INTEREST CENTERS IN ATTACKS MADE ON FRANK JURORS

Many Sealed Depositions Are Filed With Deputy Clerk Assailing A. H. Henslee and Marcus Johenning.

SPARTA CITIZENS SAY HENSLEE PREJUDICED

Members of Jury Deny in Indignant Terms That Any of Their Number Was Biased in Any Way.

That one of the Sparta, Ga., citizens whose affidavits are now sealed and lying in the safe of the clerk of the superior court, did make the statement that A. H. Henslee had declared that he believed Frank guilty and would like to see him hang, was the statement made last night by another citizen of the Hancock county seat.

The exact contents of the affidavits which were made before J. W. Lewis, of Sparta, by three of the most prominent men in the town are not known. It is claimed by the defense that Mr. Henslee while traveling for his buggy concern and before he or anyone else had been drawn on the venire for the Leo M. Frank jury, state to several people that he believed Frank guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan. The depositions were made by John M. Holmes, a member of the firm of Holmes & Walker, dealers in insurance, real estate and buggies; by S. M. Johnson, cashier of the firm, and by Shi Gray, said to have been in the office when Mr. Henslee made the alleged statement.

Wants Depositions Opened.

What is in the depositions will not be known until Deputy Clerk John H. Jones opens them. Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey will make an effort to have the court order them made public today in order that he may know their contents and be in a position to refute them, if possible.

Mr. Henslee, who is a traveling man, could not be located for a statement, should he care to give one, in reply to the charge, but others of the jury, and among them Marcus Johenning, also charged with bias before he was sworn on the jury, bitterly denied that any of the twelve men had been induced to convict Frank of the Mary Phagan murder by anything but the evidence submitted in open court.

The hearing of the motion for a new trial is due to come up at 10 o'clock today before Judge L. S. Roan. That Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey will ask a postponement is published here. It may have time to make answer to the 115 reasons cited as cause for a new trial is known from an authentic source. It is believed that this postponement will be granted and that the case will be reset for a time within a week or two weeks, to be agreed upon by both the defense and the state.

Since he was served Thursday with the motion for a new trial, he solicitor has been working on the answer and has been aided by Attorney Frank A. Hooper, who made such brilliant fight with him for the conviction of Frank.

Affidavit by Stough.

Another deposition, also sealed, was filed in the superior court Friday. It was named as being made by C. P. Stough and taken before Commissioner S. N. Teitelbaum. Its contents have not been made public, but in it is declared to be the statement that Mr. Stough, who lives at 115 Holderness street, heard Mr. Henslee make the remark that he "believed Frank guilty and would like to be in a position to break his neck."

The alleged remarks of the juror, which the defense will claim made it impossible for him to give Frank a fair trial, are said to have been made before the trial and at a time when no one knew who would be drawn upon the venire of 144 men, or which of that 144 would be selected as jurors.

The affidavits from Sparta have been secured by Attorney Stiles Hopkins, associated with the firm of Rosser, Brandon, Slaton & Phillips, of which father Z. Ross.r was senior counsel for Frank.

Attorney Hopkins also went to Blakely, Ga., and secured affidavits from citizens there. These men, however, denied that Henslee had ever said anything in their presence before the trial that would tend to show his opin-

DR. KARL IMHOFF TO INSPECT PLANT

Noted German Engineer in Atlanta Expressly for Purpose of Seeing the Disposal Plan in Operation.

Dr. Karl Imhoff, of Essen, Germany, patentee of the Imhoff Sewage Disposal tanks, German official and noted engineer, is in Atlanta today, inspecting the largest of his plants yet placed in America, and recently installed here by the city.

Dr. Imhoff, who has 130 disposal plants in active operation in Germany besides 45 in this country, comes to Atlanta expressly for the purpose of looking over the plant here. He will stay until this afternoon when he returns to Boston to sail later in the week for Hamburg.

Has Solved Many Problems.

Speaking of his work, Dr. Imhoff said last night:

"I have been interested in sewage disposal ever since my university days. I have actively been engaged in solving the sewage disposal problem for over 12 years. In Germany, I am an official of the government having charge of the Emscher River district, an area in the western part of Germany inhabited by over two million people. The sewage disposal problem there presented a serious problem when it was first faced. It has now been solved by the introduction of my tanks. We faced a much more serious condition there than anywhere else that can be imagined. The sewage disposal proposition embraced the proper disposal of sewage from thousands and thousands of home. My district embraces the coal mines and the congested residence sections around the world known Krupp steel factories.

"I will not have time to much more than look over the local plant. No, I shall not try to give the local operatives at the plant any instructions as I believe they are already efficient, so far as I have learned.

In Operation Seven Years.

"So far as the success of my patent is concerned it is sufficient to say that one in Essen, Germany has been in active operation for over seven years, and has proven entirely satisfactory. In fact, there are none of my tanks in use which have not been satisfactory. They have the stamp of approval of the German government and that in itself is a recommendation not to be despised."

Dr. Imhoff will be piloted on his tour of inspection today by Captain Robert M. Clayton, superintendent of construction.

GRIFFIN FIRE CHIEF TAKES HIS OWN LIFE; DESPONDENCY CAUSE

Griffin, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—M. F. Morris, who for many years had been at the head of the fire department of this city, committed suicide here late this afternoon by shooting himself in the temple. His body was found in a barn on the premises immediately after the shooting was heard, death resulting in about twenty minutes.

Although he did not regain consciousness, his self-destruction is supposed to have been caused by despondency, under which he has been laboring for some weeks. His mental condition had been noticed by his friends and wife, who was constantly watching him.

Morris was 57 years of age; leaves a wife and daughter, Miss Annie Lena Morris, and a brother, M. C. Morris, of Bullitt, Ga., Mont. For over fifteen years he had been fire chief and city sexton of Griffin. Some few days ago he resigned the former position, but was this week reinstated. He was formerly a member of council and served as sheriff of this county for a term of six years.

The city hall will be draped in mourning for him. The funeral will occur from the First Baptist church, of which he was a member, at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. At the cemetery the Masonic fraternity will conclude the services, of which Masonic honors.

The coroner's inquest returned a verdict of "self-destruction" by shooting.

TRAFFIC REFORMS PLANNED FOR CITY BUSINESS SECTION

VACANT STORES CAUSED BY TRAFFIC CONGESTION

Committee of Citizens and Councilmen Will Consider Drafting Law to Remedy Present Situation.

At a meeting of North Pryor street property owners and city officials in the chamber of commerce hall in the Empire building yesterday afternoon, a startling condition of affairs due to congested traffic on North Pryor street was revealed with the result that a movement for traffic regulation reforms which will include the entire business district o fthe city was set on foot.

Wilmer L. Moore, president of the chamber of commerce, presided over the meeting, and in stating its object made the astounding disclosure that in the four blocks which comprise North Pryor street, in the very heart o fthe business district of the city, there are no less than seven stores vacant on account of the congested conditions of traffic on that thoroughfare.

Will Consider Reforms.

The result was a motion from Mayor James G. Woodward, which carried, for the appointment of a committee from the city council to confer with a committee of like number to be appointed from the chamber of commerce, for the purpose of studying the laws of other cities in regard to traffic regulation. The council committee is then to confer with the city attorney for the drafting of an adequate law to control the traffic of Atlanta.

These committees will be appointed within the next few days.

Mr. Moore said:

"There are seven stores at present on North Pryor street that are vacant. This is, no doubt, due to the fact that traffic conditions on this street are in a very bad fix, the street being practically blocked in so far as through traffic is concerned. Unless something is done to relieve the congestion, caused by drays and vans standing in front of stores, this street will in a short time become practically unused by through traffic."

Street Too Narrow.

Mr. Moore submitted figures prepared by Captain R. M. Clayton, chief of the city construction department, showing that in several places North Pryor street is only 2 5feet wide.

In the discussion of ways of relieving traffic congestion, Chief Cummings, of the city fire department, suggested that the plan that is used in many cities of restricting the uses of certain downtown streets to traffic moving in one direction only. He stated that this plan had furnished great relief in other cities and suggested that it be tried in Atlanta. An ordinance providing this regulation, he explained, would not apply to the travel of the fire apparatus, hospital ambulances, police patrol wagons, and vehicles whose mission might be of an urgency similar to that of those named.

Present at Conference.

The following gentlemen were present and participated in the discussion:

Wilmer L. Moore, James G. Woodward, mayor of Atlanta; James L. Beavers, chief of police; W. B. Cummings, chief of fire department; J. H. Porter, Oscar Davis, W. P. Walthall, W. H. Kiser, J. H. Porter, Robert Ransom, John E. Murphy, Albert E. Thornton, Sam T. Weyman.

High School Girls Decide Against Woman Suffrage

Miss Louise Youngblood and Miss Marion Morgan Champion Cause of "Stay-in-Home Woman."

Equal suffrage has received a quietus in the Girls' High school. The pretty misses who attend that higher institution of learning have put their collective feet down on the subject, so to speak.

At least the debate, "Shall Women Have Equal Suffrage With Men," argued Friday before a debating jury composed of fellow students, was lost to the affirmative—similar to the cheers of an enthusiastic audience.

It seems from the argument advanced by the debaters against equal suffrage that the consensus of opinion, at least among the high school girls, is that the home and the fireside—to say nothing of a husband dear—have the call over the fight for the ballot.

Four members of the school, inaugurating the Girls' High School Debating club session, had decided there jury Friday afternoon. Those appearing in favor of equal suffrage was Misses Lily Harmsen and Bernadette Ball, while Misses Louise Youngblood and Marion Morgan argued against the much-mooted boon.

Quoting ad lib from the constitution of the United States, Noah and Daniel Webster word-builder and orator, the advocates of the votes for women struggled valiantly against the rose-hued pictures of the cosy home, prattling babes and fond husbands.

The decision of the jury was arrived at only after a most strenuous session behind closed doors. When it became known that suffrage had received the negative vote in the high school auditors added clamorous applause.

The judges rendering the momentous decision were Misses Ruth McMillan, Katherine Derby, Margaret McKee and Adele Smith.

Authors of New Tariff Law

UNDERWOOD SIMMONS

These are the authors of the famous Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, which is finally completed after seven months' strenuous work on the part of congress. Representative Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, leader of the house, has ended a successful fight for the measure as chairman of the ways and means committee, while in the senate Senator F. McL. Simmons, of North Carolina, chairman of the finance committee, has completed an even harder battle for the preservation of the administration bill. They claim the new rates will reduce the cost of living materially.

Sinking Passenger Steamer Sends Wireless "S. O. S."; Ships Rushing to Rescue

Portland, Ore., October 3.—Wireless stations here and at Corvallis have picked up messages reporting that the steamer Spokane, of the Pacific Coast Steamship company, has been wrecked off Cape Lazo, British Columbia.

The steamer Dolphin is rushing to the Spokane's assistance in answer to "S. O. S." calls.

A message from the Spokane said: "Sinking fast. Rush help."

The steamer La Touche is taking off passengers.

The Spokane is a passenger vessel, plying between Portland north coast points.

The steamer La Touche, of the Alaska Steamship company, was one of the first vessels to answer the distress call, and at 10:30 tonight was standing by. Fifteen minutes later she began taking off the passengers of the Spokane.

"Taking water fast; send all assistance possible," was one of the flashes received at the wireless station almost immediately after the first distress call, which read:

"Steamer Spokane, 15 miles north of Cape Lazo, wants assistance."

The steamer Dolphin and the steamer Minnesota answered the message.

Seattle, Wash., October 3.—The passengers and crew of the steamship Spokane took to the lifeboats and were picked up by the steamship La Touche. The steamer Athl is standing by. It is believed there has been no loss of life.

On Marriage Brink, Harrison Jones Warns From Shoals of Matrimony

"Dont' sink the ship, if its within your power to save it!"

Earnestness quivered in the voice of Harrison Jones, barrister at the bachelor, as he spoke these words of advice yesterday afternoon to an aspiring band of embryo lawyers at the Atlanta Law school.

"There are 72,000 divorces granted in the United States every year," he said, as if putting the problem squarely up to his hearers for solution. "Many of those divorces were obtained by manufactured evidence, prepared by unscrupulous lawyers. If you, as a lawyer, destroy a home by procuring for your client a divorce when you could possibly, acting as a go-between, save the ship—then the tragedy of that blighted home will rest upon your head."

A ripple of expectancy was in the air, and many turned and smiled at their neighbors as Mr. Jones went deeper into the subject of matrimony, in the first of his series of lectures on "Domestic Relations," at the fall term of the law school. For his hearers knew full well that the days of this sage-looking young law professor were numbered. Though yet a bachelor, Mr. Jones is on the very brink of matrimony. It happens next Wednesday night at the First Baptist church.

"Now, you can smile if you want to," he exclaimed, when he saw the twinkle in the eyes of his audience, "But the fact that I'm about to take a post-graduate course in matrimony myself, is only another evidence that I recognize the importance of this problem I am putting up to you. A man doesn't have to be married to see the grave question facing this country in the realm of marriage and divorce. There's a petty tendency toward breaking down the barriers and lowering the sanctity of the marriage vows.

"In 1870 there was one divorce to 34 marriages. In 1897 there was one to every twelve marriages. And in 1910 there was one divorce to every seven marriages. Isn't that appalling? At that rate it will be just twenty-five years before half of the marriages in this country will end in divorce! It is an influence against which the country has got to fight, and let us, as lawyers, use our influence, whenever possible, toward preventing divorce rather than stimulating it."

WHOLE TOWN IS DEFIED BY SIX BANK BANDITS

Using Citizen as a Shield From Bullets, Robbers Dynamite Vault and Make Escape.

Little Rock, Ark., October 3.—Holding the whole town of Fulton, on the Iron Mountain railroad in Hempstead county, at bay early today, six bandits robbed the Bank of Fulton of $70 in gold, after trying in vain to dynamite the inner doors to the bank vault. City Marshal Tom Logan, of Fulton, was shot and seriously injured. The robbers used a citizen of the town whom they had captured to shield them from bullets as they made their escape.

Posses with bloodhounds are scouring the country in pursuit of the bandits.

The robbery almost duplicates in details the dynamiting and robbing of the First State bank at Dardanelle, Ark., last Wednesday.

Six separate explosions of nitroglycerin were heard by the residents as the robbers attempted to blow open the inner doors of the bank vault. Previous to going to the bank, the men had broken into a local hardware store and had armed themselves with rifles and ammunition.

The explosions awakened the citizens and they armed themselves and hurried to the bank. City Marshal Logan saw armed sentries about the bank and in attempting to capture one of them was shot and seriously wounded. Then the rest of the citizens opened fire on the bandits and a pitched battle followed.

Henry Wilson, one of the citizens, was captured by the robbers. They used him to shield their retreat and thus made their getaway.

WANT GOOD ROADS MAN IN PRESIDENT'S CABINET

Creation of National Department of Public Works Favored by Road Congress.

Detroit, October 3.—Declaring the loss by reason of bad roads, which everywhere lessen the profits of industry, increase the cost of living and burden business enterprises, amounts to millions of dollars annually, the American Road congress, now in session in Detroit, late today adopted resolutions favoring the creation of a national department of public works, directed by a secretary who shall be a member of the president's cabinet.

Other resolutions adopted favor state highway commissions and state aid for the construction and maintenance of the main roads of the several states, the establishment of a national road system and the construction by states, counties and towns of the lateral and connecting market highways, request the congress of the United States to authorize the president to appoint a commission from civil life to make a thorough and exhaustive report on and to recommend a system of federal aid, and favor, wherever practicable, the use of convicts in road construction and maintenance.

The resolutions also commend the Lincoln Highway association "for its efforts in seeking the establishment by popular subscription of a trans-continental highway as an enduring and useful memorial to Abraham Lincoln" and praise the work of the National Old Trails' association in rebuilding the Cumberland road and the Santa Fe trail.

President Wilson Signs Underwood Tariff Bill; Measure Becomes Law

One Great Pledge of Democratic Party Redeemed After Troublous Struggles as Chief Executive's Signature Is Affixed.

THEIR WORK COMPLETED SUPPORTERS OF THE BILL GIVE A SIGH OF RELIEF

President Signs Measure With Two Pens, One of Which He Gives to Congressman Underwood and the Other to Senator Simmons.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, October 3.—(Special.)—The one great pledge of the democratic party has been redeemed. The Underwood tariff bill is now an accomplished fact and is now the law of the land.

The last official act to make this a realization was the signature of the president of the United States, which was affixed to the bill tonight at 9 o'clock. This was the most impressive scene enacted along the entire stormy and troublous route of the bill from the ways and means committee of the house to its final destination—the white house. In the presence of the vice president of the United States, the members of his cabinet, Senator Simmons and the members of the finance committee, Mr. Underwood and the ways and means committee and the members of the press, the president signed the bill.

Those who had been the most active in its construction and in the fight to preserve it from the various contending interests who sought its defeat and impairment breathed a sigh of relief when they beheld the last official act which completed their labors.

Signed With Two Pens.

A happy group of legislators, members of the cabinet and friends encircled the president, as he smilingly sat down slowly, affixed his signature with two gold pens.

He presented to Representative Underwood the pen that had written the word "Woodrow" and the one which had completed his name to Senator Simmons, both of whom bowed their appreciation.

In impressive silence the president rose and delivered in easy natural manner an extemporaneous speech that brought prolonged applause. The president declared that the journey of legislation, whose fulfillment had only been partly completed; that a great service had been rendered to rank and file of the country but that the second step in the emancipation of business was currency reform. He earnestly called upon his colleagues to go "the rest of the journey" with fresh impulse.

Did Country Great Service.

"Gentlemen, I feel a very peculiar pleasure," said the president, "in what I have just done by way of taking part in the completion of a great piece of business. It is a pleasure which is very hard to express in words which are adequate to express the feeling; because the feeling that I have is that we have done the rank and file of the people of this country a great service. It is hard to speak of these things without seeming to go off into campaign eloquence, but that is not my purpose. It is one very profound, a feeling of profound gratitude, that working with the splendid men who have carried this thing through with studious attention and doing justice all round, I should have had part in serving the people of this country, as we have been striving to serve them ever since I can remember.

"I have had the accomplishment of something like this at heart ever since I was a boy, and know not understanding around me who can say the same thing that I have been waiting to see the things done which it was necessary to

STOLE BODY, BURNED IT TO COLLECT INSURANCE

Hughes' Wife Then Pretended He Was Dead and Wedded Another, It Is Charged.

New York, October 3.—Charged with conspiracy, and the robbery of a grave, Arthur A. Hughes, a ranch owner of Forsyth, Mont., was arrested here this afternoon at the request of Sheriff Mason, of Rosebud county, Montana.

Hughes is charged with having entered into a conspiracy with his wife and a man named Elliott, both of whom, the police assert, are under arrest in Montana to collect $8,000 insurance on his life.

According to the complaint, a man named Craig was killed in Forsyth about two and one-half months ago by a train. Hughes, it is alleged, took Craig's body from the grave, carted it to his home and then set the house on fire. The body, burned to a crisp and unrecognizable, was found in the embers, and Mrs. Hughes went into mourning for her husband. Hughes, the police claim, meanwhile disappeared.

A few days later Mrs. Hughes married Elliott, and put in a claim for the $8,000 insurance on Hughes' life. Sheriff Mosen believed the body found in the ruins was that of Hughes, and soon afterwards arrested them both while he investigated the supposed death of Hughes.

Mosen and the insurance officials learned that Hughes had come to New York and was in communication with his supposed widow. They notified the New York police and detectives were sent out to find him. After searching for weeks they traced him to cheap lodging houses on the east side and found that he was working as a longshoreman. Today they arrested him at the entrance of the Brooklyn bridge.

The Montana authorities investigating the death of the supposed Hughes, according to advices received at police headquarters here, caused the body found in the ruins to be exhumed and measured. Then they discovered the robbery of Craig's grave and by the measurements of the body learned that it was Craig's and not that of Hughes.

The police assert that Hughes admitted his identity when arrested and also admitted having written his wife. He said he wanted to clear his wife of any charges made against her in connection with his supposed death.

"My troubles have been all domestic," was the only other statement that the police could get from him.

"BUNNY" LETTER AUTHOR MARRIES HIS AFFINITY

Allison McFarland Released From Federal Prison on Parole Last May.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., October 3.—It was learned todaythat Allison McFarland, recently acquitted of wife murder in New Jersey, and Florence Bromley, who figured prominently in his so-called "bunny" letters, were married here Wednesday by a justice of the peace. McFarland gave his age as 37, residence New York. Miss Bromley's age was given as 27.

McFarland, after being acquitted of the charge of murder, was convicted of counterfeiting and sentenced to serve 18 months in prison.

Warden Moyer, of the United States prison, at Atlanta, said last night that Allison McFarland was released from the prison on parole last May, and that since that time the federal authorities have been working without jurisdiction over his matrimonial ventures, nor had they further interest in them than to wish McFarland and his bride Godspeed and good luck.

DENIES IN AFFIDAVIT OELRICHS STABBED HER

In a Signed Statement Lucille Singleton Retracts Sensational Charge.

New York, October 3.—There was made public this afternoon what purported to be an affidavit by Lucille Singleton, a chorus girl, that she was not stabbed by young Herman Oelrichs, as she had previously charged. The affidavit was made and signed in the presence of James O'Malley, an assistant district attorney.

In substance the affidavit says Oelrichs and the girl had been drinking, and that Oelrichs lost control of the automobile in which they were riding.

"I do not know why I said I was stabbed," states the affidavit, "unless it was because I was so excited. It was not because I want money."

STORK HAD TO GO SOME TO OVERTAKE AN AUTO

Tirton, Ind., October 3.—Pauline Matilda, with blue eyes and weighing 9 pounds, was born today in the automobile of Dr. M. V. Newcomber. The mother, Mrs. Paul Marshall, aged 19, was on her way from Noblesville, Ind., to Montmorenci, and was taken ill on the train and got off here. Women in the station saw the young woman's condition and called Dr. Newcomber, who was hurrying her to a hospital when the child was born.

do in order that there might be justice in the United States, so it is a solemn moment that brings such a business to a conclusion and I hope I will not be thought to be demanding too much of myself or of my colleagues, when I say that this, great as it is, is the accomplishment of only half the journey. We have set the business of this country free from those conditions which have made monopoly not only possible, but in a sense easy and natural. But there is no use taking away the conditions unless you likewise destroy the power to create monopoly; and it is financial, rather than merely circumstantial and economic power.

Currency Bill Comes Next.

"The power to control and guide and direct the credits of the country is the power to say who shall and who shall not build up the industries of the country, in which direction they shall be built, and in which direction they shall not be built. We are now about to take the second step, which will be the final step in setting the business of this country free. That is what we shall do in the currency bill, which the house has already passed and which I have the utmost confidence the senate will pass much sooner than some pessimistic individuals believe. Because the question, now that this piece of work is done, will arise all over the country 'for what do we wait?' Why should we wait to crown ourselves with consummate honor? Are we so self-denying that we do not wish to complete our work?

