TRADE COMMISSION TO PASS ON DEEDS OF CORPORATIONS

Measure, Approved by Wilson and McReynolds, Is Made Public by the Commerce Committee of House.

COMMISSION SUPREME IN PUBLICITY MATTERS

Measure Approved by Republican as Well as Democratic Members of the Committee.

Washington, March 15.—The interstate trade commission bill, bearing the approval of President Wilson and Attorney General McReynolds, was made public today, following many conferences among the members of the house interstate commerce committee. Democrats expect this measure to command substantial republican support, and an effort probably will be made soon to bring about concert action between the senate and house on this phase of the administration programs of commerce regulation and anti-trust legislation.

Unanimous for Measure.

The new bill was unanimously agreed on by its framers, a subcommittee of democrats and republicans, headed by Representative Covington, of Maryland, and it is approved by virtually the full committee.

"The whole theory of the creation of the commission," said Mr. Covington tonight, "has been to make it an efficient, independent body. In most of the matters of publicity it has entire control of the facts gathered. Publicity is left to its discretion, and the bill contains ample authority for it to prevent the disclosure of those secrets of any trade secrets or business to the public in promoting lawful competitive business, but which when disclosed simply afford opportunity for injurious use by competitors. Powers of investigation, safeguarded by proper constitutional limitations against unlawful searches and seizures, are taken from a new subordinate department under the control of the executive and given to this non-partisan body."

Board of Three Members.

The bill would transfer all the powers and duties of the bureau of corporations and the commissioner of corporations to the proposed commission of three members, presidential appointees subject to confirmation, whose salaries would be $10,000 annually each. Only two of the commissioners could be from the same political party. The original Clayton bill, from which the Covington bill differs substantially, had provided for five commissioners, and that the present commissioner of corporations should be automatically chairman of the new commission. The new bill makes no mention of the commissioner of corporations, but makes the fixed tenure of the commissioners six years, and the commission would choose its own chairman.

The Covington bill defines as a corporation all bodies incorporated under the law, and joint stock associations, and all other associations having shares of capital or other capital stock or organized to carry on business for profit.

Annual Reports Required.

Section 2 of the bill, requiring annual reports to the commission, would provide that:

"Every corporation engaged in commerce, excepting corporations subject to the acts to regulate commerce, which, by itself or with one or more other corporations owned, operated, controlled or organized in conjunction with it as to constitute a substantial unity a business, until it has a capital of $5,000,000 or more, or has a loss capital and belongs to any class of corporations which the commission may make, shall furnish to the commission annually such information, statements and records of its organization, shareholders and stockholders and financial condition, and also such information, statements and records of its relation to other corporations, and its business and practices while engaged in commerce, as the commission shall require. And the commission may, to enable it the better to carry out the purposes of this act, prescribe as near as may be a uniform system of annual reports. The annual reports shall contain all the required information and statistics for the period of twelve months ending with the fiscal year of each corporation's report, and they shall be made out under oath, or otherwise, in the discretion of the commission, and filed with the commission at its office in Washington within sixty days after the close of the year for which the report is made, unless additional time be granted in any case by the commission. The commission also may require such special reports as it may deem advisable."

This section penalizes violations at $100 a day. The Clayton bill made no such classification of corporations, but penalized violations at $1,000 a day.

As to Investigations.

Authorizing investigations and reports by the commission the bill would provide that:

"Section 10. The commission shall, on the direction of the president, the attorney general or either house of congress, investigate the organization, management and business of any corporation while engaged in commerce, to aid in ascertaining whether or not the corporation investigated is violating the acts relating to restraint of trade. And the commission shall make a report of such investigation, which may include recommendations for readjustment of business in order that said corporation may thereafter maintain its organization, management and conduct of business in accordance with law. Reports made after investigation may be made public in the discretion of the commission.

"Section 11. When in the course of

MILITANT WOMEN INVADE CHURCHES

Plaster Sacred Edifices With Suffragette Proclamations and Chant Prayers for Mrs. Pankhurst.

Birmingham, Eng., March 15.—Worshipers in the cathedral today found the walls and floors of the edifice covered with suffragette proclamations painted in white letters a foot high reading: "Votes for women! The clergy must rise in our behalf and stop the torturing of women in prison!"

Every foot of space except the altar had a sign painted on it, including the pews.

The work is believed to have been done by women who concealed themselves in the cathedral last night. It is thought it was done for the benefit of the judges of the assizes, who at-

THIRTEEN CONVICTS IN SING SING JOIN EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Ossining, N. Y., March 15.—Thirteen convicts in Sing Sing prison were confirmed today in the Protestant chapel by Bishop David H. Greer. The bishop was assisted by the Rev. Burton Lee, the chaplain at the prison, who had instructed the candidates for confirmation.

CUTS OFFICER'S THROAT TO RESCUE HIS BROTHER

Covington Church-Goers See Knife and Pistol Fight in Public Square.

Covington, Ga., March 15.—(Special.)—When Officer Wick Willingham attempted to arrest Charles Shepherd here tonight the latter's brother, Ralph Shepherd, ran up behind the officer and cut his throat from his ear to a point below the chin. The officer, though badly wounded, drew his revolver and fired twice at Ralph Shepherd as he ran away. Both shots missed but the fugitive was later arrested and, with his brother, placed in jail.

Willingham's wound is a nasty one, but it has not been determined whether it is serious or merely a flesh wound.

The affair created great excitement, as it occurred at the public square not far from the Baptist church, toward which many were going for the evening service.

The Shepherds are well-known young men, sons of W. D. Shepherd, and members of a prominent family. Charles has been in numerous difficulties with the local police and, it is stated, had been warned to keep off the square. He had been drinking and was creating a disturbance, the police say, when Officer Willingham attempted to arrest him.

Accused of Naval Graft.

Tokio, March 15.—Vice Admiral Tsuruaro Matsuo, inspector general of naval construction on the reserve, was arrested today, charged with complicity in alleged expenditures graft. Admiral Matsuo, who is 58 years old, served the government abroad for a number of years and several times has been decorated.

ILLICIT LOVE ENDED BY DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Prominent Mississippi Doctor Kills His Young Affinity and Then Shoots Himself.

Columbia, Miss., March 15.—A story of unlawful love ending in a double tragedy was brought to light with the finding of the bodies of Miss Clara Polk, aged 19, with a bullet hole through her heart, and Dr. John J. Stringer, aged 42, in the outskirts of Oakvale, 14 miles north of this city, early today. The coroner's jury returned a verdict that the girl had been killed by Dr. Stringer, who had sent a bullet through his own brain.

Girl in Boy's Garb.

A second wound was discovered in the young woman's shoulder. She was dressed in youth's clothing, later identified as belonging to her brother. A loaded revolver was strapped to her body by a cartridge belt. A revolver with three empty shells was found still clasped in Dr. Stringer's right hand. The two bullets extracted from the body of the girl fitted the weapon and proved to the satisfaction of the jury that she had been killed by him.

Testimony of Wife.

Mrs. Stringer testified that last Saturday she had upbraided her husband for his attentions to the girl, and that he had promised to desist. She also said she had written a letter to Miss Polk urging her to force Dr. Stringer to cease his attentions. J. K. Polk, father of the girl, said that he had heard revolver shots in that vicinity shortly after 10 o'clock last night.

Dr. Stringer was prominent in this region, where he had practiced medicine nearly twenty years. A wife and several children survive him. Miss Polk is survived by her parents and a brother.

Child Killed by Auto.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 15.—Ronald Mann, the 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Mann, was struck by an automobile late this afternoon and died half an hour later in a local hospital. The car was being driven by W. W. Byles, of Ocala, Fla., who was accompanied by his wife and brother.

BATTLE JOINED FOR POSSESSION OF TORREON CITY

Huerta Troops Successful in First Skirmishes, But in the Later Engagements the Rebels Are Victorious.

GEN. VILLA GIVES ORDERS FOR A GENERAL ADVANCE

Action of Villa Hastened by Interception of a Wireless From Huerta Ordering His Forces to Take Offensive.

Chihuahua, Mex., March 15.—A general forward movement of both the federal and rebel armies at Torreon was begun early today, preliminary, it is believed, to the opening of the long deferred battle for possession of that city. In the first skirmishes between the outposts and the constitutionalists the latter were put to flight, but in later minor engagements the rebels are reported victorious.

Orders were given by General Francisco Villa for the advance of his troops late last night. His action was hastened by the interception of a wireless message from President Huerta, at Mexico City, to General Refugio Velasco, commanding the federal garrison at Torreon. As caught by Villa's wireless station, the message directed Velasco to take the offensive against the constitutionalists immediately.

Special Train Started.

A special train has been started for Juarez to bring General Pelleja Angeles, secretary of war in the cabinet of General Carranza, to Chihuahua to command the artillery, with Colonel Servando Ayala in command.

Within a few hours after orders were given for the rebel advance dispatches from the extreme front reported a federal movement westward from Magistral to Cuesta de Chavez, which, owing to its proximity to the federal outposts, had not been strongly garrisoned by the constitutionalists. The small rebel force retreated. General Tomas Urbina, with 2,000 men at Palayo, nine miles south of Bermejillo, and two miles north of Torreon, was immediately ordered to advance, and General Villa issued a general order for the advance of all the cavalry at Encalada, Conejos, Bermejillo and other points along his battle front, to the immediate northward of Torreon.

A later report from the front said federal troops at Gonzalez Ortega had receded southward from Conejos, in response to General Villa's order to advance and, encountering a large body of the main column of Pascual, drove them into Bermejillo. Losses were not reported.

General Villa is impatient for the arrival of General Angeles in order that he may get away for the scene of battle. He has suspended regular train service, as all rolling stock will be used for troop movement.

Censorship Over Lines.

Juarez, March 15.—The inauguration of a rigid censorship over telegraph lines today in Chihuahua served to indicate that important fighting already has occurred in the Torreon region, or that Villa has begun the long-awaited attack on Torreon.

The chief operator here said that press dispatches might come through from Chihuahua later tonight. Unconfirmed reports had it that federals and rebels clashed between Escalon and Bermejillo yesterday, and the sudden descent of the censor gave rise to rumors that the rebels were defeated.

HUERTA WILL NOT PAY FOR KEEP OF REFUGEES

Mexico City, March 15.—The Mexican government, through American Charge O'Shaughnessy, today informed the United States government that it will refuse to meet the cost of maintenance of Mexican prisoners interned at Fort Bliss, Texas. The note handed the charge d'affaires quotes extensively various international authorities in support of the contention that the expense should be borne by the United States.

Fort Bliss, Texas, March 15.—General Salvator Mercado, who led the federal stampede from Chihuahua, wrote to General Scott today that fellow prisoners in the prison camp were threatening to assassinate him because they blamed their plight on Mercado as a self-Hary leader. General Scott believes that Mercado's mind has been affected from long illness, but he promised to see the cases of the unfortunates.

News that the Huerta government would not pay for their keep was received apathetically by the prisoners. The internment having been ended, many women and children are leaving. Some of the wives of officers are taking residences in El Paso.

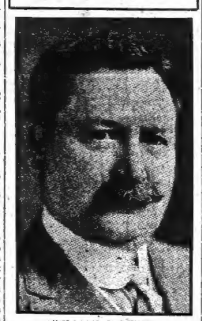

General Scott today completed his investigation of a report that a tunnel was being dug at the prison camp at Fort Bliss, but found no trace of the alleged plot.

Washington, March 15.—Pending Charge O'Shaugnessy's report, there was no official comment here tonight on the Huerta government's action in giving notice that it would refuse to meet the cost of maintaining Mexican federal refugees held by the United States at Fort Bliss. It was pointed out, however, that since the United States government does not intend to recognize General Huerta and expects to put in its claim for expense in connection with the interned fugitives after

PROBING MURDER

WILLIAM J. BURNS.

FRANK NO PERVERT, STATES W. J. BURNS ON REACHING CITY

"I Am Not Attempting to Thwart Justice. I Am Seeking Only the Light," Says Noted Detective.

HOLDS LONG CONFERENCE WITH FRANK'S LAWYERS

He Is, Bringing His Best Men to Atlanta—Will Seek to Interview Conley, But Is in No Hurry.

"There is not a scintilla of evidence to indicate that Leo Frank is a pervert. I have interviewed him and studied him thoroughly. I could not find a single trace of perversion in his entire make-up. Leo Frank is not a pervert of any type. He is perfectly normal."

This statement was issued by Detective William J. Burns last night at the Georgian Terrace to a reporter for The Constitution. He arrived in Atlanta Sunday afternoon at 5:05 o'clock with his daughter, Miss Florence Burns, who is on her way to Florida, but who will spend a day or so in the city.

Burns was in a secret conference with counsel for Frank's defense in Attorney Luther Z. Rosser's office from 6 o'clock until midnight. Those present were Mr. Rosser, Herbert Haas and Leonard Haas, and others connected with the defense.

The detective would give no intimation of the nature of the conference. He said, however, that startling developments in the case would probably be disclosed within the next few days, which statement indicated that he had obtained some new evidence.

Mind Open To Truth.

"I intend making a thorough investigation of this case," Burns told The Constitution man at midnight. "My mind is entirely open to the truth. I am not attempting to thwart justice. I am seeking only the light. I am bringing my best men to Atlanta—the most expert detectives in America—and I intend to find the truth before I quit the Frank case.

"Every person connected with the case, I am sure, will be agreeable to my operations. The prosecution, I have no doubt, will be willing for me to throw whatever light I may be able on the situation. At present, however, I decline to express any opinion of any kind.

"I will make no charges against any one at present—I do not, if possible, intend to make charges against any one. I am not going to 'frame up' on this case. I am going to strike to the heart of the crime, and whatever that truth is, I am going to announce it publicly, matter not who it affects.

"I am going to make a sane and quiet investigation. There will be no sensationalism connected with my probe. I am going to do it in a perfectly normal manner, and I expect to get results."

Will Quiz Conley.

Burns said that some time in the near future he would quiz the negro Jim Conley, but that he did not intend to do so at an early date.

"I am not going to rush into this business all at once," he averred. "I am going to go at it logically. I expect to see Conley, but I do not plan to go at him to extract a confession by third-degree or sweating methods."

Burns would not reveal the angles of the new developments which have extended his investigation to other cities, including New York.

"It is not time for this to be made public," he declared. "Later, however, I will reveal them—when my final report is made."

Burns will remain in Atlanta for probably ten days or two weeks, all of which time he will stop at the Georgian Terrace.

Dr. L. O. Bricker, Dr. A. R. Holderby and Dr. Julien Rodgers Deliver Sermons on Case on Sunday and Dr. Fred A. Line Will Speak on Next Sunday—All Urge Another Hearing.

"I WOULDN'T HANG A DOG ON CONLEY'S TESTIMONY," DECLARES DR. RODGERS

Dr. Bricker Gives Three Reasons for New Trial—Not Likely He Could Ever Have Fair Showing in Atlanta, Says Dr. Holderby. Leo Frank Elated Over Arrival of Famous Detective.

The arrival of Detective William J. Burns to begin the probe of the Mary Phagan murder mystery, and the call from Atlanta pulpits for a new trial for Frank, were the big developments of Sunday in the sensational case, which has centered the eyes of the United States on Atlanta.

Sermons were delivered on Sunday morning by Dr. A. R. Holderby, pastor of the Moore Memorial church; by Dr. L. O. Bricker, pastor of the First Christian church; by Dr. Julien Rodgers, pastor of the East Atlanta Baptist church, and announcement was made that Dr. Fred A. Line, of the Universalist church, will preach on this subject on next Sunday.

In all three pulpits the plea for a new trial was based on the ground that Frank had not been given a fair chance in the first court hearing on account of the inflamed condition of the public mind at that time.

What Preachers Say of Case.

"I wouldn't hang a yellow dog on Jim Conley's testimony, much less a white man who comes into court with a character heretofore unchallenged," Dr. Rodgers told his congregation.

"I would feel it my duty to appeal for a fair trial for any man," said Dr. Holderby. "This Frank has not had, as every unbiased man must admit; nor is it likely that he can get such trial in Atlanta on account of the prejudice against him. It would be unfair to hang a sheep-killing dog upon the evidence upon which Frank has been convicted."

"I remember," stated Dr. Bricker, "how bitterly I resented a man saying in my presence Frank has not had a fair trial.' He had had his day of trial I wanted him to have and to admit that it had not been fair would have been to have admitted that I was unfair and unjust and we do not readily do that." Then Dr. Bricker proceeded to give three reasons why Frank should have a new trial.

The detective and Miss Burns were met at the Terminal station by a large gathering of friends, including two members of the convicted man's counsel—Herbert Haas and Leonard Haas. Also by Dr. B. Wildauer and Dan Kline, who engaged him on the Frank case.

McKnight Badly Hurt.

Albert McKnight lingered between life and death Sunday in Fairlawn hospital, to which he was carried early Saturday night after having been seriously injured in attempting to swing from an incoming Southern train at Roseland.

Attending physicians report this his injuries are likely to result fatally, although he passed an unexpectedly restful day Sunday. It is feared that he is wounded internally. He sustained numerous deep gashes and cuts on the head and face as well as the shoulders and upper body.

No one was permitted to see him Sunday. He was in the same serious condition throughout the day, and able to talk only at times, and then fitfully. Dr. Thomas H. Hanneck, who attended him, endeavored to ascertain his whereabouts during the period of the negro's serious illness and whether that truth signed the sensational affidavit some weeks ago, in which he repudiated his testimony at the Frank trial.

McKnight, however, was unable to talk. He could not even explain the cause of his injuries. Railway officials, though, state that he was thrown headlong upon the roadbed when he tried to swing from a speeding passenger train about 7 o'clock Saturday night while passing Roseland, a wayside station about four miles out of Atlanta.

The police believe McKnight was returning under cover to Atlanta after his disappearance, and, in effort to elude the officers, he made the fatal leap at Roseland, from which place he intended stealing into the city. McKnight gave his residence Saturday night as 383 Washington street, where Frank Cheered.

Frank, in talking with a Constitution reporter Sunday afternoon, was cheered by the news of Burns' arrival. He had nothing new to say for publication, however. He was visited continually during the day by friends, many of whom remained at his cell for hours.

