SENATE CUTS BUDGET TO MEET TAX

Appropriations Committee Slashes
$280,325 From House Measure
After Anderson's Plea.

Following a conference with Governor John M. Slaton, the Senate Appropriations Committee Friday morning slashed $280,325 from the House general appropriations bill, making the disbursements balance with the estimated revenues.

The cut was made in the fourth-class service on a basis of 7 per cent, including pensions, public schools and the higher schools and colleges, including Tech and the University of Georgia.

Following the meeting of the committee, which was executive, members declared that the action of the committee was unanimous, and that it would stand behind the report like a rock wall. Under the ruling of the committee, it will now be up to the House to provide means for raising more revenue if appropriations are to be raised.

The action of the Senate committee followed an address in the Senate of President Randolph Anderson, who called upon the Appropriations Committee to further consider the House bill, calling for an excess of $280,000 in disbursements over revenues.

Later during the session the committee went into executive session, and shortly before noon a conference was held with Governor Slaton. The Governor, it is understood, lined up with the Senate committee and President Anderson in putting it squarely up to the House to provide more revenues before appropriations are raised.

The cuts are as follows:
Pensions service class, $75,000; public schools, $178,500; Tech, $5,600; State Normal at Athens, $3,325; Normal at Milledgeville, $3,775; Normal at Valdosta, $1,750; University, $3,375; extension of agricultural schools, $7,000; Medical College at Augusta, $2,100.

Hasty Resignation Of Postmaster at Cordele Demanded

CORDELE, Aug. 1.—Postmaster General Burleson has called for the resignation of F. G. Boatright, postmaster at Cordele, charging failure to give sufficient personal attention to the office, his successor to be appointed in 30 days. Boatright was appointed by President Roosevelt and reappointed by President Taft, his present term expiring on February 16, 1914. He refused to make a statement to-day.

Congressman Charles R. Crisp, of the Third District, has asked each of the applicants for postmaster here to submit their endorsements, promising to give all due consideration before making a recommendation. Applicants for the office are S. L. Felder, assistant postmaster; O. S. Baze-more, J. R. Kelly, Dr. A. L. McArthur, J. W. Elvins and J. D. Pate.

Mayor's Heart Too Tender; He Won't Serve as Recorder

Mayor Woodward absolutely and persistently refuses to act as Recorder.

Judge Broyles leaves on his vacation Monday, and Judge Preston asked the Mayor Friday morning if he would preside over the court Monday.

"I most positively will not act as Recorder!" he thundered. "I have never acted and never will. In the first place, the Mayor has no business to act as Recorder. He might pass sentence where an appeal to the Mayor would ordinarily be made."

"A member of Council should not serve in the capacity of Recorder, but that is their business."

"No passing of sentence on the poor unfortunates for me."

Youths To Be Tried On Slaying Charge

DOTHAN, Aug. 1.—Jason Robinson, who was implicated in the murder of James Lloyd, a 16-year-old boy, in this county in March, has been jailed again on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Robinson is to be tried in September for the murder of Lloyd.

Charles Brackin, a youth, has been acquitted on the charge of the murder. Three other prominent youths are to have trial in September. All cases have attracted considerable attention.

X-Ray Skirt Breaks Up Baseball Game

SOUTH NORWALK, CONN.—A girl with a diaphanous skirt ended a baseball game here between the Nationals and the Westports. The manager of the Westport team called the game off in the ninth inning when his outfielders turned all their attention to the maid with the gauze-like skirt, who stood between the sun and the fielders.

Three flies were batted to the fence without the players making a move to intercept them.

Widow Will Inspect Harriman Railways

NEW YORK, August 1.—Mrs. L. H. Harriman, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Carol Harriman, will leave early in August to visit her ranch in Idaho.

There was a report which C. C. Tegethoff, of the Harriman estate, refused to deny or confirm, that Mrs. Harriman will be accompanied by railroad officials and engineers for the purpose of making an official inspection of the Harriman railroad properties in the West.

Massacre and Pillage Continued by Turks

SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GEORGIAN.

SOFIA, Aug. 1.—The Turks are continuing their campaign of massacre and pillage in the country near De-deagatch. All the men in the villages of Tartarlar, Seliu, Saryta and Lachman, were killed when the Turkish troops entered those places.

The torch was applied to all public buildings and looting began. All who opposed the Turks were tortured before being killed.

Policewomen Must Be Single and Large

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—The City Civil Service Commission has decided that unmarried women of generous proportions are the most desirable police-women.

Widows are not barred, but they must be young and vigorous. Examination for ten policewomen will be held soon.

Woman Is Named to Supervise 'Spooning'

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 1.—Mayor R. S. Bennett has appointed Mrs. Nanette, a social worker of Baltimore, as a special boardwalk policeman.

She will watch the "spooners" and "mashers" and act as a censor of the bathing costumes.

50 MILLIONS FOR BANKS IN DIXIE

Government to Minimize Money
Stringency During Crop Moving.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—To facilitate the movement of crops, the Administration, through Secretary McAdoo, announces that $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 of Government funds will be deposited in the national banks of the South and West at once. Federal, State and municipal bonds and prime commercial paper will be accepted as security for the money, upon which the banks will pay 2 per cent interest.

Unusual Amount Needed.
The motive of the Administration in establishing this new policy is to anticipate the money stringency in the late summer and fall, which accompanies the marketing and movement of crops, especially when the crops are unusually large, as the harvest now beginning forecasts. He intends to prevent or minimize the usual tightness of money.

The Secretary announces that Government bonds will be accepted at par as security for the new deposits, and that the additional money would be placed only with banks which have taken out at least 40 per cent of their authorized circulation.

United States 2 per cent bonds, serving as security for most of the national bank circulation, have been depressed recently to new low market records, dropping to 95 3-4 during the past few days. The Secretary's willingness to accept these bonds at par as security for the $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 of promised deposits and the inducement to the national banks to increase their circulation up to the 40 per cent limit are expected to help in restoring the parity of the depressed 2s by creating a new market for them.

To Accept Commercial Paper.

For the first time in history the Government will accept prime commercial paper as security for deposits. This privilege will be granted, announced the Secretary, in order to make these special deposits available to the banks on securities readily within their reach.

"The commercial paper submitted," added Mr. McAdoo, "shall first be passed upon and approved by the clearing house committees of the cities in which the banks offering such paper may be located. All commercial paper and bonds must finally be passed upon and accepted by the Secretary."

'Sleep Strike' Frees Sylvia Pankhurst

SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GEORGIAN.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the militant suffragettes, who was arrested when she led a crowd to storm Premier Asquith's home, was released from jail to-day.

She had inaugurated a hunger and sleep strike while imprisoned, refusing to eat or lie down.

Heat Kills 901 Babies In Chicago in Month

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—The heat wave that gripped Chicago for three days was broken today by a strong breeze off Lake Michigan. Figures made public today by the Health Department showed that heat had contributed to the death of 901 babies in Chicago between June 14 and July 12.

During the same period last year 509 deaths occurred among children under two years.

Mystery in Blaze That Does $2,000 Damage to Store

Fire of mysterious origin early Friday morning damaged the building occupied by the G. A. and F. Grocery Company, at No. 23 Piedmont avenue. The loss is $2,000. Firemen conquered the blaze in a hard fight.

The fire was discovered soon after 3 o'clock by Call Officers McHugh, Arnold and McWilliams, who thought they heard a pistol shot in the neighborhood of the store. They found the second floor of the store in flames. They think now what they supposed was a shot was an explosion.

Mrs. Leo Frank, wife of defendant in Phagan case, and Julian Boehm, a friend of the family, snapped as they were leaving the courtroom. Mrs. Frank evidently is well pleased with the course the case is running.

Meridian to Enforce 'Blue Law' on Sunday

MERIDIAN, MISS., Aug. 1.—The city authorities announced to-day that they would refuse to permit the newspapers to be issued here next Sunday and the Sunday sale of out-of-town papers, magazines, etc., would be stopped. Nothing but medicines will be allowed to be sold by drug stores. There is much excitement over the blue law order, which officials say will be enforced to the letter.

Needle and Thread Caused Pain in Knee

EUFAULA, Aug. 1.—After suffering several weeks with a severe pain about the knee, Mrs. C. M. Thompson had it lanced to-day and a thread needle was taken out by the surgeon. Mrs. Thompson is unable to account for the needle, which evidently had been imbedded in the fleshy part of the leg for many months.

Seizes 100 Gallons Of Whisky on Boat

GADSDEN, ALA., Aug. 1.—Sheriff Sparks, of Marshall County, Alabama, has seized 100 gallons of whisky and eight barrels of beer being transported on the steamer John Ross, and is holding it under the prohibition laws of Alabama. The liquor was consigned to Decatur, Ala., to be delivered secretly after a court injunction restraining railroads and steamboats from delivering liquor to alleged blind tiger operators had been issued.

Lad Injured by Auto Is Taken to Hospital

Raymond Roddy, 12 years old, who lives at No. 56 Williams street, was run down by an automobile driven by H. Hooten, No. 70 Broyles street, Friday morning at Hunter and Pryor, in front of the building in which the Frank trial is being held. The boy apparently was badly injured and was carried to Grady Hospital.

Preacher to Run for Alabama Senate Seat

COLUMBUS, Aug. 1.—Considerable interest is being shown throughout East Alabama by the announcement of the probable entry of the Rev. W. J. Price, of Phenix City, for Senator from the Eighth Alabama District, in addition to being a minister, he is a prominent banker, being the cashier of the Phenix-Clarendon Bank.

Mr. Price has had much legislative experience, as he has represented Russell County in the lower house of the Alabama Legislature, where he made an enviable reputation. He is the only man mentioned in connection with the senatorial race thus far.

DORSEY WINS POINT AS ROSSER BATTLES TO DEFEND ACCUSED

Jim Conley, accuser of Leo Frank, will take the stand Saturday morning, according to all indications Friday, to repeat the remarkable story he told concerning his part in the disposition of the body of Mary Phagan and undergo the merciless grilling of the defense.

Solicitor General Dorsey said that he expected to have his case completed by Saturday night and police, believing he will call the negro to-morrow, had him shaved and cleaned up and in readiness for his appearance.

Regardless of statements by defense and State, it is generally conceded that the Frank trial will reach its crux in Conley's appearance, and that on his story and whether it stands up or not under the fire of the defense, will rest the outcome of the trial.

Objections by Attorney Hooper, assistant to Solicitor Dorsey, to questions put to N. V. Darley by Attorney Arnold about the contents of the financial sheet made out by Leo Frank developed the fact that the defense would introduce evidence in rebuttal.

Defense to Introduce Evidence.
"We will introduce this sheet and plenty of other evidence," said Mr. Arnold. "You need not worry about that."

"That is just what I was after," remarked Mr. Hooper, aside. "I wanted to find out whether the defense intended to introduce evidence."

It had been rumored around the courthouse that the defense might rest its case at the completion of the submission of evidence by the State. Mr. Arnold's statement is taken to mean that Leo Frank himself will be placed on the stand.

Luther Z. Rosser, chief of counsel for Frank, declared Friday that the ruling of Judge Roan against the admissibility of the evidence that persons other than Frank were nervous and excited the Sunday morning after the crime might vitiate the entire trial.

He intimated strongly after Judge Roan refused to change his ruling that a new trial would be asked on a writ of error in the event of Frank's conviction.

Arnold, in arguing for the admission of Darley's testimony that other persons at the factory, as well as Frank, were nervous and distrustful, got before the jury that it was hardly to be wondered at that Frank, aroused from his bed and told of a shocking crime at his factory, should be agitated, pale and nervous.

Calls Barrett Monomaniac.
Referring to the discoveries of R. P. Barrett, Arnold came out boldly and declared that it was his purpose to show Barrett a monomaniac who continually was turning up evidence, and who very likely was hunting for the rewards offered.

Darley testified that scores of pay envelopes like the one found by Mary Phagan's machine were scattered about the factory every week, and that it was most common to find them in any part of the factory. He said that he looked over the time tape with Leo Frank Sunday morning and made the same error that Frank did, believing at the time that the punches had been made correctly. The tape was shown to the jury to prove how the mistake might have been made.

Judge Roan ruled out testimony as to the conduct and appearance of other persons than Frank at the factory Sunday morning.

The defense played one of its strong cards in behalf of Leo M. Frank when it secured from Darley, manufacturing head of the plant and State's witness, evidence that the prisoner performed three hours of the most intricate mathematical work just after the time the prosecution claims Mary Phagan was slain.

This, the defense brought out, required an exceedingly clear mind.

Frank Nervous After Crime.
Darley also gave startling testimony as to Frank's nervous and upset condition on the two days following the murder of Mary Phagan.

The statements of Darley came as a complete surprise. The nature of the testimony had been carefully guarded by the Solicitor.

Darley declared that he and Frank arrived at the factory at about the same time Sunday morning, April 27, and that he first noticed Frank's nervousness when he saw the factory superintendent's hand tremble violently when he grasped the elevator rope to run the elevator down into the basement.

"When we got down to the basement," continued Darley, "and Frank started to nail up the back door, I saw that his hands were trembling and I took the hammer and nailed up the door myself, because I thought I could do it better than he could."

Darley also told that when he rode with Frank to the police station Monday, Frank sat on his knee.

"I could perceive that his whole body was trembling and shaking," said Darley. "I noticed it all of the way to the station house."

Club Not Found in Clean-Up.

Solicitor Dorsey asked Darley about a general clean-up ordered by a general insurance inspector who visited the factory April 28. Darley replied that the factory had been cleaned on the first and second floors on or before May 3.

Dorsey then called for the bloody club that was said to have been found on the first floor May 15 near where Jim Conley was sitting. Dorsey threw it down with a clatter by the chair of the witness.

"Was any club of this sort turned up during the cleaning process?" shouted Dorsey.

"No," the witness replied.

"And was not this a thorough cleaning?" the Solicitor asked.

"It was a general cleaning," replied Darley.

Frank Explains Nervousness.
Darley said that Frank later explained his nervousness of Sunday by saying that he had not had any breakfast and that he had just looked upon the body of the dead girl at the morgue. The witness added that Frank did not appear completely upset Monday, as he was able to transact a number of business affairs.

Darley, in spite of his testimony, which will be interpreted by the State as incriminating against Frank, probably was as valuable a witness for the defense as he was for the prosecution. It was under the skillful questioning of Attorney Reuben Arnold, who had begun to take a mors active part in the cross-examinations than he had at first, that Darley told of the intricate work that Frank did on the afternoon of April 26 after the time the State claims that Frank murdered the Phagan girl.

Mr. Arthur White, wife of one of the employees of the National Pencil Factory, who declared she saw a negro hiding behind some boxes on the first floor of the plant on the day Mary Phagan was killed, was the first witness called Friday.

The State with her testimony to pave the way for the appearance of Conley, who, it is believed, would be the last witness to be called by Solicitor Dorsey, as he would be the most spectacular.

The first witness said her husband had been working at the National Pencil plant about two years.

Tells of Going to Factory.
Q. What is your husband's name?—A. John Arthur White.

Q. Where does he work?—A. At the National Pencil Factory. He has worked there about two years.

Q. Where was he April 26?—A. At the pencil factory.

Q. Did you go to the pencil factory that day?—A. Yes; about 11 o'clock.

Q. Did you see Frank?—A. Yes; he was in his outside office.

Q. What did you say to him?—A. I told him I wanted to see Mr. White.

Q. What did he say?—A. He asked me if I was his wife. He said he thought so, as I looked like the Campbell.

Q. Did you see your husband?—A. Yes; he sent for him.

Q. Did you go upstairs at 11:30 a. m.?—A. No.

Q. What time did you leave?—A. About ten minutes to 12.

Says Frank Jumped.
Q. What time did you come back?—A. About 12:30.

Q. Whom did you see?—A. I saw Mr. Frank standing at the safe in his office.

Q. What happened then?—A. I asked him if I could see Mr. White. As I spoke to him he jumped.

Q. What did you do then?—A. I went upstairs to see Mr. White.

Q. Did you see anybody else in the office except Denham, White and Mr. Frank?—A. No, sir.

Q. Did you see anyone else as you came down?—A. I saw a negro.

Q. Where?—A. He was sitting on a box near the stairway that leads up to the second floor.

Q. Where did you see Frank the last time?—A. In his outside office.

Q. Where was your husband and Denham at work?—A. On the fourth floor.

Said She Had Better Go.
Q. What were they doing?—A. Working on a machine with a hammer.

Q. When did you first hear the hammer?—A. When I got on the fourth floor.

Q. Did you see Frank again before you left?—A. He came up on the fourth floor.

Q. Did anybody say anything about your going up to the fourth floor?—A. Yes; Frank told me to go up there.

Q. What time did Frank come to the fourth floor?—A. Some time before 1 o'clock.

Q. Where were you at 1 o'clock?—A. At McDonald's furniture store.

Q. Why did you leave before 1 o'clock?—A. Mr. Frank said, "Arthur, if your wife wants to get out before 3 o'clock she had better leave now. I will go as soon as I get my hat and coat."

Frank in Office as She Left.
Q. When you came down, did you see Mr. Frank?—A. Yes; when I went down he was sitting in his office.

Q. Did he have on his hat and coat as if he were going out?—A. No.

Q. What was he doing?—A. Writing.

Q. Could your husband and Denham see the stairway from upstairs where they were working?—A. No.

Rosser took the witness on cross-examination.

Mrs. White, who talked about this matter to Mr. Arnold and myself, didn't you? You told us you left the factory about 1 o'clock?—A. Yes.

Q. You don't mean to change your statement by saying it was ten minutes to 1 when you left, do you?—A. I can't say exactly what time it was, but I know it was about 1 o'clock.

Q. You left there the first time about 11:30 o'clock?—A. Yes.

Q. Who were there?—A. Two men, Mr. Frank and a stenographer.

Q. Your father and your brother are old employees there, aren't they?—A. Yes.

Q. By whom did he send word to your husband that you were there?—A. Miss Emma Freeman.

Q. How long was it before your husband came?—A. About five minutes.

Q. Who else was there?—A. Miss Hall, Miss Freeman, Mrs. May Barrett and her daughter.

Q. You came back to the factory about 12:30, didn't you?—A. Yes.

Q. How accurate are you about that?—A. I looked at the clock.

Q. How close were you to Mr. Frank before you spoke?—A. I was in the office door just behind him.

Q. He jumped and you thought he was surprised?—A. Yes; that's what I thought then.

Q. When he told your husband he was going to leave, he said you had better go pretty soon?—A. He said I had better go now.

Q. You did wait a few minutes?—A. Yes.

Q. Just where did you see the darky as you went out?—A. Between the stairway?—A. Five or six feet.

Q. What do you mean—between the foot of the stairway and the door?—A. Yes.

Q. How far from the foot of the stairway?—A. Five or six feet.

Mr. Rosser took a blueprint to explain the position in which she saw the negro.

Q. How long after this was it that you talked with Mr. Dorsey about seeing this negro?—A. Wasn't it four or five days?—A. No, sir; about two weeks.

Mrs. White left the stand. Arthur White, her husband, was called, but failed to answer his name. M. V. Darley, assistant superintendent at the National Pencil Factory, was called.

Darley on Stand.
Q. What is your business?—A. Assistant superintendent at the National Pencil Factory. I have charge of the manufacturing plant.

Q. Who is your superior?—A. I considered Sig Montag.

Q. You and Frank worked together, didn't you?—A. Yes.

Q. Were you at the factory Saturday, April 26?—A. Yes.

Q. What time did you leave?—A. About 9:40.

Q. When were you there again?—A. Sunday morning about 8:10 or 8:20.

Q. Why did you go there?—A. Mrs. Frank called me.

Rosser objected.

"I object to anything Mrs. Frank said. She can't be used as a witness," he said.

"Your honor, we have already shown that Frank told his wife to call this man," said Solicitor Dorsey.

"If that's all you want to show, I withdraw my objection," said Rosser.

Q. What time did Frank call at the factory?—A. Shortly after 10.

Q. Did you notice anything unusual about Frank?—A. When he reached out his hand to start the elevator, it was trembling. And again when he went to nail up the back door, he was so nervous he couldn't do it, and I did it for him.

Said Body Made Him Nervous.
Q. What, if anything, did Frank say?—A. I don't remember. He said something about having on a new suit of clothes, or something.

Q. Did he say anything about not having breakfast?—A. He said he hadn't had his breakfast and wanted a cup of coffee.

Q. Did he say anything about being nervous?—A. Yes; he said they took him by Bloomfield's and into a dark room, where they turned on the light suddenly and he saw the girl. He said it made him nervous.

Q. Were you there when Newt Lee was?—A. Yes.

Q. Was Lee nervous?—A. No; he was composed.

Q. Did Frank say anything about the murder?—A. He was under the impression the murder occurred in the basement.

Q. Did he say anything about the lock and staple?—A. Yes; he said it looked like it was mighty easily pulled.

Staple Easily Pulled.
Q. Did you observe anything about the staple?—A. Yes; it looked as if it had been taken out easily.

Q. Did you see Frank again?—A. Yes, the following day.

Q. Did he say anything about his nervousness of the day before?—A. Yes; he said something, but I have forgotten.

"Your honor," said Dorsey, "I would like to refresh the witness' memory by reading his previous statement."

"You can only show it to him," answered Judge Roan.

Dorsey showed Darley the affidavit.

Q. Just tell everything you heard Frank say about the murder—A. I don't remember.

"Your honor, I would like to read this," said Dorsey.

Forgets Vital Evidence.
Rosser and Arnold objected.

"He will have to make the usual showing that he was entrapped, your honor," said Arnold.

"He is trying to bring in evidence from the outside," said Rosser.

"You can't read it, Mr. Dorsey," said Judge Roan.

"My friend Dorsey would show anything, your honor," said Rosser.

