ASSEMBLIES BALLOT ON NEW MODERATOR

Three Candidates for Leadership of Northern Presbyterians---Southern Delegates Also Vote.

With cheers that lasted several minutes the name of Rev. John T. Stone, of Chicago, as a "non-political" candidate for moderator was placed in nomination as a "dark horse" by Rev. J. R. King, of Monmouth, Ill., at the assembly of the Northern Presbyterian church late this afternoon.

With Dr. Stone's name added to the list of possible moderators the nominations were closed with the Rev. Maitland Alexander, Pittsburg; Rev. William McKibben, Cincinnati; Rev. Howard A. Johnston, Bridgeport, Conn. and Rev. S. S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio in the contest.

Thursday saw the inauguration of the real work of two thousand delegates and visitors to three great Presbyterian Assemblies, gathered in one city for the first time in the history of America.

The actions of this great body of men will affect nearly two million people, members of the Presibyterian Church in the United States.

Of chief importance among the events of the day are the elections of moderators for the two greatest assemblies—the Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., and the Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. The United Presbyterians already have elected Dr. Robert M. Russell moderator.

At the opening of the Northern Assembly, in the Baptist Tabernacle, Dr. Mark A. Matthews, the retiring moderator, delivered the sermon that is always awaited with interest. His subject was "The Victorips of Faith ve. The Failures of Unbelief," and he declared in a ringing talk that the greatest need of the church was faith.

Three Candidates in Field.

For the moderatorship of the Northern Assembly three candidates have appeared in the field. That the contest will be hotly fought is almost certain, but all the indications favored a victory for the conservatives.

The candidates are Dr. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburg, Pa., who has the support of the conservative element; Dr. S. S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio, and Dr. William McKibben, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The session of the Southern branch was opened by Dr. Thomas S. Clyce, of Sherman, Texas, the retiring moderator, at the North Avenue Church. Owing to the policy pursued by this organization, which precludes all politics in the election of moderator, no candidate has appeared for that office.

Both branches will elect their moderators before night.

Moderator Fight in Northern Assembly.

At the opening session of the Northern Assembly, at the Baptist Tabernacle, Thursday morning Moderator Dr. Mark Matthews, of Seattle, former Georgian, now pastor of the largest Presbyterian church in the United States, preached what many of his hearers considered one of the strongest sermons he has ever delivered, his subject was "The Victories of Faith vs. The Failures of Unbelief."

Following the annual sermon of the moderator, the convention adjourned to 2:30 o'clock, when the second session was begun.

The session of the Southern Assembly, at the North Avenue Church, followed the course pursued by the Northern Assembly, adjourning to 2:30 o'clock, after hearing the annual sermon of the moderator, Dr. Thomas S. Clyce, of Sherman, Texas.

Interest in the Thursday sessions of the two assemblies centered, of course, in the election of moderators to head the assemblies of the church scheduled for the afternoon session. Three men have been prominently mentioned for the honor of succeeding to the work of Dr. Matthews—Dr. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburg, Pa.; Dr. S. S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio, and Dr. William McKibben, president of the Lane Theological Seminary, of Cincinnati.

Contest Narrows to Two.

Prior to the balloting, however, the contest seemed to have narrowed down to Dr. Palmer and Dr. Alexander, with Dr. McKibben losing ground slowly and Alexander in the lead.

The first of the popular meetings to be held each evening under the direction of all of the three assemblies will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock, in the Auditorium. The

U. P. LEADERS FOR PRISON REFORMS

Penal System Denounced by Judge McKinzie-Cleland, Formerly of Chicago Bench.

"The Penal System as it Pertains to Christianity" was the subject of an address before the United Presbyterian Assembly delivered by Judge McKinzie Cleland of Chicago, in the Central church Thursday afternoon.

Judge Cleland brought forth for a strong arraignment the practices observed in the jails and prison institutes, asking his audience if such methods were in conformity with Christianity.

Formerly a member of the Municipal Court bench in Chicago, Judge Cleland spoke from his own observations of criminals and illustrated his points by instances of the great harm which he declared was being wrought under the penal system.

"It is just as logical to place a man in a garbage can, to improve his digestion," said Judge Cleland, "as it is to put him in jail to improve his morals.

"The practice of giving prisoners sermons on the prodigal son are no good.

"Forty per cent of those who go to jail go back again. I knew of one woman who has been in jail 176 times. The confinement has no effect upon them. It does not teach them to be better men and women. Also there are thousands who go to the prisons because they are unable to pay the fines imposed upon them. They may be good people, who through unfortunate circumstances come within the clutches of the law.

"Once in confinement they are brought in contact with criminals of the worst type. They become tainted and go out of their prisons far worse than before. It is the duty of the church to fight the penal system and I hereby move that a campaign be inaugurated against it."

Moderator Russell, following Judge Cleland's address, put a motion before the assemblage that a resolution be drawn up denouncing the penal system. The motion carried unanimously.

Moonshiner, Slayer Of 2, Near Capture

PIKESVILLE, KY., May 15.—A posse of officers to-day was closing in on Dave Hall, who is wanted for shooting two revenue officers to death when they raided his still in the mountains near here May 4.

The posse yesterday captured Tom Riddle, negro member of the moonshine band, and fired several shots at Hall. He escaped along Frying Pan Creek, in Dickinson County, Virginia.

Fasting for Cancer, Paris Expert's Cure

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 15.—Dr. Keating Hart, famous French cancer specialist, who laid before the Academy of Medicine a new theory for the cure of the malignant disease, which consists chiefly of fasting, holds that cancer is not hereditary and that it can be cured.

The general treatment consists in reduction of food almost to the point of starvation; the local treatment, even when the disease is inciplent, consists of the usual operation, followed by the directing of a stream of high-tension electric sparks against the diseased parts.

Dr. Hart believes that the overheated condition of blood, due to heavy eating, makes part of the body susceptible to cancer germs.

Mob Attacks Court At Striker's Trial

PATERSON, N. J., May 15.—A dangerous condition existed here to-day after the conviction of Patrick Quinlan, an Industrial Worker of the World, on the charge of inciting silk mill strikers to riot. A mob surged around the court house and a fierce fight ensued when the police and a squad of sheriffs attacked the strikers. Ten men and one woman were arrested.

Leaders of the strikers threatened to blow up the court-house and heated speeches were made.

East Point Town Marshal Is Found Dead in Street

Lying face downward in the middle of the street, with the head buried in the folded arms, J. C. Cash, night marshal of East Point, was found dead in front of the Citizens' bank, at East Point, Thursday morning at 4:30 o'clock.

Edward Thrailkill, a truck farmer, found the body. Coroner Donehoo will hold an inquest Thursday afternoon.

An examination failed to disclose any marks or wounds on the body. Dr. Griffin is of the opinion that death was caused by apoplexy, but he has not yet made a close enough examination to be sure.

The body was found by Thrailkill as he was driving into East Point with a load of produce. His horses shied, and Thrailkill, investigating, found the body lying in the street. Cash's revolver was still in his pocket, unexploded, and his club was lying by his side, where it had dropped when he fell.

Cash had been marshal of East Point for sixteen months.

2 Bandits Hold Up 200 Men and Loot A Gambling Den

TULSA, OKLA., May 15.—With drawn revolvers two masked youths held up a crowd of 200 men at the "Turf Exchange" on Main Street early this morning and got away with $6,500 in cash.

The upper floor of the place was crowded with men when two slender youths appeared at the entrance to the room. They had blue bandkerchiefs over their faces and while one man held his gun leveled at the astonished crowd his partner went around to the various tables gathering in all the money in sight and placing it in a stout canvas bag. None of the men were searched.

The robbers then backed out of the room and down the stairway to the pool hall. They made their escape through a rear door.

EXCEPTIONS DISMISSED IN COTTON LIBEL SUIT

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—Judge McPherson has filed a decision in the United States District Court, dismissing exceptions to a libel in admiralty filed by the Merchants and Miners Transportation Company against 701 bales of cotton in a suit to collect freight charges.

The exceptions raised the question whether a common carrier could collect freight charges on goods that had been shipped on a through bill of lading before the merchandise reached its destination.

BURNS INVESTIGATOR WILL PROBE SLAYING

Noted Detective, Himself, to Take Up Case June 1---One of His Experts Coming Soon.

Colonel Thomas B. Felder, noted Atlanta lawyer, Thursday issued the positive statement that William J. Burns would take charge of the Phagan investigation immediately upon his return from Europe, June 1.

In the meantime a criminal investigator will be sent from the Burns Agency's New York office to prosecute the investigation.

Colonel Felder gave out the following dispatch received from Raymond J. Burns, son of William J. Burns, in New York, which tells of the father's determination to take up the Phagan mystery:

Father still in Europe. Returns about June 1. He consents to take charge of Phagan investigation immediately upon his return. He suggests I send a good criminal investigator to start investigation immediately before same gets too cold.

Colonel Felder declared his supreme confidence in Burns' ability to clear up the Phagan mystery and bring to light the person or persons guilty of the murder.

Think Fund Can Be Raised.

He declared that his action in securing the detective was given impetus by the demands of Atlanta citizens to clear up the mystery regardless of cost, and he expresses his belief that sufficient funds to cover the investigation will be easily forthcoming.

"There is absolutely nothing new in the case," he said Thursday morning, "unless it is evidence that has not been made public. Our investigation has been extensive, and some rather important points have been brought out since the Coroner's inquest, but there is nothing that could be called new.

"For the last two days our efforts have been directed toward getting the different statements in shape and corroborating what evidence we have."

New Arrest Not Unlikely.

It became known, however, that for two days deputies from the offices of the Solicitor have been contemplating making a new arrest in the case, and that it is not unlikely the arrest may be made Thursday or Friday.

One of the deputies was responsible for the statement that there was almost as much evidence against the party, or parties, under surveillance as there was against the two suspects held in the Tower. He said he had not made the arrest yet because the persons could not get away and he wanted to get the sanction of the Solicitor, which had thus far been withheld.

The Solicitor said that he attached little importance to the slip of paper found in an old purse at Mary Phagan's home on which was written the slain girl's name and address. Other than as a specimen of her handwriting, he said, it was of no importance.

He said he did not believe the girl expected to meet her death or had the slip of paper as an identification card, for the reason that it was left in an unused purse and at her home.

The Solicitor had several conferences yesterday with handwriting experts and intimated the evidence along this line would play an important part in the trial.

The Grand Jury meets Friday, but it is not probable the Phagan case will be submitted then. Mr. Dorsey said that he might call a special session some time before Friday of next week, but the probabilities were it would be considered on that day.

All the cases on the docket, with the exception of the Phagan case, were placed on the Grand Jury calendar Thursday to "clean up" everything for the Phagan investigation, which probably will take several days.

Public Asked to Donate.

The public is therefore invited to contribute to the fund. At the conclusion of the work an itemized statement of receipts and disbursements in this behalf will be published by the press of the city for the information of the subscribers to the fund.

In conclusion I desire to say that in what I am doing I have the approval of the Solicitor General, Hon. Hugh M. Dorsey, who will supervise and direct all work in this behalf.

THOMAS B. FELDER.

For Felder, Anderson, Dillon & Whitman.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey said that he expected no developments along the line of a new arrest, nor had there been anything at all in the case that would lead him to change the direction of his prosecution.

"There is absolutely nothing new in the case," he said Thursday morning, "unless it is evidence that has not been made public. Our investigation has been extensive, and some rather important points have been brought out since the Coroner's inquest, but there is nothing that could be called new.

"For the last two days our efforts have been directed toward getting the different statements in shape and corroborating what evidence we have."

YAARAB NOBLES DEFEAT COMMITTEE'S REPORT

SECRET HUNT BY BURNS IN MYSTERY IS LIKELY

Probably Will Not Reveal Presence in City as He Investigates Phagan Case.

Colonel Thomas B. Felder said Wednesday that Detective William J. Burns had not arrived as yet, in New York from his European trip, but that as soon as he did he undoubtedly would start science for Atlanta to work upon the Mary Phagan strangling mystery.

Colonel Felder is acquainted with the day and the hour on which the famous sleuth will reach this city, but for the purposes of the investigation he is withholding the information.

"There was no authority for the statement that detective Burns would be in New York Tuesday," said Colonel Felder. "The date of his arrival has been known in my office, but it has not been made public."

"It is quite likely that the great detective will come quietly and unannounced into the city, make his investigation of the mystery and slip out before many persons are aware from their own knowledge that he has been working on the case."

In Touch With Burns Agency.

Colonel Felder has been in constant touch with Raymond Burns, son of the detective, who is secretary and treasurer of the Burns Agency, and has offices in New York. The agency is being placed in possession of the important new developments in the mystery as rapidly as they occur. An outline of the whole case will be laid before Burns the instant that he arrives at his New York offices.

That increased importance is being attached to the notes that were found beside the dead body of Mary Phagan was indicated Wednesday when several handwriting experts were called here Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey.

An expert tested at the Coroner's inquest that the notes, in his opinion, were written by Newt Lee, the night watchman at the National Pencil Factory. The expert was corroborated by the official testimony of two other experts.

The Solicitor, however, has not been satisfied with the evidence he had on this important point. Experts were found who disagreed with the conclusions pressed to the Coroner's jury. The writing in the notes found near the body Mary Phagan, they declared, was not better than the normal writing of Newt Lee.

Difference in the Slant.

The writing showed evidence of education and during which Lee did not possess.

Lee would have had to be under instruction for 6 or three months, they said, before he could show the improvement it is evident between the test specimens of his handwriting and the handwriting of the notes.

Lee's normal handwriting shows a decided slant, fit of the notes closely approaches perpendicular.

The final letter in each of the words written by Lee ended abruptly. The final letters in the notes were rounded.

THE WEATHER.

Forecast for Atlanta and Georgia — Occasional local showers Wednesday and probably Thursday.

FORREST ADAIR, Potentat of Yaarab Temple, who led the great fight and won the 1914 Shriner meet for Atlanta. He won the title of the "livest wire at the Dallas convention, working unceasingly for the Gate City's success.

GREAT WELCOME PLANNED FOR VICTORIOUS YAARAB'S

To Atlanta will come the next annual conclave of the Imperial Council of the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

For the Gate City the Shriners' convention of 1914 has been won, and to the members of the Yaarab Temple belong the honors for this signal triumph.

In the forefront of the battle with other contenders for the honor of entertaining the Shriners were illustrious Potentate Forrest Adair, Past Potentate John A. Hynds, Claude H. Hutcheson, W. A. Foster, Joseph C. Greenfield, Robert L. Golding and Imperial Outer Guard E. A. Cutts, of Savannah. To these public-spirited citizens will go the plaudits of the city for their noble work.

Plan Welcome to Yaarabs.

With flags flying and banners waving, Atlanta will give herself over to the victorious army of Yaarab Shriners on their triumphant return home. And the band will play "Lo, the Conquering Heroes Come."

Quickly following upon the flush of victory from Dallas, preparations for a gala reception to Atlanta brigade were set on foot. No time is to be lost. When the Yaarab delegation, with drum corps and patrol arrive on their special train, probably Sunday morning, they will be met by a reception which there has been one than which her." Probably not until the city bedecks itself for the conclave which has just been won for it will such elaborate preparations be made as those now under way to greet the returning victors.

Thousands to Greet Victors.

Thousands of persons, banked in every street, will meet the special upon its arrival at the Terminal Station. The cheers which will arise in plaudit of their triumph will rend the air and the enthusiasm will be given impetus, if such is possible, by the patriotic music to emanate from half a dozen bands.

Already the preparations have met with the unanimous and hearty support of Atlanta merchants and business men. The men who in the short interval of 24 hours raised more than $75,000 to win from Memphis the next Shriners' convention, will do as much more, if necessary, compliment to the fighters who carried the city's banner to victory at Dallas.

And Everybody's Happy.

The prospect of the coming of the vast throng of Shriners next year has caused great jubilation everywhere.

Judging from the tremendous success of the conclave at Dallas, the probability is that there will be more than 60,000 who will attend the Atlanta meeting. In Dallas there are 50,000 visitors, 15,000 of that number being Shriners. Owing to this city's accessibility, it is expected that fully 10,000 more will be attracted here.

ATLANTA SPIRIT AGAIN TRIUMPHS IN GREAT FIGHT

Buffalo, Entering as Dark Horse, and Recommended by Committee, Makes Vain Race; Adair and Aides Praised by All For Their Fine Work

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

DALLAS, TEX., May 14.—Atlanta came through with bells on to-day, winning next year's imperial council meeting, notwithstanding the fact that at the last moment an effort was made to sidetrack her and break up her hopes. The committee appointed yesterday by the Imperial Potentate reported in favor of Buffalo, much to everybody's surprise, as that town was entered as a dark horse at the last moment.

The fight was carried to the floor and Atlanta won by the following vote:

Atlanta, 230.
Buffalo, 85.
Memphis, 69.

Forrest Adair and his faithful Yaarabs, after one of the finest campaigns ever waged in behalf of Atlanta, will "bring home the bacon," even as he promised.

"ATLANTA SPIRIT" AGAIN WINS.

The things that put Atlanta over in this fight were, first of all, that magnificent Atlanta spirit hich raised well along toward $100,000 for the entertainment of the Imperial Council before a gowd of invlation as extended; second, he mos intelligent and tireless work put forth in Atlanta's behalf by Forrest Adair and his co-workers.

Adair hardly has slept since he arrived in Dallas. His one idea at all times has been to win the fight for next year's meeting. He is the best known Shriner in the South. He has been a regular attendant upon imperial council sessions for eighteen years, and knew good and well how most effectively and most intelligently to proceed with the work outlined for him here.

I doubt that any other individual in Georgia could so surely have led this fight to a successful finish and with so few mistakes along the way. Of course, here is glory for all, and glory enough to go round, but the major slice of it is Adair's.

TO REACH HOME SUNDAY.

The Atlanta party will divide into two squads, one part going on a short tour of Texas, the other returning home by way of Hot Springs, Ark.

Potentate Adair and his party probably will reach Atlanta Sunday morning. By to-morrow morning Dallas will resemble nothing so much as a deserted banquet hall, but congratulating itself upon one of the most acceptable bunches of good fellows it ever saw gathered together anywhere.

Potentate Adair's final message to his home town is:

"The victory is ours, as we promised ourselves it should be. Now let all loyal Atlantans get ready to make next year's session of the imperial council the very best and most enjoyable it ever has known. It can be done, and it will be done, for to do it that way is to do it Atlanta's way."

MEMPHIS MAKES POOR FIGHT.

Memphis was outgeneraled and outfought at every turn of the cards, and the magnificent floor vote accorded Atlanta shows how well Forrest Adair had planned his campaign.

It was not thought the imperial potentate would go so far as to fix a committee on the quiet against Atlanta, but apparently this is what he did. He was reported lukewarm to the Gate City last night, but as he was the only imperial officer hostile the impression was that the committee would report in favor of Atlanta.

As a matter of fact, it was rumored unofficially last night as standing three to two favorable to Atlanta. Buffalo never was mentioned as a candidate until to-day. Notwithstanding the unexpected fight made on Atlanta and the surprising nature of it, there is good feeling among the Shriners and no bitterness will result.

Atlanta was magnificently vindicated and won with a whoop when the delegates could get to the voting. The date of the meeting has not yet been fixed.

ALL LIFT HAT TO ATLANTA.

Atlanta's great victory is the talk of all Dallas. The wonderful fight put up, the remarkable courage dispayed and the magnificent rally from an unexpected hostile development has lifted Dallas' hat to Atlanta and everybody is complimenting the Crackers on all sides.

Buffao's Temple never asked for next year's meeting; did not want it, and was practically without its knowledge. It was realized that Yaarab had won the fight, and it was hoped by those hostile to the Gate City to combine Buffalo and the already defeated Memphis to Atlanta's undoing.

How it all falled, and how Adair's magnificent standing in the Shrine carried the floor fight by storm all go to make one of the most interesting chapters in Shrine history.

It as 2:30 p. m. when the result was known.

The imperial potentate's hostility to Atlanta is hard to explain, but, as i is, no one is trying to explain it particularly. There will be no bitterness deeloped by the fight.

Here's the Way It Stood Before the Fight Came

The developments in Atlanta's contest to the time of the victory is indicated in the following news story from The Georgian's correspondent:

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

DALLAS, TEX., May 14.—Take Forrest Adair's word for it. Atlanta is going to win to-day.

Just before closing campaign records and going into the session of the imperial council of the Mystic Shrine to-day Mr. Adair and his faithful Yaarab boosters and boomers held a final council of war.

After checking every name on the rolls of representative and substitute imperial council, and after tightening up all the rivets everywhere, the conference decided that Atlanta should win over Memphis by approximately two to one, and that only the most unexpected and unanticipated complication could prevent Atlanta capturing the 1914 gathering.

It is not to be supposed that this campaign in Dallas has been all easy sailing. On the contrary, much of it has been exceedingly rough, although never dangerous, so far as the Yaarabs could see.

