LIPSCOMB'S TAX BILL ONCE MORE MUTILATED AT HANDS OF THE HOUSE

Tax Reformers May Turn to Sheppard Substitute as Last Resort and Amend It.

COUNTIES SHOW NOW HALF-MILLION SLUMP

Forty-Eight Heard From and Twenty-Eight Show Decreases. Aggregating $475,000.

With the counties reported to date showing a net loss in tax assessments of nearly half a million dollars, and with this loss being increased with two out of every three counties heard from indicating a marked slump in the assessments this year, the house spent practically all of yesterday's session in eliminating vital sections of the ways and means committee equalization bill.

Thursday's action was a continuation of the process started Wednesday, when the house struck from the measure the vital section 16, which defined the powers of the state board of tax equalizers.

Under the leadership of Dr. Stovall, of Elbert, the house went on yesterday and struck from the bill sections 19 and 20.

More Sections Stricken.
The first of these two sections gave the state board the power to make rules and regulations for its own government and also for the government of the county boards.

The second section stricken yesterday gave the state or county boards the power to inquire into the value of property not reported on the digest of the preceding year, and to have such property placed upon the digest of the current year, and further provided that, in case there should be a conflict between the regulation of the state board and the county board the regulation of the state board should control.

In section 21, which provided that wherever the act conferred any authority or power upon the state or county boards, such power or authority might be exercised by a majority of the state or county boards, the expression, "state board," was stricken wherever it occurred.

Hardly anyone believes that the ways and means committee bill, now that it has been amended, stands any chance of passage, though there are some earnest tax reformers who believe that the measure, even in its mutilated form, is preferable to the Sheppard substitute.

Will Amend Substitute.
The proposition will be made today, after a substitute tax bill offered by Representative Wright, of Floyd, is gotten out of the way, to take up the Sheppard substitute, section by section, and the work of amending it will be begun.

As it is the only measure which seems to have a chance of passing now, the real friends of tax revision will make an effort to prevent it from being changed in the same way that the Lipscomb bill has been.

Amendments to the Sheppard substitute will be offered that will incorporate into it, as far as the humor of the house will permit, some of the principles that are means bill, so that the tax revisionists of the senate, when the bill reaches them, will have basis of tax reform to work upon.

The Real Danger Now.
The real danger now lies in the fact that a considerable minority of the membership of the house, which has been using the Sheppard substitute to

SENATE IS ASKED TO CHOP $95,000 OFF MONEY SHEET

Committee on Appropriations Uses Ax on Many Items Voted Upon Favorably by House of Representatives.

$50,000 PRUNED AWAY FROM COMMON SCHOOLS

State Agricultural College Loses $10,000, Pension Fund $50,000, and $15,000 Increases Recommended.

The senate committee on appropriations yesterday pruned $110,000 from the general appropriations bill as passed by the house and at the same meeting added $15,000 to the bill. The net amount cut from the house bill thus amounts to $95,000, lowering the total appropriation from $5,955,000 to $5,860,000, still leaving a big gap between the revenue of the state and the appropriations.

The common school fund was lowered from $2,550,000 to $2,500,000, a $50,000 reduction. The pension fund was reduced from $1,070,000 to $1,020,000, another $50,000 reduction. The fund for the extension work of the State Agricultural college, at Athens, was reduced from $40,000 to $30,000, a cut of $10,000.

In this way $110,000 was deducted from the house bill.

Increase of $15,000.
The appropriations for the State Normal school, at Athens, was increased from $47,500 to $50,000, and the appropriation of $52,500 to the State Normal and Industrial school, at Milledgeville, was raised to $55,000. The appropriation of $20,000 to the Georgia State Sanitarium for the Treatment of Consumptives, at Alto, was increased $5,000. The house lowered the amount of last year from $30,000 to $25,000. The state board of health was given $5,000 for the free distribution of vaccine as a preventative for typhoid fever. This makes a total of $15,000 added to the bill, and $110,000 reduction or a net reduction of $95,000.

The committee of the senate met in executive session to consider the bill as passed by the house and several warm fights were waged over the cutting and increasing of various appropriations. A strenuous fight was waged to cut the appropriation of the Medical College of the University of Georgia, at Augusta, from $30,000 to $20,000, but the attempt to deduct the $10,000 from the college was lost by a close vote. Senator W. W. Stark, chairman of the committee, stated that he would wage a fight on the floor of the senate to have this amount deducted and that he would also attempt to have the additional $2,500 voted the State Normal College, at Athens, and the State Normal and Industrial school, at Milledgeville, voted down.

Will Be Decreased.
While in the past the senate has raised rather than decreased the appropriations bill as sent to it by the house it is probable that this year will be an exception and that the upper house will not only cut off the $95,000, as recommended by the committee, but will take further steps in that direction. The bill as reported by the appropriations committee will be read a second time in the senate today and will come up for its passage on next Monday.

HATFIELD TO BE HANGED

Found Guilty of Murder of Will Parrish.

Dalton, Ga., July 31.—(Special.)—The jury in the case of the state v. Dan Hatfield, charged with the murder of Will Parrish, at 9:30 this morning, following an all-night deliberation, returned a verdict of guilty. As no recommendation of mercy was made Hatfield will be given the death sentence.

The trial occupied the entire day in the superior court Wednesday, the judge finishing his charge and giving the case to the jury at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening.

The state made out a strong circumstantial case. The row which the defense alleged occurred prior to the shooting of Parrish was not heard by the people living in the immediate vicinity. Dr. W. E. Wood swore that Parrish could not have been advancing on Hatfield with an axe, as the defense's witnesses had sworn, as the bullet passed through the upper lip and first struck the teeth of the lower jaw. The body was found near an overturned chair, according to evidence introduced.

NEW TESTIMONY GIVEN AT TRIAL OF LEO M. FRANK BY R. B. BARRETT

Machinist at Pencil Factory Tells Jury of Discovery of Murdered Girl's Pay Envelope and of Strands of Hair Near Her Machine in Metal Room on Second Floor.

HENRY SCOTT PUZZLES BOTH SIDES OF CASE BY EVIDENCE THURSDAY

E. L. Holloway, Who Swore in Affidavit That Elevator Was Closed on Saturday, the Day of the Murder, Admits on Stand That He Was Mistaken—"I've Been Trapped," Cries Dorsey.

The first piece of new testimony of any importance which has developed since the beginning of the Leo M. Frank trial came Thursday morning, when R. B. Barrett, a machinist employed at the National Pencil factory, testified that he had found what was supposed to be Mary Phagan's pay envelope near her machine in the metal room. Up to this time the matter of the pay envelope had been a complete mystery. Barrett also testified to having discovered blood stains on the floor near her machine, and a strand of hair on the machine. The blood stain had been wiped over with some kind of white preparation.

The whole gist of Solicitor Dorsey's questioning was to prove that the murder was committed on the second floor. The testimony of this witness and others seemed to bear out this contention.

Scott Proves Surprise.

Harry Scott, of the Pinkerton Detective agency, who has been employed by the National Pencil factory to ferret out the murderer, proved a strong witness for the state, although at first it looked as if he would prove of more value to the defense.

In the early stages of his examination by Solicitor Dorsey Scott was asked if, on his first meeting with Leo M. Frank, the accused had not appeared extremely nervous. This was on Monday following the murder. Scott denied this to be a fact. Solicitor Dorsey became excited and intimated that he had been "trapped," that the witness was not giving the testimony he had been led to expect.

Scott grew heated and exclaimed: "I hope you do not infer that I am withholding anything!"

Solicitor Dorsey said he did not, and from that time on Scott told in detail of his action with the case.

Among other things he said that either Frank or Darley had told him on Monday following the murder that

RED PEPPER USED BY THE STRIKERS

Women in the Copper District Make It Hot for Deputy Sheriffs—Alleged Rioters Are Arrested.

Cabnet, Mich., July 31.—Incidental to the copper miners' strike, hot water, red pepper and various household utensils were used as a supplement to revolvers and bayonets in a fight between deputy sheriffs and men and women inmates of a Hungarian boarding house at Wolverine mine late today. The battle ended with the arrest of three alleged rioters after troops had rescued the deputies from a threatening mob.

The arrests were part of a series which the sheriff's office had instituted within the last twenty-four hours in an effort to imprison ring-leaders of the disorders which marked the first two days of the copper miners' strike. Warrants were served in half a dozen mine locations.

The Wolverine posse consisted of Under Sheriff William Heikkila and four deputies who had a warrant for Louis Soder, proprietor of the boarding house, charging him with being a leader of the party that attacked Guy Olsen Tuesday night. The deputies found their man in the cupboard, and when Heikkila jerked open the door Soder fired a revolver, the powder burning the officer's coat. Heikkila wrestled the weapon from Soder, and they struggled. Mrs. Soder, the officers say, threw a kettle of hot water at them.

They Threw Red Pepper.
Another woman and two men joined the Soder's in throwing red pepper at the deputies and converting chairs, cuspidors and other furniture into missiles of offense. Outside a crowd of 200 workers had gathered, but the fracas attracted also two squads of state troops. The crowd started to rush the posse and the militiamen drove them back with bayonets. Joseph Sufonia, and Andrew Vince were arrested and with Soder were rushed in an automobile to the Houghton jail.

Their arrival increased the number of alleged rioters under arrest to 20. Most of the men have been charged with rioting and inciting to riot, but some face charges of felonious assault.

The Western Federation of Miners headquarters has let it be known that every possible effort will be made to provide a successful defense for the arrested men. The union officials denounced the arrests as unwarranted, asserting they were based upon exaggerated accounts of strikers' activities and that an effort was being made by the operators to "railroad" every prominent local unionist.

Seven Arrests Made.
Seven arrests were made at the Red Jacket location on the northern border of Cabnet tonight when troops stationed at the shaft drove away a crowd of strikers at the home of William Carmichael, a mine foreman. The prisoners were charged with threatening to destroy the house with dynamite.

A stick of dynamite fitted with a detonating cap and a time fuse was taken from one prisoner. News of the arrests brought immediate protests from union headquarters, the Red Jacket prisoners being the first taken exclusively by the militia.

Flood of Federal Money Will Be Poured at Once Into Banks of the South

Secretary McAdoo to Deposit $50,000,000 in Southern and Western Banks to Aid in Moving Crops.

STEP TAKEN TO MEET POSSIBLE STRINGENCY

For First Time Government Will Accept Prime Commercial Paper as Security. McAdoo Talks of Plan.

Washington, July 31.—Twenty-five to fifty million dollars of government funds will be deposited in the national banks of the south and west at once by Secretary McAdoo to facilitate the movement of crops. Federal, state and municipal bonds and prime commercial paper will be accepted as security for the money, upon which the banks will pay 2 per cent interest.

To Anticipate Money Stringency.
The motive of Secretary McAdoo in establishing this new policy is to anticipate the money stringency in the late summer and fall, which invariably accompanies the marketing and movement of crops, especially when the crops are unusually large, as the harvest now beginning forecasts. He intends to take time by the forelock and prevent or minimize the usual tightness of money.

In a statement today the secretary made the significant answer that government bonds would be accepted as security for the money, and that the additional money would be placed only with banks which have taken out at least 40 per cent of their authorized circulation.

The United States 2 per cent bonds, serving as security for most of the national bank circulation, have been recorded recently to new low market records, dropping to 95 1/2 during the past few days. The secretary's willingness to accept these bonds at par as security for the twenty-five to fifty millions of promised deposits and the inducement to the national banks to increase their circulation up to the 40 per cent limit is expected to help in restoring the parity of the depressed currency by creating a new market for the 2.

To Accept Prime Commercial Paper.
For the first time in history the government will accept prime commercial paper as security for deposits. This privilege will be granted, announced the secretary, in order to make these special deposits available to the banks on securities readily within their reach.

"The commercial paper submitted," added Mr. McAdoo, "shall first be passed upon and approved by the clearing house committees of the cities in which the banks offering such paper may be located. All commercial paper and bonds must finally be passed upon and accepted by the secretary."

Approved commercial paper will be

THREE PULLMANS FALL OFF BRIDGE

Many Passengers Injured in Wreck on Big Four—The Sleepers Topped from a Bridge After Midnight.

Muncie, Ind., August 1.—Three Pullman cars on Big Four passenger train No. 20, due here at 12:20 o'clock this morning, are reported to have toppled from a bridge 6 miles west of here just after midnight.

A number of passengers are reported to have been seriously injured. The train was bound for New York from St. Louis.

BEDELL IS MURDERED AND ROBBED OF $400

Prominent Citizen of Chattanooga Shot Down at Door of Home.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 31.—C. A. Bedell, veteran soldier, merchant, politician and an aged citizen of Chattanooga, was murdered by two unknown men late tonight.

He was entering his home at Boyce, a suburb of this city, and while he held the key to the door of his house in his hand, two heavy charges of fire shot were fired into his heart and lungs by one of his assailants. The other, a second later, searched his pockets, robbing him of approximately $400.

Bedell was choked by one of the assailants to prevent her from screaming and alarming the neighborhood. Bloodhounds were ordered and the sheriff and posse are searching for the murderers.

DEMOCRATS ON GUARD WANTED BY CAUCUS

Washington, July 31.—Leading an economy fight against more appropriations for public buildings, Chairman Fitzgerald, of the house appropriations committee, emerged from a democratic caucus today with a half victory over Chairman Frank Clark, of the public buildings committee.

The latter's resolution to direct the appropriations committee to report a public building was defeated, 68 to 64, but a tentative agreement was reached later that public buildings appropriations will be given immediate consideration by the appropriations committee with the view of recommending further expenditures.

The caucus was marked by strong political discussion, including a demand upon the administration to replace office-holding republicans with competent democrats. Representative Culltop, of Indiana, referring to the fact that a republican now holds the position of supervising architect of the treasury department, in charge of all public building work, declared it "was time democrats were put on guard" over all public expenditures.

President of Portugal Ill.

Lisbon, July 31.—It is stated that President Manuel De Arriaga, of Portugal, is ill and that physicians are continuously in attendance upon him. Senor De Arriaga was elected president of the republic August 24, 1911.

NO RECOGNITION FOR GEN. HUERTA

President Wilson Will Not Countenance the Betrayer of Madero—Senate Democrats Oppose Recognition.

Washington, July 31.—President Wilson made it clear to those who discussed the Mexican situation with him today that he had not been swayed in the least degree by the arguments of Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson in favor of recognition for the Huerta government in Mexico. He let it be known that his analysis of conditions from official and unofficial reports and his judgment of what should be done had not been altered by the ambassador's statement.

The president is formulating a policy which he told his callers today involves nothing that is not entirely friendly to Mexico. He has not yet announced what his program will be, but he is emphatically and unalterably opposed to the recognition, under any circumstances, of the government set up by Provisional President Huerta through the events in which President Madero and Vice President Suarez met tragic death.

It developed today that democrats in the senate were concurring in this view and further discussion of Ambassador Wilson's statement before the senate foreign relations committee brought out a general sentiment of opposition to the suggestion of recognition for the Huerta government.

Bacon Opposes Recognition.
Senator Bacon, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, is of the pronounced opinion that to recognize the Huerta government would be putting a premium on revolution in Mexico. He believes, moreover, that it would be an incentive to every revolutionary leader to assassinate the head of the nation with full expectation that his act would receive the approval and official recognition of other nations.

Senator Bacon also is of the opinion that the recognition of Huerta, far from bringing about peace, would be the strongest encouragement to ambitious chiefs.

Senator Bacon reflects the views of President Wilson, who has held from the beginning the pronounced opinion that a great moral question was involved, greater than the mere judgment of the acts of a single ruler. In his Latin American statement, issued shortly after his inauguration, the president set forth emphatically the opposition of the United States to those who set up government by arbitrary force and announced that the American government would prefer in its associations those governments which were founded on law and order.

While not referring at the time to any particular nation, the president is known to have had Mexico in mind. The impression he desired to spread Gantt had been very familiar and intimate with Mary Phagan. He also testified that on Tuesday night at the station house Frank had been very nervous, that he had repeatedly crossed his legs, tilted his chin, and that he took deep breaths—more like sighs than anything else.

Haas Wanted to See Reports.

He stated that Herbert Haas, one of Frank's attorneys, had suggested that the Pinkertons turn over all evidence to him before it was given to the police department, and that he declined to consider any such proposal, stating he would throw up the case first.

Luther Rosser failed to shake Scott's testimony.

Frank Was Not There.

Monteen Stover, a former employee of the pencil factory, testified that she had gone to Frank's office at 5 minutes after 12 o'clock on Memorial day, and that Frank was not there. She had remained in the building fully five minutes and saw no one. Frank has claimed that he was in his office at that time.

Dr. Claude Smith testified to making an examination of the bloody shirt found at New Lee's home. He said he had examined the neck-band and it did not have the appearance of having been worn. No odor could be detected on the under side of the sleeves. He also testified to making an examination of the blood stains found on the floor. He could not state whether or not this was human blood.

