

"INSIDE" STORY OF MACHINE RULE RELATED TO JURY BY T. ROOSEVELT

The Colonel Pounded the Judge's Bench With Fist and Slapped Hands Together as He Told of the Wickedness of "Bosses."

BARNES AND MURPHY POLITICAL PARTNERS, ROOSEVELT DECLARES

The Colonel Also Tells of His Dealings With the Late "Easy Boss" Platt. Roosevelt Says Barnes Declared That "Bosses" Were Inseparable From Party Government.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 21.—Theodore Roosevelt spent five hours on the witness stand in the supreme court here today, and he said he believed was the inside story of machine politics and boys rule in New York state. By so doing the former president hoped to convert the jury, trying the $50,000 suit of William Barnes against the so-called "boss," the impression that he was justified in criticizing Mr. Barnes.

Harrison Murphy Confirms.
Colonel Roosevelt swore he had been told by Harrison Murphy, the Murphy democrat and the "Barnes republicans," the latter under the leadership of Mr. Barnes, united on more than one occasion to defeat the plain old independent and progressive in the anti-slavery fight. And Mr. Barnes told William Loeb, Jr., the witness emphatically declared that he had an iron-clad agreement with Charles F. Murphy, of Tammany Hall, to support him in a bid to select a United States senator. Mr. Loeb was private secretary to Colonel Roosevelt when he was president, and later was collector of the port of New York.

The witness told the court of his dealing with the late Senator Platt, whom he had described as the "easy boss." Platt, the colonel asserted, attempted to dictate the man he, as governor of the state of New York, was to appoint to the office of state auditor. Mr. Barnes, he said, had agreed to support Mr. Platt with a considerable display of pride, when he told Mr. Barnes of his investigation that he didn't need to impress any man should say whom he should appoint to office. Mr. Barnes now asserted that Platt and the organization leader should have complete control of it, the witness swore.

Deals He Makes.

The colonel gave what he represented to be the details of his conversation with and what he had learned from Mr. Barnes. He said Mr. Barnes in regard to direct primaries legislation, race track legislation and opposition to the state constitution machine to Governor Hughes.

He related that the information former senator culled and gave to Senator John A. Hennessy, gave him regarding alleged corruption in certain state departments. And as a consequence he had written a letter to the colonel toward Mr. Barnes, and added that he considered he was championing the cause of the good people of New York against the partisan boss rule when he caused the publication of the offending statement.

Tomorrow he is to cross-examine at the hands of William M. Ivins, chief of the Barnes counsel.

On the stand to stay on the stand today the colonel seemed to be even more at his ease than he was yesterday. He again asserted that he was constantly interrupted him with objections. He pounded on the judge's bench with his hands and after addressing the court with a resounding snap.

One instant he was on the stand, the next it was jovial. He tried his best to get into the records things he wanted to get in, and his best efforts to get into the records to where this letter or that paper might be found. Once he smilingly engaged in a discussion with Justice Andrews, his opponent during this session of the court.

Mr. Barnes, the opposing attorney, remained in array, leaning with Justice Andrews, the colonel, patient and calm, to the right of the massive, goliath watch chain adorned with the tips of his fingers on the bench opposite, and his eyes directed at the spotlights. When the arguments were over, he invariably would turn to his wife, Anna, and with a smile and after addressing her as "judge," ask whether he might proceed.

Mr. Barnes had particular attention to his opponent during this session of the court. He listened to every word the colonel said, and when he was asked the question by his counsel to make a note upon a pad of paper. Several times during the session he left the stand to go to the other end of the chamber to whisper to Mr. Ivins. Usually the whispered conference resulted in the asking of an objection. Mr. Ivins fought all day to keep the colonel from getting into the records things he wanted to get in, and the plaintiff apparently wanted to keep out. With but a few exceptions, however, the colonel was the left end of the chamber to whisper to Mr. Ivins. Usually the whispered conference resulted in the asking of an objection. Mr. Ivins fought all day to keep the colonel from getting into the records things he wanted to get in, and the plaintiff apparently wanted to keep out.