Memphis has made a game fight, and has had stout-hearted friends on hand waging her battle. It has been clearly shown, however, that Atlanta has very much the better of Memphis in the matter of hotel accommodations, and the Dallas gathering has been flooded with invitations from officials of Georgia and the city of Atlanta, clubs and business organizations, as well as many private persons.

The publicity work has been intelligently handled. That large entertainment fund, reaching well toward $100,000, coupled with the assurance that there is more money where that came from, all served to make Atlanta's success seemingly certain.

Little Talk of "Dark Horse."

There has been some jealousy cropping out, of course. Some delegates having no particular love either for Atlanta or Memphis, although few of that sort have been in evidence, have undertaken to start talk of a "dark horse," and in that connection, both Atlantic City and Boston have been mentioned as acceptable meeting places for next year, Baltimore has also been mentioned.

In the main, however, the contest for the honor of entertaining the imperial council has been confined to Atlanta and Memphis, with Atlanta always leading easily.

It is predicted that there will be a much larger crowd in Atlanta next year than is now in Dallas. In the first place, the Shriners have been convinced that Atlanta has the hotel accommodations and the funds to make things hum, neither of which Dallas has had to the extent of making this year's session all it might have been.

In the second place, the enthusiasm of the Atlanta delegation has been of a genuinely winning variety all the time. It is a foregone conclusion that the Imperial Council is to meet in San Francisco in 1915, the year of the Panama Exposition, and for that reason it is the purpose of the Shrine East to have next year's session in the East.

Ballot Wednesday Afternoon.

The balloting on next year's meeting, expected to take place between noon and 1 o'clock, was put off later in the afternoon.

It is expected that Atlanta will win easily in the early stages of the voting. If intelligent leadership, quickness of action and unanimousness of method count for anything, Forrest Adair's fight should win to-day. He reached here among the very first, and there is not a delegate or a representative whom he has not seen personally. When Atlanta has won, Forrest Adair's place as a master politician and manager of men will be established. He is a wonder and he knows Shrine politics from beginning to end. He is intimately acquainted with the men who manage the affairs of the Shrine. They have been his warm personal friends for years, and they are standing by him manfully now—just as he has stood by them manfully in the past.

Indeed, all the Atlanta delegation has worked faithfully and hard for their city's success to-day.

The last word Mr. Adair delivered to me over the long-distance 'phone session to-day was, "Tell them I am going to bring home the bacon, as I promised to, all for the glory of the Imperial Order of the Shrine, and for the glory of old Atlanta."

And he is going to do it, too. As one Shriner remarked to me to-day, "That man Adair hit Dallas, if it wasn't won before that."

Parade a Big Spectacle.

Last night's big parade was a magnificent spectacle. More than 15,000 Shriners, either in glittering patrol robes or the more comfortable full dress and red fez, were in line. The parade required two good hours to pass a given point, as there were, besides the Shriners' 41 bands, numerous camels, chariots, mounted officials and quaint floats, some propelled in one way and another—rigged up in the Lord only knows how by Shriners in accord with some inner Shrine philosophy not revealed to the profane and unregenerate sons of the desert. The parade, amplified and extended as it likely will be in Atlanta next year, is going to be mighty fetching along Whitehall and Peachtree, even as a preparatory and preliminary to the great parade of the Arab patrol.

Certain differences between the union barons marching in the parade and the Yaarab Drum Corps of Atlanta were amicably adjusted, and the Atlanta drummers marched in both parades yesterday. This incident, which for a time looked as if it might lead to rise to some embarrassing complication, was smoothed and has passed off in the pleasantness whatever. Not a band was missing from last night's parade, and the drum corps was out there, playing its part in the parade handsomely.

Only One Contest for Office.

The only contest for any office is over that of imperial outer guard, the lowest of the Imperial Council officials. There a dozen of more candidates for this place. All other officers move up consecutively next year, making the list of officers to be chosen to-day, except imperial outer guard, as follows:

Imperial potentate, William W. Irwin, Wheeling, W. Va.

Imperial deputy potentate, Frederick R. Smith, Rochester, N. Y.

Imperial assistant chief rabban, Henry P. Cederlingh, Jr., St. Louis.

Imperial treasurer, Benjamin W. Rowell, Boston.

Imperial recorder, Charles Overnshire, Minneapolis.

Imperial first ceremonial master, W. Freeland Kendrick, Philadelphia.

Imperial second ceremonial master, Ellis L. Garretson, Tacoma, Wash.

Four New Temples Chartered.

Charters for new temples were granted by the imperial Council to San Diego, Cal.; East St. Louis, Ill.; Parkersburg, W. Va., and Nashville, Tenn. Dispensations were granted Shreveport, La., and Halifax, Nova Scotia.

The first business session was held yesterday and imperial Potentate Cunningham made his formal report at an open meeting held in the Scottish Rite Cathedral. The order now has 133 temples, his report stated, and on January 1 last the membership was 184,146, a net gain for the year of 12,790. He said the funds of the Imperial Council on hand March 1 were $114,421.

After the adjournment of the Imperial Council this afternoon various social functions will be given in Dallas in honor of the visitors, and to-night and to-morrow they will begin their returning caravans home.

Every member of Atlantans will make a short tour of Texas, while others will return home direct. The entire outfit should be home by Sunday morning, Forrest Adair, with his bacon.

Present for Governor Colquitt.

The Georgia Shriners will present Governor Colquitt, of Texas, a handsome loving cup to-day, as an evidence of their appreciation of his friendliness to the Shriners from Georgia and Atlanta, in the matter of choosing next year's meeting place. Potentate Cunningham presented the imperial potentate as an especial guest of honor. He is a native Georgian and has not failed to let all with whom he has talked to-day know it.

"I am a friend of Joe," Governor Colquitt actually boasts brazenly and outspokenly of his Georgia ancestry, and the fact there he was born in Georgia. He is a Brooks County man by birth and his entire family is closely related to the family of the late Governor and Senator Alfred H. Colquitt.

Because of these facts and his friendship to the cause of Atlanta, the Georgia delegation have determined to honor him with a Georgia loving cup of solid silver as an evidence of their good will. The Governor has no idea that he is to receive the cup. It will be presented to him Thursday in Austin by Illustrious Potentate Adair, who, with a number of Yaarab delegates, will leave Thursday morning for a swing around Texas.

Austin, the capital, will be the first stopping point out of Dallas.

THOUSANDS WILL WELCOME VICTORIOUS YAARAB PATROL

Atlanta's hotels will easily accommodate the thousands of those who will come for that occasion.

"The Shriners convention undoubtedly will be the largest ever held in Atlanta," declared Henry Davis, cashier of the Lowry National Bank, Wednesday afternoon, when he heard of the victory. "It will be a great thing for the city to have the honor of entertaining the splendid men. It will help Atlanta in many ways. Yaarab Shrine's action bears out the Atlanta tradition of getting everything we go after. I feel sure that the bankers will co-operate in every way to make their home-coming a gala occasion."

Colonel Peel Delegated.

Colonel W. L. Peel, president of the American National Bank, congratulated Mr. Davis.

"I am delighted to hear that the Shriners will come to Atlanta next year," said Colonel Peel. "I am sure that they will be pleased with Atlanta and will have a good time. The entire city will throw itself open to their entertainment and when they leave every Shriner among them will carry naught but good wishes for us. It will be a great event."

Governor-elect John M. Slaton declared that he could not express too much enthusiasm for the coming of the Shriners.

"It will be the first time that this splendid body has ever held forth in the Southeast," said Mr. Slaton. "They couldn't come to a better city than Atlanta for their initiation."

"Hurrah," Says Slaton.

"It will mean a great thing for the South in general. Once the Shriners get started down here they will continue year by year. The hospitality which Atlanta will extend to them will provide an everlasting memory. Hurrah for Georgia Scotland. Hurrah for the Yaarab Temple, and the valiant work they did."

From Robert F. Maddox came the declaration that the Shriners would be given the time of their lives. Mr. Maddox is a member of the executive committee of the Yaarab Temple, and it was largely through his endeavors that the campaign to secure the next convention for Atlanta.

"The citizens of this city as well as the members of the Yaarab Temple is due the honor for winning the battle," declared Mr. Maddox. "If it had not been for their generous and spontaneous subscription to the campaign, the Atlanta delegates would not have had the heart to fight as they did and win.

Sure Clubs All Will Aid.

"It is such enterprises that has made this city the great community that it is and with a continuance of its activities prosperity will know no bounds. I am sure that the visitors will be taken care of comfortably. Every club in the city will throw its doors wide open. I am positive."

J. K. Ottley, vice president of the Fourth National Bank, said:

"It was a wonderful achievement for a city of this size. It will win over to Atlanta the good wishes and hearty thanks of every Shriner who visits us next year. The manner of our winning is characteristic of the spirit and progressiveness of Atlanta. And we will follow it up with such a welcome as has never been given the Shriners before, and never will be given them again, unless they return here."

Mayor Is Not Surprised.

Mayor Woodward said:

"I am delighted, but not surprised, at the success Atlanta generally gets what she goes after, and I feel sure that it would be the same in this instance. It will afford me the greatest pleasure to turn the city over to the Shriners. I am sure that the welcome which will be accorded them by Atlanta citizens will be one of the warmest they have ever received. They will wish they had found this fairest city of the fair South before."

OUTLAWANGLERS OPEN FIRE ON WARDENS

Another violent outbreak against the game laws in Georgia was reported to State Game Warden Jesse E. Mercer Wednesday by two of his deputies.

E. L. Waggoner and A. S. Johnston, of Clarkston, DeKalb County, were targets for a fusillade of shots Tuesday night when encamped near the banks of the Venable pond at Stone Mountain.

Due either to the poor aim of the poachers or to their intention of only scaring the deputies away, neither of the officers was wounded.

Mercer to Investigate.

The outbreak at Stone Mountain, in conjunction with the trouble at Milltown, where Deputy Bolsclair reported that he was arrested, threatened and nearly flobbed, is engaging the attention of the State Game Warden's office.

After instructing Deputy Waggoner that he should not hesitate to return fire if there was any more shooting, Mr. Mercer made preparations to go in person to Milltown with Deputy Bolsclair, there to investigate the charges illegally at Milltown will be heard Monday and Mr. Mercer will be at the hearing. Bolsclair also will be a defendant, the charge against him being carrying concealed weapons.

"Clear Out" Order Starts Row.

The uprising at Venable pond was due to a recent order of the Game Warden to clear that section of all persons who were fishing there without permission. The owners of the property about the pond had notified Mr. Mercer that they were absolutely helpless.

They said their property had been demolished and burned and their boats had been scuttled by the outlaw fishermen. They appealed to the Warden for protection.

Deputies Waggoner and Johnston were instructed to patrol the pond and get evidence against anyone who was found fishing illegally. They did on the lake at night. They declared Wednesday that as soon as their purposes became known they heard threats against their lives.

"I shall not permit my deputies to be intimidated," said Mr. Mercer, "if this lawlessness continues it will only mean that I will simply throw a large force of men into Stone Mountain to protect the property owners there."

RICH SALOONIST SHOT; WIFE IS ACCUSED

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., May 14.—H. P. McNell, a wealthy saloon man of this city, was shot at his Pablo Beach summer home to-day and is now in a local hospital with a bullet in his body. Physicians in attending physicians say he can not recover. His wife and chauffeur were arrested, charged with the crime.

The chauffeur told the police that the three went together in a room in the house, and that McNell drew a gun on his wife. When he attempted to dissuade McNell from shooting, the chauffeur said he was knocked down, and in the scuffle which followed McNell was shot in the back of the head.

McNell is a brother of W. D. McNell, a Macon lawyer and State Senator-elect. His father, A. McNell, is in the ice cream business in Waycross. Mrs. McNell is a sister of Representative "Chic" Acosta, of Duval County, Florida.

Alumni of Georgia In Atlanta to Meet

Matters of interest to the 500 Atlanta alumni of the University of Georgia and to Georgia alumni over the State are to be discussed Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock at the University Club. Notices sent out by Thomas W. Connolly, '04, announce that plans are on foot for special cars to be secured for local alumni to attend commencement at Athens on Alumni Day, and that the question of the preparation of alumni bureau will also be brought up. The alumni bureau will be in charge of a paid secretary whose business it will be to keep lists of all University men, publish a weekly or monthly Journal and have on hand all literary propaganda of the university, with special attention to commencement programs and athletic events.

Battleship Plans in Navy Office Stolen

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels to-day directed that a thorough, impartial probe of the electric wiring of the new battleship Pennsylvania be made from the drafting room of the Bureau of Construction and repairs of the Navy Department after the evening of March 31 last. Duplicates of these plans were abstracted from the same room about that date.

Secret service men have been working on the case but have obtained no clew. Secretary Daniels explains that many inaccurate reports have been published in the State, War and Navy Building on March 4 and the declaration of one of these vitiates efforts took the plans.

NEW "PORK BARREL" PLAN IS EVOLVED IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 14.—A new "pork barrel" plan has been evolved by the Democratic leaders of the House. It is embodied in a resolution which Representative Sheppard will offer to-day, providing for the creation of a new committee to which all Bills authorizing appropriations for good roads shall be referred.

BREATHE HYOMEI FOR CATARRH

Health Comes From Knowing How and What to Breathe.

Hardly a day passes without confirmation of the old adage, "Man's Life is but a breath of air."

Dust laden with disease-breeding germs is inhaled by all who use the streets, but disease is not developed unless these germs find conditions suitable for their lodgment and growth.

With people having catarrh there is an ideal culture medium for these germs. The catarrhal, anaemic and weakened tissues is not fed where germs thrive and multiply.

If you have catarrh or any trouble of the breathing organs, causing stopped-up head, sniffing or snorting, choking, you should use the easiest, simplest, and quickest remedy, the direct method of Hyomei. This wonderful medicine is taken in with the air you breathe, directly following and destroying the germs that have been inhaled, repairing any damage they may have worked and so healing and vitalizing the tissues as to render sputum and germ infection no longer possible.

The unusual way in which dringate Bell Hyomei absolute dispel all doubt as to its curative properties. They refund the price to anyone whom it fails to benefit. You do not risk a penny in testing the healing virtues of this breath of life. Complete Outfit, $1.00. Extra bottles of Hyomei Balm, if later needed, 50 cents.

HANDWRITING OF PHAGAN NOTES EXAMINED

A poem said to have been written by Mary Phagan will form one of the specimens of her handwriting which will be compared with the notes found in the basement of the National Pencil Factory. The poem is entitled "My Pa," and Mary is said by her stepfather, J. W. Coleman, to have been the author.

The poem follows:

He's offul smart!
He ain't no carpenter, but he can fix a feller's cart.

My pa ain't no millyunaire, but, Gee! He ain't no doctor, but you can bet he sez alius knows

Just what to do to fix a boy what's got a bloody nose

My pa ain't president 'coss, he says, he never run,
But he could do as well as any president has done.
A presidens may beat my pa at pilin' up the vote,
But he can't beat him, I will bet, a-wuhhin' out a boat!

My pa ain't rich, but that's becoz he never tried to be.
He ain't no 'lectrician, but one day he fixed the telephone for me!
My pa ain't never wrote a book, but I know he could,
Becos the stories that he tells to me are allus powerful good!

My pa knows everything I guess, an' you bet I don't care
'Coz he ain't president or rich as any millyunaire!
Whenever things go wrong, my pa can make 'em right, you see;
An' if he ain't rich or president, my pa's good enough for me!

Woman Witness Excited.

Mrs. Mary Barrett, the woman who is said to have been in the factory the Saturday afternoon that Mary Phagan was killed, was in a state of great excitement when she emerged from the office of Solicitor Dorsey Tuesday afternoon.

She had been summoned by the Solicitor to tell of what she saw while she was at the factory. It was evident that she believed her knowledge of the affair had been misrepresented. When she came from the office she declared, dramatically:

"If anyone had told any lies on me in connection with this murder they will certainly suffer for it."

The daughter of Mrs. Barrett was heard to tell the Solicitor:

"I'll talk with her to-night, and then maybe she'll do what you ask."

Move for Fingerprint Bureau.

The Police Commission at its meeting Tuesday night authorized a thorough investigation into the advisability of establishing a fingerprint identification system in Atlanta. This move was made largely as a result of the mystery that has continued to surround the Phagan case and the possibility that it might have been cleared up within a few days had the city had a fingerprint expert.

There were several distinguishable fingerprints found in the factory basement. Persons who have had experience in detective work believe that they might have proved to be the most valuable clews in establishing the identity of the criminal.

Chief of Police Beavers told the commission of instances in which fingerprints had proved the guilt of prisoners when there were no other clews. He was appointed by the commission to work with one of the commissioners in making an investigation into the feasibility of the bureau plan.

Friends Say Frank's Actions Point to Innocence.

If Leo M. Frank is guilty of any connection with the murder of Mary Phagan, his actions in Jew Town before the fine-tuned theories of the greatest criminologists the world has ever produced, visitors to the prison declare.

Famous psychologists, working on the supposition that the great weight of guilt upon the mind of a murderer will, if given time, finally manifest itself in the exterior with which he faces his accusers, have made excellent use of what they have termed "silent treatment."

Prisoners accused of horrible crimes have been thrown into cells and left to brood in the long hours of the night. Often a scream, ringing down the prison corridors, will tell the tale of their guilt. Cell keepers, rushing in, have found prisoners re-enacting their crimes, muttering the same words they used when they slew their victims and beating the air with their fists. In one celebrated case demonstrating this, the man beat his brains out against the bars before he could be rescued. His action, it was claimed afterward, was due to overpowering remorse following the realistic pantomime of the death scene in which he figured.

The psychological theory is: "A normal mind, or mind of the murderer, contains two sections—the normal and the subconscious. It is in the first that he frames his denial of guilt; yet the truth is always present, lurking in the subconscious mind. And there it remains until finally the terrible secret is brought to bear by its weight will overpower the normal mind and prevail. It is then the prisoner is easily trapped into an admission of his guilt.

Quiet Alone Needed.

For such a state to be brought in the mind of a prisoner quiet and solitude are required. He must be left to brood over time. Then it is that the horror to the human mind of the crime will finally wreck the denial the guilty man has drawn up, and in despair his confession follows. In no case has the self-confessed criminal is a case for asylum. The mental right through which he has gone and lost is pitiful. It affects his entire physical being as well, and oftentimes following such cases the prisoner has been found prostrated on the floor of his cell.

In striking contrast to this theory is the case presented by Frank since his incarceration at the Tower. Confined in the cell-house of Frank since his incarceration at the Tower. Confined in the cell-house of Frank since his incarceration at the Tower. Confined in the cell-house of

Some Dont's for Young Girls

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DON'T paint the rose. Don't use rouge or powder when under 30; after that age there is hope that you will have too much sense to care to.

Don't be continually using your hands to brush your hair back or brush it forward, to readjust your hat, to rub your forehead, to feel of your collar, to play with your necklace, to button and unbutton your gloves, or in any of the countless ways a girl employs them that prove she can't get her mind off herself.

Don't touch in a manner indicating that your idea of a good time is just noise. Leave that method of mirth to boys under ten.

Don't take five minutes for repeating a joke that should be told in half a minute, and expect it to be funny.

Don't mark a favorite quotation in a book. It is an untidy habit, and serves only the purpose of projecting your personality before the mental vision of the next one who reads, to his confusion and annoyance.

Don't preface your remarks with "As Homer says," "According to Emerson," etc. It is both priggish and stilted.

Don't look with a superior air at those who neither have read nor heard of the books published yesterday. The latest books are not the best, and so many are worthless that it is a sign of a cheap intellect to find satisfaction in them, when so many old and good books lie unread on the shelves.

Don't be humble before fine raiment and scornful before raiment that is plain. This is the first and last proof of the snob.

Don't overestimate the strength of a friend, for underestimate the power of an enemy.

Don't repeat a compliment paid you to anyone on earth but your mother.

Don't think that excessive politeness when a guest in the home of a friend gives you the privilege of criticising your entertainment after it is over.

Don't talk sickness. The most deadly heres in the world are those who linger on the memory of aches, pains and operations, and the longer they linger the less likely are they to get well.

Don't flirt. It makes your own sex mistrust you, and leads men to regard you as one who could easily be led astray.

Don't squander your money. Take pride in the thought that so far as you can prevent you will never be a burden to others.

Don't scorn the profit to be gained by another's experience. You know those who are younger could learn from you. Can you not see you could learn from those who are older?

What He Needed.

First Office Boy—I told the governor to look at the dark circles under my eyes and see if I didn't need a half-day off.

Second Office Boy—What did he say?

First Office Boy—He said I needed a bar of soap.

He Knew.

In the fairy story the teacher was telling her boys of the woes of the beautiful damsel.

"What is a damsel, boys?" she asked, and the bright lad replied:

"A small plum, miss."

The Magnet

Irresistible Alike to the "Fresh"—the Vagrant—the Blase Fancy!

BY NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1913, International News Service.

Nell—JUST a bit of a failing it is—our most beloved weakness—to stop and smile at a baby's face. Crabbed, life-worn old man—his shuffling feet waver and halt and a smile crinkles his winter-face. Heavy, shiny old lady, her mind lost these many years in dulled things of memory and the aches of present "rheumatics"—she glows down upon the bit of pink life with a ghost of her old girlish beauty on her broad face.

