Reports that Miss Farrar had offered to aid Frank in his fight for freedom to secure another clemency were denied last night by Frank himself.

Beautiful Music Offered In "Love of Three Kings"

"L'Amore Del Tre Re" presented by the Metropolitan Opera company last night, was from the standpoint of absolute music and brilliant presentation of it, the gem of the week's engagements, excepting, of course, the Mozart opera that afternoon.

The Montemesse music developed and overwhelmed the audience. Its lavish and glowing beauty in the second act seemed almost prodigious, and the house, at the close of it, was subdued and then belated as from a great emotional experience.

The singers seemed inspired by the story of what they themselves were singing, and developed new powers beyond anything else they had done.

Lucia Botta, for instance, so far surpassed his former appearance as scarcely to seem the same tenor. His voice was broader, tender, vibrant and swelled with the passion of the music.

"L'Amore Del Tre Re" is called a tragic poem, and this characterization is well applied to the music as well as the text.

Ben Bonelli is the author, Italo Montemesse the composer, and it is seldom that a poet has the good fortune to find so worthy a translation of the spirit of his work into music; nor is it more often that a composer finds a text so nobly framed to build upon it a musical structure as beautiful as this most recent masterpiece of Italian art.

While the tragedy is one of any period, the story is laid in medieval times, and the literary treatment is true, to the thought of the ancient days when parental respect was a paramount virtue, and a patriarchal obedience was enforced.

The music is of the highest type brought forth by the modern Italian school.

The old Italian tendency to melody, which was once preponderant, it courts intensely to insure the exquisite lyric flow of the romantic element in the poem.

That is the triumph of the wonderful second act, in which the score tells the complicated drama of the case of each character, the orchestra, making coherent picture of it all: storminess and conflict, with heavy weight out of chaos.

The lofty musical thought which is frequent finds noteworthy expression in the song, "Italy, Italy, Thy All I Love."

Mayor Woodward Loses Nerve as Delegation Charges Into Office

A delegation of two-score men and women residing on Elmira Place, swooped down on the street committee of council Friday and when they left the room they had their assurance strength throughout.

Any night more beautiful and moving than this, as she stands on the battlements, waving her scarf in duty to the husband, resting and desiring the lover at her feet, it would be hard to imagine; but more important was the value of her work, an interpretation which last night sadly explained how her Flora had, in her first creation of it in New York, placed her in the front rank of prima donnas, both for the dramatic power and the lyric beauty of her work.

Today the Once-In-A-Season Sale of W. B. Corsets

At $1.00 Regularly $1.50 At $1.50 Regularly $2.50

This is the once-in-a-season time that the W. B. corset people, through their agents in various cities, lower the prices on two of their seasons' successful models.

It seems that they take a certain quantity of the materials used in higher-priced corsets and make it into corsets that they allow price-concessions on to their agents.

When this quantity is used up—that ends it. Our share was fifteen dozen—ten dozen to sell at $1.00, five dozen to sell at $1.50.

They are just what we announce above—$1.50 and $2.50 corsets.

16 Dozen $2.25 Crepe de Chine Blouses to sell at $1.50

A windfall! We have just unpacked sixteen dozen all-silk crepe de chine blouses that under ordinary circumstances we would have to sell at $2.25—but as it is, we shall sell them at $1.50.

The crepe de chine is an excellent quality—its flesh and white.

Two styles—one with clusters of tiny tucks down the front, the other with hemstitching down the front. High-low collars, three-quarter sleeves.

We have gathered great stocks—we have, through frequent trips to New York, kept varieties wonderfully complete—so that now when we set to the clearing out, we've the styles and the varieties that will interest women.

So it's yours to save in this sale—to save richly and substantially the while you enjoy the rare sensation of selecting a suit to your precise liking.

