SULZER AND GLYNN EACH REFUSE TO BUDGE INCH

Deadlock Results in New York Impeachment Situation as Each Claimant Refuses to Make Move—Both Go to Capitol.

Accused Executive Accompanied by His Bodyguard Goes to State House and Plunges Into Business—No Outbreak Surprise.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Neither drastic nor violent steps will be taken by Lieutenant Governor Martin H. Glynn to force William Sulzer, the impeached Governor of New York, from office—at least not to-day. Owing to the fact that this was a half holiday at the State offices, Mr. Glynn spent but a few minutes at the Capitol, and while both Sulzer and Glynn forces refused to budge an inch, matters were at a deadlock.

Accompanied by his bodyguard, Governor Sulzer walked from the executive mansion to the Capitol, where he plunged into State business, just as though his right to exercise the gubernatorial prerogatives were not contested.

Lieutenant Governor Glynn, who claims the powers of Acting Governor under the Constitution until Mr. Sulzer is brought to trial on September 18, went from the Capitol to the offices of his newspaper and announced he would spend the afternoon at an athletic meet. He denied that, like Napoleon, he would lift the power of ruling New York State on the bayonets of the National Guard.

Lack of Trouble a Surprise.

Absence of an actual outbreak today was a surprise to many who expected to see the executive chamber a battleground for the Sulzer and Tammany forces.

Mr. Sulzer now virtually stands alone, having been deserted by the members of his cabinet, who have allied themselves to the Glynn forces. But Sulzer refuses to abdicate, despite the fact that the ranks of his political enemies have been strengthened during the last 24 hours.

Lieutenant Governor Glynn, who is now signing State documents with this signature, "Martin H. Glynn, Acting Governor, State of New York," announced that, in spite of any obstructions thrown in his way by the Sulzer legal forces, he would continue to administer gubernatorial affairs pending Mr. Sulzer's trial for alleged high crimes and misdemeanors September 18.

Both Sides Fear Trick.

Both sides are taking elaborate precautions to guard against a trick. Throughout the night armed guards stood watch over each State department, while lawyers and legislators involved in the struggle were trailed by private detectives. Mr. Sulzer was in retirement planning a new legal move with his counsel. Messenger boys with Washington and New York city telegrams could not find the Governor, but members of the "inner circle" took charge of the dispatches, saying they would find the Governor.

Leaders of the anti-Sulzer faction made the threat that Mr. Glynn, now having control of the State Military Department, would actually invade the executive chamber.

"He will get a mighty warm reception," declared Sulzer adherents, who are few, but courageous.

Some Fear Martial Law.

Some residents of this city, realizing the intense seriousness of the situation, fear that conditions may become so grave that martial law will have to be declared.

It was assumed that Governor Sulzer to-day would reply to the second note from Lieutenant Governor Glynn, demanding the unconditional surrender of all prerogatives by Mr. Sulzer and the abdication of the Governor. Counsel were with the Governor at the beginning of the official day, and it was reported that the Governor was urged to take a fling at Tammany Hall.

Charlton at Last in Italy's Grasp

Wife Slayer Loses 3-Year Fight

Now on Ocean on Way to Trial

Porter Charlton, young American, who killed beautiful wife and is now on way to face trial in Italy.

Young Prisoner Is Confident He Will Escape Spending Life in Solitary Confinement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Porter Charlton, after three years' fight against extradition from America, is in the clutches of the Italian Government and to-day is on the high seas, bound for Italy and for trial on the charge of killing his beautiful young wife and sinking her body in Lake Como in June, 1910.

In spite of the ordeal that faces him, Charlton left New York as cheerful as a schoolboy. Three years in close confinement had repressed his natural buoyancy, but the prospect of a sea voyage, even with a trial for murder awaiting him at his journey's end, restored it to a considerable degree.

"I'll be back for Christmas!" he cried, waving a good-bye from the liner as it pulled out. All the time he has declared that he will be acquitted, in spite of the fact that he confessed to killing his wife on their honeymoon. Extenuating circumstances, his friends declare, will have their weight on the Italian jury.

Charlton's quarters on the liner are isolated, and he is not permitted to mingle with the other passengers. He travels third class, as the Italian Government does not provide first-class accommodations for prisoners.

Faces Living Death.

Unless the contention of his insanity can be proved, a living death surely will be the fate of Porter Charlton, a hideous confinement that is far worse than death on the gallows.

Extenuating circumstances, it is expected, can not be revealed of sufficient strength to obtain his acquittal, and unless his defense prove insanity, he must go to prison. There is no death sentence in Italy.

And imprisonment in Italy is a dreadful punishment, feared far more than the electric chair, the gallows, or the garrote. It is invested with mental torture of such degree that few who live through it more than a few years are sound of mind.

Charlton is known to have a sensitive, nervous temperament. His behavior toward his wife proves him high-strung. To a person of his psychological make-up incarceration under the Italian system would be certainly destructive of mental balance.

For the first ten years of a life sentence the prisoner may be kept in utter darkness and in the strictest solitude, with nothing to eat and drink but plain bread and water. A few weeks of this treatment generally is sufficient to reduce the most unemotional criminal to a state of nervous collapse.

Insanity Practically Only Hope.

His attorneys hope to present in the Italian courts the great mass of evidence brought to bear in the United States Supreme Court to prove him insane. Justice Lurton, in the opinion which declared that Charlton must go back to Italy to stand trial, admitted that the evidence to substantiate the insanity plea was preponderous.

The opinion of the Supreme Court brought to an end the three years' unsuccessful fight of Charlton and his family against extradition to Italy. It was in June, 1910, that he killed his wife, according to his own confession. After the crime he fled, but was caught at Hoboken, N. J., when the liner landed there. The brother of the slain wife there met him, and caused him to be placed under arrest.

The first night of his imprisonment in New Jersey a confession was produced, bearing his name, and generally supposed to be authentic.

"My wife and I lived happily together, but she had an uncontrollable temper," read the confession. "So had I. On the night of the murder she had the worst outbreak of temper I ever saw.

"I told her to keep quiet or I would make her quiet. Then she had another outbreak. I took up a wooden mallet, with which I had been repairing a table, and hit her on the head and body two or three times. At midnight I put the body in a trunk, dragged it to a small pier near the house, and threw it overboard."

His wife was a beautiful young woman, although eight years older than he, who was only 21. The two were on their honeymoon when the murder occurred.

Mrs. Charlton was the divorced wife of Neville H. Castle, a San Francisco lawyer. Charlton is the

Court Frees 'Old Maid' Who Resents Epithet

Judge Rules Spinster Was Right in Smiting Married Woman With Chair.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Unmarried women of mature years who are subjected to ridicule as "old maids" have won a victory in court. Miss Minnie Flatley, of the Colonial Hotel, is 31, and Mrs. Lizzie Varley, of the same address, has been calling her an "old maid."

Miss Flatley resented the sarcasm by smiting Mrs. Varley with a chair and punishing her seriously. When she was arraigned in court Judge Gemmill, after hearing the story, said "Discharged."

"I think this sort of provocation justifies any assault up to murder," said the judge. "It is despicable to humiliate a woman."

Rockefeller's Rival In Riches Tips Dime

Nitrate King Hands Man Ten Cents for Returning Lost Pocketbook.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Senor E. E. Ossio, the Nitrate King of Chili, who has declared John D. Rockefeller a pauper in comparison with himself, overwhelmed a steward on the United Fruit steamer Pastores yesterday by the size of a tip.

The steward had picked up the Nitrate King's wallet and, running after him, bowed low and handed over the pocketbook. Opening it, Senor Ossio pulled out a dollar bill, then changed his mind, and, taking a dime from his pocket, handed it to the steward.

Hidden Pistol Seen As Girl Lifts Dress

Young Woman Is Arrested When Masked Battery Is Exposed as She Crosses Street.

UNIONTOWN, PA., Aug. 16.—Holding her dress a little too high to avoid the water as she crossed Main street to-day, Mattie Pearce was arrested when she revealed a large revolver in a holster fastened around her leg at the knee.

She was taken to the police station, where she showed the officers the new mode of carrying a gun. Strapped to a leg was the holster in which she carried the revolver.

The girl explained that there were "bad men" at Uniontown and she was not taking any chances with them. She stated that she had worn the revolver in that position for some time.

Mattie said she did not know she was holding her dress quite as high as she was, and that she had forgotten for a moment about the masked battery. She was released on bail.

Wife Paints Story of Her Life on Walls

St. Louis Matron Does Remarkable Work She Calls 'A Young Girl's Love."

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—One of the most-talked-of works of art in St. Louis hangs in the home of Dr. Robert E. Wilson and was painted by Mrs. Wilson. The canvas is called "The Story of a Young Girl's Love," and covers the entire wall space in the parlor of this magnificent Colonial home. Two years were devoted to the work.

The painting is divided into panels, the size of each picture depending on the amount of space to be covered. Artists pronounce the canvas a masterpiece. Mrs. Wilson's friends say that the painting illustrates her blissful married state.

FRAUD USED TO BEAT HEARST, SAYS MULHALL

Lobbyist Declares He Obtained Confidence of Democratic Leader in Campaign for Governor.

GAVE REPUBLICANS SECRET

Letter Was Forged to Give Him Introduction to Up-State Committeeman.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Colonel Martin M. Mulhall, self-confessed lobbyist of the National Association of Manufacturers, testified before the Garrett Lobby Investigating Committee that his political lines crossed those of William Randolph Hearst in 1906, and that he helped to defeat Mr. Hearst for the New York Governorship.

Introduced by a letter forged upon the letterhead of the Hearst campaign headquarters, Mulhall said that he went into Congressman Fairchild's district, the Twenty-fourth New York, an upstate district, and gained the confidence of a local campaign manager for Mr. Hearst.

Tells Plans to Republicans.

Learning from the latter the plans of campaign in the district, Mulhall reported them to Fairchild, and Republican plans to checkmate them and defeat their object were perfected. Mulhall was employed for a week on this work with the approval, he says, of Fairchild.

Mulhall told a few days ago how he started to work for Senator Foraker in Ohio. He was prepared to make his report to Foraker when the Hearst Standard Oil disclosure letters were first made public. Foraker admitted to the Senate committee that these letters defeated him for re-election to the Unied Staes Senate.

Unconcernedly, Mulhall told how he had taken his "fake letters" of introduction to Fairchild and got his instructions for political detective work. He met Mr .Hearst's friends, including a clergyman, at a hotel, entertained them and worked his way into their confidence. He ascertained that the Republican district committee chairman was not friendly to Fairchild.

Letter Was Faked.

"Whose signature did this fake letter of introduction bear?" asked Representative Stafford.

"It was that of some member of the Democratic State Committee."

"Who were you represented to be?"

"I was supposed to be connected with Mr. Hearst, and so represented myself to Mr. Scott, the candidate, I think, opposing Fairchild."

"It was your first meeting with him, and you won his confidence to the extent of getting from him his campaign plans?" said Stafford.

"Yes."

"Who signed this fake letter?"

"The letter was given to me by Marshall Cushing, and I can not say who signed it. Mr. Cushing was a very good letter writer. He told me it was a fake letter. I knew that Cushing was not connected with the Hearst organization."

Mr. Stafford—He was connected in the way of using the letterhead of the Hearst organization to good effect.

"Mr. Cushing thought it was a smart political trick, and I guess that was his system of working," replied Mulhall.

Scott Well Deceived.

"Mr. Scott's confidence was so complete," continued Mulhall, "that he told me Mr. Hearst had sent him a number of workers and quite an amount of money, and I believe in this letter the latter stated that they were ready to send at that time more workers and more money."

"Scott swallowed everything, hook, line and all, as far as you represented it," commented Stafford.

"Yes."

"Did Mr. Fairchild know all about this arrangement?" asked Representative Kline.

"Yes, he knew about hte letter, and I had Mr. Fairchild's advice in presenting it. He has spoken to me since about that clever piece of work."

Mexican Legation Is Assured That There Is No Objection to New Minister

Special Cable to The American.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—The Mexican Legation has heard nothing of any objection on the part of France to the reception of Francisco de la Barra as Mexican Minister to this country. The secretary of the legation said to-day.

"We would neat to be the first to hear of it if any such objection existed."

The Agence Nationale was the authority for the report, which was printed here yesterday. Senor de la Barra sailed from New York to-day.

May Yohe to Re-Wed Lord Hope, Is Rumor

American Singer Wins Back Her Former Husband With Favorite Music Hall Song.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Rumors that Lord Francis Hope may re-wed his former wife, May Yohe, are current. A week ago Lord Hope visited the London Opera House, where Miss Yohe is appearing with considerable success. The former Lady Hope was in excellent voice and sang "Honey, Ma Honey" that she often sang to her husband during their life together.

Lord Francis is said to have been touched by the song. Overtures for a reconciliation, it is said, have been made through Lord Francis' brother the Duke of Newcastle, and the Duke's lawyer, Mr. Isitt, husband of Adeline Genee.

LONDON, Aug 16.—Arrangements for ex-King Manuel's wedding to Princess Augustine Hohenzollern on September 4 at Sigmaringen show the ceremony will be gorgeous.

Eighty royal princes and princesses will attend, including the Prince of Wales, representing King George, and four princesses as bridesmaids.

The Kaiser excuses himself from being present on account of the German army maneuvers. He and other monarchs will be represented by princes.

Col. Degrange Ill In Paris Hospital

Prominent New Orleans Man Is Compelled to Undergo Operation Following Sickness Aboard Ship.

Special Cable to The American.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—Colonel Joseph H. Degrange, of New Orleans, is ill in the American Hospital at Neuilly. Mr. Degrange's illness developed first on board a steamer on his way to Europe early in the summer.

On July 22 he was taken to the hospital for an operation for the removal of the carbuncle on the back of his neck. A second operation became necessary on Tuesday of this week. The operations, while painful, were not dangerous, and the attending physicians say that he will be able to be about within a few days.

Papers Have Right To Refuse Advertising

Court Rules That Objectionable Matter May Be Declined, Despite Previous Contract.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 16.—That newspapers have a right to decline advertising when they deem it objectionable, even if it is submitted to them under a yearly contract, is the effect of a decision handed down today in the District Court here. The case came up when a local department store was sued by a local paper to recover money due under a yearly contract, which the store management had declared void because certain portions of its advertising copy had been rejected by the paper.

Joy Rider Compelled To Pension Victim

In Lieu of Jail Sentence, Speeder Must Pay Girl $30 a Month Until Recovery.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—Instead of sending J. S. McNutt, a convicted joy rider, to prison, Judge Wilbur, of the Superior Court, suspended a five-year sentence over him to-day, on condition that he pay $30 a month until she recovers to Miss Olive Davis, a young woman injured when McNutt's machine was wrecked. Physicians say Miss Davis' injuries are permanent.

The girl, in a plaster cast, testified to-day that McNutt was speeding while intoxicated.

'Pussy Sneak' Routs Staid Old Tangos

Creepy Glide Brings New York Team Applications to Teach New Dance.

ONSET, MASS., Aug. 16.—The "tangoes," "hugs," "trots," "grapevine" and other similar dances have been cast into darkness by the creation introduced this afternoon at the local dancing casino by a New York couple. It is called the "pussy sneak," and is danced with the rubber-soled shoes commonly worn at the seaside.

The "pussy sneak" is a creepy sort of dance, with a few glides, but catchy, and the New York team that "put the stunt on" had several applications tonight to teach it.

SUPREME TEST COMES AS STATE TRAINS GUNS ON FRANK'S CHARACTER

Defendant Will Take the Stand Early in Week to Give His Account of His Movements on Day Mary Phagan Was Killed.

ATTORNEYS SEEKING TO PROVE A COMPLETE ALIBI

Believed That Case Will Stand or Fall on Efforts of Prosecution to Prove Its Charge of Immorality Against the Accused.

BY AN OLD POLICE REPORTER.

The third week of the Frank trial came to an end at noon Saturday.

The defense has not yet concluded its case, but confidently expects to finish within the next day or two.

Its last card, and one of its biggest, will be the defendant's statement. This statement is scheduled for the early part of this week.

It will mark the climax of the defense's case, just as Conley's story marked the climax of the State's.

It became more and more evident as the case progressed during the past week that the defense is pitting Frank squarely against Conley—that it is to be Frank's life or Conley's life for little Mary Phagan's, snuffed out cruelly nearly four months ago in the National Pencil Factory.

Frank's statement on the stand, which the law permits him to make, but not under oath, and which may be accepted by the jury, either in whole or in part, in preference to all the sworn testimony, will be matched against the story the negro told so dramatically and with such frightful emphasis soon after the case got under way.

Into the negro's story, moreover, was injected the question of Frank's general character, particularly in one unmentionable direction, and this the defense will undertake to offset completely and finally.

More than a hundred witnesses have been summoned to testify to Frank's good character, and these include men and women from every walk of life, where it could be shown that such witnesses had come in contact with Frank from time to time in such wise as to be competent judges of his general character.

DALTON'S TESTIMONY IMPEACHED.

Already, the one witness (Dalton) so far introduced by the State to corroborate Conley has been successfully impeached by the defense, and it is likely that others introduced to uphold the negro also will be subjected to impeachment proceedings, if the defense suspects that it may successfully inaugurate the same.

The defense seemingly has realized fully the heavy necessity of breaking down Conley's awful story, not only in direct connection with the murder, but in every phase of it that bears upon the character of the defendant.

As a primary proposition, the advantage in the situation thus set up dwells within the defense.

In the first place, Frank goes to the jury with the presumption of innocence in his favor. The burden is not upon him to make out a case in behalf of himself. It is upon the State to make out a case against him.

Moreover, the only right of appeal attaching to persons indicted for felonies is within the defense. Once the State loses, it is lost forever.

The State must allege and prove the guilt of the defendant "beyond a reasonable doubt," and fight right up to that limit.

If there remains a reasonable doubt of Frank's guilt, after the last word has been said to the jury, Frank, under the law, is entitled to it, and if the trial jury fails to award it, a court of review will remedy the legal wrong thus inflicted upon him.

ALL STATE TESTIMONY SWORN.

The State, moreover, must submit every bit of its evidence, to the last shred or patch, under oath.

The defense, on the contrary, may clear itself upon testimony not one word of which is sworn to.

The State's star witness, Conley, also comes into court a confessed accessory after the fact of the murder, a confessed falsifier in numerous conflicting statements as to his knowledge of and connection with the crime, and accompanied by a well established jail record fearfully and wonderfully made up.

His is a much harder story to hold up than Frank's, viewing the two stories generally and in their broader personal aspects.

Even without Conley, to be sure, the State still has a circumstantial case against Frank that might compel considerable attention and respect, but there are few people who seemingly believe that it alone would be sufficiently strong to convict.

It probably is a realization of the State's tremendous task, involved in the holding together of Conley's story, that has caused the defense to train its every gun squarely upon it, for upon Conley's story will the State be forced to stand or fall eventually.

One of the curious things about the Frank case is the way the question of his general character got into the pleadings.

Theoretically, the defense alone may put the defendant's character in issue—it being contemplated by the law that no man shall be required, without his own consent, to answer more than one charge at one and the same time.

And so far as legal strategy and astuteness is concerned, the State ouegenera lthe defense in the matter of getting Frank's character before the jury.

Had Conley, the State's star witness, ben a man, even a negro, of respectability and approximately good previous record, the necessity of attaching to Frank the charge of utter depravity might not have seemed so pressing. But Frank's previous good record seemed so well established, and his standing generally was thought to be so high, that it contrasted rather painfully with the record of the main witness of all others (Conley) set up for the defndant's undoing.

The State doubtless knew that the unspeakable portion of Conley's evidence was primarily inadmissible, but it also knew that the defense would be taking rather a long chance to move its rejection when tendered.

In that event, a sinister and certainly dangerous impression would have been left upon the mind of the jury.

So the State deliberately drew out of Conley the unmentionable charge, which, in addition to the murder charge, undoubtedly made absolutely necessary the injection of Frank's character in issue.

The defense, in not objecting to the admission of the evidence last cited when it was first offered, may have been moved by the idea that it would, in the cross-examination of Conley, so break him down that it still might save itself the necessity of pleading Frank's good character—that it would even be able to make the frightful charge of perversion act as a boomerang on Conley!

Defense Objects too Late.

Seemingly, that idea, if it ever existed, was dissipated as the Conley cross-examination proceeded, however, for eventually the defense DID move to strike out the evidence, but at that time it was too late.

Having walked into the trap set by the State, if it indeed was a trap, the defense could not very well extricate itself save by pleading Frank's complete good character, and thus in a sweeping way dispose of the specific charge lodged against Frank by Conley, in addition to the murder charge.

Once committed to the necessity of establishing Frank's good character, however, the defense went at it in no half-hearted way.

It summoned indiscriminately every employee of the National Pencil Factory, male and female, old and new, and with unanimous voice they testified willingly and thoroughly that the defendant's general character is good.

In addition to these witnesses, business men, former college professors and classmates, and dozens of others fell into line with the same line of evidence.

The State now stands, therefore, where it must close up the gap between its primary allegation, dependent alone upon Conley's word so far, and the absolute proof of his sinister story.

If the State in rebuttal is able to prove conclusively that Frank is the thing Conley has labeled him, the State's case will go to the jury dangerously formidable.

If it fails to substantiate and corroborate Conley, it will go to the jury greatly weakened.

To overcome the fine showing as to Frank's good character made by the defense the State must bring forth witnesses in rebuttal that can not be impeached.

The impression throughout Atlanta is that to fail in the establishment and corroboration of Conley's story by witnesses of integrity and standing possible is one reason why a lot of people are saying that it is impossible. Conley may have manufactured it out of the whole cloth.

If it is a lie, it is a lie too devilishly cunning for a negro of Conley's limited mentality to conjure or carry in his own mind in such remarkable detail, these people hold. If the negro were only less sure of everything, if he had wabbled dangerously under the terrific grilling administered by Luther Z. Rosser, if he had broken down or contradicted himself in any essential detail once he got to the witness stand, it now would be an easier thing for many people, fair-minded enough, too, to believe the negro's tale a mass of lies from start to finish!

And the danger to the defense here is that if Conley's story sticks in the minds of the jury, even in fractional part, it probably just as well stick in its entirety, so far as the hope of acquittal upon this trial is concerned.

In other words, many people are arguing to themselves that the negro, no matter how hard he tried and no matter how generously he was coached, still neevr could have framed up a story like the one he told, unless there was somewhere in it some foundation in fact.

And if there remains the impression of even a little foundation in fact, the defense is damaged beyond repair.

And so it gets back to where it started, and to where it will end—it is Conley pitted against Frank!

The State, with the burden of proof to carry, appears to have considerably more of an uphill fight on its hands than the deefnse has, and yet the very nature of both fights—uncompromising, and neither asking nor giving quarter—makes it something of a toss-up, really, as to which actually, and as a matter of fact, has the harder task to perform.

Undoubtedly, the defense expects to profit much through its insistence that the time element, as set up in Conley's story, constitutes a most vital and compelling factor in determining the truth or falsity of the entire story.

Rely on State Witnesses.

It is rather odd, too, that the defense should be relying upon the State's witnesses in this matter quite as much as upon its own. It will seek to use generously the State's witnesses to the State's embarrassment—through the discrediting of Conley's story—in several different directions.

The deefnse is seeking to show how utterly absurd Conley's story is from Frank's point of view, by setting up these incompatible things:

That Mary Phagan (Conley's testimony) reached the pencil factory sufficiently well in advance of Monteen Stover (Conley's testimony) to go up to Frank's office, get her pay, be lured to a room in the rear and killed, notwithstanding the fact that Miss Stover (Conley's and Miss Stover's testimony) reached the factory at 12:05. And this despite the fact that Mary Phagan could not have been in the factory before 12:12, in any event, as shown by Mrs. Coleman (Mary's mother), George Epps, a motorman, and a conductor.

To get around this state of things, set up for the most part by the State's own witnesses, the State already has suggested, by a line of examination probably to be amplified, that the car upon which Mary Phagan came into town on Saturday, April 26, was running AHEAD of scheduled time, and that the litle girl did, as a matter of fact, reach the factory before 12:12, and that the clock in the factory, by which both Miss Stover and Conley testified as to the time, was running SLOW on the day of the crime.

In other words, to meet its own witnesses' statements, the State will move backward the time of the street car and move forward the time of the office clock!

If the State can do that, which looks like a big job, it will eliminate the dangerous time element in one direction, at least; but if it can not do that, it will find itself in a most trying position.

And whether it now can get away from its own established time element is one of the very prettiest problems involved in the entire case thus far!

Again, the defense will insist that the time element cuts in another direction most favorably in Frank's behalf, when it will show by Conley's evidence that the disposing of Mary Phagan's body began at 12:56, but that Frank was seen at the corner of Alabama and Whitehall streets at 1:10, waiting for a car. The latter fact is testified to by Miss Helen Curran positively, and she is unimpeachable.

The defense contends that the body of Mary Phagan could not have been disposed of, and the things done that Conley alleges were done, within the fourteen minutes of time thus allowed, between the beginning of the work, according to Conley, and the time of Frank's presence two blocks and a half away.

Conley would have been obliged to dispose of the body in the remarkable way he says he did, have written the notes, remained in the wardrobe eight minutes or more, all within the fourteen minutes.

According to the State's own witnesses, Conley was in the wardrobe eight minutes and used six minutes framing the notes. This would have consumed the entire fourteen minutes, without the dead girl's body ever having been touched.

It is admitted among lawyers generally that there is no defense so completely effective as a sustained alibi—which means that the crime alleged was committed in the absence and without the knowledge of the alleged principal to it, or, more properly stated, perhaps, that the crime could not have been committed by the defendant because it would have been a physical impossibility for him to have effected it, in the circumstances of it.

The past week, of course, was the defense's day in court, and it is but fair to say that it made good use of it.

Challenge to State.

It has frankly and aggressively urged Frank's character as a vital fact in his favor, and it thereby challenged the State to do its very worst by way of breaking that character down, if it can.

This attitude upon the part of the defense undoubtedly has had a steadying effect upon the public, too, for it seems at least to have suspended judgment pending the State's rebuttal.

In addition to its insistence upon Frank's good character, the defense unquestionably has given the State serious concern in the way it has brought forward the time element, and that in two separate and distinct directions.

If it successfully maintains either one of its time theories, it will have greatly discredited Conley's story. If it successfully maintains both theories, it will have about discredited the Conley story to the point of complete collapse.

As it was out of order to conclude at the end of the second week of the Frank trial, however, that the State had made out a case that could not be broken down, so it now is out of order to conclude that the defense has broken down the State.

The State for one thing does not appear to be particularly alarmed, either by the injection of Frank's character or by the turning of the time element against the Conley story.

The State, it must be remembered, has not yet entered or disclosed its rebuttal, either of the character evidence or the undermining of its own witnesses as to the time elements stated.

State Seems Confident.

It is perfectly confident of its ability to show that Frank's character is not good, despite the opinions of his friends, business associates and acquaintances; and it will insist, indeed, that as in other depraved characters of the sort it claims Frank to be, his business acquaintances, his relatives and his social intimates would be the very last people of all to discover the truth concerning him.

The State, in seeking to prove Frank a dissolute character, may be forced to the summoning of dissolute characters, with whom he is alleged to have been associated in degrading practices, in order to prove its contention.

Thus witnesses brought out by the State to establish Frank's depravity are apt to be easier marks for impeachment proceedings than witnesses of the ordinary sort, and to that extent the breaking down of Frank's character is pregnant with difficulty.

Nevertheless, the State proposes to establish the fact of Frank's degeneracy by witnesses of sufficient credibility, particularly in the nature of the charge sought to be proved, to get by at least in sufficient numbers to overwhelm the defendant.

If the State can put up even one or two witnesses that can weather the gale of the defense's rights of impeachment, it will have put Frank in a most unenviable position before the jury. If, therefore, it puts up 50 witnesses, and 48 of them get knocked out, there still will remain the two that stood the test!

Here, then, is another pretty problem to be thrashed out: Can the State, in sustaining a charge of degeneracy against Frank, bring forth witnesses to prove it absolutely, and at the same time not bring forth witnesses so much a party to Frank's offense that they will run serious risks in testifying themselves?

A witness who is willing to swear that he saw Frank do thus and so, or was a party to Frank's doing thus and so, if the thus and so is particularly reprehensible, is apt to get in pretty thin ice himself, if he isn't very careful!

The State says it can and will rebut Frank's good character. If it does, Frank is in unutterably bad shape; but if it doesn't, Frank's cause must be helped tremendously.

Girl on Stand Shouts She Would Die for Leo Frank

Employee of Pencil Factory Furnishes Dramatic Incident of Day—Dressing Room Evidence Is Brought Out.

More than one hundred witnesses had been called to testify in defense of Leo M. Frank's character when the third week of the factory superintendent's trial concluded shortly after 1 o'clock Saturday.

Character witnesses occupied most of the time during the four hours of Saturday's session. They displayed a remarkable loyalty to their employer, who is being tried on the charge of being the murderer of little Mary Phagan. Only one of the number, Miss Irene Jackson, gave testimoney in any way prejudicial to the case of Frank.

The character testimony, the tale of the finding of Mary Phagan's envelope and other so-called clews on the first floor of the factory by W. D. McWorth, Pinkerton operative, and the return of Mrs. Rae Frank, mother of the defendant, formed the important features of the day.

Girl Furnishes Incident.

A spectacular incident, which would have been even more amusing than it proved had it not been for the evident sincerity and profound earnestness of the witness, came in the testimony of Miss Sarah Barnes, one of the pencil factory employees.

"I'd die for Mr. Frank if they'd let me!" she exclaimed almost the instant she had composed herself in the witness chair. Attorney Arnold had only time to ask her the formal question: "Do you know Leo M. Frank, the defendant in this case?" before she launched into a eulogistic description of the young factory superintendent that left her breathless at the end of five minutes.

The attorney sought to interject another of the formal questions prescribed by law, but by the time she had caught her breath and was engaged in telling her willingness to lay down her life, if need be, to prove the guillessness of Frank.

Attorney Arnold could not stop her. The court could not dam the flood of words. She had a mind to speak and she was determined to speak without check and without interruption.

"I know Frank couldn't have committed such a terrible deed," she cried, accompanying her declaration with an emphatic brandishing of her folded fan. "I have known him ever since I have been in the pencil factory. He has always been kind to all of the employees and to the girls in particular. He never has done any of these things that have been told about him. He has always been a gentleman.

Willing to Die for Him.

"I've had to fight for him, almost, a number of times since these awful charges have been made against him. I'm willing to fight for him again. I am willing to die in his place."

At this point she turned toward the jury and said:

"You can give me any sort of a death you want. I know he is an innocent man. I just wish that I could make everyone believe in his innocence."

Attorney Arnold succeeded in the brief space of one of the moments when she paused for a fresh start to ask the remainder of the questions he desired, and then gave her to Solicitor Dorsey.

Dorsey met with the same trouble. He tried to get her to say with whom she had talked about the testimony to which she was to swear. Disregarding his question as though it never had been asked, she continued in her encomiums of Frank until the courtroom spectators were convulsed with laughter and the Solicitor filed with disgust at his inability to get the sort of answer he wanted from the girl.

Miss Irene Jackson, daughter of County Policeman A. W. Jackson, was called by the defense as a character witness, but gave testimony on her cross-examination in regard to conduct by Franak which the State has construed as highly improper.

Looked in Dressing Room.

Miss Jackson said that so far as she knew the character of Frank was good and that she never had known him to attempt any liberties with the factory girls. To the Solicitor she admitted, however, that she three times had been in the girls' dressing room when Frank had pushed open the door and looked in.

Once Emmeline Mayfield had been in the room with her, she said; once Mamie Kitchen and once her own sister. Her sister had threatentod to quit on this last occasion, she testified, but had been persuaded against it.

She said that Frank merely pushed the door open, looked in, one one occasion smiled toward Miss Kitchen, and then turned around and walked away. She testified that the girls never were any further in a condition of undress than lacking their overskirt.

Solicitor Dorsey inquired of her in regard to a reported remark of N. V. Darley, general manager, that "if the girls stay with us through this, they will not lose by it." She said she had overheard Darley say this.

Many Employees Called.

The following pencil company employees were called as character witnesses during the day:

Misses Mollie Blair, Ethel Stewart, Sarah Barnes, Corinthia Hall, Ina Hayes, Eula May Flowers, Elma Hayes, Minnie Foster, Obie Dickerson, Gussie Wallace, Annie Osman, Bessie Thrailkill, Allie Denham, Rebecca Carson, Maude Wright, Irene Jackson, and Mesdames Emma Freeman and Ella Thomas.

LEO FRANK IS READY TO REVEAL HIS STORY

Accused Superintendent to Appeal to Reason of the Men Who Will Decide His Fate

COUNSEL FOR DEFENSE DECLARE HE ALONE HAS PREPARED STATEMENT

Defendant Will in No Way Try to Stir Emotion of Jurors, But Will Simply Outline His Contention as to Tragedy.

Leo M. Frank's statement to the jury, delayed from last week by the swarm of character witnesses brought in at the last moment, is the main factor of interest remaining in the trial of the National Pencil Factory superintendent before the rebuttal is taken up by the two attorneys representing the State.

What this statement will be the defendant's lawyers themselves profess not to know. They have had little or no part in framing it, they say. All they know is that he proposes to make one, and that he has been preparing it piecemeal as the trial has progressed and one point after another has arisen.

Whether it will be a formal statement read verbatim, no one knows except the prisoner and possibly his immediate relatives.

If the lawyers know they are keeping it darkly a secret. They believe, they have ventured to say, that it will be more or less informal and that it will be in the nature of an address to the jury and the court based upon the notes that Frank has made from time to time during the trial.

Appeal To Reason.

That there will be little appeal to the emotions of the jurors is practically a foregone conclusion. It is the purpose of Frank, it is understood, to appeal directly to the reason and common sense of the twelve men—to outline to them as he has outlined to his own attorneys the weak points or improbabilities in the negro Conley's story.

As well as this, it is his intention to picture to them his every movement during the entire day and to represent the physical impossibility of his having committed the crime and disposed of the body as Conley describes, if his alibi as set up by a score of witnesses is accepted by the jury.

The statement will embrace much to which he testified at the Coroner's inquest. But there will be much more. He will go into some things on which his own lawyers have not touched. The statement practically is certain to form a most remarkable and most important portion of the record of the trial's proceedings.

What promised to provide a sensation during the presentation of the defendant's case may collapse into nothing. This is W. H. Mincey and his startling declaration that he saw Jim Conley on the afternoon of the murder, and that Jim bragged to him that he had killed a girl that afternoon and didn't want to kill anyone else.

Appear to Doubt Mincey.

The attorneys for the defense have not been willing to say whether or not they would call Mincey. They have appeared to entertain some doubts of Mincey's credibility. Reuben Arnold said Saturday that he was not prepared to say that he would or would not call Mincey.

If Mincey's story could be corroborated it would furnish a most effective weapon in winning the battle for Frank's life. Granting its truthfulness, it is the most definite and direct evidence of the entire case, embracing as it does a virtual confession of murder on the part of the negro.

Mincey said he met Conley at Electric avenue and Carter street Saturday afternoon, April 26. Conley was partially intoxicated and becoming angered at Mincey's insistence that he take out an insurance policy threatened the agent and boasted of killing a girl shortly before, according to the affidavit made by Mincey.

If Mincey goes on the stand his testimony will become the target for some of the State's strongest rebuttal. That and the character of Frank will divide the attention of the Solicitor. He will not bother about much else. He is content to let Conley's story, as bolstered and strengthened by the testimony of detectives and other witnesses, stand as a sufficient rebuttal for practically all of the evidence that the defense has brought out in favor of Frank. The Solicitor believes that when the arguments go before the jury the members will be willing to accept the story of the negro as against that of Frank.

After Frank's Character.

Dorsey, however, has been unceasing in his efforts to wreck Frank's character. He has branded him as a degenerate and a criminal of the worst type. The introduction of character witnesses by the defense has given him a new opening, and he proposes to take every advantage of it. His attitude is shown in a colloquy between himself and Judge Roan.

"How far do you intend to go in that line of testimony?" inquired the judge.

"Just exactly as far as your honor will let me," Dorsey replied.

Judge Roan remonstrated that the Solicitor General should not seek to introduce evidence that he knew was illegal. The Solicitor smiled.

Dorsey has about twenty witnesses he will use in an effort to destroy all of the favorable impression created by the 100 character witnesses who have testified for Frank so far in the trial. From some of them he has promised to produce testimony of the most sensational sort.

One young girl, Dewey Hewell, not yet out of her teens, was brought all the way from Cincinnati last Friday for the express purpose of testifying against the young factory superintendent.

American Girl Tells Of 'Walloping' Prince

"I Kicked Radziwill Out of His Auto for Kissing My Hand too Rapturously," She Says.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Miss Elizabeth Frewen, of Philadelphia, arrived from London to-day on the Oceanic with a Pekinese named Bo Sing, a gift from Prince Albert Radziwill, who married Miss Dorothy Deacon, a Boston society girl, some years ago.

"Just because I tell you the Prince gave me Bo Sing," said Miss Frewen, "don't think he is a friend of mine. Just before I left London I walloped him on the jaw and kicked him out of his automobile for kissing my hand too rapturously."

Miss Frewen is six feet tall. She was met at the pier by Joseph Daley, of Boston, to whom she is to be married next month.

Father Sells Girl at Auction in Detroit

Authorities Take Steps to Have Marriage of Syrian Child to Turk Annulled.

DETROIT, MICH., Aug. 16.—The marriage license department of the County Clerk's office has taken steps to nullify an auction sale of Marie Aman, a Syrian girl, only 15 years old. Her father made the sale. There were half a dozen bidders.

The girl had been in the country only seven weeks, and was brought here by her father expressly to be sold. A Turk, Mehammed Haj Seleem, was the successful bidder.

The bargain was sealed immediately by the reading of an Oriental marriage service. The girl had a sweetheart who could not bid high enough to win her.

Triplets in Home Where 6 Twins Live

President Wilson Is Honored Three Times in the Naming of the Babies.

LAONIA, WIS., Aug. 16.—Three pairs of twins and a set of triplets is the record that Mrs. Joseph Checota, of this town, boasts. The triplets will be named Woodrow, Wilson and W. W. Joseph, in honor of the President.

The father believes this is a record that will stand for a long time to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Checota have been married six years and in that time have had nine children. All but one are living.

Custom Officers Seize Davis Trophy

International Tennis Cup, Just Won by America Is Held Up for Duty.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The Davis cup, international tennis trophy, recently won in England by the American team, was seized by customs officials when it reached here to-day on the liner Mauretania, but Collector of the Port Mitchell intimated tonight that the prize would probably be released within a short time.

The basis of the seizure was the officials claim that although the trophy was originally American property, it had been abroad so long that the payment of duty might be necessary.

Woman Not Man's Equal, Says Prelate

Archbishop Says He Wouldn't Dare Say Suffrage Agitation Is Against Church Rules.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 16.—"I do not believe the Creator intended the position of woman in the world should be the same as that of man," said Archbishop Sebastian G. Messmer of this city, in an address to the Catholic Press Association to-day.

"But I would not dare make the positive statement that agitation for woman suffrage is against the rules of the church. The church has not taken any definite stand and until it does each individual has a right to think, talk and act as he sees fit."

Weds Model; Loses Home; Goes to Work

'I Should Worry,' Remarks Rich Retired Merchant's Son When Disowned.

WORCESTER, MASS., Aug. 16.—Because William A. Lyttle, Jr., son of Colonel W. A. Lyttle, a wealthy retired merchant and erstwhile member of the Governor's Council, eloped with Miss Thyra Linea Johnson, a 19-year-old artist's model of this city, to Putnam, Conn., he has been disowned by his father.

Colonel Lyttle has ordered his son to give the girl up. Disregarding that mandate, young Lyttle brought matters to a crisis by quietly slipping out of town a few days ago with his sweeaheart and having the matrimonial knot tied.

"I should worry," said young Lyttle when he was told of his father's decision, and then he promptly started with his bride to Detroit, where he will learn the automobile business.

HOMESTEADER IS BLOWN FROM HIS BED BY STORM

PIERRE, S. DAK., Aug. 16.—Otto Everhardt, a young bachelor homesteader, arrived at the home of a neighbor dressed only in a two-foot piece of blanket, which he said was all that remained of his household property as a result of the storm which swept this section. Everhardt said that the tornado struck his shack while he was in bed, carried away the shanty and bed and left him uninjured. Other homesteaders suffered heavy losses, reports indicate.

Grape Juice vs. Milk

Secretary Bryan Does Not Have Undivided Support of Cabinet in Choice of Beverage.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Grape juice as a Cabinet beverage has gone into eclipse, in spite of the prominence given to it by Ciceronian eloquence as being the only nectar of the gods.

A canvass of the preferences of other members of the Cabinet beside that of Mr. Bryan, whose favorite beverage is well known, disclosed the fact that plain old milk, sweet and buttermilk, is ahead in the race. President Wilson prefers orange juice to that of the luscious grape.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels is one of the sweet milk champions and has a fellow champion in Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo leans toward buttermilk.

Attorney General McReynolds and Secretary of War Garrison are said to be ardent milk advocates.

Secretary of Agriculture David Houston is one of the two members that find enjoyment in pure unfermented grape juice.

Secretary of the Interior Lane prefers hot tea, while Secretary of Commerce Redfield likes his tea cold.

Charges Sister Stole Her Husband's Love

California Woman Names Beautiful Relative In Her Plea for a Divorce.

SUSANVILLE, CAL., Aug. 16.—Charging that her younger and prettier sister had stolen her husband's love, Mrs. Celia Rundquist Schaefer asked Judge Monroe for a divorce from Marin Schaefer, a fruit grower and rancher. Miss Rose Rundquist, sister of the plaintiff, was named as co-respondent.

Mrs. Schaefer testified that her sister admitted that her husband was a "grand man," and that he showered attentions upon the sister and admitted making love to her. The plaintiff also claimed that she had to support both for two years.

Judge Monroe held that there was insufficient corroborating evidence and instructed the applicant for divorce to get more witnesses.

AUTO AS MATADOR SAVES FARMER FROM MAD BULL

ELGIN, ILL., Aug. 16.—Matadors may be succeeded by automobiles as bullfighters. This was proven when Peter Green, a farmer, 60 years old, of Huntley, was being gored by a bull in one of his pastures. His screams attracted an automobile party of three men, who were in the road. They witnessed the attack for a moment, then the driver of the big touring car made a dash into the pasture and after the bull.

The horn was tooted and tooted, and the bull finally was driven away from the helpless farmer. Three of Green's ribs were broken, but he will recover.

Confusion in Study Of Grammar Dispelled

Committee's Report on Standardizing Nomenclature Makes Good Impression.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 16.—Standardization of grammatical nomenclature, which will do away with the confusion in the study of English, as well as other languages, in American schools, has been effected by a committee of fifteen, of which Professor Hills, of Colorado College, was a member.

The committee made a report to the National Education Association in convention at Salt Lake City and its adoption without amendment virtually insures the following of the committee's recommendations in all schools and colleges.

According to Professor Hills, it was found that in the sentence "John is good," the word "good" was called by nine different names in 25 grammars; the word "John" in "This is John," was called by nineteen terms, and in "We made John president," the word "president" was given eighteen different names in the textbooks examined.

GIRLS BARE SECRETS OF FLIGHT WITH DIGGS AND CAMINETTI

Blushing and With Downcast Eyes They Tell Jury Pitiful Story of Their Downfall

FEAR OF EXPOSURE OF THEIR RELATIONS WITH MEN LED TO ELOPEMENT

Marsha Warrington Declares Both She and Lola Norris Had Promises of Marriage When They Embarked on Trip---Firm Under Cross-Fire.

MARSHA WARRINGTON and Maury T. Diggs, whom she accuses on a white slavery charge, as they appeared in court. Below is Lola Norris, the other girl witness in noted case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—The case of Maury I. Diggs, formerly State Architect of California, charged before the United States Court under the Mann white slavery act because he took pretty, dainty Marsha Warrington, of Sacramento, to Reno, Nev., leaving behind a beautiful wife and a little daughter, has passed the stage of revelation and disclosure and now has come to the technicalities of defense.

It will be recalled that on March 10 last the tea tables of the West were rattled by the tale that Diggs had run away with Miss Warrington, daughter of a general agent of the Santa Fe, and that F. Drew Caminetti, son of the Commissioner General of Immigration of the United States, had fled from his wife's children at the same time, taking with him Miss Lola Norris, the prettiest girl in the State Library, daughter of one of the oldest and most respected families in the Capital of the State.

Caught in a bungalow at Reno, the United States authorities took over the prosecution.

Becomes National Incident.

Then came the effort at Washington to postpone and suppress that prosecution, with the explosion and resignation of United State District Attorney John L. McNab, the forcing of Cabinet consideration and the administrative fake of sustaining Attorney General McReynolds in theory and rebuking him in fact and procedure. An escapade of love and champagne had been dignified into an event of national importance.

After a struggle that exhausted the entire panel and required a special venire, a jury was sworn, and on Tuesday of this week came the long-expected sacrifice—the appearance of Miss Marsha Warrington before her shearers.

She appeared, a pretty, plump, frightened little thing, 20 years of age, who kept her eyes in her lap and slowly and painfully told, detail on detail, of her meeting with Diggs of the making up of a joy-hunting party of four with Miss Norris and Caminetti; of her yielding to her lover's importunities in his office; of trips that extended near and far, joy riding to destruction.

Then she told of how Diggs and Caminetti had, playing upon their fears of arrest and exposure, induced and coerced her and Miss Norris to fly with them to Nevada. There was no relation, however intimate, no situation, however delicate, that the pretty miss was not forced to disclose.

Terrified Into Trips.

Next came Miss Norris, tall, willowy and prepossessing, and she, too, clearly, distinctly, compellingly, told how she had loved not wisely and how she and Miss Warrington had been cajoled, persuaded and terrified into accompanying Diggs and Caminetti to Reno, where her own downfall was completed.

There has been something of corroboration of the love tale and the completion of a hard case under the letter of the Mann law, which punishes those who take women from one State to another for the purpose of making them mistresses and concubines.

And now the defense has stated its case. It does not intend to deny the stories of the two girls, but will rest its hopes on the theory that there was "no persuasion" to leave California, or "intent" to force the young women into concubinage in Nevada; but that all fled Sacrameto in the same fear of exposure of their liaison and arrest and disgrace following the exposure.

Both Miss Warrington and Miss Norris had to submit to the most searching questions during their appearance on the witness stand. The two girls occupied the stand from Tuesday to Friday. The transcript of their testimony virtually tells the complete story of the escapade that led to the indictment of Diggs and Caminetti and made the flight to Reno eventually result in a crisis in the Cabinet of President Wilson. On it the Government proposes to convict the two defendants.

Love for Wife Forgotten.

"How often during the two weeks prior to your departure to Reno did Mr. Diggs discuss with you his relations with his wife?" was one of the first questions asked Miss Warrington by Special Prosecutor Roche.

"Several times," replied Miss Warrington, giving the answer in such low voice that Judge VanFleet had to tell her to speak up louder.

Q. Did he say anything concerning himself and yourself in the future?—A. Yes.

Q. How often did he refer to his regard for you?—A. He spoke of it very often and said that he cared more for me than he did for his wife.

Q. Did you believe what he said?—A. I did.

Q. Did Diggs demonstrate his affection—I mean did he ever kiss you?—A. Yes, he did.

Q. Did he discuss marriage with you?—A. He did.

Q. What did he say about marriage?—A. He said he would divorce his wife and marry me.

Q. How often did he discuss marriage with you?—A. I don't know.

Q. More than once?—A. Yes.

Best to Leave City.

Q. Now, tell the jury what the defendant said that resulted in your deciding to leave Sacramento.—A. Well, he said his father was coming up from Berkeley to prosecute us; that there was talk about us all over town; that it was best for all of us to leave the city, and that it was the advice of his attorney. He said he had paid an attorney large sums for his advice on the situation.

Talks of Reform School.

Q. Now go on and state what you said and what the others said, starting with the first discussion.—A. Well, Mr. Diggs said we would be sent to the reform school; that there was going to be something published in the papers; that we would be tried in the juvenile court and there was a warrant out for our arrest, and if we did not go we would be put through the third degree.

Q. By whom?—A. He didn't say. The policeman, I suppose.

Q. What did Caminetti say?—A. He didn't say much. He just agreed.

Q. What did you and Lola Norris say?—A. We said we couldn't go.

Q. What part of the time of your meetings was taken up with these discussions?—A. Most all of the time.

Q. Did you agree to leave for Reno before Saturday, March 9?—A. No.

Q. Did Miss Norris?—A. No.

Q. Did you make any statement as to the effect of your leaving on your father or mother?—A. I said I couldn't go and leave my father; it would simply kill him. He said it would all come out in the papers anyway, and I might as well go.

Would Kill Her Mother.

Q. What did Miss Norris say about her mother?—A. She said it would kill her if she left.

Q. Did the men say anything about that?—A. "Diggs said her mother would get over it.

Q. How soon did they say you should get away?—A. Right away.

Q. Did they say that each time you discussed going?—A. Yes; they said we had to go immediately every time.

Q. What time did you meet Diggs and Caminetti at the Saddle Rock restaurant the evening you left for Reno?—A. About 8:30 o'clock.

Q. Did Diggs say anything about marrying you there?—A. He said he would get a divorce from his wife and marry me.

Q. Did he say anything about any action his wife might take?—A. Regarding a divorce, do you mean? He didn't say she would get a divorce.

Q. Did Diggs say what Caminetti would do?—A. He said Mr. Caminetti was going to get a divorce from his wife and marry Miss Norris.

Q. Who did the talking?—A. Mr. Diggs. He said we might go to Salt Lake City, Reno or Los Angeles. He finally decided Reno.

Q. Was anything said about what would happen if you didn't go?—A. He said we had to go; that we couldn't back out now.

Q. Did you protest?—A. We said we would stay there and take our chances, and he repeated it was too late to back out then.

Q. What was said about tickets?—A. First we talked about buying them ourselves. Mr. Caminetti said it would be better to have the girls buy them. Finally Diggs said he would get them.

Q. Was any more money given to anybody by one of the four?—A. Mr. Caminetti gave Miss Norris some money.

Q. How much?—A. I don't know.

Girl Kept Money.

Q. To buy tickets with? What did he say when he gave her the money?—A. He told her to keep it.

Q. How long after Caminetti left did you stay in the restaurant?—A. About an hour.

Q. What did you talk about?—A. About Mr. Caminetti and whether he would get the money, and our destination.

Q. How were the berths occupied?—A. Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti had the upper and Mr. Diggs and myself had the lower berth.

Q. What baggage did the party have?—A. Mr. Diggs had a suitcase and I had a grip.

Q. Was the baggage checked?—A. No.

Q. Did you see the tickets?—A. I saw Mr. Diggs give them to the conductor.

Q. Where did you go from the restaurant?—A. The depot.

Q. Did you wait in the depot for Caminetti?—A. No; he was to return to the restaurant. There was some talk about going on an earlier train. We waited in a little street car waiting room near the depot. Miss Norris stayed in there when the train came in. I walked out with Mr. Diggs and told him to go and I would stay there. He said, "No," that he thought too much of me to have me stay there. The train finally left.

Caminetti Gets Money.

Q. Then Mr. Diggs went to the waiting room and telephoned?—A. Yes, to Mr. Caminetti, I think.

Q. Then what did you do?—A. We returned to the Saddle Rock and waited half an hour for Mr. Caminetti. When he came, he said he had the money and would go on the next train.

Q. Then you did what?—A. We went to the depot.

Q. What was said about tickets?—A. Mr. Diggs said to wait while he got the tickets.

Q. Whom did you wait with?—A. With Lola Norris and Mr. Caminetti.

Q. Then what?—A. When the train came, we got on.

Q. What kind of a car did you get in?—A. A Pullman sleeper.

Q. What part did you go into first?—A. We stood in the car while Mr. Diggs got a drawing room.

Q. Who paid for the drawing room?—A. Mr. Diggs.

Q. Who ordered the porter to make up the berths?—A. Mr. Diggs.

Q. Did the four of you enter the room together?—A. Yes.

Q. How many beds were there in the drawing room?—A. Two berths and the little side bed.

Q. Did you go to bed?—A. Yes.

Q. Right away?—A. Yes.

Tried to Rent House.

Q. Miss Warrington, you recall do you, going to the Riverside Hotel on the 10th day of March, 1913?—A. I do.

Q. Was that after or before the four of you had your lunch at the cafe?—A. After.

Q. Upon leaving the cafe in Reno, just state to what place the two men went, that is, Mr. Caminetti and Mr. Diggs?—A. They said we could go to the hotel and wait for them and they would try to rent a house.

Q. During the time that you were in Reno with Mr. Diggs and Mr. Caminetti and Miss Norris, were any further statements made by Mr. Diggs as to what he intended to do so far as you were concerned?—A. I don't understand.

Q. Well, I mean so far as marriage was concerned?—A. Yes.

Q. What, if anything, did he say?—A. He said he would get a divorce from his wife and marry me.

Q. And what, if anything, did Mr. Caminetti say in your presence to Miss Norris regarding that subject?—A. He said the same thing.

Q. What room in that bungalow was occupied by you?—A. The front room.

Q. Who else occupied that room with you?—A. Mr. Diggs.

Q. Who occupied the rear room, that is, the north bedroom?—A. Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti.

Miss Warrington was subjected to a gruelling cross-examination by Nat Coghlan, counsel for Diggs and Caminetti.

Replying to his questions, Miss Warrington explained she was working for her father, general agent of the Santa Fe Railroad at Sacramento, as a stenographer at the time she went to Reno.

"Under what circumstances did you meet Mr. Diggs?" she was asked.

"He was introduced to me by a friend of mine, Mr. Monte Austin," was the girl's reply.

Q. Were you not introduced to Mr. Diggs as Miss Williamson?—A. I could not say?

Q. Did Mr. Austin give you the name of Mr. Diggs?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you at that time know who Mr. Diggs was?—A. I did not.

Q. You did not know whether he was a married or a single man?—A. Mr. Austin told me that he was not living with his wife at that time.

Pair Met Frequently.

Q. When was it that you met Mr. Diggs the next time?—A. The last of October.

Q. Did you meet him frequently after the second time?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember visiting Mr. Diggs and Mr. Caminetti in the city of San Francisco and going to the Grand Hotel during the month of ary, 1913, I will ask you if you, in company with Mr. Caminetti and Mr. Diggs and Miss Norris, did not go in an automobile from San Francisco to San Jose?—A. Yes.

Q. You stopped, did you not, at the New Montgomery Hotel, at San Jose?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember, Miss Warrington, going to Stockton upon a certain Sunday in January, 1913, with Mr. Diggs?—A. Yes.

Q. Didn't you go to the Old Heidelberg there and hire a cottage for the afternoon?—A. I don't remember.

M. Coghlan—I will ask you if you do not remember going to Jackson with Mr. Diggs and Miss Norris in the auto of Mr. Diggs upon election night for the purpose of getting Mr. Caminetti—that is to say, election night in November, 1912?—A. Yes, I remember.

Q. Where did you stop at Jackson that night?—A. We didn't stay there. We came right back.

Q. During that trip did you and the other three members of that party drink any intoxicating liquors?—A. Yes, a little.

Q. Is it not a matter of fact that you arrived home on that night about 3 o'clock—I mean the next morning, on the morning of November 4, I believe it was or, at any rate, the morning after election—and that you had been drinking considerably upon the trip?—A. I do not remember what time we returned home; I do not think it was so late as that.

Wanted to Leave Town.

Q. Is it not a matter of fact that you wanted to leave Sacramento by reason of the fact of your condition?—A. No.

Q. And you were frightened at that time, were you?—A. Yes.

Q. Afraid that you might be arrested? Is that correct?—A. That is what Mr. Diggs said, that we were to be arrested the next day.

Q. I am asking you now if you were afraid or were not afraid you would be arrested.—A. Certainly.

Miss Lola Norris made an even better witness for the Government than Miss Warrington, although much of her testimony was simply in corroboration of the testimony of her chum.

"How old are you?" she was asked by Prosecutor Roche upon taking the stand.

"I was 20 the 3d of last August," she replied.

Q. Do you know Maury I. Diggs?—A. Yes.

Q. From when does your acquaintance with him date?—A. Since about the latter part of October, 1912.

Q. At that time where were you employed?—A. In the State Library, Sacramento.

Q. You are acquainted with Drew Caminetti?—A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been acquainted with him?—A. A little over a year.

Knew He Was Married.

Q. Did you know he was a married man?—A. I did.

Q. And did you know Mr. Diggs was a married man?—A. Yes.

Q. Now, Miss Norris, you remember the trip you took to Reno with Mr. Caminetti and Miss Warrington and Mr. Diggs. How many times were you in the habit of meeting together before that time?—A. Three or four times each week.

Q. Did Diggs say anything about his relations with his wife during these meetings?—A. Yes; he said he was not happy with his wife.

Q. How often did he say this?—A. A number of times.

Q. And did Mr. Caminetti say anything about his relations with his wife?—A. Yes.

Q. What did he say?—A. He told me he was not living happily with her.

Q. Did Diggs ever tell you that his relations with his wife were about to be served? What, if anything, did he say upon this subject?—A. Well, I remember on one occasion that I received a telephone message saying that he and Mrs. Diggs had agreed to separate and that she was to apply for a divorce in a few days.

Promised to Marry Her.

Q. Did Mr. Caminetti say anything about his wife and what his plans were respecting her after he went away?—A He said that he would get a divorce from her and marry me.

A. He said that he would get a divorce from her and marry me.

Mr. Roche:

Q. Go on and state what occurred in the drawing room after you entered it?—A. There were two berths on one side, an upper and a lower, and a couch on the other side. I lay down on the couch for a while.

Q. What became of Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington?—A. They went into a lower berth?

Q. What became of Mr. Caminetti?—A. He entered the upper berth.

Q. You were still lying on the couch?—A. Yes.

Q. How long did you remain there?—A. About half an hour.

Q. Then what did you do?—A. I got into the upper berth.

Q. At whose request?—A. Mr. Caminetti's.

Reached Reno in Morning.

Q. Do you recall what time it was when you reached Reno?—A. It might have been 8 or 9 o'clock the next morning.

Q. Now coming back to the trip to Reno, did you shed any tears on the train?—A. Yes, because I was very unhappy.

Q. How were the rooms occupied at the bungalow you finally rented at Reno?—A. Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington occupied the front rooms and Mr. Caminetti and I the back room.

Q. At this time had Mr. Caminetti made any declarations of his intention to marry you?—A. Yes; he promised that he would marry me.

Q. When the officer finally arrived with Mr. Martin Beasley, what did you and Miss Warrington do?—A. We cried, but he told us not to worry—that everything would be all right when we returned to our homes and parents.

Q. Was any hilarity indulged in by either Miss Warrington or yourself on this occasion?—A. No. We couldn't laugh, because we were both very unhappy.

Q. Now, Miss Norris, prior to this trip to Reno, had you ever been intimate with any man besides Mr. Caminetti?—A. I had not, and Mr. Caminetti knew it.

—A. I had not, and Mr. Caminetti knew it.

Q. And when you entered into these relations with Mr. Caminetti, you believed that he would marry you?—A. Yes, sir.

Miss Norris was cross-examined by Attorney Robert Devlin, of the defense, former United States District Attorney here.

"Now, Miss Norris, on the trip you took to San Francisco and San Jose," was one of Attorney Devlin's questions, "did not Mr. Caminetti at first object to going, saying his wife was ill in the hospital, and didn't Miss Warrington say, 'You're a piker. We girls have framed this up and you must go along'?"

"I don't remember any such thing," Miss Norris answered.

Q. Did you have anything to drink on this trip?—A. I think I had some lemonade.

Q. Don't you remember that there was considerable drinking done in the party, and that you girls took part in some auto racing with another machine containing theatrical people, members of David Warfield's company?—A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember that when you finally returned to the Grand Hotel it was very late—about 4 o'clock in the morning?—A. No, sir. I had no idea what time it was.

Q. You said you rapped on Miss Warrington's door after you had reached the hotel and that you tried to enter her room. Did she hear you knocking?

Objection interposed by Mr. Roche.

Q. Did you stay in the room all night with Mr. Caminetti after you left the Grand Hotel and went to San Jose—at the hotel in San Jose?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time did you rap on Miss Warrington's door?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after the trip to Jackson did you make another trip to Stockton—you four?—A. Yes, sir.

Registered as His Wife.

Q. Do you remember on this occasion that Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington retired to a room and were gone for two hours, and that you and Mr. Caminetti retired to another room?—A. I don't remember.

Q. Upon your arrival in Reno, Mr. Caminetti registered at the Riverside Hotel as Mr. Ross and you as Mrs. Ross?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Diggs as Mr. Enright and Miss Warrington as Mrs. Enright?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after leaving the hotel and going to the cottage that you occupied, do you remember Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington going downtown and buying you a night gown?—A. Yes; they returned with one, but I don't know who bought it.

Q. Do you remember after the Reno incident that Miss Warrington heard that Mr. Diggs and his wife were reconciled, and that she remarked: "If I can't get him, he'll go to the penitentiary?"—A. She never said that to me.

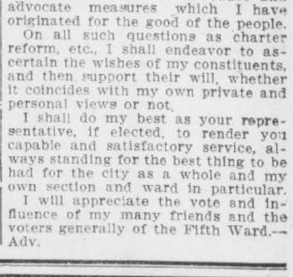

Q. Do you remember on one occasion entering the private office of Mr. Diggs in Sacramento when he was alone with Miss Warrington? Do you remember on this occasion Miss Warrington remarked, "What do you think this is—a private show, and why don't you buy tickets?"—A. No, sir.

BOTH PROMISED MARRIAGE, GIRLS TESTIFY

ENTERS RACE FOR COUNCIL FIFTH WARD

JESSE B. LEE

Well Known Business Man Who Announces His Candidacy for Council.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 16, 1913.

To the Voters of the Fifth Ward:

I hereby respectfully announce myself a candidate for Councilman to succeed Hon. J. J. Greer, whose term expires with this year, subject to the action of the city primary.

I was born in the Fifth Ward and have lived in its boundaries all my life. I am reasonably well informed about city affairs and feel that I am in position to render you efficient and intelligent service.

I am the candidate of no clique or faction, and shall always vote for and advocate those measures in Council which, in my opinion, are for the best interests of the people of the city and my ward, regardless of where they come from or who supports them.

I shall not be content to support measures introduced by other people, but shall endeavor to introduce and advocate measures which I have originated for the good of the people.

On all such questions as charter reform, etc., I shall endeavor to ascertain the wishes of my constituents, and then support their will, whether it coincides with my own private and personal views or not.

I shall do my best as your representative, if elected, to render you capable and satisfactory service, always standing for the best thing to be had for the city as a whole and my own section and ward in particular.

I will appreciate the vote and influence of my many friends and the voters generally of the Fifth Ward.—Adv.

'COURAGE' IS MESSAGE SENT BY HAWTHORNE

Distinguished Prisoner Writes Poem When Told That Attorney General Denied Him Parole.

CONVICTS ARE SYMPATHETIC

Author Gives No Outward Sign of Keen Disappointment, Declares Penitentiary Inmates.

Julian Hawthorne, novelist, poet, philosopher, in the Atlanta Federal prison, was a very characteristic Julian Hawthorne at the moment when he learned that Attorney General McReynolds had denied him the freedom which the parole board recommended and which he had frankly anticipated.

Hawthorne read a newspaper account of the official action. For a long time he stared at the story, which was a very short story. Then, without a word to the men near him, he went into his cellroom, and lay on his cot.

For half an hour he meditated. Then he arose, and wrote a poem that will be published in the next issue of Good words, the prison paper.

The poem is entitled "Courage."

It is a short verse of Hawthorne's typical pentameter style, and chock full of Hawthorne's typical philosophy of optimism.

Hawthorne Keeps Silent.

All this is the story that Hawthorne's fellow prisoners tell of the incident two weeks ago, when the news first came to the prison that the Attorney General had blasted the hopes of the distinguished prisoner. Hawthorne himself would say nothing of it, maintaining a consistent silence concerning his personal affairs, as he has since he first came to the prison.

It is generally considered among the prisoners who have come to know Hawthorne well that he was keenly disappointed at the action of the Attorney General, especially after friends in Washington had assured him that freedom was forthcoming, and after the parole board had acted favorably on his petition for release. It was believed that he had even laid plans for the period of freedom that seemed to be near.

"It hurt him," said one of the prisoners Saturday. "But he has kept it to himself. He never mentions the subject, and it looks as if he resents the mention of it by others. When they say anything about it, he usually laughs, and says nothing.

Prisoners Sympathetic.

"Well, it was only the newspapers who were sure I would get out," he answered once, however, to a man who said he was sorry. "It never was the most certain thing in the world, and I didn't consider it as such."

There were a good many expressions of sympathy, Hawthorne's friends said. The tall old man is a general favorite in the prison. But with it all there is no outward sign of disappointment as he sits in the midst of his fellows on the little hill overlooking the baseball diamond, his sharp face set, his keen eyes squinting as they look out over the bright, bare, sunlit field.

He and Dr. W. P. Morton will be free, by the natural expiration of their terms, in October.

Daniels to Dispense Fresh Air Hospitality

Secretary of the Navy to Keep Country Home Open Throughout Winter.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Fresh air hospitality will be the slogan Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Daniels will sound in Washington society next winter, now they have decided to retain "Single Oak," their country place on the outskirts of Washington, as an all-year-round residence.

Despite the distance from the fashionable center of the northwest, the Daniels plan a series of unique country sports to entertain their friends in good old Southern fashion, cross-country tramps, week-end parties when hunting and winter sports will be in order, are included in these plans.

At Christmas a jolly house party will make the old mansion ring from rafters to yule log on the roomy hearth.

John Lind Has Most Unusual Job

But Lind Is Most Unusual Man

Calling Bluffs Is His Specialty

Former Governor John Lind, of Minnesota, who is in Mexico to tell President Huerta that President Wilson disapproves of him an dhis policies.

Former Governor Has No Official Position, but Has Been Selected in Ticklish Diplomatic Work.

A plain man named John Lind is in Mexico City awaiting an opportunity to tell the explosive and dynamic President Huerta that President Wilson, of the United States, disapproves of him and his government.

This man is not the Ambassador of the United States. He has no more an official standing than a Chinese coolie. He is a plain American citizen come to discuss matters.

President Huerta may refuse to see him. The President might tell John Lind to go back to Minnesota whence he came, and still would be on safe ground.

But President Huerta will see him, and will talk to him, and will listen to what he has to say. Because John Lind, as all the world knows, is the personal representative of President Woodrow Wilson. He does not stand for the Government of the United States, nor represent any plan of intervention or anexation. He is merely the ears ad mouth of Woodrow Wilson, who wants to know exactly what is going on and why.

The mission on which President Wilson sent John Lind, former Governor of Minnesota, to Mexico, is one of the most remarkable in diplomatic history.

Holds No Office.

"It is to be pointed out that Mr. Lind holds no office which is recognized between nations," announced dispatches from Washington. "A grave responsibility rests on his shoulders. * * * The administration insisted that it should be made plain that Mr. Lind was acting entirely in an unofficial capacity in his mission to Mexico, but that he possesses most extraordinary powers in speaking for President Wilson is admitted."

It is plain that John Lind is on a most unusual mission, to be successful in which he must be calm, cool, careful, tactful, unruffled and all that. He must be alive to his responsibility. He must expect rebuffs. He must be honest, fearless, sincere.

John Lind's friends say he is all that. His enemies concede that he is every bit of it. President Wilson was certain that John Lind would meet all requirements, and so he sent to St. Paul for him.

John Lind is a former Governor of Minnesota. Years after he had served his first term, the Democrats nominated him again. They wanted him badly, and in the convention mentioned the name of nobody else.

But Lind was on his way to Alaska. He refused to turn back to accept the nomination. He refused to say yes or no. They had disregarded his wishes back home concerning a county option plank in the platform, and he scornfully said nothing to their overtures to come back and be Governor.

Weeks passed. Election time drew near. Politicians in Minnesota were certain that Lind would run. Who ever refused a gubernatorial nomination with certain victory to result from it?

Lind's Refusal Firm.

But when Lind got back, he broke his silence with a firm refusal. He would have none of the Governorship. And it being too late for the Democrats to rally around anyone else, the Republican Eberhardt won out.

It is the same calm, imperturbable John Lind for whom President Wilson invented a job as his personal representative. An unusual job it was, and President Wilson looked about for an unusual man to fill it. He decided that his friend John Lind was the man.

John Lind comes naturally by his impassiveness. He was born in Sweden and came to America a boy of 11, when his mother and father decided, like hundreds of other Swedes, to move to the new country and try to find their fortunes in the great Northwest. They came over and moved into their log cabin at Goodhue, Minn.

John Lind went to the common schools in his home town until he was 17. Then he taught school himself, saving his money that he might enter the University of Michigan. Then he practiced law, got married, moved to Minneapolis, held the job of receiver in a land office, went to Congress, lost out for re-election after three terms, served as lieutenant and quartermaster in the Twelfth Minnesota Volunteers during the war with Spain, ran for Governor and was defeated, all before 1898.

But when he came back from the war, the pleased Democrats named him as their candidate for Governor, and won with him. All Minnesota knew him by that time as a calm, self-contained, capable, good-hearted lawyer who never beat about the bush and who usually managed to call the other fellow's bluff. Out in Minnesota they like that kind of fellow.

Takes Defeat Calmly.

In 1900, a bad year for Democrats, he was beaten for re-election. John Lind took his defeat calmly. He just stuck around, practiced law, ran for Congress again, and was elected. After retirement here, he worked plainly and simply and prosperously until President Wilson, knowing him for a worker and a plain-talking, hard-fisted person, sent for him to go to Mexico. It was in the interim, about 1910, that he refused the offer of Minnesota Democrats to make him Governor again.

Mr. Lind is a man of action, cool-headed, alert, and a fighter; but above all he is silent and inscrutable. It is this quality which is going to stand him in good stead in the present situation, and it is the quality which no doubt proved very forceful in moving President Wilson to appoint him.

In all the words of criticism of Mr. Lind's mission to Mexico—and there have been many to criticise the President's course—there has been no hint of dissatisfaction with the personal qualities of the man. It is pointed out that Mr. Lind's mission in Mexico will fail. He is going to tell President Huerta that President Wilson disapproves of him and his government. But none has said that it will fail because of his personality, and it is certain that it will not fail because the President's representative talks too much. If it is to be a game of bluff, John Lind is the man to play it.

Webster's Old Home Restored by Society

Preparations Are Made for Celebration of Rehabilitation of Birthplace of Statesman.

FRANKLIN, N. H., Aug. 16.—The ancient New Hampshire farmhouse in which Daniel Webster was born has been reset on its old foundations and restored to look as it did in the eighteenth century when Webster was a small boy, and preparations have been made to celebrate its rehabilitation. It is in the town of Franklin, and the celebration will take place August 28.

It is expected that President Wilson will attend and deliver an address. Samuel W. McCall, former Congressman from Massachusetts, who was the principal speaker at the hundredth anniversary of Webster's graduation from Dartmouth College, will speak.

Coffee Tastes Cause Break in Family

Wife Liked Hers Strong, Husband Preferred It Weak, so She Entered Suit.

ALLENTOWN, PA., Aug. 16.—Black coffee and the high cost of living wrecked the romance of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hauser, of Catasauqua, who were married three years ago, when he was 63 and she was 43, each embarking in matrimony the second time. The wife, Zenobia, has started divorce proceedings.

Mrs. Hauser says she was used from life with her first husband to good black coffee. Hauser wanted his coffee as weak as dishwater, and also objected to the bills she ran up at the store for her favorite beverage. The rackets that followed got on her nerves to such an extent that she desires to resume the state of single blessedness.

The court allowed her $6 a week temporary alimony.

State Has Turkey Farm to Cut Price

Ohio Goes Into Poultry Business When Cost of Thanksgiving Birds Soar.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, Aug. 16.—The State of Ohio is going into the turkey raising business. Kind o' forced into it, as it were, because of the high price of the favored Thanksgiving bird and the demand from State institutions for the bird.

The experiment was tried out a little the last year, and so successful did it prove that this year practically in all of the State institutions where any chickens are kept turkeys have been added.

The price of turkeys has been gradually soaring until they have become almost too expensive for even the State of Ohio to buy, and rather than permit the wards of the State to go hungry on Thanksgiving Day the employees of the different institutions began the work of hatching them.

Rivals David Harum As a Horse Trader

But Youth Is Forced to Pay Back Money He Got for a 'Frozen Tail.'

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 16.—William H. Schmidt, 17, a horse trader, was directed to give back $70 he accepted from Tom Cavanaugh for a "frozen tail" horse, and return the horse to Tom Shroyer, a liveryman, when his case was heard in court.

Schmidt was charged with false pretenses, in that he represented the horse to have a useful and active fly chaser. As a matter of fact, the swatting appendage was merely ornamental and utterly useless. Schmidt said he did not know the horse had a broken tail.

"Why that horse was as helpless as a baby," asserted Mrs. Cavanaugh. "We had to carry along a fly brush as well as a buggy whip everywhere we went."

Returns $1,000 Gems And Gets $1 Reward

Laundry Girl Is Not Even Thanked When She Returns Diamonds.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—For returning $1,000 worth of jewelry to its owner, Miss Ella Veronica Shea, of No. 969 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, was rewarded with a dollar.

Miss Shea works in a laundry. While unpacking a laundry bag received from Mrs. I. Rodberg, of No. 635 Decatur street, she found four diamond rings and a diamond lavalliere.

"The shock which Mrs. Rodberg got when she received the jewelry was so great she forgot to thank me," said Miss Shea yesterday. "I had scarcely got back to the office when a man came running after me with an envelope in which was a note of thanks and—a dollar."

MORE THAN 300 BILLS PASSED BY LEGISLATURE; GOVERNOR LAUDS WORK

Act for Equalization of Taxes Is Regarded of Supreme Importance, Meaning Millions of Added Revenue to Ga. Each Year.

Measure Was Passed Only After One of Most Dramatic Fights General Assembly Has Known. Will Revolutionize System.

The 1913 session of the General Assembly of Georgia, which adjourned Thursday night, passed more than three hundred bills. Of these more than 250 were local bills, designed to relieve conditions existing in individual counties, and not operative in any other county. The remaining ones were general bills and local bills of general application.

Practically all of the measures have been engrossed and sent to Governor Slaton's office, and need only the signature of the Chief Executive of the State to become laws.

Governor Slaton has already signed some of the more important bills. He signed the Lipscomb-Miller-Anderson tax bill, to be known as the Lipscomb act, within a day after it passed the House, and Friday he signed the bill giving mothers equal rights with fathers to the custody of minor children.

Other bills received the official O. K. Saturday, but the great majority of them will not be signed until the coming week.

Of the 50 or more general bills that passed both branches of the Legislature, 19 are of importance, and their effect will be generally felt throughout the State.

Governor Praises Work.

They have been praised by Governor Slaton, Speaker Burwell, of the House, and President Anderson, of the Senate, as comprising one of the best Legislatures the State has had since the Civil War. They have passed five tax measures that will revolutionize the taxation system of the State, and add millions to the revenues; they have raised the standard of physicians in the State and centralized the control of practicing doctors; they have heard the plea of Georgia mothers and enacted a law that places her on a par with the father and recognizes her ability to care for her own child; they have established a home to care for the wayward girls of the State, and they have shown their friendship to the cause of higher education by passing an appropriation bill that carries large sums for the maintenance of the educational institutions of the State.

By far the most important measure passed by the House is the bill creating the office of State Tax Commissioner and county boards of tax assessors. This law has been characterized by veteran members of the House and Senate and by legislative experts as the best measure that has been passed in Georgia in 50 years.

It will revolutionize the taxation system of the State, and conservative estimates place the amount of revenue it will add to the funds of the State at $1,000,000 a year, sufficient to clear the State of debt and allow plenty of money to conduct the business of the Empire State of the South in a manner commensurate with her importance.

Four other tax bills that will bring in large sums, though the amounts can hardly be estimated until the laws are tried, were passed—the automobile tax bill, the inheritance tax bill, the special tax on bottling works and the occupation tax on corporations.

Inheritance Tax Important.

The inheritance tax alone is expected to bring into the treasury hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The bill providing for the State Tax Commissioner developed the hardest fight. Opponents of tax reform in the House, where the bill was first introduced by Lipscomb of Clarke County, led by Sheppard of Sumter and Stovall of Elbert County, succeeded in defeating the original bill and securing the passage of what was known as the Sheppard substitute, providing for county boards of equalization only. This measure went to the senate, where it was defeated and the substitute prepared that eventually became a law, by Senators Miller and Anderson. Ten Senate substitute, with its provisions for a State Tax Commissioner and the county boards of assessors, came back to the House during the last days of the session.

The fight that developed was one of the most thrilling and dramatic the House has ever seen. During the time the bill was under consideration by the Senate, tax reform members of the House had converted many of their original enemies. Efforts to destroy the bill by substituting amendments were defeated, and the bill was brought to a vote during the latter part of last week.

To Speaker Burwell, of Hancock County, belongs the credit for the passage of the bill. From the time the original Lipscomb bill was introduced he worked hard to get the bill through, and when the Senate substitute came to a vote, and Henderson of Jones County, a staunch friend of tax revision, tied up the vote after a thrilling ride to the Capitol in an auto, Speaker Burwell made the measure a law by casting his vote in favor of it.

Features of Tax Bill.

The bill is modeled after similar laws that are now on the statute books of a number of Northern States, where it has worked satisfactorily. Its main provisions are as follows:

It creates the office of State Tax Commissioner at $2,500 a year, and County Boards of Assessors.

The Tax Receivers of the counties shall open their books February 1 and close them May 1.

In ten days after the books are closed the Tax Receivers shall present the returns to the county boards.

The county board is to be composed of three members, appointed by the Board of County Commissioners or the Ordinary.

The county board must examine the tax returns and equalize them.

The taxpayer, if dissatisfied with the decision of the county board, can ask for reconsideration and arbitration. The differences shall be adjusted by three arbitrators.

The county boards shall complete their work by July 1.

The State Tax Commissioner shall carefully examine all tax returns submitted by the county boards and recommend decreases or increases.

The State Tax Commissioner shall carefully investigate all taxation questions and recommend laws to the General Assembly.

The Tax Commissioner shall visit annually all the counties of the State and investigate conditions.

If the county board is dissatisfied with the decision of the State Tax Commissioner upon its returns, it may appeal for arbitration, to be conducted the same as when a taxpayer appeals to the county board.

Governor Slaton already has appointed a State Tax Commissioner, Judge J. C. Hart, and the formation of the county boards probably will be begun at once. The law becomes operative January 1, 1914.

The medical practices act abolishes the old system of a separate board for each school of medicine, and creates a joint board to pass upon the physicians who apply for permission to practice in Georgia.

The bill for the establishment of a home for wayward girls, to be known as the Georgia Industrial Home for Girls, carries with it an appropriation of $10,000. The original bill carried a $30,000 appropriation, but was cut $10,000 in the House and $10,000 more in the Senate.

Though the Legislature passed many measures that are recognized as good, there were many other good bills that failed to get through. Many of them, however, were held over until the next session for various reasons, and may be passed then. Among them were a number of child labor bills, measures designed to remedy working conditions, the vital statistics bill, compulsory education bill, and others.

In addition to aiding in the fight for tax reform, in which they were strong factors, the Fulton County delegation—Blackburn, Smith and Cochran—succeeded in getting through three bills that directly affect Atlanta. They are a bill creating a new charter for the city, a bill establishing municipal courts, and a bill providing an additional Superior Court judge for the Atlanta Circuit. The three Fulton County men, Blackburn and Smith especially, were recognized as being among the leaders in the House, and were in the forefront in the fight for all the reform legislation that was passed.

Important Bills Made Laws by 1913 Legislature

Here are the most important bills that passed both houses of the General Assembly, and which become laws upon receiving the signature of the Governor:

To provide for a State Tax Commissioner and County Boards of Tax Assessors.

A "blue sky" measure, to regulate the sale of stocks and bonds.

To allow freight trains to run on Sunday.

To increase the occupation tax on corporations.

To place a special tax on bottling works.

The general appropriation bill.

To provide an inheritance tax.

To regulate the practice of medicine and raise the standard of physicians.

To create a new charter for the city of Atlanta.

To create municipal courts in Atlanta and abolish the Justice courts.

To provide an additional Superior Court judge for the Atlanta Circuit.

To provide for the permanent registration of voters.

To establish and maintain a Home for Wayward Girls.

To enable judges to grant charters in vacation.

To create a Western & Atlantic Commission to investigate the release of the State Road.

To give the mother equal rights with the father in the custody of minor children.

To provide a tax of $5 on automobiles.

To create a commission to investigate the advisability of the State publishing its own school books.

To allow trial judges to place persons convicted of misdemeanors on probation, and to provide county probation officers.

To provide for the popular election of United States Senators.

Off in Canoe on 7,000-Mile Trip

Couple to Make Record Cruise

Argonauts to Visit the South

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Green, who have started from Staten Island to cruise to New Orleans and back in a canoe.

Yearning to See Dixie and West Prompts Young Pair to Make Hazardous Journey.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—"We have never been South," said Mrs. Walter Green half to herself. There was yearning in her tone.

"Nor West," said Walter Green, who heard her.

They sat in their canoe as it drifted with the tide, their faces turned away from their Staten Island home, toward the South.

Mrs. Green looked at her husband with a quick inspiration.

"Let's go," she said, eagerly.

And so they planned within a few minutes the 7,000-mile canoe trip on which they started yesterday and which will take them not only South, but West, revealing to them the grandeur of the Mississippi, the warmth of the Gulf Coast and the stretch of the Atlantic Ocean. The two young persons, enthusiastic canoeists both of them, and inveterate campers, will be away from their home for ten months or more in the course of the journey.

Will Call on Wilson.

They started up the Hudson River, going on the first stage of the journey to Yonkers. Thence they will go through the Erie Canal to Buffalo, through Lake Erie to Ashtabula, then to Beaver Canal and Rochester, Pa. From there they will go up the Ohio to Pittsburg, down the Ohio to Cairo, up the Mississippi to St. Louis, down the Mississippi to New Orleans, across the Gulf of Mexico and along the coast to St. James City, Fla., through the Everglades and a river or two to Palm Beach, up Indian River to Jacksonville, along the Atlantic coast to Chesapeake Bay, up to Washington to call on President Wilson and present a letter from Mayor Gaynor. Last they will go by canal to Delaware River, Raritan Canal an river to New York Bay and home.

A crowd cheered the gay young couple at their start. A party of suffragettes, admirers of Mrs. Green for her daring, presented her with a "Votes for Women" pennant, which her craft will l. The life-saving crew of Clifton, t Greens' home, gave them a pennant, which also became a part of the equipment.

Light Equipment Carried.

In order to make the canoe as light as possible, they took only four boxes containing provisions, camp equipage and clothing, and two large duffel bags containing a small circular tent and bedding. All was covered with canvas, which will be used as floor of the tent.

It is the intention of the couple to put into a city, town or village each night, pitch their tent and sleep for eight hours. When the stores they carry run out, they will get new supplies at the places where they will stop.

The Greens are anticipating with the greatest eagerness the portion of their trip that will take them to the South, about the gulf and the South Atlantic coast.

NEW MEMBERS' PET BILLS DYING IN COMMITTEE

Recently Elected Congressmen Have Hard Time Telling Why District Doesnt Profit.

By JONATHAN WINFIELD.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The new members of the House—there are approximately 150 of them—are beginning to find out something about the intricacies of legislation at Washington, and just now they are busy explaining away a bunch of campaign promises. The new member isn't getting anywhere with pet legislation and he is a sorely distressed individual.

Nearly 7,000 bills and resolutions have been introduced in the House of Representatives since President Wilson called the Sixty-third Congress into extra session early in April. About one in a hundred have received consideration, and the ratio bids fair to be maintained during the remainder of the extra session owing to a rule of the Democratic caucus which binds the House committees not to report out legislation before the regular session, which begins in November.

In consequence of this unexpected caucus rule, the new member who came to Congress leaving many promises behind is up against it. His hands are tied; he may introduce bills and resolutions to his heart's content, but they won't get anywhere for months, and perhaps not then. It is embarrassing to make explanations, especially when a statesman beat out some other fellow by promising big things for the district.

All Have Horde of Bills.

The average new member, as soon as he reaches the House chamber, walks up to the bill basket and drops therein a bill providing that the town of Jonesville shall have a $25,000 postoffice. He follows this with a dozen or so bills proposing that certain worthy pensioners in his district shall have their annual pensions increased. Then he comes along with the crying complaint that the little Bo River needs about $50,000 or $100,000 to improve navigation in order that the towns of Squash Center and Hickory Hollow may have increased transportation facilities.

Congressman Newcomer then passed the word along to the newspaper correspondent representing the home paper that he has introduced the foregoing bill and will push it to an early passage. The people back home are duly elated and begin to get glad that they retired the former Congressman and sent so active a successor in his place.

In a short time the new member drops around to the committee to which his various pet kind bills have been referred. Without desiring to appear too solicitous, he gently inquires when he may expect the committee to get together and take up the pressing need of his district. The chairman, with equal gentleness, breaks the news that it will be absolutely impossible to do anything for the present.

Caucus Rules Forbid.

In the first place, says the chairman, a quorum of the committee isn't in town. In the second place, the caucus has forbidden the report of anything except currency, tariff reform and pressing appropriations bills or resolutions at this session. The new member is absolutely unable to see the justice of such a mandate, even though he may have been a member of the caucus. He thought the rule would apply to the other fellow, not himself. There is general woe and lamentation.

It is the same old story, told over in about 50 different ways. Each new member has a peculiar complaint to make and peculiar local needs to satisfy. There is nothing doing, however, and the recruit statesman is told that he will have to wait until the regular session rolls around.

TAKES PRIZED BEES FOR VACATION IN MOUNTAINS

HOOD RIVER, OREG., Aug. 16.—W. W. Dakin, who owns the largest apiary here, left for his vacation in the forest reserves above Parkdale. Mr. Dakin took two hives of bees to the mountains to gather honey from fireweed in the burned-over regions.

"I am going to try for some of the prizes offered at the State fair," said Mr. Dakin.

LIVING DEATH IN ITALY IS FACED BY CHARLTON

Young American Travels in Steerage, but Is Confident of an Early Acquittal.

son of Paul Charlton, law adviser of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, and former President Taft's classmate at Yale. He has stood by his son through all the fight against extradition.

Extradition Fight Begins.

The fight began the day after the confession appeared. It seemed at first that the young man surely must go back to Italy to face trial, and every legal step was taken against it. His friends, led by his father, took the position that he could not be extradited, because Italy had always refused, under the extradition treaty of 1868, to return Italian subjects to the United States to answer for crimes committed here.

They lost this fight, when Italy made a request for the prisoner. The fight was resumed, and Charlton's father entered the insanity plea, in a habeas corpus suit. Losing this in the lower court, the father appealed to the Supreme Court, in which, about a month ago, the opinion of Justice Lurton was handed down, to the effect that Charlton was subject to extradition.

Officers arrived in the United States from Italy last week to take Charlton back for trial. Conflicting reports have been spread regarding the young man's health, certain physicians contending that he is the victim of pulmonary tuberculosis and others that he is in perfect health.

Newspaper reports, written by men who have seen him, say that he appears healthy. He has been allowed an unusual degree of freedom while being held in the Hudson County jail, being permitted to take walks, automobile drives and two hours of exercise each day. Sometimes he was taken to picture shows.

Charlton Expects Acquittal.

Charlton is cheerful. He has expressed the opinion that he will be acquitted in spite of the evidence against him, and has told his father and mother and other friends as well that he will be back home for Christmas dinner.

The trial will be held in Milan some time early in the fall.

Appeals have been made to Secretary of State Bryan, and an attempt even has been made to reach the ear of President Wilson to present the extradition of the young man. His father has stopped at nothing to save his son. But all attempts have proved fruitless. Secretary Bryan, Judge Charlton's personal friend of long standing, has expressed his sympathy, but declared that it was impossible for him to do anything for the son.