The handsome wretch of a young chap with nothing on his mind but a smart, soft hat and the fact that it is good to live in the Spring-time—he slows his lively feet long enough to flash down an admiring grin, mutter "Keen little beggar," and go off with an odd stirring in his mind of a latent dream.

Brinkley—The chic little peach of a girl with a dream of a chapeau atop her curls, a hint of rouge on her cheekbones, taking her abbreviated little steps in tight swathed silk, stops dead, digs her smooth white fists in her hips and stays a very long time—her mouth curved in sudden sweetness—a brooding understanding in her eyes, lost in what is probably her first unconscious pose that day.

Says—A slim aristocrat, airing her toy-dog, lingers with pretty dragging feet, her face a mixture of half-delight, half-envy—and all sadness. I imagined I caught the glimmer of tears in her fine eyes—but then I have a lively imagination—maybe it was the sun—or I WANTED to see them there. And up at the top of the curving park walk—the big blue "coop" beams down at the little mother and the slow-moving white baby carriage.

He cannot see that far what's in it, but he knows it's the keenest thing ever and his heart pulls that way all by itself! Just a beloved weakness of ours—to show our naked souls in our eyes—to slow our busy feet—to smile—when we see a baby's face.

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

"I GOT to go to a dentist this afternoon," said the Manicure Lady, "and, honest to goodness, George, I'd just as soon get shot at sunrise. I would even a little rather get shot at sunrise, because I think I could die kind of brave, with my face to the heroic sun; but every time I think about this afternoon I get chills and fever, and might just as well admit that I am a plain coward."

"Lots of brave people loses their nerve when they go to a dentist," said the Head Barber. "But I don't blame them any, because it sure is torture," he added encouragingly.

"I never had no teeth filled before," said the Manicure Lady. "That was one thing for which all of my admirers always admired me for. My teeth has been called everything by my admirers, from pearls strung together to daisy bits of purest ivory. Being that the teeth is part of the skull, I never cared much for that ivory expression, but the fellows that said that always meant well, anyhow.

"Well, just as I am beginning to get all swelled up and think that nothing is ever going to happen to my teeth, they begin to ache something fierce. At first I think it comes from drinking too much ice water, and for a few days I stayed away from ice water as careful as father Jode. The old scout thought the same about it as I did, saying that ice water was never made for no moral to drink, and that any water at all had its limitations except to cook and wash with, but the teeth didn't seem to notice that I wasn't ice watering. They keep on aching fiercer and fiercer, like the heavy in Bertha Clay heroine after she has fell off the limited train of love.

Eating Too Much.

"Then I figured it must be that I was eating too much sweet stuff, so I laid off on the candy and stuff and ate as many pickles as a shopgirl. It wasn't no use, George. Them teeth just kept on aching, and sometimes in the night I suffered so that I wished I could die. I guess if a rainy night had came then I would have done the old German farmer act at that, but I always figured that suicide is kind of cowardly and, besides, I didn't have the nerve.

"What did you try next?" asked the Head Barber.

"Oh, after them teeth didn't show no signs at all of letting up, I went to a dentist as a kind of last resort. The dentist was a old friend of mine of some old prospector, because he began sticking around my teeth and I guess he must have sunk a dozen shafts or so before he finally told me that I had two perfectly good teeth without no cavity in them. He said that the rest of them, outside of the fact that they looked like human teeth all right, was on the fritz. He said I would have to have about five or six weeks' work done on them.

"That's the bunk," said the Head Barber. "They say he'll fix them up in one afternoon if he wanted to, and it wouldn't cost you much more than ten-dollars for half a day ought to be good enough for a dentist if a barber is to work his head about three days for that much."

One Awful Pain.

"Well, I'm sure I don't know what he is going to do to me," said the Manicure Lady, "but that ain't what's bothering me. It's the thought of the awful pain I've got coming to me. I suppose it will be as bad as that Spanish Inquisition, where they used to stay awake nights thinking of new ways to make their victims squeal. Gee, I wish Joe Pitou or somebody would call me up and ask me to go motoring for a good excuse to break my dentist date, but the bookmakers ain't got no autos to speak since them good old racing days is gone. Gee, George, can't you hear them teeth aching?"

WOMAN COULD NOT WALK

She Was So Ill—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pentwater, Mich.—"A year ago I was very weak and my doctor said I had a serious displacement, and backache and bearing down pains so bad that I could not sit in a chair or walk across the floor and I was in severe pain the time. I felt discouraged, as I had taken everything I could think of and was no better. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am strong and healthy."—MRS. ALICE DARLING, R. F. D. Peoria, Ill.—"I had such backaches that I could hardly stand on my feet. I would feel like crying out lots of times, and had such a heavy feeling in my right side. I had such terrible dull headaches every day, and they would make me feel so drowsy and sleepy all the time, but I could not sleep at night.

"After I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a week I began to improve. My backache was less and that heavy feeling in my side went away. I continued to take the Compound and am cured.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

Mary diressarded the frivolous interruption, and went on speaking to the girl, and now there was something pleasantly cajoling in her manner.

"Suppose I should stake you for the present, and get you in with a good crowd. All you would have to do would be to answer advertisements for servant girls. I will see that you have the best of references. Then, when you get in with the right people, you will open the front door some night and let in the gang. Of course, you will make a getaway when they do, and get your bit as well."

There flashed still another of the swift, sly glances, and the lips of the girl parted as if she would speak. But she did not; only, her head sagged even lower on her breast, and the shrunken form grew yet more shrunken.

Mary, watching closely, saw these signs, and in the same instant a change came over her. Where before there had been an underlying suggestion of hardness, there was now a womanly warmth of genuine sympathy.

"It doesn't suit you?" she said very softly. "Good! I was in hopes it wouldn't. So, here's another plan." Her voice had become very winning. "Suppose you could go West—some place where you would have a fair chance, with money enough so you could live like a human being till you got a start?"

There came a tensing of the relaxed form, and the head lifted a little so that the girl could look at her questioner. And this time, the glance, though of the briefest, was less furtive.

"I will give you that chance," Mary said simply, "if you really want it."

That speech was like a current of strength to the wretched girl. She sat suddenly erect, and her words came eagerly.

"Oh, I do." And now her hungry gaze remained fast on the face of the woman who offered her salvation.

Mary sprung up and moved a step toward the girl, who continued to stare at her fascinated. She was now all wholesome. The memory of her own wrongs surged in her during this moment only to make her more appreciative of the blessedness over this waif for whom she might prove a beneficent providence. There was profound conviction in the emphasis with which she spoke her warning.

"Then I have just one thing to say to you first. If you are going to live straight, start straight, and then go through with it. Do you know what that means?"

"You mean, keep straight all the time?" The girl spoke with a force drawn from the other's strength.

"I mean more than that," Mary went on earnestly. "I mean, forget that you were ever in prison. I don't know what you have done—I don't think I care. But whatever it was you have paid for it—a pretty big price, too." Into these last words there crept the pathos of one who knew. The sympathy of it stirred the listener to fearful memories.

"I have!" The thin voice broke, wailing.

"Yes, I Promise."

"Well, then," Mary went on, "just begin all over again, and be sure you stand up for your rights. Don't let them make you pay a second time. Go where no one knows you, and don't tell the first people who are kind to you that you have been crooked. If they think you are straight, why, be it. Then nobody will have any right to complain." Her tone grew suddenly pleading. "Will you promise me this?"

"Yes, I promise," came the answer, very gravely, quickened with hope.

"Good!" Mary exclaimed, with a smile of approval. "Wait a minute," she added, and left the room.

"Stunt! Pretty soft for some people," Aggie remarked to Garson with a sniff. She felt no alarm lest she wound the sensibilities of the girl. She herself had never let dottosey interfere between herself and money. It was really stranger that the forger, who possessed a more sympathetic nature, did not scruple to speak an assent openly. Somehow, he felt an inexplicable prejudice against the subject recipient of Mary's bounty, though not for the world would he have checked the generous impulse on the part of the woman he so revered. It was his instinct on her behalf that made him now vaguely resent an influence he sensed some malign influence against her there present with them.

Mary returned soon. In her hand she carried a roll of bills. She went to the girl and held out the money. Her voice was business-like now, but very kind.

"Take this. It will pay your car-fare West, and keep you quite a while if you are careful."

But, without warning, a revulsion seized on the girl. Of a sudden, she shrank away, and turned her head away and her body trembled.

"I can't take it," she stammered. "I can't! I can't!"

Mary stood silent for a moment from sheer amazement over the change. When she spoke her voice had hardened a little. She not agreeable to have one's beneficence flouted.

"Didn't you come here for help?" she demanded.

"Yes," was the faltering reply, "but—but—I didn't know—I was you!" The words came with a rush of desperation.

"Then you have met me before?" Mary said, quietly.

"No, no!" The girl's voice rose shrill.

Aggie spoke her mind with commendable frankness.

"She's lying."

"And, once again, Garson agreed. His yes was spoken in a tone of complete certainty. That Mary, too, was of their opinion was shown in her next words.

"So, you have met me before? Where?"

The girl unwittingly made confession in her halting words.

"I—I can't tell you." There was despair in her voice.

"You must, Mary spoke with severity. She felt that this mystery held in it something sinister to herself. "You must," she repeated imperiously.

The girl only crouched lower.

"I can't!" she cried again. She was panting as if in exhaustion.

"Why can't you?" Mary insisted. She had no sympathy now for the girl's distress, merely a great suspicious curiosity.

"Because—because—" The girl could not go on.

Mary's usual shrewdness came to her aid and she put her next question in a different direction.

"What were you sent up for?" she asked briskly. "Tell me."

It was Garson who broke the silence that followed.

"Come on, now!" he ordered. There was a savage note in his voice under which the girl visibly winced. Mary made a gesture toward him that he should not interfere. Nevertheless the man's command had in it a threat which the girl could not resist, and she answered, though with a reluctance that made the words seem dragged from her by some outside force—as indeed they were.

"For stealing."

"Stealing what?" Mary asked.

"Goods."

"Where from?"

"You Are! You Are!"

A reply came in a breath so low that it was barely audible.

"The Emporium."

In a flash of intuition the whole truth was revealed to the woman who stood looking down at the cowering creature before her.

"The Emporium!" she repeated. There was a tragedy in the single word. Her voice grew cold with hate, the hate born of innocence long tortured. "Then you are the one who—"

The accusation was cut short by the girl's shriek.

"I am not! I am not, I tell you."

For a moment Mary lost her poise. Her voice rose in a flare of rage.

"You are! You are!"

The craven spirit of the girl could struggle no more. She could only sit in a huddled, sinking heap of dread.

The woman before her had been disciplined by sorrow to sternest self-control. Though racked by emotions most intolerable, Mary soon mastered their expression to such an extent that, when she spoke again, as if in self-communion, her words came quietly, with overtones of a supreme woe.

"She did it!" Then, after a little, she addressed the girl with a certain wondering before this mystery of horror. "Why did you throw the blame on me?"

Broken With Fear.

The girl made several efforts before her mumbling became intelligible, and then her speech was gasping, broken with fear.

"I found out they were watching me, and I was afraid they would catch me. So, I took them and ran into the cloak room. And put them in a locker that wasn't close to mine, and some in the pocket of a coat that was there. You—you took them. I didn't know whose it was. I just put them there. I was frightened—"

"And you let me go to prison for three years!" There was a menace in Mary's voice under which the girl cringed again.

"I was scared," she whined. "I didn't dare to tell."

"But they caught you later," Mary went on, inexorably. "Why didn't you tell them?"

"I was afraid," came the answer from the shuddering girl. "I told them it was the first time I had taken anything and they let me off with a year."

Once more the wrath of the victim flamed high.

"You!" Mary cried. "You cried and lied, and they let you off with a year. I wouldn't cry. I told the truth—and—" Her voice broke in a tearless sob. The color had gone out of her face, and she stood rigid, looking down at the girl whose crime had ruined her life with an expression of infinite loathing in her eyes. Garson rose from his chair as if to go to her, and his gaze went from the woman he had saved from the river to the girl who had been the first cause of her seeking a grave in the waters. Yet, though he longed with every fiber of him to comfort the stricken woman, he did not dare intrude upon her in this time of her anguish, but calmly dropped back into his seat and sat watching with eyes now tender, now baleful, as they shifted their direction.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Turner, an orphan, employed in Edward Gilder's department store, is accused of theft and sent to prison, though innocent. Aggie Lynch, a convict friend of Mary's at Burnsing, sees good "possibilities" for her in the world of crime. Upon Mary's release she is continually hounded and in desperation throws herself into the North River. Joe Garson, a forger, rescues her and keeps her and Aggie in luxury, though living under false names. Mary becomes the leader of a band of swindlers, robbing only the unscrupulous and keeping always "within the law." Gilder's son, Dick meets and loves Mary, who seeks to wreak vengeance on the father through the son. A girl who has been in prison bears Mary's charitable disposition, robs her of her and faints from want of nourishment.

BURNS SAYS HE WILL HUNT PHAGAN SLAYER

Noted Detective Expected to Take Up Case June 1---One of His Experts Coming Soon.

Colonel Thomas B. Felder, noted Atlanta lawyer, Thursday issued the positive statement that William J. Burns would take charge of the Phagan investigation immediately upon his return from Europe, June 1.

In the meantime a criminal investigator will be sent from the Burns Agency's New York office to prosecute the investigation.

Colonel Felder gave out the following dispatch received from Raymond J. Burns, son of William J. Burns, in New York, which tells of the father's determination to take up the Phagan mystery:

Father still in Europe. Returns about June 1. He consents to take charge of Phagan investigation immediately upon his return. He suggests I send a good criminal investigator to start investigation immediately before same gets too cold.

Colonel Felder declared his supreme confidence in Burns' ability to clear up the Phagan mystery and bring to light the person or persons guilty of the murder.

Thinks Fund Can Be Raised.

He declared that his action in securing the detective was given impetus by the demands of Atlanta citizens to clear up the mystery regardless of cost, and he expresses his belief that sufficient funds to cover the investigation will be easily forthcoming.

Already, he declared, the foundation of a fund had been secured through the generous donations of friends of the Phagan girl and other people who have interested themselves in the work. Colonel Felder himself has turned over to the fund the fee paid his legal firm to assist in the prosecution.

And now, with the subscriptions well under way, he declared, the public-spirited citizens of the city, by popular subscriptions, would be asked to make up the shortage.

Colonel Felder's statement in full is as follows:

Statement by Felder.

The time is at hand when I deem it not only proper, but necessary, that I take the public into my confidence relative to the further proposed investigation of the Phagan murder case.

My firm was employed by neighbors and friends of the deceased shortly after the crime was committed to aid in the preparation of the case and the prosecution thereof.

Without intending to reflect in the slightest degree upon the vigilant detectives engaged upon the case, who seem to be doing their utmost to ferret out the mystery, it occurred to me that the magnitude of the crime justified an effort to secure the services of William J. Burns, a man with a record of successes covering a period of 30 years or more—and without a single failure charged against him.

Women Aid in Move.

A committee of prominent women of the city, distinguished for their philanthropic work, called upon me, assuring me that funds sufficient to cover the expenses of Burns' investigation could be raised by public subscription. I assured these good women of my willingness to contribute our fee, and some additional amount if necessary. I immediately got into communication with Mr. Burns, and the result of my efforts will be reflected by a cablegram which reached me by way of his New York office, which is published herewith.

I feel that those interested in seeing justice vindicated, by fixing this crime upon the guilty parties, whom I feel certain will be brought to punishment through the efforts of this distinguished detective, are to be congratulated that we have been able to secure his services.

The fund thus far raised by the friends and neighbors of the family of deceased, and through the efforts of the good women who have interested themselves in this work, falls far short of the amount required to carry it forward.

Public Asked to Donate.

The public is therefore invited to contribute to the fund. At the conclusion of the work an itemized statement of receipts and disbursements in this behalf will be published by the press of the city for the information of the subscribers to the fund.

In conclusion I desire to say that in what I am doing I have the approval of the Solicitor General, Hon. Hugh M. Dorsey, who will supervise and direct all work in this behalf.

THOMAS B. FELDER.

For Felder, Anderson, Dillon & Whitman.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey said that he expected no developments along the line of a new arrest, nor had there been anything at all in the case that would lead him to change the direction of his prosecution.

"There is absolutely nothing new in the case," he said Thursday morning, "unless it is evidence that has not been made public. Our investigation has been extensive, and some rather important points have been brought out since the Coroner's inquest, but there is nothing that could be called new.

"For the last two days our efforts have been directed toward getting the different statements in shape and corroborating what evidence we have."

New Arrest Not Unlikely.

It became known, however, that for two days deputies from the office of the Solicitor have been contemplating making a new arrest in the case, and that it is not unlikely the arrest may be made Thursday or Friday.

One of the deputies was responsible for the statement that there was almost as much evidence against the party, or parties, under surveillance as there was against the two suspects held in the Tower. He said he had not made the arrest yet because the persons could not get away and he wanted to get the sanction of the Solicitor, which had thus far been withheld.

The Solicitor said that he attached little importance to the slip of paper found in an old purse at Mary Phagan's home on which was written the slain girl's name and address. Other than as a specimen of her handwriting, he said, it was of no importance.

He said he did not believe the girl expected to meet her death or had the slip of paper as an identification card, for the reason that it was left in an unused purse and at her home.

The Solicitor had several conferences yesterday with handwriting experts and intimated the evidence along that line would play an important part in the trial.

The Grand Jury meets Friday, but it is not probable the Phagan case will be submitted then. Mr. Dorsey said that he might call a special session some time before Friday of next week, but the probabilities were it would be considered on that day.

All the cases on the docket, with the exception of the Phagan case, were placed on the Grand Jury calendar Thursday to "clean up" everything for the Phagan investigation, which probably will take several days

East Point Town Marshal Is Found Dead in Street

Lying face downward in the middle of the street, with the head buried in the folded arms, J. C. Cash, night marshal of East Point, was found dead in front of the Citizens' Bank, at East Point, Thursday morning at 4:30 o'clock.

Edward Thrailkill, a truck farmer, found the body. Coroner Donehoo will hold an inquest Thursday afternoon.

An examination failed to disclose any marks or wounds on the body. Dr. Griffin is of the opinion that death was caused by apoplexy, but he has not yet made a close enough examination to be sure.

The body was found by Thrailkill as he was driving into East Point with a load of produce. His horses shied, and Thrailkill, investigating, found the body lying in the street. Cash's revolver was still in his pocket, unexploded, and his club was lying by his side, where it had dropped when he fell.

Cash had been marshal of East Point for sixteen months.

2 Bandits Hold Up 200 Men and Loot A Gambling Den

TULSA, OKLA., May 15.—With drawn revolvers two masked youths held up a crowd of 200 men at the "Turf Exchange" on Main Street early this morning and got away with $2,500 in cash.

The upper floor of the place was crowded with men when two stripling youths appeared at the entrance to the room. They had blue handkerchiefs over their faces and while one man held his gun leveled at the astonished crowd his partner went around to the various tables gathering up all the money in sight and placing it in a strut canvas bag. None of the men were searched.

The robbers then backed out of the room and down the stairway to the pool hall. They made their escape through a rear door.

Fasting for Cancer, Paris Expert's Cure

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 15.—Dr. Keating Hart, famous French cancer-specialist, who told before the Academy of Medicine a new theory for the cure of the malignant disease, which consists chiefly of fasting, holds that cancer is not hereditary and that it can be cured.

The general treatment consists in reduction of food almost to the point of starvation; the local treatment, given when the disease is incipient, consists of the usual operation, followed by the directing of a stream of high-tension electric sparks against the affected part.

Dr. Hart believes that the overheated condition of blood, due to heavy eating, makes part of the body susceptible to cancer germs.

Infant 'Damnation' a Vital Issue

Smoking Pastors Under Debate

2 Live Topics for Presbyterians

By REV. CHARLES STELZLE.

Whether all "non-elect" children dying in infancy go straight to hell is a "human interest" problem which will produce mingling emotions in the minds of most mothers, to say nothing of some fathers. A stern Presbyterian preacher of a former day is reported to have imparted the cheerful information that the mouth of hell is choked with such infants. He did not state specifically how he came by this knowledge, but the sermon must have sent his congregation home shivering, in spite of the warmth of his subject.

The Southern Presbyterian Assembly now in session in Atlanta will wrestle with this much discussed question. For some time its ministers and Presbyteries have been debating the proposition as to whether the confession of faith should be revised so as to declare plainly that all children dying in infancy shall be saved—as probably practically all of them now sincerely believe—or whether this church shall continue to merely affirm that all "elect infants dying in infancy" shall be saved from hell.

Elect Infant Clause Inserted Long Ago.

However this matter may be finally disposed of, it should be said in all fairness that when this "elect infant" clause was inserted in the Westminster Confession of Faith, the then dominant church—this was several hundred years ago—insisted that only children under its care should be saved. The Presbyterians, for that day vehemently declared that this was not true—that at least all the infants of "the elect," or all the "elect infants," whichever way you may choose to put it,—in short, the predestined ones—were also to be saved.