"I was quoting to some of my colleagues in the senate, those lines from Shakespeare, that have always appealed to me, 'If it be a sin to covet a throne, or, then am I the most offending soul alive,' and I am happy to say that I do not covet it for myself alone. I covet it with equal ardor for the men who are associated with me and the honor is going to come from them. I am their associate. I can only complete the work which they may only counsel when they ask for my counsel. I can come in only when the last stages of the business are reached, and I covet the honor quite as much as I covet it for myself, and I covet it for the great party of which I am a member, because that party is not honorable unless it redeem its name and serve the people of the United States.

At the Half-Way House.

"So I feel tonight like a man who is lodging happily in the inn which lies half way along the journey and that in the morning with a fresh impulse we shall go to the rest of the journey and sleep at the journey's end like men with a quiet conscience, knowing that we have served our fellowmen and have thereby served God."

It was an unusual spectacle which attended the completion of a legislative reform that had been seven months in contemplation and embraced a tariff revision of a most far-reaching character.

Happy and jubilant, the invited guests came to the executive office. They shook hands and greeted the president in an ante-room while waiting for the full program to begin. Then the members of the senate finance committee and the house ways and means committee finally arrived Vice President Marshall was ushered into the president's office, followed by Speaker Clark, Representative Underwood, and members of the cabinet, congressional committee and their friends. No photographers were admitted, as the president thought the occasion too solemn to be disturbed by flashlight apparatus. The guests crowded about the president's desk, over which an electric lamp threw a bright glow.

"I chose 4 o'clock," explained the president slowly, "on the advice of the attorney general, in order that the bill might be signed after business transactions everywhere, including San Francisco, had closed for the day.

"I will not say anything about the bill," he added with a smile, "until I have signed it. I don't want it to get away from me."

Bill Signed at 9:10 O'Clock.

Promptly at 9:00 o'clock the president began writing, and at 9:10 he had written the words "Approved 9:10 p. m., 3 October, 1913, Woodrow Wilson," on the one hundred and eleventh page of parchment containing the engrossed bill.

As the president rose and handed two pens to the men who had steered the measure successfully through both houses of congress there was an enthusiastic outburst of handclapping. The president had not intended to make a long speech, and had not even prepared a statement, but was so moved on the spur of the moment to express his gratification.

The small but distinguished audience that heard the president's speech crowded about him afterward with congratulations. Leading figures of the democratic party—Speaker Clark, Secretary Bryan and Representative Underwood stood together, sponsors with the president of the first bulletin piece of legislation that had been accomplished in the democratic program of reform. They gave the president their personal congratulations, and reiterated promises of support.

The bill, accompanied by the conference report as agreed on by the senate last night, came into the house as soon as that body met. For over an hour the house debated as to what action it should take, some of the parliamentary experts arguing that no further action was necessary, while others insisted the house must recede from its compromise cotton fluteres tax.

Speaker Clark finally upheld the latter contention, and the house quickly voted the report of the conference tariff bill. The last vote was reached at 1:23, at 1:25 the speaker had affixed his name to the completed bill, and within ten minutes Chief Clerk Jerry South had carried it to the senate, and it had been signed by Vice President Marshall. Clerks of the senate then took charge of it, and duly conveyed it to the white house.

The relief of both houses at the termination of the tariff fight was apparent. Scores of members of senate and house left for the city yesterday and there was less than a quorum present in the house when final action was taken on the bill. Only extraordinary efforts of senate leaders kept enough senators in town to enable that body to work today on the urgent deficiency appropriation bill. Many members left Washington tonight, though both houses of congress will remain constantly in session.

Recede From Cotton Tax.

The final steps taken by the house today to complete the tariff bill did not involve the rates or principles of that bill. Republicans and democrats concurred in the action of receding from the cotton futures tax, and there were no questions of parliamentary procedure should be left open to future attacks in the courts.

Text of Reaching Revision.

President Wilson's signing of the Underwood-Simmons bill brings into effect one of the most far-reaching revisions of tariff rates and revenue laws enacted for many years.

A new income tax, applying directly to the incomes of citizens, the abolition of all tariff on scores of items of immense importance to American industry and American consumers and a heavy reduction of tariff rates on scores more of items of general use in this country are its chief features.

While certain portions of the new law do not take effect at once, most of its provisions and almost all the direct tariff reductions do.

Last every port collectors of customs, appraisers of merchandise and hundreds of other employees of the treasury department will plunge at once into the task of collecting the nation's revenue on a new basis, and with hundreds of thousands of importers the provisions of law to complicate their activities.

The federal government has been spending nearly $1,000,000 a year and the new tariff law will raise less than one-third of that sum. Recent estimates by tariff experts in congress predict that the rates will raise $249,000,000 a year, and that the income and corporation taxes will raise $122,000,000. The remainder of the government's great income is made up principally of internal revenue taxes and postal receipts.

New Tax on Incomes.

The income tax probably will bring the new tariff law most forcibly to the attention of citizens. Democratic and democratic leaders in congress believe, however, that the reduction of duties on clothing, foodstuffs and other necessaries of life, and the complete removal of the duty from many like articles will immediately bring a reduction in the "cost of living" which will materially affect prosperity.

A brief summary of the new tariff law as prepared for the senate follows:

Average percentage of tariff rates as compared to the value of all imported merchandise: old law, 37 per cent; new law, 27 per cent.

Value of annual imports added to the free list $147,000,000.

Estimated receipts from all import rates: old law, $305,000,000; new law, $270,000,000.

Estimated revenue from corporation and income taxes: old law, $37,000,000; new law, $122,000,000.

Altogether, consumers in the United States probably will save $100,000,000 annually, free of all tariff, more than $150,000,000 worth of merchandise during the next year.

During 1912 the amount of "free imports" was more than $380,000,000, and when the tariff is entirely removed from wood, sugar, iron, ore and cheap food, and other important items, the total is expected to increase notably. Under the old law more than 53 per cent of all goods brought to the United States from all parts of the world paid no tariff, and that proportion will be increased by the new law.

Free Wool Provision.

The free wool provisions of the new law takes effect December 1, 1913; the free sugar provision, May 1, 1916.

The new tariff law, passed two years after President Taft signed the existing Payne-Aldrich law, is the result of more than nine months of work in congress. Hearings were started January 6, by the house ways and means committee, Chairman Underwood introduced the tariff bill April 7, and immediately after President Wilson had convened the new congress the measure the house May 8, and the senate September 9.

In the opinion of its makers, the democratic leaders of congress, the most important features of the new tariff law are:

A reduction of nearly one-half in the average tariff on foodstuffs and farm products.

The placing of raw wool on the free list, and a reduction of nearly 2-3 in the tariff on woolen clothing, especially of the cheaper grades.

A reduction of one-third (average) on cotton clothing.

Reduction of the sugar tariff and the ultimate abolishment in 1916.

A reduction of one-third (average), in the tariff on earthenware and glassware.

Abolishment of al ltariff on meats, fish, dairy products, flour, potatoes, wood, lumber, furniture and many classes of farm and office machinery.

General tariff freduction on all important articles in general use.

Throughout the long fight over the bill, the reports attached to the measures has been directed against those rates which the republicans declared were so low as to threaten destruction to American industries through the competition of foreign manufacturers. Democratic supporters of the new law have insisted that except in the case of a few specific welfare demanded radical changes, the tariff has been lowered only enough to point where it will "stimulate competition," without turning American factories over to foreigners.

A great amount work will fall upon the treasury department in the immediate future. The tax upon corporations, now fixed at 1 per cent of their income, remains the same, and becomes part of the general income tax law. The staff of special deputies, collectors, and agents will be employed to examine and conduct the work of income tax collection.

LYCEUM SEASON TICKET SALE WILL END TODAY

Today is the last day for the sale of season tickets to nine attractions in the course for 1913-14. The sale has been transferred from the Atlanta Conservatory to the offices of the Alkahest Lyceum System, 413 Empire Life building, and those desiring tickets for this course of ten entertainments still have to secure them today. There are many good seats still available. The lyceum entertainments will be held this year as last in the Baptist Tabernacle which is admirably adapted to the purpose.

GRACE CHURCH WILL HOLD SPECIAL SERVICE

Special services for young people exclusively will be held at Grace Methodist church on Sunday under direction of Rev. C. O. Jones. STATE BOARD TO HOLD EXTRA MEETING OCT. 11

Special Session Necessitated by Ruling of Attorney General Thomas Felder.

Following his receipt of an opinion from Attorney General Thomas S. Felder to the effect that it will be necessary to appoint a subcommission of education to pass on the text-books used in the public schools, State School Superintendent M. L. Brittain yesterday called a special session of the state school board to be held in his office on October 11. Among other things Mr. Felder says:

"I do not find anything in the present law fixing the duties of the state board of education which would relieve it from the necessity of appointing a subcommission of five educators as required by the act of 1903, now contained in sections 1440 et seq. of the civil code. The act of 1911 creating the present board of education and prescribing its duties repeal repeal either directly or by implication the sections of the code above referred to."

Inasmuch as the state board is now made up almost entirely of practical educators it was thought that it would be a work of supererogation to have the subcommission as required by the act of 1903. Mr. Felder has ruled otherwise, however, and a subcommission will be appointed.

Texts for High Schools.

Another matter which will require the attention of the board upon which a ruling of the attorney general has been requested is the adoption of text books for high schools. Mr. Felder has ruled that those high schools receiving aid directly from the state under the high school law, and text uniform text books must be prescribed for them by the state board.

The following systems are exempt from the necessity of using high school texts which may be adopted by the state text book commission, though they have the right to take advantage of the cheaper prices which are expected to be received, and many of them will doubtless do so:

Three Classes Exempted.

The city system of Atlanta; the county systems of Bibb, Richmond, Chatham and Glynn.

Those special municipal school systems created by legislative enactment, having high schools which, through aid of local tax-county or district, maintain a term of at least eight months.

As will be seen, therefore, these three systems which may or may not use the state adopted books, as they may desire, include many of the larger and more prominent high schools in the state, leaving only those maintained by state aid and generally largely supported by tuition fees that are required to use the uniform list of high school books adopted. It is understood, of course, that private high schools are under no obligation whatever in this regard, using whatever texts they please.

The state school book commission is now advertising for bids from the various publishers as the law requires. In addition to the elementary text books and which will include in the list the following high school subjects have been added:

Algebra, grammar, spelling, ancient and modern history, physical and commercial geography, Latin, French, German and Spanish grammar, rhetoric, biology, English and American literature, bookkeeping, English history, physics, trigonometry and surveying, American history and civics, chemistry and commercial law.

INTEREST IN ATTACK ON FRANK JURORS

The Daylight Corner

ion, if he had one, in regard to the guilt of the young factory superintendent, who is sentenced to hang on next Friday.

Two Members Prejudiced.

When the hearing is actually begun the defense is said will bring its affidavits to bear in an effort to show that at least two members of the jury were prejudiced before they went into the case, and will also declare that Judge Roan erred in many of his decisions of legal points, particularly in regard to the admissibility of certain evidence against Frank.

It is expected that the arguments from both sides may consume several days and that a great deal of the law points that were threshed out during the trial and lost by the defense will be gone over again.

Should Judge Roan see fit to deny a new trial the case is certain to go to the supreme court and in the event that this body affairms the superior court judge it is said that an effort will be made to carry the matter to the United States supreme court in the fight for the life of the condemned man.

Interest in Affidavits.

It is generally believed that on the legal points Judge Roan will refuse to grant a new trial, but what will come from the affidavits in regard to the alleged bias of the jurors is a matter that cannot be determined until the contents of the affidavits are made public and the opinion of the court is passed upon them.

Judge Roan has a record that few superior court judges have in respect to having his decisions on points of law upheld by the supreme court. It is said that only once in the past two and a half years has the supreme court reversed his ruling upon a point of law.

FAIR WEATHER TODAY, SAYS THE FORECASTER

Fair weather for today, with the same outlook for Sunday, is the forecast of the local office of the United States weather bureau. The officials do not say, out and out, that the weather will be clear and bright for more than today. There is a 24-hour limit to all prophets working under Uncle Sam, but they do stand sponsor for Saturday, and are willing to let it be known that Sunday should be just as pleasant.

There has been no particular change in the weather program recently. Pleasant Indian summer weather has been on the main part of the daily menu, and apparently this should continue.

The highest point reached by the thermometer Saturday was 73 degrees, which happened shortly after the noon hour. Early Friday morning the temperature did not get below 54 degrees.

HAPEVILLE REVIVAL ATTRACTS ATTENTION

Revival services are being held at the Hapeville Methodist church by Rev. Joseph Owens, the well-known evangelist, who conducts two services daily, one at 10:30 in the morning, and one at 7:15 at night. The song hour of the revival is attracting wide attention.

GEORGIA CORN YIELD GREATEST SINCE WAR

J. J. Brown Attributes Much of Farmers' Prosperity to Increased Acreage in Cereal.

Former Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture J. J. Brown, who was a visitor to the city yesterday, took a most optimistic view of the present financial situation so far as the farmer, the country merchant and banker are concerned. Mr. Brown has been in nearly every part of the state attending public meetings since he went out of office on January 1, and is well qualified to give an expert opinion of the outlook. Among other things he said:

"This will be a year of prosperity for the Georgia farmer such as he has not known in in recent years. There is no doubt about it, and wherever I go I hear one united paean of hopefulness and prosperity. Several causes contribute to bring about this state of affairs besides the high price of cotton.

"In the first place this crop has been made on a more economical basis of any crop in recent years. Owing to the financial stringency, the farmer found it difficult to borrow money as to secure extensive credit and he was forced to conduct his farming operations on a minimum basis. Now he finds himself able to pay all of his obligations and will have a good surplus ahead.

"Then, thanks to the advice sent out by the state department of agriculture by the year and also the activity of the boys' corn clubs, there has been more crop diversification than in any year since the war. The farmers have generally relied upon cotton as their only crop. There were a great many more planted this year and generally, the yield was good.

"But of more advantage to the Georgia farmer than any other one thing by the state board of corn. I believe I am absolutely right in stating that there will be more corn made in Georgia this year than in any year since the war. Coming at a time when the western corn crop has been generally a failure, this is an immense advantage to the Georgia farmer. In a great many instances he has raised his feed for the ensuing year and he will not have to give up the profits of his cotton crop for corn to feed it. He will get the high price which corn is bound to bring.

"This year has been a lesson to Georgia farmers in many respects, and it will be a long time in teaching him the importance of diversification."

May Be to Race.

When asked about the probability of his entering active politics in the next year, Mr. Brown declared that he would not be in the race for congress in the eighth district against Representative Tribble. There is much talk about Mr. Brown's being in the race for the commissionership of agriculture, and he is receiving letters from friends in all parts of the state urging him to run. He declared that he had not made up his mind as to what he should do in this matter yet.

ON TOP THE PYRAMID.

Georgia is at the top of the pyramid of southern prosperity this year!

The September cotton condition report of the United States department of agriculture emphatically verifies the reiterated predictions of The Constitution to that effect.

Our statement was based originally upon the slump in condition in the western half of the cotton belt being sufficient to hold prices high and stable; upon the condition in the eastern half being near enough to normal to insure unwonted prosperity to that entire range; upon the fact that Georgia's condition led the condition of the eastern half, the volume of her crop being larger. From this unusual combination it was easy to forecast unprecedented prosperity for Georgia, and for Atlanta, the commercial capital of the normal eastern zone.

The September government report confirms this reasoning.

The 10-year average of cotton for the cotton belt is 72.

Georgia's condition in the September report is 72, and it is the only state in the entire cotton belt that is a factor in the situation which is not below the 10-year average.

The condition average for the entire belt in the September report is 64.1, as against Georgia's 72.

These cumulative facts spell for Georgia, and Atlanta, a bumper crop of prosperity. The main thing for capitalists, merchants and farmers now to do is to prepare for it.

THE TARIFF PLEDGE KEPT.

With the completion of tariff revision the democratic party has redeemed the first and one of the most important of its pledges to the country. The task, monumental in scope and intricate in detail, has been accomplished with a dispatch and a sincerity not matched by similar legislation since the civil war. The master craftsmanship of President Wilson, Chairman Underwood and Chairman Simmons has collaborated to the end that the nation is given a new tariff law for the first time in many decades free of jokers and subterfuges, hewing straight to the line of honesty and enacted in the interests of the whole people rather than any section or class.

In these respects the new tariff law will be found notable. So far as is now visible to the unbiased vision, the makers of the tariff have played no favorites. They have rejected the old and disreputable trading game of the republicans. They have indulged in no wild vagaries and no revolutionary devices, but they have given the nation what it demanded in the reduction of schedules and in the freer play for competition and the ultimate lowering of the high cost of living. Additionally, they have included in the law a federal income tax framed upon indefeasible principles and adapted to restore to the treasury whatever deficit may be created by the lower revenue-producing power of the schedules.

The passage of tariff legislation was admittedly the first acid test of the Wilson administration and of the constructive ability of democratic statesmanship. Both have measured up admirably. The schisms and the desertions so confidently predicted by the republicans have failed to materialize. The apostasy anticipated by the non-partisan pessimists has been conspicuous by its absence. The force and the coherence of the president's leadership have been adequately proven. The democratic party has survived the first drastic test in a manner that gives promise of its ability to negotiate whatever hazards lie in the future.

The country as a whole is prepared for the new tariff. Whatever effect it may produce has long ago been discounted. The whiners and the croakers are now estimated at their true worth. Optimism has the saddle. Prosperity commands every prospect. The first noteworthy achievement of the rehabilitated democracy will usher in an era of national welfare that may well mark new records in the country's history.

A WELCOME VISITOR.

Atlanta as well as the whole of the southern division of the railway mail service has an interest in the presence here today of the Hon. A. H. Stephens, the new general superintendent of that vitally important branch of the postoffice department. Superintendent Stephens is an appointee of the Wilson administration, chosen because of his long experience in the railway mail service, his expert proficiency and his broad and liberal policies. He is making a tour of the country to familiarize himself at first hand with the faults and needs of the service. His visit here today has to do with that purpose.

This evening Superintendent Stephens will be the honor guest at a smoker of the local chapter of the Railway Mail association. He will tell them what he expects to do for the country generally and the southern division particularly. He has come bringing promise of relief none too soon. The entire nation suffered from the blasting policy of so-called "economy" inaugurated under Hitchcock. But it was upon the southern division that the brunt fell, making it seem at times as though this part of the country had been singled out by Hitchcock as the "goat" for his pinch-penny program. Under the change of administration and the influence of Mr. Stephens, the division has just begun to show symptoms of gradual recovery. Old conditions are too well known to need more than a scant recital. Under Hitchcockism the service was demoralized from the ground up. The old routes, established with a view to efficiency and dispatch, such, for illustration, as the one between Atlanta and New Orleans, were cut up into units, instead of being conducted as through routes. Mail cars were sliced in size. Mail clerks were lessened in number and forced to work overtime in cramped quarters. The inevitable result was the abolition of old transfer points, and the establishment of new ones, the consequence of which was seen in vast stacks of mails left over at transfer points, undistributed, and entailing a loss of time in delivery of anywhere from one to two days. This breakdown occurred with mails coming into and going out of the south. The destruction of the esprit de corps of the clerks under the hammer of browbeating and espionage was a calamity that does not need rehearsal.

Superintendent Stephens already is partially cognizant of these conditions in the southern division as elsewhere. He is learning more each day. Improvement already is visible. More will be forthcoming, gradually, until the service is restored from the chaos bequeathed by Hitchcock. It is not to be expected that even an official of Mr. Stephens' capacity can undo by edict the wreckage of four years. But he is making cheerful progress and expressing clear intention toward that end. He is extremely welcome, therefore, to Atlanta and the south, and his address tonight should bring a message of encouragement to a long-harassed section.

WHILE FORTUNE BECKONS.

Two incidents, one local and the other national, transpired last week to give pertinence to the great opportunity that Georgia overlooks so long as she does not embark wholesale in the beet industry.

The first was the receipt in Atlanta of the first shipment of beef from the Argentine republic. This was part of a lot recently sent to this country from the Argentine and reference to which was then made by The Constitution. Reports run to the effect that the imported beef was better in quality than that raised in our country. Scientific refrigeration has nullified distance, and it is possible that from now on Argentine beef will be a stiff competitor of American beef. The point is that under normal conditions the bringing of South American beef to Georgia ought to be in the nature of bringing coals to Newcastle. Georgia has natural facilities for the production of beef little short of those of the Argentine, saving only the vast open ranges, and this feature is now discounted in the modern beef industry.

The other incident was the report that the government, impressed by the impending famine of beef, had made up its mind to encourage the beef industry among the Indians in this country on their reservations. Advertisements have already been issued for herds of the proper grade of cattle. It is said that the Indians have developed a decided aptitude to cattle-growing. Uncle Sam hopes in time to break the beef famine, or at least the one that is now on the way, by giving his red wards a new occupation.

There is no reason why a pound of beef should be imported into this country from the Argentine, and there is no reason why Georgia should not produce for the eastern states as good a grade of beef as can be produced anywhere. Every cent that Georgia sends to South America for beef is wasted, as is every cent sent to the west. With the selection of beef sires, and their breeding to native cattle, the state will soon develop an industry almost equalling cotton. The corn, the forage crops, the grazing grounds and the climate are here. All that is needed is the endeavor, and such encouragement from bankers as will make beef collateral for credit on at least a partial equality with cotton.

Suizer, it is said, "will spring a surprise on them." But what can surprise a New York politician?

Citizens of Light.

I.

Now you're on the highway where the world
"Good Times" flag a-flying over regiments
in line!
And it's "Help to the right,
Citizens of Light!
And if there comes an enemy we'll sweep

II.

Now for a song to thrill
them far o'er the
ringing notes of
Duty from the bu-
sies and the bands!
And it's "Hep to the right,
Citizens of Light!
You're marching now as victors with the banners of the fight!"

III.

Long was the battle, but bravely was it
won:
Our lances were the rain-shafts, our captain
was the Sun!
And it's "Hep to the right,
Ye citizens of Light,
The laurel of the victory, the trophies of the fight!"

I don't tell the women-folk to vote, and I don't tell 'em not to; but I'd feel mighty uncomfortable if they should send a mind reader to interview me.

Notable Obituary.

It's so out of the ordinary—so simple and expressive of life lived faithfully—honestly, that this editorial note from The Beattyville (Ky.) Enterprise is going the rounds:

"Uncle Chris—we all called him Uncle Chris—was one of our good, quiet, steady citizens; one of the kind that gives good reputation to a country; he was a farmer with a little well-tilled place, a good orchard, a nice home, where he lived at peace with all his neighbors—a thing worthy of notice, perhaps, these days—spending the evening of his life as he had its morning, in doing the best he could the things his hands found to do."

