CONGRESS TO QUIT USING PRODS ON BIG BUSINESS AND GIVE COUNTRY REST

Anti-Trust Legislation Will Not Be Undertaken at This Session on the Broad Scale Originally Outlined.

WILSON IS FAVORABLE TO THE PROPOSED PLAN

Trade Commission May Be Created With Broad Powers to Investigate and Report as to the Legislation Necessary.

Washington, April 11.—Anti-trust legislation supplementary to the Sherman act probably will not be undertaken at this session of congress on the broad scale originally outlined by the administration. This became known here tonight, democratic senate and house leaders agreeing that a practical solution of the vexatious problem to cope with evils of big business through legislation had been suggested.

The plan, it was asserted, is to pass one bill which would create an interstate trade commission with broad powers to investigate affairs of corporations and with specific authorization to inquire into the relation to commerce of interlocking directorates, holding companies, stock-watering, the issuance of railroad securities and price discriminations which tend to destroy competition. The commission would recommend to the next congress what further trust regulative legislation it deemed advisable for the welfare of the country.

Suggested by Wilson.

Such a culmination of an anti-trust legislative program, originally suggested by President Wilson in a special message to congress, has been working out in conference between the president and senate and house leaders for many weeks. The task tentatively outlined by bills proposed aroused opposition that precluded its accomplishment, leaders believed, in view of other legislative problems confronting congress, and also because of the many conflicting opinions of men in the councils of the dominant party as to just what should be done.

It was pointed out tonight that President Wilson, in his trust message, sought merely to suggest to congress the evils of big business which needed regulation. Since then he has had many conferences with members of the house and senate committees which from time to time have submitted tentative strust regulation bills.

Many Stumbling Blocks.

Some time ago a subcommittee of the senate interstate commerce committee was appointed to incorporate into one measure all features of the various bills considered. Since that committee has been at work, many stumbling blocks have been encountered as to how far congress should go in enacting legislation supplementary to the Sherman act; just what would strengthen the provisions of that act and just what might weaken it.

After many conferences of democratic and republican leaders, it is in turn have conferred with members of the house interstate commerce and judiciary committees, a tentative amendment to the Sherman act and the interstate trade commission has been drawn, designed to take the place of proposed bills to prohibit or regulate interlocking directorates, holding companies, stock-watering; to provide for government regulation of the issuance of railroad securities, and to solve the problem of destructive price discrimination. It would provide that all these problems be referred to the proposed interstate trade commission, directing an existing agency of government subject for the information of congress.

Wilson Said to Favor.

President Wilson, it became known today, has had this outline of the problem presented to him, and administration leaders declare he has looked on it with favor. The president tonight was said to be resting at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. White house officials declined to comment on the reports.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, a member of the subcommittee of the interstate commerce committee, especially assigned to work out the trust legislative program, made a frank statement tonight of his view of the matter.

"There are some radical differences," said Senator Robinson, "between the trade commission bill now about to be reported by the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce and that which the senate committee has tentatively agreed on. Some of the senate committee who have had some part in the preparation of the bill believe a trade commission should be vested with broad powers, and as a result of this belief it may be expected that a bill soon will be reported which will make the commission in many respects an independent body with liberal powers.

May Be Postponed.

"In my opinion, it is within the range of possibility that this proposed trade commission may be vested with authority to investigate the relation to commerce of interlocking directorates, holding companies, stock watering and such matters as price discrimination for the purpose of destroying competition, and that measures affecting these subjects will be postponed until the proposed commission can investigate them and report its findings and recommendations to congress.

"However, in so far as I am informed, no policy of this character is now definitely in contemplation. It is likely that the large number of other matters requiring attention, including the Panama canal question, may tend to delay until the next session of congress the consideration of the so-called trust program. Many members in both houses are anxious for a comparatively early adjournment.

"Personally I prefer that this whole subject be concluded during the present session. Still, I do not know that any harm can come to the public if some features of the proposed trust legislation are not determined until next session."

DEATH NOTE TELLS LOVE FOR HUSBAND

Despondent Because He Was Out of Work, Chorus Girl Wife Attempts to End Her Life.

Despondent and tired of living, because her boy husband could not secure enough work to make a living for them, Nellie Johnson, the pretty 18-year-old chorus girl wife of L. M. Johnson, swallowed the contents of a bottle of tincture of belladonna Friday morning in her room at the Edgewood hotel, at 191½ Edgewood avenue, and as her husband entered the room and found her lying on the bed, she pointed out to him a letter she had written, in which she told him why she had taken the poison, and declared that he was the sweetest man in all the world.

The girl was rushed to the Grady hospital about 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, after physicians summoned to her bedside had given her medical attention for several hours. She is reported in a dying condition by the doctors at the Grady hospital, not having regained consciousness since her arrival at the hospital.

Her husband stated at the hospital that he could not tell why his young wife had tried to take her life.

"We have always loved one another," he stated. "I got up early Saturday morning to go to the postoffice to see if an important letter I was expecting had arrived. On my return, I found Nellie lying on the bed and noticed that she had changed her clothing, and that she had powdered her face and arranged her hair.

"Beside her was a glass, and when I asked her what was in it, she stated that it was some wine that a friend had given her.

"I stepped out of the room a few minutes and when I returned I noticed that the glass was empty. I knew that Nellie had been bina because I had not been able to get any money. She was not herself last night, but this morning told me that she had taken dope that a friend had given her, and that it was the dope talking, and not herself.

"I told her that I would forgive her, as I knew that she did not use dope habitually. In a few minutes, Nellie began to talk funny, and I asked her about the empty glass. She shamed me the empty bottle of tincture of belladonna. I called a physician and secured two, who seemed to have relieved her of her suffering about 10 o'clock.

"I went out to get a little lunch, and when I came back, Nellie, although she had never become unconscious, was now in a deep stupor. The doctors advised me to take her to the hospital.

"I never dreamed that Nellie was going to do this, although she spoke of being tired of living when she awoke Saturday morning. She said she was despondent and blue because we had no money. I told her not to worry, and that if she was worried, I would secure a little farm out in the country where she could live in peace."

Mr. Johnson stated that his wife was considerably disappointed when, last week in Americus, Ga., the Johnson and Jetton Musical Comedy Stock company, in which she was a chorus girl, was stranded.

The couple were married in Atlanta on May 17, 1913. Mrs. Johnson was Miss Nellie E. Sisco, and was reared in Salma, Ala. Johnson is an Atlanta boy and met his wife here.

L. F. Peters, manager of the Edgewood hotel, declared last night that he did not believe the girl had taken any belladonna. "Why, the girl was even out in the hall of the hotel using the telephone about 10 o'clock," said Mr. Peters. "I do not believe that she took any belladonna. She was full of vocalin, and that was the only trouble with her."

The doctors at the Grady hospital stated that dilation of the pupils of the woman's eyes was a strong indication that she had taken belladonna: "Cocaine could cause the dilation of the pupils," stated one of the hospital physicians, "but the dilation would not continue for so long a time as in this case, and in addition to this, the patient, if her sole trouble was cocaine, would be very boisterous. As it is, she is very quiet."

HUERTA MAKES APOLOGY FOR ARREST OF MARINES TO THE UNITED STATES

Mexican Dictator Promises a Thorough Investigation of the Affair at Tampico and Punishment for the Guilty Officer.

WASHINGTON ACCEPTS HUERTA'S GOOD FAITH

Not Known Whether Mexicans Have Saluted American Flag—United States Is Working to Assist Spaniards Expelled by Villa.

Mexico City, April 11.—A censorship was placed on all news dispatches tonight.

Washington, April 11.—The tense situation created here by the arrest of American marines by Mexican authorities at Tampico was greatly relieved today with the receipt of General Huerta's prompt repudiation and apology for the action, forwarded from Mexico City by Charge O'Shaughnessy. While no definite statement was obtainable in official circles, it was intimated that the necessary redress for the affront had been afforded.

Reporting developments to the navy department, Rear Admiral Mayo, in command of the American naval force at Tampico, cabled that he had demanded that the Mexican commander salute the American flag in acknowledgment of the affront. In his message he had given the Mexican officer twenty-four hours from 6 o'clock Friday evening to comply. No further message had come from Admiral Mayo when the department closed tonight.

Admiral Mayo's report was forwarded to President Wilson at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where he is spending Easter.

Officials at the state and navy departments considered Huerta's statement full and frank. It promised an immediate investigation of Colonel Hinojosa's action in arresting the marines and parading them publicly through the streets and the official statement issued by the state department added that General Huerta had promised that "if the investigation should develop a greater responsibility on the part of Colonel Hinojosa, the penalty applicable to the case will be imposed by the competent legal authorities."

General Huerta's Action.

The state department summarized Charge O'Shaughnessy's representations and Huerta's action in this statement:

"Acting upon instructions from the state department, the American charge in Mexico City represented to the Mexican foreign office the extreme seriousness of the situation growing out of the detention of United States marines by Mexican federals at Tampico. A personal explanation of the gravity of the occurrence was made by Mr. O'Shaughnessy to General Huerta himself, who stated:

"That in view of the fact that the charge d'affaires of the United States had heard that the whole boat in which the American sailors were, was flying the American flag, an investigation will be made to establish the responsibility of Colonel Hinojosa, and that if

CITIZENS LINE UP TO SUPPORT FIFTH

Business Men Say They Will Not Object to Employees Enlisting for Service in National Guard.

The movement by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce to enlist the support of the business men of Atlanta in behalf of the Fifth regiment, to the end that they will interpose no obstacles in the way of their employees enlisting in the regiment, is meeting with the most cordial support.

Following the recent action of the military committee of the chamber in recommending that the chamber take cognisance of the decreasing enlistment of several companies in the regiment and call upon employers generally to permit their men to enlist, the chamber mailed out letters to practically all its members who are employers and already has received a large number of responses heartily indorsing the movement.

Vitally Important.

Colonel W. L. Peel, president of the American National bank: "I consider the Fifth regiment vitally important to the community. The policy of our bank has always been to permit and encourage our men to enlist if they are a mind to, and this will continue to be our policy."

Captain James W. English, president Fourth National bank: "We could not get along without the Fifth regiment. It is not often that we need a regiment of military in action to protect the lives and property, but we are liable to need them at any moment, and when we need them, we need them bad."

Dr. W. J. Hinlock, president Fulton National bank: "I am heartily in sympathy with any movement looking to the support of the Fifth regiment."

Colonel Robert J. Lowry, president Lowry National bank: "We could not get along without the Fifth regiment any more than we could without our police department, for the military is our police reserve force. The regiment is entitled to and should have the support of the entire community."

B. J. Elseman, of Elseman Bros: "I certainly believe in the maintenance of the Fifth regiment. I am a member of

Now Is Best Time to Enter For The Constitution Contest; $25,000 in Prizes Offered

The campaign for subscriptions just being launched by The Constitution, in which over $25,000 in prizes and cash is to be distributed, is probably the most widely talked of project in Georgia—in fact, a wave of favorable comment comes sweeping in from far beyond the boundaries of Georgia. The aggregate expenditure in money, the simplicity of the rules and regulations, above all the frankness and fairness with which this enterprise is presented, have pleased everybody.

To date, however, notwithstanding the fact that great interest is being manifested in the contest, it has not as yet taken concrete form in the shape of nominations for the higher honors to be presented soon. The field is as yet almost without representation in many sections. In fact, very few localities have brought out a candidate, and your opportunity is best at the present time. This situation should be taken advantage of quickly.

Will Render All Possible Aid.

When your name comes to The Constitution you will receive by first mail instructions and blanks necessary to

HARRIS LOOKING TO GOVERNORSHIP?

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, April 11.—(Special.)—William J. Harris, chairman of the state democratic executive committee, is a possibility in the race for governor. Since the announcement by Governor Slaton that he would not be a candidate for re-election, but would offer for the United States senate instead, friends of Mr. Harris have been urging him to run for governor.

Supporters in northwest Georgia, where he formerly lived, told Mr. Harris that their section had been worse treated than any other part of the state in regard to the distribution of state officers. Not in years, they reminded him, has a governor or statehouse officer come from that part of the state—northwest of Cobb county.

Asked about the reports from Georgia that he might aspire to the governorship, Mr. Harris said:

"I have received a great many letters and, on my recent visit to the state for the meeting of the state executive committee, numbers of my friends pledged me their support, but I discouraged the suggestion. However, since my return I have continued to receive cordial letters proffering support."

"At least you have taken the matter of being a candidate under advisement," he was asked.

"I won't say, but naturally one can't ignore such generous expressions of confidence," he replied.

Mr. Harris was one of the most active leaders for President Wilson in Georgia, and has been honored by the new administration with one of the choicest berths in Washington. It would be something of a financial sacrifice for him to take the office of governor.

Much interest is felt here over the future political course of Representative Gordon Lee. His friends believe that he is seriously contemplating making the race for governor.

No Saloons for Muncie.

Muncie, Ind., April 11.—Muncie will be without a saloon after June 9, according to the county commissioners, who late today decided a contest, filed by "wets" by confirming the certified vote of the recent local option election when the city voted "dry" by a majority of 462 votes. The "wets" announced they would appeal to the circuit court.

Doom Cracks for Gunmen In the Death Chair This Week Play Last Card and Lose

GUNMEN LAUGHING WHEN DOOM CAME

They Had Just Celebrated the Passover Feast—They Hear Verdict Without Any Signs of Breaking Down.

Ossining, N. Y., April 11.—A quarter of an hour before the news of Justice Goff's adverse decision was flashed to the prison, the gunmen were laughing and chaffing freely with Rabbi Mayer Koffstein. With the rabbi seated at a small table near the cells, the Passover feast had just been celebrated, the rabbi explaining the lessons taught by the feast.

Warden Clancy entered the death house shortly after 10 o'clock with press dispatches announcing Justice Goff's decision adverse to the gunmen.

"I am sorry, boys," he said. "Again I am the bearer of bad news."

"We Can Stand It."

The men asked the warden for the grounds on which Justice Goff had based his refusal, but were told they would have to wait until morning.

"What do you think of a judge who, in a case like this, wastes time in investigating threatening letters. No criminal case ever would be finished if all threatening letters were investigated," commented "Whitey Lewis."

After a twenty-minute visit with the gunmen, the warden came out with a statement from "Lefty Louie."

"We again ask Governor Glynn, in all fairness," it read, "to grant us a reprieve pending the trial of Lieutenant Becker, when the truth will be known."

This was signed by all except "Dago Frank," who had no statement to make.

The gunmen tonight asked Rabbi Koffstein to be with them at the end. He came out of the death chamber visibly affected and said the men's transformation was the most wonderful he ever had experienced.

Ready to Fix Current.

Electrician Davis, who will direct the mechanical phase of electrocutions, arrived at Sing Sing tonight to engage in the preliminaries of the task set him.

A dramatic occurrence marked his arrival. Just as Jacob Rosenberg, father of "Lefty Louie" Rosenberg, one of the quartet condemned to die, approached the prison, clutching a petition from Rabbi Goldstein, asking for the postponement of the execution until next Thursday, he met Mr. Davis. When told who the man was, the gunman's father muttered something under his breath, turned his face and rushed into the prison. Mr. Rosenberg saw his son for a few moments. Later he was told that his petition would be useless unless it could be presented to Superintendent of State Prisons Riley, who had gone left for Albany.

"Dago Frank" Wasn't Informed.

A rumor that Superintendent Riley had in his hands a full confession from "Dago Frank" Cirofici, with whom he had a long conversation before leaving the prison, was disposed of tonight by a clear statement from Father Cashin, prison chaplain.

The chaplain explained that "Dago Frank," in whom Superintendent Riley had taken special interest in his over-night visit to the prison, had dictated three pages of comment on his own case, as distinct from the others. While the exact text of the statement is not known, it is understood that it is not a confession. The four gunmen again reiterated today their assertions that "Dago Frank" Cirofici was not present at the time of the murder.

The prisoners were kept in ignorance of the progress of the hearing before Judge Goff and extracted what comfort they could from this last hope. But the belief in an eleventh hour deliverance, which has defied and survived the failure of every appeal, today collapsed. The gunmen were sure they are going to die, it was said about the prison.

Rattled for Death.

When they went back to their cells after being bathed and realized the significance of the new prison clothes and the new routine, a few minutes which always precedes the execution, they showed for the first time what a small reflection of nervous strength holds them from breaking down.

The following letter from "Lefty Louie" to the press was given out by Warden Clancy:

"Gentlemen of the press: The editorial in today's paper speaks of 'swaggering coolness in game end'; it also speaks of 'sudden piety' and 'bravado.' As our keepers may prove, there is no talk of 'game end'; there is no 'ole bravado' here.

"Therefore, gentlemen, as your editorial says, but it is here, thank God and our spiritual adviser. Gentlemen of the press, Thou shalt not bear false witness.'

"Respectfully,
"LOUIS ROSENBERG."

Earth Shocks Recorded.

Washington, April 11.—Two distinct earthquake shocks were recorded today by instruments at the Georgetown University observatory, the first beginning occurring at 2:30 to 13:21 p. m. The motion was east and west, but no estimate of the probable distance to the center of the disturbance was given out.

After Hearing the "Newly Discovered Evidence" Justice Goff Decides It Is Worthless and Refuses to Interfere With the Verdict.

EVIDENCE SUSPICIOUS, DECLARES JUDGE GOFF

He Wonders Why It Was Kept Concealed While the Gunmen Were on Trial and Then Sprung at the Last Moment—Goff Calls the New Evidence Worthless.

New York, April 11.—The last hope of the four gunmen condemned to die Monday for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, seemingly was blasted tonight when Supreme Court Justice John W. Goff, to whom a final appeal for a new trial had been made, declined to reopen their case.

Evidence of New Witnesses.

At a prolonged hearing today, Justice Goff, who was the presiding judge at the gunmen's trial, listened to the testimony of new witnesses produced at the last moment by counsel for the doomed men. Later in the afternoon, after District Attorney Charles S. Whitman had been given his opportunity to offset the newly offered evidence with testimony by witnesses of his own, Justice Goff took the case under advisement, announcing that he would render a decision tonight.

For more than four hours the justice toiled over the record of the day's proceedings. Then, shortly before 10 o'clock, he appeared at the door of his chambers and briefly and quietly announced to the waiting crowd of newspaper men that he had denied the application for a new trial, stating merely that his opinion would be given out as soon as copies of it could be prepared.

The Opinion of Judge Goff.

Justice Goff in his opinion denying a new trial cited that the application had been referred to him; because the law requires that motion for a new trial be made before the justice who presided at the trial. He continued:

"Were it possible, in the sense of judicial propriety, so as to avoid hearing the application I would have done so, but to send to a stranger mind would be employed and that I would be relieved from a very onerous and heart-searching burden. But the law casts upon me a responsibility and a duty, and he who bore gravely the responsibility may be or how disagreeable the duty I shall not shirk the one nor fail to discharge the other."

Pointing out that on behalf of the defendants nineteen affidavits had been presented, the court declared that "ten should be disregarded, as consisting 'mainly of hearsay, impressions and matters that are irrelevant and immaterial.'" Of the other four affidavits, those of Rosenthal, Burwell, Kalmanson and Rao, the court said, would be "considered as of any probative value whatever. Consideration of these four affidavits must include their oral examination and cross-examination had in open court."

The Point of Importance.

Continuing, the decision said:

"The point of importance dwelt upon by Dresner was that he was present on July 15, 1913, outside the Garden restaurant, when he heard Rosenthal say to Vallon and Webber, as Rosenthal emerged from the restaurant, 'there he comes. Go and get it over him.' That Dresner understanding what that meant crossed the street to avoid danger, when Rose took him for a private detective. Rose did not so testify in the trial. What Rose testified to was: 'It began to look too much like business, and I called Louie aside, and I said, pointing to a man across the street: "Do you see that fellow over there?" He said, "Yes." I said: "I am

Book Reviews in Tabloid

The After House. By Mary Roberts Rinehart. The admirers of Mrs. Rinehart are delighted that she has written another "Rinehart" story, that is, another of her mystery stories—one of which, the plot, laid in a Pullman, was "The Man in Lower Ten" and then there was that baffling mystery, "The Circular Staircase." Now comes "The After House" with its story of murder and mystery, and this time it is located on a private yacht, and it is needless to say that it is also full of thrills and surprises. The characters, some seven or eight, are all interesting and natural and the usual love story holds the reader's attention and admiration.

Mrs. Rinehart is one of the most popular and successful current writers and has become also a magazine favorite. Many of her books have run into large editions and theatrical managers consider her dramatic work of a high order. Her inspiration for the story, "The After House," was a famous sea tragedy which took place some sixteen years ago. It is well to say that this story has not appeared serially in any magazine or paper. (Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Cambridge, Mass.)

In "The After House" Mary Roberts Rinehart shows how truth is stranger than fiction. This, her last mystery story, had for its foundation a celebrated trial which took place in Boston seventeen years ago. Mrs. Rinehart made a close study of the evidence in this case and comes to a different conclusion from the jury, which, in an interview, she explained in her own way.

"I came across the material for 'The After House' in the most casual way. In the summer of 1913 I was sitting on the lawn in front of the Allegheny Country club with two or three people, when the conversation drifted to the sea; finally we began to discuss sea mysteries. In the party was a prominent Pittsburg lawyer who finally related the 'Herbert Fuller' sea mystery murder, adding, 'and I have often thought that in that case there was a great miscarriage of justice.' He told me the main facts of the story and later sent me a magazine containing an account of the trial seventeen years ago, which is well remembered by the lawyers of Boston.

"Therefore in a way the plot of 'The After House' resembles the 'Herbert Fuller' case. When I first read the story of the trial I was in despair. It was the most thrilling thing I had ever read and it seemed almost impossible to add anything to it in turning it into fiction. You who have read 'The After House' will see that I made the 'Herbert Fuller' a private yacht instead of a cargo schooner. This enabled me to put a party of people aboard for my love story. My hero, instead of being a Harvard student, was a medical graduate recovering from typhoid fever. In the original story I made him eat an infected oyster and contract typhoid fever, but I received a protest from the Oyster Growers' Association of America against thus libeling this friend of man, and, also, I did not have the Dairy association after me, too, I did not attribute it to milk, but simply gave him typhoid.

"In the story of the 'Herbert Fuller' the crew consisted of the captain, first mate, second mate, and six men in the forecastle, and while I changed the atmosphere of the ship completely, I retained the crew in its original numbers, and though there were a great many differences, one of the special topics in each story was the 'Night of the Murders.' The Hero Called for the First Mate,' 'Finds Second Mate Dead. Also'; 'Everybody Suspicious'; 'Passenger's Theory' 'Where Was the First Mate's Motive?' 'Discrepancy in the Steersman's Story;' 'Course of the Ax,' etc.

"In each case the question was narrowed down until finally it rested upon two—the steersman and the first mate. One of the questions of interest was whether the steersman could have left the wheel long enough to have committed the crime, and the testimony of experts was conflicting as to whether the wheel of a vessel could be lashed to a stiff breeze without the ship coming to or falling off. As to the crime one must look for a motive. What was the first mate's motive? There was a curious discrepancy of time in the story the steersman told at the trial; there always is in every murder trial. The story of the ax with which the murders were committed is exceedingly interesting. But just what happened on the 'Herbert Fuller' while the passengers were asleep will probably never be known; someone had to suffer for the murders, so on the vessel, and finally the first mate was found guilty, and while it is not my intention to try to solve the crime, or to throw suspicion upon other members of the crew, I do not believe that the first mate was guilty. He was convicted on the strength of a story which reveals discrepancies and on his conduct after the discovery of the murders.

"And so the first mate of the 'Herbert Fuller' remained in the Atlanta federal prison, serving years during which time the automobile has come the flying machine, the wireless telegraph and mammoth ships. And now this first mate has been released on parole. He is a life prisoner, but has gone, with no possibility of social business standing. If he did not commit the crime, why is he out on parole? If he did commit the crime, why is he on parole? Application for his pardon has been made many times but always refused. Several noted writers have rehearsed the story of this ship in their novels, and it is ever before the public."

In a letter to Houghton Mifflin company, dated January 19, 1914, the first mate writes as he has frequently asserted that he is innocent of the crime, but in Mrs. Rinehart's story of the "After House," the real murderer is known and his motive. The story of the "Herbert Fuller," its court-martial trial, the fate of the first mate, is all history, and the "After House," one of the most interesting novels of the past year, has been written, read, re-read and discussed, which has for its foundation this great Boston trial, and which seems more as a after-thought than any of the wonderful mystery stories written by Mrs. Rinehart. Has she discovered the murderer? There is plenty of food for argument.

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART.

Who Wrote "Home?"

There have been many guesses as to who write "Home," published anonymously first in The Century Magazine, and later in book form. Some knew knew it was Elinor Glyn, or Edith Wharton, "for it must be a woman," they wrote. Other guesses, and all the guesses were no contest of their author, were Richard Harding Davis, Conningsby Dawson, Will Levington Comfort, William Dean Howells, Edwin Norton Gunnaulus, etc.

And after all, it is a man, a man who wears a moustache and a pompadour, and somehow it seems funny that he should be the author—that is, that George Agnew Chamberlain, as he is known, should write about "Home." Mr. Chamberlain is at the present time consul at Delagoa Bay, in Portuguese East Africa. He is a Brazilian by birth, but came to America at an early age and is a graduate of Princeton. Since his graduation he has done some newspaper work, a few short stories, and now a novel on "Home," which has kept the literary world guessing for sometime and which was written in far away Delago Bay in a tower room without any attractions but before "Home" was completed the little room was transformed into a homey apartment with a little dog as his companion.

And that is the reason the critic could not guess the author, for his scenes were neither of the north or south, east or west in America.

BOOKS FOR BOYS.

Bostare's Venture. By Ralph Henry Barbour. This is a new book by an author who is so well known to "every boy" that he is called the boys' friend and favorite author. This new story by Mr. Barbour tells how Tom Benton buys a second-hand automobile to operate between the railroad station and the town, now this is an idea of Tom's own and his father agreed to it but the liverymen who had always done this hauling were very indignant and try to put a top to it. Now, here comes the exciting part for boys—the son of one of the liverymen is captain of the football team and gets him out of the eleven—but Tom was true blue and he overcomes all difficulties and becomes captain himself. It is a very exciting story. (D. Appleton & Co., New York.)

The Winning Hit. By Hawley Williams. And here is another friend of all boys and there is not a boy who does not know the author of Boys' stories, Mr. Williams, who wrote "Five Yards to Go," "Batter Up," etc. Sidney Royal, of Lansing academy, thought he knew all about baseball, and cannot understand why Dave Acker is chosen for first base instead of himself. Now Dave is correspondent for a newspaper, having to work his way through school, and Sidney takes advantage of the fact and plays a trick which came near wrecking the ball team. But in the end the lesson learned by Sidney makes him not only a much wiser boy, but he becomes one of the heroes of Lansing academy. (D. Appleton & Co., New York.)

LITERARY NOTES.

Literary impostors are by no means a "vanishing race." A patient of a little mining town in Virginia, called Louisa, has been passing herself off as Corra Harris. Mrs. Harris was reported as having visited the mines at Louisa at a time when she was staying in New York. She is now at her log cabin in the Georgia mountains.

Two little books, "Piano Playing" and "Piano Questions," by Josef Hofmann, which have been very popular, have been reissued in one volume.

It has been said that the 300,000 copies of "Laddie" sold is just 300,000 times as healthy "True Blue Story" injected in the veins of the American boys and girls.

Among the new books this month will be "Idle Wives," by James Oppenheim; "The Rise of the American People," by Roland G. Usher, "Barnabetta" has been sent to press for second printing, and Kipling's "Jungle Book" for its thirty-third large printing. This is the latest book and is illustrated in color by the English artists, Edward, and Maurice Detmold.

Robert S. Lemmon, the author of "Training the Dog," is a resident of Englewood, N. J. He is an enthusiastic sportsman and frequently contributes articles on "Forest and Stream."

The Page company, of Boston, are now confirming the rumors that they have taken over the publishing business of Dana, Estes & Co. The contract was signed on March 25.

MAGAZINE CLIPPINGS.

In the Southern Woman's Magazine for April you will find quite an interesting article entitled "Woman, as Corra Harris Sees Her." It is accompanied by a very attractive picture of Mrs. Harris. This article is really a letter from the popular author in reply to one written her by the Southern Woman's Magazine, asking the following question: "There are, as you know, people who do not understand the views you express about women. There are even those who doubt your sincerity. You picture so conspicuously the foibles and the frailties of woman that it leads many to ask, 'Is this all Mrs. Harris sees in womankind?'"

There is also very interesting U. D. C. page with some explanatory remarks by the editor in reference to it.

almost positive that he is a private detective that District Attorney Whitman has assigned to watch Rosenthal." They took the hint and departed and went home."

"This testimony of Dresser bears the unmistakable stamp of being made to fit Rose's testimony. . . . It is somewhat remarkable that notwithstanding the apprehension of Dresser that something dire was going to happen, nothing did happen because of the words alleged to have been uttered by Rose.

Just a Step in Proof.

"While the testimony of Rose at the trial concerning the incident at the Garden restaurant was competent to show preparation and combination on the part of the main defendants for the commission of a crime, it was merely a step in the progression of proof and a contradiction of that, even if true, would of itself be wholly insufficient to warrant the granting of a new trial. This witness went on to narrate what he says he observed on the morning of the sixteenth, when Rosenthal was killed. He did not testify that he saw the killing or heard shots, notwithstanding he was in Forty-third street at the time of the killing and the passing of the automobile. He claims to have identified Vallon, Webber and Schapps in the passing automobile. It is remarkable that this witness should be found to be present at these two important times; that is, on the thirteenth at the Garden restaurant and on the sixteenth on Forty-third street, at the time of the killing. Intrinsically this testimony is unworthy of credence, and if there was any element for that conviction is furnished by the witness himself, inasmuch as knowing the widespread notoriety given to the murder of Rosenthal, and a knowledge or no part of the importance of his testimony, he refrained from coming forward and making known to Profaci or the defendants or to the district attorney what he had heard and observed.

Unworthy of Belief.

"The only reasons he assigns for his failure is that he was in fear of his life; of whom he was afraid he does not state, and his failure, where human life was involved, to step forward as a witness until the last hour when opportunity for examination or contradiction is not gone, is a circumstance of invention so strong that no reliance can be placed upon his testimony.

"Burwell testified that when in Forty-third street on the morning of Rosenthal's death, he heard two shots and saw the man who fired the shots turn. He said he did not know the man, but described to some extent his personal appearance. The point of his testimony rests on his statement that neither of the four defendants was the man who fired the shots. Burwell never saw either one of the four defendants, and the only knowledge he has of them was derived from his seeing some pictures purporting to represent the defendants in a clipping from a newspaper.

"It is unnecessary to dwell for a moment on the utter insecurity of such testimony as tending to anything like accurate identification. The mere negative statement that the man who fired the shots was not one of the four persons whose faces are outlined in a newspaper, without any evidence that such outlines are true and correct representations of the defendants, and in the face of positive testimony that the defendants fired the shots, is worthless.

Newspaper Cuts No Good.

"Identification from portraits of itself is risky and dangerous evidence without some supporting or connecting evidence should not be given much weight in a court of law. But identification by newspaper cuts goes to yet a greater extreme, and no value should be attached to it. This witness, like Dresser, maintained silence until the last hour, notwithstanding that he knew of the public interest and excitement in the case.

"Reo testified to the delivery of a note from a female friend of Cirofici at his house. The only bearing that this testimony can have is the alibi interposed by Ciroffci at the trial. Evidence to sustain an alibi on a motion for a new trial, where the alibi has been passed on by a jury, is, according to all theauthorities, standing alone and unsupported by unquestionable evidence, of no weight. This witness, like the preceding witnesses, did not come forward until the last hour, and to give his testimony, though he had been questioned by a deputy commissioner of police to whom he admitted he lied in respect to the delivery of this letter.

"Kalmanson testified that he was in Forty-third street, saw an automobile and recognized Vallon standing on the running board holding a pistol in his hand. He did not know Vallon, had never seen him and the only means of recognition that he had was that two months later he saw in a Cleveland newspaper a picture purporting to be that of Harry Vallon. This testimony is worthless. This witness also maintained silence until after the decision of the court of appeals in the Becker case.

Why Did They Keep Silent?

"Briefly have I touched on the principal points in the testimony of each of the four witnesses, and in doing so I have not referred to the testimony of the affidavits in contradiction, nor to the impression which was produced upon my mind during their examination and cross-examination. That impression was most persuasive of disbelief in what they said. If no other circumstance existed but that of their silence and delay in coming forward until the last moment, the withholding there existed great public excitement and widespread newspaper reports and comments, which the court of appeals has taken judicial notice, it of itself would be sufficient to create grave doubts of their truthfulness and credibility.

"At common law a convicted man could not avail himself of a motion for a new trial. That privilege does exist today is purely of statutory creation. The statute provides that the proffered evidence must be newly discovered since the trial, that if before received such evidence probably would have changed the verdict, and that failure to produce it on the trial was not owing to want of diligence. I cannot say that the failure to produce the proffered evidence on the trial was owing to want of diligence on defendants' part; but the failure of the witnesses after Mr. Riley had returned from Sing Sing prison. Although neither the governor nor Mr. Riley would admit violence to my committee, the general impression aroused around the capitol that Mr. Riley had been detailed by the governor to see Ciroffci and Ciroffci, who has maintained he has an alibi.

Mr. Riley brought with him a statement from "Dago Frank" and placed it in the hands of the governor. As soon as this became known there were rebounded rumors that one of the gunmen had confessed. These Mr. Riley at first rest by asserting that the statement was only a reiteration of Ciroffci's allegations concerning his whereabouts on the night of the shooting.

Not Worth Anything.

The governor declined to make public the contents of the statement, declaring that it was "not worth anything."

Explaining how he came by the document Mr. Riley said that last night he had a talk with Ciroffci and that the latter had told him then that he was not with the three other convicts when he made his murder confession.

"I told Ciroffci," Mr. Riley continued, "that anything he might say I would be forced to tell the jury. I suggested that his story be put in writing so I could take it to the governor, he agreed, but insisted that Frank should put it with it. Frank agreed to this and Ciroffci dictated the statement and said he was not with the three other convicts when he made his murder confession. But I have no object to the human sympathy.

"They are directed to an instrument of the law whose sole duty is to administer justice and no matter how harsh it may seem to be, it is nevertheless justice to deny the motion."

C. G. F. Wahle, Ciroffci's attorney, was told that the application had been denied while waiting in the corridors of the judge's chambers. Immediately went to his office, and there met all the relatives of the four gunmen. When he announced that the motion had been denied, the men and the women in the crowd broke down and wept. They all believed the gunmen would be granted a new trial when the new witnesses were discovered.

Judge Wahle declared he would go to Albany early tomorrow morning and would make another personal appeal to Governor Glynn.

"Although we have now practically lost all hope of saving the men from the chair," said Wahle, "I shall fight until the end."

WEBB-KENYON LAW UPHELD IN KANSAS

Topeka, Kan., April 11.—The Webb-Kenyon law which gives the states control over liquor shipments, was upheld by the Kansas supreme court today. As a result of the decision, Kansas will take charge of all liquor shipped into the state.

The case was that of a St. Louis brewing company, appealing from a decision of a district court. The St. Louis company shipped a carload of beer to Corona, Kan. State officials confiscated it under the Webb law and the company sought restitution.

"Without this law the state has any more control over liquor than it has over the shipment of wheat and corn," said Attorney General Dawson recently in today's opinion. "We believe that the liquor traffic can be made subject to the same regulations as obscene literature and white slavery and that congress has sufficient power to regulate the shipments of liquor as it has to prohibit transportation of white slaves."

BODY OF CHIEF BORNE ON AN OLD HOSE CART

Chicago, April 1.—An old hose cart belonging to Engine company No. 98, whose headquarters have been the unofficial headquarters, was impressed into service as a funeral cart today to carry the body of Fire Chief Patrick Seyferlich, chief of the Chicago department, to his home and to the cemetery.

Another hose cart followed in the funeral procession, bearing many floral tributes to the "boy" in the department and from city officials and friends. The families of automobiles in which the chief raced to every "4-11" alarm fire during his term of office accompanied the procession to the cemetery. Members of the city council, the mayor's cabinet and all of the members of the fire and police departments who could be spared from duty attended the funeral. The 2,000 firemen marched in the procession.

GOVERNOR STANDS BY COURT DECREE

Glynn Will Not Interfere to Save Gunmen — Governor Followed Hearing Before Goff With Great Interest.

Albany, N. Y., April 11.—Governor Glynn declined to make any statement concerning his future course in the gunmen's case or to comment in any way upon Justice Goff's decision.

Earlier in the day the governor had forecast his attitude by saying he believed the case should rest entirely in the hands of the court.

The governor displayed the keenest interest in the hearing today. He kept in touch with the different steps through local and New York sources, turning eagerly every new phase of the testimony as it was presented.

Asked if he would have anything to say about the decision when the full text was received, the governor said he probably would not. This was taken to indicate that the last hope for the gunmen had passed and they must die Monday.

Case of "Dago" Frank.

A number of incidents lent strength to this interpretation. Principal among them was the statement of Superintendent Riley, of the state prison department, that in his opinion the governor would not grant a respite. This declaration followed a long conference between the governor and Mr. Riley after Mr. Riley had returned from Sing Sing prison. Although neither the governor nor Mr. Riley would admit violence to my committee, the general impression aroused around the capitol that Mr. Riley had been detailed by the governor to see Ciroffci and Ciroffci, who has maintained he has an alibi.

Mr. Riley brought with him a statement from "Dago Frank" and placed it in the hands of the governor. As soon as this became known there were rebounded rumors that one of the gunmen had confessed. NEW ZEALAND CHECKS SLAUGHTER OF BABES

Washington, April 11.—What New Zealand has done in reducing infant mortality was told tonight to the attention of Secretary Wilson today in a letter from Miss Julia C. Lathrop, head of the federal children's bureau, with a view to stimulating interest in baby saving in the United States. According to Miss Lathrop, New Zealand has the lowest infant mortality rate of any country and this has been brought about mainly through efforts of the New Zealand Society for the Health of Women and Children. In one city—Dunedin—the work of the society reduced the infant mortality rate 50 per cent in five years from 1907 to 1912.

Miss Lathrop urges that not only in cities, but in country districts, provision be made for instructing mothers in the care of babies; teaching young girls all practical matters of homemaking, including hygiene and feeding; giving proper hospital care to sick babies and maintaining conferences where mothers can have their children examined and can thus learn of any bad condition before it has progressed beyond recovery.

Contracts for Colliers.

Washington, April 11.—Contracts for the construction of two colliers intended primarily to transport coal to the terminals of the Panama canal, but designed to be fitted so as to be available also for use in time of war, were awarded today by Secretary Daniels, of the navy department, to the Maryland Steel company, of Baltimore for $997,500 each. The vessels will carry 12,000 tons of coal each and have a speed of fourteen knots.

CHILDLESS WOMEN ARE IN MORE PERIL THAN THE MOTHERS

New York, April 11.—The American Surgical association at its opening session today decided to hold the next annual meeting at Rochester, Minn. Dr. George E. Armstrong, Montreal, Canada, was elected president. The fourth congress of the International Surgical association will open here Monday.

"Childless women suffer more from cystic diseases of the breast which may lead to cancer than do women who have borne children," Dr. Charles Mayo said in an address by Dr. J. M. T. Finney, of Baltimore.

"The disease is a protest against modern civilization," said Dr. Finney. "It is most prevalent among childless women and again among women who have had one or two children but who did not nurse them. Mothers who have reared four or five children and have nursed them all rarely have it."

Dr. Richard Kaspar, member of the clinic of Dr. Anton Von Eiselberg, of Vienna, read a paper regarding radium as a cure for cancer.

Kaspar said that in forty-two cases of inoperable cancer where radium was used six had improved; fourteen cases had been benefited; five showed no effect and seventeen persons died under treatment.

"We have, therefore, come to the conclusion," he said, "that the recurrence of malignant tumors has sometimes been hastened by post-operative irradiation, possibly caused by the radium."

SUFFRAGETTE RIOTS WHEN HALED TO COURT

London, April 11.—May Stewart, the militant suffragette, who, with a cleaver, tried to demolish a case of valuable porcelains in the British museum on April 9, created such a disturbance when charged today that the police magistrate was compelled to adjourn the trial.

"You have not come here to listen to you today."

The magistrate remonstrated with the prisoner but she declared she would not be silenced. Then Mrs. Pankhurst was being tortured under the cat and mouse act—the devilish law for Reginald McKenna, the home secretary.

Then Miss Stewart threw a ball of paper at the magistrate, whereupon she and the public prosecutor gave up in despair and ordered the hearing postponed.

"May Stewart" was later in the day identified as "Catherine Wilson," who was arrested on March 4 over the lobby of the house of commons, dressed in men's clothing and carrying a cocoanut filled with petrol. She declined at that time to six weeks' hard labor as a suspected person.

The real name of the prisoner is understood to be Clarke, private secretary to Mrs. Pankhurst, and Mrs. Dacre Hewell, the girl witness for the prosecution, who has recently refused to give testimony in a sensational affidavit now in hands of Frank's defense.

REWARD OF $1,000 OFFERED BY BURNS

A reward of $1,000 is offered by Detective William J. Burns for satisfactory information in connection with reports that Leo Frank is a pervert or is immoral. This offer he made Saturday afternoon in a letter to The Constitution.

Burns, who left the city Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock, said before his departure that he had made public his offer before any information to the effect that Frank was sexually abnormal, but that, thus far, he had received no such data in his investigation.

Burns did not make public his destination at this trip, but it was said he will return in an early day. His expert attorneys for the defense stated Saturday, will likely not be made for ten days or more to come—probably two weeks. Its delay, it is said, will be caused by a new chain of evidence which he is said to have found.

The following is the letter from Burns:

"Editor Constitution: In making my investigation of the Frank case, it is of the highest importance that I get all facts in the reported rumors concerning acts of sexual perversion and immorality on the part of Leo M. Frank.

"In the papers yesterday I requested that persons having information bearing in any way on the matter would communicate with me at once. Having received no response at all from anyone, and having obtained no information of this way, I am compelled, on account of the extreme importance of the matter, to make this statement:

That I will pay $1,000 to any person or persons who will furnish me any definite and satisfactory information on the subject.

You will understand that I am very anxious to give this offer all the publicity possible, and I will appreciate it very highly if you will publish this offer for me. Yours very truly, (Signed) WILLIAM J. BURNS.

"If Detective Burns wants this information as badly as he pretends he wants it," said Chief Lanford to a reporter for The Constitution last night, "I'll certainly furnish him with what I believe to be positive proof. And I won't take any of his $1,000. I wouldn't take a reward from Burns or anybody else. I'll make my money by consulting me. I have proof, and I will be ready to reveal it to Mr. Burns at any time he cares to get it.

Detective Burns left the city at 5:10 yesterday afternoon on a Louisville and Nashville limited train. It is rumored that he went to Cincinnati to interview Dewey Hewell, the girl witness for the prosecution, who has recently refused to give testimony in a sensational affidavit now in hands of Frank's defense.

"SANDING" OF POULTRY STIRS HUMANE SOCIETY

New York, April 11.—The Humane society has appealed to the department of agriculture to put a stop to "sanding" and "scrooging" of live poultry.

The Greater New York Live Poultry Dealers' Protective association, which is co-operating with the Humane society, says chickens are starved for a day or more before consignments arrive in the city, and then fed on a paste composed of grain, pebbles and finely ground bone.

This, it is said, often adds 4 ounces to a 4-pound chicken and results in profits before the dealers to from 150,000 to 300,000 pounds of sand is marketed annually to consumers here each week at a fancy price.

The protective association and Humane society representatives have placed a number of stuffed crops as exhibits before the health authorities. These have been taken in charge by Assistant Corporation Counsel Keresey Know, who is planning to bring both civil and criminal prosecutions.

U. S. WOMEN EMPLOYEES MAY JOIN PROCESSION

Washington, April 11.—Women government employees may participate in the woman suffrage procession here May 9 as individuals if they so desire without fear of violating the civil service regulations. This in effect is the substance of a letter from Attorney General McReynolds to Mrs. William Kent, wife of the California representative, made public today. A thousand or more of women government employees wished to march in the parade, but feared they would not be permitted to do so. This fact was pointed out in a communication recently addressed to the attorney general by Mrs. Kent. The civil service commission at one time ago held that employes might parade as individuals, but not as representatives of the government. The attorney general says he knows of no reason why he should dissent from the commission's decision.

Mrs. Rebecca Mitchell.

Zebulon, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—Mrs. Rebecca Mitchell, aged 77 years, and widow of the late Captain J. H. Mitchell, died here very suddenly today. She is survived by one brother, Elias Wells, of Tyler, Texas, and seven children, as follows: Mrs. J. T. Baker, Mrs. G. D. Dominick, W. W. Mitchell, Miss Lizzie Mitchell, of Zebulon; Mrs. Annie Lavender, of Montezuma, and W. A. Mitchell, of Macon, Ga., and Jack Mitchell, of South Carolina. Funeral and interment will take place from the Baptist church, of which she was a member for many years.

RECOVERY IN SIGHT FOR KING OF SWEDEN

Stockholm, Sweden, April 11.—Further progress toward convalescence was announced in the surgeon's bulletin regarding the condition of King Gustave, of Sweden, issued today from the Sophia hospital, where his majesty was operated on for ulceration of the stomach Thursday.

The bulletin says:

"His majesty passed a quiet night, and enjoyed a good sleep. The pain he was suffering has diminished considerably and his condition gives reason to hope there will be no setback to his majesty's recovery."

GRAND ARMY TO AID CONFEDERATE REUNION

Jacksonville, Fla., April 11.—A substantial contribution to aid in preparations for the annual reunion of United Confederate Veterans to be held here in May will be made by the local camp of the Grand Army of the Republic, according to announcement today. The amount to be given by the union veterans was not stated in their request for permission to contribute, presented today to the reunion arrangements committee and promptly granted.

REVIVAL PLANS WILL NOT BE LAUNCHED TODAY

St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church to Hold Special Easter Services.

This morning, at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, a special Easter service will be held, at which plans for an old-time revival will be launched. The revival will begin April 17 and will run to April 26.

The plan of the pastor, Rev. Dr. B. F. Fraser, is to make the revival one of the most notable that has ever been held in the south—one that will be remembered for generations to come.

At the Easter rally this morning the church proper and the Sunday school will combine. Following the rally, special services will be held at St. Paul's Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, and it is hoped that these will be largely attended, as the success of the revival which will follow largely depends on the interest shown by the members.

Seldom in the history of the Methodist church in Atlanta has such a notable array of pulpit orators consented to take part in a revival service.

Some Notable Speakers.

Among the noted speakers who have agreed to come are the following:

Bishop John C. Kilgo, of Durham, N. C.

Dr. C. L. Goodell, of St. Paul's, New York, the greatest pastor-evangelist on the continent.

Dr. George R. Stuart, of Church Street, Knoxville, Tenn., noted for his work with the late Sam Jones, and well known to Atlanta people from his participation in the Atlanta Bible conferences.

Dr. Plato Durham, of Charlotte, N. C., a pulpit orator of great personality and power.

Dr. S. A. Steele, of Columbia, S. C., the first editor of The Epworth Era.

The genius of the revival will be Professor E. O. Excell, of Chicago, and a great choir of 300 will be organized among the Methodists locally to be under his direction. Professor Excell is the author of many well-known song books, and sang in this section of the country with the late Rev. Sam Jones.

Methodists in Atlanta and throughout this section of the country hail this as the revival of revivals, and the public will be invited to attend the services.

The principal meetings will be held in St. Paul's church, at the corner of Grant and Sidney streets. They will take place each day, from Monday, April 17, to Sunday, April 26, inclusive, at the hours of 10 a. m., 11 a. m., 3 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. Services will be held regularly at 7:30 p. m., at Trinity church, also, and it is expected that both churches will be filled to overflowing every night. Rev. L. G. Johnson, pastor of Trinity, will preside over the night services at that church, and there will be a different speaker each night.

Bishop Kilgo will preach at 10 o'clock at the opening session at St. Paul's on Friday, the 17th. Dr. Steele will preach at the same night at Trinity church.

Bishop Kilgo has just been particularly successful in a big revival campaign at Charlotte, N. C., at which more than 300 people were converted, according to telegrams received here.

Song Service Friday.

The complete program for the ten days in Atlanta has not yet been mapped out, but there will a great song service at St. Paule on the opening Friday night, and the program Saturday will include addresses at 10 a. m. by Dr. Durham and by Bishop Kilgo at 11 a. m. On Sunday Bishop Kilgo will speak twice at St. Paul's on the regular 11 o'clock service and in the afternoon to men only. Dr. George Stuart will arrive Monday, the 20th, and will speak twice daily from that time on.

An old-fashioned revival service on the scale planned for this gathering is something Atlanta has not seen since the old Sam Jones days. There have been magnificent Bible conferences and other religious gatherings of various kinds, but, according to Dr. Fraser's statement, it is the plan to make this somewhat different. The meeting in recent years, and to go back for many years, has been that from which women literally flocked to the mourners' bench and were saved by prayer and song and exhortation.

SAYS SUNDAY LAWS ARE "UN-AMERICAN" AND "UN-CHRISTIAN"

"It is doubtful if satan himself could devise a surer and more effective means of demoralising men than at one and the same time to forbid them to work and compel them to play, as the Sunday laws of Georgia, which are backed by Christian ministers, do. Not even an angel could successfully meet this double requirement, and that this prohibition should result in illicit action of every conceivable kind is as inevitable as sunrise. No one who knows human nature can doubt the disastrous effect of Sunday laws established by law," said Carlyle B. Haynes, the secretary of the southeastern division of the American Religious Liberty association, at the session of the convention of the religious liberty institute which is being held at Mayfair Seventh-day Adventist church on East Fair street, and at which are delegates from the Seventh-day Adventist churches of Georgia.

Forceful arguments were advanced yesterday at the institute to show that Sunday laws are wrong from every point of view, and really constituted a union of church and state, and thus were in violation of American principles of liberty. They were characterized as "un-American, unconstitutional, unjust and un-Christian."

The last meeting of the institute will be held at 7:45 o'clock tonight with another address by Mr. Haynes.

Easter at Atlanta University.

At the morning service in Ware Memorial chapel, Atlanta university, at 11 o'clock the student choir will sing the "Hallelujah Chorus," and the old-time melody, "He Rose From the Dead." Easter Sunday evening at 8 o'clock Mrs. Carter-Sawyer, of Boston, will give a sacred song recital. Mrs. Carter-Sawyer has been filling engagements in Florida and stops in Atlanta on her return because of her interest in the work of this institution. At her request the students will sing the old-time negro melodies. The public will be welcome at these services.

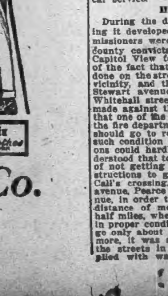
Another Good Benjamin Model



Here style speaks for itself. These are the clothes you see on Broadway. The picture is indeed a Broadway scene. Benjamin clothes are made in New York, hence their typical New York atmosphere.

Note the snug shoulders, long soft lapels, patch pockets, narrow trousers. Everything harmonized into one distinctive suit.

TENTH WARD CIVIC LEAGUE ORGANIZED

For the purpose of organising a civic improvement league, a mass meeting of nearly 100 citizens of the tenth ward has held at Capitol View Methodist church Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. A permanent organization was effected and the following officers elected: C. A. Carpenter, president; W. J. Pursley, vice president; A. M. Turner, secretary; C. A. Armstrong, treasurer.

Many matters of importance were discussed and committees were appointed to look into the various questions under consideration, such as water service, streets and sidewalks, sewers, gas, electric lights and street car service.

Discussions.

During the discussions of the evening it developed that the county commissioners were planning to move the county convicts from the camp near Capitol View to East Point. In view of the fact that so little work had been done on the streets of Capitol View and vicinity, and the present condition of Stewart avenue from Allen avenue to Whitehall street, a strong protest was made against this plan. It was stated that one of the main streets over which the fire department from No. 14 station should go to reach Capitol View is in such condition that even delivery wagons could hardly pass, and it was understood that to make time and be sure of not getting "stuck," No. 14 has instructions to go up Stewart to the Call's crossing, thence down Allen avenue, Pearce street and Stewart avenue, in order to reach Capitol View, a distance of more than two and one-half miles, whereas, if the streets were in proper condition they would have to go only about one-half mile. Furthermore, it was stated that very few of the streets in Capitol View are supplied with water for fire protection, even if the fire department could reach there in time to be of any service.

The question of the unkept ground-hog conditions of the streets in the more remote parts of the ward, especially during the last three years than Westminster Park and Capitol View, as well as the little work that has been done by the city or county in that section as compared to its needs.

A Beautiful Park.

A beautiful park was given to the city by Messrs. Forrest & George Adair with the understanding that the city should pave certain streets surrounding the park, which is located near the George W. Adair school, but up to the present not only have these streets not been paved, but practically nothing has been done to improve the park, further than to lay a few sewer pipes in the branch which runs through the park and to cut and grade the wood all the way from about one-half the park. City council set aside in 1913 $1,500 for the improvement of this park and the above are the improvements, if such they can be considered, resulting therefrom.

Money Needed.

It has been reported that one of the city wards asked for and received money for certain improvements which they realized afterwards they did not really need, and asked for it to be transferred for other uses in the ward, which was agreeable to all, so while the Tenth ward cannot get money for their actual necessities.

Records kept by patrons of the Stewart avenue cars show that during rush hours mornings and evenings the car registers range from 75 to 100 and sometimes more. The Stewart avenue line is at present one of the very few lines in the city with a schedule of 15 minutes during rush hours and 20 and 40 minutes at other times.

These and many other questions the league proposes to take up and thoroughly investigate and endeavor to remedy.

COL. W. T. GENTRY WILL BE 60 YEARS TUESDAY

His Birthday Will Be of Interest to Thousands of Employees in the South.

Colonel William T. Gentry, president of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, and president of the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph company, one of Atlanta's most prominent, greatly beloved citizens, will on next Tuesday celebrate his sixtieth birthday.

In celebration of the event, Mrs. Gentry will give an "at home" Tuesday afternoon, at which hundreds of friends of the family and scores of business associates of Colonel Gentry will be present.

Colonel Gentry is extremely popular with the 10,000 or more employees of the companies of which he is the head, and his forthcoming birthday is of interest to all of them.

Colonel William T. Gentry's career has been a remarkable one. He was born at Gordonsville, Va., April 14, 1854, and entered the telegraph service at the age of 16 years, at Charlottesville, Va. In 1873 he was promoted to circuit manager of all lines of the Southern and Atlantic Telegraph company in the state of Virginia. In 1876 he was transferred to Lynchburg, Va., when the Southern and Atlantic was purchased by the Western Union.

Later he went to Wilmington, N. C., where he remained for four years as chief operator. In 1879 he was transferred to the telephone department of the Western Union Telegraph company, and constructed and operated an exchange for the city of Wilmington, N. C.

In 1880 he became manager of the Western Union company in Alexandria, Va., and soon thereafter constructed a telephone exchange in that city for the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, and was appointed manager.

In 1884 he was appointed manager of the telephone exchange at Atlanta. In 1890 he was appointed assistant superintendent of the Georgia division of the Bell system, in addition to his duties as manager of the Atlanta exchange. During 1893 and 1894 he had charge of practically all construction work of the Southern Bell company in Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina and Florida.

When the construction department of the company was organized in 1895 he became general superintendent of construction. In 1899 he was appointed division superintendent, with headquarters in Atlanta. In 1901 he was elected general manager when C. H. Wilson resigned as general manager. In 1903 he was chosen vice president, continuing as general manager.

In 1906 the growth of the business necessitated the separation of the offices and he relinquished the duties of general manager, continuing as vice president.

In 1909 he was elected president of the Southern Bell company, and in 1912 was elected president of the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph company, both of which important offices he now fills.

REGIONAL BANK NOTICE RECEIVED IN ATLANTA

All Eligible Banks Notified They Will Be Included in This District.

Formal notice of the fact that the government will proceed with the organization of the federal reserve bank of district No. 6, in Atlanta, has been served. The government has also served notice on all the national and the eligible state banks in the district that they will be included in the district and must make application for membership within thirty days from April 8 if they want stock in the Atlanta bank.

Comptroller of the Currency John Skelton Williams, in accordance with the new currency act, decides to send of the banks the form of application they must fill out in order to become members. The pertinent sections of the law are quoted in a letter which the comptroller sends to each bank.

Urge Prompt Attention.

Along with the letter is a communication from M. C. Elliott, secretary of the reserve bank organization, which says, in part:

"Your prompt attention will expedite the organization of the federal reserve bank in your district. You are accordingly requested to execute and return this application without delay."

Atlanta's national banks received these letters and forms Friday afternoon and will act at once. The Fourth National bank directors have been called to meet Monday morning at 11:45 o'clock, and the application of that bank for its pro rata share will be in the mails for Washington Monday night. Other banks will take corresponding prompt action.

Must Take Stock.

National banks throughout the district will be required to subscribe for stock in the regional bank within the time limit or surrender their charters as national banks. The entire national bank capital of the district is more than sufficient to make up the minimum capital stock, $4,000,000, of the bank here.

Hundreds of state banks in the district are eligible to enter the system and take stock in the federal bank. The subscriptions from these will carry the total demand for stock in the Atlanta district far beyond the minimum fixed by law.

As soon as the capital stock of the new bank is subscribed a certificate of incorporation will be filed with the government by five banks to be designated by the comptroller as its agents. Then the balloting for directors will begin, and within a short time after that the bank will be ready to open for business.

Climate Failed; Medicine Effective

Sufferers from Tuberculosis often think that medicine will not help them. Fresh air, regular habits and good food aid in restoring health, but more is often needed. Many have been restored to health by Eckman's Alterative. Read this:

Weldon, Ill.