Holloway Contradicts Himself.

E. L. Holloway, an employee of the pencil factory, who had previously signed an affidavit that the power box on the elevator was closed on Saturday, the day of the murder, admitted that he was mistaken; that he had opened the box and hung up the key in Frank's office.

His affidavit was placed in evidence, and Judge Roan ruled that certain parts of it were admissible. Spinning up the day's testimony, the weight of it was not so favorable to the defendant as on the day previous.

The courtroom continues to attract large crowds.

Mrs. Callie Applebaum, recently acquitted of killing her husband, was one of the interested spectators.

ATTORNEYS FOR BOTH SIDES RILED BY SCOTT'S TESTIMONY; REPLIES CAUSE LIVELY TILTS

When court convened on Thursday morning J. M. Gantt, formerly employed in the bookkeeping department of the National Pencil factory, was placed on the stand for two questions, and he was followed by Harry Scott, Pinkerton detective, who worked as a partner of John R. Black, of the city detectives, in searching for the murderer of Mary Phagan.

Scott's testimony had Gantt swear that he was arrested on April 28 and held until the following Thursday.

During Scott's testimony, there were lively tilts of all sorts. At one time Scott became angry with the solicitor and asked him if he were accusing him of withholding evidence, and Dorsey declared that Scott had entrapped him by promising to swear one thing on the stand and then by refusing to swear it.

A moment later the defense was in a rage when Scott swore that Herbert Haas, one of Leo Frank's counsel, had ordered him to furnish to the defense the evidence he might obtain before giving it to the police.

Luther Rosser, another of Frank's attorneys, then tried to show that he had not been concerned in this, and when this was not held admissible, he burst out with the statement, "There's certainly no one here who believes that I had anything to do with this!"

Scott declared he told Haas, in the presence of Rosser and Sig Montag, that before the Pinkertons would do as he asked that they would quit the case.

In the formal examination the first question asked by the solicitor was, "How long have you known Frank?"

Employed by Frank.

"Since I first saw him on April 28," the Pinkerton man replied.

"By whom were you employed in the Phagan murder?"

"By Frank, representing the National Pencil company."

"Where did you see him?"

"In his office in the pencil factory. He called me in his private office for a conference."

"What did he say?" asked the solicitor.

"He told me about the crime, and stated that he and the directors of the company had decided that the public demanded a thorough investigation to find the murderer. Then he said he had just left police station, and that Detective Black seemed to suspect him."

"Then," continued the detective, "he outlined to me his own movements on that Saturday, stating that he had come to the factory at 8 o'clock, had gone to Montag brothers' place about 9 with Darley, and came back to the factory about 11 o'clock."

"He then said," Scott went on, "that Mrs. White, wife of J. A. White, who was at work upstairs, had come in just before noon and asked permission to go up to see her husband."

Paid Off in Private Office.

"Mary Phagan came in and drew her pay at ten minutes after 12, according to what Frank said, and he paid her $1.20, giving her two halves and he thought two dimes," continued Scott, "and then he said that the Phagan girl was paid off in his private office at his desk, and that as she went out she stopped in the outer office and called back to know if the metal had arrived yet."

"Frank declared he told the girl that he did not know about the metal, and then as she went on out he thought he heard voices, but could not tell whose they were. He then said that at about half past 12 he went up and told Mrs. White that he was about to close up the factory, and that she had best leave, and that Mrs. White told him of seeing a negro behind some boxes on the first floor."

"Frank said he left at about ten after 1," Scott went on, "and that he went home, and was back at the factory at 4 o'clock, when New Lee came, and that he sent Lee out to have a good time and told him to come back at 6, and that a few minutes afterwards he went out and saw Lee sitting on a box and talking to Gantt."

Tried to Call Factory.

"Gantt, Frank said, was a former bookkeeper who had been discharged for 'stealing,'" Scott stated, "and then Frank said he got home by 20 minutes after 6, and, worrying about Gantt's presence, tried to call the factory at 8:30. Frank told me he tried and tried the telephone, and finally got the number at 7 o'clock and asked Lee if Gantt had gone and if everything was all right. Lee answered in the affirmative, according to Frank," said the Pinkerton man, "and Frank then said that at 9 o'clock he took a bath and went to bed."

"After that Frank and Darley and I went through the factory and the various details were explained to me. I was shown the place where the hair had been found and the place where some dark spots had been clipped out, and there, was a white substance around the place."

"I then examined the time clock, and then went to the basement and was shown where the body had been found, and also the hat and shoe. Darley did most of the explaining on this trip and Frank had been the spokesman in the office."

"How did Frank act in his office?"

"He seemed perfectly natural," replied the witness.

"What do you mean by perfectly natural?" interrupted Rosser, for the defense.

Dorsey.

On Attorney Rosser's objection this was ruled out.

"What did his eyes look like?" continued the solicitor.

"Large and piercing."

"What kind of breaths did he take?"

"Deep sighs," said Scott.

"How often?"

"Four or five times while in the office."

"How large did his eyes look then?"

"Same as now."

"How about his complexion?"

"He was a little pale then."

"What, if any, pauses did he make?" asked Dorsey.

"That's a leading question," snapped Rosser.

"How did Frank give his narrative and was he rapid in speech and specific in regard to time?" the solicitor went on without the other question being answered.

Mr. Rosser objected to the use of the word "specific" and declared that Frank had always used the word, "about" in referring to the time of his movements.

"What else was said in the conversation?" asked Dorsey.

"Nothing more that I recall."

Reported to Haas and Rosser.

"Did you or did you not make reports or statements to the defendant of what you did?" asked Dorsey.

"I made them to Herbert Haas, Luther Rosser and Sig Montag," Scott declared.

"I grant that he furnished them, injected Rosser, 'but the fact that he did doesn't make it admissible.'"

"Did the Pinkertons give Frank's counsel reports?" continued the solicitor.

"Yes."

"Give them to the state?"

"Did Frank say he heard the voices in the hall about noon that Saturday, before or after noon?"

Scott was allowed to refer to his notes and started reading from them when Rosser stopped him.

"You must not necessarily read what the notes say, but what your mind says after refreshing it by means of the notes," ruled Judge Roan.

"Frank said he heard the voices after noon," Scott said.

"What did Frank tell you he did at home after he left the factory at lunch time?" asked Dorsey.

"He did not say."

"Did he tell you he ate lunch?"

"No."

Frank's References to Gantt.

"What, if anything, did Frank tell you about Gantt?"

"He stated in the first conversation," said Scott, "that Gantt knew Mary Phagan very well and was intimate with her."

"Did he say how he knew this?"

"No."

"Did Frank say anything about Gantt's attentions to Mary Phagan?"

"Not that I recall."

"May I refresh the mind of the witness?" asked the solicitor, turning to Judge Roan.

Attorney Rosser entered an objection.

"Your honor," said Mr. Dorsey rather hotly, "it is in your discretion to allow me to lead a witness, and if there ever was a time when a witness needs to be led this is one, this detective in the employ of the defense."

Scott Becomes Angry.

"You don't mean to intimate that I'm holding anything back?" Scott exclaimed angrily.

"The state has been trapped," said Mr. Dorsey amid a general murmur from Rosser and Scott, and for a moment things looked black.

"The witness told me something and now he don't seem to remember it," Mr. Dorsey continued, "and I'm not trying to impeach him, I'm simply trying to refresh his memory," he added as his colleague, Frank Hooper, whispered something to him.

"Mr. Dorsey said three times that he had been trapped by Scott," Rosser interrupted, "and now after Hooper has talked to him he's changed; Hooper's a wise man."

"You have the right, your honor, to allow me to ask leading questions, and while generally they are not allowed on cross-examination, you may allow them on direct examination and even refuse them to the other side when they are cross-examining. This detective seems to have a lapse of memory. Why, he had to refresh it a while ago with his notes, and now I want to ask him to refresh it about what Frank said about Gantt."

The solicitor evidently wanted Scott to declare that Frank had narrated seeing Gantt and Mary Phagan together and thus give the lie to Frank's declaration to Rogers and Black that he did not know even whether such a girl as Mary Phagan worked at the factory.

"In my talk to you, Mr. Scott, did I or not make memoranda of what you said?" asked the solicitor, and then turning to the judge he asked to show these to the witness.

Rosser Again Objects.

Mr. Rosser objected to this procedure and the judge asked Scott if he knew what the solicitor had written on the memoranda. When Scott said he did not know all that Dorsey wrote, Judge Roan ruled that unless the witness had seen all that the solicitor wrote that he could not be shown the notes to refresh his memory.

"As I understand it, Mr. Dorsey can tell about what they talked over and can ask, 'Well, Mr. Scott, how about this or that?'" stated Attorney Hooper. "It is not a leading question to call attention to a certain subject."

"Mr. Dorsey, you may call attention to a specific subject, but not to the answer you want," said Judge Roan.

"Mr. Scott, did Frank or did he not discuss Gantt's relations to Mary Phagan?" the solicitor then asked.

"Yes," Scott replied.

"What did he say?"

"He said Gantt paid a great deal of attention to her."

"Anything more?"

"Not that I now recall."

"Do you know when Gantt was arrested?"

"On Monday, April 28, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon."

"Before or after your talk with Frank?"

"About the same time; Gantt was arrested in Marietta just about that hour."

"Was there any suggestion by Frank's attorneys that you suppress any evidence in this case?" asked the solicitor.

"Your honor," interrupted Attorney Rosser, "Leo Frank in a civil case would not be bound by what his lawyers did, and certainly he would not be in this."

"Mr. Dorsey then withdrew the question."

"What was said about the matter?"

asked the solicitor.

Scott Suspected Frank.

"During the first week in May," said Scott, "Pierce and I went to Herbert Haas' office to discuss the handling of the case and we told him we had strong suspicion against Frank."

"I object; that can't come in!" roared Rosser.

"Mr. Haas said that he would rather we would submit what evidence we might get to them before turning it over to the police," the Pinkerton man continued, "so that they would know in advance what the evidence was, and we told him that we would quit

REPRESENTING STATE IN FRANK TRIAL

Left to right: Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey, Assistant Solicitor E. A. Stephens, and Attorney Frank A. Hooper.

ATTORNEYS FOR BOTH SIDES

The case before we would handle it in that way."
Scott was then made to describe the locality where the supposed blood spots were found near the girls' dressing room and he declared that the spots had been chipped out when he went there, but that a white substance was smeared around the place as if someone had taken a cloth and rubbed the whitening on the floor.
"Are you sure that the white stuff had been smeared on, or had it merely been spilled there?" asked the solicitor.

"I could tell by its appearance that it had been smeared there," Scott replied positively.
"On the facts you have told about Frank's appearance are you willing to tell whether or not Frank was nervous?" asked the solicitor, referring to Scott's testimony about the defendant's being pale and taking long breaths during the first conference.
"He seemed nervous but not trembling," answered Scott.

"Tell what happened on Tuesday night, April 29, in Frank's presence," said Dorsey.

"Black and I were with Frank at police station and Black told him that he and I believed Newt Lee knew more about the crime than he would tell and we suggested to Frank that he, as Lee's employer, might get something out of him and we asked Frank to hold a private talk with the negro."

"Says Frank Squirmed in Chair."
"Frank did that and when he had been there about ten minutes Black and I entered just as Lee was saying, 'Mr. Frank, it's awful hard to be handcuffed here to this chair.'"
"Frank hung his head for about 20 seconds, and then flinging up his hands he burst out, 'Well, they've got me, too!'"

"Later Frank told us he got nothing out of the chair," said Scott.
"How about Frank's demeanor at that time?" asked Dorsey.
"He was extremely nervous; he squirmed in his chair and crossed and uncrossed his legs. He didn't seem to know what to do with his hands and put them all over his face and rubbed his mouth with them several times, four or five times, and hung his head, swallowed hard and sighed."

"Scott was then made to tell that on the first Monday afternoon he saw Frank that the superintendent had old him the clock had not been correctly punched during the night before the finding of the body."

"Search Made in Factory."
"Black and I went to the factory and carried him to the station house and after a conference decided to keep him here," Scott declared next in answer to the solicitor's question about the time that Frank was first arrested.
"How about his appearance?" asked Dorsey.

"He had nothing to say and he was very pale."
"Did you see Mr. Rosser, Frank's attorney, with him on Tuesday before his arrest?"
"No."
"Did you see Frank on May 3, and what took place?"
"Black and I went to his cell and asked him if, after going back to the factory from Montag's place, he stayed in the office, and he said he did and also that he was there from 12 o' 12:30."
"Did you talk to Frank about the suspects in the case previous to the offering of the rewards?"

"No."
"Did you search the factory?"
"Yes, I searched thoroughly around the elevator shaft, but only on the surface; I did not dig up the dirt."
"Find anything like a ribbon, a purse, pay envelope or a stick of bludgeon?" asked Dorsey quickly.
"No, I ran my lantern up and down and looked thoroughly, but I found nothing like what you describe," Scott declared with emphasis.

"Cross-Questioned by Rosser."
Mr. Rosser then took up the cross-examination.
"Did you make a report of your talk with Mr. Haas?"
"Yes."
"Mr. Haas said that he wanted to find the murderer whoever he might be, didn't he?" queried Mr. Rosser.

"Yes, he said that after I had told him we would quit the case before we would handle it like he first suggested, in telling us to submit new evidence to him before giving it to the police," replied Scott.
"Mr. Rosser then declared that he wanted to show that he had not been concerned in the affair. The solicitor went his point, however, that because it might have been that one of the defendant's counsel had tried to suppress facts, that such did not open up the way for proving that others had not."

"Well, there's certainly no one here who would think that I had anything to do with it, and I know it," thundered Rosser, apparently addressing himself to court and spectators as well as to the jury.
"Mr. Scott, you give me a statement of your first conversation with Frank in which there was no mention of his statement about the alleged intimacy between Gantt and Mary Phagan?" asked Mr. Rosser a moment later of Scott.

"It was purely an oversight."
"Didn't the coroner ask you about Lee's statement and you answered without saying anything of Gantt's intimacy?"
"Yes, I didn't consider Gantt a suspect and for that reason did not report to it to you."
"Gives Notes to Rosser."
Scott then gave Attorney Rosser the notes of his testimony.
"Isn't it true that at the inquest you failed to tell of Frank's lowering his head?"
"I do not remember."
"Didn't you make one statement at the inquest and another here?"
"Oh, I've refreshed my memory," said Scott.

"Show me in your notes anything about Gantt's intimacy with Mary Phagan," said Rosser.
"It isn't there; I've got my system of taking notes and maybe they are not like yours."
"Isn't it true you took part of the notes one day and some another day?"
"I did no such thing."
"You never mentioned to me of Gantt's intimacy."
"No."
"The coroner's inquest did you not say Frank was nervous that afternoon at the office?"
"No, I was not asked about it."
"Why did you state it?"
"Oh, there is a lot besides going in to a whole detailed sheet about it."
"When you told of the talk between Lee and Frank you never said he was nervous."
"Not nervous; I said Frank hung his head."
"Are you following Dorsey's attack?"
"No, his line of questions."
"Are you a trained sleuth?"
"Suppose so."
"You are trained to note all indications of guilt in a man?"

"Yes."
"Did you swear you told all you knew at the inquest?"
"Yes; I did my best in a general way."
"You never hid anything?"
"No, that's not my business nor my reputation," Scott flashed back, his face, which had been visible since his hot words with the solicitor, flaming with anger.

"Scott Again Grows Angry."
"No; that's not my business nor my reputation," Scott flashed back, his face, which had been visible since his hot words with the solicitor, flaming with anger.

"It wouldn't have been wise to open up and tell everything at the inquest," interrupted the solicitor.
"Who was present at the factory office when you conferred with Frank?"
"Darley was there and I think Schiff was," answered Scott.
"Do you work with the police?"
"Yes."
"Never work against them?"
"No."
"You just go right down the road with them do you?" said Mr. Rosser.

"Scott made no particular reply and the cross-examination went on.
"Were you in the factory that Sunday morning?" the attorney next asked.
"No; I never entered there until about 4:30 Monday afternoon."
"Did you testify as to blood stains at the inquest?"
"Yes."
"I also found some supposed blood stains," Rosser read from the stenographic report of Scott's testimony before the coroner.

"Mr. Scott, you said nothing then about the smears over the spots," said Mr. Rosser.
Scott was then made to tell that Frank acted as the spokesman in the office and that Darley did the explaining as they made the trip through the factory on the Monday after the crime.
"You say now," continued Mr. Rosser, "that Frank told you he left the factory about 1:10?"
"Yes."
"Didn't you report to me that Frank said he left about 1 o'clock?"
"No, I said 1:10. When the attorney exhibited the report it showed 1 o'clock instead of 1:10 and Scott declared that it was merely an error, and should have been 1:10."