J. B. Armstrong, a resident of De-Kalb county, has succeeded in obtaining thirty or more names of DeKalb citizens to a petition for a new trial for Frank. He has been circulating through the county for considerable while. Its introduction reads as follows:

"Whereas, new evidence which tends to confirm the claim of an alibi by Leo M. Frank is being brought to light, and, whereas, we believe that under the wrought-up condition, existing at the time of his trial it was impossible that a fair and impartial trial could have been given, and, whereas, there does exist very serious doubt as to guilt or innocence, and, whereas, there are authenticated instances where the innocent have paid the death penalty when, like the granting of a new trial, the guilt might have been discovered, we, the undersigned, therefore, do hereby express ourselves as approving of granting Leo M. Frank a new trial, doing it voluntarily and without the knowledge of Mr. Frank."

Dr. L. O. Bricker, pastor of the First Christian church, began his sermon on Frank Sunday by saying that he fully realized that he had never before attempted such a delicate, difficult and even dangerous a task as this which he was about to undertake. He said:

"I stand in danger of offending many of those who have come to love me and in danger of losing my friends, and no man could suffer more keenly over such a loss than I, for I love my friends and crave their good opinion. I realize that I am to speak against the sentiments of nine out of ten of those that hear me. It is such an audience as a fighter would love to face, but I am no fighter. I am by nature and disposition better fitted to fulfill the office of friend and comforter. I am a counselor. There is not money enough in the world to hire me to do what I am about to do. No plea, no appeal or threat of enemy could induce me to undertake this task.

Feeling of Responsibility.

"It is only because I have been overwhelmed these past few weeks with a feeling of responsibility and obligation, and a haunting sense of duty which appears to me as the voice of God, and a man must do what seems to him to be right and never stop to count the cost to himself. And so do you try to be as open-minded a reader and hear with and think with your friend as he tries to interpret his duty to himself, to the grieving home and city which has given him such a happy home and so many good friends.

Not Arguing Frank's Case.

"My friends, I am not arguing the innocence or guilt of Frank. I am not the man for that, nor is this the place, but I am going to submit three reasons why I believe Frank should be granted a new trial.

"The first is, that because we were in no frame of mind to have given him or any other man under the circumstances a fair and impartial trial. We were inflamed and indignant to the point of unreason, and this state of mind was inevitable and in a certain sense right and proper. We ought to be indignant over such awful things as the murder of this young girl. At the time ever comes when we can be calm and indifferent in the face of such things, it will be proven that we have lost our honor, the fineness of our manhood and womanhood and all our sensitiveness of soul.

"God help us and our civilization if the day ever dawns when we shall cease to blaze with fury before the sight of such hideous and diabolical crimes. But right here is our danger. Righteous indignation is one of the truest passions that men can ever feel, but being that it is also the most dangerous. It can so easily be unjust, cruel, merciless and pitiless. This is why religious persecutions in all ages have been such monstrosities of cruelty and barbarity.

In No Frame of Mind.

"We were in no frame of mind to have granted the prisoner a fair trial, and I will tell you why I say so. The way into the public mind is through our press. We live and move among our human kind and take a humanity bath every time we walk the streets. We read what others read, come to share the opinion and feel as others feel, and if we stop to analyze our own mind we shall have a pretty good analysis of the public mind. Looking back now, I can see that I was in no frame of mind to have granted the accused a fair trial. I thought I was, but I remember how bitterly I resented a man saying to my presence 'Frank has not had a fair trial.' He had had the part of trial I wanted him to have, and to admit that it had not been fair would have been to have admitted that I was unfair and unjust, and we do not readily do that. We believed that he was guilty and it was the verdict we wanted rather than a trial. Personally, I was convinced of his guilt by reading the stories reflecting upon his moral character that were printed in our newspapers.

Evidence Insufficient.

"Second, I submit that Frank should have a new trial because of the apparent insufficiency of evidence under which he was convicted. We are so constituted that we can believe anything we want to believe. Belief is a function of the will. We can believe without any evidence, and once we believe every little circumstance looks like evidence. The legal fraternity of Atlanta are almost a unit in saying that there were no direct circumstances pointing to the guilt of Frank, excepting the revolting and horrible story of the negro, Jim Conley.

"Under ordinary circumstances, we in the south do not take the word of a negro against the word of a white man, but we were willing to believe the unsupported word of Conley because the jailbird negro, even after he had sworn to three or four other affidavits and had admitted criminal knowledge and complicity in the crime, was a self-confessed liar and perjurer—in the face of all that we were willing to believe his last story. The only ground on which we could have done this is that we felt Frank was guilty and were, therefore, ready to believe anything that seemed to confirm it.

"Third, I submit that Frank should have a new trial because, under the awful tension of public feeling it was next to impossible for a jury of our fellow human beings to have granted him a fair, fearless and impartial trial. Public sentiment is the mightiest force in the world. It orders revolutions, declares war, makes peace, writes laws and enforces or defies them. Public sentiment is mightier than our constitutions, mightier than the government, mightier than the courts of law, and the sentiment is made up of what the majority of the people are thinking and feeling. I do not understand how it finds its way into human minds and hearts, but you walk down the streets and it gets you in negro wireless way and sets you to going.

Must Have Been Impressed.

"I do not know whether the shouts of the massed people reached the judge and jury, but they could not help but deeply impressed and profoundly influenced by what the people were thinking and feeling. A juryman does not cease to be a man and human being when he becomes a juryman. He feels the awful weight of responsibility and he does not choose the task. He does not want to carry the terrible load of deciding the fate of a human life alone, and he will not carry it alone if he can help it. He naturally wants as many as possible of his fellows to share the load of responsibility. He throws himself to be a man among men, and he instinctively searches the whole courtroom to find out what others are thinking and feeling. He is human, also, and wants the approval of his fellows, and feels that he is safer and more likely to be right when he is act-ing in accordance with the thoughts of other men as good as himself. The juryman saw the solid mass of his fellow-citizens all against the accused; he knew himself to be no wiser than they, and he could not be but profoundly influenced by their attitude. I believe that the jurymen did the very best that they could; did as we would have done under the circumstances, but the circumstances were such that no man could have been fair and impartial.

"Lastly, justice has nothing to fear nor to lose in granting the accused a new trial. If Frank was proven guilty once, he can be proven guilty again; facts do not change. If he was convicted by false witnesses and is a victim of a criminal conspiracy, it ought to be known before it is too late, for the truth will be known some day. If we do not know it now, and if then it is found that we in our haste, put to death an innocent man, the memory of it will live with us to our dying days and the responsibility for it will face us at the judgment bar of God. And Atlanta will never be able to remove the blot from her fair name.

"If he is granted a new trial and is convicted again, we shall have nothing to say, and we should have nothing to say. Our minds will be at rest. But as it is, many of the good thinking people of Atlanta are filled with regret and righteousness of the common people. We may be 'cast off and cast at' and may not have been fairly tried and convicted. The hope of the world is in the righteousness of the common people. We may be sure that the accused will

FREE TOLLS FIGHT BEGINS THIS WEEK

Opposing Forces in Both Houses Arrayed for Contest—Advocates of Repeal Confident of Victory.

Washington, March 15.—Open debate on repeal of the toll exemption clause of the Panama canal act will begin late this week in the house, and a vote in that body on the Sims bill to carry out the recommendations of President Wilson is expected by Saturday night. In the senate an earnest effort will be made by administration leaders to pave the way for early action on inter-oceanic canals for consideration and report by the time the house has disposed of the subject.

Opposing forces in both houses are arrayed for the fight, the prospect being that the champions of toll exemption for American coastwise ships will lose when the roll calls have been taken in both houses. Representatives Adamson and Sims, in charge of the repeal forces in the house, are only doubtful as to the size of the majority their cause will have. They predict that it will be large, while Majority Leader Underwood and some of the democrats who agree with him that it is an economic mistake to reverse the nation's policy regarding canal tolls, insist that the vote will be close.

O'Gorman Fights Repeal.

In the senate the return of Senator O'Gorman, of New York, chairman of the committee on inter-oceanic canals, is awaited with interest in view of the fact that Senator Owen, a majority member of the committee, has introduced a bill similar to the Sims bill for the purpose of expediting settlement of the controversy as soon as possible.

Senator Owen seeks to have the committee take the repeal bill up at once and pass upon it. Senator O'Gorman, who will lead the opposition, took the position before leaving Washington last week that his committee should do nothing with the repeal until the house acted. Administration senators, after conferring with the president, determined that the issue is so clearly drawn that there is no reason for delay, and that the senate should be ready to discuss the subject immediately after the house action or even before should the Sims bill meet unexpected delay in the lower branch.

That the vote in committee will be close is certain, and opponents of the repeal insist the majority will vote against the president's plea. In that event there will be a minority report upon which the controversy in the senate will hinge. Aiding Senator Owen in leading the administration forces will be Senators Hoke Smith, of Georgia, and James of Kentucky. Various polls of the senate on the repeal question have indicated that the president will be assured the by majority of from ten to twenty votes.

The Nicaragua Treaty.

Another matter included in the foreign relations of the government which it is planned to undertake this week for consideration is the pending treaty with Nicaragua, negotiated in the Taft administration, which the present administration wishes to have amended and ratified as soon as possible. The foreign relations committee of the senate expects Secretary of State Bryan to appear Wednesday in explanation of the administration's desires relating to the treaty, which is designed primarily for acquirement by the United States of the Nicaraguan canal rights and rights to naval station sites in the Bay of Fonseca in exchange for a payment of $2,000,000 in gold.

By the terms of the treaty as originally framed, Nicaragua would grant in perpetuity to the United States the exclusive right for an interoceanic canal through the San Juan river and through the Great Lake of Nicaragua, or by any other route over Nicaraguan territory. Article two of the treaty proposed that "in order to facilitate the protection of the Panama canal," and the rights contemplated in Nicaragua, Nicaragua cede to the United States for ninety-nine years the Great Corn and Little Corn Islands in the Caribbean sea and rights to a naval base on the Gulf of Fonseca.

May Amend Treaty.

Early in the present administration Secretary Bryan proposed to the senate committee that the treaty be amended in such a way that the United States would procure virtual control of Nicaragua through a protectorate similar to that exercised over Cuba. He would add to the treaty provisions similar to the "Platt amendment" relating to Cuba. To this proposal there was considerable opposition in the committee, and it is expected to be reviewed now.

Under the proposed plan of amending the treaty, Nicaragua, besides granting the canal and naval station rights, would agree:

That war should not be declared without consent of the United States.

That no treaties be made with foreign governments that would tend to destroy her independence or give foreign governments a foothold in the republic.

That no public debt would be contracted beyond the ordinary requirements of government.

That the United States should have the right to intervene at any time to preserve Nicaraguan independence, or to protect life or property.

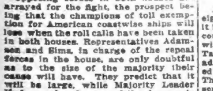

The administration, it is understood, wishes the Nicaraguan treaty matter settled as soon as possible in line with its general policy to clear up the foreign situation, and Senator Shively, of Indiana, acting chairman of the foreign relations committee, who has conferred with President Wilson, expects the committee to take the treaty up this week and to keep it under consideration until a report can be made to the senate.

In the senate during the week the lobby investigating committee plans to resume its examination of Clarence W. Beidleman, with regard to charges of lobbying in the interests of the armor plate pay bills for army and navy officers and other legislation. The naval appropriation bills also will be taken up in both branches, the house planning to take up the naval appropriation bill after which will come a spirited contest between the so-called "big navy" and "little navy" adherents.

SOUTHERN SCIENTISTS AWARDED GOLD MEDALS

New Orleans, La., March 15.—For the first time in the history of the organization, gold medals of the National Institute of Social Sciences, which conferred upon scientists residing south of the Potomac river, have been awarded. They are Dr. Charles C. Bass, Dr. Charles W. Duval and Dr. Abraham L. Metz, all of New Orleans, and they received the medals yesterday.

The institute of which former President Taft is honorary president, and whose officers include some of the foremost social workers in the country, bestows ten medals each year. This is the first time three have gone to one city in one year.

Dr. Metz won his medal for yellow fever work in 1905, his campaign for pure milk in Louisiana and efforts at framing laws governing the sale of habit-forming drugs.

Dr. Duval was honored because of his discovery of the cause of summer diarrhea of infants, discovery of the cause of epidemic dysentery in the United States and contributions to treatment of leprosy.

Dr. Bass cultivated the malarial plasmodium outside the human body, for which he has been honored by other institutions, and contributed to study of hook worm and pellagra.

Suffrage Leaders Elated Over Big Rally at Atlanta

By Inman Deely.

The most striking incident of the suffrage meeting, which held there Wednesday night, was the unanimous representative people assembled, was the enthusiasm expressed by the men; their interest, their good nattured acceptance of the witticisms directed toward them, and their entire acquiescence in everything the group of charming woman had to say. The speakers were from the National Equal Suffrage association, an organization which Doctor Anna Shaw is the president, and women of the splendid type exemplified in Jane Addams are the other officers.

Miss Curtis-Rees, Miss Bennett, Mrs. Laidlaw and Mrs. Stanley McCormick were in the charming group, and they handled with system and precision the different phases of the subject.

Though there were many arguments brought into the debate so decidedly one-sided (for there is no opposition to the subject of woman's suffrage—no sane man or woman denies that woman has the right to vote), it was anticipated that those people who hold that perhaps women voting at the present moment would not be "expedient," would express themselves. The fact that a group of women have been working for woman's suffrage in Georgia for the past twenty-five years entitles the senate expects Secretary of State Bryan to appear Wednesday in explanation of the administration's desires relating to the treaty, which is designed primarily for acquirement by the United States of the Nicaraguan canal rights and rights to naval station sites in the Bay of Fonseca in exchange for a payment of $2,000,000 in gold.

By the terms of the treaty as originally framed, Nicaragua would grant in perpetuity to the United States the exclusive right for an interoceanic canal through the San Juan river and through the Great Lake of Nicaragua, or by any other route over Nicaraguan territory. Article two of the treaty proposed that "in order to facilitate the protection of the Panama canal," and the rights contemplated in Nicaragua, Nicaragua cede to the United States for ninety-nine years the Great Corn and Little Corn Islands in the Caribbean sea and rights to a naval base on the Gulf of Fonseca.

May Amend Treaty.

Early in the present administration Secretary Bryan proposed to the senate committee that the treaty be amended in such a way that the United States would procure virtual control of Nicaragua through a protectorate similar to that exercised over Cuba. He would add to the treaty provisions similar to the "Platt amendment" relating to Cuba. To this proposal there was considerable opposition in the committee, and it is expected to be reviewed now.

The administration, it is understood, wishes the Nicaraguan treaty matter settled as soon as possible in line with its general policy to clear up the foreign situation, and Senator Shively, of Indiana, acting chairman of the foreign relations committee, who has conferred with President Wilson, expects the committee to take the treaty up this week and to keep it under consideration until a report can be made to the senate.

The naval appropriation bills also will be taken up in both branches, the house planning to take up the naval appropriation bill after which will come a spirited contest between the so-called "big navy" and "little navy" adherents.

Lack Weakness of Law.

The women of other states know the weakness of Georgia laws, and they wonder that the members of the state working so actively have not been able to have changed some of these laws.

There is a way that women can raise their strength in the furthering of this suffrage cause and that is to have their strength on the question of women having the right to vote. Even women who are not working for suffrage in their hearts of the extra responsibility it may bring do not feel, for an instant, that women haven't the right, a brilliant and striking example of this was brought forward and pushed. Now it is to get at these reasons that the legislators of Georgia will have their hardest work to do.

It is said that the employers of large numbers of women in industrial institutions oppose suffrage. These men represent, in a sense, a great part of our commercial prosperity. They must have to be listened to, they are a power; therefore it is [illegible] to send them now and find out their objection.

Then, it is said that are very good reasons why Georgia's law pertaining to the protection of women (the age of consent law) is different to that of any other state of the union governing the same.

Why Hide Them?

Why is it Georgia holds on so long and so firmly to this law? There must be very strong reasons for it. It is the responsibility of the women working for reforms and for suffrage to find this out, because women would vote for these reforms, and this fact makes many men oppose women voting.

It is most encouraging to women who have rendered service to their state in many ways, for many years, to hear one of the points Jane Addams made the other night in reference to these long-time service. She was proving the ability of women to stand for the right things, their wisdom pertaining thereto, and the fact that many of them are trained, ready, and organized for the vote.

In this connection she referred to the fact that women had well done the work that the factory and the machine are now doing. That women went on working after that for the good of the home, the community, the state, the nation, and that in organizing in the organized activities pushed through the General Federation of Women's clubs, this organized body of women having carried with it a universal appreciation the necessity for a national child labor law, now taken over by the government, the necessity of forestry protection, now a care of the government, many other activities this brainy woman declared, which had been taken over by the government, had first had their start organized and developed by the federated organizations of women, Georgia having had her part, and her part to this splendidly trained pioneer body for national reforms.

Parker Scored for Crime; Is Given Long Sentence

Decatur, Ga., March 15.—(Special.)—Clarence B. Parker, charged with seduction, whose case has been on trial in DeKalb superior court since Thursday morning, was found guilty Saturday and sentenced by Judge George Bell, who was presiding in his first years in the penitentiary. The jury was unanimous for conviction on the first ballot, and only remained out of the courtroom long enough to elect a foreman and sign up a verdict of guilty.

The case was strongly contested by both sides from start to finish. An affidavit by Drew Tuggle, since deceased, attacking the character of the young woman, was admitted in evidence, after a hard fight. The defense was then on the matter, and the introduction of a witness who testified that Drew Tuggle, some time before his death, had repudiated the affidavit, admitted to him that it was false, and said it was a poor man who would not swear a lie to set a friend from the penitentiary.

In passing sentence, Judge Bell said in part:

"The most unpleasant duty devolving upon a judge as I have found it since I came upon the bench, has been the duty of pronouncing the sentence of the law upon those who have been convicted of its violation, but I do not like to see anyone punished. I do not like to see anybody punished, and it is very unpleasant for me to perform the duty of passing the sentence that the law imposes.

