Dorsey Wins Over Rasser in Contest Over Negro Implicated in Phagan Case.

to have his liberty and be treated to the substance of this court, then considered as a witness only, he ought to be discharged and not be imprisoned. But in this case to arrest the man in the custody of the police and return him to his west residence at the station would result in a child's return.

2. But if the Solicitor believes that one of a number of satisfactory statements made by the negro may be properly received, he should be made available in the presence of Frank Coleby and the negro may destroy his value if left free to talk, and in order to stop his mouth it is necessary to keep him in custody. It is in this charge, then we think we have the right to protest against any order of a court of justice that will do such a purpose.

Release Not Considered.

3. We are constrained to the conclusion that it is not the purpose, for any reason to release this negro, but by obtaining the order for his return to continue the present legal confinement.

But Frank is himself deeply interested in this proceeding. That the content of the Solicitor and the will of the negro as well as the right to the interest of justice to put a witness in custody, but where he is not a witness, custody is not the highest importance. The law does not require that a witness be kept in custody, but where he is not a witness, custody is not the highest importance. JUDGE SPEER UNDER FIRE; RECORDS PROBED

Inspector of Department of Justice in Macon Investigating Official and Private Character.

MACON, Ga., June 13.—The entire official record of Judge Emory Speer is being investigated by a special agent of the Department of Justice, J. T. Lewis, an assistant in the United States Attorney General's office, and a personal representative of Attorney General McReynolds, has been in Macon for a week engaged in this work.

Not only the official acts, but also the personal character of Judge Speer is also being scrutinized, with the view of determining if there is any foundation for charges of an impeachment nature. Judge Speer is fully informed as to the purpose of the visit of Inspector Lewis to Macon.

Started by Huff Charga. It is stated that the investigation was promoted by the charges made last year by Colonel W. A. Huff, who has since been found guilty for sending to Judge Speer the letters which contained the accusations. However, the Huff civil case does not, it is said, figure to any great extent in the investigation, the probe being concerned with the Judge's record for the past 12 years.

Inspector Lewis has interviewed numerous Macon attorneys, court officials and citizens, and he has begun the taking of affidavits. Newspaper files are also being consulted. District Attorney Alexander Akerman declines to make any statement as to the investigation, referring inquiries to the Attorney General for information.

Not Opposed by Bartlett. It is believed here that Congressmen Bartlett was approached by the Department of Justice with regard to the investigation of Judge Speer, and that he did not oppose it.

Colonel Huff states that regardless of the activity of the Department of Justice he is proceeding with his plan of petitioning Congress to investigate charges which he will make against Judge Speer. He says that his charges have slight connection with his case, but deal almost altogether with other acts which he imputes to Judge Speer. Colonel Huff is expecting a visit from Inspector Lewis, and he says he will freely give the special agent all information that he has in his possession.

The disclosure that Judge Speer's under fire has caused a genuine sensation here.

VICE INQUIRY IS RESUMED BY GRAND JURY

Action Creates Surprise, as Probable Was Thought at End—R. R. Jackson on Stand.

The Grand Jury again took up an inquiry into the vice situation Friday afternoon when a number of witnesses were called to ascertain the exact methods used by the Atlanta police department in their endeavor to stamp out vice.

The announcement that the Grand Jury would probe deeper into the vice situation came as a complete surprise for it was stated several days ago that the Grand Jury had finished with this question.

R. R. Jackson, a former Justice of the peace, now a member of the law firm of Gobe & Jackson, was summoned to appear before the Grand Jury, together with John H. Gossett, a former bellhop, who is now employed in Jackson's office.

Jackson Ignored of Reason. Mr. Jackson stated that he knew of no reason why the Grand Jury should call him. He admitted, however, that for many years he represented in an official capacity many women of questionable character, and that his knowledge of the residents of the tenement at one time was fairly accurate.

It is now thought that the Grand Jury will uncover the exact condition of vice in this city previous to the closing of the houses, for the purpose of determining whether conditions are worse now than they were at the time the houses were closed.

