

UNWELCOME WEDDING GUESTS

Coal holes are obsolete in these days of wide skirts.

Striped Awning the Magnet That Modern Peeping-Tom and the Feminine Ubiquitous Unwelcome Guest Cannot Resist.

JUNE—magic month of blossoms, of dreams, fulfilled and yet to be, is upon us and with it comes the ever lovely bride and the reglighted bridegroom, the not always lovely wedding and the wholly unlovely "Wedding Fan."

Not your sweet-scented, delicate bit of lace and ivory, dangling from the arm of the bride, or in a moment of fluttering consciousness, serving to shield her blushes from a too-curious world. Oh, dear no! Nothing of the sort!

The "Wedding Fan" is a pest, an unmitigated, unadorned nuisance, from the standpoint of those on the "inside," at least, a public peeping-tom, a beast of prey, a vulgar pushing person to whom the sight of a striped awning outside the portals of a city church is the signal for commencement of his machinations. Aye, more! He needs no striped cases, no flash of scarlet velvet reaching across the pavement to start him on his journey of impertinence. Two lines in the penny paper of a June morning, and presto! the germ is alive, crying for quick liberation.

The marriage of Miss Claribel Astor Vanderbilt, only daughter of Townsend DeLancy Vanderbilt, to Mortimer Spurten Duvvill Tuxedo, will be solemnized at the Fifth Avenue Church of the Apostles on Wednesday next at 4 o'clock.

This is sufficient to awaken the germ in the "Wedding Fan" and cause it to demand to be taken out for a little exercise. Mostly it is a female germ, keen with the heritage of Pandora, for insinuating itself into forbidden places.

Sex curiosity, desire to borrow a thrill from the joyous exaltation of the young bride, a yearning to gaze on the trappings of a world in which she plays no part, to discern wherein lies the difference between her Eighth ave. "steady" and the titled fiancee of the Fifth ave. heiress, are some motives. And the "fibre the contract" parties, the keener the appetite of the "umble fan or fancee, for a "nose-in" at the show.

"Nose-in," "nose-in," any-way-to-get-in, is the motto of your chronic wedding "bug," to whom invitations are never counted among the requisites of sight-seeing in High Society. The fashionable church wedding, calling for "cards of admittance," has a lure all its own to one of these creatures of the polished brass front crew.

Imperturbable, rebut-proof, case-hardened against mere insults from minions, these determined devotees of Hymeneus, who by no other means than plain larceny, could possibly put their thumbprints on the precious, engraved (they feel it to see) pasteboard, yet somehow find their devious way, trusting to miracle or to for an open-sesame, past the police, past the ushers, up the aisle curiously for all doings of the "beau monde," seems congenial and all ages, they are on the "qui vive" at the first notice of any function, whether wedding or funeral. These are the morbidly curious, as omnipresent as the innocent bystanders, always to be found, an anticipatory foot across the "dead line."

Sometimes it is the little dreammaker and sometimes e'en to the sacrosanct precincts of the "family pew."

At a Fifth ave. wedding a fortnight since, a handsome, dignified "grand dame" and her pretty "daughter," both impeccably attired, were halted at the church door on their failure to produce the proper passports.

The "mother's" first cue was protest at not understanding and with a supercilious eyebrow at the delay, swept on toward the center aisle. Usher No. 2 tapped her on the arm, meaning "Come across, or right-about-face." Did she weep? Oh, none of such!

Instead a great indignation inspired her and "daughter" added her pretty protest, not a bit overdone. Finally when the old dear found her progress permanently impeded, she condescended to open her fandangly opera bag and search for those "really quite unnecessary" cards.

Daughter joined in the quest and both exchanged ostentatious glances of puzzled (sic) dismay when the cards remained "hid out."

"Why, mother dear, I saw them in the limousine," said "daughter," but the ushers had warned before—"no card, no see."

By this time groups of bidden guests, holding created credentials, who had been pouring forth from motors, were trooping at the mouth.

"Why, I went to school with her mother," protested the "grand dame" as the bride's party went in but a few feet away. "Little Gladys here is such a friend of the groom's, surely we can have seats without those stupid cards."

Surely they couldn't! The suspicious ushers, who possessed the instincts of headquarters detectives, with quiet but firm pressure on the shoulder, escorted those who had attempted to "bore in" to the vestibule, where the angry views of both became audible and culminated in a tirade of Bovey blasphemy, at the ushers, the bride, her parents and grandparents, the church and all future functions of the "Upper Ten."

"Can you beat it?" asked the ushers. "From all walks of life come the 'Wedding Fans.' With some, insatiable

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

MRS. ALICE DUBER MILLER.
Who composes an equally important place in society, in suffrage and in the writing of melodious or frivolous lyrics and songs. "The Women People" given the feminist cause a weapon of rhythmic humor.

Are Women People? The author of this collection of suffrage rhymes, is a popular society woman, she is the author of "The Modern Quaker," "Calderon's Prisoner," "Less Than Kin," "Blue Arch," etc. The question is asked, "Have suffragettes a sense of humor?" To quote from a letter, "Only two days before the writing of this latter the writer noticed in a New York paper of considerable reputation a cartoon in which the characteristic suffragette was depicted as a battle as of an old woman, with a white waist, grimy spectacles and a face like a nut." The cartoonist, she says, are humorous as well as the humorists who try to do so numerous wrong, who, from the standpoint of the modern woman, make such a dismal failure.

Introduction.
Father, what is a legislature? A representative body elected by the people of the state.
Are women people?
No, my sons, criminals, lunatics and women are not people.
Do legislators legislate for nothing?
Oh, no, they are paid a salary.
By whom?
By the people.
Are women people?
Of course, my son, just as much as men are.

Why We Oppose Schools for Children.
Because education is a burden, not a right.
Because not one-tenth of a per cent of the children of this country are demanded education.
Because if we educated we should have to behave as if we were a nation of idiots.
Because it would make denunciation of parents and children a matter of the home life of a parent, who would be more ignorant than his (or her) child.
Because we believe in the indirect education of the theater, the baseball game and the moving picture.

The Protected Sex.
With apologies to James Wainwright, Riley.
There, little girl, don't read,
You are fond of your books, I know,
But Brother might moan
If he had no hours to be read.
Of getting ahead of you,
I shall for a boy who cannot lead.
There, little girl, don't read.

How It Feels to Be the Husband of a Suffragette. By Him. The author, a well-known writer, has written in a very attractive illustrated by Maxton Preston. Among the interesting questions asked by Him is "Does making the husband happier or unhappier to have the matter go out for suffrage? Does she demand too much time to the cause?"

One husband says that it's more fun—and a whole lot more inspiration—being a suffragette wife, and then he has very interestingly tells why. Even the unknown author says that he, too, has been asked if women should vote, and before he had made his remarks sufficiently clear and intelligible, she interrupted by asking, "Are women people?" To which he very candidly replied, "I believe they must be, or they wouldn't ask the way they do."
The author says that he has a happy home and a suffragette wife and that there are lots of fun in it.

THE ALLIGATOR AND ITS ALLIES.
If you are interested in the alligator, this volume will be of great interest to you. The author, A. M. Deane, professor of zoology in West Virginia University, has written an interesting, scientific book, has written a popular, and authoritative, and instructive book, describing in detail the biology, anatomy, and the development of the alligator, with short quotations from Herodotus.
There is a chapter on the muscular system, written by a celebrated biologist, while the author has not verified the description. It is nevertheless interesting.
The author explains something of the nervous system, as well as quoting from other writers, and at the end of the book devotes some time to the development of the American alligator.
There are sixty-five figures and twenty-eight plates.
The book is illustrated by a bibliography and an index. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London.)

THE SORROWS OF BELSHAM. By Mr. Leitch. Mr. Leitch, author of "Anathema," has written a play in six acts, translated by Mrs. Leitch, which has attracted much attention, for this great Russian writer has written, and deeply of the sorrows of Belsham. He is a writer of great sympathy and it is with profound sadness that he tells of the sufferings in Russia as a result of this terrible war. He says that German militarism and German influences are responsible for the sorrows of the smaller nations.
The introduction he says: "It is necessary for all to understand that the end of Jewish suffering is the beginning of our self respect, without which Russia cannot live. The dark days of the war will pass and the German barbarism of today will once more become the cultured Germans whose voice will again be heard throughout the world. And it is essential that neither they nor any other voice should call us loudly Russian barbarians."
It is said that the hero of the drama is intended to be Macerlind and that one of the other characters is King Albert, which adds to the impressiveness of the drama.
It is to be hoped that this little volume of sorrow will be widely read and that it will have the power to impress upon all nationalities the horrors of war. (The Macmillan Company.)

FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER. By Sarah J. Macleod. Instructor in Domestic Science, School of Household Science and Arts, Pratt Institute. This book is very small and yet it should be in every housekeeper's hands, for it contains the results of experiments in laboratories of the application of science to household problems, tells the housekeeper how to battle with dirt and save time and energy. Among the chapters are: "Importance and cost of cleanliness," which is the first chapter and perhaps the most important—an interesting paragraph is as follows: "The very fact that people are willing to live in dirty, filthy surroundings shows that they lack some important factor in their mind. It is this lack of standard of cleanliness may be due to ignorance or to sheer laziness and lack of thought."
Another paragraph Mrs. Ellen H. Richards says: "The application of science to the problems of the home is the chief aim of this book. The cost of Cleanliness is said to be 'Cleanliness costs pennies and dirt costs dollars.'"
"Cleanliness," she says, "is the key to health and happiness. It takes one-quarter as much as is paid for rent, and that non-healthy sanitary cleanliness there will be required to save equal to money. It costs one-half as much as is paid for rent, and it is one-quarter of the whole income. There are three 'A's'—Dust, darkness and dampness—that the housekeeper should never forget, for in summer they offer all that is necessary for the growth of dangerous dirt or bacteria. One of the most interesting subjects in this little volume is "The Kitchen," "Ventilation," "How to Sweep, Dust and Clean a Room," "Household Insects and Fleas," "The General Care of Clothing," etc. (Harper & Brothers, Publishers, New York.)

THE "MISS PAT" SERIES.
Miss Pat and Her Sisters is the first of a new series of exciting stories for girls by Pemberton Clapham. The "Table of Contents" alone will prove to all girls that they are going to read something new from the time they arrived at their new home, their first callers, the new library, Patricia, the new school, the new lady, Miss Pat's temptation, Edward Francis appears and the open road.

Miss Pat at school is the second volume and describes a winter in Philadelphia, where she and her sisters go to cast their lot with the fortunes of the art students. Judith goes to the art school and she is in going to an author's studio. The next volume will tell you of the European tour they pursue their several ambitions. The three sisters where they go to where the old will enjoy, renewing old friends and making new ones in visiting this new series. (The John C. Winston Company, Philadelphia.)

How many hours of sleep do we really need?" and they are answered in a most satisfactory manner, telling the causes and the most approved modern methods of treatment. (Little, Brown & Co., Boston.)

Keat Serek and the War. A tale of transformations. It is full of the new spirit which seems to have come over the men and women of England. The author, Keat Serek, says that "those who like the hero, have borne the hardships of the trenches, and those who like the heroine, have felt the heart wrench of the loss of a loved one. The book is a most interesting and valuable study of the scope and importance of the war, and is a most valuable contribution to the real reason, the fundamental causes, and the most approved modern methods of treatment. How Five Chicago Teachers Solved the Problem of Hot Lunches. (From Woman's Home Companion.) Since the introduction of the hot lunching luncheon at noon is well recognized, the only problem is how to get it. Five teachers in a suburban school near Chicago solved the problem.

Instead of bothering with a luncheon every day, each teacher furnished the entire luncheon for five, one certain day in the week, and the mothers rejoiced. "One hot dish, often more, was brought in the basket. The primary teacher, who was free at 1:30 o'clock, immediately went to the kitchen, unpacked the basket and set the man of creature comforts on a table, beans on the shelf of the furnace, where the food would be piping hot when needed. Steak was often broiled, and always there was a hot drink. An old stove was used when there was no gas, and the food was cooked on her own plate, cup and saucer, and the dishes and fork, which were washed in a few moments and left in a sink to be used for the next day. The arrangement was most satisfactory. The mothers were free to do their morning meal, eaten beside a hot table, and the children were free from the worry of hot lunches except one day in the week.

Line Medication in Tuberculosis. In the N. Y. Medical Record of December 2, 1914, Dr. John North, of Toledo, says: "The most prominent cause of tuberculosis is the lack of calcium in the diet. In tuberculosis there is a deficiency of calcium. Most of the food we eat contains enough lime." In such cases we must resort to line medication.
Bekman's alternative should be given a trial in such cases, because it contains the chief ingredients in calcium (lime) in such form that it combines with other foods so as to be easily assimilated by the average person.
When its use is combined with proper food, rest and exercise, it will prove beneficial in all cases of tuberculosis. It is a powerful drug, so it calls for a few precautions. It is not to be taken with other drugs, or in cases of kidney trouble. It is not to be taken with other drugs, or in cases of kidney trouble. Militia Draws Crowd at Slaton Home; 26 Prisoners Now Held in County Jail

Men Under Arrest Deny They Were Violating Any Law, Offering Varied Excuses for Their Presence Near the Governor's Residence at an Early Hour Saturday Morning.

TWO VOLLEYS FIRED BY STATE GUARDSMEN, DECLARE PRISONERS

Militia Claim Someone in Crowd Fired Six Times at Soldier Stationed in Rear of Governor's Home—No One Injured—Riot Guns Sought by a Crowd.

After making an unsuccessful effort shortly after midnight Saturday morning to secure fifteen riot guns, which are kept for protection at the Hemphill avenue police station, a crowd of 200 men marched to the country home of former Governor John M. Slaton, near Buckhead. Here they were met by a state militia and in the encounter that followed twenty-six men, alleged members of the mob, were placed under arrest.

They are now at the Fulton county jail, but no charge has yet been docked against them. The prisoners range in age from 18 to 43. They give various reasons for their presence near the home of the governor.

EXCHANGE OF SHOTS.

The militiamen claim, it is understood, that some one fired six shots at a guard posted in the rear of the Slaton home and within a few minutes thereafter a volley was fired in return.

Following these shots, which are said to have been fired about 1 o'clock Saturday morning, the militia rushed two battalions into the niches of woods, and immediately forced them to retreat by firing volleys into the darkness.

No one was hurt on either side. The militiamen immediately were ordered to begin making arrests of anyone in the neighborhood of the Slaton residence.

CAPTURED NEAR HOME

All the twenty-six prisoners were captured within a short radius of the Slaton home. The prisoners state that they were taken from the neighborhood of the Slaton home, and that a number of "machine" guns and other arms were recovered by the militia in the niches of woods directly in rear of the Slaton home.

The twenty-six were carried by the militia to the niches of woods near the Slaton home, where they were held until 10 o'clock Saturday morning, when they were transported in a military car to Atlanta under guard of a militia detachment and county police, and incarcerated in the Fulton county jail.

Some prisoners say that Governor Slaton twice came out of his residence after daylight to look them over, the first time about 8 o'clock and the second time thirty minutes later. Ex-Governor Slaton did not speak a word to any of the prisoners, but he was seen where the crowd was held.

Some of the prisoners now incarcerated in the Tower will tell for what purpose they were in the neighborhood. Some of the prisoners declare that they had been fishing at the Slaton home. One of them, Herbert Zaffarano, aged 23, of 1115 Olive street, said that he was returning to the city when arrested. All the prisoners declare that they were not arrested together, but that they were arrested over a wide range of territory surrounding the Slaton residence, and that they were arrested throughout a period of one hour.

One prisoner says he was carrying cattle from some farmers in the neighborhood, when the militia stopped his cart and arrested both himself and chauffeur.

NAME OF PRISONERS.

The names of the prisoners are as follows: C. C. Voyles, age 34, of 1115 Olive street; J. E. Brown, age 31, of 1115 Olive street; both metal sheet workers; T. M. York, age 23, and Aaron Smith, age 19, real estate dealers, both offices in the Austell building; A. E. White, age 29, of 1115 Olive street; age 29, both of 187 Fordway street; R. E. Andrews, age 17, of Chattanooga; O. E. E. Brown, age 21, of 1115 Olive street; Herbert Zaffarano, age 23, of 1115 Olive street; D. P. Meadows, age 23, 1115 Olive street; J. E. Smith, age 20, address street; R. E. Mitchell, age 19, and Claude Williams, age 21, both of 1115 Olive street; Walter Yelcher, age 22, Howell Mill road; M. L. Clamor of the Mob Does Not Represent State, Says Slaton

Will Exalt Georgia Wherever He Goes, Former Governor Asserts at Rotary Banquet to Gov. Harris.

Macon, which boasts of being "the heart of Georgia," Saturday, through the Macon Rotary club, joined hands with Atlanta in paying tribute to the great citizen of Georgia—Governor Nat E. Harris, forty years one of the Central City's leading citizens.

At the banquet, the club that got behind the movement to bring more than 1,000 central Georgia citizens to Atlanta and participate in the inauguration ceremony of one of their members, and when the great seal of state was delivered to the new governor on Saturday, the Macon multitude cheered lustily and taking charge of the new seal, escorted it to the Hotel Anley for an elaborate Rotary luncheon in his honor.

