$750,000 Bond Issue For Greater Hospital Urged by Committee

Aggressive Plans for Improvements Decided Upon at Joint Conference of the Council's Plaza Committee and Hospital Ways and Means Committee.

MAYOR URGES ELECTION ON PLAZA AND HOSPITAL HELD AT THE SAME TIME

If It Is Impossible to Persuade Legislature to Pass on Plaza in Time, However, Woodward Says This Project Can Be Voted Upon at Later Date.

Aggressive plans for the improvement of Grady hospital, through the issuance of bonds aggregating $750,000—possibly a million dollars' worth—for new buildings and equipment, were launched at a joint conference between council's plaza committee and the hospital ways and means committee yesterday afternoon.

Resolutions strongly urging Atlanta's general council to authorize the issuance of hospital bonds were adopted. At the next meeting of council the first step towards getting the issue floated will be taken. Leading physicians interested in the growth of Grady will begin work immediately to interest voters of Atlanta in the project. If the committee's educational campaign can be carried out in six weeks the hospital bonds will be submitted to the people at the election in May. Should the committee decide that the campaign cannot be carried out in such a short length of time the election will be deferred until August.

Wants Election at St. ♦ Time.

Mayor James G. Woodward took the position that the bond issue should be predicated on the plaza project alone, and both should be submitted to the people on their respective merits. The mayor indicated that he does not favor consolidating the items to be voted in one lump sum.

"Let the issues stand on their respective merits," he told the committee. "Hold the elections at the same time. If we can't get the legislature to act on the plaza project, the hospital bonds can be voted on and the plaza bonds could be voted upon at some later date."

Mayor Woodward's attitude caused the committees to agree that the hospital bonds should be severed from the plaza bonds. The agreement was unanimous. The mayor, however, gave his hearty indorsement to the plans for improving Grady, and, while he did not say to what extent he will support the movement, it is understood he are satisfied that the mayor's help will materially aid the scheme.

For the first time the agitating bonds for improving the hospital, Dr. W. S. Summerall, superintendent of Grady, outlined his plans for the expenditure of the $750,000 in bonds proposed for improvements. They include new outdoor clinic, dispensaries, laboratories and other facilities, $100,000; nurses' dormitory, $150,000; contagious disease hospital, $50,000; contagious disease sanitarium for whites, $125,000; hospital building for negroes, $125,000; children's hospital, $50,000; boiler rooms, laundry, kitchens, dietitians and other buildings, $50,000, and $50,000 for the purchase of a strip of land now used as a park in order to isolate the hospital.

Equipment of the buildings is not included in Superintendent Summerall's plans.

Cost of Maintenance.

According to his estimate the maintenance of the hospital with the improvements planned will necessitate an appropriation of $300,000 annually from council. Dr. Summerall stated that with the co-operation of the county, from which $25,000 should be derived annually for the care of county patients, the burden on the city will not be very great.

Included in the plans is a proposition to increase the facilities for caring for pay patients.

"With increased facilities for caring for pay patients the city will derive revenue sufficient to pay the interest on the bonds and create a sinking fund for their retirement at maturity," Dr. Summerall suggested. "Thus the bond issue will not be a burden on the taxpayers."

Dr. W. S. Elkin, one of the leaders in the movement to improve Grady, declared that the present time is the most comprehended establishment of the greatest hospital in the south, but also means making Atlanta a medical mecca rank among the finest in the United States.

"The whole scheme will make Atlanta a great center of medical education," said Wilbur L. Glenn, ex-president of the chamber of commerce.

Must Have Legislative Consent.

Aside from the question of getting the plaza and hospital projects, nothing definite was done with the former scheme. The city must get the consent of the legislature to improve the Western and Atlantic property, and the consent of the various railroads entering the old union station must also be secured. The latter will require legislation to the legislature in July, asking that the city be allowed to issue $2,000,000 in bonds for the project, which includes the erection of a new station and office building at about privately owned, the state or the railroads, and the burden of the issue resting on the shoulders of the property owners who will be benefited to the extent of having their property given a street opening.

Mayor Woodward believes the legislature will approve the improvement, and he expects that in a few days conversation with President Payton of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad, he approved the project.

The conference held Tuesday afternoon in the mayor's office was attended by Drs. W. S. Elkin, W. S. Jones and W. S. Summerall and A. H. Forsman, representing the hospital, and Councilman Claude Ashley and A. H. Colcord and Alderman R. Kelley, representing the city council, and Wilmer L. Moore, representing the chamber of commerce. Harvey W. Wimbish represented the Western and Atlantic committee.

SMITH IS GIVING HIS SERVICE FREE TO JAMES CONLEY

Family of His Client Unable to Furnish Funds for His Defense, Says Attorney for Negro Sweeper.

SMITH WILL PUSH PLEA FOR NEW CONLEY TRIAL

Even Though Judge Should Decline Frank New Trial, Extraordinary Motion Will Delay Execution Date.

Attorney William M. Smith, counsel for Jim Conley's defense, is furnishing his services to the negro with no expectation of financial remuneration. Ever since the earlier stage of Conleyes participation in the famous Frigan mystery, Smith has not received a penny. This was brought out on yesterday afternoon.

Smith was originally employed by contract in the case, however, but was later dismissed. Because of the negro's insistent plea for him to keep the case, and because of the attorney's conception of legal ethics, he decided to continue his services.

He says he have little to say regarding the disclosure when a Constitution reporter visited him in his offices Tuesday afternoon, except to admit the fact that he was receiving no fee, and that he anticipated none. Inasmuch as his client's family connections were unable to furnish funds even for expenses.

Keeps Case at Loss.

He also stated that he intended to continue in the case, although at a financial loss to himself. "It is merely a matter of legal principle," he told the reporter. "He was unable to employ counsel himself, and his employers, Smith's Private Detective agency, positively refuse service in suppressing the Ulster irreconcilables. They criticise his majesty for dealing personally with Field Marshal Sir John French, chief of the general staff, and General Sir Arthur Paget, commanding the forces in Ireland, who, they have been charged with, they think, only by the secretary of state for war, in accordance with the customary official routine.

The government has promised, to throw more light tomorrow on the recent history by giving parliament all the written communications with General French and officers now under arrest, but how far the negotiations were carried on by written communications remains to be seen.

Explicit Information Wanted.

The government's two spokesmen, Colonel Seely, secretary for war, in the house of commons, and Viscount Morley, of Blackburn, in the house of lords, were confronted today by persistent demands for explicit information. They were asked as to exactly what assurances the government gave the military officers and whether they were written or verbal. Both refused to answer any questions before the papers were presented to the house.

If these papers disclose that the government surrendered to those who refused obedience in Ulster, even the administration will face greater danger from rebellion in its own ranks. The most reliable parliamentary writers will make this statement in the morning papers.

The labor party members throughout Mr. Asquith's administration have been criticised by many of the rank and file of their party for seeming to be decidedly chained to his government benches in open revolt. They harp on the fact that Tom Mann was sent to prison for six months for inciting soldiers to refuse to fire on strikers when ordered, and demand to be informed as to whether there is to be one law for aristocrats with commissions and another for plebians in the army, when it comes to matters of conscience and obedience to orders.

Vilify Demonstration in Commons.

The house of commons today witnessed a telling demonstration of how the land lies. Lord Hugh Cecil, the only the Irish home rulers and laborites who made Premier Asquith's majority and hold the balance of the house, stand, but that many liberals were opposed to what, from their present information, they consider a surrender to the army officers.

The home rule suspension bill was under discussion, and the unionist, Leopold C. Amery, moved a reduction for the purpose of criticising the government, on the ground that it was not entitled to use the army for party purposes, which is the basis of the unionist position in the present crisis.

The laborite, John Ward, who was a dock laborer and at one time a private in the army, seconded the motion, but from a different point of view. He said the conservatives, by approving the rebellion of the officers, had started to smash the British army."

The house, he said, must decide whether the parliament elected by the people should govern without interference from the king or the army or make the laws of the realm."

When the premier arose his stentorian tones "without interference from the king or the army" half the house was on its feet cheering. All the labor members and all the home rule members, and not only that, many of the liberal members stood and shouted at length. Parliament had not witnessed such a demonstration of hostile criticism of the throne in the memory of the oldest member, nor was in the past century.

Statement by John Redmond.

"The Ulster Orange plot has now been completely revealed," said John E. Redmond, the leader of the Irish nationalist party, in a statement today to the Associated Press. "Sir Edward Carson," he said, "and his army have not and never had the slightest intention of fighting. As a fighting force against the regular troops they could not hold out for a week."

Mr. Redmond continued:

"The plan was to put up the appearance of a fight and then by society influences seduce the officers of the British army. By this means they intend to intimidate the government and to defeat the will of the British people. The action of the commanders of some of the Ulster cavalry regiments, officered by aristocrats, now has fully disclosed the plan of the campaign.

"The issue now raised is a wider one even than home rule for Ireland. It is whether a democratic government is to be overthrown and dictated to by the drawing rooms of London and by that section of officers of the British army who are aristocrats and violent party partisans.

"It is impossible to doubt what the result of such a fight will be. The second reading of the home rule bill will be taken Monday, and the bill will be proceeded with until it finds its place on the statute books."

BRITISH THRONE GREATLY SHAKEN BY ARMY MUTINY

Parliament a Seething Caldron Over Alleged Alliance of King and Army Aristocrats Against Democracy.

KING BEING ATTACKED WITH GREATEST VIGOR

Unless Premier Asquith Satisfactorily Explains He Will Face Great Danger From a Liberal Rebellion.

London, March 24.—Westminster continues to be a seething caldron over what the liberals now denounce as the "mutiny" of the army aristocracy against democratic government. The fact has been established from all obtainable evidence that General Robert Gough and the other officers of the Third cavalry brigade demanded and obtained written assurances that they would not be ordered to fight Sir Edward Carson's Ulster volunteers, and that these assurances were obtained largely through the personal intervention of the king.

Before they left London yesterday the officers telegraphed to their brother officers in Ireland that they had found support "from the highest quarters." On their arrival at Curragh camp today they were welcomed by a guard of honor and related the outcome of their summons to the war office.

King George Attacked.

The throne, which traditionally has kept out of party controversies, is involved in the discussion as it never before has been during King George's reign or that of his diplomatic father. The section of the liberals who opposed what they denounce as a surrender to the military oligarchy are criticising the king with the greatest freedom. They resent his action in summoning to the palace Field Marshal Lord Roberts, who, in his speeches, advised the officers that they might properly refuse service in suppressing the Ulster irreconcilables. They criticise his majesty for dealing personally with Field Marshal Sir John French, chief of the general staff, and General Sir Arthur Paget, commanding the forces in Ireland, who, they have been charged with, they think, only by the secretary of state for war, in accordance with the customary official routine.

HADEN IDENTIFIES STOLEN JEWELRY

Reeves Confesses to Theft From Peachtree Home, According to Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford.

L. C. Reeves, who was arrested in Spartanburg, S. C., Monday when he tried to pawn a pair of opera glasses on which was engraved the initials of Mrs. Charles J. Haden, whose home at 1219 Peachtree road was burglarized some time Saturday and $1,000 worth of jewels stolen, was brought to Atlanta Tuesday afternoon by Policeman L. W. Evans. The officer also brought back with him the opera glasses and a valuable pin set with pearls, which was taken off Reeves when arrested. Charles J. Haden appeared at the police station during the afternoon and identified the stolen jewels as the property of his wife.

Following Mr. Haden's identification Reeves changed his story about having bought the jewels from a stranger and confessed complicity in the jewel robbery, according to Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford.

The detectives are making further investigation of Reeves, believing that he is able to give information that will clear up several of the baffling jewel robberies which have taken place in Atlanta recently.

The detectives believe that Reeves is a noted criminal and are seeking information about him from the police departments of other large cities. In Reeves' right arm there is a suspicious gun wound, the bullet having shattered the bone and not yet healed. It is the belief of detectives that Reeves received this wound when attempting to burglarize some house. Reeves states that he was accidentally shot in his arm on December 30 at Ogden, Utah.

GIVEN $50 A YEAR FOR CLOTHES, WIFE SUES FOR DIVORCE

Claiming that she couldn't possibly dress on $50 per year, Mrs. J. D. Brown, on Tuesday, filed a petition for divorce against her husband, an employee of the Southern railway.

Pending final action on the divorce suit, Judge Bell issued an injunction against Brown restraining him from interfering with his bank account or spending any checks he cashes. The husband was also placed under a $500 bond until April 6.

Mrs. Brown is married in 1910 and separated in January of this year.

SEARCH FOR BLACKS WHO ATTACKED GIRL

Bold Attempt at Assault Is Thwarted by the Timely Arrival of White Man Late Tuesday Afternoon.

A pretty little white girl, while walking alone on the Southern railway tracks one-half mile below the Brookwood bridge, near Peachtree road, was brutally attacked late Tuesday afternoon by two blacks, who had concealed themselves behind an embankment.

The negroes dragged her into the woods at the side of the tracks, attempting to strangle her to silence any alarm, but the girl struggled fiercely, and the attention of L. C. Haynes, a white man of No. 180 Echo street, was attracted by her muffled cries. He ran to her assistance and the blacks fled. The police headquarters was notified of the attempt, and in a few minutes Haynes and as many detectives were rushed to the scene in the auto patrol by order of Police Chief Beavers.

The young girl, who had fainted from the shock she had received by the rough treatment of the two brutes, was revived sufficiently by this time to give a description of her assailants. Armed with the descriptions, the squad of police started to scour the woods for the negroes.

A posse of citizens of the north side community, who had heard wild reports of the attack, had rushed to the place and formed themselves into squads for the purpose of patroling the woods. Up to a late hour the search was still going on, and the posse of citizens had swelled to larger numbers.

Each Number Sounds Very Different Now Over the Telephone

Efficiency Experts Are Now at Work Changing Girls' Pronunciation to Get Better Results.

"Ify, too, thuh-ree-fife" answers the phone girl these days, if you should call "Ivy 325," or any number with a three or a five in make-up.

The answer is that for "efficiency's sake" the Bell telephone officers have decided that less time will be consumed in the repetition of numbers if a certain intonation is used on certain numbers and a certain pronunciation is used on others.

"Five" and "nine," for instance, sound very much alike on the phone. Hence the word "five" has been changed to "fife." Nine remains as it always has been pronounced.

The word "three," however, requires a German accent for its use on the phone. The "rolls" accompanying the word would go well with a little coffee early any morning.

Efficiency engineers are now at work at the local Bell plant watching the operators at work. These engineers will probably eliminate extra arm motions in "plugging in" calls, as well as extra words used in answering subscribers' calls.

Colonel Roosevelt Safe.

