in the afternoon was held at Central school, and was largely attended.

The address was delivered by Hon. W. A. Covington, of Moultrie, who was introduced by Superintendent A. G. Miller. The musical program was particularly good.

Athens, Ga.

Memorial day was properly observed here on Saturday, the orator being Lawton B. Evans, of Augusta.

The exercises were the largest in years. In addition to organizations and the cadets of the university, there were seventy boy scouts in the line of march.

Moultrie, Ga.

Colonel Lee W. Branch, of Quitman, delivered the memorial address here on Saturday in the opera house. Rev. Robert Kerr was master of ceremonies. A musical program added interest to the exercises. A medal offered by the United Daughters of the Confederacy to the high school boy or girl writing the best essay, was delivered by Superintendent Gerald Bedard.

After the exercises in the opera house the veterans and their families were entertained at a dinner served in the Spivey building by the Daughters of the Confederacy.

Waynesboro, Ga.

Memorial day was fittingly observed here Saturday with appropriate exercises. Rev. Ashby James, of Augusta, making the address, which was intently listened to. Mr. Jones was introduced by Hon. W. H. Davis in a very pleasant manner. The procession formed at the Methodist church and marched down Liberty street to the courthouse, where the address was delivered. The ceremony was completed at the cemetery with the placing of flowers on the graves of the old soldiers.

Thomson, Ga.

Mr. Lansing B. Lee, of Augusta, delivered a masterly address Saturday at the memorial exercises in Thomson, completely capturing his audience.

The prize of $5 in gold offered by the Daughters of the Confederacy for the best essay on war was won by Miss Elizabeth Gibson. The copy of "The South in History and Literature," offered by Mrs. Ira E. Farmer, was won by Richard Bowden.

After the exercises the veterans were taken in automobiles to the Eureka hotel, where they were the guests of the Daughters at dinner.

Clarkesville.

The Habersham chapter of the U. D. C., held its Memorial day exercises in the Clarkesville courthouse. Rev. Charles Bass delivered an interesting address, and Mr. Hinton Blackshear gave two vocal solos. After the address plans were made by which the chapter expects to build a monument to the confederate dead. The chapter also wishes to express their commendation of the piece written by Mrs. A. J. Pyron in reference to the old soldiers' pensions. While we do not criticise the ordinaries for taking the $1 pay for their trouble, we do want the next legislature to take the matter up and arrange for the old soldiers to have their full pensions, and the ordinaries to be paid out of some other fund.

FLOY SHANNON,
Corresponding Secretary.

URGES CHAPTERS TO WORK DURING PRESIDENT'S ABSENCE

Our brilliant state president, Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, of Macon, is taking the rest cure at Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore. A fall from her horse several weeks ago, was a great shock to her nervous system, coming in the midst of strenuous work for the U. D. C. Even in her illness her thoughts are with us, and her interest always in her work.

She wishes me to urge in her behalf special effort on the part of each chapter in the Georgia division for the success of all our enterprises. An outline of most important matter was contained in the circular letter sent to each chapter by Mrs. Lamar in March, and published in these columns.

Let us not delay, but work now with tireless zeal! Let us have a towering monument of beautiful work to gladden the heart of our president when she returns to resume her duties as our leader.

The Sidney Lanier chapter, of Macon, sent Mrs. Lamar, president of that chapter, as well as state president, beautiful red and white carnations on Memorial day.

HELEN ROGERS FRANKIN,
Second Vice President Georgia Division, and Editor.

MRS. J. S. HARRISON TELLS OF ORIGIN OF MEMORIAL DAY

Kindly permit me the use of your U. D. C. column to make a statement regarding the origin of Memorial day. Since the beautiful custom originated in Columbus, and the first Memorial association was formed here, this mother-of-all Memorial associations guards jealously this distinction, as she seeks to transmit the true history of the occasion.

The suggestion of a memorial day came from Lizzie Rutherford, afterwards Mrs. Ellis. She presented it individually to the members of the Soldiers' Aid society in the early spring of 1866, and the suggestion met with general approval. It was adopted by the Soldiers' Aid society at their meeting, called for the purpose of disposing of the hospital furnishings, held at Mrs. Tyler Moore's. Miss Rutherford, Mrs. Mary Ann Williams was made secretary of the meeting, as Lizzie Rutherford had the day previous been called to the bedside of a relative ill with fever. In her official capacity, Mrs. Mary Ann Williams gave to the public through the press the suggestion of Lizzie Rutherford's that had been acted upon in Columbus and had led to the formation of the first Memorial association. The fluent pen of Mrs. Williams gave to the world one of the most beautiful and most inspiring letters ever written. It was as wings for the thought of Lizzie Rutherford, and carried her thought from "the Potomac to the Rio Grande."

Columbus honors both women. They are buried in the same enclosure in the Howard lot, in Linwood cemetery. The Memorial association has placed headstones at the head and foot of Mrs. Williams bears the inscription, "In loving recognition of her memorial work by her co-workers;" that of Lizzie Rutherford, "The patriotic heart that gave the thought of our Memorial day." The Memorial association, of Columbus, published a statement of the facts in book form, "The Origin of Memorial Day," and in it is to be seen the statements sworn and attested to of Mrs. William G. Woolfork, Mrs. Clara Pemberton, Mrs. Jane H. Martin.

A Good Lawyer for War and "Empire."

(From "President Wilson's Cabinet," by Albert Shaw, in The American Review of Reviews for April.)

It seems to be commonly agreed that both the army and the navy are so fully supplied with professional experts that civilians should represent in the cabinet these two arms of the national defense. It has been customary to designate as the secretary of war one who is deemed likely to be a good lawyer. For a variety of reasons, broad legal knowledge is of greater service in the war office than in the executive ability. Most of the executive work of the war department is carried on by the chiefs of bureaus and the army generally. President Wilson having decided to retain General Leonard Wood as chief of staff, the new secretary will suffer no embarrassment from lack of acquaintance with military details.

In selecting Vice Chancellor Lindley M. Garrison, of New Jersey, for the war portfolio, President Wilson was choosing a man whose personal qualifications were matters of his own intimate knowledge. Mr. Garrison has behind him a record of long and successful practice at the bar and of marked distinction as an equity judge. Many of the questions of a legal kind that come to the war department from the Philippines and our other insular territories will find the new secretary equipped to deal with them. The New Jersey newspapers are enthusiastic in their praise of him as a lawyer of worth, a brilliant public speaker and a fit member of the new cabinet.

A Rest Cure at Home.

(From Harper's Bazar.)

I had never realized before that under demands upon my weary self were made by those trivial conversations and simple evening pastimes at home. It seemed that a little social diversion would be needed, anyway. Tired out, nervous people do not need drugs—unless the latter be necessary for concomitant conditions. The crying need of nerves "worn to a frazzle" is rest, rest, rest.

The first thing necessary is a place to rest in—a quiet room where noise may ever intrude, where within the walls may be found the balm of unruffled peace and unbroken silence. If you have a comfortable, well ventilated room, removed from the stir of the household life, which you can set apart for your own use, with the understanding that, once across its threshold, there will be no demands made upon you, no summons of any kind, no vagrant calls to reach you and keep you in touch with the affairs outside during your resting periods, your retreat is at hand.

If this cannot be had within your own home, go outside.

Then take careful counsel with yourself. Eliminate from your daily routine of living everything possible of effort, strain, stress and disturbance. You will soon learn how to rest if you will give the matter attentive, deliberate thought, and yourself the proper opportunities. My idea of resting, before I made a study of it, was to throw myself down upon a couch with all my garments on; with an aching head to be propped up with pillows and an aching body held together tensely; with hearing wearily alert to catch what sounds there might be, and to give feeble utterance if called on.

Odd Things in Exchange.

Card in window near railroad station: "Your Suit Pressed Between Trains." Not our suit, if we know it.

From a newspaper report: "After the gambler was shot, two aces were found concealed in his sleeve." Some sleeve that.

From the South Wales Echo: "Mrs. Polwarth celebrated her 100th birthday yesterday. She was visited by her twin sister, aged 56."

From a woman's paper: "She wore a black velvet hat trimmed with pink feathers. An agreeable change in hat trimmings from the common fur of the pheasant.

Bloom of Youth Now Easily Attained

(From Popular Science.)

You no longer need to "doctor" that sallow, freckled, blackheaded, rough, blotchy, pimply or over-red skin. You can remove it, instead—easily, painlessly, inexpensively. By a new scientific process, which anyone can use without assistance, the dead and near-dead surface skin, with all its imperfections, is gently, gradually absorbed —and a radiantly youthful and beautiful complexion comes forth. Go to your druggist, get an ounce of pure mercolised wax; at night apply enough of this to completely cover the face; don't rub it in. Next-morning remove the wax with warm water. The result after a few days is astonishing. You wonder why this secret hasn't discovered long ago.

Let the wrinkled folks also take hope. Put an ounce of powdered saxolite into a half pint witch hazel, bathe the face in the solution and—say! you're nothing that will so effectually, so promptly, smooth out all those hateful lines. You'll find this lotion, as well as mercolised wax, works equally well on neck and hands.

When you say you trust in Providence, be sure you do not mean you trust in improvidence.—The Youth's Companion.

40 Is a Woman's Glorious Prime

When a woman realizes that her youth is slipping by! Almost 40! She looks back and sees that first white hair over her ear. She jerked it out, and laughed! Then she remembered something, each morning and carefully looking and picking out two or three glistening white hairs. And the years go by! The white hairs pulled out one day were replaced by twice as many the next. And she drifted on.

Are you just drifting toward a gray-haired old age at 40, the age that should be the glorious prime of a woman's life?

We wish you would get our booklet, "Gladness," and read it. At any of our stores, or sent by mail upon request.) It explains why you can safely use Robinnaire's Hair Dye. It is not an ordinary vulgar bleach or artificial coloring. We should have named it a Restorative, because it's a pure, scientific compound that simply restores the hair to its own original color and beautiful, healthy condition. If you have but a few white hairs, don't pull them out. Restore them to their original vigorous color, and at the same time put your hair in a healthy condition and stop its fading. The hair responds quickly to the proper care and tonic vitality. Trial size 25c, postpaid 33c; regular large size 75c, postpaid 83c. Prepared for light, medium and dark brown and black hair. CIVIC PLAN WORKERS WANTED BY ATLANTA

Mayor Sends Invitation to the National Conference Which Meets in Chicago.

Mayor Woodward has written to the officers of the National Conference on Civic Planning, inviting them to hold the next meeting in Atlanta.

The 1913 conference will be held in Chicago, beginning Tuesday, and will last several days. C. J. Hayden, representing the City Planning Commission of Atlanta, will attend the Chicago conference. He will present the invitation of Mayor Woodward, also invitations from Governor Brown, the Atlanta Convention Bureau and the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

A committee of four was appointed to represent Atlanta at the conference, but Mr. Hayden was the only member who found it possible to leave. He has letters from civic organizations urging the next conference to come to the south.

Mayor Woodward sent the following invitation:

"National Conference on Civic Planning, Chicago, Ill.—Gentlemen: The city of Atlanta extends to your honorable body a most hearty invitation to hold your next conference in the city of Atlanta, the convention city of the south.

"Atlanta is taking considerable interest in civic improvements of a character represented by your conference, and we feel that a meeting of such a distinguished representative body would not only aid us in our movement in this city, but would be the means of enlivening improvements of this character throughout the southern country. We earnestly hope that you will accept our cordial invitation.

"Respectfully,
"JAMES G. WOODWARD,
"Mayor."

WAGON LOAD OF LOOT SECURED BY THIEVES AT VALDOSTA STORE

Valdosta, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—The store and bakery of Lewis George, a Serian, was entered and robbed last night of $400 in cash, a diamond ring valued at $125, and a large lot of other goods.

The burglars gained access to the store through a rear window and carried away the cash register and cash drawer with their contents, together with a wagon load of goods from the store. The police believe that at least two men were implicated, but so far they have no clue to the robbery.

A. L. ANDERSON FILES BANKRUPTCY PETITION

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed with the clerk of the federal court yesterday by A. L. Anderson, of Atlanta. Presenting a schedule of assets and liabilities, the petitioner shows that he is indebted in the sum of $93,100. He asserts tha $10,000 of all he owes is unsecured, and in accounting for the other $82,800 of his liabilities he writes in his papers that that amount—$82,800—is made up in "notes and bills which ought to be paid by other parties thereto." The petitioner says that he has no assets whatever.

RADICAL CHANGES IN AUTOMOBILES ARE FEW

In speaking of changes of type from season to season, or general changes in design, H. J. Smith, of the Premier Motor Manufacturing company, says most manufacturers of high-grade cars today have discontinued the practice of designating their various types of cars as yearly models. This practice, which was in vogue for a few years, is unnecessary and undesirable from all standpoints.

Radical changes in these days are few. Motor car construction, as exhibited in the best types, has arrived at practically a standard. The manufacturers who have been producing cars for a number of years have thoroughly tried out their chasses, and changes now from year to year are practically confined to non-essential and external details.

With the advent of successful starters and successful lighting system, the last touch has been added to the high-grade cars. Left side drive, center control, tire inflator, clean running boards, flush sided bodies and concealed hinges, mark the limit of refinement in the body builders' art, and in the light of our present-day experience we do not know what to look forward to for the ne few years aside from minor details.

PROBE COMMITTEES TO REPORT MONDAY

Exoneration for Three Aldermen and Fire Chief Will Be Recommended.

The committee appointed to make an investigation of the McClelland charges of alleged graft against Aldermen Spratling, Maddox and Ragsdale, met at noon Saturday, went over a part of the testimony, and decided to hold another meeting at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon to formulate the report to council.

That the committee will recommend complete exoneration for the three aldermen was made certain, Saturday. Several members of the committee declared that they did not consider the charges serious.

George M. Boynton, secretary of the committee, stated Saturday that the committee's report would be ready for council Monday afternoon.

Chairman Harwell, of the committee appointed to investigate the charges against Chief Cummings, of the fire department, stated that the committee would report to council on Monday, and until that time there would be nothing given out to the public.

It is understood that the committee will exonerate the chief, but will make a recommendation in the report urging that the department reform its methods of purchasing hose.

CADILLAC IS FIRST ENTRY IN ROAD RACE TO BE HELD JULY 6

The attention of the automobile world is already being attracted to the road race from Los Angeles to San Francisco to be run July 4 and which will be the most important event of its kind in the west this year. This is a contest that has been held frequently under varying conditions or route and the like and it is now regarded as a standard test for automobiles contending for honors in the west.

*The first official entry for this spec*ial race has is a Cadillac entered by S. A. McKee, who has previously achieved some startling performances. The contest is an undertaking of large nature necessitating the work of several committees for a number of weeks. The exact route has not yet been determined, but will be either the coast or the inland, or valley route. Business men in various cities are clamoring to have their cities included on the trip and are offering many inducements.

The entrance of the Cadillac for the coming contest recalls the fact that this car now holds the records between Los Angeles and San Francisco. The following are its records:

From Los Angeles to San Francisco over the inland route, a distance of nearly 500 miles, 17 hours 5 minutes; the coast route, 14 hours and 49 minutes; from Los Angeles to San Francisco and return by the coast route 32 hours and 35 minutes; and the same trip by the valley routes, 29 hours, 8 minutes.

POTEAT TO DELIVER INTERRUPTED ADDRESS

William D. Upshaw Calls Upon Atlantans to Hear President of Furman Tonight.

President E. M. Poteat, of Furman university, will deliver an address this evening at the Baptist Tabernacle at the service at which he will resume the discourse in the delivery of which he was interrupted by the presiding officer, Mr. McKelway, of the Sociological Congress.

William D. Upshaw writes the following communication in reference to tonight's address:

President Poteat Misunderstood.

Editor Constitution: I want to congratulate every patriot in Atlanta—that is, every one who can get into the Baptist Tabernacle next Sunday night, that he will have the opportunity to hear President E. M. Poteat, of Furman university, deliver the address which was "stopped at the Sociological congress the past week.

All over America Edwin M. Poteat is known and loved as a man wholly incapable of delivering a "thrash!"

If the presiding officer had not spoken somewhat too soon he and the audience would have found out that he was not talking about Catholicism from a religious or denominational standpoint, but rather of that political papacy from which every student of history knows, many nations have suffered from the days Azef till now.

This does not touch the question of many great-hearted, patriotic Catholics who, were an issue to come between Christian patriotism in America and the foreign influence of the "man on the Tiber," would be true to America forevermore.

Let everybody who can get there Sunday night hear Dr. Poteat on 'Our National Stewardship." It will be one of the greatest speeches ever heard in Atlanta.

WM. D. UPSHAW.

New York, May 3.—Baseball as an incentive to the study of arithmetic which has recently been tried in schools elsewhere, has been tried in the Girls' High school in Brooklyn. Dr. William L. CITY WILL BOND WIRING CONCERNS Alleged "Wildcat" Methods of Electrical Contractors Cause Turner to Ask Street Ordinance.

The practices of a number of alleged "wild cat" electrical contractors, who are said to have secured advance payments from builders on contracts and then skipped out, has caused the board of electrical control to draft an ordinance which will require every contractor doing business in Atlanta to give a bond of $1,500 before a permit is issued.

Councilman Clarence Haverty, chairman of the board, will offer the resolution in council Monday afternoon. He will ask for its immediate passage, or that it be extended to its second reading, in order that it might be passed at the next meeting in two weeks. The ordinance was drafted by City Electrician R. C. Turner, and he states that it has the endorsement of every member of the board.

During the past week three complaints were lodged with the city electrician's department. A case was made by C. P. Bailey, of 81 Decatur street and against one firm, and the department is making an investigation of complaints from the owners of buildings at No. 52 Copenhill avenue and 163 Jackson street. In each case it has been represented to the city electrician that the owners gave contracts to certain persons to do electrical wiring, and that in each instance money was advanced to the contractors for material. In the case of C. P. Bailey, it is understood that more than $100 was advanced to one of the members of the firm, and the work which was contracted for was abandoned after the money was given. In the other cases the amounts were small, $50 being paid to one contractor and $35 to antoher.

"This practice has been going on for months," City Electrician Turner said Saturday, "I have been receiving complaints from a number of builders, but have not been able to do anything, because of the civil nature of the transactions, and further, because there was little opportunity to secure a conviction."

The ordinance proposed by the electrical department is to become effective on June 3, 1913, and it applies to all firms, corporations and individuals engaged in the electrical contracting business.

It requires each contractor to file with the city electrician a sworn statement, showing the firm's name, officers and all stockholders, and the technical license of the firm must be held by an officer who is financially interested and liable.

All persons now engaged in the electrical contracting business, or who hereafter may be engaged in the business of contracting with citizens, must deposit with the city a bond of $1,500 within thirty days. The bond is to insure the faithful preformance of all electrical work permitted under the rules and regulations of the city.

Failure to comply with the requirements of the ordinance will make the contractor liable to punishment by a fine not less than $25 and not exceeding $100.

SENOIA DUCK MILLS AGAIN FACE CHARGES

Attorney John E. McClelland, the Hancock-Holmes Foundry and Machine works and Park A. Dallis yesterday filed with the clerk of the federal court a petition asking that the Senoia Duck mills, of Senoia, be declared bankrupt, and its business placed in the hands of a receiver, and that other alleged creditors be enjoined from interfering with the conduct of the business of the concern.

On April 12, 1911, involuntary proceedings in bankruptcy were filed against the Senoia Duck mills in the federal court. Three weeks later Clarence Bell, special master, appointed by Judge Newman, reported that the concern was solvent, and subsequently Judge Newman confirmed the report. January 6 last, a second petition of the same kind was filed with the clerk of the federal court, and three months later, about April 12 last, after a hearing, Judge Newman dismissed the petition of the creditors and dissolved a temporary restraining order he had given on January 6, 1913, when the second bankruptcy proceedings were started. In the papers filed yesterday Attorney McCleland avers a $520 debt for attorney fees, while Hancock-Holmes Foundry and Machine works ask for $268 for merchandise. Dallis says the alleged bankrupts owe him $90 for architectural services.

AD MEN PLAN BIG TIME NEXT TUESDAY EVENING

The Ad Men's club of Atlanta will forget dull care Tuesday evening, May 6, and get acquainted with one another in true brotherly fashion, in the confines of Denechaud's gastronomical retreat.

There will be spaghetti and vaudeville, good fellowship, perfesion and music—in fact, everything tending to make one forget the routine of the daytime.

Only two things are necessary—you've got to be a member of the Ad Men's club and have six bits on your person to pay for the plate and all the prequisites.

In order that no discordant note may be sounded, the cafe will be closed to the general public that night, "and if you don't have a good time, it will be your own fault."

HIS LIVER AT FAULT, SAYS WIFE OF THOMAS

J. T. Thomas is in the Fulton county tower, bound over by the recorder on a charge of stealing cattle, all because of an incorrigible liver, according to his wife, who defends him as a model of virture and good citizenship, but his liver sometimes affects his conduct, she says. Thomas is now held in jail in default of a $2,000 bond imposed by the recorder.

WHITEHALL SURE TO BE IMPROVED

Final Action Taken on Next Friday—Officials and Citizens Strongly Indorse the Plan.

There seems to be no doubt now about the regrading of a portion of Whitehall street being carried out at once. The street committee of the council, the board of county commissioners and all of the interested property owners, with a very few exceptions, are said to be squarely behind the proposition, as it means the making of Whitehall street as far as Forsyth, and probably farther, a great retail thoroughfare; the enhancing of property values and the improvement of a street which forms a link in a driveway now entirely across the city, as it will afford the city via Georgia avenue and to Grant park and then to Piedmont park via North and South Boulevard. The regrading of Whitehall is regarded by everybody as public improvement that will be beneficial to the whole city.

A Liberal Proposition.

So certain are those property owners behind the movement of a great increase in realty values that they have signified a willingness to council to pay all of the expenses out of their own pockets, if the city will give them the increase in taxes for the period of three years, and they claim that by such a trade they would come out many thousands of dollars ahead.

From a point beginning at Mitchell street to the railroad crossing, there is a frontage of about 25,000 feet, which will be improved by the regrading, and yet, of this distance the city will be called upon to regrade only about 1,800 feet of frontage. It has been estimated by careful real estate investors that the increase in tax values on the street will be $6,172,000. For this immense increase the city will be called upon to expend only $25,000. The total cost of the work to be done this year by the city will be about $45,000 and this includes Whitehall street and the cross streets affected. The property owners have subscribed a fund of $20,000, which will be advanced the city and which is available at once. The work which the county will do with convict labor amounts to about $30,000, and this work will be carried on just as has been similar public improvements on the north side of the city.

The work next year will be on Forsyth street, the grade of which will be made to confront to the new grade on Whitehall. It was not deemed advisable to improve the two streets at the same time, on account of the congestion to traffic.

County Ready to Do the Work.

One reason why the city as well as the property owners are pushing the work just at this time, is because the county has a large gang of convicts at work in the same territory which can be used before the camps are changed.

It has been shown to the street committee of the council that waivers have been signed by property owners with frontage all the way from Trinity avenue to Forsyth street, with the exception of four. Most of those who have signed have subscribed $10 a foot to the fund raised to carry on the work at once. The few property owners who have objected control only about 200 feet frontage, and their objection, it is stated, arises not because of any damage to property, but because of probable temporary inconvenience to tenants.

It has been pointed out that the proposed improvement of the street will not only greatly increase land values, but will also add to the value of the buildings, as stores will be more in demand at a higher rent. The block between Trinity avenue and Mitchell street will become a better retail thoroughfare. All along the street to the railroad crossing Whitehall is expected to become a great business boulevard, and at the intersection of Whitehall, Forsyth and Windsor there will be. It is claimed the "Five oPints" of the south side, for it is the same distance from the center of the city as is the corner of Peachtree and Baker streets, on the northside.

It has been further pointed out that the end of Whitehall street will be a great factory district, as hauls can be made into the city with the new grade with twice the tonnage and at a great deal less cost.

Waiting to Erect Fine Buildings.

That the improvement should be made without delay is shown by the fact that owners of store lots are waiting to erect handsome buildings. Just as soon as the work is started five new buildings will go up, one of which is to cost $60,000. Charles H. Black and Charles E. Currier will begin the erection of their five new stores when the street is improved. Mr. Black has a lot at the corner of Whitehall street and Trinity avenue, and Mr. Currier one on Whitehall between Garnett and Trinity.

At some of the public hearings, it was said, that efforts have been made to make it appear that those behind the movement are interested real estate dealers. While some members of the committee named by the property owners to push the matter, are real estate men, they are owners of property on the street and are actuated solely as such.

The committee is as follows: Robert R. Otis, chairman; Charles H. Black, Dr. E. G. Jones, George I. Walker, Walker Dunson, R. A. Broyles, T. B. Gay, M. L. Thrower, Frank L. Liebman, J. R. Holliday and George H. Boynton.

The street committee of the council will take final action next Friday afternoon.

DR. J. L. ELLIOTT WILL LECTURE IN ATLANTA

M. H. Wilensky announces in behalf of the committee for ethical lectures of Atlanta the acceptance of an invitation to Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott to deliver an address in Atlanta at Cable hall on Thursday evening, May 22. His subject will be "The Driving Power of Social Discontent."

Dr. Elliott is the head-worker of the Hudson Guild, of West Twenty-seventh street, New York, and is an associate of Dr. Felix Adler.

Dr. Elliott's lecture will conclude the 1912-13 series of free ethical lectures in Atlanta. He is one of the most pleasing lecturers in America, and as his subject is one of general interest he will no doubt be heard by a large audience in Atlanta, especially as his work in connection with the Hudson Guild has made him a national character.

MODEL-MAKER WANTED TO PLAN GOOD ROADS

Culverts, bridges and the preparation of models of sections of the best roads obtainable from observation and for duplication in every part of the country, is what the government wants to secure by the work of a model maker of public highways.

PATROLMAN SULLIVAN MISSING SINCE APRIL 1

Patrolman J. C. Sullivan was suspended from the police force Saturday for absence without leave. "He has suspended himself," said Chief Beavers, "but according to the rules, I must prefer charges against him at the next meeting of the police board."

Sullivan has been missing from duty since April 1. He formerly lived at 433 Central avenue, but left there, and it was thought he had gone to his sister's home on Fair street, but investigation disclosed the fact that no one has seen him in that vicinity for four weeks.

B. R. MORROW RELEASED UNDER BOND OF $5,000

Buchanan, Ga., May 3.—(Special)—B. R. Morrow, the wealthy Tallapoosa man who was, at the January term of Haralson superior court, given a sentence of ten years on the chaingang for an alleged assault upon a young girl, on yesterday made bond in the sum of $5,000, and at once went to his home at Tallapoosa. Immediately after Morrow was sentenced in January, his attorneys asked for a new trial, and the hearing was held before Judge Edward two weeks ago, but he refused to give the convicted man a new hearing. The case was appealed by Morrow's attorneys, and acting upon a petition of several people, Judge Edwards allowed Morrow to make bond until the higher court had passed upon the case.

Several wealthy men of Carrollton signed the bond.

Robert Allen.

The funeral of Robert Allen, the 9-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Allen, who died Friday night, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Greenfield's chapel. Interment will be at the Atlanta Park cemetery.

American Settlement Looted.

El Paso, Texas, May 3.—Revolting federal soldiers of Salazar's command looted the American Mormon settlement of Colonia Dublan last week, according to reports reaching here by mail today. American-owned stores were robbed of $4,000 worth of goods.

MADAM! IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT TAKE DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS"

Waste-Clogged Bowels and Torpid Liver Cause Headache, Gas, Backache, Sallowness, Biliousness and Indigestion.

All women get bilious, headachy and constipated—simply because they don't exercise enough. They don't eat coarse food, or enough fruit and green vegetables. Those are nature's ways of keeping the liver and thirty feet of bowels active, but very few women employ them. The next best way is delightful, fruity Syrup of Figs.

Nearly all ills of women can be overcome with Syrup of Figs alone. There is no need to have sick headache, backache, dizziness, stomach sour and full of gases, bilious spells, sallowness, coated tongue, bad breath, bad complexion, nervousness and depression. The surest and safest remedy is one or two teaspoonfuls of delicious Syrup of Figs. Try this tonight—you'll feel splendid in the morning when the sour bile, clogged up waste and poisonous matter have been gently but thoroughly moved on and out of your system, without nausea, griping or weakness. Your head will be clear, complexion rosy, breath sweet, stomach regulated; no more constipation, gases, pains and aches.

It is simply a matter of keeping your stomach, liver and bowels clean and regular. Then you will always be well—always look and feel your best.

But get the genuine—the old reliable. Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." Refuse, with contempt, the so-called Fig Syrups sometimes substituted to fool you. The true, genuine, bears the name California Fig Syrup Company; look for this on the label.

The Manchester Spirit

Cities, like persons, have distinctive personalities. In each case they are composite, reflecting the dominant characteristics of their leading citizens. Manchester is a city in which enterprise, optimism and public spirit are the predominant characteristics. There is an abiding faith, a healthy self-confidence, which does things—which insures an even more brilliant future.

Some of the best people of Georgia have been attracted here by the exceptional opportunities. It is an important step for any man of family to pull up from ties of long standing and move to a new place. This very courage and enterprise of its citizens accounts in large measure for Manchester's growth.

Some church has been in process of building each year of the city's existence. Its $10,000 Public School building is one of the handsomest in the state.

The spirit of unity, co-operation and brotherly love is brought into action in every instance where the city's welfare is involved. Instance, the unanimous vote for a municipal electrical plant, the predominance of the best element in the control of the city government.

Manchester embodies all that is desirable to the ambitious, upright American citizen. Ideal health and home conditions, superb opportunities for the bread-winner, and exceedingly congenial environment.

ATLANTA TO HAVE MOVIE PICTURE PLANT; SCENES OF FILMS MADE OPERA WEEK

Al Bartlett, Atlanta's Moving Picture Man, Is Fast Making This City Famous in Out-of-the-Way Places Where It Was Scarcely Heard of Before---How the Movies Are Made.

By Ned McIntosh.

All last week there was a man going around town with a mysterious looking box and a tripod. Every once in a while he would set his tripod down on a corner, squint into the box and turn a crank on the side of it a little bit. Then he would disappear, but presently you would find him on another corner squinting again and industriously turning his crank. And suddenly—presto! He is gone again.

Did you see him? And do you know who he was?

This man of mystery is Al Bartlett, Atlanta's "movie" man, and if he happened to have his camera pointing at you while he was turning his crank you are pretty apt to see yourself the center of attraction in a Peachtree or Whitehall street "movie" show before long! For that's Mr. Bartlett's business—making Atlanta pictures for Atlanta people, and, incidentally, for the benighted portions of the world, also.

If Mr. Bartlett got your picture this week, though, you should not hold it against him for you may rest assured it was in nowise intentional—unless, perchance, you happen to be a grand opera star. For Mr. Bartlett was out for big game only last week.

Goes to All Events.

Besides being the president of his own company—the Bartlett Film and Transparency company, which he has just organized here—Mr. Bartlett is the Atlanta correspondent for the Mutual Weekly, whose films of news events are seen by thousands of people every week in Atlanta. Mr. Bartlett does not confine himself to purely Atlanta happenings, but extends his activities all over the southern states. Through the Associated Press, The Constitution's news service and also the most gigantic news service in the world, Mr. Bartlett's New York headquarters are notified of every event, accident and disaster of importance in the world, and the Mutual Weekly camera men are assigned by telegram and cable to get the pictures, just as newspaper correspondents are sent out to get the story.

Whenever anything happens in the southern states that is of interest to the world Al Bartlett is about the first man to hear of it and he will have one of his men on the next train out of the city. At present Mr. Bartlett has one of his operators making flood pictures in Mississippi. Soon he will go to Augusta to make pictures of the unveiling of the Southern Authors' monument. And, whenever anything happens in Atlanta, you will be mighty apt to find Mr. Bartlett himself cranking away, alongside a Constitution reporter.

The films which Mr. Bartlett made of Caruso, Bori, Scotti and the other grand opera stars have already been sent to New York city for development, and will be back in Atlanta to-day or to-morrow.

It is not for long, though, that Mr. Bartlett will be put to the necessity of sending local films all the way to New York before they can be shown here. For he is now installing in Atlanta one of the finest developing plants in the country, which means that it will not be long until you can see Atlanta happenings at the "movies" on the very next day after the event itself.

Now, that calls for more talk of an interesting sort. With the installation of his developing plant, Mr. Bartlett is planning to do in Atlanta something that is done only in such cities as New York, Chicago and Philadelphia.

Every few days he will get out a film of familiar sights and amusing incidents along Whitehall and Peachtree streets in addition to his local news features, and he has already closed a contract with a local theater to have the pictures shown.

On all his Atlanta made films, Mr. Bartlett will have the name of his firm and his slogan, "Made in Atlanta."

Is Old at the Game.

Mr. Bartlett is an old hand in the moving picture game. He got into the business back in the early days when the great fight was on in Chicago between the Essanay and the Selig people, both of whom had their headquarters there at the time. Since that time, in war and peace, he has seen it through and incidentally he has fought his own battles, too.

You may not know Mr. Bartlett, but if you are a "movie" or vaudeville fan in good standing you have undoubtedly seen him on the screen or stage many times.

"How did I happen to break into the 'movie' game?" said Mr. Bartlett in response to a question. "Oh, I was just a 'ham' actor loafing around Chicago and tried it as an experiment. I have always been willing to try anything once, and much to my surprise I liked the 'movies' and stayed with 'em.

"It was about the time that the Selig, Essanay and Biograph people, the pioneers in the game, had gotten well under way. I was laying off in Chicago, and a friend of mine who knew the Selig people suggested that I try a shot at the 'movies.'

"But I said, 'Nope, vaudeville's good enough for me.'

"I didn't know what the 'movies' were coming to then, or I would have jumped at the chance. My friend insisted, though, so one day I dropped around to Peck court, where Selig's place was located, with him, just to look 'em over.

"W. C. Boggs, who was later shot down by a crazy Jap in Frisco—the same Jap who wounded Selig at the same time—was Selig's producer then. Boggs showed me around, and I began to prick up my ears.

"The upshot of it all was that on that very afternoon Boggs and myself came to an understanding, and I took a try-out. A friend of mine was playing leading comedian for Boggs at that time, so I felt pretty much at home from the start.

"The very first chance I got in a scenario, I realized for the first time what a versatile sort of a chap a moving picture actor has to be. Boggs hit me in my own gait the first crack out of the gun, though.

"The first question he asked me was, 'Can you ride a horse?'

"Well, I was raised in the circus business. My father used to have a circuit down through here—the old Cooper circus. Maybe you remember it. And so, a saddle was like a cradle to me.

"When he asked me that question I said, 'Yes, a little bit.'

"Boggs took me down to the dressing rooms, in the basement of the little place where we were working, and rigged me out in cowboy's traps.

"My moving picture debut was made in a blood and thunder western drama, 'A Prairie Town Romance.'

"I didn't know it at the time, though, because those were strenuous days in the moving picture business.

"Selig and Essanay were at each other's throats all the time and neither lost an opportunity to get at the other. Biograph was about the only other concern of any note then, but they didn't have an office in Chicago, so they did not figure very prominently in the scrap.

Never Learned Parts.

"The result of the strained relationship between the two companies was that not a player in Selig's company knew what he was acting whenever a picture was produced. The director simply dressed you up and put you out in the arena and told you what to do.

"The reason for such secrecy was to keep the Essanay crowd from knowing what we were producing through any leak in the actors. If they ever found out the story of one of our headliners they were liable to try to beat us to it by producing it first.

"That was in the old days, though. Today each player is furnished with a brief outline of the scenario which is being produced and is allowed time to study his part. That's a great help and it is making moving picture acting into an art.

"'Piracy' or 'duping,' both of which terms in the 'movie' parlance mean stealing and duplicating a film, has been largely eliminated by the use of copyrights and trademarks on each frame of a film, by which a 'dupe' may be instantly identified.

"That's getting away from the tale of my career, though," continued Mr. Bartlett, with a laugh.

"It happened that the time I went with Selig the first troupe of real cowboys was introduced in the moving picture field. The trouble had been a scarcity of leading men who could ride a horse. So Boggs brought Fred Burns and his cowboys over from Riverside park. They had already been with Buffalo Bill for a season or so and were past anything like stage fright.

"Right here, by the way, is where my horsemanship played me a good turn. I had been slated as leading man, but Fred's boys had that job on ice for Fred.

"That's why, when I walked into the arena that day, the first thing I saw was a strapping big cowboy trying to ride a bucking broncho. Strangely enough, on the face of this thing, it so happened that right before my eyes the broncho sent the big cowboy over his head to the dust.

"I forgot the incident until my horse was led out later and discovered that the bucking broncho was picked for me. I saw the rues at once and took a two-mile turn down the road before I went before the machine. By that time the broncho and I were the best of pals, and as a consequence so were Fred and his boys and myself.

Got No Local Color.

"A lot of things happened back there at Selig's old studio that seem funny as I look back on them now.

"For instance, there was no traveling about over the country in those days to get local color. Whenever mountains were needed there was an old brickyard back of Selig's place which had some of the finest cliff and mountain scenery in it I ever saw. The hills and valleys of that old brickyard in their day have been everything from the Alps, beyond which lay Italy, to the Rockies, where the bold highwayman held up the stagecoach.

"We always make each scene twice, you know, so that we would be sure to get a good film. I remember the first time I ever put on my old circus trick of picking up a woman from the ground on the back of a horse at a dead run. The villain was pursuing me with a vengeance and the heroine was fainting in the midst of the desert when I came dashing by and grabbed her from the ground. It happened that the heroine was in real life the wife of the villain, and after the first run of the scene was made the villain flatly refused to pursue again because he was afraid I might drop his spouse. He finally quit the company as a result.

"Those are days of the past, though. There is hardly a 'movie' actor in the business today who has not risked his neck a thousand times in the production of films. It has become a part of the business of the 'movie' actor to do dare-devil tricks on horseback, risk his life on the crags of real mountains, swim from real wrecked boats to real icebergs, and a thousand other such thrilling feats as are seen daily in the picture houses of Atlanta."

After a few years with Selig Mr. Bartlett made his first business venture in the production end of the "game." This virtually ended the war between Selig and Essanay, and these two combined with the Biograph to fight the Bartlett outfit, with the result that Mr. Bartlett was found a year later doing his turn in vaudeville again.

This was not for long, however. He soon went back to the "movies" as an operator, making pictures of falls and big gatherings for Burke and Smith. While with them he made the first motion picture ever taken of Hoxey, the aviator who was later killed, in flight.

"It was not until 1910 that the moving picture business really began to develop to anything like the proportions it assumes today," said Mr. Bartlett. "In 1908 and 1909 there was Atlanta Is Strategic Point.

"Atlanta is today the most strategic point south of New York in the moving picture business, and is destined to be more so in the years to come.

"On the face of it, that is not a very startling statement. But a glance below the surface will show that it is fraught with considerable significance.

"Atlanta is, and always will be, the logical distributing center for moving picture supplies in southern territory, which same advantage applies to practically every other line of business.

"Atlanta is the center of the biggest happenings in the southern states, which, in view of the sweeping increase in the demand of the public for news films, means that every film-producing company of any note in the world will have to maintain a branch here.

"Any news event in the southern states can be reached quicker from Atlanta than any other central point, which is an important essential.

"Atlanta is the south's commercial center. The growth of the commercial film business in the last two years presages an unlimited horizon.

"These are reasons why every film-producing concern in the country will establish studios in Atlanta in the next five years. And that is the reason why the biggest moving picture supply houses in the country will have to open branches here. And both of these are reasons why the moving picture business is going to mean millions of dollars to Atlanta.

"And last, but, believe me sincerely when I say not least, all of these are reasons why I am in the moving picture business in Atlanta and why I am going to put 'Made in Atlanta' on every film I turn out to be flashed on the screens of moving picture theaters the country over!

YEGGS AT ADAIRSVILLE DYNAMITE POSTOFFICE

$1,500 Taken by Thieves—Second Time Office Has Been Robbed in Three Years.

Adairsville, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—The postoffice at this place was entered this morning and $1,500 taken, so C. H. Dyar, the postmaster, states. The explosion stopped the clock at 2:24.

The tools for gaining admission to the house were obtained from a blacksmith shop nearby. The men failed to gain admission at the front, but did get into the back door. The safe was blown with nitroglycerin. No stamps were taken, neither were the checks for the rural carriers, which arrived yesterday.

No clue was left. Government inspectors are expected today. It is the second time the same office has been robbed in three years.

FARMER OF LAURENS KILLS HIS CROPPER

Grand Jury Refuses to Indict Will Veal for the Killing of Evans.

Dublin, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Will Veal shot and killed one of his croppers named Evans early this morning and the grand jury in session here today, after investigating the matter, refused to indict him.

Veal and Evans had an altercation Friday afternoon, it is said, over the fact that Veal was using one of Evans' plows, and it is also said that Evans ran Veal from the field with a large knife. According to witnesses, this morning the two men met in the road, Veal with his mules on the way to start his day's plowing. Evans asked him where he intended to plow, and on being told that he intended to plow in a certain field, Evans replied with an oath that he was not, and started toward Veal, getting his knife from his pocket as he went.

Veal dodged around the mules and Evans followed him with knife. After he had run around the mules several times, Veal pulled his pistol and shot Evans four or five times, killing him.

Sheriff Flanders was telephoned for and when he arrived Veal gave himself up and was brought to Dublin, where the grand jury immediately took up the case and investigated it.

There were several witnesses to the tragedy, and after hearing the evidence the grand jury returned "not guilty."

MOB SOUGHT TO LYNCH WOMAN WHO KILLED MAN

But Mayor of Gary Put Woman in Auto and Eluded the Mob.

Gary, Ind., May 3.—When it was learned that Mrs. Grace Smith, who shot and killed Clarence Murphy in a saloon here last Wednesday night was to be taken from the city lockup to the county seat at Crown Point, a hundred or more switchmen held a meeting this afternoon which, it was reported, it was determined to lynch the woman.

Pickets were disposed along the automobile road from this city to Crown Point and a body of lynchers was posted several miles outside on the road.

Murphy was a popular members of the Gary local of the Switchmen's union. At the meeting where the resolution to take the woman from the police was passed by acclamation, there were many who favored sparing her life in favor of a coat of tar and feathers.

When Police Chief Neurman learned of the plot he determined to brave the mob and take the prisoner to Crown Point.

Mob Was Eluded.

Crown Point, Ind., May 3.—Using Mayor Knott's automobile and making a detour around the point where the would-be lynchers were posted, Grace Smith was safely lodged in jail here at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The mob was not sighted.

LENIENCY NOT AGREED UPON, DECLARES BRAND

Judge Who Sentenced Bankers Makes Statement in Reference to Appeals Court Decision.

Athens, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Judge C. H. Brand, of this circuit, has furnished to the press the following statement in reference to the reversal by the court of appeals of his sentence of the two bankers here, who are now out under bond and whose cases have been assigned for new trial on June 23. Judge Brand says:

Athens, Ga., May 1, 1913.—On last Saturday and Monday following I had assigned for trial at chambers under orders of the court previously granted fourteen cases in which attorneys from the counties of Banks, Habersham, Hall, Gwinnett, Clarke, Jackson and Walton were interested. I was informed by some of these attorneys that the impression had gone abroad, not only in this circuit, but out of the circuit, that I misled the state's and defendants' attorneys in the Griffin and McCrary cases, and that the pleas of guilty which were entered were so entered on the conviction that I was a party to the agreement to let them off on payment of a fine of $500.

This is not true, and I will not stand for this impression to go unchallenged. But the public don't know what it is not true. No one but the lawyers of the state will ever read the opinion of the court of appeals in these cases, or likely have the opportunity of reading it, and probably not one in a thousand will ever read the record. . . .

To the facts: In the first place, there were nine lawyers in one way and another representing the defendants in these cases. Not a single one of them ever approached me upon the subject. Judge Holden in his argument on motion to withdraw the pleas of guilty stated that they had not done so and that they felt it was improper to do so. No one ever contended before me that any of the defendants' attorneys talked to me about what sentence I would impose. So much for the defendants' attorneys.

What Attorneys Stated.

While these attorneys took the position that they entered their pleas of guilty under the belief that the court would carry out the agreement between them and the state's counsel, they "did not contend before me that I ever made any promise to the state's attorneys or ever expressed or intimated to them my purpose to approve this settlement. They did contend, however, that they were led to this belief by statements which state's counsel and the solicitor general made to them. Neither one of the state's counsel nor the solicitor general claimed before me that I had made any promise to carry out this agreement or that I had expressed any opinion that I would do so, but from the conference had with me they were of the opinion that I would not disapprove the settlement, and they so expressed themselves to defendants' attorneys.

The question then arises, what occurred between me and them? In order to intelligently decide whether I misled them or not, it is necessary to look to their evidence, which appears in the record which is on file in the court of appeals, and which shows that I in nowise committed myself. Judge Pottle, in his opinion in these cases, makes this statement: "None of the counsel for the accused had any conference with the judge, but counsel for the state informed him of the negotiations and the agreement. All of the counsel for the state agree, and the trial judge so certifies, that he made no promise in reference to the punishment, and expressly declined to commit himself."

Chief Justice Hill's Statement.

In a letter to me from Chief Justice Hill, this statement is made: "We made it appear prominently in the opinion that you distinctly stated to counsel for the saate that you would not promise or make any agreement as to what the sentence would be in the event of a plea of guilty."

In addition to the above statements, in my order overruling the motion to withdraw the plea of guilty, I made this statement: "Neither of the defendants have at any time ever consulted with the judge about these cases. The judge has at no time intimated or expressed any opinion to either one of the attorneys for the defendants of the state that he would allow said cases to be settled upon any sort of terms, or that he would concur in any agreement which the parties might enter into, or carry out any recommendation which they might make. In short, no attorney connected with these cases, either for the state or the defendant, and no other human being, knew what sort of sentences would be imposed in these cases, until they were pronounced by the judge on the bench."

This statement of mine is the truth, and no honest man will dispute it. The only offense charged against me was my refusal to carry out the recommendations of the seventeen lawyers figuring in these cases. For this I have no apology to offer to any man.

Railroad Sheds Burned in England—Loss $500,000—Public School Burned.

Bradford, Eng., May 3.—Extensive sheds belonging to the Midland railroad containing much freight, burned down here last night, causing a loss of $500,000. Nineteen loaded freight cars and quantities of dry goods and carpets were consumed.

Mysterious fires have broken out in these sheds on three successive Friday nights. The militant suffragists were suspected of a son, but there was no proof of this. The latest fire was evidently incendiary, for the firemen discovered it had been started simultaneously in several parts of the building. Earlier in the night a fire had been started in some cars loaded with straw in another yard apparently to divert attention from the principal scene of operations of incendiaries.

M'ADOO AND M'COMBS SETTLE DIFFERENCES

Washington, May 3.—One of the incidents of President Wilson's trip to New Jersey which afforded him much satisfaction, and which did not become known until today, was his meeting in New York with National Chairman William F. McCombs and Secretary McAdoo, of the treasury department, at the home of E. M. House. It was the first time that Chairman McCombs and Secretary McAdoo, who was vice chairman, had met since the early days of the campaign.

Differences of opinion as to the management of the campaign was said to have existed between the two men, though their relations with Mr. Wilson were always of a warm cordiality. In view of the widespread significance, politically, that has been attached to this situation, the president was glad to meet his two friends for a social chat, especially since Mr. McCombs was scheduled to sail for Europe today for several months' rest.

The departure of Mr. McCombs for Europe revived talk here of circumstances under which he declined the president's offer to be American ambassador to France. There was an intimation that while Mr. McCombs was going abroad for a rest he might be offered the same post later and would accept. So far as is known the president has not determined upon any one else for this post.

45,000 PERSONS FED BY THE GOVERNMENT

Uncle Sam Is Caring for Flood Sufferers Along Lower Mississippi.

Vicksburg, Miss., May 3.—There are now about 45,000 persons receiving government rations issued under authority of the United States army flood relief corps in the Vicksburg district, according to Captain Bankhead, who returned this morning from an inspection of the refuge camp at Natchez. He said there were about 1,500 refugees in the Natchez camp and as many more scattered through the city of Natchez who are being supplied with rations by the government.

Captain Bankhead said that the sanitary conditions are very good at Natchez, Mayersville, Erwin and Vicksburg, all of which places are now caring for flood sufferers.

Captain Bankhead expects to leave Tuesday for New Orleans, where he will hold a conference with the standing flood relief committee of that city.

Major J. A. Woodruff, engineer in charge of the third district, received reports from Lake Providence, La., that the river fell there today about fourtenths of a foot. The fall at Salem has been very slight.

Levee working forces are being steadily reduced and the general situation is considered very satisfactory in the district from Natchez north.

George Hawkins, a well-known farmer, says he has reliable information from a friend who lives on Steel's Bayou that a canoe turned over with two negroes the early part of the week and both were drowned.

Levee Is Threatened.

Vidalia, La., May 3.—A large sand boil developed today in the Mississippi river levee at Lucerna plantation, 8 miles below Vidalia, and Major Barton, United States engineer, put seventy-five men to work at once sacking it, making a run-around, with both ends touching the levee. The place is virtually under control, but the men will continue sacking it up to the same height as the levee. If a break occurs at this place, on the present stage of the river, it will throw sufficient water into Concordia parish to break the mud box in the railroad trestle back of Vidalia.

The government boat Teche is at Lucerna with men and material to hold the levee. While the work at Lucerna was under way, Major Barton was called to Point Breeze, where a dangerous spot was discovered, and left in a motor boat accompanied by S. P. Lambdin, member of the fifth Louisiana levee board, for that point.

The crevasse water is filling the ditch back of the mud box in the trestle at Vidalia, and is one foot deep. The water line is a scant two miles back of the town, advancing very slowly.

With the Lake St. John crevasse water emptying back into the Mississippi through the Tensas, Black and Red rivers, the water will not rise much higher. It is generally believed that the water over Concordia parish will soon run off and the planters be able to replant before the end of this month.

Going to Panama.

Washington, May 3.—Several representatives to-day began organizing a large party to visit the Panama canal zone after the house has disposed of the tariff bill. A government ship probably will carry the party.

$100,000 for Sanitation.

Washington, May 3.—To insure the health of the division of troops now encamped at Texas City during the summer and fall will involve the expenditure of $100,000 for sanitation, drainage and screening. There being no available funds for this purpose, congress will be asked for a special appropriation. General Wood has reported that the camp site will be tenable only until the heavy rains set in next November.

Condition of Duchess.

London, May 3.—The condition of the Duchess of Connaught, it was announced tonight, remains unchanged. The patient has shown some improvement since the second operation on Tuesday and her strength is fairly well maintained.

KING'S DAUGHTERS' MEET PROVED GREAT SUCCESS

Brunswick, Ga., May 3.—The annual convention of the King's Daughters of Georgia, which came to a close in this city last night, was one of the most successful ever held by the organization. The attendance was large and considerable business was disposed of at the various business sessions.

The many visitors were delightfully entertained during their visit here. Thursday afternoon a boat trip was tendered the delegates, stops being made at Jekyl island, where the visitors were given an opportunity to view the homes of the millionaires. Thursday night the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution tendered a reception to the visiting delegates of the convention at the Oglethorpe hotel, which was a large and pleasant affair. The reception was attended by all of the visiting ladies, together with a large number of local people.

Officers elected for the following year are:

State president, Miss Kate C. Hall, of Jacksonville, Fla., recording secretary, Mrs. W. G. Brewner, Waycross; treasurer, Miss V. C. Kennedy, Savannah; executive committee, Mrs. C. V. Avary, Augusta; Mrs. W. F. Troutman, Macon; Mrs. T. F. Broadwater, Waycross; Mrs. M. L. McKinnon, Brunswick.

The re-election of Miss Hall as president was a most deserved honor. Miss Hall formerly resided in Brunswick, but although she is now a resident of Jacksonville, Fla., the delegates to the convention insisted upon her again accepting the presidency.

PLANTING DYNAMITE IS CHARGED TO WOOD

Boston, May 3.—The trial of President William M. Wood, of the American Wool company; Frederick E. Atteux and Dennis J. Collins, indicted for conspiracy in alleged "planting" of dynamite in a tenement house during the textile strike at Lawrence in January, 1912, was fixed today for May 19.

The arrest of the three men last August caused a sensation. Ernest W. Pitman, a contractor, who gave the first alleged information against them, committed suicide while their cases were before the grand jury.

John J. Breen, a member of the Lawrence school board, was convicted of "planting" dynamite and fined $500. Later the present defendants were accused of having conspired with Breen.

RECEPTION BY WILSON IN WASHINGTON TOWER

Washington, May 3.—President Wilson ascended the Washington monument today and held an informal reception in the tower at its summit.

The president had strolled away from the white house, accompanied only by Joseph W. Murphy, one of the secret service men, and had stopped for a few minutes to watch "a kid's ball game," when he suddenly took a notion to join the crowd of tourists who meet at the monument through the day.

At first the president was not recognized, but when one man spied him and insisted on shaking hands, the entire party grouped about the president and greeted him.

When he descended the elevator was crowded so the president gave up his seat to a woman passenger and stood during the trip down, which takes several minutes.

AUTO ACCIDENT FATAL.

Lawrence H. Riley, of Macon, Dies of Injuries.

Macon, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Lawrence H. Riley, a well-known business man, who was injured when his auto was wrecked last Monday afternoon on the Perry road, died here today without regaining consciousness since the accident. His skull was fractured and he was injured internally. His brother, Sam Riley, who was in the car at the time of the accident, will recover.

Mr. Riley leaves his widow and one child, six brothers, S. A. and W. S. Riley, of Macon; Dr. J. H. Riley, of Haddock; J. T. and Frank A. Riley, of Grovania, and C. F. Riley, of Milledgeville, and three sisters, Mrs. T. H. Bloodworth, of Atlanta; Mrs. J. G. Brown and Mrs. W. H. Harrison, of Grovania.

BY RACE BETWEEN GOAT AND ROOSTER
COLUMBUS TRADE BOARD RAISES $10,000

Contestants in contest run by Columbus trade board. From top to bottom: Joseph B. Babb, who conducted the campaign; A. H. Bickerstaff, in charge of the "red" cohorts, and John S. Bleecker, who commanded the "blues." The remaining pictures show the winning "blues" and their mascot.

Columbus, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—A spectacular race between a Blue Goat and a Red Rooster resulted in approximately ten thousand dollars being raised for the Columbus board of trade and the membership of that body trebled.

It was the greatest campaign in the history of the city and the whole town is feeling good over the results. The scope of activities of the board of trade will be greatly enlarged and the office force will be increased. A substantial fund will be set aside for advertising Columbus and the city and county will both be requested to make appropriations to supplement this fund.

When the campaign to raise additional money and increase the membership of the board was launched, two teams of business men, the Reds and the Blues, were formed at a mass meeting at the Chase auditorium. John S. Bleecker was assigned to the command of the Blue forces and A. Howard Bickerstaff was placed in charge of the Red cohorts. Each captain picked a team of about thirty men and the battle was soon on. The Blues selected as their mascot a blue goat and the Bickerstaff forces were represented by a red rooster, which crowed defiance. At first it looked very much as if the Reds would really and truly "get the goat" of the opposing forces, but the Bleeckerites did some pretty lusty eleventh hour campaigning, and when the work was all over and time was called, the official count placed the Blues thirty dollars ahead. In effect it was really about as pretty a dog-fall as has ever been witnessed, for each team raised approximately $4,800, a total of $9,600. Straggling subscriptions will run this past the $10,000 mark.

Exceeded the Limit.

The teams started out to raise $8,000, and the fact that they went practically 25 per cent over the mark shows the strenuous character of their work. In the pleasantest sort of spirit quite a lively rivalry developed between the two teams. It was understood that while subscriptions were not actually limited to any amount, yet $150 would be the sum expected of the largest corporations. A new scale of membership fees, ranging from $10 to $150, was adopted by the board.

The two teams of workers were exceedingly fortunate in the personnel of their leadership. John S. Bleecker, captain of the Blues, is general manager of the Columbus Railroad company and Columbus Power company and allied properties, and is not only thoroughly identified with local business interests, but in a personal way is very popular with the people of Columbus. A. Howard Bickerstaff, heading the Reds, is proprietor and manager of the Bickerstaff Brick company and is also interested and actively identified with the William Beach Hardware company, a leading mercantile establishment of the city. Personally, he is exceedingly popular among all classes. Hence it was that the two teams were well matched in quality of leadership and personnel of members.

Each day at noon during the campaign the status of the contest was posted on a prominent corner, as will be noted by the accompanying illustration.

Novel Scenes at Ball Park.

The culmination of the unique contest was witnessed by a large and highly interested crowd at the Columbus ball park, just prior to one of the Charleston games. The Reds marched into the field with streaming colors, red fluttering to the breeze in the shape of innumerable ribbons and streamers, and then came the Blues, resplendent in their own colors, and each man on the team bearing jauntily aloft a dainty blue parasol. At the head of the Goat division marched Captain Bleecker, carrying an umbrella of appropriate size as befitting the commander of the Blue forces, and behind trotted the goat, taking all this fame in a very serene and matter-of-fact manner. With the exception of this one item—the goat—it was very much like a scene from the Mikado.

A Mournerless Funeral.

While the circus band that headed the two companies of business men played a funeral march, pallbearers bore aloft, in front of the grand-stand and then across the ball park diers, on which rested two coffins. According to the inscriptions, the coffins contained, respectively, the mortal remains of "O. U. Tightwad" and "I. A. M. A. Knocker."

Straight across the ball park this novel procession wended its way, and on the far side of the park, in obscure graves, the two coffins were buried, while the band, with a happy inspiration as to the future of the two deceased individuals, struck up "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

Then a Foot Race.

The mournerless funeral over, the crowd of business men pulled off an unexpected stunt, for suddenly ranks were broken and a race for the grand stand, several hundred feet away, was on. The sprinters ranged from the dignified mayor of the town, himself, Hon. L. H. Chappell, down to young man hardly old enough to vote but still old enough to put in some good work for Columbus. DuPont Kirven, a dry goods merchant, was the first to reach the goal, although James W. Woodruff, of the Atlantic Ice & Coal corporation, was digging for the mark in a pretty lively manner himself.

The Reds then gave a hearty hip-hip-hurrah for the Blues, the Goat brigade gave vent to lusty expressions of satisfaction that nobody had purloined their Angora, and the ceremonies were over.

The unique campaign was under the direction of Joseph B. Babb, formerly secretary of the chamber of commerce of Birmingham, Ala. The result is notable not only for the money actually raised and the new life put into the commercial organization, but the fine spirit that has been created. Columbus people are better satisfied with their city today than ever before, and this is the kind of spirit that means upbuilding and progress.

WOMEN'S BROAD JUMP RECORD IS BROKEN

Lynchburg, Va., May 3.—At the annual athletic meet at the Randolph Macon Woman's college here today, Miss Dorothy Cure, of Roanoke, Va., carried off the honors, and it is claimed broke the world's record for women on a running broad jump. Miss Cure cleared 15 feet, 2 half inches, breaking the college record by 9 1-2 inches, and it is thought the world's record by 8 1-2 inches.

TARIFF PROTEST MADE BY GREAT BRITAIN

Washington, May 3.—The British government has joined other nations in protest against that provision of the tariff bill which extends a preferential of 5 per cent on goods imported in American bottoms. One of the first acts of Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the new British ambassador, was to call the attention of the state department to this provision as in violation of the existing treaty of trade and commerce between America and Great Britain.

It is understood the democratic managers in the house who were at first disposed to permit the senate to deal with this question, it being one involving treaty relations, which belong to the upper house, have recognized the force of the objections that have accumulated from all quarters and will themselves remove the objectional provision by amendment when the administrative section of the bill is reached.

CARBURETOR COMPANY HAS NEW DEPARTMENT

Indianapolis, Ind., May 4.—The Wheeler-Schebler Carburetor company, of Indianapolis, makers of the Schebler carburetor, has established a publicity department in connection with its advertising department. Joe Kelly, well-known Indianapolis newspaper man, a specialist along sporting and automobile work, has been placed in charge.

The establishment of such a department has been necessitated by the growth of the institution, which evolved from a 500 carburetor plant in 1904 to a perfect, well-organized factory, employing 1,800 workmen, turning out daily 4,000 complete instruments.

The Wheeler-Schebler plant will be visited by the English automobile engineers on their visit to the 500-mile race in Indianapolis because of its reputation as an efficient accessory plant. A few months ago Frank H. Wheeler, president, purchased the interests of George M. Schebler, inventor of the carburetor, though the latter still retains his own desk and private work room at the plant.

The Wheeler-Schebler trophy will be raced for during the 500-mile race, the trophy, carrying with it a prize award of $1,000 for the driver, being awarded to the car ahead at the end of the 400th mile.

NEGRO BOYS AND GIRLS SENT TO THE SOUTH

Chicago, May 3.—Sending of half grown negro boys and girls to what was charged to be virtually slavery in southern families, was alleged today to be a common practice in the disposition of negro dependents. E. J. Bennett, president of the Illinois Home and Aid society was questioned on the workings of his organization by members of the legislative committee investigating home-finding societies.

That is the same as sending them into slavery," asserted the Rev. Frederick J. Lloyd, a member of the committee, when Mr. Bennett testified that dependent negro youths were often sent to domestic service in southern families.

Mr. Bennett replied that no better places could be found for the negro children.

False Alarm Draws Crowd.

In answering a false alarm turned in from Witehall and Mitchell streets last night by a policeman who thought he saw smoke pouring from a building, one of the horses attached to the chemical wagon at headquarters, slipped and fell on the wood pavement of South Broad street. After sliding several yards the team was brought to a stop and with an adjustment of harness, continued with little delay. The animal was apparently uninjured. The alarm was turned in shortly before 11 o'clock and the rush of the fire wagons attracted several hundred people to the corner.

Fire at Washington.

Washington, Ga., May 3.—(Special.) At 1 o'clock this morning fire was discovered in the King building, in the quarters occupied by the Washington bank and Banking company and the drug store of John B. Green. The prompt response of the volunteer corps of firefighters and their effective work saved the building from being destroyed.

MAKES RHEUMATISM PROMPTLY DISAPPEAR

Chronic, Crippled-up Sufferers Find Relief After Few Doses of New Remedy Are Taken.

It is needless to suffer any longer with rheumatism, and be all crippled up, and bent out of shape with its heart-wrenching pains, when you can surely avoid it.

Rheumatism comes from weak, inactive kidneys, that fail to filter from the blood, the poisonous waste matter and uric acid; and it is useless to rub on liniments or take ordinary remedies to relieve the pain. This only prolongs the misery and can't possibly cure you.

The only way to cure rheumatism is to remove the cause. The new discovery, Croxone, does this because it neutralizes and dissolves all the poisonous substances and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism, and cleans out and strengthens the stopped-up, inactive kidneys, so they can filter all the poison from the blood, and drive it on and out of the system.

Croxone is the most wonderful medicine ever made for curing chronic rheumatism, kidney troubles, and bladder disorders. You will find it different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It matters not how old you are, or how long you have suffered, it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. You will find relief from the first few doses, and you will be surprised how quickly all your misery and suffering will end.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle at any first-class drug store. All druggists are authorized to sell it on a positive money-back guarantee. Three doses a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to cure the worst backache or overcome urinary disorders.

