GIANT CONTEST OF TWO DENOMINATIONS IS IMPENDING HERE

Baptists and Methodists of Atlanta District, Each With 30 Churches and 12,000 Scholars, May Meet

CHALLENGE OF BAPTISTS WILL BRING ON THE FRAY

World-Stirring Engagement for Greater Good of Man, Grows From Contest Between Two Churches

Atlanta, famed in Sunday school circles just now as the scene of a compelling contest between the Bible schools of two individual churches, is about to witness a similar contest between two whole denominations of churches.

A gigantic Sunday school contest, of proportions justifying the world's attention, engaging thirty Methodist Sunday schools in and around Atlanta against thirty Baptist Sunday schools in the same territory, and pitting at the start some 24,000 scholars and officers on both sides in a tremendous campaign for the betterment and increased usefulness of all, is in the air and undoubtedly will result from the spirit of progress among Sunday schools which the Second Baptist and the First Christian schools have helped to arouse in the south with their own contest.

On Sunday week the contest between these two schools will end. On this coming Sunday morning, one week preceding the end, they will hold a joint meeting in the auditorium to cheer each other on to victory—each side being perfectly willing to lose if the fight is but glorious.

That meeting itself will be great enough. The occasion of it will be conspicuous in Sunday school annals.

GREATER EVENTS COMING.

But even before it assembles, there falls the shadow of a coming event which will eclipse utterly both this meeting and this contest. From them a great event springs. In them is its origin.

Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, in Antioch church, the Baptist Sunday school workers of the Atlanta territory will hold their periodical meeting.

At that meeting will be sounded the first note of the challenge that is to pit one great denomination against (and yet, with) another, for the extension of good work among them. It will be a challenge to compete for new members and attendance of old ones and promptness of all.

At that meeting the Sunday school workers will call, to assemble on the following Sunday, a conference of the Baptist Sunday school superintendents and the Baptist pastors of Atlanta.

Everything has been arranged. Very little has been said. But The Journal secures its information from an authoritative source.

Now there is certain to be a full attendance at that meeting in Antioch church Sunday afternoon.

OF SURPRISING MAGNITUDE.

The magnitude of this movement, whose enthusiasm would permeate the whole of Atlanta, is nothing short of striking.

What the Methodists will think of it, remains to be seen. The challenge has yet to be passed. But the Baptists doubtless will find that they have tackled a worthy and right sturdy training partner. There will not be any challenge flung around loosely for the trashman to cart away, after the Baptists have laid it down at the Methodists' door.

But the genesis of this should not be forgotten.

It is in the present—and it's quite big enough to merit all the consideration that can be given to it.

The meeting Sunday of the champion Sunday schools which have grown up in the Second Baptist and the First Christian churches because of the contest between them, is going to be a great big affair.

BIG MEETING SUNDAY.

The auditorium may not hold the crowds that will go there. The combined enrollment of the two schools now is approximately 6,500, and every member is expected to be in his place next Sunday. The whole auditorium, with the exception of the second balcony, has been reserved for them. The problem will be to seat the crowds of visitors from other schools of the south.

Expectation is that hundreds cannot be admitted at all to the meeting. The "movie" men, directed by J. M. Marentette, representing the Consolidated Film company, will be on the job to-day, which the rest of the two schools for the "animated weeklies" of the land. Fred Patterson, of the First Christian school, will have the "movie" men in his automobile and run them up and down the long line as it marches from the capitol grounds across the Washington street viaduct to the auditorium. The schools will assemble in their respective churches at 9:30 o'clock, and march from there to the capitol grounds.

On the Washington street side of the capitol they will pose for their photographs, and there the "movie" men will begin to catch them.

SOUTH'S BIGGEST CHORUS.

There will be accompaniment by Dr. Percy Starnes upon the giant organ, to the hymns that the schools will sing in the auditorium, their chorus forming the biggest that ever has sung anywhere in the south.

Announcement of the organization of the First Christian's marching body was made Friday. Richard A. Burnett, the furniture manufacturer, city park commissioner, has been made grand marshal of the First Christian marchers, and has named as his aides Homer Hall, of the C. J. Kamper Grocery company, and H. W. Quinn, of the United States prison staff.

The stake of this contest between the Second Baptist and the First Christian is a picnic, to be given by loser to winner.

No one can surmise a stake of fitting proportions for the mammoth contest

HUFF TO SEND CONGRESS FIERY ATTACK ON SPEER

Will Embody Views in Pamphlet as Grounds for Impeachment

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., May 2.—Col. W. A. Huff has notified the public in a statement, issued Friday that within the next ten days he will distribute a pamphlet, containing a severe attack on Judge Emory Speer. This pamphlet will embody charges to be later presented to congress as ground for the impeachment of Judge Speer.

Since he wrote Judge Speer a fiery letter last July, which resulted in a contempt of court rule being issued against him, Colonel Huff says he has secured evidence which he claims will support his charges.

Judge Speer yesterday signed a final decree in the fourteen-year old bankruptcy litigation. Although this decision will be appealed, Colonel Huff will in the meantime publish another letter to the judge. A part of Colonel Huff's statement today reads:

"I beg to assure the public that, unless the printing presses in Atlanta and Macon all break down during the next ten days, there will be something doing here, a little outside of the usual."

"In this connection, I beg to call attention to the fact that for nearly fourteen years the newspapers, the lawyers, and the federal court officials of Macon have busied themselves in keeping the Huff house case well advertised and during all these years, nothing has ever been written for publication by my attorney or myself—except the two communications sent by me last July to Judge Speer. One was in the form of a personal letter addressed to him, and the other a communication addressed 'To whom it may concern.'

"It is also proper for me to state that only a portion of my letter to the judge was published at the time. The balance of the letter together with all other communications will now be placed before the public in pamphlet form. My time to be heard from has arrived. That I undertake to do my full duty by the subject in hand, my friends may rest assured."

The auditorium was ruined, the loss reaching into the thousands.

Outside of slight damage, the municipal building escaped.

Whiskers and Bald Heads Figure in a Congressional Tilt

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Whiskers figured conspicuously in an interchange of personalities between Representative Thomas, of Kentucky, Representative Mann, of Illinois, and others in the house today while the tariff bill was pending.

Mr. Thomas, criticising the remarks by some of the minority leaders amid convulsive laughter, referred to Republican Leader Mann as "the whiskered gentleman from Illinois," to Representative Fordney, of Michigan, as the "hairless wonder from Michigan," and Representative Murdock, of Kansas, as "the gentleman from Kansas who sports the sunset locks around the house."

Mr. Thomas advised Mr. Mann to get shaved and asserted that the minority leader consumed volumes of the Congressional Record with his "mixed metaphors and insipid nothingness, and so cost the government possibly $10,000 since he has been rattling around on that side of the house."

Mr. Mann ended the incident by saying that Mr. Thomas has hair on his brain, but none on the top of his head."

"The gentleman from Kentucky, Mr. Mann added, "says I am bewhiskered. That is true, but at least I am not bewhisked."

MILLIONAIRE FIGHTS DUEL WITH A BANDIT IN PULLMAN BERTH

Lone Bandit Falls From Train With Two Bullet Wounds Inflicted by Jesse M. Short, Mine Owner, of Joplin, Mo.

RICH MAN SERIOUSLY WOUNDED BY ROBBER

Trail of Blood for One Mile Through the Woods to River Is Left by Robber Who Escaped by Taking a Boat

(By Associated Press.)

KANSAS CITY, May 2.—Robbery of the Joplin millionaire, Jesse M. Short, was the primary object of the giant bandit who held up a Kansas City Southern passenger train in the Kansas City suburbs early today, according to the police theory.

After a pistol fight with Mr. Short in the Pullman the robber fell off the train wounded, carrying $1,000 of Short's money. The mine owner was left lying in his berth with three bullets in his body. Physicians say Short will recover.

According to a telegram sent the police today from Grand View, Mo., by C. G. Gibson, conductor of the train, the total amount obtained was $1,100 in money and a diamond. Of this, Gibson said Mr. Short lost $1,000; W. J. Scafer, Neck City, Mo., $65, and F. A. Seaman, Eureka Springs, Ark., $35 and a diamond stud.

Conductor Gibson said the robber must have been wounded seriously, as he left clear trails of blood.

Bleeding from wounds he received in a pistol battle with Short, the robber left a trail of blood as he fled. This enabled officers to follow his tracks until he arrived at the Blue river, almost a mile from the point where he jumped from the train. Here the trail stopped abruptly and his pursuers expressed the belief that he continued his flight in a boat.

The train was just pulling out of the depot when a tall man ran out of the darkness of the railroad yards and climbed up the steps of the observation car. He had a handkerchief over the lower part of his face and carried two pistols.

Oscar Allen, a negro porter, who saw him board the train, rushed out and ordered him away.

The robber covered him with his pistol and said:

USES NEGRO PORTER.

"I'm going to put over a trick here. You sit down there and be quiet. I will need you."

After the train had proceeded about three miles the robber ordered Allen to go ahead of him through the train. In the sitting room of the observation car were W. J. Seafe, of Neck City, Mo., and F. A. Seamba, of Eureka Springs, Ark. The robber's voice trembled as he demanded their valuables, but they offered no resistance and gave him money and jewelry amounting to about $200.

Preceded by the frightened negro, the robber then entered the chair car, where there were about a dozen passengers, all men.

"Hold up your hands," was the command with which the robber greeted them. The passengers readily complied. The bandit passed along collecting their money and jewelry.

The rear door of the chair car was accomplished within five minutes and the surprised passengers, obeyed the final injunction of the robber to sit down and remain quiet.

The Pullman car was entered next. After robbing two passengers from whom he secured small amounts of money, the robber came to the berth occupied by Short.

MILLIONAIRE SHOOTS BANDIT.

"Give me your money," the robber demanded in a whisper as he shook the sleeping man. When awakened sufficiently to realize the import of the command, Short handed over $1,000 and a large diamond stud. As the robber turned to leave, Short seized a revolver and fired through the curtains. The robber returned the fire and both men emptied their weapons, each shooting blindly through the curtains, which were perforated by almost a dozen bullets. One bullet struck Short's forehead, another went through an arm and a third lodged in his knee.

Short fell back in his berth and the robber fled toward the rear of the train. Passengers in the other cars, aroused by the shots, followed him. They saw him back out of the door of the observation car and drop from the train, which was just being brought to a stop. He left blood stains in the aisles and on the car platform and the passengers followed to where he badly hurt. It was believed that two of the bullets fired by Short struck the bandit.

THE BAD BOY OF THE WEST

WOOL SCHEDULE WILL BE REACHED BY NIGHT

House Will Consider Cotton and Wool Before the Day Passes

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The fight over the proposed reduction of duties on citrus fruits opened today's debate on the tariff bill in the house. Despite the pressing of the bill as rapidly as possible, the agricultural schedule, perhaps the vehicle of the last vigorous opposition by the minority, had not been finished at last night's session.

The schedules relating to wines, spirits and beverages, cotton, wool, silks, paper and sundries were all in sight early today as likely to be acted upon before the close of tonight's session, except in the contingency of an unexpected protracted struggle against free raw wool.

The California delegation in the house opposes the proposed cutting of the rates on lemons, limes, oranges and other citrus fruits, which it claims would be injurious to their industry and open the gates to the foreign fruit industry.

The main opposition is to the provision that lemons in packages exceeding five cubic feet or in bulk shall be taxed one-half of one per cent a pound. This is a cut of 50 per cent in the present tariff and the representatives of the citrus growing districts have been on guard against letting it pass without strenuous protest.

Attempts by Representative Knowland and Hayes, of California, to raise the rates on figs, raisins and olives failed. The citrus fruit paragraph brought a flood of amendments from the Republicans and Progressives in the California delegation. All were defeated.

Representative Murdock, the Progressive leader, gave notice that when the administrative provisions of the bill are reached he would propose an amendment for creation of a "trial, not sham," tariff commission.

"The people of the United States," declared Murdock, "believe that here is waged the closest contested battle on the tariff. It is a battle, but a sham battle."

SULZER STOCK EXCHANGE BILL KILLED IN SENATE

(By Associated Press.)

ALBANY, N. Y., May 2.—The senate judiciary committee voted today to report adversely the bill which would compel the incorporation of the New York stock exchange. The measure was recommended by Governor Sulzer and has passed the lower house.

The senate by a vote of 34 to 8 adopted the report, killing the legislation.

MANY JOIN GENERAL STRIKE IN JERSEY

PATERSON, N. J., May 2.—A general strike of laborers in four counties of New Jersey got underway today when several thousand men affiliated with the general laborers' international union failed to report for work. Leaders of the strikers assert that 15,000 men will be out by Monday. The laborers demand an increase of wages from $1.75 to $2 a day.

Good-bye Waycross Dogs

WAYCROSS, Ga., May 2.—Effective today, city policemen will enforce the dog ordinance, the official dog catcher having been dismissed yesterday. The city will save $60 a month by this plan, but it is not expected to work well, as the police have enough else to do without tagging around chasing dogs all day.

ATLANTIANS OPEN HOMES TO PRESBYTERIANS OF THE U. S.

Generous Response to Call of Ladies Upon Their Own Church Members Shows Home Entertainment for 253 Added in One Day—Baptists and Methodists Close, One With 96, Other With 97

One day's progress in the canvass for home entertainment among other denominations for 500 of the 1,500 commissioners who will attend the Presbyterian joint assemblies, resulted in the listing of accommodations for 253 of them.

They are included in the reports of the majority of the subcommittees that were at work Thursday. Other subcommittees are yet to be heard from upon that day's results. These workers, all of them ladies of the several leading denominations of Atlanta, were busy throughout the day, making a home-to-home call upon the members of their own churches.

"The ladies found it impossible to cover the whole territory in a day," said J. K. Orr, general chairman of the committee arranging for the coming of the Presbyterian host on May 15. "Far from exhausting their resources, they found that they hardly could begin to realize upon them, and there remain even more homes available among the 'possibilities' on their own lists, than they have secured already."

Friday, another beautiful day as to the weather, found the numerous subcommittees of the ladies at their task again.

A spirit almost of rivalry had developed among the denominations Friday morning—a rivalry to surpass others in cordiality toward the visiting Presbyterians.

The ladies who were busy upon the canvassing work, found this spirit aiding them immensely, preparing a quick and cordial response to their invitations.

The closeness of this rivalry was manifest in the totals reported Friday morning, showing that the Baptists of Atlanta had offered home entertainment for 96 of the commissioners and that the Methodists had offered to accommodate 97.

Following is a summary of the reports in hand Friday morning:

SOLICITOR DORSEY IS MAKING INDEPENDENT PROBE OF PHAGAN CASE

Outside of Solicitor's Activity There Have Been No Developments Since the Suspects Were Transferred to Tower

GROUNDLESS RUMORS DENIED BY OFFICIALS

Chief Lanford's Busy Running Down Tips—Coroner's Inquest Will Be Resumed on Monday Afternoon at 2

THE Atlanta Journal has published every fact and development in connection with the mysterious murder of Mary Phagan. The Journal will continue to print news of further developments and additional evidence as the investigation proceeds. No fact has been suppressed nor will any news relating to the hunt for solution of the crime be withheld from the public. Many silly reports about a confession having been made by one or both of the prisoners held on suspicion in the case have been circulated, but they are without the slightest foundation.

AN INDEPENDENT INVESTIGATION.

Forces in the employ of the solicitor general, Hugh M. Dorsey, are making an independent investigation of the Phagan murder case, it was learned Friday.

The solicitor general refuses to state just how many men he has at work on the mystery or who they are. They have developed nothing, however, which he is willing to give out for publication.

The city was filled with foolish rumors throughout the morning Friday and officials were called upon to deny dozens of groundless reports.

Coroner Paul Donehoo, who has more than 100 witnesses subpoenaed, declares that the inquest will certainly be resumed at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. The coroner says that the investigation is as thorough and exhaustive as it is possible to make it and every report that reaches him is being probed.

"It is not surprising," said the coroner, "that the mystery has not been solved by this time and the fact that the crime cannot now be laid at the door of any individual. In many instances, where the detectives have had as little to start with as in this case, it has taken them months to finally establish the guilt of the right party."

MANY DETECTIVES AT WORK.

In addition to the city detectives, the Pinkertons employed by the National Pencil company, and the officers employed by the solicitor general, it is said that many other private detectives are working on the mystery.

Colonel Thomas B. Felder has been employed by a number of citizens living in the vicinity of the home of the slain girl, to assist the state in the case, and while he is not able, no information it is reported that he has a private detective agency trying to solve the mystery.

Solicitor Dorsey was in conference on Friday with a number of the city detectives, who have been assigned to the task of finding Mary Phagan's murderer, and the fact that they are actively entered the case is considered the most important development of Friday.

There will certainly be no grand jury action in the matter, however, until Monday. The grand jury, which has been on duty for the past two months, was discharged Friday, and another grand jury will not be organized until Monday.

DETECTIVES NOT TALKING.

Following the transfer of Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil factory, and Newt Lee, night-watchman, to the county jail from police headquarters on coroner's warrants late Thursday afternoon, and the release of J. M. Gantt and Arthur Mullinax, Chief of Detectives Lanford has issued instructions to his men to talk with no one about the case, and to make direct reports to him. The chief

CHINA IS FORMALLY RECOGNIZED BY U. S.

With President Wilson and Secretary Bryan Away From Capital Recognition Given

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The new Chinese republic was formally recognized today by the United States. Charge Williams, at Pekin, cabled that he had delivered the formal recognition, as he was authorized to do upon complete organization of the new government.

This government's action has created an interesting international situation. It brings to the point the intentions of the five other powers, parties to the six-power loan negotiation, from which the United States recently withdrew, announcing its purpose to recognize China and urging the others to do so.

It is known that some of them at least required more than a mere organization of a national legislature and that they originally were disposed to await installation of a constitutional president.

On the other hand, the recent action of Yuan Shi Kai in concluding a loan for $125,000,000 with the five-power group is expected to prove a powerful influence to these governments to support Yuan Shi Kai by joining in Chi na's recognition.

The formal recognition of the United States was extended when Charge Williams delivered to President Yuan Shi Kai the following message from President Wilson:

WILSON'S MESSAGE.

"The government and people of the United States of America having abundantly testified their sympathy with the people of China upon their assumption of the attributes and powers of self-government, deem it opportune at this time, when the representative national assembly has met to discharge the high duty of setting the seal of full accomplishment upon the aspirations of Chinese people, that I extend, in the name of my government and of my countrymen, a greeting of welcome to the new China thus entering into the family of nations.

"In taking this step I entertain the confident hope and expectation that in perfecting a republican form of government, the Chinese nation will attain to the highest degree of development and well being and that under the new rule all the established obligations of China which pass to the provisional government will in turn pass to and be observed by the government established by the assembly."

YUAN'S RESPONSE.

President Yuan Shi Kai responded:

"In the name of the republic of China I thank you most heartily for the message of recognition. The expression of greeting and welcome which it conveys at once testifies to the American spirit of mutual helpfulness, and adds another brilliant page to the history of seventy years of uninterrupted friendly intercourse between China and the United States.

"Though unfamiliar with the republican form of government, the Chinese people are yet fully convinced of the soundness of the principles which underlies it and which is so luminously represented by your glorious commonwealth. The sole aim of the government which they have established therefore is and will be to preserve this form of government and to perfect its workings."

COLUMBUS PLANS FOR VIADUCT OVER TRACKS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COLUMBUS, Ga., May 2.—At a meeting of representatives of the Central of Georgia Railway company, the Columbus Railroad company, and the city authorities this afternoon, Mayor Chappell is expected to issue an ultimatum to the two railroads in regard to the construction of a viaduct to do away with the dangerous crossings leading from the city to Wynnton, a fashionable residential section of Columbus.

The proposed viaduct is to cost in the neighborhood of $300,000, according to the engineers, and it is proposed that these lines and the city share the cost.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The Carranza forces claim all the territory about Torreon by occupation.

Confidential agents of the Constitutionalist movement here today received telegrams from Governor Carranza declaring he never would accept Felix Diaz as a compromise candidate for president, but would continue his fight.

Federal General Aubert Joins Carranza Forces

(By Associated Press.)

EAGLE PASS, Tex., May 2.—Officials of the Carranza regime announced from the constitutional headquarters at Pudzas Negros, today that General Albert, the Huerta leader in northwestern Mexico, has joined forces with Governor Carranza.

Federal Gunboat Shells Coast Town of Empalme

(By Associated Press.)

NOGALES, Ariz., May 2.—Insurgent forces evacuated Empalme today, after which the Mexican gunboat Guerrero began shelling the California gulf town, preliminary to a land movement from Guaymas, where the federal garrison was strongly reinforced yesterday. At Empalme are many American railway men, including Superintendent J. H. Temple, of the Southern Pacific of Mexico.

Forces in Chihuahua Loyal to Felix Diaz

(By Associated Press.)

EL PASO, May 2.—Federal forces in Chihuahua state are not expected to turn against the Huerta government unless General Felix Diaz should reach an agreement with the revolutionists. Constitutionalist agents here believe, however, that General Trucy Aubert, the federal commander in Coahuila and Nuevo Leon is more ant to make a direct understanding with the insurgents.

Arrivals from Coahuila report that General Aubert has done everything but actually assist the Carrancistas who are not prone to press the campaign against the federals for that reason. But the situation in Chihuahua is different, largely owing to the strong feeling aroused against General Antonio Rabago on account of the killing of Abraham Gonzalez, the old governor.

Edwardo Hay, colonel of insurgents under Madero, arrived here today from San Antonio. Hay, who is considered one of the strongest organizers of the constitutionalist movement, will form representative committees along the border to deal with the political workings of the movement.

