CHURCH BAN PUT ON MODERN DANCE BY FATHER RAPIER

Under Penalty of Disobedience to Pastor Members of Sacred Heart Church Are Commanded to Abstain.

MODERN FRENCH PLAY CONDEMNED BY BISHOP

Reading of Fiction by Children Is Also Scored in Letter Sent to All the Church's in Georgia.

The ban of the church was placed upon all the modern dances by Father George E. Rapier, of the Society of Mary, in a short address to the members of his congregation at the Sacred Heart church at the masses on Sunday morning.

His action follows a letter from the Bishop Benjamin J. Keiley, of the diocese of Savannah which was sent to the congregations of all the Catholic churches in Georgia on last Sunday. In his letter these dances were disapproved, but the decision was left to them, leaving it to each pastor to act as the situation might demand in his own parish:

Bishop Keiley's Letter.

In his letter Bishop Keiley said:

"I must make passing reference here to one form of very popular amusement. I refer to dancing. I am free to say that I cannot understand the great popularity of dancing, for the exercise taken therein can readily be gained in other ways. But be this as it may, it seems to be the fact that recently there have been introduced certain dances extremely popular, but offensive to good taste and repugnant to Christian modesty. Can there be any doubt in the minds of Catholic readers of their attitude toward these dances?

Speaking to his congregation Sunday morning Father Rapier explained that his remarks were caused by the fact that there were apparently some who had misunderstood what he had said last Sunday after reading the letter.

"I generally make myself plain enough," he said, "and don't want any one to misunderstand me in this instance.

"There were some of you who seemed to draw the inference from my remarks that the matter were a matter for the individual conscience to decide. That is not the case, and neither or this church I forbid its members to indulge in these modern dances.

Pastor Has Control.

"This is a matter in which the pastor has control. Just as the state does not wait for the federal government to make laws forbidding the carrying of concealed weapons, neither is the pastor of a church compelled to wait for an order from any highly authority forbidding such dances as these.

"So all the members of this congregation are forbidden under pain of disobedience to their pastor."

At all the masses Sunday, the pastors continued reading from the bishop's letter, which was begun last Sunday.

Noyel Heading Bad.

Bishop Keiley declared fiction reading, modern plays, and a number of other problems of importance.

"I do not condemn all works of fiction," writes the bishop, "for there are many standard works which can safely be read by most of them. I fear, He dust laden on the shelves of libraries. But the reading of the ordinarily an unsafe book to have in the house and that any parent should let girl or boy to read, for it treats of the most sacred subjects in the most flippant way; throws ridicule on the restraints of the married state, openly defends divorce, and justifies the breaking of the marriage vow for life or no reason; openly or covertly attacks the authority of the church, misrepresents the doctrines and practices of our faith and generally gives a view of life which is opposed to the teaching of Christ and His church. There are works of fiction by non-Catholic authors, which for literary ability, depth of plot, fine delineation of character and sound morality far surpass the pernicious novels of the day. The catalogues of our Catholic publishing houses furnish a long list of such books.

Criticizes Newspapers.

"As to the papers, a greater difficulty presents itself. The daily paper seems to be a necessity of modern life; for the father reads it to find news of the business world, the daily quotation of prices and the market reports, the women of the family are interested in the society news and the latest fashions, the boy and girl scans its pages for the very latest news from the field of sports, for each class contented itself with its own search, possibly little or no harm would be done. But after reading the market report, the father reads the first page or so and then comes to some scandal, the details of a murder or suicide, or a long account of some of the latest trial for divorce; the woman of the family delves into the story of some domestic infelicity which has at last become public property and is destined to figure in the civil criminal; the boy reads everything. With the average paper we are often amused and more often offended at its way of treating Catholic news. We have here a free country and freedom of speech is only limited by liability to criminal prosecution and so the itinerant preacher, who knows so well that he has no Christian doctrines to preach to his congregation that if he did they would feel no obligation of believing it, is privileged to select a subject which is always a very acceptable one to a large number of his flock; and he groans and laments over the superstitions of the Catholic church. The Monday morning paper gives an extended account of the eloquent remarks—an account which, of course, must be correct, for the preacher furnished it himself.

"These same statements have been made a hundred times before, but even though the papers are willing to give space to a reply, it is hard to ever overtake the original lie.

Lies About Catholic Church.

"Or, again, some unfortunate man regretful of his vows and anxious to escape from a life which binds him to sobriety and chastity, leaves the Catholic church and is taken up by some of the sects and starts touring the country boldly lying about the teaching and practices of the church. The papers give him space and notice, and while they are not able to tell all that he says in his talks to men and women separately about priests and priests, they suggest things. Need I ask the questing if such papers be fit for decent men, women and children

ALBANY MAN IS CALLED FROM HOUSE AND KILLED

A. D. Rawlins Is Shot by Earl Loach on Street and Dies Almost Instantly.

Albany, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—A. D. Rawlins, twenty-six years old, was shot and almost instantly killed last night about 10 o'clock by Earl Loach. The tragedy occurred in front of a boarding house near the northern city limits, and is said to have been witnessed by several people.

MOVEMENT UNDER WAY FOR A PUBLIC MARKET

Commission Will Be Appointed to Investigate Conditions in Other Dixie Cities.

The movement for a public market, which has been agitated for some time in Atlanta, appears to have taken concrete form in the announcement that Mayor James G. Woodward and President Wilbur E. Moore, of the chamber of commerce, will appoint three persons each to visit other southern cities and investigate plans by which markets are conducted.

Representatives of the Retail Grocers' association and the chamber of commerce met with Mayor Woodward and discussed the project, and it was at this meeting that the decision was reached.

It is believed that a downtown market would aid in lowering the present cost of food and would also provide means by which a thorough inspection might be made. Mayor Woodward's idea is to place the market over the railroad tracks between Forsyth and Broad streets, thus having it convenient to shippers and easily accessible to people from all parts of the city.

Dan Fish member of Atlanta site favor the movement, and Mrs. A. P. Coles, president of the Women's club, spoke highly in favor of the plan and promised the support of her organization.

He Killed His Father.

Clarksburg, W. Va., October 12.—Frederick S. Knisely, a bookkeeper, shot and killed his father, Thomas J. Knisely, a wealthy farmer and well-known politician, late last night at Lost Creek, and today was exonerated by a coroner's jury. The elder Knisely is alleged to have attacked his son and daughter with a butcher knife.

WOMEN WILL PROBE SCHOOL CONDITIONS

Mrs. Charles J. Haden Calls Special Meeting of Women's Clubs for This Morning to Take Action.

Women of Atlanta, stirred by The Constitution's expose of conditions in many of the city's public schools, will today begin a probe with a view of learning what can be done to alleviate conditions.

Mrs. Charles J. Haden, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs, has called a special meeting of the executive committee of that organization to be held this morning, and in response to the call indicates that the investigation will be thorough.

Room for Improvement.

"There seems to be room for great improvement in the public schools in Atlanta," Mrs. Haden stated Sunday. "Just where we can begin improving is a matter which will be determined later. However, it does appear that the schools have been neglected, and that is the case the responsibility should be placed. There is no reason in the world why a great, progressive and beautiful city like Atlanta should tolerate poor facilities in the schools. The children should be first thought of civic pride."

That The Constitution's explcitation of actual conditions in some of the schools has awakened general interest, and has stirred all classes to the realization that Atlanta's schools are not what they should be is becoming more evident every day. Hundreds of suggestions have been offered, looking to giving temporary relief and others demanding that the city council take immediate steps for improving conditions for all time.

That a bond issue of $2,000,000 is the only solution, is the opinion of Hoke Smith, W. R. Daley, of the board of education.

Mayor Favors Redistricting.

Mayor James G. Woodward states the position that a bond issue will not be approved by the voters, and his suggestion is a new survey of the school districts with a view of making a fair distribution of pupils in the congested districts.

"I believe that $60,000 spent judiciously by the school board will give the relief necessary."

But Mayor Woodward's opinion is based only on estimates, as he has not found them to exist at the Forrest Avenue school, Boulevard, North Avenue, Edgewood, Highland, Inman Park, Faith Street, and Ivy Street schools. He has offered as a suggestion to the school board that a part of the $50,000 be spent on a temporary school building to be placed on the corner of Pearl and Gaskill streets to relieve the conditions in the Faith school district.

Greater Increase Here.

The records on file in the office of Superintendent Slaton show that the northeast section of the city has contributed a greater increase in the school attendance than any other section of the city, and with the increase expected every year the condition will be just as bad next year as they are this year.

Superintendent W. F. Slaton, after calling attention to the poor facilities in some of the schools, declared that to discuss the school system with reporters, but he would have no objection to inspection.

The next meeting of council will be held next Monday. It is understood that several members have prepared resolutions urging that an investigation be made if the conditions existing.

Mayor Woodward has announced that he will request an investigation of school conditions Monday.

S. R. BLANTON IS GIVEN JOB IN U. S. SENATE

Cairo, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—S. R. Blanton, of Cairo, has just been officially notified that he has received the appointment as assistant doorkeeper of the United States senate at Washington. He will leave soon to take charge of the position.

Mr. Blanton has for the past year or two has been located here and has had in charge the management and editorial end of the Grady County Progress.

He received his appointment to the position of assistant sergeant-at-arms through Senator Hoke Smith, and while his many friends regret to part with him, they all in the same breath congratulate him upon his success in getting the new appointment and wish him well in his new field.

BANKERS GATHERING TO OPPOSE MONEY BILL

Washington, October 13.—Prepared to appear tomorrow before the senate banking and currency committee in opposition to certain features of the administration currency bill, thirty-five representatives of small banks with a capital of $250,000 or less each, arrived here today. Most of the states in the union are represented.

Speaking for the delegation, George Rogers, of Little Rock, Ark., chairman, said the bankers favored reform, because of a currency bill, but that unless some changes were made in the present measure, it would mean the elimination of many small banks. He declared that small bankers were being used by the large banks as "cats paws" for their interests. The meeting in Boston, he said, in which 2,000 small bankers from all parts of the country adopted resolutions condemning parts of the currency bill as it now stands, had been "in no way inspired by bankers in the large cities," and that all who appear before the senate committee in the morning are bankers of small means.

WOMEN GET MILITANT IN LONDON CATHEDRAL

London, October 12.—Thirty suffragettes were arrested today after kneeling in St. Paul's cathedral. They protested in chains against the cruelty of their sisters being tortured by forcible feeding in Holloway jail. The vergers tried to eject the women by putting their hands over the singers' mouths.

SCALDED TO DEATH WHILE IN BATH TUB

Cleveland, October 12.—Henry W. Judd, a millionaire director in several local corporations, was scalded to death in his bath tub today. He was found several hours later by his wife on her return from church. Judd had left his chauffeur, a negro maid, and it is supposed he fell into the tub and was unable, because of his enfeebled condition, to climb out.

Six Persons Drowned.

Pittsburg, October 12.—Six persons were drowned and two others narrowly escaped a similar death today when a skiff overturned in the Allegheny river at Tarentum, near this city. The dead are Antone Widmer, Carl Widmer, John Widmer, John Widmer, Jr., Julius Sober, and Joseph Sober. A son of Julius George Oellinger and a man engaged to row the boat saved their lives by clinging to the overturned skiff.

Governor John Slaton Visits D. A. R. Restaurant; Enjoys Being Served By the Pretty Waitresses

The restaurant is being conducted under the auspices of the Joseph Habersham chapter, and the proceeds will be used to help pay for the new chapter house. The patronage has been fine and the ladies are greatly encouraged.

"My lord governor dined this day at the House that Buik built."—Diary of Samuel Pepys, down-to-date in Atlanta.

Or in other words, Governor John M. Slaton has expressed keenest pleasure at being able to be present at lunch at the D. A. R. restaurant at the corner of Peachtree and Carnegie Way.

"I wouldn't have missed the chance to be here and be served by these pretty maids for worlds," said the governor as he sat before a heaping plate of the most savory delicacies the market afforded.

The fare so thankful to the public for the manner they have supported our venture," said Mrs. John A. Perdue, regent of the Joseph Habersham chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, under whose auspices the restaurant is being conducted.

"We hope by thus pleasing the inner man to soon be able to present to the city our new chapter house. If our trade keeps up we can surely do it," she added.

Miss Helen Stewart, of 1086 Piedmont avenue, who daintily served the governor while he was at the lunch, declared that the experience was indeed a lark. "Really it is hard task to properly serve at table," she said. "One should have the experience, then one can be more patient with tardy servants."

COUP BY HUERTA MAY SPLIT ARMY

Startling Developments Expected to Follow Arrest of th Mexican Congressmen. Deputies Are Still in Prison.

BRYAN GOES TO CAPITAL ON ACCOUNT OF MEXICO

Knoxville, Tenn., October 12.—Declaring that developments in the Mexican situation demanded his immediate presence at Washington, Secretary of State Bryan, here to deliver an address, left hurriedly for the capital today. The secretary would not elaborate upon the cause of his unexpected departure.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan had intended to leave tonight for East Radford, Va., and spend Monday as guests of ex-Governor Tyler there.

Mexico City, October 2.—There has been endless speculation here regarding the effect of provisional President Huerta's coup d'etat. Many appear to believe that the logical result will be a split in the army, which they assert has been held together only by the force of General Huerta's personality. They argue that there has been dissatisfaction over Huerta's course in general, and that this will test loyalty to the danger point. They look for startling developments in the near future.

On the other hand, there is a large element which believes President Huerta took the only possible course, and expresses wonder that he had not taken the step long ago. Huerta's friends say it is no secret that had the deputies believed any substantial part of the army would stand with them they would have overthrown Huerta and taken the reins of government wholly in their hands.

Deputies Still in Prison.

Minister of the Interior Manuel Garza Aldape made the following announcement today:

"The deputies who have been arrested and imprisoned cannot be released on any writ. They will be tried for the various offenses of which they are accused. Not one of them will be released by the government to leave the country and take part in government wholly in their hands.

TIMOTHY L. WOODRUFF CROSSES GREAT DIVIDE

Former Lieutenant Governor of New York Stricken as He Addressed a Rally.

New York, October 12.—Timothy L. Woodruff, former lieutenant governor of New York state, died at 9:15 o'clock tonight. He had been in a critical condition for nearly two weeks after having been stricken with paralysis while addressing a progressive party rally in this city. He was 55 years old.

Mr. Woodruff rallied for a time from his first attack and hopes were entertained for his recovery. Last Sunday night, however, his condition again became alarming, and he lapsed into unconsciousness, from which he emerged only once for a brief interval. Late tonight the family gave up all hope. During the night and today the use of stimulants and oxygen was resorted to, and this, together with Mr. Woodruff's great vitality, kept him alive through the day. With him when he died were Mrs. Woodruff, Mrs. Rodney Ward, his only sister, and Rodney Ward, and John E. Woodruff, his son, and the latter's wife.

Born in New Haven, Conn., fifty-five years ago and graduated from Yale in the class of 1879, Mr. Woodruff shortly afterward entered a business career in New York, and soon began to take an active interest in politics. As a republican he was an active political figure in New York state for nearly thirty years, and until a year ago, when he left that party and joined the progressives, his name was nearly always to be found as a leader in republican national, state and city conventions.

Mr. Woodruff was long leader of the party in Kings county. His lodge in the Adirondacks, Kamp Kill Kare, became famous as a place where the leaders were accustomed to meet for conferences. When the republican convention in 1908 he nominated James S. Sherman for vice president.

Mr. Woodruff's first public office was assemblyman from Brooklyn, in 1895. He ran for lieutenant governor in 1896, was defeated, renominated by acclimation and re-elected in 1898, and again in 1900.

THREE CANDIDATES FOR MAYOR PRO TEM

Nutting, Ragsdale and Harwell Are All Confident of Success.

Atlanta's city council is today engrossed in the three-cornered race for mayor pro tem. between Aldermen I. N. Ragsdale, J. H. Harwell and James L. Nutting.

Factional lines are being closely drawn despite the fact that Mayor Pro Tem Woodward has not taken a hand in the contest.

The three candidates represent the three elements in the general council. Alderman Ragsdale, of the ward, is regarded as one of the non-factional councilmen members of the board, while Aldermen Harwell and Nutting represent the anti-Woodward and anti-Woodward factions, respectively.

Ragsdale Pledged Support.

Since his announcement Alderman Ragsdale has been pledged the support of members representing the three factions. His friends say he is fully assured of enough votes to elect him. They say that Alderman Nutting's claims that he will be elected by a substantial majority over his opponents, and Alderman Harwell's friends are predicting an easy contest for him.