"Mr. Parker you have nothing to complain of in the conduct of the case by the able counsel representing the state. You have had the benefit of a most able defense, and some from among the best men in the city and county. They have carefully considered the case and they have found you guilty. It devolves upon the court to pronounce the sentence of the law for the offense of seduction. The law in this case gives the court a wide discretion in three cases. After considering all the facts and circumstances surrounding this case, the court has in his discretion to pronounce a sentence of from one to twenty years.

"I think the jury did right to convict you. I have nothing to say against your; but the crime of which you have been convicted is one of the most horrible in its consequences in human experience. You persistently and continuously pursued this young lady as her lover. You gained the confidence of her trusting young heart, and you betrayed it. You sought her confidence, and it was freely given you. And then you betrayed her.

"You helped her to bring into being this little boy, who has now to go through life, until he reaches the portals of the grave, without a father, without the loving care and protection of a father.

"You entered this good man's home. You went there week after week, month after month, year after year, as the avowed suitor of this girl, probably preventing others from seeking her hand in honorable marriage. I have no doubt in my own mind that she was absolutely pure and chaste, and that when she finally yielded to you she did it simply because she had plighted her faith to you, and she believed you would be true to her. But how terribly has her life been ruined, her hopes blasted, on account of your betrayal, because of your treachery. But, even then, you might have made some amends, some palliation of the situation. You could have tried to right the wrong, and obtained a wife that I have no doubt on earth would have been true to you through all the years of life; and you could legitimatized your own offspring, and fulfilled in this situation not only the demands of the law, but the approval of your own conscience. But you refused to do it.

"You went through two trials, and you came back here to the third, the further defame her character; and then proposed, in order to escape the consequences of your misdeeds, to marry a woman whom you said you loved and trusted. Such a proposition could not now be entertained, because it would have betrayed her once you would betray her again. I am saying these things because I deem it my duty to do so, I can not pass sentence, and the terrible crime without referring to the awful consequences that you have, by your treachery, brought upon this young woman and her helpless, innocent child, who must go on through life without a name or the care and protection of a father. Solely on account of your conduct, she must in the future tread the winepress of sorrow alone. You have most grievously violated the laws of God and man.

"It is the sentence of this court that you serve in the penitentiary of this state for and during the term of ten years."

After sentence was pronounced, a motion for new trial was made by Colonel McClelland, and will be vigorously fought.

PONCE DE LEON PAVING MAY BRING ON A FIGHT

Thomson and Ashley Determined on Finishing Sewer Work First.

That there will be a vigorous protest from Alderman Albert Thomson and Councilman Claude Ashley against the pavement of Ponce de Leon avenue, is indicated by the declarations of both representatives that they will carry the fight to council in the event it is shown that the city will interfere with the completion of the Butler and the Highland Avenue sewers.

Alderman Thomson has already given notice to the street committee that he will oppose the Ponce de Leon avenue repaving taking precedence over the sewer work now being carried forward.

Councilman Ashley has taken the same position with regard to the Ponce de Leon avenue paving as his colleague.

Alderman John S. Candler, of the Ninth ward, spoke in favor of paving the street before it was taken ill, and now that he is back on the city hall he associates in council—Councilmen Smith and Whitehead urged the city and the county to place the street first among the projects to be started in the ward.

BETTER CONDITIONS FOR CHILD WORKERS

It's a Movement for Civilization, Declares Dr. Adler at New Orleans.

New Orleans, March 15.—Efforts aiming at bettering conditions of the child workers in the United States are attracted less by pity and compassion alone, by principles of economy, education and patriotism, Dr. Felix Adler told a crowd gathered at a mass meeting in a park here today. The mass meeting marked the opening of the second annual child labor conference and as chairman of the national child labor committee, Dr. Adler sounded the keynote of the conference.

Movement for Civilization.

"This is a movement for civilization," said Dr. Adler, "a movement of compassion for children who work in mills and factories, a movement for the well being children of working people directly affected in the country economically, for by taking children out of factories we are keeping the fathers' wages from wage, thus uplifting the home life of the people.

"A child out of the factory has a chance to gain some education and get vocational training, giving to the business world real intelligence, while a child a chance to develop its talents. It is not the least valuable to do these things is patriotic, and all these things are patriotic, and we feel for these poor creatures."

Speakers were compelled to tax their voices to make them carry to all parts of the crowd at the mass meeting. The crowd gathered at the solicitation of local child labor workers who wanted a representation of working people at the meeting and their efforts apparently had the desired effect.

This was the first child labor conference at which such efforts have been made, and it was formally opened by an open-air mass meeting.

After music by a Jewish orphans' home band James Cardinal Gibbons, in New Orleans on a visit his brother, pronounced the invocation.

Jane Addams Spoke.

Others speakers were Jane Addams, of Hull House, Chicago, who told generally of the work of the organization; Judge Joseph A. McCullough, of Greenville, S. C.; Alphonse Bienvenu, of New Orleans, and Alexander Johnson, of Cleveland, N. J.

Mr. Johnson, who is in charge of a training school for defective children, said that getting children out of mills and factories is only a part of what child uplift workers should do. It is developing children not in the mills and those whose members of the organization hope to get out of the mill that is the most serious problems, he said. "We give too many 'don'ts' and not enough 'do's,'" he declared.

Judge McCullough, a former college baseball player, to illustrate that children if taken out of cotton mills could become very useful citizens. He told of "Shoeless" Joe Jackson having been a mill boy before he took to baseball and become fully accustomed to mill life. Much of his address had to do with statistics of cotton mills in South Carolina, the second state in the union in the number of cotton mill spindles.

The conference is slated to end Wednesday night, and on the program are some of the foremost child labor movement workers in the country.

PRIEST OF STOCKYARDS OVER THE GREAT DIVIDE

Father Dorney Saved Parnell From Pigott—Idol of Chicago Stockyards.

Chicago, March 15.—The Rev. Maurice J. Dorney, Chicago Irish priest, whose name is familiar on both sides of the Atlantic, died today of heart trouble, following a stroke of paralysis, following a stroke of paralysis, which overtook him in the pulpit of his church, which denomination he is a member, and in the afternoon went for a long ride. Tomorrow he will call at the white house and pay his respects to the president. He will be accompanied by Senator Hoke Smith.

The senator expects to return to Georgia within a week or two. At a time when there is no pressing business in the senate, and on his return will bring back with him Mrs. West and their 13-year-old son, Billy West.

When the senate military affairs committee begins tomorrow its consideration of the army appropriation bill, Senator West will undertake his first committee work. The bill is an important one, because of the need for providing equipment and ammunition for the troops now on the border and the coast fortifications.

All the Georgians who were holding positions on the patronage, of Senator Bacon have been retained by Senator West. They are:

Guy Hitch, son of Calvin M. Hitch, of Atlanta, who is an employee in the sergeant-at-arms office at $1,200 a year.

Mace Morris, a cousin of N. A. Morris, of Marietta, who is in the folding room holding a $1,000 position.

Frank Adams, a son of Judge John S. Adams, of Dublin, is in the senate postoffice, drawing $912 a year.

Hal Lambdin, of Waycross, was the joint appointee of Senators Bacon and Smith. Senator Smith found all his patronage exhausted but $1,000, and Senator Bacon had $699, so they found a $1,699 job in the financial clerk's office and joined in giving it to Mr. Lambdin.

Bartow to Hold Fair.

Cartersville, Ga., March 15.—(Special.)—At a recent meeting of the Bartow County Fair association it was decided to hold the fair again next fall. The announcement was made that the success of the fair in 1913 surpassed the expectation of the promoters in a financial respect, as clear money was made above all expenses, which was considered very fine for the first year of the undertaking.

The Manufacturer

Any Reader, Student or Worker—

all who desire to learn—will find in the new (11th) edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, elaborate, up-to-date, clearly written, valuable accounts of manufacturing industries by great manufacturing experts and specialists, such as:

GLASS (by H. J. Powell, of James Powell & Sons, Whitefriars Glass Works, London, and Alexander Nesbitt, author of "Decorative Glass" and designer of the Nesbitt Kensington Museum"), an article of 80,000 words with 20 illustrations and 8 tables.

IRON AND STEEL (by Hilton Howe, Professor of Metallurgy, Columbia University, Bessemer medallist, and author of "Metallurgy of Steel"), an article of 80,000 words with 87 figures and 15 tables.

On Textile Manufactures alone there are 35 separate articles, about 250,000 words, with many illustrations and diagrams and tables: that is, on this one subject, taken from this one department of manufactures, the Encyclopaedia Britannica has the equivalent of two good-sized books.

Manufacturers Say:

"Feeling that the information is authoritative adds greatly to the satisfaction."—Shirt Mfr., Troy.

"Articles on Flax, Linen, Jute and Cotton Manufacture, in which I am particularly interested, are exceptionally good."—Mgr., Linen Thread Co., Chicago.

"Not only used for occasional reference, but merely for the pleasure of reading the articles."—Vice-Pres't, Iron Works, Pittsburgh.

"I do not see how any business man, who has a very extensive business, can get along without it."—Mgr., National Biscuit Co.

"A joy and a pleasure. . . . the improvement is almost indescribable."—Pres't, Cloak and Suit Co., Cincinnati.

"Difficult to put it down after looking up a reference, as one's eye strikes such a wealth of interesting material."—Pres't, Paper Box Co., Bridgeport.

"Valuable in any line of business."—Supt., Bleacharies, Sayleville, R.I.

Throughout there is the same thorough, lucid and detailed treatment as in the field of manufacture. The manufacturer, or the general reader, may well take as the supreme test of a work of reference its description of manufacturing and industrial processes. Works of reference usually contain little on these subjects, and that little poor and out-of-date.

Encyclopaedia Britannica

You will get the same expert, full, lucid treatment of any and all subjects in the Britannica, whether you want to know about Burns and Scalds or Motor Vehicles, about Horticulture or Flying Machines, about Shakespeare or Theodore Roosevelt, about Parasitic Diseases or Polar Exploration.

The entire 29 volumes of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica, though they occupy less than three feet of shelf-room, contain 44,000,000 words—the equivalent in contents of nearly 400 books of the same size as the two that could be made up on Textiles.

The Britannica's 40,000 articles are the work of 1500 experts chosen from the whole world, who treat all knowledge authoritatively and interestingly.

A HENPECKED EMPIRE.

The sun may never set on England's land or grandeur, but England is today making itself the laughing stock of the nations on account of its failure to deal with the militant suffragettes.

The latest exploit of these embattled and unsexed women is the smashing of the windows of the home of Reginald McKenna, home secretary, whom they believe, rightly or hysterically, to be their enemy.

But about the most wanton and stupid offense of which they have yet been guilty is the deliberate mutilation of the "Rokeby Venus," purchased by public subscription for $250,000. The act was an insult not only to the British nation, but to the aesthetic instincts of all its classes, poor and rich, which had united in the purchase of this masterpiece.

The issue is not whether one does or does not sympathize with "votes for women." Most of us do, and more of us will, whether we like it or not. The whole question is one of law as against anarchy, and of the nation called the most powerful in the world helpless before a band of marauding females.

We doubt if any more pitiful spectacle has recently been staged. Effectual and stern in large matters, British law becomes impotent when confronted by feminine hysteria. It strives to solve the problem by jailing the women law-breakers. And the moment they go on hunger strikes, the jail doors fly open and the whole travesty renews its dreary procession.

The marvel grows that public opinion in Great Britain tolerates the tyranny of these unfortunate viragos. That they lose ground for their cause is relatively a small matter, since the cause itself is just one will survive their indiscretions. That they can henpeck the world's greatest empire and "get away with it" is a puzzle of international dimensions.

THE RURAL LIFE ENGINEER.

A new and vital element that has entered into the development of the country districts is the rural life engineer. He goes into rural communities, analyses their life, their pursuits, their pleasures and their needs and cures defects and builds character by living among the people.

The Young Men's Christian Association has vigorously taken up this class of work in the east, and an exchange describes it as follows:

An organized county can maintain one or more rural-life engineers. The organization of counties began in 1909, and today there are about eighty counties and twenty states organized. These counties are in charge of about 180 Y. M. C. A. county secretaries or rural-life engineers. Most of these secretaries are college-trained men with a agricultural education. There are about 25,000 boys and young men in these county associations, and the work directly or indirectly affects the lives of 2,500,000 people in these rural communities.

This is the outcome of more than ten years of the hardest sort of toil, and it hardly blacks the map, yet the foundation for the greatest human conservation and reclamation work ever undertaken has been laid. Besides, the country as a whole, rurally, has been religiously, socially and economically chartered.

There is no doubt that an immense field is open to the rural life engineer in this country.

Students of economics and observers of ordinary intelligence have known for a long time that "something was wrong in the country." That "wrong" was the fact that the urban part of our nation had developed at the expense of the rural part. The cities lured some of the best blood of the country. The country, with its monotony and its scant attraction, was unable to compete with the city for inhabitants. Though men might live a more crowded and a more unhealthy and a less private life on a street than a country road, the imaginary pleasures of the mass attracted them and drew them away from the acres and from agricultural productiveness.

We need "rural life engineers" who can get at the pith of this problem, chart its solution and make that solution practical for both city and country. Such men will render an inestimable service to the nation.

The Young Men's Christian Association has found a new and an extremely useful field. We trust some of the numerous economic and sociological foundations that are working for welfare in this country will see fit to encourage them substantially.

WHAT TO DO WITH GOETHALS.

The visit of Colonel Goethals to the United States has been made the occasion of substantial recognition of his epoch-making feat of building the Panama canal. The Civic Forum of New York has conferred upon him a medal, the first in its history. Congress also has presented him with a gold medal and a vote of thanks, well enough in their way, but not especially significant, measured by the side of Goethals' achievement.

We have been treated to a lot of discussion as to what we shall do with our ex-presidents and our vice presidents, aside from keeping the latter muzzled.

But the question we have long big: What are we going to do with Goethals?

Take a mere ex-president, and since he has plenty of predecessors, his case is not so baffling.

It is not every day in the week or every century in twenty that a nation puts through a job like the Panama canal, and that one man, such as Goethals, deserves credit for supervising the task.

So as between the ex-president and Goethals, and what to do with one and the other, the proposition resolves itself into considerable of a dilemma.

He could have had the commissionership of New York's police force—and buried himself or been crucified by the merciless peanut politics and graft-storm that beat about that more or less exalted position.

Already he has been made civil governor of Panama, or rather our part of it, and will have the distinction of organizing the canal force and inaugurating the actual work.

After he has finished there—what then?

Somebody has said that he should go to Alaska and superintend the building of the government railroad through the territory. But even that assignment bulks terribly small beside the shivering of two continents.

Certainly, Goethals enjoys the unique distinction of being the one man in American history about the rewarding of whom the country was perplexed. And if that is not in itself a high honor, it would be difficult to find one.

REV. H. K. WALKER.

An earnest effort is being made not only by the congregation of the First Presbyterian church, but by many outside friends of Rev. H. K. Walker to induce him to withdraw further consideration of the call that will take him to California. So insistent is the demand for him to remain in Atlanta that it is reported he may consent to announce his determination to continue in the pulpit of the historic institution over which he has presided, as pastor, for several years.

The Constitution sincerely hopes that this report will be verified, for the loss of Dr. Walker would be felt not only by his church, but by the whole city.

No minister who has come to this city in many years has taken a firmer hold upon the community than Dr. Walker. He has the esteem and the confidence, not only of his own congregation, but of the public, and the departure of no minister of the city would be received with more general regret.

Now that the First Presbyterian church is about to perfect its plans for a new home, for which it has already bought the lot, a change of pastors would come at a particularly inopportune time, for he has so proven his qualities of leadership, and has so firmly established himself in the good will of his congregation, that it would be a difficult undertaking to replace him with one who combines his peculiarly fitting qualities to direct the work of the church at this time.

So The Constitution feels that it voices the sentiment of the community when it expresses the hope that this able and much beloved minister will conclude to remain where he is.

OFFICIAL JOY-RIDING.

Senator John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, is to be congratulated for securing such amendment to the appropriation bill of the District of Columbia as will bar free autos to all save the fire, health and police branches. The Associated Press reports that the embargo will send to storage at least thirty-one machines.

Under republican administration, the manner in which big and pee-wee officials went "joy-riding" at the public expense was a national scandal.

This is not to reckon with the "pink Turkish bath rooms" and other sybaritic luxuries, allowed senators and representatives.

America is neither a poor nor a stingy nation. But there is inconsistency somewhere, when we deprive our foreign diplomatic representatives of decent quarters and shower automobiles on our minor officials at home.

MAKING FACES.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS.

There are too many people who live their manhood and womanhood lives an but just a little removed from their childhood days. They take the crust of their years and veneer it over their immaturity of mind and of character, so that when the little irritations as well as the big irritations come along, they find it only natural and fitting instead of facing the sternier realities—to merely Make Faces at them.

The stern and wiry tests that are able to create in you poise and balance, come from looking things in the eye and accepting any problem that comes and solving it.

If you have been in the habit of Making Faces at any of the big things that come up for you to tackle, but which you think are immaterial to your success and happiness, it is time right now for you to fix up a new program.

Instead of Making Faces at Fate, you are in reality Making Faces at yourself, poking fun and jest at your own inability to be what you are able to be.

There is nothing so small, so long as it is important, but that you can well afford to put the best that is in you to its accomplishment. Making Faces at it will avail nothing excepting the same sort of a bump that you would get from slipping upon a banana peel.

The Great Trials of Historu

TRIAL OF GEN. WILLIAM WALKER.

When General William Walker was shot for filibustering at Trujillo, Honduras, on September 12, 1860, he said to the people who had gathered about the public square to see him meet his doom: "The war which I made on Honduras was unjust. Those who accompanied me are not to blame. I alone am guilty. I ask pardon of the people. I receive death with resignation. Would that it were one for the good of society."

He then sat on a coffin to which he was bound. A file of ten soldiers advanced and fired at the instant. He died immediately. The soldiers gave three cheers and all was over. Walker was but thirty-six years of age at the time.

