HOLLOWAY DENIES AFFIDAVIT HE SIGNED FOR SOLICITOR

LIPSCOMB'S TAX BILL ONCE MORE MUTILATED AT HANDS OF THE HOUSE

Tax Reformers May Turn to Sheppard Substitute as Last Resort and Amend It.

COUNTIES SHOW NOW
HALF-MILLION SLUMP

Forty-Eight Heard From and Twenty-Eight Show Decreases
Aggregating $475,000.

With the counties reported to date showing a net loss in tax assessments of nearly half a million dollars, and with this loss being increased with two out of every three counties heard from indicating a marked slump in the assessments this year, the house spent practically all of yesterday's session in eliminating vital sections of the ways and means committee equalization bill.

Thursday's action was a continuation of the process started Wednesday, when the house struck from the measure the vital section 15, which defined the powers of the state board of tax equalizers.

Under the leadership of Mr. Stovall, of Elbert, the house went on yesterday and struck from the bill sections 19 and 20.

After Sections Stricken.

The first of these two sections gave the state board the power to make rules and regulations for its own government and also for the government of the county boards.

The second section struck yesterday gave the state or county boards the power to inquire into the value of property not reported on the digest of the preceding year, and to have such property placed upon the digest of the current year, and further provided that, in case there should be a conflict between the regulation of the state board and the county board, the regulation of the state board should control.

In section 21, which provided that wherever the act conferred any authority or power upon the state or county boards, such power or authority might be exercised by a majority of the state or county boards, the expression "state board" was stricken wherever it occurred.

Hardly anyone believes that the ways and means committee bill now that it has been amended, stands any chance of passing, though there are some earnest tax reformers who believe that the measure, even in its mutilated form, is preferable to the Sheppard substitute.

Will Amend Substitute.

The proposition will be made today, after a substitute bill offered by Representative Wright, of Floyd, is gotten out of the ways and means committee, and the work of amending it will be begun.

As it is the only measure which seems to have a chance of passing now, the real friends of tax revision will make an effort to prevent it from being changed in the ways and means committee, and to have it passed as the Sheppard substitute.

Amendments to the Sheppard substitute will be offered that will incorporate into it, as far as the humor of the house will permit, some of the principles that have been stricken from the ways and means bill, so that the tax revisionists of the senate, when the bill reaches them, will have a basis of law to work upon.

The Real Danger Now.

The real danger now lies in the fact that a considerable minority of the membership of the house, which has been using the Sheppard substitute as a basis of law to work upon.

The senate committee on appropriations yesterday pruned $150,000 from the general appropriations bill as passed by the house and at the same time added $15,000 to the bill. The net amount out from the house bill thus amounts to $135,000, lowering the total appropriation from $150,000 to $135,000, still leaving a big gap between the revenues of the state and the appropriations.

The common school fund was lowered from $2,000,000 to $1,850,000, another $150,000 reduction. The fund for the extension work of the State Agricultural college, at Athens, was reduced from $10,000 to $10,000.

In this way $150,000 was deducted from the house bill. The increase of $15,000.

The appropriation for the State Normal school, at Athens, was increased from $75,000 to $90,000, and the appropriation of $10,000 to the Georgia State Normal and Industrial school, at Milledgeville, was raised to $15,000.

NEW TESTIMONY GIVEN AT TRIAL OF LEO M. FRANK BY R. B. BARRETT

Machinist at Pencil Factory Tells Jury of Discovery of Murdered Girl's Pay Envelope
and of Strands of Hair
Near Her Machine in Metal
Room on Second Floor.

HENRY SCOTT PUZZLES
BOTH SIDES OF CASE
BY EVIDENCE THURSDAY

E. L. Holloway, who Swore in Affidavit That Elevator
Was Closed on Saturday,
the Day of the Murder, Admits on Stand That He Was Mistaken—"I've Been
'Trapped,'" Cries Dorsey.

The first piece of new testimony of importance which has developed since the beginning of the Leo M. Frank trial came Thursday morning, when R. B. Barrett, a machinist employed at the National Pencil Factory, testified that he had found what was supposed to be Mary Phagan's pay envelope near his machine in the metal room. Up to this time the matter of the pay envelope had been a complete mystery. Barrett also testified that he had discovered blood stains on the floor near her machine, and a strand of hair on the machine. The Scott witness said he was not giving the testimony of this witness and others seemed to bear out this contention.

Henry Scott, of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, who has been employed by the National Pencil Factory to ferret out the murderer, proved a strong witness for the state, although at first it looked as if he would prove of more value to the defense.

In the early stages of his examination, Scott testified that he was not giving the testimony of this witness and others seemed to bear out this contention.

Page Two.

Gant had been very familiar and intimate with Mary Phagan. He also testified that on Tuesday night at the station house Phagan had been nervous; that he had repeatedly crossed his legs, felt of his chin, and that he took deep breaths—more like sighs than anything else.

Haas Wanted to See Reports.
He stated that Herbert Haas, one of Frank's attorneys, had suggested that the Pinkerton turn over all evidence to him before it was given to the police department, and that he declined to consider any such proposal, stating he would throw up the case first.

Luther Rosser failed to shake Scott's testimony.
Frank Was Not There.
Moses Glover, a former employee of the pencil factory, testified that she had gone to Frank's office at 5 minutes after 12 o'clock on Memorial day, and that Frank was not there. She had remained in the building fully five minutes and saw no one. Frank had claimed that he was in his office at the time and was with her.

ATTORNEYS FOR BOTH SIDES RILED BY SCOTT'S TESTIMONY; REPLIES CAUSE LIVELY TILTS

When court convened on Thursday morning, J. M. Gant, formerly employed in the bookkeeping department of the National Pencil Factory, was placed on the stand for two questions, and he was followed by Harry Scott, Pinkerton detective who worked as a partner of John B. Black, of the city detectives. In answering for the murder of Mary Phagan.

Solicitor Hugh Dorsey said Gant swore that he was at work on April 25 and held until the following Thursday.

During Scott's testimony there were lively tilts of all sorts. At one time Scott became angry with the solicitor and asked him if he was accusing him of withholding evidence, and Dorsey declared that Scott had extracted him by promising to swear one thing on the stand and then by refusing to swear it.

A moment later the defense was in a rage when Scott swore that Herbert Haas, one of Leo Frank's counsel, had ordered him to furnish to the defense the evidence he might obtain before giving it to the police.

Luther Rosser, another of Frank's attorneys, then testified that he had not been concerned in this, and when this was not held admissible, he burst out with the statement: "There certainly no one here who believes that I had anything to do with this."

Scott declared he told Haas, in the presence of Rosser and Big Montague, that before the Pinkerton detective, as he asked that they would quit the case.

In the formal examination the first question asked by the solicitor was: "How long have you known Frank?"

Employed by Frank.
"Since I first saw him on April 25," the Pinkerton man replied.

"By whom were you employed in the Pencil factory?"
"By Frank, representing the National Pencil Factory," he answered.

"Where did you see him?"
"In his office in the pencil factory. He called me in his private office for a conference."

"What did he say?" asked the solicitor.
"He told me about the crime, and stated that he and the director of the company had decided to investigate the matter, and that he wanted me to go to the factory and see what I could find out."

"He then said," Scott went on, "that Mrs. White, wife of J. A. White, who was at work upstairs, had come in just before noon and asked permission to go up to see her husband."