"Gentlemen:—Through your instrumentality I have been saved from a premature grave. On December 16, 1903, I was taken with Typhoid Pneumonia, which developed into Tuberculosis (bacilli were found). In February, 1905, I went to Fort Worth, Texas, and later to Canon City, Colorado. After being there two weeks my physician informed me that my case was hopeless. Three weeks later I returned home, weighing 120 pounds, the doctor having given me no assurance of reaching there alive. On July 14, 1905, I began taking Eckman's wonderful remedy for Lung Trouble. Now I am stout and well and can do any kind of work about my grain elevator." (Abbreviated) (Affidavit) ARTHUR WEBB.

Eckman's Alterative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and quickly cleanses the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Sold by all Jacobs Drug Stores. Write Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet of recoveries.

PASSING OF THE DEMAGOGUE.

Time will undoubtedly write the history of the past ten years as the decade of the demagogue. Never before has a similar period seen such a saturnalia of sham, of pretense, of theorizing, of, to use the street phrase, "four-flushing," projected into politics, into industry, into statecraft and publicity. Happily for the prosperity of the nation and the integrity of democratic institutions, the mania for muck-raking and pretense is now on its ebb tide. As long as it cast the shadow of uncertainty and suspicion over the nation, a return to normal conditions was impossible.

The perfectly legitimate and nationally demanded tariff and currency reforms to which democracy was committed have been labored for and achieved. But as noxious by-products, we have developed the muck-raker, political and journalistic, the demagogue, political and journalistic, and the theorist, from whose precious intrusion no field of endeavor has been safe.

In this decade of the demagogue, failure in life appeared to be the prime qualification for advising others how to succeed. The man who couldn't negotiate a dollar's credit at the bank felt inspired to "sit in" at counsels over the nation's finances. The man who didn't know a railroad from a cow trail speciously offered gilded "systems" for economizing railroad operation. He would save a million a day in theory, even if it bankrupted the railroads in actual operation.

The trail of the demagogue and theorist extended into politics and the newspapers. The demagogue began to think that the people could be fooled "all of the time." His bid for votes with rainbow promises absolutely impossible of fulfillment. He painted magic mirages which he promised to materialize once he floated into office. He capitalized class prejudices, the most despicable form of demagogy, and he had some newspapers and most of the weekly periodicals with him. He pandered to the low instinct of universal suspicion, of jealousy of success. No mark was too shining or clean for his muck and his unclean epithets. Business success was in his reckless mind prima facie evidence of crookedness, and he strove to infect his followers with the poison. He attacked, right and left. He was never a bull, always a bear on human integrity and character. He put his political opponents in the stocks of defamation and ridicule. Vociferation was his only asset. When proof was demanded he ducked or reached into the sewer for more ammunition.

The day of that mad, topsy-turvy era is setting. Reaction is apparent. Men and women and children, laborer and capitalist, have found that the orgy of sham, the harlequinade of demagogy, the debauch of muck-raking, the masquerade of self-seeking in the garments of patriotism, has reacted upon their own pockets, upon every phase of their material welfare. They are asking, "Why have you lied to us? Why have you painted all black? Why did you take advantage of righteous reforms to inflame hatred for your selfish ends? Why have you conspired against prosperity?"

The pendulum is swinging in the other direction. The dawn of sanity is at hand!

With these night birds out of the way but one menace remains. And that is found in the ghost dance doctors who stand at the foot of the patient's bed ready to ram new nostrums down his throat as soon as he is strong enough to sit up.

The nation has had its two needed capital operations, tariff and currency reform. The patient is convalescing. Left alone, he will soon be more nimble than ever before. He needed tariff and currency treatment, and he is responding to it. But around his bedside, metaphorically speaking, are lined up a brace of quack doctors each with his pet legislative nostrum for the as yet unrecovered patient. Such a sight would daunt a well man, much less one who has survived two major operations.

Quash the quacks! To the bow-wows with their nostrums, at least for the present. Wait until recovery is better established before further medication or further use of the scalpel is resorted to. The patient cannot stand everything at once!

The country has put behind it the decade of the demagogue, the pretender, the theorist, the muck-raker. These threats to its prosperity are in the discard, remembered only as historic nightmares. Now the same treatment for the quacks! They are the one barrier between America and an era of prosperity unexampled in our national history.

THE FIEND THAT RUNS.

A negro driver of a two-horse wagon ran down a young white boy at Central avenue and East Mitchell street the other day, fracturing his arm and shoulder blade, then dashing away without waiting to see the consequences of his recklessness.

A few weeks ago The Constitution commented on a similar outrage in Auburn avenue, in which an automobile driver figured. So far as we know, he has not yet been apprehended.

Cowardice of this nature is not confined to auto drivers, motorcyclists or the driver of any form of vehicle. It is not confined to white or colored. A man can have a "yellow streak," whether his skin is black or white.

In the Central avenue instance the boy might easily have been killed, as might have been the case in the Auburn avenue instance. In either one, prompt assistance on part of the driver in summoning ambulance or physician might easily have saved life; indifference might have turned the scale toward death.

And in the latter eventuality the person responsible would have been guilty of—murder.

The merciless weight of the law ought to be visited on the species of craven that runs down a victim, then flees. Murderer in spirit, and sometimes in fact, the type deserves less consideration than the gunman who plies his homicidal trade openly.

A BUSINESS REST CURE.

The tendency in both house and senate to expedite the legislative program will be hailed with approval by the business interests of the country.

Reports from the senate are to the effect that even the opposition to the Panama canal tolls repeal has decided to avoid obstructionist tactics. The one obstacle to a comparatively early adjournment of congress has been the possibility that the senate would take advantage of its unlimited debate privileges to indefinitely prolong discussion.

With due disposition made of the tolls issue, there will remain as a potential source of friction and delay only the so-called anti-trust and railroad regulation measures. As touching these, there is a distinct sentiment in both branches either to postpone action to next winter or to enact such legislation as will not interrupt the tentative advance of prosperity.

The routine appropriation bills need not unreasonably prolong the session. The details already have been threshed out in committee, and there is apt to be relatively little change made by either house or senate.

Since the first month of Taft's administration, congress has been almost continually in session. The nation and the business of the nation are suffering from a glut of legislation.

Both are suffering from an excess of uncertainty.

Prosperity does not thrive in an atmosphere of turmoil. Tranquillity is the only soil on which its growth is fertile.

From the partisan standpoint, the democracy has everything to gain by dispatch in the public business. It must go before the country next fall. It can do so safely if it stands pat on the currency and tariff, and puts the soft pedal on further radical legislation.

Beyond all, both congress and country need the rest cure. The sooner it is applied the better for both; incidentally, for the democratic party.

THE WRATH OF THE PEONS.

The wholesale deportation of Spaniards from Chihuahua and Torreon by Villa reflects the reaction from more than a century of tragedy and oppression. Villa explains his course by saying that Spaniards represent to the peons the long regime of tyranny by which they have been held in bondage to wealthy landowners, deprived of educational advantages, their family life often made a mockery, and their existence degraded into a monotonous round of physical drudgery.

Villa's army is largely recruited from this downtrodden class. It is not strange that when they reduce cities and provinces they should let down the bars of their resentment against the men associated in their minds with the role of merciless taskmasters.

Not all of the wealthy men in Mexico, whether the "haciendados" or planters, or those engaged in finance and industry, are pure Spanish. There is an admixture of native blood in the veins of many of them. But it seems that the peon is incapable of discrimination, and his first impulse is to visit punishment upon all members of the class he believes is responsible for his subjection.

The developments at Torreon and Chihuahua suggest the somewhat disquieting question: What will happen when, or if, the constitutionalists gain control in Mexico and when, or if, Huerta, who now is conciliating the moneyed class, should see fit to pander to the peon class? It is not impossible that the long-pent-up bitterness of the peons may express itself in measures of such extremeness as to necessitate action by this country.

It is something like historic retribution that reaches over the decades and begins to exact its toll at interest that may be usurious. Each incident of this nature serves to expose the pathos of the whole Mexican situation, and the hugeness of the task of permanent pacification.

NEGROES AND THE HOSPITAL.

H. H. Proctor, pastor of the negro First Congregational church, has been preaching excellent health doctrine to his race, none of which has been more pertinent than the following recent reference to the stake of the negro in the plan to enlarge the facilities of Grady hospital:

> The voters of the city will soon pass upon a matter of vital importance to its welfare. I refer to the issuance of bonds to supply certain necessary improvements, among these better hospital facilities. The death rate among the colored people is far too high. One reason of this is the lack of proper hospital facilities. A case in point is that of the Carrie Steele orphanage, where an epidemic of diphtheria broke out, and because there was no provision for isolating the ones affected seven or eight children have died within the last few weeks. I trust, therefore, that the colored men of the city will register tomorrow so as to be ready to cast their ballot in favor of the bonds so vital to health of the whole city.

The white man has a vital enough interest in improving municipal equipment for fighting the disease and death rate. The interest of the negro is incomparably larger, approaching practically the gravity of racial preservation.

The superior handicap of the white man in the way of education and knowledge and money enables him better to safeguard the health of himself and his family out of his private sources. The majority of negroes lack this resource. To a controlling extent they must depend upon the city for protection.

That is one phase. The other is that the sick negro, the negro without contagious hospital facilities, ignorant of sanitation, reckless of sanitary laws, is a menace to every white inhabitant of the city. There are no white and negro germs. They are all just germs, and they are deadly.

It is well that the negro no less than the white man should wake up to these facts. An adequate municipal hospital is the indispensable arch to any community health structure. The more quickly we put that principle into effect the more quickly will we work toward standardizing the health of white as well as negro.

ANSLEY'S LATEST PROJECT.

Among the most significant and important real estate development projects recently presented in Atlanta is the one involving the development of Oglethorpe Park, described elsewhere today by Edwin P. Ansley, who needs no introduction to the business men and people generally of Atlanta. Mr. Ansley's phenomenal record as a builder and practical prophet, exhibited at Ansley Park and on Forsyth, attaches unusual importance to his latest enterprise. He has earned the reputation of keeping strictly the spirit and letter of his promises and of materializing his dreams.

Oglethorpe Park is surrounded by such conditions and advantages as give great possibilities to its development. Under Ansley's trained judgment and skillful hand it should match in relative importance the other enterprises already to his credit in and around Atlanta.

Huerta has a pretty fair chance of fulfilling his own prophecy as to dying in his boots.

A new counterfeit $10 note has been discovered. Of it a Georgia editor says: "We'll never live to see it, or we would be fooled by it, without question."

Says The Houston Post: "Governor Slaton of Georgia has announced for the senate to succeed the late Senator Bacon. As Alabama retires from the limelight, let Georgia come forward while the brethren sing."

Villa never had the advantage of a bine back speller, but he seems to have graduated from the old-time yellow back novel.

In the Easter Land.

And bright the fields and dells
In the Easter land of Love
With all the dreams and bells.

The rivers singing to the sea
In blessedness of flight;
You follow paths of Memory
Through "valleys of delight."

III.

Heaven's love to lead us by the hand
Over the greening sod;
The lilies of the Easter land
Are the white thoughts of God.

When Wisdom settles in a town folks don't believe it, so it's something like an unrecognized world-traveller.

You needn't burn red fire any sort that'll make a blaze will wake the world up.

Just so much time for dreaming, then it's Good Morning to the sun and jerk your coat, and make your dreams come true.

The Greater Joy.

No joy save where thou art—
No sun, no star, no sky of living blue,
No glory in the round, green earth, sweet-heart,

II.

No laurel wreath of Fame;
Heedless I see her messengers depart;
And thy voice still sweetheart?

Let their fair favors cease
If they lead not to life-paths where thou art;
Poverty—Pain—are ministers of peace,
Blessed by thy love, sweetheart!

Rough on the Teacher.

The teacher of a boy's school wrote as follows to the editor of a magazine:

"I inclose a poem of mine and trust it will find place in your pages. I have what may be called 'a poetical school.' Every scholar writes good verse."

The editor returned his poem, with this note:

"Dear Sir: Your poem is not available. Please let us see the good verse written by your scholars."

My Lady's Easter Hat.

"Last year My Lady's Easter hat
Looked like a blooming garden flat.
Today she calmly sports a stiff
And lonely pine tree on a cliff.
Last year the weasel shape was right,
Today her panniers are in sight.
She is a thing of freaky frills;
Her trunk's like a fish's gills,
Or an umbrella partly raised.
(For "partly" let the Lord be praised.)
Once she was straight and slim and tall,
Now she appears about to fall.
Her happy smile has run to seed,
And she is limp and wobbly-kneed;
For 'tis the fashion of today
To slump and slouch along your way.
Tomorrow, just as like as not,
Her form will ape a dinner pot;
And next day after look for hoops,
And flowing sleeves and Shaker scoops,
For when a Woman is your text,

DAILY GRIST from the STATE'S POLITICAL GRIND

ANDERSON'S FRIENDS JUBILANT

THAT VEREEN IS OUT OF RACE

Savannah, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—The friends of J. Randolph Anderson are jubilant over the announcement that Hon. W. C. Vereen, of Moultrie, will not make the race for governor.

Unless more formidable opposition develops, the south Georgia politicians are confident they can elect their man. There seems no longer to be any doubt that Mr. Anderson will have the solid support of south Georgia. In fact, it is expected that he will announce himself as a south Georgia candidate, on rather as the south Georgia candidate.

Upon his return from Atlanta Monday, Mr. Anderson had a conference with some of his friends, and steps were immediately taken to sound out Vereen, of Moultrie. Influences were put to work to convince Vereen that it would be fatal to south Georgia's chances for him to enter the race. So far as is known no other south Georgia man is seriously considering making the race.

No Factional Fight.

Mr. Anderson will not formally announce his candidacy until after Governor Slaton has announced himself formally for the senatorial seat. What is most feared now is a factional fight, with the re-establishment of the old Smith and Brown alignments. The impression that has reached Savannah is this will not occur. This is accounted for in this way:

Within the last few months Senator Hoke Smith has won favor with the element in this section which has heretofore bitterly opposed him. At this time even Savannah regards Smith very favorably, and this feeling is reflected throughout south Georgia.

The reason of this friendliness is that Senator Smith has done south Georgia several good turns recently. He has been particularly active in helping Savannah out in several movements. Therefore, with Mr. Anderson recognised as the south Georgia candidate, it is not reasonable to think that the friends of Senator Smith will consider putting out a candidate and thus embarrassing him with his newly made friends in this section.

Mr. Anderson has not made any definite plans for his campaign. They will be determined largely, of course, by the opposition he has for the governorship. He expects to make several speech-making trips over the state and to keep in touch with the voters in other ways.

LOCAL AND STATE POLITICAL GOSSIP

IN THE "BLOODY" TENTH DISTRICT

Augusta, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—Of late the big interest which was promised in the tenth congressional district race has dwindled. Attention has turned more, in the past two weeks, to the governorship, the United States senate and to the county offices—and it is said that quite a little bit of money from one of the congressional candidates has been sent into Richmond county for organization purposes. Up to this time Oswell Eve hasn't announced for congress, but undoubtedly will do so when he thinks the time is ripe. He seems to be watching the wind and the straws right now—but he's going to run. Joe Reynolds is making speeches at the rate of two or three a week, and says he is just as optimistic as ever over his chances.

So far it is too early to get a reasonable size-up on the senatorial situation. It is being pretty freely talked, but the talk doesn't indicate what the result in the county will be.

In connection with the local sheriff's race is a thread which leads to the Augusta postoffice situation. Generally it is understood that John W. Clark, who is now sheriff, stands about the best chance of landing the postoffice. Indeed, it is known that he has been making arrangements to vacate the office he now holds, and for which he will not stand for re-election, because of the fact that the support which has kept him in the office the past twelve years has dropped away from him.

If he resigns before July 1, the county commissioners will have to call a special election to fill the vacancy. If his resignation comes after that date, making the vacancy within a period of six months, there will be no special election; the commissioners will fill the office by appointment for the unexpired term.

The latest from Washington in connection with the postoffice is that Mr. Hardwick, in whose hands the Augusta postoffice absolutely is, has not made up his mind yet as to whom he will give the place. He will, however, before he opens his senatorial campaign—and that campaign will most likely be opened in Augusta.

JUDGE PRICE EDWARDS WILL NOT OPPOSE CONGRESSMAN LEE

Tallapoosa, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—Judge Price Edwards announced this week that he would not be a candidate for congress opposing Hon. Gordon Lee. He also announced that he had no further political inclinations.

There is a strong rumor here that the bull moose will have a county ticket in the election this fall. This party has a strong following in the county and in the presidential election Roosevelt carried one precinct solid.

The primary for county officers will be held on May 2. There are twenty-two candidates in the field. The registration list is large, and the vote will be heavy.

Interest in the race for senator from the thirty-eighth district was increased this week when Dr. B. F. Williams, of Bremen, announced that he was a candidate. The other candidates are J. J. Mangham, of Bremen, and P. E. Baxley, of this city.

MANY PLEDGES OF SUPPORT

BEING RECEIVED BY MILLER

Columbus, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—Hon. B. S. Miller has been giving careful consideration this week to the suggestion that he become a candidate for governor of Georgia. Mr. Miller, who is at present senator from the seventeenth district, and who has represented Muscogee county several times in the general assembly, has been prominent in state politics for years. He is well known over the state, and his personal following has awaited with much interest his decision as to entering the gubernatorial race. Mr. Miller has received many encouraging letters on the subject, and much of the support pledged is from south Georgia.

Indications now point to a rather lively legislative race in Muscogee. Captain J. J. Slade, Hon. H. H. Swift and Hon. Ed Wohlwender, the present representatives, are standing for re-election, and Hon. W. Cecil Neill has also announced his candidacy.

Several very interesting races have developed for county offices, and as a result the registration, which closed Saturday, is the heaviest in the history of the county, nearly five thousand white voters having registered. J. A. Beard and E. P. Roberts, traditional rivals, are again opposing each other for sheriff. F. E. Whittlesey and Dr. F. M. Gordy are the candidates for tax collector. F. M. Hemming, the present tax receiver, has two opponents—C. A. George and W. E. Carpenter. John S. Jenkins and J. D. McPhail are the two candidates for county treasurer.

For state senator from the twenty-fourth district, C. C. Minter and W. D. Berry, both of Chattahoochee county, are candidates for the democratic nomination.

COUNTY OFFICERS ARE NAMED

BY WORTH COUNTY VOTERS

Sylvester, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—In the county primary held here Thursday, the following candidates were successful: Clerk of superior court, W. Kenneth Stewart; sheriff, L. A. Polk; tax collector, M. J. Bass; tax receiver, J. B. Sikes; treasurer, W. H. Powell; surveyor, W. J. Davis; coroner, A. J. Paul; county commissioners, J. S. Weatherry, J. M. Watson, Jr., and J. B. White, Jr.

Georgia Suffers From Lack Of the Proper Statistics

An intelligent analysis of the industrial and agricultural possibilities of Georgia is contributed to "The Country Gentleman" by Barton W. Currie. Mr. Currie depends for much of his information upon Martin V. Calvin, of Georgia, a contributor to The Constitution, regarding whose work he says:

No Official Figures.

"There is overwhelming evidence on every hand of inspiring advance in certain phases of Georgia's agricultural development, but there is absolutely no official source of statistics to which the student of economics may turn. Census reports, you hear, are far from dependable. Crop reports are largely the result of guess-work or the bunching of haphazard averages. There was one man, however, to whom I could turn for sharp light on the past and present—an official but reliable statistician, a farmer of ripe experience and a keen student of affairs. Martin V. Calvin has farmed all his life, has been a legislator and state office-holder, also an occasional journalist. Editors, bankers and merchants with whom I talked in Atlanta advised me to go to him for clearly defined idea of Georgia's progress.

"I found Mr. Calvin the most modest of statisticians, yet a forceful optimist. Here are some vitally interesting facts he provided: In 1860 the whole property of the state of Georgia amounted to $672,742,501. Deduct the value of slaves, estimated at $300,894,655, and you have $370,038,946. It was not until 1889—quarter of a century after Appomattox—that the Georgia farmer got out of the cash values that made the whole property of the state, railroad property included, total $380,189,514; and it was not until 1907—after forty-two years of social and industrial turmoil and struggle—that the state's whole property equaled the inventory values that were made in 1860 and carried over a surplus of some $26,000,000.

"Such facts as these,' commented Mr. Calvin, 'reveal the indomitable energy of a really great people and should be of definite value to our state chamber of commerce when it gets down to the work of citing examples—not estimates—of actualities as they exist in Georgia.

"'It is my belief that, now we have organized the entire state for the purpose of developing our resources and opening the door of opportunity to the world, we should look to the eastern and not to the western states. While our eastern brethren were themselves almost to a man in the fight they made against slavery in the south, they are today infinitely freer from prejudice on that settled question than are the majority of folk in the western states. That may sound strange, but it is true.

Maps for the Bargain Hunter.

"'Aside from this view there are thousands of farmers in the eastern states who would gladly come to Georgia if they could only be made acquainted with conditions and prospects in the south. They are first-rate farmers, can farm on a level, on a hillside or among rocks, just as Georgians farm, and farm profitably. Eastern farmers can make more corn, more wheat, more potatoes to the acre than western farmers. There have been physical reasons for this, wherefore to state the fact is no reflection upon the western farmer.

"'Here is another point in my argument: Just compare the population per square mile in certain of our eastern and western states: Massachusetts, 418.8; Rhode Island, 508.5; Connecticut, 251.3; New Jersey, 337.7; Pennsylvania, 171.9; Ohio, 117.6; Indiana, 79.3; Illinois, 100.7; Michigan, 48.9; Wisconsin, 42.2.

"'It would be possible for me to compare extremes if I made one table of the Pacific or Rocky mountain states. I consider the analogy I offer much more fair. Now as for Georgia: We have something like forty-four persons to the square mile and a diversity of opportunity such as no other state in the union can offer, when you reckon on our railroads, our seaports and our proximity to the great eastern markets. It is our duty to ourselves to gather dependable statistics and map out our opportunity areas so that the bargain hunter may come in and be guided to the identical bargain he is seeking. Our associated chambers of commerce can do this and can be made the most effective immigration agencies ever organized.'"

In buying diamonds and jewelry it is necessary to depend upon the integrity of the dealer to a marked extent. It is, therefore, just as important to exercise good judgment in choosing your jeweler as it is in the selection of the article itself.

We are proud of the reputation we have made in the quarter of a century we have been in business, and enjoy the pleasant knowledge that we can conscientiously refer you to any business concern or bank in Atlanta.

In Honor of Miss McKinnon

Miss Nell Lewis entertained at auction bridge Saturday afternoon at her home, in Kirkwood, in honor of Miss Sallie Fanny McKinnon, whose marriage to Mr. William Taylor Moyer will be an interesting event on Wednesday, April 15, at the Jackson Hill Baptist church.

The entire lower floor was thrown into one and the color scheme of lavender and white was carried out in all details. Quantities of dogwood were banked in the fireplace of the living room and vases of lilacs and violets were placed about the rooms. Punch was served by Miss Mary Lee Wilhelm.

There were appropriate prizes, and Miss McKinnon was presented with a hand-painted nut bowl.

It's Easy to Peel Off All Your Freckles

The contrast between the freckles and the clear skin usually is so great that no bleach can be more than partially successful in obliterating the disfigurements. Ordinary mercolised wax is far better; it literally peels off the freckles. Get an ounce of it at the nearest druggist and tonight spread on enough to completely cover your face; remove in the morning with warm water. Repeat daily until every freckle has disappeared.

Rough, blotchy, pimpled skin, also common at this season, may be entirely gotten rid of by this same method, without discomfort or inconvenience. The effort is decidedly worth while, the new complexion obtained being so clear, smooth and youthful.

If bothered with wrinkles, bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. This is the most effective and quickest-acting wrinkle treatment known.—(adv.)

TWO TRAIN BANDITS TRAPPED IN SWAMP

Men Who Tried to Hold Up I. C. Passenger Surrounded—One Killed in the Attempted Hold-Up.

Amite, La., April 11.—Posses, headed by Sheriff Ballard, of Tangipahoa parish, and Special Agent Young, of the Illinois Central railway, tonight surrounded Beaver swamp near here, where the two white men who today attempted to hold up Illinois Central passenger train No. 34, wounding Isom Allen, a porter, and causing the death of Lude Anderson, who jumped from the train and was ground to death beneath the wheels, were believed to be concealed.

It was expected that the men would be captured before morning, as one of them was said to be limping from a wound received when W. J. Kent, assessor of Tangipahoa parish, fired on the bandits as they left the train. Bloodhounds had followed their trail for three hours, but were baffled by a sudden downpour of rain. In addition to two dogs held in leash by Sheriff Ballard, a pair of hounds noted for their ability to follow a trail under most difficult circumstances had been brought here by Special Agent Young from Crystal Springs.

The attempted hold-up occurred between Flukers and Tangipahoa, a few miles north of here. It is believed that the robbers expected to secure large sums from pay-masters of lumber companies in this section who are usually passengers on this train on Saturday, the weekly pay day.

The Fight on the Train.

The robbers entered the negro coach. When Lude Anderson saw two masked men enter the car and demand "Hands up!" he went through a window of the car and was ground to death by the rapidly moving train. Isom Allen, a porter, was shot in the stomach by one of the robbers, who jumped from the train before they had reaped any benefit from the hold-up.

It is believed the two robbers boarded the train at Tangipahoa, La., a few miles south of here. Soon after the train left Flukers the two men, with handkerchiefs tied over their faces, appeared at a door of the negro coach and ordered all to hold up their hands. As the command was given Allen grappled with one of the robbers, who fired point blank at him. When Allen fell one of the robbers pulled the bell cord and as the speed of the train slackened both jumped. In this short space of time Anderson had met his death.

Story of Negro Porter.

New Orleans, April 11.—Isom Allen, negro porter who thwarted the attempt of two white men to hold up passengers on Illinois Central passenger train No. 34 near Flukers, La., today, tonight lies in a hospital here suffering from a serious wound in the groin, which he received in a desperate struggle with the bandits. He was brought here late today, and according to physicians may recover.

Details of the baffled hold-up were related tonight by Allen.

"When just out of Flukers two white men, the lower part of their faces masked with handkerchiefs, entered the car. I met them in the aisle. The tall man, in front, pointed his gun at me and said:

"'We will start with you first, nigger.'

"I grabbed his revolver and the second robber, a short man, stepped into the aisle and began firing his gun against my stomach, fired once. I fell to the floor, wrestling the weapon from his hand. The tall man grabbed the gun from me and the two ran from the car."

While Allen was engaged with the bandits Lude Anderson, a negro section hand, jumped through an open window of the car. His body was ground into bits beneath the wheels of the train.

NOW THE BEST TIME TO ENTER GREAT CONTEST

carry on your campaign, and all aid possible will be rendered you.

In considering the pleasures of friends and patrons The Constitution believes that the best is not too good; that therefore, has assembled an award list commensurate with that belief. In offering these awards The Constitution endeavors to meet the popular desire with the highest of value, together with quality and quantity. The many costly prize to be given away are the result of careful consideration. These expensive, magnificent awards, and the manner in which the territory has been divided, give each energetic candidate an opportunity seldom offered. All are upon the same footing and the result obtained by each contestant will be indicative of the amount of energy, ability and industry she used during the campaign.

Entry Costs Nothing.

There are no stipulations of a nature to deter any from entering the campaign. Entry costs nothing; votes are not hard to get, and when one considers the possibilities of a campaign carried on along commonsense lines, where nothing except time, attention and perseverance is required, then she should find a good reason to embrace the opportunity as offered, and start at once. The campaign is simplicity itself. To commence operation, send in the name you wish to place in nomination and the candidate will be credited with the nomination and 5,000 votes.

(The nomination blanks and voting coupons are to be found on editorial page—each issue—of The Daily and Sunday Constitution.)

After this is done, the candidate with the right effort will pile up thousands upon thousands of votes. After that effort is sustained throughout the short time occupied by the campaign, the net results to the candidate will certainly gratify her.

If You Take Too Much Calomel You Will Bring On Rheumatism

Calomel Attacks the Bones and Develops a Painful Mercurial Rheumatism.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is better than calomel. And every dose of calomel that you take is putting mercury into your system, and mercury is a powerful chemical which attacks the bones and causes a gradual wasting away, necrosis of the bone, or mercurial rheumatism, the most painful and the most dangerous form of rheumatism.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT beats calomel every way. It contains no mercury; it flushes the intestinal canal and bowels and cleanses them of all sourness and undigested waste; and it dissolves the uric acid poison which has generated from the fermenting food that has lain in the stomach, and passes it off in the urine, thus removing the cause, which has poisoned the blood and clogged the liver and the kidneys, and restores to normal activity.

ARSON WARRANT AGAINST YARBROUGH

Macon Man Also Bound Over for Assault With Intent to Murder on Testimony of Miss Herndon.

Macon, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—J. W. Yarbrough, the wire line operator, who was arrested here a few days ago on the charge of assault with intent to murder on the ground that he gave Miss Irene Herndon a poisoned banana, was bound over to the grand jury today by Judge Daly, in the municipal court, and was later served with another warrant charging him with arson. His bond in the assault with intent to murder case was fixed at $1,000.

No date for a hearing on the arson charge has yet been fixed by the court, and in the meantime Yarbrough will remain in jail. The warrant charging arson was issued by W. R. Smith, state fire marshal, and charges Yarbrough with burning his house.

Miss Herndon told practically the same story about Yarbrough giving her the banana, admitting that she had gone to a barn in the rear of the Yarbrough home and there searched four trunks containing effects of the Yarbroughs which had been saved from the fire when they moved out of their home and which it is alleged Yarbrough had made an affidavit to the insurance company that they were lost in the fire. She claims Yarbrough asked her not to say anything about finding the trunks.

Witnesses at the hearing today were divided as to whether Yarbrough gave Miss Herndon the banana or not, or whether she took it from his pocket. Some testified one way and some another.

Yarbrough testified that he did give Miss Herndon a banana last Saturday, but that she ate it right there before him, and that he had not given her a poisoned banana on Tuesday of last week, as charged. Yarbrough declared that following his return from a hayride one night last week, he found that his house had been entered during the absence and that all of his effects had been disturbed during his absence. Later, he said, Mr. Herndon's little daughter came to his house and told him that the detective had entered the house while he was away and had secured a list of all of his personal effects.

Chemist Morris, who analysed the poison found in the banana, testified at the hearing today that the banana carried arsenic and five grains of bichloride of mercury.

After Yarbrough had been bound over, Miss Herndon went to him and told him that he would probably take out warrants against Detective Oglesby, a Pinkerton man, charging him with entering into a house and with perjury.

Plans for New Depot.

Macon, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—That the plans for Macon's new union depot will soon be ready for presentation to the railroad commission and the people of Macon was the statement made here today by President Winburn, of the Central of Georgia railway. Mr. Winburn, President Lawton, came to Macon on a business trip.

Mr. Winburn said the plans are now in the hands of one of the leading architectural firms in the United States. As for the preliminary work he said $100,000 has already been spent during the last few months in the west yard and $300,000 more will be necessary to reorganize the yards properly for the terminal.

President Winburn denied several rumored changes which it is reported may take place in the Central's official family soon, and also denied a report to the presidency. It is reported here that T. S. Hodgson, the company manager, may succeed Mr. Winburn as vice president, while J. T. Johnson, now general superintendent, will be moved to the general managership. As to a new general superintendent, three Macon men are mentioned. They are Superintendents M. A. Ramsay, of the Macon division, and R. J. Harlan, of the southwestern division, and W. H. Fetner, master mechanic of the Central's big $2,000,000 shops here.

Restraining Order Against City.

Macon, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—The Macon Railway and Light company today secured a temporary restraining order against the city of Macon to keep the city from tearing up the tracks of the company from the east side of Tattnall square, which it has threatened to do unless the company removes them by next Tuesday.

Judge Mathews, of the superior court, has set the hearing on the injunction for April 25. His order suspends any further action on the part of the city pending the hearing.

TRADE BOARDS WILL WORK TOGETHER FOR GOOD OF CARROLL

Carrollton, Ga., April 11.—(Special.) The Carrollton chamber of commerce made its bow to the world on the 31st of March and in doing so paved the way to the accomplishment of an end greatly to be desired—the establishment of a county-wide chamber for Carroll county. The new chamber in Bowdon, organized in March, and the board of trade in Villa Rica, coupled with the Carrollton chamber will make a combination for the work on the 31st of that will be hard to refuse when the campaign is started in the rural communities of the county.

Reports which have reached the Carrollton chamber from the various R. F. D. routes centering in Carrollton indicate that the men on the farms of the county are awakening to the necessity of co-operation in a remarkable degree.

One of the first objects of the Carrollton chamber is the getting together of the rural communities of the organized lines for the betterment of all conditions.

Many suggestions are to be presented to the board of directors of the Carrollton chamber next Monday night; all looking toward the upbuilding of the town and county. The fine has gone forth that when the best county in Georgia is spoken of the name "Carroll" will be the next word uttered.

In a Cave and on an Island Wild Cat Stills Are Raided

Athens, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—Good stories for a movie scenario, with all the varied stage setting from nature's own handiwork, composed the testimony heard by United States Commissioner W. G. Cornett this morning when two "moonshine" cases were heard and defendants bound over.

The illicit still in the mountain country, where the topography is rugged and the fastnesses afford hiding places, is a familiar picture. These cases, however, afforded new settings—one a cave still in the near county pf Gwinnett, and the other an island still in the also near county of Elbert.

United States Deputies Lay, Lanier and Miller routed a still in Gwinnett in March, destroyed fifty gallons of whisky of the white lightning variety and overturned 1,500 gallons of beer and singlings. The still was located in a typical cave, hollowed out in the side of a sheer earthen cliff in a wild part of Ben Smith's district, the smoke from the still going through the earth by a small pipe, and leaving literally from the ground on the hillside above. Alack Givvins was charged with violating the law in this wild spot.

Isham Gunter was arraigned for commitment as being one of the workers at a unique still located on an island in the middle of the Savannah river, halfway between the Georgia and South Carolina banks. The island had abundant outlook to observe the approach of the revenuers and the operators made a practice of blacking their faces before crossing from one side of the other to the island. The one captured was made up as a fairly good representation of a negro when arrested in a boat as he was trying to get into Carolina.

UNIQUE MEMORIAL EXERCISES AT ATHENS

Athens, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—Memorial day will be, as usual, one of the most significant of the whole year in Athens. Falling on Sunday the day will be even more sacredly and reverently observed than usual. Late in the evening of the quiet day bath the exercises are to be held in the university.

There will be no oration—for many years the custom being observed of refraining from orations and having instead a program of experiences from the old soldiers themselves. These have been addresses the past two years, however, but the old custom will be resumed this year, except that added to the talks by the veterans there will be a talk from Miss Mildred Rutherford, historian general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

COURTESY IS REQUIRED FOR WOMEN WORKERS

Pittsburg, April 11.—The punishment in police court today of Frank Hirsch brought out the fact that a number of factories in the Pittsburg district have issued orders for their men to be courteous to women workers. At the hearing it developed that Hirsch, who had been arrested for following a girl home from the factory, had already been suspended under the company's rule, which is being vigorously enforced.

IN every advertisement on this page is part of a magnificent Easter Lily, photographed from nature, and upheld by an Easter Rabbit.

Prizes will be awarded Constitution readers who send by noon on Monday the neatest and most complete pictures of the lily and rabbit, assembled from the pieces in the ads.

The prizes for this contest will be a box and fifty orchestra seats at the performances of "The Lily" by the Lucille LaVerne company, which opens a spring and summer engagement in stock at the Lyric Monday evening.

"The Lily" is one of David Belasco's best and strongest plays. It never has been seen before in Atlanta, and never before has been offered to the public at less than two dollars admission. The LaVerne company is of the highest character, and Jake Wells sends this company here out of compliment to Atlanta, while entertaining the Shriners and other big conventions this summer. It is a stock company of rare talent, having spent last summer playing for sixteen weeks in Richmond, playing to crowded houses at every performance.

Marguite Chaffee, who is at the head of this company as leading lady, is an Atlanta girl and a graduate of the Girls' High school. Scores of her old friends already have signified their intentions to enter the contest out of compliment to her. Miss Chaffee has been in the Belasco and Frohman schools and companies for twelve or fourteen years, and has gained distinction in New York. There are fifteen first-class artists in her company. Every man in the ensemble is a college man, Oxford, Harvard and Yale being the leaders represented.

The Lyric has been placed in the very acme of perfect condition for the engagement of this company. It is equipped with a cool air ventilating system that pumps fresh, clean, cool air in every second and takes out the old air. The side doors opening on streets over which little or no traffic goes at night may be left open during every performance. It is the ideal summer house, and with a company of this high rank and ability will undoubtedly prove popular this summer.

As the season progresses it is intended to introduce the visiting star system and among those already booked are Edna Goodrich, Laurette Taylor, Robert Edeson and others. During Shriners' week it is the plan to have Tom Wise re-enact his original hit, "Are You a Mason?"

Regular Season Nearing End---Stock Begins This Week

(At the Atlanta.)

"Smashing the Vice Trust," which comes to the Atlanta theater for one week beginning Monday, April 13, has been lifted above the usual so-called white Slave picture, because it is based upon actual happenings disclosed by District Attorney Whitman in his famous fight upon the vice interests. In order that the picture might be all the more real, the company which produces it managed to secure District Attorney Whitman himself as one of the persons in this feature photo play, and he is shown at his desk in the district attorney's office, directing his famous criminal prosecution. This is the first time pictures have been taken of him actually at work, and are perhaps the most interesting part of this popular moving picture drama.

Though "Smashing the Vice Trust" is intended by its producers to be a big, vivid and authentic portrayal of the pitfalls prepared for young women by the organized vice interests, it provides a thrilling and heart-rending story as well. Probably a large part of the force with which the lessons in this film are driven home comes from the sympathy which is aroused by the characters in this moving picture play.

This photo drama is in six parts, and the story begins almost with the first scene. The heads of the vice trust are gathered in their office—an exact replica, by the way, of the actual headquarters in a hotel between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth streets, on Sixth avenue, New York city. They are pressed with demands for victims, and in order to supply them they send Margaret, their principal woman agent, to a small factory city to lure girls in various ways to New York. Other agents of the vice trust are sent to low dance halls, fake fortune teller agencies, dishonest employment bureaus and fake matrimonial bureaus—all traps which were disclosed by District Attorney Whitman in his famous expose of vice conditions. This photo play also shows how these traps are sprung, and how other girls may escape the snares laid for them.

"Smashing the Vice Trust" is the only one of the white slave films which endeavors to be an authentic portrayal of actual conditions unearthed by District Attorney Whitman in New York city.

The scope of his investigations were much larger than those of the Lexow committee, which amazed the country, and this spectacular moving picture has drawn from his disclosures the material for a powerful moral warning. No effort is made, declare the producers, to give the truth a sugar coating, but every effort has been made to keep the production clean enough for even young girls to see.

Mr. Parkhurst, who is probably the foremost crusader against vice in America, and the man who started the Lexow investigation, has given a glowing indorsement to the film because of its truthfulness.

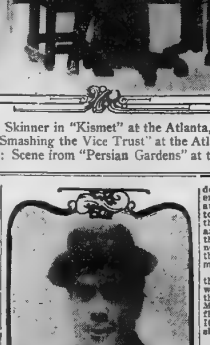
"There is a horrible realism about it all that should be brought home close to the realization not only of girls, but of their parents," says Dr. Parkhurst. "Every woman should see this film exposing white slavery and its attendant horrors."

The matinee performances will be at 3:30; the evening performances at 8:30 o'clock.

"Kismet."

(At the Atlanta.)

Otis Skinner, in Klaw & Erlanger and Harrison Grey Fiske's production



EDDIE BLACK,

of "Kismet," comes to the Atlanta on April 20 for an engagement of four nights and a matinee. The play, by Edward Knoblauch, has had the widest success in a short period of any work from the pen of an American dramatist. The story of the play is founded upon "The Arabian Nights," though it is not a direct dramatization of any of the tales. It possesses all the richness of romance; the variety of episode and the oddly mingled tragedy and humor that characterizes the famous stories told by Schecherezade, and it is doubtless because of these qualities that "Kismet" has found favor with audiences all over the world.

In the character of the picturesque beggar, Hajj, Mr. Skinner has won the highest laurels of his career. The part demands the full measure of this brilliant actor's art, and in his impersonation he has opportunity to reveal his mastery of technique as well as the depth of his human understanding and sympathy. Associated with Mr. Skinner are such well-known players as George Gaul, Willard Webster, Owen Meech, Richard Scott, Daniel Jarrett, Charles Norman, William Lorenz, Harry Sothern, Harold Skinner, Ernest Lesman, Merle Maddern, Grace Hampton, Genevieve Dolaro, Rosa Coates and Nannie Palmer.

Lucille LaVerne Stock.

(At the Lyric.)

It is prophesied that the Lucille LaVerne company, in their initial offering, beginning at the Lyric tomorrow night, will rise to a dramatic altitude rarely attained by a stock company and none too frequently by organizations that devote all their efforts to the performance of one play.

David Belasco's play, "The Lily," is the attraction. It is an adaptation from the French of Adolph Woolfe and Gaston Leraux. It seems that in the circles that revolve about the plot a splinter who has reached an uncertain age is not described by one of our unpleasant words, but is generally known as a lily.

In the play the elder of two daughters has flowered into that quickly fading emblem through the harshness of her rakish old father, who had refused to allow her to marry the man of her heart years before.

Worn, tired and unhappy, she submits to the domineering habits of her father and brother, and plays the mother, the housekeeper, to the family, waiting upon everybody and asking nothing for herself. But when her little sister becomes entangled in an affair with a man of the neighborhood, and her father and brother, angered and outraged, attack the girl, the father even with blows, she rises in her thwarted womanhood, speaks out the pent-up bitterness of years, and taking her sister in her arms, protects her.

Miss LaVerne will appear in the title role. In this scene she is overpowering, tremendous. With a wonderful, deep, vibrant voice she wrings the emotions and stirs the heart and holds the audience with a power given to few actors. She does not appear at all until the second act, has little share in that, and only in the scene referred to in the third act is she the most prominent figure. Yet it is Lucille La Verne that the audience takes away in its memory.

In her production here, however, there will be at least one other who will be carried away in the memory of the audience. It is Margaret Chaffe. Miss Chaffee returns to Atlanta with flying colors in the role of Christiane. It is a difficult part, but in which she will shine.

It is needless to dwell on the other members of the company. Miss LaVerne has promised the best organization of its kind ever seen here. That is a pretty broad assertion, but Miss LaVerne has the reputation of living up to her promises. It may interest theatergoers to know that every member of the company has proven their worth as of the first caliber with big New York successes. And the feminine continngent of theatergoers might be interested to know that there are a number of well, sure enough, well-known matinee idols concealed in the ranks of the stock company. The Masculine theatergoer be disappointed in the matter of beauty. There is Holen Hankill, winner of the Columbus, Ohio, beauty contest; Olive Blakeney, as pretty as she is petite, and—well, there are six all told.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

Splendid vaudeville, a regular holiday bill, will be the twice daily attraction at the popular Forsyth this week. A blending of quality acts will make up the program and everything is calculated to please the fancy of the multitude of amusement seekers who are returning to the theaters after a vacation of forty days.

In selecting the acts keen booking representatives have put together a program that will surely measure to a standard that is appealing. There is musical comedy, novelty, character comedy and a monologuist of high standing. Every act is of recognized ability, the sort that advanced vaudeville to its present splendid position in the theatrical field.

The headline feature is one of the biggest ever brought here and fitting enough it is a merry, jingling musical comedy, brings in lines and situations with good songs and a host of pretty girls and entertaining ensembles. The act is headed by Louis Simon, one of the cleverest comedians in vaudeville as well as one of the highest-salaried individuals in the theatrical business. The comed an will have the assistance of dainty Flavia Arcaro, a musical comedy comedienne of excellent standing; Lillian Boardman, who is popular here because of her association with the Gus Edwards revue on the Orpheum circuits of this company, and Fred Lyon, a clever player. The supporting company of fourteen will add to the merit of "The New Barbarian," said to be the cleverest musical offering in vaudeville.

Edgar Allan Woolf, who has given local vaudeville patrons a number of very good sketches, wrote the story and the lyrics and the music is by Anatol Friedland, who made himself popular at a recent engagement at the Forsyth. The act will run for about three-quarters of an hour and there will be speed and action every second of that time.

Stuart Barnes, without doubt the most popular single comedian known locally, will make his first visit in three years. Barnes until that time had been a regular visitor to Atlanta each season either in vaudeville or in musical comedy. His songs are new and rendered in a style absolutely fetching and his monologues is as crisp and as new as any funny man has ever introduced.

A feature will be the appearance of Austin Webb and his company in the thrilling playlet, "Four Flag and Mine." Mr. Webb came into real prominence a few years ago when he assumed the hard role of the negro lieutenant governor in Tom Dixon's "The Clansman." It was the most difficult assignment any standard actor ever attempted, but won him a position that has since been of value. His last appearance in Atlanta was as the leading man of David Belasco's "The Woman." In "Four Flag and Mine" Mr. Webb has a splendid character and will surely be one of the successful features of a bill that has great promise.

"The Rube" as the character comedy will be played by Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Barry promises to be one of the treats of the bill. There is no character comedian superior to Jimmie Barry in this particular style of type study and his experiences direct from the country on the stage of a variety theater in New York will be one long and delightful laugh.

Allie White, a very pretty girl who has recently won much attention as a violinist, will have an important part of the bill, and Charles Frelle's Miniature Circus, with a wonderful troupe of trained dogs, will add novelty.

There has been the usual heavy advance sale of seats and every indication that "Standing Room Only" will be the result all week.

"Across the Desert."

(At the Bijou.)

One of the most striking plays of the stock season is announced for the coming week at the Bijou. It is the four-act melodrame entitled "Across the Desert," to be presented under the personal direction of the author, Walter Van Dyke. Act one takes place on the Arizona desert at night. Act two shows the Sego hotel at Lone Gulch. Act three, a cave in the mountains, and act four Madge's home in California, "the duel to the death."

With its scenes taken from the far west, and its characters drawn from the cowboys, stage drivers and Indians who made history in the early seventies, the play will undoubtedly be one of the most interesting, thrilling and exciting productions that has been given by the Eddie Black Stock company during its many weeks' run at the Bijou.

"Across the Desert" has to its credit several seasons of success throughout the west, but it is one of the few plays that has never been presented in the south and, judging from the story that it unfolds, and the sensational incidents that go to make up the play, the Bijou should be packed to its capacity all the week.

Special scenery is being painted for each act and the production itself will be given with all the attention to detail and with a completeness that will eclipse any former offering of the company. During the week matinees will be given every afternoon at 2:30 and night performances at 8:30. Monday night ladies will be admitted free when accompanied by an escort holding a paid 30-cent ticket, purchased before 6 o'clock.

"I Enjoy My Stage Murder," Otis Skinner Tells Critic

The moment in "Kismet" that is apt to remain most clear in one's memory is that in which Hajj, the beggar, drowns his enemy, the wicked Wazir Mansur, and holding his head beneath the water of the harem bathing pool, kicks his heels in a perfect paroxysm of childish delight. Otis Skinner in the character of Hajj seems to really enjoy the moment vastly himself. It is, indeed, a good acting moment—a situation so bring joy to the heart of any imaginative player—and moreover, it is the moment in the play in which it most clearly revealed the peculiar mixture of comedy and tragedy in the Oriental character.

Not long ago a dramatic critic became so interested in the psychology of the episode, particularly in relation to Mr. Skinner's mental attitude toward it, that he asked the actor to write an explanation of the emotions of Hajj and of his own emotions while perpetrating the two murders over which Hajj is guilty, in reply Mr. Skinner wrote as follows:

"Every artist in the theater must find himself carried along by the passions, feelings or ideas of the part he is interpreting. The stronger the part, the greater his response.

"I cannot think I enjoy the murder as much as does the audience; or rather, I do not enjoy it in a different manner. With me it is the joy of creation—illusion, emotion, delight to the audience. With the audience, it is the joy of the spectator who is taken a willing captive to the charm of the scene.

"Hajj is elemental. He is a child and has all the child's delight in cruelty—for most children have a natural bent in that direction. In this murder of Mansur in the pool, Hajj is satisfying a sudden fit of anger and his glee is greater because his injury is fresh—the injury wrought by Mansur's duplicity and his fiendish attempt to violate Hajj's daughter.

"The other murder, when Hajj kills his ancient foe in the dungeon, is of a different character, inasmuch as it is an atonement for crime. Allah has delivered into Hajj's hands the enemy, who twenty-five years before had stolen his wife and killed his son.

"The Oriental law of blood gives Hajj ample justification for his deed. In fact, it has something sacrificial about it—a sacrifice long waited for. Yet Hajj's natural animal buoyancy enters into this murder, too, and his glee will out. Though his hate is deep rooted. At the completion of each murder the grateful Oriental pours out his thanks to his God.

"You must conceive that my individuality does not leave me; otherwise, I should be chaotic and ungoverned in my performance. But my mood must always approximate that of my character and, be as grave or gay, I must have the reflection of that phase of feeling within me.

"I never leave Otis Skinner in his dressing room, nor does anyone who understands the psychology of acting, which is to make his audience feel. The more he pours his force into an expression of personal emotion is a scene, the less force he sends over the footlights.

"This does not mean that the actor is not affected by the character. He is subdued to what he works in like the dyer's hands, even after he quits the scene—but he is not the dye nor the fabric."

SALTS IS FINE FOR KIDNEYS, QUIT MEAT

Flush the Kidneys at Once When Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity. It also helps to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Somebody has said that if all men played business as Big League men play baseball we storekeepers could charge admission and have our daily scores printed in the newspapers.

For example, this store is exclusive agent in this city for the real Big League clothes produced in America for American Men. And we do not think of charging admission. We take the other way around—season after season we put money in the pockets of men who buy their clothes of us.

What Clothes?

Why, Stein-Bloch Smart Clothes, of course. There cannot be two real Big League winners in clothesdom any more than in baseball.

The Summer showing is ready.

Over the Chicken and Cow Brunswick City Council Will Fight on Monday

Brunswick, Ga., April 11.—(Special.) The session of the Brunswick city council Monday night may properly be termed a "chicken and cow" session, as ordinances concerning this animal and fowl will come up and a fight proper is facing the city solons.

Recently the Brunswick Civic association petitioned the city council to change the limits in which cows are permitted to roam in the city and also to pass an ordinance making it unlawful for chickens to run the streets. The ordinances have both been prepared and will be read tomorrow night. They have the indorsement of the civic organization, which is now making an effort to make Brunswick beautiful.

However, two mammoth petitions, one protesting against the changing of the cow limits and the other against the passage of the chicken ordinance, have been handed with the solons. Every person who owns a cow or a chicken has signed the petitions and the members of council seem to be somewhat up in the air as to what to do.

All Georgia Is Pluming and Preening Itself For the Coming of Metropolitan Opera Stars

Grand opera is only a few weeks off, and Atlanta—and the whole south for that matter—is pluming and preening itself for the big musical feast which annually brings the city into such national prominence.

Milady has been busy for weeks past with the milliner and the dressmaker and the librarian (reading up on the operas), and her husband or her brother or her sweetheart has seen to it that his dress suit has been properly cared for.

In all sections of the state interest in grand opera is keener than it has ever been before. The same thing can be said of the entire south. Practically every hamlet in the state will be represented at grand opera this year and the indications point to the largest crowd that has ever visited the city.

The advance guard of the Shriners will have arrived in the city by the time the opening opera is sung, and they will be here in force before the closing night.

The sale of individual seats, which has been in progress at the Cable Piano company and Phillips & Crew, will continue up to the day the first opera is sung, when seats will be placed on sale at the Auditorium. The sale thus far has been larger than any preceding year. Many good seats remain, however, but if you would be sure of hearing grand opera at its best, you had best not delay. The sale this week is expected to be far larger than that of last week, and the good seats will not be available many days longer.

Organization Plan Outlined For Greater Grady Campaign At a Meeting Held Saturday

At a meeting last night of the Fulton County Medical society, the bond issue for the Grady hospital received the unanimous indorsement of those present.

At a meeting of the general committee for the new Grady hospital bond issue, held yesterday afternoon at the chamber of commerce with Bishop C. K. Nelson presiding as chairman, a comprehensive organization plan was outlined for the campaign.

Plans of support were received from the various branches of civic, business and industrial life of the city and suggestions were made which indicate that a great concerted movement is beginning in favor of the issue as already recommended by mayor and council.

Active Campaign Committee.

At the same time a motion was passed providing for the formation of an active campaign committee, to be composed of from 100 to 150 members, and that this committee be sub-divided so that there would be a special subcommittee actively at work in each ward in the city. It was decided to select from ten to twenty-five representative men from each ward. A special committee with R. L. Foreman at its head was appointed by the chair to take the registration lists, select tentatively the personnel of the big working campaign committee, and to report back at an early meeting.

A finance committee was formed by the appointment of Dr. Floyd L. McRae as chairman, with the power to select two more committee members. At the same time Dr. W. S. Elkin was chosen vice chairman of the general committee.

The publicity committee reported that 20,000 campaign buttons had been ordered, bearing the inscription "For Greater Grady Hospital," and that they would be distributed throughout the city as soon as they arrived.

Women Meet Monday.

The chairman notified the general committee that Mrs. Lumpkin, president of the Federated Women's clubs, had made arrangements for a meeting of the federation Monday morning at the Women's club building on Baker street, and that members of the general committee of the women's organizations would be glad to hear from the committee on the hospital question. Dr. Elkin, Dr. Summerall, Bishop Nelson and Ivan E. Allen were appointed to attend the meeting and make speeches. Bishop Nelson said that Mrs. Lumpkin had already received assurances of active support from the various women's clubs and women's organizations of the city.

Captain J. W. English, in pledging his active support to the movement, said, "I don't see how the people can close their eyes to the fact that we must make better provision for our sick and injured. We must have larger and better facilities to keep pace with the growth of the city population." Captain English was one of the first to suggest the idea of getting campaign committees at work in the city wards.

Rev. H. H. Proctor, one of the leading negro preachers of the city, and pastor of the Congregational church, was present by special invitation, and pledged the support of himself and other leaders in his race for the hospital bond issue. "We colored people are greatly interested," he said. "There is no color line in questions of health and disease. The city needs these increased hospital facilities. Both races need it. Our race needs is very badly, for the death rate among colored people is twice as high as it is among the whites. When our people fall sick, too, there are usually poor facilities to care for them in their homes. I believe that we ought to have a mass meeting of the colored voters to tell them about the objects of this bond issue, and, if after the Congregational church for the purpose. It seats 1,000 people."

Benefit Both Races.

Dr. Summerall explained that the plan, as passed upon by council, would be of equal benefit to both races, since it provided for out-door clinics, laboratory and dispensary facilities, emergency operating rooms, for both whites and colored, respectively, and special contagious disease hospitals for whites and negroes, respectively; also additional white wards at a cost of $126,000, and additional colored wards at a cost of the same amount, $126,000.

Jerome Jones, head of the Federation of Labor, made one of the most interesting speeches of the afternoon and offered some practical suggestions of great value, which were adopted. He told how the Printers' Union had already strongly indorsed the hospital bond improvement, and expressed the belief that when the proposition was fully explained to the people the unqualified indorsement of all the labor organizations of the city. He promised to aid in the organization of special campaign committees, and his advice will be sought in making up the personnel.

The various committees will hold frequent meetings from this time on and a little later it is planned to hold daily luncheon meetings. Along the plan that has been so successful in many other big public movements which have met with success in Atlanta in the past.

Another meeting of the general committee will be held within the next couple of days.

FERTILIZER RECORD IN DANGER THIS YEAR

Georgia Bids Fair to Lead the Southland This Year, According to Reports.

Georgia bids fair not only to lead the south in the intelligent use of fertiliser this year, but also to surpass the famous 1910 record set in the state in the use of fertilizers, and if fertilizers can produce a big crop, Georgia stands a good chance of reaping a large harvest.

This information is based upon reports received from the sale of fertiliser tags, the state fertilizer laws for handling fertilizers and the output of fertilizers by the various companies.

There is no indication that the amount of acreage under production is to be increased, but rather that the amount of fertiliser used per acre is being increased.

With a practical exhaustion of animal ammoniates throughout the country, there is an unusually heavy demand being made upon the cotton oil mills of the south to supply cotton seed meal for which the ammoniates, so necessary for plant life, can be secured.

Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president State College of Agriculture, writing on the subject of proper use of fertilizers, warns the farmers that the more fertiliser they use the better and more systematic must be the cultivation of the land. He adds:

"Fertilizers should be regarded as a factor in crop production and not as is too frequently done, as the main element in obtaining a good crop."

PIANO DEPARTMENT IN WHITEHALL STORE

Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. to Sell High-Class Instruments.

The first piano department to be inaugurated by any department store in the south will be opened Monday morning in the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose store at Whitehall and Hunter streets.

The department will be managed by Joseph R. Cleveland one of the most successful piano men in the city, who has been identified with Atlanta's business world for several years.

A line of Starr, Remington and other high-grade instruments has been installed. The new department will be situated on the second floor of the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose building.

Atlanta is the first city outside of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and other larger northern cities to run a department store which operates a piano department.

The new policy, according to Mr. Cleveland, will likely revolutionize the sales district of the piano business in Atlanta.

"For this reason," he stated, "pianos are sold chiefly to women. They must be displayed and sold in a shopping district where the women trade. Pianos, like other wares, must be put on display in the heart of the shopping district, where the purchasers gather in greater crowds. It was with this view that the successful department stores of the larger northern centers inaugurated their piano departments. It was with the same view that this store followed suit."

Atlanta just now is the mecca of all the politicians who have aspirations, and quite a colony of them is expected to spend Sunday in the city.

JURY FINDS MATHEWS GUILTY OF COMPLICITY

Second Conviction in Bank Robbery Cases at Summerville.

Rome, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—The verdict of the jury in the case of Frank Matthews, the young Texas accused of robbing the bank of Lyerly on the night of July 10, was "guilty."

This was the second conviction in Chattooga superior court, Mark McNew having been convicted yesterday in Chattooga superior court. Judge Moses Wright reserved sentence, stating that he would sentence the two men on Tuesday, April 21.