The plans for the defense will take the form of an inquisition to bring out the moral and mental traits of the murdered woman, besides the consideration of Charlton's sanity. Attorneys will try to show that there was great provocation for the killing. It is hoped in this that the sentence of Charlton will not be the short-living death at solitary confinement in an Italian dungeon, but a more tempered punishment.

Nance Believed Mad When He Slew Wife

Relatives Declare He Was Mentally Unbalanced When He Left Knoxville Friday.

KNOXVILLE, Aug. 16.—George R. Nance is believed by his wife's relatives in Knoxville to have been insane when he killed her in a hotel at Hamlet, N. C., yesterday. They recite incidents connected with his former residence in this city that cause them to suspect he was mentally unbalanced.

At one time Nance left home and his wife did not know of his whereabouts until she received a cablegram from him in Liverpool, England. Soon thereafter he came here and they remained until they went to Greenville, S. C., last March, where his wife was manager of a sanitarium operated by a company with hospitals in various cities. For four years she was head of this company's hospital at Los Angeles. Her last station had been at Chattanooga, where her local relatives thought she was yesterday.

Mrs. Nance was born in Sweetwater, Tenn., and had many relatives over East Tennessee. She married Nance in Alexandria, Va., nine years ago, and they had no children. Mrs. J. T. Steele, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. B. T. Baker, of Alexandria, Va.; Mrs. Jerry Reagan, of Portland, Oreg., and Mrs. J. A. McCampbell, of Friendsville, Tenn., are her sisters.

Autos Are Barred By Canadian Island

Residents of Prince Edward Will Not Allow Machines to Enter Province.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—"It seems strange in these days when automobiles are seen on every street, on every country road that there should be one section on the American continent where these vehicles are positively prohibited," said R. A. Dewey, of Toronto.

"Recently the Canadian Parliament enacted legislation to permit the use of self-propelling carriages in the Province of Prince Edward Island, but it is by no means certain that the legislation will be effective. There is every indication that the law will never be put in force because a plebiscite on the question was taken throughout the island when the annual district school meetings were held.

"The returns that have come thus far indicate that the farmers are strenuously opposed to allowing automobiles on Prince Edward Island. More than 90 per cent of the population voted no on the proposition, and in some of these places the vote in the negative was unanimous.

Wealthy Father at Last Finds Daughter

Search of 38 Years Ends In Astonishment for His Policeman Son-in-Law.

POTTSVILLE, PA., Aug. 16.—Anthony Lloyd, a policeman, living on $65 a month, was surprised when John Strause, aged 76, walked into his home and embraced Mrs. Lloyd, who turns out to be his only child, lost to him for more than 38 years.

Strause is worth $200,000 and lives in Laramie City.

Many years ago, after he returned from service in the Seventh Pennsylvania Cavalry of the Civil War, he placed his daughter, Emma, in the charge of relatives and went West. Though wealthy, he was unable to find any trace of her until his sudden meeting.

PASTOR SHEDS HIS COLLAR.

GRANITE CITY, Aug. 16.—A new pace has been set by the Rev. W. W. Brown, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Granite City, who tells the men to come without collar or neckties and with sleeves rolled up if that will conduce to their comfort. He promises to do likewise.

WAITS FOR WIFE WITH A HEARSE; FINDS HER ALIVE

Husband Who Got Message of Her Death Overjoyed to See Her Alight From Train

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Heinrich Dietz became the happiest man in Chicago yesterday, and his condition in this respect is likely to be chronic. It all happened in a few seconds. From the depths of woe Mr. Dietz was raised to an ecstatic joy that almost took his breath away.

Dietz is a Russian who came to this country about a year ago, and earned money slowly and saved it until he could rent and furnish a small apartment at No. 529 Hartland court. Then he saved some more and sent a steamship ticket to his wife. She embarked for America. Dietz expected her to arrive here yesterday.

On Thursday night K. W. Kempf, the ticket agent at No. 120 North La Salle street, handed Dietz a telegram from Philadelphia reading:

"Your wife Eva died to-day—on 9:40 B. and O. Comm's Immigration."

That message dropped a somber curtain on Dietz's happiness. To cap his misery, he had almost no money. Kempf in sympathy lent him $10 and gave him a note to P. Hursen, an undertaker. Hursen read the note, then returned the $10 to Dietz and sent a hearse with him to the La Salle street depot.

Dietz was mournfully watching the train when suddenly he saw a plump, rosy cheeked young woman leave it. With a shout he sprang forward and Mr. and Mrs. Dietz were clasped in each other's arms.

Mrs. Dietz had sent a telegram as her husband had requested, but the operator had written "died" instead of "arrived."

AFFINITY EARLE ABOUT TO LOSE 'DEAREST' DORA

Third Wife of Famous Wooer, Declared "Sweetest of Them All," Files Suit.

TELLS STORY OF MEETING

Did Not Know of Long Marital Record of Poet Until She Had Joined Him.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Dora of the laughing brown eyes, third wife and unnumbered affinity of Ferdinand Pinney Earle, New York poet, artist and record wooer—described by him at the time of their marriage in June, 1911, as "the dearest, sweetest and loveliest of them all"—said to-day that she is about to seek her freedom.

She said she actually has begun suit in New York for an absolute divorce, basing her action on evidence she says she has obtained of Earle's behavior on the Continent since she parted from him in March.

Mrs. Earle is now only 25, twelve years younger than Earle. Her maiden name was Helen Theodora Sidford. From her father, an English architect, she inherited artistic tastes and is an artist of pronounced talent. She is a very attractive young woman.

Lived at "Earle's Folly."

The original story that reached America of her relations with Earle narrated a meeting in the fields, a walk home hand in hand, swift and ardent wooing, marriage within the month and a start on a tour of the world, which wound up prematurely in the country home in Monroe, Orange County, known as "Earle's Folly."

Her story to-day sets right much of that early fiction, for the meeting with Earle seems to have been conventional.

"How did you come to give yourself to a man of Earle's matrimonial record?" was asked.

"I knew nothing of his past until after our marriage," she replied. "Whatever his reputation in America, I had lived in a quiet English town and had never heard of his antecedents. After our marriage his life story was cabled from America to the London newspapers. Clippings were sent to me on the Continent on our honeymoon by my mother.

He Softened the Blow.

"It was a terrible shock to find that I had been so utterly deceived, but I accepted the explanation and excuses offered by Mr. Earle and his assurances that I would never have anything of which to complain.

"After our wedding we spent two months on the Continent. In September, 1911, three months following the wedding, we went to America, and lived happily at his place in Monroe, N. Y. Our first baby was born there in April, 1912. I remained with him in America until last January, and then came here to visit my mother, with whom I have since lived. It was arranged that Mr. Earle would come here for the summer.

"At the time of my return I had not the slightest expectation that our relations would go wrong. We kept in constant correspondence. He arrived here in March, remained two days and then went to the Continent. My second baby was born here April 20. Her father has never seen her.

"Soon after he went from here in March information reached me which left me no option except to prepare divorce proceedings. He has appealed to me to abondon them, but that is quite impossible after his conduct as disclosed to me."

Mrs. Earle declined to anticipate by publication the specific evidence she is reserving for the court. Thus the name of the co-respondent is withheld. Judging from Mrs. Earle's convincing manner of speech, she thinks she has ample ground for her petition.

Earle's Love Affairs.

Earle's love affairs were first brought to public notice in 1908 when he took to his Monroe home Miss Julia Kuttner, and informed his wife that the newcomer was his affinity and soul-mate. The rightful Mrs. Earle at that time was formerly Miss Emilie Marie Fischbacher, daughter of a bookseller on the banks of the Seine in Paris, whom Earle had married in 1903 and by whom he had a son, Harold Erwin.

Mrs. Earle departed for France, with a reported money settlement, and obtained a divorce there. Earle, Miss Kuttner and Miss Kuttner's mother went to Europe and domiciled themselves in Venice. Their departure from Monroe was hastened by threats of neighbors there to punish Earle without process of law.

Within a few months Mrs. Kuttner decided a marriage was necessary and a ceremony was performed at the British consulate. Soon afterward a son was born and named Edmond Erwin Earle. In 1910 the second wife sued for the anulment of the marriage on the ground that the ceremony had taken place before Earle was free under French law.

She also charged cruelty, especially following the birth of the child. After long consideration the Westchester County Court granted the petition of annulment and declared the child legitimate.

Earle had not defended either suit, but while the courts were trying to dispose of the second he sailed to Europe with Miss Gertrude Buell Dunn, a bright-eyed young woman from Chicago, who had "advanced" ideas. It was announced that together they would work out and publish a new philosophy on the ideal relations of the sexes. Their zeal subsided and they parted without scandal.

TOWN BLACKLISTS 85 DEMON RUM'S SLAVES

CHESTER, PA., Aug. 16.—Leading citizens of this city are lauding the blacklisting of habitual drunkards, which prevents them purchasing intoxicants in saloons, as a far-reaching temperance victory. The list contains, according to the police, the names of 85 persons who have made no effort to free themselves of the drink habit.

'Kneeless Stocking' Arrives

Fair Wearer Defies Hot Weather

Men's Socks Adorn Girl's--Ahem

Miss Bunee Wyde, pretty actress at Forsyth last week, who shows how comfortable she is in new "kneeless stockings."

Miss Bunee Wyde Is Bold Apostle of New Style and She's a Good Proselyter.

Miss Bunee Wyde said she should worry. Everybody else was swearing at the beastly weather whose heat left no peace in mind or body.

"You see?" she said naively, and hoisted her skirts a wee bit beyond the conventional height. She was wearing half hose. Men's socks.

She had brought to Atlanta a new fashion. Very frankly she announced her belief that the short socks are good to wear, much, ever so much, more comfortable than the long stocking; allow much, ever so much, freedom of the limbs, and are altogether desirable. And to her very best friends she minded not a bit to show them that she indeed wore them.

Everybody in Atlanta laughed at Miss Wyde and with Miss Wyde at the Forsyth Theater last week, where she played with Franker Wood in a little act, "Good Night." Nobody picked her for the bold apostle of a new fashion in wearing apparel, though. But she is, and a pretty good proselyter at that. She talked the new fad very generally in Atlanta while she was here.

She calls them the "kneeless stocking," though. "Half hose" has a cold, unfamiliar, masculine tone to it. And she makes the prophecy that the kneeless stocking will be popular.

"Garters?" said she. "Certainly not. I don't need 'em. Up New York lots of the girls wear silk garters or men's hose supporters with these, but under certain desirable physical features; you won't need anything to hold them up. They just stay.

"Of course you couldn't wear these with a slit skirt, and some might blush to put them on with a tight skirt that clings when you mount a street car or even a sidewalk curbing. Still, there is nothing immodest in wearing kneeless stockings. They are comfortable and convenient.

"Well, you needn't look if you don't want to," she pertly adds.

WOMEN RUN TOWN WHERE MEN FAILED

For Twenty Years Efforts to Put Woodland, Colo., on the Map Were Useless.

WOODLAND PARK, COLO., Aug. 16.—The women of Woodland Park have started a movement to put the town on the map of Colorado's summer resorts.

Twenty years ago the men of the town tried it and their efforts ended a few years ago in the best building lots selling for taxes.

When the men of two decades ago thought the town offered great inducements, they voted $20,000 in bonds and built a water system and an artificial lake in the center of the town.

There were bandstands built in the woods around the town, and a band was maintained for two or three summers. Then the bottom fell out.

The other day the waterworks bonds became due. The men who had been the prime movers in the boom of twenty years ago were discouraged and their daughteds and wives took up the affairs of the town.

They organized the Woodland Park Improvement Association. The association succeeded in having the bonded indebtedness compromised for $6,000 and the town now has the money to pay the bonds and improve the water system.

The women have decided to have a series of "tag" days and entertainments by which they will raise funds to put in street lights, street signs, lights at the Colorado Midland station and other improvements.

Earl W. Butler, of Canton, Ill., Seeks to Escape Penalty for Banking Methods.

CANTON, ILL., Aug. 16.—Earl W. Butler, the boy banker, whose career in frenzied finance wrecked two banks in Fulton and one in Peoria County in 1910, and ended by landing Butler in the Joliet penitentiary with an indeterminate sentence of from one to three years, again is making strenuous efforts through his attorneys and friends, to obtain his release from the State Board of Pardons.

So far the boy banker has not made much progress toward getting his freedom, because of the position taken by former State's Attorney W. S. Jewell, under whose incumbency Butler was convicted of embezzlement in connection with the Ellisville bank, and who is supported in his view of the matter by the present State's Attorney, M. P. Rice.

Butler was convicted in the Fulton County Circuit Court in October, 1911, over a year after his three banks closed their doors, and he was taken to Joliet in November of the same year. He has served nearly two years in the penitentiary and has another year to remain there, if his sentence is carried out to the limit. In addition to imprisonment, the verdict in his case imposed a fine of $2,800, but it is the expectation that he will try to schedule out of this obligation.

Predicts Dancing Is To Be Part of Church

Dr. G. Stanley Hall, President of Clark University, Declares Grace Should Be Encouraged.

GREELEY, COLO., Aug. 16.—That dancing is one of the best forms of exercise that is possible to take and that eventually it will become a part and parcel of the church when the grosser forms of it have been eliminated, was the statement made by Dr. G. Stanley Hall, president of Clark University.

"Dancing in itself as practiced in ancient times is what kept the Greeks and Romans healthful and graceful. The dances of those days were far different from the kind which are popular now and made strong men and graceful women.

"Rhythm is the basis of all physical movement, and I am convinced that this form of amusement, under the proper supervision, will become not only an adjunct to the church, which is proper and right, but to the schools also."

Trees of Ice Age Found in Illinois

Species Have Been Preserved Through Thousands of Years.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Members of the International Phytographic Society who made studies among the hills and cliffs about Lake Bluff this week discovered there species of trees and shrubs that have been retained in the region since the Ice Age. This species, the Europeans found, have been preserved through thousands of years.

The poplar and creeping juniper, examples of the Ice Age flora, rarely found in this part of the temperate zone, were seen flourishing vigorously beside the beech, birch, oak and maple, which followed them in the normal succession. Lake Bluff is said to be "farthest south" for the creeping juniper.

PASTOR POSING AS A DRUG USER GETS VICE DATA

Visits Omaha Stores and Secures Evidence for the Grand Jury. Made Up Like Tramp.

OMAHA, Aug. 16.—In order to more effectively carry on war against vice of all kinds, the Rev. A. E. Hess, pastor of the Hirst Memorial Young People's Church, of this city, has been disguising himself as a "roughneck" dope fiend and scouring the haunts of the denizens of the underworld for proofs of lawbreaking to present to the Grand Jury.

His latest tour was through a number of drug stores suspected of selling "coke." For his disguise he secured the services of a professional costumer, and so good was his "makeup" that he now has in his possession a hatful of little wooden boxes, each containing a few grains of cocaine—each labeled with the time and place of purchase, and in many cases the name of the clerk who sold it.

"I was never so scared in my life as when I started out for the 'dope' drug stores," Mr. Hess. "I was 'made up' like a dope fiend tramp and I was afraid I would be recognized and quizzed.

"At the first drug store I entered twice before I raked up enough courage to ask for the cocaine. The first time I merely watched the traffic; and that was terrible enough. I saw a woman fairly weep in her plea for the drug she craved and for which she had not the purchase price.

AFTER 50 YEARS MOTHER OF 8 IS ENABLED TO SEE

Although 66 Years Old, She Travels From Home to Hospital All Alone.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Fifty years ago a little girl was stricken blind.

She was 16, and never had seen the man whom she later married. In her home at Hillsdale, Mich., she became the mother of eight children.

The father died a little later and they went out into the world, but the mother never had seen their faces.

The woman, now bent and feeble, is Mrs. Mary J. Welsh, and is back in her Hillsdale home, her sight restored. Mrs. Welsh during the last month has been in the Wesley Hospital here. The operation that gave her back her sight, surgeons say, was one of the most remarkable on record. It consisted in the removal of a cataract of fifty years standing.

A chaplain of the hospital, the Rev. M. W. Satterfield, delivered an address in Hillsdale several months ago. He told of the charitable work done by the hospital. The white-haired blind woman heard him. She groped her way forward.

"Can you do anything for me?" she asked. "I only want to see my babies before I go. I have been praying."

A month ago the Methodist congregation took up a collection which made it possible for her to make the trip to Chicago.

In the Piano Business the Concern by Which All Others Are Measured Is the Phillips & Crew Company!

There's always One by which the Rest are Measured---

In every line of business there's unquestionably ONE that is generally accepted by ALL as being the Standard---the one by which ALL OF THE REST ARE MEASURED OR COMPARED.

So, ask any Piano Salesman what Atlanta Piano house he would like most to work for or to represent in the field---

Ask Piano purchasers what Piano Concern's lines are always mentioned in comparison, when other Pianos are being considered for purchase.

And then, ask yourself at what Store you'd rather select a Piano for use in your own home---

The answer cannot help but be in every instance the same, for the Phillips & Crew Company are the acknowledged Standard Piano concern in Atlanta---the Old and Reliable Piano House by which all others are Measured or Compared.

SUFFRAGETTES INVADE STAID GEORGIA TOWN

Thomasville Has Its Quota of Women Who Demand the Ballot.

THOMASVILLE, Aug. 16.—The granting of a charter for a Woman's Suffrage Association in Georgia and the bobbing up of the suffragettes over the country generally is causing many towns to take an introspective view, so to speak, to ascertain if there are any of this new brand of women within their borders, and the result shows that while there may not be a great many avowedly calling themselves suffragettes, there are more in sympathy with the movement than the mind of the average man conceives to be the case.

That there should be suffragettes in other towns in Georgia seemed very probable, but that they should be found in Thomasville, which is regarded by the outside world as being eminently staid and conservative, never going wild over anything but baseball or fighting about anything but "Sis" Cow, seemed almost unbelievable, but they are here just the same.

This does not at all mean that the majority of the fair sex here are in sympathy with this new order of women who are fighting for the ballot. There is, however, a very fair sprinkling of them, who do not hesitate to assert their belief in the equal rights of woman, and they likewise acknowledge that they would enjoy taking a hand in the management of public affairs, to a certain extent at any rate.

Of course, there are a few of the more advanced in their ideas who even believe that they could run a town and would like to try it a while and show the male management in charge just how a sure enough town should look and how affairs would be managed with a female board at the head of things. When questioned as to what would be done in a town run by women in regard to holding Police Court, serving on juries, etc., the enthusiasm did not seem so marked, though little attention was paid to the query, it evidently being the idea that all unpleasant duties could be turned over to the mere men and only the "running" of affairs be reserved for those in charge.

As it will probably be a good long time before Thomasville will be run by a female management, at least openly, as they are often accused of being the power behind the throne, nobody is very much worried over it, but it is interesting to know just how the matter stands and whether the women of the South will ever go into this movement in earnest as they have in the West and parts of the North.

Timbermen Fight Over Debt; 1 Dead

W. C. Stamper and G. R. Keen End Dispute by Pistol Duel in Street at Blakely.

BLAKELY, Aug. 16.—W. C. Stamper and G. R. Keen, two well-known timbermen, had a pistol duel on the public square at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, as a result of which Keen is dead with five bullet holes in his body.

Keen is said to have shot at Stamper twice and missed him. Stamper escaped unhurt, except a graze near the left eye.

The trouble grew out of a dispute over the division of the proceeds of a debt due to both of them by a common debtor.

Keen leaves a wife and several children.

Truck Growers to Organize in Tift

Object Is to Promote Growing and Marketing of Products.

TIFTON, Aug. 16.—Present indications are that not only the truck growers of Tift County will work in co-operation, but that all the truckers of South Georgia counties will co-operate in promoting the growing and marketing of trucking products.

Two melon and truck growers of Brooks County, M. L. Bowen, of Quitman, and A. J. Powell, of Dixie, were in Tifton this week and conferred with the Tifton Chamber of Commerce and a number of men engaged in trucking, inquiring as to the working of the Tift County Truckers' Association, with a view to forming a similar organization in Brooks County.

Mr. Bowen has been in the melon business for nearly twenty years and Mr. Powell is an expert at growing Irish potatoes.

TERRELL FARMER FIRES BULLET THROUGH HEAD

DAWSON, Aug. 16.—P. C. Calley, well-to-do Terrell County farmer and brother-in-law of Jesse Mercer, committed suicide at his country home near Dawson by shooting himself through the head. He left no note as to the cause, but despondency over money matters is believed to have been responsible.

Columbus Shows Healthy Increase

Nearly Half Million Gained on Tax Values of Property—Rate Was Reduced.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—Tax Assessor Frank M. Sommerkamp, of Muscogee County, has completed his tax digest for 1913, which shows $22,769,804 compared to $22,508,202 in 1912, an increase for 1913 of $261,602.

When it is taken into consideration that the tax assesments this year in the city of Columbus were made at 75 per cent of the county assessment, while they have been made heretofore at the same, it will be seen that the county has made a remarkable showing. In other words, something like $14,000,000 worth of property has only been asssessed at 75 per cent of the assessment of last year. It is believed that the increase in values would have run far over half a million dollars.

The digest shows that there are 40 lawyers, 43 doctors, 17 dentists, 1 veterinary surgeon, 2 architects, 2 engineers. The dogs in the county are valued at $2,192.

DOUGHERTY TAX VALUES SHOW GOOD INCREASE

ALBANY, Aug. 16.—The total value of taxable property in Dougherty County, as shown by the figures just compiled by Tax Receiver J. H. Davis, shows an increase for 1913 over 1912 of $437,218. The comparative figures are as follows: Property values, 1913, $7,449,866. Property values, 1912, $7,012,648.

ALBANY MAY BUILD BIG CREMATORY PLANT

ALBANY, Aug. 16.—A crematory to dispose of Albany's garbage is a matter that is being seriously considered at the present time. Mayor Tarver has procured literature bearing on this subject and is giving the matter careful study.

With the idea of making Albany one of the most healthy and sanitary towns in the State, the city officials, led by Mayor Tarver, are considering this step.

GLENN TAKES CHARGE AS DEPUTY MARSHAL

VALDOSTA, Aug. 16.—L. H. Glenn, of Rochelle, who has been appointed Deputy United States Marshal for this district, to succeed R. L. Thomas, resigned, will make this city his headquarters. He is now here preparing to take over the office.

RHEUMATISM COMES FROM CONDITIONS WHICH CAN BE REMEDIED

But Local Applications on the Skin Cannot Get at the Cause of Your Suffering.

Just a bilious attack and a slight deposit of uric acid. Now calomel and similar mercurial purgatives do not dissolve and expel the uric acid sediment that forms from undigested, fermenting foods, and when this poisonous acid is not expelled it accumulates quickly, thickens the blood and settles in joints and muscles. The joints and muscles then become stiff.

An attempt to cure this rheumatism must be directed toward removing uric acid from blood and tissues, breaking up the crystalline urates already formed and preventing new deposits.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is remarkably successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It dissolves uric acid out of the tissues, holds it in solution and expels it in the urine. It thoroughly cleanses the system of fermentation and purifies the blood. It will give prompt relief in all cases of rheumatism resulting from uric acid poisoning.

If you are suffering with rheumatism, try JACOBS' LIVER SALT immediately. It will relieve you more promptly and surely than anything else. Don't take an inferior substitute; some closely imitate the name, but none produces the same result. Insist on the genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT, 25c. If your druggist can not supply you, full size jar mailed upon receipt of price, postage free. Made and guaranteed by Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., Atlanta.—(Advt.)

COURT HEARING OF INJUNCTION IS POSTPONED

Americus City Council Would Prevent Consolidation of Power Plant Companies.

AMERICUS, Aug. 16.—The postponement by Judge Z. A. Littlejohn in the Superior Court of the hearing of the injunction brought by the City Council of Americus against the Americus Power Company, the rival power company to the old Americus Gas and Electric Company, to keep the new company from consolidating with the old and advancing rates, is another link in the history of one of the most sensational municipal fights in Georgia.

Judge Littlejohn postponed the hearing until September 27 on the ground that certain important parties to the various transactions were not in Americus, though it is claimed that at least one of them was here.

City Attorney Hollis Fort and W. P. Wallis, for the city, and Shipp & Sheppard, for the Americus Power Company, are prepared for a grueling and continued fight when the hearing does occur.

It is thought that it will either kill forever the hopes of municipal ownership here or revive them anew. As this has been a hotly contested municipal issue, the interest in the hearing is wide and keen.

'Hoodoo Doctors' Ply 'Art' in Cordele

Raid Farms for Cotton Root to Brew Tea for Superstitious Negroes.

CORDELE, Aug. 16.—"Hoodoo" or "root" doctors, as they are commonly known, seem to be getting in some very effective work in Cordele, though if their identity should become known to the police the effect would very probably not be pleasing to them. For several nights these characters have devastated patches of cotton in the western part of the city, belonging to negroes. For the purpose of making cotton root tea, which is said to have a healing effect in a good many cases, they have pulled up row after row of cotton by the roots, cutting off the weeds and taking the roots with them.

UNKNOWN NEGRO STABS WHITE MAN AT RAY'S MILL

VALDOSTA, Aug. 16.—W. J. Williams, of Rays Mill, Ga., was probably fatally stabbed by an unknown negro in this city at 1 o'clock Friday morning. Williams and a companion passed a group of negro youths at the Georgia Southern and Florida passenger station and said something to the negroes which they resented. One of them plunged his knife into Williams' side and drew it across his breast, making a gash nine inches long and exposing the heart-action. Two negroes are in jail charged with complicity in the affair, but they claim that the youth who did the stabbing escaped.

MUSCOGEE JURY BOARD RESUMES WORK MONDAY

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—Muscogee County's Jury Commissioners will meet again Monday to take up the work they began sometime ago, but were forced to drop because of the continued illness of one of the members. It is expected that every effort will be made to increase the list, as there has been much complaint in recent years over the difficulty experienced in obtaining jurors, when only about one-fourth of the taxpayers and voters of the county have their names in the jury box. A remedy has been demanded often.

100 BALES OF COTTON SOLD AT TIFTON IN WEEK

TIFTON, Aug. 17.—The cotton market has opened up lively in Tifton this week and it is believed that the receipts will show a total of nearly 100 bales. There is quite a lot of old cotton in this section and this is opening fast as a result of the warm weather of the past several days. However, the bulk of the crop is young and it will be several weeks yet before the season is on in full.

ALBANY MAY HAVE RIVERSIDE DRIVE

ALBANY, Aug. 16.—That Mayor Tarver's idea of a beautiful winding driveway along the Flint River may terminate in some definite action seems probable. Superintendent of Parks Harmon has been asked to consider plans and offer suggestions. This has been done and he not only thinks the plan feasible but is a very ethusiastic advocate.

Dougherty's Jail Doing Double Duty

Ten Prisoners From Early County Added to Number Already Confined There.

ALBANY, Aug. 16.—Dougherty's new county jail is now doing double duty, containing not only the county prisoners and those of the city of Albany, but those of Early County, ten of whom have been brought here for safe-keeping.

Soon after the new jail was completed the city of Albany made arrangements for the city prisoners to be jailed and cared for in a portion of the county jail. The city barracks were small, insanitary and not safe in case of violent prisoners. That portion of the city hall formerly used as the guardhouse has been remodeled for offices. The county feeds all the city's prisoners and City Court is held each day in the detention corridor of the jail.

The Sheriff of Early County, realizing the condition of the new jail, selected this one for the safe-keeping of his prisoners while Early's jail is being remodeled.

Feast on Collards Instead of Cabbage

Thomas County Convicts Revel in Delicious "Greens"—Fresh Corn as Dessert.

THOMASVILLE, Aug. 16.—The convicts in the camps of Thomas County have had a change of diet from the cabbage which was so much enjoyed by them in the spring and early summer, and have transferred their allegiance to collard greens.

The report made by the superintendent of the county farm this week shows that for the month of July 1,250 head of these collards were fed to the convicts of the various camps, and as the average darky is proverbially fond of these greens they doubtless enjoyed their meals. With the collards were eaten 600 ears of green corn and several bushels of onions.

As vegetables are considered good summertime diet they probably went a long way toward preserving the health of the convicts, as all the camps are reported in a healthy condition.

Cashier, Sentenced, Making Hard Fight

J. H. Cason's Lawyers Determined to Carry Case Through Highest State Courts.

MOULTRIE, Aug. 16.—Arguments in the motion for a new trial of J. H. Cason, now under five-year sentence in the penitentiary for embezzling nearly $8,000 from the Bank of Cresland, will be heard in Valdosta before Judge Thomas on September 8.

Attorneys for the former bank cashier state they will leave nothing undone to save their client and that the case will be fought through all the courts before it is concluded.

CORDELE COTTON MARKET SHOWS GREAT ACTIVITY

CORDELE, Aug. 16.—With more than 100 bales ginned and marketed, the cotton season is getting well under way in Cordele and within two weeks will be in full sway. The movement of the crop has already had a decided effect upon the business interests of the city and county, a general optimism prevailing among the people as a result. The opinion is common that the yield of cotton will surpass that of the past several years and that the quality of the staple will hold up unusually well, demanding good prices.

WOODMEN OF WORLD HOLD 'CUE AND PICNIC AT TY TY

TIFTON, Aug. 17.—Friday was Woodmen of the World Day in Ty Ty, nine miles west of Tifton, in Tift County, the choppers holding a big barbecue and basket picnic, between 1,500 and 2,000 people attending. Besides enjoying a good basket dinner and some of Jack Frost's barbecue, better than which there is none, those attending heard an excellent address by Hon. Roscoe Luke on the W. O. W. order and an address on general topics by Colonel Claude Payton, of Sylvester.

NEW TARIFF SCHEDULE WELCOMED BY SHIPPERS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—Columbus tariff schedule No. 2, on which the Board of Trade has been working, has been received in the city and the merchants are prepared to take advantage of it at every opportunity. The new tariff schedule applies to all of the railroads entering the city.

For social news of the South, see Page 11, this section, and the society section.

MELROSE YOUTH UNDER BOND FOR FATAL STABBING

Harry Miller, 17 Years Old, Must Face Trial for Slaying Turpentine Man.

VALDOSTA, Aug. 16.—Hardy Miller, the 17-year-old lad who stabbed and instantly killed L. A. Smith at Melrose recently, has been released from custody under a $5,000 bond on a charge of manslaughter.

The preliminary hearing of the case was before Judge J. G. Cranford, of the City Court. Several eye-witnesses to the killing testified that the man had a quarrel and that Smith struck Miller with a stick. A few minutes later Miller passed by Smith and struck him in the breast with his knife, the blade penetrating Smith's heart. The men were employed at the turpentine distillery of Miller's brother, Smith having charge of the mules on the place. The fatal quarrel was caused by Smith's refusal to let the boy ride one of the mules at night after it had been worked all day.

Valdosta to Issue Bonds for Paving

Election Called to Vote on $50,000 for Streets and Waterworks.

VALDOSTA, Aug. 16.—An election for an issue of $50,000 municipal bonds has been called by the City Council for September 15.

If it carries Valdosta will in a few months be the best paved city of its size in the State, and will have a waterworks system adequate to take care of the growth of the city for several years.

Of the proposed issue $35,000 is to be used for extending the paving now in operation, while the remainder, $15,000, is to be used for extending the water mains and in improving the waterworks station. A 3,000,000-gallon pump was bought with a portion of the last bond issue and the plant is now being prepared for its installation. In the business section the six-inch mains are being taken up and replaced with twelve-inch mains, while the system is being extended to the northern and eastern portions of town, which were recently taken into the corporate limits.

Three of the principal residence streets are now being paved with asphalt, but the recent bond issue has not been sufficient to pave other streets on which the work is demanded.

The proposed issue will be 30-year bonds to bear 6 per cent interest.

MOULTRIE RAISES $100,000 FOR A PACKING HOUSE

MOULTRIE, Aug. 16.—A hundred thousand dollars has been subscribed by Moultrie business men to build a packing house and abattoir. All preliminary plans have been completed and construction is scheduled to begin soon.

It is believed this will encourage stock raising in Southwest Georgia, providing as it will a cash market at all seasons.

FARMER BEGINS SERVING SENTENCE AS COW THIEF

MOULTRIE, Aug. 16.—J. J. Hiers, farmer, of Colquitt, began serving a twelve months' sentence on the chaingang this week, after being denied a new trial by Judge Thomas, of the Southern Circuit.

Hiers was convicted at the last term of Superior Court on an indictment charging him with cow rustling, but the jury recommended that he be punished as for a misdemeanor.

Albany Boosters Get Big Meeting

Put Up Winning Fight for State Agricultural Society Session In 1914.

ALBANY, Aug. 16.—Knowing that the bringing of the State Agricultural Society to Albany for its 1914 meeting would be a great boom for Albany, as well as furnishing a good place for its meeting, several of Albany's citizens went to Cuthbert this week and attended the session which has been in progress. On Thursday it was realized that a hard fight would be necessitated to secure them, as North Georgia was making a strong bid, and immediate steps were taken to apply the pressure. All Dougherty residents who were at the meeting started boosting Albany as the proper place, this being supplemented with telegrams from the Mayor, president of the Chamber of Commerce and others who are recognized as leaders in Albany. The net result was that they decided on Albany, and in addition expressed their thanks for the strong effort that was made to secure them.

Tift's Courthouse Handsome Building

One of the Most Complete and Comfortable in the State.

TIFTON, Aug. 16.—There are many handsome and comfortably furnished courtrooms in this section of the State, but none will surpass the one in Tift County's attractive new courthouse when that building has been completed. The work is now nearing completion, and some idea can be gained of its attractive simplicity and elegance.

Five large windows on either side of the courtroom give plenty of light and ventilation. Between each window is a pilaster column capped with a scroll design, and over each window an arch surmounted by a keystone. Crossing the ceiling are five large beams and between these is an attractive design in dental work. In this work there are over 7,000 pieces, nine to the foot, and there are 875 running feet to be covered.

There are three large lights in the ceiling, with a light on each column and a desk light at the judge's stand.

The staircases will be of steel with terazza steps.

CORDELE PLANS TO PUT $40,000 IN WATERWORKS

Site Selected for Big Plant, and Work Will Begin in Short Time.

CORDELE, Aug. 16.—The Cordele Bond Commission has selected and purchased a site for a new waterworks plant for the city, located immediately adjacent to the site on which the old station is situated. The location provides ample room for the improvements to be made, and was purchased by the commission from Judge E. F. Strozier, administrator of the estate of W. E. Smith, the consideration being $4,500.

A $40,000 issue of bonds will be expended in building the new plant and making further improvements upon the waterworks system. The building alone will probably cost $3,500, and is to be fireproof, while the machinery will be of the most modern type and will be duplicated all the way round, costing not under $18,000. The new reservoir will be capacitated at 250,000 gallons, and an elevated tank of almost three times that capacity will be erected.

RECORD PECAN CROP IN SOUTH GEORGIA

THOMASVILLE, Aug. 16.—That there will be more pecan nuts in South Georgia this season than ever before is the general opinion of the growers. This is owing not merely to the fact that the crop is a good one, but is the result of the larger number of trees that have come into bearing. The crop of paper-shell pecans planted all through this section is a large one, but many of the young trees are just beginning to bear well. Some of the growers are very enthusiastic over the crop on these young trees this year and the knowledge that they will put on a larger one each year as they grow older means that it will not be very long before the output of these nuts will be the means of bringing much money into South Georgia.

PHYSICIANS AID M'NAUGHTON IN FIGHT FOR LIFE

Savannah Medicos Lending Influence to Secure Pardon for Condemned Doctor.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Savannah physicians are lending their aid toward securing the freedom of Dr. W. J. McNaughton, who is in jail here under sentence of death for the murder of Fred Flanders in Emanuel County three years ago.

At the request of the Rev. John S. Wilder, pastor of the South Side Baptist Church, who has been a consistent friend of the condemned man, several Savannah physicians have given affidavits relative to the effect of the amount of arsenic poisoning which it is claimed killed Flanders. They declare this amount of the poison would not produce death. It is understood the Prison Commission, which is now considering the case of Dr. McNaughton, is perfectly willing to grant him a commutation to life imprisonment, but his friends are striving for a full pardon for him.

Dr. McNaughton may return to his old home in Emanuel County and resume the practice of his profession if the Prison Commission acts favorably upon his application for a pardon.

"I am an innocent man, and naturally expect to be given a full pardon," he said. "All I hope is that the facts were presented to the Prison Commission properly. If they were, I feel confident I will be liberated. I have already been deprived of several years of my life, and I am praying constantly that the great wrong that has been done me may be righted as far as possible by the granting of a full pardon."

Marion Lucas Will Get Savannah Plum

Congressman Edwards Picks Successor to Marcus Baker as Savannah Postmaster.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—The fact that Congressman Charles G. Edwards has announced his intention of indorsing Marion Lucas for postmaster to succeed Marcus S. Baker, Jr., who is expected to be ousted shortly as a result of a recent investigation of his private and official life, has created little surprise here. It had been known for more than a week that Lucas stood the best chance to land the plum.

Besides the indorsements sent to Congressman Edwards direct, Lucas has furnished him with more than 1,000 letters from Savannahians in every walk of life.

Chatham Jail Too Full for Comfort

New Sheriff Asks County Commission to Remodel and Enlarge Prison.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 15.—As a result of an inspection of the county jail by the newly elected Sheriff, Colonel Merrett W. Dixon, the County Commission will be asked to do something to relieve the congestion there.

It may be necessary to build an annex to the jail or convert the southern wing of the building now occupied by the jailer as a residence, into prison quarters. Sheriff Dixon was accompanied on his inspection by Judge Walter G. Charlton, of the Superior Court, and Solicitor General Walter G. Hartridge.

Of the 183 prisoners in the jail there was only one who registered a kick.

SHUPTRINE TO HEAD BIG POLITICAL CLUB

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Although the officials will not make public the result of the election, it is learned that Herman C. Shuptrine, Representative in the Legislature from Chatham County, was elected president of the Cracker Progressive Club, a political organization, last night. Shuptrine has stated that he will accept.

TRADE BOARD SECRETARY RETAINED AT BRUNSWICK

BRUNSWICK, Aug. 16.—Secretary J. G. Weatherly has been reappointed by unanimous vote of the Brunswick Board of Trade. Mr. Weatherly came to this city last year from Columbus, Miss., and since taking charge of the local board he has made an enviable reputation, both for himself and the city.

Summer-Spoiled Skin Removed by Absorption

(From Home Queen.)

As undue summer exposure usually leaves an undesirable surface of tan, dust or grease, often freckles, too, it would seem more sensible to remove such surface than to hide it with cosmetics. There's nothing better for this than ordinary mercolized wax, which actually absorbs an unwholesome complexion. The thin layer of surface skin is itself absorbed, gently and gradually, so there's no inconvenience and no detention indoors. Just spread the wax lightly over the entire face at bedtime and take it off in the morning with warm water. If you will get one ounce of mercolized wax at the drug store and use for a week or so, you may expect marked improvement daily. When the underlying skin is wholly in view your complexion will be a marvel of spotless purity and beautiful whiteness.

Don't let those summer wrinkles worry you; worry will breed more wrinkles. Better to banish them by bathing the face in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch-hazel. Used daily for a while this will be found wonderfully effective. (Adv.)

Savannah Minister Has Saloons Raided

Pastor Objects to Near-Beer Dispensaries Near His Church. Dealers Arrested.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 15.—On complaint of the Rev. M. F. Roberts, pastor of the Fourth Baptist Church, three near-beer dealers, with places around the corner from his church have been placed under arrest and required to give bond for their appearance on charges of violating the State prohibition law.

The places raided are the same which received the attention of the authorities last Sunday. The men under arrest are Andrew Pappedea, M. Patro and C. L. Davis. A lot of near beer and whisky was confiscated and will be used as evidence against the men.

Recovery of Dare Question of Time

Savannah Man, Shot by Wife, Improves Rapidly After Reconciliation.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Stretched comfortably on a cot in a cell at police barracks, quietly reading a novel while the summer breezes blow through the bars upon her, Mrs. Joe Dare, who several weeks ago shot her husband following a quarrel in their apartment, presents a striking contrast to-day to her extremely nervous condition two weeks ago, when it was believed that Dare would die and that she would be called upon to face trial for his murder.

The physicians who are attending Dare at the Savannah Hospital have given out the information that he is continually improving. His recovery is now practically assured unless there is a sudden change for the worse. The physicians are confident that his reconciliation with his pretty wife on what was believed to be his deathbed has had much to do with bringing about the change in his condition.

Dare was shot by his wife in a fit of jealousy after he had remained out later at night than she thought he ought to.

Grimshaw Will Not Give Up Residence

Transferred to Americus, Savannah Alderman Holds His Office in City Government.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Harry G. Grimshaw, superintendent of the Savannah division of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway, who has recently been transferred to Americus as superintendent of the Alabama division, effective to-day, will maintain a residence in Savannah, and will not resign from the aldermanic board of the city. He will also retain his position of chairman of the board of control of the Union Station.

Superintendent Grimshaw will retain a residence in Savannah, and will come down each week-end, remaining over until Monday morning. He will also be able to make special trips to Savannah when necessity arises, and will thus be a regular attendant upon the meetings of Council. Mr. Grimshaw's force of clerks, stenographers and dispatchers will depart for their new location to-morrow morning.

WRECKER WANTED TO SEE WHAT TRAIN WOULD DO

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—"Just wanted to see a wreck, just to see what the train would do," was the explanation of John Hosey, 14 years old, when arrested last night charged with placing a beam on the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad tracks at Thirty-third and Plant streets in an attempt to wreck the shuttle train running between Savannah and Newyards. A special officer saw two boys place the beam on the track. He arrested Hosey, but the other lad escaped.

8-Foot Shark Caught At St. Simons Island

Sam Levinne Lands Largest Catch of Years in Waters Around Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, Aug. 16.—An eight-foot shark has been caught on St. Simons Island by Sam Levinne, of this city. Before the fish could be landed it required a horse to pull it ashore.

The young man had his line out for a shark for more than an hour when suddenly it was almost jerked from his hand. Several times he managed to get the shark to the surface, each time shooting it, and before it was killed eight bullets had been poured into its body.

The shark weighed more than 300 pounds, and was the largest caught in these waters in ten years.

Firemen Endangered By a Falling Steeple

Lightning Sets Brunswick Church Spire Ablaze and Causes It to Topple.

BRUNSWICK, Aug. 16.—When McKendree Methodist Church was struck by lightning and set on fire, Fire Chief Harrison and three of his men narrowly missed death.

The lightning set fire to the steeple. The chief and three firemen climbed to the roof of a one-story addition adjoining the main part of the building. Before the fire was under control the steeple fell. Chief Harrison saw wha was coming and quickly ordered his men to seek safety. Just as the got under cover the steeple crashed on the roof where they had been standing.

NEGRO ACCUSED OF SLAYING 16 YEARS AGO IS CAUGHT

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Charged with killing B. C. Booth, at Manor, Ware County, sixteen years ago, Will Eady, a negro, has been brought to Waycross from near Blountstown, Fla. He has been identified and will be placed on trial in December.

Eady's escape from a mob was narrow. The Booth family conducted a search for him. W. S. Booth has just paid a reward of $100 for the negro's arrest and the State's reward of $100 will be paid soon.

WAYCROSS PLANS TO SEND MAN ON BOOSTER TRIP

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Waycross may have a representative on the Georgia Booster Train, which will leave Macon soon for a tour of the Middle West.

Secretary T. Jeff Botley, of the Board of Trade, has been authorized to make the trip. He is getting splendid co-operation from the citizens. Thousands of Waycross booster booklets will be distributed by the secretary while on the trip.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

Spread to Back. Could Hardly Sleep for Burning and Itching, Caused Disfigurement. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Entirely Cured.

214 Brevard St., Tampa, Fla. — "Some three years ago I commenced to suffer from a rash on my face and back. Before the pimples came on my face there were a lot of blackheads. It looked as if the blackheads turned into pimples because after a little while all of them were gone and my face was covered with pimples. They were small at first but gradually grew and right at the end of each pimple it was all white. I carelessly picked them with my finger nails, which made them spread, and I soon discovered them on my back. My back was covered with pimples and my face the same way. At night I could hardly sleep on account of the burning and itching sensation they caused. I felt like a lot of small-sized crabs biting at my back. I did not like to go out because the pimples caused disfigurement.

"Seeing the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in one of the magazines I sent for a sample. At night I would put the Cuticura Ointment on my face and back and I was pleased with the result. I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I am glad to be able to say that I am entirely cured of pimples." (Signed) Jno. O. Darlington, Jan. 25, 1913.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

STREET PAVING AGITATION IS ON IN WAYCROSS

Act of Legislature Gives Authority to Make Levies on Property Owners.

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—While none of the members of the Georgia Legislatures except those from Ware knew what the passage of the local act on levies for street pavement in Waycross meant they really paved Gilmore, a leading street of the city, by voting to pass the act.

The amendment to the city charter was proposed by Council to establish beyond any question the right of the city to make a levy against property of the street railway company for paving on a street occupied by the tracks of the company, whether the part of the street occupied by the tracks was paved or left unpaved.

In trying to pave Gilmore, Council has handled one of the hardest problems Waycross has ever tackled. First one proposition would be agreed upon, then another, and all kinds of petitions from property owners were received. Sentiment is anything but unanimous with reference to the paving of Gilmore, but Council is apparently determined to pave the street with brick.

Estimates on the cost of paving Gilmore have varied from $20,000 to above $30,000. With the street car company's portion of the expense certain for the city, the financial end of the pavement has been closed, and Council probably will be asked at an early date to authorize the Mayor to sign a contract and have work started without delay.

Convicts to Work Streets.

At last Waycross is going to get some return from the part the city has been contributing to the improvement of roads in Ware County. The convict gang of the county, under the new county commissioner law, will have to be worked on the principal streets of Waycross three months of each year, and in order that some benefit might result this year, the law stipulates that for 45 days between now and the end of the year the gang must be worked in Waycross.

An effort to reduce the membership of the board to five was defeated, and the board will be increased after January 1, 1915, to seven instead of six members, as at present. Four of the seven will be from the Waycross district. The chairman, instead of being a resident of the Waycross district, may reside in any district of the county. However, with four members from Waycross, it is extremely doubtful if the chairmanship ever goes out of the Waycross district.

Senator J. L. Sweat's plan for a board of information, holding quarterly meetings with the Commissioners, were eliminated.

SHORTHAND WILL NOT BE TAUGHT IN SCHOOLS

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Stenography and typewriting will not be taught in the public schools of Chatham County during the coming session "because of the shortness of finances." This is the decision of the Board of Education of the county.

Superintendent Otis Ashmore and Principal B. F. Pickett, of the High School, were instructed by the board to investigate the question and report. They hold that the only additional expense would be the purchase of typewriters. It would not be necessary to employ another teacher. Bookkeeping and commercial subjects already are taught in the schools.

Waycross Lid Is On 7 Days Every Week

Sunday Closing Supplement by 'Move On Order to 'Houses In Our Midst.'

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Although the first warrants issued in the crusade against the sale of cold drinks in Waycross on Sundays have been withdrawn on the promise of good behavior, it is announced to-day that the campaign for Sabbath observance will in no way be lessened. The prime reformers are H. Murphy and Dan T. Cowart.

Right on top of the fight on Sunday drink sales, Chief of Police John W. Colley has issued warnings to women who have returned here despite the "lid order" issued last fall by Mayor Reed shortly after Atlanta closed the "houses in our midst." Several houses bordering on the disorderly variety have just been closed and the inmates compelled to leave the city. Only a few of the women waited until the last day to leave, as the police let it be known that all caught here after the limit expired would be arrested and tried in Police Court.

Fire Chief May Hold His Job After All

Expected Shake-up Fails to Materialize in Waycross—Council Remains Inactive.

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—The expected shake-up in the Waycross fire department has not yet materialized. It was reported a week ago that former Chief Thomas Ballentyne, of the Savannah fire department, would become chief of the Waycross department. So far, however, the matter has not been presented to Council for action.

Recent improvements in the fire department caused members of Council to feel that a more experienced man was needed as chief, and the report of the expected change caused the friends of Chief E. C. Hall to get busy. What effect, if any, this had is unknown, but it is stated on authority that the fire department shake-up may not be talked about again until the first of the year, when Council elects the Fire Chief along with other city officials.

Fought Four Men; Held for Killing

Charlton County Slayer Released on Bond of $5,000—Now in Hospital.

WAYCROSS, Aug. 15.—An order was passed by Judge E. A. Parker, of the Waycross circuit to-day allowing C. W. Webb, charged with killing J. M. Crawford at Moniac, in Charlton County, temporary bail of $5,000. Authority was also given to transfer Cobb from Valdosta, where he has been in a hospital, to Hazlehurst. Thursday is the date fixed for a commitment trial at Folkston.

When he killed Crawford, Cobb was fighting four men, who attacked him as he started to board a passenger train. After he was cut to pieces he was left by the track all night.

NEW TRIAL FOR LANIER OVERRULED BY JUDGE

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Judge T. A. Parker overruled the motion for new trial in the case of State vs. W. C. Lanier, under life sentence for killing an infant. Attorneys will appeal the case to the Supreme Court. Lanier's wife, who was jointly indicted with him, was acquitted when she was tried at an adjourned term of court in June.

WAYCROSS TO TRY NEW FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Semi-Commission and Business Manager Plans To Be Voted on at Special Election.

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Waycross is on the verge of two interesting elections, and will top off the year with a warm municipal campaign.

The first election will be that of a Recorder to fill the recently-created position of City Recorder. The bill, as passed by the Georgia Legislature, provides that any lawyer 21 years of age may fill the place, and while there are no announced candidates for the position, it is known that members of Council have been approached by several who would like to serve until the election next year.

After the election of a Recorder will be the charter election. This will probably be called by Council at a meeting to be held next Tuesday, and will be for the purpose of deciding what changes, if any, in the present government of Waycross will be made. The charter bill provides for the city manager plan of government, which is a combination of the aldermanic and commission government, and an increased Board of Aldermen with appointive departmental heads. The proposition to have an all-time Mayor has been given up, and instead the charter provides that whoever is named Mayor must give sufficient time to look after the office properly. The salary of the Mayor is doubled, $1,200 being allowed under the new charter, as compared to $600 at present. The salaries for Aldermen are wiped out completely by the new charter. Heretofore Aldermen have been paid $200 a year.

There are many advocates of the two kinds of city government, and the election to be held will undoubtedly go down in the city's history as one of the warmest ever known in Waycross.

NEW RAILROAD TO BRUNSWICK FROM DARIEN

Connecting Link Will Be Completed by October 1—Preparations for Entry.

BRUNSWICK, Aug. 16.—Preparations are already under way for the entry of the Georgia Coast and Piedmont Railroad into Brunswick on October 1.

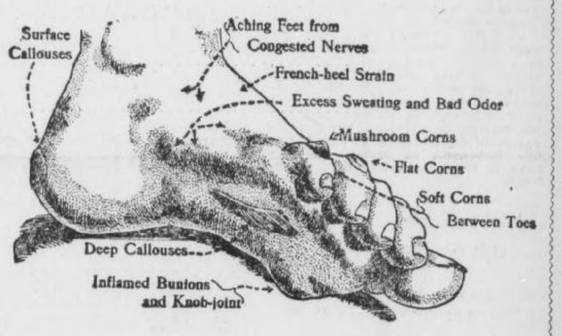

The rails are laid almost in entirety from Darien to Brunswick, and all that remains to make the connecting link perfect is the completion of the steel bridge over the Altamaha River. Work on the passenger and freight depots in this city is well under way, as likewise the work on the terminals along the river front.

By connecting Brunswick and Darien, many miles will be saved in going from one place to the other. The only direct connection with the McIntosh County seat is by boat from this city, which requires four and one-half hours to make the trip. With the Georgia Coast and Piedmont in operation, it will be possible to traverse the distance in less than an hour.

The road now runs from Collins, in Toombs County, to Darien, and with the extension to this city one of the richest territories agriculturally in Georgia will be opened up.

The road was started last summer, after having been under discussion for five years. The County Commissioners of Glynn and the city of Brunswick appropriated a large sum to aid in bringing the road here. The general offices of the road will be brought to Brunswick from Darien before the entry into this city.

Tells Positive Cure For all Foot Troubles

Science has proven that nearly all foot troubles originate from a common cause; that of injured tissues. The following information will be welcomed by thousands of victims of daily foot torture. No matter how many patent medicines you have tried in vain, this treatment which was formerly known only to doctors will do the work. Don't waste time. Get it at once. "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet for a full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effects are marvelous. All pain disappears instantly and the feet feel simply delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. Bunions, aching feet and sweaty, smelly feet get immediate relief. Use this treatment a week and your foot troubles will be a thing of the past. Calocide works through the pores and removes the cause. Any druggist has Calocide in stock or will get it from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take something else instead. A twenty-five cent box is said to be enough to cure the worst feet.

MR. HEARST TELLS WHY HE KEEPS OIL LETTERS FROM LOBBY INQUIRY

Publisher Does Not Wish to Associate Already Proven Documents With Series of Exaggerated Accusations as Mulhall Confession Seems To Be.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—The following is a letter from Mr. William Randolph Hearst in reply to a letter sent to him by Congressman Clyde H. Tavenner asking Mr. Hearst to put the Standard Oil letters before the Garrett lobby investigation committee in the House of Representatives:

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 5, 1913.

Hon. Clyde H. Tavenner, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Sir:

Did you write me a letter and make the letter public, asking me to submit all the Standard Oil letters that I have in my possession to the House committee now investigating the charges of lobbying made by a certain Mulhall?

I would be very glad to submit again to the Congressional committee or to any responsible body the Standard Oil letters which I have already submitted many times to the public and to bodies which more or less accurately and sincerely represent the public.

I would prefer, however, not to submit these Standard Oil letters in connection with the Mulhall letters and charges for the simple reason that the Standard Oil letters are very important to the nation, very serious in their incriminations and wholly authoritative and genuine, while the Mulhall letters and documentary evidence have never appeared to me especially important or serious or genuine.

The Mulhall letters and charges were offered to one of my magazines, the one that published the Standard Oil letters, but the editors of the magazine with my approval declined to purchase or publish the Mulhall documents and confession. The reason we did not purchase the Mulhall letters was not at all because of the price. That question was not even considered.

The reason we failed to purchase them was because we had not full confidence in them. We felt that the more or less innocent or at least moderate wording of the documents did not justify the extravagant allegations on which Mulhall based the documents, and we felt if that any part of Mulhall's evidence or testimony was untrue that all of it was open to suspicion.

Furthermore, our magazine had just performed what we had every right and reason to believe a great public service. We had performed this service with the utmost sincerity and consciousness and with the most scrupulous care.

We had exposed the corrupting influence of privilege-seeking corporations in politics. We had revealed the connection between these corrupt corporations and certain important public officials who were supposed to represent the people in office, but who in reality, prostituted their offices to serve the illegitimate interests of criminal trusts.

The editors of the magazine were agreed that we did not wish to diminish or discredit the effect of these genuine revelations by the publication of Mulhall's letters, which seemed to us less serious and sincere.

The Standard Oil letters can not be denied, because there always have been additional documents to disprove every denial made to confuse and confound every falsifier.

We did not wish our magazine to associate a great public service and a vital political exposure like this with an extravagant series of exaggerated accusations, as the Mulhall confessions appeared to us to be, and I would rather not associate the genuine with the questionable at your Congressional investigation.

Of course, I am expressing only my preference. I can control the course of my magazine, but I do not seek to control or influence the action of your committee. I shall always be ready to submit to any such committee any such information I have which can be considered of public interest or importance.

Very sincerely yours,
WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Foreign-Born Women Voting Is Restricted

Illinois Attorney General Outlines Conditions Under Which They Can Cast Ballots.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Aug. 16.—In answer to Mayor Schriver, of Rock Island, for an opinion on votes for women under the new suffrage law and to govern authorities in an approaching election, Attorney General Lucey to-day held:

"That a foreign-born woman who marries a citizen of the United States, whether such citizen be natural born or naturalized, by such an act of marriage becomes a citizen of the United States.

"An unmarried foreign-born woman whose father did not become naturalized until after she arrived at her majority, would not, by such act of naturalization upon the part of her father, become a citizen of the United States.

"A woman born in the United States whose father was not naturalized prior to her arriving at her majority is a citizen of the United States."

Science Pleads for Bats, Insect Killers

University Professor Says Can Not See, but Are Guided by Sound.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Aug. 16.—That the bat by killing night-flying insects is a benefit to humanity; that he can not really see at night, as is popularly believed, but directs his flight and hunts his prey by sound; that, as a rule, he devours his prey in full flight—these are among the interesting statements in a plea for the bat which Dr. Joseph Grinnell, of the university faculty, has included in a recent paper in which he says:

"A vast quantity of night-flying insects are destroyed by bats every 24 hours. It can be seen, therefore, that bats continue the warfare on insect life which is so incessantly waged by the birds during the daytime.

"All bats have enormously developed ears, and their sense of hearing is doubtless very acute. It is suggested that the drone of a June beetle sounds to a bat as does the roar of a biplane motor to us."

Girl Asleep 10 Days Apparently Is Dead

New York Sufferer Has 86 Convulsions Before Relapsing Into Comatose State.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Jeannette Guttman, the 13-year-old daughter of a plumbing contractor, living at 1046 Tiffany street, the Bronx, for ten days has been lying in a state of coma in the Hydropathic Institute, 2011 Madison avenue.

With the exception of a faint blush of crimson on the girl's cheek, she apparently is lifeless. Life has been sustained by feeding her brandy and predigested milk, and the process of nourishment has been so successful that the girl has not lost any weight.

According to Dr. Gilbert Miller, Miss Guttman has been an epileptic for about ten years. Three days before she relapsed into a comatose state she had 86 convulsions.

From Dr. Miller it was learned that her temperature was just normal, while there was no accentuation of the pulse. Efforts have been made to produce some kind of response from the girl, without result.

Father and Son Vote For Every President

Pennsylvania Pair Hold Suffrage Record That Is Unequaled in United States.

TUNKHANNOCK, PA., Aug. 16.—George C. Miller, of Tunkhannock, claims that he and his father, George Miller, Sr., and the only father and son in the United States who have voted at every Presidential election, commencing with Washington, in 1788, to the present time.

The father voted until 1852, being then 90 years of age. He and son George C., then 22, both cast their ballot for Winfield Scott for President. The son has voted at every Presidential election since, and is now 83 years old.

The father, when about 30 years old, removed from near Harrisburg to Tunkhannock, where he opened the first gun store in that place. He died at the age of 93.

The son is the last of a family of ten children, and is in good health, with a prospect of voting for some years to come.

DEER HINDERS TRAFFIC; DODGES TEAMS IN ROAD

ALBANY, ORE., Aug. 16.—Running along on a well-traveled country road a big buck deer dodged its way between three teams of horses and escaped unhurt last week. The deer was encountered near Brewster Station, on the Woodburn-Springfield line between Crabtree and Lebanon, by three men who were hauling lumber to the railroad line.

As the season is not yet open for deer no attempt was made to shoot it.

WANT TO MAKE MONEY? START TERRAPIN FARM

Government Authority Declares There Are Big Profits in the Diamond Backs.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The diamond-back terrapin, aristocrat of the dining table and king of the banquet menu, need not disappear from the sandy shores of the United States and be lost to disciples of Epicurus forever if the business men of the nation will allow themselves to be awakened to the fact that there are fat dividends in the breeding of the animals.

Uncle Sam is sponsor for this statement. Experts in the Bureau of Fisheries are anxious that business men shall read its report.

At Beaufort, N. C., the experts started out four years ago with 40 females and 18 males, terrapin such as may be found from Southern Virginia all along the coast down to Florida. From this small breeding stock the experts procured 295 eggs in 1910. Of the 295 eggs only 7 failed to hatch.

In 1911 513 eggs were procured, and of these 421 were hatched. Even better results were obtained in 1912, when 650 eggs were procured and 538 hatched. The number of eggs laid and hatched in 1913 is expected to be far greater. Of course, a terrapin must be five or six years old before he is in the best shape for the table, but this slow growth is offset by the fact that "one man may care for several thousand terrapin."

Terrapin farms, the Government report says, should be situated on the shore line of tidal salt water, where a supply of fresh water also is available; low, swamp land where fish and crabs are plentiful being preferable. Best results are obtained by breeding the terrapin in pens specially built, but not expensive in construction.

Unlike the chicken breeders and the breeders of other food animals, the terrapin breeder need not worry about disease in his stock. The Government experts say: "So far as is known, diamond-back terrapins are not subject to epidemic disease, and after reaching the age of two or three years have no important enemy except man."

500 Birds Kept in Cage on Housetop

St. Louis Collector Has Scores of Varieties and Many of Them Are Carnivorous.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—A huge cage, containing 500 birds, is built on top of the home of D. J. Pishorski, No. 1911 North Twelfth street. Not one of these birds is for sale.

Instead Pishorski adds to his collection almost every week, and will continue to do so until he possesses a pair of every variety of birds.

Almost every land is represented in this assemblage of feathered warblers. They range from the nightingale of Japan to the Missouri jaybird.

In this collection are probably 100 birds that can not exist on seeds, lettuce and grass. They belong to the carnivorous class and must feed upon insects.

ADMITS HE IS A SLAYER TO SAVE DYING BROTHER

Arthur Spaugh Tells the Pardon Board That He Shot Sheriff at Ironton, Mo.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO., Aug. 16.—In a last attempt to get a parole for his brother, William Spaugh, Jr., who is ill of tuberculosis and can live but a short time, Arthur Spaugh, the younger brother, also an inmate of the Penitentiary, told the Board of Pardons that he killed Sheriff Polk at Ironton, Mo., to save William's life. William Spaugh is serving a life sentence for shooting Polk, while Arthur Spaugh was sentenced to fifty-five years.

"Bill did not shoot Sheriff Polk. I shot him when I thought he intended to kill Bill. He had already shot Bill through the shoulder and was advancing on him when I fired. My brother had his hands in the air, begging the sheriff not to shoot him," said Arthur Spaugh.

Doesn't Care for Himself.

"I do not want my brother to die here. He is not guilty of the killing of Sheriff Polk. I alone am guilty. Bill was not even armed when the sheriff was shot. I thought the sheriff intended to kill my brother, and after warning him not to advance three times, shot him. I hope the Governor will release Bill so that he can spend what few days he has to live a free man. It does not matter what becomes of me."

The prison physician says that William Spaugh can not live to exceed sixty days and his death is expected sooner. William Spaugh has arranged to have his body shipped back to their old home at Ironton Mo., for burial, provided he does not secure his release.

Mother Also Pleads.

Arthur Spaugh has tuberculosis also, and is unable to do heavy work. He is in the first stage of the disease, but is able to work about the halls and do light work in the open air.

Mary E. Spaugh, aged mother of the Spaughs, has been here much of late pleading with the Board of Pardons and Paroles for her dying son. She says she would like to take him to her home in St. James, Mo., and nurse him until he dies.

Arthur Spaugh has been in the penitentiary since July 27, 1906, William Spaugh was received July 26, 1907. Both have been model prisoners.

HIGH COST OF LIVING BAR TO FREE LUNCHES

LA CROSSE, WIS., Aug. 16.—While saloonkeepers of Connecticut are preparing to go into court to resist the law which forbids free lunches in saloons, liquor men of La Crosse are circulating a petition which will be presented to the Common Council asking for the passage of an ordinance making the free lunch unlawful. All saloonkeepers in town except two have signed it.

Downtown proprietors who have been setting up expensive lunches are the instigators of the movement. They declare the cost of meats and vegetables is so high they can no longer afford it.

COUPLE ELOPE, THOUGH THEY CAN NOT CONVERSE

GARY, IND., Aug. 16.—Cupid was somewhat nonplussed for a while in Gary, when a young couple, neither of whom can speak the language of the other, eloped to Crown Point, where they answered the marriage vow by means of an interpreter.

On their way home the pair were arrested at the instance of the irate father, because of the bride's youth.

They were taken to the Gary police station, where neither could give the other a word of comfort. Later the father's heart melted, and they were released.

Troubles With Latter Send Golfers Scurrying for Tamer Kind of Caddies.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 16.—Bird dogs to replace caddies and retrieve lost golf balls will soon make their appearance on the municipal links at Overton Park, according to an announcement made by City Hall officials.

J. P. Clages, dog fancier and expert trainer, has been schooling the animals at the links for several weeks and the dogs will be given a trial, and if they prove adept, they will be used regularly.

The canine caddies are the result of numerous troubles with boys, who were put under charge of the Juvenile Court for various offenses committed at the links.

REPUBLIC, KANS., Aug. 16.—To have part of a knife blade imbedded in his cheek for 31 years and not know it is the experience of Ora Figgins, who has just returned from Minneapolis, Minn., where he underwent an operation for the removal of a growth on his cheek.

Border Officer Who Killed Six Men Dies

Louis Kreeger Also Convicted His Son, Who Will Attend Funeral Under Guard.

TRINIDAD, COLO., Aug. 16.—Luis M. Kreeger, 68 years old, for nearly forty years one of the prominent peace officers of the Southwest, is dead at his home here. He had served variously as Sheriff, Under Sheriff, town marshal and special deputy in this county, and during that time he had figured in almost every adventure with criminals of any importance, and no less than six men are known to have been victims of his marksmanship.

Kreeger was a native of Missouri and came here in 1868. He achieved fame late in the seventies by killing Rice Brown, jockey and cowpuncher, then employed by the Thomas outfit. In trailing a quartet who were accused of robbing the Victor-American Coal Company's pay wagon near Gray Creek in 1910, Kreeger obtained part of the evidence which resulted in the conviction of his own son, "Quick Trigger" Kreeger. The son, under guard, will attend the funeral.

SULZER AND GLYNN EACH REFUSE TO BUDGE INCH

Deadlock Results in New York Impeachment Situation as Each Claimant Refuses to Make Move—Both Go to Capitol.

Accused Executive Accompanied by His Bodyguard Goes to State House and Plunges Into Business—No Outbreak Surprise.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Neither tastic nor violent steps will be taken Lieutenant Governor Martin H. ynn to force William Sulzer, the peached Governor of New York, om office—at least not to-day. Owg to the fact that this was a half liday at the State offices, Mr. ynn spent but a few minutes at e Capitol, and while both Sulzer d Glynn forces refused to budge an ch, matters were at a deadlock.

Accompanied by his bodyguard, overnor Sulzer walked from the exutive mansion to the Capitol, where plunged into State business, just though his right to exercise the bernatorial prerogatives were not ntested.

Lieutenant Governor Glynn, who aims the powers of Acting Governor der the Constitution until Mr. Sulr is brought to trial on September went from the Capitol to the offes of his newspaper and announced would spend the afternoon at an letic meet. He denied that, like poleon, he would lift the power of ing New York State on the bayets of the National Guard.

Lack of Trouble a Surprise.

Absence of an actual outbreak toy was a surprise to many who exted to see the executive chamber battleground for the Sulzer and mmany forces.

Mr. Sulzer now virtually stands ne, having been deserted by the mbers of his cabinet, who have ied themselves to the Glynn forces. t Sulzer refuses to abdicate, despite fact that the ranks of his political emies have been strengthened dur the last 24 hours.

Lieutenant Governor Glynn, who is w signing State documents with s signature, "Martin H. Glynn, Act Governor, State of New York," nounced that, in spite of any obuctions thrown in his way by the zer legal forces, he would continue administer gubernatorial affairs ding Mr. Sulzer's trial for alleged h crimes and misdemeanors Sepber 18.

Both Sides Fear Trick.

Both sides are taking elaborate preutions to guard against a trick. roughout the night armed guards od watch over each State departnt, while lawyers and legislators olved in the struggle were trailed rivate detectives. Mr. Sulzer was retirement planning a new legal e with his counsel. "He will get a mighty warm recepn," declared Sulzer adherents, who e few, but courageous.

Some Fear Martial Law.

Some residents of this city, realizg the intense seriousness of the sitation, fear that conditions may be me so grave that martial law will ve to be declared.

t was assumed that Governor Sulr to-day would reply to the second te from Lieutenant Governor Glynn, nanding the unconditional surrenr of all prerogatives by Mr. Sulzer l the abdication of the Governor. unsel were with the Governor at beginning of the official day, and was reported that the Governor s urged to take a fling at Tammany Hall.

Charlton at Last in Italy's Grasp

Wife Slayer Loses 3-Year Fight

Now on Ocean on Way to Trial

Porter Charlton, young American, who killed beautiful wife and is now on way to face trial in Italy.

Young Prisoner Is Confident He Will Escape Spending Life in Solitary Confinement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Porter Charlton, after three years' fight against extradition from America, is in the clutches of the Italian Government and to-day is on the high seas, bound for Italy and for trial on the charge of killing his beautiful young wife and sinking her body in Lake Como in June, 1910.

In spite of the ordeal that faces him, Charlton left New York as cheerful as a schoolboy. Three years in close confinement had repressed his natural buoyancy, but the prospect of a sea voyage, even with a trial for murder awaiting him at his journey's end, restored it to a considerable degree.

"I'll be back for Christmas!" he cried, waving a good-bye from the liner as it pulled out. All the time he has declared that he will be acquitted, in spite of the fact that he confessed to killing his wife on their honeymoon. Extenuating circumstances, his friends declare, will have their weight on the Italian jury.

Charlton's quarters on the liner are isolated, and he is not permitted to mingle with the other passengers. He travels third class, as the Italian Government does not provide first-class accommodations for prisoners.

Faces Living Death.

Unless the contention of his insanity can be proved, a living death surely will be the fate of Porter Charlton, a hideous confinement that is far worse than death on the gallows.

Extenuating circumstances, it is expected, can not be revealed of sufficient strength to obtain his acquittal, and unless his defense prove insanity, he must go to prison. There is no death sentence in Italy.

And imprisonment in Italy is a dreadful punishment, feared far more than the electric chair, the gallows, or the garrote. It is invested with mental torture of such degree that few who live through it more than a few years are sound of mind.

Charlton is known to have a sensitive, nervous temperament. His behavior toward his wife proves him high-strung. To a person of his psychological make-up incarceration under the Italian system would be certainly destructive of mental balance.

For the first ten years of a life sentence the prisoner may be kept in utter darkness and in the strictest solitude, with nothing to eat and drink but plain bread and water. A few weeks of this treatment generally is sufficient to reduce the most unemotional criminal to a state of nervous collapse.

Insanity Practically Only Hope.

His attorneys hope to present in the Italian courts the great mass of evidence brought to bear in the United States Supreme Court to prove him insane. Justice Lurton, in the opinion which declared that Charlton must go back to Italy to stand trial, admitted that the evidence to substantiate the insanity plea was preponderous.

The opinion of the Supreme Court brought to an end the three years' unsuccessful fight of Charlton and his family against extradition to Italy. It was in June, 1910, that he killed his wife, according to his own confession. After the crime he fled, but was caught at Hoboken, N. J., when the liner landed there. The brother of the slain wife there met him, and caused him to be placed under arrest.

The first night of his imprisonment in New Jersey a confession was produced, bearing his name, and generally supposed to be authentic.

"My wife and I lived happily together, but she had an uncontrollable temper," read the confession. "So had I. On the night of the murder she had the worst outbreak of temper I ever saw.

"I told her to keep quiet or I would make her quiet. Then she had another outbreak. I took up a wooden mallet, with which I had been repairing a table, and hit her on the head and body two or three times. At midnight I put the body in a trunk, dragged it to a small pier near the house, and threw it overboard."

His wife was a beautiful young woman, although eight years older than he, who was only 21. The two were on their honeymoon when the murder occurred.

Mrs. Charlton was the divorced wife of Neville H. Castle, a San Francisco lawyer. Charlton is the

Court Frees 'Old Maid' Who Resents Epithet

Judge Rules Spinster Was Right in Smiting Married Woman With Chair.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Unmarried women of mature years who are subjected to ridicule as "old maids" have won a victory in court. Miss Minnie Flatley, of the Colonial Hotel, is 31, and Mrs. Lizzie Varley, of the same address, has been calling her an "old maid."

Miss Flatley resented the sarcasm by smiting Mrs. Varley with a chair and punishing her seriously. When she was arraigned in court Judge Gemmill, after hearing the story, said "Discharged."

"I think this sort of provocation justifies any assault up to murder," said the judge. "It is despicable to humiliate a woman."

Nitrate King Hands Man Ten Cents for Returning Lost Pocketbook.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Senor E. E. Ossio, the Nitrate King of Chili, who has declared John D. Rockefeller a pauper in comparison with himself, overwhelmed a steward on the United Fruit steamer Pastores yesterday by the size of a tip.

The steward had picked up the Nitrate King's wallet and, running after him, bowed low and handed over the pocketbook. Opening it, Senor Ossio pulled out a dollar bill, then changed his mind, and, taking a dime from his pocket, handed it to the steward.

Hidden Pistol Seen As Girl Lifts Dress

Young Woman Is Arrested When Masked Battery Is Exposed as She Crosses Street.

UNIONTOWN, PA., Aug. 16.—Holding her dress a little too high to avoid the water as she crossed Main street to-day, Mattie Pearce was arrested when she revealed a large revolver in a holster fastened around her leg at the knee.

She was taken to the police station, where she showed the officers the new mode of carrying a gun. Strapped to a leg was the holster in which she carried the revolver.

The girl explained that there were "bad men" at Uniontown and she was not taking any chances with them. She stated that she had worn the revolver in that position for some time.

Mattie said she did not know she was holding her dress quite as high as she was, and that she had forgotten for a moment about the masked battery. She was released on bail.

Wife Paints Story of Her Life on Walls

St. Louis Matron Does Remarkable Work She Calls 'A Young Girl's Love."

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—One of the most-talked-of works of art in St. Louis hangs in the home of Dr. Robert E. Wilson and was painted by Mrs. Wilson. The canvas is called "The Story of a Young Girl's Love," and covers the entire wall space in the parlor of this magnificent Colonial home. Two years were devoted to the work.

The painting is divided into panels, the size of each picture depending on the amount of space to be covered. Artists pronounce the canvas a masterpiece. Mrs. Wilson's friends say that the painting illustrates her blissful married state.

FRAUD USED TO BEAT HEARST, SAYS MULHALL

Lobbyist Declares He Obtained Confidence of Democratic Leader in Campaign for Governor.

GAVE REPUBLICANS SECRET

Letter Was Forged to Give Him Introduction to Up-State Committeeman.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Colonel Martin M. Mulhall, self-confessed lobbyist of the National Association of Manufacturers, testified before the Garrett Lobby Investigating Committee that his political lines crossed those of William Randolph Hearst in 1906, and that he helped to defeat Mr. Hearst for the New York Governorship.

Introduced by a letter forged upon the letterhead of the Hearst campaign headquarters, Mulhall said that he went into Congressman Fairchild's district, the Twenty-fourth New York, an upstate district, and gained the confidence of a local campaign manager for Mr. Hearst.

Tells Plans to Republicans.

Learning from the latter the plans of campaign in the district, Mulhall reported them to Fairchild, and Republican plans to checkmate them and defeat their object were perfected. Mulhall was employed for a week on this work with the approval, he says, of Fairchild.

Mulhall told a few days ago how he started to work for Senator Foraker in Ohio. He was prepared to make his report to Foraker when the Hearst Standard Oil disclosure letters were first made public. Foraker admitted to the Senate committee that these letters defeated him for re-election to the Uniied Staes Senate.

Unconcernedly, Mulhall told how he had taken his "fake letters" of introduction to Fairchild and got his instructions for political detective work. He met Mr .Hearst's friends, including a clergyman, at a hotel, entertained them and worked his way into their confidence. He ascertained that the Republican district committee chairman was not friendly to Fairchild.

Letter Was Faked.

"Whose signature did this fake letter of introduction bear?" asked Representative Stafford.

"It was that of some member of the Democratic State Committee."

"Who were you represented to be?"

"I was supposed to be connected with Mr. Hearst, and so represented myself to Mr. Scott, the candidate, I think, opposing Fairchild."

"It was your first meeting with him, and you won his confidence to the extent of getting from him his campaign plans?" said Stafford.

"Yes."

"Who signed this fake letter?"

"The letter was given to me by Marshall Cushing, and I can not say who signed it. Mr. Cushing was a very good letter writer. He told me it was a fake letter. I knew that Cushing was not connected with the Hearst organization."

Mr. Stafford—He was connected in the way of using the letterhead of the Hearst organization to good effect.

"Mr. Cushing thought it was a smart political trick, and I guess that was his system of working," replied Mulhall.

Scott Well Deceived.

"Mr. Scott's confidence was so complete," continued Mulhall, "that he told me Mr. Hearst had sent him a number of workers and quite an amount of money, and I believe in this letter the latter stated that they were ready to send at that time more workers and more money."

"Scott swallowed everything, hook, line and all, as far as you represented it," commented Stafford.

"Yes."

"Did Mr. Fairchild know all about this arrangement?" asked Representative Kline.

"Yes, he knew about hte letter, and I had Mr. Fairchild's advice in presenting it. He has spoken to me since about that clever piece of work."

Mexican Legation Is Assured That There Is No Objection to New Minister

Special Cable to The American.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—The Mexican Legation has heard nothing of any objection on the part of France to the reception of Francisco de la Barra as Mexican Minister to this country. The secretary of the legation said to-day.

"We would neat'- be the first to hear of it if any such objection existed."

The Agence Nationale was the authority for the report, which was printed here yesterday. Senor de la Barra sailed from New York to-day.

May Yohe to Re-Wed Lord Hope, Is Rumor

American Singer Wins Back Her Former Husband With Favorite Music Hall Song.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Rumors that Lord Francis Hope may re-wed his former wife, May Yohe, are current. A week ago Lord Hope visited the London Opera House, where Miss Yohe is appearing with considerable success. The former Lady Hope was in excellent voice and sang "Honey, Ma Honey" that she often sang to her husband during their life together.

Lord Francis is said to have been touched by the song. Overtures for a reconciliation, it is said, have been made through Lord Francis' brother, the Duke of Newcastle, and the Duke's lawyer, Mr. Isitt, husband of Adeline Genee.

Eighty Princes and Princesses Will Attend Ex-King's Betrothed on September 4.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Arrangements for ex-King Manuel's wedding to Princess Augustine Hohenzollern on September 4 at Sigmaringen show the ceremony will be gorgeous.

Eighty royal princes and princesses will attend, including the Prince of Wales, representing King George, and four princesses as bridesmaids.

The Kaiser excuses himself from being present on account of the German army maneuvers. He and other monarchs will be represented by princes.

Col. Degrange Ill In Paris Hospital

Prominent New Orleans Man Is Compelled to Undergo Operation Following Sickness Aboard Ship.

Special Cable to The American.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—Colonel Joseph H. Degrange, of New Orleans, is ill in the American Hospital at Neuilly. Mr. Degrange's illness developed first on board a steamer on his way to Europe early in the summer.

On July 22 he was taken to the hospital for an operation for the removal of the carbuncle on the back of his neck. A second operation became necessary on Tuesday of this week. The operations, while painful, were not dangerous, and the attending physicians say that he will be able to be about within a few days.

Papers Have Right To Refuse Advertising

Court Rules That Objectionable Matter May Be Declined, Despite Previous Contract.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 16.—That newspapers have a right to decline advertising when they deem it objectionable, even if it is submitted to them under a yearly contract, is the effect of a decision handed down today in the District Court here. The case came up when a local department store was sued by a local paper to recover money due under a yearly contract, which the store management had declared void because certain portions of its advertising copy had been rejected by the paper.

Joy Rider Compelled To Pension Victim

In Lieu of Jail Sentence, Speeder Must Pay Girl $30 a Month Until Recovery.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—Instead of sending J. S. McNutt, a convicted joy rider, to prison, Judge Wilbur, of the Superior Court, suspended a five-year sentence over him to-day, on condition that he pay $30 a month until she recovers to Miss Olive Davis, a young woman injured when McNutt's machine was wrecked. Physicians say Miss Davis' injuries are permanent.

The girl, in a plaster cast, testified to-day that McNutt was speeding while intoxicated.

'Pussy Sneak' Routs Staid Old Tangos

Creepy Glide Brings New York Team Applications to Teach New Dance.

ONSET, MASS., Aug. 16.—The "tangoes," "bugs," "trots," "grapevine" and other similar dances have been cast into darkness by the creation introduced this afternoon at the local dancing casino by a New York couple. It is called the "pussy sneak," and is danced with the rubber-soled shoes commonly worn at the seaside.

The "pussy sneak" is a creepy sort of dance, with a few glides, but catchy and the New York team that "put the stunt on" had several applications tonight to teach it.

SUPREME TEST COMES AS STATE TRAINS GUNS ON FRANK'S CHARACTER

Defendant Will Take the Stand Early in Week to Give His Account of His Movements on Day Mary Phagan Was Killed.

ATTORNEYS SEEKING TO PROVE A COMPLETE ALIBI

Believed That Case Will Stand or Fall on Efforts of Prosecution to Prove Its Charge of Immorality Against the Accused.

BY AN OLD POLICE REPORTER.

The third week of the Frank trial came to an end at noon Saturday.

The defense has not yet concluded its case, but confidently expects to finish within the next day or two.

Its last card, and one of its biggest, will be the defendant's statement. This statement is scheduled for the early part of this week.

It will mark the climax of the defense's case, just as Conley's story marked the climax of the State's.

It became more and more evident as the case progressed during the past week that the defense is pitting Frank squarely against Conley—that it is to be Frank's life or Conley's life for little Mary Phagan's, snuffed out cruelly nearly four months ago in the National Pencil Factory.

Frank's statement on the stand, which the law permits him to make, but not under oath, and which may be accepted by the jury, either in whole or in part, in preference to all the sworn testimony, will be matched against the story the negro told so dramatically and with such frightful emphasis soon after the case got under way.

Into the negro's story, moreover, was injected the question of Frank's general character, particularly in one unmentionable direction, and this the defense will undertake to offset completely and finally.

More than a hundred witnesses have been summoned to testify to Frank's good character, and these include men and women from every walk of life, where it could be shown that such witnesses had come in contact with Frank from time to time in such wise as to be competent judges of his general character.

DALTON'S TESTIMONY IMPEACHED.

Already, the one witness (Dalton) so far introduced by the State to corroborate Conley has been successfully impeached by the defense, and it is likely that others introduced to uphold the negro also will be subjected to impeachment proceedings, if the defense suspects that it may successfully inaugurate the same.

The defense seemingly has realized fully the heavy necessity of breaking down Conley's awful story, not only in direct connection with the murder, but in every phase of it that bears upon the character of the defendant.

As a primary proposition, the advantage in the situation thus set up dwells within the defense.

In the first place, Frank goes to the jury with the presumption of innocence in his favor. The burden is not upon him to make out a case in behalf of himself. It is upon the State to make out a case against him.

Moreover, the only right of appeal attaching to persons indicted for felonies is within the defense. Once the State loses, it is lost forever.

The State must allege and prove the guilt of the defendant "beyond a reasonable doubt," and fight right up to that limit.

If there remains a reasonable doubt of Frank's guilt, after the last word has been said to the jury, Frank, under the law, is entitled to it, and if the trial jury fails to award it, a court of review will remedy the legal wrong thus inflicted upon him.

ALL STATE TESTIMONY SWORN.

The State, moreover, must submit every bit of its evidence, to the last shred or patch, under oath.

The defense, on the contrary, may clear itself upon testimony not one word of which is sworn to.

The State's star witness, Conley, also comes into court a confessed accessory after the fact of the murder, a confessed falsifier in numerous conflicting statements as to his knowledge of and connection with the crime, and accompanied by a well established jail record fearfully and wonderfully made up.

His is a much harder story to hold up than Frank's, viewing the two stories generally and in their broader personal aspects.

Even without Conley, to be sure, the State still has a circumstantial case against Frank that might compel considerable attention and respect, but there are few people who seemingly believe that it alone would be sufficiently strong to convict.

It probably is a realization of the State's tremendous task, involved in the holding together of Conley's story, that has caused the defense to train its every gun squarely upon it, for upon Conley's story will the State be forced to stand or fall eventually.

One of the curious things about the Frank case is the way the question of his general character got into the pleadings.

Theoretically, the defense alone may put the defendant's character in issue—it being contemplated by the law that no man shall be required, without his own consent, to answer more than one charge at one and the same time.

And so far as legal strategy and astuteness is concerned, the State ouegenera lthe defense in the matter of getting Frank's character before the jury.

Had Conley, the State's star witness, ben a man, even a negro, of respectability and approximately good previous record, the necessity of attaching to Frank the charge of utter depravity might not have seemed so pressing. But Frank's previous good record seemed so well established, and his standing generally was thought to be so high, that it contrasted rather painfully with the record of the main witness of all others (Conley) set up for the defndant's undoing.

The State doubtless knew that the unspeakable portion of Conley's evidence was primarily inadmissible, but it also knew that the defense would be taking rather a long chance to move its rejection when tendered.

In that event, a sinister and certainly dangerous impression would have been left upon the mind of the jury.

So the State deliberately drew out of Conley the unmentionable charge, which, in addition to the murder charge, undoubtedly made absolutely necessary the injection of Frank's character in issue.

The defense, in not objecting to the admission of the evidence last cited when it was first offered, may have been moved by the idea that it would, in the cross-examination of Conley, so break him down that it still might save itself the necessity of pleading Frank's good character—that it would even be able to make the frightful charge of perversion act as a boomerang on Conley!

Defense Objects too Late.

Seemingly, that idea, if it ever existed, was dissipated as the Conley cross-examination proceeded, however, for eventually the defense DID move to strike out the evidence, but at that time it was too late.

Having walked into the trap set by the State, if it indeed was a trap, the defense could not very well extricate itself save by pleading Frank's complete good character, and thus in a sweeping way dispose of the specific charge lodged against Frank by Conley, in addition to the murder charge.

Once committed to the necessity of establishing Frank's good character, however, the defense went at it in no half-hearted way.

It summoned indiscriminately every employee of the National Pencil Factory, male and female, old and new, and with unanimous voice they testified willingly and thoroughly that the defendant's general character is good.

In addition to these witnesses, business men, former college professors and classmates, and dozens of others fell into line with the same line of evidence.

The State now stands, therefore, where it must close up the gap between its primary allegation, dependent alone upon Conley's word so far, and the absolute proof of his sinister story.

If the State in rebuttal is able to prove conclusively that Frank is the thing Conley has labeled him, the State's case will go to the jury dangerously formidable.

If it fails to substantiate and corroborate Conley, it will go to the jury greatly weakened.

To overcome the fine showing as to Frank's good character made by the defense the State must bring forth witnesses in rebuttal that can not be impeached.

The impression throughout Atlanta is that to fail in the establishment and corroboration of Conley's story by witnesses of integrity and standing will be to fall in a crisis heavily important to the State now.

Liability Becomes Asset.

Strange to say—there are so many strange things to say in this surpassingly strange Phagan story—one of the State's apparent weaknesses is proving, in one direction, to be one of its greatest elements of strength.

The deefnse's strenuous insistence that Conley's remarkable story is impossible is one reason why a lot of people are saying that it is impossible. Conley may have manufactured it out of the whole cloth.

If it is a lie, it is a lie too devilishly cunning for a negro of Conley's limited mentality to conjure or carry in his own mind in such remarkable detail, these people hold. If the negro were only less sure of everything, if he had wabbled dangerously under the terrific grilling administered by Luther Z. Rosser, if he had broken down or contradicted himself in any essential detail once he got to the witness stand, it now would be an easier thing for many people, fair-minded enough, too, to believv the negro's tale a mass of lies from start to finish!

And the danger to the defense here is that if Conley's story sticks in the minds of the jury, even in fractional part, it probably just as well stick in its entirety, so far as the hope of acquittal upon this trial is concerned.

In other words, many people are arguing to themselves that the negro, no matter how hard he tried and no matter how generously he was coached, still neevr could have framed up a story like the one he told, unless there was somewhere in it some foundation in fact.

And if there remains the impression of even a little foundation in fact, the defense is damaged beyond repair.

And so it gets back to where it started, and to where it will end—it is Conley pitted against Frank!

The State, with the burden of proof to carry, appears to have considerably more of an uphill fight on its hands than the deefnse has, and yet the very nature of both fights—uncompromising, and neither asking nor giving quarter—makes it something of a toss-up, really, as to which actually, and as a matter of fact, has the harder task to perform.

