TECH TRIUMPHS OVER GEORGIA IN HOT BATTLE

Yellow Jackets Pound Out Two Runs in First Inning; Eubanks and Corley Twirl.

SCORE BY INNINGS:			R.	H.	E.
Tech	200	200 000—	4	5	1
Georgia	100	000 200—	3	7	9

ATHENS, GA., May 9.—Heisman's Yellow Jackets triumphed over Georgia here this afternoon by a score of 4 to 3.

The result was a complete surprise, as the fans here expected the Red and Black to roll up a big score against Tech. The visitors played a dashing game, fielding and batting like champions. The infield and outfield work of the visitors was the best seen here in years.

"Speedy" Eubanks was the star of the game. Heisman's twirler pitched great ball and held the home boys helpless in the majority of innings. His speed and control was remarkable.

On the other hand, Corley was hit timely by Tech. They bunched hits off him in the first and fourth innings, which gave them an early lead to work on.

The Yellow Jockets took the lead in the first inning by pounding out two runs. The Red and Black squad managed to push one run over the plate in their half.

Eubanks and Corley tightened up in the second and third inning and neither eam scored. The fielding on both sides was sharp and snappy.

Tech came strong in the fourth, pushing two runs over the plate:

Corley held Heisman's men in the fifth amd the Tech batters failed to score. Eubanks continued to prove a puzzle to the Red and Black batters and they went out without registering a run. Eubanks showed great speed in this inning.

Neither team tallied in the sixth, due to some fast fielding by both nines. Both pitchers showed signs of weakening, but fast fielding kept the score down.

Georgia fell on Eubanks strong in the seventh pushing two runs over the plate. Tech failed to score in its half and the score stood 4 to 3, favor of the Yellow Jackets.

Eubanks twirled great ball in the eighth and ninth innings, blanking the Red and Black players in both sessions.

COUNTY TO FURNISH UNLIMITED FUNDS TO SOLVE PHAGAN CASE

Solicitor Dorsey Says He Has Secured Powerful Aid in Search for Slayer of Girl---Woman Says She Heard Screams in Pencil Factory.

Shelby Smith, chairman of the Fulton commission, declared Friday afternoon that the board would back Solicitor Dorsey in any and all expense he might incur in the state's exhaustive investigation into the Phagan murder mystery. Smith said:

"We have instructed Dorsey to obtain the best possible detective skill for his probe and he would be backed by the couny commission to the last ditch in the money he spent.

"The fact the he hired a good detective Friday is news to me, but he has the sanction and backing of the board in the matter."

HIRES BEST DETECTIVE, HE SAYS.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey said Friday afternoon that he had the best detective in America working on the mystery of the Mary Phagan strangling.

Important developments had ensued already, he declared, and he was confident that an early solution of the case would be reached by the new expert of national reputation who had been placed at work on the clews.

The solicitor is understood to have the affidavit of a woman who swears that she heard a girl's screams as she was passing the factory at 4:30 o'clock the afternoon of the tragedy. The cries were shrill and piercing, she says, and died away as she stopped an instant to listen.

The woman was sure they came from inside the factory, but she gave little attention to her startling experience until she read of the strangling of Mary Phagan. Then it occurred to her that she very likely had heard the dying cries of the little girl and she reported the matter to the authorities.

Solicitor Dorsey, as his first action after the holding of Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee to the Grand Jury for the murder of Mary Phagan, put out the dragnet for witnesses.

A batch of subpenas were issued for the witnesses to appear in his office to give testimony in the case of "The State vs. John Doe."

After a long conference with Detectives Starnes and Campbell, Solicitor Dorsey asserted that action on the part of the Grand Jury might be expected any time after Friday. He plainly intimated that a special session of the jury might be convened Saturday to consider the Phagan murder.

The Solicitor declared as he left the court house with a private detective whose name he refused to divulge that he anticipated the development of startling evidence before night, which, he said, would clear matters materially.

Dorsey Questions Newt Lee.

With the private detective the Solicitor went to the Tower and was closeted with Newt Lee, the night watchman, for more than an hour.

The form of the subpena is taken to mean that many of the witnesses will submit their sworn testimony before the Solicitor General, who will thus have it in documentary form, instead of going before the Grand Jury to give oral testimony. However, it will be necessary for the material or indicting witnesses to go before the Grand Jurors in person.

"The investigation has just begun," said Chief of Detectives Lanford Friday, in discussing the action of the Coroner's jury. "We were confident we had presented sufficient evidence to warrant the holding of the two suspects in the case, but we will have much more when the case gets into the courts.

Have Strong Theory Already.

"We are going to continue right on with the investigation and try to dig down to the full truth of the mystery. We have a strongly supported theory as to who committed the crime, but we are ready at any time to change our opinions as soon as the evidence points in another direction.

"It will be possible, with the rush and hurry of the Coroner's jury

SENATE BEGINS CONSIDERATION OF TARIFF BILL

Received From House and Referred—Hearings Are Secret. Expect Vote in Nine Weeks.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Senator Bois Penrose, Republican, began the senate fight on the Underwood tariff bill as soon as it was introduced today in the senate. Senator Simmons, chairman of the senate finance committee moved that the bill be referred to his committee for consideration. Penrose immediately offered a motion to amend Senator Simmons' motion to provide for public hearings on the bill before the finance committee.

Senator Smith, of Michigan, predicted that the bill would bring about the same conditions that existed 20 years ago and asserted that the efforts of a "political doctrinaire" referring to Secretary of Commerce Redfield, could not prevent factories from cutting wages or closing their doors.

In the Finance Committee the schedule was assigned to sub-committee No. 1, composed of Senators Stone, Thomas, James and Simmons, and the wool schedule to No. 2—Senators Williams, Shively, Gore and Simmons. The remaining schedules were divided equally between subcommittees 1, 2 and 3.

Hearings on the bill will be behind closed doors, the Democrats having decided that public hearings would consume too much time. It is expected that three weeks will be used by the committee in considering the measures, and six weeks more in debate on the floor.

It also is considered certain that a number of changes will be made in the measure, necessitating its reference to the conference of the House and Senate members.

On the final test in the House last night the vote was 281 to 139, five Democrats voting against the bill and two Republicans voting for it. Four Progressives supported the bill and fourteen opposed it, while one Independent Progressive joined with the majority.

PHAGAN CASE TO BE RUSHED TO GRAND JURY BY DORSEY

passed, for my men to work with more deliberation and care and to sift with a greater thoroughness every bit of evidence that comes into their possession. Even if nothing new should develop, we have enough leads to keep half a dozen detectives busy for a week."

Detectives Rosser, Campbell, Black, Starnes and Bullard are still working with the chief on the case and probably will continue until the mystery is cleared.

Lemmie Quinn, foreman in the tipping department at the National Pencil factory, was the first of the witnesses to be examined by the Solicitor. He was in Mr. Dorsey's office a considerable part of the forenoon and underwent a rigorous examination.

New Witnesses Sought.

Detectives Starnes and Campbell also were with the Solicitor, and two of the Solicitor's assistants, Newton Garner and Dan Goodlin, were dispatched the first thing in the morning to hunt up new witnesses of whom Mr. Dorsey had information.

Foreman Quinn was called, it is understood, to clear up the discrepancies in his testimony and the statement he is said to have made to the detectives and to several of his acquaintances. In his testimony before the Coroner's jury he declared that he visited the factory between 12:10 and 12:30 o'clock, the afternoon of the killing of Mary Phagan. He said he talked with Frank for two minutes in the superintendent's office.

Detectives declared that Quinn had told them and other persons that he did not visit the factory at all Saturday and that he was not there from the time he left Friday until the following Monday.

Frank Expected To Be Held.

"That's about what I expected at this time," was the comment with which Leo M. Frank, with little trace of emotion, received the news of the action of the Coroner's jury Thursday night.

Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor was the officer who informed both Frank and Newt Lee that the jury had recommended that they be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

The night watchman received the news indifferently and had nothing to say.

Atlanta, Ga., May 8, 1913.

We, the Coroner's jury, impaneled and sworn by Paul Donehoo, Coroner of Fulton County, to inquire into the cause of the death of Mary Phagan, whose dead body now lies before us, after having heard the evidence of sworn witnesses, and the statement of Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, find that the deceased came to her death from strangulation. We recommend that Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

(Signed) HOMER C. ASHFORD, Foreman.
DR. J. W. HURT, County Physician.

Solicitor Dorsey said Friday he would give the Phagan case all of his attention and present his evidence to the Grand Jury as quickly as possible.

The solicitor has shown an anxiety to avoid delays of any nature in hunting down the slayer of the Phagan girl, and now that the Coroner's jury has turned the case over to the Solicitor and the Grand Jury it may be taken for granted that the investigation will be hurried along with all possible speed.

Case in State's Hands.

"The case now is fully in the hands of the State," said the Solicitor Friday morning. "It will not be presented to the Grand Jury Friday, but I shall endeavor to present it at the earliest possible moment. The instant that I have a complete case I shall bring it to the attention of the Grand Jury. It is my desire to bring the slayer of Mary Phagan to justice with the greatest dispatch. A great crime has been done and I am no less eager to see the guilt determined than the general public."

It required the Coroner's jury about twenty minutes to frame its formal verdict Thursday night. The jurors received a brief charge from Coroner Donehoo and filed from the Commissioners' room in the police station at 6:08 o'clock. At 6:28 they were back with their verdict.

Coroner Donehoo admonished the jurors to be as ready to hold a person who they thought might be withholding information of the crime as to hold a person they regarded as the possible culprit. A person possessing knowledge of the crime and withholding it, he said, was an accessory after the fact.

An immediate hush fell on the packed room when the jurors returned. There was a dead silence except for the voice of Homer C. Ashford, foreman of the jury, when the verdict was read.

Girls Testify Against Frank.

The most damaging testimony against Frank in regard to his treatment of employees at his factory was saved until the last hours of the hearing. Girls and women were called to the stand to testify that they had been employed at the factory or had had occasion to go there, and that Frank had attempted familiarities with them.

Nellie Pettis, of 9 Oliver Street, declared that Frank had made improper advances to her. She was asked if she ever had been employed at the pencil factory.

"No," she answered.

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I have seen him once or twice."

Q. When and where did you see him?—A. In his office at the factory whenever I went to draw my sister-in-law's pay.

Q. What did he say to you that might have been improper on any of these visits?—A. He didn't exactly say—he made gestures. I went to get sister's pay about four weeks ago and when I went into the office of Mr. Frank I asked for her. He told me I couldn't see her unless "I saw him first."

Says He Winked at Her.

"I told him I didn't want to 'see him.' He pulled a box from his desk. It had a lot of money in it. He looked at it significantly and then looked at me. When he looked at me he winked. As he winked he said: 'How about it?'

"I instantly told him I was a nice girl."

Here the witness stopped her statement. Coroner Donehoo asked her sharply:

"Didn't you say anything else?"

"Yes, I did! I told him to go to h—l! and walked out of his office."

Thomas Blackstock, who said that he was employed at the factory about a year ago testified as follows:

Tells of Frank's Conduct.

Q. Do you know Leo M. Frank?—A. Yes.

Q. How long have you known him?—A. About six weeks.

Q. Did you ever observe his conduct toward female employees of the pencil factory?—A. Yes. I've often seen him picking on different girls.

Q. Name some.—A. I can't exactly recollect names.

Q. What was the conduct you noticed particularly?

The witness answered to the effect that he had seen him place his hands with undue familiarity upon the person of girls.

Q. See it often?—A. A half dozen times, maybe. He generally was seen to become that familiar while he was touring the building.

Q. Can't you name just one girl?—A. Yes. Magnolia Kennedy.

Q. Did you see him act with undue familiarity toward her?—A. No. I heard talk about it.

Q. Before or after the murder?—A. Afterward.

"Girls Tried to Avoid Him."

Q. When did you observe this misconduct of which you have told?—A. A year ago.

Q. Did you hear complaints around the plant?—A. No. The girls tried to avoid him.

Mrs. C. D. Donegan said she was connected with the pencil plant for three weeks. Her capacity was that of forelady. She resides at 165 West Fourteenth Street with her husband.

Her testimony follows:

"State your observations of Frank's conduct toward the girls and women of the plant."

"I have noticed him smile and wink at the girls in the place. That was two years ago."

"Did you make a statement to the detectives of undue familiarity you had witnessed?"

"I told them that I had seen Frank flirt with the girls and women—that was all I said."

Charges Familiarities.

The testimony of Nellie Wood, a young girl of 8 Corput Street, came next.

In brief it was this:

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I worked for him two days.

Q. Did you observe any misconduct on his part?—A. Well, his actions didn't suit me. He'd come around and put his hands on me when such conduct was entirely uncalled for.

Q. Is that all he did?—A. No. He asked me one day to come into his office, saying that he wanted to talk to me. He tried to close the door, but I wouldn't let him. He got too familiar by getting so close to me. He also put his hands on me.

Q. Where did he put his hands?—A. He barely touched my breast. He was subtle with his approaches, and tried to pretend that he was joking, but I was too wary for such as that.

Quit His Employ.

Q. Did he try further familiarities?—A. Yes.

Q. When did this happen?—A. Two years ago.

Q. What did you tell him when you left his employ?—A. I just quit, telling him that it didn't suit me.

Frank's testimony was looked forward to with keen interest, but when he was called to the stand in the afternoon, he merely answered additional questions as to his movements on the day of the crime and failed to add materially to the evidence in hand.

He appeared pale and haggard from his imprisonment, but he replied to all of the questions clearly and showed no hesitation or apparent fear. He was asked:

Testimony of Frank.

Q. What kind of elevator door is there to the shaft in the pencil factory?—A. Sliding doors.

Q. How many?—A. One on each floor.

Q. Are they latticed or solid?—A. Solid.

Q. Where was the elevator at 12 o'clock Saturday?—A. I did not notice.

Q. Were the doors open or closed? A. I don't remember.

Q. What protection would a person have from falling down the shaft if the doors were left open?—A. A bar which projects across the opening.

Q. After the crime was committed, where did the elevator stand?—A. I only know where it stood Sunday morning. It then was on the second floor.

Didn't File Time Tape.

Q. When you last removed the tape from the time clock, what did you do with it?—A. Handed it to an officer in the building.

Q. Did you put it on file?—A. No.

Q. Are you sure?—A. Yes, positive.

Q. Do you remember a party at your house on the night of April 26?—A. Yes.

Q. Can you name the guests?—A. I don't remember them all.

Q. When the police came to bring you down to the factory that Sunday morning, what was said about whisky?—A. I said I wanted something warm to drink. One of the detectives suggested whisky.

Q. What time was it?—A. Between 7:30 and 8 o'clock.

Says He Viewed Body.

Q. What did you say about dreaming?—A. I said to someone that I thought I had dreamed of hearing the telephone ring in the dead of night.

Q. When you went to the undertakers', did you go in the water closet instead of the room in which the body lay?—A. No.

Q. Did you view the body?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you recognize the girl—A. Yes.

Q. When did you first hear her name?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What time did you return home that Sunday afternoon?—A. I don't recollect.

Q. Did you telephone your wife before your return?—A. Yes.

Q. Was the murder discussed at home that afternoon?—A. Not much.

Q. What topic was discussed.—A. I don't remember.

Often Does Not Remember.

Q. When did Quinn first mention to you his visit to the factory on the 26th?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What did he say?—A. He said, "Don't you recollect that I was at the factory Saturday about noon?"

Q. What did you tell him about withholding that information until your attorney had been consulted?—A. I don't remember. I had so many visitors that I couldn't recollect the exact words.

Q. Who suggested the conference with your attorney relative to Quinn's visit?—A. I don't remember.

Q. How long have you known you had counsel?—A. Since Monday.

Q. Why was it mentioned that Quinn's visit be kept quiet until consultation with your lawyer?—A. I don't remember.

Explains Locks and Doors.

Q. How can you lock the door between your office and the dressing room where the blood spots were found?—A. I have never seen it locked.

Q. Is it usually open or locked?—A. Closed.

Q. Is there any way of closing the doors on the back stairway?—A. Yes They are locked.

sation with Detective Starnes at the time you were informed of the tragedy?—A. He asked me if I was superintendent of the National Pencil Factory. "I'd like to have you come down here at once," he said when I informed him that I was Leo Frank. He said he wanted me to identify a girl, and asked me if I knew Mary Phagan.

Q. Didn't you say that the first time you had heard her name was while you were traveling in the auto on the way to the factory Sunday morning?—A. I don't recollect that I did.

Q. Did you have any trouble with a girl in your office Saturday morning?—A. No. There was one incident where a mistake had been made in the pay envelope of Mattie Smith, but it was corrected without any trouble.

Tells of Callers at Office.

Q. What time was Mattie Smith in your office?—A. Between 9 and 10 a. m.

Q. Did any one enter while she was there?—A. I don't remember.

Q. Give the name of every one in the office throughout the day Saturday?—A. Mr. Darley, Mr. Holloway, the office boy, Miss Hall, the stenographer; Mr. Campbell, Mr. Fullerton, Mrs. White, Lemmie Quinn, Mr. Gantt, Emma Clark, another girl employee, Arthur White, Harry Denham, Newt Lee and Mary Phagan.

Q. Did you see May Barrett?—A. I don't know her.

Q. What did you say to Emma Clark?—A. I don't remember saying anything to her.

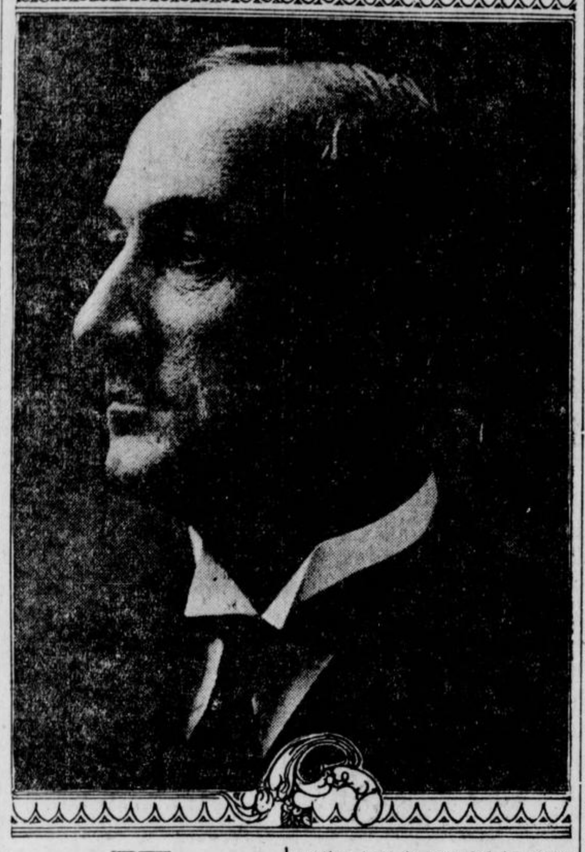
Atlanta Ready for Presbyterians

5,000 Visitors for Assemblies

Noted Speakers on the Programs

REV. THOMAS STONE CLYCE, moderator of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, 1912, who will be one of the prominent visitors in Atlanta next week. Dr. Clyce is president of Austin College at Sherman, Texas.



Consolidation of Four Branches To Be Considered in Gathering Here Next Week.

Preparations are virtually completed to-day for the great Presbyterian convention to be held in Atlanta beginning May 15. For the first time in the history of Presbyterianism in America representatives from its four branches will gather in joint assembly.

From May 15 to May 22 more than 5,000 visiting Presbyterians will be the city's guests. Of this number 1,500 will be regularly appointed commissioners, constituting the largest religious assemblage ever held in the South. More than 700 representatives of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., or Northern Division, 500 from the Presbyterian Church, U. S., or Southern Division; 300 from the United Presbyterian and 25 special representatives from the Associate Reformed Churches will comprise the assemblies.

Atlanta has thrown open her homes to the visitors, all denominations uniting in entertaining the church representatives who come from every State in the Union, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Panama. A number of prominent churchmen from Canada also are expected. The commissioners are chosen, one-half from the clergy and the other half from the laity.

They constitute the governing body of the church and are selected largely because of their prominence and their activity in church work.

Church Union Considered.

Southern Presbyterians will be especially interested in the discussions looking to a union between the United and the Southern divisions. Two committees were appointed last year, one from each of the branches, to confer on a possible basis of union. Their reports will be submitted. It is said the committees have reached an agreement and it is generally believed that the assemblies will act favorably on their reports. Details of the agreement have not been published, but it is believed that they will prove acceptable to both bodies.

While the Associate Reformed branch of the church will not hold a regular conference here, prominent representatives will be in attendance as special commissioners. Their synod met in December, but it is probable that an adjourned session will be held.

A feature of the meeting here, carrying with it perhaps the most widespread interest, will be a possible effort to unite the Northern and Southern branches of the church. Unorganized endeavor has been made during several years past to bring about the union, but with no further results than that churchmen have been aroused on the subject. The joint meeting here is regarded by representative Presbyterians as a most auspicious occasion for the matter to be thrashed out and a union effected. No such opportunity has ever offered itself, as the assemblies have always met in widely separated cities, at separate times.

Union Seminary Fight.

Of considerable interest, particularly to the Northern branch of the church, will be the effort to bring Union Theological Seminary back into the fold. The sixteen delegates from New York, however, were elected on the pledge that they would fight to maintain the present status of the seminary. Charges of extravagance and usurpation of authority against the Board of Home Missions of the Northern Church will be investigated. Rev. Joseph L. Weaver, D.D., of Rocky Ford, Colo., it is understood, has preferred the charges. Dr. William Fulton, of Philadelphia, is chairman of the investigating committee.

An interesting fight for the place of moderator of the Northern Assembly has developed. The leading candidates are Rev. Dr. Maint-Alexander, of Pittsburg; Rev. Dr. Samuel S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio; Rev. Dr. William McKibbin, president of Lane Theological Seminary of Cincinnati, anad Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Hinitt, of Danville, Ky.

Bryan to Speak.

The meeting of the assemblies in Atlanta will bring to the city some of the notable men of the country, prominent not only in church affairs, but national figures also.

United States Senator Hoke Smith will be present Tuesday, May 20, to preside over a meeting for home missions. Some of the most prominent leaders of the Associate Reformed branch of the church will be in attendance upon the assemblies, one of them being Dr. J. H. Pressley, of Statesville, N. C., moderator of the A. R. P. division.

Among the definite arrangements already made are a number of conferences at the various churches of the city. The main sessions will be held at the Baptist Tabernacle and the Auditorium.

A joint fellowship gathering will be held at the Auditorium Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. R. O. Flinn, of the North Avenue Church of Atlanta, will preside. A welcome address will be delivered by J. K. Orr, an elder of the North Avenue Church, after which fraternal greetings will be extended from the moderators of the four assemblies, Rev. T. S. Clyce, of Texas, for the Southern division; Rev. J. H. Pressley, of North Carolina, for the Associate Reformed Assembly; Rev. Hugh H. Bell, of California, for the United Assembly; Rev. Mark A. Mathews, of Washington State, for the Northern division.

Canadian on Program.

The principal address of the evening will be made by Mr. James McDonald, Ph. D., of The Tororto Globe, Toronto, Canada, on "The Church's Responsibility for International Peace."

Under the direction of Rev. Dunbar Ogden, of Central Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, a union communion service will be held at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Baptist Tabernacle. The moderators of the four assemblies will conduct the service.

Rev. Charles R. Stelzle, of New York, and Marion Jackson, of Atlanta, will be principal speakers at a Christian social service meeting Saturday night at the Auditorium. "Christian Citizenship and the Social Evil" is the subject of Mr. Jackson's address.

U. S. EXPERTS DOUBT 'CURES' BY FRIEDMANN

WASHINGTON, May 9.—"Effects of the Friedmann cure thus far observed do not justify the confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by well-meant publicity."

This is the crux of an official statement from the board of examiners of the public health service, delivered by Dr. John F. Anderson before the American Congress of Physicians and Surgeons in Washington to-day.

Dr. Anderson said harm may have been done by undue publicity in lessening the confidence of tuberculosis victims in well-recognized methods of treatment.

With respect to the patients under examination in New York, he said many have developed no considerable infiltrate at all and have not suffered from abscess formations. This would indicate that they must be under treatment a long time to effect a cure, as Dr. Friedmann stated that infiltrate and abscess formations indicated more or less rapid progress toward cure.

Not Ready to Give Opinion.

The report which was also submitted by Dr. Anderson and Dr. A. M. Stimson, another public health surgeon, said in part:

"At the present time we are not in position to express an opinion upon the present cases under observation. The disease for which the remedy is used is prolonged and is marked by periods of improvement and retrogression.

"We must not lose sight of the possible therapeutic value of this preparation, but it is necessary to guard against too great an optimism in respect to its merits. However, we are in a position to state that the facts thus far observed do not justify the confidence in the remedy that has been inspired by widespread publicity.

"In our opinion, harm may have been done by this undue publicity because it has lessened the confidence of tuberculosis patients in well recognized methods of treatment, or interrupted their use.

"In our series of patients, Dr. Friedmann has made has made almost exclusive use of the intramuscular method and a very considerable portion of them have developed either no considerable infiltrate at all or have suffered from abscess formations.

Large Amount of Serum Refused.

"It is very evident, therefore, that a considerable number of Dr. Friedmann's patients may expect their treatment at the hands of Dr. Friedmann to cover a long period.

"Concerning the cultures submitted to us, we may state that a series of experiments are under way.

"The baccilus has been found to be an acid-fast organism, having properties quite different from those of any tuberculosis baccilus with which we have been acquainted. It appears to be identical with an organism cultivated from a few loopfulls of the material used for injection which Dr. Friedmann permitted us to place on culture media in his presence.

"We requested Dr. Friedmann to furnish us with a large quantity of this material for examination, but this he refused to do.

"We can state that living acid-fast bacteria are being injected by the muscular and intravenous method, although we are ignorant of what medium they are suspended in, or what additional substance or substances may be contained in the final mixture."

SHRINERS OFF TO DALLAS TO CAPTURE MEET FOR ATLANTA

I want to again express my appreciation for the assistance of Mr. Hearst and his newspapers throughout the country. If Atlanta gets the 1914 meeting Mr. Hearst and his papers will be largely responsible.—POTENTATE FORREST ADAIR.

"The Imperial Council will meet in Atlanta in 1914. Personally I have no doubt of it. We have hotel accommodations; Memphis has not and we have made a remarkable record in raising a fund of $76,000 in one day that every Shriner in America knows about.

"And we leave to-night for Dallas better equipped to extend an invitation of this kind than any city or Temple that has extended a like invitation in a great number of years."

With this statement Forrest Adair, potentate of Yaarab Temple, announced Friday morning that every detail of the pilgrimage to the convention of the Imperial Council of Shriners at Dallas, Tex., was complete and Atlanta's delegation, nearly 200 strong, would leave in a special train over the Southern Railway at 10 o'clock Friday night.

Reach Dallas Sunday.

Early Sunday morning the Atlanta pilgrims will have crossed the hot sands and entered the Oasis of Dallas. They will go into the city with their coats on their arms, prepared to drown out any discordant note, from Memphis, or anywhere for that matter, with the now familiar slogan:

"Atlanta, 1914."

At Birmingham, Meridian, Shreveport and a score of points along the line, Atlanta boosters will board the train, and go with the delegation to Dallas to swell the total and bring the convention to the Southeast next year.

Mr. Adair and his official delegation, W. A. Foster, John A. Hynds and Claude H. Hutcheson, of Jonesboro, will extend the invitation.

They will be fortified with official invitations from the Mayor and City Council and every trades organization in the city, as well as open contracts from every hotel in Atlanta, assuring accommodations for as many as 4,000 Shriners, the number expected here next year.

No "Holdup" in Rates.

The beauty of the hotel contracts, as explained by Mr. Adair, is that "inauguration rates" will not be charged.

"Only the regular rates," said Mr. Adair, "will be in force, and I have with the contracts a diagram of the floor space indicating the room and the regular rate. They won't be able to go above the rate, even if the hotel men felt inclined to.

"Memphis will not get the convention, because it hasn't got the hotels and the Shriners know it," said Mr. Adair. "They're building one now, but it won't compare with any of the nicer hotels already completed in Atlanta, and as for the best hotels there—Atlanta's got better on the side streets. This alone makes it doubly sure we'll get the convention, but if there's any doubt the size of our delegation removes it."

The Arab Patrol of Yaarab Temple, the crack drum corps, 40 strong, will be a valuable asset of the Atlanta delegation. It is an independent organization formed by the temple for convention work and occasions that demand public appearance. It has attracted much attention at conventions throughout the country.

Members of the Patrol.

The patrol is as follows:

Captain J. O. Seamons, First Lieutenant H. C. Ashford, Second Lieutenant F. E. Van der Veer, First Sergeant C. W. Ferguson, Quartermaster H. H. Milner and Patrolmen Albert Akers, C. E. Barber, J. J. TO LIVE 100 YEARS READ NEWSPAPERS, SAYS CENTENARIAN

BOSTON, May 9.—Ralph Butler, of Dorchester, is 100 years old, and to-day drew up a list of rules for living a century, as follows:

Walk and take plenty of other exercise.

Read the newspapers to keep your mind young.

Eat anything you want, but eat to live, not live to eat, and eat regularly.

Don't take your office cares home with you.

Get to bed early and regularly, and 5 o'clock is not too early to rise.

Two months ago Butler walked to city hall and surprised the Collector of Taxes by paying the amount due on the real estate he holds.

"I'm just as well able to walk to-day as I was twenty years ago," he said. "I feel as active as when 40."

Mrs. Wilson Picks Rome Postmaster

Congressman Lee Agrees to Choice of President's Wife—Bowie to Get Office.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Probably the only bit of political patronage that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is to dictate during her husband's administration was given her yesterday, when the President sent for Representative Gordon Lee, of Georgia, and told him that Mrs. Wilson would like to name the postmaster at Rome, her birthplace. The office is the most important in the Seventh District and pays a salary of $3,500 a year.

Mr. Lee told the President he would be glad to yield to Mrs. Wilson. The President said Mrs. Wilson would probably name J. P. Bowie, an elderly man who was very fond of Mrs. Wilson when she was a little girl. Mr. Lee said he would be glad to join in indorsing him.

Bride Revolts When Treated Like Child

Mrs. Ada Garrett Quits Place in Husband's Family Circle to Demand Divorce.

Mrs. Ada Davies Garrett, married to Thomas Hoyt Garrett March 1, 1913, and separated the last day of the month, filed a suit for divorce with the Superior Court Friday, because she said her husband wanted her to live in his father's home "just like one of the children," and took no other interest in her or her welfare.

The petitioner said that after the first few days of their married life, her husband, a young engineer for the Southern Railway, informed her that she was to take her place in his family circle just like his brothers and sisters.

WRITERS DROP 'BAD' SONGS; ALL WRITING BALLADS NOW

CHICAGO, May 9.—Doom sounded to-day for the smut song. It struck in "Tin Pan Alley," where the dens of the popular song writers are located. The song writers hurriedly are throwing together "clean stuff" in an agony of decent competition. Every writer in the block is pounding out ballad stuff.

NEGRO PUGILIST, TRIED AS SLAVER, WINS FIRST RULING

CHICAGO, May 9.—Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, won the first important point in his case to-day when Judge Carpenter, hearing the negro's trial for violation of the white slave act, ruled that Belle Schreiber could not tell of alleged cruelties on the part of the black.

WORLD'S CREDIT BEGINS TO SHOW A GREAT STRAIN

BY W. R. LAWSON.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, May 9.—Serious bankers do not look with favor upon the renewal of gold shipments from New York to Paris.

All of the big international banks appear to be loaned up to the danger level, while the big new security issues that are coming along are bound to strain banking credit and resources. This week four new issues came out, and several more are in preparation.

Brazil's $55,000,000.

Brazil wants $55,000,000—$15,000,000 to be used for the repayment of treasury bills. Lever Brothers are putting out $5,000,000 new preference shares, and Baltimore Gas $3,500,000. United Fruit's $12,000,000 four-year coupon notes have been successfully placed.

Between now and the end of the month special settlements are due which are likely to increase the demand for money.

Situation in London.

Lombard Street is enjoying temporary ease owing to end-of-the-month borrowing from the Bank of England, but large repayments will have to be made within the next few days.

Further reduction in the English bank rate is not expected immediately. The Berlin rate is hardening, and if Boerse speculation breaks loose again, easy money may be a remote possibility.

Hitherto, while the war was in progress European stocks have been upheld by finance houses for the purpose of facilitating big loan issues which they were preparing to make later.

American Stocks Firmer.

Between September, 1912, and the end of April, 1913, declines in European stocks have generally been very trifling, while American stocks suffered heavy declines.

$25,000,000 INSURANCE ON MORGAN ART WORKS

NEW YORK, May 9.—A situation almost without precedent in the insurance market is reported as a result of J. P. Morgan's plan to insure the $50,000,000 worth of art objects left by his father. The $25,000,000 that is being taken by 250 American and foreign insurance companies is the largest amount sought in many years upon a single risk.

It has been necessary to divide the collection into two risks, one in the old building of the Metropolitan museum and the other in the new building, effecting an average rate of 14½ cents.

DRUGGIST FLED IN FEAR OF BROYLES

Thought Recorder Would Send Him to Stockade for Breaking Garbage Ordinance.

A. S. Knight, manager of a Peters Street drug store, was convinced Friday that Recorder Nash Broyles is not such a terror as he had pictured in his mind.

Knight had never seen Judge Broyles, but had heard and read so much of him that when Sanitary Inspector Simpson cited him to appear in police court on a charge of violating the garbage ordinance he was attacked with a severe case of fright. Although an offense against the garbage laws draws only a small fine, Knight was tortured with the belief that the Recorder would put him in the stockade for about 30 days.

Therefore, instead of appearing in court Tuesday, Knight fled the city with his two children. Dr. A. L. Curtis, proprietor of the drug store, finally located the missing manager in Macon and persuaded him to return and surrender.

Knight told Judge Broyles Thursday afternoon he fled because he was "afraid." He was fined $5.75 in the original garbage case and $10.75 for dodging the court.

Look Out For the Big Market Basket

The good housewives of Atlanta find this feature of Friday's Georgian a great time-saver—a great money-saver. Those who advertise find it a great business getter. All are happy.

TROOPS IN TURK CAPITAL MUTINY

Commander General of Ottoman Army Uses Personal Guard to Quell Uprising.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 9.—Mutiny has developed in the Turkish army stationed along the Chatalja defenses, and it is feared a revolutionary uprising will follow.

Seditious placards were posted in the night throughout the Peroa and Stamboul quarters of the city.

Enver Bey, chief of staff of the Turkish army, is using his personal bodyguard to patrol the city. The guard consists of 700 picked and tried troops.

Sultan Mohammed V did not attend worship in the Yildiz mosque to-day.

Nicholas' Surrender Explanation Cheered.

CETTINJE, MONTENEGRO, May 9.—King Nicholas personally went before the National Parliament to-day and defended his action in giving way to the powers on the question of the evacuation of Scutari. He declared that annihilation inevitably would have followed resistance.

The statement was well taken and Nicholas was cheered.

Nearly all the Montenegrin troops have now left Scutari. King Nicholas feels keenly the humiliation of losing Scutari, and it again is reported he will abdicate in favor of the Crown Prince Danilo.

Scutari Saved From Destruction by Fire.

VIENNA, May 9.—Scutari, the Albanian city whose ownership nearly brought Europe to war, was threatened with destruction by fire to-day. A telegram from Cettinje said flames broke out in the main bazaar and owing to the absence of water and fire fighting appliances, spread rapidly.

500 STRIKERS IN BATTLE.

WINNIPEG, MAN., May 9.—Five hundred strikers at the Canada Car Company's plant to-day fought a battle with 180 strikebreakers. Several of the strikebreakers were injured.

CAN'T HELP BUT ADMIRE BABIES

Every Woman Casts Loving Glance at The Nestling Cuddled in Its Bonnet.

A woman's heart naturally responds to the charm and sweetness of a pretty child, and more to-day than ever before since the advent of Mother's Friend.

This is a most wonderful external help to the muscles and tendons. It penetrates the tissues, makes them pliant to readily yield to nature's demand for expansion, so there is no longer a period of pain, discomfort, straining, nausea or other symptoms so often distressing during the anxious weeks of expectancy.

Mother's Friend prepares the system for the coming event, and its use brings comfort, rest and repose during the term. This has a most marked influence upon the baby, since it thus inherits a splendid growing system of nerves and digestive function.

And particularly to young mothers is this famous remedy of inestimable value. It enables her to preserve her health and strength, and she remains a pretty mother by having avoided all the suffering and danger that would otherwise accompany such an occasion. Mother's Friend thoroughly lubricates every nerve, tendon and muscle involved and is a sure preventive for caking of the breasts.

You will find this splendid remedy on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 a bottle, and is highly recommended for the purpose.

Write Bradfield Regulator Co., 134 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., and they will mail you, sealed, a very instructive book for expectant mothers.

FEUD IN STATE DEPARTMENT GROWING HOT

Connor-Brown Fight for Place in Next Administration Sets Politicians Gossiping.

Well-defined and authoritative rumors of a first-class row inside the Georgia Agricultural Department, involving the present and the next administration, is the piquant morsel of gossip political observers are chewing upon.

The present Commissioner of Agriculture, J. J. Connor, and the present Assistant Commissioner, J. J. Brown, both, it is said, aspire to be Assistant Commissioner under Commissioner James D. Price, who goes into office in June.

Some time ago Commissioner Connor and Assistant Commissioner Brown are said to have had an understanding, the alleged setting aside of which is now the cause of the disturbance within the department.

Brown is understood to have promised Connor his assistance in the matter of the recent election of a manager at the Agricultural Experiment Station in Griffin, in return for Connor's assistance in landing the Assistant Commissionership under Price for Brown.

When the election of a manager took place at Griffin recently, however, Connor was not elected, the plum going to Professor DeLoach, of Athens.

Since that election, Brown's friends claim that Connor has entered the race for the Assistant Commissionership under Price, and Assistant Commissioner Brown has been outspoken in his indignation and surprise.

The Assistant Commissibner will be appointed by Commissioner Price after he is sworn in, and in the meantime the disagreement between Connor and Brown as to which, if either, shall have the assistant's place is extremely interesting to political observers throughout the State.

New Gowns Shock 'Bath House' John

'And It Takes Some Shock to Get Me,' Admits Famous Chicago Alderman.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Alderman "Bathhouse" John Coughlin is so shocked at the gowns he sees on the streets that he has drafted an ordinance to regulate women's dress, solely, he says, on moral grounds.

"We must pass an ordinance prohibiting women from wearing vulgar and suggestive dresses," he told the Judiciary Committee. "Some of the dresses I see on the street shock my moral senses, and it takes some shock to get me. The gowns are awful. No wonder there is business for a vice commission."

Granite State Honors Pierce After 40 Years

New Hampshire Democratic Legislature Favors Statue of One-Time President.

CONCORD, May 9.—Franklin Pierce, the only President from New Hampshire, seems assured, at last, of a statute by his native State. The Senate has passed a House bill providing for a $15,000 appropriation. Governor Felker is expected to sign the measure.

The fact that Pierce was a Democrat and pro-slavery man has hitherto aroused strong opposition to a statue. The Legislature is Democratic for the first time in forty years.

PRETTY VASSAR GIRL AFTER 'BIG PAT'S' SHOT-PUT RECORD

MISS ELIZABETH A. HARDEN. PATRICK M'DONALD SETTING A NEW MARK.

Wealthy Not Safe by 1915, Lecturer Says

J. F. Emerson, Minneapolis Man, Predicts Great Revolution of the Unemployed.

Unless conditions materially change it will not be safe for a millionaire to step outside of his home in 1915. This is the prediction made by J. F. Emerson, of Minneapolis, who will lecture at Cable Hall Sunday afternoon.

"If a change does not take place to stop the rapid increase of the number of the unemployed, I predict that by 1915 there will be such a revolution as will make the millionaire afraid to step outside his home for fear of having his brains blown out by the starving man who awaits him," is the comment made by Emerson.

Emerson's lecture will be free to the public. The subject will be "Was Man Created for Heaven?"

SEVEN MEN GIVE PATCHES OF SKIN TO SAVE BOY

NEW YORK, May 9.—If 10-year-old William Caldwell, of Nutley, N. J., survives the burns which he received when he fell into a bonfire several weeks ago, it will be through the aid of patches of skin from no less than seven men, who have volunteered for the sacrifice. The surgeons figure that he needs 180 square inches of skin grafted upon his body to save his life.

NEW YORK, May 9.—"Well, I swan—"

Just at this point the automobiles around Forty-second Street became congested, and genial "Pat" McDonald, pride of the traffic cops and champion shot-putter of the world, broke off his exclamation. Maybe it was best so, for Patrick had just been told that a Vassar College girl was after his shot-putting laurels and he seemed a bit "miffed."

He did not seem at all pleased to think that his athletic prowess should be o'ershadowed—not by a young college girl, at any rate.

But Miss Elizabeth Abigail Harden, of Newark, N. J., and a freshman at Vassar, is just as proud of her record as McDonald is of his, and she said to-day that she will shortly do even better than 33 feet and 3-4 inches.

No Vassar girl will ever reach Pat's record, however, for they throw a seven-pound shot at the girl's college.

Miss Harden's triumph came in the annual field meet at Vassar last week, and she was easily the star of the day. Besides the shot-put even, Miss Harden won the basket ball throwing contest with a mark of 80 feet 13 1-8 inches and the baseball throwing with 205 feet 7 inches. In both the latter events she broke records held by Miss Inez Milholland, who heretofore had been held the champion all-around woman athlete.

Like Miss Milholland, the Newark girl is an ardent worker for votes for women, and the only blight to her triumphs of Saturday was the fact that the meet kept her from marching with the other 10,000 women who are fighting for the ballot.

GERMAN ARMY DIRIGIBLE LOST TWO DAYS IN STORM

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

KOENIGSBERG, GERMANY, May 9.—The Cassiopeia, a spherical German military balloon, which ascended from this city Wednesday with Captain Von Wobeser and two passengers on board, has been missing 48 hours in a storm, and fears are felt for the safety of the aeronauts.

MOST SICKNESS COMES FROM WEAK, INACTIVE KIDNEYS

Recent Reports Show Hundreds Suffer With Kidney Troubles and Don't Know It.

There are scores of nervous, tired, run-down people throughout the city suffering with pains in the back and sides, dizzy spells, weaknesses of the bladder (frequently causing annoyance at night), who fail to realize the seriousness of their troubles until such conditions as chronic rheumatism, bladder troubles, dropsy, diabetes or even Bright's disease result.

All this is due to weak, inactive kidneys. The kidneys are the filterers of the blood, and no one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly. It is even more important than that the bowels move regularly.

If you suffer with such symptoms don't neglect yourself another day and run the risk of serious complications. Secure an original package of the new discovery, Croxone, which costs but a trifle, and commence its use at once. When you have taken a few doses, you will be surprised how differently you will feel.

Croxone cures the worst cases of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, because it removes the cause. It cleans out the kidneys, and makes them filter out all the poisonous waste matter and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the bladder, and quickly relieves you of all your misery.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, it is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

ALASKA ROW IS LAID TO FISHER FEARING BATH

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Richard S. Ryan, president of the Controller Bay Railroad and Navigation Company and one of the principals in the Dick-to-Dick letters, opposed Government ownership and operation of railroads in Alaska and attacked the accuracy of the Railway Commission's report on proposed routes, before the Senate Committee on Territories to-day.

Ryan asserted the conclusions of the commission are at variance with facts, and if the commission had used scientific facts in possession of the Government its report would have been entirely different.

Ryan referred sarcastically to the "wonderful visit" of Former Secretary of the Interior to Alaska and asserted that his unfavorable opinion of the Controller Bay country was due to the fact that he became "scared."

Ryan said that when Fisher started up the Bering River he lost heart at the sight of breakers, demanded to be let out of the boat and walked through marsh lands back to Katalla.

Matron at Soldiers' Home Dies Suddenly

Miss Aba T. Clayton Drops Dead After Five Years' Service to Confederate Veterans.

Miss Aba T. Clayton, matron at the Confederate Soldiers' Home, dropped dead Friday morning in her room after superintending the preparation of breakfast for the 106 inmates of the home. She had been afflicted with heart trouble.

Miss Clayton had been matron at the home five years and had won the hearts of the old veterans after whose comfort she looked with painstaking care. Her death was a distinct shock to them.

A sister, Miss Kate Clayton, of Atlanta, was notified and the body was brought to the undertaking establishment of Barclay and Brandon, from where it will be sent to Greensboro, Ga., the family home, for interment.

Lad, 13, Says He Shot Suitor of Mother

Declares He Ordered Man From Home, Then Fired in Self-Defense.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 9.—Duson Kostit, 32, is in a critical condition to-day from a wound inflicted last night by George Lukin, 13, son of Mrs. Amelia Lukin. The boy surrendered.

"Kostit had been calling on my mother for seven months," the boy told the police. "I ordered him to leave last night. He pulled a revolver and fired twice. Then I took aim with my rifle and he dropped, crying he had been shot."

"The Way, The Truth and The Life"

Mansions in Heaven, Factories on Earth, And Certain Houses

The night of His betrayal, Jesus said:

"Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.

"In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

You believe, and yet are troubled.

His cross and love have made you dissatisfied with self and with what you see and hear.

Visions of a heavenly home for you can not soothe you, so long as yonder hovels pour streams of children into Mammon's maw.

"They should be at play," you say.

Instead, factories and mills are marring their hearts and lives to make dividends for men.

Not this did Jesus mean, when He said:

"Suffer the little children to come unto Me."

And you would not—could not still the pity born of His spirit surging in your heart.

Rightly, you deny that woman's virtue depends on money.

But many families receiving less than a living wage must live within cheerless walls.

And this, you know—

When their girl is lost, fathers and mothers are not consoled by the thought that, had their wage been greater they could have saved her from the colorless, gloomy home which made her the more easily believe the luring lies of an easier way to live.

"Better had she died," you cry.

True! But you will not defend the hovel and the wage.

You recall:

"The day-spring from on high hath visited us,

"To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet in the way of peace."

And so, when some misguided man says:

"Segregate a few women for the common good."

You answer:

"Who shall choose the victims?

"Since when did God give man the right to assign some to mansions in the skies and send others to lodgings in hell?"

You justly say:

"Have done with the lie that men being lower than beasts makes necessary the ruin of some women!"

Even should a creature, like the fabled Minotaur of Crete, more monster than man, appear, you will not talk of sacrificing girls for him.

Instead, you will lock up the brute.

Segregate him in a cell; that would be well.

The day has past for the making and selling of white slaves in our city.

God's pity for His children is opening your eyes and ears.

You will help your sister. Never again will you consent by silence to her destruction.

Heaven help the man who thinks you will.

You are awake.

"You believe in God."

SUFFRAGETTES ASSAIL ASQUITH AND CHURCHILL

Guards Save English Premier From Injury by "Young Hot Blood" Militants.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Fresh suffragette outrages stirred England today. Members of the "Young Hot Blood" service of the Women's Social and Political Union burned Oaklea mansion, at Barrow, causing a $50,000 loss.

Other members of the union attempted to attack Premier and Mrs. Asquith and First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill and Mrs. Churchill as they were on their way to the Victoria Railway station today.

Mr. and Mrs. Asquith and Mr. and Mrs. Churchill were leaving on a journey to Venice, where they will embark upon the Admiralty yacht Enchantress for a cruise through the Mediterranean for inspection of British fortresses and navy depots.

Saved by Their Guards.

Only the fact that they had a heavy bodyguard of policemen, soldiers and private detectives saved them from injury at the hands of militant suffragettes.

Mrs. Flora Drummond, or "General" Drummond, as she is known because of her Amazonian qualities, who collapsed in Bow Street Court yesterday during the trial of the women arrested in the raid on headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union, was in a serious condition to-day. She had refused to eat for a week to spite the government and her health has become so badly deranged as a result that an operation may be necessary. She was removed to a nursing home this morning.

Love Wins New Ally.

Interesting sidelights on the organization of militants are being brought out at the trial of the militant leaders. Letters seized by the police include a number of passionate, burning love letters from a former Socialist member of Parliament. The letters show that he is infatuated with one of the leaders of the "wild women" and that he allied himself with the "cause" at her command.

Other documents show that the most dangerous branch of the union is called the "Service of Young Hot Bloods." No one but young unmarried women of high courage are admitted. These are some of the questions put to them before they are admitted into this branch of the union:

Are you willing to die a violent death to-day?

Are you afraid of dynamite or any other high explosive?

Will you swear to hunger strike if sent to jail?

Will you renounce the softer characteristics of womankind in favor of a great principle?

Are you healthy and strong and able to hold your own against a single policeman?

The arsonettes and the members of the dynamite squad are recruited from the "Y. H. B." service.

King Edward Speed 'Fiend,' Says Autoist

Late Monarch's Chauffeur Tells in a Book of His Ruler's Traits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Interesting trials in King Edward's character are revealed in the book, "What I Know," by C. W. Stamper, private automobile expert to the late monarch. It says: "The King liked speedy traveling, but insisted on careful driving through towns and villages. His walk was never leisurely. He was in and out of a motor car or a train in a moment.

"He spoke rapidly, ate very fast and smoked hard. Speed was the essence of his nature."

The King's chauffeur always was instructed by the equerry to observe the legal speed limit, but if the King complained, he was to increase the speed temporarily and gradually to slacken it again.

Better Than Medicine

Breathe Hyomei and Be Rid of Catarrh—Cleears Stopped-Up Head.

Nature has a remedy for catarrh and troubles of the breathing organs, a treatment that is far better than dosing the stomach with medicine.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicate the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing the catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the musous membrane.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the natural remedy, for it gives a curative bath to the air passages. It has a powerful healing and antiseptic effect similar to the air in the mountains where the forests give off the fragrant and healing balsams.

Hyomei has benefited so many sufferers of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucous, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing that it is sold under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. If the treatment does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense, while if it cures the cost is nominal. A complete Hyomei Outfit sells for only $1.00. Extra bottles of liquid if later needed 50 cents.

U. S. CHECKS TOLL OF TUBERCULOSIS

Death Rate Decreased From 174.5 to 139.7 Per 100,000 Population in Last Decade.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—That the death rate in the United States from tuberculosis during the decade ending in 1910 has diminished from 174.5 per 100,000 of population to 139.7 was the statement made here by Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman of Newark, in an address before the sociological section of the National association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis.

"In other words," said Dr. Hoffman, "nearly 200,000 lives were saved from 1909 to 1910, in the campaign against this disease."

Dr. Hoffman stated that the death rate in New York City, 289.1 in 1881, had declined to 180.1 in 1912. He made no mention of any so-called "cures."

Surgeon B. S. Warren, of the U. S. Public Health Service, affirmed that deaths of government employees from tuberculosis were much lower than that of other laborers in similar occupations, because of the superior sanitary conditions."

"About 50,000 new cases of tuberculosis are constantly drifting about the country for long periods without even consulting physicians," was the statement by Dr. Harfy Lee Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode Island State Sanitarium.

Jumping into an automobile he started in quest of the voter, whom he found at work atop of an ice house. Maher in coming down the ice run came in contact with nails which caught in his trousers seat, completely removing it.

He got to the polls on time with the voter, however.

FRANCE GASPS WHEN ALFONSO VAULTS FENCE

Democratic Behavior of Spanish King Startles Dignified Ministry in Dress Suits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—King Alfonso's state visit to France came to a close to-day with a remarkable aerial exhibition at the St. Cyr Aerodome. As the Spanish King and his official hosts looked on one aeroplane after another ascended until the sky seemed filled with them. Alfonso said it was one of the most inspiring sights he had ever seen.

One of the most interesting features of the Spanish monarch's visit has been his extreme democratic behavior. At Fontainebleau a gorgeous stand decorated with the royal colors of Spain had been erected in which Alfonso was to have sat while the troops were reviewed. The chair in which the King was to have sat was of bronze.

An Astonished Ministry.

President Poincare and the French Ministers, all solemn, obsequious and in dress suits, drew to one side to allow Alfonso to enter the pavilion. Instead of doing so, the King ran down to the railing, placed his hands upon it and vaulted over the rail like an athlete. Then he sat down on the grass and clued a pair of field glasses to his eyes while the Cabinet Ministers looked on in astonishment.

Shakes Hands With Aviators.

After the aviation meet Alfonso insisted on shaking hands with several aviators and mechanicians. His white gloves were black with oil and grease when he got through.

The French press believes that the visit has ben of great benefit to both France and Spain.

Before his departure for St. Cyr, Alfonso held a conference with Foreign Minister Pichon, at which the question of Spain entering the triple entente with France, Russia and England was discussed. It would then become the quadruple entente.

Danish Minister Is Courting Again

Washington Society Hears Engagement to Mrs. Townsend Is Renewed.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The engagement which friends insist existed between Mrs. Richard Townsend and M. Constantin Brun, the Danish Minister, last year, according to rumor current this week, has been renewed.

Several times while stationed in other countries M. Brun paid visits to Washington, many say to see the rich widow. When he was sent to Washington a year ago every one expected that Mrs. Townsend would soon take her place as chatelaine of the Legation.

CHATTANOOGA MAY NOT SEEK G. A. R. CONVENTION

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 9.—Although the time limit expires tomorrow, it is not known whether or not Chattanooga will invite the Grand Army of the Republic to meet here next fall. The railroads, it is understood, have failed to co-operate. A formal invitation, it is believed, can win the gathering.

THE PLAY THIS WEEK

FEATURE BILL AT FORSYTH.

There will be just four more performances of the Keith vaudeville acts that are at the Forsyth this week. One of the four will be to-day's matinee which is already heavily sold, another will be the Saturday matinee for which there is a large sale and the remaining performances are Friday and Saturday nights.

The headliner this week is Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, one of the most original ideas in modern vaudeville. The act is crowded with all of the Edwards new song hits. Another feature is pretty Belle Story, the entertaining vocalist. Miss Story possesses a remarkable voice. The comedy act of Williams, Thompson and Copeland is a scream. The whole bill pleases.

For next week the headline act will be Paul Dickey, the star football player of the University of Michigan, who will appear with a company of five people who will offer "The Come Back," a story founded on college life. Another star act will be the Apollo Trio, native Italians, who will pose as living bronze statues.

SOCIETY NIGHT AT THE ATLANTA.

Miss Billy Long and the members of her company have made a big hit this week in "The Girl From Out Yonder," which is at the Atlanta. To-night will be special Society Night in honor of Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison and a packed house is expected to greet the company. A 25 cent matinee will be played to-morrow and the present bill offered for the last time to-morrow night.

Next week the company will present, "Are You a Mason?" which is a roaring farce comedy. Owing to the demand for matinee seats an extra matinee has been added for Monday afternoon and in the future three matinees will be given each week. "Are You a Mason?" has a thousand laughs and its presentation will serve to introduce two new members of the company to the public—both highly experienced. Miss Harrison has an important role also.

NEWS ITEM—The Democratic majority of the Senate, in caucus, has made a determined attack on the seductive influence of golf and baseball. A promise was exacted from members that hereafter enough members will be present in the Senate to maintain a quorum.

More than an hour was spent one day in a futile effort to get enough Senators to transact business at an executive session.

MILLTOWN WILL FISH, REGARDLESS

Mayor Pafford Declares Georgia Laws Give Residents Right to Angle in Banks Pond.

Citizens of Milltown, Ga., deny that the town is in a state of excitement and that it will be necessary to call out troops to preserve order. Mayor William F. Pafford has issued a statement declaring Game Warden Boisclair became unduly alarmed.

Governor Brown has not considered sending troops to Berrien County. It is hardly likely he will.

Until the Legislature changes the law, Milltown sportsmen will continue to angle for the elusive trout in Banks' fishpond so long as they have permission from owners of the land on which the body of water is located, according to Mayor Pafford.

"Section 7 of the game law privileges a person to fish with permission from the owner of the land, which the 20 persons arrested had," he declared.

"The statement of State Game and Fish Commissioner Mercer that his wardens have been intimidated and that the local authorities are too much in sympathy with the lawless element to give any assistance is untrue," said Pafford.

Boisclair made 20 arrests of persons. He charges he was prevented from prosecuting the cases because the justices of the peace declared he would not convict any of the parties.

The whole matter hinges on a land dispute. The Banks estate claims to own all of the property on which the pond is located. Other property owners say a title to all of the property has never been vested with Banks.

COTTON MANUFACTURERS CONVENE IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, GA., May 9.—The annual convention of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia convened in Columbus to-day, with President E. B. Gordon, of this city, presiding. Among the speakers for the day were Stuart W. Cramer, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and D. W. Peabody, of Atlanta. Fuller Callaway, of LaGrange, banker and manufacturer, also was on the program.

New Georgia Road to Start Trains in June

Elberton and Eastman Will Open Rich Country to Connection With Seaboard Air Line.

Another railroad will be added to Georgia's imposing list in June, when the Elberton and Eastern Railway Company begins operation from Elberton through Cauthen, Fortsonia, Bell, Norman and Mallorysville to Tignall, a distance of 21.8 miles. It connects with the Seaboard at Elberton. Eventually, it may push on to Washington to connect with the Georgia Railroad.

The new line taps an agricultural district of some importance, which now has no railroad facilities. It has standard roadbed and equipment. It is capitalized at $300,000 in bonds and $200,000 in stock. W. O. Jones is president.

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—That aeroplanes are to be used extensively for defenses of the Panama Canal was the statement of Aviator Robert G. Fowler, who returned here to-day from Panama. He asserted that Colonel Goethals would ask Congress for an appropriation for aeroplanes and hydro-aeroplanes to be used in connection with the proposed fortifications.

The bank has not resumed business and will likely liquidate.

It is alleged that Cason not only embezzled the bank's funds, but under various pretexts had stockholders of the institution indorse his notes at other banks for large sums. Cason was prominent in church circles and had the confidence of the people of Crossland.

HARVEY'S CHARGE STIRS MARSHALL

WASHINGTON, May 9.—In answer to Colonel George Harvey's charge, made at a dinner in New York of representatives from the trust companies of America, to the effect that Vice President Marshall's criticism of the wealthy acted as an "incitement to the predatory poor," the Vice President said to-day:

"If anybody will produce a public utterance of mine for the curtailment of accumulation or distribution of honest wealth, except by a fair inheritance tax, I will go to Wall Street and personally apologize.

"In the course of a long professional career, however, I have asserted that the witness who had knowledge of fraud invariably got mad when he was interrogated as to the fraud."

The Vice President at first was inclined to take the matter as a joke. He said, however, that he wished to have the affair closed and to hear nothing more on the score of his misrepresented public utterances.

LEOPOLD'S WIDOW, DIVORCED, TO WED

Morganatic Wife of Belgian King, Freed From M. Durrieux, Accepts German Army Officer.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—Within less than 24 hours after she had obtained a divorce from her second husband, M. Durrieux, it was reported to-day that Baroness Vaughan would soon marry again

Baroness Vaughan was the morganatic wife of King Leopold of Belgium, and bore him two sons. After Leopold's death she married M. Durrieux, but entered suit for divorce, alleging infidelity. A decree was granted in her favor yesterday.

Baroness Vaughan began life as a washerwoman, but her beauty attracted the eye of the aged Belgian King, who took her under his protection and showered wealth upon her.

Her next husband, it is said, will be a German army officer.

What Ails You?

An invitation is extended by Doctor Pierce to every sick and ailing man or woman to consult the Faculty of the Invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, N. Y., by letter. Write your symptoms fully and frankly, and every letter will be carefully considered, fully answered and its statements held as strictly private and sacredly confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

makes for rich, pure blood and thus invigorates the system. For a torpid liver and its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue with bitter taste, loss of appetite with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is as good.

Effective Home Remedy For Lung Trouble

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benefited, but few can safely return. Eckman's Alterative is effective for home treatment. For example:

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed my regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I can not praise Eckman's Alterative too highly. I have recommended it with excellent results."

(Signed) W. M. TATEM.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' drug stores and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFULLY DARKENS THE HAIR WHEN FADED AND GRAY

Mixed With Sulphur Makes Hair Soft, Lustrous and Cures Dandruff.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's," which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair, and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says his customers insist on Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur because, they say, it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant. Elkin Drug Co., special agents.

BOYS AND GIRLS IN PONY CONTEST HAVE MANY VOTES

Names and Standing of Entrants Are Announced---No One Will Have a 'Walkaway' in Race for Beautiful Prizes---Totals Will Leap Upward.

Here are the boys and girls who have entered in The Georgian and Sunday American's contest for the twelve pony outfits.

There is a goodly number of them. Evidently no one is to have a "walkaway." Good, hustling, bright boys and girls they are, with plenty of friends to help them, and all filled with a determination to win.

Of course the figures presented now mean very little. Many of the contestants simply have been nominated. Some others have piled up a good start.

But watch the votes grow!

The totals will leap up by thousands as the days go by.

It's not too late to get your name in the list, but it would be well not to delay. Some of these contestants may have something "up their sleeves." You can't tell. It's time to get busy.

SHERIFF OF DOOLY DIES FROM BLOW'S BULLETS

VIENNA, GA., May 9.—Sheriff C. I. Bennett, of Dooly County, died early to-day from pistol wounds received Wednesday when he attempted to arrest Oscar Blow for killing P. P. Sangster, a prominent farmer.

Bennett's body was buried here to-day.

Judge W. F. George, of the Superior Court of Dooly County, has adjourned the session until August because of the Sheriff's death.

EPISCOPAL CLERGY FOR BAN ON 'UNFIT' WEDDING

NEW YORK, May 9.—A rule requiring health certificates for marriage is under consideration by the Episcopal clergy of New York, according to a statement issued to-day by the social service commission of the diocese of New York. The commission, the report states, had already made a preliminary investigation and found six out of every seven clergymen in favor of the plan.

Wool Trade Waits On Tariff Action

Sales Larger Than Last Week, but Heavy Lots Are Moved Only by Cutting Prices.

BOSTON, May 9.—While rather more wool has changed hands the past week, manufacturers have bought only for piecing out purposes. Both dealers and manufacturers continue waiting for a settlement of the tariff uncertainty. The aggregate of sales is swelled by an occasional sizable transfer at a sacrifice. In this way, some very low prices have recently been made, there being apparently no bottom to the market.

Probably the worst feature at present is the uncertainty. If the traders were assured that the Underwood bill would surely be passed by both Houses substantially in its present form, they could buy the new clip wools with reasonable safety.

Receipts in pounds for the week-end and including Wednesday were as follows:

ALABAMA U. S. ATTORNEY TO PROSECUTE COL. HUFF

MACON, GA., May 9.—Oliver Street, United States District Attorney for the Northern District of Alabama, has been assigned by Attorney General McReynolds to conduct the prosecution of Colonel W. A. Huff, charged with contempt of court, District Attorney Alex Akerman being relieved at his own request. The case will be heard on May 19, with Judge W. I. Grubb, of Birmingham, presiding in place of Judge Emory Speer, before and against whom the contempt is alleged to have been committed.

PANIC IN DINER AS WAITER SHOOTS COOK

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 9.—As a Pennsylvania Railroad train bound for St. Louis pulled out of the North Philadelphia station last night, passengers in the dining car were thrown into a panic when Vaudergrift Thomas, a waiter, shot John E. Dyer, the cook attached to the car.

Two shots were fired, and one took effect in Dyer's leg.

Minister Goes From Pulpit to Theater

Philadelphia Playwright Will Direct Production of His Work in New York.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The Rev. Henry W. Lambert, of the Thirty-fourth Street Baptist Church in this city, has resigned his pulpit in order that he may direct the production of his first play in New York next fall. Dr. Lambert has written "For Love of Her," a moral play, which has been accepted.

Dr. Lambert says that he was spurred on in his playwriting by the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, the Presbyterian evangelist. In one of his sermons on the stage Dr. Chapman said if any playwright could write a play that had not one improper thought, word or action, then he would be conferring a favor on the human race.

TWO CAROLINA BANKERS SENT TO ATLANTA PRISON

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 9.—Judge J. E. Boyd, sitting in United States District Court, has given notice that on Tuesday he will order Major W. E. Breese and J. E. Dickerson into custody of the United States Marshal to serve sentences of two years in the Atlanta Penitentiary for complicity in the failure of the First National Bank fifteen years ago.

District Attorney Holton asked that the men be ordered in custody at once, but attorneys for the defendants got an extension on account of the illness of Major Breese.

'SONNY' COLLINS' SLAYER GETS 18 MONTHS IN PRISON

AUGUSTA, GA., May 9.—Marshall Shedd this afternoon was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter by a jury in Richmond Superior Court. He was sentenced to serve six months in jail and one year on the chaingang. Shedd, a Georgia Railroad engineer, shot and killed Edward ("Sonny") Collins, a former Augusta politician.

Declares Women on Cars Are Brainless

Longfellow's Grandson Much Exercised by What He Terms Their Stupidity.

BOSTON, May 9.—That woman are "brainless" as far as riding on the street car goes, was the declaration of Edmund Trowbridge Dana, grandson of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, social economic investigator, Harvard student and retired street car conductor, in an address before the Boston School of Social Science. He said:

"When it comes to riding on street cars women are the stupidest things imaginable. When you are trying to make up time they are always in the majority and always blundering. Why, they don't seem to have any brains at all."

ITALIANS AID IN STAMPING OUT CRIMINAL ELEMENT

NEW YORK, May 9.—Prominent Italians of this city are banding together to aid the police in stamping out the criminal element among their countrymen. They are already at work searching for Oresto Shillitoni, an Italian suspected of the murder of two policemen last Saturday night.

At their own expense, it is said, they have employed a former member of the police department who has the reputation of knowing more about criminal Italians than any detective in this city.

HEROINE FAINTS, VILLAIN SHOOTS SELF, SHOW ENDS

Straw Hats Due at Harvard Saturday

Student Council Opens the Season Two Weeks Earlier This Year.

BOSTON, May 9.—The closed season on straw hats at Harvard will expire Saturday.

This was the official pronouncement to-day of the student council which, taking upon itself the function of arbiter of fashion, declared proper the wearing of the straw two weeks earlier than custom has before decreed.

The terraces of the stadium are expected to bloom with Panamas and common straws to-morrow when the athletic meet between Cornell and Harvard will be held.

POSSE, EXHAUSTED, QUITS SEARCH FOR DESPERADO

SAVANNAH, GA., May 9.—Men and dogs completely exhausted, the chase for Richard Henry Austin, the South Carolina desperado, was abandoned in Screven County last night. Austin crippled one of the dogs and took refuge in the swamps near Newington, where it was impossible for the searchers to reach him.

STATE BOARD IS PROPOSED FOR TAX EQUALIZING

Clarke County Representative to Push Bill in Legislature. Wide Demand for It.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Representative Frank A. Lipscomb of Clarke County will introduce early in the forthcoming session of the Legislature a bill providing for the creation of a State Board of Tax Equalizers.

The necessity for such a board has been discussed favorably by the press of the State time and again, but so far no serious effort has been made to frame the suggestion into a workable law.

Mr. Lipscomb has made a study of tax conditions in Georgia, however, and has reached the conclusion that the only practical and equitable method of increasing the revenue of the State, without elevating the tax rate, dwells within the creation of a tax equalizing board.

The bill, it is understood, already has been prepared by Mr. Lipscomb, but before it is offered it will be passed upon by one of the most eminent authorities on statutory and constitutional law within the State, and such changes, if any, as he may suggest likely will be made in the measure before it is presented.

Mr. Lipscomb is a new member of the Legislature. He is a young man, around 35, and has had some experience in legislative and administrative work on the City Council of Athens, of which he was three times elected a member, but his forthcoming term in the House of Representatives will be his first service in the broader field of State politics.

He is one of Athens' leading business men, a scion of an old and distinguished Georgia family, an extremely likeable sort of person, and is sure to take a high stand in the Legislature from the day he is given the oath of a Representative.

Mr. Lipscomb has other important legislative proposals to submit to the General Assembly in due course of time, but his bill to create a Board of Tax Equalizers will be his pet project, and the one he is most deeply interested in.

There is no doubt whatever that the bill will receive hearty and strong support from many members of influence, and the prospect of the bill becoming a law generally is looked upon as exceedingly bright.

Former Sheriff of McDuffie County, the Honorable "Shade" Hawes, one of the leading citizens of Thomas E. Watson's well-known town of Thomson, is, and for several days has been, a visitor in Atlanta's delighted midst.

Mr. Hawes is credited with being one of the very shrewdest political observers in the State, and moves hither and yon in most mysterious way his wonders to perform. He has an idea, however—really, it is an obsession—that his home town of Thomson is possessed of more automobiles than any other town of its size in the world. He claims that there are 56 machines in Thomson, notwithstanding the fact that it has been disputed there is room enough in Thomson for even one-half so many.

One irreverent person asked the Sheriff if it was true that they had to run the sewerage system in Thomson straight up in the air to keep it inside the corporate limits—but the Sheriff disdained pointedly to comment upon that.

In charging a Floyd County Grand Jury, Judge Moses Wright recently expressed an opinion that should prove of widespread interest in Georgia.

In giving his interpretation of the present prohibition law, the jurist declared that it "is illegal for one person to order liquor for another."

The Rome Judge bases his opinion upon that section of the Code which says that it shall be illegal to "contract to sell, take orders for or solicit personally or by agent."

As a result of his charge, a rigid investigation of Rome's two locker clubs is under way.

All the Georgia newspapers and all the Georgia politicians are congratulating Editor Dick Grubb and renewing their good wishes to him that The Darien Gazette has achieved its fortieth birthday, and is as bright and snappy to-day as when it was a mere journalistic kiddo.

"Old Dick" Grubb has been a laborer in the newspaper vineyard many moons, and is generally beloved throughout the State. For years his weekly column of paragraphic comment upon men and things in Georgia—rarely other than kindly and sunny tempered—has been looked forward to by many.

Everybody will wish The Darien Gazette many happy returns of the day, and its editor many years of usefulness yet to come.

Representative-elect W. H. Connor, of Spalding County, will introduce two interesting local bills in the General Assembly soon after it convenes.

The first is one to provide for the election of the Griffin City Education Board by the people, rather than by the Council, as has been the custom in the past, and the other is to amend the charter of Griffin so that ward primaries will be abolished and the old plan of general elections be returned.

Four years ago the Legislature changed the charter, at the request of Council, providing for ward primaries; but the system has not proved satisfactory to a great portion of the voters. It is desired by citizens that a voter be allowed to cast his ballot for Aldermen, regardless of which ward he may reside in.

This local legislation in Griffin will be interesting to many cities in Georgia that have operated for a good many years under the very same disadvantages that Griffin is undertaking to get away from, and it may be that Representative Connor's bill will suggest many another of a similar sort from other cities in the State.

Representative William H. Burwell, of Hancock County, is spending a few days in Atlanta. While here he conferred with several of his friends about his speakership race. He feels assured of election on the first ballot.

White City Park Now Open

Attention! Now It's Sandals for Girls Of That Gay Paree!

The old Greek fashion of dressing, including draped skirts and waists, long ago was taken up by the women of Paris and from there carried around the globe, has now reached the feet.

For to-day the elite of the French women, who set the fashion for that city of pretty and vivacious women are wearing sandals!

The high heel shoe and the oft painful by bent arch, has now been "given the hook." In their place has been selected the old-fashioned sandal, and it looks as if it had come to stay.

In fact, so complete has been the change of fashion in this respect that several of the famous Parisian stores, which cater particularly to the fashionable class, have put in a great stock of sandals.

Along the boulevards, women are seen parading at all hours, wearing sandals fastened to their feet by prettily colored ribbon in a band around their ankles.

Adherents of the new style declare it of great benefit to the health of the person wearing them.

Suppleness and flexibility, modistes argue, are the feature of women's dress of the present day.

Nature's Banner of 'Votes for Women'

Mrs. Torbet Will Raise Nothing but Flowers of Yellow Hue in Her Garden.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Nature is the latest ally to be lined up under the banner of "Votes for Women" and the suffragist garden is the means by which it has been secured for the cause. Mrs. Lewis K. Torbet announced her plans for the brand new publicity method.

"I intend to have my entire garden at my summer home remodeled and install nothing but flowers of a yellow hue, the color of the American suffragists," she said.

"I will have marigolds, daisies, roses, sunflowers, Japanese gold lilies, chrysanthemums, buttercups and every yellow flower that will grow and wave for the cause of women's suffrage.

"But I won't have anything with the English militant suffragist colors—violet and green."

ANY FRIEND CAN NOMINATE YOU IN BIG CONTEST

Strong Lead Will be Gained Over Your Rivals by Entering Competition Early.

Anyone can nominate a contestant for the pony outfits which the Georgian and American will give away as prizes.

This has been explained before, but many people still ask, so it may be well to state it again.

All that is necessary is to send in a nomination blank. Parents, uncles, aunts, friends, or even the contestant may make the nomination, and the result is the same—the name is listed, and 1,000 votes are credited to the name.

The call for books, used to make a record of subscriptions and votes and to furnish a receipt to the subscribers, shows that all are making an early start. One employee of the Georgian and American finds the distribution of these books to callers takes a good deal of his time.

So the contest is well under way.

The ponies, too, are here. The best ponies in the Tennessee bluegrass section—twelve of them—have been purchased by an expert delegated to the task by the Georgian and American.

Early Start Counts.

Remember that an early start counts for much. A big lead over your friends and acquaintances before they are approached by the other boys and girls.

Wouldn't you be disappointed to have your best friend say:

"Why, I've subscribed to the Georgian and American for a year and have given the subscription to George. I would have been glad to help you, but I didn't know you were in the race, and George asked me first."

Think what a disappointment that would be.

The only way to avoid such disconcerting replies is to be the early bird yourself.

An early start, too, gives you experience of a useful sort ahead of the other contestants, and the result will be that when you have become an adept at securing subscriptions, your rivals will be floundering around for a start.

So, by all means, if you have not entered the race for one of the twelve pony outfits by now, send in your nomination blank right away. If you have entered, be sure to get the necessary book at once, and get busy.

Some, you will find, already have piled up an excellent total for a beginning.

And are you clipping the daily coupons in the Georgian and the Sunday American? And are your friends saving theirs for you? They count up rapidly if you can get several friends to help.

G.O.P. RESENTS BULL MOOSER'S REUNION MOVE

Members of Old Guard Say Cummins Is Hasty and Is Likely to Hurt Party.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Old-line Republicans to-day expressed in strong terms their antagonism to the independent action of Senator Cummins of Iowa and other members of the progressive wing of that party in calling a conference in Chicago to-morrow. They declined to approve the plan and declared that the Cummins contingent was laying the party open to another split.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, minority leader of the Senate, said:

"I think the Cummins conference is premature, and when the time comes to recognize the Republican party I shall certainly follow the men who made the party rather than those who helped to wreck it."

Senator Smoot of Utah declared "that neither Senator Cummins nor any other Progressive can reorganize the Republican party."

Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin was of the opinion that the Cummins conference presaged another party split. "They wrecked the party," he said bitterly, "and now they are trying to damn it."

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania said that it would be better to postpone the Cummins conference now and to hold it later under the regular Republican banner.

Buyer of Eggs Must Declare Intentions

That Is, If He Wants to Complain at the Failure of Table Variety to Hatch.

CEDAR GROVE, N. J., May 9.—The Cedar Grove Board of Poultry Trade has handed down a decision of interest to poultrymen all over America.

Squire Hoke Baldwin has been selling White Orpington eggs at 25 cents a dozen for table use and at $2 for thirteen for setting purposes. Archibald Griswold bought some eggs from ing to New York. Instead he set the eggs. They did not hatch and he brought the matter to the attention of the Board of Poultry Trade.

The board found that Baldwin had dipped the eggs in hot water before delivering them, rendering them infertile. The board decided that between January 7 and July 1 the purchaser must declare truthfully for what purpose he wants eggs when buying them.

GIRLS TO TELL IN PULPITS OF WORKING CONDITIONS

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 9.—Horrified by the stories told them by some of the girl department store clerks who are on strike, many ministers to-day invited the girls to occupy their pulpits Sunday and repeat there the true conditions under which they work.

TOMBOY GAMES BEST FOR GIRLS, EXPERT CLAIMS

Recreation Congress Speaker Declares Vigorous Games Are Character Developers.

RICHMOND, VA., May 9.—Too much distinction is made between boys and girls, in their play, their work and their educational training. This was the text of an address by Mrs. Charles T. Weller, of Lawrence, Kansas, at the morning session of the Recreation Congress.

"Many people begin, in his babyhood, to train the boy away from the gentler side of life by taking away his doll. Later they teach him that certain home duties belong to the girl; and since the boy's work—such as cutting wood and drawing water—no longer has a place in the city household, he grows up without sense of responsibility and devotion toward his own home when he has one.

"The girl, on the other hand, is constantly repressed and, because her faults are not dramatic like those of her brother, her elders fail to realize that she needs broad training to free her from the narrowness and pettiness of women, which has been the jest of the ages.

"Vigorous sports, especially games, are found to develop just those characteristics in which women are lacking.

"Let the girls play hard sometimes and forget themselves. Quieter sport—music, literature, art—have their very important place for the girl; and quite as much for the boy. For with this all-round training each may be gentle and each may be strong when occasion demands it; and together they may round out a fuller, more wholesome life for the race.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Repairing of Dolls Quite a Business.

"Dolls Repaired Quickly and Cheaply."

That sign prominently displayed at a point on Peachtree Street, by which thousands of people pass daily, is one likely to attract the attention of little folks—girls, of course—whose dollies are in need of such necessaries as eyes, hair, hands and feet.

"You'd be surprised," said the old gentleman who answers when anyone makes inquiry concerning the sign, "the number of dolls that we repair every day. My whole family is engaged in the business. It is a queething about child nature, but girls—the little ones, you know—become so attached to their dolls that when they wear out the children are almost inconsolable. They like a new doll, of course, but nothing can take the place of the old one in their childish affections. That's where our business comes in. We take the old doll, put new feet and hands on it, insert an eye if one is needed and, in fact, fix Miss Dollie up so that she looks like a new one. But to its little 'mother' it is still the same old Polly Hopkins, or Susan or Mary, as the case may be. It really does my heart good to see the little folks when their mothers bring them to my place to get the rejuvenated dollie. They go into raptures over the made-over toy, and their outbursts are evidences of genuine affection. 'Mother-love,' I suppose you newspaper fellows call it."

How Window Dressers Keep Track of Pins.

"I'll bet," said one of two men who had paused before the display window of a Whitehall Street department store while the window dresser was at work "that it was a woman who invented the thing that chap has fastened to his left arm."

His attention having been called to it, the other man took a squint at the object. It was a pincushion about three inches square fastened to a wide elastic band—like a garter—which was passed around the arm just above the elbow. The cushion was filled with all sorts of pins—small ones and large ones; some plain and some black.

As he worked, arranging pieces of cloth here and there to give the desired fold effect, the dresser had occasion to use countless pins. They were always right at his hand.

"When I was a young man," remarked one of the onlookers, "I used to dress windows and I carried a mouthful of pins all the time. The danger of swallowing them, however, was great, and I never cared much for the job. This fellow has the problem solved, but if he's married, I'll bet his wife invented it. No mere man would ever think of that pincushion affair."

The Story of Two Boys And What They Have Done.

"I was reading in The Georgian the other day," said the doctor, "when my attention was attracted by an article concerning some bequests made to education by Mrs. G. P. Dodd. Instantly I remembered two young fellows who used to live in Atlanta and with whom I attended the Boys' High School. They were Phil and Earl Ackerman, sons of Mrs. Fannie Ackerman, who was a sister of Mrs. Dodd, and to whom Mrs. Dodd left a bequest. The Ackerman boys lived with their uncle on Whitehall Street between Cooper and Windsor. Both were real geniuses, and both were enamored of the stage—not as actors, mind you, but as managers and producers. In the basement of the Dodd home they had fitted up a scenic studio and there in 1891 they built the scenery for 'Xonia, or the Fairy Queen,' a spectacular play which they presented at Concordia Hall, then on Marietta Street.

"The cast was made up of local young folks and the play was put on in admirable style. There was no end of trick scenery, all designed, built and painted by the Ackerman boys. Phil played the part of an Irishman, Earl was a 'demon' and the part of a clown was played by Cliff Saul, brother of Milt Saul, who is publicity manager for the Georgia Railway and Power Company. Another member of the company was Henry Franklin, now a staid Atlanta business man, an officer of a big hardware concern. Artisticaly, 'Xonia' was a success. I am not certain about its financial success.

"Soon after this Mrs. Ackerman and her sons removed to New York, and the boys evidently kept in touch with things theatrical, because 'Bob' Goodman, another Atlanta boy who has risen to heights in stage affairs, told me not long ago that Phil and Earl Ackerman are the owners of one of the largest scenic studios in Brooklyn."

Debtors File Petition Against Owners of Building at Linden Avenue and Peachtree.

Work on the concrete building at Linden and Peachtree Streets was halted to-day, as a result of a petition filed Thursday afternoon by the Mackle-Crawford Company.

The petition asked that the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company and Mrs. Mary Potts be enjoined from doing further construction work on the building, pending payment of $4,483 which the Mackle-Crawford Company claims is due it for concrete framework of the building.

The petition maintained that further work on the building would conceal the work done by the company and render proof difficult.

POLICEMAN DENIES WOMEN'S CHARGES

Kirk Declares Statement That He Made Raided House His Headquarters Is False.

Policeman James Kirk, a member of Chief Beavers' "vice squad," Friday morning emphatically denied the charges of improper conduct made against him by Mrs. N. P. Powell, Mrs. Lena Bernard and Mrs. John Bryant, whom Kirk, with a squad of police, arrested last week on a charge of running a disorderly house at 95 Spring Street.

"The charges have no foundation," he said. "I went to Mrs. Powell and her husband, and told them if they didn't get rid of the women they had staying there and shut up their place, we would arrest them. Both the woman and Powell told me they would make the women leave and quit running the kind of a house that Chief Beavers has ordered out of the city. We watched the place for several nights, and saw from five to fifteen men going in and out of the place every night.

"When we saw that they continued to run the house we raided them. There were four men there at the time, but they escaped by jumping out of the windows. The women have been held to the Grand Jury.

"The statement that I made the place my headquarters is a falsehood, pure and simple. Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Bernard and Mrs. Bryant are known to the police. They have been arrested numerous times."

The hearing of the injunction which Mrs. Powell, through her attorneys, Gober & Jackson, got from Judge Bell to restrain the police from evicting her, will be held Saturday morning.

Are You Subject To Constipation

MRS. G. B. PRUITT.

Very few people go through life without some time or other being troubled with constipation. Thousands injure themselves by the use of strong cathartics, salt mineral waters, pills and similar things. They have temporary value in some cases, it is true, but the good effect is soon lost, and the more one takes of them the less effective they become.

A physic or purgative is seldom necessary, and much better and more permanent results can be obtained by using a scientific remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It does not hide behind a high sounding name, but is what it is represented to be, a mild laxative medicine. It is so mild that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is so compounded, and contains such definite ingredients that it will have equally good effect when used by a person suffering from the worst chronic constipation. In fact, among the greatest indorsers of Syrup Pepsin are elderly people who have suffered for years and found nothing to benefit them until they took Syrup Pepsin.

It is a fact that millions of families have Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, homes like those of Mrs. G. B. Pruitt, Berea, Ky., who used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as a laxative tonic. Mrs. Pruitt writes that it so strengthened and cleansed her system that she was quickly relieved of a severe cough which had troubled her for months. The special value of this grand laxative tonic is that it is suited to the needs of every member of the family. It is pleasant tasting, mild and non-griping. Unlike harsh physics, it works gradually and in a very brief time the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to do their work naturally again, when all medicines can be dispensed with.

You can obtain a bottle at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is usually bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

The table, with covers laid for 12, was placed in the rose room, where handsome palms were grouped in the corners of the room, and the table was elaborately decorated in pink and silver.

A large plateau of pink roses formed the centerpiece, and tall silver vases at either end of the table held the same flowers. Silver dishes of pink and white bonbons were tied with butterfly bows of pink tulle, and festoons of smilax adorned the table. Silver candlesticks were shaded in pink, under silver filigree, and the ices were in the form of pink loving cups with strawberries. The cakes were embossed with pink roses and the place cards were handpainted in French figures.

AMERICANS ROUT MEXICAN RAIDERS

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Tired of being raided and despoiled by every passing band of brigands, the little American colony at San Dieguito, Mexico, recently took to the warpath.

When a band of fourteen outlaws swooped down upon the colony, ten colonists, reinforced by five Mexican Federal soldiers, pursued and defeated the looters and recovered a number of stolen horses.

Huerta Explains His Attitude Toward U. S.

MEXICO CITY, May 9.—President Victriano Huerta, during the conference yesterday with Henry Lane Wilson, the American Ambassador, stated very clearly the position of Mexico in relation to the United States.

He said in part:

"Mexico is disposed to arrange without friction the affairs pending between it and the Government of the United States.

"However, for the time being the American Ambassador should understand the necessity which the Government of Mexico has for abstaining transmitting any official matter, with the exception of urgent affairs or ordinary procedure, for the simple reason that while the Government of the United States did not recognize the Government of Mexico all arrangements would be ineffective in view of the fact that the Government of Mexico has no personality before the Government of the United States.

"The Government of Mexico, whether recognized or not by the United States, has adopted and will always adopt measures for the security of all the inhabitants of the country, whether native or foreigners, and this has been demonstrated by the attention given to the just petitions of those who have been in any manner injured by past revolutions.

"The United States and all the people of Europe have irrefutable proofs that the Government of Mexico is especially pledged to give guarantees to everybody without distinction of nationality."

IMPROVED DISTRIBUTION IN POSTOFFICE PLANNED

An overhead carriage system, a labor saving device for distributing mail packages to various departments, probably will be installed in the postoffice here.

Postmaster McKee hopes that at the beginning of the new fiscal year, July 1, funds will be available for the improvement.

FAVOR EIGHT-HOUR DAY FOR GIRL WORKERS IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Senate District Committee to-day ordered a favorable report of the LaFollette bill fixing eight hours a day as the maximum labor limit for women and girls in the District of Columbia. The measure failed of passage last Congress.

Employs Poetry to Define Tariff Stand

Ohio Statesman Mounts Pegasus to Declare Lower Cost of Living Promises Are Vain.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The muse struck her lyre in the House again to-day, when Representative Simeon D. Fess of Yellow Springs, O., closed a sarcastic speech on the tariff bill with some verses on "The Things We Buy and Those We Sell." Here they are:

I ain't no statesman who can talk of
protection or free trade;
My han's too stiff to hol' a pen—that
was made to hol' a spade;
Them ten-foot, eddicated words my tongue can't wallop roun',
But I'll make things you sell go up,
an' things you buy come down.

I can't talk on the currency, nor on
the revenue,
An' on the laws an' statoots I'm as
ignorant as you;
An' I jest simply promise you, sure's
I am Silas Brown,
I'll make things you sell go up, an'
things you buy come down.

The fair ground echoed wide with cheers and loud huzzas thereat,
For who can make a better scheme
of statesmanship than that?
An' next week at the polls he beat
his rival high and dry—
But things we sell continue low, and things we buy are high.

Buy Diamonds Before the New Tariff Advances Prices

Under the old tariff no duty was levied on uncut or "rough" diamonds. Only 10 per cent duty was paid on cut or polished diamonds.

The Democratic caucus has but just recently recommended a 20 per cent duty on polished diamonds and 10 per cent on the rough. This new rate will no doubt become effective within the next two or three months.

In addition to this, the big diamond syndicate has raised prices to the cutters since January $15 to $30 per carat.

This means an advance in the retail market within the next four to six months ranging from $15 to $60 a carat—according to grades and sizes.

Buy a diamond now on attractive monthly payments and save the advance. Our booklet, "Facts About Diamonds," quotes lowest net prices and gives full particulars regarding our liberal plans.

REVIVAL SMOOTHS TABERNACLE ROW

Members Who Resigned, Back in Fold, Will Help Call Pastor Wednesday.

The dove of peace has found lodging in the Baptist Tabernacle; all differences have been settled and members who withdrew several weeks ago are back in the fold. The church is ready to call another pastor. The call will be extended at a meeting Wednesday night.

The weeks of spiritual meetings have proven the cure for differences. Dr. Joseph Broughton, brother of the noted founder of the Tabernacle, the Rev. Len G. Broughton, and one of the most prominent members to withdraw, is back. He has been elected associate superintendent of the Sunday school. The other two men who created a sensation by their withdrawal are Clayton Callaway and Harry A. Etheridge. Both have returned and are on the committee to nominate a pastor.

Other members of the committee are A. C. Boatman, chairman; Dr. William T. Jones and J. W. Awtry. C. W. Hatcher, chairman of the board of deacons, is an ex-officio member.

"We are really just getting into shape to call a pastor," said C. W. Hatcher to a Georgian reporter Friday. "We have disposed of the infirmary and our finances are in good shape."

Year in Prison for Four Ex-Inspectors

New York Policemen, Caught in Graft Campaign, Also Fined $500—Will Not Appeal.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Dennis Sweeney, John J. Murtha, James F. Thompson and James E. Hussey, the four former police inspectors found guilty of obstructing justice in keeping George A. Sipp, a Commonwealth's witness in the police graft cases, out of this State, were sentenced to-day to one year each and fined $500. This was the maximum punishment under the law.

It was understood that they agreed to take the punishment without appealing, in consideration of which the district attorney agreed to drop extortion and bribery indictments.

GEORGIA PREACHER JAILED.

JESUP, GA., May 9.—John Arnold, an itinerant preacher, is in jail here to-day, charged with mistreating a 5-year-old white girl. Arnold is 45 years old. He is a native of Marion, S. C.

Ohio Judge Assails Home Rule Decision

Justice Wanamaker Asserts Cities Have Right to Ignore State and Establish Movie Shows.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 9.—Judge R. M. Wanamaker to-day delivered an opinion in which he strongly dissented from the majority opinion by the Ohio Supreme Court early this week in the Toledo case, when it held that the home rule provision of the new constitution is not self-executing and that municipalities must either adopt charters or secure legislation from the General Assembly before they may exercise the increased powers the constitutional amendment gives them.

The court held that municipalities may not maintain motion picture shows, because "they are not a proper function of government," while Judge Wanamaker declares the people have this right.

City Sells Its Bonds Over the Counter

Philadelphia's Experiment Proves Greater Success Than Mayor Expected.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The city has withdrawn from public sale the issue of municipal bonds that have been offered over the counter. The total amount taken by individuals was $4,002,000, or $500,000 more than Mayor Blankenburg wanted offered for sale at 4 per cent.

The last day's sales amounted to $209,000; and it was one of the most motley gatherings ever attending the office of the City Treasurer.

One old man brought his savings that he had hoarded in an old stocking, fearing to trust the banks. An elderly woman brought $1,000 in ten and twenty dollar gold pieces of the early '80 coinage that had never been in a bank.

A Happy Child In a Few Hours

When Cross, Sick, Feverish, Tongue Coated or Bilious Give Delicious "Syrup of Figs."

Mother! look at the tongue! see if it is coated. If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and clogged up waste and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours the foul, decaying constipated matter, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well and smiling child shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it can not be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

PREP LEAGUERS WILL CLASH AT MARIST TO-DAY

THE annual Atlanta Prep Athletic meet will be held Friday afternoon at Marist field. Only three schools are entered in this event, but the athletics that are entered are all well trained and some lively events will be seen. Everything about the field is in readiness. An eight-lap track has been laid off and a hundred yard straight-away. The lanes are all laid for the dashes and hurdles have been procured also.

The hundred-yard dash promises to be the real thriller of the meet as never before in a local contest have there been so many evenly matched men entered in this event. There are Allen, and Lewis, of Marist; Sifford of G. M. A.; Bedell and Parks, of Tech High. Every one of these lads have made the century in less than 11 seconds and Allen has a record of 10:3-5 seconds. Owing to this mark the odds are slightly in favor of Allen, but if he does win it will be by a scant few inches.

There will be plenty of competition in every event with the possible exception of the hammer throw. Fowler, of Marist, seems to be in a class by himself in this event. He has thrown the iron ball over 100 feet in practice, which is better than any other man in the league can do.

The entries are all in and Joe Bean, who is staging the meet, has announced that nearly fifty athletes will compete. Many of them will start in two, three, and even four events. Bill Bedell, of Tech High looks good for the highest individual point winner. He has all kinds of grit and endurance, and in the meet between Tech High and Boys High he won three firsts and a second place which made his total 17 points.

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is the boy that will no doubt give Bedell the most trouble.

The meet will start at 2:30 p. m.

Prep League
News and Notes.

The decision of the Boys High athletes not to enter the Prep meet Friday throws them out of high school circles for the rest of the season. Since they have taken the matter into their own hands and decided not to represent their school they will be regarded as an independent team and will have to appear as such in the rest of their meets this season.

A new Prep record for the hammer throw will very likely be hung up in the meet Friday by Fowler, of Marist. Fowler has had little trouble hurling the 12-pound hammer 100 feet in practice.

* * *

A tennis tournament is being arranged between the wingers of the Boys High contests and the winners of the tournament now being held at East Lake by the students of Peacock.

The tournament will be held on the courts at East Lake some time the latter part of this month and should prove an interesting match as both schools are well represented in this line of sport.

The officials have announced that the track meet at Marist Friday will start at 3 p. m. This seems pretty late to start such an affair as the meet will probably run about four hours. The meet between Tech and Boys High schools started at 1:30 and was not over until 6 o'clock.

* * *

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is leading the Prep League batters with .467. Armistead and Spurlock, of Boys' High, are close on his heels. Parks, of Tech High, is fourth, and Bedell, of Tech High, is fifth.

Sifford and Babb will probably be G. M. A.'s two biggest point-winners in the meet Friday. Sifford made a lot of points in the field day exercises at G. M. A. March 31. Brown and Solano are two other pretty good athletes, especially in the sprints.

* * *

Callahan, of Marist, threw just ten balls in the first innings of the game with Boys High Wednesday and fanned the first three men to face him. He struck out two more in the second.

* * *

If the following quartet can keep up the good work shown in the Boys High-Marist game Wednesday they may be assured of a place on the all-prep team this year. They are Allen, of Marist, third base; Spurlock, of Boys High, short; Armistead, of Boys High, catcher, and Fox, of Boys High, pitcher.

* * *

Following is the standing of the local Prep League teams:

Teams	Won	Lost	P.C.
Boys High	5	0	1.000
Tech High	4	2	.667
Marist	3	2	.600
Peacock	1	4	.200
G. M. A.	1	5	.167

GUNBOAT SMITH AND WILLARD IN NEXT COAST GO

By W. W. Naughton

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—Gunboat Smith once again is with us, and interest in the next heat of the great white hope free-for-all will increase by leaps and bounds.

Smith is to meet Elongated Jess Willard of Kansas at Coffroth's Eighth Street Arena on Saturday afternoon, May 17, and when these two have settled their differences the search for the best pugilistic pale face on earth will be almost over.

It will only be necessary for the winner to hook up with Luther McCarty and we will have a champion whose right there will be none to dispute—at least for a while.

Bluejacket vs. Cowboy.

The semi-final in the race—for that's what the coming bout may be called—will be between an ex-bluejacket and a cowboy. The fact that a man from off the bounding blue and a man from the cattle plains have battled their way to the front rank of the world's fighters shows conclusively that champions are not always the products of congested cities. The old argument used to be that the best men were to be found where there were the most men to pick from, but it certainly does not hold in pugilism.

A glance at the array of white hopes who have tried and failed during the past year shows that championship candidates are drawn from widely separated lands and from all walks of life. So far as the prize ring is concerned, we have had George Rodel, the South African Boer, and Bombardier Wells, the British artilleryman, who was seized with the ambition to shine as a ringman while on service in far India.

Then there was Fred McKay, the Winnipeg policeman, who was attacked with the Queensberry bug while patrolling his beat in his home town in Canada. Al Palzer, another blasted hope, came from the farm lands back in Iowa. It was not different in the old years, however. The lure of the game drew Joe Choynski from the candy kitchen and Jim Corbett from the bank. Fitzsimmons rolled up his apron and dropped his sledge when he heard the call of the padded mitt, and Jeffries deserted the boiler foundry.

Nor must we forget Tom Sharkey, "the pride of the navy," who used to say in the matter of punishment or suffering, fighting was child's play compared to walking the deck barefooted on a hot day in the Red Sea.

Paul Dickey, Famous End, Here Next Week

Former Michigan Football Hero In Vaudeville Sketch at Forsyth Theater.

Paul Dickey, who played star end on the University of Michigan eleven in '07 and '08, and who led in all track events and field exercises while at college, is now in vaudeville and will appear at the Forsyth as the star feature, with his own company the week of May 12.

Paul Dickey was a wonder in his time. He was selected by every expert who picked an All Western or All American eleven. He led the ends, and even at that had some of the greatest stars of the other teams to contend with. His work on the track was wonderful and some of his records still stand.

His sketch in vaudeville is called "The Come Back." It deals with college life, and football figures most prominently. It is a sketch that the sport-loving theatergoers will doubly appreciate.

During his visit in Atlanta, Dickey will be entertained by the Michigan alumni who live here, and his "Frat" mates are also preparing to see that he does not forget his week in Atlanta.

BOXING
News of the Ring Game

Abe Attell has released John Reisfer as his manager and has placed himself under the management of Danny Morgan. Abe and Morgan agreed on terms terday, according to a report from New York.

* * *

Had the match been made Rivers would have received 27 1-2 per cent and Britton 22 1-2 per cent of the gate. Rivers is one of the many stars who are steering clear of Britton these days.

* * *

Frank Moran, who fought Luther McCarty recently with a broken hand, will not be able to don the gloves for at least three weeks, on account of the injury. His manager was offered a bout with Jim Flynn at the Atlas A. A. of Boston, on May 20, but was compelled to pass it up.

Having lost close to $2,000 on the Luther McCarty-Moran battle because they guaranteed McCarty $5,000, Jess and Eddie McMahon, managers of the St. Nicholas A. C., yesterday made the announcement that under no circumstances will they give another fighter a guarantee in the future, even if he is a champion.

Johnny Griffith, of Akron, and Pal Moore, of Philadelphia, will meet for 12 rounds at Akron, May 12. Bernie Strapp is staging the show.

Tech and Georgia Teams Ready for "Play Ball!"

Jackets in Superb Shape, Says Coach Heisman

By J. W. Heisman

ATHENS, GA., May 9.—The Tech team arrived here after a rather tiresome ride of several hours duration. This morning I am letting them walk about town a little to get their land legs again, but immediately after lunch they will be sent to their rooms for a nap, so as to make sure they will be feeling well and perfectly rested by the time the game is called, which will be at 4 o'clock.

Many, many times have I been to Athens with both football and baseball teams, but never have I seen the old town so stirred up over anything as it seems to be to-day over these two games of ball with Tech. The Red and Black team has had a most fortunate season from start to date, and it is but natural that all their friends should not only be wrought up to fever heat with enthusiasm over their fine showing, but also that they should feel the keenest interest over the outcome of the four games to be played with the Yellow Jackets. The loss of a couple of games to the Atlantans would leave, they fear, a rather black mark on their bright and shining season's record, while the winning of the series would mean not alone that this splendid record had been maintained to the last, but the victory would be sweeter than any other achieved by their team all year simply because it came over their dearest rivals.

Town Filled With Visitors.

It looks like most every town, city and hamlet in the State of Georgia has sent at least one representative up here to see these two games. Never have I seen so many out-of-town visitors here before, and never have I seen so much of colors. Naturally, the Red and Black tinges prevail heavily, but here and there we spot a bit of Gold and White, which tells us that we are not entirely friendless even in the very stronghold of the enemy.

Yells? Yes, we have heard them galore ever since we landed, and the Georgia band as well. By the way, this band is no slouch: it plays real stuff, and plays it well—especially a refrain entitled "Glory, Glory to old Georgia," of which it seems strangely fond,—about as much so as one other band I know of when it comes to a composition which narrates the autobiography of a certain "Rambling Wreck."

Yes, all is excitement here, and nerves are keyed up to the highest tension. It appears that Sanford Field has never before been called upon to house the crowds that will storm it this afternoon and to-morrow. And one week from to-day will witness a repetition of these scenes at Grant Park in Atlanta, I haven't a doubt, regardless of how the games come out over here.

Georgia Men Confident.

Of the Georgia team's condition I know nothing. Their friends and supporters appear confident in the extreme; from which it must be inferred that the team is in apple-pie order. That they can play great ball on their own field they have demonstrated again and again this season, and for my part I have no doubt they will again to-day.

I am expecting to see a great college baseball team in the defenders of the Red and Black, and one that will be well worth winning from, yet not too great a catastrophe to lose to.

Tech has everything to win in these games, and little enough to lose aside from one of those "it might have been" feelings after the game. To lose to such a team as Georgia it will be no more nor less than every team that has visited Athens this year has done, while to win would be to be raised to a pinnacle of joy and glory as great as Georgia herself enjoys.

As for the Tech team, all I can say is that it is in superb shape. There have been better teams at Tech, but worse teams than this have defeated Georgia, and in Athens, too. The boys are playing better ball just now than they have at any previous time this season, and if they happen to hit their top stride this afternoon they will make the sledding hard for even so good an aggregation as Georgia has. Some of the games Tech has played this year would have pushed most any college team in the country—notably the Clemson and Sewanee games, and those won from Mercer and Auburn.

Heisman Has Hope.

It is true Georgia has the dope all in her favor, and also has the advantage of playing the first two games on her home grounds, which is always rated a distinct advantage. However, I recall that Tech teams of the past have had a way of playing the very best ball they knew how to play when they went right over on the Georgia campus to perform; and I know of no reason why these Tech boys shouldn't do that same thing over again.

Yes, it needs to be admitted that in Corley and Morris Georgia has two wonderfully clever pitchers, and the biggest question, in my opinion, is whether the Tech batters can do anything with these flingers. If they do no more to them than other Southern teams have done, Georgia will have things all her own way.

The other "facer" that Tech has to look in the eye is the extent of the damage that the Georgia "cover-rippers" will do to Tech's twirlers. That is a hard one, for it must be granted that Georgia has mauled many and many a good pitcher all over the lot this spring,—pitchers who were, in all probability, quite as good as the best that Tech can put forward. No doubt Georgia will hit "some," and maybe some more. Still, I am not without hopes; they haven't done it yet, anyway.

They will be great games, I am satisfied, no matter if Georgia does win. And there will be great crowds, and terrific excitement and noise, and all that goes with the biggest matches of the year.

Colleges on Good Terms.

I just want to add that I am very, very thankful that the two colleges are at last on the very best of terms and that there is absolutely no chance for a flare out of flame or any other kind of break-out such as used to characterize encounters between the rival teams. There will be good order and tip-top sportsmanship all around, I know; and that is the best of any college game.

Heisman on Job For Hearst Papers

J. W. Heisman, the famous Tech coach, will cover the Tech-Georgia games in Athens for The Georgian and Hearst's Sunday American. He will describe each game completely and his comments will be the very best obtainable. He will follow each and every play closely and his expert opinion on them will be of great interest. Mr. Heisman writes a breezy story, yet he never gets away from facts. He will have another interesting story in to-morrow's Georgian, and the story of Saturday's game in The Sunday American should be a classic.

NO CAUSE FOR PROTEST.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The New York Nationals had no undue advantage over the Philadelphia club in the games played at the Polo grounds late in April by reason of the fact that there was a hole scooped out of the diamond back of the pitchers' box. This is the finding of President Thomas J. Lynch of the National league, on the protest of the Philadelphia club. He orders that the result of the games shall stand as played.

BETTS GOES TO REDS.

CINCINNATI, May 9.—Fred Betts, a Cincinnati ball player, who pitched for the Cardinals several years ago, to-day signed a contract to play with the Reds and left to join the team. Betts quit professional ball of his own accord to become a typewriter slaesman.

OLLIE KIRK vs. EDDIE MOY.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Eddie Moy, the Allentown, Pa. featherweight, who gained a good reputation in Pennsylvania will meet Ollie Kirk, of St Louis, here to-morrow in a ten-round bout.

INDIANS PURCHASE WORKS.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 9.—Pitcher Ralph Works, of the Cincinnati club, of the National League, was purchased to-day by the Indianapolis club, of the American Association. The price was not announced.

KING RECEIVES PLAYERS.

LONDON, May 9.—Following the precedent established when he received the English polo team before its departure to America in 1911, King George received this year's team at Buckingham Palace.

Jones and Barrett Are Stars in Shoot

Former Captures High Average Prize in Georgia State Championship. Barrett Wins State Title.

AMERICUS, GA., May 9.—Henry Jones, of Macon, Ga., won the high average championship in the two-days' contest of the Georgia State Gun Club shoot here this afternoon. Jones secured 365 targets out of a possible 400. He was awarded the silver trophy for highest average.

Jones also tied with James Barrett, of Augusta, for the Georgia State championship, each breaking 98 targets out of a possible 100.

In the shoot-off Barrett won on 20 straights. Jones also won the long-run medal of the tournament by scoring 145 straight.

Homer Clark, of Allendale, Ill., won the silver trophy in the professional class, scoring 389 birds out of a possible 400. He also won the double professional championship in scoring 48 out of 50 targets.

J. K. Warren, of Birmingham, won the double target amateur championship of the South after tying with Eubanks, of Atlanta, on 44 out of 50 doubles.

All of the 45 gunners in yesterday's tourney are pleased with the great success of this the third annual State shoot in Americus of the Georgia Gun Club.

TO HOLD 200-MILE RACE.

GALVESTON, TEXAS, May 9.—A 200-mile automobile race on Galveston beach, for which a prize of $5,000 will be hung up, is to be the feature event of the 1913 Cotton Carnival meet, according to plans laid to-day. The meet will cover three days in all, the dates being set on July 28, 29 and 30. It is planned to offer prizes aggregating $14,000 for the meet.

WEIKINGER BEATS WIRTH.

DEFIANCE, OHIO, May 9.—Henry Wirth, the clever Chicago light weight wrestler, lost to Edward Weikinger, the local champion, last night in two straight falls.

RUSSELL GOES TO ALLENTOWN.

ALLENTOWN, PA., May 9.—Lefty Russell, the famous southpaw for whom Connie Mack paid $12,000, has been turned over to the Allentown Tristate Club by Manager Jack Dunn, of the Baltimore Club. Russell will cover the initial sack for the Allentown team.

2 GOOD BOUTS FOR LOCAL FANS HERE IN JUNE

ATLANTA boxing fans will be furnished the opportunity of witnessing two corking bouts next month at the Auditorium-Armory. The first will be held on June 9 and will bring together Jim Flynn and Jim Savage. The next show will follow on June 17 and will be between Leach Cross, or Freddie Welsh, and Matty Baldwin.

The Flynn-Savage match has already been closed and it is likely that the other will be all O K'd within the next few days. Baldwin has already accepted, while both Cross and Welsh are anxious to exhibit their wares here.

Flynn should be a tremendous card in Atlanta. He was beating Jack Johnson to a frazzle until he was disqualified on a technicality. And Savage is a good attraction here as he decisively defeated Al Kubiak a couple of weeks after the latter had whipped Carl Morris in a local ring.

CITY LEAGUE TO MEET.

The City League will hold its final meeting to-night at the College Co-Op store, preparatory to the opening of the season Saturday.

LOCAL GOLFERS PLAY WELL AT BIRMINGHAM

By W. R. Tichenor.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 9.—George C. Oliver, of Birmingham, won the low medal score in the qualifying round of the invitation tournament held over the course of the Birmingham Country Club.

In the first round Oliver and F. C. Stahlman, of Nashville, tied with seventy-fours. In the play off in the afternoon Oliver again did seventy-four, beating Stahlman by four strokes.

Smith Cullum, of Birmingham, had a fine chance to win the low score prize, as he was on the eighteenth green within ten feet of the cup with two putts for a seventy-three. He was short on his first, was over with his second and then missed an easy one, which would have put him in the tie.

Captain E. T. Winston led the Atlanta golfers with a seventy-seven. He was fifty. Lowry Arnold did a seventy-nine and yours truly did an eighty, which puts three Atlanta players in the first flight.

F. G. Byrd and G. W. Adair did eighty-four and qualified in the second flight. D. Brown and C. J. Holditch qualified in the third flight and are drawn against each other for the first match Friday morning.

Walton Griffith also qualified in the third flight, as did C. E. Corwin, R. P. Jones and T. B. Paine qualified in the fourth flight. Dr. Frank Holland found lots of trouble on his round and qualified in the fifth flight.

Players from New Orleans, Chattanooga, Nashville, Montgomery and Atlanta are in attendance. The course is in good shape and many low scores are likely to be made in the matches to be played.

AUBURN DOWNS CLEMSON IN FIRST GAME; SCORE 9 TO 3

AUBURN, ALA., May 9.—With Davis on the mound twirling sensational ball, Auburn won the first game of the series from Clemson here by a score of 9 to 3.

Ezell, Clemson's premier pitcher, started with a rush, pitching no-run, no-hit ball until the fifth inning, striking out ten out of the first seventeen men before him. He weakened in the sixth and the Auburn team scored three runs by bunching a single and two two-base hits with an error.

With the score tied in the sixth inning Auburn went ahead in the seventh, scoring two runs on a hit and a wild throw to second.

In order to cinch the game in the eighth Harris singled, Davenport followed with an infield hit, but Harris was thrown out overrunning third. Locke was safe on a muff by Corator, and Davenport scored on Williams' two-bagger; Graydon hit safely, scoring Locke and Williams, and scored a ninth run later on Louiselle's drive on second.

CAZEAU AND LE MARIN WIN NEW YORK WRESTLING BOUT

NEW YORK, May 9.—George Lurich, the Russian heavyweight wrestler, lost two out of three falls to Raymond Cazeau here last night. In the other match Constant LeMarin, of France, threw Paul Samson, of Germany.

BUCK WEAVER WILL OPPOSE BILLS TO-DAY

By Joe Agler.

Crackers' First Baseman.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., May 9.—The Crackers finally broke their losing streak yesterday and now hope to win a number of successive games. The boys played great ball yesterday and showed more dash and vim than they displayed in their last four games put together. The final score was: Crackers, 7; Billikens, 3.

Long and Smith divided the honors of the day, although Gilbert Price twirled good ball. The former pair pounded out home runs and helped pile up runs to our credit.

I look for Bill Smith to send "Buck" Weaver to the slab this afternoon, with Graham catching. The latter has had a long rest and should show some of his old stuff. Manager Dobbs is in a hard way for pitchers and is trying to secure Becker from us. He could use him now, as he has no portside pitcher on his staff. Dobbs said this morning that he did not know whom he would use against us this afternoon.

"Big Bill" Chappelle joined us yesterday and looks fit and ready to go in and win ball games for the Crackers. We also expect Harry Bailey to be with us soon. His ankle is coming around fast now, and he should be in the game any day now.

The Billikens are without their star pitcher, E. Brown. He is on the sick list, and it looks as if it will be some time before he will be able to don a uniform. Snyder, who twirled against us yesterday, is but a youngster and needs more experience.

GOTCH AND ZBYSZKO MAY MEET ON MAT IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, May 9.—Plans were laid here to-day for the Frank Gotch-Stanislaus Zbyszko championship wrestling match here, and the syndicate that is back of the proposed plan is almost certain to land the clash. It became known here that Gotch has practically given his consent to such a meeting, and Manager Herman, who guides the affairs of the Pole, is only too anxious to accept. A purse of $25,000 has been offered for the battle.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Things have not changed greatly in the American League this week, except that the Washington club is holding up with a persistence that makes it look like a strong contender for the flag. Johnson is pitching wonderful ball, the best of his career. The Athletics and Red Sox are alarmed.

"I thought he was good last year," an American League player told me the other day in discussing Johnson, "but I never saw anything like the way he is traveling this season. He has gone forty-two innings without being scored on, and the chances are he will go forty-two more. He has everything in the world, and his fast ball has the speed of a bullet and the worst jump or the best I ever looked at. It depends upon the point of view whether it is the best or worst. It looked like the worst to me, because I was batting against him. He has been calling what he intends to throw against opposing batters. He did this repeatedly in the series with the Yankees.

"Then he would shoot up the ball with the old jump on it. And the batter missed it just as widely as if he had no notion of the prescription. That is going some when the pitcher can tip the batter off to his stuff and get away with it.

* * *

"THE Washington team is full of dash and ginger, and is playing fast ball. They will give the Athletics a great fight, but I do not expect to see the Senators hold the pace they are setting now."

That is the opinion of a veteran American Leaguer, who did not want his name mentioned.

After pitching in Philadelphia on Saturday and losing because Cravath, who is hitting very hard this season, pumped a home run into the bleachers, I returned to New York on Sunday and met "Eddie" Collins, the second baseman of the Athletics, with whom I have been acquainted for some time.

"How does the race look in the American League?" I asked him, "talking shop" as usual.

"The Washington club is the one we've got to beat, and I think we can do it," he said. "They are carrying lots of 'pep' now, but the supply won't last through the season. The boys are bound to slow down. If anything should happen to Johnson, they are gone, because he is carrying the club. Besides Johnson, Hughes is the only other pitcher we have had a look at so far. Groom seems to be traveling along pretty well, judging from the scores against other clubs. Cashion is too wild right now to be of much value. The rest of the team looks good, with every man playing at his best at present. Let them hit a little slump, however, and it is going to take a lot of the pepper out of them."

"HOW about the Athletics?"

"We're in pretty fair shape. Our pitching department caused the most ante-season fretting. Plank is going fine, and Bender seems to be rounding into form now. Coombs is the member of the veteran trio who is to the bad. He is laid up in bed in Philadelphia with a high fever, and I don't know what is the matter with him. He has some kind of fever, and his temperature has been up around 104 for several days. John has never been right since that time he hurt himself in the world's series with the Giants. His health has been bad, and during that rainy spell when we were in Washington he was taken ill and had to be sent home. It is problematical whether he will be in any kind of shape before the middle of the summer. 'Connie' is worried about him.

"ALL the young pitchers look pretty good, and we are bound to get at least one man from the flock to help out Bender and Plank. Houck has been twirling good ball so far, and the other squabs have the ability, but get nervous when the game becomes tight. They will outgrow this. The club is hitting the ball hard, and playing together well. So far we have not had any injured players outside of Coombs' illness; but let me touch wood, quick."

A good line on the strength of the teams in each league can be drawn when the present intersectional series is completed. That is what always tells on the clubs—the long trips away from home.

FODDER FOR FANS

Everybody laughed at Charley Ebbets last winter when he built a baseball plant with a capacity of 35,000. And now Ebbets is laughing at the erstwhile laughers. If the Dodgers keep up their winning streak, Ebbets will have to enlarge his park.

The Dodgers, by beating the Cubs yesterday, are now within 9 points of second place and 25 points of first place.

* * *

The lowly Braves bumped the Pirates again yesterday and the Pittsburg fans are wondering just when their pets are going to stop skidding.

The Athletics' victory over the Browns yesterday made the sixth straight win for the Quakertown athletes.

Johnnie Evers, the "Keystone King," put up a weird fielding exhibition yesterday, making three errors, two of which resulted in runs for the Dodgers, enough to give them a victory.

A great batting rally in the ninth enabled the Cardinals to snatch a 5 to 4 victory from the Phillies.

The major league baseball season to date has furnished some big surprises. In the National League the Giants and Pirates were doped to fight it out for first place all the way. Instead, they are wallowing around in the second division, and the Cardinals and Dodgers, who were accorded cellar places, are within a few points of first place.

* * *

In the American, the Boston Red Sox were expected to repeat. All the dopesters treated them to a flying start. However, the Boston boys are far down in the second division and the Naps and White Sox, who weren't figured to have a look in, are snugly ensconced in first division places, within hailing distance of the leading Athletics.

But the season is still young.

CROSS DEFEATS HARRY TENDALL, BUT IS ROBBED

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—Leach Cross, of New York, hero of many ring battles, gave Harry Trendall, St. Louis' best lightweight, a sound beating in the feature battle at the Coliseum last night, only to have Referee Harry Sharpe hand the verdict to the home boy.

The best that even Trendall's own friends looked for was a draw, and the round by round notes taken by experts showed Cross had a good margin.

Trendall left the ring a badly marked up man, both as to his face and body, while Cross went to his dressing room without a scratch.

WHITE AND BRITTON BOUT WANTED BY GOTHAM CLUB

CHICAGO, May 9.—A Charlie White-Jack Britton match now is likely. It would be a certainty but for the fact that the local featherweight is matched to battle Joe Thomas, of New Orleans, in a return go in the latter's city on May 19. Nate Lewis, who guides the pugilistic destinies of White, to-day received a wire from Gil Boag, of the Forty-fifth Avenue Athletic Club in New York, offering him May 20 as the date for a match between White and Britton.

The terms are perfectly satisfactory to Lewis and nothing is more pleasing to him than to land such a battle, but he must go through with the Southern battle. Lewis lost no time in answering Boag, in the hope of securing a later date.

JOHNSON WITHIN THREE INNINGS OF A RECORD

CHICAGO, May 9.—Walter Johnson needs to pitch only three more scoreless innings to excel Jack Coombs' great 1910 record of 46 successive runless rounds. Johnson went to Engel's rescue Monday against Boston and blanked the Red Sox for five stanzas, while his helpmates were able to score two runs and win in the twelfth round.

Johnson has not yielded an earned run this season, although he was scored on his first inning out.

THE GEORGIAN'S MAGAZINE PAGE

By the Sweat of His Brow

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WILL you be good enough," asks M. E., "to tell me if it is proper for a girl to kiss a young man who tells her he loves her but can not marry her for some time to come owing to the fact that he is not in a position to support her at the present time, and may never be able to do so?"

If kisses be classed as luxuries or necessities depends solely on the years of the one making the classification. Youth regards them as necessities, and Age knows they are but idle luxuries, meaningless though not unpleasant, and an altogether unsanitary method of expressing an affection that sometimes lasts little longer than the kiss itself.

But, be they luxuries or necessities, they should be classed among the many things which a man should be compelled to earn by the sweat of his brow. Unless he can earn a living, and by the sweat of his brow provide bread, he is not entitled to kisses. Unless he can go forth and with muscle and brain produce the price of a nest for his bride, he hasn't earned the right to be kissed by anybody in the world but his mother.

Is an Insult.

The kiss that is given to a girl with the declaration, "I love you, but I can not afford to marry you; I am not in position to support you now, and may never be able to do so," is an insult.

It is as if he said to her: "It gratifies me to kiss you, and for that reason I seek the privilege. I can do nothing for you and my monopoly of your affection will serve no other purpose than to place you in an embarrassing position, and to keep other lovers away whose intentions are more honorable. But it pleases me to kiss you, and when I grow tired of kissing you I can take my avowals of love to some other girl. They carry no promise with them, no obligation, no duty, and so long as there are girls in the world who will kiss me, I can enjoy myself without paying the price."

He Is a Loafer.

I take it that this young man is a loafer, and who is there who thinks that the man who loafs when there is so much work to do, is entitled to any girl's kisses? A self-respecting man will seek work, and a self-respecting girl will refuse to bestow any mark of affection on a man who is a professional hobo in the Kingdom of Love.

To care for such a man is a weakness that carries tragedy in its wake. It is the same kind of weakness that marks the woman who supports her husband, finding recompense for her toil in the fact that he never abuses her or speaks cross to her, while other women's husbands who work hard and earn a good living are sometimes fretted and angry.

The girl who permits such a man to kiss her shows a heart that is soft and a brain that is weak. She has two choices of degradation: Either she kisses the man to no other purpose than a waste of time and an unsavory memory, or she marries him and takes upon her shoulders the burden of his support.

There is no other alternative.

A Prince Who Plays Bagpipes

THE announcement made recently that the Prince of Wales, in the interval of his studies at Oxford, is learning to play the bagpipes under the tuition of Pipe Major W. Rose, of the Second Scots Guards, surprised many people, and particularly those who have an inherent dislike to the much-abused instrument. But his royal highness, in taking up the bagpipe as a musical accomplishment, is merely carrying on a tradition of the royal house, many of the members of which have always had a liking for the merry chant of the pipes. Queen Victoria had her piper at Balmoral, and so had King Edward, and to-day there is one attached to the royal establishment, for King George is fond of bagpipe music as his father and his royal grandmother were.

Early Morning Skirt.

When the court is in residence in the Highlands it is customary for the royal piper, dressed in full Highland costume, to march backward and forward in front of the royal apartments every morning and awaken the household with the "skirl" of his pipes. On official occasions, too, when the Balmoral Highlanders are welcoming the king and queen on their arrival at their Scottish residence, or when the retainers on the royal estate are taking part in any function, the king's piper invariably heads the procession of kilted men.

At the Braemar Highland gathering, the great social event of the season on Deeside, which is patronized by royalty, this official always "plays" the king's clansmen around the arena. On a memorable occasion at New Mar Lodge, the seat of the late Duke of Fife, King Edward, along with the princess royal, her two daughters and his grace, marched at the head of a body of Highlanders to the accompaniment of the music of the bagpipes, for which his majesty had as much liking as he had for the kilt when he was in the Highlands.

Highland Garb.

As soon as he reached Balmoral on his periodical visits King Edward—just as King George does to-day—donned the kilt, and, as was often remarked, no Highlander could carry it better than did his majesty. Queen Victoria, too, had as great an admiration for the tartan as she had for the bagpipes. In her majesty's time the walls of Balmoral Castle were draped with the Stuart colors. They have since been replaced by less somber decorations! But neither the wearing of the kilt nor the retaining of a piper is dictated by royal fashion, for every nobleman whose ancestral home is in the Highlands dons the traditional garb as much out of compliment to his ancestry as for any other reason. His guests, as a rule, follow his example as a matter of courtesy, but it does not always happen that they have the necessary habiliments with which to convert themselves for the time being into "Highlanders."

An Amusing Story.

An amusing but well-authenticated story is told of a German prince who was the guest of a Scottish nobleman, and who was so fascinated with the Highland dress that he determined to have a kilt made. He placed the order with a well-known firm of tailors for a complete outfit, richly adorned with silver buckles, and gold-mounted sporran or pouch. He paid something like a hundred guineas for it. The kilt was delivered in due course, and the prince was rigged out the next day in all the splendor of a Highland chieftain! But his highness was unfamiliar with the wearing of the sporran, and to the consternation of his host and hostess and their other guests he appeared with it attached to the back instead of the front of the kilt! Taking the prince quietly aside, Lord ——— suggested that his sporran should be reversed, and with profound apologies for the mistake he had made, his highness placed the pouch in its proper position.

Shoes of the Scot.

It is not only in Scotland that the bagpipes are regarded with favor. The Englishman certainly likes them best at a distance, but they are a very popular instrument among the natives of the Punjab, in India. The late Maharajah of Patiala had a fine band of pipers, wholly composed of Sikhs and other natives, who had been trained by a piper from one of the British Highland regiments. Many of the Indian frontier forces—notably the Gurkha regiments—have bagpipe bands of their own. An amusing instance of Scottish pride is told by a retired Indian officer in this connection. He was one day visiting the Court of the Rajah of Jeend, and noticed that the only person who broke through the rigid rule of etiquette, which forbids the wearing of shoes in the presence of the Rajah, was his bagpiper. Judicious inquiry elicited the fact that the sturdy Scot, when being engaged as the court musician, had stipulated that he was not to be obliged to go about the court in bare feet, as he regarded it as derogatory to his native country that he should do such a thing.

Do You Know That—

About a year ago four students of Boston University started out with a tuning fork to sing their way round the world. They have arrived in London by way of San Francisco, Honolulu, Japan, China, Manchuria and India, and are appearing under the title of the "University Quartette," or the "Four Singing Evangelists." Each can preach a sermon, lead a young men's Sunday school class or blend his voice with the others in the four-part setting of a hymn. Sometimes they make a complete change of program and give a secular entertainment, with humorous songs, Southern coon songs and piano solos.

A rudder with a doorway into the interior is a feature of the Cunarder Aquitania, recently finished. The rudder is so large that a doorway has been constructed in the lower part to admit workmen, so that they can remove the pin which connects the rudder to the ship. This pin is four feet long, and bigger than the heaviest projectile made for modern artillery. When delivered at the builders' yard the rudder was in three parts. After they had been connected and laid upon the ground the distance that had to be walked to pass around the rudder was over 100 feet.

The "homeles" population of London, according to the latest census of the County Council, numbers nearly 22,000. Some time ago a scheme was started by which the police gave lodging tickets to these night wanderers. This has somewhat depleted the Embankment and the streets, but the fact is noted that only about half of the people who are given tickets make use of them. They clearly prefer the wandering life.

False Gratitude

Little Molly May was only six, and on the morning of the story was sobbing her heart out because she had lost a penny. Many looked and sympathized as she trotted down the street; but it was an old gentleman who played the role of practical Samaritan.

"Well, my little maid," he asked, as he patted Molly May's heaving shoulder, "what's the trouble?"

"Boo-hoo! I've lost a penny!" came the muffled answer.

Without a word the old gentleman thrust his hand into his pocket, and handed Molly a penny to replace the one she had lost, saying:

"There—there, now everything will be all right."

But to his utter confusion, the little girl dropped her damp pinafore, gazing at him with an expression in which sorrow strove valiantly with anger, and said:

"Oh, you wicked old man, 'oo had it all the time."