Dr. White Sued for $20,000 By Manager of Mill Theater

Pastor of Baptist Tabernacle Charged With "Intoxication Upon the Exuberance of His Own Verbiosity" by A. K. Jones.

SUED FOR LIBEL

REV. J. L. WHITE.

STANDS BY STATEMENT.
"I stand by what I said." This was the statement made by Dr. J. L. White last night when asked by a Constitution reporter if he had any comment to make on the damage suit for libel filed against him and seeking $20,000.

"I think things in this city need correction. I consider it my duty to speak out."

In a suit for $20,000 damages for malicious slander, filed against him yesterday by the management of the Mill theater, Rev. J. L. White, pastor of the Tabernacle, was charged with "intoxication upon the exuberance of his own verbiosity," and "counting the spotlights through false, malicious scandal, " while he was manager of the Mill theater, which Rev. White assigned in his Sunday morning sermon as the "sickly, smoky, smelly place" where the politick attack greatly damaged his business and injured the revenue to such an extent that his own personal profit was decreased $15 daily.

STATEMENT CANONS SUIT.
"I stand by what I said as having said in my sermon."

"There is one place in our city which presents, so far as I am able to judge, a picture of degradation in defense of the theater, which is a 10-cent vaudeville house, employing a number of colored girls and women principally. The Mill theater, in my suit, has that place is complicit with the city ordinances of Atlanta, and that place is the Mill theater," he said, pointing his finger at the Mill theater.

White's sermon, he said, did not affect his business, and the next it was jovial. He tried his best to get into the records things he wanted to get in, and his best efforts to get into the records to where this letter or that paper might be found. Once he smilingly engaged in a discussion with Justice Andrews, his opponent during this session of the court.

$60,000 PLUNDER TAKEN BY THIEVES, CLAIMS DR. GRANT

Tells Police Board That 90 Per Cent of 4,000 Vacant Houses Have Lost Plumbing Recently.

URGES POLICE TO STOP LOAFING IN POOL ROOMS

Young Women Robbed by Fortune Tellers, He Says. Earl Moran Makes Complaint Against Beavers.

When Dr. Horace Grant, who recently criticized Chief Beavers and the police department as inefficient, offered to give testimony last night to the probe committee of the police board, he declared that he would not allow police officers to be cross-examined by any one, as a witness who had preceded him had been done.

Dr. Grant was called out in his view by Mr. John B. Bowers, who objected to Chief Beavers cross-examining citizens who had come by invitation to police barracks to complain against police.

FOR BETTER POLICE PROTECTION.

When Dr. Grant took the stand he said: "I am not on trial. I come here at your special invitation to offer suggestions for improving the efficiency of the police department. I want to be in the interests of Atlanta and better police protection for its citizens."

"You cannot put under oath as you can put under oath a person who represents a large class of property owners, who have chosen me as their spokesman, and not kicking against the spokesmen or the police department."

"I want to ask that you gentlemen in your investigation of inefficiency of the police department, use the same method of giving relief to a large class of property owners, who, like myself, are suffering at the hands of these thieves who rob vacant houses."

"There are 4,000 vacant houses in Atlanta, and 90 per cent of them have had the plumbing stolen from them. We ought to have some protection."

"I am not the only one to think the police ought to stand in front of these vacant houses, and when some plumber comes along, as he emerges from a vacant house, and says, 'I am a plumber,'

Many Women Ask and Secure Employment by Bureau's Aid

The activity in the Bureau of the Emergency Association for Unemployed Women yesterday proved the value of that organization and the necessity for its continuance. The placing of the applicants becomes difficult now, as the women of Atlanta, who wish to work, do not realize that the Emergency Association has a well-organized bureau for that purpose. The bureau has a business-like method of operation, with a following system that enables the secretary to record those women who fill a place temporarily or permanently. The bureau is a great help to the applicants, which is helping each day in the matter of solving many of the questions that are in work among business operators.

The bureau in its capacity to handle the question of the unemployed in an emergency, has an experience that will prove valuable in the future in the case of permanent establishment.