Q. State to the jury how much of Frank's body was nervous?—A. That is a pretty hard question.

"Look at this," said Dorsey, showing him an affidavit.

"I said there he was shaking all over," said the witness.

Rosser objected.

Judge Roan asked the witness if he was making that statement now.

Darley's Replies Guarded.
"Judge, that's a very hard question for me," answered Darley. "He reached up to get the ropes, and his hands were shaking very much."

Darley appeared very reluctant to answer any question that might incriminate Frank.

Q. Who nailed up the back door of the basement?—A. I did.

Q. Was Frank able to do it?—A. He was able to do it, I think, but he was nervous.

Q. How did Frank's face appear on do now," returned Mr. Rosser.

Mr. Dorsey put his question again. A. He was somewhat upset, but did some things around the factory that he could not have done if he had been completely upset.

State Wins Clash.
Q. Was he done up?

"I object," broke in Mr. Arnold. "He may mean that he was dead by 'done up'."

"Leave it to the jury to decide what is meant by 'done up,'" said Dorsey.

"It isn't for you to decide what is to go before the jury," retorted Rosser. "That is for the judge."

Judge Roan ruled the question was admissible.

A. He was partially done up but mits this question to be asked, I want to be recorded as protesting."

"Do you insist on the question?" asked Judge Roan of Solicitor Dorsey.

Dorsey and Hooper conferred.

"I am willing to strike out all reference to Newt Lee's condition," said Dorsey.

Attorneys Exchange Courtesies.
"I am glad it has finally dawned on my brothers that these questions are illegal," said Rosser. "I have been trying to get them to see and I am glad to say the light finally has dawned upon them."

"Your Honor," interrupted Hooper, "I object to Mr. Rosser's statement about how long it takes anything to soak into my head. A reference to the second floor?—A. It was very pale.

E. F. Holloway, pencil factory foreman, who said that he saw Frank return to the factory Saturday forenoon unaccompanied.

Q. Was he upset when you got to the factory?—A. Yes; he was overruled.

A. I can't say he was completely upset.

"Now, look here," said Dorsey, walking toward the witness with his affidavit.

"Your honor," interrupted Rosser, "he can't speak to the witness in that nasal tone. It is his witness. He can't cross-question him."

"That's right," ruled the judge.

"But," said Mr. Rosser, "your Honor has not been enforcing that ruling."

"I am going to enforce it," replied Judge Roan.

"That's what you do," said not completely.

Q. Why do you say that?—A. He did some things he could not have done if he had been wholly done up.

Q. Who was with you on the way to the police station?—A. I got in an automobile. I afterward learned that it was run by "Boots" Rogers.

Mr. Frank sat on my knee.

Q. What was his condition?—A. He was trembling all over.

Q. To what extent?—A. He was sitting on my knee and I could feel his body shaking.

Q. What was the condition of Newt Lee?

"I object," said Rosser. "I have been objecting to this line of testimony all along. If your Honor per-Newt Lee's attitude was made the other day. We see the object of these objections is to lead into a large field of investigation. We want to strike it all out."

Dorsey continued questioning the witness.

Q. Did you attend to any business Monday?—A. There wasn't much work to do.

Q. Did you see the financial sheet Monday?—A. Yes.

Q. Did Frank say anything about the financial sheet Monday?—A. Yes. Mr. Frank called my attention to it.

Q. What did he say, and at what time?—A. I don't recall the conversation, but it was about 9 o'clock.

Q. Did Gantt ever come to the fac-metal room?—Yes.

Q. Were you present Sunday morning when Frank took out the time slip?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you see him run his finger down the time slip?—A. Yes. He ran his finger down the number side. I was looking over his shoulder.

Q. Is there a row of figures down the number side?—A. Yes.

Q. Did Frank say anything?—A. Yes. He said they were all punched and I verified it.

Q. How did you do it?—A. Just looking at the numbers. We would not have noticed a skip in the time.

Juror Asks Question.
Attorney Arnold addressed the court:

"Your honor, a juror wants to ask a question, but Mr. Hooper objects."

"I don't object to his asking the question, but I do object to Mr. Arnold giving the answer," said Mr. Hooper.

Juror Marcellus Johemming asked Darley to explain the time clock system, which Darley did.

Arnold took up the financial sheet.

Q. What did Frank say about the financial sheet?

"I object," said Hooper. "He can ask him about the sheet, provided it is later put in evidence."

"We will put it in all right," said Arnold, "and plenty of other evidence. You need not worry about that."

Q. When was the financial sheet made up?—A. Saturday afternoon.

Q. You were interested?—A. Yes, it was my duty to see it. It dealt with the cost of production.

Q. What time was it made up—that is, what day of the week did it show last?—A. Thursday.

Financial Sheet Introduced.
Q. Who makes it up now?—A. One has not been made out since Mr. Frank left.

Q. How long did it usually take him to make it out?—A. Always from about 2:30 or 3 until 5 o'clock.

Q. Look at this and tell me if this is the sheet you found on his desk Sunday morning?—A. Yes.

Q. How does it compare with his regular handwriting?

Dorsey objected.

"I object, your honor," he said. "The writing is the best evidence."

Q. I want to ask you are you familiar with Mr. Frank's writing?—A. Yes, I have been seeing it about five years.

Q. Now, I want to ask you one question, but don't answer until we get a ruling. Does this compare favorably with all of Mr. Frank's writing?

Dorsey objected.

are similar. They can be produced, and they should be."

"I will withhold my ruling until I look up some authorities," replied Judge Roan.

"I will ask the witness something else," said Arnold.

Q. What process did Frank have to go into to get at these results?—A. He had to get reports from every department, figure averages, costs, sales, profits, expense.

Figures Required Clear Head.

Q. It took a man with a good clear head to figure it?—A. Yes.

Q. What calculation was necessary to arrive at the net result?—A. The amount of rubber tips, labels, and every other little detail must be calculated.

Q. It required a large amount of calculation?—A. Yes.

Q. Sunday, were you in the factory with Frank and Detective Starnes?—A. Yes.

Q. There were forty or fifty people in the factory Sunday, were there not?—No, not over six or eight.

Q. Did you go into the cellar?—A. Yes.

Q. What time did you get to the factory?—A. 8:30.

Q. There was a great deal of excitement there?

Dorsey objected. "I think your Honor has already ruled on this question," said he.

Calls Nervousness Natural.

Arnold interrupted.

"Your honor, it is eminently unfair," he said. "I want to show that this young man was whisked from his home before he had his coffee, and it was nothing unusual if he was excited. Why, I lived at a boarding house with some old bachelors, and they wouldn't even talk before breakfast. When Newt Lee first saw this girl in the basement he ran like a turkey. That was one way of showing his excitement. Some men are naturally nervous; some show nervousness in reading a paper or making a speech; some men go into battle without even flinching."

Judge Roan ruled: "I think you can show the occasion."

Rosser interrupted. "Let me give you a little illustration, your honor," he said. "I was on the streets during the time of the Atlanta riots. Crowds were everywhere and everyone was excited."

Dorsey then spoke: "Only a few minutes ago, your honor, you ruled out, or we considered that you ruled out, the question of Newt Lee being nervous or composed. The only question before this jury is: Was Leo M. Frank nervous?"

Dorsey Wins Ruling.

"You can't show that anyone else was nervous," said Judge Roan.

Rosser: "If you have ruled that way, it will vitiate this trial. This jury will never know that that crowd was nervous and excited. It will never know that Starnes, sleuth that he is, trembled and was excited when he saw that lifeless corpse. That Pat Campbell, son of the Emerald Isle, started back aghast when he touched that icy chest. And if there is one mistake at this time it will vitiate this trial."

"If there is any doubt on your honor's mind, I want to refer you to the $1 and $5 Georgia," said Dorsey.

"This proposition is simply a dragnet to go out and bring in everyone when Leo Frank is the only one we are concerned with here."

The objection was sustained.

Attorney Arnold declared that he only wanted those around Frank in the factory described. Dorsey objected, and the objection was sustained.

Attorney Arnold then asked that the objection of the defense be recorded.

Blood Spots Common.

Q. How long have you been working at the factory where there were women, Mr. Darley?—A. 24 years.

Q. Isn't it a common thing to find bloodspots around the women's dressing room?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see any blood spots around the dressing room in this factory?—A. (Darley hesitated). Yes, sir, I have.

Q. What color was the suit Mr. Frank had on Saturday?—A. Brown.

Q. What color did he wear on Sunday?—A. Blue.

Q. What color on Monday?—A. The same one he wore on Saturday.

Q. Did you see any blotches on it?—A. No.

Q. Did you see any scratches on Frank's face or hands when he came to the factory Sunday?—A. No, I did not.

Q. What time did you see him?

Q. You never saw him any more until Sunday?—A. No.

Elevator Found Unlocked.

Q. In what condition did you find the elevator Sunday?—A. The lock was in place but it was unlocked.

Q. Could anybody else have gone in and run it?—A. Anybody who knows how.

Q. That elevator and motor made a good deal of noise when in operation, didn't it?—A. The saw made more noise than the motor and the elevator.

When the elevator was running, the saw also was running.

Q. These cords that have been referred to: they were scattered all over the building, were they not?—A. Yes, sir. Scattered all around.

Q. Mr. Dorsey asked you something about this building being cleaned?—A. Yes, after the girl was killed.

Q. It was very dirty on the floor of the metal room, wasn't it, the dirt being about an inch thick?—A. I don't know whether it would average that thick or not, but it was very dirty.

Q. The building also was very dark, especially on dark days, wasn't it?—A. Yes.

WARM SPRINGS, GA., MORE POPULAR THAN EVER.

Mr. Slade, the new proprietor of Warm Springs, is adding daily to the popularity of this well-known bathing resort. He has this week added a new orchestra of brass instruments and drums, and the dancing is one of the popular amusements. The ballroom can not be excelled by any in the State, and with Lilly's Band from Columbus the dancing is all that can be wished.

The Warm Springs is the pleasantest place in the State, and the swimming pool the finest bathing in the country. The mountain breezes and healthy climate, free from gnats and mosquitoes, make it an ideal spot for a summer outing. The Warm Springs wants to see its old friends again.

Q. He served a subpoena on you, didn't he?

Dorsey objected, but Judge Roan overruled the objection.

A. He served two subpoenas on me and 'phoned me once.

Frank Nervous Every Day.

Q. Didn't you know those subpoenas were not worth the paper they were written on?—A. I didn't then. I have heard so since.

Q. Who was at Dorsey's office?—A. Dorsey, Chief Lanford, Detectives Starnes and Campbell and a stenographer.

Q. They asked you questions, except the stenographer?—A. Yes, sometimes. One would interrupt before I could answer the question of the other.

Q. They asked you whether Mr. Frank was a nervous man, didn't they?—A. Yes.

Q. Wasn't he a hard working man who easily got nervous when things went wrong?—A. Yes, sir. If your honor will allow me, I will say that there never was a day passed that Mr. Frank didn't get nervous over something. I have seen him run his hands through his hair in an agitated way a thousand times.

Q. Mr. Frank didn't know many of the help, did he?

"I object," said Dorsey. Arnold withdrew the question.

"Did he know Mary Phagan?"

"I object to that," continued Dorsey still on his feet.

Objection was overruled.

A. Not to my knowledge, he didn't.

Q. Did you know her?—A. If I had seen her on the street I would have known she was a factory girl; but I didn't know her name.

Q. I believe you said all sorts of papers got down into that boiler room, don't they?—A. Yes.

"Give me those notes and that pay envelope," said Arnold.

Q. It was nothing unusual to find papers like these in the basement, was it?—A. I have seen such papers there.

Q. Any man who had the run of the factory, would have no trouble in getting hold of them, would he?—A. No.

Q. Was the watchman accustomed to locking the clock door?—A. Yes, but at that time the key was lost.

Q. Frank didn't unlock it Sunday morning, did he?—A. He couldn't have. The key was gone.

Q. You say you and Frank both made the mistake of thinking all the punches had been made?—A. Yes.

At this point, which was 12:15, the court adjourned until 2 o'clock.

DEFENSE NOT HELPED BY WITNESSES A CASE OF ENTRAPPING THE STATE

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Has the State succeeded in thoroughly establishing the fact that little Mary Phagan's tragic death was effected on the second floor of the National Pencil Factory, in Forsyth street?

It has not, of course—but it has set up by competent evidence a number of suspicious circumstances, which, if properly sustained later along, will prove damaging in the extreme to Leo Frank.

Unless these circumstances, trivial in some aspects, are braced up and backed up, however, by other much stronger circumstances, they will give the jury, in all probability, little concern in arriving at a verdict.

Thursday was not a sensational good day for the State, although it was much better than the day before.

Twice Thursday the Solicitor General claimed that he had been "entrapped" by witnesses—and this, with the lamentable fall down of John Black the day before—served to give rise in the minds of some spectators to a faint suspicion that the State didn't have its case very well in hand.

No Help to Defense.

There is something terribly significant and actually sinister in that little word "entrapped," however, when hurled at a witness in the presence of a jury, and it would be a mistake to believe that a witness, actually convicted, even in the mere opinion of the jury, of having deliberately misled the prosecution thereby helps the defense.

The witness who entraps, or who is thrown under suspicion of having entrapped, frequently does the party he seems primarily to have hurt a wonderful amount of good.

I believe, for instance, that Witness E. F. Holloway was speaking the truth when, on oath, he reversed his former affidavit to the Solicitor, and said that he left the elevator unlocked on Saturday, whereas he before had sworn that he locked it Friday and did not unlock it Saturday—the last inferentially, at least.

This point will mean a good deal later, when it is reached in developing the defense's case, and if Holloway's last story, apparently satisfactorily explained, holds together, well and good—but who can tell what the jury thinks about that contradiction upon the part of Holloway, particularly when he has been so deliberately accused by the Solicitor of entrapping him?

Holloway is an employee of the pencil factory—was before and has been since the murder. If the jury gathers the impression that he has been tampered with since his first statement, and by friends of Frank, to clear up seemingly damaging circumstances against Frank, it likely will be an aggravating thing, when the jury comes to make up its findings.

Will Hurt Frank's Case.

Just as I thought, and still think, that Dorsey made a tactical mistake—for which he paid the full price, moreover—when on Wednesday he exclaimed "plant," thereby accusing the defense of unfair and grossly indecent methods of bolstering up its case, so I think the constant suggestion of witnesses changed in opinion and testimony, and in favor of Frank, will hurt Frank's case, rather than help it, if sustained.

Mr. Dorsey failed utterly to bolster up his charge of "planted" evidence, but he didn't fail, in anything like the same degree, to say the least of it, in attacking Holloway.

Or, anyway, there is a grave probability that he didn't fail in the minds of the jury.

In short, my idea is this, as it has been all along: The public, and presumably even more the jury, will resist anything that savors of unfair methods employed either by the State or the defense.

Steadily, though slowly, the defense seems to be pulling away from the prosecution in the Frank trial, and the impression apparently is gaining ground gradually that the State likely is fighting a losing battle.

All of this may be changed in a moment—one witness on behalf of the State may serve to win back all the ground it may have lost.

circumstances and admissions brought out in favor of the defense, under the merciless cross-examination of Luther Rosser.

It is a good deal to say, nevertheless, that at this stage of the trial the defense apparently has scored heavily, for such point as it has won necessarily have been wrung from the State's own witnesses, and not the witnesses of the defense. In other words, wherever the State fails to score, the defense scores.

How Points Have Been Scored.

If the defense made little, if anything, of Lee, it lost little, if anything, because of him.

It almost, if not quite, broke even on Rosser, and it most certainly scored tremendously on Black.

Scott, if damaging in a way, was also helpful in a way, in that he practically admitted suspicion of the negro Conley quite as strong as suspicion of Frank.

Monten Stover swore that Frank was not in his office for, at least, a period of some five minutes immediately after 12 o'clock on the day of the murder; at least, if he was, he was where she could not or did not see him. Grace Hix undoubtedly helped Frank. Dr. Smith helped the State.

R. P. Barrett swore he found a piece of a pay envelope under Mary Phagan's machine three or four days after the murder, and that he found blood spots near the dressing room door three or four days after the murder.

Mel Stanford swore that the spots near the dressing room were not there Friday, and were there Monday, but he could not swear the spots were blood. Holloway helped the defense, probably.

There is nothing new in most of this testimony, however, save that of Barrett concealing the piece of envelope, and the defense presumably is ready, therefore, to meet it.

State Faces Hard Task.

The mere finding of a piece of pay envelope somewhere, even near Mary Phagan's machine, is not, of itself, highly important; but it might serve as a link in an otherwise strong chain forged to connect Frank directly with the killing.

But if the State has succeeded in setting forth the fact that Frank may possibly have committed the crime, it yet has a long road to travel before it proves "beyond a reasonable doubt" that he DID do it.

Indeed, Frank's attorneys have never combated the idea that he was in the factory at a moment when the killing of Mary Phagan MIGHT have been effected—and beyond that fact the State has been unable to proceed very far to date.

It must be remembered, too, that while the State now is engaged in weaving a web, real or imaginary, about Frank, the defense expects to weave a much more terrible and substantial web about Conley.

But even at that, mere suspicion alone will serve to convict neither.

Much Depends on Conley.

After all is said and done, and it generally gets back to this, the preliminary chain of circumstances against Frank likely will hold together tightly or fall apart hopelessly, according to the fate of James Conley on the witness stand.

If Conley stands the test of exhaustive cross-examination, then the circumstances leading up to and away from Conley's connection with the case will stand or fall.

He is, and has been, at all times both the hope and the despair of the State, no less than the hope and despair of the defense.

He is the star witness about whom the entire Frank case revolves, about whom it has revolved for weeks, and about whom it must revolve to its end.

Of course, there ever is the chance that the State has something sensational, new and significant up its sleeve—and there is the remotest chance that the defense has some big surprises in store.

As the fifth day of the trial drags on, however, the impression has deepened almost into a conviction in the mind of the public that neither the State nor the defense has much to let out that already hasn't been let out, in whole or in substantial parts.

Spirit of Fairness Everywhere.

DORSEY UNAFRAID AS HE FACES CHAMPIONS OF THE ATLANTA BAR

This shows the Solicitor warily noting the moves of an opponent.

Hugh M. Dorsey, Solicitor and prosecutor of Leo M. Frank.

Up Against a Hard Proposition Youthful Solicitor Is Fighting Valiantly to Win Case.

By L. F. WOODRUFF.

Georgia's law's most supreme penalty faces Leo Frank.

A reputation that they can not be beaten must be sustained by Luther Rosser and Reuben Arnold.

Atlanta's detective department's future is swaying on the issue of the Frank trial.

But there is a man with probably as much at stake as any of the hundreds who crowd Judge Ross's courtroom, and he is accepting the ordeal, though he realizes it, as calmly as a person who has nothing more serious to decide than whether he will order his steak rare or well done at breakfast time.

Hugh Dorsey is hereby introduced. He is known pretty well in Atlanta without introduction, but as chairman on political meetings insists on telling the audience that the President of the United States is about to speak or that the Secretary of State is endeavoring to earn an additional amount to his yearly $12,000, Mr. Dorsey can be placed before the public without fear of violating precedent.

Consider Hugh Dorsey.

Consider Dorsey's job. His position as public prosecutor places on him the duty of sending someone to the gallows, and this time it is Leo M. Frank, against whom he must direct his efforts.

The proposition of convicting a man is as common in the life of a Solicitor as paying his car fare home. But here's a different proposition. Dorsey is confronted with the task of getting a conviction over the efforts of Luther Rosser and Reuben Arnold to obtain an acquittal.

And anyone who knows Atlanta, who knows Fulton County, who knows Rosser, who knows Arnold, realizes that this is a task from which Hercules might shudder, a labor that is more tremendous than the building of the Panama Canal or the successful storming of the fortress of Gibraltar.

And still Dorsey has gone into the fight unafraid; not only that, he is aggressive.

Atlanta's record for big crime trials has not been altogether healthy in the past twelve months. In that time Dorsey has prosecuted Mrs. Daisy Grace on a charge of attempting to slay her husband. Atlanta was intensely interested in this issue. Mrs. Grace was acquitted. Dorsey lost.

He prosecuted Callie Scott Applebaum on a charge of ending the life of her husband. Again the public was deeply interested. Again Dorsey lost. And then came the Phagan killing.

Atlanta, Georgia and the South demanded that her slayer be brought before the bar of justice and be given the law's severest penalty.

Frank was fixed upon by the police as the man.

The grand jury indicted him, and Dorsey staked his all on his conviction.

Luther Rosser had been retained by Frank's chief counsel.

Dorsey smiled.

And there was a flash. Reuben Arnold had been added to the list of legal array to clear the name of the superintendent of the National Pencil Factory of the charge that he had taken the life of a little girl.

Reputation is a big thing. No prize fighter faces a champion without doubting his ability to cope with him. The greatest financial genius probably trembled in his boots when he first met the foremost capitalist of industry, a violin virtuoso bows before Kubelik. There is no plaintiff who would approach Paderewski without a sensation of awe.

He is taking the case with intense seriousness. So far Rosser's efforts to rattle him by calling him "Hugh," "my young friend," "son" and "bud" have been unavailing.

The practical collapse of his detective testimony was enough to stun any man, but Dorsey stuck it out gamely. There is plenty of fight still in his eyes. It will be there if the case goes against him.

His appearance would indicate that he is buying something back, something with which he expects to surprise his eminent opponents.

Then, there is Hooper. There is one thing that every spectator knows is able held back. He is a quiet little man with a scholarly face, a man who has already won his

Sherlocks, Lupins and Lecoqs See Frank Trial

There are enough "hists," aha's and those other exclamations that mark a true detective besides the badge on his left suspender to fill a whole volume of Gaboriau thrillers at the Frank trial.

A stranger whirled from the Terminal Station to Judge Ross's courtroom would be convinced before he had been in that temple of justice five minutes that all Atlanta earns its living following clues, and that if Sherlock Holmes was made a material being he could beat Jim Woodward for Mayor by 8,000 votes.