New York, March 24.—All feeling of anxiety regarding the safety of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who is in the jungle in Brazil, has been removed by additional advices from Anthony Fiala, whose party lost its equipment in the Rapids of the Devil in the Pagoola river. Fiala reports that the colonel is in good health and was not with the party that met with mishap. With another part of the expedition Mr. Roosevelt is exploring the Rio Dulvena, or River of Doubt, a hitherto unexplored stream.

Death Grapple Continues Between Mexican Armies In Suburbs of Torreon

DECKS ARE CLEARED FOR BITTER BATTLE OVER CANAL TOLLS

Plans Completed for Taking Up Measure to Repeal Exemption Clause and the Forces Are Aligned.

UNUSUAL SITUATION FACED BY DEMOCRATS

Underwood, Clark and Other Leaders Oppose Repeal. Adamson Leads Fight for the Nation's Honor.

Washington, March 24.—Congress is on the verge of the most vigorous legislative struggle that has enlivened its proceedings in many years—the contest over the administration's proposal to repeal the provisions of the Panama canal granting toll exemption to American coastwise ships.

Plans for taking up the Sims repeal bill were completed in the house today and democratic leaders prepared their arguments. It was generally conceded that the bill would be called up for general debate by Thursday, and that it might be reported some time tomorrow, when Representative Henry, chairman of the rules committee, proposed to submit a rule to limit general debate on the measure to fifteen hours. A vote on this rule, when reported, will, in a measure, test the strength of the opposing forces.

Preliminary to the debate, which is certain to be most spirited, special attention was given tonight by senators and representatives to the majority report on the Sims repeal bill submitted by Representative Adamson, of Georgia, chairman of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. This report, which occupied 18 printed pages today, points particularly to the fact that in negotiation for the Panama canal during the last congress, the committee had recommended uniform tolls, and that the exemption for American coastwise shipping was accomplished by amendment.

Not Disturbed by Tweds.

The committee had recognized, the report said, long before any foreign government had voiced any opinion or complaint, that treaty stipulations required uniform tolls.

"This has not disturbed," it added, "by the taunt, made for a purpose, that repeal would be truckling and yielding to foreign demands. A similar taunt could be hurled against any man or nation honorably seeking to comply with contracts or generous enough to promote friendly relations by according respectful consideration to views of the opposite party. From high sources in this and other countries and from men of the utmost probity and in the formation of the various treaties—men whose veracity and integrity cannot be questioned—came unequivocal statements that the language of the treaty conferring the imposition of tolls was not intended to permit such discrimination.

"Even if it were a close question with the balance tending in our favor, we could not afford, in a matter of national honor, to consider or even debate a proposition which involves a policy not in the interest of our entire people, but in the interest of a small special class in whose favor the exemption operates against the general interest of the entire people.

"Far better to abolish the canal itself than even to permit our national honor to remain in question."

Underwood Opposes Repeal.

Considerable speculation exists as to the strength of the opposition to the repeal in both houses of congress, certain democratic leaders of the proposed reversal of policy, while claiming an assured majority in both houses, admitted that the opposition is not negligible. It is an unusual situation confronting the democratic party in the senate, where the president has asserted against him the majority leader, Mr. Underwood, and representative Fitzgerald, chairman of the appropriations committee; Representative Kitchin, of North Carolina, ranking member of ways and means committee, and, according to undisturbed reports, the speaker of the house. Whether Speaker Clark will yield the gavel to take part in the debate is a matter causing the anti-Repeal Gun Fired.

One of the first guns of opposition to the repeal was fired in the house today by Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon, who introduced a resolution calling upon the secretary of war for all available information as to the cost of fortifying the Panama navigable rivers and canals through which all shipping, by an act passed in 1846, was guaranteed passage free of tolls. In a preamble to the resolution it was asserted that if the policy of the government with relation to Panama canal tolls is to be reversed, the cost with reference to all rivers and canals also should be changed, and tolls charged to all shipping to pay the government for maintaining the waterways.

"My chief purpose in introducing this resolution," said Senator Chamberlain tonight, "is to show in case of repeal champions maintain, the toll exemption to American ships is a direct subsidy granted by the government that it has always been the policy of the government since to subsidize our shipping. If we are going to charge our shipping tolls at Panama we ought to charge tolls elsewhere."

There will be discussion of the reso-

Official Dispatch Received Late Last Evening Reports Desperate Fighting Still Going On at Gomez Palacio.

CORPSES OF THE DEAD LITTER THE STREETS

Rebels Claim That 700 Federals Have Been Killed. It Is Evident That General Villa's Advance Is Desperately Opposed.

Chihuahua, March 24.—An official dispatch received at 5 p. m. today says fighting continues fiercely at Gomez Palacio. The rebels are said to have captured the stone railroad roundhouse and to be fighting from it. The rebels claim that the federal dead number 700. No report as to their own losses has been made public, but it is learned that they have at least eighty wounded.

Still Fighting at Gomez Palacio.

Juarez, Mexico, March 24.—Roseate rumors and "official" reports of the onward sweep of General Francisco Villa and his victorious rebels kept this city in a state of gratified excitement today, but the optimism was dampened somewhat by the receipt of an Associated Press dispatch from Chihuahua quoting an official dispatch saying that fighting continues at Gomez Palacio. It was announced officially in the course of the morning that the city, three miles from Torreon, was taken last night at 9 o'clock and that General Villa had ordered supplies sent there direct.

Next came word that General Eugenio Aguirez Benavides had captured two federal cuartels in Torreon itself. This information was conveyed in a private telegram from Colonel Trevino, one of Benavides' staff officers, to his brother in Juarez. At this time was further joy, but it was limited to the exoitement occasioned when General Manual Chao, military governor of the state of Chihuahua, and now in this city to greet General Carranza, received a private report that General Velasco, federal commander at Torreon, had commandeered

No Reply From Villa.

General Chao accepted the report with caution, however, and telegraphed to General Villa asking for confirmation or denial. After two hours he had received no reply.

The dispatch from the Associated Press staff correspondent at Chihuahua had something of a dampening effect on the spirits of the rebels, and it gave rise to all manner of conjectures. It was the first direct news telegram of the day, but it was agreed that the official report quoted in it did not necessarily disprove previous reports of fighting in Torreon, or even that Villa did not actually have Gomez Palacio in his possession last night.

The report might mean, it was conjectured, that the federals, as a part of the general battle, might have returned to Gomez Palacio and renewed the fight, while other forces were engaged in Torreon, three miles away.

Many Dead in Streets.

El Correo, a Spanish newspaper, today prints a statement that many dead are lying where they fell in the streets of Gomez Palacio. No official statement of losses on either side in yesterday's fighting could be obtained today.

The surprise of the day to the rebels was the arrival of federal reinforcements and the battle put up by the Huertistas in the streets of the city.

Gomez Palacio is northeast of Torreon and Cerro De La Pilar commands portions of both cities. Id Hes to the right of the street car tracks connecting the two cities and it is assumed that General Villa planted his own artillery there to support the infantry and cavalry advance on Torreon.

Captured Maxim Artillery.

In the fighting at Gomez Palacio last night the rebels captured much of the federal artillery on Cerro De La Pilar, the mountain near Gomez. They also captured the field furniture and bedding of the federal commander in chief, General Velasco, who was in personal charge of the defense of Gomez Palacio.

The rebels are reported to have Torreon closely invested, and last reports were that the whole army was confident of the early fall of the federal stronghold. The conquest of Monclavan, Saltillo and Monterey is taken for granted by the rebels, once the main federal force under General Velasco at Torreon is conquered.

Fighting Was Desperate.

El Verjel, Durango, Mexico, March 24.—Meeting stubborn resistance at Gomez Palacio, only a few miles north and east of Torreon, General Francisco Villa and his 12,000 rebel troops yesterday began the most important battle of the constitutionalist revolution. Today the field hospital here is crowded with wounded which streamed into El Verjel as fast as they could be returned from the front. Given emergency attention here, the seriously wounded were hastened on to the general hospital at Bermejillo. The federals' loss appears to have been much heavier than that of the rebels, but no accurate estimate of their dead and wounded has been made.

Apparently determining to deal General Villa a crushing blow before he actually reached the gates of Torreon, General Velasco sallied out of the invested city under cover of the guns of Cerro De La Pilar mountain, while all of strongly garrisoned Gomez Palacio. Made confident by his easy victories en route General Villa heard the report from his scouts that Gomez Palacio was strongly fortified and gave the order for attack.

Big Guns in Action.

The guns of Cerro De La Pilar were opened up, volley after volley, from the federal trenches and the fire of rebel artillery and small arms opened the first serious engagement of Villa's troops and federals, who hope to check the march of the constitutionalists to the national capital.

The rebel cavalry pressed forward toward the mountain and before many minutes of fighting Villa's men had taken the water tank, securing their first vantage ground.

From there they fought on to the Brittingham soap factory, infantry engaging the defending small arms and upon the buildings. Another hour and the federals, retreated to the hospital, where the hottest fight of the battle took place. Fighting from the front, gaining ground foot by foot, the rebels finally drove the federals back toward Torreon.

But no heavy had the firing been, so many were the shells that burst in the Courel Diaz cemetery, had it been occupied by the pursuing rebels, than it caught fire and the conquerors were forced to abandon it. The federals retreated in order, however, keeping up an insistent firing as they were beaten back on the road to Torreon, and the rebels advanced they rushed forward over the bodies of the federal dead and wounded.

General Villa reiterated his confidence that Torreon would be his by Thursday.

HUERTA ADOPTS PLAN TO FILL HIS TREASURY

Mexico City, March 24.—President Huerta's financial stress will be relieved by a plan adopted today which will bring into the treasury 150,000,000 pesos approximately. Fifty million pesos will be immediately available; the rest as required.

The result will be the resumption on April 1 of interest payments on the foreign debt, suspended January 13 last, and the early removal of the 40 per cent advance in import duties recently imposed as a war measure, all of which will be set forth in a decree to be issued by the end of the week.

The plan involves the issuance of treasury notes against the unsold balance of bonds authorized in May, 1913, to the amount of $100,000,000 for a portion of which a Paris bank syndicate subscribed, but of which nearly half remain unsold. Those bonds will be placed with the Mexican banks at 30 per cent of their face value, the banks to issue them at the legal ratio of three to one. The bonds are secured by the pledge of 15 per cent of the customs.

The bankers have agreed to take the bonds in question and the plan is only awaiting the signature of President Huerta to become effective.

CONFLICTING REPORTS OF FIGHT NEAR LAREDO

Laredo, Texas, March 24.—Conflicting reports of the battle between Mexican constitutionalists and federals came to Laredo today from the isolated scene of yesterday's engagement near Guerrero, sixty miles south of this city, on the Rio Grande. Heavy losses on both sides were indicated.

An official federal dispatch given out in Nuevo Laredo claimed General Guardiola repulsed the rebels after nine hours' fighting and that they took with them in retreat 300 wagons loaded with wounded, besides leaving many dead on the field. It was said many constitutionalists deserted and fled into the United States during the fighting.

It was admitted Guardiola withdrew to San Ygnacio after the reported retreat of the rebels. His loss in killed, captured and wounded was given as sixty men.

Constitutionalist reports were conflicting, but all claimed a substantial victory. The capture of Guerrero, which had been held by Guardiola, was a feature of the reports.

It is regarded here as probable that both sides retreated with material advantage. About 1,500 men were engaged on both sides, generals Jesus Carranza and Antonio Villareal commanded the constitutionalists.

TEXAS OFFERS REWARD FOR VERGARA'S SLAYERS

Washington, March 24.—Governor Colquitt's offer of a reward of $1,000 for the delivery upon Texas soil of five Mexicans suspected as murderers of Clemente Vergara, has caused state and war department officials serious concern for international complications.

The five Mexicans sought are Captain Apolonl Rodriguez, Nito Cears, Juan Castillon, Andreas Rodriguez and Florencio Martinez. In his report today, Brigadier General Duke says:

The men named are charged in the newspapers with complicity in the death of Clemente Vergara."

The right of the governor to offer a reward for the apprehension of a fugitive from justice is not disputed by the officials. But in this case it is feared that the offer may lead to an attempt to kidnap the Mexicans and bring them into Texas, which would be in violation of the extradition treaty between Mexico and the United States and afford the Mexican government grounds for a demand for the punishment of the kidnapers with all sorts of legal entanglements.

Further reports on the incident near Del Rio, Texas, where Mexican federal soldiers fired across the Rio Grande at American troopers, say more than 500 shots were directed at the soldiers to whom the fleeing constitutionalists surrendered. The refugees were sent to Fort Bliss.

ARMS AND AMMUNITION FOR AMERICAN EMBASSY

Mexico City, March 24.—The first installment of arms and ammunition sent by the United States war department to the American embassy for the protection of American citizens in the event of disturbances in the federal capital was delivered today.

The consignment, which includes 250 rifles and two machine guns, had been held at the customs house under orders issued by Provisional President Huerta for fourteen days. Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge d'affaires, anticipates no further trouble in securing the remainder of the rifles and the machine guns.

Rear Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, commander of the United States warships in Mexican waters, who, with his wife and daughter, has been visiting Mexico City unofficially, departed for Vera Cruz today after four days of sight-seeing. The American naval officer met no Mexican officials.

YOUNG SON OF VERGARA KILLS HIS SISTER-IN-LAW

Laredo, Texas, March 24.—Jesus Vergara, young son of Clemente Vergara, the American recently kidnaped and assassinated in Mexico, today shot and killed his sister-in-law. He pulled the trigger of a rifle, which he thought unloaded.

600 HUERTA SUPPORTERS DEPORTED BY REBELS

Nogales, Sonora, March 24.—Six hundred citizens of Sonora, suspected of sympathy with Huerta, are to be deported by constitutionalist officials according to authoritative statements made here today. Two trains have been brought to Nogales today from Hermosillo.

Every one not in active accord with the Carranza program will be driven out of the country, it was said. None of the aspirations here today was allowed to take anything of value with him. All of their property has been confiscated.

Dead in the Bath Room.

Washington, March 24.—Dr. Oliver Kinsey, a young North Carolinian graduate of Johns Hopkins university and who was awaiting a commission as an army surgeon, was found dead in the bathroom of his boarding house today. Gas was flowing from a jet.

The Pursuit of the Bachelor is always amusing to everybody except the bachelor himself. The Bachelor was pursued in an unusual way by an unusual woman. The deliciously funny story of his struggle against capture and his escape—the story is called "The Back Door"—is only one of the humorous features of the

April Number of Harpers Magazine

There are eight short stories altogether in this number. Three of them are really laughter-makers. And the serious and artistic features are uncommonly attractive. Former Ambassador Hill contributes another brilliant article on diplomacy, and the entire magazine in beauty and interest justifies the high praise that everyone is giving it. Here is a sample of what is being said, a remarkable editorial from The Bellman, an able and discriminating weekly published in Minneapolis, Minn.:

"Practically all of the American monthly magazines except Harper's have obediently responded to what they imagined was the demand of the readers of today; many of them have burned their bridges behind them, with more valor than discretion, and some, lacking the boldness frankly to abandon their old standards, are tentatively toying with departures in text and illustration, as if to discover how much of the new and inferior stuff their readers will stand without a revolt.