Alderman Nutting was a candidate against Alderman James L. Key for present mayor pro tem., last year, and was defeated. The race was close, and but for the support Mayor Woodward gave to Warren he would have probably been elected.

It is the desire of Alderman Ragsdale to enter the race, but his friends in council were so persistent that he consented. Alderman Ragsdale is one of the most popular members of the general council. A number of big improvements in the tenth ward, which he represents, attest his generosity.

Candidates Confident.

On the other hand, Alderman Nutting has a large following, and during the past year he has been very prominent on the floor of council.

Alderman Harwell is one of the oldest members in point of service in council. He is regarded as the ablest parliamentarian of the body, and is otherwise equipped by personality and poise, to preside over the sessions.

The election is still several months off. The presiding officer will be elected by general council at its meeting in January.

SULZER VERDICT COMING TUESDAY

Many of Governor's Friends Think He Should Have Taken the Stand — Opinions Greatly at Variance.

Albany, N. Y., October 12.—A verdict in the impeachment trial of Governor Sulzer will come at the high court of impeachment tomorrow afternoon. This was reached before Tuesday. This was the general impression tonight. Opposition to the court sitting throughout Monday night, as it had been planned to do if necessary, crystallized rapidly today and tonight several early arrivals, among them judges, expressed themselves as favorable to remaining in session not later than midnight tomorrow, at the latest. They said it would be unfair to several elderly members of the court to ask them to remain at all night when little is to be gained by such procedure.

The court will not convene until 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and as the rules for balloting and other procedure must be decided, it was thought unlikely that the first proposition—that of the senate Tuesday morning—would be stricken out—would be reached until late in the afternoon.

Verdict Due Tuesday.

After that the question of constitutional objections raised by Sulzer's counsel against the impeachment charges are to be considered. It is possible the first two questions will be disposed of speedily and an early vote reached on the vital issue, that of the guilt or innocence of the governor, but the consensus of opinion is that this will not be settled until Tuesday.

It was rumored tonight that Senator Abraham J. Palmer, of Milton, to whom Mrs. Sulzer told her story after the governor was impeached, would ask that the case be reopened and the two be invited to testify. In an interview over the telephone from his home, the senator denied he had any such intention. He has stated several times that the whole truth of the governor's transactions never has been told.

Informed within the executive mansion the governor awaits the verdict of the court with his family and friends within the house with Mrs. Sulzer and Miss Sulzer, who, with many companions. Not even a member of his counsel visited him. The governor realized there is nothing to do but wait and he wants to do his waiting alone.

Guesses About Verdict.

Opinions of the governor's friends and his enemies regarding the probable verdict of the senate are greatly at variance.

His friends say he is sure of at least twenty votes, enough to prevent conviction. Some maintain he will get twenty-two. But those opposed to him say that he cannot be saved more than eight.

Many of the governor's friends today expressed their disapproval of his failure to take the witness stand. Most of them maintained that while he had in no way changed their opinion of his guilt or innocence, they have doubts as to the effects on the general public. Just why he did not testify about the circumstances surrounding his decision not to attempt to clear himself before the court—if he who decided—never has been made clear.

Much speculation regarding the reason has resulted. Neither he nor his counsel will discuss the subject. Mayhaps the governor will wait until D-Cady Herrick, who is keeping him informed, brings him word after the return of the verdict. But he will not before then, if the judge knows it.

TERRIBLE PICTURE DRAWN OF HORROR ON BLAZING LINER

English Captain and His Officers Behaved Splendidly But the German and Belgian Acted Very Badly.

PASSENGERS IN PANIC AS FLAMES ADVANCED

Women Hysterical and the Children Crying—Believed That Loss of Life on Volturno Will Be Limited to 136.

London, October 12.—The latest accounts of the disaster to the steamship Volturno, burned and abandoned in midocean Friday morning, confirm that the loss of life will be limited to about one hundred and thirty-six. The Carmania, first of the rescuing ships to reach the burning steamer, arrived off Queenstown this morning, but owing to the gale, proceeded direct to Fishguard, where she is due to arrive at 11 a. m.

A graphic story by the solitary survivor aboard the Carmania was received by wireless and presents a terrible picture of the horror, the panic and confusion aboard the burning liner. Walter Trintepohl, a German, who tells the story, however, is clearly suffering from the stress of illness and his awful experience, and his story is too incoherent to be accepted in every detail.

Most important, if true, is his denial that two boats got away from the Volturno. According to other accounts, Captain Inch was the last to leave his vessel, which still was burning late Friday night and was a danger to navigation.

Forty of Victims Were Drowned.

Forty of the one hundred and thirty-six persons known from the steamship Volturno in mid-Atlantic were in the two boats which succeeded in getting away from the burning vessel and which without doubt were swamped. The majority of the other persons who lost their lives were in four other boats which were smashed against the steamer's sides in attempts to launch them.

All this occurred before the arrival of the Carmania, with other rescuers summoned by wireless calls for help. The Carmania with one lone survivor of the Volturno aboard found it too rough to stop at Queenstown and so proceeding direct to Fishguard. From that survivor, however, comes a thrilling story of the burning of the steamer, of the terrors, the struggle for the boats, the death of those who went down in the waves and his own desperate fight for life.

Arthur Spurgeon, a passenger on the Carmania, had a wireless dispatch supplements his own description of the race of the Carmania to the burning vessel and the rescue of the passengers of the Volturno by the story told him by the survivor, Walter Trintepohl, a German, who came to the Carmania and was rescued in a exhausted condition.

Since being taken aboard the Carmania Trintepohl has been in the ship's hospital threatened with pneumonia. He told his story to Mr. Spurgeon before he became seriously ill. Spurgeon, from his exhausted state and his broken English, his account of the disaster was somewhat incoherent.

Story of the Horror.

Trintepohl had been employed at Barcelano, and took third-class passage on the Volturno to secure a position offered him in New York.

"All went well," said Trintepohl, "until 4 o'clock Thursday morning, when the alarm sounded. We were aroused andtold to go on deck, as fire had broken out in the hold. On assembling lifebelts were handed around and all were occupied in fastening them. We were told that the fire soon would be quenched, but the captain thought it wise to get the boats below as a precaution.

"The fire frightened the children, who cried bitterly. There were many babies in arms. The fire grew worse. We saw things blazing down below. About 10 o'clock there was a cry to lower the boats.

"The captain behaved splendidly. So did the officers, who were English. A ship's boat was at the davits, and they were Germans and Belgians, behaved very badly. The people rushed about wildly and the crew seemed to think they might have to fight and instead of quieting the passengers they made the panic worse.

"The first officer took charge of the first boat, and into it he wanted the women and children saved first. A number of men who entered the boat were members of the crew.

All Were Drowned.

"This boat was launched against the ship's side. Just as it reached the water a sea came and broke it up. All were drowned.

"Meanwhile attempts were made to lower the second boat. I cannot say if I was in charge of this, but I do know that after the chief steward had been knocked overboard I jumped into himself. There were more men than women in the boat, and the boat which did not go down, for it was broken against the ship and all were drowned.

"The second boat were amidships. Three other boats were put out on the fourth officer was in one of them, but I cannot say which one. All were overboard. The ropes broke and the occupants were thrown into the water and drowned or killed.

"When the captain saw what had

MESSINA IS ALARMED BY TREMBLING EARTH

Messina, October 12.—An earth shock, accompanied by distant rumblings, was felt here today. The disturbance continued about ten seconds. It caused much alarm, but no serious damage. According to records of the observatory the shock was local.

lapsed be cut the tackle of the other boats so that they could not be launched.

"We were so glad when we saw the Carmania come, for we said here we shall all be saved.'

"The firemen rushed up from below and refused to go back. The captain drew his revolver and ordered them below, but soon after as the fire was spreading, they were obliged to abandon the engines.

"As soon as the Carmania was sighted the captain made all the women and children go to one side of the ship and the men to the other side. He had been compelled to leave the bridge and go aft because it was too hot. Women wept, shrieked, laughed and became hysterical.

"We had not thought of food, but in the afternoon we considered it better to get something and went to the kitchens, which we found deserted, made coffee and helped ourselves to biscuit and beef. But most of the passengers refused to eat.

Decks Hotter and Hotter.

"We saw rafts sent from the Carmania, but nobody told us to jump for in fact, we knew not what they were there for. About 5 o'clock the decks aft began to get very warm, then hotter and hotter. But we did not seem to feel the heat.'

When shown his boot with the sole half burned through Trintepohl said:

"I don't remember that, but it was awful when the flames burst out. Some of the men and women lost their hair, but others were quite still.

"After the explosion I thought it better to jump, for I am a good swimmer, and an English passenger and one of the crew said they would accompany me. I jumped first; they followed and I never saw them again.

"I spoke for the German ship, but they did not hear me. Then I came towards the Carmania and shouted 'Help, help!' and was saved by aid of the searchlight. I was then about an hour in the sea, and became half unconscious. I know nothing more.

"During the day five sailors and one steward fell into the sea and their hair, but others were quite still.

"After the explosion I thought it better to jump, for I am a good swimmer, and an English passenger and one of the crew said they would accompany me. I jumped first; they followed and I never saw them again.

"I spoke for the German ship, but they did not hear me. Then I came towards the Carmania and shouted 'Help, help!' and was saved by aid of the searchlight. I was then about an hour in the sea, and became half unconscious. I know nothing more.

"During the day five sailors and one steward fell into the sea and their hair burned to death.

"I know nothing more. I came away because it was too hot to stay any longer and I thought that the ship would blow up.'

When Trintepohl was told that, according to the captain's wireless message, six boats had been lowered, he said: 'It is not so; two got away, but I saw the rest and saw every thing. No boat got away.'

Attempts to Use Lifeboats.

Mr. Sparsgen, in his account, tells of the attempts to get lifeboats alongside the Volturno.

"Nothing," he said, "was seen of the two boats launched on the starboard side, passengers each after they left the Volturno's side. Four others were launched from the starboard the ship's side and the occupants were picked up by the Carmania.

"At 5 o'clock Thursday night the captain of the Carmania received a wireless message which read: 'For God's sake help us we burn.'

"By a miracle the flames did not spread to the after decks and finally the seas moderated and boats saved 521 persons. The death roll numbers one hundred and thirty-odd souls.

The wireless operators who received the Carmania sent the first message. "Two boats were lowered from the starboard before the Carmania arrived and 110 passengers were lost. Disembarkation commenced before daylight. The actual number lost is 136, as far as known."

A wireless message from the captain of the Devonian, one of the rescuing steamers, says he has fifty-nine survivors aboard, comprising the most 20 women and 21 children, all well. This is the same number previously reported.

A wireless message from the steamer Seydlitz, forwarded from Bremen, says she has aboard forty-six survivors instead of thirty-six as previously reported. The vessel, according to the ten supposed to have been aboard the Carmania, the latter evidently having been credited with eleven survivors, whereas she brings only nine.

Among the first-class passengers on the Volturno there are: Mr. and Mrs. Americus, John Krug and Frida Krug.

488 PASSENGERS SAVED

AND IS MEMBERS OF CREW

New York, October 12.—A message from Captain Inch, of the steamship Carmania, the first communication from a person who had been on board the ill-fated Volturno, was received at the offices of the steamship company here, was received today. It was sent by wireless from the steamer Kreetland, and relayed to New York by Cable. It said:

"Volturno on fire, abandoned in latitude 48.29 north, longitude 24.30 west. Approximate passengers saved 485 approximate crew saved 32. "INCH."

(Signed)

If Captain Inch's figures are correct, 148 persons lost their lives as a result of the disaster. Officials of the Cunard line said today that their records showed there are 560 passengers and a crew of 300 on the vessel. Taking the number of persons saved as sent by Captain Inch, as has been given by the company as a basis for computation, it would appear that 372 passengers and 63 off the ship's personnel, a total of 435, are missing.

That the steamer Rappahannock, which is speeding toward Halifax from the scene of the disaster, has on board nineteen persons saved in the wireless wreck was confirmed in a wireless dispatch received here tonight from the captain of the vessel on his way to Cape Race. The dispatch said:

"Passengers are twenty-three women and four children, all scantily clad, follow:

"Privia Bix, Parry Bix, Edna Friedman, Mrs. Gulick Paraskeva and Miss Nicolai, Maria Idenberg, Father Pedlack, Selec Tomaschek, Mrs. Hapske, Alexandria Montkonski, Vyo Laudin, Rachel Lazarus, Mrs. H. Laudin, Bella Recensky, Mrs. Maria Nikitasack and Catherine Lookas; Dimitrie and Catherine Wojciek.

Throughout the day the offices of the Gradium line were besieged with persons making inquiries of relatives or friends aboard the Volturno. Paul G. Fourman, the passenger agent manager of the line, and E. O. Thomas, the manager, were compelled until the list of the saved aboard the Rappahannock came to tell them they had no further information than had been published in the newspapers.

One woman sought news of her mother and three sisters. A Turkish Satinski desired news as to the fate of Ida Baltaska, his bride, coming from Kiev, heart, who was also coming from Kiev, Russia, to marry him. He showed a letter she had posted at Rotterdam on a faster steamer than the Volturno, in which she said she looked forward with great happiness to their meeting.

MODERNIZE CHURCH. SUGGESTS DANIELS

Durham, N. C., October 12.—Modernization of church methods for increasing popular interest in religious work was urged by Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels in an address before a man's meeting here today. As a means of attracting young people, the speaker recommended the use of motion pictures in all Sunday schools.

More than 1,000 men heard Mr. Daniels' address, which was an exposition of what he termed an "alarming indifference, both within and without the church," toward religious affairs. William Jennings Bryan and Theodore Roosevelt were lauded for their stand against intemperance.

WOMAN'S MURDER STILL A MYSTERY

One Hundred Clues Run Down and Found Worthless in Brown Case — Miss Brown Murdered in Office.

Dallas, Texas, October 12.—One hundred clues have been run down and all found worthless in the Florence Brown mystery, according to a statement made today by friends of Detective Henry Tanner, of Dallas. Miss Brown, a church choir singer and prominent Young Women's Christian association worker, was found dead with her throat cut in her uncle's real estate office here at 2 p. m. July 31, under circumstances of her death. Chief Tanner and today, have remained practically high incredible ever since.

Miss Brown, 26 years old, rather handsome, was stenographer and confidential agent for her uncle, Jeff D. Robinson, of the firm of Robinson & Strycon. Her home was in Colorado. On the morning of her death, Dallas Mrs. B. Cutherson, an employee, called as was customary at her home on the way to the automobiles. Together they rode direct to the office, opening it about 8 o'clock.

Waved Goodby to Him.

Fifteen minutes later Cuthbertson drove away in the automobile on business, leaving Miss Brown alone. She stood in the street door and waved goodby to him, several persons afterwards identifying this action. Later Mrs. Cuthbertson returned just before 9 o'clock, finding the office apparently deserted. As the other employees were out for the morning, this was unusual.

The office interior, on the ground floor, was entirely visible from the sidewalk, except two small rooms, behind the main office and a hat room just behind it. The hat room had two entrances, one from the private office and one from the main office. Hundreds of persons passed this office, at one of the city's busiest corners on Field street, during Cuthbertson's absence. He entered, sat at his desk a moment, and then W. H. Styron, of the firm, and O. Swor, its employee, entered together. Swor went directly to the hat room, and immediately cried out for Syron and Cuthbertson to come there. That something has happened to Miss Brown."

Marks of Terrible Struggle.

The three found her lying on her face, throat cut and arms and shoulders bearing marks of a terrible struggle. They thought she was still alive. A physician, who came on the summons within two minutes, declared she must have had not been dead more than ten minutes.

Miss Brown was a small woman, but had killed her had to fight hard. A deep bite in the forearm of one of her slayer showed where the slayer had held one arm with his teeth. Her face, arms and her breast and her waist were scratched and bruised. Police and detectives to believe a woman had attacked her. The heavy knife had been struck on her forehead, and one on the back of the head, that probably stunning her. Then, apparently, as she fell face downward, the slayer had drawn back her head and cut her throat. Again, there was the impression that the slayer was not muscular, as the knife had been drawn three times through the wound. A wash bowl in the hat room was half full of bloody water, and the inside knob of the door opening into the main office was bloody, indicating the killer first looked out to see if the office was empty, and then washed his hands.

No Knife Was Found.

Detectives said the girl's position face downwards made it possible for the slayer to escape unseen. No knife was found. There was no exit from the office, neither door nor window, except the front street door. No knife or bloody clothes, however, could be found in the sewers searched and floors raised. The only thing approaching a weapon was a hammer, which belonged in the hat room. There was human hair on both its handle, but the iron head was clean. These are all the material facts except the actual death that eleven weeks' search have revealed.