Registered yesterday were the following applicants:

—Ex-Experienced seamstress wants part sewing. Does not want to be responsible.

—Caterer, lady who specializes in mayonnaise, salads and salad dressings, wants orders for grand opera, etc. Will No. 27—Experienced hotel housekeeper, wants to work at home.

Local city references.

The woman has a thorough knowledge of cigar, wine, place as cigar clerk or cashier, wants to work part time, but no shorthand, wants general.

No. 28—A middle-aged woman, who is a good seamstress, wants to work part time, but no shorthand, wants general.

The woman is a good seamstress and wants to work part time, but no shorthand, wants general.

—I tried various remedies but was nearly crazy when some months ago I decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed my face with Cuticura Soap, then applied the Cuticura Ointment with my fingers several times a day. The first treatment helped the burning and peeling, but when a week thereafter the skin of the trouble was still as bad as ever and was as bad as anybody. I am washed.

There Are Never Enough First-Class Cars in the Spring

They always run out, as you know. Last year, many Hudson enthusiasts had to take second choice. Thousands waited weeks for delivery. This spring, despite trebled output, there will be more delays. Choose your car now, whatever class you are seeking. The leading car has more orders than cars each spring.

Two things are certain: If you buy a class car you will want a Light Six, the latest and coming type. Your first choice will be Hudson.

Hudson — The Ideal

Hudson stands out as the class car in Light Sixes. Its supremacy appears at a glance. It shows in beauty, finish, luxury and refinement. It shows in lightness—280 pounds. It shows in every part of the classic.

Hudson is designed by Howard E. Coffin, who created the Light Six type. It marks his latest achievement.

This Hudson model is a four-year result. Two years were spent on it before it appeared. Two years have been in refining it.

Hudson is built by the leading builder of class cars. Its prestige gives it permanent value. A year after buying the Hudson will be worth more than any other car will be class.

12,000 Road Tests

But—the greatest fact is that Hudson is known to be free from mistakes.

Over 12,000 Light Six Hudsons are running. In twelve thousand hands they have covered at least 30 million miles.

You know this car is staunch. You know that it hides not a weakness or error. Any owner around you will tell you.

Remember, that the Light Six involves a new-type motor. Weight-saving has required changes in every part. New materials were necessary, special steels, much aluminum.

It saves half on tire cost and fuel over old-time Sixes. But, like any new type, it must prove itself faultless.

Hudson has done that. In another year other Light Sixes may have given proof of their stanchness. But today the Hudson is, by all odds, the safest investment in this type.

Prove these facts now, while the car can be promptly delivered.

It is reported that the first meeting of the society was held in Macon sixty-six years ago, when Dr. W. C. Long, one of the greatest surgeons of the time, was the inventor of ether-anesthesia, revolutionizing the medical world in this country.

Three sessions were held today, morning, noon and night, and were presided over by the president, Dr. W. S. Goldsmith, of Atlanta.

THE TEST OF NEUTRALITY.

in his timely and carefully prepared address before the directors and officers of the Associated Press in New York on Tuesday, President Woodrow Wilson has made the most accurate definition of real neutrality that has yet appeared. "The test of friendship," the president said, "is not sympathy with one side or the other, but getting ready to help both sides when the struggle is over."

President Wilson has submitted the best test of true friendship for that nation that has yet been given. It must be remembered that, regardless of individual opinion, or the sum of it in any particular direction, as a nation we are not sitting in judgment and have no right to. We must wait, wait patiently, without attempting to judge or construe motives, clearing our vision and preparing ourselves the meanwhile to assist, when the time comes, in the great work of restoration. That this must fall to our lot as the "only great nation at present engaged," President Wilson clearly showed. The probability is that the United States will be the chief mediator; and in any event we must be the chief factor in financial, industrial and commercial rehabilitation.

There is echo in President Wilson's words of the gospel of "peace on earth," when he says:

"There is something so much greater to do than fight. Let us think of America before we think of Europe, in order that we may be the friend of Europe's friend when the day of tested trial comes. Let us not sympathize with one side or the other, but get ready to help both sides when the struggle is over."