Many of the most prominent men of Georgia were around the banquet table, and among them were former Governor John M. Slaton, President Ogden Persons, of the Georgia senate; speaker W. H. Burwell, of the house of representatives; United States Senator M. L. Brittain, Adjutant General J. Van Holt Nash, Dr. W. N. Alsworth, pastor of the Malberry Methodist church, of Macon; Mayor Bridges Smith of Macon; State Treasurer W. J. Speer, and Dr. M. Ashby Jones, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Augusta.

First in Toastmaster. With President Malcolm Jones, of the Macon Rotary club, presiding, toastmaster, several short speeches were made, among the speakers being ex-Governor Slaton, Governor Harris, Dr. Ashby Jones, Senator Smith and Governor Harris.

Governor Harris had always shown a great interest in the plan of procedure of the Rotary club in having each member rise and answer to roll call, stating his name and occupation, and this program was carried out at the luncheon Saturday.

After the roll call, Governor Harris said: "My name is Nathaniel E. Harris, and my name is the name of the two years my business will be to the governor of Georgia."

"My name is John M. Slaton, I am a resident of Georgia, and my occupation is that of a lawyer and politician," said Governor Slaton, when his name was called.

Mayor Bridges Smith, of Macon, was his life-long friend, said Governor Harris, and always, and that he was his life-long friend.

That misguided and irresponsible crowd which sought the great seal of state toward your home," said Governor Harris, "is not a representative of the people of Georgia, but only when all the people of Georgia are represented."

Addressing Governor Harris and all those in the hall, Governor Harris said: "I am a resident of Georgia, and my occupation is that of a lawyer and politician."

Presented John Slaton. In the course of his remarks, Dr. Ashby Jones, "beloved ex-governor of Georgia," said that he was glad to see Governor Harris at the banquet, and that he was glad to see Governor Harris at the banquet.

Mr. Merchant, your business needs help. You can't expect it to be self-starting and self-sustaining. You must give it some help from time to time.

The Constitution reaches the people who have money and power. It is not for the poor and the weak. It is for the strong and the rich.

GREAT CROWD SEES HARRIS AS GOV. OF STATE

Presiding Officer Has Trouble Quietening the Gallery as Retiring Governor Slaton Arises to Deliver Great Seal of State.

PLAIN CLOTHES MEN SURROUND GOV. SLATON

Following Inauguration at Capitol Slaton and Harris Go to Ansley Hotel to Attend Rotary Luncheon.

New Governor Welcomed. Governor Nat Harris and his family occupied the executive mansion Saturday night and the first incident after their arrival there was a splendid welcome to Governor Harris on the part of both Atlanta and Macon people.

Early next night the Macon Drum corps, accompanied by many Macon citizens, visited the executive mansion and gave the governor a welcome. They were joined by hundreds of Atlantans until the crowd numbered about 1,000 people, who demanded a speech.

Governor Harris expressed his appreciation and declared that he was particularly glad to see so many Atlantans were in the crowd. "There is no difference between Atlanta and Macon," said Governor Harris. "We are all Georgians."

The shuttle bus weaving Atlanta and Macon together. Governor Harris also expressed his appreciation of the magnificent manner in which Atlanta greeted him, and the thousands of Maconites who attended the inauguration.

Judge Nat E. Harris, of Macon, was inaugurated governor of Georgia with impressive ceremonies yesterday afternoon at the state capitol building in the presence of the house and senate in joint session, statehouse officials and many prominent visitors.

This demonstration was repeated at noon in the hall of representatives, attended for an ex-governor Slaton left the statehouse, surrounded by a heavy body guard, to take his departure.

The impressive ceremonies incident to the inauguration of Governor Harris began yesterday morning shortly after 10 o'clock, when a joint committee from the house and the senate of the general assembly called at the Piedmont hotel and escorted the governor and his family to the Terminal station to board the train which brought to Atlanta the Second regiment Georgia National Guard, the Macon Drum and Bugle Corps, and the Georgia State band.

The committee which accompanied Governor Harris to the Terminal station was composed of Representative J. B. Fowler of Bibb, Walter P. Anderson of Fulton, and H. J. Polk of the twenty-third and N. L. Gillis of the sixteenth.

Proceeded Forward. The Macon special train arrived at 10:30 o'clock, and the Macon delegation, with its various organizations, began a procession in front of the Terminal to escort Governor Harris to the capitol. The procession itself was escorted by a squadron of mounted police, the Fifth regiment and the Governor's Horse Guards, of Atlanta. With bearing the procession marched down Mitchell street to Whitehall, northward up Whitehall to Hunter and thence to the capitol.

On Washington street, in front of the capitol, the militia organizations, Governor Harris was escorted into the building.

Governor Harris went to the office of Governor Slaton, where the retiring governor and the governor-elect were seated. The retiring governor, Slaton, and the governor-elect, Harris, were seated at a table with many other prominent visitors, among them were Mrs. Slaton and Mrs. Harris, ex-Governor Joseph Brown and Mrs. Brown.

Members of both houses and other specially invited parties were admitted to the floor of the house and had seats in the galleries in front of the rostrum. The gallery was filled with people.

The Situation on the Eastern Front!

BATTLE CONTINUES WESTER FRONT WITHOUT DECISION

Both Sides Have Lost Heavily, But Russians Seem to Have Temporarily Halted the Teutonic Advance.

CLAIMS OF VICTORY MADE BY THE RUSSIANS

It Is Said All Attempts of Teutons to Gain Foothold on the Right Bank of the Dniester Have Been Foiled—Desperate Battles Seem to Be Imminent.

London, June 26.—The battle of the Dniester, which will decide the fate of the left wing of the Russian army in Galicia, swings back and forth along the river in a series of fit and start results. The Russians have thrown considerable reinforcements into this area, but whether they are planning a major offensive, or are merely fighting stubbornly, preparatory to another retreat, is uncertain.

Both sides have lost heavily, General von Linsing's right flank and center having been badly cut up when the Russians threw the Austro-Germans back across the river.

RUSSIAN LINES FORTIFIED.

The Russians have been fortifying their lines from the river to the Dniester front, and with the Austro-German line of communication lengthening daily, the task of forcing the Russians eastward becomes more and more formidable. Although Berlin claims that the Teutonic allies have been fighting about the vicinity of the Dniester, all attempts of the Teutons to gain a foothold on the north bank of the river having been frustrated with heavy losses to the attacking troops.

The latest German official statement admits that the Russian forces still hold the right bank near Halicz, this being coupled with the statement that General von Linsing's troops are engaged in their attacks to effect a crossing and that fighting continues between the Dniester and the district west of the river.

HARD FIGHTING PREDICTED.

According to the Russian belief, desperate battles are likely soon to be fought in the vicinity of the Dniester, where it is declared the Germans have been concentrating. Accounts of German military activity in Russian Poland come at the same time as reports that many big guns from Essen, Germany, are being shipped to that region, possibly in preparation for another drive at Warsaw.

Pronounced German success seemingly has occurred, not far from the East Prussian border, the Germans claiming the capture by storm of a Polish town north of Przemysl, and the Russians admitting a reverse in that region through superior artillery fire by the Germans.

AUSTRIANS REPULSED, RUSSIANS CLAIM.

Vienna, June 26.—(AP)—The official communication from Vienna, Austria, says that the Austro-Germans repulsed the Russians near the town of Przemysl.

Weather Propects FAIR.

HUERTA ADHERENTS RUSHING TO BORDER TO INVADE MEXICO

Washington Hears That a New Revolutionary Movement Will Be Started in the War-Riven Republic.

GEN. HUERTA REPORTED AMONG THOSE IN PARTY

This Report, However, Lacks Confirmation—Villa and Carranza Factions Excited by the News—Carranza Army Defeated Near Mexico City.

Washington, June 26.—Official news of a severe defeat of the Carranza forces advanced on Mexico City was quite overshadowed in interest today by announcements from both the Carranza and Villa agencies here that a large party of Huerta adherents, former military commanders and legislators, were en route to El Paso, presumably with the intention of starting a new military movement.

The Villa agency's announcement, communicated to the state department, said it had a report, which, however, was not positive, that Victoriano Huerta was among those in the party.

The Carranza agency, in a statement, charged that General Felipe Angeles, Villa's chief lieutenant, now in New York, had been the instigator of the movement.

The Carranza and Villa agencies have agreed in their public announcements, probably never before since they were established, that the fact that both agencies in Washington, D. C., are in the city.

Huerta Adherents on the Way. Enrique Alvarez, ex-confederate agent in Washington of General Villa, has returned the following statement: "The confidential agency has reported that a large party of Huerta adherents, former military commanders and legislators, were en route to El Paso, presumably with the intention of starting a new military movement."

Pretty Girl Tells Story of Troubles With Her "Steady"

Petite Brunette Had Him Arrested on Charge of Allowing Another Girl to Wear Her Ring.

Miss Alvin Silvey, a petite brunette, who very fair to look upon, appeared in the police court Saturday afternoon to testify against L. W. Doster, a young man who has been her "steady."

Miss Silvey, who lives at 164 South Prior street, had allowed the young man to wear her ring and he committed the awful offense of letting another girl wear it, she says.

When she faced the young man in court and saw that he had the ring ready to return to her, Miss Silvey arrested and begged the recorder not to punish him.

"But where does the city come in?" Recorder Johnson wanted to know. "Here you have put the police to all this trouble and taken the time of the court. No, no, Miss Alvin, we can't do business that way."

NEGRO KILLS WOMAN AND HANGS HIMSELF

Butler, After Struggle, Shoots Miss Hattie Watson in Home of Brother-in-Law.

Philadelphia, June 26.—Miss Hattie M. Watson, sister-in-law of Frederick H. Hastings, a well-to-do resident of Devon, a suburb, was shot dead by a negro butler at the Hastings home today, after which the servant committed suicide. An investigation by police authorities failed to reveal a motive for the crime and a coroner's jury rendered a verdict that the butler, Jerry Thomas, had killed the woman and ended his own life while insane.

The negro shot Miss Watson during a struggle. Thomas, who is also employed in the Hastings home, came upon the pair as they were struggling in the hallway of the first floor of the house. Before the butler's wife could interfere he shot Miss Watson, dragged her body to a porch and then ran from the place. Later Thomas' body was found hanging in a nearby barn with a bullet in the head.

Miss Watson, who was formerly of Northampton, Mass., was about 46 years old, and had been making her home with her brother-in-law and sister for several years. She was known to be of a quiet disposition and not given to quarreling with the servants, according to relatives. One theory advanced as the cause for the murder was that Miss Watson may have reproved the butler for something he had not done properly.

Mr. and Mrs. Hastings, who were away from home when the shooting occurred, said that the butler was of a quiet disposition, and had never caused the family any trouble.

1,000 IMPORTERS PROTEST BLOCKADE BY GREAT BRITAIN

American Business Men Present Petition to State Department Asking That Neutral Rights Be Respected.

DEMAND RIGHT TO SHIP NON-CONTRABAND GOODS

Through Neutral Countries To or From Germany. They Also Demand American-Owned Merchandise Now Held Up in Germany.

Washington, June 26.—Pressure of a formal and organized character was exerted today on the United States government to secure from Great Britain a modification of the embargo on all commercial intercourse between Germany and neutral countries.

Twenty members of a committee appointed by more than 1,000 American importers laid before Secretary Lansing and other state department officials a modification of the embargo on all commercial intercourse between Germany and neutral countries.

The petitioners pleaded for an uninterrupted supply of American-owned merchandise, whether the same has been paid for, contracted for, or may be contracted for, and the unrestricted right to ship non-contraband goods through neutral countries to or from Germany.

In a statement issued by the importers after their conference, it was expressed a determination on the part of both the president and himself to do all in their power to aid the importers in securing the rights to which they are entitled under the laws of the United States and by treaty obligations.

The effect of today's conference will be apparent for several days. Secretary Lansing took the facts presented by the importers into consideration and will communicate with President Wilson.

Preparing Note to Britain. It has already been announced that the state department, for many weeks, has been preparing further representations to Great Britain asking for a modification of the so-called blockade. The president, however, has been unwilling to complicate the situation while the delicate negotiations with Germany were in progress.

There is a note that should be sent to Great Britain simultaneously with the German negotiations to emphasize the intention of the United States to defend neutral rights, whether by the allies or Germany. Mr. Wilson has told friends that he has been satisfied of the wisdom of sending a note to Great Britain at Washington, D. C., on June 26.

High Scholastic Honors Won by Korean at Emory

Oxford, Ga., June 26.—(Special.)—One of the most remarkable young men in the recent class of forty-one who graduated from Emory in Youtak Kim, of Korea. Mr. Kim was one of the eight members of the class to make a speaker's place at commencement, and was awarded the senior orator's medal. His theme was "America the Hope of the World." Ten years ago, in Honolulu, Youtak, a lad of 16, was often hungry because he did not know how to ask for something to eat, or when meals were announced. On commencement day, at Emory, practically every word of his splendidly delivered oration was understood by a large and appreciative audience.

Mr. Kim was born in Pyung Yang, Korea, some twenty-five years ago. When he was 15 years old he came with his father, Rev. Y. S. Kim, to the Hawaiian Islands. There, for two years, he was a student in Mills Institute, beginning in the primary department. He was graduated from Waleka, 1911, and entered the sophomore class at Emory that fall. In addition to completing the required course for the P. S. degree, he will receive senior speaker's place, Mr. Kim was anniversary orator for the Few Literary society, and was on the honor roll, 1913, 1914, 1915.

Mr. Kim has a brother, an evangelist in Atlanta Medical college. His former Bible Institute, Los Angeles, A. A. Kim, Miss Hyung, and his wife (name withheld), now 19 years old, in a student of medicine at the University of Bible Institute.

Another interesting foreigner in Mr. Kim's class is James Inouye, of Kloton, Ky. Mr. Inouye also made a speaker's place at commencement, and was awarded the championship medal.

Doo Wun Lin, of Korea, is now a pupil in Emory's law department, a sophomore year. He was one of the six honorees to make a speaker's place at the recent commencement.

Stagnant Blood Given A Quick Impulse
Wonderful Activity Imparted by a Famous Remedy.

The appearance of pimples, boils, skin eruptions and all evidence of impure blood, calls for R. B. R., the famous blood purifier. It cures pimples, boils, hives, eczema, and all skin eruptions.

No amount of bile will destroy certain germs which cause blood and skin eruptions. They are away down deep in the tissues, perhaps in the very marrow of the bones. And such a condition calls for the searching influence of R. B. R. It is indeed a remarkable remedy, since it is taken up by the blood stream and never loses its medicinal influence. On and on it goes, through and through the entire system and always with the same delicate action to dislodge germs, destroy their activity and stimulate the liver, kidneys, bowels and skin to throw them out completely.

It stimulates stagnant blood, provides a rational explanation to the severe centers and thereby the natural functions of the body are aroused to cast out invaders, no matter how strongly entrenched they may be. It refutes the ancient theory that to destroy within us the germs that set into our vital cells for drugs that destroy our very existence. Get a bottle of R. B. R. today, or any drug store, and for special advice on severe blood disorders write at once to the Medical Adviser, The Health Specific Co., 101 South Sixth St., Atlanta, Ga. Do not accept a substitute. Insist upon what you ask for.

shower every day, and a rub, and "blankets" and some exercises. But besides this the dear lady made arrangements to take a golf lesson every day, and she engaged an osteopath to rub her every night. She arose at 8 o'clock, had a light breakfast and went for a walk. She played golf till 11 o'clock, took another walk before luncheon at 12 o'clock, and rested a moment on the porch until time for another walk or more golf. She took her bath at 2:30 and her rub, then dressed for dinner at 5. After dinner she did the strenuous dancing, etc., and at 10:30 o'clock the osteopath came. Her flesh began to decrease—yes. She looked pale and pretty, but soon her strength began to ebb. After two weeks she fainted one evening after her bath, and the doctor came to find she had literally nearly killed herself with the interminable of her daily regime. Her heart was involved, and a system of building up had to begin to keep the lady from becoming an invalid for life. Extreme habits in one way or the other is never conducive to beauty, and the smart woman takes her case in hand before an extreme measure is necessary. Athletics and dieting are good in summer time, but southern women have to be very careful how they suddenly go in for the pallidness to which they are not accustomed, and to which the climate does not always tend to help on.

In the Social Whirl

By Isma Dooly. It is rare that the outgoing of a governor in Georgia has more than the significance, socially, of a few semi-official entertainments, but in the gracious administration of the social affairs of the executive mansion during the last regime, Mrs. John Marshall Stanton has left a brilliant pattern and has indicated the many ways in which the lady of the mansion can express hospitality not only to her guests in spirit, but very practically beneficial.

Whenever the mansion has been opened since her residence there, she has been the queenly hostess, bidding all who entered sincere welcome, whether the occasion was to greet the national officers of the Daughters of the American Revolution, her own personal friends or the group of philanthropic women who came to sell the little garments which had been made by the unemployed women, desiring to sell them.

MUSIC IN ATLANTA. The mansion was theirs as well as hers, she made them feel, and, wherever she went as the wife of Georgia's governor, she imparted the beauty and charm of her personality, and generously gave of her talents and her time. She was president of the Atlanta Musical association, and carried it through a most successful year, promoting the work of the Atlanta Symphony orchestra. She encouraged the women of the state in their organized energies for practical education, not to neglect the more cultural branches, but to accomplish themselves and to establish an art life in a section possessing a rich heritage in that direction.

Appeal Made for Peace By German Socialists

Directors of Social Democratic Party Issue Statement Saying That People of Germany Want Peace. Paper Suspended for Publishing Statement.