Bull in Ring Shakes Dart from Neck Into Heart of Spectator

(By Associated Press.)

VALENCE, Department of the Drome, France, May 2.—An infuriated fighting bull in the ring here today shook its head so violently in trying to rid itself of the steel tipped darts with which the banderilleros had pierced its shoulders and neck that one of the darts was torn out of the flesh and hurled among the spectators in the amphitheater. It penetrated the heart of a young man, who was instantly killed. A moment later the matador killed the bull.

MRS. PRESTON OPPOSES VOTES FOR WOMEN

(By Associated Press.)

TRENTON, N. J., May 2.—Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, of Princeton, the former Mrs. Grover Cleveland, was elected vice president of the New Jersey Association Opposed to Women Suffrage, at the annual meeting here yesterday.

Experience Gained While In The Drug Business

I have been troubled more or less in the last five years with kidney trouble and from the experience I gained while in the drug business and from different cases where I have sold Swamp-Root with perfect satisfaction to those who purchased it, and as I never had a single complaint regarding the medicine while I was in business, I was in a position to know that it was a great preparation and it did not fail me when I used it myself. It has certainly afforded me great relief at all times that my kidneys have troubled me and I would not be without it. I always recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to my friends as I believe it to be a medicine of great curative value in the diseases for which you recommend it.

Sincerely,

D. A. KOONCE,

Personally appeared before me, this 13th of September, 1909, D. A. Koonce, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

GET AWAY FROM LAST YEAR'S CATALOGUE IF YOU WISH TO WIN

The Campaign Editor had the use of last year's Catalogue brought forcibly to his mind yesterday by a lady contestant who called at the Booklovers' Headquarters for some information. She acknowledged that she had not read many of the Campaign stories this year, relying on her knowledge of the plan worked out last year. And working with that idea, it was only natural for her to suppose that last year's Catalogue was all right in this Campaign, until she finally discovered a number of possible titles to fit this year's pictures were not in her Catalogue at all. When the matter was explained to her, she purchased one of the new catalogues.

We have made that matter plain to our stories and ads, and did not suppose there was one of the old contestants who did not thoroughly understand that last year's catalogue would not be of any use to them; in fact, it would be misleading to them and possibly cause them to turn in a great many incorrect answers. We hope all of our contestants who are trying to go through this Campaign with the old catalogue, will come in or send into The Journal office for the new Official Catalogue. With the aid of the new Catalogue, and your right to ten answers with each picture, there is no good reason why you cannot win one of the prizes. With the proper effort you may take home the $1,000 in gold. Remember $1,000 in Gold only weighs 44 pounds, so you will not have any trouble in carrying it and you can do wonders with it.

BOOKLOVERS' QUERIES

Manager Booklovers' Campaign, Atlanta Journal.

Dear Sir: Please answer following questions through your columns and greatly oblige:

1. Can the same title be used for more than one picture when same scene a possible answer to more than one pictures? Yes.
2. When either Title or Author's name is incorrectly printed in the Title Catalogue can same be used as listed? Yes.
3. Is it possible to ask regarding the scenery in any picture when same is too vaguely drawn by the artist, such as Ice or Snow or Rocks? Yes.
4. If a winning title has been used by more than one author as the title of his work, will it be necessary to list both, thus increasing the number of guests rather unnecessarily? No.
5. Will the pictures all actually suggest some title, or will there be some "catch" pictures? Yes; all pictures fairly represent titles.

Thanking you for your kindness in answering above at your earliest convenience,
A CONTESTANT.

Inquirer: Last year's Catalogue will not do in this Campaign. It would be a waste of your time to go through this Campaign depending on the old Catalogue for titles.

FRAUDS IN PENSION ROLLS, DECLARES JURY

Grand Jury Returns Presentments—County Institutions and Officials Praised

The Fulton county grand jury, which has been in session for the past term, adjourned Friday, after making "presentments" in which a good word was said for practically every county institution and many of the officials came in for a share of praise.

Frauds are undoubtedly existing in the pension rolls, however, the grand jury declared in its report, and it is utterly impossible for the grand jury to ascertain the status of the pension rolls in the county. Relative to pensions the report said:

There can be no doubt about more or less frauds existing in these rolls, and while the law gives the grand jury power to subpena and examine witnesses touching the validity of claims for pensions, etc., we do not believe this power has ever yet been exercised, and this grand jury, like its predecessors, have shrunk before the undertaking.

We recommend that an act be passed by the general assembly taking this matter out of the hands of the grand jury, and appointing a pension commissioner, or requiring some county official to review the rolls at stated intervals, giving him power to subpena and examine witnesses, etc.

25,000 J. P. CASES.

Interesting among the statistical figures brought out by the grand jury was the statement that more than 25,000 cases, mostly of a civil nature, have been brought before the justice courts of the city. The jury had no criticism of the justice courts, but recommended like other juries have done that the system be abolished and a central municipal court be established.

Contrary to previous reports the grand jury had no criticism of the affairs at the county jail. It was found, the report said, in a clean and sanitary condition.

The unusual conditions arising from the change from the fee to the salary system are being rapidly adjusted, according to the report.

The report recommends that padded cells be provided in the jail for the incarceration of insane people, who are liable to injure themselves in an ordinary cell.

The usual recommendation for more stringent laws regulating pawn and junk shops were incorporated in the report.

JUDGE MISREPRESENTED.

After the presentments of the jury had been read, Judge John T. Pendleton, who discharged the grand jury, referred to the mention of the salary system law and took occasion to rap the newspapers.

It had been stated in a morning paper that Judge Pendleton had held that the salary system law was illegal and had been reversed, according to a rumor, by the supreme court. As a matter of fact, the jurist held the law as valid and constitutional, and he so stated to the jury. The supreme court has not yet handed down its decision in the case.

Judge Pendleton then referred to the articles about the Ollie Taylor case, and declared that the mistaken impression given the whole United States by these articles can never be corrected.

John Philip Sousa Will Participate in Brookhaven Shoot

John Phillip Sousa, noted bandmaster, and crack amateur trap shooter, will be the attraction at the opening shoot of the Brookhaven Gun club Saturday afternoon along with four professional trap shooters.

Mr. Sousa, who is on his way to the southern handicap shoot at Montgomery, will arrive in Atlanta Friday night and will be the guest of John Lester. He is intensely interested in shooting and is said to be as great a shot as he is bandmaster.

George W. Maxwell, the world's champion one-armed trap shooter, who last year beat even every two-armed man in the United States, except one, will shoot as a representative of the Remington Arms United Metallic Cartridge company. H. D. Gibbs, also an expert professional, will shoot, and Walter Huff, crack shot of the Du-Font Powder company, will also be present. Charles E. Goodrich will shoot as the representative of the "Deadshot" Powder Mills.

In addition to the professionals there will be of course the members of the gun club and their guests. The shoot will begin at the club about 2:30 in the afternoon.

ZUBER BOY WILL BE TRANSFERRED TO TOWER

The plea of his mother and his aged grandmother gained for Earl Zuber Thursday afternoon an order from Governor Brown to transfer him from the chaingang to the Fulton county jail, pending an investigation as to his sanity.

Earl Zuber is the eighteen-year-old boy who was recently sentenced to twelve months in the chaingang for stabbing a man at a ball game at Ponce de Leon park.

His relatives claim that he is irresponsible and that he should be sent to the state asylum for the insane.

COSMOPOLITAN LIFE HAS ANNOUNCED FOR BUSINESS

Insurance Company Has Very Strong Backing of Well Known Financiers

There is published Friday the first statement of the Cosmopolitan Life Insurance company of Atlanta, Ga., which begins business under the most favorable auspices and with strong financial backing.

This statement, submitted in detail, has received the approval of the insurance commission of Georgia, and upon it license has been issued to the company of date May 1, 1913. Under this license it has already actively begun business.

The company begins business with actual available assets of $268,575.70, of which $160,056 is capital stock and surplus, and $108,519.70 undivided profits acquired through the purchase of the assets of the old company.

In addition to the foregoing splendid financial showing, the company is said to have over $2,000,000 of outstanding insurance upon its books acquired from the old company, with no agency charge against it. At the most conservative value as an asset, this is said to be worth to the company at least $50,000.

One of the most remarkable features in connection with the organization of the Cosmopolitan Life Insurance company is that its entire capital stock, it is said, subscribed at two for one, that is $100 to surplus for each $100 of stock, was sold, chiefly through the efforts of James O. Wynn, the new company's president, without one penny of charge against it. It is most unusual to see a life insurance company organized and started in business without a considerable percentage being paid for the sale of stock; but in this instance, it is said that every dollar paid in for stock and surplus has gone right into the company's treasury.

Another interesting as well as strengthening feature is the $108,519.70 of undivided profits. This does not include $127,478.62 of stock notes which the company holds and upon which it is estimated $50,000 will be realized. Thus while it was sold at two for one the company points out that this will make the book value of the company's stock from the start, three for one.

The Cosmopolitan Life Insurance company, of Atlanta, Ga., is a new company. It has no connection whatever with the old company of the same name and has had none except to purchase its assets at public sale.

As a further evidence of the faith of the stockholders in the new organization and its possibilities, they state that on the day of organization they subscribed to more than $50,000 of life insurance in the company against which there will be no commission charges.

President Wynn is recognized throughout the south as one of the most capable and successful insurance managers. He has a wide circle of friends and acquaintances, and it is not unusual that the company should have had many applications for agencies from men of the highest grade in Georgia and other southern states. The officers believe that within a very short time the company will have a strong agency force at work.

It is stated that the purpose of the company to be as liberal as possible with its agents and policy holders consistent with the law and careful management, but it is determined that conservatism shall mark the conduct of its business, and the well known Atlanta insurance men and financiers who are back of it give every assurance of safety in this respect.

THEATERS

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
LYRIC—"Billy, the Kid."
ATLANTA—"A Butterfly on the Wheel."
BIJOU—Vaudeville and pictures.

There will be but four more performances that will record the re-establishment of vaudeville at the busy Forsyth, and if the attendance keeps up to the pace that has been set since Monday—and it appears that it will be eclipsed—the season is going to start with a record that is going to be hard to follow.

All the acts are pleasing, the bill collectively is one of the best of the season of vaudeville, and there are features that are returning on Saturday night to fill honor positions in the Broadway vaudeville houses.

Coming next week, commencing with matinee on Monday, will be a bill headed by Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, one of the best acts of modern vaudeville. This company of seven girls and eight boys, all of whom have been trained by the favorite song writer, will present the same act that has been a great card all this season in New York and Chicago. The idea is founded on the cabaret craze in New York and Mr. Edwards has arranged new song numbers and new ideas that will make the headliner a drawing card that will have an extreme value.

The regular theatrical season at the Lyric will be brought to a close on Saturday night. There will be just three more performances of "Billy the Kid," and the cordial reception that has been given this play during the week doubtless will bring good audiences for the remainder of the engagement. "Billy the Kid" is a melodrama pure and simple, with plenty of thrills and dramatic climaxes, and judging from the applause that is heard nightly at the Lyric, patrons of this house are enjoying the performances thoroughly. "Billy the Kid" will be the closing attraction at the Lyric, which will be closed temporarily pending the organization of a splendid stock company to present the very best plays that have been recent successes in New York.

Miss Billy Long and the members of her company at the Atlanta have returned to the city after two nights, and will be seen in "A Butterfly on the Wheel" again tonight. This sensational divorce play has scored a tremendous hit, and the advance sale for tonight, Saturday's matinee and Saturday night, indicates that large crowds will see each performance. The matinee is at 25 cents, and a packed house is certain to greet the players.

Next week the company will be seen in the first coedy of the engagement, a play that has been seen here but one time, "The Girl from Out Yonder." This comedy is immense and gives Miss Long the best opportunity of the season. She first appears on the stage in a rough sailor boy's costume and is about the cutest girl-boy seen since Billie Burke first donned trousers. Mr. Vail, the leading man, has a part that suits him, while other members of the company are well cast and some excellent performance are certain from the very opening, Monday night. Seats are now on sale for the week.

to himself very reticent about developments in the case. He declares that his orders were issued because the few statements made by himself and his officers have been repeatedly exaggerated, and in many instances he and his men have been misquoted.

The transfer of the two principal figures in the case to the tower has resulted in things again assuming a normal attitude about police headquarters. The detectives Friday morning were busy running down the many rumors and "tips" which have come to their ears. The officers are literally bombarded by "tips," and despite the fact that practically all of them prove valueless when investigated, the officers have scattered in every direction, shifting every report to the bottom.

NO NEED FOR MILITIA.

On reports from sources which he considered reliable, Governor Brown Thursday night advised Adjutant General Nash to communicate with officers of the Fifth regiment with a view to having the national guard in readiness should the necessity arise.

The governor states that he did not go to the extent of suggesting that the national guard be mobilized. He simply recommended that the adjutant general request the officers of the regiment to be prepared for such steps, in the event current rumors were to materialize.

The governor also communicated with the jail authorities and with the police.

In carrying out the suggestion of the executive, Colonel E. E. Pomeroy gathered a few members of the Fifth regiment at the armory. No efforts were made to mobilize troops and by 11:30 o'clock those who had reported were allowed to return to their homes.

In the meantime an investigation had developed that the rumors were groundless. Deputy sheriffs in automobiles rushed over the entire city looking for any excitement, and they declare that never had Atlanta been more quiet.

REASON FOR TRANSFER.

Mr. Frank and the negro Lee were transferred to the tower on the coroner's warrants, because, it is said, there is considerable doubt of the legality of holding them at police headquarters, as both have been arrested in connection with a state, not a city case.

The warrants are similar in all respects, save that in one Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the pencil factory, is named, and in the other Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, is named.

"Georgia, Fulton county:

"To the Jailer of Said County; Greetings:

"You are hereby required to take into custody the person of Leo M. Frank, suspected of the murder of Mary Phagan, and to retain the said Leo M. Frank in your custody pending a further investigation of the death of said Mary Phagan, to be held by the said coroner of said county.

"Herein fail not.

"Given under my hand and official signature this the first day of May, 1913.

(Signed)

"PAUL DONEHOO,

"Coroner."

INQUEST DELAYED.

Mr. Frank and the nightwatchman were transferred to the tower immediately after Coroner Paul Donehoo swore his 160 witnesses, the employes of the pencil company, and adjourned the inquest until 2 o'clock next Monday afternoon.

The coroner's decision to postpone the inquest from Thursday afternoon until Monday afternoon was reached after a conference with Chief of Police Beavers and Chief of Detectives Lanford. The reason assigned for the postponement is a desire to give the detectives additional time to work on the case.

MULLINAX GOES FREE.

Arthur Mullinax, the young man who has been in jail for several days, held on the statement of E. L. Sentell that he (Sentell) saw Mullinax and Mary Phagan walking on Forsyth street about midnight Saturday, has been completely exonerated.

Mullinax took his release calmly, as he did his arrest.

"I have never been worried," he said, "for I knew I was innocent and was confident that in a little time everybody else would know it, too.

"I am not sore because I have been arrested. If that girl had been my sister I know that I would have wanted the officers to lock up every man against whom there was any suspicion, and hold him until things cleared up.

"I guess I have lost my job—that's the only thing which worries me."

Chief Lanford told the released man that he would make a personal effort to see that he got his position back. Mullinax has been working with the Towel Supply company.

GANTT ALSO LIBERATED.

The release of J. M. Gantt followed that of Mullinax.

When habeas corpus proceedings were started for Gantt by his attorneys he was transferred from headquarters to the Tower, and Chief Lanford had to get an order from Judge George L. Bell, of the superior court, before he had authority to release the man.

The warrant drawn against Gantt in Justice F. M. Powers' court has been dismissed.

MANY THEORIES OFFERED.

Theories of how Mary Phagan met her death and by just what system her murderer can be brought to justice are flooding the office of the detectives. People are calling over the phone to tell the officers just how they should proceed. Many of them come in person, and the office is in receipt of hundreds of letters from this and half a dozen other states, giving advice and theories.

Many of the letter writers are anonymous, but most of the people sign their names. Several letters have been received from "criminologists," who are willing to divulge their theories only for money. Several letters have come from "seers" and "mystics," who have communed with the spirits and learne in that way the "identity" of the murderer.

Among the interesting callers at police headquarters Friday were two ladies, who have dreamed about the murder. Both say that they distinctly saw Mary Phagan in her desperate battle with the murderer.

The ladies arrived within a short time of each other, but their dreams didn't coincide. Both gave the chief accurate descriptions of the murderers of their dreams.

FANK IN GOOD SPIRITS.

Mr. Frank got a good night's sleep Thursday night and Friday he was in a cheerful frame of mind. Many friends called to see him during the day and Mr. Frank talked to them freely. He is confident that when the coroner' sinvestigation has been concluded his absolute innocence will have been established.

PINKERTONS AFTER TRUTH.

The position of the Pinkerton detectives, employed by the National Pencil company, in the murder case, has occasioned considerable comment about police headquarters.

When asked about the matter, Harry Scott, the representative who is working on the mystery and assisting the city officers, declared that he and his men were out simply after the truth.

"It doesn't matter whom it hits," said Mr. Scott, "we want to do everything in our power to find the guilty man, and if we find him we are going to give every bit of our evidence to the state authorities, and lend our assistance in securing his conviction.

"This is just like any other case with us, and in all of them we go after the facts regardless of whom they help or hurt.

"When, for instance, we are investigating a bank robbery and find that the crime was committed by an employe or an official, we disclose the facts just as if the guilty man had been a highwayman."

Two additional Pinkerton men went to work on the case Friday, assisting Mr. Scott and the city detectives.

Prof. W. H. Taft, Professor of Law at Yale

After "Professor" Taft was well settled in his professorship at Yale he permitted the photographers to step in to show the public how an ex-president looks in such an office. The ex-president is a busy and contented man, and he could not have chosen anything that would have made him seem happier in retirement. He has a cosy and bright office in New Haven, and he has become very popular with his students.

Confidence Expressed In Leo M. Frank

Milton Klein has made the following statement in behalf of Superintendent L. M. Frank:

"Leo Frank, the superintendent and general manager of one of Atlanta's largest and most promising industries, spends two hours in his office on a holiday after generously relieving the watchman during these hours. His habits are regular and industrious and his life, while in Atlanta, is perfectly blameless in every respect. The terrible crime committed in his plant calls forth the closest scrutiny of Mr. Frank's relations with his 200 workmen and women. Only the highest words of praise and confidence in his character are heard, on all sides.

"I have worked with Mr. Frank for years in various charitable organizations and have ever found him the most polished of gentlemen, with the kindest of heart and the broadest of sympathy. To such an extent it is recognized among his fellow lodge men that we have honored him with the office of president, which is the highest rank in our organization. He is a Liberal supporter of many worthy enterprises. But his greatest work has been among his own employes at his factory. The first to report in the morning and the last to leave at night, every day and holidays, he has labored to build up a factory that in spirit and efficiency is second to none south of the Mason and Dixon's line.

"After the magnificent work he has done in his adopted home, shall we without consideration, emphasize every bit of gossip which unjustly and groundlessly connects him with this awful tragedy? No one seeks more fervently to discover the real perpetrator of this atrocious crime than Mr. Frank."

NEGRO IS ARRESTED FOR SEAY'S DEATH

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., May 2.—William Gathwright, the negro who was charged with the murder of George Seay, near Duluth, Thursday morning, was brought here last night by Sheriff E. S. Garner and placed in jail. The feeling against the negro was bitter, and a lynching was narrowly averted.

Those who have looked into the matter believe that a plant well managed will make expenses from beginning and will soon become profitable.

MAYOR AND POLICE COMMISSIONER SCAB

(By Associated Press.)

CENEVA, N. Y., May 2.—Mayor Rubin H. Colvin and Police Commissioner John Monroe, of this city, have qualified as hod carriers. When fifty-five union carriers and 117 members of the Carpenters' union who were engaged in constructing the new city hall went on strike yesterday, half a dozen masons remained at work. While an admiring crowd cheered from the street the two city officials, perspiring freely in the hot sun, made trip after trip from the mortar board to the place where the masons were at work. They kept at the task for several hours and apparently enjoyed their self-imposed labor.

ABOUT TAPPING IN DROPSY

Nearly everybody knows that when the dropsy comes so fast in Bright's Disease that the patient has to be tapped that the case is hopeless so far as the old treatment isconcerned. We never heard of a case recovering that required tapping until Fulton's Renal Compound was evolved. Under the Renal Compound recoveries are frequently reported even in this supposed hopeless stage. We recite two cases:

F. H. Chandler, of Clay, New York, was a very serious case. As high as four quarts of water were drawn at a tapping. He was put on Fulton's Renal Compound and a year thereafter had resumed employment.

Another—Patient six years old, the son of A. C. Dean, of Oakland, Cal., was tapped eight times; even had to be tapped after being put on Fulton's Renal Compound, but the tapping grew further apart and he made a recovery and was going to school at last advices.

What do these things mean if Bright's Disease is not curable? If you have Bright's Disease you owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound before giving up. It can be had at Frank Edmondson & Bro., 11 North Broad street, and 106 North Pryor stret, Atlanta, Ga.

FULLER E. CALLAWAY COMES BACK FROM FOREIGN TRIP AFTER STUDY OF RURAL LIFE

Well Known Georgian Will Turn Information to Practical Use—Will Not Accept Indian Commissionership

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

LAGRANGE, Ga., May 2.—Sun-tanned, hale and hearty, bubbling over with good humor, Mr. Fuller E. Callaway arrived home Wednesday morning, after an extended trip to foreign lands, including Egypt, the Holy Land and Italy. Mr. Callaway was accompanied home by Mrs. Callaway and Fuller, junior, who met him in New York, spending several days there and stopping at Washington on their way home.