Recovered From Severe Lung Trouble

Plenty of fresh air and good food are necessary to persons suffering from lung trouble, but something more is needed to bring about full health. Eckman's Alterative is a medicine for throat and lung troubles, and so many reports have been received showing that it brought about good results in a number of cases which were declared hopeless, but that all sufferers who are not benefiting otherwise should at least investigate what it has done for others. Investigate this case:

Madison Lake, Minn.

"Gentlemen: In December, 1908, March, 1909, and September, 1909, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs which confined me several weeks, each time to my bed. Doctor advised me to go West.

"In November, I started for Denver, Colo., After my arrival I met Michael Brody, who, upon learning of my condition, urged me to take Eckman's Alterative. In about two months I began to feel better. I kept on taking the medicine and improved fast. In March, 1910, I returned home. I think I am entirely well, have a good appetite and sleep well. When I left Denver my weight was 120 pounds. I now weigh 163, my normal weight. I thank God and your Alterative for my health."

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' Drug Stores, and other leading druggists. The Science of business and the resources for increasing it!

The "science" of business involves the ability to conduct it; but the ability to INCREASE it, does not lie in how much you KNOW about it, but of the resources necessary to its promotion, and their profitable application. Advertising is a distinct feature of every business. A necessary PART of it, yet APART from it. GOOD PRINTING, attractively planned, is the basis to work on, and the news of your business, "advertisingly" written, combines the real solution of increasing it. Let us put the ADVERTISING SPIRIT IN YOUR PRINTING.

PUBLIC SCHOOL CHILDREN TO UNITE IN GRAND CONCERT

In the woman's club page of The Constitution today there will be set forth the conditions governing a contest in which the school children of Georgia will contest for two complete sets of the Library of Southern Literature, each set including fifteen volumes.

The school securing the largest number of advance subscriptions for the Woman's Edition of The Constitution will get the prizes; one set going to a school in North Georgia, the other to the successful school in South Georgia.

The books have been presented by the Martin-Hoyt company, publishers, through the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. A committee appointed by the president of that organization is in charge and all inquiries pertaining to the matter should be addressed to Circulation Contest Department, Woman's Edition, Atlanta Constitution.

The time for the contest is short, and club women are urged to see that the schools of their communities act in the matter of the contest at once.

too much hot bread at any time of the day was bad, but I do not believe there were any more stomach or intestinal troubles in the old days than there are now."

The doctor laughter when asked about chicken at this season for breakfast, and replied that if there were any chickens frying size at a reasonable price he would like to know about them, as he did not believe one of them now and then could offend the most delicate appetite. They are better broiled for breakfast, however, the doctor thought.

Newly Arrived and Very Smart

SUMMER MILLINERY

Priced from $4.00 to $25.00

Just out of their boxes are a number of decidedly attractive Milan and Panama Hats—bright, fresh summery affairs, all.

They bear the Burgesser mark, which of itself tells that they are correct, but you will see their novel and graceful lines and smart trimmings long before you will note the Burgesser mark. On the Milan Hats of medium and small shapes feathers are used, snowy white feathers, and wings are placed at unexpected angles; crowns and brims are wrapped with satin—all white. Certainly a style among them becoming to you. With these are the correct Panama Sailors of this season, not so severe as formerly—roll brim, full crown.

Veils—Many Kinds

Many kinds to choose from, but of most particular interest right now are the French wash chiffon veils in plain and three-toned colors with satin striped borders at $2.00 to $6.50, and the new lace veils in white, cream and white-and-black. The lace pattern shows across the whole surface and in a border.

These are $3.50 to $7.00.

Shall It Be Breakfast or No Breakfast? This Is the All-Perplexing Question Now

BY ISMA DOOLY.

Little Mary Golightly, aged 17, returning from a visit to rich relations in the north, quite mortified her parents and her grown-up sister (educated abroad) by announcing she was glad to get home, to get some breakfast—that her rich relations never even came down to the breakfast table, and that Leonie, the French maid, had brought her to her bedside, in the morning, nothing more than an orange, some toast and a cup of coffee, saying that was all a lady ever acknowledged she took for breakfast.

"I just told Uncle Sam after I had been there a few days I did not get enough breakfast, and then he gave orders that I was to have bacon and eggs and battercakes, and even a steak if I wanted it. I told him I liked hash better than anything for breakfast, and after that I had these things brought to me," explained Mary.

"But the trouble was my breakfast became so popular that Aunt Mary and Cousin Sue got to coming in my room every morning in their kimonos and boudoir caps after they had had their roll and coffee, and eating off my tray.

"Those cakes look good to me, Cousin Sue would say, and she would help herself, and—I like that hash, dear, Aunt Mary would say, and she would eat it with a spoon. Then they both would take some of my coffee with rich cream in it, though they told me all the time I ought to drink it half coffee, half milk, as they did.

Now, Wasn't Mary Awful?

"I noticed they always looked embarrassed when Leonie, the maid, came in, because she had probably told them that no lady should acknowledge she took more than toast and coffee for breakfast."

"But Mary," exclaimed her parents, "you should never have complained of anything you had in your uncle's house. Your digestion would be far better if you lived on simpler diet."

But Mary's big sister was not so calm in her reproaches. She literally fell upon her young sister with abuse. "For, do you not know," she exclaimed, "that it is actually vulgar to eat a heavy breakfast?

"Why, even the people who do hard labor and who must have nourishment know better than to eat meat for breakfast," and big sister turned pale with emotion as she thought of the affront to good form her little sister had committed.

"But, sister, 'black Mammy' says growing children should be well nourished, and that as long as she lives and the butcher is near, she will see to it I have a chop for my breakfast every morning, though I tell 'Mammy' I like best the fried round steak she had in the kitchen."

"That accounts for the indigestion you frequently have," said big sister, and then Mary talked about people who had anemia when they dieted, and then had to paint their faces to look healthy—that she intended to grow up with natural color.

Properly, at this juncture, Mary was sent from the table, though her father had enjoyed what she said and urged her mother not to "send the child out."

Little Things Are Important.

This may seem a flippant thing—this family argument about breakfast—but, as a lady told me not long since, the little things in life are the most important; that there is always the right way to pin on the face veil, the more stylish side of the church in which to rent a pew, and that no matter how inconvenient it is to serve dinner before 7 o'clock is a horribly provincial thing to do.

Mary Golightly is not the only one who has raised this subject of whether or not the world must continue to eat breakfast, for there are some people who have so firmly set their teeth against it they would die and be—— before they would touch anything before the hour of one in the broad daylight.

These people, who insist upon the entire fast in the morning, do it, as a rule, in their religious adherence to form, the same kind of form which makes them feel they must come to the opera an hour late and leave some time before it is over, because they went to the opera in New York and noted that as many as seventeen of the boxes—those occupied by American royalty—were never filled before 10 o'clock, and that it was customary for these same people to look bored and leave before it was over.

This idea of form pertaining to breakfast is going to be particularly hard on those of our inhabitants who still have backyards in which they raise spring chickens and cows, which admit now and then of a cream cheese or of an extra amount of cream which makes the more palatable the gravy which goes over the aforesaid barnyard product of the frying size.

Break the Visitor Of Diet Habit.

Besides the people who are being guided by form in the matter, there are many who do it as victims of the diet habit. It is stylish to be on a diet, whether you have to be or not. If you are thin, you must be on a diet to get fat. If you are fat, you must be boring people to death about how much you have lost in ten days by leaving off everything at breakfast except lemon water and dry toast.

But, no matter what the diet is, breakfast must not be taken, or if taken, it must not be enjoyed, and the person is traditional, almost primitive, these days who will tell right out that he or she would eat anything so wholesome as a steak for breakfast, while cakes and syrup, if ever partaken of during the morning hours, must not be mentioned.

This question of "breakfast or no breakfast" has become so vital in the minds of many women, and must be so often and so thoroughly discussed, that I thought it might be well to get some expert opinion on the subject, so, for the betterment of human complexion and in the interest of the last good woman who has become an agent for a new kind of straight-front corset, I asked a leading physician what he thought about the question of whether or not people at large should satisfy their appetites at breakfast. He hesitated. I realized a large part of his patronage was probably among the women who have adopted the fad of dieting and who must be indulged in it. "Confidentially," he said, "and to go no farther, this ridiculous nonsense of people not eating a good meal when they are about to go out for a day's activity, is all nonsense. It comes under the head of subjects akin to 'shall the bobble skirt be slit this summer, or shall it entirely cut off the possibility of a woman getting on a street car without risking her life?'

"For the woman who has to see about her household affairs in the morning, who helps dress her children for school, who must go out, for instance, to a meeting somewhere, or to do the marketing for the week, she needs something to sustain her besides lemon water and dry toast. She ought to have a fruit or cereal, or a fruit and cereal both; an egg or two is good, and, if she is accustomed to coffee, a good cup of coffee.

"If not, she is apt to lose the very beauty she is striving for, because to try one's self on an empty stomach produces a nervousness and fatigue that brings a drawn expression to the face, and before a woman knows it, as she loses from fasting, she takes on the lines which she hates worse than anything else.

"Excessive eating at any time is bad, whether it is in the morning, at the noon hour or in the evening, and where people make a mistake is to fast at one meal and overeat at another.

"Everybody knows that the too-heavy breakfast is not good and that the old-fashioned southern habit of

The Vogue of Low Heels

As a young lady expressed it the other day: "It really looks odd to see anything but low heels nowadays." We have a black satin pump in five different heights of heel and practically the same shape toe. We also have the same number of different styles of heels in gunmetal, patent and tan, white canvas and white buckskin.

When it comes to the new English last in either pump, Oxford or boot we believe that Allen has more different styles and a better range of sizes and widths than any other shoe store in the South.

This does not by any means indicate that we do not carry high heels, but it goes to show that what the younger set adopts is usually found at Allen's in greater variety than anywhere else.

English Last Pump in Dull Calf or Tan, Black Satin and White

$5.00

It would be the part of wisdom to select your white and tan low-heel pumps or Oxfords, especially the rubber sole ones, in the next week, for you can rest assured in another month they will be at a premium. We have ordered and reordered on them until it seemed that we were going to get a great many more than we should; but almost the next week the clerks report that they can't furnish this size or that.

This means nothing more than good advice to our good customers.

MRS. FITZPATRICK URGES CLUB WOMEN TO WORK AT ONCE

Mrs. W. L. Fitzpatrick, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, urges upon the club women of the state to go to work at once upon their part of the woman's edition of The Constitution. The time is right when there must be the assembling of forces for the paper, and as the reading matter rests upon the amount of advertising, which the club women have accumulated, Mrs. Fitzpatrick urges that the workers for the edition concentrate on the work of getting advertisements and subscriptions, turning in as much as possible of this matter by the middle of May.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick, en route home from the executive council meeting in Washington, stopped in Gainesville, and there received into the federation the Woman's club organized there. Mrs. Lindsay Johnson, editor-in-chief of the woman's edition, was there to present the subject of the edition, which was received with hearty indorsement. Committees were appointed to work for the interest of the edition in Gainesville.

Representative in Each County.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick was present at the meeting of the educational rally of the county superintendents in the Auditorium Wednesday night, and made an address. She was followed by Mrs. Nicolas Petterson, of Tifton, and Mrs. Hugh Willet, all three expressing their interest in the closer relation of the educational activity of the club women with that of the state and local educational authorities.

A conference between the club representatives and Mrs. M. L. Brittain resulted in the plan which was suggested by Mrs. Fitzpatrick whereby she will appoint in every county a club women to co-operate directly with the educational authorities of the county, these appointments to be announced later.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick returned to Thomasville Thursday, but will be in Atlanta again before the publication of the woman's edition.

ART GALLERIES NEEDED IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

An art gallery is as essential in a school as a library, according to Mrs. Melville Johnston, a prominent social worker of Indiana, who last night addressed members of the General Federation of Women's clubs, at the second session of their mid-month convention, at the auditorium of the national museum. Other speakers were Mrs. M. W. Barry, an educator, of Texas, and Mrs. Elsie Blatchley, with the assistance of her daughter, interpreted and explained, the "No.," classic dramatic dance of Japan.

"Art and Democracy" was the subject of Mrs. Johnston's address. She said in substance that it had been long considered that art was allied with luxury and wealth. This Mrs. Johnston claimed was not true.

"Art has been popular with the wealthier classes alone but now art is allied with riches and luxury, but because the wealthy are free, and have liberty to devote themselves to art.

"It is essential that we broaden the present mean, common, small methods we have of pursuing happiness. The people generally should be acquainted with the fact that this is necessary to physical and mental happiness and the development of a great America.

"It is a foolish system, I believe, that leaves out the study of art in its several forms from the education of our children. An art gallery is as essential in a school as a library or a good laboratory. We should teach children the language of paint and music and form and color.

Educators Work Mad.

"I sometimes think that our educators are wordmad. Children are taught almost entirely from books. The mechanical memorizing process has made books is the easiest way of acquiring education, but is not the most satisfactory."

Mrs. Barry addressed the members of the federation on "An Old Method and a New Mission." She spoke of the necessity of all social service work being carried on in a practical, businesslike way. After tracing the life and development of civilisation, Mrs. Barry spoke of the rapid expansion of the new woman movement in the last fifty years. While, as she put it, women have made strides as the mythical seven league boots, Mrs. Barry claimed that the homes had expanded but slowly. Modern conditions, she pointed out, have made of the home a consuming, instead of a producing factor. Self-confidence is necessary in the development of women, she said. In concluding, Mrs. Barry said that too often in the past women, in working for their betterment, had "spent their force against the walls of prejudice," and tried first to convert the most biased men in their cities, instead of working from the bottom up.

WORK OF A MODEL GEORGIA CLUB

The Clayton Tribune, of Clayton, Ga., carries an inspiring story of the work accomplished by the Woman's club, of that town, the club organized three years ago, as follows:

On February 14, 1910, the Clayton Woman's club was organized in the city of Clayton. Mrs. W. S. Paris was elected president; Mrs. J. A. Green, vice president; Mrs. J. F. Earl, treasurer, and Mrs. Mary Green Stinespring, secretary.

The first work the club did after organization was to have a general cleaning-up day, in which all property owners were notified, and most all of them joined in this great movement for a cleaner city, which has already decreased sickness in our town. Especially is this noticeable, as we have had fewer cases of typhoid fever within the past three years. The next work of the club was to plant flowers in the vacant places around the old courthouse and to wall the academy spring and to plant flowers around same. The walling of this spring cost the club $46, but we have one of the prettiest springs on the old academy school property there is in the county.

Among the many other commendable things which the club has done for Clayton are: They sent one of their members, Miss Katie Dozier, to Atlanta and secured the plans and specifications for the Clayton High school building and paid $500 cash in the building; they seated the four lower rooms at a cost of $500; they entertained the Ninth District Federated clubs of Georgia; they have secured two pianos for the Clayton High school; they raised the money and fenced the cemetery at the Baptist church; they clothed and sent five orphan children to the Orphans' home in Atlanta.

At the annual meeting held last Saturday, March 8, Mrs. Katie Dozier Colson was elected president; Mrs. W. S. Paris, vice president; Miss Maude Dickson, treasurer, and Mrs. J. C. Dover, secretary.

Since the club has been organized, most of its work has been home mission, and during this time the club has raised and expended something over $1,100 for the up-building of our city. While Clayton is on the progressive side, and has within the past three years built about $2,000 worth of concrete sidewalks, a $7,000 public school building, a $10,000 jail and has installed waterworks and a sewer system, these good ladies have done their part in this good work, and they are just beginning to realize the good which they can do by being organized and all pulling together for the better elements of Clayton.

REPORT OF ATLANTA CHILDS' HOME.

We presume this is the first introduction of this home to the Federated clubs' district convention, but we have been incorporated and belong to this city federation. And beg not only recognition, but your sympathy and co-operation. Some five or six years ago, the crying need of an institution of this kind was felt by some of God's good women, prompted by the frequent appeal from working women, or rather from deserted and unfortunate young mothers, who, with all of a mother's love wanted to work and support her child—a place where she could have it properly cared for both night and day—allowing her to get employment and out of her wages, although sometimes so meagre that but a mite remained after her own food and shelter was provided for. Other institutions would keep them through working hours only. Some would care for them until there could be found homes for them, thus separating them for all time from the real God-given mother. Oftentimes heartstrings were torn, and the only joy left to a clouded life sacrificed. This home aids and encourages the mother to cling to her child, to visit it, to support it, while other hands feed it and administer to its needs. It is operated almost by faith. For two years that generous good man, Mr. A. K. Hawkes, paid the rent of a cottage. The last few years it has been financially helped by Rev. Walker Lewis, but the hand of affliction has been laid upon him, and he is critically ill at St. Joseph's infirmary. We have at present fourteen children, ranging from 6 months to 4 years. One is being entirely supported by a Sunday school class of the First Christian church another, an orphan child, is to be educated by a Christian woman. We have in charge a trained nurse and two assistants, who are giving their time. A visit to this little cottage would appeal to the hearts of all they need so much, in the way of chests of drawers, little rockers, picture books, wearing apparel and cooking utensils. The house is lily arranged and surroundings undesirable. One good woman calls every Sunday morning and carries five of them in her car to Sabbath school. And we feel there are a number of good women after they know of this work will be glad to help brighten these little unfortunate ones, and throw a ray of sunshine across the dark and blighted life of the unfortunate mothers.

A PROCLAMATION.

To the Club Women of Georgia:

The time has come for us as loyal Georgians, to become familiar with our own literature. The talents of many of our ancestors have been wasted to future generations; but enough has been reclaimed by systematic research work pursued by the University of Virginia and other southern universities for all our citizens to realize the richness of the literature of our native land. President Alderman, of the University of Virginia has dreamed of the enlightenment and pleasure which would result from a study of the writings of the great men and women who were pioneers in the literature of our new country and it is now his wish that rich and poor, young and old, may revel in the preserved sentiments of our nameless authors.

Therefore, as president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, I express the hope that during the ensuing year the women's clubs of Georgia will make a special feature of the study of southern literature. Our entire season's course upon this subject would doubtless lead on to further investigation.

I would suggest that an invaluable aid for such study will be found in the library of southern literature recently compiled at the University of Virginia, which can be used either as text-book or as a work of reference.

FIFTH DISTRICT HEALTH CHAIRMAN MAKES REPORT

Since the awakening of the modern woman to her responsibility and influence in regard to sanitation and healta, the world is becoming a better place in which to live.

Through the increasing knowledge of the connection between disease and dirt we are enabled to wage a more successful war in this direction.

Our state board of health should be urged to a more thorough going supervision, a demand from the authorities of a stricter enforcement of existing laws on sanitation; the passage of effective and necessary laws regulating sanitation in rural districts, and a complete and uniform system of vital statistics. We should work to have a law passed requiring universal screening; everyone could afford mosquito net screens, and even in this simple and inexpensive way the poor may be protected and the danger thus lessened from the death dealing fly.

Country newspapers would gladly publish educational matter of this kind thereby creating a sentiment for a widespread campaign of sanitation.

It is in the creation of an enlightened public sentiment that we can be most effective.

Can Accomplish Much.

Here we can accomplish much in the great educational effort that is being so successfully carried on all over the civilized world, the ultimate aim of which is to stamp out tuberculosis.

Cities, towns and rural districts may greatly aid in this work with money, with enlightening newspaper articles and with specific work on club programs.

Mrs. Oakley, our general federation chairman of civil service reform, made a wise suggestion to a group of club women who were seeking help from her wisdom and wide experience. She said be sure you have no law governing a case before you seek the aid of legislation. Be vigilant in seeking to have existing laws enforced, which wise counsel we should apply to the laws against spitting in street cars and public buildings.

We should seek to aid in the creation of sentiment demanding the humane treatment of animals.

State laws should be passed controlling the handling of fever and epidemics. Adequate inspection of milk and water can only be obtained through state power.

State Laws Needed.

We have laws it seems applying to local inspection, but the public conscience and intelligence should be stimulated to demand that the state assume its due measure of responsibility in this matter.

Too much cannot be said to publish the need of free public health regulations for rural districts. In New York it has been proven that within the last ten years the reduction of the death rate in cities where sanitary regulations exist and are enforced the result has been marked, but in the country where no such laws exist the results are negligible.

Every county should have a doctor of public health or some official who will act not only as inspector, but also as an educator to quicken and direct popular interest.

Subordinates should collectively urge the enforcement of laws against spitting in street cars, as that now prevails to an alarming extent in suburban cars.

The menace to the city dweller of the insanitary negro districts with its horrible possibilities should be a burning question to the house wife. She should use her club influence, her influence with the powers that be and seek to educate the servant in her kitchen in regard to the sacred duty of cleanliness, not only in her employer's home, but in her own.

We have borne the undeserved reproach for too ready use of speech always. Let us not abate the proverbial habit, but see to it that we talk to a purpose, using no idle word and unguided phrase that may hurt a heart or a reputation, but by reiterating the upbuilding truths of the beauty and use of clean living, impress with the power of combined individual influence the public mind "until to know is to do."

MRS. B. L. WILLINGHAM.

CUTHBERT PREPARING FOR STATE CONVENTION

The Week of October 28th Will Be a Gala One Socially.

The department reports will have especial value and a wide interest. The district presidents occupy a central place on the program with their vital reports and discussions. Many brilliant addresses will be heard on the evening programs from gifted speakers of Georgia and sister states. An evening will be devoted to a beautiful literary program of unusual interest.

Following the addresses of welcome and a musical program on Tuesday evening, Mrs. Fitzpatrick will make her address as president, which will be listened to with earnest interest and enthusiasm, as she talks of the federation's growth and service.

Chairman Program committee.

MRS. M'KEE PRAISES BIG UNDERTAKING OF GEORGIA WOMEN

I have been apprised of the fact that the Georgia State Federation of Women's clubs have undertaken the work of getting out an edition of the Atlanta Constitution. We wish them all the success possible.

There is nothing that has made greater progress for the benefit of humanity than the organization of women's clubs. They have been quick to see the needs for the advancement of great principles, and have been the means of putting these reforms into effect.

The state of Georgia may well feel proud of their women's federation of clubs. The women better understand the needs of the child, the school, the homelife of mankind in general, and the men would do well to turn over to the women all such problems.

MRS. C. E. McKEE,
President Women's International Auxiliary to International Typographical Union.
Indianapolis, Ind.

Woman's Clubs in Washington.

Commissioner Rudolph is right. Woman's clubs in Washington have been an active and effective force in improving civic conditions.

The city owes a debt of gratitude to the hundreds of women who have given good enough to devote their time and energy to the betterment of their fellow creatures. They have undertaken the work with unselfish purpose, and they have accomplished much. There are a thousand things in municipal government which pertain closely to the household and the family, and the interest which the women have shown in these matters has done much toward making Washington a model city.

The word of appreciation and encouragement spoken by Commissioner Rudolph is not only appropriate to the convention now in session here, but it is deserved.

Unforgivable.

(From The New York American.)

A Tifton, Ohio, man once discovered in ambush a sad-faced little girl with a pastil of mud. She was standing in a sheltered corner of a grocery store and was from time to time peering around down the street.

"What are you waiting for, little girl?" asked the man.

"Henrietta."

"What's Henrietta done?" asked the man, with a significant glance at the mud in the child's hand.

"Nothin'. Don't you know she's queen of the May?"

NOTICE TO WORKERS FOR WOMAN'S EDITION.

Club presidents and chairmen of committees working in the interest of the Women's Edition, are requested to read carefully again all the literature which has been sent to them pertaining to the edition. The time is at hand when manuscripts to accompany advertisements should be sent in, and directions will be found in the letters which have already been sent to all parts of the state.

All inquiries pertaining to circulation should be sent to Mrs. Arthur Powell, care Constitution; all matters pertaining to advertising should be sent to Mrs. St. Elmo Massengale, manager of advertising ed Mrs. H. B. Parker, business manager.

Queries pertaining to any phase of the work of the edition can be sent either to the ladies above mentioned, or to Mrs. J. Lindsay Johnson, editor-in-chief, or any of the associate editors of the edition, care of the Constitution.

VALUABLE BOOK SETS TO BE PRIZES IN CIRCULATION CONTEST FOR SCHOOLS

Two valuable sets of "The Library of Southern Literature" (containing fifteen volumes each) through the generosity of the publishers, Messrs. Martin & Hoyt, have been given the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs to be used as prizes in a circulation contest. This offer is open to all grammar schols, high schools and colleges of the state.

One set will be awarded to the school in south Georgia selling the greatest number of advance copies of the woman's club edition of The Atlanta Constitution, to be published June 4, and the other set to the school in north Georgia making the most subscriptions for it. Schools of the Methodist church in separating the state into north and south Georgia conferences will be adopted by the committee.

Begin Work at Once.

Schools are requested to begin this work at once, as the time is short. Collect 10 cents for each copy of the paper sold, make lists of names and full address of the persons to whom the paper should be sent on the day of its publication, and forward names, with money, to the Woman's Club edition of Atlanta Constitution. Circulation Contest, Atlanta, Ga. The name of the school should be given on each list, in order that all may receive proper credit. The contest will close June 1.

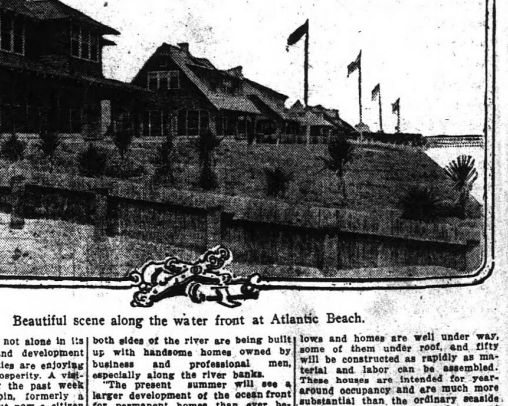
All schools should notify woman's edition circulation department, promptly upon entering the contest, and the names and money should be forwarded without delay. The lists will all be carefully filed and the prizes awarded at the earliest possible date.

All club women are urged to call attention to this announcement, both to the teachers and pupils of the schools and to create interest wherever possible.

All people who know the Georgia club work recognize the praiseworthy achievement in which the club women of Georgia are at present engaged, that of raising a memorial endowment by which they may be enabled to carry on their educational and humanitarian work.

All efforts to help will be appreciated by this great body of women.

Magnificent New City Will Be Built By The Atlantic Beach Corporation



Beautiful scene along the water front at Atlantic Beach.

Atlanta evidently is not alone in its remarkable growth and development and other southern cities are enjoying their full share of prosperity. A visitor to the city during the past week was George M. Chapin, formerly a resident of Atlanta, but now a citizen of Jacksonville, where he is at the head of a large commercial photography and publicity business.

In a conversation with a staff of the enterprising Florida city: "Today, May 3, is the twelfth anniversary of the great fire at Jacksonville. It brought a loss estimated at more than $15,000,000; it destroyed about 1,800 buildings and made 10,000 people homeless. Since that day this loss has been replaced by about $37,000,000 of new construction entirely within the city limits and not including that adjoining but outside of these boundary lines, which have now been extended since 1888. This construction within what is really the Greater Jacksonville since the fire amounts to between $45,000,000 and $50,000,000.

"For comparison within the municipal lines the average expenditure has been $9,750 for every working day of these dozen years, and for the twelve months it has been $14,196 for every day, excepting Sunday. There is now under actual construction in Jacksonville about $2,700,000 worth of new buildings, business blocks, warehouses and residences, and the permits for April just past involved a larger aggregate expenditure than any one month, excepting during the year immediately following the fire of 1901.

The Building of Homes.

"It would be difficult to select any one feature of this development as especially distinctive above others, unless it may be the building of homes. Jacksonville long ago outgrew its municipal boundaries, and with the exception of Riverside, the western part of the city bordering the St. Johns river, no section is gaining very much in the erection of fine and expensive residences. The tendency is toward suburban occupation where ample space, natural tree growth and pure air are available. The paved roads and boulevards for ten to a dozen miles from the business center in every direction and on both sides of the river are being built up with handsome homes owned by business and professional men, especially along the river banks.

"The present summer will see a larger development of the ocean front for permanent homes than ever before. This will be in part because of better transportation facilities and because of the probable electrifying of an existing railroad from Jacksonville to Mayport, which traverses nearly ten miles of ocean beach property.

"This development will be invited especially by the purchase of the Continental hotel at Atlantic Beach and of nearly 5,000 acres of ocean front and farm lands adjoining and surrounding the hotel. This property has been acquired by the Atlantic Beach corporation, a company of energetic men with Georgia capital, who since 1888 have established and only desirable citizens and neighbors who would naturally belong in a high-class community will be able to purchase here.

Lighting and Water Supply.

"The company has in the electric plant and the artesian well at the Continental, ample lighting and water supply. Fine paved streets, sidewalks, sewers, underground wiring, stores, garages, a postoffice, a theater and all the necessities and conveniences that belong in a grown-up and an older city will be provided. The distance—17 miles—to Jacksonville is covered by one of the best brick and cement-paved roads in the south, and when the electric road connection is made, which is likely to be within the next three or four months, an hourly schedule will make it more convenient to the city than any other suburb of Jacksonville.

"The fulfillment of this promise has already been begun. Twenty bungalows and homes are well under way, some of them under roof, and fifty will be constructed as rapidly as material and labor can be assembled. These houses are intended for year-around occupancy and are much more substantial than the ordinary seaside cottages. Streets have been cut through and paving begun.

"So far as I am informed, this is the most extensive exclusive home-building proposition ever undertaken in the south. It involves the expenditure of several millions of dollars, and all the required capital is available. I understand that this property, houses and vacant lots ready for building, will be put upon the market this month. Already a demand for them have been heavy, and inasmuch as the building of such a city interests the entire southeast, it is natural to expect that many Georgians will watch the development of this enterprise and many will make their homes, for a part of the year at least, at Atlantic Beach."

GIRL'S NAME ON EGG BRINGS HER HUSBAND

Moberly, Mo., May 3.—Frederick Kelley, of New London, Conn., 24 years old, arrived here today to claim the hand of Miss Ava Mercer, 17 years old, whose name and address he found on an egg last December.

"On Christmas eve I wrote Miss Mercer a love letter," Kelley said, "and January 1 I received a reply in which she told me she had written on the egg more than a year before.

"He father sent me a substantial money order the other day and said he would give me a fine position and a good home, so we're going to get married."

TEXAS PRISON SYSTEM SHOWS $2,000,000 DEFICIT

Huntsville, Texas, May 3.—A legislative investigation here into the reasons why the Texas penitentiary system has run about $2,000,000 in debt since the practice of whipping convicts, least $250,000 had gone. Because of lack abolished and reforms instituted two years ago, developed today where at least $20,000 had gone. Because of lack of cash to pay its bills or even of definite knowledge when it could pay, the prison system has been charged much above market prices for its supplies. Even on that basis few dealers would furnish prison supplies, owing to the uncertainty when they would receive payment. One of the state penitentiaries is situated here.

Wilson Protects Maimed Man.

Washington, May 3.—President Wilson today prepared an executive order putting into the civil service Swand Swensen, of Brooklyn, who lost a hand and arm while employed by the federal government in construction work at Nesler's Landing, Mo. While the president is understood to be opposed to executive orders taking persons into civil service without usual competitive examinations, he felt in this particular case he was justified.

Mrs. Chamberlain Ill.'

London, May 3.—Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, wife of Joseph Chamberlain, former secretary of state for the colonies and leader of the radical wing of the unionist party, is suffering from peritonitis at Cannes, France, according to a dispatch published by The Central News. Mrs. Chamberlain is the daughter of W. C. Endicott, American secretary of war under President Cleveland.

It was said poison from the abscess had infected Mr. Skinner's entire system. The specialist said, however, he still was hopeful of Mr. Skinner's recovery.

GROVE'S MUSIC SIMPLIFIER. ELEVENTH LESSON TWELFTH LESSON NEXT SUNDAY

GROVE'S MUSIC SIMPLIFIER.

"Grove's Music Simplifier" is a great help to teachers in introducing pieces by comparing the chords of said pieces with those of their representative keys on "Grove's Music Simplifier," and showing these chords to be the foundation of the musical structure upon which pieces are composed, and also show when a scholar has memorized thoroughly these chords of different keys by analysis or otherwise, that pieces can be learned with more ease and comprehension. When all the fundamental chords are learned, the scholar can easily apply them and be greatly assisted, thereby saving much time and practice.

There are four flats in the key of A flat, which makes that key difficult for the piano or organ student to master, unless he employs these charts. With the charts this key becomes as simple as the key of C, which has neither sharps nor flats to confuse the eye or fingers. The lower chart on this lesson gives the chords of the key of A flat, while the chords of its relative, the key of F minor, are given on the upper chart. The top, middle and lower sections of each chart give the three chords of each key, and these are all-sufficient for accompaniments. No other knowledge is required to play in perfect harmony.

Having placed the chart on the piano or organ, play the white letter on the top section with the left hand, and then the three black letters in unison with the right hand.

Next play the middle section in the same way, then the lower section, and then return to the top section.

After a brief practice these chords can be memorized and you may play without the use of the chart. But with the chart a person who never struck a note on the piano or organ before may in a few minutes play the harmonious chords correctly, and then accompany his or her own songs or the songs of friends. Proficiency requires practice, but no previous knowledge of music. If you have followed these twelve lessons closely you have acquired the best possible basis for a thorough musical education.

Every triad in black letters is marked 1, 3, 5. Always read triads 1, 3, 5, no matter what position. Triad $^{1\ 3\ 5}_{C\ E\ G}$—marked—third position, 5, the highest; always read it so $^{3\ 5\ 1}_{E\ G\ C}$ first position, 1, the highest; read $^{C\ E\ G\ C\ E}_{1\ 3\ 5\ 1\ 3}$ second position, 3, the highest, read $^{1\ 3\ 5}_{C\ E\ G}$ and so on with every triad major or minor.

LOVERS OF PEACE DROP DR. ABBOTT

St. Louis, May 3.—Lyman Abbott, of New York, was removed from the list of vice presidents of the American Peace Society today because he signed the appeal of the navy league for large naval appropriations.

Objection to the name of Dr. Abbott among the list of vice presidents was made by Charles E. Beals, of Chicago, secretary of the Chicago Peace Society.

Five additional vice presidents were elected—Mrs. Philip N. Moore, of St. Louis; Jenkins Lloyd Jones, of Chicago; Hiram Hadley, of New Mexico; Edmund Stanley, of Wichita, Kans., and Mrs. Frederick Schoff, of Philadelphia.

All the other officers were re-elected. The society now has more than fifty vice presidents.

The principal officers are Senator Theodore Burton, of Ohio, president; Benjamin F. Trueblood, of Washington, secretary; Arthur D. Call, Washington, D. C., executive secretary, and George W. White, Washington, treasurer.

The annual meeting of the American Peace Society was held today in connection with the fourth American Peace Congress, which held its session tonight.

Free Canal Tolls Rapped

The congress today adopted resolutions urging repeal of the clause in the Panama canal act exempting American coastwise vessels from the payment of tolls.

"Failing in this," the resolutions add, "the controversy should be submitted to The Hague court for arbitration."

The congress also appealed to the California legislature and to the national administration "to secure such a just and impartial settlement of the question of alien ownership of land as may not discriminate against citizens of a great and friendly power, and turn a long-standing friendship into enmity and friction."

Other resolutions express appreciation of the work of President Taft in negotiating the general arbitration treaties which later failed of consummation because of senate amendments; congratulate the nation on the failure of the two battleship program in the national congress; urge the president to open diplomatic negotiations looking to the reduction of armaments, and approve the announced policy of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan to negotiate treaties of unrestricted arbitration.

Object to Military Training.

"We call upon all friends of peace," say the resolutions, "to guard against the insidious effort to extend military training in the schools and to make naval recruiting stations of the colleges and universities."

"A century of Anglo-American peace," was be general tone for consideration at the fourth American Peace Congress today.

William Renwick Riddell, justice of the supreme court of Ontario, reviewed the history of British-American relations for the last hundred years, and said that questions more difficult of settlement than any settled by war had been adjusted peacefully between the United States and Great Britain.

John Lewis, editor of The Toronto Star, spoke on the identity of the interests of the United States and Canada.

Justice Benjamin Russell, of the supreme court of Nova Scotia, said it was a settled understanding among the English-speaking peoples of the world that no possible question could arise between them that was not capable of adjustment without recourse to the sword.

"That being so," he said, "our first duty is to have this understanding formulated in a treaty from the provisions of which there shall be no excepted questions.

"The proposed reservation of questions affecting 'the honor of the nation' which figured so largely in recent discussions of arbitration, is nothing better than that notion of honor that formerly obliged a man to present his body as the target for a duelist."

For International Court.

At a sectional meeting this afternoon John Hays Hammond urged a permanent international court for the adjudication of all international controversies.

"The great Christian nations of the world," he said, "are expending in preparation for war—or for armed peace—upwards of one-half billion dollars annually. The business man regards it as a foolish expenditure in that the object for which it is designed, namely, naval supremacy, is not attained, since no radical changes permanently are effected in the relative strengths of the armament of the competing powers.

"While the business man recognizes the necessity of militarism under existing conditions, yet he recognizes that such conditions must exist as an insurance against the losses that would result from the invasion of a foreign enemy. He does not agree with pessimists who contend that it is impossible to put a stop to militarism until human nature itself has changed."

Mrs. Elmer Black, of New York, representing the church peace league, said that the million dollars spent annually in promoting the cause of peace did not bring adequate results.

"The press has columns on militarism," she said, "peace appears in paragraphs. We should have two pages of arbitration in the papers to counteract one page of militarism. Our pulpits should resound with peace sermons. Great pageants should be held as often as naval parades."

AUSTRIA IS PREPARING TO FIGHT MONTENEGRO

State of Siege in the Austrian Provinces Where the Slavs Are Dominant.

Vienna, May 3.—While it is officially declared that the international situation practically is without change, alarm has been aroused by the proclamation of a minor state of siege in Bosnia and Herzovena. This is regarded as an indication that Austria is preparing for military operations to restore order throughout Albania.

As the people of Bosnia and Herzegovina sympathize with the Montenegrins it has been deemed advisable to take precautionary measures to prevent Slav outbreaks.

It is expected similar action will follow in Dalmatia. Italy has agreed, according to reports, to take military action only so far as is necessary to force the evacuation of Scutari.

The Attitude of Russia.

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, May 3.—Russia will not regard Austrian or Austro-Italian intervention in Albania as a cause for war, according to a dispatch from St. Peterburg to The Frankfort Gazette. The Russian government, however, probably will demand declarations from both the Austrian and Italian governments that their occupation of Albanian territory is not permanent. A refusal of such declarations would have a bad effect on the situation.

Berlin, May 4.—The weekly review in The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says:

"Montenegro should be informed that it will be driven out of Scutari if it refuses to evacuate, and Montenegro cannot expect any assistance in its rehabilitation from the powers.

"Crown Prince Danilo's action in proclaiming Scutari the capital, and the reported occupation by Montenegrin troops of Albanian coast points, destroy the basis on which the London conference has decided to take a further step and make the projected action hopeless. Austro-Italian military action is impending."

F. MONTGOMERY BOOSTS ATLANTA FOR SHRINERS

F. Montgomery, well known in Atlanta, who is now in Memphis, telegraphed to The Constitution last night that he is telling all his Memphis friends how impossible it will be for the Tennessee town to get the Shriners' convention for 1914 away from the "Always Ahead" City.

He adds that Atlanta just has to win the convention as he has wagered a new headpiece with a prominent Memphis shriner, who claims that he knows he will land the bet.

ILLEGAL METHODS CHARGED IN SUIT

Sensational Allegations Made Against Management of the Guarantee Trust and Banking Company.

The affairs of the Guarantee Trust and Banking company, recently involved in numerous litigations, were further complicated by the filing of an amendment to the petition pending in the superior court making charges of the most sensational nature against the company and its management.

The amendment charges that the company was never organized in good faith with any real purpose of performing its contracts, but that it was the result of a purpose on the part of its promoters to unload an older corporation, also owned by them, and which the amendment charges was insolvent at the time.

It is charged in the amendment that Sam E. Smith and H. S. Miles were principal owners of the Guarantee Redemption company, which was chartered in 1900, with a capital stock of only $2,500, and that after conducting that company unsuccessfully for seven years, and finding it insolvent, they concocted a scheme to organize the Guarantee Trust and Banking company in order to unload the Guarantee Redemption company at a price of $.24,000.

Fraudulent Means Charged.

It is further charged in the amendment that they resorted to fraudulent and deceitful means in order to accomplish the transaction, having agents of the company sign subscriptions for large amounts of stock, which they were unable to pay and which were, in fact, never paid.

The amendment alleges that, by this method, Smith and Miles unloaded the Insolvent Guarantee Redemption company, receiving in exchange for it stock in the Guarantee Trust and Banking company to the extent of $224,000.

The charge is made that some of the stockholders of the company heard of these proceedings, and had an audit made by the American Audit company, as the result of which Smith and Miles restored about $79,000 of their stock to the company in order to prevent an effort to rescind the entire transaction.

Wildest Speculation Alleged.

Among other features of the amendment is an attack upon the assets of the company, which it charges were invested in such wildcat speculations as to justify the conviction that the funds of the company were not really invested in such assets, but that they were merely colorable transactions.

As an illustration the amendment cites an investment of $18,000 of the funds of the company in the purchase of so-called Havana bonds from an agent of the company, which bonds turned out to be fraudulent, not issued by Havana or any other municipality.

It is charged in the amendment that the company bought the Hollywood cemetery property for $35,000, and immediately entered it upon their books at a valuation of $150,000.

The amendment charges that the income of the company is being squandered in extravagant salaries, the officers drawing $25,000 a year as salaries, and other agents of the company drawing practically no equivalent sum, and that the management has been such that the expenses of the company now exceed its income, the excess fund for the last three months aggregating only $30,000, while the actual expenses exceeded $50,000 for the same period.

It is charged in the amendment that the scheme of the company is based upon a proposition which requires the company, from an investment of $470, to earn $1,000 in ten years, and that the plan, even if honestly undertaken, would be utterly impracticable.

Law Disregarded.

The amendment finally charges that companies of the nature of the Guarantee Trust and Banking company are required by law to file certain statements and obtain certain licenses from the state of Georgia, which requirements have not been complied with, and that the company has utterly failed to maintain the reserve, which is fixed by statute of the state of Georgia, at 75 per cent of the sums contributed by bondholders, together with 3 1-3 per cent interest, compounded annually, and it is charged that the reserve of the defendant company falls short of the required amount by practically $250,000.

The investors of the Guarantee Trust and Banking company are scattered throughout the country, it appearing that the holders of bonds still outstanding have paid into the company in monthly installments the sum of $842,000.

The amendment was filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court Saturday afternoon by Smith & Hastings, Charles T. & L. C. Hopkins, Hughes & Foster and Dorsey, Brewster, Howell & Heyman.

The same attorneys filed proceedings in bankruptcy against the Guarantee Trust and Banking company in the United States court on Friday and on the same day a petition for a receiver was filed in the United States court by creditors represented by Messrs. Slaton & Phillips.

The superior court proceedings will be called for trial Monday. It is understood that the United States court hearings cannot be had until the return of Judge Newman from Columbus, where he is now holding court.

TO MARTIAL MUSIC OF "MARSEILLAISE"

Fifty-ninth street plaza to overflow into two great mass meetings.

The women's political union, thousands strong and broken into many detachments, was in the forefront of the line. Their banners bore many mottoes. Some of them were:

"More ballots; less bullets; "one sex bears arms; the other soldiers;" "peace and persuasion," "getting there after fighting forty years," "pioneers against the white slave traffic," "let the people rule; women are people."

Throughout the line there was borne aloft on banners the roll of women who achieved great things.

"General" Rosalie Jones and her little band of pilgrims that blazed the suffrage way from New York to Washington were, too, clad in their marching togs and heralded by a brass band of boy scouts. Then followed teachers, students, sculptors, decorators, social workers and musicians. When the latter came abreast the reviewing stand they wheeled, a dark-haired girls of 16 stepped from their ranks and blew on her bugle a bar of stirring music. Stopped by the maneuver, the line behind marked time while the litgroup sang the "Marseillaise" amid a thunder of applause.

Strength in Union.

Bookkeepers, stenographers, milliners, dressmakers and white goods workers, bearing their motto: "In union there is strength," came next. Then followed the army of the Political Equality association, a thousand white-clad women. The New York State Suffrage association with its banner "Victory in 1913." The New Jersey association, "Victory in 1914."

Greek, Jewish, Italian and Swiss societies came next.

Toward the end of the line marched forty-seven girls carrying an outspread yellow flag, nine-starred, upon which were showered thousands of coins. Brooklyn's thousands came next.

Then came the college women, more than a thousand strong, whose members composed the Wellesley, Smith, Barnard, Bryn Mawr, New York university, Vassar, Radcliffe, Adelphia, Cornell and many other universities.

The men followed and after them came the newsboys. Somebody tossed a coin among the boys at Forty-second street. True to instinct they broke and scrambled for it. Then came a shower of coins and a two-minute block of the parade until the marshal could untangle the struggling arms and legs.

Last came the other states where strong campaigns are going on—New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Maryland. And last of all was Ohio —a solitary marcher bearing aloft a crepe-wrapped legend:

"Ohio. Where women by perjury may be ruined. She has no voice in the judge's election; she has no vote in their impeachment. Ohio needs recall of judges. Ohio needs votes for women."

Streets Scrubbed for Women.

The long line swept out of Washington square shortly after 2 o'clock, a white ribbon of marching womanhood, sprangled with the yellow banners of suffrage, broken here and there by the sombre colors of detachments of men sympathizers. Over streets that had been swept and scrubbed till they glistened Central park at Fifty-ninth street. Tens of thousands, held to the curb by 1,300 bluecoats, gave vociferous welcome and applause.

For days leaders of the parade had planned the pageant until it was letterperfect. The city authorities, intent upon avoiding repetition of disorder during the suffrage parade at Washington, made elaborate police arrangements.

While platoons of police began to take positions along Fifth avenue to protect the parade from possible disorderly demonstrations, the marchers, recruited from every walk of life, began to gather this forenoon in Washington square and nearby cross streets. they swung into New York's famous thoroughfare at Carnegie hall nearby, at 3 o'clock, and to the music of forty bands marched eight abreast to the plaza at Fifty-ninth street and Fifth avenue.

Upon disbandment at that point the program called for two mass meetings, one to be held in the plaza, another at Carnegie hall nearby, at which prominent speakers were to make addresses. In front of the great New York public library, at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue, a reviewing stand had been erected, from which city officials and other persons of prominence might review the parade.

How They Marched.

Under the command of Miss Josephine Beiderhase, chief marshall, the local paraders mustered behind the banners of the seven woman suffrage organizations, which have headquarters here. Those from out of town gathered under banners of states whence they came. The order of march placed the National American Woman Suffrage association in the lead, with Miss Inez Milholland mounted color bearer.

Mrs. Richard C. Burleson, who had intended taking part in the parade, was unable to be present and several prominent women, including Rev. Dr. Anna Howard Shaw and Miss Jane Addams, have gone to Europe for the International Suffrage Alliance meeting, soon to be held at Budapest.

Followed then the congressional committee of the association from Washington, led by Mrs. Alice Paul and Lucy Burns; then women voters from the suffrage states and Alaska. The latter were garbed in white with laurel wreaths and golden stars in the hair, and bore aloft a map of the United States, showing the states where "victory has been won."

The Woman's Political union, divided into "professional groups" and "business women," prepared to fall in next. The last named included department store clerks, stenographers, telephone operators, milliners, dress and white good workers and home servants from the suffrage nations, Norway, Sweden and Finland, in national costume.

Men in the Parade.

The equal franchise society, the New York state woman's suffrage association, the woman's suffrage party, the college league; the men's league for women suffrage, delegations from the Interborough alliance and the political equality association followed in order named.

The woman's suffrage party wore yellow George Washington straw hats, adorned with yellow rosettes; and every man and woman in the parade carried a yellow suffrage flag. The men's division mustered behind Oswald Garrison Villard and Mrs. Beatrice Forbes Robison Hale on horseback and a cavalcade of other prominent men and women in couples.

The Benediction of the March.

What Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch called the "Benediction of the March," was the meeting at Carnegie hall.

Dean Sumner, of the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul, at Chicago, spoke on "the dawning consciousness of women sex loyalty."

"The suffrage will be yours," he said, "when you have working in your ranks the woman who measures up to some such standard as this: The woman who is willing to give up her time, her energy and her wealth, if she has it, to see that there shall be efficiency and honesty in the administration of public affairs, and lead in all such movements, realizing that the time when she shall come into her rights of franchise: the woman who will give of her best that all men, women and children may have a fair and equal opportunity to enjoy the abundance of life: the woman who will have her ear attuned to hear the far-off cry of those in want, the cry of the sick and the moan of the sinful, and hearing the cry, answer: the woman who will stand loyally by and demand the end of exploitation of her sex by men in vicious marriage relationship, in industry and in humorality."

ADDITIONAL INSPECTOR NEEDED BY ELECTRICIAN

Because of the tremendous increase in the number of electrical inspections since the first of January, council will be asked Monday to adopt a resolution urging the finance committee to apportion $700 to employ an additional inspector for the city electrician's department.

Chairman Clarence Haverty, of the board of electrical control, will also ask council to apportion $750 in June for the purchase of an automobile for the use of City Electrician R. C. Turner.

The necessity for an additional inspector and an automobile for the department has been emphasized time and again. During the past four months Electrician Turner and his assistants have inspected nearly 1,500 installations, and have inspected almost half that many old installations which required re-inspection.

The resolution has the endorsement of the entire board.

20 TONS OF POWDER EXPLODED IN ONE BLAST

St. Louis, Mo., May 3.—Forty thousands pounds of powder was exploded in one blast today near here, shattering 150,000 tons of rock and smashing a steep precipice into a mass of small stone.

The blast was set off in a quarry at Fort Bellefontaine. The stone loosened by the explosion will be hauled to cement mills. Three thousand carloads of stone now is available where yesterday there was a solid mass of rock.

Preparations for the explosion had been under way for three months. Tunnels had been diven into the cliff and cross tunnels were excavated far within. Each tunnel was wired so that one flash of electricity would set off all the powder.

ACCUSED PATROLMEN TRY TO PROVE ALIBIS

New York, May 3.—None of the four former police inspectors—Thompson, Hussey, Murtha and Sweeney—took the stand today in the closing hours of their trial on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice by buying the silence of informers against the graft system. Through the testimony of more than a dozen witnessed, counsel for Thompson and Sweeney endeavored to prove alibis for the pair and to discredit the statements of several chief prosecution witnesses. The defense rested late this afternoon and court adjourned until Monday, when the defense will begin summing up. The jury will get the case probably on Tuesday.

The alibi for Thompson centered on his whereabouts at periods when former Police Captain Walsh testified he paid graft money to Thompson, then his superior officer. On Sweeney's behalf, his wife, daughter sister and niece testified in an effort to establish that Walsh did not visit Sweeney on December 29 last, to confer about a bribe fund raised to keep George A. Shipp, a report keeper, out of the court's jurisdiction.

France Strengthens Army.

Paris, May 3.—The French government, although it has not been officially announced, intends, in view of the European situation and the increase in the eGrmany army, to keep this year's time-expired men under the colors for the present. The premier is expected to make the announcement tomorrow.

Diamond Thief May Be Here.

A diamond thief who is said to have stolen $8,000 in diamonds from I. Tihkus, of Indianapolis, on a Pullman car several days ago, is thought to be in Atlanta, and the police department have been asked to look out for him. The diamonds were stolen between Indianapolis and St. Louis, but the car on which the jewelry was stolen passed through Atlanta a few days ago, so the robbery was reported to the Atlanta police by W. M. Camp, district superintendent of the Pullman company.

The Case of Mary Phagan

A STORY ABOUT THE STORY OF A MURDER

Sidelights and Shadows on a Mystery

At the top is a sketch made by Henderson from the last photograph taken of little Mary Phagan, the 14-year-old girl of tragedy. Below is a photograph of her mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Coleman, and her sister, Miss Ollie Phagan. The other picture was taken at the funeral.

Could you walk for hours in the heart of Atlanta without seeing a person you know?

What did Atlanta detectives do to keep murderer from "planting" evidence against suspects?

Are all the men who have been held as suspects marked men for the rest of their lives as the result of a caprice of circumstance?

This is not the story of Mary Phagan. It is a story about the story of Mary Phagan.

All of the story of little Mary Phagan that can be learned has been told simply, and without further sensation than the facts themselves afforded in the columns of The Atlanta Constitution from the time of this paper's exclusive story of the grewsome discovery of the girl's body last Sunday morning. It is, therefore, not for this story to shed light on the case, but merely to point out and discuss a few of the extraordinary phases of the most extraordinary case that has ever shocked a city.

The story of the death of Mary Phagan is the most improbable chain of events that has ever occurred within the lifetime of Atlanta. And these events have gripped and stirred the people of Atlanta as nothing that has ever happened before.

Aside from the mystery which shrouded the slayer of the girl, the thing which has held the sympathies of a whole city, as if Mary Phagan were the daughter of each person, is the youth and innocence of the little girl. She was just a little girl. When that has been said about Mary Phagan, all has been said. All testimony that has been brought out shows that she was all in simplicity, guilelessness and purity that is implied in that simple statement.

There have been other cases—recent cases—which have interested the public and appealed more or less to their sympathies, but the principals in the cases were as different as the world is wide. In the other cases there was maturity and experience, worldly wisdom and pasts that came home to roost. In all the interest and sympathy there was a subcurrent that ran chill and repellant. In past cases, could all the tears blot out one word of the sordid tales of illicit loves and intrigues? Could the "leopard skins" change their spots?

No, Lady Macbeth, No Spotted Hand.

But in the story of Mary Phagan there were no words or sentences through which she or any one would have cared to have traced a killing line. There were no stains from a spotted past to shriek their shame to the world. There was no Lady Macbeth in the past of Mary Phagan to wander through the halls of her conscience and scrub with frenzy at the tiniest speck of wrongdoing upon her white hands!

Mary Phagan's life was one of such beauty and purity that when the world knew of her her memory instantly became the fondled child in the heart of every parent and the playmate of every little girl in the city.

There was also the impenetrable mystery of it all. The haunting of a score of horrible secrets that persecuted and compelled the mind to more than mere idle curiosity.

It seems utterly beyond the bounds of reason that a person with a thousand friends could in the twinkling of an eye drop from the face of the earth—vanish into thin air in the heart of a city of 200,000 souls!

A Life Vanishes nIto Air.

Yet from the moment that a street car motorman saw little Mary Phagan walking down Hunter street toward the National Pencil factory at noon Memorial day there was nothing to indicate that of all the hosts of friends who knew her a single one ever laid eyes on her with the blood of life in her veins. There came those, scores of them—who said, "I saw Mary Phagan here at such and such a time," and, "I saw the girl at the other place at this hour," but never a man of them all in the final test could prove that "it was Mary Phagan whom I saw!"

Do you think that you, who are reading this, could walk on any street in the heart of the city under the light of the sun for any considerable length of time—for as much as an hour—without meeting and speaking to some friend or acquaintance?

Yet this marvel apparently happened in the heart of Atlanta! It was as if you yourself had watched Mary Phagan when she stepped off the car and walked for half a block down Hunter street, and then maybe you unconsciously blinked your eyes for the minutest fraction of a second, and when you opened them again—Mary Phagan was not there! It was as if some invisible master of the black art had whispered a magic word, and—Presto! In the act of taking a step Mary Phagan was gone—as utterly vanished as the snows of yesteryear!

Notes Written By a Light.

That they were written by a light is beyond all question. Each line of the notes follows accurately the ruling of the paper upon which they were written. Could this have been accomplished in the darkness of the remote corner where her body was found? Where then could they have been written?

One note says, "He pushed down this hole." At the bottom of "this hole" is the only light in the basement—a single sickly gas jet.

Two days after Newt Lee was arrested a bloody shirt was found at his home. Why did the detectives wait two days after Newt Lee was arrested before they searched his home for evidence? And who was watching his home in the meantime to see that evidence was not "planted?"

Three days after the murder the register of the watchman's time clock showed three discrepancies of an hour each. Possibly the clock was registered correctly Sunday. Who was watching to see that it was not changed?

Others were in the building on Monday besides empolyees. The factory was operated on Tuesday and Wednesday. Others not connected with the factory were allowed to enter the building.

As a matter of fact what detective was watching Leo M. Frank's home to see that no one entered it and stole a monogram handkerchief, say, stained it with blood and placed it in the basement of the building, where the girl's body was found? What did the detectives do to keep the real murderers from planting evidence against those under suspicion?

And, do you think it was possible for the letter which purported to have been dropped by Mary Phagan on the street car in which she came into the city Saturday at noon to have lain undiscovered in that street car until Wednesday when it was first discovered—four days after she was last on the car?

Who Planted The Evidence?

Is there in your mind, reader, a question as to whether there was some one at large who was very, very busy while Newt Lee, Leo Frank, Arthur Mullinax and J. M. Gantt languished in jail?

Again—the mystery!

Who had been "planting" the evidence?

And why?

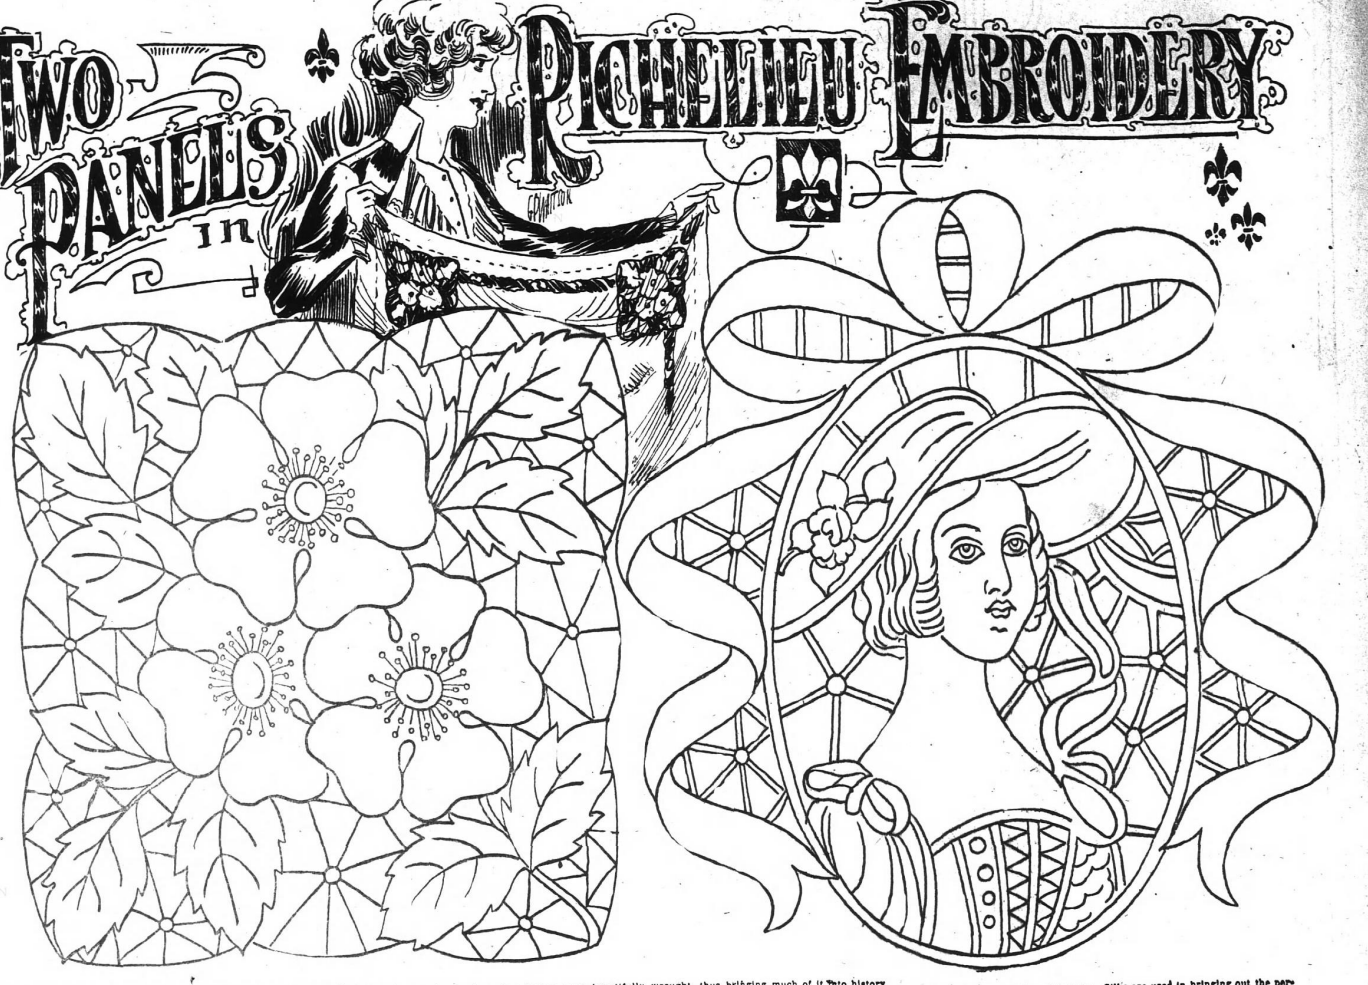
And what about Newt Lee, Frank, Mullinax and Gantt? Are these marked men for the remainder of their lives? Will they go through life always with a finger pointing at them and some one saying "There is the man who was mixed up in that murder?" Are they victims of circumstance? Has a caprice of chance placed a brand upon them for life?

At this minute I glance out my window. Out of the darkness looms the building of the National Pencil company, and from a window in the top story shines dimly one wee little light. Except for this there is nothing but darkness, gloom, great haunting shadows and mystery.

This scene seems, somehow, to typify for me the case of Mary Phagan, and that one tiny light is little Mary herself—the only bright spot in the whole horrible story!

This Attractive And Useful Design For Needleworkers Can Be Transferred Without Recourse To The Old And Obsolete Tracing Paper Method Which Is Unreliable At Best.

TWO PANELS IN RICHELIEU EMBROIDERY



Panel embroidery antidates to the earliest acts of needlework, at which time less work was done, but it was more beautifully wrought, thus bringing much of it into history

Panel embroidery demands the greatest care in following each and every line with every stitch as a significant feature. Careless work should not be tolerated, for once the panel is finished, it is a thing of beauty. Silks are used in bringing out the perfect design, and any number of colors can be used, though dull tones, such as are shown in tapestry, are best suited to the work.

Take, for example the panel showing the woman's head as a central motif. The form can be solidly worked, but so carefully must cue blend the colors that no one tint should predominate, though, of course, the color of the eyes, lips, hair and cheeks should be distinguishable. The ribbon and scroll effects can be in heavy relief, raised slightly, but not padded. If care is exercised, this entire panel can be worked in flat surface effect. The background must be worked wholly in one tone and in one direction.

The floral panel is an outline design and its fretwork of lines and leaves furnishes a pleasing background to the flowers. The Battenberg stitches are used here, and the flowers can be made wholly in lace stitches. If, however, they are made in Battenberg lace fashion, then embroider the outside leaves in solid satin stitch. Only very fine silk or floss will look attractive for use in either pattern.

TO TRANSFER THIS DESIGN.