Berlin, June 26.—(Via London.)—The board of directors of managing committee of the social democratic party in Germany has published in the Vorwarts a full page appeal for peace.

This interesting document calls for peace under circumstances which will make possible friendships with neighboring nations, and set forth most clearly the opposition of the party to territorial conquest and annexation.

Social Democracy and Peace.

The appeal is published under the heading "Social Democracy and Peace." It begins with a reference to the fact that the socialists foresaw the war and worked valiantly for an international conference of neutral nations to be held in the name of humanity, to make known the readiness to enter peace negotiations.

German Defends Use of Asphyxiating Gases.

The appeal closes with these words: "The managing committee (Vorstand) of the social democratic party in Germany has been opposed to a policy of complete neutrality and non-participation in the war since its beginning."

Berlin, June 26.—(Via London.)—A sensational statement issued here today alleges that the British and French employed gases before the front in the Ypres region.

Projectiles Described.

The circular then purports to describe the nature of the projectiles used, and the manner in which they were used.

German Statement Refuted.

The German statement refuted by the American press is that the British and French employed gases before the front in the Ypres region.

3,561 CANS COLLECTED BY GIRL IN WAYCROSS Waycross, Ga., June 26.—(Special.)—A reward amounting to $200 has already been offered by the sheriff and relative of Mr. Bryan. Miss Jennette McFoy, won the first prize in the can contest conducted here this week by the Health League. Miss McFoy collected 3,561 cans in the clean-up campaign. Her mother, Mrs. Howard, won the second prize with 2,494 cans. A total of 4,733 cans were gathered by the children. The idea of the Health League in having such a campaign was that if all the cans could be gotten out of the city there would be fewer breeding places for mosquitoes. It is not believed one hundred cans could be found in the city today.

FLORRIE MILLERSHIP. At the Forsyth this week.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

The Forsyth theater is having the most auspicious summer season of its history. Permanent reservations are selling at a tremendous rate, and the matinee attraction promises to exceed records long held by many of the most popular theaters on Broadway.

An inspection of records will show that the Forsyth is the only high-class vaudeville theater in operation south of Washington and west of Detroit, two of the nation's most important amusement centers outside of New York.

Executive of the Keith office on Broadway are pouring forth every possible effort to provide the Atlanta house with the best of the Keith repertoire of big feature attractions. Atlanta, in return for its liberal patronage, is being served with the highest class vaudeville available.

The Forsyth will continue through the season the most popular spot of entertainment in Dixie. The theater is cooled by augmented devices, the most scientific refrigerating apparatus has been installed, and nothing has been overlooked for the most comfort of the most exacting patron.

The bill this week is one of the season's most brilliant.

For instance, there is the headliner, the famous Princess Rajah, the Oriental dancer and the designer of the "Cleopatra" dance.

Princess Rajah recently toured Europe, where she appeared in Berlin, Paris and St. Petersburg. Returning to America shortly following the beginning of warfare, she is now closing a flattering journey of the bigger and more important theatrical centers. En route to New York, she appears in Atlanta prior to an entire season's bookings on Broadway.

Princess Rajah will perform her justly celebrated "Cleopatra" dance before Atlanta audiences. It is the most picturesque narrative of the death of Cleopatra, the queen of Egypt, and a South African pyromaniac in the performance, and the dance is rendered in a gorgeous scenic setting. The magic is derived from native Oriental dance themes.

Princess Rajah brings to Atlanta this brand-new creation, "The Arabian Chalk Dance," a spectacle more brilliant than anything she has ever undertaken in the world. It will have as much as upon it unstinted praise for its artistic work.

Princess Rajah carries with her a special company, properties, electric effects, and music.

An extra-added attraction of one week that will stir unusual expectation among Atlanta audiences is Henry Lewis, the jovial comedian, a favorite of the nation over. He portrays a German comedian in Austin Hoffman's excellent farce, "A Vaudeville Cocktail."

Great fascinating songs imported direct from the heart of the boundless plains, where cowboys and troopers gathered at the chuck wagon to their hearty meals, will be sent over the footlights into the hearts of amusement lovers who offer of Bert Lamont's cowboy troupe is staged. It will be one of the brightest spots of the unusual bill.

The Lamont act creation is composed of six genuine cowboy songsters, brought up on the range and put into vaudeville by a theatrical scout who chanced to hear them sing. Remaining phases of the fascinating life of the cowboy will be shown in the irresistible style of the Lamont players.

The first Atlanta appearance of Julius King, the charming actor of Hamlet, who brings her own company to the Forsyth. King has been identified with many of Broadway's most notable one and girl successes. Miss King has gone into vaudeville with astonishing success. She promises to excel the career of even her sister.

She presents "Twice Week," a dramatic and musical comedy by John B. Hyman, in which she is assisted by her company, including E. Murphy and James Noyes. Florence Millership, who, of Henry Fox and Millership fame, has also adopted a single act, and of late her exquisite edgity, "Little Miss Dore."

Another big act is "The Intruder and the Wheel," offered by Mortimer McRae and the beautiful Gertrude Clegg.

SALVATION ARMY SPENDS LOCALLY ALL DONATIONS

Brigadier A. W. Crawford, in charge of the southeastern division headquarters of the Salvation Army in Atlanta, has just received from national headquarters in New York, a copy of the report made by the Audit Company of New York on the condition of the organization's business affairs, bringing out many points which will be of special interest in this territory.

It is shown in the first place that while new and then generous donations or bequests are given by rich people, the greatest portion of the expense bills everywhere are met by the pennies and nickels given on the street. It shows that the money raised in Atlanta is expended in this city and that not a single penny goes to New York. It shows that all the money expended in the south and southeast is spent in this territory, and that since the bulk of the work is done by voluntary services, which is given by unpaid workers, nearly all of the money collected is expended in helping the poor and needy. The charge that a large percentage of the money collected in the United States is sent out of the country is completely disproven by the Audit company's report.

It is shown that during the year past 274,108 Christmas dinners were given to the poor; 37,332 children were given Christmas toys; 17,781 were given Thanksgiving dinners; 232,539 were given temporary relief outside in the form of food and clothing; 4,113 mothers

PLAYING FIRST FOR LOCALS

The double-header today will be called in detail by Fred Jenson at his mainline parlors on the Viaduct, and the Atlanta will be for the benefit of the family of A. B. SCIENCE AND LEAR-SCIENCE UP-TO-DATE

How Women of Old Rome Became Famous as Beauties

HOW the beauty-craving woman of ancient Rome would have liked to live in this day and age of electric vibrations, electric radiations, rubber masks and other scientific appliances for bringing back the charms of youth. Investigation shows that she resisted advancing age until the last—concealed her wrinkles, helped her figure with judicious padding and replaced lost teeth by artificial ones of ivory, fastened with gold.

The Roman woman needed for her toilet a whole harem of maids, of whom each was a specialist and had her peculiar skill and duty. Milady's dressing table, which was often of considerable dimensions, contained pomades and perfumes of various kinds, and a whole armament of boxes, phials, knives, tweezers, brushes, bodkins and scrapers. In the evening, when she betook herself to repose, a cake of fine dough, kneaded with asses' milk, was spread over her face, to render the skin elastic and soft and to preserve its delicate tint.

Asses' milk had a high reputation for its cosmetic powers. The Empress Poppaea, Nero's consort, was the first to bring it into vogue; and when she traveled she was accompanied by a drove of she asses, that she might always have a supply of fresh milk. In the morning this plaster of dough was dry, and it was then slowly and carefully washed off with fresh milk.

Then began the work of the "kosmetai," as these dressing maids were called. The eyebrows were drawn with the pencil in fine arches, the lashes darkened, white and red laid upon the cheeks, the nails trimmed and polished, the hair oiled, perfumed, and the coiffure built up: then shoes of soft, bright leather, or sandals with straps studded with pearls, were put on the feet, and finally the perfumed garments folded about the person.

Last of all came the ornaments for the hair, such as frontlets, diadema, pins, or strings of pearls. The Roman lady prided not only the artistic beauty but also the material value of her jewelry, and did not shrink from displaying a parure that cost millions. The Empress Lollia Paulina, consort of Caligula, appeared at her betrothal ceremony decked in jewelry valued at 40,000,000 sesterces, or $1,548,000. It consisted of emeralds and pearls, the art of cutting diamonds then being unknown.

So now the beauty, having been dressed, perfumed and decked with jewels, sets out to receive the homage of an admiring world. Whatever her destination, her delicate feet must never touch the hard pavement of the streets. The curtained litter stood ready; eight mulemen Capadocian, her slaves, were waiting to bear their mistress wherever she might order. Taking a fan of feathers in her hand, she moved to her conveyance with the calm and noble gait of a matron and the stately carriage of a great lady, and, reclining on soft cushions, was borne away, leaving a waft of perfume in the air as she passed along.

Hairdressing among the Roman woman was an art, and the slave girls instructed in this important duty were trusted in it by professional teachers. For a long time ashura or golden hair was most esteemed. Hair of a natural blonde was rare among Roman women, but they used a kind of caustic pomade or soap, in which ashes were an ingredient, to give their dark tresses the desired hue. In other words, they were our first "peroxide blondes."

The application of this dye was not agreeable, but they submitted to it with exemplary patience. The hair was first washed in lye, then rubbed with this dressing and exposed to the rays of the sun. Even this was not always effectual, and then recourse was had to a wig, the blond hair for which was obtained from female captives or imported. Merchants traveled through the Pontic tribes buying up blond and red hair.

Great care of the hair was also customary among the Greek women—and the men, as well. To have the hair cut, or dressed, the men went to the barber-shops, which abounded in all the Greek cities. As at the present day, the barbers were noted for their loquacity and knew how to entertain a customer with all the latest gossip. Indeed, their shops were often frequented on this account, and became resorts of the idle, the curious and the talkative, who passed there a considerable part of the day.

Greek women often wore false hair, and dyed gray locks black, or faded tresses asburn. To perform the latter feat they used a caustic wash and exposed the hair to the rays of the sun. In this point the men were scarcely behind the women, for they, too, used cosmetics to dye the hair and beard black when they began to turn gray. Dyeing their brows or blonde, though sometimes practiced, was considered effeminate and foolish.

An elegant Greek lady needed for the completion of her toilet no less than fifty different articles, all of which a servitoria writer has enumerated. In the list we find mirrors, jars and phials, unguents and ointments and brushes, pencils and colors. She well understood, for that day, how to defend her beauty from the attacks of advancing age, and only yielded to the universal conqueror, Time.

The Roman Woman Needed a Bery of Maids, All Beauty Specialists, to Aid Her in Making Her Toilet.

Here Are Many Opportunities for Inventors

HERE are a few simple things so badly needed that the Scientific American calls upon inventors to get busy and invent them:

A compartment cigar case to put in the pocket, whose unlit compartment or compartments may be collapsed without impairing the protection offered to the cigar or cigars contained in the filled compartment.

A ticket holder for holding the price and lot tickets to a coat or other garment, which ticket can be easily applied to and removed and another inserted, all without mutilation or of other injury to the garment.

The lower berth in a sleeping car is stuffy with the windows closed, and if you open the window the cold air is directly on you. It is thought that the riding public would appreciate some deflector or diffusing construction which could be applied to the open window over the usual short-hinged screen and permit the entry of fresh air, at the same time preventing it from blowing directly upon the passenger in the berth.

Some means for effectively preventing the mirror effect in show windows, the effect we all notice in passing such a window in which our image is reflected and the contents of the window are shut out of view. Naturally, the shopkeeper who works for a display in his window resents it not being seen.

President Wilson, who is an ardent golfer and also dependent on his eyeglasses, is reported as saying that he cannot play the game in the rain because of the accumulation of moisture on his glasses, which leads to the suggestion that specially devised glasses or some treatment of the ordinary lens may solve the problem.

'Kill Me or I'll Kill You,' Says the Murderous House Fly

IF YOU saw a man murder a sick baby you would be his eternal enemy.

Flies kill many sick babies every year—just how many nobody is able to say. But you consider the fly's menace of trivial importance.

Physicians who realize the peril of flies realize that if the average layman could see a fly commit its many crimes just as they do the life of the insect would be short. Therefore a campaign of education to suppress it has been being called.

Here are a few facts about the death dealing insect accumulated by Dr. G. A. Jordan, health commissioner of St. Louis:

The fly lays its eggs on any organic matter, preferably on stable refuse.

The eggs number about 120 at each laying.

These eggs become fully developed flies in about twelve days.

There are ten to thirteen generations in one season.

One small pile of stable refuse can produce a crop of 500,000 flies.

Neglected garbage and dead fowls and animals also are favorite breeding places.

The descendants of one pair of flies from April to September can amount to 5,000,000,000 flies. These are figures of the United States government.

These figures are based on each female fly laying only one batch of eggs when she may lay four batches.

More than 60,000,000 germs have been actually found on the body of one fly.

The new-born fly begins to lay eggs when 2 weeks old.

If all flies descending from one pair should live and breed their descendants would bury the entire earth forty-seven feet deep.

Virtually every fly in a city was born in that city.

The fly by his habits is attracted to and crawls over and feeds upon all kinds of dirt and carries this upon his body and legs.

Germs cause disease just as needs cause flowers when either is planted in proper soil. Your body or the body of your wife or child may be proper soil.

What is the use of screening your house and then going out and trying food upon which filthy flies have crawled?

All flies will go into a trap if there is no other food about.

A fly seldom travels over two city blocks from his breeding place unless carried on food, the back of a horse or in a conveyance upon which he happens to alight.

Any fermenting or rotting material attracts flies. They also are found of milk, fish and sweets.

The fly is a voracious feeder, often swallowing one-half its body weight at one meal. It feeds continuously if food be present.

Keep your premises clear of any filth, of exposed garbage or other organic matter, especially manure. See that your neighbor also keeps his premises free.

Put out your fly trap early and keep it working every day. Have fly swatters scattered about your house convenient for use.

Screen every door and window and wipe

This, an Ordinary House Fly, May Carry 1,600,000 Disease Germs About It.

the wire of your screens with a cloth dampened with coal oil. This preserves the wire and keeps the fly away.

The mosquito is responsible for every case of yellow fever and malaria that ever existed, because these two diseases can only be conveyed from man to man through its bite.

We are just commencing to realize the deadly possibilities of the fly in conveying such deadly diseases as typhoid fever, tuberculosis, infantile paralysis and other fatal maladies that have laid millions in their graves.

The fly, eating from the same plate as you are, may be carrying upon its body, feet and legs a million germs.

Wild, dangerous beasts and poisonous snakes are killed on sight. Flies kill more people in one day than wild beasts or snakes ever did. Most of such beasts and snakes never get an opportunity to kill a human being, but any of the millions of flies in every city has such a chance every day.

Germs on the body of a fly multiply faster than the fly does. Patronize the merchant who protects you by keeping the food he sells you screened from flies.

The solution of the fly problem is the destruction of the April fly. Every fly destroyed in April means swarms less in September.

Don't use fly poisons around places where children may come in contact with them. A fly poison is also a child poison. Use traps and swatters.

Fifteen minutes after flies had been fed on a mixture with typhoid bacilli their specks were found to contain thousands of the living bacilli.

We used to drink the milk from which a fly had been removed. Nowadays one had rather eat the fly, because most of the filth had been removed by his bath and was left in the milk.

The fly does carry disease and he can be eradicated. These are the two cardinal points to be remembered in the warfare now being waged upon him.

Do not leave the fight on the fly to others; do your part.

The common house fly does not bite; he sucks. Before he feeds he puts out a drop of saliva and sucks it back and forth until the substance he is feeding upon is dissolved. Would you like to eat after him? If the fly carried only filth and not disease that would be enough to condemn him. You see the people living about you in spite of flies, but you forget the lessons that are in their graves because of him.

If you saw a fly kill a little child you would be his eternal enemy. Because you cannot see him do this in no reason why you should be any less his enemy.

Just as soon as every one does his part on his own premises, just so soon will there be no more flies. When you fight the fly you are protecting yourself and your family and your neighbor and his family. The place to swat the fly is where he breeds, not where he basks.

Where Roller Skates Originated

ROLLER skates were patented and used in France as early as the year 1816, and a few years later an Englishman named Syers patented them and manufactured them in England. Syers' skates consisted of a sandal mounted on five narrow wheels in a single row, so arranged, however, that only two of them could touch the floor at the same time. Several other similar skates were patented in England during the next forty years.

In 1865 Mr. Plympton of Boston patented a roller skate and inaugurated the first system of skating rinks in this country. The first public skating rink was opened at Newport, R. I., in 1868. The skating craze spread from that city all over the country, raging most fiercely on the Pacific coast. There the amusement became so popular that the right to use the Plympton skates in San Francisco alone sold for $100,000.

The craze died and was revived several times since. Its present popularity, especially among children who are skating in the street and on the sidewalks, is growing

How Bullets Telephone Their Location to Physicians

SURGEONS in the military hospitals of France are now making general use of all the most recently invented processes and apparatus for performing operations. Among these are the electro-magnetic and telephonic methods of finding bullets, fragments of shells or other foreign bodies in the human tissues.

The electro-magnet is useless in discovering lead or other metals that are non-magnetic, but whenever there is iron or steel, even in small quantities, in the object to be found it is most effective. Dr. Jacques Boyer describes in La Nature how some of this apparatus is used. Of the electro-magnet he says:

"The apparatus is placed in a frame above the patient. The surgeon, who must operate with non-magnetic instruments (German silver or 25 per cent nickel steel), easily discovers the presence of the foreign body. The patient feels a characteristic pain and the skin is elevated in the form of a very pointed cone. Then he proceeds easily to the extraction of the fragments of projectiles under the skin or muscles."