"Did Detective Black know all that happened before Herbert Haas, Sig Montag or I did?"
"Yes, absolutely."
"Well, you may go," said Mr. Rosser, and turning to the judge he declared he wanted to reserve the right to question him again.
"Dorsey Resumes Questioning."
"Did you ever report to the police the finding of a stick?" asked Mr. Dorsey, again taking up the examination.
"I presume that unless it was held out that chief got knowledge of it about the time it was found," answered Scott.
"Don't you know whether he did or not?"
"No, I was away at the time, and I don't know what happened while I was out of town."
"When you work with the police do you follow them or the facts in the case?" asked Dorsey.
"We report to the police each day the facts we get."
"How do you work with the police?"
"Black and I worked as partners, and he knew all I knew, and reported it to the police."
Then Mr. Dorsey made the witness tell again about the threat that the Pinkertons would leave the case before they would report evidence to the defense before giving it to the police. After Scott had pointed out on the cross-section of the factory building the route taken by himself, Frank and Darley in examining the place on the Monday after the case, he was excused. The Pinkerton man had been on the stand for two hours.

"Two Persons Killed in Cycle Accident."
Watertown, N. Y., July 31.—Two persons were killed this evening in an accident during a motorcycle race held in connection with the old home week celebration at Russell, N. Y. The dead are Luther Gilbert, 33, motorcycle rider, and Irvin Bartholomew, 40 years old, a spectator.
The race was run through the main street of the village. Gilbert and Charles Sharps, the participants, were speeding at about 50 miles an hour when Gilbert's machine struck a cross-walk and hurled him to the road, killing him almost instantly. Bartholomew rushed in the road to drag the fallen cyclist out of the way of the other machine when Sharp's machine struck him.

Spots Were Large As Fan, Declares Woman Who Saw Them

Mrs. George W. Jefferson, who is an employee of the pencil factory, was next called to the stand. Her examination was begun by Solicitor Dorsey.

"Where do you work?"

"In the National Pencil factory."

"Where were you working Friday, April 24?"

"In the National Pencil factory."

"Were you there Monday?"

"Yes."

"Did you see anything on the floor near a dressing room?"

"Yes. It looked like something white had been spread over a spot of blood."

"How far is the polish room from the ladies' dressing room?"

"Four or five feet."

"How far are the cords from the dressing room?"

"They are hanging up on the wall."

"Is there any red paint in your department used in polishing pencils?"

"Yes."

"Is there any difficulty in distinguishing the different shades of red paint?"

"Yes."

Attorney Rosser took up the interrogation.

"Could you tell how long that dark spot had been there?"

"No."

"That is a very dirty, greasy floor, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Did you know Mary Phagan?"

"Yes. Had known her for a year. I've been working at the pencil factory for three years."

"You say the entire spots were as big as your fan?"

"Including the white stuff, they were."

"How big were the dark spots?"

"Smaller, then the palm of your hand."

Solicitor Dorsey resumed questioning the witness.

"Where are the pencils painted?"

"On the third floor."

"Where is paint of any kind used on the second floor?"

"Only in the polish room."

Attorney Rosser again began interrogating.

"These wrapping cords, the kind found around the little girl's throat, are scattered all over the factory, aren't they?"

"They are supposed to be kept only in our department on the third floor."

"Don't they ever get into the basement in the trash or sweepings?"

"I've never been in the basement."

Here the solicitor took the witness.

"Is there any need for the cords in the basement?"

"Not that I know."

She was then called from the stand.

'I've Been Trapped By Witness,' Cries Dorsey When Holloway Goes Back on His Affidavit

E. F. Holloway, a general superintendent in the pencil factory, who has been in the employ of that concern for three years, was called to the stand. It was during Holloway's statement that the solicitor charged him with having trapped the state in attesting his signature to a sworn statement and making a conflicting statement before the jury.

"How long have you been employed at the pencil factory?" the solicitor asked.

"Three years."

"Are you working there now?"

"Yes."

"Were you there on Saturday, April 26?"

"There from 6:30 a. m. until 11:25 a. m."

"What is your business?"

"Attending to the elevator, freight and looking after general business."

"What do you do upon leaving—in reference to the elevator?"

"Nothing in particular."

"Did you leave the elevator unlocked on Saturday, April 26?"

"Yes."

Trapped by Witness.

Instantly upon the witness' answer the solicitor cried to Judge Roan:

"Your honor, I've been trapped by the witness. On May 12, before Detectives Campbell, Starnes, John Black and my stenographer Mr. Holloway swore that he had locked this power box on Saturday, April 26, and that he always kept it locked."

Holloway, in answer to this, said: "I said I had locked it on Friday."

Dorsey:

"He swore on May 12 that he had locked it on Friday and Saturday, didn't you, Mr. Witness?"

"I don't remember."

"Will you deny having sworn it?"

"No."

"Was it locked that Saturday?"

"No."

"Why did you say it was locked?"

"Because I forgot."

He Signed Affidavit.

"You signed your name to this affidavit and read it, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Did you notice J. M. Gantt's association with Mary Phagan?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"Sometimes at the register."

Rosser took the witness.

"Anybody, on Saturday, 26, could have walked from any floor in the factory without being stopped."

"Yes."

"The front doors were unlocked all morning?"

"Yes."

"Denham and White asked you to saw some timber?"

"Yes."

"You had to switch on the power to saw with, didn't you—the same power that runs the elevator—and you left the switch unlocked?"

"Yes."

"The metal room floor is dirty and greasy, isn't it?"

"Dirtiest in town."

"Has it been washed in three years?"

"No."

Aniline Put on Floor.

"Is aniline ever put on the floor?"

"Every day."

"Is it unusual to see spots on the floor?"

"No."

"How many women work in the plant?"

"About 100."

"Eleven work in the paint department?"

"Yes."

"Have you ever seen spots that look like blood in the metal room?"

"Yes."

"Barrett discovered about everything that was discovered, didn't he—the blood, the hair, the envelope?"

"He claims to have discovered them."

"Did you see Newt Lee when you went in Saturday?"

"Yes."

"Who else did you see?"

"Harry Denham and Alonzo Mann."

"Where did Mr. Frank go when he got there?"

"Into his office."

"Who was the next man?"

"Mr. Darley."

"Who was the next man or woman?"

"Mittie Smith."

"Did you turn the building over to Newt Lee?"

"Yes."

"How many negroes worked in the building?"

"Seven or eight."

Always Sweeping.

"Did you ever hear of a man named Stanford who had a mania for sweeping and could not stop until he had swept the whole floor?"

"Yes. He did it frequently."

"Do you remember seeing Mrs. Arthur White at the plant on the morning of the murder?"

"Yes."

"Do you remember Miss Hall coming in?"

"Yes."

"What was she doing?"

"Writing on the typewriter."

"Remember Frank coming back from Montag's?"

"Yes."

"Do you use these wrapping cords in any other part of the building beside the third floor?"

"Yes—everywhere."

"Don't some of them get into the trash?"

"Every day."

Did Not See Phagan.

"Did you see Mary Phagan that Saturday?"

"No."

"Did you see Monteen Stover?"

"No."

"Was Jim Conley familiar with the metal room?"

"Sure he was. With every part of the factory."

The solicitor took the witness.

"Where were Denham and White working on the third floor?"

"Thirty feet from the elevator."

"What kind of lock was on the door where the blood was said to have been?"

"Common lock."

"Why are these wrapping cords used on the second floor?"

"To wrap up pencils."

"Who ever tied up pencils on the second floor?"

"Nobody."

Attorney Arnold began interrogating.

Forgot to Tell Dorsey.

"You forgot to tell Mr. Dorsey of sawing planks for Denham and White and, upon recollecting it, remembered about leaving the switch unlocked?"

"Yes."

"The elevator makes a lot of noise?"

"It surely does."

"Further questions were asked by Mr. Dorsey."

"Does the elevator or motor make the most noise?"

"Motor."

Upon removing Holloway from the stand, Judge Roan adjourned Thursday's session.

Mr. Dorsey about this?

"Once."

"Did you work on the fourth floor?"

"Yes."

"Who's your foreman?"

"Arthur White."

"Do you get paid off in the office?"

"No, outside."

"Does schiff pay off?"

"Sometimes he does and sometimes another man does."

"Do you know anybody on the second floor?"

"Yes; Mr. Darley and some of the girls who work there."

Affidavit Read by Girl.

After an argument the solicitor then won his point for the girl to read her signed affidavit. She was told to read it to herself and read slowly and with perfect composure, her lips moving as she scanned the words, like a child would do.

"Well, what about that back door?"

"Does Mr. Dorsey?"

"Sometimes it was open and sometimes it was closed," replied the girl, sticking to her original statement on the stand.

"When the factory was not running?"

"Oh, the door was closed then," she said.

"All the time?" asked the solicitor.

"Yes."

He then made her tell that the door referred to was one leading back to the metal room and situated near the girls' dressing rooms.

Mr. Rosser then asked her if she went to the solicitor's office before or after going to the grand jury, and she said before. She was allowed to come down from the stand at 11:40, after being up for about 40 minutes.

During Miss Stover's testimony Leo Frank, the defendant, paid more attention to the examination of her than he had previously to any witness. When she was telling that she had been in the factory and found him not in his office at the very time he claims to have been there, he appeared to take a deep interest in what she said and sat staring at her and passing his hand over his chin after the manner described by Detective Scott.

"It would take an expert medical man to—"

The question was interrupted by the witness, who said:

"No. A medical man don't necessarily know anything about embalming."

Embalming the Body.

"In case of death you embalm the body before the end of rigor-mortis, don't you, so that the rigor can be retained?"

"Yes."

"When the heart stops the blood stops wherever it is, doesn't it?"

"No. It goes back to the heart."

"Who helped you examine the body?"

"Dr. Hurt."

"What kind of fluid did you use?"

"My private kind."

"What ingredients is it composed of?"

"I would rather not reveal them. It is a formula of my own, and I would rather not tell it."

His request was granted.

"Tell of the visit of 'Boots' Rogers, John Black and Frank to your place?"

"They came in and I went back and pulled the sheet from the body, then I returned to the front of the shop."

"How much blood was extracted from her body?"

"One-half gallon."

"How much does it generally require?"

Embalming Fluid Injected.

"Enough to clear the corpse's features and face."

"How much fluid was injected?"

"One-half gallon."

"Did Dr. Hurt examine the body's finger nails?"

"Yes. He removed the substance."

"What happened Monday?"

"Dr. Hurt held a post-mortem examination."

The solicitor began questioning at this point.

"Did the girl's body lose much blood?"

"No."

"Was anything torn about her corpse?"

"Yes. A hose supporter was ripped loose."

He was removed from the stand.

Many a man gets ahead by inducing other men to put their shoulders to his wheel.—Chicago News.

William Gheesling, the undertaker who embalmed Mary Phagan's body, was next called in.

"What is your business?" queried solicitor Dorsey.

"I am an embalmer."

"How long have you been in that service?"

"Fifteen years, or more."

"Did you see the body of Mary Phagan?"

"Yes. I first saw it at 15 minutes to 4 on the morning of April 27."

"Where was it?"

"In the basement of the National Pencil factory."

"Describe it."

How Body Was Lying.

"It was lying on the face, arms crossed, and with a piece of wrapping twine and part of her underclothing looped around the throat. I put it in a basket and brought it to the P. J. Bloomfield undertaking establishment."

"Was there any impress on the throat?"

"Yes. An eighth-of-an-inch impression of the cord."

"What did you observe about the tongue?"

"It protruded about a quarter of an inch from the mouth."

"How many hours had she been dead?"

"From 10 to 15 hours—possibly longer."

"Had rigor-mortis set in?"

"Yes. It had been in effect for some time."

"What was the condition of the blood?"

"Very congested."

"How long does it require blood to settle?"

"It settles quickly sometimes, while at others it is slow."

"Did you examine the finger nails?"

"Yes, and found nothing but dirt."

"Anything on her underclothing?"

"Yes; blood."

"Did you observe anything else?"

Black Spot on Eye.

"A black spot on the eye that had been inflicted before death because of its swollen condition."

"Did you examine a wound in the skull?"

"Yes. There was no fracture, although the scalp had been broken."

"Was there any indication of the wound having been sustained before death?"

"Yes. Blood that had run from the gash was matted in the hair."

"Were you present when Frank came into your place that morning? Did you observe him?"

"No."

FRANK'S PRESENCE IN OFFICE AT TIME HE SAYS HE WAS THERE IS DENIED BY GIRL ON STAND

Following the Pinkerton detective testimony the state introduced Miss Monteen Stover, who worked in the factory when Mary Phagan died. The girl was rather abashed when she first appeared, but turned out to be a witness who could relate exactly what she started out to tell and who did not seem to get confused.

"Where do you work?" asked the solicitor of the girl.

"Nowhere."

"Were you working on April 26?"

"No."

"When did you last work before the murder?"

"On the Monday before the murder," she answered.

"Were you in the factory on April 26?"

"Yes, at 12:05."

"How long did you stay there?"

"Five minutes."

"Why did you go there?"

"To get my pay."

"What part of the factory were you in?"

"I was on the second floor in Mr. Frank's office."

"Was Frank there, or was anybody in the building?"

"Mr. Frank was not there and I saw no one in the building."

"How about the door just east of the girls' dressing room, was it open or closed?"

"I don't know."

"How were you dressed?"

"I wore a little yellow hat, a brown dress and had on tennis slippers."

Entered Building at 12:05.

"Did you look at the clock?"

"Yes, the first thing I did on going in was to look at the clock and it showed that it was 12:05, and I looked at it when I went out and it showed 12:10."

"Did you see a coat or hat or any part of a man's apparel in Frank's office?"

"No."

"Why did you leave?"

"I thought that they had finished paying off."

"Ever go into that office before?"

"No."

"May I show the witness this affidavit which she made and signed, your honor?" asked Mr. Dorsey.

"He's got no right to do that," objected Mr. Rosser.

"I want to refresh her memory about the dressing room door which she says was sometimes open and sometimes closed."

When the girl stated that she had signed the affidavit after it had been read to her, but had not read it herself, Judge Roan ruled that it could not be used to refresh her mind.

Mr. Dorsey then declared he wanted to look up the law on that question and turned the witness over to the defense for cross-examination.

"When did you leave home, Miss Monteen?" asked Mr. Rosser.

"I don't remember."

"Are there one or two offices on the second floor?"

"No."

"Did you notice the safe?"

"No."

"Did you notice a wardrobe in which men's clothes were put?"

"No."

The witness was then asked many questions about the details of the office, but could give little in reply.

Waited on Bench in Hall.

"You saw no one in the office and didn't wait, I presume?" said Mr. Rosser.

"I stayed there long enough to see that no one was in and then I went out into the hall and sat on a bench near the clock for about one and a half minutes."

"Did you see any one you knew on your way to or from the factory?"

"No."

"Who saw you when you first got home?"

"My mother."

"Who else?"

"Mr. McElreath and a Mrs. Lager-son."

Attorney Rosser questioned the witness very carefully as to the first names or addresses of these persons as though he desired to get in touch with them. She knew the first names of neither, but declared McElreath was an insurance man.

"Did you go directly home from the factory?"

"Yes."

"Do you work in the metal department?"

"No."

"How often have you talked with

"Yes. Blood that had run from the gash was matted in the hair."

"Were you present when Frank came into your place that morning? Did you observe him?"

"No."

"What was the cause of her death?"

Attorney Rosser interposed an objection to this question, which was sustained. He took the witness.

No Blood in Hair.

"When you first saw the corpse, there wasn't any blood in the hair, was there?" he asked.

"No."

"What did you go by in determining the time of her death?"

"Rigor-mortis."

"It sets in sometimes fast, doesn't it?"

"Sometimes even before death."

"How do you know?"

"It's necessary to know the cause of death to determine."

"What are these particular kind of cases with which you have had experience?"

"Bob Clay, who was recently hanged, and another executed man's corpse."

With His Pretty Wife Watching, Scott Holds Own With Rosser

While Detective Harry Scott was upon the witness stand yesterday morning a pretty little woman sat on a front seat near the press table and clenched her hands in nervous anticipation and delight.

It was his wife, who two years ago came all the way from Philadelphia to marry the Pinkerton man when he was transferred to the Atlanta office. She had come down to the trial just to hear her husband's testimony and to see how he came out of the fire of Rosser's cross-examination, which had so sorely riddled John Black, Scott's detective colleague, on the preceding afternoon.

Honors were about evenly divided between Scott and Rosser during the two hours he was on the stand. All the while the little woman sat keenly expectant, her hands clenched, a constant eye on the stand. At the conclusion of his testimony she rushed through the rear door and ran to the front entrance, meeting the detective as he emerged, smiling, from the courtroom.