Put a cake of soap (laundry will do) in a pint of hot water, stir vigorously and remove the soap. Saturate this Design with the soap and water mixture, then remove the excess moisture by partially drying the saturated Design or by applying a sheet of blotting paper. Place the material or fabric to which the design is to be transferred on a hard, flat surface and lay the Design, face down, upon the material. Cover with a dry sheet of thick paper or two folds of newspaper, and with the bowl of a tablespoon rub, pressing hard, until the Design is entirely transferred, being careful to rub from, rather than toward you. When rubbing, you can see if enough pressure is being applied by lifting a corner of the Design to note how well it's taking. Do not wet the material nor rub the face of the Design with damp fingers. To remove the Design lines after the article is completed, wash in warm water, with soap. The entire process is very simple and with a little care you can easily make perfect transfers to any kind of goods.

PATENT PENDING.

CAKE icing will not crack when cut if a little thick cream is added to it. Allow one teaspoonful to each white of egg.

TO mend the side of an iron utensil use putty. Place ashes and salt over the putty, which will thus be effectually hardened in a few days.

IF clothes are soaked overnight the labor of washing will be greatly lightened by adding one teaspoonful of pure ammonia to each tub of water.

AFTER removing all dust, wipe screen doors with kerosene and they will look new, and as long as the odor remains mosquitoes and moth millers will give them a wide berth.

VENETIAN cloth which has worn shiny in parts can be renovated in a simple manner. Boil the material in a wet cloth and leave for several hours. Hold one inch above it a very hot iron. The steam arising from the damp goods will raise the nap of the cloth.

A HOUSEWIFE who was puzzled to know how she could put fruit in the refrigerator and not have it scent the butter and milk by the side of it caught the idea of emptying out the baskets into glass cans and putting on the tops.

FIVE or six thicknesses of common newspaper placed between light layers of cotton and covered and tacked in the usual way make a warm, light, cheap, and sanitary quilt. Those who have not tried it will be surprised at its warmth and durability. In these days of high priced cotton, many will find this an economical means of keeping warm.

IN washing paint be sure to use clean, hot water and as little soap as possible. Dry the paint very quickly, as it will be injured and become streaky by the water being left resting on it. If there be dirty spots, rub with turpentine, using only a little on the cloth. If the paint be unvarnished, use whiting in the water, or wash with cold tea. The flannel for washing must not be wet much, and the paint should be dried quickly. No scrubbing-brush should ever be used on paint.

IF when taking the meat of the lobster out of the shell you will work on an opened newspaper it is a simple matter to pick up the refuse without so much as soiling the table on which it has lain.

TO remove furniture dents, wet the scar with warm water. Soak in warm water a piece of heavy brown paper, double it about four times, lay it over the dent and press with a hot iron. Leave the iron on the paper until all moisture is absorbed. If the dent is not then removed repeat the process.

SAVE water you wash rice in for a thin starch. Boil and add a bit of paraffine.

Vinegar and salt will clean water bottles, vases, pitchers, etc.

Buy from the baker, by the dozen, the fifty pound flour sacks, wash and hem them, and you will have plenty of tea towels cheap and good.

GLASS flower vases are apt to become much stained in time, especially if such flowers as mignonette and forget-me-nots are left in them for a few days without changing the water. To remove the stains few methods are better than that of placing a handful of used tea leaves at the bottom of the vase with a little vinegar, and with the hand placed across the top, shaking it until the marks have disappeared. If not completely eliminated, this should be repeated, while in addition a rag wound around a stick and pushed into the crevices will effectually remove the most obstinate stains.

SMOOTHING WRINKLES

Now Done By Electricity.

BY LUCILLE DAUDET.

MANY women are taken by surprise by a sudden, or rather premature appearance of aging upon their faces and worry themselves nearly sick over it, never for one minute considering that it is to be attributed to nothing else but the food consumed.

If you eat food that does not agree with your system, your digestive organs will never do their work properly and the consequence will be in all probability be lines and an aging of the face, long before you are old enough for this manifestation. The first step I would suggest is to take a complete change in diet.

Much to the discust of the American woman, it is a fact that her complexion is not her strong suit; quite the contrary, she ranges way after the English, German and Scandinavian women, as far as this is concerned.

True, the American eats only three meals a day, but three "square ones," beginning with breakfast, which in every other country would make a good-sized dinner. What other nations would ever dream of such a thing? Meat for breakfast, and the worst about these hearty breakfasts is that one does not take the time to digest them properly, nor is the food properly chewed and the result is—acute indigestion and a cloudy, blotchy skin.

The Southern woman with the beautiful, clear, spotless complexion, would snap her fingers at a breakfast consisting of all sorts of meat., eggs, coffee and other Northern essentials—all she wants is some nice fresh fruit—an orange, or a peach or two—a bit of fresh bread with butter and a cup of milk or chocolate. And this, possibly with the addition of some simple, nourishing breakfast cereal, would be a plenty for any woman, and will be certain not to have any disadvantageous effect upon the skin of anyone.

The beauty experts have now devised a method of getting rid of wrinkles by means of the electric iron. Here is the plan:

Moisten the face to be treated with very hot water; dry it lightly and massage with some good skin food, over which a damp cloth is spread, and then, with a warm—not hot—electric iron proceed to iron out the wrinkles. This is a new form of steaming the face, and a very much improved one, as it will prove a good deal more effective than ordinary steaming.

If the wrinkles are very deep set, the face must undergo a complete laundering process. It must first be washed with hot water and soap, then lather the face with a thick soap jelly, after which rub it with the finger tips into the skin. After one is through with this, the tough outer skin has been removed and the coloring is exquisitely delicate.

Next comes the pressing. The electric iron, which must be kept at a steady even temperature, will, it is claimed, work absolute wonders on the skin, pressing out all the wrinkles and furrows as though by magic.

The woman who grows fat may temporarily lose her wrinkles, but as soon as she engages in trying to reduce her weight the wrinkles will show, and show plainly, merely for the reason that she did not know how to treat her face while reducing flesh.

The skin must be tightened in a case like this, daily bathing the flesh with benzoinated facial wash, acting as an astringent, tightening the cuticle and preventing the gathering of the wrinkles. A bag of pine needles thrown into the bath will also prevent the wrinkling of the skin.

With all these remedies and preventing and curing methods the face ought to grow prettier from day to day, or, at least, should stay pretty for an indefinite time, and there no longer is an excuse for bad complexion and wrinkles, as they can be so easily removed.

A woman certainly not only has the right to make herself as attractive as she possibly can, but she ought to consider it a duty, homeliness no longer being an affliction against which one cannot fight, but, unless there are grave organic reasons, sheer neglect.

MAKE a slip the proper size, turn wrong side out, cover thickly with cotton batting, and tack firm with twine. Turn right side out again and fill with excelsior that has been clipped fine with scissors, and you will have a satisfactory pillow at little cost.

A DAMP room or cupboard may be dried by keeping in it a jar containing quicklime. The lime will absorb the damp and keep the air dry and pure. It must be frequently renewed, as it loses its power.

CHOOSING A HUSBAND

BY MRS. McCUNE.

DON'T expect to find a perfect man. You will wait long, if you do, before you find him, and when you think you have him also. I fear that you will, upon intimate acquaintance, discover some flaw.

Most men have their failings. But we should distinguish between these foibles and infirmities and moral delinquencies.

No greater mistake can be made than for a woman to marry a man for the purpose of reforming him. This experience has been tried too many times and disastrously failed to give much hope. The girl who marries a man who drinks runs an awful risk of unhappiness and misery. The fate of tens of thousands ought to warn her not to intrust her welfare to such a man.

There is only one foundation for true marriage and that is love. Marry simply and solely for love.

This alone is worthy of human beings. This alone can hallow the married life, give grace for its trials, strength for its burdens, patience for its discords and sanctify its relations.

But before you give your love, be sure that its object is lovable. Love should be subject to reason, and unless the object of your affection can also command your respect, and satisfy your judgment, you would better tear the fruit from your heart. Otherwise it will bear only disappointment and sorrow.

Demand, then, in your would-be husband that he be a manly man. Manhood is always at a premium. It was never more so than today, and nowhere is it more desirable than in married life.

Some will tell you that money is an indispensable condition; that it must enter into the eligibility of a husband. It is not to be despised. But money is as often a curse as it is a blessing.

The greatest, purest happiness is not confined to the circles of the rich.

Every once in a while the curtain is drawn aside and the public gets a glimpse of the life of the wealthy. Not infrequently there is revealed an amount of infelicity which is painful to contemplate.

Money, which they possess in plenty, has been only a source of unhappiness to these people.

CONQUER YOUR PET HABITS

BY ANNETTE ANGERT.

SMALL habits and mannerisms betoken good or bad breeding.

It is hard to cure one's self of everyday mannerisms, but it can be done if you keep at it perseveringly.

Take for instance, the habit of yawning in public without making any attempt to conceal your widely opened mouth. No man or woman who had any claim to good breeding would think of doing such a thing. Not only is it extremely unbecoming to stretch your mouth from ear to ear, but it is not a pleasant sight for other people.

Of course, you can't keep from yawning, but you can place your hand over your mouth when you do yawn.

Another rude and exceedingly aggravating habit is that of interrupting conversation, taking the words out of people's mouths and carrying on the story yourself. Wait until the other person is finished, and then have your say.

I know a woman who always breathes right into your face when she talks to you. If you move back she moves a step closer. It gets on your nerves until you almost give her a good, vigorous push.

A very objectionable habit in women is that of crossing their knees. It is unladylike.

To walk out of a restaurant with a toothpick in your mouth or use a toothpick at all is the very acme of ill-breeding.

Don't talk at the top of your voice about your own private concerns when in public; the public is not interested and prefers to read its newspaper in peace.

There is another very annoying habit that is common to a great many people. It is the habit of asking questions and not listening to the answers, which necessitates asking the same question three or four times.

It is a habit that makes a man push past a woman getting on or off a car. He does not save ten seconds by his rudeness, but he is so in the habit of pushing his way along that he does it mechanically.

A very good-looking woman of my acquaintance has a habit of pinching her nose. It is a very nice nose, but she makes it fiery red about half the time by her pinching. She does not realize how often she does it, and eventually it will spoil her looks.

It's no use saying that you can't cure a habit like any of the small ones mentioned. You can if you exercise your will power. It won't take long; just keep it continually on your mind, and never give way to it.

After a while you will forget all about it.

EVENING GOWNS

BY EDNA EGAN.

THE modish evening gown at present is highly colorful and picturesque. It is draped in the most attractive manner and fashioned of the loveliest fabrics the loom can weave.

Brocades in the most wonderful designs, frequently outlined with threads of gold or silver, are used extensively to fashion evening gowns.

White silk brocaded in silver was fashioned into a gown with soft skirt draperies. The corsage, beautifully ornamented with embroidery of crystal and silver beads, had bands of tulle outlining the decollatage and sleeves which were formed of chiffon puffs.

At the opera this season the lovely poppy pink and red, citron yellow, madonna blue, eggplant purple and malachite green are much in evidence, though many fashionable women cling to the white embroidered with gold or silver, or black elaborately beaded with crystal and pearl beads.

A gown which attracted attention was fashioned of poppy-pink satin brocaded in gold. From either side of a box pleat, which extended the entire length of the front, a semi-panier drapery fell below the knees.

The low bodice of brocade was veiled with a deep collar of filmy gold lace, and the undersleeves were of flesh-colored chiffon.

Another striking gown noticed the same evening was of silver brocade with a tunic drapery of black net embroidered with silver and rhinestones. The lace partly veils the bodice and forms the short sleeves, which are left open to show the arm to the shoulder, but are caught at the bottom with a silver ornament.

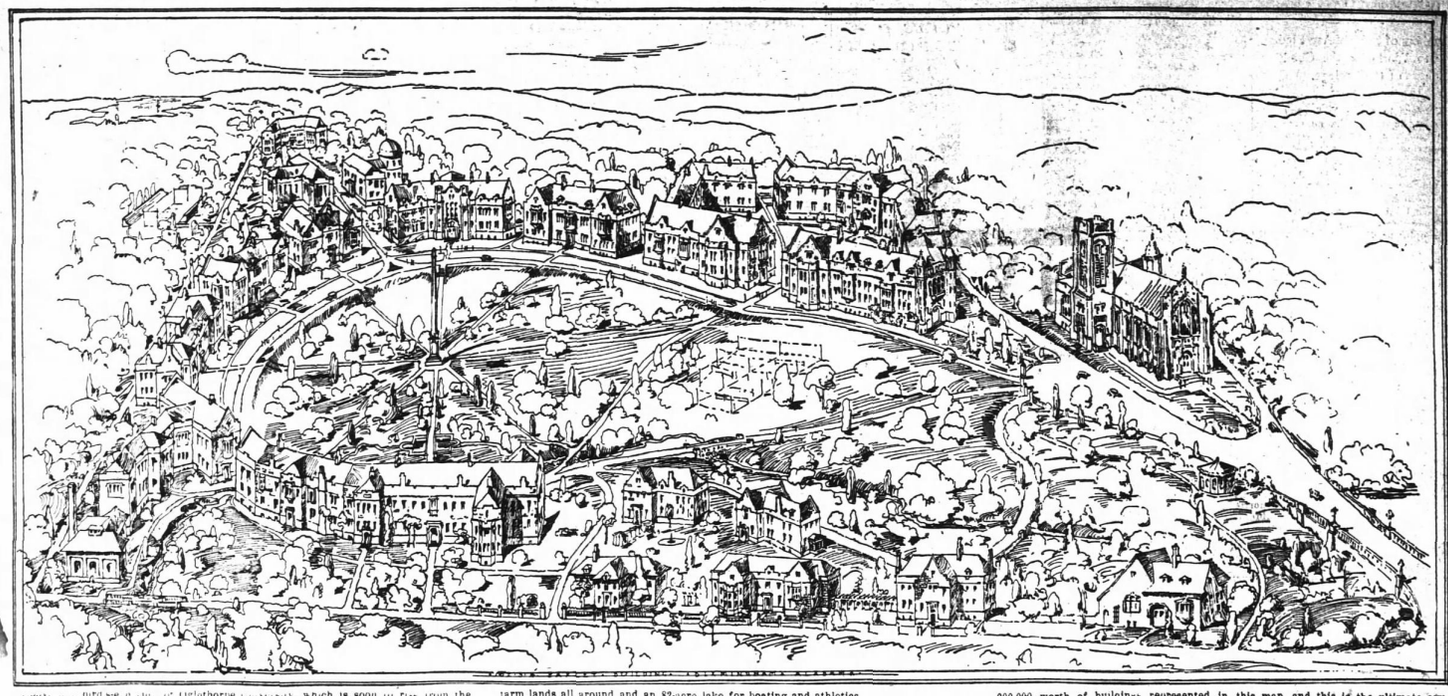
Many smart evening gowns are trimmed with narrow bands of fur. This note is sounded strongly on most of the Parisian models.

OGLETHORPE, THE CROWNING GLORY OF SOUTHERN PRESBYTERIANISM



...dead, after a lapse of over fifty years, and to blossom forth with brilliance and beauty just outside the city of Atlanta, on Peachtree road at Silver Lake.

One hundred and thirty-seven acres of woodland and meadow here compose one of the choicest and most appropriate sites imaginable for a great university, situated within half an hour's ride of a great city, with the Georgia rolling hills and farm lands all around and an 82-acre lake for boating and athletics.

Work will begin next fall on the grounds and on the college chapel, the tall building at the right of the drawing. He re will be the entrance to the university, Peachtree road being shown in the right-hand corner of the picture as it crosses a bridge into the Oglethorpe campus. About $20,000 will be expended on the grounds, $80,000 on the chapel, and $180,000 on the administration building, the first large structure reached following the driveway after passing the chapel. There are over $2,000,000 worth of buildings represented in this map, and this is the ultimate aim of the directors of the university.

At present there is in sight $550,000, and within the next five years it is confidently believed, by the Presbyterians of the south, who are solidly back of the movement, that at least $1,500,000 will be in hand, and that Oglethorpe will by that time be the greatest university of the south and among the educational pillars of the nation.

DUPRE AND COHEN ON MARION STAFF

Vice President Macnab Makes Appointments After Successful Visit to the City.

One of the recent visitors to Atlanta in the automobile field was Vice President M. D. Macnab, of the Marion Motor Car company, of Indianapolis. Mr. Macnab talked enthusiastically of the outlook for business in this section, and particularly of the business which his company is now receiving from this section.

While in the city Mr. Macnab secured C. W. DuPre and J. G. Cohen as distributors for the Marion in Georgia and Alabama. Mr. DuPre is one of the pioneer retail automobile men of Georgia, having for a long time handled cars at his home town in Marietta. Besides the Marion, Mr. DuPre is distributor for the Little Six, Little Four and the Chevrolet Six. Mr. Cohen was one of the men who for a long time put the Maxwell and other United States Motor company's products in the south. Later he was identified with the Locomobile company in Atlanta. Mr. Macnab was warm in his praise of this combination to handle the Marion, and stated that he was expecting big results from their efforts.

When speaking of Atlanta, Mr. Macnab waxed elequent, stating that the city even passed his expectations, notwithstanding the fact that he was looking for much, from what he had heard on all sides about this progressive city.

PRESIDENT OF HAITI SUMMONED BY DEATH

Port au Prince, Haiti, May 3.—The president of the republic of Haiti, General Tancredo Auguste, died at 9 o'clock last night after a brief illness.

The national assembly was convoked to elect a successor as chief executive.

Four candidates were prepared to present their claims—Judge Luxembourg Cauvin, former minister of the interior; Michel Oreste, a prominent senator; General Beaufosse Laroche, minister of war, and General Bellard.

In official circles and among the general public the opining prevailed that General Bellard would obtain the nomination.

Quiet has reigned everywhere since the president's death, but precautions against any possible outbreak were immediately taken.

President Auguste had occupied his office only since August 9 last year. He succeeded General Cincinnatus Leconte, who met a tragic death together with 40 officials and soldiers in a fire which destroyed the palace on August 8. It was reported that at that time he had been the victim of intrigue, but nothing was officially revealed to confirm the theory.

JOHN PHILLIP SOUSA MAKES HIT WITH GUN

Famous Band Leader Almost as Good a Shot as He Is Musician.

John Phillip Sousa was busy at the Brookhaven Gun club yesterday afternoon, putting the shots in pigeons.

The man who sent the strains of "Stars and Stripes Forever" ringing 'round the world, is almost as good a shot as he is a musician, making 71 out of a possible 75 at the traps.

"You can't bluff when you are at the traps," he said. "You've got to deliver the goods. Now, in music, a fellow can for a while make people think he is a genius, possibly, but here—well, it can't be done. You've got to shoot, and you've got to hit."

Mr. Sousa arrived in Atlanta Friday morning, and is the guest of John Lester. He said that he was trying to put aside musical matters until August, when his season will begin. The author-composer-bandleader has made quite a hit here since his arrival, and has been the object of attention from the leading men of the city.

"There is a great deal in the 'man behind the gun,'" he said, "but there is much in the gun, too. When a man gets a gun it should fit him, and should be selected with the same care that one would a suit of clothes. He makes a showing, good or bad, with both."

From Atlanta Mr. Sousa goes to Americus, thence to Dawson, Ga., Montgomery, Ala., and then back to his home, Washington, D. C., after the trap season is over in the south.

BAN ON COLLEGE FRATS IS NOT CONSTITUTIONAL

Hamilton Douglas Returns to Atlanta After Winning Noted Cases.

Hamilton Douglas, attorney and grand consul of the Sigma Chi, one of the oldest and largest college fraternities, returned yesterday from Oxford, Miss., with victory, having, with other lawyers, won the case in which he stamped as unconstitutional, the Mississippi law placing a ban on secret societies in the state universities.

The case is of nation-wide interest, he says, because it affects all college fraternities and has raised the indignation of all college men.

The legislature of Mississippi passed an act abolishing from the four state universities all secret orders or societies, and the law went a step further and declared that no student should in any way remain connected with or associate with any such society.

J. P. Vaugh made application for admission as a student in the law department of the state university and was rejected because he refused to sign a pledge not to associate with any secret fraternity. He was already a fraternity member and therefore refused to sign. He thereupon filed a bill of injunction against the college trustees and a temporary restraining order was granted by Judge D. M. Kimbrough, chancellor in equity. The case was then heard by T. L. Lamb, special chancellor, and it was at this hearing that Mr. Douglas appeared with Attorneys T. C. Kimbrough, J. P. McDonald, W. G. Cavett and A. F. Fox.

Vaugh won his case, and now the college trustees have taken an appeal. The chancellor held that the law was against both the state and the national constitution.

Mr. Douglas says the matter has awakened the keenest interest not only in Mississippi, but wherever there are any college men.

Similar bills to that passed by the Mississippi legislature have been introduced in the legislatures of Ohio, Texas and Wisconsin.

Education Is Progressive

Nowadays the claim to culture lies not in the knowledge of past history and dead languages only.

TO BE truly educated one must be familiar not only with the history and art of past centuries, but with the happenings and progress of today as well.

FORTUNATE indeed is he who perceives the relation of history to humanity, and the presence of art in everyday life. Such knowledge becomes an animate force in the life and development of the individual and in the progress of a community.

TO TEACH old things in a new way, and to give new things their due place in the march of events, is the object of Brenau College-Conservatory in its regular courses and in those offered at the Brenau Summer School.

HIGH standards, thorough knowledge and a deep interest in educational progress and in the student create at Brenau an atmosphere that is different from that of the usual college; and which becomes an inspiration to all who come within its reach.

THE teacher who wishes to renew and increase her knowledge, will find the Brenau Summer School an ideal place in which to study during the summer months.

THE student who desires to make up a deficiency in studies or who wishes to prepare more quickly for collegiate work, will find at the Brenau Summer School just the course she needs.

THE person of leisure, who takes pleasure in intellectual activity and mental stimulation, will find the Brenau Summer School a recreation and a benefit.

FOR THE RUIN OF GIRLS MILLIONAIRE IS HELD

Two Indictments Are Returned Against Bixby—Girls Before Grand Jury.

Los Angeles, May 3.—Demurrers and other means of legal defense were prepared in behalf of George H. Bixby, the Long Beach millionaire, when he was arraigned today in the superior court on two indictments charging him with aiding the delinquency of two minor girls. The indictments were returned last night by the county grand jury after a week of inquiry into allegations that wealthy men had an organized system of ensnaring young women for immoral purposes.

The other two indictments were returned at the same time against Mrs. Josie Rosenberg, who already was in jail in default of $15,000 bail. Mrs. Rosenberg, as keeper of "the Jonquil," the resort at which it is alleged Bixby was known as "the Black Pearl," is charged with having been chief procurer for the wealthy patrons of her place.

Shortly after Bixby was arraigned, Kitty Phillips, the youthful motion picture actress, whose charges initiated the sensational white slavery investigation, was taken to the Central police station to testify before the grand jury, which will resume its inquiry Monday.

Miss Phillips was question by Chief of Police Sebastian. He wanted to know why she had pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge and then vanished, after the blackmailing charge preferred by Bixby had been dropped and she had nothing further to fear. She replied that her attorneys had advised her to do so, saying if she did she would be given a suspended sentence conditioned upon her leaving the city. While if she remained, certain wealthy men interested in the suppression of all white slavery facts, would see that she was severely punished.

She declared that when she is summoned to testify before the grand jury she will add details still more sensational to the stories already told, of the systematic pursuit of girls by men of wealth and prominence. After the indictments were returned last night Bixby was taken to the home of a fraternal organization where Judge McCormick, presiding judge of the superior court, was in waiting. Bonds were approved and Bixby returned to his home in Long Beach.

Bixby did not appear personally in the arraignment, which was before Judge Wilbur of the juvenile court. He entered an appearance through attorneys.

Judge Wilbur set Monday as the date on which Bixby should plead, and announced that probably he would call an outside jurist to preside at the trial. Judge Wilbur said he would do this because an effort had been made to remove him as head of the juvenile court—a movement in which one of the principals against him was Miss Fanny Bixby, sister of the accused man, and widely known as a philanthropist and sociologist.

McCombs Flees Office Seekers.

New York, May 3.—Chairman McCombs, who sailed for Europe today to escape insistent office seekers, announced he would continue his law practice upon his return.

QUESTION OF CASTE PREVENTS A WEDDING

Bombay, India, May 3.—A sensation was caused today by the sudden breaking off of the projected marriage of Princess Indira, only daughter of the reigning Gaekwar of Baroda to Prince Jitendra, son of the Maharajah of Cooch Behar. The wedding was to have taken place in Calcutta on Monday next. The princess announced her decision last evening and called this morning for England.

Elaborate preparations had been made for the ceremony, in which descendants of the two most prominent native rulers in India were to have been married. The reason for the action taken by the princess has not been divulged, but it is understod it is probably a question of caste.

Such an occurrence is almost unique among the ruling families of India and it is said to be traceable to the princess' unusual intimacy with English and American customs and life.

The Maharani of Baroda, her mother, is the author of "the positon of women in Indian life," and has advanced ideas on the subject.

The Gaekwar of Baroda rules over 8,000 square miles of territory and has 2,000,000 subjects. He is one of the wealthiest men in India and is a man of high education. His son, Shrimat Jaisingrao studied at Harvard.

COTTON IN THOMAS DAMAGED BY WEATHER

Thomasville, Ga., May 3.—(Special.) The cool nights and mornings, along with the bright sunshine and dry winds, have been very bad for cotton in this county of late, and the growers are very anxious to see a change. The showers of a week ago were not general, and even in the sections where they fell the relief was only temporary.

In some sections of the county the crop is much better than in others, but it is estimated that nearly one-half of the cotton in the county as a whole has been obliged to be replanted. With a general rain and warmer weather there is plenty of time for it to make a good crop, and the outlook for a change is more hopeful.

The corn crop is still in fine condition and as a dry May is always said to mean a good crop, it is not likely to be injured by the lack of rain.

BLOODHOUNDS FOILED BY NEGRO MURDERER

Columbia, S. C., May 3.—The Columbia Record at noon today received the following dispatch from Allendale from a staff reporter:

Henry Austin, the negro who Wednesday killed two prominent citizens and wounded four others, seems to have made a complete getaway. Numerous parties ran this morning going to the Savannah river, where the theater of the search is centered. There is apparently little hope of capturing the negro murderer today, or any time in the future unless by mere chance, as the desperado is well acquainted with every mile of country in this section, and has several times evaded bloodhounds by taking to the water and throwing the dogs off the scent.

CUPID IN CONTROL OF WEATHER BUREAU

"Glorious weather on Sunday," is the prediction of Charles F. von Herrmann, government forecaster, who says: "In May the young Lothario should be encouraged by sunshine on Sundays for springtime comes only once a year."

Benches and swings in Atlanta's parks will be at a premium, and all who expect choice seats on the hillside are urged to take an early start and avoid the rush, for the weather bureau has conspired with Dan Cupid, and the parks will be packed today.

The area of cloudy weather that has prevailed west of the Mississippi has crossed east of the river, and the chances are just a little more favorable for showers on Monday.

Rivers in the vicinity of New Orleans are now 2 feet above the flood stage of 18 feet, and are still rising, with no damage reported to date, but the forecast indicates that the high water mark and flood record of last year will be equaled.

DAMAGES ARE REFUSED TO A NEGRO EDITOR

Seattle, Wash., May 3.—A negro editor, Horace R. Clayton, today lost his suit for $15,000 damages against a restaurant proprietor who asked the negro not to patronize the place. The judge upheld the defense's contention that Clayton was not deprived of his civil rights.

After the negro's first appearance in the restaurant, according to evidence, he was asked not to come again. When he did reappear he was served, but he was not charged for the meal, and again he was asked not to eat there.

SAN ANTONIO GIRL ON UNCLE SAM'S MONEY

New York, May 3.—Miss Evlina James, of San Antonio, Texas, an art student here, is receiving congratulations of her friends as she is the girl whose portrait is likely to become more popular than any other. It is safe to say her picture will be in every American home, as it will appear exclusively on Uncle Sam's paper money. It was recently selected by a committee of congress as the central feminine figure of a decorative group on the reverse side of the new currency.

Miss James is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. James, of San Antonio.

JOSEPH W. AWTREY GIVEN SURPRISE DINNER

On Wednesday evening after "closing hours," the officers and employees of the Carlton Shoe and Clothing company lured their co-worker, J. W. Awtrey, to the Cafe Durand, where an informal surprise dinner was given in his honor. Mr. Awtrey has accepted the secretary and treasurynship of a prominent Atlanta undertaking establishment, and before leaving their midst, his fellow-workers wished to assure him of their esteem. A course dinner was served upon tables fittingly arranged in the shape of an exclamation point and decorated with carnations and ferns.

Charged With Forgery.

Washington, Ga., May 3.—(Special.) Quinton W. Moss, who was arrested Wednesday in an attempt to pass a forged check on a local bank and placed in jail here, was given a preliminary hearing yesterday. Waiving a commitment trial, Moss was released on a $300 bond, which is returnable to the Wilkes superior court, which convenes Monday, May 5.

TWO GEORGIA COLLEGES WINNERS IN DEBATES

State University Defeats Washington and Lee, While Emory Defeats Emory and Henry.

Athens, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—The annual debate between Georgia and another southern institution—this year with Washington and Lee, was won tonight by Georgia. Ira Funkenstein, of Athens, and H. L. Rogers, of Reidsville, represented Georgia with the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved, That labor unions are inimical to the best interests of the industrial welfare of the country." W. A. Mann, of Milner, and Calvin George, of Madison, tonight represented Georgia in New Orleans, championing the negative side of the same question with Tulane university.

Debate Won by Emory.

Wofford College, Spartanburg, S. C., May 3.—(Special.)—Emory college won the intercollegiate debate last night between Emory college, Oxford, Ga., and Emory and Henry college, Emory, Va. This being the third and last debate of the series, the Georgia college is the winner.

The debaters for Emory College, Ga., were J. E. Mathews, of Vidalia, Ga., president of the student body association of Emory college, and Joel Mallet, of Jackson, Ga., business manager of The Phoenix, the monthly literary magazine of the college.

The first debate of the series took in Oxford, two years ago. The subject was on the guarantee of bank deposits, and the debate was won for the Georgians by George Roach and Claude Pitman. The second debate occurred one year ago, at Emory, Va. The subject was on the rental value of lands, in American municipalities of over 10,000 population, being substituted for the present general property tax. In this debate, thee Georgians, Claude Pitman and J. E. Mathews, lost to the Virginians. This final debate was held, by original agreement, in neutral territory. The subject debated was, "Resolved, That as a general policy it would be to the best interests of our country to reserve the rights and powers of the individual state." The Virginians proposed the subject, and the Georgians chose the affirmative side.

For a number of years Emory college has been engaged in intercollegiate debates with some of the leading colleges of Virginia and the Carolinas, and has never lost a series.

The debate was held in the auditorium of Wofford college, President N. Snyder officiating. Although Emory college took two straight debates from Wofford, just a few years ago the Georgina were made to feel perfectly at home among the cordial and hospitable South Carolinians.

MRS. FRED Z. MILLS DIES AT HER HOME IN DALLAS

Cake Laid at Shrine Of Caruso by Chef, Now Children's Toy

The famous Caruso cake which was baked by the Italian chef of the Georgian Terrace hotel and presented to Enrico Caruso during his recent visit here is now the delight of the little folks at the Sheltering Arms.

The cake, which is a reproduction in candy and icing of the little church in which the great singer was christened, could not be taken away by him, so Manager Keene, of the Georgian Terrace, presented it to Mrs. W. S. Elkin for the little folks at the Sheltering Arms.

The cake attracted the attenion of the hndreds of guests to the grand opera and was quite the pride of the great singer, who appreciated few tributes paid him more than this of his fellow countryman of the hotel.

BODIES OF 14 VICTIMS HAVE BEEN RECOVERED

Clayton, La., May 3.—The bodies of fourteen victims of the steamship disaster which cost the lives of nearly a score of people on the big river liner Concordia had been recovered up to 7 o'clock this morning. Another victim, John Daniels, a negro, died of his injuries today and several others among the injured are expected to die. Of the dead only two are white, the others being negro flood refugees and negro members of the steamer's crew.

The Concordia carried seventy-two negro flood refugees, twenty-three negro roustabouts, ten negro deck hands, ten white crew and five white passengers. After striking the railroad bridge across the Tensas river the Concordia was carried down the river almost two miles before it sank in about 20 feet of water.

FARMING OPERATIONS IN BALDWIN RETARDED

Milledgeville, Ga., May 3.—(Special.) Too much cold weather has retarded farming operations in Baldwin county this week. But little cotton has been chopped and corn-plowing is also backward. Early sweet potato crops are flourishing, and the first cuttings of the hay crop in this section will begin next week.

The cattle tick eradication work in this county is now in full swing and good results are looked for.

With the peach crop comparatively safe and the blackberries in full bloom, promising the largest crop in years, prospects are brightening.

Good roads and activity in city and country real estate is the situation in Baldwin today, and this means much toward better conditions all around.

Mr. Dillard was 76 years old, and is survived by two sons, S. H. and Robert M. Dillard, who lived with him.

"MOVIE" IN MOULTRIE BURSTS INTO FLAMES

Moultrie, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—The interior of the Dixie theater, a moving picture show operated by H. M. Pierce, was completely destroyed tonight by fire, which started from a film catching from the arc light of the machine. The quick work of the local fire department saved the building from total loss.

The crowds withdrew from the house with wonderful order, there being no one hurt. The building is owned by N. Sampson. The interior was covered by insurance.

Quick, Easy and Positive Cure for All Foot Torture

The following is said to be the surest and quickest cure known to science for all foot ailments: "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for fully fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effect is really wonderful. All soreness goes instantly; the feet feel delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. It gives immediate relief for sore bunions, sweaty, smelly and aching feet. A twenty-five cent box of Calocide is said to be sufficient to cure the worst feet. It works through the pores and removes the cause of the trouble. Don't waste time on uncertain remedies. Any druggist has Calocide compound in stock or he can get it in a few hours from his wholesale house.

Two Generations Now Using It

Nation's Most Popular Laxative Keeping Millions of American Families in Good Health

There must be genuine merit to an article that has stood the test of two generations of users.

In the field of medicine none has had greater success, nor retained that success to a greater degree than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is now being used by two generations of people. Its use in families is constantly becoming more general. The reason, primarily, is that it has merit. It is what it represents itself to be, a laxative-tonic; it does not make exaggerated claims nor use coarse language to set forth its virtues.

It is a medicine, but so mild and gentle a medicine that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet, in a slightly larger dose, it is equally effective for grown-ups. It is for any disorder of the stomach, liver or bowels, for constipation, no matter how chronic; for dyspepsia, no matter how severe; for biliousness, sour stomach, gas on the stomach, headaches, drowsiness after eating, and similar complaints arising from a clogged-up condition of the bowels. It is pleasant to the taste and does not gripe. It can be used with safety and good results by anyone at any age or in any condition of health, and that person's health will improve. Every druggist sells it, and the price is only fifty cents and one dollar a bottle.

Thousands of families throughout the country are never without it in the house, among them Mrs. Clara Lewis, Becks' Store, Ky., who gave it to her baby, Elsie, while teething, and says: "It is the best medicine in the world for the stomach and bowels." She writes that she keeps it in the house for every member of the family, takes it herself and that her mother recovered her health and gained in flesh by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington street, Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

THE PIANO YOU WANT
May Be Among These

Nine standard makes—upright and grand—taken as part payment on Melodigrand Players and Grands. They come from lovers of music that know how to treat good instruments.

The unusual prices are not quoted because these pianos have been slightly used. They are well worth more than we ask. But, we need the room they now occupy, and make the concession willingly to induce you to help us move them.

Every one of the nine is in splendid condition. Their tonal qualities are really better than when new—more developed and rounded from careful use. Here is the list:

Steinway (mahogany) $275.
Conovor (mahogany) $275.
Everett (mahogany) $275.
H. M. Cable (mahogany) $225.
Steinway (ebony) $225.
Cable (oak) $185.
Everett (mahogany) $175.
Stetson (mahogany) $175.
E. E. Forbes (mahogany) $165.

Consider the makes—world known—and the prices. Then consider the reputation of this firm that offers them. Surely you should not allow an opportunity like this to pass unanswered. It is rare, indeed, and quite unlikely to occur soon again.

Come in early tomorrow and try any one or all of these pianos. Delay may mean disappointment.

MISS MAE WATSON,

BRENAU COLLEGE NOTES.

The celebration of States day this year was conceded to be the most beautiful that has ever been seen at Brenau. There were thirty-three automobiles in the procession, representing twenty-eight states and six countries—Japan, Austria, Germany, England, Canada and America. All of the cars were beautifully decorated and occupied by representatives from their respective states or countries, there was a review before the Auditorium, where each state gave a toast, which was responded to by a chorus, singing the state and national songs. These were preceded by an address from a representative of "Uncle Sam," and introduced by Mr. Woodrow Wilson." After this, there was a reading, "Reunited," by Miss Franesse Gay, and the exercises were closed by an address by Dr. H. J. Pearce. The prize of $20, offered for the most appropriately and beautifully decorated car, was awarded to "Florida." This car was a bower of pink and white roses, drawn by an immense butterfly, which was driven by a winged cupid. It was occupied by four young ladies, daintily dressed in white and wearing big pink hats. The pageant was under the direction of Miss Florence Rowe and Miss Esther Irvine.

On Wednesday evening the vocal class of Mrs. T. J. Simmons gave a "stunt night" in the Auditorium for the purpose of illustrating the process of voice-placing and development. Among the most splendid examples of progress and development in power and poise was that given by Mr. Will Hosch, of Gainesville. Some beautiful songs were heard also in continuance of these illustrations. Miss Laura Lou Bostwick sang a brilliant waltz song, "Neath Summer Skies," by Gebel; Miss Helen Wait, of Sturges, Mich., gave the "Flower Song," from Faust, and Miss Beulah Cunyus, of Rome, sang exquisitely, "Elizabeth's Prayer," from Tannhauser.

At the noon hour on Wednesday, Professor Otto Pfefferkorn presented Miss Iona Peterman, of Dothan, Ala., in her senior recital in piano. The heavy numbers on the program were Liszt's Venezia e Napoli (Tarrantelle) and a "Concert Paraphrase," by Chopin, arranged by Godowsky and dedicated to Professor Pfefferkorn. Miss Peterman is a popular member of the Alpha Chi Omega Sororiety, and one of Brenau's most accomplished pianists. Miss Peterman was assisted by Miss Opal Overpack, of Medicine Hat, Canada, who sang most charmingly two dainty numbers, Worrel's "Song of the Chimes" and Del Riego's "Shadow March."

In honor of Mrs. John T. Moore, Jr., of Macon, Mrs. Ernest Houseman was at home on Monday evening. Miss Eunice Johns assisted Mrs. Houseman in serving dainty bonbons, and Mrs. Hutchinson poured tea. The guests were given as souvenirs unique bonbon boxes and miniature statues of Dan Cupid. The evening was made entirely charming by a musical program in which Mr. Elmer Zoller was heard in several vocal and instrumental selections. Mrs. Bowen Belcher, of Balnbridge, and Miss Beulah Cunyus, of Rome, also gave several beautiful numbers. The out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Sterling Ruffin, of Durham, N. C.; Mrs. Bowne Belcher, of Balnbridge, and the lovely honoree, Mrs. John T. Moore, Jr., of Macon.

One of the best of the plays which have been presented by the Cushman club was given Tuesday night to a large audience in the Auditorium. This play was given under the direction of Miss Mamie Cohn, of Madison, Ga., and was a most creditable presentation. Miss Nita Durden, of Graymont, Ga., in the title role, was charming, and Miss Virginia Makinson, of Kissimmee, Fla., as the heroine of the play, was a splendid success. Misses Fanny Aiken and Lizzie Ray, of Bowman, were specially fine in the impersonation as comic characters. Miss Vesta Welch, as a demure young widow, was unusually lovely.

Mrs. T. J. Simmons entertained with a studio recital on Tuesday evening at which Mrs. Bowen Belcher, of Bainbridge, Ga., was the guest of honor. Mrs. Belcher's beautiful voice and charming personality won for her a warm regard from those who were fortunate enough to meet her and hear her sing.

Among the best of the Brenau recitals was that given on Friday afternoon by Misses Mary Louise Irvin, of Ocala, Fla.; Miss Lula Adale Barnett, of Moss Point, Miss.; Miss Ellen Lucile Pace, of Shawanee, Okla. These young ladies are graduates of this year, and have won distinction at Brenau in their literary work, as well as in the conservatory.

Miss Georgianna Peet, of Richwood, Ohio, gave her senior play on Monday evening. This was an original dramatization of Francis Hodgson Burnett's story, "The Dawn of a Tomorrow," and in the leading role of "Glad," the optimistic street waif, Miss Peet was specially suited. Miss Peet is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi sorority and has won man yfriends at Brenau, where she has taken a high stand in the school of oratory.

Mrs. J. T. Moore has returned to her home, after a pleasant visit at Brenau, where she was the guest of Mrs. Ernest Houseman and the recipient of many charming social attentions.

Mrs. Bowen Belcher, of Bainbridge, Ga., who has been the guest of Mrs T. J. Simmons, has returned to her home

Miss Opal Overpack, of Medicine Hat, Canada, and Miss Helen Carr, of Miami, Fla., spent the week as guests at the Georgian Terrace, while attending grand opera.

Superfluous Hair Truths

Stop Experimenting

There are but few depilatories sold. You think there are hundreds because you have used the same identical preparations under several different names. This is easily explained. Women stop using

So-Called Hair Removers

when they learn that they are harmful. Therefore, th y can not be sold under the same name for any length of time. Then the identical, worthless, harmful concoctions are given new names and advertised again as totally different preparations to who innocently buy them over and over again under different names, and this will continue as long as women are so unwise as to experiment with unknown, so-called hair removers.

De Miracle

Has Stood the Test of Time

De Miracle has been sold as De Miracle for over eleven years, and its name has never been changed. It is acknowledged the world over by eminent authorities as the one safe, perfected hair remover, therefore it is the only depilatory you can use without experimenting.

Leaves No Tell-Tale Smell

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor whatever. On the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor, an offensive, tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours.

Avoid Permanent Disfigurement

by refusing substitutes. If your dealer will not supply you send $1.00 direct. Free information how to determine which depilatories are harmful and worthless sent in plain, sealed envelope.

IMPOSING UPON MR. BRISBANE.

Arthur Brisbane is the most powerful writer on the staff of the Hearst publications. But like all human beings he is fallible. Like all human beings he is most easily misled from the side of his emotions. That is what has happened in the case of the editorial reproduced elsewhere under the caption "A Funeral by Lamplight." His sympathies have swayed his judgment. The result is that he has, unconsciously, we are sure, libelled a whole state. The story he was cajoled into accepting and which he relates with such pathetic and telling effect is grotesquely unfounded. Somebody has imposed upon his sympathetic sensibilities.

Mr. Brisbane charges, in brief, that so callous and barbarous are the mill-owners of Georgia that they will not let off their employees in the daytime to attend the funerals of friends; hence the burials must be postponed until night. The illustration which accompanies the editorial and which is calculated to intensify the mischief is a masterpiece in misrepresentation. It indicates a squalid room at midnight—northern newspaper artists seem to think southern factory-workers never look natural save in squalid surroundings—lighted dimly by an oil lamp; a coffin rests upon uncertain trestels; around the bier stand persons in all stages of emaciation, a child in torn rompers and one little boy who has turned sobbing to the wall; the whole impression grewsome and abiding. The only trouble with this pitiful illustrated tale is that it is absolutely untrue, and no such funeral as that referred to, and for the reasons given, ever took place anywhere in Georgia. It is all a figment of the imagination.

Fortunately the Atlanta end of Mr. Hearst's interesting aggregation saw that Mr. Brisbane had been imposed upon and hence did not use in Georgia the feature that had been given unfortunate publication by the other newspapers of the circuit, and patrons of the service.

We would not have deemed the incident worthy of notice had it been just Mr. Brisbane who had been imposed upon. He is abundantly qualified to take care of himself. But such absurd stories hurt the state and the country, and we protest against Mr. Brisbane's conclusion that an incident of this kind "is a picture of life in Georgia—of life in America." That is where the harm comes in. Nothing like this exists in Georgia at least.

THE GRADY NURSES'S HOME.

Next week eight nurses will graduate from the training school of Grady hospital. Heretofore the graduating class has run from fifteen to eighteen members. The disparity this year is due to the miserably inadequate accommodation for the nurses at the hospital, the lack of facilities being such as virtually to deny opportunities to many ambitious young women who are anxious to qualify for this life profession. This condition, in turn, is due to the phenomenal growth of the hospital proper and not to want of willingness on the part of the faculty. The wards and various features of the institutions have gradually crowded and encroached upon the quarters that have been used for the nurses. The situation is a penalty of growing pains, but it should be remedied if the hospital is to discharge one of its important functions, that of training nurses.

Some time ago council put $25,000 at the disposal of the trustees for the erection of the nurses' home. The trustees have for several months been investigating to find just what can be done with this amount. The result of their inquiry is to establish that this sum will be sufficient only for a shoddy building for temporary purposes only, the expansion of the hospital making it inevitable that within a short time this structure must be torn down to make room for a larger one. Obviously, the money should not be thus wasted. Shoddy and temporary, or patchwork construction has been a bane of this municipality. Policy is now steadily settling toward permanent construction.

The feasible plan is for council to authorize the trustees either to hold the $25,000 until next year, when another $25,000 may be forthcoming, or to use it, as far as can be, toward a substantial, permanent structure that may be completed with the next appropriation. Fifty thousand dollars will be the smallest amount with which a building approximating the present and near future needs of the institution can be constructed, and the new building should have every dollar of that amount put in it.

To put up a nurses' home for $25,000 will be sheer extravagance, for it cannot last nor can it serve its purpose.

Council should at once take action accordingly.

YALE TRAILS COLONEL "BOB."

Believing in the blithe sartorial creed of Colonel "Bob" Lowry, of Atlanta, inventor of the "Lowry red," the seniors of Yale university now appear on the campus in knickerbockers of every hue, and the popularity with which the change has been received gives rise to the rumor of a national revival of the masculine hose-and-doublet styles of our forefathers. Colonel "Bob," it is needless to remind our citizenry, has made nationally famous the "Lowry red," by embodying it in a tie of hues beside which the aurora borealis seems tame. The joyous effect of the contagion came to the ears of a few receptive seniors at Yale. Forthwith the edict went forth that members of the senior class should henceforth appear in knickerbockers of prismatic range and brilliance. As a result the entire university is set by the ears, so to speak, and there is strong talk of a revival of the styles of that day when men went about in satin cutaways and knee smalls, radiating all the colors of a mountain sunset.

Why not? If life is made joyous and the eye gladdened by the variegated and colorful attire of the ladies, why not heighten that effect by applying the scheme of Balkan brilliancy to the men? Consider the added eclat of the streets, the offices, our public and social functions if the men appeared in the delicate or passionate hues of the colonial period, stalking abroad in violet hose, Bulgarian coats, cerise doublets and cocked hats. It would be simply impossible to harbor an attack of the "blues" in so hilarious an atmosphere! And think what an added interest would creep into the masculine life, now made dreary and bleak by wrestling over bank balances, discounts and other of the paraphernalia of business. You would see groups of men on the corners, in the clubs, animatedly discussing "style books," forgetting the intricacies of the tariff, while they debated whether bracelet-watches should be worn on the right or the left ankle—or wrist—whether pink or green was to be the prevailing scheme, and whether shirts were to be worn straight-front or peek-a-boo.

Picture to yourself some of our leading citizens thus gladly arrayed. Visualize all mankind transformed into a moving, breathing, sentient flower garden, all the romance of the day of ruffles and knee-smalls revived in the age of iron and steel. Who will not remember always the magic maze of shade and tint displayed by the women in the great horseshoe at grand opera, in the entire audience generally? And the men! Dressed as somberly as undertakers or headwaiters. Killjoys, marring a pulsating landscape! Why not change this?

With his wondrous tie, Colonel "Bob" has supplied the opening wedge. Who will now gain the gratitude of posterity by following his example and that of Yale?

WHILE WE STARVE OURS!

An addition of $2,000,000 to its endowment fund is just announced by the Northwestern university at Chicago. Certainly. Reports of this nature from northern, eastern and western educational institutions are commonplace. Hardly a day passes but Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Amherst, Columbia, Chicago, New York, Wisconsin, Michigan—scores of other large and small universities—are the recipients either of handsome endowments or of liberal aid from public funds. The theory of these sections is that educational facilities are among their first assets. The boys and girls of the future must be well equipped, if they are to meet the demands and opportunities of the future. To that end, extreme liberality is practiced with the sure knowledge that in the end it is the most approved economy, an outlay certain to produce dividends that are actually incalculable.

Does rich and growing Georgia subscribe to an educational theory of exactly the opposite nature? While our neighbors to the north, east and west are taking their resources to equip the men and women of tomorrow we are trudging sadly behind. We are pursuing a policy of literary starvation toward our educational institutions. It is a struggle for them the year round, whether conducted by state or private agencies. Here is the shameful paradox: Each year these institutions make up their budgets in a commonwealth bursting with plenty—yet they must pare, prune, patch and cramp to insure sheer existence, not to mention the clamorous demands of expansion. We think we are practicing "economy." We are really stealing from posterity—from our own children!

Georgia is the wealthiest state in the southeast. In its one asset of the Western and Atlantic railroad alone, owned in fee simple, the state has a credit of from seven to ten millions of dollars over and above every dollar it owes, bonded indebtedness and otherwise.

There is not a state in the south, and few, if any, in the union, which can make as good a showing. Nevertheless, Georgia is literally starving and squeezing its educational institutions. In the midst of plenty we are threatening our boys and girls with educational poverty. Other states and other sections are advancing much more rapidly in all lines of educational activity, even some of the southern states not half as well equipped to meet their obligations as Georgia is, being far more liberal in their appropriations for educational purposes.

It is time for the state to wake up! And if it does not do so, and keep step with the quickening touch of educational progress the world over, it will pay the penalty in no uncertain terms!

REGRADING OF WHITEHALL.

Anyone who disbelieves in the wisdom of the city's authorization of the regrading of Whitehall street along the lines of the survey of Commissioner Clayton should study the work already done on Ivy street, and, if he is a reasonable man, it will remove all existing doubt.

No work ever done on any street in the city of Atlanta has produced such a wonderful improvement as the regrading of Ivy, which was sanctioned by the city only after long argument and against considerable protest from some property owners, whose holdings, they thought, would be adversely affected. It is a remarkable fact that some of those who protested most have later sold their property at greatly enhanced valuation. There is not a foot of property on the street the value of which has not already materially advanced, and it is impossible to prophesy the scope of the improvements that are certain to follow the regrading of the street.

Exactly the same thing will be true of Whitehall, which is a most important link in the greatest highway of both city and county, for in connection with Peachtree street, it makes the great thoroughfare which reaches for more than twenty-five miles from the northern to the southern limits of the county, passing through the very heart of the city.

The county commissioners have very wisely committed the board to the labor necessary to regrade the street, if the work is sanctioned by the city, and it will be an exceedingly short-sighted policy on the part of the city if favorable action is not taken by council on an enterprise which means so much to the whole city and which specifically means more to the south side of the city than any improvement which has ever been undertaken.

The Constitution will be very much disappointed if council does not meet the expectation of the public in this very important movement.

THE AUTO VACATION.

The action of Secretary of the Interior Lane in rescinding the order that formerly barred automobiles from Yosemite National park emphasizes the development of the auto as a vacation resource of the American people. Secretary Lane declares that the ban against the auto is archaic and about as reasonable as the original opposition of the sailor to steam. He intends making the park accessible to the largest possible number of Americans. The small fee charged for taking machines into this great reservation will go into a fund which will be invested in the improvement of park roads.

Today cars penetrate every part of the country. The new field is not pre-empted by any class of Americans, since the automobile is essentially democratic. The pleasures of the road are open equally to the powerful and expensive cars of the rich men and the smaller and sturdy cars of the man in moderate circumstances. Gasoline depots, repair shops and road houses are springing up along many of the main traveled roads. Men take their families on long tours, impossible in the old days because of expense and bad roads. One effect of the development is the increasing sociability between different parts of the country, due to its better opportunities to become acquainted.

The vacation activities of the automobile are now and will be increasingly in the future a powerful factor in securing federal aid in highway construction, improvement and maintenance.

"Rock of Ages."

I.

One who was singing sweetly of unforgotten years,
With the old hymn—"Rock of Ages"—touched all our hearts to tears;
We dreamed about the past time—old memories were there.
And somehow, through that singing, we read our titles clear.

II.

Visions of old came to us that made each heart to sigh
And gave us back the old times when God was in the sky;
When up there—to the mercy seat, we went, a willing band,
And felt the love of God come down, and clasped the Savior's hand.

III.

That old hymn, "Rock of Ages!" When the storm-winds 'round us sing
What solace to the wave-worn soul still to that rock to cling!
Still, as the tempest darkens, upon that rock to rest
"Where not a wave of trouble rolls across the peaceful breast!"

IV.

Sweet be that hymn forever in every human heart,
When Sorrow's at Life's fireside and dreamed-of joys depart;
Still may that music make the soul to higher realms take wing
Until God lights his latest stars and makes the Morning sing.

Song of the Trusts.

I know that now I've got there—I'm sure in Trouble Town, for the fellows now in office are bringing the tariff down! The tariff that's been with us so very, very long, and now those chaps in office are changin' the tariff song!

* * * * *

Still in a Dream.

I.

Still in a dream we linger "forever and a day,"
For sweetheart-voices call us to memories far away;
Don't you remember the garden-place where-on the stars shone true—
The violets—sweeter from her hand—the ones she kissed for you?

II.

Still in a dream we linger in a shadow and in gleam,
But the Light of Love is 'round us, and thank God for a dream!
Sad traveler on the highway—as Life fast fades from view,
Don't you remember the violets your sweet-heart kissed for you?

Texts From Br'er Williams.

Some folks spends more time travelin' to Tribulation than what they does goin' on de road to Joy.

It's a big worry to get to de end of life, but you better live so that you'll find a cool shade tree whar de road ends.

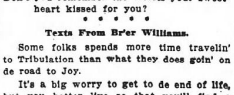
The Last Round.

No telling of a pathway
To reach the realms above:
God will not be unkind to us
If we go Home with Love.



Two Sinners.

There was a man, it was said one time,
Who went astray in his youthful prime,
Can the brain keep cool and the heart keep quiet
When the blood is a river that's running riot?
And "boys will be boys" the old folks say,
And the man is better who'd had his day,
The sinner reformed; and the preacher told
Of the prodigal son who came back to the fold.
And Christian people threw open the door,
With a warmer welcome than ever before.
Wealth and honor were his to command,
And a spotless woman gave him her hand.

Crying, "God bless ladye, and God bless groom!"

There was a maiden who went astray
In the golden dawn of her life's young day,
She had more passion and heart than head,
And she followed blindly where fond Love led.
And Love unchecked is a dangerous guide
To wander at will by a fair girl's side.

The woman repented and turned from sin,
But no door opened to let her in,
The preacher prayed that she might be forgiven.
But told her to look for mercy—in Heaven.

For this is the law of the earth, we know;
That the woman is stoned, while the man may go.

A brave man wedded her after all,
But the world said, frowning, "We shall not call."

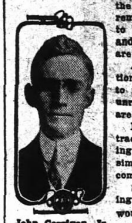
Gossip Caught in Corridors Of the National Capitol

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, May 3.—(Special.)—Further anti-trust legislation is to mark the early days of the new administration. Tariff revision is a step in the direction of curbing the big trusts, but other remedial measures are to follow after tariff and currency revision are out of the way.



John Corrigan, Jr.

Among the suggestions of further means to prevent the evils of unrestricted monopoly are these:

First—An interstate trade commission having powers somewhat similar to the interstate commerce commission;

Second—A price fixing commission which would permit regulated monopoly if the prices of commodities did not exceed the maximum figure.

Third—A law requiring a uniform price at the factories, the selling price to be the factory price plus the transportation charges, thus preventing price-cutting wars.

Fourth—Prohibition of one corporation owning the stock of another corporation.

The first scheme aims at federal incorporation, the second at pure socialism and the elimination of competition in trade, the third at overturning the present contracts of the trade world and the fourth the prohibition of mergers.

Always Problem.

Where government prosecution of alleged trusts ceases to be wise regulation of monopoly and becomes a persecution of big business because of mere size, is a problem that has troubled the lawmakers.

Both parties have denounced monopolies, and in their platforms pledged themselves to kill the octopi. For the past dozen years administrations have vied with each other in seeing which could show the larger record of prosecutions begun and carried forward.

President Taft's administration pointed with pride to the fact that under it more civil and criminal suits had been undertaken than under any former administration.

Today statesmen are saying that the Sherman law needs amendment. Some insist it is sound, as far as it goes, but is not specific enough, and that no business man knows what acts of business expansion are prohibited by law. Others resent the supreme court's "rule of reason" decision which made only "unreasonable" restraint of trade an illegal act.

That Word "Reasonable."

There is no such word in the law as "unreasonable," say the trust-busters in congress. Any other interpretation would vitiate the whole law as unconstitutional, says the opinion of the supreme court.

In order to proceed with caution, the democrats in the Sixty-second congress voted an appropriation of $25,000 to be used by the house judiciary committee in an investigation of trusts, with the object of proposing remedial legislation.

Only a small part of this appropriation has been used. The committee has collected some very valuable data, but was prevented from prosecuting their inquiry further during the last session because of the time consumed in the Archbald impeachment case. It is quite certain, therefore, that as soon as the new judiciary committee is appointed it will resume the trust hearings.

The democratic party must make a good record on the trust question following the series of investigations conducted by special committees of the house and senate of the Sixty-second congress. The Stanley committee, which probed the United States Steel corporation; the Pujo committee, which investigated the so-called money trust; the shipping trust investigated by the merchant marine and fisheries committee of the house, and the Clapp committee in the senate.

The judiciary committee's work may be expected to produce something tangible. The Stanley investigation preceded in most part a national election and was more or less political because of the issue raised by the purchase of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the United States Steel corporation. It brought out little that was new, simply putting an official stamp on certain well-known facts. The money trust investigation accentuated the need of currency legislation. It laid especial stress on interlocking directorates which exist among big corporations and railroads and has long been a condition viewed with suspicion.

There are a perfect avalanche of bills aimed at the trusts, designed by their ambitious authors to eradicate all the trust evils the country is heir to. The provisions of these will be carefully analyzed in conjunction with a thorough probe into the practices of the alleged monopolies. Then, if wise and just remedies can be agreed on, amendments to the law will be reported by the judiciary committee.

Representative Stanley, of Kentucky, who headed the steel committee, believes that an effective anti-trust law can be written in one paragraph, the sense of which would be as follows:

"No corporation doing an interstate commerce business shall be permitted to own the stock, in whole or in part, of another corporation, or permit its stock to be owned either in whole or in part by another corporation."

Former Attorney General Wickersham believed that a brief enactment with these simple provisions would solve the trust problem. Such a law would make "holding companies" impossible, and by making it apply to existing corporations at the expiration of a specified time, it would terminate pending dissolution suits and put a stop to litigation against the so-called trusts in which the government has not always come out the victor.

It would also, it is claimed, do away with the necessity of the United States supreme court having to construe whether or not a corporation was engaged in "unreasonable" restraint of trade.

It is a matter of some comment that Attorney General McReynolds so far has not shown a disposition to bring suits against certain concerns which have been under observation and investigation by the department of justice for some time, nor has he been very active in the prosecution of suits pending at the time he went into office. The attorney general is no new hand in the department of justice and, through the very nature of things, is fairly familiar with conditions. He was retained by the government in the tobacco cases and other suits. This fact coupled with the president's position on trust legislation may give reasonable ground for the belief that the attorney general may limit his activities in trust prosecution until congress has had an opportunity to strengthen the trust laws and thus make results surer when action is brought.

Anyway, the lull now in evidence, both with the department of justice and the legislative end of the government, is destined to give way to great activity before many months have passed.

"A Funeral by Lamplight"

(Copyright, 1913, by American Journal, S. F. and I. A. Examiner and The Star Co.)

By Arthur Brisbane.

The picture on your right shows you a funeral as it occurred in Georgia.

Usually human beings are buried in the daytime. Friends gather in the light, pay their tribute of respect, the earth closes and the story is told.

The following extract from a Georgia newspaper tells why:

Miss —— ——, aged 24 years, daughter of Mr. W. M. —— of the —— mill, died at their home Monday morning of tuberculosis, after a long illness.

The funeral, diverging from the general custom, was held on Monday night at the residence. The reason for the services being held at that time was the fact that she had a large number of friends who work in the mills and who wanted to attend the funeral.

We leave out the real name and call this departed spirit Miss Blank-Blank, in order to avoid giving her name publicity that might be unpleasant to those who survive her in the mill.

Look at this picture and think about it. You don't need to read any editorial concerning it.

It is a picture that will interest those who describe American civilization and American prosperity a few centuries from now, if they see it.

And this is an actual picture of conditions as they are in this country.

Run your mills early and late; take women and children and grind them up in your mills.

Work them into consumption so that they die at 35.

And then bury them by lamplight, because th e friends that would like to attend the funeral have no daylight to spare.

That's American civilization, and the statesmen gathered at Washington who are worrying about grape juice at dinner, or fretting about the injured feelings of the Japanese, could find something more important than the grape juice or the Japanese if they tried.

COW GIVES BIRTH TO THREE CALVES

(From The Laurens County Herald.)

Several days ago a cow belonging to Henry Jones on the plantation of J. R. Broadhurst in this county gave birth to three, calves, all of them healthy and all of them doing well.

One of the calves was born during the afternoon of March 30, and the next morning, March 31, the other two were born. Two of the calves are females, the other being a male, and all are of the same color.

Mr. Wilson's Loss.

(From The Darien Gazette.)

If the new administration doesn't suit Mr. Hearst why it will have to struggle along without his able assistance, that's all. The people elected Mr. Wilson to do their will and that is what he is trying to do—and all good democrats, at least, should stand loyally by him—and they will.

A Peculiar Duck Egg.

(From The Elberton Star.)

Mrs. J. E. Tunison found an unusually large Indian Runner duck egg Wednesday morning. It weighed 5 ounces, and its measurements were so unprecedented that she broke it to find the whyness of the wherefore. She found it was an egg within an egg. The big egg had within it a perfectly-formed egg, shell and all. Outside of the inner shell there was no yellow.

And They Suspect Poison.

(From Abbeville Chronicle.)

Alamo, April 30.—After drinking one quart of whisky and five glasses of soft drink, Tom Jackson, a negro, died here this morning. Some believe that he was poisoned, as he was feared by all the negroes and was said to have had money.

Does This Make It Plain?

The "will" in Wilson worries peanut politicians but pleases the people.

It Is Inferred He Didn't Attend.

(From The Pickens County Progress.)

The "pago singers" will carry away from Georgia $95,000 of the people's hard-earned money at their blowout in Atlanta this week. They will leave in return for this vast sum about $10,000. Still the cry continues to go out of the "high cost of living." It is not the high cost of living, but the fool extravagance of many of our people.

He Has Lots of Help.

(From The Millen News.)

Work in Springtime? You must be crazy,
Work? It's nothing less than crime.
I am busy being lazy,
And it's taking all my time.

THE draped coat is the rage! Hardly a wrap shown this spring shows the straight lines so long popular; even the little suit coats display the same tendency for drapery, as is shown in one of the illustrations on this page.