At first it was thought she died defending her jewels, as the safe in the room, to which she had the combination. But the safe contained less than $15 and no important papers.

Cuthbertson's alibi, an old one, had been violently jarred. The detectives continued what was done in Florence Brown's struggle.

Girl Was Not Assaulted.

Not the slightest evidence of attempted assault was found. Patrolman J. R. Brown, the girls father, had the best passing her office door, and was a short distance away when she was killed. However, neither he nor other officers reached the place until after an unprofessional undertaker had removed the body. Every fair sized room around the office, some within 30 feet of the murder, only three were found to throw no light on it. A woman acquaintance of Miss Brown had looked in about 8:30 noting little or nothing out of order. A man noted the same thing. Another man thought he had heard a scream after 8:30.

Cuthbertson's story was verified to the last detail. Styron and Swor have negative alibis. Every man and woman, some of them by private detectives, in the far west Tuesday or Wednesday, cross the middle west Thursday, and the eastern states Friday or Saturday.

Everyone will be attended by rains and be preceded by a general temperature. It will be followed by considerably colder weather, which will make its appearance in the northwest about Wednesday. There are no indications at present of a disturbance in the West Indies.

IT'S "DISCOVERY DAY" AT KNOXVILLE SHOW

Knoxville, Tenn., October 12.—Discovery day will be celebrated in this city tomorrow with Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore, and Supreme Knight Flaherty of Philadelphia, head of the Knights of Columbus, as the leading speakers. The exercises will be held in Chilhowee auditorium and 5,000 will be present, not only from all the leading cities of Tennessee, but from surrounding states.

Cardinal Gibbons celebrated mass in 20 local Catholic churches today and at high mass preached a strong sermon on "Mercy." Though in his eighteenth year, Cardinal Gibbons also held a public reception this afternoon, receiving hundreds of callers.

HE WALKS OUT WINDOW AND BREAKS HIS NECK

Macon, Ga., October 12.—(Special.) Ed Reddick, a cigarmaker, walked out of a second story window in a factory where he was employed tonight, and falling to the walk below broke his neck and both legs. He was carried to the hospital in an unconscious condition and it is believed he will die.

MARRIAGE COMMISSION ADVOCATED BY BRICKER

Men Should Be Able to Support, and Women Be Good Housekeepers.

Denouncing in scathing terms the state judicial system in the issuance of divorces and alleging that the state alone is responsible for fully two-thirds of the present day divorces Rev. L. O. Bricker, pastor of the First Christian church, located on South Pryor street, from his pulpit last night, made a terrific attack on the divorce evil in his sermon, "The Divorce Mill, the Grist, the Grinders and the Ground."

Declaring that the institution of matrimony, the most portentous inquest over the dead angel of happiness," declared Rev. Bricker. "The courts and the public press of late have bitterly arraigned women, blaming this profession for domestic troubles, the wrecked lives and broken hearts occurring in a social community. But they offer no solution for the shattering of loved young dream and broken promises.

Cheated of Birthright.

"They say that the contracting parties were young and ignorant and made a mistake in being married when they did not realize what they were doing, thus being cheated of their birthright and that the minister should have hesitated before performing the ceremony.

"But I want to say," continued Dr. Bricker, that neither the ministers nor th eyoung people are wholly to blame. These young people should have been taught at home. There are too many books written on every subject except on training people how to live together happily. They are taught everything in the grade schools, mathematics, etc., but never a word on the most important subject before us today.

"High morals and righteous living are taught from the pulpit and the church does all in its power to keep the children from entering that marital wilderness. There are thousands of married women without husbands and the same number of men without wives today. But divorce is not the cause but the effect of this wretchedness. The cause lies far back of all this. Divorce merely publishes the fact that the home is dead or the grave. It is but a funeral notice of a dead love.

Can Only Marry Them.

"A judge of Atlanta has said that the ministers are to blame and I will answer in behalf of the ministry, that the judge's sum of $1.50 is his license for any young man can buy one. All he has to do is to give his age and name and pay over the money. Then when he comes to the minister the minister can do no other than marry him. For if the minister does not marry it perchance the judge himself or any justice of the peace will gladly unite the couple.

"The state therefore has no right to grant a divorce when it did not help in the beginning to prevent the catastrophe. The only and most sensible remedy that I can see and what I believe God will bring about, is that there be a commission composed of a physician, a lawyer and a minister, and this commission the power to grant marriage licenses. The command of the young man his business ability to support a wife and to make a home. Let them give him a test and if he is deserving. From the young woman let them ascertain her ability to make a home and become a housekeeper. She should aim to fit for motherhood.

"Seven states have now adopted this policy and it is proving most effective. Ministers of the gospel churches are also advocating this movement in the little directions.

Not Hard to Live Together.

"It does not command heroic qualities to live together happily. The secret of success is a little forbearance on the part of both parties. Both parties must have an equal say in all matters and cooperate with sincere affection and comradeship. Many people start happiness and effort, but they cannot be. We learn to be happy by trying to be same by doing the same thing else by doing our best and trying.

"There is after all only one excuse for divorce and that is infidelity—the cardinal sin. If a man violate the marriage vows, I assert that a thousand furies will overtake him and the avengers will trace him down."

BRACING FALL WEATHER PROMISED FOR WEEK

Washington, October 12.—Bracing fall weather, generally fair skies and is promised the greater part of the country for the coming week by the weather bureau.

"Temperatures will average near or below normal and precipitation will be generally light and local except in the north Pacific states, where rains will be frequent.

"The next disturbance of importance to cross the country will appear in the far west Tuesday or Wednesday, cross the middle west Thursday, and the eastern states Friday or Saturday.

"This disturbance will be attended by rains and be preceded by a general temperature. It will be followed by considerably colder weather, which will make its appearance in the northwest about Wednesday. There are no indications at present of a disturbance in the West Indies.

PROCTOR TELLS NEEDS OF THE NEGRO SCHOOLS

Constitution Is Praised for Its Efforts to Improve Conditions in Atlanta.

"The public school system for the colored race in Atlanta is a basis for the intelligence, efficiency and virtue of the 60,000 negroes in this city, and its condition vitally affects the entire city," said Rev. H. H. Proctor in the prelude to his regular sermon at the First Congregational church, colored, last night.

"The Constitution," he continued, "seeks the best talks of the entire community for the fight it is making, for better public school facilities. Much credit is due the women of both races who are leading in this work of investigation and agitation. If the conditions of the white schools is bad, that of the blacks is worse. There are at least four points in which our schools for negroes should be improved:

"Better buildings and better. The 12,000 colored children of school age in Atlanta can not be housed in the present structures, and of the eleven buildings for blacks only two are modern and sanitary.

"The abolition of the double session, an injustice to teacher and pupil alike. By halving the time of the 8,000 children in the school at least one-half of that number is put upon the street, and just about that number of negro children of school age were arrested during the last year. Benevolent as was the intent of the double session, it results in crime.

"3. There should be a night school to make provision for those who on account of necessity of work can not attend in the day. Not a night school is needed for the whites, the much more for the blacks.

"4. A central high and industrial school to bring the system into unity and completeness. Negroes must pay 40,000 rebels under General Francisco Villa, a former bandit known as "Pancho," the rebels poured in between him and Argumedo, separating the federal forces.

General Alvirez saw himself hopelessly defeated and his men be for shot down on all sides. When only half a dozen men were left around the commander-in-chief he sent on his horse and waited until the rebel bullets put an end to his life.

Villa came along shortly afterwards. On the news of the death of General Alvirez and ordered his men to take up the fight. Therefore it was suspended from a telegraph pole in conspicuous place in the center of the city.

WILSON KEEPS SILENT ABOUT HUERTA'S COUP

Washington, October 12.—Dispatches to the state department tonight reported about ninety Mexican deputies still under arrest. Originally it was reported that all had been released. In view of the statement of Manuel Garza Aldape, minister of interior, that not one of the deputies had been released," it is presumed here that not all of the 110 finally were imprisoned after the episode at the Mexican chamber of deputies on Friday.

Throughout the day messages came to the state department describing the situation in the Mexican capital as quiet, but fraught with possibilities. There were no predictions of what would result from the arrest of deputies, but attention was drawn to the approaching return of Felix Diaz, en route homeward, as likely to have some effect on the situation. Some of the imprisoned deputies were close friends of Diaz, and it probably be some days before a hear to obtain their release.

Interest in the United Press dispatches from Mexico manifesting a keen interest in the situation. No comment was made at the white house or the state department, but it was due to return late tonight from Shoxville, Tenn., where he delivered an address at the conservation exposition. He is expected to discuss the situation with the president early tomorrow.

Those officials who commented upon the situation informally decided that the United States would not intervene in the situation for several days, being content to play the role of observer. The effect of the incidents of the last few days upon the American policy, it is generally agreed here, will be to make every more remote any prospect of recognition by the United States of the Huerta government now in Mexico, and to result in the closest watching by the United States military in connection with the elections of October 26.

Official advices said tonight no excitement was apparent in Mexico City, but that there were many rumors of disaffection among federal troops because of lack of pay. It has not yet been established by the state department whether the fall of Torreon was due to mutiny in the federal ranks of to the strategy of the constitutionalists. Official reports say the downfall of Torreon has had a depressing effect on General Huerta's army.

PORFIRIO DIAZ SILENT ABOUT HUERTA'S COUP

Biarritz, October 12.—General Porfirio Diaz, ex-president of Mexico, when shown dispatches today concerning the arrest of the deputies at the Mexican capital, displayed intense interest but would make no comment for publication. He had intended to leave Paris this week and after proceeding to Madrid, but he now expects to remain until the end of October.

FEDERALS AMBUSHED AND SHOT BY REBELS

Mexico City, October 12.—The interior department today received a telegram from San Luis Potosi, where, besides the evacuation of Torreon, due to the incapacity of the federal leadership.

"Several Spaniards," says the telegram, "have arrived here from Torreon. They admit that the retreat of the federals was due to the treachery of their leaders. The authorities had gone into sufficient reserves to defend the city for a long time. They believe that the situation is not desperate, and that the government can recover control of the whole region with the elements which are now concentrated at Saltillo (to the north of Torreon), and which it is about to send there.

A witness of the engagement in which General Alvirez was killed and captured last year. Besides the only three persons escaped; these were a Spaniard, a Frenchman and a Turk. General Alvirez started out from Torreon with 400 men and a battery of artillery. General Argumedo followed a short distance behind with 200 men.

When Alvirez was ambushed by 4,000 rebels under General Francisco Villa, a former bandit known as "Pancho," the rebels poured in between him and Argumedo, separating the federal forces.

General Alvirez saw himself hopelessly defeated and his men be for shot down on all sides. When only half a dozen men were left around the commander-in-chief he sent on his horse and waited until the rebel bullets put an end to his life.

Villa came along shortly afterwards. On the news of the death of General Alvirez and ordered his men to take up the fight. Therefore it was suspended from a telegraph pole in conspicuous place in the center of the city.

CANDIDATES IN SECOND ON PLATFORM TOGETHER

Luke, Covington and Park All Speak Today in Mitchell Courthouse.

Thomasville, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—Camilla is to have an old-time political rally tomorrow with speeches from all three of the candidates for congress from the Second district.

The fall session of Mitchell superior court convened in Camilla on Monday and as the attendance upon it is always large it was decided that it would be a good time for a sort of general debate on the issues of the campaign and in the interest of the race they are making for congress.

It is thought probable that court will be adjourned until a later date, as a petition has been circulated and freely signed asking the judge to do so on account of the busy season with the farmers and also because the friends of Judge Park wish to give him an opportunity to cover as much of the district as possible before the election takes place.

Should Luke and Covington have signified their willingness to be present on Monday and Judge Park will of course be there anyway. There will probably be some gathering of men from Thomasville and from other near-by towns in the district to hear the first opportunity of hearing what each candidate has to say in his own interest.

PROF. BRITTAIN'S HOME LOOTED BY BURGLAR

An unknown marauder invaded the house of State School Superintendent M. L. Brittain, on West Peachtree street, Saturday night, and got away with his clothes, watch, a small amount of money and other valuables. Professor Brittain and his wife, who were reposing on a sleeping porch upstairs, knew nothing of the burglar's visit until Sunday morning.

The housebreaker got in by raising a window on the ground floor. He went after everything in sight, being particularly attracted to Professor Brittain's Old Guard uniform, covered as it was with gilt tinsel and other military trappings. A second examination convinced him, however, that the gold lace on the coat was sewed on, left it on the floor by a window.

The superintendent's wearing apparel was gone, however, all that was left being a black coat and a bright red pair of trousers. Professor Brittain particularly regrets the loss of his watch, which was a present from the home mission board of the Southern Baptist convention, and also a gold medal which he won in college.

Professor Brittain believes that the invader was a negro, as he does not think a white man would have taken the clothes.

BIJOU LEASING MARKS PASSING OF LANDMARK

Building Was the First Real Theater Ever Built in Atlanta.

With the erection of a modern office building, which seems now certain, at northwest corner of Marietta and Broad, is heralded the passing of a building that is part of the delightful social and theatergoing life of Atlanta in the days when the highest building was perhaps some three stories and when none dreamed of the skyline of today.

It is stated that preparations are being made for the erection on the site of the Bijou theater new plot where the present one-story building stands of a twenty-nine story building with something like 500 offices. The name will be named in this matter is an agreement on the part of the Bijou Realty company to lease the lot for ninety-nine years to the Bijou Realty company, of which Amos W. Building company, of which Amos W. Braselton is president. It is DeGive Braselton is president. This deal had not been consummated and that the matter was still not in definite shape, however.

It is the general belief, however, that this deal will be carried out as has been the erection of other buildings in Atlanta where the ground was leased for ninety-nine years. The aggregate sum of the long term lease is $2,176,000, which is to be on a graduated scale.

It was in 1892 that L. DeGive first saw the site of Marietta and Broad though the lot. Later he acquired other frontage on Marietta street and Broad. In 1897 the present name, and the theater was built, and has changed to its present appearance despite alterations the old building is practically the same as it was first constructed.

Few Atlanta first met Joe Jefferson and scores of others of the stars of the days gone by. The DeGive theater was Atlanta's first real theater and the old timer will tell you that never did the modern boards has there been such talent shown as behind the footlights of the old DeGive theater. The passing of the landmark, which will be realized must come soon, will bring a sigh to the breast of all Atlanta's pioneers.

ESTLE ON L. B. & A. IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Grange, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—The railroad trestle on the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic road over the Chattahoochee river, near Sterling Rock, was almost totally destroyed by fire tonight. It is stated that it will be Saturday before the structure can be rebuilt and traffic between Manchester and Birmingham will necessarily be tied up until that time.

The trestle caught fire about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon after a train had passed. The fire was not discovered by the railroad officials until some time later and at 7 o'clock over 200 feet of the bridge had been destroyed with the flames still uncontrolled. A special flied with fire fighters was sent out from Manchester but it could be accomplished. It is thought that the entire structure will have to be replaced.

"PREACH THE GOSPEL THROUGH NEWSPAPERS"

But Church Should Pay for Space It Uses, Says Dr. Holderby.

Utilize modern ways of reaching the people with the gospel and thus carry out Christ's command to preach His word from the housetops, was what Dr. A. R. Holderby, pastor of Moore Memorial Presbyterian church, told his hearers Sunday morning. He advocated the use of newspapers by the church, but declared that the church should not be a "deadhead," but should pay for the space it used.

"When Jesus commanded his twelve Apostles to preach what they had learned of him, from the housetops, he intended to teach them that his gospel was to have the widest publicity," he said. "It was the custom among the Jews to make important proclamations fro mthe housetops, and so the disciples must have understood what Jesus meant by the command.

"If the gospel is to be confined to the circumscribed limits of the pulpit and of the churches, the world will never be evangelized. The pulpit does not and cannot reach the masses of the people. True, there are many church buildings in which the gospel is preached but the number of people reached by this means is very small. The preacher who is limited to the pulpit is doing but little to evangelize the world.

"The telegraph, the telephone, the phonograph, the great daily newspapers, the railroads and the ships that sail the seas, all are servants of God and are helping to win the world for Christ; unintentionally, perhaps, and unwillingly, they are agents for the spreading of the gospel.

"The newspapers, while they are not published for the purpose of aiding the cause of religion, yet as a matter of fact are being used of God for the spread of the gospel and they are helping to evangelize the nations. Every reputable newspaper in the country publishes anything that bears upon the gospel. And where the pulpit preaches to thousands, the great newspapers preach to hundreds of thousands. They are the greatest of publicity agents and should be used as far as possible for the proclamation of the gospel.