Mr. Callaway is in fine health and spirits, and speaks interestingly of his experiences on the trip. While made primarily for rest and recreation, Mr. Callaway embraced the opportunity to acquire considerable information which he hopes to turn to practical account.

With his usual happy faculty of making friends wherever he goes, this genial gentleman while in Cairo formed the acquaintance of Lord Kitchener, who is in charge of the wonderful reclamation work being carried on in Egypt by the British government. Lord Kitchener gave Mr. Callaway a card of introduction which was an "open sesame" all over Egypt and proved quite helpful in the way of courtesies and information.

ENTHUSIASTIC OVER WORK.

Mr. Callaway speaks enthusiastically of the work being done by the English in harnessing the river Nile and utilizing its waters in developing the rich but arid lands in its vicinity. It seems that there is a stretch of over 1,500 miles of country on which there is no rainfall the year around. By means of the great Assuan storage dam and three other dams at intervals below, the waters of the Nile are stored and used for irrigation, with wonderful results.

According to Mr. Callaway, the English are giving a splendid account of their stewardship. He was particularly impressed with the fact that rotation of crops is one of the first principles, the natives not being permitted to follow cotton with cotton, but by alternation with bursseem, a kind of cross between clover and alfalfa, they accomplish the double purpose of providing forage crops and restoring to the soil the nitrogen and other elements taken from it by the cotton.

Mr. Callaway says that he found this creative work more interesting than the pyramids and the mummies, and it is evident that he intends to take an active interest in the present movement of public-spirited Troup county citizens to improve agricultural conditions in this section. In speaking on this subject Mr. Callaway expressed the opinion that the lands of this section could easily be made to quadruple their present yields by improved cultural methods—breeding and selection of seed, deep plowing, rotation of crops and analyses of soils to determine their exact needs.

Mr. Callaway has been most useful in the upbuilding of this section and the state by interesting home and outside capital in the construction of seven large cotton mills, which more than double the value of the cotton which they use before passing it on to the outside world. But as one interested in the broadest possible development of the south, he realizes the need of developing agriculture if Georgia and the south are to assume their rightful importance in the nation. From a first hand study of the decline and fall of Rome, the greatest of nations in its time, he is convinced that its downfall was due to forgetfulness of this prime need of encouraging agriculture. The present tendency of people to leave the farms and flock to the cities is regarded as a danger which if not checked will in time bring about similarly dire results in America.

CALLAWAY A FARMER HIMSELF.

The solution of the problem is, in Mr. Callaway's opinion, for all interests to work together to make rural life more attractive, by means of good roads, schools and proper co-operation between all the people. Mr. Callaway has himself become a farmer, having acquired the former Ferrell place west of LaGrange, containing about eighty acres. Here he proposes to apply practically his theories on treating farming as a science and a business just like any other. Possessed of wonderful insight, ability and capacity for organization, Mr. Callaway's experiments in farming will be watched with interest, and if successful, as no doubt they will be, his farms will not only prove profitable to their owner, but of considerable value as an example of the possibilities of Troup county soils.

NOT UNEASY OVER OUTLOOK.

Speaking of business and financial conditions, Mr. Callaway was somewhat noncommittal, saying that he had not been home long enough to make a thorough analysis of the situation. He says, however, that he sees no occasion for alarm, as he considers fundamental conditions sound and feels hopeful that the country will be able to go through the readjustment from the tariff changes without serious disturbance.

When asked as to his plans regarding the $1,000,000 development company, which it was understood was only awaiting his return for the beginning of activities, Mr. Callaway said that he was not as yet prepared to state positively as to what he would recommend to his associates in this connection—whether to go forward with the enterprise immediately or defer it possibly for a year.

WILL NOT ACCEPT INDIAN COMMISSIONERSHIP.

Asked if he intended to accept the post of Indian commissioner recently tendered him by the president upon recommendation of Secretary Franklin Lane, Mr. Callaway stated that he would not and that his principal business in Washington was to extend his thanks and explain the conditions standing in the way of his acceptance. Mr. Callaway said: "I appreciate the honor and consider it a great opportunity for usefulness. I would not mind the financial sacrifice, but I consider that there is a prior duty to the several hundred investors and my associates in our enterprises. Besides, it would have required a complete change of my life work as I have laid it out. I do not know how long I will be spared, but it is a strong desire of mine to live and die in LaGrange, and I shall hope to be as useful as possible here in my home city and section."

WILSON WARNS SOLONS TO KEEP PARTY PLEDGE

President on Stump Before People at Night and Among Legislators in Day Time

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

NEWARK, N. J., May 2.—President Wilson came home to Jersey last night from Washington, and in rounded terms that at times fairly sizzled, exposed to the people of Essex county, the pocket borough of his enemy "Jim" Smith, Jr., the sinister influences that block the legislature from redeeming its pledges to give law for grand jury reform and authority for holding a convention to revise the archaic constitution.

He spent last night at Newark and Elizabeth. Today the president kept at his task of pulling order out of chaos in legislative halls and putting the "old gang" to rout. From 11 o'clock this morning to 1 o'clock this afternoon he talked to legislators at the Carteret club, Jersey City, and strove with them to reach common ground on the two reforms. This afternoon party leaders in counties where there are recalcitrant assemblymen discussed war plans with the president.

The president's performances last night was an extraordinary spectacle just as the meetings themselves were without parallel, so, too, were the two speeches of rare order. The punch that the president put into every line, and his explicitness were highly diverting to the crowds. They listened with delight as he made satirical characterizations of James Smith, Jr., and his lieutenant, James R. Nugent.

In Newark, the citadel of his foes, the president spared no words in uttering his contempt of the oppositions.

CHEERS WITH WILSON

The temper of the crowds was just what Mr. Wilson wanted. He had them shielding with him from the start, and in discussing recent occurrences at Trenton he alluded to "that bulky form." It did not require any further specification for the crowd to know that he meant Nugent. And when, in the same breath almost, he spoke of "the system with a snakelike S" the crowd seemed to know perfectly well Smith was meant.

At Elizabeth the president was more explicit in his reference to Nugent and his tribe. He mentioned Nugent by name, and with a voice that breathed scorn in every syllable. The crowd hung on to every word, and hissed Nugent's name.

Of Nugent the president said:

"A sinister private agent, openly conducting the affairs of New Jersey upon the floor of the assembly, who did not dare to do it so long as there was somebody at hand who would go to his very own home and point him out as the man not commissioned to speak for the people of New Jersey, but commissioned to submit to the processes of public opinion, which he fears and dares not submit to."

By indirection, the president discussed recent vice raids in Newark, and used them as a text to show how protection will be extended to criminal offenders so long as the grand juries are controlled by sheriffs. Here are his own words about the vice situation in Newark:

"I managed to give you two judges who were not afraid of the system. At last in the fullness of time, I managed to give you a prosecutor who was not afraid of the system. And that prosecutor saw without spectacles things which I myself from a distance had pointed out to the authorities of this city as much as a year before. He did not require spectacles to see them. Everybody knew that they were there, but the hand of the law was withheld. Do you want a system under which it is profitable to withhold the hand of the law? Do you want a system under which it is possible to choose when the hand of the law shall be withheld and when it shall not?"

There were paragraphs in both speeches unsuceptible of national application. The president said he appreciated full well that the Democratic party was not put in power by a majority of the electorate last fall, and that its every action was being scrutinized by critical people. The reactionary element must take heed of the temper of the people, give way to progress or go down to oblivion.

"The people of this country," he solemnly declared, "and of this state, are going to have what they know they ought to have, by one process or another. I pray that it might not be a wrong process. I have the greatest confidence in the self control, the public spirit, the legal conscience of the people of America, and I do not myself believe that dangerous things will happen. But I warn these gentlemen not to long to show the people of this country that justice cannot be got by the ordinary process and of the law. I warn them to stand out of the sovereigns' way."

At President Wilson's conference with the party leaders and later with the legislators, it was agreed that the Democratic members would get together on Monday next in the hope of drafting some sort of a jury reform bill. Although urged to do so by opponents of the measure, the president declined to make any definite recommendations as to the form the bill should take.

That, he said, was up to the legislature. There was an open clash between the president and W. L. McDermott, assemblyman from Hudson county, a bitter opponent of the bill. Mr. McDermott took exception to the president's speech last night, which he characterized as one of denunciation of the legislature.

At the president's request he pointed out what portions of the speech he considered denunciatory—those in which the president said that he thought some of the legislators had acted in bad faith with reference to the measure.

The president listened intently and then, it is reported, he replied:

"That's not denunciation; those are facts."

He was surprised, he added, according to those who attended the meeting, that Mr. McDermott had seen fit "to put the cap on."

At this point the assemblyman sought to crass-examine the president in an endeavor to pin him down specifically as to the nature of the bill he thought should be enacted, but Mr. Wilson sat down, refusing to answer. Acting Governor Fielder here stepped into the breach and said calming words.

In the lobby of the Carteret club afterward there was a heated discussion of the incident. Several legislators criticised Mr. McDermott for what they called a breach of etiquette.

ASHEVILLE DEMANDS STRIKE ARBITRATION

Committee of Citizens Will Ask That Dispute Be Settled at Once

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 2.—Citizens in mass meeting last night adopted resolutions condemning violence and demand that the car company submit the dispute to arbitration. A committee of ten was appointed, consisting of prominent business men, labor leaders, ex-Third Assistant Postmaster General J. G. Britt and State Senator Weaver. During the meeting, L. L. Jenkins, president of the American National bank, a big cotton mill owner, offered to pay all damages or write a check for $1,000 if it would end the strike.

Governor Jack Craig, Adjutant General Young national guard, have arrived from Raleigh to help settle the matter. It is reported that strikebreakers struck this morning for a raise from $5 per day and fares, to $6, as receipts were trifling.

The committee of ten will present resolutions to Manager Plummer, of the car company, this afternoon.

HULL PREDICTS ULTIMATE ABOLITION OF WARFARE

Swarthmore College Professor Addresses Fourth American Peace Congress

ST. LOUIS, May 2—Out of the difficulties which now attend the international peace movement ultimately will be evolved a plan whereby war will be abolished, according to the views of Prof. William I. Hull, of Swarthmore college, who spoke before the Fourth American Peace congress today. His subject was "The Hague Tribunal: Its Present Meaning and Its Future Promise."

"It is as logical for the supreme court of each of the forty-eight states of the American union to adjudicate the laws of the union as it is for the supreme court of each of the forty-six states in the family of nations to adjudicate the conventions agreed upon by that family at the Hague," said Prof. Hull. "For the sake of consistency, for the sake of freedom from national opinions, prejudices, passions and interests, for the sake of international good faith, of international peace and international justice, there must be established a supreme tribunal which shall hold a mastery for all the intricacies of international law.

"We have caught a vision beyond the permanent court of arbitration and the court of arbital justice, or still a third Hague tribunal, which shall possess all the strength and none of the weaknesses of its predecessors. This supreme court of the United States of the world shall have all the permanence, all the power and prestige of precedent, and all the judicially representative character which have made the supreme court of the United States of America so illustrious; it shall possess as broad and complete a jurisdiction within its domain of law as does its American prototype, and by the adjudication of all disputes between nations it shall forever banish international warfare from the realm of men; and it shall be, not an arbitral tribunal, like its two predecessors, the permanent court or arbitration and the court of arbitral justice, content with a compromise between two extreme demands, but a truly judicial tribunal, striving towards and ever more approximating ideal justice. To attain this destiny, its judges must cease to be representative of the nations who are the suitors before the court and must become truly representative of the family of nations, by whom the court is created and for whose life, liberty and pursuit of happiness it is destined to labor."

FLORIDA HOUSE BARS EQUAL SUFFRAGE

Women Stand for Two Hours As the Bill Is Debated

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 2.—The resolution proposing a constitutional amendment for equal suffrage was defeated in the house this morning by a vote of 38 to 26. Great crowds thronged the galleries and aisles and many women stood throughout the two hours' of debate which was participated in by a number of representatives.

Stanford led off in an impassioned speech against the resolution in which he declared that the proposition to place the ballot in the hands of women was laden with such dangers as the south experienced during the reconstruction period. O'Neill, Gornto, Acosta and Martin followed on similar lines.

Bussey, Worley, Floyd, Russell and MacWilliams favored the resolution, but each stated that he would vote against it at the polls.

In the senate, Brown's bill, to elect county commissioners at large, was defeated after a warm fight.

RESINOL RELIEVED ITCHING AT ONCE

And Cured Skin Humor in a Month.

Brooklyn, Nov. 1, 1912.—"At first little red spots were seen on my arms and body, which I noticed were getting larger every day. They itched me so much that I scratched myself until I bled. There were times when I stood up all night and scratched. I was troubled about three weeks, during which time I used ——, which seemed to do me no good whatever. Then, finally, I thought of trying Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. As soon as I applied Resinol Ointment I felt much relief. After using it a few times, I noticed the sore spots slowly fading away, and in about a month, I was cured completely." (Signed) Adolph Schoen, 742 Shipherd Avenue.

The soothing, healing balsam in Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, penetrates every tiny pore of the skin, clearing it of all impurities, driving away eczema, rashes, ringworm, psoriasis, and other eruptions, and making pimples and blackheads impossible. The Wash Skirts Make Their Bow

Hard to imagine a more attractive and interesting display.

Perhaps they are attractive and interesting by association—Wash Skirts presage the fine, bright days of summer time—but perhapser they are attractive and interesting because of the newness of the materials and the fashioning this season.

Ratine in white and colors is very prominent and wide welt pique—and the linens, worlds of them, plain French linen, heavy basket weave linen, linen crash and striped linen.

Usually they are fashioned along plain, straight lines with an occasional one with tiny tucks caught under the belt and at the back, or another with a cut-in pocket and trimmed with clear pearl buttons.

Will you see them?

They are priced at $2.45, $2.98, $3.50 to $5.75 and the just-arrived

New Woolen Skirts

Note the Worth and the Selling Prices---There's a Difference

There is no more fiction about the worth price than there is about the new selling price.

The quality of materials and trimmings, the neat workmanship, tell that very plainly to the woman who knows, to the woman who makes comparisons.

The difference between the two prices is a very real and tangible saving.

17c For 25c Corset Covers

The odd fews left from a recent sale. Perhaps not every size in style but then that is every style but then that is why they are 17c. The materials, the embroidery and lace trimming are exceptionall fine.

79c For $1.25 Princess Slips

The nainsook is soft, and sheer, the yokes are attractively finished with linen and Valenciennes laces, straight flat flounces. They show their $1.25 worth plainly, positively.

79c For $1.00 to $1.50 Gowns

Those that were $1.50 are extra size gowns, extra size in reality, not just so named. They are high neck and long sleeves. Those that were $1.00 are regular sizes and a little daintier and prettier than $1.00 gowns usually are. Of Nainsook, lace and embroidery trimmed.

$1.98 For $3.00 and $3.50 Combinations

We have selected from our better grades of trousseau sets some half-dozen models for a day's active selling. Neatest trimmings of laces, linen and fine French Valenciennes and of Swiss embroideries. Select from those with knickerbocker drawers or those with flat leg drawers.

MRS. PANKHURST REMOVED TO WOKING SANITARIUM

Bow Street Police Court Is Crowded When Six Militants Are Arraigned

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 2.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette leader, was today, with the consent of the authorities, removed from the house in which she has been staying in London, to a sanitarium at Woking, where she will remain under police supervision. She traveled in a motor ambulance which was followed by a tandem conveying several Scotland Yard detectives who were on duty to prevent Mrs. Pankhurst attempting to flee the country.

How street police court was crowded this morning when six militant suffragettes who were arrested in the police raid on the headquarters of the Women's Social and Political union on Wednesday were brought up on a charge of conspiracy under the malicious damage act. The prisoners included "General" Mrs. Flora Drummond, Miss Harriet Roberts Kerr, Miss Agnes Lake, Miss Rachel Barrett, Miss Laura Lennox and Mrs. Beatrice Saunders and Miss Annie Kenney.

With them were also Clayton, the analytical chemist taken into custody last night at Richmond, and Sydney Drew, the printer of yesterday's issue of the Suffragette, who was arrested this morning.

A bottle filled with nitroglycerine and wrapped in brown paper was discovered by a policeman today at the Tube station at Piccadilly circus. The Scotland Yard officials declare that it was undoubtedly left by a suffragette "bomb squad."

ROOSEVELT TO ADDRESS SUFFRAGETTES IN N. Y.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 2.—With parade, pageant and appeal from the public platform, the women of New York City who believe in woman suffrage will give a demonstration tonight and tomorrow in favor of their cause. Theodore Roosevelt will deliver an address tonight at the pageant, depicting woman's "Dream of Freedom," to be given at the Metropolitan opera house.

Tomorrow afternoon what is expected to be the greatest woman suffrage parade ever held—20,000 strong—will move up Fifth avenue. When it is over, men and women orators in automobiles will appeal to the people in the plaza at Fifth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, and a great mass meeting will be held in Carnegie hall.

Delegations of women from neighboring states are coming by special train, with their own bands, began pouring into the city today to take part in the demonstration.

It was said 20,000 men, twice the number last year, would march behind the banners of the Men's League for Woman Suffrage. Every state in the union and Alaska will be represented in the parade by native daughters in greater or less numbers, with the nine suffrage states and Alaska given precedence in the order of the march.

Women in all walks of life from society leaders to scrub workmen will fill the ranks and some forty bands will furnish music. Miss Inez Milholland, mounted, will head the procession as color bearer, and Miss Josephine Beidenbasse will act as grand marshal.

Society women, actresses and opera singers will participate in tonight's pageant. Madame Nordica will take the part of Freedom. Forty-nine women, picked for their statuesque beauty, and forty-nine men selected for their Adonis-like proportions, will represent the couples the forty-eight states and Alaska.

The pageant will follow upon the addresses of Colonel Roosevelt and Miss Anna Shaw and an appeal for recruits to march in the parade. One hundred and seventy-five college women will act as ushers.

UNIQUE ROAD EXHIBITS AT FRISCO EXPOSITION

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 2.—What is declared to be the most elaborate collection of road models ever displayed will be shown by the United States office of public roads at the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915. Logan Waller Page, director of the bureau, today began preparations for assembling this unique exhibition.

Reproductions of old Roman roads, French roads and all the various types of modern highways will be included in the models. Miniature reproductions of road machinery as well as every known device used in the building of roads will appear in the exhibit.

For years past the bureau has been displaying at various national and international expositions and on its railroad educational cars samples of the work it is doing; but the showing it is preparing to make at the Panama-Pacific exposition will be the most complete yet made.

"The road building and improvement movement has had a great impetus," said Mr. Page today, "as a result of the instruction furnished by the models already in use. They have been displayed along the lines of a number of railroads in the United States and have done much to arouse public opinion to the need for better roads, expert advice concerning which this office furnishes free."

Q. W. MOSS IS HELD ON FORGERY CHARGE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WASHINGTON, Ga., May 2.—Q. W. Moss, of Lincoln, was apprehended at Lisbon, that county, Wednesday afternoon, and brought to Washington, where he was landed in the Wilkes county jail upon a charge of forgery.

It appears that Moss, a young man of about twenty-five, and of good family, has been going about this section of the state and parts of Carolina, masquerading under several aliases, principally those of "G. W. Vickery," "W. L. Brown" and "W. L. Freeland." Some months ago, Moss came to Washington and made some purchases of the merchants of the city, giving worthless checks on the banks of Lincolnton, Mount Carmel and Flint Branch, S. C., signing them with these aliases.

These were promptly returned with "no funds" indorsed thereon. Wednesday morning one of the local banks was called up by long distance from one of the banks of Mount Carmel, asking whether the account of one "G. W. Vickery" whose check the Mount Carmel bank held, was good for $20.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DR. MARION M. H. HULL.

Golden Text: "The breath of the Almighty giveth them understanding." Job. 32:8.

When Joseph reached Egypt in the company of the Midianites who had bought him, he was taken to the capital, and there by them sold to the commander-in-chief of the Egyptian army, Potiphar by name. He placed him in his house as a servant. Joseph did not grumble about having to work—it would have done him no good. He accepted a bad situation and did his best to make the most of it. He was beginning to learn one of the lessons God had to teach him. He had talked too much before, and he was going to keep his mouth shut now. He had been proud, because petted; this discipline would teach him the great truth that by humility we rise, and by pride we fall. The humble shall be exalted. Without that discipline the proud youth would have grown into an unbearable man.

Joseph made himself so invaluable in the house that the general began to recognize what a treasure he had secured, and after a time placed him in charge of all that he had, made him his private secretary and confidential clerk. In this position he continued for several years.

At about twenty-five years of age he had grown to be exceedingly handsome, and thrown intimately in the family life with his general's wife, she became infatuated with this fair-skin young Hebrew although he had not given her any cause for it whatsoever.

You remember the story of the fearful temptation to which he was subjected; the way he met it, and of his unjust imprisonment.

STILL FAITHFUL.

He must have burned with indignation over that dungeon experience. An Egyptian dungeon was no pleasant place under any circumstances, but to be placed there unjustly and to be unable to defend himself (for in loyalty Joseph could not tell his master the whole truth—he could but deny the charge against him, which he did), was unbearable in the extreme. But never a murmur did he make.

He proved such a model prisoner (for he had determined again to make the most of a bad situation) that the jailer soon allowed him certain liberties and finally placed him in charge of all that was done there.