"Oh, Harry—you were grand," she exclaimed as he reached the sidewalk. "You just put it all over him." With which she called him aside in the shadow of the building where so many weren't looking and gave him an impetuous kiss, partly as a goody but mostly in congratulation. Then she caught a car for home, telling reporters that she had come to the trial only to hear the testimony of her husband.

"How can a person help giving good testimony with a wife like her looking on?" asked Scott, as he disappeared into the witness room.

LOSS OF $1,000,000 CAUSED BY FLAMES

Allentown, Pa., August 1.—Fire which broke out shortly before midnight in the plant of the S. Besides the Flory manufacturing plant, the Flory Milling company's plant, a furniture store and four residences have been destroyed.

The Bangor firemen were handicapped by a scarcity of water and when it was realized that the fire was getting beyond their control appeals for aid were sent to Pen Argyl and to Easton.

Vacant lots surround the fire and the firemen hope to prevent a further spread of the flames. Six hundred men will be thrown out of employment through destruction of the Flory plants.

IT WAS QUITTING DAY FOR SEVERAL OFFICIALS

Washington, July 31.—This was quitting day for several government officials.

James A. Fowler, of Knoxville, Tenn., retired as assistant to the attorney general after a two-year, record-breaking "trust-busting" campaign, under both the Wickersham and McReynolds administrations. He will locate in Knoxville. G. Carroll Todd, of New York, has been nominated as his successor.

James F. Curtis, of Boston, stepped out of the treasury department as assistant secretary in charge of customs, after nearly a four-year term, during which the customs service has been revolutionized and reformed. Charles Sumner Hambley of Boston, will succeed Mr. Curtis tomorrow.

Frank Cole, of New York, resigned as private secretary to Attorney General McReynolds, a position which he held during the four-year term of former Attorney General Wickersham. His successor has not been chosen.

VILLAGE IN ALABAMA IS SWEEPED BY FLAMES

Valleyhead, Ala., July 31.—The greater part of Valleyhead was destroyed tonight by fire, which, starting in a large store, soon got entirely beyond control. Six establishments were totally destroyed, but no estimate could be secured tonight of the amount of the loss or insurance. The N. S. Davenport store, the largest here, was not damaged.

ELLIS KILLS ROONEY ON BIRMINGHAM STREET

Birmingham, Ala., July 31.—Pat Rooney, of Montgomery, Ala., was shot and killed by Ed Ellis, also of Montgomery, shortly after 11 o'clock tonight. The shooting occurred in front of a hotel on Second avenue near Nineteenth street. Three shots were fired, all the bullets entering Rooney's breast. Ellis was arrested.

With Bullet in Head.

Men's and Young Men's Clothing

Main Floor

The success of our REBUILDING DISCOUNT SALE has reached and passed all former records in the history of the "Big Store's" CLEARANCE campaigns. From the very start of the Sale the fact became obvious that early depletions of CLOTHING STOCKS in particular was imminent; and when well swung into July we found that a continuance of the sale depended (insofar as the CLOTHING was concerned) in obtaining NEW goods to sustain the sale through its normal period.

Confronted with this ultimatum, we bought all the short lengths of piece goods our various manufacturers had on hand and ordered them made up into SUITS; with the results that no lot contains more than three suits of a kind, many of them but one or two. Of course, we bought these at quite a concession in price, which fact materially advances values at the special mid-summer clearance prices. These handsomely tailored SUITS are now being received daily by Express, and your special attention is called to the extraordinary merit of these models.

ELECTRIC STORM SWEEPS ATLANTA

Another Cupel of Terminal Station Shattered, Street Car Service Delayed and Telephones Short Circuited.

Do you know St. Swithin? Certainly, you have heard of how some English monks attempted on a certain July 15, in the ninth century, to remove his remains from Winchester churchyard, and of the legend that if it rains on July 15 of any particular year, St. Swithin sends us forty days of rain.

On July 15, as was exclusively chronicled in The Constitution, there was a leak in the sky. With the exception of July 28, it has rained every day in Fulton county, and on some days it has rained twice.

The most important question, therefore, is: Does St. Swithin intend to keep up this rain business every day for twenty-four days more?

It Rained, Says Forecaster. Some of Atlanta's canniest weather cranks say that on July 15 it did not rain in the city. The weather man says positively that the instruments of the United States weather bureau, on the top of the Empire building, registered rain. It was not much of a rain, but it was rain, just the same.

All of which goes to show that the ninth century Britisher does follow the official records and reports of the U. S. W. B.

While not attempting to discredit good old St. Swithin, the weather man said that Thursday's rainfall was the heaviest of the month. The deluge amounted to .95 inch, .80 of which fell in 25 minutes at the rate of practically 2 inches to the hour. During the progress of the rain a stiff sou-wester, blowing 24 miles an hour, freshened the atmosphere.

Within five minutes the temperature tumbled 20 degrees. At 3 o'clock it registered 91 degrees, and at 3:05 o'clock it was 71 degrees.

Storm Does Damage. The thunderstorm was the severest during the month.

The life of a young negro girl was snuffed out by a bolt from the sky at 3:15 o'clock.

Another cupel of the Terminal station was shattered. Thirty or more clerks in the auditor's office were scared out of half a year's growth, and Miss Carrie Coliff, a stenographer, became hysterical.

One of the cupelos of the station was shattered several days ago. Workmen were repairing the previous damage when the bolt struck.

The damage to the tower of the station is estimated at $1,000. Street car service was delayed during the rage of the storm. A number of telephones were short-circuited and put out of commission.

Old inhabitants declare that the storm was the most terrific in years. July's weather record shows that some high capers were cut. The month began clear and warm, and continued until the 10th. Then clouds, weather set in and continued to the close of the month. Only three days were cloudless. They were July 17,

Daily Vacation Bible Schools Hold Their Closing Exercises

"And a little child shall lead them." This was the spirit of the closing exercises of the daily vacation Bible schools, held in the Second Baptist church last night. Twelve hundred and fifty-six children from five schools, under the direction of sixty-five college men and women who devoted their time to the work in Atlanta, participated.

The most impressive moment came at the close of the exercises, when they rose as one, and, under the direction of a little Syrian boy, saluted the Stars and Stripes.

One of the pretty features of the evening was the singing of the "Cradle Song" by members of school

No. 1 under the direction of their teacher, Miss Eva Bridwell. Ten little tots, none over 5 years of age, came on the platform barefooted, clad in their nightgowns, and each clasping tightly a dollie, sang the age-old song.

Among those who made addresses were Rev. G. R. Buford, director of the schools; John J. Eagan, Rev. Dunbar H. Ogden and Rev. Dr. John E. White.

A very pleasing feature of the evening was an exhibition of baskets, needles, work, etc., made by the children during the summer months.

At the same time that the above exercises were going on the closing of the four negro schools was held in the Big Bethel church on Auburn avenue. Over a thousand colored children participated.

With the net balance in the general fund today amounting to nearly $132,000,000, Secretary McAdoo has taken the stand that the government should anticipate the situation by placing deposits where and at the time they are needed.

If the full $50,000,000 is deposited this step will temporarily almost double the government's deposits with the banks which now hold $58,000,000 of federal funds.

Tillman Urges Action. Just as Secretary McAdoo was announcing his plan, Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, was issuing a statement declaring that the congress should act quickly to provide an emergency currency, the cotton planters of the south would be robbed of a hundred million dollars or more on account of the inability of southern bankers to get money from New York "pirates."

He urged that some kind of a resolution be put through immediately to afford temporary relief, and that the house banking and currency committee "stop squabbling" and allow permanent currency legislation to be enacted.

Senator Tillman expressed the hope that the committee would work out a practical scheme to inspire confidence in the business people of the country, so that they could lend money to the banks at 3 per cent on satisfactory collateral.

Secretary McAdoo is well informed as to the business conditions in the United States and I am willing to leave it to his good judgment as to what collateral shall be required," said the senator. "Right now there is an emergency, and, unless congress acts promptly within the next sixty days, the southern cotton planters will be robbed of $100,000,000 or more by the fall in the price of their principal crop, due to the inability on the part of the southern bankers to get money from New York at any price or on any collateral."

Hold People by Throat. "The New Yorkers have our people by the throat, as they have had them all these years since the war, and only congress can give relief. The Aldrich-Vreeland act, which authorized the printing of the $50,000,000 now lying in the treasury, grants no relief at all to our people because of the conditions imposed. Relief can be extended only through associations of banks in regional groups. "If something is not done, I see no way of saving the people of the south

LIPSCOMB'S TAX BILL ONCE MORE MUTILATED

defeat the ways and means committee bill, is known to be adverse to tax revision in any form.

Realizing the possibility that this minority, after having used the Sheppard substitute to defeat the Lipscomb bill, may in turn cast its vote against the substitute and so defeat the cause of tax revision altogether, advocates of the state board principle, when they have put into the substitute all that the majority of the house will accept, are generally expected to vote for it, that course being now regarded as the most feasible one to save the cause of tax revision.

That being the case, it is hardly likely that the ways and means committee bill itself will ever be put to a vote of the house.

It is interesting now to note in this connection that the general assembly of last year although limited by the constitution to a five-mill tax rate, went outside of the constitution and appropriated money which Comptroller General Wright in his last annual report figures would have required a tax rate of 6.76 mills to pay.

What Tax Rate Would Be. The house has repeated the same thing this year. While it is impossible to figure on what tax rate would be required to meet the appropriations for 1914 in the general bill passed by the house, it is safe to say, figuring on the basis of the returns of last year and in view of the decrease in returns, that a tax rate would be in the neighborhood of an additional mill, making the rate, if a sufficient rate should be fixed to raise the money needed, 6 mills instead of 5.

It is almost certain that the house will not give its consent to any increase in the tax rate, even the temporary increase asked for by the governor with which to pay the school teachers, and this makes all the more difficult to understand the house's attitude on tax reform.

Consideration of Bill Resumed. When the house met yesterday morning the consideration of the Lipscomb bill amended section by section was resumed, after the usual routine of unanimous consents, reading new bills and passing local bills.

Sections 17 and 18 of the bill were passed over without objection. When section 19 was read Mr. Stovall offered an amendment striking it from the bill.

Chairman Akin said that everyone knew that the gentleman from Elbert was opposed to the state board and that the vote of the day before defined the position of members well enough to do without discussion of the question.

The question was called and section 19 was stricken by a vote of 74 to 34.

Immediately upon the up of the consideration of section 20, Representative Stovall took the floor against this section also, offering an amendment to strike this section, from great loss unless the banks take the law into their own hands, as they did in 1907, and form clearing house associations and issue certificates as they had to do then. I am tired of seeing our people held up and robbed by the New York pirates, who appear willing to scuttle the ship rather than lose their grip on the farmers."

Sections 17 and 18 of the bill were passed over without objection. When section 19 was read Mr. Stovall offered an amendment striking it from the bill.

Chairman Akin said that everyone knew that the gentleman from Elbert was opposed to the state board and that the vote of the day before defined the position of members well enough to do without discussion of the question.

The question was called and section 19 was stricken by a vote of 74 to 34.

Immediately upon the up of the consideration of section 20, Representative Stovall took the floor against this section also, offering an amendment to strike this section, which gives the proposed state board control over county boards.

This was the last section of the bill which gives power to the proposed state board and therefore constituted the last stand of the advocates of the measure. A warm fight was immediately precipitated.

Mr. Akin took the floor in a stirring speech to defend the section.

"If," said he, "you strike this section, gentlemen, you kill this bill. This remaining section gives us an opportunity of passing a measure which, in a manner, takes care of the situation." He outlined the condition of the state's finances and pointed out the urgent need of this measure.

A Head Needed, Says Akin. Mr. Akin was interrupted by the question: "Do you want a bill for county boards?"

"I do," he replied. "If you will give the county boards a head. My business experience and observation has been that no organization is worth a cent unless it has a head. This will be the effect of passing a measure providing for county boards of equalization without the provision for a common head for them."

Mr. Akin was interrupted by the question: "Do you want a bill for county boards?"

Mr. Akin in turn, reminded the house that the duty involved upon it to find some sort of a solution to the problem of getting the state out of debt, and that the first effective method would be by a state board.

Mr. Moss, of Cobb, asked Mr. Akin: "What will be the effect of such a measure as this?"

Effect in Other States. Mr. Akin replied: "I can answer that question only by citing what its effect has been in other states. In Arkansas this measure produced an enormous increase in revenue recouped into that state's treasury, and cut the ad valorem tax rate in half. Gentlemen, this is a poor man's law. It does not discriminate against the farmer. I am a farmer myself, and I know that if it discriminated against me I would not be now upon the floor of this house before you supporting it."

Mr. Akin read a letter from a prominent banker strongly indorsing the bill.

Mr. Moon, of Troup; Mr. Hardeman, of Jefferson, and others also advocated the adoption of section 20.

Consideration Concluded. A number of amendments which were offered to the section under consideration by Representative Meaders of Oconee, Olive of Richmond, Holtzclaw of Houston and others were voted down. The previous question on the Stovall amendment was called and the yeas and nays demanded. This resulted in the striking of the section by a vote of 99 to 73, which showed a substantial gain for the bill over the vote of yesterday.

No other changes were made in the bill, with the exception of striking from section 17 the words, "state board" and the consideration of the measure, section by section, was quickly concluded.

Fullbright Forecasts Right. In explanation of his vote on the Fullbright amendment, Representative Fullbright called the attention of the house to the fact that he had given notice, when opposing increases in appropriations, that the very members who voted to increase the school fund would also oppose the raising of revenue with which to pay it. The subsequent action of the house had demonstrated that his forecast was true.

Wright Offers Substitute. When the house had finished with the Lipscomb bill, Representative Wright, of Floyd, offered a bill of his own as a substitute. This bill provides for the creation of a state tax commissioner, who shall also be ex-officio assistant comptroller general, to be appointed by the governor for a term of six years and with a salary of $3,000.

It further provides for the appointment of tax agents in the several counties, who shall seek out unreturned property and see to it that fair returns are made.

Mr. Sheppard raised the point that the Wright substitute would not be in order, inasmuch as the house had already under consideration the Lipscomb bill and the Sheppard substitute, section by section. The speaker ruled against him, saying that if the house so ordered, it might consider the Sheppard substitute by sections, as it had the Lipscomb bill, but that the substitute of Mr. Wright or any other substitute for House Bill No. 6 would be in order, if the house decided to consider it.

In speaking to his bill, Mr. Wright said that it was intended to help the man who was now paying tax by compelling the tax-dodger to place his property on the digest. Mr. Wright was still speaking when the hour of adjournment was reached and he will be entitled to the floor when the house meets this morning.

On the order of the house 200 copies of the Wright substitute will be printed and spread upon the desks of members.

Unprecedented Decrease in Returns. While the discussion of tax reform is going on in the house, the tax returns of the counties continue to pour into the office of the comptroller general and the aggregate decrease in returns continues to mount up until the figures, which have about reached $500,000, are really becoming alarming.

Captain "Tip" Harrison, who looks after this work, said yesterday that, not since he had been in the office, had such a large proportion of counties reported decreases in tax assessments. He had never seen anything like it, he said, and he would not be surprised if the aggregate assessment did not fall so far below those of last year as to cause a very appreciable decrease in the state's revenue.

The Counties to Date. Since the publication of counties in Tuesday's Constitution, the tax assessments of thirty-one additional counties have been reported to the office of the comptroller general, making forty-eight which have been heard from to date. Twenty of these show losses aggregating $1,349,128. The counties that show losses with the amounts of each are as follows:

Webster, $8,209; Irwin, $36,013; Echols, $136,026; Houston, $139,025; Dawson, $25,310; Grady, $75,815; Thomas, $1,596; Brooks, $248,650; Monroe, $46,601; Warren, $28,209; Fannin, $1,177; Quitman, $18,033; Stephens, $972; Tattnall, $179,327; Dodge, $77,854; Johnson, $11,386; Clay, $46,065; Upson, $98,737; Towns, $65,808; Coweta, $47,522. Total, $1,349,128.

Only eleven counties show gains, which are as follows:

Marion, $145,250; Whitfield, $25,962; Jones, $67,590; Schley, $37,120; Murray, $80,053; Hall, $208,282; Baker, $2,305; McDuffie, $149,426; Catonsville, $123,306; Douglas, $21,424; Walker, $98,597. Total, $929,331.

These counties last reported show a net loss of $419,737. Adding to this the net loss of the counties reported in Tuesday's paper, $54,441, we have an aggregate net loss to date of $474,238.

DEMOCRATS ARE SPLIT BY CURRENCY REFORM

No Hope That Members of the Banking Committee Will Reach Agreement.

Washington, July 31.—Events crowded upon each other today in the progress toward completion of the Glass currency bill in the house committee on banking and currency. Chairman Glass, following out his agreement yesterday with Secretary McAdoo, obtained the adoption of an amendment in the democratic conference for the creation of an "advisory board" of twelve bankers, whose privilege it shall be to confer at regular intervals with the federal reserve board that would be created under the new currency plan.