This attitude was a radical advance over the system which limited so narrowly the number of "saved" infants, and these worthies of the old Presbyterian faith should be given due credit for their "radicalism." But there are large numbers of Presbyterians who are to-day unwilling to go much in advance of this doctrine. They say that whatever may be their personal opinions about the matter, there is absolutely no scripture passage which distinctly states that all children dying in infancy shall be saved, and they are not ready to incorporate in their Confession of Faith a doctrine they state is not specifically taught in the Bible.

They are willing to rest their faith upon "the revealed word," leaving as open questions all matters of uncertainty. They do not say that all such infants are not saved, but neither will they have the church teach that they are saved.

Perhaps the Atlanta Assembly will throw some further light upon this troublesome problem, but this is not likely to be the case.

Smoking by Pastors Again Under Debate.

While the sincere and earnest men in these assemblies admit they do not know what the Almighty will do in the future with "damned" children, there are a good many who have agreed upon the question as to whether it is quite the thing for full-grown ministers to smoke right now. They will probably declare, to use rather a raw epigram, that "it is better to smoke here than hereafter," but they are more than ready to keep any minister from smoking anywhere.

If the Northern Assembly does not pass its usual annual resolution against the practice of ministers smoking, it will no doubt be because they are meeting in a part of the country where this habit is far more common than it is in the North. And yet it is a peculiar coincidence that nearly every ex-moderator of the Northern Assembly is a user of tobacco. As for the commissioners—watch them in the lobbies of the hotels.

Triple Meeting A Sign of Progress.

Few people appreciate the significance of this simultaneous meeting of the three Presbyterian Assemblies—the Northern, Southern and United. A few years ago such a proceeding would have been an absolute impossibility. There are some folks in Atlanta at this moment who are fearful of what may happen during the next 10 days. For if these 1,400 commissioners, representing the three denominations should really come to know each other and discover that some of the men of whom they have been hearing for many a year are actually free from horns and cloven hoofs, there's no telling what may come to pass. It isn't likely that there would be an immediate amalgamation, but what a tremendous relief it would be to have it dawn upon some people that these "split Ps" actually belong to the same great Presbyterian family.

This realization may or may not come in the regular meetings of the assemblies—the discovery is more likely to be made in the homes—in which those commissioners are being entertained. It's the human element, not the theological, that will finally produce the spirit of greater brotherhood among Presbyterians, and the women in the homes are going to help right loyally on the job.

Interesting Personage Assembly Delegate.

There's a very dignified columnist in the Northern Assembly from St. Louis. His name is Gregg—Dr. Harris H. Gregg, pastor of the Washington-Compton Avenue Church. For consistent attention in theology he is the limit, but he is so thoroughly human and warm hearted that most folks are compelled to admire him—even though they cannot accept his "premillenial" and other "dispensational" teaching. If there is a young fellow in his parish who needs a personal friend, Dr. Gregg is on hand if he finds out about the chap's need. If a stranger is coming to town who needs a boarding house and some of the other things that strangers need, Dr. Gregg will personally meet him at the station. If the job is put up to him by an interested, mutual friend, and Dr. Gregg will see that the stranger is comfortably settled.

There's one man in the assembly who was once the pastor of a mission church in St. Louis, and his salary wasn't large. He managed to send his wife to the country for a needed vacation, but he couldn't afford to go himself. In a most cordial way Dr. Gregg learned about the situation, and the next morning the young minister received a check through the mail from Dr. Gregg, with a hearty note, inviting him to send his wife for a couple of weeks. The check more than covered all necessary expenses. You can forgive a lot of "theology" that you may not like, if the man whom it possesses has a heart like Dr. Gregg's.

England Finally Rules South Persia

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 15.—An Anglo-Persian convention relating to British control in Southern Persia was signed to-day. This is an echo of the stormy days when Russia invaded Persia, with the consent of England and against the protests of W. Morgan Shuster, the American steward of Persian finances.

Russia and England agreed to split Persia into two "spheres of influence." Russia took the northern territory bordering Russian soil; England took the south. English soldiers will patrol all the trade routes along the Persian Gulf.

Persia was compelled to accede to England's terms.

THE WEATHER.

Forecast for Atlanta and Georgia—Local showers Thursday and probably Friday.

ASSEMBLIES AT WORK; TO ELECT MODERATORS

DR. MAITLAND ALEXANDER, of Pittsburg, foremost candidate for moderator of the Presbyterian Church (Northern) and one of the leading figures in America's religious work.

Three Candidates in Field for Leadership of Northern Presbyterians; Southern Delegates Also Vote on New Church Head.

Thursday saw the inauguration of the real work of two thousand delegates and visitors to three great Presbyterian Assemblies, gathered in one city for the first time in the history of America.

The actions of this great body of men will affect nearly two million people, members of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

Of chief importance among the events of the day are the elections of moderators for the two greatest assemblies—the Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., and the Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. The United Presbyterians already have elected Dr. Robert M. Russell moderator.

At the opening of the Northern Assembly, in the Baptist Tabernacle, Dr. Mark A. Matthews, the retiring moderator, delivered the sermon that is always awaited with interest. His subject was "The Victories of Faith vs. The Failures of Unbelief," and he declared in a ringing talk that the greatest need of the church was faith.

Three Candidates in Field.

For the moderatorship of the Northern Assembly three candidates have appeared in the field. That the contest will be hotly fought is almost certain, but all the indications favored a victory for the conservatives.

The candidates are Dr. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburg, Pa., who has the support of the conservative element; Dr. S. S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio, and Dr. William McKibben, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The session of the Southern branch was opened by Dr. Thomas S. Clyce, of Sherman, Texas, the retiring moderator, in the North Avenue Church. Owing to the policy pursued by this organization, which precludes all politics in the election of moderator, no candidate has appeared in that contest.

Both branches will elect their moderators before night.

Moderator Fight in Northern Assembly.

At the opening session of the Northern Assembly, at the Baptist Tabernacle, Thursday morning Moderator Dr. Mark Matthews, of Seattle, former Georgian, now pastor of the largest Presbyterian church in the United States, preached what many of his hearers considered one of the strongest sermons he has ever delivered. His subject was "The Victories of Faith vs. The Failures of Unbelief."

Following the annual sermon of the moderator, the convention adjourned to 5:30 o'clock, when the second session was begun.

The session of the Southern Assembly, at the North Avenue Church, followed the course pursued by the Northern Assembly, adjourning to 2:30 o'clock, after hearing the annual sermon of the moderator, Dr. Thomas S. Clyce, of Sherman, Texas.

Interest in the Thursday sessions of the two assemblies centered, of course, in the election of moderators to head the assemblies of the church scheduled for the afternoon session. Three men have been prominently mentioned for the honor of succeeding to the work of Dr. Matthews—Dr. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburg, Pa.; Dr. S. S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio, and Dr. William McKibben, president of the Lane Theological Seminary, of Cincinnati.

Contest Narrows to Two.

Prior to the balloting, however, the contest seemed to have narrowed down to Dr. Palmer and Dr. Alexander, with Dr. McKibben losing ground slowly and Alexander in the lead.

The first of the popular meetings to be held each evening under the direction of all of the three assemblies will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock, in the Auditorium. The

STRIKEBREAKERS TRY TO RUN CARS IN CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, May 15.—An effort to operate more street car lines was made to-day. Strikebreakers were used. The police were asked to guard the cars.

A call for a meeting tonight of linemen, firemen, engineers, oilers and electricians of the street car company has been issued. These men have not gone on strike.

NEW FRUIT WHICH TASTES LIKE MORE GROWS IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The "papaya," a tropical fruit that is shaped like a cantaloupe, colored like a green watermelon and tastes like more, has been made to flourish in Florida by the Department of Agriculture, after years of trials and failures. It soon will be put on the market. The papaya is so soft and delicate it has to be eaten with a spoon.

SECRET HUNT BY BURNS IN MYSTERY IS LIKELY

Probably Will Not Reveal Presence in City as He Investigates Phagan Case.

Colonel Thomas B. Felder said Wednesday that Detective William J. Burns had not arrived, as yet, in New York from his European trip, but that as soon as he did he undoubtedly would start at once for Atlanta to work upon the Mary Phagan strangling mystery.

Colonel Felder is acquainted with the day and the hour on which the famous sleuth will reach this city, but for the purposes of the investigation he is withholding the information.

"There was an authority for the statement that Detective Burns would be in New York Tuesday," said Colonel Felder. "The date of his arrival has been known in my office, but it has not been made public."

"It is quite likely that the great detective will come quietly and unannounced into the city, make his investigation of the mystery and slip out before many persons are aware from their own knowledge that he has been working on the case."

In Touch With Burns Agency.

Colonel Felder has been in constant touch kith Raymond Burns, son of the detective, who is secretary and treasurer of the Burns Agency, and has offices in New York. The agency is being placed in possession of the important new developments in the mystery as rapidly as they occur. An outline of the whole case will be laid before Burns the instant that he arrives at his New York offices.

That increasing importance is being attached to the notes that were found beside the dead body of Mary Phagan was indicated Wednesday when several handwriting experts were called before Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey.

An expert testified at the Coroner's inquest that the notes, in his opinion, were written by Newt Lee, the night watchman at the National Pencil Factory. The expert was corroborated by the unofficial testimony of two other experts.

The Solicitor, however, has not been satisfied with the evidence he had on this important point. Experts were found who disagreed with the conclusions presented to the Coroner's jury. The writing in the notes found near the body of Mary Phagan, they declared, was more distinct than the normal writing of Newt Lee.

Difference in the Slant.

The writing showed evidence of education and training which Lee did not possess.

Lee would have had to be under instruction for two or three months, they said, before he could show the improvement that is evident between the test specimen of his handwriting and the handwriting of the notes.

Lee's normal handwriting shows a decided slant. That of the notes closely approaches the perpendicular.

The final letter in each of the words written by Lee ended abruptly. The final letters in the notes were rounded acrefully, indicating a considerable instruction in penmanship.

A poem said to have been written by Mary Phagan will form one of the specimens of her handwriting which will be compared with the notes found in the basement of the National Pencil Factory. The poem is entitled "My Pa," and Mary is said by her stepfather, J. W. Coleman, to have been the author.

The poem follows:

My pa ain't no millionaire, but, Gee!
He's awful smart!
He ain't no carpenter, but he can fix a feller's cart.
He ain't no doctor, but you can bet he

Durand Likely to Complete Term

Filibuster Will Keep Harris Out

First Real Fight on a Wilson Man

W. J. Harris, of Atlanta, whose nomination for director of the census has caused hot fight in the Senate.

Democrats Ready for Truce When Nomination of Georgia Man Is Blocked.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Satisfied that Republican opposition to the confirmation of W. J. Harris, of Georgia, as Director of the Census, will continue to manifest itself in filibusters until July 1, when the resignation of E. Dana Durand, now Director of the Census, becomes effective, Democrats were ready to-day to declare a temporary truce.

This fight is the first real battle on a Wilson appointment.

Republicans assert that the Harris appointment is political and that Durand should be permitted to serve out his term.

The rules of the Senate permit one member to conduct a filibuster without limit. The determination of Senators Burton, Townsend, LaFollette and Cummins to stave off Harris' confirmation is apparent.

YAQUI CHIEF, MEXICO'S SITTING BULL, IS SLAIN

BISBEE, ARIZ., May 14.—A private dispatch received here to-day states that Chief Bule, of the Yaquis, who has been fighting with the Sonora State troops in front of Guaymas, has been killed. Bule was known as the Sitting Bull of Mexico.

Matus, another warrior, has been elected chief. The rebels planned to make another assault some time to-day.

Gonzales, in Cuba, Would Be at Home, Says Cole Blease

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 14.—"I have always heard that chickens would come home to roost, and I am not surprised that the Cuban is trying to go back home," said Governor Cole L. Blease to-day in commenting upon the probable appointment of William Gonzales, editor of The Columbia State, as Minister to Cuba.

Gonzales is one of Blease's most bitter political opponents. In the last South Carolina campaign Blease frequently referred in his speeches to Gonzales as a "Cuban."

Governor Blease declared to-day that E. R. Tillman, senior Senator from South Carolina, is "weak-minded." He was discussing the effort to unseat R. S. Whaley, elected to Congress from the First District.

"I think it is really amusing to see Benjamin Ryan Tillman and Willie Gonzales playing auty-over. Benny throws the ball over to Willie, and Willie kisses it and throws it back to Benny."

THE WEATHER.

BATTLE OVER MODERATOR NEARS HOT CLIMAX

Race Has Narrowed Down to Drs. Maitland Alexander, Pittsburg, and S. S. Palmer, Columbus.

A spectacular contest for the moderatorship of the Presbyterian Assembly, U. S. A., will reach its climax at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon when the forces behind Dr. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburg, and Dr. S. S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio, meet in the first test of strength. Dr. William McKibbin, president of Lane Theological Seminary, of Cincinnati, has been put forward, but pre-convention gossip has it that the final fight will be between Drs. Alexander and Palmer.

Members of the progressive wing of the denomination are strong in their contention that there is no radical candidate for the moderatorship. They charge that in violation of precedent and the agreement of the assembly, an organization has been effected in support of Dr. Alexander and that solicitations in his behalf have been made for months past.

It has been made to appear, they say, that Dr. Palmer is a radical, and that he is lined up with Union Seminary. Dr. Palmer's friends claim that while he is a progressive, he is not a radical.

Foretee Doom of Radical.

No radical can win the moderatorship, according to commissioners who are already here and who are warmly discussing the oncoming battle of ballots. No ultra-conservative can be elected, they also agree.

Intense interest centers in the fight for moderator, in that its result will have a significant bearing on the future policy of the church. It is stated that the moderator appoints the executive commission, a body with considerable power in the assembly, particularly between meetings.

"The great question at issue in the Atlanta meeting," said a prominent commissioner Wednesday, "is whether or not the church will continue its present progressive policies or return to the methods in vogue 50 years ago."

The contest for moderator is, in some respects, a fight between the two great Presbyterian seminaries of the country, Princeton and Union. It is a recognized fact that Princeton is the most conservative of conservative theological institutions, and that Union has adopted many of the modern tendencies and has on its staff numerous of the most advanced thinkers.

Schools Are Brought In.

It is claimed that Dr. Alexander is closely allied with Princeton and that he was offered a place on its board some time ago. It has been used against Dr. Palmer that he is a Union Seminary graduate, but it is stated authoritatively that he is of McCormick Seminary in Chicago, which is regarded as one of the "safe and sane" Presbyterian institutions of the country.

The progressives answer the charge that Dr. Palmer is a radical by citing the fact that for years he has been a member of the evangelistic committee of the assembly, whose conservatism is unquestioned.

As a result of the agitation between the two forces of the assembly, the work of the Home Mission Board will come into review. For 50 years the board acted as merely a distributing agent for the churches' funds to needy mission fields. Ten years ago it adopted more progressive policy, instituting departmental work, tackling all the big American questions of the day. It extended its work to the immigrants, the workingmen, the Indians, employing experts as field secretaries. An effort will be made to force the board to return to its old functions.

Sees Progressive Victory.

Speaking of the fight, a commissioner said:

"There are no parties or divisions

CHIEF'S RULE IMPERILLED AS BOARD FIGHTS

Police Commission Deadlocked on Beavers' Right to Select Men for Promotion.

Friends of Police Chief James L. Beavers Wednesday declared that the long established policy of permitting the chief to be chief in fact as well as name—the real head of the police department—is in serious jeopardy as the result of the stormy session of the Police Commission Tuesday night when the Woodward faction came near wresting from the chief the power to nominate officers for promotion.

While the effort was unsuccessful it went so far as to apparently hopelessly deadlock the commission over the election of a successor to the late Sergeant K. S. Foster. It is the first time that such a deadlock has been known in the Police Commission.

It was brought about when Commissioners W. A. Verney and Charles R. Garner "turned" and voted with the Woodward faction. Both of these commissioners heretofore have consistently backed the chief and have been regarded as among his warmest supporters, and as opponents of Mayor Woodward.

Their change against the chief made a tie vote—3 to 3—and rendered the election of a sergeant impossible.

Marks First Real Clash.

The deadlock marked the first real clash since Mayor Woodward became a member of the commission. When it became apparent that the commission was deadlocked hard and fast, and an all-night session seemed imminent, the meeting suddenly adjourned in confusion.

Supporters of Chief Beavers said Wednesday that they were at a loss to understand the unexpected lineup of Commissioners Verney and Garner, Mayor Woodward and his right-hand man on the commission, Commissioner George E. Johnson, seemed well satisfied.

Friends of Chief Beavers and Chairman Mason, however, expressed themselves as sanguine in the belief that they would be able to regain the lost ground.

Some of the chief's supporters freely asserted that this move by the Woodward faction to cripple the power of Chief Beavers and place elections in the hands of the commission is the opening wedge in a fight to eliminate civil service from the department and revert to the old system of biennial elections. This promises one of the hottest factional fights ever known in the police department.

Should the present move of the chief's opponents succeed, it will mean that the chief of police will have no hand in the selection of officers for promotion.

Johnson Starts the Fight.

The fight against Chief Beavers was started by Commissioner Johnson, who, without giving the chief time to recommend his choice for promotion, nominated Roundsman Whatley and insisted on his election. The fight for the chief was led by Commissioner B. Lee Smith, who declared this move to be a grave injustice to the chief and a serious mistake.

Commissioner Johnson said the commission had made a mistake by over setting the precedent of allowing the chief to select officers for promotion, and declared he stood ready to rectify that mistake. Mayor Woodward and Commissioner Colcord also insisted that the power of naming the officers be taken from the chief and given to the commission.

Commissioner Smith cited the commissioners to the fact that they had gone on record previously as making the chief the real head of the department.

The dead-locked line-up was as follows:

For the Chief—Chairman Mason, Commissioners Pain, Smith, McEachern, King and Dozier.

Against the Chief—Commissioners Verney, Garner, Johnson, Colcord, Clark and Mayor Woodward.

By JAMES D. NEVIN.

DALLAS, TEX., May 14.—Take Forrest Adair's word for it, Atlanta is going to win to-day.

Just before closing campaign records and going into the session of the imperial council of the Mystic Shrine to-day Mr. Adair and his faithful Yaarab boosters and boomers held a final council of war.

After checking every name on the rolls of representatives and the imperial council, and after tightening up all the rivets everywhere, the conference decided that Atlanta should win over Memphis by approximately two to one, and that only the most unexpected and unanticipated combination could prevent Atlanta capturing the 1914 gathering.

It is not to be supposed that this campaign in Dallas has been all easy sailing. On the contrary, much of it has been exceedingly rough, although never dangerous, so far as the Yaarabs could see.

Memphis has made a game fight and has had stout-hearted friends on hand waging her battle. It has been clearly shown, however, that Atlanta has very much the better of Memphis in the matter of hotel accommodations, and the Dallas gathering has been flooded with invitations from officials of Georgia and the city of Atlanta, clubs and business organizations, as well as many private persons.

The publicity work has been intelligently handled. That large entertainment fund, reaching well toward $100,000, coupled with the assurance that there is more money where that came from, all served to make Atlanta's success seemingly certain.

Little Talk of "Dark Horse."

There has been some jealousy cropping out, of course. Some delegates having no particular love either for Atlanta or Memphis, although few of that sort have been in evidence, have undertaken to start talk of a "dark horse," and in that connection, both Atlantic City and Boston have been mentioned as acceptable meeting places for next year. Baltimore has also been mentioned.

In the main, however, the contest for the honor of entertaining the imperial council has been confined to Atlanta and Memphis, with Atlanta always leading easily.

It is predicted that there will be a much larger crowd in Atlanta next year than is now in Dallas. In the first place, the Shriners have been convinced that Atlanta has the hotel accommodations and the funds to make things hum, neither of which Dallas has had to the extent of making this year's session all it might have been.

In the second place, the enthusiasm of the Atlanta delegation has been of a genuinely winning variety all the time. It is a foregone conclusion that the Imperial Council is to meet in San Francisco in 1915, the year of the Panama Exposition, and for that reason it is the purpose of the Shriners to have next year's session in the East.

Ballot Wednesday Afternoon.

The balloting on next year's meeting, expected to take place between now and 1 o'clock, was deferred till later in the afternoon.

It is expected that Atlanta will win easily in the early stages of the voting. Intelligent leadership, earnestness of purpose and thoroughness of method count for anything. Forrest Adair's fight should win to-day. He reached here among the very first, and there is not a dollarsis of a responsibility where he has not

Another violent outbreak against the authority of the game laws was reported to State Game Warden Jesse E. Mercer Wednesday by two of his deputies.

E. L. Waggoner and A. S. Johnston, of Clarkston, DeKalb County, were targets for a fusillade of shots Tuesday night when encamped near the banks of the Venable pond at Stone Mountain.

Due either to the poor aim of the poachers or to their intention of only scaring the deputies away, neither of the officers was wounded.

Mercer to Investigate.

The outbreak at Stone Mountain, in conjunction with the trouble at Milltown, where Deputy Bolsclair reported that he was arrested, threatened and nearly mobbed, is engaging the entire time of the State Game Warden's office.

