SECRET OF ETERNAL YOUTH HELD BY GALAXY OF BEAUTIES IN CONTEST

Predicted she will receive many votes for honor of having likeness placed on Booster Button.

MISS HELEN IRVING.

Latest entrant in race has dark hair, blue eyes and pure cameo profile.

PAROLE IS ASKED BY BOARD FOR HAWTHORNE

Paroles for Julian Hawthorne and Dr. William J. Morton, ex-Treasurer of the United States, who have been serving sentences in the Federal Penitentiary for misuse of the mails in a stock scheme, were recommended on Thursday in a report submitted by the Federal Pardon Board to Attorney General McReynolds.

The recommendation in respect to Hawthorne and Morton had been agreed upon by the Pardon Board since their meetings at the Federal prison some time ago, but they have withheld their report, as is the custom, until the prisoners named are eligible to parole.

The indorsement of the Attorney General is regarded as a formality and it is expected that the two will receive their freedom by Saturday. A telegram will be sent at the direction of the Attorney General and this will be followed by a letter containing the formal notice of the paroles.

"I am delighted that the recommendation is before Mr. McReynolds," said Hawthorne, when Deputy Warden Wilbur Hawk informed him of the action of the Pardon Board. "I was aware that the board had considered my case favorably and it pleases me that it requires only the signature of the Attorney General to make me a free man."

Big Cotton Carnival Opens at Galveston

GALVESTON, July 24.—The fifth annual cotton carnival opened to-day with thousands of visitors here for the eleven days' festivities.

Features of the carnival will be automobile races on the beach on July 28, 29 and 30; horse racing on the next two days, and a military parade, in which 12,000 Federal troops will take part.

Ponce DeLeon Would Certainly Have Believed Their Loveliness Immortal.

If Ponce DeLeon were upon the earth to-day and should come to Atlanta in search of the fountain of youth he certainly would think he had found it in the galaxy of beauty in the booster button contest. A look through the photographs of the beauties who have been nominated would almost convince one that the loveliness is immortal.

Miss Helen Irving, of No. 385 Cherokee avenue, is the newest entrant. She is fair skinned, with dark hair, sea-blue eyes and a cameo profile. And it is predicted that she will get many votes in the remaining days of the contest.

Votes for the favorites are flowing in. The nominations have by no means ceased, but the contest has gone far enough for there to be favorites.

Do you remember the slogan for the "500,000 club" booster buttons that is to go under the picture of the girl voted the fairest? It is:

"Watch Atlanta—She'll Get You Yet. 500,000 by 1920."

Clip the coupon and nominate whom you think is Atlanta's prettiest girl, or vote for your favorite if she already has been nominated.

ELBERT CORN SHOW OCT. 17.

ELBERTON.—Martin Crawford, 62 years old and James seventy-nine are enrolled on the books of the Boys' Corn Club of Elbert County. It has been decided to hold the exhibit of the club at Elberton on Friday, October 17.

Charlton Dying Is Verdict of Doctors

JERSEY CITY, N. J., July 24.—Porter Charlton, who is in jail here awaiting extradition to Italy for trial for the murder of his bride at Lake Como, three years ago, is so ill he never will reach Italy alive, according to a statement by his physicians. He is a victim of pulmonary tuberculosis.

Two members of the Italian constabulary are expected to arrive in this country this week to take Charlton to Milan.

Ask Mayor to Light New Crematory Fire

It was announced Thursday that the new $260,000 crematory would be put into operation Friday, and to make assurance doubly sure that the row over this plant between Mayor Woodward and the Council has ended, Mayor Woodward was invited to light the fire.

Mayor Woodward was uncertain Thursday whether he would accept the invitation. He has never been down to look over the plant, which is located just back of Terminal Station.

To Test Alimony Law In High State Court

MACON, July 24.—W. M. Herring, an engineer, whose father was buried yesterday, was arrested to-day by the sheriff, upon affidavit made by his divorced wife that alimony had not been paid.

Since the divorce both Herring and his former wife have married again, and it is for that reason that he refuses to pay her alimony, notwithstanding the order of the court. His case is going to the Supreme Court for decision.

POLICE WAR BREAKS OUT AFRESH

Jacksonville Mayor to File Charges Against Captain Who Recognized Deposed Chief.

JACKSONVILLE, July 24.—After two days of comparative quiet in the war between Mayor Can C. Sweaningen and the board of bond trustees relative to the control of the police department has broken out afresh.

Last night the Mayor sent an order to the department addressed to Captain Harry Hall. As Captain Hall recognizes Fred Roach, deposed as chief by the Mayor, as of the department he thought the order should have come through his superior officer. Uncertain as to what course to pursue, he took the matter up with W. M. Bostwick, Jr., chairman of the bond trustees. He was advised to refer the order to Chief Roach, which he did.

The Mayor to-day heard that Captain Hall had refused to ignore Roach and he announced that he would prefer charges against the Captain for disobedience to orders.

Mayor Swearingen stated to-day that he was preparing his charges against Chief Roach and that he would have them ready to file with the board within the next few days. He will probably file charges against Captain Hall at the same time.

Currency Reform Not Likely to Pass

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Passage of a currency reform bill at this session of Congress was considered most doubtful to-day unless President Wilson brings peace between the warring factions of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Chairman Glass to-day presented to the committe a draft of an amendment to his bill providing for a prohibition of interlocking directorates. Mr. Glass is against such a proposal by the committee by a vote of 7 to 5, forced him to draw up the amendment.

Negro Lynched by Mob at Haines City

TAMPA, July 24.—John Bell, a negro charged with an attempt to attack a white woman near Haines City ten days ago, was captured near the scene of his crime yesterday and last night while a deputy sheriff was bringing him here from Bartow a mob took the prisoner and hanged him to a tree.

The negro talked freely about the crime. He said he was angry because the woman had threatened to set her dog on him.

Real Estate Men Go To National Meeting

JACKSONVILLE, July 24.—Eighteen real estate dealers left here tonight for Winnipeg, Canada, to attend the national convention of real estate dealers. The party has chartered a special car and will make a number of stops en route to the Canadian city.

Rich Man Held For Arson Freed on Bond

TAMPA, July 24.—Curry Hutchinson, a wealthy citizen who was jailed in connection with the Hillsborough Dry Goods Company fire Monday night, has been released on bail of $5,000, signed by Banker Trice and Former Mayor Frecker.

Hutchinson declares he is innocent of any wrong but will make no explanation of some of the circumstances of the fire. Though the other four men arrested in connection with the affair are still in jail their attorney declares he will have bail this afternoon.

Insurance men say the charge of arson will be pushed.

One of Three Whites Negro Wounded Dies

TAMPA, July 24.—T. B. Austin, one of the three white men shot by Columbus Hawkins, a negro, at Port Tampa yesterday, is dead and Ernest Chaney is near death.

Hawkins has three shot wounds to show for his share of the fight. He claims the white men came to his house at 1 o'clock in the morning to collect a debt from Charles Hall, a roomer, and that they began to shoot when he protested.

Headless Body of Girl Found at Sea

BOSTON, July 24.—The finding of the headless body of an apparently well-to-do young woman at sea, 35 miles east of the Georges Bank by Captain Charles White, of the Gloucester fishing schooner Jennie H. Gilbert, is believed to reveal a death by violence at sea, possibly on a trans-Atlantic liner.

The body was found ten miles south of the southerly track of trans-Atlantic steamers, about 170 miles out from Boston. Corsets of apparently expensive make, a black shirtwaist, portions of a dark green silk skirt and high button boots were on the body.

Back From Liberia To Die in the South

NEW YORK, July 24.—Pauline Woodson, a 69-year-old negress, was permitted yesterday to land in this country on the assurance of her son-in-law, David Robertson, that he would care for her in his home at Charleston, S. C.

Fifteen years ago Pauline, her husband and daughter went to Liberia and built a hut in the woods. They thought the life of a semi-civilized African superior to the drudgery of their Southern home. Her husband and daughter died in Liberia, and she came back to die in South Carolina.

Eugenic Restaurant To Save Babies' Lives

NEW YORK, July 24.—"Thousands of children are brought into the world handicapped for life because their mothers were ill-nourished before they were born."

Miss Mabel A. Parker thus tersely explains why she has embarked on one of the most novel eugenic experiments that has yet been made in this country—a prenatal restaurant.

This restaurant, which will be conducted solely for women who are expected to give birth to a child within six months, will be opened in two weeks.

Love Affair Drives Mme. Curie from Paris

WARSAW, July 24.—Mme. Curie, discoverer, with her husband, of radium, will return to her home here soon to remain permanently. She will have charge of a radiological laboratory.

Another reason for her return is the gossip connecting her name with that of Prof. Langevin, of the College of France, whose wife sued him for separation. Letters between Mme. Curie and Prof. Langevin became public.

PRESIDENT IS BRANDED AS DICTATOR

Works Charges Executive With Usurping Legislative Power. Scores Tariff 'Influence.'

WASHINGTON, July 24.—On the floor of the Senate to-day Senator Works, of California, denounced President Wilson for influencing tariff legislation in the summing up of a speech on the tariff bill pending before the Senate.

"The tendency of latter-day politics is to exalt the executive at the expense of the legislative and judicial power of the Government, and make the President the master and ruler of them all, and the master and not the servant of the whole people," said the Senator.

"It is an unwarranted and dangerous tendency. Every public official, however exalted, is only the servant of the people, and should at all times be subject to their control and subservient to their will in conformity to the Constitution and laws of the country, and each department of the Government, if its institutions are to be preserved, must be kept within the limitations of its powers as fixed by the Constitution.

He Charges Tariff Coercion.

"If this bill is passed, it will not be by the willing and voluntary consent of a majority of this body. It will be the result, in part, of outside influence that should never enter into the deliberations or acts of Congress. The Constitution provides:

> All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

"The President is also made Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy. That instrument further provides that 'the executive power shall be vested in the President of the United States of America.' It is further provided: 'He shall from time to time give to the Congress information of the state of the Union and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient.'

No Warrant for Influence.

"This is the only power vested in the President in respect of the making of laws. There is no warrant in the Constitution for his participation in the formation or passage of laws or the exercise of any influence on legislation beyond that of recommending to the consideration of the lawmaking power such measures as he shall judge necessary or expedient."

Here the Senator said that his views coincided with those injected into the Democratic platform of 1904 and he quoted from the declaration of principles drawn by the Democratic party at that time.

In concluding his speech, Senator Works said:

"I have approached this subject with reluctance and purely from a sense of duty. I expressed similar views during the last administration. I have the greatest respect and esteem for the incumbent of the great office of President of the United States, as I had also for his predecessor.

Explains Causes of Alarm.

"I believe in the integrity and sincerity of his purpose to serve the people and the country to their very best interests. But, sir, this can not deter me from expressing my views on a question so serious and far-reaching in its consequences.

"It makes the situation only the more alarming that one of such high ideals and patriotic purposes should do anything that can reasonably be construed to be a usurpation of power or an infringement of the Constitution that may some time be appealed to as a precedent by one less conscientious and patriotic."

BRIDE 20, BRIDEGROOM 74.

GADSDEN, July 24.—Daniel B. Fleming, aged 74, and Miss Jennie Rayburn, aged 20, were married at Guntersville, county seat of Marshall County, to-day. They will live on a farm.

Lightning 'Scrubs' Tower at Terminal

One of the most freakish stunts ever performed by lightning in Atlanta was discovered Thursday as a result of the striking of one of the towers of the Terminal Station. The brick and fancy work on both towers had been stained black by smoke, but the lightning cleaned one as perfectly as though it had been scrubbed. The other, still black, presents a striking contrast.

The shock of the stroke was felt in the waiting room and almost caused a panic. Little damage was done to the tower, but electrical and chemical experts still are unable to solve the mystery of its magic cleaning.

Fan Market Slumps; More Rain Forecast

A dealer in electrical supplies was offering regular $9 electric fans for $3.50, Thursday morning, but found no buyers even at that price. Atlantans evidently believe the weather man's prediction that the remainder of the summer will be cool and pleasant.

At 8 o'clock Thursday morning the official thermometer registered 72 degrees, and the mercury had only climbed 10 degrees higher at 1 o'clock.

Showers Thursday night or Friday is the forecast for Atlanta and vicinity.

Mann Stops Work of House by Filibuster

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Representative Mann again prevented the House from transacting any business to-day. Employing the same tactics he used yesterday—a point of no quorum—Mann demanded a roll call. Adjournment finally was ordered by a vote of 154 to 58.

The Mann filibuster is occasioned by the action of the Democrats in preventing a discussion last week of the Caminetti-Diggs white slave cases.

Georgia Rhodes Man Calls Oxford 'Grind'

BOSTON, July 24.—Being a student at Oxford is strenuous work, according to the verdict of five Rhodes scholars who returned to-day on the White Star liner Arabic.

The five were Frank B. Bristow, son of Senator Bristow, of Kansas; Walter S. Bryan, of Georgia; C. B. Grosland, of Alabama; W. Lloyd Williams, of North Dakota, and W. A. Zeigler, of Iowa. The five have completed the four years' course at Oxford.

STATE READY AND WILL FIGHT A DELAY

Solicitor Disappointed When Court Fails to Draw Jury Panels at Time Planned.

With the belief growing that a serious effort is being made to delay the trial of Leo Frank, set for next Monday, Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey Thursday renewed his protest against further postponement in a vigorous statement, declaring the prosecution is ready with a complete case against the National Pencil Company factory head, accused of killing Mary Phagan.

The trial date rests entirely with Judge Roan, who is in Covington. The drawing of the jury venire awaited word from him, expected some time during the afternoon. At his home it was said the Judge would not return until to-morrow.

Reuben R. Arnold, of counsel for Frank, was said to have consulted with Judge Roan in Covington and presented arguments for delay, but the truth of this report could not be established.

Judge Leaves for Atlanta.

Judge Pendleton, who will conduct the drawing of the jury, said Thursday afternoon that he had received no word from Judge Roan and would proceed unless he did.

A long distance message from Covington had it that Judge Roan left shortly before 2 o'clock for Atlanta and the indications were that it would be known definitely before Thursday night whether the long-awaited trial will begin Monday or be delayed once more.

In a statement to The Georgian, Solicitor Dorsey said:

"The prosecution was ready June 30 in the case of the State vs. Leo M. Frank, charged with the murder of little Mary Phagan on April 26 last. We have subpenaed all the witnesses, expecting to try this case on Monday next. This date was set at the suggestion of Judge L. S. Roan at the instance of counsel for the defense.

"We are disappointed that the jury

Let the Frank Trial Go On

The crime was committed April 26; Frank was arrested April 28; he was indicted May 23 and his trial set for June 30.

At the suggestion of the judge in whose court the trial is to take place, a postponement was agreed on, and the date of the trial moved up to July 28.

Now attempts are being made to secure another postponement. The only reason given to the public is that the weather is hot and it would be disagreeable to hold the trial in the summer.

Of course it is hot, but it isn't any hotter in the court room than it is in jail.

Both the prosecution and the defense have had ample time to prepare their cases. If Frank is guilty, the State can prove his guilt as well now as later on; if he is innocent, the defense can prove his innocence as well in summer as in winter.

The public has taken a keen interest in the Phagan case and it will demand that the man who killed her be punished, whether that man is Frank or someone else. Furthermore, it is tired of delays.

Public sentiment is where it was on the date first set for Frank's trial and it will be at the same place if the trial is delayed for a year.

Atlantans are awaiting the trial with open minds. They are not holding themselves up as judges. They know the law is supreme and they want it to take its course. But they want that course taken without seemingly endless delays.

STATE DEMANDS TRIAL OF FRANK ON MONDAY

Solicitor Declares He Is Ready and Will Oppose Any Move for Delay.

was not drawn this morning as Judge Roan stated it would be done.

"The State assuredly will be ready Monday unless something entirely unforeseen happens, and will ask trial of this man at that time."

Jury Not Drawn.

Superior Judge John T. Pendleton declined to draw a jury for the Frank trial Thursday morning until he heard definitely from Judge L. S. Roan whether the case would be opened next Monday. Judge Pendleton announced he would know definitely by 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon whether the case would be called Monday, and he would draw the jury at that time if necessary.

Deputy Sheriff Pinnie Miner had instructions from Judge Roan to have one of the other judges draw the jury Thursday unless he was notified to the contrary. Miner heard nothing from Judge Roan and carried the jury box to Judge Pendleton to have the twelve panels drawn. He notified the attorneys for the State and the prosecution in ample time for them to be at the court. Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey and his assistant were the only attorneys to put in an appearance.

It developed Thursday morning that there were two rather ruffled chiefs at the police department the previous afternoon when Jim Conley was sneaked from his cell in the station over to the Tower without their permission and without their knowledge.

Chief Lanford said: "This will never happen again."

Chief Beavers would not talk of the incident, but is understood to have told the two detectives, Starnes and Campbell, that if the negro were taken from the police station again he (Beavers) proposed to be in on it.

There was a commotion at police headquarters Wednesday afternoon, when it was found that Conley had been spirited away to confront Newt Lee in the Tower. Chief Lanford knew nothing of the circumstance until he was informed by The Georgian. Even then he insisted that Conley was in his cell.

Then Detectives Explain.

He went to Chief Beavers' office to see if permission had been given there for Conley's removal. Beavers said he did not know Conley was gone. Station Sergeant Holcomb was appealed to. He said he had not been notified that the prisoner was to be taken away. Turnkey Bayne, the last resort, was asked to explain the mysterious disappearance of Conley. He informed Chief Beavers that Detectives Starnes and Campbell had taken him about a half hour before.

The Chief, to satisfy himself that Conley was still in custody, made a personal visit to the jail.

When Starnes and Campbell later were in conference with the Chief they told him that they had said nothing about their intention because neither Chief Beavers nor Chief Lanford was in the station at the time.

Firemen Plan Strike When Denied Outing

DALTON, July 24.—Cooler heads among members of the Dalton Fire Department saved the city from being without fire fighters when the department debated at length whether or not to resign.

The trouble arose over the City Council's failure to make an appropriation for the firemen's annual outing. Citizens have made up a fund for the outing, and the firemen will leave here on August 9 for St. Simons Island.

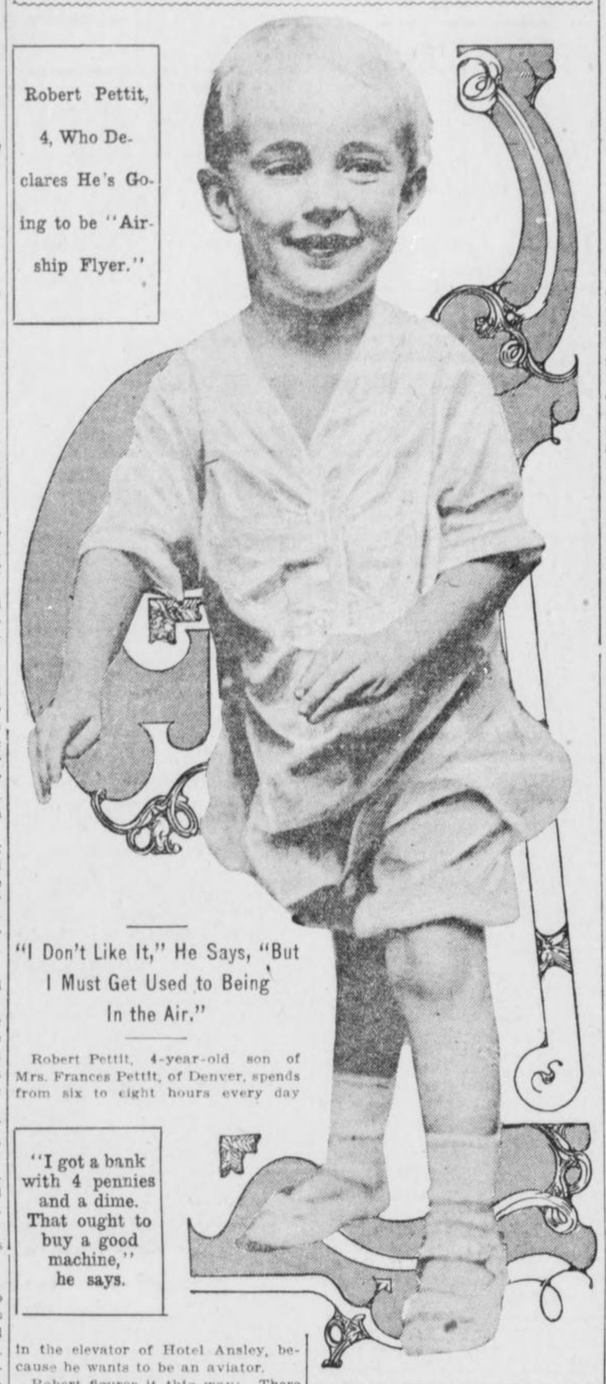
HOTEL ELEVATOR HIS SCHOOL OF AVIATION

Robert Pettit, 4, Who Declares He's Going to be "Airship Flyer."



"I Don't Like It," He Says, "But I Must Get Used to Being In the Air."

Robert Pettit, 4-year-old son of Mrs. Frances Pettit, of Denver, spends from six to eight hours every day in the elevator of Hotel Ansley, because he wants to be an aviator.

"I got a bank with 4 pennies and a dime. That ought to buy a good machine," he says.

Robert figures it this way: There isn't much use in buying and running an airship if you are going to get sick every time you get a few feet up in the air; the thing to do, therefore, is to get used to being off the ground—and then buy your airship.

"I don't like to ride in elevators," he says, "but I've got to. I'm going to be an airship flyer when I grow up, and I've got to get used to being off the ground. It is working fine, too. I can go up to the twelfth floor now without getting dizzy. I'll make a dandy aviator, I'll bet!"

The youngster has become a familiar figure to attaches and guests of the hotel. Every morning, as soon as he can slip away from Mrs. Pettit and his nurse, he drags his little chair into the elevator and sits solemnly behind the operator. He manifests great interest in the operation of the lift, and his greatest joy comes when he is allowed to hold the levers and make believe he is operating the car.

Robert says he is going to have an airship as soon as he is sure he can fly without getting sick.

"I've got a bank at home with four pennies and a dime in it," he said. "I guess that'll get a pretty good airship. If it ain't enough, Mama will give me as much more as I need."

Dr. Starnes to Play Great Symphony as Farewell to Atlanta

The whole of Tschaikowsky's "Symphonie Pathetique," regarded by many as the greatest piece of instrumental music ever composed, will be played at a free organ concert Thursday evening at the Auditorium-Armory under the Music Festival Association's auspices.

The presentation of such a work complete in one program is something new in the annals of music in the South. This concert will be somewhat in the nature of a farewell from Dr. Starnes, who will terminate his Atlanta engagement in the early fall. The playing of the "Symphonie Pathetique" is a monumental undertaking for one man.

Dr. Starnes said:

"In arranging this work I had no idea that its presentation by means of a concert organ should be as ideal as by an orchestra of 150 pieces, but not one person in 200 ever will have the opportunity to hear the symphony by a great orchestra."

The program also includes a short Bach fugue and Liszt's "Dream of Love."

$10,000,000 Offered To Fight Boll Weevil

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Secretary of Agriculture Houston to-day told Southern Senators and Representatives at a conference that his department was doing everything possible to wipe out the boll weevil.

Senator Vardeman, of Mississippi, said Congress would appropriate $10,000,000 a year to fight the weevil if the department could show that this was necessary.

SENATE DEFEATS NEW COUNTY MEASURE

Barrow Advocates Lose in Upper House After Long and Strenuous Fight.

The bill creating Barrow County, with Winder as the county seat, was defeated in the Senate Thursday afternoon after a long and strenuous fight. Advocates of the new county declared a strong effort would be made to reconsider the action.

A large number of people were down from Winder to witness the action of the Senate. The House had already acted favorably on the bill. Senator DuBose, of the Thirtieth District, led the fight for the new county.

While this bill passed the House with the indorsement of three of the six Representatives from the district affected, it is known that only one of the Senators of the three from the counties concerned to-day will vote for the bill. The other two, it is said, will actively oppose the bill when it comes up for passage.

Either the defeat or the passage of the Barrow County bill, it was argued by some, will mean an end of the consideration of new counties by the present Legislature. Others, however, claim the agitation will go on unabated, regardless of the verdict of the Senate, for strong delegations from the counties affected are on hand to wage their fight, and will not give up until the last card has been played.

Among the new counties which are to be voted on are Warner, Candler and Milledge.

Lamar, Hansell and Norwood Counties will be considered by the House committee Thursday afternoon.

Foreign Colony in Shanghai in Peril

Special Cable to The Georgian.

SHANGHAI, July 24.—Foreign residents of this city are in grave danger as a result of the fighting between the loyal troops and the southern insurgents. A foreign naval brigade from the warships in the harbor is being held in readiness to land at a moment's notice should the situation become more acute.

The Government officials are charging that Japan is aiding the revolt and is lending all its strength to the citizens of the southern countries in the hope that the Republic may be disintegrated.

Factory Supplants Farm as Exporter

The bureau's latest figures show a growth in exports of manufactures from $468,00,000 in 1903 to $1,200,000,000 in the fiscal year just closed and in manufacturers' materials from $409,000,000 to $740,000,000, while the exports of foodstuffs remained at a standstill, $510,000,000 having been the value of the exports in that line both in 1913 and 1903.

Missing Expressman Accused of Forgery

CORDELE, July 24.—Detectives in the employ of the Southern Express Company seeking S. J. Smith, missing agent of the company at Warwick, have gained no clew as to his present whereabouts.

It is alleged that on the same night that it is charged Smith misappropriated all of the funds on hand, including the receipts of the office for several days, he forged two express money orders amounting to $60. A book of $100 blank orders is missing from the office.

SENATOR WOULD ANNEX NORTH MEXICO

Hitchcock of Nebraska Also Favors Dividing Remainder of Country Into Small Nations.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The annexation of States in Northern Mexico by the United States and a division of the remainder of the country into separate governments was suggested to-day by Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, as a possible way of bringing about peace in that country.

"The cession of a portion of Northern Mexico to the United States in payment for the enormous indemnity which must be asked of that country for damage to American life and property seems to me to be a feasible way of settling these claims," said Hitchcock. "It will be impossible for Mexico to meet the demands of the United States in cash.

"These States also would serve as 'buffer' between the United States and the Mexican nations farther south.

"Inasmuch as Mexico is now torn between two conflicting factions, it is within the bounds of possibility that peace might be restored through the establishment of separate nations governed by the chief of the contending factions.

Sees Speedy Way to Peace.

"It would seem at present that this would be the most speedy way of bringing a cessation of hostilities to that war-ridden land. Of course, these suggestions are in no way to be taken as an authoritative statement as to the course the United States will pursue. They simply embody my own views on the subject."

President Wilson has not formulated a definite plan for dealing with the Mexican situation, he has not selected any of the alternatives suggested to him for escaping from the present tangle, nor will he do so before his conference with Ambassador Wilson at the White House, scheduled for Saturday.

This statement was made at the White House to-day and is understood to emanate directly from the President.

The proposal that the President should take the initiative in suggesting mediation to the warring factions south of the border is scouted at the White House.

Offer Sure To Be Rejected.

In the first place, it is unlikely that either side would consent to the United States acting as a peacemaker; secondly, the administration does not feel that it should offer its services when it is almost certain they would be declined with little ceremony.

Following a conference with President Wilson, Senator Bacon, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said that the United States, acting as mediator in Mexico, had been considered merely tentatively by the President.

"I do not believe that a policy of mediation will be adopted," said Senator Bacon. "The United States would have to be invited to act as a peacemaker and this, I think, will not occur.

Bacon Denies Intervention.

"The suggestion is only one of many now being considered by the President, who intends to take no active step until after he has had an opportunity to confer with Ambassador Wilson."

Senator Bacon said that all the energies of the United States Government would be devoted to settling the Mexican trouble without intervention, because the seriousness of this step is appreciated by all officials in Washington.

The Senator from Georgia also said that he could not conceive of any immediate developments which would force armed intervention and added that the protection of Americans and other foreigners in Mexico necessarily must devolve on the consuls and other Government agents now in the republic.

Senator Bacon refused to deny or confirm the rumor that Secretary of State Bryan was to head the Mexican commission of mediation and conciliation.

"As far as I know," said Bacon, "no man's name has been mentioned for this place."

Bryan Hurrying to Capital for Conference.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Secretary of State Bryan was in Chicago thirty minutes to-day. He arrived from Iowa, where he had been delivering chautauque lectures, and left at 12:40 o'clock for Washington. The only official who met him at the train was William L. O'Connell, Governor Dunne's political representative.

"I shall leave Washington again as soon as I feel I properly can," said Mr. Bryan. "I have several chautauqua engagements to fill during the summer."

Secretary Bryan declined to discuss his coming conference with Henry Lane Wilson, United States Ambassador to Mexico, who is on his way to Washington to meet President Wilson and the State Department chief.

Cardinal Gibbons Lauds Wilson's Mexico Policy.

WESTMINSTER, MD., July 24.—That Cardinal Gibbons is in sympathy with the Wilson administration's refusal to recognize the Huerta Government was clearly shown when, in an interview, the aged prelate said he thought the present Mexican Government is not well enough established to give it permanence, and, therefore, should not be recognized by the United States.

He said he sympathized with President Wilson in the delicate questions confronting him in the Mexican matter and thought he is doing his duty conscientiously in withholding recognition of the Huerta regime.

He thought that, while European nations were urging upon this country some action for the protection of their citizens and their property on Mexican soil, the consequences of American interference were of too serious character to justify hasty action.

He pointed out that it was by no means certain that the Huerta government would not soon be overthrown, the uncertainty being so grave that it could scarcely be reckoned a sound de facto power, to say nothing of its de jure authority. Under the circumstances President Wilson is acting wisely, the cardinal believes, in the course he has thus far pursued.

Praise for Elder Diaz.

Referring to the uncomfortable conditions American citizens on the Mexican border are enduring, the Cardinal said there was a possibility that this border might be pushed farther south for their relief. He alluded to the extreme discontent of the Mexican people in the State of Sonora and opposite El Paso, Tex., as giving rise to the impression of such a possibility.

The great mistake of the Mexican people, he said, was in their repudiation of Porfirio Diaz, who had given them a firm government, maintained peace, and had done more than any other man to develop the resources of the country and advance its prosperity.

Request for Rangers To Cross Border Denied.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The War Department to-ady formally denied the request of Representative Smith, of Texas, that a company of Texas Rangers be allowed to cross the border to rescue the Americans said to be in peril at Madera.

The department officials take the stand that no expeditionary movement of this kind could possibly be countenanced by the Government. Private raids engineered by filibusters would have no standing in the eyes of the world and the United States could not legally take steps to protect such rangers if they were surrounded by federalist troops in Mexico and slaughtered.

England Ready to Send Battleship to Mexico.

LONDON, July 24.—Great Britain is keeping a watchful eye on the situation in Mexico. In the House of Commons to-day Foreign Minister Grey, replying to a member's question, stated that the Government knew there was serious disturbance in various parts of Mexico and that British subjects were in danger. He declared that not only had citizens of the empire suffered, but that other foreigners had also suffered indignities at the hands of the Mexicans.

The Foreign Secretary stated that he was in communication with the Admiralty and in case it was decided advisable a British warship would be dispatched to Mexico.

Second Regiment Defending Island Against Invasion

ST. SIMONS ISLAND, July 24.—The Second Georgia Regiment left camp this morning for a trip across the island to a sawmill, where the sixth "battle" of the tour of duty is taking place to-day.

The battle plan is for the "enemy" to approach on a coastwise steamer and attempt to make a landing in the vicinity of the mill, which the regiment will attempt to prevent.

The entire regiment left camp at 7 o'clock in heavy marching order, carrying rations for three meals. After the battle pup tents will be pitched and the regiment will bivouac. Each man will cook his own food. The regiment will return to camp Friday morning.

Brigadier General Harris will arrive Friday, and dress parade will be given in his honor.

404 Members Enroll In Railroad Y. M. C. A.

Acquisition of 404 new members through a whirlwind campaign will be celebrated by the Railroad Young Men's Christian Association Thursday night. Prizes will be given the contestants, the awards being a gold watch, a gold fob, a gold signet ring and consolation prizes.

J. W. Whitaker, yardmaster of the Southern Railway, and L. M. Hunter, traveling fireman of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, led the contest. W. W. Waits, superintendent of the Southern terminals, will present the prizes.

Troops Asked in Copper Strike Belt

MARQUETTE, MICH., July 24.—James A. Crune, Sheriff of Houghton County, wired Governor Ferris today asking that 2,000 State troops be sent to the district in which the great copper strike is located.

The strike takes in territory 28 miles.

The Sheriff declares the strikers have begun to destroy property and that the lives of men who are not in sympathy with the strike have been threatened.

Surprise Sprung in Western Golf Play

HOMEWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, FLOOSMOOR, ILL, July 24.—E. P. Allis, LL.L, of Wilwaukee, the Wisconsin champion, sprung a surprise this morning when he finished the first half of the third match round in the Western amateur golf championship here, when he finished with a lead of 3 up on Charles Evans, Jr., of Edgewater, the present title holder.

R. A. Gardner, of Hinsdale, also finished with a lead of 3 up on A. C. Perry, of Calumet.

HOUSE VOTES TO GIVE SCHOOLS $2,600,000

Appropriation Made After Four-Hour Debate—One of Forty Amendments Passes.

After a four-hour debate the House Thursday morning, sitting as a Committee of the Whole, acted favorably on section 5 of the general appropriations bill, covering appropriations to colleges and the public school fund.

Despite the fact that more than 40 amendments were offered on it, but one change was made. This was an increase of $100,000 in the public school fund, making the total $2,600,000. The Appropriations Committee had recommended that $2,500,000 be appropriated, this being the exact amount paid out during the past year.

Scores of Speeches Made.

The amendment adopted was offered by Representative Stovall, and was carried by a vote of 80 to 45. The entire section was productive of debate, half a hundred speeches being made. The Stovall amendment came in the way of a compromise, a strenuous effort being made to make the appropriation $2,750,000.

It is believed the House will complete its work on the appropriations bill this week. Two days have already been consumed in it and if the House passes it this week a new record will have been set for expediency.

Quick Action Seems Sure.

It will be taken up by the Senate immediately and everything looks favorable for the sending of it to the Governor ten days before the expiration of the session. Governor Slaton has threatened to call an extra session unless the bill reaches him by this time.

An effort to limit the time of the consideration of the bill by the House as a Committee of the Whole to an hour for each section except the fifth caused an hour's hot debate. The resolution provided for five-minute speeches by eight members and twenty minutes for Chairman Wheatley, of the Appropriations Committee. This was killed by a 91 to 34 vote.

Asks Receiver After Tilt With Partner.

George O. Speir, stockholder in the A. A. Smith Cotton Products Company in the Grant building, has filed a petition in the Superior Court asking for a receiver for the company on the grounds that disagreements between him and A. A. Smith have made it impossible for them to continue to do business together.

He declares that up to 30 days ago the company was earning $20,000 a year.

Loaded With Meals, He Defies the World

CHICAGO, July 24.—Impelled by five meals at once, Juluius Johnson to-day scaled the walls of a three-story flat building, armed himself with bricks pulled from the chimney and defied the world.

At the station Johnson's relatives came for him. They said he had purchased a 21-meal ticket at a restaurant and just before his escapade had eaten five meals, one after the other.

CONVICTS RIOT IN SING SING; SET PRISON AFIRE

OSSINNING, N. Y., July 24.—Mutinous convicts, in open rebellion against their keepers, to-day made an attempt to destroy the entire Sing Sing prison property by fire.

They set fire to the clothing manufacturing building, in which all the shoes, clothing and like articles are made. The fire was extinguished by the prison fire department after it had swept the shoeshop.

The entire penal population is being kept under lock in fear of further outbreaks.

Fire Laid to Trusties.

The attempt to burn the prison building came early to-day after a night of wild excitement in the prison.

When the warden, James H. Clancey, was told of the threats, he directed that no prisoners, excepting the trusties, should be allowed out of their cells. It is believed that some of the trusties, acting under orders of their imprisoned fellows, applied the match to the clothing factory building.

As the fire raged the criminals behind locked doors set up a terrific din. They shouted "fire," called vile names, beat their doors and made the prison hideous with noise.

"We want Kennedy," came the constant chant above the din.

Protest Warden's Removal.

This protest against the removal of the former warden, who was indicted by the Westchester County Grand Jury, was the keynote of the entire rebellion that for 36 hours has had the State's largest penal institution in a state of mutiny.

All night long the convicts kept up their riotous demonstration. They made the food the first basis of complaint. They contemptuously tossed away bits of food and went to their cells surly and disobedient.

Guards are on duty to-day all along the prison walls, the officers fearing that the sullen convicts may make a concerted effort to escape.

Seeking to relieve the perilous situation at the prison, Warden Clancey this afternoon made arrangements with the railroad to take 200 second and third term prisoners to Auburn to-morrow. With these riotous prisoners out of the way, the warden believes he can restore order in the institution.

CAMP LIFE INCREASES HELLO GIRLS' ABILITY

Swimming, Rambles in Woods, Auto Rides and Sleeping Outdoors Give New Lease on Life.

"If you do not believe the simple life is conducive to better work, ask some of the heads of departments of the Bell Telephone Company. They'll tell you that since the establishment of Camp Wyanoke at Lakewood Heights, where the young women employees of the company spend their vacations and their week-ends, the work of the "hello girls," the stenographers and the other young women who work in the big building at Mitchell and Pryor streets, has greatly improved.

"The idea we had in mind when Camp Wyanoke was established," Miss Katherine Tatum, who is in charge of the camp, said, Thursday morning, "is working out splendidly. The girls come back to Atlanta after a few days or a week's stay at the camp invigorated and almost with a new lease on life. They have breathed pure, fresh air; they have worked about the camp, and they return to their work with a vim and a determination that is usually lacking during the hot summer months."

Simple Life Throughout.

The simple life is lived in all its phases at Camp Wyanoke. With the exception of the harder and unfamiliar work of cooking all the work is done by the girls. They wash dishes, wash their own clothing—or most of it—keep house, sew and do a hundred and one other tasks.

When work is done they go swimming and wading, or take long rides in the automobiles the company sends out to them several times a week.

Every Wednesday and Saturday nights there are dances and games of various kinds.

The practice of sleeping in the open air is considered by Miss Tatum one of the best features of the camp. It gives many girls who heretofore have been cooped up in tiny city rooms a chance to recuperate.

Sunday School in Camp.

Every girl employed by the company is given a chance to taste the joys of camp life. Those who had taken their vacations before the camp was installed have been given a leave of absence of three or four days, that they might visit the camp. Others spend their entire vacation there.

There are always about twenty girls at the camp, and on Saturday and Sunday this number is sometimes swelled to a hundred, by the girls who come out to spend Sunday. Sunday school is held in the open air under the trees, and is usually attended by about a hundred young women.

Sewage Plant To Be Finished by Sept. 1

W. A. Hansel, assistant chief of construction, has announced that the Peachtree Creek sewage disposal plant will be ready for operation by September 1. With the completion of this plant Peachtree Creek, about which there has been much complaint, immediately will be purified.

The main part of the plant practically is complete, but the city has not yet been able to get sufficient stone for the filter beds.

Special Cable to The American.

MILAN, ITALY, July 24.—Damage is being inflicted throughout the entire Italian lake district, which is being swept by terrific hurricanes.

Lamar Indicted to Reach 'Higher Ups'

NEW YORK, July 24.—The Government's real object in secretly indicting David Lamar after his revelations before the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee was to frighten the "Wolf of Wall Street" into giving information in contemplated action against the men higher up in Lamar's impersonations. Men high in political and financial life are believed to have profited through Lamar's operations.

AGED MEN INJURED.

ELBERTON, July 24.—Martin Crawford, 62 years old, and James Bond, aged 60, came near losing their lives when Crawford's mule team backed off the bridge over Coldwater Creek. Two of Crawford's ribs and his breast bone were broken. Bond also had two ribs broken.

U. S. TO DIVORCE TRUSTS FROM RAILROADS

Government Plans End to Rebate Extortions Costing Lines $42,000,000 a Year.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The answer of the Interstate Commerce Commission to the application of the railroads east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac Rivers for permission to make a general increase of 5 per cent in freight rates, will be as follows:

1. The application will be denied.
2. All railroads will be ordered to discontinue making "allowances" to certain favored big industrial combinations.

This will save the general public from paying the additional $42,000,000 a year which the railroads are asking for and deprive certain big industrial corporations of a sum ranging between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 annually.

The Commission during the past few months has secretly made an investigation to determine just the extent to which the practice of making "allowances" to industrial short line railroads, owned by manufacturing concerns, is prevalent.

His Names and Facts.

It is now in possession of the names of the concerns which receive these "allowances" or rebates, or discriminatory rates—and in addition it has the names of the railroads which pay them, the amounts received by the favored industrial corporations and something of the extent to which the practice injures the competing manufacturers, who are not in a position to enter into such arrangements.

In a large number of instances, it is claimed, the practice amounts to extortion. The railroads are compelled by the demands of competition to make allowances to the manufacturer for transferring his product over his own insignificant trackage to the junction where the regular railroad takes up his cars. Where several railroads are bidding for such a manufacturer's business the one which makes the most liberal allowance usually gets the freight.

To End the Extortion.

In view of this fact it is expected that the answer which the commission will give the railroads will meet with their approval and co-operation, and will do away with the most important of existing improper practices without the necessity of prosecution.

The railroads are asking for the five per cent increase on the ground that they must have increased revenue to pay their large operating expenses, and particularly, to pay the higher wages demanded by their employees.

The recent demands for higher wages would take $17,000,000.

Can Pay Wage Advance.

Under the order which the Interstate Commerce Commission will issue the railroads will get more than $42,000,000 by simply cutting off an improper expense, and correspondingly, the favored trusts and combinations which have been mulcting them of the amount will be deprived of it.

The railroads will be placed in a position to pay their employees the living wage they demand, the danger of a huge strike will be avoided, and the whole thing will be accomplished without the shippers—and through them the general public—being required to pay more for the transportation of the necessities of life.

Board at Work to End Strike Deadlock

NEW YORK, July 24.—Hoping to end the deadlock and avoid the threatened strike of the 100,000 trainmen on the Eastern railroads, the Federal Board of Mediators to-day went into consultation with the men's representatives. Later the mediators will meet the railway managers.

The deadlock is the result of the insistence of the employers that their grievances also be arbitrated at the same time the men's demands are taken up.

Settlement Sought Of $14,000,000 Debt

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A debt of $14,000,000, probably the largest dispute of a financial nature in the United States, will be the subject of a conference in this city to-morrow. Virginia is trying to collect that amount from West Virginia and commissions representing the Legislatures of both States will meet here to-morrow and try to reach an agreement.

The debt arises out of West Virginia's withdrawing from Virginia a half century ago and since refusing to pay for improvements Virginia made.

Champ Clark Won't Let His Wife Fly

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The yearning of Mrs. Champ Clark, wife of the Speaker of the House, to engage in an aviation flight, while visiting Representative and Mrs. Baker, at Wildwood, N. J., received a setback when the Speaker flatly refused to let her go.

"I never talk back to Champ," she said. He is master of his own house and so I guess I won't fly just now."

Democrat Is Elected Arkansas Governor

LITTLE ROCK, July 24.—Latest returns to-day showed George W. Hays, Democrat, was elected Governor of Arkansas by a large majority. The Republican, Progressive and Socialist candidates were running far behind.

The surprise of the election was the failure of the Bull Moose faction to display any strength. Colonel George W. Murphy was a poor third.

Harry Meyers, Republican, carried the normal Republican counties. Both Democrats and Republicans before the election predicted heavy losses to the Progressives.

TEXTILE MAKERS SCORE COTTON TARIFF CUTS

Petition to Congress Asserts Democrats Forget Pledges and Industry Will Suffer.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A petition signed by more than 60 leading cotton manufacturing and distributing firms in the United States, protesting against the cotton tariff rates in the bill now under consideration in the Senate, has been presented to both Houses of Congress. The petition reads as follows:

We herewith voice our protest against the enactment into law of the unequal provisions covering cotton textiles, as disclosed by the various proposed rates published July 11, 1913, embodied in the bill passed by the House of Representatives and amended by the Senate majority (Democratic) caucus.

The Democratic platform declared and promised:

"We recognize that our system of tariff taxation is intimately connected with the business of the country, and we favor the ultimate attainment of the principles we advocate by legislation that will not injure or destroy legitimate industry."

Say Business Will Suffer.

First. We can not reconcile this with the low rates now proposed, which in many instances must injure legitimate industry.

Second. We point out that we fairly represent the primary and other distributors of cotton textiles, handling productions of both North and South which go to every city, town and village in the United States.

Third. The rates generally are below what they should be. The amendments made are inadequate to fix competitive rates in accordance with the promises of the Democratic platform.

Fourth. As we understand it, the purposes of the tariff revision generally were to reduce duties, but not to disturb or inflict punishment on any branch of legitimate industry, and there has been no demand to overdo the reduction, especially in cotton textiles, as in many instances is the case.

Fifth. Some illustrations: Failure to provide higher adequate rates for cotton textiles made of combed yarns than if made of ordinary yarns, or higher adequate for finished plain woven or figured cloths than for grey; putting rates for jacquards on same basis as for ordinary cloths, and actually omitting jacquards in Senate amendments, etc., etc.

Offered Non-Destructive Rates.

Sixth. We indorse the effort of the Independent Manufacturers of New England, who have willingly accepted great reductions, but asked that consistent and non-destructive rates, if on a competitive basis, should prevail.

We believe that they have pointed out the lowest possible competitive rates which in operation would be consistent and fair to the different branches of the industry—North and South. We do not comprehend why their recommendations have not been received in the spirit given.

Seventh. We point out that it is better to err on the side or safety than to subject the industry at this time to the proposed rates more especially on productions of from medium to better grades of goods.

We deplore the discrimination that subjects the cotton textile trade to these needless hardships.

Hardy Elected Head Of Retail Merchants

At the meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association of Georgia, concluded Wednesday evening, the following were elected officers: J. W. S. Hardy, Waycross, president; W. P. Grantham, Thomasville, vice president; John Barten, Atlanta, re-elected secretary. The association is fighting for garnishment and fraudulent check laws.

The time and meeting place of the next convention was referred to the executive committee.

RESINOL CURED AWFUL PIMPLES

Whole Face Covered, Now Clear.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I was troubled with two or three pimples coming out on my chin. In a week or so my whole face was covered with them. Friends advised me to use different lotions and salves. I tried them, but they did me little good, if any. I finally washed the pimples with Resinol Soap and applied Resinol Ointment before going to bed. In the morning I found the swelling going down, and the inflammation gone from the pimples. I tried this treatment for about a week, and found that most of the pimples had disappeared. I kept the treatment up for about a month, and then my face was clear of all pimples. I have used Resinol Soap since, and find that the pimples do not come back." (Signed) Walter A. Stenstrum, 54 Willoughby Ave., Oct. 9, 1912.

Resinol positively stops itching instantly and speedily heals eczema and other skin humors, dandruff, sores, burns and piles. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap are sold by every druggist. Trial free: Dept. 11-P, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

Mr. Boartfield is survived by his wife, one son, S. O. Boartfield, and four daughters, Mrs. O. B. Lynch, and Misses Emma, Stella and Julia Boartfield. The body will be taken to Cass Station, Ga., for interment.

Dr. J. J. Burch, a leading physician of Elberton, is dead. His body was interred in Elmhurst Cemetery. Dr. R. C. Cleckler, of the First Methodist Church of Elberton, conducted the funeral. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Miss Maria Burch. He was 50 years old.

The body of Mrs. Florence Houston, who died at a local sanitarium Wednesday, was taken to Arden, N. C., Thursday for funeral and interment. She was twenty-six years old, and is survived by her husband, C. B. Houston.

The body of James T. Mooney, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Mooney, No. 26 Longley avenue, who died Wednesday afternoon, was sent to Flowery Branch, Ga. Thursday for funeral and interment. The father is a fireman on the Southern railroad.

Mary Frances Thompson, the four-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Thompson, died at the home, No. 264 Pulliam street, Wednesday. The body is at Bloomfield's chapel and funeral announcements will be made later.

The remains of Miss Mary C. Laurell, who died at a local sanitarium Wednesday night, will be sent to Thomasville, Ga., Thursday night for funeral and interment. Miss Laurell was sixty-five years old.

Ethel Yother, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Yother, died at the home on Howell Road Wednesday night. Funeral announcements will be made later.

Mrs. Thressa B. Simmons, 20 years old, died at her home, No. 4 Connecticut avenue, at 8 o'clock Thursday morning, after a brief illness. She is survived by her husband, William J. Simmons; a small child; her father, E. Schneider, three brothers, Willie, Harry and Clarence Schneider, and two sisters, Mrs. W. P. Raoul and Miss Laniar Schneider. The funeral will be held from the residence Friday morning at 10 o'clock, the Rev. C. N. Donaldson officiating. Interment at Westview.

MULHALL BAND SUES PAPER.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A. Park Nevin, attorney for the National Association of Manufacturers, said today that a libel suit for $500,000 would be filed against the Philadelphia North American for comment regarding the Mulhall charges.

Leave LaGrange Discussing Governor's Arraignment of Georgia's Antiquated Tax System.

LA GRANGE, July 24.—Members of the Georgia Weekly Press Association left LaGrange this morning for Brunswick, still discussing Governor John Marshall Slaton's scathing arraignment of Georgia's tax system at the annual banquet of the association Wednesday night. The Governor appealed to the editors for aid in what he declared to be the most serious financial crisis in the history of the State. He said that Georgia's tax system and reckless spending by the Legislature have brought about present conditions, when the State finds itself unable to pay its school-teachers.

"We must admit it is indefensible to maintain a system that pays its teachers a year after their work has been performed," Governor Slaton said. "It is pleasant to spend money and hard to make it. We love to appropriate, yet shrink from the tax levy. In two years, the Treasurer says, we have spent nearly three-quarters of a million more than our income. The teachers—patient and hard-working—teaching during the day and working examinations at night—molding the characters and training the minds of those upon whom our civilization depends—under our system find no ray of hope from the injustice they suffer.

Recommends Special Taxes.

"While unpleasant to do, I have recommended a levy—an extra tax of 1 mill for 1915, and 1-2 mill in 1916, as the brave way to get relief. The taxpayer will find it the best trade he ever made. It would prevent the imposition of drastic taxing laws, the deficit in the treasury would be satisfied, the State could say to purchasers of her bonds that she is on a solid financial basis, her teachers would be paid, and the kiting policy, which is opposed to all sound principle, would be abolished."

Governor Slaton emphatically declared himself in favor of the plan of equalization of taxes that has been recommended by the Legislature.

Favors Tax Equalization.

"Is not equalization just that requires all to pay the same percentage?" he asked. "Is it right that one many pays on 16 per cent of the value of his property when another pays on 40? An increase of 20 per cent, by simply equalizing the burden, not increasing that of him who is already bearing his part, would produce an abundance of revenue for every legitimate purpose."

The editors will arrive at Brunswick this afternoon and enjoy an outing of several days in that city and at St. Simons Island, where the Second Georgia Infantry is in camp.

Boys Calmly Admit Killing a Policeman

CHICAGO, July 24.—Declaring he was not afraid to go to the gallows, Walter Novak, 19, to-day repeated his confession that he signaled for the shooting of Policeman Samuel Sowers, who was dying from a bullet wound. Bruno Klonowski, 18, who fired the shot, said: "I just felt like killing a cop. That's all. I should worry."

The two prisoners told the police to-day that they had been close friends of the four youths who were hanged in February, 1912, for slaying a gardener.

Plans To Be Made For 11 County Fairs

MACON, July 24.—The secretary-managers of eleven Georgia county fairs will meet in Macon next Thursday and outline plans for their exhibitions during the coming fall. They will be the guests while here of the officials of the Georgia State Fair Association.

Representatives will be here from Columbus, Dublin, Tifton, Carrollton, Griffin, Eatonton, Washington, Oglethorpe, Valdosta, Cartersville and Calhoun.

Capital Matrons Vie As Queens of Beauty

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Who is to be the beauty of the new administration is the much-discussed question here. Here are the leading aspirants:

Mrs. John E. Osborne, wife of the Second Assistant Secretary of State, dark eyes and hair, clear-cut features and a graceful, slender figure.

Mrs. Dudley Field Malone, wife of the Third Assistant Secretary of State, Irish type, black hair, blue eyes, sparkling with mirth.

Mrs. Timothy Ansberry, golden hair, oval contuor, large blue eyes and superb figure.

Mother's Lips Keep Baby Alive 10 Days

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 24.—Determined that her baby boy should live, though three physicians declared he would die in 48 hours, Mrs. J. H. Spaulding, of Oklahoma City, kept the spark of life aglow ten days. It is considered the most remarkable case of artificial respiration on record.

Soon after birth the baby was seized with an affection of the heart. The mother placed her lips over the mouth of the child, exhausted the air in its lungs and allowed fresh air to pour back. The baby revived.

The mother repeated the operation on two more occasions. Then the baby was taken to the hospital and died soon afterward.

Macon Will Invite Veterans Next Year

MACON, July 24.—It is very likely that Macon will invite the Confederate veterans of Georgia to hold their 1914 reunion here. There was no invitation extended at the recent reunion in Brunswick, and this fact has prompted the local veterans to arouse an interest in the matter.

A meeting of Camp R. A. Smith will be held next week for the purpose of formally preparing an invitation.

Sons to Seek Pardon For Aged Wife Slayer

MACON, July 24.—Sons of Roger McCall, a 75-year-old Macon man, who shot and killed his wife two years ago while intoxicated, and who is now serving a life sentence at the State Farm, will apply shortly to the Prison Commission for a recommendation for a pardon.

SENTENCE GUYTON MERCHANT.

GUYTON.—Convicted of violation of the prohibition law, H. W. Orvine, a Guyton merchant, was sentenced to twelve months on the county chaingang or pay a fine of $1,000 in City Court at Springfield. He is under bond in a similar case in Superior Court.

STREET CROWDS SEE STABBING AFFRAY

Real Estate Operator Accused of Knife Attack After Dispute Over a Bet.

While hundreds of pedestrians, many of them women and children, looked on, two men engaged in a stabbing affray on Peachtree street across from the Candler Building Thursday morning. One of the men received serious injuries.

The wounded man gave his name as Burnett Goodman. He said he was manager of a gum company and lived at No. 36 Moore street. His assailant gave his name as M. B. Ware, 41 years old, a real estate operator living at No. 30 Highland avenue. Ware is a one-armed man. He was released on bond of $100.

Goodman was slashed about the right side of the face and neck. He was taken to the Grady Hospital. After his injuries were attended to he was removed to the police station, where a charge of disorderly conduct was lodged against him.

Refuses to Explain Attack.

Ware, who voluntarily surrendered to Policeman Bostwick, declared that "he had cut him because he wanted to cut him." Other than that, he refused to give an explanation of his action.

According to Goodman, Ware attacked him without provocation.

"I was walking down the street with a friend, when Ware came up to me and without a word began striking at me with a knife. I dodged his blows as well as I could and tried to run, but the knife caught me twice across the face. Then I got away and ran, but Ware followed me. If it had not been for someone stopping him he would have killed me, I believe."

Bet Given as Cause of Fight.

The affair is said to have been the result of an argument over a "book" on a baseball game. According to information given the police, Ware on Wednesday made a bet with Goodman of $125 on the game played that afternoon.

It was said that Goodman was accustomed to making "books" on baseball games, and that Ware, in lieu of the cash to put up, posted a $20 forfeit to cover his bet.

According to the report, Ware failed to put up the remaining $105 before the game was played, and when the team which he bet on won, and he attempted to collect the bet from Goodman, the bookmaker refused to pay.

The two are declared to have had some difficulty at that time, but refrained from violence. Thursday morning, however, when they met, the stabbing ensued.

OPTIMISTIC AT 110.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., July 24.—James Morgan, of Grundy County, has just celebrated his 110th birthday. He expects to live another decade.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Men

Send Name and Address To-day—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

We have in our possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that we think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So we have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write us for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and we are convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

We think we owe it to our fellowmen to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what we believe is the quickest acting restorative, upbuilding SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop us a line like this: Interstate Remedy Co., 4276 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and we will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but we send it entirely free.

CAROLINA YOUTH RICHEST TAR IN NAVY SLAIN

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—Wilbur Martin, the young sailor from Anderson, S. C., who was killed here recently in a tenderloin saloon, was worth more than $250,000 in his own right, according to information received here to-day. He was the richest enlisted man in the navy.

The fascination that the sea held for him and the adventures of a naval career led him to give up the enjoyment of his fortune to become a common seaman on the battleship Connecticut.

He inherited this fortune when his mother died last March. His relatives at once began to plead with him to give up his adventurous life and settle down in Anderson. The lure of the sea was too great, however, and he disregarded their pleadings and advice. In despair, his relatives appealed to Washington, but this last hope was without avail.

The mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Martin are thought to have been explained by the discovery to-day of a bottle of heroin, which is supposed to have belonged to him.

Hospital physicians say drugs caused his death and it is believed he was the victim of "knockout drops."

Metropolitan Gets Abbey's 'King Lear'

NEW YORK, July 24.—The Metropolitan Museum of Art has come into possession of "King Lear," one of the most beautiful and noted of the paintings of Edwin A. Abbey. The picture formerly was a part of the collection of the late George McCulloch, which was sold in London this spring. It was bought by Knoedler for $25,200 and sold to George A. Hearn, who presented it to the museum.

THIRD CHAPTER IN PHAGAN MYSTERY

Arrests of Suspects in the Factory Slaying. Sensation as Leo Frank, Manager Was Taken Into Custody.

CHAPTER III.

Everything that occurred, trivial or important, during those first few days after the body of little Mary Phagan was discovered in the pencil factory basement took on a dramatic aspect. The people were keyed to so high a pitch by the revolting crime that for a time it seemed to require only a spark to fire them to violent deeds.

Let a strange person so much as appear at the police station to confer with Chief of Detectives Lanford and wild rumors spread about the whole city like magic. Let one of the detectives drop a careless remark and in a flash everyone mysteriously understood that a complete confession had been made to the police by the murderer.

So it was a sinister reception that the first catch in the detectives' dragnet received from the group of angry men when he was hurried to police headquarters Sunday night of the day after the factory girl had been slain.

All through the day crowds had hung about the police station, some of them merely morbidly curious, others having the mistaken impression that they were going to help the authorities in some manner. Since Newt Lee had been taken into custody in the morning, there had been no arrest, but now with the end of the day came the intelligence that the murderer of Mary Phagan had been captured and was being brought to a cell at the police station.

Smiles Defiantly at Crowd.

Eagerly the crowd awaited to learn the man's identity. On each side of the doors they lined themselves as he was walked, defiantly, toward them between two detectives. A smile curled his lips when he heard their sullen mutterings.

"I know that guy; it's Art Mullinax," came in a hoarse whisper from a roughly dressed youth.

The group of men and boys closed in behind the detectives and their captive, but officers barred their entrance to the police station. To Chief Lanford, Mullinax repeated his denial of the crime which he had made previously to the detectives when they placed him under arrest.

"It's a horrible mistake," he cried, dropping the bravado he had displayed before the crowd. "I don't even know Mary Phagan, except by sight, and the only time I can remember of seeing her was at a Christmas entertainment."

Despite his protestations of innocence, he was placed in solitary confinement and instructions were given that no one be permitted to see him or communicate with him. Sentell, the grocery clerk, insisted that Mullinax was the man he saw with Mary Phagan Saturday night at midnight, and he was so positive in his identification that there appeared to be little doubt of the circumstance.

Sentell Was Positive.

Sentell declared that he had known Mullinax for some time by sight and had met him frequently at the car barns, where both of them had worked at one time. He was certain he could not be mistaken. If it were possible, he was even more positive in his identification of Mary, for he had spoken to her, calling her by name, and she had replied, calling him Ed.

Monday's dawn found the detectives working feverishly on the hundred-and-one clews that had been presented to them. They had Mullinax in a cell, but they were confused by the maze of rumors which confronted them and which pointed the finger of suspicion at other persons as strongly as at Mullinax.

Early in the morning two of the detectives left the station. Chief Lanford was silent and no one else could be persuaded to tell of their mission. The newspaper men, however, jumped to an immediate conclusion and the next editions carried a story that search was being made for a discharged employee of the factory who was known to have been acquainted with the murdered girl.

A little later Chief Lanford admitted that it was J. M. Gantt, Mary's childhood playmate in Marietta and until three weeks before timekeeper at the pencil factory, who was the object of the search. He was known to have been at the factory the night before. His sister Mrs. F. C. Terrell, of No. 284 East Linden avenue, gave a strangely inaccurate account of his recent whereabouts.

Another Arrest Made.

She declared to the detectives and to Georgian reporters that Gantt had not been home for three weeks and that she understood he was on his way to California, when it was known that such was not the case.

Adding to the suspicion against him, he made the unfortunate move of leaving town at the very time the search was started for him, giving the impression that he was taking to flight. As it happened, he went only to Marietta and he was arrested as he stepped from a car there. He indignantly denied that he had any idea of flight. He did not have any idea that the officers were after him, he declared.

His story was that he went to Marietta to buy a crop and that he had notified his mother several days before that he was coming over Monday morning. A warrant charging that he was suspected of the murder of Mary Phagan was lodged against him and he was returned to Atlanta to be placed in a cell.

To add to the confusion and doubt and mystery of the crime, just at the moment when the detectives were positive that they had the criminal in Mullinax or Gantt, local handwriting experts came out with the declaration that the writing of the notes found by the boss of the Phagan girl unmistakably was that of the negro Newt Lee.

One of them qualified as an expert of more than twenty years' experience. He said that he was in the banking business and had made a special study of handwriting. After a careful examination of the notes and a comparison with the handwriting of Lee, he was as positive as he could be that the notes and the test writing were by the same hand.

Suspicion Turns to Another.

Tuesday started with the detectives and the public divided in opinion as to whether Lee, Gantt or Mullinax was the guilty man. It was not long before they were allowed to conjecture as to a fourth suspect. The day's developments came thick and fast, crowding on each other's heels. While the excited public was condemning each of the three prisoners to the gallows, the most startling rumor of all was taking form.

It was that a high official of the National Pencil Company was suspected of the brutal crime and that an arrest would take place within a short time. Through mysterious sources it became known that the police did not place much dependence on the seemingly positive indentifications that had been made of both Gantt and Mullinax.

It was learned at the same time that the theory that the little girl had been lured to the factory at night was being abandoned and that in its place the detectives were adopting the theory that she never left the factory after she entered it at noon to get her pay. They did not believe any of the stores that Mary Phagan had been seen on the street Saturday night.

This threw the suspicion on some one inside the factory. Shortly before noon Tuesday an automobile containing Detective Harry Scott, of the Pinkerton agency, which had been engaged by the pencil company, and Detective John Black, shot away from the police station and up to the pencil factory. Within ten minutes it had returned. With Scott and Black was Leo M. Frank.

Arrest Creates Sensation.

It was given out at first that Frank was not under arrest, but from that time to this he has not known an instant of actual freedom. This move of the detectives created a sensation. Public indignation, ready to vent itself on the newest object at hand, mounted to menacing heights even though nothing was known against Frank except that he freely admitted being in the factory at the time the Phagan girl came for her money and that the detectives interpreted some of his actions after the crime as highly suspicious.

His many friends rushed immediately to his defense. They proclaimed his arrest as a ridiculous blunder on the part of the police. They pointed to his career and to his reputation as the most potent indication that he would not descend to the fiendish deed that ended the innocent life of Mary Phagan.

But the detectives said:

He was the last one known to have seen Mary Phagan alive.

He was nervous and excited when Lee came to the factory at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

He was nervous and apparently fearful when Gantt came there at 6 o'clock and desired to enter the factory.

Actions Were Unusual.

He called Newt Lee in the evening, something he never had done before during Lee's employment.

There was no answer when Lee called his house early Sunday morning after finding the body and calling the police.

There was no answer when Call Officer Anderson attempted to get him on the telephone when the four policemen were in the factory early that morning.

He acted in a highly suspicious manner when the officers came to his house Sunday morning to take him to the police station for questioning.

All the time that the storm of accusation and bitterness was rising against the young factory superintendent, his attorney, Luther Z. Rosser, kept silence, except to say that Frank in the end would be found entirely innocent. Convinced of his client's innocence, Rosser worked quietly and faithfully in his behalf. Only once in the early days of the tragedy was he provoked to a show of his bulldog fighting qualities. This was when he reached the police station after Frank's arrest and was refused the privilege of seeing Frank.

"We'll see whether they can stop me from conferring with my own client," he shouted. A few minutes later he was in conversation with Frank.

From Frank's arrest until the next day, when the inquest was to begin, a dozen detectives were searching the factory rigidly from top to bottom for evidence. Practically every employee of the plant was quizzed and detectives were sent about the city running down fresh leads that came into the possession of the department.

On the eve of the inquest came the tragic funeral services of the young victim. The minister's prayer was as a stern, imperative invocation to the six men on the Coroner's Jury as well as a fervent plea to the Almighty.

"May God bring the man guilty of this terrible crime to justice," he implored, standing with closed eyes before the little white casket in the Marietta church where Mary, when a toddling child, had attended Sunday school.

Children who had played with h about her home in Marietta surrounded the grave and saw the body lowered into the earth. As the casket disappeared from sight the grief-stricken mother swooned.

The whole grewsome story of the finding of the body was repeated at the inquest, which began next day, but nothing was told which would throw any further light on the identity of the guilty person. Newt Lee told in his ignorant fashion of every move he had made during the fatal day and of his movements in the factory that night.

His story had every appearance of truthfulness. Coroner Donehoo was not able to trip him or catch him in any misstatements. He declared that he had no knowledge that the body was in the building until he went into the dark basement shortly before 3 o'clock that morning and saw the huddled form in the dim light of his lantern.

The officers who visited the factory that morning told their stories. Several of them were of the opinion that Lee knew much more than he had told and their testimony reflected this opinion, but the inquisition of the negro failed to elicit any admissions.

Conley Enters the Case.

Interest was centered in the testimony of Frank, which, it was thought, would be given when the jury resumed its session Thursday. The jurors, however, met and immediately adjourned until the following Monday, and another event took place which was thought to be of little consequence at the time, but which later assumed a vital bearing on the case.

E. F. Holloway day watchman at the factory, walking through the building early Thursday afternoon, came upon the negro sweeper, Jim Conley. Conley was washing a shirt and appeared strangely embarrassed when caught in the act by Holloway. The negro explained that he was washing the shirt in preparation for the inquest to which he had been summoned. Holloway notified the detectives of the suspicious circumstance and Conley was placed under arrest. That night the first formal charge was lodged against Frank and Lee. They were transferred from the police station to the Tower under commitments in which it was stated that they were suspected of the murder of Mary Phagan.

Apparently unafraid of the terrible charge that had been made against him, Frank appeared at the resumption of the inquest the next Monday seemingly the most unconcerned person in the whole assemblage. Only when he was forced to pass through the narrow lane out into the jam of humanity that filled the station house corridors did he display the slightest trace of nervousness. Looking straight ahead in an evident endeavor to avoid the sinister glances of the crowd, he hurried into the Commissioners' room with Chief Lanford's hand on his arm.

Once inside the room, his face assumed an expression of relief and he walked to the stand with an air of confidence. He answered the questions shot at him without hesitation. His utterance was distinct and his voice unfaltering. He appeared absolutely sure of himself and sure of his story.

He related freely Mary Phagan's visit to the factory. He recalled giving her the pay envelope. He said that she left his office and that he heard her talking with another girl, he thought, and then heard their footsteps dying away. He denied that he sent her to the rear of the factory to see if an expected shipment of metal had come.

No Incriminating Admission.

Every person in the crowded and stuffy little room hung on to each word of his testimony as it came clearly from his lips, but if anyone was expecting an incriminating admission he was disappointed, for it did not come.

Instead, the witness-defendant told a most remarkable and impressive story of his actions on the day of the crime, a story which since has been most strongly corroborated by the testimony of other persons.

Startling incidents followed in close succession until the next inquest hearing on Thursday of the same week. Paul P. Bowen, a former Atlanta boy, was arrested in Houston, Tex., on the suspicion of having fled there after the crime, and a day later the Pinkertons were trailing a Greek from Atlanta to Anniston, Ala., where he was supposed to have taken refuge after killing the girl.

Bowen was arrested on the strength of a story that a woman had heard him muttering wildly in his room in a Houston hotel.

"Why did I do it? Why did I do it?" she declared she heard him cry. Clippings telling of the murder were found in his trunk, but it was found that he had not been in Atlanta for a year. The clew in Anniston was discovered to be as worthless and the Pinkertons abandoned their theory that a Greek had anything to do with the crime.

STANDING SHOWS PONY CONTEST PACE IS HOT

District No. 7 Only One Lagging. Positions May Change Quickly. Last Bonus On.

Standing of the contestants in The Georgian and American pony contest is published Thursday, and again is it possible to see what remarkable gains have been made by the busy contestants.

District No. 7, it seems, must "speed up" if it is to get anything except the last choice of the ponies, for George Melton, with 110,125 votes, is leading, and A. Morrison, with 106,000, is second.

On the other hand, Herbert Chapman in District No. 4 has rolled up 206,000 votes, and Fannie Mae Cook and Florence Greenoe, with 204,000 and 202,000, are close behind, pursued at no great interval by Eleanor Raoul, Nathaniel Kay and Oscar Eugene Cook.

Between these extremes are the leaders of the various other districts. In district No. 1 the leader, George Rosser, has 205,000 votes, and Helen Brantley is close behind with 201,000 votes. A field is closely bunched behind them.

Standing Can Change Quickly.

The city carriers and newsboys have been the most active, and Ross Greer has 208,000 votes, with Raymond Wilkinson, at 205,000, pushing him hard. In this race there are nine boys above the 100,000 mark.

Ben Steinberg, of Cartersville, is leading the Georgia boys and girls' race with 126,000 votes. Clifford Henry, of Carrollton, has 123,000 votes. Three more are within two years' subscription to The Georgian of the leader, which shows how quickly the relative standing of these contestants may change.

Lena Mae Smith, of Knoxville, Tenn., leads the race for the schoolboys and schoolgirls outside of Georgia, with 130,000 votes, but Fain E. Webb, Jr., of Piedmont, Ala.; McGee Hunt, of Westminster, S. C.; Robert Hyatt Brown and Elmer Cooper, of Greenville, all are in the running, and a little work will change the standings greatly.

Leaders All Bunched.

And so it goes through all the other districts—the four or five leaders are bunched close together. A few dollars spent for subscriptions to The Georgian or Sunday American by their friends will juggle the standings all around.

Subscriptions to The Sunday American make even more difference, for the Red Letter Ballots are in effect until Tuesday night, giving liberal amounts of extra votes for subscriptions to the Sunday paper.

One week from Thursday night the contest ends, and a Sunday intervenes. The time is short. Speed counts now.

Tipsy Monkey Kills Dog, Maims Master

SMITHERS, W. VA., July 24.—A drunken monkey belonging to George Smith, went on a rampage and after killing a bulldog, so severely chewed up Smith's hand that he was forced to have it amputated.

Smith gave a party and the monkey had come in for his share of refreshments. After the guests departed the monkey evinced a desire for another drink. Smith refused. The bulldog then sprang at the Simian, but the latter jumped on the dog's back and with his claws soon blinded him, then sank his teeth into the neck, killing him.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST ABOUT IT

There Is a New Remedy That Takes the Place of Calomel. Recommended and Guaranteed by the Druggists.

Your drug store never sold a remedy that gave more complete satisfaction than Dodson's Liver Tone—a mild vegetable remedy for constipation, sour stomach and lazy liver.

Folks who have suffered for years rather than resort to dangerous calomel have found after one trial that this pleasant-tasting vegetable liquid gives them a long-sought relief without bad after-effects.

Dodson's Liver Tone is guaranteed by all druggists to be a safe liver stimulant and to be absolutely harmless—without bad after-effects. You will find many persons in this locality who have tried it and every user will speak a good word for Dodson's Liver Tone. It livens up a torpid liver and makes you feel fresh, healthy and clean.

The price of a large bottle is 50 cents—money back if not pleased. The success of Dodson's Liver Tone has brought many medicines into the field that imitate its claims, and some have name very similar and package same color, but remember, Dodson's Liver Tone is guaranteed by your druggist, who will give you back your money if you want it.

CHAMBER WILL BOOST INTERURBAN

Study of Lines in Other States To Be Made to Further Anderson-Atlanta Project.

Encouragement to the construction of the interurban line known as the Duke Line, from Anderson, S. C., to Atlanta, is promised as the result of a meeting at the Capital City Club of the Chamber of Commerce committee on interurban railways.

This committee, appointed by President Wilmer L. Moore to further interurban lines radiating from Atlanta, decided it would be best to deal with one project at a time, and as this one is most talked of, it is proposed by the committee to investigate to ascertain just what will be necessary to bring about its extension to Atlanta. The committee will make a report to the directors of the Chamber of Commerce with such recommendations as the situation appears to justify.

The committee will gather statistics and information relative to interurban railways, with a view to presenting the advantages which Atlanta will gather from their construction.

The members of the committee present were Chairman Hollins N. Randolph, Preston S. Arkwright, Frederic J. Paxon and Secretary Fred Lewis.

CHAINGANGS IN GEORGIA

Fined Forty-Five Dollars.
The Man Could Not Pay.
He Had to Die in Georgia.

Bridge at half cent a point.
Cold hands.
Penny-ante.
Jackpots.
Stud.
Straight poker.
DID YOU ever play one or all of them?
Ever play a game for money?
THIS MAN DID.
Detected, he was arrested.
Convicted in your Court, he heard this sentence:
"Forty-five dollars or eight months in the chaingang."
Speaking for you, your judge said in effect:
"Oh, moneyless man!
"You may go free if you pay forty-five dollars.
"You can not? You are poor?
"And yet, charged with gaming, you dare to stand in a Court of Justice?
"If you have not forty-five dollars—
"A ring of steel shall be riveted on your leg.
"A zebra suit upon your back shall proclaim your infamy.
"For eight months, a striped thing of horror to women and children, you shall go publicly to and from your work, shackled to other men.
"Since you do not pay—
"You shall work in chains.
"While others rest, when you try to sleep, you shall be chained in your bed to creatures as wretched and moneyless as yourself.
"Your fetters shall gall your skin night after night.
"And beware the guard! If you displease him, our lash is ready for your back.
"POOR FOOL, PAY—
"Forty-five dollars for the coffers of the great State of Georgia.
"Miserable, moneyless, man.
"Because of your poverty—
"Suffer.
"God may pity you.
"We will not, since you have no money."
The man is dead.
Stripes and chains were put upon him.
In the quarry of the forty-nine-pound hammers you drove him in the frightful heat.
There he fell.
HE DIED THAT DAY.
Remember—
His offense was only this: he played a game for money.
Nothing more.
You condemned him.
You demanded that he pay.
He could not.
You killed him; you did not intend it.
But ignorance is no excuse.
Paul wrote for you:
"Thou art inexcusable, oh, man."
And Jesus said:
"With what judgment you judge, you shall be judged,
"And with what measure you mete, it shall be measured to you again."
God wake you.
Men, women and children are being destroyed in the name of law in Georgia.
The guilt is yours and ours.

WANT AD RACE STARTS WITH REAL VIM

Contestants Begin Work Thursday and Hustle to Win That Automobile or Other Prize.

Enthusiastic young men and women started out early Thursday to win those prizes in The American and Georgian's big Want Ad Contest. They began to meet success from the very start, for the want ads came rolling in.

"It's going to be easy," said one youngster after his first hour's work. "I got three ads from the first four houses I visited. I'm going to win a motorcycle, at least."

Contestants were not simply turned loose with a pencil and paper and told to get busy. An experienced district manager, one who knows through long training how to suggest want ad possibilities, accompanied each contestant for a while, called with him at a number of homes and started him on the right track. The boys and girls were enthusiastic over their first morning's work.

Help Your Young Friends.

Atlanta folk or others who have a boy or girl friend in the contest are urged to either give their want ads to him or her, or else send the ads to the office with a request that they be credited to this contestant. A full list of the entrants in the race will be published Friday.

Contestants gathered early in the day at the four district offices and there met their respective managers. The districts are:

District No. 1—North of Marietta and west of Peachtree, Taylor Bros. drug store, 191 West Peachtree street.

District No. 2—North of Decatur street and east of peachtree, including Kirkwood, Decatur and eastern suburbs; Ponce DeLeon Pharmacy, corner Ponce DeLeon and North Boulevard.

District No. 4—South of Marietta street and west of Whitehall, including West End, College Park, East Point and Battle Hill; Medlock's Pharmacy, Gordon and Lee streets.

Not Too Late to Enter.

It isn't too late to enter the Want Ad Contest and win one of the big prizes. You might get a fine automobile, a piano, a trip to California. You might land a motorcycle, a bicycle, a watch or diamond. The prizes are well worth trying for.

There is a nomination blank in the full-page advertisement on another page of this issue. Clip it out, take it to the headquarters of the district in which you live and get a good start. The coupon will give you 1,000 votes, and ten votes will be given you for every cent turned in for paid want ads. You'll find the work a real practical course in salesmanship, too.

Girl Outwits Cupid; Wins Her Own Rival

WHEELING, W. VA., July 24.—War, or Sherman's equivalent for it, "hath no fury like a woman scorned," Harry Pendleton mournfully confides to his friends.

Pendleton had been engaged to Dessie McIntyre for two years, when he met Henrietta Aiken, a Bridgeport, Ohio, belle. He fell a willing conquest and Miss McIntyre was peeved, but not without hope. She went cupid one better by going to Bridgeport, cutting her hair short, donning the clothes of a modern Beau Brummel and "cutting out" Pendleton in masterly fashion. Then she doffed her masquerade.

Pendleton refuses to say whether or not Miss Aiken has permitted him to resume his courtship.

THE PLAY THIS WEEK

Bijou Show Pleases.

"Good Morning, Judge" as presented at the Bijou this week, seems to have struck a popular chord, as at each performance since the opening matinee the attendance has been unusually large. "Good Morning, Judge" is an ideal hot weather entertainment Interspersed throughout are a number of clever vaudeville specialties which alone would be sufficient to furnish an evening's entertainment.

"Les Miserables."

Great interest has evidenced itself in the presentation of "Les Miserables" at the Grand. Attendance since the introduction of the picture on Monday has grown wonderfully and many who have witnessed the two and a half hour exhibition of Victor Hugo's novel declare the photoplay to be superior to any that has been presented in Atlanta. The exhibition is in four complete acts. There are nine reels of more than 12,000 feet of the finest film, and the characters are played by the greatest actors of France.

Next week the Carnegie Museum Alaska-Siberian pictures will be exhibited, together with first-run motion pictures of the better quality.

Divers a Real Hit.

The standing room record continues at the Forsyth. The busy theater has been sold out at eight performances this week and the demand for seats for the rest of the week is great.

John F. Conroy, the famous lifesaver, who with his diving models is the star act of the program, presents the best novelty that has ever been seen on a local stage. He is a wonder in physical culture and as a diver.

For next week the headline feature will be Joe Welch, the character comedian, in his life study of the Hebrew. Mr. Welch has appeared here before and won a great hit. Robert L. Daily and company, in "Our Bob" will make his first local appearance.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

Senator Bacon's inability to attend a sitting of the Georgia Legislature just now for the purpose of accepting an invitation to address that honorable body in joint session, generally is regretted among the members, and many have expressed themselves accordingly.

Senator Bacon's failure to see his way clear to leaving Washington just now seems to be thoroughly appreciated, however, and the fact that he declined the General Assembly's invitation to come down is understood and appreciated.

Senator Hoke Smith's recent address was greatly enjoyed by the General Assembly. He went very thoroughly into many things upon which the Legislature was not fully informed, and undoubtedly held his audience's profound interest and attention through the entire joint session.

Fortunately for the Legislature, Senator Smith's invitation came at a time when it was convenient for him to accept, and without in any way neglecting his duties in Washington.

Both Senators Bacon and Smith are eloquent and forceful speakers, although of late years Senator Bacon has spent very little of his time in Georgia and has been heard but infrequently, on the stump or otherwise.

Whatever the relations between these two Senators may be, whether they be cordial or not, the Georgia Legislature was impartial in extending its invitations to them, as both joint resolutions passed by a unanimous vote of each House.

Editor F. H. Sills, of The Metter Advertiser, whose heart strings are wrapped tight around the bill to create Candler County, was distressed, but not dismayed, that his bill failed of passage this year.

Sills, who has led a clean, manly and fair fight for his pet project, believes that Candler yet will be created—perhaps next session. And, anyway, he is not grieving over spilled milk or wishing he never had been born merely because of a temporary setback in his plans.

Sills is a newspaper man, and a good one, and therefore the newspaper men generally about the Capitol have felt a kindly interest in his proposal with respect to Candler.

His plucky little paper down in Metter has waged a long and honorable warfare for Candler County, and most everybody who knows him wishes him mighty well.

Sills admits ungrudgingly that the first round went against him, but he still is perfectly game and expects to win out in the end.

Hon. Alphabet Bowden, otherwise known as "Jet," because his initials are J. E. T. (business of "great laughter"), is being boomed for Mayor of Waycross.

Asked in the Kimball House lobby to-day, Why is Waycross? and Why should anybody want to be Mayor thereof? Mr. Bowden stated that he didn't particularly want to be, but that there was an uprising of the people on and nothing would satisfy them but Bowden for Mayor.

"Waycross is a great little town and they think I would make a great little Mayor—that's all!" said Bowden.

Representative N. E. Culpepper of Meriwether is one of the best lawyers in the House and one of its strongest men.

He is not at all showy, and seldom indulges in debate on the floor. In the committee rooms, however, where most of the real constructive work of the General Assembly is accomplished, he long ago came to be recognized as safe and sane and well worth following.

This is Mr. Culpepper's first term in the House of Representatives, but it is doubtful whether Meriwether, although it has sent to Atlanta many of the ablest and most forceful men in General Assemblies of the past, ever sent a stronger man than Culpepper.

It is evident enough that there is to be a bitter and perhaps prolonged fight in the House on the proposition to establish a State Board of Tax Equalizers.

It is but the truth to state that many of the smaller counties, now getting back from the State through the common school fund and the pensions much more money than they pay into the State Treasury, are aggressively averse to having themselves equalized, or anything like equalized!

Some of the counties pay into the State Treasury a tax on as little as 16 per cent of the valuation of their lands as set forth by the United States Government. Other counties pay as high as 300 per cent.

If any person doubts the truth of the assertion herein made, he has but to apply to the United States Census Department to have the figures verified.

Between the two extremes of 16 per cent and 300, the various counties run from 20 to 250. The impression is that 65 per cent of the national valuation of real estate in Georgia would be little enough for the taxpayers to have assessed against them—but it may be set down as a dead sure thing that those counties now fattening at the expense of the others are going to balk at having a State board set up to equalize them.

The proposed State board is not to be given power to equalize individuals—it merely will undertake to equalize counties.

Will the board be created? Not if the get-more-than-we-pay-in counties can help it!

$55 SAVED ON FULL BUSINESS SCHOLARSHIPS

The Extraordinary Offer Made by The Southern Business College Will Soon Close.

L. W. ARNOLD,
Vice President Southern Shorthand and Business University.

The opportunity of securing the $55 complete shorthand course and the $55 complete bookkeeping course, both combined, for the price of one course, at the well-known Southern Shorthand and Business University, 10 West Mitchell Street, is rapidly passing away.

Only fifty scholarships were put on sale at this remarkably low rate and the number is diminishing rapidly.

"Reserve one of the special scholarships for my son," said a gentleman yesterday, as he was passing through the city from the North to his home in South Georgia, "and I will mail you a check for same as soon as I get home."

Another came in from a distance and secured a scholarship for his son; several mail applicants and a large number of city callers obtained scholarships for immediate and future entrance.

A club of six in one locality bought scholarships and clubs in other sections are now organizing.

While the two $55 courses are being sold for the price of one course—$55—either course alone is offered for $40.

"This is the first time in three years that we have put on sale our scholarships at reduced rate," said Mr. L. W. Arnold, the vice president, to-day, "and we are doing this merely as a midsummer advertising proposition to invade new territory, the plan being to secure a large list of names of prospective pupils from those who obtain this low-priced scholarship. From this list we hope to secure many pupils at the regular rates, which will be in effect by August 1, and thus be reimbursed for the loss we are now sustaining by this advertising offer.

"The demand for stenographers and bookkeepers is very heavy just now; have received a dozen calls since Tuesday and placed several pupils."

Secure scholarship at once. Call, phone or write A. C. Briscoe, President, or L. W. Arnold, Vice President, Atlanta, Ga.

M'KEE SILENT ON RESIGNATION RUMORS

Postmastership in Doubt as Present Holder Confers in Capital With His Chiefs.

Speculation is rife in regard to the exact status of the postmastership in Atlanta pending the return of Postmaster Hugh McKee from Washington. Mr. McKee left Atlanta for the National Capital last week, after obtaining a leave of absence for ten days to lay certain questions before the Postoffice Department at Washington, it is claimed.

Dispatches from Washington indicate that conferences between the Atlanta postmaster and Third Assistant Postmaster General Roper have been held. These conferences, Mr. McKee's personal representatives say, were entirely satisfactory and had nothing whatever to do with a resignation.

Nevertheless guesses continue to be made and there are those who say that the bomb may drop at any time. Thus far, no intimation has been given by Mr. McKee as to the alleged request for his resignation.

Mr. McKee, accompanied by his daughter, probably will reach Atlanta by the end of this week. They are now in Atlantic City, according to latest information received in Atlanta.

BREAKFAST SENT THOMAS CAT BY POST

Mistress, in Atlanta on Visit, Can Not Trust Feline Aristocrat to Butcher Shop Diet.

Bricks and eggs and live stock have become common enough as mail matter within the past few months, but never until Miss Bessie Butler came to Atlanta had Uncle Sam's parcel post served as a dumb waiter for a cat!

Down at Madison, Ga., a big aristocratic Thomas cat—by name, "McCurry"—gets his breakfast every day by parcel post, all the way from 513 Peachtree street, where Miss Butler is visiting Mrs. A. Cunningham.

"McCurry" is Miss Butler's most priceless possession, and when she came to Atlanta she left instructions that the cat must be fed large, mansize pork chops each day. She gave this order to a butcher, with the inevitable result.

Poor "McCurry's" chops soon took on the appearance of a large piece of bone surrounded by a meaty atmosphere, and the cat got dyspepsia and developed a crabbed disposition. He lost his zest in life—all nine of him—and was peevish and poor company.

The sad news of "McCurry's" condition was written to Miss Butler by a friend. It seemed that unless something was done at once the cat would die—It was feared he would break all his teeth trying to eat the bones the butcher said were chops.

So Miss Butler has invoked the aid of Uncle Sam. She gathers up all the scraps of meat that are left when the Cunningham meal is over, and each night she packs them into a shoe box and forwards them to her friend in Madison, who feeds them to the cat the next morning.

The unique method of feeding her pet has been going on for several days now—and latest advices from the front are that the cat is doing well and taking on weight.

Better News of Laces Than We Have Told So Far This Season

The Selling Starts at Nine o'Clock

Take this as a matter of information---the laces below are wanted kinds, fashion-favored right now; the new prices are made arbitrarily, in spite of their worth---and be guided in your purchases accordingly.

The average woman's "love" of pretty laces is strong, stronger perhaps than the average woman's sense of thrift, especially when that sense of thrift would interfere with her possession of pretty laces.

But to-morrow—

A womans "love" of pretty laces and her sense of thrift urge her to attend this sale of laces.

Here are laces wanted right now, that will be wanted when the new dresses for fall are started, at prices that average a great deal less than half.

Share its savings!

Here briefly is what you will find—

At 19c 35c to 85c a yd. Laces

Shadow and Venise bands and edges in cream, white and black. They are 3 to 5 inches wide.

At 59c $1 to $2 a yd. Laces

Shadow and Venise bands and edges in cream, white and black. These are 4 to 9 inches wide.

At 98c $2 to $3.50 a yd. Laces

Shadow and Venise edges, bands and medallions. The edges, some of them, are 18 inches wide.

Some twenty embroidered dress patterns---voiles and crepes---that were originally $12 to $18 each are now $6.75, because the clearance of them must be complete, despite the fact that all but these went in a recent sale at $9.50. Richly, beautifully embroidered, in light blue, pink, navy and lavender on white---many designs.

ONE WEEK FROM TO-NIGHT PONY CONTEST ENDS

No One Is Certain of Victory and the Lowest Candidate To-day May Be a Leader To-morrow—Only Seven More Days to Claim Prizes—Will You Be Among the Winners?—Success Is Within Your Grasp If You Will Only Realize the Fact and Prove Your Right to the Prizes By Your Efforts Now—"Dark Horses" Will Probably Come Fast During Last Days and Crowd Out the Too Certain Ones.

We have now entered the thick of the fight, the battle is on and when the smoke clears away on July 31, WHO WILL STAND FORTH AS VICTORS? Who knows? Victory is as liable to perch on the banner of one candidate as another and probably the candidate who is now hovering near the cellar championship, as the baseballists say, may be the one who will come so fast during the last few days that there will be no stopping him—he will sweep all before him and march triumphantly to his goal. This statement should be considered well by all candidates and especially those who may feel that there is no need for them to exert themselves during this time, as they are certain of victory. No one is certain of victory, and no one will be until all is over. You may be in the lead now and be reasonably sure in your own mind that no one can defeat you for the prize you want, but you do not know what efforts will be put forth before the close and while you rest apparently secure in the prospect of winning, your very nearest competitor will probably be working so energetically that the gap between you now will be closed up to allow victory snatched from your grasp when a little real effort during these seven days will win for you and any other candidate who fails to do his very best is liable to be without the charmed circle of winners on July 31, no matter how far in front he may be at present.

Present standings are not indicative of final results by a long way. Real effort NOW is going to swing the pendulum of victory or defeat and if you really desire one of those pony outfits or a pretty watch, now is your opportunity to win your selection.

Have you ever witnessed a horserace, where the favorite started out in front, passed the quarter and half poles away in front and then fell down during the last quarter, while the "rank outsider," now considered as a last place possibility, romped in ahead of the favorite? This illustrates perfectly what is just as liable as not to happen in the contest during these last few days. We don't say that it will happen, but such things have happened so often—the candidate is not given a chance to win by the "wise" ones—finally defeating all his rivals—that a similar occurrence in The American-Georgian campaign would not be surprising. Hence, we want to impress upon every candidate the necessity of doing his best before the finish overtakes you.

FIVE MORE DAYS OF THE RED LETTER BALLOTS.

Just five more days and the Red Letter Ballot, which is the last special vote offer of the contest, will draw to a close. The work being done by the great majority of candidates proves that they appreciate their opportunities and are going to die hard. Those who have as yet done but little on this offer should lose no time in getting started. There is still time to secure its advantages and every vote secured is a step nearer success. uTesday night at 10 o'clock this offer will close and those who have failed to take advantage of this offer and these will be but few, will have missed a chance that may mean final defeat. Votes are the only things that will win for you and without these necessary things you cannot hope to win. Hence every one is worth securing and essential to success.

CONTEST CLOSES

Thursday, July 31st, at 12 o'Clock P.M.

The Social World

The dinner-dance at the Capital City Country Club Thursday evening will assemble 100 club members and their friends, many of whom will motor out early in the afternoon for swimming, rowing, tennis or golf. Dinner will be served on the piazza.

One of the largest parties of the evening will be that given by Mr. and Mrs. John J. Woodside, Jr., in honor of their young cousin, Miss Marguerite Gause, who has just returned home, after an extended absence in North Carolina. The other guests will include Misses Louise Riley, Jeannette Lowndes, Helen Hobbs, Messrs. Philip L'Engle, Eugene Kelly, Henry Lyons, Robin Adair and Edward Gay.

Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford Lipscomb will entertain a party of eight, their guests to be Mrs. Prioleau Ellis of Springfield, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lipscomb of Athens, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Brown and Mr. George Forrester.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Speir will entertain a party in honor of their guest, Miss Nancy Reed, the other guests to be Misses Estelle Fort, Louise Bradbury, Mary Carl Hurst, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hurst, Messrs. Stewart Bell, Eugene Haynes and F. L. Ayers of Boston.

Others who will entertain small parties are Mr. and Mrs. William A. Speer, Messrs. J. S. Watson, J. F. Douglas, J. C. Holditch, Charlie Sciple, A. W. Alfriend, Kenneth McRae and Mr. Baskerville.

For Miss Jones.

Miss Harriet McCullough gave an informal tea at the Piedmont Club Wednesday afternoon for her guest, Miss Dorothy Jones, of Newnan. Six girls were guests.

Thursday afternoon Miss Frances Broyles gave a swimming party, followed by tea at the Capital City Country Club for Miss Jones, and Miss Madelin McCullough will entertain at a matinee party Friday afternoon at the Forsyth for her.

Sewing Club Meets.

Mrs. Julian Prade entertained the sewing club of which she is a member at her home on West Peachtree street Thursday morning. The house was decorated with garden flowers. The members of this club are Misses Mary Blalock, Helen Thorn, Grace Thorn, Martha Ryder, Mary Lou Turner, Katie Sturdivant, Annie Lou Paggett, Lillian Sturdivant, Edith Dunson, Elizabeth Dunson, Emmie Willingham, Van McKinnon and Laura Hooper.

For Miss Robbins.

Miss Lenora Maddox entertained at an informal tea at the Piedmont Club Thursday afternoon in compliment to Miss Dorothy Robbins, of Birmingham, the guest of Mrs. J. P. C. Allan.

For Mrs. Lipscomb.

Mrs. Frank Lipscomb, of Athens, who, with her husband, is spending the summer with Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford Lipscomb, was the central figure in a motor party, followed by tea at the Capital City Club, on Wednesday afternoon, when Mrs. Ben Watkins invited four friends to meet Mrs. Lipscomb. Mrs. Lipscomb will remain in Atlanta during the sessions of the General Assembly, of which her husband is a member, and she is being entertained informally during her visit.

Lawn Fete.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Westminster Presbyterian Church will give a lawn fete Friday, July 25, in the afternoon and evening on the manse lawn.

Everybody is invited. Homemade cake and candy will be on sale.

For Mrs. Harris.

Mrs. Corra Harris, who is spending a few days at the Georgian Terrace before returning to the mountains of Norin Georgia, was the honor guest at a delightful dinner party given Wednesday evening by Colonel and Mrs. Robert J. Lowry. The dinner was given at the Piedmont Driving Club and covers were laid for fourteen at a table having a novel and charming decoration of gladioli, dahlias and maidenhair ferns, arranged in a large central basket, with two smaller baskets holding zinnias shading from pink to deep rose. As favors at each plate there were miniature aeroplanes, and the place cards bore original verses, which were read aloud by each guest with much merriment.

Mrs. Lowry was a charming hostess, and Mrs. Harris, who is being cordially welcomed during her short stay in Atlanta, was attractive in a dinner gown of black satin.

Mrs. Spurlock Entertains.

Mrs. J. E. Spurlock entertained on Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Lillian Daniel, of Hogansville, and Miss Nellie Boyce, of Columbus, Miss Leslie Weathers' guest. Ferns and cut flowers were the decorations. Miss Mary Daniel served punch. In a progressive game Mr. Conway Felesky and Miss Nellie Boyce won the prizes.

The guests were Misses Irene Dennis, Nora Ingram, Alice Snodgrass, Edith Hudson, Mattie May Finney, Mary Miller of Macon, Louise Miller of Macon, Mary Daniel, Messrs. George Edmondson, George Freeman, Archibald Freeman, George West, Robert Ingram, Wharey Little, Dean Christopher, Rob Maddox, Hawthorne Ware and Mr. Harper.

Mrs. Reed Entertains.

Mrs. G. L. Reed gave a 500 party Wednesday afternoon for her guest, Miss Mary Neubecker, of Baltimore. The decorations were yellow and white, and the refreshments carried out the color scheme. Mrs. Reed will also give a dinner Thursday evening for her guest.

Miss West Hostess.

Miss Clifford West will entertain at tea at the Piedmont Club Friday afternoon for Miss Margaret Buckner, of Roanoke, the guest of Miss Helen Jones, and for Miss Dorothy Robbins, of Birmingham, who is visiting Mrs. J. P. B. Allan.

Her guests will include Misses Robbins, Margaret Buckner, Helen Jones, Elizabeth Morgan, Mrs. J. P. B. Allan, Mrs. W. A. Speer and Mrs. Adam Jones.

Haygood-Etheredge.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lee Haygood announce the marriage of their daughter, Vesta, to Mr. John Sanford Etheredge, the ceremony having taken place Wednesday, July 16. Mr. and Mrs. Etheredge will be at home after July 15 in Quitman, Ga.

Morning Bridge.

Mrs. Fred Houser and Miss Alma Nance gave an informal bridge party Thursday morning at the home of Mrs. Houser in the Virginian in compliment to Miss Viola Wade and Mrs. Ben Wade, of Palmetto, Fla., who are the guests of Miss Alma Nance.

Roses and potted plants decorated the apartment, and the prizes were correspondence cards and a book.

Mrs. Houser wore blue crepe meteor and Miss Nance and Miss Wade were gowned in white crepe and lace.

The guests were Miss Wade, Miss Mainer Lee Hardin, Mrs. Hatton Rogers, Mrs. Ben Wade of Palmetto, Mrs. B. C. Broyles, Mrs. Albert Barnes, Mrs. Grover McGahee, Mrs. J. C. Beall and Mrs. T. J. Nance.

ECZEMA DISFIGURED FACE BADLY

Also on Hands. Broke Out in Pimples. Itched Badly. Spread All Over Body. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Hampton Springs, Fla. — "I had had eczema on my face and hands for about three years. My face was badly disfigured. The eczema broke out in pimples and itched so very badly I would scratch it all the time. It was the most irritating disease I have ever had. It started on my face and hands and it spread all over my body. I had great large sores all over me, caused from the eczema. It bothered me day and night so that I could not rest at all.

"I used three remedies for skin disease, and they didn't give relief at all. I was almost terrified until a friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment to me. They helped me from the time I started to use them. I used the Cuticura Soap and warm water as a wash and then put the Cuticura Ointment on the sore places. I only used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and was cured." (Signed) Mrs. E. C. Parker, Dec. 7, 1912.

When you buy a fine toilet soap think of the advantages Cuticura Soap possesses over the most expensive toilet soap ever made. In addition to being absolutely pure and refreshingly fragrant, it is delicately yet effectively medicated, giving you two soaps in one, a toilet and a skin soap at one price. Sold throughout the world. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Defense in Deaton Feudist Case Opens

WINCHESTER, KY., July 24.—The Commonwealth closed its evidence in the trial of Fletcher Deaton, charged with conspiracy to kill Ed Callahan, and the defense began its evidence. Sweeping denials to all charges against "Uncle Fletch," as he is known in the mountains, were made.

The Commonwealth sprang a surprise when a deputy sheriff of Breathitt County testified that Deaton told him shortly before the killing that he would have to have Callahan killed.

TALK OF RITCHIE'S NEXT FIGHT IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, July 24.—Willie Ritchie, lightweight champion, is in Los Angeles after an automobile trip from San Francisco. Ritchie probably will meet Promoter Tom McCarey to-day and talk over the possibilities of a match for either Labor Day or September 9. There is a possibility of a match being arranged between the champion and either Joe Rivers or the winner of the Cross-Baldwin match next Tuesday night.

Ritchie and McCarey have been in correspondence for some time, and the two may get together on the matter of terms for a bout within the next few days.

Poultry Gossip

By JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL.

Is there a difference between roup and sorehead? My neighbor tells me they are the same thing, only roup is sorehead in the fall and winter, and what we usually call sorehead is the same disease in hot weather. I would like to have your views upon the subject.—Mrs. J. R. C., Dallas, Ga.

These are two entirely different diseases, and come from different causes. Both are diseases of the blood, though the effect is quite different. Then at times the two troubles are found in the same specimen.

For example, a fowl having the sorehead and all broken out with the sores or bumps on its comb and head, will, by roosting in a hot, damp place, contract the roup. This will cause the air passages to become inflamed and fill with mucous, causing the fowl to breathe through its mouth.

Results in Loss of Eyes.

The breathing passage to the nostrils being stopped, the inflamed matter will be forced out through the eye duct, filling the space around the eye, causing it to water and swell. If it is not relieved the matter will harden and finally the eye will go blind and peel out.

While this is going on the sorehead trouble will wrinkle up the comb and if not checked will form a solid scab upon the head and comb and will so affect the general health of the specimen as to cause death in many cases.

It is only in rare cases, however, that the two are combined. Either one is sufficient in itself to cause enough trouble to do a world of damage to an otherwise thrifty flock. The sorehead comes on as a result of infection introduced by the sting of the mosquito. When once established in a flock it is transmitted from one to the other, without the aid of the mosquito, by personal contact.

Coops Should be Netted.

Mosquitoes rarely bother them during the day, so that where a person will take the trouble to make his poultry coops mosquito proof with netting they will have but little trouble from sorehead. Where this is not done, a great preventive measure is the giving of Epsom salts freely in the drinking water during July and August. It must not be omitted for any length of time or the system allowed to get out of the influence of it or the sores will make their appearance.

When the sores do come up, it is a good plan to take any affected ones from the flock and treat them individually by dipping a feather in oil of tar and touching the sores. Another good remedy is a stick of caustic touched to soft water and then to the sore. Either one of these will have a tendency to kill the germs and dry up the sores. The salts should also be given. Everything should be spick and span about the premises in regard to water vessels, feed troughs and nests. Filth will spread the trouble faster than you can cure it.

Roup Like Common Cold.

Roup is to fowls what a bad cold is to people, and, as it is in the human family, it is liable to take various forms if not checked in its incipiency. It may become malignant, with an offensive odor, and often develop into swelled head and at times into a cankerous condition of the throat and mouth.

It will be observed by opening the beak wide that there is a thick, yellowish coating on the throat and tongue, like cheese. Some experts advise the removing of this coating with a feather quill and powdering the raw surface with powdered borax twice a day. A dose of castor oil every other day for three days; then follow it up with salts in the water. This is a constitutional treatment that will help rid the system of the poison.

The swelled head condition is best treated with kerosene oil. We have found nothing so handy to use as a spring-bottom sewing machine oil can, the small tip of which can be inserted into the nostril. With this the oil can be forced through the nostrils into the head.

Foam is First Symptom.

If the poultryman is alert and looks closely after his fowls he will notice a little foam collected in the corner of the eye. This is the first indication of roup and the closing of the air passages. This is the time to treat with the kerosene, which will usually, in about two or three applications, clear out the trouble entirely.

While roup usually is considered a cold weather disease, yet it very frequently makes its appearance in the very hottest times of the summer. At such times it is as the result of chickens being confined in hot, close quarters, not well ventilated and full of bad odors. At such times it is often more trouble to handle than in cold weather because of the difficulty in securing free fresh air.

THE GEORGIAN'S MAGAZINE PAGE

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX.

He and Manette See the Suffragette Again, but Neither of Them Notices Her.

JULY 3.—It occurred to me, when Manette and I were tramping home that evening, after the militant suffragette had tried to hold me up, that there was a warning in the incident. I look like a tramp, as she said, and Manette, in spite of her clothes, looks like a princess.

What it is I can not define, but one of her sex can never disguise the fact that she was born to purple and fine linen. She may outlive every natural grace and may be reduced to rags, but there is always an indefinable something that tells of better things in the past. I looked at Manette critically as she trudged ahead of me in the footpath, and this is what I saw: A little bare head with a shock of curls just reaching to her shoulder, for we had had her hair cut short before we left town, and the growth was all new and untamed.

She wore a blue gingham with half the buttons off the back. There were rents in it, and through one rent I caught a glimpse of an exquisitely trimmed petticoat, for Richards had refused to let her darling wear the coarse muslin garments that were best fitted for the occasion. She wore half hose, with tan shoes from which her toes protruded, and her little fat legs were scratched by briars and brambles.

But one could tell by a glimpse that she was not an ordinary child, and I wondered if it was because of the proud little way in which she carried her head, or because of her total unconsciousness of self. "A born aristocrat," I murmured.

Her Beauty.

She looked up at me in laughter at some prank of the pup, and I was struck more forcibly than ever with her most unusual beauty. It wasn't altogether her hair and her eyes, her perfect features and her exquisite coloring; there was a look of her soul shining through, and that is as near as I can express it. If you could see her, Diary, you would understand why I never look at the child without some apprehension. With her beauty and her money, sometimes I wonder if there are enough guardian angels in heaven to keep all the evil-hearted away.

The children that die young belong to us always. Nothing, and no one, may ever estrange them from us. They are ours forever, and that, alas, is something no one can say of the child that lives to grow up.

There is comfort in the thought, and it is not the only comfort, for we learn as we grow older that the child that is gone is spared much, and is SAFE. I know life would be dreary and almost impossible without Manette, but every day I grow more reconciled to the loss of Elizabeth. She was happy all her life. The little girl trudging along in the path ahead of me is happy now, but I will not always be with her.

I suppose it was this constant apprehension that led me to call Mrs. Allen to the porch after supper and tell her that I am not the poor clerk she imagines, resting from overwork, but one of the detested millionaire class, resting from excessive luxury.

I told her my name and she laughed. She said she had guessed it the second day. No one, she said, could look at Manette and think for a moment that she had been brought up in denial. She could not explain it, except that the child was always so unconscious of her clothes.

"She rises above them," she said, and it made me very proud.

I have always had the theory—I wonder how it will evolve—that if Manette is accustomed to the best as a child, she will never strut like a peacock when she is grown. She will always be unconscious of her price marks.

To the Manner Born.

She will never build conversation on the price of her gown, nor attempt to erect pride and station on the cost of a hat. She will never, and of that I am sure, remember that her clothes cost more than the clothes of her associates and show it in her manner. I said something to this effect to Mrs. Allen, and her reply gave me a new viewpoint.

"She won't remember what things cost," she said, somewhat dryly, "because she has never had to earn the price. The girl who stints herself in necessities for a month that she may afford a $20 gown will never forget to the day of her death what the gown cost. Unconsciousness of clothes is a good trait, but Manette's unconsciousness will be largely due to ignorance. When one pays the price, one remembers."

I did not seem to make her quite understand what I meant, and neither did I understand her. I wanted, I explained, for the child to grow up with a soul above ribbons.

"And yet," she replied, "whoever has charge of her wardrobe takes care that she has more ribbons than any child her age should have."

I agreed to that with a sigh. When a little girl is transformed by her years into a peacock, instead of a thinking, helpful woman, it is her mother who is to blame, never her father. Manette has no mother, but her nurse and her Aunt Sallie make her attire the joy of their existence.

I, who take the place of a father to her, would prefer that she never hear the subject of her dress, but those who take the place of her mother make her attire the first consideration. That, Diary, is a fond weakness of all mothers.

I gave Mrs. Allen Mrs. Spencer's address and also that of Richards. "It has occurred to me," I said, "that if anything happened to me, either address will be useful to you."

She found considerable amusement in the thought of what an exodus to the woods there would be of young women if it were known that such a wealthy unattached bachelor were spending his summer there. "They would chase you harder," she said, "than the pup chases the rabbits."

She Sympathizes.

She laughed so heartily I asked if she would enjoy the sight, and she replied that she wouldn't.

"I feel sorry for any unmarried man these days," with some spirit. "Either the women are the mercenary kind, hunting him down for his money, or they are the suffrage kind, hunting him down like a policeman hunts criminals. I often tell my husband it is good he got me thirty years ago, for there isn't much choice of women these days."

From one of their own sex! Had I said it I would be mobbed.

July 6—I have not heard the last of that woman who thought I was a kidnaper of children. She came riding to our picnic spot again to-day, and this time she rode alone.

Manette and I were sitting on a log fishing. At least I was fishing. She had her shoes and stockings off, her little skirts tucked up, and was paddling around at the water's edge, digging up soft black mud, which she carried to the shore and made into mud pies, a big log serving her as kneading board, or mixing board. I don't really know if pies are mixed or kneaded.

The suffragette tied her horse to a sapling and came to where we were thus occupied. I did not turn my head, and Manette, obeying whispered instructions from me, went on with her culinary work without heeding her.

Keep Young As Long As You Can

KEEP your hair youthful looking. Don't let it grow old before your years. Faded or gray hair makes a woman look from 10 to 20 years older than if the hair were beautiful and lustrous.

Robinnaire Hair Dye

Is a wonderful scientific formula. It is a color restorer. Not a dangerous dye to bleach or change the original color of the hair, but a restorer which brings back to the hair its original color and beautiful sheen and softness. For a quarter of a century it has been used by women and men practically all over the world, and we have hundreds of unsolicited letters proving its merit. It does not stain the scalp nor make the hair sticky, and its use can not be detected.

Meg (five years old, was overjoyed over the recent addition to the family and rushed out of the house to tell the news to a passing neighbor.

"Oh, you don't know what we've got in our house to-day?"

"What is it?"

"It's a new baby brother!"

"You don't say so. Is he going to stay?"

"I think so"—very thoughfully. "He's got his things on."

A farmer while loading hay in his field was attacked by his neighbor's bulldog. The man defended himself with a pitchfork, and sent the dog yelping home. The neighbor rebuked him, and asked why he didn't use the blunt end of the fork first.

"I would have," replied the farmer, "if your dog had come at me blunt end first."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"What's that?" he muttered, in an undertone. "There it is again."

He blew out the lantern and stepped to the entrance of the corridor that led to the armory.

"Sh—h—! Listen! There's a light, Rusty. It's coming this way! It's coming, Rusty! Remember the high sign—and don't sneeze!"

He sprang back into the hall and concealed himself in the angle by the picture of the old Don. Presently the faint swinging beams of a lantern were thrown down the corridor and there was the sound of soft footsteps and low voices. Jarvis raised his cocked pistol and covered the doorway as the shadows told him the invaders were about to appear in view. Three figures appeared in the doorway and a girl's voice, familiar to his ears, said:

The Princess and Dolores, with Maximo as their guide and light-bearer, came down the broad stairs into the hall.

"We must go on, Dolores!" exclaimed the Princess in a strained voice. "We must find him before it's too late! Oh, I will never forgive myself for sending him to this dreadful place!"

"Perhaps"—the Princess shuddered—"they have already been killed."

Her Brother Safe.

Jarvis, ashamed for having listened too long and his heart beating with what he had heard, stepped forward into the light of the lantern.

"Your Highness!" he exclaimed. The girl made a sound that was half a cry of alarm and half a prayer of thanksgiving, and held out both hands to him.

"Mr. Warren! Mr. Warren! Thank God, you are still alive!"

"Your Highness," he protested, still holding her hands. "It's madness for you to come to this place! How did you get here?"

"Heaven only knows!" She shivered as if with the memory of her experiences. "We have been wandering through this dreadful place for hours—calling to you—trying to find you before it was too late."

"Too late! What do you mean?"

"My brother is safe—thank God!"

"Where is he?" demanded Warren, quickly.

"On his way to get help from the King."

"Where has he been?"

"Right here in this castle, a prisoner—since the day he entered."

"A prisoner?"

"Yes. He succeeded in making his escape to-night and has gone straight to the King for help?"

"But how did you learn all this?" he inquired, bewildered.

"From Robledo, senor," answered Dolores, as the Princess did not reply at once. The girl's voice was low and trembled slightly. "Your bullet went straight, senor. He is dying. He has confessed to the Holy Father. I promised to be with him at the end."

She turned her face away and Jarvis saw that she was weeping.

"The end?" he echoed vaguely—and then he understood. He walked over to her, stood beside her awkwardly, trying to think of something to say. He found it difficult to apologize to a girl for killing her lover, especially when the lover happened to need killing a lot.

"Then—you—" he stammered, "I—I—didn't know—I might have—I'm sorry."

Better So.

The girl raised her tear-stained face and met his gaze bravely.

"It is better so, senor," she said.

"Oh, Dolores—my poor child!"

The Princess put her arms around the girl and she sobbed on her lady's shoulder. "Maximo, take her back to the inn as quietly as possible."

When they were gone the Princess urged Jarvis to follow.

"Oh, Mr. Warren, let us leave this dreadful place!"

"Not me, Your Highness," was the grim and inelegant reply. "You go with them and wait for me at the inn."

The Princess shook her head determinedly, though her face was pale and there were lines to tell of the long strain.

"You can not persuade me again, Mr. Warren. I will remain."

"Please!" he begged, getting possession of her hands once more, and without a struggle.

"Return with us then."

"Your Highness," he said gravely, "I promised to solve the mystery of this castle and to find the treasure. My task is an easy one now."

"Then," she rejoined quickly, "I will share it with you."

He laughed silently at the neat manner of the trap in which he was caught, but he looked down at her with something more than amazement in his eyes.

"And you groped your way through this old castle to find me?" he said softly. "You are game!"

The Princess raised her eyes to his. "You faced death perhaps, for me."

"You're trembling!" he cried with sudden concern. "You're frightened—you're cold—your hands are cold!—Come over here." He drew her toward the dying blaze of the fire. "You must have been scared to death crawling through the blackness."

She closed her eyes and shivered and he pressed the hands a little tighter than was necessary, if the object was merely to aid circulation.

The Sneeze.

"Every nerve in my body is on edge with the happenings of this dreadful place," she confessed brokenly and tried in vain to keep back the tears.

"Oh, don't cry," he pleaded in alarm, and then suddenly changed his tone to one at once light and tender: "Go on then—cry! Cry some more. Just forget that you are a princess and cry. That's it—that's fine! I'll round up this spook to-night for good—and then the vassal's task is done. His fate is in your hands, Highness." She ceased crying suddenly to look up into his face. "Don't send me away," he begged. "I've loved you from the first and always shall love you. I'm no Prince or Duke," he added with whimsical pathos, "I'm just a plain man—and all the man in me cries out, 'I love you'—Don't send me away!"

He felt her trembling and for an instant she seemed to lean against him. But she shook her head.

"You must go."

"You're going to send me away!"

"Yes. You must leave Spain. Your life would not be safe here."

He drew a breath of relief that was like the wind in the forest. At the same moment there was another sound that was somewhat like a far-off tree falling in the wind.

"What was that?" exclaimed the girl with a start.

"Oh, that! That was Rusty," he smiled.

"That would frighten any one."

"I figured that I might need a ghost," he explained, pointing to the armored servitor, "but Rusty disobeyed orders. Rusty, I told you not to sneeze!"

"Dat was somebody else, Massa Warren," was the solemn and unexpected protest. "I swears to goodness I didn't sneeze."

Warren's revolver was in his hand and a wild light of triumph in his eyes.

"Mr. Warren!"

"Don't move! Your Highness," he cried, raising the weapon and leveling it at the old grandee, "I've got your ghost at last!" He raised his voice. "There is some one behind that picture! Come out!—or I'll shoot you full of holes!"

Caught!

For a moment there was intense silence. Then:

"Don't shoot!"

The voice, a familiar one, came from the wall—the picture swung out in its frame and his Exalted Highness, the Duke of Alva, stepped down on to the floor.

"Your Excellency, you are a long way from Madrid."

The Duke eyed him with contempt.

"Madrid! You fool, you have fallen right into my trap!" He turned to the Princess with all the assurance of a protecting friend.

"What I have done has been for your sake, Maria. I purposely deceived him so that I might get here ahead of him and watch. See," he pointed to the mantel, "there are his tools and you yourself interrupted him at his work."

The consummate insolence and assurance of his enemy almost daunted the young man. And in the next breath he half lost the battle by permitting himself to argue.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

CAUGHT AT LAST

"MR. WARREN!" "DON'T MOVE! YOUR HIGHNESS," HE CRIED, RAISING THE WEAPON AND LEVELING IT AT THE OLD GRANDEE, "I'VE GOT YOUR GHOST AT LAST!" HE RAISED HIS VOICE. "THERE IS SOMEONE BEHIND THAT PICTURE! COME OUT!—OR I'LL SHOOT YOU FULL OF HOLES!"

FOR A MOMENT THERE WAS INTENSE SILENCE. THEN: "DON'T SHOOT!" THE VOICE, A FAMILIAR ONE CAME FROM THE WALL—THE PICTURE SWUNG OUT IN ITS FRAME AND HIS EXALTED HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF ALVA STEPPED DOWN ON TO THE FLOOR.