Interlocking Directorates. Chairman Glass also presented his proposal to prohibit interlocking directorates among national banking institutions. This amendment precipitated a discussion and was carried over without action until tomorrow.

During the day Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, chairman of the democratic caucus, sent out a call for a currency caucus August 11 to take up the bill. Democrats were unable to predict today the condition in which the Glass bill will go into the proposed caucus. Efforts will be made at the committee meeting tomorrow to prevent the measure, as nearly as possible, but several majority members of the committee are radically opposed to its provisions and refuse to give it their indorsement.

Representative Eagle, of Texas, one of these democratic members, today issued a long digest and criticism of the bill, declaring it was "fundamentally bad," that it would sacrifice the country banker to the city banker and that it would place dangerous control of the country's welfare in the hands of a few men.

Demand for Investigation. Another development of the day was the demand for an investigation by the house committee of Secretary McAdoo's recent charge that New York bankers are engaged in trying to depress the value of government 2 per cent bonds in order to create sentiment against the administration currency bill.

Representative Nealey, of Kansas, prepared a resolution, which will be introduced tomorrow, asking Secretary McAdoo to appear before the committee to present proof of his charge.

"My experience as a member of the money trust committee, convinces me that Secretary McAdoo was correct in his statement that there is a deliberate conspiracy to depress government bonds on the stock exchange," said Representative Nealey, in a statement that accompanied the publication of his resolution.

Representative Eagle, who apparently has broken entirely with the supporters of the Glass bill, declared in his statement the measure ultimately would force all banking interests of the country into a gigantic plan to control the election of the president of the United States, since each president in future will have the appointment of a majority of the federal reserve board of directors."

IN THE MELTING POT

The honor of the state of Georgia is in the melting pot. The events of the next few days must determine whether the pot shall tilt toward honor or dishonor. That is how the legislative crisis with regard to the appropriations and the tax equalization bills may be summarized. The state board feature of the ways and means committee did not meet the judgment of that body. It received an adverse vote. But the house still has to commit itself definitely for or against the principle of state-wide equalization. By whatever method it is attained The Constitution hopes that the house will yet recognize the important principle of state-wide equalization. As we see it, such a tax system is the one thing that will save Georgia from dishonor and her institutions from total paralysis.

The house has passed an appropriations bill carrying $280,000 in excess of revenue for the current year. That $280,000 discrepancy is based upon the tax returns of last year. Elsewhere The Constitution publishes summaries of tax returns from forty counties for 1913. These returns show an approximate slump of $600,000 from last year. If nearly one-fourth of the counties of the 148 register this slump, the returns from the entire 148 must go into the millions. In the face of this steadily dwindling revenue the house has already authorized the expenditure of $280,000 in excess of the revenues based upon the large returns of last year.

Governor Slaton said in a recent address that no member could defend a vote for increased appropriations unless he voted for revenue with which to meet it. That is the pith of the present crisis. It is not a question of partisanship, but simply of the arithmetic of everyday business.

No legislator in house or senate would attempt to conduct his private business by spending a sum in excess of revenue without providing for that revenue. He knows that he would, in such a case, invite bankruptcy.

The Constitution is as yet unwilling to concede that the general assembly will be so lacking in patriotism that it may throw the state's honor to the winds, encourage the old carpetbag ghost of repudiation and threaten every institution within our borders with paralysis and stagnation. That is the distinct threat of the moment. For if the present appropriations bill is passed without accompanying revenue legislation there will be no escape from an impairment of the state's credit in its refunding operations. If the excess is pruned out of the appropriation bill the state's institutions as a whole will be crippled. There is only one feasible solution in honor and manliness. That is tax equalization.

We trust that today the members of the house, having had opportunity to fully canvass the situation, may yet pass a bill embodying the principle of state-wide equalization. The honor of the state and the maintenance of her institutions depend upon the enactment of such a principle into law. In the hour of crisis we are unwilling to believe the general assembly will not be able to muster patriotism to meet an urgent situation.

TWO CHICAGO WOMEN.

A matter of interest to the entire country is the fact that Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, for several years superintendent of schools in Chicago, has resigned her resignation from that position. The old board of education had disagreed in toto with Mrs. Young's policies and the situation became such that her presence in the system was worse than useless. The newly-organized board has refused, however, by a vote of 14 to 1 to accept her resignation.

Two women who have rendered service of a distinctly national and international nature have come out of Chicago. They are Ella Flagg Young and Jane Addams. It is open to question which one deserves the more credit. Mrs. Young has aided the woman's cause and education generally, by giving a splendid illustration of efficiency in the reorganization of Chicago's once hopelessly run-down school system. No man could have wrought better or more fearlessly to such an end. The sociological achievements of Miss Addams is of nationwide repute. She has done more than any other woman in America to revolutionize and vitalize our viewpoint toward the girl who works or the girl who sins.

These two Chicago women exemplify the most constructive attributes of the feminist movement.

THE MOTHER'S RIGHT.

If every superior court judge in Georgia were polled they would probably agree with Judge John T. Pendleton that the law should be so amended as to give to mothers, in the case of domestic litigation, the right to their children where their unfitnes is not clearly established. Judge Pendleton expressed himself to this effect with regard to the Augusta case recently cited in The Constitution, and the bills correcting such conditions now pending in the legislature.

The law as it stands is simply the survival of barbarism. The most ignorant men recognize, in the practices of daily life, the superiority of the claim of the mother. She who faced death to bring children into the world, who spent sleepless nights with them in their illnesses and arduous days in training them for manhood and womanhood, is their natural custodian by a law higher than any man-made statute.

The present legislature can remove a basic injustice and write itself on the side of humanity by bringing the law to the twentieth century conception of right.

LOBBYISTS AND DEMAGOGUES

As sound and deliberate a thinker as The Springfield (Mass.) Republican joyously hails the Mulhall disclosures as probably marking the end of undesirable flirtations between business and politics. The revelations of the undue influences exerted upon politics and law-making by the National Association of Manufacturers are pointed out as legitimate developments of a high protective tariff and of any condition that brings law-making and commercial agencies of the country into too close a contact.

We agree with The Republican in its major premise that the dealings between business and politics must be wholly open. That assured, there is nothing to fear. Publicity is a sufficient preventive against sinister alliances. That much said, it remains that business always will and always ought to be interested in politics. And there is very little legislation that may be enacted by congress that will not bear directly or indirectly upon business. We must expect, at every session and despite the reduction of the tariff to a revenue basis, to see representatives of commercial institutions gather in groups. These institutions would, indeed, be careless of their stockholders' interests and reckless of the future if they did not keep an intelligent eye on measures affecting both.

Another phase of the situation is rarely canvassed, and that is the manner in which the activities of the demagogue make necessary the exertions before congress of the business man. We have gone lately a long way in showing the lobbyist just how far he will be allowed to go and what is expected of him under all circumstances. There is nothing but public opinion to put a check on the demagogue. For instance, candidates for house and senate can misrepresent conditions to their heart's content, vilify business, bait corporations, gird at the railroads and line up impassioned prejudice for selfish interest. They may be willing to forget these banes of their own making, after they have achieved office, but the memory of the people is longer. Voters, unfortunately, or at least a few of them, take these attacks seriously. They believed the candidate when he told them things were plunging hellward, and they demand straightway that he proceed to purge the country of the devil and all his works.

Is it any wonder that, in situations of this nature, lobbyists flourish and multiply and that big and little business should spend a good many thousand each year in maintaining representatives at Washington? The remedy, of course, is the education of the voter and a little more skepticism on his part. But as long as our system of politics encourages the demagogue we are going to find his counterpart in the lobbyist.

PLAYING WITH DYNAMITE.

We have little sympathy with democratic, republican or progressive harangues charging their partisan opponents with maneuvering for the manufacture of a panic. There is a good deal of such loose talk going up in and around congress at present. The practice not only makes those who indulge in it appear silly, but it is distinctly in the way of playing with dynamite.

A few months ago the leading financiers of the country were a trifle pessimistic. Their brooding grew out of world conditions and in no way were affected, save by deliberate distortion, by pending legislation. Of recent weeks their viewpoint has grown more hopeful. They see for the United States not hard times or a panic, but every prospect of a healthy business year. Reports thus far indicate that crops will be of the bumper variety. Trade is active. Collections have improved. We have presented, then, the unusual paradox of all the country talking prosperity, with the exception of congress.

Now, a panic or hard times, as most students of economics have learned from close observation, where it is not actually created by a psychological state of mind, is unquestionably aided and abetted by that influence. For struggling partisans, therefore, to be trifling with the public welfare for the sake of a little trivial party advantage, is a spectacle that is puzzling, to say the least of it.

We're not going to have a panic, and those now so recklessly bandying such talk know it. About the most patriotic thing all hands can do is to abate their noise and give the country a chance to make headway against the legislation which it has been continuously drenched since the first year of the Taft administration.

NO RECOGNITION OF HUERTA.

From the points of view either of morality or policy President Wilson's refusal to recognize the government of Huerta of Mexico is amply justified. The president is said to base his decision purely upon the moral aspect. Since Huerta rose to power by treachery and assassination, the president's reasons that the quasi-indorsement of such methods by the United States might encourage similar conditions in South and Central American countries, already tolerably well inclined to such short cuts. History is, of course, sprinkled with instances of progress being forwarded upon bloodshed and intrigue. All things being equal, however, it is just as well that this nation be not placed even in the indirect attitude of approving such practices.

By far the more important argument for non-recognition lies in the instability of the rule of Huerta. Recognizing him would be in the nature of throwing a rope to a drowning man, with slim possibility either of reaching him or of his ability to grasp it. Huerta and his partisans have set up the claim that the moment we recognize the de facto government of Mexico the troubles of that republic will fade as by magic. The statement is more a special plea than anything else. "Huerta has now had many months in which to put down disaffection. Lately he has had access to large foreign loans, which should have supplied him plentifully with munitions of war. He has had abundant ports of entry. He has enjoyed also what is more important, and that is a full opportunity to demonstrate his good faith to the Mexican people of all classes.

Despite these advantages, power has steadily trickled through his fingers. One by one the men originally associated with him in his conspiracies and their fruition have gone over to the opposition or given up in disgust. Rebellions are sprouting in every state. Federal troops sent out to bring order go over to the enemy. To recognize Huerta in this situation would throw the authority of this government behind a leader foredoomed to failure, and we would discredit the force of any support we might in the future extend to a Mexican government. Incidentally, it is a matter for congratulation that Ambassador Wilson seems destined to remain at home. Evidently he is not even remotely in accord with the policies of the president.

WAS MARLBOROUGH HONEST IN PURPOSE?

The Duke of Marlborough, like most men who have been successful, was the target of many arrows darts at his honesty, his integrity and his loyalty to his country. As to their justice, it depends much upon which side of the political fence a refuge was taken. For close to a hundred years after his death Marlborough has been represented in books as a consummate general indeed, but as being devoid of honor and principle; an intriguer, a traitor, a speculator; and so careless of human life and of human suffering that for the sake of his own interests he wantonly prolonged the war, which, for his ambition and his avarice, might many times have been brought to an end.

A Story of the Moment

By WALT MASON, The Famous Prose Poet

HOME, SWEET HOME.

"This thing of paying rent," remarked the melancholy boarder, "is what keeps so many Americans poor. Every married man should own his home, and then he'll be independent."

"That's another of the star-spangled theories that won't wash," said the star boarder. "The truly independent man is the one who lives in a rented house. He enjoys many advantages unknown to the one who owns his home, including the chance of beating the landlord out of the rent. It's surprising how long a man may stay in a house without paying rent if he knows a little law, and has the courage of his convictions. A friend of mine has held the fort for nearly six months, and the landlord seems unable to get him out. The friend in question is a perfect gentleman in every way, but he has an inherited prejudice against paying rent, and landlords always are trying to evict him from their property. The public sympathy is with him from first to last, and the landlord is hissed every time he appears with a constable.

"People who are fond of honest sport must enjoy such an experience as that of my friend, and it is an experience the home owner never has. He lives and moves in a row, my dear Mrs. Jiggers. His career is stagnation. I hold that it is the duty of every poor man to take a fall out of the landlords on every possible occasion. Let us rent houses and refuse to pay for them, and we'll do more to discourage the plutocrats than by voting for a thousand years.

"As soon as a man owns his home, his troubles begin. If the renter doesn't like the house he is in, he may move into another one, and then another, and so on, thus having plenty of wholesome excitement; but the house owner must stay where he is unless he has a chance to sell out, and that seldom happens, for people who have money enough to buy a house can find a better use for it. The price of an ordinary cottage would provide joy rides for a month.

"The house owner has to be everlastingly digging up for one thing or another. His wife is forever wanting something done to the house; an addition to the kitchen, or a porch on the south side, or a sleeping porch over the kitchen. If he lived in a rented house he could tell her to go and jack up the landlord and turn her out of the sporting page of his newspaper with a serene and contented mind; but that house owner has no such an opportunity. His wife keeps after him until finally she gets him, and he has to go in debt for the sleeping porch or whatever it is his wife has decided upon.

"Then the house has to be painted every once in a while, and you don't know what expense is. Mrs. Jiggers, until you hire a couple of old masters to paint a house, and when you have the outside of the house looking presentable, you begin to realize that the inside is a disgrace to the neighborhood, and you have to move into the woodshed while the paperhangers do their worst. Along about the 25th of July your insurance runs out, and for two weeks prior to that date all the insurance agents in town are chasing you, each pointing out, with impassioned language, that he represents the only reliable company. For a long and ghastly fortnight the insurance agents make the house owner feel like a man who occupies the white house, and finds the fruit trees full of office-seekers.

"When he has selected his insurance agent, and secured a policy, all the other insurance agents and their families cut him dead, and he finds himself a social outcast in his own town. And the first time he picks up a magazine he finds a muckraking story which demonstrates that the insurance company he patronized is an organization of rascals, and he learns that his policy isn't worth the paper it is printed on.

"Thus unmerciful disaster follows fast and follows faster, Mrs. Jiggers, until the house owner grows green with envy when he contemplates his neighbor, who lives in a rented house, and has no end of fun balking and badgering the landlord. In the end the unfortunate man sells his house for what the shingles on the roof cost him, and rents a house, and life begins to seem worth while."

Traveling Via the Movies. (From Judge.) There was a young fellow named Claude, Just returned from a long trip abroad; Everywhere he would go, He would knowledge bestow, Believing his friends would applaud.

But it seemed that this was not to be, For no matter of what he told, He heard this cry o'er and o'er: "Yes, he've seen that before, For we go to the picture show. See?" —Harvey Peaka

The Porch Swing

By GEORGE FITCH Author of "At Good Old Slawsh"

In spite of the vast growth of the automobile business, the porch swing continues to be the great American vehicle for summer use.

A million Americans climb into automobiles on each hot evening and career gaily through space and other automobiles. But ten million Americans sit in porch swings after supper and over and over again declare that the porch swing costs about as much as an automobile cushion and can be set up and operated by a mere novice in mechanics. A porch swing built for two can be operated from eight p. m. until father comes down in his shirt and tie the next morning, and at the end of that time the total expense for tires, gasoline, fines and storage will be $6000.

Millions of porch swings are carrying the people of this country hither and yon each evening without any trouble with the police or anything but minor breakdowns. A porch swing can be bought on installments like an automobile, but the buyer does not have to mortgage his home in order to do it. A good, strong, three-passenger porch swing will amply furnish deep, easy cushions and two speeds, one forward and one reverse, can be bought for $5.00, and five cents' worth of lubricating oil will run it ten years.

There are many Americans who look upon the porch swing with scorn and declare that it doesn't get the passenger anywhere. However, it must be said that the porch swing always gets its passengers home. It is also alleged that the scenery from the deck of the porch swing becomes more and more quickly. However, the passenger does not get so much of it in his eye. The scoffer further alleges that it is impossible to lose a porch swing with merry friends and carry them to jolly little restaurants, man miles away. This is perhaps the porch swing's greatest virtue.

"Two speeds, one forward and one reverse" The safety of America lies not in the million who are willing and able to blow in a peck of assorted greenbacks for an automobile, but in the millions who are manning their porch swings and are getting to be early in order to rise at dawn the next day and work so hard that they will be able to lay aside a little money towards automobile of their own.

At Forty.

(From Judge.)

When forty winters shall besiege thy brow And dig deep trenches in thy beauty's field, Thy youth's proud livery, so gaze on now, Will be a tattered weed, of small worth held.

—Shakespeare. What! Forty winters mark her lovely brow And leave her with no reason to aspire? Once forty may have been old age, but now At forty woman still has youthful fire.

The beauty who at twenty-five may please Declines at thirty to be grim and stout, While at the hopeful age of forty she's But fully blown and fairly rounded out.

She dances and she flirts, she charms the eye; Her careless laughter causes hearts to leap. The beauty doctors all their art apply To keep her furrows from becoming deep.