Many other witnesses are scheduled to come before the Grand Jury, but there is no doubt that the probe is on in earnest.

R. R. Jackson Tells Vice Facts. R. R. Jackson was before the Grand Jury for more than an hour. He testified at length explaining the matters relating to vice in this city and was questioned closely regarding the closing of the court in general and restraining order prohibiting the police from closing up the houses of Mrs. M. Powell.

Mr. Jackson quoted the law to the Grand Jury, and stated that under the law the judge in the Powell case had no other alternative than to grant the restraining order. Jackson gave a great many important facts concerning vice as a general proposition. It is considered the most important witness that has been examined by the Grand Jury during the whole of the vice probe.

Friday, the 13th, Ends Atlanta Jinx; Big Pump Working

Friday, the 13th, was a lucky day for Atlanta, viewed from the angle from which "Zede" Smith, manager of the waterworks, looked at the situation. The day brought nothing but good luck to him, and he walked into his office at the City Hall wearing a smile like unto the one worn by the gentleman in the moon.

"Why shouldn't I smile?" he asked, when questioned about the cause of his ultra-pleasant disposition. Then he answered the question: "That 10,000-gallon pump at the river is working to-day, the first time since last April. If you had had the same bunch of trouble lifted from you that I've had lifted from me, you'd be smiling, too."

The big 10,000-gallon pump, which not only got out of order in April, but it almost went to pieces.

Legislators Plan to Save Innocent From Abuse of Dictograph

Three members of the Legislature are working on bills to restrict the use of dictographs. The abuses to which the instrument has been put at various times and the possibility that innocent persons may be defamed if the device is in the hands of unscrupulous persons led to the movement to limit their use to persons known to be entirely responsible.

Mexican States in South Are Seceding

To live a week in the White House as a guest of the President is the first flush of his gayety, is the delectable lot in prospect for an Atlanta girl, Miss Marjorie Brown, who left Atlanta Friday for Washington.

Atlanta society congratulated her with a vote of envy. Miss Brown is the first of the city's social set to receive an invitation from the President's family, and the first representative of Atlanta society to be entertained at the capital since the new administration went in.

Miss Brown has known the Misses Wilson for some time, and between them an intimacy has sprung up, an intimacy that was reflected in the warm tone of the invitation which came to her.

Text of the Invitation. Mr. Roosevelt's paper was headed: Application of Hugh M. Dorsey, Secretary General, to release James Conley from Legal Custody.

NEGRO FREED BUT JAILED AGAIN ON SUSPICION

Rosser Declares 'Glibbering Statesmen' Point Out Sweeper as Guilty of Slaying.

James Conley, self-confessed accessory after the fact in the murder of Mary Phagan, Friday was discharged by Judge L. S. Ross entirely from the custody of the State on the petition of Solicitor Dorsey.

Technically free, Conley was at once rearrested and held by the police on suspicion in the murder mystery. The action of Judge Ross constituted a victory for Solicitor Dorsey, who was wishing to prevent the authorities returning Conley to the Tower from which he had been taken on the representation of his attorney, William M. Smith, that the negro was threatened and intimidated in the Tower.

Attorney Rosser, attorney for Leo Frank, made a bitter protest against the liberation of the negro, which, in the opinion of Judge Ross, was the only legal alternative of returning him to the county jail. He made a still stronger protest in a formal written statement placed on file as a record in the case.

It is his charge that the negro's series of "elaborate and incoherent" conversations with the attending circumstances of the crime and Conley's subsequent actions, pointed to him as guilty of the murder beyond any reasonable doubt.

Attorney Rosser pointed out these highly suspicious circumstances in detail and went on to say that there was still more evidence which might be regarded as incriminating if the negro's case could be brought to the attention of the Grand Jury.