Walker was a daring character and seemed to believe that his "star of destiny" had great things in store for him. Few adventurers of his class ever ran such a race of short-sighted and fatal folly. In 1853 he was the leader of an expedition which sailed from San Francisco with the intention of taking possession of Sonora, then a northern state of Mexico, adjoining California. He landed at a place called La Paz, where he met with but little resistance. He proclaimed "an independent republic of Lower California," and himself president, at the same time appointing each one of his sixty followers to some official station. But very soon, however, had to evacuate or starve and surrendered himself to the United States authorities. On his arrival at San Francisco he was tried for a violation of the neutrality laws, but was acquitted.

Early in the summer of 1854, Walker placed himself at the head of an expedition numbering about fifty men to proceed to Nicaragua, then in a state of internal conflict. He landed at Realejo and marched to Leon to join the headquarters of the Nicaraguan democratic party or army.

Here he hoped to have his dream realized, that of forming on the Isthmus a broad domain to be extended into Mexico and South America. He succeeded partially at first, Brushing the democratic chief aside, Walker now proclaimed himself a candidate for the presidency, and was, of course, elected. Being now dictator he began to mold things to suit himself, and to his credit it must be said that his acts were, upon the whole, fair and just. But the odds against him were too great, and with all Central America in league against him, backed by Europe and the United States, his cause was doomed. Defeat followed defeat, and in January, 1857, he abandoned Grenada and took refuge on a United States vessel, which landed him at Panama.

Two other attempts were made by the irrepressible man to invade Nicaragua, both of which were frustrated by the United States authorities, and in June, 1860, he invaded Honduras, where he met with a vigorous resistance and was eventually captured by the British and turned over to the native Honduran authorities.

It was on the 3d of September that the arrest was effected and on the following day he was turned over to the Honduran authorities with several of his officers. The march of the captured men to prison was slow and solemn. Walker, at the head of his men, keeping time to the slow beat of the drums, and dressed with much simplicity, was the object upon which every eye was fixed.

As soon as Walker had entered the prison he was placed in heavy irons and, being asked if he needed anything, replied with but one word, "Water." He refused to send for a chaplain. As he knelt at his feet he said: "I am resigned to die; my political career is ended."

There was a mock trial which was wholly unnecessary for the outcome was known before it started, a mere form to be gone through with before the sentence could be executed, and if he should have time to write.

On the 12th of September, at 8 o'clock in the morning, the condemned left his quarters and proceeded to the place of execution. He showed throughout the greatest coolness, not even once changing color, while walking from the prison to the place where he was to be shot. Two soldiers, with drawn swords, advanced in front of him, and three with fixed bayonets followed behind. In his right hand he carried a hat, and in his left a crucifix. It was here his great dream and his eventful life went out together.

The Railway to Eden.

(From The Rochester Post-Express.)

England and Russia have both assisted Germany in the great diplomatic game over the Bagdad railway. The line is to end at Basrah in the Tigris valley almost at the head of the Persian gulf, where Germany had thought to fix its eastern terminus. Great Britain has also won another diplomatic victory by a treaty with France which puts a stop to gun-running across the Persian gulf and over the India frontier.

The railway from the Bosphorus to the Persian gulf was financed by German capitalist and designed to open Germany's road to the middle east with a view to threatening the Russian and British control of part of the world. A German-Austrian road to Salonika and Constantinople and a bridge across the Golden Horn are a part of the plan; but the crippling of Turkey and the present situation in the Balkans bring that dream to naught.

The construction of the line through Ottoman territory will drag on and on until the work is brought to a standstill by a European war. It is urged that the line might be made commercially important. It taps oil and coal fields and it is planned by irrigation works along the Euphrates to make that valley of old fertility renew—that land of Nineveh and Babylon—once more a garden and a granary of the world.

No longer of strategic importance, however, as a road to India, which British warships could not hold, the completion of the rail line to the traditional garden of Eden will probably now await the new political order in Europe to follow the debacle for which the nations are gathering their ships, their armies and their gold.

DAILY GRIST from the STATE'S POLITICAL GRIND

RECORD VOTE IS EXPECTED IN BARTOW COUNTY PRIMARY

Cartersville, Ga., March 15.—(Special)—Several warm races for county offices are being watched with great interest by the people of Bartow. One of the largest votes in the history of the county will be polled at the coming primary.

W. C. Walton, clerk of the superior court, with Captain J. R. Anderson, as deputy, is being opposed by C. W. Sproull, who names James M. Smith as deputy.

G. R. Gilreath, J. G. Brandon and Captain J. J. Calhoun are contesting with Hon. Martin Collins, the incumbent, for county treasurer.

The race for sheriff is being run by Worford W. Calloway, now a deputy under Charles Smith, opposed by L. F. Gaines, also deputy sheriff under the incumbent, who has determined not to seek re-election.

For tax collector, John A. Williams, J. B. Willis and F. V. Smith are opposing James Shaw, the present holder of that office.

W. T. Pittard, tax receiver, is being opposed by Thomas A. Hughes, W. D. Shelton and John C. Haney.

H. L. Bowden announces his candidacy for county school commissioner upon the "school books printed by the state at cost" platform.

MACON COUNTY VOTERS CHOOSE THEIR COUNTY OFFICERS TODAY

Oglethorpe, Ga., March 15.—(Special)—Macon county primary for county officers takes place March 16. The clerk of the court, the sheriff, the tax receiver and the tax collector all have opposition.

The sheriff's race is being hotly contested. No one has yet announced for representative, though J. Wallace Nelson, of Ideal, has been prominently spoken of.

Colonel John Guery has also been spoken of as a probable candidate, as has Dr. B. B. Brooks.

State politics are not discussed much, yet Governor John M. Slaton has many friends here who would like to see him in the senate.

TWO IN RACE FOR JUDGE OF BRUNSWICK CIRCUIT

Brunswick, Ga., March 16.—(Special.)—Announcements have been published by Judge C. D. Freeman, judge of the Brunswick circuit, and Colonel R. L. Bennett, mayor of Jesup and solicitor of the city court of that city, for the office now held by the Brunswick jurist. While Judge Sellers, of Baxley, has also been considered a candidate, he has announced that he will not run this year, therefore the contest will be between the two candidates mentioned above.

The Brunswick circuit is composed of the counties of Glynn, Camden, Wayne, Appling and Jeff Davis, and the race for the judgeship is expected to be quite an interesting one.

CANDIDATES A-PLENTY RUNNING FOR HALL COUNTY OFFICES

Gainesville, Ga., March 16.—(Special.)—The democratic executive committee having set the date of the primary for April 19, the candidates for the various offices of the county are working hard. This is earlier than the primary has been called for a long time.

There are from two to eight candidates for every office of the county, with the exception of county clerk, R. W. Smith, the present clerk, having no opposition.

The announcement for solicitor general of the northeastern circuit of Colonel William M. Johnson, of Gainesville, has caused considerable comment in political circles. Mr. Johnson is a Hall county man, and is an attorney of statewide prominence.

Colonel McMillan, the present solicitor general, is from Habersham, while the former solicitor, William Charters, who held this office for a number of years, was from Lumpkin county.

PIKE COUNTY PRIMARY TO TAKE PLACE ON WEDNESDAY

Barnesville, Ga., March 15.—(Special.)—Tickets and blanks have been sent to all precincts of the county for the primary for county officers of Pike in the election next Wednesday, March 18.

The following are the candidates for the various offices:

Clerk, R. C. Matthews; sheriff, W. S. Slade; treasurer, G. D. Beckham and John F. Howard; tax collector, J. D. Dunn; tax receiver, W. J. Carter, S. B. Lifsey, R. H. McLendon, J. W. Presley, J. T. Tyus and J. T. Vaughan; county commissioner, J. J. Bishard, W. J. Barrett and R. W. Hale; surveyor, C. A. Mathews; coroner, J. E. Smith. W. A. Whatley and J. C. Wright.

A new democratic executive committee will also be elected, two members from each of the eleven districts.

FOUR CANDIDATES FOR SHERIFF RUNNING IN CHARLTON COUNTY

Folkston, Ga., March 15.—(Special)—Two races in this county in which considerable interest is being taken are the contests for sheriff and representative. Four have announced for sheriff to date, W. H. Mizell asks re-election, and is opposed by W. R. Wainright, Dixie V. Smith and Andrew G. Cowart.

The candidates for representative are W. M. Cliff and G. W. Reynolds. J. C. Allen and Frank Williams seek the clerk of superior court. So far the office of tax collector has but one candidate, John M. Rodenberry. No one has announced for coroner. C. F. Wilson and J. S. Crooms want to be county treasurer.

SEVERAL IN SENATE RACE IN THE 43D DISTRICT

Rome, Ga., March 15.—(Special.)—At the August primary the voters of Chattooga county will select a senator from the 43d district, which is composed of the counties of Floyd, Bartow and Chattooga. Under the rotation system, the last named county elects the senator this year. The nominee will succeed J. W. L. Brown, of Bartow.

It is understood that Representative W. M. Ransom, who is principal of the Menlo high school, will not seek re-election to the lower house, but will become a candidate for senator. John D. Taylor, Wesley Shropshire and perhaps others, of Summerville, are also mentioned as probabilities.

MELSON WILL HAVE TO FIGHT FOR RE-ELECTION AS REPRESENTATIVE

Jonesboro, Ga., March 15.—(Special.)—Dr. R. W. C. Green has announced for representative. J. W. Morrow, according to his friends, will also be a candidate. While Hon. H. G. Melson, the present representative for the county, has made no announcement, it is generally understood among his friends that he will be a candidate for re-election.

CANTON, CHINA.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

Canton is the metropolis of China. It contains two million people according to the most accomplished guessers. All of these people look alike to the accidental visitor and, for all we know, the Chinese government may have been marching a few thousand Cantonese around and around past the census enumerators for the last ten thousand years.

Canton looks from the hills around it like a large prairie of red roofs. It has no great buildings and very few moving picture theaters. It has 600 streets through some of which fat men have to edge sideways and two large pagodas which form its only skyline. When the tourist invades Kongland, he is shown buildings 700 years old. But Canton's biggest pagoda is 1,500 years old and is still in perfect health.

Canton is situated on the Pearl river in the south part of China and can be reached by steamer from Hong Kong, 70 miles away. The principal occupation for tourists is waiting for the return boat and hunting for a breeze which blows toward the city instead of away from it. Canton is cleaned regularly during the visits of Halley's comet.

Most of the houses in Canton are two stories high. The city occupies 20 square miles or about one-sixteenth of the area of Chicago which is slightly more populous. It does not stink as much as

HARWELL'S SUCCESSOR WILL BE NAMED TODAY

Strenuous Fight Being Waged by Seawright and Renfroe for the Place.

Behind the scenes of city politics there is being waged today a strenuous fight between J. R. Seawright and R. N. Renfroe for the place on the aldermanic board made vacant by the death of Alderman J. H. Harwell.

Both candidates practically ended their campaigns Sunday. Caucuses in the ward were held in the interest of both men without a decided advantage being gained by either. Supporters of Seawright contend that he controls seventeen of the twenty-eight votes in council and the aldermanic board. Renfroe asserts that he has pledges from at least fifteen. Council decides the matter today.

The issue in the race between the two men is the question of control by who have consistently voted against liquor in an embarrassing position. Both Seawright and Renfroe are admittedly anti-prohibitionists.

The most unique campaign in the first ward and ran on a platform of "liberal policies." He was defeated by Councilman Arwood, who for years stood to be a bitter foe of liquor.

Seawright is in the real estate business. He is well known in the first ward, and is prominent in city politics in all sections of the city. According to political gossip around the city hall during the past week, Seawright, in addition to having the support of W. O. Poole, one of the leaders of the first ward, is also being backed by Carlos Meador, former chairman of the police commission, and Claude Mason, councilman from the tenth ward.

Renfroe is expected to gather his support in council from among the followers of Mayor Woodward. He will be nominated by Councilman Jesse Wood, of the sixth ward. Seawright will be the candidate of the fifteen ward delegation, will be nominated by Councilman Wardlaw. Wardlaw resigned the aldermanic place, and was willing to resign his place in council to make the race against Seawright, but Renfroe objected, but City Attorney Mason ruled that the code prohibited a member of council resigning and seeking another place which is within the gift of a majority of the members of council.

RIGHTEOUSNESS URGED BY DR. H. H. PROCTOR

Rev. H. H. Proctor urged upon his people at the First Congregational church, colored, last night the superiority of the life of righteousness.

"Judged by any reasonable test," he said, "the righteous life is the best. In business righteousness is at a premium, and any business will be helped by righteousness unless it is crooked. It helps in the physical life, and there is a close relation between sanitation and salvation. It is the best for the intellectual life, as the whole life must be right for the best results in the realm of the mind. In social life righteousness is at a premium, and politic society cannot stand save that it is penetrated by the spirit of righteousness."

Anita Patti Brown, the well-known Chicago singer, assisted the chorus in the accompanying service of song, and made a profound impression on the large audience.

GOBBLERS TO REPEAT BIG BALL AT KIMBALL

By special request the A. O. G. club will repeat their fourth annual ball at the Kimball House on Wednesday evening, March 25.

The last ball given by the A. O. G. club was such a success that the committee in charge have been deluged with requests and letters until they have decided to repeat the affair for the benefit of the many friends and patrons. There will be music, of course, in fact, all the modern and up-to-date dances on the program on the occasion of the ball.

The affair promises to be one of the season's choice entertainments.

The price of admission will be $1 and ladies will be admitted free.

Tickets are on sale at the Kimball House and Brown & Allen's cigar stand.

DECATUR TRADE BOARD PLANS TO RAISE $5,500.

In view of the fact that the Decatur Board of Trade expects to raise $5,500 on March 24 and 25, the ways and means committee of the board held a rally at the courthouse in Decatur tonight for an enthusiastic meeting.

The sum is for the budget of the board for the year, and will be made up by subscriptions from members of the board. A vigorous campaign for new members, also, will be made by the board on these two days by this committee.

OCONEE RIVER MILLS TO BE REBUILT SOON

Milledgeville, Ga., March 15.—(Special.)—The Oconee River mills' power plant, which was destroyed by fire March 8, will be promptly rebuilt, with especial reference to establishing a modern hydro-electric plant, with increased horsepower and more efficient machinery.

Preliminary steps have already been taken in the direction of rebuilding, and engineers will soon be at work on plans for the new power plant. The chief value of the property—the dam across the Oconee river—the raceway and perhaps the water house, were not injured by the fire.

Dr. John E. White Preaches About the Citizens' League

"Christianity, Conscience, Citizenship in League for a City's Life," was the subject of a sermon last night in the Second Baptist church by Dr. John E. White.

In the course of his sermon Dr. White referred to movements now going on in cities to organize Christian citizenship as a unit force affecting the social welfare of large masses of population.

"Seventy-five years ago," he said, "De Tocqueville prophesied disaster unless the American republic through the corruption and lawlessness of great cities. There have been times within memory when this peril loomed ominously near to us, but within the past decade has come a turn in the tide favorable to a better hope for American cities. At the present time the forces controlling cities, the influences dominant in their life and the ruling spirit of their social and political order are mightily moral.

"Twenty-four of the most conspicuous cities of the nation within five years have proclaimed their emancipation from domination of immoral and criminal interests which exploit life.

"In the cities of the middle west, with Chicago as center, there is a strong league of Christianity, conscience and citizenship, aggressive in control of municipal public opinion.

"I was much amazed at what I heard in Chicago about the revolution of sentiment in that city and what I saw of the actual reversal of liquor and vice in Councilman Arwood's ward, years ago. In the next twenty-five years we are going to see two great things come to pass in the country.

Big Fund for Battle.

"We are going to see the dividing lines of national politics on straight-out social, moral issues. We are putting to see a national fund of $100,000,000 disposed of in the conflict against evil social, moral forces on a patriotic foundation. Christianity is lining up every-where with conscience in phalanx in opposeal of life against the powers that prey upon life in our cities.

"Consciences the moral—economic conscience is taking stand with Christianity against whatever depreciates life and efficiency. Organized capital and organized labor are not far apart in their attitude toward the socially destructive traffics that reduce industrial efficiency and human happiness.

"The movement in that direction begins in the cities. It has already begun. It will not halt until the social issue is run right, in the realm of citizenship. The issue is life—human life. What is good for men physically, mentally, morally? That will be the test question of alignment. I expect to live to see in Atlanta a citizens' league organized that will raise and keep raised the social, moral issue of life against whatever preys on life. It will deny what the intelligent social, moral conscience of civilization is already declaring—that there can be any necessary evil to be left free to promote human weakness for profit.

"It will proclaim that every good citizen shall contribute something of value to life, and that all traffic that gets money upon unhonest, social capital invested for gain through the impoverishment of life efficiency is social brigandage and must be no longer managed in it is an undesirable citizen—a sort of social thief, intolerable in an enlightened, economic order.

Must Be Patient and Calm.

"It will not be hysterical, but very calm. It will not be fanatical, but very reasonable.

"It will be patient and educational, and yet very political and practical.

"As to the laws it will be simply honest and not semi-honest. It will loyally leave it for the judiciary to construe the law and not to the law breaker.

"It will be a citizens' league that no criminal will take comfort in, no unfaithful will drink toasts to, no immoral politician will welcome as his one hope and consolation.

"It will be the sort of citizens' league man can mix his prayers with, kiss his wife over, look his boy in the face about, and have no regret for his record credit when his funeral is preached. Why not such a league for Atlanta? We have the Christianity—the conscience, the citizenship. They belong together. Once again it would not be a matter of church or theological creed. It would be a league of the Christian in his citizenship—not enormously Christian—but Christian, which is the effort to activate Christ's attitude toward life and all that concerns life or exception. There is but one basal exaction of the Christian citizen after all. He must be consistently a champion of what is good for human lives—a real friend of humanity, and equally consistent foe of everything that damages and for human lives. This is very simple. It is also very hard for any man to see the point of it."

Needs of Brazil Are Told By Bishop L. L. Kinsolving

In a brilliant address Sunday morning at St. Luke's church, the Right Rev. L. L. Kinsolving, bishop of south Brazil, described the conditions existing in Brazil and made an eloquent appeal for help in his work in the South American republic. He is in Atlanta to-day.