The telephone probe, invented by Professor Alexander Graham Bell, is in constant use today. Dr. Boyer says its beauty is in its simplicity, for anyone can improvise such a probe at trifling expense. In its simplest form it consists of an ordinary of any foreign body. The precise location of such a body depends upon knowledge of the exact points at which a ray from the X-ray machine enters and leaves the body. Among the systems devised by the surgeons that of Dr. Jaeger's is one of the most precise. Suppose he has to find a bullet in a man's head, for example. He places the patient, immobilized in a certain position, before the screen and sets the X-ray bulb at such a height that it casts the shadow of the bullet on the screen. With a pencil having a metallic point that makes it clearly visible on the screen he marks on the patient's skin the point A, at which the ray enters, and the point B,

The Telephone Probe Is Shown Here in Actual Use.

B, at which the X-ray enters, and B1, at which it emerges. Thus he gets the two extremities of a second line somewhere on which the bullet lies. The precise situation of the patient's head. Remembering the ring, he marks its outline upon a sheet of paper and rules straight lines from the points A to A1, and from B to B1. The point at which these lines intersect is where the bullet lies. His knowledge of the anatomy of the skull and brain enables him to decide, based most effectively upon the man's head, and how most safely to enter the brain and cut out the bullet.

The same principle is applied to other parts of the body.

telephone receiver with two wires, to the end of one of which a silver spoon is attached and to the other a slender copper or steel rod. Dr. Garett's method of using it is to inject cocaine-adrenaline into the wound, place the spoon in the patient's mouth, hold the receiver to his own ear with his left hand and with his right insert the probe into the wound. The instant it touches the object sought the surgeon hears a click, for an electric current has been formed by the chemical action of the juices of the body upon the two metals.

Dr. Grinzer has perfected this apparatus by substituting a hand gear with two ear pieces for the single telephone receiver, in order to leave both the operator's hands free.

The X-rays are being used now in all the hospitals for finding the exact position of

FIRST ATTACK MADE ON U. S. INCOME TAX

Constitutionality of Levy Will Be Tested in the Supreme Court.

Washington, June 26.—Papers were filed today in the first attack in supreme court on the constitutionality of the federal income tax, which promises to be the most important case before the court next term.

Counsel for John W. A. Horace K. Dodge, of Detroit, filed a brief of argument attacking the surtax on income of individuals.

Three main reasons were assigned for obtaining the surtax provision of the law in invalid. Stockholders in corporations are liable for the gains and profits of the corporations which have not been divided or distributed.

To tax a stockholder on prospective dividends which he may receive is only to be regarded as an arbitrary power of determining without a hearing whether any corporation has accumulated a greater undivided surplus than is reasonable for the needs of the business.

A third ground is that the provision permits corporations to accumulate and withhold from surtax and from the profits as may be reasonably necessary for the needs and purposes of the business and does not accord such shareholders any special privilege.

It is argued that corporations are thus favored by a "most vicious discrimination."

The brief urges that the sixteenth amendment to the constitution did not obliterate entirely the provisions of the constitution against "direct taxes" and that congress can only tax income not real or personal property.

The congress has made no distinction as to the source of income.

It is contended that such power seems very "popular discriminations" are within the reach of the congress and that it would be very popular in this country to tax income derived from the manufacture of automobiles, bicycles and automobiles corporations, and not before each congressional or presidential election the tax is increased.

The case was begun to prevent the collection of interest on a surtax on each of the Dodge's for the year 1913. The Michigan circuit district court held the tax valid.

crowded to the utmost standing room of the doors of the gallery and the house in an effort to see Governor Harris in person or hear an occasional word.

Upon the rostrum was Senator Ferguson, presiding as Governor Harris, Mr. Harris, Retiring Governor Slaton, Representative W. M. Cannon, Speaker of the House, Mr. Justice William H. Hall, of the Georgia supreme court, and other dignitaries.

Among the visitors who had special seats were ex-Governors Harris, Slaton, and W. M. Cannon, and other dignitaries.

President Ferguson rapped for order and then introduced Governor Harris, who pronounced an invocation, asking Divine guidance of the destinies of the state.

After the invocation, President Ferguson introduced the senate and house members who were sworn in.

Chief Justice Hall administered the oath of office to Governor Harris, who then delivered his inaugural address.

His address was a review of the state's progress since the last election and a promise of a new era of prosperity.

He concluded by asking for the support of the people and the legislature.

The next ceremony of inauguration was the transfer of the state seal from Governor Slaton to Governor Harris.

The seal was then placed in the hands of the retiring governor.

Immediately there was an outbreak of hissing in the gallery.

WILSON PARTY LOST ON AUTOMOBILE TRIP

President Had to Call to Natives Along Roadside to Learn the Way.

Washington, Vt., June 26.—While President Wilson was taking a long automobile ride with members of his family today three negro employees of his private car were busy putting out a fire which caused intense excitement in this small New England town.

The fire broke out in the motor car at a meeting last night of representatives of the allied building and material interests, as an answer to the referendum vote of 1800 striking carpenters who overwhelmingly defeated the proposal to arbitrate.

The carpenters have been on strike since April 26, when their agreement with the Contractors-Employers association expired. The men had demanded a wage increase from 55 cents to 70 cents an hour.

PADEREWSKI'S UNFINISHED MASTERPIECE

Mailed Fist of War Cut Short Composition That This World's Genius Believed Would Be His Greatest Work—But War, He Says, Will Eventually Prove a Boon to Art by Simplifying It and Giving It a New Virility

WHEN the last gun is fired in the great conflict of nations now raging in Europe art will be born anew—but not the elaborate art to which we have been accustomed. The effect will be the same as on human life—a tendency toward simplification.

This is the opinion of Ignace Jan Paderewski, the noted pianist, whose visit to America in the interest of devastated Poland indicates that love of country rivals music in the heart of this genius. Paderewski, grieving over the unhappy fate of his land, has not played the piano since the beginning of hostilities, devoting all of his time toward raising funds with which to assist the millions of families that are helpless, hungry and sick.

"All of us, even the poorest, indulged in some luxuries during the days of peace," said Paderewski. "The first accomplishment of the gigantic struggle was to simplify our mode of living. Those who had horses found them commiserated. Automobiles and carriages, too, were requisitioned. The result was to make people partake of more exercise, especially that of walking, and to eat more wholesome food—in fact, to lead a simple and sane life. "As art is, after all, the reflection of human life, so will it be simplified. Artists will try to find more accessible forms of expression. I presume it will be a benefit for art itself, which in every one of its branches tended toward excess and exaggeration to the detriment of real thought."

Cancel Engagements to Work for Poland.

Paderewski was in England when he learned that the war pressing general hostilities had been declared. He immediately canceled all engagements and returned to his chalet in Switzerland, where he formulated plans to aid unhappy Poland.

While in England Paderewski had begun the composition of what he believed would be his masterpiece. From the start of his career it had been his ambition to compose music rather than to play it. Well-known musicians will tell you that some of his interpretations of the masters, especially in his earlier years, were marvelous improvisations, for the magic of his talent supplanted what at the start his knowledge lacked.

Paderewski has not supplied a single note to his composition since the war began. "How can I?" he asked, tears filling his eyes. He wasn't ashamed to cry. When you know that in times other than these Paderewski often played seventeen hours a day, a muscular task which the world's strongest men would not care to essay; that he frequently indulged in the strenuous exercise of swimming; that he personally superintended his estate and was even a breeder of horses, you are compelled to readjust the thought that this great artist is effeminate.

Vast Area Is Laid Waste.

"How can I?" he repeated, "when my Poland is in misery? War is raging over her soil, sweeping away every sign of civilization, destroying dwellings, devastating fields, gardens and forests, starving and exterminating human beings and animals alike. An area equal in size to the states of New York and Pennsylvania has been laid waste. Two hundred towns, fourteen hundred churches, seven thousand six hundred villages have been completely ruined. A total of eighteen million inhabitants, including nearly two million Jews, are continually enduring the horrors of this gigantic struggle. Only very few could flee to the places which are still holding their own against the aggressors; the great majority, almost eleven millions of helpless women and children, homeless peasants, unemployed workmen, the very essence and strength of a nation, have been driven out into the open. Thousands and thousands are hiding among ruins, in woods or in hollows, feeding on roots and on the bark of trees.

"And you ask me why I do not compose! Why do I not play in concert! Can one with true patriotism, true love of country, set his mind on aught else than the heartrending cries of his people, 'Some bread for Polish women and children! Some seed for the Polish farmers!'"

A glance went, instinctively, to his hands. They were as long, as thin, as white, as delicately shaped as ever. "Ah, but they are stiff," said Paderewski, divining the meaning of the glance. "And my wrists—they, too, are no longer writers of steel."

Years to Return to Own Work.

He said it pitifully, as if he yearned to return to the strenuous life of concert work which Henry T. Fink discerned so well in the following extract from an article he wrote several years ago:

"Genius involves hard work, is a pianist as the poet. Ease and finish are the rewards of years of toil. When we know how persistently Paderewski works to perfect his playing we hardly wonder that he shrinks the duty of writing letters. His triumphs were not too easily won; he had to practice and study many years to earn them. To this day he will practice ten to twelve hours or more a day when practicing for a concert tour, to keep his fingers supple and his memory reliable. But the secret of his success lies in this, that he practices not merely with his fingers but with the brain too. He once told me that he often lies awake for hours at night, going over his next program mentally, note after note, trying to get at the very essence of every bar.

"This mental practice at night explains the perfection of his art, but it is not good for his health. Indeed, if he ever sins it is against himself and the laws of health. He smokes too many cigars, drinks too much champagne, loses too much sleep, and sleeps too much in the daytime. For this last habit he is, however, not entirely to blame; for whenever he gives a concert all his faculties are so completely engaged that he is quite exhausted at the end, and unable to go to sleep for hours. His favorite antidote to this artistic insomnia is a game of billiards. Of this game he is passionately fond, and he regards it as a sort of tonic, for, he says, 'If I walk or ride or merely rest I go to thinking all the time, and my nerves get no real rest. But when I play billiards I can forget everything, and the result is mental rest and physical rest combined.'

And to return to this life is Paderewski's wish, but grief forbids. Paderewski's emotions and sentiments less delightfully tuned; if he could work back the perfect contentment of mind which he says is necessary to musical genius, he could aid his country materially by concert work. Following are a few figures covering fourteen consecutive concerts on his second tour of America:

Ringhamton, $1,800; New York, $5,990; Boston, $2,384; New Haven, $1,928; New York, $3,089; Rochester, $1,862; Albany, $1,350; Hartford, $1,915; Boston, $2,895; New York, $5,524; Buffalo, $2,000; Philadelphia, $5,224; Brooklyn, $3,162; Boston, $3,800; total, $43,790, or an average of $3,112.

What Concerts Really Pay.

The total number of concerts given during this second tour in twenty-six American cities was sixty-seven, and the receipts amounted to $180,000—a sum never before equaled by an instrumental performer. Of this amount about $150,000 was net.

"But it is impossible for me to play until the war is over—rather until my Poland rises from the ashes of her unhappy fate," said the master pianist recently. He rose to prepare for an address to Polish sympathizers in behalf of the General Polish Relief Committee. Paderewski's gift of oratory is second only to his genius as a musician, as shown in the following extract from speech he made:

"We are in more need of strengthening, of reinvigoration. Blow after blow has fallen upon our stricken race, thunderbolt after thunderbolt; our whole shattered country quivers, not with fear, but with dismay. New forms of life which had to come, which were bound to come, have waked among us on a night of dreadful dreams. The same wind that blew to us a handful of healthy grass has overwhelmed us in a cloud of chaff and stippings; the clear fane kindled by hope of universal justice has reached us fouled by dark and blackening smoke; the light breath of freedom has been borne toward us on chilling, deadly waves of poisoned air.

"Our hearts are disarrayed, our minds distorted. We are being taught respect for all that is another's, contempt for all that is our own. We are blinded to love all men, even fratricides, and yet hate our own fathers and brothers should they think otherwise, albeit no less warmly than ourselves. Our new teachers are stripping us of the last shred of racial instinct, yielding the past in prey to an indefinite future, thrusting the heritage of generations into the clutches of the chaotic ogre whose monstrous form may loom at any minute above the abyss of time.

"The immemorial sanctities of our race, profaned until now against the stoutest foe, is being assailed by brothers who batter at the wall, meaning to use

Grief Over War Stays Hand of Polish Genius

HOW can I compose when my Poland is in misery? War is raging over her soil, sweeping away every sign of civilization, destroying dwellings, devastating fields, gardens and forests, starving and exterminating human beings and animals alike. Only very few could flee to the places which are still holding their own against the aggressors; the great majority, almost eleven millions of helpless women and children, homeless peasants, unemployed workmen, the very essence and strength of a nation, have been driven out into the open. Thousands and thousands are living among ruins, in woods, or in hollows, feeding on roots and on the bark of trees. And you ask me why I do not compose! Why I do not play in concert! Can one with true patriotism, true love of country, set his mind on aught else than the heartrending cries of his people, "Some bread for Polish women and children! Some seed for Polish farmers!"

Paderewski Not a Young Man.

Paderewski is no longer young—he was born in 1860—and he spends the greater part of the day in conference with the leaders of branch relief societies. Yet no weariness shows in his dignified figure or in his eyes, and he talks with animation. This animation is particularly noticeable when Poland is the subject of conversation. On music, painting, America—on most subjects he talks with interest, but with no great fervor. But when the wrongs of Poland are mentioned he rises from his chair and speaks with fiery passion.

"His masterpiece? "It shall never be born for the time being," says Paderewski. "But when it is given to the world who doubts but that it will express yearning maidenhood, grave manhood, tragic and sad old age, light-hearted, joyful, youth, love's enfolding softness, action's vigor, valiant and chivalrous strength—all of Poland, for whose tragic fate Paderewski grieves, and which is dearer to his heart than music itself!"

Is Love a Disease? If So, What Is the Cure?

IS LOVE a disease? Nearly three hundred theories, the majority of them scientific, exist as to the nature of love. Most are physiological theories. It remained for William Brown, M. A., D. Sc., of King's College, London, to show that the mental phenomena involved—the ideas, thoughts and feelings of lovers—can be to some extent explained by mental causes. Says Professor Brown:

"Whatever may be the theory adopted to explain how it comes about that the ideas and emotions of two people become centered each about the idea of the other, we are still left with the striking resemblances which love presents to certain forms of mental disease. Besides the 'fixed idea' there is the period of 'incubation,' during which the individual does not know what is the matter with him, but feels restless, depressed and 'out of sorts.' There is feebleness of will power, which may, in a few cases, even persist after love has become manifest. Again, there is often a complete change of temperament and character.

"Once more: Some natures seem to be more susceptible to the love fever than others, and would appear to be possessed of a special mental 'diathesis' or disposition, resembling the physical diatheses—the tendency to cancer, scrofula and so forth—so well known to the physician. And the greater proclivity to the affliction when it ill health, mental or physical, brings it also into line with physical disease. There are, however, exceptions.

"Again, a love affair of a certain type makes the individual, in many cases, partly or entirely immune to one of a similar nature for the future. Whether it is possible to live in love with more than one person at the same time is a difficult question, but we are, perhaps, a little too ready to answer it in the negative.

"No one will deny that extreme cases abound which are obviously diseased, but these shade off to the so-called normal cases by imperceptible degrees, and the dividing line is not easy to draw. How are we to regard the numerous love tragedies of history? What are we to say of the love murders and suicides which we read about in the newspapers? Can we honestly convince ourselves—those of us who are not entirely inexperienced in the matter—that these cases belong to a class by themselves, and have no closer relation to ordinary love than, say, a cancerous liver to a normal one? Perhaps if a large proportion of people were susceptible to the passion—that some such people exist cannot be doubted—we should be more ready to class it among our diseases.

"If disease it is, we must look for its cause in the subconscious, and therefore the ordinary healing method of 'sua-actio,' in which the patient's interest is turned in some other direction, is in most cases useless unless helped out by some means of getting down to the subconscious life of the individual. Such means are afforded us by the method of 'psycho-analysis' invented by Professor Freud of Vienna and employed by him and his disciples."

The principle of this method is similar to that of cross-examination as employed in a court of law, except that single words instead of questions are used as the bait. The physician learns of the cause of the disease simultaneously with the patient, and is then able to help the matter by thoroughly "talking the thing out" with him. It has been used with remarkable success, say scientists, in certain forms of mental disease.

"The case of love is very similar," adds Professor Brown. "Love is a disturbance in which the subconscious is largely involved, hence its seeming mysteriousness and irrationality. Not all love affairs need to be cured, but in cases where this is desirable the method of psycho-analysis enables the reason and will power of the lover to be directed upon the irrational emotional tendencies that have gained a footing in his subconsciousness, so that they are seen in their true light and combated accordingly.

"Let us imagine the instance of a pair of lovers where, owing to some internal reason, jealousy, for instance, love is not flowing smoothly. If these two people be treated separately and independently with the same list of words much information can be obtained as to the nature of their subconsciousness, and also of the more hidden parts of their explicit consciousness.