The judges have completed their work of passing upon the huge bundle of manuscripts which were received in "The Triple Tie" contest, and the names of the sixteen winners will be announced in The Georgian to-morrow.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

THEY ALWAYS TELL.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Some time ago I was introduced to a young man whom I rather like. I have gone out to different places of amusement with him.

Now, he has often wanted to kiss me, but I wouldn't allow him to. He is going out of town for some time and says he wants to kiss me before going. Shall I allow him to? L. M.

No man should kiss and tell, but so many do that one little farewell kiss, given in the name of friendship, is sure to be misunderstood and told of. Do you not know, my dear, that the kiss that is refused is always the sweetest? Refuse him and he will always want that kiss, and seek to win your love that he may have it.

DON'T TRY.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young girl of 19 and have a brother who takes me to dances and the theater. I have no chance to find a lover, because the men all think my brother is my sweetheart. What would you advise me to do to make them understand? L. M.

My dear, if these men were attracted by you, the sight of a man as your escort would not keep them away. On the contrary, it would serve as an incentive to them to make your acquaintance.

Instead of regarding your brother as an obstacle, be glad that you have a brother as devoted and kind. And don't worry about that belated lover, for I am sure he is on his way.

WAIT A FEW YEARS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 27 and am in love with a young lady of 17, but she does not seem to care for me. What can I do to gain her love? P. B.

She is too young to be troubled by love. Prove your love is unselfish, and for her best good, by keeping it a secret to yourself until she has grown up.

Things Worth Remembering

An electric voting machine is to be tried in the Austrian Chamber of Deputies. Each member will have two electric buttons on his desk. On the wall opposite the President's chair an indicator is fixed, consisting of 516 glass tablets. When a vote is recorded they show either a white or a red light, and members can check the accuracy of their votes. Names are shown on the tablets if required.

Ants can stand extremes of heat and cold. Forty-eight hours' exposure to frost will not kill them, and one sort has been observed to build its nest in chinks in a blacksmith's forge.

The French people are great chicken raisers. A return gives the income derived by them from this industry as $300,000,000.

The largest opal in the world, weighing 17 ounces, is worth $300,000, and belongs to the Emperor of Austria.

Thrushes don't take much sleep in summer. They rise soon after 3 and don't go to bed till 9.

Tomtits are passionately fond of suet. A lump hung in a tree will soon be found by them and devoured.

Every square mile of the United States has 32 inhabitants on the average.

A cod weighing 7 3-4 pounds lays nearly 7,000,000 eggs.

A Time for All Things.

A family had just sat down to table when tidings were brought of the death of an aunt.

Suddenly little Emily inquired, with a longing glance at the well-filled dishes:

"Papa, must we cry now, or wait till we have finished dinner."

Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THERE was no one whose faith in the printed word was greater than Daysey Mayme Appleton's.

If, when sitting on the cool porch at twilight, she caught a glimpse of a heading, "How to Keep Cool," in the newspaper, she invariably went into the warm house, lighted the lamp and sat under its hot rays while she read it.

Her father gave her a weekly allowance, and with it she bought at least one, and sometimes two, books on How a Girl May Save Money. She didn't save as much as the girls who hadn't such faith in the printed word, but she didn't see why.

When her mother left her in charge of the kitchen for two weeks, she spent the first week's allowance on books telling How to Feed Four on Six Dollars a Week, and had to ask her father for more money the third day. And he was so unappreciative he grumbled about it!

But all this faith is now a thing of the dead, dead past. Daysey Mayme won't believe anything she sees in print these days, if it is nothing more than "Heat Before Serving" on a can of baked beans.

The lost this beautiful faith through following the advice of the New York clergymen who have decided to demand health certificates as a prerequisite to marriage. It would be humiliating, she thought, to march up the church aisle in white silk and orange blossoms, and have the preacher refuse to perform the ceremony because a grandmother on the bridegroom's side once had a conniption fit. She would protect herself from this mortification by getting a clean bill of health before the altar was reached. She would make all necessary inquiries during the courtship; that her best beloved could prove he was in perfect health she had no doubts.

She had memorized forty-seven adjectives expressive of admiration, and when her lover presented her with a box of candy she used forty-three on the first gumdrop. Such appreciation delighted him, and he asked her to marry him. Surely a girl who could so highly appreciate a gumdrop would never underestimate the value of a man!

Daysey Mayme's first impulse was to grab him; then she remembered the printed word.

"Was there ever one in your family who suffered from neurasthenia?" she asked. "Any dandruff, Bright's disease, rheumatism, ricketts, glanders, autoxenia, bunions or corns? Have you or your ancestors ever had anything cut out, and how much? Of what did your great-grandfather on your mother's side die, and did——"

But the young man heard no more. He gave one wild whoop and fled.

"I'd have married him if he had the whole doctor's book ailing him," sobbed Daysey Mayme, "and now the other girls will never believe I had the chance."

THE EA-TONE LIVER LAXATIVE

That tones the liver, the best liver and stomach remedy known. It acts like magic on the whole system—as good for children as grown persons. Try one bottle and be convinced. No griping or bad after effects.

Sold by all merchants and druggists. A large bottle for 25c. Don't take any substitute, but insist on the EA-TONE. Thousands of testimonials sent us unsolicited. On the market over a year. If you can not get it at your store send 25c to the main office, No. 7 Hill street, Atlanta, Ga. It will be forwarded to you promptly. Manufactured and guaranteed by G. G. Crouch.

"Another Line; That's How I've Stopped the Leak"

I'VE come to believe that you can't expect people to buy if they can't get you by a mighty comfortable route. When they call and find your telephone "busy" they'll naturally go somewhere else.

Is YOUR telephone door sufficiently wide?

An Auxiliary line will allow you to send or receive messages when your present line is in use, and will prevent that "busy" report which so nettles the trade and causes the loss of many a business opportunity. The additional cost is trifling.

Call the Business Office about it to-day.

EX-GOV. PATTERSON ARRESTED

THREE TO BE OUSTED IN POSTOFFICE SHAKEUP

M'KEE, COLE AND HART LOSE OUT

Inefficiency Charged to Heads of Departments — Action Expected Next Week.

By HUGH MILLER.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The ousting of Postmaster McKee, Assistant Postmaster Cole and Superintendent of Mails I. C. Hart, of the Atlanta office, will occur early next week, according to information obtained to-day from the Postoffice Department in such a way there can be little doubt of its authority.

First Assistant Postmaster General Roper, who will be back from Denver early in the week, has announced that he will take up the Atlanta case the first thing on his return and a speedy decision is expected.

The principal charge against the three Atlanta officials, as contained in a report submitted to the Postmaster General by the chief inspector's office, is inefficiency, resulting in a chaotic condition of affairs in the office.

Postmaster Hugh McKee, when charges of alleged inefficiency in the Atlanta postoffice were first brought to light and dispatches from Washington stated that an investigation would ensue, denied ephatically that there was any truth in the accusations.

"If there is any inefficiency in the Atlanta office, I do not know it," said Mr. McKee. "I defy all charges to the effect that I am not competent to judiciously conduct the office. At all times I have every detail under my full control.

"My superintendent of mails, Mr. Hart, is one of the best in the country, and my assistant postmaster, Mr. Cole, is thoroughly competent. My subordinates all report daily to me, and every complaint registered in this office is brought to my personal attention. I have instructed all clerks and officials to bring people to my office who have a grievance.

"The reason I have all men under me report so regularly is because I am held responsible for each man, and I realize that it is solely up to me to see that each man does his duty."

Insane Hospital Conditions Flayed In House Speech

"There are wards in the State Sanitarium which the public is not allowed to see on account of the terrible conditions caused by the failure of the State to appropriate sufficient money to properly care for the inmates," said Representative Henry L. Fullbright of Burke in the House Friday morning. "The unfortunates who are inmates of Georgia's Insane Asylum deserve every care possible, and this appropriation is not too much."

The charges were made during an attack on the Appropriation Committee's recommendations for a half million dollars for the institution, included in the general appropriations bill. Representative Barry Wright and others brought objection to it on the grounds that it was an increase of more than $100,000 of the 1909 appropriation, and an increase of $10,000 over last year.

The appropriation as recommended was passed.

LATEST NEWS

H. B. Williams, a mill weaver, and George Harris, a truck driver, were bound over under $200 bond by Judge Broyles to a higher court Friday afternoon upon the testimony of J. A. Harris, a detective, that they were the accomplices of T. W. Reeves and R. W. Miller who have been already bound over under $6,000 bond charged with a series of burglaries. Harris secured his evidence from the four men by posing as their 'pal.'

CHATTANOOGA, July 25.—Local officers were notified to-day of the arrest in Risin, Ark., of Edward Langford, of this city on a warrant charging bigamy, sworn out here by his wife, who, with six children, the youngest of whom Lanford has never seen was deserted. Nothing is known here of the wife in Arkansas. Langford did not demand requisition.

CALUMET, MICH., July 26.—Four hundred striking miners today attacked the deputies guarding the Baltic mines south of Houghton, robbed the officers of their stars and drove them from the mine proper.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Secretary of State Bryan will confer to-morrow with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the Mexican situation and his protreaty placing a protectorate over Nicaragua. It was asserted to-day that leaders in the Senate still look with much favor on the suggestion that this country mediate the differences between the warring factions in Mexico.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Detectives to-day had failed to find trace of a thief who stole jewelry valued at $700 from Mrs. Edward F. Dunne, wife of the Governor of Illinois. The theft was committed yesterday afternoon in the rest room of a Chicago department store.

NASHVILLE, July 25.—Charged with passing worthless checks, drawn on Atlanta banks, to which were forged the name of D. D. Martin, copying the name from a check which he got from an Atlanta minister, L. C. Arment, aged 22 years, a young man of good appearance, is under arrest here to-day.

He claims to be from Chicago.

NEW YORK, July 25.—An additional indictment charging him with using in telephone conversations the names of Speaker Clark of the House of Representatives and Senator Stone of Missouri, was to-day returned by the Federal Grand Jury against David Lamar, whose revelations before the Senate Lobby Investigating committee already has caused him to be indicted for impersonating lawmakers.

Mrs. Pankhurst Near Death From Hunger Strike; Under Knife

LONDON, July 25.—The condition of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who was released from Holloway jail yesterday, is reported to-day to be grave.

The "hunger strike" which she inaugurated when in jail has greatly undermined Mrs. Pankhurst's constitution. So weakened was her condition to-day that she was subjected to a transfusion of blood operation. The physicians decided that an operation was necessary in order to save the militant leader's life.

Declaring that they will serve their imprisonment rather than pay fines, Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, Lady Sybil Smith and Miss Evelyn Sharpe, who were arrested yesterday when they tried to hold a suffrage meeting at the entrance to the House of Commons, were taken to jail to-day. The women were fined $200 or the option of spending fourteen days in jail.

Prohibition Blamed For Revenue Deficit

"Repeal the prohibition law and you won't have to worry so much about the finances of the State," was the emphatic statement made in the House Friday morning by Representative C. M. Clark, of Dougherty County.

The remark came as an interruption in a speech by Representative L. R. Akin during the heated discussion of the general appropriations bill. It was Clark's first statement to the House this session.

WITNESSES FOR FRANK CALLED

Despite Judge's Statement All Is in Readiness, Move for Postponement Is Expected.

Despite the fact that Superior Judge L. S. Roan stated everything was in readiness for the trial of Leo M. Frank next Monday, that State's Attorney Hugh M. Dorsey has announced he will fight a delay, and that the defense actually commenced summoning witnesses, the impression still prevailed Friday that a motion for continuance would be made by the defense when the case is opened.

Attorneys Luther Rosser and Reuben R. Arnold declined flatly to say whether they would permit the trial to proceed without introducing some motion for a postponement, and the report was that witnesses had been summoned to be on the safe side in the event a request to put off the trial is refused.

Frank Is Ready.

The accused man was in the best of health and spirits, according to an announcement from the Tower Friday, and was anxious that the case go to trial. His illness would be the best ground upon which to secure a delay, but the inability of any one of the more material witnesses to come into court would more than likely be considered a sufficient legal reason.

Judge Roan considered it highly improbable that the case would be put off on account of his indisposition. He said that he was in the best of health, and that if any continuance were secured it would be at the request of the State's attorney or the counsel for the accused man.

"I had a slight attack of indigestion Wednesday night," he said, "but I was all right Thursday morning and opened court at Covington. I disposed of three murder trials before noon, and left for Atlanta at 12:30 in the afternoon.

Judge to Require Good Reason.

"To the best of my knowledge the trial of Leo M. Frank will begin next Monday. The only possibility of postponement would be some very good and sufficient legal reason for a continuance advanced by the State or the defense. During the eleven years I have been on the bench I have never postponed a trial on account of being ill, and I will not consider any personal inconvenience next Monday.

"The reason in not drawing the jury earlier was to guard against several of the veniremen leaving the city rather than to serve.

"The date set was in the nature of an agreement, and I would imagine both sides were ready and willing for the trial to go on."

The weather will not play any part in securing a postponement unless the mercury registers 99 degrees or higher. Judge Roan said that he laughingly remarked last Saturday that if the temperature was as high next Monday as it was then he would be glad to continue the case. He said that he had not considered such a proposition seriously, but if it got so hot as to be extremely uncomfortable, he might consider a postponement.

Special deputies were sworn in Friday morning to begin serving the 140 veniremen whose names were drawn Thursday afternoon by Judge John T. Pendleton. It will be late Saturday evening before the last man can be served, according to Deputy Sheriff Plennie Miner, who had charge of the extra men.

The fact that the jury actually was drawn and several had been served Friday morning and that the State's witnesses were already under subpena to be at the courtroom Monday morning was the strongest assurance that the trial would actually begin.

Judge Roan had been averse to putting the State to the expense of serv-

Photographers of U. S. Will Meet in Atlanta Next Year

The Photographers' Association of America, now in convention in Kansas City, voted Atlanta for the 1914 meeting place Friday, according to a dispatch from L. D. Hicks, advertising manager of The Southern Ruralist, No. 118 East Hunter street, who headed a delegation of Atlanta boosters which set out to win the next meet.

"Atlanta won the next convention of the Photographers' Association of America. This will bring 2,000 of the leading photographers of the world to Atlanta next July. Harry Goodhart made a remarkable speech, which carried the convention by storm."

Stricter Slaughter House Laws Urged

Recommendations for the creation of a Department of Banking and another for the supervision of slaughter houses were made by the Banking and Hygiene and Sanitation Committees of the House Friday morning. A favorable passage for both of these bills through the House is regarded as highly probable.

The provision of a department to supervise slaughter houses is to make more complete the fight which has resulted in the prosecution of a number of prominent packing concerns under recent instructions of the Commissioner of Agriculture.

Citizens Approve Pryor Street Work

South Pryor street property owners met at the McCord Grocery Store, Georgia avenue and Pryor street, Thursday night and adopted the plans of the city engineer for widening, grading and underpass work. More than forty property owners were present.

The plans call for a cut of three feet at Bass street and a fill of three feet at Dodd avenue. A cut of fifteen feet will be made at the end of Pryor street for the underpass under the Southern Railway tracks. The street will be widened two feet. Councilman Knight, who was present, volunteered to take the underpass proposition before the county board for co-operation with the Southern Railway.

Brooklyn Buys C. Brown, of Billikens

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 25.—Pitcher Charles ("Curly") Brown, one of the best of the Billikens' hurlers, was sold this morning to the Brooklyn Nationals by the St. Louis Browns, to whom Brown belonged. The price was reported as $7,000. The pitcher will be allowed to finish the season with Montgomery.

President Ebbets, of the Brooklyn club, has been here two days settling the deal and looking over his prospective purchase. He professes to see great things in store for the young slabman.

125 Newsies To See Motorcycle Races

There is to be a grand march tonight, beginning at The Georgian's office and ending at the Motordrome, where 125 newsboys are to be entertained as guests of The Georgian at the most spectacular bill the pop-pop boys have yet presented. By way of refreshments, a half carload of watermelons will be taken off the ice and served to the guests of honor at opportune junctures in the racing.

The parade is to start promptly at 8 o'clock.

Croxton Promoted To Atlanta Office

W. W. Croxton, general freight and passenger agent of the Norfolk and Southern Railroad, has been appointed general passenger agent of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, with headquarters in Atlanta, to succeed W. H. Leahy. He will take his new office August 1.

Mr. Leahy goes to the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce to become secretary of an important committee.

DOUBLE BILL STOPPED BY RAIN

Crackers and Billikens Again Forced to Remain Idle on Account of Rain.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 25.—Rain caused a postponement of to-day's double-header between the Crackers and Billikens. The teams started to play the opening game, but after each team had scored two runs in the first inning a heavy downpour forced the umpire to call the combat.

Clark and E. Brown were on the mound.

Welchonce secured a home run with Agler on ahead. Elwert scored the Billikens first run with a timely triple to right. He later scored on a scratch single.

The rain refused to cease at 4:15 and the second battle was also called off. The teams are scheduled to clash in a double-header to-morrow.

Agler walked. Bisland sacrificed. Welchonce hit a line drive to deep right for a hime run, scoring Agler ahead of him. Long was hit by a pitched ball. Alperman out, Elwert to Snedecor, Long going to second. Smith popped to Snedecor. ONE HIT, TWO RUNS.

Manning flied to Welchonce. Wares walked. Elwert tripled to right, scoring Wares. Sloan fanned. Jantzen lined to Clark, too hot to handle which went for a hit, Elwert scored. Knaupp walked. Jantzen and Knaupp work a double steal. Snedecor fanned. TWO HITS, TWO RUNS.

Envoy Wilson Is in New York; Tells of MexicanConditions

NEW YORK, July 25.—Admitting he had done all he could to have the Huerta Government in Mexico recognized and charging that Mrs. Francisco I. Madero, wife of the slain President of that country, is a forger, Henry Lane Wilson, Ambassador to Mexico, who has been summoned to Washington by President Wilson, arrived here this afternoon on the liner Mexico. He will leave to-night for the Capital.

Mr. Wilson appeared to be in excellent health and spirits, but he declined to discuss the proposed visit of Secretary Bryan to Mexico or what might be the outcome of any intervention in that country on the part of the United States.

He said that when he left Mexico everything was as quiet as could be expected under the present conditions.

Lanford to Settle Dictograph Check

Following Mayor Woodward's announcement that he would not sign the $19 check to pay for the dictograph by which he was trapped, the police department has withdrawn the voucher from the Comptroller's office. It had not yet reached the Mayor.

It seems that Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford has decided to pay the money out of his own pocket.

Dr. O'Kelley Choice For Head of Mercer

Macon, July 25.—Dr. T. W. O'Kelley, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Raleigh, N. C., likely will be the next president of Mercer University. He was selected by a special committee of the trustees from a list of sixteen, and the offer has been tendered him.

Dr. W. W. Landrum, of Louisville, formerly of Atlanta, is favored in the event Dr. O'Kelley declines. A definite answer from the latter is expected in a few days.

BOSTON, July 25.—Chased for more than 3,000 miles, from Atlanta to Boston, John D. Mattiford, 50 years of age, was arrested here to-day, charged with being a fugitive from justice. Mattiford is charged by the Atlanta police with Kidnaping John A. Barwick, Jr., 5 years old, and his sister, Dorothy T., 9, children of John A. Barwick, of Atlanta.

Mattiford pleaded not guilty in the police court to-day and was held in $1,000 for the Atlanta police.

The police also are looking for Mrs. Barwick, mother of the children, and Mrs. Annie Laurie Jeter, mother of Mrs. Barwick. Mrs. Jeter is also charged with kidnaping the children.

For the past three months Inspectors Dorsey and O'Neal had been searching for Mattiford. He has been trailed all over New England, but escaped. For several weeks Mattiford and Mrs. Barwick were registered at the Clarendon Hotel under the name of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Martin.

Shortly before 10 o'clock to-day they saw Mattiford walking down Columbus avenue alone. Inspector Dorsey approached him, spoke his name and Mattiford turned. He was immediately placed under arrest and taken to police headquarters.

He told Chief McCarr that he did not know where the women or the children are, but he supposed they had gone back to Atlanta.

U. S. and British Split First Davis Cup Play

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

WIMBLEDON, ENG., July 25.—The American tennis team broke even with England in the first day's play for the Davis cup. To the surprise of all, M. E. McLoughlin, the "California flame," lost his match to the veteran Parke, who scored 8-0, 7-5, 6-4, 1-6, 7-5.

R. Norris Williams made up for his partner's disappointing showing by defeating Dixon, 8-6, 3-6, 6-2, 1-6, 7-5.

The doubles match will be played to-morrow.

TENNESSEAN CAUGHT IN CRUSADE ON VICE

Declares That His Arrest Is the Result of a Political "Frame-Up."

NASHVILLE, July 25.—Ex-Governor M. R. Patterson was to-day arrested in a raid on a house in the restrited district.

The proprietress, eight girl inmates and two young men were also arrested. The charges filed against the ex-Governor was loiterin gabout a house of ill fame. Patterson's friends are incensed over the so-called "frame-up."

The raid was led by Sergeant Longhurst, brother of Sheriff Longhurst, whom Patterson opposed for election.

Friends of Patterson declare that the real motive behind his arrest was that he was here taking a hand in local politics and endeavoring to bring out a municipal ticket against the organization led by Mayor Hillary Howse, because Howse several months ago opposed Patterson's candidacy for United States Senator.

Patterson's home is at Memphis, but during his four years' residence here, while Governor, he took at least a passive interest in local politics. Previous to his unsuccessful senatorial race he had the support of the Howse faction in State contests. Since the break the feeling of antagonism between Patterson and Howse has been keen.

Atlanta Doctor Is Accused in Macon Of Fraternal Fake

MACON, GA., July 26.—Charging him with obtaining mnoey under false pretense, a warrant was sworn out this afternoon for the arrest of Dr. Bernard C. Goldberg, who gives his address as 400 Atlanta Trust Building. The warrant was issued by Dr. T. M. Sigman, in Justice McCowan's court.

Several days ago Dr. Goldberg came to Macon and advertised that he was organizing a "herd" of the Benevolent Order of Buffaloes here. It is said that he appointed three physicians "sole medical examiners" and obtained a fee from each of them, accepted several membership applications with fees, gave a large order for furniture and took a commission for procuring the contract, and engaged "general counsellor the Southern States" and solicited a fee from him. He is now missing.

His stationery classifies him as "national medical director," with headquarters in Atlanta, fourth floor Atlanta Trust Building. The Atlanta authorities will be asked to arrest him.

Kansas Official in Company Attacked Under Blue Sky Law

TOPEKA, KANS., July 25.—D. M. Mounday was arrested here to-day charged with conspiracy to use the United States mails to defraud.

Mounday was the organizer of the American Sugar Manufacturing and Refining Company of New Mexico and recently filed suit here seeking to have Kansas' "blue sky" law declared invalid, Bank Commissioner Sawyer having declined to authorize Mounday to sell stocks and land contracts of his company.

Many prominent Kansans are connected with the company. Charles Sessions, Secretary of State, and former Senator Charles Curtis are directors.

LIE PASSED OVER LOBBY HINT IN BUDGET WAR

Appropriations Bill Passes House After Bitter Verbal Battle. Little Danger of Veto.

The lie was passed in the House Friday, Representative Barry Wright, of Floyd, using the word in resenting lobbying charges intimated by Representative Howard Ennis, of Baldwin. Ennis started toward Wright, but several of the other members of the House intervened and the matter was quickly straightened out, Mr. Ennis declaring that his words carried no innuendo or intimation, but that he was simply asking for information.

Representative Wright had moved for a reconsideration of sections 4 and 5 of the general appropriations bill, which the House was considering as a committee of the whole. These two sections provide for the appropriations for schools, colleges and State institutions.

Ennis interrupted Wright in a speech and inquired if "he was not inspired by members of the 'third house' to ask for a reconsideration."

Wright's Retort Sharp.

The reply of Wright was that "any such a statement was a lie, an absolute falsehood." He demanded that if Ennis had such proof or evidence that he at once submit it to the House.

Ennis explained that he had no such evidence; that he did not mean to intimate that the Representative from Floyd had been so inspired, but that he simply wanted to find out if such could be the case.

Carrying with it an appropriation of $5,795,667, which is $108,900 under last year's bill, and carrying an additional appropriation of $3,679,000 to refund bonds in 1914-15, the general appropriations bill was passed by the House Friday.

By the passage of the bill at this time all House records were broken, and everything looks safe for a quick passage through the Senate and to the Governor for approval.

Little Change in Bill.

The bill, as amended, showed a difference in but three of the appropriations recommended by the committee. This included $2,550,000 for the public school fund for each of the years 1913 and 1914, which was an increase of $50,000 over the committee recommendation; $30,000 instead of $25,000 for the maintenance of the Soldiers' Home, and a slight increase in the appropriation for clerical help in one of the Statehouse departments.

Much debate was indulged in on several items, Representative Barry Wright objecting to many on the grounds that it was following in the footsteps of the 1911 Legislature, "which was the most extravagant in the history of Georgia."

The Confederate pensions section, which covered many items, totaling $1,074,800, was an object of special attack, but no change was made in it.

Must Raise Alimony Or Remain in Jail

MACON, July 25.—J. C. Brooks, a Central of Georgia Railroad conductor, has been sentenced by Judge Mathews to stay in jail until he can procure a bondsman whose bail will insure the payment of monthly allimony to his wife.

Brooks has already spent ten days in jail, owing to his failure to obtain bond. He and his mother swore in court that they could not get a bondsman.

GAMBLERS INDICTED; FINED.

CARTERSVILLE.—The July Grand Jury returned 86 true bills, including indictments against a number of prominent young men for gambling. Practically all pleaded guilty and were given light fines by Judge Fite. Proprietors of local drug stores were indicted for selling cigarettes to minors.

GIRL DIES IN FLAMES; HEROIC MOTHER HURT

Miss Bessie Lyon, who was fatally injured when her dress was ignited by the fire in an open grate.

BEAUTY EXHIBIT AT CANAL FAIR URGED

A reader suggests that the pictures of the ten leading beauties in the booster button contest be included in he Georgia exhibit at the Panama Exposition in San Francisco.

It is not unlikely this suggestion will be carried out by the Booster Club.

When the prettiest girl finally is selected for the "500,000 Club" booster button her face will become the emblem of that organization, but her name will not be on the buttons. The only words under the pretty face will be the slogan: "Watch Atlanta—She'll Get You Yet."

Miss George Green, of No. 223 North Jackson street, is one of the entrants to-day. She is another brunette and makes the number of brunettes equal to the blondes in the contest. At first it seemed that the blondes would predominate.

Nominations still are invited. Girls nominated now will have practically as good an opportunity from the standpoint of time as those suggested at the first. It is with The Georgian readers who is to be selected, the nomination and voting coupons being published each day.

As a result of severe burns received when her skirts caught fire from a grate in which she was burning some trash at her home, No. 349 Capitol avenue, Miss Bessie Lyon, 19 years old, died Thursday night at the Georgian Hospital. She was the daughter of R. L. Lyon, superintendent of the Austell Building.

In the room next to the one in which the girl succumbed, her heroic mother Friday lay, suffering from serious burns received while trying to extinguish the flames which enveloped the daughter.

The accident occurred Wednesday afternoon. Miss Lyon had swept some light trash into the grate in the front room on the second floor, and, after applying a match to it, turned to leave. A tongue of flame leaped up to the hem of her skirt as it swished over the fire, and immediately the flimy cloth blazed.

Girl Flees in Terror.

When the girl discovered her plight, all presence of mind left her. Screaming, she burst open the door and leaped down the stairway. Her body by this time was enveloped in flames.

Mrs. Lyon, emerging from a back room, saw her daughter as she bounded down the stairs. Grabbing a blanket, she ran after her, catching the terrified girl as she reached the first floor of the building, where Mr. and Mrs. B. Clein live.

A struggle between the two women ensued before the blanket was placed about the younger one. In her efforts to save her daughter, Mrs. Lyon let the flames catch in the sleeves of her own dress, and for a time it looked as though both women would be burned to death.

Pedestrians from the street rushed in. Mrs. Clein had picked up a rug from the floor and was endeavoring to throw it over the mother and daughter.

Mrs. Lyon was separated from the burning girl and the flames in her dress were quickly extinguished.

Girl's Dress Burned Off.

So filmy was the material of the daughter's dress, however, that it burned off of her before the fire was put out. The girl was unconscious and her body blackened.

An ambulance was called and the two women were taken to the Georgian Hospital. The daughter never regained consciousness.

The mother received burns about the face and arms, from which she will recover.

Aged Doctor Dies as He Asks for Blessing

DAWSON, July 25.—When Dr. W. C. Kendrick said "let's have the blessing now," as he sat down at the breakfast table this morning, his head fell back and he died immediately.

Dr. Kendrick was 83 years old. He retired from medical practice last week, after 58 years' service. He had held many positions of honor, having represented Webster and Terrell Counties in the Legislature.

DOCTORS MEET IN ELBERTON.

ELBERTON.—Physicians of the Eighth District will meet in Elberton on August 20. Chairman W. J. Mathews, of the visiting committee, is preparing to entertain at least 200.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The tragedy of suicides which followed the elopement of Elsa Schroeder with "Baron" Richard Arkovy, a Hungarian adventurer, culminated to-day when Robert W. Schroeder, a retired stock broker, ended his life by gas in the same room where his wife, heartbroken over their daughter's marriage, also committed suicide with the same gas jet.

In 1909 the "Baron" captivated Elsa, then a 19-year-old girl. She had inherited $200,000 from her grandfather, Jacob Hoffman, a brewer. Despite her parents' opposition, Elsa eloped. The "Baron" went through the girl's fortune in a few months. She left him to return to her parents, but in the interval, her mother had taken her life.

Arkovy continued in the limelight for a time after his wife had sued him for separation. He was heard of in Monte Carlo and other gambling resorts. Then came the news that in April last he had killed himself with morphine in a London hotel.

The suicide of the father came as a climax to the disasters which followed on the heels of the elopement.

CAMPER ACCIDENTALLY SLAIN.

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., July 25.—Emmett C. O'Neal, a well-known young newspaper man of Huntsville, was accidentally killed by a revolver in the hands of Fulgham Hall, a fellow member of a camping party near here.

SUMMER SCHOOL TO CLOSE.

ATHENS.—The summer school which has been in session since June 30 will close next Friday after possibly the best session in its history.

ing the jury until it was reasonably certain the trial would begin, and he will urge that both sides go to trial rather than inconvenience the jury and witnesses, many of whom will make arrangements to absent themselves from work to be at the courtroom Monday.

Jim Conley was questioned again late Thursday and was made to rehearse his movements on the day of the tragedy, being taken to the various places he asserted he visited the forenoon and afternoon of April 26.

Chief Beavers assumed charge of the negro, and was assisted by Detectives Starnes and Campbell, who had taken Conley to the Tower the day before without the Chief's permission.

Conley was taken from the station secretly, and the four were in the Chief's automobile and out of sight before the officers' intentions were known. The negro was taken to Carter street and Electric avenue, the point where William H. Mincey swears he saw Conley the afternoon of April 26, and heard him boast of killing a girl.

That the detectives are bending every effort either to discredit or establish definitely the Mincey affidavit was made evident by the number of persons they interviewed, with the purpose of ascertaining if anyone had seen Conley at the place and at the time Mincey says he had his conversation with the negro.

Conley also was taken to the office of Solicitor Dorsey, where he was quizzed closely in regard to his reported remark when crowds began to gather near the factory that he "would give a million dollars if he were a white man." The remark was said to have been overheard by another negro, and this negro was in the Solicitor's office to confront Conley.

Chief Beavers would not divulge the results of the afternoon's work except to say that nothing had developed to change his theory of the crime.

Rope Also Found.

It became known Friday that a piece of rope was among the finds made on the first floor of the National Pencil Factory after the murder of Mary Phagan. It was found by the Pinkerton operatives at the same time the torn envelope purporting to be Mary Phagan's and the blood-stained club were discovered.

The defense has not hastened to an assumption that any of this evicase. The attorneys have insisted dence is of vital importance in the that the evidence be proved genuine beyond a doubt. It is understood that no absolute proof has been found that the envelope was that in which Mary Phagan received her money. The same lack of definite information is said to exist in respect to the club and the piece of rope.

The rope was found wedged in the radiator near the spot where the club and the envelope were discovered and only a few feet from the box on which Jim Conley was sitting Saturday afternoon.

Bulgars Ask Aid in Keeping Out Turks

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

SOFIA, July 25.—Her warlike spirit curbed by the continued defeats inflicted on her army by the other Balkan States, Bulgaria to-day appealed to the powers to stop the invasion of her country by the Turks. The appeal is made in the interest of Christianity.

It is likely that restraining influence on Turkey will come from Russia, with the consent of the other powers.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 25.—Turkey continues her defiance of the powers. To-day the Porte delivered an ultimatum that if Russia continues her advances into Turkish territory grave complications will arise.

Cause of Mulhall's Discharge Sought

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Why Colonel M. M. Mulhall was discharged by the National Association was inquired into to-day by the Overman lobby inquiry committee.

The subpena for John Mitchell and other officials of the American Federation of Labor were returnable today, but Chairman Overman did not wish to examine them until the remainder of the Mulhall letters had been read.

ATLANTA GIRL IS HURT IN AUTO SMASH UP.

Miss Theo Prioleau One of Victims in Accident at Monroe, La.—Sister Escapes.

MONROE, LA., July 25.—One person was killed outright, two others were seriously injured and another bruised when an automobile, occupied by a party of men and women, turned turtle while racing another machine two miles from Monroe just before midnight.

The Dead.

The Injured.

R. L. Prophet, Jr., back sprained.

Miss Ruth Williams, of Monroe, badly bruised.

Others in the party included Miss Dolly Prioleau, sister of Miss Theo, and H. P. Decker, of Newburg, N. C. They were unhurt.

Said to Have Been Racing.

The Smith car was being driven by the man who was killed, and with Morgan George and a party of friends, was returned from Horseshoe Lake, a pleasure resort above Monroe.

George says the two cars were racing and were going at least 45 miles an hour. He said he was about half mile ahead of the Smith car and did not see the accident. From reliable reports, it is learned that when about two miles from town the Smith car, striking a sharp curve in the road, turned a double somersault, going over a ditch.

Autoists Find Victims.

The car was uninjured and was driven to Monroe this morning by autoists who found the dead and injured on the side of the road and rendered all the aid possible.

The George party reached town and after waiting some time for the Smith party decided to go back, they found them on the roadside. The Prioleau girls were taken to the residence of W. L. Smith, in Monroe, and Miss Williams was taken to the home of her grandfather. Prophet was taken to a sanitarium.

The Misses Theo and Dolly Prioleau are well known in society circles here. They reside with their mother, Mrs. Eula L. Prioleau, at No. 70 East Merritts street, and have been prominently connected with social activities of Atlanta during the season. Mrs. Prioleau was prostrated by news of the accident, but received telegraphic assurances that Miss Theo was in no danger.

Washington's Lost Nose Is Restored

PITTSBURG, PA., July 25.—The statue of George Washington on the dome of the courthouse at Washington, Pa., recently found to be minus its nose, has been repaired. Recent storms are supposed to have been the disrespectful despoiler of George's face.

Clarence Seybold, a cement work, ascended the 16-foot stone pile and administered the functions of a beauty doctor to General Washington. He affixed an olfactory organ as may suit all purposes until a sculptor can be summoned.

Works Sees Ruin in New Sugar Schedule

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Senator Works of California to-day assailed the sugar schedule in the Democratic tariff bill and insisted that it meant ruin for hundreds of sugar beet producers in California and other Western States.

He declared the President exceeded his constitutional authority by aiding in framing the tariff bill and used his power improperly to have the bill passed in the form he desired.

Grand Jury Head Shoots Three Men

AIKEN, S. C., July 25.—In the presence of nine negroes and three white men, on a public highway six miles from town, Jason Spires, foreman of the present Aiken County grand jury, shot two white men and an old negro to-day.

The men wounded are Moseley Randall, shot in right lung and upper part of right arm; Jenks Randall, shot in left groin, and John Lattimer, negro, flesh wound.

The Randall brothers, with another white man, were in charge of a gang of nine negroes working the Silver Bluff Road. When the gang reached Spire's place, it is said, he demanded that no work be done in front of his residence. The shooting resulted.

Suffragettes Rally To Ella Flagg Young

CHICAGO, July 25.—The governing bodies of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association, Chicago Political Equality League and two men's parties of Cook County, met to-day in a determined campaign to prevent the retirement of Mrs. Ella Flagg Young as superintendent of Chicago public schools.

Mrs. Young, who has been in the schools of the city since 1868, said her resignation was presented because she was "tired of fighting." Mrs. Young is 68 years of age.

Hot Air Marks Claim To Perpetual Motion

TURIN, July 25.—Tests have been made before scientists here of a machine invented by a mechanician named Florio, by which, it is claimed, perpetual motion is demonstrated.

The machine collects the inexhaustible caloric energy of the air and transforms it into mechanical energy. The air is supplied automatically, and the apparatus is in continuous motion by reason of the passage of the gas from the warmer atmosphere to the colder water.

TO VOTE ON BONDS.

CARTERSVILLE.—The Mayor and Commissioners have called an election for the issuance of $75,000 of bonds for a sewerage system, extending water mains and improving streets. The election will be held August 16.

SEABOARD TRAIN WRECKED; ONE NEAR DEATH

Passenger train No. 17 on the Seaboard Air Line, due in Atlanta from Abbeville, S. C., at 8:40 a. m., was wrecked Friday morning when just abreast the National Furniture Company plant at 844 Marietta street, by plunging into an interlocking switch set against it.

The negro fireman, Albert Wallace, of No. 44 Rock street, Atlanta, was thrown across the tracks when the engine toppled, and was carried to Grady Hospital unconscious. He is not expected to live. Engineer C. A. Tennant, of Abbeville, S. C., was badly shaken up and bruised, but was not seriously injured.

The front trucks of the first coach, a combination passenger and baggage car, left the tracks, and the occupants, all negroes, were given a severe jolting. None of the other four cars was derailed.

Inquiry Begun by Road.

Officials of the Seaboard, in an effort to fix the responsibility for the wreck, are investigating the report that the signal board indicated "all clear" until the train was almost upon the switch and that at this instant the operator in the tower pulled the signal and derailed the train.

T. L. Brook, of No. 66 Currier street, long in the employ of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, is the towerman. He denied the signal had been set against the incoming train just as the interlocking switch was reached, resulting in the derailment. He said that a dead Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic train on its way to the yards was crossing the Western and Atlantic track on which Seaboard train No. 17 was approaching, and that Tennant must have overlooked the signal set against him.

Two Employees Shift Blame.

Tennant claims that the signal was white. Towerman Brook declares that it was red. The W. & A. officials will join with the Seaboard in the investigation. Tennant has been with the Seaboard since 1902 and has been regarded as careful and trustworthy. He has had a passenger run for three years.

MOTHER'S FRIEND IN EVERY HOME

In thousands of American homes there is a bottle of this splendid and famous remedy that has aided many a woman through the trying ordeal, saved her from suffering and pain, kept her in health of mind and body in advance of baby's coming and had a most wonderful influence in developing a healthy, lovely disposition in the child.

There is no other remedy so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant those fibers and muscles which nature is expanding and soothes the inflammation of breast glands.

Mother's Friend is an external remedy, acts quickly and not only banishes all distress in advance, but assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother. Thus she becomes a healthy woman with all her strength preserved to thoroughly enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend can be had at any drug store at $1.00 a bottle, and is really one of the greatest blessings ever discovered for expectant mothers. Write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 128 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their free book. Write to-day. It is most instructive.

CHAPTER 4 IN PHAGAN MYSTERY

CHAPTER IV.

Through all the interrogation of witnesses by the Coroner's jury and through the ordeal of a half day's inquisition of Leo M. Frank, no bit of direct and positive evidence was developed against either Newt Lee or Frank. When, however, at the close of their session on Thursday, May 8, the six jurors found that Mary Phagan had come to her death by strangulation and ordered that Frank and Lee be held to the Grand Jury, they did the only thing left to them.

So far as they knew at that time Frank and Lee were the only persons who could have had the opportunity to commit the crime. They knew that they were unequal to the mystery, the baffling elements of which mounted in numbers and proportions as the case progressed. They passed it on to the Grand Jury.

Lee and Frank, as the two persons who presumably would know the most about the crime, were probably the most important witnesses, but the closest interrogation of the negro failed to bring out any important testimony that he had not already given the officers.

Frank Recalled to Stand.

Frank was recalled to the stand for a few moments when the inquest resumed Thursday, May 8, but nothing was developed. The spectators, however, were sure that disclosures which might fix the guilt for the crime would be made during the testimony of Harry Scott, who had been working on the case for the Pinkertons. Scott followed Frank upon the stand. He told of his negotiations with Frank and the other National Pencil Company officials.

The little room was hushed awaiting the answer when Coroner Donehoo shot at him just as his testimony was concluding:

"Have you any definite clew as to who committed this awful murder?"

Scott's reply was a disappointment to those in the crowded inquest room.

"I would not care to commit myself that far," he said.

"Have you any definite suspicion?" persisted Coroner Donehoo.

Detectives Non-committal.

"We are working along a chain of evidence which I would not care to give out," the detective replied.

Detective Black's testimony was fully as non-committal. It was a striking commentary on the fact that the detectives had been working on the case near two weeks and as yet had no more idea of the identity of the murderer of Mary Phagan than they had at the end of the first three days after the body was found.

They had a "chain of evidence" which established that Leo Frank was in the factory when Mary Phagan arrived and later was attacked, a circumstance which Frank already had freely and promptly acknowledged. Beyond this they had nothing direct or positive.

They had dropped all their suspicion of Gantt and Mullinax and the young men were released. After both had been identified with a degree of certainty that left little doubt that they had been with Mary Phagan the night that she was slain, it was proved that neither had seen the little factory girl for weeks.

Mullinax Freed by Girl.

The loyal defense of Mullinax by Miss Pearl Robinson, his pretty 18-year-old sweetheart, was one of the bright spots in the sordid murder mystery. When she heard of the things of which the police were accusing her lover she went with all speed to the station and there, indignant that anyone could make such a blunder as to suspect "Arthur," she told the detectives what she thought of them, declared that Mullinax was with her at the time the crime then was thought to have been committed, and finally all but stormed his cell and took him away with her.

With the work of the Coroner's jury finished, conjecture at once arose as to the probable action of the Grand Jury.

The handling of the case passed at this time largely out of the control of the detectives and was assumed by Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey. Within a few days his announcement came that he had engaged the "greatest detective in the world," and it became the general hope that when the Grand Jury met to consider the case, some positive evidence would have been developed to fasten the crime definitely upon one person or another.

Burns Man Investigates.

The "greatest detective" proved to be Frank Pond, at one time a Pinkerton operative. What evidence of value he uncovered is still a secret closely guarded by the Solicitor. About the same time negotiations were started to bring the world-famous W. J. Burns to Atlanta. Burns, however, was abroad, having just taken part in the search for J. Wilberforce Martin, the wealthy Memphian, and was unable to come at once. C. W. Toble, one of the Burns superintendents,

FACTORY SUPERINTENDENT WHO IS CHARGED WITH SLAYING GIRL

Leo M. Frank as he appeared at time of his arrest in Phagan case.

His testimony at the inquest was straightforward and convincing of his innocence.

Prisoner now says he is ready for his trial which is scheduled to start in Superior Court in Atlanta next Monday morning. Since his confinement Frank has been cheerful and confident of acquittal.

came in his chief's place and worked on the case for several weeks, and then left without making announcement of any important discoveries.

Along with these sleuths a half dozen other experts were drawn into the mystery. Among them were P. A. Flak, the New York finger-print expert; L. J. Fletcher, Bertillon expert at the Federal prison, and a number of physicians and bacteriologists.

Lessening in significance much of the work accomplished and the evidence found by these men was the fact that they for the most part had concluded their investigations and had left the city before one of the most important elements of the whole mystery was introduced which they had not given consideration in their investigations or in their theories.

This element was the fact that there was another person, of whom they knew nothing, in the factory at the time the girl was attacked.

Pond's Theory Shattered.

Frank Pond, "the greatest detective," is understood to have said that he could fix the guilt upon Frank by a process of elimination. He considered one person after another, showing that it would have been impossible for each one of them to commit the crime.

When he had finished, Leo Frank was the only one to whom sufficient opportunity had been afforded. But he was unaware of the presence in the building of a skulking negro, who from his hiding place watched the factory girls and other employees as they entered and left the building.

As the day for the Grand Jury session approached, the Solicitor redoubled his efforts to obtain some definite evidence for presentation to the jurors. A sensation was created when the Solicitor, Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, and Dr. H. F. Harris, Director of the State Board of Health, made a secret trip to Marietta and exhumed the body of Mary Phagan in the little graveyard there.

It was rumored that the Solicitor had come into possession of startling evidence which he hoped to strengthen by a re-examination of the body. The mystery was deepened when a second trip was made to the cemetery and the body again taken up. Dr. Harris never revealed the results of his analysis of the girl's stomach, which was made on the theory that she had been drugged.

Factory Girls Questioned.

A succession of witnesses visited Dorsey every day. He turned one witness out only to admit another. Scores of girls from the factory were questioned in regard to Frank's actions toward them. It was supposed that if any of these girls gave the Solicitor the evidence for which he was looking they would be placed on the stand at the trial in the event that Frank's character was put in issue.

One of the startling stories that came to the Solicitor's ears was that cries of anguish had been heard coming from the factory at 4:30 o'clock the Saturday afternoon that Mary Phagan was killed. Miss Willie M. Ross, No. 259 Crew street, is the young woman who was said to have given the Solicitor the information.

At 4:30 in the afternoon Frank was alone in the factory, so far as is known, except for the Phagan girl. Miss Ross is said to have told the Solicitor that she heard piercing screams as she was passing the factory Saturday afternoon. She said that at first the cries were shrill and distinct and then died away into moans and became inaudible.

Two blank bills of indictment were presented to the Grand Jury when it met Friday, May 23. One was drawn against Frank and the other against Lee. Murder by strangulation was charged in each of the bills. While the jury was deliberating came the sensational charges of attempted bribery made against Colonel Thomas B. Felder by A. S. Colyer, Jr., working in co-operation with the detective department. Felder was accused of trying to buy Phagan evidence in the possession of Chief of Detectives Lanford by offering Lanford's secretary, G. C. Febuary, $1,000.

New Sensations Sprung.

The next day, Saturday, was replete with sensations. An indictment was brought against Leo Frank, charging him with the murder of Mary Phagan by choking her to death with a cord about her neck. The jurors had barely gathered when over at the police station Jim Conley, practically ignored by the detectives up to this time, made his first confession following an interview in The Georgian with E. F. Holloway, day watchman at the factory, in which Holloway accused the negro of knowing much more about the killing of Mary Phagan than he had told.

Conley sent for Detective John Black.

"Boss, I wrote them notes," the negro said, as soon as Black appeared.

Black was thunderstruck. The possibility that Conley wrote the notes had hardly entered the minds of the detectives. They had centered on the theory that Frank committed the crime and readily adopted the belief that he disguised his hand and scrawled the almost illegible and unintelligible notes that were found by the body of the dead girl.

Black at once took Conley to the office of Chief Lanford to obtain his full statement. An affidavit was prepared and the negro swore to it. It related that he had written the notes at the direction of Frank and in Frank's office. He said that he was working in the factory Friday, the day before the murder, and that Frank came to him and told him to come into the office. It was four minutes of 1 o'clock.

Says Frank Dictated Notes.

Frank told him to write: "Dear Mother, a long tall black negro did this by himself," according to Conley. The negro said that Frank had him write several times on a white scratchpad single ruled and then on a pad of brown paper. Frank then took the pencil and copied it, said Conley, muttering after a moment, "Why should I hang?"

Conley's remarkable story created a turmoil in police circles and aroused the public to a pitch of excitement that had not been equaled since the first days following the slaying. It pointed to the certainty that Conley knew a great deal in regard to the murder. It had, however, one puzzling feature that robbed it in the public mind of much of its credibility.

Conley asserted that the notes were written on Friday. This statement, on its face, was utterly ridiculous and improbable. No one believed that the murder was planned a day ahead of time.

Frank, if he was guilty, did not know that Mary Phagan was coming in the factory at a certain time the next day, and had he known, no one held the conviction that he deliberately planned her slaying.

Suspicion Turns to Negro.

Conley's story carries the assumption that Frank on Friday afternoon was preparing to destroy Mary Phagan's life the next day. The first effect of the weird tale was to direct suspicion most strongly to the negro himself. He had shown that he had a knowledge of the crime.

A comparison of his writing with that on the murder notes showed them to be identical. It did not require any handwriting expert to determine this. Half a dozen of the experts had declared the writing to be that of Lee. Others had said it was Frank's cleverly disguised. A few thought that Mary Phagan herself was the author.

By the next day the detectives had decided that Conley's story was worthless so far as it accused Frank. It must be changed if it were to be regarded as incriminating in the least.

Conley was brought into Lanford's office the next Tuesday to be grilled again. The "sweating" had its effect. Conley's second "confession" was given to the public. This time he said that he wrote the notes on Saturday instead of Friday. He explained that he had said Friday in the first place because he was afraid he would be connected with the crime if he admitted he had been in the factory on the day the girl was killed.

Says Frank Called Him.

In his first confession he said that Frank had called him from an aisle where he was working into the office. In the second he declared that he met Frank at Nelson and Forsyth streets about 10 o'clock Saturday morning, and that Frank had told him to wait a few minutes while he went into Montag Brothers' plant.

The negro said that Frank was gone about 20 minutes, and then the two of them walked toward the pencil factory. His story was that Frank told him to sit on one of the boxes on the first floor until he heard a whistle.

While sitting there he saw several persons enter the factory and others leave. He thought that he must have fallen asleep, for he was aroused by the sound of a whistle. Looking up, he declared he saw Frank standing at the head of the stairs leading to the second floor. Frank beckoned to him, he said. On reaching the second floor, Conley related that Frank gripped him nervously by the arm and led him into the office. Then followed the tale of the note writing, which was given in the first affidavit.

When Conley's signature had been affixed to this second affidavit and he had solemnly asserted, "I'm telling the truth this time, white folks," the detectives still were dissatisfied with his story. They did not believe he had told all he knew. His story as it stood had several statements that conflicted with the stories of other persons who had been in the factory during the day.

Discrepancies in His Story.

He had told of seeing Miss Mattie Smith and Foreman M. B. Darley leave the building. He had repeated their conversation and had described Miss Smith's apparel. But he had said that he was not in the factory until he came with Frank at 11 o'clock, and both Miss Smith and Darley had testified that they left between 9:30 and 10 o'clock and did not return.

He was vague on several other points that made his story suspicious. He appeared to be holding something back. The detectives and the public became convinced that he had seen Mary Phagan in the factory that tragic Saturday. Conley was believed to be on the verge of a full confession. He had displayed so much knowledge of the happenings that day in the factory that it seemed certain he must know more.

When he was called into Chief Lanford's room the afternoon of May 29, it was recognized that it was to be a test of strength between the detectives and the negro. It was a question of whether they would be able to break down the negro's story and force him to give out a true statement of all he knew about the mystery.

He was taken into the office of Chief Lanford shortly after noon. He was not returned to his cell until after 6 o'clock in the evening. For six hours questions were shot at him without ceasing.

Grilling Is Terrific.

"You might as well tell us the truth now," he was told when the long inquisition began.

Time after time he protested that he had told everything he knew, and that he had not seen Mary Phagan, either alive or dead, on April 26.

Baffled temporarily, the detectives each time returned to the attack. Ranged in front of the negro, Chief Lanford, Harry Scott and Detective Pat Campbell took turns in questioning their prisoner. His denials continued, but as the ordeal weakened him his protestations grew less vehement.

Late in the afternoon Lanford's secretary, G. C. Febuary, was hurriedly called into the room. Another statement was being taken from the negro.

When Conley, looking worn and exhausted, was led back to his cell that night it was known that he had made another confession.

Had he acknowledged having a part in the crime or having actually killed Mary Phagan?

Light Seismic Shocks Felt at Georgetown

WASHINGTON, July 25.—A moderate earthquake shock was recorded at Georgetown University to-day. The disturbance began at 7:44 o'clock and ended at 8:08 o'clock.

The shock was along the east and west lines and is estimated by Father Torndorff, in charge of the observatory, to have been about 3,000 miles from Washington.

Bichloride Victim Saved After 10 Days

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Physicians at the City Hospital to-day claimed the first victory over bichloride of mercury after it had gained considerable headway.

After ten days' treatment, they say Edward B. Fischer, victim of the poison, will recover.

In a year or less six of your teeth may be seriously damaged by lack of proper care. Proper care does not mean that you have to spend an hour a day scrubbing your teeth. Just two or three minutes in the morning and two or three at night.

And the care that you give your teeth is an investment that comes back a hundred fold in better health, and a better chance to make your mark in the world.

A few cents invested in a delicious dentifrice that gets you into the regular habit of teeth care, is common sense invested for your entire future life,

You too should use COLGATE'S RIBBON DENTAL CREAM

Mother Stanislaus Tells of Recovery

Any person who may doubt the merits of Eckman's Alterative, a remedy for the Throat and Lungs, which has brought about many complete recoveries, should investigate the case of Mother Stanislaus of St. Anne's Convent, Sanford, Fla. She writes:

Convent of St. Anne, 800 Oak Ave.,
Sanford, Fla.

"Gentlemen: In February, 1911, four doctors examined my throat and pronounced the necessity of an operation. Having heard at Peekskill, N. Y., Motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Francis, where I was visiting, of Eckman's Alterative, I determined as a last resort to try it. After taking four or five bottles large pieces of diseased tissue came away. I continued the Alterative, to my grateful and daily relief. In ten months I was restored to perfect health. I would be glad to write or talk to any person who may have a doubt about it. I would like them to see and hear from my own lips, if they so desire, all I would say of it."

(Signed) MOTHER M. STANISLAUS.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' Drug Stores and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

FRECKLES

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by Jacobs' Pharmacy under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

BILL TO AID PROHIBITION DEFEATED

Senate, 22 to 18, Votes Down Searcy Liquor Measure—Called Blind Tigers' Aid.

A temperance battle, with Senator W. E. H. Searcy's bill making purchasers and sellers of blind tiger whisky equally guilty as the storm center, developed in the Senate Friday. After more than an hour of discussion, in which President Randolph Anderson twice rescued the bill by aligning himself with Senator Searcy's forces, the bill was defeated by a vote of 22 to 18, after an amendment offered by Senator Sweat, which provided that the provisions of the bill do not apply to purchasers of whisky for the purpose of securing evidence, had been lost by a vote of 20 to 10.

Senator G. Y. Harrell started the fight against the bill, declaring that it would be more of an aid to the operation of blind tigers than a preventive.

Called Aid to Blind Tigers.

"The caption of the bill should be changed to read, 'A bill to promote the interests of blind tigers,' he said. "The passage of this bill would absolutely destroy all chances of getting evidence against blind tigers. The best and most common method of apprehending the sellers of whisky is to send a decoy to purchase the liquor with marked money. If you make this decoy a criminal, he will keep his mouth shut and no evidence can be obtained."

Senator Stark made a long speech in favor of the bill, in which he declared that it was directed against the agent of the blind tiger and the traveling blind tiger, rather than against the actual user of the whisky.

Senator Hute, in explaining his action in voting aaginst the bill, said:

"Voting for this bill would place me in the ranks of the fool prohibitionists, and I am not that kind of a prohibitionist!"

Searcy Defends His Bill.

"If I am a fool for supporting the bill," retorted Senator Searcy, the author of the measure, a few minutes later, "I am a fool for Christ's sake!"

Senator Searcy's faction forced action on the bill by voting down three motions designed to delay action on the measure. Senator Harrell's motion that action be postponed indefinitely was voted down almost unanimously. The vote on Senator McNeill's motions that the bill be tabled and that action be postponed until Monday were a tie, but the bill was saved each time by President Anderson, who voted against the motions.

Senator Tarver's bill, giving power to the State Railroad Commission to order the erection of a union station in towns where two or more railroads entered, was passed by the Senate, with amendments which Senator Tarver said were acceptable to the railroad interests.

Railroads Get Safeguards.

These amendments provided that the Commissioners' order should be given with "due regard to the finances of the railroads," and that the stations should be erected "where practicable and in the interest of the public and the railroad companies."

Two bills that are considered important were introduced into the Senate Friday. One, by Senators Sweat, Converse, Rushin, Taylor, Watt and Tyson, provides for the removal of the Georgia Experiment Station to a point in South Georgia, and for the establishment of closer relations between it and the Georgia Agricultural and Mechanical College; the other, by Senator Kelly, is an act to provide a commission form of government for Augusta.

Action on Senator Hixon's "eugenic marriage" bill, which has been favorably reported, was postponed until Monday.

The Senate adjourned at 12:30 until 11 o'clock Monday morning.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

The daily morning prayer of the blind Chaplain of the House of Representatives, the Rev. J. H. Ellis, is a thanksgiving always.

Rather than petitioning for more blessings and more abundant prosperity, the Chaplain devotes by far the greater portion of his supplication in the House to reminding the members of the countless blessings they now enjoy, and for which they should render ungrudgingly their thanks to the Most High.

Not since he began his term of service in the House has the blind Chaplain started a prayer with words other than these, "Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee!" and so on to the end of as simple and as sweet a prayer as ever was delivered anywhere.

The blind Chaplain of the House is a most interesting person. He always is at his post of duty, well in advance of the Speaker's rap for order, and he remains after the House gets down to work from 30 minutes to an hour or more every day.

Mr. Ellis is slight of build, but clear of voice. Few speakers on the floor fill the House so completely as he, and his prayers every morning are given close attention. He is completely blind and has to be led when walking. He is a very lovable man, and the Speaker hardly could have filled the Chaplain's place more acceptably or more sensibly.

The House meets every morning at 9 o'clock now, but there never is a quorum present at roll call.

Try as the House will, it hardly can get itself together before 10, somehow. Members either sleep late, are more or less indifferent to the first 30 minutes or so, or resent being called to work at 9. Whatever it is, the hour of 9 generally finds the House not more than half filled.

After the roll call is finished—unless it is dispensed with, which frequently it is—members drop in and ask that they be recorded as present.

This courtesy generally is accorded them without protest, and it gives the tardy ones considerable leeway in the matter of getting in late and still not having the record recite the circumstance.

Judge Robert Hodges, of Macon, is in Atlanta to-day and spent quite a time in the House and Senate, renewing old acquaintances and looking things over.

Mr. Hodges represented Bibb County in the House several times back yonder—well, not so many years ago after all—and was then one of the best liked and most influential members. He was in the House when his fellow-townsman, Augustus Octavius Bacon, was first named Senator, and took a great part in the work of conferring the honor upon him.

In those days the Legislature elected the Senators, without any sort of primary instructions, and Senator Bacon was named—he was re-elected to a fourth term unopposed a few days since—after a hard fight.

"Bob" Hodges, then serving his first term, was the man who carried the news from the Capitol to the Kimball House.

Judge Hodges has presided over the City Court of Macon for some twelve years, and is regularly renamed without opposition. Indeed, it is extremely doubtful whether Judge Hodges could be defeated for his present office, no matter who undertook the job.

Occasionally Speaker Burwell yanks the House back to business rather abruptly, when it gets negligent or lags in its work.

In passing local measures it is necessary to agree to the report of the committee before a bill may be passed, and this agreement is made upon a verbal division merely.

The other day the Speaker proposed the uninteresting status thus: "Those who favor agreeing to the report of the committee will say 'Aye.'" Nobody said anything.

Burwell whacked the much-abused block of wood in front of him for order, and yelled the status of the House again, and with decided emphasis, moreover.

This time the committee report was agreed to by a chorus of "ayes" that might have been heard to Whitehall street.

Then Burwell smiled, and the House laughed good-naturedly, and there was no more trouble that day.

The county of Barrow was given a temporary setback yesterday, when the Senate, by a margin of four votes, declined to ratify the action of the House committee, the House and the Senate committee in favoring it.

The advocates of Barrow still are very much in the ring, however. The bill will be reconsidered—it takes a majority only of the Senate to do this, and the Senate is for Barrow by a big majority—and then it will go over to the next session.

No more gallant fight ever has been made in the Legislature than the one put up for Barrow. This is the fourth time that plucky community has come to the Legislature, only to be knifed and bushwhacked to death in one chamber or the other. It will come again, however—and eventually Barrow County will be created.

It has the one thing behind it that so many new-county proposals lack—genuine and admitted merit.

HELD IN SHOOTING CASE.

COLUMBUS.—D. D. Bloom, a well-known young business man of Columbus, was bound over to the Superior Court on charges of shooting at another and having a pistol without license, the bond in each case being fixed at $100 by the Recorder.

PRANK IN LODGE INITIATION IS FATAL TO 2

Electric Shock, Used by Birmingham Moose to Frighten Candidates, Is Too Strong.

BIRMINGHAM, July 25.—In the presence of 125 members of the secret fraternal order of Moose, in Moose Hall last night, Donald A. Kenny, president of the local Chauffeurs' Union, and Christopher Gustin, an iron molder, met almost instantaneous death from an overshock of electricity received while being initiated into the organization.

Both were young and strong men. Other candidates going through the same initiation before them were not injured.

After Kenny was seen to be sinking and before John P. Abbott, presiding officer, could stop the proceedings, Gustin also had been fatally injured.

Both men died within five minutes, although the lodge physician, Dr. L. V. Neill, was present and lent immediate attention.

The ceremony that proved fatal is the branding one. The candidate stands upon a tilting board with his chest bared. A magneto is connected with his leg by a metal band and chain.

A horseshoe metal Moose emblem is heated red hot before his eyes and a man advances toward him holding the heated iron as if to brand him on the chest.

No Arrests Likely.

This is not done, but the suggestion is made on the candidate's mind that it is through the medium of the application of a rubber emblem while the circuit of the magneto is made complete by the application of the other end to his bare shoulder.

The lodge uses an ordinary magneto, and while weak candidates have never been subjected to this test, no able-bodied man has ever been injured by it heretofore.

Police investigation is being made, but there probably will be no arrests.

Deserting Husbands Refused Citizenship

CHICAGO, July 25.—"Men who desert their wives and refuse to support their families are not entitled to become naturalized citizens," said Judge Petit here when he refused the applications of two men who admitted having left their wives.

Priest, Forced to Take Holy Orders, Released by Pope

ROME, July 25.—The Congregation of the Sacraments has rendered a decision in a case which has lasted for four years, and which has been much discussed in ecclesiastical circles. Twelve years ago a priest named Arena asked to be allowed to give up the priesthood. He pleaded that twelve years ago he had been compelled by his parents to take Holy Orders. He alleged that he obeyed his parents against his will. This was confirmed by several witnesses.

The Congregation of the Sacraments, which was presided over by Cardinal Farrata, decided to cancel the priest's orders. It held that they had been conferred against his will, and were therefore invalid. It recommended that Arena be released from his vows.

The Pope approved the verdict.

Next Encampment Of I. O. O. F. in Macon

ATHENS, July 25.—The Grand Encampment of Odd Fellows which was in session here Thursday broke camp in the afternoon, after electing officers for the next year and selecting Macon as the next meeting place.

The new officers are: Grand patriarch, Robert L. Bramblet, Athens; grand high priest, E. H. Stout, Atlanta; grand senior warden, J. V. Everige, Columbus; grand scribe, W. H. Abbott, Atlanta; grand treasurer, I. O. Teaseley, Alpharetta; grand junior warden, Homer Ashley, Atlanta; grand representative, Chester L. Elliott, Brunswick; past grand patriarch, G. O. Hook, Alpharetta; grand marshal, James H. Grover, Marietta; grand inside sentinel, R. C. Burnham, Savannah; grand outside sentinel, Carl A. Vonderleith, Athens; grand treasurer, Carl A. Vonderleith, Athens.

Cadet's Very Last Kiss Holds Up Big Liner 3 Minutes

NEW YORK, July 25.—"A last kiss, my darling!"

He got it.

Miss Eva Mountrey, of Louisville, Ky., was sailing on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, and her fiance, Augustus Dillon, a West Point cadet, was bidding her good-bye.

"All visitors ashore!" shouted a petty officer near the sweethearts.

"A very last kiss, beloved!" exclaimed Dillon.

"All visitors ashore!" howled a chorus of petty officers and stewards.

"A very, very last kiss, mine own!" begged the cadet.

Chief Officer Moeller interrupted the clinging embrace.

"Young man," said Moeller, "you have held the ship three minutes. Go ashore!"

The Social World

A polo match is to be played at Fort McPherson early in August, probably on the 9th. A group of the officers at the post will form one team, captained by Lieutenant Hornsby Evans. The other team will be composed of two out-of-town players, one from the Augusta polo team, another from the Camden team and two Atlanta men, Lamar Hill and J. O. Seamans.

Atlanta society is interested, as a polo match always is a great society event. The polo matches in the East serve to bring together brilliant assemblages of society folk. While polo is new to Atlanta, many persons have attended polo tournaments in other cities and are initiated into the pleasures of this sport. The polo match at Fort McPherson will be refereed by Major Carthew Yourston, an English officer, who has played polo for 29 years in England and in India.

22 PRIZE PONIES AWAIT VICTORS IN CONTEST

Thirteen More Arrive From South Carolina—Red Letter Ballots Will Help Win One.

The 22 ponies to be awarded to The Georgian and American contestants are all on hand. Thirteen arrived Thursday, by express, from John G. Mobley's farm, Winnsboro, S. C., and now are with the nine others in the rear of 55 Loomis street.

The baker's dozen of little animals stood the journey well, and, indeed, were frisky when unloaded and passed before the veterinary inspector. They are strangers to the city and seemingly took great interest in the street cars, the pavements and the other sights which were new to them.

Nothing wins now but subscriptions for The Georgian and American, and subscription to the Sunday American count the fastest, on account of the Red Letter Ballots.

By the use of these Red Letter Ballots, a two-year subscription to The Sunday American yields the contestant 4,500 votes, and a one-year subscription 2,000 votes, while even a six-months subscription yields 800 votes. It should be explained that these are not extra votes. The extra votes are included in these totals.

The Red Letter Ballot offer ends Tuesday night. It is not necessary to clip the ballot from the paper to have these votes counted. It is sufficient to write "Red Letter Ballot" in one corner of the blanks with which the contestants all are provided. And there is no limit to the number of these "Red Letter Ballots" which may be voted.

'Ragtime Tunes Are The Boils of Music'

NEW YORK, July 25.—"Ragtime tunes are like boils," said Frank Damrosch, as he was sailing on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. "Like boils they come and go, and like boils they represent impurities in the musical system. But there has been a great advance in music in this country during the last two or thre decades, and now I think we compare favorably with Europe."

ANDREWS URGED FOR CONSUL TO PARIS

Lower House Unanimously Indorses Retired Atlanta Capitalist and Lawyer's Candidacy.

Walter P. Andrews, retired capitalist and lawyer of Atlanta, has the indorsement of the House of Representatives for appointment as Consul general to Paris.

A resolution indorsing his candidacy for the place, introduced in the House Friday morning by the Fulton county delegation, and signed by eleven members of the House, was unanimously adopted.

Prospects of Mr. Andrews obtaining the appointment, which is one of the most important in the consular service, are brightening.

Influences are at work in Washington in his behalf, while his friends throughout the State are using their influence to bring Andrews favorably before the eyes of the administration.

ANNOUNCEMENT

One of the Twice-a-Year Sales of Infants' Wear at Half-Price

Comes To-morrow---Junior Department---Third Floor.

There are two days in the course of the three hundred sixty-five that we make such an announcement as the above—the next one will be six months from now.

The sale brings at exactly half-price about every article of infants' wear that is in the slightest degree soiled or mussed.

Here are the long dresses and skirts for baby's first wardrobe; here are short dresses and skirts for tots turning into their first year—machine-made dresses and petticoats, hand-made dresses and petticoats such as a mother herself would make. Also there are machine-made and hand-made cashmere coats, wrappers, sacques and squares; pillow covers; flannel skirts and bootees.

Dresses were priced from $1.00 to $2.00, skirts $1.00 to $6.00, wraps $2.00 to $5.00, sacques 50c to $1.00, flannel squares $1.50 to $5.00, bootees 40c to $1.00.

Deduct just half of these amounts for this sale. The selling starts with the opening of the store, and, to-morrow being a half-day, mothers should not delay—the savings are great, the time is short.

A Half-Day Clearaway of House Dresses and Waists

A Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company clearaway of house dresses and waists is scheduled for the short to-morrow!

Odd surpluses have been gathered for immediate disposal—which tells much about savings you may enjoy. For when we set about to clear out odd lots we take the sure method of reducing prices in a big, wholehearted way.

Here—

$2.25, $2.45 & $2.95 House Dresses are $1.50

$2.50, $2.95 & $3.50 House Dresses are $1.95

They are lawns, percales, chambrays and ginghams—a varied assortment of attractive styles, lace and embroidery trimmed, pipings of contrasting colors; collarless, sailor collars and round collars. Not every size in every style, but so many styles in every size that choosing several dresses that you like will be easy.

$2.25 Waists Are $1.50

$2.45 to $2.95 Waists are $1.95

$3.75 to $4.95 Waists are $2.95

Choose a style that you like best!

You may with so many spread before you. Several hundred in this lot—flaxons, voiles and silk crepes, Dutch neck, high and flat collars, trimmed with Irish, Cluny and Valenciennes laces and embroideries.

A fine opportunity to secure a few extra waists at little cost.

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX.

He and Manette See the Suffragette Again, but Neither of Them Notices Her.

JULY 3.—It occurred to me, when Manette and I were tramping home that evening, after the militant suffragette had tried to hold me up, that there was a warning in the incident. I look like a tramp, as she said, and Manette, in spite of her clothes, looks like a princess.

What it is I can not define, but one of her sex can never disguise the fact that she was born to purple and fine linen. She may outlive every natural grace and may be reduced to rags, but there is always an indefinable something that tells of better things in the past. I looked at Manette critically as she trudged ahead of me in the footpath, and this is what I saw: A little bare head with a shock of curls just reaching to her shoulder, for we had had her hair cut short before we left town, and the growth was all new and untamed.

She wore a blue gingham with half the buttons off the back. There were rents in it, and through one rent I caught a glimpse of an exquisitely trimmed petticoat, for Richards had refused to let her darling wear the coarse muslin garments that were best fitted for the occasion. She wore half hose, with tan shoes from which her toes protruded, and her little fat legs were scratched by briars and brambles.

But one could tell by a glimpse that she was not an ordinary child, and I wondered if it was because of the proud little way in which she carried her head, or because of her total unconsciousness of self. "A born aristocrat," I murmured.

Her Beauty.

She looked up at me in laughter at some prank of the pup, and I was struck more forcibly than ever with her most unusual beauty. It wasn't altogether her hair and her eyes, her perfect features and her exquisite coloring; there was a look of her soul shining through, and that is as near as I can express it. If you could see her, Diary, you would understand why I never look at the child without some apprehension. With her beauty and her money, sometimes I wonder if there are enough guardian angels in heaven to keep all the evil-hearted away.

The children that die young belong to us always. Nothing, and no one, may ever estrange them from us. They are ours forever, and that, alas, is something no one can say of the child that lives to grow up.

There is comfort in the thought, and it is not the only comfort, for we learn as we grow older that the child that is gone is spared much, and is SAFE. I know life would be dreary and almost impossible without Manette, but every day I grow more reconciled to the loss of Elizabeth. She was happy all her life. The little girl trudging along in the path ahead of me is happy now, but I will not always be with her.

I suppose it was this constant apprehension that led me to call Mrs. Allen to the porch after supper and tell her that I am not the poor clerk she imagines, resting from overwork, but one of the detested millionaire class, resting from excessive luxury.

I told her my name and she laughed. She said she had guessed it the second day. No one, she said, could look at Manette and think for a moment that she had been brought up in denial. She could not explain it, except that the child was always so unconscious of her clothes.

"She rises above them," she said, and it made me very proud.

I have always had the theory—I wonder how it will evolve—that if Manette is accustomed to the best as a child, she will never strut like a peacock when she is grown. She will always be unconscious of her price marks.

To the Manner Born.

She will never build conversation on the price of her gown, nor attempt to erect pride and station on the cost of a hat. She will never, and of that I am sure, remember that her clothes cost more than the clothes of her associates and show it in her manner. I said something to this effect to Mrs. Allen, and her reply gave me a new viewpoint.

"She won't remember what things cost," she said, somewhat dryly, "because she has never had to earn the price. The girl who stints herself in necessities for a month that she may afford a $20 gown will never forget to the day of her death what the gown cost. Unconsciousness of clothes is a good trait, but Manette's unconsciousness will be largely due to ignorance. When one pays the price, one remembers."

I did not seem to make her quite understand what I meant, and neither did I understand her. I wanted, I explained, for the child to grow up with a soul above ribbons.

"And yet," she replied, "whoever has charge of her wardrobe takes care that she has more ribbons than any child her age should have."

I agreed to that with a sigh. When a little girl is transformed by her years into a peacock, instead of a thinking, helpful woman, it is her mother who is to blame, never her father. Manette has no mother, but her nurse and her Aunt Sallie make her attire the joy of their existence.

I, who take the place of a father to her, would prefer that she never hear the subject of her dress, but those who take the place of her mother make her attire the first consideration. That, Diary, is a fond weakness of all mothers.

I gave Mrs. Allen Mrs. Spencer's address and also that of Richards. "It has occurred to me," I said, "that if anything happened to me, either address will be useful to you."

She found considerable amusement in the thought of what an exodus to the woods there would be of young women if it were known that such a wealthy unattached bachelor were spending his summer there. "They would chase you harder," she said, "than the pup chases the rabbits."

She Sympathizes.

She laughed so heartily I asked if she would enjoy the sight, and she replied that she wouldn't.

"I feel sorry for any unmarried man these days," with some spirit. "Either the women are the mercenary kind, hunting him down for his money, or they are the suffrage kind, hunting him down like a policeman hunts criminals. I often tell my husband it is good he got me thirty years ago, for there isn't much choice of women these days."

From one of their own sex! Had I said it I would be mobbed.

July 6—I have not heard the last of that woman who thought I was a kidnaper of children. She came riding to our picnic spot again to-day, and this time she rode alone.

Manette and I were sitting on a log fishing. At least I was fishing. She had her shoes and stockings off, her little skirts tucked up, and was paddling around at the water's edge, digging up soft black mud, which she carried to the shore and made into mud pies, a big log serving her as kneading board, or mixing board. I don't really know if pies are mixed or kneaded.

The suffragette tied her horse to a sapling and came to where we were thus occupied. I did not turn my head, and Manette, obeying whispered instructions from me, went on with her culinary work without heeding her.

Robinnaire Hair Dy[e]

Is a wonderful scientific formula. It is a color restorer. Not a dangerous dye to bleach or change the original color of the hair, but a restorer which brings back to the hair its original color and beautiful sheen and softness. For a quarter of a century it has been used by women and men practically all over the world, and we have hundreds of unsolicited letters proving its merit. It does not stain the scalp nor make the hair sticky, and its use can not be detected.

Meg (five years old, was overjoyed over the recent addition to the family and rushed out of the house to tell the news to a passing neighbor.

"Oh, you don't know what we've got in our house to-day?"

"What is it?"

"It's a new baby brother!"

"You don't say so. Is he going to stay?"

"I think so"—very thoughfully. "He's got his things off."

A farmer while loading hay in his field was attacked by his neighbor's bulldog. The man defended himself with a pitchfork, and sent the dog yelping home. The neighbor rebuked him, and asked why he didn't use the blunt end of the fork first.

"I would have," replied the farmer, "if your dog had come at me blunt end first."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"What's that?" he muttered, in an undertone. "There it is again."

He blew out the lantern and stepped to the entrance of the corridor that led to the armory.

"Sh—h—! Listen! There's a light, Rusty. It's coming this way! It's coming, Rusty! Remember the high sign—and don't sneeze!"

He sprang back into the hall and concealed himself in the angle by the picture of the old Don. Presently the faint swinging beams of a lantern were thrown down the corridor and there was the sound of soft footsteps and low voices. Jarvis raised his cocked pistol and covered the doorway as the shadows told him the invaders were about to appear in view. Three figures appeared in the doorway and a girl's voice, familiar to his ears, said:

The Princess and Dolores, with Maximo as their guide and light-bearer, came down the broad stairs into the hall.

"We must go on, Dolores!" exclaimed the Princess in a strained voice. "We must find him before it's too late! Oh, I will never forgive myself for sending him to this dreadful place!"

"But there's a fire!" cried the veteran. "They've been in this room!"

"Perhaps"—the Princess shuddered—"they have already been killed."

Her Brother Safe.

Jarvis, ashamed for having listened too long and his heart beating with what he had heard, stepped forward into the light of the lantern.

"Your Highness!" he exclaimed. The girl made a sound that was half a cry of alarm and half a prayer of thanksgiving, and held out both hands to him.

"Mr. Warren! Mr. Warren! Thank God, you are still alive!"

"Your Highness," he protested, still holding her hands. "It's madness for you to come to this place! How did you get here?"

"Heaven only knows!" She shivered as if with the memory of her experiences. "We have been wandering through this dreadful place for hours—calling to you—trying to find you before it was too late."

"Too late! What do you mean?"

"My brother is safe—thank God!"

"Where is he?" demanded Warren, quickly.

"On his way to get help from the King."

"Where has he been?"

"Right here in this castle, a prisoner—since the day he entered."

"A prisoner?"

"Yes. He succeeded in making his escape to-night and has gone straight to the King for help?"

"But how did you learn all this?" he inquired, bewildered.

"From Robledo, senor," answered Dolores, as the Princess did not reply at once. The girl's voice was low and trembled slightly. "Your bullet went straight, senor. He is dying. He has confessed to the Holy Father. I promised to be with him at the end."

She turned her face away and Jarvis saw that she was weeping.

"The end?" he echoed vaguely—and then he understood. He walked over to her, stood beside her awkwardly, trying to think of something to say. He found it difficult to apologize to a girl for killing her lover, especially when the lover happened to need killing a lot.

"Then—you—" he stammered, "I—I—didn't know—I might have—I'm sorry."

Better So.

The girl raised her tear-stained face and met his gaze bravely.

"It is better so, senor," she said.

"Oh, Dolores—my poor child!"

The Princess put her arms around the girl and she sobbed on her lady's shoulder. "Maximo, take her back to the inn as quietly as possible."

When they were gone the Princess urged Jarvis to follow.

"Oh, Mr. Warren, let us leave this dreadful place!"

"Not me, Your Highness," was the grim and inelegant reply. "You go with them and wait for me at the inn."

The Princess shook her head determinedly, though her face was pale and there were lines to tell of the long strain.

"You can not persuade me again, Mr. Warren. I will remain."

"Please!" he begged, getting possession of her hands once more, and without a struggle.

"Return with us then."

"Your Highness," he said gravely, "I promised to solve the mystery of this castle and to find the treasure. My task is an easy one now."

"Then," she rejoined quickly, "I will share it with you."

He laughed silently at the neat manner of the trap in which he was caught, but he looked down at her with something more than amazement in his eyes.

"And you groped your way through this old castle to find me?" he said softly. "You are game!"

The Princess raised her eyes to his. "You faced death perhaps, for me."

"You're trembling!" he cried with sudden concern. "You're frightened—you're cold—your hands are cold! Come over here." He drew her toward the dying blaze of the fire. "You must have been scared to death crawling through the blackness."

She closed her eyes and shivered and he pressed the hands a little tighter than was necessary, if the object was merely to aid circulation.

The Sneeze.

"Every nerve in my body is on edge with the happenings of this dreadful place," she confessed brokenly and tried in vain to keep back the tears.

"Oh, don't cry," he pleaded in alarm, and then suddenly changed his tone to one at once light and tender: "Go on then—cry! Cry some more. Just forget that you are a princess and cry. That's it—that's fine! I'll round up this spook to-night for good—and then the vassal's task is done. His fate is in your hands, Highness." She ceased crying suddenly to look up into his face. "Don't send me away," he begged. "I've loved you from the first and always shall love you. I'm no Prince or Duke," he added with whimsical pathos, "I'm just a plain man—and all the man in me cries out, 'I love you'—Don't send me away!"

He felt her trembling and for an instant she seemed to lean against him. But she shook her head.

"You must go."

"You're going to send me away!"

"Yes. You must leave Spain. Your life would not be safe here."

He drew a breath of relief that was like the wind in the forest. At the same moment there was another sound that was somewhat like a far-off tree falling in the wind.

"What was that?" exclaimed the girl with a start.

"Oh, that! That was Rusty," he smiled.

"That would frighten any one."

"I figured that I might need a ghost," he explained, pointing to the armored servitor, "but Rusty disobeyed orders. Rusty, I told you not to sneeze!"

"Dat was somebody else, Massa Warren," was the solemn and unexpected protest. "I swears to goodness I didn't sneeze."

Warren's revolver was in his hand and a wild light of triumph in his eyes.

"Mr. Warren!"

"Don't move! Your Highness," he cried, raising the weapon and leveling it at the old grandee, "I've got your ghost at last!" He raised his voice. "There is some one behind that picture! Come out!—or I'll shoot you full of holes!"

Caught!

For a moment there was intense silence. Then:

"Don't shoot!"

The voice, a familiar one, came from the wall—the picture swung out in its frame and his Exalted Highness, the Duke of Alva, stepped down on to the floor.

"Your Excellency, you are a long way from Madrid."

The Duke eyed him with contempt.

"Madrid! You fool, you have fallen right into my trap!" He turned to the Princess with all the assurance of a protecting friend.

"What I have done has been for your sake, Maria. I purposely deceived him so that I might get here ahead of him and watch. See," he pointed to the mantel, "there are his tools and you yourself interrupted him at his work."

The consummate insolence and assurance of his enemy almost daunted the young man. And in the next breath he half lost the battle by permitting himself to argue.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

CAUGHT AT LAST

"MR. WARREN!" "DON'T MOVE! YOUR HIGHNESS," HE CRIED, RAISING THE WEAPON AND LEVELING IT AT THE OLD GRANDEE, "I'VE GOT YOUR GHOST AT LAST!" HE RAISED HIS VOICE. "THERE IS SOMEONE BEHIND THAT PICTURE! COME OUT!—OR I'LL SHOOT YOU FULL OF HOLES!"

FOR A MOMENT THERE WAS INTENSE SILENCE. THEN: "DON'T SHOOT!" THE VOICE, A FAMILIAR ONE CAME FROM THE WALL—THE PICTURE SWUNG OUT IN ITS FRAME AND HIS EXALTED HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF ALVA STEPPED DOWN ON TO THE FLOOR.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

THEY ALWAYS TELL.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Some time ago I was introduced to a young man whom I rather like. I have gone out to different places of amusement with him.

Now, he has often wanted to kiss me, but I wouldn't allow him to. He is going out of town for some time and says he wants to kiss me before going. Shall I allow him to? L. M.

No man should kiss and tell, but so many do that one little farewell kiss, given in the name of friendship, is sure to be misunderstood and told of. Do you not know, my dear, that the kiss that is refused is always the sweetest? Refuse him and he will always want that kiss, and seek to win your love that he may have it.

DON'T TRY.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young girl of 19 and have a brother who takes me to dances and the theater. I have no chance to find a lover, because the men all think my brother is my sweetheart. What would you advise me to do to make them understand? L. M.

My dear, if these men were attracted by you, the sight of a man as your escort would not keep them away. On the contrary, it would serve as an incentive to them to make your acquaintance.

Instead of regarding your brother as an obstacle, be glad that you have a brother as devoted and kind. And don't worry about that belated lover, for I am sure he is on his way.

WAIT A FEW YEARS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 27 and am in love with a young lady of 17, but she does not seem to care for me. What can I do to gain her love? P. B.

She is too young to be troubled by love. Prove your love is unselfish, and for her best good, by keeping it a secret to yourself until she has grown up.

Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THERE was no one whose faith in the printed word was greater than Daysey Mayme Appleton's.

If, when sitting on the cool porch at twilight, she caught a glimpse of a heading, "How to Keep Cool," in the newspaper, she invariably went into the warm house, lighted the lamp and sat under its hot rays while she read it.

Her father gave her a weekly allowance, and with it she bought at least one, and sometimes two, books on How a Girl May Save Money. She didn't save as much as the girls who hadn't such faith in the printed word, but she didn't see why.

When her mother left her in charge of the kitchen for two weeks, she spent the first week's allowance on books telling How to Feed Four on Six Dollars a Week, and had to ask her father for more money the third day. And he was so unappreciative he grumbled about it!

But all this faith is now a thing of the dead, dead past. Daysey Mayme won't believe anything she sees in print these days, if it is nothing more than "Heat Before Serving" on a can of baked beans.

The lost this beautiful faith through following the advice of the New York clergymen who have decided to demand health certificates as a prerequisite to marriage. It would be humiliating, she thought, to march up the church aisle in white silk and orange blossoms, and have the preacher refuse to perform the ceremony because a grandmother on the bridegroom's side once had a conniption fit. She would protect herself from this mortification by getting a clean bill of health before the altar was reached. She would make all necessary inquiries during the courtship; that her best beloved could prove he was in perfect health she had no doubts.

She had memorized forty-seven adjectives expressive of admiration, and when her lover presented her with a box of candy she used forty-three on the first gumdrop. Such appreciation delighted him, and he asked her to marry him. Surely a girl who could so highly appreciate a gumdrop would never underestimate the value of a man!

Daysey Mayme's first impulse was to grab him; then she remembered the printed word.

"Was there ever one in your family who suffered from neurasthenia?" she asked. "Any dandruff, Bright's disease, rheumatism, ricketts, glanders, autoxenia, bunions or corns? Have you or your ancestors ever had anything cut out, and how much? Of what did your great-grandfather on your mother's side die, and did——"

But the young man heard no more. He gave one wild whoop and fled.

"I'd have married him if he had the whole doctor's book ailing him," sobbed Daysey Mayme, "and now the other girls will never believe I had the chance."

What Dame Fashion Is Offering

For the Season.

ILLUSTRATED on the left-hand side is an attractive cornflower blue charmeuse gown very suitable for wearing at Hurlingham or Ranelagh. The skirt drapery is graceful, the charmeuse being combined with velvet-embroidered voile de soie. The sleeves are long, the wrists and neck being finished with lace frills. The central figure is carried out in a striking effect of blue and gold brocade. Lace falls from the high waist line to the center of the skirt and meets with the draped folds of the skirt. The corsage is of white lace over white chiffon. Japonica colored charmeuse is used for the right-hand model and makes a very useful gown for afternoon wear. The long sleeves are put into the shoulders with a piping; the cuffs are finished with five small buttons, the same decoration in a larger size being carried out on the bodice and skirt.

The charmeuse and ruffles are of white tulle.

One Woman's Story

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER VIII.

PRIDE and an instinctive stoicism kept Mary Danfroth's pale face impassive as she listened to her father's agitated announcement. An iron hand seemed to be gripping her throat and stifling her. She steadied herself and faced her parents as she drew away from her father's encircling arm. He still held the paper in his trembling hand. Beside him was his wife, aghast and silent, her thin fingers nervously twisting the handkerchief she held.

The girl spoke quietly and steadily: "Mr. Craig may not have been hurt, you know," she reminded her father. "The first reports of accidents are often exaggerated."

She turned away and went down the hall to her own room, closing her door behind her. She took off her hat and put it away, then lifted the books from her dressing table, on which she had just laid them, and arranged them on her desk. All these actions she performed with care, yet she moved as in a dream. She stood, looking about her as if searching for some other duty to perform, but, finding nothing, suddenly flung herself on her bed and lay there, silent, staring wide-eyed into the gathering dusk.

At the end of a half hour her mother knocked timidly at the door.

"May I come in, Mary?" she asked in a low voice. "Are you asleep?"

The girl drew herself to a sitting posture on the edge of her bed.

"Come in, mother," she said, dully. "No, I haven't been asleep. I was just lying down and—thinking."

"The parent laid a cool hand on her daughter's forehead.

"Poor little girl!" she murmured. "Poor little girl! I know this news was a terrible shock to you."

Mary stirred irritably under her mother's touch. "Of course, it was a shock," she said coldly. "It is always terrible to hear of accidents of that kind." She paused, then steeled herself to utter what she would not acknowledge was a deliberate falsehood. "But I have been thinking it might have been much worse. Suppose there had been on that train someone whom we really cared for."

Mrs. Danforth looked in silence at the speaker; then, bending over, kissed her and left the room. Mary sat for a moment longer motionless on the side of her bed. Then she bowed her face upon her hands and closed her eyes.

Dinner that night was a dismal affair. The gloom of the accident oppressed all minds. Mr. Danforth was nervous and talked of nothing but the wreck, inveighing against the carelessness of the railroad officials, the indifference corporations showed for human life, and explaining how the disaster might have been avoided—dwelling on the subject until Mary felt as if she could bear it no longer.

When the meal was at last over, Mary, remarking briefly that she must go back to her studying, went to her own room again. Her parents remained at the table, chatting, while the man of the house smoked his post prandial cigar.

"I am glad that Mary doesn't take this news any more deeply to heart," remarked the father with masculine obtuseness. "I was afraid that she was beginning to think too much of Craig and that if he was hurt or killed it must break her all up."

His wife shook her head with the scorn that a woman always shows for a man's lack of perception.

"She feels it more than she knows herself," she remarked enigmatically.

"Bosh!" exclaimed Mr. Danforth. "Mary isn't the kind to keep such a trouble as that to herself. Of course she liked the chap—and she is distressed to think that he may have been injured, or—worse. But you told me yesterday that you fancied she was beginning to care a good deal for him. She wouldn't be so calm if she did. She regards him only as a pleasant acquaintance."

In her own room Mary bent over her books and tried to study. She attacked the preparation for to-morrow's recitations with a determination to banish all other matters from her mind. "Anything to keep from thinking!" she whispered to herself. "This suspense is awful—but it may be better than to know the truth." A lump of ice seemed to be pressing upon her heart, but she worked on.

It was late when she extinguished her light, yet dawn was graying her windowpanes before she fell into a troubled slumber.

Her eyes were heavy when he dragged herself into the dining room that morning. Her father was opening the morning paper which lay beside his plate. With a sickening contraction of her throat the girl watched him scan the first page of the sheet. Suddenly he started to his feet.

"Hear this!" he exclaimed, excitedly, "'Texan Hero of Railroad Wreck; Gordon Craig Rescues Three Women From Burning Pullman; Is Himself Unhurt!'"

Mrs. Danforth uttered a low cry of alarm, and at the sound the reader dropped his paper and sprang forward. Mary had slipped quietly from her chair to the floor. She had fainted.

The parents' eyes met in a significant look as they both bent over the prostrate girl.

"I told you so!" said the mother gravely.

To Make a Hit With Women

By Dorothy Dix

A LOVELORN youth writes me a pathetic letter saying that he is persona non grata with the fair sex, that girls do not care for his society, and the ungrateful minxes turn their backs upon him and talk to other men in the very instant they are devouring the candy he brought them, and wearing the violets on which he squandered his good money. This state of affairs greatly distresses him, and he wants to know why he isn't popular, and how he may become a winner with women.

Let us see if we can help him.

Women differ from men in this respect, that looks do not count. It does not matter whether a man is handsome or not. Indeed, very few women care for beauty in the opposite sex. It is a poaching on their own preserves that they resent. Also it requires them to became flatterers instead of the flattered, for the vanity of the vainest woman that ever lived is as water unto wine compared to the vanity of a man who is a living picture, and who knows it—and expects to be told of it.

It is worth bearing in mind that almost without exception the men who were the great heart smashers of history were not only plain of face, but some of them grotesquely hideous. So no man need despair on account of his lack of pulchritude when he wants to take a hand at the game of hearts.

He Should Shave.

But where mere regularity of features in a man counts for little in attracting a woman's fancy, a man should pay much attention to his clothes and his grooming. Nothing on earth, but the grace of God, keeps a woman in love with a man with a two days' stubble of dirty beard on his face. Married women stand this because they can't help themselves; but no girl wants a slovenly, untidy man, who looks as if he needed to be run through the laundry, hanging about her. All the knocking about the word "dude" comes from masculine lips. No woman joins in that chorus. On the contrary, she feels that the man who comes into her presence ill-clothed, dirty, neglected looking, not only shows disrespect for her, but indicates that he lacks judgment, industry and progressiveness. For that is exactly what being ill-dressed now means.

Another thing that women like, and it is an attraction that any man can acquire, is a certain savoir faire that makes him equal to any situation. A woman likes a man to know how to offer her a chair, to help her on with her wraps, to order a little dinner. And she hates with unspeakable loathing the fellow who is always making scenes in public, who gets in rows with the theater usher over a mistake about the seats, or the street car conductor about the change, or who sits up like a graven image of wrath every time anybody drops in while he is calling.

"Chump," says the girl to herself, "he hasn't got enough sense to know only the ignorant have to fight to get their rights."

Women like generous men, but even girls have a contempt for men who spend more than they can afford. It is not the youths who waste all their substance on bonbons and theater tickets and violets who are the most popular with the fair sex. Every girl has what she calls her "candy beau," but she seldom marries him. The best way to touch a girl's heart is not by upsetting her digestion.

An important point to remember here is that the man who would curry favor by means of gifts must give discreetly. A woman would rather have a present that cost 5 cents if it represented some especial taste or fancy of hers than one that cost $50 if it was something that had no personal significance.

Don't Be a Clam.

In conversation, cultivate a happy medium. Be neither a continuous monologue performer nor yet a clam. Before you take the floor and devote hours to expatiating on how you can keep books or play ping-pong or take snapshots, be sure the girl is really interested in you. After a woman is in love, she can sit entranced for days listening to a man tell about the kind of collar button he wears, but if she isn't in love, a steady stream of personal reminiscences gets on her nerves, and she wants a change. Besides she desires to talk about herself.

For pity's sake, though, help out with the conversation. From the time a girl is old enough to understand anything she is taught that her chief end in life is to entertain man, and everywhere you go you can see her conscientiously at work trying to do it. Every mother's daughter of us knows what it is to labor, and perspire, and toil, trying to make conversation with some man who is just as unresponsive as a store dummy and as silent as the Sphinx. It isn't a fair division of labor, and if a man wants to see true gratitude let him chip in and help roll the conversation ball along.

"Be bold, be bold, be not too bold." Women hate a timid man, and they despise the one who takes it for granted that he has only to throw the handkerchief to have every girl scramble for it.

Learn how to pay compliments as if you mean them. Don't apply flattery with a trowel. Few women are fools. Don't tell a woman the first time you see her she is the ideal you have been seeking for many years. Seven hundred other idiots have told her that before.

Don't quote sentimental poetry to a girl. It always makes her want to giggle.

Don't give in too much to a woman. If she has good sense she won't want you to sacrifice your taste or principles, and, if she is unreasonable, she will respect you for mastering her.

Finally, beloved—and if you forget all the rest remember this—don't stay too long when you go to call. More men queer themselves right here than they do anywhere else. No living human being is entertaining for more than 30 minutes at a time or endurable for more than two hours at a stretch. In that time every man can say everything he has got to say worth hearing, and if he lingers along until the clock begins to yawn in his face, he is simply defying fate and inviting disaster. Many a good impression is spoiled by too much of it.

And when you get up to go, go as if you were fired out of a gun. Don't linger for tender farewells and last words. Most girls wear shoes three sizes too small for them, and when a man keeps one standing on the doorstep while he makes his adieus she isn't saying, like Juliet: "I could say good-by, good-by, 'til it be morning." On the contrary, she is regretting that all the stories about papa's boot and the swift waft out are fiction instead of fact, and she would be willing to pay out good money to anybody who would accelerate Romeo's descent of the steps.

Of course, no general rules can be laid down for winning the fancy of the fair sex. What has been said pretends to be no more than the most elementary facts, but a guarantee goes with each suggestion that it will work.

Little Bobbie's Pa

If I thought you cud be a poet like me or a pitcher like Dent, sed Pa, I wud tell you by all meens go ahed & try to be one or the other, but thare ain't many Dents & thare ain't many me's, sed Pa.

Dear me, sed Ma, & wen did you beecum grate?

Dident I rite that poem that I red at the bankwet the other nite wen I was toastmaster, sed Pa, and dident all the men thare say that it was the work of a geenyus?

The men was kind of enthused too much, I guess, sed Ma. I guess that a certain amount of champagne will make men stand for almost anything in liter-ature. Doant talk to me about that poem, sed Ma. If you call that art, you are a blacksmith. I found two of the verses in yure coat pocket after the bankwet, Ma sed, & I must say that you are no Milton.

I tell you the poem met with grate applause, sed Pa.

& you remember what I jest toald you about champane, sed Ma. Bobbie, she sed to me, if you think this is good poetry, you are a chip of the old block. Listen:

All brethren we stand together to-nite
Where all the lites are shining brite.
Met here in friendship's strong embrace
We can look each other in the face
& know that all of us is men,
Wich is a good thing now & then.
The world needs men like us to fight
For truth & the eternal right
& the reason eech one of us thrives
& supports ourselfs and our wives
Is beekaus of that brain power we possess
That is the cause of our grate success.
So all of us brethren gathered here
Have little if anything to fear,
Jest so we keep on working hard
& continued success will be our reward.

Now, Bobbie, sed Ma, I want you to be a honest littel boy. If you hav yure choice between beeing a elevator boy & that kind of a poet, wich wud you be?

I wud be a elevator boy, I toald Ma. The hours is easier.

New Serial Story Begins Monday

"Behind Closed Doors," one of the most exciting mystery stories ever written, will begin Monday on The Georgian's magazine page. This story is by Anna Katharine Green, whose detective yarns are so popular.

Be sure you read the opening installment—you'll certainlyread every succeeding one. The serial will be finely illustrated.

Superfluous Hair Truths

Stop Experimenting

There are but few depilatories sold. You think there are hundreds because you have used the same identical preparations under several different names. This is easily explained. Women stop using

So-Called Hair Removers

when they learn that they are harmful. Therefore, they can not be sold under the same name for any length of time. Then the identical, worthless, harmful concoctions are given new names and advertised again as totally different preparations to who innocently buy them over and over again under different names, and this will continue as long as women are so unwise as to experiment with unknown, so-called hair removers.

DeMiracle

Has Stood the Test of Time

De Miracle has been sold as De Miracle for over eleven years, and its name has never been changed. It is acknowledged the world over by eminent authorities as the one safe, perfected hair remover, therefore it is the only depilatory you can use without experimenting.

Leaves No Tell-Tale Smell

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor whatever. On the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor, an offensive, tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours.

Avoid Permanent Disfigurement

by refusing substitutes. If your dealer will not supply you send $1.00 direct. Free information how to determine which depilatories are harmful and worthless sent in plain, sealed envelope.

EVANS' DEFEAT MEANS A NEW WESTERN CHAMP

CHICAGO, July 25.—In the semi-finals for the championship of the Western Golf Tournament to-day Edward P. Allis, of Milwaukee, will be matched with Robert A. Gardner and Warren K. Wood will oppose Joseph C. Leduc.

Two surprises were furnished the gallery at yesterday's games, when "Ned" Allis, the Harvard star, defeated Charles Evans, Jr., the champion, and Warren K. Wood, who missed being champion twice, each time by 1 point, was compelled to play 39 holes to defeat Frazer Hale, of Omaha.

The pill of defeat so often administered by Champion Evans was swallowed by him when Allis defeated him, 4 and 3, in the third round.

Allis Stood Pace Well.

At one time in the afternoon, after Evans had won the sixth and seventh holes, it looked as if the champion might at least produce a tight finish, but Allis never cracked under the strain and kept on the even tenor of his way.

A stiff wind from the northeast was sweeping the course when the champion and his opponent teed off. Evans had the honor and hooked his drive close to a trap. Allis pitched his second 20 feet from the cup and holed his put. Evans, whose second was to the right of the pin, took one more.

Allis sliced his drive for the second hole into a bush and chopped out short, but to offset this mistake Evans, who had driven 260 yards, pitched his second into the bunker guarding the green, and the result was a half in five.

Both were on the third green in two, Allis being 30 feet short and Evans 15 feet to the right of the pin. They halved in 4. Allis hooked his next drive to the rough, but his second jumped the bunker guarding the green and ran to 20 feet from the hole. Evans took three to reach the green and ran his approach close to the hole.

Allis Makes Great Shot.

Allis stymied himself on his third and then made one of the most remarkable shots of the match. Evans' ball was too close to permit of a jump shot, and the boy played a follow billiard shot, his ball knocking Evans' ball a little to the side of the cup and following in, giving him the hole 4-5 and putting him 2 up.

The home hole was won by Allis, 5-6. Allis, after hooking his drive, made a fine second, short of the creek. Allis was 3 up at the interval.

A good start in the afternoon meant a lot to Evans, but his chances went tobogganing when Allis won the first 3 holes, and from that point on it was only a question if the chunky little Milwaukeean could keep himself at concert pitch, as with a lead of six holes he could claim membership in the "I should worry" class.

JOHNNY COULON STARTS WORK TO GET IN SHAPE

CHICAGO, July 25.—Physicians who have been handling Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion of the world, have released him and John will start on to-morrow to get himself back into shape for some title contests. He is packing his trunks to-day and on to-morrow will start for Georgian Bay, where he plans to rough it for a month or six weeks. Then he will return, go westward and close his match with Kid Williams. The Logan Square battler believes he will be ready to don the gloves about the middle of September.

"I'm going to camp out and live as close to nature as I can. Rough it will be my style for a month or six weeks, and then I'll be ready to enter the training grind. My physician has released me and says after a trip into the country I will be ready to box again. I am eager to get back into the game, principally to show that I am not all in. I have been censured for my delay in the Williams fight, but I knew I wasn't right, and I wasn't going to disappoint a hungry fight crowd by a poor showing," said John to-day.

WOLGAST AND JONES PART; WILL MANAGE OWN AFFAIRS

He and Jones, who acted as his manager during Wolgast's successful ring days, have separated—not that there is any trouble between them, but Ad feels he needs no manager now that he is no longer the title holder. Ad said to-day:

"Until I win the championship back, I will be able to attend to all my matchmaking myself. If at any time I make a good match and need Jones' assistance, he will be the man to attend to my affairs. I also want it understood that my old friend and manager and I are still the best of friends and pals, and if at any time I can make good again, Tom Jones will be manager.

Rain Tangles Line on Big Series

Volunteers Bob Up for Repairs

By O. B. Keeler.

BY way of giving our heroes a lift on every possible turn of fortune's wheel during the present hectic little road trip, it rained yesterday in Montgomery.

Diagnosis of this seemingly simple weather note informs us (1) that two games will be played this afternoon, unless (2) it rains some more; which means (3) that the two-ply grapple probably will end in a dog-fall, so that (4) the series will have to be decided to-morrow.

Assuming it doesn't keep on raining. Most double-headers are split. It is hard for a good club to win two games in one afternoon. It is nearly as hard for a decently poor club to lose two. So it is rather unlikely that the present series will be as decisive as it looked before the bottom fell out.

NAMING NO NAMES.

Some of our most erudite little Sages
Daily rebound from this mystery vex'd;
How is it a ball club that cleverly gauges
Attack and defense, and consistently rages
Along in one game, till the praise clutters pages,
Turns right around and immodestly stages
An Opera Bouffe in the Next?

* * *

LAMPING the station of the Nashville Volunteers in the Southern League standing doesn't offer much enlightenment concerning the stalwart efforts now making by the management to cheer up that club.

For the present season, that is.

The Vols are more than a dozen games behind the leaders, and the day of miracles is popularly reported to be past.

And yet the wires buzz with rumors and well-grounded reports of deals by which one William Schwartz is adding to the power of his payroll, and, incidentally, to the tax upon the exchequer.

The latest noise sounds like Melville Brannon, of the spectacular college brand of slab-worker, and the idea is that Schwartz has snared him away from J. Dobbs and that the Tennessee Industrialist student soon will inhabit a Nashville uniform.

Pitcher Boland, of the recently exploded Interstate League, has been turned over to the Nashville club, and is expected to succeed Jack Brackenridge. Dave Bunting, from the same circuit, also is expected to join the rookies, but probably won't play this season. Schwartz is still dickering for "No-Hit Babe" Adams, of Savannah, and Hoffman was added to the roster at a considerable expense a short time ago.

So it looks as if Sir William might be looking forward to 1914—which, by the way, isn't so bad a thing to do.

CONTINUING in the same happy vein, it is noted that President Hirsig, of the Nashville club, is under way in the direction of Detroit for a conference with President Navin, the object being to retain Frank Gibson, the speedy and hard-hitting little catcher, for next season.

It is known that other clubs are sweet on Gibby, and it is possible that he may be destined to travel with Detroit in 1914, but Hirsig is confident he has the inside rail, and believes he will keep his pet receiver.

While in Detroit, Hirsig will look over the books for new material available for his club next year.

* * *

MAKING a swift shift to New Orleans, we translate an indistinct rumble from the distant North to indicate that Mr. Brenton, able Pelican fork-hander, is ardently desired by the Toledo Mudhens in the American Association.

The terms of the swap mention Outfielder Davy Jones and First Baseman Bluhm, one old bird and one young one, as the Toledo contribution to the deal.

But there is nothing definite.

UMPIRE SUES FEDERAL LEAGUE CLUB FOR $35,000

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Umpire Jack McNulty to-day brought suit against the Federal League baseball club of St. Louis and Manager Jack O'Connor for $35,000 damages because of an alleged attack O'Connor made on him on the club grounds in June.

According to the petition, McNulty was present to officiate as umpire in the game when O'Connor "wrongfully and unlawfully assaulted him."

McNulty alleges that his injuries are such that he no longer will be able to earn a livelihood as a baseball umpire.

PITCHER GREEN REJOINS FRANK'S LOWLY PELS

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 25.—Pitcher Roy Green, shipped to Wheeling, W. Va., last spring under an optional agreement, has rejoined the Pelicans, as has Pitcher Glavenich, recently released by Omaha, and who is to figure in a three-cornered trade between the Pelicans, Cleveland and Toledo clubs for Pitcher Brenton shortly.

Waivers on the other two men Frank is getting in exchange for Brenton have been held up by two American Association clubs for the present.

BOXING

News of the Ring Game

Charley Ledoux, the French bantamweight champion, who lost the last two battles that he took part in at Vernon, Cal., the first with Campi and the second with Williams, is now in New York. He will sail for Paris in a few days.

* * *

Leach Cross and Matty Baldwin, who will meet in a twenty-round bout at Vernon, Cal., next Tuesday night, are "busy bees" at their training camps. Although many fight fans on the coast figure that Baldwin has a good chance to beat the Easterner, betting on the outcome is at even money.

* * *

Frankie Fleming, the featherweight champion of Canada, and George Kirkwood, of St. Louis, have signed articles to meet in a ten-round affair at New York on Saturday night. Both boys are lightweights.

There is a good chance that George "Knockout" Brown, Greek middleweight, will be matched with Art Allard for a contest of twelve rounds at Anaconda, Mont., for August 12. The plan is to match the winner with Leo Benz at Butte Labor Day.

* * *

Packey McFarland is taking things easy at his home in Chicago. Packey is after a fight with Freddie Welsh or Willie Ritchie. The Chicago wizard says he will make weight for either man.

* * *

Young Jack O'Brien is said to have received a raw deal in Vancouver, where he met Freddie Welsh. A daily paper published there says that Young Jack was entitled to a draw.

* * *

Young Seymour, who boxes Terry Nelson in a ten-round encounter at Marietta on Saturday, August 2, was in Atlanta yesterday. Seymour says he expects the bout to draw a good house, as they have already an advance sale of several hundred dollars. Seymour and Nelson are scheduled to go ten rounds.

* * *

* * *

Kid Duke and Kid Brooks have decided to settle their differences in the ring. The pair have agreed to meet in a finish bout in private some time next week. The boys have been hurling challenges at each other for the past two weeks.

* * *

Dominick J. Tortorich, New Orleans fight promoter, has decided to stage a welterweight elimination tourney. "Wildcat" Ferns and Young Denny are to meet in the first battle a week from next Sunday. Tortorich says he will bring Billy Walter, Spike Kelly and Mike Gibbons to the Pelican City for matches. All bouts are to be over the twenty-round route.

* * *

Tim Callahan, who was recently given a decision over Young Attell here, seems to have the makings of a good boy. He is the holder of a stiff wallop, and usually puts up an aggressive scrap.

* * *

Ad Wolgast is one of the many fighters on the coast trying to force Willie Ritchie into the ring. Tom Jones, manager of Ad, says he will agree to give the champion a $5,000 side bet if he will sign for the bout.

* * *

Coast promoters refuse to go wild over Arthur Pelky, who is at present in Los Angeles. The lightweights seem to be big cards out West at the present time.

CLARKE AND CONZELMAN PITCH TO-DAY

By Joe Ogler.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 25. George Clarke and Joe Conzelman are Bill Smith's pitching entries in the bargain-day bill this afternoon, and the gossip is that Elmer Brown, Montgomery's best bet on the slab, will work the first contest against our boys, with either Sparks or Case in the afterpiece. Chapman and Dunn will catch for the Crackers.

We are not grieving over the rain that knocked out yesterday's game with the Billikens. The off day did us good, as we needed a rest, and it helped to break up the jump here from Memphis.

THE Billikens are full of confidence, and they are going to be hard to lick. They all believe they are going to win the rag, but realize that the rest of the schedule is against them, as they have only one more series at home, after which they hit the long trail for the rest of their games. It is admitted here that the Crackers are the club to be beaten; in fact, every club in the league accepts that as a fact.

* * *

GILBERT PRICE, got here yesterday and looks to be in grand shape after his little rest. Take it all around, the club is in good condition and should make a great finish once it gets back to Ponce DeLeon.

JESS WILLARD AND BILL YOUNG STILL HOPING

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—Jess Willard and Bill Young, "white hopes," were matched to-day for a 20-round boxing bout August 22 at the Vernon arena. Willard hopes to make a few successful starts here against lesser lights, and then will go after a "Gunboat" Smith match again.

HURLER SMITH ON SICK LIST.

BOSTON, July 25.—The Cubs' cripple list had another addition yesterday. Pitcher Charley Smith is confined to his bed, suffering an attack of heart trouble, thought to be an aftermath of his prostration by heat in Cincinnati a few weeks ago. Zimmerman is in Chicago for treatment of his injured foot.

RAIN STOPS RACES.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 25.—Heavy rain yesterday afternoon stopped the Grand Circuit races at Fort Erie after the first heats of the 2:09 and 2:11 pace. Weather permitting, the two unfinished races and the free-for-all pace will be run off to-day and the Grand Circuit stars will move along to Grand Rapids.

New Orleans a 20-Round Center

Tortorich Seeks Classy Bouts

By Ed W. Smith.

NEW ORLEANS is now safely established on the boxing map as a safe and sane center in which twenty-round contests may be held. At least this is the statement of Dominick J. Tortorich, the Jimmy Coffroth of the South, who has firmly put the game back on a standing akin to the conditions that prevailed there in the good old long ago. New Orleans, be it remembered, had some of the most famous battles of ring history decided in its environs, and threatens now to take just as prominent a place as it got when John L. Sullivan and Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack Dempsey, Jack McAuliffe and Billy Myer, Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall and Dan Creedon and others of that class were battling for real titles.

BY sheer force of character and through demonstration that the boxing game can be kept free from scandal, and that it does not verge into the old class of "prize fighting," Tortorich has carried matters along until he has won over almost every executive in Louisiana to his way of thinking, and it is not believed that there will be any further opposition to Dom's plan of holding twenty-round contests from now until next Spring. And Dom believes he will be able to show all of the boxers that it will be strictly to their interests to pay some attention to the nice offers that he is going to make to them.

ALONG with Tom McCarey, Tortorich has been stung by the belt bee, and now has a well-developed case of trophy fever. One week from next Sunday afternoon, Dominick will present his first belt to the boxers. On that day he will have Wildcat Ferns, of Kansas City, and Young Denny, of New Orleans, in the first elimination test for the new welterweight championship that he proposes running during the present summer and coming fall. These boys battled ten rounds there July 4, and Ferns was awarded a verdict that started a near-riot among the spectators, many believing that Denny, the home boy, should have been awarded the victory. They are some partisans down that way. To settle the question, Tortorich nailed them at once for a contest over the long route.

MOBILE SENDS KELLY BACK.

LUCKY INFIELD PUTS ATHLETICS IN FRONT RANK

By Sid C. Keener.

IF luck continues to break for Connie Mack and the Athletics, then the 1913 American League pennant race should not be close. The meaning of luck is injuries to athletes, the stars of his flock. And so far the lean Cornelius has been mighty fortunate in ways of accidents.

Mack is directing a bona fide championship ball club all right, still many teams which figured on dope, and even on the ball field, to win have lost out because this and that star was disabled and put out of harness for a lengthy period.

The lucky part for Mack and the Athletics is that he has the banner infield in major league circles to-day, and that his quartet has been on duty every day since the first game of the season, April 10.

Infield the Real Strength.

The Athletics' infield really is the tower of strength to the club. Of course, the pitching staff has more than held its own, still the Mackites are winning games when the pitchers are cracking.

Without a doubt the combination of McInnis-Collins-Barry-Baker forms the infield de luxe, and Stuffy, Eddie, Jack and Frank have been in there every day. Collins is the only player who has missed once, and recently, during a double-header, Mack laid off the Columbia U. lad to give youngster Bill Orr a chance.

Of course, Mack has been without Jack Coombs since April 11, when typhoid fever put "Colby Jack" out of commission. But Plank and Bender are having an unusually good year, and then Connie has been fortunate in getting excellent pitching from youngsters Brown, Bush, Houck and Wyckoff.

Both Kinds of Outfielders.

In the outfield Mack supplied himself with fly catchers in case of injuries. At present he has Danny Murphy, Rube Oldring and Jimmy Walsh, right-handed stickers, and Eddie Murphy, Amos Strunk and Pete Daley, left-handed swatters.

In the outfield Mack has supplied himself with batters for the two kinds of pitching, also for injuries.

In catching, Mack is taken care of in case of injuries, but so far no one has been needed. Schang and Lapp are doing all the catching, and even Ira Thomas, who practically caught the Mackites to the 1910-1911 flags, has not been behind the bat in a single entertainment since the start of the season.

The peculiar part is that Mack has been lucky, mighty lucky, with his infielders. Not only are they in there every day, but they are hitting the Athletics to the pennant. Collins has a .347 average; Baker, .326, and McInnes, .325. And the trio has scored 202 runs.

Diamond News and Gossip

Rain put the finishing touches on major league baseball yesterday, the National games all being postponed. The American League teams spent the day traveling eastward.

Connie Mack, of the Athletics, takes exception to the statement that he Senators will beat out his eam. Mack says his men fear nobody and will breeze home in the American League.

Manager Chance plans a big shake-up in the Yankees. He is contemplating benching Birdie Cree and Harry Wolter and filling their places in the outfield with Roy Hartsell and Ray Caldwell. The latter has not been meeting with success as a pitcher, but is developing into a good outfielder and batsman.

In the hope of widening the gap between his team and the Phillies Manager McGraw of the Giants will send his team along at the clip they have been traveling the l atsfew weeks, when they begin their second invasion of the West to-morrow.

Manager Clark Griffith has ordered the Senators to keep away from Lake Michigan. Outfielder Shanks turned his ankle and injured his head while diving the other day and will be out of the game for several days. Griffith's order was to prevent further inroads on his players.

* * *

Alleging that he was assaulted by Jack O'Connor, manager of the Federal League, John S. McNulty, a former umpire, has brought suit for $35,000 against the league, the St. Louis Club and O'Connor, its manager. It was McNulty's first day of umpiring and also his last and he alleges he has been unable to earn a living in his profession.

FILLINGEM AND WILDER TWIRL TWO GREAT GAMES

CORDELE, July 25.—Seldom, if ever before in the history of organized baseball, has a record been made that would compare with that of Fillingem and "Baby" Wilder, pitching for Cordele in a double-header against Waycross Wednesday. Fillingem went nine innings for a shut-out game with no hits, and Wilder twirled a six-inning game, allowing no hits and no scores, striking out nine men.

By this remarkable record, Fillingem and Wilder have proved themselvee the star twirlers of the Empire State League. Not only has a no-hit, shut-out game been pitched before in the league, but the fact that Cordele took both games with the same brilliant record makes it a precedent that will probably not be equaled, though the league is maintained for years, for which prospects now appear very favorable.