Ever since the body of Mary Phagan was found, practically every man of voting age and a lot of those who just think they are, have evolved a theory as to the crime they regard as incontrovertible as two plus two makes four, and have a system of ratiocination (beg pardon, Mr. Poe), that either proves beyond the shadow of a doubt that Leo M. Frank is guilty, or that he is innocent, or that Jim Conley did it, or he didn't, or that somebody did, but they'll be hanged if they know who.

Theorists There for Vindication.

The census of 1910 gave Atlanta a population of 154,839, and it is safe to say that 154,839 sure-fire theories have been evolved.

And everyone of the theorists wants to go to the courtroom to see his theory upheld and see the theory of the other fellow smashed to smithereens.

Atlanta's deductive and inductive powers were never even dimly realized until this week.

Chat with the throng around the courthouse. Mingle with the Lupins, the Lecoqs, the Anna Katherine Greens in the room where the issue is being fought.

Clerk Turns Detective.

Your surprise will be suddenly converted into admiration and then into awe. A person, whom you had mistaken for a clerk with a brain capable of knowing nothing more complex than a suit will sell for $19.99 quicker than it will for $20, you discover has a reasoning power as infallible as that of Socrates and a knowledge of things criminal that makes him the most deadly foe to crime since Berton.

He can take an envelope, locate it on a second floor and in a flash conceive just how a deed of murder was committed.

He can watch a man's hand tremble and immediately conceive him a perjurer and a villain of the deepest dye, although he doesn't ask him if he had taken on too much the night before.

"Signs Air Hopeful," Says Uncle Ben.

He can point out the fatal weakness in the attack of a lawyer who makes more money in a minute than he himself makes in a week. A man selected by a sovereign people to represent the majority of their law becomes a mere novice under his merciless criticism.

"But the signs air hopeful," remarked Uncle Ben Green, from out Hapeville way, as he listened to the findings of the amateur sleuths and chewed tobacco.

"The signs air hopeful," he repeated, "I've been a-sittin' here since the trial begun, and from what I've seed of these detective fellers we've got right now, it's a pretty good thing that a new crop is a-comin' up."

MEASURE TO BAR NEGRO VOTERS IS FAVORED

Slade's Interpretation of Constitution's "Good Character" To Be Recommended to House.

The disfranchisement bill of Representative Slade of Muscogee, which its author says is an interpretation of the "good character" clause in the State Constitution, will be favorably recommended by the House Committee on Constitutional Amendments at Friday's session of the House. This vote was unanimous in favor of so reporting the bill at the committee meeting Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Slade's bill interprets the good character clause to mean that "no man, white or black, whom a virtuous woman will not trust in a place of seclusion without fear of physical assault, shall be allowed to vote."

The right to strike off names of voters is vested in the ordinaries of the counties. If a voter objects, women shall not be called in, but the question shall be decided by men who are familiar with the voter's life and habits.

Mr. Slade declared that the bill is not directed against white men, but by its passage he hopes to disfranchise every negro in the State.

"I have been trying to get this bill through for the past two or three years, and am very hopeful that the members of the legislature may see fit to pass it at the present session," Mr. Slade said.

Vote Buttons Sold By Suffrage League

Atlanta suffragists busied themselves Thursday in the sale of suffrage buttons and distribution of suffrage literature with the purpose of something while their suffrage sisters were parading in Washington. The button sale was held at the entrance of Mrs. Lillian Smith's millinery store, No. 115 Peachtree street, and a neat sum secured. This fund will be expended in the holding of meetings to further the cause.

The sale was held under the auspices of the Woman's Suffrage League of Atlanta, which was the Woman's Civic League until two weeks ago.

Diplomats in Revolt Against Grape Juice

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—"Grape juice diplomacy" has been banished by the dinner given by Senator Leffevre, Charge d'Affaires of the Panama Legation, in honor of Richard L. Metcalf, a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission, at which Secretary Bryan was present.

The dinner was distinguished by the choice selection of wines and other liquids served. Grape juice had no place on the menu.

This is the first of a series of revolts said to be hatching among the diplomats.

There is one thing that every spectator knows is able held back. He is a quiet little man with a scholarly face, a man who has already won his

LOAN SHARK KING FINED; PUT ON PROBATION

Slade's Interpretation of Constitution's "Good Character" To Be Recommended to House.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 1.—The loan shark business of the country received a death blow to-day when Daniel H. Tolman, alleged to be the head of practically the entire business of the country, was sentenced to pay a fine of $1,000 and was placed under probation for three years.

Should Tolman be detected in operating a loan agency in any part of the United States, his probation will be revoked and he will be brought back to Trenton to serve a prison term.

Tolman was arrested in a raid on his offices here on July 30, 1912, and was one of the first caught in the dragnet to clean up the loan sharks. When arrested he resisted the officers and had to be carried and dragged to the patrol.

He is said to have operated 69 loan shark agencies throughout the country. The business netted him $500,000 profits a year.

He fought the case at every step through the courts, but when forced to go to trial, changed his attitude and pleaded guilty.

Dr. O'Kelley Chosen As New Mercer Head

Macon, Aug. 1.—It is definitely announced that the presidency of Mercer University has been offered to Dr. T. W. O'Kelley, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Raleigh, N. C. It is believed that he will accept.

Dr. O'Kelley graduated at Mercer in 1890 with first honors, and subsequently he taught Greek and Latin at Mercer. Afterward he became principal of Hiwassee High School, in North Georgia. He is 50 years of age and a man of family. He is regarded as one of the ablest Baptist ministers of the south.

Dr. O'Kelley was chosen from a list of sixteen prominent clergymen and educators.

$900 Tip by Gates Is Returned by Waiter

MINNEAPOLIS, August 1.—Charles G. Gates, son of the late John W. Gates, nearly caused the collapse of a negro waiter in a hotel cafe here.

His dinner check amounted to almost $100, it is said. Gates called the waiter to him, pulled out a roll of $1,000 bills, slipped off the top one and said: "Here, boy, keep the change."

Gates then left. The waiter turned the $900 over to the manager of the cafe, who mailed Mr. Gates a check for the amount.

GIRL SLAIN AFTER FRANK LEFT FACTORY, BELIEVED TO BE DEFENSE THEORY

Was Mary Phagan killed at or very near the time she entered the National Pencil Factory April 26 to get her pay envelope or was she merely attacked at this time and murdered later?

The line of questioning pursued by Luther Rosser in his cross-examination of two of the State's witnesses Thursday afternoon indicated this will be one of the questions the jurors will have to settle. Before they will be able to determine the innocence or guilt of Leo M. Frank.

Rosser was most persistent in his interrogation both of William A. Gheseling, embalmer, and Dr. Claude A. Smith, physician and bacteriologist. Gheseling went to the pencil factory at about 4 o'clock the morning of the crime and took charge of the Phagan girl's body. He told Solicitor Dorsey in the direct examination Thursday that the girl had been dead ten or fifteen hours and that rigor mortis was well established.

Gets Admission Before Jury.

Rosser at once began an attempt to break down this portion of the embalmer's testimony, and succeeded in getting before the jury the witness' admission that rigor mortis is extremely variable in the time it takes to set in and become well established in a body. Gheseling admitted that the surroundings in respect to dampness and temperature had their effect, as did the cause of the person's death, and that the degree of rigor mortis could not be taken as an infallible indication of the time that a person had been dead.

Frank's attorney made similar inquiries of Dr. Smith and from him obtained similar statements. The presumption is he will use the testimony of the State's witnesses to supplement that of the defense, combining them to support the theory that the Phagan girl was attacked on the first floor by Conley and by him was thrown down the elevator shaft or carried down the ladder into the basement, but was not actually slain until after Frank had left the factory in the evening.

Two other points will be established by the defense before the State rests if Rosser is able to wring the information he wants from the witnesses called by Dorsey.

Says Frank Returned Alone.

One of them is that Jim Conley did not walk to the factory with or just behind Leo Frank Saturday morning, April 26, as Conley swore in his last affidavit that he did. E. F. Holloway, one of the State's witnesses, testified Thursday afternoon that no one was with Frank when he returned from Montag Brothers that morning.

Rosser also displayed an unmistakable intention of making the detectives and officers admit that Frank was under virtual arrest when he was questioned Monday by the authorities, and that there was no reason why he should not have been aware of his status.

He succeeded in getting B. B. Haslett to make just this admission and undoubtedly will use it to explain the measures that were taken at once for the protection of Frank's interests, measures on which the State has looked with suspicion because, the attorneys said, Frank was not placed under arrest until 11:30 the Thursday forenoon after the crime.

State Faces Better Thursday.

The State faced better Thursday than any other day during the trial. Harry Scott, Pinkerton detective, submitted considerable damaging evidence in respect to Frank's appearance and actions during the first days of the investigation, although nothing that was startling or direct or even new.

He told that Frank was extremely nervous when the superintendent and New Lee were placed in the same room at the police station and that Frank squirmed about in his chair, rubbed his chin and lips in agitated manner, grew pale and trembling and in every way comported himself as one might who was guilty of a crime.

Scott said that he and John Black entered the room as Frank and Lee were finishing their conversation and that he overheard the latter part of Frank's remarks.

Rosser immediately caught the detective up on this statement, referring him to his testimony before the Coroner's Jury, where he testified that he had not entered the room until the conversation between Lee and Frank was completed and that he overheard nothing. Scott explained that he must have been mistaken when he testified before the Coroner.

Scott testified that Herbert Haas, one of Frank's attorneys, early in the case had tried to persuade him to turn his evidence over to the defense before submitting it to the police, but this already had been aired at the inquest and was without particular effect, as Scott added, under the cross-examination of Rosser, that there was no attempt to have it suppressed or kept from the police authorities, but only to have it given first to the defense.

What had the appearance of being the most sensational testimony of the day was that given by R. P. Barrett, a machinist on the second floor of the factory, when he declared that he had found a pay envelope under the machine used by Mary Phagan. The pay envelope, however, when it was shown to the jury, was discovered to have on it no date, no amount, no name, with the exception of a loop of one letter, no number nor any other mark to identify it as the pay envelope that the Phagan girl received Saturday, April 26. Nor was any explanation suggested as to how the envelope may have happened to be at her machine when there was no work being done that day and the machines were not in operation.

Barrett testified to the finding of the alleged blood spots on the second floor near the women's dressing room and the strands of hair on the lathing machine. No more was developed out of the testimony than was already known to the public when Barrett announced his discovery a few days after the murder. Barrett also declared that a white substance had been used with the apparent intention of removing the splashes of red.

Sweeper Tells of Splashes.

Mel Stanford, a factory sweeper, corroborated Barrett in his story of the finding of the spots and the white substance that was spread over them. He said the spots were not there when he swept the factory Friday and that the first time he noticed them was when they were pointed out to him the Monday morning after the murder.

Monten Stover, the 14-year-old factory girl, gave exactly the testimony that had been expected. She said she had entered the factory at 12:05 the day of the tragedy, and that Frank was not in his office. She said that she looked about in his office for him and on failing to find him left the building. She testified that she looked at the clock as she departed, and it was 12:10. Her story contradicts the statement of Frank that he was in his office all the time after he came from Montag Brothers at about 11 o'clock until he went to the fourth floor to see Harry Denham and Arthur White at about 12:50.

Dr. Claude A. Smith, city bacteriologist, testified that he found four or five blood corpuscles on one of the chips of wood that were brought to him. He could not tell whether or not it was human blood. These chips were the ones taken from the floor where the alleged spots were found. He said that in his opinion the blood-stained shirt found at the home of Next Lee, the negro night watchman, never had been worn and that the blood on it was put on the inside of the garment and seeped through to the outside.

JULIAN HAWTHORNE, IN CONVICT LIFE ALLEGORY, FORESEES DEAR PRISONS

Four men sat around a table at one of the western windows of the great dining hall, one of them was a recent arrival at the prison. The last course of dinner had been served and the four friends were enjoying their coffee. A few were smoking cigarettes, for this was Sunday and tobacco was allowed to all who cared for it, on that day. The band was playing Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," a music vibrated softly and remotely on the air. The hall had marked architectural beauty, and the colors and decorations were quiet but effective. The tables were arranged with aisles between, at the intersection of which stood immense orange trees and standard roses alternately.

That is the setting that Julian Hawthorne, in what is probably his last article for "Good Words," the magazine of the Atlanta Federal prison, provides for a remarkable dialogue between the four men on "Tails of the Future," forecasting prison reforms.

It appears in the August number, and is without doubt one of the best that the noted writer has produced since his incarceration in prison. One of the four men is a newcomer, both to the prison and to the country, and to him is explained the workings of a system that has revolutionized the treatment of crime and changed jails from "hells to a kind of ante-chamber to Paradise."

The dialogue is fanciful, but it undoubtedly depicts conditions that Hawthorne believes must exist when humanity has come to recognize crime as a disease and treat it as such. That portion of the article that describes the workings of the jails of the future is as follows:

"No More Lawyers." "When we found we were falling about a million men a year, and that the faster the lawyers made laws, the greater was the number of law-breakers, some of the sane ones got together to talk it over.

"They fixed it so that there should be no more lawyers admitted to the bar for 50 years, and those already practicing should be charged 75 per cent of their incomes in taxes. No lawyer was eligible for election to any Legislature or office of public trust.

"A body of 500 experts was set to work revising the statutes, and they reduced the number of them 90 per cent. All artificial crimes—those created by laws—were cut out; only killing, stealing and lying were left in.

"If these were committed owing to congenial defects, or under abnormal conditions, the perpetrators were put under medical care; if otherwise, the culprits were tried and sentenced, but were given their choice of going to jail, or carrying round their necks, by a small steel chain, a pewter disk, on which was engraved the crime and the penalty. At first, nearly everybody took the disk, but after a few years the majority preferred the jail. The jails, meanwhile, had been undergoing strange transformations, both actual and theoretical.

"It began to be realized that the handling of crime was the most important function of the State and problem of society. If even justice were done, everybody would be in prison, and so-called officers of justice were often the worst of the lot.

Best Men as Wardens.

"Accordingly, the very best men of the community were appointed wardens and guards of jails. Upon election, these men were given a free hand and all the funds they wanted to carry out their plans. All the jails were torn down and new ones built upon different principles, both of construction and administration. In a few years jails had become a kind of university for training men who were found to be below the average in intelligence, character or habits in the obligations and responsibilities of the best citizenship. All kinds of trades and professions were taught theoretically and practically, and the men were put to work as soon as possible at such employment as they selected or as were chosen as most suitable for them.

"Along with all this was established a system of hygiene and bodily exercise and diet somewhat resembling the old Spartan rules instituted by Lycurgus; and a general discipline of mind, manners and conduct as strict as that of West Point, but more enlightened. What had been a stigma became a certificate of merit, and by and by, instead of being sent to jail by sentence of court, men who had failed in life or felt themselves weak and incompetent voluntarily applied for admission. For what they produced, they were paid good wages; their families were supported by the Government until the men's earnings could care for them."

Denounce Present Method. In another article in the same number, on "Self-Respect," Hawthorne brands the dress and branding of prisoners, under present-day prison rules, and the substitution of numbers for names as a crude anachronism, as also, he says, the titles of "convict," "felon" and "jailbird."

"The effect," he writes, "is to produce in the prisoner a feeling of radical and permanent separation from his fellow men. It is an attempt on the part of finite human beings to inflict eternal damnation on some of their fellow creatures."

Hawthorne declares that most prisoners are in jail because of congenial defects, or under abnormal conditions, the perpetrators were put under medical care; if otherwise, the culprits were tried and sentenced, but were given their choice of going to jail, or carrying round their necks, by a small steel chain, a pewter disk, on which was engraved the crime and the penalty. At first, nearly

Slaying of Rooney Another Chapter in Feud of Gamblers

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 1.—Ed Ellis, who late last night shot and killed Pat Rooney, of Montgomery, when the two met in the heart of the city, was to-day transferred to the Jefferson County Jail. He still contends that while he was sorry for the killing, he could not help it, self-defense being claimed. W. B. Rooney, brother of the slain man, declares the killing was a chapter in a feud among gamblers and that Ellis had envy and malice for Rooney.

Though a Birmingham man, Ellis has been residing in Montgomery for a year or two. In that city Rooney killed Louis Smith, a gambler, and was acquitted. Smith prior to that was acquitted of the assassination of Brooks Fuller, another gambler. Ellis and Smith were great friends.

President to Receive Mobile Business Men

MOBILE, Aug. 1.—A telegram received by General Director Irvine from Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, president of the Southern Commercial Congress, announced that President Woodrow Wilson would on Wednesday, August 6, receive a delegation of Mobile citizens bearing a personal invitation to attend the sessions of the congress in this city in October.

At a joint meeting of the boards of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and the Business League the committee was named. This committee will leave Mobile on Monday. At Montgomery the delegation will be joined by Governor O'Neal, who will be its spokesman.

MOBILE, Aug. 1.—In sight of twenty or more passengers Alfred Gronbeck, an architect, recently arrived here from Buffalo, N. Y., died on a street car from heart disease. He had relatives in Buffalo.

Bank Cashier Faints In Court Over $400

GADSDEN, Aug. 1.—A judgment in the sum of $400 has been awarded in the Circuit Court of Cherokee County, Alabama, at Center, in the case of the J. A. Arnold Cotton Company against the Bank of Menlo, Ga., to recover that amount which has been lost by the bank. J. S. Chambliss, cashier of the bank, testified he had been ordered to deliver $400 to a cotton buyer for the company. He claimed to have given the money to a flagman named Drake, employed on the Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia Railroad. The flagman denied receiving the money, in giving his testimony, Chambliss fainted and created a panic in the crowded courtroom. A score of witnesses testified that the flagman is a man of irreproachable character.

POET PAYS TRIBUTE TO 'ANGEL OF U.S. PRISON' AN APPRECIATION TO MRS. EMMA NEAL DOUGLAS

Beautiful, gracious Spirit of human pity and kindness,
You, from your tranquil retreat, remember our need and our blindness;
You speak not, but stretch your hands, full of plenty and healing,
Not cold and disdainful, but gentle and tender with sisterly feeling;
From your height serene you step down to comfort our gloom, and remind us
To hope, and be strong, and to leave our evil and error behind us,
Our cold is filled with your bounty, we bless your name, though unspoken,
We hail you the herald of God, whose mercy your mercies betoken.

This inspiring verse is by Julian Hawthorne, dedicated to the "Angel of the Federal Prison" in "Good Words," the Federal Penitentiary publication.

20-YEAR FUGITIVE RETURNS; CAUGHT PLAN WAR ON 34 MACON SALOONS

James Hogg Will Be Tried for Death of South Georgia Man in 1893. Campaign of Law Enforcement Advocates Hinges on Pending Injunctions.

BUENA VISTA, Aug. 1.—James Hogg, who with his brother, Floyd Hogg, is charged with the murder of Dave Shipley, 20 years ago, has just been arrested and placed in jail here. The brothers, with their father, Lewis Hogg, were indicted in April, 1893. The father was captured, tried and freed. The two boys escaped for a score of years, being fugitives from justice. Some weeks ago it was learned that James Hogg had returned to this section and a reward was offered for his capture. Officers crowded him so close that he surrendered.

The killing took place about five miles from Buena Vista, and was the result of a drunken fight. Most of the witnesses in the case are dead. Hogg's wife, after his escape, married again and is now living in Macon.

The prisoner talks interestingly of his experience. Time after time the officers were upon him, on two occasions shooting holes through his clothes. During the Spanish-American war he joined the army, went to Cuba, and remained until the close. He claims to have been in twenty-eight States.

Hogg will be tried at the October term of court.

Fire Alarm System Nearing Completion

Work on the new fire and police alarm signal system is being rushed by the Okemite Company, despite the fact that an injunction restraining the city from paying for the work has been sought on the ground that the contract is a moral obligation, and therefore not legal.

Fire Chief Cummings speaks favorably of the new system, believing it will mean the saving of many thousands of dollars. The total cost of the new system will be $106,000.

BLALOCK SWORN IN AND NAMES 11 DEPUTIES

Retiring Revenue Collector Jackson Given Two Loving Cups. Thompson Takes Oath.

A. O. Blalock, of Fayette, recently appointed Internal Revenue Inspector to succeed Henry S. Jackson, took the oath of office Friday morning and appointed the following deputies: James L. Patrick, Roy Harrell, Toke Moya, J. R. Britton, J. P. Camp, Miller Harrison, John V. Martin, J. A. Henderson, O. C. Cole, O. H. Pendley and R. M. Blount. Other appointments will be made later.

Revenue Inspector Shawhan, of Washington, effected the transfer of the office and has checked over the books of the outgoing Inspector, Henry S. Jackson. He stated that he found everything in excellent condition and that the books balanced to a cent.

When Mr. Jackson appeared at the office Friday morning he was met by the entire force of the Revenue Service and the Custodian Department. Following a speech by U. S. Seal, Assistant Custodian, he was presented with a handsome loving cup as a token of the esteem of the Custodian Department.

O. H. Pendley, of the Revenue Service, presented a loving cup as a token from the Revenue Department. Mr. Jackson was deeply affected.

Howard Thompson, appointed United States Marshal to succeed Colonel Walter Johnson, took the oath at 10 o'clock Friday morning and appointed the following deputies: B. B. Landers, Gainesville, Frank Godfrey, Jr., Clayton, J. H. Penland, Ellijay, W. B. Lovingsgood, Blue Ridge, and L. B. Greer, Atlanta.

Mr. Thompson is well known throughout the State, especially in the Northeastern Circuit, where he served twelve years as Solicitor General. Since that time Mr. Thompson has confined himself to the practice of law in Gainesville, Ga.