Paid Off in Private Office.
"Mary Phagan came in and drew her pay at ten minutes after 12, and said that she had been paid $12.50, giving her two halves, and he thought her name was Phagan, and then he said that the Phagan girl was out of his office at 12 o'clock, and that she went out and called back to know if the mail had arrived yet."

"Frank declared he told the girl that he did not know about the mail, and then he said to me: 'Now, tell me what you saw.' He then said that at about half past 12, he went up and told Mrs. White that he was about to close up the factory, and that she had best leave, and that Mrs. White told him of seeing someone hide some boxes on the first floor."

"Frank said," Scott went on, "that he went home at 4, and that a few minutes afterwards he went out walking to the factory at 5 o'clock, when New Lee came, and that he went to see Lee and came back at 6."

"After that," Scott said, "he came back at 8, and that a few minutes afterwards he went out walking to the factory at 9 o'clock, when New Lee came, and that he went to see Lee and came back at 10."

"After that," Scott said, "he came back at 11, and that a few minutes afterwards he went out walking to the factory at 12 o'clock, when New Lee came, and that he went to see Lee and came back at 1."

ing an examination of the bloody shirt found at New Lee's home. He said he had examined the neck-band of the shirt and found it did not have the appearance of having been worn. No odor could be detected on the under side of the shirt. He also testified to making an examination of the blood stains found on the floor. He could not state whether or not this was human blood.

Holloway Contradicts Himself.
E. L. Holloway, an employee of the pencil factory, who had previously signed an affidavit that the power box on the elevator was closed on Saturday, the day of the murder, admitted that he was mistaken; that he had opened the box and hung up the key in Frank's office.

His affidavit was placed in evidence, and Judge Roan ruled that certain parts of it were admissible. Summing up the day's testimony, the weight of it was not so favorable to the defendant as on the day previous. The courtroom continues to attract large crowds.

Mrs. Callie Applebaum, recently acquitted of killing her husband, was one of the interested spectators.

Dorsey.
On Attorney Rosser's objection this time, Scott was asked to state what he saw. "What did he say?" asked Dorsey. "He said he saw a man who looked like a convict," Scott replied.

"What kind of breaths did he take?" "Deep sighs," said Scott. "How often?" "Four or five times while in the office."

"How large did his eyes look then?" "Same as now," Scott replied. "How about his complexion?" "He was a little pale then," Scott said. "What, if any, pauses did he make?" "None," Scott replied.

"That's a leading question," snapped Rosser. "How did Frank give his narrative and was he rapid in speech and apt in regard to time?" the solicitor went on without the other question being answered.

Mr. Rosser objected to the use of the word "specific," and declared that Frank had always used the word "about" in referring to the time of his movements. "What else was said in the conversation?" asked Dorsey. "Nothing more than I recall," Scott replied.

"Did you or did you not make reports or statements to the defendant?" "What you did?" asked Dorsey. "I made them to Herbert Haas, Luther Rosser and Big Montague," Scott declared.

"I want that he furnished them in the case," the solicitor said. "Did he not make it admissible?" "Did the Pinkerton give Frank's counsel reports?" continued the solicitor.

"Yes," Scott replied. "Give them to the state?" "I don't know," Scott replied. "Did Frank say he heard the voices in the hall about noon that Saturday, before or after noon?"

Scott was allowed to refer to his notes and started reading from them when Rosser interrupted him.

"You must not necessarily read what the notes say, but what you mind says after refreshing it by means of the notes," ruled Judge Roan.

"Frank said he heard the voices after noon," said Scott. "Was Frank accurate and specific as to time in describing to you his actions that Saturday when the girl is supposed to have been killed?" asked Dorsey.

"Yes," Scott replied. "Did Frank say he heard the voices in the hall about noon that Saturday, before or after noon?"

Scott was allowed to refer to his notes and started reading from them when Rosser interrupted him.

"You must not necessarily read what the notes say, but what you mind says after refreshing it by means of the notes," ruled Judge Roan.

ing time?" asked Dorsey. "He did not say," Scott replied. "Did he say he ate lunch?" "No," Scott replied.

Frank's References to Gant.
"What did Frank tell you about Gant?" "He stated in the first conversation," said Scott, "that Gant knew Mary Phagan very well and was intimate with her."

"Did he say how he knew this?" "No," Scott replied. "Did Frank say anything about Gant's attention to Mary Phagan?" "Not that I recall," Scott replied.

"May I refresh the mind of the witness?" asked the solicitor, turning to Judge Roan. Attorney Rosser entered an objection.

"Your honor," said Mr. Dorsey rather hotly, "it is in your discretion to allow me to lead a witness, and if there ever was a time when a witness needs to be led in this is one of the cases." Scott became angry.

"You don't mean to intimate that I'm hiding anything back?" Scott exclaimed angrily. "The state has been trapped," said Mr. Dorsey, and a general murmur from Rosser and Scott, and for a moment things looked black.

"The witness told me something and now he don't say to remember it," Mr. Dorsey continued, "and I'm not trying to lead him. I'm simply trying to refresh his memory." He added as his colleague, Frank Hooper, whispered something to him.

"Mr. Dorsey said three times that he had been trapped by Scott," Rosser interrupted, "and now after Hooper has talked to him he's changed Hooper's a wise man."

"You have the right to your honor, to allow me to ask leading questions, and while generally they are not allowed on cross-examination, you may allow them on direct examination and even when they are on the other side when they are cross-examining. This detective seems to have a lapse of memory. Why, he had to refresh it a while ago with his notes, and now I want to ask him to refresh it about what Frank said about Gant."

The solicitor evidently wanted Scott to declare that Frank had narrated seeing Gant and Mary Phagan together, and thus give the lie to Frank's declaration to Rosser and Black that he did not know even whether such a girl as Mary Phagan worked at the factory.

"In my talk to you, Mr. Scott, did I or not make memoranda of what you said?" asked the solicitor, and then turning to Judge he asked to show them to the witness.

Resentment Objected.
Mr. Rosser objected to this procedure and the judge asked Scott if he knew what the solicitor had written on the memoranda. When Scott said he did not know all that Dorsey wrote, Judge Roan ruled that unless the witness had seen all that the solicitor wrote that he could not be shown the notes to refresh his memory.

"As I understand it, Mr. Dorsey can tell about what they talked over and can ask, 'Well, Mr. Scott, how about this or that?'" stated Attorney Hooper. "It is not a leading question to call attention to a certain subject."

"Mr. Dorsey, you may call attention to a specific subject, but not to the answer you want," said Judge Roan. "Mr. Scott, did Frank or did he not discuss Gant's relations to Mary Phagan?" the solicitor then asked.

"Yes," Scott replied. "What did he say?" "He said Gant paid a great deal of attention to her," Scott replied.

"Anything more?" "Not that I now recall," Scott replied. "On Monday, April 21, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon,"

"Before or after your talk with Frank?" "About the same time; Gant was arrested in Marietta just about that hour."

"What, there any suggestion by Frank's attorneys that you suppress any evidence in this case?" asked the solicitor.

"Your honor," interrupted Attorney Rosser, "Leo Frank in a civil case would not be bound by what his lawyers did, and certainly he would not in this."

Mr. Dorsey then withdrew the question. The solicitor evidently wanted Scott to declare that Frank had narrated asked the solicitor.