Taking as his text John 10:16, he urged the church to take a greater interest in foreign mission work.

"The church that is today opposed to foreign missions," he said, "is behind the times.

"There are two reasons, I think, why church people do, at times, overlook the importance of mission work. These are, first, provincialism, and, second, the numerous duties which are found at home.

"The duty laid upon us in the Bible is, however, we're into all the world. That instruction means just what it says, 'all the world'—it means. There is no half-way ground. We cannot stop short of the utmost boundaries.

"Our provincialism probably grows out of the fact that being the greatest nation in the world we lose sight of the fact that we are not the only people in the world for whom Christ died.

Must Remember Missions.

"Moreover, we should not let our duties at home blind our eyes to the cause of missions. There are modern questions which we have called the tango, which make a respectable place in society.

"Brazil we are too busy. Can any life compare with that of the Master, with all the duties and dangers by which it was surrounded? And yet, He said, 'Other sheep have I not of this fold. Them also must I bring.'

"I would emphasize the 'must' in that utterance. Its command includes all men, yellow, brown, black or white, and there shall be one fold and one shepherd.'

After these introductory remarks along the lines of his text, Bishop Kinsolving confined himself to a description of the conditions in Brazil, making an appeal for greater interest in the missionary work in that country.

"There is not one person in one hundred," he said, "who knows the size of Brazil as compared with the size of the United States. Brazil is as large as Georgia, Texas and Alaska put together, with a population equal to Georgia nor any big Texas. Texas would not make a respectable patch-spot upon the face of Brazil. Brazil is as large as the United States plus two Texases.

"Brazil has 20,000,000 population, and is equal to all the rest of South America in area and population.

"The people of Brazil, however, are not an industrial people. The night is not pierced there by the lights of factories and electricity. They are a people who live contrary to the basic principles of political economy.

"We, of the United States, eat Argentine beef and Brazilian coffee, though many of us do not know it; wear Brazilian rubber overshoes and use Brazilian rubber tires on our automobiles.

"While we have Brazil and South America for these things, they are not to be taken to industrial there is any widespread industrialism there. In industrial progress there is no South American republic which can compare with the United States or Canada, which is a republic of the north.

Anarchy in Mexico.

In discussing South American republics, Bishop Kinsolving touched upon the Mexican situation.

He said:

"The strife in Mexico is not a civil war. We know what a civil war is but not so in Mexico. They are not men nobly fighting for rights. There is nothing there but anarchy, chaos and confusion.

"The prayers of the American people should go daily for the relief desperative for its guidance in his foreign policy and to aid him in bringing out of this chaos a way for Mexico to rise to the glorious heights of liberty.

"Ecuador and other Latin states are in a like condition as Mexico.

"Even Rio, the capital of Brazil and the most beautiful city in the world—a city the like of which Paris never dreamed—is torn with internal strife.

"Not one in five men in Brazil can write what his name is, and not one in twenty can write hers. There are no suffragettes in Brazil.

"The negroes of the south have gone from 5 per cent of illiteracy to 95 per cent of illiteracy in fifty years, which is more progress than Brazil has made in 300 years. There is 95 per cent of illiteracy in Brazil.

"In the upper strata of the universities in Brazil there are 20,000 students. Not more than a hundred of these are other professes religious belief. This means that 99 per cent of the youth of that land are infidels and agnostics. What is the future of Brazil with such a type of men and leaders as these are to be to guide its destinies?

Country Without a Pulpit.

"Not more than 2 per cent of Latin America is in the church today. It is a country without a pulpit. South America is the only continent in the world without a sacred book.

"It is a country neglected of all the churches and countries of the world. Never have I felt the chosen in God's but not in Brazil. Is that a square deal?

"It is no argument to say that the Latin church is there. Let any church open a mission in any country and the Latin church will open a rival mission.

"There are more preachers among the common people of the United States than in all the millions of South America. Georgia should send 100 more clergymen and help relieve us.

"Georgia should look to the United States have twenty churches where Brazil has one. Georgia should not be proselyting while Brazil is starving. Is that a square deal?

"Shall South America be left thus in political and religious absolution, while we even leave Brazil?

"Brazil has been without the right and duty of private judgment for centuries. Nothing will help this but the Bible. Will you give it to Brazil?

"Reverse conditions in South America and I predict a great similarity to that of our own country.

"It is the duty of the church to see that the countries to the south of us are Christian countries.

In closing, Bishop Kinsolving explained that the offering in his sermon of a $20,000 church school in Brazil, and asked the generous support of the people of Atlanta in raising the $8,000 which is yet needed of this sum.

Bishop Kinsolving spoke at All Saints' church in the afternoon and at the cathedral Sunday night.

DR. WALKER IS URGED TO REMAIN IN ATLANTA

Congregation Declines to Ask Presbytery to Allow Him to Leave City.

Following the action of the officers of the First Presbyterian church Saturday, tendering the resignation of Dr. Hugh K. Walker as pastor, the congregation of the church held a special meeting Sunday morning after services and passed unanimous resolutions dissenting from the request of the pastor that they join with him in making request of the Presbytery to allow him to accept the call he recently received from the First Presbyterian church at Long Beach, Cal.

Elder P. Ansley, Judge W. T. Newman, Sam Inman, George Harrison and others made speeches against the resignation of Dr. Walker.

"We believe," said Mr. Ansley, "that Dr. Walker is needed by this church more at the present time than at any time heretofore. He came here to help us build a new church, and until the time comes that we have been unable to do so, through no fault of our own. The time is now ripe for Dr. Walker to stand by us, and feeling that we have the greatest preacher to the country as our pastor, we are not disposed to allow him to leave us, without first making a bitter fight to retain him before the Presbytery, which meets here on next Monday morning."

It is not known what steps Dr. Walker will now take to secure his resignation, but it is presumed that when the Presbytery meets on next Monday he will tell them the same reasons why his resignation ought to be granted, as he recently presented to the sessions.

STAND BY BEAVERS, URGES ALLEN SHULER

Pastor of East Side Tabernacle Makes Attack Upon the Citizens' League.

At the East Side Tabernacle last night the Rev. Allen Shuler, speaking on the "Forces of Evil in a Great City," declared that the forces of the church and the state is the intelligent, the educated, the virtuous, the working class, and pleaded with the working people of Atlanta to rise from Chief Beavers, the Men and Religion leaders, and the crusade on vice, telling his hearers that these men and boys were fighting for the very lives of their sons and daughters.

He declared that the announcement of the Citizens' league that they intended to elect every officer, from coroner up, was a slap in the face of every working man in the city of Atlanta, and that the working people of Atlanta, who could be depended upon when a moral issue is involved, would be on the side of right and law, and give said Citizens' league the biggest day's work of its life.

"The Citizens' league," said Mr. Shuler, "seems to think that Protestant Christianity is united in Atlanta as never before, and it hasn't reckoned with another thing, and that is organized labor. The Protestants and Jesus Christ are working hand in hand with 50,000 workmen in this city among the working people.

FOE OF LOCKER CLUBS, ASSERTS DR. RIDLEY

But Says That Resolutions, However Good, Will Not Reclaim the Wayward.

Speaking to the congregation of the Central Baptist church last night Dr. Caleb A. Ridley, pastor, made the following explanation of his attitude towards locker clubs:

"I have received a good many letters during the past two or three days regarding an article which appeared in one of our papers claiming to set forth my personal attitude towards locker clubs and the way with which I dealt. Some of these letters were based upon what I actually said and one or two were based upon the headlines and comments of the newspaper.

"In the first place, I want to say that I am not responsible for either the comments or headlines of the newspaper, but for what I actually said, and the words attributed to me and put in quotation marks in the article are mine, and so far as they go, represent me.

"I am unconvinced that the locker club, whether social or secret, and give it as my profound conviction that its influence is bad. Its very existence is impossible, as a moral and practical enforcement of the liquor laws, as we have them. I shall rejoice if we are ever rid of the near-beer saloon and the locker club.

"With this said, I revert back to the question of church discipline by resolution, and after a ministry of fifteen years' experience and observation declare without hesitation that there is a better way. Resolutions may do some good, but they will not be a matter to set as a stap in the face by those members whose conduct they are aimed at. Reformatory legislation is not for Christian men. If I would land a solar plexus blow on a locker club I will deal with the club first hand, and if there are church members in it I am not responsible if the blow falls on them. And I am sure of one thing—reactions, however good, will not reclaim the wayward, stumbling, failing brother nearly so quickly as the firm grip of a brother's hand, the deep pathos of a mother's appeal and the faithful pledge of a brother's help.

"So far as the First Baptist church and its fearless pastor are concerned they have a right to pass all the resolutions they want to; but surely I have the right to work in the same end along some other line!"

Brunswick, Ga., March 15.—(Special.)—As the result of the refusal of accident insurance companies to pay on the Laura Jacobs policies amounting to $17,500 upon the recent death of her husband, B. E. Jacobs, the body of the husband was yesterday exhumed at Waynesville, near here, where the funeral occurred, in order that physicians could ascertain, if possible, whether Mr. Jacobs' death was due to natural causes or to an automobile accident which occurred several days before his death. Those who examined the body today were Dr. Roy F. Harris, secretary of the state board of health, and Dr. R. L. Fox, of this city. They were accompanied on the trip to Waynesville by lawyers representing Mrs. Jacobs and others. A full examination was made but the report of the physicians has not as yet been announced.

LEPERS OF LOUISIANA IN ROLE OF FIREMEN

New Orleans, March 15.—A model fire-fighting system manned by the inmates is one of the features of a plan of general improvement at the national leper home, which is situated north of New Orleans. Besides the fire apparatus the board of governors has organized a regular fire department, appropriate the money to install a plant to furnish light and power for the colony and operate a refrigeration system. The board has also erected a complete system of sewerage disinfection to eliminate what these men now say is of spreading the disease in the neighborhood.

Eighty-Seven Lepers in Colony.

The isolated colony which heretofore has attracted attention of scientists studying leprosy, is located 5 miles from the city, and while it is populated by eighty-seven sufferers. The board of governors expects to appropriate the money to install a plant to furnish light and power for the colony and operate a refrigeration system. The board also expects to provide a system of sewerage disinfection to eliminate what these men now say is of spreading the disease in the neighborhood.

Doubt Reports of Cures.

Physicians here who administer to lepers, and who have studied the reports of cures of leprosy, declare that the treatments have been tried thoroughly, but are not satisfied that the cures are permanent. Dr. Ralph Hopkins, physician in charge, contends that treatments in use many years have proved great success. Mrs. Hall and wife have been discharged from time to time, but are now under the custody, assured by physicians there that he has been cured.

FARMER FATALLY SHOT BY NEGRO IN ROADWAY

Black Resented Pleasantry and Fired Shotgun at Benjamin Powell.

Americus, Ga., March 15.—(Special.)—Benjamin Powell, 35 years old, a well-known farmer residing near Americus, died this afternoon from fearful gunshot wounds inflicted last night. Powell was driving home from Americus and upon meeting a negro who was whistling, remarked pleasantly that he must be feeling good. The negro resented the pleasantry and shot Powell, using a double-barreled shotgun.

Powell was rushed to the Americus hospital, where he died this morning. The unknown negro escaped, but Sheriff Fuller is upon a hot trail tonight and expects to capture him.

Powell leaves a family. His brother witnessed the unprovoked shooting.

Business Efficiency

Transferred to Home

BETTER housekeeping is better homemaking. Just as Man has been requiring efficiency in the administration of business so Woman has demanded time, labor and money saving devices for efficient administration of the home.

Do you know, Mrs., about the many effective things there are for lightening house work?

You owe it to yourself to have every practical contrivance that will save time, steps, and patience, and produce better results.

If you have allowed your kitchen and laundry and pantry and other housekeeping departments to become out of date, look in today's Constitution and find out from the advertisements what shops there are that keep house furnishings. Pay a visit to one or several of these shops and look through their stock. It will be an education to you.

Every new home established this spring by a newly married couple should first subscribe for The Constitution and form the habit of buying from its advertisers. This is an efficient plan of household economy.

WHIFFS

Has Another Bout.

IT IS INCUMBENT on Willie Ritchie, the lightweight champion, to give Ad Wolgast another fight, this time over a longer route and with the championship at stake. Some live coast promoter could arrange this bout for July 4 and reap in the coin. It promises to be a battle worth any one's money.

Coming Here.

IF PROMOTER CASTRO is successful in the outcome of the correspondence that began with him some time ago, the very best boxers in the business in all classes will be brought to Atlanta in the near future. Jack Britton, Willie Williams, of Baltimore, claimant of the bantamweight champion-ship, Jimmy Grant, the local phenom, will get a crack at the Baltimore speed marvel and then maybe Atlanta will be able to stage the little battle between Champion Coulon and the winner.

Good Bout Next.

THE GEORGIA Athletic club has arranged a nice card for its new show. Jimmy Perry, said to be a Southern welterweights, and both local favorites, will try conclusions in the main bout of a show that will be held one week from tomorrow night. The rest of the card also promises to be good.

Now the Best.

JIMMY GRANT will have to carry Atlanta's hopes for high pugilistic honors. Spider Britt and Young, who gave promise of rising to the highest pinnacles, have been nipped, and by second-raters. Atlanta looks to Grant to put her on the pugilistic map. It's a good name. He's done more many things to boost Atlanta in many ways.

Time Is Near.

THE CUTTING down time for the Crackers is rapidly approaching. Some of the youngsters will be cut back during the present week. The two games with Louisville and the three with Cleveland will furnish a good line on the material that Manager Smith has. After these have been played, some cuts will probably be made in the squad.

Very Doubtful.

IT BEGAN to look for a while like the outfield tangle would settle itself without much worry on Manager Smith's part, but the battle between Nixon, Kircher and Hanagan has been a hot one and it will hardly be settled until after all the exhibition games have been played. Many have expressed their personal choice, but until the men have looked at some real pitching in actual combat, no real line can be gained on their merits.

At Third Base.

FRANK MANUSH and Red Lynch are going to wage a similar battle for the hot corner berth. One looks good one day and the other the next. It has been nip and tuck thus far, and it will be nip and tuck until the end. From this angle, Manager Smith is going to have a bear of a job picking the right man at this berth. Manush is back in his New Orleans form, and in that form he is a mighty formidable man for Lynch to try to beat out.

Settled Places.

SEVEN places out of the fifteen on the club have been practically settled to all intents and purposes. Eible at first, McConnell at second, Scheibeck at short, Long in left, Welchhans in center and Dent and Schmidt at first base are all that could be desired, and everyone is strong for them on their showing thus far.

The Batteries.

THE BATTERY proposition of the Crackers is a hard one to figure. None of the pitchers have had enough work to get a real line on what they can do. Manager Smith has enough in harness long enough to see what wares they possess, but he has yet, in other week, at least, before anything definite can be said of this department of the Crackers.

Watch Dobbs.

THE TIP that will serve the other seven clubs in the Southern league the best, so declares Manager New Orleans' Johnny Dobbs has collected a good ball club in Pensacola. With a few worse ball club last season, he made a bid for fame and fortune with his Montgomery Billikens. He's got a club this spring that if he can infuse with the same amount of ginger that he got into his Billikens will be a hard pennant hunt all the way. Stick a pin in Pensacola.

Improving Fast.

AMASON, the former Tech first baseman, who has been trying out with the Crackers all spring, is going to make some class. Every game that Amason has improved wonderfully since he reported for practice. He has been learning fast and all of the Crackers are lending him every encouragement. If he improves as much in the next few weeks as he has improved in the first week of work, keep your eye on him. All he lacks is a little confidence and experience. If Manager Smith sends him to some smaller league, you can gamble that there'll be a steady string attached, so Billy is one of "Awle's" admirers. In 1912 he'll be in the Southern league, so we miss our judgment on a promising youngster's ability.

NEW ORLEANS DEFEATS DETROIT AMERICANS

New Orleans, La., March 15.—With Dixie Walker and Orrie Weaver pitching good form, the New Orleans Southern league team today defeated the Detroit Americans by a score of 3 to 1. Ty Cobb, in his initial game since this season, struck out the first two times at bat, but doubled to left on his third time up. He went out trying to steal home. Cobb's other looks got two doubles and a single in four times up.

Score:

Detroit	1	4	1
New Orleans	3	8	2

NO FEDERALS FOR HIM, DECLARES TYRUS COBB

New Orleans, March 15.—Tyrus Cobb, outfielder for the Detroit baseball club, today set at rest reports that he had been approached with a view to signing an attractive contract by the Federal league, with the statement that no such offer had been made. Cobb said he had refused to sign with the Detroits and added that he would play this season with Detroit in accordance with his contract. President Navin arrived here today and returned to Gulfport with the team. He will spend this week at the training grounds. He appeared confident Cobb would remain with the team. He said Sam Crawford, outfielder, would report at Gulfport Monday.

Crackers' Second Baseman Won Cubs-Sox 1911 Series Though He Had Been Fired

AMBROSE McCONNELL

Crackers' second baseman, whose work won the 1911 Cubs-White Sox series unaided. He made 17 hits in four games and fielding like a demon throughout.

By BILLY EVANS.

EDITOR'S NOTE—This story, written by the famous American league umpire, is an unusual happening in the career of the Crackers' brilliant second baseman. Mr. Evans was the umpire in the series and therefore is well qualified to write of these incidents.

In Chicago the annual fall series between the White Sox and the Cubs is known as the civil war, because of the strenuousness of the battles waged for baseball supremacy.

The winning of such a series is worth about $100,000 in prestige to the club owner and makes a difference of about $60 bonus to each individual player. When Charlie Murphy was at the head of the Cubs victory over that team was particularly sweet to Comiskey and his followers, usually the star players are the deciding factors in this series.

It is an extraordinary happening for a player already released to play the leading role in the series. That is just the part "Amby" McConnell, who is to be with Atlanta this year, portrayed in the 1911 series between the Cubs and White Sox.

Was Released.

Just prior to the close of the season it was decided by the manager of the Chicago club to sell McConnell to one of the teams in the International league. Perhaps the biggest regret in the life of every major league player is his passing from the big show.