ARMY AND NAVY WRANGLE OVER FOOTBALL FIELD

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 25.—The Army and Navy athletic officials still are at a deadlock over the selection of the place where the next Army-Navy football game shall be played.

The Navy is insisting that the game take place in Philadelphia, while the Army contends that it should be played at West Point and Annapolis, alternating each year, or in New York City, preferably the latter. The Army opens the football season early this year, playing a game September 27.

NEGOTIATIONS ON FOR M'FARLAND-RITCHIE BOUT

CHICAGO, July 25.—Negotiations were begun to-day for a ten-round contest between Packey McFarland and Willie Ritchie in Milwaukee early in October. McFarland had agreed to meet Ritchie, who is considering the proposition.

Artie Hofman May Go to Yanks

Vol Gardener Playing Fine Ball

NASHVILLE, TENN., July 25.—Any time a player comes tracking out from the majors, there immediately goes up the hue and cry that he has finished his act under the Big Tent, is on his way to the exit and only lingers around the side shows because it reminds him of the fame that was his when he occupied the center ring.

The cases of a return engagement in the majors are almost as rare as the appearance of feathers on turtles once a "slave" has started sliding, since oftenest it is the case that a ball tosser loses his ambition and desire to hobnob with the stellar lights once he has started shunting on down to the bushes.

It's because Artie Hofman is the exception that proves the rule that makes his case so full of interest, especially since so many widely different explanations of his appearance in the Southern have been offered.

Sure He Can Make Good.

It's no joke that the "them-was-the-happy-days-in-Akron" stuff had a lot to do with Artie casting his fortunes with Bill Schwartz, but the real honest-to-goodness reason is that the boy leader of the Vols afforded a protecting wing, under which Circus Solly could hide himself while the business of a clever little scheme of Hofman's was getting oiled up. The milk in the cocoanut of the whole affair is that Artie doesn't believe he is all through with the big show, and although they have their thumbs down on him, in the National, there is still a fine young chance for Artie to slip into Ban Johnson's circuit, where one Frank Chance is leading at present a forlorn hope in Manhattan.

Harking away back to the time when Charles Webb Murphy, the ungrateful owner of the Cubs, traded Artie and King Cole to the Pirates for Lefty Leifield and Tommy Leach, there started the breach between Murphy and the Peerless Leader, who, in the language for which Chance is widely noted, explained to Charles Webb just where he could head in. Leastways, that's the way Hofman tells it.

Didn't Like Fred Clarke.

Harboring an intense bitterness against Murphy, which found its best evidence in the recent suit for $3,000, which Artie pulled against the Chicago club, and a hankering for the fighting tactics of the Peerless Leader, made Hofman and Fred Clarke anything but a Damon and Pythias. All of this ill feeling, coupled with a pair of bum pins, soon caused Clarke to sour on the former Cub outfielder, and he began to look for a place to pigeonhole Artie, until he could get in good shape and bend his neck to Clarke's yoke; and Kansas City looked like a good place to the fiery Pirate chief.

The Blues were given a short option on Hofman at the stiff price of $2,500, after waivers had been secured on Artie—and there seems to have been a heap of inside stuff pulled in sending the blonde gardener out of Mr. Lynch's circuit, by the way—and a deal was framed up between Hofman, Clarke and the Kansas City club by which Artie should be returned to the Pirates at the end of the present season at a 20 per cent increase in salary in the event he "went good" in the Western circuit. This arrangement appealed to Hofman about like a spell of the itch, and he declared he had rather quit the game than be mixed up in any arrangement which would send him back to the Buccaneers and the tyranny of Clarke. When he balked, and wound up by kicking over the traces, the Kansas City club did the perfectly wise thing and allowed the option to expire.

An Old Pal of Schwartz's.

Business of "for old times sake" making a loud noise in the wings and Artie learning how Bill Schwartz was getting gray headed over the poor old Vols' slump. He would be tickled to death to come down and help an old pal out, if the Vols could buy his release. Did they? They did. For $1,500—(count 'em)—a thousand iron men less than Kansas City stood ready to kick in with, but it was a case of a bird in the hand, etc., with Clarke, and hence Hofman chasing flies in the Vols' left field.

But there is NO conditional release clause in Artie's contract, as has been whispered about. He is the sole property of the Vols, bought and paid for, with no strings tied to him one way or the other.

But this is a fact: Schwartz knows Artie's ambition to return to the majors; he knows he is anxious to once more work under Frank Chance's banner; that Chance is dead stuck on having Artie with him once more, and maybe Schwartz isn't going to help his pal get back where he is crazy to be. Maybe a duck can't swim, but he puts up a pretty good imitation.

AMERICANS WILL MEET BRITONS IN NET MATCHES

WIMBLEDON, ENGLAND, July 25.—The interest of the tennis world will be focussed to-day on the championship matches at Wimbledon, where the Americans will attempt to win the Dwight F. Davis international tennis trophy. England will spare no effort to defend the cup, which is the last remaining token of her former athletic supremacy.

The two singles matches will be played between Maurice E. McLoughlin, of San Francisco, facing J. C. Parke, whose unexpected victory last year over the noted Australian, Norman E. Brookes, was instrumental in bringing the cup to England, and R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, meeting C. P. Dixon.

Parke fell an easy victim to the Californian in the open English championships, but a round of tournament play since is said to have greatly improved his form. England pins her hope on his ability to defeat McLoughlin, who is reported to be stale. English critics are united in declaring there is less than "15" difference between Williams' play and that of McLoughlin. A greater crowd is expected than the crush which attended the Wilding-McLoughlin match.

PELKY AND SMITH MAY CLASH ON TURKEY DAY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—Indications are that Arthur Pelky, Tommy Burns, heavyweight battler, and Gunboat Smith will do battle in this city on Thanksgiving day. Burns today announced that he would have his man ready on turkey day and that Smith would be the foe, the match going to the highest bidder.

CROUCH ROBBED: GETS DRAW.

OTTAWA, ILL., July 25.—Ben Crouch, of Chicago, and Kid Mack, of Joliet, fought eight rounds to a draw in the wind-up of a boxing show held here last night. The decision came as a surprise to the fans, as Crouch cleanly outtought Mack, knocking him down several times. "Specia Delivery" Hirsch, of Chicago, and Ed Brandenburg, of St. Louis, went six rounds to a draw in the semi-wind-up.

BIG MARATHON GRIND TO-NIGHT AT MOTORDROME

UNLESS rain butts in again, local motorcycle fans will have their much-sought-for chance to see the Marathon race at the Motordrome to-night.

The races were postponed on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, but if the weather man will dish out some dry weather for to-night the riders promise to give the fans some racing that should be the classiest of the season.

$500 to Winner.

The Marathon race, with ten riders on the track at the same time, is the big feature. The speed teams are scheduled to circle the track 105 times, and the winner is to receive a cash prize of $500. More thrills seem likely to be crowded into this race than all the other races ever pulled off here.

Other Races on Card.

A special match race, three heats and a final of a sweepstakes and a trial against time by Tex Richards are the other events to be pulled off.

The following is the complete program:

Tex Richards against time. One mile. Present record held by Eddie Hasha and Morty Graves. Time, 38 4-5 seconds.

One mile to qualify for two-mile final. Two to qualify in each heat and three in fastest heat.

Second Heat—No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, Georges Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

Harry Glenn vs. Harry Schwartz. (Special Match Race.) Two miles, best two out of three heats.

Final heat of Motordrome Sweepstakes—Two miles.

Second heat of Special Match Race—Glenn vs. Schwartz.

Big Marathon Race—(26 miles 385 yards), ten riders to compete. Each rider will have to ride 105 times around the track. Winner to receive cash prize of $500.

Contestants—No. 1, Morty Graves; No. 2, Harry Schwartz; No. 3, Billy Shields; No. 4, George Lockner; No. 5, Tex Richards; No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, Georges Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

To All Householders, Business Folk---All of You With an Unfilled "Want"---

You have a boy or girl friend in The Georgian's Want Ad Contest. His name, or hers, is in the list below.

Your friend is working to win an automobile, or the piano, or one of the other prizes.

Your want ad---even if it is only two lines---will help him. Give him your ad or send it to the Want Ad Man with the request that your friend be given the votes. He will appreciate it.

CONTESTANTS are busily at work to-day telling their friends they're in the contest and learning the art of getting "want ads." The one who brings in the most paid want ads will be the owner of that touring car before long. It isn't too late for you to get in, but you'd better hurry. See the Want Ad Man at once and bring this nomination blank in with you.

THE CONTESTANTS:

Here are some of the boys and girls in the Want Ad Contest. Read the list and find your friend. Send your want ads to The Georgian and help him or her win a prize.

BANKRUPT SALE.

In Re: Horine Development Company, Bankrupt.

Pursuant to an order passed on July 2, 1913, by the Hon. P. H. Adams, a Referee in Bankruptcy for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Georgia, the undersigned, as Trustee, will sell before the Court House door of Walker County, Georgia, in the town of LaFayette, Ga., on the 5th day of August, 1913, between the hours of 11 a. m. and 2 p. m. o'clock, the following described assets, belonging to said bankrupt estate, consisting of realty and personalty, on the terms stated hereinafter. Said property to be sold as an entirety. The following described real estate in Walker County, Georgia, to-wit:

All of Land Lot 284, containing 160 acres, more or less; 53 acres more or less of Land Lot 285, said tract bounded by the cliff of the mountain until said cliff strikes the road across Dug Gap, thence with said road to the west line of said lot, being all of said lot south and west of said cliff and road as described in deed from W. N. Carmony to D. W. Lawrence, dated September 11, 1889; all of Land Lot 292, except that part of said lot conveyed to Henrietta Woods by J. E. Eighty (80) acres, more or less, being the north half of lot of land No. 74; also one hundred and sixty ((160) acres, more or less, of lot of land number seventy-five (75); and also seventy-three (73) acres, more or less, being the west part of lot of land No. 76; all in the Seventh District and fourth section of Walker County, Georgia, the same being the lands conveyed by W. L. Shattuck and T. E. Shaw to John H. Hill.

Fourteenth Tract. Eleven hundred (1,100) acres, more or less, being lots of land Nos. 73, 108, 109, 110, 106, 107, 111 and No. 142, all in the Seventh District and fourth section of Walker County, Georgia, the same being lands conveyed to John H. Hill by G. W. Ransom.

The above fourteen tracts and parcels of land, containing in all two thousand and five hundred (2,500) acres, more or less, and being the same properties conveyed to E. M. Horine by John H. Hill by deed dated the 9th day of December, 1911, and recorded in the office of Clerk of Superior Court of Walker County, Georgia, in deed book No. 25, page 440, on the 16th day of July, 1912. Said tracts and parcels of land are conveyed subject to the following exceptions and reservations, to-wit: All the iron ore, other minerals and petroleum, with the right to enter upon said land, mine and remove the same from any and all parts of said tracts of land.

Also, all that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the Seventh District of the fourth section of the County of Walker, in the State of Georgia, bounded and described as follows: Sixty-five (65) acres, more or less, of lot of land No. 3, it being all that part of the north eighty-five (85) acres of said lot No. 3, except twenty (20) acres, more or less, of the west part of said eighty-five (85) acres, formerly owned by D. H. Styles, the line running from the original north line of said lot at a stone corner, south to the made line between said 85 acres and the seventy-five (75) acres of said lot recently owned by W. H. Shaw to a stone corner on said line.

Also sixty-three (63) acres, more or less, of lot of land No. 4, in said district and section, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the public road, where the land recently owned by W. H. Wardlaw corners on the original east line of said lot No. 4 and running west to the original west line of said lot; thence south with the original line to a point due west of the lane running east and west through said lot of land; thence east with said lane and line, to the Chattanooga Southern Railroad, now called the Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Railroad; thence north with said railroad to the beginning point, containing altogether one hundred and twenty-eight (128) acres, more or less. Iron ore and minerals reserved, with mining rights reserved. And being the same property conveyed to Edvard M. Horine by John H. Hill, by deed dated the 9th day of December, 1911, and recorded in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court, Walker County, Georgia, on the 16th day of July, 1912, in deed book 25, page 436.

Also all that tract or parcel of land lying and being in Walker County, in the State of Georgia, and known, distinguished and described as follows: Lots of land Nos. 36, 37, 71 and 72, all in the Seventh (7th) district and fourth (4th) section of said lots containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less, and being the land conveyed by J. M. Ransom to John H. Hill.

And all of said five tracts of land being the same property conveyed to E. M. Horine by John H. Hill, by deed dated the 9th day of December, 1911, and recorded in office of Clerk of the Superior Court of Walker County, Georgia, on the 26th day of March, 1913, in book of deeds No. 26, page 422.

Said sale to be to the highest bidder. A certified check for $6,000 shall be deposited by each bidder with the trustee before any bid shall be received from such bidder or be considered from such bidder. Checks shall be immediately returned to the unsuccessful bidders.

Such checks so deposited with the trustee shall be delivered to him, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in the event of its acceptance. The deposit made by the successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price. In the event the bidder shall fail, after acceptance of said bid, to comply with the requirements of his said bid, then such amount so deposited shall be forfeited as a penalty for such failure. The purchaser or purchasers on the confirmation of the sale by the court shall pay in cash such further sum on account of the purchase price as the court may direct and as may be necessary to satisfy the claims of creditors whose claims shall have been or may hereafter be allowed by the court. So much of the purchase price as shall not be required to be paid in cash may be satisfied by the purchaser turning in and applying to the payment of the residue of his bid, in whole or in part, any claim against the bankrupt estate which has been or which may hereafter be allowed as a provable claim, and that upon such claims so turned in as aforesaid, the purchaser shall be credited on his bid with such sum as would have been paid on account of such claim out of the net proceeds of sale, if the whole amount of the purchase price were to be paid in cash.

The court reserves the right to order a resale, and to resell the property upon such notice as it might direct, at the risk and the cost of the purchaser thereof, in case such purchaser shall fail or omit to make any payment on account of the purchase price pursuant to an order of court requiring such payment.

The court may reject any bid and may retake and resell the property, if the court shall deem such bid inadequate, or upon the failure of the purchaser to comply with the terms of sale. The sale shall be confirmed by the court.

Fastest Railroad Time

Although the big railroads of the East are generally looked upon for holding speed records, the fact remains that the fastest record run for a short distance on a railroad was made in the South. This was in March, 1901, when a train on the Plant System, now the Atlantic Coast Line, ran from Fleming to Jacksonville, a distance of five miles, in the remarkable time of 2 minutes and 30 seconds, or at the rate of 120 miles an hour. The nearest approach to this record was made in July, 1904, on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad from Egg Harbor to Brigantine Junction, a distance of 4.8 miles, in 2 minutes and 30 seconds, or at the rate of 115.20 miles per hour.

Notwithstanding the improvements made in railroads since the invention of the locomotive, remarkable speed was made as far back as May, 1848, when railroads were in their infancy. At this time a train ran on the Great Western Railroad of England from London to Didcot, a distance of 53.25 miles, in 47 minutes, or at the rate of 68 miles an hour. The record to-day for a long run is still held by the Great Western Railroad, a trip of 118.5 miles being made in one hour and 24 minutes at a speed of 84.6 miles an hour.

A notable long distance run of recent years was that made by a special train chartered by "Death Valley Scotty," the California miner. This train left Los Angeles on July 9, 1905, and arrived in Chicago July 11, making the distance in 44 hours and 54 minutes, maintaining an average speed while in motion of 51 miles an hour.

YOU ARE looking for a position, aren't you, or you would not be reading these ads? Perhaps the position you are looking for is not to be found advertised today. Then why not spend a few cents advertising for a position in the "Situation Wanted" columns of this paper tomorrow? There is no need of your walking around in the hot sun or rain, letting your brain go to rust as well as worrying yourself sick looking for a good position when a "Situation Wanted" ad in The Georgian will do the searching for you. An ad in this paper will cost you only a few cents to run several times and relieve your mind of a heavy load. Try it and see.

DO YOU NEED HELP of any kind? A little "Want Ad" will get it for you.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Browne Pays $35,000 For Peachtree Lease

Decorating Concern to Have Extra Floor, Leaving Huntley Building. Good Rental Business.

A Peachtree lease for $35,000 and seven years which will cause several interesting central and semi-central changes was announced Friday.

D. C. Strother, of South Carolina, and others have leased to the Walter E. Browne Company, decorators, through Andrew Calhoun, of the Turman, Black & Calhoun real estate agency, Nos. 324 and 326 Peachtree street, now occupied temporarily by the Pope-Hartford automobile agency, L. S. Crane, manager. The term is seven years, with an option of three more years, at approximately $5,000 a year.

The owners will add another story to the building at a cost of $8,000, making a structure of two stories and basement and mezzanine floors. There will be 14,000 square feet of floor space. The Browne company will likewise make improvements suitable to its business. Elevator service will be a feature.

This property is on the west side of Peachtree about 150 feet south of Porter place, and was in the original Porter subdivision. It is 45 by 90 feet to a 10-foot alley.

Mr. Browne will take possession about January 1, 1914, when his lease on the building at the northwest corner of North Forsyth and James streets expires. His move is significant of the tendency of houses of similar character to seek Peachtree semi-central locations. Lycett, the china painter, and the Biggs Antique Company having preceded him in this direction.

Drewry Street Sale.

The Atlanta Development Company has sold to Mrs. Clara M. Jones a lot on Drewry street 50 feet west of Frederica street, 52 by 254, for $1,600. This is lot 35 of block 3 of this subdivision.

Good Renting Business.

The renting business in Atlanta is reported to be as steady as at any time in the city's history. Characteristic of it is the desire of South Side people to be located on the North Side, although there is always a good demand for homes like those found in West End and similar suburbs.

The Ralph O. Cochran Company has rented or leased within the past few days the following 22 places:

For Dr. J. R. Cooke to Mrs. W. F. Canterbury, No. 301 East Georgia avenue; for W. P. Stevens to B. O. Fitts, No. 40 Avon avenue; for Mrs. E. R. Way to E. M. McHugh, No. 301 Oakland avenue; for Mrs. E. L. Lafontaine to D. T. Stephenson, No. 16 Cooper street; for T. L. Lewis to R. G. Greenwood, No. 45 Atlanta avenue; for Miss Katie McCay to E. S. Acree, No. 390 Cooper street; for W. V. Ogletree to J. M. Mayer, No. 11 McPherson avenue; for R. I. Barge to T. N. Tanner, No. 212 Murphy avenue; for H. L. Cobbs to T. D. Brown, No. 15 Windsor street; for Alverson Bros. to W. H. Tanner, No. 354 Ashby street; for James Millan to Mrs. M. C. Smith, No. 318 Cooper street; for Atlanta Baggage and Cab Company to Charles Alden, No. 14 Brotherton street; for Atlanta Baggage and Cab Company to Mrs. F. Syrakson, No. 18 Brotherton street; for C. M. Tripp to Mrs. L. A. Rader, No. 97 Mills street; for A. P. Morgan to Mrs. I. C. Howard, No. 533 Lawton street; for J. H. Harwell to C. E. Hulme, No. 476 West Hunter street; for Myers & Peiper to Mrs. G. A. Johnstone, No. 222 North Jackson street; for Mrs. W. W. Morgan to E. B. Durham, No. 22 West Tenth street; for H. W. Dillin to R. H. DRAW SPACE FOR ATLANTA EXHIBIT

Space in the permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods, which will be established in the new headquarters of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce building at Auburn avenue and Pryor street, will be allotted Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock. On account of the limited space at the disposal of the committee in charge of the allotment, it is expected that a number of local manufacturers will be present to arrange for their exhibit.

Virtually every manufacturer of importance in the city has consented to add an exhibit to the permanent display, and those who do not come in now are expected to join the movement later.

The decision to establish the exhibit in the Chamber of Commerce building was made Thursday afternoon by a special committee headed by Brooks Morgan, which has been considering various locations for several weeks.

The committee favored the establishment of the exhibit in the chamber's building from the beginning of the movement, inasmuch as the chamber is the sponsor of the movement, and several days ago the directors were asked to name a price for a lease on the upper floors of the building.

In addition to the exhibit of their goods, the building is being fitted up with other features that are expected to appeal to the manufacturers and merchants who will join in the display. A swimming pool, baths and a gymnasium will be provided for the manufacturers and members of the chamber.

Doubt Report That Dr. Jacobs Bought Burns' Manuscripts

Members of the family of Dr. Joseph Jacobs are not inclined to believe the report that he has purchased the famous Glenriddell manuscripts of Robert Burns for a sum exceeding $25,000 bid several years ago by J. Pierpont Morgan. The purchase of the manuscripts by the Atlantan is told of in London dispatches.

"I don't think there is any truth to the report." Dr. Sinclair Jacobs, son of Dr. Jacobs, said Friday morning. "If the manuscripts had been purchased we undoubtedly would have been notified, and we have heard nothing of it except what we have read in the papers. Dr. Jacobs, so far as I know, has not been near London on his present trip to Europe."

According to the London dispatches, Dr. Jacobs purchased the manuscripts from a dealer in London, who recently bought them from the Liverpool Athenaeum. It is said that the deal between Dr. Jacobs and the dealer was pending at the time of the first purchase of the manuscripts, and that the London dealer was merely Dr. Jacobs' agent in the transaction

OBITUARY.

Funeral services for Mrs. Pauline Isaacs will be conducted from the chapel of Greenberg & Bond at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, Dr. David Marx officiating. Interment will be in Oakland.

The body of Mrs. L. C. House, who died at a private sanitarium Thursday night, is at Poole's funeral home, pending funeral arrangements which will be announced later. Mrs. House was twenty-nine years old, and formerly lived at No. 123 Meldon street. She is survived by her husband and four sisters, Misses Clara, Hattie Lee and Mary Lou, and Mrs. Maggie Bubb.

Mrs. Sallie J. Crawford, thirty-six years old, died at her late residence, No. 510 Lawton street, Thursday night. Surviving her are her husband, E. C. Crawford, one small daughter, one sister, Mrs. A. D. Tull, and her mother, Mrs. Sally Tharr. Funeral announcement will be made later.

Levi S. Martin, aged seventeen, died at Mount Airy, Ga., Thursday. He is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Martin; two sisters, Mrs. Lowe Estes and Mrs. Lorenzo Hollingsworth, and four brothers, Q. E., J. F., M. M. and W. M. Martin, all of this city. The interment will be in Moreland, Ga., Saturday afternoon.

Scott Promoted for Phagan Case Work

Harry Scott, assistant superintendent of the Atlanta branch of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, has been promoted to the superintendency of the Houston, Tex., agency as a reward of his work on the Phagan case. He will leave Atlanta immediately after the Frank trial is concluded.

The Pinkertons were employed in the Phagan case by the National Pencil Company. Harry Scott was assigned to the case and was instrumental in bringing to light many important features.

Scott was the aggressor in securing the so-called confession of Jim Conley, the negro sweeper.

Sunday Schools to Hold Annual Meet

JULY AGAIN ON THE TOBOGGAN

The South and Liverpool Heavy Sellers—Spot Houses Big Buyers of New Crop.

NEW YORK, July 25.—At the start to-day the cotton market was steady at a net decline of 4 to 7 points from last night's close. Near positions again showed the greatest weakness, but they were also the first to respond to later covering and soon after the opening the whole market rallied several points, with the shorts nervous over the over-sold condition of the market.

Liverpool was lower than due and brought out scattered selling from the ring. This, together with a perfect weather map, showing further rains in Texas and lower temperatures generally, with indications for more showers, brought on more favorable apprehension that the drouth would not continue. The early firmness was not of long duration. July continued on the toboggan and by noon had increased its decline 11 points from the previous close. August, after advancing 12 points to 11.67, fell back two points under the previous close.

New crop positions were liquidated. The early buying seemed to be profit-taking purchases by shorts and by moderate buying by a few strong spot interests. It seems now that the bull market is about over. Weather and crop advices are excellent. Spots are weakening for the first time in many weeks and new crop cotton is beginning to arrive at various points in Texas. The recent heat and clear weather was regarded as most propitious to the plant and hasten its maturity.

After slumping to 11.73 in the late session for a net decline of 13 points from the previous close, July was quickly rushed back to the initial level and over, through heavy buying by brokers representing large spot interests, based on the bullish spinners' takings for the week shown in Hester's weekly statement. The buying was aggressive, resulting in considerable short covering, by those taking advantage of the low level.

At the close the market was steady with near positions net unchanged to 5 points lower, while new crops were 1 to 2 points higher than the final quotations of Thursday.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: July, 11.78; August, 11.64; October, 11.25; January, 11.13.

Following are 10 a. m. bids in New Orleans: August, 11.57; October, 11.31; January, 11.30.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, July 25.—Official records and private advices show a good rainfall overnight in North Texas and Oklahoma, and the map shows a fine general rainfall in the Central and Eastern States; cooler in North Texas. Indications are for more rain in the West, continued showery weather in the Central States and Alabama, clearing in the Atlantics.

Since the date of Habersham King's report, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia have had a fine rainfall and the Western States are getting it now.

Our market opened a few points lower and held around 11.31 for October. It is being realized that rains in the West came too late to improve Bureau returns, which close to-day. The chances, therefore, are that the August Bureau, which will be published a week from to-day, will show several points loss and this explains the absence of selling pressure in the markets and a disposition to buy on depressions.

Political news is unfavorable. According to London news a revolution in China is again under way.

COTTON GOSSIP

Map showed some scattered rains in Western belt this morning, which gave rise to general selling by commission houses and the local crowd. The South is said to have also sold. Spot houses were apparently leading buyers, but most of their purchases seemed to be in summer positions. Liverpool was said to have bought August here. After Liverpool closed there was another wave of selling and in the absence of that buying power the market sagged off again, but rallied later on buying of some 5,000 bales new crops said to come from spot people. This caused scattered short covering. Reports as to Texas rainfall are conflicting. Should general rains come it is believed that the market will sell lower, though some bulls contend this has been discounted, that cotton is worth the present price. It is purely a weather market.—Anderson.

Hentz, Seidenberg and Liverpool brokers hedging July, but sold October. The selling was general. Mitchell and Wilson were apparently the leading sellers on reports of rain in Texas to-day.

Warehouse stocks in New York to-day are 33,531; certificated, 24,554 bales.

Southern banks are borrowing more largely than in many years from Philadelphia banks and institutions. They want 6 per cent money for 90 days, required to finance the picking and marketing of the crop.

There were various signs that the end of the bull market has come. Spot markets are weakening for the first time in many weeks. For an indefinite period the spot price of cotton at Galveston has been 12 5-16 to 12⅜, while New Orleans has been equally firm around 12 7-16c. Wednesday both broke to 12¼. This is a bad sign, as these are two of the most important spot markets in the South. In fact, Galveston right now has larger stocks of cotton than any other of the thirteen counted spot centers of the South. The break, so sensational in its extent of July in New Orleans, is merely another sign of the times. More liquidation of a few thousand bales would not have broken that market had there been any confidence in the stability of the spot markets.

Quite a few notices were circulating this morning, being issued by Liverpool houses.

Liverpool cables: "Spot cotton, good business; prices easy; sales estimated 10,000 American; middling fair, 7.21d; good middling, 6.89d; middling, 6.61d; low middling, 6.41d; good ordinary, 5.93d; ordinary, 5.59d."

NEW ORLEANS, July 25.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map shows partly cloudy to cloudy over entire belt; rains in North Texas and detailed records at 10 o'clock will show more also in Oklahoma. Fine rains also in the central and eastern belt. Cooler in Texas. Indications are for a good deal more rain coming on Texas and Oklahoma; also in West Texas. Continued showery weather over the central belt, and clearing over the Atlantics.

* * *

Habersham King's latest report says: "The dividing line is the Mississippi River. West of it the conditions are more dangerously dry. East of the river the crop is fairly safe, though rains are beginning to be needed in Mississippi, Alabama and more moisture needed in Georgia, to render it quite safe. I think the week's developments have been unfavorable to 50 per cent of the belt."

THE WEATHER.

MODERN MILLER CROP REPORT

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Weather this week was again favorable for winter wheat harvest, which is well under way in Northern sections of the winter whet belt. While rains have had some effect on conditions of grain in localities where there was considerable moisture, quality of wheat sent to market, nevertheless, is uniformly good. Threshing returns generally satisfactory both as to quantity and quality.

While the movement of wheat to market is still free, there are indications in some localities of a let-up in the selling. Farmers seem willing to part with the first threshings and having thus relieved pressing needs, show a tendency to hold back the remainder of their wheat. Some farmers are taking advantage of the favorable soil conditions to begin breaking ground for fall wheat

PUBLIC ONCE MORE IN STOCK MARKET

By CHAS. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Another halt in the buying movement what is evidence on the stock market at the opening to-day, and a generally lower tone prevailed.

The news of the Government's suit against the American Telephone and Telegraph Company was used as a reason for pressure against that stock, which declined 1¼.

Other losses were: Southern Pacific ⅛, Union Pacific ¾, Steel common ⅛, American Locomotive ⅛, Canadian Pacific 1½, New Haven was up ⅛.

Other shares moved irregularly with the changes equally divided between gains and losses.

Trading in London was irregular.

The curb market was steady.

The market movements lacked uniformity, a large number of issues failing to share in the activity. However, sharp upturns displayed strength and the advance continued small but active. Canadian Pacific was conspicuous among the leaders. Steel rose ⅜ and Reading ⅛. Union Pacific moved up one point to 149½. Copper yielded ⅛. Northern Pacific and Pennsylvania were a shade lower. New Haven sold around 103¼.

Call money loaning at 2¼.

New low prices were made in many issues in the early afternoon, but in the late trading some slight recoveries were noted. Steel common reached 59 and there was brisk demand for Union Pacific, Reading and a number of specialties.

Life Costs More---AND LABOR MUST LIVE

Business Men Must Make Their Plans Based Upon Necessary, Inevitable, JUST and Steady Increase of Pay.

(Copyright, 1913.)

Following is an extract from a telegram sent from San Francisco by W. R. Hearst to the manager of his editorial department. The message is recommended to business men generally:

"I believe that the railroad men, and all laboring men, must positively get repeated increases in wages in order to enable them to maintain even their present standard of living, and that they should properly, in the development of our civilization, obtain an even higher standard of living. Business men must count upon increasing wages as one of the inevitable conditions of modern life, and must make their plans and form their enterprises accordingly.

"HEARST."

The opinion expressed in the above dispatch is that OF A MAN WHO PAYS OUT MILLIONS A YEAR IN WAGES, AND THE HIGHEST WAGES.

A man who pays millions annually in wages, and has constantly increased wages throughout his business career, has a right to be heard by employers as well as by workers.

In Congress, when Mr. Hearst appeared to argue in favor of the Eight-Hour law against manufacturers who opposed it, Mr. Hearst pointed out the fact that his opinion concerning the eight-hour day was not theory, but positive knowledge, inasmuch as he himself employed men on the eight-hour-day basis, had done so for years, intended to do so permanently, AND HAD MADE HIS BUSINESS PAY IN SPITE OF THAT HANDICAP, if it were a handicap.

Successful business men in the United States should give careful and open-minded attention to Mr. Hearst's telegram, which is a message from one business man to others, from one considerable employer of labor to other employers of labor.

It is not a hardship for the intelligent business man to pay good wages and work his men fair hours, IF OTHER BUSINESS MEN DO THE SAME.

The great thing is that business men shall have an understanding, that they shall realize that they and the workers are actually partners in national welfare, AND THAT THEY SHALL FIGHT AGAINST THE MEAN, NARROW AND HARMFUL MAN WHO REFUSES TO DO THE JUST AND HONORABLE THING.

If a thousand men employ a million workers in a certain line of effort, and if they all pay their men well and give them reasonable hours, THAT IS FAIR FOR EVERY EMPLOYER.

The trouble with our system is that the hard-hearted, narrow-minded, close-fisted man, who goes off by himself, shunning organization, refusing co-operation, and competing upon a basis of the lowest wages and the longest hours, has been allowed to enjoy his prosperity and his thrift through meanness without question.

Let the employers work on an even, just basis as to wages and hours, and then THE BEST MAN WILL WIN—the business man will win who has the best ideas, the highest intelligence and is able to render the greatest public service.

All that the good business man asks, all that the fair employer wants, is justice and the opportunity to compete for business success and prosperity on an even basis with other men of his own class.

The salvation and prosperity of this country, menaced now by half-baked ideas of half-baked Democrats at Washington, have been based very largely upon the fact that the United States through the tariff has been protected from the unfair competition of the unfair foreign employer and ill-treated foreign labor.

American business men, thanks to the tariff, have had to compete ONLY WITH AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN

The man who has made iron in this country, and who paid his puddlers as much as $8 a day and more, has not had to worry about the man in Belgium who was paying for the same labor less than one-quarter.

The man manufacturing goods in this country has manufactured in competition with AMERICAN employers, and need not keep his mind upon the problem of meeting the competition of some Chinese manufacturer able to get labor for five cents a day.

American industry has grown, American prosperity has grown, American wages have grown—AND THE COST OF LIVING, INCLUDING FARMERS' PROFITS, ALSO HAS GROWN, because over here we have kept our markets to ourselves, and competition has been among men living, working, manufacturing and competing on the same terms.

What will happen if Democrats who believe that they know all about business, manufactures and industry, BECAUSE THEY HAVE NEVER HAD ANYTHING TO DO WITH THOSE THINGS, are to have their way, if the tariff wall is to be torn down suddenly and the competition of the meanest foreign employers and the lowest paid foreign labor is to be met, is another story.

Fortunately, one election is followed by another election. It will not be difficult for workers and employers combined to have their way AT ANOTHER ELECTION and correct the threatening follies of this Administration.

The main thing is that those now working in this country, whether they work with their hands, as laborers and mechanics, or with their brains, as employers, should co-operate on a friendly basis, through the making of laws, for the establishment of minimum wage rates, especially as regards women, and in other sane, friendly and legal ways for the bettering of conditions.

It is time to get away from the days of strikes, of dynamite, of Homestead shootings by paid Pinkerton thugs, or Los Angeles explosions by degraded, depraved misrepresentatives of labor.

It is important that those who employ labor should recognize the truth of Mr. Hearst's statement in the above telegram, "that railroad men and all laboring men must positively get repeated increases in wages in order to enable them to maintain even their present standard of living, and that they should properly, in the development of our civilization, obtain an even higher standard of living."

The workingman to-day gets not twice, but three times, four times and five times what he got when this country was young.

McMaster, the historian, writes of a day when there was JUST ONE MECHANIC IN THE UNITED STATES ABLE TO MAKE A DOLLAR A DAY ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

One President of the United States, a well meaning man, was filled with gloom and thought the country was going to the dogs because when he spoke you could no longer hire a first-class man in this country for less than fifty cents a day.

If you had told an employer of those old days, even a George Washington, a Thomas Jefferson, or any other first-class old American, that one day in this country unskilled labor would demand and get two dollars a day and skilled mechanics three dollars, four dollars, five dollars a day and more, those old Americans would have said, "Well, the country must go to the dogs; the thing is impossible."

When you say to-day that wages, high as they seem to some, must be increased, and ought to be increased, the man of to-day, if he be shortsighted, will tell you that it is impossible, and that the country must go to the dogs.

BUT IT IS NOT IMPOSSIBLE, AND THE COUNTRY NEED NOT GO TO THE DOGS.

The American employer of to-day is better off, being richer, bigger in his enterprise, safer in his undertakings, than his predecessor who used to be able to hire a first-class man for fifty cents a day.

The men that own the street railways and pay $2.50 per day are better off than they were in the days when they got their labor for $1.00 or $1.10.

After all, what is the chief asset of the employer? Is it not the competent well-fed worker?

And far above the interest of the individual employer, what is the chief asset of the nation? Is it not a population of well-fed men, well paid, with time to rest, time for mental improvement, money enough to keep their children out of the mills and mines, and in school?

Not with hatred, bitterness and regret, but with pleasure as good citizens, the competent American business men, united, with laws to protect them, fighting the unfair competition of low wages and long hours, should gladly recognize that the purpose of a republic is not merely to make a few rich and protect them in their wealth, but to make the entire population happy, contented and prosperous.

Very gladly the employers of intelligence and power must, as Mr. Hearst says, "count upon increasing wages as one of the inevitable conditions of modern life, and make their plans and form their enterprises accordingly."

The employer should be reasonable and just.

And the workers should be reasonable, honest and fair.

We ought to be able to get away from an industrial system of fighting, hatred, battle and strikes.

The worker should be content to give a fair and full day's work for a fair day's wages and fair hours of work.

We should get away from these days when the employer does his best to get the most that he can out of the workman, and give him the least possible; and when the worker's thought and that of his leader is to get the most he can out of the employer and give the least possible.

Workers and employers should treat each other justly, combining as associates, friends and brothers, and GIVE TO THIS NATION AND TO THE FUTURE THE BEST POSSIBLE PRODUCT OF THEIR COMBINED BRAINS AND MUSCLE, ORGANIZED AND APPLIED IN SUCH A WAY AS NOT TO INTERFERE WITH THE HEALTH, THE HAPPINESS, THE MENTAL GROWTH OF THE PRESENT GENERATION, OR THE WELFARE OF THE GENERATIONS TO COME.

DR. PARKHURST

Extravagance

It Is Both a Form of Lunacy and Immorality, He Declares.

Written For The Georgian

By the Rev. Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

THERE is such a thing as extravagance. The word stands for the wild use of money. It is barbarism expressing itself in the unreasoning scattering of dollars.

It is both a form of lunacy and a form of immorality—lunacy, because there is no sense in it; immorality, because it is a contemptuous waste of values.

Poor as Well as Rich.

No man has so much money as to warrant his expending it without a calculation of rational returns, returns accruing either to the enrichment of his own life or the life of someone else.

That is a principle which is being grossly disregarded, and the habits of people are tending more and more strongly in that direction.

This holds of the poor as well as of the rich, although in the case of the former it comes to less conspicuous expression and is therefore less thought of or commented upon.

The money that hundreds of thousands of poor people expend in whisky, beer and tobacco is both idiotic and wicked.

It is idiotic because it helps to keep them poor; it is wicked because it devotes to sheer animalism treasure that ought to go to higher ends, and which might be so utilized as to raise them to a higher level of human value.

"Stage of Vulgarity."

The poor man in Scripture who put his money where it would bring back to him no sensible return was cast into the outer darkness. That is the Bible's way of characterizing a senseless and vicious treatment of assets.

This silly extravagance of the poor is encouraged by the same habit practiced on a more stupendous scale by the rich.

The uncalculating and therefore iniquitous scattering of money by men with large fortunes is one of the features of the times.

As the late D. Willis James once remarked to me, "It has reached the stage of vulgarity."

Passion for luxury has been one of the causes assigned for the sinking of the Titanic; and now we have got the Imperator, and there are more coming.

A quarter of a century ago no one thought of a suite of rooms aboard ship costing above $500.

The figure has mounted now to $5,000. One can secure now, for $500, accommodations just as comfortable, just as well suited to personal and physical requirements, as were obtainable at that figure 25 years ago, and that would leave a margin of $4,500 expended without any rational or righteous return.

"Barbaric and Sinful."

Now, when we consider the wise and necessary uses to which money can be put, the beneficent institutions that need to be supported, the causes of every kind that languish for want of funds, the destitute women and children that go poorly clad and miserably fed and unfed, I say that, when such considerations are taken into account, for a man to lay out $5,000 or any considerable part of that for the sake of luxuries of six days' steamer travel is both barbaric and sinful.

And any man, no matter how much money he has, who has risen above the level of barbarism and sin ought to be ashamed to be publicly advertised as having sacrificed a sum so egregious on the altar of his own personal and animal comfort.

M'KEE, COLE AND HART LOSE OUT

Inefficiency Charged to Heads of Departments — Action Expected Next Week.

By HUGH MILLER.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The ousting of Postmaster McKee, Assistant Postmaster Cole and Superintendent of Mails I. C. Hart, of the Atlanta office, will occur early next week, according to information obtained to-day from the Postoffice Department in such a way there can be little doubt of its authority.

First Assistant Postmaster General Roper, who will be back from Denver early in the week, has announced that he will take up the Atlanta case the first thing on his return and a speedy decision is expected.

The principal charge against the three Atlanta officials, as contained in a report submitted to the Postmaster General by the chief inspector's office, is inefficiency, resulting in a chaotic condition of affairs in the office.

Postmaster Hugh McKee, when charges of alleged inefficiency in the Atlanta postoffice were first brought to light and dispatches from Washington stated that an investigation would ensue, denied ephatically that there was any truth in the accusations.

"If there is any inefficiency in the Atlanta office, I do not know it," said Mr. McKee. "I defy all charges to the effect that I am not competent to judiciously conduct the office. At all times I have every detail under my full control.

"My superintendent of mails, Mr. Hart, is one of the best in the country, and my assistant postmaster, Mr. Cole, is thoroughly competent. My subordinates all report daily to me, and every complaint registered in this office is brought to my personal attention. I have instructed all clerks and officials to bring people to my office who have a grievance.

"The reason I have all men under me report so regularly is because I am held responsible for each man, and I realize that it is solely up to me to see that each man does his duty."

Citizens Approve Pryor Street Work

South Pryor street property owners met at the McCord Grocery Store, Georgia avenue and Pryor street, Thursday night and adopted the plans of the city engineer for widening, grading and underpass work. More than forty property owners were present.

The plans call for a cut of three feet at Bass street and a fill of three feet at Dodd avenue. A cut of fifteen feet will be made at the end of Pryor street for the underpass under the Southern Railway tracks. The street will be widened two feet. Councilman Knight, who was present, volunteered to take the underpass proposition before the county board for co-operation with the Southern Railway.

H. B. Williams, a mill weaver, and George Harris, a truck driver, were bound over under $200 bond by Judge Broyles to a higher court Friday afternoon upon the testimony of J. A. Harris, a detective, that they were the accomplices of T. W. Reeves and R. W. Miller who have been already bound over under $6,000 bond charged with a series of burglaries. Harris secured his evidence from the four men by posing as their 'pal.'

CHATTANOOGA, July 25.—Local officers were notified to-day of the arrest in Risin, Ark., of Edward Langford, of this city on a warrant charging bigamy, sworn out here by his wife, who, with six children, the youngest of whom Lanford has never seen was deserted. Nothing is known here of the wife in Arkansas. Langford did not demand requisition.

CALUMET, MICH., July 26.—Four hundred striking miners today attacked the deputies guarding the Baltic mines south of Houghton, robbed the officers of their stars and drove them from the mine proper.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Secretary of State Bryan will confer to-morrow with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the Mexican situation and his protreaty placing a protectorate over Nicaragua. It was asserted to-day that leaders in the Senate still look with much favor on the suggestion that this country mediate the differences between the warring factions in Mexico.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Detectives to-day had failed to find trace of a thief who stole jewelry valued at $700 from Mrs. Edward F. Dunne, wife of the Governor of Illinois. The theft was committed yesterday afternoon in the rest room of a Chicago department store.

NASHVILLE, July 25.—Charged with passing worthless checks, drawn on Atlanta banks, to which were forged the name of D. D. Martin, copying the name from a check which he got from an Atlanta minister, L. C. Arment, aged 22 years, a young man of good appearance, is under arrest here to-day.

He claims to be from Chicago.

NEW YORK, July 25.—An additional indictdent charging him with using in telephone conversations the names of Speaker Clark of the House of Representatives and Senator Stone of Missouri, was to-day returned by the Federal Grand Jury against David Lamar, whose revelations before the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee already has caused him to be indicted for impersonating lawmakers.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 25.—Mrs. "Lefty" Flynn, the former show girl, has obtained a fererees decree in quiet divorce proceedings against "Lefty" Flynn, famous as a Yelt football player, and a grandson of the late John Moore of Syracuse. The suit was characterized by absolute secrecy. Mrs. Flynn named as co-respondent, a New York chorus girl, whose name all of the attorneys in the action refuse to make public.

WITNESSES FOR FRANK CALLED

Despite Judge's Statement All Is in Readiness, Move for Postponement Is Expected.

Despite the fact that Superior Judge L. S. Roan stated everything was in readiness for the trial of Leo M. Frank next Monday, that State's Attorney Hugh M. Dorsey has announced he will fight a delay, and that the defense actually commenced summoning witnesses, the impression still prevailed Friday that a motion for continuance would be made by the defense when the case is opened.

Attorneys Luther Rosser and Reuben R. Arnold declined flatly to say whether they would permit the trial to proceed without introducing some motion for a postponement, and the report was that witnesses had been summoned to be on the safe side in the event a request to put off the trial is refused.

Frank Is Ready.

The accused man was in the best of health and spirits, according to an announcement from the Tower Friday, and was anxious that the case go to trial. His illness would be the best ground upon which to secure a delay, but the inability of any one of the more material witnesses to come into court would more than likely be considered a sufficient legal reason.

Judge Roan considered it highly improbable that the case would be put off on account of his indisposition. He said that he was in the best of health, and that if any continuance were secured it would be at the request of the State's attorney or the counsel for the accused man.

"I had a slight attack of indigestion Wednesday night," he said, "but I was all right Thursday morning and opened court at Covington. I disposed of three murder trials before noon, and left for Atlanta at 12:30 in the afternoon.

Judge to Require Good Reason.

"To the best of my knowledge the trial of Leo M. Frank will begin next Monday. The only possibility of postponement would be some very good and sufficient legal reason for a continuance advanced by the State or the defense. During the eleven years I have been on the bench I have never postponed a trial on account of being ill, and I will not consider any personal inconvenience next Monday.

"The reason in not drawing the jury earlier was to guard against several of the veniremen leaving the city rather than to serve.

"The date set was in the nature of an agreement, and I would imagine both sides were ready and willing for the trial to go on."

The weather will not play any part in securing a postponement unless the mercury registers 99 degrees or higher. Judge Roan said that he laughingly remarked last Saturday that if the temperature was as high next Monday as it was then he would be glad to continue the case. He said that he had not considered such a proposition seriously, but if it got so hot as to be extremely uncomfortable, he might consider a postponement.

Special deputies were sworn in Friday morning to begin serving the 144 veniremen whose names were drawn Thursday afternoon by Judge John T. Pendleton. It will be late Saturday evening before the last man can be served, according to Deputy Sheriff Plennie Miner, who had charge of the extra men.

The fact that the jury actually was drawn and several had been served Friday morning and that the State's witnesses were already under subpena to be at the courtroom Monday morning was the strongest assurance that the trial would actually begin.

Judge Roan had been averse to putting the State to the expense of serv-

Photographers of U. S. Will Meet in Atlanta Next Year

The Photographers' Association of America, now in convention in Kansas City, voted Atlanta for the 1914 meeting place Friday, according to a dispatch from L. D. Hicks, advertising manager of The Southern Ruralist, No. 118 East Hunter street, who headed a delegation of Atlanta boosters which set out to win the next meet.

"Atlanta won the next convention of the Photographers' Association of America. This will bring 2,000 of the leading photographers of the world to Atlanta next July. Harry Goodhart made a remarkable speech, which carried the convention by storm."

Stricter Slaughter House Laws Urged

Recommendations for the creation of a Department of Banking and another for the supervision of slaughter houses were made by the Banking and Hygiene and Sanitation Committees of the House Friday morning. A favorable passage for both of these bills through the House is regarded as highly probable.

The provision of a department to supervise slaughter houses is to make more complete the fight which has resulted in the prosecution of a number of prominent packing concerns under recent instructions of the Commissioner of Agriculture.

Brooklyn Buys C. Brown, of Billikens

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 25.—Pitcher Charles ("Curly") Brown, one of the best of the Billikens' hurlers, was sold this morning to the Brooklyn Nationals by the St. Louis Browns, to whom Brown belonged. The price was reported as $7,000. The pitcher will be allowed to finish the season with Montgomery.

President Ebbets, of the Brooklyn club, has been here two days settling the deal and looking over his prospective purchase. He professes to see great things in store for the young slabman.

125 Newsies To See Motorcycle Races

There is to be a grand march tonight, beginning at The Georgian's office and ending at the Motordrome, where 125 newsboys are to be entertained as guests of The Georgian at the most spectacular bill the popcop boys have yet presented. By way of refreshments, a half carload of watermelons will be taken off the ice and served to the guests of honor at opportune junctures in the racing.

The parade is to start promptly at 8 o'clock.

DOUBLE BILL STOPPED BY RAIN

Crackers and Billikens Again Forced to Remain Idle on Account of Rain.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 25.—Rain caused a postponement of to-day's double-header between the Crackers and Billikens. The teams started to play the opening game, but after each team had scored two runs in the first inning a heavy downpour forced the umpire to call the combat.

Clark and E. Brown were on the mound.

Welchonce secured a home run with Agler on ahead. Elwert scored the Billikens first run with a timely triple to right. He later scored on a scratch single.

The rain refused to cease at 4:15 and the second battle was also called off. The teams are scheduled to clash in a double-header to-morrow.

Agler walked. Bisland sacrificed. Welchonce hit a line drive to deep right for a hime run, scoring Agler ahead of him. Long was hit by a pitched ball. Alperman out, Elwert to Snedecor, Long going to second. Smith popped to Snedecor. ONE HIT, TWO RUNS.

Manning flied to Welchonce. Wares walked. Elwert tripled to right, scoring Wares. Sloan fanned. Jantzen lined to Clark, too hot to handle which went for a hit, Elwert scored. Knaupp walked. Jantzen and Knaupp work a double steal. Snedecor fanned. TWO HITS, TWO RUNS.

BOSTON, July 25.—Chased for more than 3,000 miles, from Atlanta to Boston, John D. Mattiford, 50 years of age, was arrested here to-day, charged with being a fugitive from justice. Mattiford is charged by the Atlanta police with Kidnaping John A. Barwick, Jr., 5 years old, and his sister, Dorothy T., 9, children of John A. Barwick, of Atlanta.

Mattiford pleaded not guilty in the police court to-day and was held in $1,000 for the Atlanta police.

The police also are looking for Mrs. Barwick, mother of the children, and Mrs. Annie Laurie Jeter, mother of Mrs. Barwick. Mrs. Jeter is also charged with kidnaping the children.

For the past three months Inspectors Dorsey and O'Neal had been searching for Mattiford. He has been trailed all over New England, but escaped. For several weeks Mattiford and Mrs. Barwick were registered at the Clarendon Hotel under the name of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Martin.

Shortly before 10 o'clock to-day they saw Mattiford walking down Columbus avenue alone. Inspector Dorsey approached him, spoke his name and Mattiford turned. He was immediately placed under arrest and taken to police headquarters.

He told Chief McCarr that he did not know where the women or the children are, but he supposed they had gone back to Atlanta.

U. S. and British Split First Davis Cup Play

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

WIMBLEDON, ENG., July 25.—The American tennis team broke even with England in the first day's play for the Davis cup. To the surprise of all, M. E. McLoughlin, the "California flame," lost his match to the veteran Parke, who scored 8-0, 7-5, 6-4, 1-6, 7-5.

R. Norris Williams made up for his partner's disappointing showing by defeating Dixon, 8-6, 3-6, 6-2, 1-6, 7-5.

The doubles match will be played to-morrow.

TENNESSEAN CAUGHT IN CRUSADE ON VICE

Declares That His Arrest Is the Result of a Political "Frame-Up."

NASHVILLE, July 25.—Ex-Governor M. R. Patterson was to-day arrested in a raid on a house in the restricted district.

The proprietress, eight girl inmates and two young men were also arrested. The charges filed against the ex-Governor was loitering about a house of ill-fame. Patterson's friends are incensed over the so-called "frame-up."

The raid was led by Sergeant Longhurst, brother of Sheriff Longhurst, whom Patterson opposed for election.

Friends of Patterson declare that the real motive behind his arrest was that he was here taking a hand in local politics and endeavoring to bring out a municipal ticket against the organization led by Mayor Hillary Howse, because Howse several months ago opposed Patterson's candidacy for United States Senator.

Patterson's home is at Memphis, but during his four years' residence here, while Governor, he took at least a passive interest in local politics. Previous to his unsuccessful senatorial race he had the support of the Howse faction in State contests. Since the break the feeling of antagonism between Patterson and Howse has been keen.

MACON, GA., July 26.—Charging him with obtaining mnoey under false pretense, a warrant was sworn out this afternoon for the arrest of Dr. Bernard C. Goldberg, who gives his address as 400 Atlanta Trust Building. The warrant was issued by Dr. T. M. Sigman, in Justice McCowan's court.

Several days ago Dr. Goldberg came to Macon and advertised that he was organizing a "herd" of the Benevolent Order of Buffaloes here. It is said that he appointed three physicians "sole medical examiners" and obtained a fee from each of them, accepted several membership applications with fees, gave a large order for furniture and took a commission for procuring the contract, and engaged "general counsellor the Southern States" and solicited a fee from him. He is now missing.

His stationery classifies him as "national medical director," with headquarters in Atlanta, fourth floor Atlanta Trust Building. The Atlanta authorities will be asked to arrest him.

TOPEKA, KANS., July 25.—D. M. Mounday was arrested here to-day charged with conspiracy to use the United States mails to defraud.

Mounday was the organizer of the American Sugar Manufacturing and Refining Company of New Mexico and recently filed suit here seeking to have Kansas' "blue sky" law declared invalid, Bank Commissioner Sawyer having declined to authorize Mounday to sell stocks and land contracts of his company.

Many prominent Kansans are connected with the company. Charles Sessions, Secretary of State, and former Senator Charles Curtis are directors.

BILL TO AID PROHIBITION DEFEATED

Senate, 22 to 18, Votes Down Searcy Liquor Measure—Called Blind Tigers' Aid.

A temperance battle, with Senator W. E. H. Searcy's bill making purchasers and sellers of blind tiger whisky equally guilty as the storm center, developed in the Senate Friday. After more than an hour of discussion, in which President Randolph Anderson twice rescued the bill by aligning himself with Senator Searcy's forces, the bill was defeated by a vote of 22 to 18, after an amendment offered by Senator Sweat, which provided that the provisions of the bill do not apply to purchasers of whisky for the purpose of securing evidence, had been lost by a vote of 20 to 10.

Senator G. Y. Harrell started the fight against the bill, declaring that it would be more of an aid to the operation of blind tigers than a preventive.

Called Aid to Blind Tigers.

"The caption of the bill should be changed to read, 'A bill to promote the interests of blind tigers,' he said. "The passage of this bill would absolutely destroy all chances of getting evidence against blind tigers. The best and most common method of apprehending the sellers of whisky is to send a decoy to purchase the liquor with marked money. If you make this decoy a criminal, he will keep his mouth shut and no evidence can be obtained."

Senator Stark made a long speech in favor of the bill, in which he declared that it was directed against the agent of the blind tiger and the traveling blind tiger, rather than against the actual user of the whisky.

Senator Huie, in explaining his action in voting against the bill, said:

"Voting for this bill would place me in the ranks of the fool prohibitionists, and I am not that kind of a prohibitionist!"

Searcy Defends His Bill.

"If I am a fool for supporting the bill," retorted Senator Searcy, the author of the measure, a few minutes later, "I am a fool for Christ's sake!"

Senator Searcy's faction forced action on the bill by voting down three motions designed to delay action on the measure. Senator Harrell's motion that action be postponed indefinitely was voted down almost unanimously. The vote on Senator McNeill's motions that the bill be tabled and that action be postponed until Monday were a tie, but the bill was saved each time by President Anderson, who voted against the motions.

Senator Tarver's bill, giving power to the State Railroad Commission to order the erection of a union station in towns where two or more railroads entered, was passed by the Senate, with amendments which Senator Tarver said were acceptable to the railroad interests.

Railroads Get Safeguards.

These amendments provided that the Commissioners' order should be given with "due regard to the finances of the railroads," and that the stations should be erected "where practicable and in the interest of the public and the railroad companies."

Two bills that are considered important were introduced into the Senate Friday. One, by Senators Sweat, Converse, Rushin, Taylor, Watt and Tyson, provides for the removal of the Georgia Experiment Station to a point in South Georgia, and for the establishment of closer relations between it and the Georgia Agricultural and Mechanical College; the other, by Senator Kelly, is an act to provide a commission form of government for Augusta.

Action on Senator Hixon's "eugenic marriage" bill, which has been favorably reported, was postponed until Monday.

The Senate adjourned at 12:30 until 11 o'clock Monday morning.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

The daily morning prayer of the blind Chaplain of the House of Representatives, the Rev. J. H. Ellis, is a thanksgiving always.

Rather than petitioning for more blessings and more abundant prosperity, the Chaplain devotes by far the greater portion of his supplication in the House to reminding the members of the countless blessings they now enjoy, and for which they should render ungrudgingly their thanks to the Most High.

Not since he began his term of service in the House has the blind Chaplain started a prayer with words other than these, "Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee!" and so on to the end of as simple and as sweet a prayer as ever was delivered anywhere.

The blind Chaplain of the House is a most interesting person. He always is at his post of duty, well in advance of the Speaker's rap for order, and he remains after the House gets down to work from 30 minutes to an hour or more every day.

Mr. Ellis is slight of build, but clear of voice. Few speakers on the floor fill the House so completely as he, and his prayers every morning are given close attention. He is completely blind and has to be led when walking. He is a very lovable man, and the Speaker hardly could have filled the Chaplain's place more acceptably or more sensibly.

The House meets every morning at 9 o'clock now, but there never is a quorum present at roll call.

Try as the House will, it hardly can get itself together before 10, somehow. Members either sleep late, are more or less indifferent to the first 30 minutes or so, or resent being called to work at 9. Whatever it is, the hour of 9 generally finds the House not more than half filled.

After the roll call is finished—unless it is dispensed with, which frequently it is—members drop in and ask that they be recorded as present.

This courtesy generally is accorded them without protest, and it gives the tardy ones considerable leeway in the matter of getting in late and still not having the record recite the circumstance.

Judge Robert Hodges, of Macon, is in Atlanta to-day and spent quite a time in the House and Senate, renewing old acquaintances and looking things over.

Mr. Hodges represented Bibb County in the House several times back yonder—well, not so many years ago after all—and was then one of the best liked and most influential members. He was in the House when his fellow-townsman, Augustus Octavius Bacon, was first named Senator, and took a great part in the work of conferring the honor upon him.

In those days the Legislature elected the Senators, without any sort of primary instructions, and Senator Bacon was named—he was re-elected to a fourth term unopposed a few days since—after a hard fight.

"Bob" Hodges, then serving his first term, was the man who carried the news from the Capitol to the Kimball House.

Judge Hodges has presided over the City Court of Macon for some twelve years, and is regularly renamed without opposition. Indeed, it is extremely doubtful whether Judge Hodges could be defeated for his present office, no matter who undertook the job.

Occasionally Speaker Burwell yanks the House back to business rather abruptly, when it gets negligent or lags in its work.

In passing local measures it is necessary to agree to the report of the committee before a bill may be passed, and this agreement is made upon a verbal division merely.

The other day the Speaker proposed the uninteresting status thus: "Those who favor agreeing to the report of the committee will say 'Aye.'" Nobody said anything.

Burwell whacked the much-abused block of wood in front of him for order, and yelled the status of the House again, and with decided emphasis, moreover.

This time the committee report was agreed to by a chorus of "ayes" that might have been heard to Whitehall street.

Then Burwell smiled, and the House laughed good-naturedly, and there was no more trouble that day.

The county of Barrow was given a temporary setback yesterday, when the Senate, by a margin of four votes, declined to ratify the action of the House committee, the House and the Senate committee in favoring it.

The advocates of Barrow still are very much in the ring, however. The bill will be reconsidered—it takes a majority only of the Senate to do this, and the Senate is for Barrow by a big majority—and then it will go over to the next session.

No more gallant fight ever has been made in the Legislature than the one put up for Barrow. This is the fourth time that plucky community has come to the Legislature, only to be knifed and bushwhacked to death in one chamber or the other. It will come again, however—and eventually Barrow County will be created.

It has the one thing behind it that so many new-county proposals lack—genuine and admitted merit.

HELD IN SHOOTING CASE.

COLUMBUS.—D. D. Bloom, a well-known young business man of Columbus, was bound over to the Superior Court on charges of shooting at another and having a pistol without license, the bond in each case being fixed at $100 by the Recorder.

PRANK IN LODGE INITIATION IS FATAL TO 2

BIRMINGHAM, July 25.—In the presence of 125 members of the secret fraternal order of Moose, in Moose Hall last night, Donald A. Kenny, president of the local Chauffeurs' Union, and Christopher Gustin, an iron molder, met almost instantaneous death from an overshock of electricity received while being initiated into the organization.

Both were young and strong men. Other candidates going through the same initiation before them were not injured.

After Kenny was seen to be sinking and before John P. Abbott, presiding officer, could stop the proceedings, Gustin also had been fatally injured.

Both men died within five minutes, although the lodge physician, Dr. L. V. Neill, was present and lent immediate attention.

The ceremony that proved fatal is the branding one. The candidate stands upon a tilting board with his chest bared. A magneto is connected with his leg by a metal band and chain.

A horseshoe metal Moose emblem is heated red hot before his eyes and a man advances toward him holding the heated iron as if to brand him on the chest.

No Arrests Likely.

This is not done, but the suggestion is made on the candidate's mind that it is through the medium of the application of a rubber emblem while the circuit of the magneto is made complete by the application of the other end to his bare shoulder.

The lodge uses an ordinary magneto, and while weak candidates have never been subjected to this test, no able-bodied man has ever been injured by it heretofore.

Police investigation is being made, but there probably will be no arrests.

Deserting Husbands Refused Citizenship

CHICAGO, July 25.—"Men who desert their wives and refuse to support their families are not entitled to become naturalized citizens," said Judge Petit here when he refused the applications of two men who admitted having left their wives.

Priest, Forced to Take Holy Orders, Released by Pope

ROME, July 25.—The Congregation of the Sacraments has rendered a decision in a case which has lasted for four years, and which has been much discussed in ecclesiastical circles. Twelve years ago a priest named Arena asked to be allowed to give up the priesthood. He pleaded that twelve years ago he had been compelled by his parents to take Holy Orders. He alleged that he obeyed his parents against his will. This was confirmed by several witnesses.

The Congregation of the Sacraments, which was presided over by Cardinal Farrata, decided to cancel the priest's orders. It held that they had been conferred against his will, and were therefore invalid. It recommended that Arena be released from his vows.

The Pope approved the verdict.

Next Encampment Of I. O. O. F. in Macon

ATHENS, July 25.—The Grand Encampment of Odd Fellows which was in session here Thursday broke camp in the afternoon, after electing officers for the next year and selecting Macon as the next meeting place.

The new officers are: Grand patriarch, Robert L. Bramblet, Athens; grand high priest, E. H. Stout, Atlanta; grand senior warden, J. V. Everige, Columbus; grand scribe, W. H. Abbott, Atlanta; grand treasurer, I. O. Teaseley, Alpharetta; grand junior warden, Homer Ashley, Atlanta; grand representative, Chester L. Elliott, Brunswick; past grand patriarch, G. O. Hook, Alpharetta; grand marshal, James H. Grover, Marietta; grand inside sentinel, R. C. Burnham, Savannah; grand outside sentinel, Carl A. Vonderleith, Athens; grand treasurer, Carl A. Vonderleith, Athens.

Cadet's Very Last Kiss Holds Up Big Liner 3 Minutes

NEW YORK, July 25.—"A last kiss, my darling!"

He got it.

Miss Eva Mountrey, of Louisville, Ky., was sailing on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, and her fiance, Augustus Dillon, a West Point cadet, was bidding her good-bys.

"All visitors ashore!" shouted a petty officer near the sweethearts.

"A very last kiss, beloved!" exclaimed Dillon.

"All visitors ashore!" howled a chorus of petty officers and stewards.

"A very, very last kiss, mine own!" begged the cadet.

Chief Officer Moeller interrupted the clinging embrace.

"Young man," said Moeller, "you have held the ship three minutes. Go ashore!"

The Social World

A polo match is to be played at Fort McPherson early in August, probably on the 9th. A group of the officers at the post will form one team, captained by Lieutenant Hornsby Evans. The other team will be composed of two out-of-town players, one from the Augusta polo team, another from the Camden team and two Atlanta men, Lamar Hill and J. O. Seamans.

Atlanta society is interested, as a polo match always is a great society event. The polo matches in the East serve to bring together brilliant assemblages of society folk. While polo is new to Atlanta, many persons have attended polo tournaments in other cities and are initiated into the pleasures of this sport. The polo match at Fort McPherson will be refereed by Major Carthew Yourston, an English officer, who has played polo for 29 years in England and in India.

22 PRIZE PONIES AWAIT VICTORS IN CONTEST

The 22 ponies to be awarded to The Georgian and American contestants are all on hand. Thirteen arrived Thursday, by express, from John G. Mobley's farm, Winnsboro, S. C., and now are with the nine others in the rear of 55 Loomis street.

The baker's dozen of little animals stood the journey well, and, indeed, were frisky when unloaded and passed before the veterinary inspector. They are strangers to the city and seemingly took great interest in the street cars, the pavements and the other sights which were new to them.

Nothing wins now but subscriptions for The Georgian and American, and subscription to the Sunday American count the fastest, on account of the Red Letter Ballots.

By the use of these Red Letter Ballots, a two-year subscription to The Sunday American yields the contestant 4,500 votes, and a one-year subscription 2,000 votes, while even a six-months subscription yields 800 votes. It should be explained that these are not extra votes. The extra votes are included in these totals.

The Red Letter Ballot offer ends Tuesday night. It is not necessary to clip the ballot from the paper to have these votes counted. It is sufficient to write "Red Letter Ballot" in one corner of the blanks with which the contestants all are provided. And there is no limit to the number of these "Red Letter Ballots" which may be voted.

ANDREWS URGED FOR CONSUL TO PARIS

Lower House Unanimously Indorses Retired Atlanta Capitalist and Lawyer's Candidacy.

Walter P. Andrews, retired capitalist and lawyer of Atlanta, has the indorsement of the House of Rrepresentatives for appointment as Consul general to Paris.

A resolution indorsing his candidacy for the place, introduced in the House Friday morning by the Fulton county delegation, and signed by eleven members of the House, was unanimously adopted.

Prospects of Mr. Andrews obtaining the appointment, which is one of the most important in the consular service, are brightening.

Influences are at work in Washington in his behalf, while his friends throughout the State are using their influence to bring Andrews favorably before the eyes of the administration.

ANNOUNCEMENT

One of the Twice-a-Year Sales of Infants' Wear at Half-Price

Comes To-morrow---Junior Department---Third Floor.

There are two days in the course of the three hundred sixty-five that we make such an announcement as the above—the next one will be six months from now.

The sale brings at exactly half-price about every article of infants' wear that is in the slightest degree soiled or mussed.

Here are the long dresses and skirts for baby's first wardrobe; here are short dresses and skirts for tots turning into their first year—machine-made dresses and petticoats, hand-made dresses and petticoats such as a mother herself would make. Also there are machine-made and hand-made cashmere coats, wrappers, sacques and squares; pillow covers; flannel skirts and bootees.

Dresses were priced from $1.00 to $2.00, skirts $1.00 to $6.00, wraps $2.00 to $5.00, sacques 50c to $1.00, flannel squares $1.50 to $5.00, bootees 40c to $1.00.

Deduct just half of these amounts for this sale. The selling starts with the opening of the store, and, to-morrow being a half-day, mothers should not delay—the savings are great, the time is short.

A Half-Day Clearaway of House Dresses and Waists

A Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company clearaway of house dresses and waists is scheduled for the short to-morrow!

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX.

He and Manette See the Suffragette Again, but Neither of Them Notices Her.

JULY 3.—It occurred to me, when Manette and I were tramping home that evening, after the militant suffragette had tried to hold me up, that there was a warning in the incident. I look like a tramp, as she said, and Manette, in spite of her clothes, looks like a princess.

What it is I can not define, but one of her sex can never disguise the fact that she was born to purple and fine linen. She may outlive every natural grace and may be reduced to rags, but there is always an indefinable something that tells of better things in the past. I looked at Manette critically as she trudged ahead of me in the footpath, and this is what I saw: A little bare head with a shock of curls just reaching to her shoulder, for we had had her hair cut short before we left town, and the growth was all new and untamed.

She wore a blue gingham with half the buttons off the back. There were rents in it, and through one rent I caught a glimpse of an exquisitely trimmed petticoat, for Richards had refused to let her darling wear the coarse muslin garments that were best fitted for the occasion. She wore half hose, with tan shoes from which her toes protruded, and her little fat legs were scratched by briars and brambles.

But one could tell by a glimpse that she was not an ordinary child, and I wondered if it was because of the proud little way in which she carried her head, or because of her total unconsciousness of self. "A born aristocrat," I murmured.

Her Beauty.

She looked up at me in laughter at some prank of the pup, and I was struck more forcibly than ever with her most unusual beauty. It wasn't altogether her hair and her eyes, her perfect features and her exquisite coloring; there was a look of her soul shining through, and that is as near as I can express it. If you could see her, Diary, you would understand why I never look at the child without some apprehension. With her beauty and her money, sometimes I wonder if there are enough guardian angels in heaven to keep all the evil-hearted away.

The children that die young belong to us always. Nothing, and no one, may ever estrange them from us. They are ours forever, and that, alas, is something no one can say of the child that lives to grow up.

There is comfort in the thought, and it is not the only comfort, for we learn as we grow older that the child that is gone is spared much, and is SAFE. I know life would be dreary and almost impossible without Manette, but every day I grow more reconciled to the loss of Elizabeth. She was happy all her life. The little girl trudging along in the path ahead of me is happy now, but I will not always be with her.

I suppose it was this constant apprehension that led me to call Mrs. Allen to the porch after supper and tell her that I am not the poor clerk she imagines, resting from overwork, but one of the detested millionaire class, resting from excessive luxury.

I told her my name and she laughed. She said she had guessed it the second day. No one, she said, could look at Manette and think for a moment that she had been brought up in denial. She could not explain it, except that the child was always so unconscious of her clothes.

"She rises above them," she said, and it made me very proud.

I have always had the theory—I wonder how it will evolve—that if Manette is accustomed to the best as a child, she will never strut like a peacock when she is grown. She will always be unconscious of her price marks.

To the Manner Born.

She will never build conversation on the price of her gown, nor attempt to erect pride and station on the cost of a hat. She will never, and of that I am sure, remember that her clothes cost more than the clothes of her associates and show it in her manner. I said something to this effect to Mrs. Allen, and her reply gave me a new viewpoint.

"She won't remember what things cost," she said, somewhat dryly, "because she has never had to earn the price. The girl who stints herself in necessities for a month that she may afford a $20 gown will never forget to the day of her death what the gown cost. Unconsciousness of clothes is a good trait, but Manette's unconsciousness will be largely due to ignorance. When one pays the price, one remembers."

I did not seem to make her quite understand what I meant, and neither did I understand her. I wanted, I explained, for the child to grow up with a soul above ribbons.

"And yet," she replied, "whoever has charge of her wardrobe takes care that she has more ribbons than any child her age should have."

I agreed to that with a sigh. When a little girl is transformed by her years into a peacock, instead of a thinking, helpful woman, it is her mother who is to blame, never her father. Manette has no mother, but her nurse and her Aunt Sallie make her attire the joy of their existence.

I, who take the place of a father to her, would prefer that she never hear the subject of her dress, but those who take the place of her mother make her attire the first consideration. That, Diary, is a fond weakness of all mothers.

I gave Mrs. Allen Mrs. Spencer's address and also that of Richards. "It has occurred to me," I said, "that if anything happened to me, either address will be useful to you."

She found considerable amusement in the thought of what an exodus to the woods there would be of young women if it were known that such a wealthy unattached bachelor were spending his summer there. "They would chase you harder," she said, "than the pup chases the rabbits."

She Sympathizes.

She laughed so heartily I asked if she would enjoy the sight, and she replied that she wouldn't.

"I feel sorry for any unmarried man these days," with some spirit. "Either the women are the mercenary kind, hunting him down for his money, or they are the suffrage kind, hunting him down like a policeman hunts criminals. I often tell my husband it is good he got me thirty years ago, for there isn't much choice of women these days."

From one of their own sex! Had I said it I would be mobbed.

July 6—I have not heard the last of that woman who thought I was a kidnaper of children. She came riding to our picnic spot again to-day, and this time she rode alone.

Manette and I were sitting on a log fishing. At least I was fishing. She had her shoes and stockings off, her little skirts tucked up, and was paddling around at the water's edge, digging up soft black mud, which she carried to the shore and made into mud pies, a big log serving her as kneading board, or mixing board. I don't really know if pies are mixed or kneaded.

The suffragette tied her horse to a sapling and came to where we were thus occupied. I did not turn my head, and Manette, obeying whispered instructions from me, went on with her culinary work without heeding her.

Meg (five years old, was overjoyed over the recent addition to the family and rushed out of the house to tell the news to a passing neighbor.

"Oh, you don't know what we've got in our house to-day?"

"What is it?"

"It's a new baby brother!"

"You don't say so. Is he going to stay?"

"I think so"—very thoughfully. "He's got his things off."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"What's that?" he muttered, in an undertone. "There it is again."

He blew out the lantern and stepped to the entrance of the corridor that led to the armory.

"Sh—h—! Listen! There's a light, Rusty. It's coming this way! It's coming, Rusty! Remember the high sign—and don't sneeze!"

He sprang back into the hall and concealed himself in the angle by the picture of the old Don. Presently the faint swinging beams of a lantern were thrown down the corridor and there was the sound of soft footsteps and low voices. Jarvis raised his cocked pistol and covered the doorway as the shadows told him the invaders were about to appear in view. Three figures appeared in the doorway and a girl's voice, familiar to his ears, said:

The Princess and Dolores, with Maximo as their guide and light-bearer, came down the broad stairs into the hall.

"We must go on, Dolores!" exclaimed the Princess in a strained voice. "We must find him before it's too late! Oh, I will never forgive myself for sending him to this dreadful place!"

"But there's a fire!" cried the veteran. "They've been in this room!"

"Perhaps"—the Princess shuddered—"they have already been killed."

Her Brother Safe.

Jarvis, ashamed for having listened too long and his heart beating with what he had heard, stepped forward into the light of the lantern.

"Your Highness!" he exclaimed. The girl made a sound that was half a cry of alarm and half a prayer of thanksgiving, and held out both hands to him.

"Mr. Warren! Mr. Warren! Thank God, you are still alive!"

"Your Highness," he protested, still holding her hands. "It's madness for you to come to this place! How did you get here?"

"Heaven only knows!" She shivered as if with the memory of her experiences. "We have been wandering through this dreadful place for hours—calling to you—trying to find you before it was too late."

"Too late! What do you mean?"

"My brother is safe—thank God!"

"Where is he?" demanded Warren, quickly.

"On his way to get help from the King."

"Where has he been?"

"Right here in this castle, a prisoner—since the day he entered."

"A prisoner?"

"Yes. He succeeded in making his escape to-night and has gone straight to the King for help?"

"But how did you learn all this?" he inquired, bewildered.

"From Robledo, senor," answered Dolores, as the Princess did not reply at once. The girl's voice was low and trembled slightly. "Your bullet went straight, senor. He is dying. He has confessed to the Holy Father. I promised to be with him at the end."

She turned her face away and Jarvis saw that she was weeping.

"The end?" he echoed vaguely—and then he understood. He walked over to her, stood beside her awkwardly, trying to think of something to say. He found it difficult to apologize to a girl for killing her lover, especially when the lover happened to need killing a lot.

"Then—you—" he stammered, "I—I—didn't know—I might have—I'm sorry."

Better So.

The girl raised her tear-stained face and met his gaze bravely.

"It is better so, senor," she said.

"Oh, Dolores—my poor child!"

The Princess put her arms around the girl and she sobbed on her lady's shoulder. "Maximo, take her back to the inn as quietly as possible."

When they were gone the Princess urged Jarvis to follow.

"Oh, Mr. Warren, let us leave this dreadful place!"

"Not me, Your Highness," was the grim and inelegant reply. "You go with them and wait for me at the inn."

The Princess shook her head determinedly, though her face was pale and there were lines to tell of the long strain.

"You can not persuade me again, Mr. Warren. I will remain."

"Please!" he begged, getting possession of her hands once more, and without a struggle.

"Return with us then."

"Your Highness," he said gravely, "I promised to solve the mystery of this castle and to find the treasure. My task is an easy one now."

"Then," she rejoined quickly, "I will share it with you."

He laughed silently at the neat manner of the trap in which he was caught, but he looked down at her with something more than amazement in his eyes.

"And you groped your way through this old castle to find me?" he said softly. "You are game!"

The Princess raised her eyes to his. "You faced death perhaps, for me."

"You're trembling!" he cried with sudden concern. "You're frightened—you're cold—your hands are cold!—Come over here." He drew her toward the dying blaze of the fire. "You must have been scared to death crawling through the blackness."

She closed her eyes and shivered and he pressed the hands a little tighter than was necessary, if the object was merely to aid circulation.

The Sneeze.

"Every nerve in my body is on edge with the happenings of this dreadful place," she confessed brokenly and tried in vain to keep back the tears.

"Oh, don't cry," he pleaded in alarm, and then suddenly changed his tone to one at once light and tender: "Go on then—cry! Cry some more. Just forget that you are a princess and cry. That's it—that's fine! I'll round up this spook to-night for good—and then the vassal's task is done. His fate is in your hands, Highness." She ceased crying suddenly to look up into his face. "Don't send me away," he begged. "I've loved you from the first and always shall love you. I'm no Prince or Duke," he added with whimsical pathos, "I'm just a plain man—and all the man in me cries out, 'I love you'—Don't send me away!"

He felt her trembling and for an instant she seemed to lean against him. But she shook her head.

"You must go."

"You're going to send me away!"

"Yes. You must leave Spain. Your life would not be safe here."

He drew a breath of relief that was like the wind in the forest. At the same moment there was another sound that was somewhat like a far-off tree falling in the wind.

"What was that?" exclaimed the girl with a start.

"Oh, that! That was Rusty," he smiled.

"That would frighten any one."

"I figured that I might need a ghost," he explained, pointing to the armored servitor, "but Rusty disobeyed orders. Rusty, I told you not to sneeze!"

"Dat was somebody else, Massa Warren," was the solemn and unexpected protest. "I swears to goodness I didn't sneeze."

Warren's revolver was in his hand and a wild light of triumph in his eyes.

"Mr. Warren!"

"Don't move! Your Highness," he cried, raising the weapon and leveling it at the old grandee, "I've got your ghost at last!" He raised his voice. "There is some one behind that picture! Come out!—or I'll shoot you full of holes!"

Caught!

For a moment there was intense silence. Then:

"Don't shoot!"

The voice, a familiar one, came from the wall—the picture swung out in its frame and his Exalted Highness, the Duke of Alva, stepped down on to the floor.

The Princess smothered a cry of amazement and Jarvis smiled grimly.

"Your Excellency, you are a long way from Madrid."

The Duke eyed him with contempt.

"Madrid! You fool, you have fallen right into my trap!" He turned to the Princess with all the assurance of a protecting friend.

"What I have done has been for your sake, Maria. I purposely deceived him so that I might get here ahead of him and watch. See," he pointed to the mantel, "there are his tools and you yourself interrupted him at his work."

The consummate insolence and assurance of his enemy almost daunted the young man. And in the next breath he half lost the battle by permitting himself to argue.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

CAUGHT AT LAST

"MR. WARREN!" "DON'T MOVE! YOUR HIGHNESS," HE CRIED, RAISING THE WEAPON AND LEVELING IT AT THE OLD GRANDEE. "I'VE GOT YOUR GHOST AT LAST!" HE RAISED HIS VOICE. "THERE IS SOMEONE BEHIND THAT PICTURE! COME OUT!—OR I'LL SHOOT YOU FULL OF HOLES!"

FOR A MOMENT THERE WAS INTENSE SILENCE. THEN: "DON'T SHOOT!" THE VOICE, A FAMILIAR ONE CAME FROM THE WALL—THE PICTURE SWUNG OUT IN ITS FRAME AND HIS EXALTED HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF ALVA STEPPED DOWN ON TO THE FLOOR.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

THEY ALWAYS TELL.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Some time ago I was introduced to a young man whom I rather like. I have gone out to different places of amusement with him.

Now, he has often wanted to kiss me, but I wouldn't allow him to. He is going out of town for some time and says he wants to kiss me before going. Shall I allow him to? L. M.

No man should kiss and tell, but so many do that one little farewell kiss, given in the name of friendship, is sure to be misunderstood and told of. Do you not know, my dear, that the kiss that is refused is always the sweetest? Refuse him and he will always want that kiss, and seek to win your love that he may have it.

DON'T TRY.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young girl of 19 and have a brother who takes me to dances and the theater. I have no chance to find a lover, because the men all think my brother is my sweetheart. What would you advise me to do to make them understand? L. M.

My dear, if these men were attracted by you, the sight of a man as your escort would not keep them away. On the contrary, it would serve as an incentive to them to make your acquaintance.

Instead of regarding your brother as an obstacle, be glad that you have a brother as devoted and kind. And don't worry about that belated lover, for I am sure he is on his way.

WAIT A FEW YEARS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 27 and am in love with a young lady of 17, but she does not seem to care for me. What can I do to gain her love? P. B.

She is too young to be troubled by love. Prove your love is unselfish, and for her best good, by keeping it a secret to yourself until she has grown up.

Things Worth Remembering

An electric voting machine is to be tried in the Austrian Chamber of Deputies. Each member will have two electric buttons on his desk. On the wall opposite the President's chair an indicator is fixed, consisting of 516 glass tablets. When a vote is recorded they show either a white or a red light, and members can check the accuracy of their votes. Names are shown on the tablets if required.

Ants can stand extremes of heat and cold. Forty-eight hours' exposure to frost will not kill them, and one sort has been observed to build its nest in chinks in a blacksmith's forge.

Thrushes don't take much sleep in summer. They rise soon after 3 and don't go to bed till 9.

Tomtits are passionately fond of suet. A lump hung in a tree will soon be found by them and devoured.

Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THERE was no one whose faith in the printed word was greater than Daysey Mayme Appleton's.

If, when sitting on the cool porch at twilight, she caught a glimpse of a heading, "How to Keep Cool," in the newspaper, she invariably went into the warm house, lighted the lamp and sat under its hot rays while she read it.

Her father gave her a weekly allowance, and with it she bought at least one, and sometimes two, books on How a Girl May Save Money. She didn't save as much as the girls who hadn't such faith in the printed word, but she didn't see why.

When her mother left her in charge of the kitchen for two weeks, she spent the first week's allowance on books telling How to Feed Four on Six Dollars a Week, and had to ask her father for more money the third day. And he was so unappreciative he grumbled about it!

But all this faith is now a thing of the dead, dead past. Daysey Mayme won't believe anything she sees in print these days, if it is nothing more than "Heat Before Serving" on a can of baked beans.

The lost this beautiful faith through following the advice of the New York clergymen who have decided to demand health certificates as a prerequisite to marriage. It would be humiliating, she thought, to march up the church aisle in white silk and orange blossoms, and have the preacher refuse to perform the ceremony because a grandmother on the bridegroom's side once had a conniption fit. She would protect herself from this mortification by getting a clean bill of health before the altar was reached. She would make all necessary inquiries during the courtship; that her best beloved could prove he was in perfect health she had no doubts.

She had memorized forty-seven adjectives expressive of admiration, and when her lover presented her with a box of candy she used forty-three on the first gumdrop. Such appreciation delighted him, and he asked her to marry him. Surely a girl who could so highly appreciate a gumdrop would never underestimate the value of a man!

Daysey Mayme's first impulse was to grab him; then she remembered the printed word.

"Was there ever one in your family who suffered from neurasthenia?" she asked. "Any dandruff, Bright's disease, rheumatism, ricketts, glanders, autoxenia, bunions or corns? Have you or your ancestors ever had anything cut out, and how much? Of what did your great-grandfather on your mother's side die, and did——"

But the young man heard no more. He gave one wild whoop and fled.

"I'd have married him if he had the whole doctor's book ailing him," sobbed Daysey Mayme, "and now the other girls will never believe I had the chance."

What Dame Fashion Is Offering

For the Season.

ILLUSTRATED on the left-hand side is an attractive cornflower blue charmeuse gown very suitable for wearing at Hurlingham or Ranelagh. The skirt drapery is graceful, the charmeuse being combined with velvet-embroidered voile de soie. The sleeves are long, the wrists and neck being finished with lace frills. The central figure is carried out in a striking effect of blue and gold brocade. Lace falls from the high waist line to the center of the skirt and meets with the draped folds of the skirt. The corsage is of white lace over white chiffon. Japonica colored charmeuse is used for the right-hand model and makes a very useful gown for afternoon wear. The long sleeves are put into the shoulders with a piping; the cuffs are finished with five small buttons, the same decoration in a larger size being carried out on the bodice and skirt.

The charmeuse and ruffles are of white tulle.

One Woman's Story

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER VIII.

PRIDE and an instinctive stoicism kept Mary Danfroth's pale face impassive as she listened to her father's agitated announcement. An iron hand seemed to be gripping her throat and stifling her. She steadied herself and faced her parents as she drew away from her father's encircling arm. He still held the paper in his trembling hand. Beside him was his wife, aghast and silent, her thin fingers nervously twisting the handkerchief she held.

The girl spoke quietly and steadily: "Mr. Craig may not have been hurt, you know," she reminded her father. "The first reports of accidents are often exaggerated."

She turned away and went down the hall to her own room, closing her door behind her. She took off her hat and put it away, then lifted the books from her dressing table, on which she had just laid them, and arranged them on her desk. All these actions she performed with care, yet she moved as in a dream. She stood, looking about her as if searching for some other duty to perform, but, finding nothing, suddenly flung herself on her bed and lay there, silent, staring wide-eyed into the gathering dusk.

At the end of a half hour her mother knocked timidly at the door.

"May I come in, Mary?" she asked in a low voice. "Are you asleep?"

The girl drew herself to a sitting posture on the edge of her bed.

"Come in, mother," she said, dully. "No, I haven't been asleep. I was just lying down and—thinking."

"The parent laid a cool hand on her daughter's forehead.

"Poor little girl!" she murmured. "Poor little girl! I know this news was a terrible shock to you."

Mary stirred irritably under her mother's touch. "Of course, it was a shock," she said coldly. "It is always terrible to hear of accidents of that kind." She paused, then steeled herself to utter what she would not acknowledge was a deliberate falsehood. "But I have been thinking it might have been much worse. Suppose there had been on that train someone whom we really cared for."

Mrs. Danforth looked in silence at the speaker; then, bending over, kissed her and left the room. Mary sat for a moment longer motionless on the side of her bed. Then she bowed her face upon her hands and closed her eyes.

Dinner that night was a dismal affair. The gloom of the accident oppressed all minds. Mr. Danforth was nervous and talked of nothing but the wreck, inveighling against the carelessness of the railroad officials, the indifference corporations showed for human life, and explaining how the disaster might have been avoided—dwelling on the subject until Mary felt as if she could bear it no longer.

When the meal was at last over, Mary, remarking briefly that she must go back to her studying, went to her own room again. Her parents remained at the table, chatting, while the man of the house smoked his post prandial cigar.

"I am glad that Mary doesn't take this news any more deeply to heart," remarked the father with masculine obtuseness. "I was afraid that she was beginning to think too much of Craig and that if he was hurt or killed it must break her all up."

His wife shook her head with the scorn that a woman always shows for a man's lack of perception.

"She feels it more than she knows herself," she remarked enigmatically.

"Bosh!" exclaimed Mr. Danforth. "Mary isn't the kind to keep such a trouble as that to herself. Of course se liked the chap—and she is distressed to think that he may have been injured, or—worse. But you told me yesterday that you fancied she was beginning to care a good deal for him. She wouldn't be so calm if she did. She regards him only as a pleasant acquaintance."

In her own room Mary bent over her books and tried to study. She attacked the preparation for to-morrow's recitations with a determination to banish all other matters from her mind. "Anything to keep from thinking!" she whispered to herself. "This suspense is awful—but it may be better than to know the truth." A lump of ice seemed to be pressing upon her heart, but she worked on.

It was late when she extinguished her light, yet dawn was graying her windowpanes before she fell into a troubled slumber.

Her eyes were heavy when he dragged herself into the dining room that morning. Her father was opening the morning paper which lay beside his plate. With a sickening contraction of her throat the girl watched him scan the first page of the sheet. Suddenly he started to his feet.

"Hear this!" he exclaimed, excitedly. "'Texan Hero of Railroad Wreck; Gordon Craig Rescues Three Women From Burning Pullman; Is Himself Unhurt!'"

Mrs. Danforth uttered a low cry of alarm, and at the sound the reader dropped his paper and sprang forward. Mary had slipped quietly from her chair to the floor. She had fainted.

The parents' eyes met in a significant look as they both bent over the prostrate girl.

"I told you so!" said the mother gravely.

To Make a Hit With Women

By Dorothy Dix

A LOVELORN youth writes me a pathetic letter saying that he is persona non grata with the fair sex, that girls do not care for his society, and the ungrateful minxes turn their backs upon him and talk to other men in the very instant they are devouring the candy he brought them, and wearing the violets on which he squandered his good money. This state of affairs greatly distresses him, and he wants to know why he isn't popular, and how he may become a winner with women.

Let us see if we can help him.

Women differ from men in this respect, that looks do not count. It does not matter whether a man is handsome or not. Indeed, very few women care for beauty in the opposite sex. It is a poaching on their own preserves that they resent. Also it requires them to became flatterers instead of the flattered, for the vanity of the vainest woman that ever lived is as water unto wine compared to the vanity of a man who is a living picture, and who knows it—and expects to be told of it.

It is worth bearing in mind that almost without exception the men who were the great heart smashers of history were not only plain of face, but some of them grotesquely hideous. So no man need despair on account of his lack of pulchritude when he wants to take a hand at the game of hearts.

He Should Shave.

But where mere regularity of features in a man counts for little in attracting a woman's fancy, a man should pay much attention to his clothes and his grooming. Nothing on earth, but the grace of God, keeps a woman in love with a man with a two days' stubble of dirty beard on his face. Married women stand this because they can't help themselves; but no girl wants a slovenly, untidy man, who looks as if he needed to be run through the laundry, hanging about her. All the knocking about the word "dude" comes from masculine lips. No woman joins in that chorus. On the contrary, she feels that the man who comes into her presence ill-clothed, dirty, neglected looking, not only shows disrespect for her, but indicates that he lacks judgment, industry and progressiveness. For that is exactly what being ill-dressed now means.

Another thing that women like, and it is an attraction that any man can acquire, is a certain savoir faire that makes him equal to any situation. A woman likes a man to know how to offer her a chair, to help her on with her wraps, to order a little dinner. And she hates with unspeakable loathing the fellow who is always making scenes in public, who gets in rows with the theater usher over a mistake about the seats, or the street car conductor about the change, or who sits up like a graven image of wrath every time anybody drops in while he is calling.

"Chump," says the girl to herself, "he hasn't got enough sense to know only the ignorant have to fight to get their rights."

Women like generous men, but even girls have a contempt for men who spend more than they can afford. It is not the youths who waste all their substance on bonbons and theater tickets and violets who are the most popular with the fair sex. Every girl has what she calls her "candy beau," but she seldom marries him. The best way to touch a girl's heart is not by upsetting her digestion.

An important point to remember here is that the man who would curry favor by means of gifts must give discreetly. A woman would rather have a present that cost 5 cents if it represented some especial taste or fancy of hers than one that cost $50 if it was something that had no personal significance.

Don't Be a Clam.

In conversation, cultivate a happy medium. Be neither a continuous monologue performer nor yet a clam. Before you take the floor and devote hours to expatiating on how you can keep books or play ping-pong or take snapshots, be sure the girl is really interested in you. After a woman is in love, she can sit entranced for days listening to a man tell about the kind of collar button he wears, but if she isn't in love, a steady stream of personal reminiscences gets on her nerves, and she wants a change. Besides she desires to talk about herself.

For pity's sake, though, help out with the conversation. From the time a girl is old enough to understand anything she is taught that her chief end in life is to entertain man, and everywhere you go you can see her conscientiously at work trying to do it. Every mother's daughter of us knows what it is to labor, and perspire, and toil, trying to make conversation with some man who is just as unresponsive as a store dummy and as silent as the Sphinx. It isn't a fair division of labor, and if a man wants to see true gratitude let him chip in and help roll the conversation ball along.

"Be bold, be bold, be not too bold." Women hate a timid man, and they despise the one who takes it for granted that he has only to throw the handkerchief to have every girl scramble for it.

Learn how to pay compliments as if you mean them. Don't apply flattery with a trowel. Few women are fools. Don't tell a woman the first time you see her she is the ideal you have been seeking for many years. Seven hundred other idiots have told her that before.

Don't quote sentimental poetry to a girl. It always makes her want to giggle.

Don't give in too much to a woman. If she has good sense she won't want you to sacrifice your taste or principles, and, if she is unreasonable, she will respect you for mastering her.

Finally, beloved—and if you forget all the rest remember this—don't stay too long when you go to call. More men queer themselves right here than they do anywhere else. No living human being is entertaining for more than 30 minutes at a time or endurable for more than two hours at a stretch. In that time every man can say everything he has got to say worth hearing, and if he lingers along until the clock begins to yawn in his face, he is simply defying fate and inviting disaster. Many a good impression is spoiled by too much of it.

And when you get up to go, go as if you were fired out of a gun. Don't linger for tender farewells and last words. Most girls wear shoes three sizes too small for them, and when a man keeps one standing on the doorstep while he makes his adieus she isn't saying, like Juliet: "I could say good-by, good-by, 'til it be morning." On the contrary, she is regretting that all the stories about papa's boot and the swift waft out are fiction instead of fact, and she would be willing to pay out good money to anybody who would accelerate Romeo's descent of the steps.

Of course, no general rules can be laid down for winning the fancy of the fair sex. What has been said pretends to be no more than the most elementary facts, but a guarantee goes with each suggestion that it will work.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

I HAVEN'T quite made up my mind yet whether Bobbie shud lern a trade or a professhun, sed Ma to Pa yesterday. Sumtimes I think it wud be nice if he cud lern a trade, & aggenn I think a trade is kind of commonplace. A professhun is so professhunal, sumhow, so distinguished, sed Ma.

I guess there are a lot of yung lawyers in the big cities that doant see anything vary professhunal about a professhun, sed Pa. If I were a yung man aggenn, Pa sed, I wud a lot rather work steddy at a trade than profess at a professhun. Bobbie, what do you want to be?

I toald Pa thare was three things & I dident know wich one of the three I wanted to be the moast, a pitcher like Dent, or a elevator boy, or a poet.

Pitchers and poets are born, not made, sed Pa, & a elevator boy isent any kind of job for you wen you grow up. If I thought you cud be a poet like me or a pitcher like Dent, sed Pa, I wud tell you by all meens go ahed & try to be one or the other, but thare ain't many Dents & thare ain't many me's, sed Pa.

Dear me, sed Ma, & wen did you beecum grate?

Dident I rite that poem that I red at the bankwet the other nite wen I was toastmaster, sed Pa, and dident all the men thare say that it was the work of a geenyus?

The men was kind of enthused too much, I guess, sed Ma. I guess that a certain amount of champagne will make men stand for almost anything in liter-ature. Doant talk to me about that poem, sed Ma. If you call that art, you are a blacksmith. I found two of the verses in yure coat pocket after the bankwet, Ma sed, & I must say that you are no Milton.

I tell you the poem met with grate applause, sed Pa.

& you remember what I jest toald you about champane, sed Ma. Bobbie, she sed to me, if you think this is good poetry, you are a chip of the old block. Listen:

All brethren we stand together to-nite
Where all the lites are shining brite.
Met here in friendship's strong embrace
We can look each other in the face
& know that all of us is men,
Wich is a good thing now & then.
The world needs men like us to fight
For truth & the eternal right
& the reason eech one of us thrives
& supports ourselfs and our wives
Is beekaus of that brain power we possess
That is the cause of our grate success.
So all of us brethren gathered here
Have little if anything to fear,
Jest so we keep on working hard
& continued success will be our reward.

Now, Bobbie, sed Ma, I want you to be a honest littel boy. If you had yure choice between beeing a elevator boy & that kind of a poet, wich wud you be?

I wud be a elevator boy, I toald Ma. The hours is easier.

New Serial Story Begins Monday

"Behind Closed Doors," one of the most exciting mystery stories ever written, will begin Monday on The Georgian's magazine page. This story is by Anna Katharine Green, whose detective yarns are so popular.

Be sure you read the opening installment—you'll certainly read every succeeding one. The serial will be finely illustrated.

Superfluous Hair Truths

Stop Experimenting

There are but few depilatories sold. You think there are hundreds because you have used the same identical preparations under several different names. This is easily explained. Women stop using

So-Called Hair Removers

when they learn that they are harmful. Therefore, they can not be sold under the same name for any length of time. Then the identical, worthless, harmful concoctions are given new names and advertised again as totally different preparations to who innocently buy them over and over again under different names, and this will continue as long as women are so unwise as to experiment with unknown, so-called hair removers.

De Miracle

Has Stood the Test of Time

De Miracle has been sold as De Miracle for over eleven years, and its name has never been changed. It is acknowledged the world over by eminent authorities as the one safe, perfected hair remover, therefore it is the only depilatory you can use without experimenting.

Leaves No Tell-Tale Smell

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor whatever. On the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor, an offensive, tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours.

Avoid Permanent Disfigurement

by refusing substitutes. If your dealer will not supply you send $1.00 direct. Free information how to determine which depilatories are harmful and worthless sent in plain, sealed envelope.

EVANS' DEFEAT MEANS A NEW WESTERN CHAMP

CHICAGO, July 25.—In the semi-finals for the championship of the Western Golf Tournament to-day Edward P. Allis, of Milwaukee, will be matched with Robert A. Gardner and Warren K. Wood will oppose Joseph C. Leduc.

Two surprises were furnished the gallery at yesterday's games, when "Ned" Allis, the Harvard star, defeated Charles Evans, Jr., the champion, and Warren K. Wood, who missed being champion twice, each time by 1 point, was compelled to play 39 holes to defeat Frazer Hale, of Omaha.

The pill of defeat so often administered by Champion Evans was swallowed by him when Allis defeated him, 4 and 3, in the third round.

Allis Stood Pace Well.

At one time in the afternoon, after Evans had won the sixth and seventh holes, it looked as if the champion might at least produce a tight finish, but Allis never cracked under the strain and kept on the even tenor of his way.

A stiff wind from the northeast was sweeping the course when the champion and his opponent teed off. Evans had the honor and hooked his drive close to a trap. Allis pitched his second 20 feet from the cup and holed his put. Evans, whose second was to the right of the pin, took one more.

Allis sliced his drive for the second hole into a bush and chopped out short, but to offset this mistake Evans, who had driven 260 yards, pitched his second into the bunker guarding the green, and the result was a half in five.

Both were on the third green in two, Allis being 30 feet short and Evans 15 feet to the right of the pin. They halved in 4. Allis hooked his next drive to the rough, but his second jumped the bunker guarding the green and ran to 20 feet from the hole. Evans took three to reach the green and ran his approach close to the hole.

Allis Makes Great Shot.

Allis stymied himself on his third and then made one of the most remarkable shots of the match. Evans' ball was too close to permit of a jump shot, and the boy played a follow billiard shot, his ball knocking Evans' ball a little to the side of the cup and following in, giving him the hole 4-5 and putting him 2 up.

The home hole was won by Allis, 5-6. Allis, after hooking his drive, made a fine second, short of the creek. Allis was 3 up at the interval.

A good start in the afternoon meant a lot to Evans, but his chances went tobogganing when Allis won the first 3 holes, and from that point on it was only a question if the chunky little Milwaukeean could keep himself at concert pitch, as with a lead of six holes he could claim membership in the "I should worry" class.

JOHNNY COULON STARTS WORK TO GET IN SHAPE

CHICAGO, July 25.—Physicians who have been handling Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion of the world, have released him and John will start on to-morrow to get himself back into shape for some title contests. He is packing his trunks to-day and on to-morrow will start for Georgian Bay, where he plans to rough it for a month or six weeks. Then he will return, go westward and close his match with Kid Williams. The Logan Square battler believes he will be ready to don the gloves about the middle of September.

"I'm going to camp out and live as close to nature as I can. Rough it will be my style for a month or six weeks, and then I'll be ready to enter the training grind. My physician has released me and says after a trip into the country I will be ready to box again. I am eager to get back into the game, principally to show that I am not all in. I have been censured for my delay in the Williams fight, but I knew I wasn't right, and I wasn't going to disappoint a hungry fight crowd by a poor showing," said John to-day.

WOLGAST AND JONES PART; WILL MANAGE OWN AFFAIRS

He and Jones, who acted as his manager during Wolgast's successful ring days, have separated—not that there is any trouble between them, but Ad feels he needs no manager now that he is no longer the title holder. Ad said to-day:

"Until I win the championship back, I will be able to attend to all my matchmaking myself. If at any time I make a good match and need Jones' assistance, he will be the man to attend to my affairs. I also want it understood that my old friend and manager and I are still the best of friends and pals, and if at any time I can make good again, Tom Jones will be manager.

Rain Tangles Line on Big Series

Volunteers Bob Up for Repairs

By O. B. Keeler.

BY way of giving our heroes a lift on every possible turn of fortune's wheel during the present hectic little road trip, it rained yesterday in Montgomery.

Diagnosis of this seemingly simple weather note informs us (1) that two games will be played this afternoon, unless (2) it rains some more; which means (3) that the two-ply grapple probably will end in a dog-fall, so that (4) the series will have to be decided to-morrow.

Assuming it doesn't keep on raining.

Most double-headers are split. It is hard for a good club to win two games in one afternoon. It is nearly as hard for a decently poor club to lose two. So it is rather unlikely that the present series will be as decisive as it looked before the bottom fell out.

NAMING NO NAMES.

Some of our most erudite little Sages
Daily rebound from this mystery vex'd:
How is it a ball club that cleverly gauges
Attack and defense, and consistently rages
Along in one game, till the praise clutters pages,
Turns right around and immodestly stages
An Opera Bouffe in the Next?

* * *

CAMPING the station of the Nashville Volunteers in the Southern League standing doesn't offer much enlightenment concerning the stalwart efforts now making by the management to cheer up that club.

For the present season, that is.

The Vols are more than a dozen games behind the leaders, and the day of miracles is popularly reported to be past.

And yet the wires buzz with rumors and well-grounded reports of deals by which one William Schwartz is adding to the power of his payroll, and, incidentally, to the tax upon the exchequer.

The latest noise sounds like Melville Brannon, of the spectacular college brand of slab-worker, and the idea is that Schwartz has snared him away from J. Dobbs and that the Tennessee Industrialist student soon will inhabit a Nashville uniform.

Pitcher Boland, of the recently exploded Interstate League, has been turned over to the Nashville club, and is expected to succeed Jack Brackenridge. Dave Bunting, from the same circuit, also is expected to join the rookies, but probably won't play this season. Schwartz is still dickering for "No-Hit Babe" Adams, of Savannah, and Hoffman was added to the roster at a considerable expense a short time ago.

So it looks as if Sir William might be looking forward to 1914—which, by the way, isn't so bad a thing to do.

CONTINUING in the same happy vein, it is noted that President Hirsig, of the Nashville club, is under way in the direction of Detroit for a conference with President Navin, the object being to retain Frank Gibson, the speedy and hard-hitting little catcher, for next season.

It is known that other clubs are sweet on Gibby, and it is possible that he may be destined to travel with Detroit in 1914, but Hirsig is confident he has the inside rail, and believes he will keep his pet receiver.

While in Detroit, Hirsig will look over the books for new material available for his club next year.

MAKING a swift shift to New Orleans, we translate an indistinct rumble from the distant North to indicate that Mr. Brenton, able Pelican fork-hander, is ardently desired by the Toledo Mudhens in the American Association.

The terms of the swap mention Outfielder Davy Jones and First Baseman Bluhm, one old bird and one young one, as the Toledo contribution to the deal.

But there is nothing definite.

UMPIRE SUES FEDERAL LEAGUE CLUB FOR $35,000

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Umpire Jack McNulty to-day brought suit against the Federal League baseball club of St. Louis and Manager Jack O'Connor for $35,000 damages because of an alleged attack O'Connor made on him on the club grounds in June.

According to the petition, McNulty was present to officiate as umpire in the game when O'Connor "wrongfully and unlawfully assaulted him."

McNulty alleges that his injuries are such that he no longer will be able to earn a livelihood as a baseball umpire.

PITCHER GREEN REJOINS FRANK'S LOWLY PELS

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 25.—Pitcher Roy Green, shipped to Wheeling, W. Va., last spring under an optional agreement, has rejoined the Pelicans, as has Pitcher Glavenich, recently released by Omaha, and who is to figure in a three-cornered trade between the Pelicans, Cleveland and Toledo clubs for Pitcher Brenton shortly.

Waivers on the other two men Frank is getting in exchange for Brenton have been held up by two American Association clubs for the present.

News of the Ring Game

Charley Ledoux, the French bantamweight champion, who lost the last two battles that he took part in at Vernon, Cal., the first with Campi and the second with Williams, is now in New York. He will sail for Paris in a few days.

* * *

Leach Cross and Matty Baldwin, who will meet in a twenty-round bout at Vernon, Cal., next Tuesday night, are "busy bees" at their training camps. Although many fight fans on the coast figure that Baldwin has a good chance to beat the Easterner, betting on the outcome is at even money.

* * *

Frankie Fleming, the featherweight champion of Canada, and George Kirkwood, of St. Louis, have signed articles to meet in a ten-round affair at New York on Saturday night. Both boys are lightweights.

* * *

There is a good chance that George "Knockout" Brown, Greek middleweight, will be matched with Art Aldard for a contest of twelve rounds at Anaconda, Mont., for August 12. The plan is to match the winner with Leo Benz at Butte Labor Day.

* * *

Packey McFarland is taking things easy at his home in Chicago. Packey is after a fight with Freddie Welsh or Willie Ritchie. The Chicago wizard says he will make weight for either man.

* * *

Young Jack O'Brien is said to have received a raw deal in Vancouver, where he met Freddie Welsh. A daily paper published there says that Young Jack was entitled to a draw.

* * *

Young Seymour, who boxes Terry Nelson in a ten-round encounter at Marietta on Saturday, August 2, was in Atlanta yesterday. Seymour says he expects the bout to draw a good house, as they have already an advance sale of several hundred dollars. Seymour and Nelson are scheduled to go ten rounds.

* * *

* * *

Kid Duke and Kid Brooks have decided to settle their differences in the ring. The pair have agreed to meet in a finish bout in private some time next week. The boys have been hurling challenges at each other for the past two weeks.

* * *

Dominick J. Tortorich, New Orleans fight promoter, has decided to stage a welterweight elimination tourney. "Wildcat" Ferns and Young Denny are to meet in the first battle a week from next Sunday. Tortorich says he will bring Billy Walter, Spike Kelly and Mike Gibbons to the Pelican City for matches. All bouts are to be over the twenty-round route.

* * *

Tim Callahan, who was recently given a decision over Young Attell here, seems to have the makings of a good boy. He is the holder of a stiff wallop, and usually puts up an aggressive scrap.

* * *

Ad Wolgast is one of the many fighters on the coast trying to force Willie Ritchie into the ring. Tom Jones, manager of Ad, says he will agree to give the champion a $5,000 side bet if he will sign for the bout.

* * *

Coast promoters refuse to go wild over Arthur Pelky, who is at present in Los Angeles. The lightweights seem to be big cards out West at the present time.

CLARKE AND CONZELMAN PITCH TO-DAY

By Joe Ziegler.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 25. George Clarke and Joe Conzelman are Bill Smith's pitching entries in the bargain-day bill this afternoon, and the gossip is that Elmer Brown, Montgomery's best bet on the slab, will work the first contest against our boys, with either Sparks or Case in the afterpiece. Chapman and Dunn will catch for the Crackers.

We are not grieving over the rain that knocked out yesterday's game with the Billikens. The off day did us good, as we needed a rest, and it helped to break up the jump here from Memphis.

THE Billikens are full of confidence, and they are going to be hard to lick. They all believe they are going to win the rag, but realize that the rest of the schedule is against them, as they have only one more series at home, after which they hit the long trail for the rest of their games. It is admitted here that the Crackers are the club to be beaten; in fact, every club in the league accepts that as a fact.

* * *

GILBERT PRICE, got here yesterday and looks to be in grand shape after his little rest. Take it all around, the club is in good condition and should make a great finish once it gets back to Ponce DeLeon.

JESS WILLARD AND BILL YOUNG STILL HOPING

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—Jess Willard and Bill Young, "white hopes," were matched to-day for a 20-round boxing bout August 22 at the Vernon arena. Willard hopes to make a few successful starts here against lesser lights, and then will go after a "Gunboat" Smith match again.

HURLER SMITH ON SICK LIST.

BOSTON, July 25.—The Cubs' cripple list had another addition yesterday. Pitcher Charley Smith is confined to his bed, suffering an attack of heart trouble, thought to be an aftermath of his prostration by heat in Cincinnati a few weeks ago. Zimmerman is in Chicago for treatment of his injured foot.

RAIN STOPS RACES.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 25.—Heavy rain yesterday afternoon stopped the Grand Circuit races at Fort Erie after the first heats of the 2:09 and 2:11 pace. Weather permitting, the two unfinished races and the free-for-all pace will be run off to-day and the Grand Circuit stars will move along to Grand Rapids.

New Orleans a 20-Round Center

Tortorich Seeks Classy Bouts

By Ed W. Smith.

NEW ORLEANS is now safely established on the boxing map as a safe and sane center in which twenty-round contests may be held. At least this is the statement of Dominick J. Tortorich, the Jimmy Coffroth of the South, who has firmly put the game back on a standing akin to the conditions that prevailed there in the good old long ago. New Orleans, be it remembered, had some of the most famous battles of ring history decided in its environs, and threatens now to take just as prominent a place as it got when John L. Sullivan and Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack Dempsey, Jack McAuliffe and Billy Myer, Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall and Dan Creedon and others of that class were battling for real titles.

BY sheer force of character and through demonstration that the boxing game can be kept free from scandal, and that it does not verge into the old class of "prize fighting," Tortorich has carried matters along until he has won over almost every executive in Louisiana to his way of thinking, and it is not believed that there will be any further opposition to Dom's plan of holding twenty-round contests from now until next Spring. And Dom believes he will be able to show all of the boxers that it will be strictly to their interests to pay some attention to the nice offers that he is going to make to them.

* * *

ALONG with Tom McCarey, Tortorich has been stung by the belt bee, and now has a well-develop-

LUCKY INFIELD PUTS ATHLETICS IN FRONT RANK

By Sid C. Keener.

IF luck continues to break for Connie Mack and the Athletics, then the 1913 American League pennant race should not be close. The meaning of luck is injuries to athletes, the stars of his flock. And so far the lean Cornelius has been mighty fortunate in ways of accidents.

Mack is directing a bona fide championship ball club all right, still many teams which figured on dope, and even on the ball field, to win have lost out because this and that star was disabled and put out of harness for a lengthy period.

The lucky part for Mack and the Athletics is that he has the banner infield in major league circles to-day, and that his quartet has been on duty every day since the first game of the season, April 10.

Infield the Real Strength.

The Athletics' infield really is the tower of strength to the club. Of course, the pitching staff has more than held its own, still the Mackites are winning games when the pitchers are cracking.

Without a doubt the combination of McInnis-Collins-Barry-Baker forms the infield de luxe, and Stuffy, Eddie, Jack and Frank have been in there every day. Collins is the only player who has missed once, and recently, during a double-header, Mack laid off the Columbia U. lad to give youngster Bill Orr a chance.

Of course, Mack has been without Jack Coombs since April 11, when typhoid fever put "Colby Jack" out of commission. But Plank and Bender are having an unusually good year, and then Connie has been fortunate in getting excellent pitching from youngsters Brown, Bush, Houck and Wyckoff.

Both Kinds of Outfielders.

In the outfield Mack supplied himself with fly catchers in case of injuries. At present he has Danny Murphy, Rube Oldring and Jimmy Walsh, right-handed stickers, and Eddie Murphy, Amos Strunk and Pete Daley, left-handed swatters.

In the outfield Mack has supplied himself with batters for the two kinds of pitching, also for injuries.

In catching, Mack is taken care of in case of injuries, but so far no one has been needed. Schang and Lapp are doing all the catching, and even Ira Thomas, who practically caught the Mackites to the 1910-1911 flags, has not been behind the bat in a single entertainment since the start of the season.

The peculiar part is that Mack has been lucky, mighty lucky, with his infielders. Not only are they in there every day, but they are hitting the Athletics to the pennant. Collins has a .347 average; Baker, .326, and McInnes, .325. And the trio has scored 202 runs.

BASEBALL

Diamond News and Gossip

Rain put the finishing touches on major league baseball yesterday, the National games all being postponed. The American League teams spent the day traveling eastward.

* * *

Connie Mack, of the Athletics, takes exception to the statement that he Senators will beat out his eam. Mack says his men fear nobody and will breeze home in the American League.

* * *

Manager Chance plans a big shake-up in the Yankees. He is contemplating benching Birdie Cree and Harry Wolter and filling their places in the outfield with Roy Hartsell and Ray Caldwell. The latter has not been meeting with success as a pitcher, but is developing into a good outfielder and batsman.

* * *

In the hope of widening the gap between his team and the Phillies Manager McGraw of the Giants will send his team along at the clip they have been traveling the l atsfew weeks, when they begin their second invasion of the West to-morrow.

* * *

Manager Clark Griffith has ordered the Senators to keep away from Lake Michigan. Outfielder Shanks turned his ankle and injured his head while diving the other day and will be out of the game for several days. Griffith's order was to prevent further inroads on his players.

* * *

Alleging that he was assaulted by Jack O'Connor, manager of the Federal League, John S. McNulty, a former umpire, has brought suit for $35,000 against the league, the St. Louis Club and O'Connor, its manager. It was McNulty's first day of umpiring and also his last and he alleges he has been unable to earn a living in his profession.

FILLINGEM AND WILDER TWIRL TWO GREAT GAMES

CORDELE, July 25.—Seldom, if ever before in the history of organized baseball, has a record been made that would compare with that of Fillingem and "Baby" Wilder, pitching for Cordele in a double-header against Waycross Wednesday. Fillingem went nine innings for a shut-out game with no hits, and Wilder twirled a six-inning game, allowing no hits and no scores, striking out nine men.

By this remarkable record, Fillingem and Wilder have proved themselves the star twirlers of the Empire State League. Not only has a no-hit, shut-out game been pitched before in the league, but the fact that Cordele took both games with the same brilliant record makes it a precedent that will probably not be equaled, though the league is maintained for years, for which prospects now appear very favorable.

ARMY AND NAVY WRANGLE OVER FOOTBALL FIELD

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 25.—The Army and Navy athletic officials still are at a deadlock over the selection of the place where the next Army-Navy football game shall be played.

The Navy is insisting that the game take place in Philadelphia, while the Army contends that it should be played at West Point and Annapolis, alternating each year, or in New York City, preferably the latter. The Army opens the football season early this year, playing a game September 27.

Artie Hofman May Go to Yanks

Vol Gardener Playing Fine Ball

NASHVILLE, TENN., July 25.—Any time a player comes tracking out from the majors, there immediately goes up the hue and cry that he has finished his act under the Big Tent, is on his way to the exit and only lingers around the side shows because it reminds him of the fame that was his when he occupied the center ring.

The cases of a return engagement in the majors are almost as rare as the appearance of feathers on turtles once a "slave" has started sliding, since oftenest it is the case that a ball tosser loses his ambition and desire to hobnob with the stellar lights once he has started shunting on down to the bushes.

It's because Artie Hofman is the exception that proves the rule that makes his case so full of interest, especially since so many widely different explanations of his appearance in the Southern have been offered.

Sure He Can Make Good.

It's no joke that the "them-was-the-happy-days-in-Akron" stuff had a lot to do with Artie casting his fortunes with Bill Schwartz, but the real honest-to-goodness reason is that the boy leader of the Vols afforded a protecting wing, under which Circus Solly could hide himself while the business of a clever little scheme of Hofman's was getting oiled up. The milk in the cocoanut of the whole affair is that Artie doesn't believe he le all through with the big show, and although they haye their thumbs down on him, in the National, there is still a fine young chance for Artie to slip into Ban Johnson's circuit, where one Frank Chance is leading at present a forlorn hope in Manhattan.