When forty winters have pursued their course, She may not even have her first divorce.

Country Club Dinner Dance Scene of Many Gay Parties

The midsummer dinner dance at the Capital City Country club last night brought out 150 guests, many of them coming out long before the hour of dinner to enjoy the beauty of the sunset, of which a wonderful view is commanded from the clubhouse porch.

Dinner was served between 7:30 and 8 o'clock, the tables on the porch. Each was beautifully decorated with flowers and the menu was unusually tempting. Dancing was enjoyed afterward, the music introducing new airs, inspiring the exclamation continually of "encore," "encore."

Among the entertaining parties large and small were Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Watson, Mr. W. B. McBurney, Mr. and Mrs. Hunt Chipley, Mr. William Dickey, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Weyman, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. B. ## When Atlanta Women Buy CRACKERS

If every housewife in Atlanta would look into the Supply-Rooms at the BLOCK Bakeries, she would have fresh faith in BLOCK Crackers and Biscuits.

What would she see?

Just this: The finest of materials and the first grade of ingredients all ready for making into BLOCK Crackers.

Then, if she would look a bit further, she would see how these fresh and perfect materials are handled--the skill, the care, the perfection of detail that enter into the whole process.

She would find absolute cleanliness and rigidly sanitary methods. She would see that BLOCK products are evolved with fastidious care at every step--from mixing to packing.

All this goes on right here in Atlanta, ladies. You are invited to see it.

Why not serve on YOUR table the Crackers and Biscuits that come to you crisp, clean and fresh from an Atlanta bakery, just a few minutes from your home?

MARRIAGE CONTRACT BILL IS RECONSIDERED

Action Taken by Vote of 21 to 9 Following Eloquent Appeal of Senator Allen.

Upon motion of Senator J. T. Allen, of the twelfth, the marriage contract bill which was postponed indefinitely Wednesday by a vote of 19 to 13, was reconsidered Thursday morning by a vote of 21 to 9. This reconsideration has the effect of placing the bill at the fall of the calendar.

Senator Allen, in asking for the reconsideration, depicted the horrible condition of the demented children who are now in Georgia as a result of unwise marriages.

The bill by Senator C. E. McGregor, providing that new counties shall be admitted only by majority vote of qualified voters of all counties effected, which was lost Wednesday by a vote of 22 to 15, was also reconsidered.

Appointments Affirmed. The senate confirmed the appointments of Governor Slaton sent up Wednesday morning.

The bill amending the charter of the city of Macon so as to incorporate Cherokee Heights was passed unanimously yesterday.

President Anderson's bill allowing the militia of the state to be called to serve during the Vanderbilt cup races to be held in Savannah from November 24 to 27 was passed.

A bill for the permanent registration of voters in this state, as amended by Governor Slaton, was introduced by Senator B. S. Miller, of the twenty-fourth.

Sentence Bill Passed. With only two dissenting votes the indeterminate sentence bill, regulating the manner of sentencing prisoners, the manner of their parole and providing a system for the grading and classification of convicts while in the penitentiary, was passed by the senate Thursday.

The bill, which was introduced by Senator Foster, is supported by the Men and Religion movement and by the Prison Reform association and its effect permits prisoners who conduct themselves well while imprisoned to be released before the maximum limit of their time.

Senator Bush's bill regulating and controlling industrial insurance companies, domestic fire, accident, health and societies so as to prevent misrepresentation, was passed by a vote of 36 to 0.

Bills Passed. By Mr. Foster to amend the law to fix indeterminate sentences for certain prisoners. By Mr. Bush to regulate all insurance companies in this state.

By Messrs. Seay and Smith to fix salaries of supreme court justices. By Messrs. Bush, Johnson and Foster to provide for revision of jury lists.

Bills Introduced. By Mr. Smith of the Ninth—to protect the voter's vote. By Mr. Wain—to provide for a commission to provide for disposal of the governor's mansion.

By Mr. Miller—to provide for the registration of voters. By Messrs. Turner and Elkins—a resolution giving governor authority to appoint commission to dispose of governor's mansion.

EQUINE JACK RIPPER GETS HIS TENTH MULE

Valdosta, Ga., July 31.—(Special.)—The unknown vandals who for several months has maimed at intervals a number of fine mules and horses in this city has begun operations again. Another of the city's big mules was found in its stall yesterday morning wounded exactly as a number of others have been. In all, ten mules belonging to the city have been maimed, four of them dying and the others being maimed for life. All of them were wounded by having a knife or sharp instrument thrust into their shoulder joint at a certain point. The instrument severs certain ligaments in the joint, causing the death of the animal in some cases and rendering it valueless if it lives. The police force and city authorities are puzzled, and are at their wits end in their efforts to catch the vandal. The mules have been watched night after night, and detectives have spent a long while in the effort to nab the man who does the maiming, but without results.

EXPERIMENT STATION CAUSES SHARP CLASH

Two Removal Bills Will Be Argued by House Committee Tuesday Afternoon.

There was a sharp fight before house committee No. 1 on general agriculture Thursday afternoon on the proposition to move the state experiment station to south Georgia, with the result that action was postponed until next Tuesday afternoon, at which time a similar bill to move the experiment station to Athens will also be considered.

The bill considered Thursday was introduced in the house by Messrs. Ellis, of Tift, and Slater, of Bryan, and calls for the station to be located somewhere in south Georgia without specifying any particular location.

Mr. Herling, editor of The Tifton Gazette, Judge Frank Park, of the Albany circuit, the sponsors of the bill, and others spoke before the committee urging a recommendation that the bill do pass.

The argument was advanced in favor of the bill that south Georgia is the most advantageous agricultural section of the state for the location of the experiment station, in that its soil admits of more diversified crops and greater range for experiment purposes. The advocates of the removal stated that in a short time the boll weevil may be expected in south Georgia, and the help of the experiment station will be needed to fight its ravages, as well as those of beetles on the peach crop, pear blight and to other crop pestilences peculiar to the section.

Representative Connor, of Spalding, Senator Seay, of Griffin, and Judge James Flynn, of Griffin, strenuously opposed the removal of the station, stating that the people of Spalding county and of the town of Griffin had donated much money to the establishment of the station at its present location, and that its removal at this date would be unjust to them.

The bill to move the station to Athens was heard next Tuesday for final action along with the south Georgia bill, was introduced by Representatives Booker and Greene, of Wilkes.

PRIMARY ELECTION BILL FAVORED BY COMMITTEE

This committee also made favorable recommendations on the following measures:

By Mr. Moon of Troup—to fix fees of tax collectors at 1 per cent on corporation taxes.

By Mr. Akin of Glynn—to allow corporations to change their location by a two-thirds vote of the stockholders.

By Mr. Swift, of Muscogee—to provide a right of action against a person who negligently kills a dog.

QUESTION OF TARE ON AMERICAN COTTON

Washington, July 31.—The first meeting of the committee appointed at the annual meeting of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers, at Raleigh, N. C., in November last to formulate a plan for bringing about a conference of representatives of the various organized cotton interests of the world to devise some method by which the tare on American cotton may be standardized with a view to eliminating the evils growing out of present tare practices was held in the office here today of Senator E. B. Smith, of South Carolina.

The committee is composed of Senators Hoke Smith, of Georgia; Smith, of South Carolina; Postmaster General Burleson, former Representative W. G. Branley, of Georgia, and representatives of the departments of agriculture and commerce. A subcommittee was appointed to work out the details of the proposed conference, to be presented to the full committee at another meeting to be held here within a short time. The question of speedily bringing about a universal standard for American cotton was also considered, but no definite action was taken.

RUSHING POLICE SIGNAL AND FIRE-ALARM SYSTEM

Value of Change Will Be Evident at Once, Says Chief Cummings.

Despite the fact that there is pending an application for a writ of injunction, alleging that the city is contracting a moral obligation, the Okenite company, of New York, is rushing to completion the new fire alarm and police signal system for which the city has agreed to pay $106,000.

Work on the new central fire station system has been started, according to Fire Chief W. B. Cummings. Chief Cummings estimates that the value of the new system will be made apparent because the department will be enabled to reach a fire several minutes earlier. Under the present system when a telephone call is sent in the person must first get the operator at fire headquarters, and the operator sends the alarm to the nearest station. Under the new system the alarm will first reach the nearest stations. Chief Cummings says that the new system eliminates the danger of damage in storms and entirely does away with the false alarms sent in frequently when lightning hits the wires.

The city has made a contract with the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company whereby a considerable portion of the cost of operating the telephones at each of the fire stations will be cut off.

HART IS FOUND GUILTY

Verdict of Voluntary Manslaughter for Killing Harnage.

Moultrie, July 31.—(Special.)—After deliberating many hours the jury trying the case of James Hart, charged with the murder of J. M. Harnage, returned a verdict today of voluntary manslaughter.

Jerry Hart, a brother of James Hart, is on trial today for the murder of Harnage, the charge growing out of the same affray for which his brother was convicted.

The trouble between the Harnages and the Harts took place in May in a roadway near Berlin, and was the culmination of a number of misunderstandings.

Sentence has not been passed yet, and will not be until the trial of Jerry Hart, charged with the murder of Harnage, who is now on trial, is concluded.

Harnage's wife and daughter were present, according to the evidence in the trial, and sought to prevent a difficult row was over, young Harnage was dead with a pistol bullet through his head, and old man Harnage was unconscious with his skull fractured and his brains oozing out. He lingered a week and died without ever regaining consciousness. His aged wife and daughter were the principal witnesses for the prosecution. The Jerry Hart trial will not be concluded before tomorrow.

AUTOPSIES ON BIRDS ORDERED BY NEW YORK

New York, July 31.—One of the most unusual autopsies ever ordered by the city authorities is expected to establish the cause of death of nearly one-third of the valuable collection of water fowl in Central park. For the past three days an epidemic has been raging among the fowl, forty-one having died in one day. The water in the lake has been drained off and analyzed, but it is the opinion of the park commissioner that spinal meningitis and not impure water is to blame for the high mortality.

Among the fowl affected are ducks from China and the arctic. One of a pair of priceless black swans, an almost extinct variety, is dead. Sixty-one birds in all have succumbed to the malady.

MURDER OF HEWELLS IS NOW CHARGED TO DUBLIN WHITE MAN

Dublin, Ga., July 31.—(Special.)—Bob Williamson, a white man, was arrested here this morning charged with the murder of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hewell, who were shot down at their home one night several weeks ago near Dublin. Four negroes are already in jail, charged with the crime.

Williamson, it is claimed, had a disagreement with Hewell just a day or two before the shooting, and he has been suspected for some time, but no arrest was made until today, when sons of Hewell swore out a warrant against him for murder. Whether they will endeavor to show that he did the killing or inspired some negroes to do it is not known, but he is charged with being connected with it in some manner.

The grand jury, which has been in session here all the week, took up the case this morning, and is now investigating it, but so far has not completed hearing all the evidence.

ZACHRY CASE WILL GO BEFORE SUPREME COURT

Augusta, Ga., July 31.—(Special.)—Mrs. Mary W. Zachry, has, through her attorney, filed a bill of exceptions, and the supreme court will be asked to decide whether the father or the mother shall have the two little girls, Frances and Mildred Zachry.

It is thought that this action will stop the habeas corpus proceedings, about to be brought by Mr. Zachry in Columbia, to regain possession of the children.

BILL TO GIVE W. & A. OPENING TO THE SEA

Measure of Cooper and Crawley, if Passed, Would Open Way for Extension.

A bill introduced in the house Thursday by Representatives Cooper and Crawley, of Ware, to provide for a right-of-way for the Atlantic, Waycross and Northern railroad into Atlanta, is designed ultimately to allow an extension of the Western and Atlantic railroad to the sea, should the measure be passed by the legislature.

The bill ostensibly gives the Atlantic, Waycross and Northern power to condemn and take possession of the Fort Valley branch of the Southern railway and parts of the Georgia terminal property, giving the road a right-of-way into Atlanta, and at the same time amends the charter of the road so as to allow the road to connect with the Atlantic ocean at the St. Mary's river.

Next to the last clause in the bill, however, provides that the state, by action of the legislature, may take over the property affected by the bill at a consideration to be fixed by arbitration. In the event of such action this would give the state possession of an unbroken trunk line from Chattanooga to the sea.

The bill points out the legal machinery necessary to the exercising of the privileges granted by the bill.

Rock Island Lines

through sleeping car to Colorado

EDITED BY Dick Jemison

The Crackers snared the Vols under Thursday. Here's hoping they grab both double headers yet to be played.

WHIFFS

After Records.

THE CRACKERS have forty more games to play. Thirty of them are on the home grounds. Harry Welchone only needs 56 hits in the forty games to establish a new mark in the number of hits made in a season. Tommy Long has to make only 21 runs in the same number of games to establish a new run-getting mark. Many more days like they had Thursday and it will be a cinch.

Was Nervous.

HARRY HOLLAND looked good on third for the Crackers Thursday. The former jacket handles himself as excellently as he always did in the field. At the bat he showed he was a trifle nervous and too anxious. But when he gets used to his new surroundings, his new teammates and their signals, this boy is going to start hitting. His nose the plate is entirely too narrow for him not to chime into a hitting bee soon. He crowds the plate and takes a free, easy swing.

Looks Good.

HOLTZ looks good in that right garden. This fellow is an experienced ball player or we miss our guess. He is no youngster just picked up from a little league. He knows how to field, can throw, is awake on the bases and his position at the plate reminds one of a hitter. This way he certainly can't lose those two fly balls in the ninth inning Thursday was a treat.

Debut Saturday.

"SLIM LOVE," the eloquent southpaw of the Crackers, will make his debut Saturday against the Vols. The big fellow has been working out carefully every day since he joined the club, and announces himself as fit. Thompson and Price will face the Vols today. Conzelmann will work the other game Saturday.

With Regret.

THE PASSING of Bill Bailey causes us much sorrow. Bill has always been one of our favorites, and we hate to see him go, but his physical condition has been all season that he could do neither himself nor the club justice. In many of the games Bailey played through nervously. Whenever he goes, we wish him the greatest success.

Looks Good.

LOU CASTRO'S entrance into the boxing promoting game in Atlanta looks like a boon for the local sport. Lou will not stand for anything shady in the ring at Ponce de Leon, he presents an ideal place for boxing bouts of the highest caliber. Nothing but the best boys will be brought to Atlanta, with well-rounded preliminaries to make the card attractive. The announcement of his first show, printed elsewhere, size up as a bear.

Did Just Right.

RUBE BENTON has no holier concern regarding the decision of President Herrmann than he has to get to pay him a cent while he is laid up injured as the result of his run-in with a street car, while speeding on his motorcycle. Garry had warned Benton against riding the motorcycle, but he continued. Therefore it is up to him to suffer the consequences. Look over your employer pay your salary if you collided with a street car on your machine? Well, hardly. Why should the Reds pay Benton's?

A Real Jinx.

PLAYING first base in a world's series seems to put a jinx on some mighty good ball players. After a couple of years in the world's series, the initial corner, all kinds of accidents or tough breaks in the luck have befallen many star players. Look over the list. Fred McGriff, Hank Gowdy and Harry Davis are the three who survived the jinx and are still "in the game." The other two are "in the hospital" in major league ball. In other words, the jinx is a very unfortunate one, whom we cannot remember.

The Answer.

FOURTEEN big league scouts met in a little Texas town some time ago and, of course, their trade was the main topic of conversation. "There are too few Irishmen in the minors," was the comment of one. "That's why we're not getting a better crop of youngsters this season," "I can tell you why that is," answered a politician. "The Celts are all in politics. It comes easier." And the laugh went around.

Hot Weather.

THE SPIRIT during the past two weeks of the Memphis races has been one of the surprises of the race at the present writing. The belated aggressiveness of the turtles has surprised their most ardent admirers, and the steady warm weather is given as the real cause for the added dash and pep. Of the last 12 races played, the turtles have topped 13, which is mighty useful going and will bring them up out of the rut if it is maintained.

Crackers Romp In---Two Games Today

Crackers Slaughter Alibis; Beck's Horseshoe Quit Work When Locals Batted in Eighth

For seven innings George Beck's horseshoes stuck to him faithfully. In the eighth inning they departed with a bang, and the Crackers, smacking, and the Crackers copped the opening game of a five-game series with the Nashville Vols, 10 to 2.

For seven innings the count stood 2 to 2, with the Vols having gotten all the best of every break, but in the eighth inning the local heavy artillery turned loose their guns, and when the smoke had cleared away eight runs had been scored. Beck's horseshoes were quit work, and Elliott Dent twirled for the Crackers, and but for the two bobbles that the Crackers registered would have had a shut out. This big fellow looks better every time he sees him work, and he's going to make a strong bid for the Southern league hurling honors this season.