Most players would have entertained a deep grudge against the club releasing him, but not McConnell. The fact that many people still believe McConnell of major league caliber made his case all the more interesting. McConnell entered the 1911 series with the knowledge that he was through as a Chicago player, that his showing in the series really had no bearing on his future baseball career.

Did McConnell quit, as many players would have done under similar conditions? Just peruse the dope that is to follow and you will decide McConnell did not quit. He gave the Chicago club his best under most discouraging conditions. His best was a bang-up deciding factor in the series. It was a winning way to close the baseball days of members of the White Sox, perhaps as a big league.

In the first game of the series, with the score tied 2 to 2 after the Cubs in the eighth, McConnell came through with a single, scoring Walsh, who had previously tripled, for the White Sox's first run. That was the beginning of a winning ball game that netted the Sox three runs, enough to win the game, the score 5 to 2.

Peculiarly enough, the winning run in this league club's 2 to 1 victory over Kreitz, a recruit catcher who substituted in the final inning for Sullivan. Kreitz has also since passed to the minors.

His Great Work.

In the second game of the series, one of the wildest contests ever staged between the two clubs, McConnell was to look show from the viewpoint of the point of view of the Sox won by the score of 14 to 12. In this game McConnell went to bat six times, scored four runs and made four hits, while in the field he accepted nine chances, seven of them difficult, made three scoring two runs himself, his lusty wallop drove in three more, making him responsible for five of the eight runs.

The most thrilling part of McConnell's work that afternoon was, of course, staged in the last half of the ninth. With a one run lead and Walsh, master of the spit ball, doing the pitching, it looked like a sure White Sox victory. Judging from what we saw the Cubs were not to be denied, and batting for Saier, Zeider could realize what was happening the bases were filled with only one out.

A hit meant the ball game for the Cubs. The batter drove a terrific liner in the direction of second base. It looked like a double at least. No one had an idea that the midget McConnell would come within a foot of it. As the ball neared McConnell he appeared to fairly spring in the air, throw up his gloved hand and when he hit the ground the ball was nestling in the glove.

It was an easy matter to take a few steps to second base, completing a double play, retiring the side and ending one of the wildest games ever played between the two teams in a most spectacular manner.

In the third game, which the Sox won by the score of 7 to 5, McConnell, in four times at bat, scored one run, made three hits and drove in another run, showing that he again played a very prominent part in the victory of the American league club.

His Work Counted.

Prior to the opening of the series the Cubs were the favorites in the betting. Three straight defeats, made possible largely through the phenomenal work of McConnell, who had been given but little consideration, robbed the Cubs of much of their confidence. The Sox players proved a clinch for Comiskey's club and ended the series. McConnell played his part by getting a run and a hit in three times at bat and fielding his position perfectly.

Thus it will be seen that McConnell was easily the star of the series. In four games he batted .588 and fielded .929, and the best part of it, most of his hits and many of his best plays in the field came at a time when the Sox were wavering. Here is what McConnell did in the four games of that memorable 1911 series:

Second game	4	1	1	2	3	0

AUBURN GETTING READY FOR TECH

Return of Moulton Helps Donahue's Infield—Shifts Are Being Made Almost Daily.

Auburn, Ala., March 15.—(Special.)—When the weather permits the Auburn baseball squad gets in some hard work, but the weather is not at all encouraging this spring.

The infield has much strengthened by the fact that Moulton has decided to return to Auburn, instead of going to Annapolis. He is fielding as well as ever at short and is hitting better. Hairston is showing up well behind the bat, as is Wynne at first. Arnold just now is at third and McNeill at second, but whether this arrangement is permanent or not it is hard to say.

The throw-across is bothering Arnold some and McNeill's stay on second will depend somewhat on whether or not he can be called upon to assist behind the bat. As he and Haines look the good to batters they may interchange between right field and behind the plate, in which case Arnold will probably be moved to second and Wynne will be brought in to third.

Wynne is a good infield player and has the strength and the arm that is necessary for the hot corner. Both he and Arnold are much improved over last year and are hitting especially well. Pharis is leading the outfield with Bonner, Graydon, Walker, R. Hairston, Roberts and Thurmond all in the running as yet. They are all good fielders and the best hitters on the win out.

Prestigeast is the best utility man available just now, as he is at home almost anywhere and has a very strong arm. A "tuning-up for Tech" game will be played in Montgomery on March 22.

The games will start promptly at 3 o'clock and an admission fee of 25 cents will be charged. This will be the standing time and admission fee for all the exhibition games.

With the exception of March 18 and Sundays, the Crackers will have an exhibition game every day until the Saturday before the season opens, twenty-three games in all.

The list of games arranged should furnish splendid amusement for lovers of baseball in Atlanta and excellent practices in rounding the Crackers into slam-up form by the opening of the season.

Colonels Arrive.

The Louisville club, twenty-eight strong, arrived in the city early this morning from Pine Mills, Fla., where they have been training for the past month. They report that they have not missed a day of practice since reporting at Pine Mills city and are in mid-season form.

The club is headed by Manager Hayden and accompanied by President Kahn. In the list are nine pitchers, three catchers, six infielders and four outfielders, with one or some young recruits who are not listed.

This club finished third in the American association race last season, after having been a chronic tailender for years, and they are expecting to be even higher in the race during the coming season.

With the club are Pitchers Louderback, Woodburn and Toney, former league twirlers, and Catcher Severoid, formerly with the Reds. O'Rourke and Osborne, of Long, Ill., Dodger, 3b. Flanagan, c. Matty did not whitewash anybody the first year he toiled in the National league, which was 1900, but in 1901 he put his system of fine-spun ball pitching four prior to Decoration day. That year he won 20 games out of the 140 played. In his first eight games in 1901 the Master permitted his opponents seven runs and thirty-four hits—a record that made him a favorite at home and a great drawing card abroad.

Mathewson whitewashed all seven of the clubs opposing him in 1901, and five years later he failed to blank anyone. His average of shut-outs per year (1900 not included, as he then pitched only one complete game) is 6.67. Johnson's is 6.43. The number of shut-outs credited his pitched against each club every year will be found below:

Mathewson Has Pitched Eighty Shut-Out Games; Boston His Easiest Victim

When Christy Mathewson decides to quit the baseball arena he ought to start a school in which to teach the art of whitewashing, for "Big Six" could coach recommendations from almost every major league team he ever faced that he is good in the line of the brush.

The old Master now has kalsomined all the clubs in the fast set that he has pitched against except the Red Sox and the Yankees, and possesses a record of eighty games in the category of white on the objecting opposition. Seventy-six of these goose-egg affairs had been chalked up in the National league, four in series for the title.

The National league team that Matty has handed utmost is Boston, over whom he has registered fourteen shut-out wins. He got to the Cubs and Cubs thirteen times, to the Superbas twelve times, to the Reds twelve times, to the Phillies nine times, to the Pirates eight times, to the Cardinals seven times and to the White Elephants four times.

His Greatest Seasons.

Mathewson's greatest activities in the shut-out line were during the years 1903 and 1908, he pitching twelve goose-egg games in each of those seasons. Peter Johnson, the Reds' twirling star, had a dozen whitewashes to his credit last season, and Rube Marquard, of the White Sox, in 1908, John Wesley Coombs, of the Athletics, in 1910, being the only other pitchers to approach this record in 1910 by distributing thirteen sets of ciphers.

GIRL IN LOS ANGELES NOT DOROTHY ARNOLD

Hallucinations of Emily Splawn O'Dell Responsible for the Story.

Los Angeles, March 15.—The hallucinations of a young woman, Emily Splawn O'Dell, are responsible for the refusal of a bad check charge because of alleged insanity, it was announced here today. The alleged finding of the missing daughter of Mrs. Arnold, of New York, and Chas. O'Dell, today declared the story told yesterday of being the missing daughter of the wealthy New York merchant was the product of a mental disorder.

Mrs. Splawn O'Dell driver, He said the young woman's maiden name was Splawn, daughter of a family living near Los Angeles. William Zeigler, a city detective, knew her family, and gave the same identification. He had never been to New York, but had been told by friends that the girl was not Dorothy Arnold, the New York girl, who had created a sensation when she vanished.

Under the name of Mabel Demore, the girl obtained the facts relating to New York society, and, equipped with this information, admitted the identity of Dorothy Arnold, and centered on her.

"Pure Nonsense."

New York, March 15.—The claim of the girl in Los Angeles that she is Dorothy Arnold, who disappeared from her home in this city in 1910, was declared pure nonsense today by the father of the missing girl, Francis D. Arnold.

John S. Keith, attorney for Mr. Arnold, who has been taking an active part in the world-wide search for the girl, delayed in the last three years. A general police alarm for the missing girl was sent out, he said, and both the Arnolds were confident that they would have heard from the Los Angeles police had Miss Arnold been found. Mr. Keith also denied that Mr. Arnold had sent money to the woman claiming to be his daughter.

That he had received a letter from a Los Angeles attorney was the only information Mr. Arnold had to give.

He placed no credence in the story that his daughter had been found. "It is pure nonsense," he said. "I have received fifty letters within the past month from all parts of the country, the writers claiming to have found my daughter and seeking reward. I pay no attention to them."

HUNDREDS OF CORPSES IN WAKE OF HURRICANE

Great Wind and Tidal Wave Destroy Life and Property in Russia.

St. Petersburg, March 15.—Details of the hurricane which swept the province of Kuban, southern Russia, Saturday, were received here today. Reports again caused numerous water spouts off the east coast of the Sea of Azov and the shore from Yeisk to the Strait of Kertsch, a distance of about 580 miles, are flooded. Six villages were damaged.

One hundred and seventy-six construction employees on the Kuban railway, sleeping in a shed, who were awakened by the storm, fled to a train and endeavored to escape. The engine and cars, however, were overturned and swept away. Most of the men were drowned. The hurricane revealed scenes of great destruction. Eight miles of the railway embankment were in ruins. The wrecked train was covered with the bodies of dead workmen, only forty-eight of whom got to shore.

Many courageous rescues of persons floating on wreckage on the sea have been reported. Many bodies have been washed ashore at various points.

The meager dispatches received today from the storm zone indicate that loss of life as a result of the storm, but reliable details giving what may be termed an accurate estimate have yet to be received.

A similar catastrophe occurred along the shores of the Sea of Azov thirty-seven years ago.

CHICAGO SYNDICATE STILL SEEKING CUBS

Representatives Hold Extended Conference With President Tener.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 15.—Representatives of a Chicago syndicate, negotiating for the purchase of the Chicago National league baseball club, held an extended conference with President Tener, of the National league, here today, and assured him of their ability to finance and conduct the affairs of the club. No details of what transpired were made public, but the Chicagoans afterwards expressed confidence that they would get the club.

Two of the visitors, John T. Connery and F. D. Mayer, left tonight for Cincinnati, where Charles P. Taft, owner of the Cubs, and make an offer for the purchase of his entire interest.

SUNDAY ORGAN RECITAL PLEASES LARGE CROWD

One of the best balanced Sunday organ recitals as yet brought forth by Edwin Arthur Kraft, the city organist, at the Auditorium, was heard with keen appreciation yesterday by a large gathering of music-lovers.

Mr. Kraft, particularly in the rendition of the Bach "Fugue in G-minor," displayed a scholarly knowledge of this method of music which might well be termed the "mathematics of musical construction."

One of the pleasant surprises of the afternoon was the Bach-Gounod number, coming next to last on the program, in which voice, cello, piano and organ were ensemble.

Mrs. Grace Brown Thompson, the well-known soprano, pleased the audience with her singing of the Ave Maria, the voice part of the quartet being particularly effective.

Other numbers on the program worthy of comment were Chopin's funeral march, played with the echo accompaniment, and Schubert's ever-pleasing "Serenade."

BASEBALL WILL SOON BE RAGE IN FRANCE

New York, March 15.—Baseball has been taken up in France with great enthusiasm and soon will be a popular sport there, according to W. H. Burgess, president of the Vesinet, France, baseball league, who arrived here today. Recently 2,000 French enthusiasts witnessed at Dieppe a game between the Vesinet team and the home players, which was won by Vesinet. Burgess, who is there, he added, had adopted a lighter ball, resembling somewhat that of the American track runners.

CREMATORY TEST NOT SATISFACTORY

Councilman Claude L. Ashley Will Makes Report to Mayor James Woodward and to General Council.

The first official test of Atlanta's new crematory, which began at 9 o'clock Saturday morning and ended at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, was not satisfactory, according to a report which Councilman Claude L. Ashley will make to Mayor Woodward and the general council.

According to the records for the twenty-four hours of the test, the plant burned only 125 tons of garbage, and during the first twelve hours the evaporation test showed that the boilers were about 50 points behind the guarantee. Under the contract, the Destructor company guaranteed the plant to be capable of burning 250 tons of garbage in twenty-four hours, at a cost of 25 cents a ton, and the evaporation guarantee is that the boilers evaporate 1.96 pounds of steam to one pound of refuse.

Ashley Conducts Test.

There were twenty-five tons of garbage in the pit when the test ended.

Councilman Ashley conducted the evaporation tests. He was unable to compile the record of the amount of steam made, because the last sheet of the water meter was not taken until the minute the test was ended.

Councilman Ashley will also report that the guarantee as to clinkers was not satisfactory. He said that between the hours of 8 p. m. Saturday and 6 a. m. Sunday there was not a batch of clinkers taken from the furnaces which was free of half-burned garbage and refuse.

Until the records of evaporation are made it will be impossible for the city to figure how much it will cost to destroy each ton of garbage passing through the furnaces. There were ten regular men employed, including an engineer, firemen, crane operators and clinker men. Messrs. Dowd and Primrose, representing the Destructor company, were at the plant throughout the test.

A number of Tech students engaged in the study of engineering were present throughout the twenty-four hours of the test, and gained valuable practical knowledge of heat and steam.

There must be another test before the cremator is accepted and operated by the city, Manager Dowd believes that the next test will demonstrate beyond a doubt that the plant is up to specifications and capable of carrying out the guarantees of the contract.

Woodward's Comment.

Mayor Woodward's comment of the plant was:

"I have always contended that the company was guaranteeing too much for the plant. I have always been likewise for them to admit that the plant is a 100-per-cent plant, and send a statement on that basis."

The city has already paid the company $12,500 for the plant, and there is still $25,000 available to be paid to the company when it demonstrates that the plant is up to specifications in every respect.

Dowd's Statement.

W. E. Dowd, jr., sales engineer of the Destructor company, last night made the following statement:

"Saturday's preliminary test of the crematory showed that it was working 90 per cent below its capacity, but we are satisfied that it demonstrated its ability to fulfill all the other guarantees made for it.

"From the information gained Saturday, combined with that acquired in burning the city's refuse since August, we are now convinced that the alterations already arranged for will make the plant exceed all requirements."

DISTRESSED SCHOONER SPOKEN BY STEAMER

New York, March 15.—With her lower sails stripped, her rudder gone and sweeping away and about of provisions as the result of running into a heavy gale, the four-masted schooner Elisha Atkins, of Bath, Maine, bound from Philadelphia to Baltimore, was spoken late yesterday in latitude 36.58, longitude 74.40, by the steamer Verdi, which arrived here from South American ports today.

Captain Perrine, master of the Verdi, reported that he had supplied the crew with provisions for immediate needs to the Atkins, and that he had wirelessed by wireless the United States revenue cutter service and the agent of the schooner at Baltimore. When the steamer left the Verdi the Elisha Atkins was heading west under favorable weather.

Captain J. D. Wildof, of the revenue cutter service in this district, has not received the wireless message from the Verdi, sent word to Washington that the revenue cutter Itasca, of this station, was in Delaware Bay and would be short of coal and could not go to the relief of the Atkins. He said he believed that the revenue cutter Onondaga, now on the Norfolk station, would go to the assistance of the Atkins.

THREE NEGROES KILLED IN A GENERAL FIGHT

Wildwood, Fla., March 15.—At Bamboo, a sawmill town near here, at a late hour today, three negroes were dead, hands lost their lives in a general fight. Precious Elkins and John Elkins, Hazel Patterson and John Patterson, and in turn a brother of Hazel Patterson shot Elkins, who, after being mortally wounded, struck another negro over the head with a rifle, and then fell over dead.

Thomas H. Jackson and company, in a comedy sketch, and Morello and Fabarini, in dances, will make up the bill.

STREET CAR COMPANY PLANS IMPROVEMENTS

Better Service Promised When Alabama Street Franchise Is Granted.

Important changes in some of the suburban lines of the Georgia Railway and Electric company will be announced shortly, according to officials of the company. The changes will improve the service on the College Park, East Point, Hapeville and Decatur lines.

The company has applied to the city council for franchises to run a loop on the College Park line into Alabama street. This improvement is said to be necessary because of the lack of room for the company to make a closer schedule and run trailers on Sunday afternoons and during the rush hours on week days. The company also wants a franchise to run a loop on the Hapeville line for its suburban express cars and station, which, according to President Arkwright, will enable the company to give the patrons living outside the city limits a better service.

The franchise, it is understood, for abolishing the Edgewood terminal terminus of the car line. It is said that the company is planning to run a loop into Fryor street so as to do away with the necessity of leaving the Decatur and the Edgewood cars standing in front of the Equitable building.

NEW REGULATION BILL FOR STOCK EXCHANGES

Boston, March 15.—Features of a stock exchange regulation measure, drafted for the Massachusetts legislature chamber of commerce as a substitute for several bills, were made public tonight, with the explanation that the committee had been prepared and handed to Senator Owen in accordance with his request made by members of the senate banking and currency committee when the chamber representatives were in Washington.

The Owen measure provides that the postmaster general may refuse the use to whether a stock exchange shall be closed by fraud, but in all cases where fraudulent transactions in securities appear, that the postmaster vests this authority in the proposed interstate trade commission with right of appeal to the federal courts. Under the bill, which also deals with what must be incorporated under state laws. The substitute does not require incorporation.

Before a security may be listed or dealt with on any exchange, a statement of the conditions of its incorporation for the preceding three years only is demanded by the new draft, while the Owen bill requires a like statement by each of the corporation from its beginning. Corporations whose securities are not listed with any stock exchange would be did not own or the time of the sale, also are prohibited.