Sworn Suspected Frank.
"Did the first week in May?" asked Scott. "Yes, and I went to Herbert Haas' office to discuss the handling of the case and we told him we had strong suspicion against Frank."

"I object that can't come in," roared Rosser.
"The Haas said that he would rather we would submit what evidence we might get to them before turning it over to the police," the Pinkerton man continued, "so that they would know in advance what the evidence was, and we told him that we would quit."

REPRESENTING STATE IN FRANK TRIAL

the case before we would handle it in that way."

Scott was then made to describe the locality where the supposed blood spots were found near the girls' dressing room and he declared that the spots had been wiped out when he went there, but that a white substance was smeared around the place as if someone had taken a cloth and rubbed the white stuff on.

"Are you sure that the white stuff had been smeared on, or had it merely been spilled there?" asked the solicitor.

"I could tell by its appearance that it had been smeared there," Scott replied positively.

"On the facts you have told about Frank's appearance are you willing to tell whether or not Frank was nervous?" asked the solicitor, referring to Scott's testimony about the defendant's being pale and shaking his hands during the first conference.

"He seemed nervous but not trembling," answered Scott.

"What what happened on Tuesday night, April 29, in Frank's presence?" asked Dursey.

"No," "Did you search the factory?" "Yes, I searched thoroughly around the elevator shaft, but only on the surface; I did not dig up the dirt."

"Did anything like a ribbon, a purse, any envelope or a stick or anything" asked Dursey quickly.

"No, I was only looking up and down and looked thoroughly, but I found nothing like what you describe," Scott declared with emphasis.

"Cross-Examined by Hooper."

"Did you take a report of your talk with Mr. Hank?"

"Yes."

"Mr. Hank said that he wanted to find out whether or not he might be indicted?"

"Yes, he said that after I had told him we would handle it like he first suggested, in telling us to submit new evidence to him before giving it to the police," replied Scott.

"Mr. Hooper then declared that he wanted to know that he had not been concerned in the affair. The solicitor was his point, however, that because it might have been that one of the defendant's counsel had tried to suppress facts that such did not open up the way for proving that others had not."

"Well, there's certainly no one here who would think that I had anything to do with it and I know it," thundered Hooper, apparently addressing himself to court and spectators as well as to the jury.

"Didn't you give me a statement of your first conversation with Frank in which there was no mention of his statement about the alleged intimacy between Gant and Mary Phagan?" asked Mr. Hooper a moment later of Scott.

"It was purely an oversight."

"Didn't the coroner ask you about Lee's statement and you answered without saying anything of Gant's intimacy?"

"Yes, I didn't consider Gant a suspect and for that reason did not report it to you."

"Gives Notes to Hooper."

Scott then gave Attorney Hooper the notes of his testimony.

"Did you report to the inquest what failed to tell of Frank's swearing his head?"

"No, I don't remember."

"Didn't you make one statement at the inquest and another here?"

"Oh, it's refreshed my memory," said Scott.

"Now, one in your notes anything about Gant's intimacy with Mary Phagan?"

"I don't think I've got my system of taking notes and maybe they are not like yours."

"Isn't it true you took part of the notes one day and another day?"

"I don't know."

"You never mentioned to me of Gant's intimacy?"

"No."

"The coroner's inquiry did you not say Frank was nervous that afternoon at the office?"

"No, I was not asked about it."

"Why did you state it?"

"Oh, there is a lot of banding going in to a whole detailed sheet about it."

"When you told of the talk between Lee and Frank you never said he was nervous."

"No, not nervous; I said Frank hung his head."

"Are you following Dursey's attack?"

"No, his line of questions."

"Are you a trained sleuth?"

"Suppose so."

"You are trained to note all indications of guilt in a man?"

Watertown, N. Y., July 31.—Two persons were killed this evening in an accident during a motorcycle race held in connection with the old home week celebration at Watertown, N. Y. The dead are Luther Gilbert, 23, motorcycle rider, and Irvin Bartholomew, 20 years old, a spectator.

The race was run through the main street of the village. Gilbert and Bartholomew were the participants, were speeding at about 50 miles an hour when Gilbert's machine struck a crosswalk and hurled him to the road. Killing him almost instantly. Bartholomew rushed in the road to drag the fallen cyclist out of the way of the other machines when Bartholomew's machine struck him.

Spots Were Large As Fan, Declares Woman Who Saw Them

Mrs. George W. Jetterson, who is an employee of the pencil factory, was best called to the stand. Her examination was begun by Solicitor Dorsey.

"Where do you work?"

"In the National Pencil factory."

"Where were you working Friday, April 24?"

"In the National Pencil factory."

"Were you there Monday?"

"Yes."

"Did you see anything on the floor near a dressing room?"

"Yes. It looked like something white had been spread over a spot of blood."

"How far is the toilet room from the ladies' dressing room?"

"Four or five feet."

"How far are the cords from the dressing room?"

"They are hanging up on the wall. There are no paint in your department used in painting another."

"Is there any difficulty in distinguishing the different shades of red paint?"

"Yes."

Attorney Rosser took up the interrogation.

"Did you see any white spot on the floor?"

"No."

"I've Been Trapped By Witness," Cries Dorsey When Holloway Goes Back on His Affidavit

E. F. Holloway, a general superintendent in the pencil factory, who has been in the employ of that concern for three years, was called to the stand.

"It was during Holloway's statement that the solicitor charged him with having trapped the state in attesting his signature to a sworn statement and making a confounding statement before the jury."

"How long have you been employed at the pencil factory?" the solicitor asked.

"Three years."

"Are you working there now?"

"Yes."

"Where were you on Saturday, April 24?"

"From 6:30 a. m. until 11:25 a. m."

"What is your business?"

"Attending to the elevator, freight and looking after general business."

"What do you do upon leaving in reference to the elevator?"

"Nothing in particular."

"Did you leave the elevator unlocked on Saturday, April 24?"

"Yes."

Trapped by Witness.

Instantly upon the witness answered the solicitor cried to Judge Ross:

"Your honor, I've been trapped by the witness. On May 15, before District Judge Campbell, James John Black and my brother-in-law, Mr. Holloway, swore that he had locked this power box on Saturday, April 24, and that he always kept it locked."

Holloway, in answer to this, said: "I said I had locked it on Friday."

Mrs. Dorsey on May 15 that he had locked it on Friday and Saturday, didn't you, Mr. Witness?"

"I don't remember."

"Will you deny having sworn it?"

"No."

"Was it locked that Saturday?"

"Because I forgot."

He signed Affidavit.

"You signed your name to this affidavit and read it, didn't you?"

"Who was the next man?"

"Mr. Darley."

"Who was the next man or woman?"

"Mattie Smith."

"Did you turn the building over to Mattie Smith?"

"Yes."

"How many negroes worked in the building?"

"Seven or eight."

Alcohol Swapped.

"Did you ever hear of a man named Stanford who had a man for sweeping out and couldn't stop until he had swept the whole floor?"

"Yes. He did it frequently."

"Do you remember seeing Mrs. Arthur White at the plant on the morning you left?"

"Yes."

"Do you remember Miss Hall coming in?"

"Yes."

"What was she doing?"

"Writing on the typewriter."

"Remember Frank coming back from Montana?"

"Yes."

"Do you use these wrapping cords in any other part of the building besides the third floor?"

"Yes—everywhere."

"Don't some of them get into the trash?"

"Every day."

"Did you see Phagan?"

"No."

"Did you see Mary Phagan?"