The judge has called a special term of Chattooga superior court at Summerville on that day and besides deciding the fate of the convicted men, will try Detective Whitfield, of Atlanta, on the charge of attempting to influence a witness. McNew is the man in question, he having first confessed to complicity in the robbery, and later having repudiated his confession, stating in his disclaimer that he had been promised immunity and a reward of $500 if he would confess and implicate Matthews.

One reason for deferring sentence in Matthews' case is the condition of Matthews, who is in the advanced stages of tuberculosis. He was for a time in the Atlanta tower and when Sheriff Wimpee went for him from Atlanta to Summerville the officers failed to leave the train, and Matthews was here taken ill, and made no attempt to escape. He was kept in a hospital here and is now confined under special guard in a cell in the Chattooga county courthouse. Some physicians state that Matthews will not live until the date set for his sentence.

In the robbery, cash to the amount of $4,000 and valuable papers that have never been recovered, were taken.

SIMPLE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

Stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you value your hair, you should get rid of dandruff at once, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it.

Federal Court in Athens.

The eastern division of the northern district of the United States court of Georgia will open its spring term in Athens Monday, April 12, for a five days' session. Judge Newman will leave Atlanta for Athens this afternoon accompanied by District Attorney Alexander and his assistant, John Henley, together with Chief Deputy Marshal Brock and Deputy Clerk John Dean Steward. While the local record of the Athens docket is longer for the spring term than usual, it is made up largely of violations of the internal revenue laws.

Armistead Stands On Record

To the Voters of Fulton County:

Although it is now well-known that I am a candidate to succeed myself as Tax Receiver of Fulton County, and I have been assured of a warm and hearty support by my many friends throughout the County, I wish at this time, make some public acknowledgment of my thanks for the support I am receiving and to say a few words in regard to my candidacy.

I am making the race on my record. If I have been a faithful and efficient public servant, I want your votes. My years of experience as is the case in any line of business, should, I believe, be a guarantee of my worth as a public officer. If there ever was a public office in which experience is an asset to the people, it is that of Tax Receiver. It takes years to become thoroughly acquainted with the public and conversant with property values.

I stand squarely for equalization of taxation, and it has always been my purpose, and shall be as long as I stay in the office of Tax Receiver, to do everything possible to equalize taxes so that the burden shall fall equally and justly upon all taxpayers.

It has always been my practice, and I shall continue to make it so, to show every leniency, courtesy and consideration to those who give in their taxes, just as far as the law will allow me. I recognize that taxation is often a burden and one that should be made without any unnecessary hardship. It has been my endeavor to allow the taxpayers every possible opportunity to make their returns with as little trouble and inconvenience as was within my power, and it is only the experienced and well-informed Receiver who can thus save the taxpayers time and trouble.

I wish to say just one word about the legality test that was made of the law in regard to fees and salaries: The law was not constitutional and the Supreme Court of Georgia unanimously and emphatically so declared. The test had to be made, and it was the duty of County Officials to make it, for they were under bond. If the test had not been made at the time it was and afterwards the law was declared null and void, our bondsmen would have been affected, for my bond, for instance, is binding for twenty years, and serious litigation, costly to the County, might have resulted. In making the test a solemn and imperative duty to the people was performed, and consequences, probably disastrous to their interests, averted. The test of the unconstitutional law had to be made and officials were the only ones to take the initiative, it was done and done the better for the taxpayers. We were advised by some of the best and most prominent lawyers of Atlanta that it was our duty as officials to ascertain if the law was valid.

I first came to Atlanta in 1859, when a mere boy, and lived here until the breaking out of the War Between the States, when I enlisted in the Confederate Army. After the war, I returned to Atlanta in 1870, and have lived here continously since. My record as a citizen, as well as a public official, is an open book. You know me and know my record. If that record is a sufficient guarantee of my further faithful service, vote for me, and I shall thank you.

Respectfully yours,

T. M. Armistead

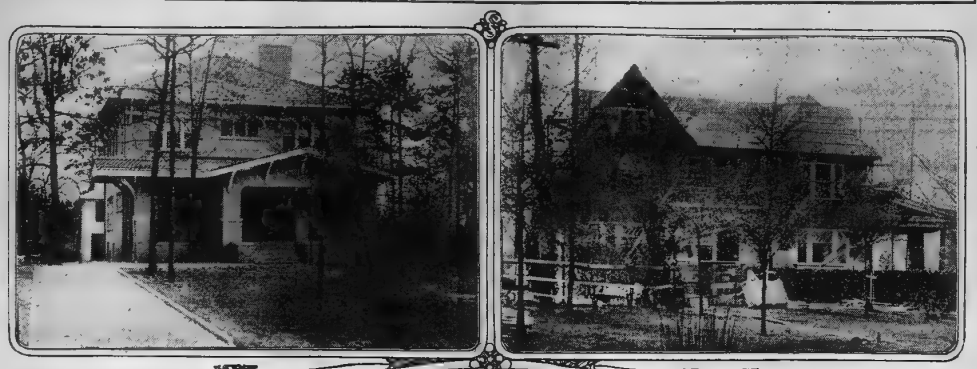
REAL ESTATE THE SUNDAY CONSTITUTION'S SPECIAL PAGE DEVOTED TO REALTY AND BUILDING

Three Attractive New Residences in Atlanta



Top left: This is the handsome new home of James H. Whitten, which has just been completed and into which he has just moved, on Peachtree road near Lakeview drive

Miss Lelia Wilburn is the architect of this artistic residence and Mr. Whitten himself is the builder. The residence is of gray pressed brick veneer construction, the interior being finished with hardwood throughout.

Mr. Whitten, in building his new home, declared that he was striving to build something just a little different from the general run of residences. So well has he succeeded that he himself does not know how he built one very striking and puzzling architectural feature of his new home. This feature consists of a 37-foot by 4-inch arch along his front porch without a girder. This arch is built of ordinary size brick and the secret of how it holds together has puzzled more than one of the leading architects of the city.

Mr. Whitten simply conceived of the beauty of such an arch and asked his brickmason if he could build it. His brickmason said he would try. He did try, with remarkable success, and now he refuses to tell even Mr. Whitten how he accomplished the remarkable architectural feat.

Top, right: The residence of Charles H. Black, on Peachtree road, which was damaged by fire some weeks since, is now being rebuilt. The reconstruction of it is of gray granite veneer which, contrasted against the dark foliage of the grounds, will present a very striking and impressive appearance.

Bottom picture: The beautiful residence of J. J. Haverty, on Peachtree road, just townward of the creek, is now practically complete but for landscape gardening, which is now being done.

The house is built of tapestry brick. E. E. Dougherty is the architect and the Pittman Construction company are the builders.

The landscape gardener who is doing Mr. Haverty's grounds is Franz Schwaibe, and he is doing wonders in the gorge that runs back of Mr. Haverty's house.

W. E. Brown & Co. are the interior decorators of the house.

It is expected to have the house complete by May 1.

The big feature of his house, upon which Mr. Haverty prides himself, is the fact that this house is what he calls an "all Atlanta house." Every contract, from the architect who made the first line of preliminary drawing to the drayman who hauls the last load of debris from the site after the house is completed, was let to Atlanta people. Every stick of material that could possibly be bought in Atlanta, even to the shrubs for his flower garden, Mr. Haverty purchased right here in Atlanta.

Plan of Big Industrial Building for Atlanta Is Meeting With Great Deal of Encouragement; Chamber of Commerce Committee to Present Plans

The industrial and statistical bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce is receiving considerable encouragement in its scheme for the erection of a sort of community industrial building in Atlanta. That there is a field for just such a building in Atlanta is evidenced by the manner in which manufacturing concerns have been driven to seek loft space in buildings which are not always best suited to manufacturing purposes. The success of such buildings has been demonstrated in other cities. Most certainly such a building would induce foreign manufacturing concerns to come to Atlanta.

Already something has been said about the plans of the industrial and statistical bureau for this building. Here is exactly what the bureau has in mind.

Secretary W. H. Leahy has been investigating particularly with references to the construction and operation of Baltimore's big industrial building. The city of Atlanta has a more varied line of manufacturing industries than any city in the south. A large number of them are houses in different parts of the city in buildings holding five or six. A number of other concerns are prospective, or, in other words, negotiating for location of their business in Atlanta.

It is with a view of economically housing the smaller manufacturing concerns in a building built especially for the purpose that the proposition is being considered. Modern buildings designed to house a number of industries are an economic development. One of the great obstacles between the small manufacturer and success has been the difficulty in obtaining space at a reasonable rental where modern and economic manufacturing conditions were present.

Economy a Feature.

A building of this kind offers cheap power, abundant light, absolute fire protection, low insurance rates, efficient elevator service and healthful surroundings for operatives. It would provide every facility required for low cost production and the small manufacturer enjoys every advantage in this regard that may be obtained by the larger manufacturer, placing him on a basis on which he can successfully compete without the necessity of large capital expenditure.

The rates for electric power in Atlanta are the lowest of any of the larger cities in the south and the industrial building by contracting for electric power could obtain wholesale rates by which every tenant would benefit as each would have his individual meter and would be billed for the consumption of current as shown by it at the wholesale rates earned by the building. In the case of Baltimore, it is less than one-third of the rate paid by the small manufacturers scattered throughout the city. This would represent a considerable saving to tenants.

Abundant light and air would be provided, insuring illumination and ventilation to all parts of the building. It would be planned to use no wood in the construction of the building. The entire building would be equipped with sprinklers and water damage resulting from fire or otherwise would be obviated by graded floors and scupper openings. Because of all these features the insurance companies, both factory, mutual and the stock companies, would accord rates to tenants which are exceedingly hard to secure at this time.

Every successful manufacturer appreciates the advantages of sanitary factory surroundings. With such conditions, labor is more efficient from the fact that it is more contented and not only is the quality of the product improved, but the quantity of the output increase when a factory enjoys the advantage of abundant light, air and clean, healthful surroundings.

For Any Kinds of Plants.

The building would provide for heavy as well as light manufacturing, the floors being so constructed as to carry a sufficient load for every work. Vibration, odors and smoke would be prevented. Tenants would pay only for the space needed. Every facility for all kinds of manufacturing would be provided which should be installed in a building of this character.

The plan has been worked out very successfully in the city of Baltimore. The soundness of the project, its manifest advantages and the facilities offered resulted in attracting immediately manufacturers to the building. In a year's time the entire space of Baltimore's building, 117,795 square feet of space was rented. The directors having met with this favorable result in the working out of a project new to Baltimore, the tenants having expressed themselves as satisfied with their locations and the facilities offered by the industrial building, several having made known their desire to increase the space leased, the attention of the board was directed to the erection of an adjoining unit upon a lot adjoining the ground owned by the company. It was decided to build the additional unit, and it is now in course of construction.

The great advantage of such an institution, as outlined, to the city of Atlanta is obvious. The proposition is receiving careful consideration at the hands of the industrial and statistical committee and Secretary Leahy states that the project is in high favor, and that a plan will be worked out and presented at an early date.

The Reeves-Cline Realty company, a new real estate firm, has just opened offices at Nos. 338-3 Healy building.

Their real estate business will be divided into city, suburban acreage and farm departments, with an expert at the head of each department.

The present sales force of the company consists of eight experienced salesmen. This number will soon be increased to twelve or fifteen men.

OGLETHORPE PARK LOTS WILL BE AUCTIONED OFF

Edwin P. Ansley Will Conduct Sale Monday Afternoon at 3 O'Clock.

The auction of Oglethorpe Park residence lots will be held by the Edwin P. Ansley firm next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Oglethorpe Park is being promoted by Edwin P. Ansley, who planned and projected Ansley Park, one of the most exclusive residential colonies of the aristocratic north side. Wide areas of beautiful country home sites will be auctioned off to the highest bidder in the Oglethorpe Park sale.

Oglethorpe Park is situated on Peachtree Road, and near the site for the proposed Oglethorpe university. It adjoins Brookhaven club, which has been taken over by the Capital City Country club, and is being constructed into the most beautiful country club site in the south.

Oglethorpe Park was planned along the line of the back-to-nature idea which is fast becoming popular with the wealthy business man of the big cities. It is situated in one of the most picturesque country territories within this section of the state, and is within only a short distance from the heart of the city—only a few minutes by trolley car.

In announcing the auction sale, the Ansley firm proclaims the advantages of the proposed university, and of the Brookhaven territory, which has risen phenomenally in value within the past few years—ever since its home opportunities became realized.

Oglethorpe Park is considered by real estate experts to be one of the most promising realty developments in the north side of recent years. Regarding the efforts of Mr. Ansley, which played a prime part in the successful development of the land, the announcement of tomorrow's sale quotes the following excerpt from an editorial of The Constitution:

"Mr. Ansley is a man who does not go off half-cocked. He has only to point to what he has done in the phenomenal Ansley Park and Forsyth street projects to submit convincing testimony of his qualifications as a practical prophet. In every enterprise he has attempted, he has proved to be an advance agent of expansion and progress. His name is synonymous with success."

"Constancy" was rendered by Mrs. N. H. King, after which entered the ushers, Messrs. M. L. Payn, J. D. Stephens, J. M. Hurst, Jr., and W. A. Barrow. After them came Miss Daisella Roberts, maid of honor, preceding the bride and her brother, who gave her away, was little Miss Helen Hurst, who strewed the aisle with flowers. GEORGIA'S CREDIT IS IN SPLENDID SHAPE

State Treasurer Speer's Report Will Disclose a Most Gratifying State of Affairs.

In his annual report to the legislature, now in course of preparation, State Treasurer W. J. Speer is calling particular attention to Georgia's splendid credit.

He discusses the temporary loan made by the state to tide it over the period when tax money was scarce, and which for the first time in the state's history was in excess of $300,000. Under the new constitutional amendment the state borrowed this time $475,000 for temporary relief, and every dollar of it was immediately used in paying what was due the public school teachers of the state as far as it would go.

Borrowed at 3 Per Cent.

The entire sum was borrowed from six national banks in Atlanta at 3 per cent interest at a time when they were getting 4 and 5 per cent from good customers. These six banks voluntarily made the entire loan at this rate. Two of them are not depositories of state funds and have no other dealings with the state aside from a desire to assist in so far as circumstances will permit them to protect the state's credit. At the time this loan was made these same banks were paying themselves 4 to 5 per cent for money for their own use, so that it will be apparent from the loss which they sustained that they could have had no other motive than a patriotic action.

Credit on High Plane.

Mr. Speer calls attention to the fact that Georgia's credit is on a plane as high as that of any state in the union. Her bonds whenever offered are taken as safe and profitable investments free from all taxes and have always brought a good premium in the market.

"It is a fact creatly to Georgia's credit," says Mr. Speer, "that the state of Georgia has never in all her history had to sell her bonds for less than par or face value, which is due to unusual safeguards and protection thrown around her public debt by the sinking fund provisions of the state constitution."

This remarkable credit which the state possesses is greatly strengthened, the treasurer points out, by the fact that under the state constitution all of the public property of Georgia, which includes the Western and Atlantic railroad, estimated to be worth $10,000,000, is held as security for the bonds which bear Georgia's name.

Rheumatic Throat Is Common Trouble

Should Be Treated in Blood To Prevent Recurrence.

There are successful gargles that stop soreness in the throat, but to prevent their incessant return, the blood must be put in order. The best remedy is S. S. S., as it influences all the functions of the body to neutralize the irritants or waste products and to stimulate their excretion through the proper channels.

Rheumatic sore throat is a dangerous indication, as it means that the blood is loaded with more uric acid than the kidneys can excrete, and may thus lead to serious general disturbance.

The action of S. S. S. stimulates cellular activity. It prevents the accumulation of irritants in local spots. It enables the arteries to supply quickly the new red blood to replace worn-out tissue.

For this reason uric acid that finds the throat an easy prey to its breaking-down influence, is scattered and eliminated. In other words, S. S. S. prevents these conditions by enabling all the mucous linings of the body to secrete healthy mucus. Its influence is shown in a marked improvement of the bronchial tubes, whereby the hoarseness of voice with thick, grayish expectorations is overcome. S. S. S. will dilute with water, means a blood bath, since it is welcome to any stomach and at once gets into the blood.

S. S. S. is free of all minerals and contains ingredients wonderfully conducive to well-balanced health.

You can get it at any drug store, but do not accept anything else, there is danger in substitutes. S. S. S. is prepared only by The Swift Specific Co., 159 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Our Medical Dept. will give you free instruction by mail on any subject of blood disorders. Write today.

WEATHER FORECAST FOR EASTER SUNDAY IS NOT FAVORABLE

The outlook for Easter Sunday is not very favorable. A slight disturbance is advancing from the southwest, which will cause generally cloudy, more or less threatening weather on Sunday, with possibly an occasional light shower. The temperature will be about 50 degrees in the morning, and will rise considerably during the day, but will fall in the later afternoon and night to about 40 degrees Monday morning. Winds will be southerly, shifting to fresh northwest before noon. Although the day will be cloudy and unsettled, the rainfall will be small in amount.

PILGRIM CLASS TO GIVE MINSTREL PERFORMANCE

The pilgrim class of the Central Congregational church has an unusual array of singing talent. Under the able leadership of their teacher, Mrs. Hanleon, they have formed a male chorus that sings at the morning service of the church every Sunday.

They have arranged to give some special music at both the morning and evening services on Easter Sunday.

On next Friday night at 8:15 o'clock they are going to give a big minstrel show in the assembly room of the church. Among the many features they will present a well-trained chorus of thirty voices, in the latest hits, assisted by a group of talented soloists. The Georgia Tech orchestra will give a few numbers, and the Tech Mandolin club, featuring the wonderful Chapman, will make their first appearance at this time. The admission will be 15 cents.

FRUIT EXCHANGE HEAD WRITES OF PEACH CROP

President W. B. Hunter Tells of Value of Distribution This Year.

The advantages of distributing the fruit crop of 1914, which promises to be a bumper one, is set forth in a most pleasing manner in an article which has just been written by President W. B. Hunter, of the Georgia Fruit exchange.

He presents much interesting data and facts showing the result of the proper handling and distribution of past peach crops through the medium of this organization. The article is addressed primarily to those growers who are not now members of the fruit exchange, pointing out the great benefit to be derived through marketing their 1914 crop through the medium of this co-operative organization.

He points out that it is really the members of the Georgia Fruit exchange who are independent rather than those who are not members of the exchange. He proves the independence of the members by showing how they are relieved of all details incident to the sale of their crop from the time it is ready for market until it is sold and the high prices received are sent to the grower.

He shows how the exchange keeps its finger on the pulse of the peach market, thus obviating any congestion in the market which would have a tendency to depress the price of peaches in that market.

He points out that through this co-operative plan the grower is relieved of all of the worrying details. Under this splendid co-operative service, the members of the exchange have never been called upon to pay a cent, and today have enough funds on hand to operate the exchange whether there is a 1914 peach crop or not.

It is estimated that, unless the recent cold snap has proven more disastrous than is thought, Georgia will ship over 6,000 cars of peaches this year.

The association brings together about 1,000 delegates from the big hardware and machinery manufacturing firms of the country.

ATLANTA IS PREPARED TO CELEBRATE EASTER

Cloudy Weather All Day and Slightly Cooler in Afternoon, Says Von Herrmann.

This is Easter Sunday. Like all great festivals, Easter possesses the remarkable quality of being its own best evidence. If this were some trivial celebration columns would have to be utilised in explaining it. As it is Easter, a little suffices. Everyone knows all about it, just as everyone knows all about the birthday of some member of one's own family.

About the only important point which was not settled some thousand or so years ago is the weather. Regarding that C. F. von Herrmann, of the United States weather bureau, predicts there will be just enough rain to keep fresh the lilies. It will be cloudy all day and slightly cooler in the afternoon. The rain, if it materialises, is not expected to be heavy enough to interfere seriously with church-going or the usual Easter parade.

The ceremonies at the churches will be on a particularly impressive scale, even for Easter. There will be organ recitals, singing conventions and a plentitude of flowers. Despite the long delay of spring, Easter, being late itself this year, finds the visible resurrection of growing things in full glory.

Otherwise, what need be said? There exists a large proportion of the population to which Easter means only hard-boiled eggs and a superfluity of confections. This audience will appreciate the day particularly. As for the fashions this year, they are the very essence of spring and the Easter parade should fit in quite as well with the day as the "Alleluias" and the lilied altars. Most of the late styles look as though they had just drifted out of a Watteau garden. They are delicate in outline and youthful in color. They, too, are springlike; they, too, partake of that resurrection of the year which sheds an added divinity about this day on which a world celebrates the resurrection of its Christ.

RAINY EASTER MORNING FOR SOUTHERN STATES

Washington, April 11.—A rainy Easter morning for north and south Atlantic coast and many of the gulf states, but bright skies for the remainder of the country was the final judgment tonight of weather bureau forecaster on the vexing problem common to all the land. No hope was held out to the south Atlantic coast gulf and southwest gulf states, but a gleam of cheerfulness went to the north Atlantic states with the prediction that the rain there would last only for the morning hours with clear weather to follow.

Conditions presaging storm were less noticeable tonight than on Friday night to the forecaster's vision. Low pressure was central in the northeast but the southwestern storm area had shifted into eastern Texas. The improvement will come a day too late, however, for the prediction is for bright weather throughout the country Monday.

HE WAS NEAR JACKSON WHEN LATTER WAS SHOT

Colonel Smith commanded a confederate regiment under Stonewall Jackson and was within a few feet of General Jackson when the latter received his death wound. He formerly was president of a college at Brownsville, Tennessee.

PRESIDENT OF REXALL VISITOR IN ATLANTA

Louis K. Liggett, president of the United Drug company, arrived in Atlanta Saturday, after a trip through Oklahoma and Texas. While here he is the guest of Dr. W. S. Elkin, of the Elkin Drug company, which is the Rexall store in this city, the United Drug company being a co-operative organization for the buying of goods for Rexall stores all over the country.

CANARIES TO SING AT EASTER SERVICE AT FIRST CHRISTIAN

By singing Easter songs at a special service at the First Christian church Sunday morning, a number of orphan boys and girls from the Christian orphanage in West End will make a unique appeal for aid. Easter Sunday has been set aside by all the churches of the Christian denomination in America for taking a special offering for the orphan homes and other charitable institutions supported by the church.

The special songs by the orphans have been planned as a result of the children's own suggestion that they wanted to go to the church themselves on the day the offering was to be taken and tell the folks what they needed. They have been practicing their songs now for over a week, and are planning to overcome the fact that they ought to give all the money they can spare to help the orphanage, which is located at 341 Lee street, and furnishes a home now for about thirty-five orphan children.

Another interesting feature of Easter morning at the First Christian Sunday school will be the presence of many canary birds, which will be arranged around the auditorium in cages. As soon as the orphans begin singing the canaries are expected to sing also, according to their characteristic of singing whenever music is started.

REV. A. M. PIERCE HELPS IN REVIVAL SERVICES

Rev. A. M. Pierce, of Cedartown, will assist Rev. G. M. Eakes, pastor of the St. John M. E. church, in a series of old-time revival services beginning Sunday. Dr. Pierce has been preaching each day during the past week, and his services have attracted exceptionally large congregations.

Dr. Eakes will hold short services in connection with the Sunday school at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Pastor Eakes will preach to men and boys only.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

OLD GUARD WILL CARE FOR TWO MONUMENTS

Many Subscribe to Have Repairs Made on McPherson and Walker Memorials.

The committee of the Old Guard reports the following subscriptions received by H. M. Ashe, 1218 Healey building, to the McPherson and Walker monuments improvement fund: Ed L. Wight, $5; S. B. Turman, $5; F. P. Paxon, $5; H. M. Ashe, $5; W. S. Witham, $5; J. F. Brewer, $5. Fred Koch, $5; H. N. Randolph, $5; Miss [illegible] Turman & Milner, $10; Atlanta chapter United Daughters [illegible], $10; W. H. Harrison, $5; E. Bancker, $1; Louis Gholston, $1; Dr. John Powell, $2; F. A. Hooper, $1; William McMillan, $1; F. C. Ricker, $1; James T. Wright, $2; Dozier & Gay, paint for the monuments.

The Old Guard is the Atlanta Confederacy and the ladies of the woman's relief corps of the G. A. R. are giving the committee of the Old Guard, composed of S. B. Turman, chairman; Colonel F. J. Paxon and H. M. Ashe, every assistance possible, and Miss Katherine Koch is interesting people in east Atlanta. The prospects are that these two monuments will be put in presentable shape before the many visitors arrive to attend the meeting of the Imperial Council of Shriners in May.

The G. A. R. has spent over $900 in maintaining the monuments around the McPherson monument but vandals have on two occasions stolen bulbines and destroyed other improvements. A movement is under foot to have this historical section, including the two monuments, made a national park, but the G. A. R. are discouraged in their efforts for this reason, as above stated. Send your subscriptions to H. M. Ashe, 1218 Healey building.

In the Social Whirl

By Isma Dooly

WHEN is a bungalow a bungalow, or when is it something else? And when does a bungalow cease to be a bungalow and be something else?

Neither the dictionary nor the architects can answer this question satisfactorily.

In last Sunday's paper, I was assigned by the managing editor of the paper to write a story of Atlanta's beautiful suburban homes. I did so, thoughtfully, carefully.

Ever since I visited Biltmore, N. C., last year, and was shown first George Vanderbilt's chateau there, and later his bungalow on the forested summit of a beautiful mountain, I have wanted to credit Atlanta's county gentry, some of them, with having built a bungalow! The Vanderbilt bungalow—that is what it was called to me, had twenty-five rooms in it, a sun parlor, several verandas, and the kindred accessories of a luxurious home.

When, therefore, in my mind's eye, I began to see the suburban homes in Atlanta, the home which most measured up to my ideal as a bungalow, I named a "bungalow," in the article I wrote.

MPSTNT CALL HIS HOME A BUNGALOW.

A few days afterwards, one of the most prominent lawyers in this town, and one of the very best dancers, and an expert in all sports, especially the great national game, waited upon me with the following communication:

My client, Mr. Blank, considers that he has been injured and damaged to the extent of $20,000 by a publication recently made in the society columns of The Constitution, and has instructed me to enter suit against you for this amount, unless complete reparation can be made and satisfaction had.

His cause of complaint is as follows: After many years of travail and much borrowing of money at usurious rates, he got together a sufficient amount of money to purchase a country estate and build thereon an English country house of the mid-Victorian (whatever that means) or some other period, equally important, architecturally speaking, and consequently felt that he was entitled to great credit for what he had accomplished, in the face of so many vicissitudes.

However, instead of getting "them kind words" he had so confidently expected, your column in The Constitution speaks of his country house as a bungalow.

A bon mot (we trust this was intended as a bon mot and that you really didn't mean it) is sometimes as great a crime as a killing, especially when it is a homicide.

Mr. Blank thinks that he has been damaged socially, financially, and artistically and I agree with him in a way. I have a common cause with him, because I am just finishing a town house (with social and artistic ends in view, I won't mention the financial because I hate to think about it) and you may thoughtlessly speak lightly of that mighty accomplishment, if you are not brought to realize your mistake in this instance.

I may also say that Mr. Blank's mortgagee has become dissatisfied and rather insistent since his country home has been called a bungalow. The mortgagee has not seen the house and depended upon representations made by Mr. Blank when the money was loaned, and I also understand that he (the mortgagee) had expected at the end of five years (the usual maturing period of a loan) to live in this house, and he was not looking forward to occupying a bungalow.

There are many other damaging circumstances that could be mentioned, but I think these are sufficient to bring to your mind a realization of the enormity of the social, financial, and artistic offense you have committed. We will not consider any compromise in this matter, and it is either money or fight.

Trusting to hear from you at an early date, I am, etc.

SOMETHING WORTH INVESTIGATING.

The matter of the suit brought I have turned over to my attorney, who is also prominent, gifted socially, and loyal to the great national game, but I prefer to conduct the other phases of the case through the press.

As to the legal merits of the case that has nothing to do with it, but I do think the people of Atlanta who are reformative in spirit should look into the character and conduct of a man who, just about the time we are to have grand opera and the Shriners, and build a new hospital, acknowledges he borrows money, goes riotously to work and builds a house that reminds me of the late George Vanderbilt's, and, more than that, he builds it in a community of suburban dwellers who so resented the stress and strain of society and entertaining that they went out in the country to live quietly and economically. In their rural habits they vie with one another as to which will rival the incident of the worm by "early songster caught." They retire while the same songsters play with the sunbeams on the lilac bushes, and think of the curfew as a sign of civic progress.

And the quibbling—the quibbling about words that this man would bring into this suit. Everybody knows that those antiquated mediums of indefinite information called dictionaries are as out of date and as much hidden from view as the family Bible, which, with its record of vital statistics, is no literature for the table where the grown-up children, yet unmarried, entertain their friends.

A BUNGALOW IN THE OLDEN DAYS.

For instance, the dictionary, which has been in this office since rescued from the Sherman fire, defines a bungalow as "a single-storied house, lightly built, and generally surrounded by a veranda." When asked, a number of architects gave a similarly cut-and-dried and inadequate definition of a bungalow. They stated that the literature of architecture could not possibly keep up with the evolution of architecture and the demands made upon it.

When many books on architecture were written, it was in the period that the dictionary I have was published, a bungalow then was probably "a singled storied house lightly built, surrounded by a veranda," and illumined by a tallow candle, with no bath room, and with the water bucket and gourd on the front porch and the wash pan on the back porch.

But that does not cover the ground of what a bungalow is today. A bungalow today is as varied in size and scheme of constructiveness as women's

* * * *

A bungalow is something which is a bungalow when you call it that, as surely as art is art, and that Mr. Hay and Mr. Pauncefote meant "all," when they said "all," in drawing up that little treaty, which is causing so much talk in the national capital at present.

HEAVY ARTILLERY IN TOLLS FIGHT

Opponents of Repeal Will Get Their Guns in Action This Week—Will Try to Amend the Sims Measure.

Washington, April 11.—The heaviest artillery opponents of repeal of Panama toll exemption for American ships can bring to bear will be trained against the administration's partisan peal policy before the senate committee on interoceanic canals next week. Every possible argument that can be raised is to be brought forward, in the hope of prevailing on the committee to make an adverse report on the bill as it passed the house, and failing in that, to lay a foundation for continuing the fight in the senate itself.

In addition to the general opposition to absolute repeal, there will be arguments by democratic senators who agree that exemption for American ships is in violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, and that the government should reverse its policy, but hope the means of bringing this result about can be tempered with an amendment reasserting the sovereignty of the United States over the Panama canal

First Fight to Amend.

Whatever may be the report of the canals committee—and there is no possibility that several proposed measures may be reported without recommendation—administration opposition leaders conceded that the first fight will be over an effort to amend the Sims bill, which passed the house. Champions of the president's position insist that there will be no compromise. They adhere to their confident predictions that toll exemption for American coastwise ships will be repealed.

Senator O'Gorman, chairman of the committee, and leader of democratic opposition to the repeal, plans to make a forceful argument before the committee next week against the administration's position, on the ground that this government now is negotiating in its proposed treaty with Colombia a clause whereby Colombia's vessels of war may have access to the canal of free tolls. The clause is identical with one in a previously negotiated but never enforced treaty with Colombia, which Great Britain approved. The argument will be made that if Great Britain conceded the right of the United States to exempt Colombian war vessels, it is inconsistent for Great Britain to maintain now that the United States may not exempt American coastwise shipping.

Some of Those Called.

Among men summoned before the canals committee next week to discuss the tolls controversy are Joseph H. Choate, former ambassador to Great Britain; Henry White, former charge d'affaires to the American embassy in London, and later ambassador to France; Dr. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California; Frederick W. Holsman, of St. Louis, former secretary general of the United States, Oscar S. Straus, once ambassador to Turkey and former secretary of commerce and labor; George L. Record, of New Jersey, who was a member of the platform committee of the progressive party at the Chicago convention in 1912, and many others. On the list to be heard, besides several senators, are representatives of the Pacific coast, New Orleans and inland commercial organizations.

Pre-Historic Elephant.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 11.—The practically complete skeleton of a prehistoric elephant which, it is believed, roamed the earth thousands of years ago, was found today in La Brea Pooh fields near here. "The animal in life measured more than 16 feet in length," said Frank S. Daggett, director of the Southwest museum. "It stood 14 feet high and its tusks are 16 feet long."

WM. SCHLEY HOWARD ATTACKS FITZGERALD

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, April 11.—(Special.)—Charges that the democratic administration was getting reckless in piling up appropriations, made on yesterday by Representative Fitzgerald, of New York, chairman of the appropriations committee, were answered today by Representative W. S. Howard, of Georgia.

Mr. Fitzgerald declared that the rank and file of the democrats in the house were recklessly increasing the committee's estimates.

Answering Mr. Fitzgerald, Mr. Howard moved to strike out a $600 messenger for the inspector generals office in the war department, leaving him only two messengers.

Do Nothing But Sit.

"I have noticed in the war, state and navy building that they have so many messengers that they are in the way of one another," said Mr. Howard.

"I have been here 3 years a Yankee and since I have been in congress, and I do not think I have ever seen one doing anything but sitting down.

"Now I want to say if the gentleman from New York (Mr. Fitzgerald) was in earnest yesterday when he accused the democratic party of all sorts of crimes and misdemeanors, in proposing to offer an amendment to strike out the words 'messengers, $600.'"

Mr. Fitzgerald replied: "I am glad that what I said yesterday had the effect at least of bringing the gentleman from Georgia to the point where he is willing to economize to the extent of $600. He treated it as a joke to overturn the committee on appropriations. If this is a conscience offering, I am sure he is to be congratulated upon the conscience which has taken place in his conscience."

No Conscience Offering.

"This is no conscience offering," retorted Mr. Howard. "We have never had to make a conscience offering for anything. I will say that appropriations committees in some cases is penny wise and pound foolish. I remember that in the last congress I offered an amendment here to strike out a $1,000,000 appropriation for an electric lighting plant when a private corporation was willing to do it. Washington has made the proposition to this congress to save $56,000 a year in the operating expenses. The gentlemen from New York insisted upon spending the money.

"The democratic party is not guilty of the conduct with which the gentleman from New York has charged it," yesterday. (Applause)

"The gentleman claims all the wisdom of the democratic party and all the economy of the democratic party for himself," said Mr. Howard, "and members on this floor honestly differ with him as to economy and denounces the party that gave him his seat in congress and give gain political birth. It becomes the gentleman from New York to put all the democratic party in the same category with himself."

Fitzgerald Wrathful.

The ire of Representative Fitzgerald was aroused. Speaking with emphasis, he told the house that Mr. Howard would have himself to blame for with a point of order.

"The object on this appropriation was to take the government out of the grasp of the lighting monopoly which dominates this city," he declared, stated that there would be great economy in installing this plant," he said.

Representative Payne, of New York, greatly enjoying the row between democrats, put in a word at this point

"The economy plank of the platform has been split to pieces and only a few slivers are left," he said. "Possibly the gentleman from Georgia, when it comes to increasing the salaries of members' clerks from $1,080 to $1,800, will see a new light, and will vote against the $300 increase."

Mr. Mann, the republican leader, also got into the debate.

He declared Mr. Fitzgerald was working in vain to hold his party to its pledges of economy and was trying to get support from the progressives.

G. O. P.-Moose Clash.

"But the republicans and the progressives in this house and elsewhere," said Mr. Mann, "think together, work together and vote together, and in the end we'll get together and then woe to you upon the other side of this house. We've been having a family quarrel, but you better keep out of it."

The republican leader then interrupted Progressive Leader Murdock. "Is right. We'll go together. The republican party will come to us."

"The gentleman from Kansas," ventured Representative Payne, of New York, "is trying to make political capital for what is left of his party. He is now running for the senate from Kansas. He knows he would be beaten for the house in his district, and he is running for the senate because he wants a bigger funeral."

"Speaking of funerals," retorted Murdock, "does the gentleman think I am looking for a republican funeral? I'll be brought the republican party with its tariff bill?"

Mr. Howard withdrew his amendment relative to the $600 messenger

Macon, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—The good roads committee of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, of which Emory Winship, of Macon, is chairman, is at present centering its efforts on the meeting of the good roads convention in Macon during the Georgia Jubilee celebration. The tentative date set for the good roads convention is May 29.

Secretary T. B. Slade, of the committee, who is a paid employee of the Georgia Chamber, has been writing to county road commissioners, road building experts and manufacturers of road building machinery, getting their attendance and co-operation in the coming convention and the response has already been better than was expected.

Two of the principal matters to be discussed at the convention will be the plans for formulating a system of improved highways throughout Georgia, and the building of a model highway between Macon and Columbus. Chairman Winship yesterday announced that it was the intention of his committee to make a statewide automobile tour in the interest of better highways, but this trip has been postponed until after the convention in May. Details of the tour will be mapped out at that time.

The Macon-Columbus Highway.

The Georgia Chamber of Commerce and the Macon chamber have already endorsed the Macon-Columbus highway and a meeting will be held in Columbus next week for the same purpose. The highway will cover the route of the old Agency road which was established by General Benjamin Hawkins, after whom old Fort Hawkins, in Macon, was named. The highway will be builded on land which the United States government secured through treaties with the Indians.

At the present time there are some good stretches of road between Macon and Columbus, but there are miles and miles of the road that are nothing like it should be. Several of the intervening counties have already agreed to fix up the grade and make it to conform to the general plan for the highway.

The state chamber's good roads committee is also taking a great interest in the coming trip of the scout cars from Savannah to Columbus, under the auspices of the Savannah Automobile club. This trip will be with a view of establishing a highway that will cut through the center of the state.

The Savannah cars will follow the route from Savannah to Dublin, Hawkinsville and Perry, but will not come into Macon. However, the Macon chamber of commerce expects to see that this city is connected with this highway if it is constructed.

Committee Is Active.

There is no doubt but that the state chamber's good roads committee is one of the most active of that body's committees and before long the results of its work will begin to show. Chairman Winship is one of the most active advocates of good roads in this state and his experience with road building on the Pacific coast will stand him in good stead in the work that is now before him.

Arrangements have been made for A. Whitmarsh Bibb, county engineer, superintendent, and members of the Bibb road board, to attend the meeting of the county road commissioners to be held in Atlanta next week. It is probable also that Chairman Winship, of the state chamber committee, will also be present.

Mr. Wimbush will at that meeting outline the plans for the proposed forty-mile boulevard to circle Bibb county. A tentative route for this boulevard has already been selected and it is proposed to set out trees all along the route and make it by far the most attractive in the entire state.

Report on Milk Depots of City For the Month of March

The accompanying report gives the standing of the various milk depots scattered throughout the city. These depots usually obtain their supply from one or more producers, some of whom are near the city and others are located at quite a distance.

The following information will explain the report:

Butter Fats—The law requires that the milk contain as much as 3.6 per cent butter fats. Rich milk will contain as high as 5 and 6 per cent.

Bacteria—Fresh, clean milk will contain less than 10,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter. The law allows as many as 100,000 per cubic centimeter. If it contains more than 100,000, there has been carelessness somewhere in handling the milk.

Temperature—Milk should be kept below a temperature of 50 degrees, or it may become dangerous. The consumer should test his milk with a thermometer. The law requires that all milk be delivered at a temperature below 55 degrees.

The list below gives the section of the city in which each dairyman delivers, and the consumer can easily tell which man is producing the best milk in their section of the city. Milk with a high bacterial count should be especially avoided.

OLD MAGAZINE ARTICLE USED AGAINST WILSON

Washington, April 11.—The views of Thomas Woodrow Wilson on the structure of the American government, as expressed in a magazine article published in 1879, were presented to the house today by Representative John Jason of Washington, who explained that the writer was the present president of the United States.

"Thomas Woodrow Wilson," said Representative Johnson, referring to the magazine article, "says that congress is a deliberative body in which there is little deliberation, and a legislature which legislates with little real discussion. He says that under the cabinet form of government, platforms mean something, and that broken promises will end in broken power."

"Who is this Thomas W. Wilson?" progressive Leader Murdock interrupted to ask.

"He is Woodrow Wilson, the president, who is leading on this gradual overthrow of representative government," Johnson replied.

Vacation privileges have been extended to about 1,200 men. The overtime rate in line offices was increased from 30 cents to 35 cents an hour and in relay offices from 40 cents to 45 cents an hour.

Wanted

To correspond with owners of small, well-located and desirable tracts of land in or directly adjacent to growing, prosperous towns, with a view to subdividing into business, residence or villa sites, and sell for owner at either private or auction sales.

I have a thorough organization, employ only experts in their line, and my record of more than a million of sales in the south speaks for itself.

Tracts of from five to fifteen acres are preferred. Unless present or prospective development warrants an advance in values; or unless a substantial growth of a town in question makes the purchase of lots desirable from either an investment or occupation standpoint, do not reply.

If, on the other hand, you want to turn your land into cash or good paper, and there are reasons why the buyers I should find should make good on their investment, write me at once and I shall endeavor to make a quick and satisfactory operation for you.

Well-located lands, when properly subdivided and sold, should bring the owner large profits on acreage prices.

References from bankers, state and county officials and other large property owners furnished upon application.

CURED OF DRUG HABIT.

Dear Sir—I am feeling so much better and so much more like living this morning that I concluded I would write you, telling you of my improvement and how much happier we all are. When I went to your sanatorium for treatment I was using 15 grains of morphia (hypodermically) per day. The first dose of the drug was given me by the faculty physician and I had scarcely left—later I had pneumonia and complications that nearly ended the suit I was left a helpless drug user (could not sleep and only weighed about 140 pounds), and so glad am I to say it until I was relieved at your sanatorium. Now I weigh 190 pounds, sleep well, have a good appetite and the family is much happier. I now feel it my duty to advise all such unfortunates to take treatment and rid themselves of this terrible habit-forming drug. Strange to say I never have been tempted to take more of morphine. I suffered no pain on account of its withdrawal and have suffered none since. As a matter of fact, my stay at your sanatorium was both pleasant and profitable. I found your sanatorium more like a pleasant home where the patients are well fed and allowed to enjoy themselves as persons interested. We have a good many unfortunates in my section, and I hope they will read this letter and go to you for relief. Wishing you and all connected with your sanatorium success and prosperous New Year, I am, yours truly,

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Use It Like a Cold Cream and Dry Eczema Eruptions Right Up.

The moment you apply bold-sulphur to an itching or broken out skin, the itching ceases and healing begins, says a renowned dermatologist.

Mentholated bold-sulphur made into a thick cream effects such prompt relief, even in aggravated Eczema, that it is a never-ending source of amazement to physicians.

For many years bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous eruptions by reason of its cooling, parasite-destroying properties and nothing has ever been found to take its place in relieving irritable and inflammatory affections of the skin. Sulphur also establishes a permanent cure, yet, in every instance, it immediately subdues the itching irritation and heals the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again manifests itself.

Any good pharmacist will supply an ounce of bold-sulphur cream, which should be applied to the affected parts like the ordinary cold cream. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded is very welcome, particularly when the Eczema is accompanied with torturous itching.

GEORGIA FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

MRS. PETERSON WRITES OF EXTENSION WORK

Much Work Accomplished by Committee Since Annual Convention at Cuthbert.

Since the annual meeting in Cuthbert last fall, when we were so beautifully entertained by the young ladies of the town, I have been impressed with the fact that one of the best features of club life is the young lives that are being made useful in all lines of work. In visiting the clubs I find many, especially the new ones, made up largely of young ladies.

The Adel Woman's club and the Dahlonega Home and School Improvement club are the two last organized. There are a number of young ladies in the Adel club, the president and secretary being among the number.

Active Club at Butler.

I have recently visited the Butler and Reynolds clubs. The one at Reynolds is new, and none in the state has accomplished more in the short length of time since its inception. This inergetic band of women has cleaned the town, set aside and improved a beautiful square for a park and playground and has $100 in bank for other improvements. Butler also has one of our lading small clubs.

In Tifton we have just this year nearly doubled our club membership, and this has largely been the young ladies and girls of the town. They are doing beautiful work, and always ready and willing to lend a helping hand.

We are getting ready for the school fair in May.

This is strictly for the rural schools, and we want it to be great.

Have raised $100 from our merchants to give in prizes. This will be our banner year in club work, and it will be difficult for any club in the state to reach us.

ELLEN P. PETERSON,
Vice President State Federation.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick Praises Work of Mrs. Bolling Jones As General Federation Sec.

Truly this has been the banner year for the general federation in Georgia, and all praise is due our beloved general federation state secretary, Mrs. Bolling Jones. She has just closed what might be termed a whirlwind campaign for membership in the general federation.

Since January 23 she has led ten new clubs into the general federation, with a membership of over 700. In this campaign she has most admirably fulfilled the purposes of her office by setting forth the real meaning of the general federation, and the value of membership therein, thus promoting the interests of the state federation as well as that of the general federation.

It is a pity Mrs. Jones has reached the time limit for this biennial year—April 5—for in the clubs she most interested. At any rate, we now have twenty-one clubs, with over 1,500 members in direct membership with the general federation, which means closer bonds with the mother organization.

President Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Dear Miss Baxter: It is with great pleasure I give this word of heartiest approval for the good work you are doing in promoting the world's peace.

Georgia's Rank at the Biennial

As the time for the biennial convention of women's clubs approaches, Georgia club women should be very much concerned about the place their state will occupy among the others represented. Two important responsibilities that have not been adequately met are the endowment fund and the subscribers to the General Federation Magazine.

Georgia is obligated to raise $2,000 as her assessment to the general federation endowment fund. This could easily have been done if the clubs had conscientiously contributed the 25 cents per capita they so readily pledged at the Cuthbert annual meeting. Not half the clubs of the state have responded, and the books will be closed on May 1.

Unless the clubs do meet this duty promptly Georgia will not be placed in the class with the best at the biennial, and Georgia's president will be subjected to a humiliation hard for her to bear, and that each of Georgia's delegates will share.

The time is very short, but prompt attention to securing the 25 cents per capita at the April meeting of each club that has not responded will raise the necessary amount, place Georgia in the first rank and make your president proud and happy.

Our columns today publish letters from Mrs. Fitzpatrick, voicing her gratification in the result of Mrs. Bolling Jones' campaign for membership in the general federation, and expressing her wish for Georgia to have more subscribers to the General Federation Magazine.

There is a special biennial premium offer of one hundred dollars in gold:

Fifty dollars to the state sending in the largest number of subscriptions according to club population, and a cup to the state president.

Thirty dollars to the club sending in the largest number of subscriptions, according to its membership.

Twenty dollars to the individual sending in the largest number of subscriptions.

Contest closes June 1, and prizes will be awarded at the biennial. To entitle a subscriber to be accredited to any particular club, it must be specified at the time subscription is sent in. Subscribers will be accredited to the different states, according to their addresses.

Any individual or club sending subscriptions of five or more at the same or different times may retain a discount of 25 cents on each subscription.

The investment of one dollar for this publication is surely worth while for every woman who wants to have the knowledge and inspiration that comes from regularly reading the official organ of the greatest organization of women in the world.

No clubwoman who wishes to be up to date concerning club and federation work and ideals can afford to be without the General Federation Magazine.

If you would like to be supplied with the best club literature, subscribe for this magazine at this address: General Federation Magazine (Inc.), No. 25 West Forty-second street, New York city.

Municipal House Cleaning

By instituting an annual cleaning-up day it was hoped to obtain two-fold results—clean, healthy, beautiful cities, and awakened civic interest in the individuals composing our citizenship.

It is not enough to put our municipal homes in order at a stated time; we must keep things as they should be by follow-up work. This can best be done by cultivating personal responsibility.

There are being developed new workers who are intent upon co-operating with the city government to eventually overthrow the bad and install the good. The future will demonstrate that the city is a great corporation wherein every citizen is a stockholder, and officials are but chosen directors of the corporation subject to recall if the work is not well done.

Every city is awakening to the ideal, when the people can have what they need—a city beautiful, clean streets, proper sanitation and health, parks, playgrounds, proper housing, music and art. Various civic organizations are active in directing the way to secure these things. New York has the bureau of municipal research, Boston the finance committee, Chicago the municipal expenditure commission and Los Angeles the municipal league. These are examples of organizations which are both exposing the bad end and recommending constructive measures which will be for the best good of the city.

A new day calls for a larger program, and everywhere men and women are working together for cities that are, in every part, beautiful, healthful cities.

They are seeking to create those conditions which make not only for culture and social refinement, but for that equality of opportunity which is essential to the well-being of the citizens of the better city.

With women's innate love for that which is cleanly and beautiful, it is easy for them to concentrate themselves to the task of making their home towns safe, attractive places for the men, women and children.

The greatest single cause for human wretchedness is undoubtedly ill health. The intellectual and moral progress of a nation may be judged by the span of life of its inhabitants. Thus, the average length of a human life in India is twenty-five years, in the United States forty-five years. Length of life increases wherever sanitary science is applied. In India, it is stationary; in Germany, where sanitary science has reached the highest development, the life span has been increased at the rate of twenty-seven years per century. The germ theory of disease is now half a century old and the flies, the fly and the mosquito are receiving serious consideration.

April is the month for the most effective campaign against the fly. If you kill the first flies that come, you will save the trouble of killing millions later. It requires education to realise that the extermination of the fly is one of the most effective means of securing health.

This pest cannot breed except in filth, then away with the breeding places. Insist upon the removal and sanitary disposal of tin cans, garbage, and refuse from streets, rear of stores and backyards. If we could only make people know that cleanliness is fatal to flies the health campaign would be

Art Department an Interesting Feature of Approaching Biennial

The art department promises a treat to the General Federation of Women's Clubs during the biennial convention in Chicago, June 9-18. On Saturday morning, June 13, the chairman, Mrs. Melville F. Johnston, will give her report, after which she will present Lorado Taft, Chicago's famous sculptor, who will speak on sculpture in America. He will be followed by an address on the Panama-Pacific art exhibit by John E. D. Trask, who is in charge of the art department at the San Francisco exposition.

At 12:30 the art department luncheon will be held, the number limited to two hundred and fifty. This will be a "talkandest" and speeches and menu will be served simultaneously, the subject for discussion being "How Can We Bring the Influence of Beauty and Art to the Children of America?" Mrs. Herman Hall, Mrs. Everett Pattison, Mrs. Harry L. Keefe, Mrs. John B. Sherwood and Mrs. Pauline Palmer will be heard in five-minute speeches.

The art conference for the afternoon meets at 2 o'clock in Fullerton hall, in the Art institute, when there will be an address of welcome by William M. R. French, of the Art institute, to be followed by talks on art study programs, by Mrs. Charles Spooner; "Rides for Study of American Art," Mrs. Howard T. Wilson; "Civic Art," Miss Anna Maxwell Jones; "Art Exhibits for the West," Dr. Minnie Howard, "The Pottery Exhibit," Mrs. Anna Morey, and "Household Decoration Exhibit," Mrs. Roland P. Murdo ck. Then will come an entertainment of forty-five minutes, a music symphony, "The Moon," Dudley Crafts Watson, illustrated with slides and piano.

The headquarters for the art department will be Fullerton hall, Art institute, where competent guides will usher visitors through the many rooms. The institute will be open at all times to club women wearing badges and the tours will be from 12 to 2 p. m. and from 5 to 8 p. m.

LANIER AFTERNOON SPENT BY HISTORY CLUB OF MACON

If Father Time had turned his flight backward and lifted "the veil of mystery" on Monday afternoon last at the meeting of the History club (with Mrs. Will Gunn) and Sidney Lanier could have stepped forth, would he have felt at last—at last, he had come into his own and we were recognising him as a clear-sighted genius? That his work and influence were growing in importance? In the president's prelude to the program she spoke interestingly of Lanier's appreciation of art and beauty and his skill as a musician. Her appropriate introduction was followed by an excellent program.

Sidney Lanier's lectures at Johns Hopkins university on "The English Novel" were vividly discussed in a paper by Dr. John G. Harrison, professor of philosophy at Mercer university. This was indeed a rare treat to the club. Dr. Harrison held the audience, from beginning to close, in rapt attention and his tributes to the author had just enough of criticism to make his address sparkle with originality. His paper treated several of the lectures as somewhat parenthetical, but referred to them much enough as presentations of Lanier's doctrines of philosophy and art. However, the main portion of the treatment was devoted to the leading thesis of the lectures, to wit: That the sense of personality among the ancients was very feeble and limited as compared with the modern, and that the modern novel was developed as the only form adequate for the expression of this personality.

The author's presentation of the doctrine was fairly and symmetrically outlined. A careful estimate of the success of the lectures in maintaining the position was offered. A few happy quotations used by Lanier and others, gathered by the reader, served to illustrate the positions taken or criticised. It was then that although the argument is not formally consistent or logically conclusive, it is presented with great brilliance and power. The ancient Greeks did not have as little personality as Lanier gives them, but he shows us that there has been a large development which is revealed by the novel as told in George Eliot. The success in the statement of the theory, the brilliance of the presentation and the stimulation to be found in the examination will help to make Sidney Lanier popular.

Mrs. Mallary's Paper.

Another paper on the program showing scholarly study and insight into poetry was read by Mrs. Eugene Mallary.

In her introductory remarks she gave her husband credit for the notes that she had hurriedly written. Lanier is the only author who has given a scientific basis of poetry and Mrs. Mallary's paper was interesting discussion on the "Science of English Verse." She told us many things that we did not know, but from her remarks we may only give a few quotations. Her discussion on the subject of "tone-color" in verse lingered with us. She says there can be no doubt that there is a wonderful variety of tone-color in music. The flute tone is easily distinguishable from that of the violin, and the same note played upon the violin has one color when the performer is a beginner and quite a different color when the performer is a master. So verse may have different tone qualities just as in music.

In the matter of turns in verse the author points out the fact that as little as we realize it, there are times or we will say words in every sentence, both necessary in order to impart the full meaning. A harmless remark when uttered with its proper tone is converted into slander when set to another tune.

Musical Selections.

So naturally does Lanier's faith in God find expression in his "Marshes of Glynn" and his reverent discipleship in his ballad of "The Tree and the Master," that they were read by Miss Smith, the latter sung by Mrs. Gould.

Miss Rose Taylor read his nature poem—the one we so love—"The Song of the Chattahoochee," and also from his "Centennial Cantata" or rather widely known as "Meditation of Columbia." This was composed with the musical expression always in mind, and so, too, it should be read. This grand ode graced the opening day of the exposition at Philadelphia.

Misses Smith and Taylor read with appreciative, responsive audience, who delight in hearing talents and are grateful for the time given the one from their busy lives.

Lanier said: "Music means harmony, harmony means love, love means God." This was effectively demonstrated in Mrs. Adams' piano solo and the chorus of Mrs. LaFayette and Mrs. Gould. Does it not portend more for Lanier in Macon than a bust in a musty, dusty corner of the auditorium or busy, cultured scholars as these (on the program) are willing to step aside for the setting over a special week for Lanier?

Surely the people will not delay longer in placing honor where honor is due! Macon was his birthplace, his home. The birthplace of his wife and her home. Are we not slow in showing to Macon the appreciation of his having walked among us? Baltimore has a bust of his clay and recently The Sun had written a eulogistic poem, entitled "Lanier Walked Here." Will Macon not build a memorial to him who lived here?

How we love him day and now slender his opportunity! What little time on earth to accomplish all he so longed to accomplish. Poet, Soldier, Musician he died. The little boy with the flute has grown through soldier, musician figure. He has only grown too large for life. His speech is the silent speech of mind to mind. His dwelling, eternity.

MRS. THOMAS W. BAKER.

SANITARY LAW PASSED.

In Iowa the last general assembly passed a sanitary law, effective July 4, 1913. This law makes mandatory provision for the sanitary condition of all buildings, equipment of all sorts, and for the personal cleanliness of employes, wherever shall be operated or conducted a bakery, candy factory, ice cream factory, canning factory, laughter house, meat market, etc. The law provides that none of these shall be operated without a license from the state dairy and food commissioner.

FEDERATION MAGAZINE OFFERS HANDSOME CUP

Mrs. Fitzpatrick Urges Club Presidents to Bring Matter to Attention of Members.

My Dear Mrs. Fitzpatrick: It has been decided to award the prize for the most subscriptions to The General Federation Magazine to the president and state of the presidents' night, June 15. This will be an exceedingly interesting event connected with the state presidents' evening, and I do hope you will make every effort to have your state come out in good shape.

The consensus of opinion seems to be from the state presidents that the cup would be preferable to the banner, and this has been decided upon. Mrs. Johnson, chairman of the art committee, has placed this matter in the hands of the Misses Overbeck, who are graduates of the Alford school, and took design from Mr. Dow. The trophy cup will be not less than twelve inches high and will be executed in beautiful blues and grays. The letters "G. F. W. C." will be woven into the schema of decoration, and also the words "Honor for Service." This cup will be an expensive piece of work and will be kept no doubt by the winning state as a trophy as long as clubs last.

Very cordially yours,
HARRIET R. WATERS,
Managing Editor.

Message From Mrs. Fitzpatrick.

The cup referred to above is to be the valuable trophy for the state sending in the largest number of subscriptions to The General Federation Magazine, full particulars of which I mailed to every club president in the state last week. The offer made is a splendid plan to place the best club literature in the hands of our women, and, at the same time, add a good sum to the club treasury, and maybe, bring this beautiful cup to Georgia.

Club presidents, please bring the matter to the attention of your members at once, as the time limit is June 1.

The Federation Magazine is the official organ of the general federation, and gives valuable information from every department of club activities. No really earnest club woman should be without it. Your subscription of $1.00 brings you the magazine a year and puts 25 cents of the amount in your club treasury. Specify your club when you send in subscriptions.

IDA H. FITZPATRICK,
President Georgia Federation Women's Clubs.

WOMEN OF QUITMAN TO HELP IN WORK OF INDUSTRIAL CLUB

Quitman, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—The Quitman women who belong to the civic department of the Woman's club met and a tremendous advance has been made toward real civic improvement in recent developments here. To begin with, after several years of work and of disappointment the cows were voted off the streets in the recent municipal election by a majority which definitely settles that vexing matter.

Coincident with this the street committee of the city council employed Mr. Marsh, a landscape expert with P. J. Berckmans, of Augusta, to come here and direct the work being done on the new city park. Mr. Marquis spent two days here staking out driveways and paths and indicating the work to be done this summer preparatory to fall plantings. He will return next fall and direct the planting of shrubbery and also plan plantings for the city street parks which are in each block of the main streets.