Finally there came into the prison two of the highest officers in the kingdom, Pharaoh had been taken suddenly ill, and it was thought probably that there was a plot to poison him. Such things were quite common in those days. It could not be ascertained at first whether it had emanated from the service of the chief butler or the chief baker; so both were thrown into prison pending an investigation.

Being persons of high position they were placed in a private portion of the prison and Joseph was ordered to minister to them. I have no doubt but that it was a welcome change to Joseph which did much to relieve the ennui of prison life. He had learned much of the customs and persons in high life in Egypt during the many years he served in General Potiphar's house; and to be thrown with these two high officials must have brought back some of those associations and added new interest to his life, now so intensely monotonous.

He no doubt heard them discussing the reasons for their imprisonment, and without doubt both protested their innocence. But Joseph was a close observer and noted the difference between the two men—one open-faced and honest, the other sly and keen-eyed.

OBSERVANT AND SYMPATHETIC.

Joseph was not only very observant, but he had a broad human sympathy. Outside the prison (and the rumors of it no doubt seeped through the openings into the prison cells) great preparations were being made for the celebration of Pharaoh's birthday. Such ocasions meant much in the life of the ancient courts, and were frequently occasions on which the monarch displayed his appreciation by granting pardon to many prisoners.

These things had been coursing through the minds of these two prisoners of state. They had no doubt talked about it for many days. One morning just three days before the celebration was to take place their thoughts crystallized in a dream in the case of each of them; but the dreams troubled them for they could not figure out the interpretation for themselves, and being in prison it was not possible for them to secure the services of any of the many soothsayers in Egypt.

When Joseph came in he noticed the changed expressions and as he did his work detected the sadness and perplexity of their faces. His heart went out to them; they were prisoners like himself; he was suffering as they were; and possibly they as unjustly as he. His human sympathy expressed itself finally in asking them what was the trouble. And when he learned it was only a dream or two, and that they could not get in touch with the soothsayers, he comforted them. His word reveals the great secret of his life—the consciousness of the constant presence of God. God only could interpret dreams, and since He was with him, he asked them to tell him what the dreams were, having the assurance of things hoped for—that God would speak through him to them.

I do not know anything more refreshing than Joseph's faith in the everpresent God. It had not been dimmed by the years of servitude in a heathen land nor by the hardships of an unjust imprisonment. On the contrary, it had been accentuated. Joseph knew that God was with him, and all was right therefore. That young man of 28 years was in constant fellowship with God; he knew God would reveal His secrets to him.

The dreams were told him. The honesty and openfaceness of the chief butler revealed itself in his dream, and to him Joseph spoke words of cheer. He was to be free on the king's birthday three day later, and restored to his office. The investigation would show that he was innocent of any plot to take the life of the ruler. Then Joseph pleaded for himself, proclaiming his innocence and asking the great influence of such a high official that he might have justice done him.

The baker had been listening very attentively. He knew his guilt, but he hoped for as favorable an interpretation to his dream as had been given to the butler. His keen eyes had been watching all the while. So he is emboldened to tell his dream. But Joseph had been watching him, and soon detected in the thieving birds the evidence of his guilty conscience. It was a hard thing to have to be the bearer of bad news, but his duty was plain and he did it.

All came true as he said. But he was forgotten two full years. Forgotten? Yes, by the one whom he had befriended, but not by God. He was still assured of the consciousness of God's presence, and he did not grumble. That was the secret of his life—that God was with him and kept him right, and sweet, and faithful; and it was the source of strength and wisdom that made of him the man that he grew to be.

That consciousness may be yours, too. God grant that is shall be.

ANDERSON WOMAN THINKS DUNBAR LAD IS HER SON

Mother of "Bruce" Makes a Second Examination of "Robert"

(By Associated Press.)

OPELOUSAS, La., May 2.—Paralleling the changing doubt and certainty which characterized the actions of Mrs. C. P. Dunbar, when she went to Columbia, Miss., to identify the child taken from the tinker and alleged kidnaper, W. C. Walters, now claimed as her long missing son, Robert, Julia Anderson, of North Carolina, after a second examination of the child this morning, declared she believed he was her son, Bruce.

Yesterday Julia Anderson, between sobs and verging on a nervous breakdown, said:

"Men, honestly I can't say whether that's my boy." She was put through the ordeal of trying to pick the child from a half dozen children of about the same age. The boy had been instructed to make no reply to the Anderson woman and, although he was known as Bruce when taken from Walters, he would not respond to the name when Julia Anderson called him by that name.

Today the North Carolina woman, from a secluded place in a residence adjoining the Dunbar home, watched the boy at play for an hour. At her request, he was again brought before her. She took the boy in her arms, stripped him and coaxed him to recognize her. He drew away.

She found no marks on his body by which she could identify the child, but turned to the assembled people and said:

"I believe this is my boy, gentlemen. His actions and his general features are like Bruce's."

"What about the scars?" she was asked.

"Well, there ain't none big enough to recognize," she replied.

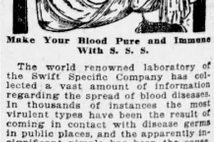
Pimples Should Be Watched

May be Means of Absorbing Disease Germs in Most Unexpected Manner.



Make Your Blood Pure and Immune With S. S. S.

The world renowned laboratory of the Swift Specific Company has collected a vast amount of information regarding the spread of blood diseases. In thousands of instances the most virulent types have been the result of coming in contact with disease germs in public places, and the apparently insignificant pimple has been the cause. It spreads with astonishing rapidity, often infecting the entire system in a few days.

It is fortunate, however, that there is a remedy to cope quickly and thoroughly with such a condition, and thanks to the energy of its producers the famous S. S. S. may now be had at almost any drug store in the civilized world.

This preparation stands alone as a blood purifier. It is somewhat revolutionary in its composition, since it accomplishes all that was ever claimed for mercury, iodides, arsenic, and other destructive mineral drugs, and yet it is absolutely a purely vegetable product. It contains one ingredient which serves the active purpose of penetrating every minute part of the tissues to the healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. There are more cases of articular rheumatism, locomotor ataxia, paresis, neuritis, and similar diseases resultant from the use of minerals than most people are aware of. These facts are brought out in a highly interesting book compiled by the medical department of The Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is mailed free, together with a special letter of advice, to all who are struggling with a blood disease.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. to-day of your druggist. It will surprise you with its wonderful action in the blood.

FLOOD WATERS REACH VIDALIA, LOUISIANA

Railroad Embankment Which Encircles Town Will Hold Water Off, However

(By Associated Press.)

VIDALIA, La., May 2.—Water from the crevasse in the Mississippi river levee near Gibson's Landing was in sight of Vidalia this morning, but the people of the town are little concerned, feeling assured of the protection that will be offered by the railroad embankment that skirts the town between them and the rising flood. The only gap in the protecting barrier is a short stretch spanned by a trestle. A large iforce of men was put to work this morning to close this and by tonight the line will be intact.

The crevasse water had extendeed this morning as far north as Goldman's, in Tensas parish, and seventeen miles in a northwesterly direction.

Considerable of the flood water is entering Lake St. Peter, near St. Joseph. It is not believed that the town will be flooded.

With the low stage in Red river it is estimated that the territory that will be flooded will not be covered as deep as last year and the wateer will run off more readily.

Although the decline in the stage of the Mississippi river south of Vicksburg has been somewhat relieved, the pressure at Kempes bend, where trouble has been expected for several days, men and material are kept constantly on hand there. At several other places along the levee in Concordia parish sand bolls have developed. Gangs of laborers are working day and night to prevent them from getting a headway.

Camp Haynes, across the river at Natchez, is crowded to its capacity with refugees taken from the flooded country.

The Associated Charities is also taking care of many of the homeless.

Crevasse Waters Returning To Flooded Mississippi

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, May 2.—Except for a fall of one-tenth of a foot at Natchez and two-tenths rise at New Orleans the Mississippi river stages remained stationary for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. at all points from Vicksburg south. The slight rise at New Orleans was attributed to light shifting winds.

A stationary gauge at Red river landing shows that the big volume of water which for almost a week has been pouring through the crevasse near Gibson's Landing, La., had not started to flow back into the Mississipi this morning.

Notwithstanding a fall of eight feet at Memphis within four days and a fall of 5.5 at Helena, the gauge at Arkansas City shows a drop in that period of only 1.4 feet, indicating that a considerable quantity of water is entering the Mississippi river through the Arkansas and White rivers. Thus the loss of over one and a half feet of water a day for four days in the river stretch between Helena and Arkansas City is almost offset by a gain of 1.1 feet daily from the swollen Arkansas streams and overflowed lands west and south of Helena.

Such a large quantity of crevasse water is pouring back into the Mississippi at Vicksburg, from the section flooded by the Mayersville, Miss., crevasse that no relief has been noted in the Vicksburg territory from the big crevasse below there on the Louisiana side.

Boat With Refugees From the Flod Sinks

(By Associated Press.)

NATCHEZ, Miss., May 2.—The steamer Concordia, of Natchez, which was engaged in rescue work in the flooded sections of Tensas and Concordia parishes, struck the iron railroad bridge at Clayton, La., this morning and sank.

It was reported that about twenty negro refugees who were aboard the steamer were drowned when the boat went down.

Two white men were also drowned.

Maurice Black, of Clayton, suffered a broken arm, and minor injuries to other white passengers were reported.

The Concordia was bringing to Natchez flood refugees rescued from house tops and second stories of buildings just above Clayton, which is several miles inland from the river.

The steamer has been navigating crevasse water ranging from eight to fifteen feet deep where less than a week ago there were fine farms and prosperous villages.

As soon as news of the disaster was received here motor boats were ordered rushed to the scene from Ferriday and other nearby points.

The lost:

A. D. GOEGHAGAN, white, planter, of Jonesville, La.

W. L. PRIM, white, chief clerk of the Concordia, Natchez.

Twenty negroes, unidentified.

The negroes were members of a party of fifty refugees taken aboard the Mossegell plantation.

The Concordia probably will be a total loss, as she was badly wrecked by the collision with the bridge and is submerged in about twenty-five feet of water in the Tensas river.

The steamer had about 120 [illegible] on board when she went down.

The steamer was valued at $25,000, and was insured for $15,000. While engaged in rescue work during last year's flood, the Concordia sank about twenty miles distant from where she went down today. After the high water passed, however, the steamer was raised and repaired.

TURK FORMS INDEPENDENT GOVERNMENT AT TIRANA

Defeated Commander of Scutari Proclaims Autonomy of Albania Under Turkey

(By Associated Press.)

ATHENS, May 2.—A letter received here from Corfu states that Ezzaad Pasha, who was the Turkish commander-in-chief during the prolonged siege of Scutari by the Montenegrins, has formed a government at Tirana, where he has proclaimed the autonomy of Albania under the suzerainity of Turkey and hoisted the Turkish instead of the Albanian flag.

Ezzaad Pasha has written a letter to the metropolitan of Dorazzo stating that the Albanian government recognizes the authority of the Orthodox church. This letter further states that the Albanian government is in no way hostile to Greece and that it recognizes the northern frontier of Epiras in accordance with the demands of the Greek government.

Tirana, where Essaad Pasha has set up his rule, is in a district full of reminiscences of the ancient Albanian princes. It is about fifty-four miles south of Scutari and within twelve miles of Croia, where the famous Abanian prince, Scanderberg, resisted for many years in the early fifteenth century the flowing tide of the Moslem invasion of Europe.

Montenegro Keeps Europe Guessing at Next Move

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, May 2.—Political circles here are reticent today concerning the Montenegrin situation, apparently awaiting information as to the result of the council of ministers at Vienna.

On the stock exchange, however, the activity of business today indicated that the opinion prevailed there that the critical point of the situation had been passed.

A stormy general rise took place in most securities. None of the uncertainty and depression of the preceding days was shown.

No Coersive Action to Be Made Against Nicholas

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 2.—No precipitate coercive action against Montenegro by Austria-Hungary is likely, according to information reaching diplomatic circles in London today. The powers, it is believed, will be allowed a further opportunity of bringing pressure to bear at Cettinje, the Montenegrin capital.

The council of the joint cabinet of Austria-Hungary in its session at Vienna today, while it will discuss details of the financial and meanwhile operations which may possibly be necessary ultimately to force the evacuation of Scutari by the oMntenegrin troops, will it is believed here postpone any overt action.

By the time the ambassadors in oLndon meet again on Monday they expect to have evolved a plan for the compensation of King Nicholas for the loss of Scutari and it is thought probable that the real compensation offered will be thinly disguised under the description of a ratification of frontiers.

Plan School Change

WAYCROSS, Ga., May 2.—At the regular meeting of the board of education this month the question of a change in the course of study in the public schools of Waycross will be one of the important matters to be handled by the board. It is understood that a general shake-up of studies has been suggested, with the idea of providing pupils of the schools here with more of a business education than they now get.

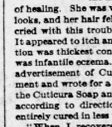
ECZEMA BROKE OUT ON FACE AND NECK

In Small Pimples. Much Disfigured in Looks. Hair Fell Out. Itched and Burned Continually. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Tylertown, Miss.—"When our baby was about four months of age she was affected with a breaking out on her face, neck and all around the edge of her hair and also up on the back of her head and around her ears. It first started behind her ears breaking out in small pimples. These would run together making continuous sores, while more pimples would form, nor did the first sores show any sign of healing. She was very much disfigured in looks, and her hair fell out. She fretted and cried with this trouble almost all the time. It appeared to itch and burn where the eruption was thickest continually. I was told it was infantile eczema. One day I noticed an advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and wrote for a sample. I began using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment twice daily according to directions and the baby was entirely cured in less than one week.



"When I recovered from typhoid fever my scalp began a dreadful itching and my hair began coming out in big wads. When my hair had more than half come out I thought of Cuticura Soap and commenced to shampoo with that. Now my hair is so thick I can scarcely run a comb through it." (Signed) Mrs. W. J. Cotten, May 15, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

A Great Record, A High Distinction for Atlanta

Atlanta has earned a particularly high and valuable distinction in having led all the cities of the United States in the reduction of infant mortality. A report by the federal census bureau shows that within the decade between 1900 and 1910 the death rate among infants under one year decreased in this community fifty-five per cent. The nearest approach to this record was in Indianapolis, with a decrease of thirty-nine per cent and in Washington, Paterson and Memphis with a decrease of thirty-eight per cent.

Atlanta's progress in this important field of human conservation appears all the more remarkable when it is noted that in the nation as a whole the mortality of children under one year of age has decreased only nineteen per cent within the ptriod under review, so that this city's record is thirty-six per cent above the average.

Local statistics throw additional light on the facts set forth in the Government's report. In 1907, for instance, the deaths among infants under two years of age amounted to twenty-two and two-tenths per cent of the entire number; in 1908, this percentage fell to twenty-one; in 1909 and 1910 it rose again to twenty-two; but in 1911 it decreased to nineteen and seven one-hundredths while in 1912 it sank to eighteen and six one-hundreds.

It is thus evident that in Atlanta there is a steady and continuous reduction of infant mortality and that the campaign for children's welfare is becoming more and more effective. This fact is of far-reaching consequence to the community's interests. It means that the aggregate death rate is being lowered, that public health as a whole is being more thoroughly safeguarded and that the city is becoming more and more desirable to the home-seeker.

For a number of years past there has been a nation-wide movement to reduce the death rate among children and particularly among infants less than two years old; for, it has been realized that just there lies one of the heaviest drains upon human life and efficiency. In 1900 the mortality for infants under a year was one hundred and twelve and nine-tenths per thousand, or eight times the death rate for all ages. For the first five years, the death rate was thirty-two and nine-tenths per thousand.

These figures carried their own commentary. They indicated that if the baby could be carried safely through its first year, its chances for life and health would be materially increased and that if efficiently cared for until it was four or five years, its dangers would be still further reduced. Accordingly a vigorous campaign was instituted to safeguard the life of infants, a campaign of education among mothers, a campaign of greater vigilance on the part of health authorities.

Atlanta's distinctive achievement would suggest that nowhere else in the country has this movement found a heartier response. The splendid results that have been accomplished in this city are due very largely to the faithful efforts of the Medical Association, the local branch of the Congress of Mothers, to women's clubs and to the co-operation of health officials and the general public.

Of particular imprtance are the efforts that have been made to safeguard the milk supply; for, it is commonly known that impure milk is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, source of infant mortality. This campaign, though earnestly waged in the past, is subject to still further extension and perfection. A movement is now afoot to establish a more detailed system of milk inspection. It merits the public's cordial support. What Atlanta has already achieved should be an inspiration to continued and even more earnest endeavors in this vital field of human welfare.

Montenegro is content to let Europe to do the worrying.

Maybe all this agitation will help the brand of California wine.

Bright Prospects for the Tariff Bill.

Mr. Underwood's prediction that the tariff bill will pass the House by Saturday and will so to the Senate early next week seems well warranted by the steadfastness with which the Democratic majority is standing by the party's program. Despite the appeals and the threats of particular interests, the measure has remained substantially in its original form, except for minor changes designed to perfect its classifications. Amendments offered by the Republicans and the so-called "Progressives," looking to higher duties or to a retention of old privileges have, in every instance, been promptly voted down. The Democrats have shown themselves mindful not only of their power but also of their responsibility, mindful of their pre-election pledge to effect a speedy and genuine revision of the tariff. They are working in almost unbroken harmony. They are bound to produce results.

The tariff bill will naturally move more slowly in the Senate than in the House; partly because the Democratic majority is smaller in the Senate and partly, too, because there the interests that oppose thoroughgoing tariff revision are more strongly intrenched. But the administration is not unprepared for such resistance as may arise; it has felt its way carefully; it seems assured of the outcome and what is most important of all it is backed by public sentiment and public judgment. At the decisive moment, the Senate majority will doubtless fall in line and support the House in the enactment of this great measure.

It is especially desirable the tariff revision bill be passed as soon as possible, in order that every interest likely to be affected may have ample time in which to adjust itself to the changed schedules. The country expects downward revision of duties. No disturbance of business conditions is anticipated. The only possible source of apprehension would lie in a long-drawn discussion of the issue and a postponement of the coming change. Business welfare will best be served by removing every element of suspense, by putting the bill through, so that such readjustments as must be made may promptly begin.

Congress has already decided about its summer vacation.

As far as the Mississippi is concerned, it never rains but it pours.

If Secretary Bryan won't take a drink, there are plenty more in Washington who will.

Atlanta's Hospitable Response.

The appeal to Atlanta's hospitality for homes in which to entertain five hundred or more delegates to the approaching Presbyterian convention is meeting with a cordial and expected response. The canvass made Thursday by a committee of ladies, representing the city's three most numerous religious denominations, was abundantly fruitful of results; and, if the gracious record thus far established is maintained, the task of providing homes for all the visitors will soon be finished.

It should be remembered, however, that the date of the convention is drawing near and that there is no time to be lost. The Presbyterian assemblage will be nation-wide in its scope and will mark the greatest event of the kind in the world's history. Between four and five thousand visitors from every quarter of the South and of the Union will be present. Among these there will be some fifteen hundred official delegates, or "commissioners," as they are more accurately termed. It is for these that home entertainment is desired; for, they will be officially the community's guests and they are ministers and laymen of high distinction. The campaign that began Thursday has the specific object of securing homes for five hundred commissioners; the remainder having already been provided for. Let every Atlanta family that can do so assist in this hospitable cause.

The question on everybody's lips: "Well, who did it?"

Speaking of "human dynamos," there is a man who has everything charged.

If you have winter clothes that you haven't shed, prepare to shed them now.

Railroads and Farms.

One of the broadly cheering omens of the day is the closer relationship that is springing up between all manner of industrial and agricultural interests. The time has long since gone when any progressive city regarded its fortunes apart from those of the adjacent country or when any foresighted business concern, whether a bank, a manufactory or a railroad looked with indifference upon the affairs of the farm.

This is notably true in the South and in Georgia, whose prosperity are so closely interwoven with the things of the soil. It is highly gratifying but not at all unexpected that the Southern Railway Company has increased its force of dairying and poultry experts and has established in Atlanta larger and more thoroughly equipped headquarters for its various agricultural enterprises.

The company announces the appointment of seven additional experts who will devote their entire time to field work in advising and otherwise assisting the dairymen and farmers of this section. This department of the railroad was formerly located at Washington. The demands upon its service have so increased, however, and have become so specific in character that the road has wisely decided to transfer the department headquarters to Atlanta in order that it may be more intimately in touch with Southern needs; and at the same time, it has greatly enlarged its facilities to this end.

The example is worthy of emulation in every sphere of commercial and industrial endeavor. What the Southern railway is doing is paralleled by other progressive transportation lines, notably the A., B. and A. and the Central of Georgia. It is in keeping with the spirit of the times and also with the interests of the railroads themselves; for, the welfare of every public service concern depends after all on the development of the communities about it.

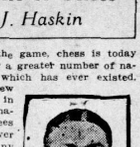
Our own opinion is that Montenegro will get pretty much what she asks for.

The two most important needs in a woman's life seems to be love and money.

At any rate, we can hear it on the phonograph until the next grand opera season opens.

The Royal Game of Chess

By Frederic J. Haskin



Despite the antiquity of the game, chess is today more popular as a pastime for a greater number of nations than any other game which has ever existed. The recent tournament in New York was reported in detail in the press of every European nation, while the chess devotees gloated as enthusiastically over each skillful move as will any baseball fan this season over the prowess of his favorite. The rules and regulations of the game of chess are the same throughout the world, and international tournaments are becoming more frequent each year. As with several of the other old games, chess in America has only recently come into popular favor, but its advance within the past half century has been phenomenal, and today there are hundreds of chess clubs in this country which are well supported, as well as six interstate associations and several leagues of chess clubs.