Some Up-to-Date Gowns and How They Are Fashioned

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

HE SHOULD ATONE.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a young man a few months ago with whom I am very much in love. I have had an appointment wth him, but he failed to come. He phoned the next day, but I was not at home. Shall I call him up and ask him to call?

JESTINE.

Having failed to keep his engagement, it is due you from him that he make another, and atone for his failure to keep it by being prompt and particularly attentive. You do not owe him the courtesy of asking him to call.

A Golden One.

"Why, Bill, ol' man, what's happened—bin left some money?"

"No, no," said Bill. "It's me goldin weddin'; I'm celebratin' me goldin weddin'!"

"But why ain't your wife celebratin' it, too?" inquired his friend. "I see 'er goin' to work as usual this mornin'. Why ain't she got a white rose and noo gloves?"

"Er!" muttered Bill, as he grunted reflectively. "She ain't got nuthin' to do wiv it! She's me fourth!"

What the Master Used.

The inspector was talking about adverbs and adjectives.

"Does your master use adverbs and adjectives?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," chorused the scholars.

"Well, what does he use when he does not use adverbs and adjectives?"

There was a silence. Finally a little fellow waved his hand.

"He generally uses a ruler, sir."

Hints For the Household

When rinsing flannels and woolens it is best to do so in warm soapy water, as pure warm water makes them hard; also when hanging curtains out to dry, hang them double, as it makes them even and prevents them getting torn so easily.

When about to make a pudding, well flour your board and rolling pin and roll the suet out to a thin sheet. Take between your hands and rub down, when you will find the suet as fine as breadcrumbs.

Hot water marks may be removed, from japanned trays by the simple process of rubbing them over well with sweet oil, and then polishing with a little dry flour on a soft duster.

To curl a feather that has become damaged with rain or dew, sprinkle it thickly with common salt and shake before a bright fire until dry, when you will find it as good as new.

When washing pudding cloths throw some orange peelings into the water. This collects the grease and helps to make the cloths white and clean-looking.

Soap that is allowed to dry and harden lasts twice as long as it used when fresh. Therefore it is cheaper to buy it in quantity and keep it in a dry place.

To prevent custard dishes or glasses from cracking when pouring boiled custard into them, place the dish on a damp cloth. This plan is most effective.

To thread a darning-needle, take a length of cotton, put the two ends together, and thread through the eye, put wool through loop and draw it.

A teaspoonful of borax to a quart of water will make hard water soft, so that it can be used for washing the most delicate skin.

If a white shirt is scorched when ironed the brown marks may be removed by rubbing them with a little dry borax.

The Soft Answer.

He was really growing tired of paying off his son's bills—the boy was an undergraduate at one of the big universities. However, after much thought, he decided to be indulgent just once more.

Boys will be boys, he thought. Accordingly, as requested, he sent a check for $250, but accompanied it with stern admonitions to live more wisely and more economically.

"My son," he wrote, "you must remember that your studies are costing me a great deal of money—very much more than I can honestly afford."

"I know it, father—I know it," replied his incorrigible hopeful; "and the tragedy is that I don't study very hard, either."

Long Time for Both.

Affable Passenger—Indeed, and you are a music hall artiste! I am a banker, and I think it must be at least twenty years since I was in a music hall.

Music Hall Artiste (regretfully)—And I'm quite certain, sir, it's twenty years since I was in a bank.

THREE QUESTIONS.

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"WHAT is Modesty?" I asked
Of a violet that basked
In a swamp one summer day
Where a sunbeam chanced to stray.
Then the purple violet,
Squandering fragrance, dewy wet,
Spoke from out the swampland low:
"Modesty? I do not know."

Then I asked a lily white,
Paler than an altar-light,
Sinless as a vestal's day;
"What is Purity, I pray?"
And the lily in the dell
Answered me, "I cannot tell."

"What is beauty?" I inquired
Of a rose with crimson fired.
"Beauty, Cleopatra's gift,
Casting Antony adrift.
Beauty? Tell me ere I go."
Said the rose, "I do not know."

Then I asked a girl aged three,
Who explained it all to me.

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Turner, becoming an orphan, is thrown on her own resources. She finds work at the Emporium, a department store owned by Edward Gilder; is accused of the theft of silks, and sent to prison, though innocent. She tells George Demarest, Gilder's head lawyer, that the way to stop thievery is to pay a living wage. In prison she learned from fellow convicts why girls go wrong. She understands their point of view and sympathizes with them. Aggie Lynch, a convict friend of Mary's at Burnsing, sees good "possibilities" for her in the world of crime. Upon Mary's release the slogan "once a criminal always one," prevents her from securing work. She is continually hounded and in desperation throws herself into the North River. Joe Garson, a forger, rescues her and keeps her and Aggie in luxury, though living chaste lives. Mary reads that a famous financier escapes prison through keeping within the letter of the law. She follows his example and becomes the leader of a band of swindlers, robbing only the unscrupulous. Gilder's son Dick meets and loves Mary, who seeks to wreak vengeance on the father through the son. Aggie poses as her cousin, and they pretend to be respectable.

Now go on with the story

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT.

But Aggie was not one to be ignored under any circumstances. Now she spoke with some acerbity in her voice, which could at will be wondrous soft and low.

"Say!" she retorted viciously, "you can't throw any scare into us. You hain't got anything on us. See?"

Cassidy, in response to this outburst, favored the girl with a long stare, and there was hearty amusement in his tones as he answered:

"Nothing on you, eh? Well, well, let's see." He regarded Garson with a grin. "You are Joe Garson, forger." As he spoke, the detective took a note-book from a pocket, found a page and then read: "First arrested in 1891 for forging the name of Edwin Goodsell to a check for ten thousand dollars. Again rearrested June 19, 1893, for forgery. Arrested in April, 1898, for forging the signature of Oscar Hemmenway to a series of bonds that were counterfeit. Arrested as the man back of the Reilly gang in 1903. Arrested in 1908 for forgery."

There was no change in the face or pose of the man who listened to the reading. When it was done, and the officer looked up with a resumption of his triumphant grin, Garson spoke quietly.

"Haven't any records of convictions, have you?"

The grin died and a snarl sprang in its stead.

"No," he snapped, vindictively. "But we've got the right dope on you, all right, Joe Garson." He turned savagely on the girl, who now had regained her usual expression of demure innocence, but with her rather too heavy brows drawn a little lower than their wont under the influence of an emotion otherwise concealed.

"And you're little Aggie Lynch," Cassidy declared as he thrust the note-book back into his pocket. "Just now you're posing as Mary Turner's cousin. You served two years in Burnsing for blackmail. You were arrested in Buffalo, convicted and served your stretch. Nothing on you? Well, well!" Again there was triumph in the officer's chuckle.

Aggie showed no least sign of perturbation in the face of this revelation of her unsavory record. Only an expression of half-incredulous wonder and delight beamed from her widely opened blue eyes and was emphasized in the rounding of the little mouth.

Sarcasm Without Effect.

"Why," she cried, and now there was softness enough in the cooing notes, "my Gawd! It looks as though you had actually been workin'!"

The sarcasm was without effect on the dull sensibilities of the officer. He went on speaking with obvious enjoyment of the extent to which his knowledge reached.

"And the head of the gang is Mary Turner. Arrested four years ago for robbing the Emporium. Did her stretch of three years."

"Is that all you've got about her?" Garson demanded with such abruptness that Cassidy forgot his dignity sufficiently to answer with an unqualified yes.

The forger continued speaking rapidly, and now there was an undercurrent of feeling in his voice.

"Nothing in your record of her about her coming out without a friend in the world and trying to go straight? You ain't got nothing in that pretty little book of your'n about your going to the millinery store where she finally got a job and tipping them off to where she come from?"

"Sure they was tipped off," Cassidy answered, quite unmoved. And he added, swelling visibly with importance: "We got to protect the city."

"Got anything in that record of your'n," Garson went on venomously, "about her getting another job, and your following her up again and having her thrown out? Got it there about the letter you had old Gilder write, so that his influence would get her canned?"

"Oh, we had her right the first time," Cassidy admitted, complacently.

Then the bitterness of Garson's soul was revealed by the fierceness in his voice as he replied:

"You did not! She was railroaded for a job she never done. She went in honest and she came out honest."

The detective indulged himself in a cackle of sneering merriment.

Mr. Cassidy Laughs.

Garson met the implication fairly.

"Where else should she be?" he demanded, violently. "You ain't got nothing in that record about my jumping into the river after her?" The forger's voice deepned and trembled with the intensity of his emotion, which was now grown so strong that any who listened and looked might guess something of the truth as to his feeling toward this woman of whom he spoke. "That's where I found her—a girl that never done nobody any harm, starving because you police wouldn't give her a chance to work. In the river because she wouldn't take the only other way that was left her to make a living, because she was keeping straight! . . . Have you got any of that in your book?"

Cassidy, who had been scowling in the face of this arraignment, suddenly gave vent to a croaking laugh of derision.

"Huh!" he said, contemptuously. "I guess you's stuck on her, eh?"

At the words, an instantaneous change swept over Garson. Hitherto he had been tense, his face set with emotion, a man strong and sullen, with eyes as clear and heartless as those of a beast in the wild. Now, without warning, a startling transformation was wrought. His form stiffened to rigidity after one lightning-swift step forward, and his face grayed. The eyes glowed with the fires of a man's heart in a spasm of hate. He was the embodiment of rage as he spoke huskily, his voice a whisper that was yet louder than any shout.

"Cut that!"

The eyes of the two men locked. Cassidy struggled with all his pride against the dominant fury this man hurled on him.

"What?" he demanded, blusteringly. But his tone was weaker than its wont.

"I mean," Garson repeated, and there was finality in his accents, a deadly quality that was appalling, "I mean, cut it out—now, here, and all the time! It don't go!" The voice rose slightly. The effect of it was more penetrant than a scream. "It don't go . . . Do you get me?"

There was a short interval of silence, then the officer's eyes at last fell. It was Aggie who relieved the tension of the scene.

"He's got you," she remarked, airily. "Oi, oi! He's got you!"

There were again a few seconds of pause, and then Cassidy made an observation that revealed in some measure the shock of the experience he had just undergone.

"You would have been a big man, Joe, if it hadn't been for that temper of yours. It's got you into trouble once or twice already. Some take it's likely to prove your finish."

Garson relaxed his immobility, and a little color crept into his cheeks.

"That's my business," he responded, dully.

"Anyway," the officer went on, with a new confidence, now that his eyes were free from the gaze that had burned into his soul, "you've got to clear out, the whole gang of you and do it quick."

Aggie, who as a matter of fact began to feel that she was not receiving her due share of attention, now interposed, moving forward till her face was close to the detective's.

"We don't scare worth a cent," she snapped, with the virulence of a vixen. "You can't do anything to us. We ain't broke the law." There came a sudden ripple of laughter, and the charming lips curved joyously as she added: "Though perhaps we have bent it a bit."

Cassidy sneered, outraged by such impudence on the part of an ex-convict.

"Don't make no difference what you've done," he growled. "Gee!" he went on with a heavy sneer. "But things are coming to a pretty pass when a gang of crooks gets to arguing about their rights. That's funny, that is!"

"Then laugh!" Aggie exclaimed, insolently, and made a face at the officer. "Ha, ha, ha!"

"Well, you've got the tip." Cassidy returned, somewhat disconcerted, after a stolid fashion of his own. "It's up to you to take it, that's all. If you don't, one of you will make a long visit with some people out of town, and it'll probably be Mary. Remember, I'm giving it to you straight."

Aggie assumed her formal society manner, exaggerated to the point of extravagance.

"Do come again, little cop," she chirruped, caressingly. "I've enjoyed your visit so much!"

But Cassidy paid no apparent attention to her frivolousness; only turned and went noisily out of the drawing room, offering no return to her daintily inflected good-afternoon.

For her own part, as she heard the outer door close behind the detective, Aggie's expression grew vicious, and the heavy brows drew very low, until the level line almost made her prettiness vanish.

"The truck-horse detective!" she sneered. "An eighteen collar and a six-and-a-half hat! He sure had his nerve, trying to bluff us!"

But it was plain that Garson was of another mood. There was anxiety in his face as he stood, staring vaguely out of the window.

"What Have We Done."

"Perhaps it wasn't a bluff, Aggie," he suggested.

"Well, what have we done. I'd like to know?" the girl demanded, confidently. She took a cigarette and a match from the tabouret beside her and stretched her feet comfortably, if very inelegantly, on a chair opposite.

Garson answered with a note of weariness that was unlike him.

"It ain't what you have done," he said, quietly. "It's what they can make a jury think you've done. And, once they set out to get you—God, how they can frame things! If they ever start out after Mary——" He did not finish the sentence, but sank down into his chair with a groan that was almost of despair.

The girl replied with a burst of careless laughter.

"Joe," she said gayly, "you're one grand little forger, all right, all right. But Mary's got the brains. Pooh, I'll string along with her as far as she wants to go. She's educated, she is. She ain't like you and me, Joe. She talks like a lady and, what's a damned sight harder, she acts like a lady. I guess I know. Wake me up any old night, and ask me—just ask me, that's all. She's been tryin' to make a lady out of me!"

The vivaciousness of the girl distracted the man for the moment from the gloom of his thoughts, and he turned to survey the speaker with a cynical amusement.

"Swell chance!" he commented dryly.

"Oh, I'm not so worse! Just you watch out." The lively girl sprang up, discarded the cigarette adjusted an imaginary train and spoke lispingly in a society manner much more moderate and convincing than that with which she had favored the retiring Cassidy. Voice, pose and gesture proclaimed at least the excellent mimic.

"How do you do, Mrs. Jones! So good of you to call! . . . . My dear Miss Smith, this is indeed a pleasure." She seated herself again, quite primly now, and moved her hands over the tabouret appropriately to her words. "One lump or two? . . . Yes. I just love bridge. No, I don't play," she continued, simpering; "but, just the same, I love it." With this absurd ending, Aggie again arranged her feet according to her liking on the opposite chair. "That's the kind of stuff she's had me doing," she rattled on in her coarser voice, "and believe me, Joe, it's damned near killing me. But all the same," she hurried on, with a swift revulsion of mood to the former serious topic. "I'm for Mary strong! You stick to her, Joe, and you'll wear diamonds. . . . . And that reminds me! I wish she'd let me wear mine, but she won't. She says they're vulgar for an innocent country girl like her cousin, Agnes Lynch. Ain't that fierce? . . How can anything be vulgar that's worth a hundred and fifty a carat?

To Be Continued To-morrow.

Little Bobbie's Pa

PA took me fishing yesterday. It was a beautiful day wen we started out & Pa sed it was jest the kind of a day to catch a lot of fish.

Doant you think you ought to take a guide, deerest, sed Ma. You know we are strangers to this seckshun & you mite not be abel to find the right places to fish. My father used to always talk a guide with him wen he went fishing in a strange country. He was always afrade that he mite git lost.

Thare is no danger of you losing me that eesy, said Pa. Doant you worry about that.

I know thare is no chanst to lose you, sed Ma, but I shud hate to lose littel Bobbie. Pleese taik a guide.

Thare is no danger around this open country, sed Pa, we doant need a guide; cum on, Bobbie. Doant fergit to hang outo that lunch. We will need it by noon.

He Got Tired.

After we had walked for about two hours I began to git kind of tired & I cud see that Pa was gitting tired, too. How far is this stream? I asked Pa. I doant want to walk all day. It cant be very much further, said Pa. The man at the hotel toald us to keep walking thru this patch of hard wood, due north, till we caim to a big pine tree and then to go about two miles thru a spruce patch until we caim to the stream. Bobbie, sed Pa, doant you hear a littel trout stream purling anywhere?

No, I sed, & I am lissening as hard as I can.

Doant you hear any kind of a stream purl at all? sed Pa.

No, I sed, not any kind of a stream, & I aint going to walk much further, eether.

Then Pa beegan talking to me about one time wen he took sum frends along trout fishing in upper Mishigan. Thay all thot I was lost, sed Pa. Thare was two ladies in the crowd & thay was the bravest in the party. The men looked awful worried, sed Pa; thay kep telling how we was up aggenst it, but the ladies jest kep on laffing and cheering thare husbands. Thay had perfeck faith in me beekaus I herd one of them tell the other that I looked so self-reliant that she wud trust me anyware to keep peepul from danger. Yes, sed Pa, those ladies trusted me & thare faith in me was justified. Presently we caim to our destination, Pa sed, & the ladies sed thay felt like hugging me.

I cud see that Pa was talking kind of absent-minded beekaus all the time he was talking he kep looking around in the woods & I knew he dident know his way.

Jest then Pa sed Bobbie, Bobbie, I hear it, I hear it. It is the sound of running water that I hear. Dident I tell you, Bobbie?

They Hear It.

Sure enuff, I herd the running water, too, so both of us began to walk faster toward a cleering. After we git to the brook, Bobbie, sed Pa, we will arrange our tackel & go after the speckled buties.

Jest then we caim out into the cleering ware we had herd the running water & Pa & me neerly fell over. We was back to the littel hotel from wich we had started out from. We had went in a cirkel. Ma was setting on the porch grinning at Pa, & the sound of the running water was water cumming from a hose. The hired man was washing the barn.

Now Ma calls Pa Isaak Walton.

Uncle's Sporting Trophies.

Tom Brown and Jack Smith had been schoolmates together, but, as often happens, had drifted apart during the years that followed. Then, quite accidentally, they met again one day, and somehow the conversation turned to the subject of athletics.

"Let me see!" said Brown. "You never came across my brother, did you? He's a fine runner, you know. Why, only last week he won a gold medal in a Marathon race."

"Ah!" said Smith, raising his eyebrows in genuine admiration. Then, a faint smile playing around his lips, he added: "And did I ever tell you about my uncle?"

"Don't think so," replied Brown.

"Well in his day, not only did he get a gold medal for five miles, and one for ten miles, but two sets of carvers for cycling, a silver medal for swimming, two cups for wrestling, to say nothing of badges for boxing and rowing.

"You see," Smith continued, while his friend sat speechless with amazement, "the uncle in question kept a pawnshop."

"WHEN Spring comes laughing by vale and hill,

And gay birds gossip the orchard long."

Her Love For Romance

A HUMOROUS STORY.

AS a little girl Albertine always sat in the chair in the farthest corner when she went to children's parties. She had a meek, pretty little face, abundant yellow hair and large, appealing blue eyes that held a shadow of apology in them for her temerity in presuming to exist. She retained the modest violet atmosphere after she was grown up.

Other girls might blossom into darling coquettes and fascinating belles, but Albertine always kept in the background. Whenever people looked at her they involuntarily thought of lace mitts and hoopskirts and curtseys. They felt that Albertine should be put under glass.

This being the case, it was astonishing that down in her secret heart Albertine had a fierce love of the daring, the wild and gay and the extreme. When she picked out a dress design she always chose the rankest, most alarming atrocity. The dressmaker said, "Oh, certainly!" and then proceeded to modify the pattern to suit Albertine's appearance.

She Suspected.

Things had a way of drooping on her in old-fashioned lines. She wanted to look frightfully smart and somehow she never did. Secretly she suspected the dressmakers, but she never dared accuse them.

It was the same way when it came to the young men. Let a perfectly steady, sober youth who earned a regular salary and was good to his mother come her way and Albertine raised her little nose and sniffed. She simply could not see him. She admired extravagantly the sort of young man who dashed down the street wearing crimson silk socks and a tie to match and the latest cry in waistcoats, and if he was followed by a bulldog so much the better. If people raised their eyebrows and coughed discreetly when his name was mentioned it made the situation perfect.

Albertine always felt loftily then that she was an experienced, worldly wise person and the eyebrow raisers were narrow provincials. Usually the bulldoggy young man never progressed in the acquaintance further than raising his hat and casting an entrancing smile at her; but Albertine was satisfied with just adoring him from a distance.

Her family was quite alarmed when she fell in love with Harry Jungles, because Harry always was in debt and worked only semi-occasionally, and Albertine's relatives had a great deal of money. Harry seemed awake to this fact, for he actually called on Albertine and talked poetry to her in the parlor in low, rich tones, and told her how the world misjudged him. Albertine went so far as to powder her already white nose and her mother caught her once using an eyebrow pencil. It was much the same as though an Easter lily had begun to rouge. The situation was saved, however, by the Sheriff's removing Harry for forgery, and after that Albertine wore what she thought was a heart-broken expression and thought she threw into her face deep lines of experience and suffering.

After Harry several others of the same kind followed. Therefore, having long hovered over Albertine in fear that she would do some foolish thing and spoil her life, her family was entranced when she became engaged to Jeffrey. It all happened so suddenly that one was scarcely aware Jeffrey was on earth before he was introducing himself as the future son-in-law and brother.

Jeffrey was absolutely as nearly perfect as he could be for Albertine. Liberal-minded people might say he erred on the side of rigidness and propriety and possible narrowness, but one felt that he would always be at home at 6 o'clock sharp for dinner and that Albertine never would have to hang out of the front window trying to distinguish whether it was wavering down the street at 1 o'clock in the morning. Jeffrey choked at the sight of a cigarette, wouldn't be caught dead at a dog show and said his wife never should be permitted to wear decollete gowns in the evening.

What She Said.

The more people considered the matter the more inexplicable it became. Finally her dearest friend flatly asked Albertine to explain Jeffrey's attractions.

"You see," said the dearest friend, "with your ideas I can't understand how you happen to fall in love with Jeffrey, of all men."

"Of all men!" echoed Albertine in pitying astonishment. "Why, I'll tell you, Susie—because I recognized at once that Jeffrey is the most sophisticated sort of person. He's such a man of the world. I can't abide these goody-goody men!"

The Change in George

"WHEN I first noticed the change in George," said the blond woman, who was no bigger than a minute, "I thought it was indigestion. It is perfectly wonderful how much a man's liver is responsible for! But when I mentioned the doctor he was quite violent. In fact, he was rude and stamped around. It is hard on the rugs when a man acts that way.

"'Don't roar at me, George!' I told him.

"'I've got to!' he said in a regular Bengal tiger sort of way. 'I've got to in order to maintain my supremacy in the home!'

"Now, George has always been such a perfect gentleman and so mild that you may well imagine that I was amazed. 'See here, George Guesser!' I said to him. 'Tell me at once what you mean!'

"This Was Different."

"George frowned awfully. His eyebrows looked like a lilac hedge that hasn't been trimmed since last spring. Then he cleared his throat. 'I've just waked up to the fact,' said he, 'that I have been taking a back seat and allowing you to think I didn't count. Why, when I consider how near I have been to losing your love it makes me shudder! I just read a wonderful article——'

"'Oh!' said I. 'An article! But do you believe all you read?'

"'This was different,' George said. Then he explained.

"'It was in one of the scientific magazines, and the writer began by saying that every woman sits and waits the coming of her lord and master and is ready to follow when he beckons. He does not woo or beseech; he takes; he——'

"'George Guesser,' I said to him, 'whenever you waste time beckoning me instead of coming where I am I'd like to know it! Do you think I am a little yellow puppy dog?' My, but I was angry!

"George looked sad. 'I see I have allowed you to get away from me,' he mused. Then he roared at me. '"There is never a man brute so brutal but a woman clings to him!"' he quoted and beat the air with his arms. 'That was a fundamental point with the writer. He said that if the man cringed before the woman she had only contempt for him, but that if he beat her she respected him and thanked her stars that her man was so strong. Further, she was completely happy to think that the gentleman who had loosened her front teeth belonged entirely to her. I hate to do it, Evangeline, but you've got to respect me and look up to me, even if I have to follow that writer's advice and beat you! In fact, he says, a great many women require more or less beating to make them loving dutiable wives!'

George Shook His Head.

"'George,' I said when he stopped for breath, 'just what is your intention? Am I to understand that you are about to knock me down in order to make sure of my imperishable affection? Are you contemplating denting my face for the purpose of making me too utterly happy to live? Because if you are——'

"George shook his head as if he were considering something under a microscope. 'What a mistake I've been making,' he confided to himself. 'Why, Evangeline, you are entirely lacking in that devotion which is part fear and which is necessary to make a happy wife! It is all my fault!'

"Right here I concluded that it was time to take George by the hand and lead him forth to safety. 'Darling,' said I, 'if you will tell me how a woman is going to stand in any fear of a man after she has viewed him crawling under the bed after his collar button or trying to light the gas with an already burned match or attempting to answer his child who wants to know what there would have been if there hadn't been anything I shall consider myself in your debt!'

"'Not wishing to thrust myself forward or unduly trumpet my own worth, I still would bet my false hair that if I ever get hold of that scientific friend of yours long enough to whisper a few thoughts into his ear he would shrivel up and blow away! And now if you really yearn to hold my love and affection, go down and shake up the furnace, because the house is getting cold!'

"'Oh, vur-ry well,' said George, peevishly, as he headed for the basement stairs. 'That's the way you always act when I attempt any real progress. Women aren't scientific!'

"'Indeed, they're not!' I told him. 'They're just plain sensible!'"

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"THANKS, very much. I'm having rather a difficult task of it, for our friend, the Constable here, corroborates Miss Renfrew's statement to the hair, and yet I am absolutely positive that there is a mistake."

"There is no mistake—no, not one! The wicked one to say it still!"

"Oh, that's all very well, madame; but I know what I know; and when you tell me that a dead man can ask questions. * * * Pah! The fact of the matter is that the Constable only fancies he heard Mr. Nosworth speak. That's where the mistake comes in. Now, look here. I once knew of an exactly similar case and I'll tell you just how it happened. Let us suppose"—strolling leisurely forward—"let us suppose that this space here is the covered passage and you—step here a moment, please. Thanks, very much—and you are Miss Renfrew, and Gorham here is himself, and standing beside her as he did then."

"Wasn't beside her, sir—at least not just exactly. A bit behind her—like this."

"Oh, very well, then, that will do. Now then. Here's the passage and here are you, and I'll just show you how a mistake could occur and how it did occur under precisely similar circumstances. Once upon a time when I was in Paris—"

"It's a Play."

"In Paris, monsieur?"

"Yes, madame—this little thing I'm going to tell you about happened there. You may or may not have heard that a certain French dramatist wrote a play called 'Chanticler'—or maybe you never heard of it? Didn't, eh? Well, it's a play where all the characters are barnyard creatures—dogs, poultry, birds and the like—and the odd fancy of men and women dressing up like fowls took such a hold on the public that before long there was Chanticler dances and Chanticler parties in all the houses and Chanticler 'turns' on at all the music halls until wherever one went for an evening's amusement one was pretty sure of seeing somebody or another dressed up like a cock or a hen and running the thing to death. But that's another story, and we'll pass over it. Now, it just so happened that one night—when the craze for the thing was dying out and barnyard dresses could be bought for a song, I strolled into a little fourth-rate cafe at Montemartre and there saw the only Chanticler dancer that I ever thought was worth a sou. She was a pretty, dainty little thing—light as a feather and graceful as a fairy. Alone, I think she might have made her mark, but she was one of what in music halldom they call 'a team.' Her partner was a man—a bad dancer, an indifferent singer, but a really passable ventriloquist."

The Expose.

"A ventriloquist, monsieur—er—er."

"Cleek, madam—name's Cleek, if you don't mind!"

"Cleek! Oh, lummy!" blurted out Mr. Nippers. But neither "Madam" nor Constable Gorham said anything. They merely swung round and made a sudden bolt; and Cleek, making a bolt, too, pounced down on them like a leaping cat, and the sharp click-click of the handcuffs he had borrowed from Mr. Nippers told just when he linked their two wrists together.

"Game's up, Mlle. Fifine, otherwise Mme. Nosworth, the worthless wife of a worthless husband!" he rapped out sharply. "Game's up, Mr. Henry Nosworth, bandit, pickpocket and murderer! There's a hot corner in hell waiting for the brute-beast that could kill his own father, and would, for the simple sake of money. Get at him quick, Mr. Narkom. He's got one free hand! Nip the paper out of his pocket before the brute destroys it! Played, sir, played! Buck up, Miss Renfrew, buck up, little girl!—you'll get your 'Boy' and you'll get Mr. Septimus Nosworth's promised fortune after all! 'God's in his heaven and all's right with the world!'"

"Yes, a very, very clever scheme indeed, Miss Renfrew," agreed Cleek. "Laid with great cunning and carried out with extreme carefulness—as witness the man's coming here and getting appointed constable and biding his time, and the woman serving as cook for six months to get the entree to the house and to be ready to assist when the time of action came round. I don't think I had the least inkling of the truth until I entered this house and saw the woman. She had done her best to pad herself to an unwieldly size, and to blanch portions of her hair, but she couldn't quite make her face appear old without betraying the fact that it was painted—and hers is one of those peculiarly pretty faces that one never forgets when one has ever seen it.

To Be Concluded To-morrow.

The Professor Ate Nuts

"YES," said Professor J. Haddensfield Joy, "I used to be a vegetarian myself. I have seen the time when a big porterhouse steak or a fat and lean slice of ham made me tear my hair, realizing how barbarous is man. Broiled spring chicken made me grate my teeth in rage.

"Not only was I vegetarian, but I was one of those who follow along lines of the most extreme differentiation. I couldn't eat pieplant tops or white oak bark, just because they were vegetable substances. I specialized in cocoanuts.

"I bought a hundred fine, fresh nuts. These I put in a cool and shady place, and thereupon discarded all allegiance to such foods as have dwarfed man's noble intellect. My family ate as usual.

"When morning dawned on my first day of real liberty I got a handsaw and sawed off the top of a nut. Then I drank of the life-giving fluid inside. After that I proceeded to feast on the meat of the nut, as my distant ancestors had done. When I started for the laboratory I took a fine nut under my arm and tried to walk in my usual heavy and methodical stride. It was no use. I felt like hopping along.

A Deep Longing.

"Persons whom I met addressed me as 'professor,' but with a gaze too human to suit me. I found myself looking up into trees with a vague, deep longing. It was as though I had inherited something that had been hidden in my soul's archives all my life. I arrived at the laboratory with my emblem of liberty still under my arm. The rude and thoughtless experimentalists looked and talked as they talk who are in a state of mental slavery. My luncheon made me want to run up and down the halls and passages and climb the posts.

"This glorious life lasted for a week. One night Mrs. Joy had to take a broomstick and punch me down from the picture railing, where I was trying to pass the night. The next day I could nt resist the temptation to climb a tree when I had started to conduct my daily investigation of life's solemn facts at the laboratory. A cocoanut was under my arm. Presently there came speeding along a very big man in a very big automobile. I landed the cocoanut on his head with a precision that I had never learned. In another instant my man was shaking my perch as if he were a concentrated earthquake. All the Joys swarmed around the tree. Mrs. Joy shrieked: 'Don't hurt him—he's been living on cocoanuts!'

The End of It.

"'Turned back into a monkey, has he?' said the man. 'I've been living on raw meat, and if I get my hands on him I'll eat him!' Then he departed.

"All the Joys got hold of me and took me back to the dining room and seated me at the table. Soon there was spread before me a repast consisting of one porterhouse steak, one slice of ham, three slices of bacon and a few other things. I could scarcely walk when I started to work.

"Henceforth give me a full dinner of real food or cut down the trees."

COTTON GOES UP AND THEN DROPS

NEW YORK, May 9.—In the absence of rains, especially in the eastern belt, the cotton market opened steady, with prices at a net gain of 2 to 6 points from Thursday's final. Spot people were good buyers. There was also a short covering movement by the local crowd and there was some outside buying. The selling was attributed mostly to brokers with Southern connection. The market quickly developed additional strength, and prices advanced 2 to 8 points from the opening level. July displayed considerable strength. This option was under heavy buying by shorts and held steady at 10 points advance over the previous close throughout the morning session.

Should there be no rains in the eastern belt, much higher prices are anticipated.

Weather indications overnight are predicted fair in the eastern belt, but other leading cotton States are predicted to have unsettled showers, except Louisiana and East Texas, where the weather will be fair.

The course the market took this morning made it more and more obvious that this is entirely a weather market. Unfavorable advices were received from Manchester, saying that buyers have very bad reports from the other side. It seems like conditions there are becoming bad again. The trade is much quieter. It is said that it is impossible to induce mills to buy cotton.

During the late forenoon the market was quiet but steady, with prices a shade lower than the early high point.

Reports of rains in Oklahoma and Georgia caused a general selling movement during the afternoon session, which was said to be profit-taking. Offerings from Wall Street became freer and the indications that the crop is in danger were ignored.

Experts in New Orleans stated that we might expect good rains the first of the week. This brought selling from the locals who were early buyers, resulting in prices making a rapid decline and dropping 2 to 8 points from the opening figures.

At the close the market was steady with prices at a net decline of 1 to 4 points from the final quotations of Thursday.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: May 11.48, July 11.58, August 11.36, October 11.02, January 11.01.

Following are 10 a. m. bids in New Orleans: May 12.18, July 12.01, August 11.80, October 11.16, January 11.18.

Estimated cotton receipts:

	Saturday.	1912.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Liverpool came in rather poor, but rallied in the last hour. Liverpool will be closed tomorrow and Monday. Spots 2 points higher; sales, 6,000 bales. The feature on our side was the strength of July in New York, causing a corresponding advance in that position here and giving strength to the whole list. Absence of further rains in the Eastern States brought some covering demand from shorts. New York gossip says that about 50,000 bales will be shipped out and the loss in stock is causing short covering of July.

Manchester reports to agents here show a radical change and now are distinctly bad. They say it is impossible to interest mills in any offers of cotton, trade declining and strike danger imminent.

London reports that the first peace meeting dissolved without accomplishing definite results, that the next meeting will not take place until May 20, after the holidays, that the powers may occupy Scutari with a joint force as a precautionary measure.

The market eased after the close of Liverpool and trading was of no pronounced character. The talk of dry weather in the East is looked upon as a means to promote a short scare, on which idea there has been professional buying lately than as a real danger to production.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The weather will be warm, with showers to-night or Saturday in the Ohio Valley, the lower Lake region and the Middle Atlantic States. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi River the weather will be generally fair. It will continue cool in the Lake region and will be cooler from the Ohio Valley eastward and northeastward.

General forecast until 7 p. m. Saturday:

Georgia—Fair to-night and Saturday.

COTTON GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Joe Gatins is credited with covering a large line of July shorts, but he put them out again in new crop positions above 11 cents.

A wire from Savannah, Ga., yesterday said that unless it rains in a few days the crop will be damaged considerably.

* * *

Troy, Ala., wired that the crop conditions were going backward, owing to the absence of rains, and that very little cotton is up. In that section of the state cotton chopping is generally finished about May 15.

Niel estimated the consumption of cotton for the current year at 14,750,000 bales. He said a crop under 15,000,000 bales would warrant higher prices.

Conditions of the crop in Georgia must be pretty bad if the replies received by a New York firm from correspondents in the State are true. Following is the condition of the crop in some of the large producing counties:

Richland—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition poor, no stand. Zebulon—Crop 95 per cent planted; condition bad, too dry. Chiple—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition, very little up. Madison—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition good, dry. Covington—Crop 60 per cent planted; condition fair. Lawrenceville—Crop 80 per cent planted; condition 75 per cent. Jackson—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition fair. Danville—Crop 100 per cent planted; condition, dry weather has prevented its coming up; considerable complaint of the plant already from cool weather. Madison—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition one week backward. Winder—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition 80 per cent; ground very dry and cloudy and look for very poor stand. Bartow—Crop 80 per cent planted; condition very little up; very dry. Chauncey—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition scarcely any cotton up in Georgia at this date. Grantville—Crop 95 per cent planted; condition, some up and will not come until it rains. McRae—Crop 50 per cent planted; condition, very poor stand; much to be planted; seed scarce. Lyons—Crop 60 per cent planted; condition very bad; awfully dry; 50 per cent of seed planted is lost; getting seed to replant all is impossible here. Rochelle—Crop 98 per cent planted; condition good.

Absence of rains gave rise to good buying on the opening, spot houses being among the best buyers; also shorts, who apparently centered their attention on July option.

Mitchell and McGhee were heavy bidders for July.

Dallas wires: "Some rains in the Panhandle; clear and pleasant elsewhere. Oklahoma clear and cool."

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map is favorable. It shows partly cloudy in the northern half of the belt and in the Atlantic; generally fair elsewhere. There was no rain except at Amarillo, in Northwest Texas. Temperatures are above normal. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, probably unsettled weather, with scattered showers in the northern half of the belt and cooler.

STOCKS INACTIVE ENTIRE SESSION

By CHARLES W. STORM.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Selling pressure was exerted upon the list at the opening of the stock market to-day and most of the issues sustained declines. Some of the stocks which opened higher either lost all their advance or part of it. Canadian Pacific, which opened ⅝ lower, had increased its decline to 1⅜ within a half hour.

Traders held that the passage of the Underwood tariff bill by the House last night was a depressing factor.

Among the other declines were Amalgamated Copper ⅝, United States Steel common ⅝, Lehigh Valley ⅝, Atchison ⅜, Pennsylvania ⅛, Chesapeake and Ohio ⅝, Erie ⅛, California Petroleum ⅛.

The specialties were the only group showing strength. American Beet Sugar advanced ⅝. Chino Copper was up ⅛, while Consolidated Gas rose ½.

Union Pacific opened ¼ higher, but soon lost its gain and declined ¼. Southern Pacific was ⅝ higher at first, but sold off. Reading began ⅜ higher, but lost its gain and declined.

The curb market was dull.

Americans in London were barely steady.

The market during the forenoon was generally higher. Amalgamated Copper at 85½ was up ⅜. Southern Pacific gained ⅜ at 95. Lehigh Valley, United Copper and Steel were up ¼. Canadian Pacific and Gas were up. The tone in the late forenoon was firm.

Call money loaned at 2½.

The market closed steady. Governments unchanged; other bonds firm.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Money on call ½. Time money unchanged; 60 days, ½@4 per cent; 90 days, 4 per cent; six months, 4¼ per cent.

Price of Cotton Now Is 11.6 Cents

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A slight increase over a year ago, but a considerable decrease when compared with 1910 and 1911, is reported in the price of cotton, according to figures given out to-day by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Agriculture.

The prices received by the producers as reported by the Department's agents were as follows: May 1, 1913, 11.6c; April 1, 1913, 11.8c; May 1, 1912, 10.9c; May 1, 1911, 14.2c; May 1, 1910, 14c.

The general average of prices received for staple crops increased 2.3 per cent from April 1 to May 1. The increase in the same period of last year was 8.4 per cent. On May 1 the prices of staple crops averaged about 30.1 per cent lower than on like date of 1912.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Wheat was stronger this morning on small offerings in the pit, coupled with some fair buying by the larger commission concerns.

Cables were lower on the construction placed upon the Government May report, which was made public in the Old World late yesterday. Northwestern receipts were larger than a year ago, while the Argentine shipments were smaller, as was also the Argentine visible.

Liverpool was lower on corn, but prices at Chicago were ¼c to ¼c better.

Oats acted in sympathy with the other grains and ruled strong.

There was a better feeling in hog products, with prices fractionally higher.

ARE YOU A FLY?

Read The Georgian's great editorial to-day, then study Winsor McCay's cartoon: The Fly-paper of Debt. To-morrow morning or on the next payday start a Savings Account with this strong bank.

A SAVINGS ACCOUNT will keep you out of debt, for it will inculcate habits of thrift and economy. Human progress has been based on that far-sightedness that contemplates future needs and prepares for them, and a savings account is the most secure kind of insurance on the future.

Georgian "Want Ad" Tablets Touch the Spot. Try Them if Business Is Run Down

GREAT PUBLIC NOT BITTER TO CORPORATIONS

Dissatisfaction With Business Conditions Exists, but There Is Little Revolutionary Spirit.

By B. C. FORBES.

"If I thought the great body of the American people were as bitter, as hostile to business as many of our legislators I would give up and retire," said one of the country's foremost men of affairs, a man who has built up an important industry, a director in corporations of the first magnitude and the possessor of a large fortune.

* * *

"Do you think the people are as discontented and antagonistic to capital as is often represented—as ugly as Vice President Marshall says they are?" I was asked.

What do YOU think? Are they? Is it a case of empty vessels making most noise? Or are the majority of American citizens deeply disgusted with the present order of things? Are they on the verge of revolt, as the Vice President alleges? Is widespread revolutionary sentiment cooped up in the average citizen's breast? Is unrest in the United States worse than in other lands? Or is all our fretting and fidgeting, our mania for reform and regulation, our striving after innovations merely part of a world-wide movement toward a fuller measure of democracy?

These are questions not easy of dogmatic answer. The Hearst publications reach a greater number of Americans than the publications of any other concern in the country, and experience has taught me that they somehow come nearer the heart-beats of the people than any other publications of which I have any knowledge. The readers have a flattering habit of speaking their minds, of voicing approval or disapproval of articles, of taking the writers into their confidence, so to speak. In this way one is able to feel the pulse of the people.

Hundreds—thousands—of letters come to the business news department—not only from the East, but from the Middle West, the Far West and the South, as what is here written is printed in Hearst newspapers covering virtually the whole Union. Judging by this mass of correspondence from men and women in all ranks of life, there IS a good deal of discontent, of dissatisfaction with existing conditions, of bitterness against corporations, of determination to compel reforms in many directions.

* * *

But of revolutionary, anarchistic sentiment there is extremely little trace.

* * *

Speaking broadly, a great section of the population have the conviction that most ultra-rich capitalists have done things they ought not to have done, and by the doing of which they have taken unfair advantage of the people at large.

* * *

Let me give extracts from some letters received within the last week or two.

C. H. Burnham, 131 State Street, Boston, writes:

On the strength of the interview given out by Jacob H. Schiff just before Mr. Harriman died—declaring Mr. Harriman was practically a well man—I bought Union Pacific, as at that time I believed Mr. Schiff, and it cost me a good many hundred dollars.

What do you think when Major Higginson comes out in an interview and says there is nothing the matter with the New Haven Railroad?

What is the answer, after reading what is going on before Commissioner Prouty?

From Corning, N. Y., "A Railroader on the Erie," criticising my articles on railroad subjects, writes:

Railroad managers and owners are nothing more or less than straight up and down thieves, robbing the public. They never tell how much they make. But anybody who becomes a railroad manager becomes a millionaire in a few years. They find fault about giving a few cents extra in wages to their men. But such as President Baer, the head of the coal trust, pays $100,000 for a private car. When such things as this are done it only makes you appear ridiculous in the articles you publish in favor of railroad robbers.

It is not my intention to-day to discuss the reasonableness or unreasonableness of hostility to corporations and capitalists, but only to indicate what the temper of a large section of the public really is. The subject will be worth considering again.

GREEK STARTS TO 'WAR;' THINKS SHRINERS TURKS

PENSACOLA, FLA., May 9.—Mistaking a body of Shriners, in their Oriental garb, for a company of Turkish soldiers, a Pensacola Greek went to a hardware store and purchased two automatic revolvers, saying he intended to "kill the Turks." The police explained to him that they were Shriners, not Turks. The company stopped here en route from Indianapolis to the Dallas conclave.

PRAY FOR MORE CHILDREN; STORK BRINGS TRIPLETS

NEW YORK, May 9.—The prayers of Lewis and Rebecca Isler were granted to-day when the stork brought them triplets. Since last January when their four children were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home the Islers had offered up daily prayers for more children.

BEARISH BUREAU REPORT HAS LITTLE OR NO EFFECT

CHICAGO, May 9.—The Inter-Ocean says:

"Wheat traders while putting a bearish construction on the government report did not take it seriously. Some traders regarded the report as having been discounted by the recent decline of 5c. Bulls said they expect to see a continued good export business on every decline, and believe the market heavily oversold and in a position to be easily rallied.

"Those who were bullish on corn believe that there will be no great pressure of receipts for a week or ten days, or until after corn planting is finished. It was intimated that some of the heaviest sellers of late winter were on the buying side for the past few days.

"Oats specialists are inclined to go slow on the selling side until there are more satisfactory reports in regard to the crop from Central Illinois."

POULTRY, PET and LIVE STOCK

Defects in Combs Of Chickens Often Mar Beauty of Fowls

Should Exercise Great Care in Breeding—Value by Judges.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

The pea comb is a triple comb, or a series of three straight combs paralleling each other, and joined to each other at the base, each having small but distinct serreations throughout their length. The two outer rows being lower and thinner than the center one, the points formed in this way being so low and broad that they resemble rows of peas, hence the name given them. This comb should fit close and solid upon the head, rather than to stand up from the head and incline to turn from side to side.

The breeds having this comb are the Brahmas, Buckeyes, all the Cornish and Sumatra. The most common defect in these combs is the twisting from side to side near the middle. In other words, it is a kink in all three of the rows of points and makes the comb decidedly out of line when viewed from in front.

Another kind of comb that is often seen in one where the middle part of the combs show all right and is good shape in itself, but the sides are very faintly outlined and would almost be taken for a single comb at first sight. In mating up such stock for breeding purposes one is very likely to get some single combs and then the trouble has commenced.

The V comb is a very peculiar one and looks much like a pair of horns standing up from the center of the head. They show but very slightly upon the heads of the hens. On the well matured males it shows up all right. The comb in these breeds is, however, not considered a valuable asset, so that the smaller it is the better it is liked.

Value by Judges.

The comb is only valued at 4 points out of the 100. The breeds having this form of comb are as follows: All the Polish (which are eight varieties), the Houdans, Crevecoeurs, and LaFleche, French varieties.

Then we have the Malay and the Silkie, with the strawberry comb, which is not very much of a definite comb and is found only upon these two breeds of relatively small importance. The comb is really of more importance than is generally considered as a distinguishing feature of the breed or variety it represents. Take, for example, the Light Brahma, the variety which stands at the head of our list of thoroughbred fowls for recognized type in breeding and put a sort of mongrel type of comb upon it and what would it be worth? Or the Plymouth Rock and put a wrinkled turn-over sort of a comb upon it and a Rock man would simply laugh at you and want to know what it was mixed with.

It frequently occurs, however, that some of the larger combed hens of a variety are the heaviest layers. That is, they may have a comb almost too heavy for the breed, although of the right type, and be greatest layers of the flock.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall:—Is it a good plan to breed pullets back to their sire? Some tell me it is just the thing to do, while others say it is detrimental to health. I would be very glad to have your opinion of it.

Monroe, Ga. S. J. R.

ANSWER:—While expert breeders of long experience take the chances of weakened vitality in the offspring for the sake of gaining some valuable points they have been striving hard for, yet, as a rule, it is not good policy to make a business of it. Unless you are sure you are going to be able to intensify a number of good qualities in the next generation, you had better not take the risk of multiplying a lot of serious defects.

You see, it is close inbreeding and is not a good policy for those who are not working for the very highest in type to undertake or run the risk of for health's sake. Of course, it is better to breed that way than to breed brother and sister together.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

W. G. Raoul Property To Be Put on Market

Ten Lots Facing Piedmont Park, Druid Hills Sale—Improvements on Peachtree Road.

Ten lots in the estate of the late William G. Raoul, facing Piedmont Park, will be sold at private sale by the Forrest & George Adair real estate agency, according to announcement made to-day. The property was carefully assembled by Captain Raoul through a long period of years and this is the first time it has been offered for sale. The lots are on the west side of Piedmont Avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets. Several of them taken together were offered two years ago as a site for the State's executive mansion. The frontages are from 60 to 70 feet and the depths 150 to 200 feet.

Greenwood Avenue Sale.

Eugene S. Kelly has bought through his concern, the Charles P. Glover Realty Company, a residence lot on Greenwood Avenue, between Highland Avenue and Briarcliff Road, just west of Druid Hills, for $11,500. This lot is 205 by 169 feet. It was bought for investment from a client of the Glover agency.

Meetings at City Hall.

People who are working for a regrade of Whitehall and West Peachtree Streets are meeting this afternoon with the streets committee of Council at the City Hall, to urge improvements on their thoroughfares. The Whitehall Street matter is expected to be settled at this conference, and the West Peachtree question will be taken up later.

Foundry Street Purchase.

Mrs. Bertha Kline has bought through J. H. Ewing, of the Smith & Ewing real estate agency, a 40 by 100 foot lot on Foundry Street, between Elliott and Mangum Streets, for $2,250. A small house is on this property. The seller was L. M. Anderson.

Sale on Piedmont Road.

Deeds have gone to record in the sale March 6 of a large building lot at the northwest corner of Piedmont and Ivy Roads, from Claude E. Buchanan to Wesley Hirshburg, for $6,875. This lot is west of the William J. Stoddard place and in the neighborhood of other fine residences.

A bond for title has also gone to record in the sale March 31 of a 20 by 60 foot lot on Whitehall, near West Fair Street, to Nathan Wolfe by A. D. Greenfield, for $6,500.

Real Estate Activity.

An increase in different realty transfers as set forth in The Fulton County Daily Report shows the tendency of real estate to assume its normal aspect in the market. Today's issue of this publication contained seventeen bond for title items and 32 warranty deed items, and led several real estate men to remark that the number was the best and most complete that The Report has ever issued.

Big Deals Coming.

Several important real estate deals are in the contract stage and should be announced early next week. One of these involves approximately $100,000 and there are a number of smaller figures.

Road Work at Buckhead.

County convicts are working fast to complete improvements on Peachtree Road, anticipating increased traffic which will come about June 1, when the Capital City Club takes charge of its country club at Brookhaven. The right-hand side of Peachtree Road, starting at Buckhead, has been macadamized nearly as far north as W. S. Witham's estate, and only awaits the steam roller to be put in good shape. Space between the car tracks has been taken on this northward trudge of the convicts. The work will proceed to the DeKalb County line and then the gang will turn back toward Buckhead.

County Commissioners are well satisfied with the work and predict that Peachtree Road will be in very good shape when Capital City golfers take their sticks to Brookhaven.

To Widen Roswell Road.

The proposition of widening the Roswell Road from Buckhead to Piedmont Road (formerly Plaster Bridge Road) has been revived. A year or two ago this matter was agitated. All property owners except one agreed to give 10 to 20 feet, and the opposition of the single owner blocked the project. Now E. T. Luckie, of the Holmes & Luckie Realty Company, has taken up the matter again, and he expresses confidence in the outcome. Mr. Luckie's idea is to lay out the Roswell Road so that whenever the demand is great enough on the part of the people along the route, a car line can be built to Roswell. Either this or the street car company can leave the wide thoroughfare to vehicular traffic and establish a private right-of-way close by.

If You Are in Debt, You Are a Fly Glued to the Flypaper.

The More You Struggle, the Tighter You Stick. Soon Your Courage Is Gone and You Are a Dead Fly.

Copyright, 1913.

The picture at the top of this page is a picture for more than half of all the people in this country.

More than half the people are in debt—that is to say, they are living beyond their means, or they are spending every cent.

And the man who is spending every cent he gets is actually in debt and running in debt, for he is running in debt TO HIS OLD AGE, when he won't be able to make, and won't be able to spend, and when the spending of to-day means debt later.

Those that are in debt know what debt is. There is no need to tell them about it.

First you owe $50 if you are a little man, or $50,000 if you are a big man.

And then you owe $100—or $100,000 if you are big.

For a while you struggle and plan. You are going to pay it off soon. It is a good thing to use "O P M," that is to say, other people's money, in the effort to get ahead.

You tell yourself that all the big men have used their credit and borrowed and gone ahead rapidly.

It all sounds very nice and plausible.

But remember that YOU KEEP GETTING IN DEEPER.

The fly lights on the fly paper, perhaps with only one leg at first. He says this is nothing, and puts down the other leg to push himself off.

AND THEN HE IS STUCK FAST.

And then he says to himself: "I will fly away from this fly paper," so he begins flapping his wings. And both of his wings stick to the paper.

There he is with his feet stuck and his wings stuck and only his head free.

That fly feels about as independent and hearty as you do if you are in debt. And he says: "I can get off of this paper easily enough when I get ready. I'll just put my head down and push myself off."

He buzzes for a while. THEN HE PUTS HIS HEAD DOWN ON THE FLY PAPER, TO PUSH HIMSELF OFF.

Then his head sticks tight; he begins to choke.

By and by he rolls over on his side, he sinks into the sticky surface—AND THERE IS ANOTHER DEAD FLY.

So it is with men in debt. So it will be with you if you stay in debt.

The only hope for the fly, the moment he feels one foot on the fly paper, is to use those wings and fly away, not putting in the other foot; flying off as quickly as he can.

And a million times wiser and better is the occasional rare fly, who sees the other flies sticking to the fly paper and says: "I don't like the look of those flies; I'll stay away from them."

Look at the people in debt. See their worry. See the anxiety of the mother, reflected in the children.

See the lack of standing, the extravagance and the poverty mixed together.

Since you cannot mistake him, why not keep away from that fly paper?

Debt makes everything worthless.

If you owe a thousand dollars, it seems rather foolish to save ten or twenty.

You feel that you might as well spend it; it won't make any difference.

And so it goes, if you owe two thousand. And then it isn't worth while to save twenty or forty.

And you become a failure. You put down your feet, and then your wings, AND THEN YOUR HEAD, WHICH IS AMBITION, and by and by you roll over and you are a dead fly.

Keep out of debt.

Congratulations We Do Not Want

Lord Welby, speaking in London at the annual dinner of the Cobden Club on the prospects of free trade, said that the members might congratulate themselves on President Wilson's new tariff bill. There is the bare truth about what is thought of the bill by the out-and-out free traders of England.

Richard Cobden died in 1865. The population of Great Britain has almost doubled since. Railroads were in their infancy, and it took weeks to cross the Atlantic. Telegraphy had just begun and ocean-spanning cables did not exist. Cobden could never have even dreamed of the cheap and vast transportation systems, by land and sea, of to-day. He could never even have dreamed of the year when the United States would practically consume all the wheat it would grow. He could never even have dreamed of the development of machinery, changing, as it has, the whole face of world-trade.

Yet they did dream in those days. Cobden's associates dreamed and prophesied, too. They prophesied, and loudly, that within fifty years every civilized nation would have adopted free trade, and they were exactly wrong.

It would take many volumes to tell the whole difference between the conditions of the world's business in 1865 and 1913.

There are some congratulations that may be paid for too dearly.

Rivalry in Religion

THE disappearance of sectarian bitterness is one of the most observable facts of to-day. Whatever may be thought of it, no man can regard it possible to check the movement which is breaking down the old denominational antipathies. It is interpreted by many as the best modern evidence that a Heavenly Power is at work in the world. They believe that the Spirit of its Divine Founder is prevailing in Christianity over the human passions of men, and that the gospel of love is at last conquering completely the hearts of those who preach it.

The large front of this movement appears in religious conventions and in the current religious literature. In reiterated proposals of church federation and missionary co-operation not a few religious leaders ardently believe that the amalgamation of denominations in one great inclusive church is not only desirable but inevitable.

Protesting the Movement.

But this rosy view has its checkmate and counter-blast. There are very many—probably at this time the majority of church communicants, who do not view the loss of the sectarian spirit with sympathy. Large numbers of leaders are flung in violent reaction against it. Within each denomination there are organs, and therefore an organization, of protest. A keen eye observes that the internal antagonisms in the different denominations on the subject is really helping on the movement of fraternity as between the denominations themselves by transferring the emphasis of the old conflict between them as sects to mere family disputes.

The question of denominationalism will not be settled wisely in this fashion. There are profound reasons for the existence and maintenance of divergent groups in Christianity. There are many of the best men in each denomination who observe the tendency of the times, feel its power, and are drawn into it, who still stoutly question, if it is not liable to cost the cause of Truth and the energies of religion more than all its compensating amenities can amount to. The man in the street does not see very far into the problem of denominationalism. It appears to him a plague of wicked envies and a useless waste of power.

The Real Values.

Why is it, then, that those inside the churches, as leaders and laymen, who are manifestly consecrated men of the finest good sense, are strong in their support of separate denominations, especially their own? It is because they know the real value of denominationalism. It is not a narrow sectarian meanness on their part. They lend no encouragement to theological strife and religious bad feeling. They lament the wounds which persecution and bigotry have made and would make again. But they know that after all there are convictions of religious truth worth fighting for, and that the great loyalties of conscience have been the levers of salvation for the human race. As students of church history, they know that the stubborn quality of soul, the heroic mold of character and the magnificent manhood which have fallen out of that history, are not to be lightly set aside or interpreted apart from the great competitions of religion in which they were generated.

New Denominationalism.

So the rapidly evaporating sectarianism of our time, if full of promise, is full of peril also. It is our task to provide a relation of religious groups to each other and toward their common cause which will conserve consecration and aggressiveness, while at the same time it encourages their basal fellowship.

I believe it can be done and that it will be done.

As Christianity stands to-day, the demand for an arrangement of its group forces in a provoking attitude toward each other, but with the supreme objective clear enough to cure the evils of sectarianism. The suggestion for a "New Denominationalism" is offered therefore as a substitute for the tendency toward "No Denominationalism." It is that the theological quarrel shall be subordinated to the logical contest of religious groups engaged constructively for the kingdom of God on earth. It should appeal to anyone that the rivalry of creeds giving way to the rivalry of deeds will be infinitely better than the mere subsidence of all rivalry which is threatened.

GEORGIA AND TECH CLASH IN FIRST BATTLE

Score by innings :

TECH	200 200 0
GEORGIA	100 000 2

ATHENS, GA., May 9.—Tech and Georgia clashed here this afternoon in the first game of their series. Corley went to the slab for Georgia with Hutchens catching, while Eubanks was selected to twirl for the visitors with Attridge behind the bat.

The Yellow Jockets took the lead in the first inning by pounding out two runs. The Red and Black squad managed to push one run over the plate in their half.

Eubanks and Corley tightened up in the second and third inning and neither team scored. The fielding on both sides was sharp and snappy.

Tech came strong in the fourth, pushing two runs over the plate:

Corley held Heisman's men in the fifth and the Tech batters failed to score. Eubanks continued to prove a puzzle to the Red and Black batters and they went out without registering a run. Eubanks showed great speed in this inning.

Neither team tallied in the sixth, due to some fast fielding by both nines. Both pitchers showed signs of weakening, but fast fielding kept the score down.

Georgia fell on Eubanks strong in the seventh, pushing two runs over the plate. Tech failed to score in its half and the score stood 4 to 3, favor of the Yellow Jackets.

House Convicts and Reprimands Banker

Glover Found Guilty of Contempt, Then Apologies When Brought Before Body.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—By a vote of 200 to 4 the House voted Charles C. Glover, the Washington banker, guilty of contempt for attacking Congressman Simms, of Tennessee, and Glover was ordered brought to the bar of the House to enter his defense.

Glover was brought into the house after the clerk read the charges, admitted the facts set forth and apologized to the house.

Representative Crisp then offered a resolution to reprimand and discharge the banker. This carried and Speaker Clark administered the reprimand, pointing out that "an assault upon a representative for words spoken in debate might compel a good man that does not want to kill anybody to do that very thing."

COUNTY TO FURNISH UNLIMITED FUNDS TO SOLVE PHAGAN CASE

Solicitor Dorsey Says He Has Secured Powerful Aid in Search for Slayer of Girl---Woman Says She Heard Screams in Pencil Factory.

Shelby Smith, chairman of the Fulton commission, declared Friday afternoon that the board would back Solicitor Dorsey in any and all expense he might incur in the state's exhaustive investigation into the Phagan murder mystery. Smith said:

"We have instructed Dorsey to obtain the best possible detective skill for his probe and he would be backed by the couny commission to the last ditch in the money he spent.

"The fact the he hired a good detective Friday is news to me, but he has the sanction and backing of the board in the matter."

HIRES BEST DETECTIVE, HE SAYS.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey said Friday afternoon that he had the best detective in America working on the mystery of the Mary Phagan strangling.

Important developments had ensued already, he declared, and he was confident that an early solution of the case would be reached by the new expert of national reputation who had been placed at work on the clews.

The solicitor is understood to have the affidavit of a woman who swears that she heard a girl's screams as she was passing the factory at 4:30 o'clock the afternoon of the tragedy. The cries were shrill and piercing, she says, and died away as she stopped an instant to listen.

The woman was sure they came from inside the factory, but she gave little attention to her startling experience until she read of the strangling of Mary Phagan. Then it occurred to her that she very likely had heard the dying cries of the little girl and she reported the matter to the authorities.

Solicitor Dorsey, as his first action after the holding of Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee to the Grand Jury for the murder of Mary Phagan, put out the dragnet for witnesses.

A batch of subpenas were issued for the witnesses to appear in his office to give testimony in the case of "The State vs. John Doe."

After a long conference with Detectives Starnes and Campbell, Solicitor Dorsey asserted that action on the part of the Grand Jury might be expected any time after Friday. He plainly intimated that a special session of the jury might be convened Saturday to consider the Phagan murder.

The Solicitor declared as he left the court house with a private detective whose name he refused to divulge that he anticipated the development of startling evidence before night, which, he said, would clear matters materially.

Dorsey Questions Newt Lee.

With the private detective the Solicitor went to the Tower and was closeted with Newt Lee, the night watchman, for more than an hour.

The form of the subpena is taken to mean that many of the witnesses will submit their sworn testimony before the Solicitor General, who will thus have it in documentary form, instead of going before the Grand Jury to give oral testimony. However, it will be necessary for the material or indicting witnesses to go before the Grand Jurors in person.

"The investigation has just begun," said Chief of Detectives Lanford Friday, in discussing the action of the Coroner's jury. "We were confident we had presented sufficient evidence to warrant the holding of the two suspects in the case, but we will have much more when the case gets into the courts.

Have Strong Theory Already.

"We are going to continue right on with the investigation and try to dig down to the full truth of the mystery. We have a strongly supported theory as to who committed the crime, but we are ready at any time to change our opinions as soon as the evidence points in another direction.

"It will be possible, with the rush and hurry of the Coroner's jury

SENATE BEGINS CONSIDERATION OF TARIFF BILL

Received From House and Referred—Hearings Are Secret. Expect Vote in Nine Weeks.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Senator Bois Penrose, Republican, began the senate fight on the Underwood tariff bill as soon as it was introduced today in the senate. Senator Simmons, chairman of the senate finance committee moved that the bill be referred to his committee for consideration. Penrose immediately offered a motion to amend Senator Simmons' motion to provide for public hearings on the bill before the finance committee.

Senator Smith, of Michigan, predicted that the bill would bring about the same conditions that existed 20 years ago and asserted that the efforts of a "political doctrinaire" referring to Secretary of Commerce Redfield, could not prevent factories from cutting wages or closing their doors.

In the Finance Committee the schedule was assigned to sub-committee No. 1, composed of Senators Stone, Thomas, James and Simmons, and the wool schedule to No. 2—Senators Williams, Shively, Gore and Simmons. The remaining schedules were divided equally between subcommittees 1, 2 and 3.

Hearings on the bill will be behind closed doors, the Democrats having decided that public hearings would consume too much time. It is expected that three weeks will be used by the committee in considering the measures, and six weeks more in debate on the floor.

It also is considered certain that a number of changes will be made in the measure, necessitating its reference to the conference of the House and Senate members.

On the final test in the House last night the vote was 281 to 139, five Democrats voting against the bill and two Republicans voting for it. Four Progressives supported the bill and fourteen opposed it, while one Independent Progressive joined with the majority.

passed, for my men to work with more deliberation and care and to sift with a greater thoroughness every bit of evidence that comes into their possession. Even if nothing new should develop, we have enough leads to keep half a dozen detectives busy for a week."

Detectives Rosser, Campbell, Black, Starnes and Bullard are still working with the chief on the case and probably will continue until the mystery is cleared.

Lemmie Quinn, foreman in the tipping department at the National Pencil factory, was the first of the witnesses to be examined by the Solicitor. He was in Mr. Dorsey's office a considerable part of the forenoon and underwent a rigorous examination.

New Witnesses Sought.

Detectives Starnes and Campbell also were with the Solicitor, and two of the Solicitor's assistants, Newton Garner and Dan Goodlin, were dispatched the first thing in the morning to hunt up new witnesses of whom Mr. Dorsey had information.

Foreman Quinn was called, it is understood, to clear up the discrepancies in his testimony and the statement he is said to have made to the detectives and to several of his acquaintances. In his testimony before the Coroner's jury he declared that he visited the factory between 12:10 and 12:30 o'clock, the afternoon of the killing of Mary Phagan. He said he talked with Frank for two minutes in the superintendent's office.

Detectives declared that Quinn had told them and other persons that he did not visit the factory at all Saturday and that he was not there from the time he left Friday until the following Monday.

Frank Expected To Be Held.

"That's about what I expected at this time," was the comment with which Leo M. Frank, with little trace of emotion, received the news of the action of the Coroner's jury Thursday night.

Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor was the officer who informed both Frank and Newt Lee that the jury had recommended that they be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

The night watchman received the news indifferently and had nothing to say.

Atlanta, Ga., May 8, 1913.

We, the Coroner's jury, impaneled and sworn by Paul Donehoo, Coroner of Fulton County, to inquire into the cause of the death of Mary Phagan, whose dead body now lies before us, after having heard the evidence of sworn witnesses, and the statement of Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, find that the deceased came to her death from strangulation. We recommend that Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

(Signed)

HOMER C. ASHFORD, Foreman.

DR. J. W. HURT, County Physician.

Solicitor Dorsey said Friday he would give the Phagan case all of his attention and present his evidence to the Grand Jury as quickly as possible.

The solicitor has shown an anxiety to avoid delays of any nature in hunting down the slayer of the Phagan girl, and now that the Coroner's jury has turned the case over to the Solicitor and the Grand Jury it may be taken for granted that the investigation will be hurried along with all possible speed.

Case in State's Hands.

"The case now is fully in the hands of the State," said the Solicitor Friday morning. "It will not be presented to the Grand Jury Friday, but I shall endeavor to present it at the earliest possible moment. The instant that I have a complete case I shall bring it to the attention of the Grand Jury. It is my desire to bring the slayer of Mary Phagan to justice with the greatest dispatch. A great crime has been done and I am no less eager to see the guilt determined than the general public."

It required the Coroner's jury about twenty minutes to frame its formal verdict Thursday night. The jurors received a brief charge from Coroner Donehoo and filed from the Commissioners' room in the police station at 6:08 o'clock. At 6:28 they were back with their verdict.

Coroner Donehoo admonished the jurors to be as ready to hold a person who they thought might be withholding information of the crime as to hold a person they regarded as the possible culprit. A person possessing knowledge of the crime and withholding it, he said, was an accessory after the fact.

An immediate hush fell on the packed room when the jurors returned. There was a dead silence except for the voice of Homer C. Ashford, foreman of the jury, when the verdict was read.

Girls Testify Against Frank.

The most damaging testimony against Frank in regard to his treatment of employees at his factory was saved until the last hours of the hearing. Girls and women were called to the stand to testify that they had been employed at the factory or had had occasion to go there, and that Frank had attempted familiarities with them.

Nellie Pettis, of 9 Oliver Street, declared that Frank had made improper advances to her. She was asked if she ever had been employed at the pencil factory.

"No," she answered.

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I have seen him once or twice."

Q. When and where did you see him?—A. In his office at the factory whenever I went to draw my sister-in-law's pay.

Q. What did he say to you that might have been improper on any of these visits?—A. He didn't exactly say—he made gestures. I went to get sister's pay about four weeks ago and when I went into the office of Mr. Frank I asked for her. He told me I couldn't see her unless "I saw him first."

Says He Winked at Her.

"I told him I didn't want to 'see him.' He pulled a box from his desk. It had a lot of money in it. He looked at it significantly and then looked at me. When he looked at me, he winked. As he winked he said: 'How about it?'

"I instantly told him I was a nice girl."

Here the witness stopped her statement. Coroner Donehoo asked her sharply:

"Didn't you say anything else?"

"Yes, I did! I told him to go to h—l! and walked out of his office."

Thomas Blackstock, who said that he was employed at the factory about a year ago testified as follows:

Tells of Frank's Conduct.

Q. Do you know Leo M. Frank?—A. Yes.

Q. How long have you known him?—A. About six weeks.

Q. Did you ever observe his conduct toward female employees of the pencil factory?—A. Yes. I've often seen him picking on different girls.

Q. Name some.—A. I can't exactly recollect names.

Q. What was the conduct you noticed particularly?

The witness answered to the effect that he had seen him place his hands with undue familiarity upon the person of girls.

Q. See it often?—A. A half dozen times, maybe. He generally was seen to become that familiar while he was touring the building.

Q. Can't you name just one girl?—A. Yes. Magnolia Kennedy.

Q. Did you see him act with undue familiarity toward her?—A. No. I heard talk about it.

Q. Before or after the murder?—A. Afterward.

"Girls Tried to Avoid Him."

Q. When did you observe this misconduct of which you have told?—A. A year ago.

Q. Did you hear complaints around the plant?—A. No. The girls tried to avoid him.

Mrs. C. D. Donegan said she was connected with the pencil plant for three weeks. Her capacity was that of forelady. She resides at 165 West Fourteenth Street with her husband.

Her testimony follows:

"State your observations of Frank's conduct toward the girls and women of the plant."

"I have noticed him smile and wink at the girls in the place. That was two years ago."

"Did you make a statement to the detectives of undue familiarity you had witnessed?"

"I told them that I had seen Frank flirt with the girls and women—that was all I said."

Charges Familiarities.

The testimony of Nellie Wood, a young girl of 8 Corput Street, came next.

In brief it was this:

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I worked for him two days.

Q. Did you observe any misconduct on his part?—A. Well, his actions didn't suit me. He'd come around and put his hands on me when such conduct was entirely uncalled for.

Q. Is that all he did?—A. No. He asked me one day to come into his office, saying that he wanted to talk to me. He tried to close the door, but I wouldn't let him. He got too familiar by getting so close to me. He also put his hands on me.

Q. Where did he put his hands?—A. He barely touched my breast. He was subtle with his approaches, and tried to pretend that he was joking, but I was too wary for such as that.

Quit His Employ.

Q. Did he try further familiarities?—A. Yes.

Q. When did this happen?—A. Two years ago.

Q. What did you tell him when you left his employ?—A. I just quit, telling him that it didn't suit me.

Frank's testimony was looked forward to with keen interest, but when he was called to the stand in the afternoon, he merely answered additional questions as to his movements on the day of the crime and failed to add materially to the evidence in hand.

He appeared pale and haggard from his imprisonment, but he replied to all of the questions clearly and showed no hesitation or apparent fear. He was asked:

Testimony of Frank.

Q. What kind of elevator door is there to the shaft in the pencil factory?—A. Sliding doors.

Q. How many?—A. One on each floor.

Q. Are they latticed or solid?—A. Solid.

Q. Where was the elevator at 12 o'clock Saturday?—A. I did not notice.

Q. Were the doors open or closed? A. I don't remember.

Q. What protection would a person have from falling down the shaft if the doors were left open?—A. A bar which projects across the opening.

Q. After the crime was committed, where did the elevator stand?—A. I only know where it stood Sunday morning. It then was on the second floor.

Didn't File Time Tape.

Q. When you last removed the tape from the time clock, what did you do with it?—A. Handed it to an officer in the building.

Q. Did you put it on file?—A. No.

Q. Are you sure?—A. Yes, positive.

Q. Do you remember a party at your house on the night of April 26?—A. Yes.

Q. Can you name the guests?—A. I don't remember them all.

Q. When the police came to bring you down to the factory that Sunday morning, what was said about whisky?—A. I said I wanted something warm to drink. One of the detectives suggested whisky.

Q. What time was it?—A. Between 7:30 and 8 o'clock.

Says He Viewed Body.

Q. What did you say about dreaming?—A. I said to someone that I thought I had dreamed of hearing the telephone ring in the dead of night.

Q. When you went to the undertakers', did you go in the water closet instead of the room in which the body lay?—A. No.

Q. Did you view the body?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you recognize the girl—A. Yes.

Q. When did you first hear her name?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What time did you return home that Sunday afternoon?—A. I don't recollect.

Q. Did you telephone your wife before your return?—A. Yes.

Q. Was the murder discussed at home that afternoon?—A. Not much.

Q. What topic was discussed.—A. I don't remember.

Often Does Not Remember.

Q. When did Quinn first mention to you his visit to the factory on the 26th?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What did he say?—A. He said, "Don't you recollect that I was at the factory Saturday about noon?"

Q. What did you tell him about withholding that information until your attorney had been consulted?—A. I don't remember. I had so many visitors that I couldn't recollect the exact words.

Q. Who suggested the conference with your attorney relative to Quinn's visit?—A. I don't remember.

Q. How long have you known you had counsel?—A. Since Monday.

Q. Why was it mentioned that Quinn's visit be kept quiet until consultation with your lawyer?—A. I don't remember.

Explains Locks and Doors.

Q. How can you lock the door between your office and the dressing room where the blood spots were found?—A. I have never seen it locked.

Q. Is it usually open or locked?—A. Closed.

Q. Is there any way of closing the doors on the back stairway?—A. Yes. They are locked.

sation with Detective Starnes at the time you were informed of the tragedy?—A. He asked me if I was superintendent of the National Pencil Factory. "I'd like to have you come down here at once," he said when I informed him that I was Leo Frank. He said he wanted me to identify a girl, and asked me if I knew Mary Phagan.

Q. Didn't you say that the first time you had heard her name was while you were traveling in the auto on the way to the factory Sunday morning?—A. I don't recollect that I did.

Q. Did you have any trouble with a girl in your office Saturday morning?—A. No. There was one incident where a mistake had been made in the pay envelope of Mattie Smith, but it was corrected without any trouble.

Tells of Callers at Office.

Q. What time was Mattie Smith in your office?—A. Between 9 and 10 a. m.

Q. Did any one enter while she was there?—A. I don't remember.

Q. Give the name of every one in the office throughout the day Saturday?—A. Mr. Darley, Mr. Holloway, the office boy, Miss Hall, the stenographer; Mr. Campbell, Mr. Fullerton, Mrs. White, Lemmie Quinn, Mr. Gantt, Emma Clark, another girl employee, Arthur White, Harry Denham, Newt Lee and Mary Phagan.

Q. Did you see May Barrett?—A. I don't know her.

Q. What did you say to Emma Clark?—A. I don't remember saying anything to her.

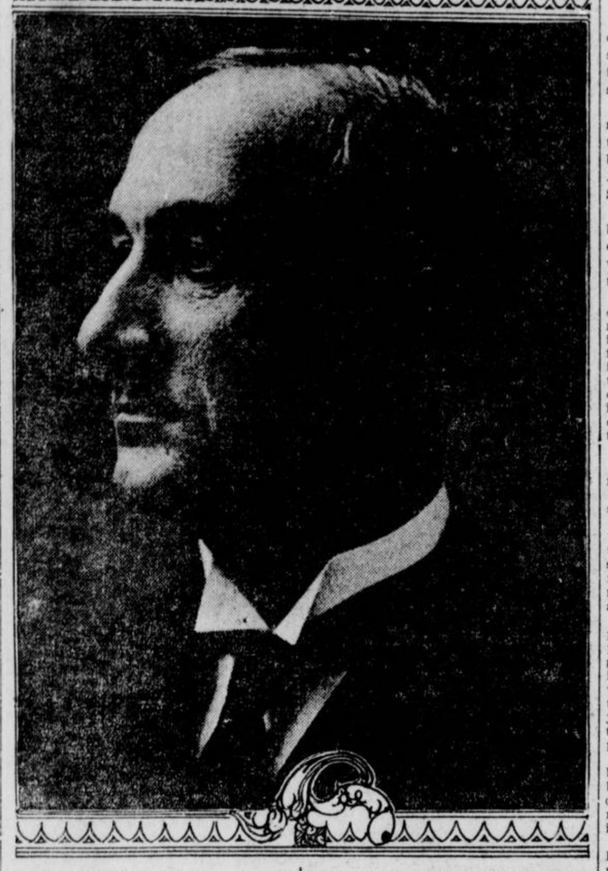
Atlanta Ready for Presbyterians

5,000 Visitors for Assemblies

Noted Speakers on the Programs

REV. THOMAS STONE CLYCE, moderator of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, 1912, who will be one of the prominent visitors in Atlanta next week. Dr. Clyce is president of Austin College at Sherman, Texas.



Consolidation of Four Branches To Be Considered in Gathering Here Next Week.

Preparations are virtually completed to-day for the great Presbyterian convention to be held in Atlanta beginning May 15. For the first time in the history of Presbyterianism in America representatives from its four branches will gather in joint assembly.

From May 15 to May 22 more than 5,000 visiting Presbyterians will be the city's guests. Of this number 1,500 will be regularly appointed commissioners, constituting the largest religious assemblage ever held in the South. More than 700 representatives of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., or Northern Division, 500 from the Presbyterian Church, U. S., or Southern Division; 300 from the United Presbyterian and 25 special representatives from the Associate Reformed Churches will comprise the assemblies.

Atlanta has thrown open her homes to the visitors, all denominations uniting in entertaining the church representatives who come from every State in the Union, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Panama. A number of prominent churchmen from Canada also are expected. The commissioners are chosen, one-half from the clergy and the other half from the laity.

They constitute the governing body of the church and are selected largely because of their prominence and their activity in church work.

Church Union Considered.

Southern Presbyterians will be especially interested in the discussions looking to a union between the United and the Southern divisions. Two committees were appointed last year, one from each of the branches, to confer on a possible basis of union. Their reports will be submitted. It is said the committees have reached an agreement and it is generally believed that the assemblies will act favorably on their reports. Details of the agreement have not been published, but it is believed that they will prove acceptable to both bodies.

While the Associate Reformed branch of the church will not hold a regular conference here, prominent representatives will be in attendance as special commissioners. Their synod met in December, but it is probable that an adjourned session will be held.

A feature of the meeting here, carrying with it perhaps the most widespread interest, will be a possible effort to unite the Northern and Southern branches of the church. Unorganized endeavor has been made during several years past to bring about the union, but with no further result than that churchmen have been aroused on the subject. The joint meeting here is regarded by representative Presbyterians as a most auspicious occasion for the matter to be thrashed out and a union effected. No such opportunity has ever offered itself, as the assemblies have always met in widely separated cities, at separate times.

Union Seminary Fight.

Of considerable interest, particularly to the Northern branch of the church, will be the effort to bring Union Theological Seminary back into the fold. The sixteen delegates from New York, however, were elected on the pledge that they would fight to maintain the present status of the seminary. Charges of extravagance and usurpation of authority against the Board of Home Missions of the Northern Church will be investigated. Rev. Joseph L. Weaver, D.D., of Rocky Ford, Colo., it is understood, has preferred the charges. Dr. William Fulton, of Philadelphia, is chairman of the investigating committee.

An interesting fight for the place of moderator of the Northern Assembly has developed. The leading candidates are Rev. Dr. Maint-Alexander, of Pittsburg; Rev. Dr. Samuel S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio; Rev. Dr. William McKibbin, president of Lane Theological Seminary of Cincinnati, anad Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Hinitt, of Danville, Ky.

Bryan to Speak.

The meeting of the assemblies in Atlanta will bring to the city some of the notable men of the country, prominent not only in church affairs, but national figures also.

United States Senator Hoke Smith will be present Tuesday, May 20, to preside over a meeting for home missions. Some of the most prominent leaders of the Associate Reformed branch of the church will be in attendance upon the assemblies, one of them being Dr. J. H. Pressley, of Statesville, N. C., moderator of the A. R. P. division.

Among the definite arrangements already made are a number of conferences at the various churches of the city. The main sessions will be held at the Baptist Tabernacle and the Auditorium.

A joint fellowship gathering will be held at the Auditorium Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. R. O. Flinn, of the North Avenue Church of Atlanta, will preside. A welcome address will be delivered by J. K. Orr, an elder of the North Avenue Church, after which fraternal greetings will be extended from the moderators of the four assemblies, Rev. T. S. Clyce of Texas, for the Southern division; Rev. J. H. Pressley, of North Carolina, for the Associate Reformed Assembly; Rev. Hugh H. Bell, of California, for the United Assembly; Rev. Mark A. Mathews, of Washington State, for the Northern division.

Canadian on Program.

The principal address of the evening will be made by Mr. James McDonald, Ph. D., of The Toronto Globe, Toronto, Canada, on "The Church's Responsibility for International Peace."

Under the direction of Rev. Dunbar Ogden, of Central Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, a union communion service will be held at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Baptist Tabernacle. The moderators of the four assemblies will conduct the service.

Rev. Charles R. Stelzle, of New York, and Marion Jackson, of Atlanta, will be principal speakers at a Christian social service meeting Saturday night at the Auditorium. "Christian Citizenship and the Social Evil" is the subject of Mr. Jackson's address.

U. S. EXPERTS DOUBT 'CURES' BY FRIEDMANN

WASHINGTON, May 9.—"Effects of the Friedmann cure thus far observed do not justify the confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by well-meant publicity."

This is the crux of an official statement from the board of examiners of the public health service, delivered by Dr. John F. Anderson before the American Congress of Physicians and Surgeons in Washington to-day.

Dr. Anderson said harm may have been done by undue publicity in lessening the confidence of tuberculosis victims in well-recognized methods of treatment.

With respect to the patients under examination in New York, he said many have developed no considerable infiltrate at all and have not suffered from abscess formations. This would indicate that they must be under treatment a long time to effect a cure, as Dr. Friedmann stated that infiltrate and abscess formations indicated more or less rapid progress toward cure.

Not Ready to Give Opinion.

The report which was also submitted by Dr. Anderson and Dr. A. M. Stimson, another public health surgeon, said in part:

"At the present time we are not in position to express an opinion upon the present cases under observation. The disease for which the remedy is used is prolonged and is marked by periods of improvement and retrogression.

"We must not lose sight of the possible therapeutic value of this preparation, but it is necessary to guard against too great an optimism in respect to its merits. However, we are in a position to state that the facts thus far observed do not justify the confidence in the remedy that has been inspired by widespread publicity.

"In our opinion, harm may have been done by this undue publicity because it has lessened the confidence of tuberculosis patients in well recognized methods of treatment, or interrupted their use.

"In our series of patients, Dr. Friedmann has made has made almost exclusive use of the intramuscular method and a very considerable portion of them have developed either no considerable infiltrate at all or have suffered from abscess formations.

Large Amount of Serum Refused.

"It is very evident, therefore, that a considerable number of Dr. Friedmann's patients may expect their treatment at the hands of Dr. Friedmann to cover a long period.

"Concerning the cultures submitted to us, we may state that a series of experiments are under way.

"The baccilus has been found to be an acid-fast organism, having properties quite different from those of any tuberculosis baccilus with which we have been acquainted. It appears to be identical with an organism cultivated from a few loopfulls of the material used for injection which Dr. Friedmann permitted us to place on culture media in his presence.

"We requested Dr. Friedmann to furnish us with a large quantity of this material for examination, but this he refused to do.

"We can state that living acid-fast bacteria are being injected by the muscular and intravenous method, although we are ignorant of what medium they are suspended in, or what additional substance or substances may be contained in the final mixture."

SHRINERS OFF TO DALLAS TO CAPTURE MEET FOR ATLANTA

I want to again express my appreciation for the assistance of Mr. Hearst and his newspapers throughout the country. If Atlanta gets the 1914 meeting Mr. Hearst and his papers will be largely responsible.—POTENTATE FORREST ADAIR.

"The Imperial Council will meet in Atlanta in 1914. Personally I have no doubt of it. We have hotel accommodations; Memphis has not, and we have made a remarkable record in raising a fund of $76,000 in one day that every Shriner in America knows about.

"And we leave to-night for Dallas better equipped to extend an invitation of this kind than any city or Temple that has extended a like invitation in a great number of years."

With this statement Forrest Adair, potentate of Yaarab Temple, announced Friday morning that every detail of the pilgrimage to the convention of the Imperial Council of Shriners at Dallas, Tex., was complete and Atlanta's delegation, nearly 200 strong, would leave in a special train over the Southern Railway at 10 o'clock Friday night.

Reach Dallas Sunday.

Early Sunday morning the Atlanta pilgrims will have crossed the hot sands and entered the Oasis of Dallas. They will go into the city with their coats on their arms, prepared to drown out any discordant note, from Memphis, or anywhere for that matter, with the now familiar slogan:

"Atlanta, 1914."

At Birmingham, Meridian, Shreveport and a score of points along the line, Atlanta boosters will board the train, and go with the delegation to Dallas to swell the total and bring the convention to the Southeast next year.

Mr. Adair and his official delegation, W. A. Foster, John A. Hynds and Claude H. Hutcheson, of Jonesboro, will extend the invitation.

They will be fortified with official invitations from the Mayor and City Council and every trades organization in the city, as well as open contracts from every hotel in Atlanta, assuring accommodations for as many as 4,000 Shriners, the number expected here next year.

No "Holdup" in Rates.

The beauty of the hotel contracts, as explained by Mr. Adair, is that "inauguration rates" will not be charged.

"Only the regular rates," said Mr. Adair, "will be in force, and I have with the contracts a diagram of the floor space indicating the room and the regular rate. They won't be able to go above the rate, even if the hotel men felt inclined to.

"Memphis will not get the convention, because it hasn't got the hotels and the Shriners know it," said Mr. Adair. "They're building one now, but it won't compare with any of the nicer hotels already completed in Atlanta, and as for the best hotels there—Atlanta's got better on the side streets. This alone makes it doubly sure we'll get the convention, but if there's any doubt the size of our delegation removes it."

The Arab Patrol of Yaarab Temple, the crack drum corps, 40 strong, will be a valuable asset of the Atlanta delegation. It is an independent organization formed by the temple for convention work and occasions that demand public appearance. It has attracted much attention at conventions throughout the country.

Members of the Patrol.

The patrol is as follows:

Captain J. O. Seamons, First Lieutenant H. C. Ashford, Second Lieutenant F. E. Van der Veer, First Sergeant C. W. Ferguson, Quartermaster H. H. Milner and Patrolmen Albert Akers, C. E. Barber, J. J. Barnes, Jr., W. D. Benson, F. M. Brotherton, George E. Argard, R. A. Burnett, G. I. Butler, A. B. Chapman, R. E. Church, Frank Cundell, E. E. Cunningham, J. C. Deavours, George Freeman, L. H. Geiger, H. H. Green, J. L. Grice, J. C. Jones, M. E. McGee, M. N. Milton, T. A. Mixon and R. S. Osborn.

Some unofficial delegates who will go are Fred Houser, J. C. Greenfield, S. L. Dickey, W. R. Joyner, H. G. Martin, J. B. Jacoway, Fred Patterson, Graham Phelan, J. Lee Barnes, Ben Corey, J. F. Carson, Fred Van der Pool, J. F. Waitt, George Beck, Jesse E. Couch and James Kempton.

The delegation will leave Dallas, returning, the evening of May 15 at 8 o'clock and arrive in Atlanta the evening of May 17.

The Atlanta Lodge of Elks has pledged the Shriners its enthusiastic support in the effort to bring the Shrine here next year. Exalted Ruler Dunne has written the Shriners that the Elks' home will be wide open to all visitors if the great meeting comes here.

TO LIVE 100 YEARS READ NEWSPAPERS, SAYS CENTENARIAN

BOSTON, May 9.—Ralph Butler, of Dorchester, is 100 years old, and to-day drew up a list of rules for living a century, as follows:

Walk and take plenty of other exercise.

Read the newspapers to keep your mind young.

Eat anything you want, but eat to live, not live to eat, and eat regularly.

Don't take your office cares home with you.

Get to bed early and regularly, and 5 o'clock is not too early to rise.

Two months ago Butler walked to city hall and surprised the Collector of Taxes by paying the amount due on the real estate he holds.

"I'm just as well able to walk to-day as I was twenty years ago," he said. "I feel as active as when 40."

Mrs. Wilson Picks Rome Postmaster

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Probably the only bit of political patronage that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is to dictate during her husband's administration was given her yesterday, when the President sent for Representative Gordon Lee, of Georgia, and told him that Mrs. Wilson would like to name the postmaster at Rome, her birthplace. The office is the most important in the Seventh District and pays a salary of $3,500 a year.

Mr. Lee told the President he would be glad to yield to Mrs. Wilson. The President said Mrs. Wilson would probably name J. P. Bowie, an elderly man who was very fond of Mrs. Wilson when she was a little girl. Mr. Lee said he would be glad to join in indorsing him.

Bride Revolts When Treated Like Child

Mrs. Ada Garrett Quits Place in Husband's Family Circle to Demand Divorce.

Mrs. Ada Davies Garrett, married to Thomas Hoyt Garrett March 1, 1913, and separated the last day of the month, filed a suit for divorce with the Superior Court Friday, because she said her husband wanted her to live in his father's home "just like one of the children," and took no other interest in her or her welfare.

The petitioner said that after the first few days of their married life, her husband, a young engineer for the Southern Railway, informed her that she was to take her place in his family circle just like his brothers and sisters.

WRITERS DROP 'BAD' SONGS; ALL WRITING BALLADS NOW

CHICAGO, May 9.—Doom sounded to-day for the smut song. It struck in "Tin Pan Alley," where the dens of the popular song writers are located. The song writers hurriedly are throwing together "clean stuff" in an agony of decent competition. Every writer in the block is pounding out ballad stuff.

NEGRO PUGILIST, TRIED AS SLAVER, WINS FIRST RULING

CHICAGO, May 9.—Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, won the first important point in his case to-day when Judge Carpenter, hearing the negro's trial for violation of the white slave act, ruled that Belle Schreiber could not tell of alleged cruelties on the part of the black.

WORLD'S CREDIT BEGINS TO SHOW A GREAT STRAIN

BY W. R. LAWSON.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, May 9.—Serious bankers do not look with favor upon the renewal of gold shipments from New York to Paris.

All of the big international banks appear to be loaned up to the danger level, while the big new security issues that are coming along are bound to strain banking credit and resources. This week four new issues came out, and several more are in preparation.

Brazil's $55,000,000.

Brazil wants $55,000,000—$15,000,000 to be used for the repayment of treasury bills. Lever Brothers are putting out $5,000,000 new preference shares, and Baltimore Gas $3,500,000. United Fruit's $12,000,000 four-year coupon notes have been successfully placed.

Between now and the end of the month special settlements are due which are likely to increase the demand for money.

Situation in London.

Lombard Street is enjoying temporary ease owing to end-of-the-month borrowing from the Bank of England, but large repayments will have to be made within the next few days.

Further reduction in the English bank rate is not expected immediately. The Berlin rate is hardening, and if Boerse speculation breaks loose again, easy money may be a remote possibility.

Hitherto, while the war was in progress, European stocks have been upheld by finance houses for the purpose of facilitating big loan issues which they were preparing to make later.

American Stocks Firmer.

Between September, 1912, and the end of April, 1913, declines in European stocks have generally been very trifling, while American stocks suffered heavy declines.

$25,000,000 INSURANCE ON MORGAN ART WORKS

NEW YORK, May 9.—A situation almost without precedent in the insurance market is reported as a result of J. P. Morgan's plan to insure the $50,000,000 worth of art objects left by his father. The $25,000,000 that is being taken by 250 American and foreign insurance companies is the largest amount sought in many years upon a single risk.

It has been necessary to divide the collection into two risks, one in the old building of the Metropolitan museum and the other in the new building, effecting an average rate of 14½ cents.

DRUGGIST FLED IN FEAR OF BROYLES

Thought Recorder Would Send Him to Stockade for Breaking Garbage Ordinance.

A. S. Knight, manager of a Peters Street drug store, was convinced Friday that Recorder Nash Broyles is not such a terror as he had pictured in his mind.

Knight had never seen Judge Broyles, but had heard and read so much of him that when Sanitary Inspector Simpson cited him to appear in police court on a charge of violating the garbage ordinance he was attacked with a severe case of fright. Although an offense against the garbage laws draws only a small fine, Knight was tortured with the belief that the Recorder would put him in the stockade for about 30 days.

Therefore, instead of appearing in court Tuesday, Knight fled the city with his two children, Dr. A. L. Curtis, proprietor of the drug store, finally located the missing manager in Macon and persuaded him to return and surrender.

Knight told Judge Broyles Thursday afternoon he fled because he was "afraid." He was fined $5.75 in the original garbage case and $10.75 for dodging the court.

Look Out For the Big Market Basket

The good housewives of Atlanta find this feature of Friday's Georgian a great time-saver—a great money-saver. Those who advertise find it a great business getter. All are happy.

TROOPS IN TURK CAPITAL MUTINY

Commander General of Ottoman Army Uses Personal Guard to Quell Uprising.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 9.—Mutiny has developed in the Turkish army stationed along the Chatalja defenses, and it is feared a revolutionary uprising will follow.

Seditious placards were posted in the night throughout the Peroa and Stamboul quarters of the city.

Enver Bey, chief of staff of the Turkish army, is using his personal bodyguard to patrol the city. The guard consists of 700 picked and tried troops.

Sultan Mohammed V did not attend worship in the Yildiz mosque to-day.

Nicholas' Surrender Explanation Cheered.

CETTINJE, MONTENEGRO, May 9.—King Nicholas personally went before the National Parliament to-day and defended his action in giving way to the powers on the question of the evacuation of Scutari. He declared that annihilation inevitably would have followed resistance.

The statement was well taken and Nicholas was cheered.

Nearly all the Montenegrin troops have now left Scutari. King Nicholas feels keenly the humiliation of losing Scutari, and it again is reported he will abdicate in favor of the Crown Prince Danilo.

Scutari Saved From Destruction by Fire.

VIENNA, May 9.—Scutari, the Albanian city whose ownership nearly brought Europe to war, was threatened with destruction by fire to-day. A telegram from Cettinje said flames broke out in the main bazaar and owing to the absence of water and fire fighting appliances, spread rapidly.

500 STRIKERS IN BATTLE.

WINNIPEG, MAN., May 9.—Five hundred strikers at the Canada Car Company's plant to-day fought a battle with 180 strikebreakers. Several of the strikebreakers were injured.

CAN'T HELP BUT ADMIRE BABIES

A woman's heart naturally responds to the charm and sweetness of a pretty child, and more to-day than ever before since the advent of Mother's Friend.

This is a most wonderful external help to the muscles and tendons. It penetrates the tissues, makes them pliant to readily yield to nature's demand for expansion, so there is no longer a period of pain, discomfort, straining, nausea or other symptoms so often distressing during the anxious weeks of expectancy.

Mother's Friend prepares the system for the coming event, and its use brings comfort, rest and repose during the term. This has a most marked influence upon the baby, since it thus inherits a splendid growing system of nerves and digestive function.

And particularly to young mothers is this famous remedy of inestimable value. It enables her to preserve her health and strength, and she remains a pretty mother by having avoided all the suffering and danger that would otherwise accompany such an occasion. Mother's Friend thoroughly lubricates every nerve, tendon and muscle involved and is a sure preventive for caking of the breasts.

You will find this splendid remedy on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 a bottle, and is highly recommended for the purpose.

Write Bradfield Regulator Co., 134 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., and they will mail you, sealed, a very instructive book for expectant mothers.

FEUD IN STATE DEPARTMENT GROWING HOT

Connor-Brown Fight for Place in Next Administration Sets Politicians Gossiping.

Well defined and authoritative rumors of a first-class row inside the Georgia Agricultural Department, involving the present and the next administration, is the piquant morsel of gossip political observers are chewing upon.

The present Commissioner of Agriculture, J. J. Connor, and the present Assistant Commissioner, J. J. Brown, both, it is said, aspire to be Assistant Commissioner under Commissioner James D. Price, who goes into office in June.

Some time ago Commissioner Connor and Assistant Commissioner Brown are said to have had an understanding, the alleged setting aside of which is now the cause of the disturbance within the department.

Brown is understood to have promised Connor his assistance in the matter of the recent election of a manager at the Agricultural Experiment Station in Griffin, in return for Connor's assistance in landing the Assistant Commissionership under Price for Brown.

When the election of a manager took place at Griffin recently, however, Connor was not elected, the plum going to Professor DeLoach, of Athens.

Since that election, Brown's friends claim that Connor has entered the race for the Assistant Commissionership under Price, and Assistant Commissioner Brown has been outspoken in his indignation and surprise.

The Assistant Commissioner will be appointed by Commissioner Price after he is sworn in, and in the meantime the disagreement between Connor and Brown as to which, if either, shall have the assistant's place is extremely interesting to political observers throughout the State.

New Gowns Shock 'Bath House' John

'And It Takes Some Shock to Get Me,' Admits Famous Chicago Alderman.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Alderman "Bathhouse" John Coughlin is so shocked at the gowns he sees on the streets that he has drafted an ordinance to regulate women's dress, solely, he says, on moral grounds.

"We must pass an ordinance prohibiting women from wearing vulgar and suggestive dresses," he told the Judiciary Committee. "Some of the dresses I see on the street shock my moral senses, and it takes some shock to get me. The gowns are awful. No wonder there is business for a vice commission."

Granite State Honors Pierce After 40 Years

New Hampshire Democratic Legislature Favors Statue of One-Time President.

CONCORD, May 9.—Franklin Pierce, the only President from New Hampshire, seems assured, at last, of a statute by his native State. The Senate has passed a House bill providing for a $15,000 appropriation. Governor Felker is expected to sign the measure.

The fact that Pierce was a Democrat and pro-slavery man has hitherto aroused strong opposition to a statue. The Legislature is Democratic for the first time in forty years.

PRETTY VASSAR GIRL AFTER 'BIG PAT'S' SHOT-PUT RECORD

MISS ELIZABETH A. HARDEN. PATRICK M'DONALD SETTING A NEW MARK.

Wealthy Not Safe by 1915, Lecturer Says

J. F. Emerson, Minneapolis Man, Predicts Great Revolution of the Unemployed.

Unless conditions materially change it will not be safe for a millionaire to step outside of his home in 1915. This is the prediction made by J. F. Emerson, of Minneapolis, who will lecture at Cable Hall Sunday afternoon.

"If a change does not take place to stop the rapid increase of the number of the unemployed, I predict that by 1915 there will be such a revolution as will make the millionaire afraid to step outside his home for fear of having his brains blown out by the starving man who awaits him," is the comment made by Emerson.

Emerson's lecture will be free to the public. The subject will be "Was Man Created for Heaven?"

SEVEN MEN GIVE PATCHES OF SKIN TO SAVE BOY

NEW YORK, May 9.—If 10-year-old William Caldwell, of Nutley, N. J., survives the burns which he received when he fell into a bonfire several weeks ago, it will be through the aid of patches of skin from no less than seven men, who have volunteered for the sacrifice. The surgeons figure that he needs 180 square inches of skin grafted upon his body to save his life.

NEW YORK, May 9.—"Well, I swan—"

Just at this point the automobiles around Forty-second Street became congested, and genial "Pat" McDonald, pride of the traffic cops and champion shot-putter of the world, broke off his exclamation. Maybe it was best so, for Patrick had just been told that a Vassar College girl was after his shot-putting laurels and he seemed a bit "miffed."

He did not seem at all pleased to think that his athletic prowess should be o'ershadowed—not by a young college girl, at any rate.

But Miss Elizabeth Abigail Harden, of Newark, N. J., and a freshman at Vassar, is just as proud of her record as McDonald is of his, and she said to-day that she will shortly do even better than 33 feet and 3-4 inches.

No Vassar girl will ever reach Pat's record, however, for they throw a seven-pound shot at the girl's college.

Miss Harden's triumph came in the annual field meet at Vassar last week, and she was easily the star of the day. Besides the shot-put even, Miss Harden won the basket ball throwing contest with a mark of 80 feet 13 1-8 inches and the baseball throwing with 205 feet 7 inches. In both the latter events she broke records held by Miss Inez Milholland, who heretofore had been held the champion all-around woman athlete.

Like Miss Milholland, the Newark girl is an ardent worker for votes for women, and the only blight to her triumphs of Saturday was the fact that the meet kept her from marching with the other 10,000 women who are fighting for the ballot.

GERMAN ARMY DIRIGIBLE LOST TWO DAYS IN STORM

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

KOENIGSBERG, GERMANY, May 9.—The Cassiopela, a spherical German military balloon, which ascended from this city Wednesday with Captain Von Wobeser and two passengers on board, has been missing 18 hours in a storm, and fears are felt for the safety of the aeronauts.

MOST SICKNESS COMES FROM WEAK, INACTIVE KIDNEYS

There are scores of nervous, tired, run-down people throughout the city suffering with pains in the back and sides, dizzy spells, weaknesses of the bladder (frequently causing annoyance at night), who fail to realize the serriousness of their troubles until such conditions as chronic rheumatism, bladder troubles, dropsy, diabetes or even Bright's disease result.

All this is due to weak, inactive kidneys. The kidneys are the filterers of the blood, and no one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly. It is even more important than that the bowels move regularly.

If you suffer with such symptoms don't neglect yourself another day and run the risk of serious complications. Secure an original package of the new discovery, Croxone, which costs but a trifle, and commence its use at once. When you have taken a few doses, you will be surprised how differently you will feel.

Croxone cures the worst cases of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, because it removes the cause. It cleans out the kidneys, and makes them filter out all the poisonous waste matter and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the bladder, and quickly relieves you of all your misery.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, it is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

ALASKA ROW IS LAID TO FISHER FEARING BATH

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Richard S. Ryan, president of the Controller Bay Railroad and Navigation Company and one of the principals in the Dick-to-Dick letters, opposed Government ownership and operation of railroads in Alaska and attacked the accuracy of the Railway Commission's report on proposed routes, before the Senate Committee on Territories to-day.

Ryan asserted the conclusions of the commission are at variance with facts, and if the commission had used scientific facts in possession of the Government its report would have been entirely different.

Ryan referred sarcastically to the "wonderful visit" of Former Secretary of the Interior to Alaska and asserted that his unfavorable opinion of the Controller Bay country was due to the fact that he became "scared."

Ryan said that when Fisher started up the Bering River he lost heart at the sight of breakers, demanded to be let out of the boat and walked through marsh lands back to Katalla.

Matron at Soldiers' Home Dies Suddenly

Miss Aba T. Clayton Drops Dead After Five Years' Service to Confederate Veterans.

Miss Aba T. Clayton, matron at the Confederate Soldiers' Home, dropped dead Friday morning in her room after superintending the preparation of breakfast for the 106 inmates of the home. She had been afflicted with heart trouble.

Miss Clayton had been matron at the home five years and had won the hearts of the old veterans after whose comfort she looked with painstaking care. Her death was a distinct shock to them.

A sister, Miss Kate Clayton, of Atlanta, was notified and the body was brought to the undertaking establishment of Barclay and Brandon, from where it will be sent to Greensboro, Ga., the family home, for interment.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 9.—Duson Kostit, 32, is in a critical condition to-day from a wound inflicted last night by George Lukin, 13, son of Mrs. Amelia Lukin. The boy surrendered.

"Kostit had been calling on my mother for seven months," the boy told the police. "I ordered him to leave last night. He pulled a revolver and fired twice. Then I took ahn with my rifle and he dropped, crying he had been shot."

"The Way, The Truth and The Life"

Mansions in Heaven, Factories on Earth, And Certain Houses

The night of His betrayal, Jesus said:

"Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.

"In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

You believe, and yet are troubled.

His cross and love have made you dissatisfied with self and with what you see and hear.

Visions of a heavenly home for you can not soothe you, so long as yonder hovels pour streams of children into Mammon's maw.

"They should be at play," you say.

Instead, factories and mills are marring their hearts and lives to make dividends for men.

Not this did Jesus mean, when He said:

"Suffer the little children to come unto Me."

And you would not—could not still the pity born of His spirit surging in your heart.

Rightly, you deny that woman's virtue depends on money.

But many families receiving less than a living wage must live within cheerless walls.

And this, you know—

When their girl is lost, fathers and mothers are not consoled by the thought that, had their wage been greater they could have saved her from the colorless, gloomy home which made her the more easily believe the luring lies of an easier way to live.

"Better had she died," you cry.

True! But you will not defend the hovel and the wage.

You recall:

"The day-spring from on high hath visited us,

"To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet in the way of peace."

And so, when some misguided man says:

"Segregate a few women for the common good."

You answer:

"Who shall choose the victims?

"Since when did God give man the right to assign some to mansions in the skies and send others to lodgings in hell?"

You justly say:

"Have done with the lie that men being lower than beasts makes necessary the ruin of some women!"

Even should a creature, like the fabled Minotaur of Crete, more monster than man, appear, you will not talk of sacrificing girls for him.

Instead, you will lock up the brute.

Segregate him in a cell; that would be well.

The day has past for the making and selling of white slaves in our city.

God's pity for His children is opening your eyes and ears.

You will help your sister. Never again will you consent by silence to her destruction.

Heaven help the man who thinks you will.

You are awake.

"You believe in God."

SUFFRAGETTES ASSAIL ASQUITH AND CHURCHILL

Guards Save English Premier From Injury by "Young Hot Blood" Militants.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—King George and Queen Mary left just before noon for Aldershot to review the troops. Elaborate precautions were taken to guard the royal couple from suffragette violence. Troops, policemen and detectives surrounded the automobile.

LONDON, May 9.—Fresh suffragette outrages stirred England today. Members of the "Young Hot Blood" service of the Women's Social and Political Union burned Oaklea mansion, at Barrow, causing a $50,000 loss.

Other members of the union attempted to attack Premier and Mrs. Asquith and First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill and Mrs. Churchill as they were on their way to the Victoria Railway station today.

Mr. and Mrs. Asquith and Mr. and Mrs. Churchill were leaving on a journey to Venice, where they will embark upon the Admiralty yacht Enchantress for a cruise through the Mediterranean for inspection of British fortresses and navy depots.

Saved by Their Guards.

Only the fact that they had a heavy bodyguard of policemen, soldiers and private detectives saved them from injury at the hands of militant suffragettes.

Mrs. Flora Drummond, or "General" Drummond, as she is known because of her Amazonian qualities, who collapsed in Bow Street Court yesterday during the trial of the women arrested in the raid on headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union, was in a serious condition to-day. She had refused to eat for a week to spite the government and her health has become so badly deranged as a result that an operation may be necessary. She was removed to a nursing home this morning.

Love Wins New Ally.

Interesting sidelights on the organization of militants are being brought out at the trial of the militant leaders. Letters seized by the police include a number of passionate, burning love letters from a former Socialist member of Parliament. The letters show that he is infatuated with one of the leaders of the "wild women" and that he allied himself with the "cause" at her command.

Other documents show that the most dangerous branch of the union is called the "Service of Young Hot Bloods." No one but young unmarried women of high courage are admitted. These are some of the questions put to them before they are admitted into this branch of the union:

Are you willing to die a violent death to-day?

Are you afraid of dynamite or any other high explosive?

Will you swear to hunger strike if sent to jail?

Will you renounce the softer characteristics of womankind in favor of a great principle?

Are you healthy and strong and able to hold your own against a single policeman?

The arsonettes and the members of the dynamite squad are recruited from the "Y. H. B." service.

Suffragettes Deluge Mail Boxes With Paint.

ROMFORD, ENGLAND, May 9.—All the letter boxes in this city were filled with paint by suffragettes today and much valuable mail matter destroyed.

Wiley, 'Cow Center,' Loses Depot Fight

Wiley, the "natural center of the cow movement," and the most populous town of the vicinity, with twenty-three persons, loses its fight for an agency station on the Tallulah Falls Railroad.

By order of the Georgia Railroad Commission, Mathis is the victor. The Tallulah Falls Railroad has been instructed to build a station there and put an agent in charge.

Both towns are in Rabun County. They engaged in excited strife over the location of the station. Mathis built its plea on its natural beauty.

Wadsworth, president of the Rome and Gadsden Railroad, and other officials elected at a meeting of those interested in the company here last week, went to Rome, Ga., to-day to attend a meeting of the officers and directors. The company will be incorporated immediately and steps will be taken looking to financing the project.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 9.—Jibes from acquaintances over his defeat for the office of school commissioner drove Frank Kosmowski to suicide, according to a report submitted to Sheriff Becker by deputies to-day.

STERILIZATION OF INSANE IN GEORGIA URGED

Board Reports Conditions at the State Asylum Call for Many Reforms.

Striking new methods of handling patients in the Georgia State Sanitarium at Milledgeville are urged in the annual report of the board of directors, submitted to Governor Brown Friday. The most important recommendations are:

The enactment of a sterilization law, applying to certain classes of criminals and defectives, modeled after recently enacted laws of New Jersey and Indiana.

A ban on the commitment of epileptics (not insane), feebleminded children, harmless seniles and paralytics and persons escaping trial by pleas of lunacy. This is a hospital and not a prison.

The report declares that poor results have been obtained at the institution in the cure of insanity on account of the crowded conditions and the lack of facilities for segregating and treating the curable cases apart from the criminal and hopelessly insane. A psycophathic hospital is urged.

No Provision for Children.

"No provision is made in our State educational system for the care and treatment of feeble-minded children," states the report. "Most of them are capable of training that will aid in their happiness and fit them for some usefulness. Only the grosser types are committed to the State Sanitarium, while the great majority are allowed to grow up without care.

"Further commitment with the insane should be stopped and some adequate provision made by the State for these children."

The report criticises the present system of confining epileptics not insane in the sanitarium, pointing out that association with crazy persons tends to hopelessly depress them and also has a bad effect on the insane persons. A hospital for epileptics is recommended; and it is suggested that it should be named for T. O. Powell because of the great service he has rendered the State along such lines.

Negro Quarters Insanitary.

Alarming insanitary and overcrowded conditions in the negro building are reported and the need of $100,000 for an annex to this building is said to be imperative. To separate the acute insane from the hopelessly insane an appropriation of $135,000 is urged. For a nurses' home $40,000 is asked.

There are 3,429 patients in the institution, 1,108 having been admitted this year. The daily average during 1912 was 3,424, an increase of 41 over 1911. The annual average increase during the last five years has been 89. Of eleven criminals committed, three were found to be sane.

The average cost per patient last year was $153.06. The total income of the sanitarium was $530,000.

There is an exceedingly high death rate among the negro patients. Most of the deaths in the institution are from tuberculosis and pellagra, recent increases in pellagra deaths being reported as startling.

The report was submitted by John T. Brantly, president of the board.

Other recommendations for changes in the laws governing the institution are:

That the three nearest adult relatives can, with the consent of the Ordinary, waive the ten days' notice of trial for lunacy. This is to prevent victims being held in jail during the ten days.

Better Than Medicine

Breathe Hyomei and Be Rid of Catarrh—Clears Stopped-Up Head.

Nature has a remedy for catarrh and troubles of the breathing organs, a treatment that is far better than dosing the stomach with medicine.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicate the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing the catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the musous membrane.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the natural remedy, for it gives a curative bath to the air passages. It has a powerful healing and antiseptic effect similar to the air in the mountains where the forests give off the fragrant and healing balsams.

Hyomei has benefited so many sufferers of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucous, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing that it is sold under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. If the treatment does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense, while if it cures the cost is nominal. A complete Hyomei Outfit sells for only $1.00. Extra bottles of liquid if later needed 50 cents.

King Edward Speed 'Fiend,' Says Autoist

Late Monarch's Chauffeur Tells in a Book of His Ruler's Traits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Interesting traits in King Edward's character are revealed in the book, "What I Know," by C. W. Stamper, private automobile expert to the late monarch. It says: "The King liked speedy traveling, but insisted on careful driving through towns and villages. His walk was never leisurely. He was in and out of a motor car or a train in a moment.

"He spoke rapidly, ate very fast and smoked hard. Speed was the essence of his nature."

The King's chauffeur always was instructed by the equerry to observe the legal speed limit, but if the King complained, he was to increase the speed temporarily and gradually to slacken it again.

Church Learns Its Pastor Was Convict

Minister Who Disappeared From New Jersey Town Is Sought by the Police.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The disappearance of the Rev. John Solomon, after he had conducted Sunday evening services in the United Christian Church at Arlington, N. J., was explained yesterday when it became known that the police of Newark and Kearney were looking for him on behalf of the authorities of Elmira Reformatory. Solomon, it was said, had broken parole from that institution.

Since February Solomon has been acting as assistant pastor of the little Arlington church, and also as treasurer of the Jersey Home for Destitute Children and Homeless Women.

The boy had been playing with matches in the garret of the house and it is supposed that the fire started that way.

U. S. CHECKS TOLL OF TUBERCULOSIS

Death Rate Decreased From 174.5 to 139.7 Per 100,000 Population in Last Decade.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—That the death rate in the United States from tuberculosis during the decade ending in 1910 has diminished from 174.5 per 100,000 of population to 139.7 was the statement made here by Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman of Newark, in an address before the sociological section of the National association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis.

"In other words," said Dr. Hoffman, "nearly 200,000 lives were saved from 1909 to 1910, in the campaign against this disease."

Dr. Hoffman stated that the death rate in New York City, 289.1 in 1881, had declined to 180.1 in 1912. He made no mention of any so-called "cures."

Surgeon B. S. Warren, of the U. S. Public Health Service, affirmed that deaths of government employees from tuberculosis were much lower than that of other laborers in similar occupations, because of the superior sanitary conditions."

"About 50,000 new cases of tuberculosis are constantly drifting about the country for long periods without even consulting physicians," was the statement by Dr. Harry Lee Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode Island State Sanitarium.

House Tries Glover For Attack on Sims

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The House met an hour earlier than usual to-day to take up and act upon the case of Charles C. Glover, the millionaire bank president, whom a special House committee found guilty of contempt for assault upon Representative Sims, of Tennessee, in Farragut Square on April 18. The incident was the sequel of criticism made by Mr. Sims upon Mr. Glover in connection with real estate transactions in Washington.

A special committee of the House recommended that the Speaker issue a warrant for Mr. Glover's arrest to answer the contempt charge.

Loses Pants Seat, But Wins Election

Determined Candidate Does Not Let Accident Cost Him Vote He Goes After.

WINSTED, CONN., May 9.—Robert E. Maher, an officer of the Winsted Edge Tool Works and Republican candidate for Burgess in the town election, lost the seat of his trousers in getting a delinquent voter to the polls, but came out a victor.

A few minutes before the closing of the polls Maher was apprised that a certain elector had not exercised his rights. Jumping into an automobile he started in quest of the voter, whom he found at work atop of an ice house. Maher in coming down the ice run came in contact with nails which caught in his trousers seat, completely removing it.

He got to the polls on time with the voter, however.

FRANCE GASPS WHEN ALFONSO VAULTS FENCE

Democratic Behavior of Spanish King Startles Dignified Ministry in Dress Suits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—King Alfonso's state visit to France came to a close to-day with a remarkable aerial exhibition at the St. Cyr Aerodome. As the Spanish King and his official hosts looked on one aeroplane after another ascended until the sky seemed filled with them. Alfonso said it was one of the most inspiring sights he had ever seen.

One of the most interesting features of the Spanish monarch's visit has been his extreme democratic behavior. At Fontainebleau a gorgeous stand decorated with the royal colors of Spain had been erected in which Alfonso was to have sat while the troops were reviewed. The chair in which the King was to have sat was of bronze.

An Astonished Ministry.

President Poincare and the French Ministers, all solemn, obsequious and in dress suits, drew to one side to allow Alfonso to enter the pavilion. Instead of doing so, the King ran down to the railing, placed his hands upon it and vaulted over the rail like an athlete. Then he sat down on the grass and glued a pair of field glasses to his eyes while the Cabinet Ministers looked on in astonishment.

Shakes Hands With Aviators.

After the aviation meet Alfonso insisted on shaking hands with several aviators and mechanicians. His white gloves were black with oil and grease when he got through.

The French press believes that the visit has ben of great benefit to both France and Spain.

Before his departure for St. Cyr, Alfonso held a conference with Foreign Minister Pichon, at which the question of Spain entering the triple entente with France, Russia and England was discussed. It would then become the quadruple entente.

Danish Minister Is Courting Again

Washington Society Hears Engagement to Mrs. Townsend Is Renewed.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The engagement which friends insist existed between Mrs. Richard Townsend and M. Constantin Brun, the Danish Minister, last year, according to rumor current this week, has been renewed.

Several times while stationed in other countries M. Brun paid visits to Washington, many say to see the rich widow. When he was sent to Washington a year ago every one expected that Mrs. Townsend would soon take her place as chatelaine of the Legation.

CHATTANOOGA MAY NOT SEEK G. A. R. CONVENTION

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 9.—Although the time limit expires tomorrow, it is not known whether or not Chattanooga will invite the Grand Army of the Republic to meet here next fall. The railroads, it is understood, have failed to co-operate. A formal invitation, it is believed, can win the gathering.

THE PLAY THIS WEEK

FEATURE BILL AT FORSYTH.

There will be just four more performances of the Keith vaudeville acts that are at the Forsyth this week. One of the four will be to-day's matinee which is already heavily sold, another will be the Saturday matinee for which there is a large sale and the remaining performances are Friday and Saturday nights.

The headliner this week is Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, one of the most original ideas in modern vaudeville. The act is crowded with all of the Edwards new song hits. Another feature is pretty Belle Story, the entertaining vocalist. Miss Story possesses a remarkable voice. The comedy act of Williams, Thompson and Copeland is a scream. The whole bill pleases.

For next week the headline act will be Paul Dickey, the star football player of the University of Michigan, who will appear with a company of five people who will offer "The Come Back," a story founded on college life. Another star act will be the Apollo Trio, native Italians, who will pose as living bronze statues.

SOCIETY NIGHT AT THE ATLANTA.

Miss Billy Long and the members of her company have made a big hit this week in "The Girl From Out Yonder," which is at the Atlanta. To-night will be special Society Night in honor of Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison and a packed house is expected to greet the company. A 25 cent matinee will be played to-morrow and the present bill offered for the last time to-morrow night.

Next week the company will present, "Are You a Mason?" which is a roaring farce comedy. Owing to the demand for matinee seats an extra matinee has been added for Monday afternoon and in the future three matinees will be given each week. "Are You a Mason?" has a thousand laughs and its presentation will serve to introduce two new members of the company to the public—both highly experienced. Miss Harrison has an important role also.

NEWS ITEM—The Democratic majority of the Senate, in caucus, has made a determined attack on the seductive influence of golf and baseball. A promise was exacted from members that hereafter enough members will be present in the Senate to maintain a quorum.

More than an hour was spent one day in a futile effort to get enough Senators to transact business at an executive session.

MILLTOWN WILL FISH, REGARDLESS

Mayor Pafford Declares Georgia Laws Give Residents Right to Angle in Banks Pond.

Citizens of Milltown, Ga., deny that the town is in a state of excitement and that it will be necessary to call out troops to preserve order. Mayor William F. Pafford has issued a statement declaring Game Warden Boisclair became unduly alarmed.

Governor Brown has not considered sending troops to Berrien County. It is hardly likely he will.

Until the Legislature changes the law, Milltown sportsmen will continue to angle for the elusive trout in Banks' fishpond so long as they have permission from owners of the land on which the body of water is located, according to Mayor Pafford.

"Section 7 of the game law privileges a person to fish with permission from the owner of the land, which the 20 persons arrested had," he declared.

"The statement of State Game and Fish Commissioner Mercer that his wardens have been intimidated and that the local authorities are too much in sympathy with the lawless element to give any assistance is untrue," said Pafford.

Boisclair made 20 arrests of persons. He charges he was prevented from prosecuting the cases because the justices of the peace declared he would not convict any of the parties.

The whole matter hinges on a land dispute. The Banks estate claims to own all of the property on which the pond is located. Other property owners say a title to all of the property has never been vested with Banks.

COTTON MANUFACTURERS CONVENE IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, GA., May 9.—The annual convention of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia convened in Columbus to-day, with President F. B. Gordon, of this city, presiding. Among the speakers for the day were Stuart W. Cramer, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and D. W. Peabody, of Atlanta. Fuller Callaway, of LaGrange, banker and manufacturer, also was on the program.

New Georgia Road to Start Trains in June

Elberton and Eastman Will Open Rich Country to Connection With Seaboard Air Line.

Another railroad will be added to Georgia's imposing list in June, when the Elberton and Eastern Railway Company begins operation from Elberton through Cauthen, Fortsonia, Bell, Norman and Mallorysville to Tignall, a distance of 21.8 miles. It connects with the Seaboard at Elberton. Eventually, it may push on to Washington to connect with the Georgia Railroad.

The new line taps an agricultural district of some importance, which now has no railroad facilities. It has standard roadbed and equipment. It is capitalized at $300,000 in bonds and $200,000 in stock. W. O. Jones is president.

AIRSHIPS PREDICTED AS DEFENDERS OF THE CANAL

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—That aeroplanes are to be used extensively for defenses of the Panama Canal was the statement of Aviator Robert G. Fowler, who returned here to-day from Panama. He asserted that Colonel Goethals would ask Congress for an appropriation for aeroplanes and hydro-aeroplanes to be used in connection with the proposed fortifications.

ARREST CASHIER AS AN EMBEZZLER

Crossland Bank Official Accused of Misappropriating More Than $7,000.

MOULTRIE, GA., May 8.—J. H. Cason, charged with the embezzlement of more than $7,000 from the Bank of Crossland, was arrested today at Crossland and brought to Moultrie, where his bond was assessed at $2,000.

The bank has not resumed business and will likely liquidate.

It is alleged that Cason not only embezzled the bank's funds, but under various pretexts had stockholders of the institution indorse his notes at other banks for large sums. Cason was prominent in church circles and had the confidence of the people of Crossland.

Following the granting of a charter by Judge J. T. Pendleton Thursday afternoon, it is expected plans for the rebuilding of Oglethorpe University, Georgia's oldest educational institution, will be announced within a short time. It is generally understood that expenditures will total nearly $1,000,000.

The charter is for twenty years and stipulates that only members of the Presbyterian Church shall be members of the board of directors, and that each director shall make a donation of $1,000 to the college.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—In answer to Colonel George Harvey's charge, made at a dinner in New York of representatives from the trust companies of America, to the effect that Vice President Marshall's criticism of the wealthy acted as an "incitement to the predatory poor," the Vice President said to-day:

"If anybody will produce a public utterance of mine for the curtailment of accumulation or distribution of honest wealth except by a fair inheritance tax, I will go to Wall Street and personally apologize.

"In the course of a long professional career, however, I have asserted that the witness who had knowledge of fraud invariably got mad when he was interrogated as to the fraud."

The Vice President at first was inclined to take the matter as a joke. He said, however, that he wished to have the affair closed and to hear nothing more on the score of his misrepresented public utterances.

LEOPOLD'S WIDOW, DIVORCED, TO WED

Morganatic Wife of Belgian King, Freed From M. Durrieux, Accepts German Army Officer.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—Within less than 24 hours after she had obtained a divorce from her second husband, M. Durrieux, it was reported to-day that Baroness Vaughan would soon marry again.

Baroness Vaughan was the morganatic wife of King Leopold of Belgium, and bore him two sons. After Leopold's death she married M. Durrieux, but entered suit for divorce, alleging infidelity. A decree was granted in her favor yesterday.

Baroness Vaughan began life as a washerwoman, but her beauty attracted the eye of the aged Belgian King, who took her under his protection and showered wealth upon her.

Her next husband, it is said, will be a German army officer.

Crosses the Atlantic To See a Ball Game

Relative of Pierpont Morgan Says He Is Going Right Back to Paris.

NEW YORK, May 9.—A passenger came over on the Kronprinzessin Cecile to see one good American ball game. He is G. D. Morgan, an American who lives in Paris, and says he is a relative of J. Pierpont Morgan.

"I want to see just one good old baseball game and then I am going right back," said Mr. Morgan.

What Ails You?

An invitation is extended by Doctor Pierce to every sick and ailing man or woman to consult the Faculty of the Invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, N. Y., by letter. Write your symptoms fully and frankly, and every letter will be carefully considered, fully answered and its statements held as strictly private and sacredly confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

makes for rich, pure blood and thus invigorates the system. For a torpid liver and its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue with bitter taste, loss of appetite with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good.

Effective Home Remedy For Lung Trouble

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benefited, but few can safely return. Eckman's Alterative is effective for home treatment. For example:

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed my regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I can not praise Eckman's Alterative too highly. I have recommended it with excellent results."

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' drug stores and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

Mixed With Sulphur Makes Hair Soft, Lustrous and Cures Dandruff.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's," which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair, and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says his customers insist on Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur because, they say, it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant. Elkin Drug Co., special agents.

BOYS AND GIRLS IN PONY CONTEST HAVE MANY VOTES

Names and Standing of Entrants Are Announced---No One Will Have a 'Walkaway' in Race for Beautiful Prizes---Totals Will Leap Upward.

Here are the boys and girls who have entered in The Georgian and Sunday American's contest for the twelve pony outfits.

There is a goodly number of them. Evidently no one is to have a "walkaway." Good, hustling, bright boys and girls they are, with plenty of friends to help them, and all filled with a determination to win.

Of course the figures presented now mean very little. Many of the contestants simply have been nominated. Some others have piled up a good start.

But watch the votes grow!

The totals will leap up by thousands as the days go by.

It's not too late to get your name in the list, but it would be well not to delay. Some of these contestants may have something "up their sleeves." You can't tell. It's time to get busy.

SHERIFF OF DOOLY DIES FROM BLOW'S BULLETS

VIENNA, GA., May 9.—Sheriff C. I. Bennett, of Dooly County, died early to-day from pistol wounds received Wednesday when he attempted to arrest Oscar Blow for killing P. P. Sangster, a prominent farmer.

Bennett's body was buried here to-day.

Judge W. F. George, of the Superior Court of Dooly County, has adjourned the session until August because of the Sheriff's death.