"Harper's Monthly is now practically alone in the position which it took in the beginning and has consistently maintained ever since. Evidently its publishers are determined, in these days of easy and prompt compliance with a sentiment esteemed to be deep and widespread because it is vociferous, not to be misled by clamor into the belief that all Americans have gone mad. They are obviously minded to uphold and advance the publication's traditional standards, thereby widening the distinction between it and its backsliding contemporaries."

Yearn for Food—Don't Spurn It

A Brisk Appetite Is a Healthful Necessity. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Quickly Restore Lost Relish for Food.

Unless you have a real hearty desire for food you should by all means take no chances of stomach trouble, for the loss of appetite means a signal of distress from a deranged digestion.

When the stomach wants food it signals the mind through the nerves, and these excite the taste buds in the mouth which at once secrete large quantities of saliva. This is called "mouth water," and all of us know when our "mouths water" we want food.

"There's an appetite that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets gave me"

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets very quickly restore appetite by making the stomach want food. The stomach readily recovers from indigestion, dyspepsia, as soon as it is enabled to digest food. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets taken after each meal quickly digest that meal and thus wonderfully rest the stomach.

In a short time the digestion assumes its normal condition and then appetite—and a good appetite, too—is the natural consequence. One may actually fluidise a few Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, place them in a glass tube with meat, grains, vegetables, etc., and these tablets will digest the contents of the tube without aid.

Just think how quickly and efficiently they act when they are mixed with the food in one's system and what a great relief it is to the digestive apparatus to have its fluids so enriched.

Go to your druggist today and obtain a 50-cent package. Make the test yourself after you have eaten a large and hearty meal.

A Sign of Better Business

BY the use of attractive bulletins (in colors) you can tell your merchandising message to every man, woman and child in Atlanta in such a way that they will automatically absorb what you most want them to know.

¶If the great force of advertising is suggestive---and it is---Painted Bulletins are a great advertising force. ¶For instance. A bulletin placed at Five Points actually reaches 200,000 people---possible customers---per day at a cost so small it is hardly considerable.

¶There is absolutely no one means of reaching all the people in Atlanta all the time at as little cost as by the Painted Bulletin.

Dear Mr. Massengale:

I certainly want to congratulate you on the very fine work which you have done for us in the painting of the bulletins advertising our [illegible]nes, these having been placed in and around Atlanta. I do not believe it is any exaggeration to say, so far as our observation goes, that this is the best work your bulletin service has ever done and it certainly ought to produce entirely satisfactory results.

GOVERNOR APPROVES WIDER PEACHTREE

Did Not Say He Would Use Troops to Stop Work on Mansion Site.

The fact that city authorities had failed to get the approval of the governor for the plans of widening of Peachtree street between Carnegie way and Cain street, in so far as it affects the state property upon which the governor's mansion sits, at Peachtree and Cain streets, temporarily held up the work of street widening at that point Tuesday morning.

After a conference with the city attorney, however, when the plans were submitted, Governor Slaton approved the plans, in accordance with a legislative resolution of 1911, and the work was allowed to proceed.

Owing to a jocular remark of one of the city officials to a reporter for an Atlanta afternoon paper the news had gone out that Governor Slaton would call out the militia to stop the street work. This, the governor declared, preposterous.

Governor's Statement.

Governor Slaton gave out the following interview to The Constitution reporter:

"When I started from the Rankin this morning, I saw, to my surprise, that the iron fence was taken down, and large trees have was being cut down for several feet from the street.

"There was no authority by law for such a course, and the resolution under which the work was being done only gave authority to the governor to grant permission with in his discretion, and upon his approval of plans, etc. No plans had been submitted, nor request preferred. The resolution of 1910 authorizing the Governor to permit the widening of the street is as follows:

"Whereas, a movement is on foot to widen Peachtree street in the city of Atlanta, and,

"Whereas, the same would increase the value of property fronting thereon; be it

"Resolved, by the General Assembly of Georgia, That the governor is hereby authorized, in his discretion, to give off a strip not exceeding twenty feet on the Peachtree front of the lot on which the governor's mansion is located, so as to coperate with said plan of widening Peachtree street on such terms and conditions as he may approve.

Stops the Work.

"I stopped the work and went at once in person to the office of the chief of construction, and stated that there was no authority for the appropriation of the state's property, but I would endeavor to aid the city authorities as far as I could upon a proper contract being made.

"Subsequently, a blue print of the work was submitted, and an agreement made as to the sidewalk, railing, pipes, etc., and I exercised the discretion that was given me, and authorized the widening.

"It was stated to me that immediately after the Piedmont Driving Club buildings on the opposite side of the corner would cut so as to make the widening good on both sides as well as on the side of the executive mansion.

"It is the duty of the governor to protect the state's property, and especially so in view of the fact that all of the state's property is pledged by the constitution to the payment of the state's debt and the amount being taken was 1,500 square feet of land on Peachtree street.

"The matter has now been agreeably arranged by executive order, embodying a contract with the city.

"I am informed that the statement in an afternoon paper was the result of a false statement by a city officer, and taken seriously by the reporter."

Idle Men Decreasing.

New York, March 24.—Roswell D. Tomlins, secretary of the United Board of Business Agents of the Union in the Building Trades, in a report today said the number of unemployed mechanics here had decreased between Friday and six weeks ago, he said, there was about seventy thousand building mechanics idle, while at present there were about fifty thousand. With improving weather conditions it is stated another 10,000 of the unemployed will be at work.

DIDN'T MEAN TO KILL; ONLY WANTED TO WARN

Madame Caillaux Tells of Visit to the Office of Editor of Figaro.

Paris, March 24.—"I never intended to kill M. Calmette; I wanted to give him warning."

This assertion was made by Mme. Caillaux today at her trial as the climax of her dramatic story of the shooting and a recital of the events preceding the killing of the editor of Figaro.

Mme. Caillaux's state of mind on the fateful day, her purchase of a revolver and the last act of the tragedy were set forth in detail by her today before the assembled magistrates, Henri Bouchard, at the palace of justice.

Before going to The Figaro office Mme. Caillaux had left this note for her husband, who she feared, might commit an act of violence against M. Calmette:

"France and the republic need you. I do not want you to sacrifice yourself."

Cordially Greeted by Editor.

The witness told of her cordial greeting by the editor when she reached The Figaro office.

"No doubt you know the object of my visit," she had said to the editor.

"No," replied M. Calmette. "Won't you sit down?" He then lighted a lamp and placed it near the desk.

"Frantic at finding myself in semi-obscurity, fearing the man who had maligned my husband, my presence in Paris not known to all," Mme. Caillaux said dramatically, "I drew the revolver, and, taking careful aim, fired low."

"Yes, indeed," interrupted M. Bouchard, "I observed that two bullets lodged in the lower part of the bookcase. But how do you explain the wound in the chest of M. Calmette, who was behind the desk?"

"I do not know; I continued to fire without noticing," said the witness.

"Are we to suppose that the weapon followed M. Calmette around in his efforts to escape?" asked the magistrate.

To this Mme. Caillaux had nothing to say.

Her Nervous Excitement.

Mme. Caillaux then told of the tumultuous con with her husband on the day of the tragedy, the consequent nervous excitement she suffered and the necessity of making a last effort to prevent the publication of the letter.

"I also had been obsessed with the idea that my husband might be driven to commit the crime," she said, "and so decided to do it myself."

Madame Caillaux, who appeared in a condition of extreme fatigue today, called impatiently for her husband, the former minister of finance. When he arrived at the jail a long conference ensued. Afterwards she was taken before the magistrate.

While Mme. Caillaux was being led through a corridor of the palace of justice to the court of the investigating magistrate, M. Bouard, she saw a group of newspaper photographers and exclaimed: "Let them photograph me. Then I hope they will be satisfied."

The section of the rivers and harbors act of July 5, 1884, which it is proposed to repeal provides that no tolls or operating charges be charged on any vessels "through any canal or other work for the improvement of navigation belonging to the United States."

Messages Pro and Con.

Senator O'Gorman had read in the senate chamber today letters and telegrams commending his opposition to the repeal. One telegram, from the New Orleans Association of Commerce, declared repeal would be a "staggering blow to American aspirations for re-establishment of our merchant marine." Another from the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce urged the senator to fight repeal to the last.

Senator James had read a telegram from former Senator Blanchard, of Louisiana, to Senator Thornton declaring that public sentiment in Louisiana overwhelmingly favored the repeal as urged by President Wilson.

Albany, N. Y., March 24.—A resolution putting the lower house of the state legislature on record as opposing the repeal of the law exempting American coastwise vessels from Panama canal tolls was adopted today by a vote of 66 to 64.

ROME COUNCIL TAXES TANGO TEACHERS $50

Rome, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—Indications that Rome city council looks with disfavor upon the tango and turkey trot are found in its action of last night in raising the license for dancing teachers from $25 to $50. The increase in rate was proposed simultaneously with the arrival of a dancing teacher from New York, who will teach the society people of Rome the latest steps and glides.

DEMONSTRATOR'S BOOTH FINE PLACE FOR LUNCH

Mrs. Lillian Kroeber, of Atlanta, is conducting a demonstration of Campbell's Soups at a booth in the grocery department of J. M. High & Co. In one day she has given away, a taste at a time, as high as fifty cans, each taste being accompanied by a spoonful of baked beans.

Mrs. Kroeber says that few of the same people return for samples, most of them buying cans for use at home; but she recalls the amusing reappearance of the same two young men just before lunch every day who frankly say:

"We'll have a little Campbell's before we take our lunch."

During the pure food demonstrations of the J. M. High Company Atlanta family buyers have been showing great interest.—(Adv.)

WEATHER MAN SAYS DAY TO OPEN FINE, BUT CLOUDS LATER

Following is the weather forecast for Atlanta Wednesday:

The day will open fine and comparatively warm, with light southerly winds. The advance of a new disturbance over the Ohio valley, however, will cause increasing cloudiness Wednesday afternoon, with probably light rain and gusty southerly winds late in the afternoon or Wednesday night. The temperature will run somewhat higher, probably reaching 65 degrees during the middle of the day.

She was sitting beside an open grate sewing, and it is supposed that her work caught and the flames were communicated to her clothing. Before the fire could be extinguished she was horribly burned from head to foot. She is still alive and conscious, but it is feared she will die.

RELIEVED SCIATIC RHEUMATISM
Mr. Perigo, of 87 W. 25th St., Des Moines, Iowa, writes: "We have used Sloan's Liniment for ever six years and found it the best we ever used. When my wife had sciatic rheumatism, the only thing that did her any good was Sloan's Liniment. We cannot praise it highly enough."

WHERE FADISM HURTS.

Practical educators who strive to keep their feet on the ground in this era of fads and follies in educational fashions will find strong support in a remarkable report just made by Dr. Leonard P. Ayers, investigator for the Sage foundation. We are indebted to The New York Times of recent date for a preliminary review of the report. Dr. Ayers bases his conclusions upon an exhaustive analysis of the school systems in seventy-eight American cities. What he says has, therefore, the stamp of scope and actuality. At no point does he rely upon theories or speculation.

The gist of Dr. Ayers' conclusions is to point the danger of riding vocational education to death and neglecting or minimizing academic education for the child of the poor as well as of the rich man. The craze for separating the sheep from the goats in our grammar schools, to make pretension that one child is destined to manual and the other to intellectual labor, which has not as yet, and very fortunately, been allowed to get far in Atlanta, is a fallacy if we are to believe this judicial expert. In some cities, where inexperienced visionaries, or those not averse to playing politics, control, an effort has been made to base education upon the hypothesis that only one child in ten will find his life work in an intellectual line, the others being scheduled for manual labor.

Your friend Dr. Ayers riddles. He finds that mental workers comprise more than one-third of the fathers of school children. It is logical that the child shall follow in the footsteps of the parent. He also does not spare the claim that children should be educated with a view to being utilized in local industries. Only one father in four was born in the city in which he now lives. This signifies the shifting of families to other communities. If we shape vocational training with the local end in view we shall, therefore, invite the risk of fastening upon children special local equipment for which they may have no use whatever.

Vocational equipment is excellent in its place. But there is danger that in the revolt against too much academic education we may swing the pendulum too far in the other direction. The more feasible plan is that which seeks to strike a common denominator in education. That is, to find a system which will equip every child for life anywhere in any calling, not to presuppose an aristocracy of wealth or of intellect or of opportunity, not to shut the door of chance, interestingly, in the face of any man's son or daughter. Any other principle involves inevitably a snobbishness totally at variance with the democratic instinct.

Atlanta's schools have uniformly been operated upon this sensible and democratic basis. The fad of the man whose chief asset is inexperience, a desire to meddle or to inject politics, has thus far been kept religiously in subjection. The report of the Sage expert teaches us we have wrought wisely. Experts from the Sage foundation have, at the request of the chamber of commerce, made an exhaustive survey of Atlanta's school system. This inquiry, if conducted at public expense, would have cost thousands of dollars, since the Sage foundation employs only the best talent in the country. The report, it is understood, is now practically ready for publication. Its detail will be awaited with intense interest. If the methods and the courage of Dr. Ayers, head investigator of the Sage foundation, furnish an indication to the Atlanta report by that same authority we may expect a thoroughly impersonal and enlightening survey of the manner in which Atlanta children are being educated.

DELAY THE ONLY DANGER.

The Constitution publishes today a communication in which J. R. Smith, well-known business man of Atlanta, commends a Constitution editorial of last Sunday under the caption, "Waiting the Magic Word," in that editorial The Constitution set forth that the nation was calling on the railroads for a rehabilitation which would mean the expenditure of a billion dollars. We showed that contingent upon the raising of this huge sum was an understanding between the public, the railroads and the government, assuring mutual fair play as between all three and a guarantee against recurrence of past financial debauches on part of the railroads. We showed that once this assurance was forthcoming and the billion dollars distributed through the channels of commerce and industry prosperity would experience an impetus not paralleled in many years.

In these views Mr. Smith coincides, as did Mr. Holmes yesterday, and as have many other representative business men in Atlanta and Georgia who have communicated with The Constitution.

In this connection it may not be irrelevant to mention the ground-rumor that the interstate commerce commission is dallying with the petition of the railroads in order to embarrass the administration, since the commission is of republican preponderance. The Constitution takes no stock in this report. The commission is a national and not a partisan organization. Its functions, and especially the business now before it, are of too vital importance to every man, woman and child in the land to be made a political football.