Harking away back to the time when Charles Webb Murphy, the ungrateful owner of the Cubs, traded Artie and King Cole to the Pirates for Lefty Leifield and Tommy Leach, there started the breach between Murphy and the Peerless Leader, who, in the language for which Chance is widely noted, explained to Charles Webb just where he could head in. Leastways, that's the way Hofman tells it.

Didn't Like Fred Clarke.

Harboring an intense bitterness against Murphy, which found its best evidence in the recent suit for $3,000, which Artie pulled against the Chicago club, and a hankering for the fighting tactics of the Peerless Leader, made Hofman and Fred Clarke anything but a Damon and Pythias. All of this ill feeling, coupled with a pair of bum pins, soon caused Clarke to sour on the former Cub outfielder, and he began to look for a place to pigeonhole Artie, until he could get in good shape and bend his neck to Clarke's yoke; and Kansas City looked like a good place to the fiery Pirate chief.

The Blues were given a short option on Hofman at the stiff price of $2,500, after waivers had been secured on Artie—and there seems to have been a heap of inside stuff pulled in sending the blonde gardener out of Mr. Lynch's circuit, by the way—and a deal was framed up between Hofman, Clarke and the Kansas City club by which Artie should be returned to the Pirates at the end of the present season at a 20 per cent increase in salary in the event he "went good" in the Western circuit. This arrangement appealed to Hofman about like a spell of the itch, and he declared he had rather quit the game than be mixed up in any arrangement which would send him back to the Buccaneers and the tyranny of Clarke. When he balked, and wound up by kicking over the traces, the Kansas City club did the perfectly wise thing and allowed the option to expire.

An Old Pal of Schwartz's.

Business of "for old times sake" making a loud noise in the wings and Artie learning how Bill Schwartz was getting gray headed over the poor old Vols' slump. He would be tickled to death to come down and help an old pal out, if the Vols could buy his release. Did they? They did. For $1,500—(count 'em)—a thousand iron men less than Kansas City stood ready to kick in with, but it was a case of a bird in the hand, etc., with Clarke, and hence Hofman chasing flies in the Vols' left field.

But there is NO conditional release clause in Artie's contract, as has been whispered about. He is the sole property of the Vols, bought and paid for, with no strings tied to him one way or the other.

But this is a fact: Schwartz knows Artie's ambition to return to the majors; he knows he is anxious to once more work under Frank Chance's banner; that Chance is dead stuck on having Artie with him once more, and maybe Schwartz isn't going to help his pal get back where he is crazy to be. Maybe a duck can't swim, but he puts up a pretty good imitation.

AMERICANS WILL MEET BRITONS IN NET MATCHES

WIMBLEDON, ENGLAND, July 25.—The interest of the tennis world will be focussed to-day on the championship matches at Wimbledon, where the Americans will attempt to win the Dwight F. Davis international tennis trophy. England will spare no effort to defend the cup, which is the last remaining token of her former athletic supremacy.

The two singles matches will be played between Maurice E. McLoughlin, of San Francisco, facing J. C. Parke, whose unexpected victory last year over the noted Australian, Norman E. Brookes, was instrumental in bringing the cup to England, and R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, meeting C. P. Dixon.

Parke fell an easy victim to the Californian in the open English championships, but a round of tournament play since is said to have greatly improved his form. England pins her hope on his ability to defeat McLoughlin, who is reported to be stale. English critics are united in declaring there is less than "15" difference between Williams' play and that of McLoughlin. A greater crowd is expected than the crush which attended the Wilding-McLoughlin match.

PELKY AND SMITH MAY CLASH ON TURKEY DAY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—Indications are that Arthur Pelky, Tommy Burns, heavyweight battler, and Gunboat Smith will do battle in this city on Thanksgiving day. Burns today announced that he would have his man ready on turkey day and that Smith would be the foe, the match going to the highest bidder.

CROUCH ROBBED: GETS DRAW.

OTTAWA, ILL., July 25.—Ben Crouch, of Chicago, and Kid Mack, of Joliet, fought eight rounds to a draw in the wind-up of a boxing show held here last night. The decision came as a surprise to the fans, as Crouch cleanly outtought Mack, knocking him down several times. "Specia Delivery" Hirsch, of Chicago, and Ed Brandenburg, of St. Louis, went six rounds to a draw in the semi-wind-up.

BIG MARATHON GRIND TO-NIGHT AT MOTORDROME

UNLESS rain butts in again, local motorcycle fans will have their much-sought-for chance to see the Marathon race at the Motordrome to-night.

The races were postponed on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, but if the weather man will dish out some dry weather for to-night the riders promise to give the fans some racing that should be the classiest of the season.

$500 to Winner.

The Marathon race, with ten riders on the track at the same time, is the big feature. The speed teams are scheduled to circle the track 105 times, and the winner is to receive a cash prize of $500. More thrills seem likely to be crowded into this race than all the other races ever pulled off here.

Other Races on Card.

A special match race, three heats and a final of a sweepstakes and a trial against time by Tex Richards are the other events to be pulled off.

The following is the complete program:

Tex Richards against time. One mile. Present record held by Eddie Hasha and Morty Graves. Time, 38 4-5 seconds.

One mile to qualify for two-mile final. Two to qualify in each heat and three in fastest heat.

Second Heat—No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, Georges Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

Harry Glenn vs. Harry Schwartz. (Special Match Race.) Two miles, best two out of three heats.

Final heat of Motordrome Sweepstakes—Two miles.

Second heat of Special Match Race—Glenn vs. Schwartz.

Third heat of Special Match Race, if necessary.

Big Marathon Race—(26 miles 385 yards), ten riders to compete. Each rider will have to ride 105 times around the track. Winner to receive cash prize of $500.

Contestants—No. 1, Morty Graves; No. 2, Harry Schwartz; No. 3, Billy Shields; No. 4, George Lockner; No. 5, Tex Richards; No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, Georges Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

INDIANS SELL TWIRLER.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 25.—George Keiserling, of the Indianapolis American Association club pitching staff, has been sold to the San Francisco Pacific Coast team. Manager Kelly also announced the purchase of George Norton, a young lefthander from the Hastings club of the Nebraska State League.

BROU'S INJECTION—A PERMANENT CURE

TETTER
Tetterine cures tetter. Read what Mrs. V. C. McQuiddy, Estill Springs, Tenn., says:
I had a severe case of tetter on both hands and I finally got helpless. A leading physician knew of no cure. I decided to give Tetterine a trial. To my utter surprise and satisfaction it worked a speedy cure.
Use Tetterine
It cures eczema, tetter, erysipelas, itching piles, ground itch and all skin maladies.

HELP HIM WIN!

To All Householders, Business Folk---All of You With an Unfilled "Want"---

You have a boy or girl friend in The Georgian's Want Ad Contest. His name, or hers, is in the list below.

Your friend is working to win an automobile, or the piano, or one of the other prizes.

Your want ad---even if it is only two lines---will help him. Give him your ad or send it to the Want Ad Man with the request that your friend be given the votes. He will appreciate it.

CONTESTANTS are busily at work to-day telling their friends they're in the contest and learning the art of getting "want ads." The one who brings in the most paid want ads will be the owner of that touring car before long. It isn't too late for you to get in, but you'd better hurry. See the Want Ad Man at once and bring this nomination blank in with you.

THE CONTESTANTS:

Here are some of the boys and girls in the Want Ad Contest. Read the list and find your friend. Send your want ads to The Georgian and help him or her win a prize.

BANKRUPT SALE.

In Re: Horine Development Company, Bankrupt.

Pursuant to an order passed on July 2, 1913, by the Hon. P. H. Adams, a Referee in Bankruptcy for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Georgia, the undersigned, as Trustee, will sell before the Court House door of Walker County, Georgia, in the town of LaFayette, Ga., on the 5th day of August, 1913, between the hours of 11 a. m. and 2 p. m. o'clock, the following described assets, belonging to said bankrupt estate, consisting of realty and personalty, on the terms stated hereinafter. Said property to be sold as an entirety. The following described real estate in Walker County, Georgia, to-wit:

All of Land Lot 284, containing 160 acres, more or less; 53 acres more or less of Land Lot 285, said tract bounded by the cliff of the mountain until said cliff strikes the road across Dug Gap, thence with said road to the west line of said lot, being all of said lot south and west of said cliff and road as described in deed from W. N. Carmony to D. W. Lawrence, dated September 11, 1889; all of Land Lot 292, except that part of said lot conveyed to Henfield as Woods by J. E. Shaw; 53 1-3 acres, more or less, in the northern part of Land Lot 293, and also all that part of Land Lot 293, lying west of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad Company's tracks, purchased by John H. Hill from J. J. Andrews, and by J. J. Andrews from D. W. Lawrence; all of Land Lot 320, lying west of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad Company's tracks, containing 50 acres, more or less; all of Land Lot 321, except two (2) acres lying on the east side of said Land Lot 321, known as the School House property, and one-fourth (¼) of an acre, more or less, on the east side of said lot enclosed and used as a cemetery, and two (2) acres and a fraction where the barn and horse lot is, the line running west to the west bank of a deep gulley, thence following the gulley or ditch to the original line. All of the aforesaid described land being in the eighth (8th) District and fourth (4th) Section of said Walker County, Georgia.

Also the following lots and parcels of land in the seventh (7th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of said Walker County, Georgia, being all of Land Lots Three (3), Four (4) and Five (5), lying west of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad Company's tracks, except so much of said lots as were formerly owned by W. N. and J. H. Herndon and Theodore Parker; also Land Lots Thirty-four (34), Thirty-eight (38) and Thirty-nine (39); and all that part of Land Lots Thirty-three (33), Sixty-nine (69) and Seventy (70), lying west of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad Company's tracks. The property above described containing One Thousand Five Hundred and Sixty-three (1,563) acres, more or less, and being the same property described in a bond for title between John H. Hill and E. M. Horine, dated September 11, 1911, and recorded in Deed Book 24, on page 457, in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Walker County, Georgia.

Also the following tracts or parcels of land described as follows: Land Lots One (1), Two (2) and Thirty-five (35), in the Seventh (7th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of said Walker County, Georgia; also lot of land No. 323, and one hundred and forty (140) acres, more or less, of Land Lot 324, it being all of said lot, except about twenty (20) acres lying on the branch in the west of said lot; also all of Land Lot No. 322, except twenty (20) acres, lying in the southwest corner of said land lot, said twenty (20) acres being now owned by O. T. and W. C. Andrews; also one hundred and forty (140) acres, more or less, of Land Lot No. 290, it being all of said land lot, except twenty (20) acres lying in the northwest corner of said lot; also twenty (20) acres, more or less, lying in the northwest corner of Land Lot No. 291, all being in the Eighth (8th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of said Walker County Georgia. The property described in this paragraph containing One Thousand Two Hundred (1,200) acres, more or less, and being the same property described in a certain bond for title, dated September 11, 1911, and recorded in Deed Book 24, on page 459, in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Walker County, Georgia.

All of the above and foregoing described lands subject to certain reservations, as shown in the conveyance made to E. M. Horine by John H. Hill by deed dated the 17th day of August, 1912, and recorded in the office of the Clerk of Superior Court of Walker County Georgia, on the 21st day of August, 1912, in Book of Deeds 25, on pages 511 et. seq.

Also, the following tracts and parcels of land, lying and being in Walker County, Georgia, and more particularly described as follows:

First Tract: One Hundred and Seven (107) acres, more or less, in the south part of Land Lot 293, all in the Eighth (8th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of Walker County, Georgia, and more fully described in deeds made by D. W. Lawrence and Mary Robinson to John H. Hill.

Second Tract: Ninety-six (96) acres, more or less, being part of Land Lot 294, in said Eighth (8th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of Walker County, Georgia, as described in deeds made by S. J., T. E. and E. W. Shaw to John H. Hill.

Third Tract: One Hundred and Seven (107) acres, more or less, it being all that part of lot of land 320 in the Eighth (8th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of Walker County, Georgia, lying east of the Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Railroad (formerly the Chattanooga Southern Railroad).

Fourth Tract. One hundred and fifty-two (152) acres, more or less, it being all that part of lot of land number five (5), in the Seventh (7th) District and fourth (4th) section of Walker County, Georgia, lying east of said Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Railroad.

Fifth Tract. Forty (40) acres, more or less, being the northwest corner of lot of land number six (6), in said Seventh (7th) District and fourth (4th) section of Walker County, Georgia.

Sixth Tract. Five and thirty-six one-hundredths (5.36) acres, more or less, it being all that part of lot of land number four (4) in said Seventh (7th) District and fourth (4th) section of Walker County, Georgia, lying east of said Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Railroad.

Seventh Tract. Sixty-two (62) acres, more or less, of lot of land No. 33, in said Seventh District and fourth section of Walker County, Georgia, it being all that part of said lot lying east of said Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Railroad.

Eighth Tract. Lot of land No. 32 in said Seventh District and fourth section of Walker County, Georgia, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less.

Ninth Tract. Twenty (20) acres, more or less, it being all that part of lot of land No. 40, in said Seventh District and fourth section of Walker County, Georgia, lying north and east of Duck Creek, running through lots number thirty-three (33) and number forty (40).

Tenth Tract. Seventy (70) acres, more or less, it being all that part of lot of land number forty-one (41), in said Seventh District and fourth section of Walker County Georgia, described as follows: Beginning at the northwest corner of said lot; thence north with the original line to the railroad leading to Hillsdale; thence with said railroad to where it crosses the public road east of Burnt Mill Ford, on Duck Creek; thence from said public road crossing in a northeasterly course to the northeast corner of said land lot No. 41.

Seventh Tract. One hundred and fifty-seven (157) acres, more or less, of lot of land No. 69 in said Seventh District and fourth section of Walker County, Georgia, it being all that part of said lot lying east of said Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Railroad.

Twelfth Tract. Fifteen (15) acres, more or less, of lot of land No. 70 in said Seventh District and fourth section of Walker County, Georgia, it being all that part of said lot lying east of said Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Railroad.

Thirteenth Tract. Eighty (80) acres, more or less, being the north half of lot of land No. 74; also one hundred and sixty-four (164) acres, more or less, of lot of land number seventy-five (75); and also seventy-three (73) acres, more or less, being the west part of lot of land No. 76; all in the Seventh District and fourth section of Walker County, Georgia, the same being the lands conveyed by W. L. Shattuck and T. E. Shaw to John H. Hill.

Fourteenth Tract. Eleven hundred (1,100) acres, more or less, being lots of land Nos. 73, 108, 109, 110, 106, 107, 111 and No. 142, all in the Seventh District and fourth section of Walker County, Georgia, the same being lands conveyed to John H. Hill by G. W. Ransom.

The above fourteen tracts and parcels of land, containing in all two thousand and five hundred (2,500) acres, more or less, and being the same properties conveyed to E. M. Horine by John H. Hill by deed dated the 9th day of December, 1911, and recorded in the office of Clerk of Superior Court of Walker County, Georgia, in deed book No. 25, page 440, on the 16th day of July, 1912. Said tracts and parcels of land are conveyed subject to the following exceptions and reservations, to-wit: All the iron ore, other minerals and petroleum, with the right to enter upon said land, mine and remove the same from any and all parts of said tracts of land.

Also, all that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the Seventh District of the fourth section of the County of Walker, in the State of Georgia, bounded and described as follows: Sixty-five (65) acres, more or less, of lot of land No. 8, it being all that part of lot of land number four (4) in said Seventh (7th) District and fourth (4th) section of Walker County, Georgia, lying east of said Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Railroad.

Eighth Tract. Lot of land No. 32 in said Seventh District and fourth section of Walker County, Georgia, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, more or less.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Browne Pays $35,000 For Peachtree Lease

Decorating Concern to Have Extra Floor, Leaving Huntley Building. Good Rental Business.

A Peachtree lease for $35,000 and seven years which will cause several interesting central and semi-central changes was announced Friday.

D. C. Strother, of South Carolina, and others have leased to the Walter E. Browne Company, decorators, through Andrew Calhoun, of the Turman, Black & Calhoun real estate agency, Nos. 324 and 326 Peachtree street, now occupied temporarily by the Pope-Hartford automobile agency, L. S. Crane, manager. The term is seven years, with an option of three more years, at approximately $5,000 a year.

The owners will add another story to the building at a cost of $8,000, making a structure of two stories and basement and mezzanine floor. There will be 14,000 square feet of floor space. The Browne company will likewise make improvements suitable to its business. Elevator service will be a feature.

This property is on the west side of Peachtree about 150 feet south of Porter place, and was in the original Porter subdivision. It is 45 by 90 feet to a 10-foot alley.

Mr. Browne will take possession about January 1, 1914, when his lease on the building at the northwest corner of North Forsyth and James streets expires. His move is significant of the tendency of houses of similar character to seek Peachtree semi-central locations. Lycett, the china painter, and the Biggs Antique Company having preceded him in this direction.

Drewry Street Sale.

The Atlanta Development Company has sold to Mrs. Clara M. Jones a lot on Drewry street 50 feet west of Frederica street, 52 by 254, for $1,600. This is lot 35 of block 3 of this subdivision.

Good Renting Business.

The renting business in Atlanta is reported to be as steady as at any time in the city's history. Characteristic of it is the desire of South Side people to be located on the North Side, although there is always a good demand for homes like those found in West End and similar suburbs.

The Ralph O. Cochran Company has rented or leased within the past few days the following 22 places:

For Dr. J. R. Cooke to Mrs. W. F. Canterbury, No. 301 East Georgia avenue; for W. P. Stevens to B. O. Fitts, No. 40 Avon avenue; for Mrs. E. R. Way to E. M. McHugh, No. 301 Oakland avenue; for Mrs. E. L. Lafontaine to D. T. Stephenson, No. 16 Cooper street; for T. L. Lewis to R. G. Greenwood, No. 45 Atlanta avenue; for Miss Katie McCay to E. S. Acree, No. 390 Cooper street; for W. V. Ogletree to J. M. Mayer, No. 11 McPherson avenue; for R. I. Barge to T. N. Tanner, No. 212 Murphy avenue; for H. L. Cobbs to T. D. Brown, No. 15 Windsor street; for Alverson Bros. to W. H. Tanner, No. 354 Ashby street; for James Millan to Mrs. M. C. Smith, No. 318 Cooper street; for Atlanta Baggage and Cab Company to Charles Alden, No. 14 Brotherton street; for Atlanta Baggage and Cab Company to Mrs. F. Syrakson, No. 18 Brotherton street; for C. M. Tripp to Mrs. L. A. Rader, No. 97 Mills street; for A. P. Morgan to Mrs. I. C. Howard, No. 533 Lawton street; for J. H. Harwell to C. E. Hulme, No. 476 West Hunter street; for Myers & Pelper to Mrs. G. A. Johnstone, No. 222 North Jackson street; for Mrs. W. W. Morgan to E. B. Durham, No. 22 West Tenth street; for H. W. Dillin to R. H. Merker, No. 250 Lake avenue; for R. J. Griffin to Mrs. S. B. Palmer, No. 4 Flanders Apartments; for Joseph Buchman to J. W. Stephens, No. 207 Oak street; for B. Clein to A. M. Willis, No. 83 North Lawn street.

DRAW SPACE FOR ATLANTA EXHIBIT

Space in the permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods, which will be established in the new headquarters of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce building at Auburn avenue and Pryor street, will be allotted Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock. On account of the limited space at the disposal of the committee in charge of the allotment, it is expected that a number of local manufacturers will be present to arrange for their exhibit.

Virtually every manufacturer of importance in the city has consented to add an exhibit to the permanent display, and those who do not come in now are expected to join the movement later.

The decision to establish the exhibit in the Chamber of Commerce building was made Thursday afternoon by a special committee headed by Brooks Morgan, which has been considering various locations for several weeks.

The committee favored the establishment of the exhibit in the chamber's building from the beginning of the movement, inasmuch as the chamber is the sponsor of the movement, and several days ago the directors were asked to name a price for a lease on the upper floors of the building.

In addition to the exhibit of their goods, the building is being fitted up with other features that are expected to appeal to the manufacturers and merchants who will join in the display. A swimming pool, baths and a gymnasium will be provided for the manufacturers and members of the chamber.

Doubt Report That Dr. Jacobs Bought Burns' Manuscripts

Members of the family of Dr. Joseph Jacobs are not inclined to believe the report that he has purchased the famous Glenriddell manuscripts of Robert Burns for a sum exceeding $25,000 bid several years ago by J. Pierpont Morgan. The purchase of the manuscripts by the Atlantan is told of in London dispatches.

"I don't think there is any truth to the report," Dr. Sinclair Jacobs, son of Dr. Jacobs, said Friday morning. "If the manuscripts had been purchased we undoubtedly would have been notified, and we have heard nothing of it except what we have read in the papers. Dr. Jacobs, so far as I know, has not been near London on his present trip to Europe."

According to the London dispatches Dr. Jacobs purchased the manuscripts from a dealer in London, who recently bought them from the Liverpool Athenaeum. It is said that the deal between Dr. Jacobs and the dealer was pending at the time of the first purchase of the manuscripts, and that the London dealer was merely Dr. Jacobs' agent in the transaction

OBITUARY.

Funeral services for Mrs. Pauline Isaacs will be conducted from the chapel of Greenberg & Bond at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, Dr. David Marx officiating. Interment will be in Oakland.

The body of Mrs. L. C. House, who died at a private sanitarium Thursday night, is at Poole's funeral home, pending funeral arrangements which will be announced later. Mrs. House was twenty-nine years old, and formerly lived at No. 123 Meldon street. She is survived by her husband and four sisters, Misses Clara, Hattie Lee and Mary Lou, and Mrs. Maggie Bubb.

Mrs. Sallie J. Crawford, thirty-six years old, died at her late residence, No. 510 Lawton street, Thursday night. Surviving her are her husband, E. C. Crawford, one small daughter, one sister, Mrs. A. D. Tull, and her mother, Mrs. Sally Tharr. Funeral announcement will be made later.

Levi S. Martin, aged seventeen, died at Mount Airy, Ga., Thursday. He is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Martin; two sisters, Mrs. Lowe Estes and Mrs. Lorenzo Hollingsworth, and four brothers, Q. E., J. F., M. M. and W. M. Martin, all of this city. The interment will be in Moreland, Ga., Saturday afternoon.

Scott Promoted for Pagan Case Work

Harry Scott, assistant superintendent of the Atlanta branch of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, has been promoted to the superintendency of the Houston, Tex., agency as a reward of his work on the Phagan case. He will leave Atlanta immediately after the Frank trial is concluded.

The Pinkertons were employed in the Phagan case by the National Pencil Company. Harry Scott was assigned to the case and was instrumental in bringing to light many important features.

Scott was the aggressor in securing the so-called confession of Jim Conley, the negro sweeper.

Sunday Schools to Hold Annual Meet

The First District Sunday School Association of Fulton County will hold its thirty-second annual celebration at the East Point Tabernacle Saturday, beginning at 10 o'clock. Practically every Sunday school in the county will be represented.

The annual address will be delivered by the Rev. Charles O. Jones, D. D. Others who will speak are Dr. F. S. Hudson, Dr. Charles E. Witt and Dr. W. M. Joiner. Officers for the coming year will be elected, and a basket dinner will be served

JULY AGAIN ON THE TOBOGGAN

The South and Liverpool Heavy Sellers—Spot Houses Big Buyers of New Crop.

NEW YORK, July 25.—At the start to-day the cotton market was steady at a net decline of 4 to 7 points from last night's close. Near positions again showed the greatest weakness, but they were also the first to respond to later covering and soon after the opening the whole market rallied several points, with the shorts nervous over the oversold condition of the market.

Liverpool was lower than due and brought out scattered selling from the ring. This, together with a perfect weather map, showing further rains in Texas and lower temperatures generally, with indications for more showers, brought on more favorable apprehension that the drouth would continue. The early firmness was not of long duration. July continued on the toboggan and by noon had increased its decline 11 points from the previous close. August, after advancing 12 points to 11.67, fell back two points under the previous close.

New crop positions were liquidated. The early buying seemed to be profit-taking purchases by shorts and by moderate buying by a few strong spot interests. It seems now that the bull market is about over. Weather and crop advices are excellent. Spots are weakening for the first time in many weeks and new crop cotton is beginning to arrive at various points in Texas. The recent heat and clear weather was regarded as most propitious to the plant and hasten its maturity.

After slumping to 11.73 in the late session for a net decline of 13 points from the previous close, July was quickly rushed into the bull level and over, through heavy buying by brokers representing large spot interests, based on the bullish spinners' takings for the week shown in Hester's weekly statement. The buying was aggressive, resulting in considerable short covering by those taking advantage of the low level.

At the close the market was steady with near positions net unchanged to 5 points lower, while new crops were 1 to 2 points higher than the final quotations of Thursday.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: July, 11.78; August, 11.64; October, 11.25; January, 11.13.

Following are 10 a. m. bids in New Orleans: August, 11.57; October, 11.31; January, 11.30.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, July 25.—Official records and private advices show a good rainfall overnight in North Texas and Oklahoma, and the map shows a fine general rainfall in the Central and Eastern States; cooler in North Texas. Indications are for more rain in the West, continued showery weather in the Central States and Alabama, clearing in the Atlantics.

Since the date of Habersham King's report, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia have had a fine rainfall and the Western States are getting it now.

Our market opened a few points lower and held around 11.31 for October. It being realized that rains in the West came too late to improve Bureau returns, which close to-day. The chances, therefore, are that the August Bureau, which will be published a week from to-day, will show several points loss and this explains the absence of selling pressure in the markets and a disposition to buy on depressions.

Political news is unfavorable. According to London news a revolution in China is again under way.

COTTON GOSSIP

Map showed some scattered rains in Western belt this morning, which gave rise to general selling by commission houses and the local crowd. The South is said to have also sold. Spot houses were apparently leading buyers, but most of their purchases seemed to be in summer positions. Liverpool was said to have bought August here. After Liverpool closed there was another wave of selling and in the absence of that buying power the market sagged off again, but rallied later on buying of some 5,000 bales new crops said to come from spot people. This caused scattered short covering. Reports as to Texas rainfall are conflicting. Should general rains come it is believed that the market will sell lower, though some bulls contend this has been discounted, that cotton is worth the present price. It is purely a weather market.—Anderson.

Hentz, Seidenberg and Liverpool brokers hedging July, but sold October. The selling was general. Mitchell and Wilson were apparently the leading sellers on reports of rain in Texas to-day.

Warehouse stocks in New York to-day are 33,531; certificated, 24,554 bales.

Southern banks are borrowing more largely than in many years from Philadelphia banks and institutions. They want 6 per cent money for 90 days, required to finance the picking and marketing of the crop.

There were various signs that the end of the bull market has come. Spot markets are weakening for the first time in many weeks. For an indefinite period the spot price of cotton at Galveston has been 12 5-16 to 12⅜, while New Orleans has been equally firm around 12 7-16c. Wednesday both broke to 12⅛. This is a bad sign, as these are two of the most important spot markets in the South. In fact, Galveston right now has larger stocks of cotton than any other of the thirteen counted spot centers of the South. The break, so sensational in its extent of July in New Orleans, is merely another sign of the times. More liquidation of a few thousand bales would not have taken that market had there been any confidence in the stability of the spot markets.

Quite a few notices were circulating this morning, being issued by Liverpool houses.

Liverpool cables: "Spot cotton, good business; prices easy; sales estimated 10,000 American; middling fair, 7.21d; good middling, 6.86d; middling, 6.61d; low middling, 6.41d; good ordinary, 5.93d; ordinary, 5.59d."

NEW ORLEANS, July 25.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map shows partly cloudy to cloudy over entire belt; nice rains in North Texas, with detailed records at 10 o'clock will show more also in Oklahoma. Fine rains also in the central and eastern belt. Cooler in Texas. Indications are for a good deal more rain coming on Texas and Oklahoma; also in West Texas. Continued showery weather over the central belt, and clearing over the Atlantics.

* * *

Habersham King's latest report says: "The dividing line is the Mississippi River. West of it the conditions are more dangerously dry. East of the river the crop is fairly safe, though rains are beginning to be needed in Mississippi, Alabama and more moisture needed in Georgia to render it quite safe. I think the week's developments have been unfavorable to 50 per cent of the belt."

MODERN MILLER CROP REPORT

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Weather this week was again favorable for winter wheat harvest, which is well under way in Northern sections of the winter wheat belt. While rains have had some effect on conditions of grain in localities where there was considerable moisture, quality of wheat sent to market, nevertheless, is uniformly good. Threshing returns generally satisfactory both as to quantity and quality.

While the movement of wheat to market is still free, there are indications in some localities of a let-up in the selling. Farmers seem willing to part with the first threshings and having thus relieved pressing needs, show a tendency to hold back the remainder of their wheat. Some farmers are taking advantage of the favorable soil conditions to begin breaking ground for fall wheat seeding.

PUBLIC ONCE MORE IN STOCK MARKET

By CHAS. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Another halt in the buying movement what is evidence on the stock market at the opening to-day, and a generally lower tone prevailed.

The news of the Government's suit against the American Telephone and Telegraph Company was used as a reason for pressure against that stock, which declined 1¼.

Other losses were: Southern Pacific ½, Union Pacific ¾, Steel common ⅛, American Locomotive ⅛, Canadian Pacific 1⅛, New Haven was up ⅛.

Other shares moved irregularly with the changes equally divided between gains and losses.

Trading in London was irregular.

The curb market was steady.

The market movements lacked uniformity, a large number of issues failing to share in the activity. However, sharp upturns displayed strength and the advance continued small but active. Canadian Pacific was conspicuous among the leaders. Steel rose ⅜ and Reading ⅛. Union Pacific moved up one point to 149⅛. Copper yielded ⅛. Northern Pacific and Pennsylvania were a shade lower. New Haven sold around 103¼.

Call money loaning at 2¼.

New low prices were made in many issues in the early afternoon, but in the late trading some slight recoveries were noted. Steel common reached 59 and there was brisk demand for Union Pacific, Reading and a number of specialties.

Life Costs More---AND LABOR MUST LIVE

Business Men Must Make Their Plans Based Upon Necessary, Inevitable, JUST and Steady Increase of Pay.

(Copyright, 1913.)

Following is an extract from a telegram sent from San Francisco by W. R. Hearst to the manager of his editorial department. The message is recommended to business men generally:

"I believe that the railroad men, and all laboring men, must positively get repeated increases in wages in order to enable them to maintain even their present standard of living, and that they should properly, in the development of our civilization, obtain an even higher standard of living. Business men must count upon increasing wages as one of the inevitable conditions of modern life, and must make their plans and form their enterprises accordingly.

"HEARST."

The opinion expressed in the above dispatch is that OF A MAN WHO PAYS OUT MILLIONS A YEAR IN WAGES, AND THE HIGHEST WAGES.

A man who pays millions annually in wages, and has constantly increased wages throughout his business career, has a right to be heard by employers as well as by workers.

In Congress, when Mr. Hearst appeared to argue in favor of the Eight-Hour law against manufacturers who opposed it, Mr. Hearst pointed out the fact that his opinion concerning the eight-hour day was not theory, but positive knowledge, inasmuch as he himself employed men on the eight-hour-day basis, had done so for years, intended to do so permanently, AND HAD MADE HIS BUSINESS PAY IN SPITE OF THAT HANDICAP, if it were a handicap.

Successful business men in the United States should give careful and open-minded attention to Mr. Hearst's telegram, which is a message from one business man to others, from one considerable employer of labor to other employers of labor.

It is not a hardship for the intelligent business man to pay good wages and work his men fair hours, IF OTHER BUSINESS MEN DO THE SAME.

The great thing is that business men shall have an understanding, that they shall realize that they and the workers are actually partners in national welfare, AND THAT THEY SHALL FIGHT AGAINST THE MEAN, NARROW AND HARMFUL MAN WHO REFUSES TO DO THE JUST AND HONORABLE THING.

If a thousand men employ a million workers in a certain line of effort, and if they all pay their men well and give them reasonable hours, THAT IS FAIR FOR EVERY EMPLOYER.

The trouble with our system is that the hard-hearted, narrow-minded, close-fisted man, who goes off by himself, shunning organization, refusing co-operation, and competing upon a basis of the lowest wages and the longest hours, has been allowed to enjoy his prosperity and his thrift through meanness without question.

Let the employers work on an even, just basis as to wages and hours, and then THE BEST MAN WILL WIN—the business man will win who has the best ideas, the highest intelligence and is able to render the greatest public service.

All that the good business man asks, all that the fair employer wants, is justice and the opportunity to compete for business success and prosperity on an even basis with other men of his own class.

The salvation and prosperity of this country, menaced now by half-baked ideas of half-baked Democrats at Washington, have been based very largely upon the fact that the United States through the tariff has been protected from the unfair competition of the unfair foreign employer and ill-treated foreign labor.

American business men, thanks to the tariff, have had to compete ONLY WITH AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN

The man who has made iron in this country, and who paid his puddlers as much as $8 a day and more, has not had to worry about the man in Belgium who was paying for the same labor less than one-quarter.

The man manufacturing goods in this country has manufactured in competition with AMERICAN employers, and need not keep his mind upon the problem of meeting the competition of some Chinese manufacturer able to get labor for five cents a day.

American industry has grown, American prosperity has grown, American wages have grown—AND THE COST OF LIVING, INCLUDING FARMERS' PROFITS, ALSO HAS GROWN, because over here we have kept our markets to ourselves, and competition has been among men living, working, manufacturing and competing on the same terms.

What will happen if Democrats who believe that they know all about business, manufactures and industry, BECAUSE THEY HAVE NEVER HAD ANYTHING TO DO WITH THOSE THINGS, are to have their way, if the tariff wall is to be torn down suddenly and the competition of the meanest foreign employers and the lowest paid foreign labor is to be met, is another story.

Fortunately, one election is followed by another election. It will not be difficult for workers and employers combined to have their way AT ANOTHER ELECTION and correct the threatening follies of this Administration.

The main thing is that those now working in this country, whether they work with their hands, as laborers and mechanics, or with their brains, as employers, should co-operate on a friendly basis, through the making of laws, for the establishment of minimum wage rates, especially as regards women, and in other sane, friendly and legal ways for the bettering of conditions.

It is time to get away from the days of strikes, of dynamite, of Homestead shootings by paid Pinkerton thugs, or Los Angeles explosions by degraded, depraved misrepresentatives of labor.

It is important that those who employ labor should recognize the truth of Mr. Hearst's statement in the above telegram, "that railroad men and all laboring men must positively get repeated increases in wages in order to enable them to maintain even their present standard of living, and that they should properly, in the development of our civilization, obtain an even higher standard of living."

The workingman to-day gets not twice, but three times, four times and five times what he got when this country was young.

McMaster, the historian, writes of a day when there was JUST ONE MECHANIC IN THE UNITED STATES ABLE TO MAKE A DOLLAR A DAY ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

One President of the United States, a well meaning man, was filled with gloom and thought the country was going to the dogs because when he spoke you could no longer hire a first-class man in this country for less than fifty cents a day.

If you had told an employer of those old days, even a George Washington, a Thomas Jefferson, or any other first-class old American, that one day in this country unskilled labor would demand and get two dollars a day and skilled mechanics three dollars, four dollars, five dollars a day and more, those old Americans would have said, "Well, the country must go to the dogs; the thing is impossible."

When you say to-day that wages, high as they seem to some, must be increased, and ought to be increased, the man of to-day, if he be shortsighted, will tell you that it is impossible, and that the country must go to the dogs.

BUT IT IS NOT IMPOSSIBLE, AND THE COUNTRY NEED NOT GO TO THE DOGS.

The American employer of to-day is better off, being richer, bigger in his enterprise, safer in his undertakings, than his predecessor who used to be able to hire a first-class man for fifty cents a day.

The men that own the street railways and pay $2.50 per day are better off than they were in the days when they got their labor for $1.00 or $1.10.

After all, what is the chief asset of the employer? Is it not the competent well-fed worker?

And far above the interest of the individual employer, what is the chief asset of the nation? Is it not a population of well-fed men, well paid, with time to rest, time for mental improvement, money enough to keep their children out of the mills and mines, and in school?

Not with hatred, bitterness and regret, but with pleasure as good citizens, the competent American business men, united, with laws to protect them, fighting the unfair competition of low wages and long hours, should gladly recognize that the purpose of a republic is not merely to make a few rich and protect them in their wealth, but to make the entire population happy, contented and prosperous.

Very gladly the employers of intelligence and power must, as Mr. Hearst says, "count upon increasing wages as one of the inevitable conditions of modern life, and make their plans and form their enterprises accordingly."

The employer should be reasonable and just.

And the workers should be reasonable, honest and fair.

We ought to be able to get away from an industrial system of fighting, hatred, battle and strikes.

The worker should be content to give a fair and full day's work for a fair day's wages and fair hours of work.

We should get away from these days when the employer does his best to get the most that he can out of the workman, and give him the least possible; and when the worker's thought and that of his leader is to get the most he can out of the employer and give the least possible.

Workers and employers should treat each other justly, combining as associates, friends and brothers, and GIVE TO THIS NATION AND TO THE FUTURE THE BEST POSSIBLE PRODUCT OF THEIR COMBINED BRAINS AND MUSCLE, ORGANIZED AND APPLIED IN SUCH A WAY AS NOT TO INTERFERE WITH THE HEALTH, THE HAPPINESS, THE MENTAL GROWTH OF THE PRESENT GENERATION, OR THE WELFARE OF THE GENERATIONS TO COME.

DR. PARKHURST

Writes on

Extravagance

It Is Both a Form of Lunacy and Immorality, He Declares.

Written For The Georgian

By the Rev. Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

THERE is such a thing as extravagance. The word stands for the wild use of money. It is barbarism expressing itself in the unreasoning scattering of dollars.

It is both a form of lunacy and a form of immorality—lunacy, because there is no sense in it; immorality, because it is a contemptuous waste of values.

Poor as Well as Rich.

No man has so much money as to warrant his expending it without a calculation of rational returns, returns accruing either to the enrichment of his own life or the life of someone else.

That is a principle which is being grossly disregarded, and the habits of people are tending more and more strongly in that direction.

This holds of the poor as well as of the rich, although in the case of the former it comes to less conspicuous expression and is therefore less thought of or commented upon.

The money that hundreds of thousands of poor people expend in whisky, beer and tobacco is both idiotic and wicked.

It is idiotic because it helps to keep them poor; it is wicked because it devotes to sheer animalism treasure that ought to go to higher ends, and which might be so utilized as to raise them to a higher level of human value.

"Stage of Vulgarity."

The poor man in Scripture who put his money where it would bring back to him no sensible return was cast into the outer darkness. That is the Bible's way of characterizing a senseless and vicious treatment of assets.

This silly extravagance of the poor is encouraged by the same habit practiced on a more stupendous scale by the rich.

The uncalculating and therefore iniquitous scattering of money by men with large fortunes is one of the features of the times.

As the late D. Willis James once remarked to me, "It has reached the stage of vulgarity."

Passion for luxury has been one of the causes assigned for the sinking of the Titanic; and now we have got the Imperator, and there are more coming.

A quarter of a century ago no one thought of a suite of rooms aboard ship costing above $500.

The figure has mounted now to $5,000. One can secure now, for $500, accommodations just as comfortable, just as well suited to personal and physical requirements, as were obtainable at that figure 25 years ago, and that would leave a margin of $4,500 expended without any rational or righteous return.

"Barbaric and Sinful."

Now, when we consider the wise and necessary uses to which money can be put, the beneficent institutions that need to be supported, the causes of every kind that languish for want of funds, the destitute women and children that go poorly clad and miserably fed and unfed, I say that, when such considerations are taken into account, for a man to lay out $5,000 or any considerable part of that for the sake of luxuries of six days' steamer travel is both barbaric and sinful.

And any man, no matter how much money he has, who has risen above the level of barbarism and sin ought to be ashamed to be publicly advertised as having sacrificed a sum so egregious on the altar of his own personal and animal comfort.

M'KEE, COLE AND HART LOSE OUT

Inefficiency Charged to Heads of Departments — Action Expected Next Week.

By HUGH MILLER.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The ousting of Postmaster McKee, Assistant Postmaster Cole and Superintendent of Mails I. C. Hart, of the Atlanta office, will occur early next week, according to information obtained to-day from the Postoffice Department in such a way there can be little doubt of its authority.

First Assistant Postmaster General Roper, who will be back from Denver early in the week, has announced that he will take up the Atlanta case the first thing on his return and a speedy decision is expected.

The principal charge against the three Atlanta officials, as contained in a report submitted to the Postmaster General by the chief inspector's office, is inefficiency, resulting in a chaotic condition of affairs in the office.

Postmaster Hugh McKee, when charges of alleged inefficiency in the Atlanta postoffice were first brought to light and dispatches from Washington stated that an investigation would ensue, denied ephatically that there was any truth in the accusations.

"If there is any inefficiency in the Atlanta office, I do not know it," said Mr. McKee. "I defy all charges to the effect that I am not competent to judiciously conduct the office. At all times I have every detail under my full control.

"My superintendent of mails, Mr. Hart, is one of the best in the country, and my assistant postmaster, Mr. Cole, is thoroughly competent. My subordinates all report daily to me, and every complaint registered in this office is brought to my personal attention. I have instructed all clerks and officials to bring people to my office who have a grievance.

"The reason I have all men under me report so regularly is because I am held responsible for each man, and I realize that it is solely up to me to see that each man does his duty."

Citizens Approve Pryor Street Work

South Pryor street property owners met at the McCord Grocery Store, Georgia avenue and Pryor street, Thursday night and adopted the plans of the city engineer for widening, grading and underpass work. More than forty property owners were present.

The plans call for a cut of three feet at Bass street and a fill of three feet at Dodd avenue. A cut of fifteen feet will be made at the end of Pryor street for the underpass under the Southern Railway tracks. The street will be widened two feet. Councilman Knight, who was present, volunteered to take the underpass proposition before the county board for co-operation with the Southern Railway.

H. B. Williams, a mill weaver, and George Harris, a truck driver, were bound over under $200 bond by Judge Broyles to a higher court Friday afternoon upon the testimony of J. A. Harris, a detective, that they were the accomplices of T. W. Reeves and R. W. Miller who have been already bound over under $6,000 bond charged with a series of burglaries. Harris secured his evidence from the four men by posing as their 'pal.'

CHATTANOOGA, July 25.—Local officers were notified to-day of the arrest in Risin, Ark., of Edward Langford, of this city on a warrant charging bigamy, sworn out here by his wife, who, with six children, the youngest of whom Lanford has never seen was deserted. Nothing is known here of the wife in Arkansas. Langford did not demand requisition.

CALUMET, MICH., July 26.—Four hundred striking miners to-day attacked the deputies guarding the Baltic mines south of Houghton, robbed the officers of their stars and drove them from the mine proper.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific Railroad, was this afternoon elected president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford, to succeed Charles S. Mellen, resigned.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Secretary of State Bryan will confer to-morrow with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the Mexican situation and his protreaty placing a protectorate over Nicaragua. It was asserted to-day that leaders in the Senate still look with much favor on the suggestion that this country mediate the differences between the warring factions in Mexico.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Detectives to-day had failed to find trace of a thief who stole jewelry valued at $700 from Mrs. Edward F. Dunne, wife of the Governor of Illinois. The theft was committed yesterday afternoon in the rest room of a Chicago department store.

NASHVILLE, July 25.—Charged with passing worthless checks, drawn on Atlanta banks, to which were forged the name of D. D. Martin, copying the name from a check which he got from an Atlanta minister, L. C. Arment, aged 22 years, a young man of good appearance, is under arrest here to-day.

He claims to be from Chicago.

NEW YORK, July 25.—An additional indictdent charging him with using in telephone conversations the names of Speaker Clark of the House of Representatives and Senator Stone of Missouri, was to-day returned by the Federal Grand Jury against David Lamar, whose revelations before the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee already has caused him to be indicted for impersonating lawmakers.

Mrs. Pankhurst Near Death From Hunger Strike; Under Knife

LONDON July 25.—The condition of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who was released from Holloway jail yesterday, is reported to-day to be grave.

The "hunger strike" which she inaugurated when in jail has greatly undermined Mrs. Pankhurst's constitution. So weakened was her condition to-day that she was subjected to a transfusion of blood operation. The physicians decided that an operation was necessary in order to save the militant leader's life.

Declaring that they will serve their imprisonment rather than pay fines, Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, Lady Sybil Smith and Miss Evelyn Sharpe, who were arrested yesterday when they tried to hold a suffrage meeting at the entrance to the House of Commons, were taken to jail to-day. The women were fined $200 or the option of spending fourteen days in jail.

WITNESSES FOR FRANK CALLED

Despite Judge's Statement All Is in Readiness, Move for Postponement Is Expected.

Despite the fact that Superior Judge L. S. Roan stated everything was in readiness for the trial of Leo M. Frank next Monday, that State's Attorney Hugh M. Dorsey has announced he will fight a delay, and that the defense actually commenced summoning witnesses, the impression still prevailed Friday that a motion for continuance would be made by the defense when the case is opened.

Attorneys Luther Rosser and Reuben R. Arnold declined flatly to say whether they would permit the trial to proceed without introducing some motion for a postponement, and the report was that witnesses had been summoned to be on the safe side in the event a request to put off the trial is refused.

Frank Is Ready.

The accused man was in the best of health and spirits, according to an announcement from the Tower Friday, and was anxious that the case go to trial. His illness would be the best ground upon which to secure a delay, but the inability of any one of the more material witnesses to come into court would more than likely be considered a sufficient legal reason.

Judge Roan considered it highly improbable that the case would be put off on account of his indisposition. He said that he was in the best of health, and that if any continuance were secured it would be at the request of the State's attorney or the counsel for the accused man.

"I had a slight attack of indigestion Wednesday night," he said, "but I was all right Thursday morning and opened court at Covington. I disposed of three murder trials before noon, and left for Atlanta at 12:30 in the afternoon.

Judge to Require Good Reason.

"To the best of my knowledge the trial of Leo M. Frank will begin next Monday. The only possibility of postponement would be some very good and sufficient legal reason for a continuance advanced by the State or the defense. During the eleven years I have been on the bench I have never postponed a trial on account of being ill, and I will not consider any personal inconvenience next Monday.

"The reason in not drawing the jury earlier was to guard against several of the veniremen leaving the city rather than to serve.

"The date set was in the nature of an agreement, and I would imagine both sides were ready and willing for the trial to go on."

The weather will not play any part in securing a postponement unless the mercury registers 99 degrees or higher. Judge Roan said that he laughingly remarked last Saturday that if the temperature was as high next Monday as it was then he would be glad to continue the case. He said that he had not considered such a proposition seriously, but if it got so hot as to be extremely uncomfortable, he might consider a postponement.

Special deputies were sworn in Friday morning to begin serving the 144 veniremen whose names were drawn Thursday afternoon by Judge John T. Pendleton. It will be late Saturday evening before the last man can be served, according to Deputy Sheriff Plennie Miner, who had charge of the extra men.

The fact that the jury actually was drawn and several had been served Friday morning and that the State's witnesses were already under subpena to be at the courtroom Monday morning was the strongest assurance that the trial would actually begin.

Judge Roan had been averse to putting the State to the expense of serv-

Photographers of U. S. Will Meet in Atlanta Next Year

The Photographers' Association of America, now in convention in Kansas City, voted Atlanta for the 1914 meeting place Friday, according to a dispatch from L. D. Hicks, advertising manager of The Southern Ruralist, No. 118 East Hunter street, who headed a delegation of Atlanta boosters which set out to win the next meet.

"Atlanta won the next convention of the Photographers' Association of America. This will bring 2,000 of the leading photographers of the world to Atlanta next July. Harry Goodhar' made a remarkable speech, which carried the convention by storm."

Stricter Slaughter House Laws Urged

Recommendations for the creation of a Department of Banking and another for the supervision of slaughter houses were made by the Banking and Hygiene and Sanitation Committees of the House Friday morning. A favorable passage for both of these bills through the House is regarded as highly probable.

The provision of a department to supervise slaughter houses is to make more complete the fight which has resulted in the prosecution of a number of prominent packing concerns under recent instructions of the Commissioner of Agriculture.

The banking bill provides for a closer inspection of banks and more rigid laws concerning their operations.

Brooklyn Buys C. Brown, of Billikens

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 25.—Pitcher Charles ("Curly") Brown, one of the best of the Billikens' hurlers, was sold this morning to the Brooklyn Nationals by the St. Louis Browns, to whom Brown belonged. The price was reported as $7,000. The pitcher will be allowed to finish the season with Montgomery.

President Ebbets, of the Brooklyn club, has been here two days settling the deal and looking over his prospective purchase. He professes to see great things in store for the young slabman.

125 Newsies To See Motorcycle Races

There is to be a grand march tonight, beginning at The Georgian's office and ending at the Motordrome, where 125 newsboys are to be entertained as guests of The Georgian at the most spectacular bill the pop-pop boys have yet presented. By way of refreshments, a half carload of watermelons will be taken off the ice and served to the guests of honor at opportune junctures in the racing.

The parade is to start promptly at 8 o'clock.

DOUBLE BILL STOPPED BY RAIN

Crackers and Billikens Again Forced to Remain Idle on Account of Rain.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 25.—Rain caused a postponement of to-day's double-header between the Crackers and Billikens. The teams started to play the opening game, but after each team had scored two runs in the first inning a heavy downpour forced the umpire to call the combat.

Clark and E. Brown were on the mound.

Welchonce secured a home run with Agler on ahead. Elwert scored the Billikens first run with a timely triple to right. He later scored on a scratch single.

The rain refused to cease at 4:15 and the second battle was also called off. The teams are scheduled to clash in a double-header to-morrow.

Agler walked. Bisland sacrificed. Welchonce hit a line drive to deep right for a hime run, scoring Agler ahead of him. Long was hit by a pitched ball. Alperman out, Elwert to Snedecor, Long going to second. Smith popped to Snedecor. ONE HIT, TWO RUNS.

Manning flied to Welchonce. Wares walked. Elwert tripled to right, scoring Wares. Sloan fanned. Jantzen lined to Clark, too hot to handle which went for a hit, Elwert scored. Knaupp walked. Jantzen and Knaupp work a double steal. Snedecor fanned. TWO HITS, TWO RUNS.

Insane Hospital Conditions Flayed In House Speech

"There are wards in the State Sanitarium which the public is not allowed to see on account of the terrible conditions caused by the failure of the State to appropriate sufficient money to properly care for the inmates," said Representative Henry L. Fullbright of Burke in the House Friday morning. "The unfortunates who are inmates of Georgia's Insane Asylum deserve every care possible, and this appropriation is not too much."

The charges were made during an attack on the Appropriation Committee's recommendations for a half million dollars for the institution, included in the general appropriations bill. Representative Barry Wright and others brought objection to it on the grounds that it was an increase of more than $100,000 of the 1909 appropriation, and an increase of $10,000 over last year.

The appropriation as recommended was passed.

BOSTON, July 25.—Chased for more than 3,000 miles, from Atlanta to Boston, John D. Mattiford, 50 years of age, was arrested here to-day, charged with being a fugitive from justice. Mattiford is charged by the Atlanta police with Kidnaping John A. Barwick, Jr., 5 years old, and his sister, Dorothy T., 9, children of John A. Barwick, of Atlanta.

Mattiford pleaded not guilty in the police court to-day and was held in $1,000 for the Atlanta police.

The police also are looking for Mrs. Barwick, mother of the children, and Mrs. Annie Laurie Jeter, mother of Mrs. Barwick. Mrs. Jeter is also charged with kidnaping the children.

For the past three months Inspectors Dorsey and O'Neal had been searching for Mattiford. He has been trailed all over New England, but escaped. For several weeks Mattiford and Mrs. Barwick were registered at the Clarendon Hotel under the name of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Martin.

Shortly before 10 o'clock to-day they saw Mattiford walking down Columbus avenue alone. Inspector Dorsey approached him, spoke his name and Mattiford turned. He was immediately placed under arrest and taken to police headquarters.

He told Chief McCarr that he did not know where the women or the children are, but he supposed they had gone back to Atlanta.

WIMBLEDON, ENG., July 25.—The American tennis team broke even with England in the first day's play for the Davis cup. To the surprise of all, M. E. McLoughlin, the "California flame," lost his match to the veteran Parke, who scored 8-0, 7-5, 6-4, 1-6, 7-5.

R. Norris Williams made up for his partner's disappointing showing by defeating Dixon, 8-6, 8-6, 6-2, 1-6, 7-5.

The doubles match will be played to-morrow.

TENNESSEAN CAUGHT IN CRUSADE ON VICE

Declares That His Arrest Is the Result of a Political "Frame-Up."

NASHVILLE, July 25.—Ex-Governor M. R. Patterson was to-day arrested in a raid on a house in the restricted district.

The proprietress, eight girl inmates and two young men were also arrested. The charges filed against the ex-Governor was loitering about a house of ill-fame. Patterson's friends are incensed over the so-called "frame-up."

The raid was led by Sergeant Longhurst, brother of Sheriff Longhurst, whom Patterson opposed for election.

Friends of Patterson declare that the real motive behind his arrest was that he was here taking a hand in local politics and endeavoring to bring out a municipal ticket against the organization led by Mayor Hillary Howse, because Howse several months ago opposed Patterson's candidacy for United States Senator.

Patterson's home is at Memphis, but during his four years' residence here, while Governor, he took at least a passive interest in local politics. Previous to his unsuccessful senatorial race he had the support of the Howse faction in State contests. Since the break the feeling of antagonism between Patterson and Howse has been keen.

MACON, GA., July 26.—Charging him with obtaining money under false pretense, a warrant was sworn out this afternoon for the arrest of Dr. Bernard C. Goldberg, who gives his address as 400 Atlanta Trust Building. The warrant was issued by Dr. T. M. Sigman, in Justice McCowan's court.

Several days ago Dr. Goldberg came to Macon and advertised that he was organizing a "herd" of the Benevolent Order of Buffaloes here. It is said that he appointed three physicians "sole medical examiners" and obtained a fee from each of them, accepted several membership applications with fees, gave a large order for furniture and took a commission for procuring the contract, and engaged "general counsellor the Southern States" and solicited a fee from him. He is now missing.

His stationery classifies him as "national medical director," with headquarters in Atlanta, fourth floor Atlanta Trust Building. The Atlanta authorities will be asked to arrest him.

Kansas Official in Company Attacked Under Blue Sky Law

TOPEKA, KANS., July 25.—D. M. Mounday was arrested here to-day charged with conspiracy to use the United States mails to defraud.

Mounday was the organizer of the American Sugar Manufacturing and Refining Company of New Mexico and recently filed suit here seeking to have Kansas' "blue sky" law declared invalid, Bank Commissioner Sawyer having declined to authorize Mounday to sell stocks and land contracts of his company.

Many prominent Kansans are connected with the company. Charles Sessions, Secretary of State, and former Senator Charles Curtis are directors.

LIE PASSED OVER LOBBY HINT IN BUDGET WAR

Appropriations Bill Passes House After Bitter Verbal Battle. Little Danger of Veto.

The lie was passed in the House Friday, Representative Barry Wright, of Floyd, using the word in resenting lobbying charges intimated by Representative Howard Ennis, of Baldwin. Ennis started toward Wright, but several of the other members of the House intervened and the matter was quickly straightened out, Mr. Ennis declaring that his words carried no innuendo or intimation, but that he was simply asking for information.

Representative Wright had moved for a reconsideration of sections 4 and 5 of the general appropriations bill, which the House was considering as a committee of the whole. These two sections provide for the appropriations for schools, colleges and State institutions.

Ennis interrupted Wright in a speech and inquired if "he was not inspired by members of the 'third house' to ask for a reconsideration."

Wright's Retort Sharp.

The reply of Wright was that "any such a statement was a lie, an absolute falsehood." He demanded that if Ennis had such proof or evidence that he at once submit it to the House.

Ennis explained that he had no such evidence; that he did not mean to intimate that the Representative from Floyd had been so inspired, but that he simply wanted to find out if such could be the case.

Carrying with it an appropriation of $5,795,667, which is $108,900 under last year's bill, and carrying an additional appropriation of $3,679,000 to refund bonds in 1914-15, the general appropriations bill was passed by the House Friday.

By the passage of the bill at this time all House records were broken, and everything looks safe for a quick passage through the Senate and to the Governor for approval.

Little Change in Bill.

The bill, as amended, showed a difference in but three of the appropriations recommended by the committee. This included $2,550,000 for the public school fund for each of the years 1913 and 1914, which was an increase of $50,000 over the committee recommendation; $30,000 instead of $25,000 for the maintenance of the Soldiers' Home, and a slight increase in the appropriation for clerical help in one of the Statehouse departments.

Much debate was indulged in on several items, Representative Barry Wright objecting to many on the grounds that it was following in the footsteps of the 1911 Legislature, "which was the most extravagant in the history of Georgia."

The Confederate pensions section, which covered many items, totaling $1,074,800, was an object of special attack, but no change was made in it.

Must Raise Alimony Or Remain in Jail

MACON, July 25.—J. C. Brooks, a Central of Georgia Railroad conductor, has been sentenced by Judge Mathews to stay in jail until he can procure a bondsman whose bail will insure the payment of monthly alimony to his wife.

Brooks has already spent ten days in jail, owing to his failure to obtain bond. He and his mother swore in court that they could not get a bondsman.

GAMBLERS INDICTED; FINED.

CARTERSVILLE.—The July Grand Jury returned 86 true bills, including indictments against a number of prominent young men for gambling. Practically all pleaded guilty and were given light fines by Judge Fite. Proprietors of local drug stores were indicted for selling cigarettes to minors.

GIRL DIES IN FLAMES; HEROIC MOTHER HURT

Miss Bessie Lyon, who was fatally injured when her dress was ignited by the fire in an open grate.

BEAUTY EXHIBIT AT CANAL FAIR URGED

A reader suggests that the pictures of the ten leading beauties in the booster button contest be included in he Georgia exhibit at the Panama Exposition in San Francisco.

It is not unlikely this suggestion will be carried out by the Booster Club.

When the prettiest girl finally is selected for the "500,000 Club" booster button her face will become the emblem of that organization, but her name will not be on the buttons. The only words under the pretty face will be the slogan: "Watch Atlanta—She'll Get You Yet."

Miss George Green, of No. 223 North Jackson street, is one of the entrants to-day. She is another brunette and makes the number of brunettes equal to the blondes in the contest. At first it seemed that the blondes would predominate.

Nominations still are invited. Girls nominated now will have practically as good an opportunity from the standpoint of time as those suggested at the first. It is with The Georgian readers who is to be selected, the nomination and voting coupons being published each day.

Young Woman's Skirt Fired by Blaze in Grate—Parent Unable to Save Her.

As a result of severe burns received when her skirts caught fire from a grate in which she was burning some trash at her home, No. 349 Capitol avenue, Miss Bessie Lyon, 19 years old, died Thursday night at the Georgian Hospital. She was the daughter of R. L. Lyon, superintendent of the Austell Building.

In the room next to the one in which the girl succumbed, her heroic mother Friday lay, suffering from serious burns received while trying to extinguish the flames which enveloped the daughter.

The accident occurred Wednesday afternoon. Miss Lyon had swept some light trash into the grate in the front room on the second floor, and, after applying a match to it, turned to leave. A tongue of flame leaped up to the hem of her skirt as it swished over the fire, and immediately the filmy cloth blazed.

Girl Flees in Terror.

When the girl discovered her plight, all presence of mind left her. Screaming, she burst open the door and leaped down the stairway. Her body by this time was enveloped in flames.

Mrs. Lyon, emerging from a back room, saw her daughter as she bounded down the stairs. Grabbing a blanket, she ran after her, catching the terrified girl as she reached the first floor of the building, where Mr. and Mrs. B. Clein live.

A struggle between the two women ensued before the blanket was placed about the younger one. In her efforts to save her daughter, Mrs. Lyon let the flames catch in the sleeves of her own dress, and for a time it looked as though both women would be burned to death.

Pedestrians from the street rushed in. Mrs. Clein had picked up a rug from the floor and was endeavoring to throw it over the mother and daughter.

Mrs. Lyon was separated from the burning girl and the flames in her dress were quickly extinguished.

Girl's Dress Burned Off.

So filmy was the material of the daughter's dress, however, that it burned off of her before the fire was out out. The girl was unconscious and her body blackened.

An ambulance was called and the two women were taken to the Georgian Hospital. The daughter never regained consciousness.

The mother received burns about the face and arms, from which she will recover.

Aged Doctor Dies as He Asks for Blessing

DAWSON, July 25.—When Dr. W. C. Kendrick said "let's have the blessing now," as he sat down at the breakfast table this morning, his head fell back and he died immediately.

Dr. Kendrick was 83 years old. He retired from medical practice last week, after 58 years' service. He had held many positions of honor, having represented Webster and Terrell Counties in the Legislature.

DOCTORS MEET IN ELBERTON.

ELBERTON.—Physicians of the Eighth District will meet in Elberton on August 20. Chairman W. J. Mathews, of the visiting committee, is preparing to entertain at least 200.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The tragedy of suicides which followed the elopement of Elsa Schroeder with "Baron" Richard Arkovy, a Hungarian adventurer, culminated to-day when Robert W. Schroeder, a retired stock broker, ended his life by gas in the same room where his wife, heartbroken over their daughter's marriage, also committed suicide with the same gas jet.

In 1909 the "Baron" captivated Elsa, then a 19-year-old girl. She had inherited $200,000 from her grandfather, Jacob Hoffman, a brewer. Despite her parents' opposition, Elsa eloped. The "Baron" went through the girl's fortune in a few months. She left him to return to her parents, but in the interval, her mother had taken her life.

Arkovy continued in the limelight for a time after his wife had sued him for separation. He was heard of in Monte Carlo and other gambling resorts. Then came the news that in April last he had killed himself with morphine in a London hotel.

The suicide of the father came as a climax to the disasters which followed on the heels of the elopement.

CAMPER ACCIDENTALLY SLAIN.

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., July 25.—Emmett C. O'Neal, a well-known young newspaper man of Huntsville, was accidentally killed by a revolver in the hands of Fulgham Hall, a fellow member of a camping party near here.

SUMMER SCHOOL TO CLOSE.

ATHENS.—The summer school which has been in session since June 30 will close next Friday after possibly the best session in its history.

ing the jury until it was reasonably certain the trial would begin, and he will urge that both sides go to trial rather than inconvenience the jury and witnesses, many of whom will make arrangements to absent themselves from work to be at the courtroom Monday.

Jim Conley was questioned again late Thursday and was made to rehearse his movements on the day of the tragedy, being taken to the various places he asserted he visited the forenoon and afternoon of April 26.

Chief Beavers assumed charge of the negro, and was assisted by Detectives Starnes and Campbell, who had taken Conley to the Tower the day before without the Chief's permission.

Conley was taken from the station secretly, and the four were in the Chief's automobile and out of sight before the officers' intentions were known. The negro was taken to Carter street and Electric avenue, the point where William H. Mincey swears he saw Conley the afternoon of April 26, and heard him boast of killing a girl.

That the detectives are bending every effort either to discredit or establish definitely the Mincey affidavit was made evident by the number of persons they interviewed, with the purpose of ascertaining if anyone had seen Conley at the place and at the time Mincey says he had his conversation with the negro.

Conley also was taken to the office of Solicitor Dorsey, where he was quizzed closely in regard to his reported remark when crowds began to gather near the factory that he "would give a million dollars if he were a white man." The remark was said to have been overheard by another negro, and this negro was in the Solicitor's office to confront Conley.

Chief Beavers would not divulge the results of the afternoon's work except to say that nothing had developed to change his theory of the crime.

Rope Also Found.

It became known Friday that a piece of rope was among the finds made on the first floor of the National Pencil Factory after the murder of Mary Phagan. It was found by the Pinkerton operatives at the same time the torn envelope purporting to be Mary Phagan's and the blood-stained club were discovered.

The defense has not hastened to an assumption that any of this evicase. The attorneys have insisted dence is of vital importance in the that the evidence be proved genuine beyond a doubt. It is understood that no absolute proof has been found that the envelope was that in which Mary Phagan received her money. The same lack of definite information is said to exist in respect to the club and the piece of rope.

The rope was found wedged in the radiator near the spot where the club and the envelope were discovered and only a few feet from the box on which Jim Conley was sitting Saturday afternoon.

Bulgars Ask Aid in Keeping Out Turks

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

SOFIA, July 25.—Her warlike spirit curbed by the continued defeats inflicted on her army by the other Balkan States, Bulgaria to-day appealed to the powers to stop the invasion of her country by the Turks. The appeal is made in the interest of Christianity.

It is likely that restraining influence on Turkey will come from Russia, with the consent of the other powers.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 25.—Turkey continues her defiance of the powers. To-day the Porte delivered an ultimatum that if Russia continues her advances into Turkish territory grave complications will arise.

Cause of Mulhall's Discharge Sought

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Why Colonel M. M. Mulhall was discharged by the National Association was inquired into to-day by the Overman lobby inquiry committee.

The subpena for John Mitchell and other officials of the American Federation of Labor were returnable today, but Chairman Overman did not wish to examine them until the remainder of the Mulhall letters had been read.

ATLANTA GIRL IS HURT IN AUTO SMASH UP.

Miss Theo Prioleau One of Victims in Accident at Monroe, La.—Sister Escapes.

MONROE, LA., July 25.—One person was killed outright, two others were seriously injured and another bruised when an automobile, occupied by a party of men and women, turned turtle while racing another machine two miles from Monroe just before midnight.

The Dead.

The Injured.

Miss Theo Prioleau, daughter of Mrs. E. L. Prioleau, of Atlanta, Ga., right leg broken in two places.

R. L. Prophet, Jr., back sprained.

Miss Ruth Williams, of Monroe, badly bruised.

Others in the party included Miss Dolly Prioleau, sister of Miss Theo, and H. P. Decker, of Newburg, N. C. They were unhurt.

Said to Have Been Racing.

The Smith car was being driven by the man who was killed, and with Morgan George and a party of friends, was returned from Horseshoe Lake, a pleasure resort above Monroe.

George says the two cars were racing and were going at least 45 miles an hour. He said he was about half mile ahead of the Smith car and did not see the accident. From reliable reports, it is learned that when about two miles from town the Smith car, striking a sharp curve in the road, turned a double somersault, going over a ditch.

Autoists Find Victims.

The car was uninjured and was driven to Monroe this morning by autoists who found the dead and injured on the side of the road and rendered all the aid possible.

The George party reached town and after waiting some time for the Smith party decided to go back, they found them on the roadside. The Prioleau girls were taken to the residence of W. L. Smith, in Monroe, and Miss Williams was taken to the home of her grandfather. Prophet was taken to a sanitarium.

The Misses Prioleau have been honored at many special functions.

The Misses Theo and Dolly Prioleau are well known in society circles here. They reside with their mother, Mrs. Eula L. Prioleau, at No. 70 East Merritts street, and have been prominently connected with social activities of Atlanta during the season. Mrs. Prioleau was prostrated by news of the accident, but received telegraphic assurances that Miss Theo was in no danger.

Washington's Lost Nose Is Restored

PITTSBURG, PA., July 25.—The statue of George Washington on the dome of the courthouse at Washington, Pa., recently found to be minus its nose, has been repaired. Recent storms are supposed to have been the disrespectful despoiler of George's face.

Clarence Seybold, a cement work, ascended the 16-foot stone pile and administered the functions of a beauty doctor to General Washington. He affixed an olfactory organ as may suit all purposes until a sculptor can be summoned.

Works Sees Ruin in New Sugar Schedule

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Senator Works of California to-day assailed the sugar schedule in the Democratic tariff bill and insisted that it meant ruin for hundreds of sugar beet producers in California and other Western States.

He declared the President exceeded his constitutional authority by aiding in framing the tariff bill and used his power improperly to have the bill passed in the form he desired.

Grand Jury Head Shoots Three Men

AIKEN, S. C., July 25.—In the presence of nine negroes and three white men, on a public highway six miles from town, Jason Spires, foreman of the present Aiken County grand jury, shot two white men and an old negro to-day.

The men wounded are Moseley Randall, shot in right lung and upper part of right arm; Jenks Randall, shot in left groin, and John Lattimer, negro, flesh wound.

The Randall brothers, with another white man, were in charge of a gang of nine negroes working the Silver Bluff Road. When the gang reached Spire's place, it is said, he demanded that no work be done in front of his residence. The shooting resulted.

Suffragettes Rally To Ella Flagg Young

CHICAGO, July 25.—The governing bodies of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association, Chicago Political Equality League and two men's parties of Cook County, met to-day in a determined campaign to prevent the retirement of Mrs. Ella Flagg Young as superintendent of Chicago public schools.

Mrs. Young, who has been in the schools of the city since 1868, said her resignation was presented because she was "tired of fighting." Mrs. Young is 68 years of age.

Hot Air Marks Claim To Perpetual Motion

TURIN, July 25.—Tests have been made before scientists here of a machine invented by a mechanician named Fiorio, by which, it is claimed, perpetual motion is demonstrated.

The machine collects the inexhaustible caloric energy of the air and transforms it into mechanical energy. The air is supplied automatically, and the apparatus is in continuous motion by reason of the passage of the gas from the warmer atmosphere to the colder water.

TO VOTE ON BONDS.

CARTERSVILLE.—The Mayor and Commissioners have called an election for the issuance of $75,000 of bonds for a sewerage system, extending water mains and improving streets. The election will be held August 16.

SEABOARD TRAIN WRECKED; ONE NEAR DEATH

Passenger train No. 17 on the Seaboard Air Line, due in Atlanta from Abbeville, S. C., at 8:40 a. m., was wrecked Friday morning when just abreast the National Furniture Company plant at 844 Marietta street, by plunging into an interlocking switch set against it.

The negro fireman, Albert Wallace, of No. 44 Rock street, Atlanta, was thrown across the tracks when the engine toppled, and was carried to Grady Hospital unconscious. He is not expected to live. Engineer C. A. Tennant, of Abbeville, S. C., was badly shaken up and bruised, but was not seriously injured.

The front trucks of the first coach, a combination passenger and baggage car, left the tracks, and the occupants, all negroes, were given a severe jolting. None of the other four cars was derailed.

Inquiry Begun by Road.

Officials of the Seaboard, in an effort to fix the responsibility for the wreck, are investigating the report that the signal board indicated "all clear" until the train was almost upon the switch and that at this instant the operator in the tower pulled the signal and derailed the train.

T. L. Brook, of No. 66 Currier street, long in the employ of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, is the towerman. He denied the signal had been set against the incoming train just as the interlocking switch was reached, resulting in the derailment. He said that a dead Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic train on its way to the yards was crossing the Western and Atlantic track on which Seaboard train No. 17 was approaching, and that Tennant must have overlooked the signal set against him.

Two Employees Shift Blame.

Tennant claims that the signal was white. Towerman Brook declares that it was red. The W. & A. officials will join with the Seaboard in the investigation. Tennant has been with the Seaboard since 1902 and has been regarded as careful and trustworthy. He has had a passenger run for three years.

MOTHER'S FRIEND IN EVERY HOME

The old saying—what is home without a mother—should add "Mother's Friend."

In thousands of American homes there is a bottle of this splendid and famous remedy that has aided many a woman through the trying ordeal, saved her from suffering and pain, kept her in health of mind and body in advance of baby's coming and had a most wonderful influence in developing a healthy, lovely disposition in the child.

There is no other remedy so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant those fibers and muscles which nature is expanding and soothes the inflammation of breast glands.

Mother's Friend is an external remedy, acts quickly and not only banishes all distress in advance, but assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother. Thus she becomes a healthy woman with all her strength preserved to thoroughly enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend can be had at any drug store at $1.00 a bottle, and is really one of the greatest blessings ever discovered for expectant mothers. Write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 128 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their free book. Write to-day. It is most instructive.

Until a short time ago, scarcely one person in a thousand had ever tasted a really good soda cracker—as it came fresh and crisp from the oven.

CHAPTER 4 IN PHAGAN MYSTERY

Inquest Into Slaying of Factory Girl and First Sensational 'Confession' of Negro Sweeper Jim Conley.

CHAPTER IV.

Through all the interrogation of witnesses by the Coroner's jury and through the ordeal of a half day's inquisition of Leo M. Frank, no bit of direct and positive evidence was developed against either Newt Lee or Frank. When, however, at the close of their session on Thursday, May 8, the six jurors found that Mary Phagan had come to her death by strangulation and ordered that Frank and Lee be held to the Grand Jury, they did the only thing left to them.

So far as they knew at that time Frank and Lee were the only persons who could have had the opportunity to commit the crime. They knew that they were unequal to the mystery, the baffling elements of which mounted in numbers and proportions as the case progressed. They passed it on to the Grand Jury.

Lee and Frank, as the two persons who presumably would know the most about the crime, were probably the most important witnesses, but the closest interrogation of the negro failed to bring out any important testimony that he had not already given the officers.

Frank Recalled to Stand.

Frank was recalled to the stand for a few moments when the inquest resumed Thursday, May 8, but nothing was developed. The spectators, however, were sure that disclosures which might fix the guilt for the crime would be made during the testimony of Harry Scott, who had been working on the case for the Pinkertons. Scott followed Frank upon the stand. He told of his negotiations with Frank and the other National Pencil Company officials.

The little room was hushed awaiting the answer when Coroner Donehoo shot at him just as his testimony was concluding:

"Have you any definite clew as to who committed this awful murder?"

Scott's reply was a disappointment to those in the crowded inquest room.

"I would not care to commit myself that far," he said.

"Have you any definite suspicion?" persisted Coroner Donehoo.

Detectives Non-committal.

"We are working along a chain of evidence which I would not care to give out," the detective replied.

Detective Black's testimony was fully as non-committal. It was a striking commentary on the fact that the detectives had been working on the case near two weeks and as yet had no more idea of the identity of the murderer of Mary Phagan than they had at the end of the first three days after the body was found.

They had a "chain of evidence" which established that Leo Frank was in the factory when Mary Phagan arrived and later was attacked, a circumstance which Frank already had freely and promptly acknowledged. Beyond this they had nothing direct or positive.

They had dropped all their suspicion of Gantt and Mullinax and the young men were released. After both had been identified with a degree of certainty that left little doubt that they had been with Mary Phagan the night that she was slain, it was proved that neither had seen the little factory girl for weeks.

Mullinax Freed by Girl.

The loyal defense of Mullinax by Miss Pearl Robinson, his pretty 18-year-old sweetheart, was one of the bright spots in the sordid murder mystery. When she heard of the things of which the police were accusing her lover she went with all speed to the station and there, indignant that anyone could make such a blunder as to suspect "Arthur," she told the detectives what she thought of them, declared that Mullinax was with her at the time the crime then was thought to have been committed, and finally all but stormed his cell and took him away with her.

With the work of the Coroner's jury finished, conjecture at once arose as to the probable action of the Grand Jury.

The handling of the case passed at this time largely out of the control of the detectives and was assumed by Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey. Within a few days his announcement came that he had engaged the "greatest detective in the world," and it became the general hope that when the Grand Jury met to consider the case, some positive evidence would have been developed to fasten the crime definitely upon one person or another.

Burns Man Investigates.

The "greatest detective" proved to be Frank Pond, at one time a Pinkerton operative. What evidence of value he uncovered is still a secret closely guarded by the Solicitor. About the same time negotiations were started to bring the world-famous W. J. Burns to Atlanta. Burns, however, was abroad, having just taken part in the search for J. Wilberforce Martin, the wealthy Memphian, and was unable to come at once. C. W. Tobie, one of the Burns superintendents, came in his chief's place and worked on the case for several weeks, and then left without making announcement of any important discoveries.

Along with these sleuths a half dozen other experts were drawn into the mystery. Among them were P. A. Flak, the New York finger-print expert; L. J. Fletcher, Bertillon expert at the Federal prison, and a number of physicians and bacteriologists.

Lessening in significance much of the work accomplished and the evidence found by these men was the fact that they for the most part had concluded their investigations and had left the city before one of the most important elements of the whole mystery was introduced which they had not given consideration in their investigations or in their theories.

This element was the fact that there was another person, of whom they knew nothing, in the factory at the time the girl was attacked.

Pond's Theory Shattered.

Frank Pond, "the greatest detective," is understood to have said that he could fix the guilt upon Frank by a process of elimination. He considered one person after another, showing that it would have been impossible for each one of them to commit the crime.

When he had finished, Leo Frank was the only one to whom sufficient opportunity had been afforded. But he was unaware of the presence in the building of a skulking negro, who from his hiding place watched the factory girls and other employees as they entered and left the building.

As the day for the Grand Jury session approached, the Solicitor redoubled his efforts to obtain some definite evidence for presentation to the jurors. A sensation was created when the Solicitor, Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, and Dr. H. F. Harris, Director of the State Board of Health, made a secret trip to Marietta and exhumed the body of Mary Phagan in the little graveyard there.

It was rumored that the Solicitor had come into possession of startling evidence which he hoped to strengthen by a re-examination of the body. The mystery was deepened when a second trip was made to the cemetery and the body again taken up. Dr. Harris never revealed the results of his analysis of the girl's stomach, which was made on the theory that she had been drugged.

Factory Girls Questioned.

A succession of witnesses visited Dorsey every day. He turned one witness out only to admit another. Scores of girls from the factory were questioned in regard to Frank's actions toward them. It was supposed that if any of these girls gave the Solicitor the evidence for which he was looking they would be placed on the stand at the trial in the event that Frank's character was put in issue.

One of the startling stories that came to the Solicitor's ears was that cries of anguish had been heard coming from the factory at 4:30 o'clock the Saturday afternoon that Mary Phagan was killed. Miss Willie M. Ross, No. 259 Crew street, is the young woman who was said to have given the Solicitor the information.

At 4:30 in the afternoon Frank was alone in the factory, so far as is known, except for the Phagan girl. Miss Ross is said to have told the Solicitor that she heard piercing screams as she was passing the factory Saturday afternoon. She said that at first the cries were shrill and distinct and then died away into moans and became inaudible.

Two blank bills of indictment were presented to the Grand Jury when it met Friday, May 23. One was drawn against Frank and the other against Lee. Murder by strangulation was charged in each of the bills. While the jury was deliberating came the sensational charges of attempted bribery made against Colonel Thomas B. Felder by A. S. Colyer, Jr., working in co-operation with the detective department. Felder was accused of trying to buy Phagan evidence in the possession of Chief of Detectives Lanford by offering Lanford's secretary, G. C. Febuary, $1,000.

New Sensations Sprung.

The next day, Saturday, was replete with sensations. An indictment was brought against Leo Frank, charging him with the murder of Mary Phagan by choking her to death with a cord about her neck. The jurors had barely gathered when over at the police station Jim Conley, practically ignored by the detectives up to this time, made his first confession following an interview in The Georgian with E. F. Holloway, day watchman at the factory, in which Holloway accused the negro of knowing much more about the killing of Mary Phagan than he had told.

Conley sent for Detective John Black.

"Boss, I wrote them notes," the negro said, as soon as Black appeared.

Black was thunderstruck. The possibility that Conley wrote the notes had hardly entered the minds of the detectives. They had centered on the theory that Frank committed the crime and readily adopted the belief that he disguised his hand and scrawled the almost illegible and unintelligible notes that were found by the body of the dead girl.

Black at once took Conley to the office of Chief Lanford to obtain his full statement. An affidavit was prepared and the negro swore to it. It related that he had written the notes at the direction of Frank and in Frank's office. He said that he was working in the factory Friday, the day before the murder, and that Frank came to him and told him to come into the office. It was four minutes of 1 o'clock.

Says Frank Dictated Notes.

Frank told him to write: "Dear Mother, a long tall black negro did this by himself," according to Conley. The negro said that Frank had him write several times on a white scratchpad single ruled and then on a pad of brown paper. Frank then took the pencil and copied it, said Conley, muttering after a moment, "Why should I hang?"

Conley's remarkable story created a turmoil in police circles and aroused the public to a pitch of excitement that had not been equaled since the first days following the slaying. It pointed to the certainty that Conley knew a great deal in regard to the murder. It had, however, one puzzling feature that robbed it in the public mind of much of its credibility.

Conley asserted that the notes were written on Friday. This statement, on its face, was utterly ridiculous and improbable. No one believed that the murder was planned a day ahead of time.

Frank, if he was guilty, did not know that Mary Phagan was coming in the factory at a certain time the next day, and had he known, no one held the conviction that he deliberately planned her slaying.

Suspicion Turns to Negro.

Conley's story carries the assumption that Frank on Friday afternoon was preparing to destroy Mary Phagan's life the next day. The first effect of the weird tale was to direct suspicion most strongly to the negro himself. He had shown that he had a knowledge of the crime.

A comparison of his writing with that on the murder notes showed them to be identical. It did not require any handwriting expert to determine this. Half a dozen of the experts had declared the writing to be that of Lee. Others had said it was Frank's cleverly disguised. A few thought that Mary Phagan herself was the author.

By the next day the detectives had decided that Conley's story was worthless so far as it accused Frank. It must be changed if it were to be regarded as incriminating in the least.

Conley was brought into Lanford's office the next Tuesday to be grilled again. The "sweating" had its effect. Conley's second "confession" was given to the public. This time he said that he wrote the notes on Saturday instead of Friday. He explained that he had said Friday in the first place because he was afraid he would be connected with the crime if he admitted he had been in the factory on the day the girl was killed.

Says Frank Called Him.

In his first confession he said that Frank had called him from an aisle where he was working into the office. In the second he declared that he met Frank at Nelson and Forsyth streets about 10 o'clock Saturday morning, and that Frank had told him to wait a few minutes while he went into Montag Brothers' plant.

The negro said that Frank was gone about 20 minutes, and then the two of them walked toward the pencil factory. His story was that Frank told him to sit on one of the boxes on the first floor until he heard a whistle.

While sitting there he saw several persons enter the factory and others leave. He thought that he must have fallen asleep, for he was aroused by the sound of a whistle. Looking up, he declared he saw Frank standing at the head of the stairs leading to the second floor. Frank beckoned to him, he said. On reaching the second floor, Conley related that Frank gripped him nervously by the arm and led him into the office. Then followed the tale of the note writing, which was given in the first affidavit.

When Conley's signature had been affixed to this second affidavit and he had solemnly asserted, "I'm telling the truth this time, white folks," the detectives still were dissatisfied with his story. They did not believe he had told all he knew. His story as it stood had several statements that conflicted with the stories of other persons who had been in the factory during the day.

Discrepancies in His Story.

He had told of seeing Miss Mattie Smith and Foreman M. B. Darley leave the building. He had repeated their conversation and had described Miss Smith's apparel. But he had said that he was not in the factory until he came with Frank at 11 o'clock, and both Miss Smith and Darley had testified that they left between 9:30 and 10 o'clock and did not return.

He was vague on several other points that made his story suspicious. He appeared to be holding something back. The detectives and the public became convinced that he had seen Mary Phagan in the factory that tragic Saturday. Conley was believed to be on the verge of a full confession. He had displayed so much knowledge of the happenings that day in the factory that it seemed certain he must know more.

When he was called into Chief Lanford's room the afternoon of May 29, it was recognized that it was to be a test of strength between the detectives and the negro. It was a question of whether they would be able to break down the negro's story and force him to give out a true statement of all he knew about the mystery.

He was taken into the office of Chief Lanford shortly after noon. He was not returned to his cell until after 6 o'clock in the evening. For six hours questions were shot at him without ceasing.

Grilling Is Terrific.

"You might as well tell us the truth now," he was told when the long inquisition began.

Time after time he protested that he had told everything he knew, and that he had not seen Mary Phagan, either alive or dead, on April 26.

Baffled temporarily, the detectives each time returned to the attack. Ranged in front of the negro, Chief Lanford, Harry Scott and Detective Pat Campbell took turns in questioning their prisoner. His denials continued, but as the ordeal weakened him his protestations grew less vehement.

Late in the afternoon Lanford's secretary, G. C. Febuary, was hurriedly called into the room. Another statement was being taken from the negro.

When Conley, looking worn and exhausted, was led back to his cell that night it was known that he had made another confession.

Had he acknowledged having a part in the crime or having actually killed Mary Phagan?

FACTORY SUPERINTENDENT WHO IS CHARGED WITH SLAYING GIRL

Leo M. Frank as he appeared at time of his arrest in Phagan case.

His testimony at the inquest was straightforward and convincing of his innocence.

Prisoner now says he is ready for his trial which is scheduled to start in Superior Court in Atlanta next Monday morning. Since his confinement Frank has been cheerful and confident of acquittal.

Light Seismic Shocks Felt at Georgetown

WASHINGTON, July 25.—A moderate earthquake shock was recorded at Georgetown University to-day. The disturbance began at 7:44 o'clock and ended at 8:08 o'clock.

The shock was along the east and west lines and is estimated by Father Torndorff, in charge of the observatory, to have been about 3,000 miles from Washington.

It takes a baby a year or more to get six teeth.

In a year or less six of your teeth may be seriously damaged by lack of proper care. Proper care does not mean that you have to spend an hour a day scrubbing your teeth. Just two or three minutes in the morning and two or three at night.

And the care that you give your teeth is an investment that comes back a hundred fold in better health, and a better chance to make your mark in the world.

A few cents invested in a delicious dentifrice that gets you into the regular habit of teeth care, is common sense invested for your entire future life,

Bichloride Victim Saved After 10 Days

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Physicians at the City Hospital to-day claimed the first victory over bichloride of mercury after it had gained considerable headway.

After ten days' treatment, they say Edward B. Fischer, victim of the poison, will recover.

Mother Stanislaus Tells of Recovery

Any person who may doubt the merits of Eckman's Alterative, a remedy for the Throat and Lungs, which has brought about many complete recoveries, should investigate the case of Mother Stanislaus of St. Anne's Convent, Sanford, Fla. She writes:

Convent of St. Anne, 800 Oak Ave., Sanford, Fla.

"Gentlemen: In February, 1911, four doctors examined my throat and pronounced the necessity of an operation. Having heard at Peekskill, N. Y., Motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Francis, where I was visiting, of Eckman's Alterative, I determined as a last resort to try it. After taking four or five bottles large pieces of diseased tissue came away. I continued the Alterative, to my grateful and daily relief. In ten months I was restored to perfect health. I would be glad to write or talk to any person who may have a doubt about it. I would like them to see and hear from my own lips, if they so desire, all I would say of it."

(Signed) MOTHER M. STANISLAUS.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' Drug Stores and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by Jacobs' Pharmacy under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

BILL TO AID PROHIBITION DEFEATED

Senate, 22 to 18, Votes Down Searcy Liquor Measure—Called Blind Tigers' Aid.

A temperance battle, with Senator W. E. H. Searcy's bill making purchasers and sellers of blind tiger whisky equally guilty as the storm center, developed in the Senate Friday. After more than an hour of discussion, in which President Randolph Anderson twice rescued the bill by aligning himself with Senator Searcy's forces, the bill was defeated by a vote of 22 to 18, after an amendment offered by Senator Sweat, which provided that the provisions of the bill do not apply to purchasers of whisky for the purpose of securing evidence, had been lost by a vote of 20 to 10.

Senator G. Y. Harrell started the fight against the bill, declaring that it would be more of an aid to the operation of blind tigers than a preventive.

Called Aid to Blind Tigers.

"The caption of the bill should be changed to read, 'A bill to promote the interests of blind tigers,' he said. "The passage of this bill would absolutely destroy all chances of getting evidence against blind tigers. The best and most common method of apprehending the sellers of whisky is to send a decoy to purchase the liquor with marked money. If you make this decoy a criminal, he will keep his mouth shut and no evidence can be obtained."

Senator Stark made a long speech in favor of the bill, in which he declared that it was directed against the agent of the blind tiger and the traveling blind tiger, rather than against the actual user of the whisky.

Senator Huie, in explaining his action in voting against the bill, said:

"Voting for this bill would place me in the ranks of the fool prohibitionists, and I am not that kind of a prohibitionist!"

Searcy Defends His Bill.

"If I am a fool for supporting the bill," retorted Senator Searcy, the author of the measure, a few minutes later, "I am a fool for Christ's sake!"

Senator Searcy's faction forced action on the bill by voting down three motions designed to delay action on the measure. Senator Harrell's motion that action be postponed indefinitely was voted down almost unanimously. The vote on Senator McNeill's motions that the bill be tabled and that action be postponed until Monday were a tie, but the bill was saved each time by President Anderson, who voted against the motions.

Senator Tarver's bill, giving power to the State Railroad Commission to order the erection of a union station in towns where two or more railroads entered, was passed by the Senate, with amendments which Senator Tarver said were acceptable to the railroad interests.

Railroads Get Safeguards.

These amendments provided that the Commissioners' order should be given with "due regard to the finances of the railroads," and that the stations should be erected "where practicable and in the interest of the public and the railroad companies."

Two bills that are considered important were introduced into the Senate Friday. One, by Senators Sweat, Converse, Rushin, Taylor, Watt and Tyson, provides for the removal of the Georgia Experiment Station to a point in South Georgia, and for the establishment of closer relations between it and the Georgia Agricultural and Mechanical College; the other, by Senator Kelly, is an act to provide a commission form of government for Augusta.

Action on Senator Hixon's "eugenic marriage" bill, which has been favorably reported, was postponed until Monday.

The Senate adjourned at 12:30 until 11 o'clock Monday morning.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

The daily morning prayer of the blind Chaplain of the House of Representatives, the Rev. J. H. Ellis, is a thanksgiving always.

Rather than petitioning for more blessings and more abundant prosperity, the Chaplain devotes by far the greater portion of his supplication in the House to reminding the members of the countless blessings they now enjoy, and for which they should tender ungrudgingly their thanks to the Most High.

Not since he began his term of service in the House has the blind Chaplain started a prayer with words other than these, "Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee!" and so on to the end of as simple and as sweet a prayer as ever was delivered anywhere.

The blind Chaplain of the House is a most interesting person. He always is at his post of duty, well in advance of the Speaker's rap for order, and he remains after the House gets down to work from 30 minutes to an hour or more every day.

Mr. Ellis is slight of build, but clear of voice. Few speakers on the floor fill the House so completely as he, and his prayers every morning are given close attention. He is completely blind and has to be led when walking. He is a very lovable man, and the Speaker hardly could have filled the Chaplain's place more acceptably or more sensibly.

The House meets every morning at 9 o'clock now, but there never is a quorum present at roll call.

Try as the House will, it hardly can get itself together before 10, somehow. Members either sleep late, are more or less indifferent to the first 30 minutes or so, or resent being called to work at 9. Whatever it is, the hour of 9 generally finds the House not more than half filled.

After the roll call is finished—unless it is dispensed with, which frequently it is—members drop in and ask that they be recorded as present.

This courtesy generally is accorded them without protest, and it gives the tardy ones considerable leeway in the matter of getting in late and still not having the record recite the circumstance.

Judge Robert Hodges, of Macon, is in Atlanta to-day and spent quite a time in the House and Senate, renewing old acquaintances and looking things over.

Mr. Hodges represented Bibb County in the House several times back yonder—well, not so many years ago after all—and was then one of the best liked and most influential members. He was in the House when his fellow-townsman, Augustus Octavius Bacon, was first named Senator, and took a great part in the work of conferring the honor upon him.

In those days the Legislature elected the Senators, without any sort of primary instructions, and Senator Bacon was named—he was re-elected to a fourth term unopposed a few days since—after a hard fight.

"Bob" Hodges, then serving his first term, was the man who carried the news from the Capitol to the Kimball House.

Judge Hodges has presided over the City Court of Macon for some twelve years, and is regularly renamed without opposition. Indeed, it is extremely doubtful whether Judge Hodges could be defeated for his present office, no matter who undertook the job.

Occasionally Speaker Burwell yanks the House back to business rather abruptly, when it gets negligent or lags in its work.

In passing local measures it is necessary to agree to the report of the committee before a bill may be passed, and this agreement is made upon a verbal division merely.

The other day the Speaker proposed the uninteresting status thus: "Those who favor agreeing to the report of the committee will say 'Aye.'" Nobody said anything.

Burwell whacked the much-abused block of wood in front of him for order, and yelled the status of the House again, and with decided emphasis, moreover.

This time the committee report was agreed to by a chorus of "ayes" that might have been heard to Whitehall street.

Then Burwell smiled, and the House laughed good-naturedly, and there was no more trouble that day.

The county of Barrow was given a temporary setback yesterday, when the Senate, by a margin of four votes, declined to ratify the action of the House committee, the House and the Senate committee in favoring it.

The advocates of Barrow still are very much in the ring, however. The bill will be reconsidered—it takes a majority only of the Senate to do this, and the Senate is for Barrow by a big majority—and then it will go over to the next session.

No more gallant fight ever has been made in the Legislature than the one put up for Barrow. This is the fourth time that plucky community has come to the Legislature, only to be knifed and bushwhacked to death in one chamber or the other. It will come again, however—and eventually Barrow County will be created.

It has the one thing behind it that so many new-county proposals lack—genuine and admitted merit.

HELD IN SHOOTING CASE.

COLUMBUS.—D. D. Bloom, a well-known young business man of Columbus, was bound over to the Superior Court on charges of shooting at another and having a pistol without license, the bond in each case being fixed at $100 by the Recorder.

PRANK IN LODGE INITIATION IS FATAL TO 2

Electric Shock, Used by Birmingham Moose to Frighten Candidates, Is Too Strong.

BIRMINGHAM, July 25.—In the presence of 125 members of the secret fraternal order of Moose, in Moose Hall last night, Donald A. Kenny, president of the local Chauffeurs' Union, and Christopher Gustin, an iron molder, met almost instantaneous death from an overshock of electricity received while being initiated into the organization.

Both were young and strong men. Other candidates going through the same initiation before them were not injured.

After Kenny was seen to be sinking and before John P. Abbott, presiding officer, could stop the proceedings, Gustin also had been fatally injured.

Both men died within five minutes, although the lodge physician, Dr. L. V. Neill, was present and lent immediate attention.

The ceremony that proved fatal is the branding one. The candidate stands upon a tilting board with his chest bared. A magneto is connected with his leg by a metal band and chain.

A horseshoe metal Moose emblem is heated red hot before his eyes and a man advances toward him holding the heated iron as if to brand him on the chest.

No Arrests Likely.

This is not done, but the suggestion is made on the candidate's mind that it is through the medium of the application of a rubber emblem while the circuit of the magneto is made complete by the application of the other end to his bare shoulder.

The lodge uses an ordinary magneto, and while weak candidates have never been subjected to this test, no able-bodied man has ever been injured by it heretofore.

Police investigation is being made, but there probably will be no arrests.

Deserting Husbands Refused Citizenship

CHICAGO, July 25.—"Men who desert their wives and refuse to support their families are not entitled to become naturalized citizens," said Judge Petit here when he refused the applications of two men who admitted having left their wives.

Priest, Forced to Take Holy Orders, Released by Pope

ROME, July 25.—The Congregation of the Sacraments has rendered a decision in a case which has lasted for four years, and which has been much discussed in ecclesiastical circles. Twelve years ago a priest named Arena asked to be allowed to give up the priesthood. He pleaded that twelve years ago he had been compelled by his parents to take Holy Orders. He alleged that he obeyed his parents against his will. This was confirmed by several witnesses.

The Congregation of the Sacraments, which was presided over by Cardinal Farrata, decided to cancel the priest's orders. It held that they had been conferred against his will, and were therefore invalid. It recommended that Arena be released from his vows.

The Pope approved the verdict.

Next Encampment Of I. O. O. F. in Macon

ATHENS, July 25.—The Grand Encampment of Odd Fellows which was in session here Thursday broke camp in the afternoon, after electing officers for the next year and selecting Macon as the next meeting place.

The new officers are: Grand patriarch, Robert L. Bramblet, Athens; grand high priest, E. H. Stout, Atlanta; grand senior warden, J. V. Everige, Columbus; grand scribe, W. H. Abbott, Atlanta; grand treasurer, I. O. Teaseley, Alpharetta; grand junior warden, Homer Ashley, Atlanta; grand representative, Chester L. Elliott, Brunswick; past grand patriarch, G. O. Hook, Alpharetta; grand marshal, James H. Grover, Marietta; grand inside sentinel, R. C. Burnham, Savannah; grand outside sentinel, Carl A. Vonderleith, Athens; grand treasurer, Carl A. Vonderleith, Athens.

Cadet's Very Last Kiss Holds Up Big Liner 3 Minutes

NEW YORK, July 25.—"A last kiss, my darling!"

He got it

Miss Eva Mounfrey, of Louisville, Ky., was sailing on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, and her fiance, Augustus Dillon, a West Point cadet, was bidding her good-bye.

"All visitors ashore!" shouted a petty officer near the sweethearts.

"A very last kiss, beloved!" exclaimed Dillon.

"All visitors ashore!" howled a chorus of petty officers and stewards.

"A very, very last kiss, mine own!" begged the cadet.

Chief Officer Moeller interrupted the clinging embrace.

"Young man," said Moeller, "you have held the ship three minutes. Go ashore!"

The Social World

A polo match is to be played at Fort McPherson early in August, probably on the 9th. A group of the officers at the post will form one team, captained by Lieutenant Hornsby Evans. The other team will be composed of two out-of-town players, one from the Augusta polo team, another from the Camden team and two Atlanta men, Lamar Hill and J. O. Seamans.

Atlanta society is interested, as a polo match always is a great society event. The polo matches in the East serve to bring together brilliant assemblages of society folk. While polo is new to Atlanta, many persons have attended polo tournaments in other cities and are initiated into the pleasures of this sport. The polo match at Fort McPherson will be refereed by Major Carthew Yourston, an English officer, who has played polo for 29 years in England and in India.

22 PRIZE PONIES AWAIT VICTORS IN CONTEST

Thirteen More Arrive From South Carolina—Red Letter Ballots Will Help Win One.

The 22 ponies to be awarded to The Georgian and American contestants are all on hand. Thirteen arrived Thursday, by express, from John G. Mobley's farm, Winnsboro, S. C., and now are with the nine others in the rear of 55 Loomis street.

The baker's dozen of little animals stood the journey well, and, indeed, were frisky when unloaded and passed before the veterinary inspector. They are strangers to the city and seemingly took great interest in the street cars, the pavements and the other sights which were new to them.

Nothing wins now but subscriptions for The Georgian and American, and subscription to the Sunday American count the fastest, on account of the Red Letter Ballots.

By the use of these Red Letter Ballots, a two-year subscription to The Sunday American yields the contestant 4,500 votes, and a one-year subscription 2,000 votes, while even a six-months subscription yields 800 votes. It should be explained that these are not extra votes. The extra votes are included in these totals.

The Red Letter Ballot offer ends Tuesday night. It is not necessary to clip the ballot from the paper to have these votes counted. It is sufficient to write "Red Letter Ballot" in one corner of the blanks with which the contestants all are provided. And there is no limit to the number of these "Red Letter Ballots" which may be voted.

'Ragtime Tunes Are The Boils of Music'

NEW YORK, July 25.—"Ragtime tunes are like boils," said Frank Damrosch, as he was sailing on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. "Like boils they come and go, and like boils they represent impurities in the musical system. But there has been a great advance in music in this country during the last two or three decades, and now I think we compare favorably with Europe."

ANDREWS URGED FOR CONSUL TO PARIS

Lower House Unanimously Indorses Retired Atlanta Capitalist and Lawyer's Candidacy.

Walter P. Andrews, retired capitalist and lawyer of Atlanta, has the indorsement of the House of Rrepresentatives for appointment as Consul general to Paris.

A resolution indorsing his candidacy for the place, introduced in the House Friday morning by the Fulton county delegation, and signed by eleven members of the House, was unanimously adopted.

Prospects of Mr. Andrews obtaining the appointment, which is one of the most important in the consular service, are brightening.

Influences are at work in Washington in his behalf, while his friends throughout the State are using their influence to bring Andrews favorably before the eyes of the administration.

ANNOUNCEMENT

One of the Twice-a-Year Sales of Infants' Wear at Half-Price

Comes To-morrow---Junior Department---Third Floor.

There are two days in the course of the three hundred sixty-five that we make such an announcement as the above—the next one will be six months from now.

The sale brings at exactly half-price about every article of infants' wear that is in the slightest degree soiled or mussed.

Here are the long dresses and skirts for baby's first wardrobe; here are short dresses and skirts for tots turning into their first year—machine-made dresses and petticoats, hand-made dresses and petticoats such as a mother herself would make. Also there are machine-made and hand-made cashmere coats, wrappers, sacques and squares; pillow covers; flannel skirts and bootees.

Dresses were priced from $1.00 to $2.00, skirts $1.00 to $6.00, wraps $2.00 to $5.00, sacques 50c to $1.00, flannel squares $1.50 to $5.00, bootees 40c to $1.00.

Deduct just half of these amounts for this sale. The selling starts with the opening of the store, and, to-morrow being a half-day, mothers should not delay—the savings are great, the time is short.

A Half-Day Clearaway of House Dresses and Waists

A Chamberlin - Johnson - DuBose Company clearaway of house dresses and waists is scheduled for the short to-morrow!

Odd surpluses have been gathered for immediate disposal—which tells much about savings you may enjoy. For when we set about to clear out odd lots we take the sure method of reducing prices in a big, wholehearted way.

Here—

$2.25, $2.45 & $2.95 House Dresses are $1.50

$2.50, $2.95 & $3.50 House Dresses are $1.95

They are lawns, percales, chambrays and ginghams—a varied assortment of attractive styles, lace and embroidery trimmed, pipings of contrasting colors; collarless, sailor collars and round collars. Not every size in every style, but so many styles in every size that choosing several dresses that you like will be easy.

$2.25 Waists Are $1.50

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX.

He and Manette See the Suffragette Again, but Neither of Them Notices Her.

JULY 3.—It occurred to me, when Manette and I were tramping home that evening, after the militant suffragette had tried to hold me up, that there was a warning in the incident. I look like a tramp, as she said, and Manette, in spite of her clothes, looks like a princess.

What it is I can not define, but one of her sex can never disguise the fact that she was born to purple and fine linen. She may outlive every natural grace and may be reduced to rags, but there is always an indefinable something that tells of better things in the past. I looked at Manette critically as she trudged ahead of me in the footpath, and this is what I saw: A little bare head with a shock of curls just reaching to her shoulder, for we had had her hair cut short before we left town, and the growth was all new and untamed.

She wore a blue gingham with half the buttons off the back. There were rents in it, and through one rent I caught a glimpse of an exquisitely trimmed petticoat, for Richards had refused to let her darling wear the coarse muslin garments that were best fitted for the occasion. She wore half hose, with tan shoes from which her toes protruded, and her little fat legs were scratched by briars and brambles.

But one could tell by a glimpse that she was not an ordinary child, and I wondered if it was because of the proud little way in which she carried her head, or because of her total unconsciousness of self. "A born aristocrat," I murmured.

Her Beauty.

She looked up at me in laughter at some prank of the pup, and I was struck more forcibly than ever with her most unusual beauty. It wasn't altogether her hair and her eyes, her perfect features and her exquisite coloring; there was a look of her soul shining through, and that is as near as I can express it. If you could see her, Diary, you would understand why I never look at the child without some apprehension. With her beauty and her money, sometimes I wonder if there are enough guardian angels in heaven to keep all the evil-hearted away.

The children that die young belong to us always. Nothing, and no one, may ever estrange them from us. They are ours forever, and that, alas, is something no one can say of the child that lives to grow up.

There is comfort in the thought, and it is not the only comfort, for we learn as we grow older that the child that is gone is spared much, and is SAFE. I know life would be dreary and almost impossible without Manette, but every day I grow more reconciled to the loss of Elizabeth. She was happy all her life. The little girl trudging along in the path ahead of me is happy now, but I will not always be with her.

I suppose it was this constant apprehension that led me to call Mrs. Allen to the porch after supper and tell her that I am not the poor clerk she imagines, resting from overwork, but one of the detested millionaire class, resting from excessive luxury.

I told her my name and she laughed. She said she had guessed it the second day. No one, she said, could look at Manette and think for a moment that she had been brought up in denial. She could not explain it, except that the child was always so unconscious of her clothes.

"She rises above them," she said, and it made me very proud.

I have always had the theory—I wonder how it will evolve—that if Manette is accustomed to the best as a child, she will never strut like a peacock when she is grown. She will always be unconscious of her price marks.

To the Manner Born.

She will never build conversation on the price of her gown, nor attempt to erect pride and station on the cost of a hat. She will never, and of that I am sure, remember that her clothes cost more than the clothes of her associates and show it in her manner. I said something to this effect to Mrs. Allen, and her reply gave me a new viewpoint.

"She won't remember what things cost," she said, somewhat dryly, "because she has never had to earn the price. The girl who stints herself in necessities for a month that she may afford a $20 gown will never forget to the day of her death what the gown cost. Unconsciousness of clothes is a good trait, but Manette's unconsciousness will be largely due to ignorance. When one pays the price, one remembers."

I did not seem to make her quite understand what I meant, and neither did I understand her. I wanted, I explained, for the child to grow up with a soul above ribbons.

"And yet," she replied, "whoever has charge of her wardrobe takes care that she has more ribbons than any child her age should have."

I agreed to that with a sigh. When a little girl is transformed by her years into a peacock, instead of a thinking, helpful woman, it is her mother who is to blame, never her father. Manette has no mother, but her nurse and her Aunt Sallie make her attire the joy of their existence.

I, who take the place of a father to her, would prefer that she never hear the subject of her dress, but those who take the place of her mother make her attire the first consideration. That, Diary, is a fond weakness of all mothers.

I gave Mrs. Allen Mrs. Spencer's address and also that of Richards. "It has occurred to me," I said, "that if anything happened to me, either address will be useful to you."

She found considerable amusement in the thought of what an exodus to the woods there would be of young women if it were known that such a wealthy unattached bachelor were spending his summer there. "They would chase you harder," she said, "than the pup chases the rabbits."

She Sympathizes.

She laughed so heartily I asked if she would enjoy the sight, and she replied that she wouldn't.

"I feel sorry for any unmarried man these days," with some spirit. "Either the women are the mercenary kind, hunting him down for his money, or they are the suffrage kind, hunting him down like a policeman hunts criminals. I often tell my husband it is good he got me thirty years ago, for there isn't much choice of women these days."

From one of their own sex! Had I said it I would be mobbed.

July 6—I have not heard the last of that woman who thought I was a kidnaper of children. She came riding to our picnic spot again to-day, and this time she rode alone.

Manette and I were sitting on a log fishing. At least I was fishing. She had her shoes and stockings off, her little skirts tucked up, and was paddling around at the water's edge, digging up soft black mud, which she carried to the shore and made into mud pies, a big log serving her as kneading board, or mixing board. I don't really know if pies are mixed or kneaded.

The suffragette tied her horse to a sapling and came to where we were thus occupied. I did not turn my head, and Manette, obeying whispered instructions from me, went on with her culinary work without heeding her.

Keep Young As Lo[ng] As You Can

KEEP your hair youthful looki[ng]. Don't let it grow old before you[r] years. Faded or gray hair makes [a] woman look from 10 to 20 years old[er] than if the hair were beautiful and lustrous.

Robinnaire Hair Dy[e]

Is a wonderful scientific formula. It is a color restorer. Not a dangerous dye to bleach or change the original color of the hair, but a restorer which brings back to the hair its original color and beautiful sheen and softness. For a quarter of a century it has been used by women and men practically all over the world, and we have hundreds of unsolicited letters proving its merit. It does not stain the scalp nor make the hair sticky, and its use can not be detected.

Meg (five years old, was overjoyed over the recent addition to the family and rushed out of the house to tell the news to a passing neighbor.

"Oh, you don't know what we've got in our house to-day?"

"What is it?"

"It's a new baby brother!"

"You don't say so. Is he going to stay?"

"I think so"—very thoughfully. "He's got his things off."

A farmer while loading hay in his field was attacked by his neighbor's bulldog. The man defended himself with a pitchfork, and sent the dog yelping home. The neighbor rebuked him, and asked why he didn't use the blunt end of the fork first.

"I would have," replied the farmer, "if your dog had come at me blunt end first."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"What's that?" he muttered, in an undertone. "There it is again."

He blew out the lantern and stepped to the entrance of the corridor that led to the armory.

"Sh—h—! Listen! There's a light, Rusty. It's coming this way! It's coming, Rusty! Remember the high sign—and don't sneeze!"

He sprang back into the hall and concealed himself in the angle by the picture of the old Don. Presently the faint swinging beams of a lantern were thrown down the corridor and there was the sound of soft footsteps and low voices. Jarvis raised his cocked pistol and covered the doorway as the shadows told him the invaders were about to appear in view. Three figures appeared in the doorway and a girl's voice, familiar to his ears, said:

"There is no one here, either, Your Highness."

The Princess and Dolores, with Maximo as their guide and light-bearer, came down the broad stairs into the hall.

"We must go on, Dolores!" exclaimed the Princess in a strained voice. "We must find him before it's too late! Oh, I will never forgive myself for sending him to this dreadful place!"

"But there's a fire!" cried the veteran. "They've been in this room!"

"Perhaps"—the Princess shuddered—"they have already been killed."

Her Brother Safe.

Jarvis, ashamed for having listened too long and his heart beating with what he had heard, stepped forward into the light of the lantern.

"Your Highness!" he exclaimed. The girl made a sound that was half a cry of alarm and half a prayer of thanksgiving, and held out both hands to him.

"Mr. Warren! Mr. Warren! Thank God, you are still alive!"

"Your Highness," he protested, still holding her hands. "It's madness for you to come to this place! How did you get here?"

"Heaven only knows!" She shivered as if with the memory of her experiences. "We have been wandering through this dreadful place for hours—calling to you—trying to find you before it was too late."

"Too late! What do you mean?"

"My brother is safe—thank God!"

"Where is he?" demanded Warren, quickly.

"On his way to get help from the King."

"Where has he been?"

"Right here in this castle, a prisoner—since the day he entered."

"A prisoner?"

"Yes. He succeeded in making his escape to-night and has gone straight to the King for help?"

"But how did you learn all this?" he inquired, bewildered.

"From Robledo, senor," answered Dolores, as the Princess did not reply at once. The girl's voice was low and trembled slightly. "Your bullet went straight, senor. He is dying. He has confessed to the Holy Father. I promised to be with him at the end."

She turned her face away and Jarvis saw that she was weeping.

"The end?" he echoed vaguely—and then he understood. He walked over to her, stood beside her awkwardly, trying to think of something to say. He found it difficult to apologize to a girl for killing her lover, especially when the lover happened to need killing a lot.

"Then—you—" he stammered. "I—I didn't know—I might have—I'm sorry."

Better So.

The girl raised her tear-stained face and met his gaze bravely.

"It is better so, senor," she said.

"Oh, Dolores—my poor child!"

The Princess put her arms around the girl and she sobbed on her lady's shoulder. "Maximo, take her back to the inn as quietly as possible."

When they were gone the Princess urged Jarvis to follow.

"Oh, Mr. Warren, let us leave this dreadful place!"

"Not me, Your Highness," was the grim and inelegant reply. "You go with them and wait for me at the inn."

The Princess shook her head determinedly, though her face was pale and there were lines to tell of the long strain.

"You can not persuade me again, Mr. Warren. I will remain."

"Please!" he begged, getting possession of her hands once more, and without a struggle.

"Return with us then."

"Your Highness," he said gravely, "I promised to solve the mystery of this castle and to find the treasure. My task is an easy one now."

"Then," she rejoined quickly, "I will share it with you."

He laughed silently at the neat manner of the trap in which he was caught, but he looked down at her with something more than amazement in his eyes.

"And you groped your way through this old castle to find me?" he said softly. "You are game!"

The Princess raised her eyes to his. "You faced death perhaps, for me."

"You're trembling!" he cried with sudden concern. "You're frightened—you're cold—your hands are cold!—Come over here." He drew her toward the dying blaze of the fire. "You must have been scared to death crawling through the blackness."

She closed her eyes and shivered and he pressed the hands a little tighter than was necessary, if the object was merely to aid circulation.

The Sneeze.

"Every nerve in my body is on edge with the happenings of this dreadful place," she confessed brokenly and tried in vain to keep back the tears.

"Oh, don't cry," he pleaded in alarm, and then suddenly changed his tone to one at once light and tender: "Go on then—cry! Cry some more. Just forget that you are a princess and cry. That's it—that's fine! I'll round up this spook to-night for good—and then the vassal's task is done. His fate is in your hands, Highness." She ceased crying suddenly to look up into his face. "Don't send me away," he begged. "I've loved you from the first and always shall love you. I'm no Prince or Duke," he added with whimsical pathos, "I'm just a plain man—and all the man in me cries out, 'I love you'—Don't send me away!"

He felt her trembling and for an instant she seemed to lean against him. But she shook her head.

"You must go."

"You're going to send me away!"

"Yes. You must leave Spain. Your life would not be safe here."

He drew a breath of relief that was like the wind in the forest. At the same moment there was another sound that was somewhat like a far-off tree falling in the wind.

"What was that?" exclaimed the girl with a start.

"Oh, that! That was Rusty," he smiled.

"That would frighten any one."

"I figured that I might need a ghost," he explained, pointing to the armored servitor, "but Rusty disobeyed orders. Rusty, I told you not to sneeze!"

"Dat was somebody else, Massa Warren," was the solemn and unexpected protest. "I swears to goodness I didn't sneeze."

Warren's revolver was in his hand and a wild light of triumph in his eyes.

"Mr. Warren!"

"Don't move! Your Highness," he cried, raising the weapon and leveling it at the old grandee, "I've got your ghost at last!" He raised his voice. "There is some one behind that picture! Come out!—or I'll shoot you full of holes!"

Caught!

For a moment there was intense silence. Then:

"Don't shoot!"

The voice, a familiar one, came from the wall—the picture swung out in its frame and his Exalted Highness, the Duke of Alva, stepped down on to the floor.

The Princess smothered a cry of amazement and Jarvis smiled grimly.

"Your Excellency, you are a long way from Madrid."

The Duke eyed him with contempt.

"Madrid! You fool, you have fallen right into my trap!" He turned to the Princess with all the assurance of a protecting friend.

"What I have done has been for your sake, Maria. I purposely deceived him so that I might get here ahead of him and watch. See," he pointed to the mantel, "there are his tools and you yourself interrupted him at his work."

The consummate insolence and assurance of his enemy almost daunted the young man. And in the next breath he half lost the battle by permitting himself to argue.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

CAUGHT AT LAST

"MR. WARREN!" "DON'T MOVE! YOUR HIGHNESS," HE CRIED, RAISING THE WEAPON AND LEVELING IT AT THE OLD GRANDEE. "I'VE GOT YOUR GHOST AT LAST!" HE RAISED HIS VOICE. "THERE IS SOMEONE BEHIND THAT PICTURE! COME OUT!—OR I'LL SHOOT YOU FULL OF HOLES!"

FOR A MOMENT THERE WAS INTENSE SILENCE. THEN: "DON'T SHOOT!" THE VOICE, A FAMILIAR ONE CAME FROM THE WALL—THE PICTURE SWUNG OUT IN ITS FRAME AND HIS EXALTED HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF ALVA STEPPED DOWN ON TO THE FLOOR.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

THEY ALWAYS TELL.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Some time ago I was introduced to a young man whom I rather like. I have gone out to different places of amusement with him.

Now, he has often wanted to kiss me, but I wouldn't allow him to. He is going out of town for some time and says he wants to kiss me before going. Shall I allow him to? L. M.

No man should kiss and tell, but so many do that one little farewell kiss, given in the name of friendship, is sure to be misunderstood and told of. Do you not know, my dear, that the kiss that is refused is always the sweetest? Refuse him and he will always want that kiss, and seek to win your love that he may have it.

DON'T TRY.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young girl of 19 and have a brother who takes me to dances and the theater. I have no chance to find a lover, because the men all think my brother is my sweetheart. What would you advise me to do to make them understand? L. M.

My dear, if these men were attracted by you, the sight of a man as your escort would not keep them away. On the contrary, it would serve as an incentive to them to make your acquaintance.

Instead of regarding your brother as an obstacle, be glad that you have a brother as devoted and kind. And don't worry about that belated lover, for I am sure he is on his way.

WAIT A FEW YEARS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 27 and am in love with a young lady of 17, but she does not seem to care for me. What can I do to gain her love? P. B.

She is too young to be troubled by love. Prove your love is unselfish, and for her best good, by keeping it a secret to yourself until she has grown up.

Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THERE was no one whose faith in the printed word was greater than Daysey Mayme Appleton's.

If, when sitting on the cool porch at twilight, she caught a glimpse of a heading, "How to Keep Cool," in the newspaper, she invariably went into the warm house, lighted the lamp and sat under its hot rays while she read it.