Fire Destroys Trade Center of a Village

CHATTANOOGA, Aug. 1.—As the result of fire which broke out just before 8 o'clock last night in the center of Valley Head, Ala., to-day the place is a mass of ruins.

Practically every building in the business district is in ashes. The flames cut off communications and authentic reports were not received until to-day. The residence district of the town was not so seriously damaged. The loss will exceed $50,000. No fatalities have been reported.

Son Held as Slayer Of Kentucky Pastor

LEXINGTON, Aug. 1.—Vernon Embury, 16 years old, was arrested at his home, at Waco, Ky., to-day for the murder of his father, the Rev. Charles Embury, a Methodist preacher.

Rev. Mr. Embury and his wife engaged in a difficulty, scuffling over the possession of a butcher knife when the boy fired a shotgun, the charge taking effect in the back of his father's head, tearing it almost from the shoulders and causing instant death.

125 New Varieties Of Vegetation Found

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Department of Agriculture to-day announced that its agents, in studying 9,000 plants taken from grazing lands and national forests, have discovered 125 specimens of vegetation hitherto unknown.

This, collectively, represents one of the biggest finds in botany for many years.

The will provides that the Milliken mansion here shall become a museum of art.

LIFE TERMS FOR TWO DALTON SLAYERS

Judge Fite Sentences Dan Hatfield and Clem Poole—Quick Justice Meted.

DALTON, Aug. 1.—Judge Fite to-day sentenced Dan Hatfield, convicted of the murder of Will Parish, and Clem Poole, convicted of murdering Policeman Harry Cook to the penitentiary for life.

In the Hatfield case he held there was doubt as to the existence of a conspiracy, and exercising the right where conviction comes from circumstantial evidence alone did not pass the death sentence, as was expected from the jury's refusal to recommend mercy.

John and Tom Nicodemus, indicted with Hatfield, were released on their own recognizance, the outcome of the Hatfield case not showing enough evidence to convict them.

Convicted in Four Days. Poole was found guilty Thursday night, the jury making a recommendation for mercy. The verdict was returned twelve hours after the trial began. The evidence was completed at 2:30 o'clock.

Poole shot and killed Policeman Cook Sunday near midnight. Monday afternoon he was captured in Chattanooga, and Tuesday afternoon was indicted for murder. He was convicted four days after the killing.

The case attracted approximately 1,000 people, the courtroom being filled to its capacity.

Defense Claims Insanity. The defense stood on a plea of insanity, relatives of the prisoner swearing that for the past few months, since his marriage, Poole had changed greatly, and was at times not mentally responsible for his actions.

Spain Loses Heavily In Moroccan Battle

Special Cable to The Georgian. TANGIER, Aug. 1.—Spanish troops are suffering enormous losses in the campaign against the Arabs in Morocco.

A terrific battle is raging near Tetuan. Hordes of natives are reinforcing their comrades and inflicting terrific slaughter on King Alfonso's men. It is believed unless fresh troops arrive that the Spaniards will be annihilated.

WAR ON COTTON PESTS STARTED BY SENATE

Bill Passed Looking to Eradication of Weevil Through Regulation of Cotton Traffic.

The State Senate Friday morning passed House Bill No. 443 providing for an additional judge of the Superior Court of the Atlanta Circuit.

The Senate also passed, unanimously, Senator Ford's bill to eradicate the boll weevil by giving the State Board of Entomology the power to prescribe rules for the shipment of cotton and cotton articles.

Mansion Question Up.

The proposed disposition of the Governor's Mansion provoked much discussion in the Senate when the bill of Senator Watts, providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate, was reported unfavorably by the Committee on Public Property.

Senator Burz, chairman, declared the proposal to appoint a special commission was contrary to the spirit for which the Public Property Committee was created. He, therefore, opposed this measure and others of similar character.

Senator Harrell of the Twelfth raised the question as to the advisability of disposing of the property. In reply, Senator Miller, who also proposed a bill providing for a commission to be appointed by the Governor, replied that it was absolutely necessary.

Adjourns Until Monday.

To this Senator McNeill of Macon objected on the grounds that the capital would soon be removed to Macon.

The matter finally was sent back to the Committee on Public Property.

Senator Harrell's bill requiring paint manufacturers to label their goods, which was reported unfavorably by the committee, was re-committed by unanimous vote of the Senate.

The Senate passed a number of local bills and adjourned until 11 o'clock Monday.

JOHNSON IS PICKED TO WIN N. Y. TENNIS TITLE

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—William M. Johnson, the youthful tennis player from the Pacific Coast, was the center of attraction at the opening of the New York State Tennis Championship Tournament on the courts of the Crescent Athletic Club, at Bay Ridge, yesterday. Of the ninety-seven aspirants to the honors held by Maurice E. McLoughlin, present holder of the championship, Johnson is to-day picked to finish at the top of the heap.

Johnson gave a good account of himself in his debut upon the local court by defeating G. S. Nankivel, a racket expert from Hackensack, N. J., in straight sets at 6-1, 7-5.

NEW LAW IS VITAL TO INSURANCE COMPANIES

Bickerstaff Says Present Statutes Discriminate in Favor of Foreign Competitors.

"If the Legislature fails to pass the Bickerstaff bill allowing Georgia fire insurance companies the statutory right to invest in stocks it will have the effect of forcing several Georgia companies out of existence," said Charles A. Bickerstaff, of the Atlanta Home Insurance Company, Friday in commenting on some of the objections raised against the proposed measure. Mr. Bickerstaff declared several of the companies would be unable to pay dividends if their investments were hampered and restricted to an extent that would prevent them from purchasing securities that would yield them a sufficient income.

"The bill introduced by Mr. Meaders," he asserted, "is copied practically verbatim after the New York law, and is intended to restore to the Georgia companies the right which they had until the bill of 1912.

"No such restrictions are thrown about any foreign company operating in Georgia, and the companies of this State have been placed at a decided disadvantage. The foreign companies have built up their tremendous assets and surpluses by making investments in staple stocks which yield a much larger percentage of income than the investment in bonds. "The insurance business in Georgia is in its infancy, although this State has some of the oldest companies in the union. If the present law is not amended so that these companies will be fostered and encouraged, it will force them to take up their quarters in this State and go to other fields.

Moose Officers To Be Called in Probe Of Fatal Initiation

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 1.—When the probe into the deaths of Christopher Gustin and Donald Kenny, the two men killed during initiation into the local lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose last week, is resumed next Tuesday it is proposed to place on the stand officers of the lodge to ascertain what they know of the work put on that night.

The witnesses examined so far who were present at the fatal meeting told practically the same story as to the accident. Emil Feast, who was a candidate the same evening, told of receiving the "branding" stunt. He said he felt the shock, but was not afraid. While for a few minutes he left the sensation, he got over it.

Relatives of the deceased are getting copies of the testimony being taken before the Coroner.

Zachry Child Torn From Mother's Arms

COLUMBIA, Aug. 1.—When Judge Gary to-day awarded the elder Zachry child, Frances, aged 3 years, to Julian J. Zachry, the father, it required four deputies to overpower Mrs. Mary W. Zachry, the weeping mother who refused to give up her child.

The scene in the courtroom was pathetic as the child was torn from the mother's arms. Mrs. Zachry fled from Augusta to South Carolina with the children after Judge Hammond had ruled that under the Georgia law the children belonged to the father.

COMFORT BEFORE DIGNITY, SAYS COATLESS PREACHER

CARMEL IND., Aug. 2.—The Rev. Arthur Hammond, pastor of the Friends' Church, says he believes comfort should come before dignity or style, and recently appeared before an audience in his shirt sleeves. Men in the audience made themselves comfortable, and in a few minutes there were only five men wearing coats. One man removed his collar and tie. Since then the men have been attending in shirt sleeves, and appear to be enjoying the services more than formerly.

FOUR WOMEN ON BODY TO FIX MINIMUM WAGE

OLYMPIA, WASH., Aug. 1.—Four of the five members of the State Industrial Welfare Commission, created by the State Legislature to carry into effect the minimum wage law for women and children, will be women. Under the new law the commission will hold hearings and set a fair minimum for women and children employed in each industry in regard to which complaint is made.

Accuses Husband, In Jail, of Frauds

ANNISTON, Aug. 1.—Mrs. W. C. Sites, chief witness against her husband, who is in jail in Gadsden, under a charge of getting money under false pretenses and using mails to defraud, has come here for seclusion pending the trial.

Mrs. Sites alleges that Sites would send out letters to theatrical people with the ostensible purpose of securing employment for her and when he would receive a favorable reply, would call for advance money, pocket the change and then address another manager under a different name.

Alonso Her, of Greenville, S. C., has arrived in Atlanta and will confer with the committee on meetings of the Southern Textile Association, of which he is chairman, to determine the date for the annual meeting this year.

It is expected that the meeting will be held in Atlanta and that fully 300 delegates will attend.

New Month Picks Hot Day for Debut

August picked a hot day to make its 1913 debut, the mercury standing at 75 at daybreak. Light breezes afforded the downtown section very little relief, for at 1 o'clock the Government thermometer showed 90 degrees, while the heat mark on the streets was about 94.

Relief is promised Friday night or Saturday by thundershowers.

"Can you tell me why they are all staring at that young lady?"
 "Can I? Why, sure. That's Miss Stonehatchet with her new slashed skirt! The whole town is up in the air about it!"

Interest in the polo match to be played at Fort McPherson next Wednesday, has caused a number of expert horsemen and women to go out to the Fort for practice and to learn something of the game, for future play. It is probable that the next match after this trial one will feature a ladies team. Friday afternoon, Mrs. John Hill, Miss Josephine Windle, Miss Margaret McKee and Miss Louise Willard were out playing a bit and learning points of the game from some of the young officers who are to play in the polo match of next week. A large audience, composed of representative Atlantians will witness the match. The players will include several out-of-town experts, and the officers' team of Fort McPherson.

Society is much interested in the polo match, which is the talk of the town just now.

Miss Rice Hostess.
 Miss Annie Sykes Rice entertained at an informal tea at the Piedmont Club Friday afternoon for her guests, Miss Daisy LeCraw and Miss Hattie Sibley, of Birmingham, and for Mrs. Claude Sheawmake, guest of Miss Louise Alexander, of Augusta.

Twenty girls were invited to meet these visitors and they were served tea on the terrace.

Miss Rice was gowned in white crepe with a sash of blue. Her hat was trimmed in plumes.

Miss Sibley wore a white shadow lace afternoon frock with touches of pink, and her little French bonnet of pink hemp was adorned with pink roses.

Miss LeCraw was lovely in white and her hat was white with blue ostrich feathers.

Mrs. Maddox's Party.
 In compliment to Mrs. J. P. B. Allan's guests, Miss Dorothy Robbins, of Birmingham, and Miss Margaret Crawford, of Nashville, Mrs. V. L. Maddox entertained at bridge Friday afternoon at her home on Howard street.

The living room, where the card tables were placed, was decorated with yellow flowers.

In the dining room tea was served after the game and the table had a centerpiece of pink gladioli and asters.

The prizes were tapestry vanity cases and silk hose.

Mrs. Maddox received her guests wearing a black and white voile with touches of green.

Assembled at card were: Misses Tinsley Harrison, Helen Jones, Margaret Buckner, Alfred West, Leonora Maddox, Nellie Kiser Stewart, Elizabeth Morgan, Lillian Logan, Helen Douglas, Margaret Ashford, Mrs. Joan Jones, Catherine Stone, Mrs. William Prade, Mrs. Charles Dowman, Mrs. W. W. Rushton, Mrs. Victor R. Smith, Mrs. Maude Maddox Johnson and Mrs. J. P. B. Allan.

Stork and Cupid Gunning Plotters

Many a New Home Will Have a Little Sunbeam to Brighten It.

There is usually a certain degree of dread in every woman's mind as to the probable pain, distress and danger of child-birth. But, thanks to a most remarkable remedy known as Mother's Friend, all fear is banished and the period is one of unbounded, joyful anticipation.

Mother's Friend is used externally. It is a most penetrating application, makes the muscles of the stomach and abdomen pliant so they expand easily and naturally without pain, without distress and with none of that peculiar nausea, nervousness and other distressing conditions which make the pregnant mother. Thus Cupid and the stork are held up to reprobation; they are rated as cunning plotters to herald the coming of a little sunbeam to gladden the hearts and brighten the home of a new family.

There are thousands of women who have used Mother's Friend, and thus know from experience that it is one of our greatest contributions to healthy, happy motherhood. It is sold by all drug stores at $1.00 per bottle, and is especially recommended as a preventive of calving trouble and all other such distress.

Write to Dr. J. C. Rogers, 121 Lamar Building, Atlanta, Ga., for a full and complete information, and a bottle of Mother's Friend will be sent to you.

an's Christian Temperance Union will hold its regular session Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Sunday school room of Trinity Church.

The return trip will be made by boat.

Money Bill Blocks Midsummer Vacation

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—With the certainty that the Glass currency bill cannot pass the House before September 10 and that the Senate will consume at least two months considering it if it be considered at all, Congress faced the alternative today of remaining on the job here continuously or upstaging the President's program by blocking the bill.

GRIZZLY AND CUBS COMING FOR ZOO

Fine Bear Specimens Reward Carey's Efforts—Captured in Yellowstone Reserve.

A big, wild grizzly bear and two cubs will be added to the Grant Park Zoo next week. They were shipped from the Government reservation in Yellowstone Park Friday and should reach Atlanta not later than next Wednesday.

Manager Dan Carey received a telegram Friday morning that the bear and cubs had been shipped. He said that their cost to the city of Atlanta, in addition to the express, would be just $62.

When Manager Carey visited Washington in May, 1911, to attend the playgrounds convention, he took up with the Government the matter of getting a grizzly bear for Grant Park, and has kept steadily at it. More than 50 letters have been exchanged between Manager Carey and the Government officials, it appearing at times that there would be no chance of getting this prize specimen, but Manager Carey kept steadily at it and the telegram stating that they had been shipped was the culmination.

Yellowstone Park is the only place where it is possible to obtain a real grizzly bear, and the expense was incurred in the capture, no charge being made by the Government.

In the open market a specimen of this kind—the weight of the bear and cubs being 1,400 pounds—would cost several hundred dollars.

U. S. Makes Railway Pact With Mexico

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today rescinded its action in denying the interchange of free transportation between Mexican railroad officials and officials of lines in the United States.

Shipments from the United States to Mexico which are held on the border because of inability to transport them farther on account of disturbed conditions will be turned either to the original shippers or disposed of by the railroads upon one day's notice. Such authority was granted to the carriers today by the commission.

Another Line Added To Southern System

MACON, Aug. 1.—J. H. Palmer, former chief clerk of the Georgia Southern and Florida Railroad, will be general manager of the combined Hawkinsville and Southern and Gulf Line Railroads. The Gulf Line was yesterday purchased by the Hawkinsville and Southern for $261,000.

The entire system, extending from Grovania, through Hawkinsville, Auburn, R. G. O'Neale to day of heart failure. He was the Mayor's secretary 20 years and Council Clerk seven years. He was president of the Fellowship Society and prominent in fraternal and club circles.

Society Women in Pajamas Dance at Narragansett Ball

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 1.—Stories of a gay party at the Point Judith Country Club, at which several of the women guests are declared to have danced in pajamas until sunrise, are being circulated here and are almost as much of a sensation as the hunt for the jewel thieves.

Some of the best known young matrons and maids of New York and New England society were among the guests. Turkish costumes are said to have been worn by the pajamas.

One observer says fifteen of the women wore ankle watches. Delictive guards of the country club, it is said, to learn something of the jewel thieves, were ordered off by Malcolm Stevenson, who was giving the party.

3 Held as Frauds on Georgia Complaint

ARCADIA, FLA., Aug. 1.—Sheriff J. L. Dishong has arrested G. W. Bishop, D. E. Moorefield and a third person on a telegram from Atlanta telling him to hold these men for Greene County, Georgia, authorities.

The men, it is alleged, were doing business under assumed names, G. W. Bishop, alias G. Baker; D. E. Moorefield, alias M. E. Dorsey, alias D. E. Ennis, and G. Moorefield, alias E. Moore. The latter escaped. It is said they claimed to be organizing a stock company to manufacture soft drinks, the plant to be erected in Tampa. The promoters, it is alleged, cashed about $2,000 in notes received for stock, at Arcadia. They had $1,325 on them when arrested. Mrs. Bishop and two children were with the party.

Parents Steal Bride From Young Elopers

MOBILE, Aug. 1.—Reese Brantley, of Atmore, Ala., is reported to have eloped with Miss Ethel Cornell, daughter of an Atmore mill superintendent, and married her at Cause, Ala., Thursday. On returning to Atmore last night the young bride, it is said, went to break the news to her parents, who promptly locked her up in her room and refused to let her communicate with her husband.

The young husband threatens to make trouble.

'Society Girls Not as Modest as Actresses'

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—A report submitted to Mayor Harrison today by his legal adviser on the subject of cabaret shows said:

"The dancers in the cabarets I visited were modest when compared to some women—society ladies—who were sitting in the audience. Some of the women who were there to be amused were in greater danger of catching cold in the chest than any of the cabaret performers."

Negro 'Peeping Tom' Threatened by Mob

GADSDEN, ALA., Aug. 1.—To save him from a mob the police of Atlanta at 2 o'clock this morning brought Frank Martin, a negro "Peeping Tom," to Gadsden and delivered him to the county authorities.

The negro was caught at midnight peeping into a window where society women were retiring.

SLATON TO GREET METAL WORKERS

Mayor Woodward Also Will Welcome Delegates to National Convention Monday.

Governor Slaton and Mayor Woodward are expected to welcome the delegates of the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers of America at the opening of the convention at the Piedmont Hotel next Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Delegates are arriving in Atlanta on almost every train, the executive board being present and in session. There will probably be five hundred delegates and visitors.

C. H. Barnes, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades and the Atlanta Building Trades Council, is being urged to enter the race for national president.

President O'Sullivan has held the office for several years, but there has developed considerable opposition, and in case Mr. Barnes enters the race, there may be a hot contest.

WOMAN DENIES PLOT TO KILL HUSBAND

Mrs. Silva Hawkins Takes Stand in Own Defense in Gainesville Court.

GAINESVILLE, Aug. 1.—Mrs. Silva Hawkins, on trial under a triple indictment for the murder of her husband, Arthur Hawkins, at Belton, today took the witness stand and denied that she had anything whatever to do with a plot to kill her husband.

She declared that the Cantrell boys murdered him because he was opposed to their operating a still, and that there had been trouble before the killing between the Cantrell boys and her husband.

All testimony has been heard and arguments of counsel have begun. It is the general belief that the State has built up a strong case against Mrs. Hawkins, evidence showing that she had tried to get strychnine and had threatened her husband's life because of her affection for James Cantrell. Letters were introduced purporting to be from her to Cantrell, and in them were many endearing words.

Colonel W. M. Johnson, for the defense, claimed the Sheriff had no right to force a confession from Mrs. Hawkins.

Exhibits Her Limb To a Blushing Judge

DENVER, Aug. 1.—Mrs. Alma Dittman will get $10 to-day because after much hesitation and several blushes had played tag over his judicial countenance, Judge Benjamin F. Stapleton personally inspected her slithering shod nether limb.

Counsel for Mrs. Dittman, in a damage suit for injuries to her knee, alleged to have been inflicted by Michael Dittman, insisted that the court determine the extent of his client's injuries by a personal examination.

The examination was conducted in chambers, and, on his return to the bench, the court ordered Dittman to pay $10 damages and court costs.

No More Spasmodic Corns

Got a corn that you have had for years? Tried every imaginable way to get rid of it? It sticks like a band grinning and torturing you at regular intervals? Away with it! Here's Jacobs' Magic Corn Liquid, a new scientific preparation, which will kill it instantly. The first application stops all pain. There is no possibility of danger from blood poisoning, as there is from cutting, paring, peeling, gouging, picking, or any other barbarous brutal methods.

Jacobs' Magic Corn Liquid will remove any corn, hard or soft; even a stubborn corn of many years' growth will come out clean, whole and positively without pain. Simplest treatment in the world, a scientific formula from our own laboratory, always successful, no pain, no danger. It will positively stop your suffering to-night. 20c, by mail 22c.—(Adv.)

FLOOD OF VOTES MARKS CLOSE OF CONTEST

Names of Victors in Georgian and American Pony Race To Be Announced Sunday.

The pony contest is over. Winners in the exciting races conducted by The Georgian and American will be announced Sunday. If it is possible to complete the necessary clerical work in time.

Until midnight Thursday votes were received. Wednesday night the contest manager and his assistants worked almost all night. Friday finds them exhausted with the late hours and the strain, for the excitement of the contestants proved contagious, infecting the whole office.

Thousands upon thousands of votes, so many that the aggregate seems incredible, were received Thursday and up to the very last minute.

Most of the boys and girls took to heart the repeated warnings that over-confidence was fatal, and put copious quantities of "ginger" into their final efforts.

This was as true in the country as in the city. The mail brought hundreds of letters for the contest department.

From every point of view, it has been a thoroughly successful contest, and, conducted in the most strictly impartial manner, there has not been a word of complaint.

Nothing remains but to count the votes and announce the eleven winners of ponies and carts; the eleven saddle ponies; and the twenty-two watches.

In the very first announcement of the pony contest the time of closing was set for midnight of July 31. In almost every mention of the contest since that time emphasis has been laid on the same fact.

Despite this, two contestants appeared Friday morning with almost $100 each for subscriptions. They were too late. One of them had been given warning Thursday night.

The votes this contest brought in Friday would have changed the result in that district. But there was nothing to do but "turn down" the money.

Puts Steam Shovel Above Court; Jailed

PITTSBURG, August 1.—When Judge R. A. Kennedy, in Common Pleas Court, was annoyed by the puffing of a steam shovel excavating a street near the courthouse, he ordered the shovel stopped. When the noise continued, he issued a warrant and had the crew brought into court.