"Cases of 'hopeless love' could be treated in a similar way, so that indirectly the method might even prove to be a new and efficacious way of curing some cases of consumption, or at least directing the physician's attention to the mental factor which is not infrequently present in these instances. The actual curative treatment, so far as it is mental, would in every case take the form of 'suggestion' and the 'talking of the matter out with the patient'; the psychologist would prescribe measures for directing the flow of the patient's ideas and emotional tendencies into other channels."

Therefore, from the viewpoint of Professor Brown, love in some cases is a disease.

Buick 1916 Buick

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Public Wants Buick Sixes—So Many of Them That We Shall Build Nothing Else in 1916

More enduring than chrome vanadium steel, more wonderful than the finest workmanship, is the idea that can dominate an industry.

In this day when more Buicks are being built than ever before it is interesting to remember that the distinguishing characteristic of the Buick, the Valve-in-Head Motor, has existed as an idea for twenty-five years and been built into Buick cars for thirteen years.

From 1903 to 1907 the Buick Valve-in-Head was a two-cylinder engine. From 1908 to 1914 four cylinders dominated the field and the Buick Valve-in-Head Four dominated other types. The Buick Valve-in-Head Six was first put on the market in 1913. Fours were also continued—but the Valve-in-Head Six had stirred the imagination of the car-buying public. The demand from the start outpaced the production.

This demand has become so overwhelming that now—for 1916—the Four gives way to Sixes. Two chassis, both Sixes, with roadster, touring car, coupe, sedan bodies. The Six has been made standard because in the Six the Valve-in-Head idea has its greatest opportunity for service. Also since the first appearance of the Buick Six there has arisen an insistent demand for smaller Buick Sixes.

On the smaller of the two Buick chassis for 1916 there are four body models, thus offering a complete range in both open and closed cars, and for both individual and family use. This smaller Buick roadster, introduced this season, is the companion car to the touring model illustrated above. It is magnificent in appointment and finish, with a 45-horsepower, six-cylinder, smooth, vibrationless, Valve-in-Head Motor. It offers the greatest possible motor value to those who desire a handsome roadster. It sets a new standard of automobile value, and one by which all nineteen-sixteen cars will be judged.

Buick Valve-in-Head Six-Cylinder Roadster, Model D-54 $1540
 Price, completely equipped, f. o. b. Atlanta

This roadster is the successor to the "Big Six" Buick Roadster which created such a stir in the motor world last season. It is built on the same chassis as the seven-passenger Touring Car, with Valve-in-Head motor of 55 horsepower, and in both construction and appearance will rank with any car at any price.

Model D-45 Buick Valve-in-Head Six-Cylinder Touring Car $1050
 Price, completely equipped, f. o. b. Atlanta

The car about which everybody is talking when they think of motor cars. The car that will inspire the utmost pride of ownership. The car we know is right, not only in theory and test, but in actual service.

Buick Valve-in-Head Seven-Passenger, Six-Cylinder Touring Car, Model D-55. Price, completely equipped, f. o. b. Atlanta $1575

This, the third season for this model of the Buick, finds Buick ideals in motor car manufacture and Buick Valve-in-Head principle of motor construction brought to their highest development and refinement. In this car are combined all the essentials for perfect motoring pleasure. First, there is that abundance of power which only the Buick Valve-in-Head Motor insures. Then there is a grace of line and finish which stamp this car as a motor car beauty. Buick construction insures the utmost of "under the floor" value in workmanship and material. Nothing is lacking to make this car ideal from every possible viewpoint.

ALBANY BOYS TO HAVE BARBECUE AND PICNIC

Secretary Wallace, of T. M. S. and P. Association, Predicts Good Times for Travelers.

Editor Prime Line: I am knocking at your door again, feeling, as I do, that the latch-string hangs on the outside, and that you are always willing to contribute space to those who have the best interests of the traveling men at heart.

With some prospect of an understanding between this country and Germany, before us, also a fair, good crop outlook in this part of Georgia, in the way of melons, cantaloupes, grape and other fruit, the traveling boys figure on "killing a big one" this fall, if everything goes well.

Along with this assurance of good business we shall make preparations for a barbecue and picnic for traveling men and their wives about the first week in September. We want to make this occasion not only a picnic, but also a refreshment.

I received a letter a few days ago from a member of the T. M. S. and P. Association, at this critical moment of our relations with Germany.

CHARGES A FRAME-UP, SAYS JAMES H. SURBER

Internal Revenue Agent Arrested on Orders From Department at Washington.

On the general charge of conspiracy, James H. Surber, for fourteen years internal revenue agent for the district of Columbia, was arrested yesterday by Deputy Marshal J. R. Brock, sending an investigation which has been ordered by the department at Washington as his connection with the service.

It is said that the government charges that certain of the distillers in the neighborhood of Port Smith, Ark. were notified in advance of the visit of the department inspectors and were thus enabled to cover up any illegal nefarious dealings under the federal laws, and that Mr. Surber was a party to these evasions of the inspectors.

The issuing of this warrant came to the attention of a "blunder chap from a clear sky," said Mr. Surber. "I am at it for fourteen years, and during that time have never had any jurisdiction in the district of which Arkansas is a party. I know nothing of the government's charges so far. It is only a guess on my part, but I have concluded that it is a frame-up in the service of some matter of which I am not a party, which has nothing to do with my connection with the Georgia branch of the service."

FOR NATURALIZATION ALIENS MAKE REQUEST

EICHELBERGER UPHELD BY ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

Attacks on Him Are Declared to Be the Work of Opponents of Prohibition.

Declaring that the attacks which have been made against Dr. O. W. Eichelberger, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Georgia, in various papers of the state are the work of opponents of prohibition, the officers of the league, including several of the prominent ministers of Atlanta, have issued to the public a reply upholding Dr. Eichelberger.

It is pointed out that he was induced to take up this work in Georgia because the league was unable to find in the state a capable and qualified leader not already engaged in some other line of civic and moral uplift. Dr. Eichelberger, the report says, has a long and unusual record for efficiency.

These signing the vindication of Dr. Eichelberger follow: William D. Upshaw, vice president National Anti-Saloon League; L. White, president Georgia Anti-Saloon League; Frank J. Dudley, vice president Georgia Anti-Saloon League; E. M. Doolittle, National headquarters committee; R. R. Kirtland, assistant treasurer Georgia Anti-Saloon League; Peyton H. Who Found

BROKEN COIN

The finding of The Broken Coin in an old Curiosity Shop in New York is the starting point of a startling galaxy of adventures of pretty Kitty Gray, the clever girl reporter. The Broken Coin has the earmarks of a news story to Kitty but it changes the whole trend of her life. The story of The Broken Coin is the latest product of that master writer, author of "The Mississippi Bubble," "54-40 or Fight," "The Law of the Land," "John Rawn," "The Purchase Price," and many other popular stories.

Emerson Hough

Mr. Hough has attained a place in the foremost ranks of American writers of fiction of the present day. Many others of our popular authors are more prolific, but few of them have written more books that will stand the test of time.

The Broken Coin is the greatest story Mr. Hough has ever written. It is a wonderful story of love and romance leading to a throne, written in an absorbing series of fascinating chapters throbbing with real red-blood interest without the slightest tinge of sensationalism or unreal situations; in fact, a clean-cut romance that you will enjoy to the last line.

Get Acquainted with Kitty

You can meet her at your favorite moving picture theater. You can follow her through her exciting adventures with The Broken Coin. The story was so good—such a fine master plot that the Universal Film Manufacturing Company have put forth their greatest effort to make The Broken Coin the "one-best-act" in moving picture serials. Read the installment soon to appear in this paper. See the pictures at the Universal Moving Picture Theaters and you have a combination that will give you more thrills and enjoyment than your most vivid imagination could create.

This Is a Worth-While Tip

Follow Kitty Gray in the stories and the movies. Read the first installment—see the first release and you will be a Broken Coin fan till the end of the story.

George Jordan Led Flag Hitters for First Season

By Dick Jewman.

George Jordan, Brunswick's brilliant young catcher, was the leading batsman of the F. L. A. G. league of the first half-season, which ended, Tuesday, June 23, with an average of .311. His teammate, Rully, with .311, and another teammate, Willard, with .310, were next in line.

Reddy, of Dothan, led the run-getters, with 47 tallies. Reynolds, of Brunswick, was next, with 37, and Rully, of Brunswick, third, with 35. Rully, of Brunswick, led the home-runners, with 23 homers. Wilkes, of Gainesville, and Stewart, of Waycross, were next, with 20 each.

Heck, of Dothan, led the scorers, with 27 runs. Brunswick, with 13, and Jordan, of Brunswick, with 17, were next in line.

The reason that Brunswick led the pennant race is at once apparent, with the number of men that they have at the top in all departments of play. Here are the records for the players through Tuesday's games:

John N. Willys Believes In Newspaper Advertising

The Overland is frequently referred to as the most advertised of all motor cars. And this extensive publicity is declared by John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland company, to be the principal reason why the Overland can be sold at a price which would mean a loss on every car to the majority of manufacturers.

Mr. Willys points out how the widespread advertising done by his company has made it possible to market the new Overland Model 88 for so low a price at $1749.

He recently overheard a remark during a conversation in the smoker of a Pullman, indicating that the talker believed Overland advertising must cost about $200 per car. This, of course, is order for raw materials, the lower the price to the manufacturer. There is a benefit other than price which the consumer gets from the advertising—guarantee of quality. Good advertising may sell a poor article for a time, but we doubt if it can do it continuously on a profitable basis. Intensive advertising to pay continuously will be backed by a good article.

Mr. Willys states that the advertising done by his company in the newspaper has brought big results. "I have all the faith in the world in newspapers," he says. "The daily newspaper is the university of the masses. People who read no other publication read newspapers. They get their news of the world and form their opinions of people and things from what they read in the dailies."

"And the influence of the newspaper is by no means local. It extends far and wide of many miles around the center of publication. The great body of newspaper readers is composed of millions of city residents and hundreds of thousands of people who live in neighboring cities and towns and in the country. The vast army of travelers

—a Fifty H. P. 7-passenger SIX at $1050 (Motor—3 1/2" bore, 5" stroke)

This year the Studebaker announcement is more significant than ever before. It demonstrates more conclusively than ever Studebaker's leadership in the industry. For once again, Studebaker is announcing new cars at prices that completely recast all standards of value in the automobile industry. And never before has a dollar bought so much as it buys in these new Studebakers. They are the best cars in every detail that Studebaker ever built.

But while the prices are remarkably low, Studebaker has made no effort to manufacture a small, low-price car, to compete purely on a price basis.

THE PRICES ARE LOW SOLELY:

- 1—Because of largely increased volume of production.
- 2—Unrivalled manufacturing resources.
- 3—The Studebaker policy of manufacturing our cars complete in our own factories and thus eliminating part-makers' profits.
- 4—The greatly increased efficiency resulting from 4 years study and concentration on the manufacture of two chassis.
- 5—The high percentage of interchangeability of parts in the two chassis.

A whole Book of Specifications couldn't begin to convey the impression that your first glimpse of the cars will give—you must see the cars to appreciate them.

MOTORCYCLE RIDERS SEEK TAX REDUCTION

Do Not Believe They Should Have to Pay as Much as Drivers of Machines.

One of the most important questions of interest to the 4,000 motorcycle riders in the state of Georgia which the legislature now in session will be asked to act upon is the tax on a motorcycle that is imposed upon the rider of a motorcycle for the privilege of riding his machine on the roads of the state for a year. He has to pay the same tax that is asked of the driver of an automobile, whether his machine cost $200 or $2,000.

Romance of a Machinist Who May Become a Rear Admiral

By A. R. Parkhurst, Jr.

ATTAINMENT! Rank! Position! Romance! Attainment.—Achieving everything in life that his fondest dreams had conceived.

Rank!—Winning a place in his chosen field that places him on a footing of equality with men who have enjoyed early advantages that were denied him and the chance to rise, step by step, to the position of rear admiral.

Position!—A place second to none in the social Romance.—The right to woo and win the one girl in this world who is deemed worth while and who will stand loyally at his side in the later years of his fight to win life's battle.

All these things, and more, have been crowded into the life of Mr. Louis Randolph Ford, Ensign, United States Navy, who perhaps before these lines have appeared in print will have been promoted to the rank of lieutenant. At the recent commencement exercises of Columbia University Ensign Ford received the degree of Master of Arts. That in itself was enough to create a ripple of interest, inasmuch as the general but erroneous impression prevails that when a youth emerges from the United States Naval Academy, at Annapolis, he is through with his studies, for the time being at least, and from then on has only to don gold braid, much gold lace, buckle on his sword, place the quarterdeck and win a wealthy wife. But some of these day dreams were ever permitted to enter into the reckoning of Mr. Ford. In the very first place he was not fortunate enough, when a barefooted youngster of far away Texas, to obtain an appointment to the United States Naval Academy as a cadet. True, he had wanted to enter the navy ever since he was old enough to turn the leaves of the books depicting the valiant deeds of John Paul Jones, Decatur, Farragut, Porter and all the other heroes of the seven seas. But if this ambition was to be fulfilled only an indomitable will, pluck, no end of hard work and the expenditure of much gray matter could make it possible.

Mr. Ford adheres to that tenacious rule which most of our officers of the navy and army have held down for themselves—don't talk for publication. None of the facts gathered here could be drawn from Mr. Ford, who courteously but modestly remarked:—"In the first place, I don't care to see my name in print; in the second place, under no circumstances will I talk for publication; and, third but not last, I don't think any gentleman, especially an officer in the United States service, care to prattle about himself. I not only don't care to but I don't intend to."

Then he snapped that firm, strong jaw of his and shut up as tightly as an oyster, and nothing could induce him to utter another word on the subject. But the lord and master Mr. Ford has a way to honor, obey and protect—Uncle Sam—is not quite so modest when it comes to discussing the achievements of his loyal sons. He keeps a very well tabulated record of all that those who enter his service have done and, further, what he expects them to do. It is no violation of his confidence to say right here that he expects great things of Mr. Ford, and when he elevated him to the dignity of an officer in his navy he did so with a full knowledge of this young man's capabilities and the odds he had overcome to make himself worthy of such an honor.

Here are the facts I gleaned from the department files, and here they are set before the reader without the least embellishment:— Louis Randolph Ford was born at Jasper, Texas, on February 3, 1883. That, of course, makes him just thirty-two years old. He was one of seven children—three girls and four boys. When he was four years old his parents removed to Orange, Texas, a little lumbering town remarkable only for a very well equipped and extensive machine shop. Louis attended the public schools of Orange and graduated when fourteen years old. Conditions in his family were such that a college course was out of the question, and as there wasn't sufficient influence at hand to induce the Representatives of that Congressional district to give young Ford an appointment to Annapolis there was only one thing left for the boy—and that was to go to work.

Louis Ford had been a deep and discriminating reader from earliest youth. His taste ran to works of a historical nature, although for fiction he invariably turned to dashing tales of the sea. A commission in the navy seeming unobtainable by the surest and easiest route, young Ford flatly announced that the day was not far distant when he would make Uncle Sam accept him as one of his officers. Naturally such a prophecy met with jeers, for it hasn't been so many years back that mere mention of rising from the ranks of the navy to a full fledged officer was regarded as next to impossible. But Ford kept his own counsel and cast about for a job.

His love of the water directed his steps to the piers of the boats that piled up and down the Sabine River, on whose banks Orange was pitched, and it was not long before young Ford got a job aboard one of the tugboats touching that little port. For three years he continued at this work, and then applied at the machine shop of his home town for a berth as an apprentice machinist. It was understood that this apprenticeship was to extend over a period of four years, but the youth showed such a marked aptitude for mechanics of all sorts that after two years in the shops he was doing the work of a full fledged machinist.

At about this time one of the traveling recruiting squads that the Navy Department at that time sent through the country, a practice not now in vogue, came to Houston, Texas, and seeing the alluring advertisements that appeared in the newspapers, Ford went to Houston and after satisfying himself that there was a chance for advancement from the ranks, provided the young recruit did his duty, he decided to enlist. He was sent to the Mare Island Navy Yard, at San Francisco, as a machinist of the second class, his pay being fixed at $40 a month. He was soon transferred to the receiving ship that was being outfit there, and a little later was attached to the monitor Wyoming, which was just being placed in commission. That vessel has since been rechristened the Cheyenne. After working on board this ship for three months Ford was advanced to the grade of machinist of the first class, with an increase of $15 a month in pay. This advancement came to him through the personal recommendations of the chief engineer to the captain in charge of the vessel, and the promotion was looked upon by his fellow machinists as one of the most rapid that any enlisted man had won.

From then Ford, the machinist, got the sea experience he had so long dreamed of. He was at Panama when the revolution started there, and was in those waters about nine months. Then he returned to the Puget Sound Navy Yard, and on the way from Panama made application for examination as a warrant machinist, he having been made a machinist mate while at Panama. Ford had no sooner arrived at the Puget Sound yard than he received notice that the department had appointed an examining board on engineering subjects before which he must appear. He took the examination and returned to his work in the yard's shops. His papers had been forwarded to Washington, and while waiting to hear the outcome of the examination, he was ordered to report to Mare Island Navy Yard to stand an examination for the grade of chief machinist, a rank to which all warrant officers are advanced after six years of service. He passed this examination with flying colors, and after being assigned to the West Virginia he was transferred to Charleston, S. C., where he was assigned to the post of senior engineer officer on board the Baltimore.