EPISCOPAL CLERGY FOR BAN ON 'UNFIT' WEDDING

NEW YORK, May 9.—A rule requiring health certificates for marriage is under consideration by the Episcopal clergy of New York, according to a statement issued to-day by the social service commission of the diocese of New York. The commission, the report states, had already made a preliminary investigation and found six out of every seven clergymen in favor of the plan.

Wool Trade Waits On Tariff Action

Sales Larger Than Last Week, but Heavy Lots Are Moved Only by Cutting Prices.

BOSTON, May 9.—While rather more wool has changed hands the past week, manufacturers have bought only for piecing out purposes. Both dealers and manufacturers continue waiting for a settlement of the tariff uncertainty. The aggregate of sales is swelled by an occasional sizable transfer at a sacrifice. In this way, some very low prices have recently been made, there being apparently no bottom to the market.

Probably the worst feature at present is the uncertainty. If the traders were assured that the Underwood bill would surely be passed by both Houses substantially in its present form, they could buy the new clip wools with reasonable safety.

Receipts in pounds for the week-end and including Wednesday were as follows:

ALABAMA U. S. ATTORNEY TO PROSECUTE COL. HUFF

MACON, GA., May 9.—Oliver Street, United States District Attorney for the Northern District of Alabama, has been assigned by Attorney General McReynolds to conduct the prosecution of Colonel W. A. Huff, charged with contempt of court, District Attorney Alex Akerman being relieved at his own request. The case will be heard on May 19, with Judge W. I. Grubb, of Birmingham, presiding in place of Judge Emory Speer, before and against whom the contempt is alleged to have been committed.

PANIC IN DINER AS WAITER SHOOTS COOK

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 9.—As a Pennsylvania Railroad train bound for St. Louis pulled out of the North Philadelphia station last night, passengers in the dining car were thrown into a panic when Vaudergrift Thomas, a waiter, shot John E. Dyer, the cook attached to the car.

Two shots were fired, and one took effect in Dyer's leg.

Minister Goes From Pulpit to Theater

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The Rev. Henry W. Lambert, of the Thirty-fourth Street Baptist Church in this city, has resigned his pulpit in order that he may direct the production of his first play in New York next fall. Dr. Lambert has written "For Love of Her," a moral play, which has been accepted.

Dr. Lambert says that he was spurred on in his playwriting by the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, the Presbyterian evangelist. In one of his sermons on the stage Dr. Chapman said if any playwright could write a play that had not one improper thought, word or action, then he would be conferring a favor on the human race.

TWO CAROLINA BANKERS SENT TO ATLANTA PRISON

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 9.—Judge J. E. Boyd, sitting in United States District Court, has given notice that on Tuesday he will order Major W. E. Breese and J. E. Dickerson into custody of the United States Marshal to serve sentences of two years in the Atlanta Penitentiary for complicity in the failure of the First National Bank fifteen years ago.

District Attorney Holton asked that the men be ordered in custody at once, but attorneys for the defendants got an extension on account of the illness of Major Breese.

'SONNY' COLLINS' SLAYER GETS 18 MONTHS IN PRISON

AUGUSTA, GA., May 9.—Marshall Shedd this afternoon was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter by a jury in Richmond Superior Court. He was sentenced to serve six months in jail and one year on the chaingang. Shedd, a Georgia Railroad engineer, shot and killed Edward ("Sonny") Collins, a former Augusta politician.

Declares Women on Cars Are Brainless

BOSTON, May 9.—That woman are "brainless" as far as riding on the street car goes, was the declaration of Edmund Trowbridge Dana, grandson of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, social economic investigator, Harvard student and retired street car conductor, in an address before the Boston School of Social Science. He said:

"When it comes to riding on street cars women are the stupidest things imaginable. When you are trying to make up time they are always in the majority and always blundering. Why, they don't seem to have any brains at all."

ITALIANS AID IN STAMPING OUT CRIMINAL ELEMENT

NEW YORK, May 9.—Prominent Italians of this city are banding together to aid the police in stamping out the criminal element among their countrymen. They are already at work searching for Oresto Shillitoni, an Italian suspected of the murder of two policemen last Saturday night.

At their own expense, it is said, they have employed a former member of the police department who has the reputation of knowing more about criminal Italians than any detective in this city.

HEROINE FAINTS, VILLAIN SHOOTS SELF, SHOW ENDS

Straw Hats Due at Harvard Saturday

Student Council Opens the Season Two Weeks Earlier This Year.

BOSTON, May 9.—The closed season on straw hats at Harvard will expire Saturday.

This was the official pronouncement to-day of the student council which, taking upon itself the function of arbiter of fashion, declared proper the wearing of the straw two weeks earlier than custom has before decreed.

The terraces of the stadium are expected to bloom with Panamas and common straws to-morrow when the athletic meet between Cornell and Harvard will be held.

POSSE, EXHAUSTED, QUITS SEARCH FOR DESPERADO

SAVANNAH, GA., May 9.—Men and dogs completely exhausted, the chase for Richard Henry Austin, the South Carolina desperado, was abandoned in Screven County last night. Austin crippled one of the dogs and took refuge in the swamps near Newington, where it was impossible for the searchers to reach him.

STATE BOARD IS PROPOSED FOR TAX EQUALIZING

Clarke County Representative to Push Bill in Legislature. Wide Demand for It.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Representative Frank A. Lipscomb of Clarke County will introduce early in the forthcoming session of the Legislature a bill providing for the creation of a State Board of Tax Equalizers.

The necessity for such a board has been discussed favorably by the press of the State time and again, but so far no serious effort has been made to frame the suggestion into a workable law.

Mr. Lipscomb has made a study of tax conditions in Georgia, however, and has reached the conclusion that the only practical and equitable method of increasing the revenue of the State, without elevating the tax rate, dwells within the creation of a tax equalizing board.

The bill, it is understood, already has been prepared by Mr. Lipscomb, but before it is offered it will be passed upon by one of the most eminent authorities on statutory and constitutional law within the State, and such changes, if any, as he may suggest likely will be made in the measure before it is presented.

Mr. Lipscomb is a new member of the Legislature. He is a young man, around 35, and has had some experience in legislative and administrative work on the City Council of Athens, of which he was three times elected a member, but his forthcoming term in the House of Representatives will be his first service in the broader field of State politics.

He is one of Athens' leading business men, a scion of an old and distinguished Georgia family, an extremely likeable sort of person, and is sure to take a high stand in the Legislature from the day he is given the oath of a Representative.

Mr. Lipscomb has other important legislative proposals to submit to the General Assembly in due course of time, but his bill to create a Board of Tax Equalizers will be his pet project, and the one he is most deeply interested in.

There is no doubt whatever that the bill will receive hearty and strong support from many members of influence, and the prospect of the bill becoming a law generally is looked upon as exceedingly bright.

Former Sheriff of McDuffie County, the Honorable "Shade" Hawes, one of the leading citizens of Thomas E. Watson's well-known town of Thomson, is, and for several days has been, a visitor in Atlanta's delighted midst.

Mr. Hawes is credited with being one of the very shrewdest political observers in the State, and moves hither and yon in most mysterious way his wonders to perform. He has an idea, however—really, it is an obsession—that his home town of Thomson is possessed of more automobiles than any other town of its size in the world. He claims that there are 56 machines in Thomson, notwithstanding the fact that it has been disputed there is room enough in Thomson for even one-half so many.

One irreverent person asked the Sheriff if it was true that they had to run the sewerage system in Thomson straight up in the air to keep it inside the corporate limits—but the Sheriff disdained pointedly to comment upon that.

In charging a Floyd County Grand Jury, Judge Moses Wright recently expressed an opinion that should prove of widespread interest in Georgia.

In giving his interpretation of the present prohibition law, the jurist declared that it "is illegal for one person to order liquor for another."

The Rome Judge bases his opinion upon that section of the Code which says that it shall be illegal to "contract to sell, take orders for or solicit personally or by agent."

As a result of his charge, a rigid investigation of Rome's two locker clubs is under way.

All the Georgia newspapers and all the Georgia politicians are congratulating Editor Dick Grubb and renewing their good wishes to him that The Darien Gazette has achieved its fortieth birthday, and is as bright and snappy to-day as when it was a mere journalistic kiddo.

"Old Dick" Grubb has been a laborer in the newspaper vineyard many moons, and is generally beloved throughout the State. For years his weekly column of paragraphic comment upon men and things in Georgia—rarely other than kindly and sunny tempered—has been looked forward to by many.

Everybody will wish The Darien Gazette many happy returns of the day, and its editor many years of usefulness yet to come.

Representative-elect W. H. Connor, of Spalding County, will introduce two interesting local bills in the General Assembly soon after it convenes.

The first is one to provide for the election of the Griffin City Education Board by the people, rather than by the Council, as has been the custom in the past, and the other is to amend the charter of Griffin so that ward primaries will be abolished and the old plan of general elections be returned.

Four years ago the Legislature changed the charter, at the request of Council, providing for ward primaries; but the system has not proved satisfactory to a great portion of the voters. It is desired by citizens that a voter be allowed to cast his ballot for Aldermen, regardless of which ward he may reside in.

This local legislation in Griffin will be interesting to many cities in Georgia that have operated for a good many years under the very same disadvantages that Griffin is undertaking to get away from, and it may be that Representative Connor's bill will suggest many another of a similar sort from other cities in the State.

Representative William H. Burwell, of Hancock County, is spending a few days in Atlanta. While here he conferred with several of his friends about his speakership race. He feels assured of election on the first ballot.

White City Park Now Open

Attention! Now It's Sandals for Girls Of That Gay Paree!

The old Greek fashion of dressing, including draped skirts and waists, long ago was taken up by the women of Paris and from there carried around the globe, has now reached the feet.

For to-day the elite of the French women, who set the fashion for that city of pretty and vivacious women are wearing sandals!

The high heel shoe and the oft painful by bent arch, has now been "given the hook." In their place has been selected the old-fashioned sandal, and it looks as if it had come to stay.

In fact, so complete has been the change of fashion in this respect that several of the famous Parisian stores, which cater particularly to the fashionable class, have put in a great stock of sandals.

Along the boulevards, women are seen parading at all hours, wearing sandals fastened to their feet by prettily colored ribbon in a band around their ankles.

Adherents of the new style declare it of great benefit to the health of the person wearing them.

Suppleness and flexibility, modistes argue, are the feature of women's dress of the present day.

Nature's Banner of 'Votes for Women'

Mrs. Torbet Will Raise Nothing but Flowers of Yellow Hue in Her Garden.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Nature is the latest ally to be lined up under the banner of "Votes for Women" and the suffragist garden is the means by which it has been secured for the cause. Mrs. Lewis K. Torbet announced her plans for the brand new publicity method.

"I intend to have my entire garden at my summer home remodeled and install nothing but flowers of a yellow hue, the color of the American suffragists," she said.

"I will have marigolds, daisies, roses, sunflowers, Japanese gold illies, chrysanthemums, buttercups and every yellow flower that will grow and wave for the cause of women's suffrage.

"But I won't have anything with the English militant suffragist colors—violet and green."

ANY FRIEND CAN NOMINATE YOU IN BIG CONTEST

Strong Lead Will be Gained Over Your Rivals by Entering Competition Early.

Anyone can nominate a contestant for the pony outfits which the Georgian and American will give away as prizes.

This has been explained before, but many people still ask, so it may be well to state it again.

All that is necessary is to send in a nomination blank. Parents, uncles, aunts, friends, or even the contestant may make the nomination, and the result is the same—the name is listed, and 1,000 votes are credited to the name.

The call for books, used to make a record of subscriptions and votes and to furnish a receipt to the subscribers, shows that all are making an early start. One employee of the Georgian and American finds the distribution of these books to callers takes a good deal of his time.

So the contest is well under way.

The ponies, too, are here. The best ponies in the Tennessee bluegrass section—twelve of them—have been purchased by an expert delegated to the task by the Georgian and American.

Early Start Counts.

Remember that an early start counts for much. A big lead over your friends and acquaintances before they are approached by the other boys and girls.

Wouldn't you be disappointed to have your best friend say:

"Why, I've subscribed to the Georgian and American for a year and have given the subscription to George. I would have been glad to help you, but I didn't know you were in the race, and George asked me first."

Think what a disappointment that would be.

The only way to avoid such disconcerting replies is to be the early bird yourself.

An early start, too, gives you experience of a useful sort ahead of the other contestants, and the result will be that when you have become an adept at securing subscriptions, your rivals will be floundering around for a start.

So, by all means, if you have not entered the race for one of the twelve pony outfits by now, send in your nomination blank right away. If you have entered, be sure to get the necessary book at once, and get busy.

Some, you will find, already have piled up an excellent total for a beginning.

And are you clipping the daily coupons in the Georgian and the Sunday American? And are your friends saving theirs for you? They count up rapidly if you can get several friends to help.

G.O.P. RESENTS BULL MOOSER'S REUNION MOVE

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Old line Republicans to-day expressed in strong terms their antagonism to the independent action of Senator Cummins of Iowa and other members of the progressive wing of that party in calling a conference in Chicago to-morrow. They declined to approve the plan and declared that the Cummins contingent was laying the party open to another split.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, minority leader of the Senate, said:

"I think the Cummins conference is premature, and when the time comes to recognize the Republican party I shall certainly follow the men who made the party rather than those who helped to wreck it."

Senator Smoot of Utah declared "that neither Senator Cummins nor any other Progressive can reorganize the Republican party."

Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin was of the opinion that the Cummins conference presaged another party split. "They wrecked the party," he said bitterly, "and now they are trying to damn it."

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania said that it would be better to postpone the Cummins conference now and to hold it later under the regular Republican banner.

Buyer of Eggs Must Declare Intentions

That Is, If He Wants to Complain at the Failure of Table Variety to Hatch.

CEDAR GROVE, N. J., May 9.—The Cedar Grove Board of Poultry Trade has handed down a decision of interest to poultrymen all over America.

Squire Hoke Baldwin has been selling White Orpington eggs at 25 cents a dozen for table use and at $2 for thirteen for setting purposes. Archibald Griswold bought some eggs from ing to New York. Instead he set the eggs. They did not hatch and he brought the matter to the attention of the Board of Poultry Trade.

The board found that Baldwin had dipped the eggs in hot water before delivering them, rendering them infertile. The board decided that between January 7 and July 1 the purchaser must declare truthfully for what purpose he wants eggs when buying them.

TOMBOY GAMES BEST FOR GIRLS, EXPERT CLAIMS

Recreation Congress Speaker Declares Vigorous Games Are Character Developers.

RICHMOND, VA., May 9.—Too much distinction is made between boys and girls, in their play, their work and their educational training. This was the text of an address by Mrs. Charles T. Weller, of Lawrence, Kansas, at the morning session of the Recreation Congress.

"Many people begin, in his babyhood, to train the boy away from the gentler side of life by taking away his doll. Later they teach him that certain home duties belong to the girl; and since the boy's work—such as cutting wood and drawing water—no longer has a place in the city household, he grows up without sense of responsibility and devotion toward his own home when he has one.

"The girl, on the other hand, is constantly repressed and, because her faults are not dramatic like those of her brother, her elders fail to realize that she needs broad training to free her from the narrowness and pettiness of women, which has been the jest of the ages.

"Vigorous sports, especially games, are found to develop just those characteristics in which women are lacking.

"Let the girls play hard sometimes and forget themselves. Quieter sport—music, literature, art—have their very important place for the girl; and quite as much for the boy. For with this all-round training each may be gentle and each may be strong when occasion demands it; and together they may round out a fuller, more wholesome life for the race.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Repairing of Dolls Quite a Business.

"Dolls Repaired Quickly and Cheaply."

That sign prominently displayed at a point on Peachtree Street, by which thousands of people pass daily, is one likely to attract the attention of little folks—girls, of course—whose dollies are in need of such necessaries as eyes, hair, hands and feet.

"You'd be surprised," said the old gentleman who answers when anyone makes inquiry concerning the sign, "the number of dolls that we repair every day. My whole family is engaged in the business. It is a queer thing about child nature, but girls—the little ones, you know—become so attached to their dolls that when they wear out the children are almost inconsolable. They like a new doll, of course, but nothing can take the place of the old one in their childish affections. That's where our business comes in. We take the old doll, put new feet and hands on it, insert an eye if one is needed and, in fact, fix Miss Dollie up so that she looks like a new one. But to its little 'mother' it is still the same old Polly Hopkins, or Susan or Mary, as the case may be. It really does my heart good to see the little folks when their mothers bring them to my place to get the rejuvenated dollie. They go into raptures over the made-over toy, and their outbursts are evidences of genuine affection. 'Mother-love,' I suppose you newspaper fellows call it."

How Window Dressers Keep Track of Pins.

"I'll bet," said one of two men who had paused before the display window of a Whitehall Street department store while the window dresser was at work "that it was a woman who invented the thing that chap has fastened to his left arm."

His attention having been called to it, the other man took a squint at the object. It was a pincushion about three inches square fastened to a wide elastic band—like a garter—which was passed around the arm just above the elbow. The cushion was filled with all sorts of pins—small ones and large ones; some plain and some black.

As he worked, arranging pieces of cloth here and there to give the desired fold effect, the dresser had occasion to use countless pins. They were always right at his hand.

"When I was a young man," remarked one of the onlookers, "I used to dress windows and I carried a mouthful of pins all the time. The danger of swallowing them, however, was great, and I never cared much for the job. This fellow has the problem solved, but if he's married, I'll bet his wife invented it. No mere man would ever think of that pincushion affair."

The Story of Two Boys And What They Have Done.

"I was reading in The Georgian the other day," said the doctor, "when my attention was attracted by an article concerning some bequests made to education by Mrs. G. P. Dodd. Instantly I remembered two young fellows who used to live in Atlanta and with whom I attended the Boys' High School. They were Phil and Earl Ackerman, sons of Mrs. Fannie Ackerman, who was a sister of Mrs. Dodd, and to whom Mrs. Dodd left a bequest. The Ackerman boys lived with their uncle on Whitehall Street between Cooper and Windsor. Both were real geniuses, and both were enamored of the stage—not as actors, mind you, but as managers and producers. In the basement of the Dodd home they had fitted up a scenic studio and there in 1891 they built the scenery for 'Xonia, or the Fairy Queen,' a spectacular play which they presented at Concordia Hall, then on Marietta Street.

"The cast was made up of local young folks and the play was put on in admirable style. There was no end of trick scenery, all designed, built and painted by the Ackerman boys. Phil played the part of an Irishman, Earl was a 'demon' and the part of a clown was played by Cliff Saul, brother of Milt Saul, who is publicity manager for the Georgia Railway and Power Company. Another member of the company was Henry Franklin, now a staid Atlanta business man, an officer of a big hardware concern. Artistically, 'Xonia' was a success. I am not certain about its financial success.

"Soon after this Mrs. Ackerman and her sons removed to New York, and the boys evidently kept in touch with things theatrical, because 'Bob' Goodman, another Atlanta boy who has risen to heights in stage affairs, told me not long ago that Phil and Earl Ackerman are the owners of one of the largest scenic studios in Brooklyn."

Debtors File Petition Against Owners of Building at Linden Avenue and Peachtree.

Work on the concrete building at Linden and Peachtree Streets was halted to-day, as a result of a petition filed Thursday afternoon by the Mackle-Crawford Company.

The petition asked that the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company and Mrs. Mary Potts be enjoined from doing further construction work on the building, pending payment of $4,483 which the Mackle-Crawford Company claims is due it for concrete framework of the building.

The petition maintained that further work on the building would conceal the work done by the company and render proof difficult.

POLICEMAN DENIES WOMEN'S CHARGES

Kirk Declares Statement That He Made Raided House His Headquarters Is False.

Policeman James Kirk, a member of Chief Beavers' "vice squad," Friday morning emphatically denied the charges of improper conduct made against him by Mrs. N. P. Powell, Mrs. Lena Bernard and Mrs. John Bryant, whom Kirk, with a squad of police, arrested last week on a charge of running a disorderly house at 95 Spring Street.

"The charges have no foundation," he said. "I went to Mrs. Powell and her husband, and told them if they didn't get rid of the women they had staying there and shut up their place, we would arrest them. Both the woman and Powell told me they would make the women leave and quit running the kind of a house that Chief Beavers has ordered out of the city. We watched the place for several nights, and saw from five to fifteen men going in and out of the place every night.

"When we saw that they continued to run the house we raided them. There were four men there at the time, but they escaped by jumping out of the windows. The women have been held to the Grand Jury.

"The statement that I made the place my headquarters is a falsehood, pure and simple. Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Bernard and Mrs. Bryant are known to the police. They have been arrested numerous times."

The hearing of the injunction which Mrs. Powell, through her attorneys, Gober & Jackson, got from Judge Bell to restrain the police from evicting her, will be held Saturday morning.

MRS. G. B. PRUITT.

Very few people go through life without some time or other being troubled with constipation. Thousands injure themselves by the use of strong cathartics, salt mineral waters, pills and similar things. They have temporary value in some cases, it is true, but the good effect is soon lost, and the more one takes of them the less effective they become.

A physic or purgative is seldom necessary, and much better and more permanent results can be obtained by using a scientific remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It does not hide behind a high sounding name, but is what it is represented to be, a mild laxative medicine. It is so mild that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is so compounded, and contains such definite ingredients that it will have equally good effect when used by a person suffering from the worst chronic constipation. In fact, among the greatest indorsers of Syrup Pepsin are elderly people who have suffered for years and found nothing to benefit them until they took Syrup Pepsin.

It is a fact that millions of families have Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, homes like those of Mrs. G. B. Pruitt, Berea, Ky., who used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as a laxative tonic. Mrs. Pruitt writes that it so strengthened and cleansed her system that she was quickly relieved of a severe cough which had troubled her for months. The special value of this grand laxative tonic is that it is suited to the needs of every member of the family. It is pleasant tasting, mild and non-griping. Unlike harsh physics, it works gradually and in a very brief time the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to do their work naturally again, when all medicines can be dispensed with.

You can obtain a bottle at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is usually bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

A large plateau of pink roses formed the centerpiece, and tall silver vases at either end of the table held the same flowers. Silver dishes of pink and white bonbons were tied with butterfly bows of pink tulle, and festoons of smilax adorned the table. Shoots at Cat, but Hits Wife; Kills Dog

Woman Turns Corner Just in Time to Get Shot Intended for Feline Chicken Thief.

BELLEFONTAINE, OHIO, May 9. William Newland, of Russylvania, lying in wait with a shotgun for the cat that had been killing his chickens, shot his wife.

Mrs. Newland had been to a neighbor's and was turning the corner of an alley when her husband fired, ten of the shot striking her, peppering her body from her face to her feet. It is not thought she is fatally hurt. The cat escaped, but a dog was shot.

45 YEARS ARE CUT FROM TERM OF PRISON FIRE HERO

LEAVENWORTH, KANS., May 9.—As a reward for heroism during the recent fire in the State Prison at Lansing, Kans., the 60-year sentence of Dennis Jackson, a Pottawattomie Indian, will be reduced to fifteen years. He already has served twelve. He slew his wife and her mother.

AMERICANS ROUT MEXICAN RAIDERS

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Tired of being raided and despoiled by every passing band of brigands, the little American colony at San Dieguito, Mexico, recently took to the warpath.

When a band of fourteen outlaws swooped down upon the colony, ten colonists, reinforced by five Mexican Federal soldiers, pursued and defeated the looters and recovered a number of stolen horses.

Huerta Explains His Attitude Toward U. S.

MEXICO CITY, May 9.—President Victriano Huerta, during the conference yesterday with Henry Lane Wilson, the American Ambassador, stated very clearly the position of Mexico in relation to the United States.

He said in part:

"Mexico is disposed to arrange without friction the affairs pending between it and the Government of the United States.

"However, for the time being the American Ambassador should understand the necessity which the Government of Mexico has for abstaining transmitting any official matter, with the exception of urgent affairs or ordinary procedure, for the simple reason that while the Government of the United States did not recognize the Government of Mexico all arrangements would be ineffective in view of the fact that the Government of Mexico has no personality before the Government of the United States.

"The Government of Mexico, whether recognized or not by the United States, has adopted and will always adopt measures for the security of all the inhabitants of the country, whether native or foreigners, and this has been demonstrated by the attention given to the just petitions of those who have been in any manner injured by past revolutions.

"The United States and all the people of Europe have irrefutable proofs that the Government of Mexico is especially pledged to give guarantees to everybody without distinction of nationality."

IMPROVED DISTRIBUTION IN POSTOFFICE PLANNED

FAVOR EIGHT-HOUR DAY FOR GIRL WORKERS IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Senate District Committee to-day ordered a favorable report of the La-Follette bill fixing eight hours a day as the maximum labor limit for women and girls in the District of Columbia. The measure failed of passage last Congress.

Employs Poetry to Define Tariff Stand

Ohio Statesman Mounts Pegasus to Declare Lower Cost of Living Promises Are Vain.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The muse struck her lyre in the House again to-day, when Representative Simeon D. Fess of Yellow Springs, O., closed a sarcastic speech on the tariff bill with some verses on "The Things We Buy and Those We Sell." Here they are:

I ain't no statesman who can talk of protection or free trade;
My han's too stiff to hol' a pen—that was made to hol' a spade;
Them ten-foot, eddicated words my tongue can't wallop roun',
But I'll make things you sell go up, an' things you buy come down.

I can't talk on the currency, nor on the revenue,
An' on the laws an' statoots I'm as ignorant as you;
An' I jest simply promise you, sure's I am Silas Brown,
I'll make things you sell go up, an' things you buy come down.

The fair ground echoed wide with cheers and loud huzzas thereat,
For who can make a better scheme of statesmanship than that?
An' next week at the polls he beat his rival high and dry—
But things we sell continue low, and things we buy are high.

Under the old tariff no duty was levied on uncut or "rough" diamonds. Only 10 per cent duty was paid on cut or polished diamonds.

The Democratic caucus has but just recently recommended a 20 per cent duty on polished diamonds and 10 per cent on the rough. This new rate will no doubt become effective within the next two or three months.

In addition to this, the big diamond syndicate has raised prices to the cutters since January $15 to $30 per carat.

This means an advance in the retail market within the next four to six months ranging from $15 to $60 a carat—according to grades and sizes.

Buy a diamond now on attractive monthly payments and save the advance. Our booklet, "Facts About Diamonds," quotes lowest net prices and gives full particulars regarding our liberal plans.

REVIVAL SMOOTHS TABERNACLE ROW

Members Who Resigned, Back in Fold; Will Help Call Pastor Wednesday.

The dove of peace has found lodging in the Baptist Tabernacle; all differences have been settled and members who withdrew several weeks ago are back in the fold. The church is ready to call another pastor. The call will be extended at a meeting Wednesday night.

The weeks of spiritual meetings have proven the cure for differences. Dr. Joseph Broughton, brother of the noted founder of the Tabernacle, the Rev. Len G. Broughton, and one of the most prominent members to withdraw, is back. He has been elected associate superintendent of the Sunday school. The other two men who created a sensation by their withdrawal are Clayton Callaway and Harry A. Etheridge. Both have returned and are on the committee to nominate a pastor.

Other members of the committee are A. C. Boatman, chairman; Dr. William T. Jones and J. W. Awtrey. C. W. Hatcher, chairman of the board of deacons, is an ex-officio member.

"We are really just getting into shape to call a pastor," said C. W. Hatcher to a Georgian reporter Friday. "We have disposed of the infirmary and our finances are in good shape."

Year in Prison for Four Ex-Inspectors

New York Policemen, Caught in Graft Campaign, Also Fined $500—Will Not Appeal.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Dennis Sweeney, John J. Murtha, James F. Thompson and James E. Hussey, the four former police inspectors found guilty of obstructing justice in keeping George A. Sipp, a Commonwealth's witness in the police graft cases, out of this State, were sentenced to-day to one year each and fined $500. This was the maximum punishment under the law.

It was understood that they agreed to take the punishment without appealing, in consideration of which the district attorney agreed to drop extortion and bribery indictments.

GEORGIA PREACHER JAILED.

JESUP, GA., May 9.—John Arnold, an itinerant preacher, is in jail here to-day, charged with mistreating a 5-year-old white girl. Arnold is 45 years old. He is a native of Marion, S. C.

Ohio Judge Assails Home Rule Decision

Justice Wanamaker Asserts Cities Have Right to Ignore State and Establish Movie Shows.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 9.—Judge R. M. Wanamaker to-day delivered an opinion in which he strongly dissented from the majority opinion by the Ohio Supreme Court early this week in the Toledo case, when it held that the home rule provision of the new constitution is not self-executing and that municipalities must either adopt charters or secure legislation from the General Assembly before they may exercise the increased powers the constitutional amendment gives them.

The court held that municipalities may not maintain motion picture shows, because "they are not a proper function of government," while Judge Wanamaker declares the people have this right.

A Happy Child In a Few Hours

Mother! look at the tongue! see if it is coated. If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and clogged up waste and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours the foul, decaying constipated matter, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well and smiling child shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it can not be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

City Sells Its Bonds Over the Counter

Philadelphia's Experiment Proves Greater Success Than Mayor Expected.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The city has withdrawn from public sale the issue of municipal bonds that have been offered over the counter. The total amount taken by individuals was $4,002,000, or $500,000 more than Mayor Blankenburg wanted offered for sale at 4 per cent.

The last day's sales amounted to $209,000; and it was one of the most motley gatherings ever attending the office of the City Treasurer.

One old man brought his savings that he had hoarded in an old stocking, fearing to trust the banks. An elderly woman brougat $1,000 in ten and twenty dollar gold pieces of the early '80 coinage that had never been in a bank.

PREP LEAGUERS WILL CLASH AT MARIST TO-DAY

THE annual Atlanta Prep Athletic meet will be held Friday afternoon at Marist field. Only three schools are entered in this event, but the athletics that are entered are all well trained and some lively events will be seen. Everything about the field is in readiness. An eight-lap track has been laid off and a hundred yard straight-away. The lanes are all laid for the dashes and hurdles have been procured also.

The hundred-yard dash promises to be the real thriller of the meet as never before in a local contest have there been so many evenly matched men entered in this event. There are Allen, and Lewis, of Marist; Sifford of G. M. A.; Bedell and Parks, of Tech High. Every one of these lads have made the century in less than 11 seconds and Allen has a record of 10:3-5 seconds. Owing to this mark the odds are slightly in favor of Allen, but if he does win it will be by a scant few inches.

There will be plenty of competition in every event with the possible exception of the hammer throw. Fowler, of Marist, seems to be in a class by himself in this event. He has thrown the iron ball over 100 feet in practice, which is better than any other man in the league can do.

The entries are all in and Joe Bean, who is staging the meet, has announced that nearly fifty athletes will compete. Many of them will start in two, three, and even four events. Bill Bedell, of Tech High looks good for the highest individual point winner. He has all kinds of grit and endurance, and in the meet between Tech High and Boys High he won three firsts and a second place which made his total 17 points.

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is the boy that will no doubt give Bedell the most trouble.

The meet will start at 2:30 p. m.

Prep League
News and Notes.

The decision of the Boys High athletes not to enter the Prep meet Friday throws them out of high school circles for the rest of the season. Since they have taken the matter into their own hands and decided not to represent their school they will be regarded as an independent team and will have to appear as such in the rest of their meets this season.

A new Prep record for the hammer throw will very likely be hung up in the meet Friday by Fowler, of Marist. Fowler has had little trouble hurling the 12-pound hammer 100 feet in practice.

* * *

A tennis tournament is being arranged between the winners of the Boys High contests and the winners of the tournament now being held at East Lake by the students of Peacock.

* * *

The tournament will be held on the courts at East Lake some time the latter part of this month and should prove an interesting match as both schools are well represented in this line of sport.

The officials have announced that the track meet at Marist Friday will start at 3 p. m. This seems pretty late to start such an affair as the meet will probably run about four hours. The meet between Tech and Boys High schools started at 1:30 and was not over until 6 o'clock.

* * *

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is leading the Prep League batters with .467. Armistead and Spurlock, of Boys' High, are close on his heels. Parks, of Tech High, is fourth, and Bedell, of Tech High, is fifth.

Sifford and Babb will probably be G. M. A.'s two biggest point-getters in the meet Friday. Sifford made a lot of points in the field day exercises at G. M. A. March 31. Brown and Solano are two other pretty good athletes, especially in the sprints.

* * *

Callahan, of Marist, threw just ten balls in the first innings of the game with Boys High Wednesday and fanned the first three men to face him. He struck out two more in the second.

* * *

If the following quartet can keep up the good work shown in the Boys High-Marist game Wednesday they may be assured of a place on the all-prep team this year. They are Allen, of Marist, third base; Spurlock, of Boys High, short; Armistead, of Boys High, catcher, and Fox, of Boys High, pitcher.

* * *

Following is the standing of the local Prep League teams:

Teams	Won	Lost	P.C.
Boys High	5	0	1.000
Tech High	4	2	.667
Marist	3	2	.600
Peacock	1	4	.200

GUNBOAT SMITH AND WILLARD IN NEXT COAST GO

By W. W. Naughton

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—Gunboat Smith once again is with us, and interest in the next heat of the great white hope free-for-all will increase by leaps and bounds.

Smith is to meet Elongated Jess Willard of Kansas at Coffroth's Eighth Street Arena on Saturday afternoon, May 17, and when these two have settled their differences the search for the best pugilistic pale face on earth will be almost over.

It will only be necessary for the winner to hook up with Luther McCarty and we will have a champion whose right there will be none to dispute—at least for a while.

Bluejacket vs. Cowboy.

The semi-final in the race—for that's what the coming bout may be called—will be between an ex-bluejacket and a cowboy. The fact that a man from off the bounding blue and a man from the cattle plains have battled their way to the front rank of the world's fighters shows conclusively that champions are not always the products of congested cities. The old argument used to be that the best men were to be found where there were the most men to pick from, but it certainly does not hold in pugilism.

A glance at the array of white hopes who have tried and failed during the past year shows that championship candidates are drawn from widely separated lands and from all walks of life. So far as the prize ring is concerned, we have had George Rodel, the South African Boer, and Bombardier Wells, the British artilleryman, who was seized with the ambition to shine as a ringman while on service in far India.

Then there was Fred McKay, the Winnipeg policeman, who was attacked with the Queensberry bug while patrolling his beat in his home town in Canada. Al Palzer, another blasted hope, came from the farm lands back in Iowa. It was not different in the old years, however. The lure of the game drew Joe Choynski from the candy kitchen and Jim Corbett from the bank. Fitzsimmons rolled up his apron and dropped his sledge when he heard the call of the padded mitt, and Jeffries deserted the boiler foundry.

Nor must we forget Tom Sharkey, "the pride of the navy," who used to say in the matter of punishment or suffering, fighting was child's play compared to walking the deck barefooted on a hot day in the Red Sea.

Paul Dickey, Famous End, Here Next Week

Paul Dickey, who played star end on the University of Michigan eleven in '07 and '08, and who led in all track events and field exercises while at college, is now in vaudeville and will appear at the Forsyth as the star feature, with his own company the week of May 12.

Paul Dickey was a wonder in his time. He was selected by every expert who picked an All Western or All American eleven. He led the ends, and even at that had some of the greatest stars of the other teams to contend with. His work on the track was wonderful and some of his records still stand.

His sketch in vaudeville is called "The Come Back." It deals with college life, and football figures most prominently. It is a sketch that the sport-loving theatergoers will doubly appreciate.

During his visit in Atlanta, Dickey will be entertained by the Michigan alumni who live here, and his "Frat" mates are also preparing to see that he does not forget his week in Atlanta.

BOXING
News of the Ring Game

Abe Attell has released John Reisfer as his manager and has placed himself under the management of Danny Morgan. Abe and Morgan agreed on terms yesterday, according to a report from New York.

* * *

Had the match been made Rivers would have received 27 1-2 per cent and Britton 22 1-2 per cent of the gate. Rivers is one of the many stars who are steering clear of Britton these days.

* * *

Frank Moran, who fought Luther McCarty recently with a broken hand, will not be able to don the gloves for at least three weeks, on account of the injury. His manager was offered a bout with Jim Flynn at the Atlas A. A. of Boston, on May 20, but was compelled to pass it up.

Having lost close to $2,000 on the Luther McCarty-Moran battle because they guaranteed McCarty $5,000, Jess and Eddie McMahon, managers of the St. Nicholas A. C., yesterday made the announcement that under no circumstances will they give another fighter a guarantee in the future, even if he is a champion.

Johnny Griffith, of Akron, and Pal Moore, of Philadelphia, will meet for 12 rounds at Akron, May 12. Bernie Strapp is staging the show.

Tech and Georgia Teams Ready for "Play Ball!"

Jackets in Superb Shape, Says Coach Heisman

By J. W. Heisman

ATHENS, GA., May 9.—The Tech team arrived here after a rather tiresome ride of several hours duration. This morning I am letting them walk about town a little to get their land legs again, but immediately after lunch they will be sent to their rooms for a nap, so as to make sure they will be feeling well and perfectly rested by the time the game is called, which will be at 4 o'clock.

Many, many times have I been to Athens with both football and baseball teams, but never have I seen the old town so stirred up over anything as it seems to be to-day over these two games of ball with Tech. The Red and Black team has had a most fortunate season from start to date, and it is but natural that all their friends should not only be wrought up to fever heat with enthusiasm over their fine showing, but also that they should feel the keenest interest over the outcome of the four games to be played with the Yellow Jackets. The loss of a couple of games to the Atlantans would leave, they fear, a rather black mark on their bright and shining season's record, while the winning of the series would mean not alone that this splendid record had been maintained to the last, but the victory would be sweeter than any other achieved by their team all year simply because it came over their dearest rivals.

Town Filled With Visitors.

It looks like most every town, city and hamlet in the State of Georgia has sent at least one representative up here to see these two games. Never have I seen so many out-of-town visitors here before, and never have I seen so much of colors. Naturally, the Red and Black tinges prevail heavily, but here and there we spot a bit of Gold and White, which tells us that we are not entirely friendless even in the very stronghold of the enemy.

Yells? Yes, we have heard them galore ever since we landed, and the Georgia band as well. By the way, this band is no slouch: it plays real stuff, and plays it well—especially a refrain entitled "Glory, Glory to old Georgia," of which it seems strangely fond,—about as much so as one other band I know of when it comes to a composition which narrates the autobiography of a certain "Rambling Wreck."

Yes, all is excitement here, and nerves are keyed up to the highest tension. It appears that Sanford Field has never before been called upon to house the crowds that will storm it this afternoon and to-morrow. And one week from to-day will witness a repetition of these scenes at Grant Park in Atlanta, I haven't a doubt, regardless of how the games come out over here.

Georgia Men Confident.

Of the Georgia team's condition I know nothing. Their friends and supporters appear confident in the extreme; from which it must be inferred that the team is in apple-pie order. That they can play great ball on their own field they have demonstrated again and again this season, and for my part I have no doubt they will again to-day.

I am expecting to see a great college baseball team in the defenders of the Red and Black, and one that will be well worth winning from, yet not too great a catastrophe to lose to.

Tech has everything to win in these games, and little enough to lose aside from one of those "it might have been" feelings after the game. To lose to such a team as Georgia it will be no more nor less than every team that has visited Athens this year has done, while to win would be to be raised to a pinnacle of joy and glory as great as Georgia herself enjoys.

As for the Tech team, all I can say is that it is in superb shape. There have been better teams at Tech, but worse teams than this have defeated Georgia, and in Athens, too. The boys are playing better ball just now than they have at any previous time this season, and if they happen to hit their top stride this afternoon they will make the sledding hard for even so good an aggregation as Georgia has. Some of the games Tech has played this year would have pushed most any college team in the country—notably the Clemson and Sewanee games, and those won from Mercer and Auburn.

Heisman Has Hope.

It is true Georgia has the dope all in her favor, and also has the advantage of playing the first two games on her home grounds, which is always rated a distinct advantage. However, I recall that Tech teams of the past have had a way of playing the very best ball they knew how to play when they went right over on the Georgia campus to perform; and I know of no reason why these Tech boys shouldn't do that same thing over again.

Yes, it needs to be admitted that in Corley and Morris Georgia has two wonderfully clever pitchers, and the biggest question, in my opinion, is whether the Tech batters can do anything with these flingers. If they do no more to them than other Southern teams have done, Georgia will have things all her own way.

The other "facer" that Tech has to look in the eye is the extent of the damage that the Georgia "cover-rippers" will do to Tech's twirlers. That is a hard one, for it must be granted that Georgia has mauled many and many a good pitcher all over the lot this spring,—pitchers who were, in all probability, quite as good as the best that Tech can put forward. No doubt Georgia will hit "some," and maybe some more. Still, I am not without hopes; they haven't done it yet, anyway.

They will be great games, I am satisfied, no matter if Georgia does win. And there will be great crowds, and terrific excitement and noise, and all that goes with the biggest matches of the year.

Colleges on Good Terms.

I just want to add that I am very, very thankful that the two colleges are at last on the very best of terms and that there is absolutely no chance for a flare out of flame or any other kind of break-out such as used to characterize encounters between the rival teams. There will be good order and tip-top sportsmanship all around, I know; and that is the best of any college game.

NO CAUSE FOR PROTEST.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The New York Nationals had no undue advantage over the Philadelphia club in the games played at the Polo grounds late in April by reason of the fact that there was a hole scooped out of the diamond back of the pitchers' box. This is the finding of President Thomas J. Lynch of the National league, on the protest of the Philadelphia club. He orders that the result of the games shall stand as played.

BETTS GOES TO REDS.

CINCINNATI, May 9.—Fred Betts, a Cincinnati ball player, who pitched for the Cardinals several years ago, to-day signed a contract to play with the Reds and left to join the team. Betts quit professional ball of his own accord to become a typewriter slaesman.

OLLIE KIRK vs. EDDIE MOY.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Eddie Moy, the Allentown, Pa. featherweight, who gained a good reputation in Pennsylvania will meet Ollie Kirk, of St Louis, here to-morrow in a ten-round bout.

INDIANS PURCHASE WORKS.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 9.—Pitcher Ralph Works, of the Cincinnati club, of the National League, was purchased to-day by the Indianapolis club, of the American Association. The price was not announced.

KING RECEIVES PLAYERS.

LONDON, May 9.—Following the precedent established when he received the English polo team before its departure to America in 1911, King George received this year's team at Buckingham Palace.

Heisman on Job For Hearst Papers

J. W. Heisman, the famous Tech coach, will cover the Tech-Georgia games in Athens for The Georgian and Hearst's Sunday American. He will describe each game completely and his comments will be the very best obtainable. He will follow each and every play closely and his expert opinion on them will be of great interest. Mr. Heisman writes a breezy story, yet he never gets away from facts. He will have another interesting story in to-morrow's Georgian, and the story of Saturday's game in The Sunday American should be a classic.

Jones and Barrett Are Stars in Shoot

Former Captures High Average Prize in Georgia State Championship. Barrett Wins State Title.

AMERICUS, GA., May 9.—Henry Jones, of Macon, Ga., won the high average championship in the two-days' contest of the Georgia State Gun Club shoot here this afternoon. Jones secured 365 targets out of a possible 400. He was awarded the silver trophy for highest average.

Jones also tied with James Barrett, of Augusta, for the Georgia State championship, each breaking 98 targets out of a possible 100.

In the shoot-off Barrett won on 20 straights. Jones also won the long-run medal of the tournament by scoring 145 straights.

Homer Clark, of Allendale, Ill., won the silver trophy in the professional class, scoring 389 birds out of a possible 400. He also won the double professional championship in scoring 48 out of 50 targets.

J. K. Warren, of Birmingham, won the double target amateur championship of the South after tying with Eubanks, of Atlanta, on 44 out of 50 doubles.

All of the 45 gunners in yesterday's tourney are pleased with the great success of this the third annual State shoot in Americus of the Georgia Gun Club.

TO HOLD 200-MILE RACE.

GALVESTON, TEXAS, May 9.—A 200-mile automobile race on Galveston beach, for which a prize of $5,000 will be hung up, is to be the feature event of the 1913 Cotton Carnival meet, according to plans laid to-day. The meet will cover three days in all, the dates being set on July 28, 29 and 30. It is planned to offer prizes aggregating $14,000 for the meet.

WEIKINGER BEATS WIRTH.

DEFIANCE, OHIO, May 9.—Henry Wirth, the clever Chicago light weight wrestler, lost to Edward Weikinger, the local champion, last night in two straight falls.

RUSSELL GOES TO ALLENTOWN.

ALLENTOWN, PA., May 9.—Lefty Russell, the famous southpaw for whom Connie Mack paid $12,000, has been turned over to the Allentown Tristate Club by Manager Jack Dunn, of the Baltimore Club. Russell will cover the initial sack for the Allentown team.

2 GOOD BOUTS FOR LOCAL FANS HERE IN JUNE

ATLANTA boxing fans will be furnished the opportunity of witnessing two corking bouts next month at the Auditorium-Armory. The first will be held on June 9 and will bring together Jim Flynn and Jim Savage. The next show will follow on June 17 and will be between Leach Cross, or Freddie Welsh, and Matty Baldwin.

The Flynn-Savage match has already been closed and it is likely that the other will be all O K'd within the next few days. Baldwin has already accepted, while both Cross and Welsh are anxious to exhibit their wares here.

Flynn should be a tremendous card in Atlanta. He was beating Jack Johnson to a frazzle until he was disqualified on a technicality. And Savage is a good attraction here as he decisively defeated Al Kubiak a couple of weeks after the latter had whipped Carl Morris in a local ring.

LOCAL GOLFERS PLAY WELL AT BIRMINGHAM

By W. R. Tichenor.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 9.—George C. Oliver, of Birmingham, won the low medal score in the qualifying round of the invitation tournament held over the course of the Birmingham Country Club.

In the first round Oliver and F. C. Stahlman, of Nashville, tied with seventy-fours. In the play off in the afternoon Oliver again did seventy-four, beating Stahlman by four strokes.

Smith Cullum, of Birmingham, had a fine chance to win the low score prize, as he was on the eighteenth green within ten feet of the cup with two putts for a seventy-three. He was short on his first, was over with his second and then missed an easy one, which would have put him in the tie.

Captain E. T. Winston led the Atlanta golfers with a seventy-seven. He was fifty. Lowry Arnold did a seventy-nine and yours truly did an eighty, which puts three Atlanta players in the first flight.

F. G. Byrd and G. W. Adair did eighty-four and qualified in the second flight. D. Brown and C. J. Holditch qualified in the third flight and are drawn against each other for the first match Friday morning.

Walton Griffith also qualified in the third flight, as did C. E. Corwin, R. P. Jones and T. B. Paine qualified in the fourth flight. Dr. Frank Holland found lots of trouble on his round and qualified in the fifth flight.

Players from New Orleans, Chattanooga, Nashville, Montgomery and Atlanta are in attendance. The course is in good shape and many low scores are likely to be made in the matches to be played.

AUBURN DOWNS CLEMSON IN FIRST GAME; SCORE 9 TO 3

AUBURN, ALA., May 9.—With Davis on the mound twirling sensational ball, Auburn won the first game of the series from Clemson here by a score of 9 to 3.

Ezell, Clemson's premier pitcher, started with a rush, pitching no-run, no-hit ball until the fifth inning, striking out ten out of the first seventeen men before him. He weakened in the sixth and the Auburn feats scored three runs by bunching a single and two two-base hits with an error.

With the score tied in the sixth inning Auburn went ahead in the seventh, scoring two runs on a hit and a wild throw to second.

In order to cinch the game in the eighth Harris singled, Davenport followed with an infield hit, but Harris was thrown out overrunning third. Locke was safe on a muff by Corator, and Davenport scored on Williams' two-bagger; Graydon hit safely, scoring Locke and Williams, and scored a ninth run later on Louiselle's drive on second.

CAZEAU AND LE MARIN WIN NEW YORK WRESTLING BOUT

NEW YORK, May 9.—George Lurich, the Russian heavyweight wrestler, lost two out of three falls to Raymond Cazeau here last night. In the other match Constant LeMarin, of France, threw Paul Samson, of Germany.

BUCK WEAVER WILL OPPOSE BILLS TO-DAY

By Joe Agler.
Crackers' First Baseman.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., May 9.—The Crackers finally broke their losing streak yesterday and now hope to win a number of successive games. The boys played great ball yesterday and showed more dash and vim than they displayed in their last four games put together. The final score was: Crackers, 7; Billikens, 3.

Long and Smith divided the honors of the day, although Gilbert Price twirled good ball. The former pair pounded out home runs and helped pile up runs to our credit.

I look for Bill Smith to send "Buck" Weaver to the slab this afternoon, with Graham catching. The latter has had a long rest and should show some of his old stuff. Manager Dobbs is in a hard way for pitchers and is trying to secure Becker from us. He could use him now, as he has no portside pitcher on his staff. Dobbs said this morning that he did not know whom he would use against us this afternoon.

"Big Bill" Chappelle joined us yesterday and looks fit and ready to go in and win ball games for the Crackers. We also expect Harry Bailey to be with us soon. His ankle is coming around fast now, and he should be in the game any day now.

The Billikens are without their star pitcher, E. Brown. He is on the sick list, and it looks as if it will be some time before he will be able to don a uniform. Snyder, who twirled against us yesterday, is but a youngster and needs more experience.

GOTCH AND ZBYSZKO MAY MEET ON MAT IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, May 9.—Plans were laid here to-day for the Frank Gotch-Stanislaus Zbyszko championship wrestling match here, and the syndicate that is back of the proposed plan is almost certain to land the clash. It became known here that Gotch has practically given his consent to such a meeting, and Manager Herman, who guides the affairs of the Pole, is only too anxious to accept. A purse of $25,000 has been offered for the battle.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Things have not changed greatly in the American League this week, except that the Washington club is holding up with a persistence that makes it look like a strong contender for the flag. Johnson is pitching wonderful ball, the best of his career. The Athletics and Red Sox are alarmed.

"I thought he was good last year," an American League player told me the other day in discussing Johnson, "but I never saw anything like the way he is traveling this season. He has gone forty-two innings without being scored on, and the chances are he will go forty-two more. He has everything in the world, and his fast ball has the speed of a bullet and the worst jump or the best I ever looked at. It depends upon the point of view whether it is the best or worst. It looked like the worst to me, because I was batting against him. He has been calling what he intends to throw against opposing batters. He did this repeatedly in the series with the Yankees.

"Then he would shoot up the ball with the old jump on it. And the batter missed it just as widely as if he had no notion of the prescription. That is going some when the pitcher can tip the batter off to his stuff and get away with it.

* * *

"THE Washington team is full of dash and ginger, and is playing fast ball. They will give the Athletics a great fight, but I do not expect to see the Senators hold the pace they are setting now."

That is the opinion of a veteran American Leaguer, who did not want his name mentioned.

After pitching in Philadelphia on Saturday and losing because Cravath, who is hitting very hard this season, pumped a home run into the bleachers, I returned to New York on Sunday and met "Eddie" Collins, the second baseman of the Athletics, with whom I have been acquainted for some time.

"How does the race look in the American League?" I asked him, "talking shop" as usual.

"The Washington club is the one we've got to beat, and I think we can do it," he said. "They are carrying lots of 'pep' now, but the supply won't last through the season. The boys are bound to slow down. If anything should happen to Johnson, they are gone, because he is carrying the club. Besides Johnson, Hughes is the only other pitcher we have had a look at so far. Groom seems to be traveling along pretty well, judging from the scores against other clubs. Cashion is too wild right now to be of much value. The rest of the team looks good, with every man playing at his best at present. Let them hit a little slump, however, and it is going to take a lot of the pepper out of them."

"HOW about the Athletics?"

"We're in pretty fair shape. Our pitching department caused the most ante-season fretting. Plank is going fine, and Bender seems to be rounding into form now. Coombs is the member of the veteran trio who is to the bad. He is laid up in bed in Philadelphia with a high fever, and I don't know what is the matter with him. He has some kind of fever, and his temperature has been up around 104 for several days. John has never been right since that time he hurt himself in the world's series with the Giants. His health has been bad, and during that rainy spell when we were in Washington he was taken ill and had to be sent home. It is problematical whether he will be in any kind of shape before the middle of the summer. 'Connie' is worried about him.

"ALL the young pitchers look pretty good, and we are bound to get at least one man from the flock to help out Bender and Plank. Houck has been twirling good ball so far, and the other squabs have the ability, but get nervous when the game becomes tight. They will outgrow this. The club is hitting the ball hard, and playing together well. So far we have not had any injured players outside of Coombs' illness; but let me touch wood, quick."

A good line on the strength of the teams in each league can be drawn when the present intersectional series is completed. That is what always tells on the clubs—the long trips away from home.

FODDER FOR FANS

Johnson, the Indian pitching recruit of the Reds, looks like one of the best pitching finds in recent years. He's won all of the Reds' five victories.

Everybody laughed at Charley Ebbets last winter when he built a baseball plant with a capacity of 35,000. And now Ebbets is laughing at the erstwhile laughers. If the Dodgers keep up their winning streak, Ebbets will have to enlarge his park.

The Dodgers, by beating the Cubs yesterday, are now within 9 points of second place and 25 points of first place.

* * *

The lowly Braves bumped the Pirates again yesterday and the Pittsburg fans are wondering just when their pets are going to stop skidding.

* * *

The Athletics' victory over the Browns yesterday made the sixth straight win for the Quakertown athletes.

* * *

Johnnie Evers, the "Keystone King," put up a weird fielding exhibition yesterday, making three errors, two of which resulted in runs for the Dodgers, enough to give them a victory.

A great batting rally in the ninth enabled the Cardinals to snatch a 5 to 4 victory from the Phillies.

The major league baseball season to date has furnished some big surprises. In the National League the Giants and Pirates were doped to fight it out for first place all the way. Instead, they are wallowing around in the second division, and the Cardinals and Dodgers, who were accorded cellar places, are within a few points of first place.

* * *

In the American, the Boston Red Sox were expected to repeat. All the dopesters treated them to a flying start. However, the Boston boys are far down in the second division and the Naps and White Sox, who weren't figured to have a look in, are snugly ensconced in first division places, within hailing distance of the leading Athletics.

* * *

But the season is still young.

CROSS DEFEATS HARRY TENDALL, BUT IS ROBBED

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—Leach Cross, of New York, hero of many ring battles, gave Harry Trendall, St. Louis' best lightweight, a sound beating in the feature battle at the Coliseum last night, only to have Referee Harry Sharpe hand the verdict to the home boy.

The best that even Trendall's own friends looked for was a draw, and the round by round notes taken by experts showed Cross had a good margin.

WHITE AND BRITTON BOUT WANTED BY GOTHAM CLUB

CHICAGO, May 9.—A Charlie White-Jack Britton match now is likely. It would be a certainty but for the fact that the local featherweight is matched to battle Joe Thomas, of New Orleans, in a return go in the latter's city on May 19. Nate Lewis, who guides the pugilistic destinies of White, to-day received a wire from Gil Boag, of the Forty-fifth Avenue Athletic Club in New York, offering him May 20 as the date for a match between White and Britton.

The terms are perfectly satisfactory to Lewis and nothing is more pleasing to him than to land such a battle, but he must go through with the Southern battle. Lewis lost no time in answering Boag, in the hope of securing a later date.

JOHNSON WITHIN THREE INNINGS OF A RECORD

CHICAGO, May 9.—Walter Johnson needs to pitch only three more scoreless innings to excel Jack Coombs' great 1910 record of 46 successive runless rounds. Johnson went to Engel's rescue Monday against Boston and blanked the Red Sox for five stanzas, while his helpmates were able to score two runs and win in the twelfth round.

Johnson has not yielded an earned run this season, although he was scored on his first inning out.

By the Sweat of His Brow

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WILL you be good enough," asks M. E., "to tell me if it is proper for a girl to kiss a young man who tells her he loves her but can not marry her for some time to come owing to the fact that he is not in a position to support her at the present time, and may never be able to do so?"

If kisses be classed as luxuries or necessities depends solely on the years of the one making the classification. Youth regards them as necessities, and Age knows they are but idle luxuries, meaningless though not unpleasant, and an altogether unsanitary method of expressing an affection that sometimes lasts little longer than the kiss itself.

But, be they luxuries or necessities, they should be classed among the many things which a man should be compelled to earn by the sweat of his brow. Unless he can earn a living, and by the sweat of his brow provide bread, he is not entitled to kisses. Unless he can go forth and with muscle and brain produce the price of a nest for his bride, he hasn't earned the right to be kissed by anybody in the world but his mother.

Is an Insult.

The kiss that is given to a girl with the declaration, "I love you, but I can not afford to marry you; I am not in position to support you now, and may never be able to do so," is an insult.

It is as if he said to her: "It gratifies me to kiss you, and for that reason I seek the privilege. I can do nothing for you and my monopoly of your affection will serve no other purpose than to place you in an embarrassing position, and to keep other lovers away whose intentions are more honorable. But it pleases me to kiss you, and when I grow tired of kissing you I can take my avowals of love to some other girl. They carry no promise with them, no obligation, no duty, and so long as there are girls in the world who will kiss me, I can enjoy myself without paying the price."

He Is a Loafer.

I take it that this young man is a loafer, and who is there who thinks that the man who loafs when there is so much work to do, is entitled to any girl's kisses? A self-respecting man will seek work, and a self-respecting girl will refuse to bestow any mark of affection on a man who is a professional hobo in the Kingdom of Love.

To care for such a man is a weakness that carries tragedy in its wake. It is the same kind of weakness that marks the woman who supports her husband, finding recompense for her toil in the fact that he never abuses her or speaks cross to her, while other women's husbands who work hard and earn a good living are sometimes fretted and angry.

The girl who permits such a man to kiss her shows a heart that is soft and a brain that is weak. She has two choices of degradation: Either she kisses the man to no other purpose than a waste of time and an unsavory memory, or she marries him and takes upon her shoulders the burden of his support.

There is no other alternative.

A Prince Who Plays Bagpipes

THE announcement made recently that the Prince of Wales, in the interval of his studies at Oxford, is learning to play the bagpipes under the tuition of Pipe Major W. Rose, of the Second Scots Guards, surprised many people, and particularly those who have an inherent dislike to the much-abused instrument. But his royal highness, in taking up the bagpipe as a musical accomplishment, is merely carrying on a tradition of the royal house, many of the members of which have always had a liking for the merry chant of the pipes. Queen Victoria had her piper at Balmoral, and so had King Edward, and to-day there is one attached to the royal establishment, for King George is fond of bagpipe music as his father and his royal grandmother were.

Early Morning Skirt.

When the court is in residence in the Highlands it is customary for the royal piper, dressed in full Highland costume, to march backward and forward in front of the royal apartments every morning and awaken the household with the "skirl" of his pipes. On official occasions, too, when the Balmoral Highlanders are welcoming the king and queen on their arrival at their Scottish residence, or when the retainers on the royal estate are taking part in any function, the king's piper invariably heads the procession of kilted men.

At the Braemar Highland gathering, the great social event of the season on Deeside, which is patronized by royalty, this official always "plays" the king's clansmen around the arena. On a memorable occasion at New Mar Lodge, the seat of the late Duke of Fife, King Edward, along with the princess royal, her two daughters and his grace, marched at the head of a body of Highlanders to the accompaniment of the music of the bagpipes, for which his majesty had as much liking as he had for the kilt when he was in the Highlands.

Highland Garb.

As soon as he reached Balmoral on his periodical visits King Edward—just as King George does to-day—donned the kilt, and, as was often remarked, no Highlander could carry it better than did his majesty. Queen Victoria, too, had as great an admiration for the tartan as she had for the bigpipes. In her majesty's time the walls of Balmoral Castle were draped with the Stuart colors. They have since been replaced by less somber decorations! But neither the wearing of the kilt nor the retaining of a piper is dictated by royal fashion, for every nobleman whose ancestral home is in the Highlands dons the traditional garb as much out of compliment to his ancestry as for any other reason. His guests, as a rule, follow his example as a matter of courtesy, but it does not always happen that they have the necessary habiliments with which to convert themselves for the time being into "Highlanders."

An Amusing Story.

An amusing but well-authenticated story is told of a German prince who was the guest of a Scottish nobleman, and who was so fascinated with the Highland dress that he determined to have a kilt made. He placed the order with a well-known firm of tailors for a complete outfit, richly adorned with silver buckles, and gold-mounted sporran or pouch. He paid something like a hundred guineas for it. The kilt was delivered in due course, and the prince was rigged out the next day in all the splendor of a Highland chieftain! But his highness was unfamiliar with the wearing of the sporran, and to the consternation of his host and hostess and their other guests he appeared with it attached to the back instead of the front of the kilt! Taking the prince quietly aside, Lord —— suggested that his sporran should be reversed, and with profound apologies for the mistake he had made, his highness placed the pouch in its proper position.

Shoes of the Scot.

It is not only in Scotland that the bagpipes are regarded with favor. The Englishman certainly likes them best at a distance, but they are a very popular instrument among the natives of the Punjab, in India. The late Maharajah of Patiala had a fine band of pipers, wholly composed of Sikhs and other natives, who had been trained by a piper from one of the British Highland regiments. Many of the Indian frontier forces—notably the Gurkha regiments—have bagpipe bands of their own. An amusing instance of Scottish pride is told by a retired Indian officer in this connection. He was one day visiting the Court of the Rajah of Jeend, and noticed that the only person who broke through the rigid rule of etiquette, which forbids the wearing of shoes in the presence of the Rajah, was his bagpiper. Judicious inquiry elicited the fact that the sturdy Scot, when being engaged as the court musician, had stipulated that he was not to be obliged to go about the court in bare feet, as he regarded it as derogatory to his native country that he should do such a thing.

Do You Know That—

About a year ago four students of Boston University started out with a tuning fork to sing their way round the world. They have arrived in London by way of San Francisco, Honolulu, Japan, China, Manchuria and India, and are appearing under the title of the "University Quartette," or the "Four Singing Evangelists." Each can preach a sermon, lead a young men's Sunday school class or blend his voice with the others in the four-part setting of a hymn. Sometimes they make a complete change of program and give a secular entertainment, with humorous songs, Southern coon songs and piano solos.

A rudder with a doorway into the interior is a feature of the Cunarder Aquitania, recently finished. The rudder is so large that a doorway has been constructed in the lower part to admit workmen, so that they can remove the pin which connects the rudder to the ship. This pin is four feet long, and bigger than the heaviest projectile made for modern artillery. When delivered at the builders' yard the rudder was in three parts. After they had been connected and laid upon the ground the distance that had to be walked to pass around the rudder was over 100 feet.

The "homeless" population of London, according to the latest census of the County Council, numbers nearly 22,000. Some time ago a scheme was started by which the police gave lodging tickets to these night wanderers. This has somewhat depleted the Embankment and the streets, but the fact is noted that only about half of the people who are given tickets make use of them. They clearly prefer the wandering life.

False Gratitude

Little Molly May was only six, and on the morning of the story was sobbing her heart out because she had lost a penny. Many looked and sympathized as she trotted down the street; but it was an old gentleman who played the role of practical Samaritan.

"Well, my little maid," he asked, as he patted Molly May's heaving shoulder, "what's the trouble?"

"Boo-hoo! I've lost a penny!" came the muffled answer.

Without a word the old gentleman thrust his hand into his pocket, and handed Molly a penny to replace the one she had lost, saying:

"There—there, now everything will be all right."

But to his utter confusion, the little girl dropped her damp pinafore, gazing at him with an expression in which sorrow strove valiantly with anger, and said:

"Oh, you wicked old man, you had it all the time."

Some Up-to-Date Gowns and How They Are Fashioned

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

HE SHOULD ATONE.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a young man a few months ago with whom I am very much in love. I have had an appointment with him, but he failed to come. He phoned the next day, but I was not at home. Shall I call him up and ask him to call?

JESTINE.

Having failed to keep his engagement, it is due you from him that he make another, and atone for his failure to keep it by being prompt and particularly attentive. You do not owe him the courtesy of asking him to call.

A Golden One.

"Why, Bill, ol' man, what's happened—bin left some money?"

"No, no," said Bill. "It's me goldin weddin'; I'm celebratin' me goldin weddin'!"

"But why ain't your wife celebratin' it, too?" inquired his friend. "I see 'er goin' to work as usual this mornin'. Why ain't she got a white rose and noo gloves?"

"Er!" muttered Bill, as he grunted reflectively. "She ain't got nushin' to do wiv it! She's me fourth!"

What the Master Used.

The inspector was talking about adverbs and adjectives.

"Does your master use adverbs and adjectives?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," chorused the scholars.

"Well, what does he use when he does not use adverbs and adjectives?"

There was a silence. Finally a little fellow waved his hand.

"He generally uses a ruler, sir."

THREE QUESTIONS.

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"WHAT is Modesty?" I asked
Of a violet that basked
In a swamp one summer day
Where a sunbeam chanced to stray.
Then the purple violet,
Squandering fragrance, dewy wet,
Spoke from out the swampland low:
"Modesty? I do not know."

Then I asked a lily white,
Paler than an altar-light,
Sinless as a vestal's day;
"What is Purity, I pray?"
And the lily in the dell
Answered me, "I cannot tell."

"What is beauty?" I inquired
Of a rose with crimson fired.
"Beauty, Cleopatra's gift,
Casting Antony adrift.
Beauty? Tell me ere I go."
Said the rose, "I do not know."

Then I asked a girl aged three,
Who explained it all to me.

Hints For the Household

When rinsing flannels and woolens it is best to do so in warm soapy water, as pure warm water makes them hard; also when hanging curtains out to dry, hang them double, as it makes them even and prevents them getting torn so easily.

When about to make a pudding, well flour your board and rolling pin and roll the suet out to a thin sheet. Take between your hands and rub down, when you will find the suet as fine as breadcrumbs.

Hot water marks may be removed from japanned trays by the simple process of rubbing them over well with sweet oil, and then polishing with a little dry flour on a soft duster.

To curl a feather that has become damaged with rain or dew, sprinkle it thickly with common salt and shake before a bright fire until dry, when you will find it as good as new.

When washing pudding cloths throw some orange peelings into the water. This collects the grease and helps to make the cloths white and clean-looking.

Soap that is allowed to dry and harden lasts twice as long as if used when fresh. Therefore it is cheaper to buy it in quantity and keep it in a dry place.

To prevent custard dishes or glasses from cracking when pouring boiled custard into them, place the dish on a damp cloth. This plan is most effective.

To thread a darning-needle, take a length of cotton, put the two ends together, and thread through the eye, put wool through loop and draw it.

A teaspoonful of borax to a quart of water will make hard water soft, so that it can be used for washing the most delicate skin.

If a white shirt is scorched when ironed the brown marks may be removed by rubbing them with a little dry borax.

The Soft Answer.

He was really growing tired of paying off his son's bills—the boy was an undergraduate at one of the big universities. However, after much thought, he decided to be indulgent just once more.

Boys will be boys, he thought. Accordingly, as requested, he sent a check for $250, but accompanied it with stern admonitions to live more wisely and more economically.

"My son," he wrote, "you must remember that your studies are costing me a great deal of money—very much more than I can honestly afford."

"I know it, father—I know it," replied his incorrigible hopeful; "and the tragedy is that I don't study very hard, either."

Long Time for Both.

Affable Passenger—Indeed, and you are a music hall artiste! I am a banker, and I think it must be at least twenty years since I was in a music hall.

Music Hall Artiste (regretfully)—And I'm quite certain, sir, it's twenty years since I was in a bank.

But Aggie was not one to be ignored under any circumstances. Now she spoke with some acerbity in her voice, which could at will be wondrous soft and low.

"Say!" she retorted viciously, "you can't throw any scare into us. You hain't got anything on us. See?"

Cassidy, in response to this outburst, favored the girl with a long stare, and there was hearty amusement in his tones as he answered:

"Nothing on you, eh? Well, well, let's see." He regarded Garson with a grin. "You are Joe Garson, forger." As he spoke, the detective took a note-book from a pocket, found a page and then read: "First arrested in 1891 for forging the name of Edwin Goodsell to a check for ten thousand dollars. Again rearrested June 19, 1803, for forgery. Arrested in April, 1898, for forging the signature of Oscar Hemmenway to a series of bonds that were counterfeit. Arrested as the man back of the Reilly gang in 1903. Arrested in 1908 for forgery."

There was no change in the face or pose of the man who listened to the reading. When it was done, and the officer looked up with a resumption of his triumphant grin, Garson spoke quietly.

"Haven't any records of convictions, have you?"

The grin died and a snarl sprang in its stead.

"No," he snapped, vindictively. "But we've got the right dope on you, all right, Joe Garson." He turned savagely on the girl, who now had regained her usual expression of demure innocence, but with her rather too heavy brows drawn a little lower than their wont under the influence of an emotion otherwise concealed.

"And you're little Aggie Lynch," Cassidy declared as he thrust the note-book back into his pocket. "Just now you're posing as Mary Turner's cousin. You served two years in Burnsing for blackmail. You were arrested in Buffalo, convicted and served your stretch. Nothing on you? Well, well!" Again there was triumph in the officer's chuckle.

Aggie showed no least sign of perturbation in the face of this revelation of her unsavory record. Only an expression of half-incredulous wonder and delight beamed from her widely opened blue eyes and was emphasized in the rounding of the little mouth.

Sarcasm Without Effect.

"Why," she cried, and now there was softness enough in the cooing notes, "my Gawd! It looks as though you had actually been workin'!"

The sarcasm was without effect on the dull sensibilities of the officer. He went on speaking with obvious enjoyment of the extent to which his knowledge reached.

"And the head of the gang is Mary Turner. Arrested four years ago for robbing the Emporium. Did her stretch of three years."

"Is that all you've got about her?" Garson demanded with such abruptness that Cassidy forgot his dignity sufficiently to answer with an unqualified yes.

The forger continued speaking rapidly, and now there was an undercurrent of feeling in his voice.

"Nothing in your record of her about her coming out without a friend in the world and trying to go straight? You ain't got nothing in that pretty little book of your'n about your going to the millinery store where she finally got a job and tipping them off to where she come from?"

"Sure they was tipped off," Cassidy answered, quite unmoved. And he added, swelling visibly with importance: "We got to protect the city."

"Got anything in that record of your'n," Garson went on venomously, "about her getting another job, and your following her up again and having her thrown out? Got it there about the letter you had old Gilder write, so that his influence would get her canned?"

"Oh, we had her right the first time," Cassidy admitted, complacently.

Then the bitterness of Garson's soul was revealed by the fierceness in his voice as he replied:

"You did not! She was railroaded for a job she never done. She went in honest and she came out honest."

The detective indulged himself in a cackle of sneering merriment.

"And that's why she's here now with a gang of crooks," he retorted.

Mr. Cassidy Laughs.

Garson met the implication fairly.

"Where else should she be?" he demanded, violently. "You ain't got nothing in that record about my jumping into the river after her?" The forger's voice deepned and trembled with the intensity of his emotion, which was now grown so strong that any who listened and looked might guess something of the truth as to his feeling toward this woman of whom he spoke. "That's where I found her—a girl that never done nobody any harm, starving because you police wouldn't give her a chance to work. In the river because she wouldn't take the only other way that was left her to make a living, because she was keeping straight! . . . Have you got any of that in your book?"

Cassidy, who had been scowling in the face of this arraignment, suddenly gave vent to a croaking laugh of derision.

"Huh!" he said, contemptuously. "I guess you's stuck on her, eh?"

At the words, an instantaneous change swept over Garson. Hitherto he had been tense, his face set with emotion, a man strong and sullen, with eyes as clear and heartless as those of a beast in the wild. Now, without warning, a startling transformation was wrought. His form stiffened to rigidity after one lightning-swift step forward, and his face grayed. The eyes glowed with the fires of a man's heart in a spasm of hate. He was the embodiment of rage as he spoke huskily, his voice a whisper that was yet louder than any shout.

"Cut that!"

The eyes of the two men locked. Cassidy struggled with all his pride against the dominant fury this man hurled on him.

"What?" he demanded, blusteringly. But his tone was weaker than its wont.

"I mean," Garson repeated, and there was finality in his accents, a deadly quality that was appalling, "I mean, cut it out—now, here, and all the time! It don't go!" The voice rose slightly. The effect of it was more penetrant than a scream. "It don't go . . . Do you get me?"

There was a short interval of silence, then the officer's eyes at last fell. It was Aggie who relieved the tension of the scene.

"He's got you," she remarked, airily. "Oi, oi! He's got you!"

There were again a few seconds of pause, and then Cassidy made an observation that revealed in some measure the shock of the experience he had just undergone.

"You would have been a big man, Joe, if it hadn't been for that temper of yours. It's got you into trouble once or twice already. Some take it's likely to prove your finish."

Garson, who had lost his immobility, and a little color crept into his cheeks.

"That's my business," he responded, dully.

"Anyway," the officer went on, with a new confidence, now that his eyes were free from the gaze that had burned into his soul, "you've got to clear out, the whole gang of you and do it quick."

Aggie, who as a matter of fact began to feel that she was not receiving her due share of attention, now interposed, moving forward till her face was close to the detective's.

"We don't scare worth a cent," she snapped, with the virulence of a vixen. "You can't do anything to us. We ain't broke the law." There came a sudden ripple of laughter, and the charming lips curved joyously as she added: "Though perhaps we have bent it a bit."

Cassidy sneered, outraged by such impudence on the part of an ex-convict.

"Don't make no difference what you've done," he growled. "'Gee!'" he went on with a heavy sneer. "But things are coming to a pretty pass when a gang of crooks gets to arguing about their rights. That's funny, that is!"

"Then laugh!" Aggie exclaimed, insolently, and made a face at the officer. "Ha, ha, ha!"

"Well, you've got the tip." Cassidy returned, somewhat disconcerted, after a stolid fashion of his own. "It's up to you to take it, that's all. If you don't, one of you will make a long visit with some people out of town, and it'll probably be Mary. Remember, I'm giving it to you straight."

Aggie assumed her formal society manner, exaggerated to the point of extravagance.

"Do come again, little girl," she chirruped, caressingly. "I've enjoyed your visit so much!"

But Cassidy paid no apparent attention to her frivolousness; only turned and went noisily out of the drawing room, offering no return to her daintily inflected good-afternoon.

For her own part, as she heard the outer door close behind the detective, Aggie's expression grew vicious, and the heavy brows drew very low, until the level line almost made her prettiness vanish.

"The truck-horse detective!" she sneered. "An eighteen collar and a six-and-a-half hat! He sure had his nerve, trying to bluff us!"

But it was plain that Garson was of another mood. There was anxiety in his face as he stood staring vaguely out of the window.

"What Have We Done."

"Perhaps it wasn't a bluff, Aggie," he suggested.

"Well, what have we done. I'd like to know?" the girl demanded, confidently. She took a cigarette and a match from the tabouret beside her and stretched her feet comfortably, if very inelegantly, on a chair opposite.

Garson answered with a note of weariness that was unlike him.

"It ain't what you have done," he said, quietly. "It's what they can make a jury think you've done. And, once they set out to get you—God, how they can frame things! If they ever start out after Mary——." He did not finish the sentence, but sank down into his chair with a groan that was almost of despair.

The girl replied with a burst of careless laughter.

"Joe," she said gayly, "you're one grand little forger, all right, all right. But Mary's got the brains. Pooh, I'll string along with her as far as she wants to go. She's educated, she is. She ain't like you and me, Joe. She talks like a lady and, what's a damned sight harder, she acts like a lady. I guess I know. Wake me up any old night, and ask me—just ask me, that's all. She's been tryin' to make a lady out of me!"

The vivaciousness of the girl distracted the man for the moment from the gloom of his thoughts, and he turned to survey the speaker with a cynical amusement.

"Swell chance!" he commented dryly.

"Oh, I'm not so worse! Just you watch out." The lively girl sprang up, discarded the cigarette adjusted an imaginary train and spoke lispingly in a society manner much more moderate and convincing than that with which she had favored the retiring Cassidy. Voice, pose and gesture proclaimed at least the excellent mimic.

"How do you do, Mrs. Jones! So good of you to call! . . . . My dear Miss Smith, this is indeed a pleasure." She seated herself again, quite primly now, and moved her hands over the tabouret appropriately to her words. "One lump or two? . . . Yes. I just love bridge. No, I don't play," she continued, simpering; "but, just the same, I love it." With this absurd ending, Aggie again arranged her feet according to her liking on the opposite chair. "That's the kind of stuff she's had me doing," she rattled on in her coarser voice, "and believe me, Joe, it's damned near killing me. But all the same," she hurried on, with a swift revulsion of mood to the former serious topic, "I'm for Mary strong! You stick to her, Joe, and you'll wear diamonds. . . . And that reminds me! I wish she'd let me wear mine, but she won't. She says they're vulgar for an innocent country girl like her cousin, Agnes Lynch. Ain't that fierce? . . . How can anything be vulgar that's worth a hundred and fifty a carat?

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Turner, becoming an orphan, is thrown on her own resources. She finds work at the Emporium, a department store owned by Edward Gilder; is accused of the theft of silks, and sent to prison, though innocent. She tells George Demarest, Gilder's head lawyer, that the way to stop thievery is to pay a living wage. In prison she learned from fellow convicts why girls go wrong. She understands their point of view and sympathizes with them. Aggie Lynch, a convict friend of Mary's at Burnsing, sees good "possibilities" for her in the world of crime. Upon Mary's release the slogan "once a criminal always one," prevents her from securing work. She is continually hounded and in desperation throws herself into the North River. Joe Garson, a forger, rescues her and keeps her and Aggie in luxury, though living chaste lives. Mary reads that a famous financier escapes prison through keeping within the letter of the law. She follows his example and becomes the leader of a band of swindlers, robbing only the unscrupulous. Gilder's son Dick meets and loves Mary, who seeks to wreak vengeance on the father through the son. Aggie poses as her cousin, and they pretend to be respectable.

The largest and most commodious theater in New Zealand has just been completed at Wellington at a cost of $150,000. There is seating accommodation for 2,300 persons, and the stage, which is the widest in New Zealand, will easily hold the property and scenic effects of any production which has visited New Zealand. It is claimed that the auditorium could be emptied in case of emergency within three minutes.

The word "tweed," as applied to cloth, really means "twilled," and has nothing to do with the River Tweed, although much Scotch tweed is made in the basin of that river.

I cud see that Pa was talking kind of absent-minded beekaus all the time he was talking he kep looking around in the woods &, I knew he dident know his way.

Jest then Pa sed Bobbie, Bobbie, I hear it, I hear it. It is the sound of running water that I hear. Dident I tell you, Bobbie?

They Hear It.

Sure enuff, I herd the running water, too, so both of us began to walk faster toward a cleering. After we git to the brook, Bobbie, sed Pa, we will arrange our tackel & go after the speckled buties.

Jest then we caim out into the cleering ware we had herd the running water & Pa & me neerly fell over. We was back to the littel hotel from wich we had started out from. We had went in a cirkel. Ma was setting on the porch grinning at Pa, & the sound of the running water was water cumming from a hose. The hired man was washing the barn.

Now Ma calls Pa Isaak Walton.

Uncle's Sporting Trophies.

Tom Brown and Jack Smith had been schoolmates together, but, as often happens, had drifted apart during the years that followed. Then, quite accidentally, they met again one day, and somehow the conversation turned to the subject of athletics.

"Let me see!" said Brown. "You never came across my brother, did you? He's a fine runner, you know. Why, only last week he won a gold medal in a Marathon race."

"Ah!" said Smith, raising his eyebrows in genuine admiration. Then, a faint smile playing around his lips, he added: "And did I ever tell you about my uncle?"

"Don't think so," replied Brown.

"Well in his day, not only did he get a gold medal for five miles, and one for ten miles, but two sets of carvers for cycling, a silver medal for swimming, two cups for wrestling, to say nothing of badges for boxing and rowing.

"You see," Smith continued, while his friend sat speechless with amazement, "the uncle in question kept a pawnshop."

Her Love For Romance

A HUMOROUS STORY.

AS a little girl Albertine always sat in the chair in the farthest corner when she went to children's parties. She had a meek, pretty little face, abundant yellow hair and large, appealing blue eyes that held a shadow of apology in them for her temerity in presuming to exist. She retained the modest violet atmosphere after she was grown up.

Other girls might blossom into darling coquettes and fascinating belles, but Albertine always kept in the background. Whenever people looked at her they involuntarily thought of lace mitts and hoopskirts and curtseys. They felt that Albertine should be put under glass.

This being the case, it was astonishing that down in her secret heart Albertine had a fierce love of the daring, the wild and gay and the extreme. When she picked out a dress design she always chose the rankest, most alarming atrocity. The dressmaker said, "Oh, certainly!" and then proceeded to modify the pattern to suit Albertine's appearance.

She Suspected.

Things had a way of drooping on her in old-fashioned lines. She wanted to look frightfully smart and somehow she never did. Secretly she suspected the dressmakers, but she never dared accuse them.

It was the same way when it came to the young men. Let a perfectly steady, sober youth who earned a regular salary and was good to his mother come her way and Albertine raised her little nose and sniffed. She simply could not see him. She admired extravagantly the sort of young man who dashed down the street wearing crimson silk socks and a tie to match and the latest cry in waistcoats, and if he was followed by a bulldog so much the better. If people raised their eyebrows and coughed discreetly when his name was mentioned it made the situation perfect.

Albertine always felt loftily then that she was an experienced, worldly wise person and the eyebrow raisers were narrow provincials. Usually the bulldoggy young man never progressed in the acquaintance further than raising his hat and casting an entrancing smile at her; but Albertine was satisfied with just adoring him from a distance.

Her family was quite alarmed when she fell in love with Harry Jungles, because Harry always was in debt and worked only semi-occasionally, and Albertine's relatives had a great deal of money. Harry seemed awake to this fact, for he actually called on Albertine and talked poetry to her in the parlor in low, rich tones, and told her how the world misjudged him. Albertine went so far as to powder her already white nose and her mother caught her once using an eyebrow pencil. It was much the same as though an Easter lily had begun to rouge. The situation was saved, however, by the Sheriff's removing Harry for forgery, and after that Albertine wore what she thought was a heart-broken expression and thought she threw into her face deep lines of experience and suffering.

After Harry several others of the same kind followed. Therefore, having long hovered over Albertine in fear that she would do some foolish thing and spoil her life, her family was entranced when she became engaged to Jeffrey. It all happened so suddenly that one was scarcely aware Jeffrey was on earth before he was introducing himself as the future son-in-law and brother.

Jeffrey was absolutely as nearly perfect as he could be for Albertine. Liberal-minded people might say he erred on the side of rigidness and propriety and possible narrowness, but one felt that he would always be at home at 6 o'clock sharp for dinner and that Albertine never would have to hang out of the front window trying to distinguish whether it was wavering down the street at 1 o'clock in the morning. Jeffrey choked at the sight of a cigarette, wouldn't be caught dead at a dog show and said his wife never should be permitted to wear decollete gowns in the evening.

What She Said.

The more people considered the matter the more inexplicable it became. Finally her dearest friend flatly asked Albertine to explain Jeffrey's attractions.

"You see," said the dearest friend, "with your ideas I can't understand how you happen to fall in love with Jeffrey, of all men."

"Of all men!" echoed Albertine in pitying astonishment. "Why, I'll tell you, Susie—because I recognized at once that Jeffrey is the most sophisticated sort of person. He's such a man of the world. I can't abide these goody-goody men!"

"WHEN Spring comes laughing by vale and hill,
By windflower dancing and daffodil,
Sing stars of morning—sing morning skies,
Sing blue of speedwell, and my love's eyes,
. . . . . .
And gay birds gossip the orchard long."

The Change in George

"WHEN I first noticed the change in George," said the blond woman, who was no bigger than a minute, "I thought it was indigestion. It is perfectly wonderful how much a man's liver is responsible for! But when I mentioned the doctor he was quite violent. In fact, he was rude and stamped around. It is hard on the rugs when a man acts that way.

"'Don't roar at me, George!' I told him.

"'I've got to!' he said in a regular Bengal tiger sort of way. 'I've got to in order to maintain my supremacy in the home!'

"Now, George has always been such a perfect gentleman and so mild that you may well imagine that I was amazed. 'See here, George Guesser!' I said to him. 'Tell me at once what you mean!'

"This Was Different."

"George frowned awfully. His eyebrows looked like a lilac hedge that hasn't been trimmed since last spring. Then he cleared his throat. 'I've just waked up to the fact,' said he, 'that I have been taking a back seat and allowing you to think I didn't count. Why, when I consider how near I have been to losing your love it makes me shudder! I just read a wonderful article——'

"'Oh!' said I. 'An article! But do you believe all you read?'

"'This was different,' George said. Then he explained.

"'It was in one of the scientific magazines, and the writer began by saying that every woman sits and waits the coming of her lord and master and is ready to follow when he beckons. He does not woo or beseech; he takes; he——'

"'George Guesser,' I said to him, 'whenever you waste time beckoning me instead of coming where I am I'd like to know it! Do you think I am a little yellow puppy dog?' My, but I was angry!

"George looked sad. 'I see I have allowed you to get away from me,' he mused. Then he roared at me. '"There is never a man brute so brutal but a woman clings to him!"' he quoted and beat the air with his arms. 'That was a fundamental point with the writer. He said that if the man cringed before the woman she had only contempt for him, but that if he beat her she respected him and thanked her stars that her man was so strong. Further, she was completely happy to think that the gentleman who had loosened her front teeth belonged entirely to her. I hate to do it, Evangeline, but you've got to respect me and look up to me, even if I have to follow that writer's advice and beat you! In fact, he says, a great many women require more or less beating to make them loving dutiable wives!'

George Shook His Head.

"'George,' I said when he stopped for breath, 'just what is your intention? Am I to understand that you are about to knock me down in order to make sure of my imperishable affection? Are you contemplating denting my face for the purpose of making me too utterly happy to live? Because if you are——'

"George shook his head as if he were considering something under a microscope. 'What a mistake I've been making,' he confided to himself. 'Why, Evangeline, you are entirely lacking in that devotion which is part fear and which is necessary to make a happy wife! It is all my fault!'

"Right here I concluded that it was time to take George by the hand and lead him forth to safety. 'Darling,' said I, 'if you will tell me how a woman is going to stand in any fear of a man after she has viewed him crawling under the bed after his collar button or trying to light the gas with an already burned match or attempting to answer his child who wants to know what there would have been if there hadn't been anything I shall consider myself in your debt!'

"'Not wishing to thrust myself forward or unduly trumpet my own worth, I still would bet my false hair that if I ever get hold of that scientific friend of yours long enough to whisper a few thoughts into his ear he would shrivel up and blow away! And now if you really yearn to hold my love and affection, go down and shake up the furnace, because the house is getting cold!'

"'Oh, yur-ry well,' said George, peevishly, as he headed for the basement stairs. 'That's the way you always act when I attempt any real progress. Women aren't scientific!'

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"THANKS, very much. I'm having rather a difficult task of it, for our friend, the Constable here, corroborates Miss Renfrew's statement to the hair, and yet I am absolutely positive that there is a mistake."

"There is no mistake—no, not one! The wicked one to say it still!"

"Oh, that's all very well, madame; but I know what I know; and when you tell me that a dead man can ask questions. * * * Pah! The fact of the matter is that the Constable only fancies he heard Mr. Nosworth speak. That's where the mistake comes in. Now, look here. I once knew of an exactly similar case and I'll tell you just how it happened. Let us suppose"—strolling leisurely forward—"let us suppose that this space here is the covered passage and you—step here a moment, please. Thanks, very much—and you are Miss Renfrew, and Gorham here is himself, and standing beside her as he did then."

"Wasn't beside her, sir—at least not just exactly. A bit behind her—like this."

"Oh, very well, then, that will do. Now then. Here's the passage and here are you, and I'll just show you how a mistake could occur and how it did occur under precisely similar circumstances. Once upon a time when I was in Paris—"

"It's a Play."

"In Paris, monsieur?"

"Yes, madame—this little thing I'm going to tell you about happened there. You may or may not have heard that a certain French dramatist wrote a play called 'Chanticler'—or maybe you never heard of it? Didn't, eh? Well, it's a play where all the characters are barnyard creatures—dogs, poultry, birds and the like—and the odd fancy of men and women dressing up like fowls took such a hold on the public that before long there were Chanticler dances and Chanticler parties in all the houses and Chanticler 'turns' on at all the music halls until wherever one went for an evening's amusement one was pretty sure of seeing somebody or another dressed up like a cock or a hen and running the thing to death. But that's another story, and we'll pass over it. Now, it just so happened that one night—when the craze for the thing was dying out and barnyard dresses could be bought for a song, I strolled into a little fourth-rate cafe at Montemartre and there saw the only Chanticler dancer that I ever thought was worth a sou. She was a pretty, dainty little thing—light as a feather and graceful as a fairy. Alone, I think she might have made her mark, but she was one of what in music halldom they call 'a team.' Her partner was a man—a bad dancer, an indifferent singer, but a really passable ventriloquist."

The Expose.

"A ventriloquist, monsieur—er—er."

"Cleek, madam—name's Cleek, if you don't mind!"

"Cleek! Oh, lummy!" blurted out Mr. Nippers. But neither "Madam" nor Constable Gorham said anything. They merely swung round and made a sudden bolt; and Cleek, making a bolt, too, pounced down on them like a leaping cat, and the sharp click-click of the handcuffs he had borrowed from Mr. Nippers told just when he linked their two wrists together.

"Game's up, Mlle. Fifine, otherwise Mme. Nosworth, the worthless wife of a worthless husband!" he rapped out sharply. "Game's up, Mr. Henry Nosworth, bandit, pickpocket and murderer! There's a hot corner in hell waiting for the brute-beast that could kill his own father, and would, for the simple sake of money. Get at him quick, Mr. Narkom. He's got one free hand! Nip the paper out of his pocket before the brute destroys it! Played, sir, played! Buck up, Miss Renfrew, buck up, little girl!—you'll get your 'Boy' and you'll get Mr. Septimus Nosworth's promised fortune after all! 'God's in his heaven and all's right with the world!'"

"Yes, a very, very clever scheme indeed, Miss Renfrew," agreed Cleek. "Laid with great cunning and carried out with extreme carefulness—as witness the man's coming here and getting appointed constable and biding his time, and the woman serving as cook for six months to get the entree to the house and to be ready to assist when the time of action came round. I don't think I had the least inkling of the truth until I entered this house and saw the woman. She had done her best to pad herself to an unwieldly size, and to blanch portions of her hair, but she couldn't quite make her face appear old without betraying the fact that it was painted—and hers is one of those peculiarly pretty faces that one never forgets when one has ever seen it.

To Be Concluded To-morrow.

The Professor Ate Nuts

"YES," said Professor J. Haddensfield Joy, "I used to be a vegetarian myself. I have seen the time when a big porterhouse steak or a fat and lean slice of ham made me tear my hair, realizing how barbarous is man. Broiled spring chicken made me grate my teeth in rage.

"Not only was I vegetarian, but I was one of those who follow along lines of the most extreme differentiation. I couldn't eat pleplant tops or white oak bark, just because they were vegetable substances. I specialized in cocoanuts.

"I bought a hundred fine, fresh nuts. These I put in a cool and shady place, and thereupon discarded all allegiance to such foods as have dwarfed man's noble intellect. My family ate as usual.

"When morning dawned on my first day of real liberty I got a handsaw and sawed off the top of a nut. Then I drank of the life-giving fluid inside. After that I proceeded to feast on the meat of the nut, as my distant ancestors had done. When I started for the laboratory I took a fine nut under my arm and tried to walk in my usual heavy and methodical stride. It was no use. I felt like hopping along.

A Deep Longing.

"Persons whom I met addressed me as 'professor,' but with a gaze too human to suit me. I found myself looking up into trees with a vague, deep longing. It was as though I had inherited something that had been hidden in my soul's archives all my life. I arrived at the laboratory with my emblem of liberty still under my arm. The rude and thoughtless experimentalists looked and talked as they talk who are in a state of mental slavery. My luncheon made me want to run up and down the halls and passages and climb the posts.

"This glorious life lasted for a week. One night Mrs. Joy had to take a broomstick and punch me down from the picture railing, where I was trying to pass the night. The next day I could nt resist the temptation to climb a tree when I had started to conduct my daily investigation of life's solemn facts at the laboratory. A cocoanut was under my arm. Presently there came speeding along a very big man in a very big automobile. I landed the cocoanut on his head with a precision that I had never learned. In another instant my man was shaking my perch as if he were a concentrated earthquake. All the Joys swarmed around the tree. Mrs. Joy shrieked: 'Don't hurt him—he's been living on cocoanuts!'

The End of It.

"'Turned back into a monkey, has he?' said the man. 'I've been living on raw meat, and if I get my hands on him I'll eat him!' Then he departed.

"All the Joys got hold of me and took me back to the dining room and seated me at the table. Soon there was spread before me a repast consisting of one porterhouse steak, one slice of ham, three slices of bacon and a few other things. I could scarcely walk when I started to work.

"Henceforth give me a full dinner of real food or cut down the trees."

COTTON GOES UP AND THEN DROPS

NEW YORK, May 9.—In the absence of rains, especially in the eastern belt, the cotton market opened steady, with prices at a net gain of 2 to 6 points from Thursday's final. Spot people were good buyers. There was also a short covering movement by the local crowd and there was some outside buying. The selling was attributed mostly to brokers with Southern connection. The market quickly developed additional strength, and prices advanced 2 to 8 points from the opening level. July displayed considerable strength. This option was under heavy buying by shorts and held steady at 10 points advance over the previous close throughout the morning session.

Should there be no rains in the eastern belt, much higher prices are anticipated.

Weather indications overnight are predicted fair in the eastern belt, but other leading cotton States are predicted to have unsettled showers, except Louisiana and East Texas, where the weather will be fair.

The course the market took this morning made it more and more obvious that this is entirely a weather market. Unfavorable advices were received from Manchester, saying that buyers have very bad reports from the other side. It seems like conditions there are becoming bad again. The trade is much quieter. It is said that it is impossible to induce mills to buy cotton.

During the late forenoon the market was quiet but steady, with prices a shade lower than the early high point.

Reports of rains in Oklahoma and Georgia caused a general selling movement during the afternoon session, which was said to be profit-taking. Offerings from Wall Street became freer and the indications that the crop is in danger were ignored.

Experts in New Orleans stated that we might expect good rains the first of the week. This brought selling from the locals who were early buyers, resulting in prices making a rapid decline and dropping 2 to 8 points from the opening figures.

At the close the market was steady with prices at a net decline of 1 to 4 points from the final quotations of Thursday.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: May 11.48, July 11.58, August 11.36, October 11.02, January 11.01.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Liverpool came in rather poor, but rallied in the last hour. Liverpool will be closed tomorrow and Monday. Spots 2 points higher; sales, 6,000 bales. The feature on our side was the strength of July in New York, causing a corresponding advance in that position here and giving strength to the whole list. Absence of further rains in the Eastern States brought some covering demand from shorts. New York gossip says that about 50,000 bales will be shipped out and the loss in stock is causing short covering of July.

Manchester reports to agents here show a radical change and now are distinctly bad. They say it is impossible to interest mills in any offers of cotton, trade declining and strike danger imminent.

London reports that the first peace meeting dissolved without accomplishing definite results, that the next meeting will not take place until May 20, after the holidays, that the powers may occupy Scutari with a joint force as a precautionary measure.

The market eased after the close of Liverpool and trading was of no pronounced character. The talk of dry weather in the East is looked upon as a means to promote a short scare, on which idea there has been professional buying lately than as a real danger to production.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The weather will be warm, with showers to-night or Saturday in the Ohio Valley, the lower Lake region and the Middle Atlantic States. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi River the weather will be generally fair. It will continue cool in the Lake region and will be cooler from the Ohio Valley eastward and northeastward.

General forecast until 7 p. m. Saturday:

Georgia—Fair to-night and Saturday.

COTTON GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Joe Gatins is credited with covering a large line of July shorts, but he put them out again in new crop positions above 11 cents.

A wire from Savannah, Ga., yesterday said that unless it rains in a few days the crop will be damaged considerably.

* * *

Troy, Ala., wired that the crop conditions were going backward, owing to the absence of rains, and that very little cotton is up. In that section of the state cotton chopping is generally finished about May 15.

Niel estimated the consumption of cotton for the current year at 14,750,000 bales. He said a crop under 15,000,000 bales would warrant higher prices.

Conditions of the crop in Georgia must be pretty bad if the replies received by a New York firm from correspondents in the State are true. Following is the condition of the crop in some of the large producing counties:

Richland—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition poor, no stand. Zebulon—Crop 95 per cent planted; condition bad, too dry. Chiple—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition, very little up. Madison—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition good; dry. Covington—Crop 60 per cent planted; condition fair. Lawrenceville—Crop 80 per cent planted; condition 75 per cent. Jackson—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition fair. Danville—Crop 100 per cent planted; condition, dry weather has prevented its coming up; considerable complaint of the plant already from cool weather. Madison—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition one week backward. Winder—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition 80 per cent; ground very dry and cloudy and look for very poor stand. Bartow—Crop 80 per cent planted; condition very little up; very dry. Chauncey—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition scarcely any cotton up in Georgia at this date. Grantville—Crop 95 per cent planted; condition, none up and will not come until it rains. McRae—Crop 50 per cent planted; condition, very poor stand; much to be planted; seed scarce. Lyons—Crop 60 per cent planted; condition very bad; awfully dry; 60 per cent of seed planted is lost; getting seed to replant all is impossible here. Rochelle—Crop 98 per cent planted; condition good.

Absence of rains gave rise to good buying on the opening, spot houses being among the best buyers; also shorts, who apparently centered their attention on July option.

Mitchell and McGhee were heavy bidders for July.

Dallas wires: "Some rains in the Panhandle; clear and pleasant elsewhere. Oklahoma clear and cool."

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Hayward & Clark: "The weather map is favorable. It shows partly cloudy in the northern half of the belt and in the Atlantics; generally fair elsewhere. There was no rain except at Amarillo, in Northwest Texas. Temperatures are above normal. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, probably unsettled weather, with scattered showers in the northern half of the belt and cooler.

STOCKS INACTIVE ENTIRE SESSION

BY CHARLES W. STORM.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Selling pressure was exerted upon the list at the opening of the stock market to-day and most of the issues sustained declines. Some of the stocks which opened higher either lost all their advance or part of it. Canadian Pacific, which opened ⅝ lower, had increased its decline to 1¼ within a half hour.

Traders held that the passage of the Underwood tariff bill by the House last night was a depressing factor.

Among the other declines were Amalgamated Copper ⅜, United States Steel common ⅝, Lehigh Valley ⅝, Atchison ⅛, Pennsylvania ⅛, Chesapeake and Ohio ⅝, Erie ⅛, California Petroleum ⅛.

The specialties were the only group showing strength. American Beet Sugar advanced ⅝. Chino Copper was up ⅛, while Consolidated Gas rose ½.

Union Pacific opened ¼ higher, but soon lost its gain and declined ¼. Southern Pacific was ⅜ higher at first, but sold off. Reading began ⅜ higher, but lost its gain and declined.

The curb market was dull.

Americans in London were barely steady.

The market during the forenoon was generally higher. Amalgamated Copper at 85⅛ was up ⅜. Southern Pacific gained ⅜ at 95. Lehigh Valley, United Copper and Steel were up ¼. Canadian Pacific and Gas were up. The tone in the late forenoon was firm.

Call money loaned at 2½.

The market closed steady. Governments unchanged; other bonds firm.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Money on call ½. Time money unchanged; 60 days, ½@4 per cent; 90 days, 4 per cent; six months, 4¼ per cent.

Price of Cotton Now Is 11.6 Cents

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A slight increase over a year ago, but a considerable decrease when compared with 1910 and 1911, is reported in the price of cotton, according to figures given out to-day by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Agriculture.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Wheat was stronger this morning on small offerings in the pit, coupled with some fair buying by the larger commission concerns.

Cables were lower on the construction placed upon the Government May report, which was made public in the Old World late yesterday. Northwestern receipts were larger than a year ago, while the Argentine shipments were smaller, as was also the Argentine visible.

Liverpool was lower on corn, but prices at Chicago were ¼c to ⅜c better.

Oats acted in sympathy with the other grains and ruled strong.

There was a better feeling in hog products, with prices fractionally higher.

ARE YOU A FLY?

Read The Georgian's great editorial to-day, then study Winsor McCay's cartoon: The Fly-paper of Debt. To-morrow morning or on the next payday start a Savings Account with this strong bank.

A SAVINGS ACCOUNT will keep you out of debt, for it will inculcate habits of thrift and economy. Human progress has been based on that far-sightedness that contemplates future needs and prepares for them, and a savings account is the most secure kind of insurance on the future.

Georgian "Want Ad" Tablets Touch the Spot. Try Them if Business Is Run Down

GREAT PUBLIC NOT BITTER TO CORPORATIONS

Dissatisfaction With Business Conditions Exists, but There Is Little Revolutionary Spirit.

By B. C. FORBES.

"If I thought the great body of the American people were as bitter, as hostile to business as many of our legislators, I would give up and retire," said one of the country's foremost men of affairs, a man who has built up an important industry, a director in corporations of the first magnitude and the possessor of a large fortune.

* * *

"Do you think the people are as discontented and antagonistic to capital as is often represented—as ugly as Vice President Marshall says they are?" I was asked.

* * *

What do YOU think? Are they? Is it a case of empty vessels making most noise? Or are the majority of American citizens deeply disgusted with the present order of things? Are they on the verge of revolt, as the Vice President alleges? Is widespread revolutionary sentiment cooped up in the average citizen's breast? Is unrest in the United States worse than in other lands? Or is all our fretting and fidgeting, our mania for reform and regulation, our striving after innovations merely part of a world-wide movement toward a fuller measure of democracy?

These are questions not easy of dogmatic answer. The Hearst publications reach a greater number of Americans than the publications of any other concern in the country, and experience has taught me that they somehow come nearer the heart-beats of the people than any other publications of which I have any knowledge. The readers have a flattering habit of speaking their minds, of voicing approval or disapproval of articles, of taking the writers into their confidence, so to speak. In this way one is able to feel the pulse of the people.

Hundreds—thousands—of letters come to the business news department—not only from the East, but from the Middle West, the Far West and the South, as what is here written is printed in Hearst newspapers covering virtually the whole Union. Judging by this mass of correspondence from men and women in all ranks of life, there IS a good deal of discontent, of dissatisfaction with existing conditions, of bitterness against corporations, of determination to compel reforms in many directions.

* * *

But of revolutionary, anarchistic sentiment there is extremely little trace.

* * *

Speaking broadly, a great section of the population have the conviction that most ultra-rich capitalists have done things they ought not to have done, and by the doing of which they have taken unfair advantage of the people at large.

* * *

Lst me give extracts from some letters received within the last week or two.

C. H. Burnham, 131 State Street, Boston, writes:

On the strength of the interview given out by Jacob H. Schiff just before Mr. Harriman died—declaring Mr. Harriman was practically a well man—I bought Union Pacific, as at that time I believed Mr. Schiff, and it cost me a good many hundred dollars.

What do you think when Major Higginson comes out in an interview and says there is nothing the matter with the New Haven Railroad?

What is the answer, after reading what is going on before Commissioner Prouty?

From Corning, N. Y., "A Railroader on the Erie," criticising my articles on railroad subjects, writes:

Railroad managers and owners are nothing more or less than straight up and down thieves, robbing the public. They never tell how much they make. But anybody who becomes a railroad manager becomes a millionaire in a few years. They find fault about giving a few cents extra in wages to their men. But such as President Baer, the head of the coal trust, pays $100,000 for a private car. When such things as this are done it only makes you appear ridiculous in the articles you publish in favor of railroad robbers.

It is not my intention to-day to discuss the reasonableness or unreasonableness of hostility to corporations and capitalists, but only to indicate what the temper of a large section of the public really is. The subject will be worth considering again.

GREEK STARTS TO 'WAR;' THINKS SHRINERS TURKS

PENSACOLA, FLA., May 9.—Mistaking a body of Shriners, in their Oriental garb, for a company of Turkish soldiers, a Pensacola Greek went to a hardware store and purchased two automatic revolvers, saying he intended to "kill the Turks." The police explained to him that they were Shriners, not Turks. The company stopped here en route from Indianapolis to the Dallas conclave.

PRAY FOR MORE CHILDREN; STORK BRINGS TRIPLETS

NEW YORK, May 9.—The prayers of Lewis and Rebecca Isler were granted to-day when the stork brought them triplets. Since last January when their four children were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home the Islers had offered up daily prayers for more children.

BEARISH BUREAU REPORT HAS LITTLE OR NO EFFECT

CHICAGO, May 9.—The Inter-Ocean says:

"Wheat traders while putting a bearish construction on the government report did not take it seriously. Some traders regarded the report as having been discounted by the recent decline of 5c. Bulls said they expect to see a continued good export business on every decline, and believe the market heavily oversold and in a position to be easily rallied.

"Those who were bullish on corn believe that there will be no great pressure of receipts for a week or ten days, or until after corn planting is finished. It was intimated that some of the heaviest sellers of late winter were on the buying side for the past few days.

"Oats specialists are inclined to go slow on the selling side until there are more satisfactory reports in regard to the crop from Central Illinois."

POULTRY, PET and LIVE STOCK

Defects in Combs Of Chickens Often Mar Beauty of Fowls

Should Exercise Great Care in Breeding—Value by Judges.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

The pea comb is a triple comb, or a series of three straight combs paralleling each other, and joined to each other at the base, each having small but distinct serrations throughout their length. The two outer rows being lower and thinner than the center one, the points formed in this way being so low and broad that they resemble rows of peas, hence the name given them. This comb should fit close and solid upon the head, rather than to stand up from the head and incline to turn from side to side.

The breeds having this comb are the Brahmas, Buckeyes, all the Cornish and Sumatra. The most common defect in these combs is the twisting from side to side near the middle. In other words, it is a kink in all three of the rows of points and makes the comb decidedly out of line when viewed from in front.

Another kind of comb that is often seen in one where the middle part of the combs show all right and is good shape in itself, but the sides are very faintly outlined and would almost be taken for a single comb at first sight. In mating up such stock for breeding purposes one is very likely to get some single combs and then the trouble has commenced.

The V comb is a very peculiar one and looks much like a pair of horns standing up from the center of the head. They show but very slightly upon the heads of the hens. On the well matured males it shows up all right. The comb in these breeds is, however, not considered a valuable asset, so that the smaller it is the better it is liked.

Value by Judges.

The comb is only valued at 4 points out of the 100. The breeds having this form of comb are as follows: All the Polish (which are eight varieties), the Houdans, Crevecoeurs, and LaFleche, French varieties.

Then we have the Malay and the Silkie, with the strawberry comb, which is not very much of a definite comb and is found only upon these two breeds of relatively small importance. The comb is really of more importance than is generally considered as a distinguishing feature of the breed or variety it represents. Take, for example, the Light Brahma, the variety which stands at the head of our list of thoroughbred fowls for recognized type in breeding and put a sort of mongrel type of comb upon it and what would it be worth? Or the Plymouth Rock and put a wrinkled turn-over sort of a comb upon it and a Rock man would simply laugh at you and want to know what it was mixed with.

It frequently occurs, however, that some of the larger combed hens of a variety are the heaviest layers. That is, they may have a comb almost too heavy for the breed, although of the right type, and be greatest layers of the flock.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall:—Is it a good plan to breed pullets back to their sire? Some tell me it is just the thing to do, while others say it is detrimental to health. I would be very glad to have your opinion of it.

Monroe, Ga. S. J. R.

ANSWER:—While expert breeders of long experience take the chances of weakened vitality in the offspring for the sake of gaining some valuable points they have been striving hard for, yet, as a rule, it is not good policy to make a business of it. Unless you are sure you are going to be able to intensify a number of good qualities in the next generation, you had better not take the risk of multiplying a lot of serious defects.

You see, it is close inbreeding and is not a good policy for those who are not working for the very highest in type to undertake or run the risk of for health's sake. Of course, it is better to breed that way than to breed brother and sister together.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

W. G. Raoul Property To Be Put on Market

Ten Lots Facing Piedmont Park. Druid Hills Sale—Improvements on Peachtree Road.

Ten lots in the estate of the late William G. Raoul, facing Piedmont Park, will be sold at private sale by the Forrest & George Adair real estate agency, according to announcement made to-day. The property was carefully assembled by Captain Raoul through a long period of years and this is the first time it has been offered for sale. The lots are on the west side of Piedmont Avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets. Several of them taken together were offered two years ago as a site for the State's executive mansion. The frontages are from 60 to 70 feet and the depths 150 to 200 feet.

Greenwood Avenue Sale.

Eugene S. Kelly has bought through his concern, the Charles P. Glover Realty Company, a residence lot on Greenwood Avenue, between Highland Avenue and Briarcliff Road, just west of Druid Hills, for $11,500. This lot is 305 by 169 feet. It was bought for investment from a client of the Glover agency.

Meetings at City Hall.

People who are working for a regrade of Whitehall and West Peachtree Streets are meeting this afternoon with the streets committee of Council at the City Hall, to urge improvements on their thoroughfares. The Whitehall Street matter is expected to be settled at this conference, and the West Peachtree question will be taken up later.

Foundry Street Purchase.

Mrs. Bertha Kline has bought through J. H. Ewing, of the Smith & Ewing real estate agency, a 40 by 100 foot lot on Foundry Street, between Elliott and Mangum Streets, for $2,250. A small house is on this property. The seller was L. M. Anderson.

Sale on Piedmont Road.

Deeds have gone to record in the sale March 6 of a large building lot at the northwest corner of Piedmont and Ivy Roads, from Claude E. Buchanan to Wesley Hirshburg, for $6,875. This lot is west of the William J. Stoddard place and in the neighborhood of other fine residences.

A bond for title has also gone to record in the sale March 31 of a 20 by 60 foot lot on Whitehall, near West Fair Street, to Nathan Wolfe by A. D. Greenfield, for $6,500.

Real Estate Activity.

An increase in different realty transfers as set forth in The Fulton County Daily Report shows the tendency of real estate to assume its normal aspect in the market. To-day's issue of this publication contained seventeen bond for title items and 32 warranty deed items, and led several real estate men to remark that the number was the best and most complete that The Report has ever issued.

Big Deals Coming.

Several important real estate deals are in the contract stage and should be announced early next week. One of these involves approximately $100,000 and there are a number of smaller figures.

Road Work at Buckhead.

County convicts are working fast to complete improvements on Peachtree Road, anticipating increased traffic which will come about June 1, when the Capital City Club takes charge of its country club at Brookhaven. The right-hand side of Peachtree Road, starting at Buckhead, has been macadamized nearly as far north as W. S. Witham's estate, and only awaits the steam roller to be put in good shape. Space between the car tracks has been taken on this northward trudge of the convicts. The work will proceed to the DeKalb County line and then the gang will turn back toward Buckhead.

County Commissioners are well satisfied with the work and predict that Peachtree Road will be in very good shape when Capital City golfers take their sticks to Brookhaven.

To Widen Roswell Road.

The proposition of widening the Roswell Road from Buckhead to Piedmont Road (formerly Plaster Bridge Road) has been revived. A year or two ago this matter was agitated. All property owners except one agreed to give 10 to 20 feet, and the opposition of the single owner blocked the project. Now E. T. Luckie, of the Holmes & Luckie Realty Company, has taken up the matter again, and he expresses confidence in the outcome. Mr. Luckie's idea is to lay out the Roswell Road so that whenever the demand is great enough on the part of the people along the route, a car line can be built to Roswell. Either this or the street car company can leave the wide thoroughfare to vehicular traffic and establish a private right-of-way close by.

ON FOURTEENTH STREET, WEST, just a few doors from Peachtree, we own a strictly modern, up to date and practically new residence of nine rooms. This place also has a cement driveway, a garage, and the lot is 50 by 180 to an alley, and is on the south side of the street. The house itself is attractive, has all conveniences. The street, as everyone knows, is one of the most select North Side residence streets. We will sell this property $2,000 under value. On this basis, $6,000 cash will be required, balance of $6,500 will be divided into seven or eight annual payments if desired. $3,000 to $5,000 profit here sure in next three years. Several parties have applied for lease at $75 per month. This means about 7 per cent net on the investment.

Or we will exchange the property for well located income city property; accept or pay difference.

If You Are in Debt, You Are a Fly Glued to the Flypaper.

The More You Struggle, the Tighter You Stick. Soon Your Courage Is Gone and You Are a Dead Fly.

Copyright, 1913.

The picture at the top of this page is a picture for more than half of all the people in this country.

More than half the people are in debt—that is to say, they are living beyond their means, or they are spending every cent.

And the man who is spending every cent he gets is actually in debt and running in debt, for he is running in debt TO HIS OLD AGE, when he won't be able to make, and won't be able to spend, and when the spending of to-day means debt later.

Those that are in debt know what debt is. There is no need to tell them about it.

First you owe $50 if you are a little man, or $50,000 if you are a big man.

And then you owe $100—or $100,000 if you are big.

For a while you struggle and plan. You are going to pay it off soon. It is a good thing to use "O P M," that is to say, other people's money, in the effort to get ahead.

You tell yourself that all the big men have used their credit and borrowed and gone ahead rapidly.

It all sounds very nice and plausible.

But remember that YOU KEEP GETTING IN DEEPER.

The fly lights on the fly paper, perhaps with only one leg at first. He says this is nothing, and puts down the other leg to push himself off.

AND THEN HE IS STUCK FAST.

And then he says to himself: "I will fly away from this fly paper," so he begins flapping his wings. And both of his wings stick to the paper.

There he is with his feet stuck and his wings stuck and only his head free.

That fly feels about as independent and hearty as you do if you are in debt. And he says: "I can get off of this paper easily enough when I get ready. I'll just put my head down and push myself off."

He buzzes for a while. THEN HE PUTS HIS HEAD DOWN ON THE FLY PAPER, TO PUSH HIMSELF OFF.

Then his head sticks tight; he begins to choke.

By and by he rolls over on his side, he sinks into the sticky surface—AND THERE IS ANOTHER DEAD FLY.

So it is with men in debt. So it will be with you if you stay in debt.

The only hope for the fly, the moment he feels one foot on the fly paper, is to use those wings and fly away, not putting in the other foot; flying off as quickly as he can.

And a million times wiser and better is the occasional rare fly, who sees the other flies sticking to the fly paper and says: "I don't like the look of those flies; I'll stay away from them."

Look at the people in debt. See their worry. See the anxiety of the mother, reflected in the children.

See the lack of standing, the extravagance and the poverty mixed together.

You can't mistake the human fly stuck on the fly paper of debt.

Since you cannot mistake him, why not keep away from that fly paper?

Debt makes everything worthless.

If you owe a thousand dollars, it seems rather foolish to save ten or twenty.

You feel that you might as well spend it; it won't make any difference.

And so it goes, if you owe two thousand. And then it isn't worth while to save twenty or forty.

And you become a failure. You put down your feet, and then your wings, AND THEN YOUR HEAD, WHICH IS AMBITION, and by and by you roll over and you are a dead fly.

Keep out of debt.

Congratulations We Do Not Want

Lord Welby, speaking in London at the annual dinner of the Cobden Club on the prospects of free trade, said that the members might congratulate themselves on President Wilson's new tariff bill. There is the bare truth about what is thought of the bill by the out-and-out free traders of England.

Richard Cobden died in 1865. The population of Great Britain has almost doubled since. Railroads were in their infancy, and it took weeks to cross the Atlantic. Telegraphy had just begun and ocean-spanning cables did not exist. Cobden could never have even dreamed of the cheap and vast transportation systems, by land and sea, of to-day. He could never even have dreamed of the year when the United States would practically consume all the wheat it would grow. He could never even have dreamed of the development of machinery, changing, as it has, the whole face of world-trade.

Yet they did dream in those days. Cobden's associates dreamed and prophesied, too. They prophesied, and loudly, that within fifty years every civilized nation would have adopted free trade, and they were exactly wrong.

It would take many volumes to tell the whole difference between the conditions of the world's business in 1865 and 1913.

There are some congratulations that may be paid for too dearly.

Rivalry in Religion

THE disappearance of sectarian bitterness is one of the most observable facts of to-day. Whatever may be thought of it, no man can regard it possible to check the movement which is breaking down the old denominational antipathies. It is interpreted by many as the best modern evidence that a Heavenly Power is at work in the world. They believe that the Spirit of its Divine Founder is prevailing in Christianity over the human passions of men, and that the gospel of love is at last conquering completely the hearts of those who preach it.

The large front of this movement appears in religious conventions and in the current religious literature. In reiterated proposals of church federation and missionary co-operation not a few religious leaders ardently believe that the amalgamation of denominations in one great inclusive church is not only desirable but inevitable.

Protesting the Movement.

But this rosy view has its checkmate and counter-blast. There are very many—probably at this time the majority of church communicants, who do not view the loss of the sectarian spirit with sympathy. Large numbers of leaders are flung in violent reaction against it. Within each denomination there are organs, and therefore an organization, of protest. A keen eye observes that the internal antagonisms in the different denominations on the subject is really helping on the movement of fraternity as between the denominations themselves by transferring the emphasis of the old conflict between them as sects to mere family disputes.

The question of denominationalism will not be settled wisely in this fashion. There are profound reasons for the existence and maintenance of divergent groups in Christianity. There are many of the best men in each denomination who observe the tendency of the times, feel its power, and are drawn into it, who still stoutly question, if it is not liable to cost the cause of Truth and the energies of religion more than all its compensating amenities can amount to. The man in the street does not see very far into the problem of denominationalism. It appears to him a plague of wicked envies and a useless waste of power.

The Real Values.

Why is it, then, that those inside the churches, as leaders and laymen, who are manifestly consecrated men of the finest good sense, are strong in their support of separate denominations, especially their own? It is because they know the real value of denominationalism. It is not a narrow sectarian meanness on their part. They lend no encouragement to theological strife and religious bad feeling. They lament the wounds which persecution and bigotry have made and would make again. But they know that after all there are convictions of religious truth worth fighting for, and that the great loyalties of conscience have been the levers of salvation for the human race. As students of church history, they know that the stubborn quality of soul, the heroic mold of character and the magnificent manhood which have fallen out of that history, are not to be lightly set aside or interpreted apart from the great competitions of religion in which they were generated.

New Denominationalism.

So the rapidly evaporating sectarianism of our time, if full of promise, is full of peril also. It is our task to provide a relation of religious groups to each other and toward their common cause which will conserve consecration and aggressiveness, while at the same time it encourages their basal fellowship.

I believe it can be done and that it will be done.

As Christianity stands to-day, the demand for an arrangement of its group forces in a provoking attitude toward each other, but with the supreme objective clear enough to cure the evils of sectarianism. The suggestion for a "New Denominationalism" is offered therefore as a substitute for the tendency toward "No Denominationalism." It is that the theological quarrel shall be subordinated to the logical contest of religious groups engaged constructively for the kingdom of God on earth. It should appeal to anyone that the rivalry of creeds giving way to the rivalry of deeds will be infinitely better than the mere subsidence of all rivalry which is threatened.

This Maud Muller Wants to Rake Hay

She's Also Anxious to Plow, She Declares, in Application for Farm Job.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 9.—"I want to plough, clean house, make hay and drive binders in the field," says Grace Simpson in her application to the Devils Lake Commercial Club for a chance to do the same work on a farm as a man would.

"The day is past when it is out of the ordinary for a girl to labor at men's work," Miss Simpson asserted. "I love horses and I am sure that I can take just as good care of them as any man. The city work would kill me in the summer time. I can beat some men at their own jobs at that. If I can get as good wages in the country as I can get here I shall leave immediately."

PLYMOUTH, ENGLAND, May 9.—Upon her arrival here to-day on board the liner Olympic from New York, Mrs. Evelyn Thaw, wife of Harry Thaw, declared emphatically and positively that her husband is the father of her baby, a fact which he denies.

"One has only to look at the little darling to know who its father is," she said, as she cuddled the infant. "Harry is my husband and the father of my child. I love my baby and am going to see that it is justly treated by relatives of my husband."

Mrs. Thaw said she was going to return to the stage at once. She has signed contracts, she said, to appear in music halls in London at $5,000 a week, and later will be seen in vaudeville in the United States.

"I must live, and I think that I will be able to make a success," she explained.

By order of the Georgia Railroad Commission, Mathis is the victor. The Tallulah Falls Railroad has been instructed to build a station there and put an agent in charge.

Both towns are in Rabun County. They engaged in excited strife over the location of the station. Mathis built its plea on its natural beauty.

STERILIZATION OF INSANE IN GEORGIA URGED

Board Reports Conditions at the State Asylum Call for Many Reforms.

Striking new methods of handling patients in the Georgia State Sanitarium at Milledgeville are urged in the annual report of the board of directors, submitted to Governor Brown Friday. The most important recommendations are:

The enactment of a sterilization law, applying to certain classes of criminals and defectives, modeled after recently enacted laws of New Jersey and Indiana.

A ban on the commitment of epileptics (not insane), feebleminded children, harmless seniles and paralytics and persons escaping trial by pleas of lunacy. This is a hospital and not a prison.

The report declares that poor results have been obtained at the institution in the cure of insanity on account of the crowded conditions and the lack of facilities for segregating and treating the curable cases apart from the criminal and hopelessly insane. A psycophathic hospital is urged.

No Provision for Children.

"No provision is made in our State educational system for the care and treatment of feeble-minded children," states the report. "Most of them are capable of training that will aid in their happiness and fit them for some usefulness. Only the grosser types are committed to the State Sanitarium, while the great majority are allowed to grow up without care.

"Further commitment with the insane should be stopped and some adequate provision made by the State for these children."

The report criticises the present system of confining epileptics not insane in the sanitarium, pointing out that association with crazy persons tends to hopelessly depress them and also has a bad effect on the insane persons. A hospital for epileptics is recommended; and it is suggested that it should be named for T. O. Powell because of the great service he has rendered the State along such lines.

Negro Quarters Insanitary.

Alarming insanitary and overcrowded conditions in the negro building are reported and the need of $100,000 for an annex to this building is said to be imperative. To separate the acute insane from the hopelessly insane an appropriation of $125,000 is urged. For a nurses' home $40,000 is asked.

There are 3,429 patients in the institution, 1,108 having been admitted this year. The daily average during 1912 was 3,424, an increase of 41 over 1911. The annual average increase during the last five years has been 89. Of eleven criminals committed, three were found to be sane.

The average cost per patient last year was $153.06. The total income of the sanitarium was $530,000.

There is an exceedingly high death rate among the negro patients. Most of the deaths in the institution are from tuberculosis and pellagra, recent increases in pellagra deaths being reported as startling.

The report was submitted by John T. Brantly, president of the board.

Other recommendations for changes in the laws governing the institution are:

That the three nearest adult relatives can, with the consent of the Ordinary, waive the ten days' notice of trial for lunacy. This is to prevent victims being held in jail during the ten days.

CHILD BURNS TO DEATH PLAYING WITH MATCHES

MACON, GA., May 9.—Emmett Ellis, ten-year-old son of A. J. Ellis, a Macon contractor, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the home of D. B. Ellis, at Roberta, Crawford County, late yesterday afternoon.

The boy had been playing with matches in the garret of the house and it is supposed that the fire started that way.

BEST DETECTIVE IN AMERICA NOW IS ON CASE, SAYS DORSEY

Solicitor Dorsey Says He Has Secured Powerful Aid in Search for Slayer of Girl---Woman Says She Heard Screams in Pencil Factory.

Shelby Smith, chairman of the Fulton commission, declared Friday afternoon that the board would back Solicitor Dorsey in any and all expense he might incur in the state's exhaustive investigation into the Phagan murder mystery. Smith said:

"We have instructed Dorsey to obtain the best possible detective skill for his probe and he would be backed by the couny commission to the last ditch in the money he spent.

"The fact the he hired a good detective Friday is news to me, but he has the sanction and backing of the board in the matter."

HIRES BEST DETECTIVE, HE SAYS.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey said Friday afternoon that he had the best detective in America working on the mystery of the Mary Phagan strangling.

Important developments had ensued already, he declared, and he was confident that an early solution of the case would be reached by the new expert of national reputation who had been placed at work on the clews.

The solicitor is understood to have the affidavit of a woman who swears that she heard a girl's screams as she was passing the factory at 4:30 o'clock the afternoon of the tragedy. The cries were shrill and piercing, she says, and died away as she stopped an instant to listen.

The woman was sure they came from inside the factory, but she gave little attention to her startling experience until she read of the strangling of Mary Phagan. Then it occurred to her that she very likely had heard the dying cries of the little girl and she reported the matter to the authorities.

Solicitor Dorsey, as his first action after the holding of Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee to the Grand Jury for the murder of Mary Phagan, put out the dragnet for witnesses.

A batch of subpenas were issued for the witnesses to appear in his office to give testimony in the case of "The State vs. John Doe."

After a long conference with Detectives Starnes and Campbell, Solicitor Dorsey asserted that action on the part of the Grand Jury might be expected any time after Friday. He plainly intimated that a special session of the jury might be convened Saturday to consider the Phagan murder.

The Solicitor declared as he left the court house with a private detective whose name he refused to divulge that he anticipated the development of startling evidence before night, which, he said, would clear matters materially.

Dorsey Questions Newt Lee.

With the private detective the Solicitor went to the Tower and was closeted with Newt Lee, the night watchman, for more than an hour.