The flower clubs has urged all along that any park development should be done under the direction of an expert so that the work would be beautiful and permanent and would eliminate expensive mistakes. The civic committees of the club are now planning a fall campaign of planting which will make Quitman one of the prettiest towns in the state within another year.

The chief feature of next Monday's meeting of the civic department will be a talk to the club women by Mr. Edward Y. Clarke, recently elected secretary of the Industrial club. Mr. Clarke believes the women are very important factors in town development and he will talk to the club about the work of the Industrial club and what the Woman's club can do to help it. The landscape gardener for the city park came as the result of Dr. T. H. McHatton's recent lecture here on landscape gardening under club auspices, and Mr. Clarke's coming to the club on this basis of co-operation encourages the women to believe that some very definite and material improvements may be accomplished during the coming year.

THOMASVILLE CLUB NAMES NEW OFFICERS

Thomasville, Ga., April 10.—(Special.)—The Thomasville Study class has elected as additional officers to serve during the coming year: Mrs. Frank Smith, co-responding secretary; Miss Grace Beverly, treasurer; Miss Rosalind Stayerman, federation reporter.

The chairmen of the various committees for the coming year are: Nominating committee, Mrs. Harry Ainsworth; auditing committee, Miss Mary Merrill; library committee, Miss Lucy Lester; program committee, Mrs. Ainsworth, civics, Mrs. W. M. Hardy; art room, Mrs. B. W. Stone; education, Miss Mary Graves; committee for the fair, Mrs. C. S. Parker.

In using this week the program for the afternoon was "The Caucasus," by Miss Bessie Biererman; "Pizarro," by Mrs. Frank Smith; "The Life and Environment of Lima," by Miss Mary Merrill and "Indian Folk Song-Recitative," by Mrs. George Forbes.

The Great City.

What makes a city great and strong?
Not architecture's graceful strength,
Not factories' extended length,
But men who see the civic wrong
And turn its darkness into light.

What makes a city full of power?
Not wealth's display nor titled fame,
Not fashion's loudly boasted claim,
But women rich in virtue's dower,
Whose homes, though humble, still are great
Because of service to the State.

What makes a city men can love?
Not things that charm the outward sense
Not gross display of opulence,
But Right, that wrong cannot remove,
And Truth, that faces civic fraud
And sustains it in the name of God.

This is a city that shall stand,
A light upon a nation's hill,
A voice that evil cannot still,
A source of blessing to the land;
Its strength not brick, nor stone, nor wood,
—Exchange.

While the average amount of water used daily in the cities of the United States varies from 50 to 150 gallons per capita, there is an almost uniform consumption of a little more than half a gallon by each person for drinking

The Campfire girls work for honors, which are different colored beads, given for health, home craft, nature love, camp craft, handcraft, business, patriotism and national honor.

The law of the Campfire is: Seek beauty, give service, pursue knowledge, be trustworthy, hold on to health, glorify work and be happy.

The Pine Forest Campfire was organized in October, 1912. There are three divisions and the girls are now attaining their Woodcraft degree. The Campfire meets on the first and third Saturdays in each month.

Arbor day will be observed by planting trees with the Campfire ceremony. Mrs. Banks, guardian, will take the girls to Lucy Lake for their camp this summer. Next year she expects to take them to the National Campfire to grounds in North Carolina.

NEW MEMBERS ADDED TO FITZGERALD CLUB

Fitzgerald, Ga., April 11.—(Special.) At the last regular meeting of the Woman's club which was held on Wednesday the last literary program for the year was given. "Modern Benevolence" was the subject conducted by Mrs. C. E. Baker. World-wide benevolence was discussed by Mrs. Baker who was followed by a very interesting talk on the work of associations for the deaf and dumb, tracing history back to Biblical days. Mrs. J. E. Goethe told of institutions for the moral uplift of humanity and Mrs. J. E. Andrews gave a history of charitable institutions, organizations and modern philanthropies.

There were six new members elected and for visitors there were present from Cordele Mrs. Thompson Henderson, D. C. Smith, Melvin Paulk, and Wilkins. At the next meeting will occur the annual election of officers and a social hour was also announced for that day.

Garbage Disposal Rules.

Miss Zona Gale, chairman of the civics committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, gives the following rules for the disposition of garbage:

By:

1. The purchase of a galvanised zinc garbage can, which may be fitted to any wagon. The tank costs only $30.

2. By the hiring of a two mule team at $3 a day to cover your town twice a week.

3. By insisting through the press and if possible getting the health officers to demand that every house be provided with a covered metal garbage can.

Then work to get the city to take over the collection, which is a part of the city's business of municipal housekeeping. But it is your business first. Remember that the first ambulances in Chicago were bought by a woman's club.

You can take no greater precaution for the health of your town, save only the establishment of a system of sewerage.

Des Moines Federation.

The Des Moines City Federation of Women's Clubs held an interesting session at the West high school, beginning in the morning with a regular monthly business meeting and a meeting of the board of managers in the early afternoon, followed by a presentation of Zona Gale's famous suffrage play, "How the Vote Was Won." As a curtain-raiser, a clever rummage sale of old clothes, antiquated notions, fallen idols, worn-out ideals, prejudices and superstitions was held. Miss Elizabeth Perkins acted as auctioneer and was a great success. Mrs. Parrington, Mrs. Grundy, the Mad Hatter, and a number of others were among those who elected to the sale of these choice articles, adding to the zest of the sale. All of the participants in the casts of both the sale and the drama were members of the Des Moines Dramatic club. The entertainment was a decided success.

Awfly Intresting.

Said the girl with the yellow fox scarf and muff
To the girl with a snuff like a Hotte cuff:
"Of the Mexican trouble, I can't read enough.
I'm to talk on the question next week at the club.
Oh, yes: it's awfly exciting! My facts are first hand—
You know what I mean—they come first hand to me!
I know of the landlords that looted the land
And that sort of thing—because, you see,
Our Will met in Harvard a fellow named Brown—
Whose brother-in-law's in some Mexican row,
And has a concession—or something—down there.
And Tom—Mr. Brown—came with Will—and told me
That it's true that old Huerta has taken to drink.
And he once met Carranza at afternoon tea—
It's awfly int'resting, don't you think?"
"Yes, indeed!" said the girl with the little bear cub.
"One has to be sure of one's facts nowadays.
Take the Irish home rule bill. I heard at the club
The question discussed in ten different ways.
It was really absurd! There was Mrs. Dank-Blah—
Who had no advantages!—really, my dear"—
Many things that she said was distressingly rash.—
To me the whole matter's remarkably clear.
For Percy Pitzugh, younger son of Lord Step—
I met him, you know, while in London last May!—
Oh, truly! 'Tis quite touching but friendship, Marie'—
Well, he writes me at times in the friendliest way.
He says that the Carson chap's bally well off"
And Premier Asquith's a stunner at golf—

Dr. Griggs Lectures.

Monday, April 13, 4 p. m.—"What Is Progress?"

Tuesday, April 14, 4 p. m.—"The Problem of Social Reform."

Tuesday, April 14, 8 p. m.—"The Social Ideal in Modern Civilization."

All the lectures will be given in Browning hall, Girls' High school.

Of Dr. Edward Howard Griggs, who lectures Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Browning hall, Girls' High school, the editor of The Boston Transcript writes:

"His lectures on 'Ethical Interpretations of Social Progress,' are vital; that is the point. Professor Griggs, a comparatively young man, has vigor, grasp, virility and as inquiring, spirit life is aggressive at the same time that he is frankly positive in his statements; his replies to the questions which the lectures evoke show openness of mind, as well as great alertness, and his attitude is that of a student rather than of a dogmatist.

"For the reason of the hold which this lecturer has gained over his hearers we must look to the man's own utterances—the urgent necessity of studying today the ethical forces in the conditions and movements of society, and likewise in the need for the greatest development and the fullest cooperation of all forces for the higher culture of manhood and womanhood.

"It is a significant fact that the thoughtful-minded men and earnest women for whom Boston is famous are listening so intently to this prophet from the west. In one sense he tells them nothing new, for his motif is humanity. The lesson which he enforces is that back of laws and institutions—back of our boasted civilization, back of social settlements, back even of some of the teachings of accepted Christianity, lie the supreme need and possibility of humanity, and that the struggle for life for each must be in harmony with life for all."

ON THE EASTER PARADE.

The world of fashion is on parade today and it will be interesting to note the modes that will govern from now on through the summer season. The end of the moment in color is screamingly evident in sulphur color alabaster and a peculiar shade of brick dust or flame color. Hats and gowns take on these colors, and trying as they are, they are acceptable to many as a change. As if to modify the taste which selects the more striking colors three Atlanta women have selected for their Easter street gowns black ones. One of these black gowns is a coat suit in black moire silk, the moire is narrow in grain. The smart skirt is draped and has the flat ruffles, put on almost at the waist line. The coat is finished with the riffle ruffle and the blouse worn with it is of black lace and white net. A second black coat suit combines black moire and serge. The coat almost dolman shape in design and the skirt introducing two flat box plaits in the back with riffle flounces marking the hip line. An elegant toilet seen in the same establishment will be worn at a dinner this evening and is a flowered surah silk, the ground, of bluish color, has sprays of flowers in blue and purple scattered over it. For the same handsome woman a coat suit in sulphur-colored bengaline was designed.

An afternoon toilet of artistic combination is of biscuit-colored brocade charmeuse, the draped skirt applied to a corsage of lace and chiffon and the bodice finished by a sash and trimmings in old blue.

For a garden party a most beautiful gown has been fashioned of ivory-colored poplin, showing scattered over it a pattern in bouquets of flowers in their natural color. For the same stylish effect a sash is arranged in white taffetas. The skirt was finished in scalloped ruffles, and the corsage of taffetas was finished by a girdle and sash of gold threaded blue and rose satin.

The favored combination of black and white will be seen in a robby coat suit, of black silk stripped in white, the coat short and of the same.

THE GAIETY OF FOOTGEAR.

Like the colors that adorn hats in all their gentle noisiness are the shoes and hosiery to be worn by dainty womankind this season. The idea of a quiet black stocking and plain black lowcut shoe is almost an expression of mourning. A gray stocking or a black and white ribbed stocking is the quietest things worn at present with a black shoe, and the stocking now is more bitsn the color of the suit than any other. The lowcut shoe with the steel buckle, or the plain silver or gold buckle, are worn more than any other on the street, while the bronze shoe and stocking will be seen on all dressy day occasions.

The bronze lowcut shoe has a long vamp and buckle, and sometimes has a fancy bronze top.

The cloth-topped boot is smart with walking suits, especially those planned for traveling. They are trimmed in patent leather and gray is the color most favored, though beige color is just as smart.

For afternoon receptions and early dinner gowns the shoes match the gowns and are of satin or finest kid. They are embroidered and sparkle on the toe with rhinestones, cut steel or colored stones. Gold slippers are smart this season and are worn with gowns of any color. For dancing wear flesh colored hosiery will be popularly worn with evening slippers of white or any of the delicate colors.

For general afternoon wear a pretty white slipper is shown in kid, with enameled buckle of white and gold. The tango shoe laced about the ankle is a fad many women have adopted

A FEW WORDS ABOUT GLOVES.

The beige colored and chamois colored gloves are being very much worn this season on the street; gray gloves are frequently seen even on dressy occasions, while the white glove, at all hours and at all places, is always au fait.

To wear your gloves a size too large is now the vogue in Paris, this coming. It is charged a reproof to American women who have the habit of wearing their gloves too small. They squeeze fat hands into tight gloves, and on social occasions are seen trying to conceal the fact that one after another the little buttons appear and jump off.

About shoes—the same charge is made. American women never have taken as obediently to the long vamped French shoe. They think it makes the foot look large and it is the one thing they are independent about. They have their bootmakers on this side of the water, and pay the fabulous prices demanded.

*****

THE ARTIFICIAL FLOWER.

The artificial flower still asserts itself not only on the corsage of the French evening gown, but on the afternoon gown, and even at the belt of the walking gown.

French women always prefer violets to any other flowers, with a liking always for the gardenia, which French women still call "La Commille." Valley lillies are introduced with the violets. American women prefer the more vivid colored flower and nearly every woman seen on Fifth avenue today will have a colored flower, giving a finishing touch to her toilet. The metal flowers of the season, especially metal foliage, and little old-fashioned nosegays are being sent as Easter gifts. These flowers are all perfumed and their freshness is required of dainty women.

R. F. D. No. 4, Box 35, Lithonia, Ga.—"My baby was bothered with a scalp trouble something like tetter. It began by rough, very red, scaly spots coming. first on her temple. They began to spread and looked real ugly and made her hair look rough and dead. They made sores and kept spreading until they almost covered her entire head. Her hair came out in handfuls.

"My family physician told me to get the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I began washing her with the Cuticura Soap and applying the Cuticura Ointment, did this twice each day, and in six weeks she was cured and her hair began to grow out immediately. Now she has beautiful golden curls." (Signed) Mrs. Sidney Park, June 16, 1913.

CARRANZA AND VILLA TO HOLD CONFERENCE

El Paso, Texas, April 11.—Much improvement in the foreign relations of the constitutionalist provisional government of northern Mexico, it is predicted, will result from the meeting promised at Chihuahua next week between General Venustiano Carranza and General Francisco Villa.

Representations of the most vigorous nature have been pouring in on General Carranza at Juarez from Washington since the expulsion of the Spaniards from Torreon. Carranza, it is said, has made no direct replies to several of these representations and today it was said that the state department insisted that definite written replies be returned. The question involved deals with the expulsion of Spaniards, the confiscation of property and the rights of the United States to deal directly with Carranza in behalf of other nations.

Statement Was Ill-Advised.

Many among Carranza's advisers expressed the opinion today that Isidro Fabela, acting foreign minister, was ill advised in issuing a public statement yesterday quoting Carranza as exulting over the visit of H. C. Myles, British consul at El Paso, and pointing out that similar actions by other governments would greatly improve foreign relations. The statement pointed to the visit as a triumph for Carranza's policy announced at Nogales a month or more ago that he would insist on each foreign government making its own representations to him, rather than through the state department at Washington. This policy later was modified to suit the wishes of Washington, but the Fabela statement was interpreted as indicating the resumption of a stiffer attitude by General Carranza.

Consul Myles' visit, it was said, assured the security of British mining property in northeastern Mexico. Some of Carranza's advisers who visited El Paso today declared the statement, as transmitted, was an exaggeration of Carranza's real attitude.

Carranza has been handicapped recently in dealing with both foreign and domestic affairs by the disordered condition at Torreon as the natural result of two weeks of severe fighting, the supervision of the organization of civil governments in southern cities recently captured, and the fact that his knowledge of affairs in the south must come by telegraphic correspondence.

Conference With Villa.

A heart-to-heart talk between himself and Villa, therefore, it is said, is looked on with high hope by other leaders. The two have not met since the Madero revolution, and since that time Villa has risen from the crude leader of a small band to the command of an army, and all accounts from the front agree that he has broadened and grown under increased responsibilities.

After the interview it is predicted that Carranza will be able to render to Washington assurances satisfactory to both sides.

General Carranza, his staff and the personnel of the executive offices left Juarez today for Chihuahua. Next Monday George C. Carothers, special agent of the state department, will follow him and will continue to Torreon if Carranza removes his capital to the scene of the recent battle.

Knowledge of the military situation east of Torreon remained vague today. The federal evacuation of San Pedro was confirmed and General Velasco was reported still at Parras, 100 miles west of Saltillo.

There were rumors of fighting, but it could not be learned whether the federals really were in that city in force or merely occupied the town with a rear guard left while the main body of the troops which Velasco took out of Torreon made good their retreat to Saltillo.

HUERTA APOLOGIZES TO THE UNITED STATES

the investigation should develop a greater responsibility on the part of Colonel Hinojosa, the penalty applicable to the case will be imposed by the competent legal authorities."

General Huerta also stated that in accord with the line of conduct which the government of Mexico has always followed in the fulfillment of its duties of an international character regarding all nations, it deplores what has occurred in this case which has grown out of nothing more than the misunderstanding of a subordinate official.

"His superior officer at once proceeded to point out that the occurrence was unintentional and he imposed upon Colonel Hinojosa disciplinary punishment within the authority of General Zaragoza."

Mr. O'Shaughnessy reported that the explanation as above made had been given to the press of Mexico City."

Huerta's Good Faith Accepted.

General Huerta's good faith was accepted, apparently without reservation, and it was pointed out that it was but fair to await the result of the promised investigation and discipline of the Mexican officer responsible for the humiliation of the American navy. The navy department, it was said, has issued no instructions to Rear Admiral Mayo directing either the withdrawal or enforcement of his demand for salutes. Officials here are disposed to rely on that officer's discretion and are certain he has been informed of the unqualified terms of General Huerta's explanation.

Some doubt was expressed as to whether the salute could be demanded for that was termed an "irresponsible act" by a subordinate officer, especially in view of the prompt apology from Huerta. One official, an authority on naval precedents, said he knew of no instance in which a salute had been given the American colors in like circumstances.

This officer, delving into archives for a precedent, found nothing more closely resembling the Tampico case than a civil war incident in which a British man-of-war enforced a salute from a confederate shore battery and then declined to return the courtesy for fear such action would be construed as recognition of the Confederacy.

Mexican Situation Is Deeply Involved.

Other Mexican reports were meager. There was nothing definite concerning the Torreon situation. Secretary Bryan said he felt the outlook for the safety of foreign oil properties at Tampico was improved in consequence of thrice repeated demands to contestants there. He said no foreign governments had made representations in behalf of the interests of their nationals at Tampico.

New representations from the Spanish foreign office through Ambassador Willard at Madrid, asking assistance for exiled Spaniards at El Paso, brought forth the comment that everything possible is being done." Secretary Bryan again explained that he had instructed Consular Agent Carothers, to demand of General Carranza that the case of every Spaniard be considered separately on its merits and that there be no more wholesale deportation because of race.

Mr. Bryan indicated that he would continue to press the claims of the Spaniards without abatement.

A belated report to the navy department from Rear Admiral Howard at Acapulco, sent Thursday night, said all was quiet at that port towards which the Zapatistas are moving. Two ineffective bombs were dropped by the aeroplane Topolobampo at the federal gunboat Morelos near Topolobampo.

The gunboat Tampico, which has passed through many vicissitudes since defecting to the rebel cause, was reported to be "pumping out water."

Expulsion of Spaniards Defended.

Constitutionalist headquarters here in a statement tonight defended the expulsion of certain Spanish residents of Mexico as an act in accordance with the Mexican constitution and supported by international law. The deportations were ordered, the statement says, to "prevent them from giving further assistance to the enemy and to protect them from the people who might, under present peculiar conditions, commit acts of violence against them."

The statement insists, however, that not all Spanish residents of the district involved were expelled, the order applying only to those who constitutionalist authorities had reason to believe were in league with the federals.

Since Spain had full knowledge of

YOUR attention is respectfully called to an important point not generally known, that a laxative should have a tonic element to successfully meet constipation.

Mr. John B. Capers, of 610 Pecan St., Fort Worth, Texas, had a significant experience in this particular. He was afflicted with a severe case of constipation and bowel trouble. He spent a good deal of money in trying to find a remedy. To his astonishment Peruna very quickly relieved him of his bad symptoms. This happened a number of years ago. Since then, Mr. Capers states that he has had similar attacks of trouble, the prominent symptom of which is constipation, and has always found prompt and efficient relief from Peruna. He says: "Up to the time I started using your Peruna I could drink castor oil like water. It did no good. As for salts, they were of no use. Physics of all kinds and classes were used, but we had to call on the fountain syringe for help." Peruna was able to correct this condition completely in Mr. Capers' case, and there is every reason to believe that it was the tonic qualities of Peruna, added to the laxative qualities, that procured this very desirable result.

SPAIN MAKES APPEAL TO THE UNITED STATES

Madrid, Spain, April 11.—The Spanish foreign minister today asked Colonel Joseph E. Willard, United States ambassador to Spain, to request the government at Washington to intervene in favor of the 1,000 Spanish subjects, expelled from Torreon.

According to official news received by the Spanish cabinet from Mexico the expelled Spaniards are in a critical situation and the government decided to approach the United States government in their behalf independently of the measures Spain is taking to bring her subjects back to their own country.

U. S. SOLDIERS FREED BY MEXICAN FEDERALS

Eagle Pass, Texas, April 11.—Arrested last night by Mexican federals in Piedras Negras, opposite Eagle Pass, three enlisted men on the third field artillery, U. S. A., were surrendered this afternoon to American army officers upon the demand of United States Consul William P. Blocker at Piedras Negras.

The three American soldiers who entered the Mexican town in civilian clothing, were placed in the guardhouse at the border patrol camp here and will be courtmartialed for alleged disobedience of orders. All soldiers had been instructed, it is said, to remain away from the Mexican side of the Rio Grande.

Their release was effected only after a personal conference between Consul Blocker and Federal General Guajardo, the consul's formal request for the release of the men having been refused. At the conference Consul Blocker demanded the immediate release of the men, who were later surrendered to American army officers.

FEDERALS UNITING TO ATTACK REBELS

Mexico City, April 11.—The united federal armies facing General Villa's revolutionary forces are gaining in their attack on Torreon, according to war office advices received here at noon today. The dispatches say the federals have succeeded in cutting the rebel lines between Gomez Palacio and Torreon.

Washington, April 11.—The Mexican embassy today issued this statement:

"Advices received at the Mexican embassy from secretary of foreign relations in Mexico City indicate that the forces of Generals Velasco, Moure and Maas have united and proceeded to attack the rebels besieged at Torreon, thus carrying out the strategic plan initiated by Velasco."

NO NEWS OF JOHN LIND AT NAVY DEPARTMENT

Washington, April 11.—The presidential yacht Mayflower, bearing John Lind to Washington from Vera Cruz, has not reported to the navy department since clearing the Mexican port Monday. She is expected to reach the navy yard here Monday or Tuesday.

Secretary Bryan, who plans to leave Tuesday night for Florida, said he expected to confer with Mr. Lind before starting south.

LAST CIGARETTE WRECKED PLANS TO KILL HIMSELF

Shreveport, La., April 11.—After making preparations to commit suicide by locking himself in a room, stopping up all crevices and turning on gas jets, Charles Bills succumbed to a desire for a final cigarette. When he struck a match to light the cigarette, an explosion followed. Bills went flying through a window [redacted] the house was partially wrecked. Bills is expected to die.

DRUKENMILLER TO SING AT RECITAL; KRAFT PLAYS ORGAN

An especially attractive grand opera program has been arranged for the free organ recital this afternoon at the Auditorium-Armory at 3:30 o'clock. Solon Drukenmiller, the well-known tenor and a favorite of all Atlanta music lovers, will be the soloist.

Dr. Edwin Arthur Kraft, the city organist, will preside at the organ, and has arranged the following interesting program composed of selections from the operas that will be presented this season by the Metropolitan Opera company:

S. Leoncavallo—Minuetta and Serenata from "Pagliacci."

P. Mascagni—Intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Mary Corley Fields—"Sweet Madeline McCowan," Charles W. Cadman. "At Dawning," Mr. Drukenmiller.

G. Verdi—Selections from the "Masked Ball."

Jules Massenet—Prelude and Minuet from "Manon."

G. Verdi—Selections from "Il Trovatore."

Mr. Kraft will continue his opera reviews this week. On Wednesday evening, April 15, at 8 o'clock, he will discuss and give selections from "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci;" Thursday evening, April 16, Verdi's "Masked Ball" and "Il Trovatore," and on Thursday evening, April 23, "Manon" and "Der Rosenkavalier."

$75,000 Loss by Fire.

Nashville, Tenn., April 11.—Fire, starting in the warehouse of J. F. Owen & C., early this morning, destroyed the warehouse and nine business houses at Waverly, Tenn., 70 miles west of here, doing damage estimated at from $75,000 to $100,000. The origin is not known. The buildings destroyed included the postoffice, two banks and telephone exchange. Only three stores escaped. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD, GIVE "CALIFOR NIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

Cleanses Tender Little Stomach, Liver, Bowels Without Injury.

Every mother realizes that this is the children's ideal laxative and physic, because they love its pleasant taste and it never fails to effect a thorough "inside cleansing" without griping.

When your child is cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember a good liver and bowel cleaning should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on each bottle.

Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other fig syrup with contempt.

PLAY BALL

Tuesday the big noise starts at Ponce de Leon. All the "live ones" in town will chain the front door, shut down the power and trek for the greensward, where our "Billy Smith" Champs will make their initial bow for the season.

Some say there will be 15,000 fans at the opening game, some say 20; we know there will be enough to properly root that bunch into the spirit of the game.

But this game day after tomorrow is only one of many to follow. You can reach those crowds in the right way every play day. You can stare them in the eye with your merchandising message and burn into their brains what you want them to know about your goods.

And, believe us, that crowd's worth reaching. They have time enough for clean sport, energy enough to be awake, and money enough to afford what you have to sell, if they want it.

The cost is low.

The service high. Phone about it.

SCHOOL PAGE

THE SUNDAY CONSTITUTION'S

SENIORS AND FRESH LEAD B. H. S. LEAGUE

By Robert Foreman.

B. H. S. students were given a lecture last Monday by Mr. ——. The lecture was intensely interesting, the subject being clean sport. Mr. —— was captain of the Pennsylvania baseball and football teams, and is well qualified to lecture on this subject. In his talk he showed the ethics of sportsmanship, and stated that the greatest enemy of athletics is the man who fails in his studies. He delivered his address after the monthly meeting of the Alciphronian Literary and Debating society.

Hinton F. Longino was formally elected cheer-leader at this meeting. Longino is experienced in this line, and will surely make a good cheer-leader, which office is very important. His election was unanimous, which shows that the J. H. S. students recognise his ability to lead the rooters.

Marist college was defeated easily by the B. H. S. nine on last Tuesday. While the B. H. S. team did not show as good form as in the Donald Fraser game, they had no trouble in defeating the cadets. Marist scored two runs in the first inning, but was unable to cross the plate afterwards, the final score being 5 to 2. Both Warwick and Fridell pitched well in this game, Fridell being taken out in the sixth inning, in order that Warwick might have a turn in the box. Harrison played best for the ivy street lads, registering three hits. Weaver twisted his knee and ankle late in the game and "Hamlet" Starr took his place. The team played Stone Mountain Friday.

In a close game the senior team defeated the sophomores on Friday afternoon by the score of 14 to 12. This game was hotly fought, and ten innings were necessary to determine the winner. Powers played good ball for the seniors, and brought in the winning run. Guy starred for the Sophomores. This game left the seniors tied with the freshmen for first place. The standing is:

Grade—	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Senior	2	0	1.000
Freshmen	2	0	1.000
Juniors	1	1	.500
Sophomores	0	2	.000

BOYS' NIGHT SCHOOL ATTENDANCE HURT BY PUPILS' ILLNESS

The boys in the eighth grade are enjoying physiology and history. That is those do that come every night to study. The eighth grade was glad to welcome this week a new member, who we hope will stay with us.

About half of the boys in the seventh grade are out on the sick list, so that the teacher is having an easy time teaching the few that are there.

So many of the sixth grade boys are absent on account of illness that we think perhaps we may have to annex a hospital or engage a score of nurses. All the boys want the nurses.

The boys in the fifth grade are still coming to school regularly. They all want to come when the weather is good.

The fourth grade boys have been grieved to hear of Jeff Asher being hurt in an accident. We all hope he will soon be well enough to come back to school.

The boys in the foreign class sure were glad to welcome Miss Scott, their teacher, back after a week's illness. She said that she was glad to get back to her boys. Some of them are only about 35 years old.

Joseph Lanlun, one of the most promising boys studying shorthand, has left the commercial grade to return to the day school.

Mr. Robert De Lorme, one of the boys in the business class, has left the night school. Mr. De Lorme was called from school on account of business for which he had to leave the city.

Mr. De Lorme was president of the boys' night school and was learning bookkeeping and would have finished the course this term. He said that he would come back to us next year to finish his course.

The boys at the night school have been having a hard time this week, as it was sick week on the calendar.

HARRY ALLEN PEARSON.

PRYOR BALL TEAM HAS CLEAN RECORD FOR THIS SEASON

The Women's Civic club of this ward met in the school building last Wednesday. We are so glad that they met at our school and we hope to have them often. Our yard needs crushed rock very badly, and we shall be glad if they can help us get it, for during rainy weather the yard is very muddy.

The third grade won the spelling banner for the past week. They hope to win it again soon.

The fifth grade has had a peculiar geography match. Each child asks as many questions as he can answer. The boys are ahead so far.

Several amusing occurrences have taken place in the first grades, one of which I shall tell you. One of the boys had been used to staying after school regularly, but one day he happened not to miss it, but, however, he stayed anyway. The teacher inquired, "Johnnie, why are you staying after school?" He replied, "I like to stay after school." "But why do you like to stay" asked the teacher. "I'm just getting used to it," he replied, laughingly. "Well, then, you can stay, but you must be very quiet and not say a word." This he did for a few minutes, and was "all smiles" when the time came to go home.

The fifth grade is going to bring flowers for a hospital Friday. They have not decided for whom they will take them.

Our basketball team played the boys of Fraser school last Thursday, and won with a score of 18 to 5. The boys have played two games and have won both with splendid scores. We are certainly proud of them. They are going to play some more match games soon with other schools.

The basketball team was delightfully entertained Tuesday night by one of the members, William Black. Also one of the boys on the team invited a girl. Those who were present were William Blake, Josie Aitken, Werren Davis, Willie Hart, Guy Quillin, Lavada Grainger, Arthur Greenoe, Mattie Boston, Guy Cantrell, Vera Simmers and Frank Terrell.

Peacock-Fleet Defeats Darlington High 7 to 6.

Peacock-Fleet was returned winner over the team from Darlington High School, of Rome, last Friday afternoon at Piedmont Park, the final score being 7 to 6.

The local team took an early lead and managed to keep it throughout the entire game. Peacock played the steadier game of the two, making three errors against five for the Rome boys.

Peacock has the best team that she has ever had in her history. The team has a splendid chance to cop the local prep rag.

Score by innings:

	R. H. E.
Rome	1 0 0 0 0 1 2 0 0—5 6 5

FRASER BALL TEAM DEFEATS FORMWALT FOR FIRST MEETING

The second grade A had the highest average in attendance this week, while the little first grade A won the banner for spelling with a grand average of 99.6 per cent. This makes the third time that the little first grade has won the banner. Every month the standing of the spelling league is given, and the following is the standing of the spelling teams up to date:

TEAMS—	No. of words.	Won.	Lost.
Second Grade B	12	7	5
First Grade A	12	3	9
First Grade B	12	2	10
Fifth Grade A	12	1	11
Fifth Grade B	12	0	12

We had a visit from the city attorney, Mr. Mayson, and his little daughter, in honor of the event we had a fire drill, and Mr. Mayson was pleased with the quickness and order of the Fraser pupils. Mr. Mayson was also entertained in the seventh grade, where he heard some real good music.

Tuesday afternoon the eighth grade had their recitations in the open air, and as the would-be orators gave their orations they could not help but think how beautiful a world this is. The trees were blooming, the sun was shining, and here and there a wagon driven by a mule would come trotting along lazily, for it was a hot day in old Dixie.

Our candy pulling was a huge success, and a great crowd turned out to do Fraser homage. Many old Fraser pupils were there and they were welcome. The basketball game was very interesting and exciting, and the spectators were thrilled with the playing of both sides—Fryor and Fraser.

After the game the candy was distributed, and everybody was busy pulling the sticky substance.

For the first time in the history of the league Formwalt was forced to bow to Fraser as their conqueror, and acknowledge their defeat. Our new pitcher, Fraser, pitched a grand game, and the Fraser lads were with him, giving him good support. Many Fraser pupils were at the game, and after the finish great cheers rent the air.

Formwalt, however, got out in good game. A team can't win forever, and Formwalt knew it. Fraser hasn't a win the pennant, Formwalt is our next choice. Fraser and Formwalt are not enemies, but friends.

FOURTH A AT TENTH SCHOOL RECEIVES 3 BANNERS LAST WEEK

It is fine not to be forgotten. A former classmate of the fourth A grade A sent them a beautiful plant recently.

The second grade B have been busy with its spring cleaning last week. The little tots have greatly enjoyed scrubbing desks.

The Blues are ahead this week in the spelling contest in the third grade A, having only nine misses to the Whites' eleven.

The third grade B is hoping that Wier Crankshaw, who is sick, will be able to return soon. This class is greatly interested in its work in drawing this month, which consists of the studies of Greek and Egyptian art.

This week the fourth A received the spelling attendance and deportment room banners. The boys have gotten up a baseball team.

Grace Martin, of the fourth A, has made a fine record. She has not been absent nor tardy since she started in the first grade four years ago.

In a spelling match held in the fifth grade, the girls won by fourteen. For the boys Robert Turman stood up last. The fifth grade won the attendance picture last week. They also tied for the best line banner and received the most stars from the janitor for neatness.

The attendance banner was won by the sixth grade last week. The class won this reward for having the neatest room last week. The sixth grade was taken on a new game which they will play on field day.

The seventh grade accepted a challenge from the seventh grade to play captain ball on field day.

Tenth met and defeated Bonnyview by a score of 17 to 6 last Thursday.

5th Grade Boys and Girls Receive Most Line Stars At Ashby Street School

The fifth grade boys and girls got the most stars for lines last week. They had a game of basketball for a prize.

Dr. Toepel and Miss Graves were here last Tuesday. Miss Graves had an excellent lesson from the fourth grade. The fifth grade had an enjoyable dancing exercise for Dr. Toepel.

Mr. Landrum paid us a visit last week. We enjoyed having him very much.

The second grade got the highest in attendance last week.

The first grade boys also got the most stars for lines last week. They had a reward.

We are having most of our examinations this week. Hope we will have many hundreds this month.

PRINCIPAL BUYS NEW SUITS FOR FORMWALT TEAM

Miss Harrison paid us a visit last week and gave each grammar grade a favorable report. The songs are very pretty and carry a spring-like air through each tune.

The eighth grade has succeeded in keeping the spelling banner for the past two weeks. We hope to keep up this record as long as possible.

While the seventh grade was deep in a history examination Tuesday, a beautiful moth flew across the room. They had forgotten that last fall one of the boys had brought a cocoon into the room. The children have decided to name it, but haven't found a suitable name yet.

The sixth and fifth grades tied this week in attendance.

The whole school is interested in their drawing, which mainly consists of the study of foreign countries and people.

Formwalt played off an extra game last Thursday, which had been called off on account of bad weather. They played against Peoples. The score was very satisfactory—11 to 4, in our favor. Friday they played against Walker, the result being our victory.

Mrs. Sams has ordered some beautiful new baseball suits for the team. This is indeed a reward for having won so many games, and the boys fully appreciate it.

To celebrate Mrs. Sams' birthday, which was April 2, the pupils in the grammar grades gave the library a book shower. There were 100 books accepted—and they are not "cast-offs," either.

CHRISTY HOLMES.

Prep Bingles and Bones

The race in the local prep league appears to was considerably warmer than most of the deposters could figure out just before the season opened.

At the present writing three teams in the league clearly have the call over the others when it comes to playing the game. Boys' High, Tech High and Peacock are the schools that will fight it out for the rag.

The team that is representing Peacock-Fleet on the diamond this year is without doubt the greatest that the Fourteenth street school has ever turned out. Peacock has yet to win her first pennant, in any branch of prep sport, but it would of been all for good if she succeeded in slipping one over on the other teams by winning out.

In Murphy and Lowry Peacock has one of the most formidable batteries in the league. Both men will owes close to making the all-prep pick, judging from their performances to date.

In Captain "Bin" Spurlock, Boys' High has one of the fastest and grittiest players that have ever graced a prep diamond with their presence. "Blue" never knows what defeat is, and if the other Purple and White players only take after their scrappy leader, Boys' High will be somewhere around when the Spalding company hands out the pennant to this year's champs.

"Buck" Weaver, who handles the slants of the Boys' High heavers, received a bad split hand in the Marist game on last Tuesday. Miss Graves is one of the best stickers on the club and his absence from the line-up will materially weaken the team. He hopes to be back in fighting harness in a few days.

The showing of "Babe" Fox who captained the Boys' High team to the pennant last year is mighty pleasing to those preps who know "Babe" last season. No better-liked player ever led the Purple and Whites than Fox. He is now at Georgia and according to those who have seen him work this spring he is the "find" of the season. Go to it "Babe," we are with you!

The hold that the Marist team has had on prep peanants in past years seems to have slipped somewhat this year, as the team has played in three contests, and have only succeeded in losing three. Shake a leg, Marist, and play the ball that made your name a synonym of the best four years ago.

"Goat" Holiday, who was captain of B. H. S. a few seasons past, is now coaching the Marist team. "Goat" is making a splendid success of the coaching job, with the result that Marist is coming to the front at an alarming pace. His nine will give the other teams a battle yet.

Notice has come to us of the fact that Riverside, Gordon, G. M. C. and Locust Grove are already doping among themselves as which one of them will win the prep championship of the state this year. Let it be known, however, that the teams around Atlanta might have a little to say on that subject before the season closes, as they have shown themselves to be perfectly capable of more than holding their own against these fellows. Boys' High recently defeated Locust Grove, 5 to 1.

GRADES AT CREW ST. SCHOOL WORK HARD TO CAPTURE PRIZE

Wednesday afternoon the sixth and eighth grades of Edgewood and Crew met on the basketball court at Crew. Quite an interesting game was played.

Last Friday Miss Milledge visited the primary grades, the fourth grade received excellent. This is the third time they have received excellent this year.

There is an exciting contest going on among the grades for a picture that our principal has offered to the grade having the highest average in attendance for a month. So far the sixth grade is ahead, but all the grades are working hard to overtake them.

HILL SCHOOL NINE WELL UP IN RACE FOR GRAMMAR RAG

The next meeting of the society will witness a bitter struggle for the decisions in debating and oratory contests. This is to be the last time the medals will be awarded as the words for one month. A spelling debate will be held in the near future.

The girls who have worn the medal for one month during the year are Thelma Dickens, Ethel Lefcoff, Maybelle Moss, Mary Jernigan, Agnes Cunningham and Leota Camp.

The boys are Edwin Williams, Roy Welborne, Frank Reed, Morris Solloway, J. C. Shelve and Isemel Lefcoff. The next meeting will decide what names shall be added to this list.

Dr. Toepel visited us recently and demonstrated that physical lessons are not as easily conducted as one would think they should be. The balancing exercises which he gave the eighth grade are a credit to his work.

When Miss Osgood and Miss Smith visited us, they transferred their foreign lands. Miss Osgood drew and explained the dress of people during the reign of Elizabeth.

Miss Harralson, also, has recently visited us. She spent much time preparing our eighth grade for the musical festival to be held soon. She gave good results.

The spelling contest between the grades continues to grow close.

When the councilmen visited our school they gave fine reports. They were pleased with the way things were conducted, as well as our up-to-date school rooms and equipments.

The graphophone now does double duty. The children of the fifth grade are learning a few more class of common melodies.

Now that the basketball season is asleep, baseball is in full swing. The suits were ordered and look to perfection. Many candidates turned out and an excellent team was the result.

The team has played eight games to date. Six of them were grammar league games. The remaining two were with Fair and Dishon schools, both being defeated. Of the league games, Walker was defeated 6 to 2; Battle Hill, 9 to 4; Fraser, 11 to 4, and Walker a second time, 7 to 1. Peoples defeated us, 5 to 4, and Formwalt, 5 to 5. We are now battling for first place.

PEOPLES SCHOOL.

Pupils Looking Forward to the May Festival.

We offer to Esther Nisbet, of second grade A, our deepest sympathy in her recent bereavement in the loss of her father.

Dan Roswell is being welcomed into our school. He was received with great joy by his many friends.

"The Dying Gladiator" is one of the features of our field day drill. It is very pretty and combines nicely with our other exercises.

Fred Reid, Robert Bennet, Charles Cason and Kathrine Rodehaver, of third grade A, have made perfect attendance the first and latter half of this school year.

Charles Conley, Harriet Lester, Howard McDade and James Carter stood head in the reading of second grade A last week.

Second grade B, among others, was given a "star" in music by Miss Milledge last week.

The sixth grade had a very delightful visit from Helen Sutton, of Decatur, one of their former class members.

A geography match was the center of much interest in the sixth grade last week. The girls took sides against the boys and were victorious.

Marjory Grace McCowan and Grace McCowan were the "choosers" in a recent spelling match of the seventh grade. Hallie Mae Cook was the "champion" speller of that grade. She was on Marjory Grace's side.

We enjoy reading our "current events" very much. Tuesday is generally our "current events" day, and we are always glad when it rolls around.

Our seventh grade has been asked to participate in the "May festival," which is to be held in the Auditorium. They have excellent voices and the class has been given "excellent" in music every time Miss Harralson has visited us.

Mr. J. W. Armistead, with two others of a committee, visited our school last week. The object of their visit was to inspect our school and see what improvements were needed. Seeing that our floors were bad, they are going to try to get us new ones.

At recess Tuesday the boys played a game of "volley ball" against the girls. At the close of the recreation period the score was 31 to 18, in favor of the boys.

A baseball game of much interest to us was the one that our team played against Grant Park. Our boys completely swamped the Grant Park team, the score being 20 to 2.

PREP LEAGUERS IN SECOND ROUND

The prep league played its second round of games on last Tuesday when three games were staged.

TUESDAY'S GAMES.

Boys' High Defeats Marist.

In a very close game of ball the Boys' High nine was returned winner over the Marist team by the score of 6 to 2. The contest was staged on the Marist athletic field.

Marist got away to a two-run lead in the first inning, but Boys' High tallied four in the second, which four proved to be enough to win the game.

Fridell and Warwick, who did the slab duty for High School, showed up in good fashion. Marist was unable to do anything with their benders after the initial inning.

Although Marist has dropped her first two games played, she has not yet given up hope of winning the rag. Marist has made a great improvement since her game with Stone Mountain, and will give the other teams trouble.

Score by innings:

Boys' High	0 0 4 0 0 0 0 0 x—4 7 4

Donald Fraser Loses.

Donald Fraser lost to G. M. A. by the score of 14 to 12. G. M. A. won out through her ability to hit the ball hard and through in ing advantage of the numerous errors chalked against the Donald Fraser boys.

The work of J. Schenck, of G. M. A., featured the contest. He rapped out three safe swats during the game. One of them was a triple, together a double and the other a single. All of his hits resulted in the scoring of many runs.

Score by innings:

	R. H. E.
Donald Fraser	2 2 0 0 0 0 0 8 0—12 9 9
G. M. A.	0 0 3 2 0 0 2 0 x—14 19 4

Batteries—Pollock and Burgess; Smith, Jones and Gato.

Tech High Wins First.

Tech High won the opening game of the season when Stone Mountain was downed by the score of 13 to 7. The game was played at Stone Mountain.

Tech High started off strong, running up their entire score in the first few rounds. They did not let their opponents tally until they were safely in the lead.

Parks, of Tech High, pitched great ball. He never let the Mountain boys hit him in the first few rounds, slowing up a trifle after his team-mates had annexed a commanding lead.

Myers, of Tech High, had a great day with the willow. Out of six trips to the pan he connected safely on four. Harland and Bedell also put up a nice article of ball for the winners.

Burch and Graham starred for the Stone Mountain bunch. Graham made a couple of hits.

Score by innings:

	R. H. E.
Stone Mountain	0 0 0 0 0 2 2 1 0—7 7 2

BASEBALL TEAM AT MARIST APPEARS GOOD

By Eugene Oberdorfer.

Marist college has entered a fast little baseball team to contest in the Prep league for the pennant. Coach "Goat" Holliday has rounded the team into good shape, and unless some serious mishap should occur, Marist will finish not far from the top. For twirlers the cadets are dependent upon Bratton, Brock and Wrigley, all of whom have been given trys-outs and have shown themselves to be worthy. Bratton, the big man in control in the aggregation, is holding down the catcher's position, and although new at the position, it is thought that he will make a very good man after getting the hang of the latter behind the bat.

Frank Harrison, captain of the team, is holding down the first bag with creditable success, while Percy Adair and Howard McCall are respectively playing at the second and third bases. George Manning, the active little shortstop, is always on the job and although small in stature is leading the team in batting with nearly .400. The outfield is very efficient and is composed of Liddell, Callaway and Jennings. The above is the line-up which has faced opponents in the foregoing games. Mott, Brisbane and Cherry are also to be seen in several games. Coach Holliday says that in a short time the team will be in fine working order and then it will be able to put in its real work.

The commandant, Major R. E. P. Schmidt, has expressed his gratification at the corps' work and wishes to announce to the friends and parents of the cadets that the public is cordially invited to attend the dress parade held each Friday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock.

The cadets at present are rejoicing in the holiday Easter holidays, beginning last Thursday and lasting until Monday.

Last Thursday the annual military mass was held and all in many of the battalion three and cadets assumed important roles.

A new social club has recently been formed at Marist, by the members of the Swagger club. Its membership has been limited to the non-commissioned officers of the battalion. Officers of the club were recently elected and before March it is hoped that some social outing can be planned by the club.

MANY CHILDREN ON HONOR ROLL AT BATTLE HILL SCHOOL

The little fourth graders played Peoples street team Monday and "beat 'em all to pieces," as one little boy said, with a score of 5 to 1.

The children on the honor roll this week in the second grades were Willie Smith, Lois Kenny, Lizzie Reed, William Jones, James McNair, Charles Chesnut, Alice Jones, Irene Mann, Ruth Ewin, Velma Peak, Oscar Sheats and Ed. Adair.

In the seventh grade the class is divided into sections of A and B in spelling. The children in the Class A are the ones who never miss and the remainder are in Class B.

The girls who are to contest for the medal this month are Pauline Dobbs and Lois Parks, and the boys are Herbert Sheats and Clark Landers.

We are all hanging together for Miss Graves, who is working for the Y. W. C. A. in The Journal contest. Quite a number has been brought.

We have had quite a siege of chicken-pox in the first and second grades, but the little "veterans" are returning one by one, much to the delight of their teacher.

Horace Wood, Clifford and Horace Nolan received a most cordial welcome to our school this week. We hope they will soon feel at home among us.

MARY ELLEN HORNSBY.

Atlanta Women to Hold Rally In Interest of Movement For Greater Hospital in Atlanta

By Jane Dooly.

The women of Atlanta, with that helpful spirit which has characterised them since Atlanta was Marthasville, the spirit which has been the strongest factor in the building of the schools, the churches and the hospitals, as they are today, will rally tomorrow to the movement for the "Greater Hospital" when they meet to confer with the citizens of Atlanta who are pushing the campaign for the greater hospital.

Whether or not women are given political freedom, whether or not they are given their representation on municipal boards, nothing will ever do away with their sense of appreciation that their first and essential duty is in the making of the home, and their mothering of those who need it whether in the home that is theirs, in the neighbor's home, or in the motherless home of the slums. No political rights, no decorations in public life, will alter the natural law that women are the ministering angels of humanity; the angels who temper the sorrows of the heart-sore; who smooth out the lines time makes on old foreheads; who give the drink of cold water to feverish lips; who lull to sleep the helpless babe.

God gifted them with peculiar attributes when He made of them the ministering angels of humanity and there is no time when they are more surely fulfilling their noblest obligation than when they reach out with the spirit of universal motherhood and give help where help is needed. It is then that they are the real helpmates in the great plan making for higher civilization.

Characteristic of Atlanta Women.

It was therefore characteristic of Atlanta women that Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin, president of Atlanta's federated organizations, expressed surprise "the women had not been asked before" when waited upon by the committee in charge of the greater hospital movement and asked if she and her co-workers would help.

"Certainly we will help. Tell us how." And she issued a call for the mass meeting Monday at 12 o'clock in the Woman's building on West Baker street. At this meeting the mayor, Dr. W. S. Elkin, Dr. Zimmerman, of the Grady hospital, and Mr. Robert L. Foreman, of the central committee, will speak, setting forth the plan of the campaign which must be organized, pushed and led to victory in four weeks' time.

A definite plan of work will be defined for the women, and the meeting will be brief, and to the point. Mrs. Lumpkin, in discussing the matter, stated:

"Through our ward clubs, and through additional committees, it is the purpose of the women I have been able to confer with, in the short notice given, to reach every woman in Atlanta in some way with the message that she must urge upon the men of her home to vote.

"We will post those not informed of the policy of the hospital movement, convincing them it will not be an extra burden of the citizen, but a help to him. We will conduct as best we can a kind of educational campaign as to the relation of the hospital to general health conditions, and meet through the women any objection that may exist in the minds of men voters as to practicability of the means decided upon as means to get the greater hospital. The indifferent voter we will try to reach through women, this one to be found just as often in the home of wealth and comfort as in the less fortunate home."

All Should Attend Meetings.

I hope that within the next two weeks every woman's organization in Atlanta will find it possible to hold a meeting to pass upon this greater hospital movement formally and to go on record as having indorsed it. I hope the affiliating organizations will work in the movement, for the great hospital is universal in spirit. It concerns women of individual interest, women patriotic, practical and artistic; women in organizations and out of them—every woman in all women.

Just what the Grady hospital now is; its disadvantages in lack of facilities, lack of service, lack of modern methods, will be fully explained by the campaign managers and it will be clearly, directly and conclusively shown what the hospital can be made, to be worthy of Atlanta and her civic ideals, to be worthy to carry on the name it bears as the South's greatest prophet, Henry Grady.

SURE ENOUGH GARDEN TIME NOW

Up to the Easter period is almost always a season of more or less unsettled weather, cold rains, freezes, frosts, etc., making gardening, especially with the more tender varieties of vegetables and flowers, hazardous.

Within a few days after Easter the weather "settles down," and spring is really here, making safe the planting out of every kind of vegetable or flower.

The weather may not be right for planting Monday or Tuesday, but now is certainly the time to buy whatever you may need in seeds, plants, bulbs, fertilizers, etc., so that when the right time comes you won't be delayed.

Clean Up, Paint Up and Plant

We have no interest in the sale of paint, but we believe thoroughly in this clean up and paint up campaign that is to make an "Atlanta Beautiful," not only for the grand opera visitors and the Shriners, but for ourselves, who have to look at Atlanta all the year.

Cleaning up is always in order. Fresh paint brightens, but the real beautifying comes from planting—the well seeded, even, green lawn; the beds of foliage or flowering plants, and the ferns on the porches or in windows. These are always beautifiers, and to beautify the city you, as well as others, must do your share.

This week our store will be especially attractive. In addition to the regular lines of seed, we offer

Tuberoses Double Excelsior Pearl Tuberoses, guaranteed blooming size bulbs. Deliciously fragrant. 15 cents per dozen. By mail, postpaid, 25 cents dozen.

Big Ferns A superb collection of Boston and Pierson ferns for immediate effect. Clean, healthy, large-size plants for the price. 60 cents, $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00, according to size.

Geraniums Strong, healthy plants of best French and American varieties. Finest shades and colors, adapted to southern plantings. 15 cents each; $1.50 per dozen.

Gladioli These beautiful flowering bulbs, with their wide range of shades and colors, become more popular each year. Fine bulbs, 20 cents dozen. By mail, 30 cents dozen.

Salvias Nothing on earth will give you such a brilliant color display in late summer and fall as a bed of our Salvia Splendens. Good healthy plants, 50 cents dozen.

Double Daily Delivery Service AT this time of year prompt delivery service is essential. NO MORE SUNDAY WORK ON CREMATORY PLANT

Mayor Woodward Declines to Grant Another Permit to Destructor Company.

Taking the position that the New York Destructor company has abused the courtesy extended by his office in the matter of allowing Sunday work to continue at the new crematory, Mayor Woodward yesterday declined to grant another permit to the company to work on the Sabbath. As the result of the refusal of the mayor to grant the company a permit the force of men at work building a new furnace ceased work at midnight.

According to representatives of the destructor company, three new furnaces are being installed in the plant. Two are complete and the company is anxious that the third be finished before the end of the week. According to Councilman Claude Ashley, who has visited the plant almost every day since the first of the year, the new design of furnaces will increase the efficiency of the plant.

Mayor Woodward says that he is tired of fooling with the company or its representatives. He says the efforts of the company to make the plant reach the state of perfection required by the contract is ludicrous.

"I don't believe the plant will ever operate successfully," said the mayor. "For the sake of Atlanta, however, I hope it will, but I still cling to the opinion that the plant is too complicated and too expensive to operate."

Mayor Woodward explained that his refusal to give the company a permit to continue work on Sunday was not caused by any desire on his part to antagonize the engineers, but is the result of complaints. He says that he is forced to refuse permits to other persons and he sees no reason why the destructor company cannot confine its work to week days like other contracting concerns.

Body Will Be Taken to Albany, Ga., This Morning for Interment.

Mrs. Cecilia Baynard Willingham, widow of the late Thomas H. Willingham, died Saturday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. J. Daniel, at 100 Forrest avenue. SAM LOEB BOUND OVER ON A CHARGE OF THEFT

M. Cohen, His Father-in-Law, Charged With Receiving Stolen Goods.

Sam Loeb, a moving picture operator, was bound over under a $1,000 bond by Recorder Pro Tem. Preston Saturday afternoon on the charge of stealing groceries from the wholesale house of F. E. Cox & Son, at 16-22 West Wall street.

M. Cohen, the father-in-law of Loeb, who runs a grocery store on Decatur street, was bound over under a $500 bond, charged with receiving stolen goods, the detectives claiming that he received the goods that Loeb would remove from the Wall street wholesale grocery house.

Two negroes, Will Edwards, a drayman, and Aaron Garner, the carekeeper of the Cox wholesale house, were also implicated in the chain of alleged robberies. Edwards was bound over for larceny under $100 bond, and Garner under a $500 bond.

Detectives claim that they have ended one of the biggest systems of stealing ever exposed in the city. They claim that Loeb has been paying the negro caretaker, Garner, to allow him to remove groceries from the warehouse during the early morning hours, before any of the other employees of the house would come down to work, and that he would have a drayman to deliver them to certain jobbers, and would then go and collect from these jobbers. This has been going on every morning for the last eighteen days, it is said.

Loeb and Cohen gave bond.

How to Overcome a Bad Constipation

There Is a Mild Laxative That Will Bring Safe and Pleasant Relief Over Night.

Mrs. N. PRANTZ.

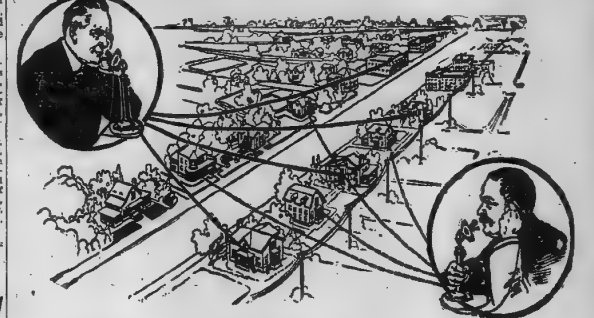
It is only natural that the simplest of ailments should be the most general, and so we have a whole nation suffering from constipation and indigestion, for they are closely allied. But common as constipation is many people do not seem to know they have it. They will complain of headache, drowsiness or biliousness, all unconscious of the cause of the trouble.

You should have a full and free movement at least once a day. If you pass a day you are constipated, and the result will be that you will catch a cold easily or have a more serious ailment. Cure the constipation and, forestall still graver trouble take a dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at night before retiring and by morning relief will come, without disturbance from sleep or any inconvenience.

Legions of people use it regularly in such emergencies, some of them formerly chronic invalids who had suffered from constipation all their lives. Mrs. N. Frantz, of 57 Eighth St., Salem, Ohio, took physics for years, and worst of all, without much avail. Finally, she began to take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and today she is no longer troubled and eats what she likes. Many others will tell you that they have tried most things recommended for this purpose, but have found Syrup Pepsin the only one always reliable. A bottle can be obtained at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar, the latter size being bought by families already familiar with its merits.

Syrup Pepsin is mild, pleasant-tasting and non-griping. Mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is effective in grownups. It is for everyone who suffers from any form of stomach, liver or bowel trouble, constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, etc. Its action will so delight you that you will forever avoid harsh cathartics, purgatives, pills and salts.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 411 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.



Unreachable Neighbors

TWO neighbors on the same street who are not connected with the same telephone system are practically far apart.

The telephone users in the community who can be reached by one are inaccessible to the other.

To reach them all means the inconvenience and added expense of two telephones.

A community gets the best service from one good telephone system which is linked up by toll and long distance lines with the rest of the country.

SOUTHERN BELL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

COUNTERFEIT COINS FOUND SCATTERED ALONG RIVER BANK

Sandersville, Ga., April 11.—(Special.) Deputy S. M. Moye, of the internal revenue department, returned this morning from Oconee, Ga., where he was summoned by the citizens there to investigate a lot of counterfeit dollars found along the right-of-way of the Central of Georgia near the Oconee river.

It is thought the counterfeiter who was on northbound Central No. 3, Friday morning, became scared, thinking he was being watched, entered the toilet with his satchel and emptied its contents from the train. The money was rolled up in ten-dollar packages, and as they hit the ties of the trestle over the river burst and fell in the stream.

About 75 of the dollars were picked up on the trestle and ground leading toward the trestle. The coins were made from a mold, the die presumably being recast from an impression of a 1906 dollar. The imitation was good, but the poor metal used quickly told anyone handling it that the coin was counterfeit. Deputy Moye reported the matter to the secret service department, and men are now on teh case.

Within a radius of 300 miles of Atlanta the resources are tremendous in minerals, farming, stock raising, lumbering---in fact, all of the pursuits of man, and these resources are not yet half developed.

Within 300 miles of Atlanta there are tremendous water powers. Some few have been developed, but there are many more to be developed, which means cheap power, and also means that this section will get many millions of investments in industries and manufacturing plants.

Atlanta is a Regional Bank City. A regional bank means that our farm lands are good collateral for loans. The REGIONAL BANK means the building up of many of the above mentioned resources.

Atlanta's bankers are bankers of the highest type, able to go into any financial centers and bringing to Atlanta any kind of financial aid when the occasion requires it.