All this time Ford had never lost sight of the fact that he intended to continue his meteoric flight through the various grades of non-commissioned rank until he became eligible for promotion to the commissioned grade. He wanted to be an ensign, which meant that a chasm yawned before him which his fellows among the warrant officers tried to convince him could not be bridged. But Ford would not be convinced. He had won his way thus far against terrific odds, and he saw no reason why he should not continue to advance. Accordingly, he made application for permission to stand an examination for an ensign's commission.

In July, 1912, Ford was ordered to Washington for examination. To say that the trip meant more to the Texas boy than any he had ever taken expresses it but mildly. But he was confident from the outset and had no idea that he would fail to pass whatever test he was required to undergo. The grilling the young machinist went through lasted for sixteen days. At his expiration he was notified that he could return to his ship, the Baltimore, where he would receive word of the outcome of the examination.

His suspense was not of long duration, for in a few days he was officially notified that he had passed his examination with the highest marks ever made by a warrant officer. He was a full fledged officer of Uncle Sam's navy at last—the goal he had set for himself as a barefoot boy in Texas. He was ordered to proceed without delay to Mare Island Navy Yard, where his commission would be forwarded. In the meantime he was to go aboard the Vicksburg and report for duty. But these orders were countermanded before they could become effective, for while en route Ensign Ford was ordered to proceed to San Diego and report on board the San Francisco, whither his commission would be sent. In sixteen days it came.

Ensign Ford was soon transferred to the Iris, where after doing duty as officer of the watch he later was placed in charge of a gun division. Later he was transferred to the Denver and went with that ship during its cruise of South American waters. This experience was of inestimable value to him, but his fondest hopes were realized when, a few months later, he was ordered to go to Annapolis, where he was to report to the commandant of the Naval Academy for duty and receive instruction in the Academy's post graduate course. The Navy Department each year selects about fifteen young officers of exceptional standing to take this course, thereby fitting them for some special duty. The course which young Ford took included the study of radio engineering, structural engineering, naval construction, ordnance and gunnery.

Ensign Ford spent the full term at the Academy, and at its close in June, 1914, he was ordered to the Naval Experimental Station, where he assisted in conducting numerous tests of naval machinery. He completed this work after a month and then went to New York city on his first leave as an officer of the line. At the expiration of his leave Ensign Ford was overjoyed to learn that he had been ordered to return to New York and enter Columbia University, where he was to take a post graduate course, a line of which was to be outlined and selected by the university authorities in collaboration with the naval board. This is as far as the Navy Department records show the career of Ensign Ford, and what follows has been learned from other sources.

Ensign Ford entered Columbia University and, as one of the professors there said, "worked his head off from the moment he entered. I never saw a better student." At the close of the academic year he received his degree of Master of Arts.

Entering the navy as a machinist at $40 a month, Mr. Ford finds himself to-day enjoying a salary of $8,000 per annum, and this will be materially increased in a few weeks when his rank has been elevated to that of lieutenant. Every five years of service there comes an increase of ten per cent for twenty years. He cannot get more than a forty per cent increase of pay for this on this longevity basis.

ENSIGN
LOUIS RANDOLPH FORD.
MRS. LOUIS RANDOLPH FORD
(GENIEVE CATHERINE KALT OF SOUTH NORWALK, CONN.)

When Mr. Ford went to New York on his first leave of absence as an officer he renewed acquaintance with close friends of his family he had known in Texas during his youth. Through them he received an invitation to a reception and dance to be given by some mutual friend living in Bitterside Drive. It was at this dance he met Miss Genevieve Catherine Kalt, daughter of Mrs. Catherine Kalt, formerly of South Norwalk, Conn., but now of New York city. It was evident to all that it was love at first sight between the young naval officer and the girl with whom he danced all evening. Both were good dancers, and it was remarked by their friends that nearly all the invitations the two accepted for the evening forthright were at functions where dancing was indulged in. The courtship was ardent, for in less than three months their engagement was announced.

They were married on New Year's Eve, 1914, the wedding being attended by many well known New York families and navy people. With his bride he went to Texas to spend his honeymoon and there present to his parents the first and only girl he had ever paid serious attention to since the day he announced to his family:—"I have no time for play or girls. I intend to win a commission in the United States Navy, and I guess that is a big enough job for any youngster who hasn't influence or pull to rely upon."

Ensign Ford is now attached to the New York Navy Yard, where he is to engage in further study along the line he pursued at the university with the purpose of eventually devoting himself to the designing of all sorts of naval machinery and the organization and management of shops in navy yards. The degree conferred upon the young machinist at Columbia University was all the more remarkable inasmuch as he had never taken the full course at the Naval Academy, and in consequence had never enjoyed the distinction of receiving his degree of A. B. But the faculty at the university decided that since he had taken and successfully passed an examination which earned him the rank of ensign he was, therefore, on an equal footing with other officers taking the same course who had entered the Naval Academy, as cadets and graduated. Other enlisted men had been promoted to a commission, but young Ford was the first to continue on his upward course and become eligible for a degree at the hands of a university.

A day or two after receiving his degree at Columbia Ensign Ford was asked if his brother officers, men who had graduated from Annapolis, had been cordial toward him.

"No man could have been treated with more consideration and kindness than I have been since receiving my commission. The officers with whom I have been so fortunate to be associated all have been gentlemen of the finest type. The warm hand of fellowship was extended to me at the very outset of my career, and I owe a great deal to these same men. They have helped me over many a rough place, and as few establishments—well, if such a thing exists it must be outside the navy, for I have never seen the slightest indication of it."

It might be interesting to add, now that Mr. William Jennings Bryan is so much in the limelight, that Mr. Ford's brother, John D. Ford, for many years has been editor of the Timpan (Texas) Times. He was elected Mayor of Timpan and was several times re-elected. He was an ardent Bryan supporter, and each time Mr. Bryan ran for office Mr. Ford contributed the entire salary as Mayor to the Bryan campaign fund. Mr. Ford's salary as Mayor of Timpan is one dollar per annum.

Statement Made by Rear Admiral Evans on Day He Retired

Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans on the day of his retirement from the United States Navy, August 19, 1908, while at Lake Mohonk, in the course of an interview, said:—"It has always been my policy to give the young Americans under my command every opportunity for advancement. I am proud of the fact that there are many young Americans holding commissions in the navy who won them fairly, and some of them are warrant officers performing excellent service for their country. MY EXPERIENCE HAS STAMPED THE UNITED STATES NAVY."

WALK, Says Uncle Sam. WALK, WALK, WALK.

Government warns that we are becoming a sedentary nation and that the death rate before the age of forty has materially increased. If you take no other form of exercise you should walk five miles a day.

By DELIA AUSTRIAN.

WALK, walk, walk," says Uncle Sam in recent government bulletins. This comes not merely as a word of warning to the American men and women; it is almost an imperative command.

You must walk if you would maintain your health and prolong your life. You may be surprised to learn that the death rate after the age of 40 is rapidly on the increase, notwithstanding the fact that the average length of life has been increased ten or fifteen years in the last twenty-five years. This is being caused, says our official health bureau, by our increased sedentary practices, which lead to hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure and other diseases of degeneration.

True, our mode of living as a great deal more sanitary than it was thirty years ago and greater protection has been secured against communicable diseases. Counteracting these measures, however, is the fact that most of us are occupied with more sedentary work than were our parents and grandparents. Either we work at home or in the office from seven to ten hours a day. The average worker feels that because he is interested in his work little harm comes from it. This hypothesis is incorrect. The scientific facts are that the muscles, arteries and other organs as a result of sedentary occupation are weakening.

You should be instinctive fond of walking, because it is the most primitive and therefore the most natural exercise. Long before there were motor cars, trains or carriages men and women walked. Their only other means of conveyance were horses, and riding is not such a bad exercise in itself.

Our ancestors, the cave man and cave woman, had no tennis, golf, no rowing matches. Their only sport was walking and swimming, though occasionally they may have used the skull and bone for hockey or a similar game.

Those who do not have to walk now because they have motor cars and street cars at their command should take as much exercise as possible.

If you walk erectly the upper muscles of your body are energized, while the lower extremities are alternately contracted and relaxed. The muscles of the chest are also contracted and strengthened. In walking you increase your respiratory action and this actually tends to increase as well as facilitate the burning up of poisonous

By exchanging pure air for foul air the appetite is increased, digestion promoted and the flow of the blood to the brain is stimulated. This means not better physical condition alone but a better quality of mental work.

Dr. William S. Sadler

Advocate of Walking
A little pathway winding in the woods that fringes the roadside, and with streams

*I come upon it suddenly, alone—
A little pathway winding in the woods
That fringes the roadside, and with streams*

*I wander as it leads
Full wistfully along the slender way,
Through summer sun of frooked shade*

*I take the path that leads me on its way—
Its every choice is mine.*

*And though it needs must lure me into
Out of the public highway, still I go,
My thoughts, far in advance in Indian file, Alone me own on.*

"The Daily Ride to and From Work May in Many Cases Be Changed, With Profit, to a Daily Walk. There Are Few Men and Women Who Are Leaving Home in the Morning for the Office Who Could Not Do Twenty to Forty City Blocks With the Utmost Ease."

"The daily ride to and from work may in many cases be changed with profit to a daily walk. There are few men and women who are leaving home in the morning for the office, or in the evening from the office for home, who could not do twenty to forty city blocks with the utmost ease and with the use of very little more time than is consumed in waiting on the corner for street cars, and in the slow journey of the trolley through traffic-crowded streets.

The amount of daily exercise required has been the subject of much discussion in scientific circles. It is impossible to offer definite rules. Everything depends upon the individual, his strength, the condition of his muscles, etc. It is my opinion that for the average healthy man or woman the daily amount of exercise which would keep the body strong and healthy is represented by a five or six mile walk in the open air, arms swinging, chest well expanded, abdominal muscles round, the spinal curve well maintained—in fact, the whole body thoroughly energized.

It must be remembered that this represents the sum total of exercise for one day. Now, if one does housework, walks to and from the office, climbs stairs or engages in any other line of work calling into use various muscles of the body—this work must be subtracted from the six-mile walk. This walk is suggested as representing an agreeable form of exercise.

Walking on a level surface at the rate of three miles an hour represents an amount of physical work equal to lifting one-twentieth of the body weight through the distance walked; that is, a man weighing 150 pounds walking six miles has done physical work equivalent to transporting seven and one-half pounds over the distance walked—six miles.

Stair climbing can be made to serve the place of mountain climbing. In order to perform the exercise of lifting 150 tons one foot high (the daily required exercise for the average healthy person—equivalent to walking six miles), it would be necessary to go up and down an ordinary flight of stairs 150 times during the day.

A good form of indoor exercise is running in place—such as taught at the gym-

Coach Stagg Says "Walk More, Ride Less"

ALONZO STAGG, professor and director of departments of physical culture and athletics at the University of Chicago, approves of the statement made by the public health service and by Dr. Sadler. As he puts it, "Walk more and ride less. Frown on the auto car no less than the street car when you have a chance to walk. Walking is decidedly good; it is the best general exercise. It gives movements to all the parts of the body except the arms. If you hold yourself straight you give plenty of play to the muscles of the back. The propelling movement gives play to the abdominal and leg muscles. If you swing the arms with vigor you give play to the muscles of the arm, the superficial muscles of the thorax and the intercostal muscles.

"By inhaling properly you put plenty of fresh air into the lungs to drive out the impure air, and develop the chest. The muscles of the diaphragm are given their share of exercise and grow strong. The average person should find his even gait in walking and try to keep it. A certain amount of running is good, because it contracts the abdominal muscles, develops the muscles of the legs and brings the poisonous secretions to the surface. For this reason it is a good form of exercise for the man or woman wanting to reduce.

"Young children should do their share of walking and running every day. These are their chief exercises and they develop the muscles of the arms and legs as well as those of the chest. As they grow older they commence to have their games and their indoor sports. If they go in for baseball and football, tennis, golf and swimming they need to walk and ride less.

"Though they do all this they should be made to walk to and from school. Under no circumstances should they be allowed to use an auto car or street car instead of their two legs. It is a painful sight these days to see the children of the rich riding to and from school in auto cars and the children of the middle classes in street cars. One reason why golf is such a splendid exercise is it forces men and women to walk basins. 'Heel raising' is another good form of exercise. Raising on the toes (raising heel two inches each time) fifteen hundred times is equal to walking one mile, or (in case of person weighing 200 pounds) lifting twenty-five tons one foot high.

"Some heavy individuals when threatened with a cold are able to abort it by taking a long walk in the open air. This is a good idea, provided there is no fever and the cold is taken early. In the case of weakened or only moderately strong persons, and where the cold has had a good start, it would certainly be unwise to attempt to break it up by such measures."

YOUR Costume Has Much to Do With Pleasant Walking. Make Yourself Comfortable First, Then Strike Out.

How to Walk Correctly

TO GET the most from walking, you should learn to walk correctly. Be sure to hold your chest and head high. Keep your arms to your side or let them swing modestly.

You should have an energized carriage and the right way to get it is to get your movement from the hips. Walk with your legs, not by a swing or swaying of the whole body.

Step into the length and do not turn the knees out so much. See how smoothly you can glide along and take natural deep breaths as you move. This will give you the feeling that you are being wafted through space instead of laboriously treading on hard earth.

Tip the upper part of your body slightly forward to partly cover your feet. Try to forget your feet and create a desire to attract attention to your head instead.

Strike down with the heel, but let the weight slip to the outer and fore part of the foot and this will break the jar on the sole of the foot and lessen the strain on the arch.

If you are not a walking enthusiast, begin your regime gradually. Start to cover a mile, then two and gradually work up to five or six. Any man or woman should be able to walk five miles and even six or eight without feeling any bad effects.

comes to the treating of lung diseases and nervous troubles they use fresh air and exercise more than anything else. A part of the treatment is to rest in the open, to work and walk in the open. Take a hint from these patients and keep well by walking.

Why Uncle Sam Pays $157,325,160 in Pensions

THERE is no country which carries so large a pension list in proportion to the size of its army as the United States. The pension system was started early in the life of our nation and was enlarged tremendously by the civil war and the late Spanish-American war.

In the year 1866, immediately following the close of the civil war, the appropriation by Congress for the payment of pensions amounted to a little more than $15,000,000. In 1911, or forty-five years later, the amount paid out on account was $167,325,160. Annual pension payments on account of the civil war have increased ten fold fifty years after the close of the war and continue on an ascending scale. Since the close of the war in 1865 pension payments on account of service in that war aggregate upward of $4,000,000,000.

When pensions were first provided for in this country they were supposed to reach the real veterans who were disabled through wounds or disease. As years went by the resourcefulness of the pension list was increased to include the deserter, so long as he did not leave his command while in the presence of the enemy.

The short Spanish-American war swelled out pension list greatly. The report of the commissioner of pensions shows that between July, 1891, and June 13, 1896, invalid pensions were allowed under the general law to 566,255 volunteers, and under the act of June 27, 1890, to 451,531, a total of 1,017,786. During the period from July 1, 1891, to Jan. 1, 1901, pensions were allowed to 30,293 regulars, including the wounded and invalided men of more than thirty years of almost constant Indian warfare.

To make the comparison intelligible, the total number of volunteers who enlisted in the civil war, reduced to a basis of three years' service, is 3,324,818 men. The total number of men on the rolls of the regular army during the whole period from 1861 to 1901 is 877,000, including enlistments.

Up to June 30, 1900, 1,007,786 volunteers out of 2,224,518 were in receipt of pensions, while only 30,293 regulars out of 377,000 were recipients of such bounty. This shows that the regulars were being singularly free in pension seeking, and the volunteers were not.

The increase of expense for short-term volunteers arises not only from pensions but from waste and injury of public property. Washington observed such conditions at the very beginning of the revolutionary war, when he wrote from Harpers Heights on Sept. 24, 1776, the following:

"It becomes evident to me that as this contest is not likely to be the work of a day, as the war must be carried on systematically, and to do it you must have good officers, there are no possible means to obtain them but by establishing your army upon a permanent footing, and giving your officers good pay."

Terminal Section Growth One of Atlanta's Marvels

DEVELOPMENT NOT "A BUBBLE OR A DREAM"

In the transformation of a mountain wilderness into a metropolis, when the rugged peak of the Piedmont became the great city of Atlanta, many magic-like changes took place, and from time to time sections of the city that were obscure and little known suddenly became either live business centers or beautiful home parks.

But in all this wonderful development, there has probably been none that has equaled the marvelous changes that have taken place in what is known as the "Terminal Section."

By the "Terminal Section" is meant that part of the city adjacent to the new Terminal Station. In it can be included the business section along the following streets:

Home Sites of Pioneers

Many years ago this section was occupied by some of the homes of pioneers. The two blocks bounded by Madison avenue, Peters, Forsyth and Nelson streets and by Nelson, Madison avenue, Forsyth and Mitchell streets was once the site of the old Inman home. It was the extension of Nelson street through this property and the erection of many fine stores by the late Sam M. Inman that did more than any other factor to develop the "Terminal Section."

Of course, it was the building of the Terminal Station that brought about the wonderful change in that part of the city. No sooner had it become known that the new Terminal Station was to be built on its present site than real estate on surrounding blocks jumped up in value. A few of the wise ones had secured options and some well substantiated stories have been told about small fortunes having been made.