Debut Parties.
The game marked the local debut of five ball players, two new Crackers and three new Vols making their first appearance of the season at Ponce de Leon.

For Nashville Artie Hofman played first and Baumgardner was in right field a part of an inning. Jack Spratt played third base, his debut being the most successful. He fielded errorlessly and drove in both of the tallies the Vols counted.

For Crackers Harry Holland, the former Tech captain and third baseman, played the hot corner for the locals. He handled his two chances in the field in fine style, but did not get any hits, though he stood up for the plate as usual. But when the first nervousness wears away he'll go to hitting. See if he don't.

Holtz, the new right fielder, looks fine. He acts like a man that knows how to run the bases. He looks good at the bat, two clean bingles being his quota for the day, while he fields well. He got two chances in the outfield, both difficult ones, which came in the ninth inning. He handled them in fine shape.

Feature Play.
The one-handed stab of Bisland's of a grounder from Perry's bat was the one bright feature of the fielding part of the fray. It was well nigh impossible to see how he did it, but when he flagged the ball, Perry beat the throw for a hit.

A nice running catch by Welchone, Holtz's two catches and Chapman's kick behind the bat, was also excellent.

Welchone and Long led the attack with three hits apiece. Bisland and Holtz were right behind with two each. The good in the third, Agler's relay got Holtz out third, but his ump sent Hofman back to second, from where he scored on Spratt's single.

Chapman's by Bisland, Holtz and Chapman tied it up for the Crackers in the second.

Long's single, Agler's sacrifice and Welchone's single put the Crackers on top in the good in the third. Agler's single, which Welchone errored, put the Crackers on top in the sixth.

The Big Round.
The Crackers had several chances to grab off some runs, but Beck was getting away. But the eighth opened up for the Crackers, and they took it. Welchone started things with a single to left. Smith was hit. Bisland bunted. Welchone beat the throw to the catcher.

third, Bisland getting a "Cincinnati" hit, and when Beck threw over Spratt's head Welchone and Smith scored and Bisland went to second. Holland sacrificed him to third, and Holtz scored him with a single.

Holtz went to second on a wild pitch. Chapman walked and Dent singled, filling the bases. Long sent two home, Beck, Holtz, and Agler walked, filling the cushion.

The "big bear" of the league strode to the plate for his second chance during the inning, and promptly poked the first ball over to right field for two cushions, clearing the bases.

Beck was yanked, and Del Young, right fielder, called in to pitch. Baumgardner went to right field. Young retired both Smith and Bisland without further damage.

Birmingham, Ala., July 31.—Covaleski proved invincible after the first inning and Chattanooga downed Birmingham 5 to 1. With a one-run lead, Hardgrove was struck with a fast grounder from Elberfeld's bat in the second. Williams was forced to retire. Gregor, who relieved him, was wild and allowed Chattanooga to gain the lead. Before Foxen could check the visitors, Chattanooga scored four runs. Unrecovered by the accident, Birmingham was helpless before Elberfeld in the following innings. Brilliant fielding by Ellam and King enveloped the bats.

Chicago, July 31.—Chicago made it two straight from New York today, winning 5 to 4 after an up-hill battle. The locals forced Rube Marquard out, thus his record of nine consecutive wins remains intact. To Larry Cheney, the Chicago pitcher, belongs the distinction of both victories. He blanked McGraw's men yesterday and today, when he came to the rescue with the score a tie, he held the enemy safe until Manager Evers scored and won the game. Burns, knocked unconscious by a thrown ball by Bidwell, refused, when he regained consciousness, to leave the game.

Cincinnati, July 31.—Philadelphia played savagely today and easily won the second game of the series from Cincinnati 9 to 4. Brown, hard hit, was replaced by Herbert, a recruit. One run had been scored and the bases were filled when Rixey was called upon to relieve Seaton. Rixey struck out Shekard, the first man to face him. Berghammer, the next man up, sent out a long fly, on which Clark came in from third. Rixey then wound up the inning by striking out Blackburn.

"Shawnee" Will Probably Be Released as Soon as Waivers Are Secured.
Harry ("Shawnee Bill") Bailey has been placed on the ineligible list by the local club and will probably be released as soon as waivers are secured. This move was necessary for Holland to be signed.

Bailey has been in bad health all season, and has not been able to do himself justice. He has tried hard, but his physical condition prohibited his best efforts.

Bailey has complained of a pain in his side all season, and he believes he is threatened with appendicitis. Being hit by a pitched ball in New Orleans aggravated matters, and a blow on the head was the last straw. Bailey will probably return to his home in a few days and quit ball for the remainder of the present season.

Charley White v. Frank Whitney At Ponce de Leon Skating Rink; Winner to Meet Speedy Britton

Count Louis Castro has entered the boxing promoting game, and has leased the Ponce de Leon skating rink for a year. He proposes to stage the highest class bouts obtainable at least every two weeks.

A large force of workmen have started to work remodeling the interior of the big rink, converting it into a permanent boxing emporium, erecting the ring and installing the seats. The first bouts at the new club will be held Wednesday night, August 13.

Castro has signed his boxers for the evening, and has wired transportation to those not in the city. He proposes to have over one of his contestants on the ground at least a week before the battles.

Charley White, the Chicago lightweight, who made such quick work of Jake Abel at the Auditorium-Armory about two weeks ago, will go on in the ten-round main bout with Frank Whitney, the most popular boxer that ever appeared in Atlanta.

In the ten-round semi-windup, Eddie Hanlon, whose work in the bout with Terry Nelson at the Auditorium, was so good, has been matched with Mike Saul, the fighting milkman. Plenty of action here.

For the ten-round opener, Kid Young and Charley Lee will lock horns again. The fouling of Lee by Young in their last meeting left a bad taste in the mouth of the fans and promoted dissatisfaction among the followers of the two boys, who did not think Lee's foul verdict conclusive of his superiority over Young.

In meeting these two up again, Castro has undertaken the personal supervision of Young. He will see to it that the newboy champ is in fighting trim for this bout.

The street car company has agreed to co-operate with the new club by furnishing quick car service to and from the rink.

The winner of the main bout will get a crack at Jack Britton, the speedy lightweight, in the main bout of a fall-trim for this bout.

The Atlanta motordrome management has arranged an excellent program for the speed fans tonight at the local motordrome. Ten events are on the calendar, and the time should be the fastest yet.

The Atlanta sweepstakes will be the feature event of the evening, the two heats, with five men in each heat, at 2 miles, and the final 1 1/2 mile heat.

Three heats of the motordrome purse at 1 mile each will open the evening's entertainment, the final being 2 miles.

Harry Glenn, the local rider, who has won his last two special match races, defeating Swartz last Friday and Haddock Wednesday, will try conclusions with Billy Shields tonight.

Cars leave Five Points every few minutes. Here is the complete program:

First Event.
Motordrome Purse—Three 1-mile qualifying heats; final 2 miles. First heat, Graves, Richards, Swartz, Lewis, Lockner.

Second Event.

GLEM POOLE CONVICTED OF KILLING POLICEMAN

Mercy Recommended—Baptism of Poole's Young Wife Led to Tragedy.

Dalton, Ga., July 31.—(Special.)—The jury in the case of the state against Glem Poole, who killed Policeman Harry Cooke, tonight returned a verdict of guilty with a recommendation to the mercy of the court, which will mean a life sentence for the defendant. The verdict was a slight surprise, as a verdict of murder in the first degree was expected. No violence is anticipated.

Early in the morning a jury was secured in the Poole case and all other parties and witnesses were excused for the day and quite an array of witnesses were sworn for both the state and the defense, although there was no eye-witness to the killing. Poole's young wife and his mother were with him and advised with his counsel throughout the progress of the trial.

It developed during the trial that Poole objected to the baptism of his wife last Sunday afternoon when she and forty others were baptized by Rev. Buford Farrar, and that he endeavored to induce her to take barbitic acid, and upon her refusal, fired at her with a pistol and then forced her to accompany him to the residence of her father, Rev. J. A. Hudlow. A telephone call for the police was answered by Cooke and in attempting to arrest Poole, Cooke was killed by him. The pretty young wife of Poole, whom he attempted to kill and who is now so loyal to him, is said to be only 14 years of age, and about eight years his junior.

The defense resorted to the respective pleas of insanity, self-defense while the arresting officer was without due authority and accidental killing.

Sitton pitched for Nashville and Atlanta in this league.

LEGION OF SLEUTHS AFTER JEWEL THIEVES

Everybody at Swell Narragansett Is Viewed With Suspicion.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., July 31.—The jewels stolen from the summer home of Charles Cary Rumsey and John J. Hanan are being sought in New York, Boston and other cities where big transactions in precious stones are not uncommon. Large dealers in diamonds have been cautioned against dealing with strangers who have jewelry of great value for sale.

Although the police throughout the country have been asked to watch pawnshops, detectives are satisfied the robbers are the work of an expert gang too shrewd to do business with pawnbrokers. The mysterious automobile seen on Ocean road Saturday night is the most important clue, and after learning all he could about the car, one of the detectives engaged by Mrs. Hanan left for New York today.

"The detectives," said Mrs. Hanan, "are as much of a puzzle to me as the whereabouts of my jewelry. The first word I have had from the detectives was the assurance from the operative today that he had learned something very important and was going to New York at once."

Work of Trained Thief.
When the detectives began work on the Hanan case they decided that it was an "inside" job. But when a day later the Rumsey cottage was entered, they modified their views and thought they saw the hand of the experienced thief.

Mrs. Hanan has refused to entertain a suspicion against the twenty-two servants in their employ, but today she admitted it was possible some of the servants had made acquaintances who thoughtlessly gave information that was later turned to account.

The more the matter of the robberies is studied the clearer it becomes to the detectives that they were committed with skill. It is inconceivable to them that sneak thieves—having obtained $150,000 worth of jewels at Mrs. Hanan's last Friday night, would remain here, risking detection, to get perhaps half as much in value from the Rumsey home on the following night.

The selection of pieces at Mrs. Hanan's is now believed to have been deliberate, too.

HER HUSBAND FIT TO DIE SO SHE PLOTTED MURDER

Gainesville, Ga., July 31.—(Special.)—Realizing that she must give up either her husband or her affluence, Mrs. Arthur Hawkins came to the conclusion that her husband, being a religious man, was ready to die and so plotted his death.

Such is the alleged confession made by Mrs. Hawkins shortly after her arrest, according to the testimony of Sheriff E. A. Eyer today at the trial of the woman, charged with being an accessory before the fact to Hawkins' murder. The sheriff also said that Mrs. Hawkins admitted her infatuation for Jim Cantrell.

Coroner D. C. Stow testified to taking a slug from the dead man's body. The case will be continued tomorrow.

Jim Cantrell and Bartow Cantrell have been found guilty in this case. Bartow Cantrell admitted doing the actual killing, but stated that his brother, because of his infatuation for Mrs. Hawkins, had threatened to kill him unless he would make way with the woman's husband.

It was not likely he would be welcomed. Ambassador Wilson planned to go to New York tomorrow for a brief visit, returning immediately to Washington. He said tonight he had been authorized by Secretary Bryan to deny that any leave of absence had been extended to him. The ambassador is without direct information as to whether President Wilson has approved or rejected his recommendations on the Mexican situation. He also has not been instructed as to his future.

NO RECOGNITION FOR GENERAL HUERTA

It was while seeking nothing itself, the American government had no sympathy with the volatile processes by which governments were overturned in Latin America.

Latin-American diplomats here are looking forward with eager interest to President Wilson's pronouncement of policy as a further expression of his attitude toward Central and South American nations.

Just when the president will make known his views is not certain. It will depend somewhat on the possible adjustment of the dispute by the factions themselves in Mexico. The president thinks the prospect of peace is growing stronger daily and regards the problems as by no means insoluble. He conceives that the Mexicans themselves may be able shortly to bring about peace.

With the American government absolutely opposed to the Huerta regime administration officials here believe the friends of President Huerta will prevail upon the cabinet to retire in favor of a provisional president acceptable to all factions who would conduct a general election. Some prominent Mexicans whose names are not being mentioned publicly, any one of whom would meet the approval of the constitutionalists for provisional president, are personal friends of President Huerta, which fact has lent encouragement here to the idea that a peace plan is not impossible.

To Wait Developments.
Meanwhile it is more than likely that the policy of President Wilson will be to await developments in the southern republic and refrain from offering mediation or other conciliatory suggestions until Mexican themselves have exhausted every resource to bring about peace. It is not likely that President Wilson will receive any envoys from either side in the Mexican dispute.

The report that Francisco de La Barra, former provisional president and member of Huerta's cabinet for many months, was coming to the United States and might seek an audience with President Wilson, brought forth the information from the white house that it would depend upon the character of Mr. de La Barra's mission whether or not he would be received. It was intimated that if Mr. de La Barra came merely to pay his respects as a former ambassador to the United States or as former president of Mexico, he would be accorded all courtesies, but that in the capacity of a partisan in the trouble,

CHINESE REBELLION BEING SUPPRESSED

Adherents of Yuan Shi Kai Hope for Establishment of "Yuan Dynasty."

Pekin, July 31.—Revolutionary forces in the south steadily are being subdued by the northern troops supporting provisional President Yuan Shi Kai. Rebel leaders disappear whenever the revolutionary centers are menaced by government troops.

Yuan Shi Kai's adherents expressed much elation today over successes gained by the loyal armies. They advocate the adoption of a dictatorial form of government.

It is said that they hope for the ultimate establishment of a "Yuan dynasty" under which they would share in the spoils of office. They contend that any compromise at the present time would place China in a chronic condition of revolution which they argue would be most dangerous, owing to territorial aspirations of Russia and Japan.

With the fall of the forts at the mouth of the Yang Tse river, which is believed here to be imminent, the Yang Tse will be cleared of rebels and it is thought the rebellion then would resolve itself into provisional outlawry, which soon could be controlled.

Reports received here from Shanghai say that Dr. Sun Yat Sen, former provisional president, still is there, but that General Ching Chi-Men and General Huan Sing, two other leaders in the revolt, have fled.

Bankers and members of the diplomatic corps in Peking believe that provisional President Yuan Shi Kai's most difficult task is the organization of a system of taxation throughout the republic. When the anti-Manchu revolution was put down revenues from the provinces practically ceased and the central government since has been carried on by means of loans.

22,000 Operatives Strike.
Barcelona, July 31.—The striking textile workers have ignored an invitation sent to them by the governor of Barcelona for a conference. The police today estimated that 22,000 operatives from 155 factories are on strike. The employers said they believe the movement is essentially a revolutionary one, as they have not yet been informed what the workers demand.

MEDIATION IS ASKED BY SOUTHERN PACIFIC

Washington, July 31.—Commissioner Chambers, of the federal board of mediation, today received a telegram from William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific railway, asking the board to mediate a threatened strike of its conductors and trainmen. The telegram stated that a strike vote had been taken, and although a strike had not yet been ordered, negotiations for settlement had come to a naught.

The commissioner replied that he would be engaged for a time in the mediation of trouble brewing between the employees and the Chicago and North Western railway and the Chicago and Western Indiana railway, but would come to San Francisco as soon as he disposed of these cases and a minor one at St. Louis.

The difficulties between the trainmen and the Southern Pacific are over the question of seniority of the men who are already employed and those who may be transferred to certain properties of the main railway that have been and are being electrified.

Commissioner Chambers and Assistant Commissioner Hanger leave for Chicago Saturday.

TWO MEN ARE KILLED IN AN L. & N. WRECK

Knoxville, Tenn., July 31.—Engineer John Davis and Fireman N. F. Carey, both of Louisville, Ky., were killed and Express Messenger Bridges, also of Louisville, was injured in a derailment of southbound Louisville and Nashville passenger train No. 23, 3 miles north of Livingston, Ky., at 11:56 o'clock this morning. None of the passengers was hurt, though many were much shaken up. Express Messenger Bridges had two ribs broken.

The cause of the accident is unexplained. The locomotive, express, baggage, mail and two passenger coaches left the rails, the locomotive overturning. Train No. 23 runs between Louisville and Corbin.

KILLED MISSION MAN AND IS FREED BY JURY

Juneau, Alaska, July 31.—Joseph MacDonald, general manager of the Consolidated Mining and Milling company, of Guanajuato, Mex., and former superintendent of the Treadwell mine here, was acquitted today by the jury that tried him on the charge of having murdered N. C. Jones, a mission worker, on May 14, 1906.

MacDonald pleaded self defense. His trouble with Jones was over Jones' insistence that the Treadwell mine be closed on Sunday. A coroner's jury exonerated MacDonald, but a grand jury indicted him and he paid his own extradition expenses from Mexico, where he was arrested.

He will return to Guanajuato with his family, except one daughter, who goes back to school in Massachusetts. MacDonald is one of the best known mining men in the west.