After instructing Deputy Waggoner that he should not hesitate to return the fire if there was any more shooting, Mr. Mercer made preparations to go in person to Milltown with Deputy Bolsclair, there to investigate for himself the exact conditions.

The cases against the persons for whom Bolsclair swore out warrants for wishing illegally at Milltown will be heard Monday and Mr. Mercer will be at the hearing. Bolsclair also will be a defendant in the charges against him being carrying concealed weapons.

RICH SALOONIST SHOT; WIFE IS ACCUSED

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., May 14.—H. P. McNeil, a wealthy saloon man of this city, was shot at his Pablo Beach summer home to-day and is now in a local hospital with a bullet in his brain. The attending physicians say he can not recover. His wife and chauffeur were arrested, charged with the crime.

The chauffeur told the police that the three went together in a room in the house, and that McNeil drew a gun on his wife. When he attempted to dissuade McNeil from shooting, the chauffeur said, he was knocked down, and in the scuffle which followed McNeil was shot in the back of the head.

McNeil is a brother of W. D. McNeil, a Macon lawyer and State Senator-elect. His father, W. A. McNeil, is in the ice cream business in Waycross. Mrs. McNeil is a sister of Representative "Chic" Acosta, of Duval County, Florida.

COLONIAL WARS SOCIETY APPLIES FOR A CHARTER

SAVANNAH, GA., May 14.—An application for a charter for the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Georgia has been filed in the Superior Court. The incorporators are G. Noble Jones, C. H. Banks, J. O. Hatch, R. T. Waller, H. M. King, T. J. Charlton, C. T. Salinas, Thomas Gamble, W. R. Leaken, A. G. Carson and W. L. Grayson, of Chatham County, and H. D. Meador, of Glynn County.

BIG SHRINE MEET VIRTUALLY WON FOR ATLANTA

Balloting To-day Expected to Bring Victory to Forrest Adair and His Aides.

sonally. When Atlanta has won Forrest Adair's place as a master politician and manager of men will be established. He is a wonder and he knows Shrine politics from beginning to end. He is intimately acquainted with the men who manage the affairs of the Shrine. They have been his warm personal friends for years and they are standing by him manfully now—just as he has stood by them manfully in the past.

Indeed, all the Atlanta delegation has worked faithfully and hard for their city's success to-day.

The last word Mr. Adair delivered to me for transmission to The Georgian just before he left the Hotel Adolphus for the Imperial Council session to-day was, "Tell them I am going to bring home the bacon, as I promised to, all for the glory of the Imperial Order of the Shrine, and for the glory of old Atlanta."

And he is going to do it, too. As one Shriner remarked to me to-day, "Atlanta's fight was won the minute that man Adair hit Dallas, if it wasn't won before that."

Parade a Big Spectacle.

Last night's big parade was a magnificent spectacle. More than 15,000 Shriners, either in glittering patrol regalia—many more—or fez, with sash and red fez, were in line. The parade required two good hours to pass a given point, as there were, besides the Shriners' 41 bands, numerous camels, chariots, mounted officials and queer and dinky contraptions propelled in one way and another—jigged up the Lord only knows how by Shriners in accord with some inner Shrine philosophy not revealed to the profane and unregenerate sons of the desert. That parade, amplified and extended as it likely will be to Atlanta next year, is going to look mighty fetching along Whitehall and Peachtree, even as I said in a previous wire about the great parade of the Arab patrol.

Certain differences between the union bands marching in the parade and the Yaarab Drum Corps of Atlanta were amicably adjusted, and the Atlanta drummers marched in both parades yesterday. This incident, which for a time looked as if it might give rise to some embarrassing complication, was smoothed out and has caused no unpleasantness whatever. Not a band was missing from last night's parade, and the drum corps was all there, playing its part in the parade handsomely.

Only One Contest for Office.

The only contest for any office is over that of imperial outer guard, the lowest of the Imperial Council officers. There are a dozen or more candidates for this place. All other officers move up consecutively each year, making the list of officers to be chosen to-day, except imperial outer guard, as follows:

Imperial potentate, William W. Irwin, Wheeling, W. Va.

Imperial deputy potentate, Frederick H. Sheldon, Rochester, N. Y.

Imperial chief rabban, J. Putnam Stevens, Portland, Me.

Imperial assistant chief rabban, Henry F. Niedringhaus, Jr., St. Louis.

Imperial high priest and prophet, William S. Brown, Pittsburg.

Imperial treasurer, Benjamin W. Rowell, Boston.

Imperial recorder, Charles Overshiner, Minneapolis.

Imperial oriental guide, Elias T. Jacoby, Indianapolis.

Imperial first ceremonial master, W. Freeland Kendrick, Philadelphia.

Imperial second ceremonial master, Ellis L. Peterson, Trenton, N. J.

Four New Temples Chartered.

Charters for new temples were granted by the Imperial Council to San Diego, Cal.; East St. Louis, Ill.; Parkersburg, W. Va., and Nashville, Tenn. Dispensations were granted Shreveport, La., and Halifax, Nova Scotia.

The first business session was held yesterday and Imperial Potentate Cunningham made his formal report at an open meeting held in the Scottish Rite Cathedral. The order now has 133 temples, his report stated, and on January 1 last the membership was 185,448, a net gain for the year of 12,736. He said the funds of the Imperial Council on hand March 1 were $114,421.

After the adjournment of the Imperial Council this afternoon various social functions will be given in Dallas in honor of the visitors, and to-night and to-morrow they will begin their returning caravans home.

A large number of Atlantans will make a short tour of Texas, while others will return home via Hot Springs, Ark. The entire outfit should be home by Sunday morning, Forrest Adair with the bacon.

Present for Governor Colquitt.

The Georgia Shriners will present Governor Colquitt, of Texas, a handsome loving cup to-day as an evidence of their appreciation of his open friendliness to the cause of Georgia and Atlanta, in the matter of choosing next year's meeting place. The Governor will be present and take part of to-day in Dallas, riding in the parade of the patrols with the Imperial potentate as an especial guest of honor. He is a native Georgian, and has not failed to let all with whom he has talked to-day know it.

As a matter of fact, Governor Colquitt certainly boasts brazenly and outspokenly of his Georgia ancestry and the fact that he was born in Georgia. He is a Brooks County man and is closely related to the family of the late Governor and Senator Alfred H. Colquitt.

Because of these facts and his friendship to the cause of Atlanta, the Georgia Shriners have determined to honor him with a Georgia loving cup of solid silver as an evidence of their good will. The Governor has no idea that he is to receive the cup. It will be presented to him Thursday in Austin by Illustrious Potentate Adair, who, with a number of Yaarab delegates, will leave Thursday morning for a swing around Texas.

Austin, the capital, will be the first stopping point out of Dallas.

Georgia Templars Meet in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ga., May 14.—The annual conclave of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templars of Georgia, convened in Columbus to-day with about 400 in attendance. The opening feature was the annual parade, following which the Grand Commandery assembled in the Asylum of St. Aldemar Commandery, where address of welcome were delivered by Mayor Chappell and Sir Knight Walter W. Curtis. Then luncheon was served.

At 2:30 o'clock the Grand Commandery convened for business. Grand Commander F. Theodore Petri, of Columbus, and Grand Recorder Charles N. Wood, of Savannah, made their annual reports.

The usual Templar service will be held to-night in Trinity Episcopal Church and will be presided over by Eminent Grand Prelate Troy Beatty, of Athens. The annual address will be delivered by Past Grand Commander James L. Mayson, of Atlanta.

Tile Concerns' Fight Bares Legal Tangle

Two tile companies are in legal dispute over the right to lay a sidewalk on the south side of Williams Mill Road, the tangle revealing a unusual situation in the office of the City Chief of Construction.

The Lee Tile and Construction Company has secured a temporary injunction restraining the Cement Tile and Stone Company and the city from proceeding with the work. Hearing on the petition for a permanent injunction is set for May 17.

As agents for the property owners, the Lee Company claims the right to do the work, and sets forth that in the contract Company is allowed to continue the property owners will be billed by the city an assessment for work already contracted for with another concern.

W. W. Drake, Atlanta Hardware Man, Dies

W. W. Drake, for years identified with the business hardware business in Atlanta and successful as a hardware man on the Pacific Coast, died at his residence, 348 Spring Street, Tuesday night.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Pink Hunnicutt, of Atlanta; one son, W. C. Drake; one sister, Miss Mabel Drake, and one brother, Lloyd Tate, of Alabama.

Mr. Drake was born in Midway, Ala., in 1855. His father was Dr. William Green Drake. He spent his youth in Atlanta and for sixteen years was prominently identified with the Clarke-Hardware Company here. Ten years ago he went West.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Spring Street residence Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

HANDWRITING OF PHAGAN NOTES EXAMINED

Solicitor General Dorsey Working on New Clew in the Factory Slaying Mystery.

allus knows
Just what to do to fix a boy what's got a bloody nose!

My pa ain't president becuz he says he never run,
But he could do as well as any president has done.
A president may beat my pa at pitchin' up the vote,
But he can't beat him, I will bet, a-whittlin' out a boat!

My pa ain't rich, but that's becuz he never tried to be;
He ain't no 'lectrician, but one day he fixed up the telephone for me.
My pa ain't never wrote a book, but I know he could,
Becuz the stories that he tells to me are allus powerful good!

My pa knows everything, I guess, an' you bet I don't care
'Cos he ain't president or rich as any millyunaire!

Whenever things go wrong, my pa can make 'em right, you see;
An' if he ain't rich or president, my pa's good enough for me!

Woman Witness Excited.

Mrs. Mary Barrett, the woman who is said to have been in the factory the Saturday afternoon that Mary Phagan was killed, was in a state of great excitement when she emerged from the office of Solicitor Dorsey Tuesday afternoon.

She had been summoned by the Solicitor to tell of what she saw while she was at the factory. It was evident that she believed her knowledge of the affair had been misrepresented. When she came from the office she declared, dramatically:

"If anyone has told any lies on me in connection with this murder they will certainly suffer for it."

The daughter of Mrs. Barrett was heard to tell the Solicitor:

"I'll talk with her to-night, and then maybe she'll do what you ask."

Move for Fingerprint Bureau.

The Police Commission at its meeting Tuesday night authorized a thorough investigation into the advisability of establishing a fingerprint identification system in Atlanta. This move was made largely as a result of the mystery that has continued to surround the Phagan case and the possibility that it might have been cleared up within a few days had the city had a fingerprint expert.

There were several distinguishable fingerprints found in the factory basement. Persons who have had experience in detective work believe that they might have developed the most valuable clews in establishing the identity of the criminal.

Chief of Police Beavers told the commission of instances in which fingerprints had fixed the guilt of prisoners when there were no other clews. He was appointed by the commission to work with one of the commissioners in making an investigation into the feasibility of the bureau plan.

Friends Say Frank's Actions Point to Innocence.

If Leo M. Frank is guilty of any connection with the murder of Mary Phagan, his actions in the factory before the time-honored theories of the greatest criminologists the world has ever produced, utters to assert, murder declare.

Famous psychologists, working on the supposition that the great weight of guilt upon the mind of a murderer will, if given time, finally overtopreance the calm exterior with which he faces his accusers, have made excellent use of Atlanta's new "third degree" "silent treatment."

Prisoners accused of horrible crimes have been thrown into cells and left to brood in the long hours of the night. Often a scream, ringing down the prison corridors, will tell the tale of their guilt. Cell keepers, creeping up, have found prisoners re-enacting their crimes, muttering the same words they used when they slew their victims and beating the air with their fists. In one felebrated case demonstrating this, the man bent his brains out against the bars before he could be rescued. His action, it was claimed afterward, was due to overpowering remorse following the realistic pantomime of the death scene in which he figured.

The psychological theory is commonplace. The mind of the murderer contains two sections—the normal and the subconscious. It is in the first that the frantic his denial of guilt; but the truth is always present, lurking in the subconscious mind. And there it remains until finally the terrible pressure brought to bear by its weight will overpower the normal mind and prevail. It is then the prisoner is easily trapped into an admission of his guilt.

Quiet Alone Needed.

For such a state to be brought in the mind of a prisoner quiet and solitude are required. He must be left to brood over the crime. Then it is that the horror of the human mind of what he has done will finally wreck the denial the guilty man has drawn up, and in despair his confession follows. In such cases the self-confessed criminal is a case for abject pity. The mental fight through which he has gone and lost is pitiful. It affects his entire physical being as well, and oftentimes following such cases the prisoner has been found prostrated on the floor of his cell.

In striking contrast to this theory is the deportment of Frank since his incarceration at the Tower. Confined on the theory that he had a hand in the death of the Phagan girl, placed in a lonely cell, passing his nights in solitude; never at any time seeing the light of day except as a prisoner in the clutches of the law, with its iron bars, steel doors and uniformed officers, Frank has maintained throughout the two weeks of his imprisonment a surprising degree of cheerfulness.

To his friends who have been permitted to see him, Frank has proven by his attitude, if nothing else, his innocence, they declare.

"If Frank were a guilty man," said Dr. David Marx, the noted Jewish rabbi, and a personal friend of the pencil factory superintendent, "he would have been crazy by now. He could not have withstood the solitude and conditions to which he has been subjected by the law. That he remains sane and cheerful is proof conclusive that he is innocent, for innocence alone could give a man's mind under such conditions."

Among the other of Frank's many friends who have visited him at the Tower were Leopold Haas, of Haas & McIntyre, real estate dealers.

"Every friend that Frank has made since he came to Atlanta is still as loyal to him as ever," said Mr. Haas. "His cheerfulness even in his confinement has served a great deal to keep up this loyalty. No one who talks with Frank in his cell can come away still believing he committed the horrible murder or was connected with it in any way. I entertain not the slightest doubt of his acquittal once his trial comes up."

Arthur Herman, of the law firm of Dorsey, Brewster, Howell & Heyman, declared after a visit with the prisoner that to say that Frank was guilty of the murder of Mary Phagan was preposterous.

Cubist Walk Arrives in Atlanta

Every Move Has Angle of Its Own

Even Faces Have Futurist Lines

See how necessary it is to hold body gracefully angular in latest mode of ambulation.

Miss Janie Cooper, 67 Juniper Street, the society girl who introduced the cubist walk among the fashionables of Atlanta.

Pose Must Be Gracefully Angular, Hands and Elbows Akimbo.

Who-o-pa! It's here: THE CUBIST WALK.

Observe. First, hold the body gracefully angular—yes, gracefully angular is the way it must be held; then place the hands and elbows akimbo; ankles parallel, and there you have the correct position to do the Cubist Walk.

It puts the Teachtree Prance and the Piedmont Glide 'way in the shade.

Angles Into Atlanta.

This latest fad in ambulation springs from the brain of Miss Hazel Allen, of Los Angeles, and has just come to Atlanta.

To Miss Janie Cooper, 67 Juniper Street, and a favorite in the city's society circles, belongs the honor of first trying the Cubist Walk. She liked it. Its grace appealed to her and to the bevy of other young ladies who have followed Miss Cooper's example.

On Order of Egyptian.

The walk, according to Miss Allen, is on the order of the Egyptian.

"It is difficult," declared Miss Allen, "as every motion must be angular. Even the expression of the face carries out the fun. It is called the Cubist Walk because it is in line with the ideas of Cubist and Futurist painters.

"I would rather do the Cubist Walk than eat," she avowed, "and before long it will be the rage among society girls of the entire nation."

HUNDREDS OPPOSE MANGHAM PARDON

Stockholders in Bankrupt Cotton Mill Lead Opposition—Petition Heard Thursday.

The application for pardon of J. J. Mangham, the wealthy Spalding County cotton mill president convicted of embezzlement when his firm failed, will come before the State Prison Commission Thursday.

Mangham was head of the Boyd-Mangham Manufacturing Company, of Griffin, and was sentenced to serve a term of four years and another of twelve months. He was received at the State farm August 21, 1912.

A determined battle for his liberation is in progress, but hundreds of protests that have been submitted to the Prison Commission indicate that the fight to keep him imprisoned will be fully as bitter.

Pages of signatures follow petitions praying that the commission refuse to recommend clemency in the case of Mangham. The signers are for the most part stockholders in the company and citizens of Coweta and Spalding Counties.

In the application for pardon, it is represented that Mangham was not guilty of embezzlement or any other crime of which conviction was due to the wave of public feeling against him.

Brother of Mangham, convicted at the same time, was sentenced to a fine of $1,000, which he paid.

Mathieson Named to Relieve Chief Rowan

George Mathieson, county policeman, has been recommended as assistant chief of the county force to members of the police committee of the commission.

Mathieson has been connected with the county police organization for several years and will probably assume charge of the force in the absence of Chief Zack Rowan, who departed for Atlanta yesterday because of ill health. Chief Rowan has secured two months' leave.

Battleship Plans in Navy Office Stolen

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels to-day ordered the preparation plans of the electric wiring of the new battleship Pennsylvania stolen from the drafting room of the Bureau of Construction and repairs of the Navy Department the evening of March 4, last. Duplicates of these plans were stolen from the same room about ten days later.

Secret service men have been working on the case but have obtained no clew. Secretary Daniels explains that many inauguration visitors were permitted in the State, War and Navy Building on March 4 and the decrement believes one of these visitors took the plans.

DR. DARGAN AGAIN TO HEAD BAPTISTS

Southern Convention, at Saint Louis, to Re-elect Macon Minister as President.

ST. LOUIS, May 14.—At the opening of the sixty-seventh annual Southern Baptist convention here this afternoon little opposition had developed to the re-election of Dr. E. C. Dargan, of Macon, Ga., as president, and predictions were that he would be chosen unanimously, the ballot taking place at 5 o'clock.

The convention actually began with a business meeting at the Planters' Hotel at 10 o'clock, when matters of routine management of the convention were disposed of. As early as noon the Third Baptist Church was crowded with visitors awaiting the formal opening at 3 o'clock.

Leaders of the church believe the most important matter to come before the convention will be the discussion of a proposed $1,000,000 fund for new church buildings and the Judson centennial movement. It is proposed to raise a $1,000,000 fund for foreign missions in honor of Adoniram and Ann Judson.

The first day's program included reports of the Sunday School board, the foreign mission board, the South Mexican mission and Chinese mission. The convention sermon will be preached to-night by the Rev. Thomas W. O'Kelley, of Raleigh, N. C.

Alumni of Georgia In Atlanta to Meet

Matters of interest to the 500 Atlanta alumni of the University of Georgia and to Georgia alumni over the State are to be discussed Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock at the University Club. Notices sent out by Thomas W. Connally, '04, announce that plans are on foot for special cars to be secured for local alumni to attend commencement at Athens on Alumni Day, and that the question of the proposed alumni bureau will also be brought up. The alumni bureau will be in charge of a paid secretary whose business it will be to keep lists of all university men, publish a weekly or monthly journal and have on hand all literary propaganda of the university, with special attention to commencement programs and athletic events.

BREATHE HYOMEI FOR CATARRH

Health Comes From Knowing How and What to Breathe.

Hardly a day passes without confirmation of the old adage, "Man's Life is but a breath of air."

Dust laden with disease-breeding germs is inhaled by all who pass the streets, but disease is not developed unless the germs find conditions suitable for their lodgment and growth.

With people having catarrh there is an ideal culture medium for these germs. The irritated membranes and weakened tissues is a hot-bed where the germs thrive and multiply.

If you have catarrh or any trouble of the breathing organs causing stopped-up head, sniffles or disturbing sneezing, you should use the easiest, simplest and quickest remedy for the direct method of Hyomei. This wonderful medication is taken in with the air you breathe, directly following and destroying all germs that have been inhaled, repairing any damage they may have worked and so healing and vitalizing the tissues as to render catarrh and germ infection no longer possible.

The unusual way in which druggists sell Hyomei should dispel all doubt as to its curative properties. They refund the price to anyone whom it fails to benefit. So, do not risk a cent in testing the healing virtues of this breath of life. Complete Outfit, $1.00. Extra bottles of Hyomei Liquid, if later needed, 50 cents.

DRS. STONE AND LYONS HEAD PRESBYTERIANS

Chicago Man Moderator of Northern Chicago, Louisville Pastor of Southern Church.

The Rev. John W. Stone, of Chicago, was elected moderator of the general assembly of the Northern Presbyterian church on second ballot. His vote was overwhelming.

With cheers that lasted several minutes the name of Rev. John T. Stone, of Chicago, as a "non-political" candidate for moderator was placed in nomination as a "dark horse" by Rev. J. R. King, of Monmouth, Ill., at the assembly of the Northern Presbyterian church late this afternoon.

With Dr. Stone's name added to the list of possible moderators the nominations were closed with the Rev. Maitland Alexander, Pittsburg; Rev. William McKibben, Cincinnati; Rev. Howard A. Johnston, Bridgeport, Conn. and Rev. S. S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio in the contest.

Rev. John F. Stone's unexpected nomination caused his name to lead the first ballot. Commissioners declared, after the ballot, that his election was assured.