And the coats are much shorter, too, and this abbreviated appearance extends to the evening coats as well. Nowadays it is quite the thing to see an evening gown, only covered as far as the knees, or in some instances, but a short way below the hips.

In the first illustration on this page, a smart little coat for wear over a summer gown is displayed. It is of broadcloth with peplum and revers of Bulgarian embroidery. This little garment is particularly appropriate for a young girl. The back of the coat is shown in the illustration at the bottom of the page. In the center a smart coat of moire is shown. This, also, is brightened with a touch of Bulgarian tinted silk, and is lined with thin silk, and designed for Summer wear.

The attractive little suit coat worn by the figure in the remaining illustration, is extremely chic, although quite simple and devoid of any trimming, but the exquisitely embroidered collar.

NEW CITY OFFICERS ELECTED AT CORNELIA

Cornelia, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—The annual election of mayor and council of Cornelia, held today, resulted in the election of W. B. Eilard for mayor, and W. B. Pass, L. Willbanks, J. W. Peyton and L. Y. Irvin as councilmen. There are two factions, and the result of the election is satisfactory to both sides as could be asked for. There were seven in the race for council, while Mr. Eilard had no opposition. The retiring officials, William Ederhart, mayor; J. T. King and G. B. Irvin, councilmen, were not in the race.

The newly elected officials will assume their official duties the first Monday in June, and will continue the improvements that the retiring body had under way and adopted ones. The most important improvement on now is the installation of waterworks and sewers.

The New Owen Bill.

Senator Owen has introduced a revised bill providing for a national department of health. The new bill goes back to the original plan and provides for a department of health with a secretary in the cabinet. It is by far the best measure which has yet been presented on this subject. It contains all of the strong points of preveding bills without any of the objections to which previous bills were subject. The return to a plan for a department of health is commendable. In the United States public health service is currently have a strong, efficient and rapidly developing bureau. In order to justify itself to the friends of advanced health legislation, any proposed change must provide for something larger, better and stronger than the existing health machinery. The movement for a department has gained strength enormously during the past three years. The opposition to it has crystallized in a comparatively diminishing group of objectors, while public support for such a measure has been growing as its object and purposes have been better understood. The silly objections which were at first raised against the measure have been completely met. The establishment of a national department of health will not and cannot interfere with the rights of any citizen or with the authority of any state. It cannot have anything to do with the individual treatment of disease or with the administration of drugs. These facts have been proved repeatedly to the satisfaction of all those who really wish to know the truth. The only objectors left are those who are too ignorant to be able to understand, too fanatical to desire to understand, or too mercenary to care for anything

Direct Vote for President.

Hartford, Conn., May 3.—The resolution passed by the general assembly memorializing congress to propose an amendment to the constitution to provide for election of the president and vice president of the United States by direct vote of the people, having been signed by Governor Baldwin and sealed by the secretary of state, was forwarded today to Vice President Marshall.

SELF-STARTER GETS BONESETTER REESE TO BUY AN OAKLAND

Among the numerous celebrities who have been completely captured by the virtues of the Oakland car, Bonesetter Reese, of Youngstown, Ohio, is the latest. Mr. Reese is unique among famous people as he has won his reputation through his ability to repair broken bones and to straighten out the kinks in strained tendons and ligaments. Among athletes, especially ball players, he is regarded as supreme in his specialty and many a diamond star has hustled to the Bonesetter's home in Youngstown to be put in shape for the great American sport.

The other day a patient rushed into Mr. Reese's office. His arm had been broken in cranking his motor car and the bonesetter had to fix it up. The cause of the accident set Mr. Reese to thinking. He is an ardent motorist. His arms and his hands are the chief tools in his profession and invaluable. Wasn't he taking chances and in danger of suffering the same accident as his patient? Surely he was, he concluded. The thing for him to do, therefore, was to buy a car that needed no hand-cranking, one that had a positive self-cranking device.

Straightway Mr. Reese bought an Oakland, for he found that the famous "car with a conscience" is equipped with a Delco electric self-starting, ignition and lighting device and that all you do is to press a button when you want to start your engine. Mr. Reese found also that the big thing about the Oakland starting device was that it works—all the time. Big leaguestars may therefore be assured that Bonesetter Reese will be on the job this season as usual.

For a Bigger, Better Navy.

(Hon. Joseph Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, in Leslie's.)

Many people said these victories (in our war with Spain) show that we are not in need of any larger navy, and that vast expenditure on the navy is wrong, smashing an extra burden on the tax payers. Wise men did not take this view. They said that what we did in the Spanish war demonstrated that our ships and men are the glory of the republic and that such men should not be placed in jeopardy, and that if war comes again we must be ready for it. The preparedness can be had only by rounding out and completing the navy and making it large enough to be the strong right arm of the republic, and to do the work for which the right arm is intended, not for punishment, not for injury to others, but for protection of one's self and one's country. Let us have done for once and forever with the silly boastings of the stripling that we are able to lick any nation on earth. Let us have done with threats, but let us also have done with the undermining of our strength, the minimizing of our naval esprit de corps—of that spirit which would deny that our naval heroes of today are potentially as famous as the men whose names are on every tongue.

PASTOR RAYMOND TO SPEAK TODAY OF DANGER AHEAD

PASTOR RAYMOND,

Pastor Raymond is booked for a free address to the public this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Grand on the subject "How God Saves All Men." Of strong personality, admirable physique and impressive countenance, Pastor Raymond is a speaker who, when once heard, is seldom forgotten.

Pastor Raymond says that the present restlessness of the masses is but the rumbling of a thunder storm soon to break upon our heads; that the present conditions are sure to bear evil fruits, and that our only hope is in the intervention of the Most High in our behalf.

CAPTAIN M. L. PETTY OPENS ATLANTA OFFICE

Captain M. L. Petty, who recently sold out his real estate business here in order to go to Albany, Ga., has been kept from moving because of sickness in the family, and has reopened an office at 125 North Pryor streets. He will do a general real estate business, dealing in both city and country property.

Captain Petty is regarded as one of the foremost authorities on farming property in the state. He has on his lists some of the most valuable cotton, oats and pecan plantations in southwest Georgia.

In speaking of prospects in the vicinity of his property, Captain Petty said Saturday: "The pecan business is perhaps the most popular enterprise in south Georgia. It was only a few months ago that a pecan farm near Albany sold for $1,000 an acre—and there were 200 acres in the property, too.

"Altogether the outlook for this year's crops is good all over the country; it is especially good in south Georgia. I consider that there is no better investment in the country than southwest Georgia land. And it all comes at a reasonable price. The best farm land sells at from $10 to $50 an acre."

COUNTESS KILLS SELF WHILE OUT HUNTING

Henley, England, May 3.—"Death by the accidental discharge of her own gun," was the tragic fate today of the Countess of Cottenham, wife of the Earl of Cottenham.

Countess' twin sister, daughter of the Marquis of Abergavenny, was found dead in 1910, with a gunshot wound through the heart in the grounds of the family residence, in Oxfordshire.

Today's affair was at first a mystery. It was not known whether the countess had taken her own life, had been murdered, or had been accidentally shot, until the Earl of Cottenham himself testified at the coroner's inquest. He said he had been out with his boys and when he returned and found his wife missing he instituted a search, which resulted in the discovery of her body with the gun beside it, near the stump of a tree, over which she accidently had stumbled at the same time accidentally discharging the weapon. The jury thereupon returned a verdict of accidental death.

The countess was an enthusiastic huntswoman and a fine shot. She frequently roamed through the preserves of her estate at Rivenden Priory.

The twin sister of the countess was Lady Violet Nevill, who became Countess Cowley, and whose divorce suit against Earl Cowley, in 1907, created a widespread sensation.

The Countess of Cottenham first married John Blundell Leigh, and also went through the divorce court in 1899, her husband being the plaintiff and the Earl of Cottenham the co-respondent. She married the Earl of Cottenham in the same year and had three sons, who are all living.

DR. BURROUGHS FILLS PULPIT OF DR. DANIEL

Deliberate Selection In Loose Diamonds

Our Diamond rooms are especially arranged for the secluded and comfortable privacy of our customers, and to afford a quiet and careful attention.

It is our desire to have our patrons know all that any expert can tell about a diamond, and we, therefore, display diamonds loose (unmounted), the only way in which any diamond expert would consider a purchase.

Diamonds come from the "cutters" in "papers" containing many carats of stones of wide variety of color, degree of perfectness and class. Every diamond we handle we buy directly from the cutters in papers aggregating many thousand dollars.

Our President assorts and classes these papers into grades and values, and they are gone over and over with unusual care until every value is absolutely correct.

This is not possible with the jeweler, both because it requires years of experience and an expert, and also a large amount of capital in our one specialty.

After selection, we mount our diamonds in any variety of elegant design that our customers could desire, using care that only the most perfect work is delivered.

The certainty of knowing what grade and value you are getting in any purchase has all to do with contented possession, and our price, grade and weight are always marked in plain figures.

Our one, plain-figure price, from which we never vary, necessitates that we be sure that our prices are as low as the same diamonds can be bought for anywhere in the world.

"Our Diamond Book" Set No. 7 explains how our diamonds have a guaranteed cash return value, also exchanged at full price, and purchased on partial payments, by good notes running over as much as ten months.

RHEUMATISM COMES FROM CONDITIONS WHICH CAN BE REMEDIED

But Local Applications on the Skin Cannot Get at the Cause of Your Suffering.

Just a bilious attack and a slight deposit of uric acid. Now calomel and similar mercurial purgatives do not dissolve and expel the uric acid sediment that forms from undigested, fermenting foods, and when this poisonous acid is not expelled it accumulates quickly, thickens the blood and settles in joints and muscles. The joints and muscles then become stiff.

An attempt to cure this rheumatism must be directed toward removing uric acid from blood and tissues, breaking up the crystalline urates already formed and preventing new deposits. JACOBS' LIVER SALT is remarkably successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It dissolves uric acid out of the tissues, holds it in solution and expels it in the urine. It thoroughly cleanses the system of fermentation and purifies the blood. It will give prompt relief in all cases of rheumatism resulting from uric acid poisoning.

If you are suffering with rheumatism, try JACOBS' LIVER SALT immediately. It will relieve you more promptly and surely than anything else. Don't take an inferior substitute, some closely imitate the name, but none produce the same result. Insist on the genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT, 25c. If your druggist cannot supply you full size jar mailed upon receipt of price, postage free. Made and guaranteed by Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., Atlanta.—(Advt.)

LEAGUE LEADERS BATTLE TODAY

Two Juicy Rounds Give Bill's Clan The Third Straight

Barons Blow Behind Fittery and Crackers Bunch Hits With Their Errors—Score 9 to 5.

Birmingham, Ala., May 3.—(Special.)—Some 6,000 Birmingham fanatics sat through two hours and thirty-five minutes of agony this afternoon and watched Bill Smith's Crackers walk away with the third straight game of the series without half trying.

Today's court was 9 to 5, the Crackers piling up their batch of nine runs in two braces, four in the opening chapter and five in the fifth.

Bill Smith's clan hit the ball hard and timely. Their hitting was as timely as the Baron errors were untimely. Ten clean bingles were registered off the deliveries of Fittery and Thompson, while the Barons went high in the air and chalked up seven horrible miscues.

Sixth Cracker Win.

Saturday's win made the sixth victory for the Crackers in the eight games they have played with the Barons. Bill Smith's crew winning three on their home grounds and three here.

Brady pitched good ball for the Smithies. He kept the seven hits that he allowed fairly well scattered. He loafed in spots, but he could afford to do so with the big lead that his teammates piled up for him.

Fittery had little but the proverbial prayer, and he left that valuable asset at home. Thompson, who succeeded to the mound, did good work.

The game was without any brilliant features. The Barons uncomplished nothing but pile up errors, Eliam being the chief offender with four bobbies, while the Crackers did not have to try very hard to win.

Long Starts Things.

Long greeted Fittery with a sharp single to open the pastime. Agler worked the southpaw for a free ticket. Alpermann arose in the pinch, as usual, and smashed one to left, counting Long. McBride let the pellet slip through his fingers and before he could recover it Agler and Alpermann clattered across the plate after Tommy.

Welchonce whiffed the ozone. Smith puled one to deep right, which Messenger let drop and Smith, keeping on sprinting, pulled up at third. Bisland counted him with a two-ply smash.

The other big Cracker inning was the fifth. With one gone, Long doubled and went to third on Agler's out. Alpermann again produced the pinch, sending Long across. Welchonce and Smith singled, Alpermann scoring.

Bisland drew a free ticket, filling the bases, and Graham also walked, forcing Welchonce home. Dunn rolled a slow one through the infield, counting two more runs.

The Barons scored two in the second inning. McBride opened with a double and McGilvray walked. Carroll sacrificed them both up a base and Mayer's infield hit scored McBride. McGilvray scoring on the double steal.

Carroll's single, followed by Eliam's home run, sent two more home in the fourth.

McGilvray was safe on an error in the sixth, took third on Carroll's single and counted on an infield out.

New Orleans defeating Memphis in the last of the series, 4 to 3. After both teams had scored in the first inning through errors, the locals forged ahead by the hitting of Clancy and Hendryx in the third. Abstein knocked a home run after Baerwald had singled in the sixth and gave Memphis the lead. McIntyre, former Cincinnati pitcher, batted for Taylor in the seventh and his two-base hit drove in Knaupp with a tying run. Brilliant fielding shut off the visitors

Cracker Southpaw and Winning Hurler

GILBERT E. "SCHEGG" PRICE.

Four excellent photos of the Crackers' southpaw snapped by The Constitution's staff photographer just before the Crackers left for Birmingham. "Schegg" has shown the best form of any of the local pitchers to date, and leads the hurlers, winning five games and losing but one. Price has pitched 45 1-3 innings and has allowed 14 runs and 22 hits in that time, an average of 1 run every 3 1-3 innings and an average of 1 hit every other inning. The only game he has lost this season was against Nashville at Ponce de Leon Park last week, when he allowed but 3 hits, yet was defeated, 4 to 3. Price was sent to the Crackers by Manager Clark Griffith, of the Washington Americans, on a trial. He pitched five games last season, winning four of them. Since joining the local clubs he has won, all told, nine games and lost but two, a very useful citizen to be hanging around a ball club. Principal of all his assets is his willingness. He has asked Bill Smith to pitch him two games a week, and Bill will certainly do so, especially if the left-hander delivers the brand of ware that he has been dishing out to date. He will probably hurl today's opening game against the league-leading Gulls in Mobile.

First Place Fight to Be Waged Today; Gulls Meet Locals

First Sunday Game for the Crackers—Southpaw Price to Hurl—Series Important One.

Mobile, Ala., May 3.—(Special.)—Gulltown is all agog. The Crackers play the Gulls a series of four games beginning Sunday.

Great preparations have been made for Sunday's game. The baseball officials are prepared to handle the largest crowd of fans that has ever attended a ball game in this city, and with clear weather they will not be disappointed.

Billy Smith and his Crackers are due to arrive here Sunday morning from Birmingham in a jubilant mood. The strength of Mike Finn's team does not seem to worry them in the least. In fact they are confident that they can stop the winning stride of the league leaders, if any team can.

First Place Fight.

The four game series will mean a fight for the honor of making the pace in the Southern league race. The Gulls are now it, ousting the Crackers the early part of the week.

On form, the two teams appear to have the best clubs in the circuit. And unless they hit a slump, the battling for the pennant will be waged by the Finnites and the Smithies.

Sunday's game promises to be a southpaw battle. Fug Cavet, the lanky sidewheeler of the Gulls, will hurl the pastime for the Finns, with Charley Schmidt behind the platter.

Gilbert Price, the Crackers' lone southpaw and their winning pitcher, will endeavor to stop the Gulls' winning streak and score his sixth win of the season. Joe Dunn, who caught for the Gulls last season will handle his slants.

The appearance here of Tommy Long, who cavorted in right field for the Gulls in 1912 will be greeted with a storm of cheers by Gull fans, as the Gadsden Galloper was one of the most popular players that ever wore a Mobile uniform.

Bailey With Club.

Harry Bailey, the Crackers' left fielder and clean up hitter, who has been kept at home with a badly injured foot, joined his teammates in Birmingham and may be able to get in the game Monday or Tuesday, and get into the final game of the Gulls series.

The Cracker players are pulling for Bailey to get back into harness as he has been one of their most formidable attackers and the pitchers of the league have a holy fear of his big bludgeon.

Georgia-Tech Frays Loom Up As Season's Greatest Games; Both Teams Going Great Now

By Dick Jemison.

The University of Georgia-Georgia School of Technology baseball games loom up as the one big event of the near future in sportdom.

This is the case every year, but this year the excellent showing of the university team, which at the present writing is clearly entitled to the southern intercollegiate baseball title, lends zest to the games.

Coach Cunningham's warriors, off to a slow start, have at last hit their true stride and are now traveling at a pace that has been too swift for all opponents.

At the start of the season the yell went out that Georgia was shy on pitchers and without a varsity man on the job, things did look exceedingly blue. But as the season progressed the hurlers improved and in Corley and Morris they have two men who have been hurling a great article of ball lately.

Tremendous Hitting.

The hitting of the Georgians has been tremendous. No pitcher has felt comfortable facing them, and even had their pitcher gone bad of late, their hitting would have carried them through.

Cunningham's bunch have games Monday and Tuesday with the Washington and Lee nine. The Virginians always turn out a corking good team and these games will give the Georgians just the kind of battles that they need to keep them on edge for the Tech games.

To the casual observer a comparison of the work of the Tech and Georgia teams would lead one to believe that it will be a one-sided series, with the Georgians romping home hands down.

Sticking straight in the trail of the dope, this is what should happen. But following closely the performances of Georgia and Tech teams in the past one can only surmise the outcome of the four games.

The teams meet in Athens Friday and Saturday and again in Atlanta the following Friday and Saturday.

Stranger things have happened and it would be the irony of fate to have the Georgians, who have been sweeping everything before them, strike a snag when they meet the Jackets, an admittedly inferior aggregation.

Will One Team Blow?

Dope, when figuring these two teams, however, is not worth the paper it is written on. They play the best they know how when they meet one another, or they blow all to pieces.

Which team will blow?

If you furnish the correct answer to this question you furnish the answer to the series.

Georgia ought to, on the dope, win at least three of the four games, or make a clean sweep of the series. But will she? Her supporters say she will. The Tech rooters smile grimly. They realize the odds are against them, but like true sports, they are hoping.

Bringing it down to brass tacks, it's strictly up to the pitchers. If Eubanks and Pitts can stop the onslaught of Georgia bingles, then Athens and Atlanta fans will witness the greatest series of college baseball ever staged in the two cities.

Corley and Morris can be expected to do their share in checking Jacket bingles, though in the Sewanee series the Tech batters seemed to have rubbed the cobwebs out of the lamps that have been dim for weeks. Whether it will last or is just a spurt remains to be seen.

Fingers Crossed.

The further you delve into the possibilities in trying to pick a winner in these four games the further you get from arriving at a satisfactory conclusion.

It's either a case of playing the dope straight across the board, Georgia to win, or—

Realizing the way the two teams battle, flip a coin, heads for Georgia and tails for Tech, and bet on the way the coin lands.

But come what may, it is going to be considerable series—

CONSIDERABLE—

MOORE'S HOME RUN SPUR TO JACKETS

They Follow His Circuit Clout With Steady Rain of Bingles—Sewanee Is Beaten Again—Count 5-1.

By Robert L. Hughes.

"Smoey" Eubanks made it two straight wins from Sewanee, when he defeated them again Saturday afternoon by a 5 to 1 score.

A large crowd was out to see the game and they were treated to the best battle that has been witnessed at the flats this season. It was a game full of spectacular catches and both teams played an excellent game.

Gordon, Sewanee's left-hander, was sent in to guard the Tigers from any of the Yellow Jackets' stingers. He put his foot in their nest at the start, however, when all nine Jackets faced him in the opener, bunching five stings, which were good for three runs. Gordon had wonderful control for a southpaw, not allowing a single Jacket a free ticket.

Coach Heisman again sent Eubanks in to do the box work for the Jackets Saturday. In seven of the innings only three men faced him in each chapter, while a total of only thirty of the Tigers went to the rubber. Eubanks was in invincible form Friday and after he had won the game for Tech, Coach Heisman took him out for Saturday's battle. He had the Tigers perfectly tamed and did not let one get loose to first by the big four route. He gave up only four well scattered hits.

Moore Gets Homer.

"Scrappy" Moore in the initial chapter got the only home run that has ever been knocked on Grant field. Not content with this, he lined out a single in his three "at bats."

Fax Montague's two one-hand stabs of hot ones featured the Jackets' fielding. The first was a backhand pick-up of a fast grounder over the second bag, the other being a run-

Williams Goes to Pelicans; Jordan or Kernan May Be Crackers' Utility Player

"Rebel" Williams, the young infielder, secured by the Crackers from the Washington Americans, is no longer a Cracker. Beginning today, he will be a Pelican.

Washington turned the youngster over to the Crackers after Charley Frank had put in a claim for him at the time specified, according to the rules.

Frank appealed the case to the National commission. The local club realized that Frank had as good a claim to Williams as the locals did to Welchonce, so they passed him up.

This cuts the locals down to four teen men, and would leave them without a utility player, if Patrick Graham was not hanging around the diggings. But with Pat on the job, the club can go short handed until Bailey rounds into form and a suitable utility player is secured.

Harry Bailey, by the way, joined his teammates in Birmingham Saturday and was in uniform, but he limped badly. Just when he will get in the game is problematical. If he does get in harness against the Gulls in Mobile this afternoon, it will be a most pleasant surprise.

Jack Kernan, who was released outright when Bisland reported to the Crackers, may be signed up again and act in utility roles.

But the most likely deal will be the signing of Otto Jordan, former Cracker field captain, manager and second baseman.

It is understood that the local club has been figuring with Jordan and may close the deal for him at any early date, if he can be secured and still stay in the salary limit.

Even if Otto does not play regularly, he would be a great asset to the club as third base coacher, where a brainy man is always of big help to a club.

Then Otto, who is in the best shape of his long and useful career, can revert around that keystone in much better form than reports from Chattanooga or Memphis would have one believe, and an injury to any of the present infield quartet would bring him back into harness and make the defensive strength of the club as strong as ever.

Manager Smith may decide what he will do in the case today and wire Otto to join the club on its present road trip.

Jordan has several other irons in the fire, but expresses a preference to playing with his home team. However, he will take the offer that looks the best, financially, and sensibly so.

Miss Wood Tells of Meaning Of the Pen and Brush Club

By Virginia Wood

The Pen and Brush club, which met last night in the studio of Miss Virginia Woolley, is the answer to a distinct call.

Now that the little art school that was a great help to the city has left, there is great need for just such a club here to advance true art feeling in this big and successful city.

It has been the history of art since time immemorial that art springs up in big American cities after they have made a success in material lines, the pendulum swings back the other way and art naturally creeps into existance; the people then have time to feel the need and need the beautiful.

This club intends meeting once or twice a week in the evening to sketch from the costume model without instructions except what they can give each other, which, after all, is the best way to learn, as pupils always learn more from each other than from the master.

Such a club has been in existence in New Orleans for some years and all ex-members tell me it was of great help to young men (or women) working on illustrating papers.

Those who really wished to get on and improve would rush to the club and get to work before the others arrived and there are many illustrators who, if they will join, will find a great help in having sympathetic fellow-workers.

After New Members.

The little club of a week old has already on its membership list two architects, two professors, several women painters, a newspaper cartoonist and others and they wish for more members. There is only a small fee required and all who are interested are invited to attend the next meeting to be held in Miss Woolley's studio, Wesley Memorial building, corner Ivy street and Auburn avenue, on Saturday evening, May 3, at 7:30 o'clock.

Useful Organization.

If anything is not practical it will die, and should, and the idea of this little club is purely of a useful nature to the members. It can be worked up later to give scholarships to northern art schools and perhaps the big "pen and brush clubs" of New York city can be expected to treat these members as non-resident members themselves and all the benefits of that club could be enjoyed by members from here when in New York. They hold big receptions several times a year, entertaining celebrities in all the artistic lines, which in itself is an inspiration to the "small fry" to take to the deep waters and be a whale in his own line.

BIG PAGEANT IS PLANNED BY ATLANTA SCHOOL CHILDREN

The public school children of Atlanta, under their physical director, Professor Theodore Toepel, are planning elaborate and beautiful field day exercises for May 12 at Piedmont park. The exercises will begin at 2:30 o'clock and will include the usual athletic contests and, in addition, a pageant scene in which 1,400 children will take part. There will be folk lore dancing and many new features.

The school children all over the world are making their field day exercises elaborate functions and it will be interesting to note the achievement of the Atlanta children, who have for several years now had admirable field day programs.

The public is invited to the exercises and an especial invitation has been sent to the Atlanta Drama league and the Players' club, that they may see the effort of the children here in the presentation of a pageant scene.

CONTEST FOR COVER DESIGN TO BE DECIDED THIS WEEK

The contest for the cover design for the woman's edition of The Constitution, to be published in June, will be decided upon this week. A committee of judges will be appointed by Mrs. Samuel M. Inman, president of the Atlanta Art association, and they will consider the designs submitted within the next few days.

Artists from all over the state are competing and the interest has been manifestly enthusiastic. The art classes in many of the schools of the state have sent specimens of their work and beside the prize of $50, which will be awarded to the best design, it is probable that several of the honor designs will be secured for publication in the edition. A full list of the competitors will be published later.

Inquiries on the subject may be directed to the Woman's Edition office, Man 5000, Constitution.

Dinner Party.

Mr. and Mrs. George K. Selden entertained at the dinner dance at the Driving club last night in compliment to their guests, Miss Anne Selden, of Washington, and Miss Marion Roberts, of Utica.

In the party were Miss Roberts, Miss Selden, Miss Frances Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Neely, Dr. J. H. McCord, Mr. Dudley DuBose, Mr. Gabriel Solomon.

To Miss Thomas.

Miss Ruth Hinman gave a delightful afternoon party yesterday in compliment to her guest, Miss Marjorie Thomas.

Thirty young girls were invited and a guessing contest was enjoyed. Jacqueminot roses, honeysuckle and ivy decorated the reception rooms and punch was served on the porch, which was cosy with its rugs and porch furniture and inviting with ferns and flowering plants.

Miss Dorothy Hinman and Miss Fula Dunwody served punch and Miss Willie Williams and Miss Doris Lester assisted in entertaining.

Hightower-Sisson.

A beautiful wedding yesterday was that of Miss Sarah Frances Hightower and Mr. Gustave Beauregard Sisson, which took place in the afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the beautiful colonial home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hightower, in Druid Hills.

There was present only a family gathering. The attendants were Miss Elizabeth Hightower, maid of honor; Miss Allie Candler, bridesmaid, and Mr. Charles A. Sisson, best man.

The wide, imposing hall and spacious reception rooms had appropriate decoration in large palms, placed singly, massed in luxuriant arrangement, and the broad stairway was hung with smilax. The bridal party were grouped during the ceremony before a pyramid of palms in the drawing room, and pink roses filled vases everywhere.

The bride was a picture of girlish beauty and charm. Her costume was a three-piece suit of bengaline in the cafe-au-lait shade, and her hat was trimmed with plumes shading from ecru into cream. Her flowers were orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids wore lingerie gowns and their bouquets were Killarney roses.

Mrs. Hightower wore black chantilly lace over white satin. Mrs. V. F. Sisson, the groom's mother, was gowned in black brocade. Mrs. Charles A Sisson wore wistaria canton crepe.

After the ceremony refreshments were served from the dining room, and there the table was tastefully and there the table was tastefully decorated in pink. A large silver vase in the center and four smaller silver vases held pink roses, the colonial silver candlesticks burned pink candles and silver dishes were filled with pink bonbons.

Mr. and Mrs. Sisson will enjoy an extensive wedding trip in the north and northwest, and on their return will keep house.

The bride, who has only recently finished school, is a winsome young woman, whose charming traits have endeared her to many friends, and Mr. Sisson is held in high esteem by his associates in business and social life. He holds a responsible position with the Georgia Railway and Electric company.

Afternoon Tea.

Miss Helen Jones entertained delightfully at afternoon tea at the Driving club yesterday, inviting thirty young women to meet Miss Margaret Northen's guest, Miss Helen Barnes, of Macon.

Refreshments were served at small tables on the terrace.

Miss Jones wore a becoming gown of blue crepe de chine with Dresden border of roses and it had a full finish in a wide girdle and sash ends of rose color. Her poke bonnet was trimmed with roses and a white ostrich band.

Miss Northen wore lavender chiffon with a hat trimmed in lilacs, and Miss Barnes wore a pink lingerie gown with a black picture hat.

MOUNTAIN CITY HOTEL TO OPEN LATE IN JUNE

Mrs. Fred Morton, of Athens, has secured the Mountain City hotel, in Rabun county, for the summer, and will open it for the reception of guests June 25.

Rtbun county has been compared to Switzerland because of the rugged and attractive beauty of its scenery.

Mountain City is in the heart of this beautiful section, surrounded by towering peaks of the Blue Ridge, and is one of the most delightful of the many beautiful spots on the Tallulah Falls railway. It is cool and pleasant, even in mid-summer weather, and a night without the use of blankets is almost unknown.

Mrs. Morton is one of the best-known and most popular women of Athens. Her reputation is that of a splendid housekeeper. She has already spent some time at Mountain City planning and planting flower gardens around the Mountain City hotel to add to its attractiveness.

With the most delightful summer climate to be found anywhere in this part of the country, pure water from mountain streams, all the fresh vegetables the truck farm affords and chickens galore, it would be difficult to imagine a more delightful place to spend the months of July and August.

I Can Make Your Fat Vanish by the Gallon!

I CONQUERED OBESITY PAST MIDDLE-AGE

I Ate Everything I Liked—Went Through No Exercise—Wore No Special Clothing—Took No Weakening Baths!

I Explain My Simple, Speedy Home Treatment to You—FREE!

I, Lucile Kimball, a married woman past middle-age, attacked by obesity for years, finally conquered the fat monster. Everything you ever tried, I tried. I went through exercises, rolled on the floor, cut down my food, gave up sweets, fats and starches, wore elastic clothing, tried electricity, massage, osteopathy, vibration, hot and vapor baths, swallowed pellets, capsules and teas—gained as rapidly as I lost—and so would you with those so-called treatments.

For years, my friends have asked me to tell them how I got rid of fat and kept rid of it. They know that I eat what I want—go through no exercise other than I get around the house and office; that I am full from cheerful, happy, healthy, supple—and look younger by fifteen years than I actually am.

I was afraid that my Home Treatment might prove temporary. I waited months. My fat did not return, and I waited years, but my fat did not come back. Still, I postponed. I tried my Home Obesity Treatment on friends. They were equally benefited—men and women of all ages. And finally I decided to reduce the obesity of fat men and women all over the world.

You have figured fat by the pound. Your "methods" and "treatments" have attacked living tissues more than fat. What did you gain? Nothing! Your fat came back the moment you stopped your exercise or diet. It did not go if you tried anything else. But my Home Treatment is not exercise or diet. I say "diet" in its broadest sense—not "starvation diet," not "excessive diet," but diet of any kind.

Eat any kind of meat, vegetables, salads, pastry, fish, fowl, nuts, candy that you want—when you want it. Drink what you want—when you want it. I don't interfere with your food or drink. No bending over, rolling, playing golf, horseback riding, doing exercises of any kind. Sit in your chair at home, or in your chair at your office—and the fat will vanish from you by the pint, quart and gallon. It goes away rapidly. It melts from you. You feel better—stronger. Beauty returns to women; strength to men. You never heard of anything of the kind ever in your life. Everybody says, "How wonderful!" It is marvelous beyond description, and it is absolutely harmless. It is so simple, you need devote only three or four minutes each twenty-four hours to its use.

Spend Just One Penny!

All I want you to do is to send for my book. This explains the harm of most methods and treatments; why exercise and diet are useless. It tells how I overcame obesity; how I conquered fat; how I rid my friends of fat; how you can be free from the grip of the fat fiend. I know that you want the way explained out for you, showing how you can reduce fat right in your own home, leaving house, while traveling or visiting. Don't wait. This book costs you nothing. It tells the how and why, and your name should be among the first to reach me. I pledge secrecy and a prompt response. This is up to me to accomplish. Fair? Fair enough. Write today—now! Hurry your request—this moment! If you have been ill-appointed before, this time you will be satisfied. Write in a letter or on a postal card. "Please send Free Book showing how I can reduce my obesity at home." Sign your name and address. You are not obligated in any way. Get your request in now.

"Georgia's Historic Landmarks"

Lucian Knight's Last Work.

LUCIAN L. KNIGHT.

In some respects the most unique volume on the subject of Georgia history yet published in this state has just been issued by the Byrd Printing company, of this city, entitled, "Georgia's Land-Marks, Memorials and Legends," a book of more than a thousand pages, handsomely bound in half-leather and embellished with full-page illustrations. It comes from the pen of the well-known historian, Lucian Lamar Knight, a recent appointee of Governor Brown to succeed the late Governor William J. Northen, as compiler of Georgia's state records.

Mr. Knight's work is not written in the style of the conventional histories. It is a welcome departure in this respect from the dry standards. On every page the journalistic principle is in evidence and even to the most commonplace events the author imparts a touch of present-day interest. There is not a phase of Georgia's history, from the landing of Oglethorpe on the bluffs at Savannah, which the author fails to include in this extraordinary symposium.

Treatment of Historic Events.

Much of the information is entirely new to the average reader. For example, he reproduces the famous alphabet invented by Sequoya, the Cherokee Indian half-breed. It was found buried in one of the official reports of the government, in the library of congress. According to Mr. Knight, the great trees of California were named for Sequoya, and he cities documentary proof to establish this statement. Sequoya's alphabet alone is sufficient to give Mr. Knight's work a distinct literary value, but there are many similar chapters, each of them rich in historic lore.

Likewise, from an old document which he found in Washington, D. C., Mr. Knight gives a detailed account of the removal of the Cherokee Indians, and describes a number of pathetic incidents occurring along the journey to the west. He also states what will doubtless be an item of news to many readers that the last capital of the Southern Cherokees was at New Echota, in north Georgia, some few miles to the east of the present town of Calhoun.

Going back to colonial times, he shows that in the battle of Bloody Marsh, fought on St. Simon's island, in 1742, the future civilization of North America was determined and that the Anglo-Saxon became at this time the undisputed master of the continent. This victory marked the beginning of Spain's downfall in the Western Hemisphere. The grave of "Light Horse Harry" Lee, at Dungeness, on Cumberland island, is the subject of another graphic chapter. The circumstances connected with the sojourn of the old revolutionary hero on the coast of Georgia are vividly sketched. Franklin college, the oldest state university in America, and Wesleyan college, the first institution in the world to confer a degree upon a woman, both occupy full chapters in Mr. Knight's book. But the topical variety is almost infinite.

Roster of Georgia Pioneers.

A roster of Georgia's pioneer settlers is furnished in this remarkable record. Mr. Knight has spent something like five years in the compilation of this list. To obtain what information he needed in regard to the first settlers of Georgia, he has visited every historic county in the state, every burial ground of any consequence, and every library in which Georgia books and manuscripts are kept. In addition to this catalogue of early settlers, he has also furnished a complete list of each county's distinguished residents. He tells for whom not only the counties, but also the county seats were named. He reproduces important epitaphs and inscriptions, narrates the stories connected with old ruins, rehearses the various Indian legends and literally leaves untouched nothing of interest in Georgia's historic annals.

The work is to be complete in two volumes, only the first of which appears at this time, though most of the matter for the second volume is already in manuscript. Mr. Knight has been assisted in the preparation of this work by the various patriotic societies of the state, including the Daughters of the Revolution, the Daughters of the Confederacy, the Colonial Dames, and others, to whom the work is formally dedicated. Scattered throughout the entire volume, there are copious foot-notes, showing the various sources from which the author has derived his information. It also contains a complete bibliography of Georgia historical works, a feature in itself of the very greatest value to students. Some of the dramatic episodes of Georgia's history discussed by Mr. Knight are as follows:

Mount Berry: How the Sunday Lady of Possum Trot Won the Mountains.

Two Volumes Required.

It was the author's plan originally to restrict the present work to a single volume of 600 pages. But the magnitude of the field was not realized in this early forecast; and to adhere to this original purpose would mean the sacrifice of more than half of the materials gathered from long and patient research. Two volumns therefore, each of a thousand pages, will be required to meet the demands of this work. The first volume, which appears at this time, is divided into two parts, one of which is entitled, "Landmarks and Memorials;" the other, "Historical Outlines, Original Settlers and Distinguished Residents of the Counties of Georgia."

The second volume—by far the richest of the two—will be apportioned into eight parts, as follows: 1. "Landmarks and Memorials:" 2. "Duels Fought by Noted Georgians;" 3. "Historic Burial Grounds. Epitaphs and Inscriptions;" 4. "Personal Recollections, Anecdotes and Reminiscences;" 5. "Myths and Legends of the Indians;" 6. "Tales of the Revolutionary Campfires;" 7. "Georgia Micellanies," and 8, an "Analytical Index," containing every important name in anywise connected with Gelrgia's history, colonial, revolutionary and commonwealth. In the light of this inventory it cannot be said that Georgia's history is unimportant. There is not a state in the union whose past is richer in achievement. Mr. Knight has made a distinct contribution to literature in this new work, which appears in the nature of a sequel to his two former volumnes, entitled, "Reminiscences of Famous Georgians."

"Kur" and "Cure."

(Journal of the American Medical Association.)

Many newspapers are hasty in announcing the discovery in Germany of some method of treatment more or less new, and not infrequently misinformation is given the public through the failure to keep in mind the actual meaning of one little word. The German word Kur does not mean "cure," although it is not an uncommon thing to find it so translated into English. "To cure" in English means "to restore to health; to effect a cure"; but in other languages it means merely to apply "a method of remedial treatment of disease; medical or hygienic care; method of medical treatment." The German word for "restoration to health" is Heilung, not Kur. The Latin word cura means merely "care," a shade of meaning which is preserved in the derived term "curator." An Italian physician was recently made to say, when his article was translated into English, "I cured ten typhoid patients last month and six of them died." What he really said was that he had treated ten patients.

It usually happens that the man who yields to temptation goes more than half-way to meet it.—From The Youth's Companion.

He was getting very despondent. He called at the drug store and procured one bottle of Quaker Extract, one bottle of the Oil of Balm, using them according to directions, and in eleven days he went to work on his engine, and has worked for months without pain, and say he has no more indigestion, no more kidney trouble, and Quaker Extract is the greatest medicine in the world.

Call today and obtain these wonderful Quaker Extract: 3 for $2.50, or 6 for $5.00. Oil of Balm, 25c or 5 for $1.00 at Coursey & Munn's Drug Store, 29 Marietta street. We prepay all express charges on all orders of $5.00 or over.—(adv.)

GEORGIA STICKS RAIN OUT BINGLES

Every Georgia Player Got Two or More Hits, and Tennessee Nine Given 9 to 3 Drubbing.

Athens, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Cunningham's Red and Black aggregation of ball tossers again defeated the University of Tennessee club this afternoon with little trouble, the final count standing 9 to 3. The Georgians batted the slants of Dawson with all ease, every man on the team corralling two hits with the exception of Harrison and Hitchcock, the former getting three, while the latter got one.

The fielding feature of the day was a one-handed stab by Harrison of a difficult chance from the bat of Gilbreath in the fourth. Hitchcock pitched a good game for the Athenians. Keeping the Tennessans' eight hits fairly well scattered, senging eight men out from pitcher to first and nine to the put-out column by the strike-out route. He had good control, not walking a man.

Incidentally: in the last five games the Red and Black crew have amassed an aggregate of 74 hits for a total of 53 tallies, while the best the opposition could do was to connect for 17 hits for a total of 7 counters.

The game Saturday was a repetition of the past five, the Georgians clouting the hide almost at will, while the visitors were having trouble with Hitchcock's benders. The fielding of both teams was off color and the exhibition was one of the listless variety.

MOORE'S HOME RUN SPUR TO JACKETS

F rming played a fearless game for Sewanee with the exception of one wild throw. His playing in all departments was steady and his seven assists and five putouts greatly overshadowed his one wide throw.

How They Scored.

Five bunched hits by the Jackets in the initial chapter gave the Jackets their lead.

Wooten, who first faced Gordon, popped out. Moore drove one into center which was good for four sacks. He set a hot pace for the Jackets at the start and Pitts stung one to left and took second on Montague's hit through second.

Pound followed with a double to left, counting Pitts and Montague. Amason singled past third, Pound going to third and Amason took second on the throw home. Donaldson was hit by Gordon, filling the sacks. Attridge fanned and Eubanks grounded out.

Sewanee counted her lone tally in the second on a two-bagger and a sacrifice. McGoodwin stepped into one of Eubanks' benders, driving it into center for two sacks. He took third on Gordon's grounder to Donaldson, who threw to first. Erwin sacrificed a long fly to Wooten, scoring McGoodwin from third.

Eubanks had the Tigers at his mercy after the second and they were unable to even land a man safe on second.

Tech counted again in the fourth. Attridge again whiffed the breezes. Eubanks singled over first and Amason was sent in to run for him. Amason stole second. Wooten beat out a bunt down first base line. Fanning covered first and threw wild to third in an effort to catch Amason off. Amason ran home and Wooten went to second.

Moore singled to center, advancing Wooten to third. Moore stole second. Pitts grounded out, Fanning to Jones, Wooten scoring on the grounder. Moore took third and was caught at home trying to steal.

Cardinals 6, Pirates 3.

Pittsburg, May 3.—Poor fielding by Pittsburg and the easy manner in which St. Louis collected hits off O'Toole made it three out of four for the visitors this afternoon. Konetchy started at the bat, getting two triples and a single off O'Toole, who allowed thirteen hits before Robinson took his place in the eighth. Pittsburg hit Steele hard in the first two innings and Harmon took his place in the third and held things nicely. Vicx's wild throw over Simon's head in an effort to break up the double steal gave the Cardinals two runs in the third inning. Byrne's error, followed by Sheckard's two-bagger, added another in the sixth. The other runs were made on clean hits. In sliding to the plate on teh double steal in the third inning Third Baseman Mike Mowrey wrenched his ankle so badly that he had to be carried off the field. He will be out of the game for a week. Mowrey did not accompany St. Louis to Chicago, but will receive treatment here.

Chicago, May 3.—Cincinnati batted Overall and Lavender opportunely and scored an easy victory over Chicago in the final game of the series 9 to 4. Clarke made four hits in as many times at bat, driving in five runs. Egan made three doubles and a single and forced a man out in five times at bat, scoring four runs for his team. Pitcher Ooverall, the California giant, played in major league baseball for the first time since the close of the 1910 season, and was wild. After the bases were filled with none out and the score tied in the eighth inning he was relieved by Lavender, who was unable to check the onslaught of the visitors

Brooklyn, May 3.—Nap Rucker notched his first victory in four attempts on Ebbets field this season when he beat Boston 4 to 1 today. The visitors worried the star left-hander from start to finish, getting men on bases in all but two innings, but he was given sensational support at critical periods every time in the fourth, when a fumble by Stengel helped in the only Boston tally. With one out in this inning Sweney singled, took second on Stengel's error and cantered home when Man made the first of his three safe drives.

Brooklyn made their hits off Gervais count. Devlin was spiked on the hand by Daubert in the fourth and retired.

Mathewson and Chalmers had a great battle. Passes to Snodgrass and Schafer, their double steal, and Doyle's single gave New York two runs in the first inning. In the eighth with one out Doolan singled, Cravath, who batted for Killifer, sent the first ball pitched him into the bleachers for a home run. SIXTEEN IN ROW FOR RIVERSIDE

Gainesville, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Riverside easily defeated Gordon this afternoon by a 11 to 4 score. This makes sixteen straight wins for Riverside.

The features of the game were the hitting of Mitchell and McNeill, Williamson's home run, and the fielding of Kingery at short.

Williamson pitched a great game, striking out 14 men. Twice Gordon filled the bases with none out, only to have Williamson fan the next three batters.

Detroit, Mich., May 3.—After crashing through Detroit's defense again and again to score runs, only to have the locals come back and tie the count, Chicago today in the wildest game played here this season, finally found a way to victory in the eleventh inning. The score was 6 to 4. Harry Lord's sharp single to left brought Russell home after the pitcher reached first on an error and advanced on a pass to Rath. Rath then cinched the game by racing home on an infield out.

It was Detroit's ninth straight defeat; seven of them at the hands of Chicago. As was the case in several of this week's contests, Detroit failed utterly to show offensive strength with runners on the bases ready to score. Battery errors also helped Chicago to several of their scores.

Boston, Mass., May 3.—Washington defeated Boston 2 to 1 in a lively contest this afternoon. Engel, who pitched until one man had been retired in the seventh inning, gave ten bases on balls, but was not hit safely by Boston. Three of his passes came in the second inning and with a man hit, gave the Boston team their only tally. Johnson finished the game for Washington, sharp fielding alone saving him from being scored upon. Washington got only three hits, Bedient in the first five innings, but tied the score in the seventh on an error by Engle, a base on balls and Morgan's single. Moeller hit for two bases in the eighth and scored the winning run on Milan's hit to center.

New York, May 3.—The Athletics again defeated the New York Americans today, the score being 8 to 6. Schulz, the first New York pitcher, twirled a great game, but received miserable support. The locals delighted a big crowd with their playing in the first four innings, but went to pieces in the fifth. Sweeney's work particularly as poor, the visitors stealing seven bases. Houck, who was knocked out of the box yesterday, was treated the same way today. HE HAS CONFIDENCE IN THE BRITISH NAVY

London, May 3.—"The more I know about the British navy the more I have confidence in it," said Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, at the annual banquet of the Royal academy tonight.

The first lord said the navy was great not merely in respect to numbers, but especially with regard to the quality of the ships and the men. He declared that the maintenance of an adequate military establishment was essential to an effective naval defense.

Viscount Morley, of Blackburn, described the international situation as the most tangled coil that ever confronted European diplomacy in this generation. The spirit of persistency and the firm and active policy of the British government, however, was the most perfect instrument they could have desired for the attainment of the common ends. He understood that there was every reason to believe that on Monday next they would be in sight of a solution which might be unanimously agreed to.

BOY SCOUTS GLAD OF SPRING WEATHER

For many a day the restless Boy Scout has sat in his schoolroom or at home looking woefully out of the window at the whistling winds, the bitter frost or the blinding snows. The forest is lifeless, the trees are bare and the world as a whole is dead. At last, through long days of such weather, the sun shines with its full splendor, the trees put forth their fresh green leaves, the water in the wash hole gets warm, the birds and animals come forth from their winter homes and the boy, with a heart full of serene joy, finds himself completely overwhelmed with the splendor of the season.

Now he is building a new rock dam for his swimming hole or floating down the warm creek in his dugout or canoe or destroying a nest of hornets or some other kinds of pests which are preying on the old peach tree or making their home in the henery. All of these things are filling his mind with unspeakable delight while his body is becoming strong and active. He is eager to awake early in the morning to take a swim before breakfast, to pick ripe berries or to look at his trap that he set near the old poplar tree.

This season of the year is the best time in the world for overnight hikes, tramps and joyful days in the inviting woods.

One Thursday afternoon three scouts from troop I took a week-end hike to their cabin near Buckhead. These boys have done this several times this year and have had much practice in the cooking line. There are many scouts in thi stroop that can cook good biscuits, battercakes and many other wholesome things. They enjoyed themselves in the heart of nature with all its glory and helped their bodies both mentally and physically.

PENNY LUNCHES PROVE TO BE VERY POPULAR

All Schools Want Them, and May Get Them Next Year.

The penny lunches served in the Inman Park school have proven such a success that all the schools in the city are clamoring for them. The Teachers-Parents' association is getting very busy and will do everything possible to have the penny lunches served in all the schools next term.

Members of the chamber of commerce have interested themselves in the matter. The board of lady visitors to the schools are heartily in favor of the system. Prominent city officials says the lunches should be served.

So it only remains for the mayor and general council next year to appropriate about $2,500 which will be sufficient to defray the expense of serving penny lunches in all the schools.

Two Interesting Groups of School Children

At the Left—First grade boys in May Day drill at Forrest Avenue school. The little lads were given praise for their striking costumes and the manner in which they drilled for the pleased spectators. LETTERS FROM SCHOOLS.

Lee Street School.

We are all very proud of all the boys that took part in the Memorial day parade. Those who sacrificed their own time to honor the brave soldiers and to represent their school were: William Jordan, captain; Horace Loomis, first lieutenant; Morris Baggett, second lieutenant; Howard Watkins, third lieutenant; Jim Hood, fourth lieutenant; Luther Bennett, Edward DeLoach, William Kerlin, Bonnie DeLoach, Branson Stevenson, Hugh Woodall, Eddie Smith, Walter Pitchford, Robert Wells, Marion Wilson, Raymond Woodall, James Wilkinson, Joe Taylor, J. D. Thomas, Quincy Jenkings, John Tyson, W. M. Poole, Waverley Wilson, Marion Ramsy, Jeffry Hope, Tom Johnson, Henry Ellis, Guy Crusselle, John McCollum, Harold Warner, Carl Duncan, Walter Dawson, Edmund Floyd, Douglas McGahee, Ort Jenkins, Sammy Jenkins, Roy Elliott, Henry Martin, Earl Perrin, Merryman Cross, Irving Albright, Ralph Mills, Edwin Bailey, Edwin Pound, Frank Caldwell, Billie Woodfin, Raymond Jordan, Albert Calloway, Hartmon Boone, Brook Lowry, Max Reckholder, Robert Collins, Howard Perrin, Morris Caldwell, Carl Greene and Montgomery Reckneil. We thank Superintendent Slaton for his praise of our share in the parade.

In my letter last week there was a mistake. Virginia Collier instead of getting twenty pledges signed succeeded in gaining the high number of 210.

Our fifth grade is very proud to be one of the few fifth grades in the city to take part in the flag drill which is to be held at Ponce de Leon park, and they are practicing very hard. They do their drill so well that Miss Zuber has complimented them very highly.

The girls of the fifth grade are planning to hold an interesting debate on Friday. The subject is, "Resolved, That electricity is more useful than steam." The girls who are going to take part in the debate are: Genevive Harper, Charlotte Dew, Minnie Calhoun, Francis Alman, Marie Roberts and Marguerite Eberhart.

HAROLD JORDAN.

Ira Street School.

The children of our school were overjoyed when the news came that Ruth Wilson, of the seventh grade, won the prize for the best composition on "The Gallant John B. Gordon."

Last week the children of the eighth grade went on a walk in the woods beyond West End park. Miss Wood seemed anxious to know what we saw and what kind of a time we had, so she asked us to write a composition about it.

Miss Harralson visited our school last week and was pleased with the music, giving the eighth grade excellent. Dr. Toepel came this week to drill the fourth and sixth grades in their exercises for Field day. He gave a good report.

Next week the seventh and eighth grades will debate on the subject, "Resolved, That England should not go through the Panama canal free." The seventh grade is on affirmative side and the eighth grade on the negative.

HERMAN MILLER.

Ashby Street School.

The fifth grade got the highest in attendance for last week.

The little second grade boys were rewarded for the most stars on the yard; also nineteen children were rewarded for the neatest copy books.

Herbert Manning, Emmett McClendon, Louise Spivey and Roy Sturgis were neither absent nor tardy last month. Roy Sturgis has been neither absent nor tardy since Christmas.

John Barker, of the deaf class, has come back after a long absence. Also little Elizabeth Baker is recovering after having a long siege of whooping cough.

Miss Milledge paid us a visit Monday. She gave the second, fourth and fifth grades a star for having excellence.

We worked very hard last week to get the prize for the most signatures on the Clean-Up day cards. Lula Mae Coley, of the fourth grade, got the greatest number signed.

BLANCHE LYLE.

Inman Park.

Well, Memorial day is a thing of the past for this year, and while we had but three platoons, each boy felt that the reputation of the school rested upon him, individually, and behaved his best.

We are glad that our boys were the first to reach the cemetery, as all the other schools, which were ahead of us, dropped out before reaching there.

The boys who were in the parade more than appreciated the letter of thanks from Mr. Slaton, read to us by Mrs. Johnson.

The sixth grade children are practicing for the Field day exercises, and nearly know them now. The fifth grade children are also practicing for the exercises.

Harry Smith, a pupil of the sixth grade, returned to school Monday after a serious accident to his eyes. The sixth grade children were very glad to have him return.

At the meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association last Friday, at this school, Dr. Claud Smith, the city bacteriologist, lectured on the diseases caused by the fly and mosquito. The fly charts, which have been placed in this school, are a good illustration.

A committee has been appointed to get up the closing day exercises. Three girls, Roberta Brown, Elizabeth Wilson and Laura Lee Pennington, compose this committee.

CARROLL VINING.

Formwalt Street School.

Our hearts swelled with pride on Saturday when we saw our boys pass by in the Memorial day parade. They were there seventy strong, and under the leadership of our captain, William Morgan, and our lieutenants, Robert Smith, Willis Johnson, Dan Dosier, Ralph Wallace and Ernest Green, they marched like veterans. They were arrayed in all their glory, and with their purple and pink ties, breastpieces and hat bands, and to streamers flying, they made a splendid showing. Our color bearers, Josh Tye, Marshall Morgan and Edward Merrit, did their share toward making our representation a success. Last, but not least, we must give full credit to our drummer boys, Frank Ruskin, Hyman Cohen, Leonard Tutwiler, Philip Schoeneck and Hugh Prater. If they had not furnished such splendid music, Formwalt could not have kept such steady step.

On Tuesday Grant Park went down in defeat before our team to the tune of 14 to 3. The two home runs knocked by our manager, William Morgan, were among the events of the game. With only three more games to play and having won everyone so far, Formwalt feels sure of the south side championship.

We received a visit from Dr. Toepel Tuesday. He was delighted with the work of the sixth and fourth grades.

Dr. Claude Smith lectured to us Tuesday on the subject of the "House Fly." This talk proved very interesting.

Mr. Sandrum also honored us with his presence on Monday. He made a very complimentary report to our principal.

On Friday night, April 36, Miss May Hardin entertained the Formwalt baseball team at her home in Inman Park. The Formwalt colors, purple and pink, were carried out in the beautiful decorations of the table, the dainty candies, the delicious cakes, with their chocolate Fl thy refreshing rose-tinted block cream, with F most conspicuous, when cut. All this brought out the loyal colors of Formwalt. In the game of baseball, Hayes Hawkins was the fortunate winner of the coveted prize, a beautiful glove. Nelle Fouche won the lovely lace baudoir cap, which was most becoming.

CLARA WYATT.

Fryor Street School.

We have heard a good deal of talk about "penny lunches." Perhaps it would be a good thing for some districts, but as for us, we had rather have the good eating we get at home than any kind of bought lunch. The mothers know what agrees with their children better than anyone else, and if they buy "penny lunches" a doctor bill may cost the mothers more in the long run.

Our Walter Rich Improvement club met on Friday the 25th and we had a fine meeting. A lecture by Dr. Sage on "The Great White Plague, or Tuberculosis of the Lungs," was greatly enjoyed. He startled the whole audience with facts about consumption's terrible damages; damages we had never dreamed cAonsumption had caused.

Well, we made a fine showing in the parade. We had a fine drum corps and some excellent marching. We heard from several outside sources that our marching was better than that of any other public school.

The fourth grade is doing fine work in geography. The children are divided up into three classes—class A, class B, and class C. There are 18 children in A, 19 in B, and 10 in C, so we see that about four-fifths of the class are doing fine, and all are doing fairly well.

Although we have not mentioned our flowers for several weeks, they are still living and living heartily. The front walls are bordered with a beautiful hedge, while the beds in the yard are bordered with nasturtiums and poet's eye narcissi, and the windows are adorned with ferns, blossoming geraniums and several other varieties of beautiful flowers.

WILLIAM STEELE, JR.

Peoples Street School.

The fifth and sixth grade boys feel quite honored to know that they are to be the stars in the American flag field day. After the exercises there is going to be a flag formed by the children in the fifth and sixth grades of all the schools. The girls will wear caps and capes of the colors of the flag, and the boys will be in a blue square, each holding a large white star above his head.

The seventh grade has reached Sherman's March, and the Battle of Atlanta, in history. They are going to the Cyclerama at Grant Park today to see the battle, so as to understand it better.

In the Memorial Day parade, last Saturday, some of the seventh grade girls rode in a wagon decorated with our school colors.

The fifth grade B had 100 in attendance last week. This class has been ranking among the best in attendance all this year.

Last Friday, our baseball team was defeated by Formwalt. Our boys didn't seem to play very well at all. Many bad plays were made, and we didn't do any hitting until the last inning, in which we made five runs. Tuesday we won a game from G. W. Adair by forfeit.

We had an exciting incident happen Tuesday. Some of us heard the fire-engines and then our fire bell rang. When we reached our places in front of the school, we could see some fire engines in front of the next house, and the firemen were seen on the roof putting out a small fire.

"In Old Madrid's" Author Dead

Clifton Bingham, the song writer, author of "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Asthore," "Dear Heart" and "In Old Madrid," died at Bristol a few days ago from an apoplectic seizure at the age of 53.

Precisely how many songs Mr. Bingham wrote nobody knows, but the number is certainly more than two thousand, and in addition his output of Christmas card verses was enormous. Of his songs more than 1,600 were published, set to music. He once said that he wrote on an average from seventy to eighty ballads a year.

Wherever the English language is spoken his songs are sung and many of his compositions have been translated. He was a born ballad writer.

"Songs must come from the heart," he said, "and go to the heart." "Book to the Old Love" was written on a visiting card, and another song on the top of an omnibus at Brighton. More than one song was written in an underground train, but most of them were composed at a little desk which his father gave him.

He kept a book in which hundreds of ideas for verses were written, and if ever he had fallen short of ideas himself he always had the selection of those sent to him by admirers. "When you have the thought and one line," he said, "the other lines come almost as a matter of course." One of his most famous songs, "The Promise of Life," was written without hesitation and without a correction. "Love's Old Sweet Song" was written at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. Bingham was the son of a Bristol bookseller, and when his father died he helped his mother in the business. Then he went into journalism. He had long been writing verses, and eventually he was able to devote himself wholly to composition. For his first accepted song he received a guinea. He has himself described his first "professional" visit to London.

"I went up to see a publisher to whom I had sold many dying child lyrics. When I presented myself to him he stared at me in amazement. 'Good gracious,' he cried, 'judging from your songs I thought you were an old man with one foot in the grave.'"

The music of "In Old Madrid" was written by Mr. Trotere before the words were composed by Mr. Bingham. The score lay in Mr. Bingham's desk for months, and repeatedly the author received postcards from the composer asking: "What about my music?" At last the inspiration came and the words were written.

HALF HOLIDAY GIVES GREAT JOY TO BOYS

Winners in the Tennis Game and in the Interclass Debate.

The announcement that the Boys' High school would have a holiday Friday sent joy to the heart of every student. The school will be given a holiday on account of the teachers' examination. A whole holiday was not expected by the boys as for the last few years only a half holiday has been given.

Starr won the tennis singles prize in the tournament which was played on the Druid Hills courts. The winners of the doubles were Starr and Harris. The prizes will probably be tennis rackets, though they have not been definitely decided upon.

The tenals tournament was a success this year and it is hoped that the tournament will be made a regular annual event.

Two-A won over Two-B in their recent interclass debate. The debate was very interesting and the speakers had plenty of humor in their speeches. The debaters for Two-A were: Leader, McCord; Murphy, Two-B, leader, Blanc; Thomas.

The subject was, "Resolved, That the Tippins bill should have been passed."

The winners took the negative side.

Many boys are looking forward with interest to March 7, when the Marist college game will be played. The first game with Marist was a tie. After that B. H. S. defeated Tech High, and Tech High defeated Marist, so there are many different opinions as to the result of the game. If Boys' High wins this game she will probably have the pennant cinched. Marist college, however, is trying to keep this from happening, as they have copped the pennant for the last three years, and want to hold their record.

An exhibition of flies was recently lent to the school showing the different stages of a fly's life. The exhibit is interesting and instructive, and the boys have been noticing it and watching the flies develop.

206 GIRLS AND BOYS GRADUATE IN JUNE

The graduating exercises of the Girls' High school will take place on the evening of June 5 at the Grand.

The Boys' High school graduating exercises take place June 6 at the Grand.

There will be 140 girls to graduate, 100 in the literary course and 40 from the English Commercial High school.

There will be 66 boys to graduate, all from the literary department. There are no graduates from the High Tech this year because of a change in the course of study which made those who would have graduated attend school another year.

Both schools are hard at work getting ready for the exercises. The boys are practicing their speeches and the girls are preparing their essays and looking after the regulation white dresses and ribbons. With the girls there will be one occasion when "frills" cannot be objected to.

Appalachian League Sent Twenty-Seven Up Last Year: Starts Season on Thursday

By Lester Barnes.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 3.—(Special)—With two new cities in the league and the prospects very bright for the most successful season in the history of the organization, the third season of the Appalachian baseball league will open Thursday.

The franchise formerly held by Asheville, now in the Carolina association, was transferred to Middlesboro, Ky., several months ago, and Rome, Ga., has taken the place of Morristown. The other cities in the league are Knoxville, Bristol, Johnson City and Cleveland, all of Tennessee.

Games are scheduled for the opening day as follows:

Middlesboro at Knoxville.
Cleveland at Rome.
Johnson City at Bristol.

Rome returns to the Appalachian league, formerly the Southeastern, after an absence of two years. The Southeastern league was organized in the spring of 1910 with franchises in Rome, Knoxville, Asheville, Morristown, Johnson City and Gadsden, Ala.

That season the pennant was won by Knoxville, but early in 1911 the four nothern cities withdrew from the league, and taking in Bristol and Cleveland formed the Appalachian league. Rome and Gadsden annexed some other Alabama cities and continued the Southeastern, which "blew up" the middle of last season.

The result of the explosion was that Rome was admitted to the Appalachian again a few months ago, while the Georgia-Alabama league is an outgrowth of the old Southeastern.

Rome Club Strong.

With Joe Patton as president and Jack Reddy as manager, the Rome club has been making strenuous efforts to assemble a team, which will be at the top of the percentage column when the ball taps September 3, and the fans in the Georgia city hope to capture the trophy offered to the club, which boasts the largest attendance on opening day.

Manager Reddy, the former University of Alabama baseball and football star, who played on Southern and South Atlantic league fields for several years, has under contract a number of very promising youngsters, college players and older heads, who in their preliminary workouts have given evidence of class that bodes evil for the other teams in the league.

Last year the Appalachian league sent to higher leagues twenty-seven players, ten of whom were drafted or purchased by major league clubs, and established a new record for the number of players "sent up" by a class D organization.

This year under the new ruling, which prohibits the playing by a club of more than one man who has ever played in leagues above class D, it is expected by those who have seen the aspirants for positions on the team in action that last year's record will be equalled or surpassed.

Influenced by the sensational work in the league last year several big league scouts have already announced that they expect to spend much time around the Appalachian circuit in 1913. The salary limit this year is $1,000 exclusive of the manager and the six pilots have signed up many young players and college players, whom they expect to develop into higher league players.

Experienced Managers.

Experienced managers and players will hold the managerial reins in the six cities.