"No."

FRANK'S PRESENCE IN OFFICE At Time He Says He Was There IS DENIED BY GIRL ON STAND

Following the Finkerton detective testimony the state introduced Miss Monteen Stover, who worked in the factory when Mary Phagan died. The girl was rather abashed when she first appeared but turned out to be a witness who could relate exactly what she started out to tell and who did not seem to get confused.

"Where do you work?" asked the solicitor of the girl.

"Nowhere."

"Where you working on April 24?"

"Yes. I was working on April 24."

"When did you last work before the murder?"

"On Monday before the murder."

"Are there one or two offices on the second floor?"

"Yes."

"Was you in the factory on April 24?"

"Yes. At 12:01."

"How long did you stay there?"

"Until 12:30."

"Why did you go there?"

"To get my pay."

"What part of the factory were you in?"

"I was on the second floor in Mr. Frank's office."

"Was Frank there, or was anybody in the building?"

"Yes. Frank was not there and I saw no one in the building."

"How about the door just east of the girls' dressing room. Was it open or closed?"

"I don't know."

"Did you see any dress?"

"I saw a little yellow hat and a brown dress and had on tennis slippers."

Entered Building at 12:06.

"Did you look at the clock?"

"Yes. The first thing I did on going in was to look at the clock and it showed that it was 12:06, and I looked at it when I went out and it showed 12:15."

"Did you see a coat or hat or any part of a man's apparel in Frank's office?"

"No."

"Why did you leave?"

"I thought that they had finished paying off."

"Where go into that office before?"

"May I show the witness this affidavit which she made and signed, your honor?" asked Mr. Dorsey.

Mr. Dorsey asked this:

"Do you know the fourth floor?"

"Yes."

"Where your foreman?"

"Archie White."

"Do you get paid off in the office?"

"No."

"Does Sheriff say off?"

"Sometimes he does and sometimes another man does."

"Do you know anybody on the second floor?"

"Yes. Mr. Darley and some of the girls who work there."

Archie White by Girl.

After an argument the solicitor then won his point for the girl to read her signed affidavit. She was told to read it to herself and read slowly and with perfect composure, her lips moving as she scanned the words, like a child would do.

"Well, what about that back door now?" asked Mr. Dorsey.

"Sometimes it was open and sometimes it was closed," replied the girl, sticking to her original statement on the stand.

William Ghesling, Embalmer, Tells of Wounds on Girl's Body

William Ghesling, the undertaker who embalmed Mary Phagan's body, was next called in.

"What is your business?" queried Solicitor Dorsey.

"I am an embalmer."

"How long have you been in this service?"

"Fifteen years, or more."

"When did you first see it at 11 minutes to 4 on the morning of April 24?"

"Where was it?"

"In the basement of the National Pencil factory."

How Body Was Lying.

"I was lying on the face arms crossed and with a piece of wrapping tape and part of her underclothing looped around the throat. I put it in a basket and brought it to the B. B. Humphreys undertaking establishment."

"Was there any impression on the throat?"

"Yes. An eighth-of-an-inch impression of the cord."

"What did you observe about the tongue?"

"It protruded about a quarter of an inch from the mouth."

"How many hours had she been dead?"

"From 10 to 15 hours—possibly longer."

"Had rigor-mortis set in?"

"Yes. It had been in effect for some time."

"What was the condition of the blood?"

"Very congested."

"How long does it require blood to settle?"

"It settles quickly, sometimes, while at others it is slow."

"Did you examine the finger nails?"

"Yes, and found nothing but dirt."

"Anything on her underclothing?"

"Did you observe anything else?"

Black Spot on Eye.

"A black spot on the eye that had been inflicted before death because of its swollen condition."

"Did you examine a wound in the skull?"

"Yes. There was no fracture, although the scalp had been broken."

"Was there any indication of the wound having been sustained before death?"

"Yes. Blood that had run from the snub was matted in the hair."

"Were you present when Frank came into your place that morning?"

"Did you observe him?"

"No."

"When the factory was not running?"

"On the door was closed then," she said.

"All the time?" asked the solicitor.

"Yes."

"He then made her tell that the door referred to was an leading back to the metal room and situated near the girls' dressing room."

"Mr. Rosser then asked her if she went to the solicitor's office before or after going to the grand jury, and she said before. She was allowed to come down from the stand at 11:40, after being up for about 40 minutes."

During Miss Stover's testimony Leo Frank, the defendant, paid more attention to the examination of her than he had previously to any witness. When she was telling that she had been in the factory and found him not in his office at the very time he claims to have been there, he appeared to take a deep interest in what she said and sat staring at her and passing his hand over his chin after the manner described by Detective Scott.

"It would take an expert medical man to..."

"The question was interrupted by the witness, who said:

"No. A medical man doesn't necessarily know anything about embalming."

Embalming the Body.

"In case of death you embalm the body before the end of rigor-mortis, don't you, so that the rigor can be retained?"

"Yes."

"When the heart stops the blood stops wherever it is, doesn't it?"

"No. It goes back to the heart."

"How do you help you examine the body?"

"Dr. Hunt."

"What kind of fluid did you use?"

"Private kind."

"What ingredients is it composed of?"

"I would rather not reveal them. It is a formula of my own, and I would rather not tell it."

"His request was granted."

"Tell of the visit of 'Boots' Rogers. They came in and I went back and I returned to the front of the shop?"

"How much blood was extracted from her body?"

"One-half gallon."

"How much did it generally require?"

Embalming Fluid Injected.

"Enough to clear the corpse's features and make the corpse look like a living person."

"How much fluid was injected?"

"One-half gallon."

"Did Dr. Hunt examine the body's features?"

"Yes. He removed the substance."

"What happened Monday?"

"Private kind."

"The solicitor began questioning at this point."

"The girl's body loss much blood?"

"No."

"Was anything torn about her corpse?"

"Yes. A hose supporter was ripped loose."

"He was removed from the stand."

BLOOD FOUND BY DR. SMITH ON CHIPS AND LEE'S SHIRT

Dr. Claude A. Smith, the medical expert who made microscopic examinations of the blood-spotted chips obtained from the floor of the pencil factory and of the bloody shirt discovered in New Lee's house, was next called in.

He was asked by Solicitor Dorey: "What is your business?" "I am a bacteriologist and chemist," he answered.

"He was handed the chips from the pencil factory floor," he said. "Did you test these chips?"

"Yes. Some detectives brought me these specimens and asked me to examine them. They were considerably dirty and stained. On one of them I found blood corpuscles."

"Was it human blood?" "I don't know," he answered.

"You examine the bloody shirt?" "No appearance of being worn. I inspected the spots. In the vicinity of the shirt I could find no odor or evidence that it had been worn since having been laundered last night. It was not soiled on the inside of the collar-band, and had no appearance whatever of having been worn."

"Have counsel for the defense asked to have Dr. Smith's expression, 'the shirt didn't smell like a nigger,' ruled out? His objection was overruled. 'I know as much about nigger smell as he does,' was Attorney Rogers' retort.

"Rogers took the witness back. 'If the shirt had the tell-tale odor of nigger blood, it could have been found on the inside, couldn't it?'"

"But, I don't think it was that way." "If my shirt-tail was turned up, I could get it soiled the inside as well as outside, couldn't I?"