Here, the scale of reductions:

$12.50 For $17.85, $21.75 to $25.00 Suits $15.00 For $25, $30.00 to $35.00 Suits $20.00 For $35, $37.50 to $45.00 Suits $25.00 For $45, $50.00 to $60 Suits

It seems that every smart and accepted style that this season has brought out finds representation in this collection of literally hundreds of suits—belted styles, plain styles, military styles—in gabardines, in serges, in men's-wear fabrics, in English checks. Choose the color you like—black, navy, Belgian blue, sand, putty—any shade. Sizes for large women, sizes for misses and all the in-betweens—a sale without a drawback. A Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. clearaway of the veriest sort.

NEW ROUTE URGED ATLANTA TO MACON

Advocates of Road Running Through Clayton, Henry, Spalding, Pike, Monroe and Bibb Visit Atlanta.

Advocates of still another route between Atlanta and Macon for the Dixie highway visited Atlanta yesterday for the purpose of conferring with Clark Howell, one of the two commissioners for Georgia for the highway. They were Hon. A. C. Blacklock and E. Q. Hutchison, both of Jonesboro.

They brought with them assurance that if the route they represent, which runs through Clayton, Spalding, Henry, Pike, Monroe and Bibb counties, is selected, that it will be graded and surfaced from one end to the other and it will be practically a boulevard all the way from Atlanta to Macon.

The road from Atlanta, via Jonesboro to Griffin, is already graded every foot of the way," declared Mr. Blacklock, "and there is not a bridge nor a ford for the whole distance, with only two points at which the road crosses the railroad tracks. The route proposed practically the entire distance between the tracks of the Central railroad for the purpose of shortening the route. Atlanta is four miles closer to Macon by this road than it is by the railroad."

"No one is this route in splendid shape, with the guarantee of the various counties through which it goes that it will be kept in perfect condition, but an added value is the fact that it runs through such a thickly populated section, and that there are so many small towns, along this route. There is not a stretch of the road two hundred yards long upon which there is not one or more houses."

The towns between Atlanta and Macon are East Point, Haverhill, Central Park, Morrow, Jonesboro, Daley, Hampton, Sunny Side, Pomona and Experimental Station. All of these towns are enthusiastic over securing the highway and most of them will have delegations at the meeting to be held at Griffin Monday in the interest of securing this link of the Dixie highway for their section.

"Gauges and telephone and telegraph stations are easily obtainable at short distances all along the route. The fact that the route runs through the center of the ground where the backbone of Jonesboro was fought during the war, and that a large number of Confederate and Federal soldiers are buried in the Jonesboro cemetery, was pointed out by Mr. Hutchison as adding attractiveness to the route."

Mr. Blacklock and Hutchison left Atlanta Friday afternoon for the arrangements for the meeting at Griffin.

THREE BURGLARIES REPORTED TO POLICE

Intruder Makes Hurried "Get-away" When Young Lady Gets a Shotgun.

Three burglaries were reported to the police this morning about 1 o'clock, one from the grocery store of R. A. Broyles, 163 Luckie street, which has been burglarized three times during the past three months. A big lot of groceries was taken but the actual loss could not be learned last night.

While Miss Katie Gilbert, a school teacher, 225 East Georgia avenue, sat up late working on her monthly school reports, she looked up from her work to see a negro in the dining room, she called her small brother and went with him across the street to call the police. In the meantime, her sister, Miss Virginia Gilbert, procured a shotgun and started after the negro. He made his escape through a back door, without getting any valuables.

The family of E. Hutchinson, 35 Broyles street, was awakened by the smashing of a glass window in the kitchen and on investigation it was found that a burglar had entered and gotten away with several articles. The police found the tracks leading from the rear of the house. Chief Beavers Friday night that a number of residences were burglarized Thursday on the north side, while occupants were attending grand opera, but refused to give out any details about them.

VAST INCREASE AHEAD FOR AMERICAN TRADE

Redfield Thinks American States May Take First Place in World's Commerce.

Philadelphia, April 30.—How best to take advantage of opportunities for foreign trade expansion after the war is concluded, and how to find work for the unemployed until the full measure of prosperity is upon the United States, were questions discussed today at the annual meeting of the American Association of Political and Social Science. Secretary Redfield saw a vast increase in the nation's foreign commerce. So vast that he thought no one would be surprised if the United States should take second if not first place, in the world's commerce.