Undoubtedly, the defense expects to profit much through its insistence that the time element, as set up in Conley's story, constitutes a most vital and compelling factor in determining the truth or falsity of the entire story.

Rely on State Witnesses.

It is rather odd, too, that the defense should be relying upon the State's witnesses in this matter quite as much as upon its own. It will seek to use generously the State's witnesses to the State's embarrassment—through the discrediting of Conley's story—in several different directions.

The deefnse is seeking to show how utterly absurd Conley's story is from Frank's point of view, by setting up these incompatible things:

That Mary Phagan (Conley's testimony) reached the pencil factory sufficiently well in advance of Monteen Stover (Conley's testimony) to go up to Frank's office, get her pay, be lured to a room in the rear and killed, notwithstanding the fact that Miss Stover (Conley's and Miss Stover's testimony) reached the factory at 12:05. And this despite the fact that Mary Phagan could not have been in the factory before 12:12, in any event, as shown by Mrs. Coleman (Mary's mother), George Epps, a motorman and a conductor.

To get around this state of things, set up for the most part by the State's own witnesses, the State already has suggested, by a line of examination probably to be amplified, that the car upon which Mary Phagan came into town on Saturday, April 26, was running AHEAD of scheduled time, and that the litle girl did, as a matter of fact, reach the factory before 12:12, and that the clock in the factory, by which both Miss Stover and Conley testified as to the time, was running SLOW on the day of the crime.

In other words, to meet its own witnesses' statements, the State will move backward the time of the street car and move forward the time of the office clock!

If the State can do that, which looks like a big job, it will eliminate the dangerous time element in one direction, at least; but if it can not do that, it will find itself in a most trying position.

And whether it now can get away from its own established time element is one of the very prettiest problems involved in the entire case thus far!

Again, the defense will insist that the time element cuts in another direction most favorably in Frank's behalf, when it will show by Conley's evidence that the disposing of Mary Phagan's body began at 12:56, but that Frank was seen at the corner of Alabama and Whitehall streets at 1:10, waiting for a car. The latter fact is testified to by Miss Helen Curran positively, and she is unimpeachable.

The defense contends that the body of Mary Phagan could not have been disposed of, and the things done that Conley alleges were done, within the fourteen minutes of time thus allowed, between the beginning of the work, according to Conley, and the time of Frank's presence two blocks and a half away.

Conley would have been obliged to dispose of the body in the remarkable way he says he did, have written the notes, remained in the wardrobe eight minutes or more, all within the fourteen minutes.

According to the State's own witnesses, Conley was in the wardrobe eight minutes and used six minutes framing the notes. This would have consumed the entire fourteen minutes, without the dead girl's body ever having been touched.

It is admitted among lawyers generally that there is no defense so completely effective as a sustained alibi—which means that the crime alleged was committed in the absence and without the knowledge of the alleged principal to it, or, more properly stated, perhaps, that the crime could not have been committed by the defendant because it would have been a physical impossibility for him to have effected it, in the circumstances of it.

The past week, of course, was the defense's day in court, and it is but fair to say that it made good use of it.

Challenge to State.

It has frankly and aggressively urged Frank's character as a vital fact in his favor, and it thereby challenged the State to do its very worst by way of breaking that character down, if it can.

This attitude upon the part of the defense undoubtedly has had a steadying effect upon the public, too, for it seems at least to have suspended judgment pending the State's rebuttal.

In addition to its insistence upon Frank's good character, the defense unquestionably has given the State serious concern in the way it has brought forward the time element, and that in two separate and distinct directions.

If it successfully maintains either one of its time theories, it will have greatly discredited Conley's story. If it successfully maintains both theories, it will have about discredited the Conley story to the point of complete collapse.

As it was out of order to conclude at the end of the second week of the Frank trial, however, that the State had made out a case that could not be broken down, so it now is out of order to conclude that the defense has broken down the State.

The State for one thing does not appear to be particularly alarmed, either by the injection of Frank's character or by the turning of the time element against the Conley story.

The State, it must be remembered, has not yet entered or disclosed its rebuttal, either of the character evidence or the undermining of its own witnesses as to the time elements stated.

State Seems Confident.

It is perfectly confident of its ability to show that Frank's character is not good, despite the opinions of his friends, business associates and acquaintances; and it will insist, indeed, that as in other depraved characters of the sort it claims Frank to be, his business acquaintances, his relatives and his social intimates would be the very last people of all to discover the truth concerning him.

The State, in seeking to prove Frank a dissolute character, may be forced to the summoning of dissolute characters, with whom he is alleged to have been associated in degrading practices, in order to prove its contention.

Thus witnesses brought out by the State to establish Frank's depravity are apt to be easier marks for impeachment proceedings than witnesses of the ordinary sort, and to that extent the breaking down of Frank's character is pregnant with difficulty.

Nevertheless, the State proposes to establish the fact of Frank's degeneracy by witnesses of sufficient credibility, particularly in the nature of the charge sought to be proved, to get by at least in sufficient numbers to overwhelm the defendant.

If the State can put up even one or two witnesses that can weather the gale of the defense's rights of impeachment, it will have put Frank in a most unenviable position before the jury. If, therefore, it puts up 50 witnesses, and 48 of them get knocked out, there still will remain the two that stood the test!

Here, then, is another pretty problem to be thrashed out: Can the State, in sustaining a charge of degeneracy against Frank, bring forth witnesses to prove it absolutely, and at the same time not bring forth witnesses so much a party to Frank's offense that they will run serious risks in testifying themselves?

A witness who is willing to swear that he saw Frank do thus and so, or was a party to Frank's doing thus and so, if the thus and so is particularly reprehensible, is apt to get on pretty thin ice himself, if he isn't very careful!

The State says it can and will rebut Frank's good character. If it does, Frank is in unutterably bad shape; but if it doesn't, Frank's cause must be helped tremendously.

Girl on Stand Shouts She Would Die for Leo Frank

Employee of Pencil Factory Furnishes Dramatic Incident of Day—Dressing Room Evidence Is Brought Out.

More than one hundred witnesses had been called to testify in defense of Leo M. Frank's character when the third week of the factory superintendent's trial concluded shortly after 1 o'clock Saturday.

Character witnesses occupied most of the time during the four hours of Saturday's session. They displayed a remarkable loyalty to their employer, who is being tried on the charge of being the murderer of little Mary Phagan. Only one of the number, Miss Irene Jackson, gave testimoney in any way prejudicial to the case of Frank.

The character testimony, the tale of the finding of Mary Phagan's envelope and other so-called clews on the first floor of the factory by W. D. McWorth, Pinkerton operative, and the return of Mrs. Rae Frank, mother of the defendant, formed the important features of the day.

Girl Furnishes Incident.

A spectacular incident, which would have been even more amusing than it proved had it not been for the evident sincerity and profound earnestness of the witness, came in the testimony of Miss Sarah Barnes, one of the pencil factory employees.

"I'd die for Mr. Frank if they'd let me!" she exclaimed almost the instant she had composed herself in the witness chair. Attorney Arnold had only time to ask her the formal question: "Do you know Leo M. Frank, the defendant in this case?" before she launched into a eulogistic description of the young factory superintendent that left her breathless at the end of five minutes.

The attorney sought to interject another of the formal questions prescribed by law, but by the time she had caught her breath and was engaged in telling her willingness to lay down her life, if need be, to prove the guiltlessness of Frank.

Attorney Arnold could not stop her. The court could not dam the flood of words. She had a mind to speak and she was determined to speak without check and without interruption.

"I know Frank couldn't have committed such a terrible deed," she cried, accompanying her declaration with an emphatic brandishing of her folded fan. "I have known him ever since I have been in the pencil factory. He has always been kind to all of the employees and to the girls in particular. He never has done any of these things that have been told about him. He has always been a gentleman.

Willing to Die for Him.

"I've had to fight for him, almost, a number of times since these awful charges have been made against him. I'm willing to fight for him again. I am willing to die in his place."

At this point she turned toward the jury and said:

"You can give me any sort of a death you want. I know he is an innocent man. I just wish that I could make everyone believe in his innocence."

Attorney Arnold succeeded in the brief space of one of the moments when she paused for a fresh start to ask the remainder of the questions he desired, and then gave her to Solicitor Dorsey.

Dorsey met with the same trouble. He tried to get her to say with whom she had talked about the testimony to which she was to swear. Disregarding his question as though if never had been asked, she continued in her encomiums of Frank until the courtroom spectators were convulsed with laughter and the Solicitor filed with disgust at his inability to get the sort of answer he wanted from the girl.

Miss Irene Jackson, daughter of County Policeman A. W. Jackson, was called by the defense as a character witness, but gave testimony on her cross-examination in regard to coaduct by Franak which the State has construed as highly improper.

Looked in Dressing Room.

Miss Jackson said that so far as she knew the character of Frank was good and that she never had known him to attempt any liberties with the factory girls. To the Solicitor she admitted, however, that she three times had been in the girls' dressing room when Frank had pushed open the door and looked in.

Once Emmeline Mayfield had been in the room with her, she said; once Mamie Kitchen and once her own sister. Her sister had threatentod to quit on this last occasion, she testified, but had been persuaded again it.

She said that Frank merely pushed the door open, looked in, one one occasion smiled toward Miss Kitche and then turned around and walk away. She testified that the gi never were any further in a condition of undress than lacking the overskirt.

Solicitor Dorsey inquired of her regard to a reported remark of N Darley, general manager, that "if girls stay with us through this, t will not lose by it." She said she overheard Darley say this.

Many Employees Called.

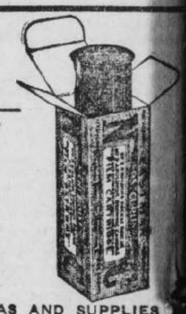

The following pencil company employees were called as character nesses during the day:

Misses Mollie Blair, Ethel Stew Sarah Barnes, Corinthia Hall, Hayes, Eula May Flowers, E Hayes, Minnie Foster, Obie Dick son, Gussie Wallace, Annie Osm Bessie Thrailkill, Allie Denham, becca Carson, Maude Wright, I Jackson, and Mesdames Emma F man and Ella Thomas.

LEO FRANK IS READY TO REVEAL HIS STORY

Accused Superintendent to Appeal to Reason of the Men Who Will Decide His Fate

COUNSEL FOR DEFENSE DECLARE HE ALONE HAS PREPARED STATEMENT

Defendant Will in No Way Try to Stir Emotion of Jurors, But Will Simply Outline His Contention as to Tragedy.

Leo M. Frank's statement to the jury, delayed from last week by the swarm of character witnesses brought in at the last moment, is the main factor of interest remaining in the trial of the National Pencil Factory superintendent before the rebuttal is taken up by the two attorneys representing the State.

What this statement will be the defendant's lawyers themselves profess not to know. They have had little or no part in framing it, they say. All they know is that he proposes to make one, and that he has been preparing it piecemeal as the trial has progressed and one point after another has arisen.

Whether it will be a formal statement read verbatim, no one knows except the prisoner and possibly his immediate relatives.

If the lawyers know they are keeping it darkly a secret. They believe, they have ventured to say, that it will be more or less informal and that it will be in the nature of an address to the jury and the court based upon the notes that Frank has made from time to time during the trial.

Appeal To Reason.

That there will be little appeal to the emotions of the jurors is practically a foregone conclusion. It is the purpose of Frank, it is understood, to appeal directly to the reason and common sense of the twelve men—to outline to them as he has outlined to his own attorneys the weak points or improbabilities in the negro Conley's story.

As well as this, it is his intention to picture to them his every movement during the entire day and to represent the physical impossibility of his having committed the crime and disposed of the body as Conley describes, if his alibi as set up by a score of witnesses is accepted by the jury.

The statement will embrace much to which he testified at the Coroner's inquest. But there will be much more. He will go into some things on which his own lawyers have not touched. The statement practically is certain to form a most remarkable and most important portion of the record of the trial's proceedings.

What promised to provide a sensation during the presentation of the defendant's case may collapse into nothing. This is W. H. Mincey and his startling declaration that he saw Jim Conley on the afternoon of the murder, and that Jim bragged to him that he had killed a girl that afternoon and didn't want to kill anyone else.

Appear to Doubt Mincey.

The attorneys for the defense have not been willing to say whether or not they would call Mincey. They have appeared to entertain some doubts of Mincey's credibility. Reuben Arnold said Saturday that he was not prepared to say that he would or would not call Mincey.

If Mincey's story could be corroborated it would furnish a most effective weapon in winning the battle for Frank's life. Granting its truthfulness, it is the most definite and direct evidence of the entire case, embracing as it does a virtual confession of murder on the part of the negro.

Mincey said he met Conley at Electric avenue and Carter street Saturday afternoon, April 26. Conley was partially intoxicated and becoming angered at Mincey's insistence that he take out an insurance policy threatened the agent and boasted of killing a girl shortly before, according to the affidavit made by Mincey.

If Mincey goes on the stand his testimony will become the target for some of the State's strongest rebuttal. That and the character of Frank will divide the attention of the Solicitor. He will not bother about much else. He is content to let Conley's story, as bolstered and strengthened by the testimony of detectives and other witnesses, stand as a sufficient rebuttal for practically all of the evidence that the defense has brought out in favor of Frank. The Solicitor believes that when the arguments go before the jury the members will be willing to accept the story of the negro as against that of Frank.

After Frank's Character.

Dorsey, however, has been unceasing in his efforts to wreck Frank's character. He has branded him as a degenerate and a criminal of the worst type. The introduction of character witnesses by the defense has given him a new opening, and he proposes to take every advantage of it. His attitude is shown in a colloquy between himself and Judge Roan.

"How far do you intend to go in that line of testimony?" inquired the judge.

"Just exactly as far as your honor will let me," Dorsey replied.

Judge Roan remonstrated that the Solicitor General should not seek to introduce evidence that he knew was illegal. The Solicitor smiled.

Dorsey has about twenty witnesses he will use in an effort to destroy all of the favorable impression created by the 100 character witnesses who have testified for Frank so far in the trial. From some of them he has promised to produce testimony of the most sensational sort.

One young girl, Dewey Hewell, not yet out of her teens, was brought all the way from Cincinnati last Friday for the express purpose of testifying against the young factory superintendent.

Confusion in Study Of Grammar Dispelled

Committee's Report on Standardizing Nomenclature Makes Good Impression.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 16.—Standardization of grammatical nomenclature, which will do away with the confusion in the study of English, as well as other languages, in American schools, has been effected by a committee of fifteen, of which Professor Hills, of Colorado College, was a member.

The committee made a report to the National Education Association in convention at Salt Lake City and its adoption without amendment virtually insures the following of the committee's recommendations in all schools and colleges.

According to Professor Hills, it was found that in the sentence "John is good," the word "good" was called by nine different names in 25 grammars; the word "John" in "This is John," was called by nineteen terms, and in "We made John president," the word "president" was given eighteen different names in the textbooks examined.

American Girl Tells Of 'Walloping' Prince

"I Kicked Radziwill Out of His Auto for Kissing My Hand too Rapturously," She Says.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Miss Elizabeth Frewen, of Philadelphia, arrived from London to-day on the Oceanic with a Pekinese named Bo Sing, a gift from Prince Albert Radziwill, who married Miss Dorothy Deacon, a Boston society girl, some years ago.

"Just because I tell you the Prince gave me Bo Sing," said Miss Frewen, "don't think he is a friend of mine. Just before I left London I walloped him on the jaw and kicked him out of his automobile for kissing my hand too rapturously."

Miss Frewen is six feet tall. She was met at the pier by Joseph Daley, of Boston, to whom she is to be married next month.

Father Sells Girl at Auction in Detroit

Authorities Take Steps to Have Marriage of Syrian Child to Turk Annulled.

DETROIT, MICH., Aug. 16.—The marriage license department of the County Clerk's office has taken steps to nullify an auction sale of Marie Aman, a Syrian girl, only 15 years old. Her father made the sale. There were half a dozen bidders.

The girl had been in the country only seven weeks, and was brought here by her father expressly to be sold. A Turk, Mehammed Haj Seleem, was the successful bidder.

The bargain was sealed immediately by the reading of an Oriental marriage service. The girl had a sweetheart who could not bid high enough to win her.

Triplets in Home Where 6 Twins Live

President Wilson Is Honored Three Times in the Naming of the Babies.

LAONIA, WIS., Aug. 16.—Three pairs of twins and a set of triplets is the record that Mrs. Joseph Checota, of this town, boasts. The triplets will be named Woodrow, Wilson and W. W. Joseph, in honor of the President.

The father believes this is a record that will stand for a long time to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Checota have been married six years and in that time have had nine children. All but one are living.

MISS ELIZABETH FREWEN, of Philadelphia, who kicked a Prince, and is proud of it.

Custom Officers Seize Davis Trophy

International Tennis Cup, Just Won by America Is Held Up for Duty.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The Davis cup, international tennis trophy, recently won in England by the American team, was seized by customs officials when it reached here to-day on the liner Mauretania, but Collector of the Port Mitchell intimated tonight that the prize would probably be released within a short time.

The basis of the seizure was the officials claim that although the trophy was originally American property, it had been abroad so long that the payment of duty might be necessary.

Woman Not Man's Equal, Says Prelate

Archbishop Says He Wouldn't Dare Say Suffrage Agitation Is Against Church Rules.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 16.—"I do not believe the Creator intended the position of woman in the world should be the same as that of man," said Archbishop Sebastian G. Messmer, of this city, in an address to the Catholic Press Association to-day.

"But I would not dare make the positive statement that agitation for woman suffrage is against the rules of the church. The church has not taken any definite stand and until it does each individual has a right to think, talk and act as he sees fit."

Weds Model; Loses Home; Goes to Work

'I Should Worry,' Remarks Rich Retired Merchant's Son When Disowned.

WORCESTER, MASS., Aug. 16.—Because William A. Lyttle, Jr., son of Colonel W. A. Lyttle, a wealthy retired merchant and erstwhile member of the Governor's Council, eloped with Miss Thyra Linea Johnson, a 19-year-old artist's model of this city, to Putnam, Conn., he has been disowned by his father.

Colonel Lyttle has ordered his son to give the girl up. Disregarding that mandate, young Lyttle brought matters to a crisis by quietly slipping out of town a few days ago with his sweetheart and having the matrimonial knot tied.

"I should worry," said young Lyttle when he was told of his father's decision, and then he promptly started with his bride to Detroit, where he will learn the automobile business.

HOMESTEADER IS BLOWN FROM HIS BED BY STORM

PIERRE, S. DAK., Aug. 16.—Otto Everhardt, a young bachelor homesteader, arrived at the home of a neighbor dressed only in a two-foot piece of blanket, which he said was all that remained of his household property as a result of the storm which swept this section. Everhardt said that the tornado struck his shack while he was in bed, carried away the shanty and bed and left him uninjured. Other homesteaders suffered heavy losses, reports indicate.

Grape Juice vs. Milk

Secretary Bryan Does Not Have Undivided Support of Cabinet in Choice of Beverage.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Grape juice as a Cabinet beverage has gone into eclipse, in spite of the prominence given to it by Ciceronian eloquence as being the only nectar of the gods.

A canvass of the preferences of other members of the Cabinet beside that of Mr. Bryan, whose favorite beverage is well known, disclosed the fact that plain old milk, sweet and buttermilk, is ahead in the race. President Wilson prefers orange juice to that of the luscious grape.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels is one of the sweet milk champions and has a fellow champion in Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo leans toward buttermilk.

Attorney General McReynolds and Secretary of War Garrison are said to be ardent milk advocates.

Secretary of Agriculture David Houston is one of the two members that find enjoyment in pure unfermented grape juice.

Secretary of the Interior Lane prefers hot tea, while Secretary of Commerce Redfield likes his tea cold.

Charges Sister Stole Her Husband's Love

California Woman Names Beautiful Relative In Her Plea for a Divorce.

SUSANVILLE, CAL., Aug. 16.—Charging that her younger and prettier sister had stolen her husband's love, Mrs. Celia Rundquist Schaefer asked Judge Monroe for a divorce from Marin Schaefer, a fruit grower and rancher. Miss Rose Rundquist, sister of the plaintiff, was named as co-respondent.

Mrs. Schaefer testified that her sister admitted that her husband was a "grand man," and that he showered attentions upon the sister and admitted making love to her. The plaintiff also claimed that she had to support both for two years.

Judge Monroe held that there was insufficient corroborating evidence and instructed the applicant for divorce to get more witnesses.

AUTO AS MATADOR SAVES FARMER FROM MAD BULL

ELGIN, ILL., Aug. 16.—Matadors may be succeeded by automobiles as bullfighters. This was proven when Peter Green, a farmer, 60 years old, of Huntley, was being gored by a bull in one of his pastures. His screams attracted an automobile party of three men, who were in the road. They witnessed the attack for a moment, then the driver of the big touring car made a dash into the pasture and after the bull.

The horn was tooted and tooted, and the bull finally was driven away from the helpless farmer. Three of Green's ribs were broken, but he will recover.

GIRLS BARE SECRETS OF FLIGHT WITH DIGGS AND CAMINETTI

Blushing and With Downcast Eyes They Tell Jury Pitiful Story of Their Downfall

FEAR OF EXPOSURE OF THEIR RELATIONS WITH MEN LED TO ELOPEMENT

Marsha Warrington Declares Both She and Lola Norris Had Promises of Marriage When They Embarked on Trip---Firm Under Cross-Fire.

MARSHA WARRINGTON and Maury T. Diggs, whom she accuses on a white slavery charge, as they appeared in court. Below is Lola Norris, the other girl witness in noted case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—The case of Maury I. Diggs, formerly State Architect of California, charged before the United States Court under the Mann white slavery act because he took pretty, dainty Marsha Warrington, of Sacramento, to Reno, Nev., leaving behind a beautiful wife and a little daughter, has passed the stage of revelation and disclosure and now has come to the technicalities of defense.

It will be recalled that on March 10 last the tea tables of the West were rattled by the tale that Diggs had run away with Miss Warrington, daughter of a general agent of the Santa Fe, and that F. Drew Caminetti, son of the Commissioner General of Immigration of the United States, had fled from his wife's children at the same time, taking with him Miss Lola Norris, the prettiest girl in the State Library, daughter of one of the oldest and most respected families in the Capital of the State.

Caught in a bungalow at Reno, the United States authorities took over the prosecution.

Becomes National Incident.

Then came the effort at Washington to postpone and suppress that prosecution, with the explosion and resignation of United State District Attorney John L. McNab, the forcing of Cabinet consideration and the administrative fake of sustaining Attorney General McReynolds in theory and rebuking him in fact and procedure. An escapade of love and champagne had been dignified into an event of national importance.

After a struggle that exhausted the entire panel and required a special venire, a jury was sworn, and on Tuesday of this week came the long-expected sacrifice—the appearance of Miss Marsha Warrington before her shearers.

She appeared, a pretty, plump, frightened little thing, 20 years of age, who kept her eyes in her lap and slowly and painfully told, detail on detail, of her meeting with Diggs of the making up of a joy-hunting party of four with Miss Norris and Caminetti; of her yielding to her lover's importunities in his office; of trips that extended near and far, joy riding to destruction.

Then she told of how Diggs and Caminetti had, playing upon their fears of arrest and exposure, induced and coerced her and Miss Norris to fly with them to Nevada. There was no relation, however intimate, no situation, however delicate, that the pretty miss was not forced to disclose.

Terrified Into Trips.

Next came Miss Norris, tall, willowy and prepossessing, and she, too, clearly, distinctly, compellingly, told how she had loved not wisely and how she and Miss Warrington had been cajoled, persuaded and terrified into accompanying Diggs and Caminetti to Reno, where her own downfall was completed.

There has been something of corroboration of the love tale and the completion of a hard case under the letter of the Mann law, which punishes those who take women from one State to another for the purpose of making them mistresses and concubines.

And now the defense has stated its case. It does not intend to deny the stories of the two girls, but will rest its hopes on the theory that there was "no persuasion" to leave California, or "intent" to force the young women into concubinage in Nevada; but that all fled Sacrameto in the same fear of exposure of their liaison and arrest and disgrace following the exposure.

Both Miss Warrington and Miss Norris had to submit to the most searching questions during their appearance on the witness stand. The two girls occupied the stand from Tuesday to Friday. The transcript of their testimony virtually tells the complete story of the escapade that led to the indictment of Diggs and Caminetti and made the flight to Reno eventually result in a crisis in the Cabinet of President Wilson. On it the Government proposes to convict the two defendants.

Love for Wife Forgotten.

"How often during the two weeks prior to your departure to Reno did Mr. Diggs discuss with you his relations with his wife?" was one of the first questions asked Miss Warrington by Special Prosecutor Roche.

"Several times," replied Miss Warrington, giving the answer in such low voice that Judge Vanfleet had to tell her to speak up louder.

Q. Did he say anything concerning himself and yourself in the future?—A. Yes.

Q. How often did he refer to his regard for you?—A. He spoke of it very often and said that he cared more for me than he did for his wife.

Q. Did you believe what he said?—A. I did.

Q. Did Diggs demonstrate his affection—I mean did he ever kiss you?—A. Yes, he did.

Q. Did he discuss marriage with you?—A. He did.

Q. What did he say about marriage?—A. He said he would divorce his wife and marry me.

Q. How often did he discuss marriage with you?—A. I don't know.

Q. More than once?—A. Yes.

Best to Leave City.

Q. Now, tell the jury what the defendant said that resulted in your deciding to leave Sacramento.—A. Well, he said his father was coming up from Berkeley to prosecute us; that there was talk about us all over town; that it was best for all of us to leave the city, and that it was the advice of his attorney. He said he had paid an attorney large sums for his advice on the situation.

Talks of Reform School.

Q. Now go on and state what you said and what the others said, starting with the first discussion.—A. Well, Mr. Diggs said we would be sent to the reform school; that there was going to be something published in the papers; that we would be tried in the juvenile court and there was a warrant out for our arrest, and if we did not go we would be put through the third degree.

Q. By whom?—A. He didn't say. The policeman, I suppose.

Q. What did Caminetti say?—A. He didn't say much. He just agreed.

Q. What did you and Lola Norris say?—A. We said we couldn't go.

Q. What part of the time of your meetings was taken up with these discussions?—A. Most all of the time.

Q. Did you agree to leave for Reno before Saturday, March 9?—A. No.

Q. Did Miss Norris?—A. No.

Q. Did you make any statement as to the effect of your leaving on your father or mother?—A. I said I couldn't go and leave my father; it would simply kill him. He said it would all come out in the papers anyway, and I might as well go.

Would Kill Her Mother.

Q. What did Miss Norris say about her mother?—A. She said it would kill her if she left.

Q. Did the men say anything about that?—A. Diggs said her mother would get over it.

Q. How soon did they say you should get away?—A. Right away.

Q. Did they say that each time you discussed going?—A. Yes; they said we had to go immediately every time.

Q. What time did you meet Diggs and Caminetti at the Saddle Rock restaurant the evening you left for Reno?—A. About 8:30 o'clock.

Q. Did Diggs say anything about marrying you there?—A. He said he would get a divorce from his wife and marry me.

Q. Did he say anything about any action his wife might take?—A. Regarding a divorce, do you mean? He didn't say she would get a divorce.

Q. Did Diggs say what Caminetti would do?—A. He said Mr. Caminetti was going to get a divorce from his wife and marry Miss Norris.

Q. Who did the talking?—A. Mr. Diggs. He said we might go to Salt Lake City, Reno or Los Angeles. He finally decided Reno.

Q. Was anything said about what would happen if you didn't go?—A. He said we had to go; that we couldn't back out now.

Q. Did you protest?—A. We said we would stay there and take our chances, and he repeated it was too late to back out then.

Q. What was said about tickets?—A. First we talked about buying them ourselves. Mr. Caminetti said it would be better to have the girls buy them. Finally Diggs said he would get them.

Q. Was any more money given to anybody by one of the four?—A. Mr. Caminetti gave Miss Norris some money.

Q. How much?—A. I don't know.

Girl Kept Money.

Q. To buy tickets with? What did he say when he gave her the money?—A. He told her to keep it.

Q. How long after Caminetti left did you stay in the restaurant?—A. About an hour.

Q. What did you talk about?—A. About Mr. Caminetti and whether he would get the money, and our destination.

Q. How were the berths occupied?—A. Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti had the upper and Mr. Diggs and myself had the lower berth.

Q. What baggage did the party have?—A. Mr. Diggs had a suitcase and I had a grip.

Q. Was the baggage checked?—A. No.

Q. Did you see the tickets?—A. I saw Mr. Diggs give them to the conductor.

Q. Where did you go from the restaurant?—A. The depot.

Q. Did you wait in the depot for Caminetti?—A. No; he was to return to the restaurant. There was some talk about going on an earlier train. We waited in a little street car waiting room near the depot. Miss Norris stayed in there when the train came in. I walked out with Mr. Diggs and told him to go and I would stay there. He said, "No," that he thought too much of me to have me stay there. The train finally left.

Caminetti Gets Money.

Q. Then Mr. Diggs went to the waiting room and telephoned?—A. Yes, to Mr. Caminetti, I think.

Q. Then what did you do?—A. We returned to the Saddle Rock and waited half an hour for Mr. Caminetti. When he came, he said he had the money and would go on the next train.

Q. Then you did what?—A. We went to the depot.

Q. What was said about tickets?—A. Mr. Diggs said to wait while he got the tickets.

Q. Whom did you wait with?—A. With Lola Norris and Mr. Caminetti.

Q. Then what?—A. When the train came, we got on.

Q. What kind of a car did you get in?—A. A Pullman sleeper.

Q. What part did you go into first?—A. We stood in the car while Mr. Diggs got a drawing room.

Q. Who paid for the drawing room?—A. Mr. Diggs.

Q. Who ordered the porter to make up the berths?—A. Mr. Diggs.

Q. Did the four of you enter the room together?—A. Yes.

Q. How many beds were there in the drawing room?—A. Two berths and the little side bed.

Q. Did you go to bed?—A. Yes.

Q. Right away?—A. Yes.

Tried to Rent House.

Q. Miss Warrington, you recall, do you, going to the Riverside Hotel on the 10th day of March, 1913?—A. I do.

Q. Was that after or before the four of you had your lunch at the cafe?—A. After.

Q. Upon leaving the cafe in Reno, just state to what place the two men went, that is, Mr. Caminetti and Mr. Diggs?—A. They said we could go to the hotel and wait for them and they would try to rent a house.

Q. During the time that you were in Reno with Mr. Diggs and Mr. Caminetti and Miss Norris, were any further statements made by Mr. Diggs as to what he intended to do so far as you were concerned?—A. I don't understand.

Q. Well, I mean so far as marriage was concerned?—A. Yes.

Q. What, if anything, did he say?—A. He said he would get a divorce from his wife and marry me.

Q. And what, if anything, did Mr. Caminetti say in your presence to Miss Norris regarding that subject?—A. He said the same thing.

Q. What room in that bungalow was occupied by you?—A. The front room.

Q. Who else occupied that room with you?—A. Mr. Diggs.

Q. Who occupied the rear room, that is, the north bedroom?—A. Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti.

Miss Warrington was subjected to a gruelling cross-examination by Nat Coghlan, counsel for Diggs and Caminetti.

Replying to his questions, Miss Warrington explained she was working for her father, general agent of the Santa Fe Railroad at Sacramento, as a stenographer at the time she went to Reno.

"Under what circumstances did you meet Mr. Diggs?" she was asked.

"He was introduced to me by a friend of mine, Mr. Monte Austin," was the girl's reply.

Q. Were you not introduced to Mr. Diggs as Miss Williamson?—A. I could not say?

Q. Did Mr. Austin give you the name of Mr. Diggs?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you at that time know who Mr. Diggs was?—A. I did not.

Q. You did not know whether he was a married or a single man?—A. Mr. Austin told me that he was not living with his wife at that time.

Pair Met Frequently.

Q. When was it that you met Mr. Diggs the next time?—A. The last of October.

Q. Did you meet him frequently after the second time?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember visiting Mr. Diggs and Mr. Caminetti in the city of San Francisco and going to the Grand Hotel during the month of February, 1913?—A. Yes.

Q. And did Mr. Caminetti and Miss Norris stop at the Grand Hotel, the same place, in San Francisco, upon that occasion?—A. Yes.

Q. And the same room was occupied by you and Mr. Diggs upon that night, was it not?—A. Yes.

Q. And Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti, to your knowledge occupied another room alone in that hotel, did they not?—A. Yes.

Stopped at San Jose.

Q. Upon the second day of February, 1913?—A. Yes.

Q. And did Mr. Caminetti and Miss Norris stop at the Grand Hotel, the same place, in San Francisco, upon that occasion?—A. Yes.

Q. And the same room was occupied by you and Mr. Diggs upon that night, was it not?—A. Yes.

Q. And Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti, to your knowledge occupied another room alone in that hotel, did they not?—A. Yes.

Stopped at San Jose.

Q. Upon the second day of February, 1913, in company with Mr. Caminetti and Mr. Diggs and Miss Norris, did not go in an automobile from San Francisco to San Jose?—A. Yes.

Q. You stopped, did you not, at the New Montgomery Hotel, at San Jose?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember, Miss Warrington, going to Stockton upon a certain Sunday in January, 1913, with Mr. Diggs?—A. Yes.

Q. Didn't you go to the Old Heidelberg there and hire a cottage for the afternoon?—A. I don't remember.

M. Coghlan—I will ask you if you do not remember going to Jackson with Mr. Diggs and Miss Norris in the auto of Mr. Diggs upon election night for the purpose of getting Mr. Caminetti—that is to say, election night in November, 1912?—A. Yes, I remember.

Q. Where did you stop at Jackson that night?—A. We didn't stay there. We came right back.

Q. During that trip did you and the other three members of that party drink any intoxicating liquors?—A. Yes, a little.

Q. Is it not a matter of fact that you arrived home on that night about 3 o'clock—I mean the next morning, on the morning of November 4, I believe it was or, at any rate, the morning after election—and that you had been drinking considerably upon the trip?—A. I do not remember what time we returned home; I do not think it was so late as that.

Wanted to Leave Town.

Q. Is it not a matter of fact that you wanted to leave Sacramento by reason of the fact of your condition?—A. No.

Q. And you were frightened at that time, were you?—A. Yes.

Q. Afraid that you might be arrested? Is that correct?—A. That is what Mr. Diggs said, that we were to be arrested the next day.

Q. I am asking you now if you were afraid or were not afraid you would be arrested.—A. Certainly.

Miss Lola Norris made an even better witness for the Government than Miss Warrington, although much of her testimony was simply in corroboration of the testimony of her chum.

"How old are you?" she was asked by Prosecutor Roche upon taking the stand.

"I was 20 the 3d of last August," she replied.

Q. Do you know Maury I. Diggs?—A. Yes.

Q. From when does your acquaintance with him date?—A. Since about the latter part of October, 1912.

Q. At that time where were you employed?—A. In the State Library, Sacramento.

Q. You are acquainted with Drew Caminetti?—A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been acquainted with him?—A. A little over a year.

Knew He Was Married.

Q. Did you know he was a married man?—A. I did.

Q. And did you know Mr. Diggs was a married man?—A. Yes.

Q. Now, Miss Norris, you remember the trip you took to Reno with Mr. Caminetti and Miss Warrington and Mr. Diggs. How many times were you in the habit of meeting together before that time?—A. Three or four times each week.

Q. Did Diggs say anything about his relations with his wife during these meetings?—A. Yes; he said he was not happy with his wife.

Q. How often did he say this?—A. A number of times.

Q. And did Mr. Caminetti say anything about his relations with his wife?—A. Yes.

Q. What did he say?—A. He told me he was not living happily with her.

Q. Did Diggs ever tell you that his relations with his wife were about to be served? What, if anything, did he say upon this subject?—A. Well, I remember on one occasion that I received a telephone message saying that he and Mrs. Diggs had agreed to separate and that she was to apply for a divorce in a few days.

Promised to Marry Her.

Q. Did Mr. Caminetti say anything about his wife and what his plans were respecting her after he went away?—A. He said that he would get a divorce from her and marry me.

A. He said that he would get a divorce from her and marry me.

Mr. Roche:

Q. Go on and state what occurred in the drawing room after you entered it?—A. There were two berths on one side, an upper and a lower, and a couch on the other side. I lay down on the couch for a while.

Q. What became of Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington?—A. They went into a lower berth?

Q. What became of Mr. Caminetti?—A. He entered the upper berth.

Q. You were still lying on the couch?—A. Yes.

Q. How long did you remain there?—A. About half an hour.

Q. Then what did you do?—A. I got into the upper berth.

Q. At whose request?—A. Mr. Caminetti's.

Reached Reno in Morning.

Q. Do you recall what time it was when you reached Reno?—A. It might have been 8 or 9 o'clock the next morning.

Q. Now coming back to the trip to Reno, did you shed any tears on the train?—A. Yes, because I was very unhappy.

Q. How were the rooms occupied at the bungalow you finally rented at Reno?—A. Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington occupied the front rooms and Mr. Caminetti and I the back room.

Q. At this time had Mr. Caminetti made any declarations of his intention to marry you?—A. Yes; he promised that he would marry me.

Q. When the officer finally arrived with Mr. Martin Beasley, what did you and Miss Warrington do?—A. We cried, but he told us not to worry—that everything would be all right when we returned to our homes and parents.

Q. Was any hilarity indulged in by either Miss Warrington or yourself on this occasion?—A. No. We couldn't laugh, because we were both very unhappy.

Q. Now, Miss Norris, prior to this trip to Reno, had you ever been intimate with any man besides Mr. Caminetti?—A. I had not, and Mr. Caminetti knew it.

—A. I had not, and Mr. Caminetti knew it.

Q. And when you entered into these relations with Mr. Caminetti, you believed that he would marry you?—A. Yes, sir.

Miss Norris was cross-examined by Attorney Robert Devlin, of the defense, former United States District Attorney here.

"Now, Miss Norris, on the trip you took to San Francisco and San Jose," was one of Attorney Devlin's questions, "did not Mr. Caminetti at first object to going, saying his wife was ill in the hospital, and didn't Miss Warrington say, 'You're a piker. We girls have framed this up and you must go along'?"

"I don't remember any such thing," Miss Norris answered.

Q. Did you have anything to drink on this trip?—A. I think I had some lemonade.

Q. Don't you remember that there was considerable drinking done in the party, and that you girls took part in some auto racing with another machine containing theatrical people, members of David Warfield's company?—A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember that when you finally returned to the Grand Hotel it was very late—about 4 o'clock in the morning?—A. No, sir. I had no idea what time it was.

Q. You said you rapped on Miss Warrington's door after you had reached the hotel and that you tried to enter her room. Did she hear you knocking?

Objection interposed by Mr. Roche.

Q. Did you stay in the room all night with Mr. Caminetti after you left the Grand Hotel and went to San Jose—at the hotel in San Jose?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time did you rap on Miss Warrington's door?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after the trip to Jackson did you make another trip to Stockton—you four?—A. Yes, sir.

Registered as His Wife.

Q. Do you remember on this occasion that Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington retired to a room and were gone for two hours, and that you and Mr. Caminetti retired to another room?—A. I don't remember.

Q. Upon your arrival in Reno, Mr. Caminetti registered at the Riverside Hotel as Mr. Ross and you as Mrs. Ross?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Diggs as Mr. Enright and Miss Warrington as Mrs. Enright?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after leaving the hotel and going to the cottage that you occupied, do you remember Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington going downtown and buying you a night gown?—A. Yes; they returned with one, but I don't know who bought it.

Q. Do you remember after the Reno incident that Miss Warrington heard that Mr. Diggs and his wife were reconciled, and that she remarked: "If I can't get him, he'll go to the penitentiary?"—A. She never said that to me.

Q. Do you remember on one occasion entering the private office of Mr. Diggs in Sacramento when he was alone with Miss Warrington? Do you remember on this occasion Miss Warrington remarked, "What do you think this is—a private show, and why don't you buy tickets?"—A. No, sir.

BOTH PROMISED MARRIAGE, GIRLS TESTIFY

ENTERS RACE FOR COUNCIL FIFTH WARD

JESSE B. LEE

Well Known Business Man Who Announces His Candidacy for Council.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 16, 1913.

To the Voters of the Fifth Ward:

I hereby respectfully announce myself a candidate for Councilman to succeed Hon. J. J. Greer, whose term expires with this year, subject to the action of the city primary.

I was born in the Fifth Ward and have lived in its boundaries all my life. I am reasonably well informed about city affairs and feel that I am in position to render you efficient and intelligent service.

I am the candidate of no clique or faction, and shall always vote for and advocate those measures in Council which, in my opinion, are for the best interests of the people of the city and my ward, regardless of where they come from or who supports them.

I shall not be content to support measures introduced by other people, but shall endeavor to introduce and advocate measures which I have originated for the good of the people.

On all such questions as charter reform, etc., I shall endeavor to ascertain the wishes of my constituents, and then support their will, whether it coincides with my own private and personal views or not.

I shall do my best as your representative, if elected, to render you capable and satisfactory service, always standing for the best thing to be had for the city as a whole and my own section and ward in particular.

I will appreciate the vote and influence of my many friends and the voters generally of the Fifth Ward.—Adv.

'COURAGE' IS MESSAGE SENT BY HAWTHORNE

Distinguished Prisoner Writes Poem When Told That Attorney General Denied Him Parole.

CONVICTS ARE SYMPATHETIC

Author Gives No Outward Sign of Keen Disappointment, Declares Penitentiary Inmates.

Julian Hawthorne, novelist, poet, philosopher, in the Atlanta Federal prison, was a very characteristic Julian Hawthorne at the moment when he learned that Attorney General McReynolds had denied him the freedom which the parole board recommended and which he had frankly anticipated.

Hawthorne read a newspaper account of the official action. For a long time he stared at the story, which was a very short story. Then, without a word to the men near him, he went into his cellroom, and lay on his cot.

For half an hour he meditated. Then he arose, and wrote a poem that will be published in the next issue of Good words, the prison paper.

The poem is entitled "Courage."

It is a short verse of Hawthorne's typical pentameter style, and chock full of Hawthorne's typical philosophy of optimism.

Hawthorne Keeps Silent.

All this is the story that Hawthorne's fellow prisoners tell of the incident two weeks ago, when the news first came to the prison that the Attorney General had blasted the hopes of the distinguished prisoner. Hawthorne himself would say nothing of it, maintaining a consistent silence concerning his personal affairs, as he has since he first came to the prison.

It is generally considered among the prisoners who have come to know Hawthorne well that he was keenly disappointed at the action of the Attorney General, especially after friends in Washington had assured him that freedom was forthcoming, and after the parole board had acted favorably on his petition for release. It was believed that he had even laid plans for the period of freedom that seemed to be near.

"It hurt him," said one of the prisoners Saturday. "But he has kept it to himself. He never mentions the subject, and it looks as if he resents the mention of it by others. When they say anything about it, he usually laughs, and says nothing.

Prisoners Sympathetic.

"Well, it was only the newspapers who were sure I would get out," he answered once, however, to a man who said he was sorry. "It never was the most certain thing in the world, and I didn't consider it as such."

There were a good many expressions of sympathy, Hawthorne's friends said. The tall old man is a general favorite in the prison. But with it all there is no outward sign of disappointment as he sits in the midst of his fellows on the little hill overlooking the baseball diamond, his sharp face set, his keen eyes squinting as they look out over the bright, bare, sunlit field.

He and Dr. W. P. Morton will be free, by the natural expiration of their terms, in October.

Daniels to Dispense Fresh Air Hospitality

Secretary of the Navy to Keep Country Home Open Throughout Winter.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Fresh air hospitality will be the slogan Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Daniels will sound in Washington society next winter, now they have decided to retain "Single Oak," their country place on the outskirts of Washington, as an all-year-round residence.

Despite the distance from the fashionable center of the northwest, the Daniels plan a series of unique country sports to entertain their friends in good old Southern fashion, cross-country tramps, week-end parties when hunting and winter sports will be in order, are included in these plans.

At Christmas a jolly house party will make the old mansion ring from rafters to yule log on the roomy hearth.

John Lind Has Most Unusual Job

But Lind Is Most Unusual Man

Calling Bluffs Is His Specialty

Former Governor John Lind, of Minnesota, who is in Mexico to tell President Huerta that President Wilson disapproves of him an dhis policies.

Former Governor Has No Official Position, but Has Been Selected in Ticklish Diplomatic Work.

A plain man named John Lind is in Mexico City awaiting an opportunity to tell the explosive and dynamic President Huerta that President Wilson, of the United States, disapproves of him and his government.

This man is not the Ambassador of the United States. He has no more an official standing than a Chinese coolie. He is a plain American citizen come to discuss matters.

President Huerta may refuse to see him. The President might tell John Lind to go back to Minnesota whence he came, and still would be on safe ground.

But President Huerta will see him, and will talk to him, and will listen to what he has to say. Because John Lind, as all the world knows, is the personal representative of President Woodrow Wilson. He does not stand for the Government of the United States, nor represent any plan of intervention or anexation. He is merely the ears ad mouth of Woodrow Wilson, who wants to know exactly what is going on and why.

The mission on which President Wilson sent John Lind, former Governor of Minnesota, to Mexico, is one of the most remarkable in diplomatic history.

Holds No Office.

"It is to be pointed out that Mr. Lind holds no office which is recognized between nations," announced dispatches from Washington. "A grave responsibility rests on his shoulders. * * * The administration insisted that it should be made plain that Mr. Lind was acting entirely in an unofficial capacity in his mission to Mexico, but that he possesses most extraordinary powers in speaking for President Wilson is admitted."

It is plain that John Lind is on a most unusual mission, to be successful in which he must be calm, cool, careful, tactful, unruffled and all that. He must be alive to his responsibility. He must expect rebuffs. He must be honest, fearless, sincere.

John Lind's friends say he is all that. His enemies concede that he is every bit of it. President Wilson was certain that John Lind would meet all requirements, and so he sent to St. Paul for him.

John Lind is a former Governor of Minnesota. Years after he had served his first term, the Democrats nominated him again. They wanted him badly, and in the convention mentioned the name of nobody else.

But Lind was on his way to Alaska. He refused to turn back to accept the nomination. He refused to say yes or no. They had disregarded his wishes back home concerning a county option plank in the platform, and he scornfully said nothing to their overtures to come back and be Governor.

Weeks passed. Election time drew near. Politicians in Minnesota were certain that Lind would run. Who ever refused a gubernatorial nomination with certain victory to result from it?

Lind's Refusal Firm.

But when Lind got back, he broke his silence with a firm refusal. He would have none of the Governorship. And it being too late for the Democrats to rally around anyone else, the Republican Eberhardt won out.

It is the same calm, imperturbable John Lind for whom President Wilson invented a job as his personal representative. An unusual job it was, and President Wilson looked about for an unusual man to fill it. He decided that his friend John Lind was the man.

John Lind comes naturally by his impassiveness. He was born in Sweden and came to America a boy of 11, when his mother and father decided, like hundreds of other Swedes, to move to the new country and try to find their fortunes in the great Northwest. They came over and moved into their log cabin at Goodhue, Minn.

John Lind went to the common schools in his home town until he was 17. Then he taught school himself, saving his money that he might enter the University of Michigan. Then he practiced law, got married, moved to Minneapolis, held the job of receiver in a land office, went to Congress, lost out for re-election after three terms, served as lieutenant and quartermaster in the Twelfth Minnesota Volunteers during the war with Spain, ran for Governor and was defeated, all before 1898.

But when he came back from the war, the pleased Democrats named him as their candidate for Governor, and won with him. All Minnesota knew him by that time as a calm, self-contained, capable, good-hearted lawyer who never beat about the bush and who usually managed to call the other fellow's bluff. Out in Minnesota they like that kind of fellow.

Takes Defeat Calmly.

In 1900, a bad year for Democrats, he was beaten for re-election. John Lind took his defeat calmly. He just stuck around, practiced law, ran for Congress again, and was elected. After retirement here, he worked plainly and simply and prosperously until President Wilson, knowing him for a worker and a plain-talking, hard-fisted person, sent for him to go to Mexico. It was in the interim, about 1910, that he refused the offer of Minnesota Democrats to make him Governor again.

Mr. Lind is a man of action, cool-headed, alert, and a fighter; but above all he is silent and inscrutable. It is this quality which is going to stand him in good stead in the present situation, and it is the quality which no doubt proved very forceful in moving President Wilson to appoint him.

In all the words of criticism of Mr. Lind's mission to Mexico—and there have been many to criticise the President's course—there has been no hint of disssatisfaction with the personal qualities of the man. It is pointed out that Mr. Lind's mission in Mexico will fail. He is going to tell President Huerta that President Wilson disapproves of him and his government. But none has said that it will fail because of his personality, and it is certain that it will not fail because the President's representative talks too much. If it is to be a game of bluff, John Lind is the man to play it.

Webster's Old Home Restored by Society

Preparations Are Made for Celebration of Rehabilitation of Birthplace of Statesman.

FRANKLIN, N. H., Aug. 16.—The ancient New Hampshire farmhouse in which Daniel Webster was born has been reset on its old foundations and restored to look as it did in the eighteenth century when Webster was a small boy, and preparations have been made to celebrate its rehabilitation. It is in the town of Franklin, and the celebration will take place August 28.

It is expected that President Wilson will attend and deliver an address. Samuel W. McCall, former Congressman from Massachusetts, who was the principal speaker at the hundredth anniversary of Webster's graduation from Dartmouth College, will speak.

Coffee Tastes Cause Break in Family

Wife Liked Hers Strong, Husband Preferred It Weak, so She Entered Suit.

ALLENTOWN, PA., Aug. 16.—Black coffee and the high cost of living wrecked the romance of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hauser, of Catasauqua, who were married three years ago, when he was 63 and she was 43, each embarking in matrimony the second time. The wife, Zenobia, has started divorce proceedings.

Mrs. Hauser says she was used from life with her first husband to good black coffee. Hauser wanted his coffee as weak as dishwater, and also objected to the bills she ran up at the store for her favorite beverage. The rackets that followed got on her nerves to such an extent that she desires to resume the state of single blessedness.

The court allowed her $6 a week temporary alimony.

State Has Turkey Farm to Cut Price

Ohio Goes Into Poultry Business When Cost of Thanksgiving Birds Soar.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, Aug. 16.—The State of Ohio is going into the turkey raising business. Kind o' forced into it, as it were, because of the high price of the favored Thanksgiving bird and the demand from State institutions for the bird.

The experiment was tried out a little the last year, and so successful did it prove that this year practically in all of the State institutions where any chickens are kept turkeys have been added.

The price of turkeys has been gradually soaring until they have become almost too expensive for even the State of Ohio to buy, and rather than permit the wards of the State to go hungry on Thanksgiving Day the employees of the different institutions began the work of hatching them.

Rivals David Harum As a Horse Trader

But Youth Is Forced to Pay Back Money He Got for a 'Frozen Tail.'

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 16.—William H. Schmidt, 17, a horse trader, was directed to give back $70 he accepted from Tom Cavanaugh for a "frozen tail" horse, and return the horse to Tom Shroyer, a liveryman, when his case was heard in court.

Schmidt was charged with false pretenses, in that he represented the horse to have a useful and active fly chaser. As a matter of fact, the swatting appendage was merely ornamental and utterly useless. Schmidt said he did not know the horse had a broken tail.

"Why that horse was as helpless as a baby," asserted Mrs. Cavanaugh. "We had to carry along a fly brush as well as a buggy whip everywhere we went."

Returns $1,000 Gems And Gets $1 Reward

Laundry Girl Is Not Even Thanked When She Returns Diamonds.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—For returning $1,000 worth of jewelry to its owner, Miss Ella Veronica Shea, of No. 969 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, was rewarded with a dollar.

Miss Shea works in a laundry. While unpacking a laundry bag received from Mrs. I. Rodberg, of No. 635 Decatur street, she found four diamond rings and a diamond lavalliete.

"The shock which Mrs. Rodberg got when she received the jewelry was so great she forgot to thank me," said Miss Shea yesterday. "I had scarcely got back to the office when a man came running after me with an envelope in which was a note of thanks and—a dollar."

MORE THAN 300 BILLS PASSED BY LEGISLATURE; GOVERNOR LAUDS WORK

Act for Equalization of Taxes Is Regarded of Supreme Importance, Meaning Millions of Added Revenue to Ga. Each Year.

Measure Was Passed Only After One of Most Dramatic Fights General Assembly Has Known. Will Revolutionize System.

The 1913 session of the General Assembly of Georgia, which adjourned Thursday night, passed more than three hundred bills. Of these more than 250 were local bills, designed to relieve conditions existing in individual counties, and not operative in any other county. The remaining ones were general bills and local bills of general application.

Practically all of the measures have been engrossed and sent to Governor Slaton's office, and need only the signature of the Chief Executive of the State to become laws.

Governor Slaton has already signed some of the more important bills. He signed the Lipscomb-Miller-Anderson tax bill, to be known as the Lipscomb act, within a day after it passed the House, and Friday he signed the bill giving mothers equal rights with fathers to the custody of minor children.

Other bills received the official O. K. Saturday, but the great majority of them will not be signed until the coming week.

Of the 50 or more general bills that passed both branches of the Legislature, 19 are of importance, and their effect will be generally felt throughout the State.

Governor Praises Work.

They have been praised by Governor Slaton, Speaker Burwell, of the House, and President Anderson, of the Senate, as comprising one of the best Legislatures the State has had since the Civil War. They have passed five tax measures that will revolutionize the taxation system of the State, and add millions to the revenues; they have raised the standard of physicians in the State and centralized the control of practicing doctors; they have heard the plea of Georgia mothers and enacted a law that places her on a par with the father and recognizes her ability to care for her own child; they have established a home to care for the wayward girls of the State, and they have shown their friendship to the cause of higher education by passing an appropriation bill that carries large sums for the maintenance of the educational institutions of the State.

By far the most important measure passed by the House is the bill creating the office of State Tax Commissioner and county boards of tax assessors. This law has been characterized by veteran members of the House and Senate and by legislative experts as the best measure that has been passed in Georgia in 50 years.

It will revolutionize the taxation system of the State, and conservative estimates place the amount of revenue it will add to the funds of the State at $1,000,000 a year, sufficient to clear the State of debt and allow plenty of money to conduct the business of the Empire State of the South in a manner commensurate with her importance.

Four other tax bills that will bring in large sums, though the amounts can hardly be estimated until the laws are tried, were passed—the automobile tax bill, the inheritance tax bill, the special tax on bottling works and the occupation tax on corporations.

Inheritance Tax Important.

The inheritance tax alone is expected to bring into the treasury hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The bill providing for the State Tax Commissioner developed the hardest fight. Opponents of tax reform in the House, where the bill was first introduced by Lipscomb of Clarke County, led by Sheppard of Sumter and Stovall of Elbert County, succeeded in defeating the original bill and securing the passage of what was known as the Sheppard substitute, providing for county boards of equalization only. This measure went to the senate, where it was defeated and the substitute prepared that eventually became a law, by Senators Miller and Anderson. Ten Senate substitute, with its provisions for a State Tax Commissioner and the county boards of assessors, came back to the House during the last days of the session.

The fight that developed was one of the most thrilling and dramatic the House has ever seen. During the time the bill was under consideration by the Senate, tax reform members of the House had converted many of their original enemies. Efforts to destroy the bill by substituting amendments were defeated, and the bill was brought to a vote during the latter part of last week.

To Speaker Burwell, of Hancock County, belongs the credit for the passage of the bill. From the time the original Lipscomb bill was introduced he worked hard to get the bill through, and when the Senate substitute came to a vote, and Henderson of Jones County, a staunch friend of tax revision, tied up the vote after a thrilling ride to the Capitol in an auto, Speaker Burwell made the measure a law by casting his vote in favor of it.

Features of Tax Bill.

The bill is modeled after similar laws that are now on the statute books of a number of Northern States, where it has worked satisfactorily. Its main provisions are as follows:

It creates the office of State Tax Commissioner at $2,500 a year, and County Boards of Assessors.

The Tax Receivers of the counties shall open their books February 1 and close them May 1.

In ten days after the books are closed the Tax Receivers shall present the returns to the county boards.

The county board is to be composed of three members, appointed by the Board of County Commissioners or the Ordinary.

The county board must examine the tax returns and equalize them.

The taxpayer, if dissatisfied with the decision of the county board, can ask for reconsideration and arbitration. The differences shall be adjusted by three arbitrators.

The county boards shall complete their work by July 1.

The State Tax Commissioner shall carefully examine all tax returns submitted by the county boards and recommend decreases or increases.

The State Tax Commissioner shall carefully investigate all taxation questions and recommend laws to the General Assembly.

The Tax Commissioner shall visit annually all the counties of the State and investigate conditions.

If the county board is dissatisfied with the decision of the State Tax Commissioner upon its returns, it may appeal for arbitration, to be conducted the same as when a taxpayer appeals to the county board.

Governor Slaton already has appointed a State Tax Commissioner, Judge J. C. Hart, and the formation of the county boards probably will be begun at once. The law becomes operative January 1, 1914.

The medical practices act abolishes the old system of a separate board for each school of medicine, and creates a joint board to pass upon the physicians who apply for permission to practice in Georgia.

The bill for the establishment of a home for wayward girls, to be known as the Georgia Industrial Home for Girls, carries with it an appropriation of $10,000. The original bill carried a $30,000 appropriation, but was cut $10,000 in the House and $10,000 more in the Senate.

Though the Legislature passed many measures that are recognized as good, there were many other good bills that failed to get through. Many of them, however, were held over until the next session for various reasons, and may be passed then. Among them were a number of child labor bills, measures designed to remedy working conditions, the vital statistics bill, compulsory education bill, and others.

In addition to aiding in the fight for tax reform, in which they were strong factors, the Fulton County delegation—Blackburn, Smith and Cochran—succeeded in getting through three bills that directly affect Atlanta. They are a bill creating a new charter for the city, a bill establishing municipal courts, and a bill providing an additional Superior Court judge for the Atlanta Circuit. The three Fulton County men, Blackburn and Smith especially, were recognized as being among the leaders in the House, and were in the forefront in the fight for all the reform legislation that was passed.

Important Bills Made Laws by 1913 Legislature

Here are the most important bills that passed both houses of the General Assembly, and which become laws upon receiving the signature of the Governor:

To provide for a State Tax Commissioner and County Boards of Tax Assessors.

A "blue sky" measure, to regulate the sale of stocks and bonds.

To allow freight trains to run on Sunday.

To increase the occupation tax on corporations.

To place a special tax on bottling works.

The general appropriation bill.

To provide an inheritance tax.

To regulate the practice of medicine and raise the standard of physicians.

To create a new charter for the city of Atlanta.

To create municipal courts in Atlanta and abolish the Justice courts.

To provide an additional Superior Court judge for the Atlanta Circuit.

To provide for the permanent registration of voters.

To establish and maintain a Home for Wayward Girls.

To enable judges to grant charters in vacation.

To create a Western & Atlantic Commission to investigate the release of the State Road.

To give the mother equal rights with the father in the custody of minor children.

To provide a tax of $5 on automobiles.

To create a commission to investigate the advisability of the State publishing its own school books.

To allow trial judges to place persons convicted of misdemeanors on probation, and to provide county probation officers.

To provide for the popular election of United States Senators.

Off in Canoe on 7,000-Mile Trip

Couple to Make Record Cruise

Argonauts to Visit the South

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Green, who have started from Staten Island to cruise to New Orleans and back in a canoe.

Yearning to See Dixie and West Prompts Young Pair to Make Hazardous Journey.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—"We have never been South," said Mrs. Walter Green half to herself. There was yearning in her tone.

"Nor West," said Walter Green, who heard her.

They sat in their canoe as it drifted with the tide, their faces turned away from their Staten Island home, toward the South.

Mrs. Green looked at her husband with a quick inspiration.

"Let's go," she said, eagerly.

And so they planned within a few minutes the 7,000-mile canoe trip on which they started yesterday and which will take them not only South, but West, revealing to them the grandeur of the Mississippi, the warmth of the Gulf Coast and the stretch of the Atlantic Ocean. The two young persons, enthusiastic campers, will be away from their home for ten months or more in the course of the journey.

Will Call on Wilson.

They started up the Hudson River, going on the first stage of the journey to Yonkers. Thence they will go through the Erie Canal to Buffalo, through Lake Erie to Ashtabula, then to Beaver Canal and Rochester, Pa. From there they will go up the Ohio to Pittsburg, down the Ohio to Cairo, up the Mississippi to St. Louis, down the Mississippi to New Orleans, across the Gulf of Mexico and along the coast to St. James City, Fla., through the Everglades and a river or two to Palm Beach, up Indian River to Jacksonville, along the Atlantic coast to Chesapeake Bay, up to Washington to call on President Wilson and present a letter from Mayor Gaynor. Last they will go by canal to Delaware River, Raritan Canal an river to New York Bay and home.

A crowd cheered the gay young couple at their start. A party of suffragettes, admirers of Mrs. Green for her daring, presented her with a "Votes for Women" pennant, which her craft will fly. The life-saving crew of Clifton, to Greens' home, gave them a pennant, which also became a part of the equipment.

Light Equipment Carried.

In order to make the canoe as light as possible, they took only four boxes containing provisions, camp equipage and clothing, and two large duffel bags containing a small circular tent and bedding. All was covered with canvas, which will be used as floor of the tent.

It is the intention of the couple to put into a city, town or village each night, pitch their tent and sleep for eight hours. When the stores they carry run out, they will get new supplies at the places where they will stop.

The Greens are anticipating with the greatest eagerness the portion of their trip that will take them to the South, about the gulf and the South Atlantic coast.

NEW MEMBERS' PET BILLS DYING IN COMMITTEE

Recently Elected Congressmen Have Hard Time Telling Why District Doesnt Profit.

By JONATHAN WINFIELD.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The new members of the House—there are approximately 150 of them—are beginning to find out something about the intricacies of legislation at Washington, and just now they are busy explaining away a bunch of campaign promises. The new member isn't getting anywhere with pet legislation and he is a sorely distressed individual.

Nearly 7,000 bills and resolutions have been introduced in the House of Representatives since President Wilson called the Sixty-third Congress into extra session early in April. About one in a hundred have received consideration, and the ratio bids fair to be maintained during the remainder of the extra session owing to a rule of the Democratic caucus which binds the House committees not to report out legislation before the regular session, which begins in November.

In consequence of this unexpected caucus rule, the new member who came to Congress leaving many promises behind is up against it. His hands are tied; he may introduce bills and resolutions to his heart's content, but they won't get anywhere for months, and perhaps not then. It is embarrassing to make explanations, especially when a statesman beat out some other fellow by promising big things for the district.

All Have Horde of Bills.

The average new member, as soon as he reaches the House chamber, walks up to the bill basket and drops therein a bill providing that the town of Jonesville shall have a $25,000 postoffice. He follows this with a dozen or so bills proposing that certain worthy pensioners in his district shall have their annual pensions increased. Then he comes along with the crying complaint that the little Bee River needs about $50,000 or $100,000 to improve navigation in order that the towns of Squash Center and Hickory Hollow may have increased transportation facilities.

Congressman Newcomer then passed the word along to the newspaper correspondent representing the home paper that he has introduced the foregoing bill and will push it to an early passage. The people back home are duly elated and begin to get glad that they retired the former Congressman and sent so active a successor in his place.

In a short time the new member drops around to the committee to which his various pet kind bills have been referred. Without desiring to appear too solicitous, he gently inquires when he may expect the committee to get together and take up the pressing need of his district. The chairman, with equal gentleness, breaks the news that it will be absolutely impossible to do anything for the present.

Caucus Rules Forbid.

In the first place, says the chairman, a quorum of the committee isn't in town. In the second place, the caucus has forbidden the report of anything except currency, tariff reform and pressing appropriations bills or resolutions at this session. The new member is absolutely unable to see the justice of such a mandate, even though he may have been a member of the caucus. He thought the rule would apply to the other fellow, not himself. There is general woe and lamentation.

It is the same old story, told over in about 50 different ways. Each new member has a peculiar complaint to make and peculiar local needs to satisfy. There is nothing doing, however, and the recruit statesman is told that he will have to wait until the regular session rolls around.

TAKES PRIZED BEES FOR VACATION IN MOUNTAINS

HOOD RIVER, OREG., Aug. 16.—W. W. Dakin, who owns the largest apiary here, left for his vacation in the forest reserves above Parkdale. Mr. Dakin took two hives of bees to the mountains to gather honey from fireweed in the burned-over regions.

"I am going to try for some of the prizes offered at the State fair," said Mr. Dakin.

LIVING DEATH IN ITALY IS FACED BY CHARLTON

Young American Travels in Steerage, but Is Confident of an Early Acquittal.

son of Paul Charlton, law adviser of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, and former President Taft's classmate at Yale. He has stood by his son through all the fight against extradition.

Extradition Fight Begins.

The fight began the day after the confession appeared. It seemed at first that the young man surely must go back to Italy to face trial, and every legal step was taken against it. His friends, led by his father, took the position that he could not be extradited, because Italy had always refused, under the extradition treaty of 1868, to return Italian subjects to the United States to answer for crimes committed here.

They lost this fight, when Italy made a request for the prisoner. The fight was resumed, and Charlton's father entered the insanity plea, in a habeas corpus suit. Losing this in the lower court, the father appealed to the Supreme Court, in which, about a month ago, the opinion of Justice Lurton was handed down, to the effect that Charlton was subject to extradition.

Officers arrived in the United States from Italy last week to take Charlton back for trial. Conflicting reports have been spread regarding the young man's health, certain physicians contending that he is the victim of pulmonary tuberculosis and others that he is in perfect health.

Newspaper reports, written by men who have seen him, say that he appears healthy. He has been allowed an unusual degree of freedom while being held in the Hudson County jail, being permitted to take walks, automobile drives and two hours of exercise each day. Sometimes he was taken to picture shows.

Charlton Expects Acquittal.

Charlton is cheerful. He has expressed the opinion that he will be acquitted in spite of the evidence against him, and has told his father and mother and other friends as well that he will be back home for Christmas dinner.

The trial will be held in Milan some time early in the fall.

Appeals have been made to Secretary of State Bryan, and an attempt even has been made to reach the ear of President Wilson to present the extradition of the young man. His father has stopped at nothing to save his son. But all attempts have proved fruitless. Secretary Bryan, Judge Charlton's personal friend of long standing, has expressed his sympathy, but declared that it was impossible for him to do anything for the son.

The plans for the defense will take the form of an inquisition to bring out the moral and mental traits of the murdered woman, besides the consideration of Charlton's sanity. Attorneys will try to show that there was great provocation for the killing. It is hoped in this that the sentence of Charlton will not be the short-living death at solitary confinement in an Italian dungeon, but a more tempered punishment.

Nance Believed Mad When He Slew Wife

Relatives Declare He Was Mentally Unbalanced When He Left Knoxville Friday.

KNOXVILLE, Aug. 16.—George R. Nance is believed by his wife's relatives in Knoxville to have been insane when he killed her in a hotel at Hamlet, N. C., yesterday. They recite incidents connected with his former residence in this city that cause them to suspect he was mentally unbalanced.

At one time Nance left home and his wife did not know of his whereabouts until she received a cablegram from him in Liverpool, England. Soon thereafter he came here and they remained until they went to Greenville, S. C., last March, where his wife was manager of a sanitarium operated by a company with hospitals in various cities. For four years she was head of this company's hospital at Los Angeles. Her last station had been at Chattanooga, where her local relatives thought she was yesterday.

Mrs. Nance was born in Sweetwater, Tenn., and had many relatives over East Tennessee. She married Nance in Alexandria, Va., nine years ago, and they had no children. Mrs. J. T. Steele, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. B. T. Baker, of Alexandria, Va.; Mrs. Jerry Reagan, of Portland, Oreg., and Mrs. J. A. McCampbell, of Friendsville, Tenn., are her sisters.

Autos Are Barred By Canadian Island

Residents of Prince Edward Will Not Allow Machines to Enter Province.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—"It seems strange in these days when automobiles are seen on every street, on every country road that there should be one section on the American continent where these vehicles are positively prohibited," said R. A. Dewey, of Toronto.

"Recently the Canadian Parliament enacted legislation to permit the use of self-propelling carriages in the Province of Prince Edward Island, but it is by no means certain that the legislation will be effective. There is every indication that the law will never be put in force because a plebiscite on the question was taken throughout the island when the annual district school meetings were held.

"The returns that have come thus far indicate that the farmers are strenuously opposed to allowing automobiles on Prince Edward Island. More than 90 per cent of the population voted no on the proposition, and in some of these places the vote in the negative was unanimous.

Wealthy Father at Last Finds Daughter

Search of 38 Years Ends In Astonishment for His Policeman Son-in-Law.

POTTSVILLE, PA., Aug. 16.—Anthony Lloyd, a policeman, living on $65 a month, was surprised when John Strause, aged 76, walked into his home and embraced Mrs. Lloyd, who turns out to be his only child, lost to him for more than 38 years.

Strause is worth $200,000 and lives in Laramie City.

Many years ago, after he returned from service in the Seventh Pennsylvania Cavalry of the Civil War, he placed his daughter, Emma, in the charge of relatives and went West. Though wealthy, he was unable to find any trace of her until his sudden meeting.

PASTOR SHEDS HIS COLLAR.

GRANITE CITY, Aug. 16.—A new pace has been set by the Rev. W. W. Brown, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Granite City, who tells the men to come without collar or neckties and with sleeves rolled up if that will conduce to their comfort. He promises to do likewise.

WAITS FOR WIFE WITH A HEARSE; FINDS HER ALIVE

Husband Who Got Message of Her Death Overjoyed to See Her Alight From Train

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Heinrich Dietz became the happiest man in Chicago yesterday, and his condition in this respect is likely to be chronic. It all happened in a few seconds. From the depths of woe Mr. Dietz was raised to an ecstatic joy that almost took his breath away.

Dietz is a Russian who came to this country about a year ago, and earned money slowly and saved it until he could rent and furnish a small apartment at No. 529 Hartland court. Then he saved some more and sent a steamship ticket to his wife. She embarked for America. Dietz expected her to arrive here yesterday.

On Thursday night K. W. Kempf, the ticket agent at No. 120 North La Salle street, handed Dietz a telegram from Philadelphia reading:

"Your wife Eva died to-day—on 9:40 B. and O. Comm's Immigration."

That message dropped a somber curtain on Dietz's happiness. To cap his misery, he had almost no money. Kempf in sympathy lent him $10 and gave him a note to P. Hursen, an undertaker. Hursen read the note, then returned the $10 to Dietz and sent a hearse with him to the La Salle street depot.

Dietz was mournfully watching the train when suddenly he saw a plump, rosy cheeked young woman leave it. With a shout he sprang forward and Mr. and Mrs. Dietz were clasped in each other's arms.

Mrs. Dietz had sent a telegram as her husband had requested, but the operator had written "died" instead of "arrived."

AFFINITY EARLE ABOUT TO LOSE 'DEAREST' DORA

Third Wife of Famous Wooer, Declared "Sweetest of Them All," Files Suit.

TELLS STORY OF MEETING

Did Not Know of Long Marital Record of Poet Until She Had Joined Him.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Dora of the laughing brown eyes, third wife and unnumbered affinity of Ferdinand Pinney Earle, New York poet, artist and record wooer—described by him at the time of their marriage in June, 1911, as "the dearest, sweetest and loveliest of them all"—said to-day that she is about to seek her freedom.

She said she actually has begun suit in New York for an absolute divorce, basing her action on evidence she says she has obtained of Earle's behavior on the Continent since she parted from him in March.

Mrs. Earle is now only 25, twelve years younger than Earle. Her maiden name was Helen Theodora Sidford. From her father, an English architect, she inherited artistic tastes and is an artist of pronounced talent. She is a very attractive young woman.

Lived at "Earle's Folly."

The original story that reached America of her relations with Earle narrated a meeting in the fields, a walk home hand in hand, swift and ardent wooing, marriage within the month and a start on a tour of the world, which wound up prematurely in the country home in Monroe, Orange County, known as "Earle's Folly."

Her story to-day sets right much of that early fiction, for the meeting with Earle seems to have been conventional.

"How did you come to give yourself to a man of Earle's matrimonial record?" was asked.

"I knew nothing of his past until after our marriage," she replied. "Whatever his reputation in America, I had lived in a quiet English town and had never heard of his antecedents. After our marriage his life story was cabled from America to the London newspapers. Clippings were sent to me on the Continent on our honeymoon by my mother.

He Softened the Blow.

"It was a terrible shock to find that I had been so utterly deceived, but I accepted the explanation and excuses offered by Mr. Earle and his assurances that I would never have anything of which to complain.

"After our wedding we spent two months on the Continent. In September, 1911, three months following the wedding, we went to America, and lived happily at his place in Monroe, N. Y. Our first baby was born there in April, 1912. I remained with him in America until last January, and then came here to visit my mother, with whom I have since lived. It was arranged that Mr. Earle would come here for the summer.

"At the time of my return I had not the slightest expectation that our relations would go wrong. We kept in constant correspondence. He arrived here in March, remained two days and then went to the Continent. My second baby was born here April 20. Her father has never seen her.

"Soon after he went from here in March information reached me which left me no option except to prepare divorce proceedings. He has appealed to me to abondon them, but that is quite impossible after his conduct as disclosed to me."

Mrs. Earle declined to anticipate by publication the specific evidence she is reserving for the court. Thus the name of the co-respondent is withheld. Judging from Mrs. Earle's convincing manner of speech, she thinks she has ample ground for her petition.

Earle's Love Affairs.

Earle's love affairs were first brought to public notice in 1908 when he took to his Monroe home Miss Julia Kuttner, and informed his wife that the newcomer was his affinity and soul-mate. The rightful Mrs. Earle at that time was formerly Miss Emilie Marie Fischbacher, daughter of a bookseller on the banks of the Seine in Paris, whom Earle had married in 1903 and by whom he had a son, Harold Erwin.

Mrs. Earle departed for France, with a reported money settlement, and obtained a divorce there. Earle, Miss Kuttner and Miss Kuttner's mother went to Europe and domiciled themselves in Venice. Their departure from Monroe was hastened by threats of neighbors there to punish Earle without process of law.

Within a few months Mrs. Kuttner decided a marriage was necessary and a ceremony was performed at the British consulate. Soon afterward a son was born and named Edmond Erwin Earle. In 1910 the second wife sued for the anulment of the marriage on the ground that the ceremony had taken place before Earle was free under French law.

She also charged cruelty, especially following the birth of the child. After long consideration the Westchester County Court granted the petition of annulment and declared the child legitimate.

Earle had not defended either suit, but while the courts were trying to dispose of the second he sailed to Europe with Miss Gertrude Buell Dunn, a bright-eyed young woman from Chicago, who had "advanced" ideas. It was announced that together they would work out and publish a new philosophy on the ideal relations of the sexes. Their zeal subsided and they parted without scandal.

TOWN BLACKLISTS 85 DEMON RUM'S SLAVES

CHESTER, PA., Aug. 16.—Leading citizens of this city are lauding the blacklisting of habitual drunkards, which prevents them purchasing intoxicants in saloons, as a far-reaching temperance victory. The list contains, according to the police, the names of 85 persons who have made no effort to free themselves of the drink habit.

'Kneeless Stocking' Arrives

Fair Wearer Defies Hot Weather

Men's Socks Adorn Girl's--Ahem

Miss Bunee Wyde, pretty actress at Forsyth last week, who shows how comfortable she is in new "kneeless stockings."

Miss Bunee Wyde Is Bold Apostle of New Style and She's a Good Proselyter.

Miss Bunee Wyde said she should worry. Everybody else was swearing at the beastly weather whose heat left no peace in mind or body.

"You see?" she said naively, and hoisted her skirts a wee bit beyond the conventional height. She was wearing half hose. Men's socks.

She had brought to Atlanta a new fashion. Very frankly she announced her belief that the short socks are good to wear, much, ever so much, more comfortable than the long stocking; allow much, ever so much, freedom of the limbs, and are altogether desirable. And to her very best friends she minded not a bit to show them that she indeed wore them.

Everybody in Atlanta laughed at Miss Wyde and with Miss Wyde at the Forsyth Theater last week, where she played with Franker Wood in a little act, "Good Night." Nobody picked her for the bold apostle of a new fashion in wearing apparel, though. But she is, and a pretty good proselyter at that. She talked the new fad very generally in Atlanta while she was here.

She calls them the "kneeless stocking," though. "Half hose" has a cold, unfamiliar, masculine tone to it. And she makes the prophecy that the kneeless stocking will be popular.

"Garters?" said she. "Certainly not. I don't need 'em. Up New York lots of the girls wear silk garters or men's hose supporters with these, but under certain desirable physical features, you won't need anything to hold them up. They just stay.

"Of course you couldn't wear these with a slit skirt, and some might blush to put them on with a tight skirt that clings when you mount a street car or even a sidewalk curbing. Still, there is nothing immodest in wearing kneeless stockings. They are comfortable and convenient.

"Well, you needn't look if you don't want to," she pertly adds.

Faithful Canine Postman Prefers Making His Trips Between Sundown and Dark.

COVINGTON, IND., Aug. 16.—Charles Keller, south of this city, owns a dog which carries letters from Mr. Keller's home to Philip Keller's home, ten miles. When Mr. Keller wishes to communicate with his father he fastens the letter on the dog's neck and instructs him to deliver it.

The trip is always begun between sundown and dark, as this seems to be the time of day that the dog likes to travel best. The following evening the dog will return to his master with a reply.

WOMEN RUN TOWN WHERE MEN FAILED

For Twenty Years Efforts to Put Woodland, Colo., on the Map Were Useless.

WOODLAND PARK, COLO., Aug. 16.—The women of Woodland Park have started a movement to put the town on the map of Colorado's summer resorts.

Twenty years ago the men of the town tried it and their efforts ended a few years ago in the best building lots selling for taxes.

When the men of two decades ago thought the town offered great inducements, they voted $20,000 in bonds and built a water system and an artificial lake in the center of the town.

There were bandstands built in the woods around the town, and a band was maintained for two or three summers. Then the bottom fell out.

The other day the waterworks bonds became due. The men who had been the prime movers in the boom of twenty years ago were discouraged and their daughters and wives took up the affairs of the town.

They organized the Woodland Park Improvement Association. The association succeeded in having the bonded indebtedness compromised for $6,000 and the town now has the money to pay the bonds and improve the water system.

The women have decided to have a series of "tag" days and entertainments by which they will raise funds to put in street lights, street signs, lights at the Colorado Midland station and other improvements.

BOY FINANCIER FIGHTING FOR PRISON PAROLE

Earl W. Butler, of Canton, Ill., Seeks to Escape Penalty for Banking Methods.

CANTON, ILL., Aug. 16.—Earl W. Butler, the boy banker, whose career in frenzied finance wrecked two banks in Fulton and one in Peoria County in 1910, and ended by landing Butler in the Joliet penitentiary with an indeterminate sentence of from one to three years, again is making strenuous efforts through his attorneys and friends, to obtain his release from the State Board of Pardons.

So far the boy banker has not made much progress toward getting his freedom, because of the position taken by former State's Attorney W. S. Jewell, under whose incumbency Butler was convicted of embezzlement in connection with the Ellisville bank, and who is supported in his view of the matter by the present State's Attorney, M. P. Rice.

Butler was convicted in the Fulton County Circuit Court in October, 1911, over a year after his three banks closed their doors, and he was taken to Joliet in November of the same year. He has served nearly two years in the penitentiary and has another year to remain there, if his sentence is carried out to the limit. In addition to imprisonment, the verdict in his case imposed a fine of $2,800, but it is the expectation that he will try to schedule out of this obligation.

Predicts Dancing Is To Be Part of Church

Dr. G. Stanley Hall, President of Clark University, Declares Grace Should Be Encouraged.

GREELEY, COLO., Aug. 16.—That dancing is one of the best forms of exercise that is possible to take and that eventually it will become a part and parcel of the church when the grosser forms of it have been eliminated, was the statement made by Dr. G. Stanley Hall, president of Clark University.

"Dancing in itself as practiced in ancient times is what kept the Greeks and Romans healthful and graceful. The dances of those days were far different from the kind which are popular now and made strong men and graceful women.

"Rhythm is the basis of all physical movement, and I am convinced that this form of amusement, under the proper supervision, will become not only an adjunct to the church, which is proper and right, but to the schools also."

Trees of Ice Age Found in Illinois

Species Have Been Preserved Through Thousands of Years.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Members of the International Phytographic Society who made studies among the hills and cliffs about Lake Bluff this week discovered there species of trees and shrubs that have been retained in the region since the Ice Age. This species, the Europeans found, have been preserved through thousands of years.

The poplar and creeping juniper, examples of the Ice Age flora, rarely found in this part of the temperate zone, were seen flourishing vigorously beside the beech, birch, oak and maple, which followed them in the normal succession. Lake Bluff is said to be "farthest south" for the creeping juniper.

PASTOR POSING AS A DRUG USER GETS VICE DATA

Visits Omaha Stores and Secures Evidence for the Grand Jury, Made Up Like Tramp.

OMAHA, Aug. 16.—In order to more effectively carry on war against vice of all kinds, the Rev. A. E. Hess, pastor of the Hirst Memorial Young People's Church, of this city, has been disguising himself as a "roughneck" dope fiend and scouring the haunts of the denizens of the underworld for proofs of lawbreaking to present to the Grand Jury.

His latest tour was through a number of drug stores suspected of selling "coke." For his disguise he secured the services of a professional costumer, and so good was his "makeup" that he now has in his possession a hatful of little wooden boxes, each containing a few grains of cocaine—each labeled with the time and place of purchase, and in many cases the name of the clerk who sold it.

"I was never so scared in my life as when I started out for the 'dope' drug stores," Mr. Hess. "I was 'made up' like a dope fiend tramp and I was afraid I would be recognized and quizzed.

"At the first drug store I entered twice before I raked up enough courage to ask for the cocaine. The first time I merely watched the traffic; and that was terrible enough. I saw a woman fairly weep in her plea for the drug she craved and for which she had not the purchase price.

AFTER 50 YEARS MOTHER OF 8 IS ENABLED TO SEE

Although 66 Years Old, She Travels From Home to Hospital All Alone.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Fifty years ago a little girl was stricken blind.

She was 16, and never had seen the man whom she later married. In her home at Hillsdale, Mich., she became the mother of eight children.

The father died a little later and they went out into the world, but the mother never had seen their faces.

The woman, now bent and feeble, is Mrs. Mary J. Welsh, and is back in her Hillsdale home, her sight restored. Mrs. Welsh during the last month has been in the Wesley Hospital here. The operation that gave her back her sight, surgeons say, was one of the most remarkable on record. It consisted in the removal of a cataract of fifty years standing.

A chaplain of the hospital, the Rev. M. W. Satterfield, delivered an address in Hillsdale several months ago. He told of the charitable work done by the hospital. The white-haired blind woman heard him. She groped her way forward.

"Can you do anything for me?" she asked. "I only want to see my babies before I go. I have been praying."

A month ago the Methodist congregation took up a collection which made it possible for her to make the trip to Chicago.

MRS. ZACHRY IS NOW IN AUGUSTA WITH HER BABY

Is Confident of Her Ability to Establish That She Is Proper Person for Custody.

AUGUSTA, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Mary Zachry and her one-year-old daughter, Mildred, have returned to the city from Columbia, S. C., where she resided temporarily after her sensational flight from this city with her two children following a decision by Judge Hammond to the effect that the decision of the Ordinary with regard to the award of the children be made the decision of the higher court.

At that time Judge Hammond refused to go into the merits of the case, holding that he had no right to hear evidence on a matter which the Ordinary had already decided.

Mrs. Zachry's attorney, C. E. Dunbar, appealed that phase of the case to the Supreme Court, with the result that Judge Hammond's decision was reversed and the case will be heard in the Superior Court on its merits.

Mr. Dunbar was asked in regard to bringing the case before Judge Hammond again and he said that this would probably be done some time later.

"It requires ten days for the decision of the Supreme Court to reach Augusta in official form," said Mr. Dunbar, "and it will therefore be some time during the fall before the matter is taken up before Judge Hammond."

Now that the opportunity is afforded of a full and unrestricted presentation of the facts in the case, Mrs. Zachry is confident of her ability to establish that she the mother, is the proper person to have the custody of the children.

Judge Henry C. Hammond, of the Superior Court, has ordered that Julian J. Zachry pay immediately $50 alimony due Mrs. Mary W. Zachry, but has allowed some time for the payment of $40 attorney's fees in the case.

C. E. Dunbar, representing Mrs. Zachry, appeared in court to ask the payment of the two sums. Hamilton Phinizy, representing Zachry, pleaded an extension of time. The plea was granted as far as the payment of fees was concerned, and the defendant was given until October 1 to settle them.

Under his own arrangement the alimony was paid at once.

Catholic Schools To Open in August

September 2 and 8 Dates Set—Few Changes in Teachers Expected.

AUGUSTA, Aug. 16.—The Catholic schools in the city will open for the 1913-1914 term September 2 and 8.

The Mount St. Joseph School will not open until October 1, but by that time the new four-story administration building will be completed and the accommodations for more pupils will be greater. The Sacred Heart College, of which Father Salter is president, will open Tuesday, September 2. Father Salter has succeeded Father Sherry to the presidency, and Father Haggerty returns, vice Father Buckley. There are no other changes in the college teaching staff.

St. Patrick's Commercial Institute also opens Tuesday, September 2.

St. Mary's Convent will open Monday, September 8.

The opening date of the Sacred Heart Convent is yet undecided. It is probable, however, that September 2 will be the date settled on.

The St. Francis Xavier School for Negroes, under the direction of Father A. Laube, of the Lyons African Missions, will open September 16, in the new school building. Four of the Franciscan sisters and a lay instructor will compose the teaching staff.

Start Work in Fall on New Augusta Road

Carolina and Georgia Construction Delayed by Inability to Decide on Route.

AUGUSTA, Aug. 16.—President James U. Jackson, of the Carolina and Georgia Railway, announces that work of construction will begin early in the fall.

The delay has been caused by the inability of the officials of the road to decide whether to go via Eureka, as the original plans provided for, or via Johnston. The citizens of the vicinity of Johnston have offered to subscribe liberally to the stock if the road is built through their section, which is one of the finest farming sections in the South.

Memorial Bridge To Open in Augusta

Monument to Major Archibold Butt Will Cost $35,000—Nearly Complete.

AUGUSTA, Aug. 16.—The Butt memorial bridge will be finished within a short time. A contracting firm has been engaged in the work for over ten months and within a few more weeks it will probably be turned over to the city.

The bridge is to be of concrete and will cost about $35,000, exclusive of the decorations. It is to span the first level of the canal on the principal thoroughfare to the Hill, and over an old bridge across the same stream at the same place President and Mrs. Taft and Major Butt often drove.

On one end of the bridge is a monument erected several years ago by Judge Henry C. Hammond, of this city, to the memory of Dennis Cahill, a young Irishman who lost his life attempting to save the lives of two young girls.

More than $3,000 has been raised by the Archibald Butt Memorial Association to properly decorate the bridge.

Firemen Endangered By a Falling Steeple

Lightning Sets Brunswick Church Spire Ablaze and Causes It to Topple.

BRUNSWICK, Aug. 16.—When McKendree Methodist Church was struck by lightning and set on fire, Fire Chief Harrison and three of his men narrowly missed death.

The lightning set fire to the steeple. The chief and three firemen climbed to the roof of a one-story addition adjoining the main part of the building. Before the fire was under control the steeple fell. Chief Harrison saw wha was coming and quickly ordered his men to seek safety. Just as the got under cover the steeple crashed on the roof where they had been standing.

COUNCIL SAYS IT HAS NO CONTROL IN LIQUOR FIGHT

Augusta W. C. T. U. Demands Enforcement of Prohibition Law—Commission Controls.

AUGUSTA, Aug. 16.—Pursuant to a demand from the Augusta Chapter, Woman's Christian Temperance Union, that the City Council of Augusta regulate the saloons of the city and put a stop to the alleged flagrant violation of the law, which was referred to the police committee of the City Council, a report has been made to that body by this committee at a special meeting.