The Revs. Howard A. Johnston, S. S. Palmer and William McKibben were eliminated on the first ballot. The contest is to be decided between Rev. Stone and Dr. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburg.

The result of the first ballot was: Revs. Stone, 314; Alexander, 285; Palmer, 114; Johnston, 65 and McKibben 46.

Dr. J. S. Lyons, of Louisville, was elected moderator of the Southern Presbyterian Assembly on the fourth ballot Thursday afternoon by 109 votes, to 93 for Dr. R. C. Reed, of Columbia, the other nominees having dropped out on the ballot.

Five names were put in nomination.

The result of the first ballot was: Dr. A. M. Fraser, Staunton, Va., 26; Dr. Lyons, 75; Dr. W. M. McPheeters, Columbia, 10; Dr. W. McF. Alexander, New Orleans, 45, and Dr. Reed, 48.

Dr. McPheeters withdrew his name from the ballot and the four were left to vote on.

Thursday saw the inauguration of the real work of two thousand delegates and visitors to three great Presbyterian Assemblies, gathered in one city for the first time in the history of America.

The actions of this great body of men will affect nearly two million people, members of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

At the opening of the Northern Assembly, in the Baptist Tabernacle, Dr. Mark A. Matthews, the retiring moderator, delivered the sermon that is always awaited with interest. His subject was "The Victories of Faith vs. The Failures of Unbelief," and he declared in a ringing talk that the greatest need of the church was faith.

Three Candidates in Field.

For the moderatorship of the Northern Assembly three candidates have appeared in the field. That the contest will be hotly fought is almost certain, but all the indications favored a victory for the conservatives.

The candidates are Dr. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburg, Pa., who has the support of the conservative element; Dr. S. S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio, and Dr. William McKibben, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The session of the Southern branch was opened by Dr. Thomas S. Clyce, of Sherman, Texas, the retiring moderator, at the North Avenue Church. Owing to the policy pursued by this organization, which precludes all politics in the election of moderator, no candidate has appeared for that office.

Moderator Fight in Northern Assembly.

At the opening session of the Northern Assembly, at the Baptist Tabernacle, Thursday morning Moderator Dr. Mark Matthews, of Seattle, former Georgian, now pastor of the largest Presbyterian church in the United States, preached what many of his hearers considered one of the strongest sermons he has ever delivered. His subject was "The Victories of Faith vs. The Failures of Unbelief."

Following the annual sermon of the moderator, the convention adjourned to 2:30 o'clock, when the second session was begun.

The session of the Southern Assembly, at the North Avenue Church, followed the course pursued by the Northern Assembly, adjourning to 2:30 o'clock, after hearing the annual sermon of the moderator, Dr. Thomas S. Clyce, of Sherman, Texas.

Interest in the Thursday sessions of the two assemblies centered, of course, in the election of moderators to head the assemblies of the church scheduled for the afternoon session.

Contest Narrows to Two.

Prior to the balloting, however, the contest seemed to have narrowed down, to Dr. Palmer and Dr. Alexander, with Dr. McKibben losing ground slowly and Alexander in the lead.

The first of the popular meetings to be held each evening under the direction of all of the three assemblies will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock, in the Auditorium. Ten

BOY KILLED BY BROTHER

Hartman Boone, 13 years of age, late Thursday afternoon accidentally shot and killed his 5-year-old brother, Irwin, while the two little fellows were at play in the back yard of their home, 88 Stewart avenue.

Hartman Boone was almost crazed by the tragedy, and refused to be comforted by friends who were attracted by his screams and rushed to the scene.

Little Irwin was shot through the neck with a bullet from a parlor rifle. The jugular vein was severed and he died instantly. His brother, it is said to have dropped the rifle, and, as he picked it up from the ground, it discharged.

The two boys are sons of T. A. Boone, of the Byrd Printing Company, who was immediately notified of the tragedy and hurried home. Coroner Donehoo was also notified and will hold an inquest.

Fasting for Cancer, Paris Expert's Cure

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 15.—Dr. Keating Hart, famous French cancer specialist, who laid before the Academy of Medicine a new theory for the cure of the malignant disease, which consists chiefly of fasting, holds that cancer is not hereditary and that it can be cured.

The general treatment consists in reduction of food almost to the point of starvation; the local treatment, given when the disease is incipient, consists of the usual operation, followed by the directing of a stream of high-tension electric sparks against the affected part.

Dr. Hart believes that the overheated condition of blood, due to heavy eating, makes part of the body susceptible to cancer germs.

Mob Attacks Court At Striker's Trial

PATTERSON, N. J., May 15.—A dangerous condition existed here to-day after the conviction of Patrick Quinlan, an Industrial Worker of the I. W. W., on the charge of inciting silk mill strikers to riot. A mob surged toward the court house and a sharp fight ensued when the police and a squad of sheriffs attacked the strikers. Ten men and one woman were arrested.

Leaders of the strikers threatened to blow up the court house and heated speeches were made.

2 Bandits Hold Up 200 Men and Loot A Gambling Den

TULSA, OKLA., May 15.—With drawn revolvers two masked youths held up a crowd of 200 men at the 'Turf Exchange' on Main Street early this morning and got away with $2,500 in cash.

The upper floor of the place was crowded with men when two slender youths appeared at the entrance to the room. They had blue handkerchiefs over their faces and while one man held his gun leveled at the astonished crowd his partner went around to the various tables gathering up all the money in sight and placing it in a stout canvas bag. None of the men were searched.

The robbers then backed out of the room and down the stairway to the pool hall. They made their escape through a rear door.

East Point Town Marshal Is Found Dead in Street

Lying face downward in the middle of the street, with the head buried in the folded arms, J. C. Cash, night marshal of East Point, was found dead in front of the Citizens' Bank, at East Point, Thursday morning at 4:30 o'clock.

Edward Thrailkill, a truck farmer, found the body. Coroner Donehoo will hold an inquest Thursday afternoon.

An examination failed to disclose any marks or wounds on the body. Dr. Griffin is of the opinion that death was caused by apoplexy, but he has not yet made a close enough examination to be sure.

The body was found by Thrailkill as he was driving into East Point with a load of produce. His horses shied, and Thrailkill, investigating, found the body lying in the street. Cash's revolver was still in his pocket, unexplored, and his club was lying by his side, where it had dropped when he fell.

Cash had been marshal of East Point for fifteen months.

FROG SKIN HEALS WOUND ON THE BACK OF FARMER

AMES, Ia., May 15.—W. A. Speck, a farmer living near Ames, had a growth that extended almost across his back a year ago and it was thought he had only a short time to live. He is well to-day, but the place where the growth was is covered with the greenish skin of frogs.

When the growth was removed it left a large wound. Dr. J. E. Adamson of Ames grafted the skins of several frogs over the wound. The amphibian epidermic seems to be a success.

BURNS WILL HUNT MARY PHAGAN'S SLAYER

Noted Detective Himself Coming to Atlanta to Solve Police Mystery.

Colonel Thomas B. Felder, noted Atlanta lawyer, Thursday issued the positive statement that William J. Burns would take charge of the Phagan investigation immediately upon his return from Europe, June 1.

In the meantime a criminal investigator will be sent from the Burns Agency's New York office to prosecute hte investigation.

Colonel Felder gave out the following dispatch received from Raymond J. Burns, son of William J. Burns, in New York, which tells of the father's determination to take up the Phagan mystery:

Father still in Europe. Returns about June 1. He consents to take charge of Phagan investigation immediately upon his return. He suggests I send a good criminal investigator to start investigation immediately before scene gets too cold.

Colonel Felder secured his supreme confidence in Burns' ability to clear up the Phagan mystery and bring to light the person or persons guilty of the murder.

Thinks Fund Can Be Raised.

He declared that his action in securing the detective was given impetus by the demands of Atlanta citizens to clear up the mystery regardless of cost, and he expresses his belief that sufficient funds to cover the investigation will be easily forthcoming.

Already, he declared, the foundation of a fund had been secured through the generous donations of friends of the Phagan girl and other people who have interested themselves in the work. Colonel Felder himself has turned over to the fund the fee paid his legal firm to assist in the prosecution.

And now, with the subscriptions well under way, he declared, the public-spirited citizens of the city, by popular subscriptions, would be asked to make up the shortage.

Colonel Felder's statement in full is as follows:

Statement by Felder.

The time is at hand when I deem it not only proper, but necessary, that I take the public into my confidence relative to the further proposed investigation of the Phagan murder case.

My firm was employed by neighbors and friends of the deceased shortly after the crime was committed to aid in the preparation of the case and the prosecution thereof.

Without intending to reflect in the slightest degree upon the vigilant detectives engaged upon the case, who seem to be doing their utmost to ferret out the mystery, it occurred to me that the magnitude of the crime justified an effort to secure the services of William J. Burns, a man with a record of successes covering a period of 10 years or more—and without a single failure charged against him.

Women Aid in Move.

A committee of prominent women, of the city, distinguished for their philanthropic work, called upon me, assuring me that funds sufficient to cover the expenses of Burns' investigation could be raised by public subscription. I assured these good women of my willingness to contribute our fee, and some [illegible]

BURNS COMING TO SOLVE THE PHAGAN CASE.

tional amount if necessary. I immediately got into communication with Mr. Burns, and the result of my efforts will be reflected by a cablegram which reached me by way of his New York office, which is published herewith.

I feel that those interested in seeing justice vindicated, by fixing this crime upon the guilty parties, whom I feel certain will be brought to punishment through the efforts of this distinguished detective, are to be congratulated that we have been able to secure his services.

The fund thus far raised by the friends and neighbors of the family of deceased, and through the efforts of the good women who have interested themselves in this work, falls far short of the amount required to carry it forward.

Public Asked to Donate.

The public is therefore invited to contribute to the fund. At the conclusion of the work an itemized statement of receipts and disbursements in this behalf will be published by the press of the city for the information of the subscribers to the fund.

In conclusion I desire to say that in what I am doing I have the approval of the Solicitor General, Hon. Hugh M. Dorsey, who will supervise and direct all work in this behalf.

THOMAS B. FELDER.

For Felder, Anderson, Dillon & Willman.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey said that he expected no developments along the line of a new arrest, nor had there been anything at all in the case that would lead him to change the direction of his prosecution.

"There is absolutely nothing new in the case," he said Thursday morning, "unless it is evidence that has not been made public. Our investigation has been extensive, and some rather important points have been brought out since the Coroner's inquest, but there is nothing that could be called new.

"For the last two days our efforts have been directed toward getting the different statements in shape and corroborating what evidence we have."

New Arrest Not Unlikely.

It became known, however, that for two days' deadline from the attorneys the Solicitor have been contemplating making a new arrest in the case, and that it is not unlikely the arrest may be made Thursday or Friday.

One of the deputies was responsible for the statement that there was almost as much evidence against the party, or parties, under surveillance as there was against the two suspects held in the Tower. He said he had not made the arrest yet because the persons could not get away and he wanted to get the sanction of the Solicitor, which had thus far been withheld.

The Solicitor said that he attached little importance to the slip of paper found in an old purse at Mary Phagan's home on which was written the slain girl's name and address. Other than as a specimen of her handwriting, he said, it was of no importance.

He said he did not believe the girl expected to meet her death or had the slip of paper as an identification card, for the reason that it was left in an unused purse and at her home.

The Solicitor had several conferences yesterday with handwriting experts and intimated the evidence along this line would play an important part in the trial.

The Grand Jury meets Friday, but it is not probable the Phagan case will be submitted then. It is known said that he might call a special session some time before Friday of next week, but the probabilities were it would be considered on that day.

All the cases on the docket, with the exception of the Phagan case, were placed on the Grand Jury calendar Thursday to "clean up" everything for the Phagan investigation, which probably will take several days

FREE TRIAL OF SAMOSE

Flesh-Forming Food Given on Approval by Jacobs' Pharmacy.

Would you like to be fat and plump, and strong and healthy? Here is a chance so to do it without risking the loss of a single penny.

Jacobs' Pharmacy, our well known druggists, have a new treatment called Samose, which they are selling on approval, that is said to be a true flesh-forming food. It is in tablet form, retailing at 50c a box.

If it does not increase the weight, fill out the slip, securely sworn and return both to Jacobs' Pharmacy to-day and get a 25-cent box of Samose with their promise to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed.

Jacobs' faith in Samose is shown by their offer to refund the money if it does not increase flesh and restore good health.

They really give you a free trial of the preparation, for unless it does increase the weight it will not cost a cent.

ATLANTA BAPTIST OPPOSED TO UNION

Dr. Gray, at Southern Convention, Presents Report Antagonistic to Denominational Merger.

ST. LOUIS, May 15.—Delegates to the sixty-seventh annual Southern Baptist convention as well as religious leaders of other denominations to-day are discussing the anti-church-union plank in the formal report of Dr. B. D. Gray, of Atlanta, for the Board of Home Missions.

In it he said:

"Baptists can best serve human welfare by loyalty to the principles of their own faith. Union church efforts have failed and will fail. If the clamor for the weakening of the denominational lines should succeed, it would result not in a church union, but in skepticism. If our people are brought to think that the things are worthless for which their fathers sacrificed they will come to think that all the rest is worthless."

National conventions of the Episcopal and Disciples of Christ Churches have declared for church union and have appointed joint commissions to confer with other denominations. At the meeting of the National Lutheran Synod in Kansas yesterday, a report favoring the union plan was presented. Northern Baptists and Disciples of Christ churches in Chicago already are working out a plan of union.

Raising Funds for Judson Centennial.

CLIFTON FORGE, VA., May 15.—The Rev. George Green has resigned the pastorate of the Clifton Forge Baptist Church to accept the position of field secretary under the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board, with headquarters at Georgetown, Ky. He will solicit funds for the Judson Centennial memorial for the equipment of hospitals, schools and missions in the foreign field. It is desired to raise $1,250,000. Of this amount more than $250,000 is already subscribed. Among the other solicitors for this fund is Rev. W. A. Tolliferro, of Dublin, Ga.

Flyers in Olympiad Of Greek Victors

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ATHENS, May 15.—For the first time since the Olympic games were established 2,688 years ago, aeroplaning will be part of the programs in the tournament of prowess in the strictly Greek Olympiad here next spring.

These games will be in no wise connected with the international Olympiad now to be held in Berlin in 1916. They will be wholly Greek and will be part of a jubilee to celebrate the victory of the Balkan league over Turkey.

The first Olympic games, conducted as a national institution, were held in 776 B. C.

Vassar Lifts Tango and Turkey Trot Ban

NEW YORK, May 15.—Great is the joy at Vassar. The ban has been lifted on the turkey trot and the tango, and at the senior "prom," on May 30, the young women will be permitted to dance the steps that have been taboo for months.

At the junior-sophomore hop there was a great scarcity of men because of the ban on the new dances, and the girls let it be known they were through with the old ones.

A "law and order" committee of carefully selected students and members of the faculty will attend the coming "prom" to see that propriety is observed.

POLITICS BLOCKS LODGE WORK IN SOUTH CAROLINA

ANDERSON, S. C., May 15.—The bitter political campaign of 1912 caused a halt in the work of Odd Fellows in South Carolina, according to a report just made by the grand master of the order.

"For four months in the summer of 1912 I could find no one not interested in politics," he says.

"I tried to visit a few lodges but finally had to give it up and wait until the election was over."

This probably is the first time an official reference has been made in lodge matters to a political campaign.

U. S. WILL REPLY TO JAPAN FRIDAY

Mikado To Be Assured That Government Did Everything Possible to Block Alien Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The formal reply of the United States to the Japanese protest against the Webb alien land law in California probably will be dispatched to Tokio late to-morrow.

It was learned that the document assures Japan that the United States has done everything in its power to prevent the enactment of the Webb law.

Japan also will be informed that the administration intends to do everything possible to delay the enforcement of the law until its constitutionality shall be determined.

That the United States Government will be compelled to support California in whatever controversy arises in the courts over the alleged discriminatory element in the land bill is the opinion of State Department officials.

Since Japan does not claim treaty violations in her protest made to the United States Government and says that the alleged discrimination in the Webb measure is one involving her national honor rather than any legal right, the situation which presents itself is one which can not be submitted to arbitration at The Hague.

Gov. Johnson to Sign Bill Within 72 Hours.

SACRAMENTO, May 15.—Governor Hiram Johnson to-day said he would sign the anti-alien land bill within 72 hours. He intimated that he might sign it to-day.

His delay, he said, was due entirely to the fact that he desired not to appear discourteous to the national administration.

Government Not to Act Further Now.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—No action will be taken to-day by the administration in reference to the Japanese-California situation. With Secretary Bryan in New York, where he will remain until to-morrow, the White House officials to-day stated there was no possibility of official consideration of Governor Johnson's message to the Secretary of State until the Cabinet meeting to-morrow.

It is not believed at the White House that the administration will take any further steps in the land law question at present, but will leave it to the courts to decide whether the law is constitutional and agree with existing treaties.

Clamor Over Bill in Japan Is Dying Out.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

TOKIO, May 15.—An optimistic feeling prevails at the Japanese Foreign Office that the controversy between this country and the United States over the California land bill will soon be settled to the satisfaction of both sides.

An attache of the Foreign Office said to-day:

"We expect to reach a friendly and permanent solution. The negotiations with the United States are going ahead satisfactorily."

The public clamor over the bill is dying out.

Arizona to Hear Protest of Japs.

PHOENIX, ARIZ., May 15.—Governor Hunt to-day said he would receive a committee of the Japanese of Arizona who desire to protest and replace protests against the alien land bill. In case the Governor does not veto the bill the case will be taken to the United States Supreme Court, to test the constitutionality of the act.

To Beautify School With 'Clean-Up' Prize

Pupils of the Davis Street school are planning to further beautify the school grounds with the $25 prize won in the recent "clean up" contest.

The prize was presented to the school by Walter O. Cooper, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, in a happy speech of congratulation. W. H. Stacy, of the Board of Education, addressed the school. Miss Julia Riordan, the principal, was highly complimented on the school's work.

This is the second successive time Davis Street school has won the "clean up" day prize. The 340 children obtained 17,500 pledges within a day and a half.

J. WYLIE SMITH, IN CELL, SHUNS VISITORS

Former Banker Asks Sheriff to Shield Him From All—Pleads His Illness.

Utmost seclusion attended the first day's incarceration of J. Wylie Smith, former head of the Commercial Loan and Discount Company, Atlanta, accused of forgery, who was brought back to the city Wednesday night.

Smith refused pointblank to see any one. Dr. George W. Dewberry, who says Smith is indebted to him in the sum of about $1,100, visited the Tower early Thursday morning in an effort to see the prisoner, but was unsuccessful.

To newspaper men Smith sent word that he has nothing to say, either about his two years' life in Mexico or the charges.

"I'm going to spend all my time getting well," he said.

Worn to a Shadow.

Smith looked like a ghost of his former self when he arrived in Atlanta with T. M. Hamilton Wednesday. He was worn almost to a shadow by his experiences since he left Atlanta, and was as loath to talk about these experiences as he was to divulge information concerning his financial operations here. Smith's face was shell white from lack of eating, which he declared he got fighting in Mexico, and he seemed to weigh scarcely two pounds. The cool, sting frold and care-free air with which he used to walk the streets of Atlanta was gone, and Smith walked, talked and looked like an invalid.

The former president of the Commercial Loan and Discount Company was met at the station by City Detective Stendtman and Davis and taken immediately to the Tower. He tried to dodge the newspaper reporters and photographers, hiding behind Mr. Hamilton when the picture men tried to snap him.

During the two years that have elapsed since Smith left Atlanta, leaving the affairs of his company in a chaotic condition, he has been practically under surveillance. Several times he has been taken in custody by the Pinkertons, but each time efforts to have him extradited have failed, and he has lived in little danger of being brought to trial.

Joined in Revolution.

When the trouble in Mexico broke out Smith joined one of the "comic opera" armies, which one he refuses to state. It is generally understood among his Atlanta friends, however, that he enlisted with the army of Felix Diaz and took part in the overthrow of Madero. He wore the khaki uniform of Diaz's ranks when he returned to Atlanta.

Smith was injured in one of the many battles, and because of the lack of proper nursing and care, failed rapidly. He has kept up his correspondence with friends in Atlanta, and when he thought the end was near, he consented to have his face the charges against him. He was persuaded to do this by T. M. Hamilton, who left Atlanta last Thursday to bring him back. Smith was in Juarez when he was interviewed by the Examiner, and was so weak that he had to be brought across the Rio Grande in a carriage.

While Smith is very weak and nervous, it is not thought his condition is serious. A few weeks of careful nursing and good food will bring him around all right, his friends declare, and he will then be ready to face his accusers.

College Girls' Prank Scandalizes School

ROCKFORD, ILL., May 15.—Fifteen girls have been suspended for two weeks and sent to their homes under guardianship and two-have been expelled from staid Rockford college, the oldest girls' school in the West, for an escapade early this week. Accompanied by local young men the girls went to Freeport, where they registered themselves as members of a theatrical troupe.

Two couples are said to have gone on to Dubuque and the parents of the girls have demanded an explanation from the college. The girls' college was practically closed to-day by the absence of the fifteen girls. The affair has caused the biggest scandal the college has ever known.