"It is the proper thing to do to use the newspapers for the advancement of the gospel but this privilege should be paid for by the church just as it has to pay for the telegraph, the telephone, the railroads and other utilities.

"It is a disgrace for the church to pose before the world as a 'deadbeat,' and to get all the free advertisement it can beat out of the newspapers.

"If a church is unwilling to pay for spreading the gospel, and thus helping to evangelize the world, it had better go out of business."

DURAND'S

Bride, Now Seeking Divorce, Tells Story of Her Wedding

MRS. JESSIE B. GWINN.

Mrs. Jessie Brock Gwinn, who has found that wealth and automobiles do not always make a girl happy, and who longs for the fiance who is not wealthy, instead of the husband who is, sat on her front porch for just about two minutes Sunday afternoon. She had consented to pose for a picture. It seemed to the photographer that the attractive little blond head would turn this way and that every second and that he had to snap his pictures between movements.

The neighbors just seem head over heels in curiosity and they won't let me come out of the house," she explained. She was watching then that no one should come walking by to get a sight of her.

Everybody Looks at Her.

The 17-year-old girl who had Monday ran away with John Henry Gwinn three days after she had become engaged to Fred Bagwell, and who left her husband last Friday, is the center of attention in the Larkin street neighborhood. It used to be that when she came out about her business that only the masculine neighbors turned to look at her. They could not help it, because she is good to look at, and really she didn't mind just a fleeting glance. Now they all stare and never seem to take their eyes off her.

"It's worse than the crowds at the Frank trial," she said, "and I've had to stay in the house all day, and it's so pretty outdoors, too."

The bride of a week is hoping that the courts will listen to the demands of her father, J. W. Brock, and annul the marriage. She has discovered that after all she loves Fred Bagwell and can be happy with no other man, and Fred still carries the marriage license in his pocket. He had bought one on Monday and was to have been married to her that night, but instead she was persuaded to marry Gwinn Monday afternoon.

"I never can tell how I ever came to marry John Henry," the girl said. "He and his friends got around me when I met him at lunch that day and even I wouldn't promise to marry him they persuaded me to get in the auto and take a ride and they went straight to the ordinary and got a license. Then they told me that they'd never speak to me if I didn't get married right then.

Easy to Persuade.

"Oh, I must be easy to persuade for somehow I couldn't refuse and before I knew it Judge E. H. Orr had tied the knot. Then I burst into tears. I realized what I had done, but it was too late and I tried for five days to make the best of it."

What will happen in the romantic affair today is something that can only be guessed at. Gwinn, who is the son of the showman at 6 Luckie street, has employed Munday and Cornwell, attorneys in the Kiser building, and is preparing to file proceedings for divorce. Mr. Brock is going to start suit for an annulment of the hasty marriage on the ground that his daughter is a minor and married without his consent.

BOLTON MAY RECOVER FROM DUEL IN STREET

Trouble Said to Have Started When Snipes, Non-Union Painter, Is Called Scab.

Macon, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—Will Bolton, the worst injured of the three victims of the exhibition of frontier gun play at Third and Poplar streets yesterday afternoon, is still in a critical condition at the Macon hospital, though hope of his recovery has not been entirely abandoned.

"If pneumonia does not set in, I think he will have a fair chance of recovery," said the attending physician today. Of course when a man is shot through the lung the chances are ten to one against him."

Charles Snipes and Grover C. Little, the other two victims, are in the hospital ward at the county jail. Their injuries are painful but are not considered serious. Neither has yet consented to talk of the shooting and will probably have nothing to say until the outcome of Bolton's injuries is known.

It was learned today that the shooting was the result of a quarrel which occurred two weeks ago in a Broadway saloon. The three men were members of a party in the saloon when Bolton is alleged to have said to a friend who was with him, "Come on, let's get away from these scabs." This angered Snipes, who is a non-union painter, and it is alleged he cut Bolton on the cheek with a knife. Then both men were alleged to have made threats against the other, ending in the shooting scrape of Saturday afternoon.

Washington, October 12.—Experts of bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, today issued a report showing that exports of American eggs during the fiscal year of 1913 reached 21,000,000 dozens, as compared with 14,000,000 dozen twenty years ago. More than half the total went to Canada.

MEMORIAL TO BRADDOCK WHERE HE WAS KILLED

Uniontown, Pa., October 2.—Plans have been completed for the dedication of the monument to General Braddock in the mountain near here next Wednesday. The monument has been placed on the grave of the famous English general, who was buried where he fell in a battle with Indians in 1875.

A detachment of the Coldstream Guards, of England, and many well-known Pennsylvanians, headed by Governor Tener, will attend the ceremonies. Lieutenant Reginald A. E. Codrington, former commander of the Coldstream Guards, is expected to bring a message from the king of England.

FALL BOOM IS ON IN SUNDAY SCHOOLS

Twenty-One Schools, in Weekly Report, Show a Gain of 2,104 Over Last Year.

All the Sunday schools of Atlanta felt the renewed vigor of autumn yesterday. It seemed as if the brisk air of October brought out hundreds of people who have been staying at home during the languid days of the summer, for the reports of the attendances in the various schools showed a splendid increase.

The twenty-one schools included in the day's report showed a total attendance of 9,039, as compared with a total of only 6,918 on the same day last year, which is a gain of 2,104. This is an average of 430 in these twenty-one schools, as compared with an average of 329 a year ago, being an average gain of 100.

Superintendents to Meet.

The question of whether or not these weekly attendance reports will be continued will probably be decided Tuesday night, at the monthly meeting of the Superintendents' congress, which will be held in the First Christian church. This organization, which embraces all the evangelical denominations of Atlanta, instituted the weekly reports four months ago as a membership campaign and already it is felt that a stimulus has been given to the Sunday school work by the friendly contest spirit engendered by the reports. Some of the superintendents have proposed that the campaign be not continued, however, and this question the congress will decide.

The First Christian Sunday school led the list for Sunday, having 706 present, while the Central Presbyterian ran a close second with 704. The complete report follows:

The Blouses of Today

A Display That Gives an Impressive Idea of the Radical and Exquisite Changes in the Styles for This Season

In the old days such a display would be termed an opening—so great, varied and true it is.

The latest arrivals (they came last Friday) make it complete and authentic to date. These we gathered in New York within the last week—they represent the latest blouse styles brought out from Paris.

So now the women of Atlanta may choose with that sense of security that only such a comprehensive variety brings.

We might have attempted many "pretty" words about the masses of chiffon, the cobwebby laces, the clinging, softly draping crepes, but they would fall short of the distinctive qualities that make each waist a thing of beauty "per se."

True, the shadow laces are exquisite, the chiffons are as filmy and dainty as ever chiffons were, the crepes have all that softness that women like most, but these points are elementary.

The beauty of these waists is a matter of material plus—plus ideas, the ideas of the cleverest designers who think and plan and exploit waist styles.

True they have been helped by the rich colorings that dominate the fashions, the free rein that has been given to everything Oriental.

But the combining of these colorings into gorgeous effects—here is a mustard-colored chiffon over one of flesh tint. Much shadow lace makes a vest.

There are blouses after the Russian fashion, there are boleros, there are Persian styles, loose-fitting affairs usually worked out in gorgeous colorings typical of that country—others with big bows of satin at the waist.

Blouses for all! For all occasions, for all colors of suits.

We ask you to see at first-hand how completely we have done things this fall!

The price range is an easy rising affair

From $5.00 through $7.50, $8.75 to $29.75

The Facts Are—

Here is a five-story store (enter from Whitehall street or through the main store) given over to the display of furniture and furnishings for the home. As far as our knowledge goes the largest furniture store in the South—which, applied to the individual purchaser, means a freedom to choose from varied stocks that could not be enjoyed in any other store.

This five-story store is filled with a stock of furniture and furnishings that were chosen by experts—by men who know, through experience, training and constant study.

Every piece of furniture that is here is here because these experts have found it to be the best of its kind. This applies with equal meaning to those pieces and sets at medium and low prices and to those elegant, rich pieces and sets of finest woods and truest styles.

There is not an unworthy piece of furniture in the place, which means that when one buys furniture here one makes an investment that is certain to pay dividends, in long years of service.

All of which leads us to suggest that this is the logical furniture store.

Are you in need of even the smallest piece of furniture this fall?

only small portions of the machinery, to transform the Mississippi area from an area of uncertainty into a region of foreordained plenty each year. Another feature is that the improved navigability of the stream will have a bearing on freight rates beneficial not only to the states immediately contiguous to the river, but as well to many of those far distant.

The central states have given cheerfully their zero rate to the reclamation of the arid lands of the west and to the general program everywhere of river and harbor improvement. The burden of keeping the country's biggest river in order is too great a one for their shoulders. It is essentially a national undertaking. What is needed now is less talk, of which we have had superabundance, and more action.

HE WON'T SEE GHOSTS.

All credit to Edwin Farnham Greene, president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, and the northern and southern cotton mills represented in the membership. They have given signal evidence of determination not to see ghosts and destruction in the new tariff bill, but to accept its provisions with confidence in themselves and the "American people." As against the wails going up from other interests, who howl even before they are hit, this logical optimism is inspiriting. Here is a part of what President Greene said in addressing the semi-annual convention of the association in Asheville City, and the associated Press reports that 300 fellow-members cheered him lustily:

> We are an optimistic people and we should enter on the new era as we have fully as much reason for confidence that if in spite of our best efforts the new tariff proves an undue burden, the government in Washington will see its mistake and make reasonable changes.
> Much as we may feel discouraged at the present moment, we have passed through hard times, and the possibly the effect may not be as disastrous as some believe. In any event, we are going forward with courage, believing in the energy, ability and efficiency of the American manufacturer and laborer and in the fairness of the American people in the long run.

That is the right spirit in which American industry should meet all fundamental changes in the law of the land. It is the standpatter in business who is run over, as well as the standpatter and the calamity howler in politics. The mill men, as well as every other interest directly or indirectly affected by the tariff, could not have expected the government to levy a high protective tax eternally. Sooner or later, they would be forced to face the consequences of revision, either as a permanency, or as an honest experiment, at the hands of one party or the other.

The trouble with most of the complaints against the new tariff, and happily they are dwindling, is that manufacturers hitherto highly protected overlook the fact that it is the American people who are doing the revising and that the democratic party is only a vehicle. They should, long ago, have foreseen that revision and a total readjustment of our tariff system was inevitable.
They have had forewarning of its coming ever since the country overwhelmingly rejected the Payne-Aldrich fiasco.

President Greene is right. If the present schedules should prove erroneous or onerous, and a fair trial only can demonstrate their effect, they will be amended. No politician alive is going deliberately to slaughter the property of his country. In the meantime, the resignation with which the majority of the interests are accepting the new order is the strongest indication that it is founded on a tenable economic basis.

EARTH'S GREATEST SPORT.

The baseball season has gone out in a blaze of glory.

The amateur philosopher who once remarked that baseball would do more to bring about universal peace than all the Lake Monhonk and Hague conferences had more than enthusiasm on his side. Surely one agrees that universal peace will follow universal understanding between the nations. And if baseball is not today one of the greatest forces in that direction, we are at a loss to find a substitute. It has grappled stolid England in its grasp, found a community of interest in Japan and set the Filipinos by the ears. Even the plodding German falls victim to its charm. Whenever an American team penetrates the Spanish-American countries, the effect is electrical.

Unquestionably, baseball is today the greatest sport in civilization. We rather suspect it is greatest in history, if one be broad enough in his definitions. It is true that the ancient Roman games, with their wholesale bloodshed and cruelty, fascinated alike the aristocrat and proletariat, the butcher and Caesar himself. But, even winking at their murderous nature, the Roman games were by necessity restricted to a very narrow locality. They could not make a circuit, as baseball does, and they did not offer that species of friendly rivalry that is the charm of the sport played on the green diamond.

Look at the record of the past week, for illustration. The entire nation has been rocking in the throes of a contest between New York and Philadelphia for the championship of the world. With the American, the money test is apt to be the final test.
Measured by the thousands of dollars lavished by those who saw the games and the other and more thousands that would have gladly been lavished had opportunity offered, there is no challenging the hold of the game. But the crucial test is the democracy of the game. On that count, doubt disappears.

Whether issue were joined at New York or Philadelphia, the spectacle was the same.
Multi-millionaire frenzied alongside of day-laborer. Dainty wadies of "farthest north" social standing, manifesting the interest as keen as that of the humblest charwoman.
Before newspaper offices from Portland to Portland, cheering, excited throngs containing every element in the social gamut of this or any other nation.

The beauty about it, too, is that baseball, as it is regulated nowadays, is one of the cleanest and healthiest as well as the greatest of sports. The element of gambling has been barred. The open air offers the amphitheater. Appeal is made to the soundest of instincts. In comparison, the games of decadent Rome sink far in the scale.

A Vision of the Future.

Looking into the near future, the Musket
Ridge Philosopher has this vision, in the Dalton Citizen:

"How will the women dress? God alone knows, but my idea is that they will discard all 'phule' styles and wear comfortable clothing, loose, flowing robes or kimonos with a sash or togs; low heel shoes or sandals; on their heads they will wear knit togues or plain sailor-shape felt or straw hats. There will be no dead birds, feathers, wires, or artificial fruits and flowers. A hat of the present time would appear ridiculous and heathenish, and would be laughed to scorn.

Men will cease wearing stiff, starched, linen bands around their necks and wrists.
Collar and cuff buttons will go, as they will neck ties, scarf pins, supporters, tie-clasps, belts and, in fact, all fool things that are unnecessary and expensive.

"All business will be done on a strict, cash basis and the 'one price' system will prevail, and all worthless individuals that won't work will be deported."

Ain't curious 'bout the weather
When the lean wolf's at the door;
Let him find the house so still He'll howl then—howl—howl—more.
'Pears like I hear him say:
"That feller's moved away;
I'll jes' retreat,
An' change my beat,
Or dine on air today!"

That's jes' the way I treat him;
Yer troubles won't begin
Until you hustle to the door
An' let 'em tumble in!
Clink locks! Put up the bars!
Shout from the heights: "Change cars!"
Ah! then they'll go,
Where gray owls cry
For comfort, to the stars!

Wager Tramps.

(From The Indianapolis News.)

Scarcely a week passes that the newspaper offices of the cities of the land are not visited by some roughly dressed traveler, dirty and odorous, who is beating his way round the world on some preposterous kind of wager. After each visit, made for the purpose of getting into print with an accompanying picture of the freak, the premises speak louder than in words for disinfection. One of these globe trotters, who gives his name as Captain Malpagame, and says that he started from New Jersey and is walking round the world for a wager of $100,000, has found a resting place in London, England, for three months with hard labor, for stealing an overcoat. His log book, it was stated at Rotherham police court, contained copies of the seals of many English towns and expressions of good wishes purporting to be signed by public men, including Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the lord mayor of London and the lord mayor of Birmingham. He had been through most of the principal towns of England.

EVENING VISITORS

"Mr. and Mrs. Canvasback and their daughters are coming here this evening," announced the landlady, "and I hope, Mr. Todhunter, that you will come down to the parlor when they arrive, and help to enter-tain them. They think a great deal of you." Then she went on to say that Mrs. Canvasback replied the star boarder. "Most people think a great deal of me. There is something irresistible about my wonderful wit, and sometimes wish I were not so fascinating, for my popularity causes me much inconvenience. Only the other evening I took down a book entitled 'The Flooded Kitchen, or The Journeyman Plumber's Revenge,' and I had planned to read in the evening there reading that absorbing volume. But you call upon me to assist in the great work of entertaining the Canvasback family, and I suppose I must yield.

"They are great bores, these Canvasbacks, for they can talk of nothing but their neighbors, and people who talk of their neighbors invariably have shallow minds and contracted souls. There is much in the world that is worth discussing, but our neighbors are chestnuts. All that we can say of them has been said of other neighbors by empty minded gossips ever since society became an institution. What if Swinger did become inebriated to such a degree that he chastised his wife with a chair? There is nothing original in such a proceeding, my dear Mrs. Jiggers. In all the ages of the world embarrassed gentlemen have been doing that sort of thing, and there is no reason why we should sit in a circle in your somewhat musty parlor, rehearsing such ancient stuff. Yet such has been all the Canvasbacks talk of. They haven't read any of the recent books, they haven't refreshed their minds at the theater, they don't know art from an artichoke. So the business of entertaining such people is a great strain.