The form of the subpena is taken to mean that many of the witnesses will submit their sworn testimony before the Solicitor General, who will thus have it in documentary form, instead of going before the Grand Jury to give oral testimony. However, it will be necessary for the material or indicting witnesses to go before the Grand Jurors in person.

"The investigation has just begun," said Chief of Detectives Lanford Friday, in discussing the action of the Coroner's jury. "We were confident we had presented sufficient evidence to warrant the holding of the two suspects in the case, but we will have much more when the case gets into the courts.

Have Strong Theory Already.

"We are going to continue right on with the investigation and try to dig down to the full truth of the mystery. We have a strongly supported theory as to who committed the crime, but we are ready at any time to change our opinions as soon as the evidence points in another direction.

"It will be possible, with the rush and hurry of the Coroner's jury

SENATE BEGINS CONSIDERATION OF TARIFF BILL

Received From House and Referred—Hearings Are Secret. Expect Vote in Nine Weeks.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Shortly after the Senate convened to-day the Underwood tariff bill was brought over from the House, read and referred to the Finance Committee.

In the Finance Committee the schedule was assigned to sub-committee No. 1, composed of Senators Stone, Thomas, James and Simmons, and the wool schedule to No. 2—Senators Williams, Shively, Gore and Simmons. The remaining schedules were divided equally between subcommittees 1, 2 and 3.

Hearings on the bill will be behind closed doors, the Democrats having decided that public hearings would consume too much time. It is expected that three weeks will be used by the committee in considering the measures, and six weeks more in debate on the floor.

It also is considered certain that a number of changes will be made in the measure, necessitating its reference to the conference of the House and Senate members.

On the final test in the House last night the vote was 281 to 139, five Democrats voting against the bill and two Republicans voting for it. Four Progressives supported the bill and fourteen opposed it, while one Independent Progressive joined with the majority.

When Speaker Clark announced the vote in loud tones that revealed his satisfaction exhuberant Democrats hoisted a stuffed Democratic donkey over the heads of their colleagues in the rear of the chamber, a ripple of applause followed and the gavel fell on the first chapter in the history of President Wilson's extra session of Congress.

With the bill on its way to the Senate, there was a rush of Representatives for their homes. In the House adjournment will be taken three days at a time beginning next week until June 1.

passed, for my men to work with more deliberation and care and to sift with a greater thoroughness every bit of evidence that comes into their possession. Even if nothing new should develop, we have enough leads to keep half a dozen detectives busy for a week."

Detectives Rosser, Campbell, Black, Starnes and Bullard are still working with the chief on the case and probably will continue until the mystery is cleared.

Lemmie Quinn, foreman in the tipping department at the National Pencil factory, was the first of the witnesses to be examined by the Solicitor. He was in Mr. Dorsey's office a considerable part of the forenoon and underwent a rigorous examination.

New Witnesses Sought.

Detectives Starnes and Campbell also were with the Solicitor, and two of the Solicitor's assistants, Newton Garner and Dan Goodlin, were dispatched the first thing in the morning to hunt up new witnesses of whom Mr. Dorsey had information.

Foreman Quinn was called, it is understood, to clear up the discrepancies in his testimony and the statement he is said to have made to the detectives and to several of his acquaintances. In his testimony before the Coroner's jury he declared that he visited the factory between 12:10 and 12:30 o'clock, the afternoon of the killing of Mary Phagan. He said he talked with Frank for two minutes in the superintendent's office.

Detectives declared that Quinn had told them and other persons that he did not visit the factory at all Saturday and that he was not there from the time he left Friday until the following Monday.

Frank Expected To Be Held.

"That's about what I expected at this time," was the comment with which Leo M. Frank, with little trace of emotion, received the news of the action of the Coroner's jury Thursday night.

Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor was the officer who informed both Frank and Newt Lee that the jury had recommended that they be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

The night watchman received the news indifferently and had nothing to say.

Atlanta, Ga., May 8, 1913.

We, the Coroner's jury, impaneled and sworn by Paul Donehoo, Coroner of Fulton County, to inquire into the cause of the death of Mary Phagan, whose dead body now lies before us, after having heard the evidence of sworn witnesses, and the statement of Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, find that the deceased came to her death from strangulation. We recommend that Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

(Signed)

HOMER C. ASHFORD, Foreman.

DR. J. W. HURT, County Physician.

Solicitor Dorsey said Friday he would give the Phagan case all of his attention and present his evidence to the Grand Jury as quickly as possible.

The solicitor has shown an anxiety to avoid delays of any nature in hunting down the slayer of the Phagan girl, and now that the Coroner's jury has turned the case over to the Solicitor and the Grand Jury it may be taken for granted that the investigation will be hurried along with all possible speed.

Case in State's Hands.

"The case now is fully in the hands of the State," said the Solicitor Friday morning. "It will not be presented to the Grand Jury Friday, but I shall endeavor to present it at the earliest possible moment. The instant that I have a complete case I shall bring it to the attention of the Grand Jury. It is my desire to bring the slayer of Mary Phagan to justice with the greatest dispatch. A great crime has been done and I am no less eager to see the guilt determined than the general public."

It required the Coroner's jury about twenty minutes to frame its formal verdict Thursday night. The jurors received a brief charge from Coroner Donehoo and filed from the Commissioners' room in the police station at 6:08 o'clock. At 6:28 they were back with their verdict.

Coroner Donehoo admonished the jurors to be as ready to hold a person who they thought might be withholding information of the crime as to hold a person they regarded as the possible culprit. A person possessing knowledge of the crime and withholding it, he said, was an accessory after the fact.

An immediate hush fell on the packed room when the jurors returned. There was a dead silence except for the voice of Homer C. Ashford, foreman of the jury, when the verdict was read.

Girls Testify Against Frank.

The most damaging testimony against Frank in regard to his treatment of employees at his factory was saved until the last hours of the hearing. Girls and women were called to the stand to testify that they had been employed at the factory or had had occasion to go there, and that Frank had attempted familiarities with them.

Nellie Pettis, of 9 Oliver Street, declared that Frank had made improper advances to her. She was asked if she ever had been employed at the pencil factory.

"No," she answered.

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I have seen him once or twice."

Q. When and where did you see him?—A. In his office at the factory, whenever I went to draw my sister-in-law's pay.

Q. What did he say to you that might have been improper on any of these visits?—A. He didn't exactly say—he made gestures. I went to get sister's pay about four weeks ago and when I went into the office of Mr. Frank I asked for her. He told me I couldn't see her unless "I saw him first."

Says He Winked at Her.

"I told him I didn't want to 'see him.' He pulled a box from his desk. It had a lot of money in it. He looked at it significantly and then looked at me. When he looked at me, he winked. As he winked he said: 'How about it?'

"I instantly told him I was a nice girl."

Here the witness stopped her statement. Coroner Donehoo asked her sharply:

"Didn't you say anything else?"

"Yes, I did! I told him to go to h—l! and walked out of his office."

Thomas Blackstock, who said that he was employed at the factory about a year ago testified as follows:

Tells of Frank's Conduct.

Q. Do you know Leo M. Frank?—A. Yes.

Q. How long have you known him?—A. About six weeks.

Q. Did you ever observe his conduct toward female employees of the pencil factory?—A. Yes. I've often seen him picking on different girls.

Q. Name some.—A. I can't exactly recollect names.

Q. What was the conduct you noticed particularly?

The witness answered to the effect that he had seen him place his hands with undue familiarity upon the person of girls.

Q. See it often?—A. A half dozen times, maybe. He generally was seen to become that familiar while he was touring the building.

Q. Can't you name just one girl?—A. Yes. Magnolia Kennedy.

Q. Did you see him act with undue familiarity toward her?—A. No. I heard talk about it.

Q. Before or after the murder?—A. Afterward.

"Girls Tried to Avoid Him."

Q. When did you observe this misconduct of which you have told?—A. A year ago.

Q. Did you hear complaints around the plant?—A. No. The girls tried to avoid him.

Mrs. C. D. Donegan said she was connected with the pencil plant for three weeks. Her capacity was that of forelady. She resides at 165 West Fourteenth Street with her husband.

Her testimony follows:

"State your observations of Frank's conduct toward the girls and women of the plant."

"I have noticed him smile and wink at the girls in the place. That was two years ago."

"Did you make a statement to the detectives of undue familiarity you had witnessed?"

"I told them that I had seen Frank flirt with the girls and women—that was all I said."

Charges Familiarities.

The testimony of Nellie Wood, a young girl of 8 Corput Street, came next.

In brief it was this:

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I worked for him two days.

Q. Did you observe any misconduct on his part?—A. Well, his actions didn't suit me. He'd come around and put his hands on me, when such conduct was entirely uncalled for.

Q. Is that all he did?—A. No. He asked me one day to come into his office, saying that he wanted to talk to me. He tried to close the door, but I wouldn't let him. He got too familiar by getting so close to me. He also put his hands on me.

Q. Where did he put his hands?—A. He barely touched my breast. He was subtle with his approaches, and tried to pretend that he was joking, but I was too wary for such as that.

Quit His Employ.

Q. Did he try further familiarities?—A. Yes.

Q. When did this happen?—A. Two years ago.

Q. What did you tell him when you left his employ?—A. I just quit, telling him that it didn't suit me.

Frank's testimony was looked forward to with keen interest, but when he was called to the stand in the afternoon, he merely answered additional questions as to his movements on the day of the crime and failed to add materially to the evidence in hand.

He appeared pale and haggard from his imprisonment, but he replied to all of the questions clearly and showed no hesitation or apparent fear. He was asked:

Testimony of Frank.

Q. What kind of elevator door is there to the shaft in the pencil factory?—A. Sliding doors.

Q. How many?—A. One on each floor.

Q. Are they latticed or solid?—A. Solid.

Q. Where was the elevator at 12 o'clock Saturday?—A. I did not notice.

Q. Were the doors open or closed? A. I don't remember.

Q. What protection would a person have from falling down the shaft if the doors were left open?—A. A bar which projects across the opening.

Q. After the crime was committed, where did the elevator stand?—A. I only know where it stood Sunday morning. It then was on the second floor.

Didn't File Time Tape.

Q. When you last removed the tape from the time clock, what did you do with it?—A. Handed it to an officer in the building.

Q. Did you put it on file?—A. No.

Q. Are you sure?—A. Yes, positive.

Q. Do you remember a party at your house on the night of April 26?—A. Yes.

Q. Can you name the guests?—A. I don't remember them all.

Q. When the police came to bring you down to the factory that Sunday morning, what was said about whisky?—A. I said I wanted something warm to drink. One of the detectives suggested whisky.

Q. What time was it?—A. Between 7:30 and 8 o'clock.

Says He Viewed Body.

Q. What did you say about dreaming?—A. I said to someone that I thought I had dreamed of hearing the telephone ring in the dead of night.

Q. When you went to the undertakers', did you go in the water closet instead of the room in which the body lay?—A. No.

Q. Did you view the body?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you recognize the girl—A. Yes.

Q. When did you first hear her name?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What time did you return home that Sunday afternoon?—A. I don't recollect.

Q. Did you telephone your wife before your return?—A. Yes.

Q. Was the murder discussed at home that afternoon?—A. Not much.

Q. What topic was discussed.—A. I don't remember.

Often Does Not Remember.

Q. When did Quinn first mention to you his visit to the factory on the 26th?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What did he say?—A. He said, "Don't you recollect that I was at the factory Saturday about noon?"

Q. What did you tell him about withholding that information until your attorney had been consulted?—A. I don't remember. I had so many visitors that I couldn't recollect the exact words.

Q. Who suggested the conference with your attorney relative to Quinn's visit?—A. I don't remember.

Q. How long have you known you had counsel?—A. Since Monday.

Q. Why was it mentioned that Quinn's visit be kept quiet until consultation with your lawyer?—A. I don't remember.

Explains Locks and Doors.

Q. How can you lock the door between your office and the dressing room where the blood spots were found?—A. I have never seen it locked.

Q. Is it usually open or locked?—A. Closed.

Q. Is there any way of closing the doors on the back stairway?—A. Yes. They are locked.

sation with Detective Starnes at the time you were informed of the tragedy?—A. He asked me if I was superintendent of the National Pencil Factory. "I'd like to have you come down here at once," he said when I informed him that I was Leo Frank. He said he wanted me to identify a girl, and asked me if I knew Mary Phagan.

Q. Didn't you say that the first time you had heard her name was while you were traveling in the auto on the way to the factory Sunday morning?—A. I don't recollect that I did.

Q. Did you have any trouble with a girl in your office Saturday morning?—A. No. There was one incident where a mistake had been made in the pay envelope of Mattie Smith, but it was corrected without any trouble.

Tells of Callers at Office.

Q. What time was Mattie Smith in your office?—A. Between 9 and 10 a. m.

Q. Did any one enter while she was there?—A. I don't remember.

Q. Give the name of every one in the office throughout the day Saturday?—A. Mr. Darley, Mr. Holloway, the office boy, Miss Hall, the stenographer; Mr. Campbell, Mr. Fullerton, Mrs. White, Lemmie Quinn, Mr. Gantt, Emma Clark, another girl employee, Arthur White, Harry Denham, Newt Lee and Mary Phagan.

Q. Did you see May Barrett?—A. I don't know her.

Q. What did you say to Emma Clark?—A. I don't remember saying anything to her.

Atlanta Ready for Presbyterians

5,000 Visitors for Assemblies

Noted Speakers on the Programs

REV. THOMAS STONE CLYCE, moderator of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, 1912, who will be one of the prominent visitors in Atlanta next week. Dr. Clyce is president of Austin College at Sherman, Texas.

Consolidation of Four Branches To Be Considered in Gathering Here Next Week.

Preparations are virtually completed to-day for the great Presbyterian convention to be held in Atlanta beginning May 15. For the first time in the history of Presbyterianism in America representatives from its four branches will gather in joint assembly.

From May 15 to May 22 more than 5,000 visiting Presbyterians will be the city's guests. Of this number 1,500 will be regularly appointed commissioners, constituting the largest religious assemblage ever held in the South. More than 700 representatives of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., or Northern Division, 500 from the Presbyterian Church, U. S., or Southern Division; 300 from the United Presbyterian and 25 special representatives from the Associate Reformed Churches will comprise the assemblies.

Atlanta has thrown open her homes to the visitors, all denominations uniting in entertaining the church representatives who come from every State in the Union, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Panama. A number of prominent churchmen from Canada also are expected. The commissioners are chosen, one-half from the clergy and the other half from the laity.

They constitute the governing body of the church and are selected largely because of their prominence and their activity in church work.

Church Union Considered.

Southern Presbyterians will be especially interested in the discussions looking to a union between the United and the Southern divisions. Two committees were appointed last year, one from each of the branches, to confer on a possible basis of union. Their reports will be submitted. It is said the committees have reached an agreement and it is generally believed that the assemblies will act favorably on their reports. Details of the agreement have not been published, but it is believed that they will prove acceptable to both bodies.

While the Associate Reformed branch of the church will not hold a regular conference here, prominent representatives will be in attendance as special commissioners. Their synod met in December, but it is probable that an adjourned session will be held.

A feature of the meeting here, carrying with it perhaps the most widespread interest, will be a possible effort to unite the Northern and Southern branches of the church. Unorganized endeavor has been made during several years past to bring about the union, but with no further results than that churchmen have been aroused on the subject. The joint meeting here is regarded by representative Presbyterians as a most auspicious occasion for the matter to be thrashed out and a union effected. No such opportunity has ever offered itself, as the assemblies have always met in widely separated cities, at separate times.

Union Seminary Fight.

Of considerable interest, particularly to the Northern branch of the church, will be the effort to bring Union Theological Seminary back into the fold. The sixteen delegates from New York, however, were elected on the pledge that they would fight to maintain the present status of the seminary. Charges of extravagance and usurpation of authority against the Board of Home Missions of the Northern Church will be investigated. Rev. Joseph L. Weaver, D.D., of Rocky Ford, Colo., it is understood, has preferred the charges. Dr. William Fulton, of Philadelphia, is chairman of the investigating committee.

An interesting fight for the place of moderator of the Northern Assembly has developed. The leading candidates are Rev. Dr. Maint-Alexander, of Pittsburg; Rev. Dr. Samuel S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio; Rev. Dr. William McKibbin, president of Lane Theological Seminary of Cincinnati, anad Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Hinitt, of Danville, Ky.

Bryan to Speak.

The meeting of the assemblies in Atlanta will bring to the city some of the notable men of the country, prominent not only in church affairs, but national figures also.

United States Senator Hoke Smith will be present Tuesday, May 20, to preside over a meeting for home missions. Some of the most prominent leaders of the Associate Reformed branch of the church will be in attendance upon the assemblies, one of them being Dr. J. H. Pressley, of Statesville, N. C., moderator of the A. R. P. division.

Among the definite arrangements already made are a number of conferences at the various churches of the city. The main sessions will be held at the Baptist Tabernacle and the Auditorium.

A joint fellowship gathering will be held at the Auditorium Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. R. O. Flinn, of the North Avenue Church of Atlanta, will preside. A welcome address will be delivered by J. K. Orr, an elder of the North Avenue Church, after which fraternal greetings will be extended from the moderators of the four assemblies, Rev. T. S. Clyce of Texas, for the Southern division; Rev. J. H. Pressley, of North Carolina, for the Associate Reformed Assembly; Rev. Hugh H. Bell, of California, for the United Assembly; Rev. Mark A. Mathews, of Washington State, for the Northern division.

Canadian on Program.

The principal address of the evening will be made by Mr. James McDonald, Ph. D., of The Toronto Globe, Toronto, Canada, on "The Church's Responsibility for International Peace."

Under the direction of Rev. Dunbar Ogden, of Central Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, a union communion service will be held at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Baptist Tabernacle. The moderators of the four assemblies will conduct the service.

Rev. Charles R. Stelzle, of New York, and Marion Jackson, of Atlanta, will be principal speakers at a Christian social service meeting Saturday night at the Auditorium. "Christian Citizenship and the Social Evil" is the subject of Mr. Jackson's address.

U. S. EXPERTS DOUBT 'CURES' BY FRIEDMANN

WASHINGTON, May 9.—"Effects of the Friedmann cure thus far observed do not justify the confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by well-meant publicity."

This is the crux of an official statement from the board of examiners of the public health service, delivered by Dr. John F. Anderson before the American Congress of Physicians and Surgeons in Washington to-day.

Dr. Anderson said harm may have been done by undue publicity in lessening the confidence of tuberculosis victims in well-recognized methods of treatment.

With respect to the patients under examination in New York, he said many have developed no considerable infiltrate at all and have not suffered from abscess formations. This would indicate that they must be under treatment a long time to effect a cure, as Dr. Friedmann stated that infiltrate and abscess formations indicated more or less rapid progress toward cure.

Not Ready to Give Opinion.

The report which was also submitted by Dr. Anderson and Dr. A. M. Stimson, another public health surgeon, said in part:

"At the present time we are not in position to express an opinion upon the present cases under observation. The disease for which the remedy is used is prolonged and is marked by periods of improvement and retrogression.

"We must not lose sight of the possible therapeutic value of this preparation, but it is necessary to guard against too great an optimism in respect to its merits. However, we are in a position to state that the facts thus far observed do not justify the confidence in the remedy that has been inspired by widespread publicity.

"In our opinion, harm may have been done by this undue publicity because it has lessened the confidence of tuberculosis patients in well recognized methods of treatment, or interrupted their use.

"In our series of patients, Dr. Friedmann has made has made almost exclusive use of the intramuscular method and a very considerable portion of them have developed either no considerable infiltrate at all or have suffered from abscess formations.

Large Amount of Serum Refused.

"It is very evident, therefore, that a considerable number of Dr. Friedmann's patients may expect their treatment at the hands of Dr. Friedmann to cover a long period.

"Concerning the cultures submitted to us, we may state that a series of experiments are under way.

"The bacillus has been found to be an acid-fast organism, having properties quite different from those of any tuberculosis baccilus with which we have been acquainted. It appears to be identical with an organism cultivated from a few loopfulls of the material used for injection which Dr. Friedmann permitted us to place on culture media in his presence.

"We requested Dr. Friedmann to furnish us with a large quantity of this material for examination, but this he refused to do.

"We can state that living acid-fast bacteria are being injected by the muscular and intravenous method, although we are ignorant of what medium they are suspended in, or what additional substance or substances may be contained in the final mixture."

SHRINERS OFF TO DALLAS TO CAPTURE MEET FOR ATLANTA

I want to again express my appreciation for the assistance of Mr. Hearst and his newspapers throughout the country. If Atlanta gets the 1914 meeting Mr. Hearst and his papers will be largely responsible.—POTENTATE FORREST ADAIR.

"The Imperial Council will meet in Atlanta in 1914. Personally I have no doubt of it. We have hotel accommodations; Memphis has not and we have made a remarkable record in raising a fund of $76,000 in one day that every Shriner in America knows about.

"And we leave to-night for Dallas better equipped to extend an invitation of this kind than any city or Temple that has extended a like invitation in a great number of years."

With this statement Forrest Adair, potentate of Yaarab Temple, announced Friday morning that every detail of the pilgrimage to the convention of the Imperial Council of Shriners at Dallas, Tex., was complete and Atlanta's delegation, nearly 200 strong, would leave in a special train over the Southern Railway at 10 o'clock Friday night.

Reach Dallas Sunday.

Early Sunday morning the Atlanta pilgrims will have crossed the hot sands and entered the Oasis of Dallas. They will go into the city with their coats on their arms, prepared to drown out any discordant note, from Memphis, or anywhere for that matter, with the now familiar slogan:

"Atlanta, 1914."

At Birmingham, Meridian, Shreveport and a score of points along the line, Atlanta boosters will board the train, and go with the delegation to Dallas to swell the total and bring the convention to the Southeast next year.

Mr. Adair and his official delegation, W. A. Foster, John A. Hynds and Claude H. Hutcheson, of Jonesboro, will extend the invitation.

They will be fortified with official invitations from the Mayor and City Council and every trades organization in the city, as well as open contracts from every hotel in Atlanta, assuring accommodations for as many as 4,000 Shriners, the number expected here next year.

No "Holdup" in Rates.

The beauty of the hotel contracts, as explained by Mr. Adair, is that "inauguration rates" will not be charged.

"Only the regular rates," said Mr. Adair, "will be in force, and I have with the contracts a diagram of the floor space indicating the room and the regular rate. They won't be able to go above the rate, even if the hotel men felt inclined to.

"Memphis will not get the convention, because it hasn't got the hotels and the Shriners know it," said Mr. Adair. "They're building one now, but it won't compare with any of the nicer hotels already completed in Atlanta, and as for the best hotels there—Atlanta's got better on the side streets. This alone makes it doubly sure we'll get the convention, but if there's any doubt the size of our delegation removes it."

The Arab Patrol of Yaarab Temple, the crack drum corps, 40 strong, will be a valuable asset of the Atlanta delegation. It is an independent organization formed by the temple for convention work and occasions that demand public appearance. It has attracted much attention at conventions throughout the country.

Members of the Patrol.

The patrol is as follows:

Captain J. O. Seamons, First Lieutenant H. C. Ashford, Second Lieutenant F. E. Van der Veer, First Sergeant C. W. Ferguson, Quartermaster H. H. Milner and Patrolmen Albert Akers, C. E. Barber, J. J. Barnes, Jr., W. D. Benson, F. M. Brotherton, George E. Argard, R. A. Burnett, G. I. Butler, A. B. Chapman, R. E. Church, Frank Cundell, E. E. Cunningham, J. C. Deavours, George Freeman, L. H. Geiger, H. H. Green, J. L. Grice, J. C. Jones, M. E. McGee, M. N. Mixon, T. A. Mixon and R. S. Osborn.

Some unofficial delegates who will go are Fred Houser, J. C. Greenfield, S. L. Dickey, W. R. Joyner, H. G. Martin, J. B. Jacoway, Fred Patterson, Graham Phelan, J. Lee Barnes, Ben Corey, J. F. Carson, Fred Van der Pool, J. F. Waitt, George Beck, Jesse E. Couch and James Kempton.

The delegation will leave Dallas, returning, the evening of May 15 at 8 o'clock and arrive in Atlanta the evening of May 17.

The Atlanta Lodge of Elks has pledged the Shriners its enthusiastic support in the effort to bring the Shrine here next year. Exalted Ruler Dunne has written the Shriners that the Elks' home will be wide open to all visitors if the great meeting comes here.

TO LIVE 100 YEARS READ NEWSPAPERS, SAYS CENTENARIAN

BOSTON, May 9.—Ralph Butler, of Dorchester, is 100 years old, and to-day drew up a list of rules for living a century, as follows:

Walk and take plenty of other exercise.

Read the newspapers to keep your mind young.

Eat anything you want, but eat to live, not live to eat, and eat regularly.

Don't take your office cares home with you.

Get to bed early and regularly, and 5 o'clock is not too early to rise.

Two months ago Butler walked to city hall and surprised the Collector of Taxes by paying the amount due on the real estate he holds.

"I'm just as well able to walk to-day as I was twenty years ago," he said. "I feel as active as when 40."

Mrs. Wilson Picks Rome Postmaster

Congressman Lee Agrees to Choice of President's Wife—Bowie to Get Office.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Probably the only bit of political patronage that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is to dictate during her husband's administration was given her yesterday, when the President sent for Representative Gordon Lee, of Georgia, and told him that Mrs. Wilson would like to name the postmaster at Rome, her birthplace. The office is the most important in the Seventh District and pays a salary of $3,500 a year.

Mr. Lee told the President he would be glad to yield to Mrs. Wilson. The President said Mrs. Wilson would probably name J. P. Bowie, an elderly man who was very fond of Mrs. Wilson when she was a little girl. Mr. Lee said he would be glad to join in indorsing him.

Bride Revolts When Treated Like Child

Mrs. Ada Garrett Quits Place in Husband's Family Circle to Demand Divorce.

Mrs. Ada Davies Garrett, married to Thomas Hoyt Garrett March 1, 1913, and separated the last day of the month, filed a suit for divorce with the Superior Court Friday, because she said her husband wanted her to live in his father's home "just like one of the children," and took no other interest in her or her welfare.

The petitioner said that after the first few days of their married life, her husband, a young engineer for the Southern Railway, informed her that she was to take her place in his family circle just like his brothers and sisters.

WRITERS DROP 'BAD' SONGS; ALL WRITING BALLADS NOW

CHICAGO, May 9.—Doom sounded to-day for the smut song. It struck in "Tin Pan Alley," where the dens of the popular song writers are located. The song writers hurriedly are throwing together "clean stuff" in an agony of decent competition. Every writer in the block is pounding out ballad stuff.

NEGRO PUGILIST, TRIED AS SLAVER, WINS FIRST RULING

CHICAGO, May 9.—Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, won the first important point in his case to-day when Judge Carpenter, hearing the negro's trial for violation of the white slave dict, ruled that Belle Schreiber could not tell of alleged cruelties on the part of the black.

WORLD'S CREDIT BEGINS TO SHOW A GREAT STRAIN

BY W. R. LAWSON.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, May 9.—Serious bankers do not look with favor upon the renewal of gold shipments from New York to Paris.

All of the big international banks appear to be loaned up to the danger level, while the big new security issues that are coming along are bound to strain banking credit and resources. This week four new issues came out, and several more are in preparation.

Brazil's $55,000,000.

Brazil wants $55,000,000—$15,000,000 to be used for the repayment of treasury bills. Lever Brothers are putting out $5,000,000 new preference shares, and Baltimore Gas $3,500,000. United Fruit's $12,000,000 four-year coupon notes have been successfully placed.

Between now and the end of the month special settlements are due which are likely to increase the demand for money.

Situation in London.

Lombard Street is enjoying temporary ease owing to end-of-the-month borrowing from the Bank of England, but large repayments will have to be made within the next few days.

Further reduction in the English bank rate is not expected immediately. The Berlin rate is hardening, and if Boerse speculation breaks loose again, easy money may be a remote possibility.

Hitherto, while the war was in progress, European stocks have been upheld by finance houses for the purpose of facilitating big loan issues which they were preparing to make later.

American Stocks Firmer.

Between September, 1912, and the end of April, 1913, declines in European stocks have generally been very trifling, while American stocks suffered heavy declines.

$25,000,000 INSURANCE ON MORGAN ART WORKS

NEW YORK, May 9.—A situation almost without precedent in the insurance market is reported as a result of J. P. Morgan's plan to insure the $50,000,000 worth of art objects left by his father. The $25,000,000 that is being taken by 250 American and foreign insurance companies is the largest amount sought in many years upon a single risk.

It has been necessary to divide the collection into two risks, one in the old building of the Metropolitan museum and the other in the new building, effecting an average rate of 14½ cents.

DRUGGIST FLED IN FEAR OF BROYLES

Thought Recorder Would Send Him to Stockade for Breaking Garbage Ordinance.

A. S. Knight, manager of a Peters Street drug store, was convinced Friday that Recorder Nash Broyles is not such a terror as he had pictured in his mind.

Knight had never seen Judge Broyles, but had heard and read so much of him that when Sanitary Inspector Simpson cited him to appear in police court on a charge of violating the garbage ordinance he was attacked with a severe case of fright. Although an offense against the garbage laws draws only a small fine, Knight was tortured with the belief that the Recorder would put him in the stockade for about 30 days.

Therefore, instead of appearing in court Tuesday, Knight fled the city with his two children. Dr. A. L. Curtis, proprietor of the drug store, finally located the missing manager in Macon and persuaded him to return and surrender.

Knight told Judge Broyles Thursday afternoon he fled because he was "afraid." He was fined $5.75 in the original garbage case and $10.75 for dodging the court.

Look Out For the Big Market Basket

The good housewives of Atlanta find this feature of Friday's Georgian a great time-saver—a great money-saver. Those who advertise find it a great business getter. All are happy.

TROOPS IN TURK CAPITAL MUTINY

Commander General of Ottoman Army Uses Personal Guard to Quell Uprising.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 9.—Mutiny has developed in the Turkish army stationed along the Chatalja defenses, and it is feared a revolutionary uprising will follow.

Seditious placards were posted in the night throughout the Peroa and Stamboul quarters of the city.

Enver Bey, chief of staff of the Turkish army, is using his personal bodyguard to patrol the city. The guard consists of 700 picked and tried troops.

Sultan Mohammed V did not attend worship in the Yildiz mosque to-day.

Nicholas' Surrender Explanation Cheered.

CETTINJE, MONTENEGRO, May 9.—King Nicholas personally went before the National Parliament to-day and defended his action in giving way to the powers on the question of the evacuation of Scutari. He declared that annihilation inevitably would have followed resistance.

The statement was well taken and Nicholas was cheered.

Nearly all the Montenegrin troops have now left Scutari. King Nicholas feels keenly the humiliation of losing Scutari, and it again is reported he will abdicate in favor of the Crown Prince Danilo.

Scutari Saved From Destruction by Fire.

VIENNA, May 9.—Scutari, the Albanian city whose ownership nearly brought Europe to war, was threatened with destruction by fire to-day. A telegram from Cettinje said flames broke out in the main bazaar and owing to the absence of water and fire fighting appliances, spread rapidly.

500 STRIKERS IN BATTLE.

WINNIPEG, MAN., May 9.—Five hundred strikers at the Canada Car Company's plant to-day fought a battle with 180 strikebreakers. Several of the strikebreakers were injured.

Every Woman Casts Loving Glance at The Nestling Cuddled in Its Bonnet.

A woman's heart naturally responds to the charm and sweetness of a pretty child, and more to-day than ever before since the advent of Mother's Friend.

FEUD IN STATE DEPARTMENT GROWING HOT

Connor-Brown Fight for Place in Next Administration Sets Politicians Gossiping.

Well defined and authoritative rumors of a first-class row inside the Georgia Agricultural Department, involving the present and the next administration, is the piquant morsel of gossip political observers are chewing upon.

The present Commissioner of Agriculture, J. J. Connor, and the present Assistant Commissioner, J. J. Brown, both, it is said, aspire to be Assistant Commissioner under Commissioner James D. Price, who goes into office in June.

Some time ago Commissioner Connor and Assistant Commissioner Brown are said to have had an understanding, the alleged setting aside of which is now the cause of the disturbance within the department.

Brown is understood to have promised Connor his assistance in the matter of the recent election of a manager at the Agricultural Experiment Station in Griffin, in return for Connor's assistance in landing the Assistant Commissionership under Price for Brown.

When the election of a manager took place at Griffin recently, however, Connor was not elected, the plum going to Professor DeLoach, of Athens.

Since that election, Brown's friends claim that Connor has entered the race for the Assistant Commissionership under Price, and Assistant Commissioner Brown has been outspoken in his indignation and surprise.

The Assistant Commissioner will be appointed by Commissioner Price after he is sworn in, and in the meantime the disagreement between Connor and Brown as to which, if either, shall have the assistant's place is extremely interesting to political observers throughout the State.

New Gowns Shock 'Bath House' John

'And It Takes Some Shock to Get Me,' Admits Famous Chicago Alderman.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Alderman "Bathhouse" John Coughlin is so shocked at the gowns he sees on the streets that he has drafted an ordinance to regulate women's dress, solely, he says, on moral grounds.

"We must pass an ordinance prohibiting women from wearing vulgar and suggestive dresses," he told the Judiciary Committee. "Some of the dresses I see on the street shock my moral senses, and it takes some shock to get me. The gowns are awful. No wonder there is business for a vice commission."

Granite State Honors Pierce After 40 Years

New Hampshire Democratic Legislature Favors Statue of One-Time President.

CONCORD, May 9.—Franklin Pierce, the only President from New Hampshire, seems assured, at last, of a statue by his native State. The Senate has passed a House bill providing for a $15,000 appropriation. Governor Felker is expected to sign the measure.

The fact that Pierce was a Democrat and pro-slavery man has hitherto aroused strong opposition to a statue. The Legislature is Democratic for the first time in forty years.

PRETTY VASSAR GIRL AFTER 'BIG PAT'S' SHOT-PUT RECORD

MISS ELIZABETH A. HARDEN. PATRICK M'DONALD SETTING A NEW MARK.

Wealthy Not Safe by 1915, Lecturer Says

J. F. Emerson, Minneapolis Man, Predicts Great Revolution of the Unemployed.

Unless conditions materially change it will not be safe for a millionaire to step outside of his home in 1915. This is the prediction made by J. F. Emerson, of Minneapolis, who will lecture at Cable Hall Sunday afternoon.

"If a change does not take place to stop the rapid increase of the number of the unemployed, I predict that by 1915 there will be such a revolution as will make the millionaire afraid to step outside his home for fear of having his brains blown out by the starving man who awaits him," is the comment made by Emerson.

Emerson's lecture will be free to the public. The subject will be "Was Man Created for Heaven?"

SEVEN MEN GIVE PATCHES OF SKIN TO SAVE BOY

NEW YORK, May 9.—If 10-year-old William Caldwell, of Nutley, N. J., survives the burns which he received when he fell into a bonfire several weeks ago, it will be through the aid of patches of skin from no less than seven men, who have volunteered for the sacrifice. The surgeons figure that he needs 180 square inches of skin grafted upon his body to save his life.

NEW YORK, May 9.—"Well, I swan—"

Just at this point the automobiles around Forty-second Street became congested, and genial "Pat" McDonald, pride of the traffic cops and champion shot-putter of the world, broke off his exclamation. Maybe it was best so, for Patrick had just been told that a Vassar College girl was after his shot-putting laurels and he seemed a bit "miffed."

He did not seem at all pleased to think that his athletic prowess should be o'ershadowed—not by a young college girl, at any rate.

But Miss Elizabeth Abigail Harden, of Newark, N. J., and a freshman at Vassar, is just as proud of her record as McDonald is of his, and she said to-day that she will shortly do even better than 33 feet and 3-4 inches.

In the shot-put McDonald's mark for the 24-pound shot is 39 feet and 3 3-4 inches.

No Vassar girl will ever reach Pat's record, however, for they throw a seven-pound shot at the girl's college.

Miss Harden's triumph came in the annual field meet at Vassar last week, and she was easily the star of the day. Besides the shot-put even, Miss Harden won the basket ball throwing contest with a mark of 80 feet 13 1-8 inches and the baseball throwing with 205 feet 7 inches. In both the latter events she broke records held by Miss Inez Milholland, who heretofore had been held the champion all-around woman athlete.

Like Miss Milholland, the Newark girl is an ardent worker for votes for women, and the only blight to her triumphs of Saturday was the fact that the meet kept her from marching with the other 10,000 women who are fighting for the ballot.

GERMAN ARMY DIRIGIBLE LOST TWO DAYS IN STORM

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

KOENIGSBERG, GERMANY, May 9.—The Cassiopeia, a spherical German military balloon, which ascended from this city Wednesday with Captain Von Wobeser and two passengers on board, has been missing 48 hours in a storm, and fears are felt for the safety of the aeronauts.

MOST SICKNESS COMES FROM WEAK, INACTIVE KIDNEYS

There are scores of nervous, tired, run-down people throughout the city suffering with pains in the back and sides, dizzy spells, weaknesses of the bladder (frequently causing annoyance at night), who fail to realize the seriousness of their troubles until such conditions as chronic rheumatism, bladder troubles, dropsy, diabetes or even Bright's disease result.

All this is due to weak, inactive kidneys. The kidneys are the filterers of the blood, and no one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly. It is even more important than that the bowels move regularly.

If you suffer with such symptoms don't neglect yourself another day and run the risk of serious complications. Secure an original package of the new discovery, Croxone, which costs but a trifle, and commence its use at once. When you have taken a few doses, you will be surprised how differently you will feel.

Croxone cures the worst cases of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, because it removes the cause. It cleans out the kidneys, and makes them filter out all the poisonous waste matter and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the bladder, and quickly relieves you of all your misery.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, it is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

ALASKA ROW IS LAID TO FISHER FEARING BATH

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Richard S. Ryan, president of the Controller Bay Railroad and Navigation Company and one of the principals in the Dick-to-Dick letters, opposed Government ownership and operation of railroads in Alaska and attacked the accuracy of the Railway Commission's report on proposed routes, before the Senate Committee on Territories to-day.

Ryan asserted the conclusions of the commission are at variance with facts, and if the commission had used scientific facts in possession of the Government its report would have been entirely different.

Ryan referred sarcastically to the "wonderful visit" of Former Secretary of the Interior to Alaska and asserted that his unfavorable opinion of the Controller Bay country was due to the fact that he became "scared."

Ryan said that when Fisher started up the Bering River he lost heart at the sight of breakers, demanded to be let out of the boat and walked through marsh lands back to Katalla.

Matron at Soldiers' Home Dies Suddenly

Miss Aba T. Clayton Drops Dead After Five Years' Service to Confederate Veterans.

Miss Aba T. Clayton, matron at the Confederate Soldiers' Home, dropped dead Friday morning in her room after superintending the preparation of breakfast for the 106 inmates of the home. She had been afflicted with heart trouble.

Miss Clayton had been matron at the home five years and had won the hearts of the old veterans after whose comfort she looked with painstaking care. Her death was a distinct shock to them.

A sister, Miss Kate Clayton, of Atlanta, was notified and the body was brought to the undertaking establishment of Barclay and Brandon, from where it will be sent to Greensboro, Ga., the family home, for interment.

Lad, 13, Says He Shot Suitor of Mother

Declares He Ordered Man From Home, Then Fired in Self-Defense.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 9.—Duson Kostit, 32, is in a critical condition to-day from a wound inflicted last night by George Lukin, 13, son of Mrs. Amelia Lukin. The boy surrendered.

"Kostit had been calling on my mother for seven months," the boy told the police. "I ordered him to leave last night. He pulled a revolver and fired twice. Then I took aim with my rifle and he dropped, crying he had been shot."

"The Way, The Truth and The Life"

Mansions in Heaven, Factories on Earth, And Certain Houses

The night of His betrayal, Jesus said:

"Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.

"In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

You believe, and yet are troubled.

His cross and love have made you dissatisfied with self and with what you see and hear.

Visions of a heavenly home for you can not soothe you, so long as yonder hovels pour streams of children into Mammon's maw.

"They should be at play," you say.

Instead, factories and mills are marring their hearts and lives to make dividends for men.

Not this did Jesus mean, when He said:

"Suffer the little children to come unto Me."

And you would not—could not still the pity born of His spirit surging in your heart.

Rightly, you deny that woman's virtue depends on money.

But many families receiving less than a living wage must live within cheerless walls.

And this, you know—

When their girl is lost, fathers and mothers are not consoled by the thought that, had their wage been greater they could have saved her from the colorless, gloomy home which made her the more easily believe the luring lies of an easier way to live.

"Better had she died," you cry.

True! But you will not defend the hovel and the wage.

You recall:

"The day-spring from on high hath visited us,

"To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet in the way of peace."

And so, when some misguided man says:

"Segregate a few women for the common good."

You answer:

"Who shall choose the victims?

"Since when did God give man the right to assign some to mansions in the skies and send others to lodgings in hell?"

You justly say:

"Have done with the lie that men being lower than beasts makes necessary the ruin of some women!"

Even should a creature, like the fabled Minotaur of Crete, more monster than man, appear, you will not talk of sacrificing girls for him.

Instead, you will lock up the brute.

Segregate him in a cell; that would be well.

The day has past for the making and selling of white slaves in our city.

God's pity for His children is opening your eyes and ears.

You will help your sister. Never again will you consent by silence to her destruction.

Heaven help the man who thinks you will.

You are awake.

"You believe in God."

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE MEN AND RELIGION FORWARD MOVEMENT.

SUFFRAGETTES ASSAIL ASQUITH AND CHURCHILL

Guards Save English Premier From Injury by "Young Hot Blood" Militants.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Fresh suffragette outrages stirred England today. Members of the "Young Hot Blood" service of the Women's Social and Political Union burned Oaklea mansion, at Barrow, causing a $50,000 loss.

Other members of the union attempted to attack Premier and Mrs. Asquith and First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill and Mrs. Churchill as they were on their way to the Victoria Railway station today.

Mr. and Mrs. Asquith and Mr. and Mrs. Churchill were leaving on a journey to Venice, where they will embark upon the Admiralty yacht Enchantress for a cruise through the Mediterranean for inspection of British fortresses and navy depots.

Saved by Their Guards.

Only the fact that they had a heavy bodyguard of policemen, soldiers and private detectives saved them from injury at the hands of militant suffragettes.

Mrs. Flora Drummond, or "General" Drummond, as she is known because of her Amazonian qualities, who collapsed in Bow Street Court yesterday during the trial of the women arrested in the raid on headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union, was in a serious condition to-day. She had refused to eat for a week to spite the government and her health has become so badly deranged as a result that an operation may be necessary. She was removed to a nursing home this morning.

Love Wins New Ally.

Interesting sidelights on the organization of militants are being brought out at the trial of the militant leaders. Letters seized by the police include a number of passionate, burning love letters from a former Socialist member of Parliament. The letters show that he is infatuated with one of the leaders of the "wild women" and that he allied himself with the "cause" at her command.

Other documents show that the most dangerous branch of the union is called the "Service of Young Hot Bloods." No one but young unmarried women of high courage are admitted. These are some of the questions put to them before they are admitted into this branch of the union:

Are you willing to die a violent death to-day?

Are you afraid of dynamite or any other high explosive?

Will you swear to hunger strike if sent to jail?

Will you renounce the softer characteristics of womankind in favor of a great principle?

Are you healthy and strong and able to hold your own against a single policeman?

The arsonettes and the members of the dynamite squad are recruited from the "Y. H. B." service.

King Edward Speed 'Fiend,' Says Autoist

Late Monarch's Chauffeur Tells in a Book of His Ruler's Traits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Interesting trials in King Edward's character are revealed in the book, "What I Know," by C. W. Stamper, private automobile expert to the late monarch. It says: "The King liked speedy traveling, but insisted on careful driving through towns and villages. His walk was never leisurely. He was in and out of a motor car or a train in a moment.

"He spoke rapidly, ate very fast and smoked hard. Speed was the essence of his nature."

The King's chauffeur always was instructed by the equerry to observe the legal speed limit, but if the King complained, he was to increase the speed temporarily and gradually to slacken it again.

Better Than Medicine

Breathe Hyomei and Be Rid of Catarrh—Cleears Stopped-Up Head.

Nature has a remedy for catarrh and troubles of the breathing organs, a treatment that is far better than dosing the stomach with medicine.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicate the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing the catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the musous membrane.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the natural remedy, for it gives a curative bath to the air passages. It has a powerful healing and antiseptic effect similar to the air in the mountains where the forests give off the fragrant and healing balsams.

Hyomei has benefited so many sufferers of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucous, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing that it is sold under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. If the treatment does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense, while if it cures the cost is nominal. A complete Hyomei Outfit sells for only $1.00. Extra bottles of liquid if later needed 50 cents.

The incident was the sequel of criticism made by Mr. Sims upon Mr. Glover in connection with real estate transactions in Washington.

A special committee of the House recommended that the Speaker issue a warrant for Mr. Glover's arrest to answer the contempt charge.

U. S. CHECKS TOLL OF TUBERCULOSIS

Death Rate Decreased From 174.5 to 139.7 Per 100,000 Population in Last Decade.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—That the death rate in the United States from tuberculosis during the decade ending in 1910 has diminished from 174.5 per 100,000 of population to 139.7 was the statement made here by Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman of Newark, in an address before the sociological section of the National association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis.

"In other words," said Dr. Hoffman, "nearly 200,000 lives were saved from 1909 to 1910, in the campaign against this disease."

Dr. Hoffman stated that the death rate in New York City, 289.1 in 1881, had declined to 180.1 in 1912. He made no mention of any so-called "cures."

Surgeon B. S. Warren, of the U. S. Public Health Service, affirmed that deaths of government employees from tuberculosis were much lower than that of other laborers in similar occupations, because of the superior sanitary conditions."

"About 50,000 new cases of tuberculosis are constantly drifting about the country for long periods without even consulting physicians," was the statement by Dr. Harry Lee Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode Island State Sanitarium.

Loses Pants Seat, But Wins Election

Determined Candidate Does Not Let Accident Cost Him Vote He Goes After.

WINSTED, CONN., May 9.—Robert E. Maher, an officer of the Winsted Edge Tool Works and Republican candidate for Burgess in the town election, lost the seat of his trousers in getting a delinquent voter to the polls, but came out a victor.

A few minutes before the closing of the polls Maher was apprised that a certain elector had not exercised his rights. Jumping into an automobile he started in quest of the voter, whom he found at work atop of an ice house. Maher in coming down the ice run came in contact with nails which caught in his trousers seat, completely removing it.

He got to the polls on time with the voter, however.

FRANCE GASPS WHEN ALFONSO VAULTS FENCE

Democratic Behavior of Spanish King Startles Dignified Ministry in Dress Suits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—King Alfonso's state visit to France came to a close to-day with a remarkable aerial exhibition at the St. Cyr Aerodome. As the Spanish King and his official hosts looked on one aeroplane after another ascended until the sky seemed filled with them. Alfonso said it was one of the most inspiring sights he had ever seen.

One of the most interesting features of the Spanish monarch's visit has been his extreme democratic behavior. At Fontainebleau a gorgeous stand decorated with the royal colors of Spain had been erected in which Alfonso was to have sat while the troops were reviewed. The chair in which the King was to have sat was of bronze.

An Astonished Ministry.

President Poincare and the French Ministers, all solemn, obsequious and in dress suits, drew to one side to allow Alfonso to enter the pavilion. Instead of doing so, the King ran down to the railing, placed his hands upon it and vaulted over the rail like an athlete. Then he sat down on the grass and glued a pair of field glasses to his eyes while the Cabinet Ministers looked on in astonishment.

Shakes Hands With Aviators.

After the aviation meet Alfonso insisted on shaking hands with several aviators and mechanicians. His white gloves were black with oil and grease when he got through.

The French press believes that the visit has ben of great benefit to both France and Spain.

Before his departure for St. Cyr, Alfonso held a conference with Foreign Minister Pichon, at which the question of Spain entering the triple entente with France, Russia and England was discussed. It would then become the quadruple entente.

Danish Minister Is Courting Again

Washington Society Hears Engagement to Mrs. Townsend Is Renewed.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The engagement which friends insist existed between Mrs. Richard Townsend and M. Constantin Brun, the Danish Minister, last year, according to rumor current this week, has been renewed.

Several times while stationed in other countries M. Brun paid visits to Washington, many say to see the rich widow. When he was sent to Washington a year ago every one expected that Mrs. Townsend would soon take her place as chatelaine of the Legation.

CHATTANOOGA MAY NOT SEEK G. A. R. CONVENTION

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 9.—Although the time limit expires tomorrow, it is not known whether or not Chattanooga will invite the Grand Army of the Republic to meet here next fall. The railroads, it is understood, have failed to co-operate. A formal invitation, it is believed, can win the gathering.

THE PLAY THIS WEEK

FEATURE BILL AT FORSYTH.

There will be just four more performances of the Keith vaudeville acts that are at the Forsyth this week. One of the four will be to-day's matinee which is already heavily sold, another will be the Saturday matinee for which there is a large sale and the remaining performances are Friday and Saturday nights.

The headliner this week is Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, one of the most original ideas in modern vaudeville. The act is crowded with all of the Edwards new song hits. Another feature is pretty Belle Story, the entertaining vocalist. Miss Story possesses a remarkable voice. The comedy act of Williams, Thompson and Copeland is a scream. The whole bill pleases.

For next week the headline act will be Paul Dickey, the star football player of the University of Michigan, who will appear with a company of five people who will offer "The Come Back," a story founded on college life. Another star act will be the Apollo Trio, native Italians, who will pose as living bronze statues.

SOCIETY NIGHT AT THE ATLANTA.

Miss Billy Long and the members of her company have made a big hit this week in "The Girl From Out Yonder," which is at the Atlanta. To-night will be special Society Night in honor of Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison and a packed house is expected to greet the company. A 25 cent matinee will be played to-morrow and the present bill offered for the last time to-morrow night.

Next week the company will present, "Are You a Mason?" which is a roaring farce comedy. Owing to the demand for matinee seats an extra matinee has been added for Monday afternoon and in the future three matinees will be given each week. "Are You a Mason?" has a thousand laughs and its presentation will serve to introduce two new members of the company to the public—both highly experienced. Miss Harrison has an important role also.

NEWS ITEM—The Democratic majority of the Senate, in causes, has made a determined attack on the seductive influence of golf and baseball. A promise was exacted from members that hereafter enough members will be present in the Senate to maintain a quorum.

More than an hour was spent one day in a futile effort to get enough Senators to transact business at an executive session.

MILLTOWN WILL FISH, REGARDLESS

Mayor Pafford Declares Georgia Laws Give Residents Right to Angle in Banks Pond.

Citizens of Milltown, Ga., deny that the town is in a state of excitement and that it will be necessary to call out troops to preserve order. Mayor William F. Pafford has issued a statement declaring Game Warden Boisclair became unduly alarmed.

Governor Brown has not considered sending troops to Berrien County. It is hardly likely he will.

Until the Legislature changes the law, Milltown sportsmen will continue to angle for the elusive trout in Banks' fishpond so long as they have permission from owners of the land on which the body of water is located, according to Mayor Pafford.

"Section 7 of the game law privileges a person to fish with permission from the owner of the land, which the 20 persons arrested had," he declared.

"The statement of State Game and Fish Commissioner Mercer that his wardens have been intimidated and that the local authorities are too much in sympathy with the lawless element to give any assistance is untrue," said Pafford.

Boisclair made 20 arrests of persons. He charges he was prevented from prosecuting the cases because the justices of the peace declared he would not convict any of the parties.

The whole matter hinges on a land dispute. The Banks estate claims to own all of the property on which the pond is located. Other property owners say a title to all of the property has never been vested with Banks.

COTTON MANUFACTURERS CONVENE IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, GA., May 9.—The annual convention of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia convened in Columbus to-day, with President F. B. Gordon, of this city, presiding. Among the speakers for the day were Stuart W. Cramer, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and D. W. Peabody, of Atlanta. Fuller Callaway, of LaGrange, banker and manufacturer, also was on the program.

New Georgia Road to Start Trains in June

Elberton and Eastman Will Open Rich Country to Connection With Seaboard Air Line.

Another railroad will be added to Georgia's imposing list in June, when the Elberton and Eastern Railway Company begins operation from Elberton through Cauthen, Fortsonia, Bell, Norman and Mallorysville to Tignall, a distance of 21.8 miles. It connects with the Seaboard at Elberton. Eventually, it may push on to Washington to connect with the Georgia Railroad.

The new line taps an agricultural district of some importance, which now has no railroad facilities. It has standard roadbed and equipment. It is capitalized at $300,000 in bonds and $200,000 in stock. W. O. Jones is president.

AIRSHIPS PREDICTED AS DEFENDERS OF THE CANAL

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—That aeroplanes are to be used extensively for defenses of the Panama Canal was the statement of Aviator Robert G. Fowler, who returned here to-day from Panama. He asserted that Colonel Goethals would ask Congress for an appropriation for aeroplanes and hydro-aeroplanes to be used in connection with the proposed fortifications.

ARREST CASHIER AS AN EMBEZZLER

Crossland Bank Official Accused of Misappropriating More Than $7,000.

MOULTRIE, GA., May 8.—J. H. Cason, charged with the embezzlement of more than $7,000 from the Bank of Crossland, was arrested today at Crossland and brought to Moultrie, where his bond was assessed at $2,000.

The bank has not resumed business and will likely liquidate.

It is alleged that Cason not only embezzled the bank's funds, but under various pretexts had stockholders of the institution indorse his notes at other banks for large sums. Cason was prominent in church circles and had the confidence of the people of Crossland.

Charter Is Granted for Rehabilitation of Georgia's Oldest Educational Institution.

Following the granting of a charter by Judge J. T. Pendleton Thursday afternoon, it is expected plans for the rebuilding of Oglethorpe University, Georgia's oldest educational institution, will be announced within a short time. It is generally understood that expenditures will total nearly $1,000,000.

The charter is for twenty years and stipulates that only members of the Presbyterian Church shall be members of the board of directors, and that each director shall make a donation of $1,000 to the college.

The incorporators are James W. English, Sr., Frank M. Inman, John K. Ottley, Thornwell Jacobs, Edgar Watkins, Hoke Smith, W. L. Moore, Hugh K. Watkins, E. G. Jones, James R. Gray and Hugh Richardson, Fulton County; George W. Watts, Durham, N. C.; J. T. Anderson, Cobb County, and J. W. Hammond, Spalding County.

HARVEY'S CHARGE STIRS MARSHALL

WASHINGTON, May 9.—In answer to Colonel George Harvey's charge, made at a dinner in New York of representatives from the trust companies of America, to the effect that Vice President Marshall's criticism of the wealthy acted as an "incitement to the predatory poor," the Vice President said to-day:

"If anybody will produce a public utterance of mine for the curtailment of accumulation or distribution of honest wealth, except by a fair inheritance tax, I will go to Wall Street and personally apologize.

"In the course of a long professional career, however, I have asserted that the witness who had knowledge of fraud invariably got mad when he was interrogated as to the fraud."

The Vice President at first was inclined to take the matter as a joke. He said, however, that he wished to have the affair closed and to hear nothing more on the score of his misrepresented public utterances.

LEOPOLD'S WIDOW, DIVORCED, TO WED

Morganatic Wife of Belgian King, Freed From M. Durrieux, Accepts German Army Officer.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—Within less than 24 hours after she had obtained a divorce from her second husband, M. Durrieux, it was reported to-day that Baroness Vaughan would soon marry again.

Baroness Vaughan was the morganatic wife of King Leopold of Belgium, and bore him two sons. After Leopold's death she married M. Durrieux, but entered suit for divorce, alleging infidelity. A decree was granted in her favor yesterday.

Baroness Vaughan began life as a washerwoman, but her beauty attracted the eye of the aged Belgian King, who took her under his protection and showered wealth upon her.

Her next husband, it is said, will be a German army officer.

Crosses the Atlantic To See a Ball Game

Relative of Pierpont Morgan Says He Is Going Right Back to Paris.

NEW YORK, May 9.—A passenger came over on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie to see one good American ball game. He is G. D. Morgan, an American who lives in Paris, and says he is a relative of J. Pierpont Morgan.

"I want to see just one good old baseball game and then I am going right back," said Mr. Morgan.

What Ails You?

An invitation is extended by Doctor Pierce to every sick and ailing man or woman to consult the Faculty of the Invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, N. Y., by letter. Write your symptoms fully and frankly, and every letter will be carefully considered, fully answered and its statements held as strictly private and sacredly confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

makes for rich, pure blood and thus invigorates the system. For a torpid liver and its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue with bitter taste, loss of appetite with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is as good.

Effective Home Remedy For Lung Trouble

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benefited, but few can safely return. Eckman's Alterative is effective for home treatment. For example: 231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed my regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I can not praise Eckman's Alterative too highly. I have recommended it with excellent results."

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' drug stores and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFULLY DARKENS THE HAIR WHEN FADED AND GRAY

Mixed With Sulphur Makes Hair Soft, Lustrous and Cures Dandruff.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's," which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair, and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says his customers insist on Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur because, they say, it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant. Elkin Drug Co., special agents.

BOYS AND GIRLS IN PONY CONTEST HAVE MANY VOTES

Names and Standing of Entrants Are Announced---No One Will Have a 'Walkaway' in Race for Beautiful Prizes---Totals Will Leap Upward.

Here are the boys and girls who have entered in The Georgian and Sunday American's contest for the twelve pony outfits.

There is a goodly number of them. Evidently no one is to have a "walkaway." Good, hustling, bright boys and girls they are, with plenty of friends to help them, and all filled with a determination to win.

Of course the figures presented now mean very little. Many of the contestants simply have been nominated. Some others have piled up a good start.

But watch the votes grow!

The totals will leap up by thousands as the days go by.

It's not too late to get your name in the list, but it would be well not to delay. Some of these contestants may have something "up their sleeves." You can't tell. It's time to get busy.

SHERIFF OF DOOLY DIES FROM BLOW'S BULLETS

VIENNA, GA., May 9.—Sheriff C. I. Bennett, of Dooly County, died early to-day from pistol wounds received Wednesday when he attempted to arrest Oscar Blow for killing P. P. Sangster, a prominent farmer.

Bennett's body was buried here today.

Judge W. F. George, of the Superior Court of Dooly County, has adjourned the session until August because of the Sheriff's death.

EPISCOPAL CLERGY FOR BAN ON 'UNFIT' WEDDING

NEW YORK, May 9.—A rule requiring health certificates for marriage is under consideration by the Episcopal clergy of New York, according to a statement issued to-day by the social service commission of the diocese of New York. The commission, the report states, had already made a preliminary investigation and found six out of every seven clergymen in favor of the plan.

Wool Trade Waits On Tariff Action

Sales Larger Than Last Week, but Heavy Lots Are Moved Only by Cutting Prices.

BOSTON, May 9.—While rather more wool has changed hands the past week, manufacturers have bought only for piecing out purposes. Both dealers and manufacturers continue waiting for a settlement of the tariff uncertainty. The aggregate of sales is swelled by an occasional sizable transfer at a sacrifice. In this way, some very low prices have recently been made, there being apparently no bottom to the market.

Probably the worst feature at present is the uncertainty. If the traders were assured that the Underwood bill would surely be passed by both Houses substantially in its present form, they could buy the new clip wools with reasonable safety.

Receipts in pounds for the week-end and including Wednesday were as follows:

ALABAMA U. S. ATTORNEY TO PROSECUTE COL. HUFF

MACON, GA., May 9.—Oliver Street, United States District Attorney for the Northern District of Alabama, has been assigned by Attorney General McReynolds to conduct the prosecution of Colonel W. A. Huff, charged with contempt of court, District Attorney Alex Akerman being relieved at his own request. The case will be heard on May 19, with Judge W. I. Grubb, of Birmingham, presiding in place of Judge Emory Speer, before and against whom the contempt is alleged to have been committed.

PANIC IN DINER AS WAITER SHOOTS COOK

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 9.—As a Pennsylvania Railroad train bound for St. Louis pulled out of the North Philadelphia station last night, passengers in the dining car were thrown into a panic when Vaudergrift Thomas, a waiter, shot John E. Dyer, the cook attached to the car.

Two shots were fired, and one took effect in Dyer's leg.

Minister Goes From Pulpit to Theater

Philadelphia Playwright Will Direct Production of His Work in New York.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The Rev. Henry W. Lambert, of the Thirty-fourth Street Baptist Church in this city, has resigned his pulpit in order that he may direct the production of his first play in New York next fall. Dr. Lambert has written "For Love of Her," a moral play, which has been accepted.

Dr. Lambert says that he was spurred on in his playwriting by the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, the Presbyterian evangelist. In one of his sermons on the stage Dr. Chapman said if any playwright could write a play that had not one improper thought, word or action, then he would be conferring a favor on the human race.

TWO CAROLINA BANKERS SENT TO ATLANTA PRISON

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 9.—Judge J. E. Boyd, sitting in United States District Court, has given notice that on Tuesday he will order Major W. E. Breese and J. E. Dickerson into custody of the United States Marshal to serve sentences of two years in the Atlanta Penitentiary for complicity in the failure of the First National Bank fifteen years ago.

District Attorney Holton asked that the men be ordered in custody at once, but attorneys for the defendants got an extension on account of the illness of Major Breese.

'SONNY' COLLINS' SLAYER GETS 18 MONTHS IN PRISON

AUGUSTA, GA., May 9.—Marshall Shedd this afternoon was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter by a jury in Richmond Superior Court. He was sentenced to serve six months in jail and one year on the chaingang. Shedd, a Georgia Railroad engineer, shot and killed Edward ("Sonny") Collins, a former Augusta politician.

Declares Women on Cars Are Brainless

Longfellow's Grandson Much Exercised by What He Terms Their Stupidity.

BOSTON, May 9.—That woman are "brainless" as far as riding on the street car goes, was the declaration of Edmund Trowbridge Dana, grandson of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, social economic investigator, Harvard student and retired street car conductor, in an address before the Boston School of Social Science. He said:

"When it comes to riding on street cars women are the stupidest things imaginable. When you are trying to make up time they are always in the majority and always blundering. Why, they don't seem to have any brains at all."

ITALIANS AID IN STAMPING OUT CRIMINAL ELEMENT

NEW YORK, May 9.—Prominent Italians of this city are banding together to aid the police in stamping out the criminal element among their countrymen. They are already at work searching for Oresto Shillitoni, an Italian suspected of the murder of two policemen last Saturday night.

At their own expense, it is said, they have employed a former member of the police department who has the reputation of knowing more about criminal Italians than any detective in this city.

The show ended apruptly.

Straw Hats Due at Harvard Saturday

Student Council Opens the Season Two Weeks Earlier This Year.

BOSTON, May 9.—The closed season on straw hats at Harvard will expire Saturday.

This was the official pronouncement to-day of the student council which, taking upon itself the function of arbiter of fashion, declared proper the wearing of the straw two weeks earlier than custom has before decreed.

The terraces of the stadium are expected to bloom with Panamas and common straws to-morrow when the athletic meet between Cornell and Harvard will be held.

POSSE, EXHAUSTED, QUITS SEARCH FOR DESPERADO

SAVANNAH, GA., May 9.—Men and dogs completely exhausted, the chase for Richard Henry Austin, the South Carolina desperado, was abandoned in Screven County last night. Austin crippled one of the dogs and took refuge in the swamps near Newington, where it was impossible for the searchers to reach him.

STATE BOARD IS PROPOSED FOR TAX EQUALIZING

Clarke County Representative to Push Bill in Legislature. Wide Demand for It.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Representative Frank A. Lipscomb of Clarke County will introduce early in the forthcoming session of the Legislature a bill providing for the creation of a State Board of Tax Equalizers.

The necessity for such a board has been discussed favorably by the press of the State time and again, but so far no serious effort has been made to frame the suggestion into a workable law.

Mr. Lipscomb has made a study of tax conditions in Georgia, however, and has reached the conclusion that the only practical and equitable method of increasing the revenue of the State, without elevating the tax rate, dwells within the creation of a tax equalizing board.

The bill, it is understood, already has been prepared by Mr. Lipscomb, but before it is offered it will be passed upon by one of the most eminent authorities on statutory and constitutional law within the State, and such changes, if any, as he may suggest likely will be made in the measure before it is presented.

Mr. Lipscomb is a new member of the Legislature. He is a young man, around 35, and has had some experience in legislative and administrative work on the City Council of Athens, of which he was three times elected a member, but his forthcoming term in the House of Representatives will be his first service in the broader field of State politics.

He is one of Athens' leading business men, a scion of an old and distinguished Georgia family, an extremely likeable sort of person, and is sure to take a high stand in the Legislature from the day he is given the oath of a Representative.

Mr. Lipscomb has other important legislative proposals to submit to the General Assembly in due course of time, but his bill to create a Board of Tax Equalizers will be his pet project, and the one he is most deeply interested in.

There is no doubt whatever that the bill will receive hearty and strong support from many members of influence, and the prospect of the bill becoming a law generally is looked upon as exceedingly bright.

Former Sheriff of McDuffie County, the Honorable "Shade" Hawes, one of the leading citizens of Thomas E. Watson's well-known town of Thomson, is, and for several days has been, a visitor in Atlanta's delighted midst.

Mr. Hawes is credited with being one of the very shrewdest political observers in the State, and moves hither and yon in most mysterious way his wonders to perform. He has an idea, however—really, it is an obsession—that his home town of Thomson is possessed of more automobiles than any other town of its size in the world. He claims that there are 56 machines in Thomson, notwithstanding the fact that it has been disputed there is room enough in Thomson for even one-half so many.

One irreverent person asked the Sheriff if it was true that they had to run the sewerage system in Thomson straight up in the air to keep it inside the corporate limits—but the Sheriff disdained pointedly to comment upon that.

In charging a Floyd County Grand Jury, Judge Moses Wright recently expressed an opinion that should prove of widespread interest in Georgia.

In giving his interpretation of the present prohibition law, the jurist declared that it "is illegal for one person to order liquor for another."

The Rome Judge bases his opinion upon that section of the Code which says that it shall be illegal to "contract to sell, take orders for or solicit personally or by agent."

As a result of his charge, a rigid investigation of Rome's two locker clubs is under way.

All the Georgia newspapers and all the Georgia politicians are congratulating Editor Dick Grubb and renewing their good wishes to him that The Darien Gazette has achieved its fortieth birthday, and is as bright and snappy to-day as when it was a mere journalistic kiddo.

"Old Dick" Grubb has been a laborer in the newspaper vineyard many moons, and is generally beloved throughout the State. For years his weekly column of paragraphic comment upon men and things in Georgia—rarely other than kindly and sunny tempered—has been looked forward to by many.

Everybody will wish The Darien Gazette many happy returns of the day, and its editor many years of usefulness yet to come.

Representative-elect W. H. Connor, of Spalding County, will introduce two interesting local bills in the General Assembly soon after it convenes.

The first is one to provide for the election of the Griffin City Education Board by the people, rather than by the Council, as has been the custom in the past, and the other is to amend the charter of Griffin so that ward primaries will be abolished and the old plan of general elections be returned.

Four years ago the Legislature changed the charter, at the request of Council, providing for ward primaries; but the system has not proved satisfactory to a great portion of the voters. It is desired by citizens that a voter be allowed to cast his ballot for Aldermen, regardless of which ward he may reside in.

This local legislation in Griffin will be interesting to many cities in Georgia that have operated for a good many years under the very same disadvantages that Griffin is undertaking to get away from; and it may be that Representative Connor's bill will suggest many another of a similar sort from other cities in the State.

Representative William H. Burwell, of Hancock County, is spending a few days in Atlanta. While here he conferred with several of his friends about his speakership race. He feels assured of election on the first ballot.

White City Park Now Open.

Attention! Now It's Sandals for Girls Of That Gay Paree!

The old Greek fashion of dressing, including draped skirts and waists, long ago was taken up by the women of Paris and from there carried around the globe, has now reached the feet.

For to-day the elite of the French women, who set the fashion for that city of pretty and vivacious women are wearing sandals!

The high heel shoe and the oft painful by bent arch, has now been "given the hook." In their place has been selected the old-fashioned sandal, and it looks as if it had come to stay.

In fact, so complete has been the change of fashion in this respect that several of the famous Parisian stores, which cater particularly to the fashionable class, have put in a great stock of sandals.

Along the boulevards, women are seen parading at all hours, wearing sandals fastened to their feet by prettily colored ribbon in a band around their ankles.

Adherents of the new style declare it of great benefit to the health of the person wearing them.

Suppleness and flexibility, modistes argue, are the feature of women's dress of the present day.

Nature's Banner of 'Votes for Women'

Mrs. Torbet Will Raise Nothing but Flowers of Yellow Hue in Her Garden.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Nature is the latest ally to be lined up under the banner of "Votes for Women" and the suffragist garden is the means by which it has been secured for the cause. Mrs. Lewis K. Torbet announced her plans for the brand new publicity method.

"I intend to have my entire garden at my summer home remodeled and install nothing but flowers of a yellow hue, the color of the American suffragists," she said.

"I will have marigolds, daisies, roses, sunflowers, Japanese gold lilies, chrysanthemums, buttercups and every yellow flower that will grow and wave for the cause of women's suffrage.

"But I won't have anything with the English militant suffragist colors—violet and green."

ANY FRIEND CAN NOMINATE YOU IN BIG CONTEST

Strong Lead Will be Gained Over Your Rivals by Entering Competition Early.

Anyone can nominate a contestant for the pony outfits which the Georgian and American will give away as prizes.

This has been explained before, but many people still ask, so it may be well to state it again.

All that is necessary is to send in a nomination blank. Parents, uncles, aunts, friends, or even the contestant may make the nomination, and the result is the same—the name is listed, and 1,000 votes are credited to the name.

The call for books, used to make a record of subscriptions and votes and to furnish a receipt to the subscribers, shows that all are making an early start. One employee of the Georgian and American finds the distribution of these books to callers takes a good deal of his time.

So the contest is well under way.

The ponies, too, are here. The best ponies in the Tennessee bluegrass section—twelve of them—have been purchased by an expert delegated to the task by the Georgian and American.

Early Start Counts.

Remember that an early start counts for much. A big lead over your friends and acquaintances before they are approached by the other boys and girls.

Wouldn't you be disappointed to have your best friend say:

"Why, I've subscribed to the Georgian and American for a year and have given the subscription to George. I would have been glad to help you, but I didn't know you were in the race, and George asked me first."

Think what a disappointment that would be.

The only way to avoid such disconcerting replies is to be the early bird yourself.

An early start, too, gives you experience of a useful sort, ahead of the other contestants, and the result will be that when you have become an adept at securing subscriptions, your rivals will be floundering around for a start.

So, by all means, if you have not entered the race for one of the twelve pony outfits by now, send in your nomination blank right away. If you have entered, be sure to get the necessary book at once, and get busy.

Some, you will find, already have piled up an excellent total for a beginning.

And are you clipping the daily coupons in the Georgian and the Sunday American? And are your friends saving theirs for you? They count up rapidly if you can get several friends to help.

G.O.P. RESENTS BULL MOOSER'S REUNION MOVE

Members of Old Guard Say Cummins Is Hasty and Is Likely to Hurt Party.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Old line Republicans to-day expressed in strong terms their antagonism to the independent action of Senator Cummins of Iowa and other members of the progressive wing of that party in calling a conference in Chicago to-morrow. They declined to approve the plan and declared that the Cummins contingent was laying the party open to another split.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, minority leader of the Senate, said:

"I think the Cummins conference is premature, and when the time comes to recognize the Republican party I shall certainly follow the men who made the party rather than those who helped to wreck it."

Senator Smoot of Utah declared "that neither Senator Cummins nor any other Progressive can reorganize the Republican party."

Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin was of the opinion that the Cummins conference presaged another party split. "They wrecked the party," he said bitterly, "and now they are trying to damn it."

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania said that it would be better to postpone the Cummins conference now and to hold it later under the regular Republican banner.

In the House the old line Republicans, from Minority Leader Mann to the latest incumbent of office, viewed the conference with disapproval.

Buyer of Eggs Must Declare Intentions

That Is, If He Wants to Complain at the Failure of Table Variety to Hatch.

CEDAR GROVE, N. J., May 9.—The Cedar Grove Board of Poultry Trade has handed down a decision of interest to poultrymen all over America.

Squire Hoke Baldwin has been selling White Orpington eggs at 25 cents a dozen for table use and at $2 for thirteen for setting purposes. Archibald Griswold bought some eggs from ing to New York. Instead he set the eggs. They did not hatch and he brought the matter to the attention of the Board of Poultry Trade.

The board found that Baldwin had dipped the eggs in hot water before delivering them, rendering them infertile. The board decided that between January 7 and July 1 the purchaser must declare truthfully for what purpose he wants eggs when buying them.

TOMBOY GAMES BEST FOR GIRLS, EXPERT CLAIMS

Recreation Congress Speaker Declares Vigorous Games Are Character Developers.

RICHMOND, VA., May 9.—Too much distinction is made between boys and girls, in their play, their work and their educational training. This was the text of an address by Mrs. Charles T. Weller, of Lawrence, Kansas, at the morning session of the Recreation Congress.

"Many people begin, in his babyhood, to train the boy away from the gentler side of life by taking away his doll. Later they teach him that certain home duties belong to the girl; and since the boy's work—such as cutting wood and drawing water—no longer has a place in the city household, he grows up without sense of responsibility and devotion toward his own home when he has one.

"The girl, on the other hand, is constantly repressed and, because her faults are not dramatic like those of her brother, her elders fail to realize that she needs broad training to free her from the narrowness and pettiness of women, which has been the jest of the ages.

"Vigorous sports, especially games, are found to develop just those characteristics in which women are lacking.

"Let the girls play hard sometimes and forget themselves. Quieter sport—music, literature, art—have their very important place for the girl; and quite as much for the boy. For with this all-round training each may be gentle and each may be strong when occasion demands it; and together they may round out a fuller, more wholesome life for the race.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Repairing of Dolls Quite a Business.

"Dolls Repaired Quickly and Cheaply."

That sign prominently displayed at a point on Peachtree Street, by which thousands of people pass daily, is one likely to attract the attention of little folks—girls, of course—whose dollies are in need of such necessaries as eyes, hair, hands and feet.

"You'd be surprised," said the old gentleman who answers when anyone makes inquiry concerning the sign, "the number of dolls that we repair every day. My whole family is engaged in the business. It is a queer thing about child nature, but girls—the little ones, you know—become so attached to their dolls that when they wear out the children are almost inconsolable. They like a new doll, of course, but nothing can take the place of the old one in their childish affections. That's where our business comes in. We take the old doll, put new feet and hands on it, insert an eye if one is needed and, in fact, fix Miss Dollie up so that she looks like a new one. But to its little 'mother' it is still the same old Polly Hopkins, or Susan or Mary, as the case may be. It really does my heart good to see the little folks when their mothers bring them to my place to get the rejuvenated dollie. They go into raptures over the made-over toy, and their outbursts are evidences of genuine affection. 'Mother-love,' I suppose you newspaper fellows call it."

How Window Dressers Keep Track of Pins.

"I'll bet," said one of two men who had paused before the display window of a Whitehall Street department store while the window dresser was at work "that it was a woman who invented the thing that chap has fastened to his left arm."

His attention having been called to it, the other man took a squint at the object. It was a pincushion about three inches square fastened to a wide elastic band—like a garter—which was passed around the arm just above the elbow. The cushion was filled with all sorts of pins—small ones and large ones; some plain and some black.

As he worked, arranging pieces of cloth here and there to give the desired fold effect, the dresser had occasion to use countless pins. They were always right at his hand.

"When I was a young man," remarked one of the onlookers, "I used to dress windows and I carried a mouthful of pins all the time. The danger of swallowing them, however, was great, and I never cared much for the job. This fellow has the problem solved, but if he's married, I'll bet his wife invented it. No mere man would ever think of that pincushion affair."

The Story of Two Boys And What They Have Done.

"I was reading in The Georgian the other day," said the doctor, "when my attention was attracted by an article concerning some bequests made to education by Mrs. G. P. Dodd. Instantly I remembered two young fellows who used to live in Atlanta and with whom I attended the Boys' High School. They were Phil and Earl Ackerman, sons of Mrs. Fannie Ackerman, who was a sister of Mrs. Dodd, and to whom Mrs. Dodd left a bequest. The Ackerman boys lived with their uncle on Whitehall Street between Cooper and Windsor. Both were real geniuses, and both were enamored of the stage—not as actors, mind you, but as managers and producers. In the basement of the Dodd home they had fitted up a scenic studio and there in 1891 they built the scenery for 'Xonia, or the Fairy Queen,' a spectacular play which they presented at Concordia Hall, then on Marietta Street.

"The cast was made up of local young folks and the play was put on in admirable style. There was no end of trick scenery, all designed, built and painted by the Ackerman boys. Phil played the part of an Irishman, Earl was a 'demon' and the part of a clown was played by Cliff Saul, brother of Milt Saul, who is publicity manager for the Georgia Railway and Power Company. Another member of the company was Henry Franklin, now a staid Atlanta business man, an officer of a big hardware concern. Artisticaly, 'Xonia' was a success. I am not certain about its financial success.

"Soon after this Mrs. Ackerman and her sons removed to New York, and the boys evidently kept in touch with things theatrical, because 'Bob' Goodman, another Atlanta boy who has risen to heights in stage affairs, told me not long ago that Phil and Earl Ackerman are the owners of one of the largest secnic studios in Brooklyn."

Debtors File Petition Against Owners of Building at Linden Avenue and Peachtree.

Work on the concrete building at Linden and Peachtree Streets was halted to-day, as a result of a petition filed Thursday afternoon by the Mackle-Crawford Company.

The petition asked that the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company and Mrs. Mary Potts be enjoined from doing further construction work on the building, pending payment of $4,483 which the Mackle-Crawford Company claims is due it for concrete framework of the building.

The petition maintained that further work on the building would conceal the work done by the company and render proof difficult.

POLICEMAN DENIES WOMEN'S CHARGES

Kirk Declares Statement That He Made Raided House His Headquarters Is False.

Policeman James Kirk, a member of Chief Beavers' "vice squad," Friday morning emphatically denied the charges of improper conduct made against him by Mrs. N. P. Powell, Mrs. Lena Bernard and Mrs. John Bryant, whom Kirk, with a squad of police, arrested last week on a charge of running a disorderly house at 95 Spring Street.

"The charges have no foundation," he said. "I went to Mrs. Powell and her husband, and told them if they didn't get rid of the women they had staying there and shut up their place, we would arrest them. Both the woman and Powell told me they would make the women leave and quit running the kind of a house that Chief Beavers has ordered out of the city. We watched the place for several nights, and saw from five to fifteen men going in and out of the place every night.

"When we saw that they continued to run the house we raided them. There were four men there at the time, but they escaped by jumping out of the windows. The women have been held to the Grand Jury.

"The statement that I made the place my headquarters is a falsehood, pure and simple. Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Bernard and Mrs. Bryant are known to the police. They have been arrested numerous times."

The hearing of the injunction which Mrs. Powell, through her attorneys, Gober & Jackson, got from Judge Bell to restrain the police from evicting her, will be held Saturday morning.

Are You Subject To Constipation

MRS. G. B. PRUITT.

Very few people go through life without some time or other being troubled with constipation. Thousands injure themselves by the use of strong cathartics, salt mineral waters, pills and similar things. They have temporary value in some cases, it is true, but the good effect is soon lost, and the more one takes of them the less effective they become.

A physic or purgative is seldom necessary, and much better and more permanent results can be obtained by using a scientific remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It does not hide behind a high sounding name, but is what it is represented to be, a mild laxative medicine. It is so mild that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is so compounded, and contains such definite ingredients that it will have equally good effect when used by a person suffering from the worst chronic constipation. In fact, among the greatest indorsers of Syrup Pepsin are elderly people who have suffered for years and found nothing to benefit them until they took Syrup Pepsin.

It is a fact that millions of families have Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, homes like those of Mrs. G. B. Pruitt, Berea, Ky., who used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as a laxative tonic. Mrs. Pruitt writes that it so strengthened and cleansed her system that she was quickly relieved of a severe cough which had troubled her for months. The special value of this grand laxative tonic is that it is suited to the needs of every member of the family. It is pleasant tasting, mild and non-griping. Unlike harsh physics, it works gradually and in a very brief time the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to do their work naturally again, when all medicines can be dispensed with.

You can obtain a bottle at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is usually bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

Shoots at Cat, but Hits Wife; Kills Dog

Mrs. Newland had been to a neighbor's and was turning the corner of an alley when her husband fired, ten of the shot striking her, peppering her body from her face to her feet. It is not thought she is fatally hurt. The cat escaped, but a dog was shot.

AMERICANS ROUT MEXICAN RAIDERS

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Tired of being raided and despoiled by every passing band of brigands, the little American colony at San Dieguito, Mexico, recently took to the warpath.

When a band of fourteen outlaws swooped down upon the colony, ten colonists, reinforced by five Mexican Federal soldiers, pursued and defeated the looters and recovered a number of stolen horses.

Huerta Explains His Attitude Toward U. S.

MEXICO CITY, May 9.—President Victriano Huerta, during the conference yesterday with Henry Lane Wilson, the American Ambassador, stated very clearly the position of Mexico in relation to the United States.

He said in part:

"Mexico is disposed to arrange without friction the affairs pending between it and the Government of the United States.

"However, for the time being the American Ambassador should understand the necessity which the Government of Mexico has for abstaining transmitting any official matter, with the exception of urgent affairs or ordinary procedure, for the simple reason that while the Government of the United States did not recognize the Government of Mexico all arrangements would be ineffective in view of the fact that the Government of Mexico has no personality before the Government of the United States.

"The Government of Mexico, whether recognized or not by the United States, has adopted and will always adopt measures for the security of all the inhabitants of the country, whether native or foreigners, and this has been demonstrated by the attention given to the just petitions of those who have been in any manner injured by past revolutions.

"The United States and all the people of Europe have irrefutable proofs that the Government of Mexico is especially pledged to give guarantees to everybody without distinction of nationality."

Employs Poetry to Define Tariff Stand

Ohio Statesman Mounts Pegasus to Declare Lower Cost of Living Promises Are Vain.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The muse struck her lyre in the House again to-day, when Representative Simeon D. Fess of Yellow Springs, O., closed a sarcastic speech on the tariff bill with some verses on "The Things We Buy and Tnose We Sell." Here they are:

I ain't no statesman who can talk of
protection or free trade;
My han's too stiff to hol' a pen—that
was made to hol' a spade;
Them ten-foot, eddicated words my
tongue can't wallop roun',
But I'll make things you sell go up,
an' things you buy come down.

I can't talk on the currency, nor on
the revenue,
An' on the laws an' statoots I'm as
ignorant as you;
An' I jest simply promise you, sure's
I am Silas Brown,
I'll make things you sell go up, an'
things you buy come down.

The fair ground echoed wide with cheers and loud huzzas thereat,
For who can make a better scheme
of statesmanship than that?
An' next week at the polls he beat
his rival high and dry—
But things we sell continue low, and
things we buy are high.

Buy Diamonds Before the New Tariff Advances Prices

Under the old tariff no duty was levied on uncut or "rough" diamonds. Only 10 per cent duty was paid on cut or polished diamonds.

The Democratic caucus has but just recently recommended a 20 per cent duty on polished diamonds and 10 per cent on the rough. This new rate will no doubt become effective within the next two or three months.

In addition to this, the big diamond syndicate has raised prices to the cutters since January $15 to $30 per carat.

This means an advance in the retail market within the next four to six months ranging from $15 to $60 a carat—according to grades and sizes.

Buy a diamond now on attractive monthly payments and save the advance. Our booklet, "Facts About Diamonds," quotes lowest net prices and gives full particulars regarding our liberal plans.

REVIVAL SMOOTHS TABERNACLE ROW

Members Who Resigned, Back in Fold, Will Help Call Pastor Wednesday.

The dove of peace has found lodging in the Baptist Tabernacle; all differences have been settled and members who withdrew several weeks ago are back in the fold. The church is ready to call another pastor. The call will be extended at a meeting Wednesday night.

The weeks of spiritual meetings have proven the cure for differences. Dr. Joseph Broughton, brother of the noted founder of the Tabernacle, the Rev. Len G. Broughton, and one of the most prominent members to withdraw, is back. He has been elected associate superintendent of the Sunday school. The other two men who created a sensation by their withdrawal are Clayton Callaway and Harry A. Etheridge. Both have returned and are on the committee to nominate a pastor.

Other members of the committee are A. C. Boatman, chairman; Dr. William T. Jones and J. W. Awtry; C. W. Hatcher, chairman of the board of deacons, is an ex-officio member.

"We are really just getting into shape to call a pastor," said C. W. Hatcher to a Georgian reporter Friday. "We have disposed of the infirmary and our finances are in good shape."

Year in Prison for Four Ex-Inspectors

New York Policemen, Caught in Graft Campaign, Also Fined $500—Will Not Appeal.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Dennis Sweeney, John J. Murtha, James F. Thompson and James E. Hussey, the four former police inspectors found guilty of obstructing justice in keeping George A. Sipp, a Commonwealth's witness in the police graft cases, out of this State, were sentenced to-day to one year each and fined $500. This was the maximum punishment under the law.

It was understood that they agreed to take the punishment without appealing, in consideration of which the district attorney agreed to drop extortion and bribery indictments.

GEORGIA PREACHER JAILED.

Ohio Judge Assails Home Rule Decision

Justice Wanamaker Asserts Cities Have Right to Ignore State and Establish Movie Shows.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 9.—Judge R. M. Wanamaker to-day delivered an opinion in which he strongly dissented from the majority opinion by the Ohio Supreme Court early this week in the Toledo case, when it held that the home rule provision of the new constitution is not self-executing and that municipalities must either adopt charters or secure legislation from the General Assembly before they may exercise the increased powers the constitutional amendment gives them.

The court held that municipalities may not maintain motion picture shows, because "they are not a proper function of government," while Judge Wanamaker declares the people have this right.

A Happy Child In a Few Hours

When Cross, Sick, Feverish, Tongue Coated or Bilious Give Delicious "Syrup of Figs."

Mother! look at the tongue! see if it is coated. If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and clogged up waste and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours the foul, decaying constipated matter, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of the little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well and smiling child shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it can not be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

City Sells Its Bonds Over the Counter

Philadelphia's Experiment Proves Greater Success Than Mayor Expected.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The city has withdrawn from public sale the issue of municipal bonds that have been offered over the counter. The total amount taken by individuals was $4,002,000, or $500,000 more than Mayor Blankenburg wanted offered for sale at 4 per cent.

The last day's sales amounted to $209,000; and it was one of the most motley gatherings ever attending the office of the City Treasurer.

One old man brought his savings that he had hoarded in an old stocking, fearing to trust the banks. An elderly woman brought $1,000 in ten and twenty dollar gold pieces of the early '80 coinage that had never been in a bank.

PREP LEAGUERS WILL CLASH AT MARIST TO-DAY

THE annual Atlanta Prep Athletic meet will be held Friday afternoon at Marist field. Only three schools are entered in this event, but the athletics that are entered are all well trained and some lively events will be seen. Everything about the field is in readiness. An eight-lap track has been laid off and a hundred yard straight-away. The lanes are all laid for the dashes and hurdles have been procured also.

The hundred-yard dash promises to be the real thriller of the meet as never before in a local contest have there been so many evenly matched men entered in this event. There are Allen, and Lewis, of Marist; Sifford of G. M. A.; Bedell and Parks, of Tech High. Every one of these lads have made the century in less than 11 seconds and Allen has a record of 10:3-5 seconds. Owing to this mark the odds are slightly in favor of Allen, but if he does win it will be by a scant few inches.

There will be plenty of competition in every event with the possible exception of the hammer throw. Fowler, of Marist, seems to be in a class by himself in this event. He has thrown the iron ball over 100 feet in practice, which is better than any other man in the league can do.

The entries are all in and Joe Bean, who is staging the meet, has announced that nearly fifty athletes will compete. Many of them will start in two, three, and even four events. Bill Bedell, of Tech High looks good for the highest individual point winner. He has all kinds of grit and endurance, and in the meet between Tech High and Boys High he won three firsts and a second place which made his total 17 points.

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is the boy that will no doubt give Bedell the most trouble.

The meet will start at 2:30 p. m.

Prep League
News and Notes.

The decision of the Boys High athletes not to enter the Prep meet Friday throws them out of high school circles for the rest of the season. Since they have taken the matter into their own hands and decided not to represent their school they will be regarded as an independent team and will have to appear as such in the rest of their meets this season.

* * *

A new Prep record for the hammer throw will very likely be hung up in the meet Friday by Fowler, of Marist. Fowler has had little trouble hurling the 12-pound hammer 100 feet in practice.

* * *

A tennis tournament is being arranged between the winners of the Boys High contests and the winners of the tournament now being held at East Lake by the students of Peacock.

* * *

The tournament will be held on the courts at East Lake some time the latter part of this month and should prove an interesting match as both schools are well represented in this line of sport.

* * *

The officials have announced that the track meet at Marist Friday will start at 3 p. m. This seems pretty late to start such an affair as the meet will probably run about four hours. The meet between Tech and Boys High schools started at 1:30 and was not over until 6 o'clock.

* * *

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is leading the Prep League batters with .467. Armistead and Spurlock, of Boys' High, are close on his heels. Parks, of Tech High, is fourth, and Bedell, of Tech High, is fifth.

* * *

Sifford and Babb will probably be G. M. A.'s two biggest point-winners in the meet Friday. Sifford made a lot of points in the field day exercises at G. M. A. March 31. Brown and Solano are two other pretty good athletes, especially in the sprints.

* * *

Callahan, of Marist, threw just ten balls in the first innings of the game with Boys High Wednesday and fanned the first three men to face him. He struck out two more in the second.

* * *

If the following quartet can keep up the good work shown in the Boys High-Marist game Wednesday they may be assured of a place on the all-prep team this year. They are Allen, of Marist, third base; Spurlock, of Boys High, short; Armistead, of Boys High, catcher, and Fox, of Boys High, pitcher.

Following is the standing of the local Prep League teams:

Teams	Won	Lost	P.C.
Boys High	5	0	1.000
Tech High	4	2	.667
Marist	3	2	.600
Peacock	1	4	.200
G. M. A.	1	5	.167

GUNBOAT SMITH AND WILLARD IN NEXT COAST GO

By W. W. Naughton

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—Gunboat Smith once again is with us, and interest in the next heat of the great white hope free-for-all will increase by leaps and bounds.

Smith is to meet Elongated Jess Willard of Kansas at Coffroth's Eighth Street Arena on Saturday afternoon, May 17, and when these two have settled their differences the search for the best pugilistic pale face on earth will be almost over.

It will only be necessary for the winner to hook up with Luther McCarty and we will have a champion whose right there will be none to dispute—at least for a while.

Bluejacket vs. Cowboy.

The semi-final in the race—for that's what the coming bout may be called—will be between an ex-bluejacket and a cowboy. The fact that a man from off the bounding blue and a man from the cattle plains have battled their way to the front rank of the world's fighters shows conclusively that champions are not always the products of congested cities. The old argument used to be that the best men were to be found where there were the most men to pick from, but it certainly does not hold in pugilism.

A glance at the array of white hopes who have tried and failed during the past year shows that championship candidates are drawn from widely separated lands and from all walks of life. So far as the prize ring is concerned, we have had George Rodel, the South African Boer, and Bombardier Wells, the British artilleryman, who was seized with the ambition to shine as a ringman while on service in far India.

Then there was Fred McKay, the Winnipeg policeman, who was attacked with the Queensberry bug while patrolling his beat in his home town in Canada. Al Palzer, another blasted hope, came from the farm lands back in Iowa. It was not different in the old years, however. The lure of the game drew Joe Choynski from the candy kitchen and Jim Corbett from the bank. Fitzsimmons rolled up his apron and dropped his sledge when he heard the call of the padded mitt, and Jeffries deserted the boiler foundry.

Nor must we forget Tom Sharkey, "the pride of the navy," who used to say in the matter of punishment or suffering, fighting was child's play compared to walking the deck barefooted on a hot day in the Red Sea.

Paul Dickey, Famous End, Here Next Week

Former Michigan Football Hero in Vaudeville Sketch at Forsyth Theater.

Paul Dickey, who played star end on the University of Michigan eleven in '07 and '08, and who led in all track events and field exercises while at college, is now in vaudeville and will appear at the Forsyth as the star feature, with his own company the week of May 12.

Paul Dickey was a wonder in his time. He was selected by every expert who picked an All Western or All American eleven. He led the ends, and even at that had some of the greatest stars of the other teams to contend with. His work on the track was wonderful and some of his records still stand.

His sketch in vaudeville is called "The Come Back." It deals with college life, and football figures most prominently. It is a sketch that the sport-loving theatergoers will doubly appreciate.

During his visit in Atlanta, Dickey will be entertained by the Michigan alumni who live here, and his "Frat" mates are also preparing to see that he does not forget his week in Atlanta.

BOXING
News of the Ring Game

Abe Attell has released John Reisfer as his manager and has placed himself under the management of Danny Morgan. Abe and Morgan agreed on terms Sunday, according to a report from New York.

* * *

* * *

Had the match been made Rivers would have received 27 1-2 per cent and Britton 22 1-2 per cent of the gate. Rivers is one of the many stars who are steering clear of Britton these days.

* * *

Frank Moran, who fought Luther McCarty recently with a broken hand, will not be able to don the gloves for at least three weeks, on account of the injury. His manager was offered a bout with Jim Flynn at the Atlas A. A. of Boston, on May 20, but was compelled to pass it up.

* * *

Having lost close to $2,000 on the Luther McCarty-Moran battle because they guaranteed McCarty $5,000, Jess and Eddie McMahon, managers of the St. Nicholas A. C., yesterday made the announcement that under no circumstances will they give another fighter a guarantee in the future, even if he is a champion.

Johnny Griffith, of Akron, and Pal Moore, of Philadelphia, will meet for 12 rounds at Akron, May 12. Bernie Strapp is staging the show.

Tech and Georgia Teams Ready for "Play Ball!"

Jackets in Superb Shape, Says Coach Heisman

By J. W. Heisman

ATHENS, GA., May 9.—The Tech team arrived here after a rather tiresome ride of several hours duration. This morning I am letting them walk about town a little to get their land legs again, but immediately after lunch they will be sent to their rooms for a nap, so as to make sure they will be feeling well and perfectly rested by the time the game is called, which will be at 4 o'clock.

Many, many times have I been to Athens with both football and baseball teams, but never have I seen the old town so stirred up over anything as it seems to be to-day over these two games of ball with Tech. The Red and Black team has had a most fortunate season from start to date, and it is but natural that all their friends should not only be wrought up to fever heat with enthusiasm over their fine showing, but also that they should feel the keenest interest over the outcome of the four games to be played with the Yellow Jackets. The loss of a couple of games to the Atlantans would leave, they fear, a rather black mark on their bright and shining season's record, while the winning of the series would mean not alone that this splendid record had been maintained to the last, but the victory would be sweeter than any other achieved by their team all year simply because it came over their dearest rivals.

Town Filled With Visitors.

It looks like most every town, city and hamlet in the State of Georgia has sent at least one representative up here to see these two games. Never have I seen so many out-of-town visitors here before, and never have I seen so much of colors. Naturally, the Red and Black tinges prevail heavily, but here and there we spot a bit of Gold and White, which tells us that we are not entirely friendless even in the very stronghold of the enemy.

Yells? Yes, we have heard them galore ever since we landed, and the Georgia band as well. By the way, this band is no slouch: it plays real stuff, and plays it well—especially a refrain entitled "Glory, Glory to old Georgia," of which it seems strangely fond,—about as much so as one other band I know of when it comes to a composition which narrates the autobiography of a certain "Rambling Wreck."

Yes, all is excitement here, and nerves are keyed up to the highest tension. It appears that Sanford Field has never before been called upon to house the crowds that will storm it this afternoon and to-morrow. And one week from to-day will witness a repetition of these scenes at Grant Park in Atlanta. I haven't a doubt, regardless of how the games come out over here.

Georgia Men Confident.

Of the Georgia team's condition I know nothing. Their friends and supporters appear confident in the extreme; from which it must be inferred that the team is in apple-pie order. That they can play great ball on their own field they have demonstrated again and again this season, and for my part I have no doubt they will again to-day.

I am expecting to see a great college baseball team in the defenders of the Red and Black, and one that will be well worth winning from, yet not too great a catastrophe to lose to.

Tech has everything to win in these games, and little enough to lose aside from one of those "it might have been" feelings after the game. To lose to such a team as Georgia it will be no more nor less than every team that has visited Athens this year has done, while to win would be to be raised to a pinnacle of joy and glory as great as Georgia herself enjoys.

As for the Tech team, all I can say is that it is in superb shape. There have been better teams at Tech, but worse teams than this have defeated Georgia, and in Athens, too. The boys are playing better ball just now than they have at any previous time this season, and if they happen to hit their top stride this afternoon they will make the sledding hard for even so good an aggregation as Georgia has. Some of the games Tech has played this year would have pushed most any college team in the country—notably the Clemson and Sewanee games, and those won from Mercer and Auburn.

Heisman Has Hope.

It is true Georgia has the dope all in her favor, and also has the advantage of playing the first two games on her home grounds, which is always rated a distinct advantage. However, I recall that Tech teams of the past have had a way of playing the very best ball they knew how to play when they went right over on the Georgia campus to perform; and I know of no reason why these Tech boys shouldn't do that same thing over again.

Yes, it needs to be admitted that in Corley and Morris Georgia has two wonderfully clever pitchers, and the biggest question, in my opinion, is whether the Tech batters can do anything with these fingers. If they do no more to them than other Southern teams have done, Georgia will have things all her own way.

The other "facer" that Tech has to look in the eye is the extent of the damage that the Georgia "cover-rippers" will do to Tech's twirlers. That is a hard one, for it must be granted that Georgia has mauled many and many a good pitcher all over the lot this spring,—pitchers who were, in all probability, quite as good as the best that Tech can put forward. No doubt Georgia will hit "some," and maybe some more. Still, I am not without hopes; they haven't done it yet, anyway.

They will be great games, I am satisfied, no matter if Georgia does win. And there will be great crowds, and terrific excitement and noise, and all that goes with the biggest matches of the year.

Colleges on Good Terms.

I just want to add that I am very, very thankful that the two colleges are at last on the very best of terms and that there is absolutely no chance for a flare out of flame or any other kind of break-out such as used to characterize encounters between the rival teams. There will be good order and tip-top sportsmanship all around, I know; and that is the best of any college game.

Heisman on Job For Hearst Papers

J. W. Heisman, the famous Tech coach, will cover the Tech-Georgia games in Athens for The Georgian and Hearst's Sunday American. He will describe each game completely and his comments will be the very best obtainable. He will follow each and every play closely and his expert opinion on them will be of great interest. Mr. Heisman writes a breezy story, yet he never gets away from facts. He will have another interesting story in to-morrow's Georgian, and the story of Saturday's game in The Sunday American should be a classic.

NO CAUSE FOR PROTEST.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The New York Nationals had no undue advantage over the Philadelphia club in the games played at the Polo grounds late in April by reason of the fact that there was a hole scooped out of the diamond back of the pitchers' box. This is the finding of President Thomas J. Lynch of the National league, on the protest of the Philadelphia club. He orders that the result of the games shall stand as played.

BETTS GOES TO REDS.

CINCINNATI, May 9.—Fred Betts, a Cincinnati ball player, who pitched for the Cardinals several years ago, to-day signed a contract to play with the Reds and left to join the team. Betts quit professional ball of his own accord to become a typewriter slaesman.

OLLIE KIRK vs. EDDIE MOY.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Eddie Moy, the Allentown, Pa. featherweight, who gained a good reputation in Pennsylvania will meet Ollie Kirk, of St Louis, here to-morrow in a ten-round bout.

INDIANS PURCHASE WORKS.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 9.—Pitcher Ralph Works, of the Cincinnati club, of the National League, was purchased to-day by the Indianapolis club, of the American Association. The price was not announced.

KING RECEIVES PLAYERS.

LONDON, May 9.—Following the precedent established when he received the English polo team before its departure to America in 1911, King George received this year's team at Buckingham Palace.

Jones and Barrett Are Stars in Shoot

Former Captures High Average Prize in Georgia State Championship. Barrett Wins State Title.

AMERICUS, GA., May 9.—Henry Jones, of Macon, Ga., won the high average championship in the two-days' contest of the Georgia State Gun Club shoot here this afternoon. Jones secured 365 targets out of a possible 400. He was awarded the silver trophy for highest average.

Jones also tied with James Barrett, of Augusta, for the Georgia State championship, each breaking 98 targets out of a possible 100.

In the shoot-off Barrett won on 20 straights. Jones also won the long-run medal of the tournament by scoring 145 straights.

Homer Clark, of Allendale, Ill., won the silver trophy in the professional class, scoring 389 birds out of a possible 400. He also won the double professional championship in scoring 48 out of 50 targets.

J. K. Warren, of Birmingham, won the double target amateur championship of the South after tying with Eubanks, of Atlanta, on 44 out of 50 doubles.

All of the 45 gunners in yesterday's tourney are pleased with the great success of this the third annual State shoot in Americus of the Georgia Gun Club.

TO HOLD 200-MILE RACE.

GALVESTON, TEXAS, May 9.—A 200-mile automobile race on Galveston beach, for which a prize of $5,000 will be hung up, is to be the feature event of the 1913 Cotton Carnival meet, according to plans laid to-day. The meet will cover three days in all, the dates being set on July 28, 29 and 30. It is planned to offer prizes aggregating $14,000 for the meet.

WEIKINGER BEATS WIRTH.

DEFIANCE, OHIO, May 9.—Henry Wirth, the clever Chicago light weight wrestler, lost to Edward Weikinger, the local champion, last night in two straight falls.

RUSSELL GOES TO ALLENTOWN.

ALLENTOWN, PA., May 9.—Lefty Russell, the famous southpaw for whom Connie Mack paid $12,000, has been turned over to the Allentown Tristate Club by Manager Jack Dunn, of the Baltimore Club. Russell will cover the initial sack for the Allentown team.

2 GOOD BOUTS FOR LOCAL FANS HERE IN JUNE

ATLANTA boxing fans will be furnished the opportunity of witnessing two corking bouts next month at the Auditorium-Armory. The first will be held on June 9 and will bring together Jim Flynn and Jim Savage. The next show will follow on June 17 and will be between Leach Cross, or Freddie Welsh, and Matty Baldwin.

The Flynn-Savage match has already been closed and it is likely that the other will be all O K'd within the next few days. Baldwin has already accepted, while both Cross and Welsh are anxious to exhibit their wares here.

Flynn should be a tremendous card in Atlanta. He was beating Jack Johnson to a frazzle until he was disqualified on a technicality. And Savage is a good attraction here as he decisively defeated Al Kubiak a couple of weeks after the latter had whipped Carl Morris in a local ring.

CITY LEAGUE TO MEET.

LOCAL GOLFERS PLAY WELL AT BIRMINGHAM

By W. R. Tichenor.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 9.—George C. Oliver, of Birmingham, won the low medal score in the qualifying round of the invitation tournament held over the course of the Birmingham Country Club.

In the first round Oliver and F. C. Stahlman, of Nashville, tied with seventy-fours. In the play off in the afternoon Oliver again did seventy-four, beating Stahlman by four strokes.

Smith Cullum, of Birmingham, had a fine chance to win the low score prize, as he was on the eighteenth green within ten feet of the cup with two putts for a seventy-three. He was short on his first, was over with his second and then missed an easy one, which would have put him in the tie.

Captain E. T. Winston led the Atlanta golfers with a seventy-seven. He was fifty. Lowry Arnold did a seventy-nine and yours truly did an eighty, which puts three Atlanta players in the first flight.

F. G. Byrd and G. W. Adair did eighty-four and qualified in the second flight. D. Brown and C. J. Holditch qualified in the third flight and are drawn against each other for the first match Friday morning.

Walton Griffith also qualified in the third flight, as did C. E. Corwin, R. P. Jones and T. B. Paine qualified in the fourth flight. Dr. Frank Holland found lots of trouble on his round and qualified in the fifth flight.

Players from New Orleans, Chattanooga, Nashville, Montgomery and Atlanta are in attendance. The course is in good shape and many low scores are likely to be made in the matches to be played.

AUBURN DOWNS CLEMSON IN FIRST GAME; SCORE 9 TO 3

AUBURN, ALA., May 9.—With Davis on the mound twirling sensational ball, Auburn won the first game of the series from Clemson here by a score of 9 to 3.

Ezell, Clemson's premier pitcher, started with a rush, pitching no-run, no-hit ball until the fifth inning, striking out ten out of the first seventeen men before him. He weakened in the sixth and the Auburn team scored three runs by bunching a single and two two-base hits with an error.

With the score tied in the sixth inning Auburn went ahead in the seventh, scoring two runs on a hit and a wild throw to second.

In order to cinch the game in the eighth Harris singled, Davenport followed with an infield hit, but Harris was thrown out overrunning third. Locke was safe on a muff by Corator, and Davenport scored on Williams' two-bagger; Graydon hit safely, scoring Locke and Williams, and scored a ninth run later on Louiselle's drive on second.

CAZEAU AND LE MARIN WIN NEW YORK WRESTLING BOUT

NEW YORK, May 9.—George Lurich, the Russian heavyweight wrestler, lost two out of three falls to Raymond Cazeau here last night. In the other match Constant LeMarin, of France, threw Paul Samson, of Germany.

BUCK WEAVER WILL OPPOSE BILLS TO-DAY

By Joe Agler.
Crackers' First Baseman.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., May 9.—The Crackers finally broke their losing streak yesterday and now hope to win a number of successive games. The boys played great ball yesterday and showed more dash and vim than they displayed in their last four games put together. The final score was: Crackers, 7; Billikens, 3.

Long and Smith divided the honors of the day, although Gilbert Price twirled good ball. The former pair pounded out home runs and helped pile up runs to our credit.

I look for Bill Smith to send "Buck" Weaver to the slab this afternoon, with Graham catching. The latter has had a long rest and should show some of his old stuff. Manager Dobbs is in a hard way for pitchers and is trying to secure Becker from us. He could use him now, as he has no portside pitcher on his staff. Dobbs said this morning that he did not know whom he would use against us this afternoon.

"Big Bill" Chappelle joined us yesterday and looks fit and ready to go in and win ball games for the Crackers. We also expect Harry Bailey to be with us soon. His ankle is coming around fast now, and he should be in the game any day now.

The Billikens are without their star pitcher, E. Brown. He is on the sick list, and it looks as if it will be some time before he will be able to don a uniform. Snyder, who twirled against us yesterday, is but a youngster and needs more experience.

GOTCH AND ZBYSZKO MAY MEET ON MAT IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, May 9.—Plans were laid here to-day for the Frank Gotch-Stanislaus Zbyszko championship wrestling match here, and the syndicate that is back of the proposed plan is almost certain to land the clash. It became known here that Gotch has practically given his consent to such a meeting, and Manager Herman, who guides the affairs of the Pole, is only too anxious to accept. A purse of $25,000 has been offered for the battle.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Things have not changed greatly in the American League this week, except that the Washington club is holding up with a persistence that makes it look like a strong contender for the flag. Johnson is pitching wonderful ball, the best of his career. The Athletics and Red Sox are alarmed.

"I thought he was good last year," an American League player told me the other day in discussing Johnson, "but I never saw anything like the way he is traveling this season. He has gone forty-two innings without being scored on, and the chances are he will go forty-two more. He has everything in the world, and his fast ball has the speed of a bullet and the worst jump or the best I ever looked at. It depends upon the point of view whether it is the best or worst. It looked like the worst to me, because I was batting against him. He has been calling what he intends to throw against opposing batters. He did this repeatedly in the series with the Yankees.

"Then he would shoot up the ball with the old jump on it. And the batter missed it just as widely as if he had no notion of the prescription. That is going some when the pitcher can tip the batter off to his stuff and get away with it.

* * *

"THE Washington team is full of dash and ginger, and is playing fast ball. They will give the Athletics a great fight, but I do not expect to see the Senators hold the pace they are setting now."

That is the opinion of a veteran American Leaguer, who did not want his name mentioned.

After pitching in Philadelphia on Saturday and losing because Cravath, who is hitting very hard this season, pumped a home run into the bleachers, I returned to New York on Sunday and met "Eddie" Collins, the second baseman of the Athletics, with whom I have been acquainted for some time.

"How does the race look in the American League?" I asked him, "talking shop" as usual.

"The Washington club is the one we've got to beat, and I think we can do it," he said. "They are carrying lots of 'pep' now, but the supply won't last through the season. The boys are bound to slow down. If anything should happen to Johnson, they are gone, because he is carrying the club. Besides Johnson, Hughes is the only other pitcher we have had a look at so far. Groom seems to be traveling along pretty well, judging from the scores against other clubs. Cashion is too wild right now to be of much value. The rest of the team looks good, with every man playing at his best at present. Let them hit a little slump, however, and it is going to take a lot of the pepper out of them."

"HOW about the Athletics?"

"We're in pretty fair shape. Our pitching department caused the most ante-season fretting. Plank is going fine, and Bender seems to be rounding into form now. Coombs is the member of the veteran trio who is to the bad. He is laid up in bed in Philadelphia with a high fever, and I don't know what is the matter with him. He has some kind of fever, and his temperature has been up around 104 for several days. John has never been right since that time he hurt himself in the world's series with the Giants. His health has been bad, and during that rainy spell when we were in Washington he was taken ill and had to be sent home. It is problematical whether he will be in any kind of shape before the middle of the summer. 'Connie' is worried about him.

"ALL the young pitchers look pretty good, and we are bound to get at least one man from the flock to help out Bender and Plank. Houck has been twirling good ball so far, and the other squabs have the ability, but get nervous when the game becomes tight. They will outgrow this. The club is hitting the ball hard, and playing together well. So far we have not had any injured players outside of Coombs' illness; but let me touch wood, quick."

A good line on the strength of the teams in each league can be drawn when the present intersectional series is completed. That is what always tells on the clubs—the long trips away from home.

FODDER FOR FANS

Johnson, the Indian pitching recruit of the Reds, looks like one of the best pitching finds in recent years. He's won all of the Reds' five victories.

Everybody laughed at Charley Ebbets last winter when he built a baseball plant with a capacity of 35,000. And now Ebbets is laughing at the erstwhile laughers. If the Dodgers keep up their winning streak, Ebbets will have to enlarge his park.

* * *

The Dodgers, by beating the Cubs yesterday, are now within 9 points of second place and 25 points of first place.

* * *

* * *

The lowly Braves bumped the Pirates again yesterday and the Pittsburg fans are wondering just when their pets are going to stop skidding.

* * *

The Athletics' victory over the Browns yesterday made the sixth straight win for the Quakertown athletes.

* * *

Johnnie Evers, the "Keystone King," put up a weird fielding exhibition yesterday, making three errors, two of which resulted in runs for the Dodgers, enough to give them a victory.

* * *

A great batting rally in the ninth enabled the Cardinals to snatch a 5 to 4 victory from the Phillies.

* * *

The major league baseball season to date has furnished some big surprises. In the National League the Giants and Pirates were doped to fight it out for first place all the way. Instead, they are wallowing around in the second division, and the Cardinals and Dodgers, who were accorded cellar places, are within a few points of first place.

* * *

In the American, the Boston Red Sox were expected to repeat. All the dopesters treated them to a flying start. However, the Boston boys are far down in the second division and the Naps and White Sox, who weren't figured to have a look in, are snugly ensconced in first division places, within hailing distance of the leading Athletics.

* * *

But the season is still young.

CROSS DEFEATS HARRY TENDALL, BUT IS ROBBED

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—Leach Cross, of New York, hero of many ring battles, gave Harry Trendall, St. Louis' best lightweight, a sound beating in the feature battle at the Coliseum last night, only to have Referee Harry Sharpe hand the verdict to the home boy.

The best that even Trendall's own friends looked for was a draw, and the round by round notes taken by experts showed Cross had a good margin.

Trendall left the ring a badly marked up man, both as to his face and body, while Cross went to his dressing room without a scratch.

WHITE AND BRITTON BOUT WANTED BY GOTHAM CLUB

CHICAGO, May 9.—A Charlie White-Jack Britton match now is likely. It would be a certainty but for the fact that the local featherweight is matched to battle Joe Thomas, of New Orleans, in a return go in the latter's city on May 19. Nate Lewis, who guides the pugilistic destinies of White, to-day received a wire from Gil Boag, of the Forty-fifth Avenue Athletic Club in New York, offering him May 20 as the date for a match between White and Britton.

The terms are perfectly satisfactory to Lewis and nothing is more pleasing to him than to land such a battle, but he must go through with the Southern battle. Lewis lost no time in answering Boag, in the hope of securing a later date.

JOHNSON WITHIN THREE INNINGS OF A RECORD

CHICAGO, May 9.—Walter Johnson needs to pitch only three more scoreless innings to excel Jack Coombs' great 1910 record of 46 successive runless rounds. Johnson went to Engel's rescue Monday against Boston and blanked the Red Sox for five stanzas, while his helpmates were able to score two runs and win in the twelfth round.

Johnson has not yielded an earned run this season, although he was scored on his first inning out.

By the Sweat of His Brow

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WILL you be good enough," asks M. E., "to tell me if it is proper for a girl to kiss a young man who tells her he loves her but can not marry her for some time to come owing to the fact that he is not in a position to support her at the present time, and may never be able to do so?"

If kisses be classed as luxuries or necessities depends solely on the years of the one making the classification. Youth regards them as necessities, and Age knows they are but idle luxuries, meaningless though not unpleasant, and an altogether unsanitary method of expressing an affection that sometimes lasts little longer than the kiss itself.

But, be they luxuries or necessities, they should be classed among the many things which a man should be compelled to earn by the sweat of his brow. Unless he can earn a living, and by the sweat of his brow provide bread, he is not entitled to kisses. Unless he can go forth and with muscle and brain produce the price of a nest for his bride, he hasn't earned the right to be kissed by anybody in the world but his mother.

Is an Insult.

The kiss that is given to a girl with the declaration, "I love you, but I can not afford to marry you; I am not in position to support you now, and may never be able to do so," is an insult.

It is as if he said to her: "It gratifies me to kiss you, and for that reason I seek the privilege. I can do nothing for you and my monopoly of your affection will serve no other purpose than to place you in an embarrassing position, and to keep other lovers away whose intentions are more honorable. But it pleases me to kiss you, and when I grow tired of kissing you I can take my avowals of love to some other girl. They carry no promise with them, no obligation, no duty, and so long as there are girls in the world who will kiss me, I can enjoy myself without paying the price."

He Is a Loafer.

I take it that this young man is a loafer, and who is there who thinks that the man who loafs when there is so much work to do, is entitled to any girl's kisses? A self-respecting man will seek work, and a self-respecting girl will refuse to bestow any mark of affection on a man who is a professional hobo in the Kingdom of Love.

To care for such a man is a weakness that carries tragedy in its wake. It is the same kind of weakness that marks the woman who supports her husband, finding recompense for her toil in the fact that he never abuses her or speaks cross to her, while other women's husbands who work hard and earn a good living are sometimes fretted and angry.

The girl who permits such a man to kiss her shows a heart that is soft and a brain that is weak. She has two choices of degradation: Either she kisses the man to no other purpose than a waste of time and an unsavory memory, or she marries him and takes upon her shoulders the burden of his support.

There is no other alternative.

A Prince Who Plays Bagpipes

THE announcement made recently that the Prince of Wales, in the interval of his studies at Oxford, is learning to play the bagpipes under the tuition of Pipe Major W. Rose, of the Second Scots Guards, surprised many people, and particularly those who have an inherent dislike to the much-abused instrument. But his royal highness, in taking up the bagpipe as a musical accomplishment, is merely carrying on a tradition of the royal house, many of the members of which have always had a liking for the merry chant of the pipes. Queen Victoria had her piper at Balmoral, and so had King Edward, and to-day there is one attached to the royal establishment, for King George is fond of bagpipe music as his father and his royal grandmother were.

Early Morning Skirt.

When the court is in residence in the Highlands it is customary for the royal piper, dressed in full Highland costume, to march backward and forward in front of the royal apartments every morning and awaken the household with the "skirl" of his pipes. On official occasions, too, when the Balmoral Highlanders are welcoming the king and queen on their arrival at their Scottish residence, or when the retainers on the royal estate are taking part in any function, the king's piper invariably heads the procession of kilted men.

At the Braemar Highland gathering, the great social event of the season on Deeside, which is patronized by royalty, this official always "plays" the king's clansmen around the arena. On a memorable occasion at New Mar Lodge, the seat of the late Duke of Fife, King Edward, along with the princess royal, her two daughters and his grace, marched at the head of a body of Highlanders to the accompaniment of the music of the bagpipes, for which his majesty had as much liking as he had for the kilt when he was in the Highlands.

Highland Garb.

As soon as he reached Balmoral on his periodical visits King Edward—just as King George does to-day—donned the kilt, and, as was often remarked, no Highlander could carry it better than did his majesty. Queen Victoria, too, had as great an admiration for the tartan as she had for the bagpipes. In her majesty's time the walls of Balmoral Castle were draped with the Stuart colors. They have since been replaced by less somber decorations. But neither the wearing of the kilt nor the retaining of a piper is dictated by royal fashion, for every nobleman whose ancestral home is in the Highlands dons the traditional garb as much out of compliment to his ancestry as for any other reason. His guests, as a rule, follow his example as a matter of courtesy, but it does not always happen that they have the necessary habiliments with which to convert themselves for the time being into "Highlanders."

An Amusing Story.

An amusing but well-authenticated story is told of a German prince who was the guest of a Scottish nobleman, and who was so fascinated with the Highland dress that he determined to have a kilt made. He placed the order with a well-known firm of tailors for a complete outfit, richly adorned with silver buckles, and gold-mounted sporran or pouch. He paid something like a hundred guineas for it. The kilt was delivered in due course, and the prince was rigged out the next day in all the splendor of a Highland chieftain! But his highness was unfamiliar with the wearing of the sporran, and to the consternation of his host and hostess and their other guests he appeared with it attached to the back instead of the front of the kilt! Taking the prince quietly aside, Lord ——— suggested that his sporran should be reversed, and with profound apologies for the mistake he had made, his highness placed the pouch in its proper position.

Shoes of the Scot.

It is not only in Scotland that the bagpipes are regarded with favor. The Englishman certainly likes them best at a distance, but they are a very popular instrument among the natives of the Punjab, in India. The late Maharajah of Patiala had a fine band of pipers, wholly composed of Sikhs and other natives, who had been trained by a piper from one of the British Highland regiments. Many of the Indian frontier forces—notably the Gurkha regiments—have bagpipe bands of their own. An amusing instance of Scottish pride is told by a retired Indian officer in this connection. He was one day visiting the Court of the Rajah of Jeend, and noticed that the only person who broke through the rigid rule of etiquette, which forbids the wearing of shoes in the presence of the Rajah, was his bagpiper. Judicious inquiry elicited the fact that the sturdy Scot, when being engaged as the court musician, had stipulated that he was not to be obliged to go about the court in bare feet, as he regarded it as derogatory to his native country that he should do such a thing.

Do You Know That—

About a year ago four students of Boston University started out with a tuning fork to sing their way round the world. They have arrived in London by way of San Francisco, Honolulu, Japan, China, Manchuria and India, and are appearing under the title of the "University Quartette," or the "Four Singing Evangelists." Each can preach a sermon, lead a young men's Sunday school class or blend his voice with the others in the four-part setting of a hymn. Sometimes they make a complete change of program and give a secular entertainment, with humorous songs, Southern coon songs and piano solos.

A rudder with a doorway into the interior is a feature of the Cunarder Aquitania, recently finished. The rudder is so large that a doorway has been constructed in the lower part to admit workmen, so that they can remove the pin which connects the rudder to the ship. This pin is four feet long, and bigger than the heaviest projectile made for modern artillery. When delivered at the builders' yard the rudder was in three parts. After they had been connected and laid upon the ground the distance that had to be walked to pass around the rudder was over 100 feet.

The "homeless" population of London, according to the latest census of the County Council, numbers nearly 22,000. Some time ago a scheme was started by which the police gave lodging tickets to these night wanderers. This has somewhat depleted the Embankment and the streets, but the fact is noted that only about half of the people who are given tickets make use of them. They clearly prefer the wandering life.

False Gratitude

Little Molly May was only six, and on the morning of the story was sobbing her heart out because she had lost a penny. Many looked and sympathized as she trotted down the street; but it was an old gentleman who played the role of practical Samaritan.

"Well, my little maid," he asked, as he patted Molly May's heaving shoulder, "what's the trouble?"

"Boo-hoo! I've lost a penny!" came the muffled answer.

Without a word the old gentleman thrust his hand into his pocket, and handed Molly a penny to replace the one she had lost, saying:

"There—there, now everything will be all right."

But to his utter confusion, the little girl dropped her damp pinafore, gazing at him with an expression in which sorrow strove valiantly with anger, and said:

"Oh, you wicked old man, 'oo had it all the time."

Some Up-to-Date Gowns and How They Are Fashioned

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

HE SHOULD ATONE.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a young man a few months ago with whom I am very much in love. I have had an appointment with him, but he failed to come. He phoned the next day, but I was not at home. Shall I call him up and ask him to call?

JESTINE.

Having failed to keep his engagement, it is due you from him that he make another, and atone for his failure to keep it by being prompt and particularly attentive. You do not owe him the courtesy of asking him to call.

A Golden One.

A white rose in his buttonhole, and cotton gloves on his dirty hands, old Bill Loafer swaggered jauntily along the street. At the corner a friend stopped him, exclaiming incredulously:

"Why, Bill, ol' man, what's happened—bin left some money?"

"No, no," said Bill. "It's me goldin weddin'; I'm celebratin' me goldin weddin'!"

"But why ain't your wife celebratin' it, too?" inquired his friend. "I see 'er goin' to work as usual this mornin'. Why ain't she got a white rose and noo gloves?"

"Er!" muttered Bill, as he grunted reflectively. "She ain't got nuthin' to do wiv it! She's me fourth!"

What the Master Used.

The inspector was talking about adverbs and adjectives.

"Does your master use adverbs and adjectives?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," chorused the scholars.

"Well, what does he use when he does not use adverbs and adjectives?"

There was a silence. Finally a little fellow waved his hand.

"He generally uses a ruler, sir."

THREE QUESTIONS.

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"WHAT is Modesty?' I asked
Of a violet that basked
In a swamp one summer day
Where a sunbeam chanced to stray.
Then the purple violet,
Squandering fragrance, dewy wet,
Spoke from out the swampland low:
"Modesty? I do not know."

Then I asked a lily white,
Paler than an altar-light,
Sinless as a vestal's day;
"What is Purity, I pray?"
And the lily in the dell
Answered me, "I cannot tell."

"What is beauty?" I inquired
Of a rose with crimson fired.
"Beauty, Cleopatra's gift,
Casting Antony adrift.
Beauty? Tell me ere I go."
Said the rose, "I do not know."

Then I asked a girl aged three,
Who explained it all to me.

Hints For the Household

When rinsing flannels and woolens it is best to do so in very soapy water, as pure warm water makes them hard; also when hanging curtains out to dry, hang them double, as it makes them even and prevents them getting torn so easily.

When about to make a pudding, well flour your board and rolling pin and roll the suet out to a thin sheet. Take between your hands and rub down, when you will find the suet as fine as breadcrumbs.

Hot water marks may be removed from japanned trays by the simple process of rubbing them over well with sweet oil, and then polishing with a little dry flour on a soft duster.

To curl a feather that has become damaged with rain or dew, sprinkle it thickly with common salt and shake before a bright fire until dry, when you will find it as good as new.

When washing pudding cloths throw some orange peelings into the water. This collects the grease and helps to make the cloths white and clean-looking.

Soap that is allowed to dry and harden lasts twice as long as if used when fresh. Therefore it is cheaper to buy it in quantity and keep it in a dry place.

To prevent custard dishes or glasses from cracking when pouring boiled custard into them, place the dish on a damp cloth. This plan is most effective.

To thread a darning-needle, take a length of cotton, put the two ends together, and thread through the eye, put wool through loop and draw it.

A teaspoonful of borax to a quart of water will make hard water soft, so that it can be used for washing the most delicate skin.

If a white shirt is scorched when ironed the brown marks may be removed by rubbing them with a little dry borax.

The Soft Answer.

He was really growing tired of paying off his son's bills—the boy was an undergraduate at one of the big universities. However, after much thought, he decided to be indulgent just once more.

Boys will be boys, he thought. Accordingly, as requested, he sent a check for $250, but accompanied it with stern admonitions to live more wisely and more economically.

"My son," he wrote, "you must remember that your studies are costing me a great deal of money—very much more than I can honestly afford."

"I know it, father—I know it," replied his incorrigible hopeful: "and the tragedy is that I don't study very hard, either."

Long Time for Both.

Affable Passenger—Indeed, and you are a music hall artiste! I am a banker, and I think it must be at least twenty years since I was in a music hall.

Music Hall Artiste (regretfully)—And I'm quite certain, sir, it's twenty years since I was in a bank.

Wanted Instructions.