Frank Moffett, well known in minor league baseball for seven years or more, and considered by many big league scouts and managers the best judge of a ball player among the minor leaders, will again manage the Knoxville team.

Having won the pennant in the Southeastern league in 1910, Manager Moffett's team was the first to open in the Appalachian in 1911, when Johnson City won the pennant, and again in 1912, when Bristol finished in first place.

Although six players were drafted or purchased from the Knoxville club last year, Manager Moffett has at present an infield that should make good in class C or B leagues, while his outfield is nearly as good, and big league managers have already tried to get stirngs on two of his young pitchers.

The Bristol club will again be managed by Clarence "Red" Munson, who in one season brought the team from the bottom of the percentage column to the top, winning the pennant quite handily in 1912.

P. L. "Legs," Martin, well known as a player in the South Atlantic and Carolina leagues and also the Appalachian, will manage the Johnson City team.

Pitcher "War" Sanders, who played in the Western and Southern league a few years ago, and was also with the St. Louis Browns for parts of two seasons, has been chosen manager of Middlesboro.

Phase Sent Up.

The Appalachian schedule calls for 105 games, including double headers, and before the season closes the managers of the teams in the league of which Jacob Smith, of Cleveland, is president, expect to have as many players ready for faster company as last year, when the following were sent up:

Pitcher Cullop, of Bristol, to New Orleans, no wwith the Cleveland Americans.

Pitcher Wilson, of Knoxville, to Cleveland Americans, now with the New Orleans club of the Southern.

Pitcher Bremmerhoff, of Bristol, to Philadelphia Americans, now with Houston, of Texas league.

Pitcher "Big Dan" Griner, of Cleveland, to St. Louis Nationals.

Outfielder Sloan, of Bristol, to St. Louis Americans, now with Montgomery, of the Southern league.

Third Sacker Grubb, of Morristown, to Cleveland Americans, now with Omaha team of Western league.

Pitcher Baker, of Knoxville, to Birmingham, now with Selma team, of Cotton States.

Pitcher Hill, of Bristol, to New Orleans.

Third Baseman Bales, of Cleveland, to Memphis.

Outfielder Thrasher, to Columbus, now with Chattanooga.

Outfielder Cochran, of Knoxville, to Birmingham, now with Rome.

Outfielder Shaw, of Johnson City, to Dayton team, of Central association.

Third Baseman Cleveland, of Johnson City, to Wichita, of Western league, now with Johnson City.

Catcher Moore, of Knoxville, to Des Moines, of Western league, now with Winona (Minn.) team, of Northern league.

Catcher Wallace, of Knoxville, to Birmingham, now with Knoxville.

"Matty" Ready For Discard? Hurls Only Sixty-Seven Balls In Full Game Against Phillies

By Walter Marchand.

New York, May 4.—(Special.)—Manager John J. McGraw, of the Giants, makes the declaration that Matty accomplished a world's record when, in the game against Philadelphia, he pitched only 67 balls. To retire his opponents after pitching 67 balls means he pitched 7 4-9 balls to the three batsmen that, on an average, would face him each inning. This is at the rate of a fraction more than two balls to each man.

Had he struck out every batter he would not have had so good a record in the matter of pitched balls, because he would have had to deliver at least 81 balls, not counting fouls after to three men each of the nine innings.

Matthewson did better. He put the ball where the batter had to hit it—and except five times, it was always hit just where the fielders were.

If the performance up to date may be taken as a criterion, the majors league pitchers as a whole will undoubtedly enjoy the biggest year they had and the batters the worst. Not only have many of the veterans come to life with stellar exhibitions, but many of the newcomers are making good with a vengeance. Walter Johnson, the Senator's star, in undoubtedly in the best form of any twirler.

Christy Matthewson, the Giants' remarkable star, gave the wiseacres that have annually been predicting his enforced retirement an awful jolt when he not only pitched the Giants into first place, but made a showing that Manager McGraw declares is a world's *record by only pitching 67 to the Phil*lies. There have been many other fine pitching performances. Pitcher Steele, of the Cardinals, beat the Pirates, only allowing them three hits. Hendrix, his opponent, though wild, loosened up for one lee.

Intelligent Coacher Almost As Valuable As Any Player, In Estimation of Tyrus Cobb

BY TY COBB.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the eleventh of a series of weekly articles written exclusively for The Constitution by the world's greatest ball player.)

(Copyright, 1913, by Ty Cobb Service.)

Coachers of the present day baseball are many and varied. We have comedian coachers. The Hughey Jennings type of coachers who cannot be classified. Quiet and shrewd coachers, such as usually occupy the boxes at third and first for the Athletics. Then we have men like Clarke Griffith, the Washington manager, who fight and growl for every point, and the sharp and active John McGraw, leader of the New York Giants, who fights with a demand for all that is coming to him.

A good coacher alone is worth almost as much as a good ball player. The coacher can break up rallies by stopping a man at third or sending him in to be caught at home. He can keep the boys on his club hustling, giving them the right cue at the right time.

The coacher really has more chances to win games for his club than three-fourths of the men who are actually engaged in playing.

Coachers should have a good voice and should school the players in the different signals. A sudden upraising of the hands, with the palms toward the runner, is an indication of danger and that means that the runner must stop immediately.

The man who exhibit a coacher from touching a runner nowadays, but they are not adhered to. Every day you see a coacher grab a player to stop him, probably many times during a game. It has to be done to halt some of the runners who are what are called "wild runners." Ted Murray, of the Giants, is an example of a runner who will run around the bases, never heeding the advice of coachers, his mad desire being only to reach the plate.

Coachers Must Do Right Thing.

A coacher must do the right thing at the right time at all times. Thousands of eyes are centered on him and if he should do the wrong thing at the wrong time many fans who are ready to criticise his work and voice their opinion loudly. Often times a coacher send a man from third. His intentions are of the best. But the runner is caught many feet away from the plate. There are some fans who are even willing to say that the wrong was done in an intentional way.

Therefore, I say again, a good coacher is a very important asset to a ball club. He not only directs the course of the players around the base paths, but is there jollying up the players, putting determination into them, fighting, kidding and nagging the opponents to get them rattled in anyway he can, distracting conversation at the coacher's box for the purpose of getting any signs that were given. Let them get a man on second with the catcher giving the signals and they were bound to know what the batter was going to hit. It is a stud and had a system of things by words or positions that no one ever got caught on to. They had it worked out better than any team I ever saw perform.

Overlook Coaching Art.

Often we see a team which seems to consider the coaching of only secondary matter. They will send a young pitcher, a utility outfielder or infielder or some man who has only been in the big league for a short time to the coacher's box. A critical point will arise. A player will be rounding first or third. Quite likely the inexperienced coacher will give the runner the send him on as sort of a blind stab. He does not think.

Possibly he will hold a man at first on a hit to right center when the outfielder has such a weak arm that such a poor thrower that second base could have been reached easily. Then, again, on a long fly to the left fielder, he will probably tell the runner not to go to third not to try to go home. If he had studied it out, he would have known that the gardener had such a bad arm that he could not get the ball to the plate ahead of a freight train.

Coachers must study these little points all the time they are on the line and be prepared for any emergency which will arise. And that is why I have never understood the continued custom of some alleged wise managers in permitting "busher heads" to coach in most important games.

The man who can learn to shout encouragement to the players and beat them buoyed up, is bound to succeed, too, if he has other assets. Believe me, it is a big help when you go up in a pinch to bat and have somebody shout "You can do it, Ty, old boy," or "Give us that base hit, my boy." You grip the bat with a firm determination to hit the ball and make good the assurance of the coacher. It also helps to take your mind off any shouts that might come from the crowd which you might hear.

Coaching is one of the arts of the game and young players will do well to cultivate it.

Ty Cobb

Jennings once framed up a dialogue between himself and the coacher who occupied the other box. For instance, the man who was at first would shout across the diamond to Jennings, who was at third: "Are we going to win the game?" Jennings replied: "We are."

"E-yah" Easy on Voice.

The Detroit manager found this was hard to say and finally got it down to "E-yah," which was easier on his voice.

Jennings has also studied Spanish, so he would be able to pull some of that on our talented pitchers. You know you can say a lot of things to a pitcher who has studied Spanish in college, which the umpires and other players do not understand. The effect on the twirler is instantaneous. Then, again, if he doesn't understand Spanish, he is liable to wonder what Jennings is talking about and get his mind off his work. These are only little tricks of the successful coacher.

The coaching of pennings has a certain effect on his players. It kind of buoys them up and makes them feel like digging in and playing hard.

There are many games in which the players lose interest when they are several runs behind, probably. But with Jennings at the helm players continually something is liable to start at any time. Hughey's ginger and pep imbues into the players a spirit which is likely to result in a big batting rally in any inning and no matter what the score is.

I doubt if any other club has ever had such batting rallies and made more runs in certain innings right along than the Detroit Tigers of 1907, '8 and '9. We have made seven, eight and nine runs in a single round many times.

Two times in successive days we made ten runs in one inning. In 1911 we overcame an awful load when Chicago had us apparently defeated in the fifth, 14-1. Such instances as these, I think, are due to Jennings' coaching tactics.

Clarke Griffith is the type of coacher who is shrewd and fox-like. He fights for every point, accepts every opening, and never misses a chance to jibe at some player when he thinks a little sarcastic talk will get his mind off the game. Griffith is one of the hardest losers that ever played the game or managed a team. He is also pretty noisy on the line and umpires are his weakness. He simply delights in going after them every time he thinks they are giving Washington the worst of a close decision.

But, if one understands Griffith, he is a very fine type of baseball player and a high-class gentleman.

Athletics Have Wise Men.

Chief Bender and "Topsy" Hartsel, of the Athletics, were typical. They are credited with systematic sign stealing. Right here, let me say that sign-tipping, when it is done solely by the employment of brains, is considered part of the game. If a coacher on third, by watching the pitcher and the catcher, can learn what their plans are to baffle the batter or base runner he is entitled to use the information to help his fellow-players."

Bender and Hartsel are the ones who gave the Athletics the reputation of getting any signs that were given. Let them get a man on second with the catcher giving the signals and they were bound to know what the batter was going to hit. It is a stud and had a system of things by words or positions that no one ever got caught on to. They had it worked out better than any team I ever saw perform.

RITCHIE-WELSH BOUT POSSIBLE

If Champion Does Not Want Too Much Money for Go. Murphy Is the First Substitute.

BY JAMES J. CORBETT.

(Former Heavyweight Champion of the World. Written Exclusively for The Constitution.)

New York, May 3.—(Special.)—Willie Ritchie, the lightweight champion who has not done any "champing" since winning the title from Ad Wolgast, may be seen in a New York ring within the next month. Efforts are being made to match Willie with Freddy Welsh, the British title-holder, and proud possessor of a belt emblematic of the "world's lightweight championship." Although Freddy hasn't a legitimate claim to the title, it must be admitted that the belt is a beautiful specimen of the jewelers' art.

Not to digress, however, Willie and Freddy may put on the gloves for a ten-round bout if Billy Gibson, matchmaker for the Madison Square Garden promoters, can prevail on Billy Nolan and Harry Pollok, managers of the two champions, to agree on the division of the spoils.

Ritchie can have a fat guarantee to box Welsh, but whether the amount *offered will meet with Nolan's esti*mate of the worth of his fighter as a drawing card is a question. It is said Nolan asks $15,000, which is quite some money in these hard times. Pollok's demands are quite modest in comparison.

If Gibson fails to land Ritchie he will try to get "Harlem Tommy" Murphy to "sub" for the high-priced champion. The New York boxer is again in the grace of the calcium as a result of the skillful manner in which he recently handled Ad Wolgast, the former bear cat of the division.

Battler's Deteriorating.

The critics are using Murphy's victory to call attention to the supposed deterioration among the lightweights, and thereby discredit Ritchie as champion. Their contention is present-day boxers do not compare in skill with the experts of a decade ago, and they point to the result of the Murphy-Wolgast battle in support of the argument.

This is not new stuff by any means. Seldom is a newly made champion given the credit due for the victory which has placed him at the head of his division. The public is not satisfied that the newcomer is all that he should be until he has successfully defended the title several times.

Wolgast, you may remember, was called a "cheese champion" not so very long ago, but a review of the Michigander's career will show that he was close to the standard of excellence set by his predecessors. Ad was not the most skillful performer in the game, but his rugged strength and aggressiveness made up for what he lacked along scientific lines.

My opinion is that there is some first-class material among the present list of 133-pounders. Ritchie looks like the real goods in spite of the fact that he won his title on a foul. He was leading up to the time of the disqualification and would undoubtedly have been given the decision had the fight gone the limit, admitting he couldn't score a knockout.

It was not so much the winning from a champion who had already shown signs of retrogression that established Ritchie's claim to class. His previous record indicated that he was a "comer" in the ranks of the lightweights. He had scored victories over the clever Jack Britton, Young Erne, Joe Mandot and several other good boys. Two some of these decisions were of the popular or newspaper variety, but convincing enough to prove the youngster's quality.

Willie Has Improved.

But it was the twenty-round match with Freddy Welsh that stamped Willie as a boxer of great merit. Although Freddy was given the battle on points it was a very close thing, and his showing in that engagement is to my mind the Californian's greatest achievement in the ring, not excepting the "win" from Wolgast. He made the clever Welsh step his fastest to earn a "shade." A bout over the same distance might result differently now, for Willie is no longer a novice.

I believe Ritchie will prove his worth when he resumes boxing. Boys of the Mandot, Rivers, Cross and Murphy kind should not give him much trouble. He has most to fear from the clever type of Miller—like Welsh or Britton. These boys lads are skill enough to make matters interesting for anyone in the division, with the possible exception of Packey McFarland, who looks like the class of them all. I doubt if Ritchie could be induced to give McFarland a battle.

Little has been heard from McFarland lately. His interest in pugilism seems to be waning. There is a revival of the rumor that Packey and Mike Gibbons may be matched at one of the local clubs before long, but I don't place much stock in the story.

In announcing the St. Paul boxer's plans for the future Manager Eddie Reddy recently stated that Gibbons would do the bulk of his fighting in the neighborhood of 150 pounds, which would kill any chance of Packey boxing him; at the extreme limit the Chicagoan would hardly scale over 140 or 142 at the most, and he would be very foolish to grant the speedy and clever Gibbons such an enormous weight advantage.

Packey didn't have to exert himself in preparing for the recent bout with Jack Britton and yet he entered the ring at 140. Now if Mike would agree to make 145 I believe McFarland could be induced to talk business. None of the lightweights will have anything to do with Packey, and if he intends to stick to the game he will be forced to concede a few pounds now and then.

A Gibbons-McFarland match at 145 pounds, provided Mike can do the weight and be fit, would be about the last word in fistic attractions as they go nowadays.

Willard v. Smith.

Luther McCarty is in no hurry to help clear the confused conditions in the heavyweight division, so Jess Willard and "Gunboat" Smith have taken it upon themselves to adjust matters, so far as it lies in their power to do so. They have agreed to box twenty rounds before Jim Coffroth's San Francisco club of May 17.

While there is no title at stake in the forthcoming bout, the result will be anxiously awaited by fight followers everywhere. Smith and Willard are rated about on a par with McCarty among the white heavies, and the winner will be in position to force Luther to fight or relinquish claim to the title. It is very doubtful if the match Tom McCarey so magnanimously bestowed upon him.

As to the probable outcome of the match it is pretty hard to figure on that may happen when two raw hands get together. The element of luck is a great factor in a bout between a couple of huskies with little skill to boast of. On what the men have shown in New York matches, though, Willard appears to have the better chance. Smith lacks many things that a good fighter ought to have. Outside of his mighty right hand punch he has not yet shown anything that indicates championship calibre. He has the poorer defense of any fighter with a reputation, and that's going some in these days when skill among big men is at a premium.

Willard is a careful fighter. His defense is superior to that of either Smith or McCarty. He is anything but aggressive, however, allowing his opponents to force the fight at all stages. Whether this method is the result of good judgment in attempting to conserve his strength or is the only style he knows makes little difference. It has served its purpose admirably in his matches to date. It certainly was effective in the bout with McCarty last summer. Despit his rushes and swings Luther could do little with the giant, and Jess would occasionally jar his opponent with a well-timed counter to the body or head. At the finish of the bout Luther was a badly tired fighter, while Willard appeared to be as fresh and lively as when he entered the ring.

If fortune is kind to Smith he may put Willard away with one lucky wallop as he has several would-be champions in the past. He appears to be strictly a one-punch fighter, however, and if his recent showing against the tough Boer heavyweight, George Rodel, is to be taken seriously is not over-fond of traveling a route.

Several experts who have watched Smith closely in his New York bouts are inclined to question the ex-sailor's powers of endurance. While not disputing the "Gunboat's" gameness and willingness to stand up under fire they opine that he is prone to become disheartened when he finds his heaviest *artillery is not accomplishing the de*sired end. If such is the case I fear Smith will never become the champion.

Fans Make Holler.

Dispatches from Los Angeles state that the spectators voiced their disapproval when Referee Charles Eyton called the Kilbane-Dundee bout a draw. Looking over the several press stories of the fight, round by round, it looks as if the spectators were perfectly right in protesting against the decision. For if the accounts are correct, and in the main they all agree, Eyton robbed the champion of a fight he had won hands down. From the beginning to the end of the twentieth round Kilbane outpointed the New Yorker and at no stage did Dudee ap*pear to have an even chance. One* account says it was Dundee's rally in the last round that earned a draw—in the opinion of the referee. Admitting that Dundee had the upper hand in the last round, though the accounts of battle do not indicate that such a state of affairs existed, how about all those points Kilbane had compiled during the preceding nineteen innings?

I note that Tom McCarey is after the boys for a return match. The bout was popular with the fans and drew big. A return battle would mean many thousands for the promoter. It is to their interest that this match ended in a draw. But it looks to me as if the verdict is a grave injustice to the champion.

Mike Gibbons, the speed marvel from St. Paul, is back in New York after a six months' vacation. Mike is booked to box Dave Kurtz ten rounds at the Forty-fourth street sporting club next Mondy night. Kurtz is a husky young Jerseyite whose reputation was recently given a boost at the expense of Jack McCarron, Philadelphia Jawn's $50,000 beauty.

Gibbons may need a fight or two under his belt before he recovers his form, and for that reason Kurtz might make a better showing than the public expects. He is one of those aggressive battlers who can be depended upon to try all the time, and if Mike is not in the best of shape, Kurtz is liable to worry him a bit. But that's about all Dave can reasonably expect to accomplish. Gibbonds is too classy for the Kurtz species of boxer.

Atlanta Motorcycle Club Behind Prince's Motordrome

The Atlanta Motorcycle club, which boasts of over 100 members, held their regular meeting on Friday night, giving a "Dutch supper," which was highly appreciated by all present.

The club is in splendid shape and getting ready for a strenuous season of activity. The most talked of subject was the big quarter-mile motordrome which is being built by Jack Prince, work on which is fast getting under way. Quite a number of the club members have visited the track during the week and watch the progress with great interest.

Quite a number of talks were made by different members, and Mr. Prince, who was present, was asked to give them some of the plans for the opening meets and what he had to offer the Atlanta riders.

Mr. Prince stated that Atlanta was so up-to-date that only the very best could be put on and that races would be given so that every local rider, after showing that he could ride the track safely, would be allowed to compete Each prospective rider would be given plenty of time to train on the track, but those entering in such a race would have to show that he was able to compete.

That tracks would be built in Birmingham, Savannah and Nashville during the season so that the Southern Interstate Motordrome circuit would be an established feature for years to come, that races would be held weekly on each track.

An Interesting Development.

Riders will be developed in each city and a percentage table will be kept on each track so that near the close of the season the leaders in each place will be pitted against each other to bring out the real amateur southern motorcycle champion, the same in the professional class.

All of which was very pleasing to the members of the Atlanta Motorcycle club, who have among them several crack amateurs and several professionals whom they expect great things of.

The president of the club offered that the club make a big night parade of the motorcycle riders of Atlanta, and Mr. Prince offered his band to them to lead the parade.

As the opening of the track will be on Tuesday night, May 20, this motorcycle parade will take place on the night of the 19th. Talks were also made by Noon Hudson and Gus Castle, who are associated with Mr. Prince in the management of the motordrome.

The Atlanta Motorcycle club was offered a building on the site adjoining the motordrome for a club house, and they will probably start to work soon getting into the place. The club is in a very prosperous condition and expect to add quite a number to the membership during the early part of the season.

The riders from California will arrive next week and start training.

Reserve Clause in Contract Necessary Says Marchand

By Walter Marchand.

New York, May 4.—(Special.)—"Ty Cobb" or the last of the holdouts, that should be a fine title for one of these red-blooded baseball novelletters which sport the cheap magazines. Ty made a noble struggle, but he found at last that Navin when he declared that no man was greater than the game, came pretty near speaking a parable.

I don't know how they settled it. In fact, I don't care, but I am one of the many thousands who will be mighty glad to see the Georgian back in harness.

I would make this suggestion, however, that now that Navin has Ty that he insist on his obeying the rules of the club. I think for myself that the Peach was entitled to that $15,000, but he nor any other man is big enough to play hop with the rules.

This Cobb episode has directed a great deal of attention to the players' contract and there has been more than the usual amount of talk of the endowment of the players. As a matter of fact, the reserve clause does seem harsh and one-sided to the average free-born American, but if the game is to continue, how are you going to get along without it?

Abolish the reserve clause and it would be perfectly possible for some magnate with a long purse to have a million-dollar team.

Pitchers, Johnson, Walsh, Mathewson, Rucker, Wood.

Catchers, Archer, Meyers, Thomas.

Infielders, Wagner, Daubert, Chase, Doyle, Zimmerman, Baker, Evers.

Outfielder, Cobb, Speaker, Milan, Beecher, Jackson, Murray and McGraw, manager. What would the peanut be without such a combination playing, and where would the interest be?

The reserve rule is hard, but it is necessary.

FOUR LEAGUES OPEN SEASONS THIS WEEK

Georgia-Alabama Starts Monday—Two Others Wednesday and a Fourth Thursday.

The Georgia-Alabama league will open its playing season Monday with fine prospects. This league succeeds the old Southeastern league.

Wednesday, the Southern, Michigan and Ohio State leagues will open, and on Thursday the Appalachian league gets under way.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Under this head the sporting editor will endeavor to answer all questions pertaining to all branches of sports.

Dick Jemison, sporting editor The Constitution: Bases empty, batter knocks ball over centerfield fence and trots around the diamond before the ball is returned to the lot. When returned, the first baseman holds the ball on first base and the umpire calls the batter out for failing to touch first sack. How is this play scored? Should batter be credited with a four-base hit or only one base hit. W. T. H.

Neither. When he failed to touch first, legally he failed to reach the bag, just the same as if he had been thrown out on an infield grounder.

The development of the "KAYSER" Silk Glove represents the attainment of an ideal, the achievement of which has not been hampered by restrictions of cost or time, nor influenced by a passing demand for features most aptly characterized as "talking points."

We could not afford to buy expensive advertising space "year after year," to tell the women of America that "KAYSER" Gloves are the best—in style, fit and finish—if it were not true.

"KAYSER" gloves "cost no more" than the ordinary kind—and are worth double in quality, fit and value.

Practically every important store in the United States, in Canada, and in other countries, joins this year in the celebration of Nemo Week.

This annual fashion event brings together all the Nemo inventions and improvements of the past year. It emphasizes more clearly than ever the important fact that—

Nemo Corsets are in a Class Alone, and Must be Considered Separately and Apart from All Other Makes

Millions of women now refuse to wear any corset but the Nemo. Millions more will do so when they learn that all Nemo Corsets have—

These are some of the Nemo inventions that have made "Nemo" a household word in every country where corsets are worn:

1. The ingenious Nemo construction that "bridges the diaphragm," gives plenty of breathing space and freedom from constriction over the stomach section, no matter how tightly the corset may be laced. No woman wearing a Nemo ever feels that crushing, smothering pain that makes her rush home to get her corset off.

2. Gores and bands of semi-elastic Nemo Lastikops Webbing and Lastikops Cloth, that shape the corset closely to your form, and give you, with perfect comfort, the slender-hip effect of the so-called "corsetless figure."

3. The new Nemo "Lasticurve-Back," which makes even the longest corset comfortable in any position, produces fashionable slender lines, prevents that ugly "corset-line," and holds the corset down where it belongs.

4. The famous "Lastikops Bandlet," made of Lastikops Webbing, which insures perfect and comfortable hygienic abdominal support, and has done more than medicine to preserve and restore the health of millions of women.

5. The Nemo Auto-Massage device and the Nemo "Limshaping Extensions," which permanently reduce the surplus flesh of abdomen and upper limbs.

UNDAUNTED BY DREAD DISEASE, "FIGHTING FOUR" LABORS TO STAMP OUT MENINGITIS

BY BRITT CRAIG.

Much of the success attained by Atlanta's first contagious hospital is due a quartet of young internes and trained nurses who volunteered to submit to isolation in the meningitis clinic at Grady and to remain on duty there until either the plague had been driven from the city, or they themselves had succumbed to its ravages.

Within less than a month the contagious clinic will be closed. Meningitis is almost extinct. The influx of patients stopped a week or more ago. Authorities now have to contend only with the sufferers who already have been installed in the hospital, of whom there are only seventeen.

A great victory has been won over a situation which, a month ago, threatened to burden Atlanta with an epidemic. City officials are elated over the triumph.

On one page of the account which will go down in history will be the statistics of the amazing number of cases discovered in the city. The installation of a contagious hospital will be chronicled for the first time in Atlanta's career.

And, if the whole story is to be told, the drama of the four internes and nurses will occupy pages as conspicuous as the proud statistics. The story of the dangers and hardships they underwent will be a more noble record than the cold, spiritless facts and figures which tell only that meningitis was driven from the city, and have the reader to his or her own conception of the particular process by which it was driven out.

How meningitis was defeated is a story of the heroism of the two young internes and their two co-workers, the trained nurses. It is the story of submittance to quarantine in a pesthouse in the face of peril inconceivable—the story of denial and hardship—and a story that brinked on martyrdom.

Liable to Contagion.

It is a popular impression that physicians and nurses are equipped with means of preventing the contraction of contagious diseases with which they come in contact. That belief is a fallacy, pure and simple, and probably originated in the same way as did the superstition of the mistake of walking under a ladder.

Meningitis is no respecter of persons or professions. The human system is the same with the two internes and their assistants, the trained nurses, as it is with as many blacksmiths or gardeners. The disease would have gripped either of them as quickly and as fatally as it had gripped any one of the patients under their care.

To a normal person, confinement in a contagious ward would seem like abiding in the ante-room to the graveyard. Some men might put their heads in the lion's mouth, but those tame men wouldn't go into the ward.

Yet the contagious clinic holds no fears for Miss Annie Butler, Mrs. Mamie Ashford, Dr. L. L. Blair or Dr. Lucius Wright, the guardians of the meningitis ward at Grady. While his call for volunteers for service in the new ward was being disdained by some thirty or more nurses and physicians, Dr. W. S. Summerall superintendent of Grady, found this quartet eager and ready for the perilous duty.

For the last month they have been quarantined to the service. The prospects are that they will remain for a month to come. The success with which they have met is causing medical experts throughout the south to marvel. Although death has been braved by them in every hour spent in the death-laden atmosphere of the clinic, none have yet contracted the malady.

And, as optimistic as on the day they entered, the "Fighting Four" still expect to emerge alive and uncathed.

Miss Butler is a pretty girl of 22, with a wealth of auburn hair, a perpetual smile and a bouyant spirit, quite unlike the spirit of the martyr she would be. Mrs. Ashford is a middle-aged woman, industrious and enthusiastic, with twenty years of medical experience.

Dr. Blair and Dr. Wright are both from the Grady staff of internes. They have been attached to the hospital for several years, having entered the service upon leaving college. Both are single. Married men hardly would venture so close to the verge of martyrdom unless premiums were fully paid on heavy life insurance.

Interviewed by Phone.

Members of the "Fighting Four" were interviewed yesterday by telephone, of course. Even a reporter isn't going to invade a contagious hospital.

It is unethical for physicians and nurses to talk for publication on subjects pertaining to their duties or profession. Gently they informed the reporter of this fact. A story of their heroism wouldn't pass muster without at least a few words from the courageous four, though, therefore the reporter insisted.

"Aren't you afraid you'll catch the disease and die?" he asked.

"Certainly not!" retorted one of the "Fighting Four." "If we were we wouldn't be here. This is no place for nerves and fright."

"Apparently not! Do you like it?"

"We do!" they chorused.

"Would you do it again?"

"We would; every day of the week and Sundays, too."

"When do you expect to get out?"

"We're not worrying over that. Our interest is only in the sufferers of whom we're taking care."

The interview was brief. The reporter pleaded, but treatment of cerebro-spinal meningitis requires constant attention, infinite care and caution and systematic methods. The task is a 24-hour one, and a single careless nap at the switch may cost a life.

Day and Night Merge.

Dr. Blair and Miss Butler are in charge of the hospital during the day, and Dr. Wright and Mrs. Ashford at night. Night and day, though, are only too often merged into one long, fatiguing watch of incessant labor. A flickering life to be snatched from the portal of eternity must be attended to upon the instant, whether at midnight or noon.

And the combined efforts of the entire "Fighting Four" are required in the snatching. Energy and alertness play roles as important as knowledge of medical science and the deft touch of the surgeon's finger. To be perpetually on the job is a prime qualification for service in the treatment of contagious disease. It is one of the many secrets of the "Fighting Four's" success.

What time they are not ministering to their afflicted charges Miss Butler, Mrs. Ashford, Dr. Blair and Dr. Wright are employing this formula to prevent becoming victims of the plague:

Eight per cent cleanliness.
Two per cent sterilization, and
Eighty-eight per cent trust in Providence.

Fate is partial to the courageous. It is the timid and fearful who walk out of the way to avoid the slightest of dangers, finally to be killed by a banana peel. Webtser gives a number of definitions to the word bravery, chief of which is:

"Ready to meet or incur danger without flight or flinching; encountering peril or enduring pain without surrendering to one's fears or weakness." It applies aptly to Grady's "Fighting Four."

No Coward Could Last.

A person who is as brave as bravery is defined by Webster generally dies a natural death and dies it at a venerable age. A coward wouldn't last in contagious quarantine. The odds are he would die before they got him thoroughly sterilized.

If soldiers of those particular periods had been of the cast of Grady's "Fighting Four," the chances are that Napoleon never would have lost his Waterloo, or Lee his Appomattox.

Their salaries are not above the average. In fact, they are underpaid, considering the hardships they undergo, and the dangers they incur. It isn't a matter of pay, though, as they themselves admit. It's the success they achieve and the lives they save.

In all, thirty-eight patients suffering from meningitis have been admitted to the contagious hospital. Ten were whites. The only fatalities among these were three, who died within thirty hours after they had reached the clinic. The disease had reached a stage from which there is no recovery before their cases had been discovered. Two of the whites have been cured and released. Five, all of whom are convalescent, remain. Twenty-eight negro patients have been given treatment. Four were cured. Seven died, each succumbing within thirty hours after admittance. The entire number had suffered for four weeks before being removed to the hospital. Of the seventeen patients, in all, seven are recovering, while the probabilities of future deaths are few.

The expense of maintaining the contagious clinic for two months will reach $2,500. Equipment is the biggest item. The cost of serum is next. The salaries paid the corps of internes and nurses is smallest.

The clinic will be abolished upon the extermination of the present epidemic. Meningitis is a seasonable malady, and, mercifully, of but short duration. The building will be torn down to make way for a new structure. No plans have been made to fight the contagion next season. Future operations depend entirely upon the existence of a probable epidemic. If the plague is not as great in 1914 as it was this year it is doubtful if a clinic will be installed.

But, in case a similar situation arises, hospital authorities have been assured beforehand that the "Fighting Four" will be subject to call and ready for volunteer duty.

All Sorts of Folks Go In For All Sorts of Literature Here

BY JAMES W. MEADE.

It was during the rush hour at "Five Points," where the Ponce de Leon avenue and the Forrest avenue cars square away for the run northward, after encircling the loop about the Empire building.

He was fat and forty and not fair to look upon. Three buttons were missing from his wrinkled coat, and another was hanging by a thread. His hat had a dent in it and it was on awry. His necktie had been pulled from under his vest. His hands were jammed deep in his overcoat pockets, his shoulders were hunched up, his under jaw was thrust forward and his eyes had an almost vicious gleam.

The perspiration trickled down his reddened face.

As the newspaper man ambled up he grabbed him by the arm and snorted:

"Say! What the dickens—" but the words refused to come, and he succeeded only in making an odd grimace with his mouth. But presently he got under way again.

"What d'ye think of a boob what'll spend his time reading rot like that?" he asked, pointing at a rather respectable youth perched high on one of the city's "trash" boxes, digesting the latest edition of Nick Carter.

"I'll bet that fellow is a bum. He never put in a hard day of work. Bet he'll land in the penitentiary."

"Take it from me, bo, you are known by what you read," he continued, less indignant. "You can read a man's character—or a woman's, for that matter—by the books he or she reads, just as you can tell a man from the company he keeps.

"Take a slant at the men, women and children who get books from the library. Look at the books they read, and you'll agree with me.

"Try it once."

And the newspaper man did.

Miss Katherine M. Wooten, librarian at the Carnegie library, and her assistants, say there is more truth than fiction in the theory of the "Five Points" philosopher. And they are in a position to speak authoritatively, coming as they do in daily contact with human nature at close range.

Some interesting, and, at times, amusing data on the idiosyncracies and foibles of the Atlanta reading public is to be gleaned in what is practically an unexplored field—the public library. Here dissembling and pretense are thrown aside, or the veneer is so conspicuously thin that the results are the same and very often extremely ludicrous.

The "light" is taken from under the "bushel" in the public library, and the character frequently stands revealed in startling aspects.

What a world of meaning can be read into the case of a man now incarcerated in the Stockade, when it is known that he has been a close student of theology in the Carnegie library. Here, indeed, is a rare study for criminologists.

Not long ago a man went into the library and gave a fair illustration that not always is a man so far removed from his reading. His very garb made him the cynosure of all eyes at once. He wore a heavy woolen hat, peculiar fleckwear, and white duck trousers. He was shabby, genteel, and something more.

"I want Dr. So-and-So's works on insanity," he demanded with a dignity and fierceness that quite upset the decorum of the young woman at the desk.

It was very easy to read his character.

WHAT BIG SISTER GETS.

A young woman entered the library at the time the newspaper man was studying hardest the half hundred subjects selecting from the shelves, or reading under the green-shaded lamps.

She was about 25, and she carried with her an air that gave her the appearance of one burdened with serious responsibilities.

From one shelf she selected "The Net," one of Rex Beach's best sellers, after having carefully scanned each of the illustrations. From a pile on the table she selected at random Cooper's "Last of the Mohicans." Then she asked one of the assistants to get her a well-known scientific work on engineering, and completed her list with "Poems of Love and Passion," by Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

"Guess" suggested one of the assistants.

"I figure her to be the big sister of some happy little family," ventured the newspaper man.

"Correct," replied the assistant. "She comes here twice a week. The whole family depends on her for their reading. Awful sweet girl. Has been taking care of the family ever since the mother died—poor girl."

At a table a youth with a dissipated look on his already pale features was busy going through a stack of books.

"He's a Tech student preparing for a hard examination," the assistant said. "He comes about 2 o'clock every afternoon, and they tell me that he leaves after nearly all the lights are out. He is going to win out. He has been gathering information for weeks. How do I know he is going to win out? Easy. He has not lost patience. I have watched him for hours pouring over those books. Oh, yes, he'll find what he is searching for."

YES, SO EXASPERATING.

A giddy young woman in a slick satin gown and a hat with about $89 worth of plumes on it, waltzed up to the counter and put down "Elsie Venner," one of Oliver Wendell Holmes' novels, with the remark:

"Pshaw! It seems as though I caw'nt get what I want. Here I've read all through this book, and when I finished I learned that it was not written by Mary Jane Holmes. Isn't it most exasperating?"

"Elsie Venner," popular fifty years ago, happened to be placed on the shelf next to Mary Jane's works, and for several weeks the assistants were curious to learn why the old novel was so frequently demanded.

The young woman who unwittingly let the cat out of the bag was one of Atlanta's petted debutantes.

The young women who have charge of the main branch of the library are frequently amused by children who are sent by the grown folks for books. One little girl asked for a story for big sister, and when asked how old big sister was, she looked up abashed.

"Why, she's most married," she replied, and that ended further argument. Big sister got a love story, full of sobs and heart twists.

"Me mudder wants a book by Oh-You Ida," explained a lad in a scout uniform. Questions were fired at him by nearly every one of the library staff, but he stuck to his original demand. He said his mother wanted something by "Oh-You Ida" or nothing at all.

The consultation resolved itself into a guessing match. The catalogue was scanned. "Oh-You Ida" was a new one on Miss Wooten's assistants.

The grown-ups pull stunts at the library that are even funnier than little brother. They have most farce-comedies beaten several different ways. They are funniest when they assume an air of erudition. A matron of this type gave the librarian this bit of startling information a few weeks ago:

"I have just read that Shakespeare didn't write his plays at all. Byron wrote them," she insisted.

"Don't you think you probably mean Bacon," suggested the librarian, trying not to give offense.

"Maybe so," was the naive response. "I knew it was some fellow whose name began with a 'B.'"

A young woman who patronizes the rent shelf always, suddenly called for Eliot's works. One day she stopped, and when the assistant asked her the reason, she imparted this in a strictly confidential way:

YES, GEORGE IS A LADY.

"Oh, I just heard that he is a lady. George Eliot is only a non de 'fume.'"

There is a seasonal demand for books in Atlanta's library.

"The Cotter's Saturday Night" is no sooner put away than the call for the spring poets begin. Then follows a demand for books on outdoor life. The light romances are left on the shelves, and the annual summer reading on travel and adventure begins. The quickening of the imagination with the urge of spring, is said to be the cause.

Society novels and the more or less "obscure" poems become popular in winter. Even the children nowadays go in for the "highbrow stuff." Works unknown to the child of twenty years ago are now "written down" to the child of 12. "Tales from Shakespeare" was written for the children of the primary grades. And they read and understand them, too.

The "Five Points" philosopher was right. Human nature at the library is as easy as A, B, C to read.

Try the theory some time, even though it is advanced by a professional book agent, for that is what the philosopher confessed himself to be.

ATLANTA TO HAVE MOVIE PICTURE PLANT

practically no progress made at all. But few new companies were organized. This was due to the fact that nobody could get moving picture cameras. Each of the old line companies had its own patented camera and would not let out the secrets of their mechanism to anyone. The companies today, as a general rule, guard certain secrets about their machines, processes and so forth. I have several bits of information of my own that I wouldn't part with for considerable money!

"The day of great things in the moving picture business is now at hand, though. Aside from the wonderful dramatic possibilities in the moving picture film, the pictures are of inestimable value as historical documents. There is no man of any prominence living today, who may not be seen living in the films hundreds of years from now. Sarah Bernhardt, the first big star to act for the 'movies,' saw and realised this. The moving picture took on an aspect of international importance during the recent warfare waged around Tripoli, when the Italian government had films made of battles and maneuvers to be filed in the government archives as official historical documents. Think what a moving picture of the battle of Waterloo or the dramatic disaster of the Crater at Petersburg would mean to the world today!

"The moving picture is also becoming a factor to be considered in the commercial world. At this minute I have contracts with a dozen southern cities to make pictures of their local scenes, advantages and industries and show them in fifty cities all the way from Maine to California. The moving picture camera is constantly being called into play for demonstration purposes for all sorts of big industries.

"Life Just a Grind!"

"The 'movie'-going public, too, is beginning to realize the importance of the moving picture film as never before. There is a growing demand for high-class pictures, especially of educational films and scenes of travel. A trip around the world for a nickel! Can you beat it? The days of the old blood and thunder melodrama on the screen are numbered.

"In locating a moving picture producing business in Atlanta I believe I have opened up at the most strategical point possible in the south. From here I can get to the scene of action anywhere in the southern states almost instantly."

"It's pretty exciting, this business of jumping about the country to all sorts of happenings and coming in constant contact with big men, isn't it?" was asked Mr. Bartlett.

"No," replied Mr. Bartlett, "the life of a moving picture gun man is just about like that of the ordinary business man—its just a grind!"

In an article on "The Care of the Hands," a writer in The Youth's Companion says: "The hand is a true index of the condition of the general circulation. If it is always cold and clammy, its possessor is probably not exercising and breathing properly. In perfect health the hand is neither very hot nor very cold. It is not harshly dry, as in fever, or clammily damp, as in extreme nervousness or hysteria; and when you shake hands, the friend with whom you exchange the greeting should not feel, like the gentleman in the novel, that he has grasped 'a large poached egg.'"

Cost of Storage Reservoirs.

(From Providence Journal.)

Some idea of the obstacles to be overcome in erecting dams for storage reservoirs is given in a recent letter to the Providence Journal by Col. C. McD. Townsend, president of the Mississippi River commission. The letter shows that with a reservoir at Pittsburg sufficient to take the entire flow of the Allegheny and Monongahela, another at St. Paul holding the flow of the Upper Mississippi and a third at St. Louis retaining the entire flow of the Missouri, the height of the flood at Cairo during the next rise in April would have been lessened only 6 inches.

These astonishing figures bear out the contention of Engineering News that "when a rainfall of 3 to 6 inches or more falls on a drainage area in a short time it is idle to talk of storing it by any means within the power of human man to 'construct.'" The facts should be understood before appropriations amounting to hundreds of millions are asked, for a reservoir at Cairo, Ill., capable of holding a Mississippi within its banks requires a depth of 18 feet and an area of 7,000 square miles, somewhat less than the state of New Jersey, and adding from fifty to one hundred thousand million dollars.

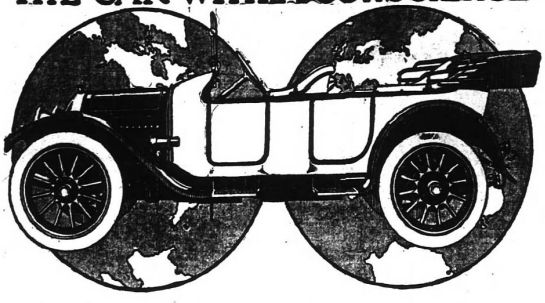
Oakland

"THE CAR WITH A CONSCIENCE"



"The Most Beautiful Car in the World— and Mechanically Correct"

¶ The National Automobile Shows rendered this verdict.

¶ At the New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Pittsburg, Detroit and Cleveland exhibitions, the Oakland proved to be the real surprise of the new season.

¶ Oakland models were so distinctive, so different from the common type of automobiles, that the difference was apparent even to the casual observer.

¶ Don't scoff at this statement! Don't belittle it! Don't wink your eye and say "That's what they all claim." Don't say "It's a common automobile story!" Don't say "It's impossible for the Oakland to have achieved a position like this in a single year!"

¶ Don't say any of these things, but make us prove our claims.

¶ That's the faith we have in your good judgment and the faith we have in Oakland cars.

¶ The 1913 Oakland symbolizes both life and character. Its life is expressed in beautiful lines, full of color, harmonious and exquisite. Its character is embodied in a sound mechanical principle—scientific and lasting.

¶ You cannot find a harsh line on any Oakland body. You cannot find a long straight line. Each body is a delight to the eye, for each one represents a combination of sensitive curves, very beautiful, blending symmetrically.

¶ Oaklands are made in a wide range of body designs and horse power ratings. Four and six cylinder types—Models 35, 42 and 6-60. Four, five and seven passenger touring cars. Three passenger sociable roadsters, coupes and a semi-racer called "Six-Sixty Raceabout."

$1000 to $3000

¶ Demonstration for the asking—any time—anywhere.

GEORGE MAXWELL LED TRAP SHOOT

One-Arm Expert Broke 74 Out of 75—Sousa Stood Stood High—Brookhaven Opening a Success.

The official opening of the Brookhaven Gun club scored a hit from the start yesterday. Some of the best professionals came to Atlanta to compete against the local amateur champions. The only outside amateur being John Phillip Sousa, the bandmaster.

George W. Maxwell, the famous one-arm crack, carried off the honors of the day by killing seventy-four clay birds out of a possible seventy-five. Mr. Maxwell, who represents the United Metallic Cartridge company, gave an exhibition that would have been wonderful if he had had the use of both arms, but when his infirmity is considered, it was nothing short of marvelous, considering that he was pitted against some of the most famous shots of the day.

W. Huff, of Macon, representing the DuPont Powder company, together with E. H. Eubanks, a local man, tied for second honors by breaking seventy- three out of seventy-five. J. M. Barrett made third place by making seventy-two.

John Phillip Sousa, the famous composer-bandmaster, stood hgigh up with the winners, scoring 71 out of 75.

Others in the 75-bird contest, and their scores are as follows: J. D. Allen, 67; M. T. Bingham, 70; C. E. Conlie, 67; A. S. Dunn, 66; Mr. Dabney, 49; Dr. Edmondson, 39.

In the 50-bird contest C. E. Goodrich and D. H. Gibbs, both of the United Cartridge company, tied for first, both scoring 49 out of a possible 50. Local amateurs scored as follows: E. M. Daniel, 44; J. K. Otteey and Robert Maddux, 39; Clyde King, 36; Mr. Berry, 33; Dr. Pinson, 31, and Mr. Marriett 22 out of 25.

He hopes to crown his career on the cinder path by establishing a new world's record for the half mile.

JUDGE MOSELEY SELLS THE MADISON MONITOR

Athens, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Judge Berry T. Moseley, of Danielsville, in the adjacent county of Madison, has attained "his journalistic majority" and retired from the business. For just twenty-one years he was owner and associate editor of The Monitor, the county organ of Madison. He sold out this week to H. W. Dyar, who publishes the Comer News in the same county and will combine the two papers. Judge Mosely has been treasurer of the Georgia Weekly Press association for a number of years, succeeding the late Capt. Jimmie Anderson, of Covington.

While a young man comparatively, he states in his valedictory, that so far as he knows there are but two editors of weekly papers now in Georgia still holding down the same old tripods they ballasted twenty-one years ago when he assumed the office of the "Monitor of Madison"—W. A. Shackelford, of the Oglethorpe Echo at Lexington, and John N. Holder, of the Jackson Herald at Jefferson. Judge Mosely, who has been judge of the city court of his county and held other offices of trust along with his editorial duties, the practice of law in which he had a large clientelle, and owning and managing a large plantation, will devote imself now to the legal profession exclusively.

AT THE LOCAL THEATERS

GUS EDWARDS' KID KABARET

AT THE FORSYTH

"The Girl From Out Yonder."

(At the Atlanta.)

"The Girl From Out Yonder," a romantic comedy drama in four acts, is the excellent bill chosen for the Miss Billy Long company at the Atlanta theater this week. The play is finely adapted for summer stock because of the fact that it teems with romance and comedy and has several really dramatic situations.

Miss Long has played the role of Flotsam, daughter of te lighthouse-keeper, before, and has found it to be one of the most successful she has ever played in stock. Dressed in her oil-skirts and wearing her sou'wester, she is sure to gain in favor with her audiences and act to her big following.

"The Girl From Out Yonder" is by Pauline Phelps and Marion Short, and was originally written for Adelaide Thurston, who toured in it with great success. The story concerns a light-housekeep'r's daughter, Flotsam, who has been brought up by her father more as a boy than as a girl. Although able to sail a boat, haul a net and swim as well as any boy, yet Flotsam is sweet and girlish in her manner.

When the story opens, Mrs. Elmer, a New York society matron, has been rescued from drowning by Flotsam. Flotsam appears at the clubhouse, where Mrs. Elmer and her friends are discussing the rescue. She is taken in hand by the society woman and her quaint remarks occasion much merriment. Edward Elmer, the adopted son of the woman Flotsam rescued, becomes deeply interested in the girl, and this causes jealousy on the part of Joey Clarke, a fisher lad, who loves Flotsam himself.

When Joey later discovers Elmer making love to Flotsam, he places a barrier between the two by revealing the secret which Captain Barton has hidden for twenty years. The captain, in a quarrel on a fishing schooner, has struck, and, as he supposes, killed, a man who had taken passage on the boat. This man was none other Elmer's father.

The captain is relieved when his secret finally comes out, and declares he will take his medicine. The plans made by Mrs. Elmer to educate Flotsam come to naught, for Flotsam is determined to stay at the lighthouse and take the captain's place while he is imprisoned.

It is finally revealed that the captain was wrongly accused, and thus, in the end, Flotsam and Elimer are brought together and nothing stands in the way of their happiness.

Edwin Vail will play the role of Elmer, opposite Miss Long, while the role of Cap'n Aoms Barton will fall to Joseph E. Kirkham. Most of the comedy will fall to Al Warren, as Ben Cooke, a fisherman, and Kathryn Sheldon, as Cousin Simonson. For years She has been proposing to Simonson, believing she is a widow. Once he learns her secret, however, the tables are turned and Simonson is forced to do the proposing.

The production will be complete in every way. Jesse L. France, the scenic artist, has done wonders with his brush, and the lighthouse scene will be a work of art. The company is already well established, and has a large following thus early in its summer engagement.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

Gus Edwards will contribute the act that will headline the bill of vaudeville that is to appear all of this week at the busy Forsyth. The famous song writer will not be with the act himself, but he will be there in spirit, and but for the fact that the song revue number is now on the coast he would positively be a visitor in Atlanta during the week. It is conceded that Gus Edwards' "Kid Kabaret" is one of the greatest singing and dancing novelty headliners in vaudeville. It was produced just about the time that the cafe shows were all the rage in New York. Edwards recognized what he believed to be an idea that would be accepted by the Broadway people as a big and unusual novelty. He set stage carpenters to work making a scene that would resemble one of the Cabaret places he had visited. Then he commenced to write music that would tickle and tingle and set feet to patting. Then he called on his staff of writers for lyrics that would be hummed and whistled and even spoken. He told them all just what he wanted and what he must have. Then he secured the services of seven pretty girls who can play children parts and signed up eight younm men who were physically suited for kid boy parts. He produced the act and it was an immediate sensation.

The success registered was so great that the "Kid Kabaret" did not get away from New York until twenty weeks after the season opened in New York, and only then to play a long engagement in Chicago. Several larger cities have been visited and by special arrangement the company, with its special scenery and effects, will headline the Forsyth bill this week.

A feature that has unusual local interest is the fact that Frank L. Stanton wrote one of the big song hit numbers that is used in the novelty. It is a song that will become most popular here, because of its odd idea and its unique presentation.

Added to the show is another feature that will surely interest the thousands of theater goers who will crowd into the busy theater. Belle Story, famous along Broadway because of her beauty and her original songs, will be the extra added attraction. Miss Story rarely leaves New York because she is always in demand along Broadway. Her musical comedy experiences have been recorded by the greatest critics and in vaudeville she has always been in a headline position. Miss Story has a staff of writers who produce her exclusive songs and her wardrobe will be the model for some smart gowns that will be seen after her visit.

Williams, Thompson & Copeland, three clever comedians, will present their newest success, "The Burglar's Union," an act so funny that it has been kept in the comedy headline position for years, will be one of the drawing cards on the bill, and Max Hart's "Six Steppers" will surely feed the fancy of the theater goers who care for real dancing. There are four young men and two pretty girls in this act, and they are dancers. The sextette will introduce some novel ideas and it is believed will help to make the bill one of the most entertaining of the season.

Eldora and company, the comedy jugglers, will present their unique act and, if it measures half way to what has been promised, it, too, will be one of the hit-makers of the show.

Riesner & Gores, presenting a satire on stage life, and the Musical Alvinos, with banjo and piano specialties, complete the bill.

The opening week of the re-establishment of vaudeville at the Forsyth has been a wonderful success, and there is an advance sale for the week that starts on Monday that indicates that the cozy theater is going to repeat its wonderful records of the past.

There will be the daily bargain matinee performances and the night shows.

Vaudeville and Pictures.

(At the Bijou.)

Special interest attaches to the vaudeville offering announced for next week at the Bijou on account of the fact that the Four Musical Cates, America's most expensive musical act, has been selected to head the bill. In a rendition of classical and popular music, this quartet of musicians has no peer, and the booking of an act of this sort for bargain vaudeville shows just how far the management of the popular Bijou is willing to go to furnish its patrons the very best that can be served in vaudeville. Other features of the bill will include the Empire Three, a special trio of rag-time artists; Miss Welsh, a dainty comedienne, and Wesley and White, singers, dancers and comedians. It is safe to say that no more expensive or interesting bill has been selected for the Bijou this season, and the popular theater will doubtless be crowded to its capacity at every performance. Much interest is being shown in the motion picture department of the Bijou performances on account of the good judgment that is displayed in the selection of the pictures. These include western and dramatic subjects and good comedy reels. These pictures will be shown to open and close each performance. Matinees are given daily at 3 o'clock, except on Monday and Saturday, when two matinees are given—at 2:30 and 4. Night shows, 7:30 and 9 o'clock.

FENCES IN GRAVE YARD, TACKS UP TRESPASS WARNING, THEN STANDS OFF CONGREGATION WITH LOADED GUN

Congregation of a Baptist Church Near Tallapoosa, Ga., Faces Remarkable Situation as Result, It Is Said, of Muddying Waters of a Spring.

AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Tallapoosa, Ga., April 26.—(Special.) Because, it is claimed, of the muddying of the waters of a nearby spring, the congregation of a Baptist church in the country about 5 miles from here, has been driven from their place of worship, and it is probable that the courts will be sought in an effort to straighten out a tangle which the members of the congregation have been for years trying to adjust.

The matter was brought to a climax when on a recent Sunday morning the congregation arrived at the doors of the church to find a trespass warning tacked up and the owner of the property, "Old Uncle" Nath Goodman, sitting on the steps, with a loaded gun ready to back up the warning.

How Trouble Originated.

Many years ago Uncle Nath Goodman migrated to the hills of Cleburne county, Alabama, accompanied by his faithful wife, dog and gun, entered a tract of land from the government and began to make his home there. He bilit a comfortable place, and he and his family have dwelt there for years. The sound of his ax startled the deer in the surrounding forests, but the old man was content and happy.

About a quarter of a century ago a religious spirits crept into the community, and it was decided to organize a church of the Baptist faith. Goodman said that he would give the land and that as soon as he received his deed from the government he would perfect the title of the congregation. A house was erected and he and his family for years went to each service.

A cemetery was laid out near the church and dead of the community were carried there for the final resting place.

The community grew, and many people began to go to the meeting place on the Lord's day. The house was near the home of Goodman, and the people went to his spring for water.

Goodman Grows Dissatisfied.

Finally the old man grew tired and dissatisfied. The boys "muddied" his spring, and broke his wash pot, he said, and he began to show his spirit of dissatisfaction, and when the time came for him to make the church a deed to the land he steadfastly refused, and would never do it.

His family withdrew from the congregation and the spirit of unrest grew deeper. Devout brethren counseled with Uncle Nath, and told him he was doig wrong, but he would never relent. The congregation became disorganized and disbanded.

The breach grew worse and worse, and the old man finally nailed up the church. He built a fence through the graveyard, inclosing a part of it in his pasture, and took general possession of the property.

A few weeks ago the congregation, aided by outside brethren, decided to hold services on a Sunday and take steps to reclaim the property.

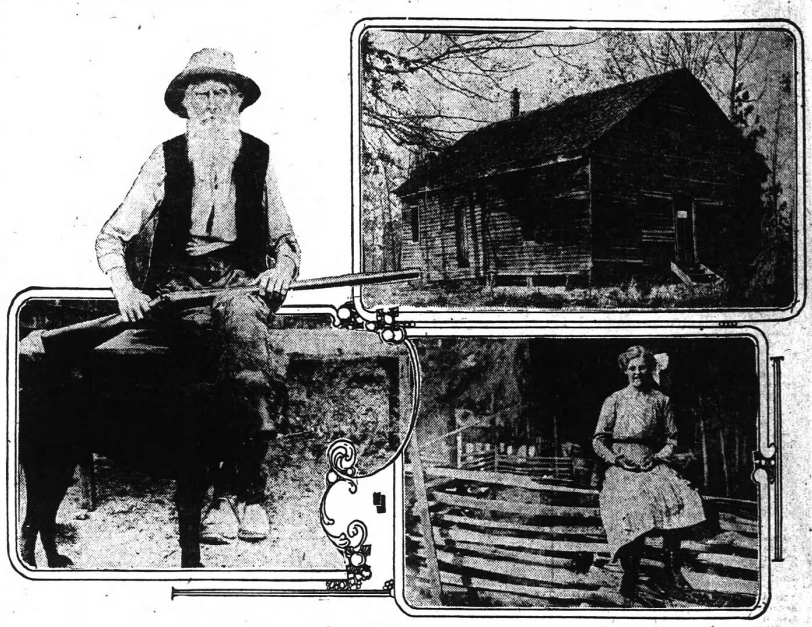
Guards Church With Gun.

When the congregation assembled they were met by Uncle Nath on guard at the church door. A trespass notice was posted on the door, and he warned all not to enter under the peril of the law. The would-be churchgoers remonstrated, but of no avail—the old man standing steadfast until he was almost driven from the place.

Finally the preacher of the congregation entered the house and removed the seats through a window. The doors were barricaded. Services were held in the grove nearby, and the congregation adjourned to meet again in the afternoon.

The people went to nearby houses for dinner, and when they returned the seats had been put back in the house, and the preacher was again forced to remove them for the afternoon service, which was also held under the trees.

Uncle Nath is ardent in his objections to the church, and still relies on his trusted bravery and pioneer courage to take care of his rights as he sees them, and keep people away from the church.



UNCLE NATH GOODMAN AND THE CHURCH HE HAS FENCED IN.

WOMEN'S COATSUITS HAVE MANY FEATURES

Toledo, Ohio, May 3.—Women's coat suits for fall "will embody a greater variety of features than they have in several seasons past," and the "principal feature of the suit coat will be the cut-away effect," according to the report of the style committee adopted by members of the National Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' association here today.

The new features, it is promised, will consist of high buttoning, cutaway and blouse effects, mandarin sleeves, draping, vests or waistcoats, fur band collars, Russian effects with belts and sashes, sleeves shirred at the wrists and the combination in a suit of one material for the coat and another for the skirt.

Suit coats measuring from finger tip to bend of the knee length will predominate.

The slightly draped skirt will be prominent, particularly in the dressier suits. The high waistline, a slash at the skirt bottom, plaiting and shirring at the belt and a narrowing effect toward the hem of the skirt will be ir high favor.

Coats are to be forty-eight and fifty inches long, with emphasis on high buttoning collars and a tendency toward sloping back seams. The cut will be irregular at the bottom—longer in back than at the front.

DRAGGING FOR REDHORSE TABOOED BY WARDEN

Lyerly, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Perhaps the smallest amount of "dragging" for "redhorse" ever known was this year, Colonel Jesse Mercer, the state game and fish commissioner, was, perhaps, the cause of the great "sport" ceasing to a great extent. The law now makes it a misdemeanor to "drag" for the fish, and needless to say, the fish generally went on their way undisturbed this year.

The time for the shoaling of the fish was always looked forward to with much interest by the people, both white and black, and when the fish began shoaling hundreds of people would congregate upon the river banks and when a fish would enter the shallow water as many lines, containing from twenty-five to thirty hooks, as there was space to permit, would go into the water and the "dragging" would begin and there was hardly any chance for the finny tribleto escape. The supply of the fish was getting very scarce and had the law not interfered there would have been practically none of this species of fish in a few more years.

White Tiger Sentenced.

Lyerly, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—T. A. Weathington, a white man of near this place, was found guilty of selling liquor in the county court at Summerville this week and sentenced to twelve months on the chaingang or the alternative of $1,000. Wethington has appealed the case to higher court.

GOOD ROADS COMMITTEE PROPOSED BY DEMOCRAT

Washington, May 3.—Good roads legislation is considered of such importance, and so many highway improvement measures are pending in congress that leading democrats propose to create a new standing committee in the house, to be known as the committee on good roads.

Provision for such a committee of twenty-one was made in a resolution introduced today by Representative Henry, of Texas, chairman of the rules committee, which will consider it soon after the passage of the tariff bill.

Should the committee be created, it would take from the present committee on postoffices and post roads a part of its work. Mr. Henry declared more than fifty good roads measures already introduced, which ordinarily would go to numerous standing committees, should go to one. His suggestion had the approval of many leading democrats.

An effort will be made to have the resolution passed at the special session.

NEGRO SLAYER STILL AT LARGE IN SWAMP

Savannah, Ga., May 3.—A posse seeking Richard Henry Austin, the South Carolina negro who Wednesday killed two white men and wounded four others, this morning battered down the door of his father's cabin near Newington, Ga., and riddled the place with bullets. The negroes had fled, the old man, Sim Austin, taking refuge with a white farmer. Henry Austin is supposed to be in the Savannah river swamps.

Able to Fix the Blame.

(From The Brooklyn Standard Union.)

Once a month the "Memphis Commission Government," a monthly magazine, is published by the city of Memphis. This is nothing unusual nor is the fact that that form of government has been adopted by the Tennessee town. The interesting and instructive feature of the publication is the use made of the first page of the magazine. On it are printed instructions to citizens as to the rules for the conduct of the city government. For instance, citizens are told to call up a certain telephone number if the garbage is not removed promptly, and another number if the street lamps are not lit, and so on. For every class of complaint the telephone number of the department which is responsible for the condition is given.

Ferdinand Fabre, the most famous entomologist living, contributes to The Youth's Companion a remarkable article on "The Red Ants"—the slave-hunting Amasons. He describes them and their manners and customs, as a Livingstone might those of an African tribe. He discusses their mental powers, goes along with them on their slave-capturing forays, and, in short, paints a picture of ant life which humbles one to the thought that man is only an ant of large and stupider growth, with an inadequate provision of legs.

Graham Leads Catchers; Whitey Second Basemen

By Dick Jemison.

The fielding in the Southern league has been just about on the usual average thus far, with the exception of at short.

Here the pastimers have been having a horrible time trying to keep the elusive pellet from slipping from their fingers, but two men fielding at all respectably, Lindsey, of Nashville, and Stock, of Mobile. Lindsey leads with a percentage of .989.

Fifteen outfielders have a perfect fielding average.

Ten catchers and thirty-one pitchers have as yet to make an error.

Here are the figures, including the games played last Sunday.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 3.—Horten won a brilliant fourteen-inning pitchers' duel from Martin and O'Brien this afternoon, the score being 2 to 1. Martin was pitching brilliant ball, but Hoffman, the first batter in the ninth, hit a vicious drive through the box and caught him on the tip of one of the fingers on his right hand. He walked the next batter and had to give way to O'Brien. Both sides scored in the fourth and until the fourteenth, with one out for Jacksonville, no more scores were made. Eighteen hundred people stayed in the stands until this exciting finish.

MELLEN SYSTEM PROBE HAS BEEN CONCLUDED

Boston, May 3.—The Interstate commerce Commission's hearings in connection with the general investigation of the New Haven railroad and its subsidiary companies ended late today.

Oral arguments will be heard at Washington next Wednesday. Commissioner Prouty said that counsel would be given until May 15 to file briefs, after which the evidence would be reviewed by the full commission. He added that the report of the commission might be expected in June.

The principal testimony in criticism of the railroad management was given by David E. Brown, the commission's accountant. He testified among other things, that the records indicated that the inter-corporate relations of the New Haven and its various subsidies made possible such a transfer of assets and liabilities as to conceal the real financial condition of the system.