"An embarrassing feature of such entertainments, my dear Mrs. Jiggers, lies in the fact that the oldest daughter, Letitia, evidently is determined to make me her husband. You may hold up your hands in holy horror, but it is true. A man never is mistaken about such things. When an ancient female is on my trail with matrimonial intentions the hideous truth cannot be disguised. I often pass the Canvasback residence, and Letitia always is at the window, no matter what the hour may be, wearing a ghastly smile that she supposes to be charming. She's always in my way. I meet her everywhere, and she always displays that sepulchral smile, which I never see aimed at anybody else. There is no mistake about it. The prehistoric damsel is bound to make me captive.

"There is nothing more humiliating to a strong man than to have an old maid on his trail. He begins to realize at last that he is a back number. An old maid pursues the young and promising man until her last hope is exhausted. It is only when despair rends her bosom that she goes after the elderly bachelor, and the fact that she is after him makes that elderly bachelor realize how his price has gone down. But I intend to sell my life as dearly as possible, Mrs. Jiggers, and Letitia Canvasback or that make ss Congress to Remain in But ession Until the Currency Bill Is Passed.

Washington, October 12.—President lson let it be known tonight that I did not favor a recess of congress pe. this time, but desired continuous and uninterrupted consideration of the pending currency bill. Various reports that the president was attempting to force the senate to act more speedily than it wished and efforts by some democratic senators to secure a recess until November 15, while the ser te banking and currency committee was at work on the house bill brought from those close to the president a clarification of the white house po sition.

The president, they said, had no idea of attempting to fix an arbitrary time when the currency bill should or should not be enacted into law. His wish as expressed throughout his conferences with senate leaders has been for continuous attention to the currency measure with the confidence that with concentrated effort and study the bill would be out of the senate before the beginning of the December session of congress.

Averse to Any Haste.

While averse to any haste that would impair the value of currency reform, the president is anxious that if the senate can improve upon the house bill it will proceed to do so. He still believes, however, that all this can be accomplished during the seven weeks remaining of the present session.

Efforts to bring about a recess incidentally have shown that a majority of the democratic senators were opposed to the proposition, while the contents of the currency bill from the senate committee was in doubt. The senate committee, it is said, has also a disposition to report a bill that all of its members could support and there is no evidence of a divergence in the committee. Differences are apparent over certain features of the measure, but it is believed that many of the senators will be reconciled by certain changes in the house bill which will not affect its general character and will leave it acceptable to President Wilson.

Would Delay Other Reforms.

With the plan for a revision of the anti-trust law, rural credit legislation, immigration changes, consideration of arbitration treaties and appropriation bills, the president takes the view that to delay work on currency now and throw it over into the regular session would not only shorten the time for other vital reforms, but would unnecessarily prolong the next session of congress. This would prevent senators as well as house members from getting back to their states and home districts to participate in the spring primary campaigns, seriously interfering with plans for the November campaign. The president is pointing out, too, that in just a year the dire t election of United States senators will be in effect for the first time. The president believes the democratic party then will be placed on the stand as a unit to prove its claims con nsaiuation in power. With a record of accomplishment—tariff, currency and other big reforms—behind it, he is confident the party will be returned to control of congress with an even larger majority in the senate.

Only Currency to "Front.

Congress has little to occupy it now except currency. An agreement has been made to consider the "seamen's servitude" bill in the senate from October 16 to 22 with a vote on the latter day. With no other pressing business before either house, a quorum probably will be present almost continuously, but the leaders can summon members enough at any time.

During this week the president will have before him the urgent deficiency bill with its provisions exempting deputy collectors of internal revenue and deputy United States marshals from the civil service. It is believed the president will sign the measure on the ground that it is of emergency executive order at any time to place these positions in the civil service.

NATIONAL SURVEY BY CIVIC FEDERATION

New York, October 12.—The National Civic Federation, through its industrial economics department, has decided to undertake a national survey of the industrial and social progress made in this country during the last few decades, together with an examination of economic proposals of those who demand that private ownership of the means of production and distribution of wealth be abolished.

In this inquiry there will be included a study of the differences in the fundamental aims and methods of the labor movement in the United States, trade unions, the socialists and the Industrial Workers of the World.

In a statement referring to this work President Seth Low says:

"There could be no better time than the present to make this national inquiry of social assets and liabilities. With regard to good or imperfect performance there is much information on both sides of the ledger and on a certainty with a satisfactory knowledge of the assets. Americans will be encouraged to meet their remaining liabilities to the cause of human advancement."

An advisory council of 400 representative men and women of the nation will assist in this work. Included in this council will be leaders in the old of labor, agriculture and manufacturing; representatives of the press, church, colleges, finance, law and medicine, as well as officials of national organizations.

Lambert-McElroy.

Missionary Meeting.

An occasion momentous in its bearings upon the missionary cause was the assemblage of the fourth annual meeting of the Woman's Baptist Missionary Union of the Atlanta association, October 8 and 9, at the Jackson Hill Baptist church.

Presiding over the body of representative Baptist women was the superintendent, Mrs. W. W. Landrum, whose executive force and mental alertness did much toward the actual results accomplished.

In points of attendance, interest and gifts, this meeting eclipsed any of its predecessors, splendid as the latter have been, all of which goes to show that our women are getting a broader conception and a larger vision of their part in God's kingdom.

An achievement worthy of a much larger body was the raising of the sum of nearly $12,000 for missions.

A gift most acceptable was the $30 scholarship to the Louisville Training school, presented by the Atlanta Buckhead Sunday School association, and which has already been tendered to one of our young women, who leaves soon for Louisville.

Among the visiting speakers were Mrs. W. J. Neal, of Cartersville, and Mrs. G. P. Autry, of Manchester, officers of the W. B. M. Union of Georgia, whose splendid talks and delightful personalities added much to the pleasure of the sessions.

The newly elected officers and members of the executive committee are as follows:

Mrs. T. L. Lewis, superintendent; Mrs. L. E. Barton, assistant superintendent; Mrs. S. J. Sheffield, recording secretary; Mrs. Early Gilbert, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. A. H. Hemming, treasurer; Miss Mary Ward, superintendent Y. W. A.; Miss Ethel Hitt, superintendent Sunbeams; Mrs. M. Dawson, superintendent institutional work; Mrs. Rush Smith, chairman publicity committee.

District secretaries: Mrs. J. T. Randall, first; Mrs. E. M. Fain, second; Mrs. W. O. Mitchell, third; Mrs. W. L. Thornton, fourth; Mrs. W. A. Hartman, fifth.

Advisory board: Mrs. A. J. Orme, Mrs. W. G. John, Mrs. H. H. Hale, Mrs. Clayton Calloway, Mrs. W. H. Anderson.

The next meeting will be held at the Capitol Avenue church Wednesday after the first Sunday in October.

The marriage has been announced of Miss Jean A. Norvell and Dr. William Eaton Berry, of Morganton, N. C., which occurred in Atlanta on April 24, 1913, Rev. Charles H. Girardeau officiating.

Bridge Luncheon For Miss Lesem.

Mrs. Robert Wyly Underwood entertained at auction bridge Friday at her home in West End in compliment to Gilher sister, Miss Lillian Lesem, of Gillespie, Ill.

The occasion was a delightful one, the game being played on the porch, which was picturesque with growing plants and goldenrod. The house was artistically decorated in ferns and autumn flowers.

A course luncheon was served, the ices and cake served from the prettily appointed dining table, carrying out the color scheme of pink and white.

The prizes at bridge were won by Mrs. Lucien Harris, Mrs. Charles Underwood and Miss Lesem.

Mrs. Robert Underwood wore a gown of black crepe meteor, and Miss Lesem was gowned in pale blue cloth over pale blue lace, and seemed in pearls and hand-embroidered bands.

Mrs. Underwood was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. M. M. Anderson, and Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Charles Underwood.

Thirteen guests enjoyed Mrs. Underwood's hospitality.

Piano Recital.

At the Hotel Ansley on Friday evening last the Atlanta Institute of Musical Oratory gave a most delightful musical treat in the person of Miss Ruth P. Stanley, pupil of the much heralded Leschetizky.

Mr. Stanley was equal to his well-selected program. A fine sense of values and a lovely singing tone were the order of the evening.

Bridge Luncheon.

Mrs. R. P. Brooks entertained Saturday morning, October 11, at a bridge luncheon at her home in Forsyth complimenting her guests, Mrs. A. V. Foster, Mrs. Frank H. Orme, Mrs. Charles Rice, Mrs. John M. Andrews, Mrs. E. T. Booth, Mrs. S. M. Dean, of Palmetto, Mrs. W. Roberts, of Fayetteburn, and Mrs. T. C. Parker and Mrs. Charles C. Holt, of Macon.

This old colonial home, the scene of so many beautiful affairs, was never more lovely than on this occasion, when decorated with autumn flowers in profusion. The large hall was bright with goldenrod and vines, and here punch was served to the seventy-five guests by six young girls daintily gowned. Dahlias, red and yellow, harmonized beautifully with the old ivory and gold of the drawing room, and in the library goldenglow added its cheery tones to the color scheme. American Beauties were used in the dining room, where a delicious luncheon was served.

Dances at East Lake.

The regular informal dance will be given as usual on Wednesday evening at East Lake. These dances have been largely attended and very popular during the warm months, and will be continued as long as the weather permits.

EMERSON BROYLES HELD ON CHARGE OF FORGERY

Emerson Broyles, a 21-year-old youth of Atlanta, was arrested last night in Marietta as he stepped from an inbound Louisville and Nashville train on charges of forgery made by Logan Williamson, an Atlanta business man.

Broyles was coming from Knoxville, and, it is said, was accompanied by relatives. Efforts, it is stated, have been made to apprehend him for some time on several different alleged cases of forgery. He is held in Marietta and will be brought to Atlanta some time today.

MRS. EATON TO BE TRIED FOR KILLING HUSBAND

Accused Woman Divorced First Husband in Order to Wed the Admiral

Plymouth, Mass., October 12.—Mrs. Jennie May Eaton will be put on trial Tuesday for the murder of her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton. The prosecution contends that Mrs. Eaton gave the admiral poison with his meals at their home in Assinippi. The defense claims that he died of drugs self-administered.

So far as known tonight the government officials have been unsuccessful in their hunt for the original container of the poison, the place where it was bought and the purchaser.

Last March, three weeks after the death of the admiral, the district attorney intimated that Mrs. Eaton's mental condition would be the subject of inquiry, but no move in that direction has been made so far as is known.

Divorced Husband to Wed Admiral.

The prisoner formerly was the wife of D. H. Ainsworth, once a clerk in the United States senate. While Admiral Eaton and his first wife were living in Washington, Mrs. Ainsworth was called as nurse to care for the admiral. Acquaintance grew into friendship and according to the nurse, Mrs. Eaton with her dying breath bequeathed the admiral to her care with the words: "Marry Joe, my dear, and make him good."

In 1906 at Chicago Mrs. Ainsworth divorced her husband, and six months later she married the admiral in Washington. The bride brought to the household her two daughters, June and Dorothy.

Called Admiral a Maniac.

In 1907 the admiral bought a little farm in Assinippi, where he turned to chicken raising. Two years later he adopted a child that lived but a short time. Mrs. Eaton publicly charged her husband with having poisoned the child. Investigation failed to substantiate the charge.

A year or two later Mrs. Eaton complained to friends that the admiral kept all sorts of queer East Indian poisons about the place. She wrote to a friend that he was "subtle, dangerous maniac," and that she was in fear of her life.

Mrs. Eaton is 45 years old. Her early life as the daughter of a prominent Virginia family, the Harrisons, and in Washington will be described at the trial by witnesses summoned from both places.

MAN AND AIRSHIP DROP INTO NEW YORK BAY

New York, October 12.—While flying in a biplane from Hempstead Plains, Long Island, the aerodrome at Oakwood Heights this afternoon, Captain William Walb, fell with his machine 1,500 feet into New York bay. Captain Walb, who is said to be a former German army officer, was uninjured. The biplane was wrecked.

EPISCOPAL PRELATES FILL GOTHAM PULPITS

Bishops Lawrence, Williams and Rowe Preach—Lawrence Refers to Sulzer Case.

New York, October 12.—Prelates attending upon the general convention of the Episcopal church occupied various pulpits in this city. Bishop William Lawrence, of Massachusetts, delivered the sermon at Grace church. Bishop C. D. Williams, of Michigan, preached at Mount Morris Baptist church and Bishop P. T. Rowe, of Alaska, preached at Trinity.

Bishop Lawrence, who took for his text "Ye Seek to Kill Me, a Man Who Has Told You the Truth," touched upon events at Albany and also declared there were two great powers outside the church which are trying to win their ends by violence.

The Politicians Attacked.

In part Bishop Lawrence said:

"The politicians of today have made a man feel that they can dictate to him and make him evade the path of duty. They do not realize what a great force public opinion is, nor do they care. Gambling tempts the finest and most chivalrous characters.

"The kingdom cannot be won by violence, but by reason and by the spirit. There are two great powers today, not within the church, but in the world, trying to win by violence. One is the great united mass of wealth that sends to the legislature certain bills to put through. Some of their bills are held up for worthy motives and some for unworthy motives. When they find it impossible to get the bills through otherwise they have them jammed through by unworthy methods.

"The other great power is the labor unions. When they find it is impossible to put their plans through they resort to violence."

Bishop Williams spoke on "The Necessity of Unity if We are to Make Our Country, God's Country." His address was one of a series on the subject of Christian unity which ministers of various denominations are delivering at the Mount Morris church.

The Snow Shoe Bishop.

Bishop Rowe, "the snow shoe bishop," who has labored for upwards of fifteen years among the natives and inhabitants of Alaska, outlined the work carried on by the Protestant episcopal church in evangelizing and educating the Eskimos.

In the presence of distinguished ministers of the Episcopal and other faiths from all over the country and members of the seamen's commission of the Episcopal general convention and persons interested in the seafarer, the new chapel of Our Savior, on Front street, which takes the place of the old chapel of Our Savior, landmark for nearly a century, was opened with appropriate ceremonies this afternoon. The chapel is the product of the movement to aid the seamen morally and spiritually which began in 1824.

Bishop David H. Greer, of New York, conducted the dedication service.

If Coffee Don't Agree Use POSTUM

A prominent Philadelphia physician says:

"If, on discontinuing coffee, you feel tired, languid, and 'out of sorts,' the coffee had better be forever discontinued, for you are on the verge of inebriety."

Thousands of people have taken warning and proved that coffee was the cause of their headaches, biliousness and nervousness.

A great many former coffee drinkers, feeling the need of a hot drink with meals, now use.

POSTUM

A rich, nourishing food-drink, with delightful flavour much resembling high-grade Java. Postum is made from prime whole wheat, and a small per cent of New Orleans molasses. Contains no caffeine or any other drug.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum requires fifteen to twenty minutes boiling to bring out the rich flavour and food value.

Instant Postum requires no boiling, but is made instantly by stirring a teaspoonful of the soluble powder in a cup of hot water and adding cream and sugar to taste.

Drink it instead of Coffee.

FOOTBALL NOW HOLDS THE CALCIUM

Edited By DICK JEMISON

W.HIFFS

Through With Them

THE GIANTS have lost one of the best supporters they ever had in The Constitution's sporting editor. If a Giant team in the future can show a Mathewson, a Plank, a Bender and a Johnson all on the hurling staff at the start of a world's series, if we were going to play a wager, the other fellow would have our backing.

Class Will Tell

THE ANSWER to the past world's series is that class always will tell. The Athletics had that word stamped all over their every effort. Bender and Schang for the Athletics is our dope for the first battery for the opening game of the 1914 world's series.

Have Learned Lesson

THE MACKMEN are not going to slip up this winter as they did after winning the world's championship in 1911. Buns wagons and wine will be strictly tabooed even in the off season. These are the answers to why the Red Sox nosed the Mackmen out in 1912. But in 1914, watch Connie's smoke.

Bigger Margin

THE AMERICAN league will be choosing up and starting over again about July 1 next season. When Connie gets Bush, Shawkey, Houck and Wyckoff working in rotation with Bender, Plank and Coombs all able to do their share—Whaddayoumean they've got no pitchers?

The Buncombe

THE GIANTS had more friends at the start of the world's series than they have ever had entering a world's series. But they lost them fast. Not because they were unable to successfully cope with the prowess of the Athletics, but because of the wild, unbridled statements of Babe Marquard. He probably never wrote a line of the junk that appeared under his name, but he is given credit for the statements and those who read them immediately soured on the entire Giant team.

The Two Vets

REVIEWING the series casually, the work of the two veterans, Bender, Plank and Mathewson, stands out as shining lights and proves once more what ball players. The lives of Mathewson and Plank have been clean. They are a credit to the great national pastime. Marquard and others in his ilk will do well to pattern after the examples of these two.