A Story of the Moment

REASONING POWERS.

"I've just been reading an article," said the druggist, "in which it is argued that such animals as dogs and horses have reasoning faculties, and exercise them every day. I don't believe it. Such animals have instinct, but they don't reason. I have an old family horse that was born of poor but respectable parents. He is unusually clever, as horses go, but he can't think or figure out anything for himself. I have a little lot by the stable in which I turn old Dobbin when he isn't busy, and he always lies down and rolls. In nine cases out of ten he lies down too close to the fence, and when he rolls over he gets his legs through it, and has them all skinned up. He has been doing that for years, and he's never found out that if he would roll in the middle of the lot, he wouldn't get his foot legs hurt.

"That's interesting and entertaining," remarked the village patriarch, "but it isn't much of an argument. Many men are as foolish as your horse, but we don't credit them with reasoning faculties. There's Sim McWhiskers, who gets pickled at the rum holes about once in three months. He has been doing that for years and years. He surely knows when he makes tracks for the rum hole that it will cost him all his money, and give him a skyscraper of a headache, and eventually land him before his honor, the bank, who will assess him $10 and costs. The reasoning power has not much to do with fool habits.

"I am perfectly willing to admit that dogs and horses and other animals can do excellent reasoning. To suppose the contrary would be foolish to dispute such a proposition, when I know quite well that inanimate objects are capable of thought. Inanimate objects are full of malice, and they'll go out of their way to make life unbearable to human beings.

"As you are aware, I have been going around recently with a game foot. That member has been pretty swollen, and sore as a boil, and merely to touch it with a feather made me double up like a bootjack and scream. All the inanimate things in my house soon learned the facts, and they passed the information along, and organized a conspiracy to get even with me. I was surprising how subtly they reasoned.

"The other night I got my couch of suffering and tried for three weeks to get some sleep and couldn't do it. That sore foot felt like a ball of pumping throbs-ache. Suddenly I remembered a bottle of liniment that had been given to me by a neighbor some weeks before, the neighbor claiming that it was the most miraculous compound in the world. I recalled that I had placed it in a little cupboard in the kitchen, and concluded to go and get it. I rose in the dark and the first thing I did was to kick my sore foot against a big heavy chair. Now, you may believe me or not, but that chair had moved at least eight feet from its accustomed place, in order to be where I couldn't help kicking it. When I went to bed the table was in its usual place, yet when I got up it was directly in my path. It seemed to me that I heard the blamed thing giggle as I stood there bellowing on my injured foot, and rehearsing all the beautiful adjectives I learned at my mother's knee.

"When the pain had subsided to some extent I reached for the electric light switch and couldn't find it. I know where that switch is as well as I know where my whiskers are. I have put my hand on it in the dark a thousand times. But this one time it had concealed itself, and I couldn't find hide nor hair of it. And all the time, while groping around for it, agonies of pain shot from my deliberately swatting my sore foot. At last I made for the door. I couldn't be fooled about that door, I thought. But it had joined the conspiracy against me. When I went to bed it was closed, but it had unlocked itself, and was standing wide open, and I hit both my foot and my nose against its edge. You may believe me or not, but half as valuable a utensil as it used to be. And my foot hurt so that I sat down on the floor and cried. And the darkness of my head against a rocking chair that had crossed the room in the dark in order to work my undoing. Since that fateful night I have been willing to believe in almost anything."

Swinburne Stopped Country Churchgoers.

(From The Pall Mall Gazette.)

An amusing story of Swinburne is told by Edmund Gosse. At the age of 23 Swinburne was sent to study library under Bishop Stubbs, who was then in charge of a country parish in Essex. All the week he was on a Saturday and was excused attendance at Sunday morning church on the ground that he must be fresh for his journey.

He had breakfast in bed, but, finding it a glorious morning, he arrayed himself in scarlet slippers and a light crimson dressing gown, sauntered into the garden, and leaned pensively over the gate, with his red hair flaming brilliantly in the sunlight.

The church bells were ringing and the parishioners had all to pass the parsonage gate to get to church. But none of them dared to pass the flaming apparition, and all came to a halt. The church bells stopped, but at the instance of the vicar, no one could not believe that all his parishioners had deserted him, were rung again.

At last the boldest man in the village bolted past the gate, and the rest stampeded after him, Swinburne gazing at them in quiet wonder at their strange method of going to church.

Pioneer of Cheap Literature.

(J. Arthur Hill in Imprint.)

The introduction of the sloping Roman letters which are known to everybody as Italics was made by Aldus Manutius, of Venice in the latter part of the fifteenth century. He was the most famous printer of Italy and perhaps of the world.

The books he printed, known as Aldine editions, are much sought after by collectors. His first volume in the style now as a Virgil published in 1501 at the price of about two shillings of our money. Aldus, in fact, was the pioneer of cheap literature.

The Aldine mark, is a dolphin twined about an anchor, with the motto "Festina" divided by the other part of the latter. If any reader finds a cartload of old books with this mark in his attic or lumber room he is duly advised not to use them for lighting the fire. "They would probably buy him a good annuity for the solace of his declining years."

A Black Peril in Africa.

(Sir H. Rider Haggard in The London Times.)

To my mind, the greeat question of the future in southern Africa is not, as so many suppose, that of the struggle for supremacy of Englishman over Boer, but of the inevitable though, let us hope, far-off struggle for practical supremacy between the white blood and the black.

We may wonder what are the thoughts that pass through the mind of some ancient warrior of Chaka's or Dingaan's time, as he suns himself crouched on the ground, for example, where once stood the homestead of Duguss, and watches men and women of the Zulu blood passing homeward from the cities or the mines, bestuffed some of them, with the white man's smuggled liquor, grotesque in the white man's cast-off garments, bidding, perhaps, in their blankets examples of the white man's doubtful photographs—and then what a big sunken eyes and remembers the plumed and kilted regiments making the same ground shake as, with a thunder of salute, line upon line, company upon company, they rushed out to battle.

The World's Mysteries

WHO WAS PYTHAGORAS?

The name of Pythagorse is a synonym for much that is great and exalting in philosophy, and he has left such an impress on this science that all philosophical systems has been named for him Pythagoreanism, and yet there is no point in Greek philosophy that is more disputed than is the proper interpretation of this "him." Even the name of Pythagoras is looked upon by many writers as traditional. It is not known when he was born, but it is generally supposed that it was some time during the forty-ninth Olympiad, 584-581 B. C.

It is said that Pythagoras founded an exclusive brotherhood among the aristocracy of Crotona, where he went to reside about 53c. The original purpose of this brotherhood was probably not political, and yet the society became involved in the fierce struggles between the aristocracy and the democracy that were at this time raging in lower Italy, and when the popular party gained the upper hand, in its wild fury it turned upon the Pythagorean brothers and burned them in their meeting places. Only a few escaped. It is not certain whether Pythagoras himself perished in this outbreak, or whether he had previously died peacefully in Metapontum, whither he is said to have retired when the storm was gathering. It will cost him all his work, his money, and give him a skyscraper of a headache, and eventually land him before his honor, the bank, who will assess him $10 and costs. The reasoning power has not much to do with fool habits.

There is a celebrated story of his having discovered the arithmetical relations of the musical scale by observing accidentally the various sounds produced by hammers of different weights striking upon an anvil, and suspended by strings weights equal to those of the different hammers. The retailers of the story, of course, never took the trouble to verify the experiment, or they would have discovered that different hammers do not produce different sounds from the same anvil, any more than different clappers do from the same bell.

Apart from all direct testimony, however, it may safely be affirmed that the very remarkable influence exerted by Pythagoras, and even the fact that he was made the hero of so many marvelous stories, proves him to have been a man both of singular capabilities and of great acquirements.

Many writers believe that Pythagoras perished in the temple with his disciples, while others think that he fled first to Tarentum, and, that, being driven thence, he escaped to Metapontum, and there starved himself to death. His tomb was shown, at least, at Metapontum in the time of Cicero.

According to some accounts Pythagoras married Theano, a lady of Crotona, and other notices seem to imply that he had a daughter grown up when he came to Crotona.

When we come to inquire what were the philosophical or religious opinions held by Pythagoras himself, we are met at the outset by the difficulty that even the authors from whom we have to draw possess no authentic records bearing upon the age of Pythagoras himself. If Pythagoras never wrote anything his writing perished with him, or not long after, and probability is that he wrote nothing. Everything current under his name in antiquity is spurious.

It is almost certain that Philolaus was the first who published the Pythagorean doctrines, at any rate in a written form. Still there was no peculiarly distinguishing through the Pythagorean philosophy that there can be little question as to the germs of the system, at least, at any rate, were of their having been derived from Pythagoras himself.

It seems peculiar, in view of the very few facts known regarding the Greek philosopher, that he should have so dominated the scientific world of his period as to have founded a school of philosophy named for him, when apparently no one seems to know of just what that philosophy consisted.

CONFIDENCE.

By George Matthew Adams

Confidence is Hope—realized. It is honest Trust, put to the test in advance and not found wanting. The man who enters into a task Confident of Success, enters with the Hope and the Trust that he is going to "make good."

Start your work full of Confidence, and half the results hoped for, are already within your reach.

Natural life is a condition of Confidence. Natural circumstances and laws uphold and strengthen you in what you do, if you are open minded and clear sighted enough to look squarely into the eyes and soul of Nature and believe in her to render back to you your proportion of deserts. There are always Natural conditions of some sort or other ready to aid the man who has Confidence in their existence.

Inside Confidence begets Outside Confidence. The world in general instinctively puts Confidence in the man who is laden with Confidence.

If you have Confidence in your Friends or Employees or in all men in just that measure will your personal Confidence in yourself and your qualities be increased and enlarged. Smile and you are most apt to get a smile. Confidence seeks out its own, the same as to virtues. The more you want great numbers to have Confidence in you, you must place Confidence in all.

Confidence in your ability to go ahead and do things is what makes the things possible for you to do.

Have Confidence. Keep it calm and exact. Play it in its turn. Accumulate it for Emergencies. Nurture it when it is weak; hold it back and cool it off when it gets too anxious, but under no circumstances let it wander from you or get lost.

Hellas.

The world's great age begins anew,
The golden years return,
The earth doth like a snake renew
Her winter weeds outworn:
Heaven smiles, and faiths and empires gleam
Like wrecks of a dissolving dream.

A brighter Hellas rears its mountains
From waves serener far;
A new Peneus rolls his fountains
Against the morning star;
Where fairer Tempes bloom, there sleep
Young Cyclads on a sunnier deep.

A loftier Argo cleaves the main,
Fraught with a later prize;
Another Orpheus sings again,
And loves, and weeps, and dies;
A new Ulysses leaves once more
Calypso for his native shore.

O write no more the tale of Troy,
If earth Death's scroll must be—
Nor mix with Lalan rage the joy
Which dawns upon the free,
Although a sunlier Sphinx renew
Riddles of death Thebes never knew.

Another Athens shall arise,
And to remoter time
Bequeath, like sunset to the skies,
The splendor of its prime;
And leave, if naught so bright may live,
All earth can take or Heaven can give.

Saturn and Love their long repose
Shall burst, more bright and good
Than all who fell, than One who rose,
Than many unsubdued:
Not gold, not blood, their altar dowers,
But votive tears and symbol flowers.

O cease! must hate and death return?
Cease! must men kill and die?
Cease! drain not to its dregs the urn
Of bitter prophecy!
The world is weary of the past—
O might it die or rest at last!
—SHELLEY.

Oldest Living Person.

(From The Christian Herald.)

Probably the oldest person now living is Gertrude Alto, whose home is in Old Town, San Diego county, Cal., of Mexican Aztec Indian blood, and is believed to be in her 124th year of age. She saw the morning sun in the splendor brightness and the waning twilight and afterglow of her own generation, and now stands as its lone surviving representative a full generation after its sunset. She is hale and hearty, and has a keen relish for her food. Through her granddaughter as interpreter she declares she never saw a sick day in all her long life. She is able to walk about and visit about in the neighborhood when aided by someone to lead her, as she is nearly blind. In better days she used to walk about to go 5 miles up the valley on foot to the old San Diego mission for the service at 6:30 in the morning. She attributes her great age and strength to her lifelong regular habits and outdoor life.

Where Guides Are Tagged.

Woman guides and interpreters in Budapest wear a different colored ribbon for each language which they speak. They are to be seen walking about the city, waiting at railway stations and driving in carriages. Some have two or three ribbons, and others have four, five or six. Bright red represents English, a heliotrope or lavender is German, a brilliant yellow means French, a pale blue is Italian, a brown means Danish, Dutch is a Nile green, and so on throughout most nations of the earth.

TURKEY.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

Turkey is a large slice of the middle ages in a state of almost perfect preservation. It is located in full retreat at the western end of Europe and also extends over the eastern end of Asia. There are 1,377,000 square miles in Turkey, or were before the Balkan states began carving it. If the officials of Turkey had been half as square as the Balkans the country would have gotten along better.

Turkey is a very old country and smells like it. It began to get ambitious in 800 B. C., and by the fifteenth century had spread up the Danube like a heavy rash almost to Vienna. Since then the European nations have spent their spare time pushing Turkey back into Asia and have gotten so far along with the task that one more push will finish the job.

Turkey in Asia is composed mostly of sand and is rather flatter than any part the country attorney is making good. Its principal resource is sand and its principal products are dates, fleas, wool, moslem priests and smells. Turkey exports olive oil, old hair rugs and midway dancers in enormous quantities, and imports wives from the Caucasus and missionaries from America in almost equal numbers. The celebrated Turkish cigarette, however, is made principally in New Jersey.

The capital of Turkey is Constantinople which is a city of over 1,000,000 people and 7,000,000 dogs situated at the jumping off place of Europe. The Turkish cities are Damascus, Smyrna and Bagdad, all of which were great and flourishing cities long before the calendar was reversed and started forward in the year 1 A. D.

The Turkish people consist of two classes —workers and officials. The laboring Turk is honest and every industrious. Because of this he is able to support the official class and even at times to support himself. The easiest way to get rich in Turkey is to escape and come to America.

Turkey adheres to the Mohammedan form of religion which allows unlimited wives and does not interfere with politics or business. Turkey has given America the Hoochee Coochee dance, the Turkish bath and the Oriental rug, but has kindly retained the harem as an exclusively home feature.

Turkey was an absolute monarchy governed by a Sultan until a few years ago when the Young Turks arose and fired Abdul Hamid with a great bang. It is now a constitutional monarchy. Trying to find the constitution is the fastest Turkish diversion.

Turkey was long ago detested by Europe because of its playful habits of slicing up its Christian citizens with a scimitar on holidays and festivals. Because of this Europe has been slicing off Turkey a piece at a time, preferring the white portions. However, no one has yet been found with courage enough to slice off any of Constantinople which will continue to be 100 per cent Turkish until the next fire.

"One more push will finish the job."

When Mother Reads Aloud.

(From The Denver News.)

When mother reads aloud, the past
Seems real as days of old;
I hear the tramp of armies vast,
I see the spears and lances cast,
I join the thrilling throng.

Brave knights and ladies fair and proud
I meet, when mother reads aloud.

When mother reads aloud, far lands
Seem very near and true;
I cross the desert's gleaming sands,
I hunt the whale in the prowling bands,
Or sail the ocean blue;
Far heights, whose peaks the cold mists
shroud,
I scale, when mother reads aloud.

When mother reads aloud, I long
For noble deeds to do,
To help the right, redress the wrong;
It seems so easy to be strong,
So simple and so true.
O, thick and fast the visions crowd
My eyes, when mother reads aloud!

No Snap Now.

Being a congressman in these industrious days is no snap. Just as the members of the house were congratulating themselves on having a little leading time the president passes the word that it would be a good scheme to begin to shape up the legislation that is to be acted on at the regular session.—Indianapolis News.

ON TOP THE PYRAMID.

Georgia is at the top of the pyramid of southern prosperity this year!

The September cotton condition report of the United States department of agriculture emphatically verifies the reiterated predictions of The Constitution to that effect.

Our statement was based originally upon the slump in condition in the western half of the cotton belt being sufficient to hold prices high and stable; upon the condition in the eastern half being near enough to normal to insure unwonted prosperity to that entire range; upon the fact that Georgia's condition led the condition of the eastern half, the volume of her crop being larger. From this unusual combination it was easy to forecast unprecedented prosperity for Georgia, and for Atlanta, the commercial capital of the normal eastern zone.

The September government report confirms this reasoning.

The 10-year average of cotton for the cotton belt is 72.

Georgia's condition in the September report is 72, and it is the only state in the entire cotton belt that is a factor in the situation which is not below the 10-year average.

The condition average for the entire belt in the September report is 64.1, as against Georgia's 72.

These cumulative facts spell for Georgia, and Atlanta, a bumper crop of prosperity. The main thing for capitalists, merchants and farmers now to do is to prepare for it.

THE TARIFF PLEDGE KEPT.

With the completion of tariff revision the democratic party has redeemed the first and one of the most important of its pledges to the country. The task, monumental in scope and intricate in detail, has been accomplished with a dispatch and a sincerity not matched by similar legislation since the civil war. The master craftsmanship of President Wilson, Chairman Underwood and Chairman Simmons has collaborated to the end that the nation is given a new tariff law for the first time in many decades free of jokers and subterfuges, hewing straight to the line of honesty and enacted in the interests of the whole people rather than any section or class.

In these respects the new tariff law will be found notable. So far as is now visible to the unbiased vision, the makers of the tariff have played no favorites. They have rejected the old and disreputable trading game of the republicans. They have indulged in no wild vagaries and no revolutionary devices, but they have given the nation what it demanded in the reduction of schedules and in the freer play for competition and the ultimate lowering of the high cost of living. Additionally, they have included in the law a federal income tax framed upon indefeasible principles and adapted to restore to the treasury whatever deficit may be created by the lower revenue-producing power of the schedules.

The passage of tariff legislation was admittedly the first acid test of the Wilson administration and of the constructive ability of democratic statesmanship. Both have measured up admirably. The schisms and the desertions so confidently predicted by the republicans have failed to materialize. The apostasy anticipated by the non-partisan pessimists has been conspicuous by its absence. The force and the coherence of the president's leadership have been adequately proven. The democratic party has survived the first drastic test in a manner that gives promise of its ability to negotiate whatever hazards lie in the future.

The country as a whole is prepared for the new tariff. Whatever effect it may produce has long ago been discounted. The whiners and the croakers are now estimated at their true worth. Optimism has the saddle. Prosperity commands every prospect. The first noteworthy achievement of the rehabilitated democracy will usher in an era of national welfare that may well mark new records in the country's history.

A WELCOME VISITOR.

Atlanta as well as the whole of the southern division of the railway mail service has an interest in the presence here today of the Hon. A. H. Stephens, the new general superintendent of that vitally important branch of the postoffice department. Superintendent Stephens is an appointee of the Wilson administration, chosen because of his long experience in the railway mail service, his expert proficiency and his broad and liberal policies. He is making a tour of the country to familiarize himself at first hand with the faults and needs of the service. His visit here today has to do with that purpose.

This evening Superintendent Stephens will be the honor guest at a smoker of the local chapter of the Railway Mail association. He will tell them what he expects to do for the country generally and the southern division particularly. He has come bringing promise of relief none too soon. The entire nation suffered from the blasting policy of so-called "economy" inaugurated under Hitchcock. But it was upon the southern division that the brunt fell, making it seem at times as though this part of the country had been singled out by Hitchcock as the "goat" for his pinch-penny program. Under the change of administration and the influence of Mr. Stephens, the division has just begun to show symptoms of gradual recovery. Old conditions are too well known to need more than a scant recital. Under Hitchcockism the service was demoralized from the ground up. The old routes, established with a view to efficiency and dispatch, such, for illustration, as the one between Atlanta and New Orleans, were cut up into units, instead of being conducted as through routes. Mail cars were sliced in size. Mail clerks were lessened in number and forced to work overtime in cramped quarters. The inevitable result was the abolition of old transfer points, and the establishment of new ones, the consequence of which was seen in vast stacks of mails left over at transfer points, undistributed, and entailing a loss of time in delivery of anywhere from one to two days. This breakdown occurred with mails coming into and going out of the south. The destruction of the esprit de corps of the clerks under the hammer of browbeating and espionage was a calamity that does not need rehearsal.

Superintendent Stephens already is partially cognizant of these conditions in the southern division as elsewhere. He is learning more each day. Improvement already is visible. More will be forthcoming, gradually, until the service is restored from the chaos bequeathed by Hitchcock. It is not to be expected that even an official of Mr. Stephens' capacity can undo by edict the wreckage of four years. But he is making cheerful progress and expressing clear intention toward that end. He is extremely welcome, therefore, to Atlanta and the south, and his address tonight should bring a message of encouragement to a long-harassed section.

WHILE FORTUNE BECKONS.

Two incidents, one local and the other national, transpired last week to give pertinence to the great opportunity that Georgia overlooks so long as she does not embark wholesale in the beet industry.

The first was the receipt in Atlanta of the first shipment of beef from the Argentine republic. This was part of a lot recently sent to this country from the Argentine and reference to which was then made by The Constitution. Reports run to the effect that the imported beef was better in quality than that raised in our country. Scientific refrigeration has nullified distance, and it is possible that from now on Argentine beef will be a stiff competitor of American beef. The point is that under normal conditions the bringing of South American beef to Georgia ought to be in the nature of bringing coals to Newcastle. Georgia has natural facilities for the production of beef little short of those of the Argentine, saving only the vast open ranges, and this feature is now discounted in the modern beef industry.

The other incident was the report that the government, impressed by the impending famine of beef, had made up its mind to encourage the beef industry among the Indians in this country on their reservations. Advertisements have already been issued for herds of the proper grade of cattle. It is said that the Indians have developed a decided aptitude to cattle-growing. Uncle Sam hopes in time to break the beef famine, or at least the one that is now on the way, by giving his red wards a new occupation.

There is no reason why a pound of beef should be imported into this country from the Argentine, and there is no reason why Georgia should not produce for the eastern states as good a grade of beef as can be produced anywhere. Every cent that Georgia sends to South America for beef is wasted, as is every cent sent to the west. With the selection of beef sires, and their breeding to native cattle, the state will soon develop an industry almost equalling cotton. The corn, the forage crops, the grazing grounds and the climate are here. All that is needed is the endeavor, and such encouragement from bankers as will make beef collateral for credit on at least a partial equality with cotton.

Suizer, it is said, "will spring a surprise on them." But what can surprise a New York politician?

Citizens of Light.

I.

Now you're on the highway where the world
"Good Times" flag a-flying over regiments
in line!
And it's "Help to the right,
Citizens of Light!
And if there comes an enemy we'll sweep

II.