But there is no doubt that the commission is disposed to delay action. Such a policy would be unwise.

The thing above all others that needs to be ended is the uncertainty that halts the stride of business.

The commission has twice gone over the case presented by the railroads. It should be familiar with its every intricacy.

Nothing is gained by postponement save the keeping of business on the grill.

Business has the right to know where it stands, and whether to adjust itself to the present conditions or build with larger designs in view.

Any decision is better than indecision.

Even though the verdict be adverse, it is wiser that fact should be known and business allowed to adjust itself accordingly than to have business eternally dangling between the Scylla of hope and the Charybdis of uncertainty.

It is the uncertainty that paralyzes initiative and prosperity.

Therefore, the quicker the commission takes action the better for every industry in the country.

"CAESAREM VEHIS!"

A fragmentary report from South America reminds us that while T. R. may be gone, he or fate do not intend that he shall be forgotten. The cablegram vaguely states that the colonel's party have "lost everything in the rapids" somewhere in the obscurity of the Brazilian jungles. Meanwhile the American Museum of Natural History has wired our consul at Para to spare no expense in securing particulars of the disaster. It is said that the colonel's friends and family entertain no fears for his personal safety, but that they will be more or less agitated until reassured.

Their concern is natural, but we decline to occupy with them the anxious bench. Every high school boy remembers that gentle phrase that Caesar, in a predicament similar to that of the colonel's, is said to have flung at his panic-stricken boatmen. "Quid times, Caesarem vehis," was the consoling sentiment and, liberally interpreted, it means, "What do you fear? You carry Caesar!" It is related that the imperator's oarsmen settled down to their natural stroke, in scorn of the storm, when he thus spoke to them. And it is not impossible that the colonel's disgy oarsmen on the Amazon likewise got busy with the paddles when he rose in the boat and comforted with the assurance that he was the apple of fate's eye, had his fingers crossed, an Ohio buckeye in his pocket and a Georgia rabbit's foot reposing by its side. The combination is irresistible!

If we believed the colonel actually in danger, we should entertain alarm for a very great American, held by us in a warm esteem and friendship. But—you can't lose the colonel. Presently he'll come sailing back, whether to take a fourth cup of coffee with Dr. Lyman Abbott or to whack some mendacious editor over the head with a libel suit, it matters not. Come back, he will, at least in a physical, if not political, sense.

"Quid times, Caesarem vehis!"

There's a good deal of "watchful waiting" among the Mexican refugees between meals at Uncle Sam's border beanery.

Mr. Taft says he has "learned to be content." That being the case, he shouldn't be so anxious about the future of his disorganized party.

Huerta's being in financial straits might excite sympathy, but it happens to be his chronic condition.

"'What is that thing in the corner?' I asked.

"'That,' she replied, with perfect composure, 'is a man's leg.'

"'Sure,' I said, 'that being the case, where's the Man?'

"'The man?'

"'Sure! The man the leg belongs to? I hope he isn't in this house!'

"She laughed. 'That leg,' she explained, 'belongs to Jimmy. He's acting in a children's play in which he takes the part of a wooden-legged man.'"

The Beloved Vagabond.

(W. G. Tinckom-Fernandes, in The Westminster Gazette.)

You who were once so careless, I can recall
you now,
Your blue-gray visionary eyes, your great
eyes brow,
With naught to bind your heart-strings, and all the world in fee,
You went where all the roads lead, beyond the farthest sea.

Lover of space and skyline, what vision
seared your eyes?
What and gallant wings winged to you, and bade you gird and rise?
What thread of smoke sent onward your restless, eager feet?
What vagrant heart was waiting your wayward beats to greet?

We, who are kin to the city, across the candles praise
Your tales of camps in twilight, your great
Your knowledge of the mysteries deep-hidden by the wood,
The pagan trust you placed in man, the world you found so good.

Then leave a patrin for mine eyes, that I may follow, too,
Some day when all the world grows dim,
and I shall beckon you,
Across the distant moorland, from beacon
furze piled high,
May I, the novice rover, see your sire against the sky!

"Waiting for Magic Word" Is Prosperity Beacon"

J. R. SMITH.

Editor Constitution: Permit me to congratulate you upon your splendid editorial of yesterday, based upon a communication from Mr. Rice, editor of the Manufacturers' Record, and a statement of the Associated Press representing the attitude of President Wilson in regard to the financial condition of the railroads of the country. There is substance for real prosperity in your editorial.

Governmental regulation of railroads has long since been recognized as necessary and essential in order that the interests of the public be conserved. Many of the great systems have been looted by a few individuals over night, and millions slipped into their pockets at the expense of the public who were thereafter required to pay dividends for the water that was poured in. This trickery, when brought to light, created a strong prejudice against the railroad operators, which has materially affected the property itself.

The credit of the railroads has undoubtedly been impaired by these causes in recent years: the stock gambler with his nefarious manipulations, the movement on the part of the government to prohibit this and reduce rates and regulate the properties, and the unscrupulous politician and demagogue who thrive on agitation. Every such agitation has taken advantage of this situation and feasted at the expense of the public and to the detriment of the railroads. The gambler has had his day, and the government its turn.

If the government is prepared to assure the investor against the gambler and give reasonable assurance of stable and profitable investment in these properties, the money will be forthcoming. The operating expenses of the railroads throughout the country have greatly increased during the past few years; and during that same period the government has been gradually forcing rates downward until it is safe to say that capital has been frightened to a certain extent from the railroads have been unable to raise the necessary money to make improvements that the growth of the country demands. These are facts that are familiar to any layman. As to the raising of the rates, as has been requested by the railroads, the layman does not know. But the government, under the present system, should be familiar with it and prepared to pursue the proper course in the matter. It will require more than mere suggestions that prosperity will be due to produce it.

A Story of the Moment

By WALT MASON,
The Famous Prose Poet.

Doing Good.

"If I had a million dollars," remarked the obese boarder, "I'd do a lot of good in the world. Every winter I'd buy a thousand suits of clothes for the poor, and see that I'd like to be rich, because I could do so much good."

"If you had a million dollars," said the star boarder, "you'd have entirely different views concerning many matters. You'd be pointing out to anxious inquirers that indiscriminate charity has a demoralizing effect upon the people, and instead of buying the thousand suits of clothes you'd buy yourself a new motor car. Most of us are fond of talking about how munificent we'd be if we had a million dollars, but we don't do good, we don't need such a quantity of money. In this highly respectable family boarding house there are many second hand hats and shoes and garments of various kinds which might go to the downtrodden and oppressed. Just as well as not, we've a stovepipe hat I haven't worn for twenty years. I bought it once when I was up the spiritual hour. She changed her mind at the last moment, as it were, and eloped with a young man who sold toilet soaps, complexion powders and various articles of a kindred nature.

"I have never worn that hat since, and it remains in my bedroom, a melancholy souvenir. I'd gladly give it to some worthy man if he would come after it, but it's too much trouble to send it down to the office for the relief office, and I can't afford to advertise the fact that I have a stovepipe hat to give away. Some downtrodden man, beaten and buffeted by a cruel world, might regain his self respect and enter upon a career of usefulness if he had that hat. But it continues to hang around my room.

"There would be a great deal more charitable work done if giving things away were all there is to it. But we all hate to go to any trouble about it. We all like to sit at the groaning board and talk about what we'd do if we had a million.

"If a rich man really wanted to do good with his money he could find plenty of opportunities, but they'd call for some little personal effort, and naturally he objects to that. If a millionaire went the rounds of the cheap lodging houses on a cold winter night he could unload quite a package of money to good advantage, but it's a lot easier to send a big check to a college, or establish a hospital, or a public pool hall, and that sort of thing would bring a better grade of advertising than if it's advertising we're all after, Mrs. Jiggers.

"If I ever do gather up the old hats and rackets and slippers that I've worn and give them to the relief department for the benefit of the poor, I'll try to charter a rifle and drum band for the occasion, and if the event is pulled off in good shape, and makes a hit, I'll announce myself as a candidate for some office. People who do good in a large handed, liberal way, usually do run for office while the fact is fresh in the public mind.

"And when a man runs for office, he always insists that his one ambition is to do good, to serve the people, and make the world happier and better. There are times when I feel that I'd give fifty cents to meet a man willing to admit that he wants an office for what there is in it. If such a man ever does appear, and makes his position plain, the people will rally around him with enthusiasm, and he will be triumphantly elected. For the people, my dear Mrs. Jiggers, are tired of statesmen and others who want to serve them in purple and fine linen, while they wear corduroy and blue jeans. They are in the mood of that ancient voter who threw his vote to Abraham Lincoln because, he was tired of hearing that patriot referred to as 'the just.'"

"Doing good is a long distance business. If we can do good by pressing a button while seated in a rocking chair before a comfortable fire, it is passing well; but if we are required to go out in the snow with a lantern, in order to help some fellow creature, beginner important engagements that can't be postponed. So I'll trouble you for some of the toast, Mrs. Jiggers."

Has Earth Expanded or Contracted?

(From The Engineering Record.)

A scientific survey to determine the exact regular distance between the cities of Berlin, Germany and Washington, D. C., will be made by the German Geodetic Institute at Potsdam in conjunction with the Coast and Geodetic Survey of the United States. Fifty years ago this distance was computed, approximately accurately; the purpose of repeating the computation is to ascertain whether the earth has expanded or contracted during the past half century. The Germans will establish the distance between Potsdam and Horta, in the Azores, and the Americans will ascertain the distance from Horta to Washington.

DAILY GRIST from the STATE'S POLITICAL GRIND

POLITICS PAR FROM THOUGHTS OF FORMER GOVERNOR BROWN

Former Governor Joseph M. Brown is not now, nor is he a prospective, candidate for the United States senate.

Furthermore than that, as the situation and its needs, and as in all likelihood it will develop, he is not bothering himself about politics, and seemingly the last thing in his thoughts is the permitting of himself to be even personally involved in any way in the campaign which will be run this summer.

That may be set at rest the uneasiness of the political dopesters who for the past several weeks have been unable to figure with exactness and certainty upon the approaching campaign on account of the uncertainty surrounding the attitude of ex-Governor Brown. In every effort to work out a solution in the game of political chess which is now progressing, some move would finally lead up against the stone wall of the unbroken silence emanating from the direction of Marietta.

Practically not a day has passed since the death of the late Senator Bacon that the query as to what the former Governor's intentions were has not been made in some form or another. The very fact that the former chief executive has spent many months in the quietude of his farm in Cherokee county, near the town where his distinguished father was reaping his grain when he was advised of his nomination for governor, has caused speculation as to just what his motive in thus secluding himself really was.

Solely, therefore, with the view of being able to tell the people of the state what he might be expected during the forthcoming campaign from him, the only man who ever polled a hundred thousand votes for governor, a Constitution representative called on Governor Brown yesterday at his home in Marietta.

Has Eliminated Himself.

And the newspaper man found out—to his own conviction, at least, so far as being personally a factor in the political moving picture drama in Georgia this year, Joseph M. Brown has been endeavoring to firmly and emphatically eliminate himself. And it is safe to say that unless something unforseen develops "Little Joe" Brown will for the first time in many years not be one of the strong figures in Georgia politics.

Frankly the former governor outlined to the Constitution man his movements during the nine months since he gave up the governor's chair. During that time he has spent months at a time on his farm in Cherokee county, with politics dismissed from his mind and the heated discussions of political campaigns in the farthest thing from his thoughts.

And, according to "Little Joe," he has enjoyed life much more during these past few months than he has pursued uninterrupted the calm demeanor of his way than he did those years from which he was the center of the whirling merry-go-round of the political realm in Georgia.

So, instead of having been carefully working, in the seclusion of his agricultural interests, on a campaign which would land him in the United States senate, former Governor Brown has been enjoying a well-earned vacation from the cares of politics, with his chief interest upon the personal affairs which for so many years he had to neglect.

A note of warning was sounded by the former governor to those over-anxious who would plunge the state into a long and heated political campaign this summer. He said:

Warns Too Ardent Campaigners.

"Some of our over-eager seekers after office are liable to be greatly hurt if set aside this summer if they try to plunge the state into the chaos of a long political campaign. It isn't necessary, and I for one would certainly hate to be the candidate responsible for bringing up the fireworks this year before it is absolutely necessary, for—" and here that quiet smile was again in evidence, "it looks like we are going to have a late spring and we farmers are, therefore, not going to have any time to fool with a political turmoil. Whichever faction precipitates it is going to give itself an awful handicap."

"The time has passed," continued Governor Brown, "when there is any necessity for long political campaigns. In the olden days, when the farmers and those living away from the big towns, had no way at all to keep posted except by hearing speeches by the various candidates, there may have been some excuse for campaigns several months in length, but in these days of the rural free delivery and the metropolitan newspaper, when every farmer can have the news of the day before him at his breakfast table, there is no excuse for the willingness which it seems has already been evidenced by some of the candidates to plunge the state into political strife.

"The best thing for Georgia now is political peace, and the voters are coming to realize that. They are accordingly not going to be long enticed by any candidates who permit their selfish desires to threaten the quietude of the present situation."

"So you are going to sit back and let them fight it out without taking any part in the fun?"

"That is certainly what I am doing now—but, of course, you never can tell about politics. In such a thing as this, you know, that just when you think you are out of the whirl and are getting the first rest you have had in a long time, some cog slips and the call of party loyalty, or of patriotism, forces you back into it all, but—"

"Let's hope that the peace and freedom from strife that we have enjoyed now for so long will continue!"

So it was with the man who once indited a note which landed him in the governor's chair calmly switched the topic of conversation to sun and shine—and the fact that the late coming of the Master moon this year presages a late spring and a busy season for the farmers.

INTERESTING RUMOR MIXING POLITICS WITH SPEER CASE

An interesting incident in the pending impeachment proceedings against Judge Speer, of the southern district of Georgia, was yesterday disclosed by a prominent citizen of Macon, while calling at the state capitol.

He did not vouch for the accuracy of the report circulated by him, but claimed to have received the information from a reliable source, and dwelt upon the importance of the incident in a possible factor, under certain circumstances, in straightening out the senatorial tangle.

The story as it goes involves the origin of the congressional investigation which resulted in the appointment of an investigating committee to Georgia and which is supposed to contemplate the retirement of Judge Speer from the federal bench by impeachment.

The story credits Congressman Bartlett with inaugurating the plan which contemplated Judge Speer's impeachment, and includes the statement that Congressman Bartlett's plan further contemplated his own elevation to the position on the federal bench, to be made vacant by Judge Speer's retirement.

It was further reported that Congressman Bartlett, who is also a member of the bar of the same federal district with Congressman Bartlett, gave strong aid and sympathy to the impeachment proceedings, and that his help was welcomed with avidity by Congressman Bartlett until the story leaked out that Congressman Hardwick had an eye on the federal bench and proposed to succeed Judge Speer in the event of his impeachment.