Her father gave her a weekly allowance, and with it she bought at least one, and sometimes two, books on How a Girl May Save Money. She didn't save as much as the girls who hadn't such faith in the printed word, but she didn't see why.

When her mother left her in charge of the kitchen for two weeks, she spent the first week's allowance on books telling How to Feed Four on Six Dollars a Week, and had to ask her father for more money the third day. And he was so unappreciative he grumbled about it!

But all this faith is now a thing of the dead, dead past. Daysey Mayme won't believe anything she sees in print these days, if it is nothing more than "Heat Before Serving" on a can of baked beans.

The lost this beautiful faith through following the advice of the New York clergymen who have decided to demand health certificates as a prerequisite to marriage. It would be humiliating, she thought, to march up the church aisle in white silk and orange blossoms, and have the preacher refuse to perform the ceremony because a grandmother on the bridegroom's side once had a conuiption fit. She would protect herself from this mortification by getting a clean bill of health before the altar was reached. She would make all necessary inquiries during the courtship; that her best beloved could prove he was in perfect health she had no doubts.

She had memorized forty-seven adjectives expressive of admiration, and when her lover presented her with a box of candy she used forty-three on the first gumdrop. Such appreciation delighted him, and he asked her to marry him. Surely a girl who could so highly appreciate a gumdrop would never underestimate the value of a man!

Daysey Mayme's first impulse was to grab him; then she remembered the printed word.

"Was there ever one in your family who suffered from neurasthenia?" she asked. "Any dandruff, Bright's disease, rheumatism, ricketts, glanders, autoxenia, bunions or corns? Have you or your ancestors ever had anything cut out, and how much? Of what did your great-grandfather on your mother's side die, and did——"

But the young man heard no more. He gave one wild whoop and fled.

"I'd have married him if he had the whole doctor's book ailing him," sobbed Daysey Mayme, "and now the other girls will never believe I had the chance."

What Dame Fashion Is Offering

For the Season.

ILLUSTRATED on the left-hand side is an attractive cornflower blue charmeuse gown very suitable for wearing at Hurlingham or Ranelagh. The skirt drapery is graceful, the charmeuse being combined with velvet-embroidered voile de soie. The sleeves are long, the wrists and neck being finished with lace frills. The central figure is carried out in a striking effect of blue and gold brocade. Lace falls from the high waist line to the center of the skirt and meets with the draped folds of the skirt. The corsage is of white lace over white chiffon. Japonica colored charmeuse is used for the right-hand model and makes a very useful gown for afternoon wear. The long sleeves are put into the shoulders with a piping; the cuffs are finished with five small buttons, the same decoration in a larger size being carried out on the bodice and skirt.

The charmeuse and ruffles are of white tulle.

One Woman's Story

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER VIII.

PRIDE and an instinctive stoicism kept Mary Danfroth's pale face impassive as she listened to her father's agitated announcement. An iron hand seemed to be gripping her throat and stifling her. She steadied herself and faced her parents as she drew away from her father's encircling arm. He still held the paper in his trembling hand. Beside him was his wife, aghast and silent, her thin fingers nervously twisting the handkerchief she held.

The girl spoke quietly and steadily: "Mr. Craig may not have been hurt, you know," she reminded her father. "The first reports of accidents are often exaggerated."

She turned away and went down the hall to her own room, closing her door behind her. She took off her hat and put it away, then lifted the books from her dressing table, on which she had just laid them, and arranged them on her desk. All these actions she performed with care, yet she moved as in a dream. She stood, looking about her as if searching for some other duty to perform, but, finding nothing, suddenly flung herself on her bed and lay there, silent, staring wide-eyed into the gathering dusk.

At the end of a half hour her mother knocked timidly at the door.

"May I come in, Mary?" she asked in a low voice. "Are you asleep?"

The girl drew herself to a sitting posture on the edge of her bed.

"Come in, mother," she said, dully. "No, I haven't been asleep. I was just lying down and—thinking."

"The parent laid a cool hand on her daughter's forehead.

"Poor little girl!" she murmured. "Poor little girl! I know this news was a terrible shock to you."

Mary stirred irritably under her mother's touch. "Of course, it was a shock," she said coldly. "It is always terrible to hear of accidents of that kind." She paused, then steeled herself to utter what she would not acknowledge was a deliberate falsehood. "But I have been thinking it might have been much worse. Suppose there had been on that train someone whom we really cared for."

Mrs. Danforth looked in silence at the speaker; then, bending over, kissed her and left the room. Mary sat for a moment longer motionless on the side of her bed. Then she bowed her face upon her hands and closed her eyes.

Dinner that night was a dismal affair. The gloom of the accident oppressed all minds. Mr. Danforth was nervous and talked of nothing but the wreck, inveighing against the carelessness of the railroad officials, the indifference corporations showed for human life, and explaining how the disaster might have been avoided—dwelling on the subject until Mary felt as if she could bear it no longer.

When the meal was at last over, Mary, remarking briefly that she must go back to her studying, went to her own room again. Her parents remained at the table, chatting, while the man of the house smoked his post prandial cigar.

"I am glad that Mary doesn't take this news any more deeply to heart," remarked the father with masculine obtuseness. "I was afraid that she was beginning to think too much of Craig and that if he was hurt or killed it must break her all up."

His wife shook her head with the scorn that a woman always shows for a man's lack of perception.

"She feels it more than she knows herself," she remarked enigmatically.

"Bosh!" exclaimed Mr. Danforth. "Mary isn't the kind to keep such a trouble as that to herself. Of course she liked the chap—and she is distressed to think that he may have been injured, or—worse. But you told me yesterday that you fancied she was beginning to care a good deal for him. She wouldn't be so calm if she did. She regards him only as a pleasant acquaintance."

In her own room Mary bent over her books and tried to study. She attacked the preparation for to-morrow's recitations with a determination to banish all other matters from her mind. "Anything to keep from thinking!" she whispered to herself. "This suspense is awful—but it may be better than to know the truth." A lump of ice seemed to be pressing upon her heart, but she worked on.

It was late when she extinguished her light, yet dawn was graying her windowpanes before she fell into a troubled slumber.

Her eyes were heavy when he dragged herself into the dining room that morning. Her father was opening the morning paper which lay beside his plate. With a sickening contraction of her throat the girl watched him scan the first page of the sheet. Suddenly he started to his feet.

"Hear this!" he exclaimed, excitedly. "'Texan Hero of Railroad Wreck; Gordon Craig Rescues Three Women From Burning Pullman; Is Himself Unhurt!'"

Mrs. Danforth uttered a low cry of alarm, and at the sound the reader dropped his paper and sprang forward. Mary had slipped quietly from her chair to the floor. She had fainted.

The parents' eyes met in a significant look as they both bent over the prostrate girl.

"I told you so!" said the mother gravely.

To Make a Hit With Women

By Dorothy Dix

A LOVELORN youth writes me a pathetic letter saying that he is persona non grata with the fair sex, that girls do not care for his society, and the ungrateful minxes turn their backs upon him and talk to other men in the very instant they are devouring the candy he brought them, and wearing the violets on which he squandered his good money. This state of affairs greatly distresses him, and he wants to know why he isn't popular, and how he may become a winner with women.

Let us see if we can help him.

Women differ from men in this respect, that looks do not count. It does not matter whether a man is handsome or not. Indeed, very few women care for beauty in the opposite sex. It is a poaching on their own preserves that they resent. Also it requires them to became flatterers instead of the flattered, for the vanity of the vainest woman that ever lived is as water unto wine compared to the vanity of a man who is a living picture, and who knows it—and expects to be told of it.

It is worth bearing in mind that almost without exception the men who were the great heart smashers of history were not only plain of face, but some of them grotesquely hideous. So no man need despair on account of his lack of pulchritude when he wants to take a hand at the game of hearts.

He Should Shave.

But where mere regularity of features in a man counts for little in attracting a woman's fancy, a man should pay much attention to his clothes and his grooming. Nothing on earth, but the grace of God, keeps a woman in love with a man with a two days' stubble of dirty beard on his face. Married women stand this because they can't help themselves; but no girl wants a slovenly, untidy man, who looks as if he needed to be run through the laundry, hanging about her. All the knocking about the word "dude" comes from masculine lips. No woman joins in that chorus. On the contrary, she feels that the man who comes into her presence ill-clothed, dirty, neglected looking, not only shows disrespect for her, but indicates that he lacks judgment, industry and progressiveness. For that is exactly what being ill-dressed now means.

Another thing that women like, and it is an attraction that any man can acquire, is a certain savoir faire that makes him equal to any situation. A woman likes a man to know how to offer her a chair, to help her on with her wraps, to order a little dinner. And she hates with unspeakable loathing the fellow who is always making scenes in public, who gets in rows with the theater usher over a mistake about the seats, or the street car conductor about the change, or who sits up like a graven image of wrath every time anybody drops in while he is calling.

"Chump," says the girl to herself, "he hasn't got enough sense to know only the ignorant have to fight to get their rights."

Women like generous men, but even girls have a contempt for men who spend more than they can afford. It is not the youths who waste all their substance on bonbons and theater tickets and violets who are the most popular with the fair sex. Every girl has what she calls her "candy beau," but she seldom marries him. The best way to touch a girl's heart is not by upsetting her digestion.

An important point to remember here is that the man who would curry favor by means of gifts must give discreetly. A woman would rather have a present that cost 5 cents if it represented some especial taste or fancy of hers than one that cost $50 if it was something that had no personal significance.

Don't Be a Clam.

In conversation, cultivate a happy medium. Be neither a continuous monologue performer nor yet a clam. Before you take the floor and devote hours to expatiating on how you can keep books or play ping-pong or take snapshots, be sure the girl is really interested in you. After a woman is in love, she can sit entranced for days listening to a man tell about the kind of collar button he wears, but if she isn't in love, a steady stream of personal reminiscences gets on her nerves, and she wants a change. Besides she desires to talk about herself.

For pity's sake, though, help out with the conversation. From the time a girl is old enough to understand anything she is taught that her chief end in life is to entertain man, and everywhere you go you can see her conscientiously at work trying to do it. Every mother's daughter of us knows what it is to labor, and perspire, and toil, trying to make conversation with some man who is just as unresponsive as a store dummy and as silent as the Sphinx. It isn't a fair division of labor, and if a man wants to see true gratitude let him chip in and help roll the conversation ball along.

"Be bold, be bold, be not too bold." Women hate a timid man, and they despise the one who takes it for granted that he has only to throw the handkerchief to have every girl scramble for it.

Learn how to pay compliments as if you mean them. Don't apply flattery with a trowel. Few women are fools. Don't tell a woman the first time you see her she is the ideal you have been seeking for many years. Seven hundred other idiots have told her that before.

Don't quote sentimental poetry to a girl. It always makes her want to giggle.

Don't give in too much to a woman. If she has good sense she won't want you to sacrifice your taste or principles, and, if she is unreasonable, she will respect you for mastering her.

Finally, beloved—and if you forget all the rest remember this—don't stay too long when you go to call. More men queer themselves right here than they do anywhere else. No living human being is entertaining for more than 30 minutes at a time or endurable for more than two hours at a stretch. In that time every man can say everything he has got to say worth hearing, and if he lingers along until the clock begins to yawn in his face, he is simply defying fate and inviting disaster. Many a good impression is spoiled by too much of it.

And when you get up to go, go as if you were fired out of a gun. Don't linger for tender farewells and last words. Most girls wear shoes three sizes too small for them, and when a man keeps one standing on the doorstep while he makes his adieus she isn't saying, like Juliet: "I could say good-by, good-by, 'til it be morning." On the contrary, she is regretting that all the stories about papa's boot and the swift waft out are fiction instead of fact, and she would be willing to pay out good money to anybody who would accelerate Romeo's descent of the steps.

Of course, no general rules can be laid down for winning the fancy of the fair sex. What has been said pretends to be no more than the most elementary facts, but a guarantee goes with each suggestion that it will work.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

I HAVEN'T quite made up my mind yet whether Bobbie shud lern a trade or a professhun, sed Ma to Pa yesterday. Sumtimes I think it wud be nice if he cud lern a trade, & aggenn I think a trade is kind of commonplace. A professhun is so professhunal, sumhow, so distinguished, sed Ma.

I guess there are a lot of yung lawyers in the big cities that doant see anything vary professhunal about a professhun, sed Pa. If I were a yung man aggenn, Pa sed, I wud a lot rather work steddy at a trade than profess at a professhun. Bobbie, what do you want to be?

I told Pa thare was three things & I dident know wich one of the three I wanted to be the moast, a pitcher like Dent, or a elevator boy, or a poet.

Pitchers and poets are born, not made, sed Pa, & a elevator boy isent any kind of job for you wen you grow up. If I thought you cud be a poet like me or a pitcher like Dent, sed Pa, I wud tell you by all meens go ahed & try to be one or the other, but thare ain't many Dents & thare ain't many me's, sed Pa.

Dear me, sed Ma, & wen did you beecum grate?

Dident I rite that poem that I red at the bankwet the other nite wen I was toastmaster, sed Pa, and dident all the men thare say that it was the work of a geenyus?

The men was kind of enthused too much, I guess, sed Ma. I guess that a certain amount of champagne will make men stand for almost anything in liter-ature. Doant talk to me about that poem, sed Ma. If you call that art, you are a blacksmith. I found two of the verses in yure coat pocket after the bankwet, Ma sed, & I must say that you are no Milton.

I tell you the poem met with grate applause, sed Pa.

& you remember what I jest toald you about champane, sed Ma. Bobbie, she sed to me, if you think this is good poetry, you are a chip of the old block. Listen:

All brethren we stand together to-nite
Where all the lites are shining brite.
Met here in friendship's strong embrace
We can look each other in the face
& know that all of us is men,
Wich is a good thing now & then.
The world needs men like us to fight
For truth & the eternal right
& the reason eech one of us thrives
& supports ourselfs and our wives
Is beekaus of that brain power we possess
That is the cause of our grate success.
So all of us brethren gathered here
Have little if anything to fear,
Jest so we keep on working hard
& continued success will be our reward.

Now, Bobbie, sed Ma, I want you to be a honest littel boy. If you had yure choice between beeing a elevator boy & that kind of a poet, wich wud you be?

I wud be a elevator boy, I toald Ma. The hours is easier.

New Serial Story Begins Monday

"Behind Closed Doors," one of the most exciting mystery stories ever written, will begin Monday on The Georgian's magazine page. This story is by Anna Katharine Green, whose detective yarns are so popular.

Be sure you read the opening installment—you'll certainly read every succeeding one. The serial will be finely illustrated.

Superfluous Hair Truths

Stop Experimenting

There are but few depilatories sold. You think there are hundreds because you have used the same identical preparations under several different names. This is easily explained. Women stop using

So-Called Hair Removers

when they learn that they are harmful. Therefore, they can not be sold under the same name for any length of time. Then the identical, worthless, harmful concoctions are given new names and advertised again as totally different preparations to who innocently buy them over and over again under different names, and this will continue as long as women are so unwise as to experiment with unknown, so-called hair removers.

Defraud the Same Foolish Women

De Miracle

Has Stood the Test of Time

De Miracle has been sold as De Miracle for over eleven years, and its name has never been changed. It is acknowledged the world over by eminent authorities as the one safe, perfected hair remover, therefore it is the only depilatory you can use without experimenting.

Leaves No Tell-Tale Smell

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor whatever. On the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor, an offensive, tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours.

Avoid Permanent Disfigurement

by refusing substitutes. If your dealer will not supply you send $1.00 direct. Free information how to determine which depilatories are harmful and worthless sent in plain, sealed envelope.

EVANS' DEFEAT MEANS A NEW WESTERN CHAMP

CHICAGO, July 25.—In the semi-finals for the championship of the Western Golf Tournament to-day Edward P. Allis, of Milwaukee, will be matched with Robert A. Gardner and Warren K. Wood will oppose Joseph C. Leduc.

Two surprises were furnished the gallery at yesterday's games, when "Ned" Allis, the Harvard star, defeated Charles Evans, Jr., the champion, and Warren K. Wood, who missed being champion twice, each time by 1 point, was compelled to play 39 holes to defeat Frazer Hale, of Omaha.

The pill of defeat so often administered by Champion Evans was swallowed by him when Allis defeated him, 4 and 3, in the third round.

Allis Stood Pace Well.

At one time in the afternoon, after Evans had won the sixth and seventh holes, it looked as if the champion might at least produce a tight finish, but Allis never cracked under the strain and kept on the even tenor of his way.

A stiff wind from the northeast was sweeping the course when the champion and his opponent teed off. Evans had the honor and hooked his drive close to a trap. Allis pitched his second 20 feet from the cup and holed his put. Evans, whose second was to the right of the pin, took one more.

Allis sliced his drive for the second hole into a bush and chopped out short, but to offset this mistake Evans, who had driven 260 yards, pitched his second into the bunker guarding the green, and the result was a half in five.

Both were on the third green in two, Allis being 30 feet short and Evans 15 feet to the right of the pin. They halved in 4. Allis hooked his next drive to the rough, but his second jumped the bunker guarding the green and ran to 20 feet from the hole. Evans took three to reach the green and ran his approach close to the hole.

Allis Makes Great Shot.

Allis stymied himself on his third and then made one of the most remarkable shots of the match. Evans' ball was too close to permit of a jump shot, and the boy played a follow billiard shot, his ball knocking Evans' ball a little to the side of the cup and following in, giving him the hole 4-5 and putting him 2 up.

The home hole was won by Allis, 5-6. Allis, after hooking his drive, made a fine second, short of the creek. Allis was 3 up at the interval.

A good start in the afternoon meant a lot to Evans, but his chances went tobogganing when Allis won the first 3 holes, and from that point on it was only a question if the chunky little Milwaukeean could keep himself at concert pitch, as with a lead of six holes he could claim membership in the "I should worry" class.

JOHNNY COULON STARTS WORK TO GET IN SHAPE

CHICAGO, July 25.—Physicians who have been handling Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion of the world, have released him and John will start on to-morrow to get himself back into shape for some title contests. He is packing his trunks to-day and on to-morrow will start for Georgian Bay, where he plans to rough it for a month or six weeks. Then he will return, go westward and close his match with Kid Williams. The Logan Square battler believes he will be ready to don the gloves about the middle of September.

"I'm going to camp out and live as close to nature as I can. Rough it will be my style for a month or six weeks, and then I'll be ready to enter the training grind. My physician has released me and says after a trip into the country I will be ready to box again. I am eager to get back into the game, principally to show that I am not all in. I have been censured for my delay in the Williams fight, but I knew I wasn't right, and I wasn't going to disappoint a hungry fight crowd by a poor showing," said John to-day.

WOLGAST AND JONES PART; WILL MANAGE OWN AFFAIRS

He and Jones, who acted as his manager during Wolgast's successful ring days, have separated—not that there is any trouble between them, but Ad feels he needs no manager now that he is no longer the title holder. Ad said to-day:

"Until I win the championship back, I will be able to attend to all my matchmaking myself. If at any time I make a good match and need Jones' assistance, he will be the man to attend to my affairs. I also want it understood that my old friend and manager and I are still the best of friends and pals, and if at any time I can make good again, Tom Jones will be manager.

Rain Tangles Line on Big Series

Volunteers Bob Up for Repairs

By O. B. Keeler.

BY way of giving our heroes a lift on every possible turn of fortune's wheel during the present hectic little road trip, it rained yesterday in Montgomery.

Diagnosis of this seemingly simple weather note informs us (1) that two games will be played this afternoon, unless (2) it rains some more; which means (3) that the two-ply grapple probably will end in a dog-fall, so that (4) the series will have to be decided to-morrow.

Assuming it doesn't keep on raining.

Most double-headers are split. It is hard for a good club to win two games in one afternoon. It is nearly as hard for a decently poor club to lose two. So it is rather unlikely that the present series will be as decisive as it looked before the bottom fell out.

* * *

NAMING NO NAMES.

Some of our most erudite little Sages
Daily rebound from this mystery vex'd:
How is it a ball club that cleverly gauges
Attack and defense, and consistently rages
Along in one game, till the praise clutters pages,
Turns right around and immodestly stages
An Opera Bouffe in the Next?

* * *

CAMPING the station of the Nashville Volunteers in the Southern League standing doesn't offer much enlightenment concerning the stalwart efforts now making by the management to cheer up that club.

For the present season, that is.

The Vols are more than a dozen games behind the leaders, and the day of miracles is popularly reported to be past.

And yet the wires buzz with rumors and well-grounded reports of deals by which one William Schwartz is adding to the power of his payroll, and, incidentally, to the tax upon the exchequer.

The latest noise sounds like Melville Brannon, of the spectacular college brand of slab-worker, and the idea is that Schwartz has snared him away from J. Dobbs and that the Tennessee Industrialist student soon will inhabit a Nashville uniform.

Pitcher Boland, of the recently exploded Interstate League, has been turned over to the Nashville club, and is expected to succeed Jack Brackenridge. Dave Bunting, from the same circuit, also is expected to join the rookies, but probably won't play this season. Schwartz is still dickering for "No-Hit Babe" Adams, of Savannah, and Hoffman was added to the roster at a considerable expense a short time ago.

So it looks as if Sir William might be looking forward to 1914—which, by the way, isn't so bad a thing to do.

* * *

CONTINUING in the same happy vein, it is noted that President Hirsig, of the Nashville club, is under way in the direction of Detroit for a conference with President Navin, the object being to retain Frank Gibson, the speedy and hard-hitting little catcher, for next season.

It is known that other clubs are sweet on Gibby, and it is possible that he may be destined to travel with Detroit in 1914, but Hirsig is confident he has the inside rail, and believes he will keep his pet receiver.

While in Detroit, Hirsig will look over the books for new material available for his club next year.

MAKING a swift shift to New Orleans, we translate an indistinct rumble from the distant North to indicate that Mr. Brenton, able Pelican fork-hander, is ardently desired by the Toledo Mudhens in the American Association.

The terms of the swap mention Outfielder Davy Jones and First Baseman Bluhm, one old bird and one young one, as the Toledo contribution to the deal.

But there is nothing definite.

UMPIRE SUES FEDERAL LEAGUE CLUB FOR $35,000

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Umpire Jack McNulty to-day brought suit against the Federal League baseball club of St. Louis and Manager Jack O'Connor for $35,000 damages because of an alleged attack O'Connor made on him on the club grounds in June.

According to the petition, McNulty was present to officiate as umpire in the game when O'Connor, "wrongfully and unlawfully assaulted him."

McNulty alleges that his injuries are such that he no longer will be able to earn a livelihood as a baseball umpire.

PITCHER GREEN REJOINS FRANK'S LOWLY PELS

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 25.—Pitcher Roy Green, shipped to Wheeling, W. Va., last spring under an optional agreement, has rejoined the Pelicans, as has Pitcher Glavenich, recently released by Omaha, and who is to figure in a three-cornered trade between the Pelicans, Cleveland and Toledo clubs for Pitcher Brenton shortly.

Waivers on the other two men Frank is getting in exchange for Brenton have been held up by two American Association clubs for the present.

BOXING
News of the Ring Game

Charley Ledoux, the French bantamweight champion, who lost the last two battles that he took part in at Vernon, Cal., the first with Campi and the second with Williams, is now in New York. He will sail for Paris in a few days.

* * *

Leach Cross and Matty Baldwin, who will meet in a twenty-round bout at Vernon, Cal., next Tuesday night, are "busy bees" at their training camps. Although many fight fans on the coast figure that Baldwin has a good chance to beat the Easterner, betting on the outcome is at even money.

* * *

Frankie Fleming, the featherweight champion of Canada, and George Kirkwood, of St. Louis, have signed articles to meet in a ten-round affair at New York on Saturday night. Both boys are lightweights.

* * *

There is a good chance that George "Knockout" Brown, Greek middleweight, will be matched with Art Allard for a contest of twelve rounds at Anaconda, Mont., for August 12. The plan is to match the winner with Leo Benz at Butte Labor Day.

* * *

Packey McFarland is taking things easy at his home in Chicago. Packey is after a fight with Freddie Welsh or Willie Ritchie. The Chicago wizard says he will make weight for either man.

* * *

Young Jack O'Brien is said to have received a raw deal in Vancouver, where he met Freddie Welsh. A daily paper published there says that Young Jack was entitled to a draw.

* * *

Young Seymour, who boxes Terry Nelson in a ten-round encounter at Marietta on Saturday, August 2, was in Atlanta yesterday. Seymour says he expects the bout to draw a good house, as they have already an advance sale of several hundred dollars. Seymour and Nelson are scheduled to go ten rounds.

* * *

* * *

Kid Duke and Kid Brooks have decided to settle their differences in the ring. The pair have agreed to meet in a finish bout in private some time next week. The boys have been hurling challenges at each other for the past two weeks.

* * *

Dominick J. Tortorich, New Orleans fight promoter, has decided to stage a welterweight elimination tourney. "Wildcat" Ferns and Young Denny are to meet in the first battle a week from next Sunday. Tortorich says he will bring Billy Walter, Spike Kelly and Mike Gibbons to the Pelican City for matches. All bouts are to be over the twenty-round route.

* * *

Tim Callahan, who was recently given a decision over Young Attell here, seems to have the makings of a good boy. He is the holder of a stiff wallop, and usually puts up an aggressive scrap.

* * *

Ad Wolgast is one of the many fighters on the coast trying to force Willie Ritchie into the ring. Tom Jones, manager of Ad, says he will agree to give the champion a $5,000 side bet if he will sign for the bout.

* * *

Coast promoters refuse to go wild over Arthur Pelky, who is at present in Los Angeles. The lightweights seem to be big cards out West at the present time.

CLARKE AND CONZELMAN PITCH TO-DAY

By Joe Ogler.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 25. George Clarke and Joe Conzelman are Bill Smith's pitching entries in the bargain-day bill this afternoon, and the gossip is that Elmer Brown, Montgomery's best bet on the slab, will work the first contest against our boys, with either Sparks or Case in the afterpiece. Chapman and Dunn will catch for the Crackers.

We are not grieving over the rain that knocked out yesterday's game with the Billikens. The off day did us good, as we needed a rest, and it helped to break up the jump here from Memphis.

* * *

THE Billikens are full of confidence, and they are going to be hard to lick. They all believe they are going to win the rag, but realize that the rest of the schedule is against them, as they have only one more series at home, after which they hit the long trail for the rest of their games. It is admitted here that the Crackers are the club to be beaten; in fact, every club in the league accepts that as a fact.

* * *

GILBERT PRICE, got here yesterday and looks to be in grand shape after his little rest. Take it all around, the club is in good condition and should make a great finish once it gets back to Ponce DeLeon.

JESS WILLARD AND BILL YOUNG STILL HOPING

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—Jess Willard and Bill Young, "white hopes," were matched to-day for a 20-round boxing bout August 22 at the Vernon arena. Willard hopes to make a few successful starts here against lesser lights, and then will go after a "Gunboat" Smith match again.

HURLER SMITH ON SICK LIST.

BOSTON, July 25.—The Cubs' cripple list had another addition yesterday. Pitcher Charley Smith is confined to his bed, suffering an attack of heart trouble, thought to be an aftermath of his prostration by heat in Cincinnati a few weeks ago. Zimmerman is in Chicago for treatment of his injured foot.

RAIN STOPS RACES.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 25.—Heavy rain yesterday afternoon stopped the Grand Circuit races at Fort Erie after the first heats of the 2:09 and 2:11 pace. Weather permitting, the two unfinished races and the free-for-all pace will be run off to-day and the Grand Circuit stars will move along to Grand Rapids.

New Orleans a 20-Round Center

Tortorich Seeks Classy Bouts

By Ed W. Smith.

NEW ORLEANS is now safely established on the boxing map as a safe and sane center in which twenty-round contests may be held. At least this is the statement of Dominick J. Tortorich, the Jimmy Coffroth of the South, who has firmly put the game back on a standing akin to the conditions that prevailed there in the good old long ago. New Orleans, be it remembered, had some of the most famous battles of ring history decided in its environs, and threatens now to take just as prominent a place as it got when John L. Sullivan and Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack Dempsey, Jack McAuliffe and Billy Myer, Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall and Dan Creedon and others of that class were battling for real titles.

* * *

BY sheer force of character and through demonstration that the boxing game can be kept free from scandal, and that it does not verge into the old class of "prize fighting," Tortorich has carried matters along until he has won over almost every executive in Louisiana to his way of thinking, and it is not believed that there will be any further opposition to Dom's plan of holding twenty-round contests from now until next Spring. And Dom believes he will be able to show all of the boxers that it will be strictly to their interests to pay some attention to the nice offers that he is going to make to them.

* * *

ALONG with Tom McCarey, Tortorich has been stung by the belt bee, and now has a well-developed case of trophy fever. One week from next Sunday afternoon, Dominick will present his first belt to the boxers. On that day he will have Wildcat Ferns, of Kansas City, and Young Denny, of New Orleans, in the first elimination test for the new welterweight championship that he proposes running during the present summer and coming fall. These boys battled ten rounds there July 4, and Ferns was awarded a verdict that started a near-riot among the spectators, many believing that Denny, the home boy, should have been awarded the victory. They are some partisans down that way. To settle the question, Tortorich nailed them at once for a contest over the long route.

MOBILE SENDS KELLY BACK.

MOBILE, ALA., July 25.—Outfielder Jack Kelly, obtained by Mobile from Jersey City, has been sent back to that club on account of an apparent inability to make good with the Gulls.

LUCKY INFIELD PUTS ATHLETICS IN FRONT RANK

By Sid C. Keener.

IF luck continues to break for Connie Mack and the Athletics, then the 1913 American League pennant race should not be close. The meaning of luck is injuries to athletes, the stars of his flock. And so far the lean Cornelius has been mighty fortunate in ways of accidents.

Mack is directing a bona fide championship ball club all right, still many teams which figured on dope, and even on the ball field, to win have lost out because this and that star was disabled and put out of harness for a lengthy period.

The lucky part for Mack and the Athletics is that he has the banner infield in major league circles to-day, and that his quartet has been on duty every day since the first game of the season, April 10.

Infield the Real Strength.

The Athletics' infield really is the tower of strength to the club. Of course, the pitching staff has more than held its own, still the Macklites are winning games when the pitchers are cracking.

Without a doubt the combination of McInnis-Collins-Barry-Baker forms the infield de luxe, and Stuffy, Eddie, Jack and Frank have been in there every day. Collins is the only player who has missed once, and recently, during a double-header, Mack laid off the Columbia U. lad to give youngster Bill Orr a chance.

Of course, Mack has been without Jack Coombs since April 11, when typhoid fever put "Colby Jack" out of commission. But Plank and Bender are having an unusually good year, and then Connie has been fortunate in getting excellent pitching from youngsters Brown, Bush, Houck and Wyckoff.

Both Kinds of Outfielders.

In the outfield Mack supplied himself with fly catchers in case of injuries. At present he has Danny Murphy, Rube Oldring and Jimmy Walsh, right-handed stickers, and Eddie Murphy, Amos Strunk and Pete Daley, left-handed swatters.

In the outfield Mack has supplied himself with batters for the two kinds of pitching, also for injuries.

In catching, Mack is taken care of in case of injuries, but so far no one has been needed. Schang and Lapp are doing all the catching, and even Ira Thomas, who practically caught the Macklites to the 1910-1911 flags, has not been behind the bat in a single entertainment since the start of the season.

The peculiar part is that Mack has been lucky, mighty lucky, with his infielders. Not only are they in there every day, but they are hitting the Athletics to the pennant. Collins has a .347 average; Baker, .326, and McInnes, .325. And the trio has scored 202 runs.

Diamond News and Gossip

Rain put the finishing touches on major league baseball yesterday, the National games all being postponed. The American League teams spent the day traveling eastward.

* * *

Connie Mack, of the Athletics, takes exception to the statement that he Senators will beat out his eam. Mack says his men fear nobody and will breeze home in the American League.

* * *

Manager Chance plans a big shake-up in the Yankees. He is contemplating benching Birdie Cree and Harry Wolter and filling their places in the outfield with Roy Hartsell and Ray Caldwell. The latter has not been meeting with success as a pitcher, but is developing into a good outfielder and batsman.

* * *

In the hope of widening the gap between his team and the Phillies Manager McGraw of the Giants will send his team along at the clip they have been traveling the latter weeks, when they begin their second invasion of the West to-morrow.

* * *

Manager Clark Griffith has ordered the Senators to keep away from Lake Michigan. Outfielder Shanks turned his ankle and injured his head while diving the other day and will be out of the game for several days. Griffith's order was to prevent further inroads on his players.

* * *

Alleging that he was assaulted by Jack O'Connor, manager of the Federal League, John S. McNulty, a former umpire, has brought suit for $35,000 against the league, the St. Louis Club and O'Connor, its manager. It was McNulty's first day of umpiring and also his last and he alleges he has been unable to earn a living in his profession.

FILLINGEM AND WILDER TWIRL TWO GREAT GAMES

CORDELE, July 25.—Seldom, if ever before in the history of organized baseball, has a record been made that would compare with that of Fillingem and "Baby" Wilder, pitching for Cordele in a double-header against Waycross Wednesday. Fillingem went nine innings for a shut-out game with no hits, and Wilder twirled a six-inning game, allowing no hits and no scores, striking out nine men.

By this remarkable record, Fillingem and Wilder have proved themselves the star twirlers of the Empire State League. Not only has a no-hit, shut-out game been pitched before in the league, but the fact that Cordele took both games with the same brilliant record makes it a precedent that will probably not be equaled, though the league is maintained for years, for which prospects now appear very favorable.

ARMY AND NAVY WRANGLE OVER FOOTBALL FIELD

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 25.—The Army and Navy athletic officials still are at a deadlock over the selection of the place where the next Army-Navy football game shall be played.

The Navy is insisting that the game take place in Philadelphia, while the Army contends that it should be played at West Point and Annapolis alternating each year, or in New York City, preferably the latter. The Army opens the football season early this year, playing a game September 27.

NEGOTIATIONS ON FOR M'FARLAND-RITCHIE BOUT

CHICAGO, July 25.—Negotiations were begun to-day for a ten-round contest between Packey McFarland and Willie Ritchie in Milwaukee early in October. McFarland had gareed to meet Ritchie, who is considering the proposition.

Artie Hofman May Go to Yanks

Vol Gardener Playing Fine Ball

NASHVILLE, TENN., July 25.—Any time a player comes tracking out from the majors, there immediately goes up the hue and cry that he has finished his act under the Big Tent, is on his way to the exit and only lingers around the side shows because it reminds him of the fame that was his when he occupied the center ring.

The cases of a return engagement in the majors are almost as rare as the appearance of feathers on turtles once a "slave" has started sliding, since oftenest it is the case that a ball tosser loses his ambition and desire to hobnob with the stellar lights once he has started shunting on down to the bushes.

It's because Artie Hofman is the exception that proves the rule that makes his case so full of interest, especially since so many widely different explanations of his appearance in the Southern have been offered.

Sure He Can Make Good.

It's no joke that the "them-was-the-happy-days-in-Akron" stuff had a lot to do with Artie casting his fortunes with Bill Schwartz, but the real honest-to-goodness reason is that the boy leader of the Vols afforded a protecting wing, under which Circus Solly could hide himself while the business of a clever little scheme of Hofman's was getting oiled up. The milk in the cocoanut of the whole affair is that Artie doesn't believe he is all through with the big show, and although they have their thumbs down on him, in the National, there is still a fine young chance for Artie to slip into Ban Johnson's circuit, where one Frank Chance is leading at present a forlorn hope in Manhattan.

Harking away back to the time when Charles Webb Murphy, the ungrateful owner of the Cubs, traded Artie and King Cole to the Pirates for Lefty Leifield and Tommy Leach, there started the breach between Murphy and the Peerless Leader, who, in the language for which Chance is widely noted, explained to Charles Webb just where he could head in. Leastways, that's the way Hofman tells it.

Didn't Like Fred Clarke.

Harboring an intense bitterness against Murphy, which found its best evidence in the recent suit for $3,000, which Artie pulled against the Chicago club, and a hankering for the fighting tactics of the Peerless Leader, made Hofman and Fred Clarke anything but a Damon and Pythias. All of this ill feeling, coupled with a pair of bum pins, soon caused Clarke to sour on the former Cub outfielder, and he began to look for a place to pigeonhole Artie, until he could get in good shape and bend his neck to Clarke's yoke; and Kansas City looked like a good place to the fiery Pirate chief.

The Blues were given a short option on Hofman at the stiff price of $2,500, after waivers had been secured on Artie—and there seems to have been a heap of inside stuff pulled in sending the blonde gardener out of Mr. Lynch's circuit, by the way—and a deal was framed up between Hofman, Clarke and the Kansas City club by which Artie should be returned to the Pirates at the end of the present season at a 20 per cent increase in salary in the event he "went good" in the Western circuit. This arrangement appealed to Hofman about like a spell of the itch, and he declared he had rather quit the game than be mixed up in any arrangement which would send him back to the Buccaneers and the tyranny of Clarke. When he balked, and wound up by kicking over the traces, the Kansas City club did the perfectly wise thing and allowed the option to expire.

An Old Pal of Schwartz's.

Business of "for old times sake" making a loud noise in the wings and Artie learning how Bill Schwartz was getting gray headed over the poor old Vols' slump. He would be tickled to death to come down and help an old pal out, if the Vols could buy his release. Did they? They did. For $1,500—(count 'em)—a thousand iron men less than Kansas City stood ready to kick in with, but it was a case of a bird in the hand, etc., with Clarke, and hence Hofman chasing flies in the Vols' left field.

But there is NO conditional release clause in Artie's contract, as has been whispered about. He is the sole property of the Vols, bought and paid for, with no strings tied to him one way or the other.

But this is a fact: Schwartz knows Artie's ambition to return to the majors; he knows he is anxious to once more work under Frank Chance's banner; that Chance is dead stuck on having Artie with him once more, and maybe Schwartz isn't going to help his pal get back where he is crazy to be. Maybe a duck can't swim, but he puts up a pretty good imitation.

AMERICANS WILL MEET BRITONS IN NET MATCHES

WIMBLEDON, ENGLAND, July 25.—The interest of the tennis world will be focussed to-day on the championship matches at Wimbledon, where the Americans will attempt to win the Dwight F. Davis international tennis trophy. England will spare no effort to defend the cup, which is the last remaining token of her former athletic supremacy.

The two singles matches will be played between Maurice E. McLoughlin, of San Francisco, facing J. C. Parke, whose unexpected victory last year over the noted Australian, Norman E. Brookes, was instrumental in bringing the cup to England, and R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia; meeting C. P. Dixon.

Parke fell an easy victim to the Californian in the open English championships, but a round of tournament play since is said to have greatly improved his form. England pins her hope on his ability to defeat McLoughlin, who is reported to be stale. English critics are united in declaring there is less than "15" difference between Williams' play and that of McLoughlin. A greater crowd is expected than the crush which attended the Wilding-McLoughlin match.

PELKY AND SMITH MAY CLASH ON TURKEY DAY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—Indications are that Arthur Pelky, Tommy Burns, heavyweight battler, and Gunboat Smith will do battle in this city on Thanksgiving day. Burns today announced that he would have his man ready on turkey day and that Smith would be the foe, the match going to the highest bidder.

CROUCH ROBBED: GETS DRAW.

OTTAWA, ILL., July 25.—Ben Crouch, of Chicago, and Kid Mack, of Joliet, fought eight rounds to a draw in the wind-up of a boxing show held here last night. The decision came as a surprise to the fans, as Crouch cleanly outought Mack, knocking him down several times. "Specia Delivery" Hirsch, of Chicago, and Ed Brandenburg, of St. Louis, went six rounds to a draw in the semi-wind-up.

BIG MARATHON GRIND TO-NIGHT AT MOTORDROME

UNLESS rain butts in again, local motorcycle fans will have their much-sought-for chance to see the Marathon race at the Motordrome to-night.

The races were postponed on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, but if the weather man will dish out some dry weather for to-night the riders promise to give the fans some racing that should be the classiest of the season.

$500 to Winner.

The Marathon race, with ten riders on the track at the same time, is the big feature. The speed teams are scheduled to circle the track 105 times, and the winner is to receive a cash prize of $500. More thrills seem likely to be crowded into this race than all the other races ever pulled off here.

Other Races on Card.

A special match race, three heats and a final of a sweepstakes and a trial against time by Tex Richards are the other events to be pulled off.

The following is the complete program:

Tex Richards against time. One mile. Present record held by Eddie Hasha and Morty Graves. Time, 38 4-5 seconds.

One mile to qualify for two-mile final. Two to qualify in each heat and three in fastest heat.

First Heat—No. 1, Morty Graves; No. 2, Harry Schwartz; No. 3, Billy Shields; No. 4, George Lockner; No. 5, Tex Richards.

Second Heat—No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, Georges Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

Harry Glenn vs. Harry Schwartz. (Special Match Race.) Two miles, best two out of three heats.

Final heat of Motordrome Sweepstakes—Two miles.

Second heat of Special Match Race—Glenn vs. Schwartz.

Third heat of Special Match Race, if necessary.

Big Marathon Race—(26 miles 385 yards), ten riders to compete. Each rider will have to ride 105 times around the track. Winner to receive cash prize of $500.

Contestants—No. 1, Morty Graves; No. 2, Harry Schwartz; No. 3, Billy Shields; No. 4, George Lockner; No. 5, Tex Richards; No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, Georges Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

INDIANS SELL TWIRLER.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 25.—George Kelserling, of the Indianapolis American Association club pitching staff, has been sold to the San Francisco Pacific Coast team. Manager Kelly also announced the purchase of George Norton, a young lefthander from the Hastings club of the Nebraska State League.

To All Householders, Business Folk---All of You With an Unfilled "Want"---

You have a boy or girl friend in The Georgian's Want Ad Contest. His name, or hers, is in the list below.

Your friend is working to win an automobile, or the piano, or one of the other prizes.

Your want ad---even if it is only two lines---will help him. Give him your ad or send it to the Want Ad Man with the request that your friend be given the votes. He will appreciate it.

CONTESTANTS are busily at work to-day telling their friends they're in the contest and learning the art of getting "want ads." The one who brings in the most paid want ads will be the owner of that touring car before long. It isn't too late for you to get in, but you'd better hurry. See the Want Ad Man at once and bring this nomination blank in with you.

THE CONTESTANTS:

Here are some of the boys and girls in the Want Ad Contest. Read the list and find your friend. Send your want ads to The Georgian and help him or her win a prize.

BANKRUPT SALE.

In Re: Horine Development Company, Bankrupt.

Pursuant to an order passed on July 2, 1913, by the Hon. P. H. Adams, a Referee in Bankruptcy for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Georgia, the undersigned, as Trustee, will sell before the Court House door of Walker County, Georgia, in the town of LaFayette, Ga., on the 5th day of August, 1913, between the hours of 11 a. m. and 2 p. m. o'clock the following described assets, belonging to said Bankrupt estate, consisting of realty and personalty, on the terms stated hereinafter. Said property to be sold as an entirety. The following described real estate in Walker County, Georgia, to-wit:

All of Land Lot 284, containing 160 acres, more or less; 53 acres more or less of Land Lot 285, said tract bounded by the cliff of the mountain until said cliff strikes the road across Dug Gap, thence with said road to the west line of said lot, being all of said lot south and west of said cliff and road as described in deed from W. N. Carmony to D. W. Lawrence, dated September 11, 1889; all of Land Lot 292, except that part of said lot conveyed to Henrietta Woods by J. E. Shaw; 53 3-8 acres, more or less, in the north part of Land Lot 293, and also all that part of Land Lot 293, lying west of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad Company's tracks, purchased by John H. Hill from J. F. Andrews, and by J. F. Andrews from D. W. Lawrence; all of Land Lot 320, lying west of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad Company's tracks, containing 50 acres, more or less; all of Land Lot 321, except two (2) acres lying on the east side of said Land Lot 321, known as the School House property, and one-fourth (¼) of an acre, more or less, on the east side of said lot enclosed and used as a cemetery, and two (2) acres and a fraction where the barn and horse lot is, the line running west to the west bank of a deep gulley, thence following the gulley or ditch to the original line. All of the aforesaid described land being in the eighth (8th) District and fourth (4th) Section of said Walker County, Georgia.

Also the following lots and parcels of land in the seventh (7th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of said Walker County, Georgia, being all of Land Lots Three (3), Four (4) and Five (5), lying west of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad Company's tracks, except so much of said lots as were formerly owned by W. N. and J. H. Herndon and Theodore Parker; also Land Lots Thirty-four (34), Thirty-eight (38) and Thirty-nine (39); and all that part of Land Lots Thirty-three (33), Sixty-nine (69) and Seventy (70) lying west of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad Company's tracks. The property above described containing One Thousand Five Hundred and Sixty-three (1,563) acres, more or less, and being the same property described in a bond for title between John H. Hill

Said sale to be to the highest bidder. A certified check for $6,000 shall be deposited by each bidder with the trustee before any bid shall be received from such bidder or be considered from such bidder. Checks shall be immediately returned to the unsuccessful bidders.

Such checks so deposited with the trustee shall be delivered to him, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in the event of its acceptance. The deposit made by the successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price. In the event the bidder shall fail, after acceptance of said bid, to comply with the requirements of his said bid, then such amount so deposited shall be forfeited as a penalty for such failure. The purchaser or purchasers on the confirmation of the sale by the court shall pay in cash such further sum on account of the purchase price as the court may direct and as may be necessary to satisfy the claims of creditors whose claims shall have been or may hereafter be allowed by the court. So much of the purchase price as shall not be required to be paid in cash may be satisfied by the purchaser turning in and applying to the payment of the residue of his bid, in whole or in part, any claim against the bankrupt estate which has been or which may hereafter be allowed as a provable claim, and that upon such claims so turned in as aforesaid, the purchaser shall be credited on his bid with such sum as would have been paid on account of such claim out of the net proceeds of sale, if the whole amount of the purchase price were to be paid in cash.

The court reserves the right to order a resale, and to resell the property upon such notice as it might direct, at the risk and the cost of the purchaser thereof, in case such purchaser shall fail or omit to make any payment on account of the purchase price pursuant to an order of court requiring such payment.

The court may reject any bid and may retake and resell the property, if the court shall deem such bid inadequate, or upon the failure of the purchaser to comply with the terms of sale. The sale shall be confirmed by the court.

Full information and property can be seen upon application to undersigned.

Fastest Railroad Time

Although the big railroads of the East are generally looked upon for holding speed records, the fact remains that the fastest record run for a short distance on a railroad was made in the South. This was in March, 1901, when a train on the Plant System, now the Atlantic Coast Line, ran from Fleming to Jacksonville, a distance of five miles, in the remarkable time of 2 minutes and 30 seconds, or at the rate of 120 miles an hour. The nearest approach to this record was made in July, 1904, on the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad from Egg Harbor to Brigantine Junction, a distance of 4.8 miles, in 2 minutes and 30 seconds, or at the rate of 115.20 miles per hour.

Notwithstanding the improvements made in railroads since the invention of the locomotive, remarkable speed was made as far back as May, 1848, when railroads were in their infancy. At this time a train ran on the Great Western Railroad of England from London to Didcot, a distance of 53.25 miles, in 47 minutes, or at the rate of 68 miles an hour. The record to-day for a long run is still held by the Great Western Railroad, a trip of 118.5 miles being made in one hour and 24 minutes at a speed of 84.6 miles an hour.

A notable long distance run of recent years was that made by a special train chartered by "Death Valley Scotty," the California miner. This train left Los Angeles on July 9, 1905, and arrived in Chicago July 11, making the distance in 44 hours and 54 minutes, maintaining an average speed while in motion of 51 miles an hour.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Browne Pays $35,000 For Peachtree Lease

Decorating Concern to Have Extra Floor, Leaving Huntley Building. Good Rental Business.

A Peachtree lease for $35,000 and seven years which will cause several interesting central and semi-central changes was announced Friday.

D. C. Strother, of South Carolina, and others have leased to the Walter E. Browne Company, decorators, through Andrew Calhoun, of the Turman, Black & Calhoun real estate agency, Nos. 324 and 326 Peachtree street, now occupied temporarily by the Pope-Hartford automobile agency. L. S. Crane, manager. The term is seven years, with an option of three more years, at approximately $5,000 a year.

The owners will add another story to the building at a cost of $8,000, making a structure of two stories and basement and mezzanine floor. There will be 14,000 square feet of floor space. The Browne company will likewise make improvements suitable to its business. Elevator service will be a feature.

This property is on the west side of Peachtree about 150 feet south of Porter place, and was in the original Porter subdivision. It is 45 by 90 feet to a 10-foot alley.

Mr. Browne will take possession about January 1, 1914, when his lease on the building at the northwest corner of North Forsyth and James streets expires. His move is significant of the tendency of houses of similar character to seek Peachtree semi-central locations. Lycett, the china painter, and the Biggs Antique Company having preceded him in this direction.

The building to be vacated by the Browne company is owned by Mrs. Lena Swift Huntley.

Drewry Street Sale.

The Atlanta Development Company has sold to Mrs. Clara M. Jones a lot on Drewry street 50 feet west of Frederica street, 52 by 254, for $1,600. This is lot 35 of block 3 of this subdivision.

Good Renting Business.

The renting business in Atlanta is reported to be as steady as at any time in the city's history. Characteristic of it is the desire of South Side people to be located on the North Side, although there is always a good demand for homes like those found in West End and similar suburbs.

The Ralph O. Cochran Company has rented or leased within the past few days the following 22 places:

For Dr. J. R. Cooke to Mrs. W. F. Canterbury, No. 301 East Georgia avenue; for W. P. Stevens to B. O. Fitts, No. 40 Avon avenue; for Mrs. E. R. Way to E. M. McHugh, No. 301 Oakland avenue; for Mrs. E. L. Lafontaine to D. T. Stephenson, No. 16 Cooper street; for T. L. Lewis to R. G. Greenwood, No. 45 Atlanta avenue; for Miss Katie McCay to E. S. Acree, No. 390 Cooper street; for W. V. Ogletree to J. M. Mayer, No. 11 McPherson avenue; for R. I. Barge to T. N. Tanner, No. 212 Murphy avenue; for H. L. Cobbs to T. D. Brown, No. 15 Windsor street; for Alverson Bros. to W. H. Tanner, No. 354 Ashby street; for James Millan to Mrs. M. C. Smith, No. 318 Cooper street; for Atlanta Baggage and Cab Company to Charles Alden, No. 14 Brotherton street; for Atlanta Baggage and Cab Company to Mrs. F. Syrakson, No. 18 Brotherton street; for C. M. Tripp to Mrs. L. A. Rader, No. 97 Mills street; for A. P. Morgan to Mrs. L. C. Howard, No. 533 Lawton street; for J. H. Harwell to C. E. Hulme, No. 476 West Hunter street; for Myers & Peiper to Mrs. G. A. Johnstone, No. 222 North Jackson street; for Mrs. W. W. Morgan to E. B. Durham, No. 22 West Tenth street; for H. W. Dillin to R. H. DRAW SPACE FOR ATLANTA EXHIBIT

Space in the permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods, which will be established in the new headquarters of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce building at Auburn avenue and Pryor street, will be allotted Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock. On account of the limited space at the disposal of the committee in charge of the allotment, it is expected that a number of local manufacturers will be present to arrange for their exhibit.

Virtually every manufacturer of importance in the city has consented to add an exhibit to the permanent display, and those who do not come in now are expected to join the movement later.

The decision to establish the exhibit in the Chamber of Commerce building was made Thursday afternoon by a special committee headed by Brooks Morgan, which has been considering various locations for several weeks.

The committee favored the establishment of the exhibit in the chamber's building from the beginning of the movement, inasmuch as the chamber is the sponsor of the movement, and several days ago the directors were asked to name a price for a lease on the upper floors of the building.

In addition to the exhibit of their goods, the building is being fitted up with other features that are expected to appeal to the manufacturers and merchants who will join in the display. A swimming pool, baths and a gymnasium will be provided for the manufacturers and members of the chamber.

Doubt Report That Dr. Jacobs Bought Burns' Manuscripts

Members of the family of Dr. Joseph Jacobs are not inclined to believe the report that he has purchased the famous Glenriddell manuscripts of Robert Burns for a sum exceeding $25,000 bid several years ago by J. Pierpont Morgan. The purchase of the manuscripts by the Atlantan is told of in London dispatches.

"I don't think there is any truth to the report," Dr. Sinclair Jacobs, son of Dr. Jacobs, said Friday morning. "If the manuscripts had been purchased we undoubtedly would have been notified, and we have heard nothing of it except what we have read in the papers. Dr. Jacobs, so far as I know, has not been near London on his present trip to Europe."

According to the London dispatches Dr. Jacobs purchased the manuscripts from a dealer in London, who recently bought them from the Liverpool Athenaeum. It is said that the deal between Dr. Jacobs and the dealer was pending at the time of the first purchase of the manuscripts, and that the London dealer was merely Dr. Jacobs' agent in the transaction.

OBITUARY.

Funeral services for Mrs. Pauline Isaacs will be conducted from the chapel of Greenberg & Bond at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. Dr. David Marx officiating. Interment will be in Oakland.

The body of Mrs. L. C. House, who died at a private sanitarium Thursday night, is at Poole's funeral home, pending funeral arrangements which will be announced later. Mrs. House was twenty-nine years old, and formerly lived at No. 123 Meldon street. She is survived by her husband and four sisters, Misses Clara, Hattie Lee and Mary Lou, and Mrs. Maggie Bubb.

Mrs. Sallie J. Crawford, thirty-six years old, died at her late residence, No. 510 Lawton street, Thursday night. Surviving her are her husband, E. C. Crawford, one small daughter, one sister, Mrs. A. D. Tull, and her mother, Mrs. Sally Tharr. Funeral announcement will be made later.

Levi S. Martin, aged seventeen, died at Mount Airy, Ga., Thursday. He is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Martin; two sisters, Mrs. Lowe Estes and Mrs. Lorenzo Hollingsworth, and four brothers, Q. E., J. F., M. M. and W. M. Martin, all of this city. The interment will be in Moreland, Ga., Saturday afternoon.

Scott Promoted for Phagan Case Work

Harry Scott, assistant superintendent of the Atlanta branch of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, has been promoted to the superintendency of the Houston, Tex., agency as a reward of his work on the Phagan case. He will leave Atlanta immediately after the Frank trial is concluded.

The Pinkertons were employed in the Phagan case by the National Pencil Company. Harry Scott was assigned to the case and was instrumental in bringing to light many important features.

Scott was the aggressor in securing the so-called confession of Jim Conley, the negro sweeper.

Sunday Schools to Hold Annual Meet

The First District Sunday School Association of Fulton County will hold its thirty-second annual celebration at the East Point Tabernacle Saturday, beginning at 10 o'clock. Practically every Sunday school in the county will be represented.

The annual address will be delivered by the Rev. Charles O. Jones, D. D. Others who will speak are Dr. F. S. Hudson, Dr. Charles E. Witt and Dr. W. M. Joiner. Officers for the coming year will be elected, and a basket dinner will be served.

Following are the present officers of the association: S. W. Ramsey, president; Joseph W. Humphries, vice president; Percy L. Hule, secretary; Lawrence Sims, chorister, and Claud [illegible] assistant chorister.

JULY AGAIN ON THE TOBOGGAN

The South and Liverpool Heavy Sellers—Spot Houses Big Buyers of New Crop.

NEW YORK, July 25.—At the start to-day the cotton market was steady at a net decline of 4 to 7 points from last night's close. Near positions again showed the greatest weakness, but they were also the first to respond to later covering and soon after the opening the whole market rallied several points, with the shorts nervous over the oversold condition of the market.

Liverpool was lower than due and brought out scattered selling from the ring. This, together with a perfect weather map, showing further rains in Texas and lower temperatures generally, with indications for more showers, brought on more favorable apprehension that the drouth would not continue. The early firmness was not of long duration. July continued on the toboggan and by noon had increased its decline 11 points from the previous close. August, after advancing 12 points to 11.67, fell back two points under the previous close.

New crop positions were liquidated. The early buying seemed to be profit-taking purchases by shorts and by moderate buying by a few strong spot interests. It seems now that the bull market is about over. Weather and crop advices are excellent. Spots are weakening for the first time in many weeks and new crop cotton is beginning to arrive at various points in Texas. The recent heat and clear weather was regarded as most propitious to the plant and hasten its maturity.

After slumping to 11.73 in the late session for a net decline of 13 points from the previous close, July was quickly rushed back to the initial level and over, through heavy buying by brokers representing large spot interests, based on the bullish spinners' takings for the week shown in Hester's weekly statement. The buying was aggressive, resulting in considerable short covering by those taking advantage of the low level.

At the close the market was steady with near positions net unchanged to 5 points lower, while new crops were 1 to 2 points higher than the final quotations of Thursday.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: July, 11.78; August, 11.64; October, 11.25; January, 11.13.

Following are 10 a. m. bids in New Orleans: August, 11.57; October, 11.31; January, 11.30.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, July 25.—Official records and private advices show a good rainfall overnight in North Texas and Oklahoma, and the map shows a fine general rainfall in the Central and Eastern States; cooler in North Texas. Indications are for more rain in the West, continued showery weather in the Central States and Alabama, clearing in the Atlantics.

Since the date of Habersham King's report, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia have had a fine rainfall and the Western States are getting it now.

Our market opened a few points lower and held around 11.31 for October. It is being realized that rains in the West came too late to improve Bureau returns, which close to-day. The chances, therefore, are that the August Bureau, which will be published a week from to-day, will show several points loss and this explains the absence of selling pressure in the markets and a disposition to buy on depressions.

Political news is unfavorable. According to London news a revolution in China is again under way.

COTTON GOSSIP

Map showed some scattered rains in Western belt this morning, which gave rise to general selling by commission houses and the local crowd. The South is said to have also sold. Spot houses were apparently leading buyers, but most of their purchases seemed to be in summer positions. Liverpool was said to have bought August here. After Liverpool closed there was another wave of selling and in the absence of that buying power the market sagged off again, but rallied later on buying of some 5,000 bales new crops said to come from spot people. This caused scattered short covering. Reports as to Texas rainfall are conflicting. Should general rains come it is believed that the market will sell lower, though some bulls contend this has been discounted, that cotton is worth the present price. It is purely a weather market.—Anderson.

* * *

Hentz, Seidenberg and Liverpool brokers hedging July, but sold October. The selling was general. Mitchell and Wilson were apparently the leading sellers on reports of rain in Texas to-day.

* * *

Warehouse stocks in New York to-day are 33,531; certificated, 24,554 bales.

Southern banks are borrowing more largely than in many years from Philadelphia banks and institutions. They want 6 per cent money for 90 days, required to finance the picking and marketing of the crop.

* * *

There were various signs that the end of the bull market has come. Spot markets are weakening for the first time in many weeks. For an indefinite period the spot price of cotton at Galveston has been 12 5-16 to 12⅜, while New Orleans has been equally firm around 12 7-16c. Wednesday both broke to 12⅛. This is a bad sign, as these are two of the most important spot markets in the South. In fact, Galveston right now has larger stocks of cotton than any other of the thirteen counted spot centers of the South. The break, so sensational in the middle of July in New Orleans, is merely another sign of the times. More liquidation of a few thousand bales would not have broken that market had there been any confidence in the stability of the spot markets.

Quite a few notices were circulating this morning, being issued by Liverpool houses.

Liverpool cables: "Spot cotton, good business; prices easy; sales estimated 10,000 American; middling fair, 7.21d; good middling, 6.89d; middling, 6.61d; low middling, 6.41d; good ordinary, 5.93d; ordinary, 5.55d."

* * *

NEW ORLEANS, July 25.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map shows partly cloudy to cloudy over entire belt; nice rains in North Texas and detailed records at 10 o'clock will show more also in Oklahoma. Fine rains also in the central and eastern belt. Cooler in Texas. Indications are for a good deal more rain coming on Texas and Oklahoma; also in West Texas. Continued showery weather over the central belt, and clearing over the Atlantics.

* * *

Habersham King's latest report says: "The dividing line is the Mississippi River. West of it the conditions are more dangerously dry. East of the river the crop is fairly safe, though rains are beginning to be needed in Mississippi, Alabama and more moisture needed in Georgia to render it quite safe. I think the week's developments have been unfavorable to 50 per cent of the belt."

THE WEATHER.

MODERN MILLER CROP REPORT

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Weather this week was again favorable for winter wheat harvest, which is well under way in Northern sections of the winter whet belt. While rains have had some effect on conditions of grain in localities where there was considerable moisture, quality of wheat sent to market, nevertheless, is uniformly good. Threshing returns generally satisfactory both as to quantity and quality.

While the movement of wheat to market is still free, there are indications in some localities of a let-up in the selling. Farmers seem willing to part with the first threshings and having thus relieved pressing needs, show a tendency to hold back the remainder of their wheat. Some farmers are taking advantage of the favorable soil conditions to begin breaking ground for fall wheat

By CHAS. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Another halt in the buying movement what is evidence on the stock market at the opening to-day, and a generally lower tone prevailed.

The news of the Government's suit against the American Telephone and Telegraph Company was used as a reason for pressure against that stock, which declined 1¼.

Other losses were: Southern Pacific ⅜, Union Pacific ⅜, Steel common ⅛, American Locomotive ⅛, Canadian Pacific 1⅛, New Haven was up ⅛.

Other shares moved irregularly with the changes equally divided between gains and losses.

Trading in London was irregular.

The curb market was steady.

The market movements lacked uniformity, a large number of issues failing to share in the activity. However, sharp upturns displayed strength and the advance continued small but active. Canadian Pacific was conspicuous among the leaders. Steel rose ⅜ and Reading ⅛. Union Pacific moved up one point to 149½. Coppr yielded ⅛. Northern Pacific and Pennsylvania were a shade lower. New Haven sold around 103¾.

Call money loaning at 2¼.

New low prices were made in many issues in the early afternoon, but in the late trading some slight recoveries were noted. Steel common reached 59 and there was brisk demand for Union Pacific, Reading and a number of specialties.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Life Costs More---AND LABOR MUST LIVE

Business Men Must Make Their Plans Based Upon Necessary, Inevitable, JUST and Steady Increase of Pay.

(Copyright, 1913.)

Following is an extract from a telegram sent from San Francisco by W. R. Hearst to the manager of his editorial department. The message is recommended to business men generally:

"I believe that the railroad men, and all laboring men, must positively get repeated increases in wages in order to enable them to maintain even their present standard of living, and that they should properly, in the development of our civilization, obtain an even higher standard of living. Business men must count upon increasing wages as one of the inevitable conditions of modern life, and must make their plans and form their enterprises accordingly.

"HEARST."

The opinion expressed in the above dispatch is that OF A MAN WHO PAYS OUT MILLIONS A YEAR IN WAGES, AND THE HIGHEST WAGES.

A man who pays millions annually in wages, and has constantly increased wages throughout his business career, has a right to be heard by employers as well as by workers.

In Congress, when Mr. Hearst appeared to argue in favor of the Eight-Hour law against manufacturers who opposed it, Mr. Hearst pointed out the fact that his opinion concerning the eight-hour day was not theory, but positive knowledge, inasmuch as he himself employed men on the eight-hour-day basis, had done so for years, intended to do so permanently, AND HAD MADE HIS BUSINESS PAY IN SPITE OF THAT HANDICAP, if it were a handicap.

Successful business men in the United States should give careful and open-minded attention to Mr. Hearst's telegram, which is a message from one business man to others, from one considerable employer of labor to other employers of labor.

It is not a hardship for the intelligent business man to pay good wages and work his men fair hours, IF OTHER BUSINESS MEN DO THE SAME.

The great thing is that business men shall have an understanding, that they shall realize that they and the workers are actually partners in national welfare, AND THAT THEY SHALL FIGHT AGAINST THE MEAN, NARROW AND HARMFUL MAN WHO REFUSES TO DO THE JUST AND HONORABLE THING.

If a thousand men employ a million workers in a certain line of effort, and if they all pay their men well and give them reasonable hours, THAT IS FAIR FOR EVERY EMPLOYER.

The trouble with our system is that the hard-hearted, narrow-minded, close-fisted man, who goes off by himself, shunning organization, refusing co-operation, and competing upon a basis of the lowest wages and the longest hours, has been allowed to enjoy his prosperity and his thrift through meanness without question.

Let the employers work on an even, just basis as to wages and hours, and then THE BEST MAN WILL WIN—the business man will win who has the best ideas, the highest intelligence and is able to render the greatest public service.

All that the good business man asks, all that the fair employer wants, is justice and the opportunity to compete for business success and prosperity on an even basis with other men of his own class.

The salvation and prosperity of this country, menaced now by half-baked ideas of half-baked Democrats at Washington, have been based very largely upon the fact that the United States through the tariff has been protected from the unfair competition of the unfair foreign employer and ill-treated foreign labor.

American business men, thanks to the tariff, have had to compete ONLY WITH AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN

The man who has made iron in this country, and who paid his puddlers as much as $8 a day and more, has not had to worry about the man in Belgium who was paying for the same labor less than one-quarter.

The man manufacturing goods in this country has manufactured in competition with AMERICAN employers, and need not keep his mind upon the problem of meeting the competition of some Chinese manufacturer able to get labor for five cents a day.

American industry has grown, American prosperity has grown, American wages have grown—AND THE COST OF LIVING, INCLUDING FARMERS' PROFITS, ALSO HAS GROWN, because over here we have kept our markets to ourselves, and competition has been among men living, working, manufacturing and competing on the same terms.

What will happen if Democrats who believe that they know all about business, manufactures and industry, BECAUSE THEY HAVE NEVER HAD ANYTHING TO DO WITH THOSE THINGS, are to have their way, if the tariff wall is to be torn down suddenly and the competition of the meanest foreign employers and the lowest paid foreign labor is to be met, is another story.

Fortunately, one election is followed by another election. It will not be difficult for workers and employers combined to have their way AT ANOTHER ELECTION and correct the threatening follies of this Administration.

The main thing is that those now working in this country, whether they work with their hands, as laborers and mechanics, or with their brains, as employers, should co-operate on a friendly basis, through the making of laws, for the establishment of minimum wage rates, especially as regards women, and in other sane, friendly and legal ways for the bettering of conditions.

It is time to get away from the days of strikes, of dynamite, of Homestead shootings by paid Pinkerton thugs, or Los Angeles explosions by degraded, depraved misrepresentatives of labor.

It is important that those who employ labor should recognize the truth of Mr. Hearst's statement in the above telegram, "that railroad men and all laboring men must positively get repeated increases in wages in order to enable them to maintain even their present standard of living, and that they should properly, in the development of our civilization, obtain an even higher standard of living."

The workingman to-day gets not twice, but three times, four times and five times what he got when this country was young.

McMaster, the historian, writes of a day when there was JUST ONE MECHANIC IN THE UNITED STATES ABLE TO MAKE A DOLLAR A DAY ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

One President of the United States, a well meaning man, was filled with gloom and thought the country was going to the dogs because when he spoke you could no longer hire a first-class man in this country for less than fifty cents a day.

If you had told an employer of those old days, even a George Washington, a Thomas Jefferson, or any other first-class old American, that one day in this country unskilled labor would demand and get two dollars a day and skilled mechanics three dollars, four dollars, five dollars a day and more, those old Americans would have said, "Well, the country must go to the dogs; the thing is impossible."

When you say to-day that wages, high as they seem to some, must be increased, and ought to be increased, the man of to-day, if he be shortsighted, will tell you that it is impossible, and that the country must go to the dogs.

BUT IT IS NOT IMPOSSIBLE, AND THE COUNTRY NEED NOT GO TO THE DOGS.

The American employer of to-day is better off, being richer, bigger in his enterprise, safer in his undertakings, than his predecessor who used to be able to hire a first-class man for fifty cents a day.

The men that own the street railways and pay $2.50 per day are better off than they were in the days when they got their labor for $1.00 or $1.10.

After all, what is the chief asset of the employer? Is it not the competent well-fed worker?

And far above the interest of the individual employer, what is the chief asset of the nation? Is it not a population of well-fed men, well paid, with time to rest, time for mental improvement, money enough to keep their children out of the mills and mines, and in school?

Not with hatred, bitterness and regret, but with pleasure as good citizens, the competent American business men, united, with laws to protect them, fighting the unfair competition of low wages and long hours, should gladly recognize that the purpose of a republic is not merely to make a few rich and protect them in their wealth, but to make the entire population happy, contented and prosperous.

Very gladly the employers of intelligence and power must, as Mr. Hearst says, "count upon increasing wages as one of the inevitable conditions of modern life, and make their plans and form their enterprises accordingly."

The employer should be reasonable and just.

And the workers should be reasonable, honest and fair.

We ought to be able to get away from an industrial system of fighting, hatred, battle and strikes.

The worker should be content to give a fair and full day's work for a fair day's wages and fair hours of work.

We should get away from these days when the employer does his best to get the most that he can out of the workman, and give him the least possible; and when the worker's thought and that of his leader is to get the most he can out of the employer and give the least possible.

Workers and employers should treat each other justly, combining as associates, friends and brothers, and GIVE TO THIS NATION AND TO THE FUTURE THE BEST POSSIBLE PRODUCT OF THEIR COMBINED BRAINS AND MUSCLE, ORGANIZED AND APPLIED IN SUCH A WAY AS NOT TO INTERFERE WITH THE HEALTH, THE HAPPINESS, THE MENTAL GROWTH OF THE PRESENT GENERATION, OR THE WELFARE OF THE GENERATIONS TO COME.

Extravagance

It Is Both a Form of Lunacy and Immorality, He Declares.

Written For The Georgian

By the Rev. Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

THERE is such a thing as extravagance. The word stands for the wild use of money. It is barbarism expressing itself in the unreasoning scattering of dollars.

It is both a form of lunacy and a form of immorality—lunacy, because there is no sense in it; immorality, because it is a contemptuous waste of values.

Poor as Well as Rich.

No man has so much money as to warrant his expending it without a calculation of rational returns, returns accruing either to the enrichment of his own life or the life of someone else.

That is a principle which is being grossly disregarded, and the habits of people are tending more and more strongly in that direction.

This holds of the poor as well as of the rich, although in the case of the former it comes to less conspicuous expression and is therefore less thought of or commented upon.

The money that hundreds of thousands of poor people expend in whisky, beer and tobacco is both idiotic and wicked.

It is idiotic because it helps to keep them poor; it is wicked because it devotes to sheer animalism treasure that ought to go to higher ends, and which might be so utilized as to raise them to a higher level of human value.

"Stage of Vulgarity."

The poor man in Scripture who put his money where it would bring back to him no sensible return was cast into the outer darkness. That is the Bible's way of characterizing a senseless and vicious treatment of assets.

This silly extravagance of the poor is encouraged by the same habit practiced on a more stupendous scale by the rich.

The uncalculating and therefore iniquitous scattering of money by men with large fortunes is one of the features of the times.

As the late D. Willis James once remarked to me, "It has reached the stage of vulgarity."

Passion for luxury has been one of the causes assigned for the sinking of the Titanic; and now we have got the Imperator, and there are more coming.

A quarter of a century ago no one thought of a suite of rooms aboard ship costing above $500.

The figure has mounted now to $5,000. One can secure now, for $500, accommodations just as comfortable, just as well suited to personal and physical requirements, as were obtainable at that figure 25 years ago, and that would leave a margin of $4,500 expended without any rational or righteous return.

"Barbaric and Sinful."

Now, when we consider the wise and necessary uses to which money can be put, the beneficent institutions that need to be supported, the causes of every kind that languish for want of funds, the destitute women and children that go poorly clad and miserably fed and unfed, I say that, when such considerations are taken into account, for a man to lay out $5,000 or any considerable part of that for the sake of luxuries of six days' steamer travel is both barbaric and sinful.

And any man, no matter how much money he has, who has risen above the level of barbarism and sin ought to be ashamed to be publicly advertised as having sacrificed a sum so egregious on the altar of his own personal and animal comfort.

ATLANTA GIRL HURT IN AUTO CRASH

THREE TO BE OUSTED IN POSTOFFICE SHAKE-UP

ONE FATALLY HURT IN SEABOARD LINE WRECK

Passenger Train Strikes Locked Switch on Marietta Street. Fireman Near Death.

Passenger train No. 17 on the Seaboard Air Line, due in Atlanta from Abbeville, S. C., at 8:40 a. m., was wrecked Friday morning when just abreast the National Furniture Company plant at 844 Marietta street, by plunging into an interlocking switch set against it.

The negro fireman, Albert Wallace, of No. 44 Rock street, Atlanta, was thrown across the tracks when the engine toppled, and was carried to Grady Hospital unconscious. He is not expected to live. Engineer C. A. Tennant, of Abbeville, S. C., was badly shaken up and bruised, but was not seriously injured.

The front trucks of the first coach, a combination passenger and baggage car, left the tracks, and the occupants, all negroes, were given a severe jolting. None of the other four cars was derailed.

Inquiry Begun by Road.

Officials of the Seaboard, in an effort to fix the responsibility for the wreck, are investigating the report that the signal board indicated "all clear" until the train was almost upon the switch and that at this instant the operator in the tower pulled the signal and derailed the train.

T. L. Brook, of No. 66 Currier street, long in the employ of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, is the towerman. He denied the signal had been set against the incoming train just as the interlocking switch was reached, resulting in the derailment. He said that a dead Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic train on its way to the yards was crossing the Western and Atlantic track on which Seaboard train No. 17 was approaching, and that Tennant must have overlooked the signal set against him.

Two Employees Shift Blame.

Tennant claims that the signal was white. Towerman Brook declares that it was red. The W. & A. officials will join with the Seaboard in the investigation. Tennant has been with the Seaboard since 1902 and has been regarded as careful and trustworthy. He has had a passenger run for three years.

The train was running at about fifteen miles an hour when the derailment occurred. The engine careened along the ties about 30 feet and then plowed a deep pathway through the black dirt at the side of the tracks, finally toppling over. A small panic was created among the white passengers, but no one was hurt.

Captain White, wrecking boss for the Atlanta and West Point Railroad, was on hand with a wrecking crew within a few minutes and the work of clearing away the debris began. The line was expected to be clear by noon.

TRAP MATTIFORD AFTER HUNT OF 3,000 MILES

BOSTON, July 25.—Chased for more than 3,000 miles, from Atlanta to Boston, John D. Mattiford, 50 years of age, was arrested here to-day, charged with being a fugitive from justice. Mattiford is charged by the Atlanta police with Kidnaping John A. Barwick, Jr., 5 years old, and his sister, Dorothy T., 9, children of John A. Barwick, of Atlanta.

Mattiford pleaded not guilty in the police court to-day and was held in $1,000 for the Atlanta police.

The police also are looking for Mrs. Barwick, mother of the children, and Mrs. Annie Laurie Jeter, mother of Mrs. Barwick. Mrs. Jeter is also charged with kidnaping the children.

For the past three months Inspectors Dorsey and O'Neal had been searching for Mattiford. He has been trailed all over New England, but escaped. For several weeks Mattiford and Mrs. Barwick were registered at the Clarendon Hotel under the name of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Martin.

Shortly before 10 o'clock to-day they saw Mattiford walking down Columbus avenue alone. Inspector Dorsey approached him, spoke his name and Mattiford turned. He was immediately placed under arrest and taken to police headquarters.

He told Chief McCarr that he did not know where the women or the children are, but he supposed they had gone back to Atlanta.

M'KEE, COLE AND HART LOSE OUT

By HUGH MILLER.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The ousting of Postmaster McKee, Assistant Postmaster Cole and Superintendent of Mails I. C. Hart, of the Atlanta office, will occur early next week, according to information obtained to-day from the Postoffice Department in such a way there can be little doubt of its authority.

First Assistant Postmaster General Roper, who will be back from Denver early in the week, has announced that he will take up the Atlanta case the first thing on his return and a speedy decision is expected.

The principal charge against the three Atlanta officials, as contained in a report submitted to the Postmaster General by the chief inspector's office, is inefficiency, resulting in a chaotic condition of affairs in the office.

Postmaster Hugh McKee, when charges of alleged inefficiency in the Atlanta postoffice were first brought to light and dispatches from Washington stated that an investigation would ensue, denied ephatically that there was any truth in the accusations.

"If there is any inefficiency in the Atlanta office, I do not know it," said Mr. McKee. "I defy all charges to the effect that I am not competent to judiciously conduct the office. At all times I have every detail under my full control.

"My superintendent of mails, Mr. Hart, is one of the best in the country, and my assistant postmaster, Mr. Cole, is thoroughly competent. My subordinates all report daily to me, and every complaint registered in this office is brought to my personal attention. I have instructed all clerks and officials to bring people to my office who have a grievance.

"The reason I have all men under me report so regularly is because I am held responsible for each man, and I realize that it is solely up to me to see that each man does his duty."

BANDITS RIDE IN AUTO.

LOUISVILLE, KY., July 25.—Thieves who traveled in an auto dynamited the postoffice safe at Creswood, Ky., and fled with $400.

Kansas Official in Company Attacked Under Blue Sky Law

TOPEKA, KANS., July 25.—D. M. Mounday was arrested here to-day charged with conspiracy to use the United States mails to defraud.

Mounday was the organizer of the American Sugar Manufacturing and Refining Company of New Mexico and recently filed suit here seeking to have Kansas' "blue sky" law declared invalid, Bank Commissioner Sawyer having declined to authorize Mounday to sell stocks and land contracts of his company.

Many prominent Kansans are connected with the company. Charles Sessions, Secretary of State, and former Senator Charles Curtis are directors.

Atlanta Doctor Is Accused in Macon Of Fraternal Fake

MACON, GA., July 26.—Charging him with obtaining mnoey under false pretense, a warrant was sworn out this afternoon for the arrest of Dr. Bernard C. Goldberg, who gives his address as 400 Atlanta Trust Building. The warrant was issued by Dr. T. M. Sigman, in Justice McCowan's court.

Several days ago Dr. Goldberg came to Macon and advertised that he was organizing a "herd" of the Benevolent Order of Buffaloes here. It is said that he appointed three physicians "sole medical examiners" and obtained a fee from each of them, accepted several membership applications with fees, gave a large order for furniture and took a commission for procuring the contract, and engaged "general counsellor the Southern States" and solicited a fee from him. He is now missing.

His stationery classifies him as "national medical director," with headquarters in Atlanta, fourth floor Atlanta Trust Building. The Atlanta authorities will be asked to arrest him.

Lanford to Settle Dictograph Check

Following Mayor Woodward's announcement that he would not sign the $19 check to pay for the dictograph by which he was trapped, the police department has withdrawn the voucher from the Comptroller's office. It had not yet reached the Mayor.

It seems that Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford has decided to pay the money out of his own pocket.

WITNESSES FOR FRANK CALLED

Despite Judge's Statement All Is in Readiness, Move for Postponement Is Expected.

Despite the fact that Superior Judge L. S. Roan stated everything was in readiness for the trial of Leo M. Frank next Monday, that State's Attorney Hugh M. Dorsey has announced he will fight a delay, and that the defense actually commenced summoning witnesses, the impression still prevailed Friday that a motion for continuance would be made by the defense when the case is opened.

Attorneys Luther Rosser and Reuben R. Arnold declined flatly to say whether they would permit the trial to proceed without introducing some motion for a postponement, and the report was that witnesses had been summoned to be on the safe side in the event a request to put off the trial is refused.

Frank Is Ready.

The accused man was in the best of health and spirits, according to an announcement from the Tower Friday, and was anxious that the case go to trial. His illness would be the best ground upon which to secure a delay, but the inability of any one of the more material witnesses to come into court would more than likely be considered a sufficient legal reason.

Judge Roan considered it highly improbable that the case would be put off on account of his indisposition. He said that he was in the best of health, and that if any continuance were secured it would be at the request of the State's attorney or the counsel for the accused man.

"I had a slight attack of indigestion Wednesday night," he said, "but I was all right Thursday morning and opened court at Covington. I disposed of three murder trials before noon, and left for Atlanta at 12:30 in the afternoon.

Judge to Require Good Reason.

"To the best of my knowledge the trial of Leo M. Frank will begin next Monday. The only possibility of postponement would be some very good and sufficient legal reason for a continuance advanced by the State or the defense. During the eleven years I have been on the bench I have never postponed a trial on account of being ill, and I will not consider any personal inconvenience next Monday.

"The reason in not drawing the jury earlier was to guard against several of the veniremen leaving the city rather than to serve.

"The date set was in the nature of an agreement, and I would imagine both sides were ready and willing for the trial to go on."

The weather will not play any part in securing a postponement unless the mercury registers 99 degrees or higher. Judge Roan said that he laughingly remarked last Saturday that if the temperature was as high next Monday as it was then he would be glad to continue the case. He said that he had not considered such a proposition seriously, but if it got so hot as to be extremely uncomfortable, he might consider a postponement.

Special deputies were sworn in Friday to guard the jail.

LIE PASSED IN BUDGET CLASH

Appropriations Bill Passes House After Bitter Verbal Battle. Little Danger of Veto.

The lie was passed in the House Friday, Representative Barry Wright, of Floyd, using the word in resenting lobbying charges intimated by Representative Howard Ennis, of Baldwin. Ennis started toward Wright, but several of the other members of the House intervened and the matter was quickly straightened out, Mr. Ennis declaring that his words carried no innuendo or intimation, but that he was simply asking for information.

Representative Wright had moved for a reconsideration of sections 4 and 5 of the general appropriations bill, which the House was considering as a committee of the whole. These two sections provide for the appropriations for schools, colleges and State institutions.

Ennis interrupted Wright in a speech and inquired if "he was not inspired by members of the 'third house' to ask for a reconsideration."

Wright's Retort Sharp.

The reply of Wright was that "any such a statement was a lie, an absolute falsehood." He demanded that if Ennis had such proof or evidence that he at once submit it to the House.

Ennis explained that he had no such evidence; that he did not mean to intimate that the Representative from Floyd had been so inspired, but that he simply wanted to find out if such could be the case.

Carrying with it an appropriation of $5,795,667, which is $108,900 under last year's bill, and carrying an additional appropriation of $3,679,000 to refund bonds in 1914-15, the general appropriations bill was passed by the House Friday.

By the passage of the bill at this time all House records were broken, and everything looks safe for a quick passage through the Senate and to the Governor for approval.

Little Change in Bill.

The bill, as amended, showed a difference in but three of the appropriations recommended by the committee. This included $2,550,000 for the public school fund for each of the years 1913 and 1914, which was an increase of $50,000 over the committee recommendation; $30,000 instead of $25,000 for the maintenance of the Soldiers' Home, and a slight increase in the appropriation for clerical help in one of the Statehouse departments.

Much debate was indulged in on several items, Representative Barry Wright objecting to many on the grounds that it was following in the footsteps of the 1911 Legislature, "which was the most extravagant in the history of Georgia."

The Confederate pensions section, which covered many items, totaling $1,074,800, was an object of special attack, but no change was made in it.

Hindu Preacher Held For Attack on Girl

MACON, July 25.—A dark-skinned man, who says he is the Rev. Adolpus Sampson, a Hindu, was arrested here this afternoon on a warrant charging him with attacking the daughter of a minister living at Spread, Ga. The Sheriff of Jefferson County has already arrived to take him to Louisville. He says there is high feeling against the man at Spread.

The Rev. Adolphus was arranging with Dr. W. N. Ainsworth to preach a series of sermons in the latter's church when arrested.

Prohibition Blamed For Revenue Deficit

"Repeal the prohibition law and you won't have to worry so much about the finances of the State," was the emphatic statement made in the House Friday morning by Representative C. M. Clark, of Dougherty County.

The remark came as an interruption in a speech by Representative L. R. Akin during the heated discussion of the general appropriations bill. It was Clark's first statement to the House this session.

Mrs. Pankhurst Near Death From Hunger Strike; Under Knife

LONDON, July 25.—The condition of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who was released from Holloway jail yesterday, is reported to-day to be grave.

The "hunger strike" which she inaugurated when in jail has greatly undermined Mrs. Pankhurst's constitution. So weakened was her condition to-day that she was subjected to a transfusion of blood operation. The physicians decided that an operation was necessary in order to save the militant leader's life.

Declaring that they will serve their imprisonment rather than pay fines, Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, Lady Sybil Smith and Miss Evelyn Sharpe, who were arrested yesterday when they tried to hold a suffrage meeting at the entrance to the House of Commons, were taken to jail to-day. The women were fined $200 or the option of spending fourteen days in jail.

Insane Hospital Conditions Flayed In House Speech

"There are wards in the State Sanitarium which the public is not allowed to see on account of the terrible conditions caused by the failure of the State to appropriate sufficient money to properly care for the inmates," said Representative Henry L. Fullbright of Burke in the House Friday morning. "The unfortunates who are inmates of Georgia's Insane Asylum deserve every care possible, and this appropriation is not too much."

The charges were made during an attack on the Appropriation Committee's recommendations for a half million dollars for the institution, included in the general appropriations bill. Representative Barry Wright and others brought objection to it on the grounds that it was an increase of more than $100,000 of the 1909 appropriation, and an increase of $10,000 over last year.

The appropriation as recommended was passed.

U. S. and British Split First Davis Cup Play

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

WIMBLEDON, ENG., July 25.—The American tennis team broke even with England in the first day's play for the Davis cup. To the surprise of all, M. E. McLoughlin, the "California flame," lost his match to the veteran Parke, who scored 8-0, 7-5, 6-4, 1-6, 7-5.

R. Norris Williams made up for his partner's disappointing showing by defeating Dixon, 8-6, 3-6, 6-2, 1-6, 7-5.

The doubles match will be played to-morrow.

Breezes Put Atlanta In Sea Resort Class

A number of Atlantans who had planned to take advantage of special rates to seashore resorts have decided to remain at home, finding Atlanta as cool and pleasant. Thursday night was quite cool, the mercury sticking close to 70 all night.

At 1 o'clock the Government thermometer registered 78 degrees, and cool breezes were making pleasant what usually are the most heated parts of the downtown district.

Showers Friday afternoon or Saturday are predicted by Government Forecaster VonHerrmann.

1 KILLED, 3 INJURED IN MOTOR UPSET

Miss Theo Prioleau One of Victims in Accident at Monroe, La.—Sister Escapes.

MONROE, LA., July 25.—One person was killed outright, two others were seriously injured and another bruised when an automobile, occupied by a party of men and women, turned turtle while racing another machine two miles from Monroe just before midnight.

The Dead.

Victor C. Smith, son of A. L. Smith, a wealthy planter, residing at Stearlington, La., crushed to death.

The Injured.

Miss Theo Prioleau, daughter of Mrs. E. L. Prioleau, of Atlanta, Ga., right leg broken in two places.

R. L. Prophet, Jr., back sprained.

Miss Ruth Williams, of Monroe, badly bruised.

Others in the party included Miss Dolly Prioleau, sister of Miss Theo, and H. P. Decker, of Newburg, N. C. They were unhurt.

Said to Have Been Racing.

The Smith car was being driven by the man who was killed, and with Morgan George and a party of friends, was returned from Horseshoe Lake, a pleasure resort above Monroe.

George says the two cars were racing and were going at least 45 miles an hour. He said he was about half mile ahead of the Smith car and did not see the accident. From reliable reports, it is learned that when about two miles from town the Smith car, striking a sharp curve in the road, turned a double somersault, going over a ditch.

Victor Smith was crushed to death almost instantly. Miss Prioleau's right leg was broken in two places. Prophet, Jr., was injured in the back.

Autoists Find Victims.

The car was uninjured and was driven to Monroe this morning by autoists who found the dead and injured on the side of the road and rendered all the aid possible.

The George party reached town and after waiting some time for the Smith party decided to go back, they found them on the roadside. The Prioleau girls were taken to the residence of W. L. Smith, in Monroe, and Miss Williams was taken to the home of her grandfather. Prophet was taken to a sanitarium.

The Misses Prioleau have been honored at many special functions.

The Misses Theo and Dolly Prioleau are well known in society circles here. They reside with their mother, Mrs. Eula L. Prioleau, at No. 70 East Merritts street, and have been prominently connected with social activities of Atlanta during the season. Mrs. Prioleau was prostrated by news of the accident, but received telegraphic assurances that Miss Theo was in no danger.

Envoy Wilson Is in New York; Tells of Mexican Conditions

NEW YORK, July 25.—Admitting he had done all he could to have the Huerta Government in Mexico recognized and charging that Mrs. Francisco I. Madero, wife of the slain President of that country, is a forger, Henry Lane Wilson, Ambassador to Mexico, who has been summoned to Washington by President Wilson, arrived here this afternoon on the liner Mexico. He will leave to-night for the Capital.

Mr. Wilson appeared to be in excellent health and spirits, but he declined to discuss the proposed visit of Secretary Bryan to Mexico or what might be the outcome of any intervention in that country on the part of the United States.

MAYOR PRESENT AS CITY PLANT IS STARTED

Looks on When Fire is Lighted, but Refuses to Take Part in Ceremony.

Mayor James G. Woodward was present at the "firing up" of the new crematory at noon Friday, but as he himself expressed it he absolutely refused to take any part in any original exercises.

Accordingly Sanitary Chief John Jentzen, Councilman Claude L. Ashley, chairman of the Sanitary Committee, and Orvid Poole, member of the Board of Health from the First Ward, touched fire to the big furnace simultaneously.

There was much surprise when Mayor Woodward joined the party of officials at the plant, located just back of the Terminal station.

Was His First Visit.

It was his first visit, and it was due only to the persuasive efforts of City Clerk Walter Taylor and Councilman Ashley that he went.

"Well, what do you think it's worth after looking it over?" a member of the party asked the Mayor.

"I haven't changed my opinion about it," replied the Mayor. "It's not worth what we are paying for it. I knew all about what it was before I came down here. I saw their plants in Milwaukee and Paterson, N. J."

Joseph Shearer, custodian of the City Hall, said a stranger from South Georgia who had come to Atlanta on an excursion asked him where the crematory was.

Mayor Opposes Option.

The stranger said he had come to Atlanta to see the sights and that after viewing the Capitol and the Federal Penitentiary he wanted to see that crematory he had heard so much about.

But deeper than the joking was a seriousness among the officials Friday. Mayor Woodward had announced that since the Aldermanic Board had joined the Council in overriding him and appropriating $5 for an option on the $100,000 proposal of the Destructor Company to build a 1,500 kilowat electric plant in conjunction with the crematory, he would refuse to sign the $5 check.

Electric Plant an Issue.

The Aldermanic Board Thursday killed the $200 appropriation to send two delegates to the convention of the League of American Municipalities at Winnipeg, Canada. Mayor Woodward had intimated that he might go himself and pay his own expenses. But Friday he announced that he would continue to deny himself a vacation, even on such a trip as that, for if he left town he knew that $5 option check would be signed by Mayor Pro Tem James E. Warren.

Mayor Woodward may be mandamused and forced to sign the check.

GIRL DIES IN FLAMES; HEROIC MOTHER HURT

Miss Bessie Lyon, who was fatally injured when her dress was ignited by the fire in an open grate.

Young Woman's Skirt Fired by Blaze in Grate—Parent Unable to Save Her.

As a result of severe burns received when her skirts caught fire from a grate in which she was burning some trash at her home, No. 349 Capitol avenue, Miss Bessie Lyon, 19 years old, died Thursday night at the Georgian Hospital. She was the daughter of R. L. Lyon, superintendent of the Austell Building.

In the room next to the one in which the girl succumbed, her heroic mother Friday lay, suffering from serious burns received while trying to extinguish the flames which enveloped the daughter.

The accident occurred Wednesday afternoon. Miss Lyon had swept some light trash into the grate in the front room on the second floor, and, after applying a match to it, turned to leave. A tongue of flame leaped up to the hem of her skirt as it swished over the fire, and immediately the filmy cloth blazed.

Girl Flees in Terror.

When the girl discovered her plight, all presence of mind left her. Screaming, she burst open the door and leaped down the stairway. Her body by this time was enveloped in flames.

Mrs. Lyon, emerging from a back room, saw her daughter as she bounded down the stairs. Grabbing a blanket, she ran after her, catching the terrified girl as she reached the first floor of the building, where Mr. and Mrs. B. Clein live.

A struggle between the two women ensued before the blanket was placed about the younger one. In her efforts to save her daughter, Mrs. Lyon let the flames catch in the sleeves of her own dress, and for a time it looked as though both women would be burned to death.

Pedestrians from the street rushed in. Mrs. Clein had picked up a rug from the floor and was endeavoring to throw it over the mother and daughter.

Mrs. Lyon was separated from the burning girl and the flames in her dress were quickly extinguished.

Girl's Dress Burned Off.

So filmy was the material of the daughter's dress, however, that it burned off of her before the fire was put out. The girl was unconscious and her body blackened.

An ambulance was called and the two women were taken to the Georgian Hospital. The daughter never regained consciousness.

The mother received burns about the face and arms, from which she will recover.

Aged Doctor Dies as He Asks for Blessing

DAWSON, July 25.—When Dr. W. C. Kendrick said "let's have the blessing now," as he sat down at the breakfast table this morning, his head fell back and he died immediately.

Dr. Kendrick was 83 years old. He retired from medical practice last week, after 58 years' service. He had held many positions of honor, having represented Webster and Terrell Counties in the Legislature.

JUDGE KNOWS NO CAUSE TO HALT FRANK TRIAL

Roan Expects Case Will Be Called Monday—Deputies Serving on 144 Veniremen.

day morning to begin serving the 144 veniremen whose names were drawn Thursday afternoon by Judge John T. Pendleton. It will be late Saturday evening before the last man can be served, according to Deputy Sheriff Plennie Miner, who had charge of the extra men.

The fact that the jury actually was drawn and several had been served Friday morning and that the State's witnesses were already under subpena to be at the courtroom Monday morning was the strongest assurance that the trial would actually begin.

Judge Roan had been averse to putting the State to the expense of serving the jury until it was reasonably certain the trial would begin, and he will urge that both sides go to trial rather than inconvenience the jury and witnesses, many of whom will make arrangements to absent themselves from work to be at the courtroom Monday.

Jim Conley was questioned again late Thursday and was made to rehearse his movements on the day of the tragedy, being taken to the various places he asserted he visited the forenoon and afternoon of April 26.

Chief Beavers assumed charge of the negro, and was assisted by Detectives Starnes and Campbell, who had taken Conley to the Tower the day before without the Chief's permission.

Conley was taken from the station secretly, and the four were in the Chief's automobile and out of sight before the officers' intentions were known. The negro was taken to Carter street and Electric avenue, the point where William H. Mincey swears he saw Conley the afternoon of April 26, and heard him boast of killing a girl.

That the detectives are heading every effort either to discredit or establish definitely the Mincey affidavit was made evident by the number of persons they interviewed, with the purpose of ascertaining if anyone had seen Conley at the place and at the time Mincey says he had his conversation with the negro.

Conley also was taken to the office of Solicitor Dorsey, where he was quizzed closely in regard to his reported remark when crowds began to gather near the factory that he "would give a million dollars if he were a white man." The remark was said to have been overheard by another negro, and this negro was in the Solicitor's office to confront Conley.

Chief Beavers would not divulge the results of the afternoon's work except to say that nothing had developed to change his theory of the crime.

Rope Also Found.

It became known Friday that a piece of rope was among the finds made on the first floor of the National Pencil Factory after the murder of Mary Phagan. It was found by the Pinkerton operatives at the same time the torn envelope purporting to be Mary Phagan's and the blood-stained club were discovered.

The defense has not hastened to an assumption that any of this evicase. The attorneys have insisted dence is of vital importance in the that the evidence be proved genuine beyond a doubt. It is understood that no absolute proof has been found that the envelope was that in which Mary Phagan received her money. The same lack of definite information is said to exist in respect to the club and the piece of rope.

The rope was found wedged in the radiator near the spot where the club and the envelope were discovered and only a few feet from the box on which Jim Conley was sitting Saturday afternoon.

Trial Fails to Clear Stabbing Mystery

The trial in Recorder Broyles' court Friday morning of M. B. Ware, a real estate dealer of No. 30 Highland avenue, for cutting Burnett Goodman about the face with a knife on Peachtree street Thursday morning, failed to disclose the reason for the cutting.

Goodman stated in court that he did not know why Ware assaulted him. He declared he was peaceably walking along Peachtree when Ware came up and without a word began striking his face with a knife.

Ware declined to make any statement. He was fined $25.75 for disorderly conduct and was bound over to a higher court under $500 bond for assault with a deadly weapon.

'PRETTY GIRL' EXHIBIT AT CANAL FAIR URGED

MISS GEORGE GREEN.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The tragedy of suicides which followed the elopement of Elsa Schroeder with "Baron" Richard Arkovy, a Hungarian adventurer, culminated to-day when Robert W. Schroeder, a retired stock broker, ended his life by gas in the same room where his wife, heartbroken over their daughter's marriage, also committed suicide with the same gas jet.

In 1909 the "Baron" captivated Elsa, then a 19-year-old girl. She had inherited $200,000 from her grandfather, Jacob Hoffman, a brewer. Despite her parents' opposition, Elsa eloped. The "Baron" went through the girl's fortune in a few months. She left him to return to her parents, but in the interval, her mother had taken her life.

Arkovy continued in the limelight for a time after his wife had sued him for separation. He was heard of in Monte Carlo and other gambling resorts. Then came the news that in April last he had killed himself with morphine in a London hotel.

The suicide of the father came as a climax to the disasters which followed on the heels of the elopement.

SUMMER SCHOOL TO CLOSE.

ATHENS.—The summer school which has been in session since June 30 will close next Friday after possibly the best session in its history.

Booster Club Probably Will Send Pictures of Ten Leaders in Beauty Contest.

A reader suggests that the pictures of the ten leading beauties in the booster button contest be included in the Georgia exhibit at the Panama Exposition in San Francisco.

It is not unlikely this suggestion will be carried out by the Booster Club.

When the prettiest girl finally is selected for the "500,000 Club" booster button her face will become the emblem of that organization, but her name will not be on the buttons. The only words under the pretty face will be the slogan: "Watch Atlanta—She'll Get You Yet."

Miss George Green, of No. 223 North Jackson street, is one of the entrants to-day. She is another brunette and makes the number of brunettes equal to the blondes in the contest. At first it seemed that the blondes would predominate.

Nominations still are invited. Girls nominated now will have practically as good an opportunity from the standpoint of time as those suggested at the first. It is with The Georgian readers who is to be selected, the nomination and voting coupons being published each day.

MAXWELL CAR IS FIRST PRIZE FOR ADS

Friends of Contestants Can Help by Sending in Want Ads for Contest Votes.

Say, that first prize automobile in The Georgian's Want Ad Contest is a beauty—the first one of its kind ever sold in the South and a model that promises to be a winner all over the country.

It's a Maxwell 25-4, the newest thing from the Maxwell plant, and a crackerjack. Wright Gillies, of the Maxwell Company, has just completed an 1,100-mile drive in one of them from Detroit to New York City, stopping at every Maxwell branch city to show what the new car would do. And he writes that its performance opened the eyes of motorists, especially on the hills.

And that's just one of many prizes for contestants who bring the paid want ads to the Want Ad Man. But you have all seen the list—a piano, a trip to California, motorcycles and bicycles, watches and diamonds. Everybody has a chance.

Friends Can Help.

In another part of this issue appears a list of the want ad contestants up to date. Freinds of the contestants can help them by giving them their want ads or by sending the ads to The Georgian or Sunday American with the request that a certain contestant be credited with the votes. Read the list, see your friend's name, and remember that he or she is in the race to win a prize and you can help.

The contestants are hard at work to-day under the direction of the district managers. They are calling on their friends and acquaintances, suggesting the use of want ads. If you'll stop to consider a moment, you'll remember something you need. Perhaps it is a cook or a better washerwoman. Maybe you'd like to trade your vacant lot for an automobile, or your automobile for a lot. Perhaps you'd like to rent that vacant room, or take in a few boarders, or maybe you're looking for an apartment. There are hundreds of things which a want ad will bring you.

SUIT CASE THIEF GAVE LOOT TO WOMAN

Confessions Rapidly Bring Police to Solution of Series of Burglaries, They Say.

By the confessions of H. B. Williams, a weaver, implicating George Harris, driver of an automobile truck for Kelley Bros.; T. W. Reese and R. W. Miller, the police claim they are rapidly solving many recent burglaries in Atlanta. Williams, they say, has confessed to robbing Kelley Bros.' place and an attempt at Byfield's store on West Hunter street.

Harris denies participating in any of the robberies. Both Williams and Harris will be placed on trial before Recorder Broyles Friday afternoon.

Woman in the Case.

Miller and Reese have been bound over to the Grand Jury in bonds of $6,000 each, the charges against them being one for burglary, one for robbery, one for attempted burglary and two for larceny. The latter charges cover thefts of suit cases from the Terminal Station.

Mrs. Ruby McGinty of 153 1-2 Whitehall Street has entered the case in a unique way. It was in her room that one of the stolen suit cases was found. She has insisted that the suit case was presented to her by Reeves and denies any knowledge of it having been stolen. Reeves admitted that he gave her the suit case.

Tangle In Bank Accounts.

Mrs. McGinity has appealed to Chief Beavers to assit her in the recovery of $58, which she charges she gave to Reeves to deposit for her. Instead of placing the money on deposit to her account she charges that Reeves deposited it in his own name. Reves also admits this.

An examination of a bank book which Reeves had on his person at the time of his arrest revealed that fact that all but four cents of the account had been withdrawn. Reeves has advised the officers that he has another account, but declined to tell in which bank it was deposited. He says the $58 was deposited in this account.

CANTON DEPOT SAFE BLOWN.

CANTON.—The Louisville and Nashville Railroad depot at this place was burglarized at 3:30 o'clock this morning. The safe was blown, but the burglars got no money.

MOTHER'S FRIEND IN EVERY HOME

Comfort and Safety Assured Before the Arrival of the Stork.

The old saying—what is home without a mother—should add "Mother's Friend."

In thousands of American homes there is a bottle of this splendid and famous remedy that has aided many a woman through the trying ordeal, saved her from suffering and pain, kept her in health of mind and body in advance of baby's coming and had a most wonderful influence in developing a healthy, lovely disposition in the child.

There is no other remedy so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant those fibers and muscles which nature is expanding and soothes the inflammation of breast glands.

Mother's Friend is an external remedy, acts quickly and not only banishes all distress in advance, but assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother. Thus she becomes a healthy woman with all her strength preserved to thoroughly enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend can be had at any drug store at $1.00 a bottle, and is really one of the greatest blessings ever discovered for expectant mothers. Write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 128 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their free book. Write to-day. It is most instructive.

CHAPTER 4 IN PHAGAN MYSTERY

Inquest Into Slaying of Factory Girl and First Sensational 'Confession' of Negro Sweeper Jim Conley.

CHAPTER IV.

Through all the interrogation of witnesses by the Coroner's jury and through the ordeal of a half day's inquisition of Leo M. Frank, no bit of direct and positive evidence was developed against either Newt Lee or Frank. When, however, at the close of their session on Thursday, May 8, the six jurors found that Mary Phagan had come to her death by strangulation and ordered that Frank and Lee be held to the Grand Jury, they did the only thing left to them.

So far as they knew at that time Frank and Lee were the only persons who could have had the opportunity to commit the crime. They knew that they were unequal to the mystery, the baffling elements of which mounted in numbers and proportions as the case progressed. They passed it on to the Grand Jury.

Lee and Frank, as the two persons who presumably would know the most about the crime, were probably the most important witnesses, but the closest interrogation of the negro failed to bring out any important testimony that he had not already given the officers.

Frank Recalled to Stand.

Frank was recalled to the stand for a few moments when the inquest resumed Thursday, May 8, but nothing was developed. The spectators, however, were sure that disclosures which might fix the guilt for the crime would be made during the testimony of Harry Scott, who had been working on the case for the Pinkertons. Scott followed Frank upon the stand. He told of his negotiations with Frank and the other National Pencil Company officials.

The little room was hushed awaiting the answer when Coroner Donehoo shot at him just as his testimony was concluding:

"Have you any definite clew as to who committed this awful murder?"

Scott's reply was a disappointment to those in the crowded inquest room.

"I would not care to commit myself that far," he said.

"Have you any definite suspicion?" persisted Coroner Donehoo.

Detectives Non-committal.

"We are working along a chain of evidence which I would not care to give out," the detective replied.

Detective Black's testimony was fully as non-committal. It was a striking commentary on the fact that the detectives had been working on the case near two weeks and as yet had no more idea of the identity of the murderer of Mary Phagan than they had at the end of the first three days after the body was found.

They had a "chain of evidence" which established that Leo Frank was in the factory when Mary Phagan arrived and later was attacked, a circumstance which Frank already had freely and promptly acknowledged. Beyond this they had nothing direct or positive.

They had dropped all their suspicion of Gantt and Mullinax and the young men were released. After both had been identified with a degree of certainty that left little doubt that they had been with Mary Phagan the night that she was slain, it was proved that neither had seen the little factory girl for weeks.

Mullinax Freed by Girl.

The loyal defense of Mullinax by Miss Pearl Robinson, his pretty 18-year-old sweetheart, was one of the bright spots in the sordid murder mystery. When she heard of the things of which the police were accusing her lover she went with all speed to the station and there, indignant that anyone could make such a blunder as to suspect "Arthur," she told the detectives what she thought of them, declared that Mullinax was with her at the time the crime then was thought to have been committed, and finally all but stormed his cell and took him away with her.

With the work of the Coroner's jury finished, conjecture at once arose as to the probable action of the Grand Jury.

The handling of the case passed at this time largely out of the control of the detectives and was assumed by Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey. Within a few days his announcement came that he had engaged the "greatest detective in the world," and it became the general hope that when the Grand Jury met to consider the case, some positive evidence would have been developed to fasten the crime definitely upon one person or another.

Burns Man Investigates.

The "greatest detective" proved to be Frank Pond, at one time a Pinkerton operative. What evidence of value he uncovered is still a secret closely guarded by the Solicitor. About the same time negotiations were started to bring the world-famous W. J. Burns to Atlanta. Burns, however, was abroad, having just taken part in the search for J. Wilberforce Martin, the wealthy Memphian, and was unable to come at once. C. W. Tobie, one of the Burns superintendents, came in his chief's place and worked on the case for several weeks, and then left without making announcement of any important discoveries.

Along with these sleuths a half dozen other experts were drawn into the mystery. Among them were P. A. Flak, the New York finger-print expert; L. J. Fletcher, Bertillon expert at the Federal prison, and a number of physicians and bacteriologists.

Lessening in significance much of the work accomplished and the evidence found by these men was the fact that they for the most part had concluded their investigations and had left the city before one of the most important elements of the whole mystery was introduced which they had not given consideration in their investigations or in their theories.

This element was the fact that there was another person, of whom they knew nothing, in the factory at the time the girl was attacked.

Pond's Theory Shattered.

Frank Pond, "the greatest detective," is understood to have said that he could fix the guilt upon Frank by a process of elimination. He considered one person after another, showing that it would have been impossible for each one of them to commit the crime.

When he had finished, Leo Frank was the only one to whom sufficient opportunity had been afforded. But he was unaware of the presence in the building of a skulking negro, who from his hiding place watched the factory girls and other employees as they entered and left the building.

As the day for the Grand Jury session approached, the Solicitor redoubled his efforts to obtain some definite evidence for presentation to the jurors. A sensation was created when the Solicitor, Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, and Dr. H. F. Harris, Director of the State Board of Health, made a secret trip to Marietta and exhumed the body of Mary Phagan in the little graveyard there.

It was rumored that the Solicitor had come into possession of startling evidence which he hoped to strengthen by a re-examination of the body. The mystery was deepened when a second trip was made to the cemetery and the body again taken up. Dr. Harris never revealed the results of his analysis of the girl's stomach, which was made on the theory that she had been drugged.

Factory Girls Questioned.

A succession of witnesses visited Dorsey every day. He turned one witness out only to admit another. Scores of girls from the factory were questioned in regard to Frank's actions toward them. It was supposed that if any of these girls gave the Solicitor the evidence for which he was looking they would be placed on the stand at the trial in the event that Frank's character was put in issue.

One of the startling stories that came to the Solicitor's ears was that cries of anguish had been heard coming from the factory at 4:30 o'clock the Saturday afternoon that Mary Phagan was killed. Miss Willie M. Ross, No. 259 Crew street, is the young woman who was said to have given the Solicitor the information.

At 4:30 in the afternoon Frank was alone in the factory, so far as is known, except for the Phagan girl. Miss Ross is said to have told the Solicitor that she heard piercing screams as she was passing the factory Saturday afternoon. She said that at first the cries were shrill and distinct and then died away into moans and became inaudible.

Two blank bills of indictment were presented to the Grand Jury when it met Friday, May 23. One was drawn against Frank and the other against Lee. Murder by strangulation was charged in each of the bills. While the jury was deliberating came the sensational charges of attempted bribery made against Colonel Thomas B. Felder by A. S. Colyer, Jr., working in co-operation with the detective department. Felder was accused of trying to buy Phagan evidence in the possession of Chief of Detectives Lanford by offering Lanford's secretary, G. C. Febuary, $1,000.

New Sensations Sprung.

The next day, Saturday, was replete with sensations. An indictment was brought against Leo Frank, charging him with the murder of Mary Phagan by choking her to death with a cord about her neck. The jurors had barely gathered when over at the police station Jim Conley, practically ignored by the detectives up to this time, made his first confession following an interview in The Georgian with E. F. Holloway, day watchman at the factory, in which Holloway accused the negro of knowing much more about the killing of Mary Phagan than he had told.

Conley sent for Detective John Black.

"Boss, I wrote them notes," the negro said, as soon as Black appeared.

Black was thunderstruck. The possibility that Conley wrote the notes had hardly entered the minds of the detectives. They had centered on the theory that Frank committed the crime and readily adopted the belief that he disguised his hand and scrawled the almost illegible and unintelligible notes that were found by the body of the dead girl.

Black at once took Conley to the office of Chief Lanford to obtain his full statement. An affidavit was prepared and the negro swore to it. It related that he had written the notes at the direction of Frank and in Frank's office. He said that he was working in the factory Friday, the day before the murder, and that Frank came to him and told him to come into the office. It was four minutes of 1 o'clock.

Says Frank Dictated Notes.

Frank told him to write: "Dear Mother, a long tall black negro did this by himself," according to Conley. The negro said that Frank had him write several times on a white scratchpad single ruled and then on a pad of brown paper. Frank then took the pencil and copied it, said Conley, muttering after a moment, "Why should I hang?"

Conley's remarkable story created a turmoil in police circles and aroused the public to a pitch of excitement that had not been equaled since the first days following the slaying. It pointed to the certainty that Conley knew a great deal in regard to the murder. It had, however, one puzzling feature that robbed it in the public mind of much of its credibility.

Conley asserted that the notes were written on Friday. This statement, on its face, was utterly ridiculous and improbable. No one believed that the murder was planned a day ahead of time.

Frank, if he was guilty, did not know that Mary Phagan was coming in the factory at a certain time the next day, and had he known, no one held the conviction that he deliberately planned her slaying.

Suspicion Turns to Negro.

Conley's story carries the assumption that Frank on Friday afternoon was preparing to destroy Mary Phagan's life the next day. The first effect of the weird tale was to direct suspicion most strongly to the negro himself. He had shown that he had a knowledge of the crime.

A comparison of his writing with that on the murder notes showed them to be identical. It did not require any handwriting expert to determine this. Half a dozen of the experts had declared the writing to be that of Lee. Others had said it was Frank's cleverly disguised. A few thought that Mary Phagan herself was the author.

By the next day the detectives had decided that Conley's story was worthless so far as it accused Frank. It must be changed if it were to be regarded as incriminating in the least.

Conley was brought into Lanford's office the next Tuesday to be grilled again. The "sweating" had its effect. Conley's second "confession" was given to the public. This time he said that he wrote the notes on Saturday instead of Friday. He explained that he had said Friday in the first place because he was afraid he would be connected with the crime if he admitted he had been in the factory on the day the girl was killed.

Says Frank Called Him.

In his first confession he said that Frank had called him from an aisle where he was working into the office. In the second he declared that he met Frank at Nelson and Forsyth streets about 10 o'clock Saturday morning, and that Frank had told him to wait a few minutes while he went into Montag Brothers' plant.

The negro said that Frank was gone about 20 minutes, and then the two of them walked toward the pencil factory. His story was that Frank told him to sit on one of the boxes on the first floor until he heard a whistle.

While sitting there he saw several persons enter the factory and others leave. He thought that he must have fallen asleep, for he was aroused by the sound of a whistle. Looking up, he declared he saw Frank standing at the head of the stairs leading to the second floor. Frank beckoned to him, he said. On reaching the second floor, Conley related that Frank gripped him nervously by the arm and led him into the office. Then followed the tale of the note writing, which was given in the first affidavit.

When Conley's signature had been affixed to this second affidavit and he had solemnly asserted, "I'm telling the truth this time, white folks," the detectives still were dissatisfied with his story. They did not believe he had told all he knew. His story as it stood had several statements that conflicted with the stories of other persons who had been in the factory during the day.

Discrepancies in His Story.

He had told of seeing Miss Mattie Smith and Foreman M. B. Darley leave the building. He had repeated their conversation and had described Miss Smith's apparel. But he had said that he was not in the factory until he came with Frank at 11 o'clock, and both Miss Smith and Darley had testified that they left between 9:30 and 10 o'clock and did not return.

He was vague on several other points that made his story suspicious. He appeared to be holding something back. The detectives and the public became convinced that he had seen Mary Phagan in the factory that tragic Saturday. Conley was believed to be on the verge of a full confession. He had displayed so much knowledge of the happenings that day in the factory that it seemed certain he must know more.

When he was called into Chief Lanford's room the afternoon of May 29, it was recognized that it was to be a test of strength between the detectives and the negro. It was a question of whether they would be able to break down the negro's story and force him to give out a true statement of all he knew about the mystery.

He was taken into the office of Chief Lanford shortly after noon. He was not returned to his cell until after 6 o'clock in the evening. For six hours questions were shot at him without ceasing.

Grilling Is Terrific.

"You might as well tell us the truth now," he was told when the long inquisition began.

Time after time he protested that he had told everything he knew, and that he had not seen Mary Phagan, either alive or dead, on April 26.

Baffled temporarily, the detectives each time returned to the attack. Ranged in front of the negro, Chief Lanford, Harry Scott and Detective Pat Campbell took turns in questioning their prisoner. His denials continued, but as the ordeal weakened him his protestations grew less vehement.

Late in the afternoon Lanford's secretary, G. C. Febuary, was hurriedly called into the room. Another statement was being taken from the negro.

When Conley, looking worn and exhausted, was led back to his cell that night it was known that he had made another confession.

Had he acknowledged having a part in the crime or having actually killed Mary Phagan?

FACTORY SUPERINTENDENT WHO IS CHARGED WITH SLAYING GIRL

Leo M. Frank as he appeared at time of his arrest in Phagan case.

His testimony at the inquest was straightforward and convincing of his innocence.

Prisoner now says he is ready for his trial which is scheduled to start in Superior Court in Atlanta next Monday morning. Since his confinement Frank has been cheerful and confident of acquittal.

Light Seismic Shocks Felt at Georgetown

WASHINGTON, July 25.—A moderate earthquake shock was recorded at Georgetown University to-day. The disturbance began at 7:44 o'clock and ended at 8:08 o'clock.

The shock was along the east and west lines and is estimated by Father Torndorff, in charge of the observatory, to have been about 3,000 miles from Washington.

It takes a baby a year or more to get six teeth.

In a year or less six of your teeth may be seriously damaged by lack of proper care. Proper care does not mean that you have to spend an hour a day scrubbing your teeth. Just two or three minutes in the morning and two or three at night.

And the care that you give your teeth is an investment that comes back a hundred fold in better health, and a better chance to make your mark in the world.

A few cents invested in a delicious dentifrice that gets you into the regular habit of teeth care, is common sense invested for your entire future life,

Bichloride Victim Saved After 10 Days

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Physicians at the City Hospital to-day claimed the first victory over bichloride of mercury after it had gained considerable headway.

After ten days' treatment, they say Edward B. Fischer, victim of the poison, will recover.

Mother Stanislaus Tells of Recovery

Any person who may doubt the merits of Eckman's Alterative, a remedy for the Throat and Lungs, which has brought about many complete recoveries, should investigate the case of Mother Stanislaus of St. Anne's Convent, Sanford, Fla. She writes:

Convent of St. Anne, 800 Oak Ave., Sanford, Fla.