Thaw in Court at Anhut Bribery Trial

NEW YORK, May 15.—Chief interest centered in the appearance of Harry Thaw when the trial of John N. Anhut, under indictment for bribery in connection with an alleged attempt to free Harry Thaw from the Matteawan Asylum, began to-day in the Supreme Court.

Thaw crowded New York at 10 o'clock, looking healthier than he has for months. He wore a blue serge suit and a straw hat.

The indictment charges Anhut with offering $250,000 to Dr. Jerry Mc-Sweeney, former superintendent of Matteawan, to declare Thaw sane so that he might gain his liberty.

Hudson Guild Worker To Give Lecture Here

Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott, headworker of Hudson Guild, New York, and distinguished sociologist and religious leader, will deliver the concluding lecture of Atlanta Ethical Culture Committee's 1912-13 series. Dr. Elliott will speak at Cable Hall Thursday evening, May 22 at 8. "The Driving Power of Social Discontent." Dr. Elliott is assistant leader of the New York Ethical Society of which Dr. Felix Adler is leader. He has for the past fifteen years applied at Hudson Guild the principles of social service in religion as expressed from week to week before assemblies of thousand of New York's intellectual and cultured people, members of the Society for Ethical Culture.

J. WYLIE SMITH, former Atlantan, brought back from Mexico to face charges of forgery.

Reeves Exonerated Of Eloping Charge

Complete exoneration of J. G. Reeves, an Atlanta real estate operator, of the charge of eloping with Mrs. Edward M. Brown was made Thursday by Brown.

The exoneration of Reeves is framed in the following letter which Brown sent to The Georgian:

"In reference to the interview attributed to me in last night's paper accusing Mr. J. G. Reeves of eloping to Macon with my wife, I beg to say that upon careful investigation I find that Mr. Reeves is entirely innocent of the charges.

"Would thank you to give this letter publicity as I know that Mr. Reeves has been unjustly wronged in this matter."

Pardon Board Hears Mangham Petition

The State Prison Commission Thursday forenoon heard the arguments in behalf of a pardon for J. J. Mangham, the promoter, and one of the principal stockholders in the Boyd-Mangham Manufacturing Company of Girtha, whose failure was followed by Mangham's conviction on a charge of embezzlement.

Mangham was sentenced to one term of four years and another of twelve months. His brother, J. W. Mangham, paid a fine of $1,000.

The commission was told that Mangham had been guilty neither of embezzlement nor any other crime. His conviction was due, said his attorney, entirely to public sentiment.

The commission will make its recommendation within a few days.

YAARAB PATROL TO GET GREAT WELCOME

Stay-at-Homes Will Greet Shriners at Train Saturday Night for Triumphal Parade.

Red fire, the fanfare of brass bands, the din of every noise-making device known to human ingenuity and a triumphal procession through the principal streets of Atlanta will be in store for the visitors that will make the reception of Potentate Forrest Adair and his victorious Yaarabs, who landed the 1914 convention of the Shriners in Dallas, when they alight from their train Saturday night at the Terminal Station.

Fifteen minutes after they learned Atlanta had plucked the melon at Dallas, local Shriners who were unable to make the trip and taste the joys of combat, began planning this reception. Four prominent members, Dr. M. F. Turner, T. H. Pitt, C. H. Essig and Oscar Wehmeister, formed themselves into a committee to prepare for the home-coming of the victors, and this morning they announced their plans. Here they are:

Every Shriner in Atlanta and every Shriner from other cities who happens to be in Atlanta on Saturday, is requested and commanded to report at the Terminal Station at 9:30 o'clock Saturday night. Shriners are urged to wear their fezes and bring with them the choicest assortment of noise-producing instruments they can find. A brass band will thrill the Shriners with martial music while waiting for the special to arrive from Dallas.

Drum Corps in Uniform.

Mr. Wehmeister wired to Mr. Adair this morning to have the drum corps and the Arab patrol in full uniform when they arrive in Atlanta. The fun will begin as soon as the conquerors of Memphis and the world alight from their train. After much handshaking and congratulation, the Shriners will leave the station and parade through the city, headed by the band. The patrol and drum corps will act as escorts to the men who made the trip to Dallas.

"We are going to turn Atlanta upside down Saturday night," said Oscar Wehmeister Thursday morning. "The boys have done a wonderful thing for the Shriners and for Atlanta, and they deserve the best reception we can give them. We have been deeply grieved among the shriners since Atlanta won the fight for the convention here is a Shriner in Atlanta who will not be on hand to help celebrate."

Dispatches from The Georgian's staff correspondent on the battle-ground told of a wild night in Dallas Wednesday night. The night was given over to merrymaking and celebrating the victory of the late City.

Atlanta and Memphis at Peace.

While Shriners may have dropped out during the fight between Atlanta and Memphis has entirely disappeared, and men are more enthusiastic over Atlanta than the Memphis delegation. The Tennesseans have assured Adair and his men that they will be on hand in 1914 and do their best to make it the greatest ever.

So jubilant were the Atlantans over their victory they staged an impromptu drum corps parade and showed the best thing they had seen in a long time. Captain W. B. Cheyney was master of ceremonies, and headed the Atlanta patrol and drum corps in the parade. The street crowds got to singing "In Dear Old Georgia" about 9 o'clock and kept it up until morning.

Former Cashier of Bank Gets 4 Years

SAVANNAH, GA., May 15.—Failing to agree with the jury which sympathized with James B. Smith, former cashier of the Merchants and Farmers Bank, of Claxton, Judge Walter G. Charlton, in Chatham Superior Court, has sentenced the prisoner to four years in the penitentiary. The jury had recommended mercy.

Smith was charged with forging and passing an altered certificate of deposit for $1,000, with which he borrowed money from the Commercial Bank, of Savannah.

Smith is a Claxton boy and was recently married. His bride and mother were with him throughout the trial. When the verdict was announced.

Infant 'Damnation' a Vital Issue

Smoking Pastors Under Debate

2 Live Topics for Presbyterians

By REV. CHARLES STELZLE.

Whether all "non - elect" children dying in infancy go straight to hell is a "human interest" problem which will produce mingling emotions in the minds of most mothers, to say nothing of some fathers. A stern Presbyterian preacher of a former day is reported to have imparted the cheerful information that the mouth of hell is choked with such infants. He did not state specifically how he came by this knowledge, but the sermon must have sent his congregation home shivering, in spite of the warmth of his subject.

The Southern Presbyterian Assembly now in session in Atlanta will wrestle with this much discussed question. For some time its ministers and Presbyteries have been debating the proposition as to whether the confession of faith should be revised so as to declare plainly that all children dying in infancy shall be saved—as probably practically all of them now sincerely believe, whether this church shall continue to merely affirm that all "elect infants dying in infancy" shall be saved from hell.

Elect Infant Clause Inserted Long Ago.

However this matter may be finally disposed of, it should be said in all fairness that when this "elect infant" clause was inserted in the Westminster Confession of Faith, three-fourths more than covered all necessary expenses. You can forgive a lot of "theology" that you may not like, if the man whom it possesses has a heart like Dr. Gregg's.

Governor and Wife Visit Milledgeville

MILLEDGEVILLE, GA., May 15.—Governor Joseph M. Brown slept last night in the room in the old Governor's Mansion which he occupied as a boy, when his father, Joseph E. Brown, was Governor of Georgia.

Governor and Mrs. Brown arrived yesterday afternoon. Under an escort of Dr. J. A. Tigner, J. E. Kidd and President M. M. Parks, of the Georgia Normal and Industrial College, they were made an excursion to points of interest, including the State farm, the State Sanitarium and the Normal school. Last night they were accorded an elaborate reception. Standing in the hall of the old mansion Governor and Mrs. Brown shook hands with Normal school girls, Georgia Military College cadets and hundreds of citizens. They returned to-day to Atlanta.

7,000 Children in Festival.

MACON.—More than 7,000 children are enrolled to participate in the annual May festival which will be given under the auspices of the Playground Association and the Board of Education at Tatnall Square Park on May 30.

Interesting Personage Assembly Delegate.

There's a very dignified commissioner in the Northern Assembly from St. Louis. His name is Gregg—Dr. Harris H. Gregg, pastor of the Washington-Compton Avenue Church. For conservatism in theology he is the limit, but he is so thoroughly human and warm hearted that most folks are compelled to admire him even though they cannot accept his "pessimism" and other "dispensational" teaching.

If there is a young fellow in his parish who needs a personal friend, Dr. Gregg is on hand if he finds out about the chap's need. If a stranger is coming to town who needs a boarding house and some of the other things that strangers need, Dr. Gregg will personally meet him at the station, if the job is part up to him. And the next morning the young minister received a check through the mail from Dr. Gregg with a hearty note, inviting him and his wife for a couple of weeks. There's much more than covered all necessary expenses. You can forgive a lot of "theology" that you may not like, if the man whom it possesses has a heart like Dr. Gregg's.

Smoking by Pastors Again Under Debate.

While the sincere and earnest men in these assemblies admit they do not know what the Almighty will do in the future with "damned" children, there are a good many who have agreed upon the question as to whether it is quite the thing for full-grown ministers to smoke fresh nose. They will probably decide to use rather a raw epigram, that "it is better to smoke here than hereafter," but they are more than ready to keep any minister from smoking anywhere.

If the Northern Assembly does not pass its usual annual resolution against the practice of ministers smoking, it will no doubt be because they are meeting in a part of the country where this habit is far more common than it is in the North. And yet it is a peculiar coincidence that nearly every ex-moderator of the Northern Assembly is a user of tobacco. As for the commissioners—watch them in the lobbies of the hotels.

Triple Meeting A Sign of Progress.

Few people appreciate the significance of this simultaneous meeting of the three Presbyterian Assemblies—the Northern, Southern and United. A few years ago such a proceeding would have been an economic impossibility. There are some folks in Atlanta at this moment who are fearful of what may happen during the next few days. For instance 1,400 commissioners, representing the three denominations should really come to know each other and discover that some of the men of whom they have been hearing for many a year are actually free from horns and cloven hoofs, thereby no telling what may come to pass. It isn't likely that there would be an immediate amalgamation, but what a tremendous relief it would be to have it dawn upon some people that these "split Ps" actually belong to the same great Presbyterian family.

This realization may or may not come in the regular meetings of the assemblies—the discovery is more likely to be made in the homes in which those commissioners are being entertained. It's the human element, not the theological, that will finally produce the spirit of greater brotherhood among Presbyterians, and the women in the homes are going to help right loyally on the job.

STOPS FALLING HAIR

This Home Made Mixture Stops Dandruff and Falling Hair and Aids Its Growth.

To a half pint of water add: Bay Rum ..... 1 ounce
Jaboco Compound ..... a small box
Glycerine ..... 1/4 oz.
Shake well and apply to the scalp, so that you can buy from any druggist at very little cost, and mix them yourself. Apply to the scalp once a day for two weeks, then once a week for three weeks and the mixture is used. A half pint should be enough to rid the head of dandruff and kill the dandruff germs. It stops the hair from coming out, relieves itching and scalp diseases.

Although it is not a dye, it acts upon the hair roots and will darken an streaked, faded, gray hair in ten or fifteen days. It promotes the growth of the hair and makes harsh, hair soft and glossy.

DRS. STONE AND LYONS HEAD PRESBYTERIANS

Chicago Man Moderator of Northern Chicago, Louisville Pastor of Southern Church.

The Rev. John W. Stone, of Chicago, was elected moderator of the general assembly of the Northern Presbyterian church on second ballot. His vote was overwhelming.

With cheers that lasted several minutes the name of Rev. John T. Stone, of Chicago, as a "non-political" candidate for moderator was placed in nomination as a "dark horse" by Rev. J. R. King, of Monmouth, Ill., at the assembly of the Northern Presbyterian church late this afternoon.

With Dr. Stone's name added to the list of possible moderators the nominations were closed with the Rev. Maitland Alexander, Pittsburg; Rev. William McKibben, Cincinnati; Rev. Howard A. Johnston, Bridgeport, Conn. and Rev. S. S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio in the contest.

Rev. John F. Stone's unexpected nomination caused his name to lead the first ballot. Commissioners declared, after the ballot, that his election was assured.

The Revs. Howard A. Johnston, S. S. Palmer and William McKibben were eliminated on the first ballot. The contest was decided between Rev. Stone and Dr. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburg.

The result of the first ballot was: Revs. Stone, 314; Alexander, 289; Lyons, 314; Johnston, 65 and McKibben 46.

LYONS CHOSEN BY SOUTHERNERS.

Dr. J. S. Lyons, of Louisville, was elected moderator of the Southern Presbyterian Assembly on the fourth ballot Thursday afternoon by 109 votes, to 93 for Dr. R. C. Reed, of Columbia; the other nominees having dropped out on the ballot.

Five names were put in nomination.

The result of the first ballot was: Dr. A. M. Fraser, Staunton, Va., 26; Dr. Lyons, 75; Dr. W. M. McPheeters, Columbia, 10; Dr. W. McF. Alexander, New Orleans, 45, and Dr. Reed, 48.

Dr. McPheeters withdrew his name from the ballot and the four were left to vote on.

Thursday saw the inauguration of the real work of two thousand delegates and visitors to three great Presbyterian Assemblies, gathered in one city for the first time in the history of America.

The actions of this great body of men will affect nearly two million people, members of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

At the opening of the Northern Assembly, in the Baptist Tabernacle, Dr. Mark A. Matthews, the retiring moderator, delivered the sermon that is always awaited with interest. His subject was "The Victories of Faith vs. The Failures of Unbelief," and he declared in a ringing talk that the greatest need of the church was faith.

Three Candidates in Field.

For the moderatorship of the Northern Assembly three candidates have appeared in the field. Thus the contest will be hotly fought is almost certain, but all the indications favored a victory for the conservatives.

The candidates are Dr. Maitland Alexander, of Pittsburg, Pa., who has the support of the conservative element; Dr. S. S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio, and Dr. William McKibben, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The session of the Southern branch was opened by Dr. Thomas S. Clyce, of Sherman, Texas, the retiring moderator, at the North Avenue Church. Owing to the policy pursued by this organization, which precludes all politics in the election of moderator, no candidate has appeared for that office.

Moderator Fight in Assembly.

At the opening session of the Northern Assembly, at the Baptist Tabernacle, Thursday morning Moderator Dr. Mark Matthews, of Seattle, former Georgian, now pastor of the largest Presbyterian church in the United States, preached what many of his hearers considered one of the strongest sermons he has ever delivered. His subject was "The Victories of Faith vs. The Failures of Unbelief."

Following the annual sermon of the moderator, the convention adjourned to 2:30 o'clock, when the second session was begun.

The session of the Southern Assembly at the North Avenue Church followed the course pursued by the Northern Assembly. Adjourning to 3 o'clock, after hearing the annual sermon of the moderator, Dr. Thomas S. Clyce, of Shipman, Texas.

Interest in the Thursday sessions of the two assemblies centered, of course, in the election of moderators to head the assemblies of the church scheduled for the afternoon session.

Contest Narrows to Two.

Prior to the balloting, however, the contest seemed to have narrowed down to Dr. Palmer and Dr. Alexander, with Dr. McKibben losing ground slowly and Alexander in the lead.

The first of the popular meetings to be held each evening under the direction of all of the three assemblies will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock, in the Auditorium. The

BOY KILLED BY BROTHER

Hartman Boone, 13 years of age, late Thursday afternoon accidentally shot and killed his 5-year-old brother, Irwin, while the two little fellows were at play in the back yard of their home at 22 Hunter street.

Hartman Boone was almost crazed by the tragedy, and refused to be comforted by friends who were attracted by his screams and rushed to the scene.

Little Irwin was shot through the neck with a bullet from a parlor rifle. The jugular vein was severed and he died instantly. His brother is said to have dropped the rifle, and, as he picked it up from the ground, it discharged.

The two boys are sons of T. A. Boone, of the Byrd Printing Company, who was immediately notified of the tragedy, and hurried home. Coroner Donehoo was also notified and will hold an inquest.

STRIKEBREAKERS TRY TO RUN CARS IN CINCINNATI

CINCINNATI, May 15.—An effort to operate more street car lines was made today. Strikebreakers were used. The police were asked to guard the cars.

A call for a meeting tonight of linemen, firemen, engineers, oilers and electricians of the street railway system has been issued. These men have gone on strike.

BURNS WILL HUNT MARY PHAGAN'S SLAYER

Noted Detective Himself Coming to Atlanta to Solve Police Mystery.

Colonel Thomas B. Felder, noted Atlanta lawyer, Thursday issued the positive statement that William J. Burns would take charge of the Phagan investigation immediately upon his return from Europe, June 1.

In the meantime a criminal investigator will be sent from the Burns Agency's New York office to prosecute his investigation.

Colonel Felder gave out the following dispatch received from Raymond J. Burns, son of William J. Burns, in New York, which tells of the father's determination to take up the Phagan mystery:

Father still in Europe. Returns about June 1. He consents to take charge of Phagan investigation immediately upon his return. He suggests I send a good criminal investigator to start investigation immediately before same gets too cold.

Colonel Felder declared this supreme confidence in Burns' ability to clear up the Phagan mystery and bring to light the person or persons guilty of the murder.

Thinks Fund Can Be Raised.

He declared that his action in securing the detective was given impetus by the demands of Atlanta citizens to clear up the mystery regardless of cost, and he expresses his belief that sufficient funds to cover the investigation will be easily forthcoming.

Already, he declared, the foundation of a fund had been secured through the generous donation of friends of the Phagan girl and other people who have interested themselves in the work. Colonel Felder himself has turned over to the fund the fee paid his legal firm to assist in the prosecution.

And now, with the subscriptions well under way, he declared, the public-spirited citizens of the city, by popular subscriptions, would be asked to make up the shortage.

Colonel Felder's statement in full is as follows:

Statement by Felder.

"The time is at hand when I deem it not only proper, but necessary, that I take the public into my confidence relative to the further proposed investigation of the Phagan murder case.

"My firm was employed by neighbors and friends of the deceased shortly after the crime was committed to aid in the preparation of the case and the prosecution thereof.

"Without intending to reflect in the slightest degree upon the vigilant detectives engaged upon the case, who seem to be doing their utmost to ferret out the mystery, it occurred to me that the magnitude of the crime justified an effort to secure the services of William J. Burns, a man with a record of successes covering a period of 30 years or more—and without a single failure charged against him.

Wants Aid in Move.

"A committee of prominent women of the city, distinguished for their philanthropic work, called upon me, assuring me that funds sufficient to cover the expenses of Burns' investigation would be raised by public subscription. I assured these good women of my willingness to contribute our fee, and some additional amount if necessary. I immediately got into communication with Mr. Burns, and the result of my efforts will be reflected by a cablegram which reached me by way of his New York office, which is published herewith.

"I feel that those interested in seeing justice vindicated, by fixing this crime upon the guilty parties, whom I feel certain will be brought to punishment through the efforts of this distinguished detective, are to be congratulated that we have been able to secure his services.

"The fund thus far raised by the friends and neighbors of the family of deceased, and through the efforts of the good women who have interested themselves in this work, falls far short of the amount required to carry it forward.

Public Asked to Donate.

"The public is therefore invited to contribute to the fund. At the conclusion of the work an itemized statement of receipts and disbursements in this behalf will be published by the press of the city for the information of the subscribers to the fund.

"In conclusion I desire to say that in what I am doing I have the approval of the Solicitor General, Hon. Hugh M. Dorsey, who will supervise and direct all work in this behalf.

THOMAS B. FELDER.

For Felder, Anderson, Dillon & Whitman.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey said that he expected no developments along the line of a new arrest, nor had there been anything at all in the case that would lead him to change the direction of his prosecution.

"There is absolutely nothing new in the case," he said Thursday morning, "unless it is evidence that has not been made public. Our investigation has been extensive, and some rather important points have been brought out since the Coroner's inquest, but there is nothing that could be called new.

"For the last two days our efforts have been directed toward getting the different statements in shape and corroborating what evidence we have."

New Arrest Not Unlikely.

It became known, however, that for two days deputies from the offices of the Solicitor have been contemplating making a new arrest in the case, and that it is not unlikely the arrest may be made Thursday or Friday.

One of the deputies was responsible for the statement that there was almost as much evidence against the party, or parties, under surveillance as there was against the two suspects held in the Tower. He said he had not made the arrest yet because the persons could not get away and he wanted to get the sanction of the Solicitor, which had thus far been withheld.

The Solicitor said that he attached little importance to the slip of paper found in an old purse at Mary Phagan's home on which was written the slain girl's name and address. Other than as a specimen of her handwriting, he said, it was of no importance.

He said he did not believe the girl expected to meet her death or had the slip of paper as an identification card, for the reason that it was left in an unused purse and at her home.

The Solicitor had several conferences yesterday with handwriting experts, and declared the evidence along this line would play an important part in the trial.

The Grand Jury meets Friday, but it is not probable the Phagan case will be submitted then. Mr. Dorsey said that he might call a special session some time before Friday of next week, but the probabilities were it would be considered on that day.