The superintendent was asked whether it would be better to stop the shovel or stop the court. The superintendent replied that the court should stop, and was promptly sentenced to jail for contempt.

Bryan Denies U. S. Is Told to Intervene

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Secretary of State Bryan after a conference with President Wilson to-day issued a statement denying published reports regarding foreign intervention in Mexico. The statement follows: "The statement which appeared in some of the morning newspapers to the effect that foreign governments are bringing pressure to bear on the United States to compel aggressive action in Mexico is entirely without foundation."

Bedell Slaying Puzzles Police Of Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA, Aug. 1.—At noon to-day no arrests had been made in connection with the murder of "Squire" C. A. Bedell upon the porch of his home in East Chattanooga last night. Every available officer, however, has been detailed upon the case and arrests are expected within the next twelve hours. The officers are almost positive that the two assailants were white men.

The murder and robbery of Bedell shortly after 11 o'clock upon the front porch of his home and before the eyes of his wife has greatly excited this city. While robbery is considered the primary motive of the killing, as Bedell had the entire receipts of his day's business at his store upon his person, it is also considered by the officers that there were other contributory motives.

'Walk With My Wife, Then Buy Her Shoes'

SACO, ME., August 1.—Irving L. Meserve, an expressman, attempted to take a new pair of tan shoes from the feet of his young wife when he met her walking in Main street with a young man he did not know.

"You're not going to parade in my shoes," he cried. "I bought these and paid for them. If that man is going to walk with you, he can buy your shoes."

With that he pulled off one of the shoes and was about to take off the other when the young man attacked him. They were fighting, it is alleged, when Special Officer Whitworth placed them under arrest.

Wife's Lips Too Red; Won't Pay Alimony

NEW YORK, August 1.—Emil Kopstein, a wine salesman, told Supreme Court Justice Donnelly yesterday that his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Kopstein, is not entitled to alimony pending the trial of her suit for separation because she painted her lips and penciled her eyebrows.

He said that on July 4, when they were at Arverne, L. I., his wife's cheeks were so red that he wouldn't be seen on the street with her, and he told her that if any other man had been her husband he "would have broken her bones long ago."

Steals Coat in Auto On Downtown Street

Caught stealing an automobile coat from the car of J. A. Merrill, in front of the Empire Life building, Jim Berry, a negro, Friday morning was held to the State courts by Recorder Broyles on the charge of larceny.

Policeman Bostwick caught Berry just after he had taken the coat from the car and was rifling the pockets. Merrill in court declared that the interests of auto owners demanded that Berry be given the limit.

Dies Trying to Save Chicken From Storm

NORTHFIELD, MASS., August 1.—Richard Stratton, 11 years old, was killed instantly in an electrical storm to-day while attempting to release a chicken which was caught in a wire fence.

Lightning struck the fence 100 yards distant from the boy and, following the wire, passed through his body.

NASH PROTESTS AGAINST SLADE MILITIA BILL

Declares Negligence of Civil Officials Is All That Makes State Troops Necessary.

Declaring that if the civil officers of the State could be made to do their duty, there would be no need of the militia, Adjutant General Van Holt Nash, before the House Committee on Military Affairs Thursday afternoon, protested against the passage of the militia bill offered by Representative Slade, of Muscogee.

The bill repeals the military act of 1912 and re-enacts the law of 1910, making the militia subservient to the civil authorities.

"The militia is entitled to some consideration," declared General Nash. "We offer our lives to the State with practically no remuneration, and are sworn to uphold the honor of the State and its laws. The only reason there is any need for the militia is because the civil officers do not do their duty. If you will make the civil authorities perform their work, there will be no necessity for calling out the militia."

Says Present Laws Protect Them. "The present law should stand. It protects us from being overruled by the civil authorities, and prevents us from being made the scapegoats of incompetent civil officers."

Mr. Slade declared the present military law is unconstitutional because it means the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus. He likened conditions that arose in Augusta last year, under military rule, to the Reconstruction period, when "blood flowed as freely as water."

Representative Ennis, of Baldwin County, spoke against the bill. He declared if the State were under military rule there would be fewer law-breakers.

Because of the absence of a quorum the committee did not take any action on the bill. Mr. Slade declared he has small hopes of the passage of his bill, but seeks to effect a compromise with the bill introduced in the Senate by Senator McGregor, which curtails the powers of the military.

It is probable that the committee will not report on the Slade bill until next week.

Vincent Astor Bitten By Monkey on Yacht

NEW YORK, August 1.—Vincent Astor has sailed on the Noma to meet the Olympic, aboard of which is his mother, Mrs. John Astor. He will probably pick up the Olympic about 100 miles out.

Mr. Astor's friends to-day learned for the first time of an encounter he had last week with his pet monkey, Jocko, on the Noma. In his attempt to return him to his cage, Mr. Astor was severely bitten on the hand.

Fines Both Twins To Get Right One

PHILADELPHIA, August 1.—It makes $8.50 difference to-day to either Frank or Harry Swartz, 19 years old, was that one of the wore white socks and the other lavender, because the are twins. Magistrate Morris fined them both that amount because he couldn't tell which had been guilty of flirting in the park. The only difference between the pair

Mitchell Named by Anti-Tammany Men For New York Mayor

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—After a stormy all night session of the anti-Tammany allies, John Purroy Mitchell, collector of the port of New York, was named as the fusion candidate for Mayor of Greater New York. Mitchell was named on the ninth ballot, with 45 votes, to 43 for District Attorney Whitman.

The rest of the ticket follows: Comptroller, William A. Prendergast; President Board of Aldermen, George McAneny; President Borough of Manhattan, Marcus M. Marks; President Borough of Brooklyn, Lewis H. Pounds; President Borough of Queens, Robert W. Higbie; President Borough of the Bronx, Cyrus C. Miller; President Borough of Richmond, George Cromwell; District Attorney New York County, Charles S. Whitman.

Weds Fiance, Georgia Man, on His Deathbed

LEBANON, PA., August 1.—The death of Wallace Van Sickle, of Macon, Ga., in a hospital here to-day revealed the devotion of a young woman member of a prominent Lebanon family, Miss Miriam Bowman, to whom Van Sickle became engaged. Shortly after the announcement was made he was stricken with typhoid fever.

The date of the wedding had been fixed, but it was postponed in the hope of Van Sickle's speedy recovery. There was no change in his condition, however, so it was decided that the marriage ceremony should be performed in the hospital. The ceremony was performed, and the bride remained at the bedside of her husband until he died.

Girl Fights Turks as Man; Weds In U. S.

PITTSBURG, PA., August 1.—A romance that began in the Balkans resulted in the marriage of Vida Radak and Barbara Coganic, Bulgarians, in Farrell, Pa.

When Radak was obliged to join the army and go to the front, Barbara dressed as a man and entered the fighting against Turkey. After many hardships, she found her lover and fought by his side.

In a battle, she was slightly wounded, her sex was discovered and she was sent back home. Later Radak left the army and came to this country. He sent for his sweetheart.

Grocer Dumping Bad Eggs in Street Fined

Recorder Broyles Friday morning held that an Atlanta street is not a proper dumping ground for spoiled eggs, when he imposed a fine of $5.75 on C. Kalich, a merchant at Williams and Parker streets.

Inspector Rice, of the sanitary department, was passing through Williams street Thursday afternoon when he noticed eggs being pitched from the store into the street. Investigating he found that Kalich was testing his stock of eggs and eliminating the bad ones.

COLUMBUS.—The Columbus Power Company has doubled the capacity of its substation in Newnan because of the growth of business in that town. The substation has been established about one year.

Had Serious Lung Trouble—Now Well

It is surprising that there exists much skepticism as to the possibility of a person recovering from severe Lung Trouble when there are so many reports of complete recovery brought about through the use of Eckman's Alterative.

This is a remedy for the throat and lungs, which should be investigated by every sufferer. Head of this case: "619 Susquehanna Ave., Phila., Pa. "My Dear Sir: For two years I was afflicted with hemorrhages of the lungs, and in February of 1912 I was taken with a severe attack of pneumonia. When I recovered sufficiently to walk about the house I was left with a frightful hacking cough, which no medicine I had taken could alleviate. It was at this time, March, 1912, that I started taking Eckman's Alterative. In a short time my cough was gone and I was pronounced well. Since that time I have had two slight attacks of pneumonia, and I have resorted to no other medicine as effect a recovery. I can not speak too highly for the good it has done."

(Above abbreviated; more on request.) Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' use to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Coughs and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all of Jacobs' Drug Stores and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

MEN AND RELIGION BULLETIN No. 68 APPROPRIATIONS IN GEORGIA

"By their fruits ye shall know them."

---Matt. vii: 20.

"Now we pray to God--

"Not that we may appear approved,

"BUT THAT YOU MAY DO THAT WHICH IS HONORABLE,

"Though we be as reprobate."

---2nd Cor. xiii: 7.

Not attacks.

Facts.

Some appropriations in Georgia:

$10,000.00 agriculture.

$10,000.00 carrying out pure food and drug act.

$ 5,000.00 for cattle tick eradication and protection of live stock.

$15,000.00 to developing live stock and exterminating the cattle tick.

$ 6,000.00 to manufacture and distribute hog cholera serum.

$20,000.00 horticulture and entomology.

Nothing for wayward and delinquent girls—for their protection, development and culture—

Later, if—

Maybe, next year—

God pity them!

THEY CAN NOT WAIT.

These are girls—not hogs, nor cows, nor fields which may be replaced.

Once lost, these—?

And crime claws—

Hell reaches out for them, even while you talk.

Seventy-five girls—

Only those under sixteen known to us—others—scores are in the State sinking because there is no place.

Care for prisoners is required by the laws of Georgia and of God, as well as appropriations for sick cattle and hogs. And if the State's Wards—we will not call them prisoners—be as they are, these girls, what will you do with them?

In the chaingang?

With the hardened prisoners of the prison farm?

You could not put them in your reformatory for boys.

WHAT OF THESE GIRLS?

The Prison Commission says:

"No place for them in Georgia."

Agriculture.

Pure food.

Tickless cattle.

Choleraless hogs.

These are much to be desired. They should be cultivated and sought.

But you know these girls. You would take care of them. They are more valuable than our cows and hogs.

Georgia's shame! Other States take care of girls. Why not Georgia?

Of the JONES-MILLS bill providing a reformatory for girls, CHAIRMAN WHEATLEY said:

"It was referred to a subcommittee to plan for the creation of a home and to make such changes in the measure for an appropriation that could be granted."

Cutting $45,000.00 from the $75,000.00 appropriation asked, the subcommittee reported back the bill carrying an appropriation of $30,000.00, for action by the whole committee.

The Penitentiary Committee had previously recommended the bill without a dissenting vote. All recognize the need.

And if money can be obtained for the cultivation of hogs, cattle and fields, surely it can be found for this—the saving of girls.

NOT AN ATTACK.

A fact:

We believe that the Committee on Appropriations will find a way.

While taking care of beasts and spraying bugs, you will not neglect and destroy our girls.

You can protect both.

You will.

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE MEN AND RELIGION FORWARD MOVEMENT

HIGH WAGES AND SHORT HOURS INEVITABLE

Incompetent Employers Doomed to Certain Failure—Working-man's Rights Paramount.

By B. C. FORBES.

"It can't be done" is the favorite argument of many employers when urged to treat their employees more liberally in the way of wages or hours or rest days or conditions of service. And they flatter themselves that their obdurate dictum—their say-so—settles it, leaves no room for argument, closes the case finally and irrevocably.

Skinflint employers are going to learn a few things before the world is very much older. They are going to learn that few things "can't be done" when the public makes up its mind that they ought to be done. Not many things that are right and just are impossible.

The eight-hour day, you remember, was socialist, anarchistic and absurd when first advocated. Nothing could be more impossible, all but a few far-seeing, broad-gauged, large-hearted, humane employers argued. Well, the eight-hour day was ushered in without any tremendous upheaval in the industries concerned.

"It can't be done" was once the pet reply to please for the abolition of seven-day work in the steel industry. To-day not five per cent of the United States Steel Corporation's employees work seven days a week.

Sunday labor in certain industries used to be considered absolutely unavoidable. To-day it has been radically reduced, almost eliminated in most directions.

The railroads at first vowed that rebating simply could not be stopped. To-day they are infinitely grateful that the law stepped in and annihilated it.

Political parties could not be held together, it was urged, without bosses. To-day the bosses are being driven out to the advantage of all.

"Can't" is an overworked word. It is too often the refuge of the unfit, the lazy and the coward. Sometimes it expresses a fact; more often it is an unconvincing excuse.

What is here written is for the edification and exhortation of certain corporations and other large employers who glibly declare that sorely-needed reforms for the benefit of their workers "can't be done." These employers are ready to admit that they would like to do certain things, that justice is on the side of the reforms and that they hope at some distant date conditions—especially among their competitors—will so change that it will be possible to mix a little more humanity with their money-making.

They would like to let their workers off one day every week, or every month. But "it can't be done."

They would like to pay all their helpers a living wage. But "it can't be done."

They would like to better working conditions. But, again, "it can't be done."

Gentlemen, it CAN be done. And it WILL be done.

Any man who can't pay his workers a living wage has no right to own a business. If he can not supply the brains necessary to so manage a concern that it can pay decent wages, then stop him from being an employer and let him become an employee. If capital can not be handled in one industry so as to afford reasonable wages, then let it seek other employment. Not only is it an economic sin to continue the use of capital in an unprofitable business, in one that does not pay for the things necessary for the sustenance of the workers engaged in it, but it is a crime against humanity, a crime against society, a crime against the State, for if an employee receives less wages than is absolutely needed to maintain life, then the goods—the butcher, the baker, the dry goods merchant, the landlord, etc., etc.—have to make up the difference, since men and women can not allow themselves to starve to death.

The employer who persists in replying "it can't be done" to requests for reasonable treatment of workers writes himself down incompetent, unfit to enjoy the services of others. Capital and labor are not sufficient to insure business success; MANAGEMENT is the third and indispensable requisite. And any employer who can not supply it intelligently enough to enable him to deal fairly and decently with workers has no claim to be allowed to remain an employer. That inexorable law which decrees the survival of the fittest marks such an one for destruction, as he ought to be marked.

It may be necessary to be more specific in a subsequent article.

ONE MINUTE MORE BILL, WE WANT YOU ON THE COMMITTEE AT THE BALL—HERE'S A LIST OF THE NAMES

CHARTER FACING SURE DEFEAT IN SENATE

Corporations Committee Dooms Bill Curbing Recorder and Providing Referendum and Recall.

The proposed new charter for Atlanta, providing, among other things, for the limitation of the city recorder's power and the application of the initiative, referendum and recall to heads of city departments, is doomed to defeat at the hands of the Senate corporations committee.

The committee held an executive session Friday morning following an open meeting in which the matter was discussed by Representatives Blackburn, of Fulton, Alderman Nutting and Mason, City Attorney Mason and Judge Hillyer also addressed the committee.

Immediately following the executive session Senator Burtz, chairman of the Senate corporations committee, declared that the proposed charter has objectionable features and probably would never get the support of the committee.

He also intimated that the Senate committee might never take any action on the charter.

Later the charter bill was recommended in the Senate for the further consideration by the committee on corporations. The charter bill has been passed by the House and recommended to the Senate with the initiative, referendum and recall feature omitted.

Representative Blackburn, in urging a favorable report, Friday morning, declared that the proposed charter has objectionable features and probably would never get the support of the committee.

Senator Burtz opposes this, he says, on the grounds that it does not leave the Recorder the power of discretion in cases where one man should receive a heavier fine than another for similar offenses. The provision, he says, would be a boon to violators of the prohibition law.

Blackburn, however, opposed the initiative, referendum and recall feature, upheld by the City Council delegation including the City Attorney and the two aldermen. Senator Burtz joined Mr. Blackburn in this on the grounds that, under the provision it would be too easy to get the required 20 per cent of the voters to sign the petition for the recall.

Senator Burtz declared this proposed amendment was a slap at the Mayor and would be opposed by the Senate Committee.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 1.—A miniature luncheon wagonette, a device by which many steps will be saved for the housewife who has a few friends drop in on her unexpectedly, is the invention of Mrs. James J. Brown, of Denver, the heroine of the Titanic disaster.

It is a small combination of pantry, refrigerator, sideboard and electric cooker.

Girls! Want a King? Cable Siam's Ruler

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—The young King of Siam, according to Mrs. Clara Williams, wife of a wealthy plantation owner of Bangkok here to-day, is an automaniac, writer of poetry and admirer of American women. He declares he will marry only an American girl.

This feeling for American women, according to Mrs. Williams, was stirred when the young King met and was fascinated by Mabel C. Gilman, now the wife of William E. Corey. The King still indites bits of verse to the former actress, and it is well known in Siam that he refused to wed his cousin because he was waiting for an American girl to enter his life.

Passenger Club to Dine Two Members

The Atlanta Passenger Club will entertain W. H. Leahy and C. P. Stewart in the Georgia pine room in Hotel Ansley Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

W. H. Leahy, formerly with the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad, has accepted a position with the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. C. P. Stewart, formerly superintendent of the tariff bureau of the Southern Passenger Association, has accepted a position as general passenger agent for the Western Maryland Railroad and will go to Baltimore August 15 to assume his duties.

Capt. 'Bill' McDonald Hunts Dallas Slayer

DALLAS, TEXAS, Aug. 1.—Captain "Bill" McDonald, United States Marshal and famous in Texas as a "bad man" catcher, left Dallas to-day after announcing that he had taken up an investigation of the mysterious murder of Miss Florence Brown in a local real estate office last Monday.

A. M. Vaughan, whose office is a few doors from the real estate office in which Miss Brown was killed, has given the police a description of a well-dressed man he saw standing beside Miss Brown's desk a few minutes before her body was found.

Woman Is Punished By Own Sex on Jury

EAST ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1.—The first jury of women ever chosen in East St. Louis tried and convicted another woman in Justice Ziegler's court.

Mrs. Blanch Thomas was tried for disturbing the peace of Mrs. Edward McKinney, found guilty and fined $5. Four of the women jurors were under age and another lived in an adjoining county.

'Jack the Clipper' Gets Girl's Braids

JOLIET, ILL., Aug. 1.—A "Jack the Clipper" cut two long black braids from 12-year-old Goldie Book last night while the girl was sleeping. Her bed is close to a window and a cut screen this morning explained how the hair thief obtained the tresses.

Here's How Leiters Escape From Heat

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiters, of Chicago, who have become the leaders of "sensible society," proved their claim to that title again to-day when it was learned that they had devised a unique plan to fight the heat.

During the day they spend cool hours in the big glass palace on the Virginia hills, and then when night-fall comes on, they move down into the houseboat moored just below and enjoy restful sleep there.

Bishop Arrested as Masquerading Priest

LOUISVILLE, KY., Aug. 1.—Mistaken for a man masquerading as a priest wanted in New York for swindling Catholics, Bishop Thomas F. Gallor, of Memphis, chancellor of the University of the South, was held by Cincinnati authorities in the Union Station at Cincinnati until the authorities were convinced of his identity.

Senate Committee To Inspect Prison

The Senate Penitentiary Committee, consisting of twelve Senators, left Atlanta Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock for Milledgeville, where they will inspect the State Prison Saturday.

The committee is composed of Senators Tarver, chairman; Bulloch, vice chairman; Burtz, Johnson, W. W. Jones, Moore, Olin, Parrish, Peyton, Pope, Rushin and Taylor.

Incendiaries Try to Burn Mayor in Home

HIGHWOOD, ILL., Aug. 1.—The home of Mayor Joseph Severson was destroyed by an incendiary fire to-day. Mayor Severson, his wife, daughter and two sons narrowly escaped.

The fire was believed to have been a deliberate attempt to burn alive the Mayor and his family.

Mayor Severson has been active in fighting the liquor interests of the town of Highwood.

WARM SPRINGS, GA., MORE POPULAR THAN EVER.

Mr. Slade, the new proprietor of Warm Springs, is adding daily to the popularity of this well-known bathing resort. He has this week added a new orchestra of brass instruments and drums, and the dancing is one of the popular amusements. The ballroom can not be excelled by any in the State, and with Lilly's Band from Columbus the dancing is all that can be wished.

The Warm Springs is the pleasantest place in the State, and the swimming pool the finest bathing in the country. The mountain breezes and healthy climate, free from gnats and mosquitoes, make it an ideal spot for a summer outing. The Warm Springs wants to see its old friends again.

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

A Host of Valuable Hints from Jose Collins

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

ABOUT the hardest work I know is just being a beauty. There is the ever-present dread that if you relax eternal vigilance, your greatest stock in trade will diminish and dwindle to nothingness! On the other hand, if you are merely on the way to the acquisition of beauty, any little trace of loveliness you acquire is net gain.

However, queenly Jose Collins, of the Ziegfeld Follies of 1913, in New York, refuses to worry about the ravages of time or avoidability. "If I get fat, I get fat," said she with complacent conviction. "I refuse to worry about it, and to lay in a supply of wrinkles and gray hair and insomnia dulled eyes. The women in New York have gone mad on the subject and they would probably look like better fat and cheerful than with the haunted-by-the-fear-of-an-other-pound look they all wear."

Eat Sparingly.

"I eat sparingly in hot weather, because then I don't feel warm and loggy. I breakfast on hot water and eggs, and I eat fruit and salads without oil in great quantities. That keeps my system clear and in good working order. I never eat hot foods in summer, for that would mean putting in some internal heat when we are sufficiently bathed in the warm atmosphere. I keep a watch on by system—if it grows tired or poisoned by some food that was not all it should have been, why, I live on some sort of fermented milk product—some of the lactic acid drinks that put me in sweet, healthy trim soon again. Every one ought to be her own diet expert."