Now for a song to thrill
them far o'er the
ringing notes of
Duty from the bu-
sies and the bands!
And it's "Hep to the
right,
Citizens of Light!
You're marching now as victors with the banners of the fight!"

III.

Long was the battle, but bravely was it
won:
Our lances were the rain-shafts, our captain
was the Sun!
And it's "Hep to the right,
Ye citizens of Light,
The laurel of the victory, the trophies of the fight!"

I don't tell the women-folk to vote, and I don't tell 'em not to; but I'd feel mighty uncomfortable if they should send a mind reader to interview me.

Notable Obituary.

It's so out of the ordinary—so simple and expressive of life lived faithfully—honestly, that this editorial note from The Beattyville (Ky.) Enterprise is going the rounds:

"Uncle Chris—we all called him Uncle Chris—was one of our good, quiet, steady citizens; one of the kind that gives good reputation to a country; he was a farmer with a little well-tilled place, a good orchard, a nice home, where he lived at peace with all his neighbors—a thing worthy of notice, perhaps, these days—spending the evening of his life as he had its morning, in doing the best he could the things his hands found to do."

A Story of the Moment

REASONING POWERS.

"I've just been reading an article," said the druggist, "in which it is argued that such animals as dogs and horses have reasoning faculties, and exercise them every day. I don't believe it. Such animals have instinct, but they don't reason. I have an old family horse that was born of poor but respectable parents. He is unusually clever, as horses go, but he can't think or figure out anything for himself. I have a little lot by the stable in which I turn old Dobbin when he isn't busy, and he always lies down and rolls. In nine cases out of ten he lies down too close to the fence, and when he rolls over he gets his legs through it, and has them all skinned up. He has been doing that for years, and he's never found out that if he would roll in the middle of the lot, he wouldn't get his foot legs hurt.

"That's interesting and entertaining," remarked the village patriarch, "but it isn't much of an argument. Many men are as foolish as your horse, but we don't credit them with reasoning faculties. There's Sim McWhiskers, who gets pickled at the rum holes about once in three months. He has been doing that for years and years. He surely knows when he makes tracks for the rum hole that it will cost him all his money, and give him a skyscraper of a headache, and eventually land him before his honor, the bank, who will assess him $10 and costs. The reasoning power has not much to do with fool habits.

"I am perfectly willing to admit that dogs and horses and other animals can do excellent reasoning. To suppose the contrary would be foolish to dispute such a proposition, when I know quite well that inanimate objects are capable of thought. Inanimate objects are full of malice, and they'll go out of their way to make life unbearable to human beings.

"As you are aware, I have been going around recently with a game foot. That member has been pretty swollen, and sore as a boil, and merely to touch it with a feather made me double up like a bootjack and scream. All the inanimate things in my house soon learned the facts, and they passed the information along, and organized a conspiracy to get even with me. I was surprising how subtly they reasoned.

"The other night I got my couch of suffering and tried for three weeks to get some sleep and couldn't do it. That sore foot felt like a ball of pumping throbs-ache. Suddenly I remembered a bottle of liniment that had been given to me by a neighbor some weeks before, the neighbor claiming that it was the most miraculous compound in the world. I recalled that I had placed it in a little cupboard in the kitchen, and concluded to go and get it. I rose in the dark and the first thing I did was to kick my sore foot against a big heavy chair. Now, you may believe me or not, but that chair had moved at least eight feet from its accustomed place, in order to be where I couldn't help kicking it. When I went to bed the table was in its usual place, yet when I got up it was directly in my path. It seemed to me that I heard the blamed thing giggle as I stood there bellowing on my injured foot, and rehearsing all the beautiful adjectives I learned at my mother's knee.

"When the pain had subsided to some extent I reached for the electric light switch and couldn't find it. I know where that switch is as well as I know where my whiskers are. I have put my hand on it in the dark a thousand times. But this one time it had concealed itself, and I couldn't find hide nor hair of it. And all the time, while groping around for it, agonies of pain shot from my deliberately swatting my sore foot. At last I made for the door. I couldn't be fooled about that door, I thought. But it had joined the conspiracy against me. When I went to bed it was closed, but it had unlocked itself, and was standing wide open, and I hit both my foot and my nose against its edge. You may believe me or not, but half as valuable a utensil as it used to be. And my foot hurt so that I sat down on the floor and cried. And the darkness of my head against a rocking chair that had crossed the room in the dark in order to work my undoing. Since that fateful night I have been willing to believe in almost anything."

Swinburne Stopped Country Churchgoers.

(From The Pall Mall Gazette.)

An amusing story of Swinburne is told by Edmund Gosse. At the age of 23 Swinburne was sent to study library under Bishop Stubbs, who was then in charge of a country parish in Essex. All the week he was on a Saturday and was excused attendance at Sunday morning church on the ground that he must be fresh for his journey.

He had breakfast in bed, but, finding it a glorious morning, he arrayed himself in scarlet slippers and a light crimson dressing gown, sauntered into the garden, and leaned pensively over the gate, with his red hair flaming brilliantly in the sunlight.

The church bells were ringing and the parishioners had all to pass the parsonage gate to get to church. But none of them dared to pass the flaming apparition, and all came to a halt. The church bells stopped, but at the instance of the vicar, no one could not believe that all his parishioners had deserted him, were rung again.

At last the boldest man in the village bolted past the gate, and the rest stampeded after him, Swinburne gazing at them in quiet wonder at their strange method of going to church.

Pioneer of Cheap Literature.

(J. Arthur Hill in Imprint.)

The introduction of the sloping Roman letters which are known to everybody as Italics was made by Aldus Manutius, of Venice in the latter part of the fifteenth century. He was the most famous printer of Italy and perhaps of the world.

The books he printed, known as Aldine editions, are much sought after by collectors. His first volume in the style now as a Virgil published in 1501 at the price of about two shillings of our money. Aldus, in fact, was the pioneer of cheap literature.

The Aldine mark, is a dolphin twined about an anchor, with the motto "Festina" divided by the other part of the latter. If any reader finds a cartload of old books with this mark in his attic or lumber room he is duly advised not to use them for lighting the fire. "They would probably buy him a good annuity for the solace of his declining years."

A Black Peril in Africa.

(Sir H. Rider Haggard in The London Times.)

To my mind, the greeat question of the future in southern Africa is not, as so many suppose, that of the struggle for supremacy of Englishman over Boer, but of the inevitable though, let us hope, far-off struggle for practical supremacy between the white blood and the black.

We may wonder what are the thoughts that pass through the mind of some ancient warrior of Chaka's or Dingaan's time, as he suns himself crouched on the ground, for example, where once stood the homestead of Duguss, and watches men and women of the Zulu blood passing homeward from the cities or the mines, bestuffed some of them, with the white man's smuggled liquor, grotesque in the white man's cast-off garments, bidding, perhaps, in their blankets examples of the white man's doubtful photographs—and then what a big sunken eyes and remembers the plumed and kilted regiments making the same ground shake as, with a thunder of salute, line upon line, company upon company, they rushed out to battle.

The World's Mysteries

WHO WAS PYTHAGORAS?

The name of Pythagorse is a synonym for much that is great and exalting in philosophy, and he has left such an impress on this science that all philosophical systems has been named for him Pythagoreanism, and yet there is no point in Greek philosophy that is more disputed than is the proper interpretation of this "him." Even the name of Pythagoras is looked upon by many writers as traditional. It is not known when he was born, but it is generally supposed that it was some time during the forty-ninth Olympiad, 584-581 B. C.

It is said that Pythagoras founded an exclusive brotherhood among the aristocracy of Crotona, where he went to reside about 53c. The original purpose of this brotherhood was probably not political, and yet the society became involved in the fierce struggles between the aristocracy and the democracy that were at this time raging in lower Italy, and when the popular party gained the upper hand, in its wild fury it turned upon the Pythagorean brothers and burned them in their meeting places. Only a few escaped. It is not certain whether Pythagoras himself perished in this outbreak, or whether he had previously died peacefully in Metapontum, whither he is said to have retired when the storm was gathering. It will cost him all his work, his money, and give him a skyscraper of a headache, and eventually land him before his honor, the bank, who will assess him $10 and costs. The reasoning power has not much to do with fool habits.

There is a celebrated story of his having discovered the arithmetical relations of the musical scale by observing accidentally the various sounds produced by hammers of different weights striking upon an anvil, and suspended by strings weights equal to those of the different hammers. The retailers of the story, of course, never took the trouble to verify the experiment, or they would have discovered that different hammers do not produce different sounds from the same anvil, any more than different clappers do from the same bell.

Apart from all direct testimony, however, it may safely be affirmed that the very remarkable influence exerted by Pythagoras, and even the fact that he was made the hero of so many marvelous stories, proves him to have been a man both of singular capabilities and of great acquirements.

Many writers believe that Pythagoras perished in the temple with his disciples, while others think that he fled first to Tarentum, and, that, being driven thence, he escaped to Metapontum, and there starved himself to death. His tomb was shown, at least, at Metapontum in the time of Cicero.

According to some accounts Pythagoras married Theano, a lady of Crotona, and other notices seem to imply that he had a daughter grown up when he came to Crotona.

When we come to inquire what were the philosophical or religious opinions held by Pythagoras himself, we are met at the outset by the difficulty that even the authors from whom we have to draw possess no authentic records bearing upon the age of Pythagoras himself. If Pythagoras never wrote anything his writing perished with him, or not long after, and probability is that he wrote nothing. Everything current under his name in antiquity is spurious.

It is almost certain that Philolaus was the first who published the Pythagorean doctrines, at any rate in a written form. Still there was no peculiarly distinguishing through the Pythagorean philosophy that there can be little question as to the germs of the system, at least, at any rate, were of their having been derived from Pythagoras himself.

It seems peculiar, in view of the very few facts known regarding the Greek philosopher, that he should have so dominated the scientific world of his period as to have founded a school of philosophy named for him, when apparently no one seems to know of just what that philosophy consisted.

CONFIDENCE.

By George Matthew Adams

Confidence is Hope—realized. It is honest Trust, put to the test in advance and not found wanting. The man who enters into a task Confident of Success, enters with the Hope and the Trust that he is going to "make good."

Start your work full of Confidence, and half the results hoped for, are already within your reach.

Natural life is a condition of Confidence. Natural circumstances and laws uphold and strengthen you in what you do, if you are open minded and clear sighted enough to look squarely into the eyes and soul of Nature and believe in her to render back to you your proportion of deserts. There are always Natural conditions of some sort or other ready to aid the man who has Confidence in their existence.

Inside Confidence begets Outside Confidence. The world in general instinctively puts Confidence in the man who is laden with Confidence.

If you have Confidence in your Friends or Employees or in all men in just that measure will your personal Confidence in yourself and your qualities be increased and enlarged. Smile and you are most apt to get a smile. Confidence seeks out its own, the same as to virtues. The more you want great numbers to have Confidence in you, you must place Confidence in all.

Confidence in your ability to go ahead and do things is what makes the things possible for you to do.

Have Confidence. Keep it calm and exact. Play it in its turn. Accumulate it for Emergencies. Nurture it when it is weak; hold it back and cool it off when it gets too anxious, but under no circumstances let it wander from you or get lost.

Hellas.

The world's great age begins anew,
The golden years return,
The earth doth like a snake renew
Her winter weeds outworn:
Heaven smiles, and faiths and empires gleam
Like wrecks of a dissolving dream.

A brighter Hellas rears its mountains
From waves serener far;
A new Peneus rolls his fountains
Against the morning star;
Where fairer Tempes bloom, there sleep
Young Cyclads on a sunnier deep.

A loftier Argo cleaves the main,
Fraught with a later prize;
Another Orpheus sings again,
And loves, and weeps, and dies;
A new Ulysses leaves once more
Calypso for his native shore.

O write no more the tale of Troy,
If earth Death's scroll must be—
Nor mix with Lalan rage the joy
Which dawns upon the free,
Although a sunlier Sphinx renew
Riddles of death Thebes never knew.

Another Athens shall arise,
And to remoter time
Bequeath, like sunset to the skies,
The splendor of its prime;
And leave, if naught so bright may live,
All earth can take or Heaven can give.

Saturn and Love their long repose
Shall burst, more bright and good
Than all who fell, than One who rose,
Than many unsubdued:
Not gold, not blood, their altar dowers,
But votive tears and symbol flowers.

O cease! must hate and death return?
Cease! must men kill and die?
Cease! drain not to its dregs the urn
Of bitter prophecy!
The world is weary of the past—
O might it die or rest at last!
—SHELLEY.

(From The Christian Herald.)

Probably the oldest person now living is Gertrude Alto, whose home is in Old Town, San Diego county, Cal., of Mexican Aztec Indian blood, and is believed to be in her 124th year of age. She saw the morning sun in the splendor brightness and the waning twilight and afterglow of her own generation, and now stands as its lone surviving representative a full generation after its sunset. She is hale and hearty, and has a keen relish for her food. Through her granddaughter as interpreter she declares she never saw a sick day in all her long life. She is able to walk about and visit about in the neighborhood when aided by someone to lead her, as she is nearly blind. In better days she used to walk about to go 5 miles up the valley on foot to the old San Diego mission for the service at 6:30 in the morning. She attributes her great age and strength to her lifelong regular habits and outdoor life.

Where Guides Are Tagged.

Woman guides and interpreters in Budapest wear a different colored ribbon for each language which they speak. They are to be seen walking about the city, waiting at railway stations and driving in carriages. Some have two or three ribbons, and others have four, five or six. Bright red represents English, a heliotrope or lavender is German, a brilliant yellow means French, a pale blue is Italian, a brown means Danish, Dutch is a Nile green, and so on throughout most nations of the earth.

TURKEY.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

Turkey is a large slice of the middle ages in a state of almost perfect preservation. It is located in full retreat at the western end of Europe and also extends over the eastern end of Asia. There are 1,377,000 square miles in Turkey, or were before the Balkan states began carving it. If the officials of Turkey had been half as square as the Balkans the country would have gotten along better.

Turkey is a very old country and smells like it. It began to get ambitious in 800 B. C., and by the fifteenth century had spread up the Danube like a heavy rash almost to Vienna. Since then the European nations have spent their spare time pushing Turkey back into Asia and have gotten so far along with the task that one more push will finish the job.

Turkey in Asia is composed mostly of sand and is rather flatter than any part the country attorney is making good. Its principal resource is sand and its principal products are dates, fleas, wool, moslem priests and smells. Turkey exports olive oil, old hair rugs and midway dancers in enormous quantities, and imports wives from the Caucasus and missionaries from America in almost equal numbers. The celebrated Turkish cigarette, however, is made principally in New Jersey.

The capital of Turkey is Constantinople which is a city of over 1,000,000 people and 7,000,000 dogs situated at the jumping off place of Europe. The Turkish cities are Damascus, Smyrna and Bagdad, all of which were great and flourishing cities long before the calendar was reversed and started forward in the year 1 A. D.

The Turkish people consist of two classes —workers and officials. The laboring Turk is honest and every industrious. Because of this he is able to support the official class and even at times to support himself. The easiest way to get rich in Turkey is to escape and come to America.

Turkey adheres to the Mohammedan form of religion which allows unlimited wives and does not interfere with politics or business. Turkey has given America the Hoochee Coochee dance, the Turkish bath and the Oriental rug, but has kindly retained the harem as an exclusively home feature.

Turkey was an absolute monarchy governed by a Sultan until a few years ago when the Young Turks arose and fired Abdul Hamid with a great bang. It is now a constitutional monarchy. Trying to find the constitution is the fastest Turkish diversion.

Turkey was long ago detested by Europe because of its playful habits of slicing up its Christian citizens with a scimitar on holidays and festivals. Because of this Europe has been slicing off Turkey a piece at a time, preferring the white portions. However, no one has yet been found with courage enough to slice off any of Constantinople which will continue to be 100 per cent Turkish until the next fire.

"One more push will finish the job."

When Mother Reads Aloud.

(From The Denver News.)

When mother reads aloud, the past
Seems real as days of old;
I hear the tramp of armies vast,
I see the spears and lances cast,
I join the thrilling throng.

Brave knights and ladies fair and proud
I meet, when mother reads aloud.

When mother reads aloud, far lands
Seem very near and true;
I cross the desert's gleaming sands,
I hunt the whale in the prowling bands,
Or sail the ocean blue;
Far heights, whose peaks the cold mists
shroud,
I scale, when mother reads aloud.

When mother reads aloud, I long
For noble deeds to do,
To help the right, redress the wrong;
It seems so easy to be strong,
So simple and so true.
O, thick and fast the visions crowd
My eyes, when mother reads aloud!

No Snap Now.

A. H. Stephens Will Be Guest at Smoker Tonight, Tendered Him by Railway Mail Association.

A. H. Stephens, who was recently appointed general superintendent of the United States railway mail service, will arrive in Atlanta this afternoon at 5 o'clock on Southern train No. 37, and will be tendered a "smoker" at Duran's cafe this evening at 9 o'clock by the Railway Mail association.

Mr. Stephens is making an official tour of the southern states in order to familiarize himself with this territory of his department. He will remain in Atlanta will not be known until his arrival.

Prior to his appointment to his present important position by President Wilson several months ago, Mr. Stephens was superintendent of the eighth division of the railway mail service, with headquarters in San Francisco.

The "smoker" which will be given in his honor promises to be a brilliant affair. All the chief clerks of the fourth division of the railway mail service, which includes Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and South Carolina, will be in Atlanta on Saturday. There are seven chief clerks in the division.

R. F. King, assistant superintendent of the fourth division, will act as toastmaster. Mr. Stephens will be welcomed by Judge John C. Hart, representing Governor John M. Slaton, and by Mayor James O. Woodward.

Besides an address by Mr. Stephens, speeches will be made by Postmaster Holling H. Jones, James R. Gray, of The Journal; H. M. Dr. John E. White Will Preach To Chief Beavers and His Men

Dr. John E. White, pastor of the Second Baptist church, has written a letter to Chief James L. Beavers extending an invitation to him and the men of the police department to attend a special service arranged for the department Sunday night.

The invitation has been accepted, and the center section of Dr. White's church has been set aside for the men in uniform. The purpose of the service is to make emphatic the interest of religion and the churches in the police man as a man who deserves the respect and gratitude of Christian people.

A similar invitation has been sent Chief Chandler, of the detective department. The public is cordially invited.

NO EFFORT TO REMOVE POOLE, SAYS MAYOR

"I am not trying to remove T. O. Poole as a member of the board of health," Mayor James M. Woodward declared yesterday afternoon.

"My attention was called to the report that Mr. Poole is not a resident of the city of Atlanta, and I understand that he lives out on Cascade avenue, and had rented his home on Whitehall street. My only concern in the matter was that I did not want any complications to arise in the board of health. If Mr. Poole is not a resident of the city then he cannot serve as a member of the board of health. His vote on any question will be illegal."

Mayor Woodward called the attention of Alderman J. H. Harwell to the report and asked that the matter be looked into. Alderman Harwell is one of the representatives from the first ward in the general council.

Poole declares that he is legally entitled to a place on the board of health and on the city executive committee. He explains that while he maintains a summer home on Cascade avenue, outside the city limits, his legal domicile is in the first ward in the city of Atlanta.

"ILLS OF MEXICO DUE TO GROUP OF AMERICANS"

Vera Cruz, Mexico, October 3.—Manuel De Zamacona, former Mexican ambassador to the United States, who was sent to Washington by Provisional President Huerta to plead Mexico's case before President Wilson, returned here today. He expects to leave for Mexico City tonight, where he probably will report personally to Huerta the failure of his mission.

Senor Zamacona made no attempt to conceal his pessimism. He professes to believe his country's ills are due to the machinations of a group of Americans determined to precipitate intervention.

Zamacona's friends say he was deeply chagrined at not being received in Washington, but Zamacona himself persists in saying it was not expected that he would see either Secretary Bryan or President Wilson. The car set on which Zamacona returned brought also forty Americans.

Home-Coming Day.

Dr. Randolph Churchill, the distinguished traveler and correspondent, will give a special address on "The Negro in the Old World and the New."

FINES IN THE MORNING; PARDONS IN AFTERNOON

Superior Judge Humphries Has Change of Mood After Hearing From Other Judges.

Seattle, Wash., October 3.—Superior Judge E. Humphries, who began the day in belligerent mood with his docket full of contempt of court cases against socialists, adjourned court late today after administering fines and admissions to all comers. His change of attitude came after a consultation with a representative of eight other superior judges.

Until the middle of the afternoon Judge Humphries continued to hear the cases of the fifty-five signers of the "defiance," imposing fines and ordresses to the crowd. In the morning the penalties imposed were severe. In the afternoon mild. He frequently warned the defendants not to be "sassy." Those who were "sassy" fared ill.

After the "defiant" persons had been disposed the case of Dr. Titus, on the charge of violation of an anti-street speaking injunction, was called. The judge delivered a long lecture and then discharged Dr. Titus to the latter's intense astonishment. When Millard Price came forward the judge greeted him with a smile, saying: "Another friend of mine." Price answered a few questions, and was discharged.

Kate Saddler, a street speaker, was brought from the county jail, where she had been confined since Monday, the court proceedings yesterday. Questioned by Judge Humphries, she declared she had not assailed him in her speeches, but on the contrary had praised him as an object lesson of the need of the recall of judges. To her surprise the court said he would reduce her fine of $100 to $25.

"I'll not pay it," she shouted.

"Don't get sassy," said the judge, adding, the fine was remitted anyhow.

"What became of the woman with the two babies?" the court asked next.

He was told that Mrs. McNally would be released from jail today. The judge then inquired about Mrs. Spencer, a woman with four children, and remitted the fine against her. The prosecutor objected to this.

"She was very defiant, your honor," he said in the case of one of the alleged principals of the socialist contempt cases were ordered to jail in default of $500 persons were in jail in default of paying fines varying from $50 to $100, for talking back to the court. Three of the latter had been sentenced to six months each in prison.

ROOSEVELT TO STICK TO PROGRESSIVE PARTY

So He Declared at Dinner Given on Eve of His Departure for South America.

New York, October 3.—Theodore Roosevelt bade his friends farewell tonight, the eve of his departure on a journey to unexplored regions of South America, at a dinner given in his honor by the progressive national committee and the progressive state committee of New York. Addressing some two thousand men and women who gathered in his honor at the New York Roof Garden, the colonel, who published reports that he intends to return to the republican party, published reports that he intends to return to the republican party, declared:

"I warn our opponents that the fight has only just begun," he said, his voice breaking with his earnestness. "I warn them that the principles to which we progressives have pledged ourselves.