The W. C. T. U. members requested that the City Council tell them, in plain terms, what they intended to do about the Augusta situation. The City Council will make reply that it has no authority in the matter. In effect, the City Council will tell the W. C. T. U. that it can not regulate the saloons within its corporate limits; that if the women wish the law enforced, they will have to appeal to the Solicitor of the City Court or the Police Commission of the city of Augusta. This must be done by "specific charges," presented either to the Solictior or the commission.

From this answer grew a heated argument on the prohibition law and its non-enforcement in Augusta. But the argument was merely by way of diversion. It was suggested that if the police were not doing their duty by the law in Augusta, a movement should be made to impeach the Police Commission, but that was only a suggestion.

Councilman S. H. Myers of the Sixth Ward, discussing the proposition, said:

"Council simply pays the freight. We appropriate between $90,000 and $100,000 a year for the maintenance of the police department, and can not even make a suggestion as to what it shall do."

The city is peculiarly situated in this respect. The police department, unlike the fire department, is not governed by a committee of the City Council. Under an act of the General Assembly of Georgia, a commission, consisting of a member from each of the city wards, and the Mayor, is appointed to govern the police department. The commissioners are elected by the City Council, but immediately when they assume office the commissioners have as much or greater authority than Councilmen. A recent change, removing the power of dictating to the chief from the Mayor and placing it in the hands of the chairman of the commission, removes the last semblance of power of Council over the department. If the commission sees fit to ignore the request of the W. C. T. U., even if all City Council voted to the contrary, it may be done, and there is no hindrance.

So, having investigated the situation and found themselves without authority to suggest to that, the most important, department of the city, the City Council will inform the W. C. T. U. of their find, and will request them "to draw up specific charges of violations of the law and present them to either the Solicitor of the City Court or the Police Commission of Augusta."

REYNOLDS TJ PRACTICE LAW I,,N AUGUSTA COURTS

Augusta, Aug. 16.—Charles G. Reynolds, a brother of Mrs. Rogers Winter, of Atlanta, who was formerly Miss Mary Reynolds Carter, of Augusta, has come to Augusta for the practice of the law, and is now in the office of Colonel D. G. Fogarty.

Friends of both Mrs. Winter and Mr. Reynolds will watch the progress of the young attorney with much pleasure. Though in his early twenties, Mr. Reynolds has been admitted to the bar and practicing law for three years.

MACON BOOSTERS GIVE UP TRIP TO NORTHWEST

MACON, Aug. 16.—The Chamber of Commerce has decided to abandon the proposed booster train to the Northwest. It was finally considered impracticable at this time. Instead, two booster trains will operate intra-State. One will be operated early in the fall, prior to the State Fair, visiting nearly 200 towns.

NEW TRIAL FOR LANIER OVERRULED BY JUDGE

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Judge T. A. Parker overruled the motion for new trial in the case of State vs. W. C. Lanier, under life sentence for killing an infant. Attorneys will appeal the case to the Supreme Court. Lanier's wife, who was jointly indicted with him, was acquitted when she was tried at an adjourned term of court in June.

Dove Hunters Must Wait Until November

Augusta Game Warden Puts Them on Notice—Will Send Violators to Jail.

AUGUSTA, Aug. 16.—Dove hunters have been in the habit of shooting this species of the feathery tribe in August for so many years that they don't know how to stop.

Game Warden W. H. Lanier, of Richmond County, says he will show them.

The dove season doesn't open until November 20, and Warden Lanier says that he is going to arrest all violators of the law and send them immediately to jail if they don't give bond. He goes further and offers a reward of $10 and three-fourths of the fine for the arrest and conviction of violators.

The fields, woods and swamps about Augusta are full of game, and the quail and dove season is expected to prove rich harvest for the sportsmen of this section.

In the Savannah River swamps duck, wild turkey, deer and squirrels are to be found, and this is some of the best hunting in the country.

Schedule to Tybee For September

Superstitious Fears Vanish as Record Is Unearthed—Few Storms in September.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Following a prolonged agitation on the subject, the Central of Georgia Railway has announced a Tybee schedule for September which will answer all requirements of those who care to remain on the island during that month, and will make it possible for the season to be extended for the additional 30 days. It is now up to the people to show whether the experiment is justifiable or not.

For years a sort of superstition has existed that it is not well to stay on Tybee during the month of September. People have thought that it is not healthful to go in the water during this month. There is also a very deep-seated fear of storms during this period, when the hurricane season is in full swing and the weather man is likely to spring a West Indian tornado this way overnight. It is certainly not pleasant on Tybee during one of these storms.

Heretofore the season at Tybee has always closed with Labor Day, after which winter schedules on the railroad were in operation, making excursion visits to Tybee impracticable.

TO USE GATLING GUN IN SHAM BATTLE AT MACON

MACON, Aug. 16.—There will be a sham battle between two platoons of the Macon Hussars on Tatnall Square Park Monday night, and an especial feature of it will be the attempt to capture a gatling gun, led by a squad under command of Sergeants Johnson and Patton. The gun will be defended by squads commanded by Sergeants Winslett and Roberts. This will be the first time in all of the maneuvers of the Macon military that the gatling gun will have ever been used.

TRAVELS 3,000 MILES TO VISIT POINTS IN MACON

MACON, Aug. 16.—North Winship, a well known and popular young Macon man, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nat Winship, after a 3,200-mile journey from the Tahiti islands, where he has been stationed as Consul for two years. He is now on his way to Owens Falls, Canada, where he has been transferred. This will make his trip cover a total distance of 5,000 miles. Mr. Winship will be accompanied to Canada by his parents.

PRESIDENT OF WESLEYAN HEADS NEW ORGANIZATION

MACON, Aug. 16.—Rev. C. R. Jenkins, president of Wesleyan College, has returned from Nashville, Tenn., where he attended a meeting of the presidents of the young ladies' colleges of the South. The presidents formed an organization that will meet once each year, and Dr. Jenkins was elected president, this being a tribute both to him personally and to the fact that he represents the oldest female college in the world.

BARTLETT TO RUN AGAIN, SAYS JONES COUNTY NEWS

MACON, Aug. 16.—In Jones County it is believed that Representative Charles L. Bartlett will be a candidate for re-election, although he announced in his last race that he would not run again. The publication in The Jones County News that it has a straight tip that Judge Bartlett will get in the race has aroused much interest here, but it is not confirmed by his close friends and advisers.

MILLER IS OUT FOR MAYOR IN TIGHT CONTEST

Bibb Representative Is the Youngest Candidate Ever Seeking Macon's High Office.

MACON, Aug. 16.—The local Mayoralty situation was further complicated to-day by the announcement of Wallace Miller, who now is Representative to the Legislature from Bibb County, that he will be a candidate for Mayor.

An enthusiastic meeting of Mr. Miller's friends was held this morning, and a committee was appointed with full authority to organize an Aldermanic ticket. It is expected that his ticket and formal statement to the public will be announced early next week.

Wallace Miller is the youngest candidate who ever entered the race for Mayor of Macon. He is only 28 years of age.

Mr. Miller is a graduate of the University of Georgia. He entered the practice of law here, but later engaged in the commercial field as the manager of a provision house. Two years ago he resumed law, announced his candidacy for the Legislature, and was safely elected, although it took a recount of the ballots to establish his victory.

Mr. Miller's father, Judge A. L. Miller, was Mayor of Macon four years ago, and is one of Macon's leading citizens. However, Wallace Miller is not running on his father's strength, as the elder Miller is opposed to his son's present political venture. He will get his father's support, however.

Mr. Miller's candidacy was first suggested a week ago, but in a very few days the boom became so substantial that Mr. Miller could not resist the importunities of his frineds. A number of prominent citizens have volunteered to run with him for Council, and it is believed that he will have a strong ticket. His campaign probably will be managed by former Representative Walter DeFore and Charles H. Hall, ex-City Attorney.

The campaign likely will be conducted along anti-administration lines.

Waycross Lid Is On 7 Days Every Week

Sunday Closing Supplement by 'Move On Order to 'Houses in Our Midst.'

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Although the first warrants issued in the crusade against the sale of cold drinks in Waycross on Sundays have been withdrawn on the promise of good behavior, it is announced to-day that the campaign for Sabbath observance will in no way be lessened. The prime reformers are H. Murphy and Dan T. Cowart.

Right on top of the fight on Sunday drink sales, Chief of Police John W. Colley has issued warnings to women who have returned here despite the "lid order" issued last fall by Mayor Reed shortly after Atlanta closed the "houses in our midst." Several houses bordering on the disorderly variety have just been closed and the inmates compelled to leave the city. Only a few of the women waited until the last day to leave, as the police let it be known that all caught here after the limit expired would be arrested and tried in Police Court.

Dental Clinic at Medical College

Department of University of Georgia Broadens Scope of Practice.

AUGUSTA, Aug. 16.—The faculty of the medical department of the University of Georgia has made provision for the opening of a dental clinic at the medical college, thereby broadening the scope of practice and theory for the pupils of the institution.

Augusta dentists have co-operated willingly in the clinics, which begin Monday.

The following dental surgeons will have charge of the clinics on the respective days of the week. Mondays, Dr. George W. Woodbury; Tuesdays, Dr. O. K. Fletcher; Wednesdays, Dr. E. M. Wilder; Thursdays, Dr. W. E. Clark; Fridays, Dr. R. H. Calhoun; Saturdays, Dr. L. W. Bethea.

Every afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock the clinics will be held. These, together with the other medical and surgical clinics, the training schools for nurses and social service work, are rapidly placing the Medical College of Georgia in the forefront of medical circles.

MRS. W. H. DOUGHTY DIES AT HER AUGUSTA HOME

AUGUSTA, Aug. 16.—In the death of Mrs. Sarah Felder Doughty, widow of Dr. William H. Doughty, Sr., one of the most highly respected ladies of Augusta and this entire section, has passed away.

Mrs. Doughty died at the ripe old age of 77 years, surrounded by her devoted children. Those surviving her are three sons, Dr. W. H. Doughty, Jr., dean of the medical department of the University of Georgia; Lewellyn G. Doughty and Albert Doughty, and three daughters, Mrs. William E. Jackson, Mrs. W. M. Butt and Mrs. Jefferson M. Berry.

SHORTHAND WILL NOT BE TAUGHT IN SCHOOLS

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Stenography and typewriting will not be taught in the public schools of Chatham County during the coming session "because of the shortness of finances." This is the decision of the Board of Education of the county.

Superintendent Otis Ashmore and Principal B. F. Pickett, of the High School, were instructed by the board to investigate the question and report. They hold that the only additional expense would be the purchase of typewriters. It would not be necessary to employ another teacher. Bookkeeping and commercial subjects already are taught in the schools.

PETERS NAMED PRESIDENT OF ELECTRIC MEN

Southeastern Section of National Light Association Closes Its Convention at Macon.

MACON, Aug. 16.—T. W. Peters, of Columbus, to-day was elected president of the Southeastern Section of the National Electric Light Association. Mr. Peters was the unanimous choice of the executive committee in whose hands the selection of the officers for the ensuing year was left.

The other officers elected were C. D. Flanigan, Athens, first vice president; E. Brigham, Tampa, second vice president; E. S. Roberts, Savannah; M. W. Obbrett, Birmingham; M. Lindsley, Durham, N. C.; G. K. Diston, Columbia, S. C.; H. C. Adams, Jacksonville, executive committee.

The executive committee decided to wait until later to select the place for the next meeting. The selection will be made at a meeting of the committee which will be held in September. An interesting paper on "Daily Meter Readings" was read this morning by F. B. Culley, of Augusta.

Most of the delegates will leave for their homes late this afternoon, while others will leave to-night and to-morrow morning.

FETNER TO HOLD PLACE ON MACON WATER BOARD

MACON, Aug. 16.—W. H. Fetner, chairman, of the Water Board, who last week decided to resign that position and run for Council, after having resigned from Council to get on the Water Board, has reconsidered and will not make the change. Mr. Fetner is master mechanic of the Central of Georgia Railroad.

RHEUMATISM COMES FROM CONDITIONS WHICH CAN BE REMEDIED

But Local Applications on the Skin Cannot Get at the Cause of Your Suffering.

Just a bilious attack and a slight deposit of uric acid. Now calomel and similar mercurial purgatives do not dissolve and expel the uric acid sediment that forms from undigested, fermenting foods, and when this poisonous acid is not expelled it accumulates quickly, thickens the blood and settles in joints and muscles. The joints and muscles then become stiff.

An attempt to cure this rheumatism must be directed toward removing uric acid from blood and tissues, breaking up the crystalline urates already formed and preventing new deposits.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is remarkably successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It dissolves uric acid out of the tissues, holds it in solution and expels it in the urine. It thoroughly cleanses the system of fermentation and purifies the blood. It will give prompt relief in all cases of rheumatism resulting from uric acid poisoning.

If you are suffering with rheumatism, try JACOBS' LIVER SALT immediately. It will relieve you more promptly and surely than anything else. Don't take an inferior substitute; some closely imitate the name, but none produces the same result. Insist on the genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT, 25c. If your druggist can not supply you, full size jar mailed upon receipt of price, postage free. Made and guaranteed by Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., Atlanta.—(Advt.)

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT FOR DALTON

Public Utilities Taken From City Council—Plants Must Be Self-Sustaining.

DALTON, Aug. 16.—Dalton will have at least a partial commission government beginning with September 1, when the charter amendment bill passed during the closing days of the Legislature goes into effect.

The bill takes the city utilities, including water, gas and electric light and power plants, completely out of the hands of City Council, turning over the management to the board of water, light and sinking fund commissioners, which consists of Paul B. Trammell, H. J. Smith and H. B. Farrar, three of the city's leading business men.

This commission will have absolute control of the municipal plants. The board has the right to fix rates, collect all money due from consumers, authorize and make extensions, etc., without consulting the administration, the utilities being entirely separated from the rest of the city government.

The bill further provides that the entire responsibility rests upon the commission, City Council being in no wise bound by the actions of the board. The plants must be at least self-sustaining, for Council is not expected to appropriate one cent for maintenance of the various plants, appropriating only for the sinking fund and interest on outstanding bonds.

It also provides that if City Council receives a bid for the sale of the plants, the bid being accompanied by a certified check for one-fourth the amount offered as a purchase price, and a petition signed by one-third of the qualified voters, an election shall be called for the purpose of ascertaining if public sentiment favors a sale. If in the election called in such an event two-thirds of the registered voters favor a sale, such a step will be taken.

AGED NEGRESS SAVES FIVE CENTS ON HER TAXES

DALTON, Aug. 16.—"Aunt" Loucinda Dukes, an aged negress, was the first local taxpayer to take advantage of City Council's offer of 3 per cent discount on taxes paid prior to August 20.

She sent the money to the Clerk's office, where it was found that her total taxes amounted to $1.88. The discount saved her the sum of five cents, which would have gone into the city treasury had she waited until the last of December, when city taxes fall due.

W. W. CALLAWAY GETS PLACE ON JURY BOARD

DALTON, Aug. 16.—Willis W. Callaway has been appointed by Judge Fite as a member of the board of jury revisers, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Joseph H. Moore.

The board will meet here Monday and begin the work of revising the jury lists of Whitfield County.

THOMAS COUNTY WANTS STOCK LAW PASSED

THOMASVILLE, Aug. 16.—That Thomas County will have a stock law before a great while is very probable, if the wishes of the majority of the farmers are carried out. This is a a matter that has been discussed for some time, but of late the tide of opinion has turned so decidedly in its favor that it begins to look as if concerted efforts will be made to have such a law for the county.

ROADS WILL ENLARGE CORDELE UNION DEPOT

CORDELE, Aug. 16.—It is authoritatively reported that work of enlarging the Union depot in Cordele and making improvements on the grounds will begin about September 15. The time limit of 60 days set on the railroads by the Railroad Commission will expire on October 1, prior to which time the Georgia Southern road, which will have the work in charge, must begin activities.

DALTON PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO OPEN SEPTEMBER 8

DALTON, Aug. 16.—The Dalton public schools will open the fall term Monday, September 8, the date being set by the school board at a meeting yesterday. Mr. C. D. Meadows, who comes here from the Rome public school system, will begin his service as superintendent of the local schools. An eleventh grade has been added to the High School, the advanced work to be started this year.

Summer-Spoiled Skin Removed by Absorption

(From Home Queen.)

As undue summer exposure usually leaves an undesirable surface of tan, dust or grease, often freckles, too, it would seem more sensible to remove such surface than to hide it with cosmetics. There's nothing better for this than ordinary mercolized wax, which actually absorbs an unwholesome complexion. The thin layer of surface skin is itself absorbed, gently and gradually, so there's no inconvenience and no detention indoors. Just spread the wax lightly over the entire face at bedtime and take it off in the morning with warm water. If you will get one ounce of mercolized wax at the drug store and use for a week or so, you may expect marked improvement daily. When the underlying skin is wholly in view your complexion will be a marvel of spotless purity and beautiful whiteness.

Don't let those summer wrinkles worry you; worry will breed more wrinkles. Better to banish them by bathing the face in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch-hazel. Used daily for a while this will be found wonderfully effective. (Adv.)

Church Building Has Sacred Value

Gainesville Edifice Moved Half Mile. Cost More Than New Structure.

GAINESVILLE, Aug. 16.—Costing several hundred more than the value of the building to move it, Grace Episcopal Church has been moved around corners and through streets, a distance of more than a half mile, from its location on College avenue to the rear of the new church lot on East Washington street.

The reason for moving the building intact is because of its sacred value. Sacred buildings of the Episcopal Church must be kept.

The new church lot was purchased by Bishop Nelson as a gift to the church here. Upon it a building to cost at least $20,000 will be erected, work upon the foundation to begin at once. The present church building removed is being placed upon the rear of the new lot to be used as a Sunday school and instruction room.

Rev. Merlin Jones is vicar of this church.

GRAND MASTER COLDING GUEST OF DALTON MASONS

DALTON, Aug. 16.—Robert L. Colding, of Savannah, grand master of the grand lodge, Free and Accepted Masons of Georgia, will be the guest of Dalton Masons on Monday, August 25, members of the commandery, the chapter and blue lodge and local Shriners all uniting in the reception planned for him at 2 o'clock. In the evening work in the third degree will be put on by Dalton Lodge, No. 105, F. and A. M., the work to be followed by a banquet in the private banquet room of the Masonic temple.

PROF. HUBERT TO TEACH MECHANICAL ARTS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—Professor E. H. Hubert, last year assistant teacher in experimental engineering at the Georgia School of Technology, has been elected head teacher of mechanical arts at the Columbus Industrial High School in this city. He succeeds Professor T. D. Futch, who recently tendered his resignation to the board of trustees.

HOO HOO MEMBERS PLAN BIG TIME AT WAYCROSS

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Next Wednesday will be a red letter day for Waycross. A large number of Hoo Hoo members will gather here for a concatenation.

A large class of "Kittens" will make the trip through the mysteries of the order to become full-fledged Cats, and the Cats have let it be known that the Kittens will be given a royal reception. A banquet will conclude the day's doings.

EQUALIZATION BOARD IN CHATHAM COUNTY

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Under the new tax equalization act the commissioners of each county select the three members of the county equalization board. The Chatham County Commissioners already have taken cognizance of the subject. It is probable the Commissioners will choose a real estate dealer, a contractor and a third man not connected with either of these industries.

'Come Up or I'll Drop This Stone;' He Came

Dalton Officer Forces Man in Well to Climb Into Bucket and Ascend.

DALTON, Aug. 16.—Under unusual circumstances was the arrest of John Holder, charged with burglary, made by Bailiffs A. T. Gilbert and Gus Hicks.

The bailiff found Holder in the bottom of a well in East Dalton, and asked him to come up. He stalled and asked what was wanted, but changed his mind when Bailiff Gilbert balanced a heavy rock over his head. He finally consented to enter the bucket and was drawn up by the bailiffs. There was not sufficient evidence to hold the man, and he was released.

WYNNTON SCHOOL IS BECOMING INADEQUATE

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—So great has been the increase in population of Wynnton, Columbus' most popular residential section, for the past two or three years, that the school building which has been in use for several years has become inadequate and the question of erecting a new building is being agitated. Many of the wealthiest people around Columbus live in that suburb, and it is expected that they will erect a handsome building.

DEEP WATER DELEGATES TO BE ENTERTAINED

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Committees to entertain 100 delegates to the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association convention who will stop here for a day each way on their way to and from Jacksonville, where the annual session of the convention will be held in November, will be appointed by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce at an early meeting.

The delegates will leave Philadelphia on November 14 on a chartered steamship, and will arrive in Jacksonville on November 18. On the return trip they will leave Jacksonville on November 21 and arrive in Philadelphia on November 25. A full day each way will be put in in sightseeing here.

LARGE PLANING MILL BURNS IN SAVANNAH

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Fire destroyed the planing mill of Merryware & Co. last night. The plant, which was valued at $10,000, was partially covered by insurance. Inside the shed was a quantity of dressed lumber, most of it fat pine, which fed the flames like oil. The presumption is that the fire was caused by defective wiring.

BRUNSWICK TICKET AGENT GOES TO WAYCROSS OFFICE

BRUNSWICK, Aug. 16.—H. S. Baggs, ticket agent at the joint passenger station of the Southern Railway and Atlantic Coast Line in this city, has been promoted to the agency of the Coast Line in Waycross and will assume his duties September 1. He will be succeeded by J. G. Stephens, who is now assistant agent at Waycross.

RAILWAY FOR DAHLONEGA IS A PROBABILITY

Plan to Build Branch Line From Gainesville and Northwestern's New Road.

GAINESVILLE, Aug. 16.—Report has it that a line of railroad is to be built from Brookton on the new Gainesville and Northwestern to Dahlonega, a distance of 18 miles.

Dahlonega has no railroad and for the past twenty-five years has been trying to get railroad connection.

Years ago a road was graded from Dahlonega to Gainesville, 25 miles. Coolnel W. P. Price has at the head of the enterprise. The project failed. The rails were never laid.

The grade is still to be noticed. A party went over the route from Brookton to Dahlonega Thursday, and it appears certain this road will be built. The same promoters who built the road from this city to Helen have the branch line in hand.

Bill to Create New Judicial District

Congressman Edwards Will Introduce Measure in Congress. Savannah as Center.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Congressman Charles G. Edwards carried back to Washington with him a completed draft of a bill it is proposed to introduce shortly in both houses of Congress, providing for the creation of a new judicial district in Georgia, with Savannah as its center, for which the bar of this city and section have been working for some time.

Owing to the absence from the National Capital of so many of the members of the Georgia delegation, this bill has not been taken up with them by Congressman Edwards. Just as soon as a quorum of Georgia Congressmen can be assembled, however, a meeting will be called and the measure presented for their approval. It is expected that there will be no opposition on their part to the enactment of the measure.

MEN SHOCKED BY BOLT OF LIGHTNING RECOVER

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—A. H. Price, a Western Union telegraph lineman, who was shocked at Tarver, Ga., on Thursday by lightning, was able to be out to-day. His left side was injured by the bolt and for a long time after the lightning jumped from a wire near him he has unable to move.

Lewis L. Harvard chief clerk to President A. K. Sessoms, of the Waycross and Western, has also recovered from a shock he received while at a telephone during the same storm.

SAVANNAH PLANT FOR FERTILIZER COMPANY

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—A plant in which nitra-germ, a fertilizer, will be manufactured will be established at Savannah in September by the Nitra-Germ Fertilizer Company. The only other plant in the United States is in Milwaukee, Wis.

LIEUTENANT SULLIVAN TENDERS RESIGNATION

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—After three years of faithful service, First Lieutenant George D. Sullivan, of Company A, Savannah Volunteer Guards, has tendered his resignation.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

Spread to Back. Could Hardly Sleep for Burning and Itching. Caused Disfigurement. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Entirely Cured.

214 Brevard St., Tampa, Fla. — "Some three years ago I commenced to suffer from a rash on my face and back. Before the pimples came on my face there were a lot of blackheads. It looked as if the blackheads turned into pimples because after a little while all of them were gone and my face was covered with pimples. They were small at first but gradually grew and right at the end of each pimple it was all white. I carelessly picked them with my finger nails, which made them spread, and I soon discovered them on my back. My back was covered with pimples and my face the same way. At night I could hardly sleep on account of the burning and itching sensation they caused. I felt like a lot of small-sized crabs biting at my back. I did not like to go out because the pimples caused disfigurement.

"Seeing the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in one of the magazines I sent for a sample. At night I would put the Cuticura Ointment on my face and back and I was pleased with the result. I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I am glad to be able to say that I am entirely cured of pimples." (Signed) Jno. O. Darlington, Jan. 25, 1913.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

☞Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Fear of Smallpox Kills Negroes' Thirst

Dropped Bottle and Ran When Told Disease Germs Were Near at Hand.

DALTON, Aug. 16.—A convivial party engaged in passing a bottle of first-class whisky among them was rudely interrupted near Herndon's livery stable on Crawford street, when warning of lurking smallpox germs was fired at them by a negro employed at the stable.

The men were drinking in the stable when Mr. Herndon entered and informed them of the necessity to either move out or put up the bottle. They preferred to move. Outside of the stable stood an abandoned hack, and, taking their seats in the hack, they renewed the onslaught on the bottle.

The hack proved to be one used in hauling smallpox patients to the pesthouse.

Longstreet Home to Be Catholic Church

Congregation Has Had No House of Worship in Gainesville—Mortgages to be Raised.

GAINESVILLE, Aug. 16.—It is said the former home of Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet in this city will be taken over by the Roman Catholics and will be used solely for religious services. The Catholics have had no church building here, but heretofore this home has been used for holding mass.

Several morigages were given upon the property by Mrs. Longstreet, and it is said that these will be raised by the Catholic Church, the debts settled and the building become the property of the church.

Officials of this church have been here this week. Since their arrival Mrs. Longstreet has gone to New York to enter newspaper work again.

Gets Sentence for Horse-Whipping Man

Callahan Convicted for Using Lash on Shannon Near Tifton, Murray County.

DALTON, Aug. 16.—Joseph Callahan, indicted on the charge of being a member of the band of masked men that whipped a man named Shannon, near Tifton, several months ago, was convicted in the Superior Court at Chatsworth, Murray County, yesterday, being sentenced to twelve months on the chaingang.

Shannon testified that he snatched the mask from one of has assailants and recognized Callahan. Judge G. G. Glenn, his attorney, has filed a motion for a new trial.

SECOND BATTERY OF CHATHAM ARTILLERY

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Steps for the organization of a second battery of the Chatham Artillery, under the authority of the adjutant general, have already been taken.

First Lieutenant E. D. Wells has been informally elected captain of the new battery, while Second Lieutenant Gilbert Lang has been chosen for the first lieutenancy. Sergeant Joseph Thompson has been selected as the second lieutenant of the battery. All three of these officers have been ordered to appear for examination.

MAY INSPECT WORK ONLY TWICE A WEEK

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Under a decree filed in the Superior Court of Chatham County representatives of the Collins Bros. Company, contractors, may inspect the construction work on the Georgia Hotel as often as twice each week. Collins Bros. were recently ousted from continuing work on the hotel.

PHYSICIANS TO MEET AUG. 20 AT ELBERTON

Eighth District Medical Society to Hold Annual Convention Next Wednesday.

ELBERTON, Aug. 16.—The Eighth Congressional District Medical Society will convene in the ballroom of the Elks' home next Wednesday morning.

Mayor Wester will welcome the society on behalf of the city and Dr. Will J. Mathews on behalf of the Elbert County Medical Society.

On Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock a barbecue will be served at Swift Lithia Spring, four miles from the city. Captain Charles W. Parker will be in charge of the 'cue.

The committee to look after the entertainment of the visiting doctors is composed of I. G. Swift, L. M. Hearl, E. B. Starke, J. P. Bailey and Drs. W. J. Mathews, D. N. Thompson and D. V. Bailey.

Fields of Alfalfa In Chatham County

Colonel M. J. O'Leary Proves Success—Farmers Intensely Interested in Industry.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—The success of Colonel M. J. O'Leary in raising a crop of alfalfa in Chatham County has aroused a great deal of interest among the farmers in the possibilities of this industry. It is likely that before the end of September half a dozen or more Chatham County farmers will have planted fields of alfalfa. It has been decided that the county itself will raise a patch on its farm by convict labor. The soil of the county farm is said to be especially suited to the growing of this crop.

Starting with one acre last fall Colonel O'Leary has been very successful. He has cut the field three times, and will soon be ready for another crop. This fall he intends putting in 25 acres to alfalfa. He uses the hay to feed his stock.

Seaboard to Build Freight Warehouse

Property on Savannah Side of River Secured—Will Reduce Cost of Handling.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Immense receiving and delivering freight warehouse, with possibly an office building, will occupy the property recently acquired by the Seaboard Air Line Railway on the Savannah side of the Savannah River. The company will lay its tracks into the warehouse so that freight may be loaded and discharged as conveniently as possible. This will solve a difficult problem which has embarrassed the Seaboard for years.

Freight now has to be transferred across the river to Hutchinson Island by lighter and loaded there. The cost, inconvenience and delay of this method is apparent. For a long time the officials of the Seaboard have been striving to make arrangements for a freight station on the southern side of the river.

Dalton Churches Will Be Enlarged

First Presbyterian and First Methodist to Spend Nearly $30,000 in Improvements.

DALTON, Aug. 16.—The First Presbyterian and First Methodist Churches will begin, within a few weeks, improvements which will aggregate $17,000.

The First Presbyterian will spend $11,000 in completely remodeling the church and building a Sunday school annex which will open into the main auditorium, doubling the present seating capacity of the church. Plans for the work have been drawn and accepted, and the money has been secured for the work which, when completed, will give to the Presbyterians on of the handsomest edifices in the city.

Instead of spending $8,000, as was intended, on the second Sunday school annex, the First Methodist Church will double that amount, building additional room for the Sunday school, at a cost of $6,000. The new annex will give to each class an individual room, will contain a kitchen and dining room and will be steam-heated. When the work is completed the church will possess one of the largest auditoriums in North Georgia.

Women Clerks for Central of Georgia

Road Claims Girls Are More Valuable in Office Than Men—Boost for Suffragettes.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—The Central of Georgia Railway hereafter will employ women clerks in its offices in preference to men. The officials claim that they get the best results from girls, who are more attentive to their duties, quicker to learn, not so clamorous for promotion, and have less outside interests.

The suffrage movement helps rather than hinders the efficiency of the women, according to these officials, in that it makes them more self-assertive and independent.

CHATHAM'S TAX RETURNS SHOW BIG INCREASE

Official Report Gives $2,669,598 Over 1912—Exceeds Estimate More Than Half-Million.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—With an increase of $2,669,598 over the returns of 1912, the tax returns for Chatham County for this year have reached a figure beyond the most optimistic expectations—that of $41,316,140. The total of the returns has been officially declared by Tax Receiver Marcus S. Baker.

The collector had expected a large return this year, based upon the evident increase in the individual returns received, but it was impossible to predict with any certainty how great the increase would be. An increase of $2,000,000 was figured on, however, and more than this was hardly expected.

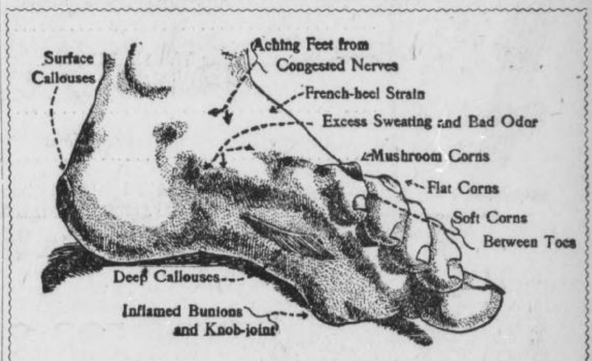

The budget of the County Commissioners was made up on the anticipated increase of two million.

County's Revenues.

The county's revenues from these returns will be $309,871.05, an unprecedented figure, giving the county an income increased by $20,021.98 over 1912. The county gets its revnue on a basis of $7.50 on each one thousand dollars of tax returns.

It is shown by the returns that building activities and improvements to lands and general prosperity in the city and county, which caused this large increase in returns, is not confined only to the white population. The total returns from colored people for the year are $1,031,448, as compared with a total of $964,478 for 1912. This is the first time that the colored returns have gone over the one-million mark.

Tells Positive Cure For all Foot Troubles

Science has proven that nearly all foot troubles originate from a common cause; that of injured tissues. The following information will be welcomed by thousands of victims of daily foot torture. No matter how many patent medicines you have tried in vain, this treatment which was formerly known only to doctors will do the work. Don't waste time. Get it at once. "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet for a full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effects are marvelous. All pain disappears instantly and the feet feel simply delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. Bunions, aching feet and sweaty, smelly feet get immediate relief. Use this treatment a week and your foot troubles will be a thing of the past. Calocide works through the pores and removes the cause. Any druggist has Calocide in stock or will get it from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take something else instead. A twenty-five cent box is said to be enough to cure the worst feet.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from Jacobs' Pharmacy and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

DORSEY SURE OF CASE AS CRISIS COMES

Solicitor Expects to Prove That Frank Had Life Which He Hid From Relatives and Friends

INTEREST CENTERS ON ATTACK ON CHARACTER

the defense to train its every gun squarely upon it, for upon Conley's story will the State be forced to stand or fall eventually.

One of the curious things about the Frank case is the way the question of his general character got into the pleadings.

Theoretically, the defense alone may put the defendant's character in issue—it being contemplated by the law that no man shall be required, without his own consent, to answer more than one charge at one and the same time.

And so far as legal strategy and astuteness is concerned, the State ouegenera lthe defense in the matter of getting Frank's character before the jury.

Had Conley, the State's star witness, ben a man, even a negro, of respectability and approximately good previous record, the necessity of attaching to Frank the charge of utter depravity might not have seemed so pressing. But Frank's previous good record seemed so well established, and his standing generally was thought to be so high, that it contrasted rather painfully with the record of the main witness of all others (Conley) set up for the defndant's undoing.

The State doubtless knew that the unspeakable portion of Conley's evidence was primarily inadmissible, but it also knew that the defense would be taking rather a long chance to move its rejection when tendered.

In that event, a sinister and certainly dangerous impression would have been left upon the mind of the jury.

So the State deliberately drew out of Conley the unmentionable charge, which, in addition to the murder charge, undoubtedly made absolutely necessary the injection of Frank's character in issue.

The defense, in not objecting to the admission of the evidence last cited when it was first offered, may have been moved by the idea that it would, in the cross-examination of Conley, so break him down that it still might save itself the necessity of pleading Frank's good character—that it would even be able to make the frightful charge of perversion act as a boomerang on Conley!

Defense's Delay Gives State Victory.

Seemingly, that idea, if it ever existed, was dissipated as the Conley cross-examination proceeded, however, for eventually the defense DID move to strike out the evidence, but at that time it was too late.

Having walked into the trap set by the State, if it indeed was a trap, the defense could not very well extricate itself save by pleading Frank's complete good character, and thus in a sweeping way dispose of the specific charge lodged against Frank by Conley, in addition to the murder charge.

Once committed to the necessity of establishing Frank's good character, however, the defense went at it in no half-hearted way.

It summoned indiscriminately every employee of the National Pencil Factory, male and female, old and new, and with unanimous voice they testified willingly and thoroughly that the defendant's general character is good.

In addition to these witnesses, business men, former college professors and classmates, and dozens of others fell into line with the same line of evidence.

The State now stands, therefore, where it must close up the gap between its primary allegation, dependent alone upon Conley's word so far, and the absolute proof of his sinister story.

If the State in rebuttal is able to prove conclusively that Frank is the thing Conley has labeled him, the State's case will go to the jury dangerously formidable.

If it fails to substantiate and corroborate Conley, it will go to the jury greatly weakened.

To overcome the fine showing as to Frank's good character made by the defense the State must bring forth witnesses in rebuttal that can not be impeached.

The impression throughout Atlanta is that to fail in the establishment and corroboration of Conley's story by witnesses of integrity and standing will be to fail in a crisis heavily important to the State now.

Strange to say—there are so many strange things to say in this surpassingly strange Phagan story—one of the State's apparent weaknesses is proving, in one direction, to be one of its greatest elements of strength.

The deefnse's strenuous insistence that Conley's remarkable story is impossible is one reason why a lot of people are saying that it is impossible. Conley may have manufactured it out of the whole cloth.

If it is a lie, it is a lie too devilishly cunning for a negro of Conley's limited mentality to conjure or carry in his own mind in such remarkable detail, these people hold. If the negro were only less sure of everything, if he had wabbled dangerously under the terrific grilling administered by Luther Z. Rosser, if he had broken down or contradicted himself in any essential detail once he got to the witness stand, it now would be an easier thing for many people, fair-minded enough, too, to believe the negro's tale a mass of lies from start to finish!

And the danger to the defense here is that if Conley's story sticks in the minds of the jury, even in fractional part, it probably just as well stick in its entirety, so far as the hope of acquittal upon this trial is concerned.

Whole Story Must Be Torn Asunder.

In other words, many people are arguing to themselves that the negro, no matter how hard he tried and no matter how generously he was coached, still neevr could have framed up a story like the one he told, unless there was somewhere in it some foundation in fact.

And if there remains the impression of even a little foundation in fact, the defense is damaged beyond repair.

And so it gets back to where it started, and to where it will end—it is Conley pitted against Frank!

The State, with the burden of proof to carry, appears to have considerably more of an uphill fight on its hands than the deefnse has, and yet the very nature of both fights—uncompromising, and neither asking nor giving quarter—makes it something of a toss-up, really, as to which actually, and as a matter of fact, has the harder task to perform.

Undoubtedly, the defense expects to profit much through its insistence that the time element, as set up in Conley's story, constitutes a most vital and compelling factor in determining the truth or falsity of the entire story.

It is rather odd, too, that the defense should be relying upon the State's witnesses in this matter quite as much as upon its own. It will seek to use generously the State's witnesses to the State's embarrassment—through the discrediting of Conley's story—in several different directions.

The deefnse is seeking to show how utterly absurd Conley's story is from Frank's point of view, by setting up these incompatible things:

Time Element Again Enters Case.

That Mary Phagan (Conley's testimony) reached the pencil factory sufficiently well in advance of Monteen Stover (Conley's testimony) to go up to Frank's office, get her pay, be lured to a room in the rear and killed, notwithstanding the fact that Miss Stover (Conley's and Miss Stover's testimony) reached the factory at 12:05. And this despite the fact that Mary Phagan could not have been in the factory before 12:12, in any event, as shown by Mrs. Coleman (Mary's mother), George Epps, a motorman, and a conductor.

To get around this state of things, set up for the most part by the State's own witnesses, the State already has suggested, by a line of examination probably to be amplified, that the car upon which Mary Phagan came into town on Saturday, April 26, was running AHEAD of scheduled time, and that the litle girl did, as a matter of fact, reach the factory before 12:12, and that the clock in the factory, by which both Miss Stover and Conley testified as to the time, was running SLOW on the day of the crime.

In other words, to meet its own witnesses' statements, the State will move backward the time of the street car and move forward the time of the office clock!

If the State can do that, which looks like a big job, it will eliminate the dangerous time element in one direction, at least; but if it can not do that, it will find itself in a most trying position.

And whether it now can get away from its own established time element is one of the very prettiest problems involved in the entire case thus far!

Again, the defense will insist that the time element cuts in another direction most favorably in Frank's behalf, when it will show by Conley's evidence that the disposing of Mary Phagan's body began at 12:56, but that Frank was seen at the corner of Alabama and Whitehall streets at 1:10, waiting for a car. The latter fact is testified to by Miss Helen Curran positively, and she is unimpeachable.

Every Second Has Important Bearing.

The defense contends that the body of Mary Phagan could not have been disposed of, and the things done that Conley alleges were done, within the fourteen minutes of time thus allowed, between the beginning of the work, according to Conley, and the time of Frank's presence two blocks and a half away.

Conley would have been obliged to dispose of the body in the remarkable way he says he did, have written the notes, remained in the wardrobe eight minutes or more, all within the fourteen minutes.

According to the State's own witnesses, Conley was in the wardrobe eight minutes and used six minutes framing the notes. This would have consumed the entire fourteen minutes, without the dead girl's body ever having been touched.

It is admitted among lawyers generally that there is no defense so completely effective as a sustained alibi—which means that the crime alleged was committed in the absence and without the knowledge of the alleged principal to it, or, more properly stated, perhaps, that the crime could not have been committed by the defendant because it would have been a physical impossibility for him to have effected it, in the circumstances of it.

The past week, of course, was the defense's day in court, and it is but fair to say that it made good use of it.

Evidence Really Challenge to State.

It has frankly and aggressively urged Frank's character as a vital fact in his favor, and it thereby challenged the State to do its very worst by way of breaking that character down, if it can.

This attitude upon the part of the defense undoubtedly has had a steadying effect upon the public, too, for it seems at least to have suspended judgment pending the State's rebuttal.

In addition to its insistence upon Frank's good character, the defense unquestionably has given the State serious concern in the way it has brought forward the time element, and that in two separate and distinct directions.

If it successfully maintains either one of its time theories, it will have greatly discredited Conley's story. If it successfully maintains both theories, it will have about discredited the Conley story to the point of complete collapse.

As it was out of order to conclude at the end of the second week of the Frank trial, however, that the State had made out a case that could not be broken down, so it now is out of order to conclude that the defense has broken down the State.

The State for one thing does not appear to be particularly alarmed, either by the injection of Frank's character or by the turning of the time element against the Conley story.

The State, it must be remembered, has not yet entered or disclosed its rebuttal, either of the character evidence or the undermining of its own witnesses as to the time elements stated.

Dorsey Seems All Confidence.

It is perfectly confident of its ability to show that Frank's character is not good, despite the opinions of his friends, business associates and acquaintances; and it will insist, indeed, that as in other depraved characters of the sort it claims Frank to be, his business acquaintances, his relatives and his social intimates would be the very last people of all to discover the truth concerning him.

The State, in seeking to prove Frank a dissolute character, may be forced to the summoning of dissolute characters, with whom he is alleged to have been associated in degrading practices, in order to prove its contention.

Thus witnesses brought out by the State to establish Frank's depravity are apt to be easier marks for impeachment proceedings than witnesses of the ordinary sort, and to that extent the breaking down of Frank's character is pregnant with difficulty.

Nevertheless, the State proposes to establish the fact of Frank's degeneracy by witnesses of sufficient credibility, particularly in the nature of the charge sought to be proved, to get by at least in sufficient numbers to overwhelm the defendant.

If the State can put up even one or two witnesses that can weather the gale of the defense's rights of impeachment, it will have put Frank in a most unenviable position before the jury. If, therefore, it puts up 50 witnesses, and 48 of them get knocked out, there still will remain the two that stood the test!

Here, then, is another pretty problem to be thrashed out: Can the State, in sustaining a charge of degeneracy against Frank, bring forth witnesses to prove it absolutely, and at the same time not bring forth witnesses so much a party to Frank's offense that they will run serious risks in testifying themselves?

A witness who is willing to swear that he saw Frank do thus and so, or was a party to Frank's doing thus and so, if the thus and so is particularly reprehensible, is apt to get on pretty thin ice himself, if he isn't very careful!

The State says it can and will rebut Frank's good character. If it does, Frank is in unutterably bad shape; but if it doesn't, Frank's cause must be helped tremendously.

Frank Really Combats 2 Charges.

It is markedly unique in the annals of judicial procedure in Georgia, as it is contrary to the entire theory of the law, that Leo Frank should be engaged now in combating at one and the same time two of the gravest crimes in the catalogue of crime, when he has been indicted for only one.

As extraordinary as the Frank case is in so many of its ramifications, it is extraordinary in nothing more than in that!

And yet, which is additionally unique, the fact that he is answering two charges simultaneously is largely the fault or the misfortune of his own lawyers!

Judge Roan virtually admitted that had the more sinister charge of Conley been objected to by the defense at the proper time, he would not have admitted it. It was not objected to, however, and it, therefore, was left in the record. So, in a way, if not technically, Frank is answering the two charges of his own voluntary motion!

Apparently neither the State nor the defense has hesitated to suggest things calculated to prejudice the minds of the jury whenever either could.

For instance, the examination of Mrs. Rea Frank, the defendant's mother, as to the extent of her wealth and many details of her private life, and the suggestion that for some reason or other Mrs. Leo Frank refrained from visiting her husband in jail for two weeks or more after his arrest, seemingly were injected more by way of arousing some vague suspicion in the minds of the jury, rather than by way of proving anything definite.

On the other hand, the defense has not hesitated to suggest, wherever it could, that the entire charge against Frank is a police and detective "frame-up," and that Conley has been used merely as a cat'spaw to convict Frank; the presumption being that the big rewards offered for the arrest and conviction of Mary Phagan's murderer may later be distributed among these officials.

This suggestion seems to have been thrown out largely in the hope that the jury would assimilate enough of it to throw discredit over the entire case of the State.

Most Bitterly Fought Case in State.

There never has been in this State a case fought so bitterly and so uncompromisingly as this one of the State vs. Leo Frank.

Besides the life and liberty of Leo Frank, the preservation of his home and family circle, the restoration of his erstwhile good reputation, there are big fees at stake, big reputations to be preserved, big prejudices either to combat or pander to—and there is even some politics involved!

All in all, however, the public seems impressed with the idea that the trial has been as fair and square thus far as human ingenuity can make it, and that neither side has been given any undue advantage over the other in any quarter.

Much of the bitterness that has crept into the trial has been occasioned, of course, by reason of the fame and tremendous significance of the case. It is a battle to an everlasting finish, and both sides are pressing it on that exact theory.

Despite the fact that the case now is entering its fourth week, with the end not yet in sight, public interest still is at fever heat over it. No topic is talked so exhaustively about the streets, in the cafes and hotel lobbies, and even in the homes, as the now celebrated Phagan case.

Great crowds throng the stuffy little courtroom daily, and the hours have been few when admission could be obtained without extreme difficulty.

It is not thought likely that the arguments will begin before the end of this week, and probably not until next. It is anticipated that it will require not less than three days for the lawyers to finish their discussion of the case before the jury. Nobody looks for a verdict within the present week, unless the unforeseen happens.

Speculation as to the outcome of the trial is varied and general. The most widespread impression is that the case likely is headed for a mistrial, although there are many people who believe the jury will make a verdict before dissolving.

Newt Lee Falls Into Lazy Ways in Prison.

Newt Lee should worry. Being a prisoner is not the most undesirable occupation in the world for the old negro. There is no work to do, and now that he is safely beyond suspicion in this Mary Phagan case there is nothing for him to bother over.

Altogether, being in jail all day, alternately sleeping and dawdling from meal to meal, never leaving his cell, seems to suit the factory night watchman. Newt Lee has fallen into lazy ways there in the Tower.

The negro has been assigned to a cell almost directly above that of Frank, on the third floor south. He grumbles a bit at he monotony and scantiness of the prison fare, but then it comes safe and certain twice a day.

No More Fat of the Land for Jim Conley.

Time was when Jim Conley lived on the fat of the land. That was when he was the most prominent negro prisoner in Georgia, the vital witness in the case of the State against Leo M. Frank. None of your prison fare for him! They brought his breakfast of thick steaks and chops to his cell. Lawyers were considerate of the negro, and Jim experienced fat days, indeed for a little while.

Against his will, it is declared, they forced on him a cold bath and some good clothes, and he came to court in unwonted fine apparel.

But "sic transit gloria" Jim Conley. The sad fact comes that he is about to be forgotten at the jail. No more are his meals brought to him, and like the other "niggers," who never even got their names in the paper, he must subsist on prison fare—two meager meals a day.

Jim Conley, in his cell on the first floor north, sulks a little because of the unkind fate that has sent him back to grits and bread and water for breakfast. And he has taken no bath since.

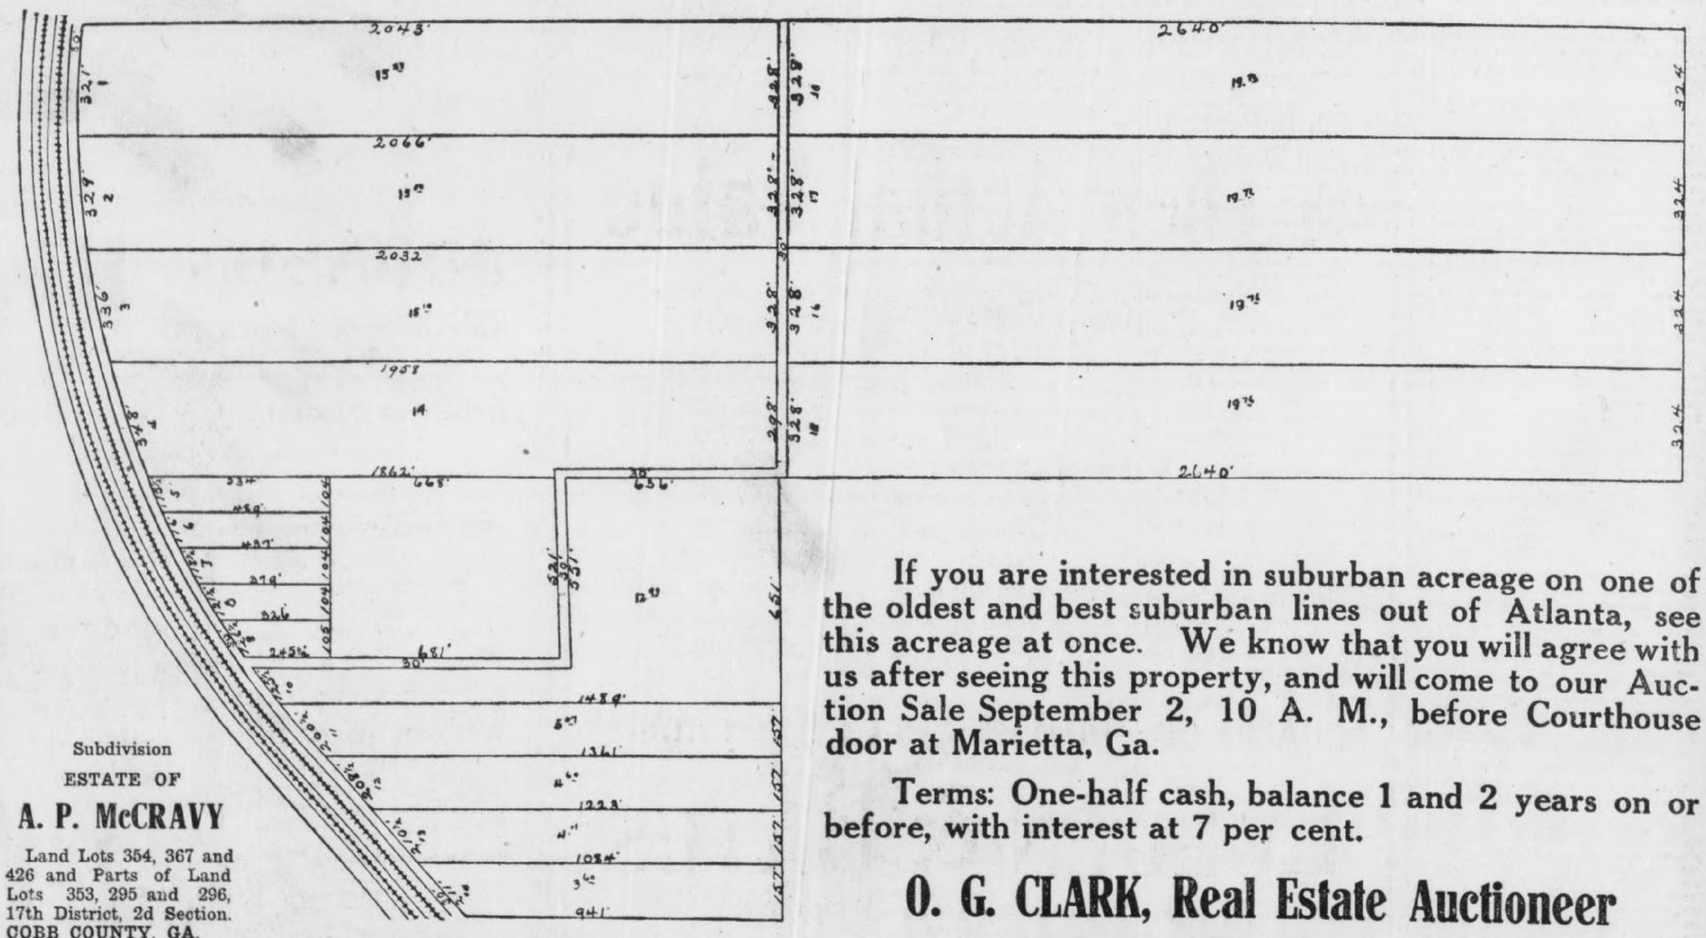

FRANK'S MOTHER DENIES FAMILY IS WEALTHY

WE are not wealthy and Leo has no rich relative in Brooklyn. My husband is broken in health and has retired from business. We have about $20,000 which is loaned out at 6 per cent. We live on that income. Our home, which we own, has a $6,000 mortgage on it. I have a sister, Mrs. Bennet, whose husband clerks for my brother-in-law. I also have one son-in-law who is in the retail cigar business. I don't know much about my other relatives. I have enough to do to keep up with my own affairs.—Testimony of Mrs. Rae Frank, mother of Leo M. Frank, on the witness stand yesterday.

GIRL EMPLOYEE SHOUTS SHE'D DIE FOR FRANK

Another Tells How Defendant Peered Into Room Where Women Dressed in Factory

LAWYERS FAIL TO HALT PRAISE OF THE ACCUSED

Dramatic Incident Comes When Witness Heaps Encomiums on Superintendent on Trial.

More than one hundred witnesses had been called to testify in defense of Leo M. Frank's character when the third week of the factory superintendent's trial concluded shortly after 1 o'clock Saturday.

Character witnesses occupied most of the time during the four hours of Saturday's session. They displayed a remarkable loyalty to their employer, who is being tried on the charge of being the murderer of little Mary Phagan. Only one of the number, Miss Irene Jackson, gave testimony in any way prejudiced to the case of Frank.

The character testimony, the tale of the finding of Mary Phagan's envelope and other so-called clews on the first floor of the factory by W. D. McWorth, Pinkerton operative, and the return of Mrs. Rae Frank, mother of the defendant, formed the important features of the day.

Girl Furnishes Incident.

A spectacular incident, which would have been even more amusing than it proved had it not been for the evident sincerity and profound earnestness of the witness, came in the testimony of Miss Sarah Barnes, one of the pencil factory employees.

"I'd die for Mr. Frank if they'd let me!" she exclaimed almost the instant she had composed herself in the witness chair. Attorney Arnold had only time to ask her the formal question: "Do you know Leo M. Frank, the defendant in this case?" before she launched into an eulogistic description of the young factory superintendent that left her breathless at the end of five minutes.

The attorney sought to interject another of the formal questions prescribed by law, but by this time she had caught her breath and was engaged in telling her willingness to lay down her life, if need be, to prove the guiltlessness of Frank.

Attorney Arnold could not stop her. The court could not dam the flood of words. She had a mind to speak and she was determined to speak without check and without interruption.

"I know Frank couldn't have committed such a terrible deed," she cried, accompanying her declaration with an emphatic brandishing of her folded fan. "I have known him ever since I have been in the pencil factory. He has always been kind to all of the employees and to the girls in particular. He never has done any of these things that have been told about him. He has always been a gentleman.

Willing to Die for Him.

"I've had to fight for him, almost, a number of times since these awful charges have been made against him. I'm willing to fight for him again. I am willing to die in his place."

At this point she turned toward the jury and said:

"You can give me any sort of a death you want. I know he is an innocent man. I just wish that I could make everyone believe in his innocence."

Attorney Arnold succeeded in the brief space of one of the moments when she paused for a fresh start to ask the remainder of the questions he desired, and then gave her to Solicitor Dorsey.

Dorsey met with the same trouble. He tried to get her to say with whom she had talked about the testimony to which she was to swear. Disregarding his question as though if never had been asked, she continued in her encomiums of Frank until the courtroom spectators were convulsed with laughter and the Solicitor filed with disgust at his inability to get the sort of answer he wanted from the girl.

Miss Irene Jackson, daughter of County Policeman A. W. Jackson, was called by the defense as a character witness, but gave testimony on her cross-examination in regard to conduct by Franak which the State has construed as highly improper.

Looked in Dressing Room.

Miss Jackson said that so far as she knew the character of Frank was good and that she never had known him to attempt any liberties with the factory girls. To the Solicitor she admitted, however, that she three times had been in the girls' dressing room when Frank had pushed open the door and looked in.

Once Emmeline Mayfield had been in the room with her, she said; once Mamie Kitchen and once her own sister. Her sister had threatentod to quit on this last occasion, she testified, but had been persuaded against it.

She said that Frank merely pushed the door open, looked in, one one occasion smiled toward Miss Kitchen, and then turned around and walked away. She testified that the girls never were any further in a condition of undress than lacking their overskirt.

Solicitor Dorsey inquired of her in regard to a reported remark of N. V. Darley, general manager, that "if the girls stay with us through this, they will not lose by it." She said she had overheard Darley say this.

Many Employees Called.

The following pencil company employees were called as character witnesses during the day:

Misses Mollie Blair, Ethel Stewart, Sarah Barnes, Corinthia Hall, Ina Hayes, Eula May Flowers, Elma Hayes, Minnie Foster, Obie Dickerson, Gussie Wallace, Annie Osman, Bessie Thrailkill, Allie Denham, Rebecca Carson, Maude Wright, Irene Jackson, and Mesdames Emma Freeman and Ella Thomas.

Frank Ordered Flirting Stopped.

Attorney Arnold in his redirect examination of Miss Jackson asked if it were not true that girls had been caught flirting from the dressing room windows, which front on Forsyth street, and that Frank had given orders that this should be stopped. She said that this had occurred.

"Might not Frank have been looking in to see if his orders were being carried out?" asked his attorney, but his interrogation was ruled out as leading to a conclusion on the part of the witness.

Miss Opie Dickerson, another of the character witnesses, appeared somewhat perturbed when asked by the Solicitor in regard to her movements on the Saturday night of the murder. She was requested to tell if she was not in the company of N. V. Darley, Wade Campbell and Miss Louise Gresham at the Bijou that evening. She replied that she could not remember, and the question later was ruled out as irrelevant and immaterial, on the objections of Attorneys Rosser and Arnold.

The testimony of W. D. McWorth, a Pinkerton operative, provided one of the sensations of the day, and at the same time provoked a lively wrangle among the attorneys over the manner in which the Solicitor persisted in questioning him.

McWorth testified that he found on May 15, on the first floor near a radiator, a piece of a pay envelope bearing the name of Mary Phagan, her number, 186, and the amount due her, $1.20. He said that he found at the same time several pieces of cord similar to that found around the neck of the slain girl, a club and part of a buggy whip. He described splotches near the trapdoor leading into the basement which he thought at the time might be bloodstains.

Neither side brought out what the real value of McWorth's testimony might be. The defense submitted it without asking whether the spots had proved to be blood, and the Solicitor also failed to question him on this point.

Dorsey's main attack was contained in his charge that the Pinkerton operatives had "played double" with the city detectives and, while professing to "go down the road with the road" with the city department, in reality branched off, discovered clews very material if they were genuine and kept their discovery a secret from the city detectives in spite of the agreement to work hand in hand.

Dorsey tried to find out from the witness under whose instructions he had withheld this information from the police while prentending to work with them. Rosser objected on the ground that Frank should not be bound by anything a detective did. While the point was being debated with some acrimony, Rosser shouted, referring to Dorsey:

"The State of Georgia ought to be represented in this case with decency, your honor, and not in the manner in which the Solicitor General is conducting the prosecution."

Dorsey charged that the Pinkertons,

TELLS OF FINDING CLUB AND ENVELOPE

BEHIND a radiator on the ground floor near the elevator shaft I found a piece of heavy cord, one end of which looked as if it had been freshly cut. There was also a piece of pay envelope folded up. The number 186 was marked on it, and the initials "M. P." I also found a big stick lying nearby, which had stains on it resembling blood. I also found stains resembling blood—six or seven of them—around the cubby hole on the first floor. I was looking for the girl's mesh bag when I found these things.—From testimony of Pinkerton Detective W. D. McWorth.

when Detective John Black had come to inspect the new evidence, showed him the buggy whip found behind the front door of the factory and did not show him the club which was produced in evidence at the trial. The Solicitor failed in his effort to show that McWorth and his fellow operative, L. P. Whitfield, did all this at the direction of Superintendent H. B. Pierce.

Time Element Again.

Interesting testimony, which may prove of considerable importance in the development of the time element in the case, was given by Knox Thomas, a civil engineer.

From the intersection of Marietta and Forsyth streets to the pencil factory, Thomas testified the distance was 1,016 feet, and that it required him 4 1-2 minutes to walk it at a fairly brisk pace. This is the walk which the State contends Mary Phagan made Saturday, April 26, to get to the factory from her car. The car was due at this corner about 12:07. This would have brought her to the factory at about 12:11 1-2. A conflict is found here in the State's own theory, as the Solicitor believes Mary Phagan entered the factory before Monteen Stover, who glanced at the clock and saw that it was 12:05 o'clock.

This obstacle is overcome by accepting as the truth the possibility that the car may have been running about five minutes ahead of time and that the clock at the factory was several minutes slow.

Thomas said that the distance from the pencil factory to Whitehall and Alabama streets, where Miss Helen Curran declared she saw Frank awaiting a car, was 831 feet, and that it required him 3 1-2 minutes to walk it.

The distance from Broad and Hunter streets to the pencil factory, the route the defense contends the Phagan girl took to the factory the day she went after her pay, the witness said was 333 feet, and that it took him 1 3-4 minutes to walk it.

Frank's Mother Recalled.

Mrs. Rae Frank, mother of the defendant, who testified briefly at Friday's session of court, was recalled to the stand when the trial resumed Saturday. The defense sought to show that Frank would have been most unlikely to make any remark to Jim Conley about having "wealthy folks in Brooklyn" by proving that, as a matter of fact, his Brooklyn relatives were of only ordinary means.

The witness became somewhat exasperated on cross-examination when the Solicitor insisted on going into every source of income, as well as the financial resources of her husband. She said that she and her husband were living on the interest of $20,000 which was lent to different persons at an average of 6 per cent interest. She said that this constituted all of the wealth of her husband and herself, except for the home in which they lived. On this she said there was a $6,000 mortgage.

Lanford Takes Day Off To Go to Camp Meeting.

Chief of Detectives Newport A. Lanford, under whose guidance the State's evidence was secured against Leo M. Frank, wants a day's complete respite and will spend Sunday at Sandy Springs, Ga., where a Methodist camp meeting is in progress.

Chief Lanford's activities in the case ended when the trial began, but he has been daily in the courtroom sitting close to Solicitor Dorsey whispering information about the various witnesses. The Chief will return to Atlanta Monday morning in time for the opening of Monday's session of the trial.

LEO FRANK IS READY TO REVEAL HIS STORY

Accused Superintendent to Appeal to Reason of the Men Who Will Decide His Fate

LAWYERS SAY THEY HAVEN'T ADVISED HIM

Defendant Will in No Way Try to Stir Emotion of the Jurors.

Leo M. Frank's statement to the jury, delayed from last week by the swarm of character witnesses brought in at the last moment, is the main factor of interest remaining in the trial of the National Pencil Factory superintendent before the rebuttal is taken up by the two attorneys representing the State.

What this statement will be the defendant's lawyers themselves profess not to know. They have had little or no part in framing it, they say. All they know is that he proposes to make one, and that he has been preparing it piecemeal as the trial has progressed and one point after another has arisen.

Whether it will be a formal statement read verbatim, no one knows except the prisoner and possibly his immediate relatives.

If the lawyers know they are keeping it darkly a secret. They believe, they have ventured to say, that it will be more or less informal and that it will be in the nature of an address to the jury and the court based upon the notes that Frank has made from time to time during the trial.

Appeal To Reason.

That there will be little appeal to the emotions of the jurors is practically a foregone conclusion. It is the purpose of Frank, it is understood, to appeal directly to the reason and common sense of the twelve men—to outline to them as he has outlined to his own attorneys the weak points or improbabilities in the negro Conley's story.

As well as this, it is his intention to picture to them his every movement during the entire day and to represent the physical impossibility of his having committed the crime and disposed of the body as Conley describes, if his alibi as set up by a score of witnesses is accepted by the jury.

The statement will embrace much to which he testified at the Coroner's inquest. But there will be much more. He will go into some things on which his own lawyers have not touched. The statement practically is certain to form a most remarkable and most important portion of the record of the trial's proceedings.

What promised to provide a sensation during the presentation of the defendant's case may collapse into nothing. This is W. H. Mincey and his startling declaration that he saw Jim Conley on the afternoon of the murder, and that Jim bragged to him that he had killed a girl that afternoon and didn't want to kill anyone else.

Appear to Doubt Mincey.

The attorneys for the defense have not been willing to say whether or not they would call Mincey. They have appeared to entertain some doubts of Mincey's credibility. Reuben Arnold said Saturday that he was not prepared to say that he would or would not call Mincey.

If Mincey's story could be corroborated it would furnish a most effective weapon in winning the battle for Frank's life. Granting its truthfulness, it is the most definite and direct evidence of the entire case, embracing as it does a virtual confession of murder on the part of the negro.

Mincey said he met Conley at Electric avenue and Carter street Saturday afternoon, April 26. Conley was partially intoxicated and becoming angered at Mincey's insistence that he take out an insurance policy threatened the agent and boasted of killing a girl shortly before, according to the affidavit made by Mincey.

If Mincey goes on the stand his testimony will become the target for some of the State's strongest rebuttal. That and the character of Frank will divide the attention of the Solicitor. He will not bother about much else. He is content to let Conley's story, as bolstered and strengthened by the testimony of detectives and other witnesses, stand as a sufficient rebuttal for practically all of the evidence that the defense has brought out in favor of Frank. The Solicitor believes that when the arguments go before the jury the members will be willing to accept the story of the negro as against that of Frank.

After Frank's Character.

Dorsey, however, has been unceasing in his efforts to wreck Frank's character. He has branded him as a degenerate and a criminal of the worst type. The introduction of character witnesses by the defense has given him a new opening, and he proposes to take every advantage of it. His attitude is shown in a colloquy between himself and Judge Roan.

"How far do you intend to go in that line of testimony?" inquired the judge.

"Just exactly as far as your honor will let me," Dorsey replied.

Judge Roan remonstrated that the Solicitor General should not seek to introduce evidence that he knew was illegal. The Solicitor smiled.

Dorsey has about twenty witnesses he will use in an effort to destroy all of the favorable impression created by the 100 character witnesses who have testified for Frank so far in the trial. From some of them he has promised to produce testimony of the most sensational sort.

One young girl, Dewey Hewell, not yet out of her teens, was brought all the way from Cincinnati last Friday for the express purpose of testifying against the young factory superintendent.

She was in the Home of the Good Shepherd, to which she was sent from Atlanta.

The defense is expected to close its case by Monday night or Tuesday noon if the cross-examination of its witnesses is note xtended. The rebuttal of the State will not last more than a day and a half, or two days at the most, according to the estimates made by lawyers connected with the case. This will bring the closing arguments some time Thursday. It is not improbable that he judge's charge will be made before court adjourns Thursday night.

Arguments Are Awaited.

The true strength of the defense and the prosecution will not be developed until the closing arguments. Much of the significance of important bits of evidence has been obscured and passed over lightly as the case progressed. The lawyers have been willing that the jurors as well as the spectators, did not see the full import of certain pieces of testimony at the time it was given. They have been just as willing that no one understood the particular part it was to play in their theory of the crime. Their main purpose was to get it clearly and unmistakably on the record.

When the arguments begin, these apparently disconnected and disassociated fragments of evidence will assemble themselves magically. Their significance will dawn forcibly on the minds of the jurors under the spell of the eloquence and logic of four shrewd and capable lawyers.

As the Frank trial has surpassed all other criminal cases in the history of Georgia in the amount of testimony that has been transcribed, so will it surpass all others, it is very likely, in point of eloquence and masterly argument.

Both sides are determined. That there will be bitterness and rancor in the arguments is inescapable. If the attitude of the Solicitor has been forcast at all truly in his remarks during the progress of the trial, his address to the jury will be charged with as terrible and denunciatory invective as ever heard in an Atlanta court. If the prisoner at the bar, innocent or guilty, can save himself from cringing or from the least sign of emotion during the argument of the Solicitor General, he will have earned his title of iron man, indeed.

Alibi Built Up.

The two lawyers for the defense, Luther Rosser and Reuben Arnold, have built up an alibi for the accused man which they believe is indestructible. At the same time from this witness and that one, they have obtained testimony supporting their theory that the crime was done by the negro, Jim Conley, and that the negro's story is a product of his imagination evolved for the sole purpose of saving his own neck.

This theory has been suggested from time to time during the trial, but little attempt has been made to develop it in the minds of the jurors through the medium of the supporting testimony.

The two lawyers will marshal—probably already have marshaled—the evidence in its proper sequence and will then present it to the jury as the most convincing argument that the crime was the deed of the negro and not of Leo Frank.

TIME A BIG FACTOR IN FRANK TRIAL

The time element plays the most important part in the trial of Frank. The State has built up an elaborate case to show that Frank had the opportunity to kill Mary Phagan. The defense, on the other hand, is building up just as elaborate a case to show that Frank could not have had the time to do the things charged against him. The principal time elements brought out so far follows:

THE STATE'S TIME-TABLE

8:30—Conley and Frank met at the factory.

9:00—Conley left to see his mother at the Capital City Laundry, Frank admonishing him to return in 40 minutes and meet him at Montag Bros., Nelson and Forsyth streets.

9:30—Miss Mattie Smith left.

10:30—Conley met Frank at Nelson and Forsyth streets. Frank told the negro to wait a few minutes while he went into Montag Bros.

10:50—Frank came out and went back to the factory with Conley.

10:55—Frank stationed Conley on the first floor. Frank said there would be a girl there soon, and he wanted Conley to lock the door when he stamped and unlock it when he whistled.

11:30—N. V. Darley left.

11:50—Lemmie Quinn entered the factory.

12:05—Mary Phagan entered. The State contends that although the car schedule would have brought her to Forsyth and Marietta streets at 12:07, it might have been five or six minutes ahead of time, giving Mary ample time to get to the factory by about 12:05. The State also has to discard the testimony of George Epps, who swore that he rode with Mary to town and got off the car with her at 12:07 o'clock.

12:06—Frank went with the girl to the metal room and there attacked her. Conley heard the retreating footsteps and later a scream.

12:08 to 12:10—Monteen Stover entered the factory; was seen by Conley; went to Frank's office and found him absent.

12:13 to 12:15—Monteen Stover left.

12:20—Frank returned to his office, leaving the body in the metal room.

12:25—Conley dropped asleep.

12:30—Frank was startled by the arrival of Mrs. Arthur White.

12:50—Frank went to the fourth floor and told Mrs. White, her husband and Harry Denham that they would have to be locked in the building if they did not leave, as he was going to lunch.

12:52—Mrs. White left.

12:54—Conley was awakened by Frank stamping on the floor. He locked the door and a minute later unlocked it when he heard Frank whistling. Conley was directed to go to the metal room to get a girl whom Frank "had struck too hard."

12:56—Conley and Frank carried the body of the girl downstairs.

1:03—They completed their task and returned to Frank's office. Conley hid in a closet five minutes while two women were in Frank's office.

1:08—Conley wrote four notes at Frank's dictation.

1:15—Conley left the factory.

1:18—Frank left the factory.

1:20—Frank caught his car.

1:30—Frank arrived home, but hastily returned to town.

THE DEFENSE'S TIME-TABLE

8:25 A. M.—Frnk arrived at factory. Met Holloway, day watchman, and Alonza Mann, office boy.

8:50 A. M.—Employees began coming for pay envelopes, Mattie Smith among them. N. V. Darley arrived.

9:40 A. M.—Miss Smith and Darley left.

10:00 A. M.—Frank went to Montag Bros., Nelson and Forsyth streets.

11:00 A. M.—Returned alone to pencil factory.

11:45 A. M.—Miss Corinthia Hall and Mrs. Emma Freeman left factory after entering to get Mrs. Freeman's coat.

12:02 P. M.—Miss Hattie Hall, the stenographer, left.

12:05 P. M.—Miss Monteen Stover entered.

12:10 P. M.—Miss Monteen Stover left.

12:12 P. M.—Mary Phagan received pay envelope from Frank. Frank testified at coroner's inquest that she left his office in two or three minutes and that he thought he heard her talking with another girl and then heard their footsteps dying away.

12:20 P. M.—Lemmie Quinn visited Frank's office.

12:22 P. M.—Lemmie Quinn left.

12:30 P. M.—Mrs. Arthur White entered Frank's office and then went to the fourth floor to see her husband.

12:50 P. M.—Frank went to the fourth floor and saw Mr. and Mrs. White and Harry Denham. He stayed about two minutes.

12:53 P. M.—Mrs. White left. On her way down the stairs she saw a negro sitting on a box on the first floor. She thought it was Conley.

1:05 P. M.—Frank left for his luncheon. He walked up Forsyth street to Alabama and down Alabama to Whitehall.

1:10 P. M.—Miss Helen Curran saw Frank waiting at Alabama and Whitehall streets for his car. It is the contention of the defense that Frank could not have been there at this time is Conley's story is true.

1:20 P. M.—Mrs. A. P. Levy saw Frank enter the home of Emil Selig, with whom he lived at 68 East Georgia avenue. Frank sat down and ate with his father-in-law. The servant, Minola McKnight, saw him when he arrived home.

1:50 P. M.—Left home for factory. Saw Mrs. M. J. McMichael, his wife's aunt, Jerome McMichael, Julian Loeb and others.

2:00 P. M. —Caught car at Glenn and Washington streets. Met J. C. Loeb on car.

2:10 P. M.—Car was blocked at Hunter street by Memorial day crowds. Frank was seen by H. J. Hinchey who was riding by in his automobile. Frank left the car and walked on Hunter street to Whitehall.

2:20 P. M.—Watched parade. Met Miss Rebecca Carson in front of Rich's store.

2:40 P. M.—Was seen by Miss Carson to go in Jacobs' Pharmacy, Whitehall and Alabama streets.

3:00 P. M.—Arrived at the pencil factory. Went to fourth floor to see Denham and White.

3:08 P. M.—Denham and White left

Could You Qualify as Juror in Case Hinging on Circumstantial Evidence?

By O. B. KEELER.

Putting it somewhat abruptly—

Would you hang a man on circumstantial evidence?

This is with some small reference to the Frank trial. Nearly everything has a Frank trial trend these days. And the trial itself is working around to where that problem is beginning to press on the twelve good men and true.

Also it is pestering the courtroom regulars.

It always does at a big murder trial. Probably more friendships have ceased over the question of hanging on circumstantial evidence than over the proposition that all men are born free and equal, or the world's series or the age of Ann.

You Either Would or Wouldn't.

Probably you have a pretty well fixed idea as to the ultimate value of circumstantial evidence.

Either you would hang a man on it or you wouldn't.

If you wouldn't, you couldn't have got on the Frank jury. Not honestly.

Because there is no direct evidence in the case.

In the first place it would be pretty tough if everybody in the world snared the conviction that no man should be convicted on circumstantial evidence.

If that were the case the potential murderer could use a little intelligence and a bit of care in arranging the stage setting for his crime and get by with it comfortably enough. He would just provide that nobody should see him when he let his victim have it under the fifth rib, or swung the well known blunt instrument, or pulled the trigger of the equally celebrated smoking revolver.

Then the fact that the knife had been in his possession for years, or he had been seen extracting the club from a lumber pile, or purchasing the revolver from a pawnbroker, would be valueless in default of some open-faced person who would take his stand upon the witness chair and assert dramatically:

"I seen him when he done it!"

Moveover, what are you going to do with that most monstrous of all murderers, the poisoner? It is the rarest thing in the world for a witness to be present when he offers his victim the fatal capsule and remarks:

"This is a little slug of strychnine."

If he didn't say what it was, there wouldn't be any direct evidence that it wasn't quinine, you see.

So it does look as if some people in this world are well justified in their belief that there can be circumstantial evidence strong enough to hang a man.

Value of Direct Evidence.

It looks like a good thing, if only to bear the murder market.

Now, let's look over the value of direct evidence. And there's an odd thing about its actual face value, too.

Just at first sight it seems nothing could be clearer and more convincing. Here's a man, right on the spot. He sees all that occurs. All he has to do is to tell about it, in words of one syllable, if he likes—just a round, unvarnished tale.

The trouble is, there frequently is another man who also was right on the spot, and also saw all that occurred.

When it comes to telling about it, those two men, like as not, will each tell an honest and straightforward story.

But the stories may not agree.

Both May Be Honest, Too.

And both witnesses may be perfectly honest.

There was a professor of psychology or something, and he got all worked up over the amazing proposition that several intelligent persons could see a tragedy enacted and tell several and radically different stories of how it happened.

So he framed up a little game on his class of 40 students, or 60 students, or whatever number it was—all bright young college men, well above the average direct witness who just happened to be there when it happened.

The class was hearing him lecture one day, and, presumably, thinking of nothing else in the world, when one door of the room burst open and a pop-eyed man rushed in, followed closely by two others. The first man ran halfway across the room, wheeled and shouted:

"Stand back!"

His nearest pursuer leveled a paper cap pistol at him and replied:

"I'll settle you right now!"

The companion waved his arms and yelled:

"Down with the traitor!"

Then the first man ducked, ran for the door and disappeared, with the others after him.

Just Like a Regular Tragedy.

It was all unexpected, just like any regular tragedy. And it was all very sudden. It only took about ten seconds for the whole performance.

The class was surprised. That was rather natural. But the professor calmed the students and told them what it was all about. He wanted to see how accurate their powers of observation were under actual test. Had the young gentlemen seen and heard all that passed?

The young gentlemen had.

Then would the young gentlemen kindly write out each a full account of the proceeding, with the same care that would be used in testifying to the happening in a case that involved life and death?

The young gentlemen would.

And you can take it from the professor there was something to ponder in the "testimony."

A few samples will explain it.

How They Told of It.

One young gentleman testified that the foremost pursuer held a shotgun and cried, "Sic semper tyrannis!" another was positive the weapon was a long dagger, and that the wielder said something about revenge for the invasion of his home, while his companion shouted, "Let me get at him!"

One eyewitness was sure the pursued man had dropped on his knees and lifted his hands in supplication; also that he had red whiskers; while another said he was clean shaven and held a revolver.

And that is a fair sample of the contradictory "evidence" given by eyewitnesses in the test case.

One thing stood out above all the rest:

Not one single student gave an absolutely correct account of the affair, which had been worked out and rehearsed carefully by the actors.

Believe Half You See.

And in a great many cases of direct evidence it is a pretty good plan to believe only half what you see.

And by arguing around in a circle it would seem that there is a good deal to be said in favor of circumstantial evidence, if only because it is sought intelligently and considered in cold blood, in place of the usual goggle-eyed mental condition of the witness suddenly confronted with a raw and ugly situation, entirely at variance with anything else he ever had encountered before.

And now could you qualify as juror in a circumstantial evidence case?

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from Jacobs' Pharmacy and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Frank Follows Schedule in Jail Life.

Leo Frank is living a sane and rational life as a prisoner in the Tower—a life of scrupulous dumbbell exercises, daily cold baths, chats with many visitors, chess playing and reading.

Always an energetic man, Frank is himself even in jail. Each morning he arises at 6 o'clock and dives for his dumbbells. Following a brisk exercise he takes a cold bath, and then relaxes until breakfast is brought him.

Usually his breakfast is sent from his home. Before the time of the trial he ate in his cell. Now, however, coming daily to the courtroom he gets his breakfast in the witness room of the courthouse, and his wife is there to talk with him during the meal.

At 6 o'clock in the evening he has dinner. The meal usually is brought to the jail from a downtown restaurant or hotel, occasionally from his home, and always Frank's friends come to sit with him while he eats. Later they stay on to talk, leaving about 9 o'clock. Then there are papers to read, magazines to look over and an occasional book or two, which keeps Frank up until about 10:30 o'clock, the hour of his retirement each night.

Lawyers In Frank Trial All Georgia College Men.

Thomas W. Connally, the well-known attorney, has gathered some interesting facts about principal lawyers in the Frank case.

All of the lawyers, Mr. Connally finds, are college men. Luther Z. Rosser and Hugh M. Dorsey are charter members of the University Club, of which Mr. Connally is secretary.

Mr. Rosser is a graduate of Emory in the class of 1878. In spite of the fact that he was nearly blind during part of his college course, caused by an attack of measles, he was able by listening to his roommates study aloud to master the work so thoroughly that he took an honor in his class. For years he was an alumni trustee of Emory.

Hugh Dorsey is a graduate of the University of Georgia in the class of 1893, and afterward studied law at the University of Virginia.

Reuben Arnold was at the University of Georgia in the class of 1888.

Frank A. Hooper was a student at the Southwest Georgia Agricultural College before he entered Mercer, where he graduated with the A. B. degree in 1885. In 1888 his alma mater conferred an honorary A. M. degree.

E. A. Stephens, assistant to Solicitor Dorsey, is an Emory man of the class of 1891.

Mr. Rosser and Mr. Stephens are members of the Chi Phi Fraternity. Mr. Arnold and Mr. Hooper are Phi Delta Thetas. Mr. Dorsey is a Kappa Alpha.

Luther Z. Rosser, Jr., and L. S. Hopkins, Jr., from Rosser's office, have assisted him. Young Rosser is a Tech man, an Emory man and graduated from the law department of Mercer in 1909. Mr. Hopkins is an A. B. graduate of Emory, 1901, graduate of the law department of the University of Georgia in 1904, and LL. B. from Yale University in 1905. Mr. Rosser is a Chi Phi and Mr. Hopkins is a member of Phi Delta Theta and the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity.

Luther Z. Rosser, Jr., and Hugh Dorsey are brothers-in-law, and C. B. Shelton, Rosser's brother-in-law, is a law partner of Dorsey's two brothers, Cam and E. Roy Dorsey.

Jurors' Wives Find Solace in Union.

None of your clinging wives are the eleven women who, the wives of jury members, are made widows for the while by the trial of Leo Frank. They are not women to stay at home and weep in weeds. With their "Club for Temporary Widows" they are making the best of a bad situation, and even finding some real fun.

Mrs. W. M. Jeffries, one of the wives made widows because her husband must serve on the jury, wandered about disconsolately the first two or three days. Then she became nervous, and from nervousness she drifted into a spell of the blues.

Blues is the mother of invention, as all the world knows. With the tears not far from her eyelashes one afternoon she was seized with an idea that sent the tears back and that made her hurry to the telephone. One by one she located them, the other wives who were widows, and unfolded her plans for an organization.

"And then we should worry," she told each one.

The idea found favor with them all. Eleven women who didn't know each other before were drawn together, and now they can be seen sallying forth, consoled by their own numbers, and even gay, to the courthouse of an afternoon.

Time was when the trial started that their greetings were waved to their husbands with handkerchiefs wet with tears. But now the signal is gay. The widows have found in their common grief something to laugh at.

And the jurymen themselves don't worry about the folks at home so much now. They smile, too, when they leave the courtroom and catch the cheery greetings. All except C. J. Bosshardt, the lone unmarried member. There is no one to greet him, but they do say——

'COURAGE' IS MESSAGE SENT BY HAWTHORNE

Distinguished Prisoner Writes Poem When Told That Attorney General Denied Him Parole.

CONVICTS ARE SYMPATHETIC

Author Gives No Outward Sign of Keen Disappointment, Declares Penitentiary Inmates.

Julian Hawthorne, novelist, poet, philosopher, in the Atlanta Federal prison, was a very characteristic Julian Hawthorne at the moment when he learned that Attorney General McReynolds had denied him the freedom which the parole board recommended and which he had frankly anticipated.

Hawthorne read a newspaper account of the official action. For a long time he stared at the story, which was a very short story. Then, without a word to the men near him, he went into his cellroom, and lay on his cot.

For half an hour he meditated. Then he arose, and wrote a poem that will be published in the next issue of Good words, the prison paper.

The poem is entitled "Courage."

It is a short verse of Hawthorne's typical pentameter style, and chock full of Hawthorne's typical philosophy of optimism.

Hawthorne Keeps Silent.

All this is the story that Hawthorne's fellow prisoners tell of the incident two weeks ago, when the news first came to the prison that the Attorney General had blasted the hopes of the distinguished prisoner. Hawthorne himself would say nothing of it, maintaining a consistent silence concerning his personal affairs, as he has since he first came to the prison.

It is generally considered among the prisoners who have come to know Hawthorne well that he was keenly disappointed at the action of the Attorney General, especially after friends in Washington had assured him that freedom was forthcoming, and after the parole board had acted favorably on his petition for release. It was believed that he had even laid plans for the period of freedom that seemed to be near.

"It hurt him," said one of the prisoners Saturday. "But he has kept it to himself. He never mentions the subject, and it looks as if he resents the mention of it by others. When they say anything about it, he usually laughs, and says nothing.

Prisoners Sympathetic.

"Well, it was only the newspapers who were sure I would get out," he answered once, however, to a man who said he was sorry. "It never was the most certain thing in the world, and I didn't consider it as such."

There were a good many expressions of sympathy, Hawthorne's friends said. The tall old man is a general favorite in the prison. But with it all there is no outward sign of disappointment as he sits in the midst of his fellows on the little hill overlooking the baseball diamond, his sharp face set, his keen eyes squinting as they look out over the bright, bare, sunlit field.

He and Dr. W. P. Morton will be free, by the natural expiration of their terms, in October.

Celebrated English Organist in Recital

Eugene Wyatt to Play Popular Program at the Auditorium This Afternoon.

Eugene Wyatt, the celebrated English organist, will be the soloist at the free concert at the Auditorium-Armory Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Wyatt plays to 12,000 people at a time in Royal Albert Hall, London. He is expected to play to over 6,000 in Atlanta.

While the program is one that will surely interest all musicians, it is full of melody and harmony and will appeal strongly to the popular ear.

Mr. Wyatt is the first of a number of distinguished organists who will be brought here by the Music Festival Association during the next couple of months. From among them will be chosen a successor to Dr. Percy J. Starnes.

Stockade or Reform Faces Young Woman

Nina Allison, Twice Escaped From Martha Home, Awaits Mercy of Refuge Keepers.

The question of whether Mrs. Nina Allison, a young woman who says she is a former telephone operator, must serve time in the city stockade will be determined by officials of the Martha Home Monday.

If they agree to take her back into the home, from which she has escaped twice, she will be saved from the stockade; if they decide she is incorrigible and can not be benefited by the home, she will have to go to the gang.

The young woman has been arrested on previous occasions and is now on probation. She was arrested by Policeman Barton Friday night with two men.

'Kneeless Stocking' Arrives

Fair Wearer Defies Hot Weather

Miss Bunee Wyde, pretty actress at Forsyth last week, who shows how comfortable she is in new "kneeless stockings."

Miss Bunee Wyde said she should worry. Everybody else was swearing at the beastly weather whose heat left no peace in mind or body.

"You see?" she said naively, and hoisted her skirts a wee bit beyond the conventional height. She was wearing half hose. Men's socks.

She had brought to Atlanta a new fashion. Very frankly she announced her belief that the short sock's are good to wear, much, ever so much, more comfortable than the long stocking; allow much, ever so much, freedom of the limbs, and are altogether desirable. And to her very best friends she minded not a bit to show them that she indeed wore them.

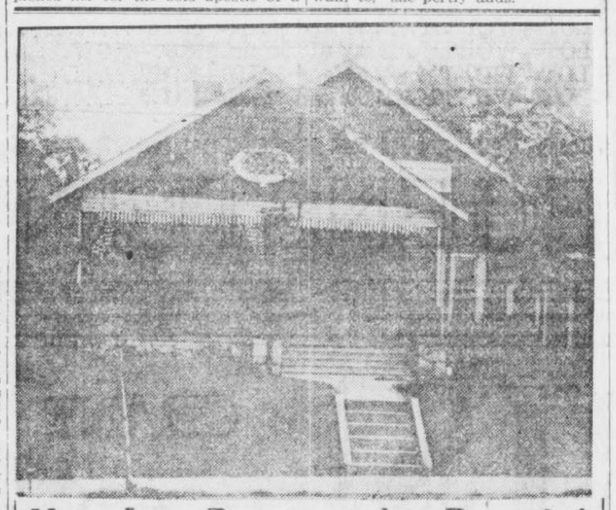

Everybody in Atlanta laughed at Miss Wyde and with Miss Wyde at the Forsyth Theater last week, where she played with Franker Wood in a little act, "Good Night." Nobody picked her for the bold apostle of a new fashion in wearing apparel, though. But she is, and a pretty good proselyter at that. She talked the new fad very generally in Atlanta while she was here.