Another Star

WALLY SCHANG, the young receiver of the Athletics, is the greatest young catcher that has broken into baseball in ages, if his world's series form is to be taken as any evidence of his real ability and in these games he was put to a supreme test. With the past year's seasoning, he ought to be the star of the league the next campaign.

Four Straight

THE AMERICAN league pennant winners have captured four straight world's series from the National league and the count of the former stands with two years' margin in favor of the younger league. Although there were many who doubted it a year or so ago, the clean-cut margins of the American league standard bearers records seems to just about convinced every one that the American league is, as a whole, faster than the Nationals.

Hope It Sticks

THE RULE of the national commission that ball players cannot write articles for newspapers in the season is one rule that we hope they make stick. Of course such a ruling will be a hardship to a few who really write their own stories, such as Mathewson and Cobb, but some of the sickening stuff that other have written will not be inflicted on a long-suffering public. More power to the national commission.

Are Past Masters

VARDON AND RAY are absolutely the last word in golf. At least Atlanta golfing fans will attest to such a statement. The two Englishmen not only play brilliant golf, but they play it consistently and after seeing them in action for two days on local courses, local fans would like to see what kind of a marvel this young Oulmet is that he can defeat such Stars.

Their One Fault

BOTH seem to have one fault. Maybe they play differently under other conditions or when there is more at stake, but on the local courses, they appeared to be careless in the way they made their putts, though some attribute this to the fact that they were putting on Bermuda putting greens, something they do not meet with elsewhere but in the south.

ENGLISH GOLFERS HAVE EASY TIME.

By Dick Jemison.

Edward Ray and Harry Vardon, the English golf masters, had an easy time of it Sunday at the Capital City Country club, when they defeated the McKenzie brothers, local professionals, 12 up in 36 holes.

Four rounds of the nine-hole course, two in the morning and two in the afternoon, were played. At the end of the first nine, the local professionals were two down. At the end of the second nine they were five down, at the end of the third nine ten down and at the end of the fourth nine twelve down.

The McKenzie boys were decidedly off their usual good game, but the Englishmen would have probably beaten them handily had they been at the top of their stride. The two English stars played rather poorly at times, or they would have made even better scores than they showed.

Vardon Best Ever.

Atlanta golf fans are willing to concede to Vardon the title of the game's most finished golfer. He is easily the greatest golfer in the world today. It is his consistency that makes it so. Yesterday's game was a sample of the way he plays the game. There is little variation in his scores, no matter what course he is playing on. For instance, Sunday they played around the course in 37, then a 36, then a 35 and then a 36, giving him one over par for the hole rounds of 73 and 71, a total for the 36 holes one 144.

In the 36 holes, Vardon was only off the course once, and it got so monotonous the way this fellow was straight as the pin off the tee, on iron shots, pitches, and putts.

Ray, although rated as a much longer driver than his fellow Englishman, was little if any longer than Vardon on his tee shots. When he was longer he did not have the direction of Vardon.

Vardon's play was a treat for the gallery. Not only does he play a wonderful game, but a brilliant one, a consistent one, and in the acme of golfing form. Vardon plays in the form that one reads about golfers possessing.

Offer was Vardon's.

There is a standing offer up from a rich Englishman that has not been accepted by anyone, that he is willing to wager $25,000 sterling that Vardon can defeat any golfer in the world in three days' play of 36 holes a day and that he is more certain that the offer will never be accepted.

In the 72 holes to be played in Atlanta, Vardon registered two 72s, a 73 and a 71, showing the consistency with which he plays and on courses that he had never seen until he first played over them. And in the 72 holes, he was only off the line of the pin twice.

Vardon and Ray were loud in their praise of local courses, with the exception of the putting greens. It is their contention that Bermuda grass is not the thing for putting greens and these fellows ought to know.

With faster putting greens, which can be made with a grass that is not as stubborn as the Bermuda, the English athletes say the local courses are on a par with any they have played over in this country.

The play by holes Sunday is as follows:

Play by Holes.

Both McKenzies were straight down the course on their drives on the first. Vardon sliced and Ray hooked into the woods. Vardon and the McKenzies were short on their seconds. Ray hit true, but was out in front. Jim McKenzie's 50-yard pitch laid his third dead, getting an easy 4 for a win, the others taking 5s.

The tee shots were either long or short on the second. The pitches were all off line. Vardon holed a 10-foot putt for 3, Jim McKenzie getting a four.

All the shots on the third were over the 300-yard mark, but were off line in the longest. Their iron approaches and long putts were all off the line, the below takes all around.

Four long, straight drives marked the tee shots on the fourth. The McKenzies were long on their pitches, Vardon and Ray short. The Englishmen took the orthodox 3 each in squaring the match.

The tee shots on five were all short, the pitches of equal length, and each took two putts.

Vardon and J. McKenzie pitched on the south green from the tee, and went out in two putts, halving.

The Englishmen were straight and long off the seventh, while J. McKenzie hooked into the woods. Mc-Kenzie sliced into the rough. Vardon and Ray got over in 2, Ray finally dubbing his second into the lake. J. McKenzie got his second out of trouble, and with a splendid brassie reached the green, one shot from Vardon and Ray's pitches, halving the hole.

The Englishmen took a long drive on the long eighth, when the local professionals got into trouble on their seconds, picking up, both Englishmen being on the green.

Ray and Vardon were long and straight off the ninth tee, and pitched to the green on their second. The locals were in the woods, one being driven had trouble in getting out, taking five. The morning round ended with Ray and Vardon two up.

Second Morning Nine.

Vardon drove a long, straight ball off the first tee nearly 300 yards, pitching dead and making a perfect 3 for a three, having no opposition on the hole. Vardon and Ray 1 up.

Vardon also had the second hole to himself, pitching a perfect dead, narrowly missing a two and getting an easy four.

Ray assumed the burden on the third hole, a driver, a niblick and two putts, the second putt going for a three, the locals had had seconds, taking fives.

The four tee shots on six were on the green, and the hole was halved in fours.

All four were over the lake on their seconds. J. McKenzies was on the green, and Vardon got a deadly approach. He laid his run up dead, and sunk a nice putt, scored a three, one under par.

The foresome played par golf on the fourth, all taking fours.

Vardon's drive on five was hole-high, his approach was dead, and he won the hole with a nice three. The others took four.

Ray was the only one on the green on the short sixth. The others pitched on and were down in fours, but Ray took a three.

The seventh and eighth were halved in fives, only average golf being played.

Vardon and Willie McKenzie were straight on the ninth, their first and seconds, and sunk fours for a half. Ray and J. McKenzie made nice recoveries, but failed to sink their long putts.

Afternoon—Second Round.

Vardon won the first hole with a 4 at the start of the last round, the others picking up.

Poor putting by the Englishmen allowed the locals to halve the second.

J. McKenzie out-drove both Britons on the third, pitched a mashie dead and sunk a beautiful 3 for a win.

His drive was their equal on the fourth, his approach as good, and he holed a long 5 for a win.

Ray and McKenzie got the green on their drives on the fifth and were in in 3 for a half.

Vardon's drive, which missed being a two by inches, was an easy winner on the sixth.

No golf of merit was played on the seventh, fives by Vardon and Willie McKenzie halving.

The McKenzies conceded the eighth, after they had missed their seconds. Vardon and Ray being on the green shooting three.

Vardon played wonderful golf on the final hole. He was straight on the flag on his tee shot, his pitch was within 12 inches of the cup, and he made a beautiful three.

Vardon and Ray left last night for

PRINCETON LEADS EASTERN ELEVENS

The Princeton Tigers lead the Eastern college teams in scoring points thus far this season with 111 in three games. Dartmouth and Pennsylvania are second and third.

The other large teams have either had their goal line crossed for touchdowns or have been scored against by field goals, yet despite their apparent poor showing to date, the Yale Bulldogs are not in this fix.

Simpson, Milwaukee; Chester Nelson, Oklahoma City; Lee Nelson, Indianapolis; Robert Peebles, Topeka; Jack Hobens, Wichita, Kan.; George Livingston, Nashville, Tenn. Yellow Jackets Encourage Their Supporters Some

Supporters of the green Yellow Jackets are beginning to take encouragement after the returns of the Tech-Chattanooga game Saturday, which the Jackets won, 71 to 6.

Chattanooga held Sewanee to a 28 to 0 score the previous Saturday, and it was thought the two games would prove a real test of the ability of the men of Heisman.

Either the Jackets have a much more formidable machine than was at first thought, or the Chattanooga team is weaker than the Sewanee scores indicated. We are inclined to lean toward the first named indication.

The Yellow Jackets are rapidly developing team play and increasing speed with each succeeding game, and on Saturday's contest they approached nearer a complete team than they have been able to muster during the season.

Cripples Coming Around.

By the Mercer game, which is scheduled for next Saturday at Grant Field, the Jackets ought to be hitting near the top of their stride, for by then Thomason, Loch, Patten and Johnson, three regulars, ought to be in the pink of condition, ready for a gruelling battle.

Despite the one-sided score at Chattanooga Saturday, the Jackets did not extend themselves to the limit, as was evidenced by the report of the game. Preas and Johnson, their chief ground-gainers, were not worked very much, while Patten, who is expected to star, could just start the game. The strain on his injured knee was too much for him to stand.

Thomason, a veteran from last season, has not been out long enough to play all the way through, and Loch, who will be the team's regular center, was in Atlanta, out of the game with injuries.

Under such condition, the Jackets ran up such a score. With the complete line-up in the field and working in perfect harmony, it readily seems to look as if the first impressions one gained, the Jackets were going to have a good eleven this season, are justified.

Good Conditioning Game.

Next Saturday the light Mercer team will be met for a hard conditioning game in view of the reports from Mercer, serve as a hard conditioning game for the Jackets. This is not said in a way to get the Jackets over-confident, but Mercer does not look to be any stronger than Chattanooga on the dope available.

The following Saturday the Jackets play Florida. They can get a line on what they can expect from Florida by what they do to Mercer. Auburn battled Mercer and Florida and defeated them by scores practically the same.

Coach Heisman will hardly hold a scrimmage today. The chances are that he will give the players some more new plays to practice signals on, and then lay a strenuous workout for the following three days.

It begins to look as if the Tech season is going to be a success.

CHAMPIONS OF WORLD TAKE LONG VACATIONS

Philadelphia, October 12.—The world's series won, the victorious Athletic scattered to all parts of the country today, probably not to gather again until the spring training trip. Nearly all the members of the team had made arrangements for their vacations before the starting of the championship contests in the New York Giants.

Chief Bender, going on a hunting trip in Pennsylvania, while Baker and Strunk will try their luck at shooting in the Maryland and Charley Herzig, of the giants, will accompany Baker. Chief Bender, the Athletic's premier pitcher, also will be one of Home Run Baker's hunting party. Robert Sharkey, one of Connie Mack's young pitchers, expects to join the New York party chaperoned by his former manager, Jack Dunn, of Baltimore, while Jack Lapp, also intends to go gunning, Mitchell's Ridge is where the team has its home in White Mills, Pa.

Eddie Collins will expect to go to their homes on the Pacific coast, where the fans have planned a rousing welcome. Ira Murphy and McInnis will rest and then go hunting in New England and later go gunning, while the fans of Worcester have decided upon a great demonstration for Barry upon his arrival home.

Scott intends to motor to his home in Buffalo and Bush has had his machine shipped to Bristol, Minn., both expect to spend some time automobiling.

Ira Thomas will probably remain close to his wife, Jack Coombs, hero of two world's series, until he is able to leave the hospital, where she is suffering from typhoid of the spine.

Plank has already gone to his farm at Gettysburg, and Oldring says he will devote his time to forgetting baseball.

Because it was not necessary to play a third game in the world's series in this city, tickets for which had already been sold, the Athletic club will have to refund approximately $45,000 to purchasers, and a number of tickets for contests here were compelled to be exchanged for three games and not more than two sets of tickets were sold to one person.

G. M. C. v Tenth District.

Milledgeville, Ga., October 12.—(Special.)—The second football game of the season to be played on the local gridiron will take place Monday afternoon when the Georgia Military College aggregation will play the Tenth District Agricultural college at Scarin.

The G. M. A. boys have already won the series from the latter place four season, one with the Scarin boys and the other with Mercer's freshmen.

Coach Maddox has a fine aggregation and training is showing up well with the boys.

Pittsburg Wins Toss.

Cleveland, October 12.—Manager Clarke, of the Pittsburg Nationals, today won the toss-up and elected to play the seventh game of the post season series with the Cleveland Americans. It should be a seventh game, at Pittsburg next Tuesday. The teams play in Pittsburg tomorrow.

Pittsburg 3, Cleveland 0.

Cleveland, October 11.—Pittsburg defeated Cleveland 3 to 0 here today, taking their lost season series 3 to 2 in favor of the National Leaguers. The game started promptly in spite of a drizzling rain which lasted until the fifth inning.

Wilhoit had the Cleveland batters at his mercy, allowing them but three hits. Cleveland failed to score only once when, with Leibold on third, through an error, a sacrifice and an infield out, Robinson passed Lajoie and struck out Johnson. Carey, Dolan and McCarthy singled in succession in the fifth, scoring Pittsburg's first run. In the eighth McCarthy singled. Wagner was out, Miller to Lajoie, and the runners advanced on Wilson's infield out. Mitchell's single scored both runners. Twice with the bases filled, Falkenberg relieved the side with no runs. Only about 2,500 people saw the game. Score:

Chicago, October 12.—Joe Benz pitched invincible ball today for the Chicago Americans against the Chicago Nationals and the former gained a full game over their opponents for the title of city champions. The score was 2 to 0, and the battle went 11 innings. More than 27,000 persons saw the game.

Lord opened the eleventh inning with a double, and Hal Chase sent him to third on a sacrifice. Pinch Bodie was a victim of Cheney's benders. Collins then came forth and when Lord got the signal for a hit-and-run play, Collins drove the ball to left center for a single, which scored the American's

100-Mile Race the Feature At the Motordrome Tonight

Under the management of Lou Castro, the genial comedian ball player and fight promoter, the local motordrome will open its doors tonight with the classiest card of races that have ever been presented to local fandom.

Under Mr. Castro's management the riders promise to ride faster than they have ever ridden before, and by standing a great card for the opening night, the crowd that will greet them ought to be a large one.

The feature event of the evening will be a 100-mile team race. Four hundred miles on speedy machines will circle the track, that is, if they last that long. One of them will, but there is no machine living that can make 400 circuits of a board track.

Realising this, the riders have been paired in teams to relieve the strain, and with this arrangement every team ought to finish the race, the partners relieving one another at various stages of the race.

A force of mechanicians and pit men will be on hand to attend to whatever repairs will be necessary during the grind and local fans will be given a thrill throughout the battle for the large cash prize that has been hung up.

Flickenstein and Swartz, Richards and Lewis, Bruggerman and Renel and Luther and Glenn are the four teams that will start on this long grind.

There will be a short sprint races to start the card. These will be in the nature of tuning-up races for the long grind.

Football Menu Promises Better Games This Week

Some games of more than passing interest are on the calender for next Saturday and southern football fans, with the world's series out of the way, can now give their undivided attention to the great gridiron battles that are in store for them.

Locally, the Tech-Mercer game will attract considerable attention throughout the state. The Jackets are favorites to win handily.

At Clemson, the Auburn and Clemson teams will lock horns. Auburn ought not to have much trouble in winning.

But there are two games that will create considerable interest and in advance little edge can be conceded to either side.

First and foremost of interest to Atlanta fans is the Alabama-Georgia game at Birmingham. The Alabama team will probably be a little heavier, but the Tennesseans have been coming along steadily and the game promises to be a closely contested battle.

The Tennessee-Sewanee game should be a hummer, with the dope so even that there is little to choose, though it looks like the Sewanians have a slight edge.

In the East, the Penn-Brown game is the only one that develops into more than a practice affair for the larger elevens. This should be a close one.

TWO MORE STARS AT OLD VIRGINIA

University of Virginia, October 12.—(Special.)—Jett, the big Kentuckian, one of the stars of last year's team, has entered college this week and joined the football squad. If Jett succeeds in getting his old place back on the team, it will mean that Captain Carter will go back to center and Brown, who is now playing center, will go back to the scrubs. But so far this season Brown has been playing a sensational game at center, and Jett will have to go some to beat him out.

Knox Walker also rolled into college last week from his home in California. Walker last year was considered by competent critics the greatest backfield man in the Virginia prep circles. Walker will have a plenty of opposition for his place, as there is only one place uncertain in the backfield, and there are five men running for the position. Neither Jett nor Walker will be in any condition to play before the Va.-V. M. I. game on October 18.