"Haslett Describes Visit To Home of Leo Frank"

Detective R. B. Haslett, who went with Detective John Black on Monday morning, April 27, to Leo Frank's home to summon him to police headquarters for a statement Chief Sanford wished him to give, was next called to the stand.

"Did you go to Leo Frank's home at any time?" "Yes. At 7 o'clock Monday morning we went to see Frank and have him come to the police bureau."

"What did you tell him?" "That Leo Frank wanted to see him. 'What Leo wanted to see him?'"

"About a nigger. He was a white man, wasn't he?" "Yes."

"When you got to police headquarters with Frank, who did you see?" "I went directly out of the building, returning in a few minutes, finding Attorney Hester and Hester."

"What time were Hester and I at police headquarters?" "About 8:30 o'clock."

"Finding of Hair and Envelope Described by Factory Machinist"

R. B. Barrett, a machinist at the National Pencil factory, who declares that he found strands of hair similar to Mary Phagan's on his machine after the murder, and who also told of finding a low piece of paper envelope in the same room at the machine where the hair was found, followed Monteen Stover on the stand.

"He was asked if he had testified before the coroner's and the grand jury, and replied that he had."

"What did you see near Mary Phagan's machine?" "A peculiar spot on the floor," he replied.

"Was the spot there Friday?" "He described the spot as being four or five inches in diameter and with smaller spots back of it and leading toward the entrance of the rear."

"What hour Monday did you find these spots?" "Between 6:30 and 7 o'clock on Monday."

"What was the spot?" "Blood."

"There was a white substance partially covering it."

"Possibly," he said. "The shirt had the odor of blood on it when you first got it, didn't it?"

"Then, wouldn't the odor of blood be killed the odor of nigger?" "No."

"Witness and Counsel Tilt"

"Then, if a nigger had just put on his shirt and had taken it off in an instant, your nose would 'get him'?" "Have you ever smelled a nigger, Mr. Rogers?"

"More than you ever smelled. I was smelling them before you were born."

"Doctor, you say one of the chips had blood spots on it and another had nigger odor?"

"No, I could find none."

"If there had been any blood, you have found it?" "Yes."

"You couldn't tell whether the blood was fresh or old?" "No."

"How long could blood corpuscles, or whatever you call 'em—be discernible?"

"For considerable while, according to my experience."

"Solicitor Takes Witness."

Dorey then began questioning. "The blood wasn't put on the shirt, was it?"

"A spot of blood is on the shirt, above the waist line, which was not touched within the trousers."

"Could the spot you found on the shirt have come from paint?" "No."

"What was it?" "Blood."

"What followed was a lengthy tilt between Dr. Smith and Counsel for the defense in an argument over the shirt following which he was called from the stand."

"Wasn't it later?" "I don't know."

"Whenever it was, Hasse also was there?" "Yes."

"You told Frank at his home that you wanted him to go to the station with you?"

"I told him Chief Sanford wanted him to go to the station with you."

"How long did you see Frank and me at police station?" "I don't know."

"How many detectives were there?" "About half a dozen standing around."

"A half dozen standing around?" "Yes. You and Frank were in the office."

"You said you took Frank to the station. What do you mean by that?"

"I said he went with us."

"Where in the case did you look? I asked you—that's what you said."

LEO FRANK INNOCENT, SAYS MRS. APPELBAUM

Accquitted in Same Courtroom, She Is Now Eager Spectator at Big Trial

A little woman, neatly dressed and wearing a dark hat crowned with a flowing aigrette, slipped quietly into the rear of the courtroom at the afternoon session of the Frank trial yesterday afternoon, and sat down near the press table unnoticed.

Presently, a reporter looked up from his notes, caught sight of her and immediately walked to where she sat. She was Mrs. Callie Scott Appelbaum, principal figure in case of Atlanta recent murder trial, when she was arraigned before the court on a charge of murdering her husband, Jerome Appelbaum, in the DuPont Building.

She was Mrs. Appelbaum, principal figure in case of Atlanta recent murder trial, when she was arraigned before the court on a charge of murdering her husband, Jerome Appelbaum, in the DuPont Building.

She looked up very much surprised as she saw the reporter, and removed her hat, asking if it would be all right to see her.

"I don't want you boys to know I was here," she said sweetly. "That's why I stole in the back way."

The newspaper men prevailed upon her to go into an ante-room where she could be interviewed. In order to keep from attracting notice, she waited in the jury room, where she requested that the interview be short, as she wanted to hear the trial.

The first thing she said was to deny the rumor that she had been in circulation for several days to the effect that she had admitted to Detective Bob Waggoner and Attorney Bob Thompson that she shot her husband. She declared it was the first she had heard of the report.

"I have nothing to confess, boys," she stated. "The story is told in the stand is the truth. That and nothing more. Every Sunday I go out to Mr. Appelbaum's grave and put flowers upon it. Some Sundays I have been almost too sick to arise from bed, but have always made the trip to the cemetery."

"She came to the Frank trial, she said, because she sympathized with the defendant, and she was not comfortable he was under fire of such charges, and having been once in a similar predicament, she wanted to see how it looked to the jury."

Believes Frank Innocent.

"I do not believe Frank committed the crime," she said. "It doesn't look possible. It looks too much like the work of a nigger. I don't believe how a white man can do such a horrible thing. In the long run I do not doubt but what he cleared. Right is right and right will conquer."

"She said she had seen the man who she believed was the murderer, and she was sure he was the murderer. She said she was sure he was the murderer. She said she was sure he was the murderer."

"I think you boys do owe me some consideration," she said. "I have been here for a long time, and I have been here for a long time. I have been here for a long time, and I have been here for a long time."

Sweeper Swears No Spots Were On Floor Day Before Murder

Mal Stanford, a sweeper and plaster at the factory, was put on the stand at 11:30. He testified that he had worked there for about two years and was there on Friday, April 25, on the second floor.

"What did you do on Friday?" asked the solicitor.

"I swept up the entire floor in the metal room."

"Were you there Monday, April 22?" "See anything at water cooler near girls' dressing room?"

"Yes, a spot which had a white substance over it."

"Was it there Friday?" "It was not there when I swept up the floor between 3 and 12 o'clock Friday."

"What sort of a broom did you use?" "A small broom."

"Do you know anything about a large broom?" "Yes, there were several up there."

Stanford then went on to describe the spots in a similar manner to what Barrett had done. Court then adjourned for lunch.

SOLD BEER TO MINOR; MUST EXPLAIN TODAY

Directly across the street from police headquarters, on Deatur street, and in full view of several officers seated in front of the station house, E. L. Church, operating a near beer stand for colored only, sold a glass of beer Thursday night to John Barker, 17 years of age.

The bar can be easily seen from across the street, and when Officers Hatfield and Maddox saw the negro porter serve the boy with beer they ran across the street and placed him under arrest. Church, a white man, who was behind the bar, was also ordered to appear in the recorder's court this morning to answer to charges of selling intoxicants to minors and selling to white people in a negro bar.

With his Pretty Wife Watching, Scott Holds Own With Rosser

While Detective Harry Scott was upon the witness stand yesterday morning a pretty little woman sat on a front seat near the press table and clenched her hands in nervous anticipation and delight.

It was his wife, who two years ago came all the way from Philadelphia to marry the Pinkerton man when he was transferred to the Atlanta office. She had come down to the trial just to hear her husband's testimony and to see how he came out of the fire of Rosser's cross-examination, which had so sorely rattled John Black, Scott's detective colleague, on the preceding afternoon.