She calls them the "kneeless stocking," though. "Half hose" has a cold, unfamiliar, masculine tone to it. And she makes the prophecy that the kneeless stocking will be popular.

"Garters?" said she. "Certainly not. I don't need 'em. Up New York lots of the girls wear silk garters or men's hose supporters with these, but under certain desirable physical features, you won't need anything to hold them up. They just stay.

"Of course you couldn't wear these with a slit skirt, and some might blush to put them on with a tight skirt that clings when you mount a street car or even a sidewalk curbing. Still, there is nothing immodest in wearing kneeless stockings. They are comfortable and convenient.

"Well, you needn't look if you don't want to," she pertly adds.

Here Is a Beauty and a Bargain!

Let us show it to you. Six-room bungalow on car line and close to Ponce DeLeon avenue and Druid Hills. Splendid neighborhood and only two blocks from school. Has large veranda, all conveniences. The lot has 65 feet frontage. The price is low and the terms very easy. A rare opportunity for an excellent home in a choice location.

Daniels to Dispense Fresh Air Hospitality

Secretary of the Navy to Keep Country Home Open Throughout Winter.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Fresh air hospitality will be the slogan Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Daniels will sound in Washington society next winter, now they have decided to retain "Single Oak," their country place on the outskirts of Washington, as an all-year-round residence.

Despite the distance from the fashionable center of the northwest, the Daniels plan a series of unique country sports to entertain their friends in good old Southern fashion, cross-country tramps, week-end parties when hunting and winter sports will be in order, are included in these plans.

At Christmas a jolly house party will make the old mansion ring from rafters to yule log on the roomy hearth.

Negroes Plan Big Labor Day Outing

Proceeds Will Be Used to Complete and Promote Bethel Church.

Preparations for the big outing conducted by the negroes of Atlanta at the Speedway on Labor Day are practically complete, according to announcement Saturday. The proceeds of the celebration will go to complete the Big Bethel Church building and to promote the industrial and social work of the church.

Among the stunts which will be pulled off at the Speedway will be automobile, motorcycle and foot races, for which cash prizes, netting $300, will be given to the winners. In addition, Bishop Turner and Dr. C. T. Walker will make speeches of welcome. Provision for white patrons will be made, according to an announcement of the committee, and no drinking or bad conduct will be allowed.

Lawyer's Attack on Judge Preston Fails

W. M. Smith Unable to Disqualify Recorder Pro Tem, Who Finally Finds for Him.

W. M. Smith, a lawyer, who clashed with Recorder Pro Tem. Preston in Police Court Friday, failed Saturday in an attempt to disqualify Judge Preston from sitting on the case of Mrs. B. E. Carroll, of 15 Houston street, charged with conducting a boarding house without a license.

Smith questioned Judge Preston as to whether he had complied with the city law requiring him to call on members of Council to serve on the Police Court bench in the absence of the Recorder.

Smith also presented a demurrer, asking that the case be thrown out of court, and this was overruled. The trial came to a sudden end a few minutes later, however, when Judge Preston, after three or four witnesses had been heard, dismissed the case for lack of sufficient evidence. He turned the matter over to Sergeant Barfield and License Inspector Hayes for a further investigation.

Cochran to Deliver Address at Clayton

Hoke Smith's Opponent Expected to Sound Keynote of His Senatorial Campaign.

Ralph O. Cochran, candidate for United States Senator to succeed Senator Hoke Smith, will fire the second gun of his campaign next Saturday morning at Clayton. The address, it is thought, will be the keynote speech of the Cochran campaign.

Although the Senatorial election does not take place until next summer, Mr. Cochran has plunged into the campaign with the apparent determination to liven things up considerably, politically, within the next few months. He delivered his first speech in Douglas County a few weeks ago.

Luncheon to Boost Atlanta-Made Goods

Merchants and Manufacturers Will Gather Tuesday to Plan Permanent Exhibit.

A luncheon through which it is hoped to create greater interest in the proposed permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods will be given at the Hotel Ansley Tuesday afternoon by the Chamber of Commerce.

Leading merchants and manufacturers will be invited and will be entertained with speeches enumerating the benefits of the exhibit. The necessary number to insure the success of the movement have not yet signed up and it is hoped to secure them Tuesday.

HOBSON TALKS; O'NEAL SILENT; CLAYTON BUSY

Governor Urged to Call Special Session of Alabama Legislature at Once.

BANKHEAD IN WASHINGTON

Senatorial Tangle Shows No Signs of Being Straightened Out Except by Congress.

MONTGOMERY, Aug. 16.—Prominent citizens, attorneys and politicians are advising Governor O'Neal to call a special session of the Legislature and place in proper position the United States Senatorial condition.

The appointment of Congressman Henry D. Clayton to the position made vacant by the death of Senator Joseph F. Johnston does not suit those in command, and, therefore, the proper channel will have to be sought.

Among those who have petitioned the Governor to call a special session of the Legislature is Walter Percy, prominent attorney of Birmingham and member of the Legislature. He says that in addition to the Senatorial matter some attention could be given to the elimination of the fee system in Jefferson County, where the Sheriff alone makes $50,000 per annum.

The consensus of opinion here is that the Governor will have to call a special session of the Legislature, in the meantime filling vacancies and then set about regularly toward selecting a Senator.

Legal, Says Bankhead.

Senator John S. Bankhead, who has just returned to Washington from a stay of a few weeks at his home at Jasper, near here, expresses the belief that the appointment of Governor O'Neal, announced last Monday, is legal and will stand. It is expected that he will be heard on the proposition the coming week in Washington.

Until the appointment is legally turned down in the Senate in Washington, no definite action is probable in Alabama. Everything now is on the presumption that the appointment of Congressman Clayton will be turned down.

Governor O'Neal is quiet on the subject of a possible special session of the Legislature so far as can be heard.

The names of Congressmen Oscar Underwood, Thomas Heflin, John W. Abercrombie, and Dr. R. M. Cunningham, of Ensley, are mentioned as probable candidates for the Senatorship in the regular election.

Hobson's Card.

Congressman Hobson says of Clayton's appointment:

"It is a brazen defiance of law, the people and the Constitution—the most humiliating travesty of our political institutions.

"It is a defiance of the law and the rights of the people, willfully made with the knowledge that the appointment is illegal and is so regarded by the United States Senators, not only by the opposition Senators, but by Democratic Senators as well.

"The effect of the appointment will be to postpone indefinitely the settlement of the question. This delay is fully understood by the Alabama politician, and is incurred against the earnest advice of our Democratic leaders.

"In the midst of the crisis of the tariff bill, the interest of the Democratic party, the relief and welfare of the nation, the law of the land, the sacred political rights of the people seem to have counted for naught."

SHOP TALK.

The Durham Jewelry Company, which has taken the agency of South Bend watches, has a novel way of advertising this well known make. It has placed one of these watches in the center of a 200-pound cake of ice. The watch keeps perfect time and is attracting a great deal of attention.

The 999 Clothing Company has opened at No. 34 Whitehall street. This firm is an immense Eastern manufacturer, and is opening one of its best stores in the South in Atlanta. With its large stock and excellent location the 999 Shop feels certain of much success here.

Miss Anna Von Hoffmann, an artist of remarkable ability, is appearing at the Montgomery this week. Miss Hoffmann's act will be an opera repertoire scenes from grand opera will be depicted, and the management of this theater feels sure that the public of Atlanta will be delighted with this singer.

American Girl Tells Of 'Walloping' Prince

"I Kicked Radziwill Out of His Auto for Kissing My Hand too Rapturously," She Says.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Miss Elizabeth Frewen, of Philadelphia, arrived from London to-day on the Oceanic with a Pekinese named Bo Sing, a gift from Prince Albert Radziwill, who married Miss Dorothy Deacon, a Boston society girl, some years ago.

"Just because I tell you the Prince gave me Bo Sing," said Miss Frewen, "don't think he is a friend of mine. Just before I left London I walloped him on the jaw and kicked him out of his automobile for kissing my hand too rapturously."

Miss Frewen is six feet tall. She was met at the pier by Joseph Daley, of Boston, to whom she is to be married next month.

Boy Without Home Is Looking for Job

udge Turns Waif Over to Probation Officer Who Seeks Work for Him.

With no folks and no home, a youth of 16 years, who gave his name as Albert Ollinger, told Recorder Pro Tem Preston Saturday afternoon that he would work if he only had the chance.

Judge Preston turned the boy over to Probation Officer Coogler, who said he would try and get him a job.

Ollinger said his native home is New Orleans, but that now he is an outcast, with no place to call home.

SEES BENEFIT TO PACKERS IN IMPORTED BEEF

Patrick Cudahy Thinks Lowering of Bars to South American Meats Will Aid Business.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Patrick Cudahy, who is here for a six weeks' rest, speaking to-day on business conditions in America, said:

"The chief effect of the tariff bill on our business will be to let in a considerable quantity of beef from South America. We welcome this, because we are rapidly approaching a condition when we will be compelled to import beef. The day of unlimited free pastures is gone. Farmers now are finding it expensive business to raise beef, and prices are going up.

"There may be a few hogs coming from Southern Canada, but I do not anticipate that this will have any effect on the market. I believe that the difficulties caused by the tariff can be adjusted. What is needed most is the creation of an independent tariff commission, which will investigate the whole matter and take it out of politics. That would be the best way to kill lobbying.

"Our country just now is cursed by politicians. I believe there is good times ahead. Although the corn crop is not very good, the wheat crop is excellent and ought to boost business."

4 Royal Bridesmaids For Manuel's Wedding

Eighty Princes and Princesses Will Attend Ex-King's Betrothed on September 4.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Arrangements for ex-King Manuel's wedding to Princess Augustine Hohenzollern on September 4 at Sigmaringen show the ceremony will be gorgeous.

Eighty royal princes and princesses will attend, including the Prince of Wales, representing King George, and four princesses as bridesmaids.

The Kaiser excuses himself from being present on account of the German army maneuvers. He and other monarchs will be represented by princes.

25,000 Books From Carnegie Library Read Last Month

Trustees Note Addition of 400 New Members—Establishment of Branches Taken Up.

Four hundred new members were enrolled on the Carnegie Library lists and something like 25,000 volumes were taken out of the library for home reading, according to the monthly report of the librarian, issued at the regular meeting of the board of trustees.

The board discussed plans for the opening of the new Uncle Remus branch library in the Uncle Remus Home, in West End. The branch, which probably will be opened during September, will be in charge of Miss Mary Browne, who succeeds Miss Alberta Malone, who resigned to accept a position in a college library.

The board also considered the report of the installation of several deposits of books at various points in the city, including the Wesley House, the Fulton Bag and Cotton Mills and the Baptist Home of Stewart Avenue. The board also accepted with thanks the recent gift of a photograph of Major Charles W. Hubner, presented by Joseph L. Humphries. The resignation of Miss Emily Kemp was accepted with regrets.

Savannah Minister Has Saloons Raided

Pastor Objects to Near-Beer Dispensaries Near His Church. Dealers Arrested.

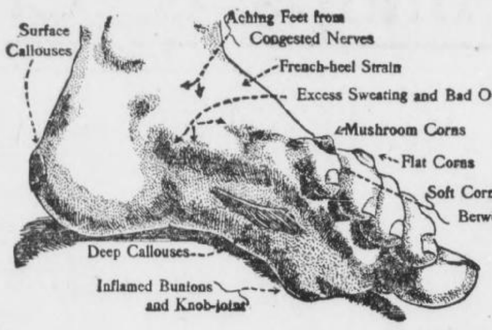

SAVANNAH, Aug. 15.—On complaint of the Rev. M. F. Roberts, pastor of the Fourth Baptist Church, three near-beer dealers, with places around the corner from his church have been placed under arrest and required to give bond for their appearance on charges of violating the State prohibition law.

The places raided are the same which received the attention of the authorities last Sunday. The men under arrest are Andrew Pappedea, M. Patro and C. L. Davis. A lot of near beer and whisky was confiscated and will be used as evidence against the men.

WHAT CONGRESS DID SATURDAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The Senate authorized the President to appoint delegates to the international institute. McLean urged inclusion of provision in tariff bill prohibiting importation of feathers of birds, and Lodge denounced free listing of fish. Foreign Relations Committee discussed Mexican affairs. Finance Committee heard protests of California wine producers against tariff bill.

The House was not in session.

Tells Positive Cure For all Foot Troubles

Science has proven that nearly all foot troubles originate from a common cause; that of injured tissues. The following information will be welcomed by thousands of victims of daily foot torture. No matter how many patent medicines you have tried in vain, this treatment which was formerly known only to doctors will do the work. Don't waste time. Get it at once. "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet for a full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effects are marvelous. All pain disappears instantly and the feet feel simply delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. Bunions, aching feet and sweaty, smelly feet get immediate relief. Use this treatment a week and your foot troubles will be a thing of the past. Calocide works through the pores and removes the cause. Any druggist has Calocide in stock or will get it from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take something else instead. A twenty-five cent box is said to be enough to cure the worst feet.

FIGHT BEGUN TO PUT ATLANTAN IN JUDGESHIP

Lawyers Start Move to Assure Appointment of Local Man for City Bench.

With a committee appointed to place before Governor John M. Slaton the movement for an "Atlanta man for an Atlanta Judge," local attorneys have begun in earnest a campaign to have one of their number appointed to the judgeship created by the recent session of the General Assembly.

This committee will present to the Governor a petition signed by virtually every lawyer in Atlanta, asking that the request of the local attorneys be complied with in the making of the appointment. Already more than a majority of Atlanta attorneys have signed the petition, and other signatures are being secured every day. Hollins N. Randolph is chairman of the committee.

Others of the committee are Albert Howell, Jr., Clifford L. Anderson, Shepard Bryan, Eugene Dodd, Victor Lamar Smith, George Westmoreland, E. V. Carter, Samuel D. Hewlett, Samuel Nesbit Evins, William A. Wimbish, Robert F. Jones, Jesse M. Wood, Paul E. Johnson, W. Carroll Latimer, Lee M. Jordan, W. J. Tilson, Philip H. Alston, Harrison Jones, Hudson Moore, John A. Hynds, Van-Astor Batchelor, Thomas H. Goodwin, W. H. Terrell, Winfield Jones and H. M. Patty.

TWO FIRES IN NEGRO SECTION DO $1,000 DAMAGE

Fire at 10 o'clock Saturday night destroyed a negro cabin at No. 162 Terry street and damaged another at No. 18 Rawson street, two blocks away. The loss is $1,000. The alarms came in three minutes apart.

MRS. ZACHRY IS NOW IN AUGUSTA WITH HER BABY

Is Confident of Her Ability to Establish That She Is Proper Person for Custody.

AUGUSTA, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Mary Zachry and her one-year-old daughter, Mildred, have returned from Columbia, where she resided temporarily after her sensational flight with her two children following a decision by Judge Hammond to the effect that the decision of the Ordinary with regard to the award of the children be made the decision of the higher court.

At that time Judge Hammond refused to go into the merits of the case, holding that he had no right to hear evidence on a matter which the Ordinary had already decided.

Mrs. Zachry's attorney, C. E. Dunbar, appealed that phase of the case to the Supreme Court, with the result that Judge Hammond's decision was reversed and the case will be heard in the Superior Court on its merits.

Now that the opportunity is afforded of a full and unrestricted presentation of the facts in the case, Mrs. Zachry is confident of her ability to establish that she the mother, is the proper person to have the custody of the children.

Judge Hammond has ordered that Julian J. Zachry pay immediately $50 alimony due Mrs. Zachry, but has allowed some time for the payment of $40 attorney's fees in the case.

AUTO AS MATADOR SAVES FARMER FROM MAD BULL

ELGIN, ILL., Aug. 16.—Matadors may be succeeded by automobiles as bullfighters. This was proven when Peter Green, a farmer, 60 years old, of Huntley, was being gored by a bull in one of his pastures. His screams attracted an automobile party of three men, who were in the road. They witnessed the attack for a moment, then the driver of the big touring car made a dash into the pasture and after the bull.

The horn was tooted and tooted, and the bull finally was driven away from the helpless farmer. Three of Green's ribs were broken, but he will recover.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT FOR DALTON

Public Utilities Taken From City Council—Plants Must Be Self-Sustaining.

DALTON, Aug. 16.—Dalton will have at least a partial commission government beginning with September 1, when the charter amendment bill passed during the closing days of the Legislature goes into effect.

The bill takes the city utilities, including water, gas and electric light and power plants, completely out of the hands of City Council, turning over the management to the board of water, light and sinking fund commissioners, which consists of Paul B. Trammell, H. J. Smith and H. B. Farrar, three of the city's leading business men.

This commission will have absolute control of the municipal plants. The board has the right to fix rates, collect all money due from consumers, authorize and make extensions, etc., without consulting the administration, the utilities being entirely separated from the rest of the city government.

The bill further provides that the entire responsibility rests upon the commission, City Council being in no wise bound by the actions of the board. The plants must be at least self-sustaining, for Council is not expected to appropriate one cent for maintenance of the various plants, appropriating only for the sinking fund and interest on outstanding bonds.

It also provides that if City Council receives a bid for the sale of the plants, the bid being accompanied by a certified check for one-fourth the amount offered as a purchase price, and a petition signed by one-third of the qualified voters, an election shall be called for the purpose of ascertaining if public sentiment favors a sale. If in the election called in such an event two-thirds of the registered voters favor a sale, such a step will be taken.

Dalton Churches Will Be Enlarged

First Presbyterian and First Methodist to Spend Nearly $30,000 in Improvements.

DALTON, Aug. 16.—The First Presbyterian and First Methodist Churches will begin, within a few weeks, improvements which will aggregate $17,000.

The First Presbyterian will spend $11,000 in completely remodeling the church and building a Sunday school annex which will open into the main auditorium, doubling the present seating capacity of the church. Plans for the work have been drawn and accepted, and the money has been secured for the work which, when completed, will give to the Presbyterians on of the handsomest edifices in the city.

Instead of spending $3,000, as was intended, on the second Sunday school annex, the First Methodist Church will double that amount, building additional room for the Sunday school, at a cost of $6,000. The new annex will give to each class an individual room, will contain a kitchen and dining room and will be steam-heated. When the work is completed the church will possess one of the largest auditoriums in North Georgia.

MEN SHOCKED BY BOLT OF LIGHTNING RECOVER

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—A. H. Price, a Western Union telegraph lineman, who was shocked at Tarver, Ga., on Thursday by lightning, was able to be out to-day. His left side was injured by the bolt and for a long time after the lightning jumped from a wire near him he has unable to move.

Lewis L. Harvard, chief clerk to President A. K. Sessoms, of the Waycross and Western, has also recovered from a shock he received while at a telephone during the same storm.

THOMAS COUNTY WANTS STOCK LAW PASSED

THOMASVILLE, Aug. 16.—That Thomas County will have a stock law before a great while is very probable, if the wishes of the majority of the farmers are carried out. This is a matter that has been discussed for some time, but of late the tide of opinion has turned so decidedly in its favor that it begins to look as if concerted efforts will be made to have such a law for the county.

ROADS WILL ENLARGE CORDELE UNION DEPOT

CORDELE, Aug. 16.—It is authoritatively reported that work of enlarging the Union depot in Cordele and making improvements on the grounds will begin about September 15. The time limit of 60 days set on the railroads by the Railroad Commission will expire on October 1, prior to which time the Georgia Southern road, which will have the work in charge, must begin activities.

Church Building Has Sacred Value

Gainesville Edifice Moved Half Mile. Cost More Than New Structure.

GAINESVILLE, Aug. 16.—Costing several hundred more than the value of the building to move it, Grace Episcopal Church has been moved around corners and through streets, a distance of more than a half mile, from its location on College avenue to the rear of the new church lot on East Washington street.

The reason for moving the building intact is because of its sacred value. Sacred buildings of the Episcopal Church must be kept.

The new church lot was purchased by Bishop Nelson as a gift to the church here. Upon it a building to cost at least $20,000 will be erected, work upon the foundation to begin at once. The present church building removed is being placed upon the rear of the new lot to be used as a Sunday school and instruction room.

Rev. Merlin Jones is vicar of this church.

AGED NEGRESS SAVES FIVE CENTS ON HER TAXES

DALTON, Aug. 16.—"Aunt" Loucinda Dukes, an aged negress, was the first local taxpayer to take advantage of City Council's offer of 3 per cent discount on taxes paid prior to August 20.

She sent the money to the Clerk's office, where it was found that her total taxes amounted to $1.88. The discount saved her the sum of five cents, which would have gone into the city treasury had she waited until the last of December, when city taxes fall due.

GRAND MASTER COLDING GUEST OF DALTON MASONS

DALTON, Aug. 16.—Robert L. Colding, of Savannah, grand master of the grand lodge, Free and Accepted Masons of Georgia, will be the guest of Dalton Masons on Monday, August 25, members of the commandery, the chapter and blue lodge and local Shriners all uniting in the reception planned for him at 2 o'clock. In the evening work in the third degree will be put on by Dalton Lodge, No. 105, F. and A. M., the work to be followed by a banquet in the private banquet room of the Masonic temple.

W. W. CALLAWAY GETS PLACE ON JURY BOARD

DALTON, Aug. 16.—Willis W. Callaway has been appointed by Judge Fite as a member of the board of jury revisers, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Joseph H. Moore.

The board will meet here Monday and begin the work of revising the jury lists of Whitfield County.

Longstreet Home to Be Catholic Church

Congregation Has Had No House of Worship in Gainesville—Mortgages to be Raised.

GAINESVILLE, Aug. 16.—It is said the former home of Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet in this city will be taken over by the Roman Catholics and will be used solely for religious services. The Catholics have had no church building here, but heretofore this home has been used for holding mass.

Several mortgages were given upon the property by Mrs. Longstreet, and it is said that these will be raised by the Catholic Church, the debts settled and the building become the property of the church.

Officials of this church have been here this week. Since their arrival Mrs. Longstreet has gone to New York to enter newspaper work again.

WYNNTON SCHOOL IS BECOMING INADEQUATE

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—So great has been the increase in population of Wynnton, Columbus' most popular residential section, for the past two or three years, that the school building which has been in use for several years has become inadequate and the question of erecting a new building is being agitated. Many of the wealthiest people around Columbus live in that suburb, and it is expected that they will erect a handsome building.

PROF. HUBERT TO TEACH MECHANICAL ARTS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—Professor E. H. Hubert, last year assistant teacher in experimental engineering at the Georgia School of Technology, has been elected head teacher of mechanical arts at the Columbus Industrial High School in this city. He succeeds Professor T. D. Futch, who recently tendered his resignation to the board of trustees.

DALTON PUBLIC SCHOOLS TO OPEN SEPTEMBER 8

DALTON, Aug. 16.—The Dalton public schools will open the fall term Monday, September 8, the date being set by the school board at a meeting yesterday. Mr. C. D. Meadows, who comes here from the Rome public school system, will begin his service as superintendent of the local schools. An eleventh grade has been added to the High School, the advanced work to be started this year.

RAILWAY FOR DAHLONEGA IS A PROBABILITY

Plan to Build Branch Line From Gainesville and Northwestern's New Road.

GAINESVILLE, Aug. 16.—Report has it that a line of railroad is to be built from Brookton on the new Gainesville and Northwestern to Dahlonega, a distance of 18 miles.

Dahlonega has no railroad and for the past twenty-five years has been trying to get railroad connection.

Years ago a road was graded from Dahlonega to Gainesville, 25 miles. Coolnel W. P. Price fas at the head of the enterprise. The project failed. The rails were never laid.

The grade is still to be noticed. A party went over the route from Brookton to Dahlonega Thursday, and it appears certain this road will be built. The same promoters who built the road from this city to Helen have the branch line in hand.

RECORD ATTENDANCE.

GAINESVILLE, FLA., Aug. 16.—The coming session of the State University, which opens September 23, will be the largest in the history of the institution. Many are coming from other States, and large accommodations will be crowded.

'Come Up or I'll Drop This Stone,' He Came

Dalton Officer Forces Man in Well to Climb Into Bucket and Ascend.

DALTON, Aug. 16.—Under unusual circumstances was the arrest of John Holder, charged with burglary, made by Bailiffs A. T. Glibert and Gus Hicks.

The bailiff found Holder in the bottom of a well in East Dalton, and asked him to come up. He stalled and asked what was wanted but changed his mind when Bailiff Gilbert balanced a heavy rock over his head. He finally consented to enter the bucket and was drawn up by the bailiffs. There was not sufficient evidence to hold the man, and he was released.

Fear of Smallpox Kills Negroes' Thirst

Dropped Bottle and Ran When Told Disease Germs Were Near at Hand.

DALTON, Aug. 16.—A convivial party engaged in passing a bottle of first-class whisky among them was rudely interrupted near Herndon's livery stable on Crawford street, when warning of lurking smallpox germs was fired at them by a negro employed at the stable.

The men were drinking in the stable when Mr. Herndon entered and informed them of the necessity to either move out or put up the bottle. They preferred to move. Outside of the stable stood an abandoned hack, and, taking their seats in the hack, they renewed the onslaught on the bottle.

The hack proved to be one used in hauling smallpox patients to the pesthouse.

From Chaingang To Insane Asylum

Noted Blind Tiger Operator of Rome Faces Lunacy Charge.

ROME, Aug. 16.—Accused of being one of the most notorious blind tigers who ever operated in Rome, of always violating the law in one way or another, "Bill" Martin, a well-known character of this city, recently freed from the county chaingang, now faces charges of lunacy.

Martin's actions have so frightened his wife, she alleges, that she is afraid of him and wants him sent to the State Sanitarium. Martin, the officers assert, has been selling whisky illegally in Rome since time immemorial. Shortly before he was sent to the chaingang he was tried and convicted on a charge of stealing harness.

Gets Sentence for Horse-Whipping Man

Callahan Convicted for Using Lash on Shannon Near Tifton, Murray County.

DALTON, Aug. 16.—Joseph Callahan, indicted on the charge of being a member of the band of masked men that whipped a man named Shannon, near Tifton, several months ago, was convicted in the Superior Court at Chatsworth, Murray County, yesterday, being sentenced to twelve months on the chaingang.

Shannon testified that he snatched the mask from one of has assailants and recognized Callahan. Judge G. G. Glenn, his attorney, has filed a motion for a new trial.

BERRY SCHOOL WANTS NO CITY BOYS AND GIRLS

Applicants From Metropolitan Centers Are Turned Away by Rome Institution.

ROME, Aug. 16.—Berry School is one institution where city boys and girls are not wanted.

According to an instructor of the school earnest appeals have come from fathers and mothers in metropolitan centers, who are anxious to get their offsprings matriculated in the Berry School, and all of these have been turned down. Many of these applications came from Atlanta.

"There is a great need for a Christian industrial school for city boys and girls," said the instructor. "Convincing evidence of this is found in the fact that in spite of the widespread knowledge that the Berry School is exclusively for country boys and girls of limited means, scores of applications are being received every day from a host of Southern cities."

In the Piano Business the Concern by Which All Others Are Measured Is the Phillips & Crew Company!

There's always One by which the Rest are Measured---

In every line of business there's unquestionably ONE that is generally accepted by ALL as being the Standard---the one by which ALL OF THE REST ARE MEASURED OR COMPARED.

So, ask any Piano Salesman what Atlanta Piano house he would like most to work for or to represent in the field---

Ask Piano purchasers what Piano Concern's lines are always mentioned in comparison, when other Pianos are being considered for purchase.

And then, ask yourself at what Store you'd rather select a Piano for use in your own home---

The answer cannot help but be in every instance the same, for the Phillips & Crew Company are the acknowledged Standard Piano concern in Atlanta---the Old and Reliable Piano House by which all others are Measured or Compared.

M'DERMOTT HIT BY EVIDENCE OF PAWNBROKERS

Page Says Congressman Got $7,500 for Defeating Loan Shark Bill Before House.

DEALERS ADMIT DONATIONS

Thought Money Was To Be Used for Employment of Lawyers, They Say.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Pawnbrokers had their innings before a Congressional committee to-day for the first time in history, when the House lobby investigators set out to substantiate the evidence of I. H. McMichael, former page of the House, against Representative James T. McDermott, of Chicago.

McMichael testified earlier in the day that McDermott had told him he (McDermott) had received $7,500 from local pawnbrokers for defeating a loan shark bill.

The first pawnbroker called, Abraham Burnstine, testified that he had contributed $700 to a fund to beat the loan shark bill. He said that his understanding was that he was contributing twenty per cent of the fund and on that basis it would have amounted to $3,500.

He said he thought the money was to hire lawyers to appear before the District of Columbia Committee and also before President Taft to make oral arguments. The records show there were no oral arguments before the committee.

Burnstine said he had cashed checks for McDermott, but for no other member of Congress.

"Wasn't it unusual for you to cash a check for a man you didn't know?" he was asked.

"Any member of Congress can come into my shop and get a check cashed any time," replied the pawnbroker smiling.

Burnstine admitted that he gave the money for the funds to George D. Horning, another pawnbroker, without any questions as to how it was to be spent. Horning was one of the men he named as having accompanied him to McDermott's office.

"How did you know that $3,500 was enough to beat the bill?" he was asked.

"Oh, we were not opposing the bill," he replied. "We simply wanted Congress to know our grievances. I am pretty sure that it would take $40,000 or $50,000 to really defeat legislation."

This brought a laugh from the committee.

Steiner testified that he never contributed to the fund though urged to do so. He said he had agreed to do so, but had gone out of business.

Registered Nurses of Atlanta Entertain in Their New Home

FACTORY SHOW TO BE BOOSTED AT BIG DINNER

Chamber of Commerce Invites 150 Atlanta Manufacturers to Lunch at Ansley.

The Chamber of Commerce has invited about 150 leading Atlanta manufacturers to a luncheon at the Hotel Ansley at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon to present to them fully the plans for the proposed permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods which will occupy the top four floors of the new Chamber of Commerce Building.

A committee from the Atlanta Retail Grocers' Association will be present, and O. T. Camp, president of the association, will address the guests. He will explain the plan of the Grocers' Association to have Atlanta-made goods specially pushed every Wednesday, after the end of the Wednesday afternoon closing season. Others who will speak are Brooks Morgan, chairman of the Committee on Permanent Exhibit, and W. H. Leahy, who has charge of the statistical bureau of the Chamber of Commerce.

The Committee on Permanent Exhibit, which is composed of Brooks Morgan, chairman, Boiling H. Jones, J. K. Orr, V. H. Kriegshaber, M. M. Davies, J. T. Rose and W. H. White, Jr., has been hard at work on the exhibit the past week. Over two floors of space have been sold.

Exhibits similar to the one now being worked up for Atlanta are supported by the manufacturers of Chattanooga, Richmond, Nashville, Charlotte, High Point, N. C.; Louisville, Cincinnati, Evansville and many other cities, and the demand for space always exceeds the amount available in those cities.

Atlanta does not generally fail in matters of public interest, and it is the consensus of opinion among business men that if the manufacturers fail to support the exhibit at this time it will set the porposition back several years.

The contemplated manufacturers' exhibit would be a show place for Atlantans and visitors, where Atlanta products would be advertised. The exhibit would be of inestimable value both to the city and to the individual manufacturer according to the Chamber of Commerce.

PRINTER CHIEF THINKS FIGHTS ARE GOOD SIGN

James M. Lynch Declares Disagreements in Union Show Men Are in Earnest.

NASHVILLE, Aug. 16.—With words tending to heal wounds caused by the many bitter clashes of the week, President James M. Lynch this afternoon closed the fifty-ninth session of the International Typographical Union, which, in the words of the president, was the most important session ever held.

Shortly before the close, President Lynch, in taking the floor to defend Syracuse Council against New York on a difference over an account for traveling expenses, replied to Vice President Duncan's plea for peace, saying:

"We can obtain peace by fighting persistently for what we think is right. We must fight the issues as they come. This is not a peace society nor a pink tea organization. There will be dissension as long as there are wage earners and disorganization as long as wage earners exist, and we must never relax."

The greatest feature of the closing session was that the committee on allied trades relations reported favorably on the suggestion for close affiliation of all the trades unions of the printing field. Steps will follow immediately.

President Berry, of the International Pressmen, was criticised for inaction in the Pacific Coast pressmen's strike.

Local councils were warned against sending tubercular patients in the advanced stage to the national home at Colorado Springs, as the altitude hastens death of such patients.

DR. W H. BORN RECOVERS FROM SEVERE OPERATION

Dr. W. H. Born, a physician of McRae and brother of Colonel E. Winn Born, the Atlanta lawyer, is convalescing after an operation for appendicitis at the Grady Hospital. Dr. Born was brought to Atlanta from his home Friday, dangerously ill, with an immediate operation necessary.

Triplets in Home Where 6 Twins Live

President Wilson Is Honored Three Times in the Naming of the Babies.

LAONIA, WIS., Aug. 16.—Three pairs of twins and a set of triplets is the record that Mrs. Joseph Checota, of this town, boasts. The triplets will be named Woodrow, Wilson and W. W. Joseph, in honor of the President.

The father believes this is a record that will stand for a long time to come.

Mr. and Mrs. Checota have been married six years and in that time have had nine children. All but one are living.

'Pussy Sneak' Routs Staid Old Tangos

Creepy Glide Brings New York Team Applications to Teach New Dance.

ONSET, MASS., Aug. 16.—The "tangoes," "hugs," "trots," "grapevine" and other similar dances have been cast into darkness by the creation introduced this afternoon at the local dancing casino by a New York couple. It is called the "pussy sneak," and is danced with the rubber-soled shoes commonly worn at the seaside.

The "pussy sneak" is a creepy sort of dance, with a few glides, but catchy, and the New York team that "put the stunt on" had several applications tonight to teach it.

Labor Sunday To Be Observed by Unions

Atlanta Federation of Trades Will Have Special Services at English Lutheran Church.

At a meeting of the Atlanta Federation of Trades Saturday night arrangements were perfected to observe Labor Sunday August 31 with special Labor Day services at the English Lutheran Church.

The Rev. W. C. Schaeffer will prepare a special sermon for the occasion.

The committee on arrangements are as follows: C. L. Ashley, Mrs E. B. Smith, W. B. VanHouten, M. Palmer and J. E. Bradfield.

Rockefeller's Rival In Riches Tips Dime

Nitrate King Hands Man Ten Cents for Returning Lost Pocketbook.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Senor E. E. Ossio, the "Nitrate King of Chili, who has declared John D. Rockefeller a pauper in comparison with himself, overwhelmed a steward on the United Fruit steamer Pastores yesterday by the size of a tip.

The steward had picked up the Nitrate King's wallet and, running after him, bowed low and handed over the pocketbook. Opening it, Senor Ossio pulled out a dollar bill, then changed his mind, and, taking a dime from his pocket, handed it to the steward.

HOMESTEADER IS BLOWN FROM HIS BED BY STORM

PIERRE, S. DAK., Aug. 16.—Otto Everhardt, a young bachelor homesteader, arrived at the home of a neighbor dressed only in a two-foot piece of blanket, which he said was all that remained of his household property as a result of the storm which swept this section. Everhardt said that the tornado struck his shack while he was in bed, carried away the shanty and bed and left him uninjured. Other homesteaders suffered heavy losses, reports indicate.

WRECKER WANTED TO SEE WHAT TRAIN WOULD DO

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—"Just wanted to see a wreck, just to see what the train would do," was the explanation of John Hosey, 14 years old, when arrested last night charged with placing a beam on the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad tracks at Thirty-third and Plant streets in an attempt to wreck the shuttle train running between Savannah and Newyards. A special officer saw two boys place the beam on the track. He arrested Hosey, but the other lad escaped.

RHEUMATISM COMES FROM CONDITIONS WHICH CAN BE REMEDIED

But Local Applications on the Skin Cannot Get at the Cause of Your Suffering.

Just a bilious attack and a slight deposit of uric acid. Now calomel and similar mercurial purgatives do not dissolve and expel the uric acid sediment that forms from undigested, fermenting foods, and when this poisonous acid is not expelled it accumulates quickly, thickens the blood and settles in joints and muscles. The joints and muscles then become stiff.

An attempt to cure this rheumatism must be directed toward removing uric acid from blood and tissues, breaking up the crystalline urates already formed and preventing new deposits.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is remarkably successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It dissolves uric acid out of the tissues, holds it in solution and expels it in the urine. It thoroughly cleanses the system of fermentation and purifies the blood. It will give prompt relief in all cases of rheumatism resulting from uric acid poisoning.

If you are suffering with rheumatism, try JACOBS' LIVER SALT immediately. It will relieve you more promptly and surely than anything else. Don't take an inferior substitute; some closely imitate the name, but none produces the same result. Insist on the genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT, 25c. If your druggist can not supply you, full size jar mailed upon receipt of price, postage free. Made and guaranteed by Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., Atlanta.—(Advt.)

PRISON REFORM ADVOCATES LIKE TWO NEW LAWS

Georgia Association Encouraged Over Bill Providing for Adult Probation.

SCANS LEGISLATURE'S WORK

Act Establishing Home for Wayward Girls Comes In for Praise.

Now that the Legislature has adjourned and the bills passed have been submitted to Governor Slaton for signature, the Georgia Prison Association has figured out definitely just how much was accomplished in the way of reforming Georgia's criminal procedure by this year's Legislature.

The bill which will have more effect than any is the one providing for adult probation and suspension of sentence in misdemeanor cases. This will become effective in every Criminal Court in Georgia as soon as Governor Slaton signs it. The operations of the law are exceedingly simple and are thoroughly safeguarded, to prevent the habitual criminal benefiting from them.

They provide that in first offenses and other cases where there are sufficiently mitigating circumstances, the adult convicted of misdemeanor may be freed on probation to report back to the court or probation officer at stated times. This means, for instance, that a man convicted of deserting his wife can be sentenced, and instead of being put on chain-gang work, where he will do no good to his family, can be sent back home and forced to work for his family under court supervision.

All Judges Approve Law.

This measure received the endorsement of practically every Criminal Court judge n Georgia, and of the Prison Board. It applies not to Superior Courts alone, but in all courts in which misdemeanor cases are tried.

The second reform measure passed is the bill establishing a home for wayward girls in Georgia, and providing $20,000 toward its establishment. At present Georgia has no reformatory to which it may send its wayward girls. It has the alternative of sending them to the prison farm with hardened offenders, or having them sent to institutions outside of Georgia.

Under the new law Governor Slaton will appoint a board of five members of whom two will be women, to put the work of establishing this home immediately under way. One of their first duties will be to select a site.

Sites Have Been Offered.

The bill provides that if no site is given the home shall be established at Milledgeville, but already two or three tentative offers of a site have been made and there is no likelihood of it being necessary to put the new home at Milledgeville, a location which the friends of the measure believe would be ill-advised.

These are the only two measures which were passed at this session, but one other notable thing was accomplished. A bill was framed providing for indeterminate sentences. It received the formal indorsement of the Prison Board, was passed by the Senate and recommended for passage by the House committee. It has no opposition and is in such shape that it will almost certainly be one of the first general measures to pass the 1914 session.

The Prison Association of Georgia, which framed the original measures, and the association's friends in the Legislature, were largely responsible for the enactment of these measures.

Woman Not Man's Equal, Says Prelate

Archbishop Says He Wouldn't Dare Say Suffrage Agitation Is Against Church Rules.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 16.—"I do not believe the Creator intended the position of woman in the world should be the same as that of man," said Archbishop Sebastian G. Messmer, of this city, in an address to the Catholic Press Association to-day.

"But I would not dare make the positive statement that agitation for woman suffrage is against the rules of the church. The church has not taken any definite stand and until it does each individual has a right to think, talk and act as he sees fit."

Cuts in Parcel Post Rates Are Followed By Record Business

Atlanta Office Sends Out $1,000 Every Day in Collect on Delivery Packages.

The new parcel post rates, which have just gone into effect, made a record-breaking business for the close of the week at the Atlanta postoffice. The number of packages handled was more than double that of any similar period, nearly all Atlanta business houses sending packages out of town taking advantage of the reduced rates.

The new rates affect only the local, first and second zones. The weight limit on parcels has been raised from eleven to twenty pounds, and a twenty-pound package can, under the new rate, be sent 150 miles for nearly half what it formerly cost to send an eleven-pound package the same distance.

Since the C. O. D. department of the parcels post went into effect the local office has sent out an average of $1,000 a day in C. O. D. packages.

Custom Officers Seize Davis Trophy

International Tennis Cup, Just Won by America Is Held Up for Duty.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The Davis cup, international tennis trophy, recently won in England by the American team, was seized by customs officials when it reached here to-day on the liner Mauretania, but Collector of the Port Mitchell intimated to-night that the prize would probably be released within a short time.

The basis of the seizure was the officials claim that although the trophy was originally American property, it had been abroad so long that the payment of duty might be necessary.

MOBILE, Aug. 16.—George W. McCrary, for seven years secretary and treasurer of the New Orleans, Mobile and Chicago Railroad Company with headquarters in this city, died here to-day at an infirmary from Brights' disease, following a stroke of apoplexy.

Mr. McCrary was 65 years old and a native of Cincinnati. The interment will be in that city.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

Spread to Back. Could Hardly Sleep for Burning and Itching. Caused Disfigurement. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Entirely Cured.

214 Brevard St., Tampa, Fla. — "Some three years ago I commenced to suffer from a rash on my face and back. Before the pimples came on my face there were a lot of blackheads. It looked as if the blackheads turned into pimples because after a little while all of them were gone and my face was covered with pimples. They were small at first but gradually grew and right at the end of each pimple it was all white. I carelessly picked them with my finger nails, which made them spread, and I soon discovered them on my back. My back was covered with pimples and my face the same way. At night I could hardly sleep on account of the burning and itching sensation they caused. I felt like a lot of small-sized crabs biting at my back. I did not like to go out because the pimples caused disfigurement.

"Seeing the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in one of the magazines I sent for a sample. At night I would put the Cuticura Ointment on my face and back and I was pleased with the result. I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I am glad to be able to say that I am entirely cured of pimples." (Signed) Jno. O. Darlington, Jan. 25, 1913.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

☞Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

AFFINITY EARLE ABOUT TO LOSE 'DEAREST' DORA

Third Wife of Famous Wooer, Declared "Sweetest of Them All," Files Suit.

TELLS STORY OF MEETING

Did Not Know of Long Marital Record of Poet Until She Had Joined Him.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Dora of the laughing brown eyes, third wife and unnumbered affinity of Ferdinand Pinney Earle, New York poet, artist and record wooer—described by him at the time of their marriage in June, 1911, as "the dearest, sweetest and loveliest of them all"—said to-day that she is about to seek her freedom.

She said she actually has begun suit in New York for an absolute divorce, basing her action on evidence she says she has obtained of Earle's behavior on the Continent since she parted from him in March.

Mrs. Earle is now only 25, twelve years younger than Earle. Her maiden name was Helen Theodora Sidford. From her father, an English architect, she inherited artistic tastes and is an artist of pronounced talent. She is a very attractive young woman.

Lived at "Earle's Folly."

The original story that reached America of her relations with Earle narrated a meeting in the fields, a walk home hand in hand, swift and ardent wooing, marriage within the month and a start on a tour of the world, which wound up prematurely in the country home in Monroe, Orange County, known as "Earle's Folly."

Her story to-day sets right much of that early fiction, for the meeting with Earle seems to have been conventional.

"How did you come to give yourself to a man of Earle's matrimonial record?" was asked.

"I knew nothing of his past until after our marriage," she replied. "Whatever his reputation in America, I had lived in a quiet English town and had never heard of his antecedents. After our marriage his life story was cabled from America to the London newspapers. Clippings were sent to me on the Continent on our honeymoon by my mother.

He Softened the Blow.

"It was a terrible shock to find that I had been so utterly deceived, but I accepted the explanation and excuses offered by Mr. Earle and his assurances that I would never have anything of which to complain.

"After our wedding we spent two months on the Continent. In September, 1911, three months following the wedding, we went to America, and lived happily at his place in Monroe, N. Y. Our first baby was born there in April, 1912. I remained with him in America until last January, and then came here to visit my mother, with whom I have since lived. It was arranged that Mr. Earle would come here for the summer.

"At the time of my return I had not the slightest expectation that our relations would go wrong. We kept in constant correspondence. He arrived here in March, remained two days and then went to the Continent. My second baby was born here April 20. Her father has never seen her.

"Soon after he went from here in March information reached me which left me no option except to prepare divorce proceedings. He has appealed to me to abandon them, but that is quite impossible after his conduct as disclosed to me."

Mrs. Earle declined to anticipate by publication the specific evidence she is reserving for the court. Thus the name of the co-respondent is withheld. Judging from Mrs. Earle's convincing manner of speech, she thinks she has ample ground for her petition.

Earle's Love Affairs.

Earle's love affairs were first brought to public notice in 1908 when he took to his Monroe home Miss Julia Kuttner, and informed his wife that the newcomer was his affinity and soul-mate. The rightful Mrs. Earle at that time was formerly Miss Emilie Marie Fischbacher, daughter of a bookseller on the banks of the Seine in Paris, whom Earle had married in 1903 and by whom he had a son, Harold Erwin.

Mrs. Earle departed for France, with a reported money settlement, and obtained a divorce there. Earle, Miss Kuttner and Miss Kuttner's mother went to Europe and domiciled themselves in Venice. Their departure from Monroe was hastened by threats of neighbors there to punish Earle without process of law.

Within a few months Mrs. Kuttner decided a marriage was necessary and a ceremony was performed at the British consulate. Soon afterward a son was born and named Edmond Erwin Earle. In 1910 the second wife sued for the annulment of the marriage on the ground that the ceremony had taken place before Earle was free under French law.

She also charged cruelty, especially following the birth of the child. After long consideration, the Westchester County Court granted the petition of annulment and declared the child legitimate.

Earle had not defended either suit, but while the courts were trying to dispose of the second he sailed to Europe with Miss Gertrude Buell Dunn, a bright-eyed young woman from Chicago, who had "advanced" ideas. It was announced that together they would work out and publish a new philosophy on the ideal relations of the sexes. Their zeal subsided and they parted without scandal.

'Film Opry' Man Held as Bandit

Atlantan's Experiences in 'Wilds'

Willard Patterson Maintains Circumstantial Evidence Isn't Worth a Perforated Penny.

Circumstantial evidence isn't worth as much as a perforated penny, and a county constable is as safe to fool with as dynamite and rattlesnakes.

Ask Willard Patterson, the Forsyth Theater treasurer. He will tell you that the two statements are as true as gospel, for he knows.

Patterson returned to Atlanta last week after a "tour of tanks with the great magic lantern opry, 'Quo Vadis?'" as he himself describes it, and on this tour he discovered the value of circumstantial evidence and the nature of the rural police.

Listen to his story.

"I left here two weeks ago, all swelled up. Why shouldn't I be. I was the manager, press representative, agent, electrician, property man, and transfer agent for a production that numbered 5,000 people, three dozen lions, and we burned an eternal city at least once a night and as many more times as the people had quarters.

Whole Production in Grip.

"It's true I carried the entire production in a sample case with my other collar and pair of socks, but I was a regular manager.

"I didn't tell anybody, though. The knowledge of my greatness meant too much to me to impart it to anyone else.

"My route was through North Carolina and I encountered pretty much the same set of drummers on every train and in every hotel.

"Pretty soon I noticed them trying to size me up each night as I entered the hotel after the show to deposit the money in the safe that the Tar Heels had paid to see 'Ursus' throw the bull and hear me shoot it.

"One night I heard a couple of them talking and I was the subject of their conversation.

"'Who is this guy?' said the man who sold shoes. 'He's got me dippy. He's a traveling man, but what does he sell? He stays in bed all day. Comes down at night, takes the dinky sample case. Walks out. Stays two hours and comes back with a hatful of money.

Had Them All Going.

"'I've been making this territory for fourteen years and I know there isn't a store or a business house that is open after 6 o'clock at night. I'd give my next week's expense account to know his game.'

"'Search me,' said the man who sells millinery.

"That gave me an idea. I'd give those fresh drummers something to think about. I picked up the sample case with the films inside. I walked down the main street to the front of the country bank. I peered through the window at the safe. And I knew that my friends, the drummers, were watching me.

"I stalled around and was about to go to the amusement palace with my show, when a long, raw-boned, Tar Heel walked up to me.

"'Wait thar a minute, young feller,' he said and he said it in a drawl that made me stand as still as a hitching post.

"'What have you got in that air grip?' he asked.

"Ah, big was eager to see the magic lantern opry without paying the requisite price, I thought.

"'You'll have to pay money to find that out,' I said, and turned to walk away.

He Knew B'Gosh!

"'I know what it is all right,' said he. 'I know that you've been playing you were a drummer. I've got witnesses to swear that you don't never sell no goods and always come in the hotel in the dead of night with money. Nobody ain't never seen you open that case and there was a safe cracked in Durham last night, and that's where you come here from. And now I find you right here, looking in this bank. Come on. You're arrested for robbery.' And he flashed a tin star as big as a dishpan.

"I decided to tell the truth. I blush to admit it, but I did so and let him look in the sample case for corroboration.

"But at that he wouldn't let me go until he had seen the pictures run and knew that they were really pictures and not dynamite. I lost his admission fee, but I learned two lessons.

"And I learned another thing. Atlanta is the place for me. There are no circumstances under which a man has to tell the truth here."

VAUDEVILLE BILL AT BONITA THEATER SETS REAL PACE IN ATLANTA

Vaudeville shoved tabloid musical comedy off the boards at the Bonita last week and is a winner. For next week the following great bill will be given:

The Famous Medoras, Anglo-Australian entertainers.

Burnette and Lee, singing and talking refined comedy.

Wallace and Beech in a real comedy novelty act.

WANT AD RACE STARTS; EVERY ENTRY HUSTLES

Club Folk and Lodge Members Out to Win That $1,000 in Gold.

"We are going out to win that $1,000 in gold, and we want you all to work for success. Let's all get together."

That's what the members of half a dozen Atlanta organizations are saying to each other. For the entries in the Want Ad Contest are growing day by day, and already several churches, lodges and other organizations are entered and are at work. There is still opportunity for others, but they had better hurry and get in.

But organizations are not alone in the contest. Any individual has a chance, without competing with a group. The first grand prize for individuals is a five-passenger automobile, and the second is a tour to California and return for two persons, all expenses paid. Then there are twenty others prizes, five in each of four classes, giving men, women, boys and girls an equal opportunity.

But the full-page advertisement on another page of this issue of Hearst's Sunday American will give you every detail of the Want Ad Contest, the way the prizes are to be awarded and complete instructions on how to succeed. Don't fail to read it carefully.

Contestants should see the Want Ad Man Monday. He has something to tell them. His offices, fourth floor of the Foote & Davies Building, will be open until 5 o'clock, and contestants and prospective entrants should have a talk with him.

Dr. Etheridge Out For Council in 5th

Two Candidates in Race for Post Made Vacant by Expiration of J. J. Greer's Term.

The political bee began buzzing in the Fifth Ward Saturday, and the announcement of Dr. W. M. Etheridge for Councilman furnished lots of talk. Dr. Etheridge is one of the most popular druggists in the city, having operated a drug store at 209 Kennedy street for many years. Announcement of his candidacy was made by Councilman J. J. Greer, of the Fifth, whose term expires this fall.

This puts two candidates in the field for the place to be made vacant by the expiration of Councilman Greer's term. Jesse B. Lee is the other candidate.

ATLANTANS TO HEAR PASTORS OF OTHER CITIES

Pulpits Will Be Filled at To-day's Services by Ministers Visiting Here.

Many pulpits in Atlanta will be filled Sunday by outside church workers of note.

The Rev. W. W. Landrum, pastor of the Broadway Baptist Church at Louisville, Ky., will preach at the Ponce DeLeon Baptist Church, his former charge, at 11 o'clock this morning. He will also conduct the afternoon service at 5:30 o'clock.

The Rev. W. L. Pickard, of Savannah, will preach at the morning and evening services at the First Baptist Church to-day. His subject for the morning will be "The Love of God," and the evening, "Owning the Earth." Dr. Pickard was located at Cleveland before coming to Savannah.

Regular services will be held at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. at the Gordon Street Presbyterian Church Sunday, the pastor, the Rev. Arnold Hall, leading both services. Sabbath school will be held at 10 a. m. There will be a cottage prayer meeting Tuesday at 8 p. m. at 590 Sells avenue.

General Secretary J. P. Jackson, of the Young Men's Christian Association, will lead the services at the Park Street Methodist Church Sunday night, the Epworth League being in charge of the evening meetings during the absence of the pastor, Dr. S. R. Bell. Recorder Pro Tem W. H. Preston will assist Mr. Jackson.

The Central Baptist pulpit will be filled Sunday by two of the most prominent churchmen in the South, Dr. H. C. Buchols, head evangelist of the Baptist State Mission Board, preaching at the morning service, and Dr. W. S. Witham at the evening meeting. The evening service will begin at 7:45 o'clock.

Among the special selections which will be rendered in the song service at the North Avenue Presbyterian Church Sunday will be "Lift Up Thine Eyes," offertory: "The Birthday of a King," and "Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem." The choir is composed of Miss Mayme Clyburne, soprano; Mrs. Charles Bellingrath, contralto; C. N. Anderson, tenor; R. O. Kerlin, basso; Joseph Ragan, Jr., organist and director.

Evangelist J. M. Bass, of the South Georgia Conference, will inaugurate revival services Sunday morning at the Grace Methodist Church, corner of Boulevard and Highland avenue. Mr. Bass will be assisted in the services by the pastor, Dr. Jones, and Singing Evangelist O. W. Stapleton. The services will be held daily at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m., with special services for men, women and children. A large chorus has been organized for the services which probably will continue for a week or ten days.

Wilson Once Longed To Be a Jolly Tar

Daniels, Presenting Prize to U. S. S. Idaho, Remarks President Might Have Become Admiral.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 16.—While the Jackies cheered, Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Admiral J. C. Berger, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, to-day presented to Captain George W. Kline, commander of the battleship Idaho, the "battle efficiency pennant." A complimentary letter from President Wilson also was read.

In his speech Secretary Daniels drew attention to a phase of the earlier life of President Wilson that apparently has escaped most of the biographers.

"As a boy," he said, "it was the highest ambition of Woodrow Wilson to enter the naval academy and become a naval officer. If his father had not led him into other lines, the probability is that to-day he would be with us as a captain or an admiral—commanding the New Jersey, let us say."

KING G. GILLETTE TO WED FAIR CALIFORNIA BELLE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—The marriage license for King G. Gillette, heir of many millions, and Miss Elizabeth Caldwell, beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Caldwell, of Los Angeles, has just been issued pending an elaborate society wedding early in September. Gillette is the only son of King C. Gillette, the safety razor manufacturer. Miss Caldwell is an only daughter in the Caldwell family.

Boll Weevil Pest Nears Georgia Line

Quarantine Against Three Counties Touching Alabama May Be Necessary, Says Entomologist.

Fear that the ravages of the boll weevil may necessitate establishment of a quarantine against three counties on the Alabama border was expressed Saturday by E. Lee Worsham, State Entomologist.

Dr. Worsham declared that the weevil has been ravaging the crops in Alabama, and that traces of the pest have been found within thirty miles of the State line. He expects the weevil to invade at least three counties in Georgia before frost comes.

5th Regiment Band Gives Two Concerts

Military Musicians to Play Sunday Afternoon at Grant and Piedmont Parks.

The Fifth Regiment Band will hold the boards Sunday at both Piedmont and Grant Parks. The concerts will begin promptly at 3:30 o'clock.

ENTERS RACE FOR COUNCIL FIFTH WARD

JESSE B. LEE

Well Known Business Man Who Announces His Candidacy for Council.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 16, 1913.

To the Voters of the Fifth Ward:

I hereby respectfully announce myself a candidate for Councilman to succeed Hon. J. J. Greer, whose term expires with this year, subject to the action of the city primary.

I was born in the Fifth Ward and have lived in its boundaries all my life. I am reasonably well informed about city affairs and feel that I am in position to render you efficient and intelligent service.

I am the candidate of no clique or faction, and shall always vote for and advocate those measures in Council which, in my opinion, are for the best interests of the people of the city and my ward, regardless of where they come from or who supports them.

I shall not be content to support measures introduced by other people, but shall endeavor to introduce and advocate measures which I have originated for the good of the people.

On all such questions as charter reform, etc., I shall endeavor to ascertain the wishes of my constituents, and then support their will, whether it coincides with my own private and personal views or not.

I shall do my best as your representative, if elected, to render you capable and satisfactory service, always standing for the best thing to be had for the city as a whole and my own section and ward in particular.

I will appreciate the vote and influence of my many friends and the voters generally of the Fifth Ward.—Adv.

FRAUD USED TO BEAT HEARST, SAYS MULHALL

Lobbyist Declares He Obtained Confidence of Democratic Leader in Campaign for Governor.

GAVE REPUBLICANS SECRET

Letter Was Forged to Give Him Introduction to Up-State Committeeman.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Colonel Martin M. Mulhall, self-confessed lobbyist of the National Association of Manufacturers, testified before the Garrett Lobby Investigating Committee that his political lines crossed those of William Randolph Hearst in 1906, and that he helped to defeat Mr. Hearst for the New York Governorship.

Introduced by a letter forged upon the letterhead of the Hearst campaign headquarters, Mulhall said that he went into Congressman Fairchild's district, the Twenty-fourth New York, an upstate district, and gained the confidence of a local campaign manager for Mr. Hearst.

Tells Plans to Republicans.

Learning from the latter the plans of campaign in the district, Mulhall reported them to Fairchild, and Republican plans to checkmate them and defeat their object were perfected. Mulhall was employed for a week on this work with the approval, he says, of Fairchild.

Mulhall told a few days ago how he started to work for Senator Foraker in Ohio. He was prepared to make his report to Foraker when the Hearst Standard Oil disclosure letters were first made public. Foraker admitted to the Senate committee that these letters defeated him for re-election to the Unied Staes Senate.

Unconcernedly, Mulhall told how he had taken his "fake letters" of introduction to Fairchild and got his instructions for political detective work. He met Mr .Hearst's friends, including a clergyman, at a hotel, entertained them and worked his way into their confidence. He ascertained that the Republican district committee chairman was not friendly to Fairchild.

Letter Was Faked.

"Whose signature did this fake letter of introduction bear?" asked Representative Stafford.

"It was that of some member of the Democratic State Committee."

"Who were you represented to be?"

"I was supposed to be connected with Mr. Hearst, and so represented myself to Mr. Scott, the candidate, I think, opposing Fairchild."

"It was your first meeting with him, and you won his confidence to the extent of getting from him his campaign plans?" said Stafford.

"Yes."

"Who signed this fake letter?"

"The letter was given to me by Marshall Cushing, and I can not say who signed it. Mr. Cushing was a very good letter writer. He told me it was a fake letter. I knew that Cushing was not connected with the Hearst organization."

Mr. Stafford—He was connected in the way of using the letterhead of the Hearst organization to good effect.

"Mr. Cushing thought it was a smart political trick, and I guess that was his system of working," replied Mulhall.

Scott Well Deceived.

"Mr. Scott's confidence was so complete," continued Mulhall, "that he told me Mr. Hearst had sent him a number of workers and quite an amount of money, and I believe in this letter the latter stated that they were ready to send at that time more workers and more money."

"Scott swallowed everything, hook, line and all, as far as you represented it," commented Stafford.

"Yes."

"Did Mr. Fairchild know all about this arrangement?" asked Representative Kline.

"Yes, he knew about hte letter, and I had Mr. Fairchild's advice in presenting it. He has spoken to me since about that clever piece of work."

Charlton at Last in Italy's Grasp

Wife Slayer Loses 3-Year Fight

Now on Ocean on Way to Trial

Porter Charlton, young American, who killed beautiful wife and is now on way to face trial in Italy.

Young Prisoner Is Confident He Will Escape Spending Life in Solitary Confinement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Porter Charlton, after three years' fight against extradition from America, is in the clutches of the Italian Government and to-day is on the high seas, bound for Italy and for trial on the charge of killing his beautiful young wife and sinking her body in Lake Como in June, 1910.

In spite of the ordeal that faces him, Charlton left New York as cheerful as a schoolboy. Three years in close confinement had repressed his natural buoyancy, but the prospect of a sea voyage, even with a trial for murder awaiting him at his journey's end, restored it to a considerable degree.

"I'll be back for Christmas!" he cried, waving a good-bye from the liner as it puled out. All the time he has declared that he will be acquitted, in spite of the fact that he confessed to killing his wife on their honeymoon. Extenuating circumstances, his friends declare, will have their weight on the Italian jury.

Charlton's quarters on the liner are isolated, and he is not permitted to mingle with the other passengers. He travels third class, as the Italian Government does not provide first-class accommodations for prisoners.

Faces Living Death.

Unless the contention of his insanity can be proved, a living death surely will be the fate of Porter Charlton, a hideous confinement that is far worse than death on the gallows.

Extenuating circumstances, it is expected, can not be revealed of sufficient strength to obtain his acquittal, and unless his defense prove insanity, he must go to prison. There is no death sentence in Italy.

And imprisonment in Italy is a dreadful punishment, feared far more than the electric chair, the gallows, or the garrote. It is invested with mental torture of such degree that few who live through it more than a few years are sound of mind.

Charlton is known to have a sensitive, nervous temperament. His behavior toward his wife proves him high-strung. To a person of his psychological make-up incarceration under the Italian system would be certainly destructive of mental balance.

For the first ten years of a life sentence the prisoner may be kept in utter darkness and in the strictest solitude, with nothing to eat and drink but plain bread and water. A few weeks of this treatment generally is sufficient to reduce the most unemotional criminal to a state of nervous collapse.

Insanity Practically Only Hope.

His attorneys hope to present in the Italian courts the great mass of evidence brought to bear in the United States Supreme Court to prove him insane. Justice Lurton, in the opinion which declared that Charlton must go back to Italy to stand trial, admitted that the evidence to substantiate the insanity plea was preponderous.

The opinion of the Supreme Court brought to an end the three years' unsuccessful fight of Charlton and his family against extradition to Italy. It was in June, 1910, that he killed his wife, according to his own confession. After the crime he fled, but was caught at Hoboken, N. J., when the liner landed there. The brother of the slain wife there met him, and caused him to be placed under arrest.

The first night of his imprisonment in New Jersey a confession was produced, bearing his name, and generally supposed to be authentic.

"My wife and I lived happily together, but she had an uncontrollable temper," read the confession. "So had I. On the night of the murder she had the worst outbreak of temper I ever saw.

"I told her to keep quiet or I would make her quiet. Then she had another outbreak. I took up a wooden mallet, with which I had been repairing a table, and hit her on the head and body two or three times. At midnight I put the body in a trunk, dragged it to a small pier near the house, and threw it overboard."

His wife was a beautiful young woman, although eight years older than he, who was only 21. The two were on their honeymoon when the murder occurred.

Mrs. Charlton was the divorced wife of Neville H. Castle, a San Francisco lawyer. Charlton is the son of Paul Charlton, law adviser of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, and former President Taft's classmate at Yale. He has stood by his son through all the fight against extradition.

Extradition Fight Begins.

The fight began the day after the confession appeared. It seemed at first that the young man surely must go back to Italy to face trial, and every legal step was taken against it. His friends, led by his father, took the position that he could not be extradited, because Italy had always refused, under the extradition treaty of 1868, to return Italian subjects to the United States to answer for crimes committed here.

They lost this fight, when Italy made a request for the prisoner. The fight was resumed, and Charlton's father entered the insanity plea, in a habeas corpus suit. Losing this in the lower court, the father appealed to the Supreme Court, in which, about a month ago, the opinion of Justice Lurton was handed down, to the effect that Charlton was subject to extradition.

Officers arrived in the United States from Italy last week to take Charlton back for trial. Conflicting reports have been spread regarding the young man's health, certain physicians contending that he is the victim of pulmonary tuberculosis and others that he is in perfect health.

Newspaper reports, written by men who have seen him, say that he appears healthy. He has been allowed an unusual degree of freedom while being held in the Hudson County jail, being permitted to take walks, automobile drives and two hours of exercise each day. Sometimes he was taken to picture shows.

MRS. GUNTER IS CRAZY, SWEARS STEP-DAUGHTER

Trial of Divorce Suit Against Former Alabama Supreme Court Jurist Sensational.

MONTGOMERY, Aug. 16.—That Mrs. Kate Gunter is crazy and a subject for an insane asylum, was the testimony offered by Mrs. Donald Simple, who conducts a fashionable society school for girls in New York, in the divorce trial of her father, Judge W. A. Gunter, here yesterday. She said her stepmother, who filed the original bill of complaint in the sensational case, told falsehoods and that it was almost unendluarble to live with her. Still, she said, she stuck up for her as long as she was her father's wife, but when Mrs. Gunter filed the bill asking for a separation from her aged husband all love for the mother ceased.

The suit has now been in progress for more than 50 days. Witness after witness has been upon the stand and some of them, especially the two principals, have been grilled for a whole day at a time. Every effort has been made here to suppress publicity of the case.

The suit now in progress is for the possession of the children, five of whom have come from the union of thirteen years.

The original bill and also the testimony offered by Mrs. Gunter is to the effect that the respondent threatened to kill her and then commit suicide. She also said he was cruel to her and that her life was in danger.

Judge Gunter, who is 77 years old, was formerly on the Alabama Supreme Court bench and is prominent in the State. His son, William Gunter, Jr., is Mayor of the city, and another son, Gaston Gunter, is Judge of the criminal division of the City Court. The latter, who is a former Yale football star, was among the witnesses on the stand to-day.

SHUPTRINE TO HEAD BIG POLITICAL CLUB

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Although the officials will not make public the result of the election, it is learned that Herman C. Shuptrine, Representative in the Legislature from Chatham County, was elected president of the Cracker Progressive Club, a political organization, last night. Shuptrine has stated that he will accept.

Feast on Collards Instead of Cabbage

Thomas County Convicts Revel in Delicious "Greens"—Fresh Corn as Dessert.

THOMASVILLE, Aug. 16.—The convicts in the camps of Thomas County have had a change of diet from the cabbage which was so much enjoyed by them in the spring and early summer, and have transferred their allegiance to collard greens.

The report made by the superintendent of the county farm this week shows that for the month of July 1,250 head of these collards were fed to the convicts of the various camps, and as the average darky is proverbially fond of these greens they doubtless enjoyed their meals. With the collards were eaten 600 ears of green corn and several bushels of onions.

As vegetables are considered good summertime diet they probably went a long way toward preserving the health of the convicts, as all the camps are reported in a healthy condition.

'Hoodoo Doctors' Ply 'Art' in Cordele

Raid Farms for Cotton Root to Brew Tea for Superstitious Negroes.

CORDELE, Aug. 16.—"Hoodoo" or "root" doctors, as they are commonly known, seem to be getting in some very effective work in Cordele, though if their identity should become known to the police the effect would very probably not be pleasing to them. For several nights these characters have devastated patches of cotton in the western part of the city, belonging to negroes. For the purpose of making cotton root tea, which is said to have a healing effect in a good many cases, they have pulled up row after row of cotton by the roots, cutting off the weeds and taking the roots with them.

Cashier, Sentenced, Making Hard Fight

J. H. Cason's Lawyers Determined to Carry Case Through Highest State Courts.

MOULTRIE, Aug. 16.—Arguments in the motion for a new trial of J. H. Cason, now under five-year sentence in the penitentiary for embezzling nearly $8,000 from the Bank of Cresland, will be heard in Valdosta before Judge Thomas on September 8.

Attorneys for the former bank cashier state they will leave nothing undone to save their client and that the case will be fought through all the courts before it is concluded.

ITALIAN SHOT TO DEATH BY HIS CONTRYMEN

TAMPA, Aug. 16.—Guiseppe Illuminato, an Italian who was shot to death Tuesday night by two men armed with shotguns, which they threw away, is said to have been killed because of improper relations with another Italian's wife. Judge Fernandez is said to be in ossession of evidence that convinces him this is the fact, and has postponed the Coroner's inquest to Monday, when this woman will be asked to take the stand.

NO WHISKY EXCEPT IN HOMES IN FLORIDA TOWN

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 15.—The city commissioners have passed stringent ordinances regulating the selling of liquor in this city. Pinellas County having voted "dry" at the recent election. The ordinance is even more stringent than the State law. It provides that liquor found anywhere except in a private residence is prima focie evidence that it is for sale.

TERRELL FARMER FIRES BULLET THROUGH HEAD

DAWSON, Aug. 16.—P. C. Calley, well-to-do Terrell County farmer and brother-in-law of Jesse Mercer, committed suicide at his country home near Dawson by shooting himself through the head. He left no note as to the cause, but despondency over money matters is believed to have been responsible.

PHYSICIANS AID M'NAUGHTON IN FIGHT FOR LIFE

Savannah Medicos Lending Influence to Secure Pardon for Condemned Doctor.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Savannah physicians are lending their aid toward securing the freedom of Dr. W. J. McNaughton, who is in jail here under sentence of death for the murder of Fred Flanders in Emanuel County three years ago.

At the request of the Rev. John S. Wilder, pastor of the South Side Baptist Church, who has been a consistent friend of the condemned man, several Savannah physicians have given affidavits relative to the effect of the amount of arsenic poisoning which it is claimed killed Flanders. They declare this amount of the poison would not produce death. It is understood the Prison Commission, which is now considering the case of Dr. McNaughton, is perfectly willing to grant him a commutation to life imprisonment, but his friends are striving for a full pardon for him.

Dr. McNaughton may return to his old home in Emanuel County and resume the practice of his profession if the Prison Commission acts favorably upon his application for a pardon.

"I am an innocent man, and naturally expect to be given a full pardon," he said. "All I hope is that the facts were presented to the Prison Commission properly. If they were, I feel confident I will be liberated. I have already been deprived of several years of my life, and I am praying constantly that the great wrong that has been done me may be righted as far as possible by the granting of a full pardon."

Timbermen Fight Over Debt; 1 Dead

W. C. Stamper and G. R. Keen End Dispute by Pistol Duel in Street at Blakely.

BLAKELY, Aug. 16.—W. C. Stamper and G. R. Keen, two well-known timbermen, had a pistol duel on the public square at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, as a result of which Keen is dead with five bullet holes in his body.

Keen is said to have shot at Stamper twice and missed him. Stamper escaped unhurt, except a graze near the left eye.

The trouble grew out of a dispute over the division of the proceeds of a debt due to both of them by a common debtor.

Keen leaves a wife and several children.

8-Foot Shark Caught At St. Simons Island

Sam Levinne Lands Largest Catch of Years in Waters Around Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, Aug. 16.—An eight-foot shark has been caught on St. Simons Island by Sam Levinne, of this city. Before the fish could be landed it required a horse to pull it ashore.

The young man had his line out for a shark for more than an hour when suddenly it was almost jerked from his hand. Several times he managed to get the shark to the surface, each time shooting it, and before it was killed eight bullets had been poured into its body.

The shark weighed more than 300 pounds, and was the largest caught in these waters in ten years.

GIRLS BARE SECRETS OF FLIGHT WITH DIGGS AND CAMINETTI

Blushing and With Downcast Eyes They Tell Jury Pitiful Story of Their Downfall

FEAR OF EXPOSURE OF THEIR RELATIONS WITH MEN LED TO ELOPEMENT

Marsha Warrington Declares Both She and Lola Norris Had Promises of Marriage When They Embarked on Trip---Firm Under Cross-Fire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—The case of Maury I. Diggs, formerly State Architect of California, charged before the United States Court under the Mann white slavery act because he took pretty, dainty Marsha Warrington, of Sacramento, to Reno, Nev., leaving behind a beautiful wife and a little daughter, has passed the stage of revelation and disclosure and now has come to the technicalities of defense.

It will be recalled that on March 10 last the tea tables of the West were rattled by the tale that Diggs had run away with Miss Warrington, daughter of a general agent of the Santa Fe, and that F. Drew Caminetti, son of the Commissioner General of Immigration of the United States, had fled from his wife's children at the same time, taking with him Miss Lola Norris, the prettiest girl in the State Library, daughter of one of the oldest and most respected families in the Capital of the State.

Caught in a bungalow at Reno, the United States authorities took over the prosecution.

Becomes National Incident.

Then came the effort at Washington to postpone and suppress that prosecution, with the explosion and resignation of United State District Attorney John L. McNab, the forcing of Cabinet consideration and the administrative fake of sustaining Attorney General McReynolds in theory and rebuking him in fact and procedure. An escapade of love and champagne had been dignified into an event of national importance.

After a struggle that exhausted the entire panel and required a special venire, a jury was sworn, and on Tuesday of this week came the long-expected sacrifice—the appearance of Miss Marsha Warrington before her shearers.

She appeared, a pretty, plump, frightened little thing, 20 years of age, who kept her eyes in her lap and slowly and painfully told, detail on detail, of her meeting with Diggs of the making up of a joy-hunting party of four with Miss Norris and Caminetti; of her yielding to her lover's importunities in his office; of trips that extended near and far, joy riding to destruction.

Then she told of how Diggs and Caminetti had, playing upon their fears of arrest and exposure, induced and coerced her and Miss Norris to fly with them to Nevada. There was no relation, however intimate, no situation, however delicate, that the pretty miss was not forced to disclose.

Terrified Into Trips.

Next came Miss Norris, tall, willowy and prepossessing, and she, too, clearly, distinctly, compellingly, told how she had loved not wisely and how she and Miss Warrington had been cajoled, persuaded and terrified into accompanying Diggs and Caminetti to Reno, where her own downfall was completed.

There has been something of corroboration of the love tale and the completion of a hard case under the letter of the Mann law, which punishes those who take women from one State to another for the purpose of making them mistresses and concubines.

And now the defense has stated its case. It does not intend to deny the stories of the two girls, but will rest its hopes on the theory that there was "no persuasion" to leave California, or "intent" to force the young women into concubinage in Nevada; but that all fled Sacrameto in the same fear of exposure of their liaison and arrest and disgrace following the exposure.

Both Miss Warrington and Miss Norris had to submit to the most searching questions during their appearance on the witness stand. The two girls occupied the stand from Tuesday to Friday. The transcript of their testimony virtually tells the complete story of the escapade that led to the indictment of Diggs and Caminetti and made the flight to Reno eventually result in a crisis in the Cabinet of President Wilson. On it the Government proposes to convict the two defendants.

A new warrant was sworn out for Diggs to-day in police court charging him with attacking a newspaper protographer. Diggs, it is expected, will take the stand Wednesday, and will be followed by Caminetti. Both will maintain that they fled from Sacramento only to escape arrest.

In this contention, they will be corroborated by their their wives, who will testify that they had already threatened criminal action against their husbands.

Love for Wife Forgotten.

"How often during the two weeks prior to your departure to Reno did Mr. Diggs discuss with you his relations with his wife?" was one of the first questions asked Miss Warrington by Special Prosecutor Roche.

"Several times," replied Miss Warrington, giving the answer in such low voice that Judge VanFleet had to tell her to speak up louder.

Q. Did he say anything concerning himself and yourself in the future?—A. Yes.

Q. How often did he refer to his regard for you?—A. He spoke of it very often and said that he cared more for me than he did for his wife.

Q. Did you believe what he said?—A. I did.

Q. Did Diggs demonstrate his affection—I mean did he ever kiss you?—A. Yes, he did.

Q. Did he discuss marriage with you?—A. He did.

Q. What did he say about marriage?—A. He said he would divorce his wife and marry me.

Q. How often did he discuss marriage with you?—A. I don't know.

Q. More than once?—A. Yes.

Best to Leave City.

Q. Now, tell the jury what the defendant said that resulted in your deciding to leave Sacramento.—A. Well, he said his father was coming up from Berkeley to prosecute us; that there was talk about us all over town; that it was best for all of us to leave the city, and that it was the advice of his attorney. He said he had paid an attorney large sums for his advice on the situation.

Talks of Reform School.

Q. Now go on and state what you said and what the others said, starting with the first discussion.—A. Well, Mr. Diggs said we would be sent to the reform school; that there was going to be something published in the papers; that we would be tried in the juvenile court and there was a warrant out for our arrest, and if we did not go we would be put through the third degree.

Q. By whom?—A. He didn't say. The policeman, I suppose.

Q. What did Caminetti say?—A. He didn't say much. He just agreed.

Q. What did you and Lola Norris say?—A. We said we couldn't go.

Q. What part of the time of your meetings was taken up with these discussions?—A. Most all of the time.

Q. Did you agree to leave for Reno before Saturday, March 9?—A. No.

Q. Did Miss Norris?—A. No.

Q. Did you make any statement as to the effect of your leaving on your father or mother?—A. I said I couldn't go and leave my father; it would simply kill him. He said it would all come out in the papers anyway, and I might as well go.

Would Kill Her Mother.

Q. What did Miss Norris say about her mother?—A. She said it would kill her if she left.

Q. Did the men say anything about that?—A. Diggs said her mother would get over it.

Q. How soon did they say you should get away?—A. Right away.

Q. Did they say that each time you discussed going?—A. Yes; they said we had to go immediately every time.

Q. What time did you meet Diggs and Caminetti at the Saddle Rock restaurant the evening you left for Reno?—A. About 8:30 o'clock.

Q. Did Diggs say anything about marrying you there?—A. He said he would get a divorce from his wife and marry me.

Q. Did he say anything about any action his wife might take?—A. Regarding a divorce, do you mean? He didn't say she would get a divorce.

Q. Did Diggs say what Caminetti would do?—A. He said Mr. Caminetti was going to get a divorce from his wife and marry Miss Norris.

Q. Who did the talking?—A. Mr. Diggs. He said we might go to Salt Lake City, Reno or Los Angeles. He finally decided Reno.

Q. Was anything said about what would happen if you didn't go?—A. He said we had to go; that we couldn't back out now.

Q. Did you protest?—A. We said we would stay there and take our chances, and he repeated it was too late to back out then.

Q. What was said about tickets?—A. First we talked about buying them ourselves. Mr. Caminetti said it would be better to have the girls buy them. Finally Diggs said he would get them.

Q. Was any more money given to anybody by one of the four?—A. Mr. Caminetti gave Miss Norris some money.

Q. How much?—A. I don't know.

Girl Kept Money.

Q. To buy tickets with? What did he say when he gave her the money?—A. He told her to keep it.

Q. How long after Caminetti left did you stay in the restaurant?—A. About an hour.

Q. What did you talk about?—A. About Mr. Caminetti and whether he would get the money, and our destination.

Q. How were the berths occupied?—A. Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti had the upper and Mr. Diggs and myself had the lower berth.

Q. What baggage did the party have?—A. Mr. Diggs had a suitcase and I had a grip.

Q. Was the baggage checked?—A. No.

Q. Did you see the tickets?—A. I saw Mr. Diggs give them to the conductor.

Q. Where did you go from the restaurant?—A. The depot.

Q. What kind of a car did you get in?—A. A Pullman sleeper.

Q. What part did you go into first?—A. We stood in the car while Mr. Diggs got a drawing room.

Q. Who paid for the drawing room?—A. Mr. Diggs.

Q. Who ordered the porter to make up the berths?—A. Mr. Diggs.

Q. Did the four of you enter the room together?—A. Yes.

Q. How many beds were there in the drawing room?—A. Two berths and the little side bed.

Q. Did you go to bed?—A. Yes.

Q. Right away?—A. Yes.

Tried to Rent House.

Q. Miss Warrington, you recall, do you going to the Riverside Hotel on the 7th day of March, 1913?—A. I do.

Q. Was that after or before the four of you had your lunch at the cafe?—A. After.

Q. Upon leaving the cafe in Reno, just state to what place the two men went, that is, Mr. Caminetti and Mr. Diggs?—A. They said we could go to the hotel and wait for them and they would try to rent a house.

Q. During the time that you were in Reno with Mr. Diggs and Mr. Caminetti and Miss Norris were any further statements made by Mr. Diggs as to what he intended to do so far as you were concerned?—A. I don't understand.

Q. Well, I mean so far as marriage was concerned?—A. Yes.

Q. What, if anything, did he say?—A. He said he would get a divorce from his wife and marry me.

Q. And what, if anything, did Mr. Caminetti say in your presence to Miss Norris regarding that subject?—A. He said the same thing.

Q. What room in that bungalow was occupied by you?—A. The front room.

Q. Who else occupied that room with you?—A. Mr. Diggs.

Q. Who occupied the rear room, that is, the north bedroom?—A. Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti.

Miss Warrington was subjected to a gruelling cross-examination by Nat Coghlan, counsel for Diggs and Caminetti.

Replying to his questions, Miss Warrington explained she was working for her father, general agent of the Santa Fe Railroad at Sacramento, as a stenographer at the time she went to Reno.

"Under what circumstances did you meet Mr. Diggs?" she was asked.

"He was introduced to me by a friend of mine, Mr. Monte Austin," was the girl's reply.

Q. Were you not introduced to Mr. Diggs as Miss Williamson?—A. I could not say?

Q. Did Mr. Austin give you the name of Mr. Diggs?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you at that time know who Mr. Diggs was?—A. I did not.

Q. You did not know whether he was a married or a single man?—A. Mr. Austin told me that he was not living with his wife at that time.

Pair Met Frequently.

Q. When was it that you met Mr. Diggs the next time?—A. The last of October.

Q. Did you meet him frequently after the second time?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember visiting Mr. Diggs and Mr. Caminetti in the city of San Francisco and going to the Grand Hotel during the month of ary, 1913, I will ask you if you, in company with Mr. Caminetti and Mr. Diggs and Miss Norris, did not go in an automobile from San Francisco to San Jose?—A. Yes.

Q. You stopped, did you not, at the New Montgomery Hotel, at San Jose?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember, Miss Warrington, going to Stockton upon a certain Sunday in January, 1913, with Mr. Diggs?—A. Yes.

Q. Didn't you go to the Old Heidel-February, 1913?—A. Yes.

Q. And did Mr. Caminetti and Miss Norris stop at the Grand Hotel, the same place, in San Francisco, upon that occasion?—A. Yes.

Q. And the same room was occupied by you and Mr. Diggs upon that night, was it not?—A. Yes.

Q. And Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti, to your knowledge occupied another room alone in that hotel, did they not?—A. Yes.

Stopped at San Jose.

Q. Upon the second day of Februberg there and hire a cottage for the afternoon?—A. I don't remember.

Mr. Coghlan—I will ask you if you do not remember going to Jackson with Mr. Diggs and Miss Norris in the auto of Mr. Diggs upon election night for the purpose of getting Mr. Caminetti—that is to say, election night in November, 1912?—A. Yes, I remember.

Q. Where did you stop at Jackson that night?—A. We didn't stay there. We came right back.

Q. During that trip did you and the other three members of that party drink any intoxicating liquors?—A. Yes, a little.

Q. Is it not a matter of fact that you arrived home on that night about 3 o'clock—I mean the next morning, on the morning of November 4, I believe it was or, at any rate, the morning after election—and that you had been drinking considerably upon the trip?—A. I do not remember what time we returned home; I do not think it was so late as that.

Wanted to Leave Town.

Q. Is it not a matter of fact that you wanted to leave Sacramento by reason of the fact of your condition?—A. No.

Q. And you were frightened at that time, were you?—A. Yes.

Q. Afraid that you might be arrested? Is that correct?—A. That is what Mr. Diggs said, that we were to be arrested the next day.

Q. I am asking you now if you were afraid or were not afraid you would be arrested.—A. Certainly.

Miss Lola Norris made an even better witness for the Government than Miss Warrington, although much of her testimony was simply in corroboration of the testimony of her chum.

"How old are you?" she was asked by Prosecutor Roche upon taking the stand.

"I was 20 the 3d of last August," she replied.

Q. Do you know Maury I. Diggs?—A. Yes.

Q. From when does your acquaintance with him date?—A. Since about the latter part of October, 1912.

Q. At that time where were you employed?—A. In the State Library, Sacramento.

Q. You are acquainted with Drew Caminetti?—A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been acquainted with him?—A. A little over a year.

Knew He Was Married.

Q. Did you know he was a married man?—A. I did.

Q. And did you know Mr. Diggs was a married man?—A. Yes.

Q. Now, Miss Norris, you remember the trip you took to Reno with Mr. Caminetti and Miss Warrington and Mr. Diggs. How many times were you in the habit of meeting together before that time?—A. Three or four times each week.

Q. Did Diggs say anything about his relations with his wife during these meetings?—A. Yes; he said he was not happy with his wife.

Q. How often did he say this?—A. A number of times.

Q. And did Mr. Caminetti say anything about his relations with his wife?—A. Yes.

Q. What did he say?—A. He told me he was not living happily with her.

Q. Did Diggs ever tell you that his relations with his wife were about to be served? What, if anything, did he say upon this subject?—A. Well, I remember on one occasion that I received a telephone message saying that he and Mrs. Diggs had agreed to separate and that she was to apply for a divorce in a few days.

Promised to Marry Her.

Q. Did Mr. Caminetti say anything about his wife and what his plans were respecting her after he went away?—A. He said that he would get a divorce from her and marry me.

A. He said that he would get a divorce from her and marry me.

Mr. Roche:

Q. Go on and state what occurred in the drawing room after you entered it?—A. There were two berths on one side, an upper and a lower, and a couch on the other side. I lay down on the couch for a while.

Q. What became of Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington?—A. They went into a lower berth?

Q. What became of Mr. Caminetti?—A. He entered the upper berth.

Q. You were still lying on the couch?—A. Yes.

Q. How long did you remain there?—A. About half an hour.

Q. Then what did you do?—A. I got into the upper berth.

Q. At whose request?—A. Mr. Caminetti's.

Reached Reno in Morning.

Q. Do you recall what time it was when you reached Reno?—A. It might have been 8 or 9 o'clock the next morning.

Q. Now coming back to the trip to Reno, did you shed any tears on the train?—A. Yes, because I was very unhappy.

Q. How were the rooms occupied at the bungalow you finally rented at Reno?—A. Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington occupied the front rooms and Mr. Caminetti and I the back room.

Q. At this time had Mr. Caminetti made any declarations of his intention to marry you?—A. Yes; he promised that he would marry me.

Q. When the officer finally arrived with Mr. Martin Beasley, what did you and Miss Warrington do?—A. We cried, but he told us not to worry—that everything would be all right when we returned to our homes and parents.

Q. Was any hilarity indulged in by either Miss Warrington or yourself on this occasion?—A. No. We couldn't laugh, because we were both very unhappy.

Q. Now, Miss Norris, prior to this trip to Reno, had you ever been intimate with any man besides Mr. Caminetti?—A. I had not, and Mr. Caminetti knew it.

—A. I had not, and Mr. Caminetti knew it.

Q. And when you entered into these relations with Mr. Caminetti, you believed that he would marry you?—A. Yes, sir.

Miss Norris was cross-examined by Attorney Robert Devlin, of the defense, former United States District Attorney here.

"Now, Miss Norris, on the trip you took to San Francisco and San Jose," was one of Attorney Devlin's questions, "did not Mr. Caminetti at first object to going, saying his wife was ill in the hospital, and didn't Miss Warrington say, 'You're a piker. We girls have framed this up and you must go along'?"

"I dbn't remember any such thing," Miss Norris answered.

Q. Did you have anything to drink on this trip?—A. I think I had some lemonade.

Q. Don't you remember that there was considerable drinking done in the party, and that you girls took part in some auto racing with another machine containing theatrical people, members of David Warfield's company?—A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember that when you finally returned to the Grand Hotel it was very late—about 4 o'clock in the morning?—A. No, sir. I had no idea what time it was.

Q. You said you rapped on Miss Warrington's door after you had reached the hotel and that you tried to enter her room. Did she hear you knocking?

Objection interposed by Mr. Roche.