The wildest enthusiasm greeted his declaration. He stood on chairs, tables and banquets. He waved his napkin and his hat and cheered for half a minute. Only once during the evening did Mr. Roosevelt receive a greater ovation. Toward the close of the address of Gifford Pinchot, the toastmaster, there were cries of "We want Teddy!" Raymond Robins, of Chicago, head of the progressive national service, leaned across the guest table. "Say, We want him, we want him—we want him as president," he shouted. Then the crowd let loose, rising from their seats to applause. Mrs. Roosevelt was a witness of the tribute.

Progressive leaders, men and women, including former United States Senator Beveridge, Senators Borah and Poindexter, Governor Pinchot, Mrs. Frances A. Kellor, Jane Addams, Mrs. John Murray Mitchel, were seated at the guest table.

Gifford Pinchot spoke first after introduction by Lucius J. Curtis, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., and introduced the other speakers.

Mr. Pinchot, who was chief forester in the Roosevelt administration, urged the fellow-progressives to strengthen the party so that "when Theodore Roosevelt returns from his South American expedition it might be even a better instrument for the public good, given a keener weapon against the men who control the country to its hurt.

"We are living under the machine system," said Mr. Pinchot, and he declared:

"The one great task that lies before us is to reduce the machine system by a system frankly and avowedly directed to make the many prosperous and secure and not the few."

Mr. Pinchot was followed by Raymond Robins.

Senator Beveridge was greeted with applause that was more scarcely spontaneous than that accorded Colonel Roosevelt. Mr. Beveridge said that "under the wise leadership of the present administration the democratic party is gradually, yet rapidly becoming the conservative party of the nation. Mr. Bryan will be used at the right time to mass the movements of its troops and the placing of its batteries, but the signs are certain that the purposes of the administration are fixed and that the end is sure."

SENATE HAS STRUGGLE OVER COMMERCE COURT

Washington, October 3.—A fight to save from the pruning knife four remaining judges of the United States commerce court, who would be dropped out of office by the urgent deficiency appropriation bill, as it passed the house, held the senate in a continuous session which began shortly after noon today and ran until near midnight tonight. Two prominent friends of the commerce court judges succeeded in carrying amendments that would keep them in office as additional circuit judges, but final action was prevented by parliamentary maneuvers engineered by Senator Hoke Smith.

The senate upheld the action of the house in legislating the commerce court out of existence and fixing the date for its termination as December 31, but did not agree with the action of the senate appropriation committee in taking away from the commerce court judges their status as United States circuit judges. After a long fight in the committee of the whole, an amendment prepared by Senator Nelson, republican, and Senator Walsh, democrat, was adopted providing that the present commerce court judges should continue in office as additional circuit judges, but abolishing their positions wherever the present occupants resign or retire.

COVINGTON ANNOUNCES TO RUN FOR CONGRESS

Makes Formal Statement of Platform in Race to Succeed Congressman Roddenbery.

Moultrie, Ga., October 3.—(Special.) Hon W. A. Covington of this city, announced himself a candidate to succeed the Hon. Charles Roddenbery this morning and sent out the platform on which he expects to make the race.

Mr. Covington is well known throughout Georgia as a legislator and lecturer and a prohibition leader.

In his platform, Mr. Covington specifies seven things to which, if elected, he proposes to give attention, as follows:

First, he favors the extension of national aid to the education of country children.

Second, he favors governmental aid to the public dirt roads.

Third, he favors still further reductions, and increased income tax rates.

Fourth, he favors such governmental control of the sources of credit as will render the disastrous panics of the past impossible in the future.

Fifth, he is opposed to a federal judge holding office for life, believing that all circuit judges should be elected by the people for terms of from 6 to 10 years, thus insuring their frequent recall and rendering them less haughty and tyrannical.

Sixth, he favors the most rigid economy in the administration of national affairs, declaring his belief that millions go to waste under the present system.

Seventh, he believes in the strictest regulation of all monopolistic combinations of capital, declaring his unqualified support of President Wilson in his attitude toward the "trust" problem, and in closing his platform, Mr. Covington says:

"Progressive democracy has its hand on the wheel at Washington. A great and fearless leader has arisen and he has pledged himself and his party to supplying machinery which shall be adequate to relieve the discontent of the people, by the people, for the people," in lieu of government of the people, by the politicians, for 'the interests.' It will be a great struggle and in the past sixty years. Our people gave it to President Wilson to send a man to congress from the second district of Georgia whose platform shows that he is in perfect sympathy with the president's policies. In no other way can we hold up his hands. If I am the best man for this purpose, send me. If some other man has a better record, you ought to send him."

FORTY DAYS ALLOWED FOR CONGRESS CAMPAIGN

Roddenbery's Successor Probably Be Chosen Nov. 10-15. Three. Candidates.

Contrary to general expectation, Governor Slaton did not issue a proclamation yesterday fixing a date for the election of a congressman in the second district to succeed the Hon. S. A. Roddenbery.

He was waiting to hear from Hon. Henry M. McIntosh, chairman of the executive committee of the district, as to whether they would want to hold a primary and as to the date which would be most satisfactory to all concerned before issuing his proclamation. A proclamation will probably be issued this morning fixing the date of a special election.

It may be said that the election will, in all probability, be held about forty days from now, November 10 to 15, giving the new-elected congressman time to qualify for the regular session of congress, which begins the first Monday in December.

With three announced candidates for the honor there is every evidence that the contest will be a lively one from start to finish. The latest entrant into the race is Judge W. A. Covington, of Moultrie, whose announcement was made Friday. The other announced entrants are Eustace Cooke, of Thomasville, and E. E. Cox, in addition to these there are a large number of others whose names are being freely mentioned for the race.

FLOOR COLLAPSES AND 100 FALL FIFTEEN FEET

New York, October 3.—A hundred persons fell fifteen feet in an uptown hall today through the collapse of a floor. Several were injured. The hall was being used as a synagogue.

Though many were shaken up, the injuries of only four were serious. Ambulances summoned were not needed. The structure sagged slowly at first, giving those below ample time to run from under. The hall was crowded and panic prevailed, until it was determined that no one had been killed.

WILSON IS CONCERNED OVER CURRENCY BILL

Conference to Devise Plan for Hastening the Measure Is Without Result.

Washington, October 3.—The situation confronting the administration currency bill in the senate has become a matter of deep concern to President Wilson and members of the senate who favor early action upon the bill. Four members of the senate banking and currency committee have been in conference during the last week, in an effort to devise a plan for hastening action on the bill; but they have not decided finally what course will be followed if the full committee should refuse to report the bill back to the senate.

Chairman Owen and Senators Pomerene, Hollis and Shafroth have participated in the conferences, which began soon after the visit of Senators Owen and Shafroth to the white house early in the week. It is understood the Senators Hitchcock, O'Gorman and Reed, the three other democratic members of the senate committee, have thus far refused to agree to any plan of immediate action on the bill.

Several tentative plans for forcing the measure upon the attention of the full senate have been considered by administration leaders. These embrace a proposal to have the senate committee discharged from further consideration of the bill, thus bringing it before the full body; and the ultimate possibility of having a democratic caucus take up the problem and determine what course shall be followed.

In such cases, however, the friends of the administration bill recognize that sentiment is divided on the democratic side over many provisions of the measure. It is believed that an exodus of senators from Washington will follow the signing of the tariff bill, and that any contemplated action involving the full democratic strength of the senate will be withheld for several weeks.

HOLDUP VICTIM TRAPS TWO ALLEGED ROBBERS

George Themelis, a Greek tobacco dealer, is a detective as well as he is an up victim. A negro man and woman held him up and robbed him late Thursday night at Ivy and Hills streets. In resisting, he was stabbed in the neck, the two robbers got $10 and a watch.

Last night he returned to the corner shortly before midnight, expecting the man and woman to reappear. They did, shortly before 1 o'clock. Themelis followed them until they disappeared into an alley, then telephoned the detective bureau. Detectives Garner, Webb, Harper and Bullard came in an automobile. They found two negro men, Moss Rachael and Ernest Ogletree, in a tenant house. The woman was missing. Themelis identified Ogletree as the man who had relieved him of his money.

DISTRICT JUDGE MURANE IS REMOVED BY WILSON

Washington, October 3.—President Wilson today removed Cornelius D. Murane, district judge at Nome, Alaska. Attorney General McReynolds, by direction of the president, requested the resignation of Judge Murane several weeks ago, and as he has refused to resign until next June.

Judge Murane's four-year term would have expired in December, 1914.

B. S. Bodey, several days ago, resigned, at the request of the attorney general, as federal attorney at Nome.

Cuban Boy, Near Death's Door, Yearns for Sight of His Home

An appeal to the people of Georgia to assist them in sending to his home in Santiago, Cuba, Gabriel Guisarro, now lying ill in Atlanta with an incurable malady, has been sent out by the Georgia Libby circle of the King's Daughters, through its officers, and members who have cared for the lad for the past eleven months.

Physicians hold out no hope for the young Cuban's recovery, and state that his death is merely a matter of time. The world-old wish of the wanderer to return home and meet death in his own land is the boy's constant theme of talk, and with that goes the plea that he may see his mother once more before he dies.

The mother is a widow and unable to provide funds for her son's return, or to come for him. The King's Daughters have exhausted their funds in caring for him, and now ask that the public help them and enable the lad to be sent home, where he feels that the sting of death will not be so sharp.

Senator Hoke Smith became interested in the case, and took the matter up with the Cuban minister at Washington. At the time there was a change in ministers, and Antonio Martin Rivero, the former minister, who has been transferred to Rome, Italy, sent a check for $10 to aid the lad. His successor, Dr. Pablo Desvelna, found it impossible to secure government aid for the lad.

Guisarro is said to have come to this country as a student at Emory college, and later he worked for the Western and Atlantic railroad. The clerks there have aided in caring for him since his illness.

The King's Daughters have requested that any funds for the help of the child be sent to one of the following officers: Mrs. C. P. Gorse, 1960 Ellsworth avenue, leader; Mrs. W. O. Bellard, 406 South Pryor street, secretary; Mrs. Russell Carnegie way, treasurer, or Mrs. W. R. Hudson, 611 Cherokee avenue, vice leader.

F. H. Abbott Resigns.

Washington, October 3.—F. H. Abbott, assistant commissioner of Indian affairs, and acting commissioner, prior to the appointment of Commissioner Sells, today tendered his resignation. It is to be effective immediately, or at the will of the interior secretary.

The first effect of the new tariff law on men's clothes

GENERALLY speaking, it will be good for everybody. The initial benefit will be that it will enable us to offer, at lower prices than has been possible heretofore, the finest, richest imported fabrics, such as we and some few exclusive tailors have, in the past, used sparingly.

We made large preparations in advance of the passage of the tariff bill, and we will be the first American clothes makers to offer these new fabrics on an extensive scale.

Weeks ago, our entire buying staff went abroad; buying offices and warehouses were opened in Huddersfield, England, at 31, Lord Street, and in London at 47, Brewer Street, Golden Square, W. Large orders were placed for the choicest productions of foreign looms, which will be shown in our line for the Spring of 1914.

American weaves will not be displaced in our line; we will continue to offer our usual fine representation of the best American products.

STATE PUBLICATION WILL BE LIVE ISSUE

Editor of Ontario Books Leading Speaker at Southern Educational Convention.

That the question of publication of school books by the state is to be a live issue in more of the southern states than one is indicated by the fact that Dr. D. J. Coggin, minister of education of the province of Ontario and editor of the text-books used in that province, has been secured as one of the leading speakers to address the Southern Educational association at its annual meeting to be held in Nashville, October 30 to November 1.

In this connection State Superintendent M. L. Brittain, who is president of the association, said Friday:

"Dr. Coggin has been given special leave of absence by his province in order that he may explain to southern people the system in vogue in Ontario. Unusual interest will attach to this address in view of the fact that the legislatures of several of the southern states are interesting themselves in what is known as the text book plan. There is no doubt that Dr. Coggin, more than anyone else, is the eminently qualified to explain the Ontario system.

"Congressman Richard Pearson Hobson will deliver an address on 'Federal Aid to Vocational Education,' a subject which is being considered by congress at this time.

Other Speakers.

"United States Commissioner of Education Claxton will address the meeting on 'The Education of the Farmer's Children.' Dr. Wooffter and Superintendent Evans, of Georgia; State Superintendent Sheats, of Florida; Joyner, of North Carolina, as well as other leading educators from Maryland to Texas, will be present.

"The Right Kind of Education for the Southern Negro' will be an important subject handled by Jackson Davis, the most successful supervisor in this work in the south, and Hon. H. J. Willingham, of Alabama. Dr. J. H. Dillard will explain the work of the Slater and Jeanes boards. No other educational topic through league and actual knowledge of the subject so well fitted to conduct the investigation into this vital subject and to furnish the public with safe and sensible conclusions.

"This meeting will place upon a new basis the Southern Council of Education. This important body, which is expected to be the very center of the Southern Educational association, is composed of two members from each southern state. These members are elected for a period of years, though successors are chosen for non-attendance. This body will meet at 4 o'clock on October 29 in the assembly room of the Hermitage hotel.

"At the close of the meeting on Saturday afternoon arrangements have been made for an excursion to the Hermitage, the historic home of Andrew Jackson, 12 miles from Nashville. The expense of this trip will not exceed $1, and it will be an excellent opportunity to visit the famous spot."

The programs will be ready for distribution about October 16.

"ORPHANS' HOME DAY" WILL BE FEATURED

A special program, in which recitations and extra musical features will make up part, is announced for the West End Baptist Sunday school tomorrow in celebration of "Orphans' Home" day, at which a Sunday school rally and roll call will be held.

The school, which A. R. Colcord is superintendent is working for an attendance of 1,000 scholars, and a regular collection of $400. All members of the school have been urged to attend and to bring a new scholar with them. An effort is also being made to have the parents of the enrollees attend, particularly on this Sabbath.

HOME-COMING DAY AT CAPITOL AVE. BAPTIST

Sunday will be Home-Coming day at the Capitol Avenue Baptist church. The pastor, Rev. William Russell Owen, has given away an endearing invitation. He will be in his pulpit Sunday and preach on "The Glory of a United Church." It is hoped that all who have been members of the church will pay a visit to the home church on Sunday.

Rally day will be observed in the Bible school. During this summer the attendance has been the best in the history of the church, Dr. Lincoln McConnell will speak at the rally.

Mr. Owen spent his vacation in Virginia and Maryland after a sea trip to Boston.

Special music will be rendered at both services. At night Mr. Owen will begin a series of sermons on the "Modern Meaning of the Lord's Prayer." The subjects are: October 5, "Our Father;" October 12, "Thy Kingdom Come;" October 19, "Thy Will Be Done;" October 26, "Our Daily Bread;" November 2, "Forgive Us Our Debts," and November 9, "Deliver Us From Temptation."

TWO AEROPLANE TOURS FROM PARIS PLANNED

Paris, October 3.—The National Aerial league has organized two great aeroplane tours.

The first will be from Paris to Cairo, Egypt, and the second from Paris to the Persian gulf.

The estimated 5,000-mile trip between Paris and Cairo will be attempted at the end of this month. The route will be by way of Vienna, Belgrade, Constantinople, Konieh, Aleppo, Jerusalem, Port Said and Heliopolis.

Large supplies of gasoline and lubricating oil were shipped today to Constantinople, thence it will be distributed to the control stations at points in the Orient, which will be placed about 200 miles apart.

OCEANS WILL NOT MEET IN THE PANAMA CANAL

Washington, October 3.—Widespread prevalance of the idea that there will be an actual union of the waters of the Atlantic and the Pacific upon the opening of the Panama canal, caused the war department to issue a statement today explaining the plain, prosaic facts that seawater on either side of the isthmus will get no further than the entrances of the great waterway.

"To those who know the engineering features," said the statement, "this idea is rather amusing, as so far as the canal is concerned the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific will never mingle. The Gatun lake, which is midway of the canal, has an elevation of 85 feet above the oceans, and water from this lake will only flow each way to the two oceans, the water from the lake being fresh and derived from the drainage of the surrounding area."

SOFT DRINK MAKERS ASK FEDERAL RULING

Washington, October 3.—The federal bureau of chemistry has been asked to determine what is the proper labeling of so-called "soft drinks" within the meaning of the pure food and drugs act.

The question was raised today by the National Association of Soda Water Manufacturers, who were given a hearing by Dr. Carl Alsberg, chief of the bureau of chemistry, at the conclusion of their annual meeting here. Ever since the enactment of the new pure food law the manufacturers have been in doubt as to what constituted carbonated non-alcoholic beverages and their correct labeling.

Just before adjourning today, the manufacturers elected these officers:

President, O. A. Atkins, Boston; vice president, C. O. Sothness, Chicago; secretary-treasurer, Edward Post, Philadelphia.

AMBASSADOR PAGE ARRIVES IN ITALY

FIVE DOCTORS INDICTED ON CHARGE OF CRUELTY

Philadelphia, October 3.—Five physicians engaged in research work at the University of Pennsylvania were indicted today on charges of cruelty to animals. The defendants are Drs. Alfred N. Richards, Allen J. Smith, Richard Mills Pearce, Alonzo Engelbert Taylor and Joshua A. Sweet. Members of the Women's Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals charged that after they had been used for vivisection experiments the injured animals were not properly cared for.

OCTOGENARIANS PLAN TO HOLD CONVENTION

Stroudsburg, Pa., October 3.—Monroe county octogenarians will hold a convention on October 16. Only those 80 years old or over are eligible to attend as delegates.

A spirited contest is promised in the election of a president, for which office there are three candidates. They are Emanuel Peck, 83 years old; Herbert Eike, 87, and Andrew Wrick, 96.

FRENCH ARMY OFFICER FLIES HEAD DOWNWARD

Lige, France, October 3.—Lieutenant Poulet, of the French army flying corps, today followed the example of Airman Pegoud by flying head-downward for several seconds in his aeroplane.

But These Were Enough to Prove the Merit of Cardui, The Woman's Tonic.

Cobden, Ill.—"Having used Cardui the woman's tonic, in my family, for a number of years," writes Mrs. Kate Metz, of this town, "and always with such good results, I feel it my duty to write you about it, so that you may publish my letter.

My mother is living with me, and she is 52 years old. For the last three or four years she has been troubled a great deal with cramping spells, and all kinds of stomach troubles. For days at a time, she would have a severe headache.

After reading the Ladies' Birthday Almanac, and seeing how much Cardui has helped other women who were sick and ailing, she decided to give it a trial. She began taking it, three times a day. Since then, she has been getting along simply fine.

Mother only used up four bottles of the Cardui, but she is no longer troubled with the severe headaches, and her stomach is so much stronger, that she can eat most anything. She is so glad for what Cardui did for her.

We both feel that any lady who is not feeling well, would be greatly benefited by the use of Cardui."

Try Cardui, for your troubles.

L. C. HOPKINS ANSWERS ATTACK ON CHARITIES

L. C. Hopkins, president of the Associated Charities, has issued an answer to the sensational charges brought by Rev. Hugh Wallace that the Associated Charities "spends $5 giving away $1." Mr. Hopkins advises the preacher to look into the methods employed by the Charities in their work before condemning the organization and its officers.

The reply of Mr. Hopkins is, in part, as follows:

"Mr. Wallace would have us drop our investigators, declaring that there is an enormous waste in the salaries for these workers. If the Associated Charities dropped its investigators, it could spend $500,000 a year in almsgiving and nine-tenths of it would be worse than wasted.

"That salary account! That absurd charge that the Charities spends $5 giving away $1! Are there still abroad in the land people who credit it? Are there still those left who, for little esteem the intelligence of the business men who have backed the Charities all these years as to think that they would stand for a waste like that?

"The executive committee considered Mr. Wallace's remarkable attack on the Associated Charities, and our first decision was that it did not merit a reply. But on second thought, we came to the opinion that if we let it pass some unthinking ones might possibly think it justified, and it is for that reason I have ventured to make this statement.

"Had Hugh Wallace declared last night that he never made the statement that the charity organizations spent $5 for every one they gave away.

"I should like to ask Mr. Hopkins where he got his information that I had made such a statement," said Rev. Wallace. "The fact of the matter is that I never mentioned such a subject. I did say that the most of the funds received by the associated Charities were expended in salaries for its officials. I may have said 'handsome' salaries, but I do not believe I did. All I ask now is that Mr. Hopkins give me the source of his information when he supposedly quotes me."

HOME-COMING DAY AT CAPITOL AVE. BAPTIST

Sunday will be Home-Coming day at the Capitol Avenue Baptist church, The pastor, Rev. William Russell Owen, has been away undergoing an operation. He will be in his pulpit Sunday and preach on "The Glory of a United Church." It is hoped that all who have been members of the church will pay a visit to the home church on Sunday.

Rally day will be observed on the Bible school. During this summer the attendance has been the best in the history of the church. Dr. Lincoln McConnell will speak at the rally.

Mr. Owen spent his vacation in Virginia and Maryland after a sea trip to Boston.

Special music will be rendered at both services. At night Mr. Owen will begin a series of sermons on the "Modern Meaning of the Lord's Prayer." The subjects are: October 5, "Our Father;" October 12, "Thy Kingdom Come;" October 19, "Thy Will Be Done;" October 26, "Our Daily Bread;" November 2, "Forgive Us Our Debts," and November 9, "Deliver Us From Temptation."

TWO AEROPLANE TOURS FROM PARIS PLANNED

Paris, October 2.—The National Aerial league has organized two great aeroplane tours.

The first will be from Paris to Cairo, Egypt, and the second from Paris to the Persian gulf.

The estimated 3,000-mile trip between Paris and Cairo will be attempted at the end of this month. The route will be by way of Vienna, Belgrade, Constantinople, Konieh, Aleppo, Jerusalem, Port Said and Heliopolis.

Large supplies of gasoline and lubricating oil were shipped today to Constantinople, thence it will be distributed to the control stations at points in the Orient, which will be placed about 200 miles apart.

OCEANS WILL NOT MEET IN THE PANAMA CANAL

Washington, October 3.—Widespread prevalance of the idea that there will be an actual union of the waters of the Atlantic and the Pacific upon the opening of the Panama canal, caused the war department to issue a statement today explaining the plain, prosaic facts that seawater on either side of the isthmus will get no farther than the entrances of the great waterway.

"The those who know the engineering features," said the statement, "this idea is rather amusing, as so far as the canal is concerned the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific will never mingle. The Gatun lake, which is midway of the canal, has an elevation of 85 feet above the oceans, and water from this lake will merely flow each way to the two oceans, the water from the lake being fresh and derived from the drainage of the surrounding area."

SOFT DRINK MAKERS ASK FEDERAL RULING

Washington, October 3.—The federal bureau of chemistry has been asked to determine what is the proper labeling of so-called "soft drinks" within the meaning of the pure food and drugs act.