• • •

The game is becoming increasingly popular in the universities, and one of the strongest organizations is the C. H. Y. P. league of chess clubs which represents Columbia, Harvard, Yale and Princeton universities. The annual tournament of this league is an important event in the chess world. Several cable matches have been played by this league with the clubs of Cambridge and Oxford universities in England. Such a match was scheduled for this spring, but had to be postponed because the cable service could not be secured. In order to have a cable match there must be arranged the exclusive use of a cable for a day and a half. It was planned to have this match in March, but the cable companies could not promise the service during that month, and in April it was found to conflict with the examinations in the English universities, so that the challenge coming from the English universities to the American C. H. Y. P. league is now in abeyance.

• • •

While the university chess activities are regarded by the professional players as amateur, they are becoming increasingly important as the interest in the game entices a greater number of serious players. The University of Pennsylvania, as well as Brown and Cornell, have well-organized chess clubs whose matches add materially to the chess activities of the year. In the smaller colleges and even in the public high schools, both in Canada and the United States, chess is becoming listed among the sports. The Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences for three years has included chess among the lists of subjects for a series of lectures, and educators in many institutions pay tribute to the value of the game as a stimulus to the memory and the powers of observation of the player.

• • •

The origin of chess is usually credited to Persia, although it has been claimed for China and India, and by a recent Spanish archeologist, for Egypt. Each of these nations has legends and other traces of the game extending far back beyond authentic history. The earliest authentic history locates chess in Persia in the year 760, and the word chess is known to be of Persian origin, coming from the word "shah," meaning "king," and chess has been considered a game for kings from time immemorial. Originally it was played with dice thrown to indicate the number of moves. The dice have been discarded for centuries, and the old Persians played the game with a boat, an elephant, a horse, a king and four foot soldiers for each of the four sides, making thirty-two pieces in all. Although chess is a game for two players, there used to be four colors used. The red and yellow might play the black and white, each player having the pieces of two colors. Modern chess has the pieces in two colors only which are generally designated as white and black. Instead of the old Persian names, the modern player designates his chessmen as kings, queens, castles, bishops, knights and pawns, but the number remains the same.

• • •

The game found its first home in Spain towards the close of the fifteenth century, and in 1561 Ruy Lopez published his treatise which is recognized as the foundation of all modern chess. His work was republished in Venice, in 1634, and from that date the Italians became recognized for their chess dominance. The first chess champion seems to have been Paoli Boi, who defeated every master of his time, including Ruy Lopez himself. Paoli Boi was patronized by Catherine de Medici and by Sebastian, king of Portugal, both of whom conferred honors and gifts of money upon him.

• • •

Chess was not played extensively in England until about 1745 when a Syrian named Stamma appeared in British court circles and excited the admiration of the nobility by his skillful playing. The game appealed especially to the literary people who were becoming more numerous in England at that period. They did much to encourage chess spirit by exploiting the game in their writings. This tended to popularize it with the educated classes. For more than half a century England held supremacy in the chess world. She lost it when Howard Stanton, her champion, refused to meet Paul Morphy, the first important player ever produced in the United States and who is even now regarded by some as the greatest chess player the world has ever seen.

• • •

Morphy was born in New Orleans in 1837, and began to play chess when a boy of ten, being attracted to it by watching the games played by his father and uncle, the latter being at that time the leader of the New Orleans Chess club. Before he had completed his school life young Morphy's playing was pronounced unusual, and before he was twenty-five he had defeated Lowenthal, the Hungarian champion, and Eugene Rousseau, a player well known on both hemispheres, and a member of the most distinguished players in America. In 1857 he was induced to come north to attend the first American Chess congress which was held in New York. His successful contests with a number of world renowned players brought him directly into the limelight. A few years later he went to England to play against the English champion. After Stanton refused to meet him he went to Paris, where he played many brilliant games with the most skillful players of Europe. Paul Morphy died at the age of thirty, having in that time been able to place America on the honor roll in the chess world.

Some Stumbles in English

The following are examples of the struggles of the young Turks at college trying to learn our language:

Vapor is dried water.

Oxen, a kind of house animal that gives us milk.

Steam is a post which the water makes in the weather.

Hatchet, a place for make the hat.

I and my defunct mother were seated by the fireside.

Hear the tear of indigence is loaded over my thinks as a parasite.

We heard the baying of the hen, the baying of the cow, the bawling of the hare, and the croaking of the pigs.

Saltn, a kind of water which used to show the weather.

Scrubbed, to walk without boots.

Proud, a man who has no wise and do himself big.

Treacle, a swift food which is made of sugar.

We are too much glad because we are going to near from after a durable tiresome of toll to enjoy a repose in the arm of our village.

We have many chances in the college to improve the English language.—Missionary Herald.

The Orient and Christianity

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

If asked what is the most significant world-event of the last six months, I would say it is the formal request of the Chinese government that the Christian people throughout that country and all the earth unite in prayer for the welfare of the new republic.

China is not Christian; only a small portion of her people are of that religion.

It is the first time in history that a non-Christian nation has officially acknowledged the faith of Christian peoples by asking their prayers.

The various church boards in America responded to the appeal, and last Sunday petitions were offered up in our churches for the success of the Chinese experiment in self-government.

The deep meaning of this appeal from China lies in its distinct recognition of the power of Christian sentiment.

A similar act is that of a distinguished Japanese statesman who in the beginning of the California affair expressed the hope that Americans would grant them treatment in accordance with the principles of Christianity.

Familiarity breeds contempt in little minds. To many of us Christianity is so usual, so ingrained into our training and custom, that we forget what it is. When the Orient wakes up and looks upon this western scheme of life and faith it sees in it the grand lines of its imposing structure, and not its petty details.

The Orient, from the outside, sees the thing called Christianity not as we see it. It perceives a lofty spirit of personal conduct, a high program of life, an ideal plan for human society. In the perspective of distance the clash and narrowness of warring sects, the intolerance and selfishness of imperfect human nature fade into the huge outlines of astounding altruism.

Most of all, the deep-piercing Orient sees the essential democracy of Christian principles, and how the emphasis laid by Jesus upon the worth and dignity of the individual life is the real force behind successful popular government.

One-half of any religion is the people who have it. Christianity plus the Latin races means one thing, plus the Teutonic and Anglo-Saxon another, plus Americans another.

Both Romanism and Protestantism have disappointed the world. They have attained great successes; their breakdown has been no less marked. The servility and superstition of the Latin peoples and the robber instinct and hypocrisy of the Anglo-Saxons have produced base compounds when mixed with the pure altruism of Christ.

When Christianity shall have been taken up by the Orientals I think it will produce a religion vastly in advance of our own. The eastern character is more assimilable to the theories of Jesus. It is more simple, more earnest, more imaginative. It has not that curse of getting-on that cheapens and hardens the western soul.

Every advance of western civilization has been brought about by a touch from the east. The renaissance came from the fall of Constantinople and the spread of Greek learning through Italy. Always the east has rejuvenated the west. From the Orient came mathematics, philosophy and all religions.

When Christianity shall have been folded back upon the Chinese and Japanese it will produce a religion as far in advance of the thing we call Christianity as we are in advance of paganism.

The missionaries invading China are building more wisely than they know. For if ever the Orient becomes Christian it will shame us. It will simply and sincerely follow the teachings of Christ. We, calling ourselves Christians, practically declare that the principles of Jesus will not work; that He was an impractical dreamer. With our armies and prisons, our worship of force, our distrust of human nature, our laws of inheritance, and our Juggernaut of business prosperity ruthlessly grinding the humanities beneath its wheels of progress, we sneer at the spiritual laws of Christ as "an iridescent dream," all the while giving him fulsome mouth-worship.

If the Orientals, as they bid fair to do, take the teachings of Christ seriously, it is they that shall rule the future; for it is not the violent and cruel but the meek that shall inherit the earth.

JUST SMILES

'Twas eventide. The small lad stood on the bridge slapping his hands vigorously. Beyond the brow of the hill a dull red glow suffused the sky.

"Ah, little boy," remarked the stranger, who was a little near sighed, "it does my heart good to see you appreciate such cloud effect."

"Yes, sir," replied the lad. "I've been watching it for ten minutes."

Upon the boy's face there appeared a smile of perfect bliss.

"A real poet without a doubt! And do you watch the sunsets often, little boy?"

"Sunsets? Why, that ain't a sunset, gov'nor, that's the village school house burning down."—What to Eat.

"And what did my little darling do in school today?" a mother asked of her youngest son—a second grader.

"We had nature study, and it was my turn to bring a specimen," said the boy.

"That was nice. What did you do?"

"I brought a cockroach, in a bottle, and I told teacher we had lots more and if she wanted I would bring one every day."

The little daughter of a clergyman stubbed her toe and said "darn!"

"I'll give you 10 cents," said her father, "if you'll never say that word again."

A few days afterward she came to him and said: "Papa, I've got a word worth half a dollar."—Everybody's Magazine.

An Irishman's house caught fire, and in the excitement he put on his trousers, hind side in front, and jumped out of a second-story window. Friends picked him up, asking "Are you hurt, Pat?"

Pat looked down at his trousers and exclaimed: "No, begorrah, I am not hurt, but I am fatally twisted."

This the object of these here addresses,
Why not get yourself a brush-and-comb?

Dr. Schulman Praises Love. Nothing Greater or Holier Than Unselfish Affection, He Says.—Times headline. Even Mr. Choate could sense nothing incendiary in such a headline.

It inspires L. B. C. to the imagination of additional heads, fringes!: "Dr. Parkhurst Lauds Truth. Noted Writer Extols Integrity as Virtue"; "Wilson Endorses Honesty. Chief Executive Speaks Approvingly of Well-known Trait."

I stood shaking and trembling—
I couldn't compose myself any better;
But how I wanted to cry
At the monotonous words, no letter.

My heart was as heavy
As if it were bound with a fetter;
Does everybody feel so badly
At the monotonous words, no letter?

Or am I so much to blame?
Could I compose myself any better?
I hardly think I could,
At the monotonous words, no letter.

OLD AGE DEFERRED

Echo From the Medico-Legal Society

A few generations back a man at 50 was considered old, gray-bearded, and waiting for death. Note the change today; at a meeting of the Medico-Legal society it was stated that a man of 50 ought to have forty good years ahead of him and, thus at ninety be in the fulness of maturity.

What if you have seen sixty, or even seventy birthdays—temperate habits, fresh air and exercise, with a simple diet and a sufficient amount of sleep will guard your health.

If perchance, your circulation is poor, if you become run down—weak and no appetite—nothing in the world will tone up those tired backsliding organs—enrich the blood and create strength so quickly as our delicious cod liver and iron tonic Vinol.

We ask every feeble, discouraged old person in this vicinity to try Vinol on our agreement to return their money if it fails to give satisfaction. Elkin Drug Co., Atlanta, Ga.—(Advt.)

RHEUMATISM COMES FROM CONDITIONS WHICH CAN BE REMEDIED

But Local Applications on the Skin Cannot Get at the Cause of Your Suffering.

Just a bilious attack and a slight deposit of uric acid. Now calomel and similar mercurial purgatives do not dissolve and expel the uric acid sediment that forms from undigested, fermenting foods, and when this poisonous acid is not expelled it accumulates quickly, thickens the blood and settles in joints and muscles. The joints and muscles then become stiff.

An attempt to cure this rheumatism must be directed toward removing uric acid from blood and tissues, breaking up the crystalline urates already formed and preventing new deposits.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is remarkably successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It dissolves uric acid out of the tissues, holds it in solution and expels it in the urine. It thoroughly cleanses the system of fermentation and purifies the blood. It will give prompt relief in all cases of rheumatism resulting from uric acid poisoning.

If you are suffering with rheumatism, try JACOBS' LIVER SALT immediately. It will relieve you more promptly and surely than anything else. LADY ATTENDANT

Nowadays college men favor real, custom looking shoes—gentlemen's styles, like the Arlington

Each season the gulf widens between a gentleman's shoe and the so called "popular" style. Today you will find the gentleman's shoe devoid of noticeable features—it is almost entirely plain in its general effect. Its shape is "human," yet, by reason of that "custom look" which Regal workmen build into a shoe, Regals look their class. Note the characteristics of this Arlington model: plain stitched tip (no perforations); smartly trimmed sole edge; graceful, semi-narrow toe with receding slope; flat tread and broad shank; and low custom heel.

RENEWED BEAR PRESSURE CAUSED BREAK IN COTTON

Marekt in New York Closed 8 to 16 Points Down From the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 2.—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 4 points. The sharp rally from the recent low level seemed sufficient to attract a renewal of local bear pressure in view of continued favorable weather, somewhat more favorable European political news and a private report placing the increased acreage at 4.7 per cent. On the other hand there was continued covering, as well as further support from reactionists, and after selling short for 5 points not lower the market rallied to about yesterday's closing.

The market turned easier late in the forenoon under realizing by recent buyers and a renewal of bear pressure. Prices at midday were 9 to 11 points net lower.

After showing a net loss of from 10 to 17 points, the market steadied up 3 or 4 points from the lowest during the early afternoon on renewed covering and rather more favorable week-end figures than had been expected.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 2.—Cotton futures opened steady at a decline of 2 to 6 points in spite of good cables. Brokers appeared to have an accumulation overnight of selling orders based on favorable weather and crop accounts. A private estimate on the acreage showing an increase of 7 per cent, also stimulated selling. First prices were the lowest in the early forenoon. Good buying set in and offering decreased and the market rallied at the end of the first half hour business prices were 1 to 3 points over yesterday's close.

Around the middle of the morning offerings from the short side increased and weighing lungs sold out. The ring did not take this cotton well and prices soon crumbled away, the market receiving no support at all except the bull side, as it went down. This encouraged bears who had looked for support from long buying on soft spots, because of the bullish circulars that have been issued during the last day or two. At noon the price was 8 to 9 points under yesterday's close.

Thompson, Towle & Co.: Would not sell short except on some definite reverse.

Norden & Co.: We would not be surprised to see a further advance.

Miller & Co.: We believe the present attitude simply offers a better selling basis.

Norman, Mayer & Co.: Watch weather closely, if continues good would sell this advance, but would July for a quick turn.

COTTON SEED OIL MARKET

NEW YORK, May 2.—Cotton seed oil market was moderately active and steady, prices being easy under liberal tenders on contract and with the lower selling in lard and cotton. Later months were steady on buying of July by refiners and speculative support. There was some liquidation in August, but offerings were readily absorbed by commission houses.

Close-Pennington says: The cotton market swung from intensely bearish to intensely bullish and at the close yesterday outspoken low prices for the season sufficient to attract a renewal of local bear pressure in view of continued favorable weather, somewhat more favorable European political news and a private report placing the increased acreage at 4.7 per cent. Dow Jones' summary: Vulcan Detinning Co. board reelected. Vienna dispatch says the emperor of Austria has called war council for today. Charles Schwab says the new tariff will be a help rather than a hindrance to the steel industry, but he will not quit. Interstate commerce commission to demand positive proof that any freight rate advance is necessary. California by large unamended anti-alient land bill today. A senate at Albany passed income measure prohibiting discrimination by stock exchange against consolidated. Atlantic Refining Company declares 9 per cent wage increase, but it is not satisfactory. President of the Knickerbocker Ice company, says there is a shortage of over 1,000,000 tons. Twelve industrials advanced 1.08. Twenty active rails advanced 1.09.

The foreign situation seems to be improving, but you can never tell how long it will last, says some of the representatives of the nations involved are hard to satisfy. If foreign quiet continues good stocks will probably work higher and should be picked up on recessions.—Potter.

Chicago Inter Ocean says: The local long interest in wheat has been reduced somewhat of late, and there is a disposition on the part of forts to bull the market for a week with indifferent success. Commission houses look for lower prices today, should good rains come in Kansas, and if foreign markets show a decline. It is said by those who know that the recent heavy selling of corn by the Armour Grain company has been to take profits on their purchases of the past two months. Shorts are talking of a larger movement, while the bulls regard the situation as one in which there is little necessity to be made on either side for the present, but believe that corn is worth the money and o not look for much change in prices until some new factor develops of sufficient importance to largely increase trade either way.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co. say: Wheat—The market will probably be lower today in sympathy with the weakness abroad, but we continue to feel strong on the cash situation. Corn—The market shows signs of weakness, although new speculative buying at the moment is rather limited. Oats—We prefer the long side of the deferred futures on weak spots. Provisions—Cash trade continues to show improvement and there is more or less investment buying of the deferred future.

Finley Barrell has been a heavy seller of corn.

Omaha wires: Western Union reports good rains at Columbus and Schuyler, Neb.

Cash houses operating in west report heavy acceptances of wheat overnight on their bids to the interior.

Bradstreet's estimates wheat shipments for the week exclusive of North America at 8,000,000, against 9,448,000 last week. Of this total Europe will take about 7,200,000.

Armour and Fitch sellers of May oats. The buying is scattered. Armour a good seller of September oats also. Commission house sellers of July and wheat. Logan and Lamson have been fair buyers of July wheat.

HAYWARD & CLARK COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 2.—This morning's map shows that the cold wave remained practically stationary for the states during the past 24 hours. Cloudy weather prevails over the western belt, with light rains in the eastern half, warmer generally; no rain. Prospects are that the extensive rain storm formation now over Arizona and New Mexico will move eastward over northwest Texas and Oklahoma and cause unsettled and rainy weather in the western states, while fair weather will continue over the eastern portion of the belt. The cold wave should follow in the wake of the storm area, but nothing definite can be said about its course before Wednesday. While there is no positive political news, the advance in consols and rentes reflects an improvement in views.

Liverpool was strong at the opening of our markets, but weakened considerably in the last hour. Sales continue large, total 10,000 today at 12 points higher quotations.

After the rather extensive covering of yesterday, our market ruled quiet and easier this morning. Absence of bad weather overnight and prospects of bearish mill takings this afternoon discouraged support. New York and Liverpool are still to the effect that the general short interest is large and that larger interests are in favor of further reaction.

Norden and company make the increase in acreage 4.7 per cent; spots continue dull but are unchanged in price. The contract market is quiet, considering the possibility of further easiness on bearish mill takings, but there is no great inducement to sell. Weather developments over Sunday and prospects of improving politics hold action in suspense.

STERRATT TATE ON COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, May 2.—From reports from Georgia and Alabama, conditions are not what they are generally understood. Seed are described as being very bad, germinating partly on account of the bad seed as well as dry weather. One telegram said there had been no rain since March. Aside from these reports I think the technical position of the market is becoming stronger daily.

Notwithstanding the advice the short interest in this is accumulating rapidly and while the volume in evidence is not so large in point of figures the proportion is. The number of contracts open is large and the disposition to sell this market on the way up, I think, will prove a bullish factor and cause a gradual advance rather than a sharp one with only temporary setbacks. This will be the case especially if the reports continue to verify Miss Giles' report. While sentiment is pretty decidedly bearish, I would be careful of the short side for the present and would rather work to the long side on all decline.—Tate.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Financial Bureau says: Europe is again hopeful of avoiding a big war, the situation appears to be more settled. A continuation of bullish tactics may be seen today with renewed activity in individual issues. NEW YORK COTTON LETTER

NEW YORK, May 2.—Our market did not respond to Liverpool owing to the general selling. The rumor was freely circulated the heavy short covering of yesterday had about exhausted the buying power. Commission houses say that further short covering of July was the principal support. Liverpool was said to be selling July. There is no question that the short interest in July has been reduced and to a safe sense of May contracts taken up have been resold and will be returned, as Liverpool interests are selling the actual, are disappointed with much of it. I understand, however, freight room has been engaged for about 25,000 bales and that very little additional cotton will be shipped from this month. A feature of a squeeze in July has been the strength in the market and with this out of the way there will be no disposition to force a rally. The crowd to sell the market short just so long as other conditions continue as they are. Private sentiment continues very bearish.—Anderson.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET HEAVY IN LATE TRADING

Market Lost All the Early Gain on the Weakness in a Few Specialties

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 2.—Some of the active stocks eased off at the opening today after showing slight advance, but most of the list held fairly well. Lehigh Valley and Canadian Pacific, which lost a point each, were the heaviest. Steel and St. Paul were fractionally lower. The copper shares and Illinois Central made further gains.

After absorbing a considerable quantity of profit taking sales the list began to mend by 11 o'clock and stock were quoted fractionally above yesterday's close. Southern Pacific, Can and Pacific were especially strong.

Foreign political news continued to dominate the market. Favorable selling having ceased and liquidation having been completed in the early hours, bull traders found little opposition in marking up prices.

While the main movement was upward, heaviness developed in a few issues, offsetted a uniform upturn.

Weakness in New Haven caused a resumption of pressure elsewhere and noon prices averaged below yesterday's close.

Small offerings depressed the market further after noon. Sugar, Reading and Union Pacific shares had a depressing effect on the speculative issues.

Traders sold rather more freely on the unexpected display of weakness in Pullman and Virginia-Carolina. Weakness in Western properties respectfully. Most of the leaders showed losses of a point or so.

NEW HAVEN ROAD GAVE REPUBLICANS $102,000

President Mellen Says Apparent Profits in Stocks Were Reimbursed to Him

(By Associated Press.)

BOSTON, May 2.—President Mellen, of the New Haven railroad, appearing in his own defense before the Interstate commerce commision today, gave an unexpected explanation of some of the figures in the New Haven's books.

According to the government expert accountant, David E. Brown, there appeared an apparent profit of $102,000, made by Mr. Mellen, personally, by trading in the stock of the railroad company.

Mr. Mellen testified that the money in question had been used in political contributions in 1904.