Q. Did you stay in the room all night with Mr. Caminetti after you left the Grand Hotel and went to San Jose—at the hotel in San Jose?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time did you rap on Miss Warrington's door?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after the trip to Jackson did you make another trip to Stockton—you four?—A. Yes, sir.

Registered as His Wife.

Q. Do you remember on this occasion that Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington retired to a room and were gone for two hours, and that you and Mr. Caminetti retired to another room?—A. I don't remember.

Q. Upon your arrival in Reno, Mr. Caminetti registered at the Riverside Hotel as Mr. Ross and you as Mrs. Ross?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Diggs as Mr. Enright and Miss Warrington as Mrs. Enright?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after leaving the hotel and going to the cottage that you occupied, do you remember Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington going downtown and buying you a night gown?—A. Yes; they returned with one, but I don't know who bought it.

Q. Do you remember after the Reno incident that Miss Warrington heard that Mr. Diggs and his wife were reconciled, and that she remarked: "If I can't get him, he'll go to the penitentiary?"—A. She never said that to me.

Q. Do you remember on one occasion entering the private office of Mr. Diggs in Sacramento when he was alone with Miss Warrington? Do you remember on this occasion Miss Warrington remarked, "What do you think this is—a private show, and why don't you buy tickets?"—A. No, sir.

Electric Signs Now Made Right at Home

One of the First Products of New Studio Is Largest Display South of New York.

Atlanta now possesses a first-class electric sign studio. Heretofore local merchants have been obliged to purchase their electric signs in other cities and have them shipped here at heavy expense.

Proof that this is no inconsequential studio is the new electric sign at the south end of the Whitehall-Peachtree viaduct—the largest south of New York, and one of the most beautiful anywhere. It was made in Atlanta from start to finish. It uses more than 2,500 lamps, and some of the letters on the sign are more than twelve feet high.

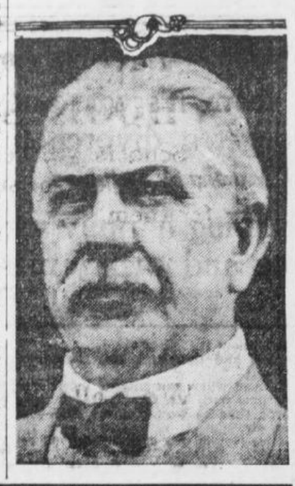

The new studio is the property of the Massengale Bulletin System, and is in the remodeled building which the Atlanta Athletic Club once occupied at 56 Edgewood avenue.

Ten high-salaried experts, men who thoroughly understand how to design and manufacture intricate and artistic electric signs, have been brought here by the Massengale Company to take charge of the new studio. M. O. Trusdell is in charge of the electrical department.

St. Elmo Massengale is president of the company and Gordon B. Massengale is secretary and manager.

E. Frank Munn is assistant manager and general superintendent.

WHAT ATLANTA MANUFACTURERS AND JOBBERS ARE DOING

ATLANTA HAS NEW FRIENDS AS RESULT OF CONVENTION

Many Attracted to City Who Never Came Before, but Who Now Will Make Semi-Annual Trips and Become Regular Customers.

Attendance Surpasses All Expectations, as Does the Volume of Business Transacted as Direct Result of the Fine Gathering.

The Southern Merchants' Convention is over.

Registration reached the imposing total of 2,500, Secretary H. T. Moore reported Saturday. Several hundreds did not register. Probably 3,000 is none too liberal an estimate of the number of retailers from Atlanta territory who visited the city during the two weeks.

With a theater party at the Forsyth Monday night, a barbecue Wednesday, and the Atlanta-Chattanooga ball game Friday, the visiting delegates enjoyed the second week of their stay, and the Atlanta merchants who pushed the convention to success believe they have made enduring friends of their guests, friends who will come again in February and every half year after that.

The purpose of the convention was twofold. First, the retail dealers from all over the South were given an opportunity to meet and discuss the problems which confront them in the everyday conduct of their business. Second, every effort was made to emphasize Atlanta's advantages as a buying center for all the South.

Both Objects Achieved.

Both these objects were achieved. The speeches during the first week of the convention threw valuable help in the way of those who found perplexities in buying, selling, management of stores, credits, or any of the multitudinous things which go to make up a merchant's work.

It is a good thing that the proceedings are to be published. All of the speeches are well worthy of preservation for future reference. Some of the speakers gave plain talks, just the simple, practical expression of what they had learned through years of experience.

Others spoke with scholarly finish—their speeches really were erudite, of studied completeness and finish. Still others were inspirational—they pointed out the intellectual and spiritual significance of the merchant's work. They made him feel that his is a noble calling, that the great prizes of the world are for the business man.

New Friends Made.

From the other point of view, the results attained were no less notable. Hundreds of buyers came to Atlanta who never had been here before, and who would not have come this time had it not been for the convention.

To them the completeness, the cheapness, the quality and the diversity of things sold by Atlanta manufacturers and jobbers must have been a revelation—indeed, they so expressed themselves.

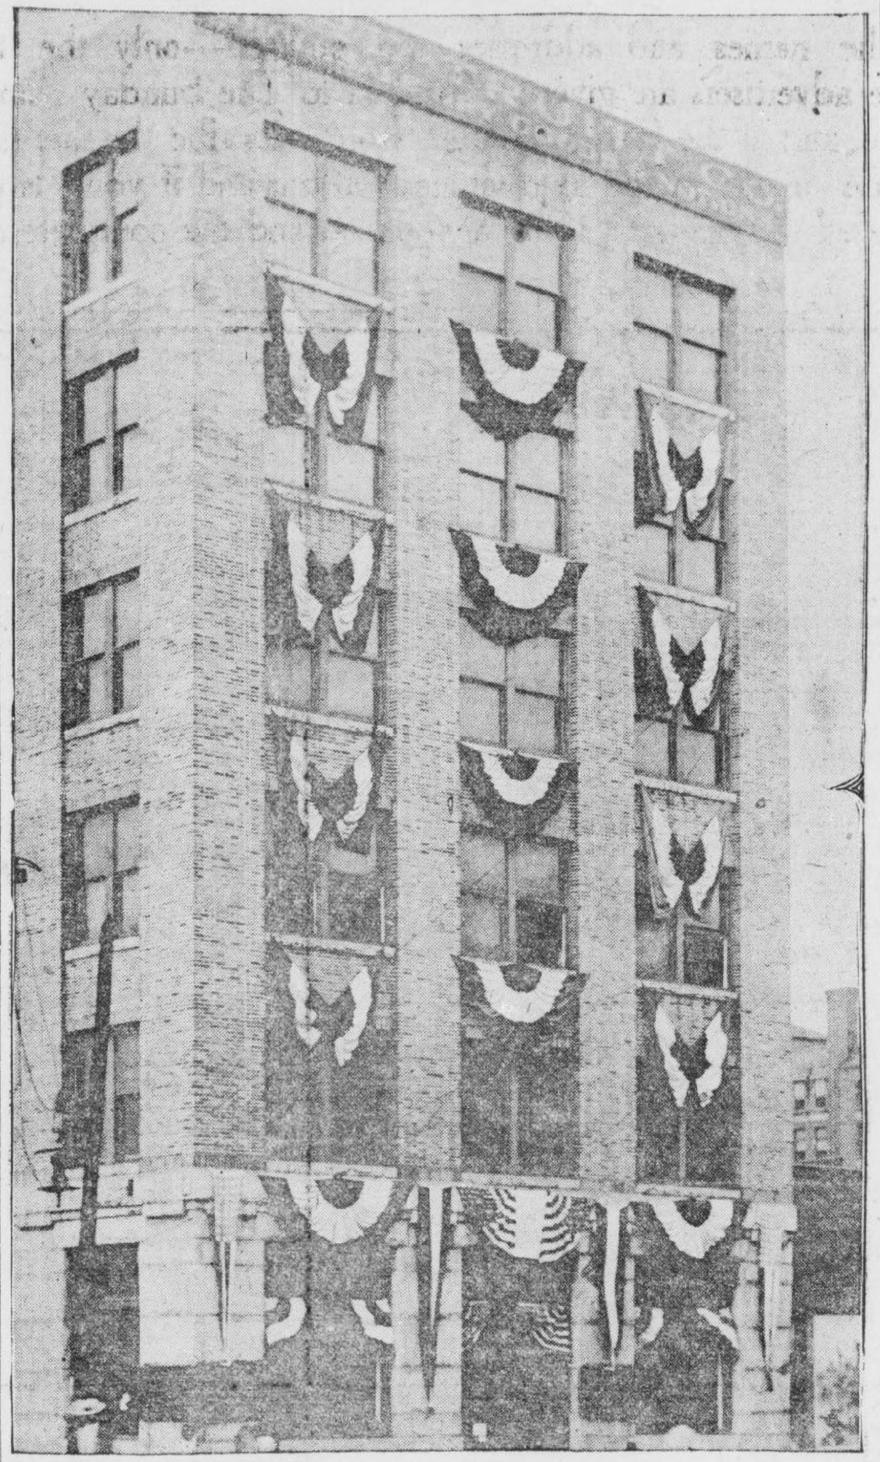

Some of them bought big bills. Every large jobbing house reports a splendid fall trade. The crop prospects are such as to make everyone optimistic. There will be a good demand for merchandise in the fall, and the buyers prepared to meet it.

There were others who did not buy so much. They are just as welcome, for the Atlantans feels that their goods, their prices and their service are right, and that every customer who buys here once will come again.

A noteworthy result of the meeting was the organization of a permanent body—the Southern States Merchants' Association, headed by J. W. Vaughn, of Cartersville, Ga.

This it is hoped, will bring very tangible benefits to the retailers of the South in general. It may prove to be the parent of scores of local organizations, which can do worlds of good in watching credits, preventing price-slashing and equalizing freight rates.

WARD-TRUITT COMPANY'S building, decorated in honor of the visiting merchants, as were many of the wholesale houses.

Fate of Exhibit to Be Sealed Tuesday

Atlanta manufacturers will seal the fate of the proposed permanent exhibit of Atlanta-made goods Tuesday.

A luncheon will be held at the Ansley at 10 o'clock that day. If sufficient support can not be secured by that time to guarantee the rental of four floors for two years, the attempt will be dropped, at least for a year.

Thirty-one manufacturers had signed by Saturday, an each of the 31 was commissioned to bring in another. Including the cotton exhibit, three floors seemed to be assured.

TOYS FROM WASTE WOOD.

A toy company in Sheboygan, Wis., has begun to use only the waste wood from other mills. It has even worked out a system of using all small pieces, as well as the larger ones, so that practically nothing is lost but sawdust.

NEW RICE HIGH; MARKET IS BARE OF LAST YEAR'S

Honduras Quoted at 7½ Cents to Jobbers by Big Atlanta Brokerage House.

New rice is being shown by H. H. Whitcomb & Burke Co., Atlanta's foremost grocery brokers, and the price is "sky high," higher than any of the grocers remember, the figure quoted being 7 1-2 cents for full head Honduras clean. Japan sells for 3 1-2 and 4 cents. These are quotations to wholesalers.

The market is bare of old crop rice of good grades. Those who demand the fancy article have had to deny themselves. The new crop, it seems, is moving slowly, and indications are that the high levels will be maintained for some time, although a break is possible later on. At the present time, even samples are hard to get from New Orleans, which, of course, is the center of the rice trade.

Cheese also is high, considering the season. The usual fall advance is coming very early. Plymouth, Wis., American full cream cheese is quoted, daisy, 15 cents, and twin daisies, 14 3-4 cents.

Great Lakes salt herring will begin to come in next month, and this most palatable fish promises to be in unparalleled demand. This is the variety known for years as "white fish," but the real white fish is as scarce as prairie chicken, and by a recent government ruling it is made an offense to brand fresh water herring by this name. The Whitcomb-Burke supply comes from the great fisheries at Green Bay, Wis.

Every week, it seems, some new product appears on the market to make the housewife's work lighter. The woman who so desires could feed her family for months at a time and never do a bit of cooking, with bakers' bread, canned brown bread, coffee which needs only the addition of water, tinned roast beef, lemon pie filling, lemon sugar, onion salad and a multitude of ready-prepared articles.

The latest in this line is prepared doughnut flour. The powder contains flour, eggs, spices and all the other ingredients of doughnuts. All that is necessary is to add water, roll the dough, cut it and fry the doughnuts. Sufficient to make two dozen doughnuts is sold for 15 cents.

New pack sweet potatoes are due in a few weeks, with a fair-sized crop of excellent quality in prospect. This is an all-Southern product unknown in the North a few years ago. But the juicy Southern yellow pumpkin yam is so much superior to the kiln-dried, mealy Jersey sweet potato of the North that it is believed a very short time will serve to make the more palatable product supreme in the market.

Every day there's a new condiment. This time it is onion salad, a Boston product with a peculiar tang which makes a hit on first trial. Louisiana, the home of tabasco peppers, is putting out a new tabasco sauce which the Whitcomb-Burke Company is introducing with considerable success.

At What Rate Do You Do Business?

Fire insurance rates on a building are based not only on the chances of that building catching fire, but to a larger extent on the facilities at hand for putting out the fire, should it occur.

The more convenient the Fire Service, the lower the rate.

Just so in merchandising; the cost of doing business is directly governed by the convenience of a merchant's source of supply.

Take shoes, for instance; the Southern merchant who buys his stock in the distant markets of New England and the West is paying a mighty high rate to do business.

Here are the extra costs he pays:

1st. Excess freight charges.

2d. Interest on half the stock he now carries that would be unnecessary with a near-by efficient factory connection.

3d. Loss on accumulation and depreciation of dead styles.

4th. Sales missed by being out of the right styles and sizes when he needs them.

The RED SEAL Shoe Factory right here in Georgia offers QUICK SHIPMENTS, LOW FREIGHTS, THE BEST KNOWN AND BEST SPOKEN OF LINE IN THE SOUTH.

Give Your "DIMES" a Chance

"True Friendship's Laws Are by This Rule Expressed-Welcome the Coming, Speed the Parting, Guest."

The good word that's passing up and down the line to-day, anent the convention, is "All's well."

We believe everybody had a good time. We tried to make it so, and without laying any unduly flattering unction to ourselves we feel that we have had a pair of mighty pleasant weeks.

The prospects for the coming season are brightening every sixty seconds. The smile is chasing away glum doubt. The step that yesterday was fearsome and cautious is to-day strong and steady. The mists are rolling up and away and the good old sun makes genial shining for us all.

Look about you and see what's happening. Get ready for the reaping. And while you do it, have this thought in your mind, you Men who Merchandise:

We Southern folks are bound together in peculiarly close business relations. Our section is our empire! We can make it. We can shake it!

If we who WHOLESALE and you who RETAIL will pull together, push together, work together, trade together, we will PROSPER together.

Good sentiment, but better business!

ATLANTA is the logical Base of Supplies for you Southern merchants. She's your best bet when it comes to the goods you need. She's your surest ally in the upbuild of your own particular section, because her vision is broad and her interest is not selfishly local—it's all-Southern.

Come to see us just as often as you can. The right hand of fellowship will greet you every time. We want you to know us and to like us and to feel sure of us and to make us your MARKET.

ATLANTA will measure up with the best in America and make a proud showing. WE ARE SEEING TO THAT EVERY DAY. Come here to buy, and we will prove it to you.

MORE THAN 300 BILLS PASSED BY LEGISLATURE; GOVERNOR LAUDS WORK

Act for Equalization of Taxes Is Regarded of Supreme Importance, Meaning Millions of Added Revenue to Ga. Each Year.

Measure Was Passed Only After One of Most Dramatic Fights General Assembly Has Known. Will Revolutionize System.

The 1913 session of the General Assembly of Georgia, which adjourned Thursday night, passed more than three hundred bills. Of these more than 250 were local bills, designed to relieve conditions existing in individual counties, and not operative in any other county. The remaining ones were general bills and local bills of general application.

Practically all of the measures have been engrossed and sent to Governor Slaton's office, and need only the signature of the Chief Executive of the State to become laws.

Governor Slaton has already signed some of the more important bills. He signed the Lipscomb-Miller-Anderson tax bill, to be known as the Lipscomb act, within a day after it passed the House, and Friday he signed the bill giving mothers equal rights with fathers to the custody of minor children.

Other bills received the official O. K. Saturday, but the great majority of them will not be signed until the coming week.

Of the 50 or more general bills that passed both branches of the Legislature, 19 are of importance, and their effect will be generally felt throughout the State.

Governor Praises Work.

They have been praised by Governor Slaton, Speaker Burwell, of the House, and President Anderson, of the Senate, as comprising one of the best Legislatures the State has had since the Civil War. They have passed five tax measures that will revolutionize the taxation system of the State, and add millions to the revenues; they have raised the standard of physicians in the State and centralized the control of practicing doctors; they have heard the plea of Georgia mothers and enacted a law that places her on a par with the father and recognizes her ability to care for her own child; they have established a home to care for the wayward girls of the State, and they have shown their friendship to the cause of higher education by passing an appropriation bill that carries large sums for the maintenance of the educational institutions of the State.

By far the most important measure passed by the House is the bill creating the office of State Tax Commissioner and county boards of tax assessors. This law has been characterized by veteran members of the House and Senate and by legislative experts as the best measure that has been passed in Georgia in 50 years.

It will revolutionize the taxation system of the State, and conservative estimates place the amount of revenue it will add to the funds of the State at $1,000,000 a year, sufficient to clear the State of debt and allow plenty of money to conduct the business of the Empire State of the South in a manner commensurate with her importance.

Four other tax bills that will bring in large sums, though the amounts can hardly be estimated until the laws are tried, were passed—the automobile tax bill, the inheritance tax bill, the special tax on bottling works and the occupation tax on corporations.

Inheritance Tax Important.

The inheritance tax alone is expected to bring into the treasury hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The bill providing for the State Tax Commissioner developed the hardest fight. Opponents of tax reform in the House, where the bill was first introduced by Lipscomb of Clarke County, led by Sheppard of Sumter and Stovall of Elbert County, succeeded in defeating the original bill and securing the passage of what was known as the Sheppard substitute, providing for county boards of equalization only. This measure went to the senate, where it was defeated and the substitute prepared that eventually became a law, by Senators Miller and Anderson. The Senate substitute, with its provisions for a State Tax Commissioner and the county boards of assessors, came back to the House during the last days of the session.

The fight that developed was one of the most thrilling and dramatic the House has ever seen. During the time the bill was under consideration by the Senate, tax reform members of the House had converted many of their original enemies. Efforts to destroy the bill by substituting amendments were defeated, and the bill was brought to a vote during the latter part of last week.

To Speaker Burwell, of Hancock County, belongs the credit for the passage of the bill. From the time the original Lipscomb bill was introduced he worked hard to get the bill through, and when the Senate substitute came to a vote, and Henderson of Jones County, a staunch friend of tax revision, tied up the vote after a thrilling ride to the Capitol in an auto, Speaker Burwell made the measure a law by casting his vote in favor of it.

Features of Tax Bill.

The bill is modeled after similar laws that are now on the statute books of a number of Northern States, where it has worked satisfactorily. Its main provisions are as follows:

It creates the office of State Tax Commissioner at $2,500 a year, and County Boards of Assessors.

The Tax Receivers of the counties will open their books February 1 and close them May 1.

In ten days after the books are closed the Tax Receivers shall present the returns to the county boards.

The county board is to be composed of three members, appointed by the Board of County Commissioners or the Ordinary.

The county board must examine the tax returns and equalize them.

The taxpayer, if dissatisfied with the decision of the county board, can ask for reconsideration and arbitration. The differences shall be adjusted by three arbitrators.

The county boards shall complete their work by July 1.

The State Tax Commissioner shall carefully examine all tax returns submitted by the county boards and recommend decreases or increases.

The State Tax Commissioner shall carefully investigate all taxation questions and recommend laws to the General Assembly.

The Tax Commissioner shall visit annually all the counties of the State and investigate conditions.

If the county board is dissatisfied with the decision of the State Tax Commissioner upon its returns, it may appeal for arbitration, to be conducted the same as when a taxpayer appeals to the county board.

Governor Slaton already has appointed a State Tax Commissioner, Judge J. C. Hart, and the formation of the county boards probably will be begun at once. The law becomes operative January 1, 1914.

The medical practices act abolishes the old system of a separate board for each school of medicine, and creates a joint board to pass upon the physicians who apply for permission to practice in Georgia.

The bill for the establishment of a home for wayward girls, to be known as the Georgia Industrial Home for Girls, carries with it an appropriation of $10,000. The original bill carried a $30,000 appropriation, but was cut $10,000 in the House and $10,000 more in the Senate.

Though the Legislature passed many measures that are recognized as good, there were many other good bills that failed to get through. Many of them, however, were held over until the next session for various reasons, and may be passed then. Among them were a number of child labor bills, measures designed to remedy working conditions, the vital statistics bill, compulsory education bill, and others.

In addition to aiding in the fight for tax reform, in which they were strong factors, the Fulton County delegation—Blackburn, Smith and Cochran—succeeded in getting through three bills that directly affect Atlanta. They are a bill creating a new charter for the city, a bill establishing municipal courts, and a bill providing an additional Superior Court judge for the Atlanta Circuit. The three Fulton County men, Blackburn and Smith especially, were recognized as being among the leaders in the House, and were in the forefront in the fight for all the reform legislation that was passed.

Important Bills Made Laws by 1913 Legislature

Here are the most important bills that passed both houses of the General Assembly, and which become laws upon receiving the signature of the Governor:

To provide for a State Tax Commissioner and County Boards of Tax Assessors.

A "blue sky" measure, to regulate the sale of stocks and bonds.

To allow freight trains to run on Sunday.

To increase the occupation tax on corporations.

To place a special tax on bottling works.

The general appropriation bill.

To provide an inheritance tax.

To regulate the practice of medicine and raise the standard of physicians.

To create a new charter for the city of Atlanta.

To create municipal courts in Atlanta and abolish the Justice courts.

To provide an additional Superior Court judge for the Atlanta Circuit.

To provide for the permanent registration of voters.

To establish and maintain a Home for Wayward Girls.

To enable judges to grant charters in vacation.

To create a Western & Atlantic Commission to investigate the release of the State Road.

To give the mother equal rights with the father in the custody of minor children.

To provide a tax of $5 on automobiles.

To create a commission to investigate the advisability of the State publishing its own school books.

To allow trial judges to place persons convicted of misdemeanors on probation, and to provide county probation officers.

To provide for the popular election of United States Senators.

Auto Parking Fire Menace, Says Chief

Cummings Declares That Congregation of Cars in Peachtree Street Hinders Department's Work.

Chief W. B. Cummings, of the fire department, has come out with an emphatic protest against the practice of parking automobiles along the curbing on Peachtree, Whitehall and Marietta streets and other main thoroughfares, following a fire in the Williams House, No. 3, at 15 1-2 Marietta street, Saturday, when the presence of long rows of cars prevented the fire apparatus from reaching the curbing.

Chief Cummings declares that the curbing should be kept clear, in order that the firemen may have free access to buildings with their apparatus. Present conditions greatly handicap his men, he states, and in case of a large fire there is danger of the gasoline in the tanks of the autos igniting, which would completely cut the firemen off from the burning buildings.

The fire in the Williams House was caused by a cigarette or cigar thrown from a window of the Empire Building next door. It fell in a gutter amidst a pile of trash and started a small blaze.

Auto Is Caught in Street Car Pocket

Motorist Grazes One Coach Only to Crash Into the Front End of Another.

An automobilist had two narrow escapes from injury within 30 seconds late Saturday at the junction of Highland and Ponce DeLeon avenues, when he grazed the rear end of a Highland avenue car and then ran his car into the front end of a Ponce DeLeon avenue car. The driver backed his machine away from the street car, turned to the right and went on, with his machine undamaged. No one was hurt.

The Highland avenue car was crossing Ponce DeLeon and the automobile was running up the avenue at a high rate of speed. The Ponce De Leon avenue car had stopped, waiting for the Highland car to pass. The automobilist failed to turn his machine out of the road, and missed the rear end of the Highland car by inches. The Highland car shut off the view of the Ponce DeLeon car, and the autoist did not see it until too late to avoid the collision.

Right of Pedestrian To Streets Is Upheld

Woman Whose Husband Was Killed by an Auto Given $10,000 by Court.

The Georgia Court of Appeals, in a ruling Saturday in the case of J. L. O'Dowd vs. Mrs. Clara C. Nawman, of Augusta, declared that a pedestrian possesses the same right on a street or highway as an automobilist. The ruling declares also that the automobilist must recognize this right and be governed accordingly.

The case which brought forth the ruling was appealed from the Richmond Superior Court. Mrs. Nawman sued O'Dowd for $20,000 for the death of her husband, who was struck by the former's automobile and killed while running to catch a street car. She secured a judgment for $10,000, which is affirmed by the Court of Appeals.

Atlanta Agents Like Bush Insurance Act

Local Men Pleased With Measure Raising Standard of Their Business.

Atlanta insurance men express gratification at the passage by the Legislature of Senator Bush's bill, which is aimed to eliminate grafters and certain bad practices which in the past have done considerable injury to their business.

The Bush bill makes unlawful any misrepresentation as to the terms of a policy or the financial condition of an industrial company; makes it a misdemeanor for one to act as insurance agent without a license, and gives the State Commissioner added powers in regulating the activities of insurance companies.

SAVANNAH LAD IN CRITICAL CONDITION FROM LOCKJAW

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—William, the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Osborne, is critically ill with lockjaw at his home. His condition is such that only faint hopes are held out of his recovery. The condition of the child resulted from a cut on the leg sustained from a piece of broken glas. The wound at first began to heal nicely, but Thursday night there was a turn for the worse.

B. & O. Joins Fight On Tuberculosis

Railway Will Send Specially Equipped Car and Experts Over Its Lines.

In an effort to check the "great white plague" the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has joined in the fight, and will attempt to educate the people along its different lines to the necessity of preventing the spread of the diseas. An anti-tuberculosis car has been equipped and, in charge of experts, will be sent over the entire system.

The car is fitted with charts and other exhibits which show the progress of tuberculosis, its causes and the means of eradication. It also contains a lecture hall, where doctors may talk to those who are interested in the campaign.

NEWLANDS IS DETERMINED TO DEFEAT TARIFF

Death of Johnston, Illness of Culberson, Give Nevadan Power to Kill Measure.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Senate Democratic managers were alarmed to-night when news reached them that Senator Newlands, of Nevada, who has been out West for a month fixing up his political fences, is coming back to vote on the tariff. He comes up for re-election next year.

It is stated that Newlands has been notified that if he votes for free wool and free sugar he will have to retire to private life. He is known to be against the bill on principle and opposed to it in caucus.

Senator Newlands holds the balance of power because of the death of Senator Johnston and the illness of Senator Culberson.

Conclusion of to-day's debate on the tariff bill in the Senate found the agricultural schedule only two-thirds complete, though it has been under discussion for a week.

During to-day's debate Senator Burton warned the Democrats that their proposed duty on bananas is a slap in the face of all the countries of the Caribbean Sea at a time when this country should strengthen its friendly relations.

MRS. BARLOW'S COURT WAR FOR CHILD RENEWED

Hearing of Writ for Custody of Daughter Next Step in Famous Divorce Case.

The next step in a fight which Mrs. Edith P. Barlow, No. 219 West Peachtree street, divorced wife of J. E. Barlow, a Havana, Cuba, millionaire, has instituted to obtain the permanent custody of their 10-year-old daughter, Madeline, will be taken Wednesday when Mrs. Barlow's petition for a writ of habeas corpus will be heard before Judge Bell, of the Superior Court.

Both Mrs. Barlow and her former husband are in Atlanta. The little girl now is in the custody of her mother, having been awarded to Mrs. Barlow through a ruling of the Ordinary's Court in Stewart County, where the divorce was granted to Mr. Barlow. The judge who heard the divorce proceedings awarded the girl to her father.

After getting the order from the Stewart County Court on August 12, Mrs Barlow went direct to Lumpkin, where Madeline had been left by her father with his present wife, and took the child. She then came to Atlanta. Mr. Barlow was in Havana when he heard of the ruling of the court, and came on at once.

Slaton Works Late Approving Bills

Governor Is Scanning Each Measure With Care Before Affixing His Signature.

Governor Slaton remained at his desk in the State Capitol until almost midnight Saturday, signing the bills that were passed at the recent session of the Legislature.

While there are several hundred measures to be signed, the Governor is going at the work carefully, closely scanning each one before he affixes his signature. Saturday morning and afternoon he signed only local bills, but later i the evening some of the general bills were signed.

Summer-Spoiled Skin Removed by Absorption

(From Home Queen.)

As undue summer exposure usually leaves an undesirable surface of tan, dust or grease, often freckles, too, it would seem more sensible to remove such surface than to hide it with cosmetics. There's nothing better for this than ordinary mercolized wax, which actually absorbs an unwholesome complexion. The thin layer of surface skin is itself absorbed, gently and gradually, so there's no inconvenience and no detention indoors. Just spread the wax lightly over the entire face at bedtime and take it off in the morning with warm water. If you will get one ounce of mercolized wax at the drug store and use for a week or so, you may expect marked improvement daily. When the underlying skin is wholly in view your complexion will be a marvel of spotless purity and beautiful whiteness.

Don't let those summer wrinkles worry you; worry will breed more wrinkles. Better to banish them by bathing the face in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch-hazel. Used daily for a while this will be found wonderfully effective. (Adv.)

FURNITURE FOR SALE. FURNITURE FOR SALE.

DEAR HOME LOVER:

DOES your home give you all the comfort and satisfaction you would like?

AS WE ALL KNOW, nothing goes further toward making the home cozier and more comfortable than the right kind of furnishings. Not certain styles or makes, but the right kind in regard to service and appearance.

WE HAVE SPENT many years in furnishing homes in and around Atlanta. We have studied the needs of the different homes and rooms; we have tested the different articles that go into the home, and have brought together an assortment of home furnishings that we are proud of. We believe in them and want you to. That is why we guarantee satisfaction.

OUR STOCK is well arranged; easy to see. You will always receive courteous treatment whether on an inspection or buying trip; and with our store service we are sure you will be satisfied.

Poultry—All Varieties.

MAKE MONEY WITH POULTRY.

AMERICAN POULTRY is a magazine devoted entirely to helping earnest men and women make a financial success of poultry raising. Its staff of writers is composed entirely of those who have made a practical, instead of theoretical, success of poultry farming, and who are glad to pass on the results of their hard-earned experience to AMERICAN POULTRY readers. There are many pitfalls in the path of the novice which may be entirely avoided by those who will follow the teachings set forth in this magazine. It fully explains how to make a start, how to construct houses, coops, and other devices, how to get a large egg yield, how to cure and prevent disease, how to fatten, how to get the top price for eggs, how to use incubators and hundreds of other points which every one wishes to know. It explains the famous secret system through which poultrymen have become rich and afterwards, for hundreds of dollars. AMERICAN POULTRY is a large, handsomely illustrated, monthly journal, well printed on fine paper, and should be found on file in the home of every poultry lover. No beginner in the poultry business should think of being without it. It will save him many times the small subscription price. The advanced poultryman will also find it of great value; the articles being varied in their scope.

SPECIAL OFFER. The regular price of AMERICAN POULTRY is 50c per year, but in order to introduce it to several thousand new readers, we will, for a short time, give a large 200-page poultry book, which is a complete guide in the poultry business, absolutely free to every one sending 50c for a yearly subscription or $1.00 for a three-year-subscription to AMERICAN POULTRY. A trial six months' subscription (without book) will be sent for 25c. Never has so much been offered for so small a sum. Advantage of this offer should be taken at once.

SEEDS AND POULTRY SUPPLIES.
BOTH PHONES 2568.

IF OUR CUSTOMERS living on the North and South Side place their orders before 9 o'clock and the ones in Inman Park and West End before 2 o'clock, they will be delivered the same day the orders are given. We are trying to give the very best service possible, and if our customers will bear in mind the hours that our deliveries leave the store it will insure prompt service.

IT IS ABSOLUTELY necessary for chickens to have green food during the winter. This can easily be supplied if you will plant out a small patch of rye and rape. They both grow very rapidly and will furnish an abundance of green food all the winter. Now is the time to plant.

THIS IS THE MOULTING SEASON, and that means that the hens should be fed a good tonic. Pratt's Poultry Regulator and Conkey's Laying Tonic insure a quick and complete moult, and that means plenty of eggs during the fall and winter when they bring the high prices; 25c, 50c and $1.00 package.

AVOID GIVING YOUR CHICKENS scratch feed with too much corn in it at this season. Use Red Comb Scratch. The percentage of corn is very small, but it has just the kinds of grain that they need now; $2.25 per 100 pounds.

DON'T OVERLOOK giving charcoal—it helps to keep down indigestion, and it is essential that the chickens have it.

A NEW IMPORTATION of Hartz Mountain Canaries, dandy little singers, at $2.50 each.

GET YOUR TURNIP SEED FROM HASTINGS' if you want the freshest and best.

WE HAVE some beautiful Ferns, and are selling them very low—come in and see them.

KEEP A CLOSE watch and don't let the lice and mites get a start of you. We have preparations that are guaranteed to kill them.

Carolyn M. Ely Buys Ferry Field Property

Sale of 16 1-2 Acres on North Shore Winds Up Syndicate—$50,000 for Property, Is Report.

CHICAGO, ILL., Aug. 16.—A notable sale of North Shore property was closed when Mrs. Carolyn M. Ely purchased from the McGuire & Orr Ferry Field Syndicate 16½ acres fronting on Sheridan road at the south end of Lake Bluff. The property lies between the purchases of H. B. Clow and A. A. Sprague II. It is surrounded by ravines, but does not go to the lake. The property has been offered at $50,000.

This sale winds up the syndicate. There were originally 150 acres in what was known as Ferry Field, which for years was used for the annual Lake Forest horse show and polo grounds. This tract was purchased about four years ago by McGuire & Orr for $800 an acre and sold by them to Stanley Field, A. A. Sprague II, H. B. Clow, Roy McWilliams and others for $3,000 an acre, which paid a net profit of more than $250,000.

Mrs. Ely purchased the property with the idea of improving with a handsome country home. The sale was negotiated by John Griffith of Lake Forest.

J. H. EWING PLANS MOVE FOR PEACHTREE HOME

J. H. Ewing, of the real estate firm of Smith & Ewing, will sell his present home and build on Peachtree road. He made this announcement during the past week, although he declared that his plans were not definite.

Mr. Ewing lives in Ansley Park south of the stone house of Edwin P. Ansley, and his home is one of the most attractive in the park. He has several lots at his disposal on Peachtree road and will decide on one of them soon.

Citizen in N. Fulton Wants Plant Moved

Lawyer Living Near Fertilizer Factory Says Complaints Will Cause Action—Land Is Valuable.

That a fight on the fertilizer factories in North Fulton County is coming before a great while seems to be certain. Property owners who are moving to the neighborhood of Peachtree Creek are continuing to complain. The general impression seems to be that the factories should either install machinery sufficient to do away with most of the objectionable odors or else move to neighborhoods that are more remote and not so valuable from a real estate standpoint.

Discussing the situation Saturday, a well-known lawyer, who lives near the largest of the factories, said:

"All that is neecssary for the property owners to do is to complain of the factories and the courts will grant a hearing. One owner can do this, or it can be done through petition. If it is established that the plants are objectionable, they will either have to move or cease being an objection. There are around me subdivisions that in a few years will be filled with high-class residents, and I don't believe the factories can stay very much longer."

J. W. Moore Building On West Peachtree

House Nearly Completed at Cost of About $8,000—Corner Lot To Be Reserved.

John W. Moore, the well-known attorney, is building a two-story brick veneer dwelling next to the northwest corner of West Peachtree and West Tenth streets, which he expects to occupy. Th house is nearly completed and will cost about $8,000.

Mr. Moore owns the corner also, and the total frontage is 100 feet and the depth 160 feet. He will reserve the corner for the present for a side yard.

GOOD REALTY INCREASE IN CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, ILL., Aug. 16.—Realty transfers for July show a large increase in recorded deeds as compared with the same period a year ago. This has been the case practically during all this year.

There were filed for record 5,913 deeds. Involving a total consideration of $11,772,254, as compared with 3,843 and $12,552,129 for July, 1912, a gain of 1,170 in number and a decrease of $779,875 in consideration, the latter due to "nominal" considerations.

There were recorded 3,971 trust deeds and mortgages involving a total of $18,773,121, compared with 2,835 and $12,522,800 for july a year ago, a gain of 1,136 in number and $6,250,321 in amount.

ON LAWTON Street, just off Gordon, we offer a modern, 7-room bungalow, on lot 50x150. This home is up to date in all respects and is in perfect keeping with the usual high standard of West End residence property. Price, $5,000. Reasonable terms.

Pryor Street
A 12 Per Cent Investment

IT IS NOT OFTEN you can buy a 12 per cent investment on a main paved street, all improvements down and enhancement a certainty. We offer an apartment building on Pryor, near Vassar Street, lot 50x165; rents four tenants at $15 each; total rent $52. Price, $5,200. Tenants pay water bills. This is standard income property.

Renting Property
Near Davis Street

THREE BLOCKS from A., B. and A. freight depot, a corner lot 100x105; has two single and one double house; room for another double house. Rents $30 above water bills; price, $3,200. This is very close to Terminal Station and always rents.

EAST LAKE ROAD.
A Ten-Acre Tract.

CORNER East Lake Road and Boulevard DeKalb; fronts 467 feet; adjoining tracts owned by J. H. Porter, W. T. Gentry, Major W. R. Dashiell and Adam Jones; a residence site de luxe. Price, $16,000.

COUNTRY HOME SITE
At East Lake.

SMALL acreage tract (about 4 acres); has spring and clear spring branch on it; suitable for chicken ranch or gardens; fine building site, with trees; car line runs through property. Price, $4,000.

AT EAST LAKE.
Fronts 400 Feet.

THIS tract is on Skiff Avenue, facing club grounds; in next block to Joseph Richardson's new residence. Price of entire tract, $4,000; easy terms.

Fair Street
At East Lake

ONE BLOCK from Country Club, a pretty lot in oak grove, 100x200; close to paved road; a desirable bungalow site. Price, $1,500; terms.

College Park Busy Building Many Pretty Homes

Steady Population Increase Is Noted in Suburb

The accompanying illustration shows a typical bungalow of the College Park section. Prominent in its construction is the wide porch across the front of the house, the attractive stone pillars at the side and rear, and the wide, sweeping, symmetrical eaves. The stone harmonizes well with the white trimmings, and the contrast in white and dark effects is good. The cost is about $3,000.

Six Crops of Alfalfa in Season; Big Opportunity for Farmers of South

CHARLES A. WHITTLE.

(Georgia State College of Agriculture.)

Think of from four to six crops of hay off a field in a year, and you are thinking of the possibilities of alfalfa growing in the South. Think of cutting from one to one and a half tons per acre each time and figure that each ton is worth at least $25 and you arrive at a very snug income with mighty little sweat as compared to cotton, for instance.

But be not deceived. Learning to grow alfalfa in the South is the biggest thing about it. Anybody who takes it as a matter of course that all he has to do is to stir the land and plant and thereafter watch the negroes harvest, is more than likely to be enrolled with the long list of those who have proven alfalfa failures in the South.

With all the good things that can be said of the soil of the South, it can pretty generally be said that Southern lands are not naturally "cut out" to grow alfalfa. This is not saying that alfalfa as a rule will not grow in the South, nor is it reflecting in any wise on either the soil or the climate. The point is that all Southern soils have to be given special treatment and preparation before alfalfa will be at home in it.

Alfalfa on Every Farm.

"Alfalfa on every farm," the slogan now going the rounds, does not point to an impossible ideal, but if anyone thinks it can be attained in the South without a considerable revolution, he may be easily deceived by trying it.

With all, it is easy enough to prepare the soil for alfalfa and go along producing it, if the prospective grower will follow good advice—but there is the rub.

The ordinary cotton grower of the South will have to practice crop rotation, he will have to add inoculation to his vocabulary and practices, and he will have to get lime into his soil. Those who have been teaching this sort of doctrine and have observed how far it has taken root in the South will understand how much farming practice will have to be changed to realize "Alfalfa on every farm."

To the average Southern farmer to mention inoculation is to elicit inquiries. What is it? Why? And to tell the truth, it is neither easy to understand nor to explain. A full explanation, indeed, is impossible. Inoculation means to introduce friendly bacteria into the soil. Without certain nitrogen fixing bacteria present in the ordinary soil, alfalfa and other legumes make poor headway. Certain it is that some of these bacteria can take the nitrogen from the air and fix it in the ground, converting at the same time the nitrogen into food for the growing plant.

Alfalfa Bred Bacteria Best.

It is believed that almost any soil has some of the nitrogen fixing bacteria present in it, but as a matter of fact in some soils these bacteria are few and apparently so starved as to be unequal to the task imposed by thrifty alfalfa.

The best bacteria with which to inoculate are those which have been bred in a good alfalfa field. Good bacteria can be grown artificially and it is with such artificially grown bacteria that seed are inoculated. When sprinkled with a solution in which the artificially grown bacteria have been turned loose, the seed carry on their surface enough of the bacteria to start up business in a new field.

Of course the bacteria are invisible except under a compound microscope. The farmer can not see them and when he buys he buys on faith. If his alfalfa grows and produces good crops he believes in inoculation. If it does not, he is likely to have notions of his own about inoculation. It is possible for seed to be perfectly inoculated and by reason of improper handling may fail to show results. Sunlight destroys bacteria and inoculated seed left exposed to the sunlight will become sterile. To escape the danger of sunlight it is necessary, of course, to shelter the bacteria, and it is wiser to sow or to apply the inoculation medium late in the afternoon or during cloudy weather.

Again, the seed may be properly inoculated, due precaution may be taken to get it into the soil with the least injury from the sunlight, but the soil may be sour, which is no sort of soil for a nitrogen fixing bacteria.

Lime Necessary to Alfalfa.

To correct sourness of soil lime is necessary. The fact is that practically all soils in the South are deficient in lime. This may never become apparent so long as cotton or corn is grown, but it is certainly true when it comes to growing legumes.

The lime is not needed as a fertilizer. It is merely a tonic to nitrogen fixing bacteria. Soils generally are supplied with all the lime that the crops need. Experiments have shown that most of the crops grown in the South are benefited by the use of lime, a benefit that is attributable to increasing bacterial activity. Bacterial activity means increase of plant food, for bacteria in effect are minute laboratories changing the elements non-available for plant food into elements of the soil that are available. Of course there are good and bad bacteria. Some of those that might be classed as bad operate to change available plant food into non-available. Of such are the denitrifying bacteria, which instead of preparing bacteria for the plants change it into perhaps free nitrogen that returns again to the air.

These friendly bacteria have been isolated and named and are nurtured, coaxed and strengthened to do their best. Only the border of the realm of these soil agents has been entered, and it may be reckoned with a degree of certainty that as the scientist ventures further into the mysterious country of the unseen that he will bring back to the farmer knowledge that will mean two bushels where one is now grown, all by learning which are the good bacteria that are serving plant life and how to encourage their growth.

The first great contribution of the scientist in looking into the teeming soil world is that lime is good for nitrogen-fixing bacteria, and since nitrogen is the most expensive plant food and one of the most important, it is a wonderful discovery this of lime and its relations to bacteria.

Since nitrogen-fixing bacteria operating to the good of alfalfa set up shop on the roots of the plant and there extract nitrogen from the air that has penetrated the soil, to know that lime will make it thrive is equivalent to saying that without lime alfalfa will not grow in many Southern soils, for it is a fact that most Southern soils are deficient in lime and are too sour for nitrogen-fixing bacteria.

Some pretty well-known, highly respected and intelligent men have said that they do not believe in inoculation nor in liming for alfalfa. They point to their successful alfalfa patch to show you that neither is necessary. Unwittingly such well-meaning people have been the means of the downfall of others in their attempts to grow alfalfa. Do not get an idea that there are many such alfalfa successes in the South, especially among those who have not used lime. Even where the soil has been formed by the disintegration of limestone rock, where there is a foundation of limestone in the soil, is to be found a marked deficiency in available lime. The lime has leached out. It must be supplied. On soils which for some reason, exceptional to the rule, there is sufficient lime, alfalfa may be started and grown successfully even without inoculation. The reason for the unnecessary inoculation will be found to be that the soil has already been stocked with nitrogen-fixing bacteria through the medium of clover, cowpeas, beans or one of a hundred other legumes.

Some of the authorities are now advocating going to the roadside, the fence corners or other places where sweet clover or burr clover, or lespedeza, or some other legumes are growing, taking some of the soil from underneath, scatter it over the alfalfa seed bed and harrow it under. By this mean nitrogen-fixing bacteria will be added to the soil, bacteria that have been making their living off the very kind of soil in which they are appointed to continue operations.

Better still, of course, would be soil taken from a field in which alfalfa had grown, a field where conditions are similar as to character of soil, climate, growing zone, etc. Naturally bacteria that have been feeding on alfalfa must have established alfalfa-loving characteristics.

Suppose some cotton farmer gets inspiration enough to get out of the cuts and takes the advice of the man who does not believe in inoculation or liming and suppose he fails, as he is likely to do, what a pity! When again will he be in frame of mind to try?

Preparing the Seed Bed.

The preparation of the seed bed with reference to weed eradication is important. It is time well spent if two years are taken in preparing the land for alfalfa. If barnyard manure is applied, it is better to follow with a crop of corn as a weed eradicator. This followed by rye or oats drilled between the corn rows at the last time the corn is worked, will afford not only a winter cover crop, but good pasturage for the colts and calves during the winter. After the rye or oats, as the case may be, is taken off, the cowpea or soy bean will prove excellent for keeping the weeds from getting a start. Turning under the cowpeas or soy beans and harrowing the ground until it is in find tilth, as good a seed bed as could be obtained for growing alfalfa is prepared.

Weeds and alfalfa do not do well together. If the farmer can not get rid of the weeds, he need not look to alfalfa to do it. Many farmers have had fits of despair over the weeds and orch grass which have made their appearance in their alfalfa patches.

But weeds are not formidable obstacles to growing alfalfa where the precautions described have been taken. Even where the weeds have appeared in an alfalfa patch there is a fighting chance for alfalfa if the right steps are taken to keep down the weeds. The method usually recommended is to run a disk harrow over the field. This plays havoc with the weeds, but harms the alfalfa very little. By some it is claimed that the harrowing will break up the alfalfa crowns or bunches and start new plants. Weed eradication in the field will rarely be necessary if the seed bed is properly prepared in advance.

Then Put In Lime.

Having brought the seed bed through two seasons of preparation and having broken and harrowed the ground, the next important step is to put in the lime. The amount of lime to apply will depend upon the degree of acidity or sourness of the land, not on the amount of lime already in the soil. The degree of sourness is usually determined by the use of litmus paper, a prepared paper that can be purchased at any drug store. This paper when imbedded in fairly moist soil and left a short time, when taken out will show by the change of color how acid the soil is. If the change of color is very marked plenty of lime should be applied. The application will vary from one to two tons per acre.

Lime is comparatively inexpensive and when once applied serves its purpose five or more years. Ground limestone is the form which is most generally used. The price is determined largely by the cost of freight. At lime manufacturing centers the ground limestone can usually be bought at $1 per ton and even less, especially where the lime is a by-product.

The lime should be broadcasted or drilled in. If broadcasted, then harrowed under.

Sourness of soil is attributed to an incomplete stage of decomposition of vegetable matter which has been turned into the soil. The lime is the one element that will at once adjust conditions and permit other bacteria as well as the nitrogen fixing bacteria to do their work. The vegetable matter which has been turned under in preparing the seed bed and is in process of decomposition, that is, which is being transformed by bacteria, proceeds with its processes most favorably in the presence of lime, becomes humus and then plant food.

An application of nitrate of soda after the alfalfa has come up, especially if it is not showing good color, has often proved helpful.

Alfalfa hay is good, rich hay and ranks very near wheat bran in the amount of nutriments, ton for ton. Wheat bran costs about $30 per ton laid down in the South. Raise alfalfa hay and the wheat bran need not be purchased. The alfalfa has a feeding value of nearly $30 per ton at present prices, but at the outset of this article a selling prices of $25 was set as an average.

As a feed alfalfa is a producer of high-class barnyard manure. Considering that the feeding value of alfalfa is nearly $30 per ton and the manure produced of high fertilizing value, the conclusion is that alfalfa is most profitable to the farmer when he feeds it to farm animals and applies the manure to the land.

Autumn Renting Business To Take on Roseate Hue

Agents Preparing for Rush That Follows Return of Tourists From Summer Resorts.

September is "moving time" in Atlanta. Next month the local moving vans will do the heaviest business in the year, and the renting agencies will have their hands full until the rush is finally over. Parents are busy selecting schools for their children, and this figures largely in determining changes of residence. Each family wants to be as near a schoolhouse as possible, and the best locations are always spoken for early.

Another thing that causes the fall renting business to be unusually heavy is the return of thousands of people from the summer resorts. Families and couples which have formerly rented houses are moving into apartments, and apartment dwellers are seeking homes with front yards. Between the tourists and the people who want locations near the schools, the renting agents are kept busy devising means of accommodation.

Scarcity of "Good" Houses.

Leases for a long time have been expiring between June and October and when a lease is out there are usually half a dozen people who want to rent the house. Strange as it may seem, there are never enough "good" houses in Atlanta to take care of each year's surplus population.

"If we had 50 houses of a certain type," declared M. S. Rankin, of the Smith, Ewing & Rankin Renting Agency, Saturday, "we could fill them with tenants in a week's time. The greatest demand is for seven and eight-room houses on the North Side, easily accessible to the schools, and renting from $35 to $50 a month. Builders who would make a specialty of this kind of house could sell or rent with a minimum of trouble. Bungalows naturally are popular, and are rising higher and higher in percentage each year."

An Interesting Factor.

Colonel John J. Woodside, who makes a specialty of renting, also predicts a record business. His office force has been carefully through old lists, cancelling out-of-date listings and adding new ones, to be ready for the business that is expected to develop next month. Tenants, asserts Colonel Woodside, are becoming more and more fastidious about bathrooms. Whereas many families were formerly content with one bathroom, they now almost invariably call for two, especially when there is a bedroom on the ground floor of a two-story house. The minimum for people in the so-called "upper middle" class is two bathrooms, and the maximum is whatever wealth and taste want to make it.

A tendency to re-lease, indicating satisfaction with places now occupied, has been noted by Manager Aycock, of the renting department of the Charles P. Glover Real Estate Agency.

Other renting agents have joined in the general prediction of a record autumn business, and after the rushes over they are expected to call on the builders, for more houses of the "good" kind.

Watch Charm Given To Chas. P. Glover

Former President of Realty Agents Honored—Presentation Speech Is Made by M. F. Ramsey.

Charles P. Glover, vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges and formerly president of the Atlanta Real Estate Board, is in possession of a handsome gift from his fellow real estate men in recognition of his services as head of the board during the past year.

This is a watch charm, studded with a diamond solitaire, to represent the rising sun, and containing the figures of a stork and a frog. It was presented to Mr. Glover at the monthly dinner of the land dealers at the Hotel Ansley Friday at noon.

M. F. Ramsey, who made the presentation speech, referred to Mr. Glover as "a man of remarkable energy and sterling worth, who has done more than any one person to make the Atlanta Real Estate Board a force in the community."

Mr. Glover declared: "I wish it were in my power to reply as beautifully in accepting as Mr. Ramsey has spoken in presenting this prized, but unexpected, gift."

S. B. Turman explained that the stork on the fob was symbolical of home rather than of realization. Eugene S. Kelly, of the Glover Agency, was responsible for the suggestion.

Mr. Glover was given an ovation. That the presentation was delayed was due to the haste with which local delegates got away to the Winnipeg convention.

Many Atlanta Business Men Live in Quiet Suburb to South—Section Noted for Civic Plan.

The completion of a large number of new homes in College Park places that community in the forefront of local suburbs as regards building. Never before, say College Park citizens, has there been such a steady demand for good homes, and this applies alike to expensive houses and inexpensive ones.

The census of 1910 showed the population of College Park to be slightly more than 2,000, and an estimate of the number in 1913 is easily 2,500, and probably 3,000. Building has jumped ahead in proportion.

College Park is the home of some of the best known business men in Atlanta. These men find it profitable and pleasant to work in the midst of skyscrapers during the day and to enjoy a cooling car ride home in the quiet of evening. They are the original "commuters" drawn from sections on which the city depends largely for original forces in business.

Six miles south of Atlanta, College Park is an unique suburb. Ever since it was laid out by its founders it has been an educational and home-loving community. Its builders made wide streets, beautiful parkways and erected fine homes and educational institutions. Not long in this process and it was a modern Utopia, and still is.

College Park and Decatur are prototypes. Each has its boys' school, its girls' school, its local government, its churches and fine homes, its railroad and its street car system. Each is six miles and 30 minutes from busy Atlanta, for the College Park and Decatur radius are the Chattahoochee River station on the west and Buckhead on the north.

Commerce Chamber Aid From Local Realty Board

Committees Named For Realty Board

Men Who Will Do Big Part of Work During Year Announced at Local Dinner.

Standing committees which will do a good deal of the work of the Atlanta Real Estate Board in the coming twelve months have just been announced and are ready to take up their respective duties.

These committees are on membership, arbitration, renting legislation, entertainment and public good.

The committee on membership is composed of J. Hope Tigner, chairman; Ben Treadwell, J. F. Mayfield, H. C. Blake and A. S. Hook.

The committee on arbitration is Edwin P. Ansley, chairman; R. M. Grant, Edward L. Winn, J. P. Sturgeen and W. E. Treadwell.

The committee on renting is Eugene S. Kelly, chairman; Albert S. Adams, Raymond Robson, Forrest Adair, Edwin P. Ansley, R. O. Cochran, Albert Boylston, A. J. Mayfield, E. Rivers, S. B. Turman, M. L. Thrower, John J. Woodside, Thomas Cheatham, J. H. Ewing and S. L. Dallas.

The committee on legislation is W. P. Walthall, chairman; Walker Dunson, C. A. Horne, R. C. Eve and W. A. Sharpe.

The committee on entertainment is J. R. Smith, chairman; Frank Adair, Thomas Cheatham, John O. Dupree and E. T. Luckie.

The committee on public good is S. W. Carson, chairman; M. S. Eubanks, L. O. Turner, John S. Scott and Thomas R. Finney.

Chas. D. McKinney Presents Plan to Advertise Through State Organization.

What can the members of the Atlanta Real Estate Board do to help the work of the State Chamber of Commerce?

This question was put forcibly at the regular monthly dinner of the real estate men Friday at the Hotel Ansley and it has set the land dealers to thinking.

"It seems to me," declared Attorney Charles D. McKinney, representing the State Chamber, "that it lies within the power of the real estate men to give this project as great a boost as any other organization can give it. I want to know now or later whether the chamber can count on the Atlanta Real Estate Board to cooperate with it in advertising the advantages of the State and in bringing in a desirable class of settlers.

Central Body Needed.

"Georgia is one of a very few States which does not have a central organization for the dissemination of this detailed data. We have no way in this State of giving outsiders information on every phase of agriculture, population, labor and lands. In Atlanta we are also somewhat deficient in telling of the city.

"Texas has organizations whose sole purpose is to boom the resources of the State, and she is doing it in a very effective manner. I sent for some literature and I received a package which it required 38 cents to carry through the mail."

The real estate men took no definite action on the suggestion, but assured Mr. McKinney that they would be glad to consider the matter further.

The monthly dinner was by far the best that the land brokers have held. Fifty were present and there was great enthusiasm over the work which lies ahead to secure, if possible the ninth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges and to assist next year in the proper entertainment of the thousands of visiting Shriners.

List of Agents Present.

Charles P. Glover, S. B. Turman and Harris G. White told of their recent trip to Winnipeg, and declared that Atlanta must wake up if she is to rival the growing towns of the great Canadian Northwest. Mr. Glover said that 5,000 settlers pass each week through Winnipeg. The towns, he said, boosted Western Canada above everything. If settlers were not satisfied to stay in town they were advised to move on the farms but always to stay in Canada.

The suggestion has been made that hereafter there be held oftener than once a month, and it is possible that something will be done to get the real estate men together every two weeks. Among those present Friday, in addition to those named above, were F. R. Graham, Philip L. Engle, Eugene S. Kelly, R. L. Turman, Haralson Bleckley, Van B. Smith, G. T. R. Fraser, John D. Babidge, George H. Bonnell, L. O. Turner, H. W. Dillin, C. D. Galloway, Edward Morris, John H. and Crawford Maddox, Joseph D. Greene, G. M. McKinnon, T. B. Gay, Pitzhugh Knox, M. Anderson, Herbert Kaiser, Hal Steed, M. C. and Horton Kiser, Newton S. Thomas, Ben Treadwell, J. Hope Tigner, S. E. Davidson, E. L. Winn, W. H. S. Hamilton, J. F. Mayfield, Walker Dunson and H. S. Willingham.

In Real Estate Circles

"I'm going to put my spare money on Broad street," asserted a prominent real estate agent the other day in speculating on the best trading centers for 1914. "Broad hasn't yet risen near the height of its possibilities. Wait until we get those chickens off the street and put up a few new and tall buildings and you will see the change. Railroad development on the West Side will have its influence. Cinders and smoke will remain, but Whitehall and Peachtree buildings manage to exist with both, so I suppose Broad can."

* * *

Charles P. Glover, formerly president of the Atlanta Real Estate Board and now vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges, mingled with "royalty" at the recent real estate men's convention at Winnipeg, according to his companions on the trip. Mr. Glover is a stickler for ceremony, and he found that the Canadians used it every day and Sunday, too. Hence, when convention guests gathered, they heard everybody addressed from King to Constable.

Mr. Glover's speech was important, and he sought a Canadian friend on the form of introduction. The preliminaries ran something like this: "Your Majesty, Your Grace, Your Worship, Your Lordships, Your Ladyship, Delegates to the National Convention, Ladies and Gentlemen."

Following Mr. Glover's perfect rendition, a Canadian made a bad mistake in his preliminaries, and with bended head and dashed face he said "Sir, I humbly beg pardon for this seeming indiscretion."

King George could not be present, but the Governor General of the Province mingled with the guests.

* * *

Nearly every time any public discussion of a downtown corner arises, it awakes with it memories of what might have been. Half a dozen real estate dealers could have bought low and sold high—but they didn't. Now they declare, it's out of sight!

Same with the Connally property, southeast corner of Whitehall and Alabama. "Lordy, Lordy!" sighed a leading real estate dealer a few days ago. "I came within an ace of leasing that in 1910 for 99 years at $25,000 a year, and now it's easily worth $50,000. I would have put a big building—you bet!"

* * *

That Atlanta must take a giant stride forward in street improvements if she is to rival the progressive towns of the Pacific Coast is the opinion of H. F. West, of the A. J. & H. F. West Real Estate Agency, who has just returned from an extensive trip.

"I have been all over certain Western towns," declared Mr. West, "and I find that the street conditions are so far ahead of Atlanta that there is no comparison. Miles and miles of beautifully paved thoroughfares make locomotion a pleasure. If work is needed to be done, the order is given, and the money is forthcoming. There is no delay, no haggling about it.

"I don't mean that the principal streets are the only ones that are paved. Nearly all thoroughfares have been improved to such an extent that the poorer classes of people living in the outlying districts receive benefit. The same is true of lighting, numbering and naming streets. Atlanta is far behind in this respect, and she can better her condition when the leading citizens of the community take a more active interest in civic affairs."

* * *

Who will be the next patriot to give the city another park?

Real estate men have been wondering. What park spaces the city has are filling a great need, but more parks must come. The large tracts which could once have been bought for a song are now mostly cut up into city lots and many individuals hold deeds to them.

The Peters property on Peachtree between Fourth and Fifth streets will soon be cut into store lots—unless it is purchased for a park. Ten years hence, if the city has not acquired this, citizens will recall that it could have been bought for comparatively little.

Another illustration is the triangle at the northern junction of the Peachtrees—a good place to cut an octagonal space resembling roughly Columbus circle in New York, and a splendid place for a handsome statue of some pioneer citizen. This triangle extends southward to Seventeenth street, but the southern extremity of it has been built up with houses. "For sale" signs are on most of the rest of it, for that matter.

Speaking of parks, a real estate man pointed out the other day that the so-called "park patriots" don't seem to be with us any more. "People offer parks these days with commercial motives," said he. "It has been a long time since anybody offered a park who didn't expect to get as much out of the city as the city got out of them."

PEACE, PLUS GOOD CROPS, GIVES WORLD NEW SPIRIT

Hopefulness Prevails in United States, United Kingdom and Continental Europe Because War Seems To Be Passing Away

Progress Toward Passage of Currency Bill and McAdoo's Policy Tends to Restore Credit and Improve Securities Market

By BOERSANIER.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Hopefulness prevails in the United States, the United Kingdom and Continental Europe as a result of the excellence of crop returns, peace in the Balkans and consequent returns of foreign investment funds to American securities.

A bumper winter wheat yield, fair returns promised by spring wheat fields, improvement in the corn belt and excellence of the oats crop displayed by thrashing machine results have stimulated general business.

Progress made at Washington carrying the currency bill toward fruition and extension of credit facilities by the Treasury's distribution of Government funds inspired confidence which found reflection in a stronger security market.

A cheerful view of the world's monetary situation is taken by the London Statist, which says of Europe's prospects:

"There is no change to record in the Continental money markets. There is a more hopeful feeling; but nobody can define exactly why he feels more hopeful, except by saying that the belligerents in Southeastern Europe, with the exception of Roumania, are exhausted, and that Roumania appears not to be intent upon creating trouble, but rather is endeavoring to bring about peace.

Understanding Suspected.

"Furthermore, it is believed in an indefinite kind of way that Russia and Austria-Hungary have come to an understanding. Probably there has been a sort of understanding between the two courts ever since the special mission of Prince Gottfried Hohenlohe from the Emperor Francis Joseph to the Czar. And recent events may have made both feel that they should combine their influence to bring about a settlement of all questions at issue.

"At the same time we are very skeptical of any real agreement between Austria-Hungary and Russia. Their interests differ too markedly and the position of the two countries contrasts too strongly. Moreover, Southeastern Europe, and for that matter Western Asia, just now are in the melting pot.

"It is difficult for anyone, even though he be a great monarch, to foresee how events are shaping themselves, or what will be the outcome of the hurly-burly through which the Balkans have passed. Therefore, it seems much more likely that both governments are carefully limiting their action to the immediate present, and affecting even the immediate future as little as possible.

"Money in Germany is, as every well-informed person anticipated, easy. It always is easy in July, unless something very untoward happens, and as July this year has passed over rather tamely, there has been no disturbance of the financial market.

Future Is Hazy.

"What will happen during the remainder of this month is less easy to foresee. Probably for a couple of weeks rates will remain very much as they are. About the middle of the month people may wake up to the recollection that there will be a difficult settlement at the end of September, and then preparations for that settlement may be begun.

"On the other hand, the middle of August is usually a quiet time, and the weather having been bad during July, it is honed that it will be fine this month. If so, holiday making will be in full swing. It is possible consequently, that there may be little disturbance of rates all through the month.

"The influence of Roumania is being exercised for good, and it is hoped she will succeed in making both Servia and Greece more amenable to reason and thus bring about a tolerable arrangement.

"But even if all that is done, the outlook will continue to be dark. It will be extremely difficult for the Balkan States to borrow. Had they been wise enough to make a treaty of peace early in the year they would have come to Western Europe with great prestige. There would have been a general willingness to lend to them and a general belief that they had shown themselves so capable in their attack upon Turkey that they would be sure to use beneficially the money intrusted to them.

Confidence Dissipated.

"But all that belief in their capacity and, consequently, in their future, has been dissipated, and it will be extremely difficult, therefore, to obtain the loans that are actually indispensable if they are to make any progress in the immediate future.

"The matter is of great importance to Austria-Hungary as well as to the Balkan States. So far as the latter are concerned, it is hardly necessary to point out that they can not wind up the war except they get some money.

"Thus Roumania is likely not only to gain in territory and prestige, because of the obstinate folly of Bulgaria, but also to gain economically because of the exceedingly good weather she has had."

Upward Tendency in Cotton Is Unchecked

Bulls Show Less Vigor at Week-end. Crop News Proves To Be More Mixed.

By EDWARD LOW RANLETT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The upward tendency of cotton values was continued during to-day's session, but with less vigor. Prices started from 3 to 7 points higher, and while additional gains of a few points soon were recorded, there was enough selling by the South and for the account of recent buyers to cause a partial reaction. The market closed steady. The disposition was to await week-end weather developments.

Crop news was more mixed. As a rule the advices on the Central and Eastern belt are very satisfactory, but with each day of dry weather in the Southwest despatches from that section are more serious.

There has been a tendency to reduce crop estimates, because the Western belt has shown a falling off in possibilities, while east of the Mississippi River, while the crop may not have improved very much, it has held its own in much better shape. Speculation has not been much in evidence, but the general tendency of operators has been to avoid the short side of the market.

Estimated cotton receipts:

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 16.—A surprisingly strong Liverpool was offset to-day by private reports of rains in Oklahoma. Consequently the cotton market opened only one point up on October and one point down on other active new crop months. During the early trading professionals were inclined to sell short, but turned buyers as soon as the official forecast predicting clear weather for Texas and Oklahoma over Sunday was posted.

Reports of rains at Omaha, Nebraska, which, it was thought, would spread to Oklahoma over Sunday, caused some aggressive selling on the part of bears during the late trading. Bulls bought moderately on the decline, in anticipation of an unfavorable crop report by The Times-Democrat Monday morning. The market at the close ruled steady, with prices unchanged to one point higher, as compared with Friday's closing.

Spots were officially reported firm and 1-16c higher on all grades, middling being quoted at 12 1-16c. Sales amounted to 285 bales of spots.

At the high point to-day the market showed an advance of 31 points from the low level of the week established Thursday when the market broke below 11 cents for the new crop positions.

COTTON FIELDS TELL STORY OF TWO ASPECTS

No Cause for Complaint in the Central or Eastern Belt. Spinners Reluctant.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 16.—A genuine crop scare in a considerable portion of the cotton belt and an absence of bullish activity in the price marts was an anomaly presented during the week. A partial explanation for it was, that while the crop was admittedly losing condition in Oklahoma and Texas, in practically all the rest of the belt there was no good reason for complaint. In fact, most of the central and eastern belt sent in reports of excellent progress toward a satisfactory yield. There was thus a two-sided story from the cotton fields, and the sections which last season had only moderate outturns were giving promise of evening up matters with a section that had bumper crops.

The promise of rains in the western part of the belt at the close of last wek, which afforded much of the basis for the bearish activity in the speculative market on Friday and Saturday, proved barren of much results, for the showers were scattered, and by no means sufficient to relieve the situation. In only a few localities did they amount to enough to give relief, and as the temperatures continued high, some of them might better not have come. Arkansas had some fine rains, which put an end to an incipient drouth. The week has brought no important relief to Oklahoma and Texas, and most students of the situation have reduced expectations for those important areas.

It seems certain enough damage already has been done to make unlikely a yield of as much as last year, despite increased acreage. The injury will continue until the drouth is relieved, and then for them to have full benefit there will have to be a late and open fall so late fruit can mature.

In the central belt conditions are still excellent, and the critical period will soon pass. Expectations are for the largest crop ever gathered in this territory, and picking will start in earnest in a few weeks. The "first" bale has already appeared here, nine days ahead of last year and five earlier than the average date. However, the crop as a whole is not that much ahead, the bale having come from the section that is trying to get ahead of the boll weevil by early planting and forced cultivation.

Opinion here is that the improvement of the past few weeks in the eastern belt has been such as to make possible a large yield, though it is doubted whether the record of two years ago will be reached in any large area.

The spot situation is still without much feature, and it seems likely that the spinners are going to take their time about buying. Very little forward business is reported booked and the disposition to scatter orders is not yet marked. From across the water comes talk of trade not being so promising, though there is a suspicion that one motive for such news is the need of raw material in large quantities soon and it will not hurt any to spread the notion that trade is going to be dull, thus helping to depress values and enable as cheap buying as possible.

The effect of the legislation against futures, should it be passed, is also expected to be for lower prices, which is another motive for the spinners waiting. There are many people who think the removal of this menacing cloud would result in a very quick revival of bullish speculative activity and thus the crop scare would become a price factor of more importance than it has been.

The foreign spinner, no doubt, also feels that the money situation is such that there will be a rush to sell the new crop, which will better his chances of getting bargains provided he does not show too much eagerness this early.

The domestic spinner naturally is biding his time and being conservative, pending the passage of the tariff act and its effect on business. Other things also encourage him to be a little patient, although advices indicate a healthy prospect for business.

HAS METHOD OF MAKING COTTON LIVE FOR YEARS

German Savant Patents System for Producing Frost and Pest Proof Perennial Plant.

By M. A. ROSE.

Now comes Herr Woldemar Schuetze, the newest recruit to the ranks of those who would revolutionize cotton growing.

All the world eventually will adopt his system, he asserts, and thereby produce a wiltproof, pestproof, frostproof, high-grade cotton which need be planted but once in 25 years.

The system makes the cotton-picking machine entirely practicable and increases the planter's profit, not only by cutting out the cost of seed, but also by reducing the cost of labor. These are some of his claims.

The system, it seems, is protected by patents in every country of the globe except in Japan. The wily Japs, according to Herr Woldemar Schuetze, considered his application, turned it down, and then spread knowledge of his methods the length and breadth of the Flowery Empire.

Details Are Vague.

But when it comes to details, Herr Schuetze is rather vague, or at least the reports of interviews with him in London are rather vague.

The cotton plant in its wild state is perennial. This is the foundation stone of the system. In the countries where wild cotton is found the plant lives 20 to 25 years. Under cultivation it degenerates to the extent of about 80 per cent after the first crop, and can not resist frost.

Herr Schuetze promises to prevent this degeneration, to make the cotton plant live 25 years or more, to make it proof against frost and all pests. He does not tell how, except to say:

"Like so many great discoveries, mine is most simple.

"One wonders why it has not been discovered ages ago. It is really the result of applying the law that in grafting, the closer the relationship, the better the result. When this system is once applied, the reduction in cost will soon amount to 50 per cent at least.

"There is an old law that the qualities of cultivation in a plant are not continued with certainty in seedlings; that is to say, that they are most unreliable. Now, my process prevents this, applying the law I referred to by first sowing, and then grafting from the parent plant onto the seedling."

Herr Schuetze takes great comfort from the fact that experiments by the Royal Pomological Society at Eisenach bear him out.

Helps Cotton Picker.

"With perennial cotton plants, or rather trees," he goes on, "it will be possible to train them to grow in a series of arches. It follows, therefore, that a cotton-picking machine can be designed which will do its work with far greater regularity and thoroughness than is possible under the present system, where a large number of levers or arms are required to work in equally numerous directions and angles. At present, the cotton-picking machine leaves behind about one-third of the cotton, whereas under the new system practically all of the cotton will be picked with comparative ease.

"Again, with the trees trained in this manner, the cotton bolls will be better exposed to the rays of the sun, with the result that the bolls will develop better, grow larger and produce better cotton."

The Carvonica cotton plant, which is perennial, already is well known, but it will not grow everywhere. Herr Schuetze says he can fit his system to any cotton-growing climate. Three to five years would be required to adapt the cotton of the South to his system.

General Rally in Stocks Good Sign

Traders Take Encouragement From Strenght Shown After Early Bear Attack.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—One encouraging feature of to-day's stock market was a general rally after Union Pacific and Steel had been forced down a point in the early trading, with other stocks falling off 1-4 to 3-4 at the same time. Atchison, Missouri Pacific and Rock Island were all weak in the early session on account of reports of corn crop damage. Later, reports of rain in Kansas and Oklahoma brought about the rally, which, thought slight, was regarded as important when prices were compared with those of Wednesday and Thursday.

Amalgamated Copper and Smelters both showed considerable strength, presumably because of the strength of the market for the metal.

There was a lack of foreign news Paris being closed by the three-day holiday and London being dull in consequence.

Of domestic news, the most important was the news from Washington that the Administration appeared to have currency legislation well under control and that the bill was likely to reach the House as early as August 25.

The bank statement was considered favorable.

NEW SEABOARD MANAGEMENT IS DOING WELL

Deficit of $121,000 in First Quarter Overcome and oGod Surplus, Besides.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Seaboard Air Line in the year ended June 30 earned in excess of 7 per cent on $23,894,000. Final surplus was approximately $1,730,000, against $813,000 in 1912, both figures including only rail operations.

The showing reflects credit on the new management. In a year when the company's territory scored only about 60 per cent of a normal cotton crop, and when the initial three months' operations under the old management produced a deficit of $121,000, results for the succeeding nine months not only overcame these handicaps, but so far recovered that gross increased $1,523,000 and surplus over all charges increased $817,000.

On basis of nine months' operations under the new management, and allowing for effort necessary to pick up and recover the initial quarter's deficit, the property appears to be earning at rate of nearly $2,000,000 surplus annually, or equivalent to more than 8 per cent on the outstanding preferred. Total operating ratio in the past year was 72 per cent of gross. In 1912 it was 75 per cent.

Officials look forward to better than a $2,000,000 surplus in the current year. Crops offer excellent promise, with one of the largest cotton crops ever raised among the prospects this year. General business is moving in fair volume and traffic outlook shows no unfavorable signs.

Selling U. S. Bonds Short Is Risky Deal

Restricted Market for These Securities Makes the 'Bear's' Lot One Not Enviable.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The trader who sells any Government bonds short takes a long chance of making a profit, because of the restricted market for these securities, and the short seller of those which bear coupons assumes a risk much greater than is attached to any active stock or bond on the Stock Exchange list. Government coupon bonds, particularly those which have the circulation privilege, are comparatively scarce.

The coupon bonds may be converted into registered bonds, but registered bonds may not be exchanged for others of the same clas which bear coupons.

The application of this provision to the issues which are used to secure bank note issues, naturally, has worked to cut down the number of coupon bonds outstanding and thereby greatly lessened the opportunity of short sellers for covering their contracts at times when they have the best advantage for a profitable transaction.

An expert on Government issues predicted yesterday that traders who went short on coupon 2s below 96 would have difficulty in covering at any price under par unless some development at Washington occurs to weaken them drastically.

New High Made for Corn, but Not Held

Longs Supply All Demands When Crest Is Reached, Causing Slight Reaction.

By JOS. F. PRITCHARD.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—New high prices were made in the corn pit again to-day. These advances are likely to be seen from day to day until such time as the mad speculative movement has spent its force, or the Southwest has been deluged by rain.

A runaway market was slated in corn for to-day, and it looked at one time as if even with the selling by the larger men in the trade the upturn could not be checked. Around 75 1-8 cents for September, 69 3-4 cents for December and 71 cents for May—the highest prices of the day, as well as of the week—the chutes of the longs were thrown wide open and all comers were fully supplied and more. This selling caused reactions from the best prices of the day and declines for the session of 1-8@3-8 were seen in the deferred months.

The mention of "corners" on the Chicago Board of Trade causes a smile to overspread the average trader of to-day. The big trade mart has an anti-corner rule and this is being lived up to with great earnestness.

While the farmers of the country have lost heavily because of the almost unheard of crop deterioration many of them have partially recouped their losses, while others have made more money by taking a hand on the bull side than they otherwise would have made.

Eastern exporters were in the wheat market on a liberal scale to-day and in addition to this buying there was improved milling business. The total sales to-day here were 685,000 bushels.

Prices advanced 1-8@1-2 cent today and they closed pretty well around the best prices of the session.

New buying was noticeable in oats and prices were fully maintained following the advance of Friday. Cash transactions were small at 150,000 bushels; corn sales were larger at 240,000 bushels.

BEARS CHECKED BY DAMAGE IN WESTERN BELT

Small Demand for Forward Delivery in Spots Best Argument for Low Prices.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 16.—Bearish activity, which had been encouraged by the anti-option legislation pending at Washington has been somewhat restrained recently by reports of deterioration in the condition of the cotton crop in Texas and Oklahoma.

Unevenly distributed showers have fallen in both of those States within the last few days, but it is believed that what relief has come has been too late to prevent material damage to the crop in that section of the belt. Consequently the next bureau report is expected to show a further decline in condition from last month, when both Texas and Oklahoma fell off sharply.

The one redeeming feature in the crop situation at the moment is the improved outlook in the eastern half of the belt. According to reports received in this market, the crop in Alabama and in Georgia has undergone wonderful improvement since the date of the last bureau report. Should this improvement in the eastern belt continue, the deterioration likely to be shown in the Western belt will be offset, in a measure, by the improvement in the Atlantics.

It is believed that while conditions may be serious in those two States, rains within a week would yet permit the making of a fairly large crop, and it is argued that even if there were a shortage in the crop in the Western belt the increase apparent in the Atlantics, together with a normal yield in the Central belt, would result in a crop of at least 15,000,000 bales.

The most bearish feature in the general situation is the fact that there is less demand for forward deliveries in spots than has been the case in years. Fully good middling is being offered in this market at 45 points on October, and good middling at 15 points less for September delivery, with few, if any, buyers in sight. The slack spot demand is attributed to declining trade at Manchester and to the bearish sentiment engendered at Liverpool by the introduction of the Clarke bill in Congress.

News as to the outcome of the fight being made against the Clarke bill continues of a favorable character, and it is believed here now that the measure has been practically killed as a result of the criticism aimed at it by Southern newspapers generally.

The optimistic feeling prevailing here has been reflected by an advance of $600 in the price of New Orleans Cotton Exchange stock, two shares of which have sold this week for $2,100, with none offering at less than $2,500 now.

When the Clarke bill was first introduced, shares of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange declined below $1,500, whereas the stock had been $2,500 bid before the bill was introduced by Senator Clarke.

Travel Troubles

They are great and numerous—if not precluded by availing yourself of the opportunities offered by this safe, strong bank.

For instance: If you leave your valuable papers or jewelry in the house during your absence from the city, all during your travels you will be anxious concerning their safety. Whereas, if you rent a Safe Deposit Box in our Steel Vault, your mind will be relieved of this anxiety, which will be worth many times the cost of rental.

Again: If you start out with a pocketful of cash, you will be incessantly bothered with making change; and if traveling in foreign countries, will be subject to the dangers of receiving SHORT change. Our Travelers' Cheques or Letters of Credit will make your travel money matters simple and safe. And the cost is very nominal.

SULZER AND GLYNN EACH REFUSE TO BUDGE INCH

Deadlock Results in New York Impeachment Situation as Each Claimant Refuses to Make Move—Both Go to Capitol.

Accused Executive Accompanied by His Bodyguard Goes to State House and Plunges Into Business—No Outbreak Surprise.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Neither drastic nor violent steps will be taken by Lieutenant Governor Martin H. Glynn to force William Sulzer, the impeached Governor of New York, from office—at least not to-day. Owing to the fact that this was a half holiday at the State offices, Mr. Glynn spent but a few minutes at the Capitol, and while both Sulzer and Glynn forces refused to budge an inch, matters were at a deadlock.

Accompanied by his bodyguard, Governor Sulzer walked from the executive mansion to the Capitol, where he plunged into State business, just as though his right to exercise the gubernatorial prerogatives were not contested.

Lieutenant Governor Glynn, who claims the powers of Acting Governor under the Constitution until Mr. Sulzer is brought to trial on September 18, went from the Capitol to the offices of his newspaper and announced he would spend the afternoon at an athletic meet. He denied that, like Napoleon, he would lift the power of ruling New York State on the bayonets of the National Guard.

Lack of Trouble a Surprise.

Absence of an actual outbreak today was a surprise to many who expected to see the executive chamber a battleground for the Sulzer and Tammany forces.

Mr. Sulzer now virtually stands alone, having been deserted by the members of his cabinet, who have allied themselves to the Glynn forces. But Sulzer refuses to abdicate, despite the fact that the ranks of his political enemies have been strengthened during the last 24 hours.

Lieutenant Governor Glynn, who is now signing State documents with this signature, "Martin H. Glynn, Acting Governor, State of New York," announced that, in spite of any obstructions thrown in his way by the Sulzer legal forces, he would continue to administer gubernatorial affairs pending Mr. Sulzer's trial for alleged high crimes and misdemeanors September 18.

Both Sides Fear Trick.

Both sides are taking elaborate precautions to guard against a trick. Throughout the night armed guards stood watch over each State department, while lawyers and legislators involved in the struggle were trailed by private detectives. Mr. Sulzer was in retirement planning a new legal move with his counsel. Messenger boys with Washington and New York city telegrams could not find the Governor, but members of the "inner circle" took charge of the dispatches, saying they would find the Governor.

Leaders of the anti-Sulzer faction made the threat that Mr. Glynn, now having control of the State Military Department, would actually invade the executive chamber.

"He will get a mighty warm reception," declared Sulzer adherents, who are few, but courageous.

Some Fear Martial Law.

Some residents of this city, realizing the intense seriousness of the situation, fear that conditions may become so grave that martial law will have to be declared.

It was assumed that Governor Sulzer to-day would reply to the second note from Lieutenant Governor Glynn, demanding the unconditional surrender of all prerogatives by Mr. Sulzer and the abdication of the Governor. Counsel were with the Governor at the beginning of the official day, and it was reported that the Governor was urged to take a fling at Tammany Hall.

Charlton at Last in Italy's Grasp

Wife Slayer Loses 3-Year Fight

Now on Ocean on Way to Trial

Porter Charlton, young American, who killed beautiful wife and is now on way to face trial in Italy.

Young Prisoner Is Confident He Will Escape Spending Life in Solitary Confinement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Porter Charlton, after three years' fight against extradition from America, is in the clutches of the Italian Government and to-day is on the high seas, bound for Italy and for trial on the charge of killing his beautiful young wife and sinking her body in Lake Como in June, 1910.

In spite of the ordeal that faces him, Charlton left New York as cheerful as a schoolboy. Three years in close confinement had repressed his natural buoyancy, but the prospect of a sea voyage, even with a trial for murder awaiting him at his journey's end, restored it to a considerable degree.

"I'll be back for Christmas!" he cried, waving a good-bye from the liner as it pulled out. All the time he has declared that he will be acquitted, in spite of the fact that he confessed to killing his wife on their honeymoon. Extenuating circumstances, his friends declare, will have their weight on the Italian jury.

Charlton's quarters on the liner are isolated, and he is not permitted to mingle with the other passengers. He travels third class, as the Italian Government does not provide first-class accommodations for prisoners.

Faces Living Death.

Unless the contention of his insanity can be proved, a living death surely will be the fate of Porter Charlton, a hideous confinement that is far worse than death on the gallows.

Extenuating circumstances, it is expected, can not be revealed of sufficient strength to obtain his acquittal, and unless his defense prove insanity, he must go to prison. There is no death sentence in Italy.

And imprisonment in Italy is a dreadful punishment, feared far more than the electric chair, the gallows, or the garrote. It is invested with mental torture of such degree that few who live through it more than a few years are sound of mind.

Charlton is known to have a sensitive, nervous temperament. His behavior toward his wife proves him high-strung. To a person of his psychological make-up incarceration under the Italian system would be certainly destructive of mental balance.

For the first ten years of a life sentence the prisoner may be kept in utter darkness and in the strictest solitude, with nothing to eat and drink but plain bread and water. A few weeks of this treatment generally is sufficient to reduce the most unemotional criminal to a state of nervous collapse.

Insanity Practically Only Hope.

His attorneys hope to present in the Italian courts the great mass of evidence brought to bear in the United States Supreme Court to prove him insane. Justice Lurton, in the opinion which declared that Charlton must go back to Italy to stand trial, admitted that the evidence to substantiate the insanity plea was preponderous.

The opinion of the Supreme Court brought to an end the three years' unsuccessful fight of Charlton and his family against extradition to Italy. It was in June, 1910, that he killed his wife, according to his own confession. After the crime he fled, but was caught at Hoboken, N. J., when the liner landed there. The brother of the slain wife there met him, and caused him to be placed under arrest.

The first night of his imprisonment in New Jersey a confession was produced, bearing his name, and generally supposed to be authentic.

"My wife and I lived happily together, but she had an uncontrollable temper," read the confession. "So had I. On the night of the murder she had the worst outbreak of temper I ever saw.

"I told her to keep quiet or I would make her quiet. Then she had another outbreak. I took up a wooden mallet, with which I had been repairing a table, and hit her on the head and body two or three times. At midnight I put the body in a trunk, dragged it to a small pier near the house, and threw it overboard."

His wife was a beautiful young woman, although eight years older than he, who was only 21. The two were on their honeymoon when the murder occurred.

Mrs. Charlton was the divorced wife of Neville H. Castle, a San Francisco lawyer. Charlton is the

MRS. GUNTER IS CRAZY, SWEARS STEP-DAUGHTER

Trial of Divorce Suit Against Former Alabama Supreme Court Jurist Sensational.

FIGHT OVER YOUNG CHILDREN

Aged Respondent Is Father of Montgomery Mayor and City Court Judge.

MONTGOMERY, Aug. 16.—That Mrs. Kate Gunter is crazy and a subject for an insane asylum, was the testimony offered by Mrs. Donald Simple, who conducts a fashionable society school for girls in New York, in the divorce trial of her father, Judge W. A. Gunter, here yesterday. She said her stepmother, who filed the original bill of complaint in the sensational case, told falsehoods and that it was almost unendurable to live with her. Still, she said, she stuck up for her as long as she was her father's wife, but when Mrs. Gunter filed the bill asking for a separation from her aged husband all love for the mother ceased.

The suit has now been in progress for more than 50 days. Witness after witness has been upon the stand and some of them, especially the two principals, have been grilled for a whole day at a time. Every effort has been made here to suppress publicity of the case.

The suit now in progress is for the possession of the children, five of whom have come from the union of thirteen years.

The original bill and also the testimony offered by Mrs. Gunter is to the effect that the respondent threatened to kill her and then commit suicide. She also said he was cruel to her and that her life was in danger.

Judge Gunter, who is 77 years old, was formerly on the Alabama Supreme Court bench and is prominent in the State. His son, William Gunter, Jr., is Mayor of the city, and another son, Gaston Gunter, is Judge of the criminal division of the City Court. The latter, who is a former Yale football star, was among the witnesses on the stand to-day.

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 16.—E. C. Drew, the Payne oil well promoter charged with using the mails to defraud, was convicted to-day at Gadsden under 41 counts and sentenced by Judge Grubb, of Federal Court, to five years in the Atlanta Federal prison. Drew has been ordered to jail pending filing bond in the sum of $3,000 if he appeals.

HOBSON TALKS; O'NEAL SILENT; CLAYTON TALKS

Governor Urged to Call Special Session of Alabama Legislature at Once.

BANKHEAD IN WASHINGTON

Senatorial Tangle Shows No Signs of Being Straightened Out Except by Congress.

MONTGOMERY, Aug. 16.—Prominent citizens, attorneys and politicians are advising Governor O'Neal to call a special session of the Legislature and place in proper position the United States Senatorial condition.

The appointment of Congressman Henry D. Clayton to the position made vacant by the death of Senator Joseph F. Johnston does not suit those in command, and, therefore, the proper channel will have to be sought.

Among those who have petitioned the Governor to call a special session of the Legislature is Walter Percy, prominent attorney of Birmingham and member of the Legislature. He says that in addition to the Senatorial matter some attention could be given to the elimination of the fee system in Jefferson County, where the Sheriff alone makes $50,000 per annum.

The consensus of opinion here is that the Governor will have to call a special session of the Legislature, in the meantime filling vacancies and then set about regularly toward selecting a Senator.

While it is conceded that Henry D. Clayton would be the strongest candidate and will be reappointed if left to the Legislature, it is not to be overlooked that Congressman Richmond Pearson Hobson, candidate against Senator Johnston, is still before the people and leaving nothing undone in his own behalf.

Knox May Enter Race.

John B. Knox, of Anniston, prominent attorney, is likely to step in.

Captain Hobson is working hard. He is speaking before Sunday schools and Confederate veterans' associations and wherever he gets a chance. To-morrow he will speak before a Sunday school class in Birmingham at the South Side Baptist Church, but will not touch politics.

Legal, Says Bankhead.