"I've another notion, if you care to hear it: Every woman ought to be her own manicure expert, too. Beautiful hands are improved by pink, smooth, shell-like nails with neat half-moons and white tips. Lay in a supply of rounded orange wood sticks, some cuticle remover, a cuticle food, a buffer, a flexible file, one of the standard polishing pastes, and a nail bleach for removing stains from the nails. Spend five minutes with the nails night and morning, training them into shapely, smooth cleanliness, and see what splendid results you get—this would be my advice to all girls."

"Cold cream to make the hands smooth, careful drying to keep them so, and a little stretching and pulling and patting into long, graceful lines will make the ugliest hand more attractive. And if a fairly pretty hand is scrupulously smooth and clean, and is tipped by smoothly rounded pink nails with no soft or jagged cuticle to mar their outlines, it will be sure to give the impression of being very pretty indeed."

"Every woman her own diet expert and manicurist," I mused. "Then, Miss Collins, you may think also that every woman should be her own hair dresser and an expert on the care of the hair, too."

Care of the Hair.
"Indeed I do," agreed the dark-eyed beauty whose wonderful voice and delightful smile are two of the charms she adds to merely appearing in glowing radiance on the stage. "I think every girl can train her hair in the way it should go—I think it well worth time and patience to learn how to take care of your hair."

"And I think a girl should find a simple, pretty and becoming style of hair dressing and stick to it. It is not fair to train the hair in one direction and then go yanking it off into some other way. A water wave can be put in and even straight, lanky hair taught to look fluffy and pretty."

"Just after your next shampoo press your still damp hair into waves with your fingers and pin the waves into place, and, with the waves still pinned, allow the hair to get perfectly dry; pinch these same waves into place morning and evening with a bit of hot water to add stickiness to the hair as it dries. Of course, this won't make naturally curly hair—but it will give a pretty fluffy look to locks that might otherwise be an imitation of seaweed."

"If your hair is too long or too thick to manage, cut out a bit of it—it is too thin, go to an expert for a tonic and apply it faithfully with a looking glass, circular motion that is splendid for the scalp—and then you will probably have a crowning glory—instead of just 'hair'!"

Snap-Shots
So, Little Miss Would-Be-Pretty, just work away at being your own same little diet expert, manicure artist, and hair specialist, and see if you do not fall heir to some of beautiful, stately Jose Collins' handsome magnetic charm."

THE MAID WE LOVE.
QUEEN of her realm! uncertain name that puzzles and enchants you.

For the "Realm" and what it is the name no knowledge grants you. Behold! She is a maiden fair who splendidly can cook, and I would warn you one and all, there's danger in her look.

Her salads are a dear delight—like-wise the cherry pie; All folk must cater to this maid as in their power lies. Ah, maid! how trembles all your realm when one like you departs. For you are queen of rolling pins and of policemen's hearts.

HAVE YOU NOTICED THAT—
It is much easier to live because we won't have to go on doing it forever.

Pleasures and troubles are alike in respect—they are both greatest in anticipation! The average man "plays to the gallery" the only observer in that gallery is his own self-esteem! Yesterday's triumphs, defeats and sorrows all belong to yesterday for tears or smiles? The chap who lives only to enjoy life never enjoys anything!

"If you are getting fat don't worry about it. Worry will add wrinkles and gray hair."

"Eat sparingly in hot weather."

"Never eat hot foods in summer."

"Every woman ought to be her own manicure expert."

"Girls should find a simple, becoming style of hair dressing."

Miss Jose Collins.

The Greatest of All

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

"WHOM," is one of the first questions asked a child, "do you love?"

There is a sudden clasp of little arms around the mother's neck, childish lips are pressed against her cheek and there comes the whispered response, "You."

It is the first word childhood hears—"love." It has been a life that was misapprehended, it is not the last.

The journey through life is only a few hours as compared with eternity, but it is long and weary as we measure it with our short-sighted eyes. To amuse ourselves we invent many diversions, hoping to find happiness in fame, wealth, pleasure, ambition, and when those fail we ask forgetfulness in work.

But nothing is worth while, nothing satisfies, though we gain all that we longed for, unless we also have love. It lightens the burdens of the only dark places. It gives purpose to the purposeless. It is the source and the treasuries of faith, courage, hope, ambition, patience and every ennobling quality.

It Gives Courage.

Without Love, wealth is poverty. With Love, poverty is wealth. It puts courage in the veins of the coward. It makes a man rise above himself. It is the transforming wand of the only good fairy the times have left us.

Love youthfulness. Though one be old and wrinkled and bowed with the years, one is not old so long as there remains in the heart a reverence for Love. The young woman who scoffs at it is older than her grandmother who trusts and believes.

It beautifies. The plainest woman becomes beautiful when she loves and is loved.

Love strengthens. The mother never tires, though she works every hour, because she is strengthened by Love. The husband and father is persistent in the face of discouragement and defeat and spends his life in toil for those he loves.

It enthralls. No man is a good workman if he has only himself to provide for. The best workman is the man who loves.

It is the universal gift, and one which depends not upon the whim or caprice of some fickle goddess that presided at our births, but upon ourselves. We were born for love, and those who do not love.

If there were no such thing as love, the churches and theaters would close and the printing presses would stop.

all we need do is to believe and it is ours.

It is independent of social position, age, color or wealth. The love that comes to the maid is just as sweet as that which comes to her mistress, and just as true. There is more of it in the home of the poor than in the home of the wealthy.

It is about the only thing in life that defies a bank account. One is never defeated so long as one loves. The failures, the losers, the drunkards are it is not only the greatest thing in life, it is life itself, and the world revolves around it.

It is the hope of youth and the comfort of old age. All along the way there is nothing that will take love's place.

The young woman is stretching out her arms to welcome it. The older woman owes it to her younger sister to forget love's bitterness and disappointments, and meet her with sympathy and understanding in the greatest experience life holds.

One Woman's Story

By Virginia T. Van de Water.

CHAPTER XI.

THE taxi cab bearing Mary Danforth and her escort drew up in line with other vehicles before the great opera house, which rose huge and somber above the flare of white lights upon the street. While Craig conferred for a moment with the chauffeur, the girl looked about her, noting the hurry and clamor of Broadway at theater-time. The rattle and snort of automobiles, the clang of passing cars, the gleaming and flashing electric signs—seemingly pasted high against the dark sky—the shuffle of thousands of feet, the light laughter of passing couples and the smiling faces which surged past her into the broad lobby of the opera house, thrilled her and almost intoxicated her with a strange sense of gaiety and light-headedness. She laughed spontaneously when Craig returned to her and, laying a light hand on her arm, guided her through the crowd, of which they became immediately a part.

"It was very nice of you to ask me to come with you this evening," she said ingenuously, looking up brightly into the eyes of the man at her side.

"I'm very glad now that I asked you," he returned bluntly. "But I was not so very glad at first, for you did not seem at all keen at the thought of going with me."

The boyish frankness of the speech astonished the girl.

"Why, what a ridiculous thing for you to say, Mr. Craig," she exclaimed. "What made you fancy that?"

"I didn't fancy it. I knew it," Craig declared, handing his checks to a supercilious usher who guided the young couple down the aisle. "I know there was some reason why you thought you would not go with me at first. Was I not right?"

They were seated now, and Mary, although she flushed hotly, answered him with a frankness that matched his own.

"Yes," she murmured, "there was a reason."

"I knew it," he said triumphantly, and dropped the subject.

Whether the thought of her former reluctance acted as a spur to Craig's endeavors to appear well, or whether he was merely at his ease and happy, Mary did not know, but when the overture had begun she looked covertly at her escort and told herself that she found him charming. He was not particularly brilliant, she admitted, but she always thought that brilliant men were over-celated anyhow. Yet she considered this man intensely interesting and amusing.

When the curtain rose she forgot Craig and allowed herself to be swept along on the waves of harmony. When the curtain fell, she turned to her companion, her eyes shining.

"Oh, don't you just love it!" she asked impulsively.

"Yes," he answered, smiling significantly down at the hand she had unconsciously laid on his sleeve.

"I was talking about the opera, Mr. Craig," she reminded him with an effort at severity, withdrawing her hand quickly.

"Oh, the opera!" he queried unabashed. His face was grave, but there was a light of quiet amusement in his gaze, a gleam that made Mary laugh in spite of herself. "I like the music right well, too," he went on. "I reckon the opera isn't a very good one, is it?"

"Indeed it is," exclaimed Mary vigorously.

"Well, I didn't think it could be," explained the young man, "because I like it, and from what your sister has said, you told me about my musical taste. I have naturally supposed that anything I liked along that line must be rather poor stuff."

"Then why do you come to the opera, if you don't care for music?" queried Mary.

"The answer to that question in this case is so obvious, I refuse to answer it. I am another effort to pay a compliment," he declared, really believing, Miss Danforth, that you are blushing again."

"If I am," she returned, with a shrug, "it is because I am ashamed of a man who will not give a frank and truthful reply to a simple question."

His manner changed quickly, and his bantering tone became suddenly grave. "I wonder if you would really care whether I was speaking the truth or not about some things or not," he said, slowly and softly.

But this time the girl did not answer him.

When the opera was over they were caught in the crowd moving up the aisles and at last found themselves upon the sidewalk.

"If you are not too tired," pleaded Craig, "won't you go with me to Receptor's and have a bit of something before we go home?"

The girl shook her head.

"I'd like to," she answered regretfully, "but you must remember that I am a working person and need some sleep. I think that we would best go right home, but I thank you, just the same."

He did not urge her further, a fact for which she was secretly grateful. A sleepy chauffeur took them to the door of her apartment, then went down again with his car, without waiting for Craig to make his adieu. Mary held out her hand frankly to her escort.

"It was kind of you to give me this delightful evening," Mr. Craig said, "and I have enjoyed every minute of it."

He looked down into her eyes as he returned her handshake, and she felt that he was saying, "I'll say that being with you for three hours this evening has made me very happy."

"Yes," replied Mary, gently. "He started to speak again, checked himself, and lifted her hand quickly to his lips."

"Good night!" he said abruptly, and turning ran downstairs without waiting to signal for the elevator.

The girl left alone, she thought of the hand that had kissed and pressed it to her own lips. Her eyes were shining, her heart beating fast. Then she set herself softly into the quiet apartment.

What Has Gone Before.

It is the wedding day of Dr. Walter Cameron. He is to be married at 8 o'clock that evening to Genevieve Grotorex, a beautiful society girl. At 4 o'clock Dr. Cameron is called upon in his office by Eben-ryce, a member of the Scotland Yard detective force. He acquaints Dr. Cameron by telling him that Miss Grotorex has been missing for several days. Grotorex says that the girl's mother requested his services in the hunt for her daughter, and showed him a note in which Miss Grotorex declared she would be back in time for the ceremony. Grotorex tracked Miss Grotorex to an obscure London hotel, where he found her registered under the name of Mildred Farley. They drive to the hotel and peer through curtains into Room No. 153, where they see Miss Grotorex kneeling before a fire weeping and burning up some letters. They go downstairs greatly mystified. Grotorex makes some inquiries and learns that three hours before the girl was visited by a man, who, when he left the hotel, gave the management to understand that he would return at 5 o'clock with a clergyman who was going to marry them. Dr. Cameron excitedly demands that Grotorex tell him the name of this man. The detective hands him a card inscribed with this name—"Dr. Julius Moleworth."

Now go on with the story.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Good! To the side door then." And dashing through a crowd of small urchins that blocked the road, they made their way around the house to the entrance mentioned, catching glimpses through the windows, as they did so, of blazing chandeliers and towering plants, and hearing with feelings that may well be imagined, the bewildering tones of an orchestra, mingling with the hum of many voices.

They opened the door. A festive scene burst upon them, but they paid it little heed. The tall figure of the family butler bowing before them, absorbed all their attention, for he wore a look of expectancy and cheerful welcome that added to the mystery of the moment, and made it difficult for the doctor to stammer out:

"Where is Mrs. Grotorex? I must see her at once."

The butler, surprised, stared at the doctor an instant, and seeing something in his face that he did not understand, faltered helplessly and turned his eyes upon the detective.

"That Will Do!"

"Mrs. Grotorex," repeated Dr. Cameron, "I want to see her. Tell her—"

"Wait!" whispered Mr. Grotorex. "He had better send her my name." And he took a card out of his pocket.

But the butler, more and more surprised, shook his head, and while he did not refuse to take the card, muttered:

"Pardon, monsieur—Madame Grotorex makes her toilet, but if Dr. Cameron will go to his room, I will tell her."

"That will do," broke in the detective. "Take us upstairs at once." And ignoring his usual imperturbability, the glances of astonished inquiry that followed his rather burly figure, he pushed his way to the stairway, shouting waiting to see if the doctor was behind him.

This gave the butler an opportunity to whisper:

"The bride is a little late, Monsieur, and Mrs. Grotorex asked me to say—"

"I can not wait," broke in the doctor, exasperated that they should still attempt to keep him in ignorance of the real state of affairs. "I will go up, and you see that Mrs. Grotorex comes to me immediately." And he followed in the wake of the detective, conscious from the expression of his face that he was anything but the aspect appropriate to his supposed position of bridegroom.

No Excuse.

Mr. Grotorex was waiting in the hall above. "I have inquired for the room set apart for your use," whispered he, "and they point out the one at the end of the hall. Isn't it a shame?" he added.

"And what pluck on the part of the mother. I declare I had no idea she would carry it as far as this. But I suppose she could not help herself. She kept hoping and hoping from minute to minute that her daughter would come, and has not yet found courage nor opportunity to explain the situation and dismiss her guest. If it were not for what we have still to do," he added as they stepped into the room which had been pointed out to them, "I would wait and hear what excuses she would frame to meet the emergency; for you must be sure they would be entirely in accordance with the demands of the occasion."

"There is no excuse possible," the Premature Grayness

CAN BE AVERTED

THE hair turns gray because it has lost its vitality, due to sickness, nervous strain, deficient nutrition and sometimes inherited causes. To pull out gray hairs when they begin to turn white is simply to enlarge the cells, coarsen the hair and cause it to whiten more quickly than if left alone.

The best and only satisfactory treatment for premature grayness is a pure, reliable hair restorative, such as Robinaire Hair Dye. This restorative is prepared in our own laboratory, a scientific formula, and we guarantee it to be non-injurious. It is not to bleach or change the original color, but is to restore faded or gray hair to its natural color and lost vitality. Its tonic effect makes the hair soft, lustrous and beautiful, and keeps it in a healthy condition. Does not stain the scalp and its use cannot be detected.

Don't let gray hair stand in your way either in the social or business world, for thousands of others are using this splendid restorative with best results. We have sold it for over a quarter of a century without even one complaint against it. It is a pure, beneficial restorative and cannot harm you. For light, medium and dark brown and black hair. At druggists and toilet goods departments, 75c; by parcel post, $2.

Send us the name of your druggist if he cannot supply you, and we will send you FREE samples of Robinaire Face Powder and Cold Cream of Ross, Jacobs' Pharmacy, Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. Grotorex shook his head, and pointing to the clock, replied, "There is yet an hour before us. If she will come at once, Mr. Grotorex may safely be left to announce to the throng that his daughter has been suddenly taken so violently ill that her marriage to-night is impossible. Not one in a dozen will believe him, but the talk that will follow will not hurt you, and to-morrow any turn can be given to the story which the facts will bear out."

"Yes, yes," began the doctor, but he went no further, for at that moment there was a rustle heard on the threshold and Mrs. Grotorex, magnificent in velvet and diamonds, slowly pushed open the door and stood in a dignified attitude before them. Both gentlemen started forward and both gentlemen paused confused, for her air was one of courteous protest, and the glance she allowed to travel from one to the other had nothing but a laughing inquiry in it.

"What is this?" she asked, "I have heard nothing but a laughing inquiry in it, which to them, knowing as they did all that was hid behind it, showed a power of dissimulation that for the moment was almost disconcerting. Nor were her first words calculated to better the impression she had made."

"You have sent for me?" said she with a glance at the doctor which completely ignored the detective. "May I ask what I can do for you?" The, as the doctor hesitated in his agitation, she added politely, "It is 8 o'clock and my daughter is almost ready. I hope these few minutes of delay have not inconvenienced you."

"Your daughter!" gasped Dr. Cameron. "She is here?" While Mr. Grotorex, in no wise disturbed by the coldness with which his presence had been received, took up a silver paperweight from off a table near by and began to weigh it in his hand while his lips moved with what might be called the ghost of a whistle.

"My daughter is here, of course, sir," declared the mother in tones that were almost icy in their pride and indignation. "Where else should she be on her wedding night?" And she cast a furious glance at the detective, which that person was of course much too absorbed to meet.

"Here!" again repeated the physician, absolutely confounded at her audacity. "I beg pardon, but I thought—"

Her smooth smile stopped him. "Shall I inform my child that her bridegroom is ready?" she asked, with a polite but doubtful glance at the over-cold he still wore.

Dr. Cameron stared, felt himself inadequate to grapple with the situation, and glanced at Mr. Grotorex, who softly laid the paperweight down and advanced.

"Madam," said the latter, "excuse me, but moments are of inestimable value just now, and I must go straight to facts. Your daughter—"

But this woman was not one to brook interference.

"I don't know you, sir," she affirmed, and turned again to the doctor. "When my daughter's toilet is quite complete you will receive a summons from her maid. Would you like any assistance yourself?"

This aroused Dr. Cameron. Advancing he took the lady's hand and respectfully bowed over it.

"Mrs. Grotorex," said he, "you ignore the man you have employed, but you will not ignore me. If your daughter is in this house she must have returned in the last few minutes. In that case—"

An Unappreciative Man

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

"EVERY time my wife and I go out walking," a distressed husband writes me, "she insists upon me pushing the baby carriage."

No, it is not his duty. It never, since he began, was his duty. It is his PRIVILEGE!

Whose baby is it, you narrow-minded representative of your sex? Isn't it yours? And isn't pushing the baby carriage on the streets the lightest of the many thousand tasks that attend it?

Did your wife complain during the long weeks and months she carried it before it was born? Did she fear that the girl friends would laugh at her, or taunt her?

Did she feel that she had a grievance when she went down into the shadow of the Valley of Death, and returned, spent with pain, with your child in her arms?

Has she ever reproached you for the martyrdom motherhood has brought her?

She doesn't ask that you sit by its sickbed through the long hours of the night when every one in the household is asleep. She has never expected you to be always patient, tender, merciful, and forgetful of self, denying yourself every comfort if that denial made life happier for your child.

You Go To Sleep.

When you lay your head on your pillow, it is to sink into a sound sleep. When she goes to bed it is to hover so near the border of consciousness that the faintest sigh from the little bed near her own awakens her.

When you sit down to a meal it is to gratify your own appetite. With her her own appetite is an afterthought. She attends to you and the child first.

When you take your pleasures it is with the thought of what pleasures YOU. From the hour her baby comes her amusements are those that are her child's.

You are stronger than your burdens are heavy, and she has tasks before her every hour that are greater than her strength.

You know only your own aches and pains. She suffers both her own and every ill to which childhood is heir.

Your apprehensions are centered around self. She fears nothing for herself and all that life threatens for her child.

When asked to push the baby carriage, you are ashamed. Ashamed to be asked to do this little act that you are the child's father!

She not only bore all the pain alone, she is not only alone in the nursery with the child, but she stands alone in the pride that glorifies parenthood.

The Miracle.

If you were more a man and less an empty-headed peacock, you would forget yourself in the miracle that love has wrought. You would be overcome with pride that it would make you almost maudlin.

The father monkey in his cage will chatter with pride when visitors inspect the little misshapen image of himself in the mother monkey's arms. Every form of life, no matter how low, is proud of its offspring.

You call yourself a MAN, and you are ashamed of your own child! You are not a man. You are not of as high an order of intelligence as a monkey. You haven't as much heart as the lowest form of creation.

Push that baby carriage, and push it with pride and gratitude. I would not that if you persist in your present attitude of shame for your own offspring, some day you will find the baby carriage has grown into a car of juggernaut.

Couldn't Eat It.

After being kept waiting for the usual five or ten minutes, the new arrival at the restaurant was duly served with the first course of the table d'hôte dinner—soup.

Hesitating a moment, he glanced at his plate, then said:

"Waiter, I can't eat this soup."

"Then I'll bring you another kind, sir," said the waiter, and hastened away.

The guest sighed as the second plate was placed in front of him.

"Nor can I eat this soup," he said, a trifle more emphatically than before.

And the waiter, silent but angry, brought yet another plate of soup. Whereupon the guest once more remarked in a low, emphatic tone:

"Really, I can not eat this stuff."

But the waiter, now really angry, summoned the manager, and, to the interest of the other guests in the restaurant, explained what had happened.

"Really, sir, this is most unusual," said the manager. "I will ask why you can't eat any of our soups."

"Because," replied the guest, with a sad, wan smile, "I have no spoon!"

THIRD PRIZE-WINNING STORY IN "THE TRIPLE TIE" CONTEST

By LILLIAN LUCILE HARDEN,
Oak Street, Decatur, Ga.
WINNER OF THIRD PRIZE, $25

CHAPTER XLV.

"Is that you, Steve?" asked Mildred, at the phone.

"Yes, sum, Miss Mildred."

"Well, just as soon as Mr. Gray returns, don't fail to call me up," she said.

"Yes, mum, Miss Mildred."

"And have everything ready to start immediately after his return."

"Yes, mum, I is," said the faithful Steve.

Mr. Gray returned early on the following morning and they started on the search for Gordon Kelly.

Mildred was allowed to go on the condition that she remain out of view until all danger was over. Indeed, you could not have forced her to remain at home, so anxious was she to see her lover.

One of Gordon's hints was to flash a light from a mirror so he would know to expect them, so he was not surprised at the two flashes of light, and turned smiling to his friends.

The Guard Surrenders.