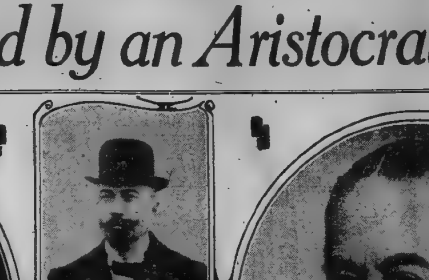
Russian Czar Is Bossed by an Aristocratic Reactionary

Prince Mestchersky, Who Exerted Enormous Influence Under Alexander III., But Who Quarrelled With the Present Czar, Is Restored to Power—Overthrew Late Premier and Put Present Prime Minister in Power.



PRINCE MESTCHERSKY. RUSSIAN MINISTER OF FINANCE, M. BARK. RUSSIAN PRIME MINISTER, M. GOREMYKIN.

Called "The Secret Knower" Because of His Access to All the Diplomatic and Court News—Prevented a War With Austria Hungary and Favors a German-Austrian-Russian Alliance. Has Enormous Power Over the Czar.

(Copyright, 1914, by Curtis Brown.)

St. Petersburg, April 11.—Nicholas II. has again fallen under the tutelage of his old mentor, Prince Mestchersky, "The Man Behind the Throne," the able, energetic, detested editor of the weekly Grashdanin, the "Secret Knower," who gives away all court and cabinet mysteries, and is able to give them away because the secret events are mostly his own creations. This reversion of Nicholas means Mestchersky's rehabilitation. For four years before 1911 the "Man Behind the Trons" was like Mr. Dooley, very much behind it; in fact, he was out in favor. Now he is back—making ministers and unmaking them; running an empire's foreign affairs, and soon he will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the day when he first pushed himself into a position from which he could influence Russia's fate.

As the chief of autocratists and reactionaries, Vladimir Petrovitsch Mestchersky ran nearly the whole reign of despotic Alexander III.; he has run the greater part of Nicholas' reign; and he may run the reign of Czar Alexei if that little gentleman ever comes to the throne. Russia has marvelled at this. They cannot find anything in Mestchersky's tediously-written, ill-printed periodical which should overthrow ministers. Yet here is Mestchersky throwing the able, honest Kokovtseff from the saddle; setting up the pro-German remykin in Kokovtseff's place; and preventing a great European war. To him primarily are due the new ministerial changes, and emphatically to him is due the fact that Russia did not fight Austria over Albania; and that she dared not check the triumphant Turks when they marched back into Adrianople. Alike in inner and outer politics Prince Vladimir Petrovitsch is the man.

Rose Without Influence.

Mestchersky's career is a good illustration of Chancellor Gortschakoff's saying that only autocracies allow men without influence to rise to power. Gortschakoff was mainly thinking of Turkish history. Mestchersky is just such a man. The Mestcherskys are an old family—their Finno-Tartar ancestors were sovereign rulers of the principality of Mestchersk—but in our days they are neither rich nor influential. Scores of Princes Mestchersky are scattered over the empire; some are small officials, and one, Prince Ilya, is a patrolman in Moscow. Vladimir Petrovitsch never had money or patronage; and he owes his present position as Nicholas II.'s mentor to his abilities alone.

Mestchersky was born in 1845. Before he was 30 he became the brains and pen of Czarevitsch Alexander, later Czar Alexander III. That was in the era known as "The Great Reforms," and Mestchersky pleased the absolutist heir by daving to oppose the then popular emancipation movement. In the next twenty years Mestchersky showed his talents by producing a dozen novels, which boldly and scarcely paint St. Petersburg high life. In the eighties Mestchersky was a much-read novelist, with a following outside Russia. His best known books are "Women of St. Petersburg," "One of Our Bismarcks," "The Nihilists," and the four-volume "Men of the Great World." None of Mestchersky's books show much literary talent, and his shameless way of writing offended many. But Mestchersky is not literary. He took himself seriously as a politician and minister-maker, and by confidence and zeal so riveted his yoke on the dull-witted Alexander III. that with the exception of Synod Procurer Constantine Pobiedonostoff he had no equal in power.

Mestchersky has all along played the role of uncompromising reactionary. His reactionary influence on politics was exerted through his friendship with czars; and his reactionary influence on the public was exerted through the "Grashdanin," which was founded in 1872 with capital supplied by Czarevitsch Alexander. The "Grazhdanin" always showed such perfect knowledge of court and cabinet actions that it gained Mestchersky his soubriquet "tsinovedi"—"the secret knower." The progressive majority does not buy or read The Grashdanin, which is regarded as mere incendiarism, but those who want to know the inner history of Russian affairs, the latest intrigues, the future prospects, these all buy it. Today The Grashdanin is the least read but the most quoted paper in the empire.

Period of Quarrel.

At one time Mestchersky had the privilege of visiting Alexander III. whenever he pleased. Then came a period of quarrel. The Grashdanin published an ostensibly reactionary article of the kind which pleased Alexander immensely, but an enemy pointed out that the first letters of every word spelled out a violent lampoon on the czar as "Alexander the Great-Little." The czar rejected Mestchersky's explanation that he had been imposed on by an unknown contributor. Later the

The Political Rights of Women

MRS. MARY L. McLENDON, Editor

President Georgia Woman's Suffrage Association

Good News from Massachusetts.

Last week the Massachusetts house of representatives voted 168 to 39 in favor of the woman suffrage amendment to the state constitution, which had already passed the senate, 34 to 8. This is the first time in the history of the Bay State that a legislature has carried this measure. According to the constitution of that ancient state, both houses must adopt it again next year, and then it will go to the people in November, 1915. The debate in the house lasted two hours. Nine democrats broke their party platform and voted against the resolution and the progressives voted as a unit for it. In New York's legislature does the square thing by the women and then Massachusetts' legislature follows suit, there is little doubt in our minds that the men of ancient Georgia will begin to consider seriously the advisability of enfranchising us, as they did the negro man in 1869

Letter from the National President.

"New York, April 1, 1914.

"My Dear Mrs. McLendon: Mrs. Stoner has written asking me if I could go to two or three places in Georgia this spring. On April 21 I am booked for Italy to speak at a very important meeting in Rome, and I shall not be back in this country until June 1. I regret, therefore, that I shall not be able to make a tour of the south this spring. I am planning to take a tour of about three months throughout the south next winter and I will take in Georgia, of course, if you want me to. But I cannot go to little towns, to little meetings and communities of that kind. I have done that work for thirty years and more and it must now be left to other people and I must save my time and strength for large gatherings of people. So, after a succession of small meetings have been held in small towns, then we could have a big convention in the state and I would go and speak there. I would be perfectly willing to do this in several counties of Georgia, but I cannot go to the little meetings and little towns, because my time is too valuable just now to be used up in that way, when others can do that kind of work just as well as I can.

"I shall be glad to be of any service I can for you in Georgia, and am grateful to you for your loyalty to the National association and the national work. I hope that Georgia will keep aloof from the union in Washington, whose aim is to attack the democratic party in revenge for the fact that they have not received the suffrage amendment through congress this winter. It is such folly to go sooth attacking the democratic party. Who do they expect will give us suffrage in the south if democrats do not? This going around with threats and clubs is so contrary to the whole spirit of the National association that I do not see how any society auxiliary to the National can have anything to do with it. With sincere regards and best wishes forward to a pleasant visit with you next year, I am,

"Faithfully yours,

"ANNA HOWARD SHAW."

"30½ Fifth Ave."

It gives me great pleasure to publish this letter of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Woman Suffrage association, because I was instrumental in asking her to come to Georgia and speak in many places this year, and she refused for the very reasons set forth in the above letter. Acting on this, the Georgia Woman Suffrage association expects to have Mrs. Medill McCormick, Mrs. Antoinette Funk, Helen Gardener and Kate Gordon very soon to tour the state in the interest of woman suffrage. Rome, Macon, Atlanta, Decatur and perhaps Athens and Augusta and Columbus will desire the honors of entertaining these splendid women who are ready to do the work Dr. Shaw, Lucy Stone, Susan B. Anthony and many other pioneers have been doing since 1848, when the first suffrage convention was held in Seneca Falls, N. Y.

Mrs. Medill McCormick is the chairman of the congressional committee of the National Woman's Suffrage association. This is the only one recognized by that great body. Her illuminating statements from time to time in regard to the work in the congress as to the amendment to the constitution of the United States, which was defeated by a vote of 35 for it against 34 opposed, and requiring a two-thirds vote to carry, therefore losing out for the time being, are interesting. But it is said "women never know when they are beaten."

Mrs. McCormick then succeeded in getting Senator Shafroth to introduce the following bill:

"Whenever any number of legal voters of any state, to a number exceeding 5 percentum of the number of legal voters at the last preceding general election held in such state, shall petition for the submission to the legal voters of said state, such question shall be so submitted, and if, upon such submission, a majority of the legal voters of the state voting on the question shall vote in favor of granting to women such equal rights the same shall thereupon be deemed established, anything in the constitution or laws of such state to the contrary notwithstanding."

Mrs. McCormick explains in this way:

1. Eight per cent of the voters of a state may bring suffrage up for the consideration of the voters at an election.

2. Such a petition may be filed at any time, and may be filed not only once, but indefinitely until suffrage is won.

3. A majority of those voting on the question is sufficient to carry suffrage.

4. This amendment, like any other if passed by congress, would have to be ratified by thirty-six states. I wish I had space to quote here what Mrs. McCormick and her able committee consider would be the effect of the amendment if passed by congress, and the effect of said amendment if ratified by the states; the advantages of its passage to suffragists in nonsuffrage states, and why states would ratify this more willingly than to pass suffrage amendments. Also why congress will pass the Susan B. Anthony amendment, which our old-timers have been working for for twenty-five years and more; but space in this department forbids. Suffice it to remark that this brainy woman, Mrs. Medill McCormick, is one of the very best of the National's speakers and officers. She makes facts and figures plain to every one and otherwise quite an orator. We shall be glad to greet her in Georgia as one of the "big four to tour the south"

Miss Kate Gordon, of New Orleans, is president of the Louisiana Woman's Suffrage association, and is a most eloquent and convincing speaker. For several years she was corresponding secretary of the National American Suffrage association. She is also president of the Southern States Woman's Suffrage conference, which has "states rights" for its slogan.

She has no interested Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who is a southerner, that sent Miss Gordon $1,000 to be used in her discretion in developing the great work which you and your associates have inaugurated, I assure you that I shall follow your campaign with the deepest interest." Miss Gordon will use this money in trying to get a suffrage plank in the platforms of the democratic party in the southern states.

When Mrs. Antoinette Funk, a brilliant lawyer of Chicago, Ill., spoke at the convention of the National in 1913, held in Washington, D. C., everybody knew her worth, for it is no trouble for anyone to understand what she says. So likewise it is with Mrs. Helen Gardener, of Washington, D. C., the writer of many books, who speaks as well as she writes. She will make a great in store when those four great women come.

Suffrage Status.

To my many inquiring friends I dedicate this suffrage status instead of replying to many letters and postals.

Full suffrage for women:

Will Not Parade.

Atlanta suffragists have arrived at the conclusion that a spectacular demonstration on the second day of May will not be practicable this year. Perhaps conditions will be more favorable next year. There will be a suffrage rally at the state capitol at 11 o'clock on that day, and Hon. L. L. Knight, the silver-tongued orator, will deliver an address in favor of equal suffrage for women, unless he is called away from the city at that date. Mr. Knight learned to respect and honor Susan B. Anthony and her splendid band of followers when the National American Woman Suffrage association met in the Opera House, February, 1895, and he has been soundly converted to belief in the right, justice and expediency of giving the ballot to women, as it has been to the negro man.

Nashville or Chattanooga—Which?

Miss Sarah Barnwell Elliott, president of the Tennessee Woman Suffrage association, is having much difficulty to decide whether Nashville or Chattanooga shall have the honor of entertaining the next convention of the National American Woman Suffrage association, to be held in 1914. Time was when woman's suffragists were not so well sought after. "Nothing succeeds like success," and our cause goes marching on

Passover and World's Freedom

By Rabbi Julius T. Loeb

"Even though we be, all of us, wise, intelligent, old and well-learned, it is still incumbent upon us to tell of the departure from Egypt" (From the Haggadah of the Seder-Night).

The world today is so prone to call itself old in wisdom, all-important in experience and superior by its glorious achievements to all that preceded it. Yet the thought which brings us back to the event of the Exodus of thirty-odd centuries ago, and which is sustained by Israel's continued existence as a living testimony thereof in all succeeding ages, is of momentous concern now as in all times past.

For never was there another such event in human history, which by its wonderful manifestation and far-reaching consequences, has become the ever-shining and increasing miracle of the world.

There is not a more precious boon in human existence than freedom. None of the glories of past ages; none of the modern miracles and attainments are accounted for aught beside this heavenly blessing which first came to the world with the liberation of Israel from Egyptian bondage. And let the poets sing sweet freedom's song, and the hills resound with praise to the heroes of many ages; yet it is the Passover event which sounded the keynote for all human liberty and right.

It is this glorious event which gave rise to the spiritually realising faculties within man and the gradually developing forces tending to the perfection of the social order among nations and states. It is this event with its exhibition of a series of evil plagues that is always to serve as solemn warning of heavenly retribution to tyrants and despots in all their hideous forms. And it is this event which inspires heroes and martyrs of every class and age, to stand for the right against all odds, in the face of all the difficulties of dissenting conditions and creeds

Most Important Above All.

What is important above all else in the history of the Passover event is the fact that "the gods of the Egyptians were smitten." And it is thus ever since that the gods of the various conceptions and creeds, the idols of the many devices and contrivances for self-aggrandizement and self-deification must fall before the Lord of eternal justice and right.

In Israel's liberation from Egyptian bondage the first formation of Independence was given to the world; while in the promulgation of the Law of Sinai that followed it, a constitution was formed for all classes and ages.

The rule of human equality was then permanently established. "One law and one ordinance for stranger and native born" was the principle of all-embracing righteousness taught by the great leader Moses, and pre-ordained to make the whole world akin.

From amidst the impenetrable and thick darkness of superstition, paganism and cruel servitude, Hebraism then appeared as the nucleus for the world's best thought and enlightenment; as the "middle bar" in the entire construction of civilised society; as the most potent instrumentality in the gradual process and progress of humanity.

First Free Commonwealth.

The first free commonwealth was then prescribed in history. And when some thirteen centuries later a new era arose from amidst the confusing chaos of Grecian philosophies, conflicting theories and multiplied creeds, it was Hebraism that prevailed. The gods of the nation, were smitten. The Pantheon was stripped of its glories and Jupiter fell without ever rising again.

For when Rome conquered Judea, it was the spirit of Judea that vanquished and prevailed to this very day.

A reaction set in; vestiges of idolatry and human oppression clung to mankind through the lull of darkness in medieval ages; banishment, inquisitions and tortures came to be the fate of the people redeemed from Egypt, the "agents of freedom to the world." As of all who ventured the word and the thought of Godly freedom. This pitiful condition of affairs continued until the light broke forth again, when Martin Luther, in the earlier part of the sixteenth century, caught an inspiration from the sparks of Jewish thought; when instructed by Jewish men of learning in the Hebrew Bible and literature, he had brought on the famous Reformation; the effect of which was re-echoed with redoubled force in England during the early part of the following (seventeenth) century. There, at the head of the Puritans, a savior appeared in the person of the pious and noble Oliver Cromwell, endeavoring to copy the example of the Bible-heroes, embracing the cause of religious freedom and of the highest civil liberty and right. The upheaval in England with the execution of Charles I. then tended as warning to tyrants and despots of every conceivable form, of every land and state, and in all time to come. In the powerful transformation that ensued, religion, more than ordinary politics, played its high role. The Puritans were resolved by their life's conduct to portray the pure, plain virtues of the Old Testament. "The sobriquet 'Puritans' was thus ironically given them).

The clarion-call of Israel's redemption formed the motive power for the establishment, by the sturdy pioneers of the American shores, of a government of freedom, peace and equality before God.

On the Liberty Bell.

The cause of the American revolution in 1776 was likewise affected by God-sent George Washington and the galaxy of his valiant compatriots. A fulfillment of this same principle of liberty and right, first begun by Israel at Ramsees and Sinai. "And ye shall proclaim liberty throughout the land unto all the inhabitants thereof," engraved upon the Liberty Bell at Independence Hall, is a passage from the Hebrew Bible.

And thus, in the evolution of time, in every struggle for liberty and right, it is the verification of this ideal thought for the Departure of Israel from Egypt and the hand of the miraculous providence preeminently displayed in the affairs of man and nations in vindication of eternal justice.

Israel is still here today, still suffering and pleading the cause of the oppressed everywhere. There is still a battle to be waged for liberty and right.

Yet, from amidst the cry of anguish by the oppressed even today, we hear of noble philanthropists, of world benefactors, social reformers. Henry George theorists, a world's peace conference—and we feel the effects of freedom's reign; we behold the unmistakable signs of a realisation of Israel's golden hope for a new era of universal happiness and peace.

Everything Ready for Baseball Opening

Merchants Behind Movement to Land Attendance Prize

By Dick Jemison.

That's a pretty long slogan, but it is a good one to remember. But it is strictly up to every one to climb aboard the old band wagon and stay aboard until 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, April 14.

Concerted effort on the part of the officials of the baseball club, city officials, merchants, chamber of commerce, ad men, other civic organizations and last, but not least, the press, is needed to make that slogan stick.

Atlanta's superiority is being assailed on all sides. To be exact, from seven different directions. There are seven other cities in the south that challenge Atlanta's right to the title, "the best baseball town in the south."

Everyone Aroused.

When such a condition arises, there can only be one answer. "Atlanta Always Ahead" is one of the best slogans the city has ever boasted of, and this slogan is going to be flaunted in the faces of the "show me" towns that doubt.

We admire the pluck of the other cities in endeavoring to show Atlanta up. We admire them just about the same way as we admire a small boy for sticking his hand into a fire to see whether it would burn or not.

They've got a splendid quality of stick-to-it-iveness. We admire them for that. But when it gets them nowheres, why keep bucking a stone wall?

Don't take all this self-flattery for its face value, however. There is plenty of work to be done and done not only quickly, but thoroughly. If Atlanta is going to pull across that attendance prize for the opening day again this season, everyone must work together and work hard.

Saturday Handicap.

There is a condition that must be met this season that did not arise in 1912. The teams that open the season away from home this year will on their own opening day be favored with a Saturday opening.

These four cities are Mobile, New Orleans, Memphis and Nashville. It is strictly up to Atlanta to show these four that her attendance on a Tuesday can surpass their attendance on a Saturday.

Can she do it? Certainly she can. But every one must put their shoulder to the wheel pushing and pulling and with all their might.

The cities that open on the same day as Atlanta are Chattanooga, Birmingham and Montgomery. Of these three Birmingham is the city that the Crackers must defeat.

The Barons are stinging over the defeat handed them by the Gate City of the south last season and they have hurled the gauntlet right in the face of the Atlanta baseball association. The defi was so whole-hearted that the local association could not afford to overlook it.

The result of telling a few friends of Birmingham's cavilings has been evidenced by the work that has been done during the past few days and the interest that is being manifested on all sides.

Chamber of Commerce.

The first organization to take cognisance of it was the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. They put their splendid organisation behind the move to keep the trophy in Atlanta again this season.

Saturday the 1,500 members of the chamber of commerce received the following postal card, signed by the president and industrial secretary of the local chamber:

"Keep Atlanta Always Ahead.—Last year we won the Southern league baseball pennant and the record for attendance. The first game of the coming season will be played Tuesday, April 14, Atlanta v. Nashville, game called at 3.15 o'clock. You are urged to be on hand. Employers are urged to close their business and let their employees attend the game. Let's open the season with a record-breaking attendance and show our hearty support of the Atlanta team. Arrange your business to close up, go out and root for Atlanta. (Signed) Moll B. Wilkinson, President. W. H. Leahy, Industrial Secretary. Atlanta Chamber of Commerce."

The merchants of the city are fast responding to this and other appeals and every hour brings advice to the local baseball association that this or that store is going to close up for the afternoon Tuesday.

Mayor and Holiday.

Mayor James G. Woodward was the next to get into line on the opening day proposition. The mayor states that he is going to issue a proclamation ordering a half holiday Tuesday. All that remains to be done is for the formal issuance of same. Every one considers it as good as done and the issuance just a formality.

"Uncle Jim" will be on hand at the game as usual and will greet the first ball in his accustomed breezy manner.

The city hall force, every one of them dyed in the wool fans, will be on hand in a body rooting for Bill Smith and his brave boys again.

Next to get in line was the Ad Men's club, those hustlers, who never know when they are licked. They are contemplating planning a monster parade on the afternoon of the game.

At their luncheon held Thursday afternoon at the Ansley the following committee was appointed to have charge of their plans for the day: Julian Boehm, chairman; J. C. Stanford, George Fauss, Clark Howell and Hoyt.

This committee is interviewing ad men throughout the city and many others. They are asking every one to close for the afternoon and every one of their efforts thus far have been such that the business houses that are on in Tuesday afternoon will be in the minority.

Ad Men's Parade.

The ad men are planning a monster street parade Tuesday afternoon. They have instructed every member of the Ad Men's club that owns an automobile or can beg, borrow or steal one to meet them at Johnson-Gewinner's store on Peachtree at 1.30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

For those who do not own automobiles, the ad men have secured from various sources seven big automobile trucks, with a carrying capacity of 50 to 75 persons each.

Their route first served for these trucks. Any fan that wants to get into this parade and ride to the ball park for 'nuff do so by joining them at the time and place specified.

Harry Schlesinger's "High Fly" cafe too, made like a baseball, a delightful reminder will be thrown around during the parade. The ad men have purchased several thousand of these candy balls and the streets will be covered with them during the parade.

Big ad mfg are having banners and streamers printed to be used during the parade on the trucks, autos and in the hands of the yelling fanatics. There will also be banners across the streets down town advising and keeping the fans reminded of the opening game.

From Other Training Camps Come Stories of Both Joy and Sorrow

Everything is in readiness for the grand opening of the Southern league's fourteenth annual season next Tuesday afternoon.

From the different training camps come reports of gladness in some instances, sorrow in others, hopefulness in still others and chagrin in still others.

Some of the reports written by The Constitution's correspondents in the other cities pick their teams to win the pennant. Others do not believe that their club could win in a Class D league.

But we will not go into the merits of any of the teams. We let the fellows right on the ground tell the readers of The Constitution's sporting page what they think of their prospects.

Pels' Opening Line-Up.

Starr, second base.
Hendryx, right field.
Northern, right field.
Lindsay, third base.
Knaupp, shortstop.
Adams, catcher.
Bagby, pitcher.

BY SAM L. GILBERT,
Sporting Editor New Orleans Picayune.

New Orleans, April 11.—(Special.)—Above is the batting order and line-up of the Pelicans when they hook up with the Montgomery Billikens in the inaugural games of the season, April 14, at Montgomery.

Manager Johnny Dobbs should be included on the coaching lines, but we should worry like a baseball and get busted if the classy outfit mentioned above doesn't wipe up the diamond with Bob Gilks' fellows, for they're about the best that ever represented our fair city at the start of any pennant race, taking them from any angle.

During the exhibition series with the Cleveland and Detroit Americans and the Cincinnati and New York Nationals, the local team showed steadily increasing strength in batting and fielding, and in team work. The pitching staff, including Jim Bagby, Finis Wilson, Dixie Walker, Rube Evans, Red Stiles and Lake Ulavenich, has shown strong-er even than expected. Besides these hustlers, Dobbs will have Jim Gudger, Harry McIntyre, Orbe Wooster and Ashby Feeley to draw from.

Jack Adams and Neal Bob Higgins are considered two of the best catchers in the league and there is also Dick Smith in reserve. Behind the bat New Orleans will present a stronger front than any other club this season according to latest dope.

Infield Sweet.

Dobbs infield is a sweet one, although its composition is still a matter of doubt for April 14. Bluhm, the Toledo speed merchant, has just joined the Pels upon the order of Magnate Charles Somers, of the Cleveland Naps, and is likely to keep Harry Sylvester out of the first base position owing to Bluhm's superb fielding abilit

Bluhm, be it known, is a sensational performer on the defensive. Last season was his second as a professional, he broke in in 1912 on the Duluth [illegible] and though he fields .981 in 132 games, he batted only .228. If he could hit a little better, Bluhm would be in the majors, believe us. Sylvester, last season and the one preceding batted around over .300, but .317 doesn't compare with Harry as a fielder.

Captain Charlie Starr, of course is sure of his job at second, and old Bill Lindsay has third base cinched. Walter Barbare, the North Carolina product, subbed for Cotton Knaupp as shortston during the series with the Giants, and did so well that Knaupp's place is uncertain. Knaupp, you know, had the misfortune to wrench one ankle badly while sliding to a base during a practice game recently, and hasn't yet been able to get back into harness.

Outfield Strong.

The outfield, composed of Otto Burns, former Toledo Mud Hen, to left; Tim Hendryx, in center, and Hub Northern, in right, appears very strong. Big John Cochran, who batted .339 for the Rome, Ga., club, in the Appalachian league, last season, will be disposed of, according to reports, because of his fielding weakness.

All in all, the Pelicans step up as a most formidable outfit. Manager Dobbs has been given a free rein by the local club and believes that with the talent on hand he will be able to break front and keep close to the top throughout. It will be indeed a surprising thing if New Orleans wins the championship this season, but the Atlanta Crackers, after finishing last two years ago, made a wonderful record in the succeeding seasons, when more able handled and better equipped with sterling players.

Prospects are that Manager Dobbs will get practically all of his present squad until May 1.

President A. J. Heineman said today, "The New Orleans team this season will be one of the best and highest priced aggregations ever gotten together in the south. We will keep it within the salary limit just as long as the others, for we believe that it's the best thing for the league to have all the clubs keep within certain bounds. But, remember this, we're not going to stand idly by and see other clubs violate the salary limit and put will a two-dollar team in the field without being called down about it. And just as soon as we are convinced that the salary limit is being disregarded without a penalty being inflicted, we intend to go as far as anyone in this respect. Our patrons demand a winning ball

NASHVILLE VOLS CHANGING DAILY

Vols' Opening Line-Up.

Hemingway, third base.
Callahan, center field.
Sloan, right field.
Williams, second base.
Schwartz, first base.
Lindsay, shortstop.
Smith, catcher.
More, pitcher.

By PAUL TREANOR.

Nashville, Tenn., April 11.—(Special.)—This is the line-Up that Manager Bill Schwartz, of the Nashville team, will send into action against the Crackers at Ponce de Leon park Tuesday afternoon in the opening game of the season.

Despite the fact that The Dell has been overflowed for the past two weeks, and the Vanderbilt grounds were practically occupied by the Commodores, the Vols have managed to whip themselves around in shape and the outlook is good for one of the fastest aggregations ever representing Nashville in the Kavanaugh circuit.

The majority of the Vol hopefuls are ex-Browns, donations from Manager Branch Rickey, of the St. Louis American league contingent. While a few of them will feel the ax within the ensuing two weeks, the majority of the Rickeys are destined to stick, since they have been coming through with that variety of class which makes big leaguers.

Manager Schwartz is anxious to lead off with one of his true and tried slabsters, since he is aware that getting the jump at the first of the season is what makes a ball club fight.

Williams of Second.

With the signing of Otto Williams, who pastimed around the keystone in the Southern league during the yellow fever scare at New Orleans, the Vol infield has been completed, temporarily at least.

Manager Bill is going to play the initial cushion for a while at least and may continue throughout the season if his wounded leg holds out. But if Brooklyn decides to turn Lawrence Kraft loo.. the hard hitting infielder will be placed on the corner bag.

With the signing of Williams, Bert King, who was with Chattanooga last season as an outfielder, has been shifted to left field. Bert was pastiming

Southern League Starts Its 14th Season Tuesday

Prospects Point to a Good Season—Longer Schedule. Many Changes Made in Personnel of Teams.

By Dick Jemison.

The fourteenth annual season of the Southern Association of Professional Baseball Clubs, known more generally as the Southern league, will begin Tuesday, April 14, with better prospects, better play and a more interesting race than ever before in the history of the game in this section.

The opening games are scheduled as follows.

Nashville in Atlanta.
Memphis in Chattanooga.
Mobile in Birmingham.
New Orleans in Montgomery.

The series of games listed above will be four-game series and then the home teams in each instance hit the road, the visiting teams in the first series being the home teams in the second.

As there is a large fight on between all the cities for the opening attendance record, by next Sunday the winner can be announced.

The visiting teams Tuesday have all the advantage in the opening day attendance proposition, as they will open at home on a Saturday. Thus it will be seen that the teams opening on a Tuesday will have to hustle more than ever to bring home the prize.

Former Winners.

1901—Nashville.
1902—Nashville.
1903—Memphis.
1904—Memphis.
1905—New Orleans.
1906—Birmingham
1907—Atlanta.
1908—Nashville.
1909—Atlanta.
1910—New Orleans
1911—New Orleans
1912—Birmingham.
1913—Atlanta.
1914—[illegible]

It will be seen from this list that Atlanta, New Orleans and Nashville have won the Southern league pen. three times. Bill Smith is the only pennant winner manager of the league with three of them to his credit. Charley Frank, if he was still in the league, would have the honor, with one at Memphis and three at New Orleans

Managerial Changes.

There have been several changes in the managerial roster of the teams during the coming campaign. Only three of last year's managers retain their berths.

Billy Smith at Atlanta, Bill Schwartz at Nashville and Carleton Molesworth at Birmingham are the three old managers to retain their berths.

Johnny Dobbs, who managed Montgomery last season will be seen at New Orleans, succeeding Charley Frank, the veteran of the league, who returned this winter and is now acting as southern representative of the Cleveland club and holds the position of second vice president of the Southern league.

Bobby Gilks, former Shreveport manager in the Southern league and more recently scout for the Cleveland Americans, has taken Johnny Dobbs' place at Montgomery.

Mike Finn, manager of the Mobile Gulls, runner-up to the Crackers last season, will manage the Memphis Turtles this season, succeeding Bill Bernhard, resigned.

Briscoe Lord, former New Orleans player and for several seasons in the big show, has been appointed to succeed Finn at Mobile.

Harry Moore, McCormick, famous pinch hitter of the New York Giants, is the new manager of the Chattanooga Lookouts, succeeding Horndel. ("Kid") Elberfeld, who is now with the Brooklyn Nationals.

Longer Schedule.

For the first time in its history, the Southern league has adopted a longer playing schedule. 154 games will be tried this season instead of the usual 140.

There will be several records that the players of the league can aspire to this season.

First, there is the run getting record of 1117 runs established by Tommy Long, of the Atlanta club. This is the first time that any player has ever passed the century mark in runs scored in the Southern league.

Second, Harry Welchonce, also the leading batter of the league during the past two seasons, hung up a hit mark for a season registering 194 safe blows, more than any batter has been able to register before.

Clayton Perry, of the Nashville Volunteers, now with the Mobile Gulls, established a consecutive hit mark of eleven safeties in eleven times at the plate before he missed.

With fourteen days of games this season, the players will have ample opportunity to bang away at these records.

Some Prizes.

For the leading batter of the Southern league during the coming campaign, Honey Boy Evans, the minstrel man, has announced that he will give a handsome diamond studded medal that he will give to the player who is adjudged the most valuable man to his team. Honey Boy Evans owns paper mos, one in each city in the circuit.

For this last prize, the official scorers in the eight cities will be chosen to act as judges and award the prize. It is similar to the Chalmers-trophy idea in the big leagues.

The ball signs on all the ball parks will not be working during the coming campaign. Any one can sign, advertising Rose's cigars is up. A player will get a box of cigars when he hits this sign.

Leading Batters.

The leading batters of the league since its opening in 1901, are as follows:

1901—Holsman, Shreveport, .392.
1902—Hill Nashville, .416.
1903—C. Smith, New Orleans, .354.
1904—Gilbert, Little Rock, .327.
1906—S Smith Atlanta, .356.
1907—Meek, Birmingham, .340.
1908—Speaker, Little Rock, .359.
1909—Daubert, Memphis, .344.
1910—Jackson, New Orleans, .336.
1911—Pratt, Montgomery, .316.
1912—Welchonce, Nashville, .324.
1913—Welchonce, Atlanta, .358.

Base Running.

Birmingham holds a monopoly on the leading base runners of the league, one of her players leading in stealing bases for the past five seasons. Bob Berryhill leading in 1908 with 67 stolen bases.

The league stolen base mark is held by Jimmy Johnston, now of the Chicago White Sox, made in 1912, when he pur-loined 87 sacks.

Pels' Best Average.

New Orleans has the best average for the thirteen seasons that the league has been running, the Pelicans having won 923 games and lost 757, a

An Editorial from The Atlanta Constitution:

"Mr. Ansley is a man who does not go off half-cocked. He has only to point to what he has done in the phenomenal Ansley Park and Forsyth street projects to submit convincing testimony of his qualifications as a practical prophet. In every enterprise he has attempted he has proven to be an advance agent of expansion and of progress. His name is synonymous with success."

A Clipping from Atlanta Georgian About Oglethorpe University

The topographical survey is now under progress and will soon be submitted to the landscape artists who are to construct the most beautiful grounds possessed by any southern educational institution.

In the Social Whirl

By Isma Dooly

IN connection with the beautiful portrait of Mrs. Richard Johnston there are several incidents of unique interest. The artist of the portrait is Madame Vallet-Bisson, who last month was decorated by the government of France with the Red Cross of the Legion of Honor, this honor to her following the recent exhibition of a group of portraits by her which critics declare to be masterpieces in the records of French art. She is the third eminent woman decorated by the French government this year, the other two being that great exponent of dramatic art, Sara Bernhardt, and Madame Adolph Brisson, distinguished as one of the most powerful of French journalists.

Like Madame Brisson, Madame Vallet-Bisson is co-head of one of the most famous of French studios, her husband an artist of international note, and a chevalier of the Legion of Honor. While Mr. Vallet-Bisson paints almost exclusively in oils, Madame Bisson is famed as a pastellist, as well as an artist in oils. She is as well known among the art lovers of Britain as among those of the United States, her visit here several years ago bringing to her several subjects which have added to the fame of her studio.

Though she will not acknowledge it herself, Mrs. Johnston was invited by the French artist to sit for the portrait, and another one of Mrs. Johnston similar to the one which hangs in her drawing room here hangs in the studio of the famous French artist and was one of those which brought to the latter the decration of the Legion of Honor.

ATTRACTED BY HER TYPE OF BEAUTY.

Madame Vallet-Bisson was in New York several years ago, and there saw Mrs. Johnston. She was struck by her patrician type of beauty; the classic outline of her features and a certain individuality, which the French artist declared was one rare in any country.

She invited Mrs. Johnston to sit with her, and the result was not one, but two beautiful portraits, the one photographed and published today selected by Mrs. Johnston's family.

She was a Miss Isabel Thomas, of Athens, and resided in Macon until two years ago, when her mother, Mrs. W. W. Thomas, became an admired and popular hostess in Atlanta's social world.

Mrs. Johnston will have with her during opera week her mother-in-law, Mrs. J. Marshall Johnston, of Macon, and she will be among Atlanta's charming hostesses entertaining friends from a distance during opera week.

RECOGNITION OF TALENTED WOMEN.

France has taken the lead in recognizing the feminist movement and by willingly recognizing the merit of women wherever it manifests itself. In the last quarter of a century, one hundred women have been decorated by the government for their achievements, and several have been made members of the Academie. It was suggested by one to whom I made this comment that, though France had been more ready than any other country to recognise the ability of woman whenever expressed to a marked degree, French women were never militant in expressing themselves or demanding their rights; that they preserved the traditional ideal of waiting to be discovered. Even those who have been borne triumphantly in trailing robes and crowned heads into the very sanctum of sanctums of French intellect, French science, French art and French literature have been sought that the honors might be conferred upon them. They have held to feminine reserve, even in achieving in lines where masculine strength of thought had almost exclusively prevailed, and have preferred to make their conquests through the circle in the salon, or through the library or studio, rather than from the platform or rostrum.

They have, with but few exceptions, always preserved what may be termed the very ethics of feminism, even that majestic little figure of Joan d'Arc in soldiers' armor, which history hands down sculptured in marble and bronze, bearing with it so eloquently the spirit of the woman heroically manifest.

*****

WHEN SHE LOVES NOT WISELY.

And another impression even the superficial reader must get of the French woman is that when she has been too easily won—when she has loved not wisely, but too well—it has ever been genius in man that has won her, not always the atmosphere of courts and courtiers which dazzled the duBarry.

A ready example of this was Victor Hugo's adoring Juliet Drouet, who wrote him a billet doux every day for nearly thirty years, and received the same from him. Her home was so simple "it was almost cold," biographers tell us. She was not so beautiful, but she had that charm which attracted men of genius and art to her, and men, too, who could lavish upon her all the luxury men do upon the women who adore them. The Russian prince of most marked estate in the Paris of her day not only offered her the surroundings his wealth could give, but the honor of his name in marriage. She preferred to live and love Hugo, to whom she would so often write when she had told the same story over again, "Dear Victor—I kiss your hand." Poor Juliet!

It is the woman in France who now and then arises to raise her hand against some institution which does her or the child a wrong, something which strikes home. She is thus portrayed by Brieux in his drama "La Robe Rouge," when she raises her hand against the quality of justice meted out in the French court. It was for the man she loved a French woman committed murder—the other day. Her personal rights in her relation to that man had been infringed upon. she thought—and you have theme for the French drama for years to come. Indeed, the more one thinks of this French woman, in her century after century of wit, and witchery, and sometimes wisdom, she presents almost the descriptive of the little girl in the little story who "when she is good she is very good, indeed, and when bad, she is horrid."

When they are good and clever in France, they decorate them, put them on pedestals, and proclaim them great. And France reaches out in this desire to recognise feminine merit.

A CHARMING WOMAN DECORATED BY FRANCE.

A charming woman from Worcester, Mass., visited Atlanta this past winter, who had been decorated by the French government—the department of education. She was Mrs. Homer Gage, the guest of Mrs. Ottley, at Joyous. This decoration came to her through her efficient work in the American branch of the Alliance Francaise, of dents of the visit that Madame Gayes's Gage spoke fluently the French language, and has studied carefully the literature, philosophy and art of France.

She expressed so much in her presence, French esprit, so much of it in her conversation, that one realised how well French piquancy can impart itself to those who respond to its teachings.

This piquancy precedes so directly from the French mind which leads to art and beauty and separates them from the everlasting commonplaceness of things.

Atlanta's Alliance Francaise is under the leadership of a native French woman, Mme. Silfer, while Mrs. John Marshall Slaton is honorary chairman. Mrs. Slaton and Governor Slaton have been students of French literature since their marriage. The governor reads it fluently and Mrs. Slaton both reads and speaks it fluently. She was one of the number of eighty or a hundred Atlantans who entertained M. Andre Bellesort when he was here last Monday and lectured in French on the truth about the French home in its relation to French life. M. Bellesort is a member of the lecture board of the Alliance Francaise and is one of a group of distinguished Frenchmen who will lecture in America this year, Atlanta to have her part of this department of the alliance.

Though one hears a great deal ever and anon about the popularity of French as the universal language being on the wane and how Russian supremacy threatened in time the popularity of French as the great world language and how even the English language would come to be "more spoke" than any other, it is la belle langue which still holds as the language people speak at court when the language of that court is not generally known. It is French artists speak when they meet in the cosmopolitan center and the man or woman of the day who makes any pretensions to study or travel or to enter into the atmosphere of world spirits wherever they are find themselves at woeful disadvantage if they can't at least pass the compliments of the day in French.

GEORGIA WOMAN WHO DIED IN PARIS.

A beautiful Georgia woman who died in Paris a little over a year ago, and who, if she had lived, would have, in time, been recognized there for her intellect and literary talents, was Laura McAdoo Gayes, sister of the secretary of the treasury. Beautiful and brilliant in her youth, and a student of French literature, she first wrote short stories for the American magazines; then finished literary critics. Her first husband was a professor in the Chicago university. She was a part of the intellectual life there until her residence in Paris and her marriage to Dr. Gayes, a French scientist of marked attainment. She was studying with him, and attending a course of lectures in the academy, when one of the speakers touched upon certain social phases of the southern states of the United States.

He misrepresented facts in statements he made pertaining to the negro race problem when the young American woman arose and in the most fluent French corrected the speaker, and instructed her learned listeners in the question about which she knew so much and they knew so little.

She was at once sought for by the intellectual element of that great city. She became a regular speaker at their conferences, and a contributor to French magazines, one of her last articles being a very brilliant one pertaining to the feminist movement as she saw it in France. Madame Gayes, in her thought and attitude, her fearless and directness of utterance, had very much the spirit of her distinguished brother, now one of the most marked men in the world of affairs. With her knowledge and seriousness of viewpoint, her sense of personal conviction in her activities, she had that social gift and that love of life in its pleasures that made her home a most delightful one.

Miss Emily Harrison, of Atlanta, visited Madame Gayes but a few moments previous to the latter's death and described as one of the interesting incidents of the visit that Madame Gayes's little boy knew all the Uncle Remus stories and could repeat them in French.

AMERICA HAS WOMEN AS DESERVING.

These decorations which go to women in foreign countries for their abilities and their contributions to life, civic, artistic or literary, might well fall upon many women of our own nation, our own state, our own city, for as fast as I can think I can enumerate great women. Though she is a native of England, Jane Addams might well be decorated by the United States government for her knowledge and grasp of our industrial and social conditions and the work she has done in working out certain problems.

No woman in Georgia is more worthy of a decoration from her state for literary achievement than Corra Harris, who, at this time, contributes to a wider scope of literary publications than any man or woman writer of the moment. Her books, published by Doubleday, Page & Co., are among the most widely read in this country and England. In the last six months she has had articles and short stories in The Saturday Evening Post, in Harper's Magazine (monthly), in Harper's Weekly, in Good Housekeeping, while a series of articles published in The Independent, running five weeks, have attracted the attentions of the most thoughtful of the critics.

The New York Sun gave a three column review recently to this last achievement of hers. She has completed the matter for another book, which will be published serially in the early fall, and is at present writing the second story of the year, returning to her home in "The Valley" to put on the finishing touches. Mrs. Harris's time years' time has had four book publishedan unusual achievement, especially in the fact that the books may be said to have struck a new note in literature—but another time can Mrs. Harris' eligibility to a "decoration" be discussed.

AN ATLANTA WOMAN WORTHY OF DECORATION.

Atlanta's lady, worthy of a decoration is Anne Wallace Howland (Mrs. Max Ryland Howland, of Boston), who is in Atlanta on a visit now. As a sch.ol girl she became librarian of the Young Men's library, Atlanta's first literary institution, and she never ceased in her determination to give Atlanta a worthy library until she saw built, established, equipped and marked as a great one, Atlanta's Carnegie library.

Atlanta's civic life has no greater asset that the Carnegie library. How it has made men and women would make a brilliant illuminating story, and the romance and inspiring chapter in it would be the part taken by this one individual woman. She it was who brought the meeting of the American Library association to Georgia, when organized library work was almost unknown in this section. She inspired the idea of a library commission in Georgia; she was one of the organisers of the Georgia Library association. She formulated the plans and secured the appropriation from the outside and the appropriation from the city which made possible the establishment of the Carnegie library school of Atlanta, the first library school in the south, and the light of her constructive spirit has started with the work here even after she several years ago married Mr. Howland, of Boston. When she comes home, the city gates open wide, and the other afternoon at the library when she was given a reception by the school she founded, the assemblage was one of the most distinguished in personnel Atlanta could produce.

Many entertainments have been given her, and her presence brings joy always. Among her hostesses this week have been Mrs. Robert L. Foreman, Mrs. Percival Sneed, Mrs. Preston Arkwright, Mrs. George Howard, Mrs. Harrison Bleckley.

WINNER OF THE NOBEL PRIZE.

Can anyone pronounce the name of the genius who has won the Nobel prize? Atlanta has entertained two of the winners, the Baroness Von Suttner, who addressed the club women of Georgia eighteen months ago, and Theodore Roosevelt. The third winner was Selma Logeriorff, the Norwegian genius, and now comes the last member of the distinguished group, whose name is Rabindranath Tagore, "first person of any race other than the Caucasian to receive a Nobel Prize," so I heard Mrs. Sneed tell Mrs. Albert Howell at luncheon the other day.

W. B. Yates, in speaking of this new man on the horizon of fame, says of his poetry, "it has an innocence, a simplicity, that one does not find elsewhere in literature," and that "when he is speaking of children, one is not certain that he is not also speaking of saints." Mr Yates thinks that one of the most beautiful of Tagore's works is that entitled "The Crescent Moon."

Extracts from that poem are:

THE HOME.

I paced alone on the road across the field while the sunset was hiding its last gold like a miser.

The daylight sank deeper and deeper into the darkness, and the widowed land, whose harvest had been reaped, lay silent.

Suddenly a boy's shrill voice rose into the sky. He traversed the dark unseen, leaving the track of his song across the hush of the evening.

His village home lay there at the end of the waste land, beyond the sugar-cane field, hidden among the shadows of the banana and the slender areca palm, the cocoanut and the dark green jackfruit trees.

I stopped for a moment in my lonely way under the starlight, and saw spread before me the darkened earth surrounding with her arms countless homes furnished with cradles and beds, mothers' hearts and evening lamps, and young lives glad with a gladness that knows nothing of its value for the world.

BENEDICTION.

Bless this little heart, this white soul that has won the kiss of heaven for our earth.

He loves the light of the sun, he loves the sight of his mother's face.

He has not learned to despise the dust, and to banker after gold.

Clasp him to your heart and bless him.

He has come into this land of an hundred crossroads.

I know not how he chose you from the crowd, came to your door, and grasped your hand to ask his way.

He will follow you, laughing and talking, and not a doubt in his heart.

Keep his trust, lead him straight and bless him.

Lay your hand on his head, and pray that through the waves underneath grow threatening, yet the breath from above may come and fill his sails and waft him to the haven of peace.

Forget him not in your hurry, let him come to your heart and bless him.

ROME, GA.

The issuance of cards for the marriage next Wednesday of Miss Annie Booth Howel and Dr. R. O. Simmons was the occasion of a number of pretty prenuptial courtesies the past week. Mrs. Harry Patton entertained a dozen at luncheon Thursday in honor of the bride-elect. Mrs. W. A. Blair was hostess to her sewing club on Friday afternoon to honor Miss Howel, while Friday evening Dr. and Mrs. George B. Smith bade a number to dine at 6 o'clock with the betrothed. Mrs. Cornelius Terhune will be a hostess of Tuesday next and of that pretty tea party Miss Howel will be an associate honoree. Following the marriage, in which so many are interested, a number of delightful affairs will be tendered the popular couple.

The piano recital at Shorter college given by Miss Edith Hall, pianist, a gifted member of the faculty, attracted a number to Shorter Monday evening.

Preparatory to the trus appreciation and enjoyment of the grand opera season in Atlanta, the Music Lovers had for the afternoon's entertaining program stories of the operas to be sung in May. Misses Alida Printup and Ann Hamilton were the raconteurs of "Pagliacci and Rosenkavalier" and "Lohengrin."

Dr. and Mrs. Robert Harbin will leave in June for a tour abroad, spending the greater part of the summer in Berlin, where Dr. Harbin will pursue a post-graduate course.

The Easter egg hunt at Bellhaven, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Porter, Saturday afternoon for the benefit of the Berry circle was a social event of interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dameron entertained a congenial company at dinner Wednesday evening.

Mrs. A. B. S. Moseley, furthering the "entertain eight" plan projected by the Alumnae association, entertained cleverly her eight and a number of other friends at a clairvoyant party Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Josie Bosser, another alumnus, had a pleasant party of friends spend Thursday evening with her.

Mrs. Will Harbin tenders her guest, Miss Frances Snell of Boston, a large reception Monday, at which time the host of friends of past years when Miss Snell was a Roman gladly welcome her return.

GEORGIA NINE IN GOOD SHAPE

Coach Joe Bean Pleased With Showing Made in Recent Games—Club Goes North on April 24.

By Clark Howell, Jr.

After playing nine games this season the work of the Red and Black nine appears gratifying both to Coach Bean and to the adherents of the team. Of the nine games played the Georgians have won seven and lost two, one to Michigan and one to the Clemson Tigers. The tenth game of the season will be played Monday afternoon with the Illinois team and should afford a good comparison among several S. I. A. A. teams, since Illinois has played both Alabama and Tech.

The team is improving along all lines, especially in fielding, while the same woeful weakness of the little end of the line-up with the willow has been apparent in every game played this year.

Pitching Strong.

The pitching staff has rounded into great shape and the locals now have a trio of formidable twirlers in spite of the fact that a great helo of gloom encircled this department earlier in the season. Otis Corley, veteran of last year's team, has lost but one game out of four starts; Hitchcock has dropped but one out of three and Fox has gotten away to two starts and finished without a defeat chalked up against him.

Every berth on the field seems to be securely nailed down with the exception of right field, where Owens and Brown are worked alternately. Whichever one of these is horned out of his position he will in all probability be taken along with the team on all trips as utility man, so the personnel of the team is virtually complete.

Several series of games will be played on Sanford field before the team will start its northern trip on the 24th of April. On this trip games will be played with the Navy, North Carolina A. & M., the University of North Carolina and Washington and Lee.

Batting.

The following is the batting average and the number of runs made by each man on the team through the games played with the University of Michigan:

Players	G.	AB.	R.	H.	P.C.
Henderson	9	34	9	18	.471
Hitchcock	3	9	2	8	.444
Winn	9	33	14	15	.424
McWhorter	9	37	13	14	.382
Clements	9	37	13	14	.378
Harrison	9	35	6	10	.286
Holden	7	26	0	6	.231
Fox	5	10	0	2	.200
Brown	7	29	2	5	.172
Lester	3	9	1	1	.111
Corbett	9	31	4	1	.032

Disbrow will drive both his 200-horse-power Fiat and his Simplex Zip. He holds eight world's track records with the latter car, and at Galveston last summer won the world's beach championship.

MERCHANTS BEHIND ATTENDANCE PRIZE

ing every one reminded of the big day.

These banners will be streamed across Peachtree and Whitehall streets today and remain up until after the opening.

Merchants Closing.

The merchants are in behind the closing proposition with all their might. Harry Schlesinger and his "Hello People" were the first to swing into line right behind the first request that every one close for the afternoon.

Then the stores started coming in bunches until now practically every business of any size in Atlanta will be closed for the day.

To secure a complete list of all the stores that will close on Tuesday is out of the question at this time, but if every one that intends to close will signify his intention by advising the sporting editor, either in writing or by telephone the firm name will be printed in subsequent stories.

A partial list of those who have already signified their intention of closing for the afternoon is as follows:

The Georgia Railway and Power company, the Lowry National bank, M. Kutz & Co., Nunnally-McCrea company, W. A. Chapin & Co., Ottley, Knowles & Miller, Parks-Chambers-Hardwick company, George Muse Clothing company, Daniel Bros., Southern railway passenger department, Cloud-Stanford company, V. H. Kriegshaber & Co., C. P. Glover Realty company, Atlanta and West Point railway, Massengale Advertising agency, B. M. Grant & Co., Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, A. G. Spalding & Bros. and others.

Mr. Stanford, of Cloud-Stanford company, has addressed a communication to all the other stores in the same line of business in Atlanta asking them to close for the afternoon and he believes that every one of them will.

Spalding's Placard.

A. G. Spalding & Bros. have the following placard in their show windows, which has been commented upon by many:

"NOTICE!! Store will be closed Tuesday, April 21; opening game Southern league. Are the clerks going? They are. Is the manager going? He is."

Similar cards are rapidly appearing on other stores and some of the enterprising printers of the city are sending to the business houses of the city cards with the following inscription:

"CLOSED: Gone to ball game." The enterprising printers have put their advertisement on these cards.

The ticket sale at the Tumlin Bros. stores, which is the downtown ticket office, has been immense. Twice they have had to send back for a new supply of tickets, the dockets are going so fast.

To aid in the speedy handling of the crowd at Ponce de Leon the baseball association has erected a box office just across the street from the park. Tickets of all classes can be purchased at this box office, which will be even handier to the street cars than the regular box offices.

In closing let's remember once and for all: Atlanta must win that opening day attendance trophy. No half-hearted effort will do it.

So close up your shop, go to the game yourself and let your employees go as well.

Tuesday, April 14, is the big day in the baseball world of Atlanta and let's hope that September 17 will be an even bigger one and another pennant will fly from the pennant pole at Ponce.

This 1915 Chalmers "Light Six" at $1800 has all the features which make the larger Master "Six" at $2175 illustrious.

Its small bore and long stroke motor gives it the same flexible power—from a snail's pace to express train speed without shifting gears.

The steady pull of its six cylinders gives a quality of motion that is nerve soothing, not irritating. It means a smoothness that reduces wear and tear on car and passengers to the vanishing point. Its light weight means an added economy in fuel and tires; while its price has made it easy for the many to own "Sixes."

Built Up to a Standard—Not Down to a Price

We use the best steel in this newest Chalmers "Six" because we must hold up the strength while we hold down the weight. Valves of ordinary steel are cheaper, but our valves of Tungsten steel never warp nor waste power. Our model oval fenders cost more than flat ones, but they pay for themselves in added beauty and utility. Every dollar in the price stands for a dollar of real value in the car.

The Price is Lower—Not the Quality

The selling price of the 1915 "Light Six" is lower than the larger Master "Six" because this new model is slightly smaller. Horsepower is less because weight is less.

But it has the same Chalmers-Entz one-motion starter; the same non-stallable Master Motor. Its roomy body is the true streamline type with flush fitting doors and concealed hinges. Tires are carried at the rear, leaving running boards clear. Its tapering bonnet, underslung springs and oval fenders give it distinction in any company.

Let us give you the Chalmers Standard Road Test that proves every claim.

ENDORSEMENTS OF OGLETHORPE PARK AND ITS BUILDER

ATLANTA, GEORGIA, April 11th, 1914.

TO THE INVESTING PUBLIC:

Oglethorpe Park is a "creature of accident." Its development was begun on "Friday the Thirteenth" (13th) of March," and the first installment of lots will be sold at auction to the "highest bidder" on the "Thirteenth" (13th) of April at 3 P. M. If there is any bad luck in "Thirteens" ("13") I must suffer the consequences.

I abandoned the development outlined in Mr. H. E. Heitman's letter at Ft. Myers, Fla., because of the lack of co-operation of "one" property owner.

I abandoned a similar development at Sarasota, Florida, because of the lack of co-operation of "two" property owners.

It has been my experience in all my development enterprises that the parties who were most benefited, gave me the least co-operation.

I was asked to develop the "Hart Estate" in Land Lot No. 13 Fulton County immediately North of the Capital City Country Club, and fronting 1,500 feet on the Peachtree and Dunwoody (North Peachtree or Balloon Road, which is now being widened and graded by the county) into acreage tracts, suitable for the public's demands.

In seeking to find the best plans for developing the Hart property I sent for Mr. H. Z. Ruff, the Engineer who helped me develop Ansley Park, and he laid out the system of "Driveways" shown on the "Driveway Plat," which tie together the two points of greatest interest in the public mind just at this time, viz: The Capital City Country Club and the site of Oglethorpe University.

Within the limited time between March "13th" and April "13th," we have not been able to grade the complete "Driveway System" planned and shown, but you can get your own agent to take you in his automobile and enter the "Temporary Road" at Sam Stovall's private entrance at the end of the Peachtree car line and follow that "Temporary Road" until you reach the lots immediately North of the Capital City Club Golf Links, platted to be sold at Auction Monday the Thirteenth (13th) at 3 P. M. You will be surprised at what you find.

I GUARANTEE to bring all the roads shown on the "Driveway System" to a proper grade, and I would never be able to look the splendid men, who gave me the endorsement herewith presented in the face, if I failed to carry out any plans that I present to the public. They and nearly one hundred similar endorsements have been the sole inspiration for the strenuosity I have been through in the past thirty days.

The opening of the "Baseball Season" on Tuesday, and engagements in New York and Florida, force me to offer the lots for sale at auction on Monday the 13th at 3 P. M. in the Rough; as I did the first lots on Peachtree street in Ansley Park, April 4th, 1904; but my "loss" is your "gain."

If I keep my promise to perfect the "Driveway System" Mr. Ruff has outlined, even a few weeks will make a great difference in the value of the lots to be sold to the "highest bidder" Monday the "13th" at 3 P. M.

All I ask is that you go out and look at the property, either with your own agent in your own automobile, or allow us to take you over the property from the end of the Peachtree Car Line in an automobile.

Thanking the Citizens of Atlanta for their splendid support in all my development enterprises, and hoping to merit their continued support,

I am, Yours for the Upbuilding of Atlanta,

EDWIN P. ANSLEY.

Mr. Geo. Rowland,

Dear Sir:

Mr. Edwin P. Ansley is visiting our city and intimates that he expects to spend the winter some where in South Florida. We have heard of the work he has done in developing Ansley Park and Forrest St. and boosting the advantages of Atlanta and the State of Georgia at large.

We have a wonderful section in Lee County, Fla. that is practically undeveloped and part of it almost undiscovered. A large portion of the soil is very fertile and especially adapted to citrus fruits, vegetables and all kinds of semi-tropical fruits and flowers.

We are below the frost line and three hundred miles farther south than the southern boundary of California and Jacksonville and the section furnishes the finest fishing and hunting in the U.S. and affords splendid opportunities for all kinds of pleasures for the man of means and at the same time offers a rich field for investments of all kinds.

We are particularly anxious to have a high class residence park and golf link located near our City and to have our advantages properly presented to the outside world, and we have indicated to Mr. Ansley we believe he would get strong local support if he would undertake a development of this kind here.

In order to induce and influence our wealthiest and most influential citizens and largest property owners to give Mr. Ansley the support necessary to get him to undertake this development, we are writing you to ask that you give us your opinion of Mr. Ansley as a man, a developer and advertiser, also the results of his developments and work both in Atlanta and throughout the State of Georgia. Please show the effect of his developments in the neighborhoods in which they have been undertaken both in the improvement of the neighborhood and in increasing the value of surrounding properties.