Before Developments Began

Before the Terminal Station was built Madison avenue was known as Thompson street and it was scarcely more than a back alley filled with old shacks and inhabited by worthless whites and negroes. Alabama street from Forsyth to Madison avenue was not much better. Forsyth street between Hunter and Mitchell was not considered in the business class. Mitchell between Broad and Madison avenue was occupied by cheap stores and shabby lodging houses. There was no Nelson street between Madison avenue and Forsyth street.

The entire section was outside of the business district and real estate values were as low as anywhere in the city.

Then came the wonderful change. The Terminal Station was built, immediately the old structures in that section were torn down and the erection of large buildings was begun.

Now, where there had been old shacks and vacant lots, there are some of the finest business houses in the city, including retail and wholesale houses, hotels and manufacturers.

The business center of Atlanta was moved westward when an almost deserted area was transformed into a stirring, moving and hustling mart, of busy business men.

Not Even Fires Could Stop It

Not even a great conflagration could stop the remarkable development. One of the most disastrous fires that ever occurred in Atlanta swept over

Striking Terminal Section Scene

The Terminal Section a few years ago and many of the finest buildings were reduced to smoldering ruins; but not for long did the wreck remain, for immediately the debris was cleared away and new buildings, even more costly than the others, were erected.

That was like Atlanta. It was pointed out—always rising higher when the torch tried to work a ruin—as was the case when Sherman's army became a little too careless with fire back in the sixties. On the city's seal is the Phoenix rising from the ashes, and when the fire came into the Terminal Section once more did the city rise like the Phoenix.

Nothing could have emphasized more the permanent development of that part of the city than did that fire.

It has been estimated at the city tax office that within the past fifteen years real estate in the Terminal Section has increased about 800 per cent. That means that a piece of property which was worth $1,000 fifteen years ago is worth today $1,000,000. Looks a little like an Aladdin and his wonderful lamp proposition, doesn't it? But it is nevertheless true. Can any other city in the south show such a wonderful development of any part of its territory?

Many Leading Business Houses

Take any one of the streets in that section, Forsyth, Mitchell, Madison, Nelson, Broad or Hunter, and you will find there some of the leading business houses of Atlanta. That men with an eye to business should locate there is ample proof that an almost deserted section of Atlanta has become a business center. And these merchants and business men are prospering. They are where they can command a good trade and they are taking advantage of it.

The railroads, knowing what a change was to be made of the Terminal Section, were quick to improve their terminal facilities and have erected large and up-to-date freight depots.

It is a wonderful story that the Terminal Section tells of a growing city's prosperity, and the best of it is that it is not a "bubble or a dream," but a great reality that redounds to the credit and glory of the Gate City of the South.

Forsyth street to Madison avenue there are four of the leading wholesale concerns in the city.

On Broad street between Mitchell and Hunter streets there are 14 mercantile houses.

On Forsyth street between West Hunter and Nelson streets there are 11 mercantile establishments, one hotel and a social club.

All of this in a section of the city that was fifteen years ago hardly on the municipal map.

In this section you can find every branch of trade. It is a business district to meet and one can do a day's shopping and buy everything wanted without leaving its confines.

What speaks well for the Terminal section in a business way is the fact that it contains no cheap or shabby stores.

For over forty years there stood on West Mitchell street, near Thompson street, now Madison avenue, a two-story frame house, said to have been just after the war the home of an Atlanta pioneer.

From 1835 to 1846 it was used as a boarding house. Then it fell into disrepair and became a very cheap lodging house. When the Terminal revolution took place a brick store was built adjacent to the old lodging house and one day the excavations caused the house to totter and tumble.

Scene Was Typical

The scene was typical of what has taken place on all the streets in the Terminal section. Old frame houses were made to tumble to give place to modern and up-to-date stores and hotels.

And what is more, the improvements in that section are not at a standstill; but developments continue. Trade continues to improve and traffic increases.

What is to be the future of this part of Atlanta no one can say, but it seems certain that it will keep improving and developing as the whole city grows.

It seems destined to always be one of the best-known furniture men in the south.

WALTER J. WOOD

General manager of the Rhodes-Wood Furniture company, and one of the best-known furniture men in the south.

TERMINAL SECTION TRADE IS GROWING

Now Has Ninety-Three Mercantile Establishments, Eight Hotels, Six Manufacturers and Three Cafes.

Ninety-three mercantile establishments, eight hotels, six manufacturers and three cafes.

That is the business showing today of a section of Atlanta that only a few years ago had shacks and shanties and unpaved streets. That section is the Terminal district.

Take West Mitchell from Broad street to Madison avenue. Along that thoroughfare for the two blocks you will find 45 mercantile establishments, three hotels, two cafes and a ready concern.

On Madison avenue, from West Hunter to Peters street, there are four hotels, ten mercantile houses, one cafe, two freight depots and one of the largest bakeries and candy manufacturers in the south.

How He Built a Fortune

One of the most successful men of America, when asked as to the chief thing to which he attributed his success, replied: "I built my fortune on the dial of my watch. Seconds became pennies; minutes became dimes; hours became dollars. I never PROCRASTINATED; I never waited for other people to get ahead of me. I don't know that there is any particular rule or law of success, but I'm pretty sure that one of the foundation principles is, 'DO IT NOW.'"

Shakespeare Says:

"There is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." Will you launch your boat on the swell of that tide and be carried forward with it, or will you wait until it has passed and be swamped in the undertow?

You should be receiving a salary of from $300 to $1,000 one year from this date, and two years from now you should be drawing a salary of from $1,000 to $3,000. Make a note of this assertion. Two years from now pass judgment on yourself, but don't plead the excuse, "I didn't know."

You can, under our direction, begin a plan of action which will absolutely force the business world to deliver to you One Thousand Dollars or more each year in return for your services. Will you begin that plan of action today by purchasing a scholarship in DRAUGHON'S—America's greatest business schools?

Miss Pearl Brown says:

"When I decided to take a business course, I was at a loss to know where to enroll, but on investigating I readily decided on Draughon's. On the completion of my course the college secured me a position as stenographer with the National Life Association at Atlanta, at an attractive salary, and I have since been made secretary and treasurer. I give Draughon's College, with its superior system and able instructors, credit for my success."

When my mother decided to give me a business education, we made a thorough investigation of the different business colleges, and it is a source of great gratification to me now that we selected Draughon's in preference to all others. After six months' study in bookkeeping and shorthand combined, I accepted a position as stenographer, where there are two other Draughon graduates employed, with the Home Station Company, Atlanta, one of the largest wholesale dry goods houses in the city. I know I am giving entire satisfaction.

Terminal Section Has Had Most Interesting History

There stands on an elevated site, just west of the railroads and near the Terminal station, the old Callier home, of colonial style and built before the war.

On the front porch of the old home there sat for many days John W. Callier, one of the foremost among the pioneers of Atlanta. From that porch he viewed many changes in what is now the Terminal section of Atlanta. He married then at what was going on, but it is lived today by would-be marvel.

Here he would see the Terminal station, new freight depot and long rows of fine buildings, where, in his time, were only cottages or open fields.

The development of the Terminal section recalls other changes that have taken place in and around Atlanta, and brings up reminiscences of which the old-timers have spoken.

Here is what John Thrasher, had to say: "Atlanta in 1838.

"When I arrived in this place in 1838 the country was entirely covered by forests. There was but one house here at that time and that stood where the old postoffice was formerly located. It was built of logs and was occupied by an old woman and her daughter. I found also a man by the name of Thurman living nearby. I went to work and built a small store, and then another, until I thought we had a rich, smart little town. The people around here were very poor. There were a great many of the women who had no shoes at all. We had dirt floors in our homes.

"As the place grew up the present Whitehall street was the place for drinking and fishing. I sold out and went to Griffin, but returned in 1844 and went into business on Marietta street. At that time Jonathan Norcross had a horse sawmill which was regarded as a curiosity and people came for many miles just to look at it.

"The first event of importance was the attempt to incorporate the town. A charter was procured, but some of us objected to the laws that were spoken, and I paid a lawyer $50 to bust up the whole thing, and we went along without a charter. In 1846 we got together, had the town incorporated and named it Mariettaville.

"A lot in Terminal Section.

"Now here comes a bit of history about a lot in the present Terminal section of the city.

"At one time," stated Mr. Thrasher, "I was absent from the town. My brother-in-law bought a piece of land 30 feet long, running back 200 feet, between Mitchell and Hunter streets, next to Jones building, for $60. It was very much provoked when I heard of it, for I had previously offered to give $2 an acre for the same land, and he had given at the rate of 12 a foot for it. A little while after that he sold the same land for $25, and I told him the fools were not all dead yet and never to buy another piece of property in Atlanta by the foot.

"The piece of property referred to by Mr. Thrasher is now worth $25,000.

"Mr. Thrasher mentioned that the lot on which is located the Kimball house once sold at auction for $100.

"Here is what H. C. Holcombe, another old pioneer, had to say:

"In the year 1844 it was in Atlanta, then Mariettaville, and found only a few small houses on Decatur street, opposite the site of the Kimball house, two or three on King's corner (Five Points), and some few trading shanties at other points. There were no railroads at that time.

"254 People in 1847.

"In 1847, on the 4th day of May, the population of Atlanta was 254. The grounds on which stand the depot of the state road was covered with a forest of sturdy oaks. In the midst of the forest was a marsh where grew cane and reeds. Cane often mired up in the marsh. The place has been filled up, for it was 30 feet lower than at present. There were but two houses on Alabama street.

"In this connection, while speaking of the Terminal district, it might be interesting to tell how the streets in that section were named.

"Broad street was so named because it was at that time the widest street in the city.

"Forsyth street was named for William Forsyth, a pioneer citizen.

"Hunter street was named after a pioneer citizen.

"Madison avenue was named for

The Housekeeper's Council Table

A Page of Practical Talks On the Home, Conducted by Dorothy Dolan

Using a Broad Casement and a Big Fireplace to Add Cheer and Comfort to the Entire House

By MME. MAISON.

WITH a broad casement window and a good big fireplace most any room may be made attractive and comfortable. It is now quite the thing to combine the use of two rooms into one big one, like a living and dining room, a hall and living room, etc.

This may be a very happy combination if care is taken in selecting the furniture so that all appearance of overcrowding is avoided. The wall may be paneled with strips of molding which is used as a picture molding, allowing a drop in the ceiling if the walls are nine feet in height. Have the fireplace extended to the ceiling with a rather high mantel shelf of wood. Beams if not too many or too heavy for the size of the room are good in this type of room.

If the size of the room is from 12 by 12 feet two beams will be sufficient. Stain the same as the woodwork. A few old pieces of pewter or rare old china plates may stand on the mantel and a grandfather's clock will be perfectly at home in the corner near by, with a table at the end of the window seat built under the casement window and ample enough to permit of a ruffled cushion and pillows so it may be used as a couch to rest one's weary self when so inclined.

I remember a dear old lady once saying: "It is so handy to have a place where one can lay down and not spoil the bed," so an essential in a living room is some such place, and I always advocate pillows and cushions to be made of washable fabric.

A valance and side draperies are all that is necessary at the windows if the view outside is a lovely one and no neighbors near enough to make close screening a necessity. It is a delight to frame our outdoor pictures by windows as free from curtains as possible, especially in the summer time.

A rush-bottomed, high-backed chair may invite one to the fireplace, which may have black andirons if brass are too expensive—in fact, if the bricks used are dark red I rather like the black fire things best.

A Combination Living and Dining Room.

Please advise me in regard to furnishings for a small dining-room to be used as a sitting-room. Would a rug, chairs, dining table, buffet and refrigerator be appropriate or too much?

All the articles mentioned are quite necessary in a combination sitting-room and dining-room except the refrigerator. You will have a place that in the kitchen or in a place especially built for it where it may be filled from the outside.

napkins to Match.

I have come to you again for advice. This time I have a lunch cloth, round, forty-eight inches, the size of my table; then it has heavy hand-made lace about seven inches wide around it. This hangs down just from the edge of the table. I am going to get a large initial on it. How large shall I make it? I have plenty left for luncheon napkins. How can I finish them to match the lunch cloth?

I thought of mauling the edge and putting a small initial in the corner. Would that be all right, or can you think of a prettier way? How large will the napkins be? A READER.

You may use a letter four or five inches high on the cloth. Use the same style of letter on the napkins, only smaller. You may make them twenty-two, twenty, eighteen or sixteen inches square and finish with a narrow edge of chum lace or the scalloped. Both ways are equally good.

A Long Vacation for Mother Without Leaving Her Own Home

By DOROTHY DOLAN.

PERHAPS you have never stopped to consider your greatest asset as a housekeeper. Since this question is being so forcibly presented you doubtless will either say that good cooking or skill in other lines associated with housekeeping is your greatest asset. Since you are a capable and conscientious housekeeper it is only natural for you to feel that way.

The truth of the matter is that your health is your chief asset and should be your chief consideration. You are the center of your home and everything that goes on in your home gravitates about you. Your housekeeping has run so smoothly through the winter, there has been so much sunshine and so little unhappiness within the quarters of these walls, that neither your husband nor children begin to realize how much planning and thinking it has taken to keep the wheels of the machine running so easily and smoothly.

You yourself have been so busy supplying their material and social needs that you rarely realize how much energy you have expended in that direction. It is only since the fine summer weather has made its appearance that you feel tired, and that you are working with your nerves instead of with your muscles.

If you are to continue to service to your family and friends you must take this tired feeling and add it to a word of warning. Experience, courage and brain are only a part. Good health and steady nerves must be there if you are to continue in even measure day after day.

You are surprised to discover that

Cabbage Salad—Take half a head of cabbage, shred very fine and plunge into cold water until crisp. Drain well and put in a bowl. Make a good salad dressing of half cupful of cream. Add a tablespoonful sugar and one teaspoonful salt. If you like a sour flavor, put in a teaspoonful of vinegar.

Rice Croquettes With Cheese Sauce—Roll a cupful of rice in two and a half cupful of milk. If not tender, add more milk. Season with two tablespoonfuls of butter, a pinch of salt, a dash of paprika and mix with two beaten egg yolks and chill. When cold and stiffened mold into cones, balls or cylinder forms. Dip in crumbs, then in egg whites and in crumbs again. Cook the sauce well before adding the cheese. Serve as soon as it is melted.

Carrots—Peel and cut in rounds, in cubes or long strips. Cook in boiling cream sauce or toss the carrots in the following mixture: Two cupfuls of the cut carrots take one tablespoonful sugar, lemon juice, a little salt and pepper. Pour into a saucepan and shake till the mixture is absorbed. Carrots and peas served together are appetizing.

How to Make a Wooden Wedding Much More Interesting Than Its Commonplace Name Would Indicate

By DAME CURTSEY.

THE seventh wedding anniversary is celebrated by the wooden wedding, and it can be made a much more enjoyable affair than the name indicates. For the table centerpiece have a large cake; if it is placed on a fern-decorated box to raise it up the effect will be more pleasing. On the top put a doll dressed as "Little Bo-Peep" and a lot of tiny woolly sheep, which may be purchased for a penny apiece at a toy shop. At each place, or as souvenirs for the guests, have a little sheep with a ball on a ribbon around the neck.

For amusement prepare a number of cards about seven by five inches in size; have needles and various colored worsted ready. Tell the guests to prick any design they wish in the card and then work it with the wool after the kindergarten method. Allow a half hour for this and then collect the finished creations and pin them up to be judged after the artists have signed their names. Award a prize for the best and poorest. After the refreshments pass a huge ball of yarn to a person whom you know to be a good story teller and request him or her to spin a yarn as the ball is unwound until a package is reached; then that person appropriates the "find," passes the ball to the next person, who continues the story where it was left off until he, too, is stopped by an obstacle in the ball. There are any number of small favors that may be used in making this ball.

Try mutton pie may form a feature of this entertainment, as they are suggestive of "wool." Any of the essays by Charles or Mary Lamb would be suitable for prizes; also a drawing or a framed sketch of the ever adorable "Mary" and her immortal "Lamb."

Novel Shower Scheme.

This is a pretty way to present the gifts to a bride at a shower if the articles are small, like hostery or handkerchiefs. Make a sack Homer pie in the colors the hostess wishes to have and when dessert time comes (if the occasion is a luncheon) ask each guest to pull her ribbon, and as the package is forthcoming each one has some excuse to find like "This piece of pie is too large. Please hand it to Miss B." (the honored guest). "My piece is very much too small. Just pass it to Miss B." This makes loads of fun and opening the parcels adds zest to the occasion. It is well to have an appropriate sentiment written on the donor's card to be read aloud. Handkerchiefs and stockings may be rolled and concealed in tissue paper with the strings and so look like the wrapped ones. They are packed in small boxes and are easily unpacked. Our neighbors in the 5-very kingdom are very fond of ball games, but I do not know any well enough to describe them.

am coming to you for advice. I am a girl of almost 17 years and when I am introduced to anyone should I always rise and should I always offer my hand?

It is polite to rise when being presented; if to an older person I consider it proper thing to offer one's hand. In fact, I am very old-fashioned about many things and I think the extended hand is symbolic of courtesy always, especially in one's own home.

Questions From the Juniors.

The Juniors are going to give a reception for the Seniors, and intend to have everything Japanese in the refreshment-room. Now, we would like to carry this scheme out also in the refreshments. Can you suggest some? Do you know of a Japanese game that we could play?

Thanks very much for your former help to us.