Fifty thousand dollars went to the Republican national campaign fund, he said, and other amounts to aid Republican state campaigns in New York, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Mr. Mellen advanced the money and the railroad company reimbursed him. He said in part:

HOW CONTRIBUTION WAS GIVEN.

"The transactions by which 15,835 shares of New Haven stock were sold to me in March, 1904, and I gave my notes to the New England Navigation company, have been questioned.

"This stock was treasury stock and had to be listed on the stock exchange in order to be sold to the public.

"In order to list it, it was sold to me and I gave my notes to the company which held the stock as collateral until sold.

"All these shares were sold at the best obtainable prices and the entire proceeds, together with the dividends, paid to the company's treasury.

"The company received approximately $102,000 more than the price at which the stock was sold to me.

"Between the time of the sale to me and the closing of the transaction I had personally given out of my own funds considerable amounts exceeding in the aggregate the sum of $102,000.

GAVE TO PROTECT PROPERTY.

"These expenditures I had made absolutely because I was president of the New Haven railroad.

"In 1904 I contributed $50,000 to the Republican national campaign fund and other sums for the Republican campaigns in New York, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

"On the closing up of the sale of these stocks, it appearing that an unexpected profit had been realized, my directors, who had been cognizant of my contributions for these purposes, thought proper to make me this allowance.

"I never personally received or retained one dollar to my own profit or advantage.

"All the transactions were fully explained to the auditing committee and were satisfactory to them as expenditures in furtherance of the company's interest and protection of its property."

The Music club succeeded this year for the first time in making a little balance through a season of music and they feel they can now undertake bigger things.

Yale Students Go Back to Knickers In Fancy Colors

(By Associated Press.)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 2.—Back to knickerbockers is the cry at Yale. The seniors set the fashion suddenly as a May day surprise by appearing in chapel yesterday clad in "knickers." Most of them wore gray, but a few ventured out in greens and browns. The other classes liked the idea so well that the tailors are swamped with orders for the new campus garb and unless the seniors establish patent rights to their innovation it is probable that a majority of the students will be seen in "knickers" from now on until commencement.

MRS. WILSON INTERESTED IN PENSIONS FOR WIDOWS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The subject of pensions for indigent widows is being considered today by the local Associated Charities as the result of the interest taken by Mrs. Wilson, wife of the president, in the subject.

Mrs. Wilson appeared unexpectedly yesterday at the conference of the association in which the question was discussed. Two cases of destitution were under especial discussion. While no definite plans were made looking toward the pension system, it was determined that gratuities would be granted only aftere the exhausting of possibilities of aid for the unfortunates from relatives, former employes, churches or other organizations. It also was held that a thorough investigation into the scheme and expenditures of each case should be made.

Mrs. Wilson and her daughters have taken a personal interest in uplift work since they came to the White House.

A company is being promoted here for the express purpose of developing the necessary lands for the colonization work to be done and it is believed within a short time Ware will send in a request for two or three colonies of from twenty to thirty families each.

MILEAGE REFORM MAY REACH PRESENT CONGRESS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Personalities between Representatives Palmer, of Pennsylvania, and Humphrey, of Washington, which the latter attributed to a recent fight led by Mr. Palmer against the present system of paying mileage to senators and representatives to and from their homes today caused renewed discussion regarding mileage reform. It was freely predicted that there would be a reduction in the allowance which now aggregates $175,000 each session.

Phillips Leaves Fort

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 2.—It is not often that the commanding officer of a military post is given such a send-off as Colonel Phillips received at Fort Screven yesterday morning when he bade the men good-by before leaving for the Pacific coast, where he is to be stationed in the future.

COLUMBUS TO WELCOME TEMPLARS OF GEORGIA

Program Is Arranged for Annual Conclave of State Commandery

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COLUMBUS, Ga., May 2.—Grand Commander F. T. Petri, of the Knights Templar of Georgia, today announced a tentative program for the approaching annual session of the organization, which meets in Columbus May 14.

The Racine hotel is to be headquarters for the grand commandry, which is to be attended by many of the most prominent citizens of Georgia. Owing to the lateness of the hour for the arrival of the trains on the first day, the grand parade will not take place until 12:30 o'clock. It will form in front of the hotel and will pass through the main sections of the city in command of Grand Captain General B. F. Hardeman, of Athens, Ga., assisted by Sir Knight W. A. Capps, adjutant.

Following the parade the Knights will repair to the asylum in the Masonic temple, where addresses of welcome and responses will be made, these exercises being open to the public. An intermission of thirty minutes will be had at 3 o'clock for a luncheon, which is to be prepared by the ladies. Following this luncheon, the first business session is to be called for by Commander Petri. At 5 o'clock in the afternoon all visiting Knights, their wives and sisters are to be guests of St. Aldemar commandery, Columbus, at a delightful 'cue out at the Country club, north of the city.

In the evening at 8:30 the annual templar service will be held at Trinity Episcopal church, this service to be in charge of the Rev. Sir Knight Troy Beatty, of Athens. A double quartet will sing. The annual templar address, which is to be a feature of the service, will be delivered by Past Grand Commander G. M. Napier, of Atlanta, one of the best known and most popular Knights of the state.

The second day's session will be held in the asylum at the temple, when reports will be submitted, followed by the election of officers and the naming of the next meeting place. From 12:30 to 2:30 a public reception is to be held in the upper floor of the temple, to which the general public, including the ladies, are invited. A special orchestra will dispense music. Various drilling contests will feature the closing of the session.

The Cosmopolitan Life Insurance Company

OF ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Is not the Old Cosmopolitan which failed, but the new company, with new charter, new officers, new ideals and new cash, which bought the assets and insurance of the old company at public sale, and added to these assets enough additional capital to make the new company an absolutely sound financial institution.

Upon verification and approval by the Insurance Department of the State of Georgia, of its detailed statement of assets and liabilities, The Cosmopolitan Life Insurance Company, of Atlanta, has been granted license of date May 1, 1913, and has already actively entered the field.

Following is a brief summary of the statement of the condition of The Cosmopolitan Life Insurance Company, upon which the Insurance Commissioner of Georgia issued the Company its license:

Capital and Surplus $260,036
Undivided Profits . 108,539
Net Assets	$368,575

NOTE—The above statement does not include stock notes, amounting to $137,478.62, and accrued interest, which were acquired in the purchase of the assets of the old Cosmopolitan Life Insurance Company, since the exact value of same has not been determined. Neither does the above include the value of approximately Two Million Dollars of insurance acquired from the old company, which is free from agency charges of any kind.

Attention is called to the fact that this company begins business with $368,575.70 of actual available assets, of which $260,036 is capital and surplus, subscribed at two for one, or $100 surplus to each $100 capital stock; and $108,539.70 is undivided profits acquired from the purchase of the assets of the old company. With other assets not included in the foregoing, but explained above, THIS COMPANY ACTUALLY BEGINS BUSINESS WITH ITS STOCK WORTH MORE THAN THREE FOR ONE ON ITS BOOKS. Sweet Simplicity Is Expensive

The summer girl will be gowned very simply, but trust the dressmaker to find a way to make these simple frocks expensive.

The girl pictured is wearing a one-piece white batiste gown and a simple black satin covered hat, but there is about fifty dollars' worth of bird of paradise feathers on the hat.

Every woman knows that sweet simplicity is expensive when it comes to dress.

STUDY AND LECTURE COURSE PLANNED FOR G.H.S. ALUMNAE

A plan was outlined and enthusiastically received in a meeting of the class chairmen at the home of the president of the Alumnae association of the Girls' High school yesterday afternoon.

This plan provides for a course of study to be carried on by the members who desire it, along the lines of sociology, literature, or art. Monthly meetings were proposed at which the business of the association could be transacted and the class or lecture work done.

The idea is that a really attractive and serious course can be given, which will be a pleasure as well as a privilege to the members of the association. The course would be so planned as to lead up to to the work covered by the spring lectures.

For example, if a Browning course is to be given in the spring, the work of the classes would be preparatory for Browning. If the lectures chosen should be on the great reformers, the courses would probably be sociological. If lectures on art be preferred, the work done by the classes in the monthly meetings would be in the history of art or some allied theme.

The plan has a twofold advantage: it would offer something definite and worth while in a cultural sense, and it would serve to give social coherence to the organization. Heretofore, the activities of the association have been confined to the spring season and the period immediately preceding commencement. It is believed by those interested that the results will more than justify a departure from this method.

Of course, the discussion of the plan Wednesday afternoon was informal and the matter will have to be duly presented to the directors of the association for consideration and action.

Meantime the president will be very glad to have expression of opinion on the subject from any member of the association.

Story-Chambliss

ASHBURN.—The marriage of Miss Euniedilla Story, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Story, and Mr. Jesse George Chambliss, of Americus, Ga., occurred at the Ashburn Methodist church Wednesday, April 30, at 12 o'clock.

Preceding the ceremony, "Oh, Promise Me," was sung by Miss Rhoda Van Buskirk, of Detroit, Mich., accompanied by Miss Hazel Turner on the piano. Mendelssohn's wedding march was rendered by Misses Mary John Murray and Annelle Trasher on the violin and piano, while the party came to the altar. The ushers were the first to come. Messrs. J. J. Story and Edwin Murray, of Americus, in one aisle, and Messrs. Calvin Carter and Inman Griffin in the one opposite. These crossed in front of the altar and took their stand between tall jardiniere stands on either side of the chancel. Following these came the bridesmaids, Misses May Story and Laura Essie Whiddon, dressed in white serge coat suits with white melence hats and carrying obuquets of pink roses and sweet peas, and stood just in front of the ushers. The groom and his best man, Mr. Gordon Howell, of Americus, then entered on the right, while the bride advanced on the left on the arm of her elder brother, Mr. Warren Story, who gave her away. Rev. W. E. Towson, pastor of the M. E. church, met them at the rail and performed the ceremony, using the ring. The bride was neatly dressed in a traveling suit of blue with hat to match. The party proceeded to Americus and were entertained at a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs J. L. Chambliss, parents of the groom.

Use only a small pinch of baking-soda. Use fresh sweet milk, with only a little cream in it, if any. After you mix the soup and the milk let them come to boiling-point; but do not let them boil.

Preparing this delightful bisque or "cream-of-tomato" as it is often called is very simple. And you could not serve a more tempting and satisfying dinner-course.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Peter Rabbit had been hiding under the henhouse just outside of Farmer Brown's dooryard ever since the black, black night had begun to give way to the glad, bright day. You see, he wouldn't have dared to go up there in daylight, for fear that some one would see him. So he had gone there in the night, for Peter is one of those whose eyes are made for seeing either night or day. He had found the hole under the henhouse just where Jimmy Skunk had told him he would find it, and he had crept in and made himself as comfortable as he could. Now he was waiting and waiting for jolly, round, red Mr. Sun to climb up in the blue, blue sky so that everybody at Farmer Brown's would wake up.

Little rays of light crept under the henhouse. A rooster crowed and made Peter jump almost out of his skin. He had heard roosters crow before, but always at a distance. This one was almost over his head, and it startled him so that he almost squealed with fright. Pretty soon he heard the hens jump down from their perches, and with every jump Peter's heart jumped too. Then he heard Bowser the Hound yawn and rattle his chain. Peter peeped through a little crack, and there was Bowser stretching himself in front of his little house, and so near that it seemed to Peter that Bowser must surely smell him.

A door slammed and in a few moments Peter heard footsteps. Then he heard the voice of Farmer Brown's boy as he stopped to talk to Bowser the Hound. Then the footsteps drew nearer and thumped on the floor over Peter's head. Farmer Brown's boy was collecting the eggs. Poor Peter Rabbit! He tried to tell himself that it was foolish to be afraid. Nobody knew that he was under the henhouse, and so, of course, there was nothing to be afraid of. But somehow he just couldn't help being afraid. Every sudden sound made him jump almost out of his skin. You see he never before was quite so close to Farmer Brown's house, and he couldn't help but feel that Farmer Brown's boy and Bowser the Hound must know that he was there and be watching for him. He longed to crawl out the way he had come in and trust to his long legs to take him safely to the Green Forest.

But every time he thought of this he shut his lips tightly and tried to forget that he could run.

The bravest folks are those whose hearts
Go pit-a-pat with fear,
But still refuse to run away
From danger drawing near.
He's twice as brave who does a deed
He is afraid to do
As he who does a mightier act
Yet says no fear he knew.

So, though Peter Rabbit was shaking with fear so that his teeth chattered, he really was very, very brave, for you see he could have run away and didn't. And it was all because he had promised Johnny Chuck to try to find out what had become of Johnny's baby, Chuck, whom Farmer Brown's boy had caught and carried off. So in spite of all his shaking and jumping Peter's bravery was the very bravest kind of bravery.

Peter found that he couldn't see much of the dooryard from under the henhouse. He could see a big woodpile that looked as if it might have hiding places. He would try it anyway. So when the way seemed clear he crept out and hurried over to the woodpile. Before he had a chance to hunt for a hiding place Bowser the Hound came out of his house and saw Peter. "Bow, wow, wow!" roared Bowser and pulled at his chain so that it seemed as if it must break. Peter didn't stop to look for a hiding place under the woodpile. He saw an opening under the porch of Farmer Brown's house and he dived in head first.

Hardly had Peter congratulated himself on his new hiding place when he heard a low growl. Peter looked over in the darkest corner and his heart almost stopped beating. There were two fierce greenish eyes glaring at him. It was Thomas, the big cat of Farmer Brown's. Peter didn't wait to look twice. He left by the same way he had entered.

"The Kayser" SILK Glove

is the World's standard silk glove—all other silk gloves are measured by the "KAYSER" standard.

The development of the "KAYSER" Silk Glove represents the attainment of an ideal, the achievement of which has not been hampered by restrictions of cost or time, nor influenced by a passing demand for features most aptly characterized as "talking points."

We could not afford to buy expensive advertising space "year after year," to tell the women of America that "KAYSER" Gloves are the best—in style, fit and finish—if it were not true.

"KAYSER" gloves "cost no more" than the ordinary kind—and are worth double in quality, fit and value.

Don't accept the "just as good" kind, there's a way to tell the genuine—"Look in the Hem"—if you find the name "KAYSER"—you have the kind that "don't wear out" at the finger ends.

Miss King's Party to Visitors

Miss Carolyn King was hostess at an informal bridge party on Friday afternoon at her home on Peachtree street, in compliment to Miss Elizabeth Winn, of Richmond, Va., who is the guest of Mrs. Hugh Lokey, and to Miss Hoby Young, of Washington, who is visiting Mrs. W. C. Humphries.

Auction bridge was played during the afternoon and the prizes for top score at each table were silk stockings.

Mrs. Porter King served tea from a prettily appointed table which had for its center a basket holding pale pink Killarney roses and fern, and the bonbons and ices continued a color suggestion of pink and white.

Eight friends were guests of the pleasant occasion.

Paper Chase

An interesting event of tomorrow will be the paper chase led by Mr. F. A. Savage and enjoyed by a group of Atlanta riders.

The party will meet at the corner of Peachtree and Fifteenth streets for the cross-country run.

Among the riders invited are Miss May Atkinson, Miss Helen Jones, Miss Martha Whitner, Miss Josephine Stoney, Miss Margaret McKee, Mrs. John Hill, Mrs. C. K. Ayer, Mr. Samuel Silcer, Mr. Westerfelt Terbune, Lieutenant Tucker, Lieutenant Evans, Mr. Frank Inman, Mr. McCullough, Mr. Royston Cabaniss, Mr. Wilmer Moore, Jr., and Mr. Charles Boynton, Jr.

Mission Workers Have Interesting Meeting

Those who were present at the quarterly meeting of the Atlanta Woman's union of Mission Workers at St. Luke's Episcopal church Wednesday afternoon counted themselves fortunate, for the program was most interesting.

Mrs. Nyn Hurt, president of the union, was in the choir. Evening prayer was conducted by Dr. Wilmer, and a beautiful tenor solo rendered by Mr. James Wardwell.

After a short business session Rev. Henry F. Cope, of the Religious Education association of Chicago, delivered a masterly address on "Character Development, Through Home, Church and School."

These meetings offer an opportunity for women of different denominations to meet and co-operate in Christian work, and all who can should avail themselves of these privileges.

Eastman Social News

EASTMAN.—What promises to be one of the leading organizations of this section of the state was instituted in Eastman, Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. A. L. Wilkins when a local chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution was formed by a number of the most prominent society women of the city. The new organization will be known as the Colonel William Few chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the following are charter members: Mrs. A. W. Beeler, Mrs. W. M. Dye, Mrs. J. C. Carr, Mrs. J. D. Williams, Mrs. W. R. Hall, Mrs. N. W. Hurst, Miss Fannie Kate Persons, Mrs. A. L. Wilkins, Mrs. T. H. Price, Mrs. W. McRae, Mrs. S. S. Stevens, Mrs. S. C. Bailey, Mrs. L. M. Peacock, Sr., Mrs. S. A. Edwards and Miss Rosalind Ione Waite. The following were elected as officers: Regent, Mrs. A. L. Wilkins; vice regent, Mrs. N. W. Hurst; recording secretary, Mrs. A. W. Beeler; treasure, Mrs. T. H. Price; corresponding treasurer, Mrs. T. H. Hall; registrar, Miss Fannie Kate Persons; historian, Mrs. William McRae. The first Monday in each month was decided on as the time for holding regular meetings. A study of Georgia history during the period of the American revolution will be taken up at the next meeting. An interesting feature of the initial meeting was an exhibition by the hostess of an old-fashioned spinning wheel that originally belonged to her great-grandmother. A delightful course of refreshments was served at the close of the meeting.

At the palatial home of Mrs. Theo Edwards on Wednesday afternoon there was organized a study class, composed of a number of Eastman's prominent women. Mrs. A. W. Beeler, who was the inspiration of this organization and who has so successfully formed clubs of this kind in many other towns, was elected president, and in a few well chosen words stated the object of the meeting. It is the purpose of this organization not alone to benefit its members by courses of instructive study, but to make of itself a real student of problems political and economic and to aid in civic improvements. The meetings for the summer months will be held every third Tuesday afternoon in each month at the home of the members, taken in alphabetical order. After the business of organization, delicious refreshments were served. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. A. W. Beeler; first vice president, Mrs. W. A. Wooten; second vice president, Mrs. A. P. Petway; recording secretary and treasure, Mrs. W. H. Edwards; corresponding secretary Mrs. J. D. Herrman; club circle, Miss Mary Edwards; press superintendent, Mrs. A. L. Wilkins.

Its organized efforts to cater to YOU, and please YOU as an individual, is responsible for the "tone" and exclusiveness of its offerings from day to day, of READY-TO-WEAR apparel.

The SOUTHERN SUIT & SKIRT CO. is YOUR store, for other reasons than authority of its styles, and the quality of its merchandise—

It is YOUR store because its policies throughout eliminate the possibilities of undesirable stocks, and keeps the store "brimming" with the bright NEW things that will delight you.

It is YOUR store, because its management studies the economies in the MAKING OF A GARMENT—and of the advantages in buying it. MR. GEO. W. SEAY, President of the SOUTHERN SUIT & SKIRT CO., has the guiding hand of a manufacturer's experience to coach the purchases for his store. His energies are centered on the promotion of his patrons' interests—

To example these ideas more expressively, the store will, on tomorrow, again offer that "stunning" line of RATINE and CRASH DRESSES, that have the fetching little style touches so eagerly sought, and so greatly admired.

The Dresses are profuse in their variety, and are sweet, fresh and charming; regular $12.50 values—you'll readily appreciate this fact when you see them—but Economy's Policy paves the way for your choice at $6.95. This offering will confirm the fact "THAT THIS IS 'YOUR' STORE!"

Thoughtful Buying Will Lower Your Cost of Living

By JOHN P. FALLON.

It has been laid down as economic law that lowered cost gained through simple change in supplying your wants carries with it no loss of pleasure in consumption.

This means you can oftentimes lower your cost of living by thoughtful buying — for example: Mercerized silk serves the purpose of its users and gives as much pleasure as the more expensive kinds. A sewing machine stripped of its nickel plate and artistic finish (but with the same mechanism) costs less than the original article. A coat lined with cambric costs less than one lined with high grade silk, yet the wear is practically the same.

You should think not only of what can be saved as between different articles and their uses, but as between different stores and buying seasons as well. Read the advertisements in THE JOURNAL closely and constantly every day and they will help you keep your cost of living down to a minimum. They will direct you to the right store at the right time.

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots, How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength from Jacobs' Pharmacy, and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—(Adv.)

HAPPENINGS IN LONDONTOWN

LONDON, May 3.—The king and queen spent the week in very plebian fashion, King George attending to state business, riding in the park, and strolling about the town; while Queen Mary, with that enthusiasm for which she is famed where quite "motherly" undertakings are concerned, paid visits to some of her poet instructions and friends. There is no doubt that the assassination of the late king of Greece has, as one courtier remarked, "messed things up a bit," but the season will soon be in full swing, and it may be accepted as a certainty that their majesties will make up for lost time when the round of social duties does commence. Their majesties also paid Queen Alexandra a visit.

By careful management the king's privy purse has received from the Duchy of Lancaster estates for last year the full revenue of $320,000, as in 1911. No further payments were made to the executors of the late King Edward, and it was therefore possible to increase the superannuation allowances, to provide for the heavier burdens of taxation, and to adjust some other expenses, without throwing the balance sheet out of gear. It may not be generally known that the chancellor of the duchy laid out $130,000 in buying land last year, and the rents of this additional property ought to bring up his majesty's Lancastrian revenues to $330,000 in the course of the next year or two. In order to carry out this operation, an overdraft was arranged with the estate bankers of no less than $60,000, upon which interest is being paid. Even monarchs have to cut their costs according to their cloth, but the idea of the king having to get a loan from his bankers in order to pay for a little bit of land is distinctly whimsical.