Very truly yours,

H. E. Heitman

Mr. H. E. Heitman,
Fort Myers, Florida.
Dear Sir:

I have your letter of December 20th with regard to Mr. Edwin P. Ansley.

I think that Mr. Ansley is peculiarly fitted to undertake and carry to successful conclusion the development to which you refer. Mr. Ansley has done similar work here in Atlanta, and has been most successful at it. A number of years ago he organized a Company and purchased a tract of three or four hundred acres of undeveloped land on the outskirts of the City of Atlanta. He opened, graded, and paved streets and drives through it, laid sewer pipes, water mains, gas pipes, and electric light lines, laid out and constructed a golf course, and set apart and beautified small parks within the tract. He had a number of auction sales, did a great deal of advertising, and conducted numerous private sales. This tract of land is now covered with the very best class of residences, and is, perhaps, the most desirable residential location in or near the City of Atlanta. The proposition would not possibly have been handled better, and the process as exemplified success to the original investors in the Company, to the purchasers of lots, and to the community.

Soon after this work was commenced, Mr. Ansley took hold of a second my street in the central district of the City of Atlanta. This street had been neglected for years and the property on it was stagnant and prices out of proportion with the price of land on other streets in that neighborhood. Mr. Ansley secured option on and purchased a number of lots along this street to them widened the street to be regraded and paved, and constructed office buildings. A theatre, and a hotel on the street. Others have followed suit in the construction of desirable buildings and the street is now one of the very best and most important streets in the City of Atlanta.

Mr. Ansley has a great deal of initiative, is active, energetic, enthusiastic; his judgment of real estate values and development possibilities is all good. He has the knowledge and experience necessary to undertake work of this kind, and has acquired the habit of making a success of real estate development.

Yours very truly,

My dear Sir:

Your letter of the 15th instant just to hand relative to the work done by Hon. Edwin P. Ansley in the development of the city of Atlanta.

The truth of the business is, there is so much to be said about the work of Mr. Ansley that one who is familiar with all of his magnificent efforts in and around Atlanta does not know where to begin. His development of Ansley Park will stand as a monument to his genius for generations to come. It is one of the most beautiful residential sections in the South, and it has doubled and trebled in value since Mr. Ansley turned it loose.

Next he took hold of the Forsyth Street proposition, an unobtrusive street running through the central portion of the city, and his development of this property has astounded the citizens of Atlanta and its enhancement in value has been amazing.

There is but one thing to say about Mr. Ansley, and that is he is a wizard in the development and promotion of anything he gets behind. He is conservative, he figures everything ahead, and always has his hand on the throttle.

I will be delighted if the people of your locality can get Mr. Ansley interested in anything out of which you want to make a success.

With best wishes, I am,

Very truly yours,

Dear Sir:-

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of December 26th and in reply will say, it is a little amusing to me that anyone south of the Mason and Dixon line should make inquiries regarding the ability of Mr. Edwin P. Ansley as a developer, advertiser, and of the results of his developments, for the reason that it seems to me he is one of the most widely known business men in the South; and I will say to you frankly and after twenty-two years' residence in the East, he is the "livest wire" it has ever been my pleasure to know, the very soul of honor, a man of large means, and to my personal knowledge is regarded as one of the very leading citizens of Atlanta, Georgia. He has probably done more for the city of Atlanta in developments than any other one man. Only large deals and those which seem impossible to the average business man, it appears to me, interest Mr. Ansley and the gratifying part of it is, he always seems to be successful in these undertakings. I cannot commend him to you and your citizens too highly, and if he undertakes to put through a development in your vicinity, you may count upon it with almost absolute certainty that his efforts will be crowned with success

Yours respectfully,

President.

Dear Sir:-

Yours of the 15th to hand. With regard to Mr. Edwin P. Ansley I beg to say that in my opinion he is a man of fine business attainments and integrity. I do not know what his means are but consider them ample. I regard him as the finest promoter and advertiser that we have had in Atlanta for twenty five years. He has been remarkably successful in developing a section of our city which, at the time he began, looked almost hopeless but has resulted in a wonderful success. He is not a pin-hook man and goes on the principle that to make money in the development of property, money has to be spent liberally in advertising and promotion. If there is real merit in the undertaking you suggest I do not know a man better gifted to make it a success than Mr. Ansley.

Yours, very truly,

Mr. C. W. Shriver,

Dear Sir:-

I am in receipt of your letter of December 12th, asking my opinion of Mr. Edwin P. Ansley, of this City.

I have known Mr. Ansley since his boyhood. I consider him one of the best developers that it has been my privilege to know. I was only yesterday talking with a lot of gentlemen about the notable men who have pushed forward Atlanta and its interests. We all agreed that Mr. Ansley was one of the epoch making men who had lived in this City. A few years ago he purchased 300 acres of land on the out-skirts of this City, which at that time was a forest and today it is covered with some of the finest residences in Atlanta.

A few years later he conceived the idea of making one of the sorriest looking streets in Atlanta a first class business street. To-day that street has some of the nicest buildings in Atlanta on it.

I do not think Mr. Ansley has a superior as a developer. My private opinion of him is that he is one of the most unselfish men it has ever been my fortune to know. He seems to forget self entirely in all his operations. I do not know what more could be said of this man. He is a big asset to any community in which he may cast his fortunes and his interests.

If there is any other question that you would like to ask me in regard to Mr. Ansley, I would be glad to answer same. If Mr. Ansley contemplates leaving Atlanta I would regret very much, with other citizens, his taking any such steps.

Very truly, yours,

JAMES R. GRAY
PRESIDENT AND EDITOR

Atlanta, Ga., March 28, 1914.

Mr. Edwin P. Ansley,
Atlanta, Ga.

My Dear Mr. Ansley:

I have just examined with great interest your plans for developing a suburban residence section in the vicinity of Oglethorpe university site. This section you have wisely and appropriately named "Oglethorpe Park."

In my opinion it is one of the most important developments that have been projected around Atlanta in years. The natural beauty of the country, its hills and brooks and trees, its accessibility to the city from Peachtree road, and the numerous winding drives which you have laid out, make it most attractive.

I am glad you have undertaken this development. It means that this park is to be directed by your splendid intelligence and energy to successful accomplishment.

I am especially pleased because of the proximity of this beautiful park to Oglethorpe university. It will add greatly to the attractions of the university grounds, and in this and other ways will be a great advantage to the institution.

We have practically half a million dollars with which to begin the erection of Oglethorpe university, and expect to have a great institution in a short time, just as soon as certain preliminary details can be satisfactorily determined. We shall begin the work of erection. The establishment of Oglethorpe park will help us greatly in solving some problems that we are to deal with, and I am convinced that the university will be an added attraction to the park.

Your splendid enterprise appeals to me so strongly that I cannot refrain from expressing to you my warm commendation and approval.

I trust you will have the greatest success in carrying out the plans that you have undertaken.

Very truly yours,

JAMES R. GRAY.

The Atlanta Constitution

Atlanta, Ga., April 3, 1914.

Mr. Edwin P. Ansley,
Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Mr. Ansley:—Of all the real estate development enterprises which have been undertaken in Atlanta during the past twenty years, it seems none offers better opportunities than the Oglethorpe Park movement and the immediately adjoining enterprises, all of which practically united affect some 1,500 acres of as attractive suburban property as adjoins any city in the United States.

It was inevitable when the Capital City club took over the Brookhaven Country club with its wonderful scenic attractions that every acre in that immediate section should be brought at once into the public eye for development as a highclass residence section. This movement was crystalized and emphasized when the Oglethorpe university movement assumed definite shape, assuring the establishment of a great southern university on the Silver Lake property. If any doubt remained, all that was necessary to assure the success of the movement was the touch of your magic hand as a developer.

The story of your work in transforming Ansley Park from a wilderness to one of the handsomest residence sections of Atlanta is known throughout the country, as is also your splendid development of the Forsyth street section, which in a few years has become one of the most active business sections of the city, with property valuations increased. I understand, over 1,000 per cent in five years.

Now that you have taken hold of an extensive development plan of the property lying between the Capital City Country club and the Oglethorpe university site, the transformation of that whole section into an aggregation of beautiful country estates is assured.

Nature has done everything possible in contributing to the beauty of this section, and you are fortunate in being able to secure the services of Mr. H. Z. Ruff, whose ability has been demonstrated in the landscaping of Ansley Park and Druid Hills. Mr. Ruff is an artist of rare ability and he is fortunate in having such a splendid subject for development.

Your plans furnish additional inspiration for the further development of the Capital City club. It's golf course is already one of the best, and the additional acreage offered will make it as perfect as any in the country. I am sure the club will assist you in every possible way to secure the extension of the electric car lines, which in the very nature of things will be extended to the club and to Oglethorpe university.

It is gratifying that the other real estate developments in that section are co-operating with you just as you are co-operating with them, and with this combination the results will no doubt be equally gratifying as have been the result of your efforts on the Forsyth street and Ansley Park properties.

Very truly yours,

CLARK HOWELL.

Dear Sir:-

I am in receipt of your letter of the 26th.

If you can prevail upon Mr. Edwin P. Ansley to undertake any development work for you or in your section you will have one of the ablest and most successful men with one to found throughout the entire country.

He recovered in Atlanta has been most remarkable with insurmountable obstacles confronting him. He personally is entitled to the credit for his success, as at the beginning he had very little co-operation [illegible]

In my opinion he has done more for the City of Atlanta than any other man. He is an exemplary man in every sense of the word, and a man of the highest integrity. He is candid; in fact, the manner in which he transacts his business in the open would lead a stranger to believe that there was something lacking in his business acumen. I have no doubt that this characteristic has been one of his strongest inducements in obtaining the co-operation of the public.

In advance we pleasure to respond to your very kind request of the 26th instant, touching my opinion of Mr. Edwin P. Ansley as a man, a developer and an advertiser; with the results to this community of his work for Atlanta and Georgia.

We believe that he has no superior in the State in all the above particulars. We are glad to know that he is making a brief respite in your splendid community, from his labors in Atlanta. Your section could not receive a greater New Year's blessing than to have his identified with it. Its attractively presented by him to the public that my man, I know of, and while we wish he may do for you all he can, we want it distinctly understood that his connection with you does not mean his divorce from us.

Dear Sirs:-

Your letter of December 19th., which reached this office during my absence, has been referred to me.

It gives me pleasure to say that I know Mr. Edwin P. Ansley personally, and consider him one of the greatest men in the real estate business in the South; in fact his success with Ansley Park and other real estate propositions in Atlanta and elsewhere has been phenomenal. He has added millions of dollars to Atlanta real estate values, and I have yet to hear of anyone losing money through him.

Mr. Ansley is a man of broad vision, great energy and initiative, and simply makes a thing "go", whether it will or not. I would consider you people most fortunate if you are able to interest him in your proposition. I tried to interest him in Augusta suburban proposition some years ago, but could not.

Yours very truly

Mr. Edwin P. Ansley, Atlanta, Ga.

My Dear Mr. Ansley: I am a constant visitor at the Capital City golf course, and many times have gone over the section adjoining the club property, which you have named "Oglethorpe Park."

To my mind it is the most beautiful country in all Georgia. The wonderful pine forests rival those of Lakewood, and the altitude of more than 1,100 feet gives the air a purity which I think equals that of Asheville. The property is also beyond the smoke limit, and it does not seem probable that the homes which will eventually be built there will ever be affected by the nuisance which is being abated so slowly in the city.

Your property will undoubtedly be a new milepost in the development of Atlanta. The continuous nucleus, consisting of the Capital City Country club, Oglethorpe University and the Silver Lake development, is so tremendous that Oglethorpe Park, lying between all these properties, leads me to believe without reserve, that the development of this section will be of the rapid-fire order that characterizes the growth of Ansley Park.

So convinced am I of the future of Oglethorpe Park that as you know, I have already purchased a plot, there on which I expect to build a home.

Yours very truly,

KEATS SPEED.

"THE ATHENIAN OATH."

"We will never bring disgrace to this our city, by any act of cowardice or dishonesty.

"We will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the city.

"We will revere and obey the city's laws, and do our best to incite a like respect and reverence in others.

"We will strive unceasingly to quicken the public's sense of duty.

"We will transmit this city to those who come after us, greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

The Ideal of Citizenship

The story is oft told of the great Greek who, when his only son was killed before his eyes, remarked with fortitude: "What a loss this will be to my city." That was the day when Greek ideals were highest, when Greek philosophy expressed its greatest thought and when good citizenship was as sacred a holding of man as chastity was of woman.

Therefore, I consider thoughtful and wise those mothers of the Monroe, Ga., club who had printed what is called the "Athenian oath" and distributed it among the school boys of the town.

The ideal of good citizenship cannot be instilled too early in life, and if children were taught earlier in life their individual responsibility not only as relating to self, but as relating to their obligation to the community in which they live, there would be a larger number of good men to lead in the reforms of public life.

The idea of public life and good citizenship is too often conflicted with politics, and the sooner the little citizen of Georgia is told that he can serve his city and his country, and still not run for an office, the sooner will Georgia produce a crop of good, upright, patriotic citizens—citizens who can preserve the Greek ideal, and leave to their posterity not merely gold and material things, but the heritage of a noble citizenship.

Every boy in the state would do well to memorize the old Athenian oath and live up to the principle of it.

WELFARE CONGRESS WILL ASSEMBLE IN WASHINGTON ON 22D

Under the auspices of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations will be held the third international child welfare convention in Washington, April 23-27.

There will be ample opportunity for delegates and guests to visit Mount Vernon, Georgetown, Fort Meyer and other interesting places. Among the social events in connection with the convention will be a reception given by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, at the white house, at 5 o'clock, April 24.

The triennial election of officers of the National Congress of Mothers will occur on the last day. Mrs. Frederic Schoff, of Philadelphia, who has served as president continuously since 1908, will be re-elected to her fifth term if she consents to hold it, by a vote of the entire membership. The association held its regular monthly meeting on Friday, April 3, Mrs. Georgia Slack presiding.

Dr. E. R. Parks, of the state board of health, delivered a very interesting lecture on sanitation, which was very much appreciated by the association.

Many subjects of interest were discussed for the improvement of the school and the betterment of the fourth ward. Among these was the sanitary drinking fountain.

The association will give a candy pulling at the school on Friday, April 24, at 4 o'clock. The public is cordially invited.

After the meeting adjourned refreshments were served.

MONROE CLUB HAS A FINE RECORD AT END OF FIRST YEAR

The Parent-Teacher Club of Monroe has just passed its first year of existence.

A book with the name of every school patron in alphabetic order was first prepared and these names were checked after a pleasing personal invitation to join the club had been given to each. Then from these names, chairmen for the different sections were selected and the members were assigned to these as they were best suited to each department. Every woman's work was thus given a special object for work. The sections were as follows:

Health, social, art, landscape and library.

These committees met as often as called together by the president, discussed needs and possibilities, made plans and gave a report of work done through their chairman at the monthly meeting of the whole body. It is customary to call the president after these sectional meetings whenever possible, so she can know where stimulation is needed. Her work may also be facilitated by having a filing place with a large envelope marked for each club section, and one marked "president" therein. In these envelopes she can file clippings from time to time from magazines and newspapers with marginal notes and suggestions. Once a month these are to be distributed to the different chairmen who should each have filing envelopes ready for quick reference.

Health Section.

In the health section our efforts were directed towards securing both medical and dental inspection as an entrance requirement. This has been accomplished, together with the introduction of directed outdoor play, or recreative exercise at intervals through the school sessions.

The social section took up the moving picture shows first. It was instrumental in securing better protection from fire, more sanitary surroundings and a higher class of films. It dealt also with the occupation and social life of the children after school, emphasizing the importance of giving each child some duty in the home.

Landscape Work.

The landscape section has charge of the beautifying of the school grounds. The library section has raised money for necessary books used as parallel reading by the different grades.

One of our most successful movements was accomplished by the art section. We realized the limitations of a negative training which we are so often prone to give our children, and that we must, instead, put more of the positive influences to work. So, to inspire them with more beautiful conceptions of life, to attract them towards the pleasures of the beautiful, to appeal to and develop the aesthetic side of each child and to give them better food for their love and appreciation, we fell upon the plan of an art exhibit. For some reason the thing seemed new because of the high guarantees asked by northern houses. But finally, the Perry Picture company, of Atlanta, sent us two fine collections of pictures during the year. Miss Cone came to the exhibits, and her interpretation of the pictures was most valuable to us. This was the first general benefit to the town, also. For instance, it gave one of the girls taking a course in Holland, a fine opportunity to make a closer study of Dutch art. Season tickets were sold for 50 cents; single tickets for 25 cents, while all school children were admitted at any time on a 10-cent season ticket. With the proceeds we have purchased a handsome picture, and a picture rack, for the chapel. The interest shown by the children was a surprise even to the most sanguine. We then planned a course of art study to be used in the schools, by means of which when a child has completed the ten grades, he will have a good general knowledge of the art and architecture of each country. Added to this, will be the refining influence in his life of the highest and best in art.

Our plans for the future include the introduction of a training class for mothers in each Sunday school in our town. Also the encouragement of vegetable gardening by boys and flower gardening by our girls.

MRS. CLIFFORD WILKES.

Honors to Mrs. Schoff.

CIRCLE IS ORGANIZED BY QUITMAN WOMEN

Quitman, Ga., April 11.—(Special)—A very interesting development of the Woman's club work here has been the forming of a Parent-Teacher circle. This was done a month ago by the club women and the teachers of the high school and the interest displayed by the mothers in new work promising. There were nearly fifty members enrolled.

The leader is Mrs. M. J. McAfee, who has had much experience in this work; associate leader, Miss Thaxton, teacher of English in the school; secretary, Miss Hattie Follis, another teacher. The next meeting will be Wednesday afternoon and the program will include a lecture on oral hygiene and other instructive talks.

This sort of organization is a very important factor, in the school work, and it is not new. It really supplies the personal contact between the teacher and the parent which used to exist when all schools were one-teacher affairs and the teachers boarded around with the patrons and were thus in touch with the home life of the pupils.

DR. HOLT TO TALK ON HEALTH AND SANITATION

At the next meeting of the Forrest Avenue Parent-Teacher association Dr. Holt, of the state board of health, will talk on health and sanitation.

The meeting will take place the afternoon of April 16, and following the formal program there will be a reception. The guests of honor will be the board of education, the alderman and councilmen from the fourth ward, the superintendent and assistant superintendent of schools and the directors of music, drawing and physical culture.

A large number of the mothers of the district will be in attendance, and it is hoped some of the fathers also. The refreshments will be served by the young ladies of the eighth grade.

The school grounds are showing the work that has been done on them this spring in the way of planting shrubs and making flower beds.

SOCIAL LIFE IN MACON

Macon, Ga., April 11.—(Special Correspondence.)—The first of the week was filled with pre-nuptial affairs for Miss Mattie Chappell—the culmination her marriage to Mr. Richard F. Lawton on Wednesday afternoon. Monday at the Hotel Dempsey Mrs. Albert Vaughn, of Greenville, S. C., gave a beautiful luncheon for Miss Chappell, the guests assembling in the formal parlors. Locals Pound Out Victory In Final Exhibition Game; Play Horribly in the Field

By Dick Jemison.

Playing like a bunch of amateurs for the first six innings and like world's champions for the last three, the Crackers won the final exhibition game of the season from the Rochester Branches by the score of 8 to 7.

The locals played horrible baseball in the field and in every department during the first stages of the game. They looked awful. Every play they tried to make went wrong and they pulled some bad ones to help it along.

But we are glad to see them kicking all these boots out of their systems Saturday. That was the time to get rid of all the bad baseball that they had pent up. By pulling it Saturday it will all be gone for the opener.

Won in Sixth.

The Hustlers grabbed off a six-run lead in the first six innings of play and added another in the seventh. The locals scored their eight runs in the last four innings of the contest.

With the opening of the Crackers' half of the ninth, the count stood 7 to 4, with the Hustlers on the long end of the count. Then the Crackers' heavy artillery got to working and pounded in four runs, winning the game.

It was Harry Holland's pinch hit that would have gone for three bases or more had it been needed that broke up the old ball game. The bases were drunk when Harry laced one right on a line over the head of the third baseman of the visiting club, bringing to a close one of the weirdest baseball games ever staged at Poncey.

Harry had been unable to grab a bingle up until this writing, but he saved it for the most opportune moment. The Crackers connected for twelve bingles off the deliveries of Hoff and Noyes, while Jack Doscher allowed ten in the seven innings he was on the mound. Perryman did not allow any in the two rounds he worked.

Hitting Stars.

Schultz, the third baseman of the visitors, was the big noise with the bludgeon. He grabbed a sacrifice fly, a single, a triple and a homer in five trips up to the plate.

Captain Welchonce kicked in with a double, a single and a sacrifice fly toward the close of the game that figured conspicuously in the run-getting of the locals.

George Kircher's pepper on the coaching lines for the locals helped immensely, and it was his antics in walking a mask wire that stole the crowd in a good humor, after they had lost interest from the miserable showing of the locals.

Morley Jennings had a horrible day at the short field, but Morley was playing the game with his left thumb twice its normal size, and that he played as well as he did was surprising.

Doscher had a lot of trouble with his control, and this was the cause of the heavy hitting. Every batter had him in a hole and then busted the ball. Perryman showed a world of stuff.

It was a bad day with a good ending. But, as remarked before, Saturday was the time to get all the bad playing out of their systems. So watch out, Volunteers, on Tuesday.

How They Scored.

McMillan opened the game for the Hustlers singling to center. He was forced by Breen, who stole second, went to third on Jennings' error and tallied on Schultz' sacrifice fly.

With two gone, Priest stretched a single into a double by some wise baserunning, scoring on Schultz' triple to left. Schultz tallied when McConnell booted Smith's grounder.

Hoff singled to start the fourth inning. McMillan forced him. McMillan started to steal and, when Jennings failed to cover, he went to third and tallied when Welchonce let the ball get through.

Priest started the fifth with a single and tallied ahead of Schultz when the latter hit a liner over Welchonce's head for the circuit.

Crackers Start.

The Crackers started their run-getting in the sixth. McConnell opened it with a single to right. Priest dropped Jennings' fly. Welchonce doubled to left, scoring McConnell and Jennings. Long singled to center, sending Welchonce to third. Harry counted on Flanagan's sacrifice fly.

Breen singled to start the Hustlers' seventh. Barrows sacrificed. Breen tried for third, and when Holland dropped the throw made it. Breen tallied on Schultz's single.

Kircher, hitting for Doscher, opened the seventh with an infield hit. McConnell singled, Jennings walked, filling the bases. Welchonce's sacrifice fly counted Kircher.

The winning runs came in the ninth. Lynch, hitting for Perryman, walked. McConnell's infield out advanced him to third, after an error had advanced him to second. Jennings walked. Welchonce singled, scoring Lynch.

Long singled, Jennings counting and Welchonce going to third. Welchonce counted the tying run on Hoff's single to left, which fell safely between McMillan and Schultz. Flanagan walked, filling the bases, and Holland broke it up with a single to left.

ATLANTA TRAP SHOOTERS RANK HIGH IN AVERAGES

Southern shooters seem to have the call up to date this week in the trap-shooting records of 1914, as the official averages of all who have shot in registered tournaments for the year move. Furthermore, Georgia has an amateur occupying second place in his division, and in the professional class an Atlanta shot is third.

W. R. Jones, of Macon, is the amateur who ranks second, and his average up to date on 400 targets is .9400 per cent. He is led only by Alden B. Richardson, the son of United States Senator Richardson, of Dover, Del., who has an average of .9413. He has broken five more targets than Jones.

The Atlanta shot who ranks third among the professionals is H. D. Freeman, one of the best shooters in the world. He has an average of .9587 at 500 targets. Both shots who are ahead of him are also from below Mason's and Dixon's line, they being Emory Storr, of Richmond, Va., and J. Mowell Hawkins, of Baltimore, Md. Two other Georgia shots rank in sixth and seventh places—C. E. Goodrich, of Atlanta, being sixth, with Walter Huff, of Macon, Ga., following him.

John Aiken Will Try to Establish Macon-Atlanta Endurance Record Today

Johnny Aiken, the hustling Harley-Davidson dealer, will attempt to make a record ride from Atlanta to Macon and return today. He will leave early in the morning, and ride to Macon, expecting to beat the previous record held by Harry Glenn of two hours and fifty-five minutes, and of course will have to beat the same record coming back.

It is Aiken's intentions to make a mark so that other riders can go to it afterwards to try and beat it. When it is considered that the railroad time from Atlanta to Macon is between three and four hours, it can be seen that these boys on the motorcycles really do some very fast riding when they cover the same distance in less than three hours.

Dr. C. E. Ballinger Purchases New Studebaker Sedan

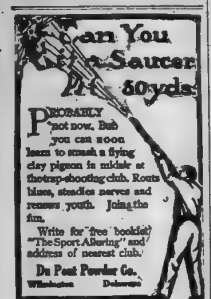
L. E. Gibson, popular retail manager of the Studebaker corporation, announces the purchase of the new "6" Studebaker Sedan by Dr. C. E. Ballinger. The new car is attracting a great deal of attention on Atlanta's streets.

EMORY STUDENTS ARE PULLING HARD FOR KEY PERRYMAN

Emory College, Oxford, Ga., April 11. (Special.)—The work of Emmet Key Perryman, the [illegible] graduate and hero of three seasons of class baseball, who is now working for a hurling berth with the Atlanta club, is being watched with keen interest. Every morning finds the great majority of the Emory college students awaiting the coming of The Atlanta Constitution to see the latest which Perry has andergone. In fact, it appears as if he is expected to pitch every day and much disappointment is evident when Perry's name doesn't appear in the batting order as doing the slab work.

The consensus of opinion among Emory students gives Perryman a regular job on Billy Smith's twirling staff, and they are laboring under this foregone conclusion with the determination to go up en masse and see him under fire for the first time in the Southern league.

Anyway, if Perry does break into the line-up after the going clears for the opening of the season he will find a goodly number of his former college mates out at Ponce de Leon cheering him as they did of old when he would stand 6 feet 1 inches in the box and run the whole team.



PROBABLY not now. But you can soon learn to smash a flying clay pigeon in middle at the trap-shooting club. Roots blisters, steadies nerves and renews youth. Join the fun.

How Goodyear Fights Loose Treads

At the base of the tread in every tire there must be a breaker strip. In all tires save Goodyears this strip is made of closely-woven fabric. And road use often separates this breaker strip from the rubber.

We bought the rights to a patent fabric which we picture here. It cost us $50,000, and it forms our breaker strip.

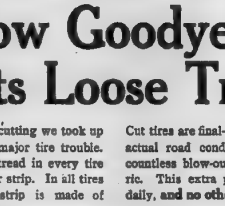
This fabric rivets itself to the rubber. The tread rubber is forced down through these openings, while in a plastic state, forming hundreds of large rubber rivets. Then the whole tire is vulcanized en masse.

This lessens by 60 per cent the risk of this tread separation. And no other maker employs it.

Millions Saved

That is one way in which we save tire users millions of dollars yearly.

Another is our "On-Air" cure. No-Rim-Cut tires are final-cured on air bags, under actual road conditions. This saves the countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric. This extra process costs us $1,500 daily, and no other maker employs it.



Rivet Fabric

In these tires alone is rim-cutting ended in a satisfactory way. We control the method.

16 Makes Cost More

After years of tests on countless cars they have come to outsell any other tire in the world.

Yet there are 16 makes of tires which sell at higher prices. Some nearly one-half higher. Three such tires cost as much as four Goodyears. That's a curious situation.

Three Remarkably Fine Models

The modern motor car must have a long wheelbase to insure easy riding. It must have refined lines and classy exterior beauty. It must have plenty of power and big tires and perfect springs. It must be fully equipped with electric self-starter, electric lights and half a score of first-class appurtenances and these must be included in the price.

Choose any one of these cars and you make an investment. Any one of them is more car and better car for the money than you can find elsewhere in the automobile world—at home or abroad. And we leave the matter of price out of the reckoning.

The Mitchell Little Six is a six-cylinder car of fifty horse-power—132-inch wheelbase—five-passenger capacity. It has 36x4½-inch tires, Timken bearings front and back. It is long, low and rakish—beautiful to look at—the acme of comfort to ride in. It has all the high-class modern improvements and they are included in the price. And the price is only $1,895

The Mitchell Big Six is a six-cylinder car of sixty horse-power—144-inch wheel-base—seven-passenger capacity. It has 37x5-inch tires, Timken roller bearings front and back, perfect springs and luxurious upholstering. It is the biggest, the greatest and the sweetest-running car for the money in existence. And it sells for only $2,350

The Mitchell Four is a four-cylinder car of forty horse-power—120-inch wheel-base—five-passenger capacity. It has 36x4½-inch tires, Timken roller bearings front and back, perfect springs and refined, beautiful lines. It cannot be duplicated for less than $2,000. But it sells for only $1,595

AUGUSTA'S SOCIAL SIDE

Augusta, Ga., April 11.—(Special Correspondence.)—The event of next week will be the dedication of the Archibald Butt memorial bridge, for which ex-President Taft, Hon. John Hays Hammond and other distinguished personages will be present. The Masons will have charge of a part of the program and a delegation of prominent Masons will come from Washington, D. C., to take part in the exercises. The visitors will be quartered at the Bon Air, and no effort will be spared to make their stay in Augusta pleasant socially. A barbecue breakfast at Carmichael's club will be given the visitors by the Masons of Augusta on Tuesday morning and the cornerstone ceremonies at the bridge by the Masons will occur at noon. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the formal dedication and unveiling of the tablets on the bridge will take place, and addresses will be made by ex-President Taft and others.

The Easter Monday dinner-dance at the Country club will be a brilliant affair. The visitors from a distance for the unveiling of the Butt memorial bridge will be present; it will be the last social function for many of the winter sojourners who are now leaving for their northern homes and local society people who have been observing Lent will all unite to make it, perhaps, the largest dinner-dance of the season.

Miss Nellie Crane, a very charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Crane, will be married on Tuesday evening at St. Paul's church to Mr. Theodore Washburn and this will be one of the prominent society events of Easter week.

The performance of the amateur 1920 minstrels on Tuesday night will be quite a society event, and all the boxes will be occupied by fashionable parties.

Judge and Mrs. Taft arrived in Augusta Thursday for a stay among their friends and admirers. Before taking his seat as president and during his term Mr. Taft made Augusta his winter resort. He has delayed his coming this year to be present at the dedicatory ceremonies of the Butt memorial bridge, on which occasion he will be the principal speaker. He and Mrs. Taft will have rooms at the Bon Air and sojourn here for a while. Mr. Taft is very partial to the Country club golf links and puts in a good deal of his time playing each day. KOPSERVICE Nemo CORSETS $5.00

THREE WONDERFUL CORSETS—

Have One Great Fault—They're Too Low-Priced at

SOME women insist on paying $10 to $25 for corsets, in the belief that superior style, comfort and wear are not obtainable at a less price.

Therefore, the one great fault of KOPSERVICE Corsets—the LOW PRICE—prevents these women from enjoying the wonderful service these corsets give, though the very same women would buy KOPSERVICE with joy if the price were doubled or trebled.

The best doesn't ALWAYS cost THE MOST. KOPSERVICE Corsets, at $5.00, give everything that can be put into a corset to make it stylish, comfortable, healthful and long-wearing. Fancy fabrics and trimmings would add to the PRICE, but not to the SERVICE.

You can't get a BETTER corset than the KOPSERVICE at $10 or $15—or twice that. You can't get such a perfect combination of style, hygienic comfort and wear AT ANY PRICE.

Don't be ashamed to wear a $5.00 corset that is intrinsically far more valuable than your $10 to $25 models. Sensible economy is a real virtue.

KOPSERVICE Corsets are Made Upon an Entirely New Principle

They combine the comfort of the old-fashioned short corset with the easy fit and sweeping lines of the present so-called "straight" corset.

$5.00

Nemo KOPSERVICE Corsets enable every woman to attain the true, healthful and graceful "nature figure" without discomfort or menace to health, and with no danger of losing her shape permanently. Every woman who aims to be up to date, yet values her health and comfort, will derive much benefit from studying these new models.

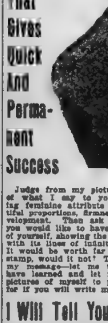
BUST DEVELOPED ONE OUNCE A DAY



A New Simple Easy Home Method That Gives Quick And Permanent Success

Judge from my picture as to the truth of what I tell you—that the most charming feminine attribute is a bust of beautiful proportion, firmness and exquisite development. Then ask yourself how much you would like to have such a photograph of yourself, showing the glory of womanhood in full bloom and all the charm and grace. It would be worth far more than a 2-cent stamp, would it not? Then let me give you the benefit of my test of what I have learned and let me give you recent proofs of what I say—for if you will write me today

I Will Tell You How---FREE

I will tell you gladly and willingly. Why should any woman reject an opportunity to escape the pain and heart-ache of being skinny in body, flabby in flesh and unattractive in body? Misery is not our heritage. Nature planned that you—a woman—should have the rich, pulsing, lissome, alluring flesh molded after the other of us all, the desire of whom. Let me show our sacred literature with love and admiration for the divinity of woman's form. For why should there be that pitiful aspect—the face of a woman and the form of a man.

Write to Me Today

I don't care how fallen, or flaccid, or undeveloped your bust now is—I want to tell you of a simple home method—I want to tell you how you can gain perfect development one ounce a day. No physical culture exercises, foolish balls or pads—no plasters, masks or injurious injections—I want to tell you of a perfectly natural method, never before offered or told about—insuring immediate success and permanent

Send No Money

Just write me a letter—address it to me personally—that's all. I will answer it by return mail and you can develop your bust one ounce a day—you can be what you want to be. Believe me when I say that you will bless me through years of happiness for pointing the way to you and telling you what I know. Please send your letter today to the following address

YELLOW JACKETS DEFEAT ILLINOIS

Eubanks' Twirling Was Too Much for the Westerners, While the Jackets Hit the Ball Timely.

By Hal Reynolds.

By winning yesterday's game 5 to 4, from the University of Illinois, the Tech Yellow Jackets made it two straight in the series of two games with the western team.

The Jackets secured an early lead, which they held throughout the game.

Illinois had a swell chance to sew the game up in the third round when they got the bases populated with no men down. Eubanks' fine pitching and a fast double play by the Tech infield retired the side without a tally, however.

Jackets Run Wild on Paths.

The Jackets ran wild on the paths, stealing seven bases during the game.

Eubanks used two twirlers during the game, both being found for eleven safe swats by the Tech batters. On the other hand, the visitors were greatly puzzled by "Smoky" Eubanks' shoots and speedy curves.

Tech Makes Two Double Plays.

In the fielding line Tech pulled off two double plays, both being made when the opposition was threatening to break up the game.

Edgar Montague made a wonderful shoestring catch of a drive from Nie's bat in the eighth inning. He turned a somersault, but managed to hold onto the ball.

For Illinois, Krebs pulled the best defensive stunt when he jumped up and knocked down E. Montague's drive, which would have scored two runs if it had gone into left field.

"Smoky" Eubanks showed up especially strong in the box for the Jackets. In the first three innings not a single ball was hit out of the infield by the Illinois batters. He gave up but five bingles and retired seven batters on strikes.

Burr and Wooten Hit Hard.

At pasting the pellet Burr and Wooten, with three safeties apiece, and E. Montague with two, did the best work.

Hill made some nice stops and throws around the hot corner.

Phelps, Nelson and Arbuckle did good work for Illinois. Arbuckle made a number of nice pick-ups at third.

Tech Scores Four.

Tech scored the first run of the game in the third inning. E. Montague hit to Larsen, who threw wild to first. He went to second on the wild throw and stole third. He scored on Shafer's error of fumbling Wooten's drive.

In the fourth Tech added one more. Burr singled to right, took second on Witherington's sacrifice and third on Pound's hit over second. Burr tallied on Wooten's sacrifice fly to right.

Tech shoved two over in the fourth. Hill, first up, walked. He advanced to third on E. Montague's hit over second for one bag. E. Montague stole second and Eubanks walked, filling the sacks. Hill came in on E. Montague's grounder to Arbuckle, who touched third, forcing E. Montague. Burr, running for Eubanks, and T. Montague worked a pretty double steal, Wooten running for Burr, scored on Burr's hard drive to center for one bag. T. Montague scored, but was called out for failing to touch third.

Tech added their last in the seventh. Johnson got a life on Larson's error of his easy roller. He scored on Burr's long hit over Suter's head.

Illinois made one in the sixth. Phelps hit a high fly down the left field foul line for two sacks. He tallied on Thomas' single through third.

Pinch McCabe will fill these roles for a while for the Vols, though he will probably get a berth regularly in the outfield after the weather warms up a little.

On the Vol hurling roster there are a couple of youngsters who seem destined to stack up good this season. Stevens, who was shifted to Opportunity City from the Browns, after Branch Rickey decided that he had a superabundance of sidewheelers on his staff, has been the one reason why the Vols have been able to gain the decisions of the past exhibition game series.

Stevens the Goods.

While still in his swaddling clothes, baseballically speaking, Stevens has been up against some of the strongest batting orders in the major leagues and each time he has ventured forth with one of the classiest arrays of benders and smoke of any youngster seen in this Athens of the south since the proverbial Hector and his kid days. He takes the place of Kid Williams, the diminutive sidewheeler who went back to Detroit at the close of last season.

The remaining slabber of the gang of rookies who looks good in Leslie Mann, a semi-pro youngster who has tried out here a few times before, but who heretofore hasn't had the proper chance. However, Manager Schwartz has been giving him all kinds of work and in the game against the Detroit Tigers here last week, he had such sluggers as Bobby Veach and George Moriarty swinging and breaking their backs trying to hit his slow ball. Johnson depends mainly upon his perfection of his puzzling slowball for his success and those who have seen him in action are confident that he'll be one of the chosen few to remain when weeding-out season begins.

The club now representing Nashville is stronger than any in former years at this time of the season. Every one of the players has been kept in the game all the time and as a result they have already demonstrated their class, whether it be inferior or superior, so Manager Bill will encounter no trouble when he begins to apply the knife. While the hitting strength of the Vols is somewhat below par just now, the local pilot believes that the first month of the season will find his hopefuls at least several of them batting around the old select mark.

NEW SOUTH RUBBER CO. GETS EFFICIENCY TIRE

The New South Rubber company has been appointed distributors for Motz high efficiency tires in Atlanta and the south. Mr. Starns, manager of the company, received the following interesting story in regard to the efficiency of Mots tires:

"Down in New Jersey, 'The Woman with the Green Veil' has aided by Motz high efficiency cushion tires, routed the business and political bosses of Meadian, who opposed her establishment of a bus line connecting it with Morristown, and has ended by obtaining a contract from the government for the transportation of the United States mail.

"I was seriously handicapped, at first, by tire troubles, writes Mrs. Agnes A. Maher, the woman in question, who operates her own bus, a three-ton White. I made my own repairs and it seemed as though I were forever down on my knees in the road 'tinkering tires'—that is, until I equipped my bus with Motz high efficiency cushion tires."

FIRST ENTRY IS IN FOR THIRD HILL CLIMB

R. W. Billups, of Watkinsville, Is in Race—Many Are After Betsy's Goat.

One of the very first to enter the third annual hill climb of the Atlanta Auto and Accessory association, on May 9, was R. W. Billups, of Watkinsville. Mr. Billups declares his intention of making an absolutely clean sweep of every event that his machine can enter.

Mr. Billups' advance agent, Mr. Williams, was in Atlanta yesterday making arrangements for quarters, etc., and especially to see Stewart avenue hill.

Unlike many great racers, Mr. Billups is a mechanic of repute. Not being able to obtain just what he wanted in the way of ignition, and after being told by one of the largest manufacturers in these lines that his idea was impractical, he simply demonstrated that his idea was entirely feasible by personally making just what he wanted.

Billups' car is a small one, and as no car shall compete in any event above that to which its piston displacement entitles it, he will not be able to run rings around some of the larger ones, for the simple reason that he can't enter their class. But the free-for-all will enable him to "show up" some of the bigger cars.

After "Betsy."

As practically every automobile concern in Atlanta has served notice on L. S. Cox that they are going after "Betsy's" goat in the coming hill climb, it appears that every one that can possibly do so will enter one or more cars and that the third annual hill climb of the Atlanta Auto and Accessory association is going to be a great success.

Aside from the free-for-all, which will be contested for by Betsy, Mary Jane, Bear Cat, Bullet and all the other old reliables, and some new cars, the event for motorcycles pulling sidecars will be one of especial interest.

Saturday, May 9, at 1 p. m., will see the biggest and best hill climb ever pulled off.

TECH MEETS MERCER MONDAY AND TUESDAY

Tech will meet her old rival, Mercer, on Monday and Tuesday when the collegians. Baptists come to Grant field for a series of two games.

These games will be the only ones in which the two schools will meet each other this season, so they are sure to be hard fought.

Joe Pitts will probably occupy the firing line for the Jackets on Monday, while Hunt will most likely try to stop the winning streak of the local [illegible]

Studebaker SIX $1575

Seven-Passenger

The Studebaker SIX fairly clamors for comparison with "Sixes" selling for more money.

And the system of starting and lighting conforms to the same exacting quality requirement.

No matter how much more you are willing to pay—money can't buy a better rear axle or a better system of starting and lighting.

Take these two vital features as a starting point and every feature and every function of the car will reveal to you elements of value beyond which manufacturing skill cannot go.

We have a folder which you should read, fully describing in simple terms the full floating axle and making plain the superiority of this type over others. Call or write for it.

Overland

66 Miles High

OUR 1914 production of 50,000 cars, piled one on top of the other, would reach 350,000 feet or 66 miles in the air.

This is over 355 times as high as the Eiffel Tower in Paris, which is the tallest structure in the world.

This is over 466 times as tall as the Woolworth Building or 630 times as high as the Washington Monument.

Also this is over 432 times the length of the Imperator.

Such figures are dazzling. But they help to make you realize the immensity of our production and the large scale on which we conduct our business. And finally and most important of all help to prove the one great big point we have always endeavored to drive home—the economy of producing automobiles in great quantities.

Manufacturing, purchasing and marketing on a 50,000 car basis is infinitely less expensive than on the thousand car basis.

And that is why we can sell the Overland for 30% less than any other similar car made.

THE CONSTITUTION'S FIRING LINE

GOVERNMENT AID HIGHLY APPLAUDED

Merchants Pleased With Federal Recognition of Atlanta as Trade Center of Southeast.

Merchants of Atlanta are enthusiastic over the broadcast publicity given this city's facilities as a trade center. Among the first to express appreciation is F. D. Yates, vice president of Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, wholesale dry goods, who says:

"The natural trend of business in the southeast is to Atlanta, so recognized by leading financiers of the country, and the federal government.

"Isn't it time for Georgians to realize the possibilities of our section and the far-reaching effect of a national reserve bank located in our midst.

"Congress passed an act making it compulsory for all national banks to keep their reserves at home for developing business in their districts and to safeguard their interests in times of trouble.

"Previously banks kept their reserves in New York for call loans, giving high financiers our funds to promote and operate on a stupendous scale, but conditions will change under the new banking act.

"There never will come a time when we can get all the money, but a legitimate business under the management of an efficient and capable person should be able to secure his needs.

"Money is in the commodity class, and if you can buy it at home for sixty days or six weeks at as low rate as elsewhere, it would be unbusinesslike to spend time and money going to some other reserve center for that same article.

"Thousands are sending money to mail order houses for articles that could be bought at home for less money, supporting and adding to the incomes of mail order houses whose incomes exceeded one million dollars last year.

"If every person would give his home merchant co-operation and that merchant would likewise co-operate with manufacturers and jobbers of his section, business could be done on a more conservative basis at less expense and a smaller margin of profit. I congratulate the merchant who makes a success. It is the hardest game today.

"My first years of business experiences were spent with one of Georgia's most successful retail merchants whose policy I have found to be wise, 'Buy at home.'"

Atlanta Has Become An Important Coffee Distributing Center

Atlanta as a coffee market has been rapidly coming to the front in commerce during the last six years.

George E. Morgan, general manager of the Atlanta Coffee Mills company, an expert coffee roaster, has made a study of the growing market, and announces that Atlanta has become one of the most important inland distributing centers for coffee in the United States. New York and New Orleans are the principal coffee markets, followed by Boston and Baltimore, but Atlanta takes high rank among inland cities.

Coffee used in the United States comes mostly from Brazil. It is cured there, the best of it remaining in the curing sheds for two years before shipment to American markets. Reaching these shores, cargo is broken and the huge bags distributed to the various markets, where the different grades are blended by experts, carefully roasted and placed in packages, the public, in the last few years, having become more and more addicted to the use of packaged coffee put up under the private brands of firms they know to be sound, and most likely to use honest, sanitary methods in their plants.

There are a number of important roasters in Atlanta, among them being the Atlanta Coffee Mills company, McCord-Stewart, Merchants' Coffee association, C. J. Kamper and others. Each of these takes large shares of the coffee importations, roast it for home use and distribute throughout a large territory.

Both Mr. Fain and Mr. Stamps participated in the event. Mr. Fain officiating as best man. The honeymooners are now enjoying life in the sunny climes of Florida.

MANUFACTURERS' OPINION OF JOBBERS

Philadelphia Man Invites Views of Manufacturers on Possibility of Eliminating the Middleman.

While there is a never-ending theory abroad in the land—especially among reformers, who would solve the problem of the high cost of living—that the jobber is an entirely unnecessary factor in the distribution of food products, and these are constantly being strutted plans for eliminating "middleman"—which rarely succeed beyond the experimental stage—it is not often than tangible facts are submitted to prove one or the other side of the controversy.

In a recent investigation of the subject of the jobber, made at first hand sources by George A. Landell, of Philadelphia, some interesting testimony backed by real experience was evolved, tending to show that the jobber is a real economy. Mr. Landell's conclusions are contained briefly in the following report of what the manufacturer thinks of the jobber—expressed in his own words:

"We are all too prone to accept hearsay evidence, and we cannot overlook the average person too severely if he accepts the theory of direct distribution," said Mr Landell.

Danger of Snap Judgment.

"It is a plausible theory. Would not any one of us on snap judgment believe that a farmer, coming to our door in his own wagon from his own farm, could sell us eggs and butter for less money than could a retail grocer, who had to make a profit, who in turn has to pay a commission man's profit, who receives the butter or eggs via freight or express, on which railroads and express companies must make a profit?

"I say snap judgment, for on giving a little sober thought and investigation to the matter we arrive at two conclusions: first, that in many cases the farmer replenishes his stock at some local commission man's store; secondly, that while we may sometimes get slightly fresher products, we will almost invariably pay more to the farmer for them than we would if purchasing the same article at the corner grocery store. It is simply a matter of economics; the farmer's time is worth something, the top-keep of his team is considerable, and he handles only one line of merchandise—probably a very limited quantity of that, and must therefore make a greater profit on the individual article to secure a living wage.

"The same process of reasoninhg obtains in the distribution of any line of merchandise. There must be some intermediate agency, be they jobbers, branch houses, commission men, brokers—or what not. A producer cannot sell his product absolutely direct to the consumer advantageously.

Direct Trading Unthinkable.

"After consulting with persons I consider sufficiently advised on the subject to be capable authorities, and who has been confirmed that shoes, confectionery and other commodities cannot be purchased to economic advantage in stores operated by manufacturers to distribute their products exclusively to the consumer.

"The millers of one of the most extensively advertised brands of flour sell their product in this market direct to the retailer. They have been doing this for a couple of years, and during that time jobbing grocers handling other popular brands of flour have had the option of either being satisfied with the margin of profit they were being made on flour sales and thereby undersselling the flour sold direct to the retailer, or, by getting under the 'umbrella' held over their heads by this independent firm of millers, enjoy larger profits on flour than ever before.

"That milling firm finds that their sales organization, their clerk hire, their delivery equipment and their credit department are such an expense that to keep their heads above water requires a much greater margin of profit than the jobbing grocer formerly exacted from the retail grocer.

"Yes, and another flour milling corporation tried the same method of distribution and in about one year's time threw up their hands and pleaded with the jobber to take their goods out again and market their flour for them.

"Do you suppose the sugar refinery could set aside the services rendered them by the jobber and distributes their products direct to the retailer so advantageously that the consumer could buy his sugar for less money than he does now? No; emphatically not.

Testing the Issue.

"I have written to over twenty representative manufacturers of food or kindred products asking their opinion as to the economic value of the jobber. In selecting the manufacturers I picked out some whose well-known policy is to consider the jobber an unnecessary distributive medium, for I felt that their opinions would be important and interesting even though they conflict with our conception of good business methods.

"I received answers from scores of the largest manufacturers in the world and the consensus of opinion was that the jobber is an economic factor in the rapid distribution of food products."

Lowry Produce Co. Nicely Located in Their New Quarters

The Lowry Fruit and Produce company have been in their new quarters two weeks, during which time they have been pretty busy keeping pace with the day's business and getting straightened the many things that invariably come with moving.

They have inaugurated a special mail and telephone order department for the out-of-town trade and in discussing that special feature, Mr. Lowry explained: That it enabled the merchant to buy his requirements as intelligently as if he were in the house. Through this department he can keep posted on the market, dealing in safety, which is a most important consideration in this business. Then, too, we do a large business with fancy grocers, hotels and cafes throughout the southeast, and inasmuch as the quantities are limited and the range of territory so large, we find it far more satisfactory to deal by phone. This end of our business has increased materially within the past several months through our market bulletin system. We mail a weekly market letter to our trade and if a merchant finds an item in which he is interested, he communicates with us by phone. Understand, in inaugurating this department, we don't want to convey the impression that we consider it better to buy by phone, rather than from our salesman; instead, it is intended as a convenience for the trade when our salesman is absent from his territory also for the trade in territory not covered by our salesforce."

FIRM GETS ORDER FOR TANK FROM HOLLAND

The Hightower Box and Tank company, of which J. T. Hightower, Jr., is president, succeeding the Southern Box factory twenty-five years ago, celebrated its thirty-fourth anniversary today. They still have one man (William Artz) actively in their employ who always comes in the office on the 9th of April and reminds Mr. Hightower of the occasion. This company has other men in its employ ranging from ten to eighteen years. There has never been the least disturbance between the men and the management.

T. J. Tightower, Jr., the president, has ingratiated himself in the confidence of his men by advancing them according to their merit.

The company recently had an order for a specially made cypress tank from Arnheim, Holland, and not a great while ago shipped a tank to Maine, and frequently makes shipments of its boxes to as far as the Mexican border.

TEACH YOUR MEN HOW TO OBSERVE

Employee's Ability May Depend Upon the Boss. How One Lad Fell Down.

Once upon a time there was a man in the lumber business. He employed many people, among the rest a junior and a senior clerk. His business grew apace, and there came a time when it was necessary to open a branch office.

The senior clerk had been in the employ of the lumber merchant for many, many moons, and he wanted to get the job of managing the new branch. But he didn't get it.

The junior did.

Whereupon the senior, whose name was George, was exceedingly wroth, and made bold to ask the lumber merchant, "Why the injustice? Why this lack of recognition of my life-long service?"

Mr. Merchant said: "All right, George, I will tell you why. But there is something I want you to do for me first. Please go and see if any logs were brought into the yard last night."

George ambled froth, and in due course returned, and said unto the merchant: "Yes, sir. Some logs arrived last night."

"How many?" asked the merchant.

George said, "I don't know. I didn't notice."

"Please go and see."

Again George went to the yard, and upon his return—which event happened in time—said to the merchant, "Twelve carloads, sir."

"What kind were they?"

"I don't know," said George, "I didn't notice."

The merchant asked him to go and get that information.

When George fiowly returned, he informed the merchant that there were seven carloads of oak and five of maple. Whereupon the merchant rang the bell, and the junior, whose name was John, stepped briskly in.

The merchant said unto John: "Please go and see if any logs came into the yard last night."

John departed, came back in a much briefer time than had George on any one of the several occasions, and said: "Yes, sir, twelve carloads, seven of oak and five of maple."

And then the merchant said unto the waiting senior:

"That's the reason, George."

But George might have been taught that principle.

Don't laugh at George. The employer was as much to blame as he was. The employer was of the "There's your job, sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish" sort of man.

Men can be taught the principles of success as certainly as they can be taught arithmetic. The true function of the employer is that of teacher, and employers are fast coming to see that the duty of the employer does not end with the handing out of the pay envelope once a week.

HIGH IMPORTANCE OF THE RETAILER

By William T. Gaffe.

Too little consideration of the importances of the retail division of trade and commerce is given by us all. Too much disposition to class those engaged in the retail distribution of goods as of the unimportant element is indulged in by us all. That's all wrong. Those who make up that class and are engaged in that division are of the supremely important element. All goods, of every description, produced or manufactured, are the output of simple errandry elements. The producers and manufacturers are simply primary servitors of the consumer through those who distribute the "ready to use" articles to the consumer of them.

Let us get it right. The overgrown opinion—one cannot call it "idea"—that the smoke begrimmed factory or mine worker, or the soil and forest worker, eclipses those who put into the hands of the user the results of their work, is out of date. The former toil in factory and mine, on the farm and in the forest, with the sole hope that the great world of consumers will be prevailed upon to use their output; and the retailer is their only hope that this may be accomplished. Let us look the fact straight in the face, that all other branches of industry lean upon, and depend upon, those who labor—oh, so earnestly and effectively to move present stocks so that others may take their place!

Men in the producing and making divisions of commerce do find that there is keen competition for the patronage of the retail merchant. It is true. But that competition, I am convinced, is far less keen than that experienced by the retail merchant himself. And while this is accounted for by the fact that there are many more retailers than wholesalers, it stands to the everlasting credit of the former, that while operating under these conditions, they are developing the human plant for the world's service, in a hundredfold larger measure than all other callings together.

The question of personality is recognised by the wholesaler as a prime factor in gaining and holding business; and so it is coming to be recognised by the retailer in the same manner, though to a greater degree, I believe. Men and women in the retail division of business are wonderfully interested in the virtue of effort; effort to improve in personal power to persuade others to purchase goods of right quality, in just quantities; to lead others to think as they think, to believe as they believe, and to do as they desire them to do, in the interest and to the satisfaction and profit of both buyer and seller.

We find men and women in business, among all classes, who do not appear to realize that they are but cogs in the great wheel of trade, and who act as though they were specially privileged. These all too often may be found in the errandry class—the primary class of producing and making—passing—that those at the top, nearest the king—the consumer—may distribute to him and her. The retailer is nearest the sovereign in this trade world. And he's coming to realize the fact.

RIVERSIDE NINE FAST ON PATHS

Speedy Base Running With Good Pitching Is What They Will Rely On to Win Prep Title.

Gainesville, Ga., April 11.—(Special.) The Riverside Military academy has not been paying very much attention to athletic news for the past two weeks. The local school is right in the midst of its preparation for the first annual inspection by the United States war department.

As soon as the inspection is over, the boys will go right to work on their baseball schedule, preparing for the hard games that Riverside is to play in the near future.

The first big game after inspection will be with the Boys' High school, in Gainesville on Saturday, April 18. The following Monday and Tuesday, the Georgia Military college team of Milledgeville, will be played here. On the following Saturday, the Richmond academy team of Augusta will be played locally.

Several changes have been made in the personnel of the Riverside team, due to several contributory causes.

Loses Infielder.

Jones, of Columbus, Ga., is now rated as the regular catcher, and is showing up exceptionally well. Jones was developed by Coach Anderson, after Mogtgomery was forced to leave school owing to protracted illness.

The pitching staff is composed of Morris Miller, Dingler and Bell, and under Anderson's careful training, this quartet of hurlers is fast developing into the strongest that ever represented Riverside.

Fitch, on third base, and Strupper at short, two of last year's regulars at Stone Mountain, are holding down those berths very acceptably. Holleman, at second base, was in school last year, while Haney, at first, is a first year man.

In the outfield, Captain Carraway, in center, considered one of the best prep outfielders in the south, is the only old man. Harden, in left, and McConnell, in right, are new men, but are showing up splendidly.

Fast Base Runners.

Riverside will make her claim for the championship of the preps of the state on two points, her splendid base running and well-balanced twirling corps.

The brief practice that is allowed by the military department of the school has made the duties of Coaches Anderson and Graham very hard.

The candidates cannot arrive on the field until after 4:45 o'clock in the afternoon. This leaves but little time for work, and the players are crowded with all they can stand in this brief time.

But the players have entered into the spirit of things and are showing wonderful improvement daily.

club, and we're going to give one, cost what it may."

MOBILE IN NEED OF SIX NEW BALL PLAYERS.

Gulls' Opening Line-Up.

Tope, shortstop.
O'Dell, third base.
Perry, second base.
Lord, center field.
Calhoun, first base.
Miller, right field.
Schmidt, catcher.
Hogg, pitcher.

Mobile, Ala., April 11.—(Special.)—This is the batting order that Manager Briscoe Lord will send into action against the Birmingham Barons at Birmingham, next Tuesday afternoon.

This is the best possible line-up that the Gulls can muster at this writing. And just when some new players will be added to the roster remains to be seen. At present all Manager Lord has is promises. None of the big leaguers has turned over any players to him yet.

Needs Six Men.

Lord needs a couple of infielders, an outfielder and three good twirlers. In other words, he needs about half of his ball club before he can be considered formidable.

Some of these men may be obtained between now and opening day, but with the Federals grabbing every good ball player in sight, the majors are loath to turn anything loose that looks good, even with an option on it.

The catching department is O. K. Two reliable pitchers are on hand and two good outfielders, with two useful infielders. Perry and O'Dell in the infield, Lord and Clark in the outfield, Schmidt and Berger or Brown behind the bat and Robertson and Hogg on the mound will do on any team in the league.

The Southern league looks slower in 1914 than any season yet. There seems to be but three clubs which show first-class material: Atlanta, Memphis and New Orleans. Birmingham and Chattanooga show only mediocre form, and as for Nashville, Montgomery and Mobile, there remains nothing but men of the Class D caliber.

The three teams mentioned in the first paragraph seem to lie over the remaining five as does a dollar bill over a dime.

BARONS ARE SHIFTED; STRONGER IN EVERY WAY.