Fertilizers All the Talk.

Judging from the character of the numerous inquiries received on the question of fertilizing is now engaging more of the thought and energy of farmers than is any other farm problem. In a general way the inquiries fall into one or two such in each issue of the Tuesday's edition, with such replies as appear to suit the cases. Of course, the inquiries are often more than altogether acceptable, especially when accompanied by a good-sized addressed envelope, whenever a reply is expected by mail.

But I am surprised that quite a large proportion of inquiries for a mixture, or analysis, either for a home mixture, or of a ready-made one, indicate that the inquirer thinks that his particular case requires a special formula. Of course, there are some naturally peculiar soils that call for a special treatment, and the limit of these, for a special formula to suit its peculiarities. But the very great majority of Georgia soils in the hill country of the cotton region are not peculiar in any respect and the same formula, or same quality of fertilizer, would answer for all.

The simple condition that should control, in my judgment, is that in the purchasing a guano, or the ingredients for a home mixture, is the crop that is to be grown. Cotton and corn and tobacco, and the garden vegetables do not require the same formula. Nor do they require the same ratio for sorghum, grasses and even oats and wheat and clover. The point is not what is good for corn, etc., is not generally to be used for cotton. Corn requires more nitrogen than cotton, and less potash than does cotton. Yet very many farmers buy cotton seed meal and use the same fertilizer for both these crops. And they do not succeed when thus fertilized, and perhaps the fertilizer is blamed, when it has worked profitably, but it may be and, doubtless often is, the fault of the use of the formula applied to corn would save a dollar or two a ton in cost of goods. For instance, a 16—5—2 to 3 fertilizer is a good one for cotton on the majority of old uplands in the south; but such a fertilizer would be wasteful on corn as not less than 2 per cent of nitrogen if it be used on cotton alone. Corn requires to do just as well and possibly better if but 2 per cent of nitrogen be left out. The 2 per cent of nitrogen is not less than 40 cents in every ton of such fertilizer, which means that a 16—3 fertilizer would cost $8 less per ton than a 16—5—2. The reply that the 3 units of excess nitrogen is applied to the cotton in the next following crop, for nitrogen has a way of "staying by" for more than a crop, entirely leached out, and practically lost.

Another mistake that some farmers make is in applying cotton seed meal alone, or such as contain acid phosphate, potash and nitrogen, and organic nitrogen (blood, tankage, cotton seed meal, etc.) during the growing season of the crop. According to my experience it is rarely ever advantageous to add potash, in any form, or acid phosphate, intercultivation. These crops and formula, to be applied not less than a week or two before the crop is planted. They require some time to undergo certain changes and to diffuse throughout the soil, so that the roots may reach them. If the soil is lacking in potash or acid phosphate it will not be of any benefit to the crop, and, fortunately, they will remain within reach of the roots for the following crop.

So with cotton meal, blood, tankage, etc., these should be put in the ground and worked in a week or more before planting. Of course, there are occasions when farmers may desire to apply some of these ingredients during the growing period, for instance, when the crop has failed to apply them at the proper time.

Nitrate of soda and sulphate of ammonia, for instance, should not be applied except to a growing crop—for the reasons already given. But these it is also altogether possible to add these quickly soluble ingredients during the growing season. The proper and application of them should have the closest interest at the time of planting) of providing and applying the complete fertilizer for the crop. They contain less nitrogen by as much as can be contained in the nitrate or sulphate to be applied as a top dressing. This point is often overlooked by the farmer and he applies these very soluble forms of nitrogen at the time of planting, because he failed to apply them at the proper time.

This point is often overlooked by the farmer and he applies these very soluble forms of nitrogen at the time of planting, because he failed to apply them at the proper time.

As I have more than once remarked in previous articles, these late, and especially top dressings with the use of soda are doubtless often misleading to the belief that such treatment is profitable, when in fact they may not add enough to the final outcome of the crop to pay for the material, and the late effect is to deepen the green color of the foliage, and the size of the cotton and some other plants, to encourage the rank growth, commonly called of "weed."

In my own practice—in my large garden and cotton patch—I apply before planting all the soluble nitrogen and potash that I think can be used by the crop to be grown. Of course, this may be, and top-dress and side-dress it as I see fit, according to my own judgment based on previous knowledge of the soil and the crop, and its appearance (color) and rate of growth.

For the benefit of readers who may ask of such a read but do not like away it may be well to reproduce my formula for corn and cotton, as follows:

Formula No. 1 For Corn.

	Pounds.
Acid Phosphate (14 per cent)	1,000 lbs.
Cotton seed meal (8 per cent)	1,200 lbs.
C. S. Meal (H. Gr.)	1,200 lbs.
Nitrate of Soda	40 lbs.
(or Kainit, 400 lbs.)
Total	3,440 lbs.
Analysis	7.44—(+1) 2.32—(+1) 2.32

Formula No. 2 for Cotton.

Acid Phosphate (14 per cent)	1,000 lbs.
(or if 16 per cent, 875 lbs.)
C. S. Meal (H. Gr.)	700 lbs.
Muriate of Potash	160 lbs.
(or Kainit, 400 lbs.)
Total	1,860 lbs.
Analysis	8.75—3.75—2.36.

On very sandy or piney woods soil the muriate of potash may be substituted by five or six times as much kainit, especially soils that are known to induce rust.

On fresh lands, or lowlands (plenty of humus) or highly improved soils, the percentage of C. S. Meal may be reduced by from one-fourth to one-half with good results, as the case may be.

All of the above should be bedded on broadcasted.

If desired, one-half of the cotton may be put in at time of planting and supplied by top or side-dressings of nitrate of soda at the rate of one pound of nitrate for every five pounds of cotton meal.

ALFALFA CULTURE.

To C. W. A., Atlanta, Ga.—The best time to sow alfalfa is the latter part of September, when the weeds in the land has previously been repeatedly cut by plowing and harrowing to a fine condition. But you may succeed by sowing this seed now, providing the land chosen for it is not infested with weed seed and grass roots that will be sure to choke out the young and tender alfalfa plants.

At the last harrowing, harrow in 15 to 20 pounds of seed per acre to the acre. I prefer to sow in 30-inch drills, but as I generally turn my crops on the 3-inch deep. You should also have harrowed in (before sowing the seed) 100 pounds of acid phosphate, 14 per cent acid and potash. The seed should be inoculated (or the soil if not the seed) so as to cause the production of plenty of tubercles on the roots. You, however, is not absolutely essential, if you shall have harrowed in a ton of good, well-rotted stable manure per acre, and also sowed per acre broadcast with 100 pounds of nitrate of soda after the plants are up and ready to grow. Cut the first time when plants are blooming freely and again you may use the new young shoots are putting out at the base of the plants, cut again when blooming freely, and the new shoots are again in evidence.

The first year you will not be able to cut oftener than twice or possibly thrice. Cure and cure in practically the same manner you would cure cut cowpea vines or red clover.

Seed may be had of any regular seed dealer in Atlanta, possibly in Newnan or Marietta.

Finally, I may venture to say, that the difficulties in the way of successful alfalfa culture have been rather exaggerated. I have been familiar with it and its culture—under its French name, Lucerne—more than six score years. The essentials to its successful culture are (1) a rich, deep, well-drained, loamy soil; (2) good seed, and (3) the inoculation in the field of such a good dressing of rotted stable manure and a dressing or two of nitrate of soda.

Inoculating soil is that taken from the surface of a well-established and successful alfalfa field—say 200 or 400 pounds—which should be immediately scattered over the surface and harrowed in.

COWPEAS MADE A FARMER AND HIS FAMILY RICH IN TEXAS.

A friend to the farmers and to The Constitution gives the following story:

"In passing from Atlanta to Indian Spring and Griffin I have frequently been so impressed by the fertility of the soil in Henry county, and the quality of cowpeas grown in that section that I was led to run on the heels of a story that I was told that really be of benefit to farmers in other sections where the fertility and properties of cowpeas are not so generally known and appreciated. The story is as follows: A farmer gave to each of two sons an equal number of acres of same fertility. One of these sons always put in his cowpeas in corn rows and on every wornout field or patch on his farm. He was best to sow no cowpeas, not even for the table, nor for hay. The other son, on the one who persisted in planting peas became a rich man, while the other died a poor, dark soil. The other son had lost his land—which had been sold for unpaid debts and was a poor man. I am sure you will appreciate this story, for it is true one, and I believe it will be valuable and receive more considerable weight if it be first published from one who is not himself a farmer but one who is, but who has lived in one of Georgia' made to blossom like the rose with the fertilizing influence of old-fashion cowpeas.

C. W. A.

Atlanta, Ga.

[There is no but spe of many stories that might be told of a similar character. The cowpea has often been called the "clover of the south" and is rapidly displacing it, to a considerable extent the clover of the north in the south and west.

(1) TERRACING WITH GRADES. (2) GROWING COWPEAS IN COTTON FIELDS.

To L. L. Lauderdale, Alexander City, Ala.—Answer: (1) The almost universal practice in terracing is to run the terrace or washing is to lay the terraces on a horizontal line around the hill or slope. Some farmers, however, favor the idea of giving the terrace a grade. The effect of which is to give a corresponding velocity to the water. Where the general slope of the land is very uniform and the grade is not too great, this plan may sometimes be advisable. But if not uniform the water is liable to run over and destroy the rows run, starting parallel to the lines of greatest slope. This would produce uniformity of grade and even—in places—the grade might be reversed, the water in the back breaks in the rows and forming gullies or at least washes. Under the circumstances I have always held a grade sufficient to take care of it.

(2) I am not favorably impressed with the plan of planting cotton and cowpeas in alternate rows. I certainly would not give the peas the start in planting them first. If anything would be followed to cowpeas, I prefer to use the soybeans (Mammoth Yellow) which would be best planted about June 1 to 10. On the whole, I do not see what advantage would result from the plan. Why not plant half the field in cotton and half in peas, or one field in each? Better still would be to divide your field crops (corn, cotton, peas) about as follows: One-fourth to one-third in corn (with peas at laying by) one-fourth to one-third in cotton (well fertilized—and one-third in oats (and peas) to be sown on the corn and cotton land in October and the small grain land to be followed by cowpeas to be sown in May. After the first year, follow corn with peas and soybeans, and cotton with oats and cowpeas with cotton. Of course, the land should be well fertilized—and one-third in oats (and peas) to be sown on the corn and cotton land in October and the small grain land to be followed by cowpeas to be sown in May. After the first year, follow corn with peas and soybeans, and cotton with oats and cowpeas with cotton. Of course, the land should be well fertilized with the proper fertilizers, and the applies this rotation of crops I have advocated and practiced during the cotton and conditions are admissible and even desirable. Of course, the small grain and peas may be planted two years in succession so as to bring up the land more quickly. If you follow this plan you will have to breed or buy more fattening stock or have to consume the surplus of corn, oats, pea hay, cotton seed, etc., these should be sold. You may not care to "bother" with stock cattle, hogs, etc., but it is the matter with most southern farmers.

CALCULATING ON ANALYSIS.

W. E. Smith, Wilsonville, Ala.— I am going to mix my fertilizer for cotton myself this year. Please write me something you for some information. I have a lot large enough to mix it all at once, so that I can tell how should I use to get 300 pounds of the mixture. I want to come out even, or how much cotton seed meal should I use to get 8.00-pound stock and phosphate and how much muriate potash? The stock I have on hand runs as it is 40 per cent. What should a high-grade cotton seed meal analyze? Please tell me how to figure out the number of pounds I will need for each ingredient after mixing. In other words, my in this formula I am going to mix. Of course you have given the analysis, but what I want to know is how to figure that analysis.

Answer:—You do not need a vessel of any sort in which to do the mixing. A plank floor or a smoothly swept place on the ground will do just as well as necessary.

Here's the formula and how to calculate it:

Formula No. 2 For Cotton.

	Phos. A.	Nit.	Pot.
	Lbs.	Lbs.	Lbs.
Acid phosphate	140.00
Cotton meal	19.00—140.00	0.00—	0.00
Kainit	7.00—	27.50—49.00	16.10
Muriate Pot.	1.00—	0.00—	80.00
	18.00—167.50—	49.00—	96.10

Analysis ..... 3.64— 2.72— 3.33

You see if there are 14 pounds phosphoric acid in cotton meal, there would be 20 times as much in 1,000 pounds. Made up from 1,000 pounds of cotton meal ..... 7—7—2½ and 7 times each of these figures in 1,000 pounds of kainit ..... 7—7—2½ and add up each of last three columns and divide the sum by number of tons, or by number of hundreds of pounds in the mixture.

Since a 16 per cent acid carries 10x 16 equals 80 pounds of phos. acid to the 1,000 lbs. and a 14 per cent acid only 140 pounds to the 1,000 pounds it will require 1.1 tons (2,200 pounds of 14 16 per cent acid to supply the 140 pounds of acid. Of 160 to 26, and 39 from 160 leaves 160 and therefore 121 lbs. of nitrate of soda. 121 lbs. and 135 taken from 1,000 pounds leaves 865 lbs.

This makes the formula 875 pounds of 14 per cent acid, 865 pounds of 14 per cent acid, and the whole would be 2,200 pounds instead of 2,000 pounds instead of 1,900. Now divide the 2,200 lbs. made of 1,000 pounds by 16.75 instead of 18 and you will get 1,313 lbs. of the mixture, which would be a little higher grade. Taking it by the 100-pound sack you should have 13 sacks of meal and 21 of muriate, total 182 pounds. It is hardly worth the attention of one who is not pretty good in arithmetic.

BIGGER ARMY AND NAVY WANTED BY RUSSIA

St. Petersburg, March 15.—The conference begun last night between Premier Gorevkin and his cabinet ministers and leaders of the chief parties of the Duma continued until early morning. The ministers fully explained the international situation to members of parliament and the necessity for increased naval and military credits.

It is stated that the army will be increased by 400,000 men, making the total of the first line of defence 1,700,000 men. The extra cost, it is estimated, will be $25,000,000, to spread over three years.

REPORTS ON COTTON MAY CHANGE PRICES

Census Figures on Consumption Tuesday, and Final Ginning Report Friday.

New Orleans, La., March 15.—This week the cotton market will be concerned chiefly with bureau reports. Tuesday the census bureau will issue its figures on consumption of cotton in this country and Friday it will put out the final report of the season on ginning.

Both of these reports are important and may cause wide price changes. At the end of last week traders were looking for bullish figures on consumption and rather bearish figures on ginning.

The last report on consumption put the total for the first five months of the season at 2,512,346 bales, against 2,402,760 a year ago. Bulls are confident that this lead will be maintained and possibly widened. Bears have said little about these statistics but their least conservative estimates do not put consumption much under what it was in February and March. Bulls point out that in every month of this season thus far reported on consumption has been larger than for the corresponding month of last year. They maintain that basic conditions among the mills of this country are such that continued large consumption is indicated, and that the week's report will be a record-breaker

ALL TEXAS RANGERS PLACED ON BORDER

Colquitt's "Army" Consists of Only Fifteen Men, But He Says They Are Great on Stopping Trouble.

Austin, Texas, March 15.—The entire force of Texas Rangers, totaling at present fifteen mounted men, was assigned to duty on the 800 miles of Texas-Mexican line today with the arrival of two rangers at Raymondville, Texas, in response to an appeal from fifty-three peaceful citizens of Willacy county, that formal application against cattle thieves and desperadoes.

Along with news of the rangers' disposition, Governor O. B. Colquitt made public a lengthy list of the Texas border troubles for which today was the more power to protect the boundary have been based and which explain the nature of the rangers' activities.

These incidents show the rangers as peace officers; not as an army, such as or which might cause the United States government embarrassment. Many of these incidents are comparatively petty crimes, not included within the scope of neutrality laws and hardly call for police paths of United States troops on border patrol duty. The records indicate that in handling these affairs the sometimes nip trouble in the bud before it has proceeded to the stage of international complications.

Some American Texans Hakers.

The timely arrest of a cattle or a horse thief before he has time to escape into Mexico has avoided the old-time serious consequences, such as the killing of Clemente Vergara, the American, which grew out of horse stealing. The records indicate also that many of the lawbreakers have come across the international line in raids from Mexico, some mischief-makers have been residents of border territory in sections where the Mexican population is large and have used Mexico as a refuge.

One source of extreme vexation has been inability to secure extradition after any of these marauders, whether originally from Texas or Mexico, during the past three years, governor Colquitt today estimated that in this period there have been 100 to 300 such cases in which the state has made some sort of attempt to get the accused back to Texas without success in a single instance.

The safe refuge offered in Mexico has tended to develop the old-time western bad man asafe along the border.

The sending of rangers to Raymondville was based on a petition asserting that "for the past few months cattle thieves have been depredating and several murders have been committed." With this petition, another signed by twenty-eight persons and making the same charges, was made public tonight from Sebastian, Texas. Ranger Captain J. R. Hughes, who brought these petitions with him three days ago after a personal investigation, said that an American named Howell had been killed and that several Mexicans, names unknown, were reported slain; that the killings were alleged to have grown out of depredations by persons who took refuge in Mexico and that the petitioners believed more police protection would allay the trouble. Raymondville and Sebastian are in the Brownsville section near Lyford, Texas, where rangers were sent March 3 in response to a appeal signed by forty-seven persons. Each petition made the claim that several killings and each is believed to cover the same incidents.

How Fifteen Rangers Protect.

How fifteen rangers can furnish any real protection along a border 800 miles long was explained in a statement by Captain Hughes. In some places one ranger is assigned to patrol 50 to 100 miles of border, he said. These rangers, clothed with all the police powers of both state and county officers, are feared by the trouble-makers, who know that the ranger can arrest them even on suspicion.

"The rangers," said Captain Hughes, "who are mounted and equipped like cavalrymen, can cover territory which few cavalrymen could penetrate, single-handed and without assistance, because the rangers are riding horses which never leave the ground."

These horses, it was explained, are native to the region, the country and capable of subsisting indefinitely with out regular feed on the various prickly growths which are nearly the only vegetation. The bad men believe, and with good reason, Captain Hughes said, that their arrest is infallible once a ranger overtakes him.