Less than ten minutes was occupied in the disposal of the case. Judge Ross did not read either the statement of Attorney Rosser or that of Attorney Smith, who submitted the reasons he wished his client kept at the police station. The hearing with which the petition was accorded was a complete surprise. A protracted fight was fought before the judge was expected.

Justice Ross said he was without authority to hold the negro in the custody of the State so long as he had no formal application from either side. The police station, the hearing with which the petition was accorded, and Attorney Rosser had characterized his statement only as a "suggestion."

Smith's Charges. Attorney Smith's statement to the court charged intimidation, and that influences unfriendly to Conley and friendly to Frank were at the back of the movement to transfer Conley back to the jail. He alleged that neither the interests of justice nor the interests of Conley could be safeguarded by removing Conley from the police station.

Shirley Mangum branded as an infamous lie the charge that the interests of Conley could not be safeguarded in the county jail, and had not been safeguarded. The only persons involved in the charge of intimidation and threatening Conley characterized the accusation as absurd and grossly and vitally exaggerated. He was present to testify at the hearing, but he was not called.

2. That if the collector believes that one of a number of contradictory statements made by this negro may be of any value, he should make a note of the same in the prosecution of Frank and that the negro may destroy it.

RETAIL ANTIQUITY PORTENDS BIG BUSINESS

Dealers Report Sale Increases in All Lines, With Unusually Good Collections.

Retail trade in Atlanta is making remarkably showing. Nearly every Whitehall Street merchant reports an increase of sales over 1912, good collections and a remarkable amount of cash trade.

They were not so cheering, the statements would be monotonous if they further emphasized the fact that the depression in New York is by no means to be taken as typical of the conditions in this city.

"I don't like a croaker," remarked P. J. Dixon. "The other day I talked a friend of mine into a conservative business, dropped in to see me. He certainly was blue."

"I don't know anything about the inside of your business," I told him, "but I'll bet you look at things that your sales are ahead of last year."

"But he sent me the box of Hainey's and made his way to his accounting department run a total of his sales, and wrote me a note of his financial condition. I get depressed and decide collections are going to be good."

Normal Weather Is Promised Again if Jinx Doesn't Tamper

The officials at the local Weather Bureau officially declared with qualification that anything was likely to happen today that Friday the thirteenth will be the warmest day Atlanta has known in two weeks.

Atlanta has had the warmest day of the season since the day of the Old Man Winter came into the North and Kid Summer came into his.

Friday the thirteenth promises to be suitable for at least one good thing. Unless the jinx has fooled with the Weather Man's instruments, the day will be the warmest day Atlanta has known in two weeks.

JUDGE SPEER UNDER FIRE; RECORD IS PROBED

Inspector of Department of Justice in Macon Investigating Official and Private Character.

MACON, Ga., June 12.—The entire official record of Judge Emory Speer is being investigated by a special agent of the Department of Justice, J. T. Lewis, an assistant in the United States Attorney General's office, and a personal representative of Attorney General McReynolds, has been in Macon for a week engaged in this work.

Not only the official acts, but also the private character of Judge Speer is also being scrutinized, with the view of determining if there is any foundation for charges of a disreputable nature.

Judge Speer is fully informed as to the purpose of the visit of Inspector Lewis to Macon.

Started by Huff Charges.
It is said that the investigation was promoted by the charges made last year by Colonel W. A. Huff, who has since been found guilty for sending Judge Speer the letters which contained the accusations. However, the Huff civil case does not, it is said, figure to any great extent in the investigation, the probe being concerned with the Judge's record for the past 25 years. Inspector Lewis has interviewed numerous Macon attorneys, court officials and citizens, and has taken the taking of affidavits. Newspaper files are also being consulted.

District Attorney Alexander Akers is also being consulted. Akers is to the investigation, referring inquiries to the Attorney General's office. Mr. Lewis also refuses to discuss the assignment.

Not Opposed by Bartlett.
It is believed that Congressman Bartlett was approached by the Department of Justice with regard to the investigation of Judge Speer, and that he did not oppose it.