"Gentlemen: In February, 1911, four doctors examined my throat and pronounced the necessity of an operation. Having heard at Peekskill, N. Y., Motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Francis, where I was visiting, of Eckman's Alterative, I determined as a last resort to try it. After taking four or five bottles large pieces of diseased tissue came away. I continued the Alterative, to my grateful and daily relief. In ten months I was restored to perfect health. I would be glad to write or talk to any person who may have a doubt about it. I would like them to see and hear from my own lips, if they so desire, all I would say of it."

(Signed) MOTHER M. STANISLAUS.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' Drug Stores and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by Jacobs' Pharmacy under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

BILL TO ENFORCE WEBB LAW IS DEFEATED

Senate, 22 to 18, Votes Down Searcy Liquor Measure—Called Blind Tigers' Aid.

A temperance battle, with Senator W. E. H. Searcy's bill making purchasers and sellers of blind tiger whisky equally guilty as the storm center, developed in the Senate Friday. After more than an hour of discussion, in which President Randolph Anderson twice rescued the bill by aligning himself with Senator Searcy's forces, the bill was defeated by a vote of 22 to 18, after an amendment offered by Senator Sweat, which provided that the provisions of the bill do not apply to purchasers of whisky for the purpose of securing evidence, had been lost by a vote of 20 to 10.

Senator G. Y. Harrell started the fight against the bill, declaring that it would be more of an aid to the operation of blind tigers than a preventive.

Called Aid to Blind Tigers.

"The caption of the bill should be changed to read, 'A bill to promote the interests of blind tigers,' he said. "The passage of this bill would absolutely destroy all chances of getting evidence against blind tigers. The best and most common method of apprehending the sellers of whisky is to send a decoy to purchase the liquor with marked money. If you make this decoy a criminal, he will keep his mouth shut and no evidence can be obtained."

Senator Stark made a long speech in favor of the bill, in which he declared that it was directed against the agent of the blind tiger and the traveling blind tiger, rather than against the actual user of the whisky.

Senator Huie, in explaining his action in voting aaginst the bill, said:

"Voting for this bill would place me in the ranks of the fool prohibitionists, and I am not that kind of a prohibitionist!"

Searcy Defends His Bill.

"If I am a fool for supporting the bill," retorted Senator Searcy, the author of the measure, a few minutes later, "I am a fool for Christ's sake!"

Senator Searcy's faction forced action on the bill by voting down three motions designed to delay action on the measure. Senator Harrell's motion that action be postponed indefinitely was voted down almost unanimously. The vote on Senator McNeill's motions that the bill be tabled and that action be postponed until Monday were a tie, but the bill was saved each time by President Anderson, who voted against the motions.

Senator Tarver's bill, giving power to the State Railroad Commission to order the erection of a union station in towns where two or more railroads entered, was passed by the Senate, with amendments which Senator Tarver said were acceptable to the railroad interests.

Railroads Get Safeguards.

These amendments provided that the Commissioners' order should be given with "due regard to the finances of the railroads," and that the stations should be erected "where practicable and in the interest of the public and the railroad companies."

Two bills that are considered important were introduced into the Senate Friday. One, by Senators Sweat, Converse, Rushin, Taylor, Watt and Tyson, provides for the removal of the Georgia Experiment Station to a point in South Georgia, and for the establishment of closer relations between it and the Georgia Agricultural and Mechanical College; the other, by Senator Kelly, is an act to provide a commission form of government for Augusta.

Action on Senator Hixon's "eugenic marriage" bill, which has been favorably reported, was postponed until Monday.

The Senate adjourned at 12:30 until 11 o'clock Monday morning.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

The daily morning prayer of the blind Chaplain of the House of Representatives, the Rev. J. H. Ellis, is a thanksgiving always.

Rainer than petitioning for more blessings and more abundant prosperity, the Chaplain devotes by far the greater portion of his supplication in the House to reminding the members of the countless blessings they now enjoy, and for which they should render ungrudgingly their thanks to the Most High.

Not since he began his term of service in the House has the blind Chaplain started a prayer with words other than these, "Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee!" and so on to the end of as simple and as sweet a prayer as ever was delivered anywhere.

The blind Chaplain of the House is a most interesting person. He always is at his post of duty, well in advance of the Speaker's rap for order, and he remains after the House gets down to work from 30 minutes to an hour or more every day.

Mr. Ellis is slight of build, but clear of voice. Few speakers on the floor fill the House so completely as he, and his prayers every morning are given close attention. He is completely blind and has to be led when walking. He is a very lovable man, and the Speaker hardly could have filled the Chaplain's place more acceptably or more sensibly.

The House meets every morning at 9 o'clock now, but there never is a quorum present at roll call.

Try as the House will, it hardly can get itself together before 10, somehow. Members either sleep late, are more or less indifferent to the first 30 minutes or so, or resent being called to work at 9. Whatever it is, the hour of 9 generally finds the House not more than half filled.

After the roll call is finished—unless it is dispensed with, which frequently it is—members drop in and ask that they be recorded as present.

This courtesy generally is accorded them without protest, and it gives the tardy ones considerable leeway in the matter of getting in late and still not having the record recite the circumstance.

Judge Robert Hodges, of Macon, is in Atlanta to-day and spent quite a time in the House and Senate, renewing old acquaintances and looking things over.

Mr. Hodges represented Bibb County in the House several times back yonder—well, not so many years ago after all—and was then one of the best liked and most influential members. He was in the House when his fellow-townsman, Augustus Octavius Bacon, was first named Senator, and took a great part in the work of conferring the honor upon him.

In those days the Legislature elected the Senators, without any sort of primary instructions, and Senator Bacon was named—he was re-elected to a fourth term unopposed a few days since—after a hard fight.

"Bob" Hodges, then serving his first term, was the man who carried the news from the Capitol to the Kimball House.

Judge Hodges has presided over the City Court of Macon for some twelve years, and is regularly renamed without opposition. Indeed, it is extremely doubtful whether Judge Hodges could be defeated for his present office, no matter who undertook the job.

Occasionally Speaker Burwell yanks the House back to business rather abruptly, when it gets negligent or lags in its work.

In passing local measures it is necessary to agree to the report of the committee before a bill may be passed, and this agreement is made upon a verbal division merely.

The other day the Speaker proposed the uninteresting status thus: "Those who favor agreeing to the report of the committee will say 'Aye.'" Nobody said anything.

Burwell whacked the much-abused block of wood in front of him for order, and yelled the status of the House again, and with decided emphasis, moreover.

This time the committee report was agreed to by a chorus of "ayes" that might have been heard to Whitehall street.

Then Burwell smiled, and the House laughed good-naturedly, and there was no more trouble that day.

The county of Barrow was given a temporary setback yesterday, when the Senate, by a margin of four votes, declined to ratify the action of the House committee, the House and the Senate committee in favoring it.

The advocates of Barrow still are very much in the ring, however. The bill will be reconsidered—it takes a majority only of the Senate to do this, and the Senate is for Barrow by a big majority—and then it will go over to the next session.

No more gallant fight ever has been made in the Legislature than the one put up for Barrow. This is the fourth time that plucky community has come to the Legislature, only to be knifed and bushwhacked to death in one chamber or the other. It will come again, however—and eventually Barrow County will be created.

It has the one thing behind it that so many new-county proposals lack—genuine and admitted merit.

HELD IN SHOOTING CASE.

COLUMBUS.—D. D. Bloom, a well-known young business man of Columbus, was bound over to the Superior Court on charges of shooting at another and having a pistol without license, the bond in each case being fixed at $100 by the Recorder.

PRANK IN LODGE INITIATION IS FATAL TO 2

Electric Shock, Used by Birmingham Moose to Frighten Candidates, Is Too Strong.

BIRMINGHAM, July 25.—In the presence of 125 members of the secret fraternal order of Moose, in Moose Hall last night, Donald A. Kenny, president of the local Chauffeurs' Union, and Christopher Gustin, an iron molder, met almost instantaneous death from an overshock of electricity received while being initiated into the organization.

Both were young and strong men. Other candidates going through the same initiation before them were not injured.

After Kenny was seen to be sinking and before John P. Abbott, presiding officer, could stop the proceedings, Gustin also had been fatally injured.

Both men died within five minutes, although the lodge physician, Dr. L. V. Neill, was present and lent immediate attention.

The ceremony that proved fatal is the branding one. The candidate stands upon a tilting board with his chest bared. A magneto is connected with his leg by a metal band and chain.

A horseshoe metal Moose emblem is heated red hot before his eyes and a man advances toward him holding the heated iron as if to brand him on the chest.

No Arrests Likely.

This is not done, but the suggestion is made on the candidate's mind that it is through the medium of the application of a rubber emblem while the circuit of the magneto is made complete by the application of the other end to his bare shoulder.

The lodge uses an ordinary magneto, and while weak candidates have never been subjected to this test, no able-bodied man has ever been injured by it heretofore.

Police investigation is being made, but there probably will be no arrests.

Deserting Husbands Refused Citizenship

CHICAGO, July 25.—"Men who desert their wives and refuse to support their families are not entitled to become naturalized citizens," said Judge Petit here when he refused the applications of two men who admitted having left their wives.

Priest, Forced to Take Holy Orders, Released by Pope

ROME, July 25.—The Congregation of the Sacraments has rendered a decision in a case which has lasted for four years, and which has been much discussed in ecclesiastical circles. Twelve years ago a priest named Arena asked to be allowed to give up the priesthood. He pleaded that twelve years ago he had been compelled by his parents to take Holy Orders. He alleged that he obeyed his parents against his will. This was confirmed by several witnesses.

The Congregation of the Sacraments, which was presided over by Cardinal Farrata, decided to cancel the priest's orders. It held that they had been conferred against his will, and were therefore invalid. It recommended that Arena be released from his vows.

The Pope approved the verdict.

Next Encampment Of I. O. O. F. in Macon

ATHENS, July 25.—The Grand Encampment of Odd Fellows which was in session here Thursday broke camp in the afternoon, after electing officers for the next year and selecting Macon as the next meeting place.

The new officers are: Grand patriarch, Robert L. Bramblet, Athens; grand high priest, E. H. Stout, Atlanta; grand senior warden, J. V. Everige, Columbus; grand scribe, W. H. Abbott, Atlanta; grand treasurer, I. O. Teaseley, Alpharetta; grand junior warden, Homer Ashley, Atlanta; grand representative, Chester L. Elliott, Brunswick; past grand patriarch, G. O. Hook, Alpharetta; grand marshal, James H. Grover, Marietta; grand inside sentinel, R. C. Burnham, Savannah; grand outside sentinel, Carl A. Vonderleith, Athens; grand treasurer, Carl A. Vonderleith, Athens.

Cadet's Very Last Kiss Holds Up Big Liner 3 Minutes

NEW YORK, July 25.—"A last kiss, my darling!"

He got it.

Miss Eva Mountrey, of Louisville, Ky., was sailing on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, and her fiance, Augustus Dillon, a West Point cadet, was bidding her good-bye.

"All visitors ashore!" shouted a petty officer near the sweethearts.

"A very last kiss, beloved!" exclaimed Dillon.

"All visitors ashore!" howled a chorus of petty officers and stewards.

"A very, very last kiss, mine own!" begged the cadet.

Chief Officer Moeller interrupted the clinging embrace.

"Young man," said Moeller, "you have held the ship three minutes. Go ashore!"

The Social World

A polo match is to be played at Fort McPherson early in August, probably on the 9th. A group of the officers at the post will form one team, captained by Lieutenant Hornsby Evans. The other team will be composed of two out-of-town players, one from the Augusta polo team, another from the Camden team and two Atlanta men, Lamar Hill and J. O. Seamans.

Atlanta society is interested, as a polo match always is a great society event. The polo matches in the East serve to bring together brilliant assemblages of society folk. While polo is new to Atlanta, many persons have attended polo tournaments in other cities and are initiated into the pleasures of this sport. The polo match at Fort McPherson will be refereed by Major Carthew Yourston, an English officer, who has played polo for 29 years in England and in India.

22 PRIZE PONIES AWAIT VICTORS IN CONTEST

Thirteen More Arrive From South Carolina—Red Letter Ballots Will Help Win One.

The 22 ponies to be awarded to The Georgian and American contestants are all on hand. Thirteen arrived Thursday, by express, from John G. Mobley's farm, Winnsboro, S. C., and now are with the nine others in the rear of 55 Loomis street.

The baker's dozen of little animals stood the journey well, and, indeed, were frisky when unloaded and passed before the veterinary inspector. They are strangers to the city and seemingly took great interest in the street cars, the pavements and the other sights which were new to them.

Nothing wins now but subscriptions for The Georgian and American, and subscription to the Sunday American count the fastest, on account of the Red Letter Ballots.

By the use of these Red Letter Ballots, a two-year subscription to The Sunday American yields the contestant 4,500 votes, and a one-year subscription 2,000 votes, while even a six-months subscription yields 800 votes. It should be explained that these are not extra votes. The extra votes are included in these totals.

The Red Letter Ballot offer ends Tuesday night. It is not necessary to clip the ballot from the paper to have these votes counted. It is sufficient to write "Red Letter Ballot" in one corner of the blanks with which the contestants all are provided. And there is no limit to the number of these "Red Letter Ballots" which may be voted.

ANDREWS URGED FOR CONSUL TO PARIS

Lower House Unanimously Indorses Retired Atlanta Capitalist and Lawyer's Candidacy.

Walter P. Andrews, retired capitalist and lawyer of Atlanta, has the indorsement of the House of Rrepresentatives for appointment as Consul general to Paris.

A resolution indorsing his candidacy for the place, introduced in the House Friday morning by the Fulton county delegation, and signed by eleven members of the House, was unanimously adopted.

Prospects of Mr. Andrews obtaining the appointment, which is one of the most important in the consular service, are brightening.

Influences are at work in Washington in his behalf, while his friends throughout the State are using their influence to bring Andrews favorably before the eyes of the administration.

ANNOUNCEMENT

One of the Twice-a-Year Sales of Infants' Wear at Half-Price Comes To-morrow---Junior Department---Third Floor.

There are two days in the course of the three hundred sixty-five that we make such an announcement as the above—the next one will be six months from now.

The sale brings at exactly half-price about every article of infants' wear that is in the slightest degree soiled or mussed.

Here are the long dresses and skirts for baby's first wardrobe; here are short dresses and skirts for tots turning into their first year—machine-made dresses and petticoats, hand-made dresses and petticoats such as a mother herself would make. Also there are machine-made and hand-made cashmere coats, wrappers, sacques and squares; pillow covers; flannel skirts and bootees.

Dresses were priced from $1.00 to $2.00, skirts $1.00 to $6.00, wraps $2.00 to $5.00, sacques 50c to $1.00, flannel squares $1.50 to $5.00, bootees 40c to $1.00.

Deduct just half of these amounts for this sale. The selling starts with the opening of the store, and, to-morrow being a half-day, mothers should not delay—the savings are great, the time is short.

A Half-Day Clearaway of House Dresses and Waists

A Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company clearaway of house dresses and waists is scheduled for the short to-morrow!

Odd surpluses have been gathered for immediate disposal—which tells much about savings you may enjoy. For when we set about to clear out odd lots we take the sure method of reducing prices in a big, wholehearted way.

Here—

$2.25, $2.45 & $2.95 House Dresses are $1.50

$2.50, $2.95 & $3.50 House Dresses are $1.95

They are lawns, percales, chambrays and ginghams—a varied assortment of attractive styles, lace and embroidery trimmed, pipings of contrasting colors; collarless, sailor collars and round collars. Not every size in every style, but so many styles in every size that choosing several dresses that you like will be easy.

$2.25 Waists Are $1.50

$2.45 to $2.95 Waists are $1.95

$3.75 to $4.95 Waists are $2.95

Choose a style that you like best!

You may with so many spread before you. Several hundred in this lot—flaxons, voiles and silk crepes, Dutch neck, high and flat collars, trimmed with Irish, Cluny and Valenciennes laces and embroideries.

A fine opportunity to secure a few extra waists at little cost.

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX.

He and Manette See the Suffragette Again, but Neither of Them Notices Her.

JULY 3.—It occurred to me, when Manette and I were tramping home that evening, after the militant suffragette had tried to hold me up, that there was a warning in the incident. I look like a tramp, as she said, and Manette, in spite of her clothes, looks like a princess.

What it is I can not define, but one of her sex can never disguise the fact that she was born to purple and fine linen. She may outlive every natural grace and may be reduced to rags, but there is always an indefinable something that tells of better things in the past. I looked at Manette critically as she trudged ahead of me in the footpath, and this is what I saw: A little bare head with a shock of curls just reaching to her shoulder, for we had had her hair cut short before we left town, and the growth was all new and untamed.

She wore a blue gingham with half the buttons off the back. There were rents in it, and through one rent I caught a glimpse of an exquisitely trimmed petticoat, for Richards had refused to let her darling wear the coarse muslin garments that were best fitted for the occasion. She wore half hose, with tan shoes from which her toes protruded, and her little fat legs were scratched by briars and brambles.

But one could tell by a glimpse that she was not an ordinary child, and I wondered if it was because of the proud little way in which she carried her head, or because of her total unconsciousness of self. "A born aristocrat," I murmured.

Her Beauty.

She looked up at me in laughter at some prank of the pup, and I was struck more forcibly than ever with her most unusual beauty. It wasn't altogether her hair and her eyes, her perfect features and her exquisite coloring; there was a look of her soul shining through, and that is as near as I can express it. If you could see her, Diary, you would understand why I never look at the child without some apprehension. With her beauty and her money, sometimes I wonder if there are enough guardian angels in heaven to keep all the evil-hearted away.

The children that die young belong to us always. Nothing, and no one, may ever estrange them from us. They are ours forever, and that, alas, is something no one can say of the child that lives to grow up.

There is comfort in the thought, and it is not the only comfort, for we learn as we grow older that the child that is gone is spared much, and is SAFE. I know life would be dreary and almost impossible without Manette, but every day I grow more reconciled to the loss of Elizabeth. She was happy all her life. The little girl trudging along in the path ahead of me is happy now, but I will not always be with her.

I suppose it was this constant apprehension that led me to call Mrs. Allen to the porch after supper and tell her that I am not the poor clerk she imagines, resting from overwork, but one of the detested millionaire class, resting from excessive luxury.

I told her my name and she laughed. She said she had guessed it the second day. No one, she said, could look at Manette and think for a moment that she had been brought up in denial. She could not explain it, except that the child was always so unconscious of her clothes.

"She rises above them," she said, and it made me very proud.

I have always had the theory—I wonder how it will evolve—that if Manette is accustomed to the best as a child, she will never strut like a peacock when she is grown. She will always be unconscious of her price marks.

To the Manner Born.

She will never build conversation on the price of her gown, nor attempt to erect pride and station on the cost of a hat. She will never, and of that I am sure, remember that her clothes cost more than the clothes of her associates and show it in her manner. I said something to this effect to Mrs. Allen, and her reply gave me a new viewpoint.

"She won't remember what things cost," she said, somewhat dryly, "because she has never had to earn the price. The girl who stints herself in necessities for a month that she may afford a $20 gown will never forget to the day of her death what the gown cost. Unconsciousness of clothes is a good trait, but Manette's unconsciousness will be largely due to ignorance. When one pays the price, one remembers."

I did not seem to make her quite understand what I meant, and neither did I understand her. I wanted, I explained, for the child to grow up with a soul above ribbons.

"And yet," she replied, "whoever has charge of her wardrobe takes care that she has more ribbons than any child her age should have."

I agreed to that with a sigh. When a little girl is transformed by her years into a peacock, instead of a thinking, helpful woman, it is her mother who is to blame, never her father. Manette has no mother, but her nurse and her Aunt Sallie make her attire the joy of their existence.

I, who take the place of a father to her, would prefer that she never hear the subject of her dress, but those who take the place of her mother make her attire the first consideration. That, Diary, is a fond weakness of all mothers.

I gave Mrs. Allen Mrs. Spencer's address and also that of Richards. "It has occurred to me," I said, "that if anything happened to me, either address will be useful to you."

She found considerable amusement in the thought of what an exodus to the woods there would be of young women if it were known that such a wealthy unattached bachelor were spending his summer there. "They would chase you harder," she said, "than the pup chases the rabbits."

She Sympathizes.

She laughed so heartily I asked if she would enjoy the sight, and she replied that she wouldn't.

"I feel sorry for any unmarried man these days," with some spirit. "Either the women are the mercenary kind, hunting him down for his money, or they are the suffrage kind, hunting him down like a policeman hunts criminals. I often tell my husband it is good he got me thirty years ago, for there isn't much choice of women these days."

From one of their own sex! Had I said it I would be mobbed.

July 6—I have not heard the last of that woman who thought I was a kidnaper of children. She came riding to our picnic spot again to-day, and this time she rode alone.

Manette and I were sitting on a log fishing. At least I was fishing. She had her shoes and stockings off, her little skirts tucked up, and was paddling around at the water's edge, digging up soft black mud, which she carried to the shore and made into mud pies, a big log serving her as kneading board, or mixing board. I don't really know if pies are mixed or kneaded.

The suffragette tied her horse to a sapling and came to where we were thus occupied. I did not turn my head, and Manette, obeying whispered instructions from me, went on with her culinary work without heeding her.

Keep Young As Long As You Can

KEEP your hair youthful looking. Don't let it grow old before your years. Faded or gray hair makes a woman look from 10 to 20 years older than if the hair were beautiful and lustrous.

Robinnaire Hair Dye

Is a wonderful scientific formula. It is a color restorer. Not a dangerous dye to bleach or change the original color of the hair, but a restorer which brings back to the hair its original color and beautiful sheen and softness. For a quarter of a century it has been used by women and men practically all over the world, and we have hundreds of unsolicited letters proving its merit. It does not stain the scalp nor make the hair sticky, and its use can not be detected.

Prepared for light, medium and dark brown and black hair; for sale by leading druggists and toilet goods departments, 75c. If you can not get it, sent by parcel post, 83c.

Up-to-Date Jokes

Meg (five years old, was overjoyed over the recent addition to the family and rushed out of the house to tell the news to a passing neighbor.

"Oh, you don't know what we've got in our house to-day?"

"What is it?"

"It's a new baby brother!"

"You don't say so. Is he going to stay?"

"I think so"—very thoughfully. "He's got his things off."

A farmer while loading hay in his field was attacked by his neighbor's bulldog. The man defended himself with a pitchfork, and sent the dog yelping home. The neighbor rebuked him, and asked why he didn't use the blunt end of the fork first.

"I would have," replied the farmer, "if your dog had come at me blunt end first."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"What's that?" he muttered, in an undertone. "There it is again."

He blew out the lantern and stepped to the entrance of the corridor that led to the armory.

"Sh—h—! Listen! There's a light, Rusty. It's coming this way! It's coming, Rusty! Remember the high sign—and don't sneeze!"

He sprang back into the hall and concealed himself in the angle by the picture of the old Don. Presently the faint swinging beams of a lantern were thrown down the corridor and there was the sound of soft footsteps and low voices. Jarvis raised his cocked pistol and covered the doorway as the shadows told him the invaders were about to appear in view. Three figures appeared in the doorway and a girl's voice, familiar to his ears, said:

"There is no one here, either, Your Highness."

The Princess and Dolores, with Maximo as their guide and light-bearer, came down the broad stairs into the hall.

"We must go on, Dolores!" exclaimed the Princess in a strained voice. "We must find him before it's too late! Oh, I will never forgive myself for sending him to this dreadful place!"

"But there's a fire!" cried the veteran. "They've been in this room!"

"Perhaps"—the Princess shuddered—"they have already been killed."

Her Brother Safe.

Jarvis, ashamed for having listened too long and his heart beating with what he had heard, stepped forward into the light of the lantern.

"Your Highness!" he exclaimed. The girl made a sound that was half a cry of alarm and half a prayer of thanksgiving, and held out both hands to him.

"Mr. Warren! Mr. Warren! Thank God, you are still alive!"

"Your Highness," he protested, still holding her hands. "It's madness for you to come to this place! How did you get here?"

"Heaven only knows!" She shivered as if with the memory of her experiences. "We have been wandering through this dreadful place for hours—calling to you—trying to find you before it was too late."

"Too late! What do you mean?"

"My brother is safe—thank God!"

"Where is he?" demanded Warren, quickly.

"On his way to get help from the King."

"Where has he been?"

"Right here in this castle, a prisoner—since the day he entered."

"A prisoner?"

"Yes. He succeeded in making his escape to-night and has gone straight to the King for help?"

"But how did you learn all this?" he inquired, bewildered.

"From Robledo, senor," answered Dolores, as the Princess did not reply at once. The girl's voice was low and trembled slightly. "Your bullet went straight, senor. He is dying. He has confessed to the Holy Father. I promised to be with him at the end."

She turned her face away and Jarvis saw that she was weeping.

"The end?" he echoed vaguely—and then he understood. He walked over to her, stood beside her awkwardly, trying to think of something to say. He found it difficult to apologize to a girl for killing her lover, especially when the lover happened to need killing a lot.

"Then—you—" he stammered, "I—I—didn't know—I might have—I'm sorry."

Better So.

The girl raised her tear-stained face and met his gaze bravely.

"It is better so, senor," she said.

"Oh, Dolores—my poor child!"

The Princess put her arms around the girl and she sobbed on her lady's shoulder. "Maximo, take her back to the inn as quietly as possible."

When they were gone the Princess urged Jarvis to follow.

"Oh, Mr. Warren, let us leave this dreadful place!"

"Not me, Your Highness," was the grim and inelegant reply. "You go with them and wait for me at the inn."

The Princess shook her head determinedly, though her face was pale and there were lines to tell of the long strain.

"You can not persuade me again, Mr. Warren. I will remain."

"Please!" he begged, getting possession of her hands once more, and without a struggle.

"Return with us then."

"Your Highness," he said gravely, "I promised to solve the mystery of this castle and to find the treasure. My task is an easy one now."

"Then," she rejoined quickly, "I will share it with you."

He laughed silently at the neat manner of the trap in which he was caught, but he looked down at her with something more than amazement in his eyes.

"And you groped your way through this old castle to find me?" he said softly. "You are game!"

The Princess raised her eyes to his. "You faced death perhaps, for me."

"You're trembling!" he cried with sudden concern. "You're frightened—you're cold—your hands are cold!—Come over here." He drew her toward the dying blaze of the fire. "You must have been scared to death crawling through the blackness."

She closed her eyes and shivered and he pressed the hands a little tighter than was necessary, if the object was merely to aid circulation.

The Sneeze.

"Every nerve in my body is on edge with the happenings of this dreadful place," she confessed brokenly and tried in vain to keep back the tears.

"Oh, don't cry," he pleaded in alarm, and then suddenly changed his tone to one at once light and tender: "Go on then—cry! Cry some more. Just forget that you are a princess and cry. That's it—that's fine! I'll round up this spook to-night for good—and then the vassal's task is done. His fate is in your hands, Highness." She ceased crying suddenly to look up into his face. "Don't send me away," he begged. "I've loved you from the first and always shall love you. I'm no Prince or Duke," he added with whimsical pathos, "I'm just a plain man—and all the man in me cries out, 'I love you'—Don't send me away!"

He felt her trembling and for an instant she seemed to lean against him. But she shook her head.

"You must go."

"You're going to send me away!"

"Yes. You must leave Spain. Your life would not be safe here."

He drew a breath of relief that was like the wind in the forest. At the same moment there was another sound that was somewhat like a far-off tree falling in the wind.

"What was that?" exclaimed the girl with a start.

"Oh, that! That was Rusty," he smiled.

"That would frighten any one."

"I figured that I might need a ghost," he explained, pointing to the armored servitor, "but Rusty disobeyed orders. Rusty, I told you not to sneeze!"

"Dat was somebody else, Massa Warren," was the solemn and unexpected protest. "I swears to goodness I didn't sneeze."

Warren's revolver was in his hand and a wild light of triumph in his eyes.

"Mr. Warren!"

"Don't move! Your Highness," he cried, raising the weapon and leveling it at the old grandee. "I've got your ghost at last!" He raised his voice. "There is some one behind that picture! Come out!—or I'll shoot you full of holes!"

Caught!

For a moment there was intense silence. Then:

"Don't shoot!"

The voice, a familiar one, came from the wall—the picture swung out in its frame and his Exalted Highness, the Duke of Alva, stepped down on to the floor.

The Princess smothered a cry of amazement and Jarvis smiled grimly.

"Your Excellency, you are a long way from Madrid."

The Duke eyed him with contempt.

"Madrid! You fool, you have fallen right into my trap!" He turned to the Princess with all the assurance of a protecting friend.

"What I have done has been for your sake, Maria. I purposely deceived him so that I might get here ahead of him and watch. See," he pointed to the mantel, "there are his tools and you yourself interrupted him at his work."

The consummate insolence and assurance of his enemy almost daunted the young man. And in the next breath he half lost the battle by permitting himself to argue.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

CAUGHT AT LAST

"MR. WARREN!"
"DON'T MOVE! YOUR HIGHNESS," HE CRIED, RAISING THE WEAPON AND LEVELING IT AT THE OLD GRANDEE, "I'VE GOT YOUR GHOST AT LAST!" HE RAISED HIS VOICE. "THERE IS SOMEONE BEHIND THAT PICTURE! COME OUT!—OR I'LL SHOOT YOU FULL OF HOLES!"

FOR A MOMENT THERE WAS INTENSE SILENCE. THEN:
"DON'T SHOOT!"
THE VOICE, A FAMILIAR ONE CAME FROM THE WALL—THE PICTURE SWUNG OUT IN ITS FRAME AND HIS EXALTED HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF ALVA STEPPED DOWN ON TO THE FLOOR.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

THEY ALWAYS TELL.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Some time ago I was introduced to a young man whom I rather like. I have gone out to different places of amusement with him.

Now, he has often wanted to kiss me, but I wouldn't allow him to. He is going out of town for some time and says he wants to kiss me before going. Shall I allow him to? L. M.

No man should kiss and tell, but so many do that one little farewell kiss, given in the name of friendship, is sure to be misunderstood and told of. Do you not know, my dear, that the kiss that is refused is always the sweetest? Refuse him and he will always want that kiss, and seek to win your love that he may have it.

DON'T TRY.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young girl of 19 and have a brother who takes me to dances and the theater. I have no chance to find a lover, because the men all think my brother is my sweetheart. What would you advise me to do to make them understand? L. M.

My dear, if these men were attracted by you, the sight of a man as your escort would not keep them away. On the contrary, it would serve as an incentive to them to make your acquaintance.

Instead of regarding your brother as an obstacle, be glad that you have a brother as devoted and kind. And don't worry about that belated lover, for I am sure he is on his way.

WAIT A FEW YEARS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 27 and am in love with a young lady of 17, but she does not seem to care for me. What can I do to gain her love? P. B.

She is too young to be troubled by love. Prove your love is unselfish, and for her best good, by keeping it a secret to yourself until she has grown up.

Things Worth Remembering

An electric voting machine is to be tried in the Austrian Chamber of Deputies. Each member will have two electric buttons on his desk. On the wall opposite the President's chair an indicator is fixed, consisting of 516 glass tablets. When a vote is recorded they show either a white or a red light, and members can check the accuracy of their votes. Names are shown on the tablets if required.

Ants can stand extremes of heat and cold. Forty-eight hours' exposure to frost will not kill them, and one sort has been observed to build its nest in chinks in a blacksmith's forge.

The French people are great chicken raisers. A return gives the income derived by them from this industry as $300,000,000.

The largest opal in the world, weighing 17 ounces, is worth $300,000, and belongs to the Emperor of Austria.

Thrushes don't take much sleep in summer. They rise soon after 3 and don't go to bed till 9.

Tomtits are passionately fond of suet. A lump hung in a tree will soon be found by them and devoured.

Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THERE was no one whose faith in the printed word was greater than Daysey Mayme Appleton's.

If, when sitting on the cool porch at twilight, she caught a glimpse of a heading, "How to Keep Cool," in the newspaper, she invariably went into the warm house, lighted the lamp and sat under its hot rays while she read it.

Her father gave her a weekly allowance, and with it she bought at least one, and sometimes two, books on How a Girl May Save Money. She didn't save as much as the girls who hadn't such faith in the printed word, but she didn't see why.

When her mother left her in charge of the kitchen for two weeks, she spent the first week's allowance on books telling How to Feed Four on Six Dollars a Week, and had to ask her father for more money the third day. And he was so unappreciative he grumbled about it!

But all this faith is now a thing of the dead, dead past. Daysey Mayme won't believe anything she sees in print these days, if it is nothing more than "Heat Before Serving" on a can of baked beans.

The lost this beautiful faith through following the advice of the New York clergymen who have decided to demand health certificates as a prerequisite to marriage. It would be humiliating, she thought, to march up the church aisle in white silk and orange blossoms, and have the preacher refuse to perform the ceremony because a grandmother on the bridegroom's side once had a conniption fit. She would protect herself from this mortification by getting a clean bill of health before the altar was reached. She would make all necessary inquiries during the courtship; that her best beloved could prove he was in perfect health she had no doubts.

She had memorized forty-seven adjectives expressive of admiration, and when her lover presented her with a box of candy she used forty-three on the first gumdrop. Such appreciation delighted him, and he asked her to marry him. Surely a girl who could so highly appreciate a gumdrop would never underestimate the value of a man!

Daysey Mayme's first impulse was to grab him; then she remembered the printed word.

"Was there ever one in your family who suffered from neurasthenia?" she asked. "Any dandruff, Bright's disease, rheumatism, ricketts, glanders, autoxenia, bunions or corns? Have you or your ancestors ever had anything cut out, and how much? Of what did your great-grandfather on your mother's side die, and did——"

But the young man heard no more. He gave one wild whoop and fled.

"I'd have married him if he had the whole doctor's book ailing him," sobbed Daysey Mayme, "and now the other girls will never believe I had the chance."

ILLUSTRATED on the left-hand side is an attractive cornflower blue charmeuse gown very suitable for wearing at Hurlingham or Ranelagh. The skirt drapery is graceful, the charmeuse being combined with velvet-embroidered voile de soie. The sleeves are long, the wrists and neck being finished with lace frills. The central figure is carried out in a striking effect of blue and gold brocade. Lace falls from the high waist line to the center of the skirt and meets with the draped folds of the skirt. The corsage is of white lace over white chiffon. Japonica colored charmeuse is used for the right-hand model and makes a very useful gown for afternoon wear. The long sleeves are put into the shoulders with a piping; the cuffs are finished with five small buttons, the same decoration in a larger size being carried out on the bodice and skirt.

The charmeuse and ruffles are of white tulle.

CHAPTER VIII.

PRIDE and an instinctive stoicism kept Mary Danfroth's pale face impassive as she listened to her father's agitated announcement. An iron hand seemed to be gripping her throat and stifling her. She steadied herself and faced her parents as she drew away from her father's encircling arm. He still held the paper in his trembling hand. Beside him was his wife, aghast and silent, her thin fingers nervously twisting the handkerchief she held.

The girl spoke quietly and steadily:

"Mr. Craig may not have been hurt, you know," she reminded her father. "The first reports of accidents are often exaggerated."

She turned away and went down the hall to her own room, closing her door behind her. She took off her hat and put it away, then lifted the books from her dressing table, on which she had just laid them, and arranged them on her desk. All these actions she performed with care, yet she moved as in a dream. She stood, looking about her as if searching for some other duty to perform, but, finding nothing, suddenly flung herself on her bed and lay there, silent, staring wide-eyed into the gathering dusk.

At the end of a half hour her mother knocked timidly at the door.

"May I come in, Mary?" she asked in a low voice. "Are you asleep?"

The girl drew herself to a sitting posture on the edge of her bed.

"Come in, mother," she said, dully. "No, I haven't been asleep. I was just lying down and—thinking."

"The parent laid a cool hand on her daughter's forehead.

"Poor little girl!" she murmured. "Poor little girl! I know this news was a terrible shock to you."

Mary stirred irritably under her mother's touch. "Of course, it was a shock," she said coldly. "It is always terrible to hear of accidents of that kind." She paused, then steeled herself to utter what she would not acknowledge was a deliberate falsehood. "But I have been thinking it might have been much worse. Suppose there had been on that train someone whom we really cared for."

Mrs. Danforth looked in silence at the speaker; then, bending over, kissed her and left the room. Mary sat for a moment longer motionless on the side of her bed. Then she bowed her face upon her hands and closed her eyes.

Dinner that night was a dismal affair. The gloom of the accident oppressed all minds. Mr. Danforth was nervous and talked of nothing but the wreck, inveighing against the carelessness of the railroad officials, the indifference corporations showed for human life, and explaining how the disaster might have been avoided—dwelling on the subject until Mary felt as if she could bear it no longer.

When the meal was at last over, Mary, remarking briefly that she must go back to her studying, went to her own room again. Her parents remained at the table, chatting, while the man of the house smoked his post prandial cigar.

"I am glad that Mary doesn't take this news any more deeply to heart," remarked the father with masculine obtuseness. "I was afraid that she was beginning to think too much of Craig and that if he was hurt or killed it must break her all up."

His wife shook her head with the scorn that a woman always shows for a man's lack of perception.

"She feels it more than she knows herself," she remarked enigmatically.

"Bosh!" exclaimed Mr. Danforth. "Mary isn't the kind to keep such a trouble as that to herself. Of course she liked the chap—and she is distressed to think that he may have been injured, or—worse. But you told me yesterday that you fancied she was beginning to care a good deal for him. She wouldn't be so calm if she did. She regards him only as a pleasant acquaintance."

In her own room Mary bent over her books and tried to study. She attacked the preparation for to-morrow's recitations with a determination to banish all other matters from her mind. "Anything to keep from thinking!" she whispered to herself. "This suspense is awful—but it may be better than to know the truth." A lump of ice seemed to be pressing upon her heart, but she worked on.

It was late when she extinguished her light, yet dawn was graying her windowpanes before she fell into a troubled slumber.

Her eyes were heavy when he dragged herself into the dining room that morning. Her father was opening the morning paper which lay beside his plate. With a sickening contraction of her throat the girl watched him scan the first page of the sheet. Suddenly he started to his feet.

"Hear this!" he exclaimed, excitedly, "'Texan Hero of Railroad Wreck; Gordon Craig Rescues Three Women From Burning Pullman; Is Himself Unhurt!'"

Mrs. Danforth uttered a low cry of alarm, and at the sound the reader dropped his paper and sprang forward. Mary had slipped quietly from her chair to the floor. She had fainted.

The parents' eyes met in a significant look as they both bent over the prostrate girl.

"I told you so!" said the mother gravely.

L'Enfant Terrible

THE BOY—I say, father, if the last day came and the earth was destroyed and an airman was flying, what would he come down on?

To Make a Hit With Women :: By Dorothy Dix

A LOVELORN youth writes me a pathetic letter saying that he is persona non grata with the fair sex, that girls do not care for his society, and the ungrateful minxes turn their backs upon him and talk to other men in the very instant they are devouring the candy he brought them, and wearing the violets on which he squandered his good money. This state of affairs greatly distresses him, and he wants to know why he isn't popular, and how he may become a winner with women.

Let us see if we can help him.

Women differ from men in this respect, that looks do not count. It does not matter whether a man is handsome or not. Indeed, very few women care for beauty in the opposite sex. It is a poaching on their own preserves that they resent. Also it requires them to became flatterers instead of the flattered, for the vanity of the vainest woman that ever lived is as water unto wine compared to the vanity of a man who is a living picture, and who knows it—and expects to be told of it.

It is worth bearing in mind that almost without exception the men who were the great heart smashers of history were not only plain of face, but some of them grotesquely hideous. So no man need despair on account of his lack of pulchritude when he wants to take a hand at the game of hearts.

He Should Shave.

But where mere regularity of features in a man counts for little in attracting a woman's fancy, a man should pay much attention to his clothes and his grooming. Nothing on earth, but the grace of God, keeps a woman in love with a man with a two days' stubble of dirty beard on his face. Married women stand this because they can't help themselves; but no girl wants a slovenly, untidy man, who looks as if he needed to be run through the laundry, hanging about her. All the knocking about the word "dude" comes from masculine lips. No woman joins in that chorus. On the contrary, she feels that the man who comes into her presence ill-clothed, dirty, neglected looking, not only shows disrespect for her, but indicates that he lacks judgment, industry and progressiveness. For that is exactly what being ill-dressed now means.

Another thing that women like, and it is an attraction that any man can acquire, is a certain "avoir faire that makes him equal to any situation. A woman likes a man to know how to offer her a chair, to help her on with her wraps, to order a little dinner. And she hates with unspeakable loathing the fellow who is always making scenes in public, who gets in rows with the theater usher over a mistake about the seats, or the street car conductor about the change, or who sits up like a graven image of wrath every time anybody drops in while he is calling.

"Chump," says the girl to herself, "he hasn't got enough sense to know only the ignorant have to fight to get their rights."

Women like generous men, but even girls have a contempt for men who spend more than they can afford. It is not the youths who waste all their substance on bonbons and theater tickets and violets who are the most popular with the fair sex. Every girl has what she calls her "candy beau," but she seldom marries him. The best way to touch a girl's heart is not by upsetting her digestion.

An important point to remember here is that the man who would curry favor by means of gifts must give discreetly. A woman would rather have a present that cost 5 cents if it represented some especial taste or fancy of hers than one that cost $50 if it was something that had no personal significance.

Don't Be a Clam.

In conversation, cultivate a happy medium. Be neither a continuous monologue performer nor yet a clam. Before you take the floor and devote hours to expatiating on how you can keep books or play ping-pong or take snapshots, be sure the girl is really interested in you. After a woman is in love, she can sit entranced for days listening to a man tell about the kind of collar button he wears, but if she isn't in love, a steady stream of personal reminiscences gets on her nerves, and she wants a change. Besides she desires to talk about herself.

For pity's sake, though, help out with the conversation. From the time a girl is old enough to understand anything she is taught that her chief end in life is to entertain man, and everywhere you go you can see her conscientiously at work trying to do it. Every mother's daughter of us knows what it is to labor, and perspire, and toil, trying to make conversation with some man who is just as unresponsive as a store dummy and as silent as the Sphinx. It isn't a fair division of labor, and if a man wants to see true gratitude let him chip in and help roll the conversation ball along.

"Be bold, be bold, be not too bold." Women hate a timid man, and they despise the one who takes it for granted that he has only to throw the handkerchief to have every girl scramble for it.

Learn how to pay compliments as if you mean them. Don't apply flattery with a trowel. Few women are fools. Don't tell a woman the first time you see her she is the ideal you have been seeking for many years. Seven hundred other idiots have told her that before.

Don't quote sentimental poetry to a girl. It always makes her want to giggle.

Don't give in too much to a woman. If she has good sense she won't want you to sacrifice your taste or principles, and, if she is unreasonable, she will respect you for mastering her.

Finally, beloved—and if you forget all the rest remember this—don't stay too long when you go to call. More men queer themselves right here than they do anywhere else. No living human being is entertaining for more than 30 minutes at a time or endurable for more than two hours at a stretch. In that time every man can say everything he has got to say worth hearing, and if he lingers along until the clock begins to yawn in his face, he is simply defying fate and inviting disaster. Many a good impression is spoiled by too much of it.

And when you get up to go, go as if you were fired out of a gun. Don't linger for tender farewells and last words. Most girls wear shoes three sizes too small for them, and when a man keeps one standing on the doorstep while he makes his adieus she isn't saying, like Juliet: "I could say good-by, good-by, 'til it be morning." On the contrary, she is regretting that all the stories about papa's boot and the swift waft out are fiction instead of fact, and she would be willing to pay out good money to anybody who would accelerate Romeo's descent of the steps.

Of course, no general rules can be laid down for winning the fancy of the fair sex. What has been said pretends to be no more than the most elementary facts, but a guarantee goes with each suggestion that it will work.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

I HAVEN'T quite made up my mind yet whether Bobbie shud lern a trade or a professhun, sed Ma to Pa yesterday. Sumtimes I think it wud be nice if he cud lern a trade, & aggenn I think a trade is kind of commonplace. A professhun is so professhunal, sumhow, so distinguished, sed Ma.

I guess there are a lot of yung lawyers in the big cities that doant see anything vary professhunal about a professhun, sed Pa. If I were a yung man aggenn, Pa sed, I wud a lot rather work steddy at a trade than profess at a professhun. Bobbie, what do you want to be?

I toald Pa thare was three things & I dident know wich one of the three I wanted to be the moast, a pitcher like Dent, or a elevator boy, or a poet.

Pitchers and poets are born, not made, sed Pa, & a elevator boy isent any kind of job for you wen you grow up. If I thought you cud be a poet like me or a pitcher like Dent, sed Pa, I wud tell you by all meens go ahed & try to be one or the other, but thare ain't many Dents & thare ain't many me's, sed Pa.

Dear me, sed Ma, & wen did you beecum grate?

Dident I rite that poem that I red at the bankwet the other nite wen I was toastmaster, sed Pa, and dident all the men thare say that it was the work of a geenyus?

The men was kind of enthused too much, I guess, sed Ma. I guess that a certain amount of champagne will make men stand for almost anything in liter-ature. Doant talk to me about that poem, sed Ma. If you call that art, you are a blacksmith. I found two of the verses in yure coat pocket after the bankwet, Ma sed, & I must say that you are no Milton.

I tell you the poem met with grate applause, sed Pa.

& you remember what I jest toald you about champane, sed Ma. Bobbie, she sed to me, if you think this is good poetry, you are a chip of the old block. Listen:

All brethren we stand together to-nite
Where all the lites are shining brite.
Met here in friendship's strong embrace
We can look each other in the face
& know that all of us is men.
Wich is a good thing now & then.
The world needs men like us to fight
For truth & the eternal right
& the reason eech one of us thrives
& supports ourselfs and our wives
Is beekaus of that brain power we possess
That is the cause of our grate success.
So all of us brethren gathered here
Have little if anything to fear,
Jest so we keep on working hard
& continued success will be our reward.

Now, Bobbie, sed Ma, I want you to be a honest littel boy. If you had yure choice between beeing a elevator boy & that kind of a poet, wich wud you be?

I wud be a elevator boy, I toald Ma. The hours is easier.

RATIONAL.

New Serial Story Begins Monday

"Behind Closed Doors," one of the most exciting mystery stories ever written, will begin Monday on The Georgian's magazine page. This story is by Anna Katharine Green, whose detective yarns are so popular.

Be sure you read the opening installment—you'll certainly read every succeeding one. The serial will be finely illustrated.

There are but few depilatories sold. You think there are hundreds because you have used the same identical preparations under several different names. This is easily explained. Women stop using

So-Called Hair Removers

when they learn that they are harmful. Therefore, they can not be sold under the same name for any length of time. Then the identical, worthless, harmful concoctions are given new names and advertised again as totally different preparations to who innocently buy them over and over again under different names, and this will continue as long as women are so unwise as to experiment with unknown, so-called hair removers.

Defraud the Same Foolish Women

De Miracle
Has Stood the Test of Time

De Miracle has been sold as De Miracle for over eleven years, and its name has never been changed. It is acknowledged the world over by eminent authorities as the one safe, perfected hair remover, therefore it is the only depilatory you can use without experimenting.

Leaves No Tell-Tale Smell

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor whatever. On the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor, an offensive, tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours.

Avoid Permanent Disfigurement

by refusing substitutes. If your dealer will not supply you send $1.00 direct. Free information how to determine which depilatories are harmful and worthless sent in plain, sealed envelope.

EVANS' DEFEAT MEANS A NEW WESTERN CHAMP.

CHICAGO, July 25.—In the semi-finals for the championship of the Western Golf Tournament to-day Edward P. Allis, of Milwaukee, will be matched with Robert A. Gardner and Warren K. Wood will oppose Joseph C. Leduc.

Two surprises were furnished the gallery at yesterday's games, when "Ned" Allis, the Harvard star, defeated Charles Evans, Jr., the champion, and Warren K. Wood, who missed being champion twice, each time by 1 point, was compelled to play 39 holes to defeat Frazer Hale, of Omaha.

The pill of defeat so often administered by Champion Evans was swallowed by him when Allis defeated him, 4 and 3, in the third round.

Allis Stood Pace Well.

At one time in the afternoon, after Evans had won the sixth and seventh holes, it looked as if the champion might at least produce a tight finish, but Allis never cracked under the strain and kept on the even tenor of his way.

A stiff wind from the northeast was sweeping the course when the champion and his opponent teed off. Evans had the honor and hooked his drive close to a trap. Allis pitched his second 20 feet from the cup and holed his put. Evans, whose second was to the right of the pin, took one more.

Allis sliced his drive for the second hole into a bush and chopped out short, but to offset this mistake Evans, who had driven 260 yards, pitched his second into the bunker guarding the green, and the result was a half in five.

Both were on the third green in two, Allis being 30 feet short and Evans 15 feet to the right of the pin. They halved in 4. Allis hooked his next drive to the rough, but his second jumped the bunker guarding the green and ran to 20 feet from the hole. Evans took three to reach the green and ran his approach close to the hole.

Allis Makes Great Shot.

Allis stymied himself on his third and then made one of the most remarkable shots of the match. Evans' ball was too close to permit of a jump shot, and the boy played a follow billiard shot, his ball knocking Evans' ball a little to the side of the cup and following in, giving him the hole 4-5 and putting him 3 up.

The home hole was won by Allis, 5-6. Allis, after hooking his drive, made a fine second, short of the creek. Allis was 3 up at the interval.

A good start in the afternoon meant a lot to Evans, but his chances went tobogganing when Allis won the first 3 holes, and from that point on it was only a question if the chunky little Milwaukeean could keep himself at concert pitch, as with a lead of six holes he could claim membership in the "I should worry" class.

JOHNNY COULON STARTS WORK TO GET IN SHAPE

CHICAGO, July 25.—Physicians who have been handling Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion of the world, have released him and John will start on to-morrow to get himself back into shape for some title contests. He is packing his trunks to-day and on to-morrow will start for Georgian Bay, where he plans to rough it for a month or six weeks. Then he will return, go westward and close his match with Kid Williams. The Logan Square battler believes he will be ready to don the gloves about the middle of September.

"I'm going to camp out and live as close to nature as I can. Rough it will be my style for a month or six weeks, and then I'll be ready to enter the training grind. My physician has released me and says after a trip into the country I will be ready to box again. I am eager to get back into the game, principally to show that I am not all in. I have been censured for my delay in the Williams fight, but I knew I wasn't right, and I wasn't going to disappoint a hungry fight crowd by a poor showing," said John to-day.

WOLGAST AND JONES PART; WILL MANAGE OWN AFFAIRS

He and Jones, who acted as his manager during Wolgast's successful ring days, have separated—not that there is any trouble between them, but Ad feels he needs no manager now that he is no longer the title holder. Ad said to-day:

"Until I win the championship back, I will be able to attend to all my matchmaking myself. If at any time I make a good match and need Jones' assistance, he will be the man to attend to my affairs. I also want it understood that my old friend and manager and I are still the best of friends and pals, and if at any time I can make good again, Tom Jones will be manager.

Rain Tangles Line on Big Series

Volunteers Bob Up for Repairs

By O. B. Keeler.

BY way of giving our heroes a lift on every possible turn of fortune's wheel during the present hectic little road trip, it rained yesterday in Montgomery.

Diagnosis of this seemingly simple weather note informs us (1) that two games will be played this afternoon, unless (2) it rains some more; which means (3) that the two-ply grapple probably will end in a dog-fall, so that (4) the series will have to be decided to-morrow.

Assuming it doesn't keep on raining. Most double-headers are split. It is hard for a good club to win two games in one afternoon. It is nearly as hard for a decently poor club to lose two. So it is rather unlikely that the present series will be as decisive as it looked before the bottom fell out.

NAMING NO NAMES.

Some of our most erudite little Sages
Daily rebound from this mystery vex'd:
How is it a ball club that cleverly gauges
Attack and defense, and consistently rages
Along in one game, till the praise clutters pages,
Turns right around and immodestly stages
An Opera Bouffe in the Next?

* * *

LAMPING the station of the Nashville Volunteers in the Southern League standing doesn't offer much enlightenment concerning the stalwart efforts now making by the management to cheer up that club.

For the present season, that is.

The Vols are more than a dozen games behind the leaders, and the day of miracles is popularly reported to be past.

And yet the wires buzz with rumors and well-grounded reports of deals by which one William Schwartz is adding to the power of his payroll, and, incidentally, to the tax upon the exchequer.

The latest noise sounds like Melville Brannon, of the spectacular college brand of slab-worker, and the idea is that Schwartz has snared him away from J. Dobbs and that the Tennessee Industrialist student soon will inhabit a Nashville uniform.

Pitcher Boland, of the recently exploded interstate League, has been turned over to the Nashville club, and is expected to succeed Jack Brackenridge. Dave Bunting, from the same circuit, also is expected to join the rookies, but probably won't play this season. Schwartz is still dickering for "No-Hit Babe" Adams, of Savannah, and Hoffman was added to the roster at a considerable expense a short time ago.

So it looks as if Sir William might be looking forward to 1914—which, by the way, isn't so bad a thing to do.

* * *

CONTINUING in the same happy vein, it is noted that President Hirsig, of the Nashville club, is under way in the direction of Detroit for a conference with President Navin, the object being to retain Frank Gibson, the speedy and hard-hitting little catcher, for next season.

It is known that other clubs are sweet on Gibby, and it is possible that he may be destined to travel with Detroit in 1914, but Hirsig is confident he has the inside rail, and believes he will keep his pet receiver.

While in Detroit, Hirsig will look over the books for new material available for his club next year.

MAKING a swift shift to New Orleans, we translate an indistinct rumble from the distant North to indicate that Mr. Brenton, able Pelican fork-hander, is ardently desired by the Toledo Mudhens in the American Association.

The terms of the swap mention Outfielder Davy Jones and First Baseman Bluhm, one old bird and one young one, as the Toledo contribution to the deal.

But there is nothing definite.

UMPIRE SUES FEDERAL LEAGUE CLUB FOR $35,000

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Umpire Jack McNulty to-day brought suit against the Federal League baseball club of St. Louis and Manager Jack O'Connor for $35,000 damages because of an alleged attack O'Connor made on him on the club grounds in June.

According to the petition, McNulty was present to officiate as umpire in the game when O'Connor "wrongfully and unlawfully assaulted him."

McNulty alleges that his injuries are such that he no longer will be able to earn a livelihood as a baseball umpire.

PITCHER GREEN REJOINS FRANK'S LOWLY PELS

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 25.—Pitcher Roy Green, shipped to Wheeling, W. Va., last spring under an optional agreement, has rejoined the Pelicans, as has Pitcher Glavenich, recently released by Omaha, and who is to figure in a three-cornered trade between the Pelicans, Cleveland and Toledo clubs for Pitcher Brenton shortly.

Waivers on the other two men Frank is getting in exchange for Brenton have been held up by two American Association clubs for the present.

BOXING
News of the Ring Game

Charley Ledoux, the French bantamweight champion, who lost the last two battles that he took part in at Vernon, Cal., the first with Campi and the second with Williams, is now in New York. He will sail for Paris in a few days.

* * *

Leach Cross and Matty Baldwin, who will meet in a twenty-round bout at Vernon, Cal., next Tuesday night, are "busy bees" at their training camps. Although many fight fans on the coast figure that Baldwin has a good chance to beat the Easterner, betting on the outcome is at even money.

* * *

Frankie Fleming, the featherweight champion of Canada, and George Kirkwood, of St. Louis, have signed articles to meet in a ten-round affair at New York on Saturday night. Both boys are lightweights.

* * *

There is a good chance that George "Knockout" Brown, Greek middleweight, will be matched with Art Allard for a contest of twelve rounds at Anaconda, Mont., for August 12. The plan is to match the winner with Leo Benz at Butte Labor Day.

* * *

Packey McFarland is taking things easy at his home in Chicago. Packey is after a fight with Freddie Welsh or Willie Ritchie. The Chicago wizard says he will make weight for either man.

* * *

Young Jack O'Brien is said to have received a raw deal in Vancouver, where he met Freddie Welsh. A daily paper published there says that Young Jack was entitled to a draw.

* * *

Young Seymour, who boxes Terry Nelson in a ten-round encounter at Marietta on Saturday, August 2, was in Atlanta yesterday. Seymour says he expects the bout to draw a good house, as they have already an advance sale of several hundred dollars. Seymour and Nelson are scheduled to go ten rounds.

* * *

* * *

Kid Duke and Kid Brooks have decided to settle their differences in the ring. The pair have agreed to meet in a finish bout in private some time next week. The boys have been hurling challenges at each other for the past two weeks.

* * *

Dominick J. Tortorich, New Orleans fight promoter, has decided to stage a welterweight elimination tourney. "Wildcat" Ferns and Young Denny are to meet in the first battle a week from next Sunday. Tortorich says he will bring Billy Walter, Spike Kelly and Mike Gibbons to the Pelican City for matches. All bouts are to be over the twenty-round route.

* * *

Tim Callahan, who was recently given a decision over Young Attell here, seems to have the makings of a good boy. He is the holder of a stiff wallop, and usually puts up an aggressive scrap.

* * *

Ad Wolgast is one of the many fighters on the coast trying to force Willie Ritchie into the ring. Tom Jones, manager of Ad, says he will agree to give the champion a $5,000 side bet if he will sign for the bout.

* * *

Coast promoters refuse to go wild over Arthur Pelky, who is at present in Los Angeles. The lightweights seem to be big cards out West at the present time.

CLARKE AND CONZELMAN PITCH TO-DAY

By Joe Agler.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 25. George Clarke and Joe Conzelman are Bill Smith's pitching entries in the bargain-day bill this afternoon, and the gossip is that Elmer Brown, Montgomery's best bet on the slab, will work the first contest against our boys, with either Sparks or Case in the afterpiece. Chapman and Dunn will catch for the Crackers.

We are not grieving over the rain that knocked out yesterday's game with the Billikens. The off day did us good, as we needed a rest, and it helped to break up the jump here from Memphis.

* * *

THE Billikens are full of confidence, and they are going to be hard to lick. They all believe they are going to win the rag, but realize that the rest of the schedule is against them, as they have only one more series at home, after which they hit the long trail for the rest of their games. It is admitted here that the Crackers are the club to be beaten; in fact, every club in the league accepts that as a fact.

* * *

GILBERT PRICE, got here yesterday and looks to be in grand shape after his little rest. Take it all around, the club is in good condition and should make a great finish once it gets back to Ponce DeLeon.

JESS WILLARD AND BILL YOUNG STILL HOPING

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—Jess Willard and Bill Young, "white hopes," were matched to-day for a 20-round boxing bout August 22 at the Vernon arena. Willard hopes to make a few successful starts here against lesser lights, and then will go after a "Gunboat" Smith match again.

HURLER SMITH ON SICK LIST.

BOSTON, July 25.—The Cubs' cripple list had another addition yesterday. Pitcher Charley Smith is confined to his bed, suffering an attack of heart trouble, thought to be an aftermath of his prostration by heat in Cincinnati a few weeks ago. Zimmerman is in Chicago for treatment of his injured foot.

RAIN STOPS RACES.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 25.—Heavy rain yesterday afternoon stopped the Grand Circuit races at Fort Erie after the first heats of the 2:09 and 2:11 pace. Weather permitting, the two unfinished races and the free-for-all pace will be run off to-day and the Grand Circuit stars will move along to Grand Rapids.

TEMPERAMENT.

There are two classes of ball players—those who have temperament and those who have brains.

Temperament is an enlargement of the cranium common among athletes who hit in the .300 class. Or, one might say that temperament is temper with a college education.

A temperamental athlete is as hard to handle as a greased eel. What though he has spent the winter prowling about free luncheries seeking what he may devour? In summer he kicks when the humming birds' ears are underdone or the finger-bowls are not filled with rosewater.

Athletes are condescending enough to talk in friendly terms with the owner of the club, but such cases are rare. As a rule he considers it a favor to allow the manager to talk to him, and he plays ball only because the public cries for it. For if he were to quit, the pastime would be left flat on its back.

In order to attain a temperament, an athlete must first attain a .300 batting average. Otherwise his temperament is merely a bum disposition, and the manager stings him for a fine and kicks him on the shin. As an immortal poet once wrote:

He thought he had a temperament,
But found that he had blundered;
For he was fined a whole week's pay—
He could not hit .300.

Ty Cobb, the temperamentalest athlete in captivity, wants to break away from Detroit. Some say this is due to temperament, while others hold that it is due to horse sense.

With Archer in the hospital and Bresnahan in bad, we wonder what the Cubs would do if some vile wretch were to step on Tom Needham's bunions.

The board of supervisors in San Francisco refuses to allow Sam Langford to do battle with Charlie Miller. Mr. Miller owes the board of supervisors a vote of thanks.

Marty Cutler showed in his alleged battle with Carl Morris that as a pugilist he is a good wrestler.

Some day Tyrus Cobb will create a sensation by announcing that he is satisfied with the way the universe is being run.

GAMBLING.
(By A. Magnate.)

To gamble is a deadly sin,
A deep and lowly vice.
I scorn the man who tries to win
By wagering his pile of tin
Upon the rolling dice.

To gamble is a thing of shame;
I look at it askance.
Dame Fortune is a fickle dame,
And so I play a dead sure game
And never take a chance.

New Orleans a 20-Round Center

Tortorich Seeks Classy Bouts

By Ed W. Smith.

NEW ORLEANS is now safely established on the boxing map as a safe and sane center in which twenty-round contests may be held. At least this is the statement of Dominick J. Tortorich, the Jimmy Coffroth of the South, who has firmly put the game back on a standing akin to the conditions that prevailed there in the good old long ago. New Orleans, be it remembered, had some of the most famous battles of ring history decided in its environs, and threatens now to take just as prominent a place as it got when John L. Sullivan and Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack Dempsey, Jack McAuliffe and Billy Myer, Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall and Dan Creedon and others of that class were battling for real titles.

* * *

BY sheer force of character and through demonstration that the boxing game can be kept free from scandal, and that it does not verge into the old class of "prize fighting," Tortorich has carried matters along until he has won over almost every executive in Louisiana to his way of thinking, and it is not believed that there will be any further opposition to Dom's plan of holding twenty-round contests from now until next Spring. And Dom believes he will be able to show all of the boxers that it will be strictly to their interests to pay some attention to the nice offers that he is going to make to them.

* * *

ALONG with Tom McCarey, Tortorich has been stung by the belt bee, and now has a well-developed case of trophy fever. One week from next Sunday afternoon, Dominick will present his first belt to the boxers. On that day he will have Wildcat Ferns, of Kansas City, and Young Denny, of New Orleans, in the first elimination test for the new welterweight championship that he proposes running during the present summer and coming fall. These boys battled ten rounds there July 4, and Ferns was awarded a verdict that started a near-riot among the spectators, many believing that Denny, the home boy, should have been awarded the victory. They are some partisans down that way. To settle the question, Tortorich nailed them at once for a contest over the long route.

MOBILE SENDS KELLY BACK.

MOBILE, ALA., July 25.—Outfielder Jack Kelly, obtained by Mobile from Jersey City, has been sent back to that club on account of an apparent inability to make good with the Gulls.

LUCKY INFIELD PUTS ATHLETICS IN FRONT RANK

By Sid C. Keener.

IF luck continues to break for Connie Mack and the Athletics, then the 1913 American League pennant race should not be close. The meaning of luck is injuries to athletes, the stars of his flock. And so far the lean Cornelius has been mighty fortunate in ways of accidents.

Mack is directing a bona fide championship ball club all right, still many teams which figured on dope, and even on the ball field, to win have lost out because this and that star was disabled and put out of harness for a lengthy period.

The lucky part for Mack and the Athletics is that he has the banner infield in major league circles to-day, and that his quartet has been on duty every day since the first game of the season, April 10.

Infield the Real Strength.

The Athletics' infield really is the tower of strength to the club. Of course, the pitching staff has more than held its own, still the Mackites are winning games when the pitchers are cracking.

Without a doubt the combination of McInnis-Collins-Barry-Baker forms the infield de luxe, and Stuffy, Eddie, Jack and Frank have been in there every day. Collins is the only player who has missed once, and recently, during a double-header, Mack laid off the Columbia U. lad to give youngster Bill Orr a chance.

Of course, Mack has been without Jack Coombs since April 11, when typhoid fever put "Colby Jack" out of commission. But Plank and Bender are having an unusually good year, and then Connie has been fortunate in getting excellent pitching from youngsters Brown, Bush, Houck and Wyckoff.

Both Kinds of Outfielders.

In the outfield Mack supplied himself with fly catchers in case of injuries. At present he has Danny Murphy, Rube Oldring and Jimmy Walsh, right-handed stickers, and Eddie Murphy, Amos Strunk and Pete Daley, left-handed swatters.

In the outfield Mack has supplied himself with batters for the two kinds of pitching, also for injuries.

In catching, Mack is taken care of in case of injuries, but so far no one has been needed. Schang and Lapp are doing all the catching, and even Ira Thomas, who practically caught the Mackites to the 1910-1911 flags, has not been behind the bat in a single entertainment since the start of the season.

The peculiar part is that Mack has been lucky, mighty lucky, with his infielders. Not only are they in there every day, but they are hitting the Athletics to the pennant. Collins has a .347 average; Baker, .326, and McInnes, .325. And the trio has scored 202 runs.

BASEBALL
Diamond News and Gossip

Rain put the finishing touches on major league baseball yesterday, the National games all being postponed. The American League teams spent the day traveling eastward.

* * *

Connie Mack, of the Athletics, takes exception to the statement that he Senators will beat out his eam. Mack says his men fear nobody and will breeze home in the American League.

* * *

Manager Chance plans a big shake-up in the Yankees. He is contemplating benching Birdie Cree and Harry Wolter and filling their places in the outfield with Roy Hartsell and Ray Caldwell. The latter has not been meeting with success as a pitcher, but is developing into a good outfielder and batsman.

* * *

In the hope of widening the gap between his team and the Phillies Manager McGraw of the Giants will send his team along at the clip they have been traveling the l atsfew weeks, when they begin their second invasion of the West to-morrow.

* * *

Manager Clark Griffith has ordered the Senators to keep away from Lake Michigan. Outfielder Shanks turned his ankle and injured his head while diving the other day and will be out of the game for several days. Griffith's order was to prevent further inroads on his players.

* * *

Alleging that he was assaulted by Jack O'Connor, manager of the Federal League, John S. McNulty, a former umpire, has brought suit for $35,000 against the league, the St. Louis Club and O'Connor, its manager. It was McNulty's first day of umpiring and also his last and he alleges he has been unable to earn a living in his profession.

FILLINGEM AND WILDER TWIRL TWO GREAT GAMES

CORDELE, July 25.—Seldom, if ever before in the history of organized baseball, has a record been made that would compare with that of Fillingem and "Baby" Wilder, pitching for Cordele in a double-header against Waycross Wednesday. Fillingem went nine innings for a shut-out game with no hits, and Wilder twirled a six-inning game, allowing no hits and no scores, striking out nine men.

By this remarkable record, Fillingem and Wilder have proved themselves the star twirlers of the Empire State League. Not only has a no-hit, shut-out game been pitched before in the league, but the fact that Cordele took both games with the same brilliant record makes it a precedent that will probably not be equaled, though the league is maintained for years, for which prospects now appear very favorable.

ARMY AND NAVY WRANGLE OVER FOOTBALL FIELD

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 25.—The Army and Navy athletic officials still are at a deadlock over the selection of the place where the next Army-Navy football game shall be played.

The Navy is insisting that the game take place in Philadelphia, while the Army contends that it should be played at West Point and Annapolis, alternating each year, or in New York City, preferably the latter. The Army opens the football season early this year, playing a game September 27.

NEGOTIATIONS ON FOR M'FARLAND-RITCHIE BOUT

CHICAGO, July 25.—Negotiations were begun to-day for a ten-round contest between Packey McFarland and Willie Ritchie in Milwaukee early in October. McFarland had gareed to meet Ritchie, who is considering the proposition.

Artie Hofman May Go to Yanks

Vol Gardener Playing Fine Ball

NASHVILLE, TENN., July 25.—Any time a player comes tracking out from the majors, there immediately goes up the hue and cry that he has finished his act under the Big Tent, is on his way to the exit and only lingers around the side shows because it reminds him of the fame that was his when he occupied the center ring.

The cases of a return engagement in the majors are almost as rare as the appearance of feathers on turtles once a "slave" has started sliding, since oftenest it is the case that a ball tosser loses his ambition and desire to hobnob with the stellar lights once he has started shunting on down to the bushes.

It's because Artie Hofman is the exception that proves the rule that makes his case so full of interest, especially since so many widely different explanations of his appearance in the Southern have been offered.

Sure He Can Make Good.

It's no joke that the "them-was-the-happy-days-in-Akron" stuff had a lot to do with Artie casting his fortunes with Bill Schwartz, but the real honest-to-goodness reason is that the boy leader of the Vols afforded a protecting wing, under which Circus Solly could hide himself while the business of a clever little scheme of Hofman's was getting oiled up. The milk in the cocoanut of the whole affair is that Artie doesn't believe he is all through with the big show, and although they have their thumbs down on him, in the National, there is still a fine young chance for Artie to slip into Ban Johnson's circuit, where one Frank Chance is leading at present a forlorn hope in Manhattan.

Harking away back to the time when Charles Webb Murphy, the ungrateful owner of the Cubs, traded Artie and King Cole to the Pirates for Lefty Leifield and Tommy Leach, there started the breach between Murphy and the Peerless Leader, who, in the language for which Chance is widely noted, explained to Charles Webb just where he could head in. Leastways, that's the way Hofman tells it.

Didn't Like Fred Clarke.

Harboring an intense bitterness against Murphy, which found its best evidence in the recent suit for $3,000, which Artie pulled against the Chicago club, and a hankering for the fighting tactics of the Peerless Leader, made Hofman and Fred Clarke anything but a Damon and Pythias. All of this ill feeling, coupled with a pair of bum pins, soon caused Clarke to sour on the former Cub outfielder, and he began to look for a place to pigeonhole Artie, until he could get in good shape and bend his neck to Clarke's yoke; and Kansas City looked like a good place to the fiery Pirate chief.

The Blues were given a short option on Hofman at the stiff price of $2,500, after waivers had been secured on Artie—and there seems to have been a heap of inside stuff pulled in sending the blonde gardener out of Mr. Lynch's circuit, by the way—and a deal was framed up between Hofman, Clarke and the Kansas City club by which Artie should be returned to the Pirates at the end of the present season at a 20 per cent increase in salary in the event he "went good" in the Western circuit. This arrangement appealed to Hofman about like a spell of the itch, and he declared he had rather quit the game than be mixed up in any arrangement which would send him back to the Buccaneers and the tyranny of Clarke. When he balked, and wound up by kicking over the traces, the Kansas City club did the perfectly wise thing and allowed the option to expire.

An Old Pal of Schwartz's.

Business of "for old times sake" making a loud noise in the wings and Artie learning how Bill Schwartz was getting gray headed over the poor old Vols' slump. He would be tickled to death to come down and help an old pal out, if the Vols could buy his release. Did they? They did. For $1,500—(count 'em)—a thousand iron men less than Kansas City stood ready to kick in with, but it was a case of a bird in the hand, etc., with Clarke, and hence Hofman chasing flies in the Vols' left field.

But there is NO conditional release clause in Artie's contract, as has been whispered about. He is the sole property of the Vols, bought and paid for, with no strings tied to him one way or the other.

But this is a fact: Schwartz knows Artie's ambition to return to the majors; he knows he is anxious to once more work under Frank Chance's banner; that Chance is dead stuck on having Artie with him once more, and maybe Schwartz isn't going to help his pal get back where he is crazy to be. Maybe a duck can't swim, but he puts up a pretty good imitation.

AMERICANS WILL MEET BRITONS IN NET MATCHES

WIMBLEDON, ENGLAND, July 25.—The interest of the tennis world will be focussed to-day on the championship matches at Wimbledon, where the Americans will attempt to win the Dwight F. Davis international tennis trophy. England will spare no effort to defend the cup, which is the last remaining token of her former athletic supremacy.

The two singles matches will be played between Maurice E. McLoughlin, of San Francisco, facing J. C. Parke, whose unexpected victory last year over the noted Australian, Norman E. Brookes, was instrumental in bringing the cup to England, and R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, meeting C. P. Dixon.

Parke fell an easy victim to the Californian in the open English championships, but a round of tournament play since is said to have greatly improved his form. England pins her hope on his ability to defeat McLoughlin, who is reported to be stale. English critics are united in declaring there is less than "15" difference between Williams' play and that of McLoughlin. A greater crowd is expected than the crush which attended the Wilding-McLoughlin match.

PELKY AND SMITH MAY CLASH ON TURKEY DAY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—Indications are that Arthur Pelky, Tommy Burns, heavyweight battler, and Gunboat Smith will do battle in this city on Thanksgiving day. Burns to-day announced that he would have his man ready on turkey day and that Smith would be the foe, the match going to the highest bidder.

CROUCH ROBBED; GETS DRAW.

OTTAWA, ILL., July 25.—Ben Crouch, of Chicago, and Kid Mack, of Joliet, fought eight rounds to a draw in the wind-up of a boxing show held here last night. The decision came as a surprise to the fans, as Crouch cleanly outtought Mack, knocking him down several times. "Specia Delivery" Hirsch, of Chicago, and Ed Brandenburg, of St. Louis, went six rounds to a draw in the semi-wind-up.

BIG MARATHON GRIND TO-NIGHT AT MOTORDROME

UNLESS rain butts in again, local motorcycle fans will have their much-sought-for chance to see the Marathon race at the Motordrome to-night.

The races were postponed on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, but if the weather man will dish out some dry weather for to-night the riders promise to give the fans some racing that should be the classiest of the season.

$500 to Winner.

The Marathon race, with ten riders on the track at the same time, is the big feature. The speed teams are scheduled to circle the track 105 times, and the winner is to receive a cash prize of $500. More thrills seem likely to be crowded into this race than all the other races ever pulled off here.

Other Races on Card.

A special match race, three heats and a final of a sweepstakes and a trial against time by Tex Richards are the other events to be pulled off.

The following is the complete program:

Tex Richards against time. One mile. Present record held by Eddie Hasha and Morty Graves. Time, 38 4-5 seconds.

One mile to qualify for two-mile final. Two to qualify in each heat and three in fastest heat.

First Heat—No. 1, Morty Graves; No. 2, Harry Schwartz; No. 3, Billy Shields; No. 4, George Lockner; No. 5, Tex Richards.

Second Heat—No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, Georges Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

Harry Glenn vs. Harry Schwartz. (Special Match Race.) Two miles, best two out of three heats.

Final heat of Motordrome Sweepstakes—Two miles.

Second heat of Special Match Race—Glenn vs. Schwartz.

Third heat of Special Match Race, if necessary.

Big Marathon Race—(26 miles 385 yards), ten riders to compete. Each rider will have to ride 105 times around the track. Winner to receive cash prize of $500.

Contestants—No. 1, Morty Graves; No. 2, Harry Schwartz; No. 3, Billy Shields; No. 4, George Lockner; No. 5, Tex Richards; No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, Georges Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

INDIANS SELL TWIRLER.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 25.—George Keiserling, of the Indianapolis American Association club pitching staff, has been sold to the San Francisco Pacific Coast team. Manager Kelly also announced the purchase of George Norton, a young lefthander from the Hastings club of the Nebraska State League.

BROU'S INJECTION—A PERMANENT CURE
of the most obstinate cases guaranteed in from 3 to 6 days; no other treatment required. Sold by all druggists.

TETTER
Tetterine cures tetter. Read what Mrs. V. C. McQuiddy, Estill Springs, Tenn., says: I had a severe case of tetter on both hands and I finally got helpless. A leading physician knew of no cure. I decided to give Tetterine a trial. To my utter surprise and satisfaction it worked a speedy cure.
Use Tetterine
It cures eczema, tetter, erysipelas, itching piles, ground itch and all skin maladies.

HELP HIM WIN!

To All Householders, Business Folk---All of You With an Unfilled "Want"---

You have a boy or girl friend in The Georgian's Want Ad Contest. His name, or hers, is in the list below.

Your friend is working to win an automobile, or the piano, or one of the other prizes.

Your want ad---even if it is only two lines---will help him. Give him your ad or send it to the Want Ad Man with the request that your friend be given the votes. He will appreciate it.

CONTESTANTS are busily at work to-day telling their friends they're in the contest and learning the art of getting "want ads." The one who brings in the most paid want ads will be the owner of that touring car before long. It isn't too late for you to get in, but you'd better hurry. See the Want Ad Man at once and bring this nomination blank in with you.

THE CONTESTANTS:

Here are some of the boys and girls in the Want Ad Contest. Read the list and find your friend. Send your want ads to The Georgian and help him or her win a prize.

BANKRUPT SALE.

In Re: Horine Development Company, Bankrupt.

Pursuant to an order passed on July 2, 1913, by the Hon. P. H. Adams, a Referee in Bankruptcy for the United States District Court for the Northern District of Georgia, the undersigned, as Trustee, will sell before the Court House door of Walker County, Georgia, in the town of LaFayette, Ga., on the 5th day of August, 1913, between the hours of 11 a. m. and 2 p. m. o'clock, the following described assets, belonging to said bankrupt estate, consisting of realty and personalty, on the terms stated hereinafter. Said property to be sold as an entirety. The following described real estate in Walker County, Georgia, to-wit:

All of Land Lot 284, containing 160 acres, more or less; 53 acres more or less of Land Lot 285, said tract bounded by the cliff of the mountain until said cliff strikes the road across Dug Gap thence with said road to the west line of said lot, being all of said lot south and west of said cliff and road as described in deed from W. N. Carmony to D. W. Lawrence, dated September 11, 1889; all of Land Lot 292, except that part of said lot conveyed to Henrietta Woods by J. E. Shaw; 53 1-3 acres, more or less, in the northern part of Land Lot 293, and also all that part of Land Lot 293, lying west of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad Company's tracks, purchased by John H. Hill from J. F. Andrews, and by J. F. Andrews from D. W. Lawrence; all of Land Lot 320, lying west of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad Company's tracks, containing 50 acres, more or less; all of Land Lot 321, except two (2) acres lying on the east side of said Land Lot 321, known as the School House property, and one-fourth (¼) of an acre, more or less, on the east side of said lot enclosed and used as a cemetery, and two (2) acres and a fraction where the barn and horse lot is, the line running west to the west bank of a deep gulley, thence following the gulley or ditch to the original line. All of the aforesaid described land being in the eighth (8th) District and fourth (4th) Section of said Walker County, Georgia.

Also the following lots and parcels of land in the seventh (7th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of said Walker County, Georgia, being all of Land Lots Three (3), Four (4) and Five (5), lying west of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad Company's tracks, except so much of said lots as were formerly owned by W. N. and J. H. Herndon and Theodore Parker; also Land Lots Thirty-four (34), Thirty-eight (38) and Thirty-nine (39), and all that part of Land Lots Thirty-three (33), Sixty-nine (69) and Seventy (70), lying west of the Chattanooga Southern Railroad Company's tracks. The property above described containing One Thousand Five Hundred and Sixty-three (1,563) acres, more or less, and being the same property described in a bond for title between John H. Hill and E. M. Horine, dated September 11, 1911, and recorded in Deed Book 24, on page 457, in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Walker County, Georgia.

Also the following tracts or parcels of land described as follows: Land Lots One (1), Two (2) and Thirty-five (35), in the Seventh (7th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of said Walker County, Georgia; also lot of land No. 328, and one hundred and forty (140) acres, more or less, of Land Lot 324, it being all of said lot, except about twenty (20) acres lying on the branch in the west of said lot; also all of Land Lot No. 322, except twenty (20) acres, lying in the southwest corner of said land lot, said twenty (20) acres being now owned by O. T. and W. C. Andrews; also one hundred and forty (140) acres, more or less, of Land Lot No. 290, it being all of said land lot, except twenty (20) acres lying in the northwest corner of said lot; also twenty (20) acres, more or less, lying in the northwest corner of Land Lot No. 291, all being in the Eighth (8th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of said Walker County, Georgia. The property described in this paragraph containing One Thousand Two Hundred (1,200) acres, more or less, and being the same property described in a certain bond for title, dated September 11, 1911, and recorded in Deed Book 24, on page 458, in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Walker County, Georgia.

All of the above and foregoing described lands subject to certain reservations, as shown in the conveyance made to E. M. Horine by John H. Hill by deed dated the 17th day of August, 1912, and recorded in the office of the Clerk of Superior Court of Walker County, Georgia, on the 21st day of August, 1912, in Book of Deeds 25, on pages 511 et. seq.

Also, the following tracts and parcels of land, lying and being in Walker County, Georgia, and more particularly described as follows:

First Tract: One Hundred and Seven (107) acres, more or less, in the south part of Land Lot 293, all in the Eighth (8th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of Walker County, Georgia, and more fully described in deeds made by D. W. Lawrence and Mary Robinson to John H. Hill.

Second Tract: Ninety-six (96) acres, more or less, being part of Land Lot 294, in said Eighth (8th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of Walker County, Georgia, as described in deeds made by S. J., T. E. and E. W. Shaw to John H. Hill.

Third Tract: One Hundred and Seven (107) acres, more or less, it being all that part of lot of land 320 in the Eighth (8th) District and Fourth (4th) Section of Walker County, Georgia, lying east of the Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Railroad (formerly the Chattanooga Southern Railroad).

Also pulleys, shaftings, beltings, bearings, machine bolts, hose pipe, test kilns, blacksmithing tools, dump carts, guy wire, rope, axes, mattocks, picks, shovels, wheelbarrows, coal scoops, crosscut saws, Fairbanks scales, bulldog stocks and dies and generally all the supplies consisting of a multitude of small articles.

All of the above machinery, fittings, fixtures, pulleys, shaftings, beltings, etc., being located at the plant of the bankrupt concern in Walker County, Georgia.

Said sale to be to the highest bidder. A certified check for $6,000 shall be deposited by each bidder with the trustee before any bid shall be received from such bidder or be considered from such bidder. Checks shall be immediately returned to the unsuccessful bidders.

Such checks so deposited with the trustee shall be delivered to him, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in the event of its acceptance. The deposit made by the successful bidder will be applied on account of the purchase price. In the event the bidder shall fail, after acceptance of said bid, to comply with the requirements of his said bid, then such amount as deposited shall be forfeited as a penalty for such failure. The purchaser or purchasers on the confirmation of the sale by the court shall pay in cash such further sum on account of the purchase price as the court may direct and as may be necessary to satisfy the claims of creditors whose claims shall have been or may hereafter be allowed by the court. So much of the purchase price as shall not be required to be paid in cash may be satisfied by the purchaser turning in and applying to the payment of the residue of his bid, in whole or in part, any claim against the bankrupt estate which has been or which may hereafter be allowed as a provable claim, and that upon such claims so turned in as aforesaid, the purchaser shall be credited on his bid with such sum as would have been paid on account of such claim out of the net proceeds of sale, if the whole amount of the purchase price were to be paid in cash.

The court reserves the right to order a resale, and to resell the property upon such notice as it might direct, at the risk and the cost of the purchaser thereof, in case such purchaser shall fail or omit to make any payment on account of the purchase price pursuant to an order of court requiring such payment.

The court may reject any bid and may retake and resell the property, if the court shall deem such bid inadequate, or upon the failure of the purchaser to comply with the terms of sale. The sale shall be confirmed by the court.

Full information and property can be seen upon application to undersigned.

YOU ARE looking for a position, aren't you, or you would not be reading these ads? Perhaps the position you are looking for is not to be found advertised today. Then why not spend a few cents advertising for a position in the "Situation Wanted" columns of this paper tomorrow? There is no need of your walking around in the hot sun or rain, letting your brain go to rust as well as worrying yourself sick looking for a good position when a "Situation Wanted" ad in The Georgian will do the searching for you. An ad in this paper will cost you only a few cents to run several times and relieve your mind of a heavy load. Try it and see.

DO YOU NEED HELP of any kind? A little "Want Ad" will get it for you.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Browne Pays $35,000 For Peachtree Lease

Decorating Concern to Have Extra Floor, Leaving Huntley Building. Good Rental Business.

A Peachtree lease for $35,000 and seven years which will cause several interesting central and semi-central changes was announced Friday.

D. C. Strother, of South Carolina, and others have leased to the Walter E. Browne Company, decorators, through Andrew Calhoun, of the Turman, Black & Calhoun real estate agency, Nos. 324 and 326 Peachtree street, now occupied temporarily by the Pope-Hartford automobile agency, L. S. Crane, manager. The term is seven years, with an option of three more years, at approximately $5,000 a year.

The owners will add another story to the building at a cost of $8,000, making a structure of two stories and basement and mezzanine floor. There will be 14,000 square feet of floor space. The Browne company will likewise make improvements suitable to its business. Elevator service street will be a feature.

This property is on the west side of Peachtree about 150 feet south of Porter place, and was in the original Porter subdivision. It is 45 by 90 feet to a 10-foot alley.

Mr. Browne will take possession about January 1, 1914, when his lease on the building at the northwest corner of North Forsyth and James streets expires. His move is significant of the tendency of houses of similar character to seek Peachtree semi-central locations. Lycett, the china painter, and the Biggs Antique Company having preceded him in this direction.

The building to be vacated by the Browne company is owned by Mrs. Lena Swift Huntley.

Drewry Street Sale.

The Atlanta Development Company has sold to Mrs. Clara M. Jones a lot on Drewry street 50 feet west of Frederica street, 52 by 254, for $1,600. This is lot 35 of block 3 of this subdivision.

Good Renting Business.

The renting business in Atlanta is reported to be as steady as at any time in the city's history. Characteristic of it is the desire of South Side people to be located on the North Side, although there is always a good demand for homes like those found in West End and similar suburbs.

The Ralph O. Cochran Company has rented or leased within the past few days the following 22 places:

For D. J. R. Cooke to Mrs. W. F. Canterbury, No. 301 East Georgia avenue; for W. P. Stevens to B. O. Fitts, No. 40 Avon avenue; for Mrs. E. R. Way to E. M. McHugh, No. 301 Oakland avenue; for Mrs. E. L. LaFontaine to D. T. Stephenson, No. 16 Cooper street; for T. L. Lewis to R. G. Greenwood, No. 45 Atlanta avenue; for Miss Katie McCay to E. S. Acree, No. 390 Cooper street; for W. V. Ogletree to J. M. Mayer, No. 11 McPherson avenue; for R. I. Barge to T. N. Tanner, No. 212 Murphy avenue; for H. L. Cobbs to T. D. Brown, No. 15 Windsor street; for Alverson Bros. to W. H. Tanner, No. 354 Ashby street; for James Millan to Mrs. M. C. Smith, No. 318 Cooper street; for Atlanta Baggage and Cab Company to Charles Alden, No. 14 Brotherton street, for Atlanta Baggage and Cab Company to Mrs. F. Syrakson, No. 18 Brotherton street; for C. M. Tripp to Mrs. L. A. Rader, No. 97 Mills street; for A. P. Morgan to Mrs. I. C. Howard, No. 533 Lawton street; for J. H. Harwell to C. E. Hulme, No. 476 West Hunter street; for Myers & Peiper to Mrs. G. A. Johnstone, No. 222 North Jackson street; for Mrs. W. W. Morgan to E. B. Durham, No. 22 West Tenth street; for H. W. Dillin to R. H. Merker, No. 250 Lake avenue; for R. J. Griffin to Mrs. S. B. Palmer, No. 4 Flanders Apartments; for Joseph Buchman to J. W. Stephens, No. 207 Oak street; for B. Clein to A. M. Willis, No. 83 North Lawn street.

DRAW SPACE FOR ATLANTA EXHIBIT

Local Manufacturers To Be Allotted Booths at Permanent Display Friday.

Space in the permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods, which will be established in the new headquarters of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce building at Auburn avenue and Pryor street, will be allotted Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock. On account of the limited space at the disposal of the committee in charge of the allotment, it is expected that a number of local manufacturers will be present to arrange for their exhibit.

Virtually every manufacturer of importance in the city has consented to add an exhibit to the permanent display, and those who do not come in now are expected to join the movement later.

The decision to establish the exhibit in the Chamber of Commerce building was made Thursday afternoon by a special committee headed by Brooks Morgan, which has been considering various locations for several weeks.

The committee favored the establishment of the exhibit in the chamber's building from the beginning of the movement, inasmuch as the chamber is the sponsor of the movement, and several days ago the directors were asked to name a price for a lease on the upper floors of the building.

In addition to the exhibit of their goods, the building is being fitted up with other features that are expected to appeal to the manufacturers and merchants who will join in the display. A swimming pool, baths and a gymnasium will be provided for the manufacturers and members of the chamber.

Doubt Report That Dr. Jacobs Bought Burns' Manuscripts

Members of the family of Dr. Joseph Jacobs are not inclined to believe the report that he has purchased the famous Glenriddell manuscripts of Robert Burns for a sum exceeding $25,000 bid several years ago by J. Pierpont Morgan. The purchase of the manuscripts by the Atlantan is told of in London dispatches.

"I don't think there is any truth to the report," Dr. Sinclair Jacobs, son of Dr. Jacobs, said Friday morning. "If the manuscripts had been purchased we undoubtedly would have been notified, and we have heard nothing of it except what we have read in the papers. Dr. Jacobs, so far as I know, has not been near London on his present trip to Europe."

According to the London dispatches, Dr. Jacobs purchased the manuscripts from a dealer in London, who recently bought them from the Liverpool Athenaeum. It is said that the deal between Dr. Jacobs and the dealer was pending at the time of the first purchase of the manuscripts, and that the London dealer was merely Dr. Jacobs' agent in the transaction.

OBITUARY.

Funeral services for Mrs. Pauline Isaacs will be conducted from the chapel of Greenberg & Bond at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, Dr. David Marx officiating. Interment will be in Oakland.

The body of Mrs. L. C. House, who died at a private sanitarium Thursday night, is at Poole's funeral home, pending funeral arrangements which will be announced later. Mrs. House was twenty-nine years old, and formerly lived at No. 123 Malden street. She is survived by her husband and four sisters, Misses Clara, Hattie Lee and Mary Lou, and Mrs. Maggie Bubb.

Mrs. Sallie J. Crawford, thirty-six years old, died at her late residence, No. 510 Lawton street, Thursday night. Surviving her are her husband, E. C. Crawford, one small daughter, one sister, Mrs. A. D. Tull, and her mother, Mrs. Sally Tharr. Funeral announcement will be made later.

Levi S. Martin, aged seventeen, died at Mount Airy, Ga., Thursday. He is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Martin; two sisters, Mrs. Lowe Estes and Mrs. Lorenzo Hollingsworth, and four brothers, Q. E., J. F., M. M. and W. M. Martin, all of this city. The interment will be in Moreland, Ga., Saturday afternoon.

Scott Promoted for Phagan Case Work

Harry Scott, assistant superintendent of the Atlanta branch of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, has been promoted to the superintendency of the Houston, Tex., agency as a reward of his work on the Phagan case. He will leave Atlanta immediately after the Frank trial is concluded.

The Pinkertons were employed in the Phagan case by the National Pencil Company. Harry Scott was assigned to the case and was instrumental in bringing to light many important features.

Scott was the aggressor in securing the so-called confession of Jim Conley, the negro sweeper.

Sunday Schools to Hold Annual Meet

The First District Sunday School Association of Fulton County will hold its thirty-second annual celebration at the East Point Tabernacle Saturday, beginning at 10 o'clock. Practically every Sunday school in the county will be represented.

The annual address will be delivered by the Rev. Charles O. Jones, D. D. Others who will speak are Dr. F. S. Hudson, Dr. Charles E. Witt and Dr. W. M. Joiner. Officers for the coming year will be elected, and a basket dinner will be served.

Following are the present officers of the association: S. W. Ramsey, president; Joseph W. Humphries, vice president; Percy L. Huie, secretary; Lawrence Sims, chorister, and Claud Wynn, assistant chorister.

JULY AGAIN ON THE TOBOGGAN

The South and Liverpool Heavy Sellers—Spot Houses Big Buyers of New Crop.

NEW YORK, July 25.—At the start to-day the cotton market was steady at a net decline of 4 to 7 points from last night's close. Near positions again showed the greatest weakness, but they were also the first to respond to later covering and soon after the opening the whole market rallied several points, with the shorts nervous over the oversold condition of the market.

Liverpool was lower than due and brought out scattered selling from the ring. This, together with a perfect weather map, showing further rains in Texas and lower temperatures generally, with indications for more showers, brought on more favorable apprehension that the drouth would not continue. The early firmness was not of long duration. July continued on the toboggan and by noon had increased its decline 11 points from the previous close. August, after advancing 12 points to 11.67, fell back two points under the previous close.

New crop positions were liquidated. The early buying seemed to be profit-taking purchases by shorts and by moderate buying by a few strong spot interests. It seems now that the bull market is about over. Weather and crop advices are excellent. Spots are weakening for the first time in many weeks and new crop cotton is beginning to arrive at various points in Texas. The recent heat and clear weather was regarded as most propitious to the plant and hasten its maturity.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: July, 11.78; August, 11.64; October, 11.25; January, 11.13.

Following are 10 a. m. bids in New Orleans: August, 11.57; October, 11.31; January, 11.30.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, July 25.—Official records and private advices show a good rainfall overnight in North Texas and Oklahoma, and the map shows a fine general rainfall in the Central and Eastern States; cooler in North Texas. Indications are for more rain in the West, continued showery weather in the Central States and Alabama, clearing in the Atlantics.

Since the date of Habersham King's report, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia have had a fine rainfall and the Western States are getting it now.

Our market opened a few points lower and held around 11.31 for October. It is being realized that rains in the West came too late to improve Bureau returns, which close to-day. The chances, therefore, are that the August Bureau, which will be published a week from to-day, will show several points loss and this explains the absence of selling pressure in the markets and a disposition to buy on depressions.

Political news is unfavorable. According to London news a revolution in China is again under way.

MILLER-COTTER COTTON LETTER.

MEMPHIS, July 25.—Rains have given partial relief in Texas and elsewhere. The precipitation has been generally sufficient. There are a few buyers and the market shows a weak undertone. Unless spinners and the trade buy freely at further decline sentiment will become more bearish as prices approach 11c. The crop is more nearly assured than at any previous time and nothing has appeared in the trade situation to offset this assurance of a full crop.

Our bureau makes condition of crop 81.9, against 76.5 last year.

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, July 25.—New high records were established in the cotton seed oil market this morning. Old crop months keep working up on the scarcity of real oil, and a continued demand from compound makers. Shorts in September and October were good buyers.

MINING STOCKS.

BOSTON, July 25.—Opening: East Butte 11⅞, New Haven 100⅜, American 20½, Calumet 63, North Butte 27⅝, Pond Creek 20, Superior and Boston 2 9-16.

COTTON GOSSIP

Map showed some scattered rains in Western belt this morning, which gave rise to general selling by commission houses and the local crowd. The South is said to have also sold. Spot houses were apparently leading buyers, but most of their purchases seemed to be in summer positions. Liverpool was said to have bought August here. After Liverpool closed there was another wave of selling and in the absence of that buying power the market sagged off again, but rallied later on buying of some 5,000 bales new crops said to come from spot people. This caused scattered short covering. Reports as to Texas rainfall are conflicting. Should general rains come it is believed that the market will sell lower, though some bulls contend this has been discounted, that cotton is worth the present price. It is purely a weather market.—Anderson.

* * *

Hentz, Seidenberg and Liverpool brokers hedging July, but sold October. The selling was general. Mitchell and Wilson were apparently the leading sellers on reports of rain in Texas to-day.

* * *

Warehouse stocks in New York to-day are 33,541; certificated, 24,554 bales.

Southern banks are borrowing more largely than in many years from Philadelphia banks and institutions. They want 6 per cent money for 90 days, required to finance the picking and marketing of the crop.

There were various signs that the end of the bull market has come. Spot markets are weakening for the first time in many weeks. For an indefinite period the spot price of cotton at Galveston has been 12 5-16 to 12⅜, while New Orleans has been equally firm around 12 7-16c. Wednesday both broke to 12⅛. This is a bad sign, as these are two of the most important spot markets in the South. In fact, Galveston right now has larger stocks of cotton than any other of the thirteen counted spot centers of the South. The break, so sensational in its extent of July in New Orleans, is merely another sign of the times. More liquidation of a few thousand bales would not have broken that market had there been any confidence in the stability of the spot markets.

Texas Rainfall: Abilene, .24; Ballinger, .08; Clarendon, .08; Dallas, .40; Fort Worth, 1.22; Haskell, 1.36; Henrietta, .54; Quanah, .10; Snyder, .08; Spur, .12; Waxahachie, .56; Weatherford, 1.04; Weldon, N. C., 1.30; Corinth, Miss., 1.60; Greenwood, Miss., 1.10; Macon, 1.30; Arlington, Tenn., 1.50; Clanton, Ala., 1 inch; Demopolis, 1 inch; Livingston, 1.40; Allendale, S. C., 1.10; Rome, Ga., 1.90; Toccoa, Ga., 1 inch; Pine Bluff, Ark., 3.40; Prescott, Ark., 1.70; Camden, Ark., 1.50.

Temperature Average: Oklahoma, 92; Texas, 96, with six stations showing 100, five 102, and five 104.

Quite a few notices were circulating this morning, being issued by Liverpool houses.

Liverpool cables: "Spot cotton, good business; prices easy; sales estimated 10,000 American; middling fair, 7.21d; good middling, 6.89d; middling, 6.61d; low middling, 6.41d; good ordinary, 5.93d; ordinary, 5.59d."

* * *

* * *

NEW ORLEANS, July 25.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map shows partly cloudy to cloudy over entire belt; nice rains in North Texas and detailed reports at 10 o'clock will show more also in Oklahoma. Fine rains also in the central and eastern belt. Cooler in Texas. Indications are for a good deal more rain coming on Texas and Oklahoma; also in West Texas. Continued showery weather over the central belt, and clearing over the Atlantics.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "While general showers were reported, either officially or privately, from nearly all sections of the belt, with the exception of West Texas and the Panhandle country, the market for new crop cotton seemed willing to hold steady, and reluctantly declined only when the remnant old crop deliveries manifested acute weakness. July is, of course, a thing of the past, except in so far as a few remaining trailers are concerned. August, however, while a very live wire at the moment, nevertheless is not expected to develop any very great voltage, because the outstanding interest in that month is not supposed to be large.

"During the past few days it has been whispered about that the least desirable portion of the cotton received on July contracts would be re-tendered on August. Yesterday morning August seemed to have friends. Immediately before the close those friends deserted it. Thus, the talent does not know just what to expect during the final month of the 1912-1913 crop year. On the face of things, room traders can not figure out a profit to be made by taking up cotton on August at current differences."

Habersham King's latest report says: "The dividing line is the Mississippi River. West of it the conditions are more dangerously dry. East of the river the crop is fairly safe, though rains are beginning to be needed in Mississippi, Alabama and more moisture needed in Georgia to render it quite safe. I think the week's developments have been unfavorable to 50 per cent of the belt."

THE WEATHER.

Conditions.

Former Magistrate Is Fined for Usury

ROME, July 25.—Found guilty of usury by a Superior Court jury, former Justice of the Peace E. P. Treadway, one of the most prominent and wealthy citizens of Rome, was fined $350 by Judge Moses Wright, or in default to serve twelve months in the chaingang. Treadaway was convicted on evidence of Tom Robinson, who swore he paid $3 a month interest on a loan of $19.50.

Other money lenders of Rome also face prosecution.

WAYCROSS.—As he was in the act of striking Dr. W. M. Folks in front of the home of Dr. Frank C. Folks, late last night, an unknown negro was attacked by Dr. Folks' dog. The negro climbed a fence and escaped. Robbery is believed to have been his motive.

PUBLIC ONCE MORE IN STOCK MARKET

By CHAS. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Another halt in the buying movement what is evidence on the stock market at the opening to-day, and a generally lower tone prevailed.

The news of the Government's suit against the American Telephone and Telegraph Company was used as a reason for pressure against that stock, which declined 1¼.

Other losses were: Southern Pacific ⅛, Union Pacific ¾, Steel common ⅛, American Locomotive ⅛, Canadian Pacific 1⅛, New Haven was up ⅛.

Other shares moved irregularly with the changes equally divided between gains and losses.

Trading in London was irregular.

The curb market was steady.

The market movements lacked uniformity, a large number of issues failing to share in the activity. However, sharp upturns displayed strength and the advance continued small but active. Canadian Pacific was conspicuous among the leaders. Steel rose ⅝ and Reading ⅛. Union Pacific moved up one point to 149½. Coppr yielded ⅛. Northern Pacific and Pennsylvania were a shade lower. New Haven sold around 103¼.

Call money loaning at 2¼.

Wool Market Active, With Narrow Range

BOSTON, July 25.—Greater activity is noted in the local wool market, sales for the past week being estimated at fully 1,500,000 pounds. Much sampling has been done, but prices are no higher nor is any immediate advance likely. Recent buying has been largely to cover actual needs, as members have been getting some business recently. Buying of the Montana clip is progressing slowly. Prices are practically unchanged. Marketing of the early-bought wools is proving to be more profitable than at one time seemed possible. Apparently this may be credited to the delay in the passage of the new tariff bill.

Receipts of wool in pounds for the week ended and including Wednesday were as follows:

	1913.	1912.
Domestic	7,497,879	15,511,874
Foreign	30,521	862,875

Total receipts of 7,528,409 pounds, compared with 10,146,968 the preceding week, of which 9,751,818 were domestic wools.

Receipts in pounds from and including January 1, 1913, as compared with the corresponding period in 1912, were as follows:

Life Costs More---AND LABOR MUST LIVE

Business Men Must Make Their Plans Based Upon Necessary, Inevitable, JUST and Steady Increase of Pay.

(Copyright, 1913.)

Following is an extract from a telegram sent from San Francisco by W. R. Hearst to the manager of his editorial department. The message is recommended to business men generally:

"I believe that the railroad men, and all laboring men, must positively get repeated increases in wages in order to enable them to maintain even their present standard of living, and that they should properly, in the development of our civilization, obtain an even higher standard of living. Business men must count upon increasing wages as one of the inevitable conditions of modern life, and must make their plans and form their enterprises accordingly.

"HEARST."

The opinion expressed in the above dispatch is that OF A MAN WHO PAYS OUT MILLIONS A YEAR IN WAGES, AND THE HIGHEST WAGES.

A man who pays millions annually in wages, and has constantly increased wages throughout his business career, has a right to be heard by employers as well as by workers.

In Congress, when Mr. Hearst appeared to argue in favor of the Eight-Hour law against manufacturers who opposed it, Mr. Hearst pointed out the fact that his opinion concerning the eight-hour day was not theory, but positive knowledge, inasmuch as he himself employed men on the eight-hour-day basis, had done so for years, intended to do so permanently, AND HAD MADE HIS BUSINESS PAY IN SPITE OF THAT HANDICAP, if it were a handicap.

Successful business men in the United States should give careful and open-minded attention to Mr. Hearst's telegram, which is a message from one business man to others, from one considerable employer of labor to other employers of labor.

It is not a hardship for the intelligent business man to pay good wages and work his men fair hours, IF OTHER BUSINESS MEN DO THE SAME.

The great thing is that business men shall have an understanding, that they shall realize that they and the workers are actually partners in national welfare, AND THAT THEY SHALL FIGHT AGAINST THE MEAN, NARROW AND HARMFUL MAN WHO REFUSES TO DO THE JUST AND HONORABLE THING.

If a thousand men employ a million workers in a certain line of effort, and if they all pay their men well and give them reasonable hours, THAT IS FAIR FOR EVERY EMPLOYER.

The trouble with our system is that the hard-hearted, narrow-minded, close-fisted man, who goes off by himself, shunning organization, refusing co-operation, and competing upon a basis of the lowest wages and the longest hours, has been allowed to enjoy his prosperity and his thrift through meanness without question.

Let the employers work on an even, just basis as to wages and hours, and then THE BEST MAN WILL WIN—the business man will win who has the best ideas, the highest intelligence and is able to render the greatest public service.

All that the good business man asks, all that the fair employer wants, is justice and the opportunity to compete for business success and prosperity on an even basis with other men of his own class.

The salvation and prosperity of this country, menaced now by half-baked ideas of half-baked Democrats at Washington, have been based very largely upon the fact that the United States through the tariff has been protected from the unfair competition of the unfair foreign employer and ill-treated foreign labor.

American business men, thanks to the tariff, have had to compete ONLY WITH AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN

The man who has made iron in this country, and who paid his puddlers as much as $8 a day and more, has not had to worry about the man in Belgium who was paying for the same labor less than one-quarter.

The man manufacturing goods in this country has manufactured in competition with AMERICAN employers, and need not keep his mind upon the problem of meeting the competition of some Chinese manufacturer able to get labor for five cents a day.

American industry has grown, American prosperity has grown, American wages have grown—AND THE COST OF LIVING, INCLUDING FARMERS' PROFITS, ALSO HAS GROWN, because over here we have kept our markets to ourselves, and competition has been among men living, working, manufacturing and competing on the same terms.

What will happen if Democrats who believe that they know all about business, manufactures and industry, BECAUSE THEY HAVE NEVER HAD ANYTHING TO DO WITH THOSE THINGS, are to have their way, if the tariff wall is to be torn down suddenly and the competition of the meanest foreign employers and the lowest paid foreign labor is to be met, is another story.

Fortunately, one election is followed by another election. It will not be difficult for workers and employers combined to have their way AT ANOTHER ELECTION and correct the threatening follies of this Administration.

The main thing is that those now working in this country, whether they work with their hands, as laborers and mechanics, or with their brains, as employers, should co-operate on a friendly basis, through the making of laws, for the establishment of minimum wage rates, especially as regards women, and in other sane, friendly and legal ways for the bettering of conditions.

It is time to get away from the days of strikes, of dynamite, of Homestead shootings by paid Pinkerton thugs, or Los Angeles explosions by degraded, depraved misrepresentatives of labor.

It is important that those who employ labor should recognize the truth of Mr. Hearst's statement in the above telegram, "that railroad men and all laboring men must positively get repeated increases in wages in order to enable them to maintain even their present standard of living, and that they should properly, in the development of our civilization, obtain an even higher standard of living."

The workingman to-day gets not twice, but three times, four times and five times what he got when this country was young.

McMaster, the historian, writes of a day when there was JUST ONE MECHANIC IN THE UNITED STATES ABLE TO MAKE A DOLLAR A DAY ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

One President of the United States, a well meaning man, was filled with gloom and thought the country was going to the dogs because when he spoke you could no longer hire a first-class man in this country for less than fifty cents a day.

If you had told an employer of those old days, even a George Washington, a Thomas Jefferson, or any other first-class old American, that one day in this country unskilled labor would demand and get two dollars a day and skilled mechanics three dollars, four dollars, five dollars a day and more, those old Americans would have said, "Well, the country must go to the dogs; the thing is impossible."

When you say to-day that wages, high as they seem to some, must be increased, and ought to be increased, the man of to-day, if he be shortsighted, will tell you that it is impossible, and that the country must go to the dogs.

BUT IT IS NOT IMPOSSIBLE, AND THE COUNTRY NEED NOT GO TO THE DOGS.

The American employer of to-day is better off, being richer, bigger in his enterprise, safer in his undertakings, than his predecessor who used to be able to hire a first-class man for fifty cents a day.

The men that own the street railways and pay $2.50 per day are better off than they were in the days when they got their labor for $1.00 or $1.10.

After all, what is the chief asset of the employer? Is it not the competent well-fed worker?

And far above the interest of the individual employer, what is the chief asset of the nation? Is it not a population of well-fed men, well paid, with time to rest, time for mental improvement, money enough to keep their children out of the mills and mines, and in school?

Not with hatred, bitterness and regret, but with pleasure as good citizens, the competent American business men, united, with laws to protect them, fighting the unfair competition of low wages and long hours, should gladly recognize that the purpose of a republic is not merely to make a few rich and protect them in their wealth, but to make the entire population happy, contented and prosperous.

Very gladly the employers of intelligence and power must, as Mr. Hearst says, "count upon increasing wages as one of the inevitable conditions of modern life, and make their plans and form their enterprises accordingly."

The employer should be reasonable and just.

And the workers should be reasonable, honest and fair.

We ought to be able to get away from an industrial system of fighting, hatred, battle and strikes.

The worker should be content to give a fair and full day's work for a fair day's wages and fair hours of work.

We should get away from these days when the employer does his best to get the most that he can out of the workman, and give him the least possible; and when the worker's thought and that of his leader is to get the most he can out of the employer and give the least possible.

Workers and employers should treat each other justly, combining as associates, friends and brothers, and GIVE TO THIS NATION AND TO THE FUTURE THE BEST POSSIBLE PRODUCT OF THEIR COMBINED BRAINS AND MUSCLE, ORGANIZED AND APPLIED IN SUCH A WAY AS NOT TO INTERFERE WITH THE HEALTH, THE HAPPINESS, THE MENTAL GROWTH OF THE PRESENT GENERATION, OR THE WELFARE OF THE GENERATIONS TO COME.

DR. PARKHURST

Writes on

Extravagance

It Is Both a Form of Lunacy and Immorality, He Declares.

Written For The Georgian

By the Rev. Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

THERE is such a thing as extravagance. The word stands for the wild use of money. It is barbarism expressing itself in the unreasoning scattering of dollars.

It is both a form of lunacy and a form of immorality—lunacy, because there is no sense in it; immorality, because it is a contemptuous waste of values.

Poor as Well as Rich.

No man has so much money as to warrant his expending it without a calculation of rational returns, returns accruing either to the enrichment of his own life or the life of someone else.

That is a principle which is being grossly disregarded, and the habits of people are tending more and more strongly in that direction.

This holds of the poor as well as of the rich, although in the case of the former it comes to less conspicuous expression and is therefore less thought of or commented upon.

The money that hundreds of thousands of poor people expend in whisky, beer and tobacco is both idiotic and wicked.

It is idiotic because it helps to keep them poor; it is wicked because it devotes to sheer animalism treasure that ought to go to higher ends, and which might be so utilized as to raise them to a higher level of human value.

"Stage of Vulgarity."

The poor man in Scripture who put his money where it would bring back to him no sensible return was cast into the outer darkness. That is the Bible's way of characterizing a senseless and vicious treatment of assets.

This silly extravagance of the poor is encouraged by the same habit practiced on a more stupendous scale by the rich.

The uncalculating and therefore iniquitous scattering of money by men with large fortunes is one of the features of the times.

As the late D. Willis James once remarked to me, "It has reached the stage of vulgarity."

Passion for luxury has been one of the causes assigned for the sinking of the Titanic; and now we have got the Imperator, and there are more coming.

A quarter of a century ago no one thought of a suite of rooms aboard ship costing above $500.

The figure has mounted now to $5,000. One can secure now, for $500, accommodations just as comfortable, just as well suited to personal and physical requirements, as were obtainable at that figure 25 years ago, and that would leave a margin of $4,500 expended without any rational or righteous return.

"Barbaric and Sinful."

Now, when we consider the wise and necessary uses to which money can be put, the beneficent institutions that need to be supported, the causes of every kind that languish for want of funds, the destitute women and children that go poorly clad and miserably fed and unfed, I say that, when such considerations are taken into account, for a man to lay out $5,000 or any considerable part of that for the sake of luxuries of six days' steamer travel is both barbaric and sinful.

And any man, no matter how much money he has, who has risen above the level of barbarism and sin ought to be ashamed to be publicly advertised as having sacrificed a sum so egregious on the altar of his own personal and animal comfort.

ATLANTA GIRL BADLY HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Girl Fatally Burned; Heroic Mother Injured

MAN KILLED GIRLS HURT IN CRASH

Miss Theo Prioleau Seriously Injured and Sister Bruised in Accident.

MONROE, LA., July 25.—Victor C. Smith is dead, Miss Theo Priolieu, of Atlanta, and R. L. Prophet, Jr., are seriously injured, and Miss Ruth Williams bruised as the result of an automobile accident on the Desiard road, two miles from Monroe, just before midnight.

Young Smith is the son of A. L. Smith, who, with his family, resides at Stearlington, fifteen miles from Monroe. Miss Theo Priolieu and her sister, Miss Dollie, of Atlanta, were visitors at the Smith home. Miss Williams lives in Monroe. H. P. Decker, of Newburg, N. G., and Miss Dollie Priolieu both escaped with a few slight bruises.

Said To Be Racing.

The Smith car was being driven by the man who was killed, and with Morgan George and a party of friends, was returned from Horseshoe Lake, a pleasure resort above Monroe.

George says the two cars were racing and were going at least 45 miles an hour. He said he was about half mile ahead of the Smith car and did not see the accident. From reliable reports, it is learned that when about two miles from town the Smith car, striking a sharp curve in the road, turned a double somersault, going over a ditch.

Victor Smith was crushed to death almost instantly. Miss Prioleau's right leg was broken in two places. Prophet, Jr., was injured in the back.

Autoists Find Victims.

The car was uninjured and was driven to Monroe this morning by autoists who found the dead and injured on the side of the road and rendered all the aid possible.

The George party reached town and after waiting some time for the Smith party decided to go back, they found them on the roadside. The Prioleau girls were taken to the residence of W. L. Smith, in Monroe, and Miss Williams was taken to the home of her grandfather. Prophet was taken to a sanitarium.

The Misses Prioleau have been honored at many special functions.

Cadet's Very Last Kiss Holds Up Big Liner 3 Minutes

NEW YORK, July 25.—"A last kiss, my darling!"

He got it

Miss Eva Mountrey, of Louisville, Ky., was sailing on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, and her fiance, Augustus Dillon, a West Point cadet, was bidding her good-bye.

"All visitors ashore!" shouted a petty officer near the sweethearts.

"A very last kiss, beloved!" exclaimed Dillon.

"All visitors ashore!" howled a chorus of petty officers and stewards.

"A very, very last kiss, mine own!" begged the cadet.

Chief Officer Moeller interrupted the clinging embrace.

"Young man," said Moeller, "you have held the ship three minutes. Go ashore!"

Grand Jury Head Shoots Three Men

AIKEN, S. C., July 25.—In the presence of nine negroes and three white men, on a public highway six miles from town, Jason Spires, foreman of the present Aiken County grand jury, shot two white men and an old negro to-day.

The men wounded are Moseley Randall, shot in right lung and upper part of right arm; Jenks Randall, shot in left groin, and John Lattimer, negro, flesh wound.

The Randall brothers, with another white man, were in charge of a gang of nine negroes working the Silver Bluff Road. When the gang reached Spire's place, it is said, he demanded that no work be done in front of his residence. The shooting resulted.

Dr. O'Kelley Choice For Head of Mercer

Macon, July 25.—Dr. T. W. O'Kelley, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Raleigh, N. C., likely will be the next president of Mercer University. He was selected by a special committee of the trustees from a list of sixteen, and the offer has been tendered him.

Dr. W. W. Landrum, of Louisville, formerly of Atlanta, is favored in the event Dr. O'Kelley declines. A definite answer from the latter is expected in a few days.

Must Raise Alimony Or Remain in Jail

MACON, July 25.—J. C. Brooks, a Central of Georgia Railroad conductor, has been sentenced by Judge Mathews to stay in jail until he can procure a bondsman whose bail will insure the payment of monthly alimony to his wife.

Brooks has already spent ten days in jail, owing to his failure to obtain bond. He and his mother swore in court that they could not get a bondsman.

NEW TAXES TO COVER OUTGO

Unless Senate Changes Appropriations Bill It Stands in No Danger of Veto.

If the general appropriations bill is permitted by the Senate to stand practically as it comes from the House of Representatives, it will go to the Governor with no threat of veto hanging over it, nor will it be the occasion in any degree of an extraordinary session of the Legislature.

The appropriations bill, within itself, will be satisfactory to the Executive, in that it will not carry more appropriations than can be met, if the general and special tax acts are made what they should be.

The fact that the House added $100,000 to the common school fund, thereby increasing the total appropriations some $50,000 over those of last year, is not necessarily alarming.

The tax of $5 on automobiles alone will more than make that up. It is proposed to tax all machines a flat $5 per annum hereafter.

Will Get Only a Receipt.

Heretofore automobiles have been taxed $2 merely, when registered. Once that was paid, no further charges were assessed against them. And the bulk of that $2 has gone to pay for the emblazoned number furnished the owner of the machine free of cost.

A flat tax of $5 per annum on all machines, however, with nothing to be furnished the owner of the car but a written receipt, will add over $100,000 to the State's income yearly, thus offsetting the Legislature's increase in the school fund.