The prince of Wales has come off rather less lavishly out of his revenue as duke of Cornwall. In the previous year his royal highness' council took $422,500, but last year they had to be content with a paltry $406,750, out of which to pay also for the schooling of the younger princes. This does not mean that there was a slump in "duchies," because a balance of $87,500 was brought forward—more than $25,000 in excess of the balance with which the year began. This is a larger balance than King George used to hold in hand when he was duke of Cornwall, and its purpose is obvious. It means that the property is going to be nursed while the prince is in his minority, in order to improve the revenue when his royal highness comes into his own.

Before very long the question of a country house will crop up, and a larger demand will then be made upon the resources of the duchy estates. Remember that the heir-apparent will have to grant from the civil list, and will have to make do with what his ducal revenue brings it. As he takes after his royal mother in hating ostentatious extravagance like poison, he will be able to worry along quite comfortably even with a beggarly $406,750.

The promotion of the prince of Wales to commissioned rank in the navy, on the eve of his departure for Germany, was designed to enable him to become the guest of military officers abroad as occasion might serve.

Should he be present at the imperial wedding in Berlin, he will have a colonel's uniform to adjust to his kit. As such, he will not, in future, have to undergo the fatigue of regimental duty, but will put in some practical work with his chosen regiment by way of getting some experience of a soldier's life. The quidnuncs are saying that the prince will accompany the king when his majesty rides out to Hyde park to review the brigade of guards. It is only a guess, of course, and not a very good one, because his royal highness is not due home yet a while.

Let it be reiterated, that the prince of Wales is not to become a student of any Germany university. The king has decided that this experience is to be given to his second son, who has been having a fine time in the West Indies. Prince Albert is to make a tour of the Mediterranean ports, and will not be back home again until the middles on the Cumberland are paid off at the end of July. He is to go to Germany next year, and the arrangements will be made by his majesty when he goes to Berlin. It will be either Bonn or Heidelberg, and at present the balance inclines in favor of the latter, if opinion in the court environment goes for anything.

A certain peeress who makes a specialty of introducing rich women into society for a consideration got a nasty snub the other day from a wealthy lady to whom she had written offering her services. The lady in question replied she had something better to do with her money than to waste it.

A society ballet is the latest sensation for London. A popular duchess intends to arrange a function at which many prominent young dames who have been taking lessons in the Terpsichorean art will appear as ballerinas. They will be supported by a number of children, and the whole affair will be staged as a ballet under the supervision of a well known manager.

Now that the whole tragic story surrounding the deaths of the Crown Prince Rudolph and the Baroness Vetsera is to come out, it may be said that the poor young lady was the niece, through her mother, of the Mr. Baltazzi, who won the derby in 1876 with the Hungarian horse, Kisber. The Baltazzi brothers, her uncles, were the sons of a Greek gentleman who had made his "pile" in a most romantic fashion. His family settled in Austria and his children came into contact with the best sets through their interest in the turf.

No steps have yet been taken by Lloyds in regard to the mutual insurance of their fleets which the Cunard, International Marine and Hamburg companies have entered into. But if the movements grows to any extent it is said that action will be taken in the matter, so as to prevent, if possible, ship owners entering into active competition with the recognized insurance institutions.

HURLERS GOING BADLY YET THEY ARE STRONG

Past Performances Would Lead Fans to Believe That Staff Is Weak When Really It Is Strong Enough for Any Class A Club—Some of the Hurlers Are of Strong Class and When Their Arms Come Around Will Go at Good Clip

BY JULIAN MURPHEY.

Some days ago it was stated that the Atlanta twirling staff looked sufficiently strong for any good Class A club and in this opinion I have great faith despite the continued poor showing of several of the hurlers and the reports of several changes. Recent work does not bear out the contention that the five hurlers who compose the staff are really good enough for a team that is to be right in the running all the while, yet past performances show strong.

WEAVER AS EXAMPLE.

The best example of what a hurler is able to do, and just what he is now showing is demonstrated in the case of Buck Weaver.

Buck Weaver last season was with the New Orleans club, admittedly an organization that was not overly strong and yet he got away with 12 wins and 8 defeats and was not with the club all year. Buck attracted the attention of the majors and went to the Boston Braves from whom he was landed by Billy Smith. A good idea as to how the best batters regard Buck is contained in a recent latter from Mike Balenti, formerly with Chattanooga. When Buck was landed by Manager Smith it was Balenti who came through with a voluntary statement that Weaver was the most puzzling hurler he faced all during the 1912 campaign, and Balenti was a good hitter.

As yet Buck has been going decidedly punk. He won the first game in Chattanooga, but at that did not hurl such jum-up ball. Since then he has been worthless to the club. He complains of a bad arm and this may be the reason for his fahure to show.

Next in line is Jim Brady. Now nobody ever regarded Brady as a world beater, yet he has forgotten more about the hurling game than most the younger players down this way have ever known. He pitches with his head instead of arm, and to date has worked many good games and is sure to put over a few more good performances. Brady has not yet turned loose a bad game.

MUSSER'S WILDNESS.

Since Musser got away with his first three good games he has been hit a trifle hard and his wildness continues. But you must remember this climate is entirely new to the blonde boy, and he has not yet learned how to condition his arm. I don't care how sorry you think the pitching corps appears there is not a fan who can say that Musser hasn't an abundance of wares. His one greatest trouble is lack of faith in his ability to get 'em over. The fact that he has been wild causes him to quit putting all his puzzlers over the pan and strive to keep from walking the batter.

When the season opened there was no one who believed Price would be any particular star, yet this left-hander is proving the most consistent winner on the staff. Price has a lot of good curves and plenty of speed, and if he would only take the game more seriously it is probable that he would get away with a few better ball games. However, at that he is losing by only one run and always holds the opposition to a few runs.

EMORY WORKS FOR MEETING

OXFORD, Ga., May 2.—Emory's track team is hard at work in preparation for the Inter-City Meet with Mercer at Macon on May 10. Coach Peebles has his prospects in training and is taking great care of them.

The interclass track meet has been held, the Seniors winning a total of 53 points out of a possible 99. Carlton was high individual point winner, making 32 of the Seniors' counters. This event was a preliminary for the Mercer meet.

Coach Peebles has posted a list of the men who will journey to Macon next Saturday. They are W. A. Carlton, Dillard Lassetter, Purnell Mondrot, Davis Singleton, Asa Porter, Sam Belk, Evans Pattillo, Gus Muse, Joe Pagan, Jay Harper, Harold Sasnon, Willard Irvine and Cranston Williams.

The approaching meet is the first intercollegiate event Emory has participated in since 1910, when she was a party to a three-cornered affair with Georgia and Tech.

Princeton Lost

PRINCETON, N. J., May 2.—The University of Virginia won their second game of the year from Princeton by the score of 6 to 1 Wyndham, of Princeton, pitched good ball, but received poor support in the field. Neff held the Tigers to five scattered hits, three of which were of the scratch variety. Stickley starred for Virginia, with two singles, a double and three stolen bases to his credit.

Schwartz in Limit

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 2.—By selling Outfielder Jesse James to New Orleans at the waiver price, Manager Schwartz cut his team down to seventeen men and is now within the salary limit. The present players will be carried for some days, but it is expected that two more pitchers will be released in the near future.

Cobb Is Given Meagre Fine

Detroit Star Is Fined $50 and Reinstated by National Commission

CHICAGO, May 2.—Tyrus Cobb, Thursday, was formally reinstated in organized baseball and fined $50 by the national baseball commission. A decision by the commission, given out in answer to the Detroit player's appeal for reinstatement, condemned Cobb severely for his actions while "holding out." The Detroit club was commended for its recent stand and censured for its former passive policy regarding Cobb.

Notice was served on other clubs that in case of their failure to discipline players whose actions are "detrimental to the game," the comission itself will act.

The commission reserved news of any other action it may have taken, and if the proposed congressional investigation into the alleged baseball trust were discussed at all, as reported, it was ignored so far as a formal report is concerned.

Toronto Gets Record Price for Rudolph

TORONTO, Ont., May 2.—The Toronto baseball club has sold Pitcher Dick Rudolph to the Boston Nationals for $4,000 cash. Pitcher "Farmer" Brown, for whom the Bostons have received offers of $3,500 from American association clubs, and the pick of any of the Boston players turned back. This is a record price for Toronto.

Stallion Sold

CLEVELAND, May 2.—The sale of the Austrian-bred trotting stallion, Willy, 2:05, for shipment to Europe, was announced here today. The purchase price could not be learned.

BAILEY IS NURSING HIS INJURED FOOT

Outfielder Bill Bailey, of the Cracker crew, is working overtime to get his injured foot in shape so as to get back in the game. Bill is at the club house each morning by 7 o'clock and there he remains until late in the evening, using hot water applications in an effort to get the injured member in shape. Just as soon as the outfielder can bear to stand on his foot he will join the team and act as pinch hitter until he is able to play the outfield.

TODAY

(By Associated Press.)

CHATTANOOGA, May 2.—The third game of the Nashville and Chattanooga series will be played this afternoon. Weather is clear. Batteries: Chattanooga, Covelesky and Street; Nashville, Williams or McManus and Ludwig.

MOBILE, Ala., May 2.—Campbell will be on the mound for Mobile in the third game of the Montgomery series at Monroe park today and Brown will do the receiving. Manager Dobbs will work Manning and Gribbens. The weather is ideal for playing.

NEW ORLEANS, May 2.—Brenton with Angermeir behind the bat for New Orleans and Kissinger or Kroh or Seabaugh receiving for Memphis are the probable batteries announced by Managers Frank and Bernhard for the third game of the series. Neither manager had definitely decided as to who would work, as both clubs are going very poorly and in the midst of a fearful slump.

Manager Frank is expecting Outfielder James to arrive at noon from Nashville and if he gets here in time will replace Green in right field. Harry McIntyre, former major leaguer, telegranhed the local club he would arrive tonight.

JORDAN HAS NOT SIGNED

Otto Jordan, former Cracker star and ex-Lookout player, will probably play in the Southern league again this year. The local which was to send Otto to Clarksdale, Miss., as manager of that team in the Cotton States league, is now entirely off.

Otto is in Atlanta awaiting word from Southern league club. It is probable that one of them will sign him in the next fe wdays.

TENNESSEE VS. GEORGIA

ATHENS, Ga., May 2.—The University of Tennessee ball club is here Friday an dSaturady for games with the Georgia nine. These two clubs played one game earlier in the season and the Red and Black got away, so Coach Cunningham's men have to win but one game to get the series.

Right now it looks as if Georgia will win the S. I. A. A. championship, only the Tech team remaining in the way, and as good as an even break is all that is needed in these four games, Tech having lost to Alabama and Mercer.

Batting Rally Won Game, 7-4

Bisland, New Shortstop, Fit in Excellent in His First Battle

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 2.—With Gilbert Price pitching shutout ball in the pinches and the Crackers tapping the ball when the hits meant runs, Billy Smith evened up the series with the Barons here, taking the game 7 to 4. From an Atlanta viewpoint the game was best featured by the debut and good work of Shortstop Bisland, a recent addition from the Pittsburg Nationals.

One big inning—the sixth—gave the game to the Crackers. In this round five runners were sent home before the Barons could tag out the third man of the inning. Sloan began working for Molesworth, but when he blew up completely in the sixth Bill Prough was sent to the rescue and while Prough pitched good ball he was not equal to holding the hard hitting Crackers scoreless.

Whitey Alperman, the Atlanta field leader, was around there with the willow. The blonde athlete made just three hits in five trips to the plate, Bisland also chimed in the hitting column with two hits in four times up. One of the hits by the new shortfielder went for three bags and was a big help at the scoring end of the game. Smith was the other Cracker to get as many as two hits.

Besides hitting well Bisland played a jam up fielding game. At short he had eleven chances, and of this number he accepted ten. He also was in the only double play of the afternoon. The new batting order tried out by Manager Smith worked most excellently as shown by the victory following four straight defeats.

CITY LEAGUE TEAMS MEET FRIDAY NIGHT.

The teams composing the City league will meet Friday night at 97 Peachtree street to discuss the schedule for the coming season. Since it was announced that it is possible to secure the Tech field during the vacation months, the City league teams are anxious to make arrangements to use it.

SEWANEE FACES TECH; JACKETS NEW LINE-UP

Tigers Have Been Playing Jam Up Ball All Along and Will Go Strong Against the Local Collegians—Tech Team Slightly Crippled by Absence of Most of the Stars From the Line-up—Second Game to Be Played Saturday

The Sewanee team arrived in town early this morning for its two battles with Georgia Tech, Friday and Saturday afternoons at the flats. On each day the games start at 3:30 o'clock.

The team is evidently tired from its long road trip through Georgia and Florida. Starting last Thursday from the mountain, the Tiger players have staged six battles, playing Tennessee last week, meeting Mercer and breaking even with the Baptists Monday and Tuesday, and winning one out of three from the Florida boys Wednesday and Thursday. A double-header was played Wednesday.

Despite the fact that the Jackets will present a patched line-up to the Tiger guns, they have a fine chance to lick Sewanee. The Tiger hurlers have been worked overtime, and the men are tired. Coach Ware will probably pitch Egleston against Tech today, with Pat Dinkins, Atlanta boy and ex-Marist college all-star player, doing the receiving.

Heisman is close-mouthed as to what his line-up will be, but there is a strong probability that he will send an entirely new bunch into the field, with the exception of a few positions. Jack Donaldson, Scrappy Moore, Ed Magtague, Murphey Pound, and Fielder, it is reported, will warm the bench.

The reported line-up will be: Captain Montague, second base; Amason, first base; Woods, short; Clay, third; Witherington, catcher; Eubanks, pitcher; Malone, right; Dunwoody, center; Pitts, left.

The games today and tomorrow are certain to bring out a big crowd. This is the first time that Tech has been home in two weeks, save for one game, Fifth Wake Forest, the Atlanta club is out of town; and the opponents of the Jackets, it must be remembered, are the Sewanee Tigers, the team that licked Tech on the grid last year and which always is a big attraction.

There are a number of Sewanee alumni in town who are certain to turn out in full force to the game, and the Tech rooters will be there with bells on.

The probable Sewanee line-up will be: Egleston, pitcher; Dinkins, catcher; Jones, first; Whited, short; Hammond, third; Fanning, second; McGoodwin, Armbruster and Erwin, outfield.

Empire Starts First Season

The Empire State league cracked open its first annual season Thursday, the six teams which form the organization playing games in Brunswick, Valdosta and Cordele. Three thousand fans saw the Brunswick-Waycross battle, 1,750 witnessed the Thomasville-Valdosta game, and 1,170 blaring maniacs shouted while Americus went down in defeat before Cordele.

The games were good games, and show that these teams are going to make a hot race of it. All of the scores were rather close, although in one battle the pitchers were pounded rather freely.

Opening ceremonies marked the initial games in every city, and great enthusiasm was displayed by the fans. The Empire league looks as if it would be a hot little organization this year.

Several Atlanta boys are playing in the league. Coach Wahoo, of the University of Georgia, is managing the Waycross club, and the teams are dotted with ex-Southern league players.

GORDON VS. RIVERSIDE

BARNESVILLE, Ga., May 2.—On Friday morning Coach Bailey and Prof. Paul Rosser, in charge of the Gordon baseball team, left for Gainesville, where two games will be played with Riverside Military academy. This series will have considerable bearing on the prep championship, and for this reason each team will make every effort to land both contests.

The Gordon team has improved considerably in hitting and hopes to get away with at least one game. Slappey, the star southpaw, who has given trouble to every team he has worked against, will very likely work in the opener. McCord will be sent to the mound in the second. Mauzy, who had been counted on to twirl and win one game, is convalescing from an attack of measles.

Lamar Ham, who has given eminent satisfaction in the prep games all the season, will probably officiate in both games.

COMMODOERS WIN BATTLE

MACON, Ga., May 3.—By making eleven errors, Mercer dropped the first of the series to Vanderbilt Thursday afternoon by 6 to 5. The local team had *a lead of four runs up to the sixth in*ning when the fielders started to bootling, giving the Commodores the game.

To Decide National Wrestling Title

NEW YORK, May 2.—Several states are represented in the tournament to decide the national wrestling championship of the Amateur Athletic union, which is now under way here.

In the list of seventy-two entries there are young experts from as far south as New Orleans, and from the middle west. The finals will not be reached before tomorrow night.

Fight Bill Defeated

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 2.—The proposed anti-prize fight bill, making each motion of a prize fight in this state a *felony and attendance at one misdemea*nor, was defeated by a vote of 38 to 24 in the lower house last night.

Brady Works Third Battle

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 2.—The third battle between Atlanta and Birmingham will be staged Friday with Hardgrove opposing Brady. Fittery is held as relief hurler by Manager Smith.

The teams now stand even on the series and both are making strenuous efforts to cop the third game so as to gain an advantage for the final mixup on Saturday. *In the six games played be*tween the two teams to date Atlanta has won four and the Barons two.

Bisland will again be found at shortstop, with Frat Graham in right field and Dunn doing the catching. This lineup will probably hold good until the return of Bill Bailey.

FRESHIES IN FIRST PLACE

OXFORD, Ga., May 2.—Emory's interclass baseball race has been changed again and the standing is:

	P.	W.	L.	Pct.
Freshmen	6	5	1	.833
Sophomores	5	3	2	.600
Seniors	4	2	2	.500
Juniors	5	0	5	.000

Thursday afternoon was ideal for a prospective game, but for the schedule had been in practice, it ended in a sorry game, which is not charged to the weather, but to the disability of the Sophomores to stay on the ground thereby a victory for the Freshmen to the lopsided final of 12 and 2.

The Sophs corralled ten hits for a total of seventeen bags, and made ten errors, while their opponents hit out ten safe bingles for sixteen bases and played an errorless game.

Duncan, the Fresh, first sacker, was best with the willow, with three out of five, one being a triple. His teammates extra hitting was triples by Bondurant and Lane, while the Sophs,' slugging was for a three-bagger and double by Summers, both run for Stokes and a double for Porter.

The game was interfered with several times by clashes on the side lines of the two contestants' rooters.

Score by innings: R. H. E.

Sophomores	010 100 100—3 10 10
Freshmen	0 3 2 1 6 0 x—12 9 0

Sophomores, Porter, Summers and Cheshire, Porter; Freshmen, Merritt and Harris. Umpire, Turner.

Start Work Upon Macon Grandstand

MACON, Ga., May 2.—Work of erecting a new baseball grandstand at the Central City park has begun. The stand was totally destroyed by fire last week and for two days the patrons of the national game were forced to occupy temporary bleachers, chairs and other uncomfortable seats.

The work is being directed by Building Inspector Jim Holly, who says that he will have the contract let for the new grandstand up within three weeks. An extra large force of men are employed on the structure. The new stand will ..... here.

Mayor to Pitch First Ball

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ANNISTON, Ala., May 2.—Mayor J. L. White has been invited to pitch the first ball at the opening game of the Georgia-Alabama league in this city on Thursday, May 8, when the Anniston and Gadsden teams, old rivals in the Southeastern league pennant race, will meet in the fourth of a series of six games. Anniston opening at Gadsden on the fifth.

HOW GAMES WERE WON

Charley Stengel was the hero of the Brooklyn-Boston game Thursday. He *was responsible for three of the Dodg*ers' four runs, on his first attempt hitting for a home run, slamming out another circuit smash on the second, which scored Miller.

Silent John Hummel got three hits in the game between the Dodgers and the Braves.

Pittsburg lost its fifth straight when the Cardinals defeated the Pirates, 9 to 7, yesterday.

Vlox, playing short for the Corsairs against the Cards, got four hits, three singles and a double.

George Johnson, the big Indian hurler of the Reds, had the Cubs backed up yesterday, allowing them but five hits and four runs. It was Cinci's third win of the year, all three victories being credited to Johnson.

Alexander, who last week pitched an eleven-inning scoreless game against the Giants, shut out the same bunch Thursday afternoon, 1 to 0. Only one Giant reached third.

The only run of the New York-Philadelphia game was scored in the sixth on Alexander's grounder, Schafer's wild toss, and Knabe's two-sacker.

Keating, who has won every game that the New Yorks have won in the American league this year, hurled five innings well against the Athletics yesterday, but blew up in the sixth and allowed the Mackmen three runs.

The Detroit Tigre a suffered their seventh straight defeat yesterday, losing to the White Sox, who have already downed them four times this year. The Sox pounded George Mullin to every corner of the lot.

Captain Wagner, of the Red Sox, injured his digit in Thursday's game against Washington, and will be out of the fighting for a few days.

The Senators used four pitchers against Washington yesterday. Hughes lasted but four innings, during which time Boston scored four runs, winning the game, 9 to 2.

SPRING SONG.

We shall go, you and I, to the ends of the earth—
With the wandering wind and its unbounded girth;
Out lanes of the Morning, care-free, unopposed,
Through Noontide of Song unto Twilight of Rest;
And under the stretch of the star sprinkled sky
We shall follow the way of the Romany Rye.

We shall go, Pal of mine, out the length of the beat,
Where Twilight and Dawn in the purple hills meet;
In the heart of some valley, away from the fight
Our camp fires shall crimson the bleak hills of night;
And out from the drift, as the world hurries by
We shall follow the road of the Romany Rye.

BESPEAKING J. BIRMINGHAM.

In the midst of various upheavals whizzing about here and there no one seems to have kept close tab on a certain Mr. Birmingham of Cleveland, lately.

We have heard various comments as to what sort of a manager Birmingham is.