Up to this time, the story goes, an admirable arrangement had been adroitly effected under which the uncertainties of impeachment proceedings would be avoided by an agreement to honorably retire Judge Speer in advance of the age fixed by law for voluntary retirement.

It was said that members of congress had steered this feature of the deal so quietly and skillfully as to obtain written consent of Judge Speer to make a vacancy on the federal bench as soon as he could be honorably retired, and that practically all of the Georgia delegation in congress had committed themselves to the successful culmination of the coup.

The reason assigned by current gossip to the miscarriage of these well-laid plans was the discovery on the part of Congressman Bartlett that the possible vacancy had been tentatively pledged to Congressman Hardwick as a leverage to get him out of the senatorial race and leave the field open to Attorney General Felder.

Judge Speer has given some foundation for at least one branch of the rumor by publishing a letter recently written to his counsel, agreeing to honorable retirement in advance of the age prescribed by law, provided all charges reflecting upon him or upon his judicial administration should be abandoned.

The story is but a rumor, but the rumor is charged with interest, if true.

August, 4 and 5 are the days especially. The democratic executive committee Monday fixed the date for the county primary for May 15, which is the middle of the state wide primary. The convention will be held by the Eagles and Knights of Pythias.

TERRELL COUNTY VOTERS GLAD FOR REST FROM POLITICS

Dawson, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—Following the recent primary in this county, the normal equanimity of the various candidates is once more noticeable, and all political agitation is a thing of the past, and everybody is in a good humor.

The election was wholly free from all bitterness or acrimony, and the candidates conducted their campaigns on high planes. While there were surprises and disappointments at the result of the ballot in several instances, yet no ill-will or unkind feelings are harbored by anyone in the county.

LARGE NUMBER OF CANDIDATES MAKING THINGS WARM IN STEWART

Richland, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—Stewart county's primary for county officers will occur on April 13.

There are seven candidates for treasurer, three for tax collector, four for receiver, two for sheriff. For county commissioner there will be at least ten candidates to fill the three vacancies.

J. E. Carter, the present clerk, has no opposition; C. M. Davis, tax collector, is being opposed by W. D. Geeds and E. L. Alston; W. E. Johnson, sheriff, is being opposed by James A. Snelling; George A. Ammons, tax receiver, will have to contend with Buck Griffis, treasurer, is opposed by six candidates.

While the primary for representative will not be held till August, two candidates have announced, W. S. Boyett and A. Day.

EXPECT BIG VOTE TO BE POLLED FRIDAY IN CRISP COUNTY

Cordele, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—All of the candidates for county offices in Crisp are now putting their popularity and running ability to the test, coming in on the "home stretch" for the primary election to be held a close in the primary Friday, the political pot will boil less noisily, at least until the returns are in, but the voters will assume some of the disappointed would-be officials telling how it all happened.

There is considerable speculation as to the outcome of some of the races, especially the three-cornered race for tax collector, the number of candidates and the strong interest in the affair growing out of their popularity. It is expected that the vote polled will considerably exceed that of any previous primary.

CLARKE COUNTY COMMITTEE SETS MAY 9 AS DATE OF COUNTY PRIMARY

Athens, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—The Clarke county democratic executive committee met Monday with the chairman, Hon. Howell Cobb Erwin, at noon.

The primary for county officers is to be held Saturday, May 9, the entries for these offices to close on April 20. Registration will close on April 7. There were changes in the personnel of the committee, which is a representative one selected two years ago. The making up of the polling precincts for the primary was left to the chairman. The question as to whether county commissioners should be included in the primary was raised, and it was decided that they will be nominated as other officers of the county—under the new law the commissioners of roads and revenues, whose terms expire with the expiration of the terms of other county officers.

LARSEN MAKES NO STATEMENT AS TO HIS INTENTIONS

W. W. Larsen, of Dublin, whom reports have put in the race for congress from his district, was in Atlanta Tuesday and called at the capitol to see the governor and others of his friends.

However, he had nothing to say as to whether or not he would be a candidate for congress.

Mr. Larsen is a prominent lawyer of Dublin, and is well known and liked about the state. He was for a time assistant clerk in the governor's office under Governor Brown.

Questions Associated Press Report

Editor Constitution: From time to time there occurs in the various newspapers of the country press dispatches telling of some remarkable operation or cure that have been accomplished. Of late Baltimore seems to be the city where many of these sensational statements originate. I note in this morning's Constitution a press dispatch from that city saying that the most remarkable operation had been performed of transplanting a portion of a pig's eye to the eye of a man who was afflicted with blindness, leading the public to believe that in all probability this man's vision would be restored. The facts are that Dr. Geo. Reuling, one of the most retried thousands of times by ocolists all over the world, with very little success. The nearest approach, however, has been where there has been transplanting tissues from one to man.

Such dispatches and statements as these lead to false hopes on the part of the afflicted, and many a poor person has spent their last penny in order to consult these men who hold out such possibilities to the human race.

No doubt Baltimore was crowded at the time such extravagant statements were being made in reference to the cure of cancer by radium. Such reports are inpositions on the public. JUNIOR BOY, M. D.

A Pathetic Figure on the Strand.

(From The London Globe.)

There is an old man who patrols the streets of London daily in quest of a vanished daughter. Few frequenters of the Strand can have failed to observe him. He is a pathetic figure, with his leggings, his top hat, which has seen better days, and the written placard which advertises to the world his mission in life.

GRAND JURY PROBES GOVERNOR O'NEAL

Investigation of the Lacy Charges Against Alabama Executive Begun — Lacy Before the Grand Jury.

Montgomery, Ala., March 24.—Responding in full the allegations preferred by Theodore Lacy, former governor Emmet O'Neal, declaring that he "the governor of this state be guilty, he should be indicted, convicted and adequately punished," but summoning to the penitentiary along with any other guilty party or parties," but that "if he be innocent, he may be vindicated," the judge summoned Brown at 12:40 this afternoon convened the Montgomery county grand jury in special session and charged that body.

Judge Brown said that the "mere loan to the governor of private funds of Oakley by Lacy might not constitute any criminal act," but summoning up Lacy's concurrent insinuations, he charged that "it might further be implied from Lacy's alleged statement that the governor not only tried to help cover up a known shortage in the department, either wittingly or unwittingly, but help get Examiner Brooks until Lacy had safely absconded."

Regardless of the interpretation of Lacy's article, Judge Brown said it was "no time to split hairs," and referred the jury to the section of the code covering the prosecution of all persons concerned in a felony.

In conclusion, Judge Brown said that "the court has not called you together either to indict Governor O'Neal or to whitewash him, but it has called you together to make a brave and honest effort to get at the real facts, and act accordingly in the light of your duty under the law."

Theodore Lacy, under sentence of ten years for embezzling convict department funds, was summoned before the grand jury this afternoon. He was brought from his cell across the street to the grand jury room by two deputies. He was the first witness.

After questioning Lacy briefly, the grand jury adjourned until Friday. It is expected Lacy will be recalled then.

SLAYER OF MARSHAL JAILED AT DOUGLAS

Douglas, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—Charles Graham, who shot and killed Lawrence Newberry, marshal at Broxton, last Saturday night, and escaped, was captured between Denton and Hazlehurst and brought to Douglas jail, where he is now in safekeeping.

Immediately following the shooting Saturday night, ex-Sheriff David Ruckerson and a posse started in pursuit. Ruckerson was very close at one time to Graham and shot, but it was so dark that he was unable to tell whether the bullet hit. However, next morning blood was discovered around the place where he had shot, and the trail was traced to the point near Hazlehurst, where he was captured.

It is understood that Judge Quincey will call a special term of superior court for the first week in April to try Graham. The wounded brother has been taken from the Douglas hospital to Vidalia, where he is wanted for another crime. However, it is alleged that he is accessory to the crime at Broxton; that he planned it from start to finish.

The dead marshal at Broxton was buried on Tuesday morning.

WOMAN AWARDED $10,000 FOR INJURIES IN WRECK

Macon, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—In the city court of Macon this afternoon Mrs. M. F. Blazer was awarded a verdict for $10,000 against the Southern Railway company for personal injuries sustained when the "Jere Brown" train was wrecked at the Jones brickyard, in the local railroad yards, May 31, 1913.

Mrs. Blazer sued for $25,000 damages, claiming that as a result of the wreck she is a physical wreck, both her sight and hearing being affected and in addition she sustained an injury to her back that is permanent.

Her husband has a suit for $25,000 pending against the company to recover money spent in having his wife treated and for loss of her companionship for a year. He claims to have spent $4,000 for doctors' bills alone.

Mrs. Blazer is a sister of Attorney Julian Urquhart, of Macon, and at the time of the wreck was en route from Cincinnati, Ga., to Nashville, Tenn. The railroad company has not given notice of an appeal.

GIRL OF M'DONOUGH JILTS HER FIANCE AND WEDS OLD LOVE

McDonough, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—Exercising a woman's prerogative to change her mind, Miss Ruby Walker, a pretty young society girl of this place, was this afternoon unexpectedly wedded to Benton Thompson, an old lover, though her engagement to Sidney Smith, of Savannah, had been regularly announced and the nuptials set for April 7.

The sudden marriage, which was solemnized at the manse of the Presbyterian church and performed by Rev. Jonal Barclay, created quite a stir in society circles, for the young lady, as Miss Walker and the fiancee of Mr. Smith, had been extensively entertained.

The young couple left for Atlanta tonight on their honeymoon. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. C. W. Walker. The groom is assistant postmaster here.

WIDOW OF YEGGMAN NABBED IN SAVANNAH

Savannah, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—Mrs. C. C. Carver, alias Mrs. Traver, widow of the yeggman, Charles Prater, who was killed at Wildwood, Fla., more than a month ago, and who led the Savannah detective department on a hunt for hidden gold, was picked up in Savannah mysteriously yesterday and today is being held at the police station while a search is being made for three men thought to be yeggmen, who came into town with her.

The detective department was largely vindicated for its all-day search for the alleged hidden gold on March 2 when the woman led them to a place in the Catholic cemetery where the money may be hidden seems to be a certainty, or at least the woman thinks so, for she started out today to the spot locality and tried hard to locate the spot where she thought her husband had secreted a large sum of money.

NARROW GAUGES CEASE TO EXIST IN GEORGIA

Gainesville, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—Today winds up the narrow gauge railroad in the state of Georgia, the Gainesville Midland railway at this place having broad gauged their line from Belmont, Ga., to Monroe, at the termination of this road on the Winder division.

The authorities announced this morning that the first broad gauge train would run from Gainesville to Monroe tomorrow morning, the broad gauge line having been for months the only thing like a month from this place to Winder, Ga.

As announced editorially in The Constitution a few weeks ago, the last narrow gauge road in the state of Georgia, therefore, is today the "dinky lines" will be extinct in Georgia.

WILL TRY WEIDEMEYER ON CHARGE OF BIGAMY

Savannah, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—Joseph S. Weidemeyer, known in Savannah as Umberger, the name he used when he married pretty Ada Carlotta Wickenberg, who was a trained nurse at the Georgetown sanitarium, will go on trial in the superior court on a charge of bigamy, Recorder Schwartz today holding that his relations with the woman in Atlanta might be construed as a common law wedding in the event it might not be proved it was a legal one.

Had he been able to establish his innocence of a violation of the Georgia penal code, his liberty would have been but shortlived. Waiting in the courtroom was the representative of the United States ready to arrest him for an alleged infraction of the Mann white slave act.

White, chief of police, deputized a party of men to go to the home of Charlie West, who is wanted for the murder of a negro woman, a crime committed here three weeks ago. They failed to find West, but just across the line of Coweta, in Heard county, White and his posse ran into a still, captured it, with a lot of corn whisky and Bill West, who operated it.

TOURISTS NEAR DEATH AS AUTO TURNS TURTLE

Colonel T. W. Mattox and Family, of Moultrie, Injured Near Arabi.

Cordele, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—Pinned beneath a touring car which had turned turtle on a sharp curve on the national highway near Arabi, in this county, Colonel T. W. Mattox, of Moultrie, his wife and daughter, Lamson, aged 11, had a narrow escape from death last night.

Residents near the scene of the wreck heard the screams of Mrs. Mattox and her daughter and hastened to pry the car off them. While mother and daughter sustained slight injuries, the wounds of Colonel Mattox were quite serious. He was thrown against the steering wheel and rendered unconscious, badly hurt in the breast, and probably a crack on the side of the head. They were taken to a hotel in Arabi and medical attention given them.

Colonel Mattox will be out in a few days. The family were on the way to Atlanta and were overtaken by darkness, expecting to stop overnight at Cordele. It seems that Colonel Mattox lost control of the machine.

LEASING PLAN PROPOSED FOR ALASKA COAL LANDS

Washington, March 24.—Opening of Alaska coal lands under a leasing plan was proposed in a bill introduced today by the senate public lands committee, and which will be favorably reported by Chairman Myers.

Under the bill 6,130 acres in the Bering river district and 7,680 acres in the Matanuska field will be reserved to be mined by the government when, in the opinion of the president, "the mining of such coal becomes necessary by reason of an insufficient supply of coal at a reasonable price," for the navy and government work, "and for relief from oppressive conditions."

The bill proposes that the unreserved lands be surveyed into 40-acre tracts or multiples thereof, the maximum being fixed at 640 acres for any tract. They are to be leased to competitive bidders, not more than one tract being included in any lease. Railroads will be prohibited from acquiring a greater coal supply than needed for their own use.

Provision also is made for the relinquishment of pending claims under the public land law. Claimants will receive a refund of money and a prior right of selection under the leasing law.

The total acreage of contiguous land, which one person or corporation might hold, in the discretion of the secretary of the interior, would be fixed at 2,560 acres, and consolidations of small contiguous holdings would be permitted if the total areas involved were within that figure.

Tillman's Start Towards Health Obtained During Atlanta Visit

United States Senator Tells His Colleagues How He Discovered the Road Back to Youth and Gives Detailed Explanation Of His Methods.

United States Senator Benjamin Tillman, who told his colleagues in the senate how he discovered the road leading to youth and health, started on the pleasant journey in Atlanta.

Senator Tillman's speech in the senate, extending over two appearances, is worth reproducing particularly in that asmuch as it resulted in the stopping of smoking in the senate chamber.

"Mr. President," said Mr. Tillman, "I desire to explain my reasons for presenting this resolution changing the rules. Nineteen years' service in the senate has taught me to believe that two of its most distinguishing characteristics are courtesy and an insistent demand that each member shall have as much consideration and enjoy as many rights as any other senator.