Hain has broken into the regular practice a great deal this past week and the varsity has been engaged in only one scrimmage with the second team. But they have been given a thorough drilling in defensive work. The scrubs were able only a few times to make any distance on the ball having been given them for periods of 15 minutes. Long signal drills have been held with special attention having been given to the training of the ends to go down the field after punts while the quarterback and fullback have been trained in receiving punts.

Browns Win Two.

St. Louis, Mo., October 12.—The local Americans won both games of a double-header from the Nationals here today in the series to decide the city championship. They took the first game by a score of 7 to 6. In the next contest the teams stood 6 to 2 when the game was called in the sixth inning on account of darkness. The American league team now has three games to its credit and the Nationals two.

NEW YORK MUST WAIT FOR THE LOSERS' SHARE

Giants Must Show Player-Writer Contracts Signed Before Series Started.

New York, October 12.—When the New York Giants applied to the National commission for the loser's shares of the world's receipts, they did not get the money. They were informed that the commission wished first to see the contracts of the players, authors who are members of the Giants so that it might be assured that all arrangements to report that their contracts were entered into before September 1 were complied with.

Before the start of the series last week the national commission laid down the rule that no baseball player or manager could write for the newspapers during any future world's series. It was decided, however, that players, who had contracts dated before September 1, might go ahead with their writing this year.

Half a dozen members of the Giants wrote newspaper articles on the series during the play of the games. When the commission wants to inspect their contracts before it turns over the series money to the men of the team, it was decided that the names of those player-writers who could not produce bonafide contracts, entered into before date specified, would be penalized, but it did not announce how much.

As a matter of fact, no penalty is likely to be inflicted and the Giants' share of approximately $3,162 each in the series money will be paid to them in short order practically intact, as it is believed all the players will have them can produce properly attested contracts ante-dating September 1 and announcement of its ban on the players' authorship. The sum of $100, however, will be deducted from the New York players' share because of the fine imposed upon Arthur Fletcher for his ejected conversation with Umpire Connolly last Thursday on the Polo grounds.

The Giants themselves have voted $1,000 of their money to the widow of John Murphy, the groundkeeper on the Polo Grounds for many years, who died recently.

Fred Merkle, the Giants' first baseman, presented his fellow players' check guest today to the commission members, who met informally at their national headquarters. Their session, it such it may be called, was a very executive one, Chairman August Herrmann, President Thomas J. Lynch of the National League, Ban Johnson, president of the American league and the three members of the commission, and secretary John E. Brice being present.

Merkle, who is a member of the Brooklyn club, asking that the Giants' share of the receipts in the aggregate of the world's series be paid to him, was informed as to the commission's ruling regarding the player-author contract matter, and left without the money, but with no more doubt that he had earned the players of his team would be long withheld.

Manager John McGraw, of the Giants, talked with the commission afterwards on the subject of players' authorship. McGraw, who himself is prominent in the ranks of player-writers, expressed himself strongly on general principles to members of baseball's commission as to the newspapers on baseball topics. He had during or previous to the world series himself, he said, as the practice had become quite general, but he had concluded that the custom was a bad one, the chief objection being that the criticism of one player by another affected club discipline detrimentally.

No other matters of importance, so far as could be learned, were considered by the commission today. On Tuesday it intends informally to clear up any details in connection with the various series that may need its attention there.

The work of the umpires of the games of the series just closed was praised by Thomas J. Lynch, the secretary of the Pittsburg National League club, who represented the commission at the games and assisted in preparations for the series and while the games were on. Connolly and Egan all came in for commendation by the commission.

"It is the unwritten law of the world's series," said Mr. Constant, "that there shall be no kicking over umpires' decisions. This law has been observed commendably throughout this year's series, the only breach worthy of note being Arthur Fletcher's, and I understand Fletcher deeply regrets that he let his temper get the better of him in an exciting moment.

"The absence of wrangling the games were able to concentrate their energies to giving correct decisions. The result was highly inspiring by the competent men assigned to service in these important games by the two leagues.

THE HIGH COST OF LIVING.

Many essays on the high cost of living have been written, and remedies without number have been prescribed, for the cure of the evil—if, indeed, it be an evil. But as a matter of fact high prices are essentially evil? That depends. If everything that is bought and sold goes up in price, including land and labor, there would seem to be no necessarily evil consequences. Many economists, and even sensible business men, have believed that higher prices are stimulating and inspiring. If a man gets twice as much for what he produces this year and pays twice as much for what he buys, is he better off? The difference?

But the trouble is that some things go up in price while others remain the same, or fall below. After all, farm products and market prices are largely fixed, and there is no unvarying standard to which all prices may be referred and by which they may be judged, except the value of an honest day's labor, rather an indefinite and variable according to conditions and circumstances.

It is frankly admitted that the subject is beyond me, and I give it up tonight (the midnight oven) to dive into its mysteries.

But the proper course for a farmer to pursue in these times of high cost of living is not one of the mysterious or devious. The way seems plain and simple for even a blind mule to find it is indicated by a simple rule that everyone in farming may apply. What he do so and will avail himself of the opportunities that are offered in the market. Another rule may be added, but it is perhaps implied in the former, the same; to wit, I will produce those things that I need and must have myself, do without those things that I am not compelled to have, and buy home foods.

It would not be difficult for a farmer to set down in black and white the things that he will produce, and his family also make a list of those things he will do without because they cost too much. In making such a list, twenty-nine out of a hundred would probably put down first, "plenty of meat and bread." Then the question would arise, "meat on me," Jan't that so, reader? Or, "bread, what is it usually made of? We could work for only a day or so with something to eat and with strength for labor. In a few days we could find time for the higher forms of working. Food for the body and brain, is a fundamental. Of course there are some foods that may be considered as essential for a properly balanced living—that they are at least desirable, but the fact remains—that the vital ones not produce without to great expense of time and labor, or he has not the requisite skill to produce, or to which the soil and climate are not well or (not at all) adapted. Among these are sugar and coffee, tea and rice, and spices, coffee and tea, and some other things not needful to sustain life, sugar is a large part of the foods may be indirectly supplied by making syrup and sweetening, but we usually prefer bought sugar.

Now, reader, let these things that a farmer—as a rule—will have to buy or he will do without, be considered, first, tea, buy, bacon, mules, beef cattle, syrup that can be made, flour, meal, potatoes and poultry. In addition there are many things that are desirable to sustain life, of which many farmers do not produce a half enough to last them through the year.

The condition of the farmers at the present time is calling for a resurgence. We (some of us) are throwing up our hats and shouting for joy over the present conditions and future prospects. Five hundred million dollars worth of conditions quite a number of times in the past few years, but in the past few years before the war, during the war and ever since. Is the reader aware that the average farmer is not prosperous? Farming was a good business all during and after the war. Of course, I am referring to the bottom lands and excluding from consideration those sections that were repeatedly overrun and devastated by armies. Now, what was the condition of the country—aside from the bloody war—yet related to it and caused by it? The answer is—there was a market for cotton and, therefore, very little was grown. Our fields were planted to corn and wheat and cowpeas and velvet beans, to sugar cane and sorghum, pastures and pens were filled by cattle and hogs, and cattle for export and cribs were held at every farm. What if we did have to pay 60 cents for a pound of bacon, 50 cent butter and 25 to 30 a pound and even bacon, or our plenty. At $1 per pound, and 50 cents per bushel want in the land of the necessary foods—excluding the rarer ones referred to—and this want was mainly confined to the wives and children and others who were at the front and was always supplied on short notice.

True, our wives and daughters did not have silks and satins and other such furbelows, but they had plenty to wear and suffered for little from the lack, and quickly learned to do without the non-essentials.

I firmly believe that the only thing that stands in the way of a return to prosperity and future prosperity of the south is the cotton staple and the utterly execrable folly of relying on cotton to buy for us what we might produce in the greatest abundance.

Now is the time to sow oats, vetches, rye, wheat (a little later), grass seeds, clovers.

BAD HAY IS HARMFUL AND DANGEROUS.

"X.," Dawson, Ga., writes: I write for a little information. I baled some hay last year by Wednesday, crabgrass and peavine, mostly crabgrass. I put it in the barn and it never was baled up. I sold it to a sawmill man and he has been after me for it all the time and his mules and hogs have had made and one of them sick. His hay was fine when I baled it. What I want to know is the value of the hay while it was hot make the mule sick? Is it the same as if he was fed on when it cools off? Should the bales be opened and dried out, or might possibly have given his mules too much? I have had no chance to start with.

Now I have fed my mules on hay that had molded bad (at first they would not eat it, and I fed it to them) but when it got dry and the scent left it they ate it all up, and it seemed not to hurt them at all.

I decided if the hay had molded that the sawmill man's mules it must have been because it was getting too much heat and it was fed to them hot, or he gave them too much, and made a change from cotton seed hulls to hay. So I wanted to know if you think I had anything to do with making the mule sick? Any information you can give me will be appreciated.

Answer—I think it quite probable that the hay in its hot stage was more likely to cause scours than when eating it than it would after the heating stage had passed and it had got to come cool. The heat generated by the fermentation of the hay has the effect of killing most of the bacterial ferments when it reaches a certain point after which the rotting process ceases and the hay becomes safe. I am not prepared to say that it would then be safe to feed it to animals in even very small quantities along with sound hay. I suggest that you open the bales and assort the hay, rejecting all that is of a rank color and rotten odor. I have had occasion to do this a few times and know it is possible that if a much smaller quantity had been fed at a time than was fed by your mill man no serious harm would have followed.

It is also true that a sudden change of food sometimes causes stomach trouble. But, after all, molding is a more or less dangerous when fed to live stock and I would avoid its use. The value of one mule might be more than sufficient to buy a year's supply of hay for several mules.

MULE SICK ONCE A WEEK.

J. A. Priester, Hampton, S. C.,—I have a mule about 6 years old that gets sick about once a month and don't seem to be in much misery but is always lying down and rolling and is generally sick about 24 hours. When over she is sick you can hear the water splash in her stomach and she will not eat anything until she seems to be better. And then she eats heavily until she gets sick again. Will appreciate it if you can help me out. When ever she is sick her bowels and kidneys act freely.

Answer—I do not know of any ailment of horses and mules that is periodical, excepting the recurring attacks of moon blindness, ending in total or partial loss of sight. I think it probable that the trouble with your mule is due to irregularity in feeding, or to the opportunity afforded her of getting more than her share when fed in a general manner, as in the field. If you will feed her separate her feed and drinking water so that she cannot over eat I believe the trouble will cease. Always water your mules before feeding and not after feeding. Always cut down the ration gradually when the animal is not at work by at least one-half.

WEATHER MAP WATCHED BY THE COTTON TRADE

Cold Wave Is Coming and It Is Expected to Cause Prices to Advance.

New Orleans, October 12.—The cotton market on this side of the water do not open this week until Tuesday morning because of the observance of Columbus Day. Weather map readers in the cotton belt over the double holidays may be of great importance to them when the week opens. What appeared to be an intense cold wave is working toward the cotton region at the close of last week and its effect on the spot cotton trade is the chief influence on prices.

Because this is the time of the first frosts in the cotton belt, the weather map has taken on unusual interest for this week. Cold weather would cause a higher market, while the first touch of frost would encourage fresh short covering on the part of many bears at the time of the first killing frosts, this reasoning on the crop situation being somewhat more important than in the average year because the excessive rains prevented bolls from maturing by the usual date and encouraged fresh growth which, with frosts at this time, would be likely to cause a big shedding. Friday ends the present ginning period, and the weekly reports of the bureau reports, and at the week-end private forecasts of the ginning for the next two weeks have some bearing on the course of prices. The report itself on Saturday Bulls expect the figures to be less than last month's and there is many that the wet weather of the last two weeks has kept the staple out, consequently, with the ginning of the crop.

The trade will watch more closely than ever the Liverpool cables, because there are signs of increasing interest on the part of buyers. Any improvement in spot business would be the signal for stimulation in the market, while an apathetic demand would play into the hands of the bears and increase the pessimism that is felt regarding the consumption of cotton goods, or two important sections of the cotton manufacturing world.

WRECKS NEAR WAYCROSS KILL ONE, INJURE THREE

Engineer J. J. Thomas Dies When Engine Jumps Track. Trains Hit Head-On.

Waycross, Ga., October 12.—Special.)—While locking freight, Fla., to High Springs today, an engine and caboose of the Atlantic Coast Line jumped the track and five cars were turned over, instantly killing Engineer J. J. Thomas, of Waycross, and injuring Fireman Colored Freeman, Conductor McClellan colored breakman seriously, Conductor J. P. Stewart and Flagman Owen Lee, all white, of Waycross, were in the caboose when it left the track and escaped with only slight bruises. A hospital car with physicians and nurses was sent to the wreck from Waycross and returned with the dead body of Thomas and the injured early tonight.

The train of derailment has been found. At the point where the engine left the rails the track is on a curve.

Engineer Thomas is survived by his wife and children, one a daughter, Miss Offerman; five sisters and three brothers. Engineer Thomas was one of the most popular engineers running out of Waycross. He had made this city his home for twenty years.

When two logging trains on the Waycross and Western railroad met late last night seventeen miles from Waycross, Engineer C. E. Bennett had his left leg broken and received injuries to his head and body, while Fireman Thompson and Conductor McDonald escaped and Brakeman Barton was injured. Barton was brought to a local hospital, where he is reported as holding his own. The cause of the accident is not known.

TRIAL OF TOM WATSON TO BEGIN OCTOBER 20

Charged With Sending Obscene Matter Through Mails in Attack on Catholics.

Augusta, Ga., October 12.—Thomas E. Watson, editor, author and nominee of the people's party for the presidency of the United States in 1904, will be tried in the United States district court here on October 20 on a charge of sending obscene matter through the mails.

The charges against Watson resulted from the publication in one issue of each of his magazines denouncing the Roman Catholic church. The articles in question are referred to the church's belief in "the confessional and other Romish religions." The articles were published in the Watson's Jeffersonian Weekly, July 1911, issue and in Watson's Magazine of the issue of April and May, 1912. Their caption was "The Priest and the Nunnery; or, the Deadliest Menace to Our Liberties Today and Tomorrow."

The editor was indicted by the federal grand jury here on November 14, 1912. In the indictment the alleged obscene matter in the articles is not quoted, but is merely mentioned. The indictment stated that they were omitted because they were so "obscene as to be offensive to the court if not forbidden its purpose to be spread upon the records of the court."

Watson appeared in his own defense at the preliminary hearing. In defense of the publication he declared that it could be no more objectionable than certain passages in the Bible. If he was guilty of the charge he claimed, it would be a violation of the federal law to send a Bible through the United States mails.

Counsel for the government and the defense have agreed to begin the proceeding immediately after the opening of the federal court term October 20. This agreement, it is understood, has been approved by Judge Rufus E. Foster.

LAST CONTINENT HAS BEEN FOUND

Geographers Think Russian Explorer's Find North of Asia Will Be Last Discovery of Land.

Washington, October 12.—Members of the National Geographic society said here today that the reported Russian discovery of a continent 500 miles north of Asia, if true, would be the last great discovery of land. They pronounced it the most important discovery within the arctic circle in the last century.

The report from St. Michaels, Alaska, that Commander Wiltsky, in command of the Russian government steamers Taimyr and Waygatch, had arrived there and announced the discovery of a body of land as large as Greenland extending beyond latitude 81 North and longitude 102 east, came as a distinct surprise to members of the society. It was known that the Russian government for years had sent parties in the Siberian arctic seas, but no word had been received of a find of such importance. Much depends on the extense north of the land reported discovered is said to be. Dr. Nansen's party saw no land and so reported, but it was not supposed to be the vicinity of his vessel that he sighted since that the exceptional location of the arctic ocean is a deep basin. General Greely suggested that a large area of the continent to the south of Greenland could exist between Cape Columbia, Grant Land and Cape Chalukatin in the northernmost part of Alaska.

Theory of Scientists.

That Greenland and the size of Greenland exists within the arctic circle most scientists agree, while Russia, as distinguished from western Siberia, owes the Russians are said to have discovered land. has been the theory of scientists for years. Dr. Holland Harris, of the Coast and Geodetic survey, years ago advanced the theory that a large area of undiscovered land was located within the circle. His contention was based upon tidal observations made by polar explorers including Rear Admiral Peary, who was assigned by President Roosevelt to make tidal observation on his last trip to the north pole for Dr. Harris' benefit. Dr. Harris observed that the flood currents of the Atlantic and the tide came from the west and not from the north. The hypothesis of an undiscovered land was created within the circle.