The question was raised today by the National Association of Soda Water Manufacturers, who were given a hearing by Dr. Carl Alsberg, chief of the bureau of chemistry, at the conclusion of their annual meeting here. Ever since the enactment of the new pure food law the manufacturers have been in doubt as to what constituted carbonated non-alcoholic beverages and their correct labeling.

Just before adjourning today, the manufacturers elected these officers:

President, O. A. Atkins, Boston; vice president, C. O. Sothness, Chicago; secretary-treasurer, Edward Post, Philadelphia.

AMBASSADOR PAGE ARRIVES IN ITALY

Rome, October 2.—Thomas Nelson Page, the new United States ambassador to Italy, and Mrs. Page, arrived here today. They were met at the station by the staffs of the embassy and the consulate and a large number of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Page went to the Hotel Regina, where they occupy the royal apartment.

STATE PUBLICATION WILL BE LIVE ISSUE

Editor of Ontario Books Leading Speaker at Southern Educational Convention.

That the question of publication of school books by the state is to be a live issue in more of the southern states than one is indicated by the fact that Dr. J. J. Coggin, minister of education of the province of Ontario and editor of the text-books used in that province, has been secured as one of the leading speakers to address the Southern Educational association at its annual meeting to be held in Nashville, October 30 to November 1.

In this connection State Superintendent M. L. Brittain, who is president of the association, said Friday:

"Dr. Coggin has been given special leave of absence by his government in order that he may explain to southern readers the system in vogue in Ontario. Unusual interest will attach to this discussion, in view of the fact that the legislatures of several of the southern states are interesting themselves in what is known as the Ontario plan. There is no doubt that Dr. Coggin, more than anyone else, is preeminently qualified to explain the Ontario system.

"Congressman Richard Pearson Hobson will deliver an address on 'Federal Aid to Vocational Education,' a subject which is being considered by congress at this time.

Other Speakers.

"United States Commissioner of Education P. P. Claxton will deliver an address on 'The Education of the Farmers' Children.' Dr. Wheeler and Superintendent Evans, of Georgia; State Superintendent Sheats, of Florida; Governor, of North Carolina, as well as other leading educators from Maryland to Texas, will be present.

"The Right Kind of Education for the Southern Negro' will be an important topic handled by Jackson Davis, the most successful supervisor in the work in the south, and Dr. H. J. Willingham, of Alabama. Dr. H. Dilard will speak on the work of the Slater and Jeanes boards.

"The educational body is through heritage and annual gatherings the most well fitted to conduct the investigation that Dr. Coggin will carry out, to furnish the public with safe and sensible conclusions.

"The meeting will place upon a new basis the Southern Council of Education. This important body, which is expected to be the very center of the Southern Educational association, is composed of seven members from each southern state. These members are elected for a period of years, though successors are chosen for non-attendance. This body will meet at 4 o'clock on October 30 in the assembly room of the Hermitage hotel.

"At the close of the meeting on Saturday afternoon arrangements have been made for an excursion to the Hermitage, the historic home of Andrew Jackson, 12 miles from Nashville. The expense of this trip will not exceed $1, and it will be an excellent opportunity to visit this famous shrine.

"The programs will be ready for distribution about October 10.

"ORPHANS' HOME DAY" WILL BE FEATURED

A special program, in which recitations and extra musical features will make up part, is announced for the West End Baptist Sunday school tomorrow in celebration of "Orphans' Home" day, at which a Sunday school rally and roll call will be held.

The school of which A. R. Colcord is superintendent is working for an attendance of 1,000 today, and a regular collection of $400. All members are asked to bring a new scholar with them. An effort is also being made to have the parents of the children attend, particularly on this Sabbath.

BONDED WAREHOUSES FOR STORING COTTON

An important conference was held in the office of Commissioner of Agriculture James D. Price yesterday on the subject of cotton tare. Participating in the conference besides Mr. Price there were Charles S. Barrett, president of the farmers' union, and R. C. Neely, a prominent planter and merchant of Waynesboro.

It was pointed out that the present extravagant system cost the farmer in the neighborhood of $3 per bale. The only remedy that was suggested was a system of bonded warehouses, with government weighers and samplers, who could furnish a guarantee as to weight and standardization of the cotton handled.

OCTOGENARIANS PLAN TO HOLD CONVENTION

Stroudsburg, Pa., October 3.—Monroe county octogenarians will hold a convention on October 20. Only those 80 years old or over are eligible to attend as delegates.

FIGHT ON REGRADING OF WHITEHALL FAILS

All Arrangements Complete and Streets Committee Declines to Change Plans.

With W. F. Winecoff acting as spokesman, a delegation representing merchants on Whitehall street who are opposed to starting the regrading on October 15 as intended, appeared before council's street committee yesterday afternoon.

The request made of the committee was that the work be delayed until spring, it being urged that to start on October 15 will mean a great loss to the merchants during the holiday season.

The committee declined to reopen the discussion. Chairman Hall informed the merchants that all the plans for starting the work on October 15 have been completed. The objecting merchants were reminded that President Arkwright had made all the arrangements for directing the street cars through other routes and explained that even though the committee felt inclined to reopen the matter it would be futile for the reason that the county has made all arrangements to start on October 15, and the money which the city has agreed to spend is available this year only and cannot be carried over into the next year.

"However, if the merchants have any new arguments against starting the work the committee will be glad to hear them," Chairman Hall stated.

The only argument offered was that the work will retard trade during the holidays. Councilman T. L. Lyndy, of the second ward, whose constituents are largely interested in Whitehall street, informed the opponents of the regrading project that he has been told that the work will not take more than six weeks to perform.

Captain Clayton told the delegation that it is the intention of the county and city to put down a cheap concrete pavement, using the old street cars temporarily, and the sidewalks will not be interfered with until after the holidays.

MORE BEER DRINKERS SOUGHT BY BREWERS

Atlantic City, October 3.—"The object we are seeking to attain is not to get people to drink more beer, but to get more people to drink beer," declared Jacob Ruppert, of New York, addressing the convention of the United States Brewers' association here today. The convention will consider a plan to continue the fight against prohibition.

ATLANTA AND SUBURBS HAVE 225,000 PEOPLE

Increase of Nearly 10,000 Shown by Figures Compiled for City Directory.

According to an estimate made Friday by J. W. Hill, director of the census, the new directory of Atlanta, now being compiled, when finished, show a population for the city and suburbs of nearly 225,000. This will mean an increase of approximately 10,000 over the figure of 216,000 shown last year.

Mr. Hill stated that the increase is an unique one, in that the widening of the business section is throwing hundreds upon hundreds into the suburbs, many of which are outside the corporate limits of the city. During the past year, the rapid growth in the number of business houses has compelled families to find new residences, and there was no place to move but to the suburbs.

Another reason for the exodus of families to the outlying districts is said to be the smoke nuisance. Which has, however, been somewhat abated since the passage of the smoke ordinances.

"While there is a much larger number of residents than will be shown in the compiled directory, most of them live in boarding houses and hotels, and are declared by the proprietors and managers to be transient, and therefore cannot be included in the census," said Mr. Hill.

DAUGHTER GETS $1,250 AND HER FATHER $350

J. H. Stephens, whose daughter, Maud Stephens, aged 16, recently recovered $1,250 from the Gate City cotton mills for alleged injuries to her hand, was awarded $350 yesterday in the city court before Judge H. M. Reid for the loss of his daughter's services following the accident.

The plaintiff, who was represented by Attorneys Dorsey, Sheiton & Dorsey, contended that the girl, whom he had hired out to the mill people, had been accustomed to working at one of the looms where she replenished empty bobbins, and that she was shifted to a strange machine and not taught to handle it. The accident then followed, he says, in which the child's hand was caught in a hot rollers and mashed and burned.

The mills, represented by Attorneys Smith, Hammond & Smith, pleaded that the girl had been given instruction in the new machine and that the accident resulted from her carelessness. The date of the accident is given as December 5, 1911.

ONLY FOLLOWED LAW, SAYS JUDGE JORDAN

Justice Inclined to Treat Lightly Sensational Attack on Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Miller, Jr.

Termed a man "with no regard for the law and with an armed band of pirates operating under him, who prey upon the defenseless by a show of fire arms, slingshots and handcuffs and terrorize the unfortunate into accepting settlements, and generally come under cover of darkness," Justice of the Peace W. T. Jordan made reply yesterday afternoon that in issuing the attachment referred to, he had only followed out the law, as had his constable, D. S. Sutton, who levied upon the property.

The bitter attack upon Justice Jordan and his constable was made in an injunction suit brought by Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Miller, Jr., through their attorneys, Robert C. & Philip H. Alston, before Judge George L. Bell, of the superior court.

$1,500 of Goods Seized.

It is claimed in the suit that on August 18 the constable came to their home at 807 West Peachtree street while they were visiting in Commerce, Ga., and took away $1,500 worth of household goods to satisfy a $67 levy made by S. Scott. The sale of the goods was temporarily halted and Judge Bell appointed Sheriff C. W. Mangum as receiver.

The Millers claim that the property had already been sold to R. Bernard, an auctioneer, and that they had informed the justice of the peace before the levy was carried out.

Judge Jordan, through his attorneys, Gober & Jackson, also made the point that the injunction suit was worthless, as there is a law requiring a month's notice before a justice can be sued. He says that for this reason the suit will be thrown out of court.

Seized Too Much Property.

The Millers state in their petition that constable Sutton seized more property than was needed to satisfy the small debt, and also that one piece of property, a $130 shotgun, has been lost and that the original papers in the case cannot be found. They also declare that the bond made to authorize the levy was worthless.

Judge Jordan was inclined to treat the matter rather lightly when seen by a Constitution report Friday afternoon. He declared that Scott was a reliable citizen, and had made the required bond and that all he could do was to authorize the attachment, which, he understood, was for a grocery bill. He also said that his constable had only done his duty in seizing the property, "as the attachment showed," continued Judge Jordan, "that the Millers were absconding, and concealing themselves, resisting legal arrest and were causing their property to be removed beyond the limits of the state.

Didn't Complain to Me.

"The charge that Mr. Scott was not solvent and did not make a legal bond is all the charge against me. And the plaintiffs in this petition had not complained to me, and if their attorneys were seeking the rights of their clients it would be better for them to keep to themselves their wonderful rhetoric which they have given out and which doubtless affords them relief and to familiarize themselves with the law.

"In section 4652 of the code the law says: 'No suit shall be brought against a justice for anything done by him in the execution of his office until notice shall have been given him or left at his usual place of abode one calendar month.'

"Mr. Sutton is a regularly elected constable of my district, and, as far as I have been able to find out, is an honorable man. This is the first complaint that has ever been brought to my mind against him."

NAVAL STORES STOCK IS BOUGHT BY MYERS

Savannah Men Secure Eastern and Foreign Interests of Defunct Concern.

Savannah, Ga., October 3.—(Special.) Of interest to the naval stores trade all over the world was the announcement made in Savannah today that J. F. Cooper Myers and associates had bought the eastern and foreign interests of the American Naval Stores company.

Mr. Myers, who was formerly vice president of the defunct American, is one of the organizers of the Standard Naval Stores company, which recently entered the trade here. The sale of the business of the American east of Pittsburg and Buffalo and abroad is an important development in the liquidation policy of the moribund concern.

President M. A. O'Byrne announces that the headquarters of the old company will be retained in Savannah and the task of liquidating the assets will be directed as before. The sale of the business becomes effective October 1.

SHATTERED ROMANCE LEADS TO A LAWSUIT BY SAVANNAH WOMAN

Savannah, Ga., October 3.—(Special.) Alleging that Francis S. Greene, formerly of this city, "sought to make a personal profit of her confidence," and that he "professed great love and affection for her and promised to marry her immediately," despite the fact that she was 30 years his senior, Mrs. Hannah S. Whildin, a wealthy widow, once living at Thunderbolt, has brought suit in the superior court to recover a cottage and lot at Thunderbolt from Greene.

The plaintiff states that since May, 1911, she gave to the defendant $29,453.66 in cash and property, which includes the value of the cottage and lot, which, she states, the defendant obtained from her by fraudulent means.

This suit is the end of a shattered romance which began three years ago, Mrs. Whildin, widow of William Whildin, who is said to have lived in Camden, N. J., was evidently infatuated with Francis S. Greene until the latter came on February 16, 1912, in New Orleans.

BIG LOTTERY SWINDLE IN PORTO RICO STOPPED

New York, October 3.—Colonel George R. Colton, governor of Porto Rico, expected to arrive late today on his way to Washington, bearer of a report on the recent suppression of a lottery swindle on the island, according to private messages which have been received here.

It is said that the recent arrest of Manuel Corsecle, a rich merchant, as the alleged head of lottery traffic, has dealt a death blow to the lottery evil and checked a fraud which has taken from the insular people nearly $2,000,000 a year.

For three years the insular police have been trying to run down the Porto Rican manager and agents of a Santo Domingo concern which has been selling lottery tickets in Porto Rico.

Governor Colton, who retires from the governorship next month, is understood to be taking to Washington a complete report of the raids and the evidence which they furnish.

ROAD SUPERVISORS SAVING OF MONEY

Patterson Says Would Net $15,000 Annually Besides Giving Impetus to Road Building.

The impression seems to have been given currency throughout the state by those who are opposed to the appointment of state road supervisors by the prison commission that a great deal of extra expense would be involved in the change.

The reverse is the case and so far from the supervisors being an additional expense to the state, they would mean the saving of about $15,000 per annum, according to a statement made Friday by Judge T. E. Patterson, a member of the prison commission.

"The proposition is," said Judge Patterson, "to substitute for the five inspectors now employed, at salaries of about $225 per month and expenses, four expert civil engineers who shall act as road supervisors at salaries of $150 per month.

"I have here on my desk now a letter from one chairman of a county board who, while he is highly in favor of expert engineers in supervising road building, is opposed to the project because he believes it would involve an expenditure of $40,000 per year to the state. He thinks that this expense should be borne by the counties and that each county should be compelled to pay for the engineer for the time that he is employed.

Will Save Money.

"He entirely misconstrues the plan. We would substitute for the inspectors expert road supervisors at a cost, which I estimate to be about $15,000 per year less than we are now paying.

"Now while the law distinctly provides for the appointment of supervisors, there is no provision, so far as I can find it, for inspectors. That work can be done by the prison commission and I believe it should be so done.

"In place of inspectors to look after the county convicts, we will take over that work ourselves, should my plan be adopted, and we will give to each of the counties, using convicts, free of charge, the expert advice of a road engineer for a certain number of days in each year.

"I believe that by so doing we would carry out the spirit and intent of the law and furnish an impetus to good road building which has not been known in the state since the convict lease system was abolished and the convicts set to work on the roads."

GREEK BADLY CUT BY ENRAGED NEGRO IN A LOCKED ROOM

Battling with an enraged negro in a locked room, Christopher Liapis, a Greek weiner vender, last night was severely slashed about the throat and head while a helpless crowd of pedestrians gazed at the bloody scene through the windows of a store at 58 North Forsyth street.

The wounded man was carried to the Grady hospital. His assailant, a burly negro, escaped and is being hunted by the police. The fight grew out of an argument over payment for a weiner which the negro had bought from Liapis.

Liapis charged the negro had not paid. As the black walked away, the Greek followed. The negro ran into the store at No. 58, Liapis behind him. As the latter entered the door the negro slammed it to, locking it with a catch lock.

The negro pulled a wicked knife and advanced upon the white man. Liapis swung a chair, breaking it down heavily on the negro's head. As he did, the negro leaped upon him, inflicting several deep gashes in his head and throat.

A crowd of pedestrians, attracted to the scene by the Greek's incoherent jabbering, gazed on helplessly, unable to get through the door. As Liapis fell to the floor, the negro escaped through a window.

Many Government Jobs.

Secretary Jennings, of the civil service commission for the fifth district, announces an examination on Wednesday, October 22, for a medical interne, in his offices in the Atlanta federal building. From the examination a selection will be made for assignment to the government hospital for the insane at Washington, D. C., the pay being $900 per annum with maintenance. On Monday, October 27, the secretary will hold an examination for an associate physicist in theoretical and experimental optics, for males only, for assignment to the bureau of standards, department of commerce, at Washington, D. C., with a salary of $2,500. Monday, November 3, an examination will be held by Secretary Jennings to secure an assistant director for assignment to a position in the office of public roads, department of agriculture, with a salary of $1,500 a year.

Big Calendar in U. S. Court.

The United States district court for the northern district of Georgia, with Judge Newman presiding, will open its regular fall term Monday with one of the largest criminal calendars it has shown in years. But none of the cases booked for trial are of importance, because all are for violations of the internal revenue laws. There will be something like half a hundred of these cases to occupy the attention of the court.

New Furniture In Old Styles

You have gone into homes where even the furniture seemed to bid you welcome and make you at ease at once.

What kind of furniture was it?

Was it overly decorated? No.

Was it garish? No.

Was the table of one style, the chairs of another? No.

Rather, did not the room reflect a harmonious whole, with every piece of the same style? And was not that style one of simple lines, decorated, perhaps, but not in a showy, gaudy fashion?

Solid, strong, warm-hearted—furniture built as the old masters used to build it.

The new stocks that now fill our furniture store are made up of just such furniture.

True styles, sturdily built, graceful, fitting for the best traditions of southern homes—and as inexpensive as furniture that is worthy of the name can be made.

Are you planning to have new furniture this season?

Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company

The football season is now well under way and practically every team of note in the south, east and west plays a game today.

WHIFFS

Dope It Out.

WE HAVE heard all kinds of arguments why the Giants are going to win the world's series by reason of their pugnacious pitching staff, but why the Athletics are going to cop because of their heavier hitting ability, they can't sizzle up the players on both teams man for man, it is our humble opinion that the team that gets the breaks during the series will be the one to cop. On paper they look like a swell matched set to give figures to show which one will cop.

The Hunch.

THEREFORE it is a straight out hunch that made us predict the Giants a while back and we stick to that prediction. Everything is pretty equal, the Giants are due to get the breaks because what few there were in 1911 and 1912 went against them. In 1911, it was Baker's homer and every one admits that a homer is a "break." In 1912 it was errors at critical times—same dope. Mathematically, the Giants are due. So there you are.

Better Line.

AFTER today's football games one will be able to get a better line on the prospects of the football teams of the country, though we expect the public is not going to pay much attention to what the football teams are playing or not until after the world's series is over.

For Hard Work.

THE COACHES announce that their teams are now ready for hard work. They have been plugging steadily along for the past three weeks or a month now and if they get a closely contested game today, it will make or break the elevens for the season. From today forward, the road will be rough until the curtain comes down Thanksgiving Day.

Was Expected.

WALTER JOHNSON has signed his contract with the Washington Americans. This was expected. No one believed that Johnson would become a holdout, as every one knew that Clark Griffith would grant any reasonable demand that the big twirler would make and Johnson's spirit and fair play is too highly developed for him to make an unreasonable demand. It is said that he signed for $12,500, Johnson's opinion of his worth is modest even at that figure, but it was his own figure that the club accepted and it probably was. The only room for argument probably was that Johnson only wanted a one year contract while Griffith wanted to sign him up for a long term. But Griff sensibly did not stress the point any. Without Johnson, the Washington club would be like a ship without a rudder.

Unanimous Choices.

IN DOPING out the probable twirlers for the opening game of the series between the Athletics and the Giants, the consensus of opinion seems to be that Bender will work for the Athletics. On the Giants' side of the argument, both Mathewson and Marquard are being considered. But to many Matheson and Bender are being doped to renew their duels of two former world's series.

Given Raise.

CHICK GANDIL'S work on the initial cushion for the Griff nine brought forth merited commendation. The big first sacker has been given a raise in salary and a contract for three years. It is understood that he will receive $18,000 for the period. Aside from Johnson, Gandil is the most valuable asset the Senators possess.

On World's Trip.

HURLING HUB Purdue, the Gallatin Squash, former Nashville, twirler and at present a member of the Boston Braves, is going to be a member of the pitching staff of McGraw's Giants on their trip around the world with the Chicago White Sox. Hub has posted Charlie Comiskey, the diminutive shortstop of the Braves, will also make the trip, it is said.

Of Real Interest.

THE FOOTBALL game that will create the most interest in Atlanta today is the one between Georgia and Auburn at Auburn. This is by reason of the fact that both Mercer and Auburn meet Tech in Atlanta, and the latter also meets Georgia in Atlanta. Today's score will give the local fans a line on what to expect in the future.

A New Nickname.

WHIFF'S proposes a nickname for Albert Loeb, the little center of the Tech Yellow Jackets.

he will be referred to in these columns as "Grit" Loeb. That ought to be his middle name anyway, as he football player in the south, regardless of his weight or size, possesses more of this necessary attribute to a successful football player than Loeb. Albert Loeb weighs scarcely over 150 pounds, but the way this little fighter plays it never plays is worth 50 pounds more to the team.

TECH HIGH TO PLAY AT STONE MOUNTAIN

Tech High will play their first game on the gridiron today when they journey down to Stone Mountain to play the university boys.

Stone Mountain is in the Atlanta Prep league, but this is not a scheduled league game, however, it will be in the nature of a practice game for both teams.

Tech High has some team this year and should set the league afire with the class of ball that they will put up. Eighteen men will be sent to Stone Mountain and the probable line-up that Captain Jim Parks will send in is as follows: Redell and Weston, halfs; Myers, full; Parks, quarter; Ross Clair and DeLaney, ends; Goodyear and Kellar, tackles; Bloomer and Thompson, guards, and Sandmon, center.

October 4—U. S. B. at Stone Mountain.

October 11—Rome Athletic club at Rome.

October 25—Locus Grove institute at Locus Grove, Ga.

Analysis of Playing Strength Of the World's Series Rivals On Their Work This Season

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the last of the series of articles written exclusively for The Constitution on the American League, analysing the work of the rivals in the world's series.

S. SUMMARY OF ALL FACTORS.

By Irwin M. Howe.

Having scrutinized the records of all the eligible members of both clubs that have any reasonable chance to take part in the championship games, let us total up as best we can what we have. Before doing this I want to make a slight correction in the article on the Athletic pitchers. To-wit, the omission of Shotten, Gandil and Bodie were unintentionally incorrect, but, luckily, it was found that Shotten's batting averages against the Mack crew did not alter the figures as printed a single point.

In looking over the figures that have been compiled in this way, we find that, on the whole, the Athletics loom up a trifle stronger. Oldring is a better man than any of the Giant gardeners, Murphy and Murray to-day equally, and Walsh or Strunk and Burns a degree about the same. This leaves Philadelphia with whatever advantage Oldring's superior hitting and speed did all around may be. This is not a good deal in a short series but it is a trifle.

With the infields one does not disparage the ability of Barkle, Doyle, Fletcher, Herzog and Shafer. In the statement that all things considered, they do not equal the remarkable infield they succeeded to meet. Here Quakers have everything, youth, speed, hitting power, machine-like precision and above all, intelligence of the highest order. In all these traits they excel their rivals to a considerable degree.