We leave these select opinions to those entertaining the same. All we have time to monkey with now is the printed record.

Last season Birmingham took charge of the Naps just as they were about to skid merrily out of the percentage column. In the parlance of another day they looked to be replete with prunes. Birmingham handled them through thirty-two games, winning twenty-six and losing six.

This spring Cornell Joe again assumed the clanking chains of management.

Ere these lines escape our stuttering pen he had won ten games and lost four, giving him a complete record of thirty-six victories out of forty-six starts for the juicy little percentage of .783.

We don't know whether Birmingham is a great manager or not. Both on and off the field we esteem him as a citizen of undeniable repute. And to his ability we are content to point to the .783 figures and let it go at that.

NAPS LOOK GOOD.

Cleveland looks better this spring than in a good many years. Birmingham has his pitchers going nicely, his infield working well and the famous Nap wrecking crew—Jackson and Lajoie—are only driving in about three runs per game. As team batsmen they have only averaged .387 for the last three years. Just .387—not a point more. No one is picking Cleveland to win any pennant but it would be no shocking surprise to see the Naps sit in around third or fourth place—or even wiggle a notch higher with any sort of break.

Speaking strictly as a noncombatant we'd like to see our old side kick, Larry Lajoie, get one whack at that world series flurry after seventeen seasons of stardom minus any part of it. To say nothing of observing Larry just once up in a championship series with the bases full and the score fairly compact.

THE BREAK OF THE GAME.

The break of the game—the harassing fortunesof war—have together already inserted a thick wallop into two promising contenders.

The announcement that young Foster, of the Senators, is stricken means a rasping blow for Griff, as Foster was one of his main cogs. The stocky third baseman had flashed within a year from obscurity into renown and the Senatorial infield will never look the same until he returns.

Over in Pittsburg Hans Wagner and Gibson are still ailing and Clarke is finding it hard to bear up without these two aides. We figured from the first that Pittsburg had no chance to beat out McGraw if Clarke bumped into unseemly luck. Now he may have a tough time heading off the rampant Cubs.

When the game cracks in this way against a ball club as it has cracked against Washington and Pittsburg, there's nothing to do but stumble along until the tide turns. You can't fill a star's place in ten days—and you can't ever foresee just when Fate will arise with the old mace and let fly. McGraw plays the safest system in this respect by taking it for granted that something will happen—and doing his gap-plugging in advance.

With apologies (To F. P. A. and Briggs).

These are the loudest of possible ha-has—
Evers to Tinker and Chance;
Gayest elations of alleachinnations—
Evers to Tinker and Chance;
Once there was lawfter in other directions,
Tinged with the smearing of sad predilections—
Now who is driving the cart marked "Confections"—
Evers or Tinker or Chance?

Motor Racing Most Exciting

Ninety Miles Hour on Atlanta Track by the Best Riders in the Game

With all the excitement of an automobile race, the generalship displayed in a horse arce and the daredevil finishes sometimes witnessed in every branch of sport motorcycle racing should prove a big hit in Atlanta. It is just the game Atlanta sport lovers have anticipated for years and now the dream is about to come true.

Jack Prince, the man who first under construction a big track right under construnction a big track right in Atlanta and during this month will stage motorcycle races. Jack Prince is no novice at this game and the very best in this line of sport is to be handed out to the Atlanta public right from the jump.

The motorcycle stadium over which the Atlanta races will be run is to be a ninety-mile-an-hour affair patterned after Mr. Prince's own idea, and it is said to be the best ever concocted in this line of work. Already the stadium is being erected on the old circus grounds on North Jackson street and will be ready for the first race on May 20. It is patterned after the biggest tracks in Chicago, Cleveland and San Francisco, where the highest mileage has been attained.

A good track without stars of the first water to run over it would indeed be a farce, but Mr. Prince has looked afte all this and has under his management the best riders in the country and they will all be brought right here for work before the Atlanta public. In other words, the management is preparing to give the Atlanta public the best in the game and its success is sure.

BUCK BECKER FREE AGENT

Rather than go to some weak minor league club, Pitcher Buck Becker Thursday purchased his own release from the Atlanta club and is now a free agent. It is likely that the tall boy will sign with some minor league outfit shortly.

Last season Becker went unusually strong and it was believed he would surely land a berth this season, but illness hurt his chances. His arm, however, is now rapidly coming around and he is good enough for any of the minors.

TIGERS TRIM FLORIDA, 4-2

GAINESVILLE, Fla., May 2.—Sewanee showed up in good form yesterday after losing two games to Florida and won a six-inning game by a score of 4 to 2. The game was called to allow the Tennesseeans to catch a train, after six innings had been played.

Gordon and Dinkens were at the points for Sewanee and Beeler and Tenny for Florida. Hitting was light on both sides.

CULLOP ANOTHER VEAN GREGG
—JOE BIRMINGHAM

DETROIT, Mich., May 2.—Give Nick Cullop the experience and he will make another Vean Gregg. That's Joe Birmingham's opinion of the well advertised Cleveland rookie. It's no secret that Birmingham would like to place the Virginia portsider in a minor league for another year's seasoning, but that's impossible. After all the boosting Nick got last winter there'd be as much chance to get waivers on Cullop as there would be to persuade Hughie Jennings to trade Ty Cobb.

So Cullop will stick on the Nap bench and get his experience by absorption instead of having it hammered into him in the bushes. Birmingham is in the same fix with Cullop that McGraw once found himself with Rube Marquard. The New York Giants' leader wanted to put Marquard in the bushes for a year's experience, but the $11,000 price Muggsy was reported to have paid for the Cleveland boy made it impossible to secure waivers. So it was not until he had adorned the Giants' bench for a couple of seasons that Marquard came into his own.

Birmy says Cullop has as much "stuff" as any left-hander in the business, but is green.

Cullop, however, has one advantage that was not possessed by Marquard when he broke into the National. Marquard was wild, while Nick's big asset is his control.

Reed Going Good With Davenport

Milton Reed, Atlanta boy and ex-Marist college star, is playing good ball with the Davenport team in the Three I league, where he was sent at the opening of the season by the St. Louis Nationals.

Milt has made a big hit in the Three I circuit, so the report goes, and is playing the best ball in his history. He belongs to the Cardinal club, and hopes to make a good enough showing this season to stick with them in another year.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

THIS same rule will apply to hogs, cattle and poultry, and as the original foundation blood means all to you in the beginning a person can not be too careful about their beginning and know something about the parent blood or what is behind either the fowls or animals that you make your beginning with. The male at the head of a flock, be it fowls or animals, usually should be counted at not less than 75 per cent. of your future prospects, and a person can not be too careful in selecting the very best males to head their flocks.

This applies to live stock and poultry it can be applied to farming operations of all kinds just the same. It is far better for a man to buy an up-to-date, rich, fertile, well cared for farm and pay five times as much money for it or have one-fifth the number of acres as it is to attempt to build up a poor worn-out farm. A person can usually take a good place and make enough money on it to more than pay the difference or pay for it before they can build a poor place up to a point where they can even make expenses on it. It is a big mistake any one makes to attempt to build up and make fertile a large number of acres in a short length of time. It can not be done without an immense amount of money, and even then not profitably. Time is valuable and it is far better for a person entering the poultry business or the live stock business or wanting good seed to pay a good price and start right for good foundation blood from some breeder who has sent a lifetime in producing something good. It is better to start in a small way with the right kind of blood and after your many years' work has been accomplished you will find yourself with something that has value to it and will always sell, and the difference in the end, as outlined with the herd of cattle, amounts to several hundred times more than the small difference will amount to in starting right.

The best that can be had is none too good in starting and a person can not be too careful in making their selection in founding a herd, flock or farm, and more time and thought should be given in the beginning than many now are paying to this particular point of selecting your foundation start. I see the effects of this work nearly every day and one reason so many of us make mistake in starting as wet do is because we have never been taught to pay attention to these differences, have never experienced them, and therefore but few of us are in a position to note such differences as now exist. If a person makes up his mind and will start out on the right lines in any line of work that there is any money to be made out of, get a start, stick to it and it will be made out of, get a start, stick to it and accomplish independence in time to come to it they will only stick to what they have set out to do and work to accomplish that certain purpose.

I have in mind a breeder of Jersey cattle who I have watched carefully from his beginning to the present time. This party started in an humble way with a few good animals. He studied and cared for them, and patient, was willing to work and wait, and the time did come in less than fifteen years from his beginning when he disposed of at two public auction sales enough animals of his own breeding to bring him in more than $40,000, and these were converted into cash without two days' efforts, showing that a person can build a fortune out of live stock if he will work to certain ends and can convert it quickly into cash, just the same as a person can in the real estate business or any other line of effort. These things are so noticeable and confront us every day in life and make such impressions that a person who is interested in this line of work can not help but call attention to these facts and is so thoroughly convinced that there is an opportunity for all of us that will start right and work for certain purposes but few will be accomplished in time to come if we work on the right lines. If you begin right you will surely end right, and a large per cent. of profit can be made by beginning right and success will crown your efforts.

Yours very truly,

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION.

Atlanta, Ga.

I have some valuable hens that are eating eggs. There are three of them that seem crazy for them. Is there anything that will stop this? They have plenty of gravel. Will feeding egg shells cause this trouble?

What is the very best remedy for mites?

Thanking you for your kindness, I am.

M. E. C.

ANSWER.

You can stop the hens from eating eggs by placing some china nest eggs in the nest, and also put several of these eggs in the room where the chickens are kept. They will attempt to break these eggs and find that they can not do so, and will afterwards not attempt to break their own eggs. They should have plenty oyster shell, and a variety of food, including plenty green food. If you haven't the green food give them some alfalfa hay.

Either of the preparations advertised in The Journal will kill mites. The roost and nests should be thoroughly sprayed and painted with these tar products, and if this work is thoroughly done several times your place will soon be free from mites.

QUESTION.

Will you kindly tell me through The Journal what I can do for my fine Rhode Island Red hen. She has chicks two weeks old. When the chicks were six days old my husband dipped her to kill the lice. The day was hot and she soon died. She just stands around, is almost white. I gave the baby chicks to another hen. She will not eat but just seems to feel tired and weak. I started to give her a lump of vaseline but thought I would ask you before trying anything. This is the first hen that I have had to get sick.

Thanking you for any information that you may give, I am,

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

ANSWER.

It is most likely that when the hen was dipped she swallowed some of the mixture. One should be very careful in this respect. The mouth should be kept closed in dipping chickens because the dip is too strong to be taken internally. Occasionally this will happen and if so is likely to hurt the chickens afterwards. The hen should have a large lump of vaseline twice a day. It will come nearer helping to get her system in shape than anything you can do for her.

TERMINAL DISTRICT

ONE of the best opportunities in Atlanta real estate today is in the large section lying in between the Southern and A. R. A. railroads. This section is about four blocks wide and it extends from Magnolia street out as far as Bellwood avenue.

IN THIS QUARTER you can buy good sized pieces of land, improved with paying houses, property that yields a fair income and has speculative possibilities.

AS AN ILLUSTRATION, we can sell the southeast corner of Magnolia and Magnum streets, fronting 198 feet on Magnum street, for $7,500. This lot contains six buildings, five residences and a store, bringing in $60 a month. If one of these could remain there it is will be necessary in assembling a block of land, and will bring a fancy price.

ON SIMPSON STREET we can sell an entire block of frontage for $6,000. It lies in between [illegible] extending back 150 feet. All three streets are paved and nice all improvements down. This is the block with the old stone house on it.

Saving and Investing

Mr. Dawes on Investments.

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

Charles G. Dawes is a Chicago banker. He was once comptroller of the currency. He therefore he has a good reputation among men of finance.

Not long ago at a dinner, Mr. Dawes said things about investing money which are worth passing on to the man of small experience. According to Mr. Dawes, there are but two ways of investing money wisely:

"The safest and best way of all is to find a man whom you know personally and who has a good paying business of his own. Invest your money with that man, in the business in which he is successful. He will be as careful of your money as he has been with his own."

Excellent advice, this, to the man with experience enough to judge when a good business and who is a successful man—but it is just the argument which is most effectively used by the promoter of unworthy business ventures, the argument which catches most suckers.

"The other way," says Mr. Dawes, "is to invest your money in an electric light or gas plant in a city where it enjoys a monopoly of the product it sells to the consumer. If the business is properly managed there is almost no chance to lose."

Investments of this kind are available for the average man. He can ask the banker or the bond dealer to whom he goes for an investment to tell him about public yields, and he will be able to get some good bargains.

Further along in this talk Mr. Dawes uttered this warning:

"Stay away from investments which promise unusually large returns. Because astute promoters word, their literature in such an attractive manner as to make enormous profits seem assured is no reason for believing that they will be able to keep their promises."

When you are offered promises in exchange for your money, find out whether or not you can collect at law on the promises. If you can't, put them down as idle breezes and cease to listen.

KERN WILL NOT ABANDON PROBE OF COAL STRIKE

Not Concerned in Settlement of Strike, but Conditions Leading to Strike

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Despite the settlement of the West Virginia Paint Creek coal strike, Senator Kern, the majority leader, is determined to press his senatorial investigation which led to the drumhead trial of Mother Jones, the strike leader, and the military regime.

He declared today that appeals from former Senator Watson to abandon the investigation because the strike was ended would be disregarded, and he would bring up his investigation resolution when the senate met Monday.

"The senate is not concerned in the settlement," he declared today, "but in the condition which led to the strike. It wants to find if there is peonage, white slavery or a reign of terror as has been reported."

The senator declared he knew of one instance of those who had gone to report the trial of Mother Jones being deported from the state. A company of Bulgarian, strikers were forced to take to the mountains for their lives, leaving their wages behind them, the senator declared.

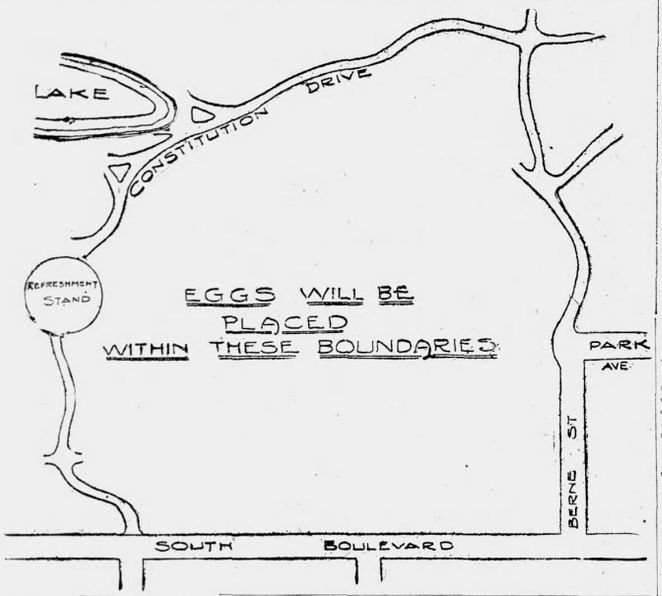
GET READY, CHILDREN, THE BIG EGG-HUNT IS TOMORROW



Street Car Company Gives $50 More, Making Up the Fund, and Everything Is in Readiness—Three o'Clock Is the Hour

Friday morning the committee in charge of the Easter egg hunt, which The Journal and the park board will give at Grant park tomorrow (Saturday), lacked $50 of having enough money to defray all the expenses.

Friday at noon the committee had all they needed, as the Georgia Railway and Power company, through the generosity of the president, Preston Arkwright, has made up the deficit by raising its previous donation from $100 to $150.

The company has given to the fund for every egg hunt in the past, its donation being one of the largest on the list. It gave last year $100. This year's donation of $150 is the largest on the list and the largest single donation ever given.

EVERYTHING READY.

Everything is now in readiness. The eggs will be hauled to the park Saturday morning, and immediately distributed over the area selected for that purpose. This embraces about sixty acres and is the prettiest part of the whole park.

At 12 o'clock no more horse-drawn vehicles will be allowed to enter the park, as by that time the children will have commenced to arrive, and all precautions must be taken for their safety. The mounted police will take their stand in the park soon after that hour.

The children will line up as follows: along South Boulevard, thence along driveway beginning at Berne street and running to the refreshment stand; thence along Constitution drive back to Park Place and South Boulevard.

3 O'CLOCK THE HOUR.

At 2 o'clock the band will strike up "Dixie" and that will be the signal for the children to cross the line and find the eggs. When that first note of the first instrument is sounded, about 20,000 children will surge through the park like an invading army, sweeping all before them, shaking the very ground beneath their feet. And in five minutes a man would be perfectly safe in offering a $50 reward for every egg that could be found in the park.

There will be a grand prize golden egg, containing $5 in gold, and thirty nice prizes donated by merchants. These prizes will be numbered, and a wooden egg with a corresponding number burned into the wood, will be hidden for each prize. The finders of the wooden eggs will go with them to the band pavilion near the refreshment stand, where they will be given written orders which the merchants will redeem.

LIST OF PRIZES.

Following is a list of the prizes:

J. Springer, $5 hat; M. Rich & Bros. Co., $5 in trade; J. M. High company, $2.50 in trade; Hightower Hardware company, baseball glove or jewel case; Daniel Bros. company, boy's cap; A. L. Curtis, manicure set or pocket knife; Piedmont Candy company two-pound box candy; McClure Ten-Cent company, doll carriage or baseball and bat; Kissman Bros., baseball suit; Essig Bros, straw hat; T. L. Bond, one pair shoes; Boulevard Pharmacy, baseball bat; Campbell & Brownlee Bros., rocking chair; J. K. Orr Shoe company, two pairs tennis shoes; Mrs. E. M. Buchanan Millinery company, $2.50 hat; J. K. Polk Furniture company, rocking chair; Brittain-Carroll Dry Goods company, pair tennis shoes; Arnold Hat company, straw hat; Pope Dry Goods company, suitable prize for boy or girl; Ward-Truitt company, dozen pair hose; Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, dozen pairs hose; Ragan-Malone company, dozen pairs hose; McKenzie Shoe company, two pairs tennis shoes.

LOST CHILDREN.

The hunt is limited to children twelve years of age and under. Lost children should go to the concrete pavilion, and parents and escorts should go there to find lost children. Members of the committee, together with police officers and ladies, will stay there with the children until the last lost one has been delivered to the proper parties.

soon to come between two great denominations.

"A WORLD-WIDE MOVEMENT."

"The world is moving toward a wonderful change in religion and economics," said Dr. J. B. Robins, pastor at Trinity Methodist church, last Sunday evening. "A new and strange influence is making itself felt in the world around us. The first stirrings already have made themselves felt, of a great change in sociological, economic and religious conditions, of a world-wide movement for the good of humanity."

Dr. John E. White, pastor of the Second Baptist; Dr. L. O. Bricker, pastor of the First Christian, and the lay workers who have been engaged with them, are others who have been having personal experience during the last three months, and longer, with the vivid truth of which Dr. Robins spoke.

There are many others whom the announcement of the impending new movement will arouse.

seized a pistol and, accompanied by a porter, a brakeman and express messenger, started for the Pullman car.

Before they could clear the aisles of passengers so they could use their weapons the robber had leaped from the train.

WOUNDS NOT FATAL.

An ambulance took Short to a hospital. Physicians there said, while his wounds were serious, they did not consider them fatal.

Short is one of the wealthiest mine owners of Jasper county, operating zinc and lead mines in that district. Six years ago he was a miner working for wages.

"I had two pocketbooks concealed in my berth," he said, "the one containing a thousand dollars in currency and in the other were just a few dollars. It is my custom to divide my money in this manner when traveling with a large sum. I had always figured in case of a robbery that I would surrender the purse containing the smaller sum. When the robber shook me and demanded my money I was for an instant confused and only about half-awake. During this interval I moved the pillow and shoved back the covers exposing the purse containing the larger amount. Realizing what I had done, I tried to hide the purse in the bed clothes again, but the robber was too quick for me.

"'What was that?' he asked the porter, 'A pocketbook,' was the answer.

"'Reach and get it,' the robber commanded, and despite my efforts to prevent it, the porter grabbed the purse and handed it to the robber.

"As he turned away I got my pistol from under the pillow and began shooting at him. He returned the fire and disabled me.

"He failed, however, to get a diamond ring valued at $2,000 and seven $20 gold pieces, which were in a pocket of my trousers."

BOWELS BAD, LIVER TORPID? CASCARETS
If Constipated, Bilious, Headachy, Stomach Sour, get a 10 cent box of Cascarets
You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel worn out.
Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.
Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.
A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—do good—never grips or sicken.

LOCAL DRUGGISTS COME OUT WITH STRONG STATEMENTS

Say Dodson's Liver Tone is the Best Remedy for Constipation and Shirking Liver Ever Brought to This City.

Every person who has tried Dodson's Liver Tone and knows how surely and gently it starts the liver to working and relieves biliousness will bear out the representative druggist who expressed a general sentiment in this statement about Dodson's Liver Tone.

"It is a purely vegetable liquid, that entirely takes the place of calomel, harmless and pleasant to the taste that has proven itself the most satisfactory remedy for a slow-working liver that the drug business has ever known. A large bottle sells for fifty cents and no druggist will hesitate to give the money back to any person who tries a bottle on the strength of this statement and is not satisfied with the result."

In these days of doubtful medicines and dangerous drugs, a statement like the above is a pleasant assurance that Dodson's Liver Tone is a reliable remedy for both children and grown-ups. In buying a bottle for immediate or future use it is well to make sure you are getting the genuine Dodson's Liver Tone and not some spurious imitation that has copied Dodson's claims, but do not stand back of their guarantee. You may be certain of getting the genuine if you go to your druggist and ask for it.—(Advt.)