Cherry loss or dwarfed would be delicious with a candied cherry on the top of each portion. You know cherry blossom time is a great festival in Japan. Serve with small frosted cakes, or you can get, in large cities, real Japanese wafers made from rice meal. They are packed in small boxes and are easily unpacked. Our neighbors in the 5-very kingdom are very fond of ball games, but I do not know any well enough to describe them.

By DOROTHY DOLAN.

attention. Now the time is at hand when you should enjoy all the recreation and other special articles you like. How peaceful and sweet is the movement of the hammock and the freshness of those breezes as you read on and on, so find yourself in the land of dreams.

If you jump up with a start, almost sorry because you have taken several hours of rest, you may enjoy an extra bit of nourishment. Let this be a tumbler of milk and a couple of biscuits. When you tire of this diet alternate it with a plate of fresh fruit.

How splendid by way of variety to sit down at the table with the children feeling that you have not done one thing to put the home in apple-pie order but to prepare the luncheon. To make the most of this holiday you will want dainty summer dishes instead of those wholesome, nourishing meals which you have been planning and preparing all winter and spring.

While you are writing and taking little easy you will enjoy a number of these dishes, such as cheese pudding, cauliflower and cheese, cheese toast and cheese omelet. Though you have had your quota of salads all winter you still want them, especially when they are made up of a number of luscious fruits, and such vegetables as tomatoes, asparagus and others that have been extremely scarce all winter. You never enjoyed ice cream and only so much in your life. You are worse than the youngest of your children when it comes to the enjoying of these goodies! The flavor comes in the knowledge that these desserts have been prepared for you. You have not had a hand in their making as you have been doing.

Vivian's Heart Chats

THE other day one of our council friends said in a letter: "I am very much worried about the feeling my husband has for my mother. He is jealous of our affection. He accuses me of giving my mother more thought and love than him. I blame him the more, because he knows that I am an only child and I have been all in all to my mother ever since I lost my father. I am so exasperated at times by my husband's folly that I want to leave him and go back to mother."

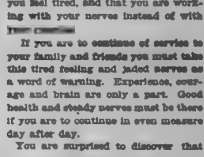

I should pass this question merely answering the young woman, had not a number of such cases come to my notice. It is the height of folly for any man or woman to be jealous of the other's affection for his or her family. If they are normal-thinking men and women they will understand that it is far more natural for us to care for our own flesh and blood than to be indifferent about them. This is especially true where a mother is concerned.

As children we are not conscious of the meritorious and responsibilities that come to the average good and loving mother. Usually it is only after a man or woman is grown and considers the social relations of life somewhat more seriously that he commences to acknowledge to himself that, however devoted he is to his mother, he can never do enough for her. Now if most men realize this important truth, certainly women do, and it is only natural that they should want to give expression to this feeling by love and plenty of attention.

If a man really loves his wife he should be fond of her people, especially of her mother. When this feeling is not natural he should try and cultivate it. He should realize it is very hard to give up loving the one you have clung to in affection from the day you were born. Should he for some real or supposedly real reason not be able to have a genuine feeling of affection for his mother-in-law, he should not foolishly interfere between wife and daughter or do anything that might shake this loyal and natural bond of love.

He should go further and realize that it is his duty to be considerate.

Housekeepers & Hotel Men Attention!

Here Are 338 Dozen Bath Towels & Mats at

1/3 off

THESE are the identical numbers in bath towels and mats that we sell every day at full prices. This lot comes to us under price because they are the mill's accumulation of "seconds"—towels with a slight oil spot, a dropped thread, an uneven border or other slight mar. Nothing to hurt—a towel expert would be often puzzled to find a flaw. The bath mats are in colors; the towels are all white. An exact analysis of the 338 dozens divides the towels and mats thus:

COMPULSORY EDUCATION IS URGED BY BRITAIN

Forty-third Annual Report of Department of Education is Made to the Governor.

The forty-third annual report of the department of education has been submitted to the governor by Professor M. T. Brittain, state superintendent of schools.

The report is one of the most exhaustive and complete that has ever been made of Georgia's schools, covering in detail all matters pertaining to every educational institution under control of the state.

Speaking of the expense of the state's public school system, Mr. Brittain says: "What the State Expends."

"Uninformed persons frequently make statements in public on the subject of the great cost of our public schools that it is not proper for the matter to be set right officially."

Instead of our spending much for public education in this state, he says, the state spends more, but he says that only three states spend less, and that only four spend more.

Mr. Brittain says that the educational interest of the state has suffered by reason of delay in the payment of teachers.

He says that the delay was greater than usual, "because we had had to lead to expect half through the year."

Free Text Books.

Speaking of free text books for primary grades, he says that it is better to furnish the free texts than to increase the school appropriation.

He says that the free texts would be more costly and practical if presented in the shape of free text books.

Referring to the effort that has been made to have the act printed by the state, Mr. Brittain says, as to printing.

"My own personal view has always varied from that of the dissenting forces generally, in the belief that the state ought, in justice to itself, to print this matter both as to publication outside and by the method of printing plates also. With some text of local color like its history, being accomplished, Mr. Brittain favors an illustration to look after the adults who have grown up without books to read or write."

Compulsory Education.

For the enforcement of a compulsory education law, Mr. Brittain offers the following suggestion.

"The first is somewhat unusual, but it is so simple that it would seem to reach the trouble effectively. It is in effect that you consider the passage of a simple bill, a dozen lines in length, declaring that every father who neglects to provide his children with the necessary food, clothing, medical attention and education to the extent at least of reading, writing, and the calculation of simple figures may be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction may be fined not less than $10 or in default of this compelled to work the public roads not less than ten days."

The report embraces reports of county superintendents, and the superintendents of all of the state's educational institutions. The information given from all departments is full and complete.

PERMANENT HIGHWAYS ARE URGED BY SIBLEY

Indorses Andrews Bill for Commission—Says Better Roads Mean Less Maintenance.

"As Georgia always keeps pace in the march of progress in all things affecting her welfare, I am confident the bill to create a state highway commission will be promptly enacted by the legislature," said John W. Sibley, secretary-treasurer of the Southern Paving Brick Manufacturers' association, who has been attending the quarterly meeting of the association at Birmingham, being president of the "Dismount club."

Mr. Sibley is an ex-Governor, being a member of the Sibley family of Augusta, but has for many years resided in Birmingham, being president of the chamber of commerce in 1912.

"Water F. Andrews is to be highly commended for his far-seeing and patriotic wisdom in preparing and introducing this bill," said Mr. Sibley, "as the only way to intelligently and economically coordinate the work of road building by the various counties, is through a state highway commission."

Good Roads Save Expense.

The annual cost of maintenance of temporary roads, especially large counties like Fulton, would easily pay the interest on bonds to construct permanent and dependable highways like the certified brick road built by Fulton county last year, and the extension of that road to other counties, where the concrete has been successfully used in the county last year.

Upon the recommendation of Governor Andrews, an special message in 1914 the legislature of New York approved the plan of discontinuing the waste of many millions of dollars on macadam roadways, and all state highways are being built on permanent basis. This has long been practiced in Ohio and Pennsylvania and other progressive states, all of which have state highway commissions, with the most efficient and competent engineers in charge of same, under the control of the governor and other members.

Aid to Farmers.

Mr. Sibley said he recently visited Cleveland, Ohio, and inspected the splendid highways of Cuyahoga county built of vitrified brick, some of which have been laid for fifteen years, and have not cost the county anything for repairs and are good for many years more.

This single county has over 500 miles of such highways and the adjoining counties, under the state highway commission, have co-operated in building an interurban highway between Cleveland and Akron, seventy miles, over which a motor truck service is operated on regular schedule, not only to the great benefit of the consumer, but the wholesale merchant and the truck farms.

"There is no sound reason why Georgia should not in a few years accomplish similar results, and it is entirely fitting that the great county of Fulton should take the initiative in this most important movement," observed Mr. Sibley.

HOSPITAL FOR CRIPPLES IN RECEIPT OF $100,000.

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 26.—(Special.)—Mrs. Minnie Battle Allen, who will be the founder of the Georgia State Hospital for Cripples, is quite enthusiastic over the fact that her efforts have so far secured subscriptions of $100,000 toward the erection of the buildings. It is planned to place the institution in Augusta, where the noteworthy staff of the medical college and the climate will combine to make for comfort for the unfortunate who it is intended to reach. After a visit in the east, Miss Allen intends to tour the state this summer and secure funds for the financing of the project.

POLICE PERSONALS BY TULLOCH ROBBER

Captain W. F. Terry, not the oldest policeman on the Atlanta force, but the one having the whitest locks, has a new "hobbyhorse"—the captain is learning to drive the new Ford machine at police station. Captain Terry officer broke a toe on his right foot in the fall.

Judge Tom Taylor, who was run over by an auto recently at Pine Point, is gradually recovering from his injuries. One of his legs was broken, and the other fractured slightly. He is at the Grady hospital.

Patrolman Powell, who was operated on at Grady two weeks ago, is reported as being much better.

I. C. Asher, who has been confined in the hospital from sickness for several weeks, is now much improved.

Detective George Garner, whose right leg was broken in nine places in an auto accident several months ago, will not be able to return to work for several weeks yet.

"CRIBBING" PROBE DRAWING TO CLOSE

Annapolis, Md., June 25.—A definite probe into "cribbing" investigation at the Naval Academy was reached today when Judge-Advocate Wait at the close of the morning session of the court of inquiry announced that he had no further witnesses to call at this time. The defense, accordingly, will begin on Monday the examination of its witnesses from among the members of the regiment of midshipmen now quartered aboard the ships of the practice squadron.

It is considered probable that the cruise of the midshipmen to the San Francisco exposition will start within a week. Complaint against Knigh R. Burben, one of the defendants, was filed by Ensign J. L. Secrea with the commandant of midshipmen and today forwarded to the court by that officer. Burben was charged with contempt of court in attempting to talk to a witness while the latter was on the stand under the guard of McCrea. Burben submitted a written statement to the court in which he said he had no intention of breaking any rule of the court, but thought as a defendant he had a right to converse with any witnesses. The court stated that it would announce its action upon the statement at some later date.

Call this car, which is used by the call officers and policemen stationed at headquarters, his "gitty" bus.

Captain Terry says his private car, and Mr. Morris has his, so I guess I will just adopt that young fellow for my own "gitty" bus.

It is not an infrequent sight on the streets now to see Captain Terry, once famous horse discarded, rounding up his patrolmen in his so-called "gitty" bus.

Uncle Jack Tippin, one of the best patrolmen on the force, is confined at the Grady hospital, where he is suffering from a stroke of paralysis. Uncle Jack was found by a street car conductor on Fair street at the Oakland cemetery box, last Monday night, stiffened with paralysis. His condition, much to the regret of his many friends, is little improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Swint, of Albermarle avenue, informally entertained at cards a few of their friends last Thursday evening, and among the guests were Chief Inspectors and Assistant Chief E. L. Jett, the father of Mrs. Swint.

call Officer B. R. Haslett, who recently shot himself through his foot by a bullet which had passed through the body of a mad dog and glanced from a car, is still walking on crutches. He is taking the Pasteur treatment for his third time, having been bitten by mad dogs on two former occasions when his attempts were checked the onrush of the beasts on a crowd of small children.

Officer Bill McKinney, the smallest policeman of the force, has returned to work after being confined to his home on crutches for two weeks as the result of a fall from his motorcycle while answering a burglary call.

LIVE FIGHT EXPECTED ON THE LOCKED CLUBS

Council May Bar All Those Established After Prohibition Began.

Indications Saturday pointed to a lively fight in general council Monday when, in adjourned session applications will be considered for locking the club and pool room licenses. It was reported that the majority of the pool room applications will be turned down, since they are operated jointly with near beer saloons.

Of the twenty applications for locker club licenses it is said that only five will be granted without contest. The five in question are those that were operation before the prohibition law was passed in 1907. The five are: The Elks' Central City club, Atlanta Athletic club, Piedmont Driving club and Transportation club.

Several of the council members have applied for licenses that may not be granted. The council members against which complaint has been made, which may be deferred until Monday for near beer saloons, until council takes action with a list of all applications and pool rooms. He has been furnished with a list of all applications and is making an investigation of many of them.

GOVERNOR HARRIS QUILTS LAW FIRM: SONS SUCCEED HIM

Judge Max Harris announced yesterday, before being inaugurated as governor of Georgia, that he had severed his connection with his Macon law firm, upon the position that his membership in a law firm is incompatible with his tenure of the office of chief executive of the state.

The firm, which was formerly known as Harris and Wainman.

Mr. Harris was formerly composed of Judge Harris, his two sons, Walter A. Harris and John B. Harris, and M. J. Wainman. Mr. Wainman's name did not appear in the style of the old firm. The only difference in the personnel of the firm now is that caused by the retirement of Judge Harris.

"I retired from the firm," said Judge Harris, "because I did not feel that I should be connected with any law firm while I was governor of the state."

BEN BANKS PARDONED BY GOVERNOR SLATON

Man Who Entered Wickenham Home Freed Through Mrs. Springer's Efforts.

After serving eighteen months of a ten-year sentence at the Cozysora, Ga., convict camp, Ben Banks, aged 34, who was convicted of burglarizing the home of C. A. Wickenham, in College Park a year and a half ago, was pardoned by Governor Slaton Monday morning. The pardon was secured by Mrs. T. Springer, who circulated a petition and presented it signed to the pardoning board, and later to the governor.

According to Mrs. Springer, Banks had been under the influence of liquor prior to the time of his arrest on the burglary charge. She stated that liquor accounted for his act and that he was a good man, taking care of a wife and four children, when not under the influence.

The pardon was so arranged by Mrs. Springer, that it came as a birthday present to Banks. It was liberally on his thirty-eighth birthday.

Maintenance Budget Adopted By Trustees of University

The University of Georgia, including all of its allied branches, will follow this year the closest economy in its demands upon the funds of the state, as is indicated by the action of the board of trustees which met at the University club in Atlanta last week and made up its budget for presentation to the general assembly.

The trustees, recognizing the need of holding the state's expenses down as low as possible during the existing conditions caused by the war, will ask this year not a cent of special appropriations, with the exception of $4,500 for an infirmary at the State Normal school. Moreover, the general appropriation asked will be increased but $17,500 over the last appropriation. This is the smallest increase that has been asked in many years.

HAL REID IN ATLANTA PROBING FRANK CASE

His Moving Pictures Were Wanted by Defense in the Thaw Case.

The Anasley hotel lobby, bustling with visitors to the inauguration ceremonies, was the scene of the Atlanta angle to the Harry Thaw trial Saturday afternoon.

Hal Reid, the noted playwright, author and investigator, was informed that the Thaw lawyers had announced it intended using a set of motion pictures photographed by Reid to establish the fact that Thaw was insane.

The playwright immediately got busy on the wire to New York. He was informed by John B. Standfield, Thaw's chief counsel, that the prosecution planned to show by the pictures taken by Reid in the prisoner's cell that Thaw was subject to a nervous attack that constantly caused his face and throat to twitch.

In a lengthy telegram, Reid explained to the attorney for the defense that the pictures had been taken at a slow speed in order that full exposure could be gained to eliminate the defective light of the prisoner's cell in which they were photographed, and that when the film was run off on the projection machine, which was naturally run at a greater speed, the figures were caused to jump in unnatural fashion.

Hal Reid is author of 150 plays. He is in the city investigating the Frank case, upon which he plans to write an analysis. He visited Millerbergville Sunday morning, where he had a talk with the prisoner and his wardens. He has already held two conferences with Governor Slaton, to whom he was introduced by letters from the secretary of state and the secretary of war.

Clifford Walker Describes Whirlwind Race That Landed Him Attorney Generalship

Clifford Walker, of Monroe, Ga., who took the oath of attorney general of Georgia yesterday.

"I wish to really know you Georgia people, to really know you, and to travel some—not to backstab, but to the corners of the state; you must come in heart-true with the paroled and have-just-escaped convicts of the mountains, the people who worship nature's God and find forth leaders of men; you must commune with the yearning of a youth Georgia, with the stalwart men of Bohls and Clineh and Charlton who, though isolated from the great center and not blessed with some of their advantages, are yet splendid Georgians, loyal and true."

WHERE TRAVELING ISN'T VERY EASY

"The variety of soils and resources is no greater than in conditions in one county in south Georgia it requires three hours to travel nine miles, while in north Georgia, from the railroad terminus at Helen to Hiwassee, in the county, 20 miles, it took six hours."

HON. CLIFFORD WALKER, Georgia's new attorney general, in two characteristic poses.

Clifford Walker, of Monroe, Ga., took the oath of attorney general of Georgia at the statehouse yesterday. The title in the people of Georgia enabled him to do this was not only to his genius worth as a man, his lovable qualities of character and his ability as a lawyer, but also to one of the most remarkable campaigns ever conducted in Georgia.

MEMORY FOR NAMES AND PEOPLE

Mr. Walker's memory for people and names is remarkable. One day not so long ago he was at lunch in an Atlanta restaurant. His eye fell upon a gentleman who was facing away from him. He went over and spoke to him. When he returned he said:

HAS GATHERED INTIMATE KNOWLEDGE OF STATE

In his campaign for the office of attorney general public success was not all that he found. He gathered a store of intimate knowledge about his own state and his own people which is a treasure that few men possess.

FRENCH CRITICISM

The French are supposed to be in general ideas, by which it is often understood that they soon grow weary of facts; love to lose sight of "solid earth" and build intellectual castles in the air. I will not undertake to estimate how far this opinion is supported by the history and literature taken as a whole.