"A majority of the senators—a large majority, at that—are smokers, and unfortunately, a pernicious habit has fastened them that they are forever and miserable when they do not get the nicotine upon which soothes their nerves. Consequently, as soon as the doors are closed for executive session they light up cigars and puff away, and the chamber soon has the appearance of a beer saloon. When the executive session is not on they have to go to the cloak room to smoke.

"I did not mind tobacco smoke formerly, although I have never been a smoker myself; but since I was paralyzed four years ago the smell of the tobacco smoke nauseates me and makes me sick. Consequently I do not remain in the senate during executive sessions any more than I can possibly help, although I have almost always responded to my name on roll call to say important matter, whether in executive session or not.

Forced to Leave Room.

"The fact is I am forced to make is this: Senators who enjoy smoking and feel obliged to it can retire to the cloak rooms to indulge in it; but I have to leave the chamber, and that infringes on my rights as a senator and compels me to walk half a mile.

"It may be said, and has been said by some of my friends here who will vote against this change in the rules, that when I am in the cloak room or chamber they do not smoke; and I am very grateful for the consideration, but who watch and cease smoking while I am present. I have noticed frequently, however, that one who have told me of their desire to refrain from it in my presence do not know they are sincere—forget it and smoke right along. Besides, I find on my democratic colleagues so insist on getting their feverish desire to smoke that they feel compelled to light cigars in the cloak room so that I have almost had to leave the space in front of an open window, for my very life depends upon a full supply of fresh air. So I am forced to the danger of being driven out of the party and of the senate itself, and I do not know where to turn.

"While I have been told by physicians, in a narcotic or sedative, while whisky is a stimulant, as everybody knows. Many men use both, and are constantly on the journey from the garret to the cellar and back, being whipped into the nervous racked by the constant conflict going on in their systems between the stimulant and sedative contend for mastery.

Letters From Senators.

"When I first offered this resolution I received letters from every one telling an expression of opinion and urging the adoption of this rule. I have replies from nearly all of them, but many made verbal answers on the floor of the senate.

"Taking them all together, the letters I have are a very interesting study of psychology, showing how men differ about certain things and the many numerous points of view which they have. For instance, I noticed that the non-smokers are far more sympathetic than they have any idea of selfishness than some of the smokers.

"I hate to have the feeling of being a misanthrope. It makes me very uncomfortable, because I am naturally kind of hearted and desire to be courteous to everybody. But when I enter a place where senators are assembled I sometimes do, in the committee rooms, I catch a glimpse of their eyes which I can only interpret to mean, 'Here comes old Ben Tillman, and I hate even to stop smoking,' and that makes me very uncomfortable and I am not happy.

"Since my illness four years ago I have learned more about the human body than I knew in all the rest of my life put together, and I am sure I have discovered some of the secrets of nature and laws of health of which most men know nothing whatever. The pity of it is that I had to ruin my health before I discovered these things and learned how to live rationally.

Advice to Senator Lea.

"I believe I could lengthen the life of every man in this chamber from six to fifteen years if I could only get them to listen to me, tell them and follow my advice. But all men are prone to neglect the sage, sickness, death and self as for other people and give impressions.

"To give advice is the easiest thing in the world, as Shakespeare says, and I quote:

"'I can sailor teach twenty what were good to be done,
Than be one of twenty to follow mine own teaching.'

"Since I was paralyzed four years ago, and have had my own obituary, twenty-three senators, including Vice President Sherman, one of them younger men than I have died.

"Think of it, vice president, twenty-three men in four years.

"And I also recall that Senator Tillman, at the time referred to, was under treatment for a number of weeks at Robertson sanitarium, on Capitol avenue, and has frequently visited there since.)

"Now, senator, as I look around the chamber and see the changes that have come and the many and familiar faces of friends who are dead, that I expect will be joined by others with ghosts as well as living men. There is no doubt in the world with mind that this great mortality among us is due to the life we live in Washington. The life here is indeed an arduous one, and mental strain is immense. There is a continuous succession of banquets, dinners and receptions. Automobiles and street cars are used to a certain extent instead of walking, and pure air and sunshine are things of which we see little. There is no surer way to undermine the health than eating too much or eating irregularly. All these explain the unusual mortality among the members of congress.

"A fitting epitaph for most of the senators who have died in service would be 'died of overwork,' but too well, and killed himself eating. Indeed, that has been said about most men and women in official life in Washington.

Senator Tillman spoke further on health of new days later, explaining in detail his recovery.

"Similar premature deaths within the recent past of two of the most distinguished congressmen of industry in the south are very lamentable," he said. "Both of them started at the top of the ton and worked their way to the very top of the wheel, only to fall and die. Neither ought to have died so young. One was 49 and the other was 52, while the other was only sixty. Had they known the value of self-control in eating and the uses of hot water, they would have lived at least ten years longer to serve their country and be with their families. Indeed, it may be said that just at this period when experience and study made them capable of doing the best work, they were cut down. When the world loses such men the gap is not easily filled, although there are many who think they can fill it and are anxious to try.

"In the hope that my own personal experience may benefit others and save precious lives, I am going to recite briefly as possible how I now live and what I have done and am doing every day to restore and preserve my health. It is by no means fully restored, but my recovery is indeed marvelous to those who have watched its progress.

"Most men will be skeptical and not believe what I say. The overwhelming number will not have the self-control to do what I advise, though it is neither hard nor painful. The trouble will be skepticism, and the unwillingness to control their appetites.

Treated First at Sanitarium.

"Remember, I was near entirely helpless, although very nearly so; and it was only after several months of treatment at sanitariums that I grew strong enough to begin physical culture exercises. But after I began them, it steadily improved. The man who perseveres will thank me, for the result will immediately be good. The man who has mere curiosity and not will-power, unable to keep on had better not begin.

"I passed my sixty-sixth birthday last August, and am therefore not very far from the Biblical limit of three score years and ten. But had I learned how to take care of my body in early manhood, I might have been able to reach the age of eighty-five or ninety, perhaps a hundred, because I inherited from my father and mother a very strong constitution.

"The main idea I have had in declaring it necessary to restore my health by the use of physical culture exercises has been to increase the circulation and drive the blood to the brain, and keep down sweating by working the joints and preventing calcareous deposits.

"These calcareous deposits are like rust and are allowed to accumulate they cause a great deal of pain and trouble. They affect the kidneys and washes these poisons out. Taking these matters, the human body should be kept in good order by constant exercise. Physical culture affords both the exercise and the lubricant to keep the hinges from creaking.

Senator Describes Exercises.

"The following are the exercises I take on my bed each morning:

"Before arising in the morning, take the head off the pillow and stretch out straight, bring in a deep breath and begin by kicking the buttock with the heel of one foot fifteen times, then exhale. Draw in the breath again and kick with the heel of the other foot fifteen times, holding the breath until the moment it is necessary to exhale. Then exhale out and draw in a fresh breath and kick with both feet fifteen times. Draw in a fresh breath to the limit after each movement.

"Next drop the heels on the bed with the knees drawn up. Then, throw the knees as far over to the right as convenient and repeat movement twenty times.

"Then throw the knees to the left and the other toward the headboard with vigor. Keep the knee-joints as straight as you can. A different set of muscles are called into play when doing this with the knees drawn up and the knee-joints free.

"Now kick out with both feet as wide apart as possible and bring them together, as though you were kicking off a vicious dog.

"Next place the hands under the small of the back, keep the legs as a lever, elevate both feet at once and the lower part of the body toward the headboard, using the abdominal muscles to pull up the lower extremities. If in an iron bed, this movement can be facilitated by hanging the feet over or round above the head with the hands and pulling on feet and feet. This and the next movement are intended to reach the muscles that change the fat on the abdomen to muscle. Then fasten the feet under something, and pull the trunk to a sitting posture. Young, healthy people do not need to fasten the feet, but and fat once must do it. One ought to go about it cautiously at first, and may have become accustomed to the strain. Repeat four or five times.

"Finally throw the head back with the feet on the floor, and lift the body clear so that the shoulders do not touch, forming an arch. Repeat as often as you wish.

Follows With Cold Bath.

"I then take a cold bath, beginning with the wrists and ankles and with it as cold as I can stand. I rub down briskly, put on underclothing and dress and get a light pair of iron dumbbells—from two to five pounds—and get momentum to the movements and bring the muscles into exercise.

"First stand erect with the dumbbells fully stretched above the head downward and backward, passing by the ears. Repeat this four times, alternating, bend the trunk forward as nearly horizontal as you can, and let the arms swing as near as the dumbells clear the floor. Keep the knees stiff, try to punch the big toe of each foot with both fists. Repeat as often as desired, straightening up between punches.

"Next, using the dumbells, operate the hands full length of the arms a little to the front, then to the side, swinging the arms in unison first to the right and then to the left, as the case may be, the other come down, swaying the body with the arms to the side on which arm is made. Elevate the hand that goes up the high as the knee, and kick and put the other as near the floor as you can. This is a splendid exercise, and is very fine for stimulating the organs.

"Then throw both arms behind the back hard so as to bring the back of the hands as near together as possible while holding the dumbbells climbing.

"Still holding the dumbbells, throw one hand over the other to the front, looking first over one shoulder and then over the other, twisting the spine as far as possible and loosening the vertebrae.

"Bring one hand at a time over the dumbbells upward and backward, downward and forward, forming a circle with the elbow as a center, first in reverse and swing the other way.

"Standing flatfooted and the hands above the head the dumbbells in hand and try to touch the floor while the knees are held stiff. Straighten up and repeat. Continue to do this until you succeed in reaching the floor. I usually reach the third effort. At first I could hardly get lower than my knees.

Means His Horse Unaided.

"Take hold of the dumbbells as usual and bow as you can. Straighten up and bend backward as far as you can. Then squat and repeat, straightening up and bending backward. This will loosen the vertebrae of the spine and relieve the pressure on the nerves at the base of the trunk. This to me is my most valuable exercise, as the dumbbells help me mount my horse from the ground without assistance.

"Caution: Never do any of these movements and exercises on full stomach.

"I practice these exercises morning and night, both before and after breakfast. It takes about two minutes not including the bath. I have found that deep breathing adds very much to my strength and facilitates my return to health. Many do not know what this means. I will explain my method.

"First, compress the diaphragm, driving all the breath out of the body you can. Then draw in as much cold dead or residual air, and it remains in the lungs for a few minutes it is expelled by will power. After you have cleansed the lungs in this way all the fresh air you can. Hold it in the lungs as long as you will.

"Then exhale slowly. One can increase the capacity of the lungs by the supposed possible at first. This is the best thing I have found for insomnia, as almost before I know it, as I am counting the inhalations, I am asleep. I never remember to have done it more than ten times without going to sleep.

"Another great blessing to me has been hot water. I drink it as hot as I can, about 160 degrees Fahrenheit in my case) using at least three quarts a day. Tepid water is rejected by some stomachs as it produces nausea. But hot water brings relief to most people. I have gotten so I do not want any other food. It cleanses the stomach in readiness for food. It aids digestion, taken at the right time—shortly after eating. It assists in keeping the bowels regular, and is a specific for indigestion, acute or otherwise. Indeed, I cannot say too much for it.

"The four things which have contributed most to my restoration to health are careful diet, deep breathing, physical culture exercises and drinking hot water."—(adv.)

SEASON TICKET SALE WILL CLOSE MARCH 28

Colonel W. L. Peel, president of the Atlanta Music Festival association, calls attention to the fact that this is the last week in which tickets for Metropolitan Grand Opera can be obtained at season rates. This Saturday, March 28, is the last day of the season seat sale which is now going on at Phillips & Crew's and at the Cable Piano Company. When this sale closes at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, it will be absolutely impossible thereafter for anybody to obtain season reservations or to get the advantage of the material difference in prices.

For instance, in the arena a season seat now purchasable, may be had for $31 for seven performances, making a cost of $4 per performance. Exactly the same tickets will cost $5 per performance when bought for single performances. The same seats of prices prevails nearly all the way down. For instance, a seat that costs $17.50 at season rates for seven performances will cost $6 for a single performance, and seats which cost $14 each for the season, will cost $8 each when bought for single performances.

Treasurer C. B. Bidwell announces that the season sale is already several thousand dollars ahead of the corresponding time last year, and that every indication points to a record-breaking attendance. There are plenty of good seats left, however, in all parts of the house. Out-of-town orders for season tickets will be received and filled provided they are actually mailed on or before Saturday, March 28. No orders for season tickets, whether by mail or otherwise, will be accepted at season rates thereafter.

The opera begins this year Monday evening, April 27, with "Carmen," with Parrar, Caruso and Frieda Hempel in the leading roles. It concludes Saturday evening, May 3, with a double bill of "Cavalleri Rusticana" and "Pagliacci."

ALMOST EATEN ALIVE BY VICIOUS WORMS

W. E. Dickens Is Now Well, After Having Been a Chronic Sufferer. As Usual "Quaker" Does the Work.

Mr. W. E. Dickens live on Dancey street, in East Atlanta. He is now a tillesitter, but was formerly on the police force of Marvin, serving in the same capacity in Jersey. For years he suffered and continued to suffer. He and friends that he was not able to say. Doctors said he had stomach trouble. He himself thought he had an affection of that organ and from agonies and distresses he endured no doubt it was stomach trouble. He felt exhausted and run down, had severe pains in his stomach, and could not eat without having awful misery. His sleep was broken by dreams, and he would be awake several hours each night. He gradually grew nervous, weak and discouraged, and could not do his work. He used many remedies supposed to be relief for such conditions, but got no better. Prescriptions also failed to do anything for his case.

An intimate friend told Mr. Dickens to call at Coursey & Munn drug store and see about Quaker Extract. He did so, and after he had explained his case, was sold a treatment of three bottles of the Extract, which he took home and began using immediately. After several doses he began to feel much better, and on the third day he expelled over a hundred large stomach worms, which had been the entire cause of all his trouble. Nothing else could cure him, for the simple reason that they could not reach the seat of the trouble, although really intended for ordinary stomach troubles. The wonderful Quaker Extract has a positive worm and germ destroyer in its formula, and if there are any such beings in the system of those who are taking the remedy, they will be expelled. If there are no worms then that herb works in harmony with the others of the formula in removing the cause of the disease, regardless of the origin. So you see, Quaker Extract cures any branch of stomach trouble, such as indigestion, biliousness, dizziness and skin troubles, for it has the true qualifications for curative work. But there are no vile, no mineral, and no vile chemicals in it at all; so you cannot possibly harm the system of even an infant by giving it. Those who suffer with the above complaints as the Health Teacher has proved when cases that these Quaker Remedies will cure, even after all other remedies have failed completely. Therefore do not be discouraged, sufferer, but go to Coursey & Munn drug store and find out about "Quaker" at 29 Marietta street, where these wonderful Quaker Extract 7 for $2.50 or 6 for $5.00, Oil of Bain 25c or 5 for $1.00 can be obtained at all times. We prepay express charges on all orders of $2.00 or over.