How different from the attitude of those, some of whom are in the president's intimate councils, who would involve us in war with one or the other of the European factions, for none but sentimental reasons, or because the European viewpoint is to the manner of conducting their quarrel may differ from ours. In the light of the president's statement, the American attitude, as expressed in official action which has sometimes seemed open to criticism, at least as measured by the individual standard, becomes clearer and more forcible in its command of general approval. At point have we sacrificed our national dignity, even in slightest degree, nor have we anywhere, to unknown lament, laid ourselves liable to the charge of unfairness.

There is no doubt that President Wilson's timely utterances will strike a popular chord. Already there is marked evidence of a tendency on the part of the individual citizen of the United States, where uncontrolled by nationality, descent or other primary cause, to weigh, to consider and to preserve an unbiased judgment regarding the motives of the European controversy.

The president's words have crystallized this growing national sentiment. It is as if he pictured the American feeling and viewpoint when the struggle shall have closed—not an official attitude alone, but one expressive of the broad national view, the great sum of individual opinion which the trial balance shall have been taken.

The best, the most satisfactory conclusion we can draw from President Wilson's presentation is that those who have laid wagers on our becoming embroiled in the European controversy will lose, while disappointed jingoes will be forced to turn elsewhere for the consolation they cannot hope to get from demonstrated national sanity.

THE VITAL STATISTICS LAW.

It is more or less a matter of habit with the Georgia legislature to enact administrative laws, without providing the ways and means for their enforcement. That is what the last legislature did with the new vital statistics law, passing up to its successor the responsibility of providing the needed funds.

This is one instance, however, in which it was found impossible to put the law into operation without the money. It can hardly be said that the economy dictated the legislative neglect; it was, rather, an opportunity to get away with a recognized duty by merely enacting the law, and saving the money for the appropriations of which that legislature—and it was no exception—would have made more than its share, if it had not been well held down.

Several years ago, when the legislature created the department of commerce and labor, it made no appropriation for meeting the department's expenses in the first six months of its authorized existence. The people elected a commissioner and he went about with the organization and conduct of the department, taking upon himself the responsibility until a subsequent legislature made good the omission.

The vital statistics law is a somewhat different proposition. There is a heavier expense involved, and there is no one in position to bear the burden of responsibility for this expense, pending legislative action this summer. Consequently, although the law was to have gone into effect January 1, last, its beneficial operations were necessarily delayed until the legislature can meet this summer and apply the remedy in the shape of the needed appropriation.

Forceful attention was called to this failure on the part of the legislature at the annual meeting of the state, county and municipal health officers held in Macon this week, when that organization appointed a committee to go before the new legislature this summer and urge it to lose no time in correcting the mistake of its predecessor.

The value of a general vital statistics law is no longer an issue. The legislature which passed it gave it almost a unanimous vote. It probably thought the law would go into effect without question, as others have done, depending upon the next legislature to make good the deficit. But in this case the plan didn't work, and Georgia will not, as a matter of fact, have a vital statistics law until the money is forthcoming.

The coming legislature should make this appropriation without delay and let it be immediately available. This is due to the fact that one of the most valuable laws enacted in recent years must remain a dead letter.

THE CAUSE OF THE WAR.

It is doubtful if any kind of a prior offer would bring forth a generally satisfactory answer as to the cause of the European war. There are those who know just exactly what it is, know beyond the question of a doubt, but they are having considerable difficulty in securing adoption of their views by a majority.

It would be a hard task to get together a considerable number of persons who might entertain precisely the same view as to the reasons why the war was being fought; unless, perchance, the aforesaid aggression were composed altogether and in toto of Germans or English, or French or some other of the nations engaged and their sympathizers.

That we are left a wide range of choice in war causes and it becomes, after all, a matter of individual selection. Here are a few of the unquestioned causes of the European war, depending, of course, upon viewpoints of some church, pious or some other of the nations engaged and their sympathizers.

England's jealousy of German commerce.

Germany's jealousy of English trade.

Desire of England to maintain her supremacy on the seas.

Germany's desire for territorial aggrandizement.