The station master on the Eastern Indian Railway had been given strict orders not to do anything out of the ordinary without authority from the superintendent. This accounts for his sending the following telegram:

"Superintendent's Office, Calcutta.—Tiger on platform eating railway porter. Please wire instructions."

But Aggie was not one to be ignored under any circumstances. Now she spoke with some acerbity in her voice, which could at will be wondrous soft and low.

"Say!" she retorted viciously, "you can't throw any scare into us. You hain't got anything on us. See?"

Cassidy, in response to this outburst, favored the girl with a long stare, and there was hearty amusement in his tones as he answered:

"Nothing on you, eh? Well, well, let's see." He regarded Garson with a grin. "You are Joe Garson, forger." As he spoke, the detective took a note-book from a pocket, found a page and then read: "First arrested in 1891 for forging the name of Edwin Goodsell to a check for ten thousand dollars. Again rearrested June 19, 1893, for forgery. Arrested in April, 1898, for forging the signature of Oscar Hemmenway to a series of bonds that were counterfeit. Arrested as the man back of the Reilly gang in 1903. Arrested in 1908 for forgery."

There was no change in the face or pose of the man who listened to the reading. When it was done, and the officer looked up with a resumption of his triumphant grin, Garson spoke quietly.

"Haven't any records of convictions, have you?"

The grin died and a snarl sprang in its stead.

"No," he snapped, vindictively. "But we've got the right dope on you, all right, Joe Garson." He turned savagely on the girl, who now had regained her usual expression of demure innocence, but with her rather too heavy brows drawn a little lower than their wont under the influence of an emotion otherwise concealed.

"And you're little Aggie Lynch," Cassidy declared as he thrust the note-book back into his pocket. "Just now you're posing as Mary Turner's cousin. You served two years in Burnsing for blackmail. You were arrested in Buffalo, convicted and served your stretch. Nothing on you? Well, well!" Again there was triumph in the officer's chuckle.

Aggie showed no least sign of perturbation in the face of this revelation of her unsavory record. Only an expression of half-incredulous wonder and delight beamed from her widely opened blue eyes and was emphasized in the rounding of the little mouth.

Sarcasm Without Effect.

"Why," she cried, and now there was softness enough in the cooing notes, "my Gawd! It looks as though you had actually been workin'!"

The sarcasm was without effect on the dull sensibilities of the officer. He went on speaking with obvious enjoyment of the extent to which his knowledge reached.

"And the head of the gang is Mary Turner. Arrested four years ago for robbing the Emporium. Did her stretch of three years."

"Is that all you've got about her?" Garson demanded with such abruptness that Cassidy forgot his dignity sufficiently to answer with an unqualified yes.

The forger continued speaking rapidly, and now there was an undercurrent of feeling in his voice.

"Nothing in your record of her about her coming out without a friend in the world and trying to go straight? You ain't got nothing in that pretty little book of your'n about your going to the millinery store where she finally got a job and tipping them off to where she come from?"

"Sure they was tipped off," Cassidy answered, quite unmoved. And he added, swelling visibly with importance: "We got to protect the city."

"Got anything in that record of your'n," Garson went on venomously, "about her getting another job, and your following her up again and having her thrown out? Got it there about the letter you had old Gilder write, so that his influence would get her canned?"

"Oh, we had her right the first time," Cassidy admitted, complacently.

Then the bitterness of Garson's soul was revealed by the fierceness in his voice as he replied:

"You did not! She was railroaded for a job she never done. She went in honest and she came out honest."

The detective indulged himself in a cackle of sneering merriment.

"And that's why she's here now with a gang of crooks," he retorted.

Mr. Cassidy Laughs.

Garson met the implication fairly.

"Where else should she be?" he demanded, violently. "You ain't got nothing in that record about my jumping into the river after her?" The forger's voice deepned and trembled with the intensity of his emotion, which was now grown so strong that any who listened and looked might guess something of the truth as to his feeling toward this woman of whom he spoke. "That's where I found her—a girl that never done nobody any harm, starving because you police wouldn't give her a chance to work. In the river because she wouldn't take the only other way that was left her to make a living, because she was keeping straight! . . . Have you got any of that in your book?"

Cassidy, who had been scowling in the face of this arraignment, suddenly gave vent to a croaking laugh of derision.

"Huh!" he said, contemptuously. "I guess you's stuck on her, eh?"

At the words, an instantaneous change swept over Garson. Hitherto he had been tense, his face set with emotion, a man strong and sullen, with eyes as clear and heartless as those of a beast in the wild. Now, without warning, a startling transformation was wrought. His form stiffened to rigidity after one lightning-swift step forward, and his face grayed. The eyes glowed with the fires of a man's heart in a spasm of hate. He was the embodiment of rage as he spoke huskily, his voice a whisper that was yet louder than any shout.

"Cut that!"

The eyes of the two men locked. Cassidy struggled with all his pride against the dominant fury this man hurled on him.

"What?" he demanded, blusteringly. But his tone was weaker than its wont.

"I mean," Garson repeated, and there was finality in his accents, a deadly quality that was appalling, "I mean, cut it out—now, here, and all the time! It don't go!" The voice rose slightly. The effect of it was more penetrant than a scream. "It don't go . . . Do you get me?"

There was a short interval of silence, then the officer's eyes at last fell. It was Aggie who relieved the tension of the scene.

"He's got you," she remarked, airily. "Oi, oi! He's got you!"

There were again a few seconds of pause, and then Cassidy made an observation that revealed in some measure the shock of the experience he had just undergone.

"You would have been a big man, Joe, if it hadn't been for that temper of yours. It's got you into trouble once or twice already. Some take it's likely to prove your finish."

Garson relaxed his immobility, and a little color crept into his cheeks.

"That's my business," he responded, dully.

"Anyway," the officer went on, with a new confidence, now that his eyes were free from the gaze that had burned into his soul, "you've got to clear out, the whole gang of you and do it quick."

Aggie, who as a matter of fact began to feel that she was not receiving her due share of attention, now interposed, moving forward till her face was close to the detective's.

"We don't scare worth a cent," she snapped, with the virulence of a vixen. "You can't do anything to us. We ain't broke the law." There came a sudden ripple of laughter, and the charming lips curved joyously as she added: "Though perhaps we have bent it a bit."

Cassidy sneered, outraged by such impudence on the part of an ex-convict.

"Don't make no difference what you've done," he growled. "Gee!" he went on with a heavy sneer. "But things are coming to a pretty pass when a gang of crooks gets to arguing about their rights. That's funny, that is!"

"Then laugh!" Aggie exclaimed, insolently, and made a face at the officer. "Ha, ha, ha!"

"Well, you've got the tip," Cassidy returned, somewhat disconcerted, after a stolid fashion of his own. "It's up to you to take it, that's all. If you don't, one of you will make a long visit with some people out of town, and it'll probably be Mary. Remember, I'm giving it to you straight."

Aggie assumed her formal society manner, exaggerated to the point of extravagance.

"Do come again, little one," she chirruped, caressingly. "I've enjoyed your visit so much!"

But Cassidy paid no apparent attention to her frivolousness; only turned and went noisily out of the drawing room, offering no return to her daintily inflected good-afternoon.

For her own part, as she heard the outer door close behind the detective, Aggie's expression grew vicious, and the heavy brows drew very low, until the level line almost made her prettiness vanish.

"The truck-horse detective!" she sneered. "An eighteen collar and a six-and-a-half hat! He sure had his nerve, trying to bluff us!"

But it was plain that Garson was of another mood. There was anxiety in his face as he stood staring vaguely out of the window.

"What Have We Done."

"Perhaps it wasn't a bluff, Aggie," he suggested.

"Well, what have we done. I'd like to know?" the girl demanded, confidently. She took a cigarette and a match from the tabouret beside her and stretched her feet comfortably, if very inelegantly, on a chair opposite.

Garson answered with a note of weariness that was unlike him.

"It ain't what you have done," he said, quietly. "It's what they can make a jury think you've done. And, once they set out to get you—God, how they can frame things! If they ever start out after Mary——" He did not finish the sentence, but sank down into his chair with a groan that was almost of despair.

The girl replied with a burst of careless laughter.

"Joe," she said gayly, "you're one grand little forger, all right, all right. But Mary's got the brains. Pooh, I'll string along with her as far as she wants to go. She's educated, she is. She ain't like you and me, Joe. She talks like a lady and, what's a damned sight harder, she acts like a lady. I guess I know. Wake me up any old night, and ask me—just ask me, that's all. She's been tryin' to make a lady out of me!"

The vivaciousness of the girl distracted the man for the moment from the gloom of his thoughts, and he turned to survey the speaker with a cynical amusement.

"Swell chance!" he commented dryly.

"Oh, I'm not so worse! Just you watch out." The lively girl sprang up, discarded the cigarette adjusted an imaginary train and spoke lispingly in a society manner much more moderate and convincing than that with which she had favored the retiring Cassidy. Voice, pose and gesture proclaimed at least the excellent mimic.

"How do you do, Mrs. Jones! So good of you to call! . . . My dear Miss Smith, this is indeed a pleasure." She seated herself again, quite primly now, and moved her hands over the tabouret appropriately to her words. "One lump or two? . . . Yes. I just love bridge. No, I don't play," she continued, simpering; "but, just the same, I love it." With this absurd ending, Aggie again arranged her feet according to her liking on the opposite chair. "That's the kind of stuff she's had me doing," she rattled on in her coarser voice, "and believe me, Joe, it's damned near killing me. But all the same," she hurried on, with a swift revulsion of mood to the former serious topic. "I'm for Mary strong! You stick to her, Joe, and you'll wear diamonds. . . . And that reminds me! I wish she'd let me wear mine, but she won't. She says they're vulgar for an innocent country girl like her cousin, Agnes Lynch. Ain't that fierce? . . . How can anything be vulgar that's worth a hundred and fifty a carat?

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Turner, becoming an orphan, is thrown on her own resources. She finds work at the Emporium, a department store owned by Edward Gilder; is accused of the theft of silks, and sent to prison, though innocent. She tells George Demarest, Gilder's head lawyer, that the way to stop thievery is to pay a living wage. In prison she learned from fellow convicts why girls go wrong. She understands their point of view and sympathizes with them. Aggie Lynch, a convict friend of Mary's at Burnsing, sees good "possibilities" for her in the world of crime. Upon Mary's release the slogan "once a criminal always one," prevents her from securing work. She is continually hounded and in desperation throws herself into the North River. Joe Garson, a forger, rescues her and keeps her and Aggie in luxury, though living chaste lives. Mary reads that a famous financier escapes prison through keeping within the letter of the law. She follows his example and becomes the leader of a band of swindlers, robbing only the unscrupulous. Gilder's son Dick meets and loves Mary, who seeks to wreak vengeance on the father through the son. Aggie poses as her cousin, and they pretend to be respectable.

Now go on with the story.

There is seating accommodation for 2,300 persons, and the stage, which is the widest in New Zealand, will easily hold the property and scenic effects of any production which has visited New Zealand. It is claimed that the auditorium could be emptied in case of emergency within three minutes.

They Hear It.

Sure enuff, I herd the running water, too, so both of us began to walk faster toward a cleering. After we git to the brook, Bobbie, sed Pa, we will arrange our tackel & go after the speckled buties.

Jest then we caim out into the cleering ware we had herd the running water & Pa & me neerly fell over. We was back to the littel hotel from wich we had started out from. We had went in a cirkel. Ma was setting on the porch grinning at Pa, & the sound of the running water was water cumming from a hose. The hired man was washing the barn.

Now Ma calls Pa Isaak Walton.

Uncle's Sporting Trophies.

Tom Brown and Jack Smith had been schoolmates together, but, as often happens, had drifted apart during the years that followed. Then, quite accidentally, they met again one day, and somehow the conversation turned to the subject of athletics.

"Let me see!" said Brown. "You never came across my brother, did you? He's a fine runner, you know. Why, only last week he won a gold medal in a Marathon race."

"Ah!" said Smith, raising his eyebrows in genuine admiration. Then, a faint smile playing around his lips, he added: "And did I ever tell you about my uncle?"

"Don't think so," replied Brown.

"Well in his day, not only did he get a gold medal for five miles, and one for ten miles, but two sets of carvers for cycling, a silver medal for swimming, two cups for wrestling, to say nothing of badges for boxing and rowing.

"You see," Smith continued, while his friend sat speechless with amazement, "the uncle in question kept a pawnshop."

Her Love For Romance

A HUMOROUS STORY.

AS a little girl Albertine always sat in the chair in the farthest corner when she went to children's parties. She had a meek, pretty little face, abundant yellow hair and large, appealing blue eyes that held a shadow of apology in them for her temerity in presuming to exist. She retained the modest violet atmosphere after she was grown up.

Other girls might blossom into darling coquettes and fascinating belles, but Albertine always kept in the background. Whenever people looked at her they involuntarily thought of lace mitts and hoopskirts and curtseys. They felt that Albertine should be put under glass.

This being the case, it was astonishing that down in her secret heart Albertine had a fierce love of the daring, the wild and gay and the extreme. When she picked out a dress design she always chose the rankest, most alarming atrocity. The dressmaker said, "Oh, certainly!" and then proceeded to modify the pattern to suit Albertine's appearance.

She Suspected.

Things had a way of drooping on her in old-fashioned lines. She wanted to look frightfully smart and somehow she never did. Secretly she suspected the dressmakers, but she never dared accuse them.

It was the same way when it came to the young men. Let a perfectly steady, sober youth who earned a regular salary and was good to his mother come her way and Albertine raised her little nose and sniffed. She simply could not see him. She admired extravagantly the sort of young man who dashed down the street wearing crimson silk socks and a tie to match and the latest cry in waistcoats, and if he was followed by a bulldog so much the better. If people raised their eyebrows and coughed discreetly when his name was mentioned it made the situation perfect.

Albertine always felt loftily then that she was an experienced, worldly wise person and the eyebrow raisers were narrow provincials. Usually the bulldoggy young man never progressed in the acquaintance further than raising his hat and casting an entrancing smile at her; but Albertine was satisfied with just adoring him from a distance.

Her family was quite alarmed when she fell in love with Harry Jungles, because Harry always was in debt and worked only semi-occasionally, and Albertine's relatives had a great deal of money. Harry seemed awake to this fact, for he actually called on Albertine and talked poetry to her in the parlor in low, rich tones, and told her how the world misjudged him. Albertine went so far as to powder her already white nose and her mother caught her once using an eyebrow pencil. It was much the same as though an Easter lily had begun to rouge. The situation was saved, however, by the Sheriff's removing Harry for forgery, and after that Albertine wore what she thought was a heartbroken expression and thought she threw into her face deep lines of experience and suffering.

After Harry several others of the same kind followed. Therefore, having long hovered over Albertine in fear that she would do some foolish thing and spoil her life, her family was entranced when she became engaged to Jeffrey. It all happened so suddenly that one was scarcely aware Jeffrey was on earth before he was introducing himself as the future son-in-law and brother.

Jeffrey was absolutely as nearly perfect as he could be for Albertine. Liberal-minded people might say he erred on the side of rigidness and propriety and possible narrowness, but one felt that he would always be at home at 6 o'clock sharp for dinner and that Albertine never would have to hang out of the front window trying to distinguish whether it was wavering down the street at 1 o'clock in the morning. Jeffrey choked at the sight of a cigarette, wouldn't be caught dead at a dog show and said his wife never should be permitted to wear decollete gowns in the evening.

What She Said.

The more people considered the matter the more inexplicable it became. Finally her dearest friend flatly asked Albertine to explain Jeffrey's attractions.

"You see," said the dearest friend, "with your ideas I can't understand how you happen to fall in love with Jeffrey, of all men."

"Of all men!" echoed Albertine in pitying astonishment. "Why, I'll tell you, Susie—because I recognized at once that Jeffrey is the most sophisticated sort of person. He's such a man of the world. I can't abide these goody-goody men!"

"WHEN Spring comes laughing by vale and hill,
By windflower dancing and daffodil,
Sing stars of morning—sing morning skies,
Sing blue of speedwell, and my love's eyes,
. . . . . .
And gay birds gossip the orchard long."

The Change in George

"WHEN I first noticed the change in George," said the blond woman, who was no bigger than a minute, "I thought it was indigestion. It is perfectly wonderful how much a man's liver is responsible for! But when I mentioned the doctor he was quite violent. In fact, he was rude and stamped around. It is hard on the rugs when a man acts that way.

"'Don't roar at me, George!' I told him.

"'I've got to!' he said in a regular Bengal tiger sort of way. 'I've got to in order to maintain my supremacy in the home!'

"Now, George has always been such a perfect gentleman and so mild that you may well imagine that I was amazed. 'See here, George Guesser!' I said to him. 'Tell me at once what you mean!'

"This Was Different."

"George frowned awfully. His eyebrows looked like a lilac hedge that hasn't been trimmed since last spring. Then he cleared his throat. 'I've just waked up to the fact,' said he, 'that I have been taking a back seat and allowing you to think I didn't count. Why, when I consider how near I have been to losing your love it makes me shudder! I just read a wonderful article——'

"'Oh!' said I. 'An article! But do you believe all you read?'

"'This was different,' George said. Then he explained.

"'It was in one of the scientific magazines, and the writer began by saying that every woman sits and waits the coming of her lord and master and is ready to follow when he beckons. He does not woo or beseech; he takes; he——'

"'George Guesser,' I said to him, 'whenever you waste time beckoning me instead of coming where I am I'd like to know it! Do you think I am a little yellow puppy dog?' My, but I was angry!

"George looked sad. 'I see I have allowed you to get away from me,' he mused. Then he roared at me. '"There is never a man brute so brutal but a woman clings to him!"' he quoted and beat the air with his arms. 'That was a fundamental point with the writer. He said that if the man cringed before the woman she had only contempt for him, but that if he beat her she respected him and thanked her stars that her man was so strong. Further, she was completely happy to think that the gentleman who had loosened her front teeth belonged entirely to her. I hate to do it, Evangeline, but you've got to respect me and look up to me, even if I have to follow that writer's advice and beat you!' In fact, he says, a great many women require more or less beating to make them loving dutiable wives!'

George Shook His Head.

"'George,' I said when he stopped for breath, 'just what is your intention? Am I to understand that you are about to knock me down in order to make sure of my imperishable affection? Are you contemplating denting my face for the purpose of making me too utterly happy to live? Because if you are——'

"George shook his head as if he were considering something under a microscope. 'What a mistake I've been making,' he confided to himself. 'Why, Evangeline, you are entirely lacking in that devotion which is part fear and which is necessary to make a happy wife! It is all my fault!'

"Right here I concluded that it was time to take George by the hand and lead him forth to safety. 'Darling,' said I, 'if you will tell me how a woman is going to stand in any fear of a man after she has viewed him crawling under the bed after his collar button or trying to light the gas with an already burned match or attempting to answer his child who wants to know what there would have been if there hadn't been anything I shall consider myself in your debt!'

"'Not wishing to thrust myself forward or unduly trumpet my own worth, I still would bet my false hair that if I ever get hold of that scientific friend of yours long enough to whisper a few thoughts into his ear he would shrivel up and blow away! And now if you really yearn to hold my love and affection, go down and shake up the furnace, because the house is getting cold!'

"'Oh, vur-ry well,' said George, peevishly, as he headed for the basement stairs. 'That's the way you always act when I attempt any real progress. Women aren't scientific!'

"'Indeed, they're not!' I told him. 'They're just plain sensible!'"

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"THANKS, very much. I'm having rather a difficult task of it, for our friend, the Constable here, corroborates Miss Renfrew's statement to the hair, and yet I am absolutely positive that there is a mistake."

"There is no mistake—no, not one! The wicked one to say it still!"

"Oh, that's all very well, madame; but I know what I know; and when you tell me that a dead man can ask questions. * * * Pah! The fact of the matter is that the Constable only fancies he heard Mr. Nosworth speak. That's where the mistake comes in. Now, look here. I once knew of an exactly similar case and I'll tell you just how it happened. Let us suppose"—strolling leisurely forward—"let us suppose that this space here is the covered passage and you—step here a moment, please. Thanks, very much—and you are Miss Renfrew, and Gorham here is himself, and standing beside her as he did then."

"Wasn't beside her, sir—at least not just exactly. A bit behind her—like this."

"Oh, very well, then, that will do. Now then. Here's the passage and here are you, and I'll just show you how a mistake could occur and how it did occur under precisely similar circumstances. Once upon a time when I was in Paris—"

"It's a Play."

"In Paris, monsieur?"

"Yes, madame—this little thing I'm going to tell you about happened there. You may or may not have heard that a certain French dramatist wrote a play called 'Chanticler'—or maybe you never heard of it? Didn't, eh? Well, it's a play where all the characters are barnyard creatures—dogs, poultry, birds and the like—and the odd fancy of men and women dressing up like fowls took such a hold on the public that before long there were Chanticler dances and Chanticler parties in all the houses and Chanticler 'turns' on at all the music halls until wherever one went for an evening's amusement one was pretty sure of seeing somebody or another dressed up like a cock or a hen and running the thing to death. But that's another story, and we'll pass over it. Now, it just so happened that one night—when the craze for the thing was dying out and barnyard dresses could be bought for a song, I strolled into a little fourth-rate cafe at Montemartre and there saw the only Chanticler dancer that I ever thought was worth a sou. She was a pretty, dainty little thing—light as a feather and graceful as a fairy. Alone, I think she might have made her mark, but she was one of what in music halldom they call 'a team.' Her partner was a man—a bad dancer, an indifferent singer, but a really passable ventriloquist."

The Expose.

"A ventriloquist, monsieur—er—er."

"Cleek, madam—name's Cleek, if you don't mind!"

"Cleek! Oh, lummy!" blurted out Mr. Nippers. But neither "Madam" nor Constable Gorham said anything. They merely swung round and made a sudden bolt; and Cleek, making a bolt, too, pounced down on them like a leaping cat, and the sharp click-click of the handcuffs he had borrowed from Mr. Nippers told just when he linked their two wrists together.

"Game's up, Mlle. Fifine, otherwise Mme. Nosworth, the worthless wife of a worthless husband!" he rapped out sharply. "Game's up, Mr. Henry Nosworth, bandit, pickpocket and murderer! There's a hot corner in hell waiting for the brute-beast that could kill his own father, and would, for the simple sake of money. Get at him quick, Mr. Narkom. He's got one free hand! Nip the paper out of his pocket before the brute destroys it! Played, sir, played! Buck up, Miss Renfrew, buck up, little girl!—you'll get your 'Boy' and you'll get Mr. Septimus Nosworth's promised fortune after all! 'God's in his heaven and all's right with the world!'"

"Yes, a very, very clever scheme indeed, Miss Renfrew," agreed Cleek. "Laid with great cunning and carried out with extreme carefulness—as witness the man's coming here and getting appointed constable and biding his time, and the woman serving as cook for six months to get the entree to the house and to be ready to assist when the time of action came round. I don't think I had the least inkling of the truth until I entered this house and saw the woman. She had done her best to pad herself to an unwieldly size, and to blanch portions of her hair, but she couldn't quite make her face appear old without betraying the fact that it was painted—and hers is one of those peculiarly pretty faces that one never forgets when one has ever seen it.

To Be Concluded To-morrow.

The Professor Ate Nuts

"YSS," said Professor J. Haddensfield Joy, "I used to be a vegetarian myself. I have seen the time when a big porterhouse steak or a fat and lean slice of ham made me tear my hair, realizing how barbarous is man. Broiled spring chicken made me grate my teeth in rage.

"Not only was I vegetarian, but I was one of those who follow along lines of the most extreme differentiation. I couldn't eat pieplant tops or white oak bark, just because they were vegetable substances. I specialized in cocoanuts.

"I bought a hundred fine, fresh nuts. These I put in a cool and shady place, and thereupon discarded all allegiance to such foods as have dwarfed man's noble intellect. My family ate as usual.

"When morning dawned on my first day of real liberty I got a handsaw and sawed off the top of a nut. Then I drank of the life-giving fluid inside. After that I proceeded to feast on the meat of the nut, as my distant ancestors had done. When I started for the laboratory I took a fine nut under my arm and tried to walk in my usual heavy and methodical stride. It was no use. I felt like hopping along.

A Deep Longing.

"Persons whom I met addressed me as 'professor,' but with a gaze too human to suit me. I found myself looking up into trees with a vague, deep longing. It was as though I had inherited something that had been hidden in my soul's archives all my life. I arrived at the laboratory with my emblem of liberty still under my arm. The rude and thoughtless experimentalists looked and talked as they talk who are in a state of mental slavery. My luncheon made me want to run up and down the halls and passages and climb the posts.

"This glorious life lasted for a week. One night Mrs. Joy had to take a broomstick and punch me down from the picture railing, where I was trying to pass the night. The next day I could nt resist the temptation to climb a tree when I had started to conduct my daily investigation of life's solemn facts at the laboratory. A cocoanut was under my arm. Presently there came speeding along a very big man in a very big automobile. I landed the cocoanut on his head with a precision that I had never learned. In another instant my man was shaking my perch as if he were a concentrated earthquake. All the Joys swarmed around the tree. Mrs. Joy shrieked: 'Don't hurt him—he's been living on cocoanuts!'

The End of It.

"'Turned back into a monkey, has he?' said the man. 'I've been living on raw meat, and if I get my hands on him I'll eat him!' Then he departed.

"All the Joys got hold of me and took me back to the dining room and seated me at the table. Soon there was spread before me a repast consisting of one porterhouse steak, one slice of ham, three slices of bacon and a few other things. I could scarcely walk when I started to work.

"Henceforth give me a full dinner of real food or cut down the trees."

COTTON GOES UP AND THEN DROPS

Reports of Rain in Georgia and Oklahoma Cause Rapid Decline From Early Level.

NEW YORK, May 9.—In the absence of rains, especially in the eastern belt, the cotton market opened steady, with prices at a net gain of 2 to 6 points from Thursday's final. Spot people were good buyers. There was also a short covering movement by the local crowd and there was some outside buying. The selling was attributed mostly to brokers with Southern connection. The market quickly developed additional strength, and prices advanced 2 to 8 points from the opening level. July displayed considerable strength. This option was under heavy buying by shorts and held steady at 10 points advance over the previous close throughout the morning session.

Should there be no rains in the eastern belt, much higher prices are anticipated.

Weather indications overnight are predicted fair in the eastern belt, but other leading cotton States are predicted to have unsettled showers, except Louisiana and East Texas, where the weather will be fair.

The course the market took this morning made it more and more obvious that this is entirely a weather market. Unfavorable advices were received from Manchester, saying that buyers have very bad reports from the other side. It seems like conditions there are becoming bad again. The trade is much quieter. It is said that it is impossible to induce mills to buy cotton.

During the late forenoon the market was quiet but steady, with prices a shade lower than the early high point.

Reports of rains in Oklahoma and Georgia caused a general selling movement during the afternoon session, which was said to be profit-taking. Offerings from Wall Street became freer and the indications that the crop is in danger were ignored.

Experts in New Orleans stated that we might expect good rains the first of the week. This brought selling from the locals who were early buyers, resulting in prices making a rapid decline and dropping 2 to 8 points from the opening figures.

At the close the market was steady with prices at a net decline of 1 to 4 points from the final quotations of Thursday.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Liverpool came in rather poor, but rallied in the last hour. Liverpool will be closed tomorrow and Monday. Spots 2 points higher; sales, 6,000 bales. The feature on our side was the strength of July in New York, causing a corresponding advance in that position here and giving strength to the whole list. Absence of further rains in the Eastern States brought some covering demand from shorts. New York gossip says that about 50,000 bales will be shipped out and the loss in stock is causing short covering of July.

Manchester reports to agents here show a radical change and now are distinctly bad. They say it is impossible to interest mills in any offers of cotton, trade declining and strike danger imminent.

London reports that the first peace meeting dissolved without accomplishing definite results, that the next meeting will not take place until May 20, after the holidays, that the powers may occupy Scutari with a joint force as a precautionary measure.

The market eased after the close of Liverpool and trading was of no pronounced character. The talk of dry weather in the East is looked upon as a means to promote a short scare, on which idea there has been professional buying lately than as a real danger to production.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The weather will be warm, with showers to-night or Saturday in the Ohio Valley, the lower Lake region and the Middle Atlantic States. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi River the weather will be generally fair. It will continue cool in the Lake region and will be cooler from the Ohio Valley eastward and northeastward.

General forecast until 7 p. m. Saturday:

Georgia—Fair to-night and Saturday.

COTTON GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Joe Gatins is credited with covering a large line of July shorts, but he put them out again in new crop positions above 11 cents.

* * *

A wire from Savannah, Ga., yesterday said that unless it rains in a few days the crop will be damaged considerably.

* * *

Troy, Ala., wired that the crop conditions were going backward, owing to the absence of rains, and that very little cotton is up. In that section of the state cotton chopping is generally finished about May 15.

Niel estimated the consumption of cotton for the current year at 14,750,000 bales. He said a crop under 15,000,000 bales would warrant higher prices.

Conditions of the crop in Georgia must be pretty bad if the replies received by a New York firm from correspondents in the State are true. Following is the condition of the crop in some of the large producing counties:

Richland—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition poor, no stand. Zebulon—Crop 95 per cent planted; condition bad, too dry. Chiple—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition, very little up. Madison—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition good; dry. Covington—Crop 60 per cent planted; condition fair. Lawrenceville—Crop 80 per cent planted; condition 75 per cent. Jackson—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition fair. Danville—Crop 100 per cent planted; condition, dry weather has prevented its coming up; considerable complaint of the plant already from cool weather. Madison—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition one week backward. Winder—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition 80 per cent; ground very dry and cloudy and look for very poor stand. Bartow—Crop 80 per cent planted; condition very little up; very dry. Chauncey—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition scarcely any cotton up in Georgia at this date. Grantville—Crop 95 per cent planted; condition, none up and will not come until it rains. McRae—Crop 50 per cent planted; condition, very poor stand; much to be planted; seed scarce. Lyons—Crop 60 per cent planted; condition very bad; awfully dry; 50 per cent of seed planted is lost; getting seed to replant all is impossible here. Rochelle—Crop 98 per cent planted; condition good.

* * *

Absence of rains gave rise to good buying on the opening, spot houses being among the best buyers; also shorts, who apparently centered their attention on July option.

Mitchell and McGhee were heavy bidders for July.

Dallas wires: "Some rains in the Panhandle; clear and pleasant elsewhere. Oklahoma clear and cool."

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map is favorable. It shows partly cloudy in the northern half of the belt and in the Atlantics; generally fair elsewhere. There was no rain except at Amarillo, in Northwest Texas. Temperatures are above normal. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, probably unsettled weather, with scattered showers in the northern half of the belt and cooler.

STOCKS INACTIVE ENTIRE SESSION

By CHARLES W. STORM.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Selling pressure was exerted upon the list at the opening of the stock market to-day and most of the issues sustained declines. Some of the stocks which opened higher either lost all their advance or part of it. Canadian Pacific, which opened ⅝ lower, had increased its decline to 1⅝ within a half hour.

Traders held that the passage of the Underwood tariff bill by the House last night was a depressing factor.

Among the other declines were Amalgamated Copper ⅝, United States Steel common ⅝, Lehigh Valley ⅝, Atchison ⅛, Pennsylvania ⅛, Chesapeake and Ohio ⅝, Erie ⅛, California Petroleum ¼.

The specialties were the only group showing strength. American Beet Sugar advanced ⅝, Chino Copper was up ⅛, while Consolidated Gas rose ½.

Union Pacific opened ¼ higher, but soon lost its gain and declined ¼. Southern Pacific was ⅜ higher at first, but sold off. Reading began ⅜ higher, but lost its gain and declined.

The curb market was dull.

Americans in London were barely steady.

The market during the forenoon was generally higher. Amalgamated Copper at 65⅛ was up ⅝. Southern Pacific gained ⅜ at 96. Lehigh Valley, United Copper and Steel were up ½. Canadian Pacific and Gas were up. The tone in the late forenoon was firm.

Call money loaned at 2½.

The market closed steady. Governments unchanged; other bonds firm.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Price of Cotton Now Is 11.6 Cents

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A slight increase over a year ago, but a considerable decrease when compared with 1910 and 1911, is reported in the price of cotton, according to figures given out to-day by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Agriculture.

The prices received by the producers as reported by the Department's agents were as follows: May 1, 1913, 11.6c; April 1, 1913, 11.8c; May 1, 1912, 10.9c; May 1, 1911, 14.2c; May 1, 1910, 14c.

The general average of prices received for staple crops increased 2.3 per cent from April 1 to May 1. The increase in the same period of last year was 8.4 per cent. On May 1 the prices of staple crops averaged about 30.1 per cent lower than on like date of 1912.

Oats—No. 2 ..... 35¼

CHICAGO, May 9.—Wheat was stronger this morning on small offerings in the pit, coupled with some fair buying by the larger commission concerns.

Cables were lower on the construction placed upon the Government May report, which was made public in the Old World late yesterday. Northwestern receipts were larger than a year ago, while the Argentine shipments were smaller, as was also the Argentine visible.

Liverpool was lower on corn, but prices at Chicago were ⅛c to ¼c better.

Oats acted in sympathy with the other grains and ruled strong.

There was a better feeling in hog products, with prices fractionally higher.

Georgian "Want Ad" Tablets Touch the Spot. Try Them if Business Is Run Down

GREAT PUBLIC NOT BITTER TO CORPORATIONS

Dissatisfaction With Business Conditions Exists, but There Is Little Revolutionary Spirit.

By B. C. FORBES.

"If I thought the great body of the American people were as bitter, as hostile to business as many of our legislators I would give up and retire," said one of the country's foremost men of affairs, a man who has built up an important industry, a director in corporations of the first magnitude and the possessor of a large fortune.

* * *

"Do you think the people are as discontented and antagonistic to capital as is often represented—as ugly as Vice President Marshall says they are?" I was asked.

* * *

What do YOU think? Are they? Is it a case of empty vessels making most noise? Or are the majority of American citizens deeply disgusted with the present order of things? Are they on the verge of revolt, as the Vice President alleges? Is widespread revolutionary sentiment cooped up in the average citizen's breast? Is unrest in the United States worse than in other lands? Or is all our fretting and fidgeting, our mania for reform and regulation, our striving after innovations merely part of a world-wide movement toward a fuller measure of democracy?

* * *

These are questions not easy of dogmatic answer. The Hearst publications reach a greater number of Americans than the publications of any other concern in the country, and experience has taught me that they somehow come nearer the heart-beats of the people than any other publications of which I have any knowledge. The readers have a flattering habit of speaking their minds, of voicing approval or disapproval of articles, of taking the writers into their confidence, so to speak. In this way one is able to feel the pulse of the people.

* * *

Hundreds—thousands—of letters come to the business news department—not only from the East, but from the Middle West, the Far West and the South, as what is here written is printed in Hearst newspapers covering virtually the whole Union. Judging by this mass of correspondence from men and women in all ranks of life, there IS a good deal of discontent, of dissatisfaction with existing conditions, of bitterness against corporations, of determination to compel reforms in many directions.

* * *

But of revolutionary, anarchistic sentiment there is extremely little trace.

* * *

Speaking broadly, a great section of the population have the conviction that most ultra-rich capitalists have done things they ought not to have done, and by the doing of which they have taken unfair advantage of the people at large.

* * *

Let me give extracts from some letters received within the last week or two.

* * *

C. H. Burnham, 131 State Street, Boston, writes:

On the strength of the interview given out by Jacob H. Schiff just before Mr. Harriman died—declaring Mr. Harriman was practically a well man—I bought Union Pacific, as at that time I believed Mr. Schiff, and it cost me a good many hundred dollars.

What do you think when Major Higginson comes out in an interview and says there is nothing the matter with the New Haven Railroad?

What is the answer, after reading what is going on before Commissioner Prouty?

From Corning, N. Y., "A Railroader on the Erie," criticising my articles on railroad subjects, writes:

Railroad managers and owners are nothing more or less than straight up and down thieves, robbing the public. They never tell how much they make. But anybody who becomes a railroad manager becomes a millionaire in a few years. They find fault about giving a few cents extra in wages to their men. But such as President Baer, the head of the coal trust, pays $100,000 for a private car. When such things as this are done it only makes you appear ridiculous in the articles you publish in favor of railroad robbers.

* * *

It is not my intention to-day to discuss the reasonableness or unreasonableness of hostility to corporations and capitalists, but only to indicate what the temper of a large section of the public really is. The subject will be worth considering again.

GREEK STARTS TO 'WAR;' THINKS SHRINERS TURKS

PENSACOLA, FLA., May 9.—Mistaking a body of Shriners, in their Oriental garb, for a company of Turkish soldiers, a Pensacola Greek went to a hardware store and purchased two automatic revolvers, saying he intended to "kill the Turks." The police explained to him that they were Shriners, not Turks. The company stopped here en route from Indianapolis to the Dallas conclave.

PRAY FOR MORE CHILDREN; STORK BRINGS TRIPLETS

NEW YORK, May 9.—The prayers of Lewis and Rebecca Isler were granted to-day when the stork brought them triplets. Since last January, when their four children were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home the Islers had offered up daily prayers for more children.

BEARISH BUREAU REPORT HAS LITTLE OR NO EFFECT

CHICAGO, May 9.—The Inter-Ocean says:

"Wheat traders while putting a bearish construction on the government report did not take it seriously. Some traders regarded the report as having been discounted by the recent decline of 5c. Bulls said they expect to see a continued good export business on every decline, and believe the market heavily oversold and in a position to be easily rallied.

"Those who were bullish on corn believe that there will be no great pressure of receipts for a week or ten days, or until after corn planting is finished. It was intimated that some of the heaviest sellers of late winter were on the buying side for the past few days.

"Oats specialists are inclined to go slow on the selling side until there are more satisfactory reports in regard to the crop from Central Illinois."

POULTRY, PET and LIVE STOCK

Defects in Combs Of Chickens Often Mar Beauty of Fowls

Should Exercise Great Care in Breeding—Value by Judges.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

The pea comb is a triple comb, or a series of three straight combs paralleling each other, and joined to each other at the base, each having small but distinct serreations throughout their length. The two outer rows being lower and thinner than the center one, the points formed in this way being so low and broad that they resemble rows of peas, hence the name given them. This comb should fit close and solid upon the head, rather than to stand up from the head and incline to turn from side to side.

The breeds having this comb are the Brahmas, Buckeyes, all the Cornish and Sumatra. The most common defect in these combs is the twisting from side to side near the middle. In other words, it is a kink in all three of the rows of points and makes the comb decidedly out of line when viewed from in front.

Another kind of comb that is often seen in one where the middle part of the combs show all right and is good shape in itself, but the sides are very faintly outlined and would almost be taken for a single comb at first sight. In mating up such stock for breeding purposes one is very likely to get some single combs and then the trouble has commenced.

The V comb is a very peculiar one and looks much like a pair of horns standing up from the center of the head. They show but very slightly upon the heads of the hens. On the well matured males it shows up all right. The comb in these breeds is, however, not considered a valuable asset, so that the smaller it is the better it is liked.

Value by Judges.

The comb is only valued at 4 points out of the 100. The breeds having this form of comb are as follows: All the Polish (which are eight varieties), the Houdans, Crevecoeurs, and LaFleche, French varieties.

Then we have the Malay and the Silkie, with the strawberry comb, which is not very much of a definite comb and is found only upon these two breeds of relatively small importance. The comb is really of more importance than is generally considered as a distinguishing feature of the breed or variety it represents. Take, for example, the Light Brahma, the variety which stands at the head of our list of thoroughbred fowls for recognized type in breeding and put a sort of mongrel type of comb upon it and what would it be worth? Or the Plymouth Rock and put a wrinkled turn-over sort of a comb upon it and a Rock man would simply laugh at you and want to know what it was mixed with.

It frequently occurs, however, that some of the larger-combed hens of a variety are the heaviest layers. That is, they may have a comb almost too heavy for the breed, although of the right type, and be greatest layers of the flock.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall:—Is it a good plan to breed pullets back to their sire? Some tell me it is just the thing to do, while others say it is detrimental to health. I would be very glad to have your opinion of it.
Monroe, Ga. S. J. R.

ANSWER:—While expert breeders of long experience take the chances of weakened vitality in the offspring for the sake of gaining some valuable points they have been striving hard for, yet, as a rule, it is not good policy to make a business of it. Unless you are sure you are going to be able to intensify a number of good qualities in the next generation, you had better not take the risk of multiplying a lot of serious defects.

You see, it is close inbreeding and is not a good policy for those who are not working for the very highest in type to undertake or run the risk of for health's sake. Of course, it is better to breed that way than to breed brother and sister together.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

W. G. Raoul Property To Be Put on Market

Ten Lots Facing Piedmont Park. Druid Hills Sale—Improvements on Peachtree Road.

Ten lots in the estate of the late William G. Raoul, facing Piedmont Park, will be sold at private sale by the Forrest & George Adair real estate agency, according to announcement made to-day. The property was carefully assembled by Captain Raoul through a long period of years and this is the first time it has been offered for sale. The lots are on the west side of Piedmont Avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets. Several of them taken together were offered two years ago as a site for the State's executive mansion. The frontages are from 60 to 70 feet and the depths 150 to 200 feet.

Greenwood Avenue Sale.

Eugene S. Kelly has bought through his concern, the Charles P. Glover Realty Company, a residence lot on Greenwood Avenue, between Highland Avenue and Briarcliff Road, just west of Druid Hills, for $11,500. This lot is 305 by 169 feet. It was bought for investment from a client of the Glover agency.

Meetings at City Hall.

People who are working for a regrade of Whitehall and West Peachtree Streets are meeting this afternoon with the streets committee of Council at the City Hall, to urge improvements on their thoroughfares. The Whitehall Street matter is expected to be settled at this conference, and the West Peachtree question will be taken up later.

Foundry Street Purchase.

Mrs. Bertha Kline has bought through J. H. Ewing, of the Smith & Ewing real estate agency, a 40 by 100 foot lot on Foundry Street, between Elliott and Mangum Streets, for $2,250. A small house is on this property. The seller was L. M. Anderson.

Sale on Piedmont Road.

Deeds have gone to record in the sale March 6 of a large building lot at the northwest corner of Piedmont and Ivy Roads, from Claude E. Buchanan to Wesley Hirshburg, for $6,875. This lot is west of the William J. Stoddard place and in the neighborhood of other fine residences.

A bond for title has also gone to record in the sale March 31 of a 20 by 60 foot lot on Whitehall, near West Fair Street, to Nathan Wolfe by A. D. Greenfield, for $6,500.

Real Estate Activity.

An increase in different realty transfers as set forth in The Fulton County Daily Report shows the tendency of real estate to assume its normal aspect in the market. To-day's issue of this publication contained seventeen bond for title items and 32 warranty deed items, and led several real estate men to remark that the number was the best and most complete that The Report has ever issued.

Big Deals Coming.

Several important real estate deals are in the contract stage and should be announced early next week. One of these involves approximately $100,000 and there are a number of smaller figures.

Road Work at Buckhead.

County convicts are working fast to complete improvements on Peachtree Road, anticipating increased traffic which will come about June 1, when the Capital City Club takes charge of its country club at Brookhaven. The right-hand side of Peachtree Road, starting at Buckhead, has been macadamized nearly as far north as W. S. Witham's estate, and only awaits the steam roller to be put in good shape. Space between the car tracks has been taken on this northward trudge of the convicts. The work will proceed to the DeKalb County line and then the gang will turn back toward Buckhead.

County Commissioners are well satisfied with the work and predict that Peachtree Road will be in very good shape when Capital City golfers take their sticks to Brookhaven.

To Widen Roswell Road.

The proposition of widening the Roswell Road from Buckhead to Piedmont Road (formerly Plaster Bridge Road) has been revived. A year or two ago this matter was agitated. All property owners except one agreed to give 10 to 20 feet, and the opposition of the single owner blocked the project. Now E. T. Luckie, of the Holmes & Luckie Realty Company, has taken up the matter again, and he expresses confidence in the outcome. Mr. Luckie's idea is to lay out the Roswell Road so that whenever the demand is great enough on the part of the people along the route, a car line can be built to Roswell. Either this or the street car company can leave the wide thoroughfare to vehicular traffic and establish a private right-of-way close by.

If You Are in Debt, You Are a Fly Glued to the Flypaper.

The More You Struggle, the Tighter You Stick. Soon Your Courage Is Gone and You Are a Dead Fly.

Copyright, 1913.

The picture at the top of this page is a picture for more than half of all the people in this country.

More than half the people are in debt—that is to say, they are living beyond their means, or they are spending every cent.

And the man who is spending every cent he gets is actually in debt and running in debt, for he is running in debt TO HIS OLD AGE, when he won't be able to make, and won't be able to spend, and when the spending of to-day means debt later.

Those that are in debt know what debt is. There is no need to tell them about it.

First you owe $50 if you are a little man, or $50,000 if you are a big man.

And then you owe $100—or $100,000 if you are big.

For a while you struggle and plan. You are going to pay it off soon. It is a good thing to use "O P M," that is to say, other people's money, in the effort to get ahead.

You tell yourself that all the big men have used their credit and borrowed and gone ahead rapidly.

It all sounds very nice and plausible.

But remember that YOU KEEP GETTING IN DEEPER.

The fly lights on the fly paper, perhaps with only one leg at first. He says this is nothing, and puts down the other leg to push himself off.

AND THEN HE IS STUCK FAST.

And then he says to himself: "I will fly away from this fly paper," so he begins flapping his wings. And both of his wings stick to the paper.

There he is with his feet stuck and his wings stuck and only his head free.

That fly feels about as independent and hearty as you do if you are in debt. And he says: "I can get off of this paper easily enough when I get ready. I'll just put my head down and push myself off."

He buzzes for a while. THEN HE PUTS HIS HEAD DOWN ON THE FLY PAPER, TO PUSH HIMSELF OFF.

Then his head sticks tight; he begins to choke.

By and by he rolls over on his side, he sinks into the sticky surface—AND THERE IS ANOTHER DEAD FLY.

So it is with men in debt. So it will be with you if you stay in debt.

The only hope for the fly, the moment he feels one foot on the fly paper, is to use those wings and fly away, not putting in the other foot; flying off as quickly as he can.

And a million times wiser and better is the occasional rare fly, who sees the other flies sticking to the fly paper and says: "I don't like the look of those flies; I'll stay away from them."

Look at the people in debt. See their worry. See the anxiety of the mother, reflected in the children.

See the lack of standing, the extravagance and the poverty mixed together.

You can't mistake the human fly stuck on the fly paper of debt.

Since you cannot mistake him, why not keep away from that fly paper?

Debt makes everything worthless.

If you owe a thousand dollars, it seems rather foolish to save ten or twenty.

You feel that you might as well spend it; it won't make any difference.

And so it goes, if you owe two thousand. And then it isn't worth while to save twenty or forty.

And you become a failure. You put down your feet, and then your wings, AND THEN YOUR HEAD, WHICH IS AMBITION, and by and by you roll over and you are a dead fly.

Keep out of debt.

Congratulations We Do Not Want

Lord Welby, speaking in London at the annual dinner of the Cobden Club on the prospects of free trade, said that the members might congratulate themselves on President Wilson's new tariff bill. There is the bare truth about what is thought of the bill by the out-and-out free traders of England.

Richard Cobden died in 1865. The population of Great Britain has almost doubled since. Railroads were in their infancy, and it took weeks to cross the Atlantic. Telegraphy had just begun and ocean-spanning cables did not exist. Cobden could never have even dreamed of the cheap and vast transportation systems, by land and sea, of to-day. He could never even have dreamed of the year when the United States would practically consume all the wheat it would grow. He could never even have dreamed of the development of machinery, changing, as it has, the whole face of world-trade.

Yet they did dream in those days. Cobden's associates dreamed and prophesied, too. They prophesied, and loudly, that within fifty years every civilized nation would have adopted free trade, and they were exactly wrong.

It would take many volumes to tell the whole difference between the conditions of the world's business in 1865 and 1913.

There are some congratulations that may be paid for too dearly.

Rivalry in Religion

THE disappearance of sectarian bitterness is one of the most observable facts of to-day. Whatever may be thought of it, no man can regard it possible to check the movement which is breaking down the old denominational antipathies. It is interpreted by many as the best modern evidence that a Heavenly Power is at work in the world. They believe that the Spirit of its Divine Founder is prevailing in Christianity over the human passions of men, and that the gospel of love is at last conquering completely the hearts of those who preach it.

The large front of this movement appears in religious conventions and in the current religious literature. In reiterated proposals of church federation and missionary co-operation not a few religious leaders ardently believe that the amalgamation of denominations in one great inclusive church is not only desirable but inevitable.

Protesting the Movement.

But this rosy view has its checkmate and counter-blast. There are very many—probably at this time the majority of church communicants, who do not view the loss of the sectarian spirit with sympathy. Large numbers of leaders are flung in violent reaction against it. Within each denomination there are organs, and therefore an organization, of protest. A keen eye observes that the internal antagonisms in the different denominations on the subject is really helping on the movement of fraternity as between the denominations themselves by transferring the emphasis of the old conflict between them as sects to mere family disputes.

The question of denominationalism will not be settled wisely in this fashion. There are profound reasons for the existence and maintenance of divergent groups in Christianity. There are many of the best men in each denomination who observe the tendency of the times, feel its power, and are drawn into it, who still stoutly question, if it is not liable to cost the cause of Truth and the energies of religion more than all its compensating amenities can amount to. The man in the street does not see very far into the problem of denominationalism. It appears to him a plague of wicked envies and a useless waste of power.

The Real Values.

Why is it, then, that those inside the churches, as leaders and laymen, who are manifestly consecrated men of the finest good sense, are strong in their support of separate denominations, especially their own? It is because they know the real value of denominationalism. It is not a narrow sectarian meanness on their part. They lend no encouragement to theological strife and religious bad feeling. They lament the wounds which persecution and bigotry have made and would make again. But they know that after all there are convictions of religious truth worth fighting for, and that the great loyalties of conscience have been the levers of salvation for the human race. As students of church history, they know that the stubborn quality of soul, the heroic mold of character and the magnificent manhood which have fallen out of that history, are not to be lightly set aside or interpreted apart from the great competitions of religion in which they were generated.

New Denominationalism.

So the rapidly evaporating sectarianism of our time, if full of promise, is full of peril also. It is our task to provide a relation of religious groups to each other and toward their common cause which will conserve consecration and aggressiveness, while at the same time it encourages their basal fellowship.

I believe it can be done and that it will be done.

As Christianity stands to-day, the demand for an arrangement of its group forces in a provoking attitude toward each other, but with the supreme objective clear enough to cure the evils of sectarianism. The suggestion for a "New Denominationalism" is offered therefore as a substitute for the tendency toward "No Denominationalism." It is that the theological quarrel shall be subordinated to the logical contest of religious groups engaged constructively for the kingdom of God on earth. It should appeal to anyone that the rivalry of creeds giving way to the rivalry of deeds will be infinitely better than the mere subsidence of all rivalry which is threatened.

STATE URGED TO STERILIZE INSANE AND AID YOUNG

Board Reports Conditions at the Asylum at Milledgeville Call for Many Reforms — Governor Is Asked to Move for Changes.

Provision for Care of Children of Feeble Mind Badly Needed, Say Directors—Protest Against the Housing of "Lunatic-Convicts."

Striking new methods of handling patients in the Georgia State Sanitarium at Milledgeville are urged in the annual report of the board of directors, submitted to Governor Brown Friday. The most important recommendations are:

The enactment of a sterilization law, applying to certain classes of criminals and defectives, modeled after recently enacted laws of New Jersey and Indiana.

A ban on the commitment of epileptics (not insane), feeble-minded children, harmless seniles and paralytics and persons escaping trial by pleas of lunacy. This is a hospital and not a prison.

The report declares that poor results have been obtained at the institution in the cure of insanity on account of the crowded conditions and the lack of facilities for segregating and treating the curable cases apart from the criminal and hopelessly insane. A psycophathic hospital is urged.

No Provision for Children.

"No provision is made in our State educational system for the care and treatment of feeble-minded children," states the report. "Most of them are capable of training that will aid in their happiness and fit them for some usefulness. Only the grosser types are committed to the State Sanitarium, while the great majority are allowed to grow up without care.

"Further commitment with the insane should be stopped and some adequate provision made by the State for these children."

The report criticises the present system of confining epileptics not insane in the sanitarium, pointing out that association with crazy persons tends to hopelessly depress them and also has a bad effect on the insane persons. A hospital for epileptics is recommended; and it is suggested that it should be named for T. O. Powell because of the great service he has rendered the State along such lines.

Negro Quarters Insanitary.

Alarming insanitary and overcrowded conditions in the negro building are reported and the need of $100,000 for an annex to this building is said to be imperative. To separate the acute insane from the hopelessly insane an appropriation of $135,000 is urged. For a nurses' home $40,000 is asked.

There are 3,429 patients in the institution, 1,108 having been admitted this year. The daily average during 1912 was 3,424, an increase of 41 over 1911. The annual average increase during the last five years has been 89. Of eleven criminals committed, three were found to be sane.

The average cost per patient last year was $153.06. The total income of the sanitarium was $530,000.

There is an exceedingly high death rate among the negro patients. Most of the deaths in the institution are from tuberculosis and pellagra, recent increases in pellagra deaths being reported as startling.

The report was submitted by John T. Brantly, president of the board.

Other recommendations for changes in the laws governing the institution are:

That the three nearest adult relatives can, with the consent of the Ordinary, waive the ten days' notice of trial for lunacy. This is to prevent victims being held in jail during the ten days.

Congress Committee to Recommend Government Line—Private Roads Charged With Extortion.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A bill providing for the construction of Government railroads in Alaska to cost $35,000,000 or more, will be reported by the Committee on Territories as soon as official reports from the several departments can be collected to be included in the evidence with which the committee will defend its bill.

O. L. Dickinson, of the White Pass and Yukon Railroad, testified that private transportation companies have exacted prohibitive rates on tonnage and delayed the development of the country.

Jeffries Offered Job As Sparring Partner

Gunboat Smith Wants Immediate Answer—Ex-Heavyweight Champion Recovers From Shock.

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—Jim Jeffries, former heavyweight champion of the world, is said to be slightly improved to-day following a fainting spell in which he succumbed yesterday after he got the following telegram from Gunboat Smith, who is to box Jess Willard in San Francisco May 20:

"Do you want to come North and act as my sparring partner? Answer immediately."

It is said that even Jack Johnson's knockout punch did not pain Jeff as much as Smith's offer of a sparring partner's job.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Gotham is gasping to-day over the raiment that decorated the form of C. Webb Murphy, owner of the Cubs, when he appeared on the streets to-day.

Murphy wore a green velvet hat with a fancy bow, a tan overcoat with a velvet collar, a sassy looking black nd white striped suit, green vest with cream colored spots, a green tie with black stripes, white silk stockings, very light colored tan shoes and chamois gloves.

ROME, May 9.—Pope Pius X today gave his first official audience since his recent illness, receiving the apostolic mission which attended the Eucharistic Congress at Malta.

Hobble Blamed for Arson Trust's Origin

Merchants, Unable to Sell Old Styles, Called on Firebugs to Destroy Worthless Stocks.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Changes in styles which rendered worthless thousands of dollars' worth of stock in women's clothes was one of the factors that fostered the arson trust, according to Assistant State's Attorney Frank Johnson.

Dealers, finding themselves stocked with clothing that could not be sold when women decided to wear tight skirts, called the torch men into help, Johnson asserted.

CHILD BURNS TO DEATH PLAYING WITH MATCHES

MACON, GA., May 9.—Emmett Ellis, ten-year-old son of A. J. Ellis, a Macon contractor, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the home of D. B. Ellis, at Roberta, Crawford County, late yesterday afternoon.

The boy had been playing with matches in the garret of the house and it is supposed that the fire started that way.

SENATE BEGINS CONSIDERATION OF TARIFF BILL

Received From House and Referred—Hearings Are Secret. Expect Vote in Nine Weeks.

ANTICIPATE MANY CHANGES

Democrats Rejoice as Representatives Pass Underwood Measure by Vote of 281 to 139.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Shortly after the Senate convened to-day the Underwood tariff bill was brought over from the House, read and referred to the Finance Committee.

In the Finance Committee the schedule was assigned to sub-committee No. 1, composed of Senators Stone, Thomas, James and Simmons, and the wool schedule to No. 2—Senators Williams, Shively, Gore and Simmons. The remaining schedules were divided equally between subcommittees 1, 2 and 3.

Hearings on the bill will be behind closed doors, the Democrats having decided that public hearings would consume too much time. It is expected that three weeks will be used by the committee in considering the measures, and six weeks more in debate on the floor.

It also is considered certain that a number of changes will be made in the measure, necessitating its reference to the conference of the House and Senate members.

On the final test in the House last night the vote was 281 to 139, five Democrats voting against the bill and two Republicans voting for it. Four Progressives supported the bill and fourteen opposed it, while one Independent Progressive joined with the majority.

When Speaker Clark announced the vote in loud tones that revealed his satisfaction exhuberant Democrats hoisted a stuffed Democratic donkey over the heads of their colleagues in the rear of the chamber, a ripple of applause followed and the gavel fell on the first chapter in the history of President Wilson's extra session of Congress.

With the bill on its way to the Senate, there was a rush of Representatives for their homes. In the House adjournment will be taken three days at a time beginning next week until June 1.

Wiley, 'Cow Center,' Loses Depot Fight

Mathis Is Given Station by State Railroad Commission—Victor Cited Its Beauty.

Wiley, the "natural center of the cow movement," and the most populous town of the vicinity, with twenty-three persons, loses its fight for an agency station on the Tallulah Falls Railroad.

By order of the Georgia Railroad Commission, Mathis is the victor. The Tallulah Falls Railroad has been instructed to build a station there and put an agent in charge.

Both towns are in Rabun County. They engaged in excited strife over the location of the station. Mathis built its plea on its natural beauty.

'Children Sold Like Animals in Illinois'

Conditions at 'Baby Farms' Scored by Head of Legislative Investigating Committee.

PEORIA, ILL., May 9.—Acting Chairman S. E. Lloyd of the Illinois House committee investigating "baby farms" to-day bitterly denounced conditions which the committee has found.

"They think more of hay and horses in Illinois than they do of children," he said. "We found that babies have been bartered and sold like animals; that they have been sent out of the State without any chance that their parents, if they are known, ever will find them again."

Winkles, Arrested, Pleads Self-Defense

Contractor Who Stabbed Architect Hal Hentz Under $300 Bond. Victim in Hospital.

J. A. Winkles, the East Point contractor who stabbed Hal Hentz, well-known architect, Wednesday afternoon in Ponce deLeon Avenue, has been arrested and his bond fixed at $300. The case has not been set for trial, as the wounded man still is in the hospital.

Winkles asserted that he acted in self-defense, Hentz having attacked him. The trouble grew out of a dispute over work on a new home for Solicitor Hugh Dorsey in Ponce de-Leon Avenue.

BEST DETECTIVE IN AMERICA NOW ON PHAGAN CASE, SAYS DORSEY

Miss Nellie Pettis, at top, who testified against Frank at the inquest. At the bottom, Mrs. Lillie Pettis, her sister-in-law, former employee at the pencil factory.

Solicitor Dorsey Says He Has Secured Powerful Aid in Search for Slayer of Girl---Woman Says She Heard Screams in Pencil Factory.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey said Friday afternoon that he had the best detective in America working on the mystery of the Mary Phagan strangling.

Important developments had ensued already, he declared, and he was confident that an early solution of the case would be reached by the new expert of national reputation who had been placed at work on the clews.

The solicitor is understood to have the affidavit of a woman who swears that she heard a girl's screams as she was passing the factory at 4:30 o'clock the afternoon of the tragedy. The cries were shrill and piercing, she says, and died away as she stopped an instant to listen.

The woman was sure they came from inside the factory, but she gave little attention to her startling experience until she read of the strangling of Mary Phagan. Then it occurred to her that she very likely had heard the dying cries of the little girl and she reported the matter to the authorities.

Solicitor Dorsey, as his first action after the holding of Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee to the Grand Jury for the murder of Mary Phagan, put out the dragnet for witnesses.

A batch of subpenas were issued for the witnesses to appear in his office to give testimony in the case of "The State vs. John Doe."

After a long conference with Detectives Starnes and Campbell, Solicitor Dorsey asserted that action on the part of the Grand Jury might be expected any time after Friday. He plainly intimated that a special session of the jury might be convened Saturday to consider the Phagan murder.

The Solicitor declared as he left the court house with a private detective whose name he refused to divulge that he anticipated the development of startling evidence before night, which, he said, would clear matters materially.

Dorsey Questions Newt Lee.

With the private detective the Solicitor went to the Tower and was closeted with Newt Lee, the night watchman, for more than an hour.

The form of the subpena is taken to mean that many of the witnesses will submit their sworn testimony before the Solicitor General, who will thus have it in documentary form, instead of going before the Grand Jury to give oral testimony. However, it will be necessary for the material or indicting witnesses to go before the Grand Jurors in person.

"The investigation has just begun," said Chief of Detectives Lanford Friday, in discussing the action of the Coroner's jury. "We were confident we had presented sufficient evidence to warrant the holding of the two suspects in the case, but we will have much more when the case gets into the courts.

Have Strong Theory Already.

"We are going to continue right on with the investigation and try to dig down to the full truth of the mystery. We have a strongly supported theory as to who committed the crime, but we are ready at any time to change our opinions as soon as the evidence points in another direction.

"It will be possible, with the rush and hurry of the Coroner's jury passed, for my men to work with more deliberation and care and to sift with a greater thoroughness every bit of evidence that comes into their possession. Even if nothing new should develop, we have enough leads to keep half a dozen detectives busy for a week."

Detectives Rosser, Campbell, Black, Starnes and Bullard are still working with the chief on the case and probably will continue until the mystery is cleared.

'Thaw Is Father of Child,' Wife Repeats

'And I'm Going to See Our Baby Is Treated Justly by Harry's Relatives,' She Adds.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PLYMOUTH, ENGLAND, May 9.—Upon her arrival here to-day on board the liner Olympic from New York, Mrs. Evelyn Thaw, wife of Harry Thaw, declared emphatically and positively that her husband is the father of her baby, a fact which he denies.

"One has only to look at the little darling to know who its father is," she said, as she cuddled the infant. "Harry is my husband and the father of my child. I love my baby and am going to see that it is justly treated by relatives of my husband."

Mrs. Thaw said she was going to return to the stage at once. She has signed contracts, she said, to appear in music halls in London at $5,000 a week, and later will be seen in vaudeville in the United States.

"I must live, and I think that I will be able to make a success," she explained.

This Maud Muller Wants to Rake Hay

She's Also Anxious to Plow, She Declares, in Application for Farm Job.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 9.—"I want to plough, clean house, make hay and drive binders in the field," says Grace Simpson in her application to the Devils Lake Commercial Club for a chance to do the same work on a farm as a man would.

"The day is past when it is out of the ordinary for a girl to labor at men's work." Miss Simpson asserted. "I love horses and I am sure that I can take just as good care of them as any man. The city work would kill me in the summer time. I can beat some men at their own jobs at that. If I can get as good wages in the country as I can get here I shall leave immediately."

Marry Young, Urges Harvard President

'Send Man of 40 to College and He'll Go to Dogs,' Declares Lowell.

CHICAGO, May 9.—President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard University, to-day advised the bachelors of the Harvard Club of Chicago to marry early.

"It is neither well for a man nor his community that he wait until he is 28 before he thinks of marriage," said President Lowell. "It is better that he launch his efforts into the world while young. Send a man to college at 40 and he will go to the dogs."

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Viscount Chinda, Japanese Ambassador, had a conference with Secretary of State Bryan to-day, which lasted 27 minutes, and at which the Japanese diplomat presented Japan's views on the California anti-alien land law.

At the close of the conference Ambassador Chinda said: "I can say nothing about the results of the conference."

Secretary Bryan declared he could give no intimation of the result of the conference, and left immediately for the White House to attend the Cabinet meeting, where the Japanese situation was discussed at length.

The raid was inspired by Governor H. D. Hatfield, who recently was attacked by the paper in connection with the West Virginia coal strike.

'CURE' DOUBTED BY U. S. EXPERTS

Results of Friedmann Treatment Do Not Justify Confidence, Health Board Reports.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—"Effects of the Friedmann cure thus far observed do not justify the confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by well-meant publicity."

This is the crux of an official statement from the board of examiners of the public health service, delivered by Dr. John F. Anderson before the American Congress of Physicians and Surgeons in Washington to-day.

Dr. Anderson said harm may have been done by undue publicity in lessening the confidence of tuberculosis victims in well-recognized methods of treatment.

"With respect to the patients under examination in New York, he said many have developed no considerable infiltrate at all and have not suffered from abscess formations. This would indicate that they must be under treatment a long time to effect a cure, as Dr. Friedmann stated that infiltrate and abscess formations indicated more or less rapid progress toward cure.

ping department at the National Pencil factory, was the first of the witnesses to be examined by the Solicitor. He was in Mr. Dorsey's office a considerable part of the forenoon and underwent a rigorous examination.

New Witnesses Sought.

Detectives Starnes and Campbell also were with the Solicitor, and two of the Solicitor's assistants, Newton Garner and Dan Goodlin, were dispatched the first thing in the morning to hunt up new witnesses of whom Mr. Dorsey had information.

Foreman Quinn was called, it is understood, to clear up the discrepancies in his testimony and the statement he is said to have made to the detectives and to several of his acquaintances. In his testimony before the Coroner's jury he declared that he visited the factory between 12:10 and 12:30 o'clock, the afternoon of the killing of Mary Phagan. He said he talked with Frank for two minutes in the superintendent's office.

Detectives declared that Quinn had told them and other persons that he did not visit the factory at all Saturday and that he was not there from the time he left Friday until the following Monday.

Frank Expected To Be Held.

"That's about what I expected at this time," was the comment with which Leo M. Frank, with little trace of emotion, received the news of the action of the Coroner's jury Thursday night.

Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor was the officer who informed both Frank and Newt Lee that the jury had recommended that they be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

The night watchman received the news indifferently and had nothing to say.

Atlanta, Ga., May 8, 1913.

We, the Coroner's jury, impaneled and sworn by Paul Donehoo, Coroner of Fulton County, to inquire into the cause of the death of Mary Phagan, whose dead body now lies before us, after having heard the evidence of sworn witnesses, and the statement of Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, find that the deceased came to her death from strangulation. We recommend that Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

(Signed)

HOMER C. ASHFORD, Foreman.
DR. J. W. HURT, County Physician.

Solicitor Dorsey said Friday he would give the Phagan case all of his attention and present his evidence to the Grand Jury as quickly as possible.

The solicitor has shown an anxiety to avoid delays of any nature in hunting down the slayer of the Phagan girl, and now that the Coroner's jury has turned the case over to the Solicitor and the Grand Jury it may be taken for granted that the investigation will be hurried along with all possible speed.

Case in State's Hands.

"The case now is fully in the hands of the State," said the Solicitor Friday morning. "It will not be presented to the Grand Jury Friday, but I shall endeavor to present it at the earliest possible moment. The instant that I have a complete case I shall bring it to the attention of the Grand Jury. It is my desire to bring the slayer of Mary Phagan to justice with the greatest dispatch. A great crime has been done and I am no less eager to see the guilt determined than the general public."

It required the Coroner's jury about twenty minutes to frame its formal verdict Thursday night. The jurors received a brief charge from Coroner Donehoo and filed from the Commissioners' room in the police station at 6:08 o'clock. At 6:28 they were back with their verdict.

Coroner Donehoo admonished the jurors to be as ready to hold a person who they thought might be withholding information of the crime as to hold a person they regarded as the possible culprit. A person possessing knowledge of the crime and withholding it, he said, was an accessory after the fact.

An immediate hush fell on the packed room when the jurors returned. There was a dead silence except for the voice of Homer C. Ashford, foreman of the jury, when the verdict was read.

Girls Testify Against Frank.

The most damaging testimony against Frank in regard to his treatment of employees at his factory was saved until the last hours of the hearing. Girls and women were called to the stand to testify that they had been employed at the factory or had had occasion to go there, and that Frank had attempted familiarities with them.

Nellie Pettis, of 9 Oliver Street, declared that Frank had made improper advances to her. She was asked if she ever had been employed at the pencil factory.

"No," she answered.

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I have seen him once or twice."

Q. When and where did you see him?—A. In his office at the factory whenever I went to draw my sister-in-law's pay.

Q. What did he say to you that might have been improper on any of these visits?—A. He didn't exactly say—he made gestures. I went to get sister's pay about four weeks ago and when I went into the office of Mr. Frank I asked for her. He told me I couldn't see her unless "I saw him first."

Says He Winked at Her.

"I told him I didn't want to 'see him.' He pulled a box from his desk. It had a lot of money in it. He looked at it significantly and then looked at me. When he looked at me, he winked. As he winked he said: 'How about it?'

"I instantly told him I was a nice girl."

Here the witness stopped her statement. Coroner Donehoo asked her sharply:

"Didn't you say anything else?"

"Yes, I did! I told him to go to h—l! and walked out of his office."

Thomas Blackstock, who said that he was employed at the factory about a year ago testified as follows:

Tells of Frank's Conduct.

Q. Do you know Leo M. Frank?—A. Yes.

Q. How long have you known him?—A. About six weeks.

Q. Did you ever observe his conduct toward female employees of the pencil factory?—A. Yes. I've often seen him picking on different girls.

Q. Name some.—A. I can't exactly recollect names.

Q. What was the conduct you noticed particularly?

The witness answered to the effect that he had seen him place his hands with undue familiarity upon the person of girls.

Q. See it often?—A. A half dozen times, maybe. He generally was seen to become that familiar while he was touring the building.

Q. Can't you name just one girl?—A. Yes. Magnolia Kennedy.

Q. Did you see him act with undue familiarity toward her?—A. No. I heard talk about it.

Q. Before or after the murder?—A. Afterward.

"Girls Tried to Avoid Him."

Q. When did you observe this misconduct of which you have told?—A. A year ago.

Q. Did you hear complaints around the plant?—A. No. The girls tried to avoid him.

Mrs. C. D. Donegan said she was connected with the pencil plant for three weeks. Her capacity was that of forelady. She resides at 165 West Fourteenth Street with her husband.

Her testimony follows:

"State your observations of Frank's conduct toward the girls and women of the plant."

"I have noticed him smile and wink at the girls in the place. That was two years ago."

"Did you make a statement to the detectives of undue familiarity you had witnessed?"

"I told them that I had seen Frank flirt with the girls and women—that was all I said."

Charges Familiarities.

The testimony of Nellie Wood, a young girl of 8 Corput Street, came next.

In brief it was this:

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I worked for him two days.

Q. Did you observe any misconduct on his part?—A. Well, his actions didn't suit me. He'd come around and put his hands on me when such conduct was entirely uncalled for.

Q. Is that all he did?—A. No. He asked me one day to come into his office, saying that he wanted to talk to me. He tried to close the door, but I wouldn't let him. He got too familiar by getting so close to me. He also put his hands on me.

Q. Where did he put his hands?—A. He barely touched my breast. He was subtle with his approaches, and tried to pretend that he was joking, but I was too wary for such as that.

Quit His Employ.

Q. Did he try further familiarities?—A. Yes.

Q. When did this happen?—A. Two years ago.

Q. What did you tell him when you left his employ?—A. I just quit, telling him that it didn't suit me.

Frank's testimony was looked forward to with keen interest, but when he was called to the stand in the afternoon, he merely answered additional questions as to his movements on the day of the crime and failed to add materially to the evidence in hand.

He appeared pale and haggard from his imprisonment, but he replied to all of the questions clearly and showed no hesitation or apparent fear. He was asked:

Testimony of Frank.

Q. What kind of elevator door is there to the shaft in the pencil factory?—A. Sliding doors.

Q. How many?—A. One on each floor.

Q. Are they latticed or solid?—A. Solid.

Q. Where was the elevator at 12 o'clock Saturday?—A. I did not notice.

Q. Were the doors open or closed? A. I don't remember.

Q. What protection would a person have from falling down the shaft if the doors were left open?—A. A bar which projects across the opening.

Q. After the crime was committed, where did the elevator stand?—A. I only know where it stood Sunday morning. It then was on the second floor.

Didn't File Time Tape.

Q. When you last removed the tape from the time clock, what did you do with it?—A. Handed it to an officer in the building.

Q. Did you put it on file?—A. No.

Q. Are you sure?—A. Yes, positive.

Q. Do you remember a party at your house on the night of April 26?—A. Yes.

Q. Can you name the guests?—A. I don't remember them all.

Q. When the police came to bring you down to the factory that Sunday morning, what was said about whisky?—A. I said I wanted something warm to drink. One of the detectives suggested whisky.

Q. What time was it?—A. Between 7:30 and 8 o'clock.

Says He Viewed Body.

Q. What did you say about dreaming?—A. I said to someone that I thought I had dreamed of hearing the telephone ring in the dead of night.

Q. When you went to the undertakers', did you go in the water closet instead of the room in which the body lay?—A. No.

Q. Did you view the body?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you recognize the girl—A. Yes.

Q. When did you first hear her name?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What time did you return home that Sunday afternoon?—A. I don't recollect.

Q. Did you telephone your wife before your return?—A. Yes.

Q. Was the murder discussed at home that afternoon?—A. Not much.

Q. What topic was discussed.—A. I don't remember.

Often Does Not Remember.

Q. When did Quinn first mention to you his visit to the factory on the 26th?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What did he say?—A. He said, "Don't you recollect that I was at the factory Saturday about noon?"

Q. What did you tell him about withholding that information until your attorney had been consulted?—A. I don't remember. I had so many visitors that I couldn't recollect the exact words.

Q. Who suggested the conference with your attorney relative to Quinn's visit?—A. I don't remember.

Q. How long have you known you had counsel?—A. Since Monday.

Q. Why was it mentioned that Quinn's visit be kept quiet until consultation with your lawyer?—A. I don't remember.

Explains Locks and Doors.

Q. How can you lock the door between your office and the dressing room where the blood spots were found?—A. I have never seen it locked.

Q. Is it usually open or locked?—A. Closed.

Q. Is there any way of closing the doors on the back stairway?—A. Yes They are locked.

sation with Detective Starnes at the time you were informed of the tragedy?—A. He asked me if I was superintendent of the National Pencil Factory. "I'd like to have you come down here at once," he said when I informed him that I was Leo Frank. He said he wanted me to identify a girl, and asked me if I knew Mary Phagan.

Q. Didn't you say that the first time you had heard her name was while you were traveling in the auto on the way to the factory Sunday morning?—A. I don't recollect that I did.

Q. Did you have any trouble with a girl in your office Saturday morning?—A. No. There was one incident where a mistake had been made in the pay envelope of Mattie Smith, but it was corrected without any trouble.

Tells of Callers at Office.

Q. What time was Mattie Smith in your office?—A. Between 9 and 10 a. m.

Q. Did any one enter while she was there?—A. I don't remember.

Q. Give the name of every one in the office throughout the day Saturday?—A. Mr. Darley, Mr. Holloway, the office boy, Miss Hall, the stenographer; Mr. Campbell, Mr. Fullerton, Mrs. White, Lemmie Quinn, Mr. Gantt, Emma Clark, another girl employee, Arthur White, Harry Denham, Newt Lee and Mary Phagan.

Q. Did you see May Barrett?—A. I don't know her.

Q. What did you say to Emma Clark?—A. I don't remember saying anything to her.

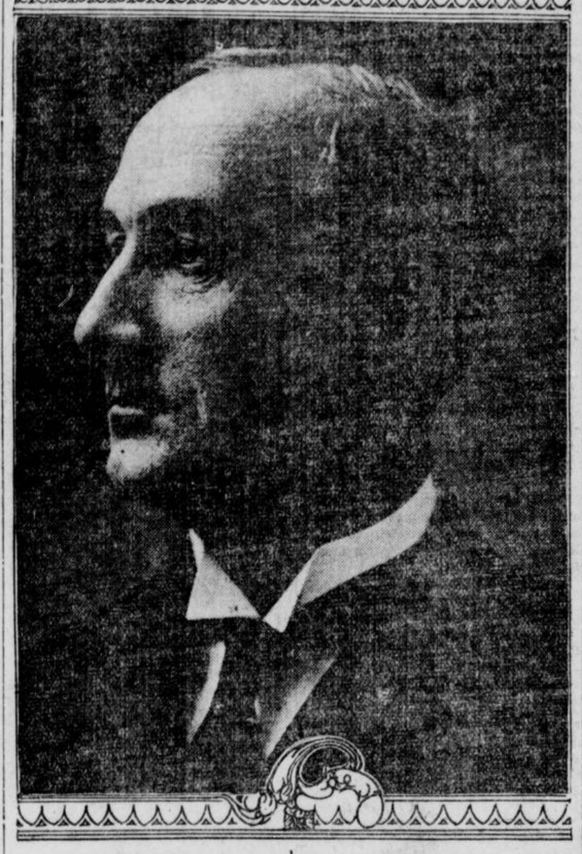
Atlanta Ready for Presbyterians

5,000 Visitors for Assemblies

Noted Speakers on the Programs

REV. THOMAS STONE CLYCE, moderator of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, 1912, who will be one of the prominent visitors in Atlanta next week. Dr. Clyce is president of Austin College at Sherman, Texas.



Consolidation of Four Branches To Be Considered in Gathering Here Next Week.

Preparations are virtually completed to-day for the great Presbyterian convention to be held in Atlanta beginning May 15. For the first time in the history of Presbyterianism in America representatives from its four branches will gather in joint assembly.

From May 15 to May 22 more than 5,000 visiting Presbyterians will be the city's guests. Of this number 1,500 will be regularly appointed commissioners, constituting the largest religious assemblage ever held in the South. More than 700 representatives of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., or Northern Division, 500 from the Presbyterian Church, U. S., or Southern Division; 300 from the United Presbyterian and 25 special representatives from the Associate Reformed Churches will comprise the assemblies.

Atlanta has thrown open her homes to the visitors, all denominations uniting in entertaining the church representatives who come from every State in the Union, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Panama. A number of prominent churchmen from Canada also are expected. The commissioners are chosen, one-half from the clergy and the other half from the laity.

They constitute the governing body of the church and are selected largely because of their prominence and their activity in church work.

Church Union Considered.

Southern Presbyterians will be especially interested in the discussions looking to a union between the United and the Southern divisions. Two committees were appointed last year, one from each of the branches, to confer on a possible basis of union. Their reports will be submitted. It is said the committees have reached an agreement and it is generally believed that the assemblies will act favorably on their reports. Details of the agreement have not been published, but it is believed that they will prove acceptable to both bodies.

While the Associate Reformed branch of the church will not hold a regular conference here, prominent representatives will be in attendance as special commissioners. Their synod met in December, but it is probable that an adjourned session will be held.

A feature of the meeting here, carrying with it perhaps the most widespread interest, will be a possible effort to unite the Northern and Southern branches of the church. Unorganized endeavor has been made during several years past to bring about the union, but with no further results than that churchmen have been aroused on the subject. The joint meeting here is regarded by representative Presbyterians as a most auspicious occasion for the matter to be thrashed out and a union effected. No such opportunity has ever offered itself, as the assemblies have always met in widely separated cities, at separate times.

Union Seminary Fight.

Of considerable interest, particularly to the Northern branch of the church, will be the effort to bring Union Theological Seminary back into the fold. The sixteen delegates from New York, however, were elected on the pledge that they would fight to maintain the present status of the seminary. Charges of extravagance and usurpation of authority against the Board of Home Missions of the Northern Church will be investigated. Rev. Joseph L. Weaver, D.D., of Rocky Ford, Colo., it is understood, has preferred the charges. Dr. William Fulton, of Philadelphia, is chairman of the investigating committee.

An interesting fight for the place of moderator of the Northern Assembly has developed. The leading candidates are Rev. Dr. Maint-Alexander, of Pittsburg; Rev. Dr. Samuel S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio; Rev. Dr. William McKibbin, president of Lane Theological Seminary of Cincinnati, and Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Hinitt, of Danville, Ky.

Bryan to Speak.

The meeting of the assemblies in Atlanta will bring to the city some of the notable men of the country, prominent not only in church affairs, but national figures also.

United States Senator Hoke Smith will be present Tuesday, May 20, to preside over a meeting for home missions. Some of the most prominent leaders of the Associate Reformed branch of the church will be in attendance upon the assemblies, one of them being Dr. J. H. Pressley, of Statesville, N. C., moderator of the A. R. P. division.

Among the definite arrangements already made are a number of conferences at the various churches of the city. The main sessions will be held at the Baptist Tabernacle and the Auditorium.

A joint fellowship gathering will be held at the Auditorium Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Rev. R. O. Flinn, of the North Avenue Church of Atlanta, will preside. A welcome address will be delivered by J. K. Orr, an elder of the North Avenue Church, after which fraternal greetings will be extended from the moderators of the four assemblies, Rev. T. S. Clyce of Texas, for the Southern division; Rev. J. H. Pressley, of North Carolina, for the Associate Reformed Assembly; Rev. Hugh H. Bell, of California, for the United Assembly; Rev. Mark A. Mathews, of Washington State, for the Northern division.

Canadian on Program.

The principal address of the evening will be made by Mr. James McDonald, Ph. D., of The Toronto Globe, Toronto, Canada, on "The Church's Responsibility for International Peace."

Under the direction of Rev. Dunbar Ogden, of Central Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, a union communion service will be held at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Baptist Tabernacle. The moderators of the four assemblies will conduct the service.

Rev. Charles R. Stelzle, of New York, and Marion Jackson, of Atlanta, will be principal speakers at a Christian social service meeting Saturday night at the Auditorium. "Christian Citizenship and the Social Evil" is the subject of Mr. Jackson's address.

GOES TO PREACH REFORM IN JAIL; HELD AS GUN TOTER

COLUMBUS, GA., May 9.—When Jailer Layfield of Muscogee County searched an Atlanta negro minister who came to the jail to make a reform talk to the prisoners, he found a big loaded pistol in his pocket. The negro was locked up. He will face Judge Gilbert of the Superior Court next week.

'KID KABARET' AT FEDERAL PRISON

Gus Edwards' Youngsters Exhaust Their Repertoire in Answer to Convicts' Encores.

No one would have suspected the 800 laughing, uproarious men before whom Gus Edwards' "Kabaret Kids" played Friday morning of being sorrowed and embittered by long years within prison walls.

It was one of the most ususual audiences the "kabaret kids" had ever had—800 convicts serving terms of various lengths at the Atlanta Federal Prison.

The talented youngsters succeeded in making the prisoners forget for a few minutes their isolation from the world. The galling confinement and discipline that droop the shoulders and break the spirit of the transgressor were forgotten and the men became merely boisterously happy human beings.

They cheered and clapped and stamped on the floor until Gus Edwards' young stars had exhausted their repertoire and all that was left for them to do was to make motions. The convicts have so little opportunity of seeing young people that they wanted to get a good look while the "kids" were there.

Miss Belle Storey sang just as she sings at the Forsyth every day—gowns and all.

A ball game preceded the entertainment.

THOUGHTLESSNESS CAUSES LOSS OF MAIL PACKAGES

Postmaster Hugh McKee asserted Friday that thoughtlessness on the part of people and not carelessness on the part of postal authorities had been responsible for the loss of many mail packages.

"It appears that people, rather than bring a package here to the office to be mailed, will just place it on top of the mail boxes on the streets, if it is too large to go inside," he said.

SHRINERS OFF TO DALLAS TO CAPTURE MEET FOR ATLANTA

Yaarab Temple Boosters, 200 Strong, Leave Friday Night for Convention---Confident of Success.

I want to again express my appreciation for the assistance of Mr. Hearst and his newspapers throughout the country. If Atlanta gets the 1914 meeting Mr. Hearst and his papers will be largely responsible.—POTENTATE FORREST ADAIR.

"The Imperial Council will meet in Atlanta in 1914. Personally I have no doubt of it. We have hotel accommodations; Memphis has not and we have made a remarkable record in raising a fund of $76,000 in one day that every Shriner in America knows about.

"And we leave to-night for Dallas better equipped to extend an invitation of this kind than any city or Temple that has extended a like invitation in a great number of years."

With this statement Forrest Adair, potentate of Yaarab Temple, announced Friday morning that every detail of the pilgrimage to the convention of the Imperial Council of Shriners at Dallas, Tex., was complete and Atlanta's delegation, nearly 200 strong, would leave in a special train over the Southern Railway at 10 o'clock Friday night.

Reach Dallas Sunday.

Early Sunday morning the Atlanta pilgrims will have crossed the hot sands and entered the Oasis of Dallas. They will go into the city with their coats on their arms, prepared to drown out any discordant note, from Memphis, or anywhere for that matter, with the now familiar slogan:

"Atlanta, 1914."

At Birmingham, Meridian, Shreveport and a score of points along the line, Atlanta boosters will board the train, and go with the delegation to Dallas to swell the total and bring the convention to the Southeast next year.

Mr. Adair and his official delegation, W. A. Foster, John A. Hynds and Claude H. Hutcheson, of Jonesboro, will extend the invitation.

They will be fortified with official invitations from the Mayor and City Council and every trades organization in the city, as well as open contracts from every hotel in Atlanta, assuring accommodations for as many as 4,000 Shriners, the number expected here next year.

No "Holdup" in Rates.

The beauty of the hotel contracts, as explained by Mr. Adair, is that "inauguration rates" will not be charged.

"Only the regular rates," said Mr. Adair, "will be in force, and I have with the contracts a diagram of the floor space indicating the room and the regular rate. They won't be able to go above the rate, even if the hotel men felt inclined to.

"Memphis will not get the convention, because it hasn't got the hotels and the Shriners know it," said Mr. Adair. "They're building one now, but it won't compare with any of the nicer hotels already completed in Atlanta, and as for the best hotels there—Atlanta's got better on the side streets. This alone makes it doubly sure we'll get the convention, but if there's any doubt the size of our delegation removes it."

The Arab Patrol of Yaarab Temple, the crack drum corps, 40 strong, will be a valuable asset of the Atlanta delegation. It is an independent organization formed by the temple for convention work and occasions that demand public appearance. It has attracted much attention at conventions throughout the country.

Members of the Patrol.

The patrol is as follows:

Captain J. O. Seamons, First Lieutenant H. C. Ashford, Second Lieutenant F. E. Van der Veer, First Sergeant C. W. Ferguson, Quartermaster H. H. Milner and Patrolmen Albert Akers, C. E. Barber, J. J. Barnes, Jr., W. D. Benson, F. M. Brotherton, George E. Argard, R. A. Burnett, G. I. Butler, A. B. Chapman, R. E. Church, Frank Cundell, E. E. Cunningham, J. C. Deavours, George Freeman, L. H. Geiger, H. H. Green, J. L. Grice, J. C. Jones, M. E. McGee, M. N. Mixon, T. A. Mixon and R. S. Osborn.

Some unofficial delegates who will go are Fred Houser, J. C. Greenfield, S. L. Dickey, W. R. Joyner, H. G. Martin, J. B. Jacoway, Fred Patterson, Graham Phelan, J. Lee Barnes, Ben Covey, J. F. Carson, Fred Van der Pool, J. F. Waitt, George Beck, Jesse E. Couch and James Kempton.

The delegation will leave Dallas, returning, the evening of May 15 at 8 o'clock and arrive in Atlanta the evening of May 17.

The Atlanta Lodge of Elks has pledged the Shriners its enthusiastic support in the effort to bring the Shrine here next year. Exalted Ruler Dunne has written the Shriners that the Elks' home will be wide open to all visitors if the great meeting comes here.

TO LIVE 100 YEARS READ NEWSPAPERS, SAYS CENTENARIAN

BOSTON, May 9.—Ralph Butler, of Dorchester, is 100 years old, and to-day drew up a list of rules for living a century, as follows:

Walk and take plenty of other exercise.

Read the newspapers to keep your mind young.

Eat anything you want, but eat to live, not live to eat, and eat regularly.

Don't take your office cares home with you.

Get to bed early and regularly, and 5 o'clock is not too early to rise.

Two months ago Butler walked to city hall and surprised the Collector of Taxes by paying the amount due on the real estate he holds.

"I'm just as well able to walk to-day as I was twenty years ago," he said. "I feel as active as when 40."

WORLD'S CREDIT BEGINS TO SHOW A GREAT STRAIN

Loans Heavy—New Securities a Drain—Gold Shipments From New York to Paris Deplored.

BY W. R. LAWSON.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, May 9.—Serious bankers do not look with favor upon the renewal of gold shipments from New York to Paris.

All of the big international banks appear to be loaned up to the danger level, while the big new security issues that are coming along are bound to strain banking credit and resources. This week four new issues came out, and several more are in preparation.

Brazil's $55,000,000.

Brazil wants $55,000,000—$15,000,000 to be used for the repayment of treasury bills. Lever Brothers are putting out $5,000,000 new preference shares, and Baltimore Gas $3,500,000. United Fruit's $12,000,000 four-year coupon notes have been successfully placed.

Between now and the end of the month special settlements are due which are likely to increase the demand for money.

Situation in London.

Lombard Street is enjoying temporary ease owing to end-of-the-month borrowing from the Bank of England, but large repayments will have to be made within the next few days.

Further reduction in the English bank rate is not expected immediately. The Berlin rate is hardening, and if Boerse speculation breaks loose again, easy money may be a remote possibility.

Hitherto, while the war was in progress European stocks have been upheld by finance houses for the purpose of facilitating big loan issues which they were preparing to make later.

American Stocks Firmer.

Between September, 1912, and the end of April, 1913, declines in European stocks have generally been very trifling, while American stocks suffered heavy declines.

From this it is reasoned that American securities offer a better field for a bull campaign.

$25,000,000 INSURANCE ON MORGAN ART WORKS

NEW YORK, May 9.—A situation almost without precedent in the insurance market is reported as a result of J. P. Morgan's plan to insure the $50,000,000 worth of art objects left by his father. The $25,000,000 that is being taken by 250 American and foreign insurance companies is the largest amount sought in many years upon a single risk.

It has been necessary to divide the collection into two risks, one in the old building of the Metropolitan museum and the other in the new building, effecting an average rate of 14½ cents.

Mrs. Wilson Picks Rome Postmaster

Congressman Lee Agrees to Choice of President's Wife—Bowie to Get Office.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Probably the only bit of political patronage that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is to dictate during her husband's administration was given her yesterday, when the President sent for Representative Gordon Lee, of Georgia, and told him that Mrs. Wilson would like to name the postmaster at Rome, her birthplace. The office is the most important in the Seventh District and pays a salary of $3,500 a year.

Mr. Lee told the President he would be glad to yield to Mrs. Wilson. The President said Mrs. Wilson would probably name J. P. Bowie, an elderly man who was very fond of Mrs. Wilson when she was a little girl. Mr. Lee said he would be glad to join in indorsing him.

WRITERS DROP 'BAD' SONGS; ALL WRITING BALLADS NOW

CHICAGO, May 9.—Doom sounded to-day for the smut song. It struck in "Tin Pan Alley," where the dens of the popular song writers are located. The song writers hurriedly are throwing together "clean stuff" in an agony of decent competition. Every writer in the block is pounding out ballad stuff.

Bride Revolts When Treated Like Child

Mrs. Ada Garrett Quits Place in Husband's Family Circle to Demand Divorce.

Mrs. Ada Davies Garrett, married to Thomas Hoyt Garrett March 1, 1913, and separated the last day of the month, filed a suit for divorce with the Superior Court Friday, because she said her husband wanted her to live in his father's home "just like one of the children," and took no other interest in her or her welfare.

The petitioner said that after the first few days of their married life, her husband, a young engineer for the Southern Railway, informed her that she was to take her place in his family circle just like his brothers and sisters.

NEGRO PUGILIST, TRIED AS SLAVER, WINS FIRST RULING

CHICAGO, May 9.—Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, won the first important point in his case to-day when Judge Carpenter, hearing the negro's trial for violation of the white slave dict, ruled that Belle Schreiber could not tell of alleged cruelties on the part of the black.

DRUGGIST FLED IN FEAR OF BROYLES

Thought Recorder Would Send Him to Stockade for Breaking Garbage Ordinance.

A. S. Knight, manager of a Peters Street drug store, was convinced Friday that Recorder Nash Broyles is not such a terror as he had pictured in his mind.

Knight had never seen Judge Broyles, but had heard and read so much of him that when Sanitary Inspector Simpson cited him to appear in police court on a charge of violating the garbage ordinance he was attacked with a severe case of fright. Although an offense against the garbage laws draws only a small fine, Knight was tortured with the belief that the Recorder would put him in the stockade for about 30 days.

Therefore, instead of appearing in court Tuesday, Knight fled the city with his two children. Dr. A. L. Curtis, proprietor of the drug store, finally located the missing manager in Macon and persuaded him to return and surrender.

Knight told Judge Broyles Thursday afternoon he fled because he was "afraid." He was fined $5.75 in the original garbage case and $10.75 for dodging the court.

TROOPS IN TURK CAPITAL MUTINY

Commander General of Ottoman Army Uses Personal Guard to Quell Uprising.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 9.—Mutiny has developed in the Turkish army stationed along the Chatalja defenses, and it is feared a revolutionary uprising will follow.

Seditious placards were posted in the night throughout the Peroa and Stamboul quarters of the city.

Enver Bey, chief of staff of the Turkish army, is using his personal bodyguard to patrol the city. The guard consists of 700 picked and tried troops.

Sultan Mohammed V did not attend worship in the Yildiz mosque to-day.

Nicholas' Surrender Explanation Cheered.

CETTINJE, MONTENEGRO, May 9.—King Nicholas personally went before the National Parliament to-day and defended his action in giving way to the powers on the question of the evacuation of Scutari. He declared that annihilation inevitably would have followed resistance.

The statement was well taken and Nicholas was cheered.

Nearly all the Montenegrin troops have now left Scutari. King Nicholas feels keenly the humiliation of losing Scutari, and it again is reported he will abdicate in favor of the Crown Prince Danilo.

Scutari Saved From Destruction by Fire.

VIENNA, May 9.—Scutari, the Albanian city whose ownership nearly brought Europe to war, was threatened with destruction by fire to-day. A telegram from Cettinje said flames broke out in the main bazaar and owing to the absence of water and fire fighting appliances, spread rapidly.

500 STRIKERS IN BATTLE.

WINNIPEG, MAN., May 9.—Five hundred strikers at the Canada Car Company's plant to-day fought a battle with 180 strikebreakers. Several of the strikebreakers were injured.

CAN'T HELP BUT ADMIRE BABIES

Every Woman Casts Loving Glance at The Nestling Cuddled in Its Bonnet.

A woman's heart naturally responds to the charm and sweetness of a pretty child, and more to-day than ever before since the advent of Mother's Friend.

This is a most wonderful external help to the muscles and tendons. It penetrates the tissues, makes them pliant to readily yield to nature's demand for expansion, so there is no longer a period of pain, discomfort, straining, nausea or other symptoms so often distressing during the anxious weeks of expectancy.

Mother's Friend prepares the system for the coming event, and its use brings comfort, rest and repose during the term. This has a most marked influence upon the baby, since it thus inherits a splendid growing system of nerves and digestive function.

And particularly to young mothers is this famous remedy of inestimable value. It enables her to preserve her health and strength, and she remains a pretty mother by having avoided all the suffering and danger that would otherwise accompany such an occasion. Mother's Friend thoroughly lubricates every nerve, tendon and muscle involved and is a sure preventive for caking of the breasts.

You will find this splendid remedy on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 a bottle, and is highly recommended for the purpose.

FEUD IN STATE DEPARTMENT GROWING HOT

Connor-Brown Fight for Place in Next Administration Sets Politicians Gossiping.

Well defined and authoritative rumors of a first-class row inside the Georgia Agricultural Department, involving the present and the next administration, is the piquant morsel of gossip political observers are chewing upon.

The present Commissioner of Agriculture, J. J. Connor, and the present Assistant Commissioner, J. J. Brown, both, it is said, aspire to be Assistant Commissioner under Commissioner James D. Price, who goes into office in June.

Some time ago Commissioner Connor and Assistant Commissioner Brown are said to have had an understanding, the alleged setting aside of which is now the cause of the disturbance within the department.

Brown is understood to have promised Connor his assistance in the matter of the recent election of a manager at the Agricultural Experiment Station in Griffin, in return for Connor's assistance in landing the Assistant Commissionership under Price for Brown.

When the election of a manager took place at Griffin recently, however, Connor was not elected, the plum going to Professor DeLoach, of Athens.

Since that election, Brown's friends claim that Connor has entered the race for the Assistant Commissionership under Price, and Assistant Commissioner Brown has been outspoken in his indignation and surprise.

The Assistant Commissioner will be appointed by Commissioner Price after he is sworn in, and in the meantime the disagreement between Connor and Brown as to which, if either, shall have the assistant's place is extremely interesting to political observers throughout the State.

New Gowns Shock 'Bath House' John

'And It Takes Some Shock to Get Me,' Admits Famous Chicago Alderman.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Alderman "Bathhouse" John Coughlin is so shocked at the gowns he sees on the streets that he has drafted an ordinance to regulate women's dress, solely, he says, on moral grounds.

"We must pass an ordinance prohibiting women from wearing vulgar and suggestive dresses," he told the Judiciary Committee. "Some of the dresses I see on the street shock my moral senses, and it takes some shock to get me. The gowns are awful. No wonder there is business for a vice commission."

Granite State Honors Pierce After 40 Years

New Hampshire Democratic Legislature Favors Statue of One-Time President.

CONCORD, May 9.—Franklin Pierce, the only President from New Hampshire, seems assured, at last, of a statute by his native State. The Senate has passed a House bill providing for a $15,000 appropriation. Governor Felker is expected to sign the measure.

The fact that Pierce was a Democrat and pro-slavery man has hitherto aroused strong opposition to a statue. The Legislature is Democratic for the first time in forty years.

PRETTY VASSAR GIRL AFTER 'BIG PAT'S' SHOT-PUT RECORD

MISS ELIZABETH A. HARDEN. PATRICK M'DONALD SETTING A NEW MARK.

Wealthy Not Safe by 1915, Lecturer Says

J. F. Emerson, Minneapolis Man, Predicts Great Revolution of the Unemployed.

Unless conditions materially change it will not be safe for a millionaire to step outside of his home in 1915. This is the prediction made by J. F. Emerson, of Minneapolis, who will lecture at Cable Hall Sunday afternoon.

"If a change does not take place to stop the rapid increase of the number of the unemployed, I predict that by 1915 there will be such a revolution as will make the millionaire afraid to step outside his home for fear of having his brains blown out by the starving man who awaits him," is the comment made by Emerson.

Emerson's lecture will be free to the public. The subject will be "Was Man Created for Heaven?"

SEVEN MEN GIVE PATCHES OF SKIN TO SAVE BOY

NEW YORK, May 9.—If 10-year-old William Caldwell, of Nutley, N. J., survives the burns which he received when he fell into a bonfire several weeks ago, it will be through the aid of patches of skin from no less than seven men, who have volunteered for the sacrifice. The surgeons figure that he needs 180 square inches of skin grafted upon his body to save his life.

NEW YORK, May 9.—"Well, I swan—"

Just at this point the automobiles around Forty-second Street became congested, and genial "Pat" McDonald, pride of the traffic cops and champion shot-putter of the world, broke off his exclamation. Maybe it was best so, for Patrick had just been told that a Vassar College girl was after his shot-putting laurels and he seemed a bit "miffed."

He did not seem at all pleased to think that his athletic prowess should be o'ershadowed—not by a young college girl, at any rate.

But Miss Elizabeth Abigail Harden, of Newark, N. J., and a freshman at Vassar, is just as proud of her record as McDonald is of his, and she said to-day that she will shortly do even better than 33 feet and 3-4 inches.

In the shot-put McDonald's mark for the 24-pound shot is 39 feet and 3 3-4 inches.

No Vassar girl will ever reach Pat's record, however, for they throw a seven-pound shot at the girl's college.

Miss Harden's triumph came in the annual field meet at Vassar last week, and she was easily the star of the day. Besides the shot-put even, Miss Harden won the basket ball throwing contest with a mark of 80 feet 13 1-8 inches and the baseball throwing with 205 feet 7 inches. In both the latter events she broke records held by Miss Inez Milholland, who heretofore had been held the champion all-around woman athlete.

Like Miss Milholland, the Newark girl is an ardent worker for votes for women, and the only blight to her triumphs of Saturday was the fact that the meet kept her from marching with the other 10,000 women who are fighting for the ballot.

GERMAN ARMY DIRIGIBLE LOST TWO DAYS IN STORM

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

KOENIGSBERG, GERMANY, May 9.—The Cassiopeia, a spherical German military balloon, which ascended from this city Wednesday with Captain Von Wobeser and two passengers on board, has been missing 48 hours in a storm, and fears are felt for the safety of the aeronauts.

MOST SICKNESS COMES FROM WEAK, INACTIVE KIDNEYS

Recent Reports Show Hundreds Suffer With Kidney Troubles and Don't Know It.

There are scores of nervous, tired, run-down people throughout the city suffering with pains in the back and sides, dizzy spells, weaknesses of the bladder (frequently causing annoyance at night), who fail to realize the seriousness of their troubles until such conditions as chronic rheumatism, bladder troubles, dropsy, diabetes or even Bright's disease result.

All this is due to weak, inactive kidneys. The kidneys are the filterers of the blood, and no one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly. It is even more important than that the bowels move regularly.

If you suffer with such symptoms don't neglect yourself another day and run the risk of serious complications. Secure an original package of the new discovery, Croxone, which costs but a trifle, and commence its use at once. When you have taken a few doses, you will be surprised how differently you will feel.

Croxone cures the worst cases of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, because it removes the cause. It cleans out the kidneys, and makes them filter out all the poisonous waste matter and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the bladder, and quickly relieves you of all your misery.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, it is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

ALASKA ROW IS LAID TO FISHER FEARING BATH

Railroader Tells How Secretary of Interior Got Unfavorable Impression of Controller Bay.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Richard S. Ryan, president of the Controller Bay Railroad and Navigation Company and one of the principals in the Dick-to-Dick letters, opposed Government ownership and operation of railroads in Alaska and attacked the accuracy of the Railway Commission's report on proposed routes, before the Senate Committee on Territories, to-day.

Ryan asserted the conclusions of the commission are at variance with facts, and if the commission had used scientific facts in possession of the Government its report would have been entirely different.

Ryan referred sarcastically to the "wonderful visit" of Former Secretary of the Interior to Alaska and asserted that his unfavorable opinion of the Controller Bay country was due to the fact that he became "scared."

Ryan said that when Fisher started up the Bering River he lost heart at the sight of breakers, demanded to be let out of the boat and walked through marsh lands back to Katalla.

Matron at Soldiers' Home Dies Suddenly

Miss Aba T. Clayton Drops Dead After Five Years' Service to Confederate Veterans.

Miss Aba T. Clayton, matron at the Confederate Soldiers' Home, dropped dead Friday morning in her room after superintending the preparation of breakfast for the 106 inmates of the home. She had been afflicted with heart trouble.

Miss Clayton had been matron at the home five years and had won the hearts of the old veterans after whose comfort she looked with painstaking care. Her death was a distinct shock to them.

A sister, Miss Kate Clayton, of Atlanta, was notified and the body was brought to the undertaking establishment of Barclay and Brandon, from where it will be sent to Greensboro, Ga., the family home, for interment.

Lad, 13, Says He Shot Suitor of Mother

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 9.—Duson Kostit, 32, is in a critical condition to-day from a wound inflicted last night by George Lukin, 13, son of Mrs. Amelia Lukin. The boy surrendered.

"Kostit had been calling on my mother for seven months," the boy told the police. "I ordered him to leave last night. He pulled a revolver and fired twice. Then I took aim with my rifle and he dropped, crying he had been shot."

"The Way, The Truth and The Life"

Mansions in Heaven, Factories on Earth, And Certain Houses

The night of His betrayal, Jesus said:

"Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.

"In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

You believe, and yet are troubled.

His cross and love have made you dissatisfied with self and with what you see and hear.

Visions of a heavenly home for you can not soothe you, so long as yonder hovels pour streams of children into Mammon's maw.

"They should be at play," you say.

Instead, factories and mills are marring their hearts and lives to make dividends for men.

Not this did Jesus mean, when He said:

"Suffer the little children to come unto Me."

And you would not—could not still the pity born of His spirit surging in your heart.

Rightly, you deny that woman's virtue depends on money.

But many families receiving less than a living wage must live within cheerless walls.

And this, you know—

When their girl is lost, fathers and mothers are not consoled by the thought that, had their wage been greater they could have saved her from the colorless, gloomy home which made her the more easily believe the luring lies of an easier way to live.

"Better had she died," you cry.

True! But you will not defend the hovel and the wage.

You recall:

"The day-spring from on high hath visited us,

"To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet in the way of peace."

And so, when some misguided man says:

"Segregate a few women for the common good."

You answer:

"Who shall choose the victims?

"Since when did God give man the right to assign some to mansions in the skies and send others to lodgings in hell?"

You justly say:

"Have done with the lie that men being lower than beasts makes necessary the ruin of some women!"

Even should a creature, like the fabled Minotaur of Crete, more monster than man, appear, you will not talk of sacrificing girls for him.

Instead, you will lock up the brute.

Segregate him in a cell; that would be well.

The day has past for the making and selling of white slaves in our city.

God's pity for His children is opening your eyes and ears.

You will help your sister. Never again will you consent by silence to her destruction.

Heaven help the man who thinks you will.

You are awake.

"You believe in God."

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE MEN AND RELIGION FORWARD MOVEMENT.

SUFFRAGETTES ASSAIL ASQUITH AND CHURCHILL

Guards Save English Premier From Injury by "Young Hot Blood" Militants.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Fresh suffragette outrages stirred England today. Members of the "Young Hot Blood" service of the Women's Social and Political Union burned Oaklea mansion, at Barrow, causing a $50,000 loss.

Other members of the union attempted to attack Premier and Mrs. Asquith and First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill and Mrs. Churchill as they were on their way to the Victoria Railway station today.

Mr. and Mrs. Asquith and Mr. and Mrs. Churchill were leaving on a journey to Venice, where they will embark upon the Admiralty yacht Enchantress for a cruise through the Mediterranean for inspection of British fortresses and navy depots.

Saved by Their Guards.

Only the fact that they had a heavy bodyguard of policemen, soldiers and private detectives saved them from injury at the hands of militant suffragettes.

Mrs. Flora Drummond, or "General" Drummond, as she is known because of her Amazonian qualities, who collapsed in Bow Street Court yesterday during the trial of the women arrested in the raid on headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union, was in a serious condition to-day. She had refused to eat for a week to spite the government and her health has become so badly deranged as a result that an operation may be necessary. She was removed to a nursing home this morning.

Love Wins New Ally.

Interesting sidelights on the organization of militants are being brought out at the trial of the militant leaders. Letters seized by the police include a number of passionate, burning love letters from a former Socialist member of Parliament. The letters show that he is infatuated with one of the leaders of the "wild women" and that he allied himself with the "cause" at her command.

Other documents show that the most dangerous branch of the union is called the "Service of Young Hot Bloods." No one but young unmarried women of high courage are admitted. These are some of the questions put to them before they are admitted into this branch of the union:

Are you willing to die a violent death to-day?

Are you afraid of dynamite or any other high explosive?

Will you swear to hunger strike if sent to jail?

Will you renounce the softer characteristics of womankind in favor of a great principle?

Are you healthy and strong and able to hold your own against a single policeman?

The arsonettes and the members of the dynamite squad are recruited from the "Y. H. B." service.

King Edward Speed 'Fiend,' Says Autoist

Late Monarch's Chauffeur Tells in a Book of His Ruler's Traits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Interesting trials in King Edward's character are revealed in the book, "What I Know," by C. W. Stamper, private automobile expert to the late monarch. It says: "The King liked speedy traveling, but insisted on careful driving through towns and villages. His walk was never leisurely. He was in and out of a motor car or a train in a moment.

"He spoke rapidly, ate very fast and smoked hard. Speed was the essence of his nature."

The King's chauffeur always was instructed by the equerry to observe the legal speed limit, but if the King complained, he was to increase the speed temporarily and gradually to slacken it again.

Better Than Medicine

Breathe Hyomei and Be Rid of Catarrh—Cleears Stopped-Up Head.

Nature has a remedy for catarrh and troubles of the breathing organs, a treatment that is far better than dosing the stomach with medicine.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicate the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing the catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the musous membrane.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the natural remedy, for it gives a curative bath to the air passages. It has a powerful healing and antiseptic effect similar to the air in the mountains where the forests give off the fragrant and healing balsams.

Hyomei has benefited so many sufferers of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucous, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing that it is sold under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. If the treatment does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense, while if it cures the cost is nominal. A complete Hyomei Outfit sells for only $1.00. Extra bottles of liquid if later needed 50 cents.

U. S. CHECKS TOLL OF TUBERCULOSIS

Death Rate Decreased From 174.5 to 139.7 Per 100,000 Population in Last Decade.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—That the death rate in the United States from tuberculosis during the decade ending in 1910 has diminished from 174.5 per 100,000 of population to 139.7 was the statement made here by Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman of Newark, in an address before the sociological section of the National association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis.

"In other words," said Dr. Hoffman, "nearly 200,000 lives were saved from 1909 to 1910, in the campaign against this disease."

Dr. Hoffman stated that the death rate in New York City, 289.1 in 1881, had declined to 180.1 in 1912. He made no mention of any so-called "cures."

Surgeon B. S. Warren, of the U. S. Public Health Service, affirmed that deaths of government employees from tuberculosis were much lower than that of other laborers in similar occupations, because of the superior sanitary conditions."

"About 50,000 new cases of tuberculosis are constantly drifting about the country for long periods without even consulting physicians," was the statement by Dr. Harry Lee Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode Island State Sanitarium.

Loses Pants Seat, But Wins Election

Determined Candidate Does Not Let Accident Cost Him Vote He Goes After.

A few minutes before the closing of the polls Maher was apprised that a certain elector had not exercised his rights. Jumping into an automobile he started in quest of the voter, whom he found at work atop of an ice house. Maher in coming down the ice run came in contact with nails which caught in his trousers seat, completely removing it.

He got to the polls on time with the voter, however.

FRANCE GASPS WHEN ALFONSO VAULTS FENCE

Democratic Behavior of Spanish King Startles Dignified Ministry in Dress Suits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—King Alfonso's state visit to France came to a close to-day with a remarkable aerial exhibition at the St. Cyr Aerodome. As the Spanish King and his official hosts looked on one aeroplane after another ascended until the sky seemed filled with them. Alfonso said it was one of the most inspiring sights he had ever seen.

One of the most interesting features of the Spanish monarch's visit has been his extreme democratic behavior. At Fontainebleau a gorgeous stand decorated with the royal colors of Spain had been erected in which Alfonso was to have sat while the troops were reviewed. The chair in which the King was to have sat was of bronze.

An Astonished Ministry.

President Poincare and the French Ministers, all solemn, obsequious and in dress suits, drew to one side to allow Alfonso to enter the pavilion. Instead of doing so, the King ran down to the railing, placed his hands upon it and vaulted over the rail like an athlete. Then he sat down on the grass and glued a pair of field glasses to his eyes while the Cabinet Ministers looked on in astonishment.

They never had seen a King act that way before.

Shakes Hands With Aviators.

After the aviation meet Alfonso insisted on shaking hands with several aviators and mechanicians. His white gloves were black with oil and grease when he got through.

The French press believes that the visit has ben of great benefit to both France and Spain.

Before his departure for St. Cyr, Alfonso held a conference with Foreign Minister Pichon, at which the question of Spain entering the triple entente with France, Russia and England was discussed. It would then become the quadruple entente.

Danish Minister Is Courting Again

Washington Society Hears Engagement to Mrs. Townsend Is Renewed.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The engagement which friends insist existed between Mrs. Richard Townsend and M. Constantin Brun, the Danish Minister, last year, according to rumor current this week, has been renewed.

Several times while stationed in other countries M. Brun paid visits to Washington, many say to see the rich widow. When he was sent to Washington a year ago every one expected that Mrs. Townsend would soon take her place as chatelaine of the Legation.

CHATTANOOGA MAY NOT SEEK G. A. R. CONVENTION

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 9.—Although the time limit expires tomorrow, it is not known whether or not Chattanooga will invite the Grand Army of the Republic to meet here next fall. The railroads, it is understood, have failed to co-operate. A formal invitation, it is believed, can win the gathering.

THE PLAY THIS WEEK

FEATURE BILL AT FORSYTH.

There will be just four more performances of the Keith vaudeville acts that are at the Forsyth this week. One of the four will be to-day's matinee which is already heavily sold, another will be the Saturday matinee for which there is a large sale and the remaining performances are Friday and Saturday nights.

The headliner this week is Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, one of the most original ideas in modern vaudeville. The act is crowded with all of the Edwards new song hits. Another feature is pretty Belle Story, the entertaining vocalist. Miss Story possesses a remarkable voice. The comedy act of Williams, Thompson and Copeland is a scream. The whole bill pleases.

For next week the headline act will be Paul Dickey, the star football player of the University of Michigan, who will appear with a company of five people who will offer "The Come Back," a story founded on college life. Another star act will be the Apollo Trio, native Italians, who will pose as living bronze statues.

SOCIETY NIGHT AT THE ATLANTA.

Miss Billy Long and the members of her company have made a big hit this week in "The Girl From Out Yonder," which is at the Atlanta. To-night will be special Society Night in honor of Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison and a packed house is expected to greet the company. A 25 cent matinee will be played to-morrow and the present bill offered for the last time to-morrow night.

Next week the company will present, "Are You a Mason?" which is a roaring farce comedy. Owing to the demand for matinee seats an extra matinee has been added for Monday afternoon and in the future three matinees will be given each week. "Are You a Mason?" has a thousand laughs and its presentation will serve to introduce two new members of the company to the public—both highly experienced. Miss Harrison has an important role also.

NEWS ITEM—The Democratic majority of the Senate, in caucus, has made a determined attack on the seductive influence of golf and baseball. A promise was exacted from members that hereafter enough members will be present in the Senate to maintain a quorum.

More than an hour was spent one day in a futile effort to get enough Senators to transact business at an executive session.

MILLTOWN WILL FISH, REGARDLESS

Mayor Pafford Declares Georgia Laws Give Residents Right to Angle in Banks Pond.

Citizens of Milltown, Ga., deny that the town is in a state of excitemeat and that it will be necessary to call out troops to preserve order. Mayor William F. Pafford has issued a statement declaring Game Warden Boisclair became unduly alarmed.

Governor Brown has not considered sending troops to Berrien County. It is hardly likely he will.

Until the Legislature changes the law, Milltown sportsmen will continue to angle for the elusive trout in Banks' fishpond so long as they have permission from owners of the land on which the body of water is located, according to Mayor Pafford.

"Section 7 of the game law privileges a person to fish with permission from the owner of the land, which the 20 persons arrested had," he declared.

"The statement of State Game and Fish Commissioner Mercer that his wardens have been intimidated and that the local authorities are too much in sympathy with the lawless element to give any assistance is untrue," said Pafford.

Boisclair made 20 arrests of persons. He charges he was prevented from prosecuting the cases because the justices of the peace declared he would not convict any of the parties.

The whole matter hinges on a land dispute. The Banks estate claims to own all of the property on which the pond is located. Other property owners say a title to all of the property has never been vested with Banks.

Fuller Callaway, of LaGrange, banker and manufacturer, also was on the program.

New Georgia Road to Start Trains in June

Elberton and Eastman Will Open Rich Country to Connection With Seaboard Air Line.

Another railroad will be added to Georgia's imposing list in June, when the Elberton and Eastern Railway Company begins operation from Elberton through Cauthen, Fortsonia, Bell, Norman and Mallorysville to Tignall, a distance of 21.8 miles. It connects with the Seaboard at Elberton. Eventually, it may push on to Washington to connect with the Georgia Railroad.

The new line taps an agricultural district of some importance, which now has no railroad facilities. It has standard roadbed and equipment. It is capitalized at $300,000 in bonds and $200,000 in stock. W. O. Jones is president.

The bank has not resumed business and will likely liquidate.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFULLY DARKENS THE HAIR WHEN FADED AND GRAY

Mixed With Sulphur Makes Hair Soft, Lustrous and Cures Dandruff.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's," which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair, and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says his customers insist on Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur because, they say, it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant. Elkin Drug Co., special agents.

HARVEY'S CHARGE STIRS MARSHALL

WASHINGTON, May 9.—In answer to Colonel George Harvey's charge, made at a dinner in New York of representatives from the trust companies of America, to the effect that Vice President Marshall's criticism of the wealthy acted as an "incitement to the predatory poor," the Vice President said to-day:

"If anybody will produce a public utterance of mine for the curtailment of accumulation or distribution of honest wealth, except by a fair inheritance tax, I will go to Wall Street and personally apologize.

"In the course of a long professional career, however, I have asserted that the witness who had knowledge of fraud invariably got mad when he was interrogated as to the fraud."

The Vice President at first was inclined to take the matter as a joke. He said, however, that he wished to have the affair closed and to hear nothing more on the score of his misrepresented public utterances.

Effective Home Remedy For Lung Trouble

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benefited, but few can safely return. Eckman's Alterative is effective for home treatment. For example:

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed my regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I can not praise Eckman's Alterative too highly. I have recommended it with excellent results."

(Signed) W. M. TATEM.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' drug stores and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—Within less than 24 hours after she had obtained a divorce from her second husband, M. Durrieux, it was reported to-day that Baroness Vaughan would soon marry again.

Baroness Vaughan was the morganatic wife of King Leopold of Belgium, and bore him two sons. After Leopold's death she married M. Durrieux, but entered suit for divorce, alleging infidelity. A decree was granted in her favor yesterday.

Baroness Vaughan began life as a washerwoman, but her beauty attracted the eye of the aged Belgian King, who took her under his protection and showered wealth upon her.

Her next husband, it is said, will be a German army officer.

BOYS AND GIRLS IN PONY CONTEST HAVE MANY VOTES

Names and Standing of Entrants Are Announced---No One Will Have a 'Walkaway' in Race for Beautiful Prizes---Totals Will Leap Upward.

Here are the boys and girls who have entered in The Georgian and Sunday American's contest for the twelve pony outfits.

There is a goodly number of them. Evidently no one is to have a "walkaway." Good, hustling, bright boys and girls they are, with plenty of friends to help them, and all filled with a determination to win.

Of course the figures presented now mean very little. Many of the contestants simply have been nominated. Some others have piled up a good start.

But watch the votes grow!

The totals will leap up by thousands as the days go by.

It's not too late to get your name in the list, but it would be well not to delay. Some of these contestants may have something "up their sleeves." You can't tell. It's time to get busy.

SHERIFF OF DOOLY DIES FROM BLOW'S BULLETS

VIENNA, GA., May 9.—Sheriff C. I. Bennett, of Dooly County, died early to-day from pistol wounds received Wednesday when he attempted to arrest Oscar Blow for killing P. P. Sangster, a prominent farmer.

Bennett's body was buried here to-day.

Judge W. F. George, of the Superior Court of Dooly County, has adjourned the session until August because of the Sheriff's death.

EPISCOPAL CLERGY FOR BAN ON 'UNFIT' WEDDING

NEW YORK, May 9.—A rule requiring health certificates for marriage is under consideration by the Episcopal clergy of New York, according to a statement issued to-day by the social service commission of the diocese of New York. The commission, the report states, had already made a preliminary investigation and found six out of every seven clergymen in favor of the plan.

Wool Trade Waits On Tariff Action

Sales Larger Than Last Week, but Heavy Lots Are Moved Only by Cutting Prices.

BOSTON, May 9.—While rather more wool has changed hands the past week, manufacturers have bought only for piecing out purposes. Both dealers and manufacturers continue waiting for a settlement of the tariff uncertainty. The aggregate of sales is swelled by an occasional sizable transfer at a sacrifice. In this way, some very low prices have recently been made, there being apparently no bottom to the market.

Probably the worst feature at present is the uncertainty. If the traders were assured that the Underwood bill would surely be passed by both Houses substantially in its present form, they could buy the new clip wools with reasonable safety.

Receipts in pounds for the week-end and including Wednesday were as follows:

ALABAMA U. S. ATTORNEY TO PROSECUTE COL. HUFF

MACON, GA., May 9.—Oliver Street, United States District Attorney for the Northern District of Alabama, has been assigned by Attorney General McReynolds to conduct the prosecution of Colonel W. A. Huff, charged with contempt of court, District Attorney Alex Akerman being relieved at his own request. The case will be heard on May 19, with Judge W. I. Grubb, of Birmingham, presiding in place of Judge Emory Speer, before and against whom the contempt is alleged to have been committed.

PANIC IN DINER AS WAITER SHOOTS COOK

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 9.—As a Pennsylvania Railroad train bound for St. Louis pulled out of the North Philadelphia station last night, passengers in the dining car were thrown into a panic when Vaudergrift Thomas, a waiter, shot John E. Dyer, the cook attached to the car.

Two shots were fired, and one took effect in Dyer's leg.

Minister Goes From Pulpit to Theater

Philadelphia Playwright Will Direct Production of His Work in New York.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The Rev. Henry W. Lambert, of the Thirty-fourth Street Baptist Church in this city, has resigned his pulpit in order that he may direct the production of his first play in New York next fall. Dr. Lambert has written "For Love of Her," a moral play, which has been accepted.

Dr. Lambert says that he was spurred on in his playwriting by the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, the Presbyterian evangelist. In one of his sermons on the stage Dr. Chapman said if any playwright could write a play that had not one improper thought, word or action, then he would be conferring a favor on the human race.

TWO CAROLINA BANKERS SENT TO ATLANTA PRISON

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 9.—Judge J. E. Boyd, sitting in United States District Court, has given notice that on Tuesday he will order Major W. E. Breese and J. E. Dickerson into custody of the United States Marshal to serve sentences of two years in the Atlanta Penitentiary for complicity in the failure of the First National Bank fifteen years ago.

District Attorney Holton asked that the men be ordered in custody at once, but attorneys for the defendants got an extension on account of the illness of Major Breese.

'SONNY' COLLINS' SLAYER GETS 18 MONTHS IN PRISON

AUGUSTA, GA., May 9.—Marshall Shedd this afternoon was found guilty of involuntary manslaughter by a jury in Richmond Superior Court. He was sentenced to serve six months in jail and one year on the chaingang. Shedd, a Georgia Railroad engineer, shot and killed Edward ("Sonny") Collins, a former Augusta politician.

Declares Women on Cars Are Brainless

Longfellow's Grandson Much Exercised by What He Terms Their Stupidity.

BOSTON, May 9.—That woman are "brainless" as far as riding on the street car goes, was the declaration of Edmund Trowbridge Dana, grandson of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, social economic investigator, Harvard student and retired street car conductor, in an address before the Boston School of Social Science. He said:

"When it comes to riding on street cars women are the stupidest things imaginable. When you are trying to make up time they are always in the majority and always blundering. Why, they don't seem to have any brains at all."

ITALIANS AID IN STAMPING OUT CRIMINAL ELEMENT

NEW YORK, May 9.—Prominent Italians of this city are banding together to aid the police in stamping out the criminal element among their countrymen. They are already at work searching for Oresto Shilliton, an Italian suspected of the murder of two policemen last Saturday night.

At their own expense, it is said, they have employed a former member of the police department who has the reputation of knowing more about criminal Italians than any detective in this city.

HEROINE FAINTS; VILLAIN SHOOTS SELF, SHOW ENDS

SHARON, PA., May 9.—During the presentation by amateurs of a drama here last night the heroine, Miss Nina Shaffer, while heaping invectives on the head of the villain, suddenly fainted and Frederick McIntyre, the villain, accidentally shot himself in the left hand with a revolver. The show ended abruptly.

Straw Hats Due at Harvard Saturday

Student Council Opens the Season Two Weeks Earlier This Year.

BOSTON, May 9.—The closed season on straw hats at Harvard will expire Saturday.

This was the official pronouncement to-day of the student council which, taking upon itself the function of arbiter of fashion, declared proper the wearing of the straw two weeks earlier than custom has before decreed.

The terraces of the stadium are expected to bloom with Panamas and common straws to-morrow when the athletic meet between Cornell and Harvard will be held.

POSSE, EXHAUSTED, QUITS SEARCH FOR DESPERADO

SAVANNAH, GA., May 9.—Men and dogs completely exhausted, the chase for Richard Henry Austin, the South Carolina desperado, was abandoned in Screven County last night. Austin crippled one of the dogs and took refuge in the swamps near Newington, where it was impossible for the searchers to reach him.

STATE BOARD IS PROPOSED FOR TAX EQUALIZING

Clarke County Representative to Push Bill in Legislature. Wide Demand for It.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Representative Frank A. Lipscomb of Clarke County will introduce early in the forthcoming session of the Legislature a bill providing for the creation of a State Board of Tax Equalizers.

The necessity for such a board has been discussed favorably by the press of the State time and again, but so far no serious effort has been made to frame the suggestion into a workable law.

Mr. Lipscomb has made a study of tax conditions in Georgia, however, and has reached the conclusion that the only practical and equitable method of increasing the revenue of the State, without elevating the tax rate, dwells within the creation of a tax equalizing board.