MARCELLUS THORNTON BUYS SMELTER WORKS

Former Atlanta Newspaper Man Will Soon Begin Remodeling Oakdale Plant.

Colonel Marcellus E. Thompson, prominent in Atlanta as a newspaper man in pioneer days, has purchased the old Southern Smelter works, at Oakdale, Ga., and will begin remodeling the plant at once. The works closed down about ten years ago on account, it is said, of being unable to secure 350 tons of ore a day, for which amount it was constructed to smelter.

Colonel Thompson is now sending the large furnace of the plant to his lead smelter works in the vicinity of Knoxville, Tenn., and bring to the Oakdale plant, in Gwinnett county, which Frank Mace, his engineer, says will take care of all the gold and copper mines in Georgia. The smelter will be in active operation by fall.

The plant comprises about twelve buildings and covers an 80-acre tract. The main office building will be in the Piedmont Smeltering company.

Walter Keller, negro convict doing five years on the Chaingang penitentiary near Atlanta, plead not guilty when arraigned in the federal court yesterday morning, on the charge of murder, because of the sudden death of John Grundyke, a fellow convict whom he struck in the head on the 13th of January 16, 1912.

After five witnesses had related what they saw in the kitchen at the penitentiary when Keller struck and knocked the white convict to the hard concrete floor, and R. H. Hardaway and Hudson Moure, the prisoner's attorneys, named by Judge Newman to defend him, and Assistant District Attorney Manley had consumed an hour all told in argument, the jury brought in a verdict of involuntary manslaughter, punishable under the criminal laws of Georgia, confining in the pen. at not exceeding ten years, and Keller was at once taken back to the penitentiary to await sentence by Judge Newman at a later date.

The evidence satisfied the jury that Grundyke, a white deaf mute, doing five years, had spilled some slops on the kitchen floor, causing a quarrel with Keller, who struck him in the face with his left fist, knocking him down. Either the fall or the blow caused the white convict's death within a few minutes.

"NUTMEG" MOOSE MEN OBJECT TO COALITION

New Haven, Conn., March 24.—The state central committee of the progressive party placed itself on record today as firmly opposed to any coalition with the republican party, decided to put a full ticket in the field at the next state election and criticised the democratic administration's policy of regulation of trusts and corporations.

A set of resolutions declares the administration's remedy for the corporate business of this country is to regulate it by destroying it. The resolutions say:

"The most striking example of this is in the absurd handling of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad situation, where two men, the attorney general of the United States and the president of the railway, are negotiating in secret conference the transportation conditions for the 7,000,000 people of New England."

Of the republicans the resolutions say:

"They cannot win without the progressives, and they cannot win if they cannot long survive without winning. Their situation is hopeless."

Want Walker Monument In Same Park With McPherson

The East Atlanta Improvement club, the Julia Jackson chapter, Children of the Confederacy, and the Atlanta chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, have united their interest in making for a suitable parking around the McPherson monument, in East Atlanta, and the Walker monument near there.

Congressman William Schley Howard has introduced a resolution in congress asking for an appropriation to park the McPherson monument, and he will be asked to extend the amount of the appropriation asked for so that the monuments of the two distinguished soldiers may be appropriately preserved and surrounded.

The East Atlanta improvement club is taking an active interest in the move, and the president of the club, E. A. Milner, appointed a special park committee to act in the matter, this committee, including William Schley Howard as honorary chairman; Miss Kate Koch, active chairman; Miss Elizabeth Hanna, director of the Julia Jackson chapter, Children of the Confederacy; L. F. Gibson, Mrs. H. C. Black, T. V. Cirant, W. M. Lottis, L. M. Marbut, John Pappa, Mrs. S. D. Warnock and Mrs. Jack Clark.

WOMEN KEEP BATTLING FOR THE RIGHT TO VOTE

They Advocate Bill Allowing Them to Vote for Members of Congress.

Washington, March 24.—Women suffragists and antis had another round or argument today before the house elections committee—this time over the French bill to permit certain qualified women to vote at congressional elections. Both contingents numbered men among their supporters. Spectators who claimed they were neither brought the arguments about equal. The committee gave no evidence of its feelings.

The Rev. Oliver Browne, of Racine, Wis., and Mrs. Clara Berwick Colby, of Portland, Ore., presented the case of the suffragists, and Miss Lucy Price and Miss Minnie Bronson, the latter secretary of the National Association opposed to Woman Suffrage, endorsed a majority of the women of the United States did not wish to vote.

Representative French, of Idaho, author of the bill, and Representative Shelley, of Kentucky, engaged in a joint debate that interrupted the questioning and drew volleys of applause from both sides. Shelley, since the courts had held that the states were the sole judges of the qualifications of their voters and that it was beyond the power of the federal government to intervene.

RATE ADVANCE DECISION IN THE DISTANT FUTURE

Washington, March 24.—An official announcement issued today by the interstate commerce commission indicating the likelihood of the taking of additional testimony in the eastern advance rate case as late as April 22, $15.75 Tuesday morning in Big recorder's court by Judge Broyles for selling bad meat to his customers.

May, at the earliest, and possibly not until a short time before the commission adjourns for the summer, late in June.

The railroads have requested the commission to afford them opportunity to present additional testimony as to their need of increased revenues; and also to offer evidence in rebuttal of the testimony introduced by those opposed to an advance in rates. The commission announced that it would begin to take the additional testimony on March 30 and 31, and that, if necessary, the hearing would be completed on April 10, 21 and 22. As Clifford Thorne, chairman of the railroad commission of Iowa, representing eight western states in opposition to the proposed advance, is to present his evidence on March 30 and 31, it is hardly possible that the hearings can be concluded until late in April.

Those in intimate touch with the procedure of the commission regard it as likely, therefore, that the case cannot be argued until some time in May. After the hearing of testimony shall have been concluded, a reasonable time—ordinarily it is fifteen or twenty days—will be given for the submission of briefs by counsel for the roads. These will be followed by briefs by counsel for the opposition. After the briefs have been submitted a time, extending, perhaps over several days, will be taken up in oral arguments.

In the usual course of events this procedure would consume the time until nearly the first of June. How long after that it might take the commission to determine the issues involved and to prepare a formal decision is a matter of pure conjecture.

It was recalled today that Chairman Harlan announced from the bench a few weeks ago that the rate case was being expedited in every way and that it was the expectation that a final decision might be reached before the summer recess of the commission."

Goethals Police Bill Beaten.

Albany, N. Y., March 24.—The New York police bill, drafted in the hope that it would increase the powers of the police commissioner would induce Colonel George W. Goethals to accept the place, was defeated in the assembly today by a vote of 84 to 48.

KIND LADY HELPS SICK OLD SOLDIER

Could Not Walk a Step. Both Make Statement Regarding Trouble, and Place Credit Where Due

Blackwells, Ga.—"Last year, an old soldier living in my neighborhood," says Mrs. Hattie Armstrong, of this place, "was so stricken with his back, that he could not walk a step. He got no relief from medicines he was taking, and I recommended Thedford's Black-Draught to him. He got two 25c packages, and by the time he had used them, he was entirely well.

I have been using Black-Draught for 10 years in my family, and am never without it in the house. I have six children and I give them Black-Draught for colds, and it cures them. I suffered with constipation for a long time, and I could get nothing to do me the good that Black-Draught does. It is all that keeps me on foot."

Mr. S. M. Watkins, the old soldier referred to above, says: "I was down with my back last summer, and couldn't get anything to relieve me. On a friend's advice, I took two packages of Thedford's Black-Draught and it did me more good than all other medicines put together. It's the finest medicine for headache, as well as constipation and colds, I have ever tried."

CHAPMAN IS ARRESTED IN MURDER MYSTERY

Confession Is Expected to Clear Up Sensational Case at Calhoun.

Calhoun, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—Charles Chapman, who is wanted here for alleged complicity in the mysterious murder of Sid Chapman, is now under arrest in Dade county and will be brought to Chattanooga tonight, where Sheriff Land, of Gordon, will take him in charge. This is the news received here today and it marks an important development in the sensational murder of last Saturday.

It is believed that Charles Chapman is the missing link and that a confession from him will clear up the deep mystery that so far has surrounded the case.

The two women in jail here still refuse to admit that they have any connection with the crime. Mrs. Starnes, a gray-haired woman of nearly sixty, presents a pathetic spectacle behind the bars as she tearfully insists that she is innocent. When her daughter, Miss Mary Starnes, of Chattanooga, visited her this morning she broke down completely.

"Mary," she said, "they are going to hang me and I am innocent, but when you see me on the gallows with the rope around my neck remember that I never took the life of my brother Sid."

The young woman prisoner says little and spends all her time attending her little 7-months-old baby.

YELLOW JACKETS DEFEAT MEDICOS

Errors Result in the Runs Scored by Both Teams. The Final Score Was 2 to 1.

By a score of 2 to 1 Tech came out winner against the Atlanta Medical college yesterday afternoon at Grant field.

The game was very closely contested throughout, the only thing being able to seive the offerings of the twirlers to any great extent. Tech was only able to gather one hit off Dewberry, who had the batters eating out of his hand all the way, while the Medicos managed to secure four off of the three Tech boxmen.

Both pitchers had a bad day in the field, the Medicos making ten errors and the Jackets five. The three runs of the afternoon were tallied on miscues.

Weaver made a nice catch of a long drive in the eighth, when the bases were densely populated. He also secured the only hit made by the Jackets.

Dewberry twirled splendid ball for the Medicos and but for certain support would have held Tech scoreless.

Tech's initial tally came in the sixth. With one down, Tyler Montague got on on an error, took second on Pounds' out at first, advanced to third when Starr hit an infield grounder and scored when the catcher tried to catch him off third.

Tech's other score was due to Wooten's hit, his steal of second and an error by the shortstop on Pounds' grounder rolled.

The Medicos pushed one over in the eighth, when Irwin and Jackson walked, each advancing a base on Bryant's error. Irwin crossed the pan when Tim misplayed Parks's fly.

Stew Donnelly Was Stewed; Perry Hands Out Sleeper; Preliminaries Were Good

"Stew" Donnelly, of Indianapolis, repaired as a welterweight of much might be, when he is not "stewed," but in such a condition he entered the ring at the Georgia Athletic club last night for the main bout.

The result, with Jimmy Perry in the best condition of his career, was just a question of time. Jimmy produced a knock-o in the third round, after dropping in the second and third in the previous.

It was strictly up to the Georgia Athletic club to see that Donnelly was on hand and in condition, but he, in spite of having to go out and get him from some high liver somewhere, about thirty minutes before the bout started. But Donnelly's wisest move will be to hit the first rattler for other parts. He wasn't no more in him than a.

The preliminaries were all that could be asked for. They saved the card, and but for them the Georgia Athletic club would deserve a good panning. The price of admission was in the prelims.

In the opener, Billy Hooper stopped Sherrod Johnson in the third round of a scheduled six-round bout.

Kid Williams and Young Shepard put up an rattling a six-round preliminary in the second bout of the evening in one would care to see between a couple of raw youngsters. The bout was called a draw.

Battling Kelly and Young Goldman battled eight rounds to a draw in the semi-wind-up. This bout dragged at times, but at others was very lively. Referee Saul gave the bout to Kelly, but Manager Castro changed the verdict to a draw, which was the only just decision.

FRANK BROWNING IN GREAT FORM

Holds Newark to Three Hits—Long, Welchonce and Lynch Star—Score 3 to 2—Play Today.

By Dick Jemison.

Browning, the Crackers' pitching recruit from the Texas league, justified our opinion of him yesterday when he went the entire nine innings against the Newark international league champions, beating them 3 to 2.

With perfect support he would not have had a tally scored against him during the entire session. He worked easily, and has one fine knowes how to pitch that old baseball.

Three hits were all that the Newark club was able to get off his delivery, one of them being a fluke of the scorer. Browning was master of the situation at all times and was never in any real danger at any time.

This recruit looked better every time that he has pitched lately and was the star man on the staff who was capable of going the entire nine innings at this stage of the training. He will use that same form with the Crackers play the Boston Braves in Macon next Monday.

Browning's change of pace, his splendid control and an ability to use his slow one with his fast one and mix at any time, outguessing the batter, is what makes him such a dandy pitcher. He incidentally handles himself like he knows what he is about when he steps on the rubber.

Like Old Times.

It looked like old times Tuesday to see Harry Welchonce and Tommy Long cracking them out in their old time style. Both got a couple of blows, Harry getting a three ply against the ball along with a dashing triple that long bridged the opposing twirler, while Tommy slashed one to right for two bars and a single to center.

Red Lynch looks mighty fine around that old hot corner, handling five chances in errorless style. He did not get his eye on the pill at the bat, but he had some bad situations to face when he was up there at the plate, making it mighty hard for him.

Amby McConnell made a couple of splendid catches and two keystones, in fact every man on the club played mid-season form with a few boots that were excusable and will happen to the best of them.

There was little from the Newark team's showing on Tuesday that one could pick any features from. Browning had the high sign on them all the way.

The Scoring.

The Crackers scored one in the fourth. Eibel opened the inning with a free ticket, Lynch sacrificing him. Munch hit to Getz, who booted, and Eibel scaled to third, from where he counted on Browning's sacrifice fly to center.

In the fifth, with one gone, Welchonce got one in the old wheel house and poled her to the bull for three cushions, drawing up under a full head of steam. Rabbit Long kicked in with a sacrifice fly to center scoring Captain Barry.

Tommy took a life with one gone in the Newark's half of the sixth, on Schaf's boot. Reiser, Zimmerman, former Cracker, drew a free ticket. Myers hit to Schwind, who threw to McConnell, forcing Zimmerman. Amby threw wild to first trying for a double play and Tooley counted.

Welchonce opened the Crackers' seventh with a low bridge wallop through the pitcher and the umps. Long sacrificed him down. He went to third on Thomas's infield out and scored on Eibel's smash by the third sacker.

Collins smashed one in Newark's eighth. It was a vicious blow to left which Long let skute him and the former Vanderbilt star went to third on the count. He scored from there on Tooley's sacrifice fly.

The Newarks were able to get a scratch hit in the first inning and clean hits in the eighth and ninth off of Browning. At other times they were in distress.

Georgia Boys.

The first twirler for the Newark club was a left-hander named R. Smith. It afterwards developed that this was none other than the Mansfield, Ga., product, Sherrod Smith. Young Smith looks like a pretty useful hurler at that.

Another Georgia boy will decorate the mound today, but for the Crackers. Key Parryman, of Marshallville, Ga., and formerly of Mercer college, will hurl the game for the Crackers. Joe Dunn will probably catch. The rest of the Crackers' line-up will be the same.