Barons' Opening Line-Up.

McDonald, third base.
Marcan, second base
Knisely, right field
McBride, center field.
Covington, first base.
Diliger, catch.
Ellam, shortstop.
Hardgrove, pitch.

BY ASA BOUNTREE, JR.,
(Sporting Editor Birmingham Age-Herald.)

Birmingham, April 11.—(Special.)—Stronger than last year both in the field and at the plate, the 1914 Baron team will line up Tuesday for the opening gong with prospects bright for an unusually successful season. With added strength on the mound, behind the bat, in the outfield and infield, this year's team appears to be a formidable aggregation and one that will wage a hot fight throughout the coming season for premier honors.

This spring every department on the Baron team has suffered a shaking up and, as a result, the team is much more aggressive and faster than that of last season.

Team Shaken Up.

In the outfield Knisely has been shifted into right from center, while Clyde McBride has also been transferred from the sun garden into the position vacated by the Big Tenton, Jimmy Magee, secured from the New England league, will fill the vacancy in left. As Magee is far stronger at the bat and just as fast as Bob Messenger, last year's leading base stealer will not be missed much.

The infield has also suffered only one change over that of 1913. Covington, purchased from the St. Louis Browns, supplants old Bill McGilvray at first. The new man is a splendid fielder, fast on his feet and no weakling at the bat, and the infield will be [illegible] work faster than previously. Much is expected of McDonald by Manager Smith this year and the Baron leader will be keenly disappointed if he does not prove to be one of the best hot-corner guardians in the league.

Moley is well provided with men behind the ball; in fact, so well that he is having much trouble in deciding which two of the contenders will make the best players. Dilger, a veteran of the 1913 pennant winning team; Tragesser, a former Boston Brave, and Wallace, formerly in the Appalachian league, are contesting for berths. Each of the trio is delivering the goods in large size quantities and the enigma promises to be a hard one for Moley to solve.

Eight Twirlers.

Eight hurlers are still in the running for the five places on the pitching staff. These are Hardgrove, Gregory, Grimes, Byrd, Johnson, Laben, Robertson and Fittery.

Hardy, Gregory, Byrd and Robertson appear to be certainties, leaving four good flingers to contend for the other berth.

Johnson has handled himself in a very capable manner this spring and many are pulling for him to win out in the battle for the fifth position on the staff.

Moley refuses to announce his opening day lineup until he will, in all probability, be composed of Hardgrove and Dilger, the same battery that Hardy is the only real Baron veteran on the hurling staff, so it is being considered he will draw the first call assignment. The same can be said of Dilger.

A slight rearrangement has been made in the batting order by Moleyand Hardy has been shoved to the top of the list, while Magee is batting third and Dilger, McBride has been dropped to fifth place. Knisely, as last season, is occupying the clean-up position.

LOOKOUTS' GREAT NEED IS IN PITCHING STAFF.

Lookouts' Opening Line-Up.

Coyle, short field.
Jacobson, center field.
McCormick, right field.
Balenti, shortstop.
Flick, second base.
Graf, third base.
Street, catcher.
Krob, pitcher.

BY W. G. FOSTER.

(Sporting Editor Chattanooga Times.)

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 11.—(Special.)—Manager Harry McCormick will send into action on Tuesday next the best team that ever started a season for Chattanooga, with just one proviso—that proviso, however, one that may spell disaster and ruin.

The team's one uncertainty is in the pitching; every other department is taken care of by a tried and true performer, leaving absolutely not a weak spot where a shift might likely be necessary.

Except for Gabby Street, the rank and file consists of the ideal combinations of experience and youthful players who have had three or four years of service and know the game, but yet have not been "out" long enough to cause a fear that they may "go back."

Hitting Strong.

The team hits well. Fred Graf, reputed the poorest hitter of the squad, is pounding the ball at a great rate this spring. Every other player on the team, including the catchers and excluding only the pitchers, is a man who has batted consistently .280 and higher in Class A society. That is sufficient to guarantee lots of batting.

On the bases, the Lookouts are consistently fast, with not one prohibitively slow man to clog the path. The infield works like a Dutch clock without a jar or false movement. In the outfield Jacobson is fielding sensationally, Johnson is above the average and McCormick, who it was feared would be too slow to cover much ground, is taking ample care of right field.

The team possess the best pair of catchers in the league in Street and Graham. While there are better players scattered about over the Southern league today than some of these, it is doubtful if McCormick would make a change in a single position had he the chance.

Well-Balanced Crew.

The same well-balanced aspect is continued even to the utility man. Gillespie can play any outfield position or infield, and has shown remarkable adaptability to that base. Hence the team is well provided against accident.

The pitching outlook is far from encouraging. Of the two experienced men, Krob should be the sensation of the league if he keeps in condition, that being something of an "if" with him. Sline is an international league veteran who has pitched none too well in the practice games, and, while a great pitcher in earlier days, may be going back.

Four of the youngsters—Barfoot, Lorensen, Turner and Harding—have shown great promise, but every one of these lads comes either from the Class D league or from the lots direct, and it would be suicidal to risk entering the season with a theory that three of the four would make good.

The club is angling after pitchers and pleading with major league teams for help. If two star minor league twirlers could be added to the roster before the season's start, Chattanooga fans would already be dreaming of a pennant.

BILLIKEN FANS LIKE THEIR BALL CLUB.

Billikens' Opening Line-Up.

H. Baker second base.
Elwert, third base.
McDowell, right field.
Jantzen, center field.
Snedecor, first base.
Kleinow, catcher.
Nelson, pitcher.

By BRADLEY ALLEN,
(Sporting Editor Montgomery Advertiser.)

Montgomery, Ala., April 11.—(Special.)—This is the way Monigomery will line up for the first game of the season here next Tuesday, when Gilks' men meet Johnny Dobbs' Pelicans.

It is conceded by all Montgomery fans, and everyone knows that it is mighty hard to please the home fans, that the players that Gilks and Wilson have gotten together to represent Montgomery in the Southern league are good ones.

Every one of the players who will wear a Montgomery uniform this season is fast on the paths and a team composed of good base runners has a much easier time getting to the counting station than a club with only fair base runners.

Last year, for instance, Memphis had one of the hardest hitting teams in the league, yet they were nowhere near the lead in the number of runs scored. Gilks has been very careful in selecting his players and has been giving them careful instructions as to their work on the paths.

Good in Exhibitions.

During the exhibition games that the Billikens have played in they have looked mighty good, and the prospects for the coming season are brighter for the Montgomery club than they have ever before been at this stage of the season.

The outfield is the only possibly weak spot on the team and they may come through all right. Jantzen, Daly and McDowell are all three exceptionally good fielders and it is just a question as to their stick work.

Last season Jantzen was hitting well over .300 until he was taken sick during the middle of the season, and from then until early the last of the season he suffered a bad slump with his stick. Daly, on the other hand, was hitting poorly at the start of the season, but was coming around nicely at the end of the season. McDowell hit fairly well during his stay in this league last year and his experience then probably helped him to a great extent.

Hitting Well.

If these players hit around .300 this season, and they are all hitting well in the pre-season games, the Montgomery club will be in the running all the time.

Gilks has a good pitching staff and his infield and catchers are equal to any in the league.

With a man of the baseball experience of Gilks on the bench, Kleinow behind the bat, Elwert in the infield, Daly in the outfield and Case and McSon in the box, the youngsters will find that they will be given all possible assistance and, too, these older heads will steady them in the pinches.

While Gilks is not claiming any pennant-winner this early in the season, it looks like a safe bet that the Billikens will finish well up in the first division.

FINN'S TURTLES EXPECT TO BE IN PENNANT HUNT.

Turtles' Opening Line-Up.

Coyle, right field.
Love, center field.
Stark, third base.
Shanley, shortstop.
Mullen, second base.
Dunckle, first base.
Schiel, catcher.
Liebhardt, p.

By HERBERT CALDWELL,
(Sporting Editor Memphis Commercial Appeal.)

Memphis, Tenn., April 11.—(Special.) Michael Joseph Finn, who will this year steer the Turtles through the 1914 Southern league cruise, seems to have molded together a baseball team which if it remains intact, should finish nearer the front than the Turtles of several years past. While not predicting that any pennant will float over Red Elm Hollow next season, from the present outlook it seems that Finn's entry will at least be a contender and looks like a first division outfit.

While Finn himself will not commit himself as to the probable line-up he will start in the opening game against Chattanooga in the Lookout region next Tuesday, the indication is that the above line-up will be his choice with the probable exception of third base. McDermott, secured from Finn's International league, was expected to be the regular third baseman. McDermott, after a few exhibition games, began complaining of a sore arm and has not appeared in the last several games. It is stated that McDermott may be suffering from a torn ligament and there is no telling when it will mend sufficiently to play.

Stark at Third.

Dolly Stark, the local boy, has been filling McDermott's place and has been filling it very creditably. Stark has been hitting and fielding well in the pre-season games, and in all likelihood will play third base against the Lookouts Tuesday.

Dunckel has made good at first base. He has been the only candidate for that position. Captain Mullen is a certainty at second with Shanley at shortstop. Manager Finn is particularly pleased with the showing of the infielders of the Turtles so far.

The outfield is sort of an unknown quantity. It looks like Duggan in left, Love in center and Coyle in right for the opener. Coyle is the only one yet to show much ability with the stick. Duggan is a fast and sure fielder, but has not hit much in the exhibition games. Love is a remnant of the 1913 Turtle layout.

From the condition of the pitchers at present it looks like Glen Liebhardt will go to the post for the Turtles in the starter. In the last thirteen innings Liebhardt has pitched he has not been scored on and looks much better than he did last year.

Schiel In Form.

One of the surprises of the team this year and much to the gratification of manager Finn has been the showing of George Schiel, the ex-major league catcher. Schiel has been catching wonderful ball and has been getting his hits regularly. He has caught several full games already and looks like he will certainly be behind the bat when the locals start on the summer grind next Tuesday.

The infield is a fairly good hitting infield, with plenty of fight in them. The team so far has shown more fight than any team representing the Bluff City in the last few years. If the outfielders do their share of hitting, it certainly looks like Finn has a team that should at least be in the select four when President Kavanaugh's league has finished another season.

KID COLLIER WILL NOT COME BACK TO CRACKERS

Washington, April 11.—(Special.)—Henry Collier, the former Georgia Tech twirler, will not be sent to the Atlanta club of the Southern league. This was the positive announcement made by Clark Griffith today.

Collier's name was in the list of players that Griffith sent to Smith as men that he would most likely send to the minors. Griff received a letter from Billy Smith to the effect that the latter was well stocked with pitchers and could not use Collier.

Manush Given His Release; Lawrence Sent to Norfolk; Squad Now Numbers 20

Manager Bill Smith of the Crackers made his final cut previous to the opening of the season, and the final cut he will make until he has to cut down to the player and salary limit the early part of May.

Frank Manush, the veteran infielder, and Elmer Lawrence, the young twirler from the Appalachian league, were the men to go.

Manush was given his outright release in keeping with an agreement that he and Manager Smith had when he reported this spring. Manush may sign up with the Rochester club.

Lawrence has been sent to Norfolk in the Virginia league with a string attached that can be pulled at any stage during the present pennant race or next spring.

Lawrence shows too much promise to let go outright. If he had his release he could hook himself tonight as Crackers.

This leaves the Crackers with twenty men, seven pitchers, three catchers, control he would still be a winner with three outfielders, a utility man and six infielders. Manager Smith has announced that he will carry all of these men until the final cutting down time.

ST. LOUIS FEDS LEAVE THEIR TRAINING CAMP

Monroe, La., April 11.—Having passed through the spring training season without an injury, the St. Louis Federal league baseball team broke camp tonight and started on the return trip home. They will meet Indianapolis at St. Louis Thursday in the opening game of the season. Manager Stovall himself tonight as well pleased with the team.

IT'S FUNNY TO ME—

THE WAY MY BUNGALOWS are selling at Lakewood Heights, but it should arouse a CURIOSITY on your part to find out the REASON for this. I have sold four bungalows at Lakewood Heights this week—one for $4,000, one for $3,500, one for $3,850, one for $3,750. These were all SOLD before they were completed. If you will get on the car and go out to LAKEWOOD HEIGHTS and take a look you will SEE the reason they sell at a glance. They have five rooms each, and they are PERFECT Bungalows. They are different from anything you have seen in Atlanta. There is a sentiment of home life about them that makes you want one the minute you see it, and when you do see it you will agree with me that there is a vast difference between a BUNGALOW and a BARN. Will have two more completed in about ten days. Price, $3,100 and $3,200. Get off the car at Adair avenue. It is just TWENTY-TWO MINUTES to CALIFORNIA via LAKEWOOD HEIGHTS.

FORREST & GEORGE ADAIR

THE CONSTITUTION'S FIRING LINE

In extra large type there appeared in the statement of a Georgia bank lately this line: "Bills payable, none." Last week in New York money was quoted: "Call money, no demand; time loans, 2 per cent."

Many banks in the south today have bills payable, none. This has not been the case to any large extent heretofore, and rarely does time money get so cheap in New York. The connection between these two statements is this—the south is beginning to be able to finance herself, because some of the money produced here is being kept at home or exchanged for value received. The recent legislative enactments that have been decidedly antagonistic to stock and cotton gambling have dealt a body blow to that element who have been preying on the ultimate producer.

The currency bill recently passed is already like a huge shadow coming ahead of the real event making for changes that will in a great measure revolutionize the present system. The small banks now so freely scattered over the country will pass away, the centralization of dependable funds or markets for money in many sections of the United States will so scatter the huge reserves that have been ever on hand in New York for speculative purposes that more money than ever before will be available for agriculture. And after all is said and all is done, there is only one chief factor in the whole economy of commercial life in the United States, and that is the producer, the farmer, the tiller of the soil, the people who take the seed and cause them to multiply. If conditions are adverse to the farmer and his crops, every industry suffers. If the farmer has the proper assistance every industry will prosper accordingly. The reason the small banks will be a thing of the past is simply the result of the natural law of supply and demand. If Farmer Brown has good crops and makes money and Farmer Jones did not, and needs some money, then he can get it from Farmer Brown, and if Farmer Brown had rather loan it to Farmer Jones and get a fair rate of interest for it than let it lie in a bank idle, or keep it in a stocking. Therefore, there will be no place for the little bank of a few thousand dollars capital, from the fact that there will be more and more money each year, and the money made by Farmer Brown this year will be assurely put to work to earn interest as has been the foreign capital imported by the small banks from New York, at 6 per cent, and loaned to the farmer at from 10 per cent to 20 per cent.

Of all the legislative measures passed in recent years the currency bill will most likely work for greater good to the producers than any laws passed in the last century. The condition existing that makes a commodity worth only 1 cents in one place and 10 cents in another indicates very simply a most unequal distribution, which can be regulated long except by arbitrary or evil power. This condition has existed for years relative to money which is a mere commodity in New York. It has been cheap, but whenever anyone outside of the charmed circle wanted it, it gradually got higher and higher until it finally got to where it was sorely needed, the cost was almost prohibitive. Any act or law that will tend to more equal distribution of a commodity will positively be keenly beneficial from the fact that it will then the greatest good to the greatest number of people. And while these ideas are adverse to the farmer and the monopoly that heretofore existed will suffer, yet if they have the least bit of wisdom they will see that they are the ones to get the benefit, for if the same conditions were allowed to go on there would come a time when destruction, as sure and as certain as death, would overtake them, and to verify this see the pages of history and see the many indisputable evidence of handwritings on the walls of time that were neglected, and read the ultimate result.

Even in recent years we have but to look back a few pages and see the warning written in financial panics that have hurled money-mad men into a vortex of horrors that lead many to suicide and disaster. Then these stormclouds were venting their fury, tearing asunder the most mighty structures of commercial life, and making trash heaps of fortunes that in the days before passed as indestructable, grinding into dust the wealth of many a year in a few hours, and power was deemed impregnable a few hours before.

While all this storm was playing havoc and the skies were dark, there the sun was shining, and there will be a ripple of wing was felt in all this broad land and people were about their work as usual, some remarking: "I hear there is a panic on in New York." The plowman never left his plow, the planted and gathered his harvest just the same; he was fed and was happy. Today the railroads are not need of advance in freight rates, nor do they need to employ the forces formerly employed to make the country better off. If the great army of the unemployed want work they can get it. In the vast fields of the land there is a good paying job with a little man, and many to spare, did they but realize it and take chances. Then the railroads have all they could do hauling the products of the soil, and they would of their own accord and from the fullness of their own prosperity lower freight rates instead of raising them. There is also another army often referred to now, and that is the army of the idle poor. Here is an example that leads many to join the army of the idle poor.

With the shutting down of many industrial plants and the augmenting of the ranks of idle will come the time that other kinds of work must be done to make a living, and then the idle people will they turn, where nature requires no skilled artisan to make a living; where steady, persistent work in all ways fully rewarded with plenty.

The Compulsory Education

"There are six states without compulsory education laws, namely: South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas, and four states with compulsory laws that apply only partially—Maryland, Virginia, Arkansas and Louisiana. All are southern states. Statistics show that, although illiteracy has been reduced very rapidly in these states in the last two decades, they still have the highest percentage of illiteracy among the white population."

This statement was made by a state high school inspector of one of these southern states before a recent conference. Compulsory education reduces illiteracy.

No work of the D. A. R. of Georgia is more worthy of consideration. They must remember that this great undertaking, the compulsory education law, is largely due to them. What will be the result of well-directed effort and the concerted action of the 2,500 women who belong to this patriotic organization?

D. A. R. of Georgia, as patriots I plead with you today. Read the report of your state chairman, Mrs. A. O. Harper, of Athens, which appears in this column today. You must have a full knowledge of the conditions that exist in your state at the present time. Study the bill which was introduced last summer, and which passed the senate. Secure the co-operation and the pledge from your representatives to vote for this bill when it comes before the house this year.

Let us work so that the legislature of 1914 will be convinced that compulsory education is needed in our beloved state of Georgia.

MRS. HOWARD M'CALL,
State Corresponding Secretary.

W. M. Nichols, city salesman for Gramling-Spalding company, is having a mighty fine trade on Premium Brand shoes during the past two or so.

L. E. Davis, representing the Union Metallic Cartridge company, and Joseph Terry, representing the Dupont Powder company, were visitors at Brown-Perryman-Greene company yesterday.

Gramling-Spalding company have had an unusually heavy trade on Premium Brand shoes. The shipping department has been working night and day, keeping pace with the orders. Jobbers everywhere are evidently going to turn out Easter in low cuts.

Banks Whiteman, of John Silvey & Co., is unable to take the road on account of the illness of his father.

W. K. Smith, the Battle Axe shoe "Prophet of Kennesaw Mountain," placed two nice opening bills last week.

Rockwell Johnson, of Red Seal Shoe fame, has gone to Boston, Mass., where he will spend about ten days studying styles for fall and market conditions relative to the shoe industry.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION COMMITTEE'S REPORT

There are thousands of uneducated parents who are standing in the way of education of the children for whom the state has provided educational opportunities by liberal expenditure of money raised by taxation. If one body of citizens must be taxed to support schools for other citizens, these other citizens in the interest of the state, should be compelled to attend these schools. Education is the upbuilding of life, and is, therefore, essentially progress, all progress is education, and all right education is progress. Do not the interests of the child demand compulsory education?

The question with us is not the prosecuting of a school or teachers, but the vital one of securing the child for the schools, and once put there, of keeping them until the course is done. Such a law would bring the child into school at an early age, at a time of life when his mind is plastic and open to impression, and when the effect of inheritance and environment can be most easily counteracted.

Realising these needs our able state regent appointed two years ago a committee to wage an aggressive campaign for a compulsory school attendance law. Each member of the committee has done fine work, which was zealously cared last year by the passage of our bill (with a few minor changes) by the Georgia state senate, which will be reintroduced in the house of representatives at next session.

Compulsory education laws have been enacted in all states save six, and of these six illiterate states is the Empire State of the South. We need legislation on the subject. Our watchword must be co-operation. A stupendous task confronts us. The house and senate representatives must be convinced of the fearful illiteracy of our whites and that the interest of the child demand a compulsory education. Must the education of the child be dependent upon the consent of the ignorant and uneducated parent who has no appreciation whatever of its value? In permitting such a parent to prevent the education of his child, do we not infringe upon the rights of the child, and grant to the parent a right that is morally his?

A compulsory school law administered with judgment would do no violence to the rights of parents. But would protect them of innocent and dependent children. It is far cheaper as a money investment to save a child from becoming a criminal than to deal with him after he has become one. If the women of Georgia are of one mind on any one thing we can accomplish it we women have set our minds in the right direction; we beg you individually to see your state representative, make it a personal plea when you talk to them to give us their vote and individual support for the final passage of the compulsory school attendance bill, remind them of their duty to their children, we will see before another state conference the dark shadows of illiteracy are being lifted from Georgia.

MRS. A. O. HARPER,
State Chairman.

MRS. HARRISON'S ILLNESS IS SOURCE OF REGRET

Your acting state editor wishes to extend to Mrs. Joseph S. Harrison, of Columbus, the love and sympathy of the Georgia D. A. R. Her continued illness has been a source of deep regret to her many friends and many wishes are contained in this greeting for her early recovery.

A letter was sent to her during the recent conference by the members present expressing their regret over her absence. Mrs. Harrison has attended many of the state conferences and by personal magnetism and lovable disposition has won many friends not only in the D. A. R., but in the other state organization of which she is a member.

May she recover her health and once more become an active member in the work she loves so well.

MRS. LAMAR VISITS AMERICUS CHAPTER

The Americus chapter was highly honored last week by a visit from our state president, Mrs. W. D. Lamar. She was entertained by Mrs. F. P. Harrold at her home on College street, where she was the recipient of many social attentions.

Mr. Lamar was accompanied by Mrs. J. A. Lokden, also of Macon, who was charmingly entertained by Captain and Mrs. J. A. Cobb, Saturday afternoon at which time tendered the ladies a reception at the home of the president, Mrs. Cato, when Mrs. Lamar addressed the daughters and their friends in her most charming manner.

Mrs. Lamar also spoke most eloquently upon the importance of introducing the prize essay contests in all the schools of the city and county.

MRS. JAMES DAVENPORT.

INTERESTING MEETINGS OF KENNESAW CHAPTER

Kennesaw chapter, located at Marietta, decided at its last meeting to have one social in the quarter, hoping thereby to arouse interest and increase the attendance.

Last Wednesday we met with Mrs. J. H. Walton for the first of the series. She is a charming hostess, and we know when we meet at her home it means a good time. It was raining, but the attendance was fine and an interesting program was rendered. Mrs. Warren and Mrs. Walton sang a duet, one of the sweet old songs we love, all southern hearts, "Oh, Loving Heart, Trust On." Then we took up the study of Miss Rutherford's New Orleans address. Twenty questions were answered and discussed. We hope to refresh our memories with southern history by this study.

Mrs. Warren sang "Jackets of Gray" and it is needless to say many eyes were moist with tears for when we last saw "our loved soldier boys go off in the suits of gray," but never return. The Old Folks at Home" and "Nelly Gray" were enthusiastically sung by all—songs that brought many memories of the long ago.

Shiloh day is soon to near, we combined it with the social, and a touchingly beautiful poem describing the battle was read by Mrs. Lyon and an offering was made for Shiloh monument.

Light refreshments were served and all engaged in delightful comment and with a good time. Yes, it was a real social a success.

Kennesaw chapter will pay her 25 cents per member for the Georgia room at Richmond and will contribute what she can to other causes. We will join with memorial associations in celebrating Memorial day. She offered two prizes in the history contests and has placed the pictures of Davis and Lee in the schools.

We want to join with the daughters everywhere in the study of our state's history in the schools. One of the girls in the senior class here told me that she had rather enjoyed this to more some of the answers that their history teaches. I wish we had more like her. The chapter always sends an evergreen cross and with the colors to the funeral of our veterans and the same young lady never is too busy to write for a story that we have a card to go with it. We have started the year off with better attendance and more enthusiasm at the meetings. Hope it will continue to increase.

Everything Goes.

(From The Chicago Inter-Ocean.)

Students of the times are wondering what further the pendulum will swing on this beat before it stops and starts back. Apparently "everything goes" now. What will come next? Or if the pendulum goes much higher and faster?

So completely have things changed that it seems as if the most women are no longer the conservative element the women are setting the pace and the men are following. Even the sexes have changed roles and it is now the men who are the conservatives.

Close observers agree that the pendulum is not yet ready to turn back. The foolishness in fashions, politics, diplomacy, business, dancing, amusements and ways of life generally has not yet run its course. We are to see more before we see better.

However, conservative people and sensible at bottom, no matter how they appear to indulge in these things. Some day, we will all come to a sudden realization of the foolishness of our present ways.

And then the pendulum will hesitate, stop and turn back toward sane, safe and sober ways of life.

and in every case the candidate presented must specify the scholarship for which they are applying.

Qualifications for All Applicants.

All applicants for the choice of these scholarships must be at least 17 years of age, give promise of robust health, must be able to pass the entrance examinations for the college for which they apply, must give suitable proof of their inability to pay for their education, must be the lineal descendant of a confederate veteran and must be indorsed by the president of the division and the chairman of committee on education of their state. The state chairman must file the six applications from her state with their certificates, diplomas and indorsements with the general chairman U. D. C. committee not later than May 10, 1914. Arrangements for examinations and awards of all scholarships will be in charge of the general U. D. C. committee.

Finance. Four of the fourteen general scholarships are scholarships in full, paying board and tuition: Vassar, $500; Washington and Lee, $150. Alice Bristol scholarship, $1,000, and the Loretta Mother House, $250. The other ten are scholarships of free tuition or partial scholarships.

(Part No. II will be given next Sunday.)

THIRD ENDURANCE RUN TO BE HELD APRIL 19

Atlanta Motorcycle Club to Go to Rome and Return on Next Sunday.

At the regular meeting of the Atlanta Motorcycle club held Friday night at 224 Peachtree street, it was decided to hold the third and last of the series of the three endurance contests on April 19.

This run will cover a distance of 190 miles, and will leave Atlanta at 7 o'clock, going to Dallas, Rockmart, Cedartown, Cave Springs and Rome.

Contestants will take dinner at Rome, and leaving Rome will go to Cartersville and Marietta, arriving back in Atlanta in the evening at 5:30.

In addition to the regular control of each of the above named points, there will be possibly five secret controls. A regular schedule between these controls will be maintained with a ten minutes leeway at each control.

Any rider receiving outside assistance in any manner will be penalized so many points for each offense. Riders having falls from their machines or allowing their machines to fall on the ground or assisting their machines up any hill or through any sand stretches, punctures, the losing of any nut or screw from off their machine, the breaking of any part, all of these different features carry a point for penalization.

Getting Started.

Before the riders leave from the first control, their machines are examined by the judges, and after their return in the evening, these machines are checked in, and the rider who covers the entire trip without having any of the above numerous possible points against him is awarded the perfect score of one thousand points.

Considerable interest is being centered in this particular endurance contest, as the combined score of the three runs will decide the winner of the gold medal for the best score.

In the previous two runs, the best scores were made by A. A. Parrish, who rides a Harley-Davidson, and L. Hudson, who rides a Thor, and Johnny Aiken, the hustling Harley-Davidson dealer. These three are the contestants for the gold medal.

Banquet Next.

It was decided at the meeting that the club would give a banquet at the Ansley hotel on the night of the 21st of April, where the gold medal will be awarded.

This third and last endurance contest is creating considerable interest among the motorcyclists of Atlanta and it is expected that there will be about fifty riders who will participate. Of course quite a number of these will go along with the boys just for the fun of the ride, as the schedule is arranged in such a manner that almost any rider of a motorcycle can keep up with the boys.

There is no racing or speed, just a steady average clip of about 20 miles per hour. Quite a number of the riders will carry with them their cameras and photographs of different scenes and groups will be taken during the run. Every rider of a mortorcycle is invited to join in this run. All that is necessary is to be at the starting point, 224 Peachtree street, at 7 o'clock on April 19.

Two Days' Run.

The next meeting will probably be held after the banquet. Details will be arranged then for a big special endurance contest that will be pulled off on April 26 and 27.

This contest will cover probably 250 miles and a route will be arranged and selected probably from Atlanta to Augusta and returning from Atlanta to Columbus, to Macon to Atlanta.

One of these two routes will be selected and special prizes will be offered to the rider having the best score. This run will cover two days and the time to return to Atlanta is on the afternoon of April 27 between 4 and 5 o'clock, coming through Whitehall and Peachtree streets. It is expected that there will be possibly seventy-five entries in this contest.

A large crowd will be watching out to greet the return of these dusty, tired speeders from this long ride. The full details and arrangement for this contest will be made at the banquet.

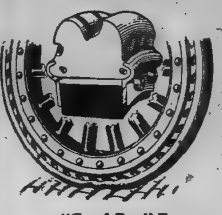
No More Motor Trucks Shaken to Pieces



The call for a Motor Truck Tire, essentially practical, has been answered—answered so completely that countless Commercial Car Owners have ceased to concern themselves further as to tire equipment. Here are solved the problems of economy of operation, increased mileage, utmost car-protection and car-durability. Whether for light Commercial Delivery Car or Heavy Truck, you'll find Motz Cushion Tires ideal.

"Good-Bye" Forever to Punctures and Blowouts

You who use pneumatic tires, aren't you tired of punctures and blowouts?

Are you not ready to say farewell to breakdowns idle men, idle cars and delayed deliveries?

Wouldn't you like to avoid buying new tires every few weeks and footing excessive tire repair bills?

You can do it. You can avoid all these troubles, trials and burdensome costs. Untold hundreds have done so.

Protection to Trucks

So that in place of punctures and blowouts you have uncertain mileage, vibration, frequent adjustments, and increased up-keep cost.

And those hard unyielding tires just shake your truck to pieces. Thousands have thus met utter ruin.

Motz Cushion Tires

How It Was Done

Men asked, "How can such a tire be built? How can a tire, without compressed air, give the car ample protection?"

First—The Motz Cushion Tire is chemically different from the ordinary tire. Only the famous "417" rubber is used. These tires contain no hard rubber or metal. They are lively rubber throughout.

Second—The Motz Cushion Tire contains more rubber than other tires of corresponding carrying capacity—almost FIFTY PER CENT more. This extra volume of rubber adds further resilience.

Third—But the biggest feature is the form and outline—the physical construction. Note the double treads, the undercut sides, the slantwise bridges—patented features that [illegible].

The dual treads give great tractive area. The undercut sides permit the tire to give and yield quickly, thus absorbing sudden shocks; the slantwise bridges, when the tread is depressed, are stretched. They pull the tire back to normal shape quick as a flash.

The Guaranty

Most tire manufacturers have had to reduce the mileage guarantee on their Commercial type of tires from 10,000 miles to 7,000 miles. Many "pneumatic" guarantees have been withdrawn. But the Motz guarantee remains the same—10,000 miles, one year. Consider the advantage in miles, and also that here is a tire of high resilience.

Fits All Rims

The Motz Cushion Tire fits all standard pneumatic rims of clincher type, and all truck wheels of S. A. E. dimensions. For further information, call at our local store in person or by phone. Or write for handsome, illustrated Tire Book 187.

Macon, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—Clemson was defeated by Mercer today in a game that was marked by ragged fielding by the score of 7 to 5.

Schachte, the Clemson pitcher, was not effective with men on bases, Webb was again the star for the visitors.

The feature of the game was the pitching of Stevens for Mercer. With three men on bases in the second he came through without being scored upon in that stanza. He struck out nine men, including the last three men that faced him in the ninth inning.

Though Farmer did not get credited with a hit, it was his drive that scored three of the seven runs.

COTTON STATES MAY OPEN SEASON MAY 4

Plans for Reorganization Complete—Six Teams in the League So Far.

Mobile, Ala., April 11.—Plans for the reorganization of the Cotton States league on an abbreviated basis have been perfected. An eighty-game schedule will be played commencing on May 4. The teams that will compose the circuit will represent Jackson, Miss., Jackson, Tenn., Columbus, Aberdeen, Meridian and Tupelo.

The circuit is still open for two more teams in case it is found feasible to enlarge it to eight clubs.

A salary limit of $800 a month has been adopted, and no team will be allowed to carry more than twelve players.

The opening games will be played at Meridian, Tupelo and Aberdeen. The Fourth of July battles will be staged in the two Jacksons and Columbus. G. M. Flynn, of Columbus, will serve as president of the league. No Sunday games will be permitted.

The authority for the above information came from President Flynn at Columbus, Miss., in a special to The Item. The addition of Jackson, Tenn., according to baseball authorities, is going to be the life-saver for the organization, as it is one of the best baseball towns in the south.

Kinsella Wins.

London, April 11.—Walter Kinsella, the New York court tennis professional, today beat Cecil "Punch" Fairs, former world's professional court tennis champion, in a match at Prince's club by three sets to two. The score was 6-3, 3-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1.

PREP SCHOOL TITLE IN BALANCE MONDAY

Gordon Institute and G. M. C. Meet at Barnesville Monday and Tuesday.

Barnesville, Ga., April 11.—(Special.) The prep school baseball title of the state of Georgia hangs in the balance on the outcome of the games to be played here Monday and Tuesday.

Those old rivals, Gordon Institute of this city and the Georgia Military college of Milledgeville, will tie up in a two-game series. Return games will be played in Milledgeville later in the season.

Advance dope on the two teams points to one of the hardest fought series of games ever staged here, with the outcome in doubt all the way.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

ATLANTA'S STRIDES FROM DAY TO DAY

George L. Word, who, for the past two years, has been engaged in the mortgage loan business, has announced the removal of his office to room 1117 Healey building. The Word firm is one of the oldest established loan firms in the city, and until its removal occupied offices in the Third National bank building.

For James Luther Campbell, 48 Piedmont place, an eight-room house and lot to J. J. Bentley for $8,000. To J. M. Reeves, a six-room bungalow on 84 Melrose avenue, for $4,500. Also a number of out-of-town deals.

The building permit for the $75,000 John Deere structure to be erected at Walker and Nelson streets was taken out yesterday by E. D. Duncan, secretary of the Investment Company of the South, which is handling the industrial movement behind the Deere building, which is to be leased by the famous implement concern.

Oglethorpe Park Auction.

Much interest in the real estate world is being centered on the auction Monday of Oglethorpe park lots. It is generally conceded that this project will be one of the most successful realty moves in recent years.

In the announcement yesterday of the erection of a proposed apartment house by G. T. R. Fraser, it was erroneously stated that the building will occupy the corner of Eleventh and Juniper streets. The site is at Seventh and Juniper instead. Work will begin at once.

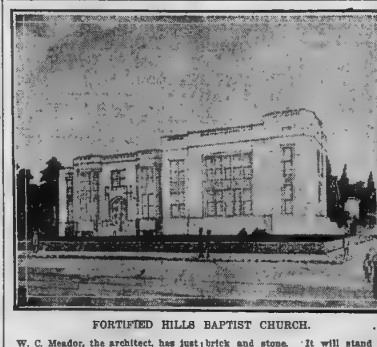
New Church for Fortified Hills



FORTIFIED HILLS BAPTIST CHURCH.

W. C. Meador, the architect, has just completed plans for a new church for the Fortified Hills Baptist church congregation.

This beautiful little structure will cost $20,000. It will be constructed of brick and stone. It will stand two stories on a lot 175x174.

Work of construction will start May 1, but the construction of the Sunday school room only is contemplated for this summer.

EXPENSIVE HOMES ARE BEING BUILT ON PEACHTREE ROAD

From the intersection of Peachtree circle, where George W. Parrott is erecting his handsome $60,000 apartment building, on out Peachtree road far beyond Brookwood, there is now a great deal of substantial and beautiful building going on.

There are four or five expensive residences now practically complete or in course of construction, representing the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

James H. Whitten has just completed and moved into his new residence near Lakeview avenue. This is considered one of the most artistic residences architecturally of the newer ones on Peachtree road.

Just south of Peachtree creek J. J. Haverty's new residence is nearing completion. This residence, sitting upon a knoll above Peachtree road, presents an impressive appearance. Landscape gardeners are now at work upon the grounds.

Charles H. Black is rebuilding his residence, which was badly damaged by fire some time ago. This residence is being veneered with gray granite and will present a very striking contrast with the dark shrubbery of Mr. Black's grounds.

Mr. Tarower has plans for a new residence on the lot adjoining the Whitten home, and at least three or four others are being planned for that immediate section.

NEW HAVEN RECORDS SOUGHT BY GOVERNMENT

Washington, April 11.—Joseph W. Folk, chief counsel of the interstate commerce commission, expects to begin early next week in the supreme court of the District of Columbia proceedings to compel witnesses in the New Haven railroad investigation to answer questions concerning the operations of the Billard company. If it should be necessary to take similar steps to compel the production of the books and records of the Billard company, another proceeding probably would be started, according to Mr. Folk, at New Haven, Conn., as that is the seat of the concern.

As to the witnesses, however, the situation is different. They are under subpoena to appear here and did actually appear and their refusal to testify was made here. It is held, therefore, that they fall within the jurisdiction of the district court.

In the proceedings to be started the Billard company, the several recalcitrant witnesses presumably connected with the Billard company, the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, and the latter's subsidiary, the New England Navigation company, will be made defendants, although the railroad and the navigation company have expressed a desire to comply with the commission's orders and to co-operate with it in every way in obtaining the information it wants.

EFFORT MADE TO BAR "PINK BOLL WORM"

Washington, April 11.—Fear that the "pink boll worm," a dangerous cotton pest, may be introduced into the United States through accidental presence of seed in lint cotton received by spinners caused the federal horticultural board today to warn cotton mills, especially those in the south, to destroy by burning all seed that may be found in bales of imported Egyptian cotton. The seed, it is stated, is likely to contain the larvae of the destructive pest.

The fear regarded the pink boll worm so dangerous to the cotton crop that last year a quarantine was promulgated against importations of cotton seed from all foreign countries. Since then several shipments of cotton seed infested with the worm have been intercepted and destroyed.

"While the number of seeds accidentally left in a bale of cotton is probably small," says the board, "a very large quantity of baled Egyptian cotton is imported so that in the aggregate the number of infested seeds might well prove a serious menace to the local crop. This is especially true in view of the fact that much of this baled cotton is shipped to southern cotton mills which, in some cases, are in the immediate vicinity of cotton fields which would form a ready breeding place for any larvae that might escape."

MARSHALL TO WELCOME REVOLUTION DAUGHTERS

Washington, April 11.—Vice President Marshall will deliver the address of welcome to delegates to the annual congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which meets here April 20, for a week's session. Mrs. William Cumming, wife of the president general, announced today that President Wilson had sent a letter of regret in reply to the invitation to address the opening session, pleading official duties.

Speaker Clark also will address the delegates on the opening day, as will Secretary McAdoo, of the treasury department, and Edmund Wetmore, president general of the Sons of the American Revolution.

President and Mrs. Wilson will receive the delegates at the white house on the second day of the session, and later memorial services for Mrs. Charles Warren Fairbanks and Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, former presidents' generals who died during the year, will be held.

Two Children of John W. Grant Start Work on Handsome Home.

This is a snapshot of Master John W. Grant, Jr., and little Miss Annie Grant, son and daugter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant, the picture being taken as they shoveled the first earth for the excavation for the magnificent new residence of the Grants on the Pace's Ferry road. The work on the construction of the residence, which will cost considerably more than $100,000, is now well under way.

The residence is located on the Pace's Ferry road at the point where Andrews' Drive enters that avenue. A perspective of the building, the architect of which is W. T. Downing, was published in last Sunday's Constitution. It is surrounded by a magnificent estate, and when completed will be one of the handsomest residence estates in the south.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant, accompanied by Miss Margaret, are now traveling in Europe, the two children whose pictures are presented herewith being in Atlanta with their grandmother, Mrs. William D. Grant.

Sappington Tells of Fight For Widening of Whitehall

Upper Whitehall street has been regraded, Peachtree street has been regraded, Ivy street has been regraded. The neck of the bottle has been widened, many other street improvements have been made and work is now starting once more at the junction of Whitehall and Forsyth streets—the scene of the first permanent street improvement ever accomplished in Atlanta.

This first piece of work consisted of widening Whitehall street for a space of ten feet from the junction westward to the railroad.

T. H Sappington, of the real estate agency of T. H. Sappington & Co., was the man who was responsible for this first improvement.

Fought Before Council.

Before 1897, Whitehall street, below the junction of Forsyth street, was so narrow that it was extremely dangerous for vehicles attempting to pass street cars. Mr. Sappington studied this problem and was first to realize the great advantage of a wide street. For two years he fought before council, the county commissioners, and through The Constitution, also before the public, to have his project put through, but the idea of spending money to widen a street seemed to the politician of that day to be political suicide and they would not vote for it. For two years Mr. Sappington made his fight.

"The city politicians at that time," says Mr. Sappington, "were spending about $65,000 for the enrichment of a few already wealthy men on the north side of the city. Notwithstanding the fact that the south side was paying liberal percentage of the city's taxes, no money was being spent on the south side. At length I went to Mr. Chamberlin, of the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose company, and I told him what was happening. At first he would not believe me, so I told him where to find the things I had mentioned. He got in his buggy and drove out there and found conditions just as I had stated.

Mr. Chamberlin Aroused.

"Mr. Chamberlin was all worked up and wanted to know what I wanted him to do to help win out in my fight and I told him that all I wanted him to do was to go to the politicians and tell them that Sappington was going to expose them in The Constitution and that Chamberlin would be the first man to back him up the minute the papers hit the street.

"Mr. Chamberlin did this and that afternoon there was a called meeting of council and the project of widening Whitehall street was unanimously agreed upon.

"That's about the end of this story," said Mr. Sappington, "except that those politicians who believed they would be defeated in the next election if they voted for the widening of Whitehall were all returned to office for the sole reason that they did vote for the project."

T. H. SAPPINGTON.

Miss Agnes Brewster will be Miss Gibson's maid of honor, and her other attendants will be Mrs. Fred Slater and Mrs. W. W. Connell. Dr. Jackson's ushers and groomsmen will be Mr. Sam Gibson, Mr. Charles Solomons, Dr. Walter Norton and Mr. Herman C. Schupp-rine. His best man will be Mr. W. S. Myers. Little Misses Elsie Gibson and Frances Brown will be flower girls.

A quiet Easter wedding of cordial interest is that of Miss Isabel Heyward to Mr. Emmet Cheatham Wilson, with a few intimate friends will be present at the ceremony, which will take place in St. John's church at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, April 14. Miss Selina Heyward will be her sisters maid of honor, and Mr. Roger Berry, of Baltimore, will act as Mr. Wilson's best man. Mr. Wilson is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter S. Wilson, but has made his home in Washington, D. C., for several years. Miss Heyward is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Daniel Heyward. Both young people have many friends interested in their marriage.

Few of the after-Easter dramatics will equal in interest the production of "The King of the Cannibal Islands," the amusing operetta written by the Misses Olmstead and to be presented by a cast of clever amateurs the afternoon of April 22 in the Benedictons hall. There will be only one performance, instead of the two originally planned, and only ladies will be admitted. There is a large chorus of twenty-eight voices, fourteen men and fourteen ladies, with Miss Florence Olmstead in the title role of "The King of the Cannibal Islands." It will be most amusing. Others who have leading parts are Mrs. Julien deSaussure Kops, Miss Elizabeth Drummond, Miss Mary Shorter and Mrs. Eldred Simkins. The play is to be given for the benefit of the free kindergarten of the Bishop Beckwith society, and members of the society have been appointed on various committees to take charge of the details. They are as follows: Mrs. Harry Solomons, Mrs. Lawton, publicity; Mrs. A. C. Read and Mrs. W. C. Burney, properties; Mrs. Noel B. Wright, hall and reserved seats; Mrs. John T. Johnson and Mrs. Morgan, tickets; Mrs. T. J. Charlton and Mrs. Baltzer, printing programs and tickets.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Garfunkel announce the engagement of their sister Ruth, to Dr. Harry Jarmolowsky, of New York. Miss Garfunkel is now in New York. She will return home the later part of this week and the wedding will probably take place in June. It will be of great interest to their many Savannah friends.

BESSIE TIFT COLLEGE.

A unique and beautiful program was held on Saturday evening by the members of the Kappa Delta society. The purpose of the program was to celebrate the founding of the society in 1900. The stage was attractive in its decorations of yellow and white, the society colors, and daisies, the society flower. A large number of old Kappa Deltas returned to the college for this occasion, and some of them participated in the program. The three members of the faculty who were Kappa Deltas during their student days here also had places on the program. The papers read showed that the society has a rich heritage in the noble young women who have composed its membership. Especially has the society been fortunate in its selection of presidents from year to year, whose lofty ideals have helped to give to it a stamp of sincerity and truth. The president now in the chair is Miss Mary Hamilton, of Grovetown, Ga., and under her efficient guidance the society has enjoyed one of the most prosperous years in its history. The following program was rendered:

Violin solo, Miss Lucy Kate Clark.

Vocal solo, Miss Frances Fulghum, 1911, accompanied by Miss Cecile Dominick, 1910.

"Ideals of the Kappa Delta Society," Miss Bessie Noles, 1908.

"To My Daisy" (Written by a member of the society) Read by Miss Dona Hendricks, 1915.

Letters from former presidents, Mrs. Ada Roberts Williams, 1909, and Miss Doris Knight, 1910, were read by Misses Ruby Head and Jessie Hillis.

"The Daisy," chorus.

The first of a series of graduating recitals was held in the college auditorium on Monday evening. The young ladies taking part were Miss Gussie Peterson and Miss Evelyn Ballantine. Each exhibited talent in her line and did splendid, artistic and finished work.

In attendance upon Miss Ballantine's expression recital were her grandmother and mother, from Atlanta.

Mrs. Russell, of Clinton, Ga., spent a few days of last week with her daughter, Miss Dorothy Russell.

COLLEGE GAMES

Florida 5, Auburn 2.

Tallahassee, Fla., April 11.—(Special.)—Shaw, who pitched for Florida yesterday, came back today and held Auburn at his mercy. Florida boys knocked Driver out of the box in the fifth and pounded Davis, who followed him.

Bonner for Auburn, made a sensational catch of a sure two-bagger in the eighth. McNeil, for Auburn, and Rule and Grace, for Florida, starred at bat.

The greatest feature of the game was the wonderful pitching of Shaw. Stupid base running lost three more runs for Florida. Davis pitched well except in the seventh. Embry and Moseley were fielding stars for Florida.

PRICES EASE OFF IN STOCK MARKET

Aggressive Support Lacking—All Foreign Markets Closed—Trading Limited to Professionals.

New York, April 11.—Aggressive support for the stock market was lacking today and prices eased off slowly. Only a small amount of business came in over the holiday, and the foreign markets still remain closed. Under the circumstances, and with a week-end session, the street looked for only a nominal market. Trading was limited largely to professional operations, and while the movement was steadily downward the average loss was not severe.

Pressure converged on the steel stocks, which were in almost every account of the large shrinkage of United States Steel's unfilled orders. Rails in the steel group and shares of related companies were lower. Petroleum shares continued their decline, and the Rumely issues made new low records at 7-1-2 for the common and 25 for the preferred. In the railroad list, Canadian Pacific displayed the same weakness which has been evident for several days, falling to 198, a new low mark since 1911. New Haven weakened on its February statement, showing another deficit. The stock broke to 51-1-8, within a point of the lowest price at which ever sold. Rock Island continued recording a new low mark at 22-1-8. St. Paul, Lehigh, Coast Line and Northern Pacific were sensitive to pressure. Reading was the railroad list held up fairly well.

The last statement published the return to normal channels of funds paid out to meet April 1 interest and dividend requirements. Interest were cut down $10,000,000. Instead of a small cash gain, estimated at around $2,000,000, there was an increase in the actual cash figure of $7,461,000. The result for the week went far toward restoring the surplus to the amount held last month, more than $5,000,000 being added.

The mercantile agencies reported a better sentiment on account of the good crop outlook. Nevertheless trade distribution was said to be disappointing, buying for future account cautious and general condition irregular.

In the bond market business was quiet and prices were irregular. Total sales (par value) $1,540,000. Panama twos declined 1-8, United States twos registered 1-8, and twos coupon 1-8. Panama threes coupon 1-4 and United States fours registered unit on 1-8 and on the week. United States threes coupon advanced 1-8.

COFFEE, COTTON, SUGAR MARKETS ON HOLIDAY

Holiday in Cotton.

Dry Goods.

New York, April 11.—Cotton goods markets were very quiet today. Jobbers had only a fair week, most of the retailers were not actively at the counters of their own stores. Linens remained barely steady. Better prices were obtained for wool tops.

TONE OF MARKET HAS BEEN POOR

Holidays Have Been Deterrent to Activity—Favorable News Utterly Disregarded.

New York, April 11.—(Special.)—The general tone of the stock market has been poor, with prices easing sharply in the brief periods of active selling during the week, though most of the time trading was very slow and price movements small. Favorable news was utterly disregarded, with the result that the week's trading has been a history of the country shown in the government report without any rally resulting, while a favorable decision in the Lackawanna case did not bring about any demand for stocks. The holidays were a deterrent to activity on either side of the street, but it is hoped that some response will be given to favorable news after the good crop prospects are given more consideration.

The Canadian freight rate finding was used as a strong bear argument in the stock exchange, with the possibility pointed out that the reduction in rates there may affect the American rate case decision, while weakness in Canadian Pacific unsettled the whole list. The extra commissions paid for securities speculation insists that nothing matters much now, unless some unlooked happens, which is the favorable interpretation was placed upon the resignation of Jacob H. Schwab, he really spoke with optimism, stating that the present depression will not last as long as others have done.

The Anti-Trust Legislation.

The plans of congress to take up anti-trust legislation, together with the trade commission bill ready for presentation in the house, has been another depressing factor, especially as the further extent of this legislation is unknown. The continued active demand for investment issues, particularly municipal bonds, is taken as a favorable sign of fundamental good conditions, even though general business is marking time. The week's big sale of New York city bonds is expected to produce an investment for renewed interest in other securities, as it is considered almost positive that the sale will be entirely successful, though speculative sentiment may continue indifferent to all favorable developments while the freight rate decision is pending.

The possibility of gold shipments to Paris again has attracted attention in the money market here, though it is hoped that this will be avoided through a change in the Paris exchange rates in advance in rates for exchange there is expected within a few days, but if it does not come, we will see gold actually flow there sooner or later. It is considered more probable that there will be a gold outflow from the Canadian republic before long. The low loaning rates prevailing here have been taken advantage of liberally during the last three months, in spite of the slackness of business, with an increase in the amount of loans outstanding of over $200,000,000 since the first of the year. This is believed to be the result of the relative cheapness of money here as compared with other countries, resulting in much borrowing here that ordinarily would have been accomplished elsewhere. Rates continued very easy, with funds offered in excess of the demand. Long on time money can be secured at under 3 per cent, while ten months' paper have been negotiated at under 4 per cent.

The whole financial community is looking forward to the sale of the $65,000,000 New York city bonds next week. Reports of large subscription to bid in the whole lot, if possible, have been heard, and it is thought probable that the issue will be heavily oversubscribed, possibly two or three times over. The certificates, when issued, have been sold on the outside market at close to par.

Decrease in Railroad Earnings.

Big decreases in net earnings in February have been shown in the railroad reports, while advance figures on March earnings indicate that they will show but a big drop from a year ago. The outlook for April is somewhat better, as reports from the Southwest point to moving than in the last two months, while the prospects are that the winter wheat crop cannot help but prove a stimulus to freight movement. Newman Erb, president of the Wabash road and St. Louis and the Ann Arbor roads, estimates the loss in gross earnings of the rail securities as $3,000,000,000 since 1906, when the interstate commerce mission was given the power to fix rates.

The American Railway association reported an increase of 14,647 idle cars in the United States and Canada in the week ending April 5, bringing the total on that date to 139,513 idle cars. This compares with 124,866 cars on the corresponding date last year.

The Canadian Pacific was pressured with the decision of the United States court in New Jersey which held that ownership of distributing corporations by the same sets of individuals was not consistent with the Sherman law. There was an attempt by the government to dissolve the ownership of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad and a former subsidiary coal company owned by the same individuals.

The New York Central will soon sell about $50,000,000, or a considerable amount, of new 100-year 4½ per cent refunding and improvement mortgage bonds. The issue has been approved by state commissions. The proceeds will be used to pay off, in full, the funding maturing notes, with about $20,000,000 remaining in the treasury. It is believed that the new bonds will be issued at around 98 or 97.

Receivers of the St. Louis and San Francisco will soon ask the opinion of the courts as to the payment of the interest due on general lien bonds May 1, 1914, and July 1, 1914, aggregating $3,000,000 due on the same date. There are no funds on hand at present to pay either with, but the court may direct how they are to be paid, or that the interest be funded.

The Ansco company, which won a recent suit against the trust known as the Eastman Kodak company, distributed $1,858,000 as a special dividend to its shareholders. The Eastman Kodak company received a 100 per cent distribution, while preferred and common holders were retired at $10 a share above par.

The annual report of the Adams Express company showed a small deficit after dividends. Assets total $47,969,-

The combined accounts of the M. Rumely company, its products and its Canadian subsidiaries showed $7,564,-929 deficit before dividends, with a total deficit for the year of $3,388,899 surplus. Assets total $26,641,021.

The annual report of the Eastman Kodak company, operated a surplus after dividends of $5,981,874, a small increase over the year before. Assets total $34,044,562, a surplus $29,899,899 surplus and $9,990,000 in reserve funds.

The Lambert company, report showed $6,812,890 profits for 1913, equal to 12 per cent on the stock. Assets total $34,486,126; with $17,161,045 surplus.

The annual report of the Western Union Telegraph company showed $3,-406,334 available for dividends, against over the year before. Assets total $173,847,224, with $8,706,709 surplus and $27,000,000 in reserve accounts.

The Delaware and Hudson company net available for dividends in 1913 was $6,174,,748, an increase of $670,000 over the year before. The net equaled 14 1-3 per cent on the stock. Assets total $133,618,471, with nearly $25,000,000 in surplus accounts.

The Great Northern Ore trustees record, as shown in the Copper Producers' association statement, were below indications shown in government figures of exports. The total delivered during March were 159,414,515 pounds, making a shrinkage of surplus stocks of 18,785,485 pounds. Copper prices continue firm, though business has been quiet. Sales have been made on a basis close to 14 3-4 cents a pound during the last few days.

Apathy in Steel Market.

Apathy continues in the steel market, with buying small in volume and price low. Quotations in the leading mills are on an average rate of 45 per cent of full capacity. Earnings are falling off, with the Lackawanna Steel company reporting a deficit of about $460,000 for the first quarter of 1914, as against $1,000,000 surplus. For the same period last year. Lower wages for the workman have been predicted. Cotton prices went to the high point of recent months on good demand and reports of delay, and damage to the fields, to new crop planting. Profit taking caused easing from the highest figures. The increase in Japan's consumption of American cotton for this crop year, according to the Bombay mill, is estimate of the International Federation of Spinners.

The government's crop condition report did not depress wheat prices, which are based on the possibility of a crop close to 700,000,000 bushels from winter wheat was indicated. Some private estimates of the crop run as low as 640,000,000 bushels, but even these figures would be 100,000,000 above. Corn was strong, largely as a result of the covering of short sales. The government figures showed winter wheat condition on April 1 of 95.4, against 84 ten year average on that date of 84.1.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

IS UNUSUALLY QUIET

Business in the produce line has been unusually quiet for the week before Easter, caused mainly by light receipts both in fruits and vegetables.

The crop of Florida oranges and grapefruit is practically over, very few of each being received in this market, selling at $3.50@3.75 per box. Florida potatoes are coming freely, several cars sold here this week, selling at $3.00 per bushel. Onions very few coming and selling at an advance over last week.

Strawberries have gone all the gates this week. The northern berries were cut the ground in Florida all the week, buying every one offered at extremely high prices as long as they could get them through. This naturally made receipts very light here and prices high.

But the northern buyer quit Thursday, not being able to get his berries to market for Easter after that time. Then all shipments turned to southern or near-by- nats, causing heavy receipts for Atlanta Saturday, forcing the market down from

Effect of Easter Holidays Cause Speculators To Be Pessimistic Over Outlook

New York, April 11.—Three men out of every five in Wall street who speculate, seem to have forgotten Daniel Drew's advice, "Don't sell stocks short when the sap is running up the tree." To what extent the stock market is oversold was illustrated one day this week when a broker undertook to buy 500 shares of P. Lorillard for a customer "at the market." He paid 171 for the first 100 shares, an advance of five points over the quotation then standing. The next 100 shares cost him 178, the next 176, the next 180, and the last 200. That's what is going to happen to a lot of Wall street speculators who cannot see anything ahead but trouble.

When business closed for the Easter holidays the rank and file of Wall street's army of bankers, brokers, railroad officials and industrial heads could not see anything hopeful in the outlook. That is usually the way in the financial district just before things turn for the better. Wall street would not have to go far to find something to cheer it up. Even if it were not only looking for prosperity instead of for trouble. On Tuesday of this week, for example, the crop reporting bureau of culture published its April winter wheat report, estimating a possible yield of 700,000,000 bushels above the previous high record. There was a time in the history of the country when the whole crop outlook, at this time of year, was a brilliant. But this week's report of the department of agriculture had no charm for Wall street. The stock exchange there was absolutely no response. Bankers and brokers only glanced at the government report and then continued to discuss their ailments.

Next week the city of New York is going to ask the public offering of $65,000,000 4 1-4 per cent bonds, and the indications are that the issue will be largely oversubscribed, with the result that the banks will be relieved of the burden of carrying the bonds for the city for a bond bearing that rate. There is only one conclusion to be drawn from these indications, and that is there is a lot of idle capital waiting for safe as well as profitable, investments. Ordinarily, under such conditions, the railroad and industrial companies would be busily engaged in working out bond plans for satisfying the demands of investors. But the average Wall street man today, however, what he thinks will be the outcome, keeps his eye on the stock tape and the question will arouse no more interest than an inquiry as to what became of his last summer's straw hat.

Adjournment of Congress.