Not more than 10 yards away, carefully concealed from the guard but fully revealed to Gordon, crouched five figures. Mr. Gray was in the lead, armed to the teeth. Cautiously they drew around to get the drop on Gordon's guard. Then they sprang forth and stated they had come for the prisoner, and the "prisoner" was prisoner no longer.

The guard gave up his weapon and Gordon Kelly greeted his friends. Doing so, he spied Mildred behind the bushes, and ran to her with the speed that marked him such a marvelous base-runner. Amid her squeals of delight, she managed to say:

"Sweetheart!"

And he returned softly:

"Honeybunch!"

Then Gordon told them about his weeks in captivity, but impressed it on their minds how considerate his captors had been. That spoke much for the mountaineers and they were turned loose on the promise not to capture Mr. Kelly again, but to help him out in the future. No one suspected that those same mountaineers would lay in wait for Forrest Cain and the awful tragedy that happened would happen.

Gordon and his friends returned to the two automobiles which were stationed about a quarter of a mile farther back. Gordon and Mildred sat in the one driven by Steve, with Elmer in front.

Hears of Triple Tie.

"Say, Gordon, do you know that the triple tie is to be played off to-morrow?" asked enthusiastic Elmer.

"Yes, I read all my papers," replied Gordon.

They discussed it a while, and Elmer turned again to Gordon:

"Hey, Gordon, let's go to New York, and you play and I'll be your mascot."

"Suppose I should go?" questioned Gordon of Mildred, with a twinkle in his eye.

Elmer's enthusiasm was contagious, or Mildred would never have replied:

"Yes, do, Gordon; arrive at the last minute and snatch the Red Sox out of trouble with a home run and be a baseball hero!"

"Well, I'm coming to see you this evening, and if I leave to-morrow I will get to New York in time to see the last game," returned Gordon.

Just then the unsuspecting Steve set the "buzzer" going and the two lovers took the opportunity for a kiss.

When they reached the mansion Elmer said:

"Gee, Gordon, wouldn't it be dramatic to arrive and play in the last game?"

"It sure would, Mildred, when can I come?"

Miss Lillian Lucile Harden, of Decatur, Ga.

She is 15 years of age and won third prize in "The Triple Tie" contest.

"This afternoon at 5 o'clock. It's a new record on time."

"I will, Boss," laughed Gordon.

Mildred and Elmer reached home about 4:30. Elmer's excitement was over the trip to New York and Mildred's over the reception of Gordon.

Gordon arrived promptly on time. Mildred decided she could spare Gordon a little while if he would play if his manager would let him. Elmer was to go with him and he departed from them to get ready his things. Then they told each other what they had been doing to tell for many weeks.

"Gordon, sweetheart," murmured Mildred going close to him.

"Honeybunch," was all he could whisper as he took her in his arms.

Gordon and Elmer left early the following morning for New York and Mildred returned home from the mountains.

The day after she arrived home, as the family were sitting at the breakfast table they were startled out of their wits to hear the newboys shout:

"Wuxtra! Wuxtra! All about the murder of Forrest Cain in the mountains! Wuxtra! Wuxtra!"

Farnsworth, who had seen Forrest Cain murdered, returned to Atlanta on a train two hours later. This is the story he told to a policeman, a detective and The Georgian reporter.

Farnsworth's Story.

"I thought Forrest Cain had something to do with the disappearance of Gordon Kelly, so the next time he left town I determined to trail him. I had my chance this morning. We got off at a little station in the Blue Ridge about 30 miles from New Creek. A cracker was holding a horse for him and as that was the only horse in the community I couldn't follow him. I got out of cigarettes and suffered hour after hour until about 8 o'clock I heard a freight train coming and at the same time I heard the pounding of horses' hoofs. Just as the train was pulling by the man jumped from his horse and seized a grab-handle. At that instant a pistol was fired from behind and the man with a terrible screech fell under the moving cars. I went to him and struck a match. It was the lifeless and mangled form of Forrest Cain. I looked toward his assassin. He blew out the light before I saw his face and the inky darkness thoroughly concealed him.

"Why did you shoot him?" I asked.

"None of your damned business," he drawled in smooth, even tones. "You walk down the track and don't yer come back here in less than fifteen minutes, or you will be lying by that damned cur. Then you all kin do what yer damned wanter," he added.

"When I went back he and the horses were gone and I took the next train to Atlanta."

The Deery family were shocked to say the least, but Mildred felt strangely relieved, somehow. I was put on the mountaineer's trail. He was caught distinguish whisky, but not until he was fatally wounded. In the few remaining hours of his life he told his story of the past few weeks.

CHAPTER XLV.

GORDON KELLY, the baseball idol, at bat, and the bases full.

The White Sox "fans" let out a groan that almost drowned the wild cheers. Bill Smith thought he could distinguish Whiskey's shout above all the din. Whiskey was certainly doing his duty to Kelly, and as the noise died down a little he began to speak:

"Dat's him! Dat's him! Sho as I'm a libbin, dat's him! Marce Gordon goin' ter win dat game fer de Red Sox! He kin do hit! He gwine do hit!"

At the conclusion of this oration the people cheered again, at least, all but the White Sox. Bill Smith was proud of Whiskey.

Kelly, having selected his bat, stepped to the plate in his Ansonlike pose.

Big Ed Walsh bent double, determined to put every ounce of his strength in the speed of that ball.

"Would Kelly hit it?" was the question on every tongue.

He Did Hit It!

Yes! He did hit it! When his bat crashed into that ball it sounded like a cannon.

Never had such a hit been made! The ball soared away out of reach of all hands. By the time the right fielder picked it up Kelly and the three men before him had scored.

The previous cheers seemed trivial to the one that now shook the Polo Grounds.

"He done hit! He done hit! But he show am a mysterioso!" shouted Whiskey.

The next man was retired, but the Red Sox had won! He could demand an explanation of how he learned to play ball in such a marvelous manner when he stoutly declared he never had seen a ball game nor played in one before his arrival in Atlanta.

Stahl shoved him out in the center and said:

"Now, tell us all about it, began speaking:

"Well, ladies and gentlemen, it's very simple. I lived in my mountain home, surrounded by every luxury. I desired to play baseball, but had no comrades. My diamond was laid off according to the regulations. A correspondence school taught me what a curve, drop, strike, foul, etc., was, and I made a machine that would hurl balls of all kinds to me. I learned to bat that way. One of my servants chased the pitcher and another machine that I could touch as I left the home plate, that started it; as I returned I touched it again, that stopped it, and I could tell how long I had been. I could bat my balls straight up in the air or use my pitching machine to learn to catch. All my other knowledge I gained from the correspondence school and from the newspapers."

Gordon Back Home.

The cameras and reporters were busy that afternoon! And when one snapped Gordon with Elmer, Elmer's joy was complete.

They remained in New York several days. Gordon went to see his uncle and he showed Gordon and Elmer all around.

Mildred wrote them about the death of Forrest Cain and she wrote something else to Gordon that made him go into an ecstasy of delight. She had told her parents of their engagement and neither disapproved. Mildred knew her mother had something to do with bringing her father around. She told him she could tell Elmer about it and that young man was happier than Gordon, if it were possible.

Gordon soon came to Atlanta; their happiness was complete.

In his sweet musical voice Gordon sang "Lips or Poppy" to Mildred with her arms wreathed around his neck.

"Gordon, sweetheart," she murmured. "Honeybunch," he whispered.

Ten Commandments for the Summer Girl

By DOROTHY DIX

WHEN thou fastest forth for thy Summer vacation direct thy footsteps wisely, for what shall it profit thee to fish over so cunningly in the waters in which no fish abide? Verily, I say unto thee, that, though there be mountains that touch the skies, or sapphire seas, or swelling hills, or dimpling vales, yet is all scenery a desolation and a desolation, and a Summer resort becomes as sounding brass and tinkling cymbals, if so be no eligible man abides thereat.

2—Consider thy apparel, for fine feathers make fine birds, and no maiden with the glad rags is as homely as the Lord made her. Yet be not extravagant in thy dress, lest some youth shall flee from thee, saying: "Wherewithal shall I get the seeds to doll such a one up in the similitude of a fashion plate to which she is accustomed?"

3—Before thou disportest thyself in the ocean, consider what manner of figure and of hair nature hath bestowed upon thee, and whether thou lookest when thou art wet like a mermaid or a drowned cat, for what shall it profit a maiden to dry her locks on the sands if so be she hath only three hairs on her head and looketh like Winter underwear after it hath shrunk in the wash?

4—Propitiate with fair words the old cats that

I AM HUNGRY

TO-DAY'S COMPLETE SHORT STORY

AS we came out of the fashionable restaurant a pale, thin man came toward us. He tottered with faintness as he held out his hand and said:

"I am hungry."

Verdier put his hand into his pocket, took out a large silver coin and gave it to the beggar.

"You are very liberal," I remarked.

"Do you know what it means to be hungry?" he asked.

"No, do you, perhaps?"

"Yes, I do, and I will tell you about it. You know, when I first came to Paris, and had a hard struggle to get on. How hard neither you nor anybody else ever knew. I woke up one morning in a feverish, depressed and hungry, more hungry than I can describe. I had tasted no food since the morning before. I did not have a single cent, and more faint and full of bitterness. Should I really decide to beg? Yes, my friend. My ideals of morals were darkened by the shadow which dimmed my eyes.

"I caught sight of an elderly gentleman, tottered toward him, raised my hat and in a low voice confided my secret to him:

"I am hungry."

"He looked at me for two seconds. Then he shrugged his shoulders and said:

"His Answer.

"Then you had better drink no more to-day."

"I felt as if I had been struck by lightning.

"Close by was a restaurant, from which came an appetizing smell of cooking. How it happened I do not know, but a moment later I was sitting at a table inside. Shortly afterward an omelette stood before me, but only two minutes, then it was gone. Then the waiter served a steak. I realized what was happening and I was sick with fear. I had no money to pay, and I thought the waiters and guests were staring at me with suspicion. Just then somebody slapped my shoulder.

"How are you?"

"I was tired and saw a pretty young woman, stylishly, perhaps too stylishly, dressed.

"What can I do for you, made-moise?" I asked.

"You don't seem to remember me."

I searched my memory and suddenly I knew. She was a young woman I had met once before at Maxime's in gay company.

"Lili," I exclaimed.

"She sat down next to me.

His Dilemma.

"How kind of you to invite me for dinner," she said.

"The waiter suddenly became very polite. He stood patiently, smiling, waiting for my orders. All confused I ordered what Lili asked for. Then the fear returned.

"You don't look happy to-night," Lili remarked.

"I was too nervous to answer.

"Are you sick?"

"Yes, it feels very close in here. 'What was I to do? Should I pretend to have lost my pocketbook? The trick was too old—nobody would believe me. Should I tell Lili that I had not got a single cent to pay with?"

"Just then Lili got up and took a powder box from her bag.

"Yes, my friend, in a moment," she said. "Keep an eye on my bag, please."

"She went out.

"Looking around to make sure nobody was observing me, I opened her bag with trembling fingers and took a five dollar bill.

"Yes, my friend, I really took it. Then I paid and we left. Lili took my arm.

"Will you please see me home?" she asked.

"When I entered her apartment everything turned black around me.

Household Suggestions

The best method of keeping small screws, brads and tacks from rusting is to place them in small, wide-mouthed bottles, tightly corked. The bottle should be perfectly dry before using. Sandpaper can be kept dry and in good working condition by rolling it and keeping it in a wide-mouthed jar and screwing down the lid.

When cream is only slightly sour it may be made delicious to serve with puddings, etc., in the following way. Put it into a basin with the juice of a lemon and tablespoonful of sugar, and whip until quite stiff. This treatment makes it excellent, and increases the quantity at the same time.

MATTY OUT TO BAG 30 GAMES THIS SEASON

By Sam Crane.

CHICAGO, ILL., Aug. 1.—Christy Matheson, who was quite an old fellow in baseball as players go several years before Charlie Ebbets declared that the game was only in its infancy, finds it necessary to step out and give a real exhibition of the art of pitching every now and then to convince some folks that he has not gone into decay.

Matty is not usually prone to amassing records. He discovered some time back in the dark ages of the game that a well-preserved arm, protected from the strain of getting records, paid dividends longer than one that flashed all its best stuff in a short time and then went out like a flame on a wet stick. But if these records persist in forcing themselves upon him, he will not purposely step aside to avoid them.

The Old Master is out to bag 30 victories this season. This is not a record by any means, for Matty himself has done better several times in the years gone by, but for a man pitching in his thirteenth year in the big league, it is strong evidence that he is still there or thereabouts.

Ten-Mile Race Carded To-night Graves Has Speedy New 'Boat'

TEN corking events are carded at the Motordrome to-night. The fans will get the longest list of races carded so far this season, and every one of them ought to be a thriller.

The feature event will be the Atlanta Sweepstakes. There will be trial heats of one mile and a ten-mile final. In the first trial heat, the starters will be Graves, Richards, Swartz, Lewis and Lockner. The second will bring together Renel, Shields, Glenn, Luther and McNeil.

The first man in each heat and the third man in the fastest heat will battle in the final.

Richard and McNeil had been having things pretty well to themselves until Wednesday night. Then a new speed merchant popped up on the horizon in Morty Graves. Morty has always been considered a top-notch rider, but he has not had as fast a machine as those ridden by Richards and McNeil.

However, Morty is "there" now with a new Excelsior, and it is a beauty. He hasn't got it tuned up just right yet, although he traveled two miles in 1:22 Wednesday night. This is at the rate of 87 miles per hour. To-night Morty says he will have the "boat" hitting better than 90 per.

The Motordrome Purse should prove almost as interesting as the feature event. This race will consist of three one-mile qualifying heats and a final of two miles. The first heat will find Graves, Swartz and Shields starters. The second heat will have Lockner, Richards and Luther battling, while

BASEBALL Diamond News and Gossip

Rube Marquard carries a horsehoe. Knocked out of the box by the Cubs, he keeps intact his record of nine straight games, because Fromme went in with the score a tie and then was beaten out in the ninth.

Both the Giants and the Athletics lost all around yesterday in the pennant race, but leads of eight and one-half and eight games, respectively, look very good with only two months to play.

Although Joe Jackson could not help his team to send runs across the plate, the Naps showed they did not need his batting powers when they walloped the Red Sox in both games of a double-header.

Miller's drive for three bases with two men on turned the tide in favor of the Pirates in the game with the Dodgers. The Dodgers still could do nothing with Robinson, who has beaten them regularly for two years.

The Braves jumped on Geyer early in the game. It was well they did, because Salter, who relieved his team-mate, held Boston safe. St. Louis plugged away, but fell one run short.

"Chink" Yndling is not with the Dodgers. The pitcher is suffering from poison ivy, with which he came in contact when he visited his home in Lebanon while the team was playing the Reds.

Frank Chance is not going to quit the Yankees. The report that the Peerless Leader would give up baseball, emigrating in Los Angeles, was denied. Chance says he is far from being discouraged.

No, the Yankees are not claiming any pennants, but two straight victories over the White Sox has put them in the lead. The Yankees are trying to get out of the Athletics' net.

The Athletics ran bases like a bush league team while the Browns made six of their eight hits count. The result was that the leaders were trailing at the wind-up.

Joe Boehling was a broken-hearted youngster to-day. One thousand fans came from his home town in Richmond to watch the star perform. But the Tigers squelched any enthusiasm by beating the Senators.

"Three-Fingered" Brown could not stop the heavy hitting Philles and was driven from the box. Rixey eased up behind the Reds were trailing hopelessly behind.

Ty Cobb put a few over on "Sholess Joe" Jackson in the race for the batting honors. The Georgia Peach had a percentage of .569 while the Cleveland star went to bat six times and got nary a hit.

The Pirates have bought Joe Leonard, third baseman of the Los Angeles team, of the Western League, and have also claimed Pitcher Kent, whom the Dodgers sent to Toronto, under the waiver rule.

The Reds have sold Pitcher Harter to the Kansas City team, of the American Association.

JAP CUE CHAMP HERE. SEATTLE, WASH., Aug. 1.—Rube Tatum, champion billiard player of Japan, is here from Yokohama en route to Chicago and New York to play with Hoppe and others. Yamada, the young Japanese player who made a tour of the United States last winter, is said to have been beaten by Tatum.

CHESS TOURNEY RESULTS. NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Duras, of Prague; Black, of Brooklyn, and Kupchik, of the Progressive Chess Club, were the winners in the ninth round of the masters' chess tournament.

The leaders to date are: Capablanca, won 13, lost 0; Duras, won 6, lost 1; Black, won 7, lost 1; Kupchik, won 7, lost 1; Mar, won 5, lost 1; Taten, won 6, lost 4.

Bill Bailey Placed On Ineligible List

Bill Bailey, plucky Cracker outfielder, has been placed on the ineligible list by the management, for the next ten days, and at the expiration of that time it is probable he will be released, if waivers have been obtained. This move was made necessary by the signing of Harry Holland, the Tech third baseman.

Bailey had been unfortunate all season. He has suffered from pains in his side, and a pitched ball, striking him in the same place during the New Orleans series, tore loose a couple of ribs and practically disabled him. Bailey expects to return to his home in a few days and will play no more ball this season.

LEOPARDS AND ARMY POLO TEAMS IN FINAL GAME

NARRAGANSETT PIER, Aug. 1.—The Cooperstown Leopards and the army polo teams will meet tomorrow in the final game for the army and navy cups by virtue of their victory in the semi-final games at the point Judith Country Clubs field here yesterday.

Aided by a handicap of three goals, the army scored a victory over the Sand Pipers in the semi-final matches by the score of 12-4 to 10-2. In another thrilling contest the Cooperstown four defeated Point Judith 11-3-4 to 7.

WHITNEY AND INMAN CLASH TO-DAY IN TENNIS FINALS

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Aug. 1.—E. R. Whitney, of Boston, and P. C. Inman, of New York, will clash to-day in the finals in the men's singles for the Point Judith Country Club's cup as a result of their victories in the semi-finals yesterday. Inman has two legs of the cup contest needs only one more victory to secure permanent possession of the trophy.

THREE PLAYERS LET OUT.

KANSAS CITY, MO., Aug. 1.—Manager Lester, of the Kansas City Federal League team, to-day released Pitcher Hauser, Catcher Pettit and Third Baseman McGuire.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

drive, add room and repair work. Day work.

$100—Walter Echols, 714 West North avenue underpin dwelling. Light & Sander.

$125—J. A. Bradford, 110 Jett street, build porch and make repairs. Day work.

$2,500—L. O. Kimberly, Arlington street, one-story frame dwelling. Day work.

$2,000—Adair and Weinmiller, 15 Willard avenue, one-story frame dwelling. Day work.

Tuesday Sales Day.

Tuesday is legal sales day at the county courthouse, and there will be several interesting offerings starting at 10 o'clock. Forrest & George Adair will sell No. 111 Whitehall Terrace, a two-story, 7-room frame dwelling on a 42 by 108 foot lot. This property is to be sold to wind up the estate of Mrs. Victoria A. Foster. It rents for $25 a month. There is a $1,000 mortgage at 7 per cent maturing September 1, 1915, which must be assumed by the purchaser, the balance to be in cash.

The Greese Realty Company will sell for the estate of the Donatino Guss the southwest corner of East Fair and Fraser streets, 87 by 90 feet, on terms of half cash and the balance in one and two years at 10 per cent. There are three houses and a store on the lot.

Setting Back Dwellings.

Several small houses which have been close to the sidewalk on the Roswell Road at Buckhead are being rolled back some distance from the thoroughfare. This move has been made by the owners of the property to improve the looks of the neighborhood and also in anticipation of the proposed widening of the road.

Interesting Deeds Filed.

Among warranty deeds filed Thursday was a paper from A. W. Van House, president of Shorter College, Rome, to C. J. Sheehan, on Arthur avenue, 34 feet west of Courtland street, 50 by 90 feet, for $18,000, and from Harry K. Dunning to J. L. Womack the northwest corner of Oakland avenue and Moseley street, fronting 126 feet on the latter street, for $29,850.

Roxborough Road Underpass.

E. Rivers, J. Barnes, John Aldredge, Harris Johnson and others, owning property on the Roxborough road are seeking to have the county build an underpass under the Southern Railway where the Roxborough road now crosses at grade. The Southern is double tracking at this point and the idea is to make the other improvement while the railroad is making his own.

There is an underpass of this character on Piedmont avenue near Dr. J. W. Mayson. Plans are being made by the citizens who own at their crossing for safety and convenience.

Effect of Glover Election.

Real estate men heard discussing the election of Charles P. Glover to the vice-presidency of the National Association of Estate Exchanges were of the opinion Friday that Mr. Glover's elevation was a providential thing in that it would probably result in bringing the realty men to Atlanta in 1916.

It has been pointed out that Mr. Glover will be in line for the presidency next year and that he will be complimented by the delegates in the above manner. Several local real estate men believe that Memphis will now withdraw in favor of Atlanta.

BRITISH REPORT BOOSTS COTTON

U. S. Figures Were Very Surprising and Drives Shorts to Cover

Despite Texas Rains.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—On the strength of cables, the cotton market opened steady today, with first prices at a net advance of 2 to 5 points from last night's close, and was sustained in the early trading by scattered covering ahead of the Government report, due at noon.

From many sections of Texas showers were reported and it was colder, with indications pointing for more rains within the next forty-eight hours. However, the market remained very steady, with trading very light. There was no feature of importance.

During the forenoon shorts became heavy buyers also some of the larger spot interests, resulting in August advancing 10 points to 11.65, while other positions increased their early gain 1 to 3 points.

The government flashed its July condition report promptly at noon, giving percentage of the condition of the growing crop at 78.5 per cent, as compared with 81.4 a month ago, and 78.5 per cent for July in 1912. The report was constructed as bullish, toward the Auguries under expectations, which indicates that the people have been fooled on account of the cleanness of this crop, and it will require perfect seasons from now on to make the large yield required. New crop positions were under heavy cover, some of the strong ones from the opening within fifteen minutes after the report was published. August held steady around 11.50. Offerings were light and scattered.