Palm Beach Suits

When buying Palm Beach suits it is well to bear in mind that the genuine has the label securely sewed in the collar of the coat.

Other fabrics, made in imitation, will everywhere be much in evidence, but like all imitations they do not contain the intrinsic worth of the original fabric.

Likewise, in the construction, even of the genuine cloth, such latitude is offered manufacturers whose interests are only in the selling that one is apt to obtain unsatisfactory results unless procured from stores in whom you can place the utmost dependence.

You will see in our windows a display of the popular fabrics and the newest models to be had in the various hot-weather fabrics. Our garments are all constructed by makers whose interests are identical with your own. Every detail, including making, shrinking and styling, has been given the greatest possible care.

escape. Its days are numbered; it will at last be driven from these communities which now least suspect it. If its departure is retarded, it must be ascribed largely to the indifference of prejudiced sects who take no thought of human tendencies and characteristics that must be dealt with, unless they wish to write failure upon their careers.

Prohibition is bringing this problem closely home to the states of this country. It has taken the drink and closed the saloon too often without thought of the substitute which effective prohibition demands.

We do not mean to say that provision of meeting places and public playgrounds will make possible the immediate and effective enforcement of prohibition laws, but there isn't any question whatever that it will strengthen them.

Russia is proceeding upon the right line. She has set an example which the true temperance leaders of this country will do well to follow. In a country where the strict enforcement of prohibition laws is a large measure, upon public sentiment, the substitute for the saloon will be found even more essential than where law is maintained through fear inspired by automatic rigidity.

JOHN BUNNY, JOYMAKER. John Bunny, of the movies, will not have a statue in any hall of immortals. He does not need one there, in the half-lights that glimmer on the great through painted windows; but he will live in his world-wide fame, through his Joyous work, brightened and blessed by three others.

He was the herald of joy and a good time in three lives that to his hour's trouble saw him laugh life's little troubles away. He was the one film hero of worldwide, enduring fame, and his death brings regret to his world-admirers everywhere.

He did not mock his voice, but his smile spoke to them and won and held all hearts; and it will not seem now as if he has left them; they marry him and still with them, smiling on a glad world of old.

PRISONERS AS TEACHERS. Commenting on the declaration of a San Francisco millionaire, who was recently released from the Atlanta federal penitentiary after serving a sixteen months' sentence, that the time spent in prison had been the most useful of his career, The New York Evening World says:

"The effects of jail as a punishment are best covered in the lives of its beneficiaries. A retreat often comes out strongly in the many a rich man who goes to prison for the first time in his life and comes out a wiser man than he was when he went in, and a more successful one than he was when he came out."

The testimony of the millionaire-prisoner to whom the above has reference, as given in The Constitution at the time, was that the period had really been the happiest of his life, with the opportunity to give him for doing good for others. And now The Washington Post cites a similar instance in the life of a man who was sentenced to twenty years in prison, and there found "the silver lining of his cloud of woe."

WHAT TIME TELLS. The more they dig in the ruins of Time the more the new world learns of the extent to which the ancients of the earth antedated us in many inventions now called "new."

The archaeologist have recently discovered ancient tools, weapons, and other articles, which were used by the ancients of the earth antedated us in many inventions now called "new."

Old tablets show that a farmer of Babylon "advertised" for a remedy to rid his fields of caterpillars, and successfully applied it, in giving grateful testimonials therefor, and in every case the records of the people's daily life show the same hopes and aspirations that move the world today.

There was a "conscience fund" in that far time, and candidates for office, though not as numerous then as now, doubtless ran for exercise and glory, and because they needed the office in their business. There were "rainbow-chasers," who saw the gold at the rainbow's end and ran a race for it.

Italy would save time and relieve that world-wide of suspense by getting an expert accountant to count the cost for her.

So far as I am personally concerned, a circus need never come back to town. I don't care if I never see another prize fight or a performance of a circus, I don't care if I never see another prize fight or a performance of a circus, I don't care if I never see another prize fight or a performance of a circus.

I am satisfied with the fact that I have seen a grand opera from the ferch above the auditorium stage.