Senator John S. Bankhead, who has just returned to Washington from a stay of a few weeks at his home at Jasper, near here, expresses the belief that the appointment of Governor O'Neal, announced last Monday, is legal and will stand. It is expected that he will be heard on the proposition the coming week in Washington.

Until the appointment is legally turned down in the Senate in Washington, no definite action is probable in Alabama. Everything now is on the presumption that the appointment of Congressman Clayton will be turned down.

Governor O'Neal is quiet on the subject of a possible special session of the Legislature so far as can be heard.

The names of Congressmen Oscar Underwood, Thomas Heflin, John W. Abercrombie, and Dr. R. M. Cunningham, of Ensley, are mentioned as probable candidates for the Senatorship in the regular election.

Hobson's Card.

Congressman Hobson says of Clayton's appointment:

"It is a brazen defiance of law, the people and the Constitution—the most humiliating travesty of our political institutions.

"It is a defiance of the law and the rights of the people, willfully made with the knowledge that the appointment is illegal and is so regarded by the United States Senators, not only by the opposition Senators, but by Democratic Senators as well.

"The effect of the appointment will be to postpone indefinitely the settlement of the question. This delay is fully understood by the Alabama politician, and is incurred against the earnest advice of our Democratic leaders.

"In the midst of the crisis of the tariff bill, the interest of the Democratic party, the relief and welfare of the nation, the law of the land, the sacred political rights of the people seem to have counted for naught.

Jockeying Damned.

"The fact is that after all the jockeying and caucusing, the scheme went through precisely as Mr. Bankhead had planned. It was very remarkable how Senator Bankhead hurried to Alabama and had the whole specious article prepared to give out almost immediately.

"You will recall that Senator Bankhead and the lamented Johnston were themselves chosen by popular vote; in fact, the principle was considered of such sacred importance in our progressive State that we even went so far as to provide an election for successors to our great Morgan and Pettus before the deaths of these grand old men.

"How, then, can any true Alabaman stand for the miserable expedient of having their United States Senators appointed by Emmet O'Neal instead of being elected by the people themselves?

"It belongs to the people. It is theirs by law as well as every true consideration of the Democratic rights. They demand it, and they are not going to be fooled or hoodwinked by the hair-splitting quibblings of technical lawyers or professional pot-politicians."

May Yohe to Re-Wed Lord Hope, Is Rumor

American Singer Wins Back Her Former Husband With Favorite Music Hall Song.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Rumors that Lord Francis Hope may re-wed his former wife, May Yohe, are current. A week ago Lord Hope visited the London Opera House, where Miss Yohe is appearing with considerable success. The former Lady Hope was in excellent voice and sang "Honey, Ma Honey" that she often sang to her husband during their life together.

Lord Francis is said to have been touched by the song. Overtures for a reconciliation, it is said, have been made through Lord Francis' brother the Duke of Newcastle, and the Duke's lawyer, Mr. Isitt, husband of Adeline Genee.

LONDON, Aug 16.—Arrangements for ex-King Manuel's wedding to Princess Augustine Hohenzollern on September 4 at Sigmaringen show the ceremony will be gorgeous.

Eighty royal princes and princesses will attend, including the Prince of Wales, representing King George, and four princesses as bridesmaids.

The Kaiser excuses himself from being present on account of the German army maneuvers. He and other monarchs will be represented by princes.

Col. Degrange Ill In Paris Hospital

Prominent New Orleans Man Is Compelled to Undergo Operation Following Sickness Aboard Ship.

Special Cable to The American.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—Colonel Joseph H. Degrange, of New Orleans, is ill in the American Hospital at Neuilly. Mr. Degrange's illness developed first on board a steamer on his way to Europe early in the summer.

On July 22 he was taken to the hospital for an operation for the removal of the carbuncle on the back of his neck. A second operation became necessary on Tuesday of this week. The operations, while painful, were not dangerous, and the attending physicians say that he will be able to be about within a few days.

Mexican Legation Is Assured That There Is No Objection to New Minister

Special Cable to The American.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—The Mexican Legation has heard nothing of any objection on the part of France to the reception of Francisco de la Barra as Mexican Minister to this country. The secretary of the legation said to-day:

"We would not be the first to hear of it if any such objection existed."

The Agence Nationale was the authority for the report, which was printed here yesterday. Senor de la Barra sailed from New York to-day.

Pentecostal Church Plans Big Convention

Eight States To Be Represented at Meeting in Birmingham Next Friday.

BIRMINGHAM, Aug. 16.—Annual convention of the Southern Pentecostal Association, including Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Florida, South and North Carolina, Tennessee and Missouri, will convene in Birmingham, next Friday and continue for ten days.

Dr. N. J. Holmes, of Altomont, S. C., will preside and the Rev. W. Ray Anderson, of Laurens, S. C., will do the principal preaching.

Pentecostal faith is growing rapidly in this section of the country. The meetings are to be held under a big tent in North Birmingham Park.

Clayton to Present Credentials Monday.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Congressman Clayton, of Alabama, appointed Senator by Governor O'Neal of that State, to-day returned to the Capitol and announced that he would put up a spirited fight for admission to the Senate. Clayton was appointed to fill the seat of the late Senator Johnston, of Alabama.

"All authorities support Governor O'Neal's action," asserted Clayton. "Anyhow, it would be a useless expense to call the Alabama Legislature together for I should be appointed in any event."

Clayton will present his credentials on Monday and will be opposed by a majority of the Senators who claim that his appointment is illegal under the new constitutional amendment providing for the direct election of Senators.

ATTORNEYS SEEKING TO PROVE A COMPLETE ALIBI

Believed That Case Will Stand or Fall on Efforts of Prosecution to Prove Its Charge of Immorality Against the Accused.

BY AN OLD POLICE REPORTER.

The third week of the Frank trial came to an end at noon Saturday.

The defense has not yet concluded its case, but confidently expects to finish within the next day or two.

Its last card, and one of its biggest, will be the defendant's statement. This statement is scheduled for the early part of this week.

It will mark the climax of the defense's case, just as Conley's story marked the climax of the State's.

It became more and more evident as the case progressed during the past week that the defense is pitting Frank squarely against Conley—that it is to be Frank's life or Conley's life for little Mary Phagan's, snuffed out cruelly nearly four months ago in the National Pencil Factory.

Frank's statement on the stand, which the law permits him to make, but not under oath, and which may be accepted by the jury, either in whole or in part, in preference to all the sworn testimony, will be matched against the story the negro told so dramatically and with such frightful emphasis soon after the case got under way.

Into the negro's story, moreover, was injected the question of Frank's general character, particularly in one unmentionable direction, and this the defense will undertake to offset completely and finally.

More than a hundred witnesses have been summoned to testify to Frank's good character, and these include men and women from every walk of life, where it could be shown that such witnesses had come in contact with Frank from time to time in such wise as to be competent judges of his general character.

DALTON'S TESTIMONY IMPEACHED.

Already, the one witness (Dalton) so far introduced by the State to corroborate Conley has been successfully impeached by the defense, and it is likely that others introduced to uphold the negro also will be subjected to impeachment proceedings, if the defense suspects that it may successfully inaugurate the same.

The defense seemingly has realized fully the heavy necessity of breaking down Conley's awful story, not only in direct connection with the murder, but in every phase of it that bears upon the character of the defendant.

As a primary proposition, the advantage in the situation thus set up dwells within the defense.

In the first place, Frank goes to the jury with the presumption of innocence in his favor. The burden is not upon him to make out a case in behalf of himself. It is upon the State to make out a case against him.

Moreover, the only right of appeal attaching to persons indicted for felonies is within the defense. Once the State loses, it is lost forever.

The State must allege and prove the guilt of the defendant "beyond a reasonable doubt," and fight right up to that limit.

If there remains a reasonable doubt of Frank's guilt, after the last word has been said to the jury, Frank, under the law, is entitled to it, and if the trial jury fails to award it, a court of review will remedy the legal wrong thus inflicted upon him.

ALL STATE TESTIMONY SWORN.

The State, moreover, must submit every bit of its evidence, to the last shred or patch, under oath.

The defense, on the contrary, may clear itself upon testimony not one word of which is sworn to.

The State's star witness, Conley, also comes into court a confessed accessory after the fact of the murder, a confessed falsifier in numerous conflicting statements as to his knowledge of and connection with the crime, and accompanied by a well established jail record fearfully and wonderfully made up.

His is a much harder story to hold up than Frank's, viewing the two stories generally and in their broader personal aspects.

Even without Conley, to be sure, the State still has a circumstantial case against Frank that might compel considerable attention and respect, but there are few people who seemingly believe that it alone would be sufficiently strong to convict.

It probably is a realization of the State's tremendous task, involved in the holding together of Conley's story, that has caused the defense to train its every gun squarely upon it, for upon Conley's story will the State be forced to stand or fall eventually.

One of the curious things about the Frank case is the way the question of his general character got into the pleadings.

Theoretically, the defense alone may put the defendant's character in issue—it being contemplated by the law that no man shall be required, without his own consent, to answer more than one charge at one and the same time.

And so far as legal strategy and astuteness is concerned, the State ouegenera lthe defense in the matter of getting Frank's character before the jury.

Had Conley, the State's star witness, ben a man, even a negro, of respectability and approximately good previous record, the necessity of attaching to Frank the charge of utter depravity might not have seemed so pressing. But Frank's previous good record seemed so well established, and his standing generally was thought to be so high, that it contrasted rather painfully with the record of the main witness of all others (Conley) set up for the defndant's undoing.

The State doubtless knew that the unspeakable portion of Conley's evidence was primarily inadmissible, but it also knew that the defense would be taking rather a long chance to move its rejection when tendered.

In that event, a sinister and certainly dangerous impression would have been left upon the mind of the jury.

So the State deliberately drew out of Conley the unmentionable charge, which, in addition to the murder charge, undoubtedly made absolutely necessary the injection of Frank's character in issue.

The defense, in not objecting to the admission of the evidence last cited when it was first offered, may have been moved by the idea that it would, in the cross-examination of Conley, so break him down that it still might save itself the necessity of pleading Frank's good character—that it would even be able to make the frightful charge of perversion act as a boomerang on Conley!

Defense Objects too Late.

Seemingly, that idea, if it ever existed, was dissipated as the Conley cross-examination proceeded, however, for eventually the defense DID move to strike out the evidence, but at that time it was too late.

Having walked into the trap set by the State, if it indeed was a trap, the defense could not very well extricate itself save by pleading Frank's complete good character, and thus in a sweeping way dispose of the specific charge lodged against Frank by Conley, in addition to the murder charge.

Once committed to the necessity of establishing Frank's good character, however, the defense went at it in no half-hearted way.

It summoned indiscriminately every employee of the National Pencil Factory, male and female, old and new, and with unanimous voice they testified willingly and thoroughly that the defendant's general character is good.

In addition to these witnesses, business men, former college professors and classmates, and dozens of others fell into line with the same line of evidence.

The State now stands, therefore, where it must close up the gap between its primary allegation, dependent alone upon Conley's word so far, and the absolute proof of his sinister story.

If the State in rebuttal is able to prove conclusively that Frank is the thing Conley has labeled him, the State's case will go to the jury dangerously formidable.

If it fails to substantiate and corroborate Conley, it will go to the jury greatly weakened.

To overcome the fine showing as to Frank's good character made by the defense the State must bring forth witnesses in rebuttal that can not be impeached.

The impression throughout Atlanta is that to fail in the establishment and corroboration of Conley's story by witnesses of integrity and standing possible is one reason why a lot of people are saying that it is impossible. Conley may have manufactured it out of the whole cloth.

If it is a lie, it is a lie too devilishly cunning for a negro of Conley's limited mentality to conjure or carry in his own mind in such remarkable detail, these people hold. If the negro were only less sure of everything, if he had wabbled dangerously under the terrific grilling administered by Luther Z. Rosser, if he had broken down or contradicted himself in any essential detail once he got to the witness stand, it now would be an easier thing for many people, fair-minded enough, too, to believe the negro's tale a mass of lies from start to finish!

And the danger to the defense here is that if Conley's story sticks in the minds of the jury, even in fractional part, it probably just as well stick in its entirety, so far as the hope of acquittal upon this trial is concerned.

In other words, many people are arguing to themselves that the negro, no matter how hard he tried and no matter how generously he was coached, still neevr could have framed up a story like the one he told, unless there was somewhere in it some foundation in fact.

And if there remains the impression of even a little foundation in fact, the defense is damaged beyond repair.

And so it gets back to where it started, and to where it will end—it is Conley pitted against Frank!

The State, with the burden of proof to carry, appears to have considerably more of an uphill fight on its hands than the deefnse has, and yet the very nature of both fights—uncompromising, and neither asking nor giving quarter—makes it something of a toss-up, really, as to which actually, and as a matter of fact, has the harder task to perform.

Undoubtedly, the defense expects to profit much through its insistence that the time element as set up in Conley's story, constitutes a most vital and compelling factor in determining the truth or falsity of the entire story.

Rely on State Witnesses.

It is rather odd, too, that the defense should be relying upon the State's witnesses in this matter quite as much as upon its own. It will seek to use generously the State's witnesses to the State's embarrassment—through the discrediting of Conley's story—in several different directions.

The deefnse is seeking to show how utterly absurd Conley's story is from Frank's point of view, by setting up these incompatible things:

That Mary Phagan (Conley's testimony) reached the pencil factory sufficiently well in advance of Monteen Stover (Conley's testimony) to go up to Frank's office, get her pay, be lured to a room in the rear and killed, notwithstanding the fact that Miss Stover (Conley's and Miss Stover's testimony) reached the factory at 12:05. And this despite the fact that Mary Phagan could not have been in the factory before 12:12, in any event, as shown by Mrs. Coleman (Marv's mother), George Epps, a motorman, and a conductor.

To get around this state of things, set up for the most part by the State's own witnesses, the State already has suggested, by a line of examination probably to be amplified, that the car upon which Mary Phagan came into town on Saturday, April 26, was running AHEAD of scheduled time, and that the litle girl did, as a matter of fact, reach the factory before 12:12, and that the clock in the factory, by which both Miss Stover and Conley testified as to the time, was running SLOW on the day of the crime.

In other words, to meet its own witnesses' statements, the State will move backward the time of the street car and move forward the time of the office clock!

If the State can do that, which looks like a big job, it will eliminate the dangerous time element in one direction, at least; but if it can not do that, it will find itself in a most trying position.

And whether it now can get away from its own established time element is one of the very prettiest problems involved in the entire case thus far!

Again, the defense will insist that the time element cuts in another direction most favorably in Frank's behalf, when it will show by Conley's evidence that the disposing of Mary Phagan's body began at 12:56, but that Frank was seen at the corner of Alabama and Whitehall streets at 1:10, waiting for a car. The latter fact is testified to by Miss Helen Curran positively, and she is unimpeachable.

The defense contends that the body of Mary Phagan could not have been disposed of, and the things done that Conley alleges were done, within the fourteen minutes of time thus allowed, between the beginning of the work, according to Conley, and the time of Frank's presence two blocks and a half away.

Conley would have been obliged to dispose of the body in the remarkable way he says he did, have written the notes, remained in the wardrobe eight minutes or more, all within the fourteen minutes.

According to the State's own witnesses, Conley was in the wardrobe eight minutes and used six minutes framing the notes. This would have consumed the entire fourteen minutes, without the dead girl's body ever having been touched.

It is admitted among lawyers generally that there is no defense so completely effective as a sustained alibi—which means that the crime alleged was committed in the absence and without the knowledge of the alleged principal to it, or, more properly stated, perhaps, that the crime could not have been committed by the defendant because it would have been a physical impossibility for him to have effected it, in the circumstances of it.

The past week, of course, was the defense's day in court, and it is but fair to say that it made good use of it.

Challenge to State.

It has frankly and aggressively urged Frank's character as a vital fact in his favor, and it thereby challenged the State to do its very worst by way of breaking that character down, if it can.

This attitude upon the part of the defense undoubtedly has had a steadying effect upon the public, too, for it seems at least to have suspended judgment pending the State's rebuttal.

In addition to its insistence upon Frank's good character, the defense unquestionably has given the State serious concern in the way it has brought forward the time element, and that in two separate and distinct directions.

If it successfully maintains either one of its time theories, it will have greatly discredited Conley's story. If it successfully maintains both theories, it will have about discredited the Conley story to the point of complete collapse.

As it was out of order to conclude at the end of the second week of the Frank trial, however, that the State had made out a case that could not be broken down, so it now is out of order to conclude that the defense has broken down the State.

The State for one thing does not appear to be particularly alarmed, either by the injection of Frank's character or by the turning of the time element against the Conley story.

The State, it must be remembered, has not yet entered or disclosed its rebuttal, either of the character evidence or the undermining of its own witnesses as to the time elements stated.

State Seems Confident.

It is perfectly confident of its ability to show that Frank's character is not good, despite the opinions of his friends, business associates and acquaintances; and it will insist, indeed, that as in other depraved characters of the sort it claims Frank to be, his business acquaintances, his relatives and his social intimates would be the very last people of all to discover the truth concerning him.

The State, in seeking to prove Frank a dissolute character, may be forced to the summoning of dissolute characters, with whom he is alleged to have been associated in degrading practices, in order to prove its contention.

Thus witnesses brought out by the State to establish Frank's depravity are apt to be easier marks for impeachment proceedings than witnesses of the ordinary sort, and to that extent the breaking down of Frank's character is pregnant with difficulty.

Nevertheless, the State proposes to establish the fact of Frank's degeneracy by witnesses of sufficient credibility, particularly in the nature of the charge sought to be proved, to get by at least in sufficient numbers to overwhelm the defendant.

If the State can put up even one or two witnesses that can weather the gale of the defense's rights of impeachment, it will have put Frank in a most unenviable position before the jury. If, therefore, it puts up 50 witnesses, and 48 of them get knocked out, there still will remain the two that stood the test!

Here, then, is another pretty problem to be thrashed out: Can the State, in sustaining a charge of degeneracy against Frank, bring forth witnesses to prove it absolutely, and at the same time not bring forth witnesses so much a party to Frank's offense that they will run serious risks in testifying themselves?

A witness who is willing to swear that he saw Frank do thus and so, or was a party to Frank's doing thus and so, if the thus and so is particularly reprehensible, is apt to get in pretty thin ice himself, if he isn't very careful!

The State says it can and will rebut Frank's good character. If it does, Frank is in unutterably bad shape; but if it doesn't, Frank's cause must be helped tremendously.

Girl on Stand Shouts She Would Die for Leo Frank

Employee of Pencil Factory Furnishes Dramatic Incident of Day—Dressing Room Evidence Is Brought Out.

More than one hundred witnesses had been called to testify in defense of Leo M. Frank's character when the third week of the factory superintendent's trial concluded shortly after 1 o'clock Saturday.

Character witnesses occupied most of the time during the four hours of Saturday's session. They displayed a remarkable loyalty to their employer, who is being tried on the charge of being the murderer of little Mary Phagan. Only one of the number, Miss Irene Jackson, gave testimoney in any way prejudicial to the case of Frank.

The character testimony, the tale of the finding of Mary Phagan's envelope and other so-called clews on the first floor of the factory by W. D. McWorth, Pinkerton operative, and the return of Mrs. Rae Frank, mother of the defendant, formed the important features of the day.

Girl Furnishes Incident.

A spectacular incident, which would have been even more amusing than it proved had it not been for the evident sincerity and profound earnestness of the witness, came in the testimony of Miss Sarah Barnes, one of the pencil factory employees.

"I'd die for Mr. Frank if they'd let me!" she exclaimed almost the instant she had composed herself in the witness chair. Attorney Arnold had only time to ask her the formal question: "Do you know Leo M. Frank, the defendant in this case?" before she launched into a eulogistic description of the young factory superintendent that left her breathless at the end of five minutes.

The attorney sought to interject another of the formal questions prescribed by law, but by the time she had caught her breath and was engaged in telling her willingness to lay down her life, if need be, to prove the guiltlessness of Frank.

Attorney Arnold could not stop her. The court could not dam the flood of words. She had a mind to speak and she was determined to speak without check and without interruption.

"I know Frank couldn't have committed such a terrible deed," she cried, accompanying her declaration with an emphatic brandishing of her folded fan. "I have known him ever since I have been in the pencil factory. He has always been kind to all of the employees and to the girls in particular. He never has done any of these things that have been told about him. He has always been a gentleman.

Willing to Die for Him.

"I've had to fight for him, almost, a number of times since these awful charges have been made against him. I'm willing to fight for him again. I am willing to die in his place."

At this point she turned toward the jury and said:

"You can give me any sort of a death you want. I know he is an innocent man. I just wish that I could make everyone believe in his innocence."

Attorney Arnold succeeded in the brief space of one of the moments when she paused for a fresh start to ask the remainder of the questions he desired, and then gave her to Solicitor Dorsey.

Dorsey met with the same trouble. He tried to get her to say with whom she had talked about the testimony to which she was to swear. Disregarding his question as though it never had been asked, she continued in her encomiums of Frank until the courtroom spectators were convulsed with laughter and the Solicitor filed with disgust at his inability to get the sort of answer he wanted from the girl.

Miss Irene Jackson, daughter of County Policeman A. W. Jackson, was called by the defense as a character witness, but gave testimony on her cross-examination in regard to conduct by Franak which the State has construed as highly improper.

Looked in Dressing Room.

Miss Jackson said that so far as she knew the character of Frank was good and that she never had known him to attempt any liberties with the factory girls. To the Solicitor she admitted, however, that she three times had been in the girls' dressing room when Frank had pushed open the door and looked in.

Once Emmeline Mayfield had been in the room with her, she said; once Mamie Kitchen and once her own sister. Her sister had threatentod to quit on this last occasion, she testified, but had been persuaded against it.

She said that Frank merely pushed the door open, looked in, one one occasion smiled toward Miss Kitchen, and then turned around and walked away. She testified that the girls never were any further in a condition of undress than lacking their overskirt.

Solicitor Dorsey inquired of her in regard to a reported remark of N. V. Darley, general manager, that "if the girls stay with us through this, they will not lose by it." She said she had overheard Darley say this.

Many Employees Called.

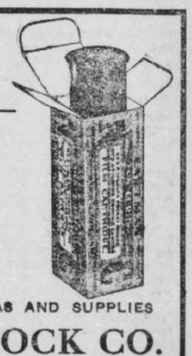

The following pencil company employees were called as character witnesses during the day:

Misses Mollie Blair, Ethel Stewart, Sarah Barnes, Corinthia Hall, Ina Hayes, Eula May Flowers, Elma Hayes, Minnie Foster, Obie Dickerson, Gussie Wallace, Annie Osman, Bessie Thrailkill, Allie Denham, Rebecca Carson, Maude Wright, Irene Jackson, and Mesdames Emma Freeman and Ella Thomas.

LEO FRANK IS READY TO REVEAL HIS STORY

Accused Superintendent to Appeal to Reason of the Men Who Will Decide His Fate

COUNSEL FOR DEFENSE DECLARE HE ALONE HAS PREPARED STATEMENT

Defendant Will in No Way Try to Stir Emotion of Jurors, But Will Simply Outline His Contention as to Tragedy.

Leo M. Frank's statement to the jury, delayed from last week by the swarm of character witnesses brought in at the last moment, is the main factor of interest remaining in the trial of the National Pencil Factory superintendent before the rebuttal is taken up by the two attorneys representing the State.

What this statement will be the defendant's lawyers themselves profess not to know. They have had little or no part in framing it, they say. All they know is that he proposes to make one, and that he has been preparing it piecemeal as the trial has progressed and one point after another has arisen.

Whether it will be a formal statement read verbatim, no one knows except the prisoner and possibly his immediate relatives.

If the lawyers know they are keeping it darkly a secret. They believe, they have ventured to say, that it will be more or less informal and that it will be in the nature of an address to the jury and the court based upon the notes that Frank has made from time to time during the trial.

Appeal To Reason.

That there will be little appeal to the emotions of the jurors is practically a foregone conclusion. It is the purpose of Frank, it is understood, to appeal directly to the reason and common sense of the twelve men—to outline to them as he has outlined to his own attorneys the weak points or improbabilities in the negro Conley's story.

As well as this, it is his intention to picture to them his every movement during the entire day and to represent the physical impossibility of his having committed the crime and disposed of the body as Conley describes, if his alibi as set up by a score of witnesses is accepted by the jury.

The statement will embrace much to which he testified at the Coroner's inquest. But there will be much more. He will go into some things on which his own lawyers have not touched. The statement practically is certain to form a most remarkable and most important portion of the record of the trial's proceedings.

What promised to provide a sensation during the presentation of the defendant's case may collapse into nothing. This is W. H. Mincey and his startling declaration that he saw Jim Conley on the afternoon of the murder, and that Jim bragged to him that he had killed a girl that afternoon and didn't want to kill anyone else.

Appear to Doubt Mincey.

The attorneys for the defense have not been willing to say whether or not they would call Mincey. They have appeared to entertain some doubts of Mincey's credibility. Reuben Arnold said Saturday that he was not prepared to say that he would or would not call Mincey.

If Mincey's story could be corroborated it would furnish a most effective weapon in winning the battle for Frank's life. Granting its truthfulness, it is the most definite and direct evidence of the entire case, embracing as it does a virtual confession of murder on the part of the negro.

Mincey said he met Conley at Electric avenue and Carter street Saturday afternoon, April 26. Conley was partially intoxicated and becoming angered at Mincey's insistence that he take out an insurance policy threatened the agent and boasted of killing a girl shortly before, according to the affidavit made by Mincey.

If Mincey goes on the stand his testimony will become the target for some of the State's strongest rebuttal. That and the character of Frank will divide the attention of the Solicitor. He will not bother about much else. He is content to let Conley's story, as bolstered and strengthened by the testimony of detectives and other witnesses, stand as a sufficient rebuttal for practically all of the evidence that the defense has brought out in favor of Frank. The Solicitor believes that when the arguments go before the jury the members will be willing to accept the story of the negro as against that of Frank.

After Frank's Character.

Dorsey, however, has been unceasing in his efforts to wreck Frank's character. He has branded him as a degenerate and a criminal of the worst type. The introduction of character witnesses by the defense has given him a new opening, and he proposes to take every advantage of it. His attitude is shown in a colloquy between himself and Judge Roan.

"How far do you intend to go in that line of testimony?" inquired the judge.

"Just exactly as far as your honor will let me," Dorsey replied.

Judge Roan remonstrated that the Solicitor General should not seek to introduce evidence that he knew was illegal. The Solicitor smiled.

Dorsey has about twenty witnesses he will use in an effort to destroy all of the favorable impression created by the 100 character witnesses who have testified for Frank so far in the trial. From some of them he has promised to produce testimony of the most sensational sort.

One young girl, Dewey Hewell, not yet out of her teens, was brought all the way from Cincinnati last Friday for the express purpose of testifying against the young factory superintendent.

American Girl Tells Of 'Walloping' Prince

"I Kicked Radziwill Out of His Auto for Kissing My Hand too Rapturously," She Says.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Miss Elizabeth Frewen, of Philadelphia, arrived from London to-day on the Oceanic with a Pekinese named Bo Sing, a gift from Prince Albert Radziwill, who married Miss Dorothy Deacon, a Boston society girl, some years ago.

"Just because I tell you the Prince gave me Bo Sing," said Miss Frewen, "don't think he is a friend of mine. Just before I left London I walloped him on the jaw and kicked him out of his automobile for kissing my hand too rapturously."

Miss Frewen is six feet tall. She was met at the pier by Joseph Daley, of Boston, to whom she is to be married next month.

Authorities Take Steps to Have Marriage of Syrian Child to Turk Annulled.

DETROIT, MICH., Aug. 16.—The marriage license department of the County Clerk's office has taken steps to nullify an auction sale of Marie Aman, a Syrian girl, only 15 years old. Her father made the sale. There were half a dozen bidders.

The girl had been in the country only seven weeks, and was brought here by her father expressly to be sold. A Turk, Mehammed Haj Seleem, was the successful bidder.

The bargain was sealed immediately by the reading of an Oriental marriage service. The girl had a sweetheart who could not bid high enough to win her.

International Tennis Cup, Just Won by America Is Held Up for Duty.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The Davis cup, international tennis trophy, recently won in England by the American team, was seized by customs officials when it reached here to-day on the liner Mauretania, but Collector of the Port Mitchell intimated tonight that the prize would probably be released within a short time.

The basis of the seizure was the officials claim that although the trophy was originally American property, it had been abroad so long that the payment of duty might be necessary.

Archbishop Says He Wouldn't Dare Say Suffrage Agitation Is Against Church Rules.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 16.—"I do not believe the Creator intended the position of woman in the world should be the same as that of man," said Archbishop Sebastian G. Messmer, of this city, in an address to the Catholic Press Association to-day.

"But I would not dare make the positive statement that agitation for woman suffrage is against the rules of the church. The church has not taken any definite stand and until it does each individual has a right to think, talk and act as he sees fit."

Weds Model; Loses Home; Goes to Work

'I Should Worry,' Remarks Rich Retired Merchant's Son When Disowned.

WORCESTER, MASS., Aug. 16.—Because William A. Lyttle, Jr., son of Colonel W. A. Lyttle, a wealthy retired merchant and erstwhile member of the Governor's Council, eloped with Miss Thyra Linea Johnson, a 19-year-old artist's model of this city, to Putnam, Conn., he has been disowned by his father.

Colonel Lyttle has ordered his son to give the girl up. Disregarding that mandate, young Lyttle brought matters to a crisis by quietly slipping out of town a few days ago with his sweetheart and having the matrimonial knot tied.

"I should worry," said young Lyttle when he was told of his father's decision, and then he promptly started with his bride to Detroit, where he will learn the automobile business.

HOMESTEADER IS BLOWN FROM HIS BED BY STORM

PIERRE, S. DAK., Aug. 16.—Otto Everhardt, a young bachelor homesteader, arrived at the home of a neighbor dressed only in a two-foot piece of blanket, which he said was all that remained of his household property as a result of the storm which swept this section. Everhardt said that the tornado struck his shack while he was in bed, carried away the shanty and bed and left him uninjured. Other homesteaders suffered heavy losses, reports indicate.

Grape Juice vs. Milk

Secretary Bryan Does Not Have Undivided Support of Cabinet in Choice of Beverage.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Grape juice as a Cabinet beverage has gone into eclipse, in spite of the prominence given to it by Ciceronian eloquence as being the only nectar of the gods.

A canvass of the preferences of other members of the Cabinet beside that of Mr. Bryan, whose favorite beverage is well known, disclosed the fact that plain old milk, sweet and buttermilk, is ahead in the race. President Wilson prefers orange juice to that of the luscious grape.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels is one of the sweet milk champions and has a fellow champion in Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo leans toward buttermilk.

Attorney General McReynolds and Secretary of War Garrison are said to be ardent milk advocates.

Secretary of Agriculture David Houston is one of the two members that find enjoyment in pure unfermented grape juice.

Secretary of the Interior Lane prefers hot tea, while Secretary of Commerce Redfield likes his tea cold.

Charges Sister Stole Her Husband's Love

California Woman Names Beautiful Relative In Her Plea for a Divorce.

SUSANVILLE, CAL., Aug. 16.—Charging that her younger and prettier sister had stolen her husband's love, Mrs. Celia Rundquist Schaefer asked Judge Monroe for a divorce from Marin Schaefer, a fruit grower and rancher. Miss Rose Rundquist, sister of the plaintiff, was named as co-respondent.

Mrs. Schaefer testified that her sister admitted that her husband was a "grand man," and that he showered attentions upon the sister and admitted making love to her. The plaintiff also claimed that she had to support both for two years.

Judge Monroe held that there was insufficient corroborating evidence and instructed the applicant for divorce to get more witnesses.

AUTO AS MATADOR SAVES FARMER FROM MAD BULL

ELGIN, ILL., Aug. 16.—Matadors may be succeeded by automobiles as bullfighters. This was proven when Peter Green, a farmer, 60 years old, of Huntley, was being gored by a bull in one of his pastures. His screams attracted an automobile party of three men, who were in the road. They witnessed the attack for a moment, then the driver of the big touring car made a dash into the pasture and after the bull.

The horn was tooted and tooted, and the bull finally was driven away from the helpless farmer. Three of Green's ribs were broken, but he will recover.

Confusion in Study Of Grammar Dispelled

Committee's Report on Standardizing Nomenclature Makes Good Impression.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 16.—Standardization of grammatical nomenclature, which will do away with the confusion in the study of English, as well as other languages, in American schools, has been effected by a committee of fifteen, of which Professor Hills, of Colorado College, was a member.

The committee made a report to the National Education Association in convention at Salt Lake City and its adoption without amendment virtually insures the following of the committee's recommendations in all schools and colleges.

According to Professor Hills, it was found that in the sentence "John is good," the word "good" was called by nine different names in 25 grammars; the word "John" in "This is John," was called by nineteen terms, and in "We made John president," the word "president" was given eighteen different names in the textbooks examined.

GIRLS BARE SECRETS OF FLIGHT WITH DIGGS AND CAMINETTI

Blushing and With Downcast Eyes They Tell Jury Pitiful Story of Their Downfall

FEAR OF EXPOSURE OF THEIR RELATIONS WITH MEN LED TO ELOPEMENT

Marsha Warrington Declares Both She and Lola Norris Had Promises of Marriage When They Embarked on Trip---Firm Under Cross-Fire.

MARSHA WARRINGTON and Maury T. Diggs, whom she accuses on a white slavery charge, as they appeared in court. Below is Lola Norris, the other girl witness in noted case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—The case of Maury I. Diggs, formerly State Architect of California, charged before the United States Court under the Mann white slavery act because he took pretty, dainty Marsha Warrington, of Sacramento, to Reno, Nev., leaving behind a beautiful wife and a little daughter, has passed the stage of revelation and disclosure and now has come to the technicalities of defense.

It will be recalled that on March 10 last the tea tables of the West were rattled by the tale that Diggs had run away with Miss Warrington, daughter of a general agent of the Santa Fe, and that F. Drew Caminetti, son of the Commissioner General of Immigration of the United States, had fled from his wife's children at the same time, taking with him Miss Lola Norris, the prettiest girl in the State Library, daughter of one of the oldest and most respected families in the Capital of the State.

Caught in a bungalow at Reno, the United States authorities took over the prosecution.

Becomes National Incident.

Then came the effort at Washington to postpone and suppress that prosecution, with the explosion and resignation of United State District Attorney John L. McNab, the forcing of Cabinet consideration and the administrative fake of sustaining Attorney General McReynolds in theory and rebuking him in fact and procedure. An escapade of love and champagne had been dignified into an event of national importance.

After a struggle that exhausted the entire panel and required a special venire, a jury was sworn, and on Tuesday of this week came the long-expected sacrifice—the appearance of Miss Marsha Warrington before her shearers.

She appeared, a pretty, plump, frightened little thing, 20 years of age, who kept her eyes in her lap and slowly and painfully told, detail on detail, of her meeting with Diggs of the making up of a joy-hunting party of four with Miss Norris and Caminetti; of her yielding to her lover's importunities in his office; of trips that extended near and far, joy riding to destruction.

Then she told of how Diggs and Caminetti had, playing upon their fears of arrest and exposure, induced and coerced her and Miss Norris to fly with them to Nevada. There was no relation, however intimate, no situation, however delicate, that the pretty miss was not forced to disclose.

Terrified Into Trips.

Next came Miss Norris, tall, willowy and prepossessing, and she, too, clearly, distinctly, compellingly, told how she had loved not wisely and how she and Miss Warrington had been cajoled, persuaded and terrified into accompanying Diggs and Caminetti to Reno, where her own downfall was completed.

There has been something of corroboration of the love tale and the completion of a hard case under the letter of the Mann law, which punishes those who take women from one State to another for the purpose of making them mistresses and concubines.

And now the defense has stated its case. It does not intend to deny the stories of the two girls, but will rest its hopes on the theory that there was "no persuasion" to leave California, or "intent" to force the young women into concubinage in Nevada; but that all fled Sacramento in the same fear of exposure of their liaison and arrest and disgrace following the exposure.

Both Miss Warrington and Miss Norris had to submit to the most searching questions during their appearance on the witness stand. The two girls occupied the stand from Tuesday to Friday. The transcript of their testimony virtually tells the complete story of the escapade that led to the indictment of Diggs and Caminetti and made the flight to Reno eventually result in a crisis in the Cabinet of President Wilson. On it the Government proposes to convict the two defendants.

Love for Wife Forgotten.

"How often during the two weeks prior to your departure to Reno did Mr. Diggs discuss with you his relations with his wife?" was one of the first questions asked Miss Warrington by Special Prosecutor Roche.

"Several times," replied Miss Warrington, giving the answer in such low voice that Judge VanFleet had to tell her to speak up louder.

Q. Did he say anything concerning himself and yourself in the future?—A. Yes.

Q. How often did he refer to his regard for you?—A. He spoke of it very often and said that he cared more for me than he did for his wife.

Q. Did you believe what he said?—A. I did.

Q. Did Diggs demonstrate his affection—I mean did he ever kiss you?—A. Yes, he did.

Q. Did he discuss marriage with you?—A. He did.

Q. What did he say about marriage?—A. He said he would divorce his wife and marry me.

Q. How often did he discuss marriage with you?—A. I don't know.

Q. More than once?—A. Yes.

Best to Leave City.

Q. Now, tell the jury what the defendant said that resulted in your deciding to leave Sacramento.—A. Well, he said his father was coming up from Berkeley to prosecute us; that there was talk about us all over town; that it was best for all of us to leave the city, and that it was the advice of his attorney. He said he had paid an attorney large sums for his advice on the situation.

Talks of Reform School.

Q. Now go on and state what you said and what the others said, starting with the first discussion.—A. Well, Mr. Diggs said we would be sent to the reform school; that there was going to be something published in the papers; that we would be tried in the juvenile court and there was a warrant out for our arrest, and if we did not go we would be put through the third degree.

Q. By whom?—A. He didn't say. The policeman, I suppose.

Q. What did Caminetti say?—A. He didn't say much. He just agreed.

Q. What did you and Lola Norris say?—A. We said we couldn't go.

Q. What part of the time of your meetings was taken up with these discussions?—A. Most all of the time.

Q. Did you agree to leave for Reno before Saturday, March 9?—A. No.

Q. Did Miss Norris?—A. No.

Q. Did you make any statement as to the effect of your leaving on your father or mother?—A. I said I couldn't go and leave my father; it would simply kill him. He said it would all come out in the papers anyway, and I might as well go.

Would Kill Her Mother.

Q. What did Miss Norris say about her mother?—A. She said it would kill her if she left.

Q. Did the men say anything about that?—A. Diggs said her mother would get over it.

Q. How soon did they say you should get away?—A. Right away.

Q. Did they say that each time you discussed going?—A. Yes; they said we had to go immediately every time.

Q. What time did you meet Diggs and Caminetti at the Saddle Rock restaurant the evening you left for Reno?—A. About 8:30 o'clock.

Q. Did Diggs say anything about marrying you there?—A. He said he would get a divorce from his wife and marry me.

Q. Did he say anything about any action his wife might take?—A. Regarding a divorce, do you mean? He didn't say she would get a divorce.

Q. Did Diggs say what Caminetti would do?—A. He said Mr. Caminetti was going to get a divorce from his wife and marry Miss Norris.

Q. Who did the talking?—A. Mr. Diggs. He said we might go to Salt Lake City, Reno or Los Angeles. He finally decided Reno.

Q. Was anything said about what would happen if you didn't go?—A. He said we had to go; that we couldn't back out now.

Q. Did you protest?—A. We said we would stay there and take our chances, and he repeated it was too late to back out then.

Q. What was said about tickets?—A. First we talked about buying them ourselves. Mr. Caminetti said it would be better to have the girls buy them. Finally Diggs said he would get them.

Q. Was any more money given to anybody by one of the four?—A. Mr. Caminetti gave Miss Norris some money.

Q. How much?—A. I don't know.

Girl Kept Money.

Q. To buy tickets with? What did he say when he gave her the money?—A. He told her to keep it.

Q. How long after Caminetti left did you stay in the restaurant?—A. About an hour.

Q. What did you talk about?—A. About Mr. Caminetti and whether he would get the money, and our destination.

Q. How were the berths occupied?—A. Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti had the upper and Mr. Diggs and myself had the lower berth.

Q. What baggage did the party have?—A. Mr. Diggs had a suitcase and I had a grip.

Q. Was the baggage checked?—A. No.

Q. Did you see the tickets?—A. I saw Mr. Diggs give them to the conductor.

Q. Where did you go from the restaurant?—A. The depot.

Q. Did you wait in the depot for Caminetti?—A. No; he was to return to the restaurant. There was some talk about going on an earlier train. We waited in a little street car waiting room near the depot. Miss Norris stayed in there when the train came in. I walked out with Mr. Diggs and told him to go and I would stay there. He said, "No," that he thought too much of me to have me stay there. The train finally left.

Caminetti Gets Money.

Q. Then Mr. Diggs went to the waiting room and telephoned?—A. Yes, to Mr. Caminetti, I think.

Q. Then what did you do?—A. We returned to the Saddle Rock and waited half an hour for Mr. Caminetti. When he came, he said he had the money and would go on the next train.

Q. Then you did what?—A. We went to the depot.

Q. What was said about tickets?—A. Mr. Diggs said to wait while he got the tickets.

Q. Whom did you wait with?—A. With Lola Norris and Mr. Caminetti.

Q. Then what?—A. When the train came, we got on.

Q. What kind of a car did you get in?—A. A Pullman sleeper.

Q. What part did you go into first?—A. We stood in the car while Mr. Diggs got a drawing room.

Q. Who paid for the drawing room?—A. Mr. Diggs.

Q. Who ordered the porter to make up the berths?—A. Mr. Diggs.

Q. Did the four of you enter the room together?—A. Yes.

Q. How many beds were there in the drawing room?—A. Two berths and the little side bed.

Q. Did you go to bed?—A. Yes.

Q. Right away?—A. Yes.

Tried to Rent House.

Q. Miss Warrington, you recall do you, going to the Riverside Hotel on the 10th day of March, 1913?—A. I do.

Q. Was that after or before the four of you had your lunch at the cafe?—A. After.

Q. Upon leaving the cafe in Reno, just state to what place the two men went, that is, Mr. Caminetti and Mr. Diggs?—A. They said we could go to the hotel and wait for them and they would try to rent a house.

Q. During the time that you were in Reno with Mr. Diggs and Mr. Caminetti and Miss Norris, were any further statements made by Mr. Diggs as to what he intended to do so far as you were concerned?—A. I don't understand.

Q. Well, I mean so far as marriage was concerned?—A. Yes.

Q. What, if anything, did he say?—A. He said he would get a divorce from his wife and marry me.

Q. And what, if anything, did Mr. Caminetti say in your presence to Miss Norris regarding that subject?—A. He said the same thing.

Q. What room in that bungalow was occupied by you?—A. The front room.

Q. Who else occupied that room with you?—A. Mr. Diggs.

Q. Who occupied the rear room, that is, the north bedroom?—A. Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti.

Miss Warrington was subjected to a gruelling cross-examination by Nat Coghlan, counsel for Diggs and Caminetti.

Replying to his questions, Miss Warrington explained she was working for her father, general agent of the Santa Fe Railroad at Sacramento, as a stenographer at the time she went to Reno.

"Under what circumstances did you meet Mr. Diggs?" she was asked.

"He was introduced to me by a friend of mine, Mr. Monte Austin," was the girl's reply.

Q. Were you not introduced to Mr. Diggs as Miss Williamson?—A. I could not say?

Q. Did Mr. Austin give you the name of Mr. Diggs?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you at that time know who Mr. Diggs was?—A. I did not.

Q. You did not know whether he was a married or a single man?—A. Mr. Austin told me that he was not living with his wife at that time.

Pair Met Frequently.

Q. When was it that you met Mr. Diggs the next time?—A. The last of October.

Q. Did you meet him frequently after the second time?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember visiting Mr. Diggs and Mr. Caminetti in the city of San Francisco and going to the Grand Hotel during the month of February, 1913?—A. Yes.

Q. And did Mr. Caminetti and Miss Norris stop at the Grand Hotel, the same place, in San Francisco, upon that occasion?—A. Yes.

Q. And the same room was occupied by you and Mr. Diggs upon that night, was it not?—A. Yes.

Q. And Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti, to your knowledge occupied another room alone in that hotel, did they not?—A. Yes.

Stopped at San Jose.

Q. Upon the second day of February, 1913?—A. Yes.

Q. And did Mr. Caminetti and Miss Norris stop at the Grand Hotel, the same place, in San Francisco, upon that occasion?—A. Yes.

Q. And the same room was occupied by you and Mr. Diggs upon that night, was it not?—A. Yes.

Q. And Miss Norris and Mr. Caminetti, to your knowledge occupied another room alone in that hotel, did they not?—A. Yes.

Stopped at San Jose.

Q. Upon the second day of February, 1913?—A. Yes.

Q. You stopped, did you not, at the New Montgomery Hotel, at San Jose?—A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember, Miss Warrington, going to Stockton upon a certain Sunday in January, 1913, with Mr. Diggs?—A. Yes.

Q. Didn't you go to the Old Heidelberg there and hire a cottage for the afternoon?—A. I don't remember.

M. Coghlan—I will ask you if you do not remember going to Jackson with Mr. Diggs and Miss Norris in the auto of Mr. Diggs upon election night for the purpose of getting Mr. Caminetti—that is to say, election night in November, 1912?—A. Yes, I remember.

Q. Where did you stop at Jackson that night?—A. We didn't stay there. We came right back.

Q. During that trip did you and the other three members of that party drink any intoxicating liquors?—A. Yes, a little.

Q. Is it not a matter of fact that you arrived home on that night about 3 o'clock—I mean the next morning, on the morning of November 4, I believe it was or, at any rate, the morning after election—and that you had been drinking considerably upon the trip?—A. I do not remember what time we returned home; I do not think it was so late as that.

Wanted to Leave Town.

Q. Is it not a matter of fact that you wanted to leave Sacramento by reason of the fact of your condition?—A. No.

Q. And you were frightened at that time, were you?—A. Yes.

Q. Afraid that you might be arrested? Is that correct?—A. That is what Mr. Diggs said, that we were to be arrested the next day.

Q. I am asking you now if you were afraid or were not afraid you would be arrested.—A. Certainly.

Miss Lola Norris made an even better witness for the Government than Miss Warrington, although much of her testimony was simply in corroboration of the testimony of her chum.

"How old are you?" she was asked by Prosecutor Roche upon taking the stand.

"I was 20 the 3d of last August," she replied.

Q. Do you know Maury I. Diggs?—A. Yes.

Q. From when does your acquaintance with him date?—A. Since about the latter part of October, 1912.

Q. At that time where were you employed?—A. In the State Library, Sacramento.

Q. You are acquainted with Drew Caminetti?—A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been acquainted with him?—A. A little over a year.

Knew He Was Married.

Q. Did you know he was a married man?—A. I did.

Q. And did you know Mr. Diggs was a married man?—A. Yes.

Q. Now, Miss Norris, you remember the trip you took to Reno with Mr. Caminetti and Miss Warrington and Mr. Diggs. How many times were you in the habit of meeting together before that time?—A. Three or four times each week.

Q. Did Diggs say anything about his relations with his wife during these meetings?—A. Yes; he said he was not happy with his wife.

Q. How often did he say this?—A. A number of times.

Q. And did Mr. Caminetti say anything about his relations with his wife?—A. Yes.

Q. What did he say?—A. He told me he was not living happily with her.

Q. Did Diggs ever tell you that his relations with his wife were about to be served? What, if anything, did he say upon this subject?—A. Well, I remember on one occasion that I received a telephone message saying that he and Mrs. Diggs had agreed to separate and that she was to apply for a divorce in a few days.

Promised to Marry Her.

Q. Did Mr. Caminetti say anything about his wife and what his plans were respecting her after he went away?—A He said that he would get a divorce from her and marry me.

A. He said that he would get a divorce from her and marry me.

Mr. Roche:

Q. Go on and state what occurred in the drawing room after you entered it?—A. There were two berths on one side, an upper and a lower, and a couch on the other side. I lay down on the couch for a while.

Q. What became of Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington?—A. They went into a lower berth?

Q. What became of Mr. Caminetti?—A. He entered the upper berth.

Q. You were still lying on the couch?—A. Yes.

Q. How long did you remain there?—A. About half an hour.

Q. Then what did you do?—A. I got into the upper berth.

Q. At whose request?—A. Mr. Caminetti's.

Reached Reno in Morning.

Q. Do you recall what time it was when you reached Reno?—A. It might have been 8 or 9 o'clock the next morning.

Q. Now coming back to the trip to Reno, did you shed any tears on the train?—A. Yes, because I was very unhappy.

Q. How were the rooms occupied at the bungalow you finally rented at Reno?—A. Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington occupied the front rooms and Mr. Caminetti and I the back room.

Q. At this time had Mr. Caminetti made any declarations of his intention to marry you?—A. Yes; he promised that he would marry me.

Q. When the officer finally arrived, with Mr. Martin Beasley, what did you and Miss Warrington do?—A. We cried, but he told us not to worry—that everything would be all right when we returned to our homes and parents.

Q. Was any hilarity indulged in by either Miss Warrington or yourself on this occasion?—A. No. We couldn't laugh, because we were both very unhappy.

Q. Now, Miss Norris, prior to this trip to Reno, had you ever been intimate with any man besides Mr. Caminetti?—A. I had not, and Mr. Caminetti knew it.

—A. I had not, and Mr. Caminetti knew it.

Q. And when you entered into these relations with Mr. Caminetti, you believed that he would marry you?—A. Yes, sir.

Miss Norris was cross-examined by Attorney Robert Devlin, of the defense, former United States District Attorney here.

"Now, Miss Norris, on the trip you took to San Francisco and San Jose," was one of Attorney Devlin's questions, "did not Mr. Caminetti at first object to going, saying his wife was ill in the hospital, and didn't Miss Warrington say, 'You're a piker. We girls have framed this up and you must go along'?"

"I don't remember any such thing," Miss Norris answered.

Q. Did you have anything to drink on this trip?—A. I think I had some lemonade.

Q. Don't you remember that there was considerable drinking done in the party, and that you girls took part in some auto racing with another machine containing theatrical people, members of David Warfield's company?—A. No, sir.

Q. Do you remember that when you finally returned to the Grand Hotel it was very late—about 4 o'clock in the morning?—A. No, sir. I had no idea what time it was.

Q. You said you rapped on Miss Warrington's door after you had reached the hotel and that you tried to enter her room. Did she hear you knocking?

Objection interposed by Mr. Roche.

Q. Did you stay in the room all night with Mr. Caminetti after you left the Grand Hotel and went to San Jose—at the hotel in San Jose?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. At that time did you rap on Miss Warrington's door?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after the trip to Jackson did you make another trip to Stockton—you four?—A. Yes, sir.

Registered as His Wife.

Q. Do you remember on this occasion that Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington retired to a room and were gone for two hours, and that you and Mr. Caminetti retired to another room?—A. I don't remember.

Q. Upon your arrival in Reno, Mr. Caminetti registered at the Riverside Hotel as Mr. Ross and you as Mrs. Ross?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Mr. Diggs as Mr. Enright and Miss Warrington as Mrs. Enright?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, after leaving the hotel and going to the cottage that you occupied, do you remember Mr. Diggs and Miss Warrington going downtown and buying you a night gown?—A. Yes; they returned with one, but I don't know who bought it.

Q. Do you remember after the Reno incident that Miss Warrington heard that Mr. Diggs and his wife were reconciled, and that she remarked: "If I can't get him, he'll go to the penitentiary?"—A. She never said that to me.

Q. Do you remember on one occasion entering the private office of Mr. Diggs in Sacramento when he was alone with Miss Warrington? Do you remember on this occasion Miss Warrington remarked, "What do you think this is—a private show, and why don't you buy tickets?"—A. No, sir.

ENTERS RACE FOR COUNCIL FIFTH WARD

JESSE B. LEE

Well Known Business Man Who Announces His Candidacy for Council.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 16, 1913.

To the Voters of the Fifth Ward:

I hereby respectfully announce myself a candidate for Councilman to succeed Hon. J. J. Greer, whose term expires with this year, subject to the action of the city primary.

I was born in the Fifth Ward and have lived in its boundaries all my life. I am reasonably well informed about city affairs and feel that I am in position to render you efficient and intelligent service.

I am the candidate of no clique or faction, and shall always vote for and advocate those measures in Council which, in my opinion, are for the best interests of the people of the city and my ward, regardless of where they come from or who supports them.

I shall not be content to support measures introduced by other people, but shall endeavor to introduce and advocate measures which I have originated for the good of the people.

On all such questions as charter reform, etc., I shall endeavor to ascertain the wishes of my constituents, and then support their will, whether it coincides with my own private and personal views or not.

I shall do my best as your representative, if elected, to render you capable and satisfactory service, always standing for the best thing to be had for the city as a whole and my own section and ward in particular.

I will appreciate the vote and influence of my many friends and the voters generally of the Fifth Ward.—Adv.

'COURAGE' IS MESSAGE SENT BY HAWTHORNE

Distinguished Prisoner Writes Poem When Told That Attorney General Denied Him Parole.

CONVICTS ARE SYMPATHETIC

Author Gives No Outward Sign of Keen Disappointment, Declares Penitentiary Inmates.

Julian Hawthorne, novelist, poet, philosopher, in the Atlanta Federal prison, was a very characteristic Julian Hawthorne at the moment when he learned that Attorney General McReynolds had denied him the freedom which the parole board recommended and which he had frankly anticipated.

Hawthorne read a newspaper account of the official action. For a long time he stared at the story, which was a very short story. Then, without a word to the men near him, he went into his cellroom, and lay on his cot.

For half an hour he meditated. Then he arose, and wrote a poem that will be published in the next issue of Good words, the prison paper.

The poem is entitled "Courage."

It is a short verse of Hawthorne's typical pentameter style, and chock full of Hawthorne's typical philosophy of optimism.

Hawthorne Keeps Silent.

All this is the story that Hawthorne's fellow prisoners tell of the incident two weeks ago, when the news first came to the prison that the Attorney General had blasted the hopes of the distinguished prisoner. Hawthorne himself would say nothing of it, maintaining a consistent silence concerning his personal affairs, as he has since he first came to the prison.

It is generally considered among the prisoners who have come to know Hawthorne well that he was keenly disappointed at the action of the Attorney General, especially after friends in Washington had assured him that freedom was forthcoming, and after the parole board had acted favorably on his petition for release. It was believed that he had even laid plans for the period of freedom that seemed to be near.

"It hurt him," said one of the prisoners Saturday. "But he has kept it to himself. He never mentions the subject, and it looks as if he resents the mention of it by others. When they say anything about it, he usually laughs, and says nothing.

Prisoners Sympathetic.

"Well, it was only the newspapers who were sure I would get out," he answered once, however, to a man who said he was sorry. "It never was the most certain thing in the world, and I didn't consider it as such."

There were a good many expressions of sympathy, Hawthorne's friends said. The tall old man is a general favorite in the prison. But with it all there is no outward sign of disappointment as he sits in the midst of his fellows on the little hill overlooking the baseball diamond, his sharp face set, his keen eyes squinting as they look out over the bright, bare, sunlit field.

He and Dr. W. P. Morton will be free, by the natural expiration of their terms, in October.

Daniels to Dispense Fresh Air Hospitality

Secretary of the Navy to Keep Country Home Open Throughout Winter.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Fresh air hospitality will be the slogan Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Daniels will sound in Washington society next winter, now they have decided to retain "Single Oak," their country place on the outskirts of Washington, as an all-year-round residence.

Despite the distance from the fashionable center of the northwest, the Daniels plan a series of unique country sports to entertain their friends in good old Southern fashion, cross-country tramps, week-end parties when hunting and winter sports will be in order, are included in these plans.

At Christmas a jolly house party will make the old mansion ring from rafters to yule log on the roomy hearth.

John Lind Has Most Unusual Job

But Lind Is Most Unusual Man

Calling Bluffs Is His Specialty

Former Governor John Lind, of Minnesota, who is in Mexico to tell President Huerta that President Wilson disapproves of him an dhis policies.

Former Governor Has No Official Position, but Has Been Selected in Ticklish Diplomatic Work.

A plain man named John Lind is in Mexico City awaiting an opportunity to tell the explosive and dynamic President Huerta that President Wilson, of the United States, disapproves of him and his government.

This man is not the Ambassador of the United States. He has no more an official standing than a Chinese coolie. He is a plain American citizen come to discuss matters.

President Huerta may refuse to see him. The President might tell John Lind to go back to Minnesota whence he came, and still would be on safe ground.

But President Huerta will see him, and will talk to him, and will listen to what he has to say. Because John Lind, as all the world knows, is the personal representative of President Woodrow Wilson. He does not stand for the Government of the United States, nor represent any plan of intervention or anexation. He is merely the ears ad mouth of Woodrow Wilson, who wants to know exactly what is going on and why.

The mission on which President Wilson sent John Lind, former Governor of Minnesota, to Mexico, is one of the most remarkable in diplomatic history.

Holds No Office.

"It is to be pointed out that Mr. Lind holds no office which is recognized between nations," announced dispatches from Washington. "A grave responsibility rests on his shoulders. * * * The administration insisted that it should be made plain that Mr. Lind was acting entirely in an unofficial capacity in his mission to Mexico, but that he possesses most extraordinary powers in speaking for President Wilson is admitted."

It is plain that John Lind is on a most unusual mission, to be successful in which he must be calm, cool, careful, tactful, unruffled and all that. He must be alive to his responsibility. He must expect rebuffs. He must be honest, fearless, sincere.

John Lind's friends say he is all that. His enemies concede that he is every bit of it. President Wilson was certain that John Lind would meet all requirements, and so he sent to St. Paul for him.

John Lind is a former Governor of Minnesota. Years after he had served his first term, the Democrats nominated him again. They wanted him badly, and in the convention mentioned the name of nobody else.

But Lind was on his way to Alaska. He refused to turn back to accept the nomination. He refused to say yes or no. They had disregarded his wishes back home concerning a county option plank in the plaiform, and he scornfully said nothing to their overtures to come back and be Governor.

Weeks passed. Election time drew near. Politicians in Minnesota were certain that Lind would run. Who ever refused a gubernatorial nomination with certain victory to result from it?

Lind's Refusal Firm.

But when Lind got back, he broke his silence with a firm refusal. He would have none of the Governorship. And it being too late for the Democrats to rally around anyone else, the Republican Eberhardt won out.

It is the same calm, imperturbable John Lind for whom President Wilson invented a job as his personal representative. An unusual job it was, and President Wilson looked about for an unusual man to fill it. He decided that his friend John Lind was the man.

John Lind comes naturally by his impassiveness. He was born in Sweden and came to America a boy of 11, when his mother and father decided, like hundreds of other Swedes, to move to the new country and try to find their fortunes in the great Northwest. They came over and moved into their log cabin at Goodhue, Minn.

John Lind went to the common schools in his home town until he was 17. Then he taught school himself, saving his money that he might enter the University of Michigan. Then he practiced law, got married, moved to Minneapolis, held the job of receiver in a land office, went to Congress, lost out for re-election after three terms, served as lieutenant and quartermaster in the Twelfth Minnesota Volunteers during the war with Spain, ran for Governor and was defeated, all before 1898.

But when he came back from the war, the pleased Democrats named him as their candidate for Governor, and won with him. All Minnesota knew him by that time as a calm, self-contained, capable, good-hearted lawyer who never beat about the bush and who usually managed to call the other fellow's bluff. Out in Minnesota they like that kind of fellow.

Takes Defeat Calmly.

In 1900, a bad year for Democrats, he was beaten for re-election. John Lind took his defeat calmly. He just stuck around, practiced law, ran for Congress again, and was elected. After retirement here, he worked plainly and simply and prosperously until President Wilson, knowing him for a worker and a plain-talking, hard-fisted person, sent for him to go to Mexico. It was in the interim, about 1910, that he refused the offer of Minnesota Democrats to make him Governor again.

Mr. Lind is a man of action, cool-headed, alert, and a fighter; but above all he is silent and inscrutable. It is this quality which is going to stand him in good stead in the present situation, and it is the quality which no doubt proved very forceful in moving President Wilson to appoint him.

In all the words of criticism of Mr. Lind's mission to Mexico—and there have been many to criticise the President's course—there has been no hint of disssatisfaction with the personal qualities of the man. It is pointed out that Mr. Lind's mission in Mexico will fail. He is going to tell President Huerta that President Wilson disapproves of him and his government. But none has said that it will fail because of his personality, and it is certain that it will not fail because the President's representative talks too much. If it is to be a game of bluff, John Lind is the man to play it.

Webster's Old Home Restored by Society

Preparations Are Made for Celebration of Rehabilitation of Birthplace of Statesman.

FRANKLIN, N. H., Aug. 16.—The ancient New Hampshire farmhouse in which Daniel Webster was born has been reset on its old foundations and restored to look as it did in the eighteenth century when Webster was a small boy, and preparations have been made to celebrate its rehabilitation. It is in the town of Franklin, and the celebration will take place August 28.

It is expected that President Wilson will attend and deliver an address. Samuel W. McCall, former Congressman from Massachusetts, who was the principal speaker at the hundredth anniversary of Webster's graduation from Dartmouth College, will speak.

Coffee Tastes Cause Break in Family

Wife Liked Hers Strong, Husband Preferred It Weak, so She Entered Suit.

ALLENTOWN, PA., Aug. 16.—Black coffee and the high cost of living wrecked the romance of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hauser, of Catasauqua, who were married three years ago, when he was 63 and she was 43, each embarking in matrimony the second time. The wife, Zenobia, has started divorce proceedings.

Mrs. Hauser says she was used from life with her first husband to good black coffee. Hauser wanted his coffee as weak as dishwater, and also objected to the bills she ran up at the store for her favorite beverage. The rackets that followed got on her nerves to such an extent that she desires to resume the state of single blessedness.

The court allowed her $6 a week temporary alimony.

State Has Turkey Farm to Cut Price

Ohio Goes Into Poultry Business When Cost of Thanksgiving Birds Soar.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, Aug. 16.—The State of Ohio is going into the turkey raising business. Kind o' forced into it, as it were, because of the high price of the favored Thanksgiving bird and the demand from State institutions for the bird.

The experiment was tried out a little the last year, and so successful did it prove that this year practically in all of the State institutions where any chickens are kept turkeys have been added.

The price of turkeys has been gradually soaring until they have become almost too expensive for even the State of Ohio to buy, and rather than permit the wards of the State to go hungry on Thanksgiving Day the employees of the different institutions began the work of hatching them.

Rivals David Harum As a Horse Trader

But Youth Is Forced to Pay Back Money He Got for a 'Frozen Tail.'

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 16.—William H. Schmidt, 17, a horse trader, was directed to give back $70 he accepted from Tom Cavanaugh for a "frozen tail" horse, and return the horse to Tom Shroyer, a liveryman, when his case was heard in court.

Schmidt was charged with false pretenses, in that he represented the horse to have a useful and active fly chaser. As a matter of fact, the swatting appendage was merely ornamental and utterly useless. Schmidt said he did not know the horse had a broken tail.

"Why that horse was as helpless as a baby," asserted Mrs. Cavanaugh. "We had to carry along a fly brush as well as a buggy whip everywhere we went."

Returns $1,000 Gems And Gets $1 Reward

Laundry Girl Is Not Even Thanked When She Returns Diamonds.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—For returning $1,000 worth of jewelry to its owner, Miss Ella Veronica Shea, of No. 969 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, was rewarded with a dollar.

Miss Shea works in a laundry. While unpacking a laundry bag received from Mrs. I. Rodberg of No. 635 Decatur street, she found four diamond rings and a diamond lavalliere.

"The shock which Mrs. Rodberg got when she received the jewelry was so great she forgot to thank me," said Miss Shea yesterday. "I had scarcely got back to the office when a man came running after me with an envelope in which was a note of thanks and—a dollar."

MORE THAN 300 BILLS PASSED BY LEGISLATURE; GOVERNOR LAUDS WORK

Act for Equalization of Taxes Is Regarded of Supreme Importance, Meaning Millions of Added Revenue to Ga. Each Year.

Measure Was Passed Only After One of Most Dramatic Fights General Assembly Has Known. Will Revolutionize System.

The 1913 session of the General Assembly of Georgia, which adjourned Thursday night, passed more than three hundred bills. Of these more than 250 were local bills, designed to relieve conditions existinfi in individual counties and not operative in any other county. The remaining ones were general bills and local bills of general application.

Practically all of the measures have been engrossed and sent to Governor Slaton's office, and need only the signature of the Chief Executive of the State to become laws.

Governor Slaton has already signed some of the more important bills. He signed the Lipscomb-Miller-Anderson tax bill, to be known as the Lipscomb act, within a day after it passed the House, and Friday he signed the bill giving mothers equal rights with fathers to the custody of minor children.

Other bills received the official O. K. Saturday, but the great majority of them will not be signed until the coming week.

Of the 50 or more general bills that passed both branches of the Legislature, 15 are of importance, and their effect will be generally felt throughout the State.

Governor Praises Work.

They have been praised by Governor Slaton, Speaker Burwell, of the House, and President Anderson, of the Senate, as comprising one of the best Legislatures the State has had since the Civil War. They have passed five tax measures that will revolutionize the taxation system of the State, and add millions to the revenues; they have raised the standard of physicians in the State and centralized the control of practicing doctors; they have heard the plea of Georgia mothers and enacted a law that places her on a par with the father and recognizes her ability to care for her own child; they have established a home to care for the wayward girls of the State, and they have shown their friendship to the cause of higher education by passing an appropriation bill that carries large sums for the maintenance of the educational institutions of the State.

By far the most important measure passed by the House is the bill creating the office of State Tax Commissioner and county boards of tax assessors. This law has been characterized by veteran members of the House and Senate and by legislative experts as the best measure that has been passed in Georgia in 50 years.

It will revolutionize the taxation system of the State, and conservative estimates place the amount of revenue it will add to the funds of the State at $1,000,000 a year, sufficient to clear the State of debt and allow plenty of money to conduct the business of the Empire State of the South in a manner commensurate with her importance.

Four other tax bills that will bring in large sums, though the amounts can hardly be estimated until the laws are tried, were passed—the automobile tax bill, the inheritance tax bill, the special tax on bottling works and the occupation tax on corporations.

Inheritance Tax Important.

The inheritance tax alone is expected to bring into the treasury hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The bill providing for the State Tax Commissioner developed the hardest fight. Opponents of tax reform in the House, where the bill was first introduced by Lipscomb of Clarke County, led by Sheppard of Sumter and Stovall of Elbert County, succeeded in defeating the original bill and securing the passage of what was known as the Sheppard substitute, providing for county boards of equalization only. This measure went to the senate, where it was defeated and the substitute prepared that eventually became a law, by Senators Miller and Anderson. Ten Senate substitute, with its provisions for a State Tax Commissioner and the county boards of assessors, came back to the House during the last days of the session.

The fight that developed was one of the most thrilling and dramatic the House has ever seen. During the time the bill was under consideration by the Senate, tax reform members of the House had converted many of their original enemies. Efforts to destroy the bill by substituting amendments were defeated, and the bill was brought to a vote during the latter part of last week.

To Speaker Burwell, of Hancock County, belongs the credit for the passage of the bill. From the time the original Lipscomb bill was introduced he worked hard to get the bill through, and when the Senate substitute came to a vote, and Henderson of Jones County, a staunch friend of tax revision, tied up the vote after a thrilling ride to the Capitol in an auto, Speaker Burwell made the measure a law by casting his vote in favor of it.

Features of Tax Bill.

The bill is modeled after similar laws that are now on the statute books of a number of Northern States, where it has worked satisfactorily. Its main provisions are as follows:

It creates the office of State Tax Commissioner at $2,500 a year, and County Boards of Assessors.

The Tax Receivers of the counties shall open their books February 1 and close them May 1.

In ten days after the books are closed the Tax Receivers shall present the returns to the county boards.

The county board is to be composed of three members, appointed by the Board of County Commissioners or the Ordinary.

The county board must examine the tax returns and equalize them.

The taxpayer, if dissatisfied with the decision of the county board, can ask for reconsideration and arbitration. The differences shall be adjusted by three arbitrators.

The county boards shall complete their work by July 1.

The State Tax Commissioner shall carefully examine all tax returns submitted by the county boards and recommend decreases or increases.

The State Tax Commissioner shall carefully investigate all taxation questions and recommend laws to the General Assembly.

The Tax Commissioner shall visit annually all the counties of the State and investigate conditions.

If the county board is dissatisfied with the decision of the State Tax Commissioner upon its returns, it may appeal for arbitration, to be conducted the same as when a taxpayer appeals to the county board.

Governor Slaton already has appointed a State Tax Commissioner, Judge J. C. Hart, and the formation of the county boards probably will be begun at once. The law becomes operative January 1, 1914.

The medical practices act abolishes the old system of a separate board for each school of medicine, and creates a joint board to pass upon the physicians who apply for permission to practice in Georgia.

The bill for the establishment of a home for wayward girls, to be known as the Georgia Industrial Home for Girls, carries with it an appropriation of $10,000. The original bill carried a $30,000 appropriation, but was cut $10,000 in the House and $10,000 more in the Senate.

Though the Legislature passed many measures that are recognized as good, there were many other good bills that failed to get through. Many of them, however, were held over until the next session for various reasons, and may be passed then. Among them were a number of child labor bills, measures designed to remedy working conditions, the vital statistics bill, compulsory education bill, and others.

In addition to aiding in the fight for tax reform, in which they were strong factors, the Fulton County delegation—Blackburn, Smith and Cochran—succeeded in getting through three bills that directly affect Atlanta. They are a bill creating a new charter for the city, a bill establishing municipal courts, and a bill providing an additional Superior Court judge for the Atlanta Circuit. The three Fulton County men, Blackburn and Smith especially, were recognized as being among the leaders in the House, and were in the forefront in the fight for all the reform legislation that was passed.

Important Bills Made Laws by 1913 Legislature

Here are the most important bills that passed both houses of the General Assembly, and which become laws upon receiving the signature of the Governor:

To provide for a State Tax Commissioner and County Boards of Tax Assessors.

A "blue sky" measure, to regulate the sale of stocks and bonds.

To allow freight trains to run on Sunday.

To increase the occupation tax on corporations.

To place a special tax on bottling works.

The general appropriation bill.

To provide an inheritance tax.

To regulate the practice of medicine and raise the standard of physicians.

To create a new charter for the city of Atlanta.

To create municipal courts in Atlanta and abolish the Justice courts.

To provide an additional Superior Court judge for the Atlanta Circuit.

To provide for the permanent registration of voters.

To establish and maintain a Home for Wayward Girls.

To enable judges to grant charters in vacation.

To create a Western & Atlantic Commission to investigate the release of the State Road.

To give the mother equal rights with the father in the custody of minor children.

To provide a tax of $5 on automobiles.

To create a commission to investigate the advisability of the State publishing its own school books.

To allow trial judges to place persons convicted of misdemeanors on probation, and to provide county probation officers.

To provide for the popular election of United States Senators.

Off in Canoe on 7,000-Mile Trip

Couple to Make Record Cruise

Argonauts to Visit the South

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Green, who have started from Staten Island to cruise to New Orleans and back in a canoe.

Yearning to See Dixie and West Prompts Young Pair to Make Hazardous Journey.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—"We have never been South," said Mrs. Walter Green half to herself. There was yearning in her tone.

"Nor West," said Walter Green, who heard her.

They sat in their canoe as it drifted with the tide, their faces turned away from their Staten Island home, toward the South.

Mrs. Green looked at her husband with a quick inspiration.

"Let's go," she said, eagerly.

And so they planned within a few minutes the 7,000-mile canoe trip on which they started yesterday and which will take them not only South, but West, revealing to them the grandeur of the Mississippi, the warmth of the Gulf Coast and the stretch of the Atlantic Ocean. The two young persons, enthusiastic campers, will be away from their home for ten months or more in the course of the journey.

Will Call on Wilson.

They started up the Hudson River, going on the first stage of the journey to Yonkers. Thence they will go through the Erie Canal to Buffalo, through Lake Erie to Ashtabula, then to Beaver Canal and Rochester, Pa. From there they will go up the Ohio to Pittsburg, down the Ohio to Cairo, up the Mississippi to St. Louis, down the Mississippi to New Orleans, across the Gulf of Mexico and along the coast to St. James City, Fla., through the Everglades and a river or two to Palm Beach, up Indian River to Jacksonville, along the Atlantic coast to Chesapeake Bay, up to Washington to call on President Wilson and present a letter from Mayor Gaynor. Last they will go by canal to Delaware River, Raritan Canal an river to New York Bay and home.

A crowd cheered the gay young couple at their start. A party of suffragettes, admirers of Mrs. Green for her daring, presented her with a "Votes for Women" pennant, which her craft will fly. The life-saving crew of Clifton, to Greens' home, gave them a pennant, which also became a part of the equipment.

Light Equipment Carried.

In order to make the canoe as light as possible, they took only four boxes containing provisions, camp equipage and clothing, and two large duffel bags containing a small circular tent and bedding. All was covered with canvas, which will be used as floor of the tent.

It is the intention of the couple to put into a city, town or village each night, pitch their tent and sleep for eight hours. When the stores they carry run out, they will get new supplies at the places where they will stop.

The Greens are anticipating with the greatest eagerness the portion of their trip that will take them to the South, about the gulf and the South Atlantic coast.

NEW MEMBERS' PET BILLS DYING IN COMMITTEE

Recently Elected Congressmen Have Hard Time Telling Why District Doesnt Profit.

By JONATHAN WINFIELD.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The new members of the House—there are approximately 150 of them—are beginning to find out something about the intricacies of legislation at Washington, and just now they are busy explaining away a bunch of campaign promises. The new member isn't getting anywhere with pet legislation and he is a sorely distressed individual.

Nearly 7,000 bills and resolutions have been introduced in the House of Representatives since President Wilson called the Sixty-third Congress into extra session early in April. About one in a hundred have received consideration, and the ratio bids fair to be maintained during the remainder of the extra session owing to a rule of the Democratic caucus which binds the House committees not to report out legislation before the regular session, which begins in November.

In consequence of this unexpected caucus rule, the new member who came to Congress leaving many promises behind is up against it. His hands are tied; he may introduce bills and resolutions to his heart's content, but they won't get anywhere for months, and perhaps not then. It is embarrassing to make explanations, especially when a statesman beat out some other fellow by promising big things for the district.

All Have Horde of Bills.

The average new member, as soon as he reaches the House chamber, walks up to the bill basket and drops therein a bill providing that the town of Jonesville shall have a $25,000 postoffice. He follows this with a dozen or so bills proposing that certain worthy pensioners in his district shall have their annual pensions increased. Then he comes along with the crying complaint that the little Bee River needs about $50,000 or $100,000 to improve navigation in order that the towns of Squash Center and Hickory Hollow may have increased transportation facilities.

Congressman Newcomer then passed the word along to the newspaper correspondent representing the home paper that he has introduced the foregoing bill and will push it to an early passage. The people back home are duly elated and begin to get glad that they retired the former Congressman and sent so active a successor in his place.

In a short time the new member drops around to the committee to which his various pet kind bills have been referred. Without desiring to appear too solicitous, he gently inquires whenehe may expect the committee to get together and take up the pressing need of his district. The chairman, with equal gentleness, breaks the news that it will be absolutely impossible to do anything for the present.

Caucus Rules Forbid.

In the first place, says the chairman, a quorum of the committee isn't in town. In the second place, the caucus has forbidden the report of anything except currency, tariff reform and pressing appropriations bills or resolutions at this session. The new member is absolutely unable to see the justice of such a mandate, even though he may have been a member of the caucus. He thought the rule would apply to the other fellow, not himself. There is general woe and lamentation.

It is the same old story, told over in about 50 different ways. Each new member has a peculiar complaint to make and peculiar local needs to satisfy. There is nothing doing, however, and the recruit statesman is told that he will have to wait until the regular session rolls around.

TAKES PRIZED BEES FOR VACATION IN MOUNTAINS

HOOD RIVER, OREG., Aug. 16.—W. W. Dakin, who owns the largest apiary here, left for his vacation in the forest reserves above Parkdale. Mr. Dakin took two hives of bees to the mountains to gather honey from fireweed in the burned-over regions.

"I am going to try for some of the prizes offered at the State fair," said Mr. Dakin.

LIVING DEATH IN ITALY IS FACED BY CHARLTON

Young American Travels in Steerage, but Is Confident of an Early Acquittal.

son of Paul Charlton, law adviser of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, and former President Taft's classmate at Yale. He has stood by his son through all the fight against extradition.

Extradition Fight Begins.

The fight began the day after the confession appeared. It seemed at first that the young man surely must go back to Italy to face trial, and every legal step was taken against it. His friends, led by his father, took the position that he could not be extradited, because Italy had always refused, under the extradition treaty of 1868, to return Italian subjects to the United States to answer for crimes committed here.

They lost this fight, when Italy made a request for the prisoner. The fight was resumed, and Charlton's father entered the insanity plea, in a habeas corpus suit. Losing this in the lower court, the father appealed to the Supreme Court, in which, about a month ago, the opinion of Justice Lurton was handed down, to the effect that Charlton was subject to extradition.

Officers arrived in the United States from Italy last week to take Charlton back for trial. Conflicting reports have been spread regarding the young man's health, certain physicians contending that he is the victim of pulmonary tuberculosis and others that he is in perfect health.

Newspaper reports, written by men who have seen him, say that he appears healthy. He has been allowed an unusual degree of freedom while being held in the Hudson County jail, being permitted to take walks, automobile drives and two hours of exercise each day. Sometimes he was taken to picture shows.

Charlton Expects Acquittal.

Charlton is cheerful. He has expressed the opinion that he will be acquitted in spite of the evidence against him, and has told his father and mother and other friends as well that he will be back home for Christmas dinner.

The trial will be held in Milan some time early in the fall.

Appeals have been made to Secretary of State Bryan, and an attempt even has been made to reach the ear of President Wilson to present the extradition of the young man. His father has stopped at nothing to save his son. But all attempts have proved fruitless. Secretary Bryan, Judge Charlton's personal friend of long standing, has expressed his sympathy, but declared that it was impossible for him to do anything for the son.

The plans for the defense will take the form of an inquisition to bring out the moral and mental traits of the murdered woman, besides the consideration of Charlton's sanity. Attorneys will try to show that there was great provocation for the killing. It is hoped in this that the sentence of Charlton will not be the short-living death at solitary confinement in an Italian dungeon, but a more tempered punishment.

Nance Believed Mad When He Slew Wife

Relatives Declare He Was Mentally Unbalanced When He Left Knoxville Friday.

KNOXVILLE, Aug. 16.—George R. Nance is believed by his wife's relatives in Knoxville to have been insane when he killed her in a hotel at Hamlet, N. C., yesterday. They recite incidents connected with his former residence in this city that cause them to suspect he was mentally unbalanced.

At one time Nance left home and his wife did not know of his whereabouts until she received a cablegram from him in Liverpool, England. Soon thereafter he came here and they remained until they went to Greenville, S. C., last March, where his wife was manager of a sanitarium operated by a company with hospitals in various cities. For four years she was head of this company's hospital at Los Angeles. Her last station had been at Chattanooga, where her local relatives thought she was yesterday.

Mrs. Nance was born in Sweetwater, Tenn., and had many relatives over East Tennessee. She married Nance in Alexandria, Va., nine years ago, and they had no children. Mrs. J. T. Steele, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. B. T. Baker, of Alexandria, Va.; Mrs. Jerry Reagan, of Portland, Oreg., and Mrs. J. A. McCampbell, of Friendsville, Tenn., are her sisters.

Autos Are Barred By Canadian Island

Residents of Prince Edward Will Not Allow Machines to Enter Province.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—"It seems strange in these days when automobiles are seen on every street, on every country road that there should be one section on the American continent where these vehicles are positively prohibited," said R. A. Dewey, of Toronto.

"Recently the Canadian Parliament enacted legislation to permit the use of self-propelling carriages in the Province of Prince Edward Island, but it is by no means certain that the legislation will be effective. There is every indication that the law will never be put in force because a plebiscite on the question was taken throughout the island when the annual district school meetings were held.

"The returns that have come thus far indicate that the farmers are strenuously opposed to allowing automobiles on Prince Edward Island. More than 90 per cent of the population voted no on the proposition, and in some of these places the vote in the negative was unanimous.

Wealthy Father at Last Finds Daughter

Search of 38 Years Ends In Astonishment for His Policeman Son-in-Law.

POTTSVILLE, PA., Aug. 16.—Anthony Lloyd, a policeman, living on $65 a month, was surprised when John Strause, aged 76, walked into his home and embraced Mrs. Lloyd, who turns out to be his only child, lost to him for more than 38 years.

Strause is worth $200,000 and lives in Laramie City.

Many years ago, after he returned from service in the Seventh Pennsylvania Cavalry of the Civil War, he placed his daughter, Emma, in the charge of relatives and went West. Though wealthy, he was unable to find any trace of her until his sudden meeting.

PASTOR SHEDS HIS COLLAR.

GRANITE CITY, Aug. 16.—A new pace has been set by the Rev. W. W. Brown, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Granite City, who tells the men to come without collar or neckties and with sleeves rolled up if that will conduce to their comfort. He promises to do likewise.

WAITS FOR WIFE WITH A HEARSE; FINDS HER ALIVE

Husband Who Got Message of Her Death Overjoyed to See Her Alight From Train

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Heinrich Dietz became the happiest man in Chicago yesterday, and his condition in this respect is likely to be chronic. It all happened in a few seconds. From the depths of woe Mr. Dietz was raised to an ecstatic joy that almost took his breath away.

Dietz is a Russian who came to this country about a year ago, and earned money slowly and saved it until he could rent and furnish a small apartment at No. 529 Hartland court. Then he saved some more and sent a steamship ticket to his wife. She embarked for America. Dietz expected her to arrive here yesterday.

On Thursday night K. W. Kempf, the ticket agent at No. 120 North La Salle street, handed Dietz a telegram from Philadelphia reading:

"Your wife Eva died to-day—on 9:40 B. and O. Comm's Immigration."

That message dropped a somber curtain on Dietz's happiness. To cap his misery, he had almost no money. Kempf in sympathy lent him $10 and gave him a note to P. Hursen, an undertaker. Hursen read the note, then returned the $10 to Dietz and sent a hearse with him to the La Salle street depot.

Dietz was mournfully watching the train when suddenly he saw a plump, rosy cheeked young woman leave it. With a shout he sprang forward and Mr. and Mrs. Dietz were clasped in each other's arms.

Mrs. Dietz had sent a telegram as her husband had requested, but the operator had written "died" instead of "arrived."

AFFINITY EARLE ABOUT TO LOSE 'DEAREST' DORA

Third Wife of Famous Wooer, Declared "Sweetest of Them All," Files Suit.

TELLS STORY OF MEETING

Did Not Know of Long Marital Record of Poet Until She Had Joined Him.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Dora of the laughing brown eyes, third wife and unnumbered affinity of Ferdinand Pinney Earle, New York poet, artist and record wooer—described by him at the time of their marriage in June, 1911, as "the dearest, sweetest and loveliest of them all"—said to-day that she is about to seek her freedom.

She said she actually has begun suit in New York for an absolute divorce, basing her action on evidence she says she has obtained of Earle's behavior on the Continent since she parted from him in March.

Mrs. Earle is now only 25, twelve years younger than Earle. Her maiden name was Helen Theodora Sidford. From her father, an English architect, she inherited artistic tastes and is an artist of pronounced talent. She is a very attractive young woman.

Lived at "Earle's Folly."

The original story that reached America of her relations with Earle narrated a meeting in the fields, a walk home hand in hand, swift and ardent wooing, marriage within the month and a start on a tour of the world, which wound up prematurely in the country home in Monroe, Orange County, known as "Earle's Folly."

Her story to-day sets right much of that early fiction, for the meeting with Earle seems to have been conventional.

"How did you come to give yourself to a man of Earle's matrimonial record?" was asked.

"I knew nothing of his past until after our marriage," she replied. "Whatever his reputation in America, I had lived in a quiet English town and had never heard of his antecedents. After our marriage his life story was cabled from America to the London newspapers. Clippings were sent to me on the Continent on our honeymoon by my mother.

He Softened the Blow.

"It was a terrible shock to find that I had been so utterly deceived, but I accepted the explanation and excuses offered by Mr. Earle and his assurances that I would never have anything of which to complain.

"After our wedding we spent two months on the Continent. In September, 1911, three months following the wedding, we went to America, and lived happily at his place in Monroe, N. Y. Our first baby was born there in April, 1912. I remained with him in America until last January, and then came here to visit my mother, with whom I have since lived. It was arranged that Mr. Earle would come here for the summer.

"At the time of my return I had not the slightest expectation that our relations would go wrong. We kept in constant correspondence. He arrived here in March, remained two days and then went to the Continent. My second baby was born here April 20. Her father has never seen her.

"Soon after he went from here in March information reached me which left me no option except to prepare divorce proceedings. He has appealed to me to abondon them, but that is quite impossible after his conduct as disclosed to me."

Mrs. Earle declined to anticipate by publication the specific evidence she is reserving for the court. Thus the name of the co-respondent is withheld. Judging from Mrs. Earle's convincing manner of speech, she thinks she has ample ground for her petition.

Earle's Love Affairs.

Earle's love affairs were first brought to public notice in 1908 when he took to his Monroe home Miss Julia Kuttner, and informed his wife that the newcomer was his affinity and soul-mate. The rightful Mrs. Earle at that time was formerly Miss Emilie Marie Fischbacher, daughter of a bookseller on the banks of the Seine in Paris, whom Earle had married in 1903 and by whom he had a son, Harold Erwin.

Mrs. Earle departed for France, with a reported money settlement, and obtained a divorce there. Earle, Miss Kuttner and Miss Kuttner's mother went to Europe and domiciled themselves in Venice. Their departure from Monroe was hastened by threats of neighbors there to punish Earle without process of law.

Within a few months Mrs. Kuttner decided a marriage was necessary and a ceremony was performed at the British consulate. Soon afterward a son was born and named Edmond Erwin Earle. In 1910 the second wife sued for the anulment of the marriage on the ground that the ceremony had taken place before Earle was free under French law.

She also charged cruelty, especially following the birth of the child. After long consideration the Westchester County Court granted the petition of annulment and declared the child legitimate.

Earle had not defended either suit, but while the courts were trying to dispose of the second he sailed to Europe with Miss Gertrude Buell Dunn, a bright-eyed young woman from Chicago, who had "advanced" ideas. It was announced that together they would work out and publish a new philosophy on the ideal relations of the sexes. Their zeal subsided and they parted without scandal.

TOWN BLACKLISTS 85 DEMON RUM'S SLAVES

CHESTER, PA., Aug. 16.—Leading citizens of this city are lauding the blacklisting of habitual drunkards, which prevents them purchasing intoxicants in saloons, as a far-reaching temperance victory. The list contains, according to the police, the names of 85 persons who have made no effort to free themselves of the drink habit.

'Kneeless Stocking' Arrives

Fair Wearer Defies Hot Weather

Men's Socks Adorn Girl's--Ahem

Miss Bunee Wyde, pretty actress at Forsyth last week, who shows how comfortable she is in new "kneeless stockings."

Miss Bunee Wyde Is Bold Apostle of New Style and She's a Good Proselyter.

Miss Bunee Wyde said she should worry. Everybody else was swearing at the beastly weather whose heat left no peace in mind or body.

"You see?" she said naively, and hoisted her skirts a wee bit beyond the conventional height. She was wearing half hose. Men's socks.

She had brought to Atlanta a new fashion. Very frankly she announced her belief that the short socks are good to wear, much, ever so much, more comfortable than the long stocking; allow much, ever so much, freedom of the limbs, and are altogether desirable. And to her very best friends she minded not a bit to show them that she indeed wore them.

Everybody in Atlanta laughed at Miss Wyde and with Miss Wyde at the Forsyth Theater last week, where she played with Franker Wood in a little act, "Good Night." Nobody picked her for the bold apostle of a new fashion in wearing apparel, though. But she is, and a pretty good proselyter at that. She talked the new fad very generally in Atlanta while she was here.