President Mellen, of the railroad, testifying yesterday as a voluntary witness, explained the railroad's side of the case and denied that it had been involved in any improper or extravagant transactions.

The commission has no mandatory power but it is expected its report will include suggestions the members believe warranted by the testimony. Tals report may be made to the public, to the department of justice, or to congress.

Champion Pitchers

BOSTON not only won the 1912 championship in the American League largely through the great pitching of "Smoky" Joe Wood, but also the World's Series games. This 23 year old Missouri boy equalled Walter Johnson's 1912 record of 16 straight victories and ended the season with a pitching average of .827.

Failing dismally immediately after his acquisition from Indianapolis and hailed as a "$11,000 lemon," Marquard, of the Giants established the season's record of 19 straight victories in 1912, ending the season with a pitching average of .703. In the World's Series contests, Marquard took both his games from the Boston Red Sox.

UNITED STATES TIRES ARE GOOD TIRES
They cut down tire bills

Just what kind of a tire do you want?

Pick out the features you want to find in the tires you buy. You want generous mileage, full rated size, flexibility, protection against rim cutting, ease of manipulation and security of fastening.

Measure up this ideal tire against every other tire on the market and then compare with a United States Tire.

You will find United States Tires combine all these identical features of your ideal tire in a way that no other tire on the market approaches.

We believe that every tire maker in the country has been making the very best tires that his facilities would permit.

Some of these tires have been greatly strengthened at one or two points—some at others.

But it is a matter of general comment among dealers, car owners and car manufacturers, that never has any tire combined all these special points of superiority as do

United States Tires

In the matter of mileage—the most accurate tests have proven that United States Tires today yield on an average from 25 to 50 per cent. more mileage than was ever given by any make of tire previous to the organization of the United States Tire Company.

No tire has ever been made with a larger average size or a larger average air capacity than the United States Dunlop.

No tire has ever been made as flexible or as resilient as the United States Dunlop.

This is the first and only tire that has ever been absolutely guaranteed against rim-cutting.

It is by long odds the easiest tire in the world to put on or take off—yet it can't possibly come off the rim until you are ready to take it off.

In fact if you were to have a tire built to your order it would be difficult for you to specify a single desirable feature that you can't get today in a United States Tire.

If this is the kind of a tire that you want to use, United States Tires ought to be the exclusive equipment on your car this season.

They are made in Plain, Chain and Nobby treads and in three styles of fastening, including the famous Dunlop (straight side).

Cost no more than you are asked to pay for other kinds

TIRE-LY SATISFIED

United States Pneumatic Tires are guaranteed when filled with air at the recommended pressure and attached to a rim bearing either one or both of the accompanying inspection stamps. When filled with any substitutes for air or attached to any other rims than those specified, our guarantee is withdrawn.

All who participated returned with glowing accounts of the day. Added to Swainsboro's citizens were guests from Wesley, Modoc, Summertown and Midville.

One of the youngest brides that Swainsboro has had in sometime is Mrs. O. D. Sasser, who was before her marriage a few days ago, Miss Ruth Boatright, a little school girl of about 14 summers. Mr. Sasser and his fiance, it seems, met with objection on account of the youth of the bride, drove out to the country home of Rev. L. L. Deal, where they were married. The bride has many friends here. The groom is in the employ of the Southern Bell Telephone company and is located at Helena, where they will reside.

Emanuel County Institute will close its tenth year with an elaborate commencement program beginning May 25. The literary address this year will be made by Charles Lane & lyceum lecturer. There will be seventeen graduates this year, the largest graduating class in the history of the school. The class valedictory will be delivered by Miss Eunice Warnock.

FROM HUMBLE GEORGIA CHAPEL TO GREATEST PRESBYTERIAN CONGREGATION IN THE WORLD

Such Is the Spectacular Career of Dr. Matthews, Once a Georgia Country Boy.

Calhoun, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—When the gavel falls in the first session of the general assembly of the "Presbyterian church in the United States of America," which will convene in Atlanta on May 15, it will be in the hand of one of the most remarkable pulpit personalities of the day, for this year the moderator is Dr. Mark Allison Matthews of the First Presbyterian church of Seattle. The career of Dr. Matthews is as picturesque among preachers as is that of Abraham Lincoln among statesmen. From a poor boy in a small country town in Georgia to the pastorate of the largest Presbyterian church in the world, is no small achievement when made against almost insurmountable difficulties.

The assembled thousands of Presbyterians in Atlanta on the 15th will take note of this man, for he is eminent. His appearance is striking. He is six feet, five inches tall and wears his raven-black hair in a veritable mane. His features are clear-cut and give the impression of strength. But it is not his appearance that is alone noteworthy, it is his notable career. On the Pacific slope his name is a household word, and to grafters and boodlers in Seattle it is a symbol of fear. He has been variously denominated "The Black-maned Lion of Seattle," "The Tall Sycamore of the Sierras" and "The Scourge of Sin in Seattle." These express something of what he means to his fellow citizens in the west. To the people of Calhoun, his native town, he is just plain Mark Matthews, but he is not a prophet without honor in his own country, for in Calhoun he is admired and respected best by those who knew him in his boyhood days, and who understand his hard, bare-handed struggle against his early lot.

Born in Calhoun, Ga.

He first saw the light in a small one-roomed frame house in Calhoun, in 1867. His father and mother were of good family, honest and industrious, but poor. Sherman in his destructive march from Chattanooga to Atlanta, had left Calhoun a heap of smouldering ashes. In the midst of hardships, the future moderator grew up to be a tall, slender lad and earned a reputation for cleanliness, politeness and devotion to his mother. He entered school much later than the average boy, but his patient application to his books he gained a thorough education. While other boys were able to go off to college he was forced to take a position in one of the local stores for the purpose of supplementing the family income. He did not give up his studies, however, and until late at night he would pore over the books his hard earned savings had bought. When a mere boy he showed that he had a bent towards things religious, and in revivals meetings in the town churches he was hymn-book boy, bell ringer and general assistant. As early as eight years he showed traits that pointed to his future work. While engaged in the store the young man was quietly preparing himself for the Presbyterian ministry, and at the age of 19 he was licensed to preach.

Father Told Him to Quit.

His father was not in sympathy with his son's desire for the life of a preacher, because he thought that the lad had insufficient training and lacked the qualifications necessary for successful pulpit work. He was present when young Mark preached, or tried to preach, his first sermon. After the service he called the boy aside and said: "Son, if that's the best you can do, I advise you to quit right now and go back to the store." But the young man was not to be sidetracked in his ambition. This opposition only served to make him more determined, and every opportunity that came he preached, led prayer meetings, gave Sunday school talks. The little Presbyterian church in Calhoun, with a membership of less than a score, was without a pastor and a call was given to young Matthews to begin his labors among the people who had known his from childhood. This probably was the hardest place to start, but the call was accepted and the young preacher began his work with the enthusiasm of youth and with faith in God and in himself.

He was a man of action from the first. His spare, gaunt form was nothing but sinew and muscle. He had personality. The attendance began to grow at the services. The church was painted, ceiled, carpeted and a new organ installed in an incredibly short time. He allowed nothing to stand in the way of the success of his church. One winter Sunday morning a foot or more of newly fallen snow blocked the sidewalks and pathways to the church, but the preacher borrowed a mule, improvised a snow plow and cleared a pathway in all directions.

Stopped Sermon to Put Out Fire.

On another occasion, when in the midst of his sermon, the fire alarm was sounded by the quick strokes of the courthouse bell, the congregation was surprised to see the heels and coat tails of the preacher disappear suddenly through a window to the side of the pulpit. Matthews had not waited to finish the sentence he was uttering. The fire was soon extinguished and the young pastor came back, took up the thread of his discourse again and finished it.

Young Matthews was soon called to the First Presbyterian church at Dalton, and after three years' labor in that field he went to the First church at Jackson, Tenn. Here his work was notable and attracted wide attention. He was soon recognized by the forces of evil as a hard hitter, who never stopped until his enemy was defeated.

In 1902 Dr. Matthews left Jackson for the First Presbyterian church at Seattle. The new field was in sore need of cultivation. The congregation was small, the galleries closed up for lack of hearers, and there was a church debt of twenty-five thousand dollars. Not many sermons had been preached by the new minister before the people of Seattle began to sit up and take notice of the newcomer. His preaching was direct, pointed and pithy. He was sensational because that was his nature. His sermons were announced under titles such as "Soap, Soup, Salve and Salvation." This brought the natives out and soon many who had never been known to go to church in Seattle, came out of curiosity, came again and soon formed the habit. In the first year five hundred members were received on profession of faith. In the first year and a half the debt of twenty-five thousand dollars was paid off. Since then a new church has been built at a cost of three hundred and fifty thousand dollars. At the end of ten years Dr. Matthews had received into the church

This is the church in Calhoun, Ga., where Mark Matthews preached his first sermon, after which his father advised him to quit and go back to the counter.

over seven thousand members and the present membership is over five thousand. This is the largest Presbyterian church in the world and it is organized "from steeple to furnace."

Carged Graft to Council

Space would not permit a description of the great work of this remarkable preacher during the years of his pastorate in Seattle. He has had many hard fights on his hands, but has invariably won the battle for the cause of decency and good citizenship. In 1905 he charged the Seattle city council with having a bad case of "Graftitis." The council was wroth and asked for a statement of the charges or a withdrawal of the damaging assertions. The great body of the people was in sympathy with the preacher and the latter instead of retracting put the charges in cold type and won the fight. Then there were other and later campaigns in which the lines were closely drawn between the reformer on the one hand and the grafters on the other, but the one-time slender, open-faced Georgia lad always came out on top.

On May the 18th, Dr. Matthews will visit his native town and preparations are being made to give him a royal reception. While he has several honorary college degrees, among them being D.D. and LL.D., in Calhoun he will always be known as Mark Matthews. An open-air reception will be given him in the central park and a great mass-meeting will convene that night at one of the churches where formal welcome will be extended to him. To this gathering he will speak at length. It is planned to present him with a handsome gavel with which to open the great general assembly and in the way the citizens feel that the splendid success of a native son will be fittingly recognised.

At St. Paul's Church.

There will be special services at St. Paul's Methodist church, Grant street and St. Paul avenue, Sunday, both morning and evening.

Sunday morning there will be a large class to join the church, and there will be the ordinance of baptism and holy communion. In the evening, the pastor, Dr. R. F. Fraser, will preach a special sermon on church work.

Since the big revival about three weeks ago, St. Paul's has been experiencing an awakening, states the pastor before. Every Sunday many have joined the church, and the members are working with a zeal and enthusiasm hitherto unknown.

Primitive—Elder T. J. Bazemore, the pastor, speaks Sunday morning at 11 o'clock on "The Atonement."

LUCIEN KNIGHT TO PUBLISH SOUVENIR BOOK OF ASSEMBLY

Lucien Knight, one of Georgia's most distinguished authors and a close student of history and present-day affairs, is preparing a souvenir book for the commissioners of the Presbyterian assemblies that will undoubtedly be the finest one ever given to any assembly.

It will contain the names and addresses of all the commissioners, pictures of the churches in which the assemblies meet, some of the principal public buildings, parks, monuments and places of historic interest in Georgia.

The frontispiece will have a picture of Woodrow Wilson, who was once a resident of Atlanta and is now an elder in the Presbyterian church, and it will have a picture of Vice President Marshall, who is also an elder of the church.

Five thousand copies of the book will be published. One will be given free to each of the 1,500 commissioners and the rest will be sold at 25 cents a copy, or 30 cents by mail, which is calculated only to cover the expenses of getting out the book.

EVANGELIST HERE TO CONDUCT GREAT WEST END REVIVAL

Every night this coming week the West End Christian church will be the scene of popular evangelistic services, which will be held by Rev. John W. Hawkins, of Kentucky, one of the most prominent evangelists of the Christian church.

Mrs. Katherine King, who has had long experience in solo work at revivals, will sing at every meeting, while the congregational singing will be under the direction of Tyre L. Jennings.

Evangelist Hawkins begins the services Sunday morning, and the length of the services will be decided later. Rev. W. O. Foster is pastor of the West End church, which is located at the corner of Gordon and Dunn streets.

CHAS. B. JAMISON AT RAILROAD Y. M. C. A.

A program of special interest is arranged for Sunday afternoon at the Railroad Young Men's Christian association rooms, 211½ West Alabama street. The hour is 3:30 o'clock. Mr. Charles B. Jamison, physical director at the Central association, will be the speaker. He is an old association man and knows how to speak to men. It will pay to hear him.

The musical feature will be attractive, and everybody will enjoy it. The excellent orchestra will play. All men are invited.

May Festival.

The May session of the Atlanta Baptist Sunday School association, of which John M. Green is president, will be held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Antioch church, located on the federal prison car line.

An address will be made by Rev. J. G. Spalding. There will also be other short and interesting talks from various individuals, reflecting the benefits and advantages derived from the recent training school held at the First Baptist church. All Sunday school workers are invited to be present, and the various schools composing the organization will send delegations.

Seven Minute Sermon

On the Golden Text

Our fathers trusted in thee: they trusted and thou didst deliver them. Psalm 22:4.

I. DELIVERED BY TRUSTING.

I. The Great Heart Needs of Men Are Always the Same. We speak about the marvelous change in modern conditions as compared with the ancient days, but this is true only so far as physical or material things are concerned, as human nature and its needs are the same today as they ever were. Pain is the same, birth and death are the same, our yearning for companionship, our desire for God, our belief in immortality, our hopes and our fears and all the other heart experiences which we now either suffer or enjoy are precisely the same as men passed through in any other period of history. Our fathers had the same problems to solve as we have, they had similar mental perplexities, the same forces to fight and overcome, and when we learn that they found a way to be delivered from their fears and helped out of their troubles, we may safely follow their example. Our fathers had the same struggle to make a living, the same anxiety concerning their families; they nursed their sick as do we and their hearts were rent, as ours are, when they laid away their loved ones in the grave.

II. There is No Intellectual Certainty of God Except Through Trusting Him. Our fathers learned of God by exercising instinctive trust in him; they arrived at clear conceptions of the "eternal Father strong to save," through the trust of their hearts, rather than by any intellectual process. The most vital things in life we have to take on trust, or learn by actual experience. Those whose belief in God is the most profound and satisfying are they who yield themselves up implicitly to trusting Him, and they have learned by experience that what they trust for is always realized. Wise men have endeavored to demonstrate the existence of God by a process of reasoning, the logic of which tends to convince us of the existence of a supreme being. The Bible states, "the heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth his handiwork," and modern reasoners say that inasmuch as nature shows design, plan and purpose, that there must have been a designer and a planner. They reason from cause to effect, and from effect to cause, and endeavor to prove God's existence. I have no disposition, but on the contrary, to speak against the usefulness of this process of reasoning, yet I am constrained to say that even those reasoners themselves who rest with certainty in the belief of the Heavenly Father do so not as the result of their logic, but by trusting in Him. Our fathers trusted in God and were delivered from all their doubts concerning Him, and they proved by lifelong experience that their trust was not misplaced. Many of them were so conscious of God, and had such experience of His love and protecting care, that they were as certain of these things as we are that we have had earthly fathers.

III. Trusting in God Solves All Life's Problems. Our fathers in their extremities have cried unto God; one states, "I sought the Lord, and He heard me, and delivered me from all my fears." It is stated concerning another, "This poor man cried, and the Lord heard him, and saved him out of all his troubles." The psalmist, after he had tested by experience the reality of God by trusting in Him, urged all others who may be in doubt to try his method and test God for themselves, saying, "O taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in Him, O fear the Lord, ye His saints; for there is no want to them that fear Him." In another place it is stated, "The righteous cry, and the Lord heareth, and delivereth them out of all their troubles." Jesus lived this life of trust, and therefore the heavenly Father was a real presence to him and he advises others to test the reality of God's delivering mercy, when he says, "Ask, and it shall be given you: seek, and ye shall find: knock, and it shall be opened unto you." Our fathers trusted in God when they were in difficulty and were delivered.

IV. Trusting in God Lightens up the Darkness of Death. Whatever hope sustains a man in the trying ordeal of death must be well founded. Our fathers who died in the faith have triumphed in the hour of death. Those who have been martyred for their religion have shouted for joy when they have been burning in the fire. The dark and lonesome valley of the shadow of death will be brilliantly illuminated for us, as it was for our fathers, when they passed through the valley. The promise of God, "When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee: and through the rivers they shall not overflow thee," is always fulfilled for those that trust in the Lord, and we can all say with confidence in advance of that dark hour, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me."

A Child Who Knew His Business in the World

"Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" Jesus was a child who knew His business in the world. Long before He reached maturity His mind was filled with thoughts of serving His fellow men. He was pondering this early on His life's mission. What an example is there held forth to the youth of the twentieth century! The world has far more problems today than it had 2,000 years ago. There is more work to do than ever before. There is greater need for thinkers—both young and old. Those who, like Jesus, realize their life work early, whatever it is, if they stick to it they may hope to attain it before life be done. The example of the child Jesus, who knew His business in the world, is well worth heeding by the youth of America.

American Producers Excel.

(F. W. Taussig, in the May Atlantic.)

A machine-using people directs its energies to best advantage where thousands of goods of the same pattern are produced. Specialties, and goods salable only in small quantities, such as luxuries bought by the rich, goods of rare patterns and the like—these are likely to be imported. Ready-made goods, all of one pattern, bought by the masses, are likely to be produced at home, without danger from competing imports. Goods made to order must be supplied by domestic producers, and these are likely to be what the customer thinks inordinately dear; because they are made preponderantly, or at least in greater degree, by hand labor, which is paid high wages, and which by the very condition of the case cannot use labor-saving machinery. Again, implements themselves, big and little, are likely to be well made in a country where people are constantly turning to machinery; from kitchen utensils and household hardware to machine tools, electric apparatus and huge printing presses. These are things in which the success of American industry is familiar; which are exported, not imported; in which it is proverbial that the Yankee has a peculiar knack—only another way of saying that he has a comparative advantage.

You may think what you please about moderate drinking; but remember that employers measure men by their measure.—The Youth's Companion.

ADVERTISING OF HUP TOUCHES HUMAN SIDE

Current Copy Strikes a New Note in Motor Car Exploitation.

The current advertising of the Hupmobile, and, which will run throughout the present summer, strikes a new note in motor car exploitation as it hits directly at the human interest side of motoring's coupling up the car with the day's play so that a better day's work may result.

The art is by Gil Speer, the famous illustrator, and will deal exclusively with the Hupmobile in the open. The accompanying copy backing up the art in the outdoor appeal is by Kirk B. Alexander, of the MacManus company, author of "The Log of the North Shore club" and other books on outdoor life and well known as a contributor to Outing and other publications devoted to outdoor recreation.

Both Mr. Speer and Mr. Alexander are enthusiastic Hupmobilists and their joint copy breathes the personal feeling they have for the car.

This series follows the previous campaign which dealt with the "man, the machine and the material," in which the mechanical features of the Hupmobile were analyzed one by one.

When the Hupmobile "32" was offered to the public the long stroke motor, the full floating rear axle and the continuous oiling system were so unique in a car of this class that the public required thorough education. That the public was eager for the instruction is evidenced by the fact that the booklet dealing with these features ran through two editions of 100,000 each, and now in the third edition.

Although the first two advertisements only of the outdoor series have appeared as yet, the public comment, as reported by Hupp dealers, has been extremely favorable.

SPLENDID SHOWING MADE BY OVERLAND IN GOTEBORG CLIMB

The medium-priced American automobile has won another signal victory, this time in competition with many more costly European cars, in what is declared to be the most thorough and fair test of motor car endurance ever held. The occasion was the annual reliability run of the Swedish Royal Automobile club from Stockholm to Goteborg, Sweden, and return, a distance of 738 miles. The showing of the American-made cars among the sixty-eight contestants proved a surprise to the spectators, who pinned their faith to the European productions, and the performance of an Overland model 69 T was especially noteworthy. The Overland took second place in the Goteborg hill-climb, an incidental competition in the event, making the best time for the climb of any of the cars.

The Overland car, No. 7, made the best time of any of the entrants in negotiating the hill, making the climb in 1 hour 22 minutes and 7 seconds. The time of the N. A. G. car, which was given first place through handicap reckonings of the rating formula, was 2 hours 12 minutes and 4 seconds. Both No. 7 and Overland No. 30 finished with perfect scores, neither having been found in need of any repairs during the contest nor late at any of the controls. Both the Overlands were strictly stock cars, without any previous preparation for the contest. They were taken from the garage of the Stockholm distributor and entered in the run with nothing added to the regular equipment except tire chains.

The formula, utilized by the Swedish club for the first time this year in determining the winner, is being warmly commended by motor authorities everywhere as the most thorough ever used in like events. Not only was the weight of the car and size of the motor taken into consideration but road conditions and hill grades were figured in. In the Goteborg hill climb especially the reckoning was carefully made. The climb occurred on the return journey from Goteborg, and every car was brought to a stop at the foot of the hill. There the stop watches of the observers who rode in the cars and the officials were compared and an exceedingly careful account was taken of everything during the race. At the top of the hill again watches were compared and the observer handed his notebook over to the officials stationed there.

WILLIAM WHIPPLE IS YOUNGEST AUTO AGENT

Who is the youngest automobile agent in the United States?

That is, the youngest real agent, who has a regular contract, sells cars and banks his commissions?

William Whipple, of Genoa, Ill., lays claim to the honor. William has just passed his eighteenth birthday. Although his father, William, Sr., is the possessor of five prosperous Illinois farms, William, Jr., has a decided preference for a bank roll built up strictly by his own energy. So, when he was 16 years old, he embarked in the automobile business as the agent of the Michigan cars. He is now doing a flourishing business in a regular automobile dealer's way. His fine, big, completely equipped salesroom and garage is a point of special interest to visitors, and a special pride to its hustling young owner.

William has a youthful enthusiasm which wins where colder salesmanship might fail. The young agent's enthusiasm is the result of accurate knowledge acquired in actual experience at the Michigan factory in Kalamazoo. He spent considerable time in overalls and jumper as a helper, to make himself familiar with automobile construction.

LAUDER IS LAUDATORY IN PRAISE OF HUDSON

"She's a daisy!" laughed Harry Lauder, Scotch comedian and singer, as he stepped from a Hudson car after a tour of the parks and boulevards as the guest of the Detroit Burns club.

"And you's a vera clever young man who's driving her, though she's aye that simple a bit bairn could handle her weel."

Mr. Lauder is a god judge of motor cars, and his commendation of the American automobile was frank and outspoken.

"Electrical accessories and conveniences are carried much further with American cars than with the cars manufactured in Europe," said Mr. Lauder, who by the way betrays only a slight Scotch "burr" in ordinary conversation.

On his return to his home in Scotland Mr. Lauder will consider the purchase of a Hudson car, the fact that the Hudson Motor car company is prepared to furnish complete service to ... drivers in all principal ... and to him

JUDGE THE VALUE of any article by the demand for it and you will seldom err in your selection. When over 60,000 persons buy and recommend an article it must be good. When 40,000 must be produced to meet the demand in one season, that article, if it is one you can use, certainly merits your earnest consideration.

Since 1909 the Willys-Overland Company of Toledo, Ohio, has built and sold over 60,000 Overlands. They are in daily use, here and abroad. In the last seven months they have shipped over twenty-one thousand cars—85 per cent more than were delivered up to this time last year. And in the last five months as many Overlands have been built and sold as all the factories of Germany build in a year.

"What Car Shall I Buy?"

¶ It is hard to decide, isn't it? You want to get a good car. But there are many good cars. You read the ads and study catalogs. Still you cannot determine. One friend tells you one car—but it is too expensive. Another friend names another car—but you don't think it will do. Everyone is ready to help spend your money.

As a business man, you must get the best. Not only because of the money involved, but because your judgment must be upheld by the performance of the car. Of course, you are safe in walking into most any salesroom and buying a car. But will it be the very best value for the money? And that's the point to decide now.

How Much Can You Afford to Spend?

¶ When a man buys or builds a house, he usually determines this question first. But, as queer as it may sound, few men figure price before they figure car. The beautiful pictures and fine talk keep them wasting time until they throw all caution to the winds and often buy a car they do not want. We find the average buyer of a car can afford to spend about one thousand dollars.

You are buying transportation service first—beauty comes second. With it alone, you wouldn't get very far. So, consider your purchase in the light of an extended trip. You would buy service over the railroad that offered you most at your price. And that is what the Overland offers—the best transportation service to be had from any automobile at or near the Overland's price.

Who Builds the Car?

¶ A reputable concern? One that holds a high position in the motor industry through the high quality of its product? A firm with the desire and capital to make good the promises put forth in behalf of its product? The very fact that looks can't count much in the selection of a car should make you read the record of the concern behind the car before you buy.

The Overland, with the exception of tires and accessories, is built complete by the Willys-Overland Company of Toledo, Ohio. It is built for you and every other man of moderate means. All the goodness of more expensive cars put into form and sold at an unusually low price. Possible through enormous production due to the enormous demand. A good-looking car that wins your confidence and holds it through the performance of its perfect mechanical parts.

What Has the Car Done?

¶ In 1909, when the Overland entered upon its new career under the manufacturing and selling policies of John N. Willys, only 4,000 Overlands were built. This was no small accomplishment then. But the cars were of such a high quality and created such a demand that 12,500 were built in 1910. In 1911 production jumped to 16,000, and in 1912 to 22,800 cars. This season more than 40,000 Overlands will be built, and all of them are either paid for, or contracted for now.

Since 1909 the factory, through the excellence of its product, has increased to a plant covering 100 acres of ground housing more than three million dollars worth of the best machinery and employing 7,000 skilled mechanics. No other car selling at or anywhere near the Overland price has such a wonderful record. And, though quality production is one of the main factors in the Overland plan, quality is never sacrificed to speed.

¶ This wonderful record is due primarily to the characteristic foresight of John N. Willys, who realized that to make his car the success he wanted it to be he must make it so good that it would almost sell itself, and thus enable him to make it in quantities which would bring the price down to the lowest possible level. That is why you—and every other man of moderate means—who desire a five-passenger, 30-horsepower, staunch touring car can get it in an Overland—the car recognized as a full $1,200 value by the keenest critics here and abroad.

Miss Billy Long, Georgia Star, Says

To Be Successful Player, Imagination Comes First, Personality Runs Second

BY HOMER GEORGE.

What a boob I am. This confession is sincere. It comes mighty hard I must confess. But after being here but a few days I have come to the conclusion that I am a Georgia girl; hence a Georgia star. Shame on me! Say you not so?

This is a heart to heart confession and a truly-truly talk. Would you believe it? When I received a telegram announcing that Miss Miles Billy Long stock company was booked here I deliberately announced it as the Billy Lang company, because I did not like the name Long. But I do like Miss Long—that, however, is a personal matter between us.

I am not writing a press agent story today. Miss Long is her own press agent. That is, she wins her following through her own magnetism, her own personality, her own ability. This is the truth about her career from the time she left the classic shades of Athens, Ga., to become a leading woman until now.

Starts as Leading Woman.

Be it known that Miss Long made her debut on the stage as a leading woman. She has always been such and as star today, she is simply taking the place won by diligent work and natural ability.

While Miss Long is a Georgian through having lived at Athens for years, she was born in Texas on a ranch. She blossomed a few years where cattle kings were rulers, and is proud of the fact that she is a daughter of the ranch. Her residence in Athens, however, overbalances and claims the accident of birth in the cattle country might have. She was educated in Athens, her sister married in Athens, her mother calls that home, and all is well, insofar as this is concerned, which statement is made that all may know nothing but truth enters herein.

"Tell us, Miss Long, how it happened that you became an actress," I asked her as we talked over her career.

Need Pushes Her on Stage.

"Need made an actress out of me; not ambition. As a matter of fact, I hated the stage when I began my career. But once in the work I yearned to make good and took solemn resolve that I would. As a result I worked hard, conscientiously, with necessity ever spurring me on. And that is the story except that I left Old Necessity back in the dark long ago. Now I love the stage and work because of that fact."

"Give us a little knowledge on your beginning," I next asked.

"It is almost too funny to tell," replied the Georgia star. "But if I must here goes. It happened back in Ann Arbor, Mich., where I had a lot of friends. A company in which I was interested was playing 'Pals' at the time and many of these friends came to the theater expecting something great because of me. Our leading lady was the most awful thing imaginable and when I knew my friends were present I determined to play the part myself. I went to the manager and explained the situation with the assertion that if I could not play the part I could at least look it. And I went on.

"I will never forget the minute I first stepped on the stage. As I stood in the wings the stage manager—a close friend—came over and gave me an awful slap on the back, remarking:

"'Go out and kid them, Billy'".

"And I did. When I came off the stage he said:

"'You are undoubtedly the worst actress I have ever seen, but you kidded them and that's something.'"

Studies in Faroff Woods.

"Following this I joined a stock company in the spring and was cast for the lead in 'The Lion and the Mouse.' I was a rank amateur but I had not a secret. I determined to do my part and do it well. So I went off in the woods and for three days studied and rehearsed my lines without rest or recreation. The result was I did make good. I did not own up to being an amateur until the end of the season when I had done so well as to make my position secured—no matter how I had decided in the beginning. It was fun to see their astonishment when I did tell.

"After this I played leads in stock and in 'The Man on the Box' while touring in various cities. My greatest stock success was in Roanoke, Va., where we played for eleven months to enormous business and I netted quite a $25,000 profit. This is going some for a stock company. For this summer I had many offers to play. Some of these included companies in Montreal, Washington and other cities. But I chose Atlanta because of Georgia and my desire to make good at home.

"I am a Georgian for fair. Our company is in Atlanta to stay. We want to meet Atlantans, to please them and to win a place in their hearts. We will do our level best and will be thankful for suggestions, for words of good cheer, for advice. We will be thankful to even just know Atlantans and will always welcome them."

Is Fine Housekeeper.

Saying which Miss Long folded her hands and turned to a typewriter where she was transcribing a part. For acting is not the only accomplishment of Miss Long. She is able to write and a machine; she can cook and she is an immense housekeeper. She is keeping house in Atlanta, having a beautiful apartment on West Peachtree street. She is a very busy woman, too, in superintending her housework, rehearsing, studying and acting.

Waffles is the Billy Long cooking specialty. If you become her friend some day she will invite you to a waffle treat. She has me on the list, for I am as much a waffle as she is a waffler.

Before concluding my talk with Miss Long I asked her what many girls will ask her this summer, and what many have already asked her:

"How about the stage as a career for a woman?"

She was very deliberate about her answer. In fact, she handed me a magazine article which she had recently written on this particular subject. I will quote it below with the hope that it may serve to interest the girls of Atlanta who are in love with Miss Long and with the stage, or who may so become. It is well worth while. So here goes:

Go on the Stage.

"A very celebrated dramatist, speaking of the stage as a career, once said to me: 'There are three qualities which are essential for every player. The first is imagination, the second is imagination, and the third is imagination.'

"If you want to succeed as an actress, cultivate imagination and be prepared for many sacrifices. I consider the stage is a fine career for women—one in which they can really meet men on an equal footing and fight a battle without a handicap.

"But a theatrical career does not offer its followers a bed of roses. It means a struggle, a fight, and, moreover, a fight that is never won. An actress is striving throughout her stage career. She can never say, 'I've conquered!' 'I'm supreme! I can rest on my laurels!' The knowledge of assured success granted to followers of other professions is never hers. She is a fighter—always.

"Remember, the public that we players serve—and live to serve—is very fickle. Today we are lauded, applauded, adored. Tomorrow we are out of work and we're forgotten. That is the tragedy of Theaterland. Our public forgets so soon. And so we are never secure—never really care-free. It is perhaps as well, for that same feeling of insecurity helps to keep us ever on the qui vive—alive to each opportunity, offering our best, working our hardest, for the favors of that great, generous public by which we live.

Prepare for Failure.

"To would-be actresses this is the first lesson I would teach. Be prepared for failure—failure is only the beginning of success. And success, with no hardships behind it, is worthless, meaningless. Do not feel when a little success comes that you are 'made,' and your position assured for the rest of time. Believe me, it is not so. Each little triumph is only one tiny victory in a lifelong war. Let it spur you on to fresh efforts—but do not let it cause you to lay down your arms with a feeling of sublime contentment.

"Theaterland is so crowded nowadays. Never has competition been so keen. The competitors are so many—the prizes so few. If you feel you must enter the arena, do so with wide-open eyes—eyes that see the difficulties, hardships and heartbreaks of such a life. Do not begin your stage career blinded by the glamour of the footlights. Look facts in the face, and if you feel you cannot face them turn away from the stage door and try your fortune in other walks of life.

"As I have said, an actress needs imagination, and above all else she must cultivate—if she does not already possess it—a sense of humor. It will be her most precious weapon. Always cling to your sense of humor and the bitterness of theatrical life will lose half its sting. But most valuable of all gifts is health. Good health is our finest possession. You see, an actress living on her nerves—her nervous vitality. She must be always tuned right up to concert-pitch—her mind clear, her brain ready to receive and retain impressions and ideas.

Strain Is Inevitable

"The strain is heavy, but it is inevitable; and the woman who cannot concentrate when pursuing a stage career goes under. My advice to would-be actresses is: Come to the theater prepared to learn anything and everything that is worth learning. Be alert, be punctual, be methodical. Do your work—however slight—to the very best of your ability. Slackers are soon spotted behind the footlights. Let work come first and pleasure second.

"Each for himself,' is the motto in our profession. Value yourself high and force everyone with whom you come in contact to accept that valuation. Self-depreciation is unforgiveable in theaterland. There are hundreds of people ready to run you down—so don't give them a chance. Use the tools in your own basket—the tools nature gave you—and leave other people's tools alone. Learn to form your own opinion, and stick to it; but don't shout it aloud if it is likely to harm you.

"Finally, I consider the stage offers vast opportunities to girls with real talent. Hardships mean so little when there is a definite goal in view. It is those who start this sort of life with vague, aimless ideas who grow tired and faint before the battle is half won. To those with artistic souls the stage holds forth big chances. It provides a life full of interest and amusement. Dark days are inevitable, but they come to every one, in every profession—don't they?

"When I first went on the stage I was fortunate in receiving admirable advice. And now, far from saying 'Don't' to prospective players, I say: 'Do—if you feel you must; but try to understand what you are doing beforehand!' And if anything I have said in these random notes proves of service—why, they will not have been written in vain."

MISS BILLY LONG.

Gossip of Georgians in the Metropolis

By R. S. Carraway,
The Constitution's New York Bureau.

New York, May 3.—(Special.)—James Buchanan Duke with his beautiful Georgia wife and baby, has arrived in London, where they are to make their home.

Mr. Duke, who is said to have amassed a fortune of approximately $75,000,000 in a tobacco business which grew out of a small plant established by Washington Duke, his father, in the little town of Durham, N. C., has purchased the noted and splendid Dorchester house in Park Lane, London, occupied by the late Whitelaw Reid while ambassador to England. Mr. Reid paid $22,500 a year for the rent of this home $5,000 more than his salary as ambassador. The house has been the scene of many notable gatherings of diplomats, statesmen, authors, artists and society folk.

It is understood that the Dukes are to entertain lavishly at Dorchester house. For some time Mr. Duke has been buying costly works of art for his new home. London has waited anxiously for the entrance of Mrs. Duke into its ultra society set.

When Mr. and Mrs. Duke sailed last week on the Mauretania it was said that they intended residing in London, deserting America entirely. This Mr. Duke denied. He said that they would keep their fifth avenue mansion in this city and expected only to spend the summers in the English capital. Besides their beautiful home in New York, the Dukes also have a magnificent country home in North Carolina, second in beauty and splendor to only the Vanderbilt estate at Biltmore, N. C., in the entire south.

Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, former president of the Georgia Woman's Christian Temperance union, who is termed "the greatest woman orator of America," has been in New York all of this week, speaking under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance union of this state. Mrs. Armor has a reputation throughout the south as a speaker of great eloquence and power. She has been called the "Whirlwind Orator," and in her fight for prohibition in Georgia made hundreds of speeches all over the state.

One of the most interesting engagements recently announced is that of Miss Charles Owens, of Atlanta, and Edward B. Hall, of Morristown, N. J., and New York. Miss Owens is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Owens, of Atlanta. She is very popular in southern societ, as well as in this city, where she frequent, having won "the blue" at horse shows at Lexington, Ky.; Asheville, N. C.; Knoxville, Tenn., and Atlanta. Miss Owens is a talented amateur actress, having taken one of the leading rol.s in "Trelawney of the Wells" when i was presented by the Atlanta Players' club. Mr. Hall is a son of Edward J. Hall, of Morristown, and has business connections in New York. The marriage is scheduled for June.

A marriage which will be of much interest to Savannah was that of Miss Alethea A. Burroughs, formerly of that city, to Horace W. Avery, Jr., of Detroit, Mich., which was solemnized at Trinity church, in this city, Monday afternoon. The bride is the oldest daughter of the late Joseph W. Burroughs, of Savannah, and has been living in New York with her mother for the past year. Her grandfather, Colonel Bryan, was one of the most noted writers of the southern press, and is well remembered in Savannah and Thomasville, where he and his family made their home for many years.

Mr. Avery, who for a number of years has made New York his home, having business interests here, comes from a prominent Michigan family. After a honeymoon trip he and his bride will be at home in this city.

Miss Reva Marie Ritch, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas Ritch, of this city, and John Leneau Tonnele, Jr., also of this city, were married before a brilliant assemblage at the Calvary Baptist church by the Rev. Dr. Robert MacArthur, pastor emeritus. After the ceremony a reception was held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Plaza.

Dr. MacArthur, formerly of Atlanta, who officiated at the marriage of the bride's parents twenty-two years ago, came from London to perform the ceremony.

Miss Katherine Ellis, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Kenneth S. Murchison, in this city, has returned to her home in Atlanta. Mr. and Mrs. Murchison will spend the summer at Narragansett pier in their cottage, and Miss Ellis is planning another visit with them there later in the season.

Word was received in New York this week that a memorial is to be erected in Washington in honor of General Robert M. Lee, the oldest daughter of which is to be a statue of heroic size of the confederate general. Emerson McMillan, a banker of this city, has donated $50 for the work.

Mr. McMillan admitted the project had been under consideration for some time, but had been temporarily abandoned owing to obstacles which could not at present be overcome.

The dinner on Wednesday at the Hotel Plaza of the members of the Southern society of New York, the Northwestern society and the Progressive Economic club, all for the general discussion of Greater New York's improvement, was an unique affair closing the social and club season. Public Service Commissioner Edward E. McCall gave an address on the plans he has been interested in with regard to the new subway. Timothy L. Woodruff and ex-Senator Charles A. Towne also made speeches. Colonel William DeHertburn Washington, president of the West Virginia Society of New York, acted as toastmaster. Mrs. J. Hedges Cromwell designed and arranged the floral decorations for the guest table, which was in honor of the Republic day, so named as the anniversary of Washington taking the oath of office, in red and white roses in combination with blue moire ribbons, the center showing an American shield. "Niola," the Greek dancer, gave her "Dance of the Dove," and the Indian Legend Dances. At the close of the speaking for the evening, there was a general dance and reception.

Among the former Georgians, all members of the Southern society, who attended were: Colonel and Mrs. John Temple Graves, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adamson, Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Berg, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Woolfolk, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Williams, Dr. Julian P. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Bedell Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones Peabody, Mr. and Mrs. William V. Lifsey, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Hartridge, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Randall Hammond, Mr. James E. Graybill, Mr. Lemar L. Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dudley, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Corbin and Mr. C. Brewster C. man.

Mrs. Walter L. McClintock, of Pittsburg, is at the Hotel Wolcott after having been in Augusta, Ga., her winter home, since the holidays, and will leave for her sumer home in Castine, Me., next week.

"A Russian Honeymoon" was presented by the pupils of the Gardner school on Friday evening at the Aerial theater. The play was staged by Miss Alice Cushing Hartley, and the proceeds are to be devoted to the Lincoln tablshed for the education of the tablished for the education of the southern mountaineers.

A number of Georgians, including Colonel Harvie Jordan and Miss Emma Jordan, of Atlanta; Miss Louise Vincent, of Athens, and C. W. Hillhouse, of Sylvester, sailed Saturday on board the liner Saxonia for Genoa and Naples.

Mrs. Belle Melle, of Atlanta, was a passenger on board the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm when she sailed Tuesday for Bremen and other German ports.

Dr. J. E. Walker and Mrs. Walker, of Macon, sailed Thursday on board the liner Cincinnati for an extended trip abroad.

S. J. Dannenberg and W. J. Juhan, of Macon, were among the Georgia buyers in the city during the present week.

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

Virginia, by Ellen Glasgow, author of of "The Deliverance" and "The Voice of the people."

This book is not out tonight out in May, the beautiful spring month, but at a time when the "Woman movement" is being seriously discussed north and south.

This novel deals with woman's position in modern life, setting forth a story so typical and so true to its time that few there will be who will not recognize types and conditions depicted therein.

For a long time Miss Glasgow has been known as a serious novelist, whose readers have taken her work as seriously as she has meant it. Now at the beginning of the announcement of "Virginia" she appears as one of the authoritative spokesman of the woman movement in America and debating as it does the position of woman in modern life, it must necessarily take its place in the general discussion. "Virginia," the title of the book, is also the name of Miss Glasgow's heroine, and part of the plot is laid in the state of Virginia, at the time when woman was beginning to emerge from the mists of reconstruction days. "As Arnold Bennett has immortalized 'The Five Towns,' so Ellen Glasgow has caught and set in lasting mould, the civilization of "Virginia." "Doubleday, Page & Co., New York.

The Heart of a Soldier, as revealed in the intimate letters of General George Pickett. These love letters of a great general were written from the battlefields of the civil war by one of its most famous commanders. Fifty years ago today General Pickett wrote the following letter to the beautiful young girl, La Salle Corbell, who afterwards became his wife, warning her to leave the danger zone:

"Hopling, my darling, that you heeded your soldier's admonition, and are now safe across the 'Black Water,' I am taking the risk of sending to you at Ivor, by my boy servant, Bob, little box of dulces and a note filled with adoration.

"My orders to follow Hood's division have been countermanded. Hood was hurried on from the 'Black Water' by rail to rejoin Marse Robert, who has just gained a great victory at Chancellorsville. I am ordered instead to proceed at once with three of my brigades to Petersburg, via the Jerusalem-Plank road, to intercept a cavalry raid.

"Perhaps I shall have met these raiders ere this reaches you. Who knows how many of us may then hear the roll call from the other side and be sorry? But sorry for whom? For the comrades who answer to their names and are reported present, or for those whose spirit voices, just born, have not yet gained the power to reach the ear of the orderly, and who are reported dead, even though they, too, answer 'here?' For, my darling, there is no death, and you must feel, must know, now and always, that whether here or there, at the roll call your soldier answers, 'here.'

The Air Pilot. By Randall Parrish. The recent international aviation meet in Chicago is the starting point of Mr. Parrish's latest novel, whose hero, Lieutenant Philip Dessaud, of the French army, is th einventor of an improved military aeroplane. Why his machine was withdrawn from the contest at the last moment and lost to sight, and why its inventor disappeared mysteriously, are the questions answered in an exciting and interesting story of the loyalty to Dessaud of a young American newspaper woman, who balks a plot to steal the secret of his invention. (A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago.)

Thorney. By Alexander Black. Author of "Miss Jerry," etc. Frontispiece by Orson Lowell. The creation of those fresh and lovable characters, has, as usual, given you something worth reading. The Quarry. By John A. Moroso. A very remarkable story of an innocent country boy while seeking work in New York, is arrested for the murder of a night watchman of a bank. Mr. Moroso, whose interesting and realistic short stories of crime have been appearing in several of the leading magazines, has shown in this book his intimate knowledge of police methods and prison system, and in this it serves as a background for a very engrossing story. (Little, Brown & Co., Boston.)

MISCELLANEOUS BOOKS.

Lives of the Players By William Winter. A very attractive frontispiece of the picture of Tyrone Power. The first of a series of delightful books by the Dean of Dramatic Critics, in which intimate and most interesting personalia is blended with illuminative criticism and comment relative to the labors and lives of living actors of America. "Mr. Winter, the author, whose place in the life and art of his age is unique, and the records of his best years have, for a long time, been looked for with the greatest interest." (Moffat, Yard & Co., New York.)

Sardou and the Sardou Plays. By Jerome Hart. Very little has been written about Victorien Sardou in either French or English. The first part of this book is devoted to a biographical sketch of the playwright of Sardou; the second is made up of analyses of some two score of the Sardou plays—not critical but narrative analyses. Most of the first productions of the Sardou plays in the United States were made in New York. (J. B. Lippincott Company, New York.)

The Civil War and Reconstruction in Florida. By William Watson Davis, Mr. Davis is a southerner and a native of Florida, after an exhaustive historical, research, presents the almost forgotten truth concerning the most tragic and vital period of Florida's record history. (Longmans, Green & Co., New York.)

American Patriotism and Other Social Studies. By Hugo Munsterberg. Professor of psychology in Harvard University. The nine chapters which compose this book, the latest contribution to the literature of America in his studies of present-day civilization, are as follows: I. American Patriotism. II. The Educational Unrest. III. The Case of the Reporter. IV. The War Germany. V. The German Woman. VI. Coeducation. VII. Household Sciences. VIII. The Germans at School. IX. Psychology and the Navy. The book is most timely and important. (Moffat, Yard & Co., New York.)

When I Was a Boy in Greece. By George Demetrios. Fourth title in "Children of Other Lands Series." Illustrated by John A. Huybers, and with a photogravha. The young Greek boy came but recently from Macedonia and is a protege of the artist, John Alfred Huybers, who has prepared his story for publication. A most interesting version of the customs, with the home and school life, tasks and pleasures of a real boy in a land strange to us. The book is highly interesting for even very young readers. (Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., Boston.)

Our Neighbors: The Japanese. This is the first volume from a new series to be called Our Neighbors' Series. By Joseph King Goodrich. The Japanese will be followed by "The Chinese," etc. (F. G. Browne & Co., Chicago.)

Old China and Young America. By Sarah Pike Conger. Mrs. Conger is the wife of the minister to China, and has had a splendid opportunity to come very close to the Chinese people; she also claims a personal friendship with the empress dowager. Mrs. Conger won popularity through her interesting "Letters from China," covering her experiences in Peking. (F. G. Browne & Co., Chicago.)

Labrador. By Wilfred T. Grenfell and others. This book on the country and the people of Labrador is interesting history. Mr. Grenfell says: "Having selected for myself a role in life that compels me to pass most of my days along the coasts of Labrador, I have come to love the rugged fastness of my adopted country. The coming granary for the world's wheat supply was yesterday despised as 'the Land of the Saints,' the subsoil of the world's best wheat land forever thaws out, and the frozen valley of the Peace river is vying with the 'Corn Lands of the Pharaohs.'" (The MacMillan company, New York.)

The Bend in the Road. By Truman A. DeWeese. A book of special interest in the spring of the year, for it is written to show the man who spends his whole life in the city the way to health and contentment by owning a "country place," either large or small. While riding through the country in an automobile brings a certain mental and, I might add, spiritual elation for those who have been penned up in the city, it does not take one in close relationship with the vital forces of nature. It is not satisfying and is not a part of the country life movement." The book was written to help the city man find "the bend in the road," and having found it to rest contentedly half of the year at least in his "country place." (Harper & Bros., New York.)

The Farmer of Tomorrow. By Frederic Irving Anderson. The author has sought to bring together in one volume a popular consideration of the two fundamental factors affecting the business of farming first, the floor space of the American farmer in terms of land, and, second, the resources of the land itself. (MacMillan company.)

"Meet Me at Gettysburg," Says Veteran to War-Time Foe Who Did Him Kindness

Offering to pay the expenses to the Gettysburg reunion of a confederate soldier who did him a kindness during the war, a veteran of the union army named Graham Coulter has written to The Constitution from Warren, Ohio, asking aid in the search for his erstwhile friend and foe.

Mr. Coulter says he has remembered all these years the kindness of the confederate who had him in charge as a prisoner on the train from Andersonville to Charleston, S. C., about the last of September, 1864, who supplied one of his charges with vegetables and also rode with him on the top of a box car during the entire trip. The first night out was spent lying in the woods while the train stood on a side track near by. On the following morning he furnished me a most bountiful supply of vegetables for my own large haversack. There are also many other small affairs which occurred during the trip that he will undoubtedly remember.

Should he see this and will communicate with me in such a manner that I can identify him I will be glad to send him transportation to the Gettysburg peace celebration to be held during the coming July and entertain him during its continuance.

If you can in any way get this before the confederate camp I would be greatly pleased.

ADS IN NEWSPAPERS ARE BEST FOR COLE

107 Per Cent Increase in Business for Auto Factory as Result of Using Dailies.

Articues have been written, sales arguments have been advanced, but one of the most concrete examples of the valuation of localized newspaper advertising copy is contained in a statement issued by the Cole Motor Car company, of Indianapolis, in their monthly house organ, the Cole Bulletin which states that a 107 per cent increase in Cole business has resulted thus far this year in comparison to the same period last year.

Stating that the Cole policy of handling the moving of factory production by the consolidation of the sales and advertising department under one head with an advertising expert at its head, a former newspaper man, Homer McKee the Cole Bulletin says the methods employed have been economical as well as successful.

The Cole Motor Car company during the present fiscal year have spent nine-tenths of their annual advertising appropriation in newspaper advertising. They believe in localizing their advertising along the same line that a city editor would handle a story that came from a distant city but with a local end to it. This, the Cole officials say, has had the greatest effect in stimulating interest loacly in Cole. The company also makes a strong point of the low expense of newspaper advertising and of the actual results. The statement is made that on advertising where a coupon for a Cole Blue Book has been appended to an advertisement that the answers came not only from people who were directly interested, but from prospects who laid the Blue Book away for future reference.

"In many cases," Mr. McKee says, "we have been able to till soil with these prospects. By tilling the soil I mean applying intensified salesmanship and getting the prospect to see the business side of possessing a motor car."

As a result of the success that the Cole people have had in their localized newspaper advertising campaigns, it is stated on good official grounds they have decided to increase their business in that direction. This means, it is further claimed, that they can double their production figures without increasing their advertising appropriation.

This plan, which has been worked out without a sales manager, has caused a great deal of favorable comment in the automobile industry and has already given a number of large manufacturers food for thought in the same direction.

EASTER EGG HUNT DRAWS SMALL CROWD

The annual Easter-egg hunt given by the park commission at Grant park was enjoyed by a numner of children yesterday afternoon. The long delay of the hunt after Easter, and the fact that the entertainment is not quite as popular as it has been in the past, caused a number of children not to be as large as on former occasions. Those present seemed to enjoy the outing thoroughly.

There were prizes, and those who found the special eggs were proud of their good luck.

STUDEBAKER MEN TO SHARE PROFITS AS STOCKHOLDERS

Operating great plants in Detroit and South Bend with a capitalization of many millions and turning out annually more automobiles and horse-drawn vehicles than any other organization in the world, the Studebaker corporation has put into effect a plan whereby certain of its employees may become stockholders and share in the profits of the concern.

The plan, which was adopted at a meeting of the board of directors, here on April 1, is simple. It provides, after dividends shall have been earned on the preferred, and on the common stock, that a fund hall be set apart for the purchase, at market price, of common stock of the corporation to be held in trust for three-year periods and then distributed with its earnings among participating employees.

Details of the plan explain rules affecting employees who might die, retire on account of age or leave the service of the corporation. An equitable system has been devised whereby the rights of all are conserved.

The fund is to be set apart from the assets of the corporation and is to be administered by a board composed of: First vice president, general manager, treasurer and assistant general manager at Detroit, the manager of works at South Bend and an official selected from the officers of the trust company that may be selected as custodian of the fund.

The proportion of excess net profits to be set apart each year, is most generous. The stock so purchased is to be held for three years and then, with its earnings, is to be distributed on a carefully worked-out plan bearing a relation to the salaries of the various participating employees.

The fund is to be known as "The Employees' Profit Sharing Fund of the Studebaker Corporation." Ultimately, the disbursement of the fund may mean a bonus equal to 20 per cent or more of the salaries of participating employees. The plan does not affect the salary of any employees. The maximum salaries are paid in all departments. Thes plan does, however, more closely identify certain employees with a successful outcome of business, and will make effective all possible opportunities for increasing efficiency in departments. The express intention is to develop throughout the Studebaker organization the helpful spirit of team work and a higher and more efficient co-ordination of all departments.

Inviting employees to share in the profits of a corporation is a milestone *along the path of progress of Americ*an business life. Its larger effect will be to draw together in closer bonds, employer and employee and to make them work in unison.

An Abridged Bible.

(From The Gallipolis Tribune.)

An abridged Bible is being advocated —one that will contain only the vital parts of the great book, and that omits hundreds of pages of matter now not read at all, except by students. No doubt such a Bible would become instantly popular, because it would all be interesting and to the point. In this age, none except students will wade through very long books. Everybody wants the truth boiled down to the very shortest space. The great story of the crucifixion is told in very few words, and all the essentials of the Bible for the average person could easily be covered in one-fifth the pages required for the whole work.

News Wise and Otherwise Of Boys Who Put 'Em Over

Someone called Mr. LaHatte, Cole agent, on the phone the other day. The conversation was as follows:

"Hello! Coal office? How much for coal?"

"Fully equipped?

"I suppose so."

"Twenty-four hundred dollars—"

At this point in the conversation a scream was heard and a dull thud at the other end of the line. Next day the daily papers told how the attendants at the asylum were obliged to put in a straight-jacket a wild-eyed little man who kept repeating these words:

One ton, twenty-four hundred; two tons forty—freeze! freeze! freeze!"

Non-Skid Tires.

The tremendous strides made in the automobile industry during the past five years has naturally developed similar activity, improvement and progress in accessory lines. This is especially true of pneumatic tires, and of these the non-skid stands out prominently as having reached a remarkable state of high-grade construction, durability and safety. Notwithstanding, therefore, the new devices brought out from time to time and offered as efficient substitutes, the dependable non-skid tire is steadily growing in favor and the demand and output rapidly increasing from year to year. Conspicuous among these is the Federal Ringed Tread, which, since its advent, and on account of its extra heavy studs, exceptional thickness of tread, and distinctive sturdy appearance, has obtained a strong hold on the preferences of motorists everywhere.

In this connection, it is interesting to note that the Federal Rubber Manufacturing company of Milwaukee, makers of Federal tires, have just announced a substantial reduction in prices—made possible by the exceptionally heavy demand and consequent increased production facilities during the past year. This reduction will enable car owners to make a material saving on Federal tires, which are widely and popularly known as tires of "extra service."

Baseball in the West.

The baseball fan of the east has the idea that the only real baseball "bug" inhabits the territory surrounding the big league cities. Evidence to the fact that there are others that get that feeling of wanting to go out, yell, tear up bats and generally go crazy, is apparent of the following:

Business in Portland, Ore., the afternoon of the opening game, was at a halt.

A parade composed of the leading citizens of that city who filled cleverly decorated motor cars paraded through the streets for two hours, and terminated at the ball grounds. The procession was led by Mayor Rushlight and Judge Morrow, of Portland, and his majesty, Ralph W. Denges, supreme director of the grand lodge of Moose, of New York, in a Paige car, decorated with American flags. This demonstration is characteristic of all large towns on the western coast and only goes to show that the great national game has taken just as firm a hold of the people in the west as in the east.

Motor Car Test.

A most unusual motor car test was made last week when Teddy Tetzlaff, the great racing driver, went for a drive over the country roads of California in a Cartercar. Tetzlaff has always driven the most powerful geared racing cars he could secure, but when he drove the Cartercar up 50 per cent grades and on the rough country roads at a rate of 55 miles an hour he was astonished and enthusiastically exclaimed that the car was a wonder.

Tetzlaff is an expert mechanician, but he would hardly believe that such efficiency could be embodied in such a simple car. The Cartercar is the car that has been attracting so much attention because of its ability to climb 50 per cent grades and carry a full load at the time.

This was the first car to adopt successfully the simple form of gearless transmission, and although it has not been pushed to any great extent, it is today one of the most popular medium priced cars.

"We only have one man in our complaint department," says Mr. Harry R. Radford, vice president and general manager of the Cartercar company, "and he is going to be transferred and his work added to the duties of the assistant sales manager."

ALCO WITH RECORD OF 145,000 MILES IN RELIABILITY RUN

A notable entry in what promises to be one of the greatest motoring contests ever held is that of an Alco car with a 145,000-mile record in the Chicago to Boston non-stop reliability run, June 25-29. The car is entered by its owner, Harry Wissering, head of a large railway supplies house in Chicago.

Although Mr. Wissering has driven his car on an average of 24,000 miles a year for the past six years, he is confident of pulling through with a clean score and thereby qualifying for some of the prizes. He declare that the motor is running as well as ever, and that every part of the mechanism is fit for the strenuous ordeal of four days and four nights' continuous running. Mr. Wissering himself will drive the car the night controls.

This contest will be held under the auspices of the Chicago Automobile club, with the co-operation of the Bay State Automobile association, of Boston, and the Motor Dealers' Contest association of New York. Fifteen-minute stops are provided for at South Bend, Toledo, Erie, Rochester, Albany and New York city, with other controls along the route, for the purpose of changing crews and replenishing with fuel and water.

According to the schedule mapped out, the run from Chicago to Boston, 1,976 miles, will be covered in 43 hours of actual running time, so that the cars will be forced to maintain an average of more than 18 miles an hour on the road.

MOTHER AND SISTER SOUGHT BY RUSHTON

"Can any reader of the Constitution tell me of the whereabouts of my mother, Mrs. Pickens Rushton, and my sister, Lilah Rushton, last seen in Augusta, Ga.?"

This is the substance of a letter sent the Constitution by Hubert Rushton, of St. Matthews, S. C. The writer states that he has seen neither for the past ten years, and would greatly appreciate if any reader of the Constitution would inform him of them. They are thought to be in some Georgia town, but have not been heard of for some time.

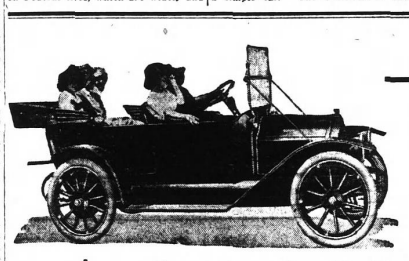
Service Satisfaction



Handsome Is as Handsome Does

Velie Cars are as Good as They Look

The name insures the quality. That's what you want in the car you buy—Quality. You get it in a Velie.

Here's a car that backs up its handsome appearance by a matchless performance. It is an impressive looking car that appeals to every man who appreciates the best.

Ownership of a Velie is proof of one's discernment. The car has grace and grit—sheer mechanical nerve—and sniffs at obstacles that hold back other motor cars.

It isn't a hot-house plant—good only for city streets. You can depend on it up the meanest hill; through the deep sand and mud. It isn't a mountain of a car that blocks traffic while it turns. But it is big enough and strong enough to serve you efficiently 365 days in the year at the least possible cost.

Three Models Each Fully Equipped

And fully equipped when coupled with the name Velie means just what it should mean—the actual presence of every part promised on paper.

The Velie, this season, is the same in its foundation that it has been for years—solid, substantial basis tried and proved true by its many owners. The changes have been along refinement and added conveniences.

There's the Gray and Davis Electric Starting and Lighting system. The starter is a six-volt, and positive under all weather conditions. Simple, light and compact, it starts the heaviest motor made, from a push on the foot button. Starter is automatically released when the engine "picks up."

The Lighting System—Gray & Davis Generator hung on an adjustable bracket—furnishes current for five lamps and storage battery. It is enclosed and kept free from dust as are practically all of the Velie operating parts.

You find these systems on the most expensive cars because there is as yet no better starting and lighting systems made. From these three models you can easily select the one that suits you best—that best fits your needs. And remember this, please, that your wife or any other woman can drive a Velie car with ease anywhere. That is why so many Velies are being bought by and for women in preference to any other gasoline car made today.

Velie 40, 4 and 5 Passenger $2000

Is a dignified and dependable car for the family. It seats four comfortably and five without crowding. It is perfectly proportioned and properly balanced. Every mechanical part is subjected to numerous tests and the car as a whole is proved before your purchase and confirmed by you after.

This 40 offers you a mode of travel—whether for short spins around town or long trips—that for comfort convenience and safety is not equaled.

Velie 32, Model R $1500

A light-weight car possessed of wonderful strength. It is the new type of car that combines all the strength of heaviest construction with marvelous flexibility.

Like all other Velie models it has the left-hand drive. All driving strains and road shocks are absorbed by a spring torsion arm anchored to the rear axle housing. Double drop frame, underslung 49-inch full scroll ¾-elliptic rear springs, deep tilted genuine leather cushions and the unusual roominess of front and rear compartments are but details tending toward the development of this new type of car.

Velie Roadster, $1450

An ideal runabout of great speed and durability. A special favorite with younger drivers who like to care for their own cars. All parts are instantly accessible, as, for example, the pistons may be removed from the bottom of the crank case without disturbing the cylinders, wires, water pipes or other connections.

M. & M. ASSOCIATION MEETS; MERCHANTS' WEEK PLANNED FOR THREE COMING SEASONS

Much Enthusiasm Aroused at Tuesday's Meeting—Association Decides to Make Entertainment for Visiting Merchants Regular Season Event—Three Thousand Dollars Already Subscribed.

At the semi-annual meeting of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association, held last Tuesday at the Piedmont hotel, it was decided to hold a special merchants' week next August, similar to the one held in August, 1912. Not satisfied with this, however, the association went further and decided to hold the spring convention in February, 1914, and also the fall convention in August, 1914. The feeling was that by making arrangements for the three conventions at the one time, it would save a great deal of discussion and detail work which is incurred when the arrangements have to be made every six months, and it would also insure the holding of the conventions for at least three seasons, which would give the association a much better chance to see how the idea worked out and to get the benefit of cumulative results.

At the convention, held last August, there were about two thousand visiting merchants who registered, and, while there was no convention held last February, yet there were many merchants who came here to make their spring purchases, and there was a good business done by the members of the association and business men of the city generally. The feeling expressed at the meeting Tuesday night, however, was that it was a pity that the February convention had been skipped this year. It was stated that the merchants should always feel that the Atlanta market is waiting for them and expecting them and that it is only by this regularity of conventions that the merchants who should come to this market can get into the habit of coming here. As one speaker expressed it, "when a man gets into the habit of buying in a certain market it takes a mighty strong slam to change him, and the Atlanta merchants should make these conventions such a regular feature of every season that the merchants will make their arrangements ahead to come here at those times and make their season's purchases."

A subscription was started at the meeting for the purpose of raising the entertainment funds, and the ready response showed the amount of faith the members have in the benefit of these conventions. Over three thousand dollars was raised for the convention in August next, and all those who subscribed pledged themselves to give a like amount in August, 1914, and at least 50 per cent of the amount for the February, 1914 convention.

Popularity!

The Atlanta Merchants and Manufacturers' association decided last week that they would hold Merchants' week here for the next three buying seasons—August, 1913, and February and August, 1914. They invite every southern merchant to come here when buying, and guarantee a royal reception, and, what is more to the point, the best market to buy in for all southern retailers.