The bill, it is understood, already has been prepared by Mr. Lipscomb, but before it is offered it will be passed upon by one of the most eminent authorities on statutory and constitutional law within the State, and such changes, if any, as he may suggest likely will be made in the measure before it is presented.

Mr. Lipscomb is a new member of the Legislature. He is a young man, around 35, and has had some experience in legislative and administrative work on the City Council of Athens, of which he was three times elected a member, but his forthcoming term in the House of Representatives will be his first service in the broader field of State politics.

He is one of Athens' leading business men, a scion of an old and distinguished Georgia family, an extremely likeable sort of person, and is sure to take a high stand in the Legislature from the day he is given the oath of a Representative.

Mr. Lipscomb has other important legislative proposals to submit to the General Assembly in due course of time, but his bill to create a Board of Tax Equalizers will be his pet project, and the one he is most deeply interested in.

There is no doubt whatever that the bill will receive hearty and strong support from many members of influence, and the prospect of the bill becoming a law generally is looked upon as exceedingly bright.

Former Sheriff of McDuffie County, the Honorable "Shade" Hawes, one of the leading citizens of Thomas E. Watson's well-known town of Thomson, is, and for several days has been, a visitor in Atlanta's delighted midst.

Mr. Hawes is credited with being one of the very shrewdest political observers in the State, and moves hither and yon in most mysterious way his wonders to perform. He has an idea, however—really, it is an obsession—that his home town of Thomson is possessed of more automobiles than any other town of its size in the world. He claims that there are 56 machines in Thomson, notwithstanding the fact that it has been disputed there is room enough in Thomson for even one-half so many.

One irreverent person asked the Sheriff if it was true that they had to run the sewerage system in Thomson straight up in the air to keep it inside the corporate limits—but the Sheriff disdained pointedly to comment upon that.

In charging a Floyd County Grand Jury, Judge Moses Wright recently expressed an opinion that should prove of widespread interest in Georgia.

In giving his interpretation of the present prohibition law, the jurist declared that it "is illegal for one person to order liquor for another."

The Rome Judge bases his opinion upon that section of the Code which says that it shall be illegal to "contract to sell, take orders for or solicit personally or by agent."

As a result of his charge, a rigid investigation of Rome's two locker clubs is under way.

All the Georgia newspapers and all the Georgia politicians are congratulating Editor Dick Grubb and renewing their good wishes to him that The Darien Gazette has achieved its fortieth birthday, and is as bright and snappy to-day as when it was a mere journalistic kiddo.

"Old Dick" Grubb has been a laborer in the newspaper vineyard many moons, and is generally beloved throughout the State. For years his weekly column of paragraphic comment upon men and things in Georgia—rarely other than kindly and sunny tempered—has been looked forward to by many.

Everybody will wish The Darien Gazette many happy returns of the day, and its editor many years of usefulness yet to come.

Representative-elect W. H. Connor, of Spalding County, will introduce two interesting local bills in the General Assembly soon after it convenes.

The first is one to provide for the election of the Griffin City Education Board by the people, rather than by the Council, as has been the custom in the past, and the other is to amend the charter of Griffin so that ward primaries will be abolished and the old plan of general elections be returned.

Four years ago the Legislature changed the charter, at the request of Council, providing for ward primaries; but the system has not proved satisfactory to a great portion of the voters. It is desired by citizens that a voter be allowed to cast his ballot for Aldermen, regardless of which ward he may reside in.

This local legislation in Griffin will be interesting to many cities in Georgia that have operated for a good many years under the very same disadvantages that Griffin is undertaking to get away from, and it may be that Representative Connor's bill will suggest many another of a similar sort from other cities in the State.

Representative William H. Burwell, of Hancock County, is spending a few days in Atlanta. While here he conferred with several of his friends about his speakership race. He feels assured of election on the first ballot.

White City Park Now Open

Attention! Now It's Sandals for Girls Of That Gay Paree!

The old Greek fashion of dressing, including draped skirts and waists, long ago was taken up by the women of Paris and from there carried around the globe, has now reached the feet.

For to-day the elite of the French women, who set the fashion for that city of pretty and vivacious women are wearing sandals!

The high heel shoe and the oft painful by bent arch, has now been "given the hook." In their place has been selected the old-fashioned sandal, and it looks as if it had come to stay.

In fact, so complete has been the change of fashion in this respect that several of the famous Parisian stores, which cater particularly to the fashionable class, have put in a great stock of sandals.

Along the boulevards, women are seen parading at all hours, wearing sandals fastened to their feet by prettily colored ribbon in a band around their ankles.

Adherents of the new style declare it of great benefit to the health of the person wearing them.

Suppleness and flexibility, modistes argue, are the feature of women's dress of the present day.

Nature's Banner of 'Votes for Women'

Mrs. Torbet Will Raise Nothing but Flowers of Yellow Hue in Her Garden.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Nature is the latest ally to be lined up under the banner of "Votes for Women" and the suffragist garden is the means by which it has been secured for the cause. Mrs. Lewis K. Torbet announced her plans for the brand new publicity method.

"I intend to have my entire garden at my summer home remodeled and install nothing but flowers of a yellow hue, the color of the American suffragists," she said.

"I will have marigolds, daisies, roses, sunflowers, Japanese gold lilies, chrysanthemums, buttercups and every yellow flower that will grow and wave for the cause of women's suffrage.

"But I won't have anything with the English militant suffragist colors—violet and green."

ANY FRIEND CAN NOMINATE YOU IN BIG CONTEST

Strong Lead Will be Gained Over Your Rivals by Entering Competition Early.

Anyone can nominate a contestant for the pony outfits which the Georgian and American will give away as prizes.

This has been explained before, but many people still ask, so it may be well to state it again.

All that is necessary is to send in a nomination blank. Parents, uncles, aunts, friends, or even the contestant may make the nomination, and the result is the same—the name is listed, and 1,000 votes are credited to the name.

The call for books, used to make a record of subscriptions and votes and to furnish a receipt to the subscribers, shows that all are making an early start. One employee of the Georgian and American finds the distribution of these books to callers takes a good deal of his time.

So the contest is well under way.

The ponies, too, are here. The best ponies in the Tennessee bluegrass section—twelve of them—have been purchased by an expert delegated to the task by the Georgian and American.

Early Start Counts.

Remember that an early start counts for much. A big lead over your friends and acquaintances before they are approached by the other boys and girls.

Wouldn't you be disappointed to have your best friend say:

"Why, I've subscribed to the Georgian and American for a year and have given the subscription to George. I would have been glad to help you, but I didn't know you were in the race, and George asked me first."

Think what a disappointment that would be.

The only way to avoid such disconcerting replies is to be the early bird yourself.

An early start, too, gives you experience of a useful sort ahead of the other contestants, and the result will be that when you have become an adept at securing subscriptions, your rivals will be floundering around for a start.

So, by all means, if you have not entered the race for one of the twelve pony outfits by now, send in your nomination blank right away. If you have entered, be sure to get the necessary book at once, and get busy.

Some, you will find, already have piled up an excellent total for a beginning.

And are you clipping the daily coupons in the Georgian and the Sunday American? And are your friends saving theirs for you? They count up rapidly if you can get several friends to help.

G.O.P. RESENTS BULL MOOSER'S REUNION MOVE

Members of Old Guard Say Cummins Is Hasty and Is Likely to Hurt Party.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Old line Republicans to-day expressed in strong terms their antagonism to the independent action of Senator Cummins of Iowa and other members of the progressive wing of that party in calling a conference in Chicago to-morrow. They declined to approve the plan and declared that the Cummins contingent was laying the party open to another split.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, minority leader of the Senate, said:

"I think the Cummins conference is premature, and when the time comes to recognize the Republican party I shall certainly follow the men who made the party rather than those who helped to wreck it."

Senator Smoot of Utah declared "that neither Senator Cummins nor any other Progressive can reorganize the Republican party."

Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin was of the opinion that the Cummins conference presaged another party split. "They wrecked the party," he said bitterly, "and now they are trying to damn it."

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania said that it would be better to postpone the Cummins conference now and to hold it later under the regular Republican banner.

In the House the old line Republicans, from Minority Leader Mann to the latest incumbent of office, viewed the conference with disapproval.

TOMBOY GAMES BEST FOR GIRLS, EXPERT CLAIMS

Recreation Congress Speaker Declares Vigorous Games Are Character Developers.

RICHMOND, VA., May 9.—Too much distinction is made between boys and girls, in their play, their work and their educational training. This was the text of an address by Mrs. Charles T. Weller, of Lawrence, Kansas, at the morning session of the Recreation Congress.

"Many people begin, in his babyhood, to train the boy away from the gentler side of life by taking away his doll. Later they teach him that certain home duties belong to the girl; and since the boy's work—such as cutting wood and drawing water—no longer has a place in the city household, he grows up without sense of responsibility and devotion toward his own home when he has one.

"The girl, on the other hand, is constantly repressed and, because her faults are not dramatic like those of her brother, her elders fail to realize that she needs broad training to free her from the narrowness and pettiness of women, which has been the jest of the ages.

"Vigorous sports, especially games, are found to develop just those characteristics in which women are lacking.

"Let the girls play hard sometimes and forget themselves. Quieter sport—music, literature, art—have their very important place for the girl; and quite as much for the boy. For with this all-round training each may be gentle and each may be strong when occasion demands it; and together they may round out a fuller, more wholesome life for the race.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Repairing of Dolls Quite a Business.

"Dolls Repaired Quickly and Cheaply."

That sign prominently displayed at a point on Peachtree Street, by which thousands of people pass daily, is one likely to attract the attention of little folks—girls, of course—whose dollies are in need of such necessaries as eyes, hair, hands and feet.

"You'd be surprised," said the old gentleman who answers when anyone makes inquiry concerning the sign, "the number of dolls that we repair every day. My whole family is engaged in the business. It is a queer thing about child nature, but girls—the little ones, you know—become so attached to their dolls that when they wear out the children are almost inconsolable. They like a new doll, of course, but nothing can take the place of the old one in their childish affections. That's where our business comes in. We take the old doll, put new feet and hands on it, insert an eye if one is needed and, in fact, fix Miss Dollie up so that she looks like a new one. But to its little 'mother' it is still the same old Polly Hopkins, or Susan or Mary, as the case may be. It really does my heart good to see the little folks when their mothers bring them to my place to get the rejuvenated dollie. They go into raptures over the made-over toy, and their outbursts are evidences of genuine affection. 'Mother-love,' I suppose you newspaper fellows call it."

How Window Dressers Keep Track of Pins.

"I'll bet," said one of two men who had paused before the display window of a Whitehall—Street department store while the window dresser was at work "that it was a woman who invented the thing that chap has fastened to his left arm."

His attention having been called to it, the other man took a squint at the object. It was a pincushion about three inches square fastened to a wide elastic band—like a garter—which was passed around the arm just above the elbow. The cushion was filled with all sorts of pins—small ones and large ones; some plain and some black.

As he worked, arranging pieces of cloth here and there to give the desired fold effect, the dresser had occasion to use countless pins. They were always right at his hand.

"When I was a young man," remarked one of the onlookers, "I used to dress windows and I carried a mouthful of pins all the time. The danger of swallowing them, however, was great, and I never cared much for the job. This fellow has the problem solved, but if he's married, I'll bet his wife invented it. No mere man would ever think of that pincushion affair."

The Story of Two Boys And What They Have Done.

"I was reading in The Georgian the other day," said the doctor, "when my attention was attracted by an article concerning some bequests made to education by Mrs. G. P. Dodd. Instantly I remembered two young fellows who used to live in Atlanta and with whom I attended the Boys' High School. They were Phil and Earl Ackerman, sons of Mrs. Fannie Ackerman, who was a sister of Mrs. Dodd, and to whom Mrs. Dodd left a bequest. The Ackerman boys lived with their uncle on Whitehall Street between Cooper and Windsor. Both were real geniuses, and both were enamored of the stage—not as actors, mind you, but as managers and producers. In the basement of the Dodd home they had fitted up a scenic studio and there in 1891 they built the scenery for 'Xonia, or the Fairy Queen,' a spectacular play which they presented at Concordia Hall, then on Marietta Street.

"The cast was made up of local young folks and the play was put on in admirable style. There was no end of trick scenery, all designed, built and painted by the Ackerman boys. Phil played the part of an Irishman, Earl was a 'demon' and the part of a clown was played by Cliff Saul, brother of Milt Saul, who is publicity manager for the Georgia Railway and Power Company. Another member of the company was Henry Franklin, now a staid Atlanta business man, an officer of a big hardware concern. Artisticaly, 'Xonia' was a success. I am not certain about its financial success.

"Soon after this Mrs. Ackerman and her sons removed to New York, and the boys evidently kept in touch with things theatrical, because 'Bob' Goodman, another Atlanta boy who has risen to heights in stage affairs, told me not long ago that Phil and Earl Ackerman are the owners of one of the largest scenic studios in Brooklyn."

Debtors File Petition Against Owners of Building at Linden Avenue and Peachtree.

Work on the concrete building at Linden and Peachtree Streets was halted to-day, as a result of a petition filed Thursday afternoon by the Mackie-Crawford Company.

The petition asked that the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company and Mrs. Mary Potts be enjoined from doing further construction work on the building, pending payment of $4,483 which the Mackie-Crawford Company claims is due it for concrete framework of the building.

The petition maintained that further work on the building would conceal the work done by the company and render proof difficult.

POLICEMAN DENIES WOMEN'S CHARGES

Kirk Declares Statement That He Made Raided House His Headquarters Is False.

Policeman James Kirk, a member of Chief Beavers' "vice squad," Friday morning emphatically denied the charges of improper conduct made against him by Mrs. N. P. Powell, Mrs. Lena Bernard and Mrs. John Bryant, whom Kirk, with a squad of police, arrested last week on a charge of running a disorderly house at 95 Spring Street.

"The charges have no foundation," he said. "I went to Mrs. Powell and her husband, and told them if they didn't get rid of the women they had staying there and shut up their place, we would arrest them. Both the woman and Powell told me they would make the women leave and quit running the kind of a house that Chief Beavers has ordered out of the city. We watched the place for several nights, and saw from five to fifteen men going in and out of the place every night.

"When we saw that they continued to run the house we raided them. There were four men there at the time, but they escaped by jumping out of the windows. The women have been held to the Grand Jury.

"The statement that I made the place my headquarters is a falsehood, pure and simple. Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Bernard and Mrs. Bryant are known to the police. They have been arrested numerous times."

The hearing of the injunction which Mrs. Powell, through her attorneys, Gober & Jackson, got from Judge Bell to restrain the police from evicting her, will be held Saturday morning.

Are You Subject To Constipation

MRS. G. B. PRUITT.

Very few people go through life without some time or other being troubled with constipation. Thousands injure themselves by the use of strong cathartics, salt mineral waters, pills and similar things. They have temporary value in some cases, it is true, but the good effect is soon lost, and the more one takes of them the less effective they become.

A physic or purgative is seldom necessary, and much better and more permanent results can be obtained by using a scientific remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It does not hide behind a high sounding name, but is what it is represented to be, a mild laxative medicine. It is so mild that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is so compounded, and contains such definite ingredients that it will have equally good effect when used by a person suffering from the worst chronic constipation. In fact, among the greatest indorsers of Syrup Pepsin are elderly people who have suffered for years and found nothing to benefit them until they took Syrup Pepsin.

It is a fact that millions of families have Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, homes like those of Mrs. G. B. Pruitt, Berea, Ky., who used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as a laxative tonic. Mrs. Pruitt writes that it so strengthened and cleansed her system that she was quickly relieved of a severe cough which had troubled her for months. The special value of this grand laxative tonic is that it is suited to the needs of every member of the family. It is pleasant tasting, mild and non-griping. Unlike harsh physics, it works gradually and in a very brief time the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to do their work naturally again, when all medicines can be dispensed with.

You can obtain a bottle at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is usually bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

THE SOCIAL WORLD

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Conklin, who leave Atlanta next week to spend the summer at their camp in the Adirondacks, were tendered a dinner party Thursday evening by Colonel and Mrs. Robert J. Lowry, at the Piedmont Driving Club.

The table, with covers laid for 12, was placed in the rose room, where handsome palms were grouped in the corners of the room, and the table was elaborately decorated in pink and silver.

A large plateau of pink roses formed the centerpiece, and tall silver vases at either end of the table held the same flowers. Silver dishes of pink and white bonbons were tied with butterfly bows of pink tulle, and festoons of smilax adorned the table. Silver candlesticks were shaded in pink, under silver filigree, and the ices were in the form of pink loving cups with strawberries. The cakes were embossed with pink roses and the place cards were handpainted in French figures.

AMERICANS ROUT MEXICAN RAIDERS

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Tired of being raided and despoiled by every passing band of brigands, the little American colony at San Dieguito, Mexico, recently took to the warpath.

When a band of fourteen outlaws swooped down upon the colony, ten colonists, reinforced by five Mexican Federal soldiers, pursued and defeated the looters and recovered a number of stolen horses.

Huerta Explains His Attitude Toward U. S.

MEXICO CITY, May 9.—President Victriano Huerta, during the conference yesterday with Henry Lane Wilson, the American Ambassador, stated very clearly the position of Mexico in relation to the United States.

He said in part:

"Mexico is disposed to arrange without friction the affairs pending between it and the Government of the United States.

"However, for the time being the American Ambassador should understand the necessity which the Government of Mexico has for abstaining transmitting any official matter, with the exception of urgent affairs or ordinary procedure, for the simple reason that while the Government of the United States did not recognize the Government of Mexico all arrangements would be ineffective in view of the fact that the Government of Mexico has no personality before the Government of the United States.

"The Government of Mexico, whether recognized or not by the United States, has adopted and will always adopt measures for the security of all the inhabitants of the country, whether native or foreigners, and this has been demonstrated by the attention given to the just petitions of those who have been in any manner injured by past revolutions.

"The United States and all the people of Europe have irrefutable proofs that the Government of Mexico is especially pledged to give guarantees to everybody without distinction of nationality."

IMPROVED DISTRIBUTION IN POSTOFFICE PLANNED

FAVOR EIGHT-HOUR DAY FOR GIRL WORKERS IN CAPITAL

Employs Poetry to Define Tariff Stand

Ohio Statesman Mounts Pegasus to Declare Lower Cost of Living Promises Are Vain.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The muse struck her lyre in the House again to-day, when Representative Simeon D. Fess of Yellow Springs, O., closed a sarcastic speech on the tariff bill with some verses on "The Things We Buy and Tnose We Sell." Here they are:

I ain't no statesman who can talk of
protection or free trade;
My han's too stiff to hol' a pen—that
was made to hol' a spade;
Them ten-foot, eddicated words my
tongue can't wallop roun',
But I'll make things you sell go up,
an' things you buy come down.

I can't talk on the currency, nor on
the revenue,
An' on the laws an' statoots I'm as
ignorant as you;
An' I jest simply promise you, sure's
I am Silas Brown,
I'll make things you sell go up, an'
things you buy come down.

The fair ground echoed wide with cheers and loud huzzas thereat,
For who can make a better scheme of statesmanship than that?
An' next week at the polls he beat his rival high and dry—
But things we sell continue low, and things we buy are high.

Buy Diamonds Before the New Tariff Advances Prices

Under the old tariff no duty was levied on uncut or "rough" diamonds. Only 10 per cent duty was paid on cut or polished diamonds.

The Democratic caucus has but just recently recommended a 20 per cent duty on polished diamonds and 10 per cent on the rough. This new rate will no doubt become effective within the next two or three months.

In addition to this, the big diamond syndicate has raised prices to the cutters since January $15 to $30 per carat.

This means an advance in the retail market within the next four to six months ranging from $15 to $60 a carat—according to grades and sizes.

Buy a diamond now on attractive monthly payments and save the advance. Our booklet, "Facts About Diamonds," quotes lowest net prices and gives full particulars regarding our liberal plans.

REVIVAL SMOOTHS TABERNACLE ROW

Members Who Resigned, Back in Fold, Will Help Call Pastor Wednesday.

The dove of peace has found lodging in the Baptist Tabernacle; all differences have been settled and members who withdrew several weeks ago are back in the fold. The church is ready to call another pastor. The call will be extended at a meeting Wednesday night.

The weeks of spiritual meetings have proven the cure for differences. Dr. Joseph Broughton, brother of the noted founder of the Tabernacle, the Rev. Len G. Broughton, and one of the most prominent members to withdraw, is back. He has been elected associate superintendent of the Sunday school. The other two men who created a sensation by their withdrawal are Clayton Callaway and Harry A. Etheridge. Both have returned and are on the committee to nominate a pastor.

Other members of the committee are A. C. Boatman, chairman; Dr. William T. Jones and J. W. Awtrey. C. W. Hatcher, chairman of the board of deacons, is an ex-officio member.

"We are really just getting into shape to call a pastor," said C. W. Hatcher to a Georgian reporter Friday. "We have disposed of the infirmary and our finances are in good shape."

Year in Prison for Four Ex-Inspectors

New York Policemen, Caught in Graft Campaign, Also Fined $500—Will Not Appeal.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Dennis Sweeney, John J. Murtha, James F. Thompson and James E. Hussey, the four former police inspectors found guilty of obstructing justice in keeping George A. Sipp, a Commonwealth's witness in the police graft cases, out of this State, were sentenced to-day to one year each and fined $500. This was the maximum punishment under the law.

It was understood that they agreed to take the punishment without appealing, in consideration of which the district attorney agreed to drop extortion and bribery indictments.

GEORGIA PREACHER JAILED.

Ohio Judge Assails Home Rule Decision

Justice Wanamaker Asserts Cities Have Right to Ignore State and Establish Movie Shows.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, May 9.—Judge R. M. Wanamaker to-day delivered an opinion in which he strongly dissented from the majority opinion by the Ohio Supreme Court early this week in the Toledo case, when it held that the home rule provision of the new constitution is not self-executing and that municipalities must either adopt charters or secure legislation from the General Assembly before they may exercise the increased powers the constitutional amendment gives them.

The court held that municipalities may not maintain motion picture shows, because "they are not a proper function of government," while Judge Wanamaker declares the people have this right.

A Happy Child In a Few Hours

When Cross, Sick, Feverish, Tongue Coated or Bilious Give Delicious "Syrup of Figs."

Mother! look at the tongue! see if it is coated. If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and clogged up waste and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours the foul, decaying constipated matter, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well and smiling child shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it can not be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

City Sells Its Bonds Over the Counter

Philadelphia's Experiment Proves Greater Success Than Mayor Expected.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The city has withdrawn from public sale the issue of municipal bonds that have been offered over the counter. The total amount taken by individuals was $4,002,000, or $500,000 more than Mayor Blankenburg wanted offered for sale at 4 per cent.

The last day's sales amounted to $209,000; and it was one of the most motley gatherings ever attending the office of the City Treasurer.

One old man brought his savings that he had hoarded in an old stocking, fearing to trust the banks. An elderly woman brought $1,000 in ten and twenty dollar gold pieces of the early '80 coinage that had never been in a bank.

PREP LEAGUERS WILL CLASH AT MARIST TO-DAY

THE annual Atlanta Prep Athletic meet will be held Friday afternoon at Marist field. Only three schools are entered in this event, but the athletics that are entered are all well trained and some lively events will be seen. Everything about the field is in readiness. An eight-lap track has been laid off and a hundred yard straight-away. The lanes are all laid for the dashes and hurdles have been procured also.

The hundred-yard dash promises to be the real thriller of the meet as never before in a local contest have there been so many evenly matched men entered in this event. There are Allen, and Lewis, of Marist; Sifford of G. M. A.; Bedell and Parks, of Tech High. Every one of these lads have made the century in less than 11 seconds and Allen has a record of 10:3-5 seconds. Owing to this mark the odds are slightly in favor of Allen, but if he does win it will be by a scant few inches.

There will be plenty of competition in every event with the possible exception of the hammer throw. Fowler, of Marist, seems to be in a class by himself in this event. He has thrown the iron ball over 100 feet in practice, which is better than any other man in the league can do.

The entries are all in and Joe Bean, who is staging the meet, has announced that nearly fifty athletes will compete. Many of them will start in two, three, and even four events. Bill Bedell, of Tech High looks good for the highest individual point winner. He has all kinds of grit and endurance, and in the meet between Tech High and Boys High he won three firsts and a second place which made his total 17 points.

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is the boy that will no doubt give Bedell the most trouble.

The meet will start at 2:30 p. m.

Prep League
News and Notes.

The decision of the Boys High athletes not to enter the Prep meet Friday throws them out of high school circles for the rest of the season. Since they have taken the matter into their own hands and decided not to represent their school they will be regarded as an independent team and will have to appear as such in the rest of their meets this season.

* * *

A new Prep record for the hammer throw will very likely be hung up in the meet Friday by Fowler, of Marist. Fowler has had little trouble hurling the 12-pound hammer 100 feet in practice.

* * *

A tennis tournament is being arranged between the winners of the Boys High contests and the winners of the tournament now being held at East Lake by the students of Peacock.

* * *

The tournament will be held on the courts at East Lake some time the latter part of this month and should prove an interesting match as both schools are well represented in this line of sport.

* * *

The officials have announced that the track meet at Marist Friday will start at 3 p. m. This seems pretty late to start such an affair as the meet will probably run about four hours. The meet between Tech and Boys High schools started at 1:30 and was not over until 6 o'clock.

* * *

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is leading the Prep League batters with .467. Armistead and Spurlock, of Boys' High, are close on his heels. Parks, of Tech High, is fourth, and Bedell, of Tech High, is fifth.

* * *

Sifford and Babb will probably be G. M. A.'s two biggest point-winners in the meet Friday. Sifford made a lot of points in the field day exercises at G. M. A. March 31. Brown and Solano are two other pretty good athletes, especially in the sprints.

* * *

Callahan, of Marist, threw just ten balls in the first innings of the game with Boys High Wednesday and fanned the first three men to face him. He struck out two more in the second.

* * *

If the following quartet can keep up the good work shown in the Boys High-Marist game Wednesday they may be assured of a place on the all-prep team this year. They are Allen, of Marist, third base; Spurlock, of Boys High, short; Armistead, of Boys High, catcher, and Fox, of Boys High, pitcher.

* * *

Following is the standing of the local Prep League teams:

Teams	Won	Lost	P.C.
Boys High	5	0	1.000
Tech High	4	2	.667
Marist	3	2	.600
Peacock	1	4	.200
G. M. A.	1	5	.167

GUNBOAT SMITH AND WILLARD IN NEXT COAST GO

By W. W. Naughton

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—Gunboat Smith once again is with us, and interest in the next heat of the great white hope free-for-all will increase by leaps and bounds.

Smith is to meet Elongated Jess Willard of Kansas at Coffroth's Eighth Street Arena on Saturday afternoon, May 17, and when these two have settled their differences the search for the best pugilistic pale face on earth will be almost over.

It will only be necessary for the winner to hook up with Luther McCarty and we will have a champion whose right there will be none to dispute—at least for a while.

Bluejacket vs. Cowboy.

The semi-final in the race—for that's what the coming bout may be called—will be between an ex-bluejacket and a cowboy. The fact that a man from off the bounding blue and a man from the cattle plains have battled their way to the front rank of the world's fighters shows conclusively that champions are not always the products of congested cities. The old argument used to be that the best men were to be found where there were the most men to pick from, but it certainly does not hold in pugilism.

A glance at the array of white hopes who have tried and failed during the past year shows that championship candidates are drawn from widely separated lands and from all walks of life. So far as the prize ring is concerned, we have had George Rodel, the South African Boer, and Bombardier Wells, the British artilleryman, who was seized with the ambition to shine as a ringman while on service in far India.

Then there was Fred McKay, the Winnipeg policeman, who was attacked with the Queensberry bug while patrolling his beat in his home town in Canada. Al Palzer, another blasted hope, came from the farm lands back in Iowa. It was not different in the old years, however. The lure of the game drew Joe Choynski from the candy kitchen and Jim Corbett from the bank. Fitzsimmons rolled up his apron and dropped his sledge when he heard the call of the padded mitt, and Jeffries deserted the boiler foundry.

Nor must we forget Tom Sharkey, "the pride of the navy," who used to say in the matter of punishment or suffering, fighting was child's play compared to walking the deck barefooted on a hot day in the Red Sea.

Paul Dickey, Famous End, Here Next Week

Former Michigan Football Hero in Vaudeville Sketch at Forsyth Theater.

Paul Dickey, who played star end on the University of Michigan eleven in '07 and '08, and who led in all track events and field exercises while at college, is now in vaudeville and will appear at the Forsyth as the star feature, with his own company the week of May 12.

Paul Dickey was a wonder in his time. He was selected by every expert who picked an All Western or All American eleven. He led the ends, and even at that had some of the greatest stars of the other teams to contend with. His work on the track was wonderful and some of his records still stand.

His sketch in vaudeville is called "The Come Back." It deals with college life, and football figures most prominently. It is a sketch that the sport-loving theatergoers will doubly appreciate.

During his visit in Atlanta, Dickey will be entertained by the Michigan alumni who live here, and his "Frat" mates are also preparing to see that he does not forget his week in Atlanta.

Abe Attell has released John Reisfer as his manager and has placed himself under the management of Danny Morgan. Abe and Morgan agreed on terms yesterday, according to a report from New York.

* * *

* * *

* * *

Had the match been made Rivers would have received 27 1-2 per cent and Britton 22 1-2 per cent of the gate. Rivers is one of the many stars who are steering clear of Britton these days.

* * *

Frank Moran, who fought Luther McCarty recently with a broken hand, will not be able to don the gloves for at least three weeks, on account of the injury. His manager was offered a bout with Jim Flynn at the Atlas A. A. of Boston, on May 20, but was compelled to pass it up.

* * *

Having lost close to $2,000 on the Luther McCarty-Moran battle because they guaranteed McCarty $5,000, Jess and Eddie McMahon, managers of the St. Nicholas A. C., yesterday made the announcement that under no circumstances will they give another fighter a guarantee in the future, even if he is a champion.

Johnny Griffith, of Akron, and Pal Moore, of Philadelphia, will meet for 12 rounds at Akron, May 12. Bernie Strapp is staging the show.

Tech and Georgia Teams Ready for "Play Ball!"

Jackets in Superb Shape, Says Coach Heisman

By J. W. Heisman

ATHENS, GA., May 9.—The Tech team arrived here after a rather tiresome ride of several hours duration. This morning I am letting them walk about town a little to get their land legs again, but immediately after lunch they will be sent to their rooms for a nap, so as to make sure they will be feeling well and perfectly rested by the time the game is called, which will be at 4 o'clock.

Many, many times have I been to Athens with both football and baseball teams, but never have I seen the old town so stirred up over anything as it seems to be to-day over these two games of ball with Tech. The Red and Black team has had a most fortunate season from start to date, and it is but natural that all their friends should not only be wrought up to fever heat with enthusiasm over their fine showing, but also that they should feel the keenest interest over the outcome of the four games to be played with the Yellow Jackets. The loss of a couple of games to the Atlantans would leave, they fear, a rather black mark on their bright and shining season's record, while the winning of the series would mean not alone that this splendid record had been maintained to the last, but the victory would be sweeter than any other achieved by their team all year simply because it came over their dearest rivals.

Town Filled With Visitors.

It looks like most every town, city and hamlet in the State of Georgia has sent at least one representative up here to see these two games. Never have I seen so many out-of-town visitors here before, and never have I seen so much of colors. Naturally, the Red and Black tinges prevail heavily, but here and there we spot a bit of Gold and White, which tells us that we are not entirely friendless even in the very stronghold of the enemy.

Yells? Yes, we have heard them galore ever since we landed, and the Georgia band as well. By the way, this band is no slouch: it plays real stuff, and plays it well—especially a refrain entitled "Glory, Glory to old Georgia," of which it seems strangely fond,—about as much so as one other band I know of when it comes to a composition which narrates the autobiography of a certain "Rambling Wreck."

Yes, all is excitement here, and nerves are keyed up to the highest tension. It appears that Sanford Field has never before been called upon to house the crowds that will storm it this afternoon and to-morrow. And one week from to-day will witness a repetition of these scenes at Grant Park in Atlanta, I haven't a doubt, regardless of how the games come out over here.

Georgia Men Confident.

Of the Georgia team's condition I know nothing. Their friends and supporters appear confident in the extreme, from which it must be inferred that the team is in apple-pie order. That they can play great ball on their own field they have demonstrated again and again this season, and for my part I have no doubt they will again to-day.

I am expecting to see a great college baseball team in the defenders of the Red and Black, and one that will be well worth winning from, yet not too great a catastrophe to lose to.

Tech has everything to win in these games, and little enough to lose aside from one of those "it might have been" feelings after the game. To lose to such a team as Georgia it will be no more nor less than every team that has visited Athens this year has done, while to win would be to be raised to a pinnacle of joy and glory as great as Georgia herself enjoys.

As for the Tech team, all I can say is that it is in superb shape. There have been better teams at Tech, but worse teams than this have defeated Georgia, and in Athens, too. The boys are playing better ball just now than they have at any previous time this season, and if they happen to hit their top stride this afternoon they will make the sledding hard for even so good an aggregation as Georgia has. Some of the games Tech has played this year would have pushed most any college team in the country—notably the Clemson and Sewanee games, and those won from Mercer and Auburn.

Heisman Has Hope.

It is true Georgia has the dope all in her favor, and also has the advantage of playing the first two games on her home grounds, which is always rated a distinct advantage. However, I recall that Tech teams of the past have had a way of playing the very best ball they knew how to play when they went right over on the Georgia campus to perform; and I know of no reason why these Tech boys shouldn't do that same thing over again.

Yes, it needs to be admitted that in Corley and Morris Georgia has two wonderfully clever pitchers, and the biggest question, in my opinion, is whether the Tech batters can do anything with these flingers. If they do no more to them than other Southern teams have done, Georgia will have things all her own way.

The other "facer" that Tech has to look in the eye is the extent of the damage that the Georgia "cover-rippers" will do to Tech's twirlers. That is a hard one, for it must be granted that Georgia has mauled many and many a good pitcher all over the lot this spring,—pitchers who were, in all probability, quite as good as the best that Tech can put forward. No doubt Georgia will hit "some," and maybe some more. Still, I am not without hopes; they haven't done it yet, anyway.

They will be great games. I am satisfied, no matter if Georgia does win. And there will be great crowds, and terrific excitement and noise, and all that goes with the biggest matches of the year.

Colleges on Good Terms.

I just want to add that I am very, very thankful that the two colleges are at last on the very best of terms and that there is absolutely no chance for a flare out of flame or any other kind of break-out such as used to characterize encounters between the rival teams. There will be good order and tip-top sportsmanship all around, I know; and that is the best of any college game.

Heisman on Job For Hearst Papers

J. W. Heisman, the famous Tech coach, will cover the Tech-Georgia games in Athens for The Georgian and Hearst's Sunday American. He will describe each game completely and his comments will be the very best obtainable. He will follow each and every play closely and his expert opinion on them will be of great interest. Mr. Heisman writes a breezy story, yet he never gets away from facts. He will have another interesting story in to-morrow's Georgian, and the story of Saturday's game in The Sunday American should be a classic.

NO CAUSE FOR PROTEST.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The New York Nationals had no undue advantage over the Philadelphia club in the games played at the Polo grounds late in April by reason of the fact that there was a hole scooped out of the diamond back of the pitchers' box. This is the finding of President Thomas J. Lynch of the National league, on the protest of the Philadelphia club. He orders that the result of the games shall stand as played.

BETTS GOES TO REDS.

CINCINNATI, May 9.—Fred Betts, a Cincinnati ball player, who pitched for the Cardinals several years ago, to-day signed a contract to play with the Reds and left to join the team. Betts quit professional ball of his own accord to become a typewriter slaesman.

OLLIE KIRK vs. EDDIE MOY.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Eddie Moy, the Allentown, Pa. featherweight, who gained a good reputation in Pennsylvania will meet Ollie Kirk, of St Louis, here to-morrow in a ten-round bout.

INDIANS PURCHASE WORKS.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 9.—Pitcher Ralph Works, of the Cincinnati club, of the National League, was purchased to-day by the Indianapolis club, of the American Association. The price was not announced.

KING RECEIVES PLAYERS.

LONDON, May 9.—Following the precedent established when he received the English polo team before its departure to America in 1911, King George received this year's team at Buckingham Palace.

Jones and Barrett Are Stars in Shoot

Former Captures High Average Prize in Georgia State Championship. Barrett Wins State Title.

AMERICUS, GA., May 9.—Henry Jones, of Macon, Ga., won the high average championship in the two-days' contest of the Georgia State Gun Club shoot here this afternoon. Jones secured 365 targets out of a possible 400. He was awarded the silver trophy for highest average.

Jones also tied with James Barrett, of Augusta, for the Georgia State championship, each breaking 98 targets out of a possible 100.

In the shoot-off Barrett won on 20 straights. Jones also won the long-run medal of the tournament by scoring 145 straights.

Homer Clark, of Allendale, Ill., won the silver trophy in the professional class, scoring 389 birds out of a possible 400. He also won the double professional championship in scoring 48 out of 50 targets.

J. K. Warren, of Birmingham, won the double target amateur championship of the South after tying with Eubanks, of Atlanta, on 44 out of 50 doubles.

All of the 45 gunners in yesterday's tourney are pleased with the great success of this the third annual State shoot in Americus of the Georgia Gun Club.

TO HOLD 200-MILE RACE.

GALVESTON, TEXAS, May 9.—A 200-mile automobile race on Galveston beach, for which a prize of $5,000 will be hung up, is to be the feature event of the 1913 Cotton Carnival meet, according to plans laid to-day. The meet will cover three days in all, the dates being set on July 28, 29 and 30. It is planned to offer prizes aggregating $14,000 for the meet.

WEIKINGER BEATS WIRTH.

DEFIANCE, OHIO, May 9.—Henry Wirth, the clever Chicago light weight wrestler, lost to Edward Weikinger, the local champion, last night in two straight falls.

RUSSELL GOES TO ALLENTOWN.

ALLENTOWN, PA., May 9.—Lefty Russell, the famous southpaw for whom Connie Mack paid $12,000, has been turned over to the Allentown Tristate Club by Manager Jack Dunn, of the Baltimore Club. Russell will cover the initial sack for the Allentown team.

2 GOOD BOUTS FOR LOCAL FANS HERE IN JUNE

ATLANTA boxing fans will be furnished the opportunity of witnessing two corking bouts next month at the Auditorium-Armory. The first will be held on June 9 and will bring together Jim Flynn and Jim Savage. The next show will follow on June 17 and will be between Leach Cross, or Freddie Welsh, and Matty Baldwin.

The Flynn-Savage match has already been closed and it is likely that the other will be all O K'd within the next few days. Baldwin has already accepted, while both Cross and Welsh are anxious to exhibit their wares here.

Flynn should be a tremendous card in Atlanta. He was beating Jack Johnson to a frazzle until he was disqualified on a technicality. And Savage is a good attraction here as he decisively defeated Al Kubiak a couple of weeks after the latter had whipped Carl Morris in a local ring.

CITY LEAGUE TO MEET.

LOCAL GOLFERS PLAY WELL AT BIRMINGHAM

By W. R. Tichenor.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 9.—George C. Oliver, of Birmingham, won the low medal score in the qualifying round of the invitation tournament held over the course of the Birmingham Country Club.

In the first round Oliver and F. C. Stahlman, of Nashville, tied with seventy-fours. In the play off in the afternoon Oliver again did seventy-four, beating Stahlman by four strokes.

Smith Cullum, of Birmingham, had a fine chance to win the low score prize, as he was on the eighteenth green within ten feet of the cup with two putts for a seventy-three. He was short on his first, was over with his second and then missed an easy one, which would have put him in the tie.

Captain E. T. Winston led the Atlanta golfers with a seventy-seven. He was fifty. Lowry Arnold did a seventy-nine and yours truly did an eighty, which puts three Atlanta players in the first flight.

F. G. Byrd and G. W. Adair did eighty-four and qualified in the second flight. D. Brown and C. J. Holditch qualified in the third flight and are drawn against each other for the first match Friday morning.

Walton Griffith also qualified in the third flight, as did C. E. Corwin, R. P. Jones and T. B. Paine qualified in the fourth flight. Dr. Frank Holland found lots of trouble on his round and qualified in the fifth flight.

Players from New Orleans, Chattanooga, Nashville, Montgomery and Atlanta are in attendance. The course is in good shape and many low scores are likely to be made in the matches to be played.

AUBURN DOWNS CLEMSON IN FIRST GAME; SCORE 9 TO 3

AUBURN, ALA., May 9.—With Davis on the mound twirling sensational ball, Auburn won the first game of the series from Clemson here by a score of 9 to 3.

Ezell, Clemson's premier pitcher, started with a rush, pitching no-run, no-hit ball until the fifth inning, striking out ten out of the first seventeen men before him. He weakened in the sixth and the Auburn team scored three runs by bunching a single and two two-base hits with an error.

With the score tied in the sixth inning Auburn went ahead in the seventh, scoring two runs on a hit and a wild throw to second.

In order to cinch the game in the eighth Harris singled, Davenport followed with an infield hit, but Harris was thrown out overrunning third. Locke was safe on a muff by Corator, and Davenport scored on Williams' two-bagger; Graydon hit safely, scoring Locke and Williams, and scored a ninth run later on Louiselle's drive on second.

CAZEAU AND LE MARIN WIN NEW YORK WRESTLING BOUT

NEW YORK, May 9.—George Lurich, the Russian heavyweight wrestler, lost two out of three falls to Raymond Cazeau here last night. In the other match Constant LeMarin, of France, threw Paul Samson, of Germany.

BUCK WEAVER WILL OPPOSE BILLS TO-DAY

By Joe Agler.
Crackers' First Baseman.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., May 9.—The Crackers finally broke their losing streak yesterday and now hope to win a number of successive games. The boys played great ball yesterday and showed more dash and vim than they displayed in their last four games put together. The final score was: Crackers, 7; Billikens, 3.

Long and Smith divided the honors of the day, although Gilbert Price twirled good ball. The former pair pounded out home runs and helped pile up runs to our credit.

I look for Bill Smith to send "Buck" Weaver to the slab this afternoon, with Graham catching. The latter has had a long rest and should show some of his old stuff. Manager Dobbs is in a hard way for pitchers and is trying to secure Becker from us. He could use him now, as he has no portside pitcher on his staff. Dobbs said this morning that he did not know whom he would use against us this afternoon.

"Big Bill" Chappelle joined us yesterday and looks fit and ready to go in and win ball games for the Crackers. We also expect Harry Bailey to be with us soon. His ankle is coming around fast now, and he should be in the game any day now.

The Billikens are without their star pitcher, E. Brown. He is on the sick list, and it looks as if it will be some time before he will be able to don a uniform. Snyder, who twirled against us yesterday, is but a youngster and needs more experience.

GOTCH AND ZBYSZKO MAY MEET ON MAT IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, May 9.—Plans were laid here to-day for the Frank Gotch-Stanislaus Zbyszko championship wrestling match here, and the syndicate that is back of the proposed plan is almost certain to land the clash. It became known here that Gotch has practically given his consent to such a meeting, and Manager Herman, who guides the affairs of the Pole, is only too anxious to accept. A purse of $25,000 has been offered for the battle.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Things have not changed greatly in the American League this week, except that the Washington club is holding up with a persistence that makes it look like a strong contender for the flag. Johnson is pitching wonderful ball, the best of his career. The Athletics and Red Sox are alarmed.

"I thought he was good last year," an American League player told me the other day in discussing Johnson, "but I never saw anything like the way he is traveling this season. He has gone forty-two innings without being scored on, and the chances are he will go forty-two more. He has everything in the world, and his fast ball has the speed of a bullet and the worst jump or the best I ever looked at. It depends upon the point of view whether it is the best or worst. It looked like the worst to me, because I was batting against him. He has been calling what he intends to throw against opposing batters. He did this repeatedly in the series with the Yankees.

"Then he would shoot up the ball with the old jump on it. And the batter missed it just as widely as if he had no notion of the prescription. That is going some when the pitcher can tip the batter off to his stuff and get away with it.

* * *

"THE Washington team is full of dash and ginger, and is playing fast ball. They will give the Athletics a great fight, but I do not expect to see the Senators hold the pace they are setting now."

That is the opinion of a veteran American Leaguer, who did not want his name mentioned.

After pitching in Philadelphia on Saturday and losing because Cravath, who is hitting very hard this season, pumped a home run into the bleachers, I returned to New York on Sunday and met "Eddie" Collins, the second baseman of the Athletics, with whom I have been acquainted for some time.

"How does the race look in the American League?" I asked him, "talking shop" as usual.

"The Washington club is the one we've got to beat, and I think we can do it," he said. "They are carrying lots of 'pep' now, but the supply won't last through the season. The boys are bound to slow down. If anything should happen to Johnson, they are gone, because he is carrying the club. Besides Johnson, Hughes is the only other pitcher we have had a look at so far. Groom seems to be traveling along pretty well, judging from the scores against other clubs. Cashion is too wild right now to be of much value. The rest of the team looks good, with every man playing at his best at present. Let them hit a little slump, however, and it is going to take a lot of the pepper out of them."

"HOW about the Athletics?"

"We're in pretty fair shape. Our pitching department caused the most ante-season fretting. Plank is going fine, and Bender seems to be rounding into form now. Coombs is the member of the veteran trio who is to the bad. He is laid up in bed in Philadelphia with a high fever, and I don't know what is the matter with him. He has some kind of fever, and his temperature has been up around 104 for several days. John has never been right since that time he hurt himself in the world's series with the Giants. His health has been bad, and during that rainy spell when we were in Washington he was taken ill and had to be sent home. It is problematical whether he will be in any kind of shape before the middle of the summer. 'Connie' is worried about him.

"ALL the young pitchers look pretty good, and we are bound to get at least one man from the flock to help out Bender and Plank. Houck has been twirling good ball so far, and the other squabs have the ability, but get nervous when the game becomes tight. They will outgrow this. The club is hitting the ball hard, and playing together well. So far we have not had any injured players outside of Coombs' illness; but let me touch wood, quick."

A good line on the strength of the teams in each league can be drawn when the present intersectional series is completed. That is what always tells on the clubs—the long trips away from home.

FODDER FOR FANS

Johnson, the Indian pitching recruit of the Reds, looks like one of the best pitching finds in recent years. He's won all of the Reds' five victories.

Everybody laughed at Charley Ebbets last winter when he built a baseball plant with a capacity of 35,000. And now Ebbets is laughing at the erstwhile laughers. If the Dodgers keep up their winning streak, Ebbets will have to enlarge his park.

* * *

The Dodgers, by beating the Cubs yesterday, are now within 9 points of second place and 25 points of first place.

* * *

The White Sox jumped all over the Senators' pitchers yesterday and romped home easy winners.

* * *

The lowly Braves bumped the Pirates again yesterday and the Pittsburg fans are wondering just when their pets are going to stop skidding.

* * *

The Athletics' victory over the Browns yesterday made the sixth straight win for the Quakertown athletes.

* * *

Johnnie Evers, the "Keystone King," put up a weird fielding exhibition yesterday, making three errors, two of which resulted in runs for the Dodgers, enough to give them a victory.

* * *

A great batting rally in the ninth enabled the Cardinals to snatch a 5 to 4 victory from the Phillies.

* * *

The major league baseball season to date has furnished some big surprises. In the National League the Giants and Pirates were doped to fight it out for first place all the way. Instead, they are wallowing around in the second division, and the Cardinals and Dodgers, who were accorded cellar places, are within a few points of first place.

* * *

In the American, the Boston Red Sox were expected to repeat. All the dopesters treated them to a flying start. However, the Boston boys are far down in the second division and the Naps and White Sox, who weren't figured to have a look in, are snugly ensconced in first division places, within hailing distance of the leading Athletics.

But the season is still young.

CROSS DEFEATS HARRY TENDALL, BUT IS ROBBED

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—Leach Cross, of New York, hero of many ring battles, gave Harry Trendall, St. Louis' best lightweight, a sound beating in the feature battle at the Coliseum last night, only to have Referee Harry Sharpe hand the verdict to the home boy.

The best that even Trendall's own friends looked for was a draw, and the round by round notes taken by experts showed Cross had a good margin.

Trendall left the ring a badly marked up man, both as to his face and body, while Cross went to his dressing room without a scratch.

WHITE AND BRITTON BOUT WANTED BY GOTHAM CLUB

CHICAGO, May 9.—A Charlie White-Jack Britton match now is likely. It would be a certainty but for the fact that the local featherweight is matched to battle Joe Thomas, of New Orleans, in a return go in the latter's city on May 19. Nate Lewis, who guides the pugilistic destinies of White, to-day received a wire from Gil Boag, of the Forty-fifth Avenue Athletic Club in New York, offering him May 20 as the date for a match between White and Britton.

The terms are perfectly satisfactory to Lewis and nothing is more pleasing to him than to land such a battle, but he must go through with the Southern battle. Lewis lost no time in answering Boag, in the hope of securing a later date.

JOHNSON WITHIN THREE INNINGS OF A RECORD

CHICAGO, May 9.—Walter Johnson needs to pitch only three more scoreless innings to excel Jack Coombs' great 1910 record of 46 successive runless rounds. Johnson went to Engel's rescue Monday against Boston and blanked the Red Sox for five stanzas, while his helpmates were able to score two runs and win in the twelfth round.

Johnson has not yielded an earned run this season, although he was scored on his first inning out.

By the Sweat of His Brow

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WILL you be good enough," asks M. E., "to tell me if it is proper for a girl to kiss a young man who tells her he loves her but can not marry her for some time to come owing to the fact that he is not in a position to support her at the present time, and may never be able to do so?"

If kisses be classed as luxuries or necessities depends solely on the years of the one making the classification. Youth regards them as necessities, and Age knows they are but idle luxuries, meaningless though not unpleasant, and an altogether unsanitary method of expressing an affection that sometimes lasts little longer than the kiss itself.

But, be they luxuries or necessities, they should be classed among the many things which a man should be compelled to earn by the sweat of his brow. Unless he can earn a living, and by the sweat of his brow provide bread, he is not entitled to kisses. Unless he can go forth and with muscle and brain produce the price of a nest for his bride, he hasn't earned the right to be kissed by anybody in the world but his mother.

Is an Insult.

The kiss that is given to a girl with the declaration, "I love you, but I can not afford to marry you; I am not in position to support you now, and may never be able to do so," is an insult.

It is as if he said to her: "It gratifies me to kiss you, and for that reason I seek the privilege. I can do nothing for you and my monopoly of your affection will serve no other purpose than to place you in an embarrassing position, and to keep other lovers away whose intentions are more honorable. But it pleases me to kiss you, and when I grow tired of kissing you I can take my avowals of love to some other girl. They carry no promise with them, no obligation, no duty, and so long as there are girls in the world who will kiss me I can enjoy myself without paying the price."

He Is a Loafer.

I take it that this young man is a loafer, and who is there who thinks that the man who loafs when there is so much work to do, is entitled to any girl's kisses? A self-respecting man will seek work, and a self-respecting girl will refuse to bestow any mark of affection on a man who is a professional hobo in the Kingdom of Love.

To care for such a man is a weakness that carries tragedy in its wake. It is the same kind of weakness that marks the woman who supports her husband, finding recompense for her toil in the fact that he never abuses her or speaks cross to her, while other women's husbands who work hard and earn a good living are sometimes fretted and angry.

The girl who permits such a man to kiss her shows a heart that is soft and a brain that is weak. She has two choices of degradation: Either she kisses the man to no other purpose than a waste of time and an unsavory memory, or she marries him and takes upon her shoulders the burden of his support.

There is no other alternative.

A Prince Who Plays Bagpipes

THE announcement made recently that the Prince of Wales, in the interval of his studies at Oxford, is learning to play the bagpipes under the tuition of Pipe Major W. Rose, of the Second Scots Guards, surprised many people, and particularly those who have an inherent dislike to the much-abused instrument. But his royal highness, in taking up the bagpipe as a musical accomplishment, is merely carrying on a tradition of the royal house, many of the members of which have always had a liking for the merry chant of the pipes. Queen Victoria had her piper at Balmoral, and so had King Edward, and to-day there is one attached to the royal establishment, for King George is fond of bagpipe music as his father and his royal grandmother were.

Early Morning Skirt.

When the court is in residence in the Highlands it is customary for the royal piper, dressed in full Highland costume, to march backward and forward in front of the royal apartments every morning and awaken the household with the "skirl" of his pipes. On official occasions, too, when the Balmoral Highlanders are welcoming the king and queen on their arrival at their Scottish residence, or when the retainers on the royal estate are taking part in any function, the king's piper invariably heads the procession of kilted men.

At the Braemar Highland gathering, the great social event of the season on Deeside, which is patronized by royalty, this official always "plays" the king's clansmen around the arena. On a memorable occasion at New Mar Lodge, the seat of the late Duke of Fife, King Edward, along with the princess royal, her two daughters and his grace, marched at the head of a body of Highlanders to the accompaniment of the music of the bagpipes, for which his majesty had as much liking as he had for the kilt when he was in the Highlands.

Highland Garb.

As soon as he reached Balmoral on his periodical visits King Edward—just as King George does to-day—donned the kilt, and, as was often remarked, no Highlander could carry it better than did his majesty. Queen Victoria, too, had as great an admiration for the tartan as she had for the bigpipes. In her majesty's time the walls of Balmoral Castle were draped with the Stuart colors. They have since been replaced by less somber decorations! But neither the wearing of the kilt nor the retaining of a piper is dictated by royal fashion, for every nobleman whose ancestral home is in the Highlands dons the traditional garb as much out of compliment to his ancestry as for any other reason. His guests, as a rule, follow his example as a matter of courtesy, but it does not always happen that they have the necessary habiliments with which to convert themselves for the time being into "Highlanders."

An Amusing Story.

An amusing but well-authenticated story is told of a German prince who was the guest of a Scottish nobleman, and who was so fascinated with the Highland dress that he determined to have a kilt made. He placed the order with a well-known firm of tailors for a complete outfit, richly adorned with silver buckles, and gold-mounted sporran or pouch. He paid something like a hundred guineas for it. The kilt was delivered in due course, and the prince was rigged out the next day in all the splendor of a Highland chieftain! But his highness was unfamiliar with the wearing of the sporran, and to the consternation of his host and hostess and their other guests he appeared with it attached to the back instead of the front of the kilt! Taking the prince quietly aside, Lord ——— suggested that his sporran should be reversed, and with profound apologies for the mistake he had made, his highness placed the pouch in its proper position.

Shoes of the Scot.

It is not only in Scotland that the bagpipes are regarded with favor. The Englishman certainly likes them best at a distance, but they are a very popular instrument among the natives of the Punjab, in India. The late Maharajah of Patiala had a fine band of pipers, wholly composed of Sikhs and other natives, who had been trained by a piper from one of the British Highland regiments. Many of the Indian frontier forces—notably the Gurkha regiments—have bagpipe bands of their own. An amusing instance of Scottish pride is told by a retired Indian officer in this connection. He was one day visiting the Court of the Rajah of Jeend, and noticed that the only person who broke through the rigid rule of etiquette, which forbids the wearing of shoes in the presence of the Rajah, was his bagpiper. Judicious inquiry elicited the fact that the sturdy Scot, when being engaged as the court musician, had stipulated that he was not to be obliged to go about the court in bare feet, as he regarded it as derogatory to his native country that he should do such a thing.

Do You Know That—

About a year ago four students of Boston University started out with a tuning fork to sing their way round the world. They have arrived in London by way of San Francisco, Honolulu, Japan, China, Manchuria and India, and are appearing under the title of the "University Quartette," or the "Four Singing Evangelists." Each can preach a sermon, lead a young men's Sunday school class or blend his voice with the others in the four-part setting of a hymn. Sometimes they make a complete change of program and give a secular entertainment, with humorous songs, Southern coon songs and piano solos.

A rudder with a doorway into the interior is a feature of the Cunarder Aquitania, recently finished. The rudder is so large that a doorway has been constructed in the lower part to admit workmen, so that they can remove the pin which connects the rudder to the ship. This pin is four feet long, and bigger than the heaviest projectile made for modern artillery. When delivered at the builders' yard the rudder was in three parts. After they had been connected and laid upon the ground the distance that had to be walked to pass around the rudder was over 100 feet.

The "homeless" population of London, according to the latest census of the County Council, numbers nearly 22,000. Some time ago a scheme was started by which the police gave lodging tickets to these night wanderers. This has somewhat depleted the Embankment and the streets, but the fact is noted that only about half of the people who are given tickets make use of them. They clearly prefer the wandering life.

False Gratitude

Little Molly May was only six, and on the morning of the story was sobbing her heart out because she had lost a penny. Many looked and sympathized as she trotted down the street; but it was an old gentleman who played the role of practical Samaritan.

"Well, my little maid," he asked, as he patted Molly May's heaving shoulder, "what's the trouble?"

"Boo-hoo! I've lost a penny!" came the muffled answer.

Without a word the old gentleman thrust his hand into his pocket, and handed Molly a penny to replace the one she had lost, saying:

"There—there, now everything will be all right."

But to his utter confusion, the little girl dropped her damp pinafore, gazing at him with an expression in which sorrow strove valiantly with anger, and said:

"Oh, you wicked old man, 'oo had it all the time."

Some Up-to-Date Gowns and How They Are Fashioned

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

HE SHOULD ATONE.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a young man a few months ago with whom I am very much in love. I have had an appointment with him, but he failed to come. He phoned the next day, but I was not at home. Shall I call him up and ask him to call?

JESTINE.

Having failed to keep his engagement, it is due you from him that he make another, and atone for his failure to keep it by being prompt and particularly attentive. You do not owe him the courtesy of asking him to call.

A Golden One.

A white rose in his buttonhole, and cotton gloves on his dirty hands, old Bill Loafer swaggered jauntily along the street. At the corner a friend stopped him, exclaiming incredulously:

"Why, Bill, ol' man, what's happened—bin left some money?"

"No, no," said Bill. "It's me goldin weddin'; I'm celebratin' me goldin weddin'!"

"But why ain't your wife celebratin' it, too?" inquired his friend. "I see 'er goin' to work as usual this mornin'. Why ain't she got a white rose and noo gloves?"

"Er!" muttered Bill, as he grunted reflectively, "She ain't got nuthin' to do wiv it! She's me fourth!"

What the Master Used.

The inspector was talking about adverbs and adjectives.

"Does your master use adverbs and adjectives?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," chorused the scholars.

"Well, what does he use when he does not use adverbs and adjectives?"

There was a silence. Finally a little fellow waved his hand.

"He generally uses a ruler, sir."

The coat is cut kimono style, fastened on the side by a hook. A broad shawl collar is faced with gray silk cloth and the cuffs which finish the sleeves are also lined with gray-silk cloth. There is a pocket on each side.

A small blouse of white net shows ruching at the neck and at the wrists.

The skirt is a long tunic, crossed in the front and caught up at the waist by large gatherings. The left side of the tunic is caught up by a few folds under the other. The underskirt is plain.

On the right a small afternoon coat of "Havana" taffeta. It is gathered over an emplecement making points over the shoulders and falling rather low over the arms. Broad openings make the armholes, which are edged by a small flat ruching which hides the setting of a second sleeve of Chantilly lace, tightened at the wrists by three ruchings of taffeta, and finished by a high flounce over the hand. The fullness of the coat is caught up at the bottom, giving a curved effect and finishing in back in a small tail and edged by a small flat ruching.

Wanted Instructions.

The station master on the Eastern Indian Railway had been given strict orders not to do anything out of the ordinary without authority from the superintendent. This accounts for his sending the following telegram:

"Superintendent's Office, Calcutta. —Tiger on platform eating railway porter. Please wire instructions."

Hints For the Household

When rinsing flannels and woolens it is best to do so in warm soapy water, as pure warm water makes them hard; also when hanging curtains out to dry, hang them double, as it makes them even and prevents them getting torn so easily.

When about to make a pudding, well flour your board and rolling pin and roll the suet out to a thin sheet. Take between your hands and rub down, when you will find the suet as fine as breadcrumbs.

Hot water marks may be removed from japanned trays by the simple process of rubbing them over well with sweet oil, and then polishing with a little dry flour on a soft duster.

To curl a feather that has become damaged with rain or dew, sprinkle it thickly with common salt and shake before a bright fire until dry, when you will find it as good as new.

When washing pudding cloths throw some orange peelings into the water. This collects the grease and helps to make the cloths white and clean-looking.

Soap that is allowed to dry and harden lasts twice as long as if used when fresh. Therefore it is cheaper to buy it in quantity and keep it in a dry place.

To prevent custard dishes or glasses from cracking when pouring boiled custard into them, place the dish on a damp cloth. This plan is most effective.

To thread a darning-needle, take a length of cotton, put the two ends together, and thread through the eye, put wool through loop and draw it.

A teaspoonful of borax to a quart of water will make hard water soft, so that it can be used for washing the most delicate skin.

If a white shirt is scorched when ironed the brown marks may be removed by rubbing them with a little dry borax.

The Soft Answer.

He was really growing tired of paying off his son's bills—the boy was an undergraduate at one of the big universities. However, after much thought, he decided to be indulgent just once more.

Boys will be boys, he thought. Accordingly, as requested, he sent a check for $250, but accompanied it with stern admonitions to live more wisely and more economically.

"My son," he wrote, "you must remember that your studies are costing me a great deal of money—very much more than I can honestly afford."

"I know it, father—I know it," replied his incorrigible hopeful; "and the tragedy is that I don't study very hard, either."

Long Time for Both.

Affable Passenger—Indeed, and you are a music hall artiste! I am a banker, and I think it must be at least twenty years since I was in a music hall.

Music Hall Artiste (regretfully)—And I'm quite certain, sir, it's twenty years since I was in a bank.

THREE QUESTIONS.

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"WHAT is Modesty?" I asked
Of a violet that basked
In a swamp one summer day
Where a sunbeam chanced to stray.
Then the purple violet,
Squandering fragrance, dewy wet,
Spoke from out the swampland low:
"Modesty? I do not know."

Then I asked a lily white,
Paler than an altar-light,
Sinless as a vestal's day;
"What is Purity, I pray?"
And the lily in the dell
Answered me, "I cannot tell."

"What is beauty?" I inquired
Of a rose with crimson fired.
"Beauty, Cleopatra's gift,
Casting Antony adrift.
Beauty? Tell me ere I go."
Said the rose, "I do not know."

Then I asked a girl aged three,
Who explained it all to me.

But Aggie was not one to be ignored under any circumstances. Now she spoke with some acerbity in her voice, which could at will be wondrous soft and low.

"Say!" she retorted viciously, "you can't throw any scare into us. You hain't got anything on us. See?"

Cassidy, in response to this outburst, favored the girl with a long stare, and there was hearty amusement in his tones as he answered:

"Nothing on you, eh? Well, well, let's see." He regarded Garson with a grin. "You are Joe Garson, forger." As he spoke, the detective took a note-book from a pocket, found a page and then read: "First arrested in 1891 for forging the name of Edwin Goodsell to a check for ten thousand dollars. Again rearrested June 19, 1893, for forgery. Arrested in April, 1898, for forging the signature of Oscar Hemmenway to a series of bonds that were counterfeit. Arrested as the man back of the Reilly gang in 1903. Arrested in 1908 for forgery."

There was no change in the face or pose of the man who listened to the reading. When it was done, and the officer looked up with a resumption of his triumphant grin, Garson spoke quietly.

"Haven't any records of convictions, have you?"

The grin died and a snarl sprang in its stead.

"No," he snapped, vindictively. "But we've got the right dope on you, all right, Joe Garson." He turned savagely on the girl, who now had regained her usual expression of demure innocence, but with her rather too heavy brows drawn a little lower than their wont under the influence of an emotion otherwise concealed.

"And you're little Aggie Lynch," Cassidy declared as he thrust the note-book back into his pocket. "Just now you're posing as Mary Turner's cousin. You served two years in Burnsing for blackmail. You were arrested in Buffalo, convicted and served your stretch. Nothing on you? Well, well!" Again there was triumph in the officer's chuckle.

Aggie showed no least sign of perturbation in the face of this revelation of her unsavory record. Only an expression of half-incredulous wonder and delight beamed from her widely opened blue eyes and was emphasized in the rounding of the little mouth.

Sarcasm Without Effect.

"Why," she cried, and now there was softness enough in the cooing notes, "my Gawd! It looks as though you had actually been workin'!"

The sarcasm was without effect on the dull sensibilities of the officer. He went on speaking with obvious enjoyment of the extent to which his knowledge reached.

"And the head of the gang is Mary Turner. Arrested four years ago for robbing the Emporium. Did her stretch of three years."

"Is that all you've got about her?" Garson demanded with such abruptness that Cassidy forgot his dignity sufficiently to answer with an unqualified yes.

The forger continued speaking rapidly, and now there was an undercurrent of feeling in his voice.

"Nothing in your record of her about her coming out without a friend in the world and trying to go straight? You ain't got nothing in that pretty little book of your'n about your going to the millinery store where she finally got a job and tipping them off to where she come from?"

"Sure they was tipped off," Cassidy answered, quite unmoved. And he added, swelling visibly with importance: "We got to protect the city."

"Got anything in that record of your'n," Garson went on venomously, "about her getting another job, and your following her up again and having her thrown out? Got it there about the letter you had old Gilder write, so that his influence would get her canned?"

"Oh, we had her right the first time," Cassidy admitted, complacently.

Then the bitterness of Garson's soul was revealed by the fierceness in his voice as he replied:

"You did not! She was railroaded for a job she never done. She went in honest and she came out honest."

The detective indulged himself in a cackle of sneering merriment.

"And that's why she's here now with a gang of crooks," he retorted.

Mr. Cassidy Laughs.

Garson met the implication fairly.

"Where else should she be?" he demanded, violently. "You ain't got nothing in that record about my jumping into the river after her?" The forger's voice deepned and trembled with the intensity of his emotion, which was now grown so strong that any who listened and looked might guess something of the truth as to his feeling toward this woman of whom he spoke. "That's where I found her—a girl that never done nobody any harm, starving because you police wouldn't give her a chance to work. In the river because she wouldn't take the only other way that was left her to make a living, because she was keeping straight! . . . Have you got any of that in your book?"

Cassidy, who had been scowling in the face of this arraignment, suddenly gave vent to a croaking laugh of derision.

"Huh!" he said, contemptuously. "I guess you's stuck on her, eh?"

At the words, an instantaneous change swept over Garson. Hitherto he had been tense, his face set with emotion, a man strong and sullen, with eyes as clear and heartless as those of a beast in the wild. Now, without warning, a startling transformation was wrought. His form stiffened to rigidity after one lightning-swift step forward, and his face grayed. The eyes glowed with the fires of a man's heart in a spasm of hate. He was the embodiment of rage as he spoke huskily, his voice a whisper that was yet louder than any shout.

"Cut that!"

The eyes of the two men locked. Cassidy struggled with all his pride against the dominant fury this man hurled on him.

"What?" he demanded, blusteringly. But his tone was weaker than its wont.

"I mean," Garson repeated, and there was finality in his accents, a deadly quality that was appalling, "I mean, cut it out—now, here, and all the time! It don't go!" The voice rose slightly. The effect of it was more penetrant than a scream. "It don't go . . . Do you get me?"

There was a short interval of silence, then the officer's eyes at last fell. It was Aggie who relieved the tension of the scene.

"He's got you," she remarked, airily. "Oh, oh! He's got you!"

There were again a few seconds of pause, and then Cassidy made an observation that revealed in some measure the shock of the experience he had just undergone.

"You would have been a big man, Joe, if it hadn't been for that temper of yours. It's got you into trouble once or twice already. Some take it's likely to prove your finish."

Garson relaxed his immobility, and a little color crept into his cheeks.

"That's my business," he responded, dully.

"Anyway," the officer went on, with a new confidence, now that his eyes were free from the gaze that had burned into his soul, "you've got to clear out, the whole gang of you and do it quick."

Aggie, who as a matter of fact began to feel that she was not receiving her due share of attention, now interposed, moving forward till her face was close to the detective's.

"We don't scare worth a cent," she snapped, with the virulence of a vixen. "You can't do anything to us. We ain't broke the law." There came a sudden ripple of laughter, and the charming lips curved joyously as she added: "Though perhaps we have bent it a bit."

Cassidy sneered, outraged by such impudence on the part of an ex-convict.

"Don't make no difference what you've done," he growled. "Gee!" he went on with a heavy sneer. "But things are coming to a pretty pass when a gang of crooks gets to arguing about their rights. That's funny, that is!"

"Then laugh!" Aggie exclaimed, insolently, and made a face at the officer. "Ha, ha, ha!"

"Well, you've got the tip," Cassidy returned, somewhat disconcerted, after a stolid fashion of his own. "It's up to you to take it, that's all. If you don't, one of you will make a long visit with some people out of town, and it'll probably be Mary. Remember, I'm giving it to you straight."

Aggie assumed her formal society manner, exaggerated to the point of extravagance.

"Do come again, little one," she chirruped, caressingly. "I've enjoyed your visit so much!"

But Cassidy paid no apparent attention to her frivolousness; only turned and went noisily out of the drawing room, offering no return to her daintily inflected good-afternoon.

For her own part, as she heard the outer door close behind the detective, Aggie's expression grew vicious, and the heavy brows drew very low, until the level line almost made her prettiness vanish.

"The truck-horse detective!" she sneered. "An eighteen collar and a six-and-a-half hat! He sure had his nerve, trying to bluff us!"

But it was plain that Garson was of another mood. There was anxiety in his face as he stood staring vaguely out of the window.

"What Have We Done."

"Perhaps it wasn't a bluff, Aggie," he suggested.

"Well, what have we done. I'd like to know?" the girl demanded, confidently. She took a cigarette and a match from the tabouret beside her and stretched her feet comfortably, if very inelegantly, on a chair opposite.

Garson answered with a note of weariness that was unlike him.

"It ain't what you have done," he said, quietly. "It's what they can make a jury think you've done. And, once they set out to get you—God, how they can frame things! If they ever start out after Mary——." He did not finish the sentence, but sank down into his chair with a groan that was almost of despair.

The girl replied with a burst of careless laughter.

"Joe," she said gayly, "you're one grand little forger, all right, all right. But Mary's got the brains. Pooh, I'll string along with her as far as she wants to go. She's educated, she is. She ain't like you and me, Joe. She talks like a lady and, what's a damned sight harder, she acts like a lady. I guess I know. Wake me up any old night, and ask me—just ask me, that's all. She's been tryin' to make a lady out of me!"

The vivaciousness of the girl distracted the man for the moment from the gloom of his thoughts, and he turned to survey the speaker with a cynical amusement.

"Swell chance!" he commented dryly. "Oh, I'm not so worse! Just you watch out." The lively girl sprang up, discarded the cigarette adjusted an imaginary train and spoke lispingly in a society manner much more moderate and convincing than that with which she had favored the retiring Cassidy. Voice, pose and gesture proclaimed at least the excellent mimic.

"How do you do, Mrs. Jones! So good of you to call! . . . My dear Miss Smith, this is indeed a pleasure." She seated herself again, quite primly now, and moved her hands over the tabouret appropriately to her words. "One lump or two? . . . Yes. I just love bridge. No, I don't play," she continued, simpering; "but, just the same, I love it." With this absurd ending, Aggie again arranged her feet according to her liking on the opposite chair. "That's the kind of stuff she's had me doing," she rattled on in her coarser voice, "and believe me, Joe, it's damned near killing me. But all the same," she hurried on, with a swift revulsion of mood to the former serious topic. "I'm for Mary strong! You stick to her, Joe, and you'll wear diamonds. . . . And that reminds me! I wish she'd let me wear mine, but she won't. She says they're vulgar for an innocent country girl like her cousin, Agnes Lynch. Ain't that fierce? . . . How can anything be vulgar that's worth a hundred and fifty a carat?

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Turner, becoming an orphan, is thrown on her own resources. She finds work at the Emporium, a department store owned by Edward Gilder; is accused of the theft of silks, and sent to prison, though innocent. She tells George Demarest, Gilder's head lawyer, that the way to stop thievery is to pay a living wage. In prison she learned from fellow convicts why girls go wrong. She understands their point of view and sympathizes with them. Aggie Lynch, a convict friend of Mary's at Burnsing, sees good "possibilities" for her in the world of crime. Upon Mary's release the slogan "once a criminal always one," prevents her from securing work. She is continually hounded and in desperation throws herself into the North River. Joe Garson, a forger, rescues her and keeps her and Aggie in luxury, though living chaste lives. Mary reads that a famous financier escapes prison through keeping within the letter of the law. She follows his example and becomes the leader of a band of swindlers, robbing only the unscrupulous. Gilder's son Dick meets and loves Mary, who seeks to wreak vengeance on the father through the son. Aggie poses as her cousin, and they pretend to be respectable.

There is seating accommodation for 2,300 persons, and the stage, which is the widest in New Zealand, will easily hold the property and scenic effects of any production which has visited New Zealand. It is claimed that the auditorium could be emptied in case of emergency within three minutes.

I cud see that Pa was talking kind of absent-minded beekaus all the time he was talking he kep looking around in the woods & I knew he dident know his way.

Jest then Pa sed Bobbie, Bobbie, I hear it, I hear it. It is the sound of running water that I hear. Dident I tell you, Bobbie?

They Hear It.

Sure enuff, I herd the running water, too, so both of us began to walk faster toward a cleering. After we git to the brook, Bobbie, sed Pa, we will arrange our tackel & go after the speckled buties.

Jest then we caim out into the cleering ware we had herd the running water & Pa & me neerly fell over. We was back to the littel hotel from wich we had started out from. We had went in a cirkel. Ma was setting on the porch grinning at Pa, & the sound of the running water was water cumming from a hose. The hired man was washing the barn.

Now Ma calls Pa Isaak Walton.

Uncle's Sporting Trophies.

Tom Brown and Jack Smith had been schoolmates together, but, as often happens, had drifted apart during the years that followed. Then, quite accidentally, they met again one day, and somehow the conversation turned to the subject of athletics.

"Let me see!" said Brown. "You never came across my brother, did you? He's a fine runner, you know. Why, only last week he won a gold medal in a Marathon race."

"Ah!" said Smith, raising his eyebrows in genuine admiration. Then, a faint smile playing around his lips, he added: "And did I ever tell you about my uncle?"

"Don't think so," replied Brown.

"Well in his day, not only did he get a gold medal for five miles, and one for ten miles, but two sets of carvers for cycling, a silver medal for swimming, two cups for wrestling, to say nothing of badges for boxing and rowing.

"You see," Smith continued, while his friend sat speechless with amazement, "the uncle in question kept a pawnshop."

Her Love For Romance

A HUMOROUS STORY.

AS a little girl Albertine always sat in the chair in the farthest corner when she went to children's parties. She had a meek, pretty little face, abundant yellow hair and large, appealing blue eyes that held a shadow of apology in them for her temerity in presuming to exist. She retained the modest violet atmosphere after she was grown up.

Other girls might blossom into darling coquettes and fascinating belles, but Albertine always kept in the background. Whenever people looked at her they involuntarily thought of lace mitts and hoopskirts and curtseys. They felt that Albertine should be put under glass.

This being the case, it was astonishing that down in her secret heart Albertine had a fierce love of the darling, the wild and gay and the extreme. When she picked out a dress design she always chose the rankest, most alarming atrocity. The dressmaker said, "Oh, certainly!" and then proceeded to modify the pattern to suit Albertine's appearance.

She Suspected.

Things had a way of drooping on her in old-fashioned lines. She wanted to look frightfully smart and somehow she never did. Secretly she suspected the dressmakers, but she never dared accuse them.

It was the same way when it came to the young men. Let a perfectly steady, sober youth who earned a regular salary and was good to his mother come her way and Albertine raised her little nose and sniffed. She simply could not see him. She admired extravagantly the sort of young man who dashed down the street wearing crimson silk socks and a tie to match and the latest cry in waistcoats, and if he was followed by a bulldog so much the better. If people raised their eyebrows and coughed disgreetly when his name was mentioned it made the situation perfect.

Albertine always felt loftily then that she was an experienced, worldly wise person and the eyebrow raisers were narrow provincials. Usually the bulldoggy young man never progressed in the acquaintance further than raising his hat and casting an entrancing smile at her; but Albertine was satisfied with just adoring him from a distance.

Her family was quite alarmed when she fell in love with Harry Jungles, because Harry always was in debt and worked only semi-occasionally, and Albertine's relatives had a great deal of money. Harry seemed awake to this fact, for he actually called on Albertine and talked poetry to her in the parlor in low, rich tones, and told her how the world misjudged him. Albertine went so far as to powder her already white nose and her mother caught her once using an eyebrow pencil. It was much the same as though an Easter lily had begun to rouge. The situation was saved, however, by the Sheriff's removing Harry for forgery, and after that Albertine wore what she thought was a heartbroken expression and thought she threw into her face deep lines of experience and suffering.

After Harry several others of the same kind followed. Therefore, having long hovered over Albertine in fear that she would do some foul thing and spoil her life, her family was entranced when she became engaged to Jeffrey. It all happened so suddenly that one was scarcely aware Jeffrey was on earth before he was introducing himself as the future son-in-law and brother.

Jeffrey was absolutely as nearly perfect as he could be for Albertine. Liberal-minded people might say he erred on the side of rigidness and propriety and possible narrowness, but one felt that he would always be at home at 6 o'clock sharp for dinner and that Albertine never would have to hang out of the front window trying to distinguish whether it was wavering down the street at 1 o'clock in the morning. Jeffrey choked at the sight of a cigarette, wouldn't be caught dead at a dog show and said his wife never should be permitted to wear decollete gowns in the evening.

What She Said.

The more people considered the matter the more inexplicable it became. Finally her dearest friend flatly asked Albertine to explain Jeffrey's attractions.

"You see," said the dearest friend, "with your ideas I can't understand how you happen to fall in love with Jeffrey, of all men."

"Of all men!" echoed Albertine in pitying astonishment. "Why, I'll tell you, Susie—because I recognized at once that Jeffrey is the most sophisticated sort of person. He's such a man of the world. I can't abide these goody-goody men!"

"WHEN Spring comes laughing by vale and hill,
By windflower dancing and daffodil,
Sing stars of morning—sing morning skies,
Sing blue of speedwell, and my love's eyes,
. . . . . .
And gay birds gossip the orchard long."

The Change in George

"WHEN I first noticed the change in George," said the blond woman, who was no bigger than a minute, "I thought it was indigestion. It is perfectly wonderful how much a man's liver is responsible for! But when I mentioned the doctor he was quite violent. In fact, he was rude and stamped around. It is hard on the rugs when a man acts that way.

"'Don't roar at me, George!' I told him.

"'I've got to!' he said in a regular Bengal tiger sort of way. 'I've got to in order to maintain my supremacy in the home!'

"Now, George has always been such a perfect gentleman and so mild that you may well imagine that I was amazed. 'See here, George Guesser!' I said to him. 'Tell me at once what you mean!'

"This Was Different."

"George frowned awfully. His eyebrows looked like a lilac hedge that hasn't been trimmed since last spring. Then he cleared his throat. 'I've just waked up to the fact,' said he, 'that I have been taking a back seat and allowing you to think I didn't count. Why, when I consider how near I have been to losing your love it makes me shudder! I just read a wonderful article——'

"'Oh!' said I. 'An article! But do you believe all you read?'

"'This was different,' George said. Then he explained:

"'It was in one of the scientific magazines, and the writer began by saying that every woman sits and waits the coming of her lord and master and is ready to follow when he beckons. He does not woo or beseech: he takes; he——'

"'George Guesser,' I said to him, 'whenever you waste time beckoning me instead of coming where I am I'd like to know it! Do you think I am a little yellow puppy dog?' My, but I was angry!

"George looked sad. 'I see I have allowed you to get away from me,' he mused. Then he roared at me. '"There is never a man brute so brutal but a woman clings to him!"' he quoted and beat the air with his arms. 'That was a fundamental point with the writer. He said that if the man cringed before the woman she had only contempt for him, but that if he beat her she respected him and thanked her stars that her man was so strong. Further, she was completely happy to think that the gentleman who had loosened her front teeth belonged entirely to her. I hate to do it, Evangeline, but you've got to respect me and look up to me, even if I have to follow that writer's advice and beat you! In fact, he says, a great many women require more or less beating to make them loving dutiable wives!'

George Shook His Head.

"'George,' I said when he stopped for breath, 'just what is your intention? Am I to understand that you are about to knock me down in order to make sure of my imperishable affection? Are you contemplating denting my face for the purpose of making me too utterly happy to live? Because if you are——'

"George shook his head as if he were considering something under a microscope. 'What a mistake I've been making,' he confided to himself. 'Why, Evangeline, you are entirely lacking in that devotion which is part fear and which is necessary to make a happy wife! It is all my fault!'

"Right here I concluded that it was time to take George by the hand and lead him forth to safety. 'Darling,' said I, 'if you will tell me how a woman is going to stand in any fear of a man after she has viewed him crawling under the bed after his collar button or trying to light the gas with an already burned match or attempting to answer his child who wants to know what there would have been if there hadn't been anything I shall consider myself in your debt!'

"'Not wishing to thrust myself forward or unduly trumpet my own worth, I still would bet my false hair that if I ever get hold of that scientific friend of yours long enough to whisper a few thoughts into his ear he would shrivel up and blow away! And now if you really yearn to hold my love and affection, go down and shake up the furnace, because the house is getting cold!'

"'Oh, vur-ry well,' said George, peevishly, as he headed for the basement stairs. 'That's the way you always act when I attempt any real progress. Women aren't scientific!'

"'Indeed, they're not!' I told him. 'They're just plain sensible!'"

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"THANKS, very much. I'm having rather a difficult task of it, for our friend, the Constable here, corroborates Miss Renfrew's statement to the hair, and yet I am absolutely positive that there is a mistake."

"There is no mistake—no, not one! The wicked one to say it still!"

"Oh, that's all very well, madame; but I know what I know; and when you tell me that a dead man can ask questions. * * * Pah! The fact of the matter is that the Constable only fancies he heard Mr. Nosworth speak. That's where the mistake comes in. Now, look here. I once knew of an exactly similar case and I'll tell you just how it happened. Let us suppose"—strolling leisurely forward—"let us suppose that this space here is the covered passage and you—step here a moment, please. Thanks, very much—and you are Miss Renfrew, and Gorham here is himself, and standing beside her as he did then."

"Wasn't beside her, sir—at least not just exactly. A bit behind her—like this."

"Oh, very well, then, that will do. Now then. Here's the passage and here are you, and I'll just show you how a mistake could occur and how it did occur under precisely similar circumstances. Once upon a time when I was in Paris—"

"It's a Play."

"In Paris, monsieur?"

"Yes, madame—this little thing I'm going to tell you about happened there. You may or may not have heard that a certain French dramatist wrote a play called 'Chanticler'—or maybe you never heard of it? Didn't, eh? Well, it's a play where all the characters are barnyard creatures—dogs, poultry, birds and the like—and the odd fancy of men and women dressing up like fowls took such a hold on the public that before long there were Chanticler dances and Chanticler parties in all the houses and Chanticler 'turns' on at all the music halls until wherever one went for an evening's amusement one was pretty sure of seeing somebody or another dressed up like a cock or a hen and running the thing to death. But that's another story, and we'll pass over it. Now, it just so happened that one night—when the craze for the thing was dying out and barnyard dresses could be bought for a song, I strolled into a little fourth-rate cafe at Montemartre and there saw the only Chanticler dancer that I ever thought was worth a sou. She was a pretty, dainty little thing—light as a feather and graceful as a fairy. Alone, I think she might have made her mark, but she was one of what in music halldom they call 'a team.' Her partner was a man—a bad dancer, an indifferent singer, but a really passable ventriloquist."

The Expose.

"A ventriloquist, monsieur—er—er."

"Cleek, madam—name's Cleek, if you don't mind!"

"Cleek! Oh, lummy!" blurted out Mr. Nippers. But neither, "Madam" nor Constable Gorham said anything. They merely swung round and made a sudden bolt; and Cleek, making a bolt, too, pounced down on them like a leaping cat, and the sharp click-click of the handcuffs he had borrowed from Mr. Nippers told just when he linked their two wrists together.

"Game's up, Mlle. Fifine, otherwise Mme. Nosworth, the worthless wife of a worthless husband!" he rapped out sharply. "Game's up, Mr. Henry Nosworth, bandit, pickpocket and murderer! There's a hot corner in hell waiting for the brute-beast that could kill his own father, and would, for the simple sake of money. Get at him quick, Mr. Narkom. He's got one free hand! Nip the paper out of his pocket before the brute destroys it! Played, sir, played! Buck up, Miss Renfrew, buck up, little girl!—you'll get your 'Boy' and you'll get Mr. Septimus Nosworth's promised fortune after all! God's in his heaven and all's right with the world!'"

"Yes, a very, very clever scheme indeed, Miss Renfrew," agreed Cleek. "Laid with great cunning and carried out with extreme carefulness—as witness the man's coming here and getting appointed constable and biding his time, and the woman serving as cook for six months to get the entree to the house and to be ready to assist when the time of action came round. I don't think I had the least inkling of the truth until I entered this house and saw the woman. She had done her best to pad herself to an unwieldly size, and to blanch portions of her hair, but she couldn't quite make her face appear old without betraying the fact that it was painted—and hers is one of those peculiarly pretty faces that one never forgets when one has ever seen it.

To Be Concluded To-morrow.

The Professor Ate Nuts

"YES," said Professor J. Haddensfield Joy, "I used to be a vegetarian myself. I have seen the time when a big porterhouse steak or a fat and lean slice of ham made me tear my hair, realizing how barbarous is man. Broiled spring chicken made me grate my teeth in rage.

"Not only was I vegetarian, but I was one of those who follow along lines of the most extreme differentiation. I couldn't eat pieplant tops or white oak bark, just because they were vegetable substances. I specialized in cocoanuts.

"I bought a hundred fine, fresh nuts. These I put in a cool and shady place, and thereupon discarded all allegiance to such foods as have dwarfed man's noble intellect. My family ate as usual.

"When morning dawned on my first day of real liberty I got a handsaw and sawed off the top of a nut. Then I drank of the life-giving fluid inside. After that I proceeded to feast on the meat of the nut, as my distant ancestors had done. When I started for the laboratory I took a fine nut under my arm and tried to walk in my usual heavy and methodical stride. It was no use. I felt like hopping along.

A Deep Longing.

"Persons whom I met addressed me as 'professor,' but with a gaze too human to suit me. I found myself looking up into trees with a vague, deep longing. It was as though I had inherited something that had been hidden in my soul's archives all my life. I arrived at the laboratory with my emblem of liberty still under my arm. The rude and thoughtless experimentalists looked and talked as they talk who are in a state of mental slavery. My luncheon made me want to run up and down the halls and passages and climb the posts.

"This glorious life lasted for a week. One night Mrs. Joy had to take a broomstick and punch me down from the picture railing, where I was trying to pass the night. The next day I could nt resist the temptation to climb a tree when I had started to conduct my daily investigation of life's solemn facts at the laboratory. A cocoanut was under my arm. Presently there came speeding along a very big man in a very big automobile. I landed the cocoanut on his head with a precision that I had never learned. In another instant my man was shaking my perch as if he were a concentrated earthquake. All the Joys swarmed around the tree. Mrs. Joy shrieked: 'Don't hurt him—he's been living on cocoanuts!'

The End of It.

"'Turned back into a monkey, has he?' said the man. 'I've been living on raw meat, and if I get my hands on him I'll eat him!' Then he departed.

"All the Joys got hold of me and took me back to the dining room and seated me at the table. Soon there was spread before me a repast consisting of one porterhouse steak, one slice of ham, three slices of bacon and a few other things. I could scarcely walk when I started to work.

"Henceforth give me a full dinner of real food or cut down the trees."

COTTON GOES UP AND THEN DROPS

Reports of Rain in Georgia and Oklahoma Cause Rapid Decline From Early Level.

NEW YORK, May 9.—In the absence of rains, especially in the eastern belt, the cotton market opened steady, with prices at a net gain of 2 to 6 points from Thursday's final. Spot people were good buyers. There was also a short covering movement by the local crowd and there was some outside buying. The selling was attributed mostly to brokers with Southern connection. The market quickly developed additional strength, and prices advanced 2 to 8 points from the opening level. July displayed considerable strength. This option was under heavy buying by shorts and held steady at 10 points advance over the previous close throughout the morning session.

Should there be no rains in the eastern belt, much higher prices are anticipated.

Weather indications overnight are predicted fair in the eastern belt, but other leading cotton States are predicted to have unsettled showers, except Louisiana and East Texas, where the weather will be fair.

The course the market took this morning made it more and more obvious that this is entirely a weather market. Unfavorable advices were received from Manchester, saying that buyers have very bad reports from the other side. It seems like conditions there are becoming bad again. The trade is much quieter. It is said that it is impossible to induce mills to buy cotton.

During the late forenoon the market was quiet but steady, with prices a shade lower than the early high point.

Reports of rains in Oklahoma and Georgia caused a general selling movement during the afternoon session, which was said to be profit-taking. Offerings from Wall Street became freer and the indications that the crop is in danger were ignored.

Experts in New Orleans stated that we might expect good rains the first of the week. This brought selling from the locals who were early buyers, resulting in prices making a rapid decline and dropping 2 to 8 points from the opening figures.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Liverpool came in rather poor, but rallied in the last hour. Liverpool will be closed tomorrow and Monday. Spots 2 points higher; sales, 6,000 bales. The feature on our side was the strength of July in New York, causing a corresponding advance in that position here and giving strength to the whole list. Absence of further rains in the Eastern States brought some covering demand from shorts. New York gossip says that about 50,000 bales will be shipped out and the loss in stock is causing short covering of July.

Manchester reports to agents here show a radical change and now are distinctly bad. They say it is impossible to interest mills in any offers of cotton, trade declining and strike danger imminent.

London reports that the first peace meeting dissolved without accomplishing definite results, that the next meeting will not take place until May 20, after the holidays, that the powers may occupy Scutari with a joint force as a precautionary measure.

The market eased after the close of Liverpool and trading was of no pronounced character. The talk of dry weather in the East is looked upon as a means to promote a short scare, on which idea there has been professional buying lately than as a real danger to production.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

Hayden, Stone & Co.: There seems to be nothing to induce the purchase of cotton.

Logan & Bryan: We think some new incentive will be required to stimulate any activity on the long side.

COTTON GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Joe Gatins is credited with covering a large line of July shorts, but he put them out again in new crop positions above 11 cents.

* * *

A wire from Savannah, Ga., yesterday said that unless it rains in a few days the crop will be damaged considerably.

* * *

Troy, Ala., wired that the crop conditions were going backward, owing to the absence of rains, and that very little cotton is up. In that section of the state cotton chopping is generally finished about May 15.

Niel estimated the consumption of cotton for the current year at 14,750,000 bales. He said a crop under 15,000,000 bales would warrant higher prices.

Conditions of the crop in Georgia must be pretty bad if the replies received by a New York firm from correspondents in the State are true. Following is the condition of the crop in some of the large producing counties:

Richland—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition poor, no stand. Zebulon—Crop 95 per cent planted; condition bad, too dry. Chiple—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition, very little up. Madison—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition good; dry. Covington—Crop 60 per cent planted; condition fair. Lawrenceville—Crop 80 per cent planted; condition 75 per cent. Jackson—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition fair. Danville—Crop 100 per cent planted; condition, dry weather has prevented its coming up; considerable complaint of the plant already from cool weather. Madison—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition one week backward. Winder—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition 80 per cent; ground very dry and cloudy and look for very poor stand. Bartow—Crop 80 per cent planted; condition very little up; very dry. Chauncey—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition scarcely any cotton up in Georgia at this date. Grantville—Crop 95 per cent planted; condition, none up and will not come until it rains. McRae—Crop 50 per cent planted; condition, very poor stand; much to be planted; seed scarce. Lyons—Crop 60 per cent planted; condition very bad; awfully dry; 50 per cent of seed planted is lost; getting seed to replant all is impossible here. Rochelle—Crop 98 per cent planted; condition good.

Mitchell, O'Connor, Starr, Waters, McGhee, Schantz, Rothschild and Wilson were the leading buyers to-day on the opening. Wiggins, Ingersoll, Flinn, Newman, Hentz and Rait were the best sellers.

* * *

Absence of rains gave rise to good buying on the opening, spot houses being among the best buyers; also shorts, who apparently centered their attention on July option.

Mitchell and McGhee were heavy bidders for July.

Dallas wires: "Some rains in the Panhandle; clear and pleasant elsewhere. Oklahoma clear and cool."

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map is favorable. It shows partly cloudy in the northern half of the belt and in the Atlantics; generally fair elsewhere. There was no rain except at Amarillo, in Northwest Texas. Temperatures are above normal. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, probably unsettled weather, with scattered showers in the northern half of the belt and cooler.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "Needed good general rains have not yet fallen in the Atlantics, consequently the cotton contract reflected marked steadiness yesterday. Heavier spot sales in the Southern markets seemed to suggest that actual cotton owners were taking advantage of the contract steadiness. The new crop position commands concentrated attention at this particular time. The talent as a whole has been forced to admit that the early start, heralded far and wide, has been lost.

"Bulls now claim that the start has dropped behind the normal. Bears hope the start is no later than the normal. In any case, the burden of the proof, insofar as the start is concerned, rests on the shoulders of the big crop people. This, of course, gives the moderate crop fraternity a current advantage, and they are making capital of it by exploiting many adverse reports from the fields, covering the necessity for replanting due to rotting seed and to cool nights. In all of which, continued dry weather in the Atlantics is playing a mildly spectacular role.

"It by no means follows that the size of the ultimate outturn is to be curtailed by the loss of the early start. Replanted fields, encountering favorable weather, may pile up a monster yield. But every adverse development at the inception of the crop creates a liability that must be liquidated by superfavorable conditions later on. Meanwhile, the market is working along conservative lines, and the talent is keeping a close watch on the May position since the fate of the present spot month will serve as a pretty safe guide to what is to follow in July. Yesterday a small short interest in May New Orleans was covered by the broker himself, rather than bid the market up to the point where somebody would sell in the hope of making a profit."

Montgomery, Ala., wires: "Several reports from Alabama and Georgia to-day state the crop outlook is very discouraging, especially in the northern portion. Stands are good and the plant healthy.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The weather will be warm, with showers to-night or Saturday in the Ohio Valley, the lower Lake region and the Middle Atlantic States. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi River the weather will be generally fair. It will continue cool in the Lake region and will be cooler from the Ohio Valley eastward and northeastward.

General forecast until 7 p. m. Saturday:

Georgia—Fair to-night and Saturday.

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The market was firm this morning; first sales 2 to 3 points over last night's closing bids. There was fair buying of July, supposedly for refiners. Local shorts also were buyers. Market continues small, reflecting lack of outside demand. Offerings light.

STOCKS INACTIVE ENTIRE SESSION

By CHARLES W. STORM.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Selling pressure was exerted upon the list at the opening of the stock market to-day and most of the issues sustained declines. Some of the stocks which opened higher either lost all their advance or part of it. Canadian Pacific, which opened 5% lower, had increased its decline to 1½ within a half hour.

Traders held that the passage of the Underwood tariff bill by the House last night was a depressing factor.

Among the other declines were Amalgamated Copper ⅝, United States Steel common ⅝, Lehigh Valley ⅝, Atchison ⅛, Pennsylvania ⅛, Chesapeake and Ohio ⅜, Erie ⅛, California Petroleum ¼.

The specialties were the only group showing strength. American Beet Sugar advanced ⅝. Chino Copper was up ⅛, while Consolidated Gas rose ⅛.

Union Pacific opened ¼ higher, but soon lost its gain and declined ¼. Southern Pacific was ⅜ higher at first, but sold off. Reading began ⅜ higher, but lost its gain and declined.

The curb market was dull.

Americans in London were barely steady.

The market during the forenoon was generally higher. Amalgamated Copper at 85⅛ was up ⅜. Southern Pacific gained ⅜ at 96. Lehigh Valley, United Copper and Steel were up ⅛, Canadian Pacific and Gas were up. The tone in the late forenoon was firm.

Call money loaned at 2½.

Price of Cotton Now Is 11.6 Cents

Government Says Producers Get Less Now Than in 1910 and 1911, More Than in 1912.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A slight increase over a year ago, but a considerable decrease when compared with 1910 and 1911, is reported in the price of cotton, according to figures given out to-day by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Agriculture.

The prices received by the producers as reported by the Department's agents were as follows: May 1, 1913, 11.6c; April 1, 1913, 11.8c; May 1, 1912, 10.9c; May 1, 1911, 14.2c; May 1, 1910, 14c.

The general average of prices received for staple crops increased 2.3 per cent from April 1 to May 1. The increase in the same period of last year was 8.4 per cent. On May 1 the prices of staple crops averaged about 20.1 per cent lower than on like date of 1912.

April 16, prices of meat animals were 16.7 per cent higher than a year ago; 26.6 per cent higher than two years ago and 5.1 per cent higher than three years ago. Corn brought 56c May 1 this year and 53c in 1912; wheat 89c in 1913 and 79.1c in 1912; butter 27c in 1913, 27.6c in 1912; eggs 16.1c in 1913, 16.4c in 1912.

Hogs brought $7.93 a hundred May 1, 1913, and $7.62 May 1, 1912; beef cattle $6.08 in 1913; $5.88 in 1912; calves $7.39 in 1913; $7.49 in 1912; lambs $6.59 in 1913; $6.56 in 1912.

Grain Elevators in Trust, U. S. Is Told

Chicago Exchange, Offers This Defense Answering Sherman Suit by Government.

CHICAGO, May 9.—That a grain elevator trust, composed of five men, so nearly controls the shipments of grain into Chicago that the call price rule was adopted in self-defense is the answer of the Board of Trade to the Government's anti-trust suit. The suit was filed in February, charging the board with violations of the Sherman law.

The answer asserts that when the call price rule, which forbids board members trading outside exchange hours except at the last board quotation, was adopted five grain elevator owners—not named in the answer—threatened to secure a gigantic monopoly in grain.

The rule prevented their doing it.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Wheat was stronger this morning on small offerings in the pit, coupled with some fair buying by the larger commission concerns.

Cables were lower on the construction placed upon the Government May report, which was made public in the Old World late yesterday. Northwestern receipts were larger than a year ago, while the Argentine shipments were smaller, as was also the Argentine visible.

Liverpool was lower on corn, but prices at Chicago were ¼c to ¾c better.

Oats acted in sympathy with the other grains and ruled strong.

There was a better feeling in hog products, with prices fractionally higher.

Georgian "Want Ad" Tablets Touch the Spot. Try Them if Business Is Run Down

GREAT PUBLIC NOT BITTER TO CORPORATIONS

Dissatisfaction With Business Conditions Exists, but There Is Little Revolutionary Spirit.

By B. C. FORBES.

"If I thought the great body of the American people were as bitter, as hostile to business as many of our legislators I would give up and retire," said one of the country's foremost men of affairs, a man who has built up an important industry, a director in corporations of the first magnitude and the possessor of a large fortune.

* * *

"Do you think the people are as discontented and antagonistic to capital as is often represented—as ugly as Vice President Marshall says they are?" I was asked.

* * *

What do YOU think? Are they? Is it a case of empty vessels making most noise? Or are the majority of American citizens deeply disgusted with the present order of things? Are they on the verge of revolt, as the Vice President alleges? Is widespread revolutionary sentiment cooped up in the average citizen's breast? Is unrest in the United States worse than in other lands? Or is all our fretting and fidgeting, our mania for reform and regulation, our striving after innovations merely part of a world-wide movement toward a fuller measure of democracy?

* * *

These are questions not easy of dogmatic answer. The Hearst publications reach a greater number of Americans than the publications of any other concern in the country, and experience has taught me that they somehow come nearer the heart-beats of the people than any other publications of which I have any knowledge. The readers have a flattering habit of speaking their minds, of voicing approval or disapproval of articles, of taking the writers into their confidence, so to speak. In this way one is able to feel the pulse of the people.

* * *

Hundreds—thousands—of letters come to the business news department—not only from the East, but from the Middle West, the Far West and the South, as what is here written is printed in Hearst newspapers covering virtually the whole Union. Judging by this mass of correspondence from men and women in all ranks of life, there IS a good deal of discontent, of dissatisfaction with existing conditions, of bitterness against corporations, of determination to compel reforms in many directions.

* * *

But of revolutionary, anarchistic sentiment there is extremely little trace.

* * *

Speaking broadly, a great section of the population have the conviction that most ultra-rich capitalists have done things they ought not to have done, and by the doing of which they have taken unfair advantage of the people at large.

* * *

Let me give extracts from some letters received within the last week or two.

* * *

C. H. Burnham, 131 State Street, Boston, writes:

On the strength of the interview given out by Jacob H. Schiff just before Mr. Harriman died—declaring Mr. Harriman was practically a well man—I bought Union Pacific, as at that time I believed Mr. Schiff, and it cost me a good many hundred dollars.

What do you think when Major Higginson comes out in an interview and says there is nothing the matter with the New Haven Railroad?

What is the answer, after reading what is going on before Commissioner Prouty?

* * *

From Corning, N. Y., "A Railroader on the Erie," criticising my articles on railroad subjects, writes:

Railroad managers and owners are nothing more or less than straight-and down thieves, robbing the public. They never tell how much they make. But anybody who becomes a railroad manager becomes a millionaire in a few years. They find fault about giving a few cents extra in wages to their men. But such as President Baer, the head of the coal trust, pays $100,000 for a private car. When such things as this are done it only makes you appear ridiculous in the articles you publish in favor of railroad robbers.

It is not my intention to-day to discuss the reasonableness or unreasonableness of hostility to corporations and capitalists, but only to indicate what the temper of a large section of the public really is. The subject will be worth considering again.

GREEK STARTS TO 'WAR;' THINKS SHRINERS TURKS

PENSACOLA, FLA., May 9.—Mistaking a body of Shriners, in their Oriental garb, for a company of Turkish soldiers, a Pensacola Greek went to a hardware store and purchased two automatic revolvers, saying he intended to "kill the Turks." The police explained to him that they were Shriners, not Turks. The company stopped here en route from Indianapolis to the Dallas conclave.

PRAY FOR MORE CHILDREN; STORK BRINGS TRIPLETS

NEW YORK, May 9.—The prayers of Lewis and Rebecca Isler were granted to-day when the stork brought them triplets. Since last January when their four children were burned to death in a fire which destroyed their home the Islers had offered up daily prayers for more children.

BEARISH BUREAU REPORT HAS LITTLE OR NO EFFECT

CHICAGO, May 9.—The Inter-Ocean says:

"Wheat traders while putting a bearish construction on the government report did not take it seriously. Some traders regarded the report as having been discounted by the recent decline of 5c. Bulls said they expect to see a continued good export business on every decline, and believe the market heavily oversold and in a position to be easily rallied.

"Those who were bullish on corn believe that there will be no great pressure of receipts for a week or ten days, or until after corn planting is finished. It was intimated that some of the heaviest sellers of late winter were on the buying side for the past few days.

"Oats specialists are inclined to go slow on the selling side until there are more satisfactory reports in regard to the crop from Central Illinois."

POULTRY, PET and LIVE STOCK

Defects in Combs Of Chickens Often Mar Beauty of Fowls

Should Exercise Great Care in Breeding—Value by Judges.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

The pea comb is a triple comb, or a series of three straight combs paralleling each other, and joined to each other at the base, each having small but distinct serreations throughout their length. The two outer rows being lower and thinner than the center one, the points formed in this way being so low and broad that they resemble rows of peas, hence the name given them. This comb should fit close and solid upon the head, rather than to stand up from the head and incline to turn from side to side.

The breeds having this comb are the Brahmas, Buckeyes, all the Cornish and Sumatra. The most common defect in these combs is the twisting from side to side near the middle. In other words, it is a kink in all three of the rows of points and makes the comb decidedly out of line when viewed from in front.

Another kind of comb that is often seen in one where the middle part of the combs show all right and is good shape in itself, but the sides are very faintly outlined and would almost be taken for a single comb at first sight. In mating up such stock for breeding purposes one is very likely to get some single combs and then the trouble has commenced.

The V comb is a very peculiar one and looks much like a pair of horns standing up from the center of the head. They show but very slightly upon the heads of the hens. On the well matured males it shows up all right. The comb in these breeds is, however, not considered a valuable asset, so that the smaller it is the better it is liked.

Value by Judges.

The comb is only valued at 4 points out of the 100. The breeds having this form of comb are as follows: All the Polish (which are eight varieties), the Houdans, Crevecoeurs, and LaFleche, French varieties.

Then we have the Malay and the Silkie, with the strawberry comb, which is not very much of a definite comb and is found only upon these two breeds of relatively small importance. The comb is really of more importance than is generally considered as a distinguishing feature of the breed or variety it represents. Take, for example, the Light Brahma, the variety which stands at the head of our list of thoroughbred fowls for recognized type in breeding and put a sort of mongrel type of comb upon it and what would it be worth? Or the Plymouth Rock and put a wrinkled turn-over sort of a comb upon it and a Rock man would simply laugh at you and want to know what it was mixed with.

It frequently occurs, however, that some of the larger combed hens of a variety are the heaviest layers. That is, they may have a comb almost too heavy for the breed, although of the right type, and be greatest layers of the flock.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall:—Is it a good plan to breed pullets back to their sire? Some tell me it is just the thing to do, while others say it is detrimental to health. I would be very glad to have your opinion of it.

Monroe, Ga. S. J. R.

ANSWER:—While expert breeders of long experience take the chances of weakened vitality in the offspring for the sake of gaining some valuable points they have been striving hard for, yet, as a rule, it is not good policy to make a business of it. Unless you are sure you are going to be able to intensify a number of good qualities in the next generation, you had better not take the risk of multiplying a lot of serious defects.

You see, it is close inbreeding and is not a good policy for those who are not working for the very highest in type to undertake or run the risk of for health's sake. Of course, it is better to breed that way than to breed brother and sister together.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

W. G. Raoul Property To Be Put on Market

Ten Lots Facing Piedmont Park. Druid Hills Sale—Improvements on Peachtree Road.

Ten lots in the estate of the late William G. Raoul, facing Piedmont Park, will be sold at private sale by the Forrest & George Adair real estate agency, according to announcement made to-day. The property was carefully assembled by Captain Raoul through a long period of years and this is the first time it has been offered for sale. The lots are on the west side of Piedmont Avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets. Several of them taken together were offered two years ago as a site for the State's executive mansion. The frontages are from 60 to 70 feet and the depths 150 to 200 feet.

Greenwood Avenue Sale.

Eugene S. Kelly has bought through his concern, the Charles P. Glover Realty Company, a residence lot on Greenwood Avenue, between Highland Avenue and Briarcliff Road, just west of Druid Hills, for $11,500. This lot is 305 by 169 feet. It was bought for investment from a client of the Glover agency.

Meetings at City Hall.

People who are working for a regrade of Whitehall and West Peachtree Streets are meeting this afternoon with the streets committee of Council at the City Hall, to urge improvements on their thoroughfares. The Whitehall Street matter is expected to be settled at this conference, and the West Peachtree question will be taken up later.

Foundry Street Purchase.

Mrs. Bertha Kline has bought through J. H. Ewing, of the Smith & Ewing real estate agency, a 40 by 100 foot lot on Foundry Street, between Elliott and Mangum Streets, for $2,250. A small house is on this property. The seller was L. M. Anderson.

Sale on Piedmont Road.

Deeds have gone to record in the sale March 6 of a large building lot at the northwest corner of Piedmont and Ivy Roads, from Claude E. Buchanan to Wesley Hirshburg, for $6,875. This lot is west of the William J. Stoddard place and in the neighborhood of other fine residences.

A bond for title has also gone to record in the sale March 31 of a 70 by 60 foot lot on Whitehall, near West Fair Street, to Nathan Wolfe by A. D. Greenfield, for $6,500.

Real Estate Activity.

An increase in different realty transfers as set forth in The Fulton County Daily Report shows the tendency of real estate to assume its normal aspect in the market. To-day's issue of this publication contained seventeen bond for title items and 32 warranty deed items, and led several real estate men to remark that the number was the best and most complete that The Report has ever issued.

Big Deals Coming.

Several important real estate deals are in the contract stage and should be announced early next week. One of these involves approximately $100,000 and there are a number of smaller figures.

Road Work at Buckhead.

County convicts are working fast to complete improvements on Peachtree Road, anticipating increased traffic which will come about June 1, when the Capital City Club takes charge of its country club at Brookhaven. The right-hand side of Peachtree Road, starting at Buckhead, has been macadamized nearly as far north as W. S. Witham's estate, and only awaits the steam roller to be put in good shape. Space between the car tracks has been taken on this northward trudge of the convicts. The work will proceed to the DeKalb County line and then the gang will turn back toward Buckhead.

County Commissioners are well satisfied with the work and predict that Peachtree Road will be in very good shape when Capital City golfers take their sticks to Brookhaven.

To Widen Roswell Road.

The proposition of widening the Roswell Road from Buckhead to Piedmont Road (formerly Plaster Bridge Road) has been revived. A year or two ago this matter was agitated. All property owners except one agreed to give 10 to 20 feet, and the opposition of the single owner blocked the project. Now E. T. Luckie, of the Holmes & Luckie Realty Company, has taken up the matter again, and he expresses confidence in the outcome. Mr. Luckie's idea is to lay out the Roswell Road so that whenever the demand is great enough on the part of the people along the route, a car line can be built to Roswell. Either this or the street car company can leave the wide thoroughfare to vehicular traffic and establish a private right-of-way close by.

If You Are in Debt, You Are a Fly Glued to the Flypaper.

The More You Struggle, the Tighter You Stick. Soon Your Courage Is Gone and You Are a Dead Fly.

Copyright, 1913.

The picture at the top of this page is a picture for more than half of all the people in this country.

More than half the people are in debt—that is to say, they are living beyond their means, or they are spending every cent.

And the man who is spending every cent he gets is actually in debt and running in debt, for he is running in debt TO HIS OLD AGE, when he won't be able to make, and won't be able to spend, and when the spending of to-day means debt later.

Those that are in debt know what debt is. There is no need to tell them about it.

First you owe $50 if you are a little man, or $50,000 if you are a big man.

And then you owe $100—or $100,000 if you are big.

For a while you struggle and plan. You are going to pay it off soon. It is a good thing to use "O P M," that is to say, other people's money, in the effort to get ahead.

You tell yourself that all the big men have used their credit and borrowed and gone ahead rapidly.

It all sounds very nice and plausible.

But remember that YOU KEEP GETTING IN DEEPER.

The fly lights on the fly paper, perhaps with only one leg at first. He says this is nothing, and puts down the other leg to push himself off.

AND THEN HE IS STUCK FAST.

And then he says to himself: "I will fly away from this fly paper," so he begins flapping his wings. And both of his wings stick to the paper.

There he is with his feet stuck and his wings stuck and only his head free.

That fly feels about as independent and hearty as you do if you are in debt. And he says: "I can get off of this paper easily enough when I get ready. I'll just put my head down and push myself off."

He buzzes for a while. THEN HE PUTS HIS HEAD DOWN ON THE FLY PAPER, TO PUSH HIMSELF OFF.

Then his head sticks tight; he begins to choke.

By and by he rolls over on his side, he sinks into the sticky surface—AND THERE IS ANOTHER DEAD FLY.

So it is with men in debt. So it will be with you if you stay in debt.

The only hope for the fly, the moment he feels one foot on the fly paper, is to use those wings and fly away, not putting in the other foot; flying off as quickly as he can.

And a million times wiser and better is the occasional rare fly, who sees the other flies sticking to the fly paper and says: "I don't like the look of those flies; I'll stay away from them."

Look at the people in debt. See their worry. See the anxiety of the mother, reflected in the children.

See the lack of standing, the extravagance and the poverty mixed together.

You can't mistake the human fly stuck on the fly paper of debt.

Since you cannot mistake him, why not keep away from that fly paper?

Debt makes everything worthless.

If you owe a thousand dollars, it seems rather foolish to save ten or twenty.

You feel that you might as well spend it; it won't make any difference.

And so it goes, if you owe two thousand. And then it isn't worth while to save twenty or forty.

And you become a failure. You put down your feet, and then your wings, AND THEN YOUR HEAD, WHICH IS AMBITION, and by and by you roll over and you are a dead fly.

Keep out of debt.

Congratulations We Do Not Want

Lord Welby, speaking in London at the annual dinner of the Cobden Club on the prospects of free trade, said that the members might congratulate themselves on President Wilson's new tariff bill. There is the bare truth about what is thought of the bill by the out-and-out free traders of England.

Richard Cobden died in 1865. The population of Great Britain has almost doubled since. Railroads were in their infancy, and it took weeks to cross the Atlantic. Telegraphy had just begun and ocean-spanning cables did not exist. Cobden could never have even dreamed of the cheap and vast transportation systems, by land and sea, of to-day. He could never even have dreamed of the year when the United States would practically consume all the wheat it would grow. He could never even have dreamed of the development of machinery, changing, as it has, the whole face of world-trade.

Yet they did dream in those days. Cobden's associates dreamed and prophesied, too. They prophesied, and loudly, that within fifty years every civilized nation would have adopted free trade, and they were exactly wrong.

It would take many volumes to tell the whole difference between the conditions of the world's business in 1865 and 1913.

There are some congratulations that may be paid for too dearly.

Rivalry in Religion

THE disappearance of sectarian bitterness is one of the most observable facts of to-day. Whatever may be thought of it, no man can regard it possible to check the movement which is breaking down the old denominational antipathies. It is interpreted by many as the best modern evidence that a Heavenly Power is at work in the world. They believe that the Spirit of its Divine Founder is prevailing in Christianity over the human passions of men, and that the gospel of love is at last conquering completely the hearts of those who preach it.

The large front of this movement appears in religious conventions and in the current religious literature. In reiterated proposals of church federation and missionary co-operation not a few religious leaders ardently believe that the amalgamation of denominations in one great inclusive church is not only desirable but inevitable.

Protesting the Movement.

But this rosy view has its checkmate and counter-blast. There are very many—probably at this time the majority of church communicants, who do not view the loss of the sectarian spirit with sympathy. Large numbers of leaders are flung in violent reaction against it. Within each denomination there are organs, and therefore an organization, of protest. A keen eye observes that the internal antagonisms in the different denominations on the subject is really helping on the movement of fraternity as between the denominations themselves by transferring the emphasis of the old conflict between them as sects to mere family disputes.

The question of denominationalism will not be settled wisely in this fashion. There are profound reasons for the existence and maintenance of divergent groups in Christianity. There are many of the best men in each denomination who observe the tendency of the times, feel its power, and are drawn into it, who still stoutly question, if it is not liable to cost the cause of Truth and the energies of religion more than all its compensating amenities can amount to. The man in the street does not see very far into the problem of denominationalism. It appears to him a plague of wicked envies and a useless waste of power.

The Real Values.

Why is it, then, that those inside the churches, as leaders and laymen, who are manifestly consecrated men of the finest good sense, are strong in their support of separate denominations, especially their own? It is because they know the real value of denominationalism. It is not a narrow sectarian meanness on their part. They lend no encouragement to theological strife and religious bad feeling. They lament the wounds which persecution and bigotry have made and would make again. But they know that after all there are convictions of religious truth worth fighting for, and that the great loyalties of conscience have been the levers of salvation for the human race. As students of church history, they know that the stubborn quality of soul, the heroic mold of character and the magnificent manhood which have fallen out of that history, are not to be lightly set aside or interpreted apart from the great competitions of religion in which they were generated.

New Denominationalism.

So the rapidly evaporating sectarianism of our time, if full of promise, is full of peril also. It is our task to provide a relation of religious groups to each other and toward their common cause which will conserve consecration and aggressiveness, while at the same time it encourages their basal fellowship.

I believe it can be done and that it will be done.

As Christianity stands to-day, the demand for an arrangement of its group forces in a provoking attitude toward each other, but with the supreme objective clear enough to cure the evils of sectarianism. The suggestion for a "New Denominationalism" is offered therefore as a substitute for the tendency toward "No Denominationalism." It is that the theological quarrel shall be subordinated to the logical contest of religious groups engaged constructively for the kingdom of God on earth. It should appeal to anyone that the rivalry of creeds giving way to the rivalry of deeds will be infinitely better than the mere subsidence of all rivalry which is threatened.

STATE URGED TO STERILIZE INSANE AND AID YOUNG

Striking new methods of handling patients in the Georgia State Sanitarium at Milledgeville are urged in the annual report of the board of directors, submitted to Governor Brown Friday. The most important recommendations are:

The enactment of a sterilization law, applying to certain classes of criminal and defectives, modeled after recently enacted laws of New Jersey and Indiana.

A ban on the commitment of epileptics (not insane), feebleminded children, harmless seniles and paralytics and persons escaping trial by pleas of lunacy. This is a hospital and not a prison.

The report declares that poor results have been obtained at the institution in the cure of insanity on account of the crowded conditions and the lack of facilities for segregating and treating the curable cases apart from the criminal and hopelessly insane. A psycophatic hospital is urged.

No Provision for Children.

"No provision is made in our State educational system for the care and treatment of feeble minded children," states the report. "Most of them are capable of training that will aid in their happiness and fit them for some usefulness. Only the grosser types are committed to the State Sanitarium, while the great majority are allowed to grow up without care.

"Further commitment with the insane should be stopped and some adequate provision made by the State for these children."

The report criticises the present system of confining epileptics not insane in the sanitarium, pointing out that association with crazy persons tends to hopelessly depress them and also has a bad effect on the insane persons. A hospital for epileptics is recommended; and it is suggested that it should be named for T. O. Powell because of the great service he has rendered the State along such lines.

MINNEAPOLIS, May 9.—"I want to plough, clean house, make hay and drive binders in the field," says Grace Simpson in her application to the Devils Lake Commercial Club for a chance to do the same work on a farm as a man would.

"The day is past when it is out of the ordinary for a girl to labor at men's work," Miss Simpson asserted. "I love horses and I am sure that I can take just as good care of them as any man. The city work would kill me in the summer time. I can beat some men at their own jobs at that. If I can get as good wages in the country as I can get here I shall leave immediately."

Hobble Blamed for Arson Trust's Origin

Merchants, Unable to Sell Old Styles, Called on Firebugs to Destroy Worthless Stocks.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Changes in styles which rendered worthless thousands of dollars' worth of stock in women's clothes was one of the factors that fostered the arson trust, according to Assistant State's Attorney Frank Johnson.

Dealers, finding themselves stocked with clothing that could not be sold when women decided to wear tight skirts, called the torch men into help, Johnson asserted.

SENATE BEGINS CONSIDERATION OF TARIFF BILL

Received From House and Referred—Hearings Are Secret. Expect Vote in Nine Weeks.

ANTICIPATE MANY CHANGES

Democrats Rejoice as Representatives Pass Underwood Measure by Vote of 281 to 139.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Shortly after the Senate convened to-day the Underwood tariff bill was brought over from the House, read and referred to the Finance Committee.

In the Finance Committee the schedule was assigned to sub-committee No. 1, composed of Senators Stone, Thomas, James and Simmons, and the wool schedule to No. 2—Senators Williams, Shively, Gore and Simmons. The remaining schedules were divided equally between subcommittees 1, 2 and 3.

Hearings on the bill will be behind closed doors, the Democrats having decided that public hearings would consume too much time. It is expected that three weeks will be used by the committee in considering the measures, and six weeks more in debate on the floor.

It also is considered certain that a number of changes will be made in the measure, necessitating its reference to the conference of the House and Senate members.

On the final test in the House last night the vote was 281 to 139, five Democrats voting against the bill and two Republicans voting for it. Four Progressives supported the bill and fourteen opposed it, while one Independent Progressive joined with the majority.

When Speaker Clark announced the vote in loud tones that revealed his satisfaction exhuberant Democrats hoisted a stuffed Democratic donkey over the heads of their colleagues in the rear of the chamber, a ripple of applause followed and the gavel fell on the first chapter in the history of President Wilson's extra session of Congress.

With the bill on its way to the Senate, there was a rush of Representatives for their homes. In the House adjournment will be taken three days at a time beginning next week until June 1.

NEW EVIDENCE SOUGHT

Grand Jury May Act Saturday

'I Expected To Be Held'--Frank

Solicitor Calls Witness to Give Depositions—Hastens to Prepare State's Testimony.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey, as his first action after the holding of Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee to the grand jury for the murder of Mary Phagan, put out the dragnet for witnesses.

A batch of subpenas were issued for the witnesses to appear in his office to give testimony in the case of "The State vs. John Doe."

After a long conference with Detectives Starnes and Campbell, Solicitor Dorsey asserted that action on the part of the grand jury might be expected any time after Friday. He plainly intimated that a special session of the jury might be convened Saturday to consider the Phagan murder.

Miss Nellie Pettis, at top, who testified against Frank at the inquest. At the bottom, Mrs. Lillie Pettis, her sister-in-aw, former employee at the pencil factory.

The Solicitor declared as he left the court house with a private detective whose name he refused to divulge that he anticipated the development of startling evidence before night, which, he said, would clear matters materially.

With the private detective the Solicitor went to the Tower and was closeted with Newt Lee, the night watchman, for more than an hour.

The form of the subpena is taken to mean that many of the witnesses will submit their sworn testimony before the Solicitor General, who will thus have it in documentary form, instead of going before the Grand Jury to give oral testimony. However, it will be necessary for the material or indicting witnesses to go before the Grand Jurors in person.

Lemmie Quinn, foreman in the tipping department at the National Pencil factory, was the first of the witnesses to be examined by the Solicitor. He was in Mr. Dorsey's office a considerable part of the forenoon and underwent a rigorous examination.

New Witnesses Sought.

Detectives Starnes and Campbell also were with the Solicitor, and two of the Solicitor's assistants, Newton Garner and Dan Goodlin, were dispatched the first thing in the morning to hunt up new witnesses of whom Mr. Dorsey had information.

Foreman Quinn was called, it is understood, to clear up the discrepancies in his testimony and the statement he is said to have made to the

'CURE' DOUBTED BY U. S. EXPERTS

Results of Friedmann Treatment Do Not Justify Confidence, Health Board Reports.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—"Effects of the Friedmann cure thus far observed do not justify the confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by well-meant publicity."

This is the crux of an official statement from the board of examiners of the public health service, delivered by Dr. John F. Anderson before the American Congress of Physicians and Surgeons in Washington to-day.

Dr. Anderson said harm may have been done by undue publicity in lessening the confidence of tuberculosis victims in well-recognized methods of treatment.

With respect to the patients under examination in New York, he said many have developed no considerable infiltrate at all and have not suffered from abscess formations. This would indicate that they must be under treatment a long time to effect a cure, as Dr. Friedmann stated that infiltrate and abscess formations indicated more or less rapid progress toward cure.

detectives and to several of his acquaintances. In his testimony before the Coroner's jury he declared that he visited the factory between 12:10 and 12:30 o'clock, the afternoon of the killing of Mary Phagan. He said he talked with Frank for two minutes in the superintendent's office.

Detectives declared that Quinn had told them and other persons that he did not visit the factory at all Saturday and that he was not there from the time he left Friday until the following Monday.

Frank Expected To Be Held.

"That's about what I expected at this time," was the comment with which Leo M. Frank, with little trace of emotion, received the news of the action of the Coroner's jury Thursday night.

Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor was the officer who informed both Frank and Newt Lee that the jury had recommended that they be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

The night watchman received the news indifferently and had nothing to say.

Frank and Lee are held under charges of murder, as the following verdict of the Coroner's jury will show:

Atlanta, Ga., May 8, 1913.

We, the Coroner's jury, impaneled and sworn by Paul Donehoo, Coroner of Fulton County, to inquire into the cause of the death of Mary Phagan, whose dead body now lies before us, after having heard the evidence of sworn witnesses, and the statement of Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, find that the deceased came to her death from strangulation. We recommend that Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

(Signed)

HOMER C. ASHFORD, Foreman.
DR. J. W. HURT, County Physician.

Solicitor Dorsey said Friday he would give the Phagan case all of his attention and present his evidence to the Grand Jury as quickly as possible.

The solicitor has shown an anxiety to avoid delays of any nature in hunting down the slayer of the Phagan girl, and now that the Coroner's jury has turned the case over to the Solicitor and the Grand Jury it may be taken for granted that the investigation will be hurried along with all possible speed.

Case in State's Hands.

"The case now is fully in the hands of the State," said the Solicitor Friday morning. "It will not be presented to the Grand Jury Friday, but I shall endeavor to present it at the earliest possible moment. The instant that I have a complete case I shall bring it to the attention of the Grand Jury. It is my desire to bring the slayer of Mary Phagan to justice with the greatest dispatch. A great crime has been done and I am no less eager to see the guilt determined than the general public."

It required the Coroner's jury about twenty minutes to frame its formal verdict Thursday night. The jurors received a brief charge from Coroner Donehoo and filed from the Commissioners' room in the police station at 6:08 o'clock. At 6:28 they were back with their verdict.

Coroner Donehoo admonished the jurors to be as ready to hold a person who they thought might be withholding information of the crime as to hold a person they regarded as the possible culprit. A person possessing knowledge of the crime and withholding it, he said, was an accessory after the fact.

An immediate hush fell on the packed room when the jurors returned. There was a dead silence except for the voice of Homer C. Ashford, foreman of the jury, when the verdict was read.