Meyers Gives Edge.

The fact that Meyers will, unless injured, do all the catching for New York, gives the Giants an advantage back of the plate. He is clearly superior to Thomas, Lapp or Schang. There is only one Meyers on the field at any time, and as the particular points where one of the other of them may equal or excel the Indian, their combined sums of excellence never be noted.

The National league champions seem to have the best of it on the slab by a very small margin. It will not be surprising if Connie Mack's genius gives this out during the games. In fact, I rather expect him to do this. Just how will be explained further on.

Bender may be expected to open the series for the Athletics and, unless evidence to the contrary is forthcoming, he will be opposed by Mathewson. If he shows good form he may be worked again until the fifth game which, barring bad weather, will be played on Friday. If Brown works the second game he will also be ready to come back for the fourth contest, thus making it possible to pitch Plank the second time until the beginning of the second week of the series. Unless some such order of rotation as this is followed Mack will undoubtedly certainly try to get through one game, win or lose, with Shawkey, Houck, Bush and possibly Pennock this point being that his three regulars will thus have an additional day to rest and that they can enter each game in top form as they are then placed in opposition to even terms with the New York twirlers, even though three games out of three for the Athletics. Once this fact is accomplished the heavier hitting of the Mack crew should make the series in their favor.

Brown v. Tesreau.

I consider Brown as good a pitcher as Tesreau and think he will be the first of the Athletic hurlers to start here. Certainly the latter team has been able to make much headway against him and he has the strength to come back on the second day. Tesreau right now looks to be nearly improved over anything he showed last season and if he is expected to last nine innings against the slugging Philadelphia batters it will be well for him to retain his present form as nearly as possible. His showing against Boston was not at all impressive and the six-run load with which he started in the game he won was none too large. Marquard will be hard to beat; if Plank gets away with his knee-cap and he starts against Marquard—he will need all his old-time skill.

Mack has no one besides Bender, Plank and Brown who would seem to have an even chance against Demaree. If he does not hold Philadelphia to a very few games then there is no Virtues in past performances.

There is one last point for fans to consider, the Athletics have never been pushed, never offended this season. They led from the beginning and though Cleveland traveled a fast pace for several months the leaders never threatened to overtake them. Neither Bush and Houck has, with help now and then from Bender, been winning games all season long and as a result Plank and Bender have never been worried or overworked. This makes it altogether probable that these two will be ready October 7 to pitch two games each as well as they have ever done it after a moderate time to rest.

It has been said by certain interested persons that some of the players would be more likely to "show" at critical moment arrives because they have been overworked or rotate as the latter seems to me to be very little force in the Philadelphia outfield. Each one of the championship series has bristled with the brilliant performances of some one who theretofore had been held in light esteem. Dougherty, Bodie, Hofman, Overall, Adams, Bedient and Yerkes are a few examples. There need be little worry how Burns, Shafer, Walsh or Murphy acquit themselves.

Giants' Strength.

New York's strength lies in the superior quality of its pitchers and a catching staff to correspond. Meyers will undoubtedly work, but not as steadily as their opponents. They have Schang, Rariden and Wilson to turn to, one of the three will be ready to use for the hit and run and spectacular base running play it is altogether the best team McGraw has had.

In my judgment the Athletics are also the stronger combination of players on the slab than they were two years ago, and with three such workmen to start with as Bender, Plank and Brown they are not exactly helpless there. They showed considerably stronger in 1911 than they did in 1912 and of that difference still is visible in the figures.

The statistical moves of each leader will be a delight to watch, be certain that the experts will have the consolation of saying to himself that he was beaten by a stronger team.

Abolishing World's Series Idea Is Broached Again

New York, October 3—This year may be the last to see a world's series, according to interesting baseball rumors in many quarters agitation for the abandonment of a world's championship each fall and the substitution of an inter-league post season series, in which all of the three major league clubs could share has been going on for some time, and according to the reports here, at least one of the three members of the National baseball combination is heartily in favor of it. It is said that August Herrmann, chairman of the commission and owner of the Cincinnati club, has broached the idea, with a plan that the major league seasons be reduced to 112 games in each league to be followed by an inter-league schedule of 64 games, by which each National League team would play four games at home and four abroad with each American League team. The total winning percentage for the two schedules might determine which of the two leagues is supreme.

The present dispute between members of the New York and Philadelphia teams, who will be parties to the championship fight this year, and the national commission because of the prohibiting series players have given newspaper stories has given rise to the agitation for the abandonment of the big series after this year.

Those arguing for such action point out that each of the major league clubs only four have shared in the world's series profits since 1909.

Giants Win and Tie.

New York, October 3.—New York won the first game of a double-header with Philadelphia, 13 to 2, while the second game resulted in a four-to-four tie, called at the end of the ninth inning.

The champions hammered Camnitz and Pfeister in the first game and the Quakers could do little with Tesreau's delivery.

In the second game Manager McGraw sent in a team of substitutes, according to Dooin dependend on a makeshift team in both games.

Snodgrass played first base during a part of the first game and fielded his position well. Doyle seemed to have recovered from his injury.

Steady work by Rudolph and excellent fielding enabled the Boston team to win the first contest. Boston also had a good start in the first inning of the second game, Schmidt's home run over the rightfield fence sending two men in ahead of him. Sweeney drove in two runs with a single in the fifth inning and repeated the performance in the seventh.

G. M. A. 44; Marietta High 0.

On a dusty afternoon on the G. M. A. campus the varsity eleven made its first the first time this season in a regular game and defeated a team composed of players from the Marietta High and the Boys Scouts 44 to 0. The game was replete with new football, forward passes, triple forwards, and tricks of the latest order.

GEORGIA READY FOR ALA. PREDS

Cunningham's Red and Black Warriors Play Their First Game Today—Line-Up Uncertain.

Athens, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—The Red and Black squad engaged in a long signal drill this afternoon in preparation for the game with Mead tomorrow with the Alabama Presbyterian college as their opponents.

Every one is in good shape with the exception of Paddock, Carlisle and Malone, none have not been in practice long enough to stand the wear of a long game, but it is more than likely that they will get in part of it.

The line-up for the game is uncertain, but it will probably be as follows: Delamerter, center; Brown and Conyers, guard; Henderson and Turner, tackles; Thompson and Hitchcock, ends; Dorsey, quarter; McWhorter and Carey, halfs, and Cornwell, full.

All the prospective varsity regulars and subs will get a chance during the game if the opposition is not too strong.

MERCER CLASHES WITH DONAHUES

Baptists Open Football Season Against Auburn in Auburn—Latter Rules the Favorite.

Auburn, Ala., October 3.—(Special.)—Auburn and Mercer open the season's football seasons here Saturday by playing each other in a game that promises to be warmly contested.

The local eleven rules as the favorite in the game, by reason of superior weight, speed and experience. Much interest centers in the game locally, as Lewis Hardage, former Auburn and Vanderbilt star, was just recently named coach of the Baptists.

Auburn will line up with Bell, center, where he played in most of the early games last year. The two backfield weights Lockwood and Thigpen, will look after the guard positions. Hastings will start in at left tackle and Culpepper at right, while Stead will be ready to go in at either center or tackle. Wyman, Randolph and Hastings ends with Houston ready to substitute for either. Arnold will play fullback position. This lineup is also the strongest and ought to give a good account of itself.

INTRODUCING PLAYERS

FOR WORLD SERIES

EDITOR'S NOTE—Under this head The Constitution will give daily a brief sketch of the career of the players of the rival teams in the approaching world's series.

15. JOHN J. BARRY.

John J. Barry, shortstop, was born April 26, 1887, at Meriden, Conn.; he weighs 160 pounds and is 5 feet 9 inches in height. Barry went to Holy Cross college, Worcester, Mass., where he soon gained prominence and attracted the attention of several major league managers. Connie Mack was the fortunate man and he soon secured Barry's name to a contract in 1908. Barry had played every infield position at Holy Cross, but Mack soon discovered that Barry was a natural shortstop and placed him there. Barry is a right-handed thrower and hitter.

QUERIES ANSWERED

Under this head, the sporting editor will endeavor to answer all questions pertaining to all branches of sports.

Giants, by reason of superior pitching and because mathematically they are due.

Jackets Play Citadel Team; Game Starts at 3 O'Clock; Tech Has a Changed Line-up

CITADEL ALUMNI WILL ATTEND GAME IN BODY

Fred J. Cooledge, jr., secretary of the Citadel alumni association in Atlanta, asks that all the alumni of the Charleston college communicate with him before going to the tech game this afternoon.

It is Mr. Cooledge's plan to have all the alumni meet at some given point and attend the game in a body, rooting for their alma mater.

After a week of strenuous work, brought to a close yesterday afternoon with a short scrimmage and a long signal drill, the Tech Yellow Jackets will sweer ready for their second game of the season today.

Citadel college, of Charleston, S. C., will be the opponents of the local eleven, and praises be to the weather gods, they are expected to themselves to the utmost to win.

The South Carolinians will probably be lighter than the Jackets, but what they lack in this they will make up in speed and tricks. They are said to be the best opponents of the successful use of the forward pass in the south. They are at the head of many of them today.

Game at 3 O'Clock.

The game will start promptly at 3 o'clock, instead of at 3:30, as advertised as it is printed on the bulletin in the windows of the business houses of the city.

The Jackets will present a changed line-up this afternoon, and the fans will then have an idea just what they may expect of the team and its personnel in future games.

Albert Loeb, the gritty little center of the Jackets, is the only one missing the ball again, relieving the bugbear occasioned by the lack of classy varsity material for this place.

Means and Lang, who started at guard against the soldiers, will start against Citadel today. Nance and Rainey at tackles.

At the ends there will be one change. Jim Preas will handle the left wing of the line, with Dorsey or Chatman, both of whom started the game against the soldiers, handling the right end.

Cook and McDonald will continue at halfs, and Talley Johnson, the Chattanooga boy, who played quarter last season will be seen at the fullback position. Either Tyler, Montague or Lucas will take Johnson's place at quarter.

Patten Not Ready.

Jene Patten, the Baylor star, may be well enough to get into the game, but it is very doubtful. He has been out in uniform for a few days, but has not been in any hard scrimmages, only signal drills.

If Jene is able to play, he will get into the game at the quarterback position, though Captain Cook will continue to call signals from his position at halfback.

This game will be a test affair for the Jackets, and several promising players, candidates for every position, will be tried out during the game, that is, provided, of course, the Citadel crowd does not make the regular lineup extend itself to the utmost.

This game will not only decide the fate of several near varsity candidates but will also have a tendency regarding the scrubs for the remainder of the season. With this knowledge, the promising varsity men are going to battle their hardest, then they are given a chance to get into action.

Citadel's line-up is unknown, but she has several stars that have played two or three years and know the game backwards. It ought to be a very evenly contested battle.

ATHLETICS 15, YANKS 10;
YANKS 3, ATHLETICS 1

Philadelphia, October 3.—This was an unfortunate day for the Philadelphia champions, because the weather was too cold and blustry for their pitchers to get into anything up for the world's series, and unfortunate because Orr, the first substitute infielder, had early last year. The two boys, Philadelphia won the first game by 13 to 10, and New York the second, which was called on account of darkness at the end of the fifth inning. Orr's injury was received in the second game when he was forced to run around, when he called third in the fourth inning. Hartzell's injury was received in the first game, one of the bones fractured. This was the second casualty of the series with New York. Catcher Schang having had his hand hurt by a foul tip yesterday. Plank and Shawkey, who are believed to be Manager Mack's second and third choices for pitching in the world's series, did not look good in today's opening game. They probably was likely due to the cold, high wind. Plank pitched three innings and in the second session was touched up for three hits and two runs. Shawkey was also touched up for four hits in the sixth inning, in which two runs were scored. Shawkey gave two passes, but was hit safely three times. In the ninth inning, after the bases were filled on an infield single and two passes, Shawkey was relieved, forced in two runners by giving two more passes, and Bush was then conceded by Bush.

Ray Keating, victory was due to hard hitting off Caldwell's delivery. Fifteen hits, including two home runs, were made by Philadelphia, while Caldwell gave a number of passes.

In the second game Manager Mack put in a brand-new team, consisting of Quinn, Bender and Daley, Walsh and Davis.

New York will again play Philadelphia tomorrow, when it is expected Manager McGraw will get their final preparation for the world's series.

Washington October 3.—By breaking even in their double-header here this day, Washington clinched second place and Boston fourth in the National League race. The Red Sox took the first game, 2 to 0, mainly through the airtight pitching of Leonard, who held the locals to two hits. Shaw, a Washington recruit from Yale, was also hit hard.

The second game became a farce before it was half finished. Moseley was wild and ineffective and allowed five runners. Hooper and Lewis, outfielders in turn relieved him. The former went two innings and held the locals scoreless, while Lewis was hit for a double and two singles.

WONDERFUL RACE AT MOTORDROME

Ten-Mile Event the Greatest Race Ever Run on a Motorcycle Track—The New Riders Prove Stars.

Atlanta motorcycle fans who failed to attend the races at the local motordrome last night, missed the best races that have ever been staged on a board motorcycle track.

The 10-miles final of the Billy Smith sweepstakes was the greatest race ever staged on anybody's track. Four men, Swarts, Luther, Lewis and Bruggerman entered and for the forty laps, they were so closely bunched that at no stage of the race could any one tell who would win.

Swartz led from the start, but Bruggerman challenged him on every lap, but could not quite pass him. Several times he got abreast, and when Swartz tried to pocket him, Bruggerman showed that he was no novice at the game, by the headwork he exhibited.

Riding at a 90-mile-an-hour clip, when Swarts tried to ride the Denver lad up the track, Bruggerman would extend his elbows and force Swartz back down the boards, with the crowd yelling itself horse at the impending fall, which never resulted. Luther rode a great race, beating Bruggerman out on the last lap. The three leaders were scarcely a half a length apart.

Flickenstein, the new rider from Denver, was the hit of the evening. He took the measure of Tex Richards, the most popular rider at the local track, every time they raced. Flickenstein has the "bot" and he knows how to ride it. He won every event he entered.

By defeating Richards in the final of the Motordrome purse, Flickenstein kept the latter from winning the handsome silver trophy offered by Bill Stoddard for the rider winning the finals three times. Richards had won it twice previously.

The motordrome management is to be congratulated for going through with their program as announced, despite the cool weather and the poor crowd that was out. In the future the meets will probably be held in the afternoon. A continuance of such sport as was furnished last night and the speed fans are sure to be out in force.

The results:

MOTORDROME PURSE.

JEANNETTE WINNER OVER THE TAR BABY

New York, October 3.—Joe Jennette outpointed Sam Langford in a ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight. The two negro heavyweights weighed: Jeannette 195 and Langford 199½ pounds.

Jeannette was in superb condition, while his opponent did not appear as well rounded. Langford's weight began to tell upon him in the latter part of the contest. Jeannette outboxed the man in the first three rounds, using a left jab to the face to good advantage. The men fought hard at close range at times and both suffered severe body punishment.

In the fourth Langford showed his best. Heavy rights and lefts to the head rocked Jeannette, forcing him to clinch. Jeannette began to forge ahead again in the next round, but strong blows to the body brought the round to an even break when Jeannette was again forced to hold to avoid punishment.

Langford's exertions began to tell on him in the sixth round, and in an effort to bring the contest to quick close to avoid a loss on points, he tried hard to send his right over to the jaw. Jeannette's clever foot work stood him in good stead, however, and he was able to keep away from Langford's wild swings, one of which grazed his jaw.

There were no knock downs in the fight, which was less rough than the last engagement of the men in this city.

In the first round Jeannette slipped to the floor, but was up immediately.

INDIANAPOLIS CLUB SOLD

Denver Moguls Buy American Association Team.

Indianapolis, October 3.—The Indianapolis American association baseball club was sold here late today by Sol Meyer, owner, to James C. McGill, George A. Nahlgreen, and Jack Hendricks, of Denver. The purchase price, said to be $165,000, is declared to be the largest ever paid for a minor league organization.

The disposal of the franchise by Mr. Meyer comes after a year of futile effort to build up a winning aggregation. He became owner during the summer of 1912, and that season and the one just ended the team finished in last place in the association race. Since 1908, when the local team won the association pennant baseball from an Indianapolis stand point has been disappointing and attendance has been poor.

The negotiations were opened in midsummer when Mr. McGill stopped here on a trip east. The season just finished was particularly displeasing to the owner.

The Indianapolis players, individually good men, could not play together and lost regularly. Mr. McGill for years has been the president of the Denver team of the Western League. He and his associates expect to begin work at once toward building up the local team.

ELECTROSCOPE WILL BE RUN AT THE ORPHEUM

Jake Wells has arranged a treat for the baseball lovers in securing the Electrascope to reproduce the world's series games at the Orpheum.

The machinery will be erected on the stage Monday in charge of an expert operator. Direct wires with the playing fields in New York and the Philadelphia have been installed. Every ball pitched, hit or fielded will be recorded in a fashion that will be thoroughly clear, every action of a player will be reproduced the moment the original was executed.

The Electrascope was successfully operated in the larger cities last year, and some weeks ago Mr. Wells made application for several outfits to use in some of his southern theaters.

The prices of admission will be 25 and 50 cents. The Orpheum will raise especially to ladies and a treat is in store for all the fans.

ALLEN NOW CHAMPION AT POCKET BILLIARDS

New York, October 3.—Benny Allen, of Kansas City, won the world's pocket billiard championship tonight, defeating Alfred De Oro, of Cuba, the titleholder for seven years, by a total score in three nights' play of 600 to 516.

Allen continued his cool and steady play last night, while De Oro, nervous, at times. The score of the night's play stood: De Oro, 204; Allen, 200. De Oro's best effort of the evening was 20 and Allen's 18.

The total score of the three blocks: Allen, 200, 200, 200. Total, 600. De Oro, 148, 164, 204. Total, 516.

Soccer Practice.

A meeting of the football enthusiasts was held Thursday night at Spaldings's. Plans were formulated for the formation of a four-team Soccer league. A silver trophy cup was offered by Al G. Fields Bros. for the use of the league champions.

The first practice of the season will be held Saturday afternoon at Piedmont park, at which time the Atlanta club, Foote & Davis team and Western Union teams will be out, and a line will be secured on all prospective candidates.

HE HURLS ROSARY IN FACE OF CROWD

Schmidt, Who Confessed Slaying Anna Aumuller, Held by Coroner's Jury and Is Taken to Tombs.

New York, October 3.—Hans Schmidt, the priest who confessed killing Anna Aumuller, became frenzied today at the coroner's inquest into the death of his victim, rose from his seat, snatched from his neck the rosary he had worn ever since his incarceration, tore it into many bits and hurled them at the newspaper reporters sitting half a dozen steps away. The jury found him responsible for the girl's death.

Schmidt's outburst of temper occurred in the presence of a jury of millionaires empanelled to conduct the inquest. The verdict was quickly found. It follows:

"We, the jury, believe that Anna Aumuller came to her death on September 2, 1913, at No. 66 Bradhurst avenue, at the hands of Hans Schmidt."

Schmidt was immediately remanded to the Tombs without bail to await the action of the grand jury.

Jury of Millionaires.

Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit company, was foreman of the jury. His fellow jurors included Vincent Astor, B. J. Greenhut, merchant; Mortimer Hegenberg, cigar manufacturer, and E. S. Marston, banker.

During the examination of witnesses not a trace of emotion crossed Schmidt's face, but Coroner Feinberg's caustic method to bait the prisoner into a sudden temper of fury. Jumping to his feet Schmidt tore the rosary from his neck, and before detectives could stay him had snapped it into many parts and hurled them at the newspaper men.

The torso of the victim was identified by Anna Hirt, who roomed with the Aumuller girl at the Sarah house of St. Boniface's church. The Hirt woman was followed on the stand by detectives, the physician who made the autopsy and finally by Inspector Faurot, in charge of the detective bureau here, to whom Schmidt confessed. Faurot detailed in a hundred words or less the substance of the confession.

"Do you wish to place your client on the stand," Coroner Feinberg asked counsel for Schmidt. The answer was negative, and the coroner, apparently expecting that Schmidt would testify, asked if the priest had nothing to say.

"Nothing whatever," replied the lawyer.

All Over in 25 Minutes.

Within fifteen minutes from the time the first witness had taken the stand the jury had withdrawn. Within ten minutes more it had returned with its verdict.

LOCAL FIRE INSURERS BANQUET HUGH WILLET

Honor Guest Tells of Work of Convention of National Association.

The Atlanta members of the Georgia Association of Life Insurers gave a complimentary dinner last night in the pine room of the Hotel Ansley to Hugh M. Willet, recently elected chairman of the executive committee of the National Life Insurers' association.

Mr. Willet reviewed the work of the convention of the national organization, held at Atlantic City, and at which he was elected to the next highest office within the gift of the delegates.

The plan of the publicity committee of the national organization, which embraces the education of the people in the matter of income insurance was also explained by Mr. Willet, who declared that while the plan had not yet received federal financial support, it would undoubtedly go through at the forthcoming meeting of the executive board of the organization, to be held at Pittsburg next Monday.

During the meeting of the executive board in Pittsburg which Mr. Willet will attend, the matter of organizing a legislative bureau to look after the problem of increasing taxation of life insurance companies will also be voted upon.

The dinner last night was attended by about thirty of Atlanta's life insurance general agents. J. W. Dobbins presided, and "introduced" Mr. Willet to the diners.

HOLDS MARRIAGE VALID.

Supreme Court Will Pass on Unique Law Point.

The supreme court will be called upon to decide a unique point of law in regard to the validity of marriages when a case decided by Judge W. D. Ellis' ruling on a charge to the jury yesterday goes before the higher court.

In his charge the judge held that when a man marries a woman not legally divorced and does not know of it at the time, but afterwards learns of it when her divorce is made legal, that should be continue to live with her as her husband he cannot have the marriage annulled as illegal.

The point came up in the divorce of E. C. Kelley v. Mrs. Annie C. Kelley, "alias Mrs. Annie C. Holder." At the time of her marriage to Kelley the woman he is now suing had not received the second verdict from G. H. Holder. As a result of the charge the jury returned a verdict for Mrs. Kelley.

The regular divorce mill of the superior court will begin to grind in earnest again Monday when over 100 unhappy marriages will be taken up before Judge Ellis, and once again the fair of Reno will be given to the old courtroom.

WINNING THE PENNANT SUBJECT OF SERMONS

Members of the congregation of the Baptist Tabernacle will be taught in a series of sermons by Dr. Lincoln McConnell some lessons in religious life that were gathered from the wonderful work of the Crackers in landing the Southern league pennant. Dr. McConnell states that he wants the same kind of work in his church that Billy Smith had on his team.