LEADING DRY GOODS FIRM MAKES CHANGES

Dougherty-Little-Redwine Co. Changes Personnel of Officers at Stockholders' Meeting.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Dougherty-Little-Redwine company held yesterday, the president of the company, J. S. Dougherty, rendered his resignation. This was rendered necessary by Mr. Dougherty's new interests as president of the newly organized Silvey & Dougherty Hat company.

Mr. Dougherty's resignation was, perforce, regretfully accepted, and the necessary changes in the officers of the company were made to fill the gap caused by his leaving, as well as that of D. O. Dougherty, who also resigned his position as a director in the company. The personnel of the company is now as follows:

J. R. Little, president; L. E. Redwine, vice president, and H. D. Carter, secretary-treasurer. G. W. Little and Dr. H. F. Harris were elected directors and they, with the two old directors, J. R. Little and H. D. Carter, will form the new board.

The Dougherty-Little-Redwine company has won for itself a splendid reputation for its reliability and enterprise. That they will continue to grow in every way is a foregone conclusion to those who know the men who form the company.

They have recently sold their storehouse on North Pryor street and will shortly move to new quarters which they will build for themselves.

T. P. A. JOTTINGS

We believe that California is right, let it be Japanes or any other-nese within her sacred precincts, when she decides that foreign individuals who have not been naturalized cannot hold land within her confines.

God and my rights, this government should consider what is best for this country before it takes into consideration what is right for that of another country.

If the crusade could bring about better wages, and show employees how to save their money, it would mean more homes, less vice, more health, less disease, more virtue, less prostitution, more divine womanhood, less wretchedness, less deceit, fewer lies, more truth and great independence.

We believe that the man who saves his money will save himself.

As the sunlight of reason rises, we see that the wisdom of this day is tomorrow's madness, clouds of falsehood disappear and truth is revealed—plain truth that helps us on from day to day. People in each age back to the year one with their temples and gods, have tried to sway mankind forever, but all have perished one by one, and so will it be with the present-day fanatic.

The greatest, grandest and most glorious thing about an honest man is not so much what he believes as the fact that he will harm no one behind closed doors or any where else, but always in the open to say and do what he thinks is best. God bless an honest man, for if he has a grudge he will face his adversary.

Why don't you send in that application to the Travelers' Protective association for an accident policy? It costs only $11 a year and is the best ever written.

The Travelers' Protective association believes in freedom, justice and good will toward all men.

"Under the roses the blue; under the lillies the gray," and love for all.

Hurrah for "Rifle Shots!" We certainly appreciate comment No. 1 and comment No. 2, found in last Sunday's article. They are glorious and the writer of T. P. A. Jottings wishes to inform Mr. Smith we are very much with him in his kind remarks on the Hon. Hoke Smith. Every true man who desires that the United States make progress that is permanent, healthy and beneficial should give Senator Smith their best support.

Mr. Shackelford, we agree with you in wanting a hotel inspector. It will be the means of keeping down dirt and disease and otherwise ridding filthy unsanitary places, where the traveling man is compelled to stop, of these objectionable features. Those who are striving to give satisfaction by having clean, well-ventilated rooms, screened doors and windows, properly cooked food and good service will not object to the coming of a hotel inspector.

Post B regrets very much to loose Mr. Sam Jones as chairman of the railroad committee, who resigned. Mr. Wardlaw, who is also a capable and efficient gentleman, was elected in Mr. Jones' place.

We are looking forward to June 9, when all the delegates will meet in national convention at Richmond, Va. Another step towards the brotherhood of man.

One hundred and twenty new members received since the Albany convention, one month ago. Almost enough to get two more delegates. On with the good work.

Why should anyone eligible hesitate sending in their application for membership to the Travelers' Protective association when $11 pays for an accident policy that would cost $25 in any old-line company? Just as good, if not better.

We missed our president, Mr. T. G.

A CATCHY SONG FOR SOUTHERN MERCHANTS

Everybody Is Invited to Join in Chorus of New Song Issued by M. & M. Association.

The Merchants and Manufacturers' association have recently issued a pamphlet containing a catchy set of verse entitled, "If You Keep a Store."

This is reproduced herewith. Anybody who desires to secure a copy can do so by communicating with Harry T. Moore, secretary of the association, with offices in the Rhodes building:

"If you keep a store in Hometown and oyu stock it up with stuff bought from far and distant places, just the local trade is built; if you skip the nearby market and you travel far to buy, is it fair to scold the natives if the same trick they should try?

Buy in Atlanta.

"If you pay out extra dollars for big big freights and travel too, if you spend your local coney in a section far from you; if you boost the far-off market by bestowing there your trade, can you kick if local patrons follow out the plan you've laid?

Buy in Atlanta.

"If within your own home section there's a town of life and shape, in which town they do a business that has put it on the map; if this town can furnish to you merchandise exactly right, don't you think it's—well, shortsighted, if that town you calmly slight?

Buy in Atlanta.

"If you have, in easy distance, base of requisite supplies, don't you think you ought to buy there? That's the place for you—get wise. Here's ATLANTA good and ready, with the goods you need to buy; from her factories strong and steady she can Dixie's wants supply.

Buy in Atlanta.

"She can furnish shoes and shovels, silks and syrup, shirts and strings, overalls and hats and cockatoo-at-yes, a thousand other things. She can furnish fads and fancies, clothes to wear and food to eat—everything, in short, that's needed to make up your stock complete.

Buy in Atlanta.

"If you come and see these factories where they make this goodly stuff you would say, 'This town's a wonder—she's alright, she's good enough.' You would realize instanter that Atlanta, close at home, is the place for southern merchants—there's no need for them to roam.

Buy in Atlanta.

"What's the use of plodding northward, going west or traveling east, when within so short a distance, right at home, there's such a feast? What's the gain to you in going far away at costly rates, when besides the cost of going, there's the added cost of freights?

Buy in Atlanta.

"Styles you get in eastern markets are no newer, no more chic than the styles Atlanta offers—fresh and novel, take your pick. Modes that find their birth in Paris transplanted overnight, vogues and models everchanging—here you find them—always right.

Buy in Atlanta.

"There's no quarrel with the styles, then; for Atlanta has them all—men's and women's, lads' and lasses'—for the springtime and the fall; in no town the country over can you beat Atlanta's lick; when it comes to showing fashions, she's unrivalled, keen and quick.

Buy in Atlanta.

"In Atlanta there are rivals, eager for your steady trade; competition sharp and lively—so the prices right are made. Thus, besides the great assortments and the varied lines to choose you can buy on closer margins—all you gain and nothing lose.

Buy in Atlanta.

"Yet, while rivals, we're a unit in the matter of OUR, TOWN; so we join our hands together and we set this message down: COME TO SEE US, LET US SERVE YOU; LET US SHOW YOU, GOOD AND STRONG, IF YOU THINK YOU HAVE TO TRAVEL FAR TO MARKET, YOU ARE WRONG!

Buy in Atlanta.

"And to make the point a clearer one, firmly fixed within your mind; PENSES, when to buying you're INJENSES, when to buying you're inclined, if you come and in ATLANTA lay in adequate supply. You will find our deal a square one—here's our word. Come on—Good Buy."

A mother who was frequently called from more important affairs to remove from her Johnny's pockets melted tar, collections of sat-upon cherries, angleworms, suffocated toads of uncertain date, broken birds' eggs, and the like, finally devised the sanitary pockets which are described in The Youth's Companion of May 1.

Post B goes on record as favoring the pulling of mileage on trains over all roads where it will not work a hardship on the companies at 2 cents a mile. And the pulling of mileage, whatever the rate may be, on all trains. Our representatives in congress to be so informed.

The T. P. A.'s have passed through the fires furnace of experience and are now floating upon the wave of prosperity.

Our worthy secretary, Hon. J. H. Andrews, will be glad to inform you all about this good $11-a-year policy. Send in today.

GOVERNMENT IS ASKED TO SETTLE SILK STRIKE

Paterson, N. J., May 3.—An appeal for mediation in the Paterson silk mill strike under the Erdman act is proposed by a group of business men, according to announcement today by George Hilton, lawyer and former judge. The dispute is now closing its tenth week with 15,000 workers on strike.

The appeal to Washington, it was announced, was authorized at a largely-attended meeting of Paterson business men, acting independently of the manufacturers, which brought out expressions that the gravity of the situation demanded that the powers of the federal and state authorities ought to be invoked for relief. The resolution also provided that in the event that the United States lacks authority in the premises the state legislature, which is to meet soon, be requested to investigate the strike and do its utmost to bring about a settlement. In the interim the manufacturers are requested to reopen their mills and the strikers to return to their looms, with the assurance that justice to both sides will be done.

The explosion of a bomb under the front porch of the home of August Miller, a boss dyer, was an incident of the day believed to be connected with the strike troubles. The building was considerably damaged, but no one was injured.

The "Hump" on Whitehall Street Which Will Be Removed

Scene showing Whitehall street, looking north from a point between Garnett street and Trinity avenue. The steep grade is shown, which will be removed when the street is regraded. At this point a cut of eight feet will be made and the dirt will be used to fill the hollow at Brotherton street. The steepness of the hill can be realized by the way in which the vehicles disappear from sight. When the street is improved the view looking south will present as many handsome buildings as are shown in the picture above, looking towards the center of the city.

Remarkable Operation.

(Washington Cor. New York World.)

A sensation among the medical men at the capital is that by an operation performed on La Four Raymond, of this city, by Dr. Robert H. M. Dawbarn, of New York, young Raymond, afflicted from childhood with a crippled left hand, was given an entirely new hand—normal and useful, made out of a piece of his own back. An idea of how thoroughly successful the surgical effort has been may be gleaned from the fact that on Saturday afternoon young Raymond was out with his chums playing baseball and using both hands in catching and throwing the ball.

Raymond is the son of Dr. J. U. Raymond, of Washington. He burned his hands while an infant, and, though the right member fully recovered, the left was badly deformed, with all the fingers but the index and middle one seriously contracted. At the age of 3 years an operation partially restored its usefulness, but in time the contractions returned.

Six operations brought no relief, as the tendons had been destroyed by the burning.

Physicians contemplated skin grafting, but decided it would not avail.

Finally the boy was taken to Dr. Dawbarn in New York. He planned the unusual scheme of making for his patient a new hand. He dissected the scar tissue from the palm and fingers of the crippled hand and laid out the thumb and fingers in the natural position. The tendons were lengthened by inserting new tissue in the palm. Then a strip of flesh on the lad's back, slightly above the hip, was raised and the hand slipped under it. This "flap" was sewed to the palm, after which the hand, arm and trunk were covered with a plaster of paris jacket. In this way the hand was carried behind the back for four weeks. Then the upper end of the flesh "flap" was cut loose and stitched to the border of the hand.

One week later the "flap" and hand were released entirely from the back and the "flap" was fashioned to the hand. Grafts of flesh were taken from the thigh to cover the wound on the back of the hand. In the end the boy's hand stood open, the position natural and with no tendency to contraction. The extension and flexion of the fingers and thumb are excellent and the grasp is strong. There is every evidence that the permanence of the result is not to be questioned.

HEAVY CAR TYPE FISK TIRES

Secret Of Fisk Perfection

The exclusive Fisk HEAVY CAR TYPE Construction is responsible for Fisk tire perfection. As the name implies, it is a construction providing surplus strength for the severest strains of heaviest cars. With these strains properly taken care of there can be no question of Greatest Service on lighter vehicles.

The added quality called for by the exclusive HEAVY CAR TYPE Construction means added expense in manufacture, but never once has The Fisk Rubber Company consented to the slightest reduction in the quality of its product. This attitude is responsible for its success today in producing The Tire of Greatest Service.

No-Rim-Cut Tires 10% Oversize

Tire Prices

With our new factories, we have built as high as 6,500 automobile tires daily.

This multiplied output has cut cost of production. And our profits, as usual, are kept down to the minimum.

So prices on No-Rim-Cut tires now average about 11 per cent less than last year.

No Extra

No-Rim-Cut tires now cost no more than any standard clincher tires.

Yet these tires save all the cost of rim-cutting. They save a ruin which wrecks 23 per cent of the hooked-base clincher tires.

And No-Rim-Cut tires are 10 per cent larger—contain 10 per cent more air—than clinchers. And that, with the average car, adds 25 per cent to the tire mileage.

Our Profit

Each year we advertise our profits. That is to show you exactly the value you get in a Goodyear tire.

In times past this profit has averaged about 8¼ per cent. And this year, with our lowered prices, we do not expect to exceed that.

Thus it must be apparent that no tire maker can ever give more for the money.

We have the largest output, the newest factories, the most up-to-date equipment. None can possibly build equal tires at as low cost as we.

None dare sell on smaller margins. None this year show so large a reduction. Those are our ways for keeping cost per mile down to a record minimum. By No-Rim-Cut tires, by oversize tires, by the utmost in quality at an unmatched price. Come share these immense economies.

WHY PRODUCE MEN SHOULD ORGANIZE

Benefits of a Fruit and Produce Exchange Clearly Outlined by Leading Commission Man.

By M. D. Thompson, of the Williams-Thompson Produce and Commission Company.

Produce and commission men of Atlanta have not as yet taken any definite steps towards the organization of a fruit and produce exchange, nor have they reached any agreement to renew operations under the old charter that existed several years ago. Each and every dealer realizes full well the necessity for organization, and the all understand and appreciate the many benefits that an organization of this character offers to producer, dealer and consumer, but as there is a well-developed prejudice in the public mind against a commercial organization of any kind, naturally they hesitate to do anything that is calculated to array public opinion against them, even in the slightest degree. When any body of business men in any particular line of endeavor undertake to organize and the aims and purposes of the union is of the highest standard, it is practically impossible for its existence to be harmful to other lines of business, or to that portion of the consuming public that uses its wares. It is hard to find any line of effort or to imagine any line of business that is as hazardous to operators as the fruit and produce business, as it requires closer attention to details, neither is there any line of business in the United States today that directly affects a greater number of people, consequently any combined or organized effort properly directed by the men at the helm cannot be otherwise than beneficial to consumers as well as to the great army of toilers who produce the goods for them to consume. It would be well for that class of retail grocers and such of their customers as are always ready to yell trust, combines, law-breakers, etc., at the jobbers of fruits and produce upon the slightest intimation that they intend organizing, to stop and consider for a moment the part that these jobbers play in the distribution of these important necessities of life. A jobber or jobbers of fruit and produce is nothing more nor less than the cart or wagon that the grower uses to carry his product to market. They neither produce the merchandise themselves, nor are they enabled to name the price that the goods must sell for. Fruits and produce of all kinds are extremely perishable and must at all times and under all conditions be sold quickly. This being true, and the statement cannot be successfully contradicted, and as supply and demand name the market price of all perishables, and no sensible person can dispute this assertion, how in the name of common sense can a set of dealers or distributors under these conditions establish and maintain a combine or trust for a single hour As set forth at the beginning of this statement, when the public or any portion of it, thinks for a moment that the produce interests of Atlanta contemplate an organization or ever used organized efforts of any kind to manipulate market prices they are badly mistaken. The former produce exchange that existed here was organized upon broader lines, and its usefulness to its members, as well as its helpfulness to producers and shippers that used this market was beyond computing in dollars and cents. Whether or not the produce men of Atlanta will organize again soon is difficult to say at this time, but one thing is certain, and, that is that no combined effort of any business interests in Atlanta would be more beneficial to a greater number of people. The produce interests of Atlanta, as a unit, could and would prevent periodical scarcity of fruit and vegetables and the inevitable high prices that follow and play havoc with so many consumers. They could and would prevent the market from becoming overstocked with these same goods with the resultant low values that wreck the small fortunes of the producer and often leaves him without means to produce another crop or to supply his own family with the necessities of life. The old produce exchange of Atlanta was quite a factor in securing equitable transportation rates from railroads and express company and in securing better delivery service by these same corporations. Its weekly meetings kept the membership in close touch with each other, good fellowship was in evidence at all times and the annual outing in the shape of a barbecue or picnic to which all Atlanta butchers grocerymen, their families and friends were invited, was a feast to be remembered from one occasion to another. It is to be hoped sincerely that the produce men of Atlanta will succeed in organizing at an early date, or before picnic season of this year, a produce exchange on broader lines and with a larger membership than ever before.

E. A Lowry, of the Lowry Fruit and Produce company, states that things are beginning to liven up on Produce Row.

LARGE WHOLESALE HOUSE REORGANIZED ON MAY 1

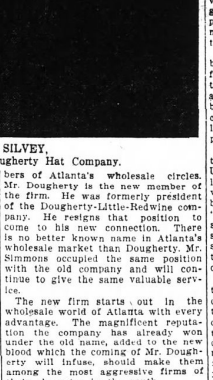
JEROME SILVEY,
President Silvey & Dougherty Hat Company.

The well-known wholesale hat house, which has done business under the name of Silvey-Smith Hat company for many years past, has recently undergone a reorganization. The firm will henceforth be known as the Silvey & Dougherty Hat company. They will continue to do business along the same lines as heretofore, with the exception that they hope to enlarge their scope in the near future.

The officers of the company are now as follows: Jerome Silvey, president; J. S. Dougherty, vice president, and T. L. Simmons, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Silvey was president of the company under its old name, and is known as one of the most progressive and most highly respected members of Atlanta's wholesale circles. Mr. Dougherty is the new member of the firm. He was formerly president of the Dougherty-Little-Redwine company. He resigns that position to come to his new connection. There is no better known name in Atlanta's wholesale market than Dougherty. Mr. Simmons occupied the same position with the old company and will continue to give the same valuable service.

The new firm starts out in the wholesale world of Atlanta with every advantage. The magnificent reputation the company has already won under the old name, added to the new blood which the coming of Mr. Dougherty will infuse, should make them among the most aggressive firms of their character in the south.

TRAVELS TENN. AND KY.



S. P. BELSINGER,
Representing the Atlanta Paper Co.

S. P. Belsinger is sales manager for Tennessee and Kentucky for the Atlanta Paper company. He is an enthusiastic booster for Atlanta, but says one of his chief troubles is that many of the people in his territory don't seem to have any conception of the kind of city Atlanta is. He says that the idea many of them have of a city is Knoxville, Nashville and other small places like that and that he would like to bring them all here for a visit so that they could see what a real city is like.

Nevertheless, Mr. Belsinger is making a reputation for himself with his firm, and the amount of paper, cotton seed boxes, etc., that he sells in a month is a considerable help in proving that Atlanta is as prominent a place as any on the map when it comes to wholesale business.

J. S. Cheek, R. B. McWhorter, D. L. Lassiter, J. L. Yates are among the ins with the Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, and they all report business better both for immediate and future shipments.

A. L. Mitcham, of the Ward-Truitt company, is at home on the sick list. His friends are enquiring daily, and he is expected out again in a day or two.

Bill Quarles, city salesman for Fain & Stamps, states that on account of the mention of "Gold Banner" peaches in these columns last week, that he has hardly been able to keep up with his trade in their demands for those goods.

Amongst the ins this week with the M. C. Kiser Co., are C. E. Kenimer, W. W. Benson, A. L. Diehl, J. G. Addy and N. A. Moss. Mr. Miss is from the Alabama territory and makes his headquarters at Selma in that state.

Secretary Sullivan, of the M. C. Kiser Co., reported that business was good all through and that all their men were sending in plenty of good orders.

TIPS TO SALESMEN OF AD. NOVELTIES

Some Tips for Man Who Is Selling Calendars and Other Advertising Novelties.

By Francis E. Wright.

The salesman who takes upon himself the task of selling advertising novelties without question earns his dollars harder and holds on to them longer; the eagle screams when he spends one.

Before you become "etherized with advertising fever" be secure in presenting a line that has a mild show of promise—for you are going to ask a merchant or manufacturer to buy and pay for something that he must give away and, with only a chance that he "may" get returns. You are in no position to guarantee him the least degree of encouragement aside from reasonable reckoning. Some producers of these advertising novelties seem to think that the question of good salesmanship in a man rest with the results he secures on selling a product that is not for sale. Selling advertising is no business whereby a man can build up a great line for himself, as th task is so great and uncertain that 80 per cent fall out into other lines, giving the merchant the benefit of a new representative on every third trip. Competition in workmanship, price and variety is so great that merchants generally make it a "show down" proposition on a specified date—the man with the best price, prettiest picture, etc., gets the order.

"The least said—the longest remembered." Confine your ads to simple facts, keen with meaning and description with an artistic arrangement and a suitable idea. Every business neighbors different conditions and these conditions are what counts; similar lines at times require different campaigns.

But simplicity must be the motto; take Heinz's fifty-seven varieties—Uneeda—Cocoa-Cola — Stetson—Wrigley's and many other of the leaders, who have attained supreme command by pleasing the eye with the name "and why you should use it." It is the small merchant that forgets that the suffering public get their mail boxes stuffed with long, tedious, descriptive texts every morning and have often come to disregard the missives.

Advertising is done in order to tempt the consumer to taste or try the product. Adding an additional food to the pantry does not necessarily increase the cost of living; just the contrary. People want variety and a change. They will buy if the quality responds to the price asked. Therefore, resort to simplicity and feed on your bilboards, calendars, monthly service, etc., and abstain from fanatical, sensational and nonsensical phrases, as dignity and quality always go together.

When you are negotiating with a merchant or manufacturer and he finds it difficult to get the proper reading, it is your place to assist him. On the other hand, every manufacturer or merchant entertains a special feature in offering his product. Then, ask the question, "Mr. Merchant, pretend I have the money and am in the market for a carload of your floor. Please answer me—Why should I buy from you when I am well pleased with the dealings and concessions I receive from your competitors?" What are the advantages to me?" Then, put his answer in attractive form, not forgetting simplicity on the sign, calendar etc., that he wishes to buy. This method will get for you the respect of your customer, as all men like to meet their equal or superior.

The monetary standing, of course, depends upon results. If he buys large enough to cover a wide area, better results can be looked for. The merchant who appropriates a goodly sum for advertising each year, regardless of the chances of success, is the lucky one in every instance. The electric sign, the billboard, the calendar, etc., are good, substantial advertisers, where th ecigar, blotter, pencil, nail file, etc., are just gifts, and much cannot be expected of them. Yet, poor judgment oftentimes results in a successful issue where a proposition that looks like the winning horse nets nothing.

The merchant knows of the chances better than you. It is unwise to remind him of what he already knows too strongly. It is far better for the advertising salesman to observe what other advertisers are doing. Keep in touch with their issues and instruct his prospect how to proceed cautiously.

All seasons are good for advertising, but it depends largely upon your territory—how many advertising salesmen are working it. Then it's a case of you getting ahead of the other fellow or you lose out.

The man who sells advertising matters must work; he has no special hours. Each day is a new one with him. At night he must lay his plans for the following day. You know you are pledged to get the business, and if you fail you are classified as being good for "some other occupation."

CATERING TO CITY TRADE

Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt Co. Paying Special Attention.

The Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, one of the big wholesale dry goods and notions houses of Atlanta, are paying special attention to the city trade. They carry a stock of staple goods and novelties that appeal to the merchant in the city especially and they have found it exceedingly desirable business to have.

They have two men out in the city selling their goods and report that both are making splendid records for themselves. These gentlemen are W. J. Hayes and C. S. Shiflett. They are hustling young men and have sold many good bills in the past few weeks. Mr. Hayes turned in two opening bills this week and Mr. Shiflett has had his own share of good business. They are running neck and neck for leadership and the race between the two is fast becoming exciting. The company is pleased with their results and reports that they are desirous of the city trade and are well prepared to take care of it.

Bill Quarles, city salesman for Fain & Stamps, has been home sick for a part of the week. He was out Saturday and expects to be in good shape again Monday.

R. E. Dawson, salesman for Jones Bros. & Co., is selling some bills these days. He came into the city Saturday with several carload orders for pickles, jellies, etc., etc.

BIG MANUFACTURER HOLDS RECEPTION-DEMONSTRATION

GIDEON C. JONES,
President Jones Brothers & Company.

The firm of Jones Brothers & Co., manufacturers of vinegars, jellies, preserves, pickles, etc., held a somewhat novel reception last Tuesday. They invited all the retail grocers of the city to visit their factory and see the work of making the goods in actual process. Many of the grocerymen accepted the invitation and found a royal welcome awaiting them at the plant on Peters street. Gideon C. Jones, who is president of the company, met all his visitors at the door and regaled them with tasty samples of the many things his firm puts out. For the thirsty souls there was a keg of "moreish" cider at their disposal.

Then they were taken through the extensive factory and shown the goods actually being put up for the market. The chief impression given was the absolute cleanliness of the place, the employees and of everything connected with the products. One left with the feeling that no home kitchen could produce any cleaner eatables by the widest stretch of the imagination.

The interesting processes connected with the manufacturing of vinegar, cider, pickles and preserves were fully explained and the success of goods under the "Jones" brand was seen to come from the fact that firstly they were prepared right, and secondly the firm did business in the open and were perfectly willing to show all their supposed "trade secrets" to whoever was interested.

This enterprise has only been located in Atlanta for a few months past, and to illustrate how successful they have been, it is only necessary to say that the only difficulty they have experienced has been in getting their goods out fast enough to fill orders. Mr. Jones has made arrangements for the growing of the crops he needs in this locality for next year, and the impetus this will give to the farmers of Georgia will be appreciated by every thoughtful student of agricultural conditions.

CHILE CON CARNE

The ins this week with the Dobbs & Wey company are E. L. Kerrison, from northeast Georgia, and E. H. Janes, from Alabama.

James R. Thornton, with the S. P. Richards company, is still busy on his samples and was found this week with his sleeves rolled up hard at it.

H. D. Lipford, with the Atlanta Paper company, was in this week to help entertain the laundrymen who were here at the convention.

T. A. Gramling, president of the Gramling-Spalding company, has been on the sick list for the greater part of this week, getting down to the office for the first time Friday, when he was there for an hour or two.

Ben Messer, with Fain & Stamps, says that, thanks to the mention of the affair given in these columns, he was able to beat Tom Clyatt in their race for the biggest sales for April. Tom Clyatt says that if The Constitution Firing Line will back him up he will beat Messer for May.

W. E. Rumph, the South Carolina salesman for the Warren Manufacturing company, came in last Monday and has spent the week in the city. Mr. Rumph has just concluded a successful season and is preparing for a bigger one still in the fall.

President B. A. Hancock, of the Dixie Pickle and Preserving company, was found busy Friday last superintending the work of remodeling their plant. It is going to be a beauty when the job is finished.

All salesmen with the Ward Truitt company have now made advance trips and are getting good orders for fall delivery on underwear, sweaters, etc.

C. C. Phillips, with the Capital City Tobacco company, has been busy in the south Georgia territory this week. He has sent in a nice bunch of orders. E. F. Malone, of the company, states that they have no kick whatever coming on business, and that they are still making records every month.

AN EXPLANATION

Item in C. S. A. Column Gave Wrong Impression.

The item referred to in the following letter, unfortunately gave the impression that it was the Jacksonville hotels which were referred to. This was not the case. Mr. McNair, chairman of the committee for the City Salesmen's association, who had the arrangement of the annual excursion in charge, wrote to a resort hotel within the vicinity and failed to make satisfactory arrangements with them. In sending his report to this paper, inadvertently he referred to the hotel as being a Jacksonville hotel, considering it as being included. In justice to the Jacksonville hotels, we take pleasure in correcting the wrong impression made. The following letter from the Jacksonville Board of Trade explains itself:

"Jacksonville, Fla., April 26, 1913.—Editor Constitution: In a recent issue of your paper, April 13, in that part of same entitled, 'The Firing Line,' we notice some reference was made to the project of an excursion to Jacksonville by the Atlanta Salesmen's association, in which they stated that it had been abandoned owing to the fact that the hotel people of this city would not make them satisfactory terms.

"On reading this, we recently took up the matter with the different hotels, and we failed to find that any of them had been approached upon the matter. We would be delighted, indeed, to have a visit from the Atlanta Salesmen's association, and assure you that you can assure them that the hotel people of this city will be only too glad to make favorable rates for them.

"We hope that the injustice done to this city and the Hotel association will be rectified by the editor of the 'Firing Line' as soon as possible. Very truly yours,

"JACKSONVILLE BOARD OF TRADE,
"H. H. RICHARDSON, Secretry."

LATEST REPORTS FROM ALL OF THE MARKETS

NET DECLINE SHOWN BY THE COTTON MARKET

New York, May 3.—The cotton market was quiet today, with prices showing a tendency to ease off from the favorable weather and crop accounts and with the close steady, at a net decline of 3 to 4 points.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 1 point. Liverpool was rather better than due. European political advices were considered more favorable, and private cables from Russian said that spinners there were becoming uneasy over small stocks and might soon be larger buyers of actual. These features, however, appeared to be overshadowed by reports of beneficial rains in the southwest and the receipt of numerous private reports indicating a very favorable start with the new chrop. At any rate, the market gradually eased off, under scattering liquidation and pressure from local or southern sources, with prices showing a net loss of about 6 to 8 points during the middle of the morning.

July contracts sold at 11.43 or fully 30 points below the high level of last Thursday, while October touched 10.88, compared with 11.07, the high point of the week, and 1081, the low record of the season. Covering checked the decline at this level and slight rallies occurred from the lowest, which easily disposed traders claimed that the selling would have been more aggressive on the weather and crop news had it not been for the restraining influence of the usual week-end considerations.

Private cables from Liverpool expressed a favorable opinion of the new crop months on declines.

Cotton, spot, closed quiet; middling uplands, 11.85; middling gulf, 12.10; sales, none.

Dry Goods.

New York, May 3.—Prices on gray cotton goods stiffened a little during the day and higher prices were paid for spot deliveries. Sales are steady and in good demand for immediate uses. The carpet auction continued throughout the day, interest being very well maintained.

Liverpool Cotton.

Liverpool, May 3.—Cotton, spot; moderate business, prices easier. American middling fair 7.22; good middling 6.88; middling 6.83; low middling 6.54; good ordinary 6.20; ordinary 5.80. The sales of the day were 8,000 bales, of which 500 were for speculation and export, and included 7,400 American. Receipts 11,000 bales, including 8,200 American. Futures opened steady and closed steady.

New Orleans Cotton.

New Orleans, May 3.—It was a typical week-end session in the cotton market today. Both sides preferred to even up commitments rather than to increase them. Bears were more aggressive than the bulls and a little selling from them in the early trading served to offset the effect of a very good Liverpool market. Prices moved over a narrow range.

The opening was steady, unchanged to 2 points down, compared with the last quotations of yesterday. No attention was paid to cables, although October stood at a net advance of 1 point around the call.

Bears offered a moderate amount of cotton on the good weather map and prices fell off until they were 2 to 5 points under yesterday's final quotations. From the middle of the morning on the market had a steady tone on the demand from shorts to cover. The close was steady at a net decline of 2 to 3 points.

The weather map noted some little rain in Texas, which bears claimed would be very beneficial. The remainder of the map was dry, although the forecast indicated that rains would probably extend to all parts of the cotton region by Monday morning. It was generally considered that this moisture would be favorable to the crop, but bulls pointed out that a cold wave was following the rains.

Cotton, spot quiet and unchanged; middling 12¼; sales on the spot 102 bales, to arrive 40; low ordinary 8¾; nominal; ordinary 9 1-16; strict ordinary 9 5-16; good ordinary 11 5-16; strict good ordinary 11 9-16; low middling 11 13-16; strict low middling 12 3-16; middling 12¼; strict middling 12 7-16; good middling 12¾; strict good middling 12 13-16; middling fair 13¼; nominal; middling fair to fair 13⅝, nominal; fair 14, nominal; receipts 2,325; stock 80,138.

Tin, unchanged.

WHEAT PRICES LOWER ON AMPLE MOISTURE

Market Close Showed Net Loss of One-Eighth to Three-Eighths Cent.

Chicago, May 3.—Good rains today lowered wheat. At the close, prices were at a net loss of ⅛ to ⅜. Corn made a net decline of a shade to ⅛, and oats ⅛ to ⅛@⅜. Provisions closed unchanged to 20c lower.

Today's rains, which were general from the Rockies to the Mississippi river, not only brought needed moisture to southwestern wheat fields; but are expected to clear out the chinch bugs which, in parts of Kansas and Oklahoma, were causing fears for the growing crops. Predictions are for cooler weather for those parts of Kansas in which the insect pests have been the most numerous and this is expected to aid in exterminating them. Wheat opened weak, lower markets at Buenos Ayres and Paris depressing values, aided by the dullness at Liverpool, in spite of some lift in prices there. Prices here rallied on a little buying spurt, but the market was not supported and a reaction came quickly. Trade was light. Primary receipts of wheat today were 530,000 bushels; last year 378,000 bushels. Seaboard clearances of wheat and flour equalled 478,000 bushels.

Corn trade was very light. The market ruled rather heavy. Fine weather for plowing and planting and small shipping demand counted against values.

Oats were dull and trading was almost entirely local.

Provisions values suffered again through lower prices at the yards. Trading was along narrow lines.

APRIL FAILURES.

New York, May 3.—Bradstreet's says today:

There were 1,145 failures reported to Bradstreet's during the month of April as against 1,079 failures in April last year, 1,074 in April, 1910, and 1,102 in April, 1909. There is here shown an increase of 6 per cent over April last year, of 31 per cent as compared with April, 1910, but a decrease of a fraction of 1 per cent from the high-water mark in April of any year since 1892, touched in the fourth month of 1908. The really interesting feature of the April showing as regards number is found in the fact that practically the entire increase over April a year ago is found to be furnished by New York city. Indeed, there were fewer failures in April this year than last in New England, the west, the north-west and the south.

The liabilities in April aggregated $17,754,948, which marks an increase of 25 per cent over the like month of last year, but a decrease of 27 per cent from April, 1910. In the matter of liabilities, indeed, April this year makes a better showing than in April of at least four preceding years.

The April comparisons of failures, assets and liabilities over a period of years are as follows:

	Number.	Assets.	Liabilities.
1913	1,145	$ 10,884,845	$17,754,948
1912	1,079	9,262,221	14,182,704
1911	895	6,221,136	13,279,650
1910	874	11,605,860	24,540,830
1909	998	9,734,393	17,983,197
1908	1,152	8,831,317	22,385,743
1907	733	5,626,601	8,888,052
1906	682	4,270,331	7,896,053
1905	765	5,072,944	9,337,560
1904	800	7,723,299	13,929,740
1903	794	3,579,902	10,229,887
1902	701	3,056,941	7,102,847
1901	909	3,671,741	8,348,446
1900	827	4,965,079	7,074,583
1899	886	3,336,167	7,422,170
1898	1,033	6,411,107	14,521,937
1897	980	10,840,746	17,447,994
1896	1,050	8,271,943	14,920,714
1895	1,046	7,473,377	13,963,752
1894	953	6,997,540	12,288,801
1893	903	21,169,177	37,206,473

There were twenty-nine fewer failures during the first four months of this year than last, but the liabilities this year are $12,716,000, or 19 per cent larger. Compared with 1910 the number this year is 21 per cent greater, while the liabilities are 14 per cent larger. Compared with 1908, however, failures are 5 per cent fewer and liabilities are 40 per cent smaller.

John F. Black & Co.

New York, May 3.—It was reported today that the people who have taken cotton on May contracts are going to receive most of it, before come to the conclusion that it would not be to their interest, however, and this does not make a very encouraging outlook for the people who will take up cotton in July. The mills seem confident that the new crop will be an ample one and are not going to grab for the remnant of the old crop. In spite of the good weather news today, new crop months were stronger than the nearer and May and July closed 6 down, while October and December were only 3 down. The market closed steady. The crop outlook continues good, but many people believe that any weather had enough to cause an advance would put October and July even. The bull manipulation of July, it has been so much in evidence, seems over.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.

New York, May 3.—Liverpool was unchanged on a better demand for spots. Our market was quiet and lower, on heavy selling by Wall street houses, who are very bearish on the depression caused by the tariff agitation. Crop accounts east of the river are not so good, many complaints being received of slow germination and of the necessity of replanting. Showers fell in northern Texas where needed. The temper of the trade is bearish, they cannot see any revival in business under the present depression in America, though they admit the European situation is becoming better. In fact, it is the same strain of pessimism which has been so much in evidence, based upon position more than anything else.

New York, May 3.—Beneficial rains in south, southwest and northwest Texas over night, with prospects of their extending into the east gulf states by Sunday, induced further selling today, which was general across some new points. Business was not large on general in character, but the undertone of the market reflected a disposition to sell in the light of present crop conditions.

COMMISSION WANTS ENLARGED POWERS

Annual Report of Railroad Commissioners Makes Recommendations and Asks Changes in Law.

The fortieth annual report of the state railroad commission which has been completed, contains much important data, information and recommendations. Much of the data of general interest has already been published in The Constitution; namely, the financial operations of corporations in the state, and the number and character of accidents on railroads and street car lines.

Recommendations Made.

In its report the commission makes the following recommendations:

"An amendment to paragraph 2, section 5, of the act approved August 22, 1907, to authorize the chairman of the commission, in the absence of the secretary, to certify any schedule of rates, or any order, rule or regulation, prescribed by the commission, so as to make the same admissible as evidence in the courts, the same as if certified by the secretary.

"The enactment of legislation conferring upon the commission power and authority to require the issuance by carriers of through bills of lading and of coupon passenger tickets, and the checking of baggage through to destination.

"Under the wording of the act of 1907 in reference to the settlement of overcharges and losses, it is difficult for the commission to formulate such a rule as will stand the test in the courts. We, therefore, urge the amendment of this act so as to read as follows:

"'It shall have authority to order all all railroad companies and other corporations subject to its jurisdiction, to pay all just claims for overcharges, demurrage charges, and for losses, and to fix penalties by rule or order or both, for failure to pay the same when so required.'

Corporations Reporting.

The report shows that the number and classification of corporations reporting to the commission for 1911 and 1912 are:

	1912.	1911.
Street railroads, gas, electric light and power companies	48	45
Steam railroads	65	62
Terminal companies	5	5
Express companies	1	1
Telegraph companies	2	2
Telephone companies	81	61
Cotton compress companies	11	12
Total	213	188

Showing a net increase in companies reporting of twenty-five over 1911.

During the year the commission formally disposed of 582 complaints or subjects requiring formal order or action, the number and class of subjects thus disposed of being as follows:

	1912.	1911.
Passenger fares and serv	74	70
Freight rates	119	143
Freight service	78	67
Claims for overcharge, loss, damage and demurrage	104	100
Side tracks and spurs	16	10
Depots and stations	68	56
Street car service and fares	1	6
Gas and electric light rates and service	6	5
Express rates and service	28	31
Telegraph and telephone rates and service	38	33
Stock and bond issues	29	22
Miscellaneous	22	14
Total	582	557

Interesting Information.

In 1911, Georgia railroads paid to operate their roads 69.78 cents out of every one hundred cents received as revenue.

In 1912 they paid for operating, 71.73 cents out of every one hundred cents of revenue.

The gross earnings from Georgia business for 1912 showed a net increase over 1911 of $3,551,090.95, but operating expenses alone increased $3,671,288.28 for 1912 over 1911.

In 1908, the railroads operating in Georgia employed in Georgia 34,809 persons; in 1912 they employed 39,691 persons.

The wages paid these 39,691 employees in 1912 exceeded the wages paid 34,809 employees in 1908, $5,771,104.93. In other words, Georgia railroads paid in wages in Georgia in 1912, $5,771,104.93 more than in 1908. This, however, was to a larger number of employees. The individual wage records show that had the number of employees for 1912 been kept the same as in 1908, they are being paid $3,668,726.21 more than in 1908.

In other words, the 34,809 employees in 1908 received $3,668,726.21 more in 1912, which is an average increase to each railroad employee in Georgia in 1912 over 1908 of more than $105 per annum.

OLD GUARD WILL MAKE TRIP EAST

Arrangements Now Complete for a Notable Tour of Eastern Cities Beginning Monday, May 19.

The Old Guard Battalion of the Gate City Guard has completed arrangements for a notable tour of eastern cities, and will leave Atlanta Monday, May 19, for a visit to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston.

Friendships will be renewed that were made on the historic tour of thirty-four years ago, and in the various cities the Old Guard will participate in functions and ceremonies planned to strengthen the ties between the north and south.

Colonel J. F. Burke, who commanded the guard in 1879, and who inspired the unselfish and patriotic mission which it undertook at that time, will head the organization on this second trip.

Order for the Guard.

The following order was posted by Colonel Burke, commanding, and Adjutant E. J. Spratling:

"The battalion is hereby ordered to assemble at the Piedmont hotel on Monday, May 19, 1913, at 9:30 a. m., in full dress uniform, to march to the Terminal station, where a special train will be in waiting. The return trip will be by steamer to Savannah, Ga.

"The purpose of this tour is to meet the militiary and other organizations that so warmly indorsed the 'mission of peace' of this command to their former adversaries in the civil war, when they visited the eastern cities thirty-four years ago."

Accompanying this order is a circular issued by Captain Boiling H. Jones, quartermaster, in which the following itinerary is announced:

Leave Atlanta 11:30 a. m., May 19, Southern railway.

Arrive Washington 7 a. m., May 20, Southern railway.

Leave Washington 7:45 a. m., May 21, Pennsylvania railroad.

Arrive Baltimore 9 a. m., May 21, Pennsylvania railroad.

Leave Baltimore 7 a. m., May 22, Pennsylvania railroad.

Arrive Philadelphia 9:30 a. m., May 22, Pennsylvania railroad.

Leave Philadelphia 12 M., May 24, Pennsylvania railroad.

Leave New York 8 p. m., May 28, New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

Arrive Boston 8:30 p. m., May 26, New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

Leave Boston 6 p. m., May 30, Fall River Line.

Officers for the Trip.

Bewteen fifty and sixty members of the Old Guard will go on this tour, including the following officers:

Colonel J. F. Burke, captain and Adjutant General E. J. Spratling, Captain and Quartermaster Boiling H. Jones, Captain and Commander A. McD. Wilson.

Staff Officers—Captain W M. Crunler, Dr. E. L. Connally, Louis Gholstin, Benjamin B Crew.

Second Company—Captain F. J. Coolidge, Lieutenant P. F. Clarke, Lieutenant A. H. Davis.

Fifty-Two Will Make the Trip.

Including the above officers, fifty-two members of the organization, which includes many of Atlanta's most distinguished citizens, have announced their intention of making the tour. A few ladies, wives and daughters of Old Guard members, will also be in the party.

The Old Guard will be elaborately entertained in all the cities which it visits by the most notable organizations in military, civic and social life.

Letters and telegrams are pouring in on Colonel Burke from the historic organizations which welcomed the Old Guard on its mission of peace many years ago, and many features will contribute to make the coming journey memorable.

Indeed, the Fifth Maryland regiment, whose recent visit Atlantans will vividly recall in connecton with the unveiling of the peace monument, sent Lieutenant Nunsen to Atlanta to advise with the Old Guard, officers with regard to preparations for their reception in Baltimore; while the State Fencibles, of Philadelphia, sent Captain T. S. Lanard to Atlanta on a similar mission last week.

Culmination in Boston.

The ceremonies in which the Old Guard will participate, elaborate all along the line, will reach their culmination in Boston. The eastern cities have recollections which not even the pages of nearly a generation have dimmed, of the historic tour of 1879, and the citizens and municipalities will join in welcoming the southerners back again.

In the meantime Atlanta is preparing to give the Old Guards great sendoff, Monday two weeks hence. They will be escorted to the station by other military organizations and cheered on their way by everybody.

GEORGIA-ALABAMA READY FOR OPENING

Newnan, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—The Georgia-Alabama league will open Monday. LaGrange will play in Newnan, Opelika in Talladega and Anniston in Gadsden.

This is a very fast league and all of these cities expect a large crowd the opening day. The Newnan grand stand has a seating capacity of about 700 and the bleachers about 400, and President Fisher says that he expects to see about 2,000 people out at the opening game.

The local baseball fans have procured one of the finest bands in the state to give them music that day. Edgar Long, one of the local enthusiasts, states that in his opinion Newnan has about the strongest team in the league.

Mr. Long has just returned from a trip around the circuit and seems to be well please with the local team. Everybody is baseball mad in this city, and are anxiously waiting for Monday to come, when the local team makes it debut with LaGrange.

PURSUERS ARE CLOSING ON NEGRO MURDERER

Savannah, Ga., May 3.—At dawn the posse that has been relentlessly pursuing Henry Austin, the South Carolina fugitive, since he attempted to criminally assault a white woman and shot down six of his pursuers, two fatally, last Wednesday, will go to Stillwell, 25 miles from Savannah, to follow up a fresh clew that promises to lead to Austin's capture.

A negro has been seen near Stillwell answering to Austin's description, and the sheriff has wired Governor Blease to send the bloodhounds to Meinhard early tomorrow. This he has promised to do, and the posse, who are here tonight, are hopeful of landing their man before the sun goes down again.

Today's search of the Savannah river swamps brought forth evidences that Austin is not far away and that he had been there not many hours before the posse.

Bloodhounds Are Sent,

Columbia, S. C., May 4.—The bloodhounds from the penitentiary were sent to Stillwell, Ga., at 12:20 o'clock this morning, in response to an appeal for aid in tracking down Richard Henry Austin, the negro murderer, who, late last night, was reported surrounded in the swamps of the Savannah river valley.

He has been actively connected with Salvation Army work for thirty years. Captain William S. Quirk will preside at tonight's service.

J. E. M'LAUCHLIN JOINS SOUTHERN STATES LIFE

J. E. McLauchlin, for many years associated with the Georgia agency of the Equitable Life Insurance company, has resigned his position with that company to accept that of agency special for the Metropolitan agency department of the Southern States Life Insurance company. This announcement is made by President Wilmer L. Moore, of the Southern States Life, and will be read with a great deal of interest by the friends of Mr. McLauchlin and the company throughout the insurance world.

The Southern States Life Insurance company, an Atlanta institution, with headqparters in the Candler building, plans an organized and systematic campaign for procuring Atlanta business.

Mr. McLauchlin, who has resigned from the agency force of the Equitable Life to assume these new duties, has been one of the leaders among life insurance solicitors in Georgia during the past five years. He began his connection with the Equitable Life in 1900 with the South Carolina agency. He came to Atlanta in 1903 and took up newspaper work, where he was rapidly advanced until 1907, when he resigned his newspaper work to resume his position as an insurance solicitor with the Georgia agency of the Equitable Life. He has continuously represented that company as a leader ever since.

His success as a solicitor created for him many flattering offers with other companies, but he remained with that company until the Metropolitan agency department was created by the Southern States Life and he was offered the position of agency special.

The Southern States Life Insurance company, backed by southern capital and directed by southern men, has made a most enviable reputation and its increasing business is a source of genuine satisfaction to its hundreds of friends throughout the south and the fact that it now begins the systematic campaign to secure more business in Atlanta is another evidence of the growing strength of this southern company for southern people.

Mr. McLauchlin is being congratulated by his many friends upon the splendid connection he has made.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE MAKES A BILL RECORD

Albany, N. Y., May 3.—The legislature of 1913 adjourned sine die tonight. Officially the session ended at 1 p. m., but so much legislation remained to be disposed of that it was well toward midnight before the work was finished.

During the session 4,072 bills were introduced, establishing a record. Of these the governor has approved 442, has had received 74 and has vetoed 15. More than 700 measures remain to be disposed of by the governor during the next thirty days.

Through the action of the assembly at its closing session today in changing its stand and passing a measure already approved by the senate, the Walker-Foley workmen's compensation bill was sent to Governor Sulzer for approval. The proposed law, however, is opposed by the State Federation of Labor and representatives of that organization said tonight they will ask the governor to veto it.

Yesterday the assembly passed the Murtaugh-Jackson compensation bill, which was favored by labor interests. When it became apparent today that the senate would not agree to this measure, the assembly took up the Walker-Foley bill, which had been sidetracked in favor of the rival proposal.

KIBLA TEMPLE READY FOR CEREMONIALS

The hosts of faithful Arabs in Atlanta and vicinity have been summoned to answer the call of their August Sovereign within the precincts of Kibla Temple, on the night of May 7, and from present indications there will be a gathering such as seldom has been seen in this division of his royal province.

"The purpose of the gathering is to consider what reprisals shall be made upon the uninitiated, and unholy dogs who in the east have been so unwise as to wage war upon the possessions of the Pasha," the initiated explain the call. "The eternal honor of the realm has been encroached upon by those unfit to approach it, and they must be made to feel the iron hand of faithful subjects of their Master."

"The vessels instruments of torture have been overhauled and put into condition to impose unheard of suffering upon those who shall be corralled before that time."

In plain English all this means that there will be a big time in Atlanta on the night above mentioned, when the clansmen of Kibla Temple assemble to take a class of tyros across the sands of the desert that leads to Fythian and Koranssan happiness.

Long Time Sleep, Wealthy Indian, Enters Car in Reliability Run

LONG TIME SLEEP.

Long Time Sleep, a wealthy Indian of the Glacier National Park reservation, Montana, joined the American Automobile association at a meeting of motorists held in the Minneapolis Commercial club, April 10 and he will enter his car in the National Reliability run which starts from Minneapolis, July 11 and ends at the eastern gateway to Glacier National park, July 19. The tour covers about 1,200 miles.

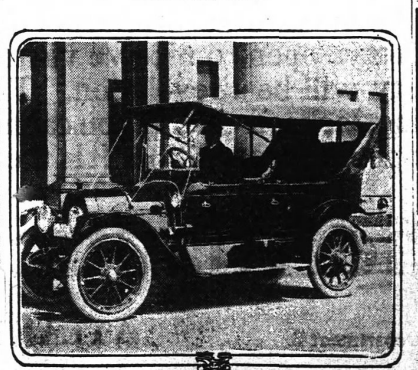
This is the first instance on record of an Indian joining the American Automobile association. Long Time Sleep enjoys the distinction of being the most fluent "talker" in the universal sign language of the American Indians. He is of the Peigan nation, and does not speak a work of English. He is an expert handler of the automobile, and has enjoyed motoring with his Indian friends in the new National park in northwestern Montana ever since it was created by an act of congress in 1910.

Long Time Sleep, despite his name, is very much awake all the while and he expects to be able to make as good a score as any of his paleface competitors in the long drive across Minnesota, North Dakota ad Montana. He says he will have his Indian friends scatter buckskin confetti over the last lap of the journed as a mark of welcome to the white autoists entering upon the reservation domain of the red man.

Indications are there will be close to 100 automobiles in the tour.

Louis W. Hill, chairman of the board of directors of the Gerat Northern railway, himself a enthusiastic automobilist, good roads advocate and one of the contestants in the tour, has agreed to run a palatial "automobile hotel train" without a single paid fare, in order that the motorists may have adequate eating and sleeping accommodations en route. This train will consist of sleeping cars, diners, an automobile repair car and a baggage car containing a newspaper plant, with an engraving outfit for the publication of the world's first automobile paper ever printed "on wheels." Newspaper correspondents accompanying the tour will get out this novel sheet daily during the trip.

Pope-Hartford for Highway Commissioner



Highway Commissioner C. J. Bennett, of Connecticut, has recently taken delivery of a Pope-Hartford touring car for his official use in traveling about the state on inspection trips.

THE "PROFIT" OF KENNESAW MOUNTAIN

Charles Ferguson--Mayor Also a Man

Winder, Ga., May 3.—When Winder elected a mayor last fall it fell to the lot of one Charles Ferguson to undertake the job. Now Charlie, as he is called by most every one in Winder, is also an undertaker by profession, so that the proposition of "undertaking to do a thing" comes natural to him. He is a capable and expert undertaker and Winder is finding out that he is also a capable and most excellent mayor.

When he took up the reins of city government he dusted off the book known as the city code or ordinances and found therein certain laws about Sundays. He found that it was contrary to the law for any kind of soft drinks, cigars and the like to be sold on the Sabbath, also he found that drug stores and other places were selling soft drinks and cigars and the like on Sunday, so he called the aldermen together and asked them "What about this Sunday law? Shall I have it enforced or do you want to repeal it? If you say enforce it I will do it. If you say not, then repeal it." They said enforce it.

He called the police up and told them that beginning the next Sunday there was to be "nothing doing" in the drink and cigar line Sundays. And the lid went on. In due time certain citizens came to him and said how about letting the drinks and cigars be sold, say a few hours every Sunday, for so many of the boys forget to get their cigars and tobacco Saturday. Charlie many of the boys forget to get their meat, meal and flour for Sundays, and when they said no, then he told them to begin to get their tobacco and cigars Saturdays also. And Charlie told every one that as long as the ordinance stood, and so long as he was mayor it would be enforced. Then comes to him the preachers and tell him that since he has put the lid on that the attendance at Sunday schools has been 50 per cent greater.

Also when certain people in the town now and then got crossways on the law and cases had to be made against them, the cases were docketed by number and when called up for trial were called up by number and fines paid or collateral forfeited, which was very pleasant to the offender and kept his name out of the case. Nothing doing in this line with Charles Ferguson, mayor and man. He tells the police force and all people that when a case is docketed that the name and all the facts must go on docket and when the case is called the name is called, too. He says that there has been many less offenders since.

Nearly every town in Georgia is having the proposition made to them for lighting contracts now to be signed up between the power companies and the towns in which the city agrees to buy current from the power companies and sell it to the citizens. When the power company sent their "standard contract" for the mayor to sign he read over the many pages and did not understand it. It was too complex, too many words and phrases to suit Charlie, so he goes out to other towns and finds that they have several different kinds of contracts and he won't sign till he sees that the citizens of Winder are safeguarded. The contract offered them was for ten years, and after that time this contract, with so many words and phrases, turned out to be a free franchise so that the power company would have the right to sell the power current and light direct to the consumers, tax free and thus secure a valuable franchise for nothing. And they would thus be in position to rob the citizens by excessive rates, poor service and collar all the light and power business in the town.

Charles Ferguson won't stand for that while he is mayor of Winder. He is a small man with bright eyes and he naturally looks "plumb" through you when he gets his optics on you and it is no easy matter to fool him. He is a man that no amount of money would tempt to graft. He sees no difference in any man when it comes to violation of the law. He will do his duty, is posted on his work and can today give many points to mayors much older than he is and governing larger towns. He has made no enemies by strict enforcement of the laws, as many people in office fear and who try to please a few and toady to others. He treats all alike and every one knows it, and the citizens are giving him their support, their respect and co-operation. He says he cannot understand why any three or four men who have reputations for honesty and integrity and have good characters, when they get together and form a public service corporation will bribe city officials to get franchises free. They will lie and debauch state legislatures and do anything under the sun that is dishonest, corrupt and treacherous to carry their point of getting something valuable for nothing. Whereas individually they are willing to pay a fair price for anything they want and go into the open market to buy it. It would not be a bad idea for lots of mayors in Georgia to run up to Winder and get acquainted with Charles Ferguson, mayor and man.

CHILE CON CARNE

R. M. Sloan, traveling for the Lamar & Rankin Drug company came in Friday from a two weeks' trip on the Georgia road. He went out again Saturday after some more of the good bills he had brought in with him.

The Hirshberg company have all their men in at present working on their new samples. The bunch includes Herman Teitlebaum, Mack Hirshberg, W. C. Tennant, J. R. Callier, Max Samuels, Will Hirshberg, Nathan Saltzman and Sam Saltzman.

W. L. Gillian is the name of the new manager for Kingan & Co., Ltd., in the city. He arrived to take over his new duties last week.

Jones Bros. & Co., the pickle and preserve people, have the following men out on the road for them: W. R. Simpson, who is first vice president of the company, travels Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama; R. E. Dawson is in Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and south Georgia; Leslie Miller is in South Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee, and C. M. McKain works the city trade.

C. P. Webb, in Alabama for the Warren Manufacturing company, is the winner of the $10 gold piece which his company gives each month to the salesman leading in sales. This is the first time Mr. Webb has won it. But it won't be the last.

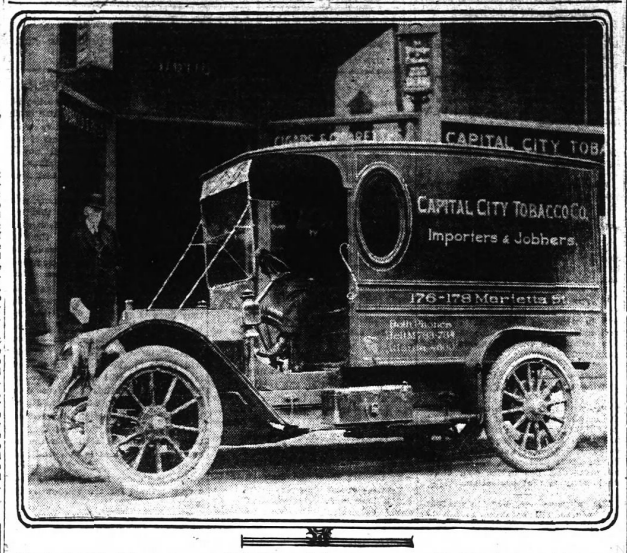
C. F. Holt, sales manager for the Dixie Pickle and Preserve company, was in Macon this week. While there he sold goods in carload lots and came back feeling quite young and good as a consequence.

T. B. Lewis, with the Capital City Tobacco company, has been working the north Georgia territory this week and has made such points as Athens, Winder, Toccoa, Gainesville, etc. The result has been big business.

J. A. Cook and F. M. Catlett, of the Atlanta Casket company, are in the city for Sunday.

C. D. Dickinson and J. O. Chambers were the only ins this week with Brown, Perryman & Greene company unless some of the other boys came in late.

A Firm Which Understands Auto Truck Usage



The Capital City Tobacco company have used an auto truck in the delivery of their goods for some time past. But the distinction between their use of a truck and that of the average concern is that they have figured out exactly how much the truck is worth to them and what the benefits are in saving.

E. F. Malone, of the company, some time ago perfected a scheme by which he might keep track of the work done by this truck. He uses a card filing system and one card is used for each day. This card gives the number of trips, distance, time, amount of oil and gasoline used, repairs and time spent at the warehouse, besides lots of other vital information.

Mr. Malone states that he can now figure out just how much work the truck is doing at what cost, incidentally he has a perfect check on the repair and upkeep bills. He is well satisfied that the truck is a money-saver for his firm and is pleased to show any inquirers the facts that he has discovered through this system.

In The Trenches

Joe Karpeles, with Montag Brothers, who went out last week with his fall line, is sending in some particularly nice orders from N. W. Florida, and reports prospects good there.

The many friends of W. Harry Anderson, who sells "Premium Brand" shoes for the Gramling-Spalding Co., will be sorry to hear that he had to go back to St. Joseph's hospital last Friday. Mr. Anderson, who was convalescing from his recent illness, suffered a slight relapse, but it is not supposed to be anything serious.

O. C. Long, with the S. P. Richards Co., was the victim of a nasty accident about a week ago. There was an escape of gas in his home, and after he had located the leak and stopped it, and after he had believed all the gas was let out of the house, a match caused quite a serious explosion. Mr. Long was badly burnt about the head and hands, but is chiefly thankful now that it was no worse, as it might easily have been. He was confined to his home for about a week, and got out for the first time last Friday.

Bill Gaston, city salesman with Fain & Stamps, reports that although he has had to employ a chauffeur to drive his car nearly all month, and although he has had to write his orders left handed, all as a result of the accident in which he broke his arm, that the month just closed was one of the best he ever had.

S. P. Hein, traveling eastern and southern Florida for Montag Brothers, starts out with his new fall line on Monday.

C. H. McKain has recently accepted the position of city salesman with James Brothers & Co. Mr. McKain is an experienced salesman and should make good right away in his new connection.

J. A. Massey, city salesman with the E. L. Adams Co., left the city for Charleston last Friday as one of the committee from the City Salesman's association to arrange about the annual excursion of the association.

E. E. Shyer, with the Consolidated Paper company, came in Saturday from Montgomery, where he had met with his usual big success in the way of business.

J. Wesley Kes, representing the A. M Robinson Co. in Florida, came in and went out again this week with a new line of fall samples

F. W. Webb, with the Ridley-Willingham-Wyatt Co., came in this week from his south Georgia territory.

J. C. Owens and W. T. Duncan, two of the Fain & Stomps salesmen, were asked what conditions were in their territories on Saturday. The combined reply goes something like this: "The farmers have all got their crops in. The outlooks is good for a successful year. A good rain is needed, and," added Mr. Duncan, "this is the best week I have had in six."

Montag Brothers report business picking up nicely since the men went out with their fall lines, and that prospects are for a mighty good fall season.

P. H. Jeter, who travels in southwest Georgia for John Silvey & Co., is back on the job, after his bridal trip.

Henry Bauer, city salesman with the Atlanta Paper company, was all smiles this week. Asked if it was about the good business he had done in April, he said it was partly that and the good business he was going to do in May.

J. P. Hix, a recent addition to the sales force of the Gramling-Spalding Co., will start selling "Premium Brand" shoes in the South Carolina territory tomorrow. He will make his headquarters in Columbia.

Amongst the ins this with the S. P. Richards Co., are John H. Huff and J. M. Bennett.

E. L. Adams, of the E. L. Adams Co., spent a couple of days this week in the mountains of north Georgia on a business trip.

next three weeks. He is on an extended Paper company, will not be in for the next three week. He is on an extended trip through southeast Georgia.

J. L. White, with the A. M. Robinson Co., leaves next Wednesday for his territory in Alabama. Mr. White makes his headquarters in Mobile, and will not be back in Atlanta until after the summer season. He will probably go on a business trip for his firm to Cuba before his return.

The Ridley-Willingham-Wyatt Co. report that as a result of the extensive advertising the manufacturers have been doing that they are having a big demand for "Klosfit" petticoats. They add that it is also a splendid line and has always given satisfaction to their trade.

There was a happy look around the office of the Atlanta Paper company last week. The reason was that Sales Manager and Secretary M. J. Bernard will be back from his honeymoon trip this week.

Cliff Edwards, with Fain & Stamps Co., reports April as the best month he has had this year, and last week as the best week. On Monday last he took twenty-six orders of twenty-seven calls, which is a batting average of .963, which it not at all bad.

D. P. McDaniel, Lewis Parker and Luther Parker are the ins with Wardruitt Co., this week.

AN APPRECIATION OF A POPULAR SALESMAN

It is an unnecessary remark to say that the body of men who travel over this country in the interests of business compose the finest set of men in the world. Every one who knows them knows that that kind of a remark is superfluous. But, excellent as they all are, there is occasionally some one man in the craft who stands forth as a man of such superior excellence as to be worthy of special mention when a number of the boys get together and talk of their friends and co-workers on the road. And the man who wins special appreciation from these traveling men must be an unusual character to warrant their praise.

The subject of these preliminary remarks is a salesman who has held this position of honor amongst his peers for many years past. His name is John H. Huff, and he travels out of Atlanta for the S. P. Richards company, selling their line of paper, rubber goods, novelties, etc.

Mr. Huff travels mostly in Georgia. He makes his home in Griffin and works his territory from there. His character and reputation is of the very best and he stands as a man who follows the dictates of his own best beliefs in any and all circumstances. Recently a man who has known him well for many years tried to describe him. He spoke as fluently as he could for several minutes, but finally found that he could not convey the impression he wished and wound up by saying, "John Huff is—is—well, he is simply a fine gentleman." What more could any man say of his friend? And all those who know John Huff will understand and indorse the sentiment.

J. C. Mason, with the Consolidated Paper company, will spend Sunday at his home in Cuthbert, Ga.

SAM HANES HAPPY.

Ragan-Malone Co.'s Salesman Has Biggest Week in 2 Years.