Honors were about evenly divided between Scott and Rosser during the two hours he was on the stand. All the while the little woman sat keenly expecting her husband to deliver a con-

LOSS OF $1,000,000 CAUSED BY FLAMES

Allentown, Pa., August 1.—Fire which broke out shortly before midnight in the plant of the P. H. Flory Manufacturing company, at Bangor, Pa., destroyed property valued at almost $1,000,000 and still was burning fiercely at 1:30 o'clock this morning. Besides the Flory manufacturing plant, the Flory Milling company's extensive flouring plant and several residences have been destroyed.

The Bangor firemen were handicapped by a scarcity of water and when it was realized that the fire was getting beyond their control appeals for aid were sent to Pen Argyll and other nearby towns.

Vanant lots around the fire and the firemen hope to prevent a further spread of the flames. Six hundred men will be thrown out of employment through destruction of the Flory plant.

IT WAS QUITTING DAY FOR SEVERAL OFFICIALS

VILLAGE IN ALABAMA IS SWEEP BY FLAMES

ELLIS KILLS ROONEY ON BIRMINGHAM STREET

Birmingham, Ala., July 31.—Pat Rooney, of Montgomery, Ala., was killed by Ed Ellis, also of Montgomery, after a 11 o'clock shooting. The shooting occurred in front of a hotel on Second avenue near Ninth street. Three shots were fired, all the bullets entering Rooney's breast. Ellis was arrested.

With Bullet in Head.

Protest by Russia.

Washington, July 31.—Russia today protested against the denial of free wool pulp and paper to that country because of the abrogation of the treaty of 1912, on the ground that the action was in violation of the understanding between the United States and Russia, pending the negotiation of a new treaty of commerce and navigation.

Midsummer Sale in Full Swing!

Discount Prices in All Departments!

Men's and Young Men's Clothing Main Floor

The success of our REBUILDING DISCOUNT SALE has reached and passed all former records in the history of the "Big Store's" CLEARANCE campaigns. From the very start of the Sale the fact became obvious that early depletions of CLOTHING STOCKS in particular was imminent; and when well swung into July we found that a continuance of the sale depended (insofar as the CLOTHING was concerned) in obtaining NEW goods to sustain the sale through its normal period.

Confronted with this ultimatum, we bought all the short lengths of piece goods our various manufacturers had on hand and ordered them made up into SUITS; with the results that not lot contains more than three suits of a kind, many of them but one or two. Of course, we bought these at quite a concession in price, which fact materially advances values at the special mid-summer clearance prices. These handsomely tailored SUITS are now being received daily by Express, and your special attention is called to the extraordinary merit of these models.

While Detective Harry Scott was upon the witness stand yesterday morning a pretty little woman sat on a front seat near the press table and clenched her hands in nervous anticipation and delight.

It was his wife, who two years ago came all the way from Philadelphia to marry the Pinkerton man when he was transferred to the Atlanta office. She had come down to the trial just to hear her husband's testimony and to see how he came out of the fire of Rosser's cross-examination, which had so sorely rattled John Black, Scott's detective colleague, on the preceding afternoon.

Honors were about evenly divided between Scott and Rosser during the two hours he was on the stand. All the while the little woman sat keenly expectant, her hands clenched, a con-

LOSS OF $1,000,000 CAUSED BY FLAMES

Allentown, Pa., August 1.—Fire which broke out shortly before midnight in the plant of the P. H. Flory Manufacturing company, at Bangor, Pa., destroyed property valued at almost $1,000,000 and still was burning fiercely at 1:30 o'clock this morning. Besides the Flory manufacturing plant, the Flory Milling company's extensive flouring plant and several residences have been destroyed.

The Bangor firemen were handicapped by a scarcity of water and when it was realized that the fire was getting beyond their control appeals for aid were sent to Pen Argyll and other nearby towns.

Vanant lots around the fire and the firemen hope to prevent a further spread of the flames. Six hundred men will be thrown out of employment through destruction of the Flory plant.

IT WAS QUITTING DAY FOR SEVERAL OFFICIALS

Washington, July 31.—This was quitting day for several government officials.

James A. Fowler, of Knoxville, Tenn., retired as assistant to the comptroller general after a two-year term.

Frank C. Hale, of New York, resigned under the Wickham and Mettelmann administrations. He will locate in Knoxville. G. Carroll Todd, of New York, has been nominated as assistant secretary in charge of customs, after nearly a four-year term, during which the customs service has been revolutionized and reformed. Charles M. Hamilton, of Boston, will succeed Mr. Curtis tomorrow.

Frank C. Hale, of New York, resigned as private secretary to Attorney General McMeekin, a position which he held during the four-year term of former Attorney General Wickham. His successor has not been chosen.

Two Deaths at Louisville

Louisville, Ky., July 31.—Two deaths and numerous contractions resulted from the heat here today. The weather bureau thermometer registered a maximum of 106.6 at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Cooling breezes brought relief tonight and moderating temperature was forecast for tomorrow.

One Death at Memphis

Memphis, Tenn., July 31.—One death as a result of the heat occurred here today, the first in Memphis this summer. The maximum temperature recorded by the weather bureau was 95 degrees with 109 as the highest knob reading.

OKlahoma Blistered

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 31.—A blistering wind swept Oklahoma from the south today and the heat record for the summer was broken in nearly every section of the state. In Oklahoma City the temperature at 3 o'clock registered 102. One prostration was reported.

Six Deaths at Philadelphia

Philadelphia, July 31.—Twelve midnight breezes from the northwest brought relief today from the oppressive heat which has prevailed here since last Monday. Six deaths, however, were reported as due to the warm weather, although the maximum temperature was only 93 degrees.

Chattanooga Sweltered

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 31.—With a maximum temperature of 95 degrees Chattanooga sweltered today. At 8 o'clock a storm gathered in the east and with clear skies in the west and bright sunshine, the eastern part of the city was deluged. The rain did not reduce the temperature. No damage is reported.

Protest by Russia

Washington, July 31.—Russia today protested against the denial of free wool pulp and paper to that country because of the abrogation of the treaty of 1912, on the ground that the action was in violation of the understanding between the United States and Russia, pending the negotiation of a new treaty of commerce and navigation.

Midsummer Sale in Full Swing!

Discount Prices in All Departments!

Men's and Young Men's Clothing Main Floor

The success of our REBUILDING DISCOUNT SALE has reached and passed all former records in the history of the "Big Store's" CLEARANCE campaigns. From the very start of the Sale the fact became obvious that early depletions of CLOTHING STOCKS in particular was imminent; and when well swung into July we found that a continuance of the sale depended (insofar as the CLOTHING was concerned) in obtaining NEW goods to sustain the sale through its normal period.

Confronted with this ultimatum, we bought all the short lengths of piece goods our various manufacturers had on hand and ordered them made up into SUITS; with the results that not lot contains more than three suits of a kind, many of them but one or two. Of course, we bought these at quite a concession in price, which fact materially advances values at the special mid-summer clearance prices. These handsomely tailored SUITS are now being received daily by Express, and your special attention is called to the extraordinary merit of these models.

IN THE MELTING POT!