Dwight Holmes, who formerly twirled for Augusta, in the Sally league, and is well known here, may accompany the mound for the Newark club.

SENTELL AND NELSON READY FOR BATTLE

Good Main Bout at the Columbia Tonight—Two Fine Prelims, Also.

TONIGHT'S BOUTS.
Jack Sentell v. Terry Nelson, ten rounds.
Bobby La Roux v. Kid Wonder, six rounds.
Young Shrimp v. Bat Clarke, four rounds.

When Terry Nelson, Atlanta's fighting Greek, jumps through the ropes at the Columbia theater tonight to battle Jack Sentell, he will insist that Referee Mike Saul give a decision.

Terry's friends have promised Tuesday over a report that Sentell will insist that no decision be given, but Promoter Frank Hammond declares that the fighters agreed to fight ten rounds to a decision when they signed articles, and he will insist that the fight be decided one way or the other.

Sentell laughed when he was asked if he would insist on a no-decision contest. He believes that he is able to put Terry away in less than the limit; in fact, he has urged his friends to wager that he will win by the knockout route.

Henry demands for seats indicate that the Columbia will be sold out Wednesday night. Promoter Hammond secured a corking good card when he signed up Bobby La Roux and Kid Wonder for six rounds, and Young Sharkey and Bat Clarke for four rounds. The boys are game, clever fighters, and are popular among fight fans.

YOU MAY AS WELL LOOK YOUNG

Old-style things, especially old-style glasses, make you feel and look old. The old-style split, two-piece bifocals for instance are the very earmarks of advancing age. Why don't you investigate the new invisible ultra invisible bifocal? They're really "young folks' glasses." Come in and try on a pair and let us explain their merits. A. R. OLD CROP COTTON STILL IN DEMAND

The May Contracts Sold at About High Point of the Previous Day—Spot Cotton Steady.

New York, March 24.—There was renewed demand from old crop shorts in cotton today and May contracts sold back to about the high point of yesterday. Realizing caused moderate reactions in the late trading, however, with the close steady, net 4 points higher to 2 points lower.

New crop positions were relatively quiet and easy during the forenoon although reports from Dallas stated southwestern crop prospects were delayed and that much of the seed was turning out unfavorably for planting. Liverpool and local shorts were considered the best buyers of the new and July contracts, particularly of May, and that position met considerable selling about 25 points over July at one time. Reports of a big movement of cotton notions in the local stock were circulating and probably helped the advance in connection with reports of a better trade in Manchester, and Liverpool early steady ruling of the Liverpool market.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 4 points in response to the cables. Fluctuations were somewhat irregular until after the call and there seemed to be quite a good deal of buying around 12.25 for May. This selling came chiefly through wire houses with southern and western connections, but was gradually absorbed and old crop shorts, who also took local offerings for a reaction, which were chiefly for July delivery.

Early sellers probably anticipated the demand for old crops would taper off rapidly after the close of Liverpool, but some of the most active early May buyers continued to buy and in the forenoon and the continuance of this demand started covering by local shorts. Old crop months sold 4 to 10 points net higher in consequence, but the new crop failed to follow the advance and the general list reacted some 5 to 8 points from the best in the late trading. Demand from May shorts was the active feature on the close, while less active interest offering, attributed to Wall street longs, was lacking. Spot cotton steady; middling uplands 13.09, gulf 13.15. New Orleans Cotton.

New Orleans, March 24.—The price of cotton opened within a point of yesterday with the close unchanged to 1 point up. The market was held firm, advancing by talk of a weakened technical position. As the reading of the market by this school went bald with Sounds by threatened ruling in the western belt, which was considered would tend to retard planting. What is said to bear was understood as being of a strong character, which made its own warrant for the position. There was no change of importance in the bull feeling at no time was general.

Dry Goods.

New York, March 24.—Cotton goods markets were quiet but steady today with sales less active. Reports from woolen and worsted agencies told of a lessening volume of production in many small mills. Yarns were steady.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.

New York, March 24.—In spite of advance trade reports from Manchester, the near deliveries here and Liverpool are maintained on a high level, as compared with the new crop. To some extent this is due to the covering of a short interest, but in the main, there is a good deal of genuine support. Some of the mill people are looking for lower prices in the new crop months, but the bulk of demand for the near-by deliveries, which cause them to come higher and higher and lower. We believe a very large portion of the May shorts have covered, and there seems to be more of the arbitrage transactions still open.

Liverpool Cotton.

Liverpool, March 24.—Cotton spot easier; good middling 7.52; middling 7.11; low middling 6.75; sales 5,000; speculation and export 1,000. Receipts 16,800. Futures steady.

ADVANCE IN CORN CALLED TO HALT

Report of the Arrival of Argentine Cargo at New Orleans Caused Decline. Wheat Off.

Chicago, March 24.—The advance in prices for grain was stopped today by reports that new corn from Argentine was already at the wharves in Galveston. The reports were later disputed. After reaching a new high level for 1914 the market broke sharply, closing at the same as might to 1-4 down. The outcome of wheat and oats considered, was unchanged to 1-8@1-4 off. In provisions there was a net decline of 2@5c.

Before word came that some of the new Argentine corn had actually arrived at the docks of hard pressed consumers in Texas and northward to Nebraska and Missouri, many bull speculators felt confident of a big lift, the corn market in a way that would be Broomhall stepped in. The effect was to make a tempting opportunity for other holders to unload and to realize profits. This was done in wholesale fashion and when the Galveston reports became current a number of belated longs found themselves sacrificed on stop loss orders, the action of which had the effect of knocking out between 500,000 bushels to arrive there, and 1,000,000 bushels to be booked similar amounts. On the other hand, primary receipts of wheat throughout the United States were only 840,000 bushels, as against 4,440,000 bushels on the corresponding day a year ago.

Export trade advices came from Kansas and also from Minnesota and North Dakota, helpful to the market. Cash corn was on the advance, but after the bulge spell in the consumer grain, was quickly receded. There was no export demand and the sales were not heavy.

Oats merely imitated the behavior of corn. Shipping call was light.

It was a tame market in provisions. Moderate selling by packers near the end of the day brought on the final down turn.

BRYAN ADVISES NOLAN NOT TO GO TO MEXICO

Wires That Body of Son Cannot Be Exhumed Until After Five Years.

Eatonton, Ga., March 24.—(Special.) Dr. C. D. Nolan, of this city, has asked the state department at Washington to investigate the death of his son, Dr. Frank Nolan, at Tampico, Mexico, and who has considered going to Mexico himself to investigate. Tonight received a telegram from Secretary Bryan advising against the journey. The message read:

"American consul at Tampico wires that body of son cannot be exhumed until expiration of five years. Advise strongly that you do not go to Mexico."

Savannah, Ga., March 24.—Joseph S. Umberger today was sent on to the superior court on a charge of bigamy. Recorder Schwartzes held that the fact that Umberger had lived with Miss Ethel Leaycraft in Atlanta, had children by her and admitted that she was his wife, constituted a common marriage. The local police were notified today that the record of Umberger's marriage to Miss Bessie A. May, January 2, 1901, in Newark, had been found in the office of the clerk of court there.

ATLANTA'S STRIDES FROM DAY TO DAY

After a short tilt with the state in regard to the use of the state's property at Peachtree and Cain streets, the work of widening Peachtree street is again progressing and being rushed to completion.

About the only result of the controversy was to insure beyond all question the city's future right to the use of the land necessary to the widening of the street and to give the project a little more advertising.

JUDGE SPEER'S OFFER REFUSED BY COMMITTEE

Washington, March 24.—Judge Emory Speer's statement that he would "not be unwilling" to accept, retirement if the house judiciary committee withdrew charges against him are to be disregarded by the Webb sub-committee, it was said today. Judge Speer's statement, given out in Macon last night, was:

"If the judiciary committee, in accordance with their conceptions of duty after considering all matter which has been submitted to it, withdraws the charges against me in a manner as public as they have been made, I will not be unwilling to accept retirement upon the same terms that I might when I reach the age of 70."

The Webb sub-committee is considering the evidence taken in Georgia and soon will be ready to formulate conclusions to report to the entire committee for its guidance in reporting recommendations to the house on the proposed impeachment.

Judge Speer denied the suggestion that he retire in any way emanated from him and said he never had contemplated such action as a result of the house committee's investigation. His statement was called forth, he says, by an inquiry from Representative Adamson concerning the retirement reports.

Burke Defeats Crawford.

Pierre, S. D., March 24.—Congressman Charles H. Burke, candidate for the minority republican faction, was nominated for United States senator over Senator Coe I. Crawford, the majority faction, according to incomplete returns from today's state-wide primary election.

TARVER DEFEATS SAYE FOR DOUGHERTY SHERIFF

Defeated Man Backed by the "Forward Movement," and Contest Was Hot.

Albany, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—A heavy vote was cast in today's primary for county officers, and the result will not be known till midnight. There were five candidates for tax receiver, two for clerk, two for treasurer, three for tax collector and two for sheriff.

At a separate voting place ballots were cast in a special election for sheriff (short term) to name a successor to the late Sheriff Barber, C. P. Tarver defeating G. W. Saye by an overwhelming majority. It is taken for granted that in the primary vote Tarver's majority will be equally large for the long term.

There is much uncertainty regarding the other offices, though in east Dougherty R. L. Harrod led for tax receiver; R. C. Adams for tax collector; R. W. Hall for clerk, and R. W. Hill for treasurer. This cannot be safely regarded as an index to the result, however, as the east Dougherty vote is light.

Saye, candidate for sheriff, was backed by the Men and Religion Forward Movement. Tarver is being regarded as the candidate of the conservative element.

A personal encounter late yesterday on the eve of the election between R. H. Ferrell, chairman of the Men and Religion executive committee, and Mayor R. A. Tarver, who is also county treasurer and brother of C. P. Tarver, intensified feeling and caused the fear that there would be trouble today. The best of order prevailed, however, and the day passed off without incident. Mayor Tarver resented statements contained in bulletins published by the Men and Religion committee, and this led to the trouble between him and Ferrell, who is a lawyer.

FINCHER NAMED CLERK IN CHEROKEE PRIMARY

Canton, Ga., March 24.—(Special.)—The Cherokee county democratic primary was held here today and resulted in the nomination of Olly Fincher over J. W. Chastine for clerk of the superior court by over 200 majority, and J. D. Hudgins as sheriff over A. B. Cagle by over 300 majority.

M. J. Wood was nominated for tax collector; W. J. Higgins for county treasurer; Ben P. Kilby for county surveyor, and H. A. Heard for coroner. A large vote was polled and much interest evidenced in the race of the various candidates.

LITTLE CHANGE NOTED IN ADAIR'S CONDITION

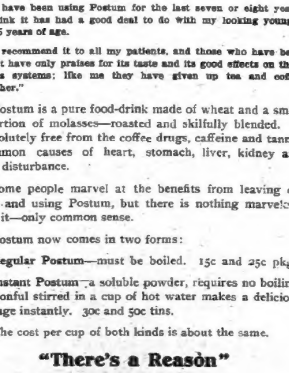
Tully Wants a Divorce.

Los Angeles, March 24.—Richard Walton Tully, the playwright, instituted suit in the superior court here today for a divorce from Eleanor Gates Tully, the authoress. The charge is desertion.

Fanny Crosby Aged 94.

Bridgeport, Conn., March 24.—Fanny Crosby, the blind writer, today celebrated her ninety-fourth birthday. To a story that she was sick was dedicated and she felt as young "as when 24."



"Postum for Mine"

Many a man and woman with coffee troubles has found that Postum is a sure and pleasant way back to health.

A doctor writes:

"I have been using Postum for the last seven or eight years, and think it has had a good deal to do with my looking younger than 55 years of age.

"I recommend it to all my patients, and those who have been using it have only praises for its taste and its good effects on their nervous systems; like me they have given up tea and coffee altogether."

Postum is a pure food-drink made of wheat and a small proportion of molasses—roasted and skilfully blended. It is absolutely free from the coffee drugs, caffeine and tannin—common causes of heart, stomach, liver, kidney and nerve disturbance.

Some people marvel at the benefits from leaving off coffee and using Postum, but there is nothing marvelous about it—only common sense.

Postum now comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be boiled. 15c and 25c pkgs.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder, requires no boiling. A spoonful stirred in a cup of hot water makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

Decatur's Chiefest Asset

You have heard much of the fact that Decatur is the best equipped town (even including those of twice its population) in the Southeast, when it came to such things as educational facilities; modern sidewalks and streets, up-to-date water and sewerage system, and the gas plant soon to be erected by the Suburban Gas & Light Company.

You have also heard of the growing importance of Decatur as a business center, being, as it is, the county seat of DeKalb, one of the "Big Four" counties of the state, and supplied, as it is, with good stores, well managed banks, and other prosperous business concerns.

But of Decatur's chiefest asset you may not have heard, the unusually progressive spirit of its citizens.

This Decatur spirit finds its highest expression not in cheap boosting or boasting—not in reckless advertising—not merely in effort to bring to our town new people and new enterprises—but rather in a united effort in the part of all our citizens to join with our town and county officials, and our fellow citizens of every part of the county in making Decatur and DeKalb County the very best town and the very best county in Georgia, the very best state of the Union—best for residences and best for Business, Agriculture and Manufacturing.

Catch the Decatur Spirit. Come to see us, or write to us, or phone us. We will be d-e-l-i-g-h-t-e-d to hear from you.

AT THE THEATERS.

"Ziegfeld Follies."
(At the Atlanta.)

Tonight the famous "Ziegfeld Follies" will return to Atlanta for three performances, being a special matinee Thursday afternoon. The "Follies" will be given seven times. The return of "Follies" means other chances to see the biggest revue of real entertainment ever put on. All the girls who were here before are back along with the notable list of stars. Though the sale of seats has been heavy, plenty of choice seats remain for every performance. The sale for the matinee is lightest. This is the first time in the history of the "Follies" that a return date was ever booked. Either Manager Ziegfeld has come to dance to the previous visit of the show, is back in the cast.

Keith Vaudeville.
(At the Forsyth.)

Every advance precaution for the bill on at the Forsyth this week has been taken, and, with a lot of speed to spare, Bert Levey, the booking agent, must be a busy man. The regular matinee audience of Atlanta's little people has a superior local value that has had a remarkable effect to do with the attendance records now being registered. The comedy hit of the bill has been made by Charlie Howard, a character comedian of educational talent. He is ably supported by James Ratliff, who is a splendid foil, and Dorothy Hayden, a dainty singing and dancing partner. Howard is the funniest little fellow seen on the Forsyth stage, and his impersonation of the "refined scene" is most humorous. Howard and Ratliff likewise present a novelty sketch that gives Mr. Howard an opportunity to show that he is versatile and original.