She calls them the "kneeless stocking," though. "Half hose" has a cold, unfamiliar, masculine tone to it. And she makes the prophecy that the kneeless stocking will be popular.

"Garters?" said she. "Certainly not. I don't need 'em. Up New York lots of the girls wear silk garters or men's hose supporters with these, but under certain desirable physical features, you won't need anything to hold them up. They just stay.

"Of course you couldn't wear these with a slit skirt, and some might blush to put them on with a tight skirt that clings when you mount a street car or even a sidewalk curbing. Still, there is nothing immodest in wearing kneeless stockings. They are comfortable and convenient.

"Well, you needn't look if you don't want to," she pertly adds.

Faithful Canine Postman Prefers Making His Trips Between Sundown and Dark.

COVINGTON, IND., Aug. 16.—Charles Keller, south of this city, owns a dog which carries letters from Mr. Keller's home to Philip Keller's home, ten miles. When Mr. Keller wishes to communicate with his father he fastens the letter on the dog's neck and instructs him to deliver it.

The trip is always begun between sundown and dark, as this seems to be the time of day that the dog likes to travel best. The following evening the dog will return to his master with a reply.

WOMEN RUN TOWN WHERE MEN FAILED

For Twenty Years Efforts to Put Woodland, Colo., on the Map Were Useless.

WOODLAND PARK, COLO., Aug 16.—The women of Woodland Park have started a movement to put the town on the map of Colorado's summer resorts.

Twenty years ago the men of the town tried it and their efforts ended a few years ago in the best building lots selling for taxes.

When the men of two decades ago thought the town offered great inducements, they voted $20,000 in bonds and built a water system and an artificial lake in the center of the town.

There were bandstands built in the woods around the town, and a band was maintained for two or three summers. Then the bottom fell out.

The other day the waterworks bonds became due. The men who had been the prime movers in the boom of twenty years ago were discouraged and their daughteds and wives took up the affairs of the town.

They organized the Woodland Park Improvement Association. The association succeeded in having the bonded indebtedness compromised for $6,000 and the town now has the money to pay the bonds and improve the water system.

The women have decided to have a series of "tag" days and entertainments by which they will raise funds to put in street lights, street signs, lights at the Colorado Midland station and other improvements.

BOY FINANCIER FIGHTING FOR PRISON PAROLE

Earl W. Butler, of Canton, Ill., Seeks to Escape Penalty for Banking Methods.

CANTON, ILL., Aug. 16.—Earl W. Butler, the boy banker, whose career in frenzied finance wrecked two banks in Fulton and one in Peoria County in 1910, and ended by landing Butler in the Joliet penitentiary with an indeterminate sentence of from one to three years, again is making strenuous efforts through his attorneys and friends, to obtain his release from the State Board of Pardons.

So far the boy banker has not made much progress toward getting his freedom, because of the position taken by former State's Attorney W. S. Jewell, under whose incumbency Butler was convicted of embezzlement in connection with the Ellisville bank, and who is supported in his view of the matter by the present State's Attorney, M. P. Rice.

Butler was convicted in the Fulton County Circuit Court in October, 1911, over a year after his three banks closed their doors, and he was taken to Joliet in November of the same year. He has served nearly two years in the penitentiary and has another year to remain there, if his sentence is carried out to the limit. In addition to imprisonment, the verdict in his case imposed a fine of $2,800, but it is the expectation that he will try to schedule out of this obligation.

Predicts Dancing Is To Be Part of Church

Dr. G. Stanley Hall, President of Clark University, Declares Grace Should Be Encouraged.

GREELEY, COLO., Aug. 16.—That dancing is one of the best forms of exercise that is possible to take and that eventually it will become a part and parcel of the church when the grosser forms of it have been eliminated, was the statement made by Dr. G. Stanley Hall, president of Clark University.

"Dancing in itself as practiced in ancient times is what kept the Greeks and Romans healthful and graceful. The dances of those days were far different from the kind which are popular now and made strong men and graceful women.

"Rhythm is the basis of all physical movement, and I am convinced that this form of amusement, under the proper supervision, will become not only an adjunct to the church, which is proper and right, but to the schools also."

Trees of Ice Age Found in Illinois

Species Have Been Preserved Through Thousands of Years.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Members of the International Phytographic Society who made studies among the hills and cliffs about Lake Bluff this week discovered there species of trees and shrubs that have been retained in the region since the Ice Age. This species, the Europeans found, have been preserved through thousands of years.

The poplar and creeping juniper, examples of the Ice Age flora, rarely found in this part of the temperate zone, were seen flourishing vigorously beside the beech, birch, oak and maple, which followed them in the normal succession. Lake Bluff is said to be "farthest south" for the creeping juniper.

PASTOR POSING AS A DRUG USER GETS VICE DATA

Visits Omaha Stores and Secures Evidence for the Grand Jury. Made Up Like Tramp.

OMAHA, Aug. 16.—In order to more effectively carry on war against vice of all kinds, the Rev. A. E. Hess, pastor of the Hirst Memorial Young People's Church, of this city, has been disguising himself as a "roughneck" dope fiend and scouring the haunts of the denizens of the underworld for proofs of lawbreaking to present to the Grand Jury.

His latest tour was through a number of drug stores suspected of selling "coke." For his disguise he secured the services of a professional costumer, and so good was his "makeup" that he now has in his possession a hatful of little wooden boxes, each containing a few grains of cocaine—each labeled with the time and place of purchase, and in many cases the name of the clerk who sold it.

"I was never so scared in my life as when I started out for the 'dope' drug stores," Mr. Hess. "I was 'made up' like a dope fiend tramp and I was afraid I would be recognized and quizzed.

"At the first drug store I entered twice before I raked up enough courage to ask for the cocaine. The first time I merely watched the traffic; and that was terrible enough. I saw a woman fairly weep in her plea for the drug she craved and for which she had not the purchase price.

AFTER 50 YEARS MOTHER OF 8 IS ENABLED TO SEE

Although 66 Years Old, She Travels From Home to Hospital All Alone.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Fifty years ago a little girl was stricken blind.

She was 16, and never had seen the man whom she later married. In her home at Hillsdale, Mich., she became the mother of eight children.

The father died a little later and they went out into the world, but the mother never had seen their faces.

The woman, now bent and feeble, is Mrs. Mary J. Welsh, and is back in her Hillsdale home, her sight restored. Mrs. Welsh during the last month has been in the Wesley Hospital here. The operation that gave her back her sight, surgeons say, was one of the most remarkable on record. It consisted in the removal of a cataract of fifty years standing.

A chaplain of the hospital, the Rev. M. W. Satterfield, delivered an address in Hillsdale several months ago. He told of the charitable work done by the hospital. The white-haired blind woman heard him. She groped her way forward.

"Can you do anything for me?" she asked. "I only want to see my babies before I go. I have been praying."

A month ago the Methodist congregation took up a collection which made it possible for her to make the trip to Chicago.

SUFFRAGETTES INVADE STAID GEORGIA TOWN

Thomasville Has Its Quota of Women Who Demand the Ballot.

THOMASVILLE, Aug. 16.—The granting of a charter for a Woman's Suffrage Association in Georgia and the bobbing up of the suffragettes over the country generally is causing many towns to take an introspective view, so to speak, to ascertain if there are any of this new brand of women within their borders, and the result shows that while there may not be a great many avowedly calling themselves suffragettes, there are more in sympathy with the movement than the mind of the average man conceives to be the case.

That there should be suffragettes in other towns in Georgia seemed very probable, but that they should be found in Thomasville, which is regarded by the outside world as being eminently staid and conservative, never going wild over anything but baseball or fighting about anything but "Sis" Cow, seemed almost unbelievable, but they are here just the same.

This does not at all mean that the majority of the fair sex here are in sympathy with this new order of women who are fighting for the ballot. There is, however, a very fair sprinkling of them, who do not hesitate to assert their belief in the equal rights of woman, and they likewise acknowledge that they would enjoy taking a hand in the management of public affairs, to a certain extent at any rate.

Of course, there are a few of the more advanced in their ideas who even believe that they could run a town and would like to try it a while and show the male management in charge just how a sure enough town should look and how affairs would be managed with a female board at the head of things. When questioned as to what would be done in a town run by women in regard to holding Police Court, serving on juries, etc., the enthusiasm did not seem so marked, though little attention was paid to the query, it evidently being the idea that all unpleasant duties could be turned over to the mere men and only the "running" of affairs be reserved for those in charge.

As it will probably be a good long time before Thomasville will be run by a female management, at least openly, as they are often accused of being the power behind the throne, nobody is very much worried over it, but it is interesting to know just how the matter stands and whether the women of the South will ever go into this movement in earnest as they have in the West and parts of the North.

Timbermen Fight Over Debt; 1 Dead

W. C. Stamper and G. R. Keen End Dispute by Pistol Duel in Street at Blakely.

BLAKELY, Aug. 16.—W. C. Stamper and G. R. Keen, two well-known timbermen, had a pistol duel on the public square at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, as a result of which Keen is dead with five bullet holes in his body.

Keen is said to have shot at Stamper twice and missed him. Stamper escaped unhurt, except a graze near the left eye.

The trouble grew out of a dispute over the division of the proceeds of a debt due to both of them by a common debtor.

Keen leaves a wife and several children.

Truck Growers to Organize in Tift

Object Is to Promote Growing and Marketing of Products.

TIFTON, Aug. 16.—Present indications are that not only the truck growers of Tift County will work in co-operation, but that all the truckers of South Georgia counties will co-operate in promoting the growing and marketing of trucking products.

Two melon and truck growers of Brooks County, M. L. Bowen, of Quitman, and A. J. Powell, of Dixie, were in Tifton this week and conferred with the Tifton Chamber of Commerce and a number of men engaged in trucking, inquiring as to the working of the Tift County Truckers' Association, with a view to forming a similar organization in Brooks County.

Mr. Bowen has been in the melon business for nearly twenty years and Mr. Powell is an expert at growing Irish potatoes.

TERRELL FARMER FIRES BULLET THROUGH HEAD

DAWSON, Aug. 16.—P. C. Calley, well-to-do Terrell County farmer and brother-in-law of Jesse Mercer, committed suicide at his country home near Dawson by shooting himself through the head. He left no note as to the cause, but despondency over money matters is believed to have been responsible.

Columbus Shows Healthy Increase

Nearly Half Million Gained on Tax Values of Property—Rate Was Reduced.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—Tax Assessor Frank M. Sommerkamp, of Muscogee County, has completed his tax digest for 1913, which shows $22,769,804 compared to $22,508,202 in 1912, an increase for 1913 of $261,602.

When it is taken into consideration that the tax assessments this year in the city of Columbus were made at 75 per cent of the county assessment, while they have been made heretofore at the same, it will be seen that the county has made a remarkable showing. In other words, something like $14,000,000 worth of property has only been assessed at 75 per cent of the assessment of last year. It is believed that the increase in values would have run far over half a million dollars.

The digest shows that there are 40 lawyers, 43 doctors, 17 dentists, 1 veterinary surgeon, 2 architects, 2 engineers. The dogs in the county are valued at $2,192.

DOUGHERTY TAX VALUES SHOW GOOD INCREASE

ALBANY, Aug. 16.—The total value of taxable property in Dougherty County, as shown by the figures just compiled by Tax Receiver J. H. Davis, shows an increase for 1913 over 1912 of $437,218. The comparative figures are as follows: Property values, 1913, $7,449,866. Property values, 1912, $7,012,648.

ALBANY MAY BUILD BIG CREMATORY PLANT

ALBANY, Aug. 16.—A crematory to dispose of Albany's garbage is a matter that is being seriously considered at the present time. Mayor Tarver has procured literature bearing on this subject and is giving the matter careful study.

With the idea of making Albany one of the most healthy and sanitary towns in the State, the city officials, led by Mayor Tarver, are considering this step.

GLENN TAKES CHARGE AS DEPUTY MARSHAL

VALDOSTA, Aug. 16.—L. H. Glenn, of Rochelle, who has been appointed Deputy United States Marshal for this district, to succeed R. L. Thomas, resigned, will make this city his headquarters. He is now here preparing to take over the office.

COURT HEARING OF INJUNCTION IS POSTPONED

Americus City Council Would Prevent Consolidation of Power Plant Companies.

AMERICUS, Aug. 16.—The postponement by Judge Z. A. Littlejohn in the Superior Court of the hearing of the injunction brought by the City Council of Americus against the Americus Power Company, the rival power company to the old Americus Gas and Electric Company, to keep the new company from consolidating with the old and advancing rates, is another link in the history of one of the most sensational municipal fights in Georgia.

Judge Littlejohn postponed the hearing until September 27 on the ground that certain important parties to the various transactions were not in Americus, though it is claimed that at least one of them was here.

City Attorney Hollis Fort and W. P. Wallis, for the city, and Shipp & Sheppard, for the Americus Power Company, are prepared for a grueling and continued fight when the hearing does occur.

It is thought that it will either kill forever the hopes of municipal ownership here or revive them anew. As this has been a hotly contested municipal issue, the interest in the hearing is wide and keen.

'Hoodoo Doctors' Ply 'Art' in Cordele

Raid Farms for Cotton Root to Brew Tea for Superstitious Negroes.

CORDELE, Aug. 16.—"Hoodoo" or "root" doctors, as they are commonly known, seem to be getting in some very effective work in Cordele, though if their identity should become known to the police the effect would very probably not be pleasing to them. For several nights these characters have devastated patches of cotton in the western part of the city, belonging to negroes. For the purpose of making cotton root tea, which is said to have a healing effect in a good many cases, they have pulled up row after row of cotton by the roots, cutting off the weeds and taking the roots with them.

UNKNOWN NEGRO STABS WHITE MAN AT RAY'S MILL

VALDOSTA, Aug. 16.—W. J. Williams, of Rays Mill, Ga., was probably fatally stabbed by an unknown negro in this city at 1 o'clock Friday morning. Williams and a companion passed a group of negro youths at the Georgia Southern and Florida passenger station and said something to the negroes which they resented. One of them plunged his knife into Williams' side and drew it across his breast, making a gash nine inches long and exposing the heart-action. Two negroes are in jail charged with complicity in the affair, but they claim that the youth who did the stabbing escaped.

MUSCOGEE JURY BOARD RESUMES WORK MONDAY

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—Muscogee County's Jury Commissioners will meet again Monday to take up the work they began sometime ago, but were forced to drop because of the continued illness of one of the members. It is expected that every effort will be made to increase the list, as there has been much complaint in recent years over the difficulty experienced in obtaining jurors, when only about one-fourth of the taxpayers and voters of the county have their names in the jury box. A remedy has been demanded often.

100 BALES OF COTTON SOLD AT TIFTON IN WEEK

TIFTON, Aug. 17.—The cotton market has opened up lively in Tifton this week and it is believed that the receipts will show a total of nearly 100 bales. There is quite a lot of old cotton in this section and this is opening fast as a result of the warm weather of the past several days. However, the bulk of the crop is young and it will be several weeks yet before the season is on in full.

ALBANY MAY HAVE RIVERSIDE DRIVE

ALBANY, Aug. 16.—That Mayor Tarver's idea of a beautiful winding driveway along the Flint River may terminate in some definite action seems probable. Superintendent of Parks Harmon has been asked to consider plans and offer suggestions. This has been done and he not only thinks the plan feasible but is a very ethusiastic advocate.

Dougherty's Jail Doing Double Duty

Ten Prisoners From Early County Added to Number Already Confined There.

ALBANY, Aug. 16.—Dougherty's new county jail is now doing double duty, containing not only the county prisoners and those of the city of Albany, but those of Early County, ten of whom have been brought here for safe-keeping.

Soon after the new jail was completed the city of Albany made arrangements for the city prisoners to be jailed and cared for in a portion of the county jail. The city barracks were small, insanitary and not safe in case of violent prisoners. That portion of the city hall formerly used as the guardhouse has been remodeled for offices. The county feeds all the city's prisoners and City Court is held each day in the detention corridor of the jail.

The Sheriff of Early County, realizing the condition of the new jail, selected this one for the safe-keeping of his prisoners while Early's jail is being remodeled.

Feast on Collards Instead of Cabbage

Thomas County Convicts Revel in Delicious "Greens"—Fresh Corn as Dessert.

THOMASVILLE, Aug. 16.—The convicts in the camps of Thomas County have had a change of diet from the cabbage which was so much enjoyed by them in the spring and early summer, and have transferred their allegiance to collard greens.

The report made by the superintendent of the county farm this week shows that for the month of July 1,250 head of these collards were fed to the convicts of the various camps, and as the average darky is proverbially fond of these greens they doubtless enjoyed their meals. With the collards were eaten 600 ears of green corn and several bushels of onions.

As vegetables are considered good summertime diet they probably went a long way toward preserving the health of the convicts, as all the camps are reported in a healthy condition.

Cashier, Sentenced, Making Hard Fight

J. H. Cason's Lawyers Determined to Carry Case Through Highest State Courts.

MOULTRIE, Aug. 16.—Arguments in the motion for a new trial of J. H. Cason, now under five-year sentence in the penitentiary for embezzling nearly $8,000 from the Bank of Cresland, will be heard in Valdosta before Judge Thomas on September 8.

Attorneys for the former bank cashier state they will leave nothing undone to save their client and that the case will be fought through all the courts before it is concluded.

CORDELE COTTON MARKET SHOWS GREAT ACTIVITY

CORDELE, Aug. 16.—With more than 100 bales ginned and marketed, the cotton season is getting well under way in Cordele and within two weeks will be in full sway. The movement of the crop has already had a decided effect upon the business interests of the city and county, a general optimism prevailing among the people as a result. The opinion is common that the yield of cotton will surpass that of the past several years and that the quality of the staple will hold up unusually well, demanding good prices.

WOODMEN OF WORLD HOLD 'CUE AND PICNIC AT TY TY

TIFTON, Aug. 17.—Friday was Woodmen of the World Day in Ty Ty, nine miles west of Tifton, in Tift County, the choppers holding a big barbecue and basket picnic, between 1,500 and 2,000 people attending. Besides enjoying a good basket dinner and some of Jack Frost's barbecue, better than which there is none, those attending heard an excellent address by Hon. Roscoe Luke on the W. O. W. order and an address on general topics by Colonel Claude Payton, of Sylvester.

NEW TARIFF SCHEDULE WELCOMED BY SHIPPERS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 16.—Columbus tariff schedule No. 2, on which the Board of Trade has been working, has been received in the city and the merchants are prepared to take advantage of it at every opportunity. The new tariff schedule applies to all of the railroads entering the city.

For social news of the South, see Page 11, this section, and the society section.

MELROSE YOUTH UNDER BOND FOR FATAL STABBING

Harry Miller, 17 Years Old, Must Face Trial for Slaying Turpentine Man.

VALDOSTA, Aug. 16.—Hardy Miller, the 17-year-old lad who stabbed and instantly killed L. A. Smith at Melrose recently, has been released from custody under a $5,000 bond on a charge of manslaughter.

The preliminary hearing of the case was before Judge J. G. Cranford, of the City Court. Several eye-witnesses to the killing testified that the man had a quarrel and that Smith struck Miller with a stick. A few minutes later Miller passed by Smith and struck him in the breast with his knife, the blade penetrating Smith's heart. The men were employed at the turpentine distillery of Miller's brother, Smith having charge of the mules on the place. The fatal quarrel was caused by Smith's refusal to let the boy ride one of the mules at night after it had been worked all day.

Valdosta to Issue Bonds for Paving

Election Called to Vote on $50,000 for Streets and Waterworks.

VALDOSTA, Aug. 16.—An election for an issue of $50,000 municipal bonds has been called by the City Council for September 15.

If it carries Valdosta will in a few months be the best paved city of its size in the State, and will have a waterworks system adequate to take care of the growth of the city for several years.

Of the proposed issue $35,000 is to be used for extending the paving now in operation, while the remainder, $15,000, is to be used for extending the water mains and in improving the waterworks station. A 3,000,000-gallon pump was bought with a portion of the last bond issue and the plant is now being prepared for its installation. In the business section the six-inch mains are being taken up and replaced with twelve-inch mains, while the system is being extended to the northern and eastern portions of town, which were recently taken into the corporate limits.

Three of the principal residence streets are now being paved with asphalt, but the recent bond issue has not been sufficient to pave other streets on which the work is demanded.

The proposed issue will be 30-year bonds to bear 5 per cent interest.

MOULTRIE RAISES $100,000 FOR A PACKING HOUSE

MOULTRIE, Aug. 16.—A hundred thousand dollars has been subscribed by Moultrie business men to build a packing house and abattoir. All preliminary plans have been completed and construction is scheduled to begin soon.

It is believed this will encourage stock raising in Southwest Georgia, providing as it will a cash market at all seasons.

FARMER BEGINS SERVING SENTENCE AS COW THIEF

MOULTRIE, Aug. 16.—J. J. Hiers, farmer, of Colquitt, began serving a twelve months' sentence on the chaingang this week, after being denied a new trial by Judge Thomas, of the Southern Circuit.

Hiers was convicted at the last term of Superior Court on an indictment charging him with cow rustling, but the jury recommended that he be punished as for a misdemeanor.

Albany Boosters Get Big Meeting

Put Up Winning Fight for State Agricultural Society Session In 1914.

ALBANY, Aug. 16.—Knowing that the bringing of the State Agricultural Society to Albany for its 1914 meeting would be a great boom for Albany, as well as furnishing a good place for its meeting, several of Albany's citizens went to Cuthbert this week and attended the session which has been in progress. On Thursday it was realized that a hard fight would be necessitated to secure them, as North Georgia was making a strong bid, and immediate steps were taken to apply the pressure. All Dougherty residents who were at the meeting started boosting Albany as the proper place, this being supplemented with telegrams from the Mayor, president of the Chamber of Commerce and others who are recognized as leaders in Albany. The net result was that they decided on Albany, and in addition expressed their thanks for the strong effort that was made to secure them.

Tift's Courthouse Handsome Building

One of the Most Complete and Comfortable in the State.

TIFTON, Aug. 16.—There are many handsome and comfortably furnished courtrooms in this section of the State, but none will surpass the one in Tift County's attractive new courthouse when that building has been completed. The work is now nearing completion, and some idea can be gained of its attractive simplicity and elegance.

Five large windows on either side of the courtroom give plenty of light and ventilation. Between each window is a pilaster column capped with a scroll design, and over each window an arch surmounted by a keystone. Crossing the ceiling are five large beams and between these is an attractive design in dental work. In this work there are over 7,000 pieces, nine to the foot, and there are 875 running feet to be covered.

There are three large lights in the ceiling, with a light on each column and a desk light at the judge's stand.

The staircases will be of steel with terazza steps.

CORDELE PLANS TO PUT $40,000 IN WATERWORKS

Site Selected for Big Plant, and Work Will Begin in Short Time.

CORDELE, Aug. 16.—The Cordele Bond Commission has selected and purchased a site for a new waterworks plant for the city, located immediately adjacent to the site on which the old station is situated. The location provides ample room for the improvements to be made, and was purchased by the commission from Judge E. F. Strozier, administrator of the estate of W. E. Smith, the consideration being $4,500.

A $40,000 issue of bonds will be expended in building the new plant and making further improvements upon the waterworks system. The building alone will probably cost $3,500, and is to be fireproof, while the machinery will be of the most modern type and will be duplicated all the way round, costing not under $18,000. The new reservoir will be capacitated at 250,000 gallons, and an elevated tank of almost three times that capacity will be erected.

RECORD PECAN CROP IN SOUTH GEORGIA

THOMASVILLE, Aug. 16.—That there will be more pecan nuts in South Georgia this season than ever before is the general opinion of the growers. This is owing not merely to the fact that the crop is a good one, but is the result of the larger number of trees that have come into bearing. The crop of paper-shell pecans planted all through this section is a large one, but many of the young trees are just beginning to bear well. Some of the growers are very enthusiastic over the crop on these young trees this year and the knowledge that they will put on a larger one each year as they grow older means that it will not be very long before the output of these nuts will be the means of bringing much money into South Georgia.

RHEUMATISM COMES FROM CONDITIONS WHICH CAN BE REMEDIED

But Local Applications on the Skin Cannot Get at the Cause of Your Suffering.

Just a bilious attack and a slight deposit of uric acid. Now calomel and similar mercurial purgatives do not dissolve and expel the uric acid sediment that forms from undigested, fermenting foods, and when this poisonous acid is not expelled it accumulates quickly, thickens the blood and settles in joints and muscles. The joints and muscles then become stiff.

An attempt to cure this rheumatism must be directed toward removing uric acid from blood and tissues, breaking up the crystalline urates already formed and preventing new deposits.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is remarkably successful in the treatment of rheumatism. It dissolves uric acid out of the tissues, holds it in solution and expels it in the urine. It thoroughly cleanses the system of fermentation and purifies the blood. It will give prompt relief in all cases of rheumatism resulting from uric acid poisoning.

If you are suffering with rheumatism, try JACOBS' LIVER SALT immediately. It will relieve you more promptly and surely than anything else. Don't take an inferior substitute; some closely imitate the name, but none produces the same result. Insist on the genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT, 25c. If your druggist can not supply you, full size jar mailed upon receipt of price, postage free. Made and guaranteed by Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., Atlanta.—(Advt.)

PHYSICIANS AID M'NAUGHTON IN FIGHT FOR LIFE

Savannah Medicos Lending Influence to Secure Pardon for Condemned Doctor.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Savannah physicians are lending their aid toward securing the freedom of Dr. W. J. McNaughton, who is in jail here under sentence of death for the murder of Fred Flanders in Emanuel County three years ago.

At the request of the Rev. John S. Wilder, pastor of the South Side Baptist Church, who has been a consistent friend of the condemned man, several Savannah physicians have given affidavits relative to the effect of the amount of arsenic poisoning which it is claimed killed Flanders. They declare this amount of the poison would not produce death. It is understood the Prison Commission, which is now considering the case of Dr. McNaughton, is perfectly willing to grant him a commutation to life imprisonment, but his friends are striving for a full pardon for him.

Dr. McNaughton may return to his old home in Emanuel County and resume the practice of his profession if the Prison Commission acts favorably upon his application for a pardon.

"I am an innocent man, and naturally expect to be given a full pardon," he said. "All I hope is that the facts were presented to the Prison Commission properly. If they were, I feel confident I will be liberated. I have already been deprived of several years of my life, and I am praying constantly that the great wrong that has been done me may be righted as far as possible by the granting of a full pardon."

Marion Lucas Will Get Savannah Plum

Congressman Edwards Picks Successor to Marcus Baker as Savannah Postmaster.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—The fact that Congressman Charles G. Edwards has announced his intention of indorsing Marion Lucas for postmaster to succeed Marcus S. Baker, Jr., who is expected to be ousted shortly as a result of a recent investigation of his private and official life, has created little surprise here. It had been known for more than a week that Lucas stood the best chance to land the plum.

Besides the indorsements sent to Congressman Edwards direct, Lucas has furnished him with more than 1,000 letters from Savannahians in every walk of life.

Chatham Jail Too Full for Comfort

New Sheriff Asks County Commission to Remodel and Enlarge Prison.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 15.—As a result of an inspection of the county jail by the newly elected Sheriff, Colonel Merrett W. Dixon, the County Commission will be asked to do something to relieve the congestion there.

It may be necessary to build an annex to the jail or convert the southern wing of the building now occupied by the jailer as a residence, into prison quarters. Sheriff Dixon was accompanied on his inspection by Judge Walter G. Charlton, of the Superior Court, and Solicitor General Walter G. Hartridge.

Of the 183 prisoners in the jail there was only one who registered a kick.

SHUPTRINE TO HEAD BIG POLITICAL CLUB

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Although the officials will not make public the result of the election, it is learned that Herman C. Shuptrine, Representative in the Legislature from Chatham County, was elected president of the Cracker Progressive Club, a political organization, last night. Shuptrine has stated that he will accept.

TRADE BOARD SECRETARY RETAINED AT BRUNSWICK

BRUNSWICK, Aug. 16.—Secretary J. G. Weatherly has been reappointed by unanimous vote of the Brunswick Board of Trade. Mr. Weatherly came to this city last year from Columbus, Miss., and since taking charge of the local board he has made an enviable reputation, both for himself and the city.

Summer-Spoiled Skin Removed by Absorption

(From Home Queen.)

As undue summer exposure usually leaves an undesirable surface of tan, dust or grease, often freckles, too, it would seem more sensible to remove such surface than to hide it with cosmetics. There's nothing better for this than ordinary mercolized wax, which actually absorbs an unwholesome complexion. The thin layer of surface skin is itself absorbed, gently and gradually, so there's no inconvenience and no detention indoors. Just spread the wax lightly over the entire face at bedtime and take it off in the morning with warm water. If you will get one ounce of mercolized wax at the drug store and use for a week or so, you may expect marked improvement daily. When the underlying skin is wholly in view your complexion will be a marvel of spotless purity and beautiful whiteness.

Don't let those summer wrinkles worry you; worry will breed more wrinkles. Better to banish them by bathing the face in a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in ½ pt. witch-hazel. Used daily for a while this will be found wonderfully effective. (Adv.)

Savannah Minister Has Saloons Raided

Pastor Objects to Near-Beer Dispensaries Near His Church. Dealers Arrested.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 15.—On complaint of the Rev. M. F. Roberts, pastor of the Fourth Baptist Church, three near-beer dealers, with places around the corner from his church have been placed under arrest and required to give bond for their appearance on charges of violating the State prohibition law.

The places raided are the same which received the attention of the authorities last Sunday. The men under arrest are Andrew Pappedes, M. Patro and C. L. Davis. A lot of near beer and whisky was confiscated and will be used as evidence against the men.

Recovery of Dare Question of Time

Savannah Man, Shot by Wife, Improves Rapidly After Reconciliation.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Stretched comfortably on a cot in a cell at police barracks, quietly reading a novel while the summer breezes blow through the bars upon her, Mrs. Joe Dare, who several weeks ago shot her husband following a quarrel in their apartment, presents a striking contrast to-day to her extremely nervous condition two weeks ago, when it was believed that Dare would die and that she would be called upon to face trial for his murder.

The physicians who are attending Dare at the Savannah Hospital have given out the information that he is continually improving. His recovery is now practically assured unless there is a sudden change for the worse. The physicians are confident that his reconciliation with his pretty wife on what was believed to be his deathbed has had much to do with bringing about the change in his condition.

Dare was shot by his wife in a fit of jealousy after he had remained out later at night than she thought he ought to.

Grimshaw Will Not Give Up Residence

Transferred to Americus, Savannah Alderman Holds His Office in City Government.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Harry G. Grimshaw, superintendent of the Savannah division of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway, who has recently been transferred to Americus as superintendent of the Alabama division, effective to-day, will maintain a residence in Savannah, and will not resign from the aldermanic board of the city. He will also retain his position of chairman of the board of control of the Union Station.

Superintendent Grimshaw will retain a residence in Savannah, and will come down each week-end, remaining over until Monday morning. He will also be able to make special trips to Savannah when necessity arises, and will thus be a regular attendant upon the meetings of Council. Mr. Grimshaw's force of clerks, stenographers and dispatchers will depart for their new location to-morrow morning.

WRECKER WANTED TO SEE WHAT TRAIN WOULD DO

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—"Just wanted to see a wreck, just to see what the train would do," was the explanation of John Hosey, 14 years old, when arrested last night charged with placing a beam on the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad tracks at Thirty-third and Plant streets in an attempt to wreck the shuttle train running between Savannah and Newyards. A special officer saw two boys place the beam on the track. He arrested Hosey, but the other lad escaped.

8-Foot Shark Caught At St. Simons Island

Sam Levinne Lands Largest Catch of Years in Waters Around Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, Aug. 16.—An eight-foot shark has been caught on St. Simons Island by Sam Levinne, of this city. Before the fish could be landed it required a horse to pull it ashore.

The young man had his line out for a shark for more than an hour when suddenly it was almost jerked from his hand. Several times he managed to get the shark to the surface, each time shooting it, and before it was killed eight bullets had been poured into its body.

The shark weighed more than 300 pounds, and was the largest caught in these waters in ten years.

Firemen Endangered By a Falling Steeple

Lightning Sets Brunswick Church Spire Ablaze and Causes It to Topple.

BRUNSWICK, Aug. 16.—When McKendree Methodist Church was struck by lightning and set on fire, Fire Chief Harrison and three of his men narrowly missed death.

The lightning set fire to the steeple. The chief and three firemen climbed to the roof of a one-story addition adjoining the main part of the building. Before the fire was under control the steeple fell. Chief Harrison saw wha was coming and quickly ordered his men to seek safety. Just as the got under cover the steeple crashed on the roof where they had been standing.

NEGRO ACCUSED OF SLAYING 16 YEARS AGO IS CAUGHT

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Charged with killing B. C. Booth, at Manor, Ware County, sixteen years ago, Will Eady, a negro, has been brought to Waycross from near Blountstown, Fla. He has been identified and will be placed on trial in December.

Eady's escape from a mob was narrow. The Booth family conducted a search for him. W. S. Booth has just paid a reward of $100 for the negro's arrest and the State's reward of $100 will be paid soon.

WAYCROSS PLANS TO SEND MAN ON BOOSTER TRIP

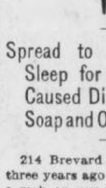

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Waycross may have a representative on the Georgia Booster Train, which will leave Macon soon for a tour of the Middle West.

Secretary T. Jeff Botley, of the Board of Trade, has been authorized to make the trip. He is getting splendid co-operation from the citizens. Thousands of Waycross booster booklets will be distributed by the secretary while on the trip.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

Spread to Back. Could Hardly Sleep for Burning and Itching. Caused Disfigurement. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Entirely Cured.

214 Brevard St., Tampa, Fla. — "Some three years ago I commenced to suffer from a rash on my face and back. Before the pimples came on my face there were a lot of blackheads. It looked as if the blackheads turned into pimples because after a little while all of them were gone and my face was covered with pimples. They were small at first but gradually grew and right at the end of each pimple it was all white. I carelessly picked them with my finger nails, which made them spread, and I soon discovered them on my back. My back was covered with pimples and my face the same way. At night I could hardly sleep on account of the burning and itching sensation they caused. I felt like a lot of small-sized crabs biting at my back. I did not like to go out because the pimples caused disfigurement.

"Seeing the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in one of the magazines I sent for a sample. At night I would put the Cuticura Ointment on my face and back and I was pleased with the result. I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I am glad to be able to say that I am entirely cured of pimples." (Signed) Jno. O. Darlington, Jan. 25, 1913.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

☞Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

STREET PAVING AGITATION IS ON IN WAYCROSS

Act of Legislature Gives Authority to Make Levies on Property Owners.

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—While none of the members of the Georgia Legislatures except those from Ware knew what the passage of the local act on levies for street pavement in Waycross meant they really paved Gilmore, a leading street of the city, by voting to pass the act.

The amendment to the city charter was proposed by Council to establish beyond any question the right of the city to make a levy against property of the street railway company for paving on a street occupied by the tracks of the company, whether the part of the street occupied by the tracks was paved or left unpaved.

In trying to pave Gilmore, Council has handled one of the hardest problems Waycross has ever tackled. First one proposition would be agreed upon, then another, and all kinds of petitions from property owners were received. Sentiment is anything but unanimous with reference to the paving of Gilmore, but Council is apparently determined to pave the street with brick.

Estimates on the cost of paving Gilmore have varied from $20,000 to above $30,000. With the street car company's portion of the expense certain for the city, the financial end of the pavement has been closed, and Council probably will be asked at an early date to authorize the Mayor to sign a contract and have work started without delay.

Convicts to Work Streets.

At last Waycross is going to get some return from the part the city has been contributing to the improvement of roads in Ware County. The convict gang of the county, under the new county commissioner law, will have to be worked on the principal streets of Waycross three months of each year, and in order that some benefit might result this year, the law stipulates that for 45 days between now and the end of the year the gang must be worked in Waycross.

An effort to reduce the membership of the board to five was defeated, and the board will be increased after January 1, 1915, to seven instead of six members, as at present. Four of the seven will be from the Waycross district. The chairman, instead of being a resident of the Waycross district, may reside in any district of the county. However, with four members from Waycross, it is extremely doubtful if the chairmanship ever goes out of the Waycross district.

Senator J. L. Sweat's plan for a board of information, holding quarterly meetings with the Commissioners, were eliminated.

SHORTHAND WILL NOT BE TAUGHT IN SCHOOLS

SAVANNAH, Aug. 16.—Stenography and typewriting will not be taught in the public schools of Chatham County during the coming session "because of the shortness of finances." This is the decision of the Board of Education of the county.

Superintendent Otis Ashmore and Principal B. F. Pickett, of the High School, were instructed by the board to investigate the question and report. They hold that the only additional expense would be the purchase of typewriters. It would not be necessary to employ another teacher. Bookkeeping and commercial subjects already are taught in the schools.

Waycross Lid Is On 7 Days Every Week

Sunday Closing Supplement by 'Move On Order to 'Houses in Our Midst.'

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Although the first warrants issued in the crusade against the sale of cold drinks in Waycross on Sundays have been withdrawn on the promise of good behavior, it is announced to-day that the campaign for Sabbath observance will in no way be lessened. The prime reformers are H. Murphy and Dan T. Cowart.

Right on top of the fight on Sunday drink sales, Chief of Police John W. Colley has issued warnings to women who have returned here despite the "lid order" issued last fall by Mayor Reed shortly after Atlanta closed the "houses in our midst." Several houses bordering on the disorderly variety have just been closed and the inmates compelled to leave the city. Only a few of the women waited until the last day to leave, as the police let it be known that all caught here after the limit expired would be arrested and tried in Police Court.

Fire Chief May Hold His Job After All

Expected Shake-up Fails to Materialize in Waycross—Council Remains Inactive.

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—The expected shake-up in the Waycross fire department has not yet materialized. It was reported a week ago that former Chief Thomas Ballentyne, of the Savannah fire department, would become chief of the Waycross department. So far, however, the matter has not been presented to Council for action.

Recent improvements in the fire department caused members of Council to feel that a more experienced man was needed as chief, and the report of the expected change caused the friends of Chief E. C. Hall to get busy. What effect, if any, this had is unknown, but it is stated on authority that the fire department shake-up may not be talked about again until the first of the year, when Council elects the Fire Chief along with other city officials.

Fought Four Men; Held for Killing

Charlton County Slayer Released on Bond of $5,000—Now in Hospital.

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—An order was passed by Judge E. A. Parker, of the Waycross circuit to-day allowing C. W. Webb, charged with killing J. M. Crawford at Moniac, in Charlton County, temporary bail of $5,000. Authority was also given to transfer Cobb from Valdosta, where he has been in a hospital, to Hazlehurst. Thursday is the date fixed for a commitment trial at Folkston.

When he killed Crawford, Cobb was fighting four men, who attacked him as he started to board a passenger train. After he was cut to pieces he was left by the track all night.

NEW TRIAL FOR LANIER OVERRULED BY JUDGE

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Judge T. A. Parker overruled the motion for new trial in the case of State vs. W. C. Lanier, under life sentence for killing an infant. Attorneys will appeal the case to the Supreme Court. Lanier's wife, who was jointly indicted with him, was acquitted when she was tried at an adjourned term of court in June.

WAYCROSS TO TRY NEW FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Semi-Commission and Business Manager Plans To Be Voted on at Special Election.

WAYCROSS, Aug. 16.—Waycross is on the verge of two interesting elections, and will top off the year with a warm municipal campaign.

The first election will be that of a Recorder to fill the recently-created position of City Recorder. The bill, as passed by the Georgia Legislature, provides that any lawyer 21 years of age may fill the place, and while there are no announced candidates for the position, it is known that members of Council have been approached by several who would like to serve until the election next year.

After the election of a Recorder will be the charter election. This will probably be called by Council at a meeting to be held next Tuesday, and will be for the purpose of deciding what changes, if any, in the present government of Waycross will be made. The charter bill provides for the city manager plan of government, which is a combination of the aldermanic and commission government, and an increased Board of Aldermen with appointive departmental heads. The proposition to have an all-time Mayor has been given up, and instead the charter provides that whoever is named Mayor must give sufficient time to look after the office properly. The salary of the Mayor is doubled, $1,200 being allowed under the new charter, as compared to $600 at present. The salaries for Aldermen are wiped out completely by the new charter. Heretofore Aldermen have been paid $200 a year.

There are many advocates of the two kinds of city government, and the election to be held will undoubtedly go down in the city's history as one of the warmest ever known in Waycross.

NEW RAILROAD TO BRUNSWICK FROM DARIEN

Connecting Link Will Be Completed by October 1—Preparations for Entry.

BRUNSWICK, Aug. 16.—Preparations are already under way for the entry of the Georgia Coast and Piedmont Railroad into Brunswick on October 1.

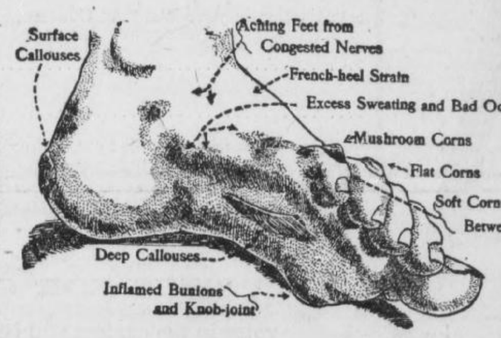

The rails are laid almost in entirety from Darien to Brunswick, and all that remains to make the connecting link perfect is the completion of the steel bridge over the Altamaha River. Work on the passenger and freight depots in this city is well under way, as likewise the work on the terminals along the river front.

By connecting Brunswick and Darien, many miles will be saved in going from one place to the other. The only direct connection with the McIntosh County seat is by boat from this city, which requires four and one-half hours to make the trip. With the Georgia Coast and Piedmont in operation, it will be possible to traverse the distance in less than an hour.

The road now runs from Collins, in Toombs County, to Darien, and with the extension to this city one of the richest territories agriculturally in Georgia will be opened up.

The road was started last summer, after having been under discussion for five years. The County Commissioners of Glynn and the city of Brunswick appropriated a large sum to aid in bringing the road here. The general offices of the road will be brought to Brunswick from Darien before the entry into this city.

Tells Positive Cure For all Foot Troubles

Science has proven that nearly all foot troubles originate from a common cause; that of injured tissues. The following information will be welcomed by thousands of victims of daily foot torture. No matter how many patent medicines you have tried in vain, this treatment which was formerly known only to doctors will do the work. Don't waste time. Get it at once. "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet for a full fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effects are marvelous. All pain disappears instantly and the feet feel simply delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. Bunions, aching feet and sweaty, smelly feet get immediate relief. Use this treatment a week and your foot troubles will be a thing of the past. Calocide works through the pores and removes the cause. Any druggist has Calocide in stock or will get it from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take something else instead. A twenty-five cent box is said to be enough to cure the worst feet.

MR. HEARST TELLS WHY HE KEEPS OIL LETTERS FROM LOBBY INQUIRY

Publisher Does Not Wish to Associate Already Proven Documents With Series of Exaggerated Accusations as Mulhall Confession Seems To Be.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—The following is a letter from Mr. William Randolph Hearst in reply to a letter sent to him by Congressman Clyde H. Tavenner asking Mr. Hearst to put the Standard Oil letters before the Garrett lobby investigation committee in the House of Representatives:

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 5, 1913.

Hon. Clyde H. Tavenner, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Sir:

Did you write me a letter and make the letter public, asking me to submit all the Standard Oil letters that I have in my possession to the House committee now investigating the charges of lobbying made by a certain Mulhall?

I would be very glad to submit again to the Congressional committee or to any responsible body the Standard Oil letters which I have already submitted many times to the public and to bodies which more or less accurately and sincerely represent the public.

I would prefer, however, not to submit these Standard Oil letters in connection with the Mulhall letters and charges for the simple reason that the Standard Oil letters are very important to the nation, very serious in their incriminations and wholly authoritative and genuine, while the Mulhall letters and documentary evidence have never appeared to me especially important or serious or genuine.

The Mulhall letters and charges were offered to one of my magazines, the one that published the Standard Oil letters, but the editors of the magazine with my approval declined to purchase or publish the Mulhall documents and confession. The reason we did not purchase the Mulhall letters was not at all because of the price. That question was not even considered.

The reason we failed to purchase them was because we had not full confidence in them. We felt that the more or less innocent or at least moderate wording of the documents did not justify the extravagant allegations on which Mulhall based the documents, and we felt if that any part of Mulhall's evidence or testimony was untrue that all of it was open to suspicion.

Furthermore, our magazine had just performed what we had every right and reason to believe a great public service. We had performed this service with the utmost sincerity and consciousness and with the most scrupulous care.

We had exposed the corrupting influence of privilege-seeking corporations in politics. We had revealed the connection between these corrupt corporations and certain important public officials who were supposed to represent the people in office, but who in reality, prostituted their offices to serve the illegitimate interests of criminal trusts.

The editors of the magazine were agreed that we did not wish to diminish or discredit the effect of these genuine revelations by the publication of Mulhall's letters, which seemed to us less serious and sincere.

The Standard Oil letters can not be denied, because there always have been additional documents to disprove every denial made to confuse and confound every falsifier.

We did not wish our magazine to associate a great public service and a vital political exposure like this with an extravagant series of exaggerated accusations, as the Mulhall confessions appeared to us to be, and I would rather not associate the genuine with the questionable at your Congressional investigation.

Of course, I am expressing only my preference. I can control the course of my magazine, but I do not seek to control or influence the action of your committee. I shall always be ready to submit to any such committee any such information I have which can be considered of public interest or importance.

Very sincerely yours,
WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Foreign-Born Women Voting Is Restricted

Illinois Attorney General Outlines Conditions Under Which They Can Cast Ballots.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Aug. 16.—In answer to Mayor Schriver, of Rock Island, for an opinion on votes for women under the new suffrage law and to govern authorities in an approaching election, Attorney General Lucey to-day held:

"That a foreign-born woman who marries a citizen of the United States, whether such citizen be natural born or naturalized, by such an act of marriage becomes a citizen of the United States.

"An unmarried foreign-born woman whose father did not become naturalized until after she arrived at her majority, would not, by such act of naturalization upon the part of her father, become a citizen of the United States.

"A woman born in the United States whose father was not naturalized prior to her arriving at her majority is a citizen of the United States."

Science Pleads for Bats, Insect Killers

University Professor Says Can Not See, but Are Guided by Sound.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Aug. 16.—That the bat by killing night-flying insects is a benefit to humanity; that he can not really see at night, as is popularly believed, but directs his flight and hunts his prey by sound; that, as a rule, he devours his prey in full flight—these are among the interesting statements in a plea for the bat which Dr. Joseph Grinnell, of the university faculty, has included in a recent paper in which he says:

"A vast quantity of night-flying insects are destroyed by bats every 24 hours. It can be seen, therefore, that bats continue the warfare on insect life which is so incessantly waged by the birds during the daytime.

"All bats have enormously developed ears, and their sense of hearing is doubtless very acute. It is suggested that the drone of a June beetle sounds to a bat as does the roar of a biplane motor to us."

Girl Asleep 10 Days Apparently Is Dead

New York Sufferer Has 86 Convulsions Before Relapsing Into Comatose State.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Jeannette Guttman, the 13-year-old daughter of a plumbing contractor, living at 1046 Tiffany street, the Bronx, for ten days has been lying in a state of coma in the Hydropathic Institute, 2011 Madison avenue.

With the exception of a faint blush of crimson on the girl's cheek, she apparently is lifeless. Life has been sustained by feeding her brandy and predigested milk, and the process of nourishment has been so successful that the girl has not lost any weight.

According to Dr. Gilbert Miller, Miss Guttman has been an epileptic for about ten years. Three days before she relapsed into a comatose state she had 86 convulsions.

From Dr. Miller it was learned that her temperature was just normal, while there was no accentuation of the pulse. Efforts have been made to produce some kind of response from the girl, without result.

Father and Son Vote For Every President

Pennsylvania Pair Hold Suffrage Record That Is Unequaled in United States.

TUNKHANNOCK, PA., Aug. 16.—George C. Miller, of Tunkhannock, claims that he and his father, George Miller, Sr., and the only father and son in the United States who have voted at every Presidential election, commencing with Washington, in 1788, to the present time.

The father voted until 1852, being then 90 years of age. He and son George C., then 22, both cast their ballot for Winfield Scott for President. The son has voted at every Presidential election since, and is now 83 years old.

The father, when about 30 years old, removed from near Harrisburg to Tunkhannock, where he opened the first gun store in that place. He died at the age of 93.

The son is the last of a family of ten children, and is in good health, with a prospect of voting for some years to come.

DEER HINDERS TRAFFIC; DODGES TEAMS IN ROAD

ALBANY, ORE., Aug. 16.—Running along on a well-traveled country road a big buck deer dodged its way between three teams of horses and escaped unhurt last week. The deer was encountered near Brewster Station, on the Woodburn-Springfield line between Crabtree and Labanon, by three men who were hauling lumber to the railroad line.

As the season is not yet open for deer no attempt was made to shoot it.

Troubles With Latter Send Golfers Scurrying for Tamer Kind of Caddies.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 16.—Bird dogs to replace caddies and retrieve lost golf balls will soon make their appearance on the municipal links at Overton Park, according to an announcement made by City Hall officials.

J. P. Clages, dog fancier and expert trainer, has been schooling the animals at the links for several weeks and the dogs will be given a trial, and if they prove adept, they will be used regularly.

The canine caddies are the result of numerous troubles with boys, who were put under charge of the Juvenile Court for various offenses committed at the links.

FINDS KNIFE BLADE IN CHEEK AFTER 31 YEARS

REPUBLIC, KANS., Aug. 16.—To have part of a knife blade imbedded in his cheek for 31 years and not know it is the experience of Ora Figgins, who has just returned from Minneapolis, Minn., where he underwent an operation for the removal of a growth on his cheek.

Border Officer Who Killed Six Men Dies

Louis Kreeger Also Convicted His Son, Who Will Attend Funeral Under Guard.

TRINIDAD, COLO., Aug. 16.—Luis M. Kreeger, 68 years old, for nearly forty years one of the prominent peace officers of the Southwest, is dead at his home here. He had served variously as Sheriff, Under Sheriff, town marshal and special deputy in this county, and during that time he had figured in almost every adventure with criminals of any importance, and no less than six men are known to have been victims of his marksmanship.

Kreeger was a native of Missouri and came here in 1868. He achieved fame late in the seventies by killing Rice Brown, jockey and cowpuncher, then employed by the Thomas outfit. In trailing a quartet who were accused of robbing the Victor-American Coal Company's pay wagon near Gray Creek in 1910, Kreeger obtained part of the evidence which resulted in the conviction of his own son, "Quick Trigger" Kreeger. The son, under guard, will attend the funeral.

WANT TO MAKE MONEY? START TERRAPIN FARM

Government Authority Declares There Are Big Profits in the Diamond Backs.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The diamond-back terrapin, aristocrat of the dining table and king of the banquet menu, need not disappear from the sandy shores of the United States and be lost to disciples of Epicurus forever if the business men of the nation will allow themselves to be awakened to the fact that there are fat dividends in the breeding of the animals.

Uncle Sam is sponsor for this statement. Experts in the Bureau of Fisheries are anxious that business men shall read its report.

At Beaufort, N. C., the experts started out four years ago with 40 females and 18 males, terrapin such as may be found from Southern Virginia all along the coast down to Florida. From this small breeding stock the experts procured 295 eggs in 1910. Of the 295 eggs only 7 failed to hatch.

In 1911 513 eggs were procured, and of these 421 were hatched. Even better results were obtained in 1912, when 650 eggs were procured and 538 hatched. The number of eggs laid and hatched in 1913 is expected to be far greater. Of course, a terrapin must be five or six years old before he is in the best shape for the table, but this slow growth is offset by the fact that "one man may care for several thousand terrapin."

Terrapin farms, the Government report says, should be situated on the shore line of tidal salt water, where a supply of fresh water also is available; low, swamp land where fish and crabs are plentiful being preferable. Best results are obtained by breeding the terrapin in pens specially built, but not expensive in construction.

Unlike the chicken breeders and the breeders of other food animals, the terrapin breeder need not worry about disease in his stock. The Government experts say: "So far as is known, diamond-back terrapins are not subject to epidemic disease, and after reaching the age of two or three years have no important enemy except man."

500 Birds Kept in Cage on Housetop

St. Louis Collector Has Scores of Varieties and Many of Them Are Carnivorous.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—A huge cage, containing 500 birds, is built on top of the home of D. J. Pishorski, No. 1911 North Twelfth street. Not one of these birds is for sale.

Instead Pishorski adds to his collection almost every week, and will continue to do so until he possesses a pair of every variety of birds.

Almost every land is represented in this assemblage of feathered warblers. They range from the nightingale of Japan to the Missouri jaybird.

In this collection are probably 100 birds that can not exist on seeds, lettuce and grass. They belong to the carnivorous class and must feed upon insects.

ADMITS HE IS A SLAYER TO SAVE DYING BROTHER

Arthur Spaugh Tells the Pardon Board That He Shot Sheriff at Ironton, Mo.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO., Aug. 16.—In a last attempt to get a parole for his brother, William Spaugh, Jr., who is ill of tuberculosis and can live but a short time, Arthur Spaugh, the younger brother, also an inmate of the Penitentiary, told the Board of Pardons that he killed Sheriff Polk at Ironton, Mo., to save William's life. William Spaugh is serving a life sentence for shooting Polk, while Arthur Spaugh was sentenced to fifty-five years.

"Bill did not shoot Sheriff Polk. I shot him when I thought he intended to kill Bill. He had already shot Bill through the shoulder and was advancing on him when I fired. My brother had his hands in the air, begging the sheriff not to shoot him," said Arthur Spaugh.

Doesn't Care for Himself.

"I do not want my brother to die here. He is not guilty of the killing of Sheriff Polk. I alone am guilty. Bill was not even armed when the sheriff was shot. I thought the sheriff intended to kill my brother, and after warning him not to advance three times, shot him. I hope the Governor will release Bill so that he can spend what few days he has to live a free man. It does not matter what becomes of me."

The prison physician says that William Spaugh can not live to exceed sixty days and his death is expected sooner. William Spaugh has arranged to have his body shipped back to their old home at Ironton Mo., for burial, provided he does not secure his release.

Mother Also Pleads.

Arthur Spaugh has tuberculosis also, and is unable to do heavy work. He is in the first stage of the disease, but is able to work about the halls and do light work in the open air.

Mary E. Spaugh, aged mother of the Spaughs, has been here much of late pleading with the Board of Pardons and Paroles for her dying son. She says she would like to take him to her home in St. James, Mo., and nurse him until he dies.

Arthur Spaugh has been in the penitentiary since July 27, 1906. William Spaugh was received July 26, 1907. Both have been model prisoners.

HIGH COST OF LIVING BAR TO FREE LUNCHES

LA CROSSE, WIS., Aug. 16.—While saloonkeepers of Connecticut are preparing to go into court to resist the law which forbids free lunches in saloons, liquor men of La Crosse are circulating a petition which will be presented to the Common Council asking for the passage of an ordinance making the free lunch unlawful. All saloonkeepers in town except two have signed it.

Downtown proprietors who have been setting up expensive lunches are the instigators of the movement. They declare the cost of meats and vegetables is so high they can no longer afford it.

Perhaps the 'Pied Piper' Can Explain

'What Becomes of Rats That Die Natural Deaths?' Scientist Wants to Know.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—An article in the current public health bulletin, issued to-day, makes a mystery of the question:

"What becomes of rats which die natural deaths?"

The article was prepared by Surgeon Victor G. Heiser, chief quarantine officer of the Philippine Islands, who had charge of the rat-destroying campaign in Manila.

He states that the average rat mortality for the Philippine city is 2,500 a month. He seeks to find out what becomes of the bodies of those that die each day.

"It appears that at least many hundreds of rats disappear each month from Manila by natural means, the exact nature of which is not known, but if it could be discovered the knowledge might be useful in the destruction of rats."

COUPLE ELOPE, THOUGH THEY CAN NOT CONVERSE

GARY, IND., Aug. 16.—Cupid was somewhat nonplussed for a while in Gary, when a young couple, neither of whom can speak the language of the other, eloped to Crown Point, where they answered the marriage vow by means of an interpreter.

On their way home the pair were arrested at the instance of the irate father, because of the bride's youth.

They were taken to the Gary police station, where neither could give the other a word of comfort. Later the father's heart melted, and they were released.

SULZER AND GLYNN EACH REFUSE TO BUDGE INCH

Deadlock Results in New York Impeachment Situation as Each Claimant Refuses to Make Move—Both Go to Capitol.

Accused Executive Accompanied by His Bodyguard Goes to State House and Plunges Into Business—No Outbreak Surprise.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Neither drastic nor violent steps will be taken by Lieutenant Governor Martin H. Glynn to force William Sulzer, the impeached Governor of New York, from office—at least not to-day. Owing to the fact that this was a half holiday at the State offices, Mr. Glynn spent but a few minutes at the Capitol, and while both Sulzer and Glynn forces refused to budge an inch, matters were at a deadlock.

Accompanied by his bodyguard, Governor Sulzer walked from the executive mansion to the Capitol, where he plunged into State business, just as though his right to exercise the gubernatorial prerogatives were not contested.

Lieutenant Governor Glynn, who claims the powers of Acting Governor under the Constitution until Mr. Sulzer is brought to trial on September 18, went from the Capitol to the offices of his newspaper and announced he would spend the afternoon at an athletic meet. He denied that, like Napoleon, he would lift the power of ruling New York State on the bayonets of the National Guard.

Lack of Trouble a Surprise.

Absence of an actual outbreak to-day was a surprise to many who expected to see the executive chamber a battleground for the Sulzer and Tammany forces.

Mr. Sulzer now virtually stands alone, having been deserted by the members of his cabinet, who have allied themselves to the Glynn forces. But Sulzer refuses to abdicate, despite the fact that the ranks of his political enemies have been strengthened during the last 24 hours.

Lieutenant Governor Glynn, who is now signing State documents with this signature, "Martin H. Glynn, Acting Governor, State of New York," announced that, in spite of any obstructions thrown in his way by the Sulzer legal forces, he would continue to administer gubernatorial affairs pending Mr. Sulzer's trial for alleged high crimes and misdemeanors September 18.

Both Sides Fear Trick.

Both sides are taking elaborate precautions to guard against a trick. Throughout the night armed guards stood watch over each State department, while lawyers and legislators involved in the struggle were trailed by private detectives. Mr. Sulzer was in retirement planning a new legal move with his counsel. Messenger boys with Washington and New York city telegrams could not find the Governor, but members of the "inner circle" took charge of the dispatches, saying they would find the Governor.

Leaders of the anti-Sulzer faction made the threat that Mr. Glynn, now having control of the State Military Department, would actually invade the executive chamber.

"He will get a mighty warm reception," declared Sulzer adherents, who are few, but courageous.

Some Fear Martial Law.

Some residents of this city, realizing the intense seriousness of the situation, fear that conditions may become so grave that martial law will have to be declared.

It was assumed that Governor Sulzer to-day would reply to the second note from Lieutenant Governor Glynn, demanding the unconditional surrender of all prerogatives by Mr. Sulzer and the abdication of the Governor. Counsel were with the Governor at the beginning of the official day, and it was reported that the Governor was urged to take a fling at Tammany Hall.

Charlton at Last in Italy's Grasp

Wife Slayer Loses 3-Year Fight

Now on Ocean on Way to Trial

Porter Charlton, young American, who killed beautiful wife and is now on way to face trial in Italy.

Young Prisoner Is Confident He Will Escape Spending Life in Solitary Confinement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Porter Charlton, after three years' fight against extradition from America, is in the clutches of the Italian Government and to-day is on the high seas, bound for Italy and for trial on the charge of killing his beautiful young wife and sinking her body in Lake Como in June, 1910.

In spite of the ordeal that faces him, Charlton left New York as cheerful as a schoolboy. Three years in close confinement had repressed his natural buoyancy, but the prospect of a sea voyage, even with a trial for murder awaiting him at his journey's end, restored it to a considerable degree.

"I'll be back for Christmas!" he cried, waving a good-bye from the liner as it pulled out. All the time he has declared that he will be acquitted, in spite of the fact that he confessed to killing his wife on their honeymoon. Extenuating circumstances, his friends declare, will have their weight on the Italian jury.

Charlton's quarters on the liner are isolated, and he is not permitted to mingle with the other passengers. He travels third class, as the Italian Government does not provide first-class accommodations for prisoners.

Faces Living Death.

Unless the contention of his insanity can be proved, a living death surely will be the fate of Porter Charlton, a hideous confinement that is far worse than death on the gallows.

Extenuating circumstances, it is expected, can not be revealed of sufficient strength to obtain his acquittal, and unless his defense prove insanity, he must go to prison. There is no death sentence in Italy.

And imprisonment in Italy is a dreadful punishment, feared far more than the electric chair, the gallows, or the garrote. It is invested with mental torture of such degree that few who live through it more than a few years are sound of mind.

Charlton is known to have a sensitive, nervous temperament. His behavior toward his wife proves him high-strung. To a person of his psychological make-up incarceration under the Italian system would be certainly destructive of mental balance.

For the first ten years of a life sentence the prisoner may be kept in utter darkness and in the strictest solitude, with nothing to eat and drink but plain bread and water. A few weeks of this treatment generally is sufficient to reduce the most unemotional criminal to a state of nervous collapse.

Insanity Practically Only Hope.

His attorneys hope to present in the Italian courts the great mass of evidence brought to bear in the United States Supreme Court to prove him insane. Justice Lurton, in the opinion which declared that Charlton must go back to Italy to stand trial, admitted that the evidence to substantiate the insanity plea was preponderous.

The opinion of the Supreme Court brought to an end the three years' unsuccessful fight of Charlton and his family against extradition to Italy. It was in June, 1910, that he killed his wife, according to his own confession. After the crime he fled, but was caught at Hoboken, N. J., when the liner landed there. The brother of the slain wife there met him, and caused him to be placed under arrest.

The first night of his imprisonment in New Jersey a confession was produced, bearing his name, and generally supposed to be authentic.

"My wife and I lived happily together, but she had an uncontrollable temper," read the confession. "So had I. On the night of the murder she had the worst outbreak of temper I ever saw.

"I told her to keep quiet or I would make her quiet. Then she had another outbreak. I took up a wooden mallet, with which I had been repairing a table, and hit her on the head and body two or three times. At midnight I put the body in a trunk, dragged it to a small pier near the house, and threw it overboard."

His wife was a beautiful young woman, although eight years older than he, who was only 21. The two were on their honeymoon when the murder occurred.

Mrs. Charlton was the divorced wife of Neville H. Castle, a San Francisco lawyer. Charlton is the

Court Frees 'Old Maid' Who Resents Epithet

Judge Rules Spinster Was Right in Smiting Married Woman With Chair.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Unmarried women of mature years who are subjected to ridicule as "old maids" have won a victory in court. Miss Minnie Flatley, of the Colonial Hotel, is 31, and Mrs. Lizzie Varley, of the same address, has been calling her an "old maid."

Miss Flatley resented the sarcasm by smiting Mrs. Varley with a chair and punishing her seriously. When she was arraigned in court Judge Gemmill, after hearing the story, said "Discharged."

"I think this sort of provocation justifies any assault up to murder," said the judge. "It is despicable to humiliate a woman."

Rockefeller's Rival In Riches Tips Dime

Nitrate King Hands Man Ten Cents for Returning Lost Pocketbook.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Senor E. E. Ossio, the Nitrate King of Chili, who has declared John D. Rockefeller a pauper in comparison with himself, overwhelmed a steward on the United Fruit steamer Pastores yesterday by the size of a tip.

The steward had picked up the Nitrate King's wallet and, running after him, bowed low and handed over the pocketbook. Opening it, Senor Ossio pulled out a dollar bill, then changed his mind, and, taking a dime from his pocket, handed it to the steward.

Hidden Pistol Seen As Girl Lifts Dress

Young Woman Is Arrested When Masked Battery Is Exposed as She Crosses Street.

UNIONTOWN, PA., Aug. 16.—Holding her dress a little too high to avoid the water as she crossed Main street to-day, Mattie Pearce was arrested when she revealed a large revolver in a holster fastened around her leg at the knee.

She was taken to the police station, where she showed the officers the new mode of carrying a gun. Strapped to a leg was the holster in which she carried the revolver.

The girl explained that there were "bad men" at Uniontown and she was not taking any chances with them. She stated that she had worn the revolver in that position for some time.

Mattie said she did not know she was holding her dress quite as high as she was, and that she had forgotten for a moment about the masked battery. She was released on bail.

St. Louis Matron Does Remarkable Work She Calls 'A Young Girl's Love.'

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—One of the most-talked-of works of art in St. Louis hangs in the home of Dr. Robert E. Wilson and was painted by Mrs. Wilson. The canvas is called "The Story of a Young Girl's Love," and covers the entire wall space in the parlor of this magnificent Colonial home. Two years were devoted to the work.

The painting is divided into panels, the size of each picture depending on the amount of space to be covered. Artists pronounce the canvas a masterpiece. Mrs. Wilson's friends say that the painting illustrates her blissful married state.

FRAUD USED TO BEAT HEARST, SAYS MULHALL

Lobbyist Declares He Obtained Confidence of Democratic Leader in Campaign for Governor.

GAVE REPUBLICANS SECRET

Letter Was Forged to Give Him Introduction to Up-State Committeeman.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Colonel Martin M. Mulhall, self-confessed lobbyist of the National Association of Manufacturers, testified before the Garrett Lobby Investigating Committee that his political lines crossed those of William Randolph Hearst in 1906, and that he helped to defeat Mr. Hearst for the New York Governorship.

Introduced by a letter forged upon the letterhead of the Hearst campaign headquarters, Mulhall said that he went into Congressman Fairchild's district, the Twenty-fourth New York, an upstate district, and gained the confidence of a local campaign manager for Mr. Hearst.

Tells Plans to Republicans.

Learning from the latter the plans of campaign in the district, Mulhall reported them to Fairchild, and Republican plans to checkmate them and defeat their object were perfected. Mulhall was employed for a week on this work with the approval, he says, of Fairchild.

Mulhall told a few days ago how he started to work for Senator Foraker in Ohio. He was prepared to make his report to Foraker when the Hearst Standard Oil disclosure letters were first made public. Foraker admitted to the Senate committee that these letters defeated him for re-election to the Unied Staes Senate.

Unconcernedly, Mulhall told how he had taken his "fake letters" of introduction to Fairchild and got his instructions for political detective work. He met Mr Hearst's friends, including a clergyman, at a hotel, entertained them and worked his way into their confidence. He ascertained that the Republican district committee chairman was not friendly to Fairchild.

Letter Was Faked.

"Whose signature did this fake letter of introduction bear?" asked Representative Stafford.

"It was that of some member of the Democratic State Committee."

"Who were you represented to be?"

"I was supposed to be connected with Mr. Hearst, and so represented myself to Mr. Scott, the candidate, I think, opposing Fairchild."

"It was your first meeting with him, and you won his confidence to the extent of getting from him his campaign plans?" said Stafford.

"Yes."

"Who signed this fake letter?"

"The letter was given to me by Marshall Cushing, and I can not say who signed it. Mr. Cushing was a very good letter writer. He told me it was a fake letter. I knew that Cushing was not connected with the Hearst organization."

Mr. Stafford—He was connected in the way of using the letterhead of the Hearst organization to good effect.

"Mr. Cushing thought it was a smart political trick, and I guess that was his system of working," replied Mulhall.

Scott Well Deceived.

"Mr. Scott's confidence was so complete," continued Mulhall, "that he told me Mr. Hearst had sent him a number of workers and quite an amount of money, and I believe in this letter the latter stated that they were ready to send at that time more workers and more money."

"Scott swallowed everything, hook, line and all, as far as you represented it," commented Stafford.

"Yes."

"Did Mr. Fairchild know all about this arrangement?" asked Representative Kline.

"Yes, he knew about hte letter, and I had Mr. Fairchild's advice in presenting it. He has spoken to me since about that clever piece of work."

May Yohe to Re-Wed Lord Hope, Is Rumor

American Singer Wins Back Her Former Husband With Favorite Music Hall Song.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Rumors that Lord Francis Hope may re-wed his former wife, May Yohe, are current. A week ago Lord Hope visited the London Opera House, where Miss Yohe is appearing with considerable success. The former Lady Hope was in excellent voice and sang "Honey, Ma Honey" that she often sang to her husband during their life together.

Lord Francis is said to have been touched by the song. Overtures for a reconciliation, it is said, have been made through Lord Francis' brother the Duke of Newcastle, and the Duke's lawyer, Mr. Isitt, husband of Adeline Genee.

The Kaiser excuses himself from being present on account of the German army maneuvers. He and other monarchs will be represented by princes.

Col. Degrange Ill In Paris Hospital

Prominent New Orleans Man Is Compelled to Undergo Operation Following Sickness Aboard Ship.

Special Cable to The American.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—Colonel Joseph H. Degrange, of New Orleans, is ill in the American Hospital at Neuilly. Mr. Degrange's illness developed first on board a steamer on his way to Europe early in the summer.

On July 22 he was taken to the hospital for an operation for the removal of the carbuncle on the back of his neck. A second operation became necessary on Tuesday of this week. The operations, while painful, were not dangerous, and the attending physicians say that he will be able to be about within a few days.

Papers Have Right To Refuse Advertising

Court Rules That Objectionable Matter May Be Declined, Despite Previous Contract.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 16.—That newspapers have a right to decline advertising when they deem it objectionable, even if it is submitted to them under a yearly contract, is the effect of a decision handed down today in the District Court here. The case came up when a local department store was sued by a local paper to recover money due under a yearly contract, which the store management had declared void because certain portions of its advertising copy had been rejected by the paper.

Joy Rider Compelled To Pension Victim

In Lieu of Jail Sentence, Speeder Must Pay Girl $30 a Month Until Recovery.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 16.—Instead of sending J. S. McNutt, a convicted joy rider, to prison, Judge Wilbur, of the Superior Court, suspended a five-year sentence over him to-day, on condition that he pay $30 a month until she recovers to Miss Olive Davis, a young woman injured when McNutt's machine was wrecked. Physicians say Miss Davis' injuries are permanent.

The girl, in a plaster cast, testified to-day that McNutt was speeding while intoxicated.

'Pussy Sneak' Routs Staid Old Tangos

Creepy Glide Brings New York Team Applications to Teach New Dance.

ONSET, MASS., Aug. 16.—The "tangoes," "hugs," "trots," "grapevine" and other similar dances have been cast into darkness by the creation introduced this afternoon at the local dancing casino by a New York couple. It is called the "pussy sneak," and is danced with the rubber-soled shoes commonly worn at the seaside.

The "pussy sneak" is a creepy sort of dance, with a few glides, but catchy, and the New York team that "put the stunt on" had several applications tonight to teach it.

SUPREME TEST COMES AS STATE TRAINS GUNS ON FRANK'S CHARACTER

Defendant Will Take the Stand Early in Week to Give His Account of His Movements on Day Mary Phagan Was Killed.

ATTORNEYS SEEKING TO PROVE A COMPLETE ALIBI

Believed That Case Will Stand or Fall on Efforts of Prosecution to Prove Its Charge of Immorality Against the Accused.

BY AN OLD POLICE REPORTER.

The third week of the Frank trial came to an end at noon Saturday.

The defense has not yet concluded its case, but confidently expects to finish within the next day or two.

Its last card, and one of its biggest, will be the defendant's statement. This statement is scheduled for the early part of this week.

It will mark the climax of the defense's case, just as Conley's story marked the climax of the State's.

It became more and more evident as the case progressed during the past week that the defense is pitting Frank squarely against Conley—that it is to be Frank's life or Conley's life for little Mary Phagan's, snuffed out cruelly nearly four months ago in the National Pencil Factory.

Frank's statement on the stand, which the law permits him to make, but not under oath, and which may be accepted by the jury, either in whole or in part, in preference to all the sworn testimony, will be matched against the story the negro told so dramatically and with such frightful emphasis soon after the case got under way.

Into the negro's story, moreover, was injected the question of Frank's general character, particularly in one unmentionable direction, and this the defense will undertake to offset completely and finally.

More than a hundred witnesses have been summoned to testify to Frank's good character, and these include men and women from every walk of life, where it could be shown that such witnesses had come in contact with Frank from time to time in such wise as to be competent judges of his general character.

DALTON'S TESTIMONY IMPEACHED.

Already, the one witness (Dalton) so far introduced by the State to corroborate Conley has been successfully impeached by the defense, and it is likely that others introduced to uphold the negro also will be subjected to impeachment proceedings, if the defense suspects that it may successfully inaugurate the same.

The defense seemingly has realized fully the heavy necessity of breaking down Conley's awful story, not only in direct connection with the murder, but in every case if it that bears upon the character of the defendant.

As a primary proposition, the advantage in the situation thus set up dwells within the defense.

In the first place, Frank goes to the jury with the presumption of innocence in his favor. The burden is not upon him to make out a case in behalf of himself—it is upon the State to make out a case against him.

Moreover, the only right of appeal attaching to persons indicted for felonies is within the defense. Once the State loses, it is lost forever.

The State must allege and prove the guilt of the defendant "beyond a reasonable doubt," and fight right up to that limit.

If there remains a reasonable doubt of Frank's guilt, after the last word has been said to the jury, Frank, under the law, is entitled to it, and if the trial jury fails to award it, a court of review will remedy the legal wrong thus inflicted upon him.

ALL STATE TESTIMONY SWORN.

The State, moreover, must submit every bit of its evidence, to the last shred or patch, under oath.

The defense, on the contrary, may clear itself upon testimony not one word of which is sworn to.

The State's star witness, Conley, also comes into court a confessed accessory after the fact of the murder, a confessed falsifier in numerous conflicting statements as to his knowledge of and connection with the crime, and accompanied by a well established jail record fearfully and wonderfully made up.

His is a much harder story to hold up than Frank's, viewing the two stories generally and in their broader personal aspects.

Even without Conley, to be sure, the State still has a circumstantial case against Frank that might compel considerable attention and respect, but there are few people who seemingly believe that it alone would be sufficiently strong to convict.

It probably is a realization of the State's tremendous task, involved in the holding together of Conley's story, that has caused

DORSEY SURE OF CASE AS CRISIS COMES

Trial Will Last Through Week, Declare Men Who Have Followed It.

the defense to train its every gun squarely upon it, for upon Conley's story will the State be forced to stand or fall eventually.

One of the curious things about the Frank case is the way the question of his general character got into the pleadings.

Theoretically, the defense alone may put the defendant's character in issue—it being contemplated by the law that no man shall be required, without his own consent, to answer more than one charge at one and the same time.

And so far as legal strategy and astuteness is concerned, the State ouegenera lthe defense in the matter of getting Frank's character before the jury.

Had Conley, the State's star witness, ben a man, even a negro, of respectability and approximately good previous record, the necessity of attaching to Frank the charge of utter depravity might not have seemed so pressing. But Frank's previous good record seemed so well established, and his standing generally was thought to be so high, that it contrasted rather painfully with the record of the main witness of all others (Conley) set up for the defndant's undoing.

The State doubtless knew that the unspeakable portion of Conley's evidence was primarily inadmissible, but it also knew that the defense would be taking rather a long chance to move its rejection when tendered.

In that event, a sinister and certainly dangerous impression would have been left upon the mind of the jury.

So the State deliberately drew out of Conley the unmentionable charge, which, in addition to the murder charge, undoubtedly made absolutely necessary the injection of Frank's character in issue.

The defense, in not objecting to the admission of the evidence last cited when it was first offered, may have been moved by the idea that it would, in the cross-examination of Conley, so break him down that it still might save itself the necessity of pleading Frank's good character—that it would even be able to make the frightful charge of perversion act as a boomerang on Conley!

Defense Objects too Late.

Seemingly, that idea, if it ever existed, was dissipated as the Conley cross-examination proceeded, however, for eventually the defense DID move to strike out the evidence, but at that time it was too late.

Having walked into the trap set by the State, if it indeed was a trap, the defense could not very well extricate itself save by pleading Frank's complete good character, and thus in a sweeping way dispose of the specific charge lodged against Frank by Conley, in addition to the murder charge.

Once committed to the necessity of establishing Frank's good character, however, the defense went at it in no half-hearted way.

It summoned indiscriminately every employee of the National Pencil Factory, male and female, old and new, and with unanimous voice they testified willingly and thoroughly that the defendant's general character is good.

In addition to these witnesses, business men, former college professors and classmates, and dozens of others fell into line with the same line of evidence.

The State now stands, therefore, where it must close up the gap between its primary allegation, dependent alone upon Conley's word so far, and the absolute proof of his sinister story.

If the State in rebuttal is able to prove conclusively that Frank is the thing Conley has labeled him, the State's case will go to the jury dangerously formidable.

If it fails to substantiate and corroborate Conley, it will go to the jury greatly weakened.

To overcome the fine showing as to Frank's good character made by the defense the State must bring forth witnesses in rebuttal that can not be impeached.

The impression throughout Atlanta is that to fail in the establishment and corroboration of Conley's story by witnesses of integrity and standing possible is one reason why a lot of people are saying that it is impossible. Conley may have manufactured it out of the whole cloth.

If it is a lie, it is a lie too devilishly cunning for a negro of Conley's limited mentality to conjure or carry in his own mind in such remarkable detail, these people hold. If the negro were only less sure of everything, if he had wabbled dangerously under the terrific grilling administered by Luther Z. Rosser, if he had broken down or contradicted himself in any essential detail once he got to the witness stand, it now would be an easier thing for many people, fair-minded enough, too, to believe the negro's tale a mass of lies from start to finish!

And the danger to the defense here is that if Conley's story sticks in the minds of the jury, even in fractional part, it probably just as well stick in its entirety, so far as the hope of acquittal upon this trial is concerned.

In other words, many people are arguing to themselves that the negro, no matter how hard he tried and no matter how generously he was coached, still neevr could have framed up a story like the one he told, unless there was somewhere in it some foundation in fact.

And if there remains the impression of even a little foundation in fact, the defense is damaged beyond repair.

And so it gets back to where it started, and to where it will end—it is Conley pitted against Frank!

The State, with the burden of proof to carry, appears to have considerably more of an uphill fight on its hands than the deefnse has, and yet the very nature of both fights—uncompromising, and neither asking nor giving quarter—makes it something of a toss-up, really, as to which actually, and as a matter of fact, has the harder task to perform.

Undoubtedly, the defense expects to profit much through its insistence that the time element, as set up in Conley's story, constitutes a most vital and compelling factor in determining the truth or falsity of the entire story.

Rely on State Witnesses.

It is rather odd, too, that the defense should be relying upon the State's witnesses in this matter quite as much as upon its own. It will seek to use generously the State's witnesses to the State's embarrassment—through the discrediting of Conley's story—in several different directions.

The deefnse is seeking to show how utterly absurd Conley's story is from Frank's point of view, by setting up these incompatible things:

That Mary Phagan (Conley's testimony) reached the pencil factory sufficiently well in advance of Monteen Stover (Conley's testimony) to go up to Frank's office, get her pay, be lured to a room in the rear and killed, notwithstanding the fact that Miss Stover (Conley's and Miss Stover's testimony) reached the factory at 12:05. And this despite the fact that Mary Phagan could not have been in the factory before 12:12, in any event, as shown by Mrs. Coleman (Mary's mother), George Epps, a motorman, and a conductor.

To get around this state of things, set up for the most part by the State's own witnesses, the State already has suggested, by a line of examination probably to be amplified, that the car upon which Mary Phagan came into town on Saturday, April 26, was running AHEAD of scheduled time, and that the litle girl did, as a matter of fact, reach the factory before 12:12, and that the clock in the factory, by which both Miss Stover and Conley testified as to the time, was running SLOW on the day of the crime.

In other words, to meet its own witnesses' statements, the State will move backward the time of the street car and move forward the time of the office clock!

If the State can do that, which looks like a big job, it will eliminate the dangerous time element in one direction, at least; but if it can not do that, it will find itself in a most trying position.

And whether it now can get away from its own established time element is one of the very prettiest problems involved in the entire case thus far!

Again, the defense will insist that the time element cuts in another direction most favorably in Frank's behalf, when it will show by Conley's evidence that the disposing of Mary Phagan's body began at 12:56, but that Frank was seen at the corner of Alabama and Whitehall streets at 1:10, waiting for a car. The latter fact is testified to by Miss Helen Curran positively, and she is unimpeachable.

The defense contends that the body of Mary Phagan could not have been disposed of, and the things done that Conley alleges were done, within the fourteen minutes of time thus allowed, between the beginning of the work, according to Conley, and the time of Frank's presence two blocks and a half away.

Conley would have been obliged to dispose of the body in the remarkable way he says he did, have written the notes, remained in the wardrobe eight minutes or more, all within the fourteen minutes.

According to the State's own witnesses, Conley was in the wardrobe eight minutes and used six minutes framing the notes. This would have consumed the entire fourteen minutes, without the dead girl's body ever having been touched.

It is admitted among lawyers generally that there is no defense so completely effective as a sustained alibi—which means that the crime alleged was committed in the absence and without the knowledge of the alleged principal to it, or, more properly stated, perhaps, that the crime could not have been committed by the defendant because it would have been a physical impossibility for him to have effected it, in the circumstances of it.

The past week, of course, was the defense's day in court, and it is but fair to say that it made good use of it.

Challenge to State.

It has frankly and aggressively urged Frank's character as a vital fact in his favor, and it thereby challenged the State to do its very worst by way of breaking that character down, if it can.

This attitude upon the part of the defense undoubtedly has had a steadying effect upon the public, too, for it seems at least to have suspended judgment pending the State's rebuttal.

In addition to its insistence upon Frank's good character, the defense unquestionably has given the State serious concern in the way it has brought forward the time element, and that in two separate and distinct directions.

If it successfully maintains either one of its time theories, it will have greatly discredited Conley's story. If it successfully maintains both theories, it will have about discredited the Conley story to the point of complete collapse.

As it was out of order to conclude at the end of the second week of the Frank trial, however, that the State had made out a case that could not be broken down, so it now is out of order to conclude that the defense has broken down the State.

The State for one thing does not appear to be particularly alarmed, either by the injection of Frank's character or by the turning of the time element against the Conley story.

The State, it must be remembered, has not yet entered or disclosed its rebuttal, either of the character evidence or the undermining of its own witnesses as to the time elements stated.

State Seems Confident.

It is perfectly confident of its ability to show that Frank's character is not good, despite the opinions of his friends, business associates and acquaintances; and it will insist, indeed, that as in other depraved characters of the sort it claims Frank to be, his business acquaintances, his relatives and his social intimates would be the very last people of all to discover the truth concerning him.

The State, in seeking to prove Frank a dissolute character, may be forced to the summoning of dissolute characters, with whom he is alleged to have been associated in degrading practices, in order to prove its contention.

Thus witnesses brought out by the State to establish Frank's depravity are apt to be easier marks for impeachment proceedings than witnesses of the ordinary sort, and to that extent the breaking down of Frank's character is pregnant with difficulty.

Nevertheless the State proposes to establish the fact of Frank's degeneracy by witnesses of sufficient credibility, particularly in the nature of the charge sought to be proved, to get by at least in sufficient numbers to overwhelm the defendant.

If the State can put up even one or two witnesses that can weather the gale of the defense's rights of impeachment, it will have put Frank in a most unenviable position before the jury. If, therefore, it puts up 50 witnesses, and 48 of them get knocked out, there still will remain the two that stood the test!

Here, then, is another pretty problem to be thrashed out: Can the State, in sustaining a charge of degeneracy against Frank, bring forth witnesses to prove it absolutely, and at the same time not bring forth witnesses so much a party to Frank's offense that they will run serious risks in testifying themselves?

A witness who is willing to swear that he saw Frank do thus and so, or was a party to Frank's doing thus and so, if the thus and so is particularly reprehensible, is apt to get in pretty thin ice himself, if he isn't very careful!

The State says it can and will rebut Frank's good character. If it does, Frank is in unutterably bad shape; but if it doesn't, Frank's cause must be helped tremendously.

Girl on Stand Shouts She Would Die for Leo Frank

Employee of Pencil Factory Furnishes Dramatic Incident of Day—Dressing Room Evidence Is Brought Out.

More than one hundred witnesses had been called to testify in defense of Leo M. Frank's character when the third week of the factory superintendent's trial concluded shortly after 1 o'clock Saturday.

Character witnesses occupied most of the time during the four hours of Saturday's session. They displayed a remarkable loyalty to their employer, who is being tried on the charge of being the murderer of little Mary Phagan. Only one of the number, Miss Irene Jackson, gave testimoney in any way prejudicial to the case of Frank.

The character testimony, the tale of the finding of Mary Phagan's envelope and other so-called clews on the first floor of the factory by W. D. McWorth, Pinkerton operative, and the return of Mrs. Rae Frank, mother of the defendant, formed the important features of the day.

Girl Furnishes Incident.

A spectacular incident, which would have been even more amusing than it proved had it not been for the evident sincerity and profound earnestness of the witness, came in the testimony of Miss Sarah Barnes, one of the pencil factory employees.

"I'd die for Mr. Frank if they'd let me!" she exclaimed almost the instant she had composed herself in the witness chair. Attorney Arnold had only time to ask her the formal question: "Do you know Leo M. Frank, the defendant in this case?" before she launched into a eulogistic description of the young factory superintendent that left her breathless at the end of five minutes.

The attorney sought to interject another of the formal questions prescribed by law, but by the time she had caught her breath and was engaged in telling her willingness to lay down her life, if need be, to prove the guiltlessness of Frank.

Attorney Arnold could not stop her. The court could not dam the flood of words. She had a mind to speak and she was determined to speak without check and without interruption.

"I know Frank couldn't have committed such a terrible deed," she cried, accompanying her declaration with an emphatic brandishing of her folded fan. "I have known him ever since I have been in the pencil factory. He has always been kind to all of the employees and to the girls in particular. He never has done any of these things that have been told about him. He has always been a gentleman.

Willing to Die for Him.

"I've had to fight for him, almost, a number of times since these awful charges have been made against him. I'm willing to fight for him again. I am willing to die in his place."

At this point she turned toward the jury and said:

"You can give me any sort of a death you want. I know he is an innocent man. I just wish that I could make everyone believe in his innocence."

Attorney Arnold succeeded in the brief space of one of the moments when she paused for a fresh start to ask the remainder of the questions he desired, and then gave her to Solicitor Dorsey.

Dorsey met with the same trouble. He tried to get her to say with whom she had talked about the testimony to which she was to sweer. Disregarding his question as though it never had been asked, she continued in her encomiums of Frank until the courtroom spectators were convulsed with laughter and the Solicitor filed with disgust at his inability to get the sort of answer he wanted from the girl.

Miss Irene Jackson, daughter of County Policeman A. W. Jackson, was called by the defense as a character witness, but gave testimony on her cross-examination in regard to conduct by Franak which the State has construed as highly improper.

Looked in Dressing Room.

Miss Jackson said that so far as she knew the character of Frank was good and that she never had known him to attempt any liberties with the factory girls. To the Solicitor she admitted, however, that she three times had been in the girls' dressing room when Frank had pushed open the door and looked in.

Once Emmeline Mayfield had been in the room with her, she said; once Mamie Kitchen and once her own sister. Her sister had threatentod to quit on this last occasion, she testified, but had been persuaded against it.

She said that Frank merely pushed the door open, looked in, one one occasion smiled toward Miss Kitchen, and then turned around and walked away. She testified that the girls never were any further in a condition of undress than lacking their overskirt.

Solicitor Dorsey inquired of her in regard to a reported remark of N. V. Darley, general manager, that "if the girls stay with us through this, they will not lose by it." She said she had overheard Darley say this.

Many Employees Called.

The following pencil company employees were called as character witnesses during the day:

Misses Mollie Blair, Ethel Stewart, Sarah Barnes, Corinthia Hall, Ina Hayes, Eula May Flowers, Elma Hayes, Minnie Foster, Obie Dickerson, Gussie Wallace, Annie Osman, Bessie Thrailkill, Allie Denham, Rebecca Carson, Maude Wright, Irene Jackson, and Mesdames Emma Freeman and Ella Thomas.