If Wall street was not in its present frame of mind over the great deal of satisfactory news might be found in the prospects for an early adjournment of congress. It is true that some of the Washington dispatches predict that President Wilson's program cannot be completed before August; but it may be that those predictions do not make sufficient allowance for several known factors. In the first place, there has been no interruption since May 7, 1913, and congress has therefore already completed the longest session on record. Allowing for President Wilson's remarkable influence, even men like Henry, of Texas, or Owen, from Oklahoma, have a limit to their physical endurance. But the strongest argument for an early adjournment is the forthcoming fall elections. Congressmen who are hoping to be re-elected are anxious to get home and see that they can look after their fences.

Washington correspondents say that the railroads have had much to do with the uneasiness which is now being displayed by democratic congressmen. As part of the educational campaign carried on in the fight for higher freight rates, the railroads have made it their duty to see that congressmen received letters from home pointing out the belief that business would not improve until the proposed increases were granted. Those letters, men who are in close touch with the situation at Washington say, have had the desired effect, especially upon the members of congress who will be facing an election. That the members of the interstate commerce commission are indignant at the methods that have been used openly to influence them in the forthcoming decision is no secret. In fact, the press agents of the railroads have been warned by their own friends at Washington that their hand at educating the public and its representatives has been overplayed.

An Interesting Table.

In that connection a Washington correspondent has happened to be in New York this week had in his possession a copy of a very interesting table which had been submitted to the interstate commerce commission as one of the arguments against the proposed increase in freight rates. The introduction to the table points out that railroad men claim that the bonds of our railroads were no longer attractive to investors, as shown by declining market values. The decline in railway bonds is admitted, but the rejoinder is that those declines do not reflect conditions peculiar to the railway industry. To back up that position the trend for a series of years of all of the outstanding 5 per cent bonds of the principal railroads involved in the freight rate case is compared with the price movement of 5 per cent bonds of a number of industrial companies. The trend of Numerous tables were then given comparing the average market trend of other bonds of the eastern railroads, as well as their stocks, with similar securities of other companies. It was [illegible]

"In considering all the foregoing comparisons, there can be but one conclusion reached, that is, that representative railroad bonds are selling as high, or higher, than the representative bonds in the market of substantially all gas, electric, telephone, telegraph, water, industrial, municipal, street railway, or miscellaneous companies. This situation prevails notwithstanding the fact that these rates have been made in the midst of a national prosperity created by the railroads claiming their revenues will indicate that they are in a deplorable condition, their credit poor, and that they must have relief, or disaster will come."

SPECIAL COLOR SECTION

Women's Section

Sunday, April 12, 1914

THE best street suits and frocks for Spring are extremely simple, gaining their distinction from exquisite color harmonies and the beauty of the silhouette. The three models in the sketch demonstrate this.

THE one on the left is of purple silk poplin, with soft draped revers of black and white stripes and a girdle of one of the new French ribbons that have raised figures in velvet on a satin ground. The skirt is draped en bouffant at the top. The guimpe is of white chiffon, fastened with jet buttons and finished with a new edition of the upstanding lace collar. With this is worn an aeroplane hat in vivid green.

THE extremely modish saint on the prie dieu bought her halo in a millinery shop. It is a gold colored ribbon, wired to a skull cap of black velvet. The suit is of sap green French taffeta. The cutaway coat ends in a flaring flounce, which harmonizes with the circular tunics on the skirt. The rest is of gold colored moire.

CORDELE WINS TWO FROM GORDON NINE

In a game featured by the fast fielding of both clubs, Cordele easily won the morning game by the score of 6 to 4.

Vaiden was invincible throughout, only allowing one hit.

Cordele found Dozier easy and drove him from the mound in the fifth inning, being relieved by Hall, who pitched air-tight ball. In the afternoon game the home club piled up five tallies to one against the visitors. It was a pitcher's battle until the eighth, when Skipper got his world. with two bases on balls, one error and two hits, Cordele made three runs. Fillingim stuck out eighteen of his former team mates, giving up only two hits.

MILE RECORD.

Berry, of Redlands, Sets Interscholastic Record.

Stanford University, Cal., April 11.—In the interscholastic track and field meet here today Lamar Berry, of Redlands (Cal.) High school, established a new world's interscholastic record for the mile, finishing in 4:25 4-5. The former record of 4:26 4-5 was made in 1911 by Meredith Phillips, Exeter.

Beebe, of Anaheim, Cal., also broke the world's interscholastic record, staggering across the finish line with after running neck and neck with Berry for the last quarter.

GOOD JOKE BEING TOLD ON SIDNEY BOWMAN

There is a good joke on Sidney Bowman, statistician of Oakland, for the New York city, going the rounds of the automobile trade. Lamar M. Shaw, the secretary of the treasury under the Roosevelt administration, called at the Bowman store on invitation of the other day to talk "Oakland." Theodore Schipk, automobile salesman for the company, introduced Mr. Bowman to him as well as Mr. Shaw.

Bowman is very fond of memories of the old bicycle days in which he was a prominent figure, and when the reference was made to Mr Shaw's secretaryship, Bowman thought he ought to remember him on the Harlem Wheelmen. He said: "Don't you remember me—you were secretary of the Harlem Wheelmen." Shaw nearly fell through the floor, and Mr. Bowman was very much chagrined when Mr. Shaw said: "Sh, no, secretary of the treasury of the United States."

Constitution's Sporting Editor On Rose's Trophy Commission To Judge Most Valuable Player

COMMISSION THAT WILL AWARD ROSE DIAMOND TROPHY.

Dick Jemison, sporting editor, Atlanta Constitution.
Jack Nye, sporting editor, Nashville, Tennessean.
Asa Rountree, Jr., sporting editor, Birmingham Age-Herald.
W. B. Alley, sporting editor, Montgomery Advertiser.
Jack Law, baseball editor, Memphis Commercial-Appeal.
H. J. Reisz, sporting editor, New Orleans Daily States.
G. J. Flournoy, sporting editor, Mobile Item.

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 11.—(Special.)—Eight sporting editors, one from each city in the Southern league, who will award the Randolph Rose diamond trophy to the most valuable player in the league, have been selected and the personnel of the commission has been announced by Rose himself this time.

The contest for the trophy is modeled directly after that for the Chalmers trophy in the major leagues and the rules governing it will be the same as those that govern the major award with a few minor alterations to suit the contest to Southern league requirements.

In order that presentation of the trophy to the winning player may be made previous to the close of the season, the votes of the members of the commission must be mailed to the committee in charge not later than September 8. They will be compiled at once and the results made known several days before the season is over. The trophy probably will be presented on the day before the last game.

Vote for Eight Players.

Each member of the commission will vote for eight players. His first choice will receive eight points in the compilation which will decide the winner, his second choice seven points, his third choice six points, his fourth choice five points, and so on, his eighth choice receiving one point.

The final vote will be compiled by the chairman of the commission and the donor, Randolph Rose, of Chattanooga, and published in full. The player receiving the highest number of points will win the trophy. The highest number of points any player can receive will be sixty-four, which would be the total if every member of the first choice of every member of the commission.

The total number of points will be 288 and it is inevitable that in the compilation of the votes several players will receive "honorable mention" in the shape of a few points, at least.

The commissioners will be guided in their choice by the value of the work of the player to his team. Batting records, games won and lost by pitchers and other average will not figure directly, though they may serve as indications in a general way of the player's performances.

How He Helps Club.

The player's disposition, his value in keeping harmony on the team, his help in injecting "fight" into the team's play—everything in which he helps or hinders his team will be considered.

In short, the commission member will merely use his own opinion, based on his intimate knowledge of the season's work of the players, as matters of figures, which, after all, can lie.

In this manner he may know that the batsman who hits far above .300 or a pitcher who is many points behind the leaders really has been of the greater service to his club.

There is no restriction as to the number of games in which a player must participate. Of course, the members of the commission will be hardly likely to vote for the player who has played half a season, or even one who has been in every game, but this will be left entirely to the judgment of the members who constitute the commission.

Playing managers will be considered eligible for the trophy, but they must be considered as playing performances alone and not on managerial ability. Batting management, of course, will not figure.

League Approves.

The diamond trophy contest was given the official approval of the league at its December meeting, and it no doubt will be remembered by many of the unpleasantness that marked last year's awards which were based on records.

The donor of the trophy this season intends that it shall be an incentive to team play and help rather than retard the progress of the race as it draws to a close. Padding of batting records, jockeying of star pitchers, and the like, by over-zealous managers, would have no effect whatever on the award of the trophy.

Sally League Commission.

The personnel of the commission that award the Rose trophy, in the South Atlantic league, on the same basis as the southern trophy, was also published today, as follows:

Drew L. Hudson, sporting editor, Jacksonville Times-Union, chairman.
H. B. Sykes, sporting editor, Albany Herald.
John W. Hammond, managing editor, Augusta Chronicle.
Nolly J. Sams, sporting editor, Charleston News and Courier.
Brian Bell, Columbia.
Morton B. Hahn, sporting editor, Columbus Enquirer-Sun.
D. W. Denny, sporting editor, Macon News.
Harry M. Dodd, sporting editor, Savannah Morning News.

Georgia State League Opens Second Season on Thursday

Brunswick, Ga., April 11.—(Special.) Thursday will see the opening of the second season of the Georgia State league, considered by many baseball experts as the fastest class D organization in existence. Every indication points to a most successful season for the new league, and it is not believed that any of the clubs will experience the financial difficulties which faced them last season, in spite of which all six clubs went through the first race successfully. The league has the organizations ending with a balance in the bank.

The clubs on next Thursday will open as follows:

Brunswick at Thomasville.
Cordele at Waycross.
Valdosta at Americus.

Considerable interest is being manifested, of course, in the race for the championship trophy offered by the league to the city turning out the largest number of people on the opening day.

Last year this race was between Brunswick and Waycross, the latter city winning with an attendance of 3,734, while Brunswick came second with 3,651. This year, however, those two cities are not going to fight it out alone, as Valdosta and Americus are both going to make a desperate fight to land the trophy, and it is believed that the city that captures the attendance race this year will have to turn out fully 3,000 people.

There is every indication that the race between the six south Georgia cities will be a spirited one and interest is now at the high mark. Every club appears to be much stronger than it was at the outset last season, and with one year's experience as an aggressive teacher, it is believed that the season will be a success financially.

Americus—Dave Gaston.
Brunswick—Whitey Morse
Cordele—Riff Reagan.
Thomasville—M. C. Dudley
Waycross—Bill Clark.
Valdosta—Joe Herrold.

The mayor of each city has, or will, issue a proclamation calling upon the business people to close their places of business on the opening days.

Dallas, Texas, Fan Picks Atlanta to Win Pennant

That Atlanta is attracting attention all over the south through her baseball club is evidence in the interest that is being manifested in the Southern league race in Texas.

Atlanta.
New Orleans.

Memphis.

SCHOOL FOR UMPIRES HAS BEEN OPENED

Indianapolis, Ind., April 11.—President T. M. Chivington, of the American association, opened his annual "school" for umpires here today. Each rule will be taken up separately and discussed.

President Chivington said the rule permitting a base runner to return to the left when he is touched first base, without being liable to be put out, would be discussed, and that it was left too much to the discretion of the umpire to say whether the player intended to go on to second base. He stated further that a special rule of baseball would compel second base runners to turn to the right at first base.

The association head said the attentions of the umpires would be called especially to the rule which specifies that a base runner, who is touched by the coach at third base, is out. The umpires will be instructed to enforce this provision rigidly.

Mr. Chivington declined to discuss the Killifer decision handed down at Cleveland by the National commission, saying that his league was concerned in no way. He said the 1914 contracts of the association did not contain a reserve clause.

G. M. C. NINE STRONG; IN HUNT FOR THE TITLE

Coach Maddox Has Rounded Together a Wonderful Collection of Prep Players.

Milledgeville, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—Coach Maddox, of the Georgia Military college, is beginning to round his club into fine shape. The several games played so far indicate that the present team is one of the best in the history of the school and one that is destined to make the prep schools of the state sit up and take notice when the season comes to a close.

The fans of Milledgeville and those who have every position and in action my that it is the best team that has ever represented G. M. C. on the baseball diamond. Whether this statement is true or not, the team is one that will compare favorably with any prep team in the south.

The coach is indeed fortunate in having so many promising candidates for the team. There is a good substitute playing behind each and every one of the regulars, and the practice games played, the first team seems to have the edge on the second team. G. M. C. does not boast of the fact that the team is composed of new men, for the fact is there are only three new men on the team. However, the team does have three very valuable players in Nunnally, Harrell and Lanier.

The pitching staff, composed of Camp, Gheesling, Lanier and Nunnally, is of good worth, forms a quintet that will be hard to beat for any prep school in the state. Few college teams can claim such a formidable staff of hurlers.

The receiving end behind the box is well protected by Ellison, who played first base last season, and Lanier, who has been a regular behind the old diamond for two seasons.

Joe Taylor, on the far corner, is the only old infielder. Thrasher, Godwin and Hall are new to the game, but from their capers on the diamond they are going to help Taylor form an air-tight infield.

The outer garden is closely watched and protected by a quartet of three veterans, Swan, David and Long, who form a trio of speed merchants that can be depended upon to safely rescue the old ball with accuracy and precision the like of which few prep teams have.

Coach Maddox has arranged one of the hardest athletic card ever attempted by a Georgia prep school. The only game lost this season so far was to Hoxton High school by a score of 6 to 5. G. M. C. humiliated the fast Macon Athletic club by defeating them by the score of 6 to 4 and later gave them a battle for 11 innings which resulted in a 0 to 0 tie. Mt. Bishop, prep game played this week-end with Richmond academy in which G. M. C. won by a score of 1 to 0 and 18 to 0.

G. M. C. leaves to invade Barnesville Monday for a three days' stay, playing Gordon bunch and hopes for an even break on foreign soil.

EMORY BASEBALL RACE INTERESTING

Emory College, Oxford, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—Emory students are all agog over the interclass baseball race. It has reached the interesting stage and very little will keep it from being properly until the last ball of the last game has been laid away. The standing of the teams is:

CLUBS.	W.	L.	P. C.
Juniors	4	0	1.000
Seniors	2	1	.666
Sophomores	1	2	.333
Freshmen	0	3	.000

Surprises are on every hand and the fear of more keeps four coaches undergoing as strenuous work in the middle of the season as when they had fully forty veterans aspirants to work with.

The sophomore team, classed in preseason speculation as the most formidable of the four crews, has so far been a disappointment, while the freshmen classed as mediocre have come strong, especially so when they were victorious over the sophs. The freshmen look hopeless, although mathematically they have a chance at the pennant.

The juniors are leading the field because of their good get-away and the faculty of holding to form. They are expecting some wild bumps when the nine-game schedule terminates.

Monday afternoon is slated for a double-header day, when the seniors and sophs play, and the juniors and freshmen play.

EXHIBITION GAMES

Waycross 4, Montgomery 3.

Waycross, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—Outhitting the visitors and playing a steadier ball in the pinches, Waycross again defeated the Montgomery Southern league team today, 4 to 3.

Both pitchers used by Waycross held the visitors safely in check, Warwick giving up but one hit. A ninth inning rally by Montgomery netted three runs, but the timely hit was not forthcoming.

Conditions at Ford Plant Assume a Normal Aspect

Detroit, Mich., April 10.—Conditions in the vicinity of the Ford Motor company's plant have once more resumed their normal aspect, and by noon the thousands of men besiege the entrances on Manchester avenue in the hope of securing positions under the new wage regime. They have finally come to realize that no such casual and haphazard method is being followed in adding to the working force.

The painstaking manner in which the new wage scale was evolved and the thorough manner in which the entire plan is being fortified by elaborate follow-up work is illustrated by several features. One of the most profound relates to the handling of employees in the plant, and to discover the strongest and their fitness for work in the various departments and thus protect them against a seeming failure to give good and a summary dismissal.

Employees are charged with no right to dismiss a man. If the foreman of any gang finds that one of his men is not doing satisfactory work he reports of dismissing the individual outright. He must report to him by clearing house, where his case is investigated and he is given another trial in some other department, unless he is found to be wholly inefficient. There his ability for another kind of work will be tested. Such shifts may take place a half dozen times before the man is finally out of employment.

The company is determined that the additional money received under the new plan shall be devoted to reasonable purposes. In order to determine these a large number of investigators are employed. Almost all of these have been taken from the plant itself, having been drafted from the hospital staff and the executives of the various departments, and are busy learning from full-fledged doctors to men who were formerly, perhaps, merely in charge of a shipping platform. This plan was followed in order to secure men who have already demonstrated their ability to handle men successfully. The investigators go out on intimate terms with the men they are to report and learn to know the conditions under which they live and how they spend their time and money. If a man is found who is not benefiting by the additional money he is receiving and proves that he can or claims he no longer participates in the profit-sharing plan.

Both of Them Were Named Schmidt And Both Bought Studebakers

It is a thoroughly established fact that there are more Schmidts in Milwaukee than in any other American city of similar size.

This condition was personally known to J. G. Wollaeger, who sells Studebaker automobiles in the Wisconsin metropolis. He was therefore not greatly surprised to note one day that his list of prospective customers included two Schmidts.

That afternoon Mr. Wollaeger sallied forth in a Studebaker "Six" touring car, and, lo and behold, a Schmidt sauntered, all by himself, and took them for a ride. Mr. Schmidt noted the quietness of the car and in a very short time paid its sole passenger load a most high compliment.

Mr. Schmidt was also pleased. Mr. Wollaeger produced an order blank and Mr. Schmidt bought a car.

While this deal was in process, H. S. DeLand, Mr. Wollaeger's chief of staff, had run out in a "Six" landaulet-roadster, and had picked up Jacob S. Schmidt, according to arrangement. Jacob S. Schmidt was also closed to a sale and as an open body for touring. He also was a prospective Studebaker customer. Jacob was brothers and business partners in a big Milwaukee enterprise of state-wide reputation. Now and then each tries to provide a little personal surprise for the other. Now and then something interferes.

Henry Jacob S. Schmidt and Jacob S. Schmidt, according to all reports, are brothers and business partners in a big Milwaukee enterprise of state-wide reputation. Now and then each tries to provide a little personal surprise for the other. Now and then something interferes.

RECORD TIRE STOCK FOR CITY THIS YEAR

Atlanta's Needs Discussed at Conference of Firestone Representatives.

Realizing the fact that the south has more motor cars this season than ever before, and that during the summer months there was always a shortage on tires, the officials of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, of Akron, Ohio, held a conference of the manager and salesmen in Atlanta yesterday.

Attending this conference were: H. G. Partridge, southern sales manager, Akron, Ohio; C. H. Gerhold, manager of the accessories department, Akron, Ohio; Wylie West, branch manager, Atlanta; E. H. Elleby, office manager; T. J. Eddy, North Georgia representative; R. D. Williams, South Carolina representative; C. Coburn, Georgia representative; F. C. Dennis, Florida representative; T. E. Moore, Alabama and Mississippi representative, and R. M. Barnett, Atlanta representative.

These officials arranged to furnish Atlanta with the largest stock of tires, tubes and accessories that have ever been carried, and it will be the largest stock of rubber goods in the south. The fact that the Firestone company has been manufacturing tires for thirteen years, and consistent quality has made Firestone a by-word with motor car owners.

All of the salesmen are going out with new ideas and samples of attractive literature that will be furnished dealers.

Pope Motorcycle Wins Hill Climb in the West

For the first time in the history of motorcycling in California the real pulling power of a stock machine was tested by a run up Mount Tamalpais, who drove to the bay for several demonstrations. In the pulling power the single machine was tested, but the power of the cycle with a side car was also tested.

The party from Sacramento, composed of H. B. Sollender, Douglas Frank Anderson, L. A. Redmond, Arthur Johnson and Mr. Campi, all rode Pope twins, and the hill is 2,604 feet and is the regular stock two-wheeler. The grade is 22 per cent, although with the side car is registered as 440 pounds.

In the course of the trip for demonstrations, the Dublin grade between Livermore and Pleasanton was taken with two men in the side car, one driving and one riding tandem, making a total load of 385 pounds. The hill is a addition of about 850 pounds. The roads on the hills were all dirt and cut up by the automobiles using akid chains it was impossible to get a running start, and had to start at the bottom of the grade. This is said to be about a 16-per-cent grade. In all of the stock Pope machines used in the test pull the Dublin grade, but they are reversed and go up the hill with ease.

Probably the greatest climbing feat ever accomplished on the road by a two-wheeler was done with A. Chelina driving with a passenger, on a Pope motor street hills in San Francisco. The grade was 35 per cent and the Carrying 185 pounds besides the weight of the machine, Chelina took the hills with ease, the first time he had to prove the power of the machine, on the second trip he stopped his machine in the middle of the second hill and, throwing in the clutch, began the ascent up the hill without any hesitancy.

COFFMAN PAYS VISIT TO LOCAL MANAGER

Talks Over Matters Relating to the Federation of American Motorcyclists.

A. R. Coffman, president of the National Motor and Bicycle Accessories association, stopped over in Atlanta on Thursday and called upon Gus Castle, manager of the Harley-Davidson Motor company, southern branch. The object of Mr. Coffman's visit was to talk over matters pertaining to the Federation of American Motorcyclists, as at a recent meeting of all the makers of motorcycles, the unanimous request was made by them that Mr. Coffman offer himself as a candidate for president of the Federation of American Motorcyclists, as Mr. Coffman's ability to handle big things was so thoroughly demonstrated by the able manner he conducted the second national motorcycle show in Chicago last November, at which time he was also elected president of the Motorcycle Manufacturers' association.

On account of the recent tax agitation that came up in Georgia, in fact, as Mr. Coffman will be at the head of the F. A. M., he is very much interested and anxious that the motorcycle riders in Georgia get busy and become members of the association in order that an organization may be built, that it can go before the legislature next year with some power and strength behind it, so that if Mr. Coffman has been offered to accept the presidency of the F. A. M. has put renewed life into the fight to keep down taxation, and that the president and officials of every factory have sent in their applications for membership and will give the F. A. M. their support through the Georgia factory. Herman Jones: "It seems to me that every dealer in Georgia and every motorcycles should send in his application to the F. M., because if the president and the officials of the factories see that the Georgia dealer represents sees that it is to their advantage to have the business to join the F. A. M. it certainly looks plausible that the dealer themselves will also give the support. If the dealer who sells the motorcycle would only stop to think that by the co-operation of an organization like the F. A. M. backed by the support of all the factories, that in a very many little unjust laws that are brought before the legislature, through the attention of the state officials of the F. A. M., could possibly be stopped before they become law."

"TIRE CONSERVATION" SHOULD BE READ BY ALL

A notable contribution toward the education of tire users in the care of their tires is the booklet entitled "Tire Conservation," a series of bulletins dealing with various phases of the tire situation, issued by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, Akron, Ohio.

Striking to the shy seem, the tire companies find that comparatively few car owners obtain all the mileage that is possible from tires and cost per mile is thus higher than necessary. A booklet—and its application—of the conservation lowers tire cost per mile and it is upon this basis that the Goodyear company has based its campaign of folders. The information the booklets contain is general—taking such subjects as inflation, pressure, etc., but explains how mileage may be increased and tire lives prolonged through the use of accessories—inside protectors, tire chains, etc.

Since the Goodyear company began distributing the booklets mentioned, some remarkable results have already been obtained—some remarkable mileage records having been made and many believes that in co-operating with tire users and educating them toward co-operation, how to make tires last longer, it has taken another big step forward.

The Goodyear factory reached the production mark of 10,000 tires per day this week.

REO CARS ARE STRONG; STRONGER THAN NEW

R. E. Olds, who builds Reo the Fifth, has a factory building over to twenty-seven years. If any man knows how strong or durable a car is, that man is Mr. Olds.

Carl Fort, the local Reo dealer, says that Mr. Olds drives a car all of 50 strength it needs, and then he adds 50 per cent to that strength. Reo the Fifth has a 35-horsepower engine. All the factory's cars are 1914 touring parts are based on a 50-horsepower engine.

At the Reo factory an entire building is devoted to testing steel. Every bit of steel is twice analyzed. Machines have been invented to test every part and most radical tests known in car building. There are crushing machines to test frames, axles and springs. There are pressure tests to test engines.

In addition, there are reckless road tests. Cars are driven at high speed for 10,000 miles, night and day on rough roads. And the driving parts are expected to go through that test in practically new condition.

Mr. Olds is no doubt, an extremist. But most men would like to know that the cars they drive have withstood tests like these.

Society Out in Full Force To Cheer the Young Riders In Big Piedmont Pony Show

It was not a Madison Square Garden horse show. "Reggy" Vanderbilt was not here to show his bays, nor did the Astor entries carry away all the blue ribbons and cups, but Atlanta's kiddies were present in full force at Piedmont Park yesterday afternoon, and 'neath skies from which the sun peeped mischievously, history was written in the pony world.

Everybody who is anybody—that is among lovers of horseflesh—went out to the show, and from the time Joe Brown Connally shouted, "Line up" for the first event, there was not a dull or uninteresting moment. Fourteen events were on the card, and each was pulled off with the same admirable precision that makes New York's show the smartest event of the calendar year. There were trotting events, pacing exhibitions, saddle championships and running races. Also hurdling events, more commonly known as "jumpers," furnished some of the excitement and very narrowly missed furnishing the show with a tragic flavor, for towards the close of the program, Mr. Joe Gatins, riding Mr. Savage's jumper, was thrown and was painfully hurt.

Crowd Has Immense Time.

It was the only incident to mar the pleasure of the show. Otherwise, the crowd had an immense time. Oh, yes; in the third event for ponies under 12 inches, Little Frank Inman, Jr., caused a temporary halt in the proceedings when he drove his diminutive Shetland upon the field. Master Inman seemed to think that his entry was the biggest thing in the show, when, as a matter of fact, the tiny animal belonged in the incubator class. The judges experienced difficulty in finding Master Inman and his "team" from among the larger entries, and when he was located he was lined up brushing down the winner and demanding first prize.

Master Inman insisted that he should have won.

Master Tom Coggins featured riding the pony of Miss Mary A. Jones and on his own mount. He won a blue ribbon and cup in the class for ponies over thirteen hands high (gaited), and was second in the open class, with Miss Jones' pony. Master Tom won the cup for the best boy rider over 12 years old.

First in Open Class.

Asa Patterson, riding Miss Katherine Dickey's "Spirit," also featured in several events, winning the first in the open class for saddle ponies, and getting a second in the class for saddle ponies over thirteen hands high.

Among the girls, Misses Mary Cohen, Louise Inman, Elizabeth Chupp, Josephine Windle and May Atkinson carried off honors. Miss Windle won the hurdle class with "Red Girl," and Miss Atkinson was awarded third prize.

The best jump was 3 feet 9 inches.

John K. Ottley, Jr., won the saddle championship, and Hugh Inman, riding Sam Inman's pony, was second. The ponies in this class were selected from the firsts in other events. Master Ottley also won in the class for ponies under thirteen hands or fifty-four inches.

Best Pony Under 12 Hands—John K. Ottley, Jr., first; Frank Inman, Jr., second, and Tom Coggins, third.

Best Saddle Ponies Under 13 Hands—Tom Coggins, riding Miss Jones' pony, first; Asa Patterson, riding Miss Dickey's pony, second, and Miss May Atkinson, with her "Foxey," third.

Ponies in Harness Under 13 Inches—Louise Inman, first; Troy Jennings, second, and James and Abner Calhoun, third.

Open Class; Gaited Ponies—Asa Patterson, riding for Miss Dickey, first; Tom Coggins, riding for Miss Jones, second, and Rankin Manley, third.

Best Boy Rider (under 12 years)—John Grant, first; Hugh Inman, second; Rankin Manley, third.

Best Rider Over 12—Tom Coggins, first; Charles E. Boynton, second, and Holland Bucknell, third.

Best Girl Rider—Mary Cohen, first; Louise Inman, second, and Elizabeth Chupp, third.

Pony in Harness Over 13 Hands—Asa Patterson, driving for Miss Dickey, first; Howard Bucknell, Jr., second, and Rankin Manley, third.

Jumping—Miss Josephine Windle, first; Sam Silcey, second, and Miss May Atkinson, third.

Half-mile Running—L. R. Tatum, first; Wilmer Moore, second, and John Grant, third.

Enthusiasts in Charge.

The show was held under the auspices of a committee composed of enthusiastic horsemen and horsewomen, as follows: Miss May Atkinson, Mrs. J. L. Dickey, Jr., Mrs. John Hill, Mr. J. Dickey, Captain A. L. Johnson, Joe Gatins and Miss Floyd McRae.

The judges were Joe Brown Connally, Dr. N. McCullough and J. Hall Miller.

The proceeds from the show will be turned over to the Home for Incurables.

MACON WOMAN AND BOY INJURED IN ACCIDENTS

Boy Shoots Himself With Pistol—Aged Woman Knocked Down by Auto.

Macon, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—Two people were injured in accidents in Macon today, one so seriously that he may die, the latter being Walter Leslie, 10-year-old son of Mrs. C. M. Leslie, of 110 Willingham street, who accidentally shot himself through the abdomen with a pistol.

The boy was playing alone in a bedroom, when he found the pistol in a bureau drawer. While examining it, the weapon discharged, the bullet going directly through the lad's body.

The other accident victim was Mrs. C. O. Rodrigues, aged 40 years, who was run over by an automobile at Forsyth and Monroe streets this afternoon while changing from one street car to another. She sustained a broken rib and other injuries.

The driver of the automobile is not known, though he picked the injured woman up and took her to the hospital.

SPRING

Spring always affects everything.

For instance, spring chickens, spring vegetables (and, incidentally, spring tradital). People like to "browse" around among the green fields and trees about springtime—they are certain to do it. Lots of them would buy home sites if they could get a suitable location; nevertheless, you will find them looking around in the spring.

We know of a beautifully wooded tract of eleven acres that has about 500 feet of frontage on East Lake Drive as well as frontage on two other streets. This is only three blocks from Country club. (By the way, there is a fine spring on this land). Why not cut this up for the spring trade? It will sell, all right. Price, $16,000. Terms.

LUCILLE LOVE, The Girl of Mystery

A Soul Thrilling Story of Love, Devotion, Danger and Intrigue

By the "MASTER PEN"

Copyright, 1914, All moving picture rights reserved by the Universal Film Manufacturing company. Infringements will be vigorously prosecuted. This instalment of the story will be shown in moving pictures tomorrow at the Savoy and the Alamo No. 1, and later at the Doraldo and the American.

DAINTILY sweet the tantalizing perfume lingered in the room, and the rustle of Lucille Love's skirts seemed still to sound against the walls of the tiny room which General Sumpter Love used as his private office; the echo of Lieutenant Gibson's pleading tones had not departed when the door leading to the servants' quarters moved.

A cautious fraction of an inch at a time, a sound so faint that nothing lived between it and silence succeeded the departure of the General's aide and the girl he loves, the girl he means to marry. As the butler's face framed itself on the threshold, the door was opened that led to the ball room, a burst of music vibrated there, then all was silence. The butler closed the door swiftly behind him and glided across the floor, stooping before the safe, his dexterous fingers manipulating the knobs with a careless certainty that spoke of the master cracksman, his face against the cold steel, his ears fairly pained with the acuity of his listening for the click of falling tumblers. His expression betrayed no anxiety. He knew his worth, knew the pregnability of the safe in which his master placed so great confidence and to which he had consigned the papers and orders he had just received from Washington until the ball was over and he had time to study the instructions at his leisure.

The cracksman heaved a sigh of relief as his sensitive finger tips told him the last tumbler had fallen. The great, iron door swung open to his tug. For a second he waited, listened to the scuffle of feet, the melody of the orchestra. Then his hand disappeared, exploring the contents of the safe.

He was swift; he was certain; he was sure. Not a paper was disarranged. His fingers fluttered like little, white birds, drifting among the General's papers with a certitude that bespoke great familiarity. With a sigh of relief he stared at the sealed packet he had just seen the army officer receive and place here. The butler thrust it in his pocket, drawing out a package of banknotes and putting it in the tiny vault where the papers had been. The door closed softly, the knobs whirring under the man's touch.

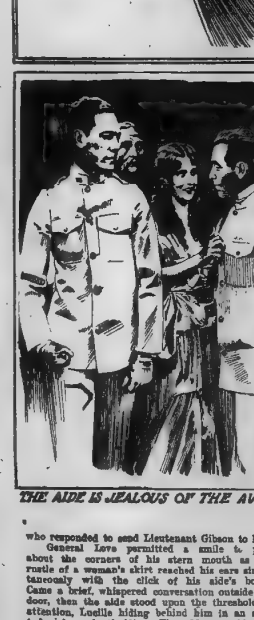
Again he waited, listening. Listening. The vibrations of the dancers' feet continued for a second, the strains of music died. With the noiseless glide of a panther the butler slipped across the floor and closed the door behind him.

Not one motion had been wasted. For months he had served in his menial capacity for this one opportunity. For months to come he would continue to serve in order that no suspicion might rest upon him. Quietly, as though nothing had happened, he stepped to the great kitchen where the little brown servants of the household were scurrying heedlessly about, frightened at even the momentary absence of their master when the elaborate collation for the guests was still to be served.

A word here, a hint there and the Filipinos were on their way to the General's dining room with their burdens. All capability, all deft certainty, without wasting a word, a move, the butler brought his underlings back to the state of perfection into which he had trained them. As unconscious of the stolen envelope in his breast pocket as though such a thing as a burglarized safe had never been, Thompson alias Tommy the Dude, alias "Chi" Tom and wanted for just such jobs in many police departments of the world went about his work, only hearing a huge sigh of relief when General Love nodded curtly in token that the room where the buffet had been served might be cleared.

Ten minutes later the furtive expression came back to his face, the stealthy crouch to his frame. Noiselessly he glided out the rear of the house, scurrying across the moon-splashed parade ground and losing himself in devious windings among the officers' homes upon the military reservation. Manila slept noisily, the drowsy hum of the myriad insects rising and falling with the ever-recurring waves of heat that floated in from the ocean. Only the General's mansion glowed with light, a gangling structure transformed by the eerie witchery of night into a fairy palace of gold, the windows huge diamonds with each facet catching in its heart a score of moon-beams. Thompson nodded to himself as though very well satisfied, then slipped down a narrow side street, lined with disreputable houses that leaned at drunken angles toward one another, the filthy windows winking blearily to their neighbors. Before the largest of these places the butler paused a second. His hand reached toward the bell-pull. From some distant part of the house came back an echo. Slowly, very slowly the door swung open, swallowing up the figure of the thief-butler.

LUCILLE SEEKS TO OVERTAKE THE SHIP "EMPRESS"



THE AIDE IS JEALOUS OF THE AVIATOR

The Finger of Suspicion.

GENERAL SUMPTER LOVE, U. S. A., smiled tolerantly to himself as he overheard the low voices of his aide and Dick Gibson coming from the little cosy corner in which the young lieutenant had hidden his sweetheart away from the avid dancers who would have taken her away from him. The old man closed his eyes a moment, the harsh lines which advertised leadership and war had sculped upon his face slowly disappearing before the softened expression retrospection placed there, an expression summoned up by memories of the days at the Point before ever a thought of oak leaves upon his shoulders dared intrude itself within his cadet mind, before Lucille was born, before Lucille's mother had made her choice.

The General shook his bulky shoulders and rose, moving toward his private office. It was seldom such memories came to him and when they left the pain of realizing them to be nothing more than memories provided pitiful compensation. He sighed heavily as he realized he stood on the threshold of another change, that the courtship of his aide had finally been successful and another household would soon be occupied in officers' Row, leaving him alone in this great house.

He wondered if all fathers felt this way, wondered if he could gladly give his daughter to another man and be happy watching that other remould her world. And the time was so short. That very boat in the harbor now might bear the Senate's confirmation of young Gibson's promotion to the rank and pay of Captain. The two men had agreed that the marriage should wait on that and the General had to admit that the aide had lived up to his word. But then Gibson always did that.

Again the General shook his shoulders strideing briskly to his private office. Only in work could he get relief from these fits of depression. And there was always work to be done, for the little brown people loved their fighting, were never satisfied with peace and quiet. For a second he stood at the window, staring at the great boat in the harbor, at the dappling waters, restful now save for the faintest movement when the soft tropical breeze moved caressingly across it. And that boat might bring word of his aide's promotion. He turned and pressed the annunciator on his desk, curtly commanding the soldier who responded to send Lieutenant Gibson to him.

General Love permitted a smile to play about the corners of his stern mouth as the rustle of a woman's skirt reached his ears simultaneously with the click of his aide's boots. Came a brief, whispered conversation outside the door, then the aide stood upon the threshold at attention, Lucille hiding behind him in an attitude of mock timidity. The old man bit his moustache viciously, then smiled broadly.

"Well?" he demanded, fumbling among the papers that littered his desk. "What have you got to say for yourself, young woman?"

Lucille slipped across the floor, twining a pair of white arms about her father's neck, the soft velvet of her cheek smoothing his brown, leathery one. It was the way she had cooked him when a child, the way she had never outgrown or known to fail.

"It's about Dick's promotion, Dad," she whispered. "It hasn't come on the Empress and that means wait at least another month. If there was any chance of the Senate's failing to confirm it, we wouldn't bother you, but a month is such a long time and—and Dick has some money now—"

"Yes—yes—yes," the General retorted gruffly, a twinkle in his eye that belied the tone. "But from what I've seen tonight and the last week since Harley started his aeroplane manoeuvres, I thought there might be some change in your plans."

"Mr. Harley's a very nice man," she defended, "even if Dick does get jealous. Besides a girl has to be amused somehow when busy old generals keep their officers working all day and night."

The General straightened in his chair, brought back to the work he had planned for the evening by her words. Lucille sighed as she caught the difference, knew there would be no use tossing longer when his mind turned to the arduous duties which never ceased to pile upon him.

"I'll think it over, dear," he said kindly, "immediately I get through with the orders that came tonight. Lieutenant," he said briskly, "you put the orders and papers from Washington in the safe as I told you? Will you get them for me?"

He studied his aide curiously when he returned and began fumbling with the knobs of the safe. Gibson was still embarrassed at his blunder, realized his superior was thinking that since Lucille entered into his life these blunders had shown a decided tendency to pile up. The door opened and the Lieutenant's hand automatically reached inside toward the place where he had put the packet. An expression of incredulous dismay was upon his face as he drew out a bundle of bank notes.

"Why, I don't remember these," he cried, then, with an expression of relief, "you have already been here, sir?"

"No," General Love's tone was peremptory, crackling. He did not relish delay of any sort. "Come, come! The papers I gave you, Lieutenant."

The aide fumbled through the papers in the safe, the expression of confidence on his face changing to one of blank incredulity, then utter dismay as a second thorough ransacking failed to reveal the big envelope. He drew a long breath as he straightened to attention, his face very white and drawn, his voice no more than a whisper.

"General, they are—not—there."

"Not there!" Like the crackling of fire in dry twigs was the old man's voice. "Not there, sir! Then perhaps they too may be in your room."

"No, sir. I distinctly recall placing them in the order box. There was no money there at the time."

The human body surcharges a room with electricity at times of greatest stress. Rigidly the two men stared into each other's eyes, doubt, changing to suspicion, suspicion to accusation on their faces. But two men had access to that safe, but two men knew of the arrival of the orders and papers. General Love suddenly rose. th chair scraping raspingly upon the tense silence.

"Lieutenant Gibson," he began, his voice rivaling the sound of the scraping chair, "Lucille mentioned a moment ago that you had suddenly acquired sufficient money to justify an immediate marriage."

"Yes, sir. A legacy—"

General Love snorted his disbelief.

"Leaving the combination of this safe, with secrets which are invaluable to the United States; with secrets that would be of untold value to the enemies of the United States; with secrets that might mean the sacrifice of not territory alone but countless lives—does that not strike you as strange, not to say suspicious that such a precious thing should be left in your room, Lieutenant?" The tones of the General's voice had risen, a sneer vibrating through every syllable.

His aide did not answer. His lips opened to speak, then, with one look at the startled, frightened face of his sweetheart, they snapped shut again. His grey eyes were hard and cold as steel, his mouth but a thin line, a sneer-up gash across his face under the dilating nostrils. His silence seemed to anger the commanding officer. His heavy fist slammed down upon the desk.

"The papers, Lieutenant Gibson—immediately. This is your last chance."

"I placed them in the safe and they are not there now, sir." The tones were quiet, cold, determined.

The General stepped swiftly forward, his fists clenched as for a blow. With an effort he commanded himself, then turned and pressed the annunciator.

"You will go to your quarters, sir, and consider yourself under arrest. The humiliation of an escort will be spared you. However, there will be a guard about the place."

A faint, little cry of protest sounded clear and distinct against the dead silence. The young man's hand fell from salute as he stepped swiftly toward his sweetheart. General Love's arm reached out and drew the sobbing girl to him, his left hand outstretched as though the mere touch of his aide would be defiling. Gibson halted in his tracks. Again his arm rose stiffly in salute then, without a word, he turned, his steps falling fainter upon the ears of the pair who listened with leaden hearts.

LOUBEQUE, THE INTERNATIONAL SPY FOLLOWED BY LUCILLE

"YOU ARE UNDER ARREST"

A Man With But One Thought.

HUGO LOUBEQUE turned the packet of papers and orders over and over in his hand, a brooding expression in his eyes that told his thoughts were very far away from the butler-cracksman who had just brought them to him. A massive figure of a man, he seemed to fill the room with his presence, the chair in which he sat seemed to have been built about him, the room itself with its magnificent furnishings was dwarfed by its occupant. Greatest of international spys, the rise and fall of many nations might have been placed at his door, rivers of blood had burst their barriers at the touch of those powerful fingers. As the musician plays from the organ loft upon the sweet-toned chimes in the church steeple far above, so did Hugo Loubeque play upon human emotions, buying, selling, defying, commanding nations to do his will through his superhuman insight into the dominating characteristics which mastered the rulers of those nations. A thousand wires there were throughout the world that responded to the master touch of this dark musician whose instrument was humanity, a thousand wires and yet again a thousand, and all—all were directed toward revenge against one man, toward the destruction of General Love. What hideous memories that name of Love evoked. It sent his thoughts back to the horrible event of his life, to the military college, the scene of his disgrace where he had been exposed to the scorn of his fellow classmen. The proofs of his dishonorable plotting and treason work had been furnished by Cadet Sumpter Love, his successful rival for the love of a beautiful girl. The conclusive and uncontrovertible proofs of his guilt had vomited in his dismissal from the service and disenfranchisement as a citizen of his native country.

Bitter and still more malicious grew this feeling of hatred against this fellow cadet of his early manhood days, this man now General Sumpter Love, as his mind swept back to the days of never to be forgotten past, the days of his downfall and disgrace.

Over and over he turned the stolen papers. Only another link it was in the chain he was drawing about the old army officer. Many more there would be before his work was finished and, already, his brooding eyes were sighted along the Future—planning—planning—plotting. The butler coughed nervously and his master looked up, waving him away without a word of praise. The man had but done his duty. Hugo Loubeque expected that. The telephone rang and the spy stiffened in his chair, no more the dreamer. Loubeque was at work, finishing this detail in his scheme of revenge.

CHAPTER IV.

"For the Honor of a Man."

IN a world of mental and physical inequalities such as this there would be but scant chance for the weakling were it not for a kind Destiny taking the cards in his own hands and stacking them to make the game more equal. With the ruins of every hope smashing about her, without a thought save the need for a confidant and friend in time of distress, she took up the telephone to speak with her chum, the wife of a young officer who had only just reached the post a month before.

On such slight things do hinge great consequences; on such trifles may be decided the wrecking of the most cunning plot the master mind that dominates nations. For a second, sensitized by suffering though her mind was, she did not catch the significance of the orders being given by the man whose wire had crossed her own. Then a feeling of faintness caused her to reel at the power and strength she caught in the tones. She listened, conquering her fear in one triumphant throb of love for the imprisoned officer. Harley snatches could she get:

"General Love's orders and papers are in my possession now. For Shanghai on the Empress tonight. Have the launch ready."

And then the buzzing of the instrument told her that she could hear no more. It seemed too cruel, too impossible that her hopes should be raised so high only to be shattered. The General's orders and papers—The Empress for Shanghai immediately. She rushed to the window, her heart sinking at sight of the smoke curls spewing from the big liner's funnels. The launch was ready—ready—and her sweetheart was arrested.

Resolution so vague as to be indefinable urged her across the floor and out the door. She did not stop to analyze the impulse which urged her feet across the parade ground, down the streets of Manila toward the dock. Her bosom was riding and falling tempestuously with the effort and a mad despair possessed her as she caught the signs of readiness from the Empress and saw there was no boat to take her out to the ship which carried the precious orders.

She beat her tiny fists fiercely together. There must be a way. There must be. Faintly to her ears came a humming sound from the west. It reminded her of another sound she had heard recently, a sound she identified with the solution of her problem—Harley and his aeroplane.

It was five miles, but her horse could do the distance in short time. Faster even than she had reached the dock did she get to the stables. In amazement the groom looked at her as he followed her orders. She leaped into the saddle and through the moonlight she dashed, the little mare accepting this new freak of his mistress with delight.

The aviator had only just returned from the dance when she flung herself from the mare and grasped him fiercely by the shoulders, shaking him in the vehemence of her command. He stared at her unbelievingly as he made out what she desired, but there was something in the entreating eyes, the drawn face, that told her deadly earnestness. His lips opened for a protest when she commanded herself and, placing her hands upon his shoulders, looked deep in the man's eyes.

Harley turned away, turned toward the giant plane.

Lucille was pleading for the honor of the man she loved—pleading as only a woman can plead. There at the water's edge a soul stirring tragedy was enacted. The aviator—a man among men, was being asked by the girl he loved to risk her life, and his own, to save the name of his strongest rival. Torn between conflicting emotions, he stared at her, half unbelievingly, as with appealing intensity she pointed wildly out across the bright blue water to where the majestic liner was steaming rapidly towards the horizon. Lucille hung breathlessly on the aviator's every action. His lips opened for protest, but there was something in the entreating eyes he could not resist. Breathlessly she watched him, awaiting his decision. There was a curiously twisted smile upon his lips when he faced her again.

"Get in," he motioned. She had won her appeal.

Hugo Loubeque leaned against the liner's rail, pencil poised over the open pages of the diary which was headed—Loubeque's Account with Love. Items upon that page had been cancelled, more remained clear. The hand started to draw through one of these last when, faintly in his ears reached down a drumming sound from the heavens.

As his eyes wandered up the great bird to mid heaven grew more and more distinct, the figures of a man and woman emerging. A grim smile crossed the spy's face as he put the diary and pencil back in his pocket. For Hugo Loubeque was thorough, and the item might not be cancelled yet.

SHRINERS of North America To Gather IN ATLANTA

FORREST ADAIR

SOUTHERN SUNSHINE AND SMILES

AUDITORIUM

YAARAB

"AWAY down south in de land ob cotton" will soon be a tune familiar to all Shriners' ears—for they are Dixie-bound.

Atlanta, the Gate City of the South, will be the scene of the annual convention of the Shriners of North America, May 13-14.

Every state in the union and many sections of Canada will be represented. Over 30,000 Nobles are coming, and they will be entertained with old-fashioned southern hospitality, famous since ante-bellum days.

"Dar's buckwheat cakes an' Injun batter,
To make you fat, an' a little fatter."

There will be southern sunshine and smiles of welcome from the southern girl—the Peachtree girl—with raven tresses and flashing eyes. Her brother's a Shriner, you bet, and she'll be wearing a white fez in May.

Then there's that fragrant mint bed!

It is being kept under "intensive cultivation" for the Shrine.

In fact, everything that Atlanta can do, she is doing to make the gathering a magnificent success. And it's as a "doer" that Atlanta shines.

The city will be literally transformed for the convention. By permission of the mayor and city council the local Shriners' entertainment committee, headed by Potentate Forrest Adair, of Yaarab Temple, will take full control for the time of the whole street lighting system of Atlanta.

Great white globes with the Shriners' emblems thereon will be substituted for the top globes of the White Way clusters throughout the whole heart of the city. Arches and other fancy schemes of illumination will be erected over the down-town street crossings.

Turn Night Into Day.

The great dome of the capitol will be silhouetted in light, and special electrical decorations on hotels and business houses will make the whole central section a blaze of lights.

All this illumination will burn nightly until dawn and the city will be awake every hour of the twenty-four while the Shrine is in session. There will also be flags and bunting in profusion.

Elaborate social functions and entertainments are in preparation, including a grand ball in the Auditorium-Armory on both evenings of the convention, at which two orchestras will be provided so that there will be no cessation of dancing. This auditorium, the largest in the south, with a seating capacity of nearly 8,000 people, has been reserved by the Shriners for the entire week. In this auditorium the annual southern seasons of Metropolitan grand opera are held and here Caruso has sung to the largest audiences in his career.

To Open All Clubs.

In addition to the special social functions, Atlanta's five golf courses, country clubs, lakes with bathing and boating, parks, theaters and other joy facilities, will all be devoted to the entertainment of the Shrine.

Recognizing the utter impossibility of issuing many thousands of courtesy cards, every social club in Atlanta has decided to recognize the Shriners' visiting card and will open their doors to all Shriners.

Certain sections of the country are noted for particular forms of hospitality; some for clam bakes, others for fish fries, and the like; but one's education is not complete until he has enjoyed the form of hospitality for which Georgia is particularly famed—the old fashioned barbecue.

The barbecues are usually held in a pine grove near some sparkling spring. Pigs and sheep are roasted whole in pits dug especially for the purpose. The tables spread beneath the trees for the Shrine barbecues will accommodate from 1,000 to 5,000 persons.

Preparations have already been completed for adequately housing the immense gathering. Atlanta's hotel facilities are splendid, and in addition, the committee is erecting a large and comfortable building at Ponce de Leon park, where between 6,000 and 7,000 members of the patrols and bands will be cared for.

The Southern railway has set aside a part of its central yards where 400 Pullman cars may be parked. The first board and other railroads have jointly arranged additional parking space, and it is intimated that there will be between 500 and 700 Pullmans parked during the meeting.

Whole Hotels Reserved.

Usually only one hotel is reserved for the representatives of the Imperial Council meetings, but the Piedmont and Ansley hotels have both been set aside in their entirety for the Atlanta convention, so that representatives will not only be amply provided for, but will be enabled, if they desire, to bring members of their families with them.

California, which desires to capture the 1915 meeting, has engaged four entire floors of the Kimball House, and has obtained the consent of the owners to change the name for that week to "Hotel California." They will come in four special trains with a brass band of 150 pieces and with 150 members of their uniform patrol. Their electricians will be here three weeks in advance to decorate the building inside and out. The Californians will keep open house, using the spacious ball room as a reception hall, and will dispense California fruits and wines.

The events of the convention will be gorgeous and spectacular. They will rival New Orleans' Mardi Gras.

A Gorgeous Pageant.

There will be two immense parades, one Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, forming a vast official escort for the imperial potentate and members of the imperial council from the hotel to the place of meeting.

The second parade is to be at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. In this parade not only members of the patrols and bands, but all the Shriners as well will take part, wearing full evening dress with red fezes. Noble Burton Smith, of Atlanta, member of Yaarab temple, has been designated by Potentate Adair as commander-in-chief of the parades. The Tuesday parade will be three or four miles long. The Wednesday night parade will be seven or eight miles long. There will be between sixty and seventy-five bands playing at one time in these pageants.

More bands than were ever attuned for the coronation of the greatest king or emperor in Europe!

Among these bands will be the famous "millionaire band" from the middle northwest, noted because every member of it is a coupon clipping plutocrat.

Indian Band Coming.

Then there will even be an Indian band with tom-toms, to do the snake dance at Five Points and the sun dance along Whitehall. This band of real Indians will be brought by the Algeria temple, of Helena, Mont., as mascots for the temple on its pilgrimage to Atlanta. The band is composed of Blackfeet Indians from Glacier National park. Among them will be hunters, medicine men, singers, dancers, squaws and papooses. They will come with all their gorgeous feathers, blankets and Indian ornaments and during the week their camp will be pitched on a Peachtree street lawn. In this party will be the beautiful Indian girl, Dawn Mist, who is considered the most graceful and accomplished member of her race in the northwest.

AN ANTE-BELLUM TYPE

MASONIC TEMPLE

These Shrine parades will outshine and outglitter anything this side of the Orient. There will be real camels. There will be men dressed in real Oriental robes with real Oriental jewels and carrying gleaming scimitars. There will be costumes as gorgeous as those described in the fairy pageants of the "Arabian Nights."

There will be a cowboy band.

Just imagine the English Durbar, the inauguration parade at Washington and Buffalo Bill's Wild West show, all marching at the same time in the same street, and you will have some faint idea of what Atlanta will look like when these big pageants begin to move.

The Arab Patrol.

The Arab patrols in Oriental uniform are always wonderfully attractive features of every national convention. The competitive patrol drills this year will be judged by United States army officers, selected from Fort McPherson and the department of the Gulf, which has headquarters here.

"The Convention City."

And now a word about the city that is going to entertain this tremendous gathering.

Beautiful, hustling, sunny Atlanta has been a charming hostess on many occasions, and already many great conventions have been held here by national organizations which have learned the delights of the livest city in the south. Atlanta is pre-eminently a convention city.

To begin with, Atlanta has the great Auditorium-Armory, with its capacity of over 8,000 persons. There is no better convention hall in the United States, and the acoustics are perfect.

And Atlanta takes second rank to none in the excellence of her hotels. Most of the big hotels have been completed within the past few years and others have been remodeled so that they equal in convenience and service the hostelries of New York. As to ability to house the great throngs of visitors, Atlanta is outranked only by New York, Chicago, and possibly Los Angeles.

In the opportunities for pleasure and sight-seeing offered the visitor, Atlanta is exceptionally blessed. Its magnificent country clubs and beautiful lakes set among the rolling hills and southern pines; its historic battlefields, the big United States army post, and beautiful parks; its Druid Hills suburban residence colony; its beautiful Peachtree street, one of the most famous streets in the world, and its hundreds of miles of magnificent automobile roads, are a source of permanent pleasure and happiness to its citizens, and of keen joy to all visitors.

Atlanta's Modernity.

While Atlanta is essentially and commercially a stately modern city, with sky-scrapers that can be compared to New York and with a tremendous and ever-increasing volume of business, the stranger within the gates never loses sight of the fact that Atlanta is still a truly southern city, while the spirit of the twentieth century throws its hard, commercial and industrial progress, the spirit of the old south still reigns in her hospitality and social life.

Atlanta's climate, balmy and temperate at all times, is ideal in May. The city is 1,050 feet above the sea level, at the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains. Atlanta itself is on a high ridge, so that part of its waters drain to the Atlantic ocean and part to the Mississippi river. There is always a breeze and a bracing atmosphere.

General Sherman, who kept 100,000 men around Atlanta for six months in the summer and fall of 1864, declared that there was no place on the continent where he could have kept so large a body of men in better health.

Some of the oldest Shriners who are coming to Atlanta in May fought under the stars and stripes or the stars and bars and have memories of the old Atlanta and the old south. The old south was feudal, chivalric. The new south is modern. The old south was purely agricultural. The new south bristles with factory chimneys. It is dotted with cities whose sky lines are jagged with the silhouettes of tall buildings. Its civilization is no longer feudal but is new complex.

"The Atlanta Spirit."

Of this new south Atlanta is the recognised metropolis, and the far-famed "Atlanta spirit" has become a synonym for that broad spirit which has awakened not only Atlanta but the whole section to its tremendous opportunities for development.

Atlanta's growth since the war has been typical of the south's renaissance. When General Sherman reached Atlanta the population was only 18,000. Today it is between 185,000 and 200,000. The area of the city is 36 square miles. In postal receipts and bank clearings it leads the south.

It has 200 miles of modernly equipped electric railway. Thirteen railroads radiate from Atlanta and there are 136 passenger trains in and out of the city daily. In 1910 Atlanta had 488 manufacturing and industrial plants with a capital of $40,876,000, paying salaries and wages to the amount of $14,476,000. In 1913 the number of manufacturing and industrial plants exceeded 600, with a corresponding increase in capital, salary and wages.

To Dixie's Land.

It is from this city with its combined ideals of the old and the new south that the call has gone out to the Shriners of the nation.

"The gardens are blooming; the palms are laden with fruit and are waving heavily in the breeze. Toward this oasis the guides of the desert will offer shortly to lead thy caravans. Get thee ready. Anoint thyself, worthy one, with scented oils and trim thy beard; and each evening seek thy couch early, nor rise from it until the sun in the east doth beckon thee to prayer, that thy body may be full of vigor when thou dost foregather with thy brethren from the ends of the earth; for there will be much feasting and dancing; yea, verily, it is said unto thee there will be high times.

"Thou art awaited in the oasis of Atlanta. The dancing girls will go forth to the edge of the sands to give them greeting, and thy way will be strewn with blossoms of the flowering bush. Come ye!"

And so the Nobles of the Shrine, from the St. Lawrence to the gulf, from the Statue of Liberty to the Golden Gate, are humming to themselves in joyful anticipation:

"To Dixie's land I'm bound to trubble, Away, away, away down south in Dixie."

The Easter Bonnet

FOR the woman with only a fair amount of cleverness the little bonnet of raspberry colored straw is certainly one that may be easily copied. One piece of straw will make this little bonnet and a wire frame to fit the little girl's head can be purchased for a small sum at any millinery shop. Lace, either cream or white, is gathered and put on the hat about an inch and a half from the face. The bunch of grapes on the left side forms the only ornament. This little hat can be carried out in any color combination desired.

The hat in the center can be made entirely of taffeta, pongee or linen. A little shape cut out of muslin can be made to fit the head of the little girl for whom it is intended and used as a model for the material decided on. The little turned up portion can be stitched on separately. The hat may be also made of a straw with the crown of blue taffeta and the embroidered band may be a beaded one or one of straw.

The third bonnet is a dainty little one in black and white. This, too, may be fashioned of straw or any material desired. The crown would be dainty of crisp white taffeta or of flowered chiffon over silk or may be composed of white straw of a different weave from that used for the brim of the bonnet. A little ruche of net on the inside will form a charming finish and one very becoming to the little girl.