Girls Testify Against Frank.

The most damaging testimony against Frank in regard to his treatment of employees at his factory was saved until the last hours of the hearing. Girls and women were called to the stand to testify that they had been employed at the factory or had had occasion to go there, and that Frank had attempted familiarities with them.

Nellie Pettis, of 9 Oliver Street, declared that Frank had made improper advances to her. She was asked if she ever had been employed at the pencil factory.

"No," she answered.

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I have seen him once or twice."

Q. When and where did you see him?—A. In his office at the factory whenever I went to draw my sister-in-law's pay.

Q. What did he say to you that might have been improper on any of these visits?—A. He didn't exactly say—he made gestures. I went to get sister's pay about four weeks ago and when I went into the office of Mr. Frank I asked for her. He told me I couldn't see her unless "I saw him first."

Says He Winked at Her.

"I told him I didn't want to 'see him.' He pulled a box from his desk. It had a lot of money in it. He looked at it significantly and then looked at me. When he looked at me he winked. As he winked he said: 'How about it?'

"I instantly told him I was a nice girl."

Here the witness stopped her statement. Coroner Donehoo asked her sharply:

"Didn't you say anything else?"

"Yes, I did! I told him to go to h—l! and walked out of his office."

Thomas Blackstock, who said that he was employed at the factory about a year ago testified as follows:

Tells of Frank's Conduct.

Q. Do you know Leo M. Frank?—A. Yes.

Q. How long have you known him?—A. About six weeks.

Q. Did you ever observe his conduct toward female employees of the pencil factory?—A. Yes. I've often seen him picking on different girls.

Q. Name some.—A. I can't exactly recollect names.

Q. What was the conduct you noticed particularly?

The witness answered to the effect that he had seen him place his hands with undue familiarity upon the person of girls.

Q. See it often?—A. A half dozen times, maybe. He generally was seen to become that familiar while he was touring the building.

Q. Can't you name just one girl?—A. Yes. Magnolia Kennedy.

Q. Did you see him act with undue familiarity toward her?—A. No. I heard talk about it.

Q. Before or after the murder?—A. Afterward.

"Girls Tried to Avoid Him."

Q. When did you observe this misconduct of which you have told?—A. A year ago.

Q. Did you hear complaints around the plant?—A. No. The girls tried to avoid him.

Mrs. C. D. Donegan said she was connected with the pencil plant for three weeks. Her capacity was that of forelady. She resides at 165 West Fourteenth Street with her husband.

Her testimony follows:

"State your observations of Frank's conduct toward the girls and women of the plant."

"I have noticed him smile and wink at the girls in the place. That was two years ago."

"Did you make a statement to the detectives of undue familiarity you had witnessed?"

"I told them that I had seen Frank flirt with the girls and women—that was all I said."

Charges Familiarities.

The testimony of Nellie Wood, a young girl of 8 Corput Street, came next.

In brief it was this:

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I worked for him two days.

Q. Did you observe any misconduct on his part?—A. Well, his actions didn't suit me. He'd come around and put his hands on me when such conduct was entirely uncalled for.

Q. Is that all he did?—A. No. He asked me one day to come into his office, saying that he wanted to talk to me. He tried to close the door, but I wouldn't let him. He got too familiar by getting so close to me. He also put his hands on me.

Q. Where did he put his hands?—A. He barely touched my breast. He was subtle with his approaches, and tried to pretend that he was joking, but I was too wary for such as that.

Quit His Employ.

Q. Did he try further familiarities?—A. Yes.

Q. When did this happen?—A. Two years ago.

Q. What did you tell him when you left his employ?—A. I just quit, telling him that it didn't suit me.

Frank's testimony was looked forward to with keen interest, but when he was called to the stand in the afternoon, he merely answered additional questions as to his movements on the day of the crime and failed to add materially to the evidence in hand.

He appeared pale and haggard from his imprisonment, but he replied to all of the questions clearly and showed no hesitation or apparent fear. He was asked:

Testimony of Frank.

Q. What kind of elevator door is there to the shaft in the pencil factory?—A. Sliding doors.

Q. How many?—A. One on each floor.

Q. Are they latticed or solid?—A. Solid.

Q. Where was the elevator at 12 o'clock Saturday?—A. I did not notice.

Q. Were the doors open or closed?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What protection would a person have from falling down the shaft if the doors were left open?—A. A bar which projects across the opening.

Q. After the crime was committed, where did the elevator stand?—A. I only know where it stood Sunday morning. It then was on the second floor.

Didn't File Time Tape.

Q. When you last removed the tape from the time clock, what did you do with it?—A. Handed it to an officer in the building.

Q. Did you put it on file?—A. No.

Q. Are you sure?—A. Yes, positive.

Q. Do you remember a party at your house on the night of April 26?—A. Yes.

Q. Can you name the guests?—A. I don't remember them all.

Q. When the police came to bring you down to the factory that Sunday morning, what was said about whisky?—A. I said I wanted something warm to drink. One of the detectives suggested whisky.

Q. What time was it?—A. Between 7:30 and 8 o'clock.

Says He Viewed Body.

Q. What did you say about dreaming?—A. I said to someone that I thought I had dreamed of hearing the telephone ring in the dead of night.

Q. When you went to the undertakers', did you go in the water closet instead of the room in which the body lay?—A. No.

Q. Did you view the body?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you recognize the girl—A. Yes.

Q. When did you first hear her name?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What time did you return home that Sunday afternoon?—A. I don't recollect.

Q. Did you telephone your wife before your return?—A. Yes.

Q. Was the murder discussed at home that afternoon?—A. Not much.

Q. What topic was discussed.—A. I don't remember.

Often Does Not Remember.

Q. When did Quinn first mention to you his visit to the factory on the 26th?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What did he say?—A. He said, "Don't you recollect that I was at the factory Saturday about noon?"

Buy Diamonds Before the New Tariff Advances Prices

Under the old tariff no duty was levied on uncut or "rough" diamonds. Only 10 per cent duty was paid on cut or polished diamonds.

The Democratic caucus has but just recently recommended a 20 per cent duty on polished diamonds and 10 per cent on the rough. This new rate will no doubt become effective within the next two or three months.

In addition to this, the big diamond syndicate has raised prices to the cutters since January $15 to $30 per carat.

This means an advance in the retail market within the next four to six months ranging from $15 to $60 a carat—according to grades and sizes.

Buy a diamond now on attractive monthly payments and save the advance. Our booklet, "Facts About Diamonds," quotes lowest net prices and gives full particulars regarding our liberal plans.

Atlanta Ready for Presbyterians

5,000 Visitors for Assemblies

Noted Speakers on the Programs

REV. THOMAS STONE CLYCE, moderator of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, 1912, who will be one of the prominent visitors in Atlanta next week. Dr. Clyce is president of Austin College at Sherman, Texas.

Consolidation of Four Branches To Be Considered in Gathering Here Next Week.

Preparations are virtually completed to-day for the great Presbyterian convention to be held in Atlanta beginning May 15. For the first time in the history of Presbyterianism in America representatives from its four branches will gather in joint assembly.

From May 15 to May 22 more than 5,000 visiting Presbyterians will be the city's guests. Of this number 1,500 will be regularly appointed commissioners, constituting the largest religious assemblage ever held in the South. More than 700 representatives of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., or Northern Division, 500 from the Presbyterian Church, U. S., or Southern Division; 300 from the United Presbyterian and 25 special representatives from the Associate Reformed Churches will comprise the assemblies.

Atlanta has thrown open her homes to the visitors, all denominations uniting in entertaining the church representatives who come from every State in the Union, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Panama. A number of prominent churchmen from Canada also are expected. The commissioners are chosen, one-half from the clergy and the other half from the laity.

They constitute the governing body of the church and are selected largely because of their prominence and their activity in church work.

Church Union Considered.

Southern Presbyterians will be especially interested in the discussions looking to a union between the United and the Southern divisions. Two committees were appointed last year, one from each of the branches, to confer on a possible basis of union. Their reports will be submitted. It is said the committees have reached an agreement and it is generally believed that the assemblies will act favorably on their reports. Details of the agreement have not been published, but it is believed that they will prove acceptable to both bodies.

While the Associate Reformed branch of the church will not hold a regular conference here, prominent representatives will be in attendance as special commissioners. Their synod met in December, but it is probable that an adjourned session will be held.

A feature of the meeting here, carrying with it perhaps the most widespread interest, will be a possible effort to unite the Northern and Southern branches of the church. Unorganized endeavor has been made during several years past to bring about the union, but with no further results than that churchmen have been aroused on the subject. The joint meeting here is regarded by representative Presbyterians as a most auspicious occasion for the matter to be thrashed out and a union effected. No such opportunity has ever offered itself, as the assemblies have always met in widely separated cities, at separate times.

Union Seminary Fight.

Of considerable interest, particularly to the Northern branch of the church, will be the effort to bring Union Theological Seminary back into the fold. The sixteen delegates from New York, however, were elected on the pledge that they would fight to maintain the present status of the seminary. Charges of extravagance and usurpation of authority against the Board of Home Missions of the Northern Church will be investigated. Rev. Joseph L. Weaver, D.D., of Rocky Ford, Colo., it is understood, has preferred the charges. Dr. William Fulton, of Philadelphia, is chairman of the investigating committee.

An interesting fight for the place of moderator of the Northern Assembly has developed. The leading candidates are Rev. Dr. Maint-Alexander, of Pittsburg; Rev. Dr. Samuel S. Palmer, of Columbus, Ohio; Rev. Dr. William McKibbin, president of Lane Theological Seminary of Cincinnati, anad Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Hinitt, of Danville, Ky.

Bryan to Speak.

The meeting of the assemblies in Atlanta will bring to the city some of the notable men of the country, prominent not only in church affairs, but national figures also.

United States Senator Hoke Smith will be present Tuesday, May 20, to preside over a meeting for home missions. Some of the most prominent leaders of the Associate Reformed branch of the church will be in attendance upon the assemblies, one of them being Dr. J. H. Pressley, of Statesville, N. C., moderator of the A. R. P. division.

Among the definite arrangements already made are a number of conferences at the various churches of the city. The main sessions will be held at the Baptist Tabernacle and the Auditorium.

A joint fellowship gathering will be held at the Auditorium Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, Rev. R. O. Flinn, of the North Avenue Church of Atlanta, will preside. A welcome address will be delivered by J. K. Orr, an elder of the North Avenue Church, after which fraternal greetings will be extended from the moderators of the four assemblies, Rev. T. S. Clyce, of Texas, for the Southern division; Rev. J. H. Pressley, of North Carolina, for the Associate Reformed Assembly; Rev. Hugh H. Bell, of California, for the United Assembly; Rev. Mark A. Mathews, of Washington State, for the Northern division.

Canadian on Program.

The principal address of the evening will be made by Mr. James McDonald, Ph. D., of The Toronto Globe, Toronto, Canada, on "The Church's Responsibility for International Peace."

Under the direction of Rev. Dunbar Ogden, of Central Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, a union communion service will be held at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Baptist Tabernacle. The moderators of the four assemblies will conduct the service.

Rev. Charles R. Stelzle, of New York, and Marion Jackson, of Atlanta, will be principal speakers at a Christian social service meeting Saturday night at the Auditorium. "Christian Citizenship and the Social Evil" is the subject of Mr. Jackson's address.

GOES TO PREACH REFORM IN JAIL; HELD AS GUN TOTER

COLUMBUS, GA., May 9.—When Jailer Layfield of Muscogee County searched an Atlanta negro minister, who came to the jail to make a reform talk to the prisoners, he found a big loaded pistol in his pocket. The negro was locked up. He will face Judge Gilbert of the Superior Court next week.

REVIVAL SMOOTHS TABERNACLE ROW

Members Who Resigned, Back in Fold, Will Help Call Pastor Wednesday.

The dove of peace has found lodging in the Baptist Tabernacle; all differences have been settled and members who withdrew several weeks ago are back in the fold. The church is ready to call another pastor. The call will be extended at a meeting Wednesday night.

The weeks of spiritual meetings have proven the cure for differences. Dr. Joseph Broughton, brother of the noted founder of the Tabernacle, the Rev. Len G. Broughton, and one of the most prominent members to withdraw, is back. He has been elected associate superintendent of the Sunday school. The other two men who created a sensation by their withdrawal are Clayton Callaway and Harry A. Etherige. Both have returned and are on the committee to nominate a pastor.

Other members of the committee are A. C. Boatman, chairman; Dr. William T. Jones and J. W. Awtry. C. W. Hatcher, chairman of the board of deacons, is an ex-officio member.

"We are really just getting into shape to call a pastor," said C. W. Hatcher to a Georgian reporter Friday. "We have disposed of the infirmary and our finances are in good shape."

Declares Women on Cars Are Brainless

Longfellow's Grandson Much Exercised by What He Terms Their Stupidity.

BOSTON, May 9.—That woman are "brainless" as far as riding on the street car goes, was the declaration of Edmund Trowbridge Dana, grandson of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, social economic investigator, Harvard student and retired street car conductor, in an address before the Boston School of Social Science. He said:

"When it comes to riding on street cars women are the stupidest things imaginable. When you are trying to make up time they are always in the majority and always blundering. Why, they don't seem to have any brains at all."

THOUGHTLESSNESS CAUSES LOSS OF MAIL PACKAGES

Postmaster Hugh McKee asserted Friday that thoughtlessness on the part of people and not carelessness on the part of postal authorities had been responsible for the loss of many mail packages.

"It appears that people, rather than bring a package here to the office to be mailed, will just place it on top of the mail boxes on the streets, if it is too large to go inside," he said.

NAGEL TO PENSION HORSES HE DROVE AS SECRETARY

WASHINGTON, May 9.—When Charles Nagel, of St. Louis, was Secretary of Commerce and Labor in President Taft's Cabinet, a pair of coal-black horses was provided for his use by the Government. These horses, now old, are to be auctioned. "I have a small farm," he said, "and I hope to be able to bid high enough to secure this pair and pension them for life."

SHRINERS OFF TO DALLAS TO CAPTURE MEET FOR ATLANTA

Yaarab Temple Boosters, 200 Strong, Leave Friday Night for Convention---Confident of Success.

I want to again express my appreciation for the assistance of Mr. Hearst and his newspapers throughout the country. If Atlanta gets the 1914 meeting Mr. Hearst and his papers will be largely responsible.—POTENTATE FORREST ADAIR.

"The Imperial Council will meet in Atlanta in 1914. Personally I have no doubt of it. We have hotel accommodations; Memphis has not and we have made a remarkable record in raising a fund of $76,000 in one day that every Shriner in America knows about.

"And we leave to-night for Dallas better equipped to extend an invitation of this kind than any city or Temple that has extended a like invitation in a great number of years."

With this statement Forrest Adair, potentate of Yaarab Temple, announced Friday morning that every detail of the pilgrimage to the convention of the Imperial Council of Shriners at Dallas, Tex., was complete and Atlanta's delegation, nearly 200 strong, would leave in a special train over the Southern Railway at 10 o'clock Friday night.

Reach Dallas Sunday.

Early Sunday morning the Atlanta pilgrims will have crossed the hot sands and entered the Oasis of Dallas. They will go into the city with their coats on their arms, prepared to drown out any discordant note, from Memphis, or anywhere for that matter, with the now familiar slogan:

"Atlanta, 1914."

At Birmingham, Meridian, Shreveport and a score of points along the line, Atlanta boosters will board the train, and go with the delegation to Dallas to swell the total and bring the convention to the Southeast next year.

Mr. Adair and his official delegation, W. A. Foster, John A. Hynds and Claude H. Hutcheson, of Jonesboro, will extend the invitation.

They will be fortified with official invitations from the Mayor and City Council and every trades organization in the city, as well as open contracts from every hotel in Atlanta, assuring accommodations for as many as 4,000 Shriners, the number expected here next year.

No "Holdup" in Rates.

The beauty of the hotel contracts, as explained by Mr. Adair, is that "inauguration rates" will not be charged.

"Only the regular rates," said Mr. Adair, "will be in force, and I have with the contracts a diagram of the floor space indicating the room and the regular rate. They won't be able to go above the rate, even if the hotel men felt inclined to.

"Memphis will not get the convention, because it hasn't got the hotels and the Shriners know it," said Mr. Adair. "They're building one now, but it won't compare with any of the nicer hotels already completed in Atlanta, and as for the best hotels there—Atlanta's got better on the side streets. This alone makes it doubly sure we'll get the convention, but if there's any doubt the size of our delegation removes it."

The Arab Patrol of Yaarab Temple, the crack drum corps, 40 strong, will be a valuable asset of the Atlanta delegation. It is an independent organization formed by the temple for convention work and occasions that demand public appearance. It has attracted much attention at conventions throughout the country.

Members of the Patrol.

The patrol is as follows:

Captain J. O. Seamons, First Lieutenant H. C. Ashford, Second Lieutenant F. E. Van der Veer, First Sergeant C. W. Ferguson, Quartermaster H. H. Milner and Patrolmen Albert Akers, C. E. Barber, J. J. Barnes, Jr., W. D. Benson, F. M. Brotherton, George E. Argard, R. A. Burnett, G. I. Butler, A. B. Chapman, R. E. Church, Frank Cundell, E. E. Cunningham, J. C. Deavours, George Freeman, L. H. Geiger, H. H. Green, J. L. Grice, J. C. Jones, M. E. McGee, M. N. Mixon; T. A. Mixon and R. S. Osborn.

Some unofficial delegates who will go are Fred Houser, J. C. Greenfield, S. L. Dickey, W. R. Joyner, H. G. Martin, J. B. Jacoway, Fred Patterson, Graham Phelan, J. Lee Barnes, Ben Corey, J. F. Carson, Fred Van der Pool, J. F. Waitt, George Beck, Jesse E. Couch and James Kempton.

The delegation will leave Dallas, returning, the evening of May 15 at 8 o'clock and arrive in Atlanta the evening of May 17.

The Atlanta Lodge of Elks has pledged the Shriners its enthusiastic support in the effort to bring the Shrine here next year. Exalted Ruler Dunne has written the Shriners that the Elks' home will be wide open to all visitors if the great meeting comes here.

ITALIANS AID IN STAMPING OUT CRIMINAL ELEMENT

NEW YORK, May 9.—Prominent Italians of this city are banding together to aid the police in stamping out the criminal element among their countrymen. They are already at work searching for Oresto Shillitoni, an Italian suspected of the murder of two policemen last Saturday night.

At their own expense, it is said, they have employed a former member of the police department who has the reputation of knowing more about criminal Italians than any detective in this city.

SHERIFF OF DOOLY DIES FROM BLOW'S BULLETS

VIENNA, GA., May 9.—Sheriff C. I. Bennett, of Dooly County, died early to-day from pistol wounds received Wednesday when he attempted to arrest Oscar Blow for killing P. P. Sangster, a prominent farmer.

Bennett's body was buried here to-day.

Judge W. F. George, of the Superior Court of Dooly County, has adjourned the session until August because of the Sheriff's death.

MOST SICKNESS COMES FROM WEAK, INACTIVE KIDNEYS

Recent Reports Show Hundreds Suffer With Kidney Troubles and Don't Know It.

There are scores of nervous, tired, run-down people throughout the city suffering with pains in the back and sides, dizzy spells, weaknesses of the bladder (frequently causing annoyance at night), who fail to realize the seriousness of their troubles until such conditions as chronic rheumatism, bladder troubles, dropsy, diabetes or even Bright's disease result.

All this is due to weak, inactive kidneys. The kidneys are the filterers of the blood, and no one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly. It is even more important than that the bowels move regularly.

If you suffer with such symptoms don't neglect yourself another day and run the risk of serious complications. Secure an original package of the new discovery, Croxone, which costs but a trifle, and commence its use at once. When you have taken a few doses, you will be surprised how differently you will feel.

Croxone cures the worst cases of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, because it removes the cause. It cleans out the kidneys, and makes them filter out all the poisonous waste matter and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the bladder, and quickly relieves you of all your misery.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, it is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

Employs Poetry to Define Tariff Stand

Ohio Statesman Mounts Pegasus to Declare Lower Cost of Living Promises Are Vain.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The muse struck her lyre in the House again to-day, when Representative Simeon D. Fess of Yellow Springs, O., closed a sarcastic speech on the tariff bill with some verses on "The Things We Buy and Those We Sell." Here they are:

I ain't no statesman who can talk of protection or free trade;
My han's too stiff to hol' a pen—that was made to hol' a spade;
Them ten-foot, eddicated words my tongue can't wallop roun',
But I'll make things you sell go up, an' things you buy come down.

I can't talk on the currency, nor on the revenue,
An' on the laws an' statoots I'm as ignorant as you;
An' I jest simply promise you, sure's I am Silas Brown,
I'll make things you sell go up, an' things you buy come down.

The fair ground echoed wide with cheers and loud huzzas thereat,
For who can make a better scheme of statesmanship than that?
An' next week at the polls he beat his rival high and dry—
But things we sell continue low, and things we buy are high.

City Sells Its Bonds Over the Counter

Philadelphia's Experiment Proves Greater Success Than Mayor Expected.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The city has withdrawn from public sale the issue of municipal bonds that have been offered over the counter. The total amount taken by individuals was $4,002,000, or $500,000 more than Mayor Blankenburg wanted offered for sale at 4 per cent.

The last day's sales amounted to $209,000; and it was one of the most motley gatherings ever attending the office of the City Treasurer.

One old man brought his savings that he had hoarded in an old stocking, fearing to trust the banks. An elderly woman brought $1,000 in ten and twenty dollar gold pieces of the early '80 coinage that had never been in a bank.

PANIC IN DINER AS WAITER SHOOTS COOK

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 9.—As a Pennsylvania Railroad train bound for St. Louis pulled out of the North Philadelphia station last night, passengers in the dining car were thrown into a panic when Vaudergrift Thomas, a waiter, shot John E. Dyer, the cook attached to the car.

Two shots were fired, and one took effect in Dyer's leg.

SEVEN MEN GIVE PATCHES OF SKIN TO SAVE BOY

NEW YORK, May 9.—If 10-year-old William Caldwell, of Nutley, N. J., survives the burns which he received when he fell into a bonfire several weeks ago, it will be through the aid of patches of skin from no less than seven men, who have volunteered for the sacrifice. The surgeons figure that he needs 180 square inches of skin grafted upon his body to save his life.

Minister Goes From Pulpit to Theater

Philadelphia Playwright Will Direct Production of His Work in New York.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The Rev. Henry W. Lambert, of the Thirty-fourth Street Baptist Church in this city, has resigned his pulpit in order that he may direct the production of his first play in New York next fall. Dr. Lambert has written "For Love of Her," a moral play, which has been accepted.

Dr. Lambert says that he was spurred on in his playwriting by the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, the Presbyterian evangelist. In one of his sermons on the stage Dr. Chapman said if any playwright could write a play that had not one improper thought, word or action, then he would be conferring a favor on the human race.

New Gowns Shock 'Bath House' John

'And It Takes Some Shock to Get Me,' Admits Famous Chicago Alderman.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Alderman "Bathhouse" John Coughlin is so shocked at the gowns he sees on the streets that he has drafted an ordinance to regulate women's dress, solely, he says, on moral grounds.

"We must pass an ordinance prohibiting women from wearing vulgar and suggestive dresses," he told the Judiciary Committee. "Some of the dresses I see on the street shock my moral senses, and it takes some shock to get me. The gowns are awful. No wonder there is business for a vice commission."

Granite State Honors Pierce After 40 Years

New Hampshire Democratic Legislature Favors Statue of One-Time President.

CONCORD, May 9.—Franklin Pierce, the only President from New Hampshire, seems assured, at last, of a statute by his native State. The Senate has passed a House bill providing for a $15,000 appropriation. Governor Felker is expected to sign the measure.

The fact that Pierce was a Democrat and pro-slavery man has hitherto aroused strong opposition to a statue. The Legislature is Democratic for the first time in forty years.

Sipp, a Commonwealth's witness in the police graft cases, out of this State, were sentenced to-day to one year each and fined $500. This was the maximum punishment under the law.

It was understood that they agreed to take the punishment without appealing, in consideration of which the district attorney agreed to drop extortion and bribery indictments.

Straw Hats Due at Harvard Saturday

Student Council Opens the Season Two Weeks Earlier, This Year.

BOSTON, May 9.—The closed season on straw hats at Harvard will expire Saturday.

This was the official pronouncement to-day of the student council which, taking upon itself the function of arbiter of fashion, declared proper the wearing of the straw two weeks earlier than custom has before decreed.

The terraces of the stadium are expected to bloom with Panamas and common straws to-morrow when the athletic meet between Cornell and Harvard will be held.

Shoots at Cat, but Hits Wife; Kills Dog

Woman Turns Corner Just in Time to Get Shot Intended for Feline Chicken Thief.

BELLEFONTAINE, OHIO, May 9. William Newland, of Russylvania, lying in wait with a shotgun for the cat that had been killing his chickens, shot his wife.

Mrs. Newland had been to a neighbor's and was turning the corner of an alley when her husband fired, ten of the shot striking her, peppering her body from her face to her feet. It is not thought she is fatally hurt. The cat escaped, but a dog was shot.

HEROINE FAINTS, VILLAIN SHOOTS SELF, SHOW ENDS

SHARON, PA., May 9.—During the presentation by amateurs of a drama here last night the heroine, Miss Nina Shaffer, while heaping invectives on the head of the villain, suddenly fainted and Frederick McIntyre, the villain, accidentally shot himself in the left hand with a revolver. The show ended abruptly.

A Happy Child In a Few Hours

When Cross, Sick, Feverish, Tongue Coated or Bilious Give Delicious "Syrup of Figs."

Mother! look at the tongue! see if it is coated. If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and clogged up waste and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours the foul, decaying constipated matter, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well and smiling child shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it can not be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

FRANCE GASPS WHEN ALFONSO VAULTS FENCE

Democratic Behavior of Spanish King Startles Dignified Ministry in Dress Suits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—King Alfonso's state visit to France came to a close to-day with a remarkable aerial exhibition at the St. Cyr Aerodome. As the Spanish King and his official hosts looked on one aeroplane after another ascended until the sky seemed filled with them. Alfonso said it was one of the most inspiring sights he had ever seen.

One of the most interesting features of the Spanish monarch's visit has been his extreme democratic behavior. At Fontainebleau a gorgeous stand decorated with the royal colors of Spain had been erected in which Alfonso was to have sat while the troops were reviewed. The chair in which the King was to have sat was of bronze.

An Astonished Ministry.

President Poincare and the French Ministers, all solemn, obsequious and in dress suits, drew to one side to allow Alfonso to enter the pavilion. Instead of doing so, the King ran down to the railing, placed his hands upon it and vaulted over the rail like an athlete. Then he sat down on the grass and glued a pair of field glasses to his eyes while the Cabinet Ministers looked on in astonishment.

They never had seen a King act that way before.

Shakes Hands With Aviators.

After the aviation meet Alfonso insisted on shaking hands with several aviators and mechanicians. His white gloves were black with oil and grease when he got through.

The French press believes that the visit has ben of great benefit to both France and Spain.

Before his departure for St. Cyr, Alfonso held a conference with Foreign Minister Pichon, at which the question of Spain entering the triple entente with France, Russia and England was discussed. It would then become the quadruple entente.

Danish Minister Is Courting Again

Washington Society Hears Engagement to Mrs. Townsend Is Renewed.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The engagement which friends insist existed between Mrs. Richard Townsend and M. Constantin Brun, the Danish Minister, last year, according to rumor current this week, has been renewed.

Several times while stationed in other countries M. Brun paid visits to Washington, many say to see the rich widow. When he was sent to Washington a year ago every one expected that Mrs. Townsend would soon take her place as chatelaine of the Legation.

CHATTANOOGA MAY NOT SEEK G. A. R. CONVENTION

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 9.—Although the time limit expires tomorrow, it is not known whether or not Chattanooga will invite the Grand Army of the Republic to meet here next fall. The railroads, it is understood, have failed to co-operate. A formal invitation, it is believed, can win the gathering.

THE PLAY THIS WEEK

FEATURE BILL AT FORSYTH.

There will be just four more performances of the Keith vaudeville acts that are at the Forsyth this week. One of the four will be to-day's matinee which is already heavily sold, another will be the Saturday matinee for which there is a large sale and the remaining performances are Friday and Saturday nights.

The headliner this week is Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, one of the most original ideas in modern vaudeville. The act is crowded with all of the Edwards new song hits. Another feature is pretty Belle Story, the entertaining vocalist. Miss Story possesses a remarkable voice. The comedy act of Williams, Thompson and Copeland is a scream. The whole bill pleases.

For next week the headline act will be Paul Dickey, the star football player of the University of Michigan, who will appear with a company of five people who will offer "The Come Back," a story founded on college life. Another star act will be the Apollo Trio, native Italians, who will pose as living bronze statues.

SOCIETY NIGHT AT THE ATLANTA.

Miss Billy Long and the members of her company have made a big hit this week in "The Girl From Out Yonder," which is at the Atlanta. To-night will be special Society Night in honor of Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison and a packed house is expected to greet the company. A 25 cent matinee will be played to-morrow and the present bill offered for the last time to-morrow night.

Next week the company will present, "Are You a Mason?" which is a roaring farce comedy. Owing to the demand for matinee seats an extra matinee has been added for Monday afternoon and in the future three matinees will be given each week. "Are You a Mason?" has a thousand laughs and its presentation will serve to introduce two new members of the company to the public—both highly experienced. Miss Harrison has an important role also.

WHICH?

NEWS ITEM—The Democratic majority of the Senate, in causes, has made a determined attack on the seductive influence of golf and baseball. A promise was exacted from members that hereafter enough members will be present in the Senate to maintain a quorum.

More than an hour was spent one day in a futile effort to get enough Senators to transact business at an executive session.

HARVEY'S CHARGE STIRS MARSHALL

WASHINGTON, May 9.—In answer to Colonel George Harvey's charge, made at a dinner in New York of representatives from the trust companies of America, to the effect that Vice President Marshall's criticism of the wealthy acted as an "incitement to the predatory poor," the Vice President said to-day:

"If anybody will produce a public utterance of mine for the curtailment of accumulation or distribution of honest wealth, except by a fair inheritance tax, I will go to Wall Street and personally apologize.

"In the course of a long professional career, however, I have asserted that the witness who had knowledge of fraud invariably got mad when he was interrogated as to the fraud."

The Vice President at first was inclined to take the matter as a joke. He said, however, that he wished to have the affair closed and to hear nothing more on the score of his misrepresented public utterances.

LEOPOLD'S WIDOW, DIVORCED, TO WED

Morganatic Wife of Belgian King, Freed From M. Durrieux, Accepts German Army Officer.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—Within less than 24 hours after she had obtained a divorce from her second husband, M. Durrieux, it was reported to-day that Baroness Vaughan would soon marry again.

Baroness Vaughan was the morganatic wife of King Leopold of Belgium, and bore him two sons. After Leopold's death she married M. Durrieux, but entered suit for divorce, alleging infidelity. A decree was granted in her favor yesterday.

Baroness Vaughan began life as a washerwoman, but her beauty attracted the eye of the aged Belgian King, who took her under his protection and showered wealth upon her.

Her next husband, it is said, will be a German army officer.

Crosses the Atlantic To See a Ball Game

Relative of Pierpont Morgan Says He Is Going Right Back to Paris.

NEW YORK, May 9.—A passenger came over on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie to see one good American ball game. He is G. D. Morgan, an American who lives in Paris, and says he is a relative of J. Pierpont Morgan.

"I want to see just one good old baseball game and then I am going right back," said Mr. Morgan.

What Ails You?

An invitation is extended by Doctor Pierce to every sick and ailing man or woman to consult the Faculty of the Invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, N. Y., by letter. Write your symptoms fully and frankly, and every letter will be carefully considered, fully answered and its statements held as strictly private and sacredly confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

makes for rich, pure blood and thus invigorates the system. For a torpid liver and its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, pasty coated tongue with bitter taste, loss of appetite with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good.

Effective Home Remedy For Lung Trouble

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benefited, but few can safely return. Eckman's Alterative is effective for home treatment. For example: 231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed my regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I can not praise Eckman's Alterative too highly. I have recommended it with excellent results."

(Signed) W. M. TATEM.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' drug stores and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

MILLTOWN WILL FISH, REGARDLESS

Mayor Pafford Declares Georgia Laws Give Residents Right to Angle in Banks Pond.

Citizens of Milltown, Ga., deny that the town is in a state of excitement and that it will be necessary to call out trpops to preserve order. Mayor William F. Pafford has issued a statement declaring Game Warden Bolsclair became unduly alarmed.

Governor Brown has not considered sending troops to Berrien County. It is hardly likely he will.

Until the Legislature changes the law, Milltown sportsmen will continue to angle for the elusive trout in Banks' fishpond so long as they have permission from owners of the land on which the body of water is located, according to Mayor Pafford.

"Section 7 of the game law privileges a person to fish with permission from the owner of the land, which the 20 persons arrested had," he declared.

"The statement of State Game and Fish Commissioner Mercer that his wardens have been intimidated and that the local authorities are too much in sympathy with the lawless element to give any assistance is untrue," said Pafford.

Bolsclair made 20 arrests of persons. He charges he was prevented from prosecuting the cases because the justices of the peace declared he would not convict any of the parties.

The whole matter hinges on a land dispute. The Banks estate claims to own all of the property on which the pond is located. Other property owners say a title to all of the property has never been vested with Banks.

COTTON MANUFACTURERS CONVENE IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, GA., May 9.—The annual convention of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia convened in Columbus to-day, with President F. B. Gordon, of this city, presiding. Among the speakers for the day were Stuart W. Cramer, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and D. W. Peabody, of Atlanta. Fuller Callaway, of LaGrange, banker and manufacturer, also was on the program.

New Georgia Road to Start Trains in June

Elberton and Eastman Will Open Rich Country to Connection With Seaboard Air Line.

Another railroad will be added to Georgia's imposing list in June, when the Elberton and Eastern Railway Company begins operation from Elberton through Cauthen, Fortsonia, Bell, Norman and Mallorysville to Tignall, a distance of 21.8 miles. It connects with the Seaboard at Elberton. Eventually, it may push on to Washington to connect with the Georgia Railroad.

The new line taps an agricultural district of some importance, which now has no railroad facilities. It has standard roadbed and equipment. It is capitalized at $300,000 in bonds and $200,000 in stock. W. O. Jones is president.

AIRSHIPS PREDICTED AS DEFENDERS OF THE CANAL

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—That aeroplanes are to be used extensively for defenses of the Panama Canal was the statement of Aviator Robert G. Fowler, who returned here to-day from Panama. He asserted that Colonel Goethals would ask Congress for an appropriation for aeroplanes and hydro-aeroplanes to be used in connection with the proposed fortifications.

ARREST CASHIER AS AN EMBEZZLER

Crossland Bank Official Accused of Misappropriating More Than $7,000.

MOULTRIE, GA., May 8.—J. H. Cason, charged with the embezzlement of more than $7,000 from the Bank of Crossland, was arrested today at Crossland and brought to Moultrie, where his bond was assessed at $2,000.

The bank has not resumed business and will likely liquidate.

It is alleged that Cason not only embezzled the bank's funds, but under various pretexts had stockholders of the institution indorse his notes at other banks for large sums. Cason was prominent in church circles and had the confidence of the people of Crossland.

SENATE FAVORS COLCOCK.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Senate Finance Committee reported favorably to-day on the nomination of S. P. Colcock to succeed Richard Small, the negro Collector of the Port at Beaufort, S. C.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFULLY DARKENS THE HAIR WHEN FADED AND GRAY

Mixed With Sulphur Makes Hair Soft, Lustrous and Cures Dandruff.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's," which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair, and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says his customers insist on Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur because, they say, it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant. Elkin Drug Co., special agents.

SUFFRAGETTES ASSAIL ASQUITH AND CHURCHILL

Guards Save English Premier From Injury by "Young Hot Blood" Militants.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Fresh suffragette outrages stirred England today. Members of the "Young Hot Blood" service of the Women's Social and Political Union burned Oaklea mansion, at Barrow, causing a $50,000 loss.

Other members of the union attempted to attack Premier and Mrs. Asquith and First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill and Mrs. Churchill as they were on their way to the Victoria Railway station today.

Mr. and Mrs. Asquith and Mr. and Mrs. Churchill were leaving on a journey to Venice, where they will embark upon the Admiralty yacht Enchantress for a cruise through the Mediterranean for inspection of British fortresses and navy depots.

Saved by Their Guards.

Only the fact that they had a heavy bodyguard of policemen, soldiers and private detectives saved them from injury at the hands of militant suffragettes.

Mrs. Flora Drummond, or "General" Drummond, as she is known because of her Amazonian qualities, who collapsed in Bow Street Court yesterday during the trial of the women arrested in the raid on headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union, was in a serious condition to-day. She had refused to eat for a week to spite the government and her health has become so badly deranged as a result that an operation may be necessary. She was removed to a nursing home this morning.

Love Wins New Ally.

Interesting sidelights on the organization of militants are being brought out at the trial of the militant leaders. Letters seized by the police include a number of passionate, burning love letters from a former Socialist member of Parliament. The letters show that he is infatuated with one of the leaders of the "wild women" and that he allied himself with the "cause" at her command.

Other documents show that the most dangerous branch of the union is called the "Service of Young Hot Bloods." No one but young unmarried women of high courage are admitted. These are some of the questions put to them before they are admitted into this branch of the union:

Are you willing to die a violent death to-day?

Are you afraid of dynamite or any other high explosive?

Will you swear to hunger strike if sent to jail?

Will you renounce the softer characteristics of womankind in favor of a great principle?

Are you healthy and strong and able to hold your own against a single policeman?

The arsonettes and the members of the dynamite squad are recruited from the "Y. H. B." service.

King Edward Speed 'Fiend,' Says Autoist

Late Monarch's Chauffeur Tells in a Book of His Ruler's Traits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Interesting trials in King Edward's character are revealed in the book, "What I Know," by C. W. Stamper, private automobile expert to the late monarch. It says: "The King liked speedy traveling, but insisted on careful driving through towns and villages. His walk was never leisurely. He was in and out of a motor car or a train in a moment. "He spoke rapidly, ate very fast and smoked hard. Speed was the essence of his nature."

The King's chauffeur always was instructed by the equerry to observe the legal speed limit, but if the King complained, he was to increase the speed temporarily and gradually to slacken it again.

Better Than Medicine

Breathe Hyomei and Be Rid of Catarrh—Clears Stopped-Up Head.

Nature has a remedy for catarrh and troubles of the breathing organs, a treatment that is far better than dosing the stomach with medicine.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicate the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing the catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the musous membrane.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the natural remedy, for it gives a curative bath to the air passages. It has a powerful healing and antiseptic effect similar to the air in the mountains where the forests give off the fragrant and healing balsams.

Hyomei has benefited so many sufferers of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucous, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing that it is sold under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. If the treatment does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense, while if it cures the cost is nominal. A complete Hyomei Outfit sells for only $1.00. Extra bottles of liquid if later needed 50 cents.

Druggists everywhere.

U. S. CHECKS TOLL OF TUBERCULOSIS

Death Rate Decreased From 174.5 to 139.7 Per 100,000 Population in Last Decade.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—That the death rate in the United States from tuberculosis during the decade ending in 1910 has diminished from 174.5 per 100,000 of population to 139.7 was the statement made here by Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman of Newark, in an address before the sociological section of the National association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis.

"In other words," said Dr. Hoffman, "nearly 200,000 lives were saved from 1909 to 1910, in the campaign against this disease."

Dr. Hoffman stated that the death rate in New York City, 289.1 in 1881, had declined to 180.1 in 1912. He made no mention of any so-called "cures."

Surgeon B. S. Warren, of the U. S. Public Health Service, affirmed that deaths of government employees from tuberculosis were much lower than that of other laborers in similar occupations, because of the superior sanitary conditions."

"About 50,000 new cases of tuberculosis are constantly drifting about the country for long periods without even consulting physicians," was the statement by Dr. Harry Lee Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode Island State Sanitarium.

Loses Pants Seat, But Wins Election

Determined Candidate Does Not Let Accident Cost Him Vote He Goes After.

WINSTED, CONN., May 9.—Robert E. Maher, an officer of the Winsted Edge Tool Works and Republican candidate for Burgess in the town election, lost the seat of his trousers in getting a delinquent voter to the polls, but came out a victor.

A few minutes before the closing of the polls Maher was apprised that a certain elector had not exercised his rights. Jumping into an automobile he started in quest of the voter, whom he found at work atop of an ice house. Maher in coming down the ice run came in contact with nails which caught in his trousers seat, completely removing it.

He got to the polls on time with the voter, however.

STATE BOARD IS PROPOSED FOR TAX EQUALIZING

Clarke County Representative to Push Bill in Legislature. Wide Demand for It.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Representative Frank A. Lipscomb of Clarke County will introduce early in the forthcoming session of the Legislature a bill providing for the creation of a State Board of Tax Equalizers.

The necessity for such a board has been discussed favorably by the press of the State time and again, but so far no serious effort has been made to frame the suggestion into a workable law.

Mr. Lipscomb has made a study of tax conditions in Georgia, however, and has reached the conclusion that the only practical and equitable method of increasing the revenue of the State, without elevating the tax rate, dwells within the creation of a tax equalizing board.

The bill, it is understood, already has been prepared by Mr. Lipscomb, but before it is offered it will be passed upon by one of the most eminent authorities on statutory and constitutional law within the State, and such changes, if any, as he may suggest likely will be made in the measure before it is presented.

Mr. Lipscomb is a new member of the Legislature. He is a young man, around 35, and has had some experience in legislative and administrative work on the City Council of Athens, of which he was three times elected a member, but his forthcoming term in the House of Representatives will be his first service in the broader field of State politics.

He is one of Athens' leading business men, a scion of an old and distinguished Georgia family, an extremely likeable sort of person, and is sure to take a high stand in the Legislature from the day he is given the oath of a Representative.

Mr. Lipscomb has other important legislative proposals to submit to the General Assembly in due course of time, but his bill to create a Board of Tax Equalizers will be his pet project, and the one he is most deeply interested in.

There is no doubt whatever that the bill will receive hearty and strong support from many members of influence, and the prospect of the bill becoming a law generally is looked upon as exceedingly bright.

Former Sheriff of McDuffie County, the Honorable "Shade" Hawes, one of the leading citizens of Thomas E. Watson's well-known town of Thomson, is, and for several days has been, a visitor in Atlanta's delighted midst.

Mr. Hawes is credited with being one of the very shrewdest political observers in the State, and moves hither and yon in most mysterious way his wonders to perform. He has an idea, however—really, it is an obsession—that his home town of Thomson is possessed of more automobiles than any other town of its size in the world. He claims that there are 56 machines in Thomson, notwithstanding the fact that it has been disputed there is room enough in Thomson for even one-half so many.

One irreverent person asked the Sheriff if it was true that they had to run the sewerage system in Thomson straight up in the air to keep it inside the corporate limits—but the Sheriff disdained pointedly to comment upon that.

In charging a Floyd County Grand Jury, Judge Moses Wright recently expressed an opinion that should prove of widespread interest in Georgia.

In giving his interpretation of the present prohibition law, the jurist declared that it "is illegal for one person to order liquor for another."

The Rome Judge bases his opinion upon that section of the Code which says that it shall be illegal to "contract to sell, take orders for or solicit personally or by agent."

As a result of his charge, a rigid investigation of Rome's two locker clubs is under way.

All the Georgia newspapers and all the Georgia politicians are congratulating Editor Dick Grubb and renewing their good wishes to him that The Darien Gazette has achieved its fortieth birthday, and is as bright and snappy to-day as when it was a mere journalistic kiddo.

"Old Dick" Grubb has been a laborer in the newspaper vineyard many moons, and is generally beloved throughout the State. For years his weekly column of paragraphic comment upon men and things in Georgia—rarely other than kindly and sunny tempered—has been looked forward to by many.

Everybody will wish The Darien Gazette many happy returns of the day, and its editor many years of usefulness yet to come.

Representative-elect W. H. Connor, of Spalding County, will introduce two interesting local bills in the General Assembly soon after it convenes.

The first is one to provide for the election of the Griffin City Education Board by the people, rather than by the Council, as has been the custom in the past; and the other is to amend the charter of Griffin so that ward primaries will be abolished and the old plan of general elections be returned.

Four years ago the Legislature changed the charter, at the request of Council, providing for ward primaries; but the system has not proved satisfactory to a great portion of the voters. It is desired by citizens that a voter be allowed to cast his ballot for Aldermen, regardless of which ward he may reside in.

This local legislation in Griffin will be interesting to many cities in Georgia that have operated for a good many years under the very same disadvantages that Griffin is undertaking to get away from, and it may be that Representative Connor's bill will suggest many another of a similar sort from other cities in the State.

Representative William H. Burwell of Hancock County, is spending a few days in Atlanta. While here he conferred with several of his friends about his speakership race. He feels assured of election on the first ballot.

Attention! Now It's Sandals for Girls Of That Gay Paree!

The old Greek fashion of dressing, including draped skirts and waists, long ago was taken up by the women of Paris and from there carried around the globe, has now reached the feet.

For to-day the elite of the French women, who set the fashion for that city of pretty and vivacious women are wearing sandals!

The high heel shoe and the oft painful by bent arch, has now been "given the hook." In their place has been selected the old-fashioned sandal, and it looks as if it had come to stay.

In fact, so complete has been the change of fashion in this respect that several of the famous Parisian stores, which cater particularly to the fashionable class, have put in a great stock of sandals.

Along the boulevards, women are seen parading at all hours, wearing sandals fastened to their feet by prettily colored ribbon in a band around their ankles.

Adherents of the new style declare it of great benefit to the health of the person wearing them.

Suppleness and flexibility, modistes argue, are the feature of women's dress of the present day.

Nature's Banner of 'Votes for Women'

Mrs. Torbet Will Raise Nothing but Flowers of Yellow Hue in Her Garden.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Nature is the latest ally to be lined up under the banner of "Votes for Women" and the suffragist garden is the means by which it has been secured for the cause. Mrs. Lewis K. Torbet announced her plans for the brand new publicity method.

"I intend to have my entire garden at my summer home remodeled and install nothing but flowers of a yellow hue, the color of the American suffragists," she said.

"I will have marigolds, daisies, roses, sunflowers, Japanese gold illies, chrysanthemums, buttercups and every yellow flower that will grow and wave for the cause of women's suffrage.

"But I won't have anything with the English militant suffragist colors—violet and green."

ANY FRIEND CAN NOMINATE YOU IN BIG CONTEST

Strong Lead Will be Gained Over Your Rivals by Entering Competition Early.

Anyone can nominate a contestant for the pony outfits which the Georgian and American will give away as prizes.

This has been explained before, but many people still ask, so it may be well to state it again.

All that is necessary is to send in a nomination blank. Parents, uncles, aunts, friends, or even the contestant may make the nomination, and the result is the same—the name is listed, and 1,000 votes are credited to the name.

The call for books, used to make a record of subscriptions and votes and to furnish a receipt to the subscribers, shows that all are making an early start. One employee of the Georgian and American finds the distribution of these books to callers takes a good deal of his time.

So the contest is well under way.

The ponies, too, are here. The best ponies in the Tennessee bluegrass section—twelve of them—have been purchased by an expert delegated to the task by the Georgian and American.

Early Start Counts.

Remember that an early start counts for much. A big lead over your friends and acquaintances before they are approached by the other boys and girls.

Wouldn't you be disappointed to have your best friend say:

"Why, I've subscribed to the Georgian and American for a year and have given the subscription to George. I would have been glad to help you, but I didn't know you were in the race, and George asked me first."

Think what a disappointment that would be.

The only way to avoid such disconcerting replies is to be the early bird yourself.

An early start, too, gives you experience of a useful sort ahead of the other contestants, and the result will be that when you have become an adept at securing subscriptions, your rivals will be floundering around for a start.

So, by all means, if you have not entered the race for one of the twelve pony outfits by now, send in your nomination blank right away. If you have entered, be sure to get the necessary book at once, and get busy.

Some, you will find, already have piled up an excellent total for a beginning.

And are you clipping the daily coupons in the Georgian and the Sunday American? And are your friends saving theirs for you? They count up rapidly if you can get several friends to help.

G.O.P. RESENTS BULL MOOSER'S REUNION MOVE

Members of Old Guard Say Cummins Is Hasty and Is Likely to Hurt Party.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Old line Republicans to-day expressed in strong terms their antagonism to the independent action of Senator Cummins of Iowa and other members of the progressive wing of that party in calling a conference in Chicago to-morrow. They declined to approve the plan and declared that the Cummins contingent was laying the party open to another split.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, minority leader of the Senate, said:

"I think the Cummins conference is premature, and when the time comes to recognize the Republican party I shall certainly follow the men who made the party rather than those who helped to wreck it."

Senator Smoot of Utah declared "that neither Senator Cummins nor any other Progressive can reorganize the Republican party."

Senator Stephenson of Wisconsin was of the opinion that the Cummins conference presaged another party split. "They wrecked the party," he said bitterly, "and now they are trying to damn it."

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania said that it would be better to postpone the Cummins conference now and to hold it later under the regular Republican banner.

In the House the old line Republicans, from Minority Leader Mann to the latest incumbent of office, viewed the conference with disapproval.

Buyer of Eggs Must Declare Intentions

That Is, If He Wants to Complain at the Failure of Table Variety to Hatch.

CEDAR GROVE, N. J., May 9.—The Cedar Grove Board of Poultry Trade has handed down a decision of interest to poultrymen all over America.

Squire Hoke Baldwin has been selling White Orpington eggs at 25 cents a dozen for table use and at $2 for thirteen for setting purposes. Archibald Griswold bought some eggs from ing to New York. Instead he set the eggs. They did not hatch and he brought the matter to the attention of the Board of Poultry Trade.

The board found that Baldwin had dipped the eggs in hot water before delivering them, rendering them infertile. The board decided that between January 7 and July 1 the purchaser must declare truthfully for what purpose he wants eggs when buying them.

GIRLS TO TELL IN PULPITS OF WORKING CONDITIONS

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 9.—Horrified by the stories told them by some of the girl department store clerks who are on strike, many ministers to-day invited the girls to occupy their pulpits Sunday and repeat there the true conditions under which they work.

There are times when you'd delight
To proclaim your awful plight,

BUILT OWN WEDDING ALTAR. Miss Laura A. Calver and Alfred J. Jones were married in New York City before an altar of white marble concrete built in their new home by the bridegroom.

TOMBOY GAMES BEST FOR GIRLS, EXPERT CLAIMS

Recreation Congress Speaker Declares Vigorous Games Are Character Developers.

RICHMOND, VA., May 9.—Too much distinction is made between boys and girls, in their play, their work and their educational training. This was the text of an address by Mrs. Charles T. Weller, of Lawrence, Kansas, at the morning session of the Recreation Congress.

"Many people begin, in his babyhood, to train the boy away from the gentler side of life by taking away his doll. Later they teach him that certain home duties belong to the girl; and since the boy's work—such as cutting wood and drawing water—no longer has a place in the city household, he grows up without sense of responsibility and devotion toward his own home when he has one.

"The girl, on the other hand, is constantly repressed and, because her faults are not dramatic like those of her brother, her elders fail to realize that she needs broad training to free her from the narrowness and pettiness of women, which has been the jest of the ages.

"Vigorous sports, especially games, are found to develop just those characteristics in which women are lacking.

"Let the girls play hard sometimes and forget themselves. Quieter sport—music, literature, art—have their very important place for the girl; and quite as much for the boy. For with this all-round training each may be gentle and each may be strong when occasion demands it; and together they may round out a fuller, more wholesome life for the race.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Repairing of Dolls Quite a Business.

"Dolls Repaired Quickly and Cheaply."

That sign prominently displayed at a point on Peachtree Street, by which thousands of people pass daily, is one likely to attract the attention of little folks—girls, of course—whose dollies are in need of such necessaries as eyes, hair, hands and feet.

"You'd be surprised," said the old gentleman who answers when anyone makes inquiry concerning the sign, "the number of dolls that we repair every day. My whole family is engaged in the business. It is a queer thing about child nature, but girls—the little ones, you know—become so attached to their dolls that when they wear out the children are almost inconsolable. They like a new doll, of course, but nothing can take the place of the old one in their childish affections. That's where our business comes in. We take the old doll, put new feet and hands on it, insert an eye if one is needed and, in fact, fix Miss Dollie up so that she looks like a new one. But to its little 'mother' it is still the same old Polly Hopkins, or Susan or Mary, as the case may be. It really does my heart good to see the little folks when their mothers bring them to my place to get the rejuvenated dollie. They go into raptures over the made-over toy, and their outbursts are evidences of genuine affection. 'Mother-love,' I suppose you newspaper fellows call it."

How Window Dressers Keep Track of Pins.

"I'll bet," said one of two men who had paused before the display window of a Whitehall Street department store while the window dresser was at work "that it was a woman who invented the thing that chap has fastened to his left arm."

His attention having been called to it, the other man took a squint at the object. It was a pincushion about three inches square fastened to a wide elastic band—like a garter—which was passed around the arm just above the elbow. The cushion was filled with all sorts of pins—small ones and large ones, some plain and some black.

As he worked, arranging pieces of cloth here and there to give the desired fold effect, the dresser had occasion to use countless pins. They were always right at his hand.

"When I was a young man," remarked one of the onlookers, "I used to dress windows and I carried a mouthful of pins all the time. The danger of swallowing them, however, was great, and I never cared much for the job. This fellow has the problem solved, but if he's married, I'll bet his wife invented it. No mere man would ever think of that pincushion affair."

The Story of Two Boys And What They Have Done.

"I was reading in The Georgian the other day," said the doctor, "when my attention was attracted by an article concerning some bequests made to education by Mrs. G. P. Dodd. Instantly I remembered two young fellows who used to live in Atlanta and with whom I attended the Boys' High School. They were Phil and Earl Ackerman, sons of Mrs. Fannie Ackerman, who was a sister of Mrs. Dodd, and to whom Mrs. Dodd left a bequest. The Ackerman boys lived with their uncle on Whitehall Street between Cooper and Windsor. Both were real geniuses, and both were enamored of the stage—not as actors, mind you, but as managers and producers. In the basement of the Dodd home they had fitted up a scenic studio and there in 1891 they built the scenery for 'Xonia, or the Fairy Queen,' a spectacular play which they presented at Concordia Hall, then on Marietta Street.

"The cast was made up of local young folks and the play was put on in admirable style. There was no end of trick scenery, all designed, built and painted by the Ackerman boys. Phil played the part of an Irishman, Earl was a 'demon' and the part of a clown was played by Cliff Saul, brother of Milt Saul, who is publicity manager for the Georgia Railway and Power Company. Another member of the company was Henry Franklin, now a staid Atlanta business man, an officer of a big hardware concern. Artistically, 'Xonia' was a success. I am not certain about its financial success.

"Soon after this Mrs. Ackerman and her sons removed to New York, and the boys evidently kept in touch with things theatrical, because 'Bob' Goodman, another Atlanta boy who has risen to heights in stage affairs, told me not long ago that Phil and Earl Ackerman are the owners of one of the largest scenic studios in Brooklyn."

Court Halts Work on Concrete Structure

Debtors File Petition Against Owners of Building at Linden Avenue and Peachtree.

Work on the concrete building at Linden and Peachtree Streets was halted to-day, as a result of a petition filed Thursday afternoon by the Mackle-Crawford Company.

The petition asked that the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company and Mrs. Mary Potts be enjoined from doing further construction work on the building, pending payment of $4,483 which the Mackle-Crawford Company claims is due it for concrete framework of the building.

The petition maintained that further work on the building would conceal the work done by the company and render proof difficult.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Sixty automobiles burned in a storage garage fire on the South Side to-day. Building and gas buggies valued at $250,000 were destroyed.

POLICEMAN DENIES WOMEN'S CHARGES

Kirk Declares Statement That He Made Raided House His Headquarters Is False.

Policeman James Kirk, a member of Chief Beavers' "vice squad," Friday morning emphatically denied the charges of improper conduct made against him by Mrs. N. P. Powell, Mrs. Lena Bernard and Mrs. John Bryant, whom Kirk, with a squad of police, arrested last week on a charge of running a disorderly house at 95 Spring Street.

"The charges have no foundation," he said. "I went to Mrs. Powell and her husband, and told them if they didn't get rid of the women they had staying there and shut up their place, we would arrest them. Both the woman and Powell told me they would make the women leave and quit running the kind of a house that Chief Beavers has ordered out of the city. We watched the place for several nights, and saw from five to fifteen men going in and out of the place every night.

"When we saw that they continued to run the house we raided them. There were four men there at the time, but they escaped by jumping out of the windows. The women have been held to the Grand Jury.

"The statement that I made the place my headquarters is a falsehood, pure and simple. Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Bernard and Mrs. Bryant are known to the police. They have been arrested numerous times."

The hearing of the injunction which Mrs. Powell, through her attorneys, Gober & Jackson, got from Judge Bell to restrain the police from evicting her, will be held Saturday morning.

Are You Subject To Constipation

MRS. G. B. PRUITT.

Very few people go through life without some time or other being troubled with constipation. Thousands injure themselves by the use of strong cathartics, salt mineral waters, pills and similar things. They have temporary value in some cases, it is true, but the good effect is soon lost, and the more one takes of them the less effective they become.

A physic or purgative is seldom necessary, and much better and more permanent results can be obtained by using a scientific remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It does not hide behind a high sounding name, but is what it is represented to be, a mild laxative medicine. It is so mild that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is so compounded, and contains such definite ingredients that it will have equally good effect when used by a person suffering from the worst chronic constipation. In fact, among the greatest indorsers of Syrup Pepsin are elderly people who have suffered for years and found nothing to benefit them until they took Syrup Pepsin.

It is a fact that millions of families have Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, homes like those of Mrs. G. B. Pruitt, Berea, Ky., who used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as a laxative tonic. Mrs. Pruitt writes that it so strengthened and cleansed her system that she was quickly relieved of a severe cough which had troubled her for months. The special value of this grand laxative tonic is that it is suited to the needs of every member of the family. It is pleasant tasting, mild and non-griping. Unlike harsh physics, it works gradually and in a very brief time the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to do their work naturally again, when all medicines can be dispensed with.

You can obtain a bottle at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is usually bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

PREP LEAGUERS WILL CLASH AT MARIST TO-DAY

THE annual Atlanta Prep Athletic meet will be held Friday afternoon at Marist field. Only three schools are entered in this event, but the athletics that are entered are all well trained and some lively events will be seen. Everything about the field is in readiness. An eight-lap track has been laid off and a hundred yard straight-away. The lanes are all laid for the dashes and hurdles have been procured also.

The hundred-yard dash promises to be the real thriller of the meet as never before in a local contest have there been so many evenly matched men entered in this event. There are Allen, and Lewis, of Marist; Sifford of G. M. A.; Bedell and Parks, of Tech High. Every one of these ads have made the century in less than 11 seconds and Allen has a record of 10:3-5 seconds. Owing to this mark the odds are slightly in favor of Allen, but if he does win it will be by a scant few inches.

There will be plenty of competition in every event with the possible exception of the hammer throw. Fowler, of Marist, seems to be in a class by himself in this event. He has thrown the iron ball over 100 feet in practice, which is better than any other man in the league can do.

The entries are all in and Joe Bean, who is staging the meet, has announced that nearly fifty athletes will compete. Many of them will start in two, three, and even four events. Bill Bedell, of Tech High looks good for the highest individual point winner. He has all kinds of grit and endurance, and in the meet between Tech High and Boys High he won three firsts and a second place which made his total 17 points.

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is the boy that will no doubt give Bedell the most trouble.

The meet will start at 2:30 p. m.

Prep League News and Notes.

The decision of the Boys High athletes not to enter the Prep meet Friday throws them out of high school circles for the rest of the season. Since they have taken the matter into their own hands and decided not to represent their school, they will be regarded as an independent team and will have to appear as such in the rest of their meets this season.

* * *

A new Prep record for the hammer throw will very likely be hung up in the meet Friday by Fowler, of Marist. Fowler has had little trouble hurling the 12-pound hammer 100 feet in practice.

* * *

A tennis tournament is being arranged between the winners of the Boys High contests and the winners of the tournament now being held at East Lake by the students of Peacock.

* * *

The tournament will be held on the courts at East Lake some time the latter part of this month and should prove an interesting match as both schools are well represented in this line of sport.

* * *

The officials have announced that the track meet at Marist Friday will start at 3 p. m. This seems pretty late to start such an affair as the meet will probably run about four hours. The meet between Tech and Boys High schools started at 1:30 and was not over until 6 o'clock.

* * *

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is leading the Prep League batters with .467. Armistead and Spurlock, of Boys' High, are close on his heels. Parks, of Tech High, is fourth, and Bedell, of Tech High, is fifth.

* * *

Sifford and Robb will probably be G. M. A.'s two biggest point-winners in the meet Friday. Sifford made a lot of points in the field-day exercises at G. M. A. March 21. Brown and Solano are two other pretty good athletes, especially in the sprints.

* * *

Callahan, of Marist, threw just ten balls in the first innings of the game with Boys High Wednesday and fanned the first three men to face him. He struck out two more in the second.

* * *

If the following quartet can keep up the good work shown in the Boys High-Marist game Wednesday they may be assured of a place on the all-prep team this year. They are Allen, of Marist, third base; Spurlock, of Boys High, short; Armistead, of Boys High, catcher, and Fox, of Boys High, pitcher.

* * *

Following is the standing of the local Prep League teams:

Teams	Won	Lost	P.C.
Boys High	5	0	1.000
Tech High	4	2	.667
Marist	3	2	.600
Peacock	1	4	.200
G. M. A.	1	5	.167

GUNBOAT SMITH AND WILLARD IN NEXT COAST GO

By W. W. Naughton

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—Gunboat Smith once again is with us, and interest in the next heat of the great white hope free-for-all will increase by leaps and bounds.

Smith is to meet Elongated Jess Willard of Kansas at Coffroth's Eighth Street Arena on Saturday afternoon, May 17, and when these two have settled their differences the search for the best pugilistic pale face on earth will be almost over.

It will only be necessary for the winner to hook up with Luther McCarty and we will have a champion whose right there will be none to dispute—at least for a while.

Bluejacket vs. Cowboy.

The semi-final in the race—for that's what the coming bout may be called—will be between an ex-bluejacket and a cowboy. The fact that a man from off the bounding blue and a man from the cattle plains have battled their way to the front rank of the world's fighters shows conclusively that champions are not always the products of congested cities. The old argument used to be that the best men were to be found where there were the most men to pick from, but it certainly does not hold in pugilism.

A glance at the array of white hopes who have tried and failed during the past year shows that championship candidates are drawn from widely separated lands and from all walks of life. So far as the prize ring is concerned, we have had George Rodel, the South African Boer, and Bombardier Wells, the British artilleryman, who was seized with the ambition to shine as a ringman while on service in far India.

Then there was Fred McKay, the Winnipeg policeman, who was attacked with the Queensberry bug while patrolling his beat in his home town in Canada. Al Palzer, another blasted hope, came from the farm lands back in Iowa. It was not different in the old years, however. The lure of the game drew Joe Choynski from the candy kitchen and Jim Corbett from the bank. Fitzsimmons rolled up his apron and dropped his sledge when he heard the call of the padded mitt, and Jeffries deserted the boiler foundry.

Nor must we forget Tom Sharkey, "the pride of the navy," who used to say in the matter of punishment or suffering, fighting was child's play compared to walking the deck barefooted on a hot day in the Red Sea.

Paul Dickey, Famous End, Here Next Week

Former Michigan Football Hero in Vaudeville Sketch at Forsyth Theater.

Paul Dickey, who played star end on the University of Michigan eleven in '07 and '08, and who led in all track events and field exercises while at college, is now in vaudeville and will appear at the Forsyth as the star feature, with his own company the week of May 12.

Paul Dickey was a wonder in his time. He was selected by every expert who picked an All Western or All American eleven. He led the ends, and even at that had some of the greatest stars of the other teams to contend with. His work on the track was wonderful and some of his records still stand.

His sketch in vaudeville is called "The Come Back." It deals with college life, and football figures most prominently. It is a sketch that the sport-loving theatergoers will doubly appreciate.

During his visit in Atlanta, Dickey will be entertained by the Michigan alumni who live here, and his "Frat" mates are also preparing to see that he does not forget his week in Atlanta.

BOXING
News of the Ring Game

Abe Attell has released John Reisfer as his manager and has placed himself under the management of Danny Morgan. Abe and Morgan agreed on terms ferday, according to a report from New York.

* * *

* * *

* * *

Had the match been made Rivers would have received 27 1-2 per cent and Britton 22 1-2 per cent of the gate. Rivers is one of the many stars who are steering clear of Britton these days.

* * *

Frank Moran, who fought Luther McCarty recently with a broken hand, will not be able to don the gloves for at least three weeks, on account of the injury. His manager was offered a bout with Jim Flynn at the Atlas A. A. of Boston, on May 20, but was compelled to pass it up.

* * *

Having lost close to $2,000 on the Luther McCarty-Moran battle because they guaranteed McCarty $5,000, Jess and Eddie McMahon, managers of the St. Nicholas A. C., yesterday made the announcement that under no circumstances will they give another fighter a guarantee in the future, even if he is a champion.

Johnny Griffith, of Akron, and Pal Moore, of Philadelphia, will meet for 12 rounds at Akron, May 12. Bernie Strapp is staging the show.

ATHENS, GA., May 9.—The Tech team arrived here after a rather tiresome ride of several hours duration. This morning I am letting them walk about town a little to get their land legs again, but immediately after lunch they will be sent to their rooms for a nap, so as to make sure they will be feeling well and perfectly rested by the time the game is called, which will be at 4 o'clock.

Many, many times have I been to Athens with both football and baseball teams, but never have I seen the old town so stirred up over anything as it seems to be to-day over these two games of ball with Tech. The Red and Black team has had a most fortunate season from start to date, and it is but natural that all their friends should not only be wrought up to fever heat with enthusiasm over their fine showing, but also that they should feel the keenest interest over the outcome of the four games to be played with the Yellow Jackets. The loss of a couple of games to the Atlantans would leave, they fear, a rather black mark on their bright and shining season's record, while the winning of the series would mean not alone that this splendid record had been maintained to the last, but the victory would be sweeter than any other achieved by their team all year simply because it came over their dearest rivals.

Town Filled With Visitors.

It looks like most every town, city and hamlet in the State of Georgia has sent at least one representative up here to see these two games. Never have I seen so many out-of-town visitors here before, and never have I seen so much of colors. Naturally, the Red and Black tinges prevail heavily, but here and there we spot a bit of Gold and White, which tells us that we are not entirely friendless even in the very stronghold of the enemy.

Yells? Yes, we have heard them galore ever since we landed, and the Georgia band as well. By the way, this band is no slouch: it plays real stuff, and plays it well—especially a refrain entitled "Glory, Glory to old Georgia," of which it seems strangely fond,—about as much so as one other band I know of when it comes to a composition which narrates the autobiography of a certain "Rambling Wreck."

Yes, all is excitement here, and nerves are keyed up to the highest tension. It appears that Sanford Field has never before been called upon to house the crowds that will storm it this afternoon and to-morrow. And one week from to-day will witness a repetition of these scenes at Grant Park in Atlanta, I haven't a doubt, regardless of how the games come out over here.

Georgia Men Confident.

Of the Georgia team's condition I know nothing. Their friends and supporters appear confident in the extreme; from which it must be inferred that the team is in apple-pie order. That they can play great ball on their own field they have demonstrated again and again this season, and for my part I have no doubt they will again to-day.

I am expecting to see a great college baseball team in the defenders of the Red and Black, and one that will be well worth winning from, yet not too great a catastrophe to lose to.

Tech has everything to win in these games, and little enough to lose aside from one of those "it might have been" feelings after the game. To lose to such a team as Georgia it will be no more nor less than every team that has visited Athens this year has done, while to win would be to be raised to a pinnacle of joy and glory as great as Georgia herself enjoys.

As for the Tech team, all I can say is that it is in superb shape. There have been better teams at Tech, but worse teams than this have defeated Georgia, and in Athens, too. The boys are playing better ball just now than they have at any previous time this season, and if they happen to hit their top stride this afternoon they will make the sledding hard for even so good an aggregation as Georgia has. Some of the games Tech has played this year would have pushed most any college team in the country—notably the Clemson and Sewanee games, and those won from Mercer and Auburn.

Heisman Has Hope.

It is true Georgia has the dope all in her favor, and also has the advantage of playing the first two games on her home grounds, which is always rated a distinct advantage. However, I recall that Tech teams of the past have had a way of playing the very best ball they knew how to play when they went right over on the Georgia campus to perform; and I know of no reason why these Tech boys shouldn't do that same thing over again.

Yes, it needs to be admitted that in Corley and Morris Georgia has two wonderfully clever pitchers, and the biggest question, in my opinion, is whether the Tech batters can do anything with these flingers. If they do no more to them than other Southern teams have done, Georgia will have things all her own way.

The other "facer" that Tech has to look in the eye is the extent of the damage that the Georgia "cover-rippers" will do to Tech's twirlers. That is a hard one, for it must be granted that Georgia has mauled many and many a good pitcher all over the lot this spring,—pitchers who were, in all probability, quite as good as the best that Tech can put forward. No doubt Georgia will hit "some," and maybe some more. Still, I am not without hopes; they haven't done it yet, anyway.

They will be great games, I am satisfied, no matter if Georgia does win. And there will be great crowds, and terrific excitement and noise, and all that goes with the biggest matches of the year.

Colleges on Good Terms.

I just want to add that I am very, very thankful that the two colleges are at last on the very best of terms and that there is absolutely no chance for a flare out of flame or any other kind of break-out such as used to characterize encounters between the rival teams. There will be good order and tip-top sportsmanship all around, I know; and that is the best of any college game.

Heisman on Job For Hearst Papers

J. W. Heisman, the famous Tech coach, will cover the Tech-Georgia games in Athens for The Georgian and Hearst's Sunday American. He will describe each game completely and his comments will be the very best obtainable. He will follow each and every play closely and his expert opinion on them will be of great interest. Mr. Heisman writes a breezy story, yet he never gets away from facts. He will have another interesting story in to-morrow's Georgian, and the story of Saturday's game in The Sunday American should be a classic.

NO CAUSE FOR PROTEST.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The New York Nationals had no undue advantage over the Philadelphia club in the games played at the Polo grounds late in April by reason of the fact that there was a hole scooped out of the diamond back of the pitchers' box. This is the finding of President Thomas J. Lynch of the National league, on the protest of the Philadelphia club. He orders that the result of the games shall stand as played.

BETTS GOES TO REDS.

LOCAL GOLFERS PLAY WELL AT BIRMINGHAM

By W. R. Tichenor.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 9.—George C. Oliver, of Birmingham, won the low medal score in the qualifying round of the invitation tournament held over the course of the Birmingham Country Club.

In the first round Oliver and F. C. Stahlman, of Nashville, tied with seventy-fours. In the play off in the afternoon Oliver again did seventy-four, beating Stahlman by four strokes.

Smith Cullum, of Birmingham, had a fine chance to win the low score prize, as he was on the eighteenth green within ten feet of the cup with two putts for a seventy-three. He was short on his first, was over with his second and then missed an easy one, which would have put him in the tie.

Captain E. T. Winston led the Atlanta golfers with a seventy-seven. He was fifty. Lowry Arnold did a seventy-nine and yours truly did an eighty, which puts three Atlanta players in the first flight.

F. G. Byrd and G. W. Adair did eighty-four and qualified in the second flight. D. Brown and C. J. Holditch qualified in the third flight and are drawn against each other for the first match Friday morning.

Walton Griffith also qualified in the third flight, as did C. E. Corwin, R. P. Jones and T. B. Paine qualified in the fourth flight. Dr. Frank Holland found lots of trouble on his round and qualified in the fifth flight.

Players from New Orleans, Chattanooga, Nashville, Montgomery and Atlanta are in attendance. The course is in good shape and many low scores are likely to be made in the matches to be played.

AUBURN DOWNS CLEMSON IN FIRST GAME; SCORE 9 TO 3

AUBURN, ALA., May 9.—With Davis on the mound twirling sensational ball, Auburn won the first game of the series from Clemson here by a score of 9 to 3.

Ezell, Clemson's premier pitcher, started with a rush, pitching no-run, no-hit ball until the fifth inning, striking out ten out of the first seventeen men before him. He weakened in the sixth and the Auburn team scored three runs by bunching a single and two two-base hits with an error.

With the score tied in the sixth inning Auburn went ahead in the seventh, scoring two runs on a hit and a wild throw to second.

In order to cinch the game in the eighth Harris singled, Davenport followed with an infield hit, but Harris was thrown out overrunning third. Locke was safe on a muff by Corator, and Davenport scored on Williams' two-bagger; Graydon hit safely, scoring Locke and Williams, and scored a ninth run later on Louiselle's drive on second.

BUCK WEAVER WILL OPPOSE BILLS TO-DAY

By Joe Agler.
Crackers' First Baseman.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., May 9.—The Crackers finally broke their losing streak yesterday and now hope to win a number of successive games. The boys played great ball yesterday and showed more dash and vim than they displayed in their last four games put together. The final score was: Crackers, 7; Billikens, 3.

Long and Smith divided the honors of the day, although Gilbert Price twirled good ball. The former pair pounded out home runs and helped pile up runs to our credit.

I look for Bill Smith to send "Buck" Weaver to the slab this afternoon, with Graham catching. The latter has had a long rest and should show some of his old stuff. Manager Dobbs is in a hard way for pitchers and is trying to secure Becker from us. He could use him now, as he has no portside pitcher on his staff. Dobbs said this morning that he did not know whom he would use against us this afternoon.

"Big Bill" Chappelle joined us yesterday and looks fit and ready to go in and win ball games for the Crackers. We also expect Harry Bailey to be with us soon. His ankle is coming around fast now, and he should be in the game any day now.

The Billikens are without their star pitcher, E. Brown. He is on the sick list, and it looks as if it will be some time before he will be able to don a uniform. Snyder, who twirled against us yesterday, is but a youngster and needs more experience.

GOTCH AND ZBYSZKO MAY MEET ON MAT IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, May 9.—Plans were laid here to-day for the Frank Gotch-Stanislaus Zbyszko championship wrestling match here, and the syndicate that is back of the proposed plan is almost certain to land the clash. It became known here that Gotch has practically given his consent to such a meeting, and Manager Herman, who guides the affairs of the Pole, is only too anxious to accept. A purse of $25,000 has been offered for the battle.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Things have not changed greatly in the American League this week, except that the Washington club is holding up with a persistence that makes it look like a strong contender for the flag. Johnson is pitching wonderful ball, the best of his career. The Athletics and Red Sox are alarmed.

"I thought he was good last year," an American League player told me the other day in discussing Johnson, "but I never saw anything like the way he is traveling this season. He has gone forty-two innings without being scored on, and the chances are he will go forty-two more. He has everything in the world, and his fast ball has the speed of a bullet and the worst jump or the best I ever looked at. It depends upon the point of view whether it is the best or worst. It looked like the worst to me, because I was batting against him. He has been calling what he intends to throw against opposing batters. He did this repeatedly in the series with the Yankees.

"Then he would shoot up the ball with the old jump on it. And the batter missed it just as widely as if he had no notion of the prescription. That is going some when the pitcher can tip the batter off to his stuff and get away with it.

* * *

"THE Washington team is full of dash and ginger, and is playing fast ball. They will give the Athletics a great fight, but I do not expect to see the Senators hold the pace they are setting now."

That is the opinion of a veteran American Leaguer, who did not want his name mentioned.

After pitching in Philadelphia on Saturday and losing because Cravath, who is hitting very hard this season, pumped a home run into the bleachers, I returned to New York on Sunday and met "Eddie" Collins, the second baseman of the Athletics, with whom I have been acquainted for some time.

"How does the race look in the American League?" I asked him, "talking shop" as usual.

"The Washington club is the one we've got to beat, and I think we can do it," he said. "They are carrying lots of 'pep' now, but the supply won't last through the season. The boys are bound to slow down. If anything should happen to Johnson, they are gone, because he is carrying the club. Besides Johnson, Hughes is the only other pitcher we have had a look at so far. Groom seems to be traveling along pretty well, judging from the scores against other clubs. Cashion is too wild right now to be of much value. The rest of the team looks good, with every man playing at his best at present. Let them hit a little slump, however, and it is going to take a lot of the pepper out of them."

"HOW about the Athletics?"

"We're in pretty fair shape. Our pitching department caused the most ante-season fretting. Plank is going fine, and Bender seems to be rounding into form now. Coombs is the member of the veteran trio who is to the bad. He is laid up in bed in Philadelphia with a high fever, and I don't know what is the matter with him. He has some kind of fever, and his temperature has been up around 104 for several days. John has never been right since that time he hurt himself in the world's series with the Giants. His health has been bad, and during that rainy spell when we were in Washington he was taken ill and had to be sent home. It is problematical whether he will be in any kind of shape before the middle of the summer. 'Connie' is worried about him.

"ALL the young pitchers look pretty good, and we are bound to get at least one man from the flock to help out Bender and Plank. Houck has been twirling good ball so far, and the other squabs have the ability, but get nervous when the game becomes tight. They will outgrow this. The club is hitting the ball hard, and playing together well. So far we have not had any injured players outside of Coombs' illness; but let me touch wood, quick."

A good line on the strength of the teams in each league can be drawn when the present intersectional series is completed. That is what always tells on the clubs—the long trips away from home.

FODDER FOR FANS

Johnson, the Indian pitching recruit of the Reds, looks like one of the best pitching finds in recent years. He's won all of the Reds' five victories.

Everybody laughed at Charley Ebbets last winter when he built a baseball plant with a capacity of 35,000. And now Ebbets is laughing at the erstwhile laughers. If the Dodgers keep up their winning streak, Ebbets will have to enlarge his park.

* * *

The Dodgers, by beating the Cubs yesterday, are now within 9 points of second place and 25 points of first place.

* * *

The White Sox jumped all over the Senators' pitchers yesterday and romped home easy winners.

* * *

The lowly Braves bumped the Pirates again yesterday and the Pittsburg fans are wondering just when their pets are going to stop skidding.

* * *

The Athletics' victory over the Browns yesterday made the sixth straight win for the Quakertown athletes.

* * *

Johnnie Evers, the "Keystone King," put up a weird fielding exhibition yesterday, making three errors, two of which resulted in runs for the Dodgers, enough to give them a victory.

* * *

A great batting rally in the ninth enabled the Cardinals to snatch a 5 to 4 victory from the Phillies.

* * *

The major league baseball season to date has furnished some big surprises, in the National League the Giants and Pirates were doped to fight it out for first place all the way. Instead, they are wallowing around in the second division, and the Cardinals and Dodgers, who were accorded cellar places, are within a few points of first place.

* * *

In the American, the Boston Red Sox were expected to repeat. All the dopesters treated them to a flying start. However, the Boston boys are far down in the second division and the Naps and White Sox, who weren't figured to have a look in, are snugly ensconced in first division places, within hailing distance of the leading Athletics.

* * *

But the season is still young.

CROSS DEFEATS HARRY TENDALL, BUT IS ROBBED

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—Leach Cross, of New York, hero of many ring battles, gave Harry Trendall, St. Louis' best lightweight, a sound beating in the feature battle at the Coliseum last night, only to have Referee Harry Sharpe hand the verdict to the home boy.

The best that even Trendall's own friends looked for was a draw, and the round by round notes taken by experts showed Cross had a good margin.

Trendall left the ring a badly marked up man, both as to his face and body, while Cross went to his dressing room without a scratch.

WHITE AND BRITTON BOUT WANTED BY GOTHAM CLUB

CHICAGO, May 9.—A Charlie White-Jack Britton match now is likely. It would be a certainty but for the fact that the local featherweight is matched to battle Joe Thomas, of New Orleans, in a return go in the latter's city on May 19. Nate Lewis, who guides the pugilistic destinies of White, to-day received a wire from Gil Boag, of the Forty-fifth Avenue Athletic Club in New York, offering him May 20 as the date for a match between White and Britton.

The terms are perfectly satisfactory to Lewis and nothing is more pleasing to him than to land such a battle, but he must go through with the Southern battle. Lewis lost no time in answering Boag, in the hope of securing a later date.

JOHNSON WITHIN THREE INNINGS OF A RECORD

CHICAGO, May 9.—Walter Johnson needs to pitch only three more scoreless innings to excel Jack Coombs' great 1910 record of 46 successive runless rounds. Johnson went to Engel's rescue Monday against Boston and blanked the Red Sox for five stanzas, while his helpmates were able to score two runs and win in the twelfth round.

Johnson has not yielded an earned run this season, although he was scored on his first inning out.

By the Sweat of His Brow

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WILL you be good enough," asks M. E., "to tell me if it is proper for a girl to kiss a young man who tells her he loves her but can not marry her for some time to come owing to the fact that he is not in a position to support her at the present time, and may never be able to do so?"

If kisses be classed as luxuries or necessities depends solely on the years of the one making the classification. Youth regards them as necessities, and Age knows they are but idle luxuries, meaningless though not unpleasant, and an altogether unsanitary method of expressing an affection that sometimes lasts little longer than the kiss itself.

But, be they luxuries or necessities, they should be classed among the many things which a man should be compelled to earn by the sweat of his brow. Unless he can earn a living, and by the sweat of his brow provide bread, he is not entitled to kisses. Unless he can go forth and with muscle and brain produce the price of a nest for his bride, he hasn't earned the right to be kissed by anybody in the world but his mother.

Is an Insult.

The kiss that is given to a girl with the declaration, "I love you, but I can not afford to marry you; I am not in position to support you now, and may never be able to do so," is an insult.

It is as if he said to her: "It gratifies me to kiss you, and for that reason I seek the privilege. I can do nothing for you and my monopoly of your affection will serve no other purpose than to place you in an embarrassing position, and to keep other lovers away whose intentions are more honorable. But it pleases me to kiss you, and when I grow tired of kissing you I can take my avowals of love to some other girl. They carry no promise with them, no obligation, no duty, and so long as there are girls in the world who will kiss me, I can enjoy myself without paying the price."

He Is a Loafer.

I take it that this young man is a loafer, and who is there who thinks that the man who loafs when there is so much work to do, is entitled to any girl's kisses? A self-respecting man will seek work, and a self-respecting girl will refuse to bestow any mark of affection on a man who is a professional hobo in the Kingdom of Love.

To care for such a man is a weakness that carries tragedy in its wake. It is the same kind of weakness that marks the woman who supports her husband, finding recompense for her toil in the fact that he never abuses her or speaks cross to her, while other women's husbands who work hard and earn a good living are sometimes fretted and angry.

The girl who permits such a man to kiss her shows a heart that is soft and a brain that is weak. She has two choices of degradation: Either she kisses the man to no other purpose than a waste of time and an unsavory memory, or she marries him and takes upon her shoulders the burden of his support.

There is no other alternative.

A Prince Who Plays Bagpipes

THE announcement made recently that the Prince of Wales, in the interval of his studies at Oxford, is learning to play the bagpipes under the tuition of Pipe Major W. Rose, of the Second Scots Guards, surprised many people, and particularly those who have an inherent dislike to the much-abused instrument. But his royal highness, in taking up the bagpipe as a musical accomplishment, is merely carrying on a tradition of the royal house, many of the members of which have always had a liking for the merry chant of the pipes. Queen Victoria had her piper at Balmoral, and so had King Edward, and to-day there is one attached to the royal establishment, for King George is fond of bagpipe music as his father and his royal grandmother were.

Early Morning Skirt.

When the court is in residence in the Highlands it is customary for the royal piper, dressed in full Highland costume, to march backward and forward in front of the royal apartments every morning and awaken the household with the "skirl" of his pipes. On official occasions, too, when the Balmoral Highlanders are welcoming the king and queen on their arrival at their Scottish residence, or when the retainers on the royal estate are taking part in any function, the king's piper invariably heads the procession of kilted men.

At the Braemar Highland gathering, the great social event of the season on Deeside, which is patronized by royalty, this official always "plays" the king's clansmen around the arena. On a memorable occasion at New Mar Lodge, the seat of the late Duke of Fife, King Edward, along with the princess royal, her two daughters and his grace, marched at the head of a body of Highlanders to the accompaniment of the music of the bagpipes, for which his majesty had as much liking as he had for the kilt when he was in the Highlands.

Highland Garb.

As soon as he reached Balmoral on his periodical visits King Edward—just as King George does to-day—donned the kilt, and, as was often remarked, no Highlander could carry it better than did his majesty. Queen Victoria, too, had as great an admiration for the tartan as she had for the bagpipes. In her majesty's time the walls of Balmoral Castle were draped with the Stuart colors. They have since been replaced by less somber decorations! But neither the wearing of the kilt nor the retaining of a piper is dictated by royal fashion, for every nobleman whose ancestral home is in the Highlands dons the traditional garb as much out of compliment to his ancestry as for any other reason. His guests, as a rule, follow his example as a matter of courtesy, but it does not always happen that they have the necessary habiliments with which to convert themselves for the time being into "Highlanders."

An Amusing Story.

An amusing but well-authenticated story is told of a German prince who was the guest of a Scottish nobleman, and who was so fascinated with the Highland dress that he determined to have a kilt made. He placed the order with a well-known firm of tailors for a complete outfit, richly adorned with silver buckles, and gold-mounted sporran or pouch. He paid something like a hundred guineas for it. The kilt was delivered in due course, and the prince was rigged out the next day in all the splendor of a Highland chieftain! But his highness was unfamiliar with the wearing of the sporran, and to the consternation of his host and hostess and their other guests he appeared with it attached to the back instead of the front of the kilt! Taking the prince quietly aside, Lord ——— suggested that his sporran should be reversed, and with profound apologies for the mistake he had made, his highness placed the pouch in its proper position.

Shoes of the Scot.

It is not only in Scotland that the bagpipes are regarded with favor. The Englishman certainly likes them best at a distance, but they are a very popular instrument among the natives of the Punjab, in India. The late Maharajah of Patiala had a fine band of pipers, wholly composed of Sikhs and other natives, who had been trained by a piper from one of the British Highland regiments. Many of the Indian frontier forces—notably the Gurkha regiments—have bagpipe bands of their own. An amusing instance of Scottish pride is told by a retired Indian officer in this connection. He was one day visiting the Court of the Rajah of Jeend, and noticed that the only person who broke through the rigid rule of etiquette, which forbids the wearing of shoes in the presence of the Rajah, was his bagpiper. Judicious inquiry elicited the fact that the sturdy Scot, when being engaged as the court musician, had stipulated that he was not to be obliged to go about the court in bare feet, as he regarded it as derogatory to his native country that he should do such a thing.

Do You Know That—

About a year ago four students of Boston University started out with a tuning fork to sing their way round the world. They have arrived in London by way of San Francisco, Honolulu, Japan, China, Manchuria and India, and are appearing under the title of the "University Quartette," or the "Four Singing Evangelists." Each can preach a sermon, lead a young men's Sunday school class or blend his voice with the others in the four-part setting of a hymn. Sometimes they make a complete change of program and give a secular entertainment, with humorous songs, Southern coon songs and piano solos.

A rudder with a doorway into the interior is a feature of the Cunarder Aquitania, recently finished. The rudder is so large that a doorway has been constructed in the lower part to admit workmen, so that they can remove the pin which connects the rudder to the ship. This pin is four feet long, and bigger than the heaviest projectile made for modern artillery. When delivered at the builders' yard the rudder was in three parts. After they had been connected and laid upon the ground the distance that had to be walked to pass around the rudder was over 100 feet.

The "homeless" population of London, according to the latest census of the County Council, numbers nearly 22,000. Some time ago a scheme was started by which the police gave lodging tickets to these night wanderers. This has somewhat depleted the Embankment and the streets, but the fact is noted that only about half of the people who are given tickets make use of them. They clearly prefer the wandering life.

False Gratitude

Little Molly May was only six, and on the morning of the story was sobbing her heart out because she had lost a penny. Many looked and sympathized as she trotted down the street; but it was an old gentleman who played the role of practical Samaritan.

"Well, my little maid," he asked, as he patted Molly May's heaving shoulder, "what's the trouble?"

"Boo-hoo! I've lost a penny!" came the muffled answer.

Without a word the old gentleman thrust his hand into his pocket, and handed Molly a penny to replace the one she had lost, saying:

"There—there, now everything will be all right."

But to his utter confusion, the little girl dropped her damp pinafore, gazing at him with an expression in which sorrow strove valiantly with anger, and said:

"Oh, you wicked old man, 'oo had it all the time."

Some Up-to-Date Gowns and How They Are Fashioned

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

HE SHOULD ATONE.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a young man a few months ago with whom I am very much in love. I have had an appointment with him, but he failed to come. He phoned the next day, but I was not at home. Shall I call him up and ask him to call?

JESTINE.

Having failed to keep his engagement, it is due you from him that he make another, and atone for his failure to keep it by being prompt and particularly attentive. You do not owe him the courtesy of asking him to call.

A Golden One.

A white rose in his buttonhole, and cotton gloves on his dirty hands, old Bill Loafer swaggered jauntily along the street. At the corner a friend stopped him, exclaiming incredulously:

"Why, Bill, ol' man, what's happened—bin left some money?"

"No, no," said Bill. "It's me goldin weddin'; I'm celebratin' me goldin weddin'!"

"But why ain't your wife celebratin' it, too?" inquired his friend. "I see 'er goin' to work as usual this mornin'. Why ain't she got a white rose and noo gloves?"

"Er!" muttered Bill, as he grunted reflectively. "She ain't got nuthin' to do wiv it! She's me fourth!"

What the Master Used.

The inspector was talking about adverbs and adjectives.

"Does your master use adverbs and adjectives?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," chorused the scholars.

"Well, what does he use when he does not use adverbs and adjectives?"

There was a silence. Finally a little fellow waved his hand.

"He generally uses a ruler, sir."

THREE QUESTIONS.

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"WHAT is Modesty?" I asked
Of a violet that basked
In a swamp one summer day
Where a sunbeam chanced to stray.
Then the purple violet,
Squandering fragrance, dewy wet,
Spoke from out the swampland low:
"Modesty? I do not know."

Then I asked a lily white,
Paler than an altar-light,
Sinless as a vestal's day;
"What is Purity, I pray?"
And the lily in the dell
Answered me, "I cannot tell."

"What is beauty?" I inquired
Of a rose with crimson fired.
"Beauty, Cleopatra's gift,
Casting Antony adrift.
Beauty? Tell me ere I go."
Said the rose, "I do not know."

Then I asked a girl aged three,
Who explained it all to me.

Hints For the Household

When rinsing flannels and woolens it is best to do so in warm soapy water, as pure warm water makes them hard; also when hanging curtains out to dry, hang them double, as it makes them even and prevents them getting torn so easily.

When about to make a pudding, well flour your board and rolling pin and roll the suet out to a thin sheet. Take between your hands and rub down, when you will find the suet as fine as breadcrumbs.

Hot water marks may be removed from japanned trays by the simple process of rubbing them over well with sweet oil, and then polishing with a little dry flour on a soft duster.

To curl a feather that has become damaged with rain or dew, sprinkle it thickly with common salt and shake before a bright fire until dry, when you will find it as good as new.

When washing pudding cloths throw some orange peelings into the water. This collects the grease and helps to make the cloths white and clean-looking.

Soap that is allowed to dry and harden lasts twice as long as if used when fresh. Therefore it is cheaper to buy it in quantity and keep it in a dry place.

To prevent custard dishes or glasses from cracking when pouring boiled custard into them, place the dish on a damp cloth. This plan is most effective.

To thread a darning-needle, take a length of cotton, put the two ends together, and thread through the eye, put wool through loop and draw it.

A teaspoonful of borax to a quart of water will make hard water soft, so that it can be used for washing the most delicate skin.

If a white shirt is scorched when ironed the brown marks may be removed by rubbing them with a little dry borax.

The Soft Answer.

He was really growing tired of paying off his son's bills—the boy was an undergraduate at one of the big universities. However, after much thought, he decided to be indulgent just once more.

Boys will be boys, he thought. Accordingly, as requested, he sent a check for $250, but accompanied it with stern admonitions to live more wisely and more economically.

"My son," he wrote, "you must remember that your studies are costing me a great deal of money—very much more than I can honestly afford."

"I know it, father—I know it," replied his incorrigible hopeful; "and the tragedy is that I don't study very hard, either."

Long Time for Both.

Affable Passenger—Indeed, and you are a music hall artiste! I am a banker, and I think it must be at least twenty years since I was in a music hall.

Music Hall Artiste (regretfully)—And I'm quite certain, sir, it's twenty years since I was in a bank.

But Aggie was not one to be ignored under any circumstances. Now she spoke with some acerbity in her voice, which could at will be wondrous soft and low.

"Say!" she retorted viciously, "you can't throw any scare into us. You hain't got anything on us. See?"

Cassidy, in response to this outburst, favored the girl with a long stare, and there was hearty amusement in his tones as he answered:

"Nothing on you, eh? Well, well, let's see." He regarded Garson with a grin. "You are Joe Garson, forger." As he spoke, the detective took a note-book from a pocket, found a page and then read: "First arrested in 1891 for forging the name of Edwin Goodsell to a check for ten thousand dollars. Again rearrested June 19, 1893, for forgery. Arrested in April, 1898, for forging the signature of Oscar Hemmenway to a series of bonds that were counterfeit. Arrested as the man back of the Reilly gang in 1903. Arrested in 1908 for forgery."

There was no change in the face or pose of the man who listened to the reading. When it was done, and the officer looked up with a resumption of his triumphant grin, Garson spoke quietly.

"Haven't any records of convictions, have you?"

The grin died and a snarl sprang in its stead.

"No," he snapped, vindictively. "But we've got the right dope on you, all right, Joe Garson." He turned savagely on the girl, who now had regained her usual expression of demure innocence, but with her rather too heavy brows drawn a little lower than their wont under the influence of an emotion otherwise concealed.

"And you're little Aggie Lynch," Cassidy declared as he thrust the note-book back into his pocket. "Just now you're posing as Mary Turner's cousin. You served two years in Burnsing for blackmail. You were arrested in Buffalo, convicted and served your stretch. Nothing on you? Well, well!" Again there was triumph in the officer's chuckle.

Aggie showed no least sign of perturbation in the face of this revelation of her unsavory record. Only an expression of half-incredulous wonder and delight beamed from her widely opened blue eyes and was emphasized in the rounding of the little mouth.

Sarcasm Without Effect.

"Why," she cried, and now there was softness enough in the cooing notes, "my Gawd! It looks as though you had actually been workin'!"

The sarcasm was without effect on the dull sensibilities of the officer. He went on speaking with obvious enjoyment of the extent to which his knowledge reached.

"And the head of the gang is Mary Turner. Arrested four years ago for robbing the Emporium. Did her stretch of three years."

"Is that all you've got about her?" Garson demanded with such abruptness that Cassidy forgot his dignity sufficiently to answer with an unqualified yes.

The forger continued speaking rapidly, and now there was an undercurrent of feeling in his voice.

"Nothing in your record of her about her coming out without a friend in the world and trying to go straight? You ain't got nothing in that pretty little book of your'n about your going to the millinery store where she finally got a job and tipping them off to where she come from?"

"Sure they was tipped off," Cassidy answered, quite unmoved. And he added, swelling visibly with importance: "We got to protect the city."

"Got anything in that record of your'n," Garson went on venomously, "about her getting another job, and your following her up again and having her thrown out? Got it there about the letter you had old Gilder write, so that his influence would get her canned?"

"Oh, we had her right the first time," Cassidy admitted, complacently.

Then the bitterness of Garson's soul was revealed by the fierceness in his voice as he replied:

"You did not! She was railroaded for a job she never done. She went in honest and she came out honest."

The detective indulged himself in a cackle of sneering merriment.

"And that's why she's here now with a gang of crooks," he retorted.

Mr. Cassidy Laughs.

Garson met the implication fairly.

"Where else should she be?" he demanded, violently. "You ain't got nothing in that record about my jumping into the river after her?" The forger's voice deepned and trembled with the intensity of his emotion, which was now grown so strong that any who listened and looked might guess something of the truth as to his feeling toward this woman of whom he spoke. "That's where I found her—a girl that never done nobody any harm, starving because you police wouldn't give her a chance to work. In the river because she wouldn't take the only other way that was left her to make a living, because she was keeping straight! . . . Have you got any of that in your book?"

Cassidy, who had been scowling in the face of this arraignment, suddenly gave vent to a croaking laugh of derision.

"Huh!" he said, contemptuously. "I guess you's stuck on her, eh?"

At the words, an instantaneous change swept over Garson. Hitherto he had been tense, his face set with emotion, a man strong and sullen, with eyes as clear and heartless as those of a beast in the wild. Now, without warning, a startling transformation was wrought. His form stiffened to rigidity after one lightning-swift step forward, and his face grayed. The eyes glowed with the fires of a man's heart in a spasm of hate. He was the embodiment of rage as he spoke huskily, his voice a whisper that was yet louder than any shout.

"Cut that!"

The eyes of the two men locked. Cassidy struggled with all his pride against the dominant fury this man hurled on him.

"What?" he demanded, blusteringly. But his tone was weaker than its wont.

"I mean," Garson repeated, and there was finality in his accents, a deadly quality that was appalling, "I mean, cut it out—now, here, and all the time! It don't go!" The voice rose slightly. The effect of it was more penetrant than a scream. "It don't go . . . Do you get me?"

There was a short interval of silence, then the officer's eyes at last fell. It was Aggie who relieved the tension of the scene.

"He's got you," she remarked, airily. "Oi, oi! He's got you!"

There were again a few seconds of pause, and then Cassidy made an observation that revealed in some measure the shock of the experience he had just undergone.

"You would have been a big man, Joe, if it hadn't been for that temper of yours. It's got you into trouble once or twice already. Some take it's likely to prove your finish."

Garson relaxed his immobility, and a little color crept into his cheeks.

"That's my business," he responded, dully.

"Anyway," the officer went on, with a new confidence, now that his eyes were free from the gaze that had burned into his soul, "you've got to clear out, the whole gang of you and do it quick."

Aggie, who as a matter of fact began to feel that she was not receiving her due share of attention, now interposed, moving forward till her face was close to the detective's.

"We don't scare worth a cent," she snapped, with the virulence of a vixen. "You can't do anything to us. We ain't broke the law." There came a sudden ripple of laughter, and the charming lips curved joyously as she added: "Though perhaps we have bent it a bit."

Cassidy sneered, outraged by such impudence on the part of an ex-convict.

"Don't make no difference what you've done," he growled. "Gee!" he went on with a heavy sneer. "But things are coming to a pretty pass when a gang of crooks gets to arguing about their rights. That's fanny, that is!"

"Then laugh!" Aggie exclaimed, insolently, and made a face at the officer. "Ha, ha, ha!"

"Well, you've got the tip," Cassidy returned, somewhat disconcerted, after a stolid fashion of his own. "It's up to you to take it, that's all. If you don't, one of you will make a long visit with some people out of town, and it'll probably be Mary. Remember, I'm giving it to you straight."

Aggie assumed her formal society manner, exaggerated to the point of extravagance.

"Do come again, little boy," she chirruped, caressingly. "I've enjoyed your visit so much!"

But Cassidy paid no apparent attention to her frivolousness; only turned and went noisily out of the drawing room, offering no return to her daintily inflected good-afternoon.

For her own part, as she heard the outer door close behind the detective, Aggie's expression grew vicious, and the heavy brows drew very low, until the level line almost made her prettiness vanish.

"The truck-horse detective!" she sneered. "An eighteen collar and a six-and-a-half hat! He sure had his nerve, trying to bluff us!"

But it was plain that Garson was of another mood. There was anxiety in his face as he stood staring vaguely out of the window.

"What Have We Done."

"Perhaps it wasn't a bluff, Aggie," he suggested.

"Well, what have we done. I'd like to know?" the girl demanded, confidently. She took a cigarette and a match from the tabouret beside her and stretched her feet comfortably, if very inelegantly, on a chair opposite.

Garson answered with a note of weariness that was unlike him.

"It ain't what you have done," he said, quietly. "It's what they can make a jury think you've done. And, once they set out to get you—God, how they can frame things! If they ever start out after Mary——," He did not finish the sentence, but sank down into his chair with a groan that was almost of despair.

The girl replied with a burst of careless laughter.

"Joe," she said gayly, "you're one grand little forger, all right, all right. But Mary's got the brains. Pooh, I'll string along with her as far as she wants to go. She's educated, she is. She ain't like you and me, Joe. She talks like a lady and, what's a damned sight harder, she acts like a lady. I guess I know. Wake me up any old night, and ask me—just ask me, that's all. She's been tryin' to make a lady out of me!"

The vivaciousness of the girl distracted the man for the moment from the gloom of his thoughts, and he turned to survey the speaker with a cynical amusement.

"Swell chance!" he commented dryly.

"Oh, I'm not so worse! Just you watch out." The lively girl sprang up, discarded the cigarette adjusted an imaginary train and spoke lispingly in a society manner much more moderate and convincing than that with which she had favored the retiring Cassidy. Voice, pose and gesture proclaimed at least the excellent mimic.

"How do you do, Mrs. Jones! So good of you to call! . . . My dear Miss Smith, this is indeed a pleasure." She seated herself again, quite primly now, and moved her hands over the tabouret appropriately to her words. "One lump or two? . . . Yes, I just love bridge. No, I don't play," she continued, simpering; "but, just the same, I love it." With this absurd ending, Aggie again arranged her feet according to her liking on the opposite chair. "That's the kind of stuff she's had me doing," she rattled on in her coarser voice, "and believe me, Joe, it's damned near killing me. But all the same," she hurried on, with a swift revulsion of mood to the former serious topic. "I'm for Mary strong! You stick to her, Joe, and you'll wear diamonds. . . . And that reminds me! I wish she'd let me wear mine, but she won't. She says they're vulgar for an innocent country girl like her cousin, Agnes Lynch. Ain't that fierce? . . . How can anything be vulgar that's worth a hundred and fifty a carat?

To Be Continued To-morrow.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

PA took me fishing yesterday. It was a beautiful day wen we started out & Pa sed it was jest the kind of a day to catch a lot of fish.

Doant you think you ought to take a guide, deerest, sed Ma. You know we are strangers to this seckshun & you mite not be abel to find the right places to fish. My father used to alwe-ys talk a guide with him wen he went fishing in a strange country. He was always afrade that he mite git lost.

Thare is no danger of you losing me that eesy, said Pa. Doant you worry about that.

I know thare is no chanst to lose you, sed Ma, but I shud hate to lose littel Bobbie. Pleese talk a guide.

Thare is no danger around this open country, sed Pa, we doant need a guide; cum on, Bobbie. Doant fergit to hang onto that lunch. We will need it by noon.

He Got Tired.

After we had walked for about two hours I began to git kind of tired & I cud see that Pa was gitting tired, too. How far is this stream? I asked Pa. I doant want to walk all day. It cant be very much further, said Pa. The man at the hotel toald us to keep walking thru this patch of hard wood, due north, till we caim to a big pine tree and then to go about two miles thru a spruce patch until we caim to the stream. Bobbie, sed Pa, doant you hear a littel trout stream purling anywhere?

No, I sed, & I am lissening as hard as I can.

Doant you hear any kind of a stream purl at all? sed Pa.

No, I sed, not any kind of a stream, & I aint going to walk much further, eether.

Then Pa beegan talking to me about one time wen he took sum frends along trout fishing in upper Mishigan. Thay all thot I was lost, sed Pa. Thare was two ladies in the crowd & thay was the bravest in the party. The men looked awful worried, sed Pa; thay kep telling how we was up aggenst it, but the ladies jest kep on laffing and cheering thare husbands. Thay had perfeck faith in me beekaus I herd one of them tell the other that I looked so self-reliant that she wud trust me anyware to keep peepul from danger. Yes, sed Pa, those ladies trusted me & thare faith in me was justified. Presently we caim to our destination, Pa sed, & the ladies sed thay felt like hugging me.

I cud see that Pa was talking kind of absent-minded beekaus all the time he was talking he kep looking around in the woods & I knew he dident know his way.

Jest then Pa sed Bobbie, Bobbie, I hear it, I hear it. It is the sound of running water that I hear. Dident I tell you, Bobbie?

They Hear It.

Sure enuff, I herd the running water, too, so both of us began to walk faster toward a cleering. After we git to the brook, Bobbie, sed Pa, we will arrange our tackel & go after the speckled buties.

Jest then we caim out into the cleering ware we had herd the running water & Pa & me neerly fell over. We was back to the littel hotel from wich we had started out from. We had went in a cirkel. Ma was setting on the porch grinning at Pa, & the sound of the running water was water cumming from a hose. The hired man was washing the barn.

Now Ma calls Pa Isaak Walton.

Uncle's Sporting Trophies.

Tom Brown and Jack Smith had been schoolmates together, but, as often happens, had drifted apart during the years that followed. Then, quite accidentally, they met again one day, and somehow the conversation turned to the subject of athletics.

"Let me see!" said Brown. "You never came across my brother, did you? He's a fine runner, you know. Why, only last week he won a gold medal in a Marathon race."

"Ah!" said Smith, raising his eyebrows in genuine admiration. Then, a faint smile playing around his lips, he added: "And did I ever tell you about my uncle?"

"Don't think so," replied Brown.

"Well in his day, not only did he get a gold medal for five miles, and one for ten miles, but two sets of carvers for cycling, a silver medal for swimming, two cups for wrestling, to say nothing of badges for boxing and rowing.

"You see," Smith continued, while his friend sat speechless with amazement, "the uncle in question kept a pawnshop."

Her Love For Romance

A HUMOROUS STORY.

AS a little girl Albertine always sat in the chair in the farthest corner when she went to children's parties. She had a meek, pretty little face, abundant yellow hair and large, appealing blue eyes that held a shadow of apology in them for her temerity in presuming to exist. She retained the modest violet atmosphere after she was grown up.

Other girls might blossom into daring coquettes and fascinating belles, but Albertine always kept in the background. Whenever people looked at her they involuntarily thought of lace mitts and hoopskirts and curtseys. They felt that Albertine should be put under glass.

This being the case, it was astonishing that down in her secret heart Albertine had a fierce love of the daring, the wild and gay and the extreme. When she picked out a dress design she always chose the rankest, most alarming atrocity. The dressmaker said, "Oh, certainly!" and then proceeded to modify the pattern to suit Albertine's appearance.

She Suspected.

Things had a way of drooping on her in old-fashioned lines. She wanted to look frightfully smart and somehow she never did. Secretly she suspected the dressmakers, but she never dared accuse them.

It was the same way when it came to the young men. Let a perfectly steady, sober youth who earned a regular salary and was good to his mother come her way and Albertine raised her little nose and sniffed. She simply could not see him. She admired extravagantly the sort of young man who dashed down the street wearing crimson silk socks and a tie to match and the latest cry in waistcoats, and if he was followed by a bulldog so much the better. If people raised their eyebrows and coughed discreetly when his name was mentioned it made the situation perfect.

Albertine always felt loftily then that she was an experienced, worldly wise person and the eyebrow raisers were narrow provincials. Usually the bulldoggy young man never progressed in the acquaintance further than raising his hat and casting an entrancing smile at her; but Albertine was satisfied with just adoring him from a distance.

Her family was quite alarmed when she fell in love with Harry Jungles, because Harry always was in debt and worked only semi-occasionally, and Albertine's relatives had a great deal of money. Harry seemed awake to this fact, for he actually called on Albertine and talked poetry to her in the parlor in low, rich tones, and told her how the world misjudged him. Albertine went so far as to powder her already white nose and her mother caught her once using an eyebrow pencil. It was much the same as though an Easter lily had begun to rouge. The situation was saved, however, by the Sheriff's removing Harry for forgery, and after that Albertine wore what she thought was a heartbroken expression and thought she threw into her face deep lines of experience and suffering.

After Harry several others of the same kind followed. Therefore, having long hovered over Albertine in fear that she would do some foolish thing and spoil her life, her family was entranced when she became engaged to Jeffrey. It all happened so suddenly that one was scarcely aware Jeffrey was on earth before he was introducing himself as the future son-in-law and brother.

Jeffrey was absolutely as nearly perfect as he could be for Albertine. Liberal-minded people might say he erred on the side of rigidness and propriety and possible narrowness, but one felt that he would always be at home at 6 o'clock sharp for dinner and that Albertine never would have to hang out of the front window trying to distinguish whether it was wavering down the street at 1 o'clock in the morning. Jeffrey choked at the sight of a cigarette, wouldn't be caught dead at a dog show and said his wife never should be permitted to wear decollete gowns in the evening.

What She Said.

The more people considered the matter the more inexplicable it became. Finally her dearest friend flatly asked Albertine to explain Jeffrey's attractions.

"You see," said the dearest friend, "with your ideas I can't understand how you happen to fall in love with Jeffrey, of all men."

"Of all men!" echoed Albertine in pitying astonishment. "Why, I'll tell you, Susie—because I recognized at once that Jeffrey is the most sophisticated sort of person. He's such a man of the world. I can't abide these goody-goody men!"

"WHEN Spring comes laughing by vale and hill,
By windflower dancing and daffodil,
Sing stars of morning—sing morning skies,
Sing blue of speedwell, and my love's eyes,
. . . . . .
And gay birds gossip the orchard long."

The Change in George

"WHEN I first noticed the change in George," said the blond woman, who was no bigger than a minute, "I thought it was indigestion. It is perfectly wonderful how much a man's liver is responsible for! But when I mentioned the doctor he was quite violent. In fact, he was rude and stamped around. It is hard on the rugs when a man acts that way.

"'Don't roar at me, George!' I told him.

"'I've got to!' he said in a regular Bengal tiger sort of way. 'I've got to in order to maintain my supremacy in the home!'

"Now, George has always been such a perfect gentleman and so mild that you may well imagine that I was amazed. 'See here, George Guesser!' I said to him. 'Tell me at once what you mean!'

"This Was Different."

"George frowned awfully. His eyebrows looked like a lilac hedge that hasn't been trimmed since last spring. Then he cleared his throat. 'I've just waked up to the fact,' said he, 'that I have been taking a back seat and allowing you to think I didn't count. Why, when I consider how near I have been to losing your love it makes me shudder! I just read a wonderful article——'

"'Oh!' said I. 'An article! But do you believe all you read?'

"'This was different,' George said. Then he explained.

"'It was in one of the scientific magazines, and the writer began by saying that every woman sits and waits the coming of her lord and master and is ready to follow when he beckons. He does not woo or beseech; he takes; he——'

"'George Guesser,' I said to him, 'whenever you waste time beckoning me instead of coming where I am I'd like to know it! Do you think I am a little yellow puppy dog?' My, but I was angry!

"George looked sad. 'I see I have allowed you to get away from me,' he mused. Then he roared at me. 'There is never a man brute so brutal but a woman clings to him!'" he quoted and beat the air with his arms. 'That was a fundamental point with the writer. He said that if the man cringed before the woman she had only contempt for him, but that if he beat her she respected him and thanked her stars that her man was so strong. Further, she was completely happy to think that the gentleman who had loosened her front teeth belonged entirely to her. I hate to do it, Evangeline, but you've got to respect me and look up to me, even if I have to follow that writer's advice and beat you! In fact, he says, a great many women require more or less beating to make them loving dutiable wives!'

George Shook His Head.

"'George,' I said when he stopped for breath, 'just what is your intention? Am I to understand that you are about to knock me down in order to make sure of my imperishable affection? Are you contemplating denting my face for the purpose of making me too utterly happy to live? Because if you are——'

"George shook his head as if he were considering something under a microscope. 'What a mistake I've been making,' he confided to himself. 'Why, Evangeline, you are entirely lacking in that devotion which is part fear and which is necessary to make a happy wife! It is all my fault!'

"Right here I concluded that it was time to take George by the hand and lead him forth to safety. 'Darling,' said I, 'if you will tell me how a woman is going to stand in any fear of a man after she has viewed him crawling under the bed after his collar button or trying to light the gas with an already burned match or attempting to answer his child who wants to know what there would have been if there hadn't been anything I shall consider myself in your debt!'

"'Not wishing to thrust myself forward or unduly trumpet my own worth, I still would bet my false hair that if I ever get hold of that scientific friend of yours long enough to whisper a few thoughts into his ear he would shrivel up and blow away! And now if you really yearn to hold my love and affection, go down and shake up the furnace, because the house is getting cold!'

"'Oh, vur-ry well,' said George, peevishly, as he headed for the basement stairs. 'That's the way you always act when I attempt any real progress. Women aren't scientific!'

"'Indeed, they're not!' I told him. 'They're just plain sensible!'"

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"THANKS, very much. I'm having rather a difficult task of it, for our friend, the Constable here, corroborates Miss Renfrew's statement to the hair, and yet I am absolutely positive that there is a mistake."

"There is no mistake—no, not one! The wicked one to say it still!"

"Oh, that's all very well, madame; but I know what I know; and when you tell me that a dead man can ask questions. * * * Pah! The fact of the matter is that the Constable only fancies he heard Mr. Nosworth speak. That's where the mistake comes in. Now, look here. I once knew of an exactly similar case and I'll tell you just how it happened. Let us suppose"—strolling leisurely forward—"let us suppose that this space here is the covered passage and you—step here a moment, please. Thanks, very much—and you are Miss Renfrew, and Gorham here is himself, and standing beside her as he did then."

"Wasn't beside her, sir—at least not just exactly. A bit behind her—like this."

"Oh, very well, then, that will do. Now then. Here's the passage and here are you, and I'll just show you how a mistake could occur and how it did occur under precisely similar circumstances. Once upon a time when I was in Paris—"

"It's a Play."

"In Paris, monsieur?"

"Yes, madame—this little thing I'm going to tell you about happened there. You may or may not have heard that a certain French dramatist wrote a play called 'Chanticler'—or maybe you never heard of it? Didn't, eh? Well, it's a play where all the characters are barnyard creatures—dogs, poultry, birds and the like—and the odd fancy of men and women dressing up like fowls took such a hold on the public that before long there were Chanticler dances and Chanticler parties in all the houses and Chanticler 'turns' on at all the music halls until wherever one went for an evening's amusement one was pretty sure of seeing somebody or another dressed up like a cock or a hen and running the thing to death. But that's another story, and we'll pass over it. Now, it just so happened that one night—when the craze for the thing was dying out and barnyard dresses could be bought for a song, I strolled into a little fourth-rate cafe at Montemartre and there saw the only Chanticler dancer that I ever thought was worth a sou. She was a pretty, dainty little thing—light as a feather and graceful as a fairy. Alone, I think she might have made her mark, but she was one of what in music halldom they call 'a team.' Her partner was a man—a bad dancer, an indifferent singer, but a really passable ventriloquist."

The Expose.

"A ventriloquist, monsieur—er—er."

"Cleek, madam—name's Cleek, if you don't mind!"

"Cleek! Oh, lummy!" blurted out Mr. Nippers. But neither "Madam" nor Constable Gorham said anything. They merely swung round and made a sudden bolt; and Cleek, making a bolt, too, pounced down on them like a leaping cat, and the sharp click-click of the handcuffs he had borrowed from Mr. Nippers told just when he linked their two wrists together.

"Game's up, Mlle, Fifine, otherwise Mme. Nosworth, the worthless wife of a worthless husband!" he rapped out sharply. "Game's up, Mr. Henry Nosworth, bandit, pickpocket and murderer! There's a hot corner in hell waiting for the brute-beast that could kill his own father, and would, for the simple sake of money. Get at him quick, Mr. Narkom. He's got one free hand! Nip the paper out of his pocket before the brute destroys it! Played, sir, played! Buck up, Miss Renfrew, buck up, little girl!—you'll get your 'Boy' and you'll get Mr. Septimus Nosworth's promised fortune after all! 'God's in his heaven and all's right with the world!'"

"Yes, a very, very clever scheme indeed, Miss Renfrew," agreed Cleek. "Laid with great cunning and carried out with extreme carefulness—as witness the man's coming here and getting appointed constable and biding his time, and the woman serving as cook for six months to get the entree to the house and to be ready to assist when the time of action came round. I don't think I had the least inkling of the truth until I entered this house and saw the woman. She had done her best to pad herself to an unwieldly size, and to blanch portions of her hair, but she couldn't quite make her face appear old without betraying the fact that it was painted—and hers is one of those peculiarly pretty faces that one never forgets when one has ever seen it.

To Be Concluded To-morrow.

The Professor Ate Nuts

"YES," said Professor J. Haddensfield Joy, "I used to be a vegetarian myself. I have seen the time when a big porterhouse steak or a fat and lean slice of ham made me tear my hair, realizing how barbarous is man. Broiled spring chicken made me grate my teeth in rage.

"Not only was I vegetarian, but I was one of those who follow along lines of the most extreme differentiation. I couldn't eat pieplant tops or white oak bark, just because they were vegetable substances. I specialized in cocoanuts.

"I bought a hundred fine, fresh nuts. These I put in a cool and shady place, and thereupon discarded all allegiance to such foods as have dwarfed man's noble intellect. My family ate as usual.

"When morning dawned on my first day of real liberty I got a handsaw and sawed off the top of a nut. Then I drank of the life-giving fluid inside. After that I proceeded to feast on the meat of the nut, as my distant ancestors had done. When I started for the laboratory I took a fine nut under my arm and tried to walk in my usual heavy and methodical stride. It was no use. I felt like hopping along.

A Deep Longing.

"Persons whom I met addressed me as 'professor,' but with a gaze too human to suit me. I found myself looking up into trees with a vague, deep longing. It was as though I had inherited something that had been hidden in my soul's archives all my life. I arrived at the laboratory with my emblem of liberty still under my arm. The rude and thoughtless experimentalists looked and talked as they talk who are in a state of mental slavery. My luncheon made me want to run up and down the halls and passages and climb the posts.

"This glorious life lasted for a week. One night Mrs. Joy had to take a broomstick and punch me down from the picture railing, where I was trying to pass the night. The next day I could nt resist the temptation to climb a tree when I had started to conduct my daily investigation of life's solemn facts at the laboratory. A cocoanut was under my arm. Presently there came speeding along a very big man in a very big automobile. I landed the cocoanut on his head with a precision that I had never learned. In another instant my man was shaking my perch as if he were a concentrated earthquake. All the Joys swarmed around the tree. Mrs. Joy shrieked: 'Don't hurt him—he's been living on cocoanuts!'

The End of It.

"'Turned back into a monkey, has he?' said the man. 'I've been living on raw meat, and if I get my hands on him I'll eat him!' Then he departed.

"All the Joys got hold of me and took me back to the dining room and seated me at the table. Soon there was spread before me a repast consisting of one porterhouse steak, one slice of ham, three slices of bacon and a few other things. I could scarcely walk when I started to work.

"Henceforth give me a full dinner of real food or cut down the trees."

Up-to-Date Jokes

"Bronson's wife used to be one of your old flames, didn't she?"

"Yes; I was in real misery when she threw me over for him."

"Well, that makes you square. Now Bronson's the man in misery."

Patient—But, doctor, you are not asking five dollars for merely taking a cinder out of my eye?

Specialist—er—no. My charge is for removing a foreign substance from the cornea.

"Well, Mr. ——, you have met with a heavy loss."

"Yes," replied the mourner, "she weighed close upon four hundred pounds."

If you wish to pay a pretty compliment to a plain and ignorant woman and at the same time do not wish to be guilty of an untruth, tell her that she is as beautiful as she is accomplished. She will think you are a charming man, and your conscience will be guiltless of a lie.

BOYS AND GIRLS IN PONY CONTEST HAVE MANY VOTES

Names and Standing of Entrants Are Announced---No One Will Have a 'Walkaway' in Race for Beautiful Prizes---Totals Will Leap Upward.

Here are the boys and girls who have entered in The Georgian and Sunday American's contest for the twelve pony outfits.

There is a goodly number of them. Evidently no one is to have a "walkaway." Good, hustling, bright boys and girls they are, with plenty of friends to help them, and all filled with a determination to win.

Of course the figures presented now mean very little. Many of the contestants simply have been nominated. Some others have piled up a good start.

But watch the votes grow!

The totals will leap up by thousands as the days go by.

It's not too late to get your name in the list, but it would be well not to delay. Some of these contestants may have something "up their sleeves." You can't tell. It's time to get busy.

GREAT PUBLIC NOT BITTER TO CORPORATIONS

Dissatisfaction With Business Conditions Exists, but There Is Little Revolutionary Spirit.

By B. C. FORBES.

"If I thought the great body of the American people were as bitter, as hostile to business as many of our legislators I would give up and retire," said one of the country's foremost men of affairs, a man who has built up an important industry, a director in corporations of the first magnitude and the possessor of a large fortune.

* * *

"Do you think the people are as discontented and antagonistic to capital as is often represented—as ugly as Vice President Marshall says they are?" I was asked.

* * *

What do YOU think? Are they? Is it a case of empty vessels making most noise? Or are the majority of American citizens deeply disgusted with the present order of things? Are they on the verge of revolt, as the Vice President alleges? Is widespread revolutionary sentiment cooped up in the average citizen's breast? Is unrest in the United States worse than in other lands? Or is all our fretting and fidgeting, our mania for reform and regulation, our striving after innovations merely part of a world-wide movement toward a fuller measure of democracy?

* * *

These are questions not easy of dogmatic answer. The Hearst publications reach a greater number of Americans than the publications of any other concern in the country, and experience has taught me that they somehow come nearer the heart-beats of the people than any other publications of which I have any knowledge. The readers have a flattering habit of speaking their minds, of voicing approval or disapproval of articles, of taking the writers into their confidence, so to speak. In this way one is able to feel the pulse of the people.

* * *

Hundreds—thousands—of letters come to the business news department —not only from the East, but from the Middle West, the Far West and the South, as what is here written is printed in Hearst newspapers covering virtually the whole Union. Judging by this mass of correspondence from men and women in all ranks of life, there IS a good deal of discontent, of dissatisfaction with existing conditions, of bitterness against corporations, of determination to compel reforms in many directions.

* * *

But of revolutionary, anarchistic sentiment there is extremely little trace.

* * *

Speaking broadly, a great section of the population have the conviction that most ultra-rich capitalists have done things they ought not to have done, and by the doing of which they have taken unfair advantage of the people at large.

* * *

Let me give extracts from some letters received within the last week or two.

* * *

C. H. Burnham, 131 State Street, Boston, writes:

On the strength of the interview given out by Jacob H. Schiff just before Mr. Harriman died—declaring Mr. Harriman was practically a well man—I bought Union Pacific, as at that time I believed Mr. Schiff, and it cost me a good many hundred dollars.

What do you think when Major Higginson comes out in an interview and says there is nothing the matter with the New Haven Railroad?

What is the answer, after reading what is going on before Commissioner Prouty?

From Corning, N. Y., "A Railroader on the Erie," criticising my articles on railroad subjects, writes:

Railroad managers and owners are nothing more or less than straight up and down thieves, robbing the public. They never tell how much they make. But anybody who becomes a railroad manager becomes a millionaire in a few years. They find fault about giving a few cents extra in wages to their men. But such as President Baer, the head of the coal trust, pays $100,000 for a private car. When such things as this are done it only makes you appear ridiculous in the articles you publish in favor of railroad robbers.

COTTON

NEW YORK, May 9.—In the absence of rains, especially in the eastern belt, the cotton market opened steady, with prices at a net gain of 2 to 6 points from Thursday's final. Spot people were good buyers. There was also a short covering movement by the local crowd and there was some outside buying. The selling was attributed mostly to brokers with Southern connection. The market quickly developed additional strength, and prices advanced 2 to 8 points from the opening level. July displayed considerable strength. This option was under heavy buying by shorts and held steady at 10 points advance over the previous close throughout the morning session.

Should there be no rains in the eastern belt, much higher prices are anticipated.

Weather indications overnight are predicted fair in the eastern belt, but other leading cotton States are predicted to have unsettled showers, except Louisiana and East Texas, where the weather will be fair.

The course the market took this morning made it more and more obvious that this is entirely a weather market. Unfavorable advices were received from Manchester, saying that buyers have very bad reports from the other side. It seems like conditions there are becoming bad again. The trade is much quieter. It is said that it is impossible to induce mills to buy cotton.

During the late forenoon the market was quiet but steady, with prices a shade lower than the early high point.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, May 9.—Due 2 to 2½ points higher on near positions, and 1 point lower on late months, this market opened quiet at net unchanged to ½ point lower. At 12:15 p. m., the market was dull but steady; prices unchanged to ½ point lower.

Spot cotton 2 points higher; middling 6.68d; sales 6,000, including 5,000 American.

Port receipts are today estimated at 10,000 bales, as compared with 7,866 last week and 17,415 bales for the corresponding week last year, against 7,743 for the same week the year before.

At the close the market was steady, with prices showing irregularity, being unchanged to 2 points higher on near positions and ½ point lower on distant months from the final figures of Thursday.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

Hayden, Stone & Co.: There seems to be nothing to induce the purchase of cotton.

Logan & Bryan: We think some new incentive will be required to stimulate any activity on the long side.

Atwood, Violett & Co.: We believe sales for quick turns on bulges are preferable.

Norden & Co.: We advise purchases of cotton on breaks.

Miller & Co.: We think chances favor lower prices.