All the cases on the docket, with the exception of the Phagan case, were placed on the Grand Jury calendar Thursday by the Solicitor, something for the Phagan investigation, which probably will take several days.

FREE TRIAL OF SAMOSE

Flesh Forming Food Given on Approval by Jacobs' Pharmacy.

Would you like to be fat and plump and strong and hearty? Here is a chance for you to do it without risking the loss of a single penny.

Jacobs' Pharmacy, our well known druggists, have a new treatment called Samose, which they are selling on approval that is said to be a true flesh forming food. It is in tablet form, costing at 50c a box.

If it does not increase the weight, fill out the thin, scrawny form, and restore health and strength, there will be no charge whatsoever for Samose. Go to Jacobs' Pharmacy to-day and get a treatment of Samose with their promise to refund the money if it does not do all that it claims.

Jacobs' faith in Samose is shown by their offer to refund the money if it does not increase flesh and restore good health.

They really give you a free trial of the preparation, for unless it does increase the weight it will not cost you cent.

ATLANTA BAPTIST OPPOSED TO UNION

Dr. Gray, at Southern Convention, Presents Report Antagonistic to Denominational Merger.

ST. LOUIS, May 15.—Delegates to the sixty-seventh annual Southern Baptist convention are well as religious leaders of other denominations to-day are discussing the anti-church-union plank in the formal report of Dr. B. D. Gray, of Atlanta, for the Board of Home Missions.

In it he said:

"Baptists can best serve human welfare by loyalty to the principles of their own faith. Union church efforts have failed and will fail. If the clamor for the weakening of the denominational lines should succeed, it would result not in a church union, but in skepticism. If our people are brought to think that the things are worthless for which their fathers sacrificed they will come to think that all the rest is worthless."

National conventions of the Episcopal and Disciples of Christ Churches have declared for church union and have appointed joint commissions to confer with other denominations. At the meeting of the National Lutheran Synod in Kansas yesterday, a report favoring the union plan was presented. Northern Baptists and Disciples of Christ churches in Chicago already are working out a plan of union.

Raising Funds for Judson Centennial.

CLIFTON FORGE, VA., May 15.—The Rev. George Green has resigned the pastorate of the Clifton Forge Baptist Church to accept the position of field secretary under the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board, with headquarters at Georgetown, Ky. He will solicit funds for the Judson Centennial memorial for the equipment of hospitals, schools and missions in the foreign field. It is desired to raise $1,250,000. Of this amount more than $250,000 is already subscribed. Among the other solicitors for this fund is Rev. W. A. Tullaferro, of Dublin, Ga.

Flyers in Olympiad Of Greek Victors

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ATHENS, May 15.—For the first time since the Olympic games were established 2,688 years ago, aeroplaning will be part of the program in the tournament of reviews in the strictly Greek Olympiad there next spring.

These games will be in no wise connected with the International Olympiad to be held in Berlin in 1916. They will be wholly Greek and will be part of a jubilee to celebrate the victory of the Balkan league over Turkey.

The first Olympic games, conducted as a national institution, were held in 776 B. C.

Vassar Lifts Tango and Turkey Trot Ban

NEW YORK, May 15.—Great is the joy at Vassar. The ban has been lifted on the turkey trot and the tango, and at the senior "prom," on May 30, the young women will be permitted to dance the steps that have been forbidden heretofore.

At the initial campaign of this there was a great scarcity of men because of the ban on the new dances, and the girls let it be known they were through with the old ones.

A "new and improved" committee of carefully selected students and members of the faculty will attend the coming "prom" to see that propriety is observed.

POLITICS BLOCKS LODGE WORK IN SOUTH CAROLINA

ANDERSON, S. C., May 15.—The bitter political campaign of 1912 caused a halt in the work of Odd Fellows in South Carolina, according to a report made to the grand master, of the order.

"For four months in the summer of 1912 I could find no one not interested in politics," he says.

"I tried to visit active lodges but finally had to give it up and wait until the election was over."

This probably is the first time an official reference has been made in lodge matters to a political campaign.

U. S. WILL REPLY TO JAPAN FRIDAY

Mikado To Be Assured That Government Did Everything Possible to Block Alien Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The formal reply of the United States to the Japanese protest against the Webb-Heney land law in California probably will be dispatched to Tokio late to-morrow.

It was learned that the document assures Japan that the United States has done everything in its power to prevent the enactment of the Webb law.

Japan also will be informed that the administration intends to do everything possible to delay the enforcement of the law until its constitutionality shall be determined.

That the United States Government will be compelled to support California in another controversy arises in the courts over the alleged discriminatory element in the land bill is the opinion of State Department officials.

Since Japan does not claim treaty violation in her protest made to the United States Government and says that the alleged discrimination in the Webb measure is one involving her national honor rather than any legal right, the situation which presents itself is one which can not be submitted to arbitration at The Hague.

Gov. Johnson to Sign Bill Within 72 Hours.

SACRAMENTO, May 15.—Governor Hiram Johnson to-day said he would sign the anti-alien land bill within 72 hours. He intimated that he might sign it to-day.

His delay, he said, was due entirely to the fact that he desired not to appear discourteous to the national administration.

Government Not to Act Further Now.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—No action will be taken to-day by the administration in reference to the Japanese-California situation. While Secretary Bryan in New York, where he will remain until to-morrow, the White House officials to-day stated there was no possibility of official consideration of Governor Johnson's message to the Secretary of State until the Cabinet meeting to-morrow.

It is not believed at the White House that the administration will take any further steps in the land law question at present, but will leave it to the courts to decide whether the law is constitutional and agrees with existing treaties.

Clamor Over Bill in Japan Is Dying Out.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

TOKIO, May 15.—An optimistic feeling prevails at the Japanese Foreign Office that the controversy between this country and the United States over the California land bill will soon be settled to the satisfaction of both sides.

An attache of the Foreign Office said to-day:

"We expect to reach a friendly and permanent solution. The negotiations with the United States are going ahead satisfactorily."

The public clamor over the bill is dying out.

Arizona to Hear Protest of Japs.

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 15.—Governor Hunt to-day said he would receive a committee of the Japanese Society of Arizona that desires to place protests against the alien land bill. In case the Governor refuses to veto the bill the case will be taken to the United States Supreme Court to test the constitutionality of the act.

To Beautify School With 'Clean-Up' Prize

Pupils of the Davis Street school are planning to further beautify the school grounds with the $25 prize that the recent "clean up" contest.

The prize was presented to the school by Walter G. Cooper, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, in a happy speech of congratulation. W. D. Sumner, of the Board of Education, addressed the school. Miss Julia Riordon, the principal, was highly complimented on the school's work.

This is the second successive time that Davis Street school has won the "clean-up" day prize. The 360 children obtained 12,500 pledges within a day and a half.

J. WYLIE SMITH, IN CELL, SHUNS VISITORS

Former Banker Asks Sheriff to Shield Him From All—Pleads His Illness.

Utmost seclusion attended the first day's incarceration of J. Wylie Smith, former head of the Commercial Loan and Discount Company, Atlanta, accused of forgery, who was brought back to the city Wednesday night.

Smith refused pointblank to see any one except Dr. George W. Adair, who says Smith is indebted to him in the sum of about $1,800, visited the Tower early Thursday morning in an effort to see the prisoner, but was unsuccessful.

To newspaper men Smith sent word that he has nothing to say, either about his two years' life in Mexico or the charges.

"I'm going to spend all my time getting well," he said.

Worn to a Shadow.

Smith looked like a ghost of his former self when he arrived in Atlanta with T. M. Hamilton Wednesday. He was worn to a shadow by his experiences since he left Atlanta, and was as loth to talk about these experiences as he was to divulge information concerning his financial operations here. Smith's face was marked with lines of suffering, which he declared he got while in Mexico, and he seemed to weigh scarcely 100 pounds. The gilt edge, fond and care-free air with which he used to walk the streets of Atlanta are gone, and Smith walked, talked and looked like an invalid.

The former president of the Commercial Loan and Discount Company was met at the station by City Detectives Sturdivant and Davis and taken immediately to the Tower. He tried to dodge the newspaper reporters and photographers, hiding behind Mr. Hamilton when the picture men tried to snap him.

During the two years that have elapsed since Smith left Atlanta, leaving the affairs of his company in a chaotic condition, he has been practically immune from arrest. Several times he has been taken in custody by the Pinkertons, but each time efforts to have him extradited have failed, and he has lived in little danger of being brought to trial.

Joined in Revolution.

When the trouble in Mexico broke out Smith joined one of the "comic opera" armies, which one he refuses to state. It is generally understood among his Atlanta friends, however, that he enlisted with the army of Felix Diaz and took part in the overthrow of Madero. He wore the khaki uniform of Diaz's rurales when he returned to Atlanta.

Smith was injured in one of the many battles, and because of the lack of proper nursing and care, failed rapidly. He has kept up his correspondence with friends in Atlanta, and when he thought the end was near, he consented to return and face the charges against him. He was persuaded to do this by T. M. Hamilton, who left Atlanta last Thursday to bring him back. It is said that it was when Mr. Hamilton arrived in El Paso, and was at work that he had to be brought across the Rio Grande in a carriage.

While Smith is very weak and nervous, it is not thought his condition is serious. A few weeks of careful nursing and good food will bring him around all right, his friends declare, and he will then be ready to face his accusers.

College Girls' Prank Scandalizes School

ROCKFORD, ILL., May 15.—Fifteen girls have been suspended for two weeks and sent to their homes under guardianship and two have been expelled from staid Rockford college, the oldest girls' institution in the West, for an escapade early in the morning, when they paraded in their nightgowns and the girls went to Freeport where they registered themselves as members of a theatrical troupe.

Two couples are said to have gone on to Dubuque as the parents of the girls have demanded an explanation from the young men. The college was practically closed to-day owing to the absence of the faculty. The affair has caused the biggest scandal the college has ever known.

Thaw in Cout at Anhut Bribery Trial

NEW YORK, May 15.—Chief interest centered in the appearance of Harry K. Thaw as a witness in the trial of Jerome N. Anhut, under indictment for bribery in connection with an alleged attempt to liberate Thaw from Matteawan Asylum, began to-day in the Supreme Court.

Thaw reached New York at 10 o'clock, having breakfast on the train for months. He wore a blue serge suit and a straw hat.

The indictment charges Anhut with offering $20,000 to Dr. John W. Russell, superintendent of Matteawan, if Thaw was to decide Thaw sane so that he might gain his liberty.

Hudson Guild Worker To Give Lecture Here

Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott, headworker of Hudson Guild, New York, and distinguished sociologist and religious leader, will deliver the concluding lecture of Atlanta Ethical Lecture Committee's 1912-13 series, Dr. Elliott will speak at Cable Hall Thursday evening, May 22, on "The Growing Power of Social Discontent." Dr. Elliott is assistant leader of the New York Ethical Society, of which Dr. Felix Adler is leader. He has in the past fifteen years applied his theory, until the principles of social service in religion as expressed from week to week before assemblies of a thousand of New York's intellectual and cultured people, members of the Society for Ethical Culture.

Reeves Exonerated Of Eloping Charge

Complete exoneration of J. G. Reeves, an Atlanta real estate operator, of the charge of eloping with Mrs. Edward M. Brown was made Thursday by Brown.

The exoneration of Reeves is framed in the following letter which Brown sent to The Georgian:

"In reference to the interview attributed me in last night's paper accusing Mr. J. G. Reeves of eloping to Macon with my wife, I beg to say that upon careful investigation I find that Mr. Reeves is entirely innocent in the matter.

"Would thank you to give this letter publicity as I deem that Mr. Reeves has been unjustly wronged in this matter."

Pardon Board Hears Mangham Petition

The State Prison Commission Thursday forenoon heard the arguments in behalf of a pardon for J. J. Mangham, the promoter and one of the principal stockholders in the Boyd-Mangham Manufacturing Company, of Griffin, whose failure was followed by Mangham's conviction on a charge of embezzlement.

Mangham was sentenced to one term of four years and another of twelve months. His brother, J. W. Mangham, paid a fine of $1,000.

The commission was told that Mangham had been guilty neither of embezzlement nor any other crime. His conviction was due, said his attorney, entirely to public sentiment.

The commission will make its recommendation within a few days.

YAARAB PATROL TO GET GREAT WELCOME

Red fire, the fanfare of brass bands, the din of every noise-making device known to human ingenuity and triumphal processions through the principal streets of Atlanta will be a few of the features that will mark the reception of Potentate Forrest Adair and his ferocious Yaarabs, who landed the 1914 convention of the Shriners in Dallas, when they alight from their train Saturday night at the Terminal Station.

Fifteen minutes after they learned Atlanta had plucked the melon at Dallas, local Shriners who were unable to make the trip and taste the joys of the pleasant journey began reception. Four prominent members, Dr. M. E. Turner, T. H. Pitt, C. H. Kaetg and Oscar Weinmeister, formed themselves into a committee to prepare for the home-coming of the visitors, and this morning they announced their plans. Here they are:

Every Shriner in Atlanta, and every Shriner who can possibly get here to be in Atlanta on Saturday, is requested and commanded to report at the Terminal Station at 5:29 o'clock Saturday night. All Shriners are urged to wear their fezes and bring with them the choicest assortment of noise producing instruments they can find. A brass band will lift the Shriners with martial music while waiting for the special to arrive from Dallas.

Drum Corps in Uniform.

Mr. Weinmeister wired to Mr. Adair this morning to have the drum corps and the Arab patrol in full uniform when they arrive in Atlanta. The fun will begin as soon as the conquerors of Memphis and the world illicit from their train. After much handshaking and congratulations, the Shriners will leave the station and parade through the city, headed by the band. The patrol, dressed in their Arab attire, will ride to the men who made the trip to Dallas.

"We are going to turn Atlanta upside down Saturday night," said Oscar Weinmeister Thursday morning. "The boys have done a wonderful thing for the Shriners and the city, and they deserve the best reception we can give them. We have been circulating among the Shriners since Atlanta won the fight, and I believe there is a representative here who will not be on hand to help celebrate."

Dispatches from The Georgian's staff correspondent in Dallas this morning told of a wild night in Dallas Wednesday night. The night was given over to merrymaking and celebrating the victory of the dixie City.

Atlanta and Memphis at Peace.

Whatever feeling may have cropped out during the fight between Atlanta and Memphis has entirely disappeared, and none are more enthusiastic over Atlanta than the Memphis delegations. The Tennesseans have assured Adair and his men that they will be on hand in 1914 and do their best to make the big meet a success.

So jubilant were the Atlantans over their victory they staged an impromptu parade that Dallas voted was the best thing they had seen in a long time. Captain W. R. Joyner was marshal, and he handled the crowd of Atlanta patrol and drum corps in the parade. The street crowds got to singing "In Dear Old Georgia" about 9 o'clock and kept it up until morning.

Infant 'Damnation' a Vital Issue

Smoking Pastors Under Debate

2 Live Topics for Presbyterians

By REV. CHARLES STELZLE.

Whether all "non - elect" children dying in infancy go straight to hell is a "human interest" problem which will produce missing emotions in the minds of most mothers, to say nothing of some fathers. A stern Presbyterian preacher of a former day is reported to have imparted the cheerful information that the mouth of hell is choked with such infants. He did not state specifically how he came by this knowledge, but the sermon must have sent his congregation home shivering in spite of the warmth of his subject.

The Southern Presbyterian Assembly now in session in Atlanta will wrestle with this much discussed question. For some time its ministers and Presbyteries have been debating the proposition as to whether the confession of faith should be revised so as to declare plainly that all children dying in infancy shall be saved—probably practically all of them now sincerely believe—or whether this church shall continue to merely affirm that all "elect infants dying in infancy" shall be saved from hell.

Elect Infant Clause Inserted Long Ago.

However this matter may be finally disposed of, it should be said in all fairness that when this "elect infant" clause was inserted in the Westminster Confession of Faith, the then dominant church—this was several hundred years ago—insisted that only children under its care should be saved. The Presbyterians of that day vehemently declared that this was not true—that at least all the infants of the elect," or all the "elect infants," whichever way you may choose to put it.—in short, the predestined ones—were also to be saved.

This attitude was a radical advance over the system which limited and narrowly the number of "saved" infants, and these worthies of the old Presbyterian faith should be given due credit for their "radicalism." But there are large numbers of Presbyterians who are to-day unwilling to go much in advance of this doctrine. They say that whatever may be their personal opinions about the matter, there is absolutely no scripture passage which distinctly states that all children dying in infancy shall be saved, and they are not ready to incorporate in their Confession of Faith a doctrine they state is not specifically taught in the Bible.

They are willing to rest their faith upon "the revealed word," leaving an open questions all matters of uncertainty. They do not say that all such infants are not saved, but neither will they have the church teach that they are saved.

Perhaps the Atlanta Assembly will throw some further light upon this troublesome problem, but this is not likely to be the case.

Smoking by Pastors Again Under Debate.

While the sincere and earnest men in these assemblies admit they do not know what the Almighty will do in the future with "damned" children, there are a good many who have agreed upon this question as to whether it is quite the thing for full-grown ministers to smoke right now. They will probably declare, to use rather a vaudeville phrase, that "it is better to smoke here than hereafter," but they are more than ready to keep any minister from smoking anywhere.

If the Northern Assembly does not pass its usual resolution of protest against the practice of ministers smoking, it will no doubt be because they are meeting in a part of the country where this habit is far more common than it is in the North. And yet it is a peculiar coincidence that nearly every ex-moderator of the Northern Assembly is a user of tobacco. Even the commissioners —watch them in the lobbies of the hotels.

Triple Meeting A Sign of Progress.

Few people appreciate the significance of this simultaneous meeting of the three Presbyterian Assemblies —the Northern, Southern and United. A few years ago such a proceeding would have been an impossibility. There are some folks in Atlanta at this moment who are fearful of what may happen during the next 10 days. For if these 1,400 commissioners, representing the three denominations should really come to know each other and discover that some of the men of whom they have been hearing for many a year are actually free from horns and cloven hoofs, there's no telling what may come to pass. It isn't likely that there would be an immediate amalgamation, but what a tremendous relief it would be to have it dawn upon some people that these "split Pa" actually belong to the same great Presbyterian family.

This realization may or may not come in the regular meetings of the assemblies—the discovery is more likely to be made in the homes in which these commissioners are being entertained. It's the human element, not the theological, that will finally produce the adrift of greater brotherhood among Presbyterians, and the women in the homes are going to help right loyally on the job.

Interesting Personage Assembly Delegate.

There's a very dignified commissioner in the Northern Assembly from St. Louis. His name is Gregg—Dr. Harris H. Gregg, pastor of the Washington-Compton Avenue Church. For a conservatism in theology he is the limit, but he is so thoroughly human and warm hearted that most folks are compelled to admire him even though they cannot accept his "premillenial" and other "dispensational" teaching. If there is a young fellow in his parish who needs a personal friend, Dr. Gregg is on hand if he finds out about the chap's need. If a stranger is coming to town who needs a boarding house and some of the other things that strangers need, Dr. Gregg will personally meet him at the station. If the job is put up to him by an interested, mutual friend, and Dr. Gregg will see that the stranger is comfortably settled.

There's one man in the assembly who was once the pastor of a mission church in St. Louis, and his salary wasn't large. He managed to send his wife to the South for a needed vacation, but he couldn't afford to go himself. In a most casual way Dr. Gregg learned about the situation, and the next morning the young minister received a check through the mail from Dr. Gregg, with a hearty note, inviting him go see his wife for a couple of weeks. The check more than covered all necessary expenses. You can forgive a lot of "theology" that you may not like, if the man whom it possesses has a heart like Dr. Gregg's.

Governor and Wife Visit Milledgeville

MILLEDGEVILLE, GA., May 15.—Governor Joseph M. Brown slept last night in the room in the old Governor's Mansion which he occupied as a boy, when his father, Joseph E. Brown was Governor of Georgia.

Governor and Mrs. Brown arrived yesterday afternoon. Under an escort of Dr. E. A. Tigner, J. E. Kidd and President M. Mayo Parks of Georgia Normal and Industrial College, they made an excursion to points of interest, including the State farm, the State Sanitarium and the Normal school. Last night they were accorded an elaborate reception, standing in the hall of the old mansion Governor Brown lived in, while bands with Normal school girls, Georgia Military College cadets and hundreds of citizens. They returned to-day to Atlanta.

STOPS FALLING HAIR

This Home Made Mixture Stops Dandruff, Gives Hair and Aids Its Growth.

To a half pint of water add:

Bay Rum ..... 1 oz.
Barbo Compound ..... a small box
Glycerine ..... 1-4 oz.

These are all simple ingredients that you can get from any druggist at very little cost, and mix them yourself. Apply to the scalp once a day for two weeks, then once every other week until all the mixture is used. A half pint should be enough to kill the worst of dandruff and kill the dandruff germs. It stops the hair from falling out, relieves itching and scalp diseases.

Although it is not a dye, it acts upon the hair roots and will restore in from one to five months gray hair to often fifteen days. It promotes the growth of the hair and makes it harsh hair soft and glossy.