As the legislative situation shapes up to-day, therefore, the appropriations bill will have plain and easy sailing and is sure to meet the Governor's approval, if not greatly increased in the Senate.

The two acts that can upset all the administration's plans now are the general tax and the tax equalization measures.

Teachers Still Unpaid.

There is a deficit in the State Treasury, and the school teachers still are unpaid.

The State institutions have been cut to the very marrow of their bones and can not get along with less money than the geenral appropriations bill carries.

The Governor and the chairman of the Appropriations Committee understand each other on that point.

What the Governor insists must be done is to find a way to wipe out the deficit and pay the teachers, and this way must be found through the tax acts.

Naturally, therefore, the one thing that is disturbing the Governor today is the prospective bitter wrangle in the House over the tax equalization.

If a tax equalization act is passed which makes no provision for a State board to equalize the counties, it, generally is agreed that it will be useless.

At the same time, it likely will be impossible to create a State board of far-reaching powers.

Tax Reform Problem Now.

The problem now is to get a compromise measure through that will start tax reform on the right road if it takes another and different Legislature to perfect the work.

The Governor is dead set against a bond issue to take up the deficit or to pay the teachers. He thinks it would be a dangerous precedent. He is advocating a constitutional increase in the tax rate, temporarily, as the shortest way out of the woods, even if it is not a plan he particularly relishes.

He argues that the State is up against a condition that it must get around, and that the State's debts must be paid, even if a distasteful thing has to be done in effecting their payment.

Mrs. Pankhurst Near Death From Hunger Strike; Under Knife

LONDON, July 25.—The condition of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who was released from Holloway jail yesterday, is reported to-day to be grave.

The "hunger strike" which she inaugurated when in jail has greatly undermined Mrs. Pankhurst's constitution. So weakened was her condition to-day that she was subjected to a transfusion of blood operation. The physicians decided that an operation was necessary in order to save the militant leader's life.

Declaring that they will serve their imprisonment rather than pay fines, Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, Lady Sybil Smith and Miss Evelyn Sharpe, who were arrested yesterday when they tried to hold a suffrage meeting at the entrance to the House of Commons, were taken to jail to-day. The women were fined $200 or the option of spending fourteen days in jail.

U. S. Net Star Loses In Play for Davis Cup

WIMBLEDON, ENGLAND, July 25. McLoughlin, the American tennis star, was defeated by Parke, of England, three sets in five, in the opening play for the Davis Cup to-day.

The American tennis team was the betting choice. All records for attendance were broken. The American colony to a man backed their countrymen.

The courts were in excellent condition.

The doubles will be played to-morrow and the other two singles Monday.

Suffragettes Rally To Ella Flagg Young

CHICAGO, July 25.—The governing bodies of the Illinois Equal Suffrage Association, Chicago Political Equality League and two men's parties of Cook County, met to-day in a determined campaign to prevent the retirement of Mrs. Ella Flagg Young as superintendent of Chicago public schools.

Mrs. Young, who has been in the schools of the city since 1868, said her resignation was presented because she was "tired of fighting." Mrs. Young is 68 years of age.

South Africa Faces Nation-Wide Strike

Special Cable to The Georgian.

JOHANNESBURG, July 25.—A general strike is threatened in South Africa. The populace to-day is anxiously awaiting the Government's reply to the demands of the railroad employees and miners. Unless the demands are met the men say they will walk out.

The strike would tie up all industry and work great hardship throughout the country.

Cause of Mulhall's Discharge Sought

WASHINGTON, JULY 25.—Why Colonel M. M. Mulhall was discharged by the National Association was inquired into today by the Overman lobby inquiry committee.

The subpoena for John Mitchell and other officials of the American Federation of Labor were returnable today but Chairman Overman did not wish to examine them until the remainder of the Mulhall letters had been read.

Aged Doctor Dies as He Asks for Blessing

DAWSON, July 25.—When Dr. W. C. Kendrick said "let's have the blessing now," as he sat down at the breakfast table this morning, his head fell back and he died immediately.

Dr. Kendrick was 83 years old. He retired from decila practice last week, after 58 years' service. He had held many positions of honor, having represented Webster and Terrell Counties in the Legislature.

GRATE FIRES DRESS; DIES OF HURTS

As a result of severe burns received when her skirts caught fire from a grate in which she was burning some trash at her home, No. 349 Capitol avenue, Miss Bessie Lyon, 19 years old, died Thursday night at the Georgian Hospital. She was the daughter of R. L. Lyon, superintendent of the Austell Building.

In the room next to the one in which the girl succumbed, her heroic mother Friday lay, suffering from serious burns received while trying to extinguish the flames which enveloped the daughter.

The accident occurred Wednesday afternoon. Miss Lyon had swept some light trash into the grate in the front room on the second floor, and, after applying a match to it, turned to leave. A tongue of flame leaped up to the hem of her skire as it swished over the fire, and immediately the filmy cloth blazed.

Girl Flees in Terror.

When the girl discovered her plight, all presence of mind left her. Screaming, she burst open the door and leaped down the stairway. Her body by this time was enveloped in flames.

Mrs. Lyon, emerging from a back room, saw her daughter as she bounded down the stairs. Grabbing a blanket, she ran after her, catching the terrified girl as she reached the first floor of the building, where Mr. and Mrs. B. Clein live.

A struggle between the two women ensued before the blanket was placed about the younger one. In her efforts to sav her daughter, Mrs. Lyon let the flames catch in the sleeves of her own dress, and for a time it looked as though both women would be burned to death.

Pedestrians from the street rushed in. Mrs. Clein had picked up a rug from the floor and was endeavoring to throw it over the mother and daughter.

Mrs. Lyon was separated from the burning girl and the flames in her dress quickly extinguished.

PRANK IN LODGE INITIATION IS FATAL TO 2

BIRMINGHAM, July 25.—In the presence of 125 members of the secret fraternal order of Moose, in Moose Hall last night, Donald A. Kenny, president of the local Chauffeurs' Union, and Christopher Gustin, an iron molder, met almost instantaneous death from an overshock of electricity received while being initiated into the organization.

Both were young and strong men. Other candidates going through the same initiation before them were not injured.

After Kenny was seen to be sinking and before John P. Abbott, presiding officer, could stop the proceedings, Gustin also had been fatally injured.

Dead in Five Minutes.

Both men died within five minutes, although the lodge physician, Dr. L. V. Neill, was present and lent immediate attention.

The ceremony that proved fatal is the branding one. The candidate stands upon a tilting board with his chest bared. A magneto is connected with his leg by a metal band and chain.

A horseshoe metal Moose emblem is heated red hot before his eyes and a man advances toward him holding the heated iron as if to brand him on the chest.

SEABOARD TRAIN WRECKED. ONE NEAR DEATH

Passenger train No. 17 on the Seaboard Air Line, due in Atlanta from Abbeville, S. C., at 8:40 a. m., was wrecked Friday morning when just abreast the National Furniture Company plant at 844 Marietta street, by plunging into an interlocking switch set against it.

The negro fireman, Albert Wallace, of No. 44 Rock street, Atlanta, was thrown across the tracks when the engine toppled, and was carried to Grady Hospital unconscious. He is not expected to live. Engineer C. A. Tennant, of Abbeville, S. C., was badly shaken up and bruised, but was not seriously injured.

The front trucks of the first coach, a combination passenger and baggage car, left the tracks, and the occupants, all negroes, were given a severe jolting. None of the other four cars was derailed.

Inquiry Begun by Road.

Officials of the Seaboard, in an effort to fix the responsibility for the wreck, are investigating the report that the signal board indicated "all clear" until the train was almost upon the switch and that at this instant the operator in the tower pulled the signal and derailed the train.

T. L. Brook, of No. 66 Currier street, long in the employ of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, is the towerman. He denied the signal had been set against the incoming train just as the interlocking switch was reached, resulting in the derailment.

STATE STILL PREPARES TO FIGHT DELAY

Despite Judge's Statement All Is in Readiness, Move for Postment Is Expected.

Despite the fact that Superior Judge L. S. Roan stated everything was in readiness for the trial of Leo M. Frank next Monday, that State's Attorney Hugh M. Dorsey has announced he will fight a delay, and that the defense actually commenced summoning witnesses, the impression still prevailed Friday that a motion for continuance would be made by the defense when the case is opened.

Attorneys Luther Rosser and Reuben R. Arnold declined flatly to say whether they would permit the trial to proceed without introducing some motion for a postponement, and the report was that witnesses had been summoned to be on the safe side in the event a request to put off the trial is refused.

The accused man was in the best of health and spirits, according to an announcement from the Tower Friday, and was anxious that the case go to trial. His illness would be the best ground upon which to secure a delay, but the inability of any one of the more material witnesses to come into court would more than likely be considered a sufficient legal reason.

Judge Roan considered it highly improbable that the case would be put off on account of his indisposition. He said that he was in the best of health, and that if any continuance were secured it would be at the request of the State's attorney or the counsel for the accused man.

"I had a slight attack of indigestion Wednesday night," he said, "but I was all right Thursday morning and opened court at Covington. I disposed of three murder trials before noon, and left for Atlanta at 12:30 in the afternoon.

Judge to Require Good Reason.

"To the best of my knowledge the trial of Leo M. Frank will begin next Monday. The only possibility of postponement would be some very good and sufficient legal reason for a continuance advanced by the State or the defense. During the eleven years I have been on the bench I have never postponed a trial on account of being ill, and I will not consider any personal inconvenience next Monday.

"The reason in not drawing the jury earlier was to guard against several of the veniremen leaving the city rather than to serve.

"The date set was in the nature of an agreement, and I would imagine both sides were ready and willing for the trial to go on."

Defense's Attitude a Puzzle.

Despite the assurance of Judge Roan that the case would go on and the announcement of the State's attorney, Hugh M. Dorsey, that all his witnesses had been summoned and he would insist on going to trial, the refusal of the attorneys for Frank to make any statement whatever and the report that no witnesses for the defense had been subpenaed indicated strongly that a postponement would be sought on some ground that the attorneys were confident would be sufficient.

The weather will not play any part in securing a postponement unless the mercury registers 99 degrees or higher. Judge Roan said that he laughingly remarked last Saturday that if the temperature was as high next Monday as it was then he would be glad to continue the case. He said that he had not considered such a proposition seriously, but if it got so hot as to be extremely uncomfortable, he might consider a postponement.

Special deputies were sworn in Friday morning to begin serving the 144

veniremen whose names were drawn Thursday afternoon by Judge John T. Pendleton. It will be late Saturday evening before the last man can be served, according to Deputy Sheriff Plennie Miner, who had charge of the extra men.

The fact that the jury actually was drawn and several had been served Friday morning and that the State's witnesses were already under subpena to be at the courtroom Monday morning was the strongest assurance that the trial would actually begin.

Judge Roan had been averse to putting the State to the expense of serving the jury until it was reasonably certain the trial would begin, and he will urge that both sides go to trial rather than inconvenience the jury and witnesses, many of whom will make arrangements to absent themselves from work to be at the courtroom Monday.

Jim Conley was questioned again late Thursday and was made to rehearse his movements on the day of the tragedy, being taken to the various places he asserted he visited the forenoon and afternoon of April 26.

Chief Beavers assumed charge of the negro, and was assisted by Detectives Starnes and Campbell, who had taken Conley to the Tower the day before without the Chief's permission.

Taken From Cell Secretly.

Conley was taken from the station secretly, and the four were in the Chief's automobile and out of sight before the officers' intentions were known. The negro was taken to Carter street and Electric avenue, the point where William H. Mincey swears he saw Conley the afternoon of April 26, and heard him boast of killing a girl.

That the detectives are bending every effort either to discredit or establish definitely the Mincey affidavit was made evident by the number of persons they interviewed, with the purpose of ascertaining if anyone had seen Conley at the place and at the time Mincey says he had his conversation with the negro.

Conley also was taken to the office of Solicitor Dorsey, where he was quizzed closely in regard to his reported remark when crowds began to gather near the factory that he "would give a million dollars if he were a white man." The remark was said to have been overheard by another negro, and this negro was in the Solicitor's office to confront Conley.

Chief Beavers would not divulge the results of the afternoon's work except to say that nothing had developed to change his theory of the crime.

POISE? SEE LIPSCOMB; HE NEVER IS RATTLED

FRANCIS ADGATE LIPSCOMB.

Doesn't Take Job Too Seriously, but His Tax Bill Has Everyone Thinking.

Representative Francis Adgate Lipscomb of Clarke, is poise personified. He never gets excited about anything, and he always affects the coolest-looking clothes he can find.

No matter how accommodating the weather man may be by way of supplying refreshing zephyrs and making unnecessary electric fans, Lipscomb comes forth from his lair daily arrayed in spotless white or cream of lilies.

Even when making a speech—which now and then the gentleman from Clarke does—he smiles continuously his most engaging smile, as if to say, "Don't be alarmed; I really hate to do this thing myself, and wouldn't if it were not more or less necessary in my business!"

Lipscomb, in other words, takes his legislative job seriously enough, but not too seriously.

Most of his colleagues see in that a commanding and winning virtue. They recognize Lipscomb as a member, earnest and purposeful enough, but willing to give and take—to compromise upon sensible grounds, when necessary, and to give the other fellow credit for honesty of opinion and the right to do his own thinking.

In Athens Mr. Lipscomb stands high in the business world. He has served a number of times in the City Council and gave a fine account of himself there. Generally, he is looked upon as safe and sane, and apt to get his bearings right enough on any question.

His proposed tax equalization measure is the most talked about bill now before the Legislature, and is, in many ways, the most important bill pending.

If it passes, and it is predicted that it will, Lipscomb's will be the well deserved glory.

Light Seismic Shocks Felt at Georgetown

WASHINGTON, July 25.—A moderate earthquake shock was recorded at Georgetown University to-day. The disturbance began at 7:44 o'clock and ended at 8:08 o'clock.

The shock was along the east and west lines and is estimated by Father Terndorff, in charge of the observatory, to have been about 3,000 miles from Washington.

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by Jacobs' Pharmacy under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

DRAW SPACE FOR ATLANTA EXHIBIT

Local Manufacturers To Be Allotted Booths at Permanent Display Friday.

Space in the permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods, which will be established in the new headquarters of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce building at Auburn avenue and Pryor street, will be allotted Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock. On account of the limited space at the disposal of the committee in charge of the allotment, it is expected that a number of local manufacturers will be present to arrange for their exhibit.

Virtually every manufacturer of importance in the city has consented to add an exhibit to the permanent display, and those who do not come in now are expected to join the movement later.

The decision to establish the exhibit in the Chamber of Commerce building was made Thursday afternoon by a special committee headed by Brooks Morgan, which has been considering various locations for several weeks.

The committee favored the establishment of the exhibit in the chamber's building from the beginning of the movement, inasmuch as the chamber is the sponsor of the movement, and several days ago the directors were asked to name a price for a lease on the upper floors of the building.

In addition to the exhibit of their goods, the building is being fitted up with other features that are expected to appeal to the manufacturers and merchants who will join in the display. A swimming pool, baths and a gymnasium will be provided for the manufacturers and members of the chamber.

Methodist Steward Meeting Announced

The Atlanta Methodist Stewards' Association will hold its quarterly meeting at Wesley Memorial Church Tuesday evening, July 29. Membership of the organization is made up of the official boards of the various Methodist churches of the city.

ATLANTA WOMAN TRIES 'CUBIST' SPELLING

New System Prepared by Mrs. Grace Keefer Founded on Lines and Angles.

A simplified spelling book which may revolutioinze the method of teaching the kids their A B C's in the grammar schools is being prepared for publication by an Atlanta woman, Mrs. Grace Keefer, of No. 80 East Fourteenth street.

"Sanders' Square Speller" is the title of the new book, which is a collaboration of some old ideas expressed more than a half century ago by Charles W. Sanders, author of the original Sanders speller series, and some new and strictly up-to-date ideas which Mrs. Keefer, granddaughter of the noted author, has been formulating for several years. The book will be published in New York under the copyright of Charles W. Sanders.

Founded on Mathematics.

The book, Mrs. Keefer explains, is just what its name implies—it is "square," or, in other words, it is founded on mathematical principles evolving from the first well-known step in geometry—the straight line connecting with another at right angles. This, Mrs. Keefer claims, is not only the foundation of her system of spelling, but the basic principle of life itself. "Take your two straight lines forming the right angle," she says, "and then add your signs and symbols, including the crooks and curves which characterize the more advanced stages of geometry, and you have the whole system of language, of geography, of history—even of life itself." In a nutshell the Sanders system of spelling is by signs and symbols—Mrs. Keefer calls it "Signology."

Meaning to Every Letter.

"Every little letter has a meaning all its own," was the characteristic way in which Mrs. Keefer summed up her unique system. "Take the letter A, for instance, it stands at the head always—it is "ahead," and the letter B, which I term aptly, I think, the combining force. From an artist's viewpoint, alone, the letter B exhibits this so-called "combining" and further, in many words, beginning with B, such as ball, we discover this idea of combination, compactness.

"And so on down the line—the letter C, carrying the symbolic idea of contraction; D, the downward force; E, the outward force, as indicated clearly by the construction of the letter; F, the potential force, as in 'face,' for example; G, the carrying force; H, uplift; I, the unit or basic principle—and L, the right-angled letter, or the letter of balance."

Lucid Scheme Employed.

To make the scheme as lucid as possible to teachers as well as youngsters, Mrs. Keefer has prepared a series of simple illustrations, involving her principles, to accompany each letter of the alphabet. A further feature of the unique system is the arrangement in squares of every word containing three letters.

Mrs. Keefer is a graduate of Vassar College, class of '90. Since leaving college, and even before she has made a close study of the original Hebrew, which, she says, is really the foundation of her system of spelling.

Bulgars Ask Aid in Keeping Out Turks

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

SOFIA, July 25.—Her warlike spirit curbed by the continued defeats inflicted on her army by the other Balkan States, Bulgaria to-day appealed to the powers to stop the invasion of her country by the Turks. The appeal is made in the interest of Christianity.

It is likely that restraining influence on Turkey will come from Russia, with the consent of the other powers.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 25.—Turkey continues her defiance of the powers. To-day the Porte delivered an ultimatum that if Russia continues her advances into Turkish territory grave complications will arise.

Washington's Lost Nose Is Restored

PITTSBURG, PA., July 25.—The statue of George Washington on the dome of the courthouse at Washington, Pa., recently found to be minus its nose, has been repaired. Recent storms are supposed to have been the disrespectful despoiler of George's face.

Clarence Seybold, a cement worker, ascended the 16-foot stone pile and administered the functions of a beauty doctor to General Washington. He affixed an olfactory organ as may suit all purposes until a sculptor can be summoned.

Works Sees Ruin in New Sugar Schedule

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Senator Works of California to-day assailed the sugar schedule in the Democratic tariff bill and insisted that it meant ruin for hundreds of sugar beet producers in California and other Western States.

He declared the President exceeded his constitutional authority by aiding in framing the tariff bill and used his power improperly to have the bill passed in the form he desired.

Poisoned Food Kills One; Eight Are Dying

ALAMO, TENN., July 25.—One member of a family of nine persons was dead to-day and the other eight were said to be dying at Gadsden, Tenn., near here.

Samples of the food the family had been eating during the last few days were sent to the health authorities here for analysis. It was believed there was poison in the flour.

SUMMER SCHOOL TO CLOSE.

ATHENS.—The summer school which has been in session since June 30 will close next Friday after possibly the best session in its history.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

The daily morning prayer of the blind Chaplain of the House of Representatives, the Rev. J. H. Ellis, is a thanksgiving always.

Rather than petitioning for more blessings and more abundant prosperity, the Chaplain devotes by far the greater portion of his supplication in the House to reminding the members of the countless blessings they now enjoy, and for which they should render ungrudgingly their thanks to the Most High.

Not since he began his term of service in the House has the blind Chaplain started a prayer with words other than these, "Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee!" and so on to the end of as simple and as sweet a prayer as ever was delivered anywhere.

The blind Chaplain of the House is a most interesting person. He always is at his post of duty, well in advance of the Speaker's rap for order, and he remains after the House gets down to work from 30 minutes to an hour or more every day.

Mr. Ellis is slight of build, but clear of voice. Few speakers on the floor fill the House so completely as he, and his prayers every morning are given close attention. He is completely blind and has to be led when walking. He is a very lovable man, and the Speaker hardly could have filled the Chaplain's place more acceptably or more sensibly.

The House meets every morning at 9 o'clock now, but there never is a quorum present at roll call.

Try as the House will, it hardly can get itself together before 10, somehow. Members either sleep late, are more or less indifferent to the first 30 minutes or so, or resent being called to work at 9. Whatever it is, the hour of 9 generally finds the House not more than half filled.

After the roll call is finished—unless it is dispensed with, which frequently it is—members drop in and ask that they be recorded as present.

This courtesy generally is accorded them without protest, and it gives the tardy ones considerable leeway in the matter of getting in late and still not having the record recite the circumstance.

Judge Robert Hodges, of Macon, is in Atlanta to-day and spent quite a time in the House and Senate, renewing old acquaintances and looking things over.

Mr. Hodges represented Bibb County in the House several times back yonder—well, not so many years ago after all—and was then one of the best liked and most influential members. He was in the House when his fellow-townsman, Augustus Octavius Bacon, was first named Senator, and took a great part in the work of conferring the honor upon him.

In those days the Legislature elected the Senators, without any sort of primary instructions, and Senator Bacon was named—he was re-elected to a fourth term unopposed a few days since—after a hard fight.

"Bob" Hodges, then serving his first term, was the man who carried the news from the Capitol to the Kimball House.

Judge Hodges has presided over the City Court of Macon for some twelve years, and is regularly renamed without opposition. Indeed, it is extremely doubtful whether Judge Hodges could be defeated for his present office, no matter who undertook the job.

Occasionally Speaker Burwell yanks the House back to business rather abruptly, when it gets negligent or lags in its work.

In passing local measures it is necessary to agree to the report of the committee before a bill may be passed, and this agreement is made upon a verbal division merely.

The other day the Speaker proposed the uninteresting status thus: "Those who favor agreeing to the report of the committee will say 'Aye.'" Nobody said anything.

Burwell whacked the much-abused block of wood in front of him for order, and yelled the status of the House again, and with decided emphasis, moreover.

This time the committee report was agreed to by a chorus of "ayes" that might have been heard to Whitehall street.

Then Burwell smiled, and the House laughed good-naturedly, and there was no more trouble that day.

The county of Barrow was given a temporary setback yesterday, when the Senate, by a margin of four votes, declined to ratify the action of the House committee, the House and the Senate committee in favoring it.

The advocates of Barrow still are very much in the ring, however. The bill will be reconsidered—it takes a majority only of the Senate to do this, and the Senate is for Barrow by a big majority—and then it will go over to the next session.

No more gallant fight ever has been made in the Legislature than the one put up for Barrow. This is the fourth time that plucky community has come to the Legislature, only to be knifed and bushwhacked to death in one chamber or the other. It will come again, however—and eventually Barrow County will be created.

It has the one thing behind it that so many new-county proposals lack—genuine and admitted merit.

Senator McNeil is an eloquent and forceful speaker. He has a sense of genuine humor, too, that often crops out in his speeches unconsciously, but most engagingly.

Speaking of the Legislature and the cost of it Thursday, Senator McNeil said: "Why, Senators, do you know it costs the State $1,500 per day to run this show?"

The Senate tittered, and one Senator stage-whispered, "You mean 'circus,' don't you, McNeil?" And McNeil smiled his acceptance of the amendment.

Risque French Songs Scandalize Belgians

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BRUSSELS, July 25.—Cardinal Mercier, head of the Catholic Church in Belgium, published a letter advising Catholic parents to keep their children away from certain parts of the Ghent International Exhibition, especially the sections devoted to paintings and sketches by French humorists and to Belgian decorative art in which nude figures are prominent.

Carton DeWiart, Minister of Justice, has given strict instructions to watch theatrical productions, cinematographs and smut songs imported from France.

Landowners Agree To Arbitrate Claims

MACON, July 25.—Practically the last obstacle in the way of the erection of the Union Passenger Station at Fifth and Cherry streets was removed to-day when all but one of the property owners in that vicinity agreed to arbitrate their claims for damages expected to accrue from the closing of Cherry street.

The Railroad Commission has stated that the damage claims must be settled before it will authorize the building of the depot.

Bichloride Victim Saved After 10 Days

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Physicians at the City Hospital to-day claimed the first victory over bichloride of mercury after it had gained considerable headway.

After ten days' treatment, they say Edward B. Fischer, victim of the poison, will recover.

2 Demolishers of Old Maine Injured

NEW YORK, July 25.—While melting metal from the old battleship Maine in a foundry, Alfred Benturini and Francis Vairi were seriously burned by an explosion of the molten mass.

GREENE COURT TO MEET.

GREENSBORO.—The July term of the Greene Superior Court will convene Monday, with Judge James B. Park presiding and Solicitor General Joseph E. Pottle in attendance.

TO OPEN CHAUTAUQUA.

DEMOREST.—The second session of the Demorest Chautauqua will open at the summer auditorium, with an address by Governor John M. Slaton on Sunday afternoon.

DOCTORS MEET IN ELBERTON.

ELBERTON.—Physicians of the Eighth District will meet in Elberton on August 20. Chairman W. J. Mathews, of the visiting committee, is preparing to entertain at least 200.

Saloonists Accused Of Selling Liquor

MACON, July 25.—If it is proven that four saloonmen, Ed Cassidy, Charles Bekakes, W. C. Byrd and George Harrington, have sold whisky since they were enjoined last week from handling spirituous liquors they will be put in jail by Judge Mathews for contempt of court.

On petitions brought by the Law Enforcement League, which charge that the saloonmen have sold whisky to agents of the league, or beer that contained more than 5 per cent alcohol, the four men have been ordered to show cause on July 31 why they should not be held in contempt.

BAPTISTS CLOSE MEETING.

GREENSBORO.—The general meeting of the Baptists of the Third District has adjourned to meet next at Crawfordville, when the Rev. L. E. Duttop, of Greensboro, and the Rev. C. S. Cox, of Sharon, will preach. The sermons here were delivered by the Rev. D. W. Key, of Monroe, and the Rev. G. S. Steed, of Crawfordville.

BOY ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.

DAHLONEGA.—Worley Ash, 14-year-old son of Professor W. L. Ash, of Dahlonega, was killed at the home of his uncle in Union County when a magazine rifle in the hands of his cousin, a young son of Ben Abercrombie, was accidentally discharged.

TO SPEAK FOR COLLEGE.

GREENSBORO.—In the interest of the Eighth District Agricultural and Mechanical College, Professor W. G. Acree, principal of the college, and C. G. Bradley, general secretary of the Morgan County Chamber of Commerce, will deliver several addresses in Greene County.

TO LOCATE DEPOT.

GREENSBORO.—The location of the Union Point depot will be decided in a few days by the Georgia Railroad Commission. Judge George Hillyer and J. A. Perry, members of the commission, have been in Union Point looking over the ground.

EDITORS SEE FITZGERALD.

FITZGERALD.—The Georgia Weekly Press Association, while en route from LaGrange to Brunswick, stopped here for about half an hour. This stop was arranged by Mayor A. B. Cook to give the editors a chance to see this city.

WARNS AGAINST EUROPE'S SEA MONOPOLY

Roger Sullivan Declares U. S. Must Awake to Its Opportunities When Canal Opens.

Special Cable to The Georgian.

PARIS, July 24.—"The United States is sleeping while Europe is snatching the opportunity under our noses," said Roger C. Sullivan, of Chicago, to-day. Accompanied by former Mayor John Hopkins, of Chicago, he had just arrived in Paris after a visit of two months to South America.

"The opening of the Panama Canal is sure greatly to increase the already vast commercial interests of South America," declared Mr. Sullivan, "and the leading nations of Europe, foreseeing this result, are busily engaged in building ships.

"Our Government should immediately take steps to subsidize the merchant marine, otherwise it may be too late. Private capital unaided by the Government can not hope to compete with the established merchant fleets of foreign countries. It is shameful that a citizen of the United States wishing to visit South America is obliged to travel in British owned ships.

"I want to say right now that there are some fine cities in South America. There are mighty few things in Chicago that Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Ayres lack. They have beautiful theaters and public buildings, broad boulevards and vigorous populations.

"Their ports, harbors and docks make Chicago look cheap. We do not pay enough attention to our waterways. What is needed now is a great harbor somewhere on the Gulf of Mexico, either at New Orleans or Mobile.

"Then if we subsidized the merchant marine our South American trade would soon swell to great proportions."

Bolt Kills Cow, Stuns Woman, Sours Milk

ROSSITER, PA., July 25.—As Mrs. Jasper Herndon was milking a cow here a bolt of lightning struck the barn, killed the cow, knocked Mrs. Herndon senseless and turned the bucket of milk into schmierkase.

Doubt Report That Dr. Jacobs Bought Burns' Manuscripts

Members of the family of Dr. Joseph Jacobs are not inclined to believe the report that he has purchased the famous Glenriddell manuscripts of Robert Burns for a sum exceeding $25,000 bid several years ago by J. Pierpont Morgan. The purchase of the manuscripts by the Atlantan is told of in London dispatches.

"I don't think there is any truth to the report," Dr. Sinclair Jacobs, son of Dr. Jacobs, said Friday morning. "If the manuscripts had been purchased we undoubtedly would have been notified, and we have heard nothing of it except what we have read in the papers. Dr. Jacobs, so far as I know, has not been near London on his present trip to Europe."

According to the London dispatches, Dr. Jacobs purchased the manuscripts from a dealer in London, who recently bought them from the Liverpool Athenaeum. It is said that the deal between Dr. Jacobs and the dealer was pending at the time of the first purchase of the manuscripts, and that the London dealer was merely Dr. Jacobs' agent in the transaction.

Headache Is A Symptom

Headache serves as a warning of disease. Its worst forms denote indigestion or stomach trouble. Cure the indigestion with a scientific remedy and the headache will disappear.

TAKE NUXCARA 3 Times a Day

One-half hour before each meal.

Here is what Colonel A. M. Brand says:

Dr. R. B. Kelley:

Dear Sir—I wish to congratulate you upon your success with Nuxcara as a certain and permanent cure for indigestion and dyspepsia. I have a personal knowledge where it has made a number of permanent cures, where all other treatments and remedies failed, and I wish to commend your treatise on the forces of the body being derived from external sources and must be assimilated through the digestive system as established by scientific research. May the fame of this wonderful scientific combination of drugs reach every part of the earth where people suffer with this blighting disease, dyspepsia. Wishing you all the success possible, I am,

Your friend,

TROOPS AROUSE STRIKERS; MINE WAR FEARED

Michigan Militia Rushed to Calumet—Copper Workers Go Armed Despite Leaders' Pleas.

CALUMET, MICH., July 25.—Authorities here to-day completed preparations for the reception of the Michigan guardsmen called to the Calumet mining region to quell rioting among the copper mine strikers.

The Houghton militia company arrived late last night and pitched their tents on the edge of Calumet, a few hundred yards from the trouble zone. By to-night there will be 2,400 State troops in the upper peninsula about the mining section, where they could quell any trouble that may arise between the miners and the deputies guarding the mine properties.

The striking miners were not pleased with being watched by State troops, and it was feared that when the soldiers begin patrolling the district fresh rioting will result. The strikers, with few exceptions, are aliens. Only a small part of them speak English.

It was known to-day that strikers were going about armed, and the authorities feared bloodshed was certain if any of the strikers and soldiers clashed. The officials of the Miners' Union were urging the men to avoid trouble.

Jury Probing Strike Battle That Cost 4 Lives.

CHARLESTON, W. VA., July 25.—The special Grand Jury called to investigate crime in the zone of the striking coal miners reconvened to-day and began at once to probe the shooting at Ohley yesterday when four men were killed in a battle at Wakeforest on Cabin Creek.

Two of the dead men are Frank Ginn and Don Slater, guards, another is Cleve Woodrum, a striker, and one is unidentified. The battle took place when strikers opened fire on a party of guards scouting the hillsides to see if the coast was clear so strike-breakers could enter the mines.

Latest Counterfeit $5 a Poor Specimen

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The discovery of a new counterfeit five-dollar "Indian head" silver certificate is announced by Chief W. J. Flynn of the Secret Service. The spurious note apparently is printed from crudely etched plates on fair quality bond paper, with ink lines to imitate the silk fabric of the genuine. The Indian portrait is poor, and on the back of the note, grass green in color, little attempt has been made to imitate the lathe work.

Chief Flynn said the counterfeit should not deceive the ordinarily careful handler of money.

Uncle Sam Tries to Get Turkey's Goat

WASHINGTON, July 25.—A plea to the Government of Turkey and South Africa to allow male angora goats to be exported to the United States is contained in a bill offered by Senator Sheppard of Texas.

This goat getting proposition takes the diplomatic form of authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to enter into negotiations with the two Governments to seek more favorable conditions in their live stock exportation laws.

Southern Rebels Are Repulsed With Heavy Loss in Attack on Shanghai Arsenal.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

SHANGHAI, July 25.—In one of the fiercest battles of the present revolutionary movement the Southern rebels were driven back, after making repeated assaults on the Shanghai arsenal.

The rebels began their attack at daybreak, and, although driven back time and again, came back with renewed vigor. They fought like savages. Their ranks were greatly thinned by the shells of the loyal troops, and scores of lead and wounded were left on the battlefield.

After they were driven back, the rebels massed out of range of the Government shells, ande are strengthening their forces for another attack.

Seven more of the Southern provinces joined the movement against the Government to-day.

Ten thousand troops left Canton to-day to fight the Northern army. Other armies are being organized among peasants and hillmen.

Americans to Study At Krupp Gun Works

PITTSBURG, PA., July 25.—Trained steel men in the employ of the United States will be sent into the Rhine Valley of Germany, the home of the great Krupp works, to study German methods, if Pittsburg steel manufacturers say the word.

This assurance was given manufacturers last night by Secretary of Commerce W. C. Redfield.

Deserting Husbands Refused Citizenship

CHICAGO, July 25.—"Men who desert their wives and refuse to support their families are not entitled to become naturalized citizens," said Judge Petit here when he refused the applications of two men who admitted having left their wives.

FIREMAN HURT IN WRECK.

Booster Club Probably Will Send Pictures of Ten Leaders in Beauty Contest.

A reader suggests that the pictures of the ten leading beauties in the booster button contest be included in he Georgia exhibit at the Panama Exposition in San Francisco.

It is not unlikely this suggestion will be carried out by the Booster Club.

When the prettiest girl finally is selected for the "500,000 Club" booster button her face will become the emblem of that organization, but her name will not be on the buttons. The only words under the pretty face will be the slogan: 'Watch Atlanta—She'll Get You Yet."

Miss George Green, of No. 223 North Jackson street, is one of the entrants to-day. She is another brunette and makes the number of brunettes equal to the blondes in the contest. At first it seemed that the blondes would predominate.

Nominations still are invited. Girls nominated now will have practically as good an opportunity from the standpoint of time as those suggested at the first. It is with The Georgian readers who is to be selected, the nomination and voting coupons being published each day.

MOUNTAIN FOLK MENACE AUTO TOURISTS

Forsyth and Dawson Men Resent Presence of Negro Chauffeur in Their Section.

DAHLONEGA, July 25.—Because he had a negro chauffeur driving his auto, threatening demonstrations were made at every settlement through which he passed in Forsyth and Dawson Counties as E. C. Gurley, cashier of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Marietta, with members of his family, was en route from Marietta to Dahlonega to visit his father, H. D. Gurley, president of the Bank of Dahlonega, and attend a reunion of the Gurley family. The fact that there were women in the car, Gurley believes, was the only thing that saved him and the chauffeur from serious trouble.

All negroes were run out of Forsyth and Dawson Counties last fall and winter because of attacks on white women near Cumming last September, resulting in a lynching and a double hanging.

As soon as the Gurley auto entered Forsyth County, it was stopped by almost every man encountered in the road, and Gurley was warned not to take the negro through the county. As a country store, where four men were assembled, was approached, Gurley ordered the chauffeur to put on high speed and not stop for any signals. As the machine sped by and a signal to stop was unheeded, one of the men mounted a mule and started in pursuit.

Hoping to elude his pursuer and avoid telephone warnings ahead, Gurley left the main road, lost his way, and found himself in Dawson County, where he encountered more threatening demonstrations. He finally reached Dahlonega, but with the determination to return to Marietta by a longer route that will carry him clear of both Dawson and Forsyth Counties.

'Ragtime Tunes Are The Boils of Music'

NEW YORK, July 25.—"Ragtime tunes are like boils," said Frank Damrosch, as he was sailing on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. "Like boils they come and go, and like boils they represent impurities in the musical system. But there has been a great advance in music in this country during the last two or thre decades, and now I think we compare favorably with Europe."

Fluid Acts Like X-Ray On Body After Death

PHILADELPHIA, July 25.—Physicians of the Hahnemann Hospital and Medical College are perfecting a process based on discoveries of a fluid by a German scientist which will make the human body transparent after death.

Students can study the veins, muscles and bones far more easily by the new method, it is said. The fluid can not be used before death.

OBITUARY.

Funeral services for Mrs. Pauline Isaacs will be conducted from the chapel of Greenberg & Bond at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, Dr. David Marx officiating. Interment will be in Oakland.

The body of Mrs. L. C. House, who died at a private sanitarium Thursday night, is at Poole's funeral home, pending funeral arrangements which will be announced later. Mrs. House was twenty-nine years old, and formerly lived at No. 123 Meldon street. She is survived by her husband and four sisters, Misses Clara, Hattie Lee and Mary Lou, and Mrs. Maggie Bubb.

Mrs. Sallie J. Crawford, thirty-six years old, died at her late residence, No. 510 Lawton street, Thursday night. Surviving her are her husband, E. C. Crawford, one small daughter, one sister, Mrs. A. D. Tull, and her mother, Mrs. Sally Tharr. Funeral announcement will be made later.

Priest, Forced to Take Holy Orders, Released by Pope

ROME, July 25.—The Congregation of the Sacraments has rendered a decision in a case which has lasted for four years, and which has been much discussed in ecclesiastical circles. Twelve years ago a priest named Arena asked to be allowed to give up the priesthood. He pleaded that twelve years ago he had been compelled by his parents to take Holy Orders. He alleged that he obeyed his parents against his will. This was confirmed by several witnesses.

The Congregation of the Sacraments, which was presided over by Cardinal Farrata, decided to cancel the priest's orders. It held that they had been conferred against his will, and were therefore invalid. It recommended that Arena be released from his vows.

The Pope approved the verdict.

DYNAMITE PLOT IS DISCOVERED AT SING SING

Convicts' Conspiracy to Aid Fire With Explosives Bared—Leaders Taken to Auburn.

Cursing and shouting, the closely locked men made hideous of the speeding of the departing trouble-makers, who marched a quarter of a mile under the muzzles of guns that meant death in the event of disorder. From the start the prisoners rebelled at being shackled, and in many instances the guards were compelled to use force to get the shackles on. Ninety armed guards marched along with the men.

Warden Clancey is ready for any emergency. Outside the prison the local company of the naval militia is ready to come to the warden's aid, while companies of the National Guard at White Plains, Yonkers and Mount Vernon have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness for a riot call.

Later to-day 160 more of the desperate horde will be sent to Auburn and additional precautionary measures will be taken to prevent further outbreaks.

HELD IN SHOOTING CASE.

COLUMBUS.—D. D. Bloom, a well-known young business man of Columbus, was bound over to the Superior Court on charges of shooting at another and having a pistol without license, the bond in each case being fixed at $100 by the Recorder.

It takes a baby a year or more to get six teeth.

In a year or less six of your teeth may be seriously damaged by lack of proper care. Proper care does not mean that you have to spend an hour a day scrubbing your teeth. Just two or three minutes in the morning and two or three at night.

And the care that you give your teeth is an investment that comes back a hundred fold in better health, and a better chance to make your mark in the world.

A few cents invested in a delicious dentifrice that gets you into the regular habit of teeth care, is common sense invested for your entire future life,

You too should use COLGATE'S RIBBON DENTAL CREAM

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX.

He and Manette See the Suffragette Again, but Neither of Them Notices Her.

JULY 3.—It occurred to me, when Manette and I were tramping home that evening, after the militant suffragette had tried to hold me up, that there was a warning in the incident. I look like a tramp, as she said, and Manette, in spite of her clothes, looks like a princess.

What it is I can not define, but one of her sex can never disguise the fact that she was born to purple and fine linen. She may outlive every natural grace and may be reduced to rags, but there is always an indefinable something that tells of better things in the past. I looked at Manette critically as she trudged ahead of me in the footpath, and this is what I saw: A little bare head with a shock of curls just reaching to her shoulder, for we had had her hair cut short before we left town, and the growth was all new and untamed.

She wore a blue gingham with half the buttons off the back. There were rents in it, and through one rent I caught a glimpse of an exquisitely trimmed petticoat, for Richards had refused to let her darling wear the coarse muslin garments that were best fitted for the occasion. She wore half hose, with tan shoes from which her toes protruded, and her little fat legs were scratched by briars and brambles.

But one could tell by a glimpse that she was not an ordinary child, and I wondered if it was because of the proud little way in which she carried her head, or because of her total unconsciousness of self. "A born aristocrat," I murmured.

Her Beauty.

She looked up at me in laughter at some prank of the pup, and I was struck more forcibly than ever with her most unusual beauty. It wasn't altogether her hair and her eyes, her perfect features and her exquisite coloring; there was a look of her soul shining through, and that is as near as I can express it. If you could see her, Diary, you would understand why I never look at the child without some apprehension. With her beauty and her money, sometimes I wonder if there are enough guardian angels in heaven to keep all the evil-hearted away.

The children that die young belong to us always. Nothing, and no one, may ever estrange them from us. They are ours forever, and that, alas, is something no one can say of the child that lives to grow up.

There is comfort in the thought, and it is not the only comfort, for we learn as we grow older that the child that is gone is spared much, and is SAFE. I know life would be dreary and almost impossible without Manette, but every day I grow more reconciled to the loss of Elizabeth. She was happy all her life. The little girl trudging along in the path ahead of me is happy now, but I will not always be with her.

I suppose it was this constant apprehension that led me to call Mrs. Allen to the porch after supper and tell her that I am not the poor clerk she imagines, resting from overwork, but one of the detested millionaire class, resting from excessive luxury.

I told her my name and she laughed. She said she had guessed it the second day. No one, she said, could look at Manette and think for a moment that she had been brought up in denial. She could not explain it, except that the child was always so unconscious of her clothes.

"She rises above them," she said, and it made me very proud.

I have always had the theory—I wonder how it will evolve—that if Manette is accustomed to the best as a child, she will never strut like a peacock when she is grown. She will always be unconscious of her price marks.

To the Manner Born.

She will never build conversation on the price of her gown, nor attempt to erect pride and station on the cost of a hat. She will never, and of that I am sure, remember that her clothes cost more than the clothes of her associates and show it in her manner. I said something to this effect to Mrs. Allen, and her reply gave me a new viewpoint.

"She won't remember what things cost," she said, somewhat dryly, "because she has never had to earn the price. The girl who stints herself in necessities for a month that she may afford a $20 gown will never forget to the day of her death what the gown cost. Unconsciousness of clothes is a good trait, but Manette's unconsciousness will be largely due to ignorance. When one pays the price, one remembers."

I did not seem to make her quite understand what I meant, and neither did I understand her. I wanted, I explained, for the child to grow up with a soul above ribbons.

"And yet," she replied, "whoever has charge of her wardrobe takes care that she has more ribbons than any child her age should have."

I agreed to that with a sigh. When a little girl is transformed by her years into a peacock, instead of a thinking, helpful woman, it is her mother who is to blame, never her father. Manette has no mother, but her nurse and her Aunt Sallie make her attire the joy of their existence.

I, who take the place of a father to her, would prefer that she never hear the subject of her dress, but those who take the place of her mother make her attire the first consideration. That, Diary, is a fond weakness of all mothers.

I gave Mrs. Allen Mrs. Spencer's address and also that of Richards. "It has occurred to me," I said, "that if anything happened to me, either address will be useful to you."

She found considerable amusement in the thought of what an exodus to the woods there would be of young women if it were known that such a wealthy unattached bachelor were spending his summer there. "They would chase you harder," she said, "than the pup chases the rabbits."

She Sympathizes.

She laughed so heartily I asked if she would enjoy the sight, and she replied that she wouldn't.

"I feel sorry for any unmarried man these days," with some spirit. "Either the women are the mercenary kind, hunting him down for his money, or they are the suffrage kind, hunting him down like a policeman hunts criminals. I often tell my husband it is good he got me thirty years ago, for there isn't much choice of women these days."

From one of their own sex! Had I said it I would be mobbed.

July 6—I have not heard the last of that woman who thought I was a kidnaper of children. She came riding to our picnic spot again to-day, and this time she rode alone.

Manette and I were sitting on a log fishing. At least I was fishing. She had her shoes and stockings off, her little skirts tucked up, and was paddling around at the water's edge, digging up soft black mud, which she carried to the shore and made into mud pies, a big log serving her as kneading board, or mixing board. I don't really know if pies are mixed or kneaded.

The suffragette tied her horse to a sapling and came to where we were thus occupied. I did not turn my head, and Manette, obeying whispered instructions from me, went on with her culinary work without heeding her.

KEEP your hair youthful looking. Don't let it grow old before you years. Faded or gray hair makes woman look from 10 to 20 years old[er] than if the hair were beautiful and lustrous.

Robinnaire Hair Dy[e]

Is a wonderful scientific formula. [It] is a color restorer. Not a dangerous dye to bleach or change the original color of the hair, but a restorer which brings back to the hair its original color and beautiful sheen and softness. For a quarter of a century it has been used by women and men practically all over the world, and we have hundreds of unsolicited letters proving its merit. It does not stain the scalp nor make the hair sticky, and its use can not be detected.

Meg (five years old, was overjoyed over the recent addition to the family and rushed out of the house to tell the news to a passing neighbor.

"Oh, you don't know what we've got in our house to-day?"

"What is it?"

"It's a new baby brother!"

"You don't say so. Is he going to stay?"

"I think so"—very thoughtfully. "He's got his things on."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"What's that?" he muttered, in an undertone. "There it is again."

He blew out the lantern and stepped to the entrance of the corridor that led to the armory.

"Sh—h—! Listen! There's a light, Rusty. It's coming this way! It's coming, Rusty! Remember the high sign—and don't sneeze!"

He sprang back into the hall and concealed himself in the angle by the picture of the old Don. Presently the faint swinging beams of a lantern were thrown down the corridor and there was the sound of soft footsteps and low voices. Jarvis raised his cocked pistol and covered the doorway as the shadows told him the invaders were about to appear in view. Three figures appeared in the doorway and a girl's voice, familiar to his ears, said:

"There is no one here, either, Your Highness."

The Princess and Dolores, with Maximo as their guide and light-bearer, came down the broad stairs into the hall.

"We must go on, Dolores!" exclaimed the Princess in a strained voice. "We must find him before it's too late! Oh, I will never forgive myself for sending him to this dreadful place!"

"But there's a fire!" cried the veteran. "They've been in this room!"

"Perhaps"—the Princess shuddered—"they have already been killed."

Her Brother Safe.

Jarvis, ashamed for having listened too long and his heart beating with what he had heard, stepped forward into the light of the lantern.

"Your Highness!" he exclaimed. The girl made a sound that was half a cry of alarm and half a prayer of thanksgiving, and held out both hands to him.

"Mr. Warren! Mr. Warren! Thank God, you are still alive!"

"Your Highness," he protested, still holding her hands. "It's madness for you to come to this place! How did you get here?"

"Heaven only knows!" She shivered as if with the memory of her experiences. "We have been wandering through this dreadful place for hours—calling to you—trying to find you before it was too late."

"Too late! What do you mean?"

"My brother is safe—thank God!"

"Where is he?" demanded Warren, quickly.

"On his way to get help from the King."

"Where has he been?"

"Right here in this castle, a prisoner—since the day he entered."

"A prisoner?"

"Yes. He succeeded in making his escape to-night and has gone straight to the King for help?"

"But how did you learn all this?" he inquired, bewildered.

"From Robledo, senor," answered Dolores, as the Princess did not reply at once. The girl's voice was low and trembled slightly. "Your bullet went straight, senor. He is dying. He has confessed to the Holy Father. I promised to be with him at the end."

She turned her face away and Jarvis saw that she was weeping.

"The end?" he echoed vaguely—and then he understood. He walked over to her, stood beside her awkwardly, trying to think of something to say. He found it difficult to apologize to a girl for killing her lover, especially when the lover happened to need killing a lot.

"Then—you—" he stammered. "I—I—didn't know—I might have—I'm sorry."

Better So.

The girl raised her tear-stained face and met his gaze bravely.

"It is better so, senor," she said.

"Oh, Dolores—my poor child!"

The Princess put her arms around the girl and she sobbed on her lady's shoulder. "Maximo, take her back to the inn as quietly as possible."

When they were gone the Princess urged Jarvis to follow.

"Oh, Mr. Warren, let us leave this dreadful place!"

"Not, me, Your Highness," was the grim and inelegant reply. "You go with them and wait for me at the inn."

The Princess shook her head determinedly, though her face was pale and there were lines to tell of the long strain.

"You can not persuade me again, Mr. Warren. I will remain."

"Please!" he begged, getting possession of her hands once more, and without a struggle.

"Return with us then."

"Your Highness," he said gravely, "I promised to solve the mystery of this castle and to find the treasure. My task is an easy one now."

"Then," she rejoined quickly, "I will share it with you."

He laughed silently at the neat manner of the trap in which he was caught, but he looked down at her with something more than amazement in his eyes.

"And you groped your way through this old castle to find me?" he said softly. "You are game!"

The Princess raised her eyes to his. "You faced death perhaps, for me."

"You're trembling!" he cried with sudden concern. "You're frightened—you're cold—your hands are cold!—Come over here." He drew her toward the dying blaze of the fire. "You must have been scared to death crawling through the blackness."

She closed her eyes and shivered and he pressed the hands a little tighter than was necessary, if the object was merely to aid circulation.

The Sneeze.

"Every nerve in my body is on edge with the happenings of this dreadful place," she confessed brokenly and tried in vain to keep back the tears.

"Oh, don't cry," he pleaded in alarm, and then suddenly changed his tone to one at once light and tender: "Go on then—cry! Cry some more. Just forget that you are a princess and cry. That's it—that's fine! I'll round up this spook to-night for good—and then the vassal's task is done. His fate is in your hands, Highness." She ceased crying suddenly to look up into his face. "Don't send me away," he begged. "I've loved you from the first and always shall love you. I'm no Prince or Duke," he added with whimsical pathos, "I'm just a plain man—and all the man in me cries out, 'I love you'—Don't send me away!"

He felt her trembling and for an instant she seemed to lean against him. But she shook her head.

"You must go."

"You're going to send me away!"

"Yes. You must leave Spain. Your life would not be safe here."

He drew a breath of relief that was like the wind in the forest. At the same moment there was another sound that was somewhat like a far-off tree falling in the wind.

"What was that?" exclaimed the girl with a start.

"Oh, that! That was Rusty," he smiled.

"That would frighten any one."

"I figured that I might need a ghost," he explained, pointing to the armored servitor, "but Rusty disobeyed orders. Rusty, I told you not to sneeze!"

"Dat was somebody else, Massa Warren," was the solemn and unexpected protest. "I swears to goodness I didn't sneeze."

Warren's revolver was in his hand and a wild light of triumph in his eyes.

"Mr. Warren!"

"Don't move! Your Highness," he cried, raising the weapon and leveling it at the old grandee, "I've got your ghost at last!" He raised his voice. "There is some one behind that picture! Come out!—or I'll shoot you full of holes!"

Caught!

For a moment there was intense silence. Then:

"Don't shoot!"

The voice, a familiar one, came from the wall—the picture swung out in its frame and his Exalted Highness, the Duke of Alva, stepped down on to the floor.

The Princess smothered a cry of amazement and Jarvis smiled grimly.

"Your Excellency, you are a long way from Madrid."

The Duke eyed him with contempt.

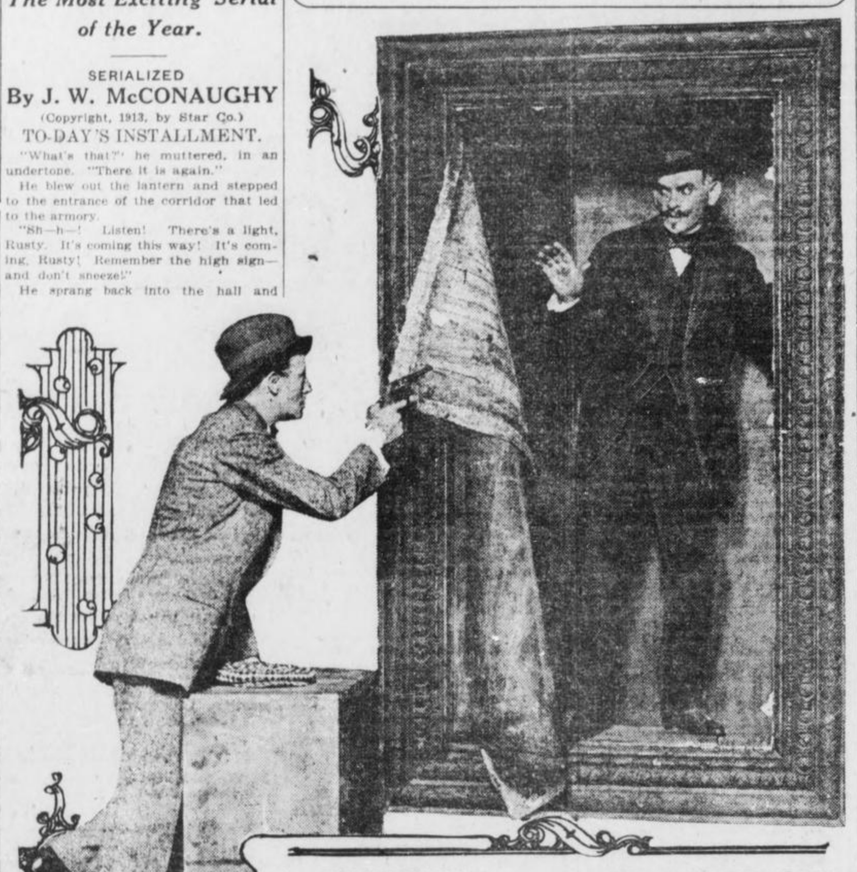
"Madrid! You fool, you have fallen right into my trap!" He turned to the Princess with all the assurance of a protecting friend.

"What I have done has been for your sake, Maria. I purposely deceived him so that I might get here ahead of him and watch. See," he pointed to the mantel, "there are his tools and you yourself interrupted him at his work."

The consummate insolence and assurance of his enemy almost daunted the young man. And in the next breath he half lost the battle by permitting himself to argue.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

CAUGHT AT LAST



"MR. WARREN!" "DON'T MOVE! YOUR HIGHNESS," HE CRIED, RAISING THE WEAPON AND LEVELING IT AT THE OLD GRANDEE, "I'VE GOT YOUR GHOST AT LAST!" HE RAISED HIS VOICE. "THERE IS SOMEONE BEHIND THAT PICTURE! COME OUT!—OR I'LL SHOOT YOU FULL OF HOLES!"

FOR A MOMENT THERE WAS INTENSE SILENCE. THEN: "DON'T SHOOT!" THE VOICE, A FAMILIAR ONE CAME FROM THE WALL—THE PICTURE SWUNG OUT IN ITS FRAME AND HIS EXALTED HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF ALVA STEPPED DOWN ON TO THE FLOOR.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

THEY ALWAYS TELL.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Some time ago I was introduced to a young man whom I rather like. I have gone out to different places of amusement with him.

Now, he has often wanted to kiss me, but I wouldn't allow him to. He is going out of town for some time and says he wants to kiss me before going. Shall I allow him to? L. M.

No man should kiss and tell, but so many do that one little farewell kiss, given in the name of friendship, is sure to be misunderstood and told of. Do you not know, my dear, that the kiss that is refused is always the sweetest? Refuse him and he will always want that kiss, and seek to win your love that he may have it.

DON'T TRY.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young girl of 19 and have a brother who takes me to dances and the theater. I have no chance to find a lover, because the men all think my brother is my sweetheart. What would you advise me to do to make them understand? L. M.

My dear, if these men were attracted by you, the sight of a man as your escort would not keep them away. On the contrary, it would serve as an incentive to them to make your acquaintance.

Instead of regarding your brother as an obstacle, be glad that you have a brother as devoted and kind. And don't worry about that belated lover, for I am sure he is on his way.

WAIT A FEW YEARS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 27 and am in love with a young lady of 17, but she does not seem to care for me. What can I do to gain her love? P. B.

She is too young to be troubled by love. Prove your love is unselfish, and for her best good, by keeping it a secret to yourself until she has grown up.

Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THERE was no one whose faith in the printed word was greater than Daysey Mayme Appleton's.

If, when sitting on the cool porch at twilight, she caught a glimpse of a heading, "How to Keep Cool," in the newspaper, she invariably went into the warm house, lighted the lamp and sat under its hot rays while she read it.

Her father gave her a weekly allowance, and with it she bought at least one, and sometimes two, books on How a Girl May Save Money. She didn't save as much as the girls who hadn't such faith in the printed word, but she didn't [k]now why.

When her mother left her in charge of the kitchen for two weeks, she spent the first week's allowance on books telling How to Feed Four on Six Dollars a Week, and had to ask her father for more money the third day. And he was so unappreciative he grumbled about it!

But all this faith is now a thing of the dead, dead past. Daysey Mayme won't believe anything she sees in print these days, if it is nothing more than "Heat Before Serving" on a can of baked beans.

The lost this beautiful faith through following the advice of the New York clergymen who have decided to demand health certificates as a prerequisite to marriage. It would be humiliating, she thought, to march up the church aisle in white silk and orange blossoms, and have the preacher refuse to perform the ceremony because a grandmother on the bridegroom's side once had a conniption fit. She would protect herself from this mortification by getting a clean bill of health before the altar was reached. She would make all necessary inquiries during the courtship; that her best beloved could prove he was in perfect health she had no doubts.

She had memorized forty-seven adjectives expressive of admiration, and when her lover presented her with a box of candy she used forty-three on the first gumdrop. Such appreciation delighted him, and he asked her to marry him. Surely a girl who could so highly appreciate a gumdrop would never underestimate the value of a man!

Daysey Mayme's first impulse was to grab him; then she remembered the printed word.

"Was there ever one in your family who suffered from neurasthenia?" she asked. "Any dandruff, Bright's disease, rheumatism, ricketts, glanders, autoxenia, bunions or corns? Have you or your ancestors ever had anything cut out, and how much? Of what did your great-grandfather on your mother's side die, and did——"

But the young man heard no more. He gave one wild whoop and fled.

"I'd have married him if he had the whole doctor's book ailing him," sobbed Daysey Mayme, "and now the other girls will never believe I had the chance."

If you can not get it at your store send 25c to the main office, No 7 Hill street, Atlanta, Ga. It will be forwarded to you promptly. Manufactured and guaranteed by G. G. Crouch.

Send this ad with a part of carton from a bottle of Ea-Tone, and a 18-k. gold ring will be sent you absolutely free. State size wanted.

"Another Line;
That's How I've Stopped the Leak"

I'VE come to believe that you can't expect people to buy if they can't get you by a mighty comfortable route. When they call and find your telephone "busy" they'll naturally go somewhere else.

Is YOUR telephone door sufficiently wide?

An Auxiliary line will allow you to send or receive messages when your present line is in use, and will prevent that "busy" report which so nettles the trade and causes the loss of many a business opportunity. The additional cost is trifling.

Call the Business Office about it to-day.

What Dame Fashion Is Offering

For the Season.

ILLUSTRATED on the left-hand side is an attractive cornflower blue charmeuse gown very suitable for wearing at Hurlingham or Ranelagh. The skirt drapery is graceful, the charmeuse being combined with velvet-embroidered voile de soie. The sleeves are long, the wrists and neck being finished with lace frills. The central figure is carried out in a striking effect of blue and gold brocade. Lace falls from the high waist line to the center of the skirt and meets with the draped folds of the skirt. The corsage is of white lace over white chiffon. Japonica colored charmeuse is used for the right-hand model and makes a very useful gown for afternoon wear. The long sleeves are put into the shoulders with a piping; the cuffs are finished with five small buttons, the same decoration in a larger size being carried out on the bodice and skirt.

The charmeuse and ruffles are of white tulle.

One Woman's Story

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER VIII.

PRIDE and an instinctive stoicism kept Mary Danfroth's pale face impassive as she listened to her father's agitated announcement. An iron hand seemed to be gripping her throat and stifling her. She steadied herself and faced her parents as she drew away from her father's encircling arm. He still held the paper in his trembling hand. Beside him was his wife, aghast and silent, her thin fingers nervously twisting the handkerchief she held.

The girl spoke quietly and steadily: "Mr. Craig may not have been hurt, you know," she reminded her father. "The first reports of accidents are often exaggerated."

She turned away and went down the hall to her own room, closing her door behind her. She took off her hat and put it away, then lifted the books from her dressing table, on which she had just laid them, and arranged them on her desk. All these actions she performed with care, yet she moved as in a dream. She stood, looking about her as if searching for some other duty to perform, but, finding nothing, suddenly flung herself on her bed and lay there, silent, staring wide-eyed into the gathering dusk.

At the end of a half hour her mother knocked timidly at the door.

"May I come in, Mary?" she asked in a low voice. "Are you asleep?"

The girl drew herself to a sitting posture on the edge of her bed.

"Come in, mother," she said, dully. "No, I haven't been asleep. I was just lying down and—thinking."

"The parent laid a cool hand on her daughter's forehead.

"Poor little girl!" she murmured. "Poor little girl! I know this news was a terrible shock to you."

Mary stirred irritably under her mother's touch. "Of course, it was a shock," she said coldly. "It is always terrible to hear of accidents of that kind." She paused, then steeled herself to utter what she would not acknowledge was a deliberate falsehood. "But I have been thinking it might have been much worse. Suppose there had been on that train someone whom we really cared for."

Mrs. Danforth looked in silence at the speaker; then, bending over, kissed her and left the room. Mary sat for a moment longer motionless on the side of her bed. Then she bowed her face upon her hands and closed her eyes.

Dinner that night was a dismal affair. The gloom of the accident oppressed all minds. Mr. Danforth was nervous and talked of nothing but the wreck, inveighing against the carelessness of the railroad officials, the indifference corporations showed for human life, and explaining how the disaster might have been avoided—dwelling on the subject until Mary felt as if she could bear it no longer.

When the meal was at last over, Mary, remarking briefly that she must go back to her studying, went to her own room again. Her parents remained at the table, chatting, while the man of the house smoked his post prandial cigar.

"I am glad that Mary doesn't take this news any more deeply to heart," remarked the father with masculine obtuseness. "I was afraid that she was beginning to think too much of Craig and that if he was hurt or killed it must break her all up."

His wife shook her head with the scorn that a woman always shows for a man's lack of perception.

"She feels it more than she knows herself," she remarked enigmatically.

"Bosh!" exclaimed Mr. Danforth. "Mary isn't the kind to keep such a trouble as that to herself. Of course se liked the chap—and she is distressed to think that he may have been injured, or—worse. But you told me yesterday that you fancied she was beginning to care a good deal for him. She wouldn't be so calm if she did. She regards him only as a pleasant acquaintance."

In her own room Mary bent over her books and tried to study. She attacked the preparation for to-morrow's recitations with a determination to banish all other matters from her mind. "Anything to keep from thinking!" she whispered to herself. "This suspense is awful—but it may be better than to know the truth." A lump of ice seemed to be pressing upon her heart, but she worked on.

It was late when she extinguished her light, yet dawn was graying her windowpanes before she fell into a troubled slumber.

Her eyes were heavy when he dragged herself into the dining room that morning. Her father was opening the morning paper which lay beside his plate. With a sickening contraction of her throat the girl watched him scan the first page of the sheet. Suddenly he started to his feet.

"Hear this!" he exclaimed, excitedly. "'Texan Hero of Railroad Wreck; Gordon Craig Rescues Three Women From Burning Pullman; Is Himself Unhurt!'"

Mrs. Danforth uttered a low cry of alarm, and at the sound the reader dropped his paper and sprang forward. Mary had slipped quietly from her chair to the floor. She had fainted.

The parents' eyes met in a significant look as they both bent over the prostrate girl.

"I told you so!" said the mother gravely.

To Make a Hit With Women

By Dorothy Dix

A LOVELORN youth writes me a pathetic letter saying that he is persona non grata with the fair sex, that girls do not care for his society, and the ungrateful minxes turn their backs upon him and talk to other men in the very instant they are devouring the candy he brought them, and wearing the violets on which he squandered his good money. This state of affairs greatly distresses him, and he wants to know why he isn't popular, and how he may become a winner with women.

Let us see if we can help him.

Women differ from men in this respect, that looks do not count. It does not matter whether a man is handsome or not. Indeed, very few women care for beauty in the opposite sex. It is a poaching on their own preserves that they resent. Also it requires them to became flatterers instead of the flattered, for the vanity of the vainest woman that ever lived is as water unto wine compared to the vanity of a man who is a living picture, and who knows it—and expects to be told of it.

It is worth bearing in mind that almost without exception the men who were the great heart smashers of history were not only plain of face, but some of them grotesquely hideous. So no man need despair on account of his lack of pulchritude when he wants to take a hand at the game of hearts.

He Should Shave.

But where mere regularity of features in a man counts for little in attracting a woman's fancy, a man should pay much attention to his clothes and his grooming. Nothing on earth, but the grace of God, keeps a woman in love with a man with a two days' stubble of dirty beard on his face. Married women stand this because they can't help themselves; but no girl wants a slovenly, untidy man, who looks as if he needed to be run through the laundry, hanging about her. All the knocking about the word "dude" comes from masculine lips. No woman joins in that chorus. On the contrary, she feels that the man who comes into her presence ill-clothed, dirty, neglected looking, not only shows disrespect for her, but indicates that he lacks judgment, industry and progressiveness. For that is exactly what being ill-dressed now means.

Another thing that women like, and it is an attraction that any man can acquire, is a certain savoir faire that makes him equal to any situation. A woman likes a man to know how to offer her a chair, to help her on with her wraps, to order a little dinner. And she hates with unspeakable loathing the fellow who is always making scenes in public, who gets in rows with the theater usher over a mistake about the seats, or the street car conductor about the change, or who sits up like a graven image of wrath every time anybody drops in while he is calling.

"Chump," says the girl to herself, "he hasn't got enough sense to know only the ignorant have to fight to get their rights."

Women like generous men, but even girls have a contempt for men who spend more than they can afford. It is not the youths who waste all their substance on bonbons and theater tickets and violets who are the most popular with the fair sex. Every girl has what she calls her "candy beau," but she seldom marries him. The best way to touch a girl's heart is not by upsetting her digestion.

An important point to remember here is that the man who would curry favor by means of gifts must give discreetly. A woman would rather have a present that cost 5 cents if it represented some especial taste or fancy of hers than one that cost $50 if it was something that had no personal significance.

Don't Be a Clam.

In conversation, cultivate a happy medium. Be neither a continuous monologue performer nor yet a clam. Before you take the floor and devote hours to expatiating on how you can keep books or play ping-pong or take snapshots, be sure the girl is really interested in you. After a woman is in love, she can sit entranced for days listening to a man tell about the kind of collar button he wears, but if she isn't in love, a steady stream of personal reminiscences gets on her nerves, and she wants a change. Besides she desires to talk about herself.

For pity's sake, though, help out with the conversation. From the time a girl is old enough to understand anything she is taught that her chief end in life is to entertain man, and everywhere you go you can see her conscientiously at work trying to do it. Every mother's daughter of us knows what it is to labor, and perspire, and toil, trying to make conversation with some man who is just as unresponsive as a store dummy and as silent as the Sphinx. It isn't a fair division of labor, and if a man wants to see true gratitude let him chip in and help roll the conversation ball along.

"Be bold, be bold, be not too bold." Women hate a timid man, and they despise the one who takes it for granted that he has only to throw the handkerchief to have every girl scramble for it.

Learn how to pay compliments as if you mean them. Don't apply flattery with a trowel. Few women are fools. Don't tell a woman the first time you see her she is the ideal you have been seeking for many years. Seven hundred other idiots have told her that before.

Don't quote sentimental poetry to a girl. It always makes her want to giggle.

Don't give in too much to a woman. If she has good sense she won't want you to sacrifice your taste or principles, and, if she is unreasonable, she will respect you for mastering her.

Finally, beloved—and if you forget all the rest remember this—don't stay too long when you go to call. More men queer themselves right here than they do anywhere else. No living human being is entertaining for more than 30 minutes at a time or endurable for more than two hours at a stretch. In that time every man can say everything he has got to say worth hearing, and if he lingers along until the clock begins to yawn in his face, he is simply defying fate and inviting disaster. Many a good impression is spoiled by too much of it.

And when you get up to go, go as if you were fired out of a gun. Don't linger for tender farewells and last words. Most girls wear shoes three sizes too small for them, and when a man keeps one standing on the doorstep while he makes his adieus she isn't saying, like Juliet: "I could say good-by, good-by, 'til it be morning." On the contrary, she is regretting that all the stories about papa's boot and the swift waft out are fiction instead of fact, and she would be willing to pay out good money to anybody who would accelerate Romeo's descent of the steps.

Of course, no general rules can be laid down for winning the fancy of the fair sex. What has been said pretends to be no more than the most elementary facts, but a guarantee goes with each suggestion that it will work.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

I HAVEN'T quite made up my mind yet whether Bobbie shud lern a trade or a professhun, sed Ma to Pa yesterday. Sumtimes I think it wud be nice if he cud lern a trade, & aggenn I think a trade is kind of commonplace. A professhun is so professhunal, sumhow, so distinguished, sed Ma.

I guess there are a lot of yung lawyers in the big cities that doant see anything vary professhunal about a professhun, sed Pa. If I were a yung man aggenn, Pa sed, I wud a lot rather work steddy at a trade than profess at a professhun. Bobbie, what do you want to be?

I toald Pa thare was three things & I dident know wich one of the three I wanted to be the moast, a pitcher like Dent, or a elevator boy, or a poet.

Pitchers and poets are born, not made, sed Pa, & a elevator boy isent any kind of job for you wen you grow up. If I thought you cud be a poet like me or a pitcher like Dent, sed Pa, I wud tell you by all meens go ahed & try to be one or the other, but thare ain't many Dents & thare ain't many me's, sed Pa.

Dear me, sed Ma, & wen did you beecum grate?

Dident I rite that poem that I red at the bankwet the other nite wen I was toastmaster, sed Pa, and dident all the men thare say that it was the work of a geenyus?

The men was kind of enthused too much, I guess, sed Ma. I guess that a certain amount of champagne will make men stand for almost anything in liter-ature. Doant talk to me about that poem, sed Ma. If you call that art, you are a blacksmith. I found two of the verses in yure coat pocket after the bankwet, Ma sed, & I must say that you are no Milton.

I tell you the poem met with grate applause, sed Pa.

& you remember what I jest toald you about champane, sed Ma. Bobbie, she sed to me, if you think this is good poetry, you are a chip of the old block. Listen:

All brethren we stand together tonite
Where all the lites are shining brite.
Met here in friendship's strong embrace
We can look each other in the face
& know that all of us is men,
Wich is a good thing now & then.
The world needs men like us to fight
For truth & the eternal right
& the reason each one of us thrives
& supports ourselfs and our wives
Is beekaus of that brain power we possess
That is the cause of our grate success.
So all of us brethren gathered here
Have little if anything to fear,
Jest so we keep on working hard
& continued success will be our reward.

Now, Bobbie, sed Ma, I want you to be a honest littel boy. If you had yure choice between beeing a elevator boy & that kind of a poet, wich wud you be?

I wud be a elevator boy, I toald Ma. The hours is easier.

New Serial Story Begins Monday

"Behind Closed Doors," one of the most exciting mystery stories ever written, will begin Monday on The Georgian's magazine page. This story is by Anna Katharine Green, whose detective yarns are so popular.

Be sure you read the opening installment—you'll certainly read every succeeding one. The serial will be finely illustrated.

Superfluous Hair Truths

Stop Experimenting

There are but few depilatories sold. You think there are hundreds because you have used the same identical preparations under several different names. This is easily explained. Women stop using

So-Called Hair Removers

when they learn that they are harmful. Therefore, they can not be sold under the same name for any length of time. Then the identical, worthless, harmful concoctions are given new names and advertised again as totally different preparations to who innocently buy them over and over again under different names, and this will continue as long as women are so unwise as to experiment with unknown, so-called hair removers.

Defraud the Same Foolish Women

DeMiracle

Has Stood the Test of Time

De Miracle has been sold as De Miracle for over eleven years, and its name has never been changed. It is acknowledged the world over by eminent authorities as the one safe, perfected hair remover, therefore it is the only depilatory you can use without experimenting.

Leaves No Tell-Tale Smell

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor whatever. On the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor, an offensive, tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours.

Avoid Permanent Disfigurement

by refusing substitutes. If your dealer will not supply you send $1.00 direct. Free information how to determine which depilatories are harmful and worthless sent in plain, sealed envelope.

EVANS' DEFEAT MEANS A NEW WESTERN CHAMP

CHICAGO, July 25.—In the semi-finals for the championship of the Western Golf Tournament to-day Edward P. Allis, of Milwaukee, will be matched with Robert A. Gardner and Warren K. Wood will oppose Joseph C. Leduc.

Two surprises were furnished the gallery at yesterday's games, when "Ned" Allis, the Harvard star, defeated Charles Evans, Jr., the champion, and Warren K. Wood, who missed being champion twice, each time by 1 point, was compelled to play 39 holes to defeat Frazer Hale, of Omaha.

The pill of defeat so often administered by Champion Evans was swallowed by him when Allis defeated him, 4 and 3, in the third round.

Allis Stood Pace Well.

At one time in the afternoon, after Evans had won the sixth and seventh holes, it looked as if the champion might at least produce a tight finish, but Allis never cracked under the strain and kept on the even tenor of his way.

A stiff wind from the northeast was sweeping the course when the champion and his opponent teed off. Evans had the honor and hooked his drive close to a trap. Allis pitched his second 20 feet from the cup and holed his put. Evans, whose second was to the right of the pin, took one more.

Allis sliced his drive for the second hole into a bush and chopped out short, but to offset this mistake Evans, who had driven 260 yards, pitched his second into the bunker guarding the green, and the result was a half in five.

Both were on the third green in two, Allis being 30 feet short and Evans 15 feet to the right of the pin. They halved in 4. Allis hooked his next drive to the rough, but his second jumped the bunker guarding the green and ran to 20 feet from the hole. Evans took three to reach the green and ran his approach close to the hole.

Allis Makes Great Shot.

Allis stymied himself on his third and then made one of the most remarkable shots of the match. Evans' ball was too close to permit of a jump shot, and the boy played a follow billiard shot, his ball knocking Evans' ball a little to the side of the cup and following in, giving him the hole 4-5 and putting him 2 up.

The home hole was won by Allis, 5-6. Allis, after hooking his drive, made a fine second, short of the creek. Allis was 3 up at the interval.

A good start in the afternoon meant a lot to Evans, but his chances went tobogganing when Allis won the first 3 holes, and from that point on it was only a question if the chunky little Milwaukeean could keep himself at concert pitch, as with a lead of six holes he could claim membership in the "I should worry" class.

JOHNNY COULON STARTS WORK TO GET IN SHAPE

CHICAGO, July 25.—Physicians who have been handling Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion of the world, have released him and John will start on to-morrow to get himself back into shape for some title contests. He is packing his trunks to-day and on to-morrow will start for Georgian Bay, where he plans to rough it for a month or six weeks. Then he will return, go westward and close his match with Kid Williams. The Logan Square battler believes he will be ready to don the gloves about the middle of September.

"I'm going to camp out and live as close to nature as I can. Rough it will be my style for a month or six weeks, and then I'll be ready to enter the training grind. My physician has released me and says after a trip into the country I will be ready to box again. I am eager to get back into the game, principally to show that I am not all in. I have been censured for any delay in the Williams fight, but I knew I wasn't right, and I wasn't going to disappoint a hungry fight crowd by a poor showing," said John to-day.

WOLGAST AND JONES PART; WILL MANAGE OWN AFFAIRS

He and Jones, who acted as his manager during Wolgast's successful ring days, have separated—not that there is any trouble between them, but Ad feels he needs no manager now that he is no longer the title holder. Ad said to-day:

"Until I win the championship back, I will be able to attend to all my matchmaking myself. If at any time I make a good match and need Jones' assistance, he will be the man to attend to my affairs. I also want it understood that my old friend and manager and I are still the best of friends and pals, and if at any time I can make good again, Tom Jones will be manager.

Poor Pa! Aunt Maggie's Always Cheering Him Up

Rain Taugles Line on Big Series

Volunteers Bob Up for Repairs

By O. B. Keeler.

BY way of giving our heroes a lift on every possible turn of fortune's wheel during the present hectic little road trip, it rained yesterday in Montgomery.

Diagnosis of this seemingly simple weather note informs us (1) that two games will be played this afternoon, unless (2) it rains some more; which means (3) that the two-pig grapple probably will end in a dog-fall, so that (4) the series will have to be decided to-morrow.

Assuming it doesn't keep on raining. Most double-headers are split. It is hard for a good club to win two games in one afternoon. It is nearly as hard for a decently poor club to lose two. So it is rather unlikely that the present series will be as decisive as it looked before the bottom fell out.

NAMING NO NAMES.

Some of our most erudite little Sages
Daily rebound from this mystery ver'd:
How is it a ball club that cleverly gauges
Attack and defense, and consistently rages
Along in one game, till the praise clutters pages,
Turns right around and immodestly stages
An Opera Bouffe in the Next?

* * *

LAMPING the station of the Nashville Volunteers in the Southern League standing doesn't offer much enlightenment concerning the stalwart efforts now making by the management to cheer up that club.

For the present season, that is.

The Vols are more than a dozen games behind the leaders, and the day of miracles is popularly reported to be past.

And yet the wires buzz with rumors and well-grounded reports of deals by which one William Schwartz is adding to the power of his payroll, and, incidentally, to the tax upon the exchequer.

The latest noise sounds like Melville Brannon, of the spectacular college brand of slab-worker, and the idea is that Schwartz has snared him away from J. Dobbs and that the Tennessee Industrialist student soon will inhabit a Nashville uniform.

Pitcher Boland, of the recently exploded Interstate League, has been turned over to the Nashville club, and is expected to succeed Jack Brackenridge. Dave Bunting, from the same circuit, also is expected to join the rookies, but probably won't play this season. Schwartz is still dickering for "No-Hit Babe" Adams, of Savannah, and Hoffman was added to the roster at a considerable expense a short time ago.

So it looks as if Sir William might be looking forward to 1914—which, by the way, isn't so bad a thing to do.

* * *

CONTINUING in the same happy vein, it is noted that President Hirsig, of the Nashville club, is under way in the direction of Detroit for a conference with President Navin, the object being to retain Frank Gibson, the speedy and hard-hitting little catcher, for next season.

It is known that other clubs are sweet on Gibby, and it is possible that he may be destined to travel with Detroit in 1914, but Hirsig is confident he has the inside rail, and believes he will keep his pet receiver.

While in Detroit, Hirsig will look over the books for new material available for his club next year.

MAKING a swift shift to New Orleans, we translate an indistinct rumble from the distant North to indicate that Mr. Brenton, able Pelican fork-hander, is ardently desired by the Toledo Mudhens in the American Association.

The terms of the swap mention Outfielder Davy Jones and First Baseman Bluhm, one old bird and one young one, as the Toledo contribution to the deal.

But there is nothing definite.

UMPIRE SUES FEDERAL LEAGUE CLUB FOR $35,000

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Umpire Jack McNulty to-day brought suit against the Federal League baseball club of St. Louis and Manager Jack O'Connor for $35,000 damages because of an alleged attack O'Connor made on him on the club grounds in June.

According to the petition, McNulty was present to officiate as umpire in the game when O'Connor "wrongfully and unlawfully assaulted him."

McNulty alleges that his injuries are such that he no longer will be able to earn a livelihood as a baseball umpire.

PITCHER GREEN REJOINS FRANK'S LOWLY PELS

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 25.—Pitcher Roy Green, shipped to Wheeling, W. Va., last spring under an optional agreement, has rejoined the Pelicans, as has Pitcher Glavenich, recently released by Omaha, and who is to figure in a three-cornered trade between the Pelicans, Cleveland and Toledo clubs for Pitcher Brenton shortly.

Waivers on the other two men Frank is getting in exchange for Brenton have been held up by two American Association clubs for the present.

Young Jack O'Brien is said to have received a raw deal in Vancouver, where he met Freddie Welsh. A daily paper published there says that Young Jack was entitled to a draw.

* * *

Young Seymour, who boxes Terry Nelson in a ten-round encounter at Marietta on Saturday, August 2, was in Atlanta yesterday. Seymour says he expects the bout to draw a good house, as they have already an advance sale of several hundred dollars. Seymour and Nelson are scheduled to go ten rounds.

"Spider" Britt is still trying to get a match with either Kid Young or Charlie Lee. Britt is confident he can give either of these boys a lacing, and is willing to bet a little money on his chances.

Kid Duke and Kid Brooks have decided to settle their differences in the ring. The pair have agreed to meet in a finish bout in private some time next week. The boys have been hurling challenges at each other for the past two weeks.

* * *

Dominick J. Tortorich, New Orleans fight promoter, has decided to stage a welterweight elimination tourney. "Wildcat" Ferns and Young Denny are to meet in the first battle a week from next Sunday. Tortorich says he will bring Billy Walter, Spike Kelly and Mike Gibbons to the Pelican City for matches. All bouts are to be over the twenty-round route.

* * *

Tim Callahan, who was recently given a decision over Young Attell here, seems to have the makings of a good boy. He is the holder of a stiff wallop, and usually puts up an aggressive scrap.

* * *

Ad Wolgast is one of the many fighters on the coast trying to force Willie Ritchie into the ring. Tom Jones, manager of Ad, says he will agree to give the champion a $5,000 side bet if he will sign for the bout.

* * *

Coast promoters refuse to go wild over Arthur Pelky, who is at present in Los Angeles. The lightweights seem to be big cards out West at the present time.

CLARKE AND CONZELMAN PITCH TO-DAY

By Joe Agler.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 25. George Clarke and Joe Conzelman are Bill Smith's pitching entries in the bargain-day bill this afternoon, and the gossip is that Elmer Brown, Montgomery's best bet on the slab, will work the first contest against our boys, with either Sparks or Case in the afterpiece. Chapman and Dunn will catch for the Crackers.

We are not grieving over the rain that knocked out yesterday's game with the Billikens. The off day did us good, as we needed a rest, and it helped to break up the jump here from Memphis.

* * *

THE Billikens are full of confidence, and they are going to be hard to lick. They all believe they are going to win the rag, but realize that the rest of the schedule is against them, as they have only one more series at home, after which they hit the long trail for the rest of their games. It is admitted here that the Crackers are the club to be beaten; in fact, every club in the league accepts that as a fact.

* * *

GILBERT PRICE, got here yesterday and looks to be in grand shape after his little rest. Take it all around, the club is in good condition and should make a great finish once it gets back to Ponce DeLeon.

JESS WILLARD AND BILL YOUNG STILL HOPING

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—Jess Willard and Bill Young, "white hopes," were matched to-day for a 20-round boxing bout August 22 at the Vernon arena. Willard hopes to make a few successful starts here against lesser lights, and then will go after a "Gunboat" Smith match again.

HURLER SMITH ON SICK LIST.

BOSTON, July 25.—The Cubs' cripple list had another addition yesterday. Pitcher Charley Smith is confined to his bed, suffering an attack of heart trouble, thought to be an aftermath of his prostration by heat in Cincinnati a few weeks ago. Zimmerman is in Chicago for treatment of his injured foot.

RAIN STOPS RACES.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 25.—Heavy rain yesterday afternoon stopped the Grand Circuit races at Fort Erie after the first heats of the 2:09 and 2:11 pace. Weather permitting, the two unfinished races and the free-for-all pace will be run off to-day and the Grand Circuit stars will move along to Grand Rapids.

TEMPERAMENT.

There are two classes of ball players—those who have temperament and those who have brains.

Temperament is an enlargement of the cranium common among athletes who hit in the .300 class. Or, one might say that temperament is temper with a college education.

A temperamental athlete is as hard to handle as a greased eel. What though he has spent the winter prowling about free luncheries seeking what he may devour? In summer he kicks when the humming birds' ears are underdone or the finger-bowls are not filled with rosewater.

Some athletes are condescending enough to talk in friendly terms with the owner of the club, but such cases are rare. As a rule he considers it a favor to allow the manager to talk to him, and he plays ball only because the public cries for it. For if he were to quit, the pastime would be left flat on its back.

In order to attain a temperament, an athlete must first attain a .300 batting average. Otherwise his temperament is merely a bum disposition, and the manager stings him for a fine and kicks him on the shin. As an immortal poet once wrote:

He thought he had a temperament,
But found that he had blundered;
For he was fined a whole week's pay—
He could not hit .300.

Ty Cobb, the temperamentalest athlete in captivity, wants to break away from Detroit. Some say this is due to temperament, while others hold that it is due to horse sense.

With Archer in the hospital and Bresnahan in bad, we wonder what the Cubs would do if some vile wretch were to step on Tom Needham's bunions.

The board of supervisors in San Francisco refuses to allow Sam Langford to do battle with Charlie Miller. Mr. Miller owes the board of supervisors a vote of thanks.

Marty Cutler showed in his alleged battle with Carl Morris that as a pugilist he is a good wrestler.

Some day Tyrus Cobb will create a sensation by announcing that he is satisfied with the way the universe is being run.

GAMBLING.
(By A. Magnate.)
To gamble is a deadly sin,
A deep and lowly vice.
I scorn the man who tries to win
By wagering his pile of tin
Upon the rolling dice.

To gamble is a thing of shame;
I look at it askance.
Dame Fortune is a fickle dame,
And so I play a dead sure game
And never take a chance.

New Orleans a 20-Round Center

Tortorich Seeks Classy Bouts

By Ed W. Smith.

NEW ORLEANS is now safely established on the boxing map as a safe and sane center in which twenty-round contests may be held. At least this is the statement of Dominick J. Tortorich, the Jimmy Coffroth of the South, who has firmly put the game back on a standing akin to the conditions that prevailed there in the good old long ago. New Orleans, be it remembered, had some of the most famous battles of ring history decided in its environs, and threatens now to take just as prominent a place as it got when John L. Sullivan and Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack Dempsey, Jack McAuliffe and Billy Myer, Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall and Dan Creedon and others of that class were battling for real titles.

* * *

BY sheer force of character and through demonstration that the boxing game can be kept free from scandal, and that it does not verge into the old class of "prize fighting," Tortorich has carried matters along until he has won over almost every executive in Louisiana to his way of thinking, and it is not believed that there will be any further opposition to Dom's plan of holding twenty-round contests from now until next Spring. And Dom believes he will be able to show all of the boxers that it will be strictly to their interests to pay some attention to the nice offers that he is going to make to them.

* * *

ALONG with Tom McCarey, Tortorich has been stung by the belt bee, and now has a well-developed case of trophy fever. One week from next Sunday afternoon, Dominick will present his first belt to the boxers. On that day he will have Wildcat Ferns, of Kansas City, and Young Denny, of New Orleans, in the first elimination test for the new welterweight championship that he proposes running during the present summer and coming fall. These boys battled ten rounds there July 4, and Ferns was awarded a verdict that started a near-riot among the spectators, many believing that Denny, the home boy, should have been awarded the victory. They are some partisans down that way. To settle the question, Tortorich nailed them at once for a contest over the long route.

LUCKY INFIELD PUTS ATHLETICS IN FRONT RANK

By Sid C. Keener.

IF luck continues to break for Connie Mack and the Athletics, then the 1913 American League pennant race should not be close. The meaning of luck is injuries to athletes, the stars of his flock. And so far the lean Cornelius has been mighty fortunate in ways of accidents.

Mack is directing a bona fide championship ball club all right, still many teams which figured on dope, and even on the ball field, to win have lost out because this and that star was disabled and put out of harness for a lengthy period.

The lucky part for Mack and the Athletics is that he has the banner infield in major league circles to-day, and that his quartet has been on duty every day since the first game of the season, April 10.

Infield the Real Strength.

The Athletics' infield really is the tower of strength to the club. Of course, the pitching staff has more than held its own, still the Mackites are winning games when the pitchers are cracking.

Without a doubt the combination of McInnis-Collins-Barry-Baker forms the infield de luxe, and Stuffy, Eddie, Jack and Frank have been in there every day. Collins is the only player who has missed once, and recently, during a double-header, Mack laid off the Columbia U. lad to give youngster Bill Orr a chance.

Of course, Mack has been without Jack Coombs since April 11, when typhoid fever put "Colby Jack" out of commission. But Plank and Bender are having an unusually good year, and then Connie has been fortunate in getting excellent pitching from youngsters Brown, Bush, Houck and Wyckoff.

Both Kinds of Outfielders.

In the outfield Mack supplied himself with fly catchers in case of injuries. At present he has Danny Murphy, Rube Oldring and Jimmy Walsh, right-handed stickers, and Eddie Murphy, Amos Strunk and Pete Daley, left-handed swatters.

In the outfield Mack has supplied himself with batters for the two kinds of pitching, also for injuries.

In catching, Mack is taken care of in case of injuries, but so far no one has been needed. Schang and Lapp are doing all the catching, and even Ira Thomas, who practically caught the Mackites to the 1910-1911 flags, has not been behind the bat in a single entertainment since the start of the season.

The peculiar part is that Mack has been lucky, mighty lucky, with his infielders. Not only are they in there every day, but they are hitting the Athletics to the pennant. Collins has a .347 average; Baker, .326, and McInnes, .325. And the trio has scored 202 runs.

BASEBALL
Diamond News and Gossip

Rain put the finishing touches on major league baseball yesterday, the National games all being postponed. The American League teams spent the day traveling eastward.

* * *

Connie Mack, of the Athletics, takes exception to the statement that he Senators will beat out his eam. Mack says his men fear nobody and will breeze home in the American League.

* * *

Manager Chance plans a big shake-up in the Yankees. He is contemplating benching Birdie Cree and Harry Wolter and filling their places in the outfield with Roy Hartsell and Ray Caldwell. The latter has not been meeting with success as a pitcher, but is developing into a good outfielder and batsman.

* * *

In the hope of widening the gap between his team and the Phillies Manager McGraw of the Giants will send his team along at the clip they have been traveling the l atsfew weeks, when they begin their second invasion of the West to-morrow.

* * *

Manager Clark Griffith has ordered the Senators to keep away from Lake Michigan. Outfielder Shanks turned his ankle and injured his head while diving the other day and will be out of the game for several days. Griffith's order was to prevent further inroads on his players.

* * *

Alleging that he was assaulted by Jack O'Connor, manager of the Federal League, John S. McNulty, a former umpire, has brought suit for $35,000 against the league, the St. Louis Club and O'Connor, its manager. It was McNulty's first day of umpiring and also his last and he alleges he has been unable to earn a living in his profession.

FILLINGEM AND WILDER TWIRL TWO GREAT GAMES

CORDELE, July 25.—Seldom, if ever before in the history of organized baseball, has a record been made that would compare with that of Fillingem and "Baby" Wilder, pitching for Cordele in a double-header against Waycross Wednesday. Fillingem went nine innings for a shut-out game with no hits, and Wilder twirled a six-inning game, allowing no hits and no scores, striking out nine men.

By this remarkable record, Fillingem and Wilder have proved themselves the star twirlers of the Empire State League. Not only has a no-hit, shut-out game been pitched before in the league, but the fact that Cordele took both games with the same brilliant record makes it a precedent that will probably not be equaled, though the league is maintained for years, for which prospects now appear very favorable.

ARMY AND NAVY WRANGLE OVER FOOTBALL FIELD

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 25.—The Army and Navy athletic officials still are at a deadlock over the selection of the place where the next Army-Navy football game shall be played.

The Navy is insisting that the game take place in Philadelphia, while the Army contends that it should be played at West Point and Annapolis alternating each year, or in New York City, preferably the latter. The Army opens the football season early this year, playing a game September 27.

Artie Hofman May Go to Yanks

Vol Gardener Playing Fine Ball

NASHVILLE, TENN., July 25.—Any time a player comes tracking out from the majors, there immediately goes up the hue and cry that he has finished his act under the Big Tent, is on his way to the exit and only lingers around the side shows because it reminds him of the fame that was his when he occupied the center ring.

The cases of a return engagement in the majors are almost as rare as the appearance of feathers on turtles once a "slave" has started sliding, since oftenest it is the case that a ball tosser loses his ambition and desire to hobnob with the stellar lights once he has started shunting on down to the bushes.

It's because Artie Hofman is the exception that proves the rule that makes his case so full of interest, especially since so many widely different explanations of his appearance in the Southern have been offered.

Sure He Can Make Good.

It's no joke that the "them-was-the-happy-days-in-Akron" stuff had a lot to do with Artie casting his fortunes with Bill Schwartz, but the real honest-to-goodness reason is that the boy leader of the Vols afforded a protecting wing, under which Circus Solly could hide himself while the business of a clever little scheme of Hofman's was getting oiled up. The milk in the cocoanut of the whole affair is that Artie doesn't believe he is all through with the big show, and although they have their thumbs down on him, in the National, there is still a fine young chance for Artie to slip into Ban Johnson's circuit, where one Frank Chance is leading at present a forlorn hope in Manhattan.

Harking away back to the time when Charles Webb Murphy, the ungrateful owner of the Cubs, traded Artie and King Cole to the Pirates for Lefty Leifield and Tommy Leach, there started the breach between Murphy and the Peerless Leader, who, in the language for which Chance is widely noted, explained to Charles Webb just where he could head in. Leastways, that's the way Hofman tells it.

Didn't Like Fred Clarke.

Harboring an intense bitterness against Murphy, which found its best evidence in the recent suit for $3,000, which Artie pulled against the Chicago club, and a hankering for the fighting tactics of the Peerless Leader, made Hofman and Fred Clarke anything but a Damon and Pythias. All of this ill feeling, coupled with a pair of bum pins, soon caused Clarke to sour on the former Cub outfielder, and he began to look for a place to pigeonhole Artie, until he could get in good shape and bend his neck to Clarke's yoke; and Kansas City looked like a good place to the fiery Pirate chief.

The Blues were given a short option on Hofman at the stiff price of $2,500, after waivers had been secured on Artie—and there seems to have been a heap of inside stuff pulled in sending the blonde gardener out of Mr. Lynch's circuit, by the way—and a deal was framed up between Hofman, Clarke and the Kansas City club by which Artie should be returned to the Pirates at the end of the present season at a 20 per cent increase in salary in the event he "went good" in the Western circuit. This arrangement appealed to Hofman about like a spell of the itch, and he declared he had rather quit the game than be mixed up in any arrangement which would send him back to the Buccaneers and the tyranny of Clarke. When he balked, and wound up by kicking over the traces, the Kansas City club did the perfectly wise thing and allowed the option to expire.

An Old Pal of Schwartz's.

Business of "for old times sake" making a loud noise in the wings and Artie learning how Bill Schwartz was getting gray headed over the poor old Vols' slump. He would be tickled to death to come down and help an old pal out, if the Vols could buy his release. Did they? They did. For $1,500—(count 'em)—a thousand iron men less than Kansas City stood ready to kick in with, but it was a case of a bird in the hand, etc., with Clarke, and hence Hofman chasing flies in the Vols' left field.

But there is NO conditional release clause in Artie's contract, as has been whispered about. He is the sole property of the Vols, bought and paid for, with no strings tied to him one way or the other.

But this is a fact: Schwartz knows Artie's ambition to return to the majors; he knows he is anxious to once more work under Frank Chance's banner; that Chance is dead stuck on having Artie with him once more, and maybe Schwartz isn't going to help his pal get back where he is crazy to be. Maybe a duck can't swim, but he puts up a pretty good imitation.

AMERICANS WILL MEET BRITONS IN NET MATCHES

WIMBLEDON, ENGLAND, July 25.—The interest of the tennis world will be focussed to-day on the championship matches at Wimbledon, where the Americans will attempt to win the Dwight F. Davis international tennis trophy. England will spare no effort to defend the cup, which is the last remaining token of her former athletic supremacy.

The two singles matches will be played between Maurice E. McLoughlin, of San Francisco, facing J. C. Parke, whose unexpected victory last year over the noted Australian, Norman E. Brookes, was instrumental in bringing the cup to England, and R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, meeting C. P. Dixon.

Parke fell an easy victim to the Californian in the open English championships, but a round of tournament play since is said to have greatly improved his form. England pins her hope on his ability to defeat McLoughlin, who is reported to be stale. English critics are united in declaring there is less than "15" difference between Williams' play and that of McLoughlin. A greater crowd is expected than the crush which attended the Wilding-McLoughlin match.

PELKY AND SMITH MAY CLASH ON TURKEY DAY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—Indications are that Arthur Pelky, Tommy Burns, heavyweight battler, and Gunboat Smith will do battle in this city on Thanksgiving day. Burns today announced that he would have his man ready on turkey day and that Smith would be the foe, the match going to the highest bidder.

CROUCH ROBBED: GETS DRAW.

OTTAWA, ILL., July 25.—Ben Crouch, of Chicago, and Kid Mack, of Joliet, fought eight rounds to a draw in the wind-up of a boxing show held here last night. The decision came as a surprise to the fans, as Crouch cleanly outfought Mack, knocking him down several times. "Specia Delivery" Hirsch, of Chicago, and Ed Brandenburg, of St. Louis, went six rounds to a draw in the semi-windup.

BIG MARATHON GRIND TO-NIGHT AT MOTORDROME

UNLESS rain butts in again, local motorcycle fans will have their much-sought-for chance to see the Marathon race at the Motordrome to-night.

The races were postponed on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, but if the weather man will dish out some dry weather for to-night the riders promise to give the fans some racing that should be the classiest of the season.

$500 to Winner.

The Marathon race, with ten riders on the track at the same time, is the big feature. The speed teams are scheduled to circle the track 105 times, and the winner is to receive a cash prize of $500. More thrills seem likely to be crowded into this race than all the other races ever pulled off here.

Other Races on Card.

A special match race, three heats and a final of a sweepstakes and a trial against time by Tex Richards are the other events to be pulled off.

The following is the complete program:

Tex Richards against time. One mile. Present record held by Eddie Hasha and Morty Graves. Time, 38 4-5 seconds.

One mile to qualify for two-mile final. Two to qualify in each heat and three in fastest heat.

First Heat—No. 1, Morty Graves; No. 2, Harry Schwartz; No. 3, Billy Shields; No. 4, George Lockner; No. 5, Tex Richards.

Second Heat—No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, Georges Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

Harry Glenn vs. Harry Schwartz. (Special Match Race.) Two miles, best two out of three heats.

Final heat of Motordrome Sweepstakes—Two miles.

Second heat of Special Match Race—Glenn vs. Schwartz.

Third heat of Special Match Race, if necessary.

Big Marathon Race—(26 miles 385 yards), ten riders to compete. Each rider will have to ride 105 times around the track. Winner to receive cash prize of $500.

Contestants—No. 1, Morty Graves; No. 2, Harry Schwartz; No. 3, Billy Shields; No. 4, George Lockner; No. 5, Tex Richards; No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, Georges Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

INDIANS SELL TWIRLER.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 25.—George Keiserling, of the Indianapolis American Association club pitching staff, has been sold to the San Francisco Pacific Coast team. Manager Kelly also announced the purchase of George Norton, a young lefthander from the Hastings club of the Nebraska State League.

ONE WEEK FROM TO-NIGHT PONY CONTEST ENDS

No One Is Certain of Victory and the Lowest Candidate To-day May Be a Leader To-morrow—Only Seven More Days to Claim Prizes—Will You Be Among the Winners?—Success Is Within Your Grasp If You Will Only Realize the Fact and Prove Your Right to the Prizes By Your Efforts Now—"Dark Horses" Will Probably Come Fast During Last Days and Crowd Out the Too Certain Ones.

We have now entered the thick of the fight, the battle is on and when the smoke clears away on July 31, WHO WILL STAND FORTH AS VICTORS? Who knows? Victory is as liable to perch on the banner of one candidate as another and probably the candidate who is now hovering near the cellar championship, as the baseballists say, may be the one who will come so fast during the last few days that there will be no stopping him—he will sweep all before him and march triumphantly to his goal. This statement should be considered well by all candidates and especially those who may feel that there is no need for them to exert themselves during this time, as they are certain of victory. No one is certain of victory, and no one will be until all is over. You may be in the lead now and be reasonably sure in your own mind that no one can defeat you for the prize you want, but you do not know what efforts will be put forth before the close and while you rest apparently secure in the prospect of winning, your very nearest competitor will probably be working so energetically that the gap between you now will be closed up to allow victory snatched from your grasp when a little real effort during these seven days will win for you and any other candidate who fails to do his very best is liable to be without the charmed circle of winners on July 31, no matter how far in front he may be at present.

Present standings are not indicative of final results by a long way. Real effort NOW is going to swing the pendulum of victory or defeat and if you really desire one of those pony outfits or a pretty watch, now is your opportunity to win your selection.

Have you ever witnessed a horserace, where the favorite started out in front, passed the quarter and half poles away in front and then fell down during the last quarter, while the "rank outsider," now considered as a last place possibility, romped in ahead of the favorite? This illustrates perfectly what is just as liable as not to happen in the contest during these last few days. We don't say that it will happen, but such things have happened so often—the candidate is not given a chance to win by the "wise" ones—finally defeating all his rivals—that a similar occurrence in The American-Georgian campaign would not be surprising. Hence, we want to impress upon every candidate the necessity of doing his best before the finish overtakes you.

FIVE MORE DAYS OF THE RED LETTER BALLOTS.

Just five more days and the Red Letter Ballot, which is the last special vote offer of the contest, will draw to a close. The work being done by the great majority of candidates proves that they appreciate their opportunities and are going to die hard. Those who have as yet done but little on this offer should lose no time in getting started. There is still time to secure its advantages and every vote secured is a step nearer success. uTesday night at 10 o'clock this offer will close and those who have failed to take advantage of this offer and these will be but few, will have missed a chance that may mean final defeat. Votes are the only things that will win for you and without these necessary things you cannot hope to win. Hence every one is worth securing and essential to success.

DOOM OF MONEY JUGGLER SEEN BY FORBES

Says Revolutionary Spirit Is Rampant, Which Presages Laws to Stop Manipulations.

By B. C. FORBES.

"How did they make their millions?"

* * *

That question is often put to me when I seek to defend certain financial, railroad and industrial leaders against grave charges. I'm tempted to mention names that are freely held up as examples of men who got rich quick—too quick. For some of them no defense can be offered. They have been out-and-out jugglers, polite swindlers, suave crooks.

"How can men working on salary—even $100,000 a year—become millionaires in a few years without having been dishonest?" is another form of the query.

* * *

Well, the most charitable explanation, and one near the truth in many instances, can be given in two words: "Inside information."

* * *

LAWS ARE COMING THAT WILL FORCE "INSIDE INFORMATION" TO BE TRANSFORMED VERY PROMPTLY INTO PUBLIC INFORMATION. THE "INSIDER'S" PRIVILEGES ARE TO BE CURTAILED RADICALLY.

* * *

I have been tremendously impressed by the depth and warmth of public discontent over the tactics of speculating directors, over the iniquitous habit of many "insiders" in using exclusive information for their personal aggrandizement.

* * *

Directors are servants of security holders, not their masters. They are elected by stockholders TO SERVE them, not to deceive them. Too many directors forget this. Too many of them forget their responsibilities in their anxiety to turn their conferred powers into cash for their own bank accounts.

* * *

The handwriting points to important changes, to much-needed laws governing the action of directors and officers of corporations.

* * *

Guilt must be brought home to INDIVIDUALS, not to corporations. Some PERSON is responsible for every act committed. Very well, let the new laws aim at punishing the criminal MEN.

* * *

I hope to prepare a short, simple digest of the excellent British laws which cover this subject. These laws are singularly effective. They fasten responsibility on individuals, never on corporations. Occasionally there are financial scandals in England, but Whitaker Wrights are thrown into prison there, whereas they go into palaces here and become, instead of convicts, "gentlemen" of note, fawned upon and flattered and kow-towed to because of their wealth.

* * *

In this country we have sought to hold the New York Stock Exchange accountable for financial exploits which ought to be dealt with by the law. The Exchange was wofully lax in days gone by, but it is really bestirring itself now. Yet its power is limited. It cannot reach as far as the arm of the law. It is impotent to cure many evils that urgently need to be cured, and WHICH WILL BE CURED.

* * *

Let "insiders" hug no delusions on that point. The people are nursing their wrath. The intensity of their indignation has been a revelation to me within the last few weeks. I almost tremble to contemplate the laws that are bound to be evolved out of the latent anger.

* * *

Huge fortunes will be rolled up less easily and at more risk by flim-flamming in the future. The public will find a way to learn "Where did you get it?" There will be fewer financial mysteries, fewer sensational episodes in the stock markets, fewer bursting bubbles—and more convictions of high-placed individuals for schemes designed to enrich themselves at the expense of the public. Every dollar seized by the unscrupulous manipulator has had to be earned by the toil of some genuine worker. Dollars do not spring into existence by printing stock or bond certificates. Someone has had to sweat for them.

* * *

This will bring upon me the censure of certain financial people. They will call it "yellow." If these, my critics, were brought as close to the public as I am by reason of the nation-wide circulation of the Hearst newspapers and the confidence of the public in the honesty of our purpose, they would spend their breath, not in condemning me for voicing a warning, but in exhorting their own class to remove every occasion for reproach and every necessity for revolutionary laws.

GAMBLERS INDICTED; FINED.

CARTERSVILLE.—The July Grand Jury returned 86 true bills, including indictments against a number of prominent young men for gambling. Practically all pleaded guilty and were given light fines by Judge Fite. Proprietors of local drug stores were indicted for selling cigarettes to minors.

Former Atlantan Is Held for Homicide

HOUSTON, TEXAS, July 25.—J. B. Dub, an automobile salesman, who lived in Atlanta until his removal to Texas a few months ago, has been placed under a small bond to appear before the Grand Jury to answer for the death of L. Juenger.

Juenger died from injuries caused by the striking of his head upon the sidewalk when knocked down by Dub. The quarrel occurred July 4, and Juenger lingered in a semi-conscious state until Wednesday.

CAMPER ACCIDENTALLY SLAIN.

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., July 25.—Emmett C. O'Neal, a well-known young newspaper man of Huntsville, was accidentally killed by a revolver in the hands of Fulgham Hall, a fellow member of a camping party near here.

22 PRIZE PONIES AWAIT VICTORS IN CONTEST

Thirteen More Arrive From South Carolina—Red Letter Ballots Will Help Win One.

The 22 ponies to be awarded to The Georgian and American contestants are all on hand. Thirteen arrived Thursday, by express, from John G. Mobley's farm, Winnsboro, S. C., and now are with the nine others in the rear of 55 Loomis street.

The baker's dozen of little animals stood the journey well, and, indeed, were frisky when unloaded and passed before the veterinary inspector. They are strangers to the city and seemingly took great interest in the street cars, the pavements and the other sights which were new to them.

Nothing wins now but subscriptions for The Georgian and American, and subscription to the Sunday American count the fastest, on account of the Red Letter Ballots.

By the use of these Red Letter Ballots, a two-year subscription to The Sunday American yields the contestant 4,500 votes, and a one-year subscription 2,000 votes, while even a six-months subscription yields 800 votes. It should be explained that these are not extra votes. The extra votes are included in these totals.

The Red Letter Ballot offer ends Tuesday night. It is not necessary to clip the ballot from the paper to have these votes counted. It is sufficient to write "Red Letter Ballot" in one corner of the blanks with which the contestants all are provided. And there is no limit to the number of these "Red Letter Ballots" which may be voted.

M'Clure's Employees Hold Yearly Picnic

Emloyees of C. W. McClure's 5 and 10-cent store held their annual picnic at Silver Lake Wednesday. More than a hundred persons were present. The feature of the occasion was an old-fashioned picnic dinner, personally superintended by Mrs. McClure, which was served at 1 o'clock. During the morning there was boating, bathing and foot races.

A baseball game between the retailers, lead by "Blondy" Cain, and the wholesalers, lead by "Lanky" Reams, was played in the afternoon, and was followed by a watermelon cutting.

Hot Air Marks Claim To Perpetual Motion

TURIN, July 25.—Tests have been made before scientists here of a machine invented by a mechanician named Florio, by which, it is claimed, perpetual motion is demonstrated.

The machine collects the inexhaustible caloric energy of the air and transforms it into mechanical energy. The air is supplied automatically, and the apparatus is in continuous motion by reason of the passage of the gas from the warmer atmosphere to the colder water.

Wool Market Active, With Narrow Range

BOSTON, July 25.—Greater activity is noted in the local wool market, sales for the past week being estimated at fully 1,500,000 pounds. Much sampling has been done, but prices are no higher nor is any immediate advance likely. Recent buying has been largely to cover actual needs, as members have been getting some business recently. Buying of the Montana clip is progressing slowly. Prices are practically unchanged. Marketing of the early-bought wools is proving to be more profitable than at one time seemed possible. Apparently this may be credited to the delay in the passage of the new tariff bill.

Receipts of wool in pounds for the week ended and including Wednesday were as follows:

	1913.	1912.

Mining Stocks Hold Up Despite Strike

BOSTON, July 25.—Copper stocks in Boston have been more active since the Michigan strike began and shares of the mines in that district have held up well. The selling has been mostly in small lots. Traders think that the price of the metal is going to advance materially and that for a time there will be larger profits, as there is considerable Lake Copper in stock. It has been going slow during the recent buying movement. A broader market is looked for in view of the demand in the visible supply of copper in general and the fact that American consumers have kept out of the market to await lower prices and now have small stocks on hand.

Issues outside the Lake have advanced as a rule.

E. A. COPELAN PRESIDENT OF MARY-LEILA COTTON MILLS

GREENSBORO, GA., July 25.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Mary-Leila Cotton Mills, E. A. Copelan of Greensboro, was elected president to fill the vacancy caused by the death of W. R. Jackson. W. P. McWhorter, of Woodville, was elected vice president, and P. F. Merritt, of Greensboro, was re-elected secretary and treasurer. E. W. Copelan, of Greensboro, was chosen a director to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Jackson.

STOCK GOSSIP

G. D. Potter says: "I believe the advance in the stock market will continue for some time, with the usual reactions that come from time to time in every bull market. I would advise the purchase of good dividend-paying issues on reactions, especially stocks like Union Pacific, Reading, Copper and Steel."

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, July 25.—At the start to-day the cotton market was steady at a net decline of 4 to 7 points from last night's close. Near positions again showed the greatest weakness, but they were also the first to respond to later covering and soon after the opening the whole market rallied several points, with the shorts nervous over the over-sold condition of the market.

Liverpool was lower than due and brought out scattered selling from the ring. This, together with a perfect weather map, showing further rains in Texas and lower temperatures generally, with indications for more showers, brought on more favorable apprehension that the drouth would not continue. The early firmness was not of long duration. July continued on the toboggan and by noon had increased its decline 11 points from the previous close. August, after advancing 12 points to 11.67, fell back two points under the previous close.

New crop positions were liquidated. The early buying seemed to be profit-taking purchases by shorts and by moderate buying by a few strong spot interests. It seems now that the bull market is about over. Weather and crop advices are excellent. Spots are weakening for the first time in many weeks and new crop cotton is beginning to arrive at various points in Texas. The recent heat and clear weather was regarded as most propitious to the plant and hasten its maturity.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, July 25.—The wheat market at Chicago showed considerable weakness at the opening to-day, net declines of ⅝@½c being recorded during the first half hour of the session. Lower prices at Liverpool, coupled with favorable Russian reports, steadiness of Canadian offerings in that market, expectations of lighter world's shipments and favorable weather in our Northwest being the influences which brought about the lower levels. Trade was not of large volume, with longs selling in a moderate way, and putting out of short lines being indulged in by some of the bears. Reports from the Northwest were to the effect that the crop now in finishing there will turn out better than expected. Northwestern receipts totaled 163 cars and Winnipeg 77 cars compared with 111 and 112 cars respectively for the same day last year.

Corn suffered a decline on further rains in sections where needed. Some short selling was indulged in early and longs were disposing of a protion of their holdings.

Oats followed in the course of the wheat and corn markets.

Provisions were slow and weaker in sympathy with the break of 5 cents in the price of hogs at the yard.

Grain Notes

The Chicago Inter Ocean says: "It is the general belief of the wheat trade that constant export buying will be necessary to maintain the present level of prices, until sufficient of the surplus has been disposed of to make its influence felt as a bullish factor.

"It is the gossip of the corn trade that conditions in the corn market are the reverse of those prevailing last winter. Then the crowd was all bearish and selling short, while the Armour Grain Company was bullish and took hold of the market despite the unfavorable local speculative position and made a good advance. Armour Grain Company is understood to be bearish and has been selling corn short for several days, while the local crowd is bullish and is buying all the corn the Armour interests have.

"Oats specialists said last night that 95 per cent of the local traders were bearish."

Life Costs More---AND LABOR MUST LIVE

Business Men Must Make Their Plans Based Upon Necessary, Inevitable, JUST and Steady Increase of Pay.

(Copyright, 1913.)

Following is an extract from a telegram sent from San Francisco by W. R. Hearst to the manager of his editorial department. The message is recommended to business men generally:

"I believe that the railroad men, and all laboring men, must positively get repeated increases in wages in order to enable them to maintain even their present standard of living, and that they should properly, in the development of our civilization, obtain an even higher standard of living. Business men must count upon increasing wages as one of the inevitable conditions of modern life, and must make their plans and form their enterprises accordingly.

"HEARST."

The opinion expressed in the above dispatch is that OF A MAN WHO PAYS OUT MILLIONS A YEAR IN WAGES, AND THE HIGHEST WAGES.

A man who pays millions annually in wages, and has constantly increased wages throughout his business career, has a right to be heard by employers as well as by workers.

In Congress, when Mr. Hearst appeared to argue in favor of the Eight-Hour law against manufacturers who opposed it, Mr. Hearst pointed out the fact that his opinion concerning the eight-hour day was not theory, but positive knowledge, inasmuch as he himself employed men on the eight-hour-day basis, had done so for years, intended to do so permanently, AND HAD MADE HIS BUSINESS PAY IN SPITE OF THAT HANDICAP, if it were a handicap.

Successful business men in the United States should give careful and open-minded attention to Mr. Hearst's telegram, which is a message from one business man to others, from one considerable employer of labor to other employers of labor.

It is not a hardship for the intelligent business man to pay good wages and work his men fair hours, IF OTHER BUSINESS MEN DO THE SAME.

The great thing is that business men shall have an understanding, that they shall realize that they and the workers are actually partners in national welfare, AND THAT THEY SHALL FIGHT AGAINST THE MEAN, NARROW AND HARMFUL MAN WHO REFUSES TO DO THE JUST AND HONORABLE THING.

If a thousand men employ a million workers in a certain line of effort, and if they all pay their men well and give them reasonable hours, THAT IS FAIR FOR EVERY EMPLOYER.

The trouble with our system is that the hard-hearted, narrow-minded, close-fisted man, who goes off by himself, shunning organization, refusing co-operation, and competing upon a basis of the lowest wages and the longest hours, has been allowed to enjoy his prosperity and his thrift through meanness without question.

Let the employers work on an even, just basis as to wages and hours, and then THE BEST MAN WILL WIN—the business man will win who has the best ideas, the highest intelligence and is able to render the greatest public service.

All that the good business man asks, all that the fair employer wants, is justice and the opportunity to compete for business success and prosperity on an even basis with other men of his own class.

The salvation and prosperity of this country, menaced now by half-baked ideas of half-baked Democrats at Washington, have been based very largely upon the fact that the United States through the tariff has been protected from the unfair competition of the unfair foreign employer and ill-treated foreign labor.

American business men, thanks to the tariff, have had to compete ONLY WITH AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN

The man who has made iron in this country, and who paid his puddlers as much as $8 a day and more, has not had to worry about the man in Belgium who was paying for the same labor less than one-quarter.