Following are 1 p. m. bids in New York: August, 11.78; October, 11.31; January, 11.29; December, 11.29; March, 11.29.

Following are 12 p. m. bids in New Orleans: August, 11.60; October, 11.38; January, 11.33; December, 11.33; March, 11.42.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—There will be showers during this afternoon in the lower Lake region and upper Ohio Valley, and during this afternoon and to-night in the North Atlantic States, probably followed by clearing weather in the last named States on Saturday.

Occasional showers will continue to-night and Saturday in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States, while fair weather will prevail in the upper Lake region and the Ohio Valley.

The temperatures will fall somewhat to-night in the lower Lake region and the Ohio Valley and the weather will not be quite so warm Saturday in the North Atlantic States.

General Forecast.

General forecast until 7 p. m. Saturday.

Georgia—Local showers this afternoon and Saturday.

Virginia—North Carolina and South Carolina—Showers to-night and Saturday.

Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi—Local showers this afternoon and Saturday.

Kentucky—Generally fair to-night; Saturday fair and not so warm.

Louisiana—Scattered showers to-night or Sunday.

East Texas—Fair in west, scattered showers in east portion to-night or Saturday.

West Texas—Fair to-night and Saturday.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

Atwood, Violet & Co.: Anything under 80 for the report would be an indication to higher prices temporarily.

Miller & Co.: We think prices will continue to be controlled by climatic conditions in the southwest.

Josephthal, Leuchman & Co.: We advise sales on all strong spots.

Reciprocity Is the Saving Grace of Free Trade

Absolute Free Trade Is Impossible to Commercial Prosperity. Without Reciprocity Agreements in Reserve.

A Republican newspaper up East sounds an alarm on the tariff question which is not one whit less an alarm to the entire commercial and consuming republic.

The Republican paper concedes, as all concede, that the Wilson-Underwood tariff bill will be passed and become a law by the vote of a strict partisan Democratic majority. The Republican Senators are not making exhaustive speeches with the idea of converting anybody, but just to go on the record with a vague hope of future reactions toward the protective idea.

But the honest belief of the thinking economist is that this comparatively free trade tariff, if passed, will steadily move toward a full free trade policy in the near future.

It would be difficult to conceive a more definite commercial calamity.

Free trade would be just as distinct an evil in our national policy as a high protective tariff. One is as bad as the other. If protection builds a wall against our imports, free trade gives away our markets without getting anything in return.

Absolute free trade is impossible to commercial prosperity without reciprocity agreements in reserve.

Absolute free trade is as impossible and as impractical at this time as disarmament and universal peace. Everybody would like to see peace universal and the disbanding of armies. But no nation can afford to disband its armies and strip its navies so long as other nations increase armies and build new battleships, which leaves our country at their mercy.

Everybody likes the sound of free trade, but this country can not afford to batter down its tariff walls to universal trade so long as other nations hide behind tariff walls to prevent our products having free passage to their trade.

There is no universal peace until the greater nations all agree to disarm and arbitrate. There can be no free trade until the greater commercial nations all adopt free trade.

It is only by tariff bars held in discretion that we can secure the same trade advantages with other nations that they enjoy with us. It is only by RECIPROCITY that the tariff bars of other nations can be lowered to our trade. As Mr. Hearst declared:

"If we maintain our protective fence we can say to foreign countries: We will lower our bars to your products if you will lower your bars to our products.
"But if we have no tariff fence we can make no such beneficial bargain."

The common sense and the commercial judgment of this country will make a mighty fight before it surrenders the golden principle of reciprocity in any tariff we may make.

The Georgian has demonstrated how free trade on the seas has destroyed our merchant marine.

It is just as easy to see how free trade on the land will destroy the equality and prosperity of our markets.

The tariff is not a sentimental question. It is a common-sense commercial question.

THE TARIFF IS THE PRICE OF ADMISSION TO A MARKET! Congress has no right to make our people pay a higher price to foreign markets than foreign people pay to our markets.

The threat of free trade is alarming. But it is not likely. The common sense of the people will protect the country.

RECIPROCITY IS THE SAVING GRACE OF FREE TRADE.

RECIPROCITY IS THE SAVING GRACE OF PROTECTION.

It is impossible to construct a more just tariff without the reciprocity principle.

Too Late for Archbold

Mr. John D. Archbold must view with regret the plan for Congressmen to vote by pressing an electric button instead of shouting "aye" or "no" when the roll is called. For Mr. Archbold this ingenious invention came too late.

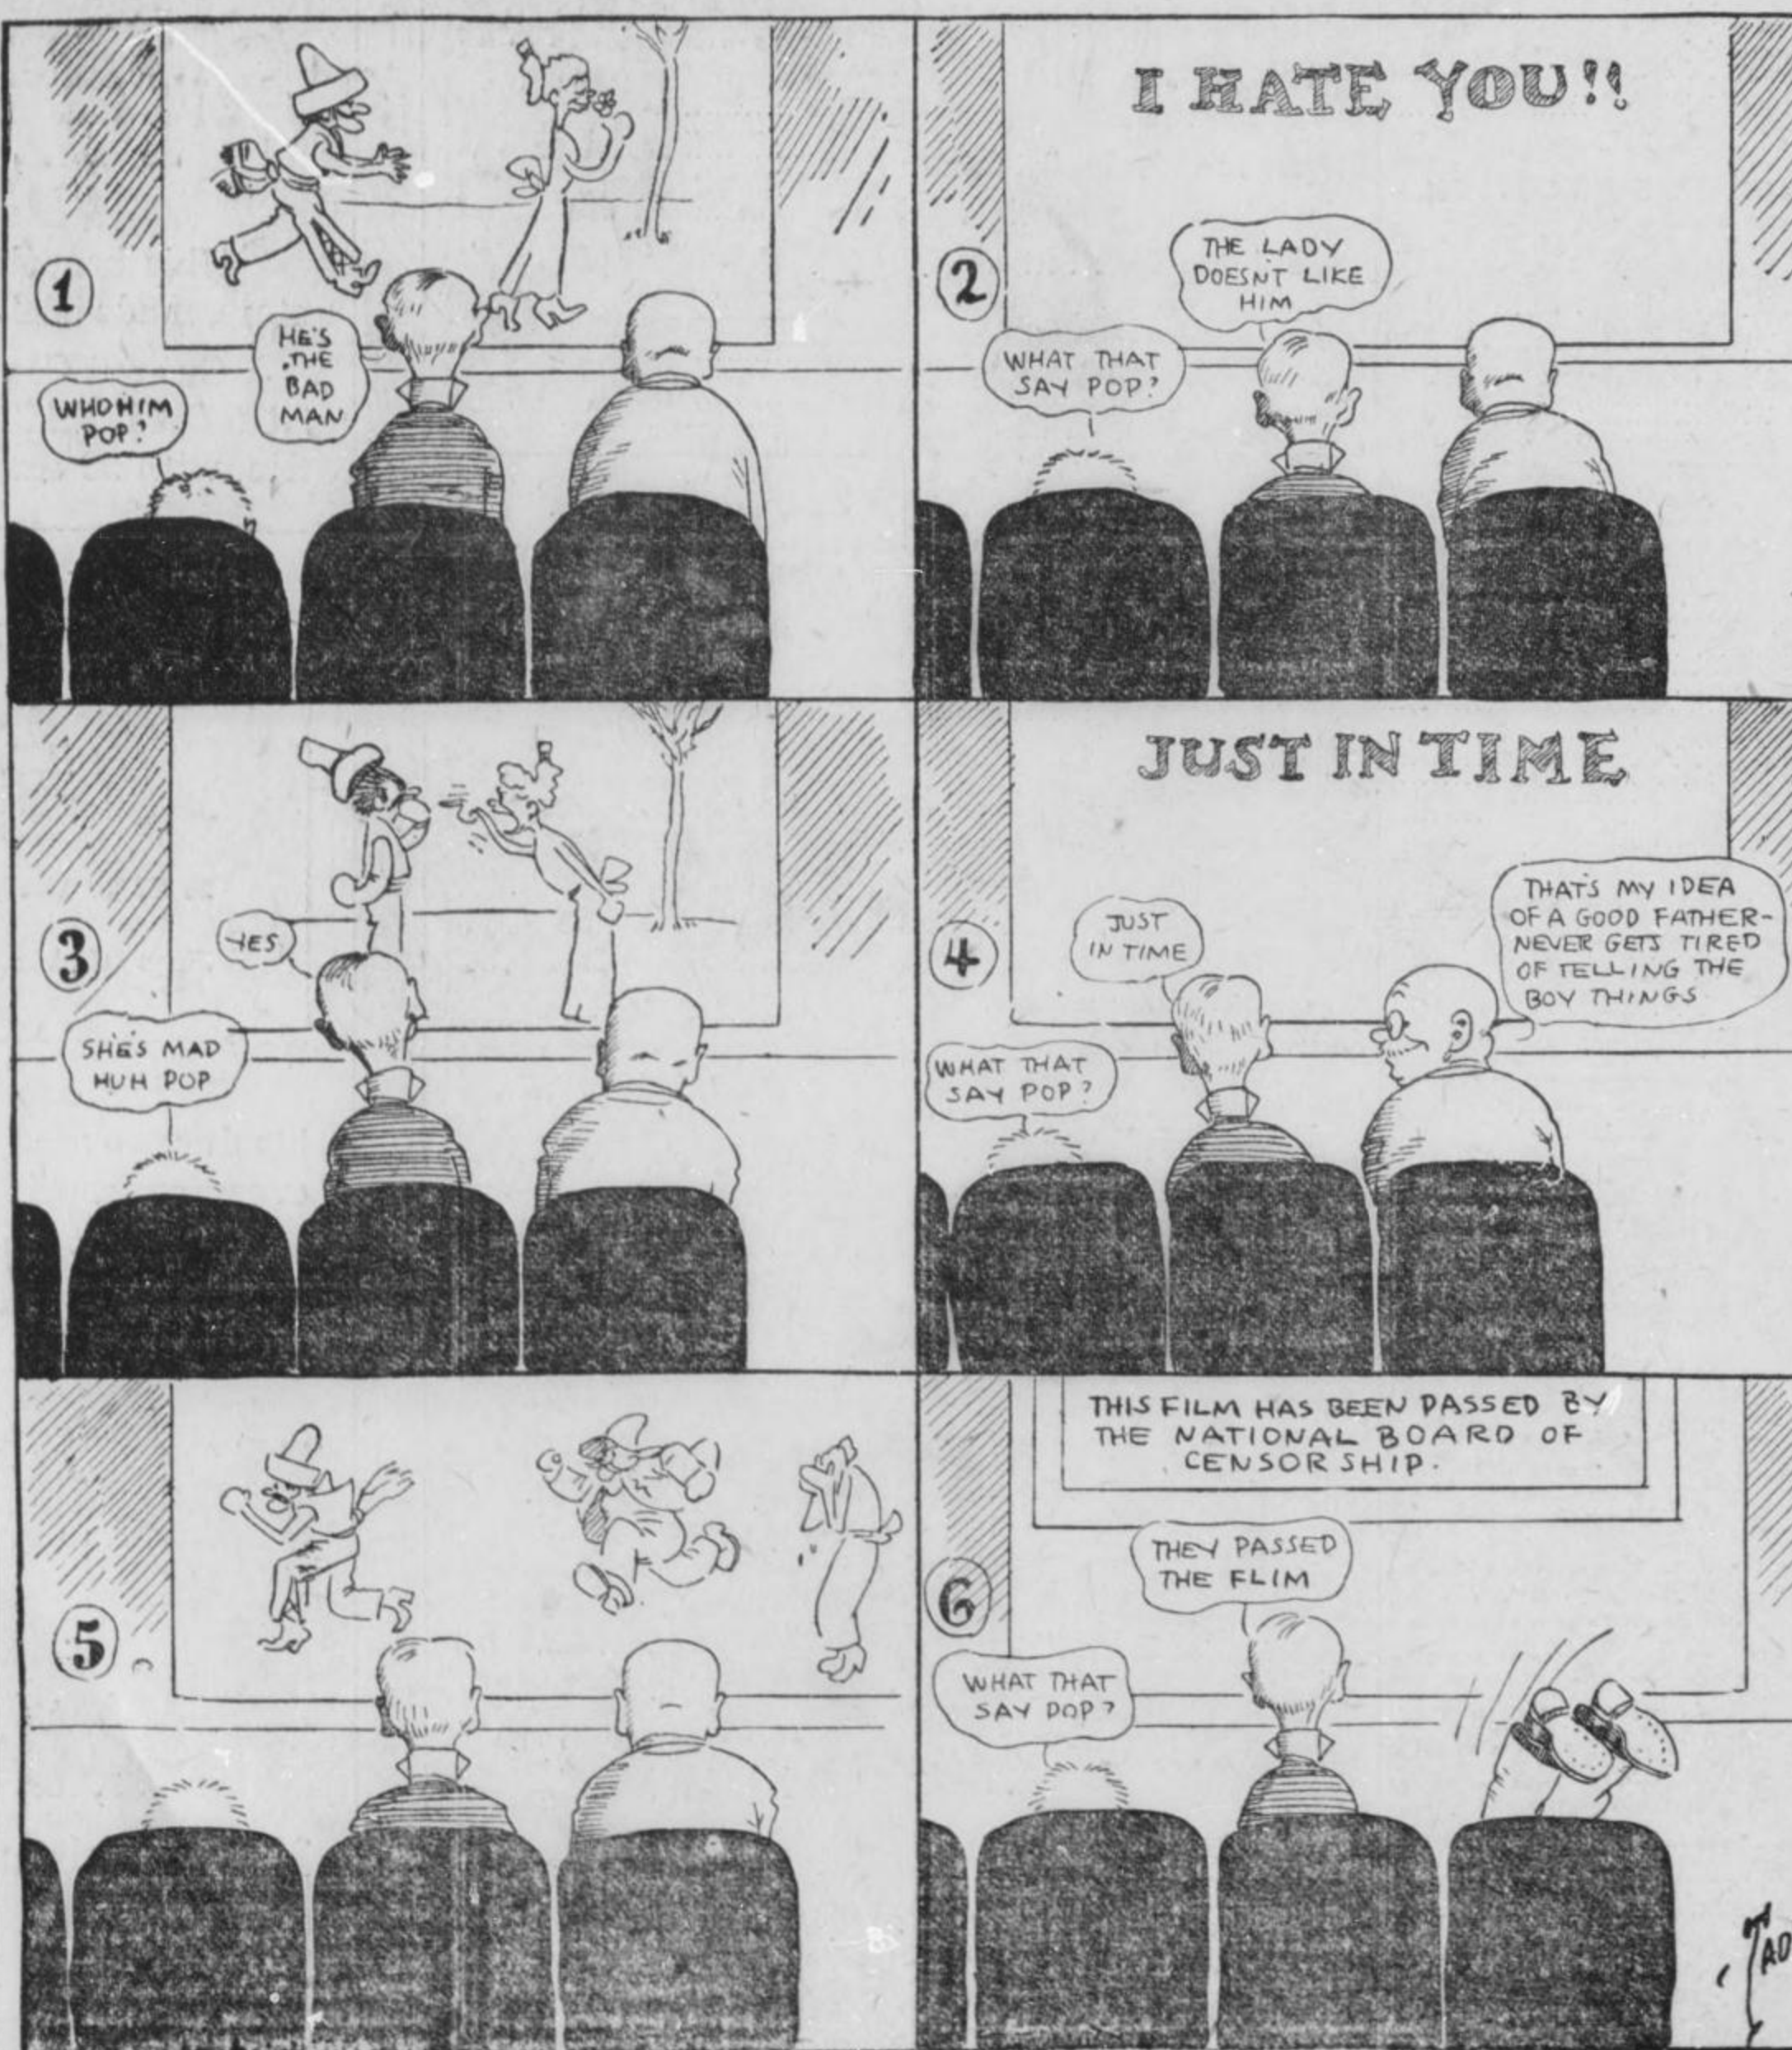

Before the Hearst newspapers ended his control of Senators and Representatives through the judicious use of certificates of deposit, the new scheme would have saved Mr. Archbold much time and trouble. It would have been easy to install a switchboard in his offices at No. 26 Broadway, with a telephone connecting with the halls of Congress. And when the roll was called the present master of Standard Oil could have pushed enough buttons to insure a safe majority for all the bills about which he had been writing letters to his private Congressmen and Senators.

But to-day the Archbold grip is broken, and it is doubtful if any member of either House would venture to permit his particular voting key to be operated from the offices of the Standard Oil Company.

The Bubble Reputation

An Education at the Movies

Child Toil of Present Age Worst Ever

History Has Never Known a Slavery So Blighting as That of the Young Victims of Modern Commercialism—Money Spent in Pure Extravagance Would Soon Relieve These Children from the Grasp of Despair.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

If one-half the energy that is wasted upon impracticable schemes of social reform and one-tenth of the money that is thrown away in pure extravagance were concentrated upon the solution of the problem of enfranchising the children of the so-called civilized nations from their bondage to Giant Despair, whose dungeons echo to the pitiless grinding of the money-making machines, there would go up, within a year's time, such a paean of rejoicing childhood as would warm the cockles of the world's great heart—for the world has a heart, if you can but reach it!

I have just been reading an article on "Children in Bondage," in the Good Housekeeping Magazine, which ought, in itself, to start a revolution. And it has recalled an experience of my own bearing upon this great question of child slavery.

Some years ago I went on a lecturing tour in the South. I stopped one night in one of the busiest of those industrial cities which have sprung up within a couple of decades in that wonderful part of our country.

Chief Promoter of Lecture Showed Writer Thro' His Mill.

The next morning the owner of a great mill, who was one of the chief promoters of the local lecture course, and who took great satisfaction in his connection with so commendable an enterprise, and gladly spent money to keep it going, invited me to visit his mill.

It was near noon when I approached his formidable walls, and was admitted within its guarded gates, and I stopped amazed at the first sight of human life that my eyes fell upon there.

It was a long row of little boys and girls, pale-faced and haggard, and clothed in the flimsiest and poorest garments, with tin pails on their arms—waiting in line to carry their dinners to their brothers and sisters who were halted to the treadmills within. Some of them glanced quickly about, at the least sound, with a scared expression, as if they expected a lash! Evidently there was no time in that busy place for human beings to stop to eat, otherwise than as the overworked dray horse stops at the edge of the pavement to have a bag of meal hung over his neck, with his nose thrust into it!

My interest in the sights that the mill might have to offer was already chilled, but, nevertheless, I went in. I remembered how delighted the owner had been to see so many of "his people" listening to a lecture on astronomy the night before!

I shall not try to describe what I saw. No doubt it was a sight that ought to have made me thrill with admiration for the practical application of the great principle of "efficiency" which I saw before me, but in fact it only made me sad and depressed.

Pale Faces Obliterated Thought of Marvels of Machinery.

I could not admire the marvelous machinery, could pay no attention to the wonderful statistics that were poured into my ears about the incredible number of this, that or the other things that could be turned out in a single minute, for I really saw nothing but pale, drawn faces, bent over the machines, not daring to look up for a moment, and white, bony fingers doing perilous feats with the darting shuttles, and I heard only the inhuman hum of the mechanical monsters that were devouring those young lives!

I have always regretted that there was an occasion when I had not the courage to say what I thought. But we all meet many such occasions. One reason why the world does not improve more rapidly is because we are too often moral cowards. However, I never think pleasantly of the name of that town, although it had listened very flatteringly to what I did say—but that was about the stars and when you talk about them you can hurt no man's "business."

Such Conditions Prevail Throughout the Entire Country.

Of course such things are not confined to the South. In fact it is to be feared that New England taught the lesson. Read the article to which I have referred if you want a host of other facts about this nefarious business of killing off the young of the race, killing them soul and body, in order to swell the bloated carcass of Mammon! Then think seriously about what you have read, and, having thought, act; for modern civilization is doomed unless this unholy thing be destroyed!

The Toss of a Stone

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

ONE hundred and eighty-one years ago a young man threw a stone at a tree. If the stone had missed its mark the most thrilling page of human history might never have been written.

Jean Jacques Rousseau was at the time loafing around the country estate of a rich French woman who had taken a fancy to him, and on the day in question he was strolling through the woods feeling greatly depressed. He made up his mind that he was worthless, and that the best thing he could do would be to commit suicide. However, he would gamble a little on it. So picking up a stone and fixing his eye on a tree some little distance away he resolved that should he hit the tree he would brace up and live. He hit it and lived—and the result of his living was the social, political and economic revolution of France and, indirectly, of the whole world.

In 1762—thirty years after he threw the stone at the tree in the park at Chambéry—Rousseau gave the world the Contrat Social (Social Contract), and the Contrat Social made the French Revolution. For the political student Rousseau's book is one of the most curious in the world. Historically it is null; logically it is full of gaps and flaws," as a piece of reasoning it is a wretched failure; but it did the work. It carried the multitude. It made the revolution that made a new France, a new Europe and a new humanity.

It was Rousseau, as John Morley well put it, who first in our modern time sounded a new trumpet note for one more of the great battles of humanity. He makes the poor very proud. It was truly said: "It was in Rousseau that polite Europe first harkened to strange voices and faint reverberations from out of the vague and cavernous shadow in which the common people move. The race owes something to one who helped to state the problem, writing up in letters of flame at the brutal feasts of kings and the rich that civilization is as yet only a mockery, and did furthermore inspire a generation of men and women with the stern resolve that they would rather perish than live on in a world where such things can be."

If Hamlet is right when he declares that "there is a special providence in the fall of a sparrow," then surely we are mightily tempted to feel that all the providences were directing the stone that Rousseau threw at the tree in Madame Warren's park at Chambéry.