The present disposition of rangers on the Texas border is: Company A, J. R. Hughes, captain, El Paso; Raymondville, two men; Valeta, one; Harrills, one; Lyford, one.

Company B—J. J. Sanders, captain, Laredo, with three other men; Shiner, one; Carrizo Springs, one; Palafox, two.

Company C—Monroe Cox, captain, emergency cadre.

In ten cases during the last three years in which Governor Colquitt has acted through the state department at Washington in efforts to secure the extradition from Mexico of alleged criminals wanted in Texas, Mexico has the applications, which the Washington authorities duly presented, have been successful, according to the Texas records.

Typical of Border Trouble.

The first of these ten instances is typical of the entire trouble, for the annoyance it caused is today cropping out afresh near Laredo. This was the application on January 18, 1911, for Dionicio Martinez, alias Mendiola, accused of murder in Caldwell county, Texas. Martinez has been seen along the border of late near Nuevo, Mexico, and is accused of making secret expeditions into Texas, but thus far there have been unable to capture him.

Other requisitions were made by Texas direct on border state Mexican governors, but by many times the formal requisition was sent, Governor Colquitt simply inquired of the Mexican governor or other authorities because of the seeming hopelessness of getting action. In the case of Crispin Sanes, accused of murder, no requisition was sent, Governor Colquitt recalled, for the reason that the requisition papers sent in 1912 a request for $50 for transcription of the requisition documents into Spanish, as an indispensable part of the papers, before action in Mexico could proceed. An escaped Texas convict was reported officially from Nuevo Leon, as an officer in the federal cavalry and out of Villa and Zapata jurisdiction.

Waylaid by Mexicans.

In February, last year, Jack Howard, a federal customs inspector, was killed in Presidio county, Texas, and in the same month Pedro Bitter, another customs inspector, and Adolf Harvick, a cattle inspector for the same business, were wounded. They were waylaid by brothers of a Mexican who had been arrested charged with cattle stealing. Captain Hughes reported last week that Sly, who was again fired on in Presidio county recently and that from Pecos, a cattle buyer there at the same time, was reported officially to him and his clothing perforated by bullets.

The most recent incident regarding the Texas state department were confidential, especially those charging demands for money, because the victims said the demands had been arrested charged with "cattle stealing. Captain Hughes reported last week that Sly, who was again fired on in Presidio county recently and that from Pecos, a cattle buyer there at the same time, was reported officially to him and his clothing perforated by bullets.

Miss Burns a Clever Linguist And Musician But No Detective

The city editor sent a reporter out to interview Miss Florence Burns, daughter of William J. Burns, American's foremost detective, who is stopping at the Georgian Terrace, and ascertain whether or not she was as talented a detective as her father.

He went.

He saw Miss Burns.

She is a pretty girl—very pretty, brown-haired, flashing eyes, cosmopolitan in dress, and an excellent linguist.

And she learned this:

That she is no detective at all, but that she is an accomplished musician, and is devoting most of her time to the study of music.

That she knows nothing at all of the Bertillon finger-print system, but has once climbed the Alps, and is now imbued with a determination to cross the Blue Ridge mountains this side to the other without stopping.

Knows Nothing of Deduction.

That she knows nothing of the art of criminal detection, but has traveled Europe alone and mastered languages to founder a master of language.

Miss Burns is on her way to Miami, Fla., where she is to join her mother on an extended vacation. She has been attending Columbia college. "Most of her studies have been devoted to music. On her return, however, she intends to spend much time in Atlanta, because she believes that it is the south's most enterprising city—which nobody has dared dispute.

"Don't just go back and tell your city editor that all on earth that I know about the detective art is what my father has told me," she said, and that the only time I have ever been accused of a "detective instinct" was in detective in any manner—except being the daughter of one—was when a couple of reporters in New York once suspected one of being a private in father's custody.

"Shall I tell you about it?"

"Certainly! Please!"

A Charming Prisoner.

"Well, I was coming over from Europe after having made the journey alone. Father met me at the pier in New York. That was two years ago. It was thought at the time that he was on the trail of the theft of the Mona Lisa painting.

"Crowds of reporters had discovered him to the pier. When I arrived, I fell hysterically into his arms. I was so glad to see him that I wept with joy. The reporters discovered me weeping in his arms. They thought I was a prisoner he had taken from board ship.

"They rushed up, asking: 'Who is this prisoner, Mr. Burns. You haven't escaped her on the Mona Lisa business!' Can you give a statement of the case? And, oh, my goodness, father and I both were so aroused at it all that we could only help but laugh in the face of the newspaper men. For a long time they didn't grasp the situation. They did, later, however, and the laugh was on them. They acknowledged it, but I think some mean photographer got my picture shedding tears on father's shoulder."

Miss Burns is anxious to climb the Blue Ridge. Only a year ago she did some mountain climbing in the Alps, and has been doing a little mountaineering in Switzerland. Her hobby is mountain climbing—that is, one of them. Music is her greatest.

"We passed your Blue Ridge mountains on the way to Atlanta," she said, "and I think they are magnificent. They are grand, majestic, lofty and scenic. I think they are magnificent. I'm going to climb them. They have obsessed of the ambition to climb them. And some day I'm going to do it."

No, Not a Detective.

But she denies that she is a detective. She has never had a bit of detective experience, she declares. She has followed her father's career, however, with interest, and the business she has even been the object of threatening letters sent by those persons who sought to frighten her father.

"Once I received in San Francisco threatened to kidnap her if her father did not cease in his vigorous prosecution of a famous conspiracy in the California.

"But I wasn't ever afraid," she told, "and don't think father was in the family. It would have been a jolly lark to have been kidnaped, I guess. However, I hardly think I would like to really be subjected to such a thing as taking too many chances.

Miss Burns has taken a decided interest in the French case, which has attracted widespread interest in the United States, and has infinite faith in her father's ability to find the truth in the case.

CHURCH DEFENDED BY BISHOP KEILEY

Declares Criticisms by Alleged Ex-Nuns and Ex-Priests Disproved by the Very Lives They Lead.

Defending the Roman Catholic church against "persistent attacks," Rt. Rev. Bishop Benjamin J. Keiley, of the diocese of Savannah, in a Lenten pastoral letter, which is being read in all the churches in Georgia, asserts that the criticisms by alleged ex-nuns and ex-priests are refuted by the very lives they lead.

In beginning his epistle, the bishop refers to the persistent attacks made upon the church, declaring that there has hardly been a month since a synod, convention or conference, in which Catholics and their creed have not been bitterly assailed.

"I need scarcely refer here to the vicious and defamatory papers and magazines which are flooding the country with malicious, unfounded, calumnious and vile charges against the church of God. Not content with these efforts, we are again witnesses of the exploiting of the so-called ex-priests' and 'escaped nuns,' who under the auspices of many preachers of the sects are engaged in reaping a harvest of money by vilifying and slandering the church, its priesthood, its members and religious communities.

He said:

Were Never Priests.

"It does not seem to cause any diminution in the number and malicious activity of these calumniators to show that the so-called ex-priests and ex-priests were "never priests of the church, and more than 90 per cent of the remainder were men of grossly immoral or intemperate habits, whose shameful careers have been exposed and again exposed. I have testimony regarding fifteen of these so-called ex-priests who have lectured throughout the states. I have sworn testimony that three of these were imposters, having never been priests; six had been ordained and I have testimony from Protestant sources that one of them was grossly immoral and a drunkard, a second was a notorious drunkard, a third was a drunkard and immoral and a regular gambler, a fourth was proven to be a common thief and had assumed various names; a fifth was proven a blackmailer and slanderer, and the sixth was given the occasion of a disturbance here and gave the opportunity to a distinguished Protestant citizen of Savannah, a man of high standing and honorable life, to write these words: 'I am a Protestant and a decided, but I do not hesitate to say that I cannot understand how a Christian or a gentleman or a decent man could have been as ——— was, the author of these handbills.'

"As for the so-called ex-nuns, they were either never in a convent as members, or had been sent as inmates to one of those institutions under the charge of the angelic Sisters of the Good Shepherd, who spend their lives in the effort to reform fallen women. The most prominent of these so-called ex-nuns, who was taken up by a large number of preachers who allowed her to use their churches in denouncing the Catholic church and convents, has this unsavory career: She was never a sister in any sense, she was a common prostitute, a swindler and forger; she went under two different names at two different times; she was a hard-drinking woman, she had been confined in a lunatic asylum; she forged checks in Atlanta and spent some time in Georgia prisons at Rodmin and Tattnll; she was dismissed from the Army here from a life of shame; she had at least two living husbands, from neither of whom was she ever divorced.

Denounced the Church.

"But she was willing to give nasty lectures against sisters and convents and denunciation of Catholic church, and was accordingly made welcome by preachers in various places.

"Does it not seem incredible that our Protestant friends and neighbors will give ear to these infamous charges? We Catholics live among them and they meet us on the social and business plane, they greet us in a kindly way and when in need of our services they hesitate not to ask us; we are law-abiding citizens and our lives, I think, will bear comparison with those of non-Catholics. Our schools, our hospitals, our charities are associated with the prosperity, well-being and highest moral and material interests of our city; and in business and professional life Catholics stand as high as their Protestant fellow-citizens. I have heard from many non-Catholic friends eulogies on Father O'Neill and Father Whalen, and the records of our city show the story of the devoted charity of the Sisters of Mercy and Good Shepherd. Yet, when we are almost daily the victims of virulent abuse and maliciously false statements, where is the Protestant voice raised in our behalf?"

VOLCANO BELCHES; EARTH TREMBLES

Serious Seismic Disturbances on Japanese Island of Hondo—Many Persons Are Reported Killed.

Tokio, March 15.—A serious earthquake occurred today in the prefecture of Akita, island of Honda. A number of persons in the city of Akita were killed, and many houses destroyed or damaged. In the village of Kowakuni, which was ruined, there were many casualties.

The disturbances badly damaged railroad and telegraph lines. The volcano Asama-Yama, 90 miles northwest of Tokio, is in eruption.

Full details of the disaster have not been received, owing to the interruption to communication. Sixty bodies were found in the basin of the Omono river, where 320 houses were destroyed. The village of Kuzaneo was burned.

As a result of the earthquake, a copper mine at Tsunabato collapsed, and the fate of the 200 miners is unknown.

Simultaneous with the earthquake came terrific explosions and the bursting of flames from the volcano Asama-Yama, terrifying the inhabitants of that district.

Akita is a garrison town on the sea of Japan. It does a considerable export trade, especially in rice. The population of the city is about 30,000.

Asama-Yama is the largest active volcano in Japan. A majority of its active periods have been productive of showers of ashes only, the last great eruption was in 1783, when several villages on the north side of the mountain were obliterated by huge streams of lava. The crater is about three-quarters of a mile in circumference.

NO DATE ANNOUNCED FOR DEPARTURE OF 17TH

Up to a late hour last night no orders had been received by Fort McPherson touching upon the actual hour, today or tomorrow, at which the Seventeenth regiment is expected to leave for Mexico—and the city—probably forever.

The lack of definite information at the post as to just when the regiment is to leave for the Mexican-United States international boundary line on patrol duty has caused quite a lot of discussion among the men and officers at the post. The war department has been, in times past, known to rescind movement orders once given, and to do so quickly.

All equipment at the post has been packed, ready for instant placing aboard the troop trains. The barracks have been all but emptied of permanent barrack accommodations, such as chairs, cots, etc., as the class of equipment is not to be taken to Laredo or Eagle Pass, where the Seventeenth is bound.

U. S. POSTMASTER SLAIN BY MEXICAN OUTLAWS

Custom House and Postoffice Burned—Outrage Causes Excitement on the Border.

San Diego, Cal., March 15.—The United States customs office and postoffice at Tecate was burned last night and the postmaster, Frank V. Johnston, was shot dead by three bandits, according to advices received here tonight. Warren Widenback was wounded. Observers of the tragedy say the bandits were Mexicans.

A charred American flag was found in the ruins of Johnston's store, which also was the customs office and postoffice. A press report at daybreak in pursuit of the bandits.

Johnston, it was learned, was shot through the heart when he refused to give the combination of the safe. Eli Hott D. Johnston, his brother, sent telegrams today to Secretary Bryan, Governor Hiram W. Johnson at Sacramento, and Representative Kettner, at Washington, demanding an investigation. He placed the responsibility for the tragedy on Mexicans.

Bitter feeling along the border caused by the tragedy was intensified today when a newspaper photographer on the American side was fired at by Mexicans. He was not injured.

Major Davis, commander at Fort Rosecrans, San Diego, with several officers and a platoon of men, left for Tecate today by automobile. Major Davis said he would conduct a rigid examination and report immediately to the department commander at San Diego today.

Johnston's body was brought to San Diego today.

tended services today. The anxious open here tomorrow.

Prayers Chanted in Churches.

London, March 15.—Suffragettes today chanted prayers in Westminister Abbey, Yorkminister and the Brigham parish church for their imprisoned colleagues.

Sylvia Pankhurst has written the dean of Westminster, acquainting him with the intention of the militant suffragettes to march to the abbey next Sunday and participate in the evening service and pray for the release of their cause. She said she would be present personally and could also desire the dean to adapt the service to a special occasion for the suffragettes.

Prayers for Mrs. Pankhurst.

Glasgow, March 15.—Suffragettes rose in the cathedral during the service today and chanted, "O Lord, we beseech Thee to save Emmaline Pankhurst, Helen Crawford and all the brave women who are suffering for their faith." The congregation took no notice of the demonstration.

ROSE AT DAYBREAK, AND HE DIDN'T DIE TILL 114 YEARS OLD

Pensacola, Fla., March 15.—Isaac Conley, 114 years of age, the oldest man in Escambia county, Florida, died today. He was born in South Carolina in 1800, and was the father of 16 grandchildren, greatgrandchildren and great great-grandchildren. He attributed his old age to regular habits and up to a few days of his death he continued to work in the fields daily. His brother, who died one year ago, was two years his senior.

KILLING IS CHARGED TO STRIKE-BREAKERS

Oak Creek, Colo., March 15.—A. H. House and A. D. Perkins, strike-breakers employed at the Oak Creek mines, were arrested by Sheriff Cunningham tonight, charged with killing of one striker and seriously wounding a second in a street fight early last night. Because of high feeling here on the part of union men, the sheriff took his prisoners to Steamboat Springs.

According to Sheriff Chivington, only four men were engaged in the brawl, which was precipitated, he said, by cries of "scab" hurled at the strike-breakers by the union men.

FIVE PRIESTS KILLED BY THE MEXIC REBELS

Three Other Priests Held for Ransom and a Convent Is Burned.

New Orleans, March 15.—Five priests have been slain by rebels in the Mexican state of Durango since November last, three held for ransom, a third is missing and two, Father Nanni and a smaller church locted, according to two Catholic priests, Father Jose Moreno Madina and Father Raymon Gonzales, who arrived here today from Brownsville, Texas. Both said they had been sent from Victoria, Mexico, and received penniless and weak from three weeks' traveling.

"Three weeks ago, soldiers under Colonel Cavalero demanded money," said Father Madina. "We gave them what we had, but it was not enough. They thought more was hidden in the cathedral and becoming angered at not finding it, they took away the gold and silver vessels and burned the cathedral and building. The figure of the Savior was smashed to bits and other statuary broken and trampled under foot.

"The archbishop, Jose DeLeon, and his aged aunt were thrown into the street by the marauders," continued Father Madina. "Father Guzman died two days later and just before we left we heard the aunt was dying. The soldiers then went to the American convent, drove out the sister and two charges and set the building on fire."

Father Madina said he found five priests in the same manner as at Victoria, said Father Madina, and the rector, Father Francis, and the two priests, Antonio Bazilio and Louis Romanes, kidnaped. He said they were taken into the hills, where they are being held for a ransom of 500 pesos each, their relatives having been notified that unless the ransoms are paid the priests will be put to death. Father Madina said five priests had been killed by rebels since they entered Tamaulipas last November.

BOY HELD ON CHARGE OF ROBBING A STORE

A 13-year-old white youth, who gives his name as Joe Davis, and his reputed home as Sweet Mill road, was captured Monday morning, about 6:30 o'clock in the act, it is alleged, of breaking into the grocery store of J. F. McNair at 291 Grant street. The boy was removing canned goods to a nearby vacant lot, when he was taken custody by Call Officer Jones, according to the police.

Just prior to this burglary, the Weinberg grocery store at 92 South Pryor street was entered after the glass of the front door had been broken, and numerous articles were stolen, it is thought by the police that this also was the work of this youth.

When Do Children Begin to Dream?

Opinions differ widely as to the age at which children begin to dream. G. Compayre maintains that dreaming has been observed in the fetus; but this relex action is always a possible explanation of the observed facts. S. de Cancita found that in boys of 13 only one out of eight said that he dreamt seldom, as against four out of seven at the age of 6; but we cannot exclude the possibility that dreams were frequent but forgotten. Lay observer includes an authority, N. W. Thomas, in the new Encyclopedia Britannica, the observation suggests that dreams appear comparatively late. Individual cases of dreaming, or possibly of waking hallucination, are known as early as 2 years, according to Sante de Sanctis dreams occur before the fifth year, but are seldom remembered; as a rule the conscious dream age begins with the fourth year, speech or movement, however, in earlier years, though they may be attributed to reflex action, are more probably due to dreams.

Historic Panama.

Becoming the Pacific gateway to the Panama canal is not the only claim which the city of Panama will have on the attention of the future historian. Its picturesque history made it notable at an early date. "Founded in 1519 by Pedro Arias de Avila, Panama is the oldest European town on the mainland of America," says the new Encyclopedia Britannica. "In the sixteenth century the city was the strongest Spanish fortress in the New World, excepting Carthagena, and gold and silver were brought hither by ship from Peru and were carried across the isthmus to Chagres, but as Spain's fleets even in the Pacific were more and more often attacked in the seventeenth century, Panama became less important, though it was still the chief Spanish port on the Pacific. In 1671 the city was destroyed by Henry Morgan, the buccaneer; it was rebuilt in 1673 by Alfonso Mercadez de Villacorta about 5 miles west of the old site and nearer the roadstead. The city has often been [illegible] by earthquake."