The honor of the state of Georgia is in the melting pot. The events of the next few days must determine whether the pot shall tilt toward honor or dishonor. That is how the legislative crisis with regard to the appropriations and the tax equalization bill
may be summarized. The state board feature of the ways and means committee did not meet the judgment of that body. It received an adverse vote. But the house will have to commit itself definitely for or against the principle of state-wide equalization. By whatever method it is attained The Constitution hopes that the house will yet recognize the important principle of state-wide equalization. As we see it, this is a tax system is the one thing that will save Georgia from dishonor and her institutions from total paralysis.

The house has passed an appropriations
bill carrying $280,000 in excess of revenue for the current year. That $280,000 discrepancy is based upon the tax returns of last year. Elsewhere The Constitution publishes summaries of tax returns from forty counties for 1912. These returns show an approximate slump of $400,000 from last year. If nearly one-fourth of the counties of the 143 register this slump, the returns
from the entire 148 must go into the millions. In the face of this steadily dwindling revenue the house has already authorized the expenditure of $280,000 in excess of the revenues based upon the large returns of last year.

Governor Slaton said in a recent address that no member could defend a vote for increased appropriations unless he voted for revenue with which to meet it. That is the pith of the present crisis. It is not a question of parsimony, but simply of the arithmetic of everyday business.

No legislator in house or senate would attempt to conduct his private business by spending a sum in excess of revenue without providing for that revenue. He knows that he would, in such a case, invite bankruptcy.

The Constitution is as yet unwilling to concede that the general assembly will be so lacking in patriotism that it may throw the state's honor to the winds, encourage the old carpetbag ghost of repudiation and threaten every institution within our borders with paralysis and stagnation. That is the distinct threat of the moment. For if the present appropriations bill is passed without accompanying revenue legislation there will be no escape from an impairment
of the state's credit in its refunding operations. If the excess is pruned out of the appropriation bill the state's institutions as a whole will be crippled. There is only one feasible solution in honor and manliness. That is tax equalization.

We trust that today the members of the house, having had opportunity to fully consider the situation, may just pass a bill embodying the principle of state-wide equalization. The honor of the state and the

PLAYING WITH DYNAMITE.

We have little sympathy with democratic, republican or progressive harangues charging their partisan opponents with manipulating for the manufacture of a panic. There is a good deal of such loose talk going up in and around congress at present. The practice not only makes those who indulge in it appear silly, but it is distinctly in the way of playing with dynamite.

A few months ago the leading financiers
of the country were a trifling pessimistic.
Their brooding grew out of world conditions and in no way were affected, save by deliberate distortion, by pending legislation.
Of recent weeks their viewpoint has grown more hopeful. They see for the United States not hard times or a panic, but every prospect of a healthy business year. Reports thus far indicate that crops will be of the bumper variety. Trade is active.
Collections have improved. We have presented, then, the unusual paradox of all the country talking prosperity, with the exception of congress.

Now, a panic or hard times, as most students of economics have learned from the past, is a psychological state of mind, is created by a psychological state of mind, is unquestionably aided and abetted by the influence. For struggling partisans, therefore, to be trifling with the public welfare
for the sake of a little trivial party advantage, is a spectacle that is puzzling, to say the least of it.

We're not going to have a panic, and those who so recklessly bandying such talk know it. About the most notorious thing hands can do is to abate their noise and give the country a chance to make headway against the legislation with which it has been continuously drenched since the first year of the Taft administration.

NO RECOGNITION OF HUERTA.

From the points of view either of morality or policy President Wilson's refusal to recognize the government of Huerta of Mexico is amply justified. The president is said to base his decision purely upon the moral aspect. Since Huerta rose to power by treachery and assassination, the president reasons that the quasi-indorsement of such methods by the United States might encourage similar conditions in South and Central American countries, already tolerably well inclined to such short cuts. History is, of course, sprinkled with instances of power being founded upon bloodshed and intrigue. All things being equal, however, it is just as well that this nation be
not placed even in the indirect attitude of
approving such practices.

By far the more important argument for non-recognition lies in the instability of the rule of Huerta. Recognizing him would be in the nature of throwing a rope to a growing man who is still grasping for his balance. All things being equal, however, it is just as well that this nation be
not placed even in the indirect attitude of
approving such practices.

Another phase of the situation is rarely
mentioned, and that is the manner in which
the activities of the demagogue make necessary the exertions before congress. Of the business man. We have gone lately a long way in showing the lobbyist just how far
he will be allowed to go and what is expected of him under all circumstances. There is nothing but public opinion to put a check on the demagogue. For instance, candidates for house and senate can make representations to their heart's content, vilify business, bait corporations, and
at the railroad and line up in impassioned pleas for selfish interest. They may be willing to throw these abuses of their office behind them, but the memory of the people is longer. Voters, unfortunately, or at least a few of them, take these attacks seriously.
They believed the candidate when he told them things were plunging backward, and they demand straightway that he proceed to purge the country of the devil and all his works.

It is a wonder that, in situations of this nature, lobbyists flourish and multiply and that big and little business should send a good many thousands each year in maintaining representatives at Washington? The remedy, of course, is the education of the voter and a little more skepticism on his part. But as long as our system of politics encourages the demagogue
we are going to find his counterpart in the lobbyist.

TWO CHICAGO WOMEN.

A matter of interest to the entire country is the fact that Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, for several years superintendent of schools in Chicago, has resigned her resignation from that position. The old board of education had disagreed in toto with Mrs. Young's policies and the situation became such that her presence in the system was more than undesirable. The newly-elected board has refused, however, by a vote of 14 to 1 to accept her resignation.

Two women who have rendered service of a distinctly national and international nature have come out of Chicago. They are Ella Flagg Young and Jane Addams. It is open to question which one deserves the more credit. Mrs. Young has added the woman's cause and education generally, by giving a splendid illustration of efficiency
in the reorganization of Chicago's once hopelessly run-down school system. Mrs.
Addams has done more than any other woman in America to revolutionize and revitalize our viewpoint toward the girl who works or the girl who sits.

These two Chicago women exemplify the most constructive attributes of the feminist movement.

THE MOTHER'S RIGHT.

If every superior court judge in Georgia were polled they would probably agree with Judge John T. Pendleton that the law should be amended so as to give to mothers, in the case of domestic litigation, the right to their children where their unfather is not clearly established. Judge Pendleton expressed himself to this effect with regard to the Augusta case recently cited in The Constitution, and the bills correcting such conditions now pending in the legislature.

The law as it stands is simply the survival of barbarism. The most innocent men recognize, in the practice of daily life, the superiority of the claim of the mother.
She who faced death to bring children into the world, who sleepless nights with them
in their illnesses and arduous days in training them for manhood and womanhood, is their natural custodian by a law higher than any man-made statute.

The present legislature can remove a basic injustice and write itself on the side of humanity by bringing the law to the twentieth century conception of right.

LOYALISTS AND DEMAGOGUES

As sound and deliberate a thinker as The Springfield (Mass.) Republican joyously makes the usual disclosures as probably making the read of undesirable influences between business and politics. The revelations of the undue influences exerted upon politics and law-making by the National Association of Manufacturers are pointed out as legitimate developments of a high price, and of any country that brings law-making and commercial agencies of the country into too close a contact.

We agree with The Republican in its orderly premise that the dealings between business and politics must be wholly open.
That assured, there is nothing to fear. Publicity is a sufficient preventive against indirect alliances. That little business should that business always will and always ought to be interested in politics. And there is very little legislation that may be enacted by congress that will not bear directly or indirectly upon business. We must expect at every session and despite the reduction of the tariff to a revenue basis, to see representatives of commercial institutions gather in groups. These institutions would,
indeed, be careless of their stockholders'
interests and reckless of the future if they did not keep an intelligent eye on measures affecting both.