Colonel Huff states that regardless of the activity of the Department of Justice he is proceeding with his plan of petitioning Congress to investigate charges which will make significant changes in the office of the judge. He says that his charges have slight connection with his case, but that almost all of them are together which he imputes to Judge Speer.

Colonel Huff is expected a visit from Inspector Lewis and he says he will freely give the special agent all information that he has in his possession.

The disclosure that Judge Speer had been has caused a genuine sensation here.

2 Decatur Children Failed to Attend School in 12 Months

Decatur probably is the only town on the Georgia map that really does not need a compulsory education law, as proposed by Representative Fullbright, of Burke County, for there are only two children between the ages of 8 and 14 that have not attended school during the past 12 months, an investigation just completed shows.

And this is not all—Decatur hasn't a single illiterate white child and she has a hundred more school children than any other Georgia town of equal size. A building permit for a new school building, costing $12,000, has been issued, also.

These and other things, indicative of Decatur's progressiveness, including statement of Decatur's building record increase of $8 per cent over last year, are being scattered broadcast by the Decatur Board of Trade, which is one of the largest organizations of its kind in the State.

CASH BUYING INDICATES BUSINESS IS GOOD

Retail Dealers Report Big Sale Increases Over Last Year, With Good Collections.

Retail trade in Atlanta is making a remarkable showing. Nearly every Whitehall Street merchant reports an increase of sales over 1912, good collections and a remarkable amount of cash trade.

"I don't like a croaker," remarked Mr. J. Paxson. "The other day it rained. A friend, head of a conservative business, dropped in to see me. 'Business is rotten,' he ejaculated. 'I don't know anything about the state of your business,' I told him, 'but I'll bet you a box of cigars that your sales are ahead of last year.' 'I'll take you,' he remarked. 'I'll get some cigars anyhow.'"

"But he sent me the box of Havanas you see on my desk. He had his accounting department run a total of his sales, and wrote me a note saying it was worth the cigars to get cured of the blues. His sales showed several hundred dollars gain over last year, which was an excellent season. It goes all down the line. The business man and the financier get billions. They need calomel. They need a wider view of life. They are too easily influenced by a rainy day or one or two complaints.

"Some comes to me and says he can't pay his bill and wants an extension. Smith drops in next day with the same tale. Robinson has a bill of identical nature. I get depressed and decide collections are in the air. The meantime, 27 other men have paid their bills at the cashier's window and I haven't seen them since. The future looks bright. I find collections up to normal.

"January, February and March show me sales equal to the first quarter of 1912. April and May brought substantial gains. We look for continued good business." Cash Sales Larger.

Lloyd B. Parks, dealing in men's goods, declares spring business was excellent. "We are especially gratified," says Mr. Parks, "at noting the considerable increase in cash business. Each month the same month of 1912, and a large proportion of this is cash over the counter. Atlanta certainly has no cause for complaint at trade. It towers far above all other Southern cities in prosperity.

"The firm outlook is encouraging and this fall should break records. 'Business conditions in this city are absolutely sound and good,' declares J. P. Allen. "Speaking for my own concern, each month of this year shows a substantial increase over the corresponding month of 1912." "The volume of our sales is ahead of 1912, to date," says Fred S. Stewart. "Cash trade is about the same. People are buying good shoes. We are selling more and more high priced shoes each year, fewer cheap shoes."

Henry B. Johnson, Sr., is well satisfied with the outlook. "Business is satisfactory," he says. "We are well pleased, and see no cause for complaint." "Atlanta Head Shops." Says W. H. Brittain, of J. M. High Co., "The season of 1912 was a good year. But 1913, it seems, will be better. The future looks bright. Cash sales are as good as last year. The total volume of business shows a new increase. Collections are up to the 1912 mark. I am optimistic, and can't see why anyone should be otherwise. Certainly Atlanta is in good shape."

Nearly everybody in Atlanta reads the Georgian. In the next issue will sell goods.