Increase in Wages.
Denison, Texas, July 31.—An increase in wages of two cents an hour and better working conditions were granted boilermakers, helpers and apprentices throughout the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad system of Texas at a conference here last night of the men with officials of the road.

$15,000,000 REQUIRED TO VALUE RAILROADS

Commerce Commission Thinks Task Will Be Completed in Seven Years.

Washington, July 31.—Physical valuation of the railroads of the United States by the interstate commerce commission will take from five to seven years by a specially organized corps of men, and will cost the government from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 or more, according to plans of the commission presented to the house appropriations committee. The commission has asked for an immediate appropriation of $1,500,000 for organization of the corps of engineers necessary to undertake the work. Commissioners Clements and Prouty and Secretary George B. McGinty, of the commission, have told the house appropriations subcommittee that a carefully worked out estimate places the cost of the field work at $1,921,500 a year throughout that period. The plan presented by Mr. McGinty contemplates the division of the country into five districts containing approximately 50,000 miles of railroads each. Mr. McGinty explained to the committee that the estimated cost per year of each of these district organizations, with their groups of field squads would be about $384,300, or a total per year for the five districts of nearly two million dollars. In addition to this he estimated that the accounting feature of the commission cost about $350,000 a year, and that the maintenance of a valuation office in Washington would cost probably $150,000 a year. Although the committee was skeptical, Mr. McGinty was confident that the commission would be able to get the field force organized through the civil service commission by the first of next year to take care of the first year's work. It was for the purpose, he said, that the commission needed $1,500,000. Mr. McGinty mentioned cases where it cost from $2 to $75 a mile to ascertain the value of railroads. "In all of these cases only the reproduction value of the road was ascertained," he continued, "whereas we are required to ascertain the reproduction value, the depreciated value, and, in addition, to work out the history of the roads and ascertain the amount of money invested in their original construction. The total cost to the government probably will exceed $50 a mile, or a total cost of from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, but, of course, this is only a guess."

EIGHT DEATHS DUE TO CYCLE EXPLOSION

Cincinnati July 31.—Out of the thirty-five persons who suffered burns when the explosion of the gasoline tank on Odlin Johnson's motorcycle at the Lagoon Ky., motordrome last night showered spectators with burning oil eight had died up to 9 o'clock tonight. One other, a woman, cannot recover, the attending physicians say, while seven others are in a serious condition and not out of danger. Of the others eighteen suffered more or less painful injuries but did not require treatment in hospitals. The explosion occurred after Johnson had collided with an electric light pole and the racer himself was among the first victims. Statements from several of the eye-witnesses indicated that Johnson's daring attempt to pass another rider was the primary cause of the accident. He is said to have come in contact with the machine piloted by Gabanna of the Cleveland team, while trying to pass the latter on the upper elevation of the track. The impact was slight, but enough to force Johnson to head his machine toward the upper railing. He appeared at this time to have plenty of room, but the machine seemed to refuse to right itself and crashed into a pole that was some distance beyond the danger mark on the track.

Arrangements were issued today, at the instigation of the coroner, which charged voluntary manslaughter and were directed at the three heads of the amusement park. Bond was given for the men's appearance in police court on Saturday.

She Likes to Walk.

CASTRO IS FIGHTING TO REGAIN VENEZUELA

Revolution Is Begun in Several States—Castro Controls Steamer.

Willemstad, Curacao, July 31.—Reports received here from revolutionaries sources in Venezuela are to the effect that the uprising in that republic started simultaneously last Monday in several states and that General Cipriano Castro, former president of Venezuela, is the leader of the movement.

The advice says that General Leon Juanado, governor of the state of Falcon, who previously was reported to have been captured, escaped when the rebels attacked Coro and fled to the interior, but that the military authorities in Coro were imprisoned. From the state of Falcon, according to reports received here, it is the purpose of the revolutionists to invade the state of Lara, which adjoins Falcon on the south, and General Navas is expected to operate in the state of Zulia, in the northeastern part of the republic, adjoining the United States of Colombia. Maracibo, principal seaport of Venezuela, is the capital of Zulia.

General Carmelo Castro, brother of Cipriano Castro, is in command of the rebel troops in the state of Zulia, which lies just south of the state of Zulia. It is stated that prior to the outbreak of the revolt the revolutionists seized the cables and telegraph lines. Castro is said to control at least three steamships which have not yet been reported or seen. Letters for Castro are in the postoffice here.

Castro's Return Welcomed.

New York, July 31.—General Rafael De Vozales-Mendez, a leader of the nationalist party of Venezuela, welcomed General Castro's reported return to Venezuela because it would bring political affairs of the country to a crisis. The general had no information that the former president had landed on South American soil, but this news, he said, was expected daily.

The nationalists of the border states said General Nogales-Mendez, expected Castro would make his first appeal to members of their party, who formerly were his adherents. "Castro," he said, "would probably make straight for Cucuta, Colombia, on the Venezuelan border, and start his invasion of the country from that point. The nationalists have been waiting for President Gomez to make an open attempt to repeal the law against reelection and make himself dictator of Venezuela. The national election is set for next March and we did not expect Gomez to declare himself until after that time. The coming of Castro, however, will precipitate a crisis. The strife between Castro and Gomez will give the nationalists an opportunity to step in and make their fight for constitutional government."

BIG VOLUNTEER ARMY WANTED BY GARRISON

San Francisco, July 31.—A big volunteer army to back up the regulars at the training of every enlisted man in a trade which will make him a useful citizen when his enlistment expires were among the plans outlined by Secretary of War Garrison, speaking here today at a luncheon given in his honor by the chamber of commerce. Secretary Garrison and his party left tonight for Portland, continuing the tour of Pacific coast defenses. Reference by the secretary to the possible necessity of another "crisis" to wake up the people of the country aroused much interest, but he refused to comment on it after luncheon. "We have a method of calling to youth of our land into military service as a patriotic duty," he said, "and I must have a way of training them. There must be no economic men to the country as a result of the service to the flag. We should develop our soldiers so that they leave the army and get out into the labor market and into professional pursuits. We must back up the regulars and the reserves, and then we shall have the fullest measure of protection."

WHOLESALE JEWELERS FEAR SHERMAN LAW

Washington, July 31.—The National Association of Wholesale Jewelers will begin negotiations with the United States attorney's office at New York for a friendly settlement of question whether the association violating the Sherman anti-trust law. The department of justice has had a situation under investigation through a grand jury inquiry at New York and if it is ultimately decided that the operations of the association not square with the anti-trust statute, it is said the principle will be directed through an agreement which the question involved is whether the organization exerts any restraint upon the free dealing of manufacturer jewelers with retailers by placing sales through wholesalers' jobs. This action, which was involved in the "lumber trust" suits. Before any action is taken the question will be submitted to Attorney General McReynolds.

SLADE "IN THE DARK" BILL IS RECOMMENDED

The Slade "in the dark" qualification bill for electors received the favorable recommendation of the committee on constitutional amendments Thursday afternoon. The bill, which was introduced by the house by the Muscoe members and others, provides additional qualifications for electors, among which a stipulation requiring they be such unquestioned character as to be virtuous women and trust with in any secluded place.

KEEPING THE MUD FROM MULHALL

Lobby Probers Protect the "Squealer" From Lawyers. He Doesn't Want Questions Put in Regard to His Past.

Washington, July 31.—To an accompaniment of arguments between counsel and members of the committee, between democratic and republican committee men, and between Martin M. Mulhall and everybody connected with the case, the cross-examination of the alleged lobbyist for the National Association of Manufacturers proceeded haltingly today before the senate investigating committee.

In the five hours Mulhall was on the stand about 116 questions submitted for the association were put to him by Chairman Overman, Robert McCarter and James A. Emery, attorneys for the association, were denied the right to cross-examine the witness directly, but after much debate were permitted to submit questions based upon queries the witness made to the reporter already submitted.

Senator in Clash.

Senators Reed and Walsh and Cummins and Nelson were almost at swords' points on several occasions, but peace always was restored without an open break and any ill-feeling that existed was laid away for future reference.

Mulhall himself, always an interesting witness, ready to make comments upon the questions of the National Association of Manufacturers, or its officials, surpassed himself in spite of continual warnings by the chairman. He declared once that unless the committee allowed him to have counsel he would refuse to answer further questions and would rather go to jail. Chairman Overman finally became so angry that he blantly told him unless he refrained from superfluous comment and stuck to plain answers he would be subjected to discipline. Mulhall then subsided.

Caper of the Outbreak.

Robert McCarter, attorney for the National Association of Manufacturers, precipitated the outbreak by asking Mulhall if he had not been discharged from the Cleveland police force ten years ago for violation of a state law. Mulhall replied he was dismissed for political reasons, and demanded counsel.

Alaska-Siberian Pictures.

(At the Grand.)
A great deal of interest is being manifested in the Arctic region pictures being exhibited at the Grand. ### "The Girl From Dublin."

(At the Bijou.)
"One of the most pleasing musical comedy attractions of the season" is the verdict of those who have witnessed this week's attraction at the Bijou, where "The Girl From Dublin" is being offered to splendid audiences. From the minute the curtain goes up to the finale of the last act there is plenty of life and tuneful music, and the vaudeville specialties, of which there are several, are excellent and well timed.

personal affairs thirty or forty years ago." "Instead of being designed to throw light on this case, many of these questions are designed to throw mud at the witness," declared Senator Reed. "This is an investigation; not a trial. I insist you have no right to say a word here," he concluded, addressing McCarter.

"Vicarious Lie," Says Mulhall.

"It is not true that Samuel H. Springer tried to dispose of these letters to the Philadelphia Press and the Philadelphia Record," Mulhall was asked.

"A vicarious lie," he shouted. Mulhall denied having made a statement to Richard Barry, who was representing him, that the Manufacturers' association would pay $150,000 for the documents.

Mulhall denied that he agreed Barry should sell the letters to the New York World for $10,000, and that he would be content with $5,000; but later he testified that at Barry's suggestion he did agree.

BELIEVES IN STATE EQUALIZATION OF TAX

Representative Greene Explains Vote Against Section Sixteen. Says Tax Reform Will Win.

"I voted against the 16th section of the ways and means tax equalization bill," said Hon. Alva B. Greene, one of the representatives from Houston county, yesterday, "but I did so solely on the idea that I thought some better method can be provided for a central equalization authority."

"I do not want my vote to be misunderstood as putting me in opposition to tax equalization," continued Representative Greene, who is one of the strongest members of the house.

REPRESENTATIVE ALVA GREENE, of Houston.

tion to tax equalization," continued Representative Greene, who is one of the strongest members of the house. "When the bill was under consideration I offered an amendment creating the position of deputy comptroller general, with the view of giving the comptroller general the status of an assistant who should be charged exclusively with the matter of looking into the equalization of the tax returns as between the counties of the state."

"I did this because I recognized the importance of having a central head for this important work. The house did not agree to my amendment, and I voted against the creation of a state board simply because I do not think it was necessary to appoint several men to do this work, regarding it as an unnecessary expense for the state."

SUGGS A STRONG ADVOCATE OF TAX REVISION IN STATE

As the author of the plan by which the ways and means committee of the house were able to get together on the cause of tax equalization, Representative G. L. Suggs, of Haralson, has earned an honorable place for himself in the history of Georgia.

Representative Suggs has large farming interest and represents a farming county. He is convinced that reform will be of more real advantage to the farming classes than any other measure which the legislature could pass.

Born in North Carolina, Mr. Suggs has been for thirty-eight years a resident of Georgia and is thoroughly identified with Georgia interests. He is heart and soul a Georgian, he says.

For several years of his early life he was a railway conductor and has strong sympathies for the working man in every field. In addition to his farming interests he has mercantile and banking interests in his town of Bremen.

Speaking of the importance of tax revision, Mr. Suggs said:

"If I can be instrumental even in a secondary way in the solution of this tax problem, I will be perfectly willing to have my political career end right now. I regard it as the most important problem which this legislature has to face."

DUCKTOWN CONTRACT IS PASSED BY SENATE

Body Votes Unanimously for the Bill—Believed Measure Is Sure of Passage by House.

One of the most interesting contests which has occurred before the legislative committees of the present session was that involving the Ducktown copper fumes before the general judiciary committee of the senate. The present contract between the state of Georgia and the Tennessee Copper company expires in October of this year, and a resolution has been introduced authorizing the renewal of the contract with certain modifications for arbitration and settlement of the claims for damages.

On Friday of last week a hearing was had before the general judiciary committee of the senate, and it was unanimous in its report that the new contract which had been negotiated and discussed by Governor Hoke Smith and Governor Joe Brown should be entered into between the state and the copper company. After that committee hearing some of the citizens of Fannin county requested that a new hearing be had by the committee in order that they might appear, and a re-hearing was had on Wednesday of last week, at which both sides appeared and the matter was discussed at length.

Thousand Names on Petition.

Advocates of the contract had petitions favoring the measure, opponents of the measure, circulated by friends of the companies; opponents had resolutions from a citizens' mass meeting, the attendance of which they claimed was all the way from 250 to 500, and that the meeting was practically unanimous, while the advocates of the measure claimed that the meeting contained about 100 men; that it was packed by people having a small selfish interest in opposing the measure and that a majority of those present were really in favor of the resolution, but had been misled and hooded from the floor when they endeavored to explain their views of the matter.

Vote by Farmers.

At the end of the argument, Chairman McNeill, of the committee, took the novel procedure of calling for a rising vote of the farmers present who favored and opposed the measure. The farmers present voted in favor of the contract by a vote of twenty-two ayes to two nays. The committee, for the second time, unanimously reported the resolution for passage, authorizing the renewal of the contract.

The senate, by unanimous vote, passed the resolution yesterday morning, and it is now believed that the resolution will promptly pass the house and that the contract will be speedily put into effect.

PEEPING TOMS TRIED

W. E. Nace Fined, and H. R. Greenlee Put on Probation.

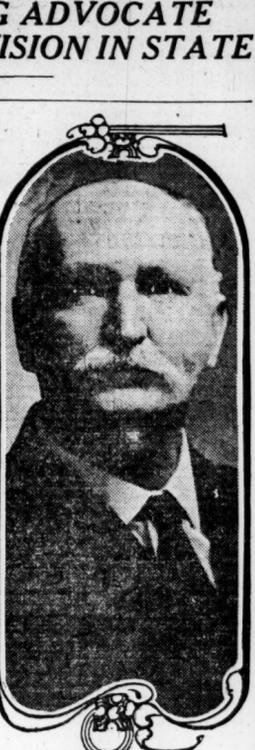

W. E. Nace, 32 McDaniel street, and H. R. Greenlee, 400 Spring street, the two young white men accused of peeping into the bedroom of three young women living at 49 Washington street, from the roof of the Central Presbyterian church Tuesday night, appeared before Recorder Broyles Thursday afternoon for trial. Nace received a fine of $15 and Greenlee was placed on probation, with his case held open.

Short Ice Weight Charged.

Charged with consistently cheating customers by giving short weight to the extent of 25 pounds on every 100 pounds of ice, Will Gifford and Dan Irwin, employees of the Atlantic Ice and Coal corporation, appeared before Recorder Broyles Thursday morning. Inspector of Weights and Measures Buchanan shadowed the negroes and carefully weighed the ice after it was delivered. Irwin was fined $15.75 and Gifford $10.75. Tom Williams, another negro implicated, failed to appear in court and was ordered rearrested.

BAILIFFS FOUND WITH NEGRO WOMEN, FINED

Bailiffs J. H. Stephens and H. A. Austin, who were arrested Wednesday night in company with two negro women, Alice Brown and Floride Mills, in the office of Justice of the Peace Jordan, corner Edgewood and Jackson street, charged with drinking and causing the court Thursday afternoon and received fines of $18 and costs each, on charges of disorderly conduct. The two women were also fined $10 and costs each.

The bailiffs stoutly denied, when taken to the station house, that the negro women were in the office for any immoral purpose, claiming that they were there to swear out a warrant for another negro woman who had stolen a dress from them. The warrant, however, was not in evidence, and the women were proven to have been in the office for some time before the police arrived.

NEGRO GIRL IS KILLED DURING ELECTRIC STORM

Florence Greenwood Struck by Lightning, Her Sister Burned and House Fired.

Florence Greenwood, an 18-year-old negro girl, living at 8 Moughron street, was almost instantly killed by a bolt of lightning which struck the house about 3:30 Thursday afternoon during an electric storm.

The girl was seated in the front room in company with her sister, Alice Greenwood, and Charles Hicks, a young negro man. When the bolt struck, the girl fell to the floor writhing in agony and died a few minutes later. Her sister's arm was horribly burned and flying glass cut Hicks severely in the top of the head. The house caught fire, but was extinguished before much damage had been done.

The dead girl was a graduate last year of the Atlanta university, and had for the past few months been engaged in mission work among her race in Atlanta.

On next Tuesday morning (legal sale day) at 10 o'clock, we are going to sell before the Courthouse Door.