The man manufacturing goods in this country has manufactured in competition with AMERICAN employers, and need not keep his mind upon the problem of meeting the competition of some Chinese manufacturer able to get labor for five cents a day.

American industry has grown, American prosperity has grown, American wages have grown—AND THE COST OF LIVING, INCLUDING FARMERS' PROFITS, ALSO HAS GROWN, because over here we have kept our markets to ourselves, and competition has been among men living, working, manufacturing and competing on the same terms.

What will happen if Democrats who believe that they know all about business, manufactures and industry, BECAUSE THEY HAVE NEVER HAD ANYTHING TO DO WITH THOSE THINGS, are to have their way, if the tariff wall is to be torn down suddenly and the competition of the meanest foreign employers and the lowest paid foreign labor is to be met, is another story.

Fortunately, one election is followed by another election. It will not be difficult for workers and employers combined to have their way AT ANOTHER ELECTION and correct the threatening follies of this Administration.

The main thing is that those now working in this country, whether they work with their hands, as laborers and mechanics, or with their brains, as employers, should co-operate on a friendly basis, through the making of laws, for the establishment of minimum wage rates, especially as regards women, and in other sane, friendly and legal ways for the bettering of conditions.

It is time to get away from the days of strikes, of dynamite, of Homestead shootings by paid Pinkerton thugs, or Los Angeles explosions by degraded, depraved misrepresentatives of labor.

It is important that those who employ labor should recognize the truth of Mr. Hearst's statement in the above telegram, "that railroad men and all laboring men must positively get repeated increases in wages in order to enable them to maintain even their present standard of living, and that they should properly, in the development of our civilization, obtain an even higher standard of living."

The workingman to-day gets not twice, but three times, four times and five times what he got when this country was young.

McMaster, the historian, writes of a day when there was JUST ONE MECHANIC IN THE UNITED STATES ABLE TO MAKE A DOLLAR A DAY ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

One President of the United States, a well meaning man, was filled with gloom and thought the country was going to the dogs because when he spoke you could no longer hire a first-class man in this country for less than fifty cents a day.

If you had told an employer of those old days, even a George Washington, a Thomas Jefferson, or any other first-class old American, that one day in this country unskilled labor would demand and get two dollars a day and skilled mechanics three dollars, four dollars, five dollars a day and more, those old Americans would have said, "Well, the country must go to the dogs; the thing is impossible."

When you say to-day that wages, high as they seem to some, must be increased, and ought to be increased, the man of to-day, if he be shortsighted, will tell you that it is impossible, and that the country must go to the dogs.

BUT IT IS NOT IMPOSSIBLE, AND THE COUNTRY NEED NOT GO TO THE DOGS.

The American employer of to-day is better off, being richer, bigger in his enterprise, safer in his undertakings, than his predecessor who used to be able to hire a first-class man for fifty cents a day.

The men that own the street railways and pay $2.50 per day are better off than they were in the days when they got their labor for $1.00 or $1.10.

After all, what is the chief asset of the employer? Is it not the competent well-fed worker?

And far above the interest of the individual employer, what is the chief asset of the nation? Is it not a population of well-fed men, well paid, with time to rest, time for mental improvement, money enough to keep their children out of the mills and mines, and in school?

Not with hatred, bitterness and regret, but with pleasure as good citizens, the competent American business men, united, with laws to protect them, fighting the unfair competition of low wages and long hours, should gladly recognize that the purpose of a republic is not merely to make a few rich and protect them in their wealth, but to make the entire population happy, contented and prosperous.

Very gladly the employers of intelligence and power must, as Mr. Hearst says, "count upon increasing wages as one of the inevitable conditions of modern life, and make their plans and form their enterprises accordingly."

The employer should be reasonable and just.

And the workers should be reasonable, honest and fair.

We ought to be able to get away from an industrial system of fighting, hatred, battle and strikes.

The worker should be content to give a fair and full day's work for a fair day's wages and fair hours of work.

We should get away from these days when the employer does his best to get the most that he can out of the workman, and give him the least possible; and when the worker's thought and that of his leader is to get the most he can out of the employer and give the least possible.

Workers and employers should treat each other justly, combining as associates, friends and brothers, and GIVE TO THIS NATION AND TO THE FUTURE THE BEST POSSIBLE PRODUCT OF THEIR COMBINED BRAINS AND MUSCLE, ORGANIZED AND APPLIED IN SUCH A WAY AS NOT TO INTERFERE WITH THE HEALTH, THE HAPPINESS, THE MENTAL GROWTH OF THE PRESENT GENERATION, OR THE WELFARE OF THE GENERATIONS TO COME.

DR. PARKHURST

Writes on

Extravagance

It Is Both a Form of Lunacy and Immorality, He Declares.

Written For The Georgian

By the Rev. Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

THERE is such a thing as extravagance. The word stands for the wild use of money. It is barbarism expressing itself in the unreasoning scattering of dollars.

It is both a form of lunacy and a form of immorality—lunacy, because there is no sense in it; immorality, because it is a contemptuous waste of values.

Poor as Well as Rich.

No man has so much money as to warrant his expending it without a calculation of rational returns, returns accruing either to the enrichment of his own life or the life of someone else.

That is a principle which is being grossly disregarded, and the habits of people are tending more and more strongly in that direction.

This holds of the poor as well as of the rich, although in the case of the former it comes to less conspicuous expression and is therefore less thought of or commented upon.

The money that hundreds of thousands of poor people expend in whisky, beer and tobacco is both idiotic and wicked.

It is idiotic because it helps to keep them poor; it is wicked because it devotes to sheer animalism treasure that ought to go to higher ends, and which might be so utilized as to raise them to a higher level of human value.

"Stage of Vulgarity."

The poor man in Scripture who put his money where it would bring back to him no sensible return was cast into the outer darkness. That is the Bible's way of characterizing a senseless and vicious treatment of assets.

This silly extravagance of the poor is encouraged by the same habit practiced on a more stupendous scale by the rich.

The uncalculating and therefore iniquitous scattering of money by men with large fortunes is one of the features of the times.

As the late D. Willis James once remarked to me, "It has reached the stage of vulgarity."

Passion for luxury has been one of the causes assigned for the sinking of the Titanic; and now we have got the Imperator, and there are more coming.

A quarter of a century ago no one thought of a suite of rooms aboard ship costing above $500.

The figure has mounted now to $5,000. One can secure now, for $500, accommodations just as comfortable, just as well suited to personal and physical requirements, as were obtainable at that figure 25 years ago, and that would leave a margin of $4,500 expended without any rational or righteous return.

"Barbaric and Sinful."

Now, when we consider the wise and necessary uses to which money can be put, the beneficent institutions that need to be supported, the causes of every kind that languish for want of funds, the destitute women and children that go poorly clad and miserably fed and unfed, I say that, when such considerations are taken into account, for a man to lay out $5,000 or any considerable part of that for the sake of luxuries of six days' steamer travel is both barbaric and sinful.

And any man, no matter how much money he has, who has risen above the level of barbarism and sin ought to be ashamed to be publicly advertised as having sacrificed a sum so egregious on the altar of his own personal and animal comfort.

FRANK DEFENSE BEGINS SUBPENAING WITNESES

5 REPORTED HURT IN CRASH

Athens Accommodation Hits Open Switch as It Enters the Yards in Athens.

The Seaboard accommodation from Athens ran into an open switch Friday morning just opposite the National Furniture Company plant on Marietta street, endangering the lives of scores of passengers as the engine, turning completely over, pulled several of the cars off the rails.

Four persons were reported hurt in the accident, according to a report to Grady Hospital, but others said that the passengers had escaped.

As the big locomotive skipped the rails and began toppling, the engineer leaped and escaped unhurt. The fireman was badly injured, being crushed in the overturned engine.

Physicians were rushed to the scene from Grady Hospital and the police also were called. Employees in nearby factories went to the aid of the passengers who were later transferred to street cars to be taken into town.

JACOBS

Doubt Report That Dr. Jacobs Bought Burns' Manuscript

Members of the family of Dr. Joseph Jacobs are not inclined to believe the report that he has purchased the famous Glenriddell manuscripts of Robert Burns for a sum exceeding $25,000 bid several years ago by J. Pierpont Morgan. The purchase of the manuscripts by the Atlantan is told of in London dispatches.

"I don't think there is any truth to the report," Dr. Sinclair Jacobs, son of Dr. Jacobs, said Friday morning. "If the manuscripts had been purchased we undoubtedly would have been notified, and we have heard nothing of it except what we have read in the papers. Dr. Jacobs, so far as I know, has not been near London on his present trip to Europe."

According to the London dispatches, Dr. Jacobs purchased the manuscripts from a dealer in London, who recently bought them from the Liverpool Athenaeum. It is said that the deal between Dr. Jacobs and the dealer was pending at the time of the first purchase of the manuscripts, and that the London dealer was merely Dr. Jacobs' agent in the transaction.

Latest Counterfeit $5 a Poor Specimen

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The discovery of a new counterfeit five-dollar "Indian head" silver certificate is announced by Chief W. J. Flynn of the Secret Service. The spurious note apparently is printed from crudely etched plates on fair quality bond paper, with ink lines to imitate the silk fabric of the genuine. The Indian portrait is poor, and on the back of the note, grass green in color, little attempt has been made to imitate the lathe work.

Chief Flynn said the counterfeit should not deceive the ordinarily careful handler of money.

Fluid Acts Like X-Ray On Body After Death

PHILADELPHIA, July 25.—Physicians of the Hahnemann Hospital and Medical College are perfecting a process based on discoveries of a fluid by a German scientist which will make the human body transparent after death.

Students can study the veins, muscles and bones far more easily by the new method, it is said. The fluid can not be used before death.

'PRETTY GIRL' EXHIBIT AT CANAL FAIR URGED

MISS GEORGE GREEN.

Booster Club Probably Will Send Pictures of Ten Leaders in Beauty Contest.

A reader suggests that the pictures of the ten leading beauties in the booster button contest be included in the Georgia exhibit at the Panama Exposition in San Francisco.

It is not unlikely this suggestion will be carried out by the Booster Club.

When the prettiest girl finally is selected for the "500,000 Club" booster button her face will become the emblem of that organization, but her name will not be on the buttons. The only words under the pretty face will be the slogan: "Watch Atlanta—She'll Get You Yet."

Miss George Green, of No. 222 North Jackson street, is one of the entrants to-day. She is another brunette and makes the number of brunettes equal to the blondes in the contest. At first it seemed that the blondes would predominate.

Nominations still are invited. Girls nominated now will have practically as good an opportunity from the standpoint of time as those suggested at the first. It is with The Georgian readers who is to be selected, the nomination and voting coupons being published each day.

HELD IN SHOOTING CASE.

COLUMBUS.—D. D. Bloom, a well-known young business man of Columbus, was bound over to the Superior Court on charges of shooting at another and having a pistol without license, the bond in each case being fixed at $100 by the Recorder.

INITIATION PLAY IS FATAL TO TWO MEN

BIRMINGHAM, July 25.—In the presence of 125 members of the secret fraternal Order of the Moose, in Moose Hall last night, Donald A. Kenny, president of the local Chauffeurs' Union, and Christopher Gustin, an iron molder, met almost instantaneous death from an overshock of electricity received while being initiated into the organization.

Both were young and strong men. Other candidates going through the same initiation before them were not injured.

After Kenny was seen to be sinking and before John P. Abbott, presiding officer, could stop the proceedings, Gustin also had been fatally injured.

Dead in Five Minutes.

Both men died within five minutes, although the lodge physician, Dr. L. V. Neill, was present and lent immediate attention.

The ceremony that proved fatal is the branding one. The candidate stands upon a tilting board with his chest bared. A magneto is connected with his leg by a metal band and chain.

A horseshoe metal Moose emblem is heated red hot before his eyes and a man advances toward him holding the heated iron as if to brand him on the chest.

NEW TAXES TO COVER OUTGO

Unless Senate Changes Appropriations Bill It Stands in No Danger of Veto.

If the general appropriations bill is permitted by the Senate to stand practically as it comes from the House of Representatives, it will go to the Governor with no threat of veto hanging over it, nor will it be the occasion in any degree of an extraordinary session of the Legislature.

The appropriations bill, within itself, will be satisfactory to the Executive, in that it will not carry more appropriations than can be met, if the general and special tax acts are made what they should be.

The fact that the House added $100,000 to the common school fund, thereby increasing the total appropriations some $50,000 over those of last year, is not necessarily alarming.

The tax of $5 on automobiles alone will more than make that up. It is proposed to tax all machines a flat $5 per annum hereafter.

Will Get Only a Receipt.

Heretofore automobiles have been taxed $2 merely, when registered. Once that was paid, no further charges were assessed against them. And the bulk of that $2 has gone to pay for the emblazoned number furnished the owner of the machine free of cost.

A flat tax of $5 per annum on all machines, however, with nothing to be furnished the owner of the car but a written receipt, will add over $100,000 to the State's income yearly, thus offsetting the Legislature's increase in the school fund.

As the legislative situation shapes up to-day, therefore, the appropriations bill will have plain and easy sailing and is sure to meet the Governor's approval, if not greatly increased in the Senate.

The two acts that can upset all the administration's plans now are the general tax and the tax equalization measures.

Teachers Still Unpaid.

There is a deficit in the State Treasury, and the school teachers still are unpaid.

The State institutions have been cut to the very marrow of their bones and can not get along with less money than the geenral appropriations bill carries.

The Governor and the chairman of the Appropriations Committee understand each other on that point.

What the Governor insists must be done is to find a way to wipe out the deficit and pay the teachers, and this way must be found through the tax acts.

Naturally, therefore, the one thing that is disturbing the Governor to-day is the prospective bitter wrangle in the House over the tax equalization.

If a tax equalization act is passed which makes no provision for a State board to equalize the counties, it generally is agreed that it will be useless.

At the same time, it likely will be impossible to create a State board of far-reaching powers.

Tax Reform Problem Now.

The problem now is to get a compromise measure through that will start tax reform on the right road if it takes another and different Legislature to perfect the work.

The Governor is dead set against a bond issue to take up the deficit or to pay the teachers. He thinks it would be a dangerous precedent. He is advocating a constitutional increase in the tax rate, temporarily, as the shortest way out of the woods, even if it is not a plan he particularly relishes.

He argues that the State is up against a condition that it must get around, and that the State's debts must be paid, even if a distasteful thing has to be done in effecting their payment.

Priest, Forced to Take Holy Orders, Released by Pope

ROME, July 25.—The Congregation of the Sacraments has rendered a decision in a case which has lasted for four years, and which has been much discussed in ecclesiastical circles. Twelve years ago a priest named Arena asked to be allowed to give up the priesthood. He pleaded that twelve years ago he had been compelled by his parents to take Holy Orders. He alleged that he obeyed his parents against his will. This was confirmed by several witnesses.

The Congregation of the Sacraments, which was presided over by Cardinal Farrata, decided to cancel the priest's orders. It held that they had been conferred against his will, and were therefore invalid. It recommended that Arena be released from his vows.

The Pope approved the verdict.

Grand Jury Head Shoots Three Men

AIKEN, S. C., July 25.—In the presence of nine negroes and three white men, on a public highway six miles from town, Jason Spires, foreman of the present Aiken County grand jury, shot two white men and an old negro to-day.

The men wounded are Moseley Randall, shot in right lung and upper part of right arm; Jenks Randall, shot in left groin, and John Lattimer, negro, flesh wound.

The Randall brothers, with another white man, were in charge of a gang of nine negroes working the Silver Bluff Road. When the gang reached Spire's place, it is said, he demanded that no work be done in front of his residence. The shooting resulted.

Risque French Songs Scandalize Belgians

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BRUSSELS, July 25.—Cardinal Mercier, head of the Catholic Church in Belgium, published a letter advising Catholic parents to keep their children away from certain parts of the Ghent International Exhibition, especially the sections devoted to paintings and sketches by French humorists and to Belgian decorative art in which nude figures are prominent.

Carton DeWiart, Minister of Justice, has given strict instructions to watch theatrical productions, cinematographs and smut songs imported from France.

Titled Suffragette Is Sentenced to Jail

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, July 25.—Declaring that they will serve their imprisonment rather than pay fines, Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, Lady Sybil Smith and Miss Evelyn Sharpe, who were arrested yesterday when they tried to hold a suffrage meeting at the entrance to the House of Commons, were taken to jail to-day. The women were fined $200 or the option of spending fourteen days in jail.

Lady Smith is a daughter of the Earl of Antrim and the wife of Vivian H. Smith, a partner in the firm of Morgan, Grenfell & Co.

South Africa Faces Nation-Wide Strike

Special Cable to The Georgian.

JOHANNESBURG, July 25.—A general strike is threatened in South Africa. The populace to-day is anxiously awaiting the Government's reply to the demands of the railroad employees and miners. Unless the demands are met the men say they will walk out.

The strike would tie up all industry and work great hardship throughout the country.

MISS THEO PRIOLEAU INJURED

Atlanta Society Girl Hurt, Man Killed in Auto Crash at Monroe, La.

Miss Theo Prioleau, a prominent Atlanta society girl living at No. 70 East Merritts avenue, was seriously injured Thursday night at Monroe, La., in an automobile accident which resulted in the death of one of the men in the party, according to a dispatch received by The Georgian Friday morning.

The car is said to have been speeding when the crash occurred. All the persons in the automobile were hurled out as the car careened. Miss Prioleau's companion was killed almost instantly.

She was picked up unconscious and, with the other members of the automobile party, hurried to the hospital. Her injuries are not expected to be fatal.

Mrs. E. L. Prioleau, her mother, had not heard of the accident when seen by a Georgian reporter Friday morning. She was prostrated with grief in the fear that the injuries to her daughter had been minimized. She said that her daughter had been visiting friends and relatives in Monroe, and was intending to return home within a few days.

The victim of the accident is well known in Atlanta society circles and is a sister of Morris Prioleau, who formerly was with the Southern Bell Telephone Company.

Cadet's Very Last Kiss Holds Up Big Liner 3 Minutes

NEW YORK, July 25.—"A last kiss, my darling!"

He got it

Miss Eva Mountrey, of Louisville, Ky., was sailing on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, and her fiance, Augustus Dillon, a West Point cadet, was bidding her good-bye.

"All visitors ashore!" shouted a petty officer near the sweethearts.

"A very last kiss, beloved!" exclaimed Dillon.

"All visitors ashore!" howled a chorus of petty officers and stewards.

"A very, very last kiss, mine own!" begged the cadet.

Chief Officer Moeller interrupted the clinging embrace.

"Young man," said Moeller, "you have held the ship three minutes. Go ashore!"

M'Clure's Employees Hold Yearly Picnic

Emloyees of C. W. McClure's 5 and 10-cent store held their annual picnic at Silver Lake Wednesday. More than a hundred persons were present. The feature of the occasion was an old-fashioned picnic dinner, personally superintended by Mrs. McClure, which was served at 1 o'clock. During the morning there was boating, bathing and foot races.

A baseball game between the retailers, lead by "Blondy" Cain, and the wholesalers, lead by "Lanky" Reams, was played in the afternoon, and was followed by a watermelon cutting.

Uncle Sam Tries to Get Turkey's Goat

WASHINGTON, July 25.—A plea to the Government of Turkey and South Africa to allow male angora goats to be exported to the United States is contained in a bill offered by Senator Sheppard of Texas.

This goat getting proposition takes the diplomatic form of authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to enter into negotiations with the two Governments to seek more favorable conditions in their live stock exportation laws.

Bulgars Ask Aid in Keeping Out Turks

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

SOFIA, July 25.—Her warlike spirit curbed by the continued defeats inflicted on her army by the other Balkan States, Bulgaria to-day appealed to the powers to stop the invasion of her country by the Turks. The appeal is made in the interest of Christianity.

It is likely that restraining influence on Turkey will come from Russia, with the consent of the other powers.

VENIREMEN SERVED IN PHAGAN CASE

Neglect of Defense to Subpoena Witnesses Taken to Mean Postponement May Be Asked.

That the trial of Leo M. Frank, charged with the murder of Mary Phagan, would begin next Monday morning unless the attorneys for the State or the accused made a good and sufficient legal showing when the case was formally called that would convince the court it would be impossible to proceed, was the statement of Superior Judge L. S. Roan Friday morning.

Luther Rosser said Thursday he would begin summoning witnesses for the defense during the day and the indications are that the trial will go on Monday were greatly strengthened.

Judge Roan considered it highly improbable that the case would be put off on account of his indisposition. He said that he was in the best of health, and that if any continuance were secured it would be at the request of the State's attorney or the counsel for the accused man.

"I had a slight attack of indigestion Wednesday night," he said, "but I was all right Thursday morning and opened court at Covington. I disposed of three murder trials before noon, and left for Atlanta at 12:30 in the afternoon.

Judge to Require Good Reason.

"To the best of my knowledge the trial of Leo M. Frank will begin next Monday. The only possibility of postponement would be some very good and sufficient legal reason for a continuance advanced by the State or the defense. During the eleven years I have been on the bench I have never postponed a trial on account of being ill, and I will not consider any personal inconvenience next Monday.

"The reason in not drawing the jury earlier was to guard against several of the veniremen leaving the city rather than to serve.

"The date set was in the nature of an agreement, and I would imagine both sides were ready and willing for the trial to go on."

Defense's Attitude a Puzzle.

Despite the assurance of Judge Roan that the case would go on and the announcement of the State's attorney, Hugh M. Dorsey, that all his witnesses had been summoned and he would insist on going to trial, the refusal of the attorneys for Frank to make any statement whatever and the report that no witnesses for the defense had been subpenaed indicated strongly that a postponement would be sought on some ground that the attorneys were confident would be sufficient.

The weather will not play any part in securing a postponement unless the mercury registers 99 degrees or higher. Judge Roan said that he laughingly remarked last Saturday that if the temperature was as high next Monday as it was then he would be glad to continue the case. He said that he had not considered such a proposition seriously, but if it got so hot as to be extremely uncomfortable, he might consider a postponement.

Special deputies were sworn in Friday morning to begin serving the 144 veniremen whose names were drawn Thursday afternoon by Judge John T. Pendleton. It will be late Saturday evening before the last man can be served, according to Deputy Sheriff Plennie Miner, who had charge of the extra men.

The fact that the jury actually was drawn and several had been served Friday morning and that the State's witnesses were already under subpena to be at the courtroom Monday morning was the strongest assurance that the trial would actually begin.

Judge Roan had been averse to putting the State to the expense of serving the jury until it was reasonably certain the trial would begin, and he will urge that both sides go to trial rather than inconvenience the jury and witnesses, many of whom will make arrangements to absent themselves from work to be at the courtroom Monday.

Jim Conley was questioned again late Thursday and was made to rehearse his movements on the day of the tragedy, being taken to the various places he asserted he visited the forenoon and afternoon of April 26.

Chief Beavers assumed charge of the negro, and was assisted by Detectives Starnes and Campbell, who had taken Conley to the Tower the day before without the Chief's permission.

Taken From Cell Secretly.

Conley was taken from the station secretly, and the four were in the Chief's automobile and out of sight before the officers' intentions were known. The negro was taken to Carter street and Electric avenue, the point where William H. Mincey swears he saw Conley the afternoon of April 26, and heard him boast of killing a girl.

That the detectives are bending every effort either to discredit or establish definitely the Mincey affidavit was made evident by the number of persons they interviewed, with the purpose of ascertaining if anyone had seen Conley at the place and at the time Mincey says he had his conversation with the negro.

Conley also was taken to the office of Solicitor Dorsey, where he was quizzed closely in regard to his reported remark when crowds began to gather near the factory that he "would give a million dollars if he were a white man." The remark was said to have been overheard by another negro, and this negro was in the Solicitor's office to confront Conley.

Chief Beavers would not divulge the results of the afternoon's work except to say that nothing had developed to change his theory of the crime.

Dr. O'Kelley Choice For Head of Mercer

Macon, July 25.—Dr. T. W. O'Kelley, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Raleigh, N. C., likely will be the next president of Mercer University. He was selected by a special committee of the trustees from a list of sixteen, and the offer has been tendered him.

Dr. W. W. Landrum, of Louisville, formerly of Atlanta, is favored in the event Dr. O'Kelley declines. A definite answer from the latter is expected in a few days.

Rebels Again Attack Arsenal at Shanghai

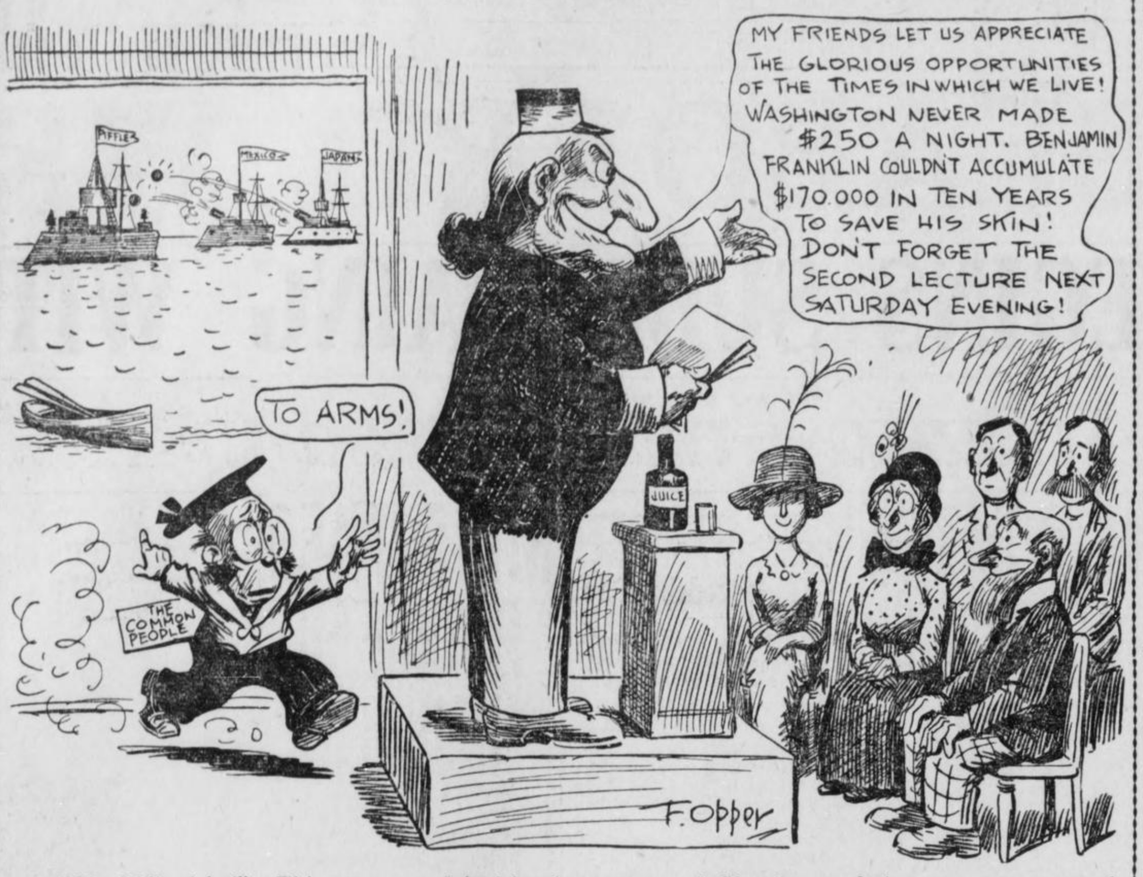
Special Cable to The Georgian.

SHANGHAI, July 25.—Despite repeated repulses, the Southern rebels to-day began another attack on the Shanghai arsenal. The losses on both sides have been heavy.

Reinforcements are being rushed to the rebels from other Southern States, and it is feared that desperate fighting will take place in a few days.

THE CRUISE OF THE "PIFFLE"!

Copyright, 1913, International News Service.



"Oh, fiddlesticks!" This strong and incisive language, so habitual to seafaring men, was uttered by Admiral Juice, of the battleship "Piffle," as he prepared to begin his lecture in the Jonesville Opera House! "Rarely has it been my good fortune to address such a magnificent audience," he continued. "Ah, my friends, we sailors lead a hard life! Think of it! Only $12,000 a year! No wonder you weep! It's fierce!" At this moment the second mate of the "Piffle" rushed into the hall shouting: "The Japs and Mexicans are attacking the ship! They say you're a lobster and they can lick you!" With perfect coolness the brave old sea-dog replied, "Send a flag of truce to the enemy and invite them to a basket picnic in the grove this afternoon! Tell them I'll deliver a lecture at two dollars a head!" Scarcely had he spoken these words when an awful—

WARNS AGAINST EUROPE'S SEA MONOPOLY

Roger Sullivan Declares U. S. Must Awake to Its Opportunities When Canal Opens.

Special Cable to The Georgian.

PARIS, July 24.—"The United States is sleeping while Europe is snatching the opportunity under our noses," said Roger C. Sullivan, of Chicago, to-day. Accompanied by former Mayor John Hopkins, of Chicago, he had just arrived in Paris after a visit of two months to South America.

"The opening of the Panama Canal is sure greatly to increase the already vast commercial interests of South America," declared Mr. Sullivan, "and the leading nations of Europe, foreseeing this result, are busily engaged in building ships.

"Our Government should immediately take steps to subsidize the merchant marine, otherwise it may be too late. Private capital unaided by the Government can not hope to compete with the established merchant fleets of foreign countries. It is shameful that a citizen of the United States wishing to visit South America is obliged to travel in British owned ships.

"I want to say right now that there are some fine cities in South America. There are mighty few things in Chicago that Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Ayres lack. They have beautiful theaters and public buildings, broad boulevards and vigorous populations.

"Their ports, harbors and docks make Chicago look cheap. We do not pay enough attention to our waterways. What is needed now is a great harbor somewhere on the Gulf of Mexico, either at New Orleans or Mobile.

"Then if we subsidized the merchant marine our South American trade would soon swell to great proportions."

DRAW SPACE FOR ATLANTA EXHIBIT

Local Manufacturers To Be Allotted Booths at Permanent Display Friday.

Space in the permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods, which will be established in the new headquarters of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce building at Auburn avenue and Pryor street, will be allotted Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock. On account of the limited space at the disposal of the committee in charge of the allotment, it is expected that a number of local manufacturers will be present to arrange for their exhibit.

Virtually every manufacturer of importance in the city has consented to add an exhibit to the permanent display, and those who do not come in now are expected to join the movement later.

The decision to establish the exhibit in the Chamber of Commerce building was made Thursday afternoon by a special committee headed by Brooks Morgan, which has been considering various locations for several weeks.

The committee favored the establishment of the exhibit in the chamber's building from the beginning of the movement, inasmuch as the chamber is the sponsor of the movement, and several days ago the directors were asked to name a price for a lease on the upper floors of the building.

In addition to the exhibit of their goods, the building is being fitted up with other features that are expected to appeal to the manufacturers and merchants who will join in the display. A swimming pool, baths and a gymnasium will be provided for the manufacturers and members of the chamber.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

The daily morning prayer of the blind Chaplain of the House of Representatives, the Rev. J. H. Ellis, is a thanksgiving always.

Rather than petitioning for more blessings and more abundant prosperity, the Chaplain devotes by far the greater portion of his supplication in the House to reminding the members of the countless blessings they now enjoy, and for which they should render ungrudgingly their thanks to the Most High.

Not since he began his term of service in the House has the blind Chaplain started a prayer with words other than these, "Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee!" and so on to the end of as simple and as sweet a prayer as ever was delivered anywhere.

The blind Chaplain of the House is a most interesting person. He always is at his post of duty, well in advance of the Speaker's rap for order, and he remains after the House gets down to work from 30 minutes to an hour or more every day.

Mr. Ellis is slight of build, but clear of voice. Few speakers on the floor fill the House so completely as he, and his prayers every morning are given close attention. He is completely blind and has to be led when walking. He is a very lovable man, and the Speaker hardly could have filled the Chaplain's place more acceptably or more sensibly.

The House meets every morning at 9 o'clock now, but there never is a quorum present at roll call.

Try as the House will, it hardly can get itself together before 10, somehow. Members either sleep late, are more or less indifferent to the first 30 minutes or so, or resent being called to work at 9. Whatever it is, the hour of 9 generally finds the House not more than half filled.

After the roll call is finished—unless it is dispensed with, which frequently it is—members drop in and ask that they be recorded as present.

This courtesy generally is accorded them without protest, and it gives the tardy ones considerable leeway in the matter of getting in late and still not having the record recite the circumstance.

Judge Robert Hodges, of Macon, is in Atlanta to-day and spent quite a time in the House and Senate, renewing old acquaintances and looking things over.

Mr. Hodges represented Bibb County in the House several times back yonder—well, not so many years ago after all—and was then one of the best liked and most influential members. He was in the House when his fellow-townsman, Augustus Octavius Bacon, was first named Senator, and took a great part in the work of conferring the honor upon him.

In those days the Legislature elected the Senators, without any sort of primary instructions, and Senator Bacon was named—he was re-elected to a fourth term unopposed a few days since—after a hard fight.

"Bob" Hodges, then serving his first term, was the man who carried the news from the Capitol to the Kimball House.

Judge Hodges has presided over the City Court of Macon for some twelve years, and is regularly renamed without opposition. Indeed, it is extremely doubtful whether Judge Hodges could be defeated for his present office, no matter who undertook the job.

Occasionally Speaker Burwell yanks the House back to business rather abruptly, when it gets negligent or lags in its work.

In passing local measures it is necessary to agree to the report of the committee before a bill may be passed, and this agreement is made upon a verbal division merely.

The other day the Speaker proposed the uninteresting status thus: "Those who favor agreeing to the report of the committee will say 'Aye.'" Nobody said anything.

Burwell whacked the much-abused block of wood in front of him for order, and yelled the status of the House again, and with decided emphasis, moreover.

This time the committee report was agreed to by a chorus of "ayes" that might have been heard to Whitehall street.

Then Burwell smiled, and the House laughed good-naturedly, and there was no more trouble that day.

The county of Barrow was given a temporary setback yesterday, when the Senate, by a margin of four votes, declined to ratify the action of the House committee, the House and the Senate committee in favoring it.

The advocates of Barrow still are very much in the ring, however. The bill will be reconsidered—it takes a majority only of the Senate to do this, and the Senate is for Barrow by a big majority—and then it will go over to the next session.

No more gallant fight ever has been made in the Legislature than the one put up for Barrow. This is the fourth time that plucky community has come to the Legislature, only to be knifed and bushwhacked to death in one chamber or the other. It will come again, however—and eventually Barrow County will be created.

It has the one thing behind it that so many new-county proposals lack—genuine and admitted merit.

Senator McNeil is an eloquent and forceful speaker. He has a sense of genuine humor, too, that often crops out in his speeches unconsciously, but most engagingly.

Speaking of the Legislature and the cost of it Thursday, Senator McNeil said: "Why, Senators, do you know it costs the State $1,500 per day to run this show?"

The Senate tittered, and one Senator stage-whispered, "You mean 'circus,' don't you, McNeil?" And McNeil smiled his acceptance of the amendment.

ATLANTA WOMAN TRIES 'CUBIST' SPELLING

New System Prepared by Mrs. Grace Keefer Founded on Lines and Angles.

A simplified spelling book which may revolutioinze the method of teaching the kids their A B C's in the grammar schools is being prepared for publication by an Atlanta woman, Mrs. Grace Keefer, of No. 80 East Fourteenth street.

"Sanders' Square Speller" is the title of the new book, which is a collaboration of some old ideas expressed more than a half century ago by Charles W. Sanders, author of the original Sanders speller series, and some new and strictly up-to-date ideas which Mrs. Keefer, granddaughter of the noted author, has been formulating for several years. The book will be published in New York under the copyright of Charles W. Sanders.

Founded on Mathematics.

The book, Mrs. Keefer explains, is just what its name implies—it is "square," or, in other words, it is founded on mathematical principles evolving from the first well-known step in geometry—the straight line connecting with another at right angles. This, Mrs. Keefer claims, is not only the foundation of her system of spelling, but the basic principle of life itself. "Take your two straight lines forming the right angle," she says, "and then add your signs and symbols, including the crooks and curves which characterize the more advanced stages of geometry, and you have the whole system of language, of geography, of history—even of life itself." In a nutshell the Sanders system of spelling is by signs and symbols—Mrs. Keefer calls it "Signology."

Meaning to Every Letter.

"'Every little letter has a meaning all its own,'" was the characteristic way in which Mrs. Keefer summed up her unique system. "Take the letter A, for instance, it stands at the head always—it is "ahead," and the letter B, which I term aptly, I think, the combining force. From an artist's viewpoint, alone, the letter B exhibits this so-called "combining" and further, in many words, beginning with B, such as ball, we discover this idea of combination, compactness.

"And so on down the line—the letter C, carrying the symbolic idea of contraction; D, the downward force; E, the outward force, as indicated clearly by the construction of the letter; F, the potential force, as in 'face,' for example; G, the carrying force; H, uplift; I, the unit or basic principle—and L, the right-angled letter, or the letter of balance."

Lucid Scheme Employed.

To make the scheme as lucid as possible to teachers as well as youngsters, Mrs. Keefer has prepared a series of simple illustrations, involving her principles, to accompany each letter of the alphabet. A further feature of the unique system is the arrangement in squares of every word containing three letters.

Mrs. Keefer is a graduate of Vassar College, class of '90. Since leaving college, and even before, she has made a close study of the original Hebrew, which, she says, is really the foundation of her system of spelling.

DOOM OF MONEY JUGGLER SEEN BY FORBES

Says Revolutionary Spirit Is Rampant, Which Presages Laws to Stop Manipulations.

By B. C. FORBES.

"How did they make their millions?"

* * *

That question is often put to me when I seek to defend certain financial, railroad and industrial leaders against grave charges. I'm tempted to mention names that are freely held up as examples of men who got rich quick—too quick. For some of them no defense can be offered. They have been out-and-out jugglers, polite swindlers, suave crooks.

"How can men working on salary—even $100,000 a year—become millionaires in a few years without having been dishonest?" is another form of the query.

* * *

Well, the most charitable explanation, and one near the truth in many instances, can be given in two words: "Inside information."

* * *

LAWS ARE COMING THAT WILL FORCE "INSIDE INFORMATION" TO BE TRANSFORMED VERY PROMPTLY INTO PUBLIC INFORMATION. THE "INSIDER'S" PRIVILEGES ARE TO BE CURTAILED RADICALLY.

* * *

I have been tremendously impressed by the depth and warmth of public discontent over the tactics of speculating directors, over the iniquitous habit of many "insiders" in using exclusive information for their personal aggrandizement.

* * *

Directors are servants of security holders, not their masters. They are elected by stockholders TO SERVE them, not to deceive them. Too many directors forget this. Too many of them forget their responsibilities in their anxiety to turn their conferred powers into cash for their own bank accounts.

* * *

The handwriting points to important changes, to much-needed laws governing the action of directors and officers of corporations.

* * *

Guilt must be brought home to INDIVIDUALS, not to corporations. Some PERSON is responsible for every act committed. Very well, let the new laws aim at punishing the criminal MEN.

* * *

I hope to prepare a short, simple digest of the excellent British laws which cover this subject. These laws are singularly effective. They fasten responsibility on individuals, never on corporations. Occasionally there are financial scandals in England, but Whitaker Wrights are thrown into prison there, whereas they go into palaces here and become, instead of convicts, "gentlemen" of note, fawned upon and flattered and kow-towed to because of their wealth.

* * *

In this country we have sought to hold the New York Stock Exchange accountable for financial exploits which ought to be dealt with by the law. The Exchange was wofully lax in days gone by, but it is really bestirring itself now. Yet its power is limited. It cannot reach as far as the arm of the law. It is impotent to cure many evils that urgently need to be cured, and WHICH WILL BE CURED.

* * *

Let "insiders" hug no delusions on that point. The people are nursing their wrath. The intensity of their indignation has been a revelation to me within the last few weeks. I almost tremble to contemplate the laws that are bound to be evolved out of the latent anger.

* * *

Huge fortunes will be rolled up less easily and at more risk by flim-flamming in the future. The public will find a way to learn "Where did you get it?" There will be fewer financial mysteries, fewer sensational episodes in the stock markets, fewer bursting bubbles—and more convictions of high-placed individuals for schemes designed to enrich themselves at the expense of the public. Every dollar seized by the unscrupulous manipulator has had to be earned by the toil of some genuine worker. Dollars do not spring into existence by printing stock or bond certificates. Someone has had to sweat for them.

* * *

This will bring upon me the censure of certain financial people. They will call it "yellow." If these, my critics, were brought as close to the public as I am by reason of the nation-wide circulation of the Hearst newspapers and the confidence of the public in the honesty of our purpose, they would spend their breath, not in condemning me for voicing a warning, but in exhorting their own class to remove every occasion for reproach and every necessity for revolutionary laws.

POISE? SEE LIPSCOMB; HE NEVER IS RATTLED

FRANCIS ADGATE LIPSCOMB.

Doesn't Take Job Too Seriously, but His Tax Bill Has Everyone Guessing.

Representative Francis Adgate Lipscomb of Clarke, is poise personified.

He never gets excited about anything, and he always affects the coolest-looking clothes he can find.

No matter how accommodating the weather man may be by way of supplying refreshing zephyrs and making unnecessary electric fans, Lipscomb comes forth from his lair daily arrayed in spotless white or cream of lilies.

Even when making a speech—which now and then the gentleman from Clarke does—he smiles continuously his most engaging smile, as if to say, "Don't be alarmed; I really hate to do this thing myself, and wouldn't if it were not more or less necessary in my business!"

Lipscomb, in other words, takes his legislative job seriously enough, but not too seriously.

Most of his colleagues see in that a commanding and winning virtue. They recognize Lipscomb as a member, earnest and purposeful enough, but willing to give and take—to compromise upon sensible grounds, when necessary, and to give the other fellow credit for honesty of opinion and the right to do his own thinking.

In Athens Mr. Lipscomb stands high in the business world. He has served a number of times in the City Council and gave a fine account of himself there. Generally, he is looked upon as safe and sane, and apt to get his bearings right enough on any question.

His proposed tax equalization measure is the most talked about bill now before the Legislature, and is, in many ways, the most important bill pending.

If it passes, and it is predicted that it will, Lipscomb's will be the well deserved glory.

Hot Air Marks Claim To Perpetual Motion

TURIN, July 25.—Tests have been made before scientists here of a machine invented by a mechanician named Florio, by which, it is claimed, perpetual motion is demonstrated.

The machine collects the inexhaustible caloric energy of the air and transforms it into mechanical energy. The air is supplied automatically, and the apparatus is in continuous motion by reason of the passage of the gas from the warmer atmosphere to the colder water.

MOTHER'S FRIEND IN EVERY HOME

Comfort and Safety Assured Before the Arrival of the Stork.

The old saying—what is home without a mother—should add "Mother's Friend."

In thousands of American homes there is a bottle of this splendid and famous remedy that has aided many a woman through the trying ordeal, saved her from suffering and pain, kept her in health of mind and body in advance of baby's coming and had a most wonderful influence in developing a healthy, lovely disposition in the child.

There is no other remedy so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant those fibers and muscles which nature is expanding and soothes the inflammation of breast glands.

Mother's Friend is an external remedy, acts quickly and not only banishes all distress in advance, but assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother. Thus she becomes a healthy woman with all her strength preserved to thoroughly enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend can be had at any drug store at $1.00 a bottle, and is really one of the greatest blessings ever discovered for expectant mothers. 22 PRIZE PONIES AWAIT VICTORS IN CONTEST

Thirteen More Arrive From South Carolina—Red Letter Ballots Will Help Win One.

The 22 ponies to be awarded to The Georgian and American contestants are all on hand. Thirteen arrived Thursday, by express, from John G. Mobley's farm, Winnsboro, S. C., and now are with the nine others in the rear of 55 Loomis street.

The baker's dozen of little animals stood the journey well, and, indeed, were frisky when unloaded and passed before the veterinary inspector. They are strangers to the city and seemingly took great interest in the street cars, the pavements and the other sights which were new to them.

Nothing wins now but subscriptions for The Georgian and American, and subscription to the Sunday American count the fastest, on account of the Red Letter Ballots.

By the use of these Red Letter Ballots, a two-year subscription to The Sunday American yields the contestant 4,500 votes, and a one-year subscription 2,000 votes, while even a six-months subscription yields 800 votes. It should be explained that these are not extra votes. The extra votes are included in these totals.

The Red Letter Ballot offer ends Tuesday night. It is not necessary to clip the ballot from the paper to have these votes counted. It is sufficient to write "Red Letter Ballot" in one corner of the blanks with which the contestants all are provided. And there is no limit to the number of these "Red Letter Ballots" which may be voted.

'Ragtime Tunes Are The Boils of Music'

NEW YORK, July 25.—"Ragtime tunes are like boils," said Frank Damrosch, as he was sailing on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. "Like boils they come and go, and like boils they represent impurities in the musical system. But there has been a great advance in music in this country during the last two or thre decades, and now I think we compare favorably with Europe."

U. S. TENNIS TEAM BETTING FAVORITE

Americans and British in First Day's Play for Davis Cup at Wimbledon Courts.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

WIMBLEDON, ENG., July 25.—The American tennis team was the betting choice in the matches for the Davis trophy when the team lined up against England to-day. All records for attendance were broken. The American colony to a man backed their countrymen.

The courts were in excellent condition. A cold wind blew over the grounds, but the turf was hard and the spectators expected a fine exhibition of tennis. Interest centered in Maurice E. McLoughlin, the young Californian, who has been a tower of strength to the American team, and who disposed of all comers in the world's championship meet, only to meet defeat in the challenge round at the hands of A. F. Wilding.

To-day's matches are between McLoughlin and J. C. Parke, while R. Norris Williams will compete against C. P. Dixon.

The doubles will be played to-morrow and the other two singles Monday.

It takes a baby a year or more to get six teeth.

In a year or less six of your teeth may be seriously damaged by lack of proper care. Proper care does not mean that you have to spend an hour a day scrubbing your teeth. Just two or three minutes in the morning and two or three at night.

And the care that you give your teeth is an investment that comes back a hundred fold in better health, and a better chance to make your mark in the world.

A few cents invested in a delicious dentifrice that gets you into the regular habit of teeth care, is common sense invested for your entire future life,

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX.

He and Manette See the Suffragette Again, but Neither of Them Notices Her.

JULY 3.—It occurred to me, when Manette and I were tramping home that evening, after the militant suffragette had tried to hold me up, that there was a warning in the incident. I look like a tramp, as she said, and Manette, in spite of her clothes, looks like a princess.

What it is I can not define, but one of her sex can never disguise the fact that she was born to purple and fine linen. She may outlive every natural grace and may be reduced to rags, but there is always an indefinable something that tells of better things in the past. I looked at Manette critically as she trudged ahead of me in the footpath, and this is what I saw: A little bare head with a shock of curls just reaching to her shoulder, for we had had her hair cut short before we left town, and the growth was all new and untamed.

She wore a blue gingham with half the buttons off the back. There were rents in it, and through one rent I caught a glimpse of an exquisitely trimmed petticoat, for Richards had refused to let her darling wear the coarse muslin garments that were best fitted for the occasion. She wore half hose, with tan shoes from which her toes protruded, and her little fat legs were scratched by briars and brambles.

But one could tell by a glimpse that she was not an ordinary child, and I wondered if it was because of the proud little way in which she carried her head, or because of her total unconsciousness of self. "A born aristocrat," I murmured.

Her Beauty.

She looked up at me in laughter at some prank of the pup, and I was struck more forcibly than ever with her most unusual beauty. It wasn't altogether her hair and her eyes, her perfect features and her exquisite coloring; there was a look of her soul shining through, and that is as near as I can express it. If you could see her, Diary, you would understand why I never look at the child without some apprehension. With her beauty and her money, sometimes I wonder if there are enough guardian angels in heaven to keep all the evil-hearted away.

The children that die young belong to us always. Nothing, and no one, may ever estrange them from us. They are ours forever, and that, alas, is something no one can say of the child that lives to grow up.

There is comfort in the thought, and it is not the only comfort, for we learn as we grow older that the child that is gone is spared much, and is SAFE. I know life would be dreary and almost impossible without Manette, but every day I grow more reconciled to the loss of Elizabeth. She was happy all her life. The little girl trudging along in the path ahead of me is happy now, but I will not always be with her.

I suppose it was this constant apprehension that led me to call Mrs. Allen to the porch after supper and tell her that I am not the poor clerk she imagines, resting from overwork, but one of the detested millionaire class, resting from excessive luxury.

I told her my name and she laughed. She said she had guessed it the second day. No one, she said, could look at Manette and think for a moment that she had been brought up in denial. She could not explain it, except that the child was always so unconscious of her clothes.

"She rises above them," she said, and it made me very proud.

I have always had the theory—I wonder how it will evolve—that if Manette is accustomed to the best as a child, she will never strut like a peacock when she is grown. She will always be unconscious of her price marks.

To the Manner Born.

She will never build conversation on the price of her gown, nor attempt to erect pride and station on the cost of a hat. She will never, and of that I am sure, remember that her clothes cost more than the clothes of her associates and show it in her manner. I said something to this effect to Mrs. Allen, and her reply gave me a new viewpoint.

"She won't remember what things cost," she said, somewhat dryly, "because she has never had to earn the price. The girl who stints herself in necessities for a month that she may afford a $20 gown will never forget to the day of her death what the gown cost. Unconsciousness of clothes is a good trait, but Manette's unconsciousness will be largely due to ignorance. When one pays the price, one remembers."

I did not seem to make her quite understand what I meant, and neither did I understand her. I wanted, I explained, for the child to grow up with a soul above ribbons.

"And yet," she replied, "whoever has charge of her wardrobe takes care that she has more ribbons than any child her age should have."

I agreed to that with a sigh. When a little girl is transformed by her years into a peacock, instead of a thinking, helpful woman, it is her mother who is to blame, never her father. Manette has no mother, but her nurse and her Aunt Sallie make her attire the joy of their existence.

I, who take the place of a father to her, would prefer that she never hear the subject of her dress, but those who take the place of her mother make her attire the first consideration. That, Diary, is a fond weakness of all mothers.

I gave Mrs. Allen Mrs. Spencer's address and also that of Richards. "It has occurred to me," I said, "that if anything happened to me, either address will be useful to you."

She found considerable amusement in the thought of what an exodus to the woods there would be of young women if it were known that such a wealthy unattached bachelor were spending his summer there. "They would chase you harder," she said, "than the pup chases the rabbits."

She Sympathizes.

She laughed so heartily I asked if she would enjoy the sight, and she replied that she wouldn't.

"I feel sorry for any unmarried man these days," with some spirit. "Either the women are the mercenary kind, hunting him down for his money, or they are the suffrage kind, hunting him down like a policeman hunts criminals. I often tell my husband it is good he got me thirty years ago, for there isn't much choice of women these days."

From one of their own sex! Had I said it I would be mobbed.

July 6—I have not heard the last of that woman who thought I was a kidnaper of children. She came riding to our picnic spot again to-day, and this time she rode alone.

Manette and I were sitting on a log fishing. At least I was fishing. She had her shoes and stockings off, her little skirts tucked up, and was paddling around at the water's edge, digging up soft black mud, which she carried to the shore and made into mud pies, a big log serving her as kneading board, or mixing board. I don't really know if pies are mixed or kneaded.

The suffragette tied her horse to a sapling and came to where we were thus occupied. I did not turn my head, and Manette, obeying whispered instructions from me, went on with her culinary work without heeding her.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"What's that?" he muttered, in an undertone. "There it is again."

He blew out the lantern and stepped to the entrance of the corridor that led to the armory.

"Sh—h—! Listen! There's a light, Rusty. It's coming this way! It's coming, Rusty! Remember the high sign—and don't sneeze!"

He sprang back into the hall and concealed himself in the angle by the picture of the old Don. Presently the faint swinging beams of a lantern were thrown down the corridor and there was the sound of soft footsteps and low voices. Jarvis raised his cocked pistol and covered the doorway as the shadows told him the invaders were about to appear in view. Three figures appeared in the doorway and a girl's voice, familiar to his ears, said:

"There is no one here, either, Your Highness."

The Princess and Dolores, with Maximo as their guide and light-bearer, came down the broad stairs into the hall.

"We must go on, Dolores!" exclaimed the Princess in a strained voice. "We must find him before it's too late! Oh, I will never forgive myself for sending him to this dreadful place!"

"But there's a fire!" cried the veteran. "They've been in this room!"

"Perhaps"—the Princess shuddered—"they have already been killed."

Her Brother Safe.

Jarvis, ashamed for having listened too long and his heart beating with what he had heard, stepped forward into the light of the lantern.

"Your Highness!" he exclaimed. The girl made a sound that was half a cry of alarm and half a prayer of thanksgiving, and held out both hands to him.

"Mr. Warren! Mr. Warren! Thank God, you are still alive!"

"Your Highness," he protested, still holding her hands. "It's madness for you to come to this place! How did you get here?"

"Heaven only knows!" She shivered as if with the memory of her experiences. "We have been wandering through this dreadful place for hours—calling to you—trying to find you before it was too late."

"Too late! What do you mean?"

"My brother is safe—thank God!"

"Where is he?" demanded Warren, quickly.

"On his way to get help from the King."

"Where has he been?"

"Right here in this castle, a prisoner—since the day he entered."

"A prisoner?"

"Yes. He succeeded in making his escape to-night and has gone straight to the King for help."

"But how did you learn all this?" he inquired, bewildered.

"From Robledo, senor," answered Dolores, as the Princess did not reply at once. The girl's voice was low and trembled slightly. "Your bullet went straight, senor. He is dying. He has confessed to the Holy Father. I promised to be with him at the end."

She turned her face away and Jarvis saw that she was weeping.

"The end?" he echoed vaguely—and then he understood. He walked over to her, stood beside her awkwardly, trying to think of something to say. He found it difficult to apologize to a girl for killing her lover, especially when the lover happened to need killing a lot.

"Then—you—" he stammered, "I—I—didn't know—I might have—I'm sorry."

Better So.

The girl raised her tear-stained face and met his gaze bravely.

"It is better so, senor," she said.

"Oh, Dolores—my poor child!"

The Princess put her arms around the girl and she sobbed on her lady's shoulder. "Maximo, take her back to the inn as quietly as possible."

When they were gone the Princess urged Jarvis to follow.

"Oh, Mr. Warren, let us leave this dreadful place!"

"Not me, Your Highness," was the grim and inelegant reply. "You go with them and wait for me at the inn."

The Princess shook her head determinedly, though her face was pale and there were lines to tell of the long strain.

"You can not persuade me again, Mr. Warren. I will remain."

"Please!" he begged, getting possession of her hands once more, and without a struggle.

"Return with us then."

"Your Highness," he said gravely, "I promised to solve the mystery of this castle and to find the treasure. My task is an easy one now."

"Then," she rejoined quickly, "I will share it with you."

He laughed silently at the neat manner of the trap in which he was caught, but he looked down at her with something more than amazement in his eyes.

"And you groped your way through this old castle to find me?" he said softly. "You are game!"

The Princess raised her eyes to his. "You faced death perhaps, for me."

"You're trembling!" he cried, with sudden concern. "You're frightened—you're cold—your hands are cold!—Come over here." He drew her toward the dying blaze of the fire. "You must have been scared to death crawling through the blackness."

She closed her eyes and shivered and he pressed the hands a little tighter than was necessary, if the object was merely to aid circulation.

The Sneeze.

"Every nerve in my body is on edge with the happenings of this dreadful place," she confessed brokenly and tried in vain to keep back the tears.

"Oh, don't cry," he pleaded in alarm, and then suddenly changed his tone to one at once light and tender: "Go on then—cry! Cry some more. Just forget that you are a princess and cry. That's it—that's fine! I'll round up this spook to-night for good—and then the vassal's task is done. His fate is in your hands, Highness." She ceased crying suddenly to look up into his face. "Don't send me away," he begged. "I've loved you from the first and always shall love you. I'm no Prince or Duke," he added with whimsical pathos, "I'm just a plain man—and all the man in me cries out, 'I love you'—Don't send me away!"

He felt her trembling and for an instant she seemed to lean against him. But she shook her head.

"You must go."

"You're going to send me away!"

"Yes. You must leave Spain. Your life would not be safe here."

He drew a breath of relief that was like the wind in the forest. At the same moment there was another sound that was somewhat like a far-off tree falling in the wind.

"What was that?" exclaimed the girl with a start.

"Oh, that! That was Rusty," he smiled.

"That would frighten any one."

"I figured that I might need a ghost," he explained, pointing to the armored servitor, "but Rusty disobeyed orders. Rusty, I told you not to sneeze!"

"Dat was somebody else, Massa Warren," was the solemn and unexpected protest. "I swears to goodness I didn't sneeze."

Warren's revolver was in his hand and a wild light of triumph in his eyes.

"Mr. Warren!"

"Don't move! Your Highness," he cried, raising the weapon and leveling it at the old grandee. "I've got your ghost at last!" He raised his voice. "There is some one behind that picture! Come out!—or I'll shoot you full of holes!"

Caught!

For a moment there was intense silence. Then:

"Don't shoot!"

The voice, a familiar one, came from the wall—the picture swung out in its frame and his Exalted Highness, the Duke of Alva, stepped down on to the floor.

The Princess smothered a cry of amazement and Jarvis smiled grimly.

"Your Excellency, you are a long way from Madrid."

The Duke eyed him with contempt.

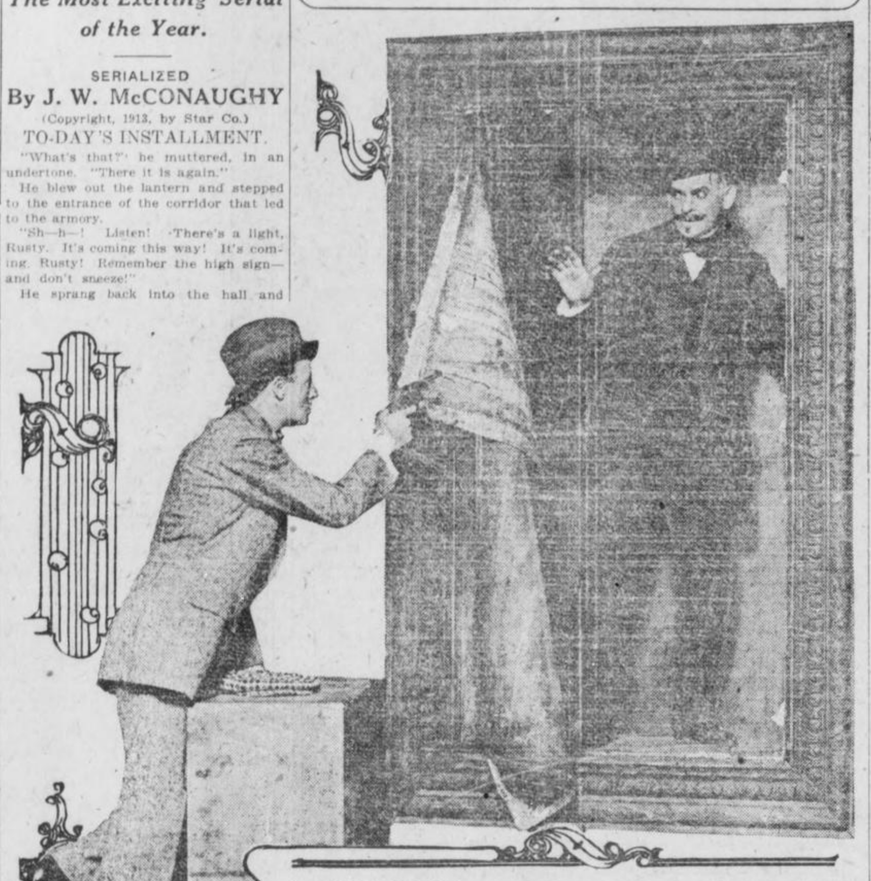
"Madrid! You fool, you have fallen right into my trap!" He turned to the Princess with all the assurance of a protecting friend.

"What I have done has been for your sake, Maria. I purposely deceived him so that I might get here ahead of him and watch. See," he pointed to the mantel, "there are his tools and you yourself interrupted him at his work."

The consummate insolence and assurance of his enemy almost daunted the young man. And in the next breath he half lost the battle by permitting himself to argue.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

CAUGHT AT LAST



"MR. WARREN!" "DON'T MOVE! YOUR HIGHNESS," HE CRIED, RAISING THE WEAPON AND LEVELING IT AT THE OLD GRANDEE, "I'VE GOT YOUR GHOST AT LAST!" HE RAISED HIS VOICE. "THERE IS SOMEONE BEHIND THAT PICTURE! COME OUT!—OR I'LL SHOOT YOU FULL OF HOLES!"

FOR A MOMENT THERE WAS INTENSE SILENCE. THEN: "DON'T SHOOT!" THE VOICE, A FAMILIAR ONE CAME FROM THE WALL—THE PICTURE SWUNG OUT IN ITS FRAME AND HIS EXALTED HIGHNESS THE DUKE OF ALVA STEPPED DOWN ON TO THE FLOOR.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

THEY ALWAYS TELL.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Some time ago I was introduced to a young man whom I rather like. I have gone out to different places of amusement with him.

Now, he has often wanted to kiss me, but I wouldn't allow him to. He is going out of town for some time and says he wants to kiss me before going. Shall I allow him to? L. M.

No man should kiss and tell, but so many do that one little farewell kiss, given in the name of friendship, is sure to be misunderstood and told of. Do you not know, my dear, that the kiss that is refused is always the sweetest? Refuse him and he will always want that kiss, and seek to win your love that he may have it.

DON'T TRY.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young girl of 19 and have a brother who takes me to dances and the theater. I have no chance to find a lover, because the men all think my brother is my sweetheart. What would you advise me to do to make them understand? L. M.

My dear, if these men were attracted by you, the sight of a man as your escort would not keep them away. On the contrary, it would serve as an incentive to them to make your acquaintance.

Instead of regarding your brother as an obstacle, be glad that you have a brother as devoted and kind. And don't worry about that belated lover for I am sure he is on his way.

WAIT A FEW YEARS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 27 and am in love with a young lady of 17, but she does not seem to care for me. What can I do to gain her love? P. B.

She is too young to be troubled by love. Prove your love is unselfish and for her best good, by keeping it a secret to yourself until she has grown up.

An electric voting machine is to be tried in the Austrian Chamber of Deputies. Each member will have two electric buttons on his desk. On the wall opposite the President's chair an indicator is fixed, consisting of 516 glass tablets. Daysey Mayme And Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THERE was no one whose faith in the printed word was greater than Daysey Mayme Appleton's.

If, when sitting on the cool porch at twilight, she caught a glimpse of a heading, "How to Keep Cool," in the newspaper, she invariably went into the warm house, lighted the lamp and sat under its hot rays while she read it.

Her father gave her a weekly allowance, and, with it she bought at least one, and sometimes two, books on How a Girl May Save Money. She didn't save as much as the girls who hadn't such faith in the printed word, but she didn't see why.

When her mother left her in charge of the kitchen for two weeks, she spent the first week's allowance on books telling How to Feed Four on Six Dollars a Week, and had to ask her father for more money the third day. And he was so unappreciative he grumbled about it!

But all this faith is now a thing of the dead, dead past. Daysey Mayme won't believe anything she sees in print these days, if it is nothing more than "Heat Before Serving" on a can of baked beans.

The lost this beautiful faith through following the advice of the New York clergymen who have decided to demand health certificates as a prerequisite to marriage. It would be humiliating, she thought, to march up the church aisle in white silk and orange blossoms, and have the preacher refuse to perform the ceremony because a grandmother on the bridegroom's side once had a conniption fit. She would protect herself from this mortification by getting a clean bill of health before the altar was reached. She would make all necessary inquiries during the courtship; that her best beloved could prove he was in perfect health she had no doubts.

She had memorized forty-seven adjectives expressive of admiration, and when her lover presented her with a box of candy she used forty-three on the first gumdrop. Such appreciation delighted him, and he asked her to marry him. Surely a girl who could so highly appreciate a gumdrop would never underestimate the value of a man!

Daysey Mayme's first impulse was to grab him; then she remembered the printed word.

"Was there ever one in your family who suffered from neurasthenia?" she asked. "Any dandruff, Bright's disease, rheumatism, rickets, glanders, autoxenia, bunions or corns? Have you or your ancestors ever had anything cut out, and how much? Of what did your great-grandfather on your mother's side die, and did——"

But the young man heard no more. He gave one wild whoop and fled.

"I'd have married him if he had a whole doctor's book ailing him," sobbed Daysey Mayme, "and now the other girls will never believe I had the chance."

What Dame Fashion Is Offering

For the Season.

ILLUSTRATED on the left-hand side is an attractive cornflower blue charmeuse gown very suitable for wearing at Hurlingham or Ranelagh. The skirt drapery is graceful, the charmeuse being combined with velvet-embroidered voile de soie. The sleeves are long, the wrists and neck being finished with lace frills. The central figure is carried out in a striking effect of blue and gold brocade. Lace falls from the high waist line to the center of the skirt and meets with the draped folds of the skirt. The corsage is of white lace over white chiffon. Japonica colored charmeuse is used for the right-hand model and makes a very useful gown for afternoon wear. The long sleeves are put into the shoulders with a piping; the cuffs are finished with five small buttons, the same decoration in a larger size being carried out on the bodice and skirt.

The charmeuse and ruffles are of white tulle.

One Woman's Story

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER VIII.

PRIDE and an instinctive stoicism kept Mary Danfroth's pale face impassive as she listened to her father's agitated announcement. An iron hand seemed to be gripping her throat and stifling her. She steadied herself and faced her parents as she drew away from her father's encircling arm. He still held the paper in his trembling hand. Beside him was his wife, aghast and silent, her thin fingers nervously twisting the handkerchief she held.

The girl spoke quietly and steadily: "Mr. Craig may not have been hurt, you know," she reminded her father. "The first reports of accidents are often exaggerated."

She turned away and went down the hall to her own room, closing her door behind her. She took off her hat and put it away, then lifted the books from her dressing table, on which she had just laid them, and arranged them on her desk. All these actions she performed with care, yet she moved as in a dream. She stood, looking about her as if searching for some other duty to perform, but, finding nothing, suddenly flung herself on her bed and lay there, silent, staring wide-eyed into the gathering dusk.

At the end of a half hour her mother knocked timidly at the door.

"May I come in, Mary?" she asked in a low voice. "Are you asleep?"

The girl drew herself to a sitting posture on the edge of her bed.

"Come in, mother," she said, dully. "No, I haven't been asleep. I was just lying down and—thinking."

The parent laid a cool hand on her daughter's forehead.

"Poor little girl!" she murmured. "Poor little girl! I know this news was a terrible shock to you."

Mary stirred irritably under her mother's touch. "Of course, it was a shock," she said coldly. "It is always terrible to hear of accidents of that kind." She paused, then steeled herself to utter what she would not acknowledge was a deliberate falsehood. "But I have been thinking it might have been much worse. Suppose there had been on that train someone whom we really cared for."

Mrs. Danforth looked in silence at the speaker; then, bending over, kissed her and left the room. Mary sat for a moment longer motionless on the side of her bed. Then she bowed her face upon her hands and closed her eyes.

Dinner that night was a dismal affair. The gloom of the accident oppressed all minds. Mr. Danforth was nervous and talked of nothing but the wreck, inveighing against the carelessness of the railroad officials, the indifference corporations showed for human life, and explaining how the disaster might have been avoided—dwelling on the subject until Mary felt as if she could bear it no longer.

When the meal was at last over, Mary, remarking briefly that she must go back to her studying, went to her own room again. Her parents remained at the table, chatting, while the man of the house smoked his post prandial cigar.

"I am glad that Mary doesn't take this news any more deeply to heart," remarked the father with masculine obtuseness. "I was afraid that she was beginning to think too much of Craig and that if he was hurt or killed it must break her all up."

His wife shook her head with the scorn that a woman always shows for a man's lack of perception.

"She feels it more than she knows herself," she remarked enigmatically.

"Bosh!" exclaimed Mr. Danforth. "Mary isn't the kind to keep such a trouble as that to herself. Of course se liked the chap—and she is distressed to think that he may have been injured, or—worse. But you told me yesterday that you fancied she was beginning to care a good deal for him. She wouldn't be so calm if she did. She regards him only as a pleasant acquaintance."

In her own room Mary bent over her books and tried to study. She attacked the preparation for to-morrow's recitations with a determination to banish all other matters from her mind. "Anything to keep from thinking!" she whispered to herself. "This suspense is awful—but it may be better than to know the truth." A lump of ice seemed to be pressing upon her heart, but she worked on.

It was late when she extinguished her light, yet dawn was graying her window-panes before she fell into a troubled slumber.

Her eyes were heavy when he dragged herself into the dining room that morning. Her father was opening the morning paper which lay beside his plate. With a sickening contraction of her throat the girl watched him scan the first page of the sheet. Suddenly he started to his feet.

"Hear this!" he exclaimed, excitedly. "'Texan Hero of Railroad Wreck; Gordon Craig Rescues Three Women From Burning Pullman; Is Himself Unhurt.'"

Mrs. Danforth uttered a low cry of alarm, and at the sound the reader dropped his paper and sprang forward. Mary had slipped quietly from her chair to the floor. She had fainted.

The parents' eyes met in a significant look as they both bent over the prostrate girl.

"I told you so!" said the mother gravely.

To Make a Hit With Women

By Dorothy Dix

A LOVELORN youth writes me a pathetic letter saying that he is persona non grata with the fair sex, that girls do not care for his society, and the ungrateful minxes turn their backs upon him and talk to other men in the very instant they are devouring the candy he brought them, and wearing the violets on which he squandered his good money. This state of affairs greatly distresses him, and he wants to know why he isn't popular, and how he may become a winner with women.

Let us see if we can help him.

Women differ from men in this respect, that looks do not count. It does not matter whether a man is handsome or not. Indeed, very few women care for beauty in the opposite sex. It is a poaching on their own preserves that they resent. Also it requires them to became flatterers instead of the flattered, for the vanity of the vainest woman that ever lived is as water unto wine compared to the vanity of a man who is a living picture, and who knows it—and expects to be told of it.

It is worth bearing in mind that almost without exception the men who were the great heart smashers of history were not only plain of face, but some of them grotesquely hideous. So no man need despair on account of his lack of pulchritude when he wants to take a hand at the game of hearts.

He Should Shave.

But where mere regularity of features in a man counts for little in attracting a woman's fancy, a man should pay much attention to his clothes and his grooming. Nothing on earth, but the grace of God, keeps a woman in love with a man with a two days' stubble of dirty beard on his face. Married women stand this because they can't help themselves; but no girl wants a slovenly, untidy man, who looks as if he needed to be run through the laundry, hanging about her. All the knocking about the word "dude" comes from masculine lips. No woman joins in that chorus. On the contrary, she feels that the man who comes into her presence ill-clothed, dirty, neglected looking, not only shows disrespect for her, but indicates that he lacks judgment, industry and progressiveness. For that is exactly what being ill-dressed now means.

Another thing that women like, and it is an attraction that any man can acquire, is a certain savoir faire that makes him equal to any situation. A woman likes a man to know how to offer her a chair, to help her on with her wraps, to order a little dinner. And she hates with unspeakable loathing the fellow who is always making scenes in public, who gets in rows with the theater usher over a mistake about the seats, or the street car conductor about the change, or who sits up like a graven image of wrath every time anybody drops in while he is calling.

"Chump," says the girl to herself, "he hasn't got enough sense to know only the ignorant have to fight to get their rights."

Women like generous men, but even girls have a contempt for men who spend more than they can afford. It is not the youths who waste all their substance on bonbons and theater tickets and violets who are the most popular with the fair sex. Every girl has what she calls her "candy beau," but she seldom marries him. The best way to touch a girl's heart is not by upsetting her digestion.

An important point to remember here is that the man who would curry favor by means of gifts must give discreetly. A woman would rather have a present that cost 5 cents if it represented some especial taste or fancy of hers than one that cost $50 if it was something that had no personal significance.

Don't Be a Clam.

In conversation, cultivate a happy medium. Be neither a continuous monologue performer nor yet a clam. Before you take the floor and devote hours to expatiating on how you can keep books or play ping-pong or take snapshots, be sure the girl is really interested in you. After a woman is in love, she can sit entranced for days listening to a man tell about the kind of collar button he wears, but if she isn't in love, a steady stream of personal reminiscences gets on her nerves, and she wants a change. Besides she desires to talk about herself.

For pity's sake, though, help out with the conversation. From the time a girl is old enough to understand anything she is taught that her chief end in life is to entertain man, and everywhere you go you can see her conscientiously at work trying to do it. Every mother's daughter of us knows what it is to labor, and perspire, and toil, trying to make conversation with some man who is just as unresponsive as a store dummy and as silent as the Sphinx. It isn't a fair division of labor, and if a man wants to see true gratitude let him chip in and help roll the conversation ball along.

"Be bold, be bold, be not too bold." Women hate a timid man, and they despise the one who takes it for granted that he has only to throw the handkerchief to have every girl scramble for it.

Learn how to pay compliments as if you mean them. Don't apply flattery with a trowel. Few women are fools. Don't tell a woman the first time you see her she is the ideal you have been seeking for many years. Seven hundred other idiots have told her that before.

Don't quote sentimental poetry to a girl. It always makes her want to giggle.

Don't give in too much to a woman. If she has good sense she won't want you to sacrifice your taste or principles, and, if she is unreasonable, she will respect you for mastering her.

Finally, beloved—and if you forget all the rest remember this—don't stay too long when you go to call. More men queer themselves right here than they do anywhere else. No living human being is entertaining for more than 30 minutes at a time or endurable for more than two hours at a stretch. In that time every man can say everything he has got to say worth hearing, and if he lingers along until the clock begins to yawn in his face, he is simply defying fate and inviting disaster. Many a good impression is spoiled by too much of it.

And when you get up to go, go as if you were fired out of a gun. Don't linger for tender farewells and last words. Most girls wear shoes three sizes too small for them, and when a man keeps one standing on the doorstep while he makes his adieus she isn't saying, like Juliet: "I could say good-by, good-by, 'til it be morning." On the contrary, she is regretting that all the stories about papa's boot and the swift waft out are fiction instead of fact, and she would be willing to pay out good money to anybody who would accelerate Romeo's descent of the steps.

Of course, no general rules can be laid down for winning the fancy of the fair sex. What has been said pretends to be no more than the most elementary facts, but a guarantee goes with each suggestion that it will work.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

I HAVEN'T quite made up my mind yet whether Bobbie shud lern a trade or a professhun, sed Ma to Pa yesterday. Sumtimes I think it wud be nice if he cud lern a trade, & aggenn I think a trade is kind of commonplace. A professhun is so professhunal, sumhow, so distinguished, sed Ma.

I guess there are a lot of yung lawyers in the big cities that doant see anything vary professhunal about a professhun, sed Pa. If I were a yung man aggenn, Pa sed, I wud a lot rather work steddy at a trade than profess at a professhun. Bobbie, what do you want to be?

I toald Pa thare was three things & I dident know wich one of the three I wanted to be the moast, a pitcher like Dent, or a elevator boy, or a poet.

Pitchers and poets are born, not made, sed Pa, & a elevator boy isent any kind of job for you wen you grow up. If I thought you cud be a poet like me or a pitcher like Dent, sed Pa, I wud tell you by all meens go ahed & try to be one or the other, but thare ain't many Dents & thare ain't many me's, sed Pa.

Dear me, sed Ma, & wen did you beecum grate?

Dident I rite that poem that I red at the bankwet the other nite wen I was toastmaster, sed Pa, and dident all the men thare say that it was the work of a geenyus?

The men was kind of enthused too much, I guess, sed Ma. I guess that a certain amount of champagne will make men stand for almost anything in liter-ature. Doant talk to me about that pofm, sed Ma. If you call that art, you are a blacksmith. I found two of the verses in yure coat pocket after the bankwet, Ma sed, & I must say that you are no Milton.

I tell you the poem met with grate applause, sed Pa.

& you remember what I jest toald you about champane, sed Ma, Bobbie, she sed to me, if you think this is good poetry, you are a chip of the old block. Listen:

All brethren we stand together tonite,
Where all the lites are shining brite.
Met here in friendship's strong embrace
We can look each other in the face
& know that all of us is men,
Wich is a good thing now & then.
The world needs men like us to fight
For truth & the eternal right
& the reason eech one of us thrives
& supports ourselfs and our wives
is beekaus of that brain power we possess
That is the cause of our grate success.
So all of us brethren gathered here
Have little if anything to fear,
Jest so we keep on working hard
& continued success will be our reward.

Now, Bobbie, sed Ma, I want you to be a honest littel boy. If you had yure choice between beeing a elevator boy & that kind of a poet, wich wud you be?

I wud be a elevator boy, I toald Ma. The hours is easier.

New Serial Story Begins Monday

"Behind Closed Doors," one of the most exciting mystery stories ever written, will begin Monday on The Georgian's magazine page. This story is by Anna Katharine Green, whose detective yarns are so popular.

Stop Experimenting

There are but few depilatories sold. You think there are hundreds because you have used the same identical preparations under several different names. This is easily explained. Women stop using

So-Called Hair Removers

when they learn that they are harmful. Therefore, they can not be sold under the same name for any length of time. Then the identical, worthless, harmful concoctions are given new names and advertised again as totally different preparations to who innocently buy them over and over again under different names, and this will continue as long as women are so unwise as to experiment with unknown, so-called hair removers.

Defraud the Same Foolish Women

De Miracle has been sold as De Miracle for over eleven years, and its name has never been changed. It is acknowledged the world over by eminent authorities as the one safe, perfected hair remover, therefore it is the only depilatory you can use without experimenting.

Leaves No Tell-Tale Smell

If you use De Miracle it will be impossible for any curious person to know that you have used a hair remover because De Miracle evaporates immediately after accomplishing its work, therefore leaves no odor whatever. On the other hand, if you use any depilatory with a distinctive odor, an offensive, tell-tale smell will cling to your skin for hours.

EVANS' DEFEAT MEANS A NEW WESTERN CHAMP.

CHICAGO, July 25.—In the semi-finals for the championship of the Western Golf Tournament to-day Edward P. Allis, of Milwaukee, will be matched with Robert A. Gardner and Warren K. Wood will oppose Joseph C. Leduc.

Two surprises were furnished the gallery at yesterday's games, when "Ned" Allis, the Harvard star, defeated Charles Evans, Jr., the champion, and Warren K. Wood, who missed being champion twice each time by 1 point, was compelled to play 39 holes to defeat Frazer Hale, of Omaha.

The pill of defeat so often administered by Champion Evans was swallowed by him when Allis defeated him, 4 and 3, in the third round.

Allis Stood Pace Well.

At one time in the afternoon, after Evans had won the sixth and seventh holes, it looked as if the champion might at least produce a tight finish, but Allis never cracked under the strain and kept on the even tenor of his way.

A stiff wind from the northeast was sweeping the course when the champion and his opponent teed off. Evans had the honor and hooked his drive close to a trap. Allis pitched his second 20 feet from the cup and holed his put. Evans, whose second was to the right of the pin, took one more.

Allis sliced his drive for the second hole into a bush and chopped out short, but to offset this mistake Evans, who had driven 260 yards, pitched his second into the bunker guarding the green, and the result was a half in five.

Both were on the third green in two, Allis being 30 feet short and Evans 15 feet to the right of the pin. They halved in 4. Allis hooked his next drive to the rough, but his second jumped the bunker guarding the green and ran to 20 feet from the hole. Evans took three to reach the green and ran his approach close to the hole.

Allis Makes Great Shot.

Allis stymied himself on his third and then made one of the most remarkable shots of the match. Evans' ball was too close to permit of a jump shot, and the boy played a follow billiard shot, his ball knocking Evans' ball a little to the side of the cup and following in, giving him the hole 4-5 and putting him 2 up.

The home hole was won by Allis, 5-4. Allis, after hooking his drive, made a fine second, short of the creek. Allis was 3 up at the interval.

A good start in the afternoon meant a lot to Evans, but his chances went tobogganing when Allis won the first 3 holes, and from that point on it was only a question if the chunky little Milwaukeean could keep himself at concert pitch, as with a lead of six holes he could claim membership in the "I should worry" class.

JOHNNY COULON STARTS WORK TO GET IN SHAPE

CHICAGO, July 25.—Physicians who have been handling Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion of the world, have released him and John will start on to-morrow to get himself back into shape for some title contests. He is packing his trunks to-day and on to-morrow will start for Georgian Bay, where he plans to rough it for a month or six weeks. Then he will return, go westward and close his match with Kid Williams. The Logan Square battler believes he will be ready to don the gloves about the middle of September.

"I'm going to camp out and live as close to nature as I can. Rough it will be my style for a month or six weeks, and then I'll be ready to enter the training grind. My physician has released me and says after a trip into the country I will be ready to box again. I am eager to get back into the game, principally to show that I am not all in. I have been censured for my delay in the Williams fight, but I knew I wasn't right, and I wasn't going to disappoint a hungry fight crowd by a poor showing," said John to-day.

WOLGAST AND JONES PART; WILL MANAGE OWN AFFAIRS

He and Jones, who acted as his manager during Wolgast's successful ring days, have separated—not that there is any trouble between them, but Ad feels he needs no manager now that he is no longer the title holder. Ad said to-day:

"Until I win the championship back, I will be able to attend to all my matchmaking myself. If at any time I make a good match and need Jones' assistance, he will be the man to attend to my affairs. I also want it understood that my old friend and manager and I are still the best of friends and pals, and if at any time I can make good again, Tom Jones will be manager.

Poor Pa! Aunt Maggie's Always Cheering Him Up

At Billikens Twice To-day

Clarke and Conzelman to Pitch

BY way of giving our heroes a lift on every possible turn of fortune's wheel during the present hectic little road trip, it rained yesterday in Montgomery.

Diagnosis of this seemingly simple weather note informs us (1) that two games will be played this afternoon, unless (2) it rains some more; which means (3) that the two-ply grapple probably will end in a dog-fall, so that (4) the series will have to be decided to-morrow.

Assuming it doesn't keep on raining.

Most double-headers are split. It is hard for a good club to win two games in one afternoon. It is nearly as hard for a decently poor club to lose two. So it is rather unlikely that the present series will be as decisive as it looked before the bottom fell out.

* * *

NAMING NO NAMES.

Some of our most erudite little Sages
Daily rebound from this mystery ver'd:
How is it a ball club that cleverly gauges
Attack and defense, and consistently rages
Along in one game, till the praise clutters pages,
Turns right around and immodestly stages
An Opera Bouffe in the Next?

* * *

LAMPING the station of the Nashville Volunteers in the Southern League standing doesn't offer much enlightenment concerning the stalwart efforts now making by the management to cheer up that club.

For the present season, that is.

The Vols are more than a dozen games behind the leaders, and the day of miracles is popularly reported to be past.

And yet the wires buzz with rumors and well-grounded reports of deals by which one William Schwartz is adding to the power of his payroll, and, incidentally, to the tax upon the exchequer.

The latest noise sounds like Melville Brannon, of the spectacular college brand of slab-worker, and the idea is that Schwartz has snared him away from J. Dobbs and that the Tennessee Industrialist student soon will inhabit a Nashville uniform.

Pitcher Boland, of the recently exploded Interstate League, has been turned over to the Nashville club, and is expected to succeed Jack Brackenridge. Dave Bunting, from the same circuit, also is expected to join the rookies, but probably won't play this season. Schwartz is still dickering for "No-Hit Babe" Adams, of Savannah, and Hoffman was added to the roster at a considerable expense a short time ago.

So it looks as if Sir William might be looking forward to 1914—which, by the way, isn't so bad a thing to do.

* * *

CONTINUING in the same happy vein, it is noted that President Hirsig, of the Nashville club, is under way in the direction of Detroit for a conference with President Navin, the object being to retain Frank Gibson, the speedy and hard-hitting little catcher, for next season.

It is known that other clubs are sweet on Gibby, and it is possible that he may be destined to travel with Detroit in 1914, but Hirsig is confident he has the inside rail, and believes he will keep his pet receiver.

While in Detroit, Hirsig will look over the books for new material available for his club next year.

MAKING a swift shift to New Orleans, we translate an indistinct rumble from the distant North to indicate that Mr. Brenton, able Pelican fork-hander, is ardently desired by the Toledo Mudhens in the American Association.

The terms of the swap mention Outfielder Davy Jones and First Baseman Bluhm, one old bird and one young one, as the Toledo contribution to the deal.

But there is nothing definite.

UMPIRE SUES FEDERAL LEAGUE CLUB FOR $35,000

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Umpire Jack McNulty to-day brought suit against the Federal League baseball club of St. Louis and Manager Jack O'Connor for $35,000 damages because of an alleged attack O'Connor made on him on the club grounds in June.

According to the petition, McNulty was present to officiate as umpire in the game when O'Connor "wrongfully and unlawfully assaulted him."

McNulty alleges that his injuries are such that he no longer will be able to earn a livelihood as a baseball umpire.

PITCHER GREEN REJOINS FRANK'S LOWLY PELS

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 25.—Pitcher Roy Green, shipped to Wheeling, W. Va., last spring under an optional agreement, has rejoined the Pelicans, as has Pitcher Glavenich, recently released by Omaha, and who is to figure in a three-cornered trade between the Pelicans, Cleveland and Toledo clubs for Pitcher Brenton shortly.

Waivers on the other two men Frank is getting in exchange for Brenton have been held up by two American Association clubs for the present.

News of the Ring Game

Charley Ledoux, the French bantamweight champion, who lost the last two battles that he took part in at Vernon, Cal., the first with Campi and the second with Williams, is now in New York. He will sail for Paris in a few days.

* * *

Leach Cross and Matty Baldwin, who will meet in a twenty-round bout at Vernon, Cal., next Tuesday night, are "busy bees" at their training camps. Although many fight fans on the coast figure that Baldwin has a good chance to beat the Easterner, betting on the outcome is at even money.

* * *

Frankie Fleming, the featherweight champion of Canada, and George Kirkwood, of St. Louis, have signed articles to meet in a ten-round affair at New York on Saturday night. Both boys are lightweights.

* * *

There is a good chance that George "Knockout" Brown, Greek middleweight, will be matched with Art Allard for a contest of twelve rounds at Anaconda, Mont., for August 12. The plan is to match the winner with Leo Benz at Butte Labor Day.

* * *

Packey McFarland is taking things easy at his home in Chicago. Packey is after a fight with Freddie Welsh or Willie Ritchie. The Chicago wizard says he will make weight for either man.

* * *

Young Jack O'Brien is said to have received a raw deal in Vancouver, where he met Freddie Welsh. A daily paper published there says that Young Jack was entitled to a draw.

* * *

Young Seymour, who boxes Terry Nelson in a ten-round encounter at Marietta on Saturday, August 3, was in Atlanta yesterday. Seymour says he expects the bout to draw a good house, as they have already an advance sale of several hundred dollars. Seymour and Nelson are scheduled to go ten rounds.

* * *

* * *

Kid Duke and Kid Brooks have decided to settle their differences in the ring. The pair have agreed to meet in a finish bout in private some time next week. The boys have been hurling challenges at each other for the past two weeks.

* * *

Dominick J. Tortorich, New Orleans fight promoter, has decided to stage a welterweight elimination tourney. "Wildcat" Ferns and Young Denny are to meet in the first battle a week from next Sunday. Tortorich says he will bring Billy Walter, Spike Kelly and Mike Gibbons to the Pelican City for matches. All bouts are to be over the twenty-round route.

* * *

Tim Callahan, who was recently given a decision over Young Attell here, seems to have the makings of a good boy. He is the holder of a stiff wallop, and usually puts up an aggressive scrap.

* * *

Ad Wolgast is one of the many fighters on the coast trying to force Willie Ritchie to the ring. Tom Jones, manager of Ad, says he will agree to give the champion a $5,000 side bet if he will sign for the bout.

* * *

Coast promoters refuse to go wild over Arthur Pelky, who is at present in Los Angeles. The lightweights seem to be big cards out West at the present time.

CLARKE AND CONZELMAN PITCH TO-DAY

By Joe Agler.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., July 25. George Clarke and Joe Conzelman are Bill Smith's pitching entries in the bargain-day bill this afternoon, and the gossip is that Elmer Brown, Montgomery's best bet on the slab, will work the first contest against our boys, with either Sparks or Case in the afterpiece. Chapman and Dunn will catch for the Crackers.

We are not grieving over the rain that knocked out yesterday's game with the Billikens. The off day did us good, as we needed a rest, and it helped to break up the jump here from Memphis.

* * *

THE Billikens are full of confidence, and they are going to be hard to lick. They all believe they are going to win the rag, but realize that the rest of the schedule is against them, as they have only one more series at home, after which they hit the long trail for the rest of their games. It is admitted here that the Crackers are the club to be beaten; in fact, every club in the league accepts that as a fact.

* * *

GILBERT PRICE, got here yesterday and looks to be in grand shape after his little rest. Take it all around, the club is in good condition and should make a great finish once it gets back to Ponce DeLeon.

JESS WILLARD AND BILL YOUNG STILL HOPING

LOS ANGELES, July 25.—Jess Willard and Bill Young, "white hopes," were matched to-day for a 20-round boxing bout August 22 at the Vernon arena. Willard hopes to make a few successful starts here against lesser lights, and then will go after a "Gunboat" Smith match again.

HURLER SMITH ON SICK LIST.

BOSTON, July 25.—The Cubs' cripple list had another addition yesterday. Pitcher Charley Smith is confined to his bed, suffering an attack of heart trouble, thought to be an aftermath of his prostration by heat in Cincinnati a few weeks ago. Zimmerman is in Chicago for treatment of his injured foot.

RAIN STOPS RACES.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 25.—Heavy rain yesterday afternoon stopped the grand circuit races at Fort Erie after the first heats of the 2:09 and 2:11 pace. Weather permitting, the two unfinished races and the free-for-all pace will be run off to-day and the grand circuit stars will move along to Grand Rapids.

TEMPERAMENT.

There are two classes of ball players—those who have temperament and those who have brains.

Temperament is an enlargement of the cranium common among athletes who hit in the .300 class. Or, one might say that temperament is temper with a college education.

A temperamental athlete is as hard to handle as a greased eel. What though he has spent the winter prowling about free luncheries seeking what he may devour? In summer he kicks when the humming birds' ears are underdone or the finger-bowls are not filled with rosewater.

Some athletes are condescending enough to talk in friendly terms with the owner of the club, but such cases are rare. As a rule he considers it a favor to allow the manager to talk to him, and he plays ball only because the public cries for it. For if he were to quit, the pastime would be left flat on its back.

In order to attain a temperament, an athlete must first attain a .300 batting average. Otherwise his temperament is merely a bum disposition, and the manager stings him for a fine and kicks him on the shin. As an immortal poet once wrote:

He thought he had a temperament,
But found that he had blundered;
For he was fined a whole week's pay—
He could not hit .300.

Ty Cobb, the temperamentalest athlete in captivity, wants to break away from Detroit. Some say this is due to temperament, while others hold that it is due to horse sense.

With Archer in the hospital and Bresnahan in bad, we wonder what the Cubs would do if some vile wretch were to step on Tom Needham's bunions.

The board of supervisors in San Francisco refuses to allow Sam Langford to do battle with Charlie Miller. Mr. Miller owes the board of supervisors a vote of thanks.

Marty Cutler showed in his alleged battle with Carl Morris that as a pugilist he is a good wrestler.

Some day Tyrus Cobb will create a sensation by announcing that he is satisfied with the way the universe is being run.

GAMBLING.
(By A. Magnate.)

To gamble is a deadly sin,
A deep and lowly vice.
I scorn the man who tries to win
By wagering his pile of tin
Upon the rolling dice.

To gamble is a thing of shame;
I look at it askance.
Dame Fortune is a fickle dame,
And so I play a dead sure game
And never take a chance.

New Orleans a 20-Round Center

Tortorich Seeks Classy Bouts

By Ed W. Smith.

NEW ORLEANS is now safely established on the boxing map as a safe and sane center in which twenty-round contests may be held. At least this is the statement of Dominick J. Tortorich, the Jimmy Coffroth of the South, who has firmly put the game back on a standing akin to the conditions that prevailed there in the good old long ago. New Orleans, be it remembered, had some of the most famous battles of ring history decided in its environs, and threatens now to take just as prominent a place as it got when John L. Sullivan and Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack Dempsey, Jack McAuliffe and Billy Myer, Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall and Dan Creedon and others of that class were battling for real titles.

* * *

BY sheer force of character and through demonstration that the boxing game can be kept free from scandal, and that it does not verge into the old class of "prize fighting," Tortorich has carried matters along until he has won over almost every executive in Louisiana to his way of thinking, and it is not believed that there will be any further opposition to Dom's plan of holding twenty-round contests from now until next Spring. And Dom believes he will be able to show all of the boxers that it will be strictly to their interests to pay some attention to the nice offers that he is going to make to them.

* * *

ALONG with Tom McCarey, Tortorich has been stung by the belt bee, and now has a well-developed case of trophy fever. One week from next Sunday afternoon, Dominick will present his first belt to the boxers. On that day he will have Wildcat Ferns, of Kansas City, and Young Denny, of New Orleans, in the first elimination test for the new welterweight championship that he proposes running during the present summer and coming fall. These boys battled ten rounds there July 4, and Ferns was awarded a verdict that started a near-riot among the spectators, many believing that Denny, the home boy, should have been awarded the victory. They are some partisans down that way. To settle the question, Tortorich nailed them at once for a contest over the long route.

LUCKY INFIELD PUTS ATHLETICS IN FRONT RANK

By Sid C. Keener.

IF luck continues to break for Connie Mack and the Athletics, then the 1913 American League pennant race should not be close. The meaning of luck is injuries to athletes, the stars of his flock. And so far the lean Cornelius has been mighty fortunate in ways of accidents.

Mack is directing a bona fide championship ball club all right, still many teams which figured on dope, and even on the ball field, to win have lost out because this and that star was disabled and put out of harness for a lengthy period.

The lucky part for Mack and the Athletics is that he has the banner infield in major league circles to-day, and that his quartet has been on duty every day since the first game of the season, April 10.

Infield the Real Strength.

The Athletics' infield really is the tower of strength to the club. Of course, the pitching staff has more than held its own, still the Mackites are winning games when the pitchers are cracking.

Without a doubt the combination of McInnis-Collins-Barry-Baker forms the infield de luxe, and Stuffy, Eddie, Jack and Frank have been in there every day. Collins is the only player who has missed once, and recently, during a double-header, Mack laid off the Columbia U. lad to give youngster Bill Orr a chance.

Of course, Mack has been without Jack Coombs since April 11, when typhoid fever put "Colby Jack" out of commission. But Plank and Bender are having an unusually good year, and then Connie has been fortunate in getting excellent pitching from youngsters Brown, Bush, Houck and Wyckoff.

Both Kinds of Outfielders.

In the outfield Mack supplied himself with fly catchers in case of injuries. At present he has Danny Murphy, Rube Oldring and Jimmy Walsh, right-handed stickers, and Eddie Murphy, Amos Strunk and Pete Daley, left-handed swatters.

In the outfield Mack has supplied himself with batters for the two kinds of pitching, also for injuries.

In catching, Mack is taken care of in case of injuries, but so far no one has been needed. Schang and Lapp are doing all the catching, and even Ira Thomas, who practically caught the Mackites to the 1910-1911 flags, has not been behind the bat in a single entertainment since the start of the season.

The peculiar part is that Mack has been lucky, mighty lucky, with his infielders. Not only are they in there every day, but they are hitting the Athletics to the pennant. Collins has a .347 average; Baker, .326, and McInnes, .325. And the trio has scored 202 runs.

BASEBALL

Diamond News and Gossip

Rain put the finishing touches on major league baseball yesterday, the National games all being postponed. The American League teams spent the day traveling eastward.

* * *

Connie Mack, of the Athletics, takes exception to the statement that he Senators will beat out his team. Mack says his men fear nobody and will breeze home in the American League.

* * *

Manager Chance plans a big shake-up in the Yankees. He is contemplating benching Birdie Cree and Harry Wolter and filling their places in the outfield with Roy Hartsell and Ray Caldwell. The latter has not been meeting with success as a pitcher, but is developing into a good outfielder and batsman.

* * *

In the hope of widening the gap between his team and the Phillies Manager McGraw of the Giants will send his team along at the clip they have been traveling the l atsfew weeks, when they begin their second invasion of the West to-morrow.

* * *

Manager Clark Griffith has ordered the Senators to keep away from Lake Michigan. Outfielder Shanks turned his ankle and injured his head while diving the other day and will be out of the game for several days. Griffith's order was to prevent further inroads on his players

* * *

Alleging that he was assaulted by Jack O'Connor, manager of the Federal League, John S. McNulty, a former umpire, has brought suit for $35,000 against the league, the St. Louis Club and O'Connor, its manager. It was McNulty's first day of umpiring and also his last and he alleges he has been unable to earn a living in his profession.

FILLINGEM AND WILDER TWIRL TWO GREAT GAMES

CORDELE, July 25.—Seldom, if ever before in the history of organized baseball, has a record been made that would compare with that of Fillingem and "Baby" Wilder, pitching for Cordele in a double-header against Waycross Wednesday. Fillingem went nine innings for a shut-out game with no hits, and Wilder twirled a six-inning game, allowing no hits and no scores, striking out nine men.

By this remarkable record, Fillingem and Wilder have proved themselves the star twirlers of the Empire State League. Not only has a no-hit, shut-out game been pitched before in the league, but the fact that Cordele took both games with the same brilliant record makes it a precedent that will probably not be equaled, though the league is maintained for years, for which prospects now appear very favorable.

ARMY AND NAVY WRANGLE OVER FOOTBALL FIELD

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 25.—The Army and Navy athletic officials still are at a deadlock over the selection of the place where the next Army-Navy football game shall be played.

The Navy is insisting that the game take place in Philadelphia, while the Army contends that it should be played at West Point and Annapolis, alternating each year, or in New York City, preferably the latter. The Army opens the football season early this year, playing a game September 27.

Artie Hofman May Go to Yanks

Vol Gardener Playing Fine Ball

NASHVILLE, TENN., July 25.—Any time a player comes tracking out from the majors, there immediately goes up the hue and cry that he has finished his act under the Big Tent, is on his way to the exit and only lingers around the side shows because it reminds him of the fame that was his when he occupied the center ring.

The cases of a return engagement in the majors are almost as rare as the appearance of feathers on turtles once a "slave" has started sliding, since oftenest it is the case that a ball tosser loses his ambition and desire to hobnob with the stellar lights once he has started shunting on down to the bushes.

It's because Artie Hofman is the exception that proves the rule that makes his case so full of interest, especially since so many widely different explanations of his appearance in the Southern have been offered.

Sure He Can Make Good.

It's no joke that the "them-was-the-happy-days-in-Akron" stuff had a lot to do with Artie casting his fortunes with Bill Schwartz, but the real honest-to-goodness reason is that the boy leader of the Vols afforded a protecting wing, under which Circus Solly could hide himself while the business of a clever little scheme of Hofman's was getting oiled up. The milk in the cocoanut of the whole affair is that Artie doesn't believe he is all through with the big show, and although they have their thumbs down on him, in the National, there is still a fine young chance for Artie to slip into Ban Johnson's circuit, where one Frank Chance is leading at present a forlorn hope in Manhattan.

Harking away back to the time when Charles Webb Murphy, the ungrateful owner of the Cubs, traded Artie and King Cole to the Pirates for Lefty Leifield and Tommy Leach, there started the breach between Murphy and the Peerless Leader, who, in the language for which Chance is widely noted, explained to Charles Webb just where he could head in. Leastways, that's the way Hofman tells it.

Didn't Like Fred Clarke.

Harboring an intense bitterness against Murphy, which found its best evidence in the recent suit for $3,000, which Artie pulled against the Chicago club, and a hankering for the fighting tactics of the Peerless Leader, made Hofman and Fred Clarke anything but a Damon and Pythias. All of this ill feeling, coupled with a pair of bum pins, soon caused Clarke to sour on the former Cub outfielder, and he began to look for a place to pigeonhole Artie, until he could get in good shape and bend his neck to Clarke's yoke; and Kansas City looked like a good place to the fiery Pirate chief.

The Blues were given a short option on Hofman at the stiff price of $2,500, after waivers had been secured on Artie—and there seems to have been a heap of inside stuff pulled in sending the blonde gardener out of Mr. Lynch's circuit, by the way—and a deal was framed up between Hofman, Clarke and the Kansas City club by which Artie should be returned to the Pirates at the end of the present season at a 20 per cent increase in salary in the event he "went good" in the Western circuit. This arrangement appealed to Hofman about like a spell of the itch, and he declared he had rather quit the game than be mixed up in any arrangement which would send him back to the Buccaneers and the tyranny of Clarke. When he balked, and wound up by kicking over the traces, the Kansas City club did the perfectly wise thing and allowed the option to expire.

An Old Pal of Schwartz's.

Business of "for old times sake" making a loud noise in the wings and Artie learning how Bill Schwartz was getting gray headed over the poor old Vols' slump. He would be tickled to death to come down and help an old pal out, if the Vols could buy his release. Did they? They did. For $1,500—(count 'em)—a thousand iron men less than Kansas City stood ready to kick in with, but it was a case of a bird in the hand, etc., with Clarke, and hence Hofman chasing flies in the Vols' left field.

But there is NO conditional release clause in Artie's contract, as has been whispered about. He is the sole property of the Vols, bought and paid for, with no strings tied to him one way or the other.

But this is a fact: Schwartz knows Artie's ambition to return to the majors; he knows he is anxious to once more work under Frank Chance's banner; that Chance is dead stuck on having Artie with him once more, and maybe Schwartz isn't going to help his pal get back where he is crazy to be. Maybe a duck can't swim, but he puts up a pretty good imitation.

AMERICANS WILL MEET BRITONS IN NET MATCHES

WIMBLEDON, ENGLAND, July 25.—The interest of the tennis world will be focussed to-day on the championship matches at Wimbledon, where the Americans will attempt to win the Dwight F. Davis international tennis trophy. England will spare no effort to defend the cup, which is the last remaining token of her former athletic supremacy.

The two singles matches will be played between Maurice E. McLoughlin, of San Francisco, facing J. C. Parke, whose unexpected victory last year over the noted Australian, Norman E. Brookes, was instrumental in bringing the cup to England, and R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, meeting C. P. Dixon.

Parke fell an easy victim to the Californian in the open English championships, but a round of tournament play since is said to have greatly improved his form. England pins her hope on his ability to defeat McLoughlin, who is reported to be stale. English critics are united in declaring there is less than "15" difference between Williams' play and that of McLoughlin. A greater crowd is expected than the crush which attended the Wilding-McLoughlin match.

PELKY AND SMITH MAY CLASH ON TURKEY DAY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—Indications are that Arthur Pelky, Tommy Burns, heavyweight battler, and Gunboat Smith will do battle in this city on Thanksgiving day. Burns today announced that he would have his man ready on turkey day and that Smith would be the foe, the match going to the highest bidder.

CROUCH ROBBED: GETS DRAW.

OTTAWA, ILL., July 25.—Ben Crouch, of Chicago, and Kid Mack, of Joliet, fought eight rounds to a draw in the wind-up of a boxing show held here last night. The decision came as a surprise to the fans, as Crouch cleanly outfought Mack, knocking him down several times. "Specia Delivery" Hirsch, of Chicago, and Ed Brandenburg, of St. Louis, went six rounds to a draw in the semi-wind-up.

BIG MARATHON GRIND TO-NIGHT AT MOTORDROME

UNLESS rain butts in again, local motorcycle fans will have their much-sought-for chance to see the Marathon race at the Motordrome to-night.

The races were postponed on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, but if the weather man will dish out some dry weather for to-night the riders promise to give the fans some racing that should be the classiest of the season.

$500 to Winner.

The Marathon race, with ten riders on the track at the same time, is the big feature. The speed teams are scheduled to circle the track 105 times, and the winner is to receive a cash prize of $500. More thrills seem likely to be crowded into this race than all the other races ever pulled off here.

Other Races on Card.

A special match race, three heats and a final of a sweepstakes and a trial against time by Tex Richards are the other events to be pulled off

The following is the complete program:

Tex Richards against time. One mile. Present record held by Eddie Hasha and Morty Graves. Time, 38 4-5 seconds.

One mile to qualify for two-mile final. Two to qualify in each heat and three in fastest heat.

First Heat—No. 1, Morty Graves; No. 2, Harry Schwartz; No. 3, Billy Shields; No. 4, George Lockner; No. 5, Tex Richards.

Second Heat—No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, Georges Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

Harry Glenn vs. Harry Schwartz. (Special Match Race.) Two miles, best two out of three heats.

Final heat of Motordrome Sweepstakes—Two miles.

Second heat of Special Match Race—Glenn vs. Schwartz.

Third heat of Special Match Race, if necessary.

Big Marathon Race—(26 miles 385 yards), ten riders to compete. Each rider will have to ride 105 times around the track. Winner to receive cash prize of $500.

Contestants—No. 1, Morty Graves; No. 2, Harry Schwartz; No. 3, Billy Shields; No. 4, George Lockner; No. 5, Tex Richards; No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, Georges Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

INDIANS SELL TWIRLER.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 25.—George Keiserling, of the Indianapolis American Association club pitching staff, has been sold to the San Francisco Pacific Coast team. Manager Kelly also announced the purchase of George Norton, a young lefthander from the Hastings club of the Nebraska State League.

BROU'S INJECTION—A PERMANENT CURE

of the most obstinate cases guaranteed in from 3 to 6 days; no other treatment required. Sold by all druggists.

TETTER

Tetterine cures tetter. Read what Mrs. V. C. McQuiddy, Estill Springs, Tenn. says: I had a severe case of tetter on both hands and I finally got helpless. A leading physician knew of no cure. I decided to give Tetterine a trial. To my utter surprise and satisfaction it worked a speedy cure.

Use Tetterine

It cures eczema, tetter, erysipelas, itching piles, ground itch and all skin maladies.

Highest Active Volcano

The loftiest active volcano in the world is Popocatapetl, situated forty miles southeast of the City of Mexico.

It rises in the form of a cone to a height of 17,520 feet above sea level and its crater has a diameter of about 2,700 feet and a circumference of three miles.

About the period of the Spanish conquest it was very active, but to-day it emits nothing but fumes.

From time to time the volcano is exploited by mining engineers, the system being rather unique. Indians are employed, who ascend the mountain daily, fill sacks with sulphur in the crater and then slide down the precipitous snow side of the volcano on these improvised gas bags.

Life Costs More---AND LABOR MUST LIVE

Business Men Must Make Their Plans Based Upon Necessary, Inevitable, JUST and Steady Increase of Pay.

(Copyright, 1913.)

Following is an extract from a telegram sent from San Francisco by W. R. Hearst to the manager of his editorial department. The message is recommended to business men generally:

"I believe that the railroad men, and all laboring men, must positively get repeated increases in wages in order to enable them to maintain even their present standard of living, and that they should properly, in the development of our civilization, obtain an even higher standard of living. Business men must count upon increasing wages as one of the inevitable conditions of modern life, and must make their plans and form their enterprises accordingly.

"HEARST."

The opinion expressed in the above dispatch is that OF A MAN WHO PAYS OUT MILLIONS A YEAR IN WAGES, AND THE HIGHEST WAGES.

A man who pays millions annually in wages, and has constantly increased wages throughout his business career, has a right to be heard by employers as well as by workers.

In Congress, when Mr. Hearst appeared to argue in favor of the Eight-Hour law against manufacturers who opposed it, Mr. Hearst pointed out the fact that his opinion concerning the eight-hour day was not theory, but positive knowledge, inasmuch as he himself employed men on the eight-hour-day basis, had done so for years, intended to do so permanently, AND HAD MADE HIS BUSINESS PAY IN SPITE OF THAT HANDICAP, if it were a handicap.

Successful business men in the United States should give careful and open-minded attention to Mr. Hearst's telegram, which is a message from one business man to others, from one considerable employer of labor to other employers of labor.

It is not a hardship for the intelligent business man to pay good wages and work his men fair hours, IF OTHER BUSINESS MEN DO THE SAME.

The great thing is that business men shall have an understanding, that they shall realize that they and the workers are actually partners in national welfare, AND THAT THEY SHALL FIGHT AGAINST THE MEAN, NARROW AND HARMFUL MAN WHO REFUSES TO DO THE JUST AND HONORABLE THING.

If a thousand men employ a million workers in a certain line of effort, and if they all pay their men well and give them reasonable hours, THAT IS FAIR FOR EVERY EMPLOYER.

The trouble with our system is that the hard-hearted, narrow-minded, close-fisted man, who goes off by himself, shunning organization, refusing co-operation, and competing upon a basis of the lowest wages and the longest hours, has been allowed to enjoy his prosperity and his thrift through meanness without question.

Let the employers work on an even, just basis as to wages and hours, and then THE BEST MAN WILL WIN—the business man will win who has the best ideas, the highest intelligence and is able to render the greatest public service.

All that the good business man asks, all that the fair employer wants, is justice and the opportunity to compete for business success and prosperity on an even basis with other men of his own class.

The salvation and prosperity of this country, menaced now by half-baked ideas of half-baked Democrats at Washington, have been based very largely upon the fact that the United States through the tariff has been protected from the unfair competition of the unfair foreign employer and ill-treated foreign labor.

American business men, thanks to the tariff, have had to compete ONLY WITH AMERICAN BUSINESS MEN

The man who has made iron in this country, and who paid his puddlers as much as $8 a day and more, has not had to worry about the man in Belgium who was paying for the same labor less than one-quarter.

The man manufacturing goods in this country has manufactured in competition with AMERICAN employers, and need not keep his mind upon the problem of meeting the competition of some Chinese manufacturer able to get labor for five cents a day.

American industry has grown, American prosperity has grown, American wages have grown—AND THE COST OF LIVING, INCLUDING FARMERS' PROFITS, ALSO HAS GROWN, because over here we have kept our markets to ourselves, and competition has been among men living, working, manufacturing and competing on the same terms.

What will happen if Democrats who believe that they know all about business, manufactures and industry, BECAUSE THEY HAVE NEVER HAD ANYTHING TO DO WITH THOSE THINGS, are to have their way, if the tariff wall is to be torn down suddenly and the competition of the meanest foreign employers and the lowest paid foreign labor is to be met, is another story.

Fortunately, one election is followed by another election. It will not be difficult for workers and employers combined to have their way AT ANOTHER ELECTION and correct the threatening follies of this Administration.

The main thing is that those now working in this country, whether they work with their hands, as laborers and mechanics, or with their brains, as employers, should co-operate on a friendly basis, through the making of laws, for the establishment of minimum wage rates, especially as regards women, and in other sane, friendly and legal ways for the bettering of conditions.

It is time to get away from the days of strikes, of dynamite, of [illegible]stead shootings by paid Pinkerton thugs, or Los Angeles explosions by degraded, depraved misrepresentatives of labor.

It is important that those who employ labor should recognize the truth of Mr. Hearst's statement in the above telegram, "that railroad men and all laboring men must positively get repeated increases in wages in order to enable them to maintain even their present standard of living, and that they should properly, in the development of our civilization, obtain an even higher standard of living."

The workingman to-day gets not twice, but three times, four times and five times what he got when this country was young.

McMaster, the historian, writes of a day when there was JUST ONE MECHANIC IN THE UNITED STATES ABLE TO MAKE A DOLLAR A DAY ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

One President of the United States, a well meaning man, was filled with gloom and thought the country was going to the dogs because when he spoke you could no longer hire a first-class man in this country for less than fifty cents a day.

If you had told an employer of those old days, even a George Washington, a Thomas Jefferson, or any other first-class old American, that one day in this country unskilled labor would demand and get two dollars a day and skilled mechanics three dollars, four dollars, five dollars a day and more, those old Americans would have said, "Well, the country must go to the dogs; the thing is impossible."

When you say to-day that wages, high as they seem to some, must be increased, and ought to be increased, the man of to-day, if he be shortsighted, will tell you that it is impossible, and that the country must go to the dogs.

BUT IT IS NOT IMPOSSIBLE, AND THE COUNTRY NEED NOT GO TO THE DOGS.

The American employer of to-day is better off, being richer, bigger in his enterprise, safer in his undertakings, than his predecessor who used to be able to hire a first-class man for fifty cents a day.

The men that own the street railways and pay $2.50 per day are better off than they were in the days when they got their labor for $1.00 or $1.10.

After all, what is the chief asset of the employer? Is it not the competent well-fed worker?

And far above the interest of the individual employer, what is the chief asset of the nation? Is it not a population of well-fed men, well paid, with time to rest, time for mental improvement, money enough to keep their children out of the mills and mines, and in school?

Not with hatred, bitterness and regret, but with pleasure as good citizens, the competent American business men, united, with laws to protect them, fighting the unfair competition of low wages and long hours, should gladly recognize that the purpose of a republic is not merely to make a few rich and protect them in their wealth, but to make the entire population happy, contented and prosperous.

Very gladly the employers of intelligence and power must, as Mr. Hearst says, "count upon increasing wages as one of the inevitable conditions of modern life, and make their plans and form their enterprises accordingly."

The employer should be reasonable and just.

And the workers should be reasonable, honest and fair.

We ought to be able to get away from an industrial system of fighting, hatred, battle and strikes.

The worker should be content to give a fair and full day's work for a fair day's wages and fair hours of work.

We should get away from these days when the employer does his best to get the most that he can out of the workman, and give him the least possible; and when the worker's thought and that of his leader is to get the most he can out of the employer and give the least possible.

Workers and employers should treat each other justly, combining as associates, friends and brothers, and GIVE TO THIS NATION AND TO THE FUTURE THE BEST POSSIBLE PRODUCT OF THEIR COMBINED BRAINS AND MUSCLE, ORGANIZED AND APPLIED IN SUCH A WAY AS NOT TO INTERFERE WITH THE HEALTH, THE HAPPINESS, THE MENTAL GROWTH OF THE PRESENT GENERATION, OR THE WELFARE OF THE GENERATIONS TO COME.

Extravagance

It Is Both a Form of Lunacy and Immorality, He Declares.

Written For The Georgian

By the Rev. Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

THERE is such a thing as extravagance. The word stands for the wild use of money. It is barbarism expressing itself in the unreasoning scattering of dollars.

It is both a form of lunacy and a form of immorality—lunacy, because there is no sense in it; immorality, because it is a contemptuous waste of values.

Poor as Well as Rich.

No man has so much money as to warrant his expending it without a calculation of rational returns, returns accruing either to the enrichment of his own life or the life of someone else.

That is a principle which is being grossly disregarded, and the habits of people are tending more and more strongly in that direction.

This holds of the poor as well as of the rich, although in the case of the former it comes to less conspicuous expression and is therefore less thought of or commented upon.

The money that hundreds of thousands of poor people expend in whisky, beer and tobacco is both idiotic and wicked.

It is idiotic because it helps to keep them poor; it is wicked because it devotes to sheer animalism treasure that ought to go to higher ends, and which might be so utilized as to raise them to a higher level of human value.

"Stage of Vulgarity."

The poor man in Scripture who put his money where it would bring back to him no sensible return was cast into the outer darkness. That is the Bible's way of characterizing a senseless and vicious treatment of assets.

This silly extravagance of the poor is encouraged by the same habit practiced on a more stupendous scale by the rich.

The uncalculating and therefore iniquitous scattering of money by men with large fortunes is one of the features of the times.

As the late D. Willis James once remarked to me, "It has reached the stage of vulgarity."

Passion for luxury has been one of the causes assigned for the sinking of the Titanic; and now we have got the Imperator, and there are more coming.

A quarter of a century ago no one thought of a suite of rooms aboard ship costing above $500.

The figure has mounted now to $5,000. One can secure now, for $500, accommodations just as comfortable, just as well suited to personal and physical requirements, as were obtainable at that figure 25 years ago, and that would leave a margin of $4,500 expended without any rational or righteous return.

"Barbaric and Sinful."

Now, when we consider the wise and necessary uses to which money can be put, the beneficent institutions that need to be supported, the causes of every kind that languish for want of funds, the destitute women and children that go poorly clad and miserably fed and unfed, I say that, when such considerations are taken into account, for a man to lay out $5,000 or any considerable part of that for the sake of luxuries of six days' steamer travel is both barbaric and sinful.

And any man, no matter how much money he has, who has risen above the level of barbarism and sin ought to be ashamed to be publicly advertised as having sacrificed a sum so egregious on the altar of his own personal and animal comfort.