Legislators Plan to Save Innocent From Abuse of Diotograph

Three members of the Legislature are working on bills to restrict the use of diotographs. The abuses to which the instrument has been put at various times and the possibility that innocent persons may be defamed if the device is in the hands of unscrupulous persons led to the movement to limit their use to persons known to be entirely responsible.

Chicago Fan Dies in Hal Chase's Defense

CHICAGO, June 12.—Fred J. Porter fell dead while in the midst of a heated argument with baseball fans over the trading of Hal Chase by the Yankees to the White Sox.

Herman Schweseter and J. B. Willet told Porter that Chase was the Yankees' "hooch" and the Sox would land in the "cellar" before the season was over.

Porter grew excited in his defense of Chase, staggered into a chair and died.

Lays Crime Wave to Idle Rich's Example

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The tremendous growth of wealth with its consequent increase in the number of "idle rich," is producing a class of criminals almost faster than the police can cope with it, according to Representative Borland, of Missouri.

Mr. Borland declared the "idle rich" tempted poorer folk into idleness and wild ventures, and with which to gratify their tastes.

The victims were his employers, members of a prominent New York firm.

Hot Race on for Presidency of Georgia Senate

Allen and Anderson Both Claim Victory Is Sure

Claims of Pledged Votes Are Heard With Doubtful Ears by Political Experts.

The most interesting race for political office in Georgia is the contest between John T. Allen, Senator from the Twentieth District, and J. Randolph Anderson, Senator from the First District, for the Presidency of the Georgia Senate.

Both men claim to have sufficient votes already pledged to elect, but the impression is that neither man really has.

There are quite as many men vying for the office as there are votes.

JUDGE ROAN TO DECIDE CONLEY'S JAIL FATE

Chief of Detectives Lanford Receives No Order to Take the Negro Sweeper to Court.

A more explicit accusation of murder against Jim Conley, negro sweeper at the National Palace Yacht Club, than has been made since his name has been connected with the Phagan mystery, was expected Friday morning when Luther S. Roan, Chief of Detectives Lanford, was to appear before Judge L. S. Roan to combat Solicitor Duray's move to keep Conley at the police station and away from the tower.

The probability that Conley, accused and Frank accused, would be brought face to face at the hearing was lessened when it was learned that Chief of Detectives Lanford had received no order to take the negro into court and had made the statement that he would not bring the negro out of the station without an order to that effect.

The hearing Friday morning was understood to be largely the outcome of a persistent demand on the part of Frank's attorneys that Conley, a self-confessed accessory after the fact of Mary Phagan's murder, and possibly the actual perpetrator, should be removed from the police station and held in the tower.

Judge Roan, following this agitation, decided that he had possessed no authority to remove the negro to the police station, rather than to the Tower. To checkmate the transfer back to the Tower Solicitor Duray petitioned that Conley be freed, representing that the freed, representing that as a material witness no longer existed. Judge Roan set Friday morning for the hearing to show cause why the Solicitor's petition should not be granted.

The effect of the petition's success merely was that Conley will be technically liberated, but will be re-arrested and held "on suspicion," or as a material witness at the police station by the police officers. In the event of the failure of the petition Conley will be returned to the Tower unless the fact is carried still further.

Detectives Starnes and Campbell had another long talk with Conley before the hearing in Judge Roan's court. When they had concluded it was announced that the negro had made no changes in his story and no additions.

He persisted in his declaration, it was said, that if he only could meet Frank face to face he was confident he could make the factory superintendent "own up" to his alleged part in the crime. The detectives said that Conley expressed an apparently sincere willingness to face Frank at any time, and that he also said he was prepared to go before the Grand Jury and repeat his story.

Dennis Force in Affidavit.
Conley's attorney, William M. Smith, was at the hearing before Judge Roan and had his possession of the negro stated that he was at the station of his own free will and preferred to stay there, rather than at the jail. He said that he has been coerced in no way by the detectives.