Another phase of the situation is rarely
mentioned, and that is the manner in which
the activities of the demagogue make necessary the exertions before congress. Of the business man. We have gone lately a long
way in showing the lobbyist just how far
he will be allowed to go and what is expected of him under all circumstances. There
is nothing but public opinion to put a
check on the demagogue. For instance,

Some talk of the bull moose and old line republicans getting together, but really the weather's too warm to witness the appearance of fly fishing in all directions.

Doubtless Dix, though safely away, isn't certain that his head is on suitably straight.

Keeping Company With Life.

I.

In the trouble and the strife
Keeping company with life,
Saying, in the sight of mortals:
"Light and Love will come tomorrow!"
Thanking heaven for all its

Loving life for all its joys.

II.

Gardens with the red
roses,
Still we read the roses of
life,
Saying, when the grief is done:
"Other breaths have felt the storm."
When the roses bloom, we Loving life through all the years.

Hand in hand we go, sweetheart!
When no star gleams in the skies
All life's light is in your eyes!

EXPERIMENT STATION CAUSES SHARP CLASH

Two Removal Bills Will Be Argued by House Committee Tuesday Afternoon.

There was a sharp fight before the house committee No. 1 on general agriculture Thursday afternoon on a proposition to move the state experiment station to south Georgia, with the result that action was postponed until next Tuesday afternoon, at which time a similar bill to move the experiment station to Alabama will also be considered.

The bill considered Thursday was introduced in the house by Messrs. Ellis, of Tift, and Slater, of Bryan, and calls for the station to be located somewhere in south Georgia, without specifying any particular place.

Mr. Slater, editor of the Tifton Gazette; Judge Frank Park, of the Albany circuit, the sponsors of the bill, and others spoke before the committee urging a recommendation that the bill do pass.

The argument was advanced in favor of the bill that it would be the most advantageous agricultural station in the state, in that it would admit of more diversified crops and greater range for experiment.

The advocates of the removal of the station to Alabama, however, maintained that the station in the south would be expected in south Georgia, and the best location for the station would be needed to fight the cotton crop, and the best location for the station would be needed to fight the cotton crop.

Representative Connor, of Spalding, and Senator Seay, of Griffin, and Judge James Wyatt, of Griffin, strenuously opposed the removal of the station, stating that the people of Spalding had donated money to the establishment of the station at its present location, and that its removal at this date would be unjust to them.

The bill to move the station to Alabama, which will be heard next Tuesday for final action, will be the second Georgia bill, introduced by Representative Booker and Greene, of Wilkes.

RUSHING POLICE SIGNAL AND FIRE-ALARM SYSTEM

Value of Change Will Be Evident at Once, Says Chief Cummings.

Despite the fact that there is pending an application for a writ of injunction, alleging that the city is contracting a moral obligation, the Okene committee, of New York, is rushing to completion the new fire alarm and police signal system for which the city has agreed to pay $150,000.

Work on the new central fire station system has been started, according to Chief Cummings, estimates that the value of the new system will be made apparent because the department will be enabled to reach a fire service in minutes.

Under the present system the person must first get the operator at the station, and the operator must then reach the nearest station. Under the new system the alarm will be sent by a telephone call to the nearest station, and the operator will then reach the nearest station.

BILL TO GIVE W. & A. OPENING TO THE SEA

Measure of Cooper and Crawley, if Passed, Would Open Way for Extension.

A bill introduced in the house Thursday by Representatives Cooper and Crawley, of Ware, to provide for a right-of-way for the Atlantic, Waycross and Northern railroad into Atlanta, is designed ultimately to allow an extension of the Western and Atlantic railroad to the sea, should the measure be passed by the legislature.

The bill ostensibly gives the Atlantic, Waycross and Northern power to condemn and take possession of the Fort Valley branch of the Southern railroad, and parts of the Georgia terminal property, giving the road a right-of-way into Atlanta, and at the same time amends the charter of the road so as to allow the road to connect with the Atlantic ocean at the St. Mary's river.

Next to the last clause in the bill, however, provides that the state, by action of the legislature, may take over the property affected by the bill, at a consideration to be fixed by a jury, and in the event of such action this would give the state possession of an unbroken trunk line from Chattanooga to the sea.

The bill points out the legal machinery necessary to the exercising of the privileges granted by the bill.

The Crackers around the Vols under Thursday. Here's hoping they grab both double leaders yet to be played.

WHIFFS

After Records.

THE CRACKERS have forty more games to play. Thirty of them are on the home grounds. Harry Welchone only needs 16 hits in the forty games to establish a new mark in the number of hits made in a season. Tommy Long has made only 11 runs in the same number of games to establish a new run-getting mark. Many more days like they had Thursday and it will be a cinch.

Was Nervous.

HARRY HOLLAND looked good on Thursday for the Crackers. The former Cracker handled himself as expertly as he has ever done in the field. At the bat he showed he was a trifle nervous and too anxious to get going. He used to his new surroundings. The boy is going to start hitting. His play at the plate is not what he needs for him not to come into a hit. He takes a free, easy swing.

Looks Good.

HOLTS looks good in that recent game. This fellow is an experienced ball player or you may say, a veteran. He has been in many of the best ball games in the world. He knows how to field. In his position at the plate reminds one of a hitter. The way he came in on those two fly balls in the ninth inning Thursday was a treat.

Debut Saturday.

WILL LOVE, the celebrated outfielder of the Crackers, will make his debut Saturday against the Vols. The fellow has been working out at the club and has been in the line-up. He is a new arrival and will work the other game Saturday.

With Heart.

THE PASSING of Bill Bailey caused us much sorrow. He has always been one of our favorites, and we felt to see him go. But his physical condition has been such that he could not play. He is now in the hospital and will be there for some time.

Looks Good.

LOU CASTRO put on a fine show in his debut game. He is a new arrival and will work the other game Saturday. He is a new arrival and will work the other game Saturday. He is a new arrival and will work the other game Saturday.

RUBE BENTON has no better record regarding the decision of President Sherman. He is a new arrival and will work the other game Saturday. He is a new arrival and will work the other game Saturday.

A Real Jinx.

PLAYING first base in a world's series seems to put a jinx on some players. It is a new arrival and will work the other game Saturday. It is a new arrival and will work the other game Saturday.

Hot Weather.

THE SWEET during the last two weeks of the Memphis Turtles has been one of the most interesting. It is a new arrival and will work the other game Saturday. It is a new arrival and will work the other game Saturday.

Crackers Romp In--Two Games Today

Crackers' Slaughter Alibis; Beck's Horseshoes Quit Work When Locals Batted in Eighth

By Dick Jemison.

For seven innings George Beck's horseshoes stuck to him faithfully. In the eighth inning they departed with a loud and resounding crack, and the Crackers opened the opening game of a five-game series with the Nashville Vols in a 5-2 win.

For seven innings the count stood 5 to 2, with the Vols having the best of every break, but in the eighth inning the local heavy artillery turned loose their guns, and when the smoke had cleared away again the Crackers were in the lead. The eighth inning was the Crackers' registered work, and they had a hit, a run, a double, a homer, and a walk. The local heavy artillery was going to make a strong bid for the Southern League during the season.