French desire for revenge for 1870.

Germany's determination to establish an empire.

To those might be added a number of other alleged causes more technical in nature and more deeply involved, but here is a list from which the average man may readily make his selection and find plenty of facts and argument to back it.

The partisan of either side will find no difficulty in making selection; to the unprejudiced man it may be a somewhat harder task, but it matters not where he picks, a little reading from the supporters of his chosen theory will fill him full of convincing argument.

There is an interesting wealth of material here just now for the high school and the college debater; but even these will scarcely prove convincing to the mind made up somewhere else.

To get at the real cause of the war it looks as if we will have to wait for history. Possibly the next generation will have the pleasure of being accurately and reliably informed as to just what brought it on.

Song of the chautauqua statesman: "My platform 'tis of thee, cash-place prepared for me."

This is one instance, however, in which it was found impossible to put the law into operation without the money. It can hardly be said that the economy dictated the legislative neglect; it was, rather, an opportunity to get away with a recognized duty by merely enacting the law, and saving the money for the appropriations of which that legislature—and it was no exception—would have made more than its share, if it had not been well held down.

vote. It probably thought the law would go into effect without question, as others have done, depending upon the next legislature

to make good the deficit.

Consequently, although the law was to have gone into effect January 1, last, its beneficial operations were necessary delayed until the legislature can meet this summer and apply the remedy in the shape of the needed appropriation.

Forceful attention was called to this failure on the part of the legislature at the annual meeting of the state, county and municipal health officers held in Macon this week, when that organization appointed a committee to go before the new legislature this summer and urge it to lose no time in correcting the mistake of its predecessor.

The value of a general vital statistics law is no longer an issue. The legislature which passed it gave it almost a unanimous vote. It probably thought the law would go into effect without question, as others have done, depending upon the next legislature

to make good the deficit.

Consequently, although the law was to have gone into effect January 1, last, its beneficial

operations were necessary delayed until the

INCREASE IN LOANS FOR STATE PROMISED

James Wright, of Pan-American Life, Investigating Conditions Here.

For the purpose of materially increasing the investments of his company in Georgia, Secretary-Treasurer James Wright, of the Pan-American Life Insurance company, of New Orleans, has been spending several days here, and is now in Atlanta, investigating the mortgaging loan field.

Together with State Manager A. J. Sharpshire, Jr., of this city, Mr. Wright has been visiting the business and residential investments in Atlanta, and has also taken an automobile tour of the Atlanta and surrounding counties.

The people of Georgia, said Mr. Wright, are discussing investments in this state, and are determined to the world their ability to overcome the greatest crisis through which the south has passed in the last year, and so without loss of property or credit. Our company already has a very large sum of money invested in Georgia securities, and we are so satisfied with the proven we have decided to largely increase our holdings, particularly of Georgia long and medium term investments.

Notwithstanding the conditions prevailing throughout the country in south since last August, we have no defacto or delinquency on either interest or principal on any Georgia investment.

The Pan-American Life Insurance company, of New Orleans, absorbed the business of the Atlanta Metropolitan Life Insurance company, of Atlanta, earlier in this year, removing the latter from the Georgia to this city, and, as a result of Mr. Wright's visit, has been making arrangements with Atlanta banks to handle their southeastern banking and collection business, and to make available mortgage loan connections for farm and other loans.

The present state offices of the company in the Third National Building, built through the life insurance and the investments of the Atlanta company, now handled, are in charge of A. J. Sharpshire, Jr., as state manager, who has assumed the position from Mr. W. C. and Walter P. Callaway.

TAKE VOTE OF PATRONS ON CHANGE IN SCHEDULE

Following several hearings on the petition of the citizens of Buckhead and other towns beyond Conyers on the Georgia railroad to have the schedule of the Atlanta and Birmingham line so that it will leave Buckhead about 3:30 in the morning instead of 4:20 and arrive at Birmingham at 6:20, the state railroad commission has decided to leave the line to learn just what the effect of this change would be. Patrons, this side of the line, who had put the schedule as requested will put them into effect too late to transact a day's business.