His first sermon has already been preached. It was on "Winning the Pennant." The "Men Who Score" will be the subject of the lecture-sermon Sunday night. Dr. McConnell intends to keep up this series of lectures for some time, and in them will take up the moral conditions of the young manhood of Atlanta and the need for them to have, as the pastor puts it, "The kind of stuff in them that wins pennants."

Former Ambassador Dies.

Rome, October 3.—Baron Saverio Fava, former Italian ambassador to the United States, died here today. He was born in 1832. Baron Fava was retired from the diplomatic corps by royal decree in April, 1901, and called for Italy the following June to resume his seat in the senate.

"Eternal Vigilance Is the Price of Honest And Efficient Government" The Outlook

Croker united the worst elements in New York.

To these he added some good citizens.

Hence his influence.

Without the assistance of those ever complacent, supposedly respectable ones serving as figure-heads, he would have been helpless. The evil are ever in the minority. They have power only when they have with them those "who have a name to live."

With their assistance, Croker ruled.

His favorite weapon was the police force.

Devery, his Chief of Police, made the New York force a byword for corruption throughout the world.

Today Croker is gone.

Devery has fallen.

Yet their creature, The Tammany Tiger, still claws and gnaws at the city's heart, and leaves a trail of degradation and suffering in its path.

But this, too, will go.

The misguided good are finding it more and more difficult in the light of day to eat the carrion which the tiger throws them.

The hideous reek of it makes many turn away.

Others track it—but these are no jackals seeking to feed upon his leavings—they are men unwilling that it should live.

They seek to kill.

People are thinking: this means death to the beast.

And other cities have learned a lesson.

When one comes uniting all that is worst in a city's life, if men know it, the man cannot hope to add the support of the few good citizens, as did Croker when he held the tiger's leash.

For men are waking.

In Atlanta, a few days ago, they gained for you that weapon, the right of the Referendum, Initiative and Recall.

And at the polls, when one man clearly and unequivocally stated publicly his position favoring law and order, men placed him by their votes at the head of the ticket.

Men are waiting. They are watching.

He who thinks to build or serve a faction has no place in Atlanta or the State.

OURS IS NO DIVIDED CITY.

For you are recognizing the truth.

Long ago men seeking to trap Jesus asked him a question. Answering, He asked for a coin, and bade them answer: "Whose is the image and superscription?"

They replied: "Caesar's."

The Lord answered: "Render, therefore, unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's."

Look at your dollar! Caesar's name is not upon it, but that of God.

No longer is there a Caesar.

You are accountable to God.

Every man a king, must answer to his Maker for the affairs of his kingdom.

Man is his own master.

Bossism is on the wane.

Let it die.

ATLANTA'S STRIDES FROM DAY TO DAY

All the News of Real Estate and Building.

According to the decision of the streets committee of the Atlanta city council Friday afternoon, the regrading of Whitehall street will begin before Jan. 1, as originally provided in the resolution appropriating the money for the work.

A committee of merchants who some time ago called upon the mayor to protest against the regrading of Whitehall street at the set date, appeared before the streets committee Friday afternoon in session. The streets committee, however, declined to interfere with the plans as laid.

Several of the Whitehall street property owners, who are interested in the proposition of the regrading of the street, stated Friday afternoon that all the money pledged by the citizens for this work has been raised and that nothing stands in the way of the work.

The plans call for the establishment of a uniform grade between Mitchell and Trinity avenue, the present grade at Trinity avenue and a fill at Brotherton.

The construction of a number of new business houses on Whitehall street is dependent upon the regrading of the street, and the assurance of the execution of this work therefore has a very significant bearing upon the future development of this section.

Manufacturing Establishments Increasing.

The value of the manufacturing buildings built in Atlanta this year up to September already exceeds that of the entire year of 1912 by $23,800, with the last quarter of the year still to be heard from, according to figures in the office of the city building inspector. And the year's figures in full exceed those of the entire year of 1911 by $65,500.

The cost for the construction of manufacturing buildings for this year stacks up $80,000 as against $56,200 for 1912 and $15,000 for 1911. The booming years of 1909 and 1910 which followed the recovery from the panic of 1907, are the only two years in the last six which have gone the 1913 figures better, the figures for 1909 being $145,000, and $135,000 for 1910. The year of 1908 showed $39,800.

These figures, however, represent the permits for actually new buildings. To the number must be added those buildings formerly utilized for other purposes which were remodeled and converted into structures for manufacturing purposes.

Here are some the buildings which have undergone this change in the last few years, and this does not include the lofts of a number of buildings that have been similarly utilized:

The Andrews building, 195 Marietta street; the Greenfield building, 218 Marietta street; the Rucker building, 38 Alabama street; the Wingfield building, 37 South Forsyth street; the building now occupied by the Novelty Straw Hat works, 11 Trinity avenue; the building occupied by the Novelty Hat works, 116 Garnett street; the Adair building, 18 South Pryor street, the part of the Thrower building now occupied by the Kute Millinery company; the Shippy building, 197 Whitehall street, and the building occupied by the Ernest L. Rhodes Millinery company, 47 South Broad.

Five Buildings Per Day.

In addition to the above encouraging figures from the office of the inspector's office comes the report of the representatives of the electric light company, who is now correcting the city directory, showing that for every working day between January 1st and July 1, 1913, there were five new buildings erected in the city of Atlanta, or just a few more per day than in any other city of Atlanta's size in the United States. Some record, what?

The Sanborn Map company publishes all the insurance maps for the size in United States. The official maps of Atlanta are completed three times a year, and there are ninety-one sets in use.

According to the representatives of the map company, the new buildings which have been erected in Atlanta since January, 1912, and until July 1, 1913, will make necessary 2,000 corrections in each of these sets before the maps are perfect.

Stewart Avenue Section Active.

Reports of sales from the real estate office of Forrest & George Adair on Friday showed a sprightly bit of activity in that company's Stewart avenue subdivision. It will be remembered that the Adairs some time ago presented the city with a park in that section, the city is now improving the park and is laying sewers in the streets that are to be opened. The section already has modern conveniences and school facilities and a growing radius.

The sales Friday were reported by the Adair agency as follows: Sale by Frank Adair to W. P. Fields, a bungalow on a lot 50x250, on Brookline street, for $3,900; same to L. D. Wilson, a bungalow on a lot 50x250, on Brookline street, for $3,750; same to C. W. Dowgherty, a bungalow on a lot 50x250, on Brookline street, for $3,750.

Sales reported by Forrest Adair included the following sales:

Sale by Forrest Adair, Jr., to J. H. Porterfield, a lot 50x150 on East avenue, for $3,000, and the same to Mrs. Mary Patton a bungalow on a lot 70x150, on Willard avenue, West End park, for $5,000.

Eastland South Pryor Regrade.

By a resolution introduced in the streets committee of council at its meeting Friday afternoon by Alderman M. Clayton, chief of the city construction department, has been instructed to make a survey and estimate of the work of regrading Eastland South Pryor beyond Georgia avenue.

Mr. Wright, representing those interested in the work, stated that while they did not expect any money for this work before the late fall, they were anxious to have the entire situation with all data in the hands of the city in order that there may be no last moment complications, as has been the case in work upon some of the other streets of the city.

We Have With Us—10,000!

Now comes Mr. J. W. Hill, who once every year gives each citizen of Atlanta the opportunity of seeing his name in print, with the significant statement that Atlanta has within her gates this year approximately 10,000 more people than she had at this time last year.

The city directory of 1913, as issued by Mr. Hill, showed Atlanta and suburbs with a population of 154,000, while the directory for 1914, as estimated by Mr. Hill, will show the enrollment of 225,000 citizens, which figures speak very eloquently for themselves.

An interesting account of the shifting of the city's population, as expressed by Mr. Hill, will be found elsewhere in this issue of The Constitution.

Hurt Building Open.

The doors of the Hurt building were thrown open October 1, and a large number of the tenants of space in the new building have already moved in, although the building is not yet entirely complete.

Reports from the renting department of the building, at 33 Exchange place, show that practically half of the building is already leased, and the prospects are that the first of next year the entire office space of the building will have been completely rented.

New Permit Applied For.

The application for the building on Whitehall street for the Fairbanks-Moore company, of which mention was made Friday of the building inspector on Friday, through J. R. Smith, for the permit, was withdrawn.

The application calls for a three-story building on the property between Murphy and Stewart avenues, at a cost of $25,000.

Bridge Plans Accepted.

The Fulton county board of commissioners has accepted the plans of the Seaboard Air Line railroad for the construction of a 100-foot steel bridge over Peachtree road, to replace the present wooden 50-foot structure.

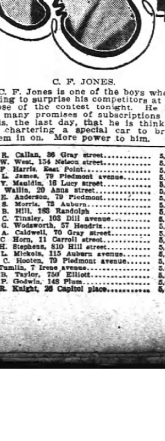
Note the Hour, Conductors!

Seven O'Clock Tonight the Big Contest Is Finished

CONDUCTOR NO. 140.



C. F. JONES.

C. F. Jones is one of the boys who is going to participate in the victory at the close of the contest tonight. He has many promises of subscriptions for this, the last day, that he is thinking of starting a special effort to bring them in on. More power to him.

Well, Conductors, the finish is about here. But not quite. Some of the boys stated yesterday that their finish was very far off, and that this last day would see some really tumbling in the standing, which, of course, is the same thing as saying that there is going to be some rapid climbing. This is of this contest is a hummer, and we wouldn't be a bit surprised at all to see some "dark horse" dash under the wire first and run away with the contest. On the other hand, as the old-time comedians used to say, we wouldn't be a bit surprised, either, to see the standing stay just about as it is for the last moment, the dying gasp, the final flutter or any other of those appropriate ways of saying anything to a finish. Because every single man in the race has announced something definite today for the last day. Many a battle has been won when everything looks like a loss, you know, and many a horse has romped home with the money when the bets were 100 to 1 against him. So we are sure. We are not going to risk predictions as to the finish at all. This stunt or prophesying is an unsatisfactory finish anyway you look at it to the man who undertakes to tell what live bunch like the conductors are going to do is a more confident bettor on his own prognostications than we are. (Note that prognostications; we think it's a good word.)

So we are anxiously waiting for 7 o'clock this evening. Kindly note that it is 7 o'clock. Some fellow would feel mighty bad if he came in with enough votes to win the first prize and found that it is ten and three-fifth seconds after 7, and the contest was closed on him. Promptly at 7 the contest manager will announce the contest closed, and after that minute no more votes will be credited to anybody. Please remember that seven means seven in this office, and that while we might feel awfully sorry for you, still that doesn't put any money in our pocket. We can't think of any more advice to give right now, except what we have been telling you all along, and that is keep going as hard as you can. Even if there are only twelve days more, still you have a chance at that $100 until—7 o'clock this evening.

SEEDS, BULBS AND POULTRY SUPPLIES.

IF YOU are going to fix your lawn up, you should sow it in the fall. Sowing grass seed now will get a good start before the cold weather sets in, which will help it to live on as a permanent lawn; but don't delay a few days and make a pretty green lawn all winter, and then have to wait until it comes out in the spring. For a lawn 50 by 100, you should need 5 pounds of seed to sow it. The price is 10c a pound. For a large lawn, we would advise using Hastings' Green Lawn Mixture; it is composed of both winter and summer grasses, and if properly cared for, will stay green winter and summer. This mixture is 25c per pound, or $2.50 per bushel of 14 pounds.

Real Music and Real Fun Make Charm of Robin Hood

Merriment, tunefulness and gaiety, and all of the wholesomeness, happiest kind, pleased a big audience last night at the Atlanta, when the de Koven Opera company played "Robin Hood." Even though the tenor, true to the real meaning of temperament, frowned whenever somebody else was ensured, yet everybody was, even the rollicking chorus being called back every time they sang to rollick some more.

The opera bubbles over with fun and a cheery sort of satire, and the company bubbled with it. The orchestra was considerably augmented, and the spirited score, which is full of familiar tunes, even to people who had never before heard the opera, was presented with a fervor that sustained three acts of musical variety and interest.

That an Italian should appear in the role of the English hero of romance was a little trying—Misha Ferenzo took the part of Robin Hood—but his enunciation of English is better than that of some English singers, and his voice is as robust as if it had been fostered by the forest life.

"Under the Greenwood Tree," that charming instance of what we might have claimed as "American Coloratura," Enrica Dill, too, transformed into what was more like an Italian aria, but a worthy piece of work barring the jar it gave to patriotism. Had her voice been more bird-like and her figure more petite, she could have been more faithful to the part of Maid Marian, but, unfortunately, grand opera reputations come usually with embonpoint, vocal as well as physical.

Helen Morrill, who sings Annabel at the night performances, will take the prima donna role at the matinee.

Little John, sung by Joseph Parsons was to many in theaudience the treat of the evening. He plays pleasingly, and his baritone is as smooth and mellow as the "Brown October Ale," to which he sings his ode.

Phil Branson, George Frothingham and Sid Branham provide a wholesome comedy, the kind you laugh at if you hear it every night, growing fond of it with acquaintance.

All the bass singers in the audience were waiting for Will Scarlet's songs—every time they sang them, and Jerome Daley did them justice, while many people must have reminisced in one mood or another over "O Promise Me," which was for many years inevitably "rendered during the ceremony."

LOUISE DOOLY.

OWENS AND WOODWARD WILL WORK TOGETHER

Alderman-Elect From Eighth Tells Mayor He Bears No Animosity for Opposition.

Alderman-elect John S. Owens, of the eighth ward, called on Mayor Woodward Friday morning. Mr. Owens brought the mayor a number of city bonds, also the assurance that he is not allied with any faction in council, and will work for the best interest of Atlanta. Mayor Woodward was delighted to receive the assurance from Mr. Owens, and they shook hands over the prospect of getting along together during the next year.

Mayor Woodward was being interviewed by the reporters when Mr. Owens entered the reception room. Secretary Frank Hammond informed the mayor that Mr. Owens wanted to see him.

"Show him right in," shouted the mayor, indicating the reporters that he had something more important on hand than an interview.

Brings Bonds to Mayor.

Briskly Mr. Owens entered the mayor's office. His right hand was extended.

"Good morning, Mr. Mayor, I—"

Mayor Woodward grasped the outstretched hand.

"I didn't vote for you; I guess you know that," the mayor remarked, but he came to bring some bonds for street improvement work, but I'm glad here I wished to say to you that any little political differences which may have occurred between us during the recent campaign are now a thing of the past, and that I harbor no resentment against anyone. I am glad to work for the interest of the city, and we can't do that if we allow personal differences to stand in the way."

"I am glad to hear you talk that way," replied the mayor, giving Mr. Owens a hand another cordial shake. "Mr. Hancock served in council with me under a former administration of mine, and he did excellent work for the city, and under the circumstances I could not do otherwise than support him."

Not Pledged to Anybody.

Mr. Owens assured the mayor that he had no complaint to offer on that score.

"I have not promised anything to anybody, and, consequently, I go into council unpledged and free to work for the best interests of the city. I can work as cordially with the mayor as I can with anyone. It is my policy to avoid rows."

Mayor Woodward was warmed into a friendly, smiling mood by the statement of Mr. Owens, and they joked about the old days of Atlanta politics.

CAMPAIGN FOR $25,000 FOR ORPHANS' HOME

Members of the North Georgia Methodist conference, which is now in session, the enrollment of more than 100,000 will be given an opportunity on October 12 to contribute to the support and maintenance of the Methodist Orphans' Home at Decatur.

Saturday, October 11, has been officially designated as "Decatur Work Day," but the actual campaign will not be called in until the following Sunday. It is hoped to raise $25,000, as the expenditures of the institution have been greatly increased during the past few years. Special exercises will be held in many of the Sunday schools throughout the conference.

TELEPHONE OPERATOR HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Her dress aflame, Miss Beatrice Dockwell, a pretty telephone operator living at 32 Richardson street, dived beneath the sheets in her bed room yesterday morning about 10 o'clock, screaming an alarm that brought other occupants of the home to her rescue.

She was not badly burned, her dress had become ignited from gasoline which she had been using to clean clothing.

MORTUARY.

Mrs. W. C. Pease.

The funeral services of Mrs. W. C. Pease, who died Thursday, were conducted from the residence, 307 Grant street, Friday at 12:30 o'clock. Her body was taken to Auburn, Ala., for interment.

Mrs. Sophia French.

Mrs. Sophia French, aged 51 years, died at her residence, 421 North Boulevard, Friday morning at 3 o'clock. She is survived by her husband and one son. Her body will be taken today to Cleveland, Ohio, for the funeral services and interment.

James W. Freeman.

James W. Freeman died at his home at 44 Colquitt avenue Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock, after a prolonged illness. The deceased was 65 years of age. He was a confederate veteran and a member of Joe Brown camp. Mr. Freeman is survived by his wife, Mrs. Margaret E. Freeman and eight children.—Mrs. Thomas W. Millhan, J. R. Margaret F., William St. Julien, Moultrie M., Sara N., Annie Lou and Ruby James Freeman. Funeral services will be held at the residence this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. A. A. Little officiating.

FLOOD CONDITIONS IN LOUISIANA IMPROVING

Lake Charles, La., October 3.—Flood conditions continued to improve here today. Calcasieu river and the lake were slowly receding and further damage from their overflow appears to be over. Business in the city, however, is still practically suspended and it will be several days before anything like normal conditions prevail. Boats are the only means of transportation in many parts of the city.

The heaviest loss from the flood will fall on the rice crop. This has been variously estimated from one to one and a half million dollars, dependent upon weather conditions after the water has receded from the fields. The railroads have suffered greatly and much live stock and other crops have been lost.

Improved conditions are reported from all points in the flooded country in this section.

If the house is situated so she can see all that the neighbors are doing, a woman doesn't care if the cellar is damp.

AT THE THEATERS.

"Zeke, the Country Boy."

(At the Bijou.)

The matinee today and performance tonight will conclude the fifth week's engagement of the Jewell Kelley company at the Bijou with "Zeke, the Country Boy." Has pleased from the opening the week and has drawn splendid audiences. The company's specialties and the theater will largely be large enough to accommodate the crowds that will gather at the popular theater tonight.

Elaborate preparations are being made for next week's play, a sensational comedy drama, "The Messenger Boy," in which every member of the company will have an unusually clever part.

"One Day."

(At the Lyric.)

What will no doubt prove to be one of the important dramatic events of the season will take place next week when Miss Cecil Spooner's brilliant dramatization of the sensational Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks" entitled "One Day," will be presented at the Lyric.

Seldom, if ever, has a play of this nature created the sensation or aroused the interest of theatergoers as in the event of this fascinating play during its recent initial production in New York city.

Al H. Wilson.

(At the Atlanta.)

Monday night will see Al H. Wilson, the famous German dialect comedian and singer at the Atlanta theater with a new play bearing the title of "A Rolling Stone." Mr. Wilson has not been in Atlanta since the new Atlanta theater was built and will doubtless be welcomed by those who have so delighted in his whimsical plays and his delightful singing. "A Rolling Stone" is a play of real interest and Mr. Wilson is fitted with a part which pleases. He has a company of players around him worthy of much praise of merit, including six pretty young girls. Seats are now on sale at the box office.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

Monday afternoon local theater-goers had shown unmistakably that the Forsyth show that scored a hit at the matinee, and brought about the declaration that the quality of the bill would pack the theater nightly and each half million dollars, dependent upon weather conditions after the performances for which tremendous advance sales have been recorded. The featured headliner will be "A Son of Coleman," a dramatic comedy play, with unusual effects and a capable company of players, including Hugh Herbert, James Thornton, the famous monologist, also on the bill. There is but one comedian of Thornton's class and he is considered the greatest fun-maker on the stage than any person in the profession. The other acts are of that high quality for which the Forsyth has become justly famous.

Columbia Burlesque.

Miss Bee Darling, said to be the prettiest woman in burlesque, and Vanita, the possing Venus, will delight the patrons of the Columbia. Miss Darling is featured this week in the roaring travesty, "A King For a Night," in which she is given many opportunities. Her several song and dance numbers have won the approval of the patrons of the house. The management announced the engagement of "Gusellas," an Oriental dancer of European fame, as the big feature of next week's show.

"Where Are Young Ladies On Sunday Morning?" Will Be "Rally Day" Question

Many interesting questions will be discussed in the addresses that will take place in the various "rally day" services in the Sunday schools of Atlanta on Sunday morning.

Among the unique programs announced for the day is that of the Park Street Methodist church, at which a number of talks will be made by the students themselves. Among the questions to be discussed is the subject, "Where Are Our Young Ladies on Sunday Morning?" representatives from the young ladies' class giving their views on the best way to get their more recreant sister's up in time for Sunday school. Similar discussions on "Where Are Our Young Men on Sunday Morning?" will be indulged in by the workers of the young men's and boys' classes. Among other addressed at this Sunday school will be that of Dr. R. Belk, on the subject, "Our General Aim as a Church."

The Second Baptist Sunday school announces a special male quartet as a feature of its "rally day" service. The Central Presbyterian will have a special program of addresses, the speakers including Dr. Ogden and Marion Jackson. The North Avenue Presbyterian, Wesley Memorial, the Tabernacle and a number of others are also planning special programs for the day.

M'NAUGHTON AN INMATE OF STATE PRISON FARM

Declares His Intention to Keep Up the Fight for Vindication. On the Hospital Staff.

Milledgeville, Ga., October 3.—(Special.)—Dr. W. J. McNaughton arrived at Milledgeville tonight to begin his life sentence for murder. He was in charge of B. W. Overby, an attache of the prison farm, who was sent to the penitentiary for Dr. McNaughton when the latter got a pardon.

The prisoner, while in a very cheerful state of mind, is still firm in his declarations of innocence, and stated to newspaper men at the depot here tonight that he would keep up the fight for freedom until justice was done.

"There is one innocent man in the Georgia penitentiary," declared the prisoner, "and he will never cease to fight for vindication, not only for his own sake but for the sake of his two little boys, aged 7 and 12, who are now with an aunt in North Carolina."

Dr. McNaughton seems to be confident that in time he will again be a free man. His demeanor was entirely cheerful as he rode out of Milledgeville tonight on his way to the prison farm, after telling of his amazement at the number of people, both men and women, who had approached him on the train today to express regret at his failure to receive a pardon.

The prisoner brought a large amount of baggage with him, a good part of it being a medical library. It is thought that he will be assigned to work at the prison farm as steward of the hospital.

Barn and Contents Burned.

Fairburn, Ga., October 3.—(Special.) The barn of Jess L. McClure, 3 miles west of Fairburn, was burned last night, together with three buggies, a lot of farm implements and considerable stored feed stuff recently gathered. It is not known how the fire was started, and it was not discovered in time to save anything.

Standing alone in its class, the high regard in which WHITE ROCK WATER is held by the doctors of today is attested by its enormous sale.