It is customary for a salesman to be optimistic. And to achieve this result it is also customary for him to tell about the big business he is enjoying. But thehre is one man in Atlanta today who has every right to boast a little and who can truthfully say that he received a pleasant surprise in the amount of his last week's business. That man is Sam Hanes, who represents the Ragan-Malone company, and has just come in off the Georgia road. He brought with him a wonderful batch of orders, and the house felt like killing the proverbial calf in his honor. In fact, the total of these orders was such an attractive looking figure that they began looking back into history, and found that it was the best week's business Mr. Hanes has had for the past two years. And to those who know Mr. Hanes' reputation as a salesman this is sufficient proof that it surely was some business.

Colonel Scott, of the Scott Machinery company, states that their place of business on Forsyth street, which was slightly damaged by fire last week, will be repaired and ready for business again shortly.

W. P. Price, with the E. L Adams company, has gone with his family to his old home in Gainesville, Ga. to spend Sunday and Monday.

F. H. Glasgow, city salesman for the Consolidated Paper company, has just concluded a splendid week. He states that his business wass all of the "top shelf" variety this week.

George K. Christian, manager, and eBaumont Davison, proprietor of Davison-Paxon-Stokes manufacturing department, believe in The Constitution Firing Line. They say that any number of people have referred to the story, which appeared in these columns last week.

PERCY WILL BE GREETER.

Merchants' Week Would Not Look Natural Without Him.

The decision to hold a merchants' week in Atlanta next August was only reached last Tuesday night, but already the committee has gotten busy on one of the most important features of the week.

They have requested W. L. Percy, of the Dobbs & Wey company, to occupy his accustomed position of chief greeter to the merchants who will come. Mr. Percy remarked that it was not quite as easy a job as it looked to be, but on account of the fact that they seemed to want him to officiate so badly, and that he was always eager to help the city as far as lay in his power, he supposed he would accept. So the visiting merchants can rest assured that, barring accidents, the kindly features of Mr. Percy will beam out upon them from behind the glad hand of official welcome.

Strength.

By Walter Clayton.

Auto trucks are very strong—
They carry loads of many tons—
But still more marvelous and surprising
Is the pulling power of advertising.

E. Fiebelman, traveling Alabama for Montag Bros., went out this week with his fall line.

A Letter-Head Printed in Atlanta

The way in which Atlanta is reaching out for trade is daily growing more interesting. Business is coming here from all quarters of the globe. But the most important business that the Atlanta business men can cultivate is that lying south of us, in the Latin-American countries. As a sample of the way this business can be cultivated this incident is given:

The well-known house of Montag Bros. have been doing considerable business in Honduras for some time past. A part of a recent order they got from there was for the printing of a supply of letter heads, envelopes and bill heads for a customer there. The cut above shows the letter head. (Incidentally it may be remarked that the typesetters had a pleasant job setting a head in a language of which they were ignorant.)

It is a pertinent comment on the possibilities of this trade when it is seen that a firm in Honduras can profitably have their business printing done in Atlanta.

REVIEWS OF THE WEEK OF AMERICAN MARKETS

Financial.

New York, May 3.—The state of depression in which financial sentiment has long been held was manifested in the events of the week. Such resistance as was shown by the price movements was attributed to the feeling that the extent of the decline had sufficiently discounted unfavorable factors, rather than to any belief in positive betterment. There was hope of improvement in the foreign political situation on Thursday, when the reply of Montenegro to the powers was a favorable impression. Foreign stock exchanges were closed on that day and their action on the following day failed to bear out fully the favorable construction placed by New York on the previous day's events. With the definite outcome left undecided, stock markets still lack the positive incentive to betterment.

Opinions are left confused also as to how far the tightening of foreign money markets was due to month-end requirements and how far to political dangers. Capital supplies were at the subjected to strain, both at home and abroad. There were additional issues of short-term notes by corporations, owing to unsatisfactory conditions in the bond market. New York city's announcement of a $45,000,000 loan made an additional demonstration of the sensitiveness of the bond market, not only by the recurrence to the high 4½ per cent interest rate of 1908, but by the resulting fall in quotations for outstanding 4½s below previous issue prices.

The conventional figures of national bank conditions on April 4 revealed the low state of reserves the country over, in spite of the contraction of loans in New York city which had occurred. Recognition of the banking prospect was inferred from the plan of the secretary of the treasury to charge interest on government deposits and to increase their amounts.

The difficulties of speculation finally gave added effect to some March reports of railroad earnings, showing the effect of drastic economies taken by the railroads in official classification territory to petition for a 5 per cent increase in freight rates thereof. Increased importance from the showing of earnings and from the movement of traffic to the increased cost of special factors to aggravate the depression were the yet unsolved problem of the Union Pacific dissolution plan, and the questioning as to what Haven road's finances in the course of the commission's inquiry.

Commercial evidence came into greater accord in reporting a slowing down in business pending the passage of the tariff bill and also tardiness in collections.

Pig iron suffered to decline and preliminary on steel products for early deliveries were said to have disappeared. Specifications also receded as higher contract prices came into force and forward buying was hesitant. United States Steel's first quarter earnings of several millions dollars in extraordinary income left estimates. News of the crops continued favorable.

Cotton.

New Orleans, May 3.—Cotton was fairly active the week with trading much heavier and on the ba has been for some time. Bears were aggressive, but from the first of the week bull interests seized every opportunity to drive shorts to cover. The range of prices was not wide, but a good volume of business was transacted.

The week closed at a net lose of 8 to 10 points. The high prices were made on Monday and the low prices on Wednesday. The highest, the trading months were 7 to 9 points over last week's close, while the lowest during were 20 to 28 points under. The range was 20 to 35 points.

On the whole, crop news was regarded as favorable this week. Dry weather allowed planting to go ahead toward completion, and nothing to out to make good progress. Bulls made much of the temperatures during the early part of the week, but later the weather warmed up and temperatures were about normal.

Stories of replanting, because of cold nights, were used with some effect by the bulls or drive

London Stock Market.

London, May 3.—The Balkin problem was again the chief factor in the stock market during the week. The opening was nervous and weak. A fair recovery followed, but the close turned weak again, and the closing was unsettled.

The Scutari question caused acute nervousness, and selling in all quarters prior to Thursday's holiday, and hopes of a reduced bank rate were effectually dispersed by a sharp advance in discount rates. Buying on the holiday, the better political outlook and the sharp recovery in New York produced professionals to buy back much of the stock they had unloaded earlier. This support resulted in the recovery of about half the losses, but renewed apprehension as to what may happen over the week-end brought further selling and caused a weak closing. Outsiders have adopted a waiting policy, while dreading further the ambassadors' conference Monday will be productive of sufficient good results as to encourage support and restore confidence. In the meantime the tone of speculation are decidedly nothing and the accounts now open are said to be the smallest known in years.

American securities fell from 2 to 5 points in the middle of the week, when New York sold the equivalent of 200,000 shares on the Bourse. A partial recovery followed, but the market finished dull and near the opening level. Reports of labor troubles and the threatened railroad cases were responsible for the setback today.

Preaches Annual Sermon.—Rev. Dr. S. R. Belk, pastor Park Street Methodist Episcopal church, south, will preach the annual sermon for the faculty students and friends of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial Institute Sunday afternoon, May 11, at 3 o'clock in the Cosmopolitan A. M. E. church, corner Vine and Foundry streets. The school closes this term's session Friday night, May 18. The friends of both races are asked to be present.

nervous shorts to cover. Little was heard of want of moisture and the rains in Texas at the end of the week with promise that the crop would extend to the rest of the cotton region over Sunday, were accepted as being certain to prevent talk of drought.

Neither side gained much from the controversy over acreage. Around the middle of the week, the bears were helped by private bureau estimates showing an increase of from 2.5 per cent to 5.7 per cent, but a little later the bears had the advantage from another report showing an increase of 7 per cent.

In the spot department, prices lost one-sixteenth of a cent, middling closing at 12 1-4, against 12 5-16 last week, and 11 9-16 this week last year. Sales on the spot amounted to 2,314 bales, against 1,500 last week and 1,205 this week last year. Sales to arrive amounted to 1,930 bales, against 1,803 last week, and 1,019 this week last year.

Cotton Goods.

New York, May 3.—Cotton cloth and gray cotton goods for general purposes were traded in more actively during the week. There was some cancelling of orders until yesterday, when buyers who sought spot goods found that they were forced to pay a slight advance. The jobbers still are holding off from purchase of staples for fall delivery, but their filling in needs are fairly important and goods are not accumulating in any usual volume. The mills still are hampered by labor difficulties and the output is restricted in several directions.

Of the 90,000 pieces of print cloths sold at Fall River, 60,000 were sold yesterday, when basis 64s on contracts. Prints are quiet. Manufacturers are endeavoring to secure concessions, but no move is being made to induce a revival by printers at this time. Bleached cottons are barely steady. Ginghams are in light call. Fancy cottons for spot delivery are in fair demand, but needs are confined to a few specialties, such as ratines, voiles, crepes, etc. Dress goods are somewhat quiet, but so few goods are offered for immediate shipment that trading at lower prices is of small volume.

Reports from the retailers indicate a seasonable distribution enhanced greatly by the warmer weather of the past few days. Export trade is quiet. Merchants are considerably impressed during the week by the good prices paid at a large auction sale of carpets and the wide distribution secured on them. Prices on cotton goods rule as follows:

Print cloths, 28-inch, 64x60s, 2¾c; 64x60s, 3c; 56x60s, 3¾c; 64x60s, 3¾c. Brown sheetings, Southern standard, 7¾ and 8c; denims, 9 ounces, 12½c; tickings, 8 ounces, 12½c; standard prints, 5½c; standard staple ginghams, 6½c; dress ginghams, 9½c.

Iron and Steel.

New York, May 3.—Pig iron has been on the down grade during the week and prices have touched low water mark. The furnaces are shutting down because of the slight demand. The stipulation as there is is based on contract deliveries. Little or no business is offered, the decline in prices failing to have a stimulating influence on demand.

New business in railroad equipment is light and shows a steady decrease. The mills are still busy, but on orders previously booked. On the first week in April it was reported that the Baltimore and Ohio had placed orders for 97 passenger cars, of which 50 were to be supplied by the Pullman Car and Foundry company and the rest by the Pullman company.

Last week the number of orders for locomotives totaled 42 and of cars 2,700, but though the returns have been satisfactory for April 1913, the totals will not be equaled this week. The tight money market is held responsible for the decrease in equipment orders.

The market for steel billets and sheet bars for early delivery is easier and steel for prompt during the third quarter is being freely offered.

MORTUARY

Dr. Henry Newton, Athens.

Athens, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—This afternoon at 5 o'clock occurred the funeral of Dr. Henry Newton, who, till his death, late last night, was the oldest living graduate of the University of Georgia. He graduated with the class of 1842. Rev. J. S. Cartledge, pastor of the Prince Avenue Presbyterian church, conducted the funeral services, impressively and simply, and the remains were laid to rest in Oconee cemetery. He is survived by two sons, Charles H. Newton, of Athens, and Mr. Thomas G. Newton, of Washington city, and by one daughter, Mrs. W. B. Reynolds, of Milledgeville.

Dave Bowen, Cuthbert.

Cuthbert, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—Dave Bowen, one of the best-known citizens here, died yesterday afternoon after much suffering. MANY OPEN THEIR HOMES TO PRESBYTERIAN DELEGATES

Mrs. George McCarthy, representing the ladies of the Baptist church made the banner report at a meeting yesterday of the hospitality committee acting in the interest of the Presbyterian conference, which will be held here this month. Mrs. McCarty had secured with the aid of her committee 144 homes for commissioners, $25 in money, and lodging for 20 men delegates in the Wesley Memorial building, where adequate arrangements for their comfort can be made. The meeting followed a luncheon at the Capital City club yesterday, when S. M. Inman and J. K. Orr were hosts.

Mrs. McCarty and her committee in two days had canvassed the congregations of every Baptist church in the community, and with but few exceptions every church has promised to do its part.

The committee included, besides Mrs. McCarty, Mrs. W. H. Wiggs, Mrs. Greenfield, Mrs. John Purser, Mrs. A. L. Colcord, Mrs. Clayton Calloway, Mrs. Alfred Fewell, Mrs. John E. White.

Mrs. Clarence Johnson was enthusiastically applauded when reporting for the ladies of the Methodist church, she announced that 127 homes had been received and 50 more promised.

Mrs. C. B. Wilmer made an excellent report for the ladies of the Episcopal church, her committee providing for 60 homes.

Other churches had representation in the list of hostesses, and the spirit of the meeting was to go on more liberally than ever in search of homes.

Thanked for Work.

M. S. Archibald Davis, president of the Union of Presbyterian Workers, presided at the meeting, and Mr. Inman and Mr. Orr thanked the ladies for the work they were doing. The ladies of the meeting were urged to send in individuals as well as in committees for certain homes.

A list of prominent Atlanta people was read, the ladies selecting names of hostesses whom they volunteered to see in the interest of the hospitality committee.

There was not a woman present who did not express a personal interest in the Presbyterian convention. Suggestions were made, and a number added to the list. There was no doubt at the conclusion of the meeting, that the 200 homes, which Mr. Orr said were still needed, would be supplied before Sunday.

The request has been made for more volunteers, so that those who can receive in their homes one or more of the elegates have been urged not to wait until the committee approaches them, but report their desire to help to any of the committee members, or to J. K. Orr or Jerre M. Moore.

The general and generous response of the ladies of all denominations to the call made by the Presbyterian church is characteristic of the attitude of Atlanta women whenever the call is made for them to co-operate in or to supplement any movement for Atlanta's good, whether it be along civic, religious, philanthropic or social. The enthusiasm in which they are at present active, may be said to embody all these lines, for the forthcoming convention will bring to the city men eminent in every line of achievement, markedly that of scholarship and uplift, and the purpose of the meeting is universal in breadth.

The presidents of the United States, several cabinet officers, and the new ambassador to the court of St. James, are expected to be here at one time, and every section of the union and every state will send delegations. It will be the first time since the war that the people of the north and the people of the south of the Presbyterian church will assemble to discuss their most vital mutual topics of interest, and the occasion will be epoch making in the history of the church, as well as in the history of the country.

The homes which have been added to the list previously reported follow:

HISTORIC ASTOR HOUSE TO BE CLOSED MAY 29

New York, May 3.—The historic Astor house on lower Broadway, once the principal hotel in the city, is to be closed May 29. Notice to this effect was posted in the hotel this afternoon. It is understood the property, or part of it, is to be sold to the city to make way for the new subway.

The management declared it was practically certain that the structure would be razed. What disposition will be made of that part of the property not used for subway purposes is not known. The city needs belongs to Vincent Astor, having come into his possession upon the death of J. J. Astor.

History and tradition have been associated with the Astor house for more than quarters of a century. The site was occupied by the Bull's Head tavern in the early days of Manhattan. The first John Jacob Astor acquired the property and in 1830 engaged an architect to design a hotel. Two years later the cornerstone was laid and in 1835 there was completed what was considered then the most palatial hostelry in America.

In ante-bellum days the Astor house was the scene of many famous meetings. Three rooms, the choicest in the house, were reserved for Daniel Webster, and if another guest happened to be occupying them when Webster arrived the guest had to move. Abraham Lincoln, Franklin Pierce, Martin Van Buren, James Buchanan, William H. Seward, Rufus Choate, General Winfield Scott, Jefferson Davis, Henry Clay, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Washington Irving, Stephen A. Douglas, Charles Dickens and Edgar Allen Poe were some of those whose names appeared on its register.

DOMESTIC SERVICE VERY GRAVE PROBLEM

New York, May 3.—Domestic service is a grave problem, not because servants are scarce, but because so many of them are incompetent and this incompetency is due largely to the attitude of employers, according to Herman Robison, municipal commissioner of licenses, in his annual report issued today.

The report is based on investigation of New York employment agencies.

The agents assert employers as a rule fail to sufficiently provide for servants' comfort and do not take into account their ambitions.

"The social standing of the servant," says the report, "is the most important factor in the problem."

WOOL SCHEDULE RUNS GAUNTLET

Rates of Underwood Measure Sustained by House—Several Democrats Protested Against Free Wool.

Warns County Democrats.

(From The Independence, Mo., Examiner.)

So many raw deals have been put over by the politicians in Jackson county without any apparent effect on the results of the elections that the politicians have evidently concluded that they can do anything and that the people will stand for it provided the next election is more than a year away.

If an election for county offices was held in this county tomorrow, the democrats could not carry eastern Jackson county.

It is curious fact that politicians never know when time has come until the have met the disaster. It is true with the old line republicans who continued their old tactics up to the Chicago convention. Exactly the same situation exists in the democratic party in Jackson county and also in the nation. *The only salvation for the democ*ratic party of the nation will be from the fact that the progressive element will control the party and leave the standpat democrats to join the standpat republicans.

It is a true thing in Jackson county that an official is permitted to outline the policies of his own office and to name his own deputies. One official said to this writer soon after he was elected that he named just one man out of more than thirty deputies in his office. The deputies were divided as nearly as might be between Joe Shannon and Tom Pendergast, each one naming half. And this is the condition which is well understood from the democratic politicians and the conditions which make possible and nominating of the county ticket by two men who are in the business for the purpose of dividing the spoils among their followers.

The Memorial day number of the Youth's Companion fittingly publishes a new kind of story of "the blue and the gray." It is called "Tallentyre's Cross," and it tells of the experiences of a southern boy in a northern school. To announce that the story is by Arthur Stanwood Pier is only another way of saying that it rivets the attention at once and holds it to the end, and is, furthermore, infused with a fine idealism.

Washington, May 3.—The wool schedule was passed without amendment by the house today in its consideration of the Underwood tariff bill. It went through with little excitement, the democrats carefully avoiding a ripple on the smooth waters of the democratic tariff program.

The republicans concentrated their attacks on the schedule by presenting a blanket amendment as a substitute for it. This substitute, prepared by Representative Payne, provided a rate of 18 cents a pound on raw wool, as against the free list in the Underwood bill, and comparative rates based on a duty of 18 cents a pound on the wool content of the various staged manufactured products. The republicans vociferously proclaimed their substitute to be in conformity with the report which the tariff committee made on the woolen schedules in 1909, and they declared as emphatically declared it was not. A deviation from democratic lines by members representing wool growing states failed to defeat the bill placing raw wool. The republican substitute was defeated and the Underwood schedule passed, 74 to 193. With the silk, paper and sundry schedules still to be passed, Representative Underwood hurried the house on after the wool fight with the worst of the tariff wrangle out of the way.

Bitter Attack on Schedule

The republican attack on the Underwood wool schedule was bitter. After three hours of general debate republican leader Mann and democratic leader *Underwood summed up the dis*cussion.

"Several years ago," said Mr. Mann, "we republicans provided for a tariff board. We stand by that. We want a revert of that board and present a woolen schedule based upon the information ascertained by it. For years the woolen schedule has been a point of controversy, and for the first time in the history of our tariff making we propose a scientific woolen schedule, and we will ascertain by the country to convert a tariff based on real information."

Mr. Mann pleaded for the support of the progressives, "temporarily detached from the republican party," but soon to return to our ranks." On the vote the progressives divided, some voting for and some against the schedule.

"The democratic party," continued Mr. Mann, "admit that this schedule means the death of the wool growing industry in this country. The democratic tells us this bill will kill the sugar industry, another tells us it will kill a part of the cotton industry, another chortles with glee that it will be ruined. We might set along if only the wool industry were slaughtered. We might do so if the cotton industry alone were sacrificed. We might get along if only one industry went down. But to slaughter all these together, that can not be done and retain prosperity in the land although God knows I hope that prosperity will remain in the land and I feel sure that the people will soon return to that economic policy which insured prosperity."

Underwood Replies to Mann.

Representative Underwood replied to Mann, *declaring the republicans them*selves were not interested in support of the Payne amendment.

"You say that you are learning something from the tariff board about this schedule," he shouted to the republicans. "You are learning that the sentiment of the American people is behind the democratic party and this tariff bill."

Representative Mann asked whether the ways and means committee had not at first favored a duty on raw wool but had "changed their minds at the request of the president."

"Candidly," answered Mr. Underwood, "this bill originally was written with a duty of 20 per cent on raw wool. But the difference between your party and ours is that we can get together and you can't."

"Enough on raw wool," he continued, "your bill follows the rates in our bill very closely. It also approximates the tariff board report. But you have cast on the subject of the duty on raw wool the tariff board was divided. Its report on that subject was a Scotch verdict."

Mann interrupted, said the president was entitled to as much consideration in the making of a tariff as any committee, and he lauded him for his general approval of the message if it came originally from the committee.

Many democrats freed from the binding rule of the caucus were outspoken in their opposition to the schedule, the protesting democratic members coming from Ohio, Texas, Indiana and other western states.

Wilson's Influence.

Representative Garner, of Texas, explained that those who advocated duty on wool first succeeded in committee, but free wool followed suggestions of the head of the party, the president.

"That," he added, "is nothing dishonorable. There is not a gentleman on this side who hasn't listened to suggestions from a republican president."

Representative Harrison, of New York, defended the schedule as prepared by the committee.

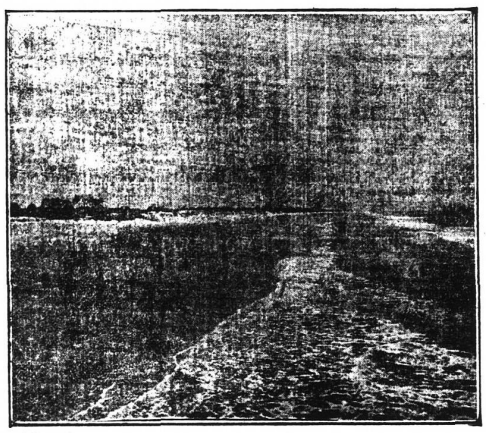
"After this bill is enacted into law," he said, "when a man buys an $

ATLANTIC BEACH

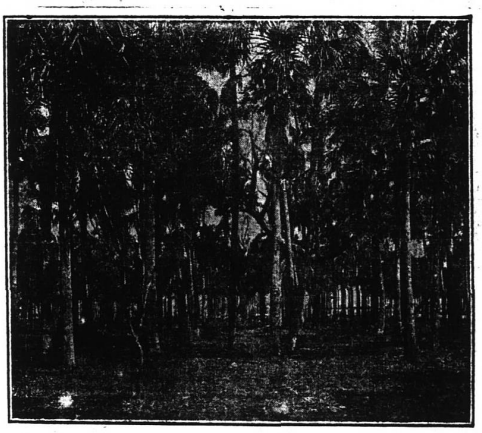
THE NEW CITY BY THE SEA

A new city is being built at Atlantic Beach, Jacksonville's splendid seaside resort, which through the past dozen years has been made famous by the Continental Hotel—Beautiful homes are rising along the bluffs that overhang the beach itself, and in the palm and oak-covered hammock behind it—there is no more attractive place in Florida nor in the South for year-around residence.

More than four thousand acres of forest land and ocean front are to be opened to home builders---a modern city with paved streets, electric lights, healthful drainage, and all the conveniences and necessities of comfortable living. The location is by the finest ocean beach in the South, seventeen miles from Jacksonville and connected with it by a splendid, hard-surfaced roadway and a convenient train schedule. An electric service is promised within the next few months, with an hourly schedule from Jacksonville.



Beautiful home sites by the beach or among the great palms, magnolias and oaks of Florida's splendid forests. There is no more attractive spot in the South.



Already a beginning has been made—nearly a thousand acres north of the road to the beach have been platted, streets have been laid out and cut through, building sites cleared and a score of beautiful bungalows and houses are actually going up as rapidly as men and material can be gathered for their construction.

The electric lighting plant is ready for extension along the streets and boulevards and into the houses. An artesian well is flowing thousands of gallons an hour, sufficient for a population of ten thousand people.

Atlantic Beach is owned and being developed by men of energy and experience who are backed by abundant capital. They will control the building of Atlantic Beach from the beginning and no feature will be allowed that can mar its desirability as a home place for men and women of refinement. Building restrictions and limitations will control the class of buyers and home builders.

Many beautiful bungalows and residences will be ready for occupancy within a few weeks—desirable lots on which the purchasers may build houses of their own designing will be offered for sale within a short time. There is no more attractive place in the South for homes, summer, winter, the year around.

The Atlantic Beach Corporation has its office on the property at the Beach. It is always open to receive visitors, who will be welcomed. An inspection of the property will be a revelation. The Company also has an office in the St. James Building, Jacksonville. If you cannot come, write for full information about this home development proposition. It is the largest that has ever been undertaken in the South.

On The Constitution Firing Line With the Commercial Travelers

The Merchants' Week In August

The decision of the Merchants and Manufacturers association to hold a merchants' week here next August, similar to the week held in August, 1912, will be heard with pleasure by the traveling men and merchants all over the south.

Many merchants come to Atlanta in the fall buying season, anyway, but the special attentions which can be given them through concerted action on the part of the wholesalers and manufacturers of the city during a special buyers' week undoubtedly attract many who would otherwise not feel especially drawn to this market.

It has been proven time and again that Atlanta is the best and logical market for the merchants of the south. Every merchant within a radius of 500 miles of the city will certainly find it to his benefit to come here on his regular buying trips. The wholesale business of the city is such that he can buy practically every line of goods he is handling better here than elsewhere. The wholesale lines here are exceptionally diversified, and the quality and prices are rendered particularly attractive by reason of the splendid freight rates which the merchant will enjoy and the speed in delivery which he can get by the proximity of this market.

Atlanta has been famous always for her splendid hospitality, and in extending the hospitality of these special weeks to the merchants she is living up to her reputation in a way which will prove that she is appreciative of the people upon whom rests so much of her prosperity.

As a word of advice to the merchants, let us advise everyone of them to make their preparations so that they will be able to come here in August. They will find it worth all the effort it may entail, and not only will they be entertained in a way that they will remember, but they will be given ample time to do their business, and the association will pay them their car fare to and from the city. Isn't it worth considering?

The association has already arranged to hold these merchants' weeks in February and August, 1914, and it is safe to say that every merchant who comes here this August will repeat his trip twice next year. It will be a good habit to get into, too.

Is There a Psychological Reason?

How is it that when a salesman is traveling for a house that carries a dozen different lines of goods, or more, that he will make big sales in one line and next to none in another? While his brother salesman, apparently under the same conditions, sells the line that salesman No. 1 practically ignores, and in his turn, gets no results with his partner's big seller.

This is a question in salesmanship that was recently brought up in the office of a leading local wholesale house, and no one there was able to give a satisfactory answer. The final decision was that it is just a matter of liking on the part of the salesman, and that there is no more reason than there is why a bachelor should like to talk with one young lady and not at all with another.

But there must be some reason. Possibly it is a deep psychological reason, and possibly it is simply a matter of training and territory. But whatever the reason is, it would be interesting to find it out. The readers of these columns are invited to give their views on the matter and maybe, with the help of many minds, it will be possible to arrive at some satisfactory conclusion. Send in the letters, anyway, and let us see what it is.

A Satisfactory Bread Account is a big asset, it brings a large number of people to your store. It is in daily demand and requires practically no investment. Tip-Top bread satisfies—hundreds of merchants will testify that it is the best seller in their house. Samples for the asking. A postal card will bring this and the price. Write us today.

WHAT THE WILD WAVES ARE SAYING

STRAIGHTFORWARDNESS!

A straightforward business will eventually go straightforward to success.

The man who is not straightforward is crooked. And the concern that is at all crooked will sooner or later step over the line from moral crookedness to legal crookedness.

By straightforwardness is meant absolute frankness in your dealings with all the people.

When you can't pay a bill, don't procrastinate, but tell your creditor frankly the why and wherefore of your inability. He will gladly give you every extension possible.

But if you are not frank with him and try to bluff him out of his dues, he will take steps to see that he is protected regardless of your wellbeing.

If you are always straightforward with your customers, they will come to rely in what you tell them. The biggest attraction to any store is absolute reliance in the statements of the proprietor.

Reliance outdoes even price in attracting trade and holding it.

Our good wishes are altogether with the retail merchants of Georgia, in their fight for the bills which will protect them from the deadbeat and the swindler. Honest business, unfortunately, needs protection, but its greatest protection lies in its own hands. Its honesty is that protection.

The salesman who deals in straightforwardness will endeavor to tell his trade the truths about the goods he is carrying at all times. The man who tries to sell goods on bluff and then goes out and tries to make the sales good with apologies will not last long. He is doomed to failure, where the man who sells the goods on their merits alone and sees that they are represented right, will grow continually until he reaches the goal of success, which is at the end of the straightforward lane.

It's a long lane that has no turning, but the lane which always goes ahead is sure to get there eventually.

JENKINS WRITES OF ENJOYABLE MEETING

Park Street Church Holds Banquet Which Many T. P. A. Members Attend.

Editor Constitution Firing Line: It was my pleasure to be present, last Tuesday evening, at one of the prettiest banquets that was ever spread in Atlanta. This was at Park Street Methodist church, in beautiful West End. The banquet was arranged by the ladies of the church for the male members, but the committee of lovely women was also there. God bless them; we find them at work in all the fields of noble endeavor. Side by side man and woman went out of the Garden of Eden, into the barren world, and ever since they have labored hand in hand. In times past they may have wandered far from their ideals, but they are returning. We find them jointly at work in every good cause that leads onward and upward to God. In this day and time man does not want a woman if woman cannot be permitted to share its glories with him. All are pulling together to achieve one grand and noble purpose—the bringing about of goodwill, happiness and truth on earth.

Everyone present felt better for having been at this banquet, and went away after three of the most pleasant hours ever enjoyed, feeling a brightness to help and a cheerful, active, intelligent, earnest wish to be useful. Speeches were made by Colonel E. V. Carter, Hon. Hubert Culberson, Colonel Ed Williams, Dr. J. W. White, Dr. T. D. Longino, Hon. R. A. Broyles, M. M. Davies and others. One of the best was by Mr. Floyd, superintendent of the Park Street Sunday school.

Mr. W. B. Disbro satisfied the 300 guests who wanted to know the cost of the new building. This gentleman deserves much credit for what he has done. He has been faithful, active, co-operative, until today the church has a membership second to none for beauty and religious growth. The property is worth about $100,000, with a balance of about $30,000 resting on the indebtedness. Our hearts with them, and we can count on those present in helping to cancel that debt. It is not impossible for us to live up to the high ideals as outlined by the speakers. One was the great duties of life is not to give pain, but pleasure. No one can find excuse for wounding the heart of a fellow creature. For our own good we should be generous and show kindness on the car, or off, at home or abroad, in the old loving way, as on Sundays in the busy throng during the week. We are all somewhat dependent on others and better served in what we might call the trifles of life when loved rather than if feared. The same rule will hold good in the weightier affairs of life. It is best to live well by laughing often and loving much. As Dr. S. R. Belk said, it will make the world grow and expand and all will be benefited. Yours very truly,

W. M. JENKINS,
Press Chairman T. P. A.

RAMBO WILL ATTEND.

Will Go to Southern Wholesale Dry Goods Association.

R. K. Rambo, the popular sales manager for John Silvey & Co., will attend the meeting of the Southern Wholesale Dry Goods association to be held in Chattanooga on Wednesday and Thursday this week. He will represent his firm at the meeting.

The Southern Wholesale Dry Goods association is rapidly growing into one of the most powerful organizations of its kind in the country. The progress made since its first inception is highly gratifying to the men who are doing so much to bring the south to the forefront of the wholesale business of the country—the wholesale dry goods men.

BUSINESS BUILDERS

THE SALESMAN'S MOTTO: I will accomplish everything within the power of energy, tact and resourcefulness; nay, more, I will attempt and overcome the impossible.

SALESMANSHIP.

Unless a salesman has the proper appreciation of his position in the business world, he does not stand a decent chance to make good in his work. The man who regards himself as merely a walking catalog and price list has no understanding of the duties of his position. The salesman who is fully informed as to his own duties will realize that he is much more than this and act accordingly.

One of the first duties of a salesman is to look out for the interests of his customers. To do this he should be alive to every advantage which can be secured by the class of business men on which he calls. He should be posted on all new ideas and movements for the betterment of that class of trade. If he is calling on the retail trade he should know of any bills which are before the legislature which will be of benefit to the retailers and should use all his influence towards the passing of these bills. He can do this by doing missionary work among the retailers themselves, many of whom are not as well posted as they should be on these matters which vitally concern them and their business.

Then he should know the latest ideas which have been found good for the direct betterment of the retailers' business. If he can keep himself posted on selling methods and window displays, etc., then he is just worth that much more to his trade and they will pay him in increased orders.

He should also so train himself that he will recognize at once when a retailer is doing something which is not good for his business and so be able to hang out the danger signal. If the merchant is giving too much credit, if he is buying in too large quantities, if he is employing too much help for the size of his business, the salesman who is alive to his mission will tactfully point out these facts to him and so help him to conduct his business in the way which will bring the biggest returns. The salesman should always remember that the better a business the retailer does the better business will he be able to do through him, and a big record on a good salesman's books is not made by forced sales and continuous new accounts, but by the careful and proper development of the old accounts.

There is one feature alone which the salesman should try to look after, and which is generally overlooked. That is the matter of fire insurance. The wholesale house which would not consider carrying a stock without adequate protection against fire will let retailers have almost unlimited credit who carry no fire insurance at all. The wholesaler should remember that until the goods are paid for they are virtually his, even if they are lying on the retailers' shelves. If a fire comes then, it is the wholesaler who suffers from the lost goods and not the retailer, for he has not paid for them and they have cost him nothing.

Many a firm spends time, money and trouble investigating the history of a credit applicant's family way back through generations, and yet they do not think to ask the man himself how their stock is going to be protected in case of fire. Yet the fire loss in this country is astounding and not a day passed but hundreds of retail stores are gutted by fire in the length and breadth of the land.

There are thousand of points such as this that the traveling salesman should do his best to look after. He is not only helping the retailers, but is helping and protecting his own firm also.

There are many angles to this question of salesmanship and the half has not yet been told. Nor will it be, until after the last man has entered into the long sleep and the last deal between human beings has been consummated.

RETAIL MEN.

There is a new spirit coming into the retail business of the country, which cannot be too highly commended. This is the spirit of co-operation, which was practically unknown to our forefathers.

Fifty years ago the favorite slogan of all business was "competition is the life of trade." That may have been true then, but it is no longer so. The different ages in the history of business are as easily traced as are those in the history of man. We are now going into the co-operative stage, and instead of trying to cut each others throats, the different merchants are seeing that in sane and wise work together they are able to give the public better service and better goods, which brings to them better profits and more lasting success.

The price cutter and the monopoly men, who would squeeze their smaller brethren out of business altogether, are like the hog in the trough who would keep all the other pigs from eating, whether he wanted to eat all the swill himself or not. The up-to-date business man, who strives to give the best to his trade and to get from there a fair, living profit in return, relizes that the prime factor in his being is the service of his customers, and that he can better assure them good service through active co-operation with his erstwhile rivals than by bitter enmity. It is a logical axiom that the ideas of two men must amount to more than the ideas of one. When two merchants can get together and exchange ideas without bickering an effort to outwit each other, the customers of them both will feel the benefit in the good ideas which each has been able to give to the other.

Then, there is probably no body of men in the world who are more poorly protected against the parasites that prey upon them, than the retail merchants. Now that they are learning to get together and compare notes for their mutual benefit, the power which they have as a whole is becoming evident to them all, and by this combination they are realizing that they wield enough influence and can work together in sufficient harmony, to force the powers that be to give them the protection which they have hitherto needed and cried for in such an ineffectual manner.

The direct result of this co-operation is seen in the way in which the retail merchants are making themselves felt all through the country, and in the rapid growth and popularity of the Retail Merchants' association, which are springing up all over the country.

PUBLICITY POINTERS.

Attractive originality is the keynote of successful advertising. None of the big advertisers in the country would have won any of their success if they had not displayed sufficient novelty in their advertising campaigns to make the public notice and talk about their copy.

The great trouble with many prospective advertisers today is that they do not grasp the original ideas which they do conceive. They let them go, thinking that anyway it would not work, and that probably somebody else has got the idea before. What if some one else has? The very fact that it is not generally known that they have is sufficient proof that they have not used the idea. A merchant should never be ashamed of his own original ideas. Use them and they will bring in the results in the way in which they will make people talk. There are thousands of ideas which come up every day, which would prove to be big paying publicity investments, only the men who think of them let them pass without acting on the moment when the idea is new and fresh in their minds.

"Did your collar scratch your neck when you twisted it to read? If so, send your collars to us and we will see that there are no rough edges to scratch your neck, no matter what position your are in."

Then place this card in the window upside down.

That is only one of thousands of novel ideas which would cause comment, and which have not yet been used—at least, not extensively.

Here is an idea for a traveling man. When you are sending out your advice cards to the trade you are to call on in the next few weeks, add at the bottom of each card the name of the leader you are pushing at the time. Write, "ask me about Blank's coffee," or whatever it is.

That is sufficiently novel to stick in the merchant's mind, and in many cases he will ask about the one thing which will give an opening for the selling talk.

There are thousands of these seemingly little ideas which can be worked up, and they will surely pay for the time, labor and expense of getting them out.

THE CREDIT MEN.

The advantage for the merchant in the getting together of the credit men of any market is large, if the merchant will only conduct his business in such a way as to take advantage of this benefit.

When a merchant has shown the credit man of a certain firm that he is worthy of trust and the extension of credit, that credit man is going to give a favorable report on that merchant to all other credit men who ask about him. The value of a credit men's association where the members get together at regular intervals and exchange notes and ideas, is thus enhanced to the merchant who does his business on an open, above-board basis and treats the credit man of the old firm with proper consideration and fairness. That credit man will repay this by speaking a good word for the merchant when he meets his brother credit men at the meetings, and will thus start the merchant on the way to securing a good line of credit from all the different houses represented in the association.

But to get the benefit of having a credit man favorable to him, a merchant should remember that he must treat that credit man properly.

It is an unfortunate habit on the part of many merchants when they get into financial troubles to not tell their creditors about it, but to simply ignore the letters about the accounts due, or past due, and to rely on procrastination being able to put off the day when they will be forced to account for their bills.

Procrastination will never be able to do the work that frankness will, and the merchant who changes frankness for the other is trading one of the strongest allies he can have in the conduct of his business for a thief of his fair name and an evil partner who will only prove to be a snare and a delusion.

Merchants, be frank with your creditors. When your bills fall due, meet them if you can, but if you can't, write and tell the true situation. If you desire an extension, the credit man will, in nine cases out of ten, grant it freely and voluntarily if you are truthful and frank with him. Whereas if you are evasive and either do not give proper answer to his inquiries, or else ignore them altogether, the credit man is going to get his money from you just as quickly as he can, by the easiest means he can, and is not going to grant you the credit you will desire in the future. For your welfare, treat these credit men right, be frank and get in the good graces of the men who make your business possible. They will give each other reports about you at their meetings and the best report will not necessarily be about the man who has the largest amount of capital invested in his business. Business honesty is capital that you may have just as freely as anyone and the sooner you get it the better are you in position to conduct a business, such as you have dreamed of at the time when you thought the country was reformed. Reform yourself and you will find that the greater part of your country is reformed also.

P. W. PERCY RETURNS TO HIS OLD LOVE

P. W. Percy, one of the best known salesmen who have ever traveled out of Atlanta, is back with the A. M. Robinson company. Mr. Percy used to travel for this company years ago, and it is now ten or twelve years since he last carried samples of the Aragon brand. He states that he has not been able to find anything else quite so good to sell and so has returned to the connection with which he made a splendid reputation years ago.

Mr. Percy will handle the South Carolina territory for the company and left for that state last Friday.

An Appeal for Broad-Gauge Merchants

By JOHN BRATTON.
Secretary Georgia Retail Merchants' Association.

A broad gauge merchant is one who believes in a live and let live policy. By this we mean one who is willing that other merchants be given the same show in the commercial life as he, and who is willing to co-operate with his brother merchants in any move looking to improved conditions.

The regret is that there are some merchants who are not of the broad-gauge kind, but on the other hand are narrow and self-contained in their views and unwilling to grant the other fellow even a half loaf. Ever ready to find fault and oppose any move in which they do not see self aggrandizement and a liberal share of profit or benefit to themselves.

The broad gauge merchant stands ready at all times to encourage and suggest ways and means of improvement of those interests of which he is a part. Ready to give of his time and money to the end that his competitors (or rather colleagues) may share with him in the prosperity that may come from his efforts in a common cause.

The narrow gauge merchant is, of course, the opposite of the broad-gauge one, and is always on the look-out for an opportunity to throw cold water on every project in which he is not the prime mover. Co-operation is an unknown quantity in his make-up, and he sees no good in anything that does not imply individual success for him.

Special Representative Roberts, of the Retail Merchants' association of Georgia, who has been touring the state in the interest of the garnishment and fraudulent check bills, has had ample opportunity to observe the classes enumerated above, and conversation with him has suggested our theme. "More is the pity," says Mr. Roberts, "that there are not more of the broad-gauge merchants. Wherever we have come in contact with him our work has been easy and he was not long in seeing that the work we were doing was for his good and that he should come out from behind the wall of indifference and self-complacency into the lime-light of active energy and effort in his own behalf in order that his own interests might be best sub-served."

Mr. Roberts sums up the situation aptly and to the point. He cites conditions as they are in a nutshell and proves conclusively that the average merchant is not of the broad-gauge kind, and stands in his own light, thus retarding the growth and prosperity of the merchant body. A lack of co-operation on the part of the merchants of the state with the officers of their state association accounts for the slow progress in the enactment of the legislation needed by them. Since its inception the Retail Merchants' association of Georgia has been striviaing diligently and persistently to remedy conditions as related to the retailers of the state. That they need remedying is not questioned by those who give the subject any thought whatever, and were our merchants all thinking men, the aim and purposes of our organization would have been accomplished ere this. One victory would now be inscribed on our banner. Much good, however, has been accomplished. Where there was only a handful at the start, the ranks have been recruited until now we have a splendid army of co-workers—broad-gauge merchants—laboring with an eye single to the laws that would give to the truest merchant the protection to which he is entitled against the dead-beat and the swindler and we believe that before many moons shall have passed over our heads they can as one mighty chorus exclaim, "Eureka!"

While we have a superabundance of hope and faith and will give to the ultimate result of our labors, yet we realize that there is still much work that remains to be done, and that only through untiring effort on the part of the merchants throughout the state can the ends desired be attained.

We submit herewith for your consideration the comparison of two mercantile characters. We have arrayed one against the other; to which class do you belong? Are you a broad-gauge or a narrow-gauge merchant? It will not require a very close investigation for you to determine this. If you are with the latter class for God's and your own sake, and the sake of your family and your brother merchant, move over into the class of the broad-gauge merchants, those who do things because it is right that they should, and who lay aside petty jealousies, exemplifying the highest degree of patriotism in that they are willing to sacrifice personal interests that the greatest good may come to the greatest number of those engaged in mercantile pursuits.

Don't be a goat any longer. Get in the foreground with your brother merchants in the sunlight of progressiveness and demand of our lawmakers such laws as will put you on an equal footing with other interests. Do it, and do it now.

MUCH POLITICS IN JAP QUESTION

Asserted That Gov. Johnson and Other Roosevelt Followers in California Want to Embarrass Wilson.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, D. C., May 3.—(Special.) California seems determined to enact legislation which will make it impossible for Japanese subjects to own land in that state.

As a concession to President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan the language of the bill drawn by Attorney General Webb may be altered to prevent a direct discrimination against the Japanese, but without changing its purpose. The state solons seem determined on that point.

Political considerations, as well as racial prejudice are involved in this move which threatens to give offense to a friendly government. Governor Hiram Johnson and the other progressives in the state legislature see a chance to make political capital at home and to embarrass the administration at Washington, and they are going to do it.

Mr. Bryan's trip to the Pacific coast has been futile. He urged the legislature to consider the broader question of the nation's obligations under its treaties, and to avoid if possible giving offense to a country with which we are on friendly terms.

Situation Not Desperate.

That the local situation is not desperate is proven by the utterances of the California press. The San Francisco Chronicle takes this position and says: "If California enacts legislation which Japan claims infringes her treaty rights and for which that country will hold, not California, but the whole nation responsible, we may expect that the nation will turn upon the state and make its power felt in ways we shall not like."

The Los Angeles Times says the proposed law is "neither wise, just, nor called for by any condition now existing or likely to exist, and its enactment would be a wicked and inexcusable blunder."

Such outspoken criticism of the proposed anti-Japanese statute by the newspapers which are as familiar with actual conditions in the state as the members of the legislature, must carry considerable weight.

But there is an intense hostility to the Japanese in California and other Pacific coast states. In the beginning it was based on economic grounds, but racial antipathy is said to partly account for it. The labor unions drove the Japanese out of organized industries, and into the country. Now the farmers are turning against the Japanese and wish to be rid of them.

The Californians who wish to drive the Japanese out of the state and out of the country say they do so in the interest of the future. One member of congress from the state said: "We must keep fighting all the time if we are to eliminate the menace which the presence of the Japanese constitutes to our farmers, our laborers, our families and our institutions."

It is apparent that the problem is largely one of numbers. A small number of Japanese laborers were appreciated, but as they became more numerous and economically more independent and ambitious the problem caused by their presence was intensified. They were not wanted as neighbors and when they succeeded in buying up farm land or city property, the value of neighboring property depreciated. The presence of Japanese children in the schools led to dissatisfaction and caused an international dispute during President Roosevelt's administration.

100,000 Japs in United States.

The latest statistics show there are about 100,000 Japanese in the United States, mainly in the Pacific coast states, and about one-half of these are in California. Here they constitute 7 per cent of the male population.

Under the passport agreement, entered into between the United States and the Mikado's government, the immigration of males has practically ceased, but the women are coming in increasing numbers. Many of them are so-called "picture brides," women married in Japan to men they have

DAISY TIME

THREE charming frocks for spring afternoon wear are shown on this page, they are all of light, dainty fabrics and are extremely pretty and artistic in their simplicity. The first is of figured voile, and is made with draped tunic, a becoming style to slight figures. The kimono blouse and elbow sleeves show a fashion which has again come into favor, though the kimono blouse can hardly be said to have lost its popularity at any time. The second gown of rose linen, is simple and shows the Robespierre collar which has been found so comfortable for summer wear. The remaining figure shows the back of the first gown. The hats pictured on this page are smart and becoming affairs of light chip or straw.

The Well Dressed Woman

What Is Worn By the Smart Parisienne

Paris, France, April 22, 1913.

NEVER have Summer costumes been more alluring. All of the small, smart and ultra-exclusive shops found about the Rue de Rivoli and the Place de l'Opera are showing such fascinating models these days that it is difficult to pass by any one of them. Each suit, frock and gown has some salient attraction which gives it so much distinction such an air of being unlike its neighbors that the first impulse is to secure it before some other wanderer happens along. Then second thought always more sane than the first idea, suggests deliberation. "The model may not look as charming to-morrow. Moreover, is it not folly to cumber the wardrobe with a superfluity of cotton and lingerie garments, since the season at Deauville, Trouville is comparatively brief and the closets in the hotel villas whose awning-shaded windows look straight over the beach or gaily-painted bathing-cabins are spacious? A celebrated comedy actress and a notably well-dressed woman, who always Summers at the famous Normandy resort, declares sotto voce that with fifteen thin costumes one can get comfortably through the two months at the seaside. She divides the necessary outfit into five sets of three thin morning frocks, tailored suits, luncheon costumes, afternoon house robes and evening gowns. Naturally the yachting, motoring, bathing, golfing, tennis and riding attire belong to the sport wardrobe and cannot possibly be included in the regular outfit for the seashore.

Morning frocks are actually simple chiefly of bordered cotton voiles or crepes, they have small, unpressed skirts gathered into manually-placed waistbands and wide-hung, kimono-sleeved blouses that would seem severely plain were it not for the sheerness and softness of their materials and the dash of color in their borderings. Nearly always the collar of linen or voile or crepe is a narrow affair turned flatly back from a round-cut, but not a low-cut neck, and fastening under a little satin bow or cravat. The frock must look as though it could be put on without the aid of a femme de chambre. Madame or Mademoiselle having taken her chocolate, glances out of a window, sees that the day is fair, sheds slippers and negligee and, in a trice, is ready to wander about the garden overhanging the gray Normandy cliffs. On her way out she has picked up a crownless sun-hat whose flower-trimmed wide brim shades her eyes and complexion, and a shoulder cape made of a draped length of flowered silk. Even when not really youthful nor particularly beautiful, the boudoir costume frock, the wide-brimmed garden hat and the gauzy-scarf transform her into a living picture perfectly suited to the landscape.

* * *

LATER in the morning when she drives down to visit the bathers she will have changed her costume for a tailor-made. Cotton-backed crepe and knitting-locking silk jersey suits, with many of the hand-embroidered lapped over skirts of tailor-made linen suits in oyster, celeste, tobacco, chamois or vieux rose, but the favorite seaside jacket is the Russian blouse. This garment, continued from last Winter's smartest when closed at the throat, but the length of its pointed side depends upon the shape of the individual wearer. Rarely, except the tall, it best becomes some figures. For others it should be extended far below the thighs and there are instances when only a knee-length belted coat seems proper. Some of the smartest but wealth-tailored Russian blouse suits are of white cotton voile trimmed with bands of Bulgarian hand-embroidery or of coarse cern crepe with beautifully embroidered, self-colored bands. Not always are the sleeves of the conventional shape. There is a tunic for cutting them of three-quarter length and gathering them into rather small cuffs and under wadly turned cuffs of for having the upper portion in cut with the shoulders and the above the elbows attaching under an embroidered band or a line of heavy stitching, a lower section which is rather full and put the wrist gathered and in a narrow cuff. In brief, from the elbow down this type of sleeve is like that belonging to a man's shirt.

Luncheon costumes of sheer materials are lovely creations which look as though they might be easily copied and at small expense. But they are a delusion and a snare. In the first place the leading designers seem loath to put into beautiful materials and instead of shaping the skirts with scissors, they swathe them about the figure as only an artist can, gather any top fullness into a waistband, dispose of any loose end into a sash and put the remainder of the costly robe of hand-embroidered linen and Irish, of voile and Venise, of English eyeletting and Valenciennes, into the bodice. If material for sleeves, yoke or plastron is lacking, mallines, all-over lace or net takes its place. In addition to these exquisite coin lengths there are cottons printed with colored patterns like those of the foulards and the Japanese silk crepe. A delusively simple looking type of luncheon costume has an accordion-plaited white lawn skirt and a tunic of sheerest white lawn printed with a marvelously effective large yellow rose and green foliage design, worn over a point lace guimpe and trimmed with a single hand-embroidered batiste sever turned back upon the left front. As this tunic, its low-cut neck, its yoke and its wrist-length sleeves are piped with yellow satin, by no stretch of the imagination can it be considered a tub-frock. It must go regularly to the cleaner and that is why the comedy actress has ordered three of them. Without that number she couldn't keep presentable during her Normandy holiday.

AFTERNOON house robes for the seaside are merely simple one-piece negligees evolved from the side-seat or voiles, marquisettes and mousselines mounted upon China silk and draped with lengths of lace. The transparent tunic and the loose coat portion of the afternoon house robe has been outlined mainly by the shawl-sleeved effect. The strips of broad lace are carried from under the arms or from near the waist line at the front of the figure, drawn over the shoulders and crossed at the center of the back—at the girdle, at the hips or at the knees. It all depends upon the quantity of lace to be used. So long as the upper side of the forms are veiled to the elbow there need not be any set-in or cut-in sleeves. Nor should the decolletage be low. It is the treatment of the upper arm and the neck which mainly distinguishes the afternoon house robe from the evening gown.

Dinner gowns for Summer are most fascinating when draped in classic manner, as nearly as possible to follow the lines of a Greek statue's robe, even to the catching in of the material below the knees so that a pair of exquisitely-dressed ankles and feet shall show. The draperies are mounted upon a satin slip, but as that material does not go above the bust line nor below the ankles, the gown gives an impression of being wholly chiffon, mallines or finely meshed lace, embroidered more or less elaborately with pearls or crystals. Because the left upper arm is veiled is not a good reason for supposing that the right one is partly covered. Usually that useful member is decorated with a skeleton sleeve of loosely interwined strings of jewels, one of them forming a slender shoulder strap. As this grade of "jewel" is purchased by the pound, it is not a temptation to burglars.

EGERIA DE LA VALLIERE.

Novel Ideas for the Springtime Wedding

FOR all Spring and early Summer weddings, importers have let their imaginative fancies have full reign, and never before have such dainty conceits come to us as the Parisian couturier and milliners have conceived this year. Quite new are the bridesmaids' sets which are composed of various feminine accessories. One set includes a parasol, hat, slippers and boudoir cap, all developed from the same material with the same scheme of decoration. Hand painting is the chic note that dominates these creations. The parasol, rather small in circumference and deeply fluted, is made of softest white silk with a garland of pink roses and dull toned leaves, which furnish the conventional border. The handle of white enameled wood is very long and it is garnished near the end of the stick with a bunch of exquisitely handmade rosebuds.

The hat that accompanied the parasol was of soft, white straw, very flat and round, trimmed with folds of hand-painted ribbon of the same motif as that used on the parasol, and beneath the brim a bandeaux of crushed roses was so arranged as to nestle against the hair. The boudoir cap was also of white silk, with pink roses painted upon the crown, and outlining the face was the soft edge of white marabou. This cap is charmingly constructed, very simple, but having the graceful lines which are becoming to almost any contour. The boudoir slippers were also white with vamps decorated with tiny, hand-painted roses, and rosettes of baby ribbon. They had high heels, but were flat in the back so that the foot could slip in without effort.

Another set was composed solely of a hat and a huge muff, constructed of fluffy chiffons of palest mauve, deepening into lavender. Exquisite orchids, painted by a master hand looked as though they had been lightly dropped into place. The hat was a dream of a chiffon crepe creation, light and airy—the brim made of several layers of this material, and the crown trimmed with a wreath of mauve and lavender orchids which were made by hand. This hat was the acme of daintiness and simplicity and seemed just fitted for the occasion for which it was intended.

Negligees are more bewildering than ever in their loveliness, with ooey flouncings and draperies of sheer laces, part of which form the "berthas" and with their narrow skirts and high waist lines, look more like dainty opening gowns, than garments to lounge in. Crepes de chine lend themselves best for these soft, clinging gowns, lined with thin India silk to give a bit of extra warmth. All the boudoir slippers must match the negligees both in color and material.

The hat on this model is of soft Milan in the popular straw color, and faced with black hemp. A band of brilliant Bulgarian ribbon extends around the crown and is tied in a bow at the back.

Slippers For The Girl Who Likes Novelties

THE woman of fashion is paying more and more attention to the details of her toilet, and with the Spring and Summer modes are shown a bewildering display of footgear. The slippers, especially, are becoming more ornate and varied, and during the past seasons their chief ornamentation has been displayed in elaborate buckles of rhinestones, jet, cut steel and enamels, some possessing real gems of great value—but now the luxurious age demands still more extravagant effects and beautiful workmanship and ingenuity are extended to the heels of slippers as well as to the toes and vamps.

Now in the dance, or when the foot is displayed, flashes of color or a dazzling sparkle is emitted, which adds to the brilliance of the costume. And the jewels must be harmonious as well as the color of The slippers themselves, and a gown that hints of golden hues has slippers made of cloth of gold with buckles and heels of gold tracery, incrusted with topazes. If the gown is blue, a buckle, developed of a single sapphire, surrounded by rhinestones, carries out the color scheme, and a slender row of emeralds run between two of rhinestones is the proper conceit to accentuate a green motif. Jet and rhinestones are also a popular combination to be worn with black gowns.

It is a real necessity that all jeweled settings upon footgear should be of good workmanship, because any bit of metal that is not perfectly flat and smooth endangers the material of the skirt and may be the means of pulling and destroying fine fabrics. So for this purpose the stones are cupped instead of held in place by prongs, and the edges are all well finished.

Jeweled heels are treated in different ways and therefore vary a good deal in price. The most expensive ones that were first shown were carried out in real jewels. The artisan created dainty traceries in silver or platinum set with small diamonds, and this completed design was then fastened in place to the slipper heel. Then came the idea of making plates of various metals, of silver or plated silver, which were modeled to fit the curve of the wooden foundation of the heel and securely fastened to it by a patent attachment. This metal was then incrusted with rhinestones and colored paste jewels. An imported novelty shows the heel of satin or leather or celluloid, embedded with intricate designs of rhinestones. A pair of patent leather slippers was treated in this fashion, with the heels of a material that looked like enamel inset with stones, and the buckles matched the heels both in design and color.

Every color of gown has been reproduced in the slipper, and indeed, where one pair of slippers used to suffice for evening wear, the woman who wants to keep up with the prevailing modes must own half a dozen pairs at least. Colonial ties and pumps are also made to match gowns for street wear, and charming combinations of taupe suede and leather are very smart, as well as those in brown, navy and mauve.

TEST YOUR DRESS SAMPLES

To find out whether a fabric claimed to be all wool contains cotton or not, boil a sample in a strong solution of caustic soda, obtainable at any drug store. The wool will dissolve with this test, and if there is any cotton in the sample it will remain unharmed.

To test silk, soak a sample in concentrated hydrochloric acid, which will at once dissolve the silk, leaving the other fibers untouched.

Linen suspected of containing cotton should first be boiled in clear water. After drying place the sample for seven minutes in a mixture composed of three parts sulphuric acid and two parts nitrate of potash. Wash the sample again and dry; then place in a mixture of ether and alcohol. This will dissolve the cotton and leave the linen untouched. Use a small stick when testing. It only takes a few moments to make a test, and you are then sure of the quality paid for.

SOME MILLINERY SECRETS

SO many girls trim their own hats and trim such truly stylish ones, too, that look much more original and becoming than those one sees in the shops, that it does seem a shame to let those milliners get away with so much of our hard-earned money, doesn't it? At least, we think so until the girl takes off her hat, or refuses to do so, confessing that "the inside is a sight," or "I haven't had time to line it," or "I simply can't get a lining to go in right." And it is in finishing the inside as well as the out that the much-maligned milliner earns her, apparently, big profit.

But this need not be the case at all, if one will only once take the trouble to study out just how a lining should go and the right way to hold it when sewing. Then after once learning the trick, it will be a very simple task, and one need not fear any prying eyes that may peep inside that good-looking hat, for the lining will reveal no amateurish marks.

Instead of buying a hat lining in the millinery department, where they cost ten cents each, one will save many pennies by purchasing a half or a quarter yard of china silk, according to the number of hats to be lined. This costs about fifty cents a yard, and a quarter of a yard will make two linings. Measure the depth inside of the crown of the hat and cut the silk two inches wider, to allow for the casing and for it to extend to the center of the crown.

When one reaches the starting point again, the two ends of the lining should be sewed into a seam, using, now, thread to match the lining, then a casing must be run in the other side, and drawn up with a bit of new black or white bebe ribbon. A fresh lining, put in last year's hat will do more than one imagines towards making one feel comfortable in it, if it is otherwise fresh enough and quite serviceable for a second best hat or one for a rainy day.

Often just a new feather or a bow put on to cover the parts that showed last season and are faded, and leaving bare the part covered before by the trimming, with a binding on the brim will make a very good looking hat if the shape is becoming.

Another hat that will prove most useful may be made by covering a wire frame with tulle. Brown tulle generally makes a prettier and more Frenchy looking hat than a color or even black or white tulle. One may use for the foundation any odd pieces of brown net or tulle left from bows or facings from old hats, first pressing them lightly with a warm iron. Then collect any flowers from old hats and corsage bouquets that are at all presentable, pick out the leaves and petals and wipe off the dust, then add a few, only a few new flowers and some fresh leaves. The most successful way is to use white flowers for the old ones, as the colored ones unless they be American Beauty roses, are apt to have faded an ugly shade—but forget-me-nots and such small ones, pansies too, will almost always do a second or third season. Bind the brim with a bit of velvet of a becoming shade, and wind the wires with tulle, then cover the entire hat with the flowers, and over all put one thickness of new brown tulle, with a coquettish bow at a becoming angle. The slight veil of tulle covers up all discrepancies in the flowers and no one will guess that this springlike chapeau was not a bit of extravagance that you were tempted into, unless you tell them, which you probably will, for one always pays well for a flower hat in the shops.

With a suit such a hat makes one look well dressed up, or with a linen gown or a summer muslin, it may be worn on almost any occasion when a street hat it too plain and a picture hat too elaborate.

This snug fitting little hat is fashioned of fine straw, the long line effect being given by the arrangement of the feather which is twisted at the end. Purple straw and vermilion red feather would be a good color scheme for this hat.

A NEW VEIL

It is accordion plaited, and has a number of practical points. It is easy of adjustment, as it clings to the edge of the hat, and it can be conveniently rolled up and carried about in a handbag without becoming mussed. The material may be either net or chiffon, but soft chiffon is the most satisfactory. You may have the plaits run any direction that you choose. The selvage forms the top and bottom finish, and hems are necessary only in the back. A plait three-eighths of an inch deep is a good size. Consult a plaiter as to the amount of material required for a certain shape and size. The finishing of the edges must be done before the plaiting is put in.

Dressy Little Bows for the Neck

This is a season of bows, and there are a great variety of designs. Small bows of color, showing a combination of silk and lace, or velvet and lace, are especially attractive. Many are trimmed with rhinestone buttons. Quite a number are made with ends in jabot form, the bow at the top being rather small. Bulgarian silks are made up into bow and jabot effects. Other materials employed are crepe de chines, plain taffetas, and flowered silks. Besides the entire bow of Bulgarian design, touches of Bulgarian colors are also used in giving an enlivening touch of color to many of the plain designs.

LACE UNDERSKIRTS

There are ever so many dresses for young girls with straight or slightly draped tunics opening over underskirts composed of three or four ruffles of soft lace. These ruffles are sometimes made of fine net edged with a thread in some bright color which is repeated in the sash, or used as a narrow velvet piping for the neck and sleeves. This edging of a couple of strands of colored silk or thread forms a very pretty finish for net ruffling.

Dainty Marks for Lingerie

Every girl should have a particular mark for her lingerie, which should appear on all her belongings. It may be her monogram, initial in design, or a favorite flower, such as a daisy, violet, forget-me-not, or other small flower. If a simple initial is used, it will be a great saving of labor and expense to use the initials cut from discarded handkerchiefs, as they are almost as good as new.

Colored Barrettes and Pins

Various styles of rhinestone ornamented barrettes, hair ornaments, and bar pins instead of being in tortoise or amber are made of light transparent colored composition in tones of blue, amethyst, green, etc. The effect is beautiful.

SMART PARASOLS

Filmy fabrics like chiffon, lace, and tulle are preferred for decorative effects, although practical parasols are still made of taffeta. Gay fabrics and colorings are made without lace or net covering, but veiled, printed satins and silks which harmonize with the many frocks are popular. Stripes are much used, black and white framed with a wide, black border, as well as pin stripes with tiny bouquets of prim flowers flung in between.

There is the parasol with edges turned up abruptly all around, and another with turned up effect at the corners of each rib only. Then there is the palm-shaped parasol, which spreads out between the ribs like a palm leaf, and another which is shaped exactly and in every way resembles a lingerie lampshade. For the coquettish maiden there is the gaily ruffled parasol which sets out like the skirts of a belle of 1830.