Rear Admiral Peary, who has considered the important fact about the bergs to be that they were found in parallel lines of ice formation, the result of compressed snowdrifts by arctic winds. Another striking features he had learned are not found on bergs from known areas of land, although common in the antarctic regions. Peary has always maintained that such bergs could be formed only on level land of considerable extent as ice fields are formed from Spitsbergen, Greenland or Grinnell Land and that must have come from an unknown land.

BALLOONS ARE RACING FOR INTERNATIONAL CUP

Airships Representing Eight Nations Start From Paris.

Paris, October 12.—Half a million persons assembled in Tuileries Gardens and the surrounding parks and avenues, saw the start today of the international balloon race for the aeronautic cup.

The United States, France, Great Britain, Italy, Belgium, Austria, Germany and Switzerland were represented.

Maurice Bleriaute, one of the French entrants, in his Picardie, which covered the first mile in 1912, swung away at 4 minutes 30 seconds. Then Bleriaute and others followed at intervals of five minutes. M. Mahiaun, of Switzerland, did not start.

The start from Tuileries Gardens that Roberts and Charles made their first ascent in their hydrogen balloon in 1782. There have been many ascents since that time, but today's was a record crowd. The throng's enthusiasm was greatest for the handsome figures of Mme. Goldschmidt, president of the Lodoise Aero club, who, clad in a green knitted jacket, stood beside her husband, another French pilot in the basket, undaunted by the prospect of crossing the Mediterranean.

Each balloon was blown in a southwesterly direction.

All the competitors, with the exception of Lieut. H. H. Honywell and Ralph Upson, representing the United States, were prepared with canvas anchors and lifebelts for any emergency. Honywell and Upson, although the Mediterranean never yet has been crossed by a spherical balloon, the contestants in the international race determined to make the trip if the wind permitted.

The fresh breeze which wafted away the first starters had dropped when Captain Honeywell and Upson left. This was regarded dangerously near the roof of the Louvre, but the balloon rose and floated away when ballast was cast out.

EDDIE PLANK DENIES HE WILL QUIT GAME

In Fine Shape and Could Pitch Today if Connie Mack Needed Him.

Philadelphia, October 12.—Eddie Plank, veteran pitcher of the Athletics, who was effective in one game of the world's series against the Giants Saturday, tonight denied reports that he had declared his intention of retiring from baseball.

"I did say last year that I was going to retire," said Plank, "but I have not spoken of it this year and have no idea where the news started. I feel fine and if Connie could pitch again tomorrow if Connie Mack wanted me to do so."

Plank had intended leaving today for his home in Gettysburg, but later changed his mind and will be the guest of Harry Davis at his home here for a few days.

"OLD DOBBIN" STAVES OFF AUTO COMPETITION

Despite Increase in Number of Machines Horse Is Holding His Own.

That "Old Dobbins" has thus far staved off auto competition, and that he is not likely to be forced into retirement very soon, is shown by figures gathered by I. N. Ragsdale, of Atlanta, who has been in the stock business here for many years.

Mr. Ragsdale says:

"In Chicago, for instance, there are now 73,289 horses employed, or only 287 less than a year ago. In Boston there are only 55 horses less in use than ten years ago. Baltimore shows a decrease of 873 horses in ten years. Cincinnati reports only 153 less than ten years ago, while Minneapolis has 158 and St. Louis 736 more horses than ten years ago.

"It should be noted, however, that the carriage horse has decreased the same as to driving horses, and in many places the farmers are using machines for going to market.

"With all this, horses are much higher than ten years ago, and find a more ready market. While the demand for mules, as well as the price has increased 25 per cent at least in the last ten years, a mule that could have been bought in 1906 or 1907 for $125 or less, will sell today for $250, and the growing of hay and grain with mules and horses in many states has made the farmer rich. Those who, through the Atlanta market, has handled a very large part of all the stock business."

The Inner Shrine — The Wild Olive

BASIL KING

Author of

THE WAY HOME

A book for the man or the woman who loves honesty is this new novel by the author of "The Inner Shrine." For that is what the very human hero of this story is—honest in his hatred of pretense, honest in his wilfulness, honest at last with himself when he finds he has gone astray. He believed he had "gained the whole world" only to find that he had "lost his own soul." Then from the depths, like Faust, he was guided and uplifted by a woman's love.

Miss Felice Mansfield Wins Big Audience by Her Singing

Probably no soloist at the Sunday afternoon organ recitals has met with more real approval from those who attended than did Miss Felice Mansfield yesterday afternoon when she appeared with Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., who gave the organ recital.

Miss Mansfield was on the program for three songs. Continued applause brought her back after each one and the audience would not be satisfied with merely smiles and bows of appreciation. She rendered one encore after the first song and two encores after the second, which had appeared twice after her second group.

Gomes' "Mia Piccirella" was the first song. After that Miss Mansfield sang Tosca's "Goodby Summer" as an encore, Massenet's "Elegie" from Gounod's "Sing, Smile, Slumber" made up the second rendition. As encores to these she rendered in a delightful voice "The Last Rose of Summer" and the "Recrocle" from Tales of Hoffman. Her father, William Mansfield, played for her in her final group.

While her voice is not one of powerful volume it is clear and true and possesses a note of tenderness that goes straight to the hearts of her hearers. It was also far-reaching and she could be heard distinctly the entire length of the arena.

Mr. Sheldon delighted a large audience with a splendidly selected program. Bright and spirited music that seemed thoroughly appreciated was among the afternoon's selections. Among the pieces were Lemmens' "Marche Pontificale." Tschaikowsky's "Chanson Sans Paroles," Widor's "Toccata" from the Sixth organ symphony, Thiele's "Salute D'Amour" and Alfred J. Silver's "Jubilate Deo."

MONEY FOR ORPHANS RAISED BY CHILDREN

The Wesley Memorial Sunday School Gives Aid to Decatur Orphans' Home.

With great enthusiasm 511 scholars of the Wesley Memorial Sunday school assembled Sunday morning to participate in their annual "work day exercises. Each scholar, filled with pride and satisfaction, swung to the fact that the money contributed by them for the day's labor to a most worthy and noble cause, was a radical departure from of the service when it was officially announced that the collection for the day amounted to approximately $550, which sum was at once turned over to the trustees of the Decatur Orphans' Home.

Each Methodist Sunday school of Atlanta once a year celebrates its "work day." The proceeds of the "work day" go toward the maintenance of the Decatur Orphans' Home. For several weeks the younger scholars of the Wesley Memorial Sunday school have been striving to think of some way in which to earn the money for the "work day" contribution for the little parentless children.

Some of the boys did chores around the home, carried in wood, drew pails of toes, washed windows, and, in fact, anything that they could do. They held rummage sales and taffy pullings, sold the results of their labor, cash, to get their money. All worked hard, and this was more than proven by the gratifying result.

Major R. J. Guinn, superintendent of the Sunday school, officiated during the service. Rev. Dr. W. R. Hendrix made a short address, thanking the students for their efforts and assuring them that it was not until when anything was given in a careless manner, but when the thing given caused some sacrifice that it was indeed commendable in the sight of God.

The whole school was thrown into laughter when one little lad of not more than 5 years stated that he had earned his money by killing flies.

Grossman to Conduct Literary Department at Jewish Alliance

In response to an enthusiastic demand by patrons of the Jewish Educational Alliance to learn the many open to young men it is planned to inaugurate such an hour's work under the leadership of Attorney Leonard J. Grossman. There will be a meeting of those interested at 8 o'clock Monday night in the rooms of the alliance.

The project, which will extend to the young men of the community the opportunity to receive training in debate, oratory and parliamentary usage, is a patent instruction, free of charge, has been with the hearty indorsement of Victor H. Kriegshaber, president of the alliance, and H. Joseph Hyman, the superintendent.

Mr. Grossman was at the head of just such a club when it was said he will be inaugurated tomorrow night at the alliance, the one in Kirkwood, and conventions in Chicago, where congregated many immigrant boys, the young future Americans, all eager to take part in the debates.

Mr. Grossman will undertake this work with an enthusiasm which will assure success. The course of instruction as outlined by him will include one session to be held on Monday night of each week. The climax of the year's work will be a series of public debates to which all members of the class will be eligible.

BUSINESS IS BETTER SAYS H. M. ATKINSON

Receiver for A. B. & A. Finds Things Steadily Improving in East.

Business is improving throughout the country, said H. M. Atkinson, a receiver of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, who has just returned from New York.

"I found things steadily improving up east and the business situation getting better every day," said Mr. Atkinson on his return to Atlanta.

"When when I passed what looked at the new Ponce de Leon apartments, into which I am moving, I felt that Atlanta was keeping well apace, and that the building would be a credit to any city in the country."

Mr. Atkinson, who with E. T. Lamb, is receiver for the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, declined to discuss reports in regard to the bids made for the road-way. Several bids have been reported as in the market for the road, but Mr. Atkinson stated that at this time there is known nothing in regard to the exact situation.

AT THE THEATERS.

James K. Hackett.

(At the Atlanta.)

The demand for the fine art of James K. Hackett's production of "The Grain of Dust," which will be seen at the Atlanta Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee, has made it impossible for all plans wishing it to be visited this season, and therefore reservations are already out of the question. This demand is not the less important because of that fact. Manager Atkinson says that he will follow his usual course and produce a new play for the fall season of 1914. He says there is no short that it will be impossible to produce a play and have the book to see the play. Those who wish seats are advised to buy early. The sale opens this morning.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

Nina Morris, one of the most distinguished actresses in America, will be the star headliner of the bill of vaudeville that is to be seen here beginning with the matinee today. Miss Morris, with a special company, will present a thrilling drama called "The Yellow Peril." A special feature will be the introduction of Keno Kennedy, the eight Russian stallions, the greatest horse actors that have ever been on any stage. George Feiss, the well-known comedian and the pretty Barry sisters will complete the Bon Ton show. The only comedy sketch, by Kennedy and Louis Wilson and Josephine Fowler are going to become popular with the Forsyth patrons. Others on the bill will be Carl Emmy, a ventriloquist, whose specialty is not to see things as they should be, but as they are, and that on the stage is not a correct picture of life as it is. While this broad statement could be denied, the writer content myself by saying that a similar statement could not be urged to induce persons to visit the pest house in order to get a proper and correct idea of smallpox. The desire to know good and evil caused the fall of our first parents with all its attendant sequence of sin and sorrow, and curiosity to know certain things and certain situation have since caused the spiritual ruin of countless thousands."

DURAND'S

DR. WHITE PREACHES TO ATLANTA FIREMEN

"Fire Is Man's Best Friend and Worst Enemy As Well," Says Preacher.

One hundred firemen from the various engine houses of Atlanta, headed by Chief Cummings, journeyed in a body to the Second Baptist church last night to hear Rev. John E. White deliver a sermon directed especially to them. The church was packed to the very doors, and the sermon, which took as its text, "Glorify God in the fire," was interesting and instructive.

First, Dr. White described the life of the firemen, dwelling with emphasis and hearty commendation on the fact that they live a life which might be termed secluded, cut off, to a certain extent, from the outside world and from their families.

"The fireman is truly like Atlanta is a hero," said Dr. White. "He never knows what is ahead of the day or night he may be called upon to risk his life in defending the lives and property of others from the terrible fiend, fire. Whenever you hear the clang of an engine, and see the consequent tearing madly down the street, consider the brave men who will, in a few minutes be fighting at the risk of life and limb, the antagonist of man who, more than all others, the hardest to conquer.

"Fire is a tool of God. It is, at the same time, man's best friend and worst enemy. While it is a hard thing to combat when out from under man's control, there are countless creature comforts which come to man from God through fire.

"But it is with temptation. The fire in a man's heart is all right as long as kept under control and directed into the right channel. But once let it get beyond one, and the only remedy is to call in the supreme fire-fighter, the spirit of Jesus Christ, and trusting all to him, give your life and your home into his keeping, feeling sure that the conflagration will be subdued, and that without loss."

CHURCH BAN PUT ON MODERN DANCE

to read? I am fully aware that there are others which do not offend in all these things, but is it not hard to find papers free from all?

"Parents and children alike seek relaxation and the passion for dancing in men has become a prominent part of our modern life and more abundant facilities for gratifying are afforded. Managers of theaters and composers quickly come to the aid of pleasure seekers and furnish amusements, and if we are to believe the testimony of competent critics a truly moral and uplifting play is as rare that one is almost tempted to doubt its existence, at least it is not found sufficiently remunerative to justify its production. Managers of theaters tell us that they supply what the public demands, and if this be true may God help the public.

Knocks French Plays.

"The modern playwriter gets his situations from novel or adopts some foreign—mostly French—play and presents it to the American public. What I have said about the modern novel applies to the play which is taken from it, and the modern French play is generally unfit for decent persons to read or see.

"The modern and popular play outrages Christian sentiment by thinly-veiled indecencies and more or less covert attacks on the holiest of all earthly institutions. Even the most indirect statement compromising situations and intrigue concealed in ancient it throws ridicule on purity of life, and every such stage, George Feiss, the minded men and women are scarcely ever found. There is no valid excuse, except that it pays, is that it faithfully represents conditions of modern life, and that one goes to the play to see things as they ought to be, but as they are, and that on the stage is not a correct picture of life as it is. While this broad statement could be denied, I content myself by saying that a similar statement could not be urged to induce persons to visit the pest house in order to get a proper and correct idea of smallpox. The desire to know good and evil caused the fall of our first parents with all its attendant sequence of sin and sorrow, and curiosity to know certain things and certain situation have since caused the spiritual ruin of countless thousands."

WIPE OUT MORMONISM URGES REV. JERE MOORE

Charges United States With Gross Negligence in Handling Great Problem.

Charging the United States government with gross negligence and heinousness in handling the problem of Mormonism, which he termed "the greatest evil of the present day," Rev. Jere A. Moore delivered the impassioned appeal for the Christian population of the country to rise and wipe out the doctrine, in an illustrated lecture before a large congregation at the Harris Street Presbyterian church Sunday night.

Beginning with the time, seventy years ago, when the Mormon church was founded by Joseph Smith, Jr., Rev. Mr. Moore gave a comprehensive and extremely interesting sketch of the progress made by the church up to present time, and the tremendous influence exerted by the Mormon disciples, in religion, politics and finance in the present day.

"There are in these United States today more than 500,000 people professing Mormonism. More than half of this number are located in Utah, Wyoming, Nebraska, Colorado, Nevada and California, and it is an established fact that the Mormon vote, when thrown to any political party, will be a victory to the party to which they throw in their lot.

"Their missionary work is one of the most efficient in the world, and they are constantly adding numbers of converts of all nationalities to their ranks, and if something is not done, and that at once, to check the advance of the faith, the Mormons will carry out the grand boasts made by their elders and priests that they will eventually control the world through their church."

IT WAS COOL ON SUNDAY, TODAY WILL BE WARMER

The kind of weather that makes a man want to snuggle into last winter's overcoat and feel as proud of it as though he possessed a brand new one with "The Latest Fall Style," takes on it, made Sunday just what the weatherman had promised it would be. It was decidedly cool, but the weather authorities have promised that by Monday or Tuesday the air will be warm again and the mercury will climb back to the last week's notches around the eighties. A cool wind had more than anything else to do with the shivers that went up and down Atlanta's spine Sunday and the wise kept up its sharp gusts throughout the day.

There was nothing unpleasant from the weather, however, and the snappy and tingling dash of cold air was like a bracer or a cold shower after a hot bath. It refreshed people tired of the steady warm weather of the past week or ten days.

His pulpit in the Central Presbyterian church was occupied Sunday morning by Rev. G. H. Bufford, assistant pastor, who delivered a strong sermon analysis of "Faith," in its twentieth-century aspects, as compared with the faith of men in former ages. He declared that the Old Testament has been outgrown and is no longer needed to inspire the faith of man in God, as there is enough in the daily life and surroundings of man to convince him of eternal life.

"The Old Testament is splendid as history," said Mr. Bufford, "but it does not contain the answer to the problems of human life today. Every man can find that answer in the things around him, however, if he will but open his eyes and believe."

Sunday night Dr. Ogden's pulpit was occupied by Rev. Mr. Latham. Dr. Ogden himself is expected home by Wednesday.

Between Peachtree street and Piedmont avenue, on lot 78x185 feet to an alley, we offer one of the most up-to-date homes in the city. The home will have to be seen to be really appreciated.

From the dignified outside appearance, to the inside detail work and conveniences, that are only found in the higher class homes, there is an air of refinement and individuality that is only found in homes built to suit people whose taste is just a little different from the average.

This lot is just a little larger than the average city lot, is elevated, level and has an alley in the rear. Taken all in all in the lot, the location, the home and the price, which is very reasonable, should make this home appeal to you if you are in the market for a high-class home.