WORLD'S CREDIT BEGINS TO SHOW A GREAT STRAIN

Loans Heavy—New Securities a Drain—Gold Shipments From New York to Paris Deplored.

BY W. R. LAWSON.

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, May 9.—Serious bankers do not look with favor upon the renewal of gold shipments from New York to Paris.

All of the big international banks appear to be loaned up to the danger level, while the big new security issues that are coming along are bound to strain banking credit and resources. This week four new issues came out, and several more are in preparation.

Brazil's $55,000,000.

Brazil wants $55,000,000—$15,000,000 to be used for the repayment of treasury bills. Lever Brothers are putting out $5,000,000 new preference shares, and Baltimore Gas $3,500,000. United Fruit's $12,000,000 four-year coupon notes have been successfully placed.

Between now and the end of the month special settlements are due which are likely to increase the demand for money.

Situation in London.

Lombard Street is enjoying temporary ease owing to end-of-the-month borrowing from the Bank of England, but large repayments will have to be made within the next few days.

Further reduction in the English bank rate is not expected immediately. The Berlin rate is hardening, and if Boerse speculation breaks loose again, easy money may be a remote possibility.

Hitherto, while the war was in progress European stocks have been upheld by finance houses for the purpose of facilitating big loan issues which they were preparing to make later.

American Stocks Firmer.

Between September, 1912, and the end of April, 1913, declines in European stocks have generally been very trifling, while American stocks suffered heavy declines.

From this it is reasoned that American securities offer a better field for a bull campaign.

COTTON GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Joe Gatins is credited with covering a large line of July shorts, but he put them out again in new crop positions above 11 cents.

* * *

A wire from Savannah, Ga., yesterday said that unless it rains in a few days the crop will be damaged considerably.

* * *

Troy, Ala., wired that the crop conditions were going backward, owing to the absence of rains, and that very little cotton is up. In that section of the state cotton chopping is generally finished about May 15.

* * *

Niel estimated the consumption of cotton for the current year at 14,750,000 bales. He said a crop under 15,000,000 bales would warrant higher prices.

Conditions of the crop in Georgia must be pretty bad if the replies received by a New York firm from correspondents in the State are true. Following is the condition of the crop in some of the large producing counties:

Richland—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition poor, no stand. Zebulon—Crop 95 per cent planted; condition bad, too dry. Chiple—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition, very little up. Madison—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition good; dry. Covington—Crop 60 per cent planted; condition fair. Lawrenceville—Crop 80 per cent planted; condition 75 per cent. Jackson—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition fair. Danville—Crop 100 per cent planted; condition, dry weather has prevented its coming up; considerable complaint of the plant already from cool weather. Madison—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition one week backward. Winder—Crop 90 per cent planted; condition 80 per cent; ground very dry and cloudy and look for very poor stand. Bartow—Crop 80 per cent planted; condition very little up; very dry. Chauncey—Crop 75 per cent planted; condition scarcely any cotton up in Georgia at this date. Grantville—Crop 95 per cent planted; condition, none up and will not come until it rains. McRae—Crop 50 per cent planted; condition, very poor stand; much to be planted; seed scarce. Lyons—Crop 60 per cent planted; condition very bad; awfully dry; 50 per cent of seed planted is lost; getting seed to replant all is impossible here. Rochelle—Crop 98 per cent planted; condition good.

Dallas wires: "Some rains in the Panhandle; clear and pleasant elsewhere. Oklahoma clear and cool."

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map is favorable. It shows partly cloudy in the northern half of the belt and in the Atlantics; generally fair elsewhere. There was no rain except at Amarillo, in Northwest Texas. Temperatures are above normal. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, probably unsettled weather, with scattered showers in the northern half of the belt and cooler.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "Needed good general rains have not yet fallen in the Atlantics, consequently the cotton contract reflected marked steadiness yesterday. Heavier spot sales in the Southern markets seemed to suggest that actual cotton owners were taking advantage of the contract steadiness. The new crop position commands concentrated attention at this particular time. The talent as a whole has been forced to admit that the early start, heralded far and wide, has been lost.

"Bulls now claim that the start has dropped behind the normal. Bears hope the start is no later than the normal. In any case, the burden of the proof, insofar as the start is concerned, rests on the shoulders of the big crop people. This, of course, gives the moderate crop fraternity a current advantage, and they are making capital of it by exploiting many adverse reports from the fields, covering the necessity for replanting due to rotting seed and to cool nights. In all of which, continued dry weather in the Atlantics is playing a mildly spectacular role.

"It by no means follows that the size of the ultimate outturn is to be curtailed by the loss of the early start. Replanted fields, encountering favorable weather, may pile up a monster yield. But every adverse development at the inception of the crop creates a liability that must be liquidated by superfavorable conditions later on. Meanwhile, the market is working along conservative lines, and the talent is keeping a close watch on the May position since the fate of the present spot month will serve as a pretty safe guide to what is to follow in July. Yesterday a small short interest in May New Orleans was covered by the broker himself, rather than bid the market up to the point where somebody would sell in the hope of making a profit."

STOCKS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Selling pressure was exerted upon the list at the opening of the stock market to-day and most of the issues sustained declines. Some of the stocks which opened higher either lost all their advance or part of it. Canadian Pacific, which opened ⅝ lower, had increased its decline to 1⅛ within a half hour.

Traders held that the passage of the Underwood tariff bill by the House last night was a depressing factor.

Among the other declines were Amalgamated Copper ⅜, United States Steel common ⅜, Lehigh Valley ⅝, Atchison ⅛, Pennsylvania ¼, Chesapeake and Ohio ⅜, Erie ⅛, California Petroleum ¼.

The specialties were the only group showing strength. American Beet Sugar advanced ⅝. Chino Copper was up ⅛, while Consolidated Gas rose ½.

Union Pacific opened ¼ higher, but soon lost its gain and declined ¼. Southern Pacific was ⅜ higher at first, but sold off. Reading began ⅜ higher, but lost its gain and declined.

The curb market was dull.

Americans in London were barely steady.

BEARISH BUREAU REPORT HAS LITTLE OR NO EFFECT

CHICAGO, May 9.—The Inter-Ocean says:

"Wheat traders while putting a bearish construction on the government report did not take it seriously. Some traders regarded the report as having been discounted by the recent decline of 5c. Bulls said they expect to see a continued good export business on every decline, and believe the market heavily oversold and in a position to be easily rallied.

"Those who were bullish on corn believe that there will be no great pressure of receipts for a week or ten days, or until after corn planting is finished. It was intimated that some of the heaviest sellers of late winter were on the buying side for the past few days.

"Oats specialists are inclined to go slow on the selling side until there are more satisfactory reports in regard to the crop from Central Illinois."

Grain Elevators in Trust, U. S. Is Told

Chicago Exchange Offers This Defense Answering Sherman Suit by Government.

CHICAGO, May 9.—That a grain elevator trust, composed of five men, so nearly controls the shipments of grain into Chicago that the call price rule was adopted in self-defense is the answer of the Board of Trade to the Government's anti-trust suit. The suit was filed in February, charging the board with violations of the Sherman law.

The answer asserts that when the call price rule, which forbids board members trading outside exchange hours except at the last board quotation, was adopted five grain elevator owners—not named in the answer—threatened to secure a gigantic monopoly in grain.

The rule prevented their doing it.

GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 9.—Wheat was stronger this morning on small offerings in the pit, coupled with some fair buying by the larger commission concerns.

Cables were lower on the construction placed upon the Government May report, which was made public in the Old World late yesterday. Northwestern receipts were larger than a year ago, while the Argentine shipments were smaller, as was also the Argentine visible.

Liverpool was lower on corn, but prices at Chicago were ⅛c to ¼c better.

Oats acted in sympathy with the other grains and ruled strong.

There was a better feeling in hog products, with prices fractionally higher.

OPINION ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.:

Wheat—Map shows generally clear in Northwest, with rather low temperatures, light rains in Illinois and more or less cloudy in the Ohio Valley. We think the government figures have been discounted. As long as cash demand continues, we believe it will act as a check on further declines in prices.

Corn—We see nothing to cause any decline.

Oats—We favor long side on all setbacks.

Provisions—Packers continue good buyers on the declines.

Wool Trade Waits On Tariff Action

Sales Larger Than Last Week, but Heavy Lots Are Moved Only by Cutting Prices.

BOSTON, May 9.—While rather more wool has changed hands the past week, manufacturers have bought only for piecing out purposes. Both dealers and manufacturers continue waiting for a settlement of the tariff uncertainty. The aggregate of sales is swelled by an occasional sizable transfer at a sacrifice. In this way, some very low prices have recently been made, there being apparently no bottom to the market.

Probably the worst feature at present is the uncertainty. If the traders were assured that the Underwood bill would surely be passed by both Houses substantially in its present form, they could buy the new clip wools with reasonable safety.

Receipts in pounds for the week-end and including Wednesday were as follows:

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Final Deliberation On Whitehall Grade

The final arguments, pro and con, in the Whitehall Street grade matter will be heard to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock by the streets committee of Council at the City Hall, and a decision will be reached as to whether or not $50,000 will be raised and appropriated for the work. Some 500 persons are expected to attend the meeting, since various interests are affected. A large majority of the property owners, it is said, favor the proposed grade, while a few are holding out.

The proposition is to cut down eight feet at Trinity Avenue and to fill that much at Brotherton. The extent of the grading will be from Mitchell Street to the intersection of Forsyth and Whitehall, and the effect of it, according to the people who are in favor of it, will be to help the entire South Side.

Property owners have promised $15,000 to $20,000, and Council will be asked to give the balance.

Realty Transfers Show Gain.

Realty transfers took a big jump in the eighteenth week of 1913, as compared with the eighteenth week in 1912, according to The Fulton County Daily Report. In the former week they totaled $1,061,923, while in the latter the aggregate was $937,099. The number in each instance was the same, 233. Mortgage and loan deeds, personalty items and building permits, were less in both number and amount in 1913, but cancellations jumped more than $20,000.

Big Loan Deed Recorded.

A loan deed made April 1 and involving $65,000 has gone to record from the United States Mortgage and Trust Company of New York to the Mutual Life Insurance Company, on the property at the intersection of Peachtree and Ivy Streets. This lot extends 171 feet southward, 97.4 westward and 160 feet northward.

Large Building Permits.

Having examined plans for the Y. M. C. A. building on Luckie Street and the Livingston Wright apartment at East North Avenue and Willow Street, Building Inspector Hays has issued permits to build. The former is to cost $250,000 and the latter $60,000.

Austin Joins Ansley Agency.

J. M. Austin, who started the Maxwell Automobile Agency in Atlanta and who later was agent for the Marion car, has joined the sales force of the Edwin P. Ansley real estate agency. Mr. Austin is well versed in salesmanship and his friends predict that he will do well in real estate. He hails from South Carolina, but has been in Atlanta five or six years.

Church to Start Building.

Although the Central Baptist Church has owned for several months its lot at the corner of Cooper and Whitehall Streets, the erection of the church is not expected to start before 90 days. The board of deacons had a meeting the other night to talk about plans, and will have something definite to announce in a short while.

Manufacturing for Peachtree.

Light manufacturing will soon start in the lofts of the building at the northeast corner of Peachtree and Cain Streets. The Southern Candy Company has leased from J. Carroll Payne, owner, through Fitzhugh Knox, builder, the second story of this building for candy manufacturing and the first floor for retail purposes.

Johnson Motor Co. Lease.

Another automobile concern has located on Peachtree. The Johnson Motor Company, agents for the Stevens-Duryea, the Little Six and the Chevrolet automobiles, has leased from Dr. J. W. Roberts, through Turman, Black & Calhoun agency, half of the two-story and basement building at 455 Peachtree Street. The lease is for five years and the consideration $3,000 a year. This is the south half of the building, the other portions being leased to the Hendee Manufacturing Company, makers of the Indian motorcycle.

Christian Science Church.

The Christian Science Church, at the northeast corner of Peachtree and Fifteenth Streets, is fast assuming definite proportions. Workmen have completed the foundations and have done a good part of the outside brick work. This church will cost about $85,000 and will be one of the handsomest in the city.

Building Permits.

$250,000—Y. M. C. A., 71 Luckie Street, eight-story reinforced concrete building. King Lumber Company.

$60,000—James L. Wright, North Avenue and Willow Street, three-story brick apartment. R. M. Walker.

$4,000—C. H. Black, Hayden, Luckie and Harris Streets, one-story brick building. Day work.

BUILDING LOTS, BEDFORD PLACE, 10 PER CENT CASH

THESE LOTS are strictly choice, elevated, all improvements and close to Piedmont Park. Go out and look at the lots on the east side of Bedford between Seventh and Eighth. See the money being spent for improvements, note the class of houses going up, then try to find something as close in equally as good for $60 per foot. You CAN'T DO IT.

WE CAN sell nine lots, 51x160, all improvements down, for $2,750 each.

Terms: $275 cash, $275 each year for four years, balance at the end of five years. ONLY SIX PER CENT INTEREST.

Good lots are the sure money-makers. You can't make a mistake in buying such property as this on terms so liberal.

Just remember, it's always the land that advances.

STUDY THE MAP, see what big things are crowded around this particular section, then go out and look the land over, see what little property is not built up, then price that in built-up blocks and you can prove to yourself that a profit is sure on these lots on Bedford Place.

If You Are in Debt, You Are a Fly Glued to the Flypaper.

The More You Struggle, the Tighter You Stick. Soon Your Courage Is Gone and You Are a Dead Fly.

Copyright, 1913.

The picture at the top of this page is a picture for more than half of all the people in this country.

More than half the people are in debt—that is to say, they are living beyond their means, or they are spending every cent.

And the man who is spending every cent he gets is actually in debt and running in debt, for he is running in debt TO HIS OLD AGE, when he won't be able to make, and won't be able to spend, and when the spending of to-day means debt later.

Those that are in debt know what debt is. There is no need to tell them about it.

First you owe $50 if you are a little man, or $50,000 if you are a big man.

And then you owe $100—or $100,000 if you are big.

For a while you struggle and plan. You are going to pay it off soon. It is a good thing to use "O P M," that is to say, other people's money, in the effort to get ahead.

You tell yourself that all the big men have used their credit and borrowed and gone ahead rapidly.

It all sounds very nice and plausible.

But remember that YOU KEEP GETTING IN DEEPER.

The fly lights on the fly paper, perhaps with only one leg at first. He says this is nothing, and puts down the other leg to push himself off.

AND THEN HE IS STUCK FAST.

And then he says to himself: "I will fly away from this fly paper," so he begins flapping his wings. And both of his wings stick to the paper.

There he is with his feet stuck and his wings stuck and only his head free.

That fly feels about as independent and hearty as you do if you are in debt. And he says: "I can get off of this paper easily enough when I get ready. I'll just put my head down and push myself off."

He buzzes for a while. THEN HE PUTS HIS HEAD DOWN ON THE FLY PAPER, TO PUSH HIMSELF OFF.

Then his head sticks tight; he begins to choke.

By and by he rolls over on his side, he sinks into the sticky surface—AND THERE IS ANOTHER DEAD FLY.

So it is with men in debt. So it will be with you if you stay in debt.

The only hope for the fly, the moment he feels one foot on the fly paper, is to use those wings and fly away, not putting in the other foot; flying off as quickly as he can.

And a million times wiser and better is the occasional rare fly, who sees the other flies sticking to the fly paper and says: "I don't like the look of those flies; I'll stay away from them."

Look at the people in debt. See their worry. See the anxiety of the mother, reflected in the children.

See the lack of standing, the extravagance and the poverty mixed together.

You can't mistake the human fly stuck on the fly paper of debt.

Since you cannot mistake him, why not keep away from that fly paper?

Debt makes everything worthless.

If you owe a thousand dollars, it seems rather foolish to save ten or twenty.

You feel that you might as well spend it; it won't make any difference.

And so it goes, if you owe two thousand. And then it isn't worth while to save twenty or forty.

And you become a failure. You put down your feet, and then your wings, AND THEN YOUR HEAD, WHICH IS AMBITION, and by and by you roll over and you are a dead fly.

Keep out of debt.

Congratulations We Do Not Want

Lord Welby, speaking in London at the annual dinner of the Cobden Club on the prospects of free trade, said that the members might congratulate themselves on President Wilson's new tariff bill. There is the bare truth about what is thought of the bill by the out-and-out free traders of England.

Richard Cobden died in 1865. The population of Great Britain has almost doubled since. Railroads were in their infancy, and it took weeks to cross the Atlantic. Telegraphy had just begun and ocean-spanning cables did not exist. Cobden could never have even dreamed of the cheap and vast transportation systems, by land and sea, of to-day. He could never even have dreamed of the year when the United States would practically consume all the wheat it would grow. He could never even have dreamed of the development of machinery, changing, as it has, the whole face of world-trade.

Yet they did dream in those days. Cobden's associates dreamed and prophesied, too. They prophesied, and loudly, that within fifty years every civilized nation would have adopted free trade, and they were exactly wrong.

It would take many volumes to tell the whole difference between the conditions of the world's business in 1865 and 1913.

There are some congratulations that may be paid for too dearly.

Rivalry in Religion

THE disappearance of sectarian bitterness is one of the most observable facts of to-day. Whatever may be thought of it, no man can regard it possible to check the movement which is breaking down the old denominational antipathies. It is interpreted by many as the best modern evidence that a Heavenly Power is at work in the world. They believe that the Spirit of its Divine Founder is prevailing in Christianity over the human passions of men, and that the gospel of love is at last conquering completely the hearts of those who preach it.

The large front of this movement appears in religious conventions and in the current religious literature. In reiterated proposals of church federation and missionary co-operation not a few religious leaders ardently believe that the amalgamation of denominations in one great inclusive church is not only desirable but inevitable.

Protesting the Movement.

But this rosy view has its checkmate and counter-blast. There are very many—probably at this time the majority of church communicants, who do not view the loss of the sectarian spirit with sympathy. Large numbers of leaders are flung in violent reaction against it. Within each denomination there are organs, and therefore an organization, of protest. A keen eye observes that the internal antagonisms in the different denominations on the subject is really helping on the movement of fraternity as between the denominations themselves by transferring the emphasis of the old conflict between them as sects to mere family disputes.

The question of denominationalism will not be settled wisely in this fashion. There are profound reasons for the existence and maintenance of divergent groups in Christianity. There are many of the best men in each denomination who observe the tendency of the times, feel its power, and are drawn into it, who still stoutly question, if it is not liable to cost the cause of Truth and the energies of religion more than all its compensating amenities can amount to. The man in the street does not see very far into the problem of denominationalism. It appears to him a plague of wicked envies and a useless waste of power.

The Real Values.

Why is it, then, that those inside the churches, as leaders and laymen, who are manifestly consecrated men of the finest good sense, are strong in their support of separate denominations, especially their own? It is because they know the real value of denominationalism. It is not a narrow sectarian meanness on their part. They lend no encouragement to theological strife and religious bad feeling. They lament the wounds which persecution and bigotry have made and would make again. But they know that after all there are convictions of religious truth worth fighting for, and that the great loyalties of conscience have been the levers of salvation for the human race. As students of church history, they know that the stubborn quality of soul, the heroic mold of character and the magnificent manhood which have fallen out of that history, are not to be lightly set aside or interpreted apart from the great competitions of religion in which they were generated.

New Denominationalism.

So the rapidly evaporating sectarianism of our time, if full of promise, is full of peril also. It is our task to provide a relation of religious groups to each other and toward their common cause which will conserve consecration and aggressiveness, while at the same time it encourages their basal fellowship.

I believe it can be done and that it will be done.

As Christianity stands to-day, the demand for an arrangement of its group forces in a provoking attitude toward each other, but with the supreme objective clear enough to cure the evils of sectarianism. The suggestion for a "New Denominationalism" is offered therefore as a substitute for the tendency toward "No Denominationalism." It is that the theological quarrel shall be subordinated to the logical contest of religious groups engaged constructively for the kingdom of God on earth. It should appeal to anyone that the rivalry of creeds giving way to the rivalry of deeds will be infinitely better than the mere subsidence of all rivalry which is threatened.

ALL THE EVIDENCE TO BE WEIGHED UNDER DIRECTION OF SOLICITOR DORSEY

THE PHAGAN CASE WILL BE CAREFULLY INVESGATED BY THE GRAND JURY UNDER THE PERSONAL DIRECTION OF SOLICITOR DORSEY.

SEARCH FOR NEW AND IMPORTANT EVIDENCE STILL GOES ON.

ALL THE DETECTIVES ENGAGED ON THE CASE ARE STILL AT WORK.

IS THERE ENOUGH EVIDENCE TO INDICT LEO FRANK AND NEWT LEE, MEN HELD?

LAWYERS ON FRIDAY FREELY DISCUSSED THE LEGAL ASPECT OF THE PHAGAN CASE. IT WAS THE GENERAL OPINION THAT THE GRAND JURY WOULD REQUIRE EVIDENCE NOT YET MADE PUBLIC BEFORE INDICTING FRANK AND LEE. THE STATEMENTS MADE AT THE CORONER'S INQUEST THURSDAY BY DETECTIVES SCOTT AND BLACK, THAT THEY HAVE NO POSITIVE EVIDENCE AGAINST ANYONE, WAS A GREAT SURPRISE.

'YOUNG HOT BLOOD' BAND OF MILITANTS BURN MANSION, ATTACK PREMIER ASQUITH

Churchill in Party Saved From 'Wild Women' by Guards---'Arsonettes' Blamed for $50,000 Blaze, and Dynamiters Swear to Brave Death.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Fresh suffragette outrages stirred England today. Members of the "Young Hot Blood" service of the Women's Social and Political Union burned Oaklea mansion, at Barrow, causing a $50,000 loss.

Other members of the union attempted to attack Premier and Mrs. Acquith and First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill and Mrs. Churchill as they were on their way to the Victoria Railway station today.

Mr. and Mrs. Asquith and Mr. and Mrs. Churchill were leaving on a journey to Venice, where they will embark upon the Admiralty yacht Enchantress for a cruise through the Mediterranean for inspection of British fortresses and navy depots.

Saved by Their Guards.

Only the fact that they had a heavy bodyguard of policemen, soldiers and private detectives saved them from injury at the hands of militant suffragettes.

Mrs Flora Drummong, or "General" Drummond, as she is known because of her Amazonian qualities, who collapsed in Bow Street court yesterday during the trial of the women arrested in the raid on headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union, was in a serious condition to-day. She had refused to eat for a week to spite the government and her health has become so badly deranged as a result that an operation may be necessary. She was removed to a nursing home this morning

Love Wins New Ally.

Interesting sidelights on the organization of militants are being brought out at the trial of the militant leaders. Leaders seized by the police include a number of passionate, burning love letters from a former Socialist member of Parliament. The letters show that he is infatuated with one of the leaders of the "wild women" and that he allied himself with the "cause" at her command.

Other documents show that the most dangerous branch of the union is called the "Service of Young Hot Bloods." No one but young unmarried women of high courage are admitted. These are some of the questions put to them before they are admitted into this branch of the union:

Furnish the Arsonettes.

Are you willing to die a violent death to-day?

Are you afraid of dynamite or any other high explosive?

Will you swear to hunger strike if sent to jail?

Will you renounce the softer characteristics of womankind in favor of a great principle?

Are you healthy and strong and able to hold your own against a single policeman?

The arsonettes and the members of the dynamite squad are recruited from the "Y. H. B." service.

FRANK AND LEE HELD; GRAND JURY LIKELY TO TAKE UP CASE MONDAY

"Phagan Mystery Now Is in State's Hands and Every Effort Will Be Made for a Speedy Solution," Declares Solicitor General Dorsey.

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil Factory, and Newt Lee, the night watchman, are held under charges of murder, as the following verdict of the Coroner's jury will show:

Atlanta, Ga., May 8, 1913.

We, the Coroner's jury, impaneled and sworn by Paul Donehoo, Coroner of Fulton County, to inquire into the cause of the death of Mary Phagan, whose dead body now lies before us, after having heard the evidence of sworn witnesses, and the statement of Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, find that the deceased came to her death from strangulation. We recommend that Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee be held under charges of murder for further investigation by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

(Signed, HOMER C. ASHFORD, Foreman.
DR. J. W. HURT, County Physician.

Frank and Lee are awaiting the consideration of their cases by the Grand Jury, which met Friday morning.

As Solicitor Dorsey has followed the investigation closely since it began and part of the time has had detectives of his own working on the case, it is regarded as probable that he would have it ready for presentation to the grand jury some time on Monday.

In this event a decision as to whether indictments shall be returned may be reached by Monday night.

Solicitor Dorsey said Friday he would give the Phagan case all of his attention and present his evidence to the Grand Jury as quickly as possible.

The solicitor has shown an anxiety to avoid delays of any nature in hunting down the slayer of the Phagan girl, and now that the Coroner's jury has turned the case over to the solicitor and the Grand Jury it may be taken for granted that the investigation will be hurried along with all possible speed.

Case in State's Hands.

"The case now is fully in the hands of the State," said the solicitor Friday morning. "It will not be presented to the Grand Jury Friday, but I shall endeavor to present it at the earliest possible moment. The instant that I have a complete case I shall bring it to the attention of the Grand Jury. It is my desire to bring the slayer of Mary Phagan to justice with the greatest dispatch. A great crime has been done and I am no less eager to see the guilt determined than the general public."

It required the Coroner's jury about twenty minutes to frame its formal verdict Thursday night. The jurors received a brief charge from Coroner Donehoo and filed from the Commissioners' room in the police station at 6:08 o'clock. At 6:28 they were back with their verdict.

Coroner Donehoo admonished the jurors to be as ready to hold a person who they thought might be withholding information of the crime as to hold a person they regarded as the possible culprit. A person possessing knowledge of the crime and withholding it, he said, was an accessory after the fact.

An immediate hush fell on the packed room when the jurors returned. There was a dead silence except for the voice of Homer C. Ashford, foreman of the jury, when the verdict was read.

Girls Testify Against Frank.

The most damaging testimony against Frank in regard to his treatment of employees at his factory was saved until the last hours of the hearing. Girls and women were called to the stand to testify that they had been employed at the factory or had had occasion to go there, and that Frank had attempted familiarities with them.

Nellie Pettis, of 9 Oliver Street, declared that Frank had made improper advances to her. She was asked if she ever had been employed at the pencil factory.

"No," she answered.

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I have seen him once or twice."

Q. When and where did you see him?—A. In his office at the factory whenever I went to draw my sister-in-law's pay.

Q. What did he say to you that might have been improper on any of these visits?—A. He didn't exactly say—he made gestures. I went to get sister's pay about four weeks ago and when I went into the office of Mr. Frank I asked for her. He told me I couldn't see her unless "I saw him first."

Says He Winked at Her.

"I told him I didn't want to 'see him.' He pulled a box from his desk. It had a lot of money in it. He looked at it significantly and then looked at me. When he looked at me, he winked. As he winked he said: 'How about it?'

"I instantly told him I was a nice girl."

Here the witness stopped her statement. Coroner Donehoo asked her sharply:

"Didn't you say anything else?"

"Yes, I did! I told him to go to h—l! and walked out of his office."

Thomas Blackstock, who said that he was employed at the factory about a year ago testified as follows:

Tells of Frank's Conduct.

Q. Do you know Leo M. Frank?—A. Yes.

Q. How long have you known him?—A. About six weeks.

Q. Did you ever observe his conduct toward female employees of the pencil factory?—A. Yes. I've often seen him picking on different girls.

Q. Name some.—A. I can't exactly recollect names.

Q. What was the conduct you noticed particularly?

TARIFF BILL IS UP TO SENATE; HOT FIGHT DUE

Democrats Rejoice as the House Passes the Measure by the Vote of 281 to 139.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Underwood tariff bill, with the lowest import duties ever imposed by an American measure, is now up to the Senate Finance Committee.

The bill's passage through the Senate will be fought at every step by a Republican organization apparently entirely in accord on this subject and entirely willing to spend unlimited time and energy in an effort to defeat it.

Leaders of the Democrats on the Senate Finance Committee, which will handle the bill, express the belief that it will go through in practically the same form as it passed the House, and that their small majority will stand firm to the last.

Few Changes Likely.

Subcommittees of the Finance Committee which have been investigating the schedules of the bill for the last few weeks plan to make a few changes in several schedules, but wool and sugar and other schedules which brought out the hard fighting in the House are not to be touched, according to the present plan. The income tax and administrative features also are to stand.

Democratic leaders acknowledge that the two Senators from Louisiana will not accept the sugar schedule, and that they might be willing to combine with others' to defeat the whole bill.

On the final test in the House last night the vote was 281 to 139, five Democrats voting against the bill and two Republicans voting for it. Four Progressives supported the bill and fourteen opposed it, while one Independent Progressive joined with the majority.

House to Mark Time Now.

When Speaker Clark announced the vote in loud tones that revealed his satisfaction exhuberant Democrats hoisted a stuffed Democratic donkey over the heads of their colleagues in the rear of the chamber, a ripple of applause followed and the gavel fell on the first chapter in the history of President Wilson's extra session of Congress.

With the bill on its way to the Senate, there was a rush of Representatives for their homes. In the House adjournment will be taken three days at a time beginning next week until June 1. In the meantime, the Senate Finance Committee will study the bill while the House Ways and Means Committee will organize committees preparatory to the transaction of business next month.

SHRINERS OFF FOR DALLAS TO CAPTURE MEET

Atlantans, 200 Strong, Leave on Special Train Friday Night for Convention in Texas.

I want to again express my appreciation for the assistance of Mr. Hearst and his newspapers throughout the country. If Atlanta gets the 1914 meeting Mr. Hearst and his papers will be largely responsible.—POTENTATE FORREST ADAIR.

"The Imperial Council will meet in Atlanta in 1914. Personally I have no doubt of it. We have hotel accommodations; Memphis has not, and we have made a remarkable record in raising a fund of $76,000 in one day that every Shriner in America knows about.

And we leave to-night for Dallas better equipped to extend an invitation of this kind than any city or Temple that has extended a like invitation in a great number of years."

With this statement Forrest Adair, potentate of Yaarab Temple, announced Friday morning that every detail of the pilgrimage to the convention of the Imperial Council of Shriners at Dallas, Tex., was complete and Atlanta's delegation, nearly 200 strong, would leave in a special train over the Southern Railway at 10 o'clock Friday night.

Reach Dallas Sunday.

Early Sunday morning the Atlanta pilgrims will have crossed the hot sands and entered the Oasis of Dallas. They will go into the city with their coats on their arms, prepared to drown out any discordant note, from Memphis, or anywhere for that matter, with the now familiar slogan:

"Atlanta, 1914."

At Birmingham, Meridian, Shreveport and a score of points along the line, Atlanta boosters will board the train, and go with the delegation to Dallas to swell the total and bring the convention to the Southeast next year.

Mr. Adair and his official delegation, W. A. Foster, John A. Hynds and Claude H. Hutcheson, of Jonesboro, will extend the invitation.

They will be fortified with official invitations from the Mayor and City Council and every trades organization in the city, as well as open contracts from every hotel in Atlanta, assuring accommodations for as many as 4,000 Shriners, the number expected here next year.

.. .. No "Holdup" in Rates. .....

The beauty of the hotel contracts, as explained by Mr. Adair, is that "inauguration rates" will not be charged.

"Only the regular rates," said Mr. Adair, "will be in force, and I have

MILLTOWN WILL FISH, REGARDLESS

Mayor Pafford Declares Georgia Laws Give Residents Right to Angle in Banks Pond.

Citizens of Milltown, Ga., deny that the town is in a state of excitement and that it will be necessary to call out troops to preserve order. Mayor William F. Pafford has issued a statement declaring Game Warden Boisclair became unduly alarmed.

Governor Brown has not considered sending troops to Berrien County. It is hardly likely he will.

Until the Legislature changes the law, Milltown sportsmen will continue to angle for the elusive trout in Banks' fishpond so long as they have permission from owners of the land on which the body of water is located, according to Mayor Pafford.

"Section 7 of the game law privileges a person to fish with permission from the owner of the land, which the 20 persons arrested had," he declared.

"The statement of State Game and Fish Commissioner Mercer that his wardens have been intimidated and that the local authorities are too much in sympathy with the lawless element to give any assistance is untrue," said Pafford.

Boisclair made 20 arrests of persons. He charges he was prevented from prosecuting the cases because the justices of the peace declared he would not convict any of the parties.

The whole matter hinges on a land dispute. The Banks estate claims to own all of the property on which the pond is located. Other property owners say a title to all of the property has never been vested with Banks.

U. S. CHECKS TOLL OF TUBERCULOSIS

Death Rate Decreased From 174.5 to 139.7 Per 100,000 Population in Last Decade.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—That the death rate in the United States from tuberculosis during the decade ending in 1910 has diminished from 174.5 per 100,000 of population to 139.7 was the statement made here by Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman of Newark, in an address before the sociological section of the National association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis.

"In other words," said Dr. Hoffman, "nearly 200,000 lives were saved from 1909 to 1910, in the campaign against this disease."

Dr. Hoffman stated that the death rate in New York City, 289.1 in 1881, had declined to 180.1 in 1912. He made no mention of any so-called "cures."

Surgeon B. S. Warren, of the U. S. Public Health Service, affirmed that deaths of government employees from tuberculosis were much lower than that of other laborers in similar occupations, because of the superior sanitary conditions."

"About 50,000 new cases of tuberculosis are constantly drifting about the country for long periods without even consulting physicians," was the statement by Dr. Harry Lee Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode Island State Sanitarium.

LEOPOLD'S WIDOW, DIVORCED, TO WED

Morganatic Wife of Belgian King, Freed From M. Durrieux, Accepts German Army Officer.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 9.—Within less than 24 hours after she had obtained a divorce from her second husband, M. Durrieux, it was reported to-day that Baroness Vaughan would soon marry again.

Baroness Vaughan was the morganatic wife of King Leopold of Belgium, and bore him two sons. After Leopold's death she married M. Durrieux, but entered suit for divorce, alleging infidelity. A decree was granted in her favor yesterday.

Baroness Vaughan began life as a washerwoman, but her beauty attracted the eye of the aged Belgian King, who took her under his protection and showered wealth upon her.

Her next husband, it is said, will be a German army officer.

with the contracts a diagram of the floor space indicating the room and the regular rate. They won't be able to go above the rate, even if the hotel men felt inclined to.

"Memphis will not get the convention, because it hasn't got the hotels and the Shriners know it," said Mr. Adair. "They're building one now, but it won't compare with any of the nicer hotels already completed in Atlanta, and as for the best hotels there—Atlanta's got beter on he side streets. This alone makes it doubly sure we'll get the convention, but if there's any doubt the size of our delegation removes it."

The Arab Patrol of Yaarab Temple, the crack drum corps, 40 strong, will be a valuable asset of the Atlanta delegation. It is an independent organization formed by the temple for convention work and occasions that demand public appearance. It has attracted much attention at conventions throughout the country.

Members of the Patrol.

The patrol is as follows:

Captain J. O. Seamans, First Lieutenant H. C. Ashford, Second Lieutenant F. E. Van der Veer, First Sergeant C. W. Ferguson, Quartermaster H. H. Milner and Patrolmen Albert Akers, C. E. Barber, J. J. Barnes, Jr., W. D. Benson, F. M. Brotherton, George E. Argard, R. A. Burnett, G. I. Butler, A. B. Chapman, R. E. Church, Frank Dundell, E E. Cunningham, J C. Deavours, George Freeman, L. H. The delegation will leave Dallas returning, the evening of May 15 at 8 o'clock and arrive in Atlanta the evening of May 17.

Danish Minister Is Courting Again

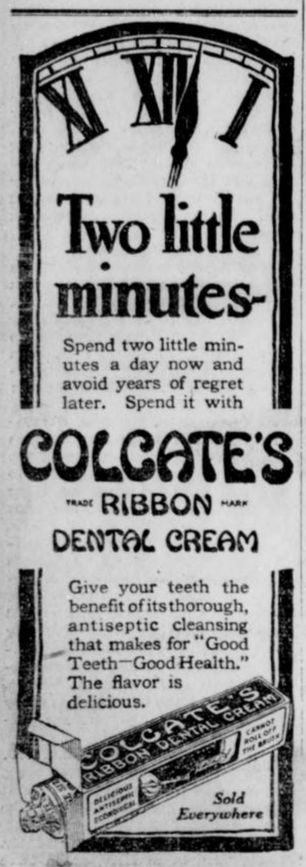
Washington Society Hears Engagement to Mrs. Townsend Is Renewed.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The engagement which friends insist existed between Mrs. Richard Townsend and M. Constantin Brun, the Danish Minister, last year, according to rumor current this week, has been renewed.

Several times while stationed in other countries M. Brun paid visits to Washington, many say to see the rich widow. When he was sent to Washington a year ago every one expected that Mrs. Townsend would soon take her place as chatelaine of the Legation.

AIRSHIPS PREDICTED AS DEFENDERS OF THE CANAL

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—That aeroplanes are to be used extensively for defenses of the Panama Canal was the statement of Aviator Robert G. Fowler, who returned here to-day from Panama. He asserted that Colonel Goethals would ask Congress for an appropriation for aeroplanes and hydro-aeroplanes to be used in connection with the proposed fortifications.



PRETTY VASSAR GIRL AFTER 'BIG PAT'S' SHOT-PUT RECORD

MISS ELIZABETH A. HARDEN. PATRICK M'DONALD SETTING A NEW MARK.

PASTOR SOUGHT BY TABERNACLE

Committee Meets Wednesday to Choose Minister—Attendance Has Suffered.

At a meeting of the pulpit supply committee Wednesday evening, a new pastor for the Baptist Tabernacle will be chosen.

The Tabernacle has been without a regular pastor since the resignation of Dr. Robert S. MacArthur, and the attendance, it is said, has suffered.

A. C. Boatman, chairman of the committee, said several ministers of international reputation are under consideration. The man chosen, he said, must be ready to take an active part in the fight against evil of every kind, for civic betterment and for cleaner and better living.

"The Tabernacle is a church of the masses, and it stands between political and moral wrongs and the masses of the city of Atlanta," Mr. Boatman declared.

The salary of the Tabernacle pastorate is more than $5,000 a year.

Church Learns Its Pastor Was Convict

Minister Who Disappeared From New Jersey Town Is Sought by the Police.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The disappearance of the Rev. John Solomon, after he had conducted Sunday evening services in the United Christian Church at Arlington, N. J., was explained yesterday when it became known that the police of Newark and Kearney were looking for him on behalf of the authorities of Elmira Reformatory. Solomon, it was said, had broken parole from that institution.

Since February Solomon has been acting as assistant pastor of the little Arlington church, and also as treasurer of the Jersey Home for Destitute Children and Homeless Women.

What Ails You?

An invitation is extended by Doctor Pierce to every sick and ailing man or woman to consult the Faculty of the Invalids' Hotel at Buffalo, N. Y., by letter. Write your symptoms fully and frankly, and every letter will be carefully considered, fully answered and its statements held as strictly private and sacredly confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

makes for rich, pure blood and thus invigorates the system. For a torpid liver and its attendant indigestion, dyspepsia, headache, perhaps dizziness, foul breath, nasty coated tongue with bitter taste, loss of appetite with distress after eating, nervousness and debility, nothing is so good.

NEW YORK, May 9.—"Well, I swan—"

Just at this point the automobiles around Forty-second Street became congested, and genial "Pat" McDonald, pride of the traffic cops and champion shot-putter of the world, broke off his exclamation. Maybe it was best so, for Patrick had just been told that a Vassar College girl was after his shot-putting laurels and he seemed a bit "miffed."

He did not seem at all pleased to think that his athletic prowess should be o'ershadowed—not by a young college girl, at any rate.

But Miss Elizabeth Abigail Harden, of Newark, N. J., and a freshman at Vassar, is just as proud of her record as McDonald is of his, and she said to-day that she will shortly do even better than 33 feet and 3-4 inches.

In the shot-put McDonald's mark for the 24-pound shot is 39 feet and 3 3-4 inches.

No Vassar girl will ever reach Pat's record, however, for they throw a seven-pound shot at the girl's college.

Miss Harden's triumph came in the annual field meet at Vassar last week, and she was easily the star of the day. Besides the shot-put even, Miss Harden won the basket ball throwing contest with a mark of 80 feet 13 1-8 inches and the baseball throwing with 205 feet 7 inches. In both the latter events she broke records held by Miss Inez Milholland, who heretofore had been held the champion all-around woman athlete.

Like Miss Milholland, the Newark girl is an ardent worker for votes for women, and the only blight to her triumphs of Saturday was the fact that the meet kept her from marching with the other 10,000 women who are fighting for the ballot.

King Edward Speed 'Fiend,' Says Autoist

Late Monarch's Chauffeur Tells in a Book of His Ruler's Traits.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 9.—Interesting trials in King Edward's character are revealed in the book, "What I Know," by C. W. Stamper, private automobile expert to the late monarch. It says: "The King liked speedy traveling, but insisted on careful driving through towns and villages. His walk was never leisurely. He was in and out of a motor car or a train in a moment.

"He spoke rapidly, ate very fast and smoked hard. Speed was the essence of his nature."

The King's chauffeur always was instructed by the equerry to observe the legal speed limit, but if the King complained, he was to increase the speed temporarily and gradually to slacken it again.

GOES TO PREACH REFORM IN JAIL; HELD AS GUN TOTER

COLUMBUS, GA., May 9.—When Jailer Layfield of Muscogee County searched an Atlanta negro minister, who came to the jail to make a reform talk to the prisoners, he found a big loaded pistol in his pocket. The negro was locked up. He will face Judge Gilbert of the Superior Court next week.

TOMBOY SPORTS BEST FOR GIRLS

Recreation Congress Speaker Declares Vigorous Games Are Character Developers.

RICHMOND, VA., May 9.—Too much distinction is made between boys and girls, in their play, their work and their educational training. This was the text of an address by Mrs. Charles T. Weller, of Lawrence, Kansas, at the morning session of the Recreation Congress.

"Many people begin, in his babyhood, to train the boy away from the gentler side of life by taking away his doll. Later they teach him that certain home duties belong to the girl; and since the boy's work—such as cutting wood and drawing water—no longer has a place in the city household, he grows up without sense of responsibility and devotion toward his own home when he has one.

"The girl, on the other hand, is constantly repressed and, because her faults are not dramatic like those of her brother, her elders fail to realize that she needs broad training to free her from the narrowness and pettiness of women, which has been the jest of the ages.

"Vigorous sports, especially games, are found to develop just those characteristics in which women are lacking.

"Let the girls play hard sometimes and forget themselves. Quieter sport—music, literature, art—have their very important place for the girl; and quite as much for the boy. For with this all-round training each may be gentle and each may be strong when occasion demands it; and together they may round out a fuller, more wholesome life for the race.

Loses Pants Seat, But Wins Election

Determined Candidate Does Not Let Accident Cost Him Vote He Goes After.

WINSTED, CONN., May 9.—Robert E. Maher, an officer of the Winsted Edge Tool Works and Republican candidate for Burgess in the town election, lost the seat of his trousers in getting a delinquent voter to the polls, but came out a victor.

A few minutes before the closing of the polls Maher was apprised that a certain elector had not exercised his rights. Jumping into an automobile he started in quest of the voter, whom he found at work atop of an ice house. Maher in coming down the ice run came in contact with nails which caught in his trousers seat, completely removing it.

He got to the polls on time with the voter, however.

conduct toward the girls and women of the plant."

"I have noticed him smile and wink at the girls in the place. That was two years ago."

"Did you make a statement to the detectives of undue familiarity you had witnessed?"

"I told them that I had seen Frank flirt with the girls and women—that was all I said."

Charges Familiarities.

The testimony of Nellie Wood, a young girl of 8 Corput Street came next.

In brief it was this:

Q. Do you know Leo Frank?—A. I worked for him two days.

Q. Did you observe any misconduct on his part?—A. Well, his actions didn't suit me. He'd come around and put his hands on me, when such conduct was entirely uncalled for.

Q. Is that all he did?—A. No. He asked me one day to come into his office, saying that he wanted to talk to me. He tried to close the door, but I wouldn't let him. He got too familiar by getting so close to me. He also put his hands on me.

Q. Where did he put his hands?—A. He barely touched my breast. He was subtle with his approaches, and tried to pretend that he was joking, but I was too wary for such as that.

Quit His Employ.

Q. Did he try further familiarities?—A. Yes.

Q. When did this happen?—A. Two years ago.

Q. What did you tell him when you left his employ?—A. I just quit, telling him that it didn't suit me.

Frank's testimony was looked forward to with keen interest, but when he was called to the stand in the afternoon, he merely answered additional questions as to his movements on the day of the crime and failed to add materially to the evidence in hand.

He appeared pale and haggard from his imprisonment, but he replied to all of the questions clearly and showed no hesitation or apparent fear. He was asked:

Testimony of Frank.

Q. What kind of elevator door is there to the shaft in the pencil factory?—A. Sliding doors.

Q. How many?—A. One on each floor.

Q. Are they latticed or solid?—A. Solid.

Q. Where was the elevator at 12 o'clock Saturday?—A. I did not notice.

Q. Were the doors open or closed?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What protection would a person have from falling down the shaft if the doors were left open?—A. A bar which projects across the opening.

Q. After the crime was committed, where did the elevator stand?—A. I only know where it stood Sunday morning. It then was on the second floor.

Didn't File Time Tape.

Q. When you last removed the tape from the time clock, what did you do with it?—A. Handed it to an officer in the building.

Q. Did you put it on file?—A. No.

Q. Are you sure?—A. Yes, positive.

Q. Do you remember a party at your house on the night of April 26?—A. Yes.

Q. Can you name the guests?—A. I don't remember them all.

Q. When the police came to bring you down to the factory that Sunday morning, what was said about whisky?—A. I said I wanted something warm to drink. One of the detectives suggested whisky.

Q. What time was it?—A. Between 7:30 and 8 o'clock.

Q. What did you say about dreaming?—A. I said to someone that I thought I had dreamed of hearing the telephone ring in the dead of night.

Says He Viewed Body.

Q. When you went to the undertakers', did you go in the water closet instead of the room in which the body lay?—A. No.

Q. Did you view the body?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you recognize the girl—A. Yes.

Q. When did you first hear her name?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What time did you return home that Sunday afternoon?—A. I don't recollect.

Q. Did you telephone your wife before your return?—A. Yes.

Q. Was the murder discussed at home that afternoon?—A. Not much.

Q. What topic was discussed.—A. I don't remember.

Often Does Not Remember.

Q. When did Quinn first mention to you his visit to the factory on the 26th?—A. I don't remember.

Q. What did he say?—A. He said, "Don't you recollect that I was at the factory Saturday about noon?"

Q. What did you tell him about withholding that information until your attorney had been consulted?—A. I don't remember. I had so many visitors that I couldn't recollect the exact words.

Q. Who suggested the conference with your attorney relative to Quinn's visit?—A. I don't remember.

Q. How long have you known you had counsel?—Since Monday.

Q. Why was it mentioned that Quinn's visit be kept until consultation with your lawyer?—A. I don't remember.

Explains Locks and Doors.

Q. How can you lock the door between your office and the dressing room where the blood spots were found?—A. I have never seen it locked.

Q. Is it usually open or locked?—A. Closed.

Q. Is there any way of closing the doors on the back stairway?—A. Yes. They are locked.

Q. Describe your telephone conversation with Detective Starnes at the time you were informed of the tragedy?—A. He asked me if I was superintendent of the National Pencil Factory. "I'd like to have you come down here at once," he said when I informed him that I was Leo Frank. He said he wanted me to identify a girl, and asked me if I knew Mary Phagan.

Q. Didn't you say that the first time you had heard her name was while you were traveling in the auto on the way to the factory Sunday morning?—A. I don't recollect that I did.

Q. Did you have any trouble with a girl in your office Saturday morning?—A. No. There was one incident where a mistake had been made in the pay envelope of Mattie Smith, but it was corrected without any trouble.

Tells of Callers at Office.

Q. What time was Mattie Smith in your office?—A. Between 9 and 10 a. m.

Q. Did any one enter while she was there?—A. I don't remember.

Q. Give the name of every one in the office throughout the day Saturday?—A. Mr. Darley, Mr. Holloway, the office boy, Miss Hall, the stenographer; Mr. Campbell, Mr. Fullerton, Mrs. White, Lemmie Quinn, Mr. Gantt, Emma Clark, another girl employee, Arthur White, Harry Denham, Newt Lee and Mary Phagan.

Q. Did you see May Barrett?—A. I don't know her.

Q. What did you say to Emma Clark?—A. I don't remember saying anything to her.

Nature's Banner of 'Votes for Women'

Mrs. Torbet Will Raise Nothing but Flowers of Yellow Hue in Her Garden.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Nature is the latest ally to be lined up under the banner of "Votes for Women" and the suffragist garden is the means by which it has been secured for the cause. Mrs. Lewis K. Torbet announced her plans for the brand new publicity method.

"I intend to have my entire garden at my summer home remodeled and install nothing but flowers of a yellow hue, the color of the American suffragists," she said.

"I will have marigolds, daisies, roses, sunflowers, Japanese gold lilies, chrysanthemums, buttercups and every yellow flower that will grow and wave for the cause of women's suffrage.

"But I won't have anything with the English militant suffragist colors—violet and green."

Effective Home Remedy For Lung Trouble

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benefited, but few can safely return. Eckman's Alterative is effective for home treatment. For example:

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed my regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I can not praise Eckman's Alterative too highly. I have recommended it with excellent results."

(Signed) W. M. TATEM.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' drug stores and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

A Happy Child In a Few Hours

When Cross, Sick, Feverish, Tongue Coated or Bilious Give Delicious "Syrup of Figs."

Mother! look at the tongue! see if it is coated. If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and clogged up waste and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours the foul, decaying constipated matter, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well and smiling child shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children. Being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it can not be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given to-day will save a sick child to-morrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

COTTON MANUFACTURERS CONVENE IN COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, GA., May 9.—The annual convention of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia convened in Columbus to-day, with President F. B. Gordon, of this city, presiding. Among the speakers for the day were Stuart W. Cramer, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and D. W. Peabody, of Atlanta. Fuller Callaway, of LaGrange, banker and manufacturer, also was on the program.

Better Than Medicine

Breathe Hyomei and Be Rid of Catarrh—Cleears Stopped-Up Head.

Nature has a remedy for catarrh and troubles of the breathing organs, a treatment that is far better than dosing the stomach with medicine.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicate the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing the catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the mucous membrane.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the natural remedy, for it gives a curative bath to the air passages. It has a powerful healing and antiseptic effect similar to the air in the mountains where the forests give off the fragrant and healing balsams.

Hyomei has benefited so many sufferers of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucous, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing that it is sold under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. If the treatment does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense, while if it cures the cost is nominal. A complete Hyomei Outfit sells for only $1.00. Extra bottles of liquid if later needed 50 cents.

Druggists everywhere.

GREAT PUBLIC NOT BITTER TO CORPORATIONS

Dissatisfaction With Business Conditions Exists, but There Is Little Revolutionary Spirit.

By B. C. FORBES.

"If I thought the great body of the American people were as bitter, as hostile to business as many of our legislators I would give up and retire," said one of the country's foremost men of affairs, a man who has built up an important industry, a director in corporations of the first magnitude and the possessor of a large fortune.

* * *

"Do you think the people are as discontented and antagonistic to capital as is often represented—as ugly as Vice President Marshall says they are?" I was asked.

* * *

What do YOU think? Are they? Is it a case of empty vessels making most noise? Or are the majority of American citizens deeply disgusted with the present order of things? Are they on the verge of revolt, as the Vice President alleges? Is widespread revolutionary sentiment cooped up in the average citizen's breast? Is unrest in the United States worse than in other lands? Or is all our fretting and fidgeting, our mania for reform and regulation, our striving after innovations merely part of a world-wide movement toward a fuller measure of democracy?

* *

These are questions not easy of dogmatic answer. The Hearst publications reach a greater number of Americans than the publications of any other concern in the country, and experience has taught me that they somehow come nearer the heart-beats of the people than any other publications of which I have any knowledge. The readers have a flattering habit of speaking their minds, of voicing approval or disapproval of articles, of taking the writers into their confidence, so to speak. In this way one is able to feel the pulse of the people.

* *

Hundreds—thousands—of letters come to the business news department—not only from the East, but from the Middle West, the Far West and the South, as what is here written is printed in Hearst newspapers covering virtually the whole Union. Judging by this mass of correspondence from men and women in all ranks of life, there IS a good deal of discontent, of dissatisfaction with existing conditions, of bitterness against corporations, of determination to compel reforms in many directions.

* *

But of revolutionary, anarchistic sentiment there is extremely little trace.

* *

Speaking broadly, a great section of the population have the conviction that most ultra-rich capitalists have done things they ought not to have done, and by the doing of which they have taken unfair advantage of the people at large.

* *

Let me give extracts from some letters received within the last week or two.

* *

C. H. Burnham, 131 State Street, Boston, writes:

On the strength of the interview given out by Jacob H. Schiff just before Mr. Harriman died—declaring Mr. Harriman was practically a well man—I bought Union Pacific, as at that time I believed Mr. Schiff, and it cost me a good many hundred dollars.

What do you think when Major Higginson comes out in an interview and says there is nothing the matter with the New Haven Railroad?

What is the answer, after reading what is going on before Commissioner Prouty?

From Corning, N. Y., "A Railroader on the Erie," criticising my articles on railroad subjects, writes:

Railroad managers and owners are nothing more or less than straight up and down thieves, robbing the public. They never tell how much they make. But anybody who becomes a railroad manager becomes a millionaire in a few years. They find fault about giving a few cents extra in wages to their men. But such as President Baer, the head of the coal trust, pays $100,000 for a private car. When such things as this are done it only makes you appear ridiculous in the articles you publish in favor of railroad robbers.

It is not my intention to-day to discuss the reasonableness or unreasonableness of hostility to corporations and capitalists, but only to indicate what the temper of a large section of the public really is. The subject will be worth considering again.

WHICH?

NEWS ITEM—The Democratic majority of the Senate, in causes, has made a determined attack on the seductive influence of golf and baseball. A promise was exacted from members that hereafter enough members will be present in the Senate to maintain a quorum.

More than an hour was spent one day in a futile effort to get enough Senators to transact business at an executive session.

ANY FRIEND CAN NOMINATE YOU IN BIG CONTEST

Strong Lead Will be Gained Over Your Rivals by Entering Competition Early.

Anyone can nominate a contestant for the pony outfits which the Georgian and American will give away as prizes.

This has been explained before, but many people still ask, so it may be well to state it again.

All that is necessary is to send in a nomination blank. Parents, uncles, aunts, friends, or even the contestant may make the nomination, and the result is the same—the name is listed, and 1,000 votes are credited to the name.

The call for books, used to make a record of subscriptions and votes and to furnish a receipt to the subscribers, shows that all are making an early start. One employee of the Georgian and American finds the distribution of these books to callers takes a good deal of his time.

So the contest is well under way.

The ponies, too, are here. The best ponies in the Tennessee bluegrass section—twelve of them—have been purchased by an expert delegated to the task by the Georgian and American.

Early Start Counts.

Remember that an early start counts for much. A big lead over your friends and acquaintances before they are approached by the other boys and girls.

Wouldn't you be disappointed to have your best friend say:

"Why, I've subscribed to the Georgian and American for a year and have given the subscription to George. I would have been glad to help you, but I didn't know you were in the race, and George asked me first."

Think what a disappointment that would be.

The only way to avoid such disconcerting replies is to be the early bird yourself.

An early start, too, gives you experience of a useful sort ahead of the other contestants, and the result will be that when you have become an adept at securing subscriptions, your rivals will be floundering around for a start.

So, by all means, if you have not entered the race for one of the twelve pony outfits by now, send in your nomination blank right away. If you have entered, be sure to get the necessary book at once, and get busy.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Repairing of Dolls Quite a Business.

"Dolls Repaired Quickly and Cheaply."

That sign prominently displayed at a point on Peachtree Street, by which thousands of people pass daily, is one likely to attract the attention of little folks—girls, of course—whose dollies are in need of such necessaries as eyes, hair, hands and feet.

"You'd be surprised," said the old gentleman who answers when anyone makes inquiry concerning the sign, "the number of dolls that we repair every day. My whole family is engaged in the business. It is a queer thing about child nature, but girls—the little ones, you know—become so attached to their dolls that when they wear out the children are almost inconsolable. They like a new doll, of course, but nothing can take the place of the old one in their childish affections. That's where our business comes in. We take the old doll, put new feet and hands on it, insert an eye if one is needed and, in fact, fix Miss Dollie up so that she looks like a new one. But to its little 'mother' it is still the same old Polly Hopkins, or Susan or Mary, as the case may be. It really does my heart good to see the little folks when their mothers bring them to my place to get the rejuvenated dollie. They go into raptures over the made-over toy, and their outbursts are evidences of genuine affection. 'Mother-love,' I suppose you newspaper fellows call it."

How Window Dressers Keep Track of Pins.

"I'll bet," said one of two men who had paused before the display window of a Whitehall Street department store while the window dresser was at work "that it was a woman who invented the thing that chap has fastened to his left arm."

His attention having been called to it, the other man took a squint at the object. It was a pincushion about three inches square fastened to a wide elastic band—like a garter—which was passed around the arm just above the elbow. The cushion was filled with all sorts of pins—small ones and large ones; some plain and some black.

As he worked, arranging pieces of cloth here and there to give the desired fold effect, the dresser had occasion to use countless pins. They were always right at his hand.

"When I was a young man," remarked one of the onlookers, "I used to dress windows and I carried a mouthful of pins all the time. The danger of swallowing them, however, was great, and I never cared much for the job. This fellow has the problem solved, but if he's married, I'll bet his wife invented it. No mere man would ever think of that pincushion affair."

The Story of Two Boys And What They Have Done.

"I was reading in The Georgian the other day," said the doctor, "when my attention was attracted by an article concerning some bequests made to education by Mrs. G. P. Dodd. Instantly I remembered two young fellows who used to live in Atlanta and with whom I attended the Boys' High School. They were Phil and Earl Ackerman, sons of Mrs. Fannie Ackerman, who was a sister of Mrs. Dodd, and to whom Mrs. Dodd left a bequest. The Ackerman boys lived with their uncle on Whitehall Street between Cooper and Windsor. Both were real geniuses, and both were enamored of the stage—not as actors, mind you, but as managers and producers. In the basement of the Dodd home they had fitted up a scenic studio and there in 1891 they built the scenery for 'Xonia, or the Fairy Queen,' a spectacular play which they presented at Concordia Hall, then on Marietta Street.

"The cast was made up of local young folks and the play was put on in admirable style. There was no end of trick scenery, all designed, built and painted by the Ackerman boys. Phil played the part of an Irishman, Earl was a 'demon' and the part of a clown was played by Cliff Saul, brother of Milt Saul, who is publicity manager for the Georgia Railway and Power Company. Another member of the company was Henry Franklin, now a staid Atlanta business man, an officer of a big hardware concern. Artisticaly, 'Xonia' was a success. I am not certain about its financial success.

"Soon after this Mrs. Ackerman and her sons removed to New York, and the boys evidently kept in touch with things theatrical, because 'Bob' Goodman, another Atlanta boy who has risen to heights in stage affairs, told me not long ago that Phil and Earl Ackerman are the owners of one of the largest scenic studios in Brooklyn."

POLICEMAN DENIES WOMEN'S CHARGES

Kirk Declares Statement That He Made Raided House His Headquarters Is False.

Policeman James Kirk, a member of Chief Beavers' "vice squad," Friday morning emphatically denied the charges of improper conduct made against him by Mrs. N. P. Powell, Mrs. Lena Bernard and Mrs. John Bryant, whom Kirk, with a squad of police, arrested last week on a charge of running a disorderly house at 95 Spring Street.

"The charges have no foundation," he said. "I went to Mrs. Powell and her husband, and told them if they didn't get rid of the women they had staying there and shut up their place, we would arrest them. Both the woman and Powell told me they would make the women leave and quit running the kind of a house that Chief Beavers has ordered out of the city. We watched the place for several nights, and saw from five to fifteen men going in and out of the place every night.

"When we saw that they continued to run the house we raided them. There were four men there at the time, but they escaped by jumping out of the windows. The women have been held to the Grand Jury.

"The statement that I made the place my headquarters is a falsehood, pure and simple. Mrs. Powell, rMs. Bernard and Mrs. Bryant are known to the police. They have been arrested numerous times."

The hearing of the injunction which Mrs. oPwell, through her attorneys, Gober & aJckson, got from Judge Bell to restrain the police from evicting her, will be held Saturday morning.

THE PLAY THIS WEEK

FEATURE BILL AT FORSYTH.

There will be just four more performances of the Keith vaudeville acts that are at the Forsyth this week. One of the four will be to-day's matinee which is already heavily sold, another will be the Saturday matinee for which there is a large sale and the remaining performances are Friday and Saturday nights.

The headliner this week is Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, one of the most original ideas in modern vaudeville. The act is crowded with all of the Edwards new song hits. Another feature is pretty Belle Story, the entertaining vocalist. Miss Story possesses a remarkable voice. The comedy act of Williams, Thompson and Copeland is a scream. The whole bill pleases.

For next week the headline act will be Paul Dickey, the star football player of the University of Michigan, who will appear with a company of five people who will offer "The Come Back," a story founded on college life. Another star act will be the Apollo Trio, native Italians, who will pose as living bronze statues.

SOCIETY NIGHT AT THE ATLANTA.

Miss Billy Long and the members of her company have made a big hit this week in "The Girl From Out Yonder," which is at the Atlanta. To-night will be special Society Night in honor of Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison and a packed house is expected to greet the company. A 25 cent matinee will be played to-morrow and the present bill offered for the last time to-morrow night.

Next week the company will present, "Are You a Mason?" which is a roaring farce comedy. Owing to the demand for matinee seats an extra matinee has been added for Monday afternoon and in the future three matinees will be given each week. "Are You a Mason?" has a thousand laughs and its presentation will serve to introduce two new members of the company to the public—both highly experienced. Miss Harrison has an important role also.

Buyer of Eggs Must Declare Intentions

That Is, If He Wants to Complain at the Failure of Table Variety to Hatch.

CEDAR GROVE, N. J., May 9.—The Cedar Grove Board of Poultry Trade has handed down a decision of interest to poultrymen all over America.

Squire Hoke Baldwin has been selling White Orpington eggs at 25 cents a dozen for table use and at $2 for thirteen for setting purposes. Archibald Griswold bought some eggs from ing to New York. Instead he set the eggs. They did not hatch and he brought the matter to the attention of the Board of Poultry Trade.

The board found that Baldwin had dipped the eggs in hot water before delivering them, rendering them infertile. The board decided that between January 7 and July 1 the purchaser must declare truthfully for what purpose he wants eggs when buying them.

MOST SICKNESS COMES FROM WEAK, INACTIVE KIDNEYS

Recent Reports Show Hundreds Suffer With Kidney Troubles and Don't Know It.

There are scores of nervous, tired, run-down people throughout the city suffering with pains in the back and sides, dizzy spells, weaknesses of the bladder (frequently causing annoyance at night), who fail to realize the seriousness of their troubles until such conditions as chronic rheumatism, bladder troubles, dropsy, diabetes or even Bright's disease result.

All this is due to weak, inactive kidneys. The kidneys are the filterers of the blood, and no one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly. It is even more important than that the bowels move regularly.

If you suffer with such symptoms don't neglect yourself another day and run the risk of serious complications. Secure an original package of the new discovery, Croxone, which costs but a trifle, and commence its use at once. When you have taken a few doses, you will be surprised how differently you will feel.

Croxone cures the worst cases of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, because it removes the cause. It cleans out the kidneys, and makes them filter out all the poisonous waste matter and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the bladder, and quickly relieves you of all your misery.

You will find Croxone different from all other remedies. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, it is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

STATE BOARD IS PROPOSED FOR TAX EQUALIZING

Clarke County Representative to Push Bill in Legislature. Wide Demand for It.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

Representative Frank A. Lipscomb of Clarke County will introduce early in the forthcoming session of the Legislature a bill providing for the creation of a State Board of Tax Equalizers.

The necessity for such a board has been discussed favorably by the press of the State time and again, but so far no serious effort has been made to frame the suggestion into a workable law.

Mr. Lipscomb has made a study of tax conditions in Georgia, however, and has reached the conclusion that the only practical and equitable method of increasing the revenue of the State, without elevating the tax rate, dwells within the creation of a tax equalizing board.

The bill, it is understood, already has been prepared by Mr. Lipscomb, but before it is offered it will be passed upon by one of the most eminent authorities on statutory and constitutional law within the State, and such changes, if any, as he may suggest likely will be made in the measure before it is presented.

Mr. Lipscomb is a new member of the Legislature. He is a young man, around 35, and has had some experience in legislative and administrative work on the City Council of Athens, of which he was three times elected a member, but his forthcoming term in the House of Representatives will be his first service in the broader field of State politics.

He is one of Athens' leading business men, a scion of an old and distinguished Georgia family, an extremely likeable sort of person, and is sure to take a high stand in the Legislature from the day he is given the oath of a Representative.

Mr. Lipscomb has other important legislative proposals to submit to the General Assembly in due course of time, but his bill to create a Board of Tax Equalizers will be his pet project, and the one he is most deeply interested in.

There is no doubt whatever that the bill will receive hearty and strong support from many members of influence, and the prospect of the bill becoming a law generally is looked upon as exceedingly bright.

Former Sheriff of McDuffie County, the Honorable "Shade" Hawes, one of the leading citizens of Thomas E. Watson's well-known town of Thomson, is, and for several days has been, a visitor in Atlanta's delighted midst.

Mr. Hawes is credited with being one of the very shrewdest political observers in the State, and moves hither and yon in most mysterious way his wonders to perform. He has an idea, however—really, it is an obsession—that his home town of Thomson is possessed of more automobiles than any other town of its size in the world. He claims that there are 55 machines in Thomson, notwithstanding the fact that it has been disputed there is room enough in Thomson for even one-half so many.

One irreverent person asked the Sheriff if it was true that they had to run the sewerage system in Thomson straight up in the air to keep it inside the corporate limits—but the Sheriff disdained pointedly to comment upon that.

In charging a Floyd County Grand Jury, Judge Moses Wright recently expressed an opinion that should prove of widespread interest in Georgia.

In giving his interpretation of the present prohibition law, the jurist declared that it "is illegal for one person to order liquor for another."

The Rome Judge bases his opinion upon that section of the Code which says that it shall be illegal to "contract to sell, take orders for or solicit personally or by agent."

As a result of his charge, a rigid investigation of Rome's two locker clubs is under way.

All the Georgia newspapers and all the Georgia politicians are congratulating Editor Dick Grubb and renewing their good wishes to him that The Darien Gazette has achieved its fortieth birthday, and is as bright and snappy to-day as when it was a mere journalistic kiddo.

"Old Dick" Grubb has been a laborer in the newspaper vineyard many moons, and is generally beloved throughout the State. For years his weekly column of paragraphic comment upon men and things in Georgia—rarely other than kindly and sunny tempered—has been looked forward to by many.

Everybody will wish The Darien Gazette many happy returns of the day, and its editor many years of usefulness yet to come.

Representative-elect W. H. Connor, of Spalding County, will introduce two interesting local bills in the General Assembly soon after it convenes.

The first is one to provide for the election of the Griffin City Education Board by the people, rather than by the Council, as has been the custom in the past, and the other is to amend the charter of Griffin so that ward primaries will be abolished and the old plan of general elections be returned.

Four years ago the Legislature changed the charter, at the request of Council, providing for ward primaries; but the system has not proved satisfactory to a great portion of the voters. It is desired by citizens that a voter be allowed to cast his ballot for Aldermen, regardless of which ward he may reside in.

This local legislation in Griffin will be interesting to many cities in Georgia that have operated for a good many years under the very same disadvantages that Griffin is undertaking to get away from, and it may be that Representative Connor's bill will suggest many another of a similar sort from other cities in the State.

Representative William H. Burwell, of Hancock County, is spending a few days in Atlanta. While here he conferred with several of his friends about his speakership race. He feels assured of election on the first ballot.

Attention! Now It's Sandals for Girls Of That Gay Paree!

The old Greek fashion of dressing, including draped skirts and waists, long ago was taken up by the women of Paris and from there carried around the globe, has now reached the feet.

For to-day the elite of the French women, who set the fashion for that city of pretty and vivacious women are wearing sandals!

The high heel shoe and the oft painful by bent arch, has now been "given the hook." In their place has been selected the old-fashioned sandal, and it looks as if it had come to stay.

In fact, so complete has been the change of fashion in this respect that several of the famous Parisian stores, which cater particularly to the fashionable class, have put in a great stock of sandals.

Along the boulevards, women are seen parading at all hours, wearing sandals fastened to their feet by prettily colored ribbon in a band around their ankles.

Adherents of the new style declare it of great benefit to the health of the person wearing them.

Suppleness and flexibility, modistes argue, are the feature of women's dress of the present day.

WORLD'S CREDIT BEGINS TO SHOW A GREAT STRAIN

Loans Heavy—New Securities a Drain—Gold Shipments From New York to Paris Deplored.

BY W. R. LAWSON.
Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, May 9.—Serious bankers do not look with favor upon the renewal of gold shipments from New York to Paris.

All of the big international banks appear to be loaned up to the danger level, while the big new security issues that are coming along are bound to strain banking credit and resources. This week four new issues came out, and several more are in preparation.

Brazil's $55,000,000.

Brazil wants $55,000,000—$15,000,000 to be used for the repayment of treasury bills. Lever Brothers are putting out $5,000,000 new preference shares, and Baltimore Gas $3,500,000. United Fruit's $12,000,000 four-year coupon notes have been successfully placed.

Between now and the end of the month special settlements are due which are likely to increase the demand for money.

Situation in London.

Lombard Street is enjoying temporary ease owing to end-of-the-month borrowing from the Bank of England, but large repayments will have to be made within the next few days.

Further reduction in the English bank rate is not expected immediately. The Berlin rate is hardening, and if Boerse speculation breaks loose again, easy money may be a remote possibility.

Hitherto, while the war was in progress, European stocks have been upheld by finance houses for the purpose of facilitating big loan issues which they were preparing to make later.

American Stocks Firmer.

Between September, 1912, and the end of April, 1913, declines in European stocks have generally been very trifling, while American stocks suffered heavy declines.

From this it is reasoned that American securities offer a better field for a bull campaign.

NAGEL TO PENSION HORSES HE DROVE AS SECRETARY

WASHINGTON, May 9.—When Charles Nagel, of St. Louis, was Secretary of Commerce and Labor in President Taft's Cabinet, a pair of coal-black horses was provided for his use by the Government. These horses, now old, are to be auctioned. "I have a small farm," he said, "and I hope to be able to bid high enough to secure this pair and pension them for life."

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFULLY DARKENS THE HAIR WHEN FADED AND GRAY

Mixed With Sulphur Makes Hair Soft, Lustrous and Cures Dandruff.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking at any drug store for the ready-to-use product—called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy"—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own, which is usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's," which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair, and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says his customers insist on Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur because, they say, it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant. Elkin Drug Co., special agents.

Why is the soda cracker today such a universal food?

People ate soda crackers in the old days, it is true—but they bought them from a barrel or box and took them home in a paper bag, their crispness and flavor all gone.

Uneeda Biscuit—soda crackers better than any ever made before—made in the greatest bakeries in the world—baked to perfection—packed to perfection—kept to perfection until you take them, oven-fresh and crisp, from their protecting package. Five cents.

PREP LEAGUERS WILL CLASH AT MARIST TO-DAY

THE annual Atlanta Prep Athletic meet will be held Friday afternoon at Marist field. Only three schools are entered in this event, but the athletics that are entered are all well trained and some lively events will be seen. Everything about the field is in readiness. An eight-lap track has been laid off and a hundred yard straight-away. The lanes are all laid for the dashes and hurdles have been procured also.

The hundred-yard dash promises to be the real thriller of the meet as never before in a local contest have there been so many evenly matched men entered in this event. There are Allen, and Lewis, of Marist; Sifford of G. M. A.; Bedell and Parks, of Tech High. Every one of these lads have made the century in less than 11 seconds and Allen has a record of 10:3-5 seconds. Owing to this mark the odds are slightly in favor of Allen, but if he does win it will be by a scant few inches.

There will be plenty of competition in every event with the possible exception of the hammer throw. Fowler, of Marist, seems to be in a class by himself in this event. He has thrown the iron ball over 100 feet in practice, which is better than any other man in the league can do.

The entries are all in and Joe Bean, who is staging the meet, has anounced that nearly fifty athletes will compete. Many of them will start in two, three, and even four events. Bill Bedell, of Tech High looks good for the highest individual point winner. He has all kinds of grit and endurance, and in the meet between Tech High and Boys High he won three firsts and a second place which made his total 17 points.

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is the boy that will no doubt give Bedell the most trouble.

The meet will start at 2:30 p. m.

Prep League News and Notes.

The decision of the Boys High athletes not to enter the Prep meet Friday throws them out of high school circles for the rest of the season. Since they have taken the matter into their own hands and decided not to represent their school they will be regarded as an independent team and will have to appear as such in the rest of their meets this season.

* * *

A new Prep record for the hammer throw will very likely be hung up in the meet Friday by Fowler, of Marist. Fowler has had little trouble hurling the 12-pound hammer 100 feet in practice.

* * *

A tennis tournament is being arranged between the winners of the Boys High contests and the winners of the tournament now being held at East Lake by the students of Peacock.

* * *

The tournament will be held on the courts at East Lake some time the latter part of this month and should prove an interesting match as both schools are well represented in this line of sport.

* * *

The officials have announced that the track meet at Marist Friday will start at 2 p. m. This seems pretty late to start such an affair as the meet will probably run about four hours. The meet between Tech and Boys High schools started at 1:30 and was not over until 6 o'clock.

* * *

Charlie Allen, of Marist, is leading the Prep League batters with .467. Armistead and Spurlock, of Boys' High, are close on his heels. Parks, of Tech High, is fourth, and Bedell, of Tech High, is fifth.

* * *

Sifford and Babb will probably be G. M. A.'s two biggest point-winners in the meet Friday. Sifford made a lot of points in the field day exercises at G. M. A. March 31. Brown and Solano are two other pretty good athletes, especially in the sprints.

* * *

Callahan, of Marist, threw just ten balls in the first innings of the game with Boys High Wednesday and fanned the first three men to face him. He struck out two more in the second.

* * *

If the following quartet can keep up the good work shown in the Boys High-Marist game Wednesday they may be assured of a place on the all-prep team this year. They are Allen, of Marist, third base; Spurlock, of Boys High, short; Armistead, of Boys High, catcher, and Fox, of Boys High, pitcher.

* * *

Following is the standing of the local Prep League teams:

Teams	Won	Lost	P.C.
Boys High	5	0	1.000
Tech High	4	2	.667
Marist	3	3	.500
Peacock	1	4	.200
G. M. A.	1	5	.167

GUNBOAT SMITH AND WILLARD IN NEXT COAST GO

By W. W. Naughton

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—Gunboat Smith once again is with us, and interest in the next heat of the great white hope free-for-all will increase by leaps and bounds.

Smith is to meet Elongated Jess Willard of Kansas at Coffroth's Eighth Street Arena on Saturday afternoon, May 17, and when these two have settled their differences the search for the best pugilistic pale face on earth will be almost over.

It will only be necessary for the winner to hook up with Luther McCarty and we will have a champion whose right there will be none to dispute—at least for a while.

Bluejacket vs. Cowboy.

The semi-final in the race—for that's what the coming bout may be called—will be between an ex-bluejacket and a cowboy. The fact that a man from off the bounding blue and a man from the cattle plains have battled their way to the front rank of the world's fighters shows conclusively that champions are not always the products of congested cities. The old argument used to be that the best men were to be found where there were the most men to pick from, but it certainly does not hold in pugilism.

A glance at the array of white hopes who have tried and failed during the past year shows that championship candidates are drawn from widely separated lands and from all walks of life. So far as the prize ring is concerned, we have had George Rodel, the South African Boer, and Bombardier Wells, the British artilleryman, who was seized with the ambition to shine as a ringman while on service in far India.

Then there was Fred McKay, the Winnipeg policeman, who was attacked with the Queensberry bug while patrolling his beat in his home town in Canada. Al Paizer, another blasted hope, came from the farm lands back in Iowa. It was not different in the old years, however. The lure of the game drew Joe Choynski from the candy kitchen and Jim Corbett from the bank. Fitzsimmons rolled up his apron and dropped his sledge when he heard the call of the padded mitt, and Jeffries deserted the boiler foundry.

Nor must we forget Tom Sharkey, "the pride of the navy," who used to say in the matter of punishment or suffering, fighting was child's play compared to walking the deck barefooted on a hot day in the Red Sea.

Paul Dickey, Famous End, Here Next Week

Former Michigan Football Hero in Vaudeville Sketch at Forsyth Theater.

Paul Dickey, who played star end on the University of Michigan eleven in '07 and '08, and who led in all track events and field exercises while at college, is now in vaudeville and will appear at the Forsyth as the star feature, with his own company the week of May 12.

Paul Dickey was a wonder in his time. He was selected by every expert who picked an All Western or All American eleven. He led the ends, and even at that had some of the greatest stars of the other teams to contend with. His work on the track was wonderful and some of his records still stand.

His sketch in vaudeville is called "The Come Back." It deals with college life, and football figures most prominently. It is a sketch that the sport-loving theatergoers will doubly appreciate.

During his visit in Atlanta, Dickey will be entertained by the Michigan alumni who live here, and his "Frat" mates are also preparing to see that he does not forget his week in Atlanta.

BOXING News of the Ring Game

Abe Attell has released John Reisfer as his manager and has placed himself under the management of Danny Morgan. Abe and Morgan agreed on terms terday, according to a report from New York.

* * *

* * *

* * *

Had the match been made Rivers would have received 27 1-2 per cent and Britton 22 1-2 per cent of the gate. Rivers is one of the many stars who are steering clear of Britton these days.

* * *

Frank Moran, who fought Luther McCarty recently with a broken hand, will not be able to don the gloves for at least three weeks, on account of the injury. His manager was offered a bout with Jim Flynn at the Atlas A. A. of Boston, on May 20, but was compelled to pass it up.

* * *

Having lost close to $2,000 on the Luther McCarty-Moran battle because they guaranteed McCarty $5,000, Jess and Eddie McMahon, managers of the St. Nicholas A. C., yesterday made the announcement that under no circumstances will they give another fighter a guarantee in the future, even if he is a champion.

Johnny Griffith, of Akron, and Pal Moore, of Philadelphia, will meet for 12 rounds at Akron, May 12. Bernie Strapp is staging the show.

Tech and Georgia Teams Ready for "Play Ball!"

Jackets in Superb Shape, Says Coach Heisman

By J. W. Heisman

ATHENS, GA., May 9.—The Tech team arrived here after a rather tiresome ride of several hours duration. This morning I am letting them walk about town a little to get their land legs again, but immediately after lunch they will be sent to their rooms for a nap, so as to make sure they will be feeling well and perfectly rested by the time the game is called, which will be at 4 o'clock.

Many, many times have I been to Athens with both football and baseball teams, but never have I seen the old town so stirred up over anything as it seems to be to-day over these two games of ball with Tech. The Red and Black team has had a most fortunate season from start to date, and it is but natural that all their friends should not only be wrought up to fever heat with enthusiasm over their fine showing, but also that they should feel the keenest interest over the outcome of the four games to be played with the Yellow Jackets. The loss of a couple of games to the Atlantans would leave, they fear, a rather black mark on their bright and shining season's record, while the winning of the series would mean not alone that this splendid record had been maintained to the last, but the victory would be sweeter than any other achieved by their team all year simply because it came over their dearest rivals.

Town Filled With Visitors.

It looks like most every town, city and hamlet in the State of Georgia has sent at least one representative up here to see these two games. Never have I seen so many out-of-town visitors here before, and never have I seen so much of colors. Naturally, the Red and Black tinges prevail heavily, but here and there we spot a bit of Gold and White, which tells us that we are not entirely friendless even in the very stronghold of the enemy.

Yells? Yes, we have heard them galore ever since we landed, and the Georgia band as well. By the way, this band is no slouch: it plays real stuff, and plays it well—especially a refrain entitled "Glory, Glory to old Georgia," of which it seems strangely fond,—about as much so as one other band I know of when it comes to a composition which narrates the autobiography of a certain "Rambling Wreck."

Yes, all is excitement here, and nerves are keyed up to the highest tension. It appears that Sanford Field has never before been called upon to house the crowds that will storm it this afternoon and to-morrow. And one week from to-day will witness a repetition of these scenes at Grant Park in Atlanta, I haven't a doubt, regardless of how the games come out over here.

Georgia Men Confident.

Of the Georgia team's condition I know nothing. Their friends and supporters appear confident in the extreme; from which it must be inferred that the team is in apple-pie order. That they can play great ball on their own field they have demonstrated again and again this season, and for my part I have no doubt they will again to-day.

I am expecting to see a great college baseball team in the defenders of the Red and Black, and one that will be well worth winning from, yet not too great a catastrophe to lose to.

Tech has everything to win in these games, and little enough to lose aside from one of those "it might have been" feelings after the game. To lose to such a team as Georgia it will be no more nor less than every team that has visited Athens this year has done, while to win would be to be raised to a pinnacle of joy and glory as great as Georgia herself enjoys.

As for the Tech team, all I can say is that it is in superb shape. There have been better teams at Tech, but worse teams than this have defeated Georgia, and in Athens, too. The boys are playing better ball just now than they have at any previous time this season, and if they happen to hit their top stride this afternoon they will make the sledding hard for even so good an aggregation as Georgia has. Some of the games Tech has played this year would have pushed most any college team in the country—notably the Clemson and Sewanee games, and those won from Mercer and Auburn.

Heisman Has Hope.

It is true Georgia has the dope all in her favor, and also has the advantage of playing the first two games on her home grounds, which is always rated a distinct advantage. However, I recall that Tech teams of the past have had a way of playing the very best ball they knew how to play when they went right over on the Georgia campus to perform; and I know of no reason why these Tech boys shouldn't do that same thing over again.

Yes, it needs to be admitted that in Corley and Morris Georgia has two wonderfully clever pitchers, and the biggest question, in my opinion, is whether the Tech batters can do anything with these flingers. If they do no more to them than other Southern teams have done, Georgia will have things all her own way.

The other "facer" that Tech has to look in the eye is the extent of the damage that the Georgia "cover-rippers" will do to Tech's twirlers. That is a hard one, for it must be granted that Georgia has mauled many and many a good pitcher all over the lot this spring,—pitchers who were, in all probability, quite as good as the best that Tech can put forward. No doubt Georgia will hit "some," and maybe some more. Still, I am not without hopes; they haven't done it yet, anyway.

They will be great games, I am satisfied, no matter if Georgia does win. And there will be great crowds, and terrific excitement and noise, and all that goes with the biggest matches of the year.

Colleges on Good Terms.

I just want to add that I am very, very thankful that the two colleges are at last on the very best of terms and that there is absolutely no chance for a flare out of flame or any other kind of break-out such as used to characterize encounters between the rival teams. There will be good order and tip-top sportsmanship all around, I know; and that is the best of any college game.

Heisman on Job For Hearst Papers

J. W. Heisman, the famous Tech coach will cover the Tech-Georgia games in Athens for The Georgian and Hearst's Sunday American. He will describe each game completely and his comments will be the very best obtainable. He will follow each and every play closely and his expert opinion on them will be of great interest. Mr. Heisman writes a breezy story, yet he never gets away from facts. He will have another interesting story in to-morrow's Georgian, and the story of Saturday's game in The Sunday American should be a classic.

NO CAUSE FOR PROTEST.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The New York Nationals had no undue advantage over the Philadelphia club in the games played at the Polo grounds late in April by reason of the fact that there was a hole scooped out of the diamond back of the pitchers' box. This is the finding of President Thomas J. Lynch of the National league, on the protest of the Philadelphia club. He orders that the result of the games shall stand as played.

BETTS GOES TO REDS.

CINCINNATI, May 9.—Fred Betts, a Cincinnati ball player, who pitched for the Cardinals several years ago, to-day signed a contract to play with the Reds and left to join the team. Betts quit professional ball of his own accord to become a typewriter salesman.

OLLIE KIRK vs. EDDIE MOY.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Eddie Moy, the Allentown, Pa. featherweight, who gained a good reputation in Pennsylvania will meet Ollie Kirk, of St. Louis, here to-morrow in a ten-round bout.

INDIANS PURCHASE WORKS.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 9.—Pitcher Ralph Works, of the Cincinnati club, of the National League, was purchased to-day by the Indianapolis club, of the American Association. The price was not announced.

KING RECEIVES PLAYERS.

LONDON, May 9.—Following the precedent established when he received the English polo team before its departure to America in 1911, King George received this year's team at Buckingham Palace.

Jones and Barrett Are Stars in Shoot

Former Captures High Average Prize in Georgia State Championship. Barrett Wins State Title.

AMERICUS, GA., May 9.—Henry Jones, of Macon, Ga., won the high average championship in the two-days' contest of the Georgia State Gun Club shoot here this afternoon. Jones secured 365 targets out of a possible 400. He was awarded the silver trophy for highest average.

Jones also tied with James Barrett, of Augusta, for the Georgia State championship, each breaking 98 targets out of a possible 100.

In the shoot-off Barrett won on 20 straights. Jones also won the long-run medal of the tournament by scoring 145 straights.

Homer Clark, of Allendale, Ill., won the silver trophy in the professional class, scoring 389 birds out of a possible 400. He also won the double professional championship in scoring 48 out of 50 targets.

J. K. Warren, of Birmingham, won the double target amateur championship of the South after tying with Eubanks, of Atlanta, on 44 out of 50 doubles.

All of the 45 gunners in yesterday's tourney are pleased with the great success of this the third annual State shoot in Americus of the Georgia Gun Club.

TO HOLD 200-MILE RACE.

GALVESTON, TEXAS, May 9.—A 200-mile automobile race on Galveston beach, for which a prize of $5,000 will be hung up, is to be the feature event of the 1913 Cotton Carnival meet, according to plans laid to-day. The meet will cover three days in all, the dates being set on July 28, 29 and 30. It is planned to offer prizes aggregating $14,000 for the meet.

WEIKINGER BEATS WIRTH.

DEFIANCE, OHIO, May 9.—Henry Wirth, the clever Chicago light weight wrestler, lost to Edward Weikinger, the local champion, last night in two straight falls.

RUSSELL GOES TO ALLENTOWN.

ALLENTOWN, PA., May 9.—Lefty Russell, the famous southpaw for whom Connie Mack paid $12,000, has been turned over to the Allentown Tristate Club by Manager Jack Dunn, of the Baltimore Club. Russell will cover the initial sack for the Allentown team.

2 GOOD BOUTS FOR LOCAL FANS HERE IN JUNE

ATLANTA boxing fans will be furnished the opportunity of witnessing two corking bouts next month at the Auditorium-Armory. The first wil be held on June 9 and will bring together Jim Flynn and Jim Savage. The next show will follow on June 17 and will be between Leach Cross, or Freddie Welsh, and Matty Baldwin.

The Flynn-Savage match has already been closed and it is likely that the other will be all O K'd within the next few days. Baldwin has already accepted, while both Cross and Welsh are anxious to exhibit their wares here.

Flynn should be a tremendous card in Atlanta. He was beating Jack Johnson to a frazzle until he was disqualified on a technicality. And Savage is a good attraction here as he decisively defeated Al Kubiak a couple of weeks after the latter had whipped Carl Morris in a local ring.

CITY LEAGUE TO MEET.

LOCAL GOLFERS PLAY WELL AT BIRMINGHAM

By W. R. Tichenor.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 9.—George C. Oliver, of Birmingham, won the low medal score in the qualifying round of the invitation tournament held over the course of the Birmingham Country Club.

In the first round Oliver and F. C. Stahlman, of Nashville, tied with seventy-fours. In the play off in the afternoon Oliver again did seventy-four, beating Stahlman by four strokes.

Smith Cullum, of Birmingham, had a fine chance to win the low score prize, as he was on the eighteenth green within ten feet of the cup with two putts for a seventy-three. He was short on his first, was over with his second and then missed an easy one, which would have put him in the tie.

Captain E. T. Winston led the Atlanta golfers with a seventy-seven. He was fifty. Lowry Arnold did a seventy-nine and yours truly did an eighty, which puts three Atlanta players in the first flight.

F. G. Byrd and G. W. Adair did eighty-four and qualified in the second flight. D. Brown and C. J. Holditch qualified in the third flight and are drawn against each other for the first match Friday morning.

Walton Griffith also qualified in the third flight, as did C. E. Corwin, R. P. Jones and T. B. Paine qualified in the fourth flight. Dr. Frank Holland found lots of trouble on his round and qualified in the fifth flight.

Players from New Orleans, Chattanooga, Nashville, Montgomery and Atlanta are in attendance. The course is in good shape and many low scores are likely to be made in the matches to be played.

AUBURN DOWNS CLEMSON IN FIRST GAME; SCORE 9 TO 3

AUBURN, ALA., May 9.—With Davis on the mound twirling sensational ball, Auburn won the first game of the series from Clemson here by a score of 9 to 3.

Ezell, Clemson's premier pitcher, started with a rush, pitching no-run, no-hit ball until the fifth inning, striking out ten out of the first seventeen men before him. He weakened in the sixth and the Auburn team scored three runs by bunching a single and two two-base hits with an error.

With the score tied in the sixth inning Auburn went ahead in the seventh, scoring two runs on a hit and a wild throw to second.

In order to cinch the game in the eighth Harris singled, Davenport followed with an infield hit, but Harris was thrown out overrunning third. Locke was safe on a muff by Corator, and Davenport scored on Williams' two-bagger; Graydon hit safely, scoring Locke and Williams, and scored a ninth run later on Louiselle's drive on second.

OTTO JORDAN MAKES A BIG HIT WITH VALDOSTA FANS

VALDOSTA, GA., May 9.—Otto Jordan made good here with a vengeance Thursday. Valdosta fans never saw such pepper as the locals displayed, with the old Atlanta second baseman cavorting around the keystone sack. Otto played an errorless game, got two hits, stole a base and scored a run.

Heretofore the locals have been indifferent, but Otto swears that he will "can" the first man he thinks is loafing.

Ferris, the new first baseman brought here by Jordan, looks good. Valdosta business men will back the new manager to the limit, and if players of championship caliber are available the money is here to purchase them.

BUCK WEAVER WILL OPPOSE BILLS TO-DAY

By Joe Agler.

Crackers' First Baseman.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., May 9.—The Crackers finally broke their losing streak yesterday and now hope to win a number of successive games. The boys played great ball yesterday and showed more dash and vim than they displayed in their last four games put together. The final score was: Crackers, 7; Billikens, 3.

Long and Smthi divided the honors of the day, although Gilbert Price twirled good ball. The former pair pounded out home runs and helped pile up runs to our credit.

I look for Bill Smith to send "Buck" Weaver to the slab this afternoon, with Graham catching. The latter has had a long rest and should show some of his old stuff. Manager Dobbs is in a hard way for pitchers and is trying to secure Becker from us. He could use him now, as he has no portside pitcher on his staff. Dobbs said this morning that he did not know whom he would use against us this afternoon.

"Big Bill" Chappelle joined us yesterday and looks fit and ready to go in and win ball games for the Crackers. We also expect Harry Bailey to be with us soon. His ankle is coming around fast now, and he should be in the game any day now.

The Billikens are without their star pitcher, E. Brown. He is on the sick list, and it looks as if it will be some time before he will be able to don a uniform. Snyder, who twirled against us yesterday, is but a youngster and needs more experience.

GOTCH AND ZBYSZKO MAY MEET ON MAT IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, May 9.—Plans were laid here to-day for the Frank Gotch-Stanislaus Zbyszko championship wrestling match here, and the syndicate that is back of the proposed plan is almost certain to land the clash. It became known here that Gotch has practically given his consent to such a meeting, and Manager Herman, who guides the affairs of the Pole, is only too anxious to accept. A purse of $25,000 has been offered for the battle.

CAZEAU AND LE MARIN WIN NEW YORK WRESTLING BOUT

NEW YORK, May 9.—George Lurich, the Russian heavyweight wrestler, lost two out of three falls to Raymond Cazeau here last night. In the other match Constant LeMarin, of France, threw Paul Samson, of Germany.

WORKS GOES TO HOOSIERS.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 9.—Pitcher Ralph Works, of the Cincinnati Nationals, was purchased to-day by Indianapolis. The deal was made with Garry Herrmann at Cincinnati over the telephone. The purchase price was not announced.

SUSPENDED FOR PROFANITY.

CHICAGO, May 8.—Player Bill Lewis, of Milwaukee, was to-day suspended for three days by President Chivington, of the American Association. Lewis' suspension was for using profane language on the ball field and disputing with the umpires.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 9.—Things have not changed greatly in the American League this week, except that the Washington club is holding up with a persistence that makes it look like a strong contender for the flag. Johnson is pitching wonderful ball, the best of his career. The Athletics and Red Sox are alarmed.

"I thought he was good last year," an American League player told me the other day in discussing Johnson, "but I never saw anything like the way he is traveling this season. He has gone forty-two innings without being scored on, and the chances are he will go forty-two more. He has everything in the world, and his fast ball has the speed of a bullet and the worst jump or the best I ever looked at. It depends upon the point of view whether it is the best or worst. It looked like the worst to me, because I was batting against him. He has been calling what he intends to throw against opposing batters. He did this repeatedly in the series with the Yankees.

"Then he would shoot up the ball with the old jump on it. And the batter missed it just as widely as if he had no notion of the prescription. That is going some when the pitcher can tip the batter off to his stuff and get away with it.

* * *

"THE Washington team is full of dash and ginger, and is playing fast ball. They will give the Athletics a great fight, but I do not expect to see the Senators hold the pace they are setting now."

That is the opinion of a veteran American Leaguer, who did not want his name mentioned.

After pitching in Philadelphia on Saturday and losing because Cravath, who is hitting very hard this season, pumped a home run into the bleachers, I returned to New York on Sunday and met "Eddie" Collins, the second baseman of the Athletics, with whom I have been acquainted for some time.

"How does the race look in the American League?" I asked him, "talking shop" as usual.

"The Washington club is the one we've got to beat, and I think we can do it," he said. "They are carrying lots of 'pep' now, but the supply won't last through the season. The boys are bound to slow down. If anything should happen to Johnson, they are gone, because he is carrying the club. Besides Johnson, Hughes is the only other pitcher we have had a look at so far. Groom seems to be traveling along pretty well, judging from the scores against other clubs. Cashion is too wild right now to be of much value. The rest of the team looks good, with every man playing at his best at present. Let them hit a little slump, however, and it is going to take a lot of the pepper out of them."

"HOW about the Athletics?"

"We're in pretty fair shape. Our pitching department caused the most ante-season fretting. Plank is going fine, and Bender seems to be rounding into form now. Coombs is the member of the veteran trio who is to the bad. He is laid up in bed in Philadelphia with a high fever, and I don't know what is the matter with him. He has some kind of fever, and his temperature has been up around 104 for several days. John has never been right since that time he hurt himself in the world's series with the Giants. His health has been bad, and during that rainy spell when we were in Washington he was taken ill and had to be sent home. It is problematical whether he will be in any kind of shape before the middle of the summer. 'Connie' is worried about him.

"ALL the young pitchers look pretty good, and we are bound to get at least one man from the flock to help out Bender and Plank. Houck has been twirling good ball so far, and the other squabs have the ability, but get nervous when the game becomes tight. They will outgrow this. The club is hitting the ball hard, and playing together well. So far we have not had any injured players outside of Coombs' illness; but let me touch wood, quick."

A good line on the strength of the teams in each league can be drawn when the present intersectional series is completed. That is what always tells on the clubs—the long trips away from home.

FODDER FOR FANS

Johnson, the Indian pitching recruit of the Reds, looks like one of the best pitching finds in recent years. He's won all of the Reds' five victories.

Everybody laughed at Charley Ebbetts last winter when he built a baseball plant with a capacity of 35,000. And now Ebbets is laughing at the erstwhile laughers. If the Dodgers keep up their winning streak, Ebbets will have to enlarge his park.

* * *

The Dodgers, by beating the Cubs yesterday, are now within 9 points of second place and 25 points of first place.

* * *

The White Sox jumped all over the Senators' pitchers yesterday and romped home easy winners.

* * *

The lowly Braves bumped the Pirates again yesterday and the Pittsburg fans are wondering just when their pets are going to stop skidding.

* * *

The Athletics' victory over the Browns yesterday made the sixth straight win for the Quakertown athletes.

* * *

Johnnie Evers, the "Keystone King," put up a wierd fielding exhibition yesterday, making three errors, two of which resulted in runs for the Dodgers, enough to give them a victory.

A great batting rally in the ninth enabled the Cardinals to snatch a 5 to 4 victory from the Phillies.

* * *

The major league baseball season to date has furnished some big surprises. In the National League the Giants and Pirates were doped to fight it out for first place all the way. Instead, they are wallowing around in the second division, and the Cardinals and Dodgers, who were accorded cellar places, are within a few points of first place.

* * *

In the American, the Boston Red Sox were expected to repeat. All the dopesters treated them to a flying start. However, the Boston boys are far down in the second division and the Naps and White Sox, who weren't figured to have a look in, are snugly ensconced in first division places, within hailing distance of the leading Athletics.

* * *

But the season is still young.

CROSS DEFEATS HARRY TENDALL, BUT IS ROBBED

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—Leach Cross, of New York, hero of many ring battles, gave Harry Trendall, St. Louis' best lightweight, a sound beating in the feature battle at the Coliseum last night, only to have Referee Harry Sharpe hand the verdict to the home boy.

The best that even Trendall's own friends looked for was a draw, and the round by round notes taken by experts showed Cross had a good margin.

Trendall left the ring a badly marked up man, both as to his face and body, while Cross went to his dressing room without a scratch.

WHITE AND BRITTON BOUT WANTED BY GOTHAM CLUB

CHICAGO, May 9.—A Charlie White-Jack Britton match now is likely. It would be a certainty but for the fact that the local featherweight is matched to battle Joe Thomas, of New Orleans, in a return go in the latter's city on May 19. Nate Lewis, who guides the pugilistic destinies of White, to-day received a wire from Gil Boag, of the Forty-fifth Avenue Athletic Club in New York, offering him May 20 as the date for a match between White and Britton.

The terms are perfectly satisfactory to Lewis and nothing is more pleasing to him than to land such a battle, but he must go through with the Southern battle. Lewis lost no time in answering Boag, in the hope of securing a later date.

JOHNSON WITHIN THREE INNINGS OF A RECORD

CHICAGO, May 9.—Walter Johnson needs to pitch only three more scoreless innings to excel Jack Coombs' great 1910 record of 46 successive runless rounds. Johnson went to Engel's rescue Monday against Boston and blanked the Red Sox for five stanzas, while his helpmates were able to score two runs and win in the twelfth round.

Johnson has not yielded an earned run this season, although he was scored on his first inning out.

By the Sweat of His Brow

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WILL you be good enough," asks M. E., "to tell me if it is proper for a girl to kiss a young man who tells her he loves her but can not marry her for some time to come owing to the fact that he is not in a position to support her at the present time, and may never be able to do so?"

If kisses be classed as luxuries or necessities depends solely on the years of the one making the classification. Youth regards them as necessities, and Age knows they are but idle luxuries, meaningless though not unpleasant, and an altogether unsanitary method of expressing an affection that sometimes lasts little longer than the kiss itself.

But, be they luxuries or necessities, they should be classed among the many things which a man should be compelled to earn by the sweat of his brow. Unless he can earn a living, and by the sweat of his brow provide bread, he is not entitled to kisses. Unless he can go forth and with muscle and brain produce the price of a nest for his bride, he hasn't earned the right to be kissed by anybody in the world but his mother.

Is an Insult.

The kiss that is given to a girl with the declaration, "I love you, but I can not afford to marry you; I am not in position to support you now, and may never be able to do so," is an insult.

It is as if he said to her: "It gratifies me to kiss you, and for that reason I seek the privilege. I can do nothing for you and my monopoly of your affection will serve no other purpose than to place you in an embarrassing position, and to keep other lovers away whose intentions are more honorable. But it pleases me to kiss you, and when I grow tired of kissing you I can take my avowals of love to some other girl. They carry no promise with them, no obligation, no duty, and so long as there are girls in the world who will kiss me, I can enjoy myself without paying the price."

He Is a Loafer.

I take it that this young man is a loafer, and who is there who thinks that the man who loafs when there is so much work to do, is entitled to any girl's kisses? A self-respecting man will seek work, and a self-respecting girl will refuse to bestow any mark of affection on a man who is a professional hobo in the Kingdom of Love.

To care for such a man is a weakness that carries tragedy in its wake. It is the same kind of weakness that marks the woman who supports her husband, finding recompense for her toil in the fact that he never abuses her or speaks cross to her, while other women's husbands who work hard and earn a good living are sometimes fretted and angry.

The girl who permits such a man to kiss her shows a heart that is soft and a brain that is weak. She has two choices of degradation: Either she kisses the man to no other purpose than a waste of time and an unsavory memory, or she marries him and takes upon her shoulders the burden of his support.

There is no other alternative.

A Prince Who Plays Bagpipes

THE announcement made recently that the Prince of Wales, in the interval of his studies at Oxford, is learning to play the bagpipes under the tuition of Pipe Major W. Rose, of the Second Scots Guards, surprised many people, and particularly those who have an inherent dislike to the much-abused instrument. But his royal highness, in taking up the bagpipe as a musical accomplishment, is merely carrying on a tradition of the royal house, many of the members of which have always had a liking for the merry chant of the pipes. Queen Victoria had her piper at Balmoral, and so had King Edward, and to-day there is one attached to the royal establishment, for King George is fond of bagpipe music as his father and his royal grandmother were.

Early Morning Skirt.

When the court is in residence in the Highlands it is customary for the royal piper, dressed in full Highland costume, to march backward and forward in front of the royal apartments every morning and awaken the household with the "skirl" of his pipes. On official occasions, too, when the Balmoral Highlanders are welcoming the king and queen on their arrival at their Scottish residence, or when the retainers on the royal estate are taking part in any function, the king's piper invariably heads the procession of kilted men.

At the Braemar Highland gathering, the great social event of the season on Deeside, which is patronized by royalty, this official always "plays" the king's clansmen around the arena. On a memorable occasion at New Mar Lodge, the seat of the late Duke of Fife, King Edward, along with the princess royal, her two daughters and his grace, marched at the head of a body of Highlanders to the accompaniment of the music of the bagpipes, for which his majesty had as much liking as he had for the kilt when he was in the Highlands.

Highland Garb.

As soon as he reached Balmoral on his periodical visits King Edward—just as King George does to-day—donned the kilt, and, as was often remarked, no Highlander could carry it better than did his majesty. Queen Victoria, too, had as great an admiration for the tartan as she had for the bigpipes. In her majesty's time the walls of Balmoral Castle were draped with the Stuart colors. They have since been replaced by less somber decorations! But neither the wearing of the kilt nor the retaining of a piper is dictated by royal fashion, for every nobleman whose ancestral home is in the Highlands dons the traditional garb as much out of compliment to his ancestry as for any other reason. His guests, as a rule, follow his example as a matter of courtesy, but it does not always happen that they have the necessary habiliments with which to convert themselves for the time being into "Highlanders."

An Amusing Story.

An amusing but well-authenticated story is told of a German prince who was the guest of a Scottish nobleman, and who was so fascinated with the Highland dress that he determined to have a kilt made. He placed the order with a well-known firm of tailors for a complete outfit, richly adorned with silver buckles, and gold-mounted sporran or pouch. He paid something like a hundred guineas for it. The kilt was delivered in due course, and the prince was rigged out the next day in all the splendor of a Highland chieftain! But his highness was unfamiliar with the wearing of the sporran, and to the consternation of his host and hostess and their other guests he appeared with it attached to the back instead of the front of the kilt! Taking the prince quietly aside, Lord —— suggested that his sporran should be reversed, and with profound apologies for the mistake he had made, his highness placed the pouch in its proper position.

Shoes of the Scot.

It is not only in Scotland that the bagpipes are regarded with favor. The Englishman certainly likes them best at a distance, but they are a very popular instrument among the natives of the Punjab, in India. The late Maharajah of Patiala had a fine band of pipers, wholly composed of Sikhs and other natives, who had been trained by a piper from one of the British Highland regiments. Many of the Indian frontier forces—notably the Gurkha regiments—have bagpipe bands of their own. An amusing instance of Scottish pride is told by a retired Indian officer in this connection. He was one day visiting the Court of the Rajah of Jeend, and noticed that the only person who broke through the rigid rule of etiquette, which forbids the wearing of shoes in the presence of the Rajah, was his bagpiper. Judicious inquiry elicited the fact that the sturdy Scot, when being engaged as the court musician, had stipulated that he was not to be obliged to go about the court in bare feet, as he regarded it as derogatory to his native country that he should do such a thing.

Do You Know That—

About a year ago four students of Boston University started out with a tuning fork to sing their way round the world. They have arrived in London by way of San Francisco, Honolulu, Japan, China, Manchuria and India, and are appearing under the title of the "University Quartette," or the "Four Singing Evangelists." Each can preach a sermon, lead a young men's Sunday school class or blend his voice with the others in the four-part setting of a hymn. Sometimes they make a complete change of program and give a secular entertainment, with humorous songs, Southern coon songs and piano solos.

A rudder with a doorway into the interior is a feature of the Cunarder Aquitania, recently finished. The rudder is so large that a doorway has been constructed in the lower part to admit workmen, so that they can remove the pin which connects the rudder to the ship. This pin is four feet long, and bigger than the heaviest projectile made for modern artillery. When delivered at the builders' yard the rudder was in three parts. After they had been connected and laid upon the ground the distance that had to be walked to pass around the rudder was over 100 feet.

The "homeles" population of London, according to the latest census of the County Council, numbers nearly 22,000. Some time ago a scheme was started by which the police gave lodging tickets to these night wanderers. This has somewhat depleted the Embankment and the streets, but the fact is noted that only about half of the people who are given tickets make use of them. They clearly prefer the wandering life.

False Gratitude

Little Molly May was only six, and on the morning of the story was sobbing her heart out because she had lost a penny. Many looked and sympathized as she trotted down the street; but it was an old gentleman who played the role of practical Samaritan.

"Well, my little maid," he asked, as he patted Molly May's heaving shoulder, "what's the trouble?"

"Boo-hoo! I've lost a penny!" came the muffled answer.

Without a word the old gentleman thrust his hand into his pocket, and handed Molly a penny to replace the one she had lost, saying:

"There—there, now everything will be all right."

But to his utter confusion, the little girl dropped her damp pinafore, gazing at him with an expression in which sorrow strove valiantly with anger, and said:

"Oh, you wicked old man, 'oo had it all the time."

Some Up-to-Date Gowns and How They Are Fashioned

ON the left an afternoon dress composed of a small, loose coat of "orange" velvetine and of a skirt of pale gray silk cloth.

The coat is cut kimono style, fastened on the side by a hook. A broad shawl collar is faced with gray silk cloth and the cuffs which finish the sleeves are also lined with gray-silk cloth. There is a pocket on each side.

A small blouse of white net shows ruching at the neck and at the wrists.

The skirt is a long tunic, crossed in the front and caught up at the waist by large gatherings. The left side of the tunic is caught up by a few folds under the other. The underskirt is plain.

On the right a small afternoon coat of "Havana" taffeta. It is gathered over an empiecement, making points over the shoulders and falling rather low over the arms. Broad openings make the armholes, which are edged by a small flat ruching which hides the setting of a second sleeve of Chantilly lace, tightened at the wrists by three ruchings of taffeta, and finished by a high flounce over the hand. The fullness of the coat is caught up at the bottom, giving a curved effect and finishing in back in a small tail and edged by a small flat ruching.

A huge jet hook fastens the bottom. Two small revers of taffeta and a broad collar of black Chantilly complete this coat.

Wanted Instructions.

The station master on the Eastern Indian Railway had been given strict orders not to do anything out of the ordinary without authority from the superintendent. This accounts for his sending the following telegram:

"Superintendent's Office, Calcutta.—Tiger on platform eating railway porter. Please wire instructions."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

HE SHOULD ATONE.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a young man a few months ago with whom I am very much in love. I have had an appointment with him, but he failed to come. He phoned the next day, but I was not at home. Shall I call him up and ask him to call?

JESTINE.

Having failed to keep his engagement, it is due you from him that he make another, and atone for his failure to keep it by being prompt and particularly attentive. You do not owe him the courtesy of asking him to call.

A Golden One.

A white rose in his buttonhole, and cotton gloves on his dirty hands, old Bill Loafer swaggered jauntily along the street. At the corner a friend stopped him, exclaiming incredulously:

"Why, Bill, ol' man, what's happened—bin left some money?"

"No, no," said Bill. "It's me goldin weddin'; I'm celebratin' me goldin weddin'!"

"But why ain't your wife celebratin' it, too?" inquired his friend. "I see 'er goin' to work as usual this mornin'. Why ain't she got a white rose and noo gloves?"

"Er!" muttered Bill, as he grunted reflectively. "She ain't got nuthin' to do wiv it! She's me fourth!"

What the Master Used.

The inspector was talking about adverbs and adjectives.

"Does your master use adverbs and adjectives?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," chorused the scholars.

"Well, what does he use when he does not use adverbs and adjectives?"

There was a silence. Finally a little fellow waved his hand.

"He generally uses a ruler, sir."

Hints For the Household

When rinsing flannels and woolens it is best to do so in warm soapy water, as pure warm water makes them hard; also warm hanging the curtains out to dry, hang them double, as it makes them even and prevents them getting torn so easily.

When about to make a pudding, well flour your board and rolling pin and roll the suet out to a thin sheet. Take between your hands and rub down, when you will find the suet as fine as breadcrumbs.

Hot water marks may be removed from japanned trays by the simple process of rubbing them over well with sweet oil, and then polishing with a little dry flour on a soft duster.

To curl a feather that has become damaged with rain or dew, sprinkle it thickly with common salt and shake before a bright fire until dry, when you will find it as good as new.

When washing pudding cloths throw some orange peelings into the water. This collects the grease and helps to make the cloths white and clean-looking.

Soap that is allowed to dry and harden lasts twice as long as if used when fresh. Therefore it is cheaper to buy it in quantity and keep it in a dry place.

To prevent custard dishes or glasses from cracking when pouring boiled custard into them, place the dish on a damp cloth. This plan is most effective.

To thread a darning-needle, take a length of cotton, put the two ends together, and thread through the eye, put wool through loop and draw it.

A teaspoonful of borax to a quart of water will make hard water soft, so that it can be used for washing the most delicate skin.

If a white shirt is scorched when ironed the brown marks may be removed by rubbing them with a little dry borax.

The Soft Answer.

He was really growing tired of paying off his son's bills—the boy was an undergraduate at one of the big universities. However, after much thought, he decided to be indulgent just once more.

Boys will be boys, he thought. Accordingly, as requested, he sent a check for $250, but accompanied it with stern admonitions to live more wisely and more economically.

"My son," he wrote, "you must remember that your studies are costing me a great deal of money—very much more than I can honestly afford."

"I know it, father—I know it," replied his incorrigible hopeful; "and the tragedy is that I don't study very hard, either."

Long Time for Both.

Affable Passenger—Indeed, and you are a music hall artiste! I am a banker, and I think it must be at least twenty years since I was in a music hall.

Music Hall Artiste (regretfully)—And I'm quite certain, sir, it's twenty years since I was in a bank.

THREE QUESTIONS.

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"WHAT is Modesty?" I asked
Of a violet that basked
In a swamp one summer day
Where a sunbeam chanced to stray.
Then the purple violet,
Squandering fragrance, dewy wet,
Spoke from out the swampland low:
"Modesty? I do not know."

Then I asked a lily white,
Paler than an altar-light,
Sinless as a vestal's day;
"What is Purity, I pray?"
And the lily in the dell
Answered me, "I cannot tell."

"What is beauty?" I inquired
Of a rose with crimson fired.
"Beauty, Cleopatra's gift,
Casting Antony adrift.
Beauty? Tell me ere I go."
Said the rose, "I do not know."

Then I asked a girl aged three,
Who explained it all to me.

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Turner, becoming an orphan, is thrown on her own resources. She finds work at the Emporium, a department store owned by Edward Gilder; is accused of the theft of silks, and sent to prison, though innocent. She tells George Demarest, Gilder's head lawyer, that the way to stop thievery is to pay a living wage. In prison she learned from fellow convicts why girls go wrong. She understands their point of view and sympathizes with them. Aggie Lynch, a convict friend of Mary's at Burnsing, sees good "possibilities" for her in the world of crime. Upon Mary's release the slogan "once a criminal always one," prevents her from securing work. She is continually hounded and in desperation throws herself into the North River. Joe Garson, a forger, rescues her and keeps her and Aggie in luxury, though living chaste lives. Mary reads that a famous financier escapes prison through keeping within the letter of the law. She follows his example and becomes the leader of a band of swindlers, robbing only the unscrupulous. Gilder's son Dick meets and loves Mary, who seeks to wreak vengeance on the father through the son. Aggie poses as her cousin, and they pretend to be respectable.

Now go on with the story

But Aggie was not one to be ignored under any circumstances. Now she spoke with some acerbity in her voice, which could at will be wondrous soft and low.

"Say!" she retorted viciously, "you can't throw any scare into us. You hain't got anything on us. See?"

Cassidy, in response to this outburst, favored the girl with a long stare, and there was hearty amusement in his tones as he answered:

"Nothing on you, eh? Well, well, let's see." He regarded Garson with a grin. "You are Joe Garson, forger." As he spoke, the detective took a note-book from a pocket, found a page and then read: "First arrested in 1891 for forging the name of Edwin Goodsell to a check for ten thousand dollars. Again rearrested June 19, 1893, for forgery. Arrested in April, 1898, for forging the signature of Oscar Hemmenway to a series of bonds that were counterfeit. Arrested as the man back of the Reilly gang in 1903. Arrested in 1908 for forgery."

There was no change in the face or pose of the man who listened to the reading. When it was done, and the officer looked up with a resumption of his triumphant grin, Garson spoke quietly.

"Haven't any records of convictions, have you?"

The grin died and a snarl sprang in its stead.

"No," he snapped, vindictively. "But we've got the right dope on you, all right, Joe Garson." He turned savagely on the girl, who now had regained her usual expression of demure innocence, but with her rather too heavy brows drawn a little lower than their wont under the influence of an emotion otherwise concealed.

"And you're little Aggie Lynch," Cassidy declared as he thrust the note-book back into his pocket. "Just now you're posing as Mary Turner's cousin. You served two years in Burnsing for blackmail. You were arrested in Buffalo, convicted and served your stretch. Nothing on you? Well, well!" Again there was triumph in the officer's chuckle.

Aggie showed no least sign of perturbation in the face of this revelation of her unsavory record. Only an expression of half-incredulous wonder and delight beamed from her widely opened blue eyes and was emphasized in the rounding of the little mouth.

Sarcasm Without Effect.

"Why," she cried, and now there was softness enough in the cooing notes, "my Gawd! It looks as though you had actually been workin'!"

The sarcasm was without effect on the dull sensibilities of the officer. He went on speaking with obvious enjoyment of the extent to which his knowledge reached.

"And the head of the gang is Mary Turner. Arrested four years ago for robbing the Emporium. Did her stretch of three years."

"Is that all you've got about her?" Garson demanded with such abruptness that Cassidy forgot his dignity sufficiently to answer with an unqualified yes.

The forger continued speaking rapidly, and now there was an undercurrent of feeling in his voice.

"Nothing in your record of her about her coming out without a friend in the world and trying to go straight? You ain't got nothing in that pretty little book of your'n about your going to the millinery store where she finally got a job and tipping them off to where she come from?"

"Sure they was tipped off," Cassidy answered, quite unmoved. And he added, swelling visibly with importance: "We got to protect the city."

"Got anything in that record of your'n," Garson went on venomously, "about her getting another job, and your following her up again and having her thrown out? Got it there about the letter you had old Gilder write, so that his influence would get her canned?"

"Oh, we had her right the first time," Cassidy admitted, complacently.

Then the bitterness of Garson's soul was revealed by the fierceness in his voice as he replied:

"You did not! She was railroaded for a job she never done. She went in honest and she came out honest."

The detective indulged himself in a cackle of sneering merriment.

"And that's why she's here now with a gang of crooks," he retorted.

Mr. Cassidy Laughs.

Garson met the implication fairly.

"Where else should she be?" he demanded, violently. "You ain't got nothing in that record about my jumping into the river after her?" The forger's voice deepened and trembled with the intensity of his emotion, which was now grown so strong that any who listened and looked might guess something of the truth as to his feeling toward this woman of whom he spoke. "That's where I found her—a girl that never done nobody any harm, starving because you police wouldn't give her a chance to work. In the river because she wouldn't take the only other way that was left her to make a living, because she was keeping straight! . . . Have you got any of that in your book?"

Cassidy, who had been scowling in the face of this arraignment, suddenly gave vent to a croaking laugh of derision.

"Huh!" he said, contemptuously. "I guess you's stuck on her, eh?"

At the words, an instantaneous change swept over Garson. Hitherto he had been tense, his face set with emotion, a man strong and sullen, with eyes as clear and heartless as those of a beast in the wild. Now, without warning, a startling transformation was wrought. His form stiffened to rigidity after one lightning-swift step forward, and his face grayed. The eyes glowed with the fires of a man's heart in a spasm of hate. He was the embodiment of rage as he spoke huskily, his voice a whisper that was yet louder than any shout.

"Cut that!"

The eyes of the two men locked. Cassidy struggled with all his pride against the dominant fury this man hurled on him.

"What?" he demanded, blusteringly. But his tone was weaker than its wont.

"I mean," Garson repeated, and there was finality in his accents, a deadly quality that was appalling, "I mean, cut it out—now, here, and all the time! It don't go!" The voice rose slightly. The effect of it was more penetrant than a scream. "It don't go . . . Do you get me?"

There was a short interval of silence, then the officer's eyes at last fell. It was Aggie who relieved the tension of the scene.

"He's got you," she remarked, airily. "Oi, oi! He's got you!"

There were again a few seconds of pause, and then Cassidy made an observation that revealed in some measure the shock of the experience he had just undergone.

"You would have been a big man, Joe, if it hadn't been for that temper of yours. It's got you into trouble once or twice already. Some take it's likely to prove your finish."

Garson relaxed his immobility, and a little color crept into his cheeks.

"That's my business," he responded, dully.

"Anyway," the officer went on, with a new confidence, now that his eyes were free from the gaze that had burned into his soul, "you've got to clear out, the whole gang of you and do it quick."

Aggie, who as a matter of fact began to feel that she was not receiving her due share of attention, now interposed, moving forward till her face was close to the detective's.

"We don't scare worth a cent," she snapped, with the virulence of a vixen. "You can't do anything to us. We ain't broke the law." There came a sudden ripple of laughter, and the charming lips curved joyously as she added: "Though perhaps we have bent it a bit."

Cassidy sneered, outraged by such impudence on the part of an ex-convict.

"Don't make no difference what you've done," he growled. "Gee!" he went on with a heavy sneer. "But things are coming to a pretty pass when a gang of crooks gets to arguing about their rights. That's funny, that is!"

"Then laugh!" Aggie exclaimed, insolently, and made a face at the officer. "Ha, ha, ha!"

"Well, you've got the tip," Cassidy returned, somewhat disconcerted, after a stolid fashion of his own. "It's up to you to take it, that's all. If you don't, one of you will make a long visit with some people out of town, and it'll probably be Mary. Remember, I'm giving it to you straight."

Aggie assumed her formal society manner, exaggerated to the point of extravagance.

"Do come again, little one," she chirruped, caressingly. "I've enjoyed your visit so much!"

But Cassidy paid no apparent attention to her frivolousness; only turned and went noisily out of the drawing room, offering no return to her daintily inflected good-afternoon.

For her own part, as she heard the outer door close behind the detective, Aggie's expression grew vicious, and the heavy brows drew very low, until the level line almost made her prettiness vanish.

"The truck-horse detective!" she sneered. "An eighteen collar and a six-and-a-half hat! He sure had his nerve, trying to bluff us!"

But it was plain that Garson was of another mood. There was anxiety in his face as he stood staring vaguely out of the window.

"What Have We Done."

"Perhaps it wasn't a bluff, Aggie," he suggested.

"Well, what have we done. I'd like to know?" the girl demanded, confidently. She took a cigarette and a match from the tabouret beside her and stretched her feet comfortably, if very inelegantly, on a chair opposite.

Garson answered with a note of weariness that was unlike him.

"It ain't what you have done," he said, quietly. "It's what they can make a jury think you've done. And, once they set out to get you—God, how they can frame things! If they ever start out after Mary——" He did not finish the sentence, but sank down into his chair with a groan that was almost of despair.

The girl replied with a burst of careless laughter.

"Joe," she said gayly, "you're one grand little forger, all right, all right. But Mary's got the brains. Pooh, I'll string along with her as far as she wants to go. She's educated, she is. She ain't like you and me, Joe. She talks like a lady and, what's a damned sight harder, she acts like a lady. I guess I know. Wake me up any old night, and ask me—just ask me, that's all. She's been tryin' to make a lady out of me!"

The vivaciousness of the girl distracted the man for the moment from the gloom of his thoughts, and he turned to survey the speaker with a cynical amusement.

"Swell chance!" he commented dryly.

"Oh, I'm not so worse! Just you watch out." The lively girl sprang up, discarded the cigarette adjusted an imaginary train and spoke lispingly in a society manner much more moderate and convincing than that with which she had favored the retiring Cassidy. Voice, pose and gesture proclaimed at least the excellent mimic.

"How do you do, Mrs. Jones! So good of you to call! . . . . My dear Miss Smith, this is indeed a pleasure." She seated herself again, quite primly now, and moved her hands over the tabouret appropriately to her words. "One lump or two? . . . Yes. I just love bridge. No, I don't play," she continued, simpering; "but, just the same, I love it." With this absurd ending, Aggie again arranged her feet according to her liking on the opposite chair. "That's the kind of stuff she's had me doing," she rattled on in her coarser voice, "and believe me, Joe, it's damned near killing me. But all the same," she hurried on, with a swift revulsion of mood to the former serious topic. "I'm for Mary strong! You stick to her, Joe, and you'll wear diamonds. . . . And that reminds me! I wish she'd let me wear mine, but she won't. She says they're vulgar for an innocent country girl like her cousin, Agnes Lynch. Ain't that fierce? . . . How can anything be vulgar that's worth a hundred and fifty a carat?

PA took me fishing yesterday. It was a beautiful day wen we started out & Pa sed it was jest the kind of a day to catch a lot of fish.

Doant you think you ought to take a guide, deerest, sed Ma. You know we are strangers to this seckshun & you mite not be abel to find the right places to fish. My father used to always talk a guide with him wen he went fishing in a strange country. He was always afrade that he mite git lost.

There is no danger of you losing me that eesy, said Pa. Doant you worry about that.

I know thare is no chanst to lose you, sed Ma, but I shud hate to lose littel Bobbie. Plese talk a guide.

There is no danger around this open country, sed Pa, we doant need a guide; cum on, Bobbie. Doant fergit to hang onto that lunch. We will need it by noon.

He Got Tired.

After we had walked for about two hours I began to git kind of tired & I cud see that Pa was gitting tired, too. How far is this stream? I asked Pa. I doant want to walk all day. It cant be very much further, said Pa. The man at the hotel toald us to keep walking thru this patch of hard wood, due north, till we caim to a big pine tree and then to go about two miles thru a spruce patch until we caim to the stream. Bobbie, sed Pa, doant you hear a littel trout stream purling anywhere?

No, I sed, & I am lissening as hard as I can.

Doant you hear any kind of a stream purl at all? sed Pa.

No, I sed, not any kind of a stream, & I aint going to walk much further, eether.

Thare was two ladies in the crowd & thay was the bravest in the party. The men looked awful worried, sed Pa; thay kep telling how we was up agkenst it, but the ladies jest kep on laffing and cheering thare husbands. Thay had perfeck faith in me beekaus I herd one of them tell the other that I looked so self-reliant that she wud trust me anyware to keep peepul from danger. Yes, sed Pa, those ladies trusted me & thare faith in me was justified. Presently we caim to our destination, Pa sed, & the ladies sed thay felt like hugging me.

I cud see that Pa was talking kind of absent-minded beekaus all the time he was talking he kep looking around in the woods & I knew he dident know his way.

Jest then Pa sed Bobbie, Bobbie, I hear it, I hear it. It is the sound of running water that I hear. 'Dident I tell you Bobbie?

They Hear It.

Sure enuff, I herd the running water, too, so both of us began to walk faster toward a clearing. After we git to the brook, Bobbie, sed Pa, we will arrange our tackel & go after the speckled duties.

Jest then we caim out into the clearing ware we had herd the running water & Pa & me neeriy fell over. We was back to the littel hotel from wich we had started out from. We had went in a cirkel. Ma was setting on the porch grinning at Pa, & the sound of the running water was water cumming from a hose. The hired man was washing the barn.

Now Ma calls Pa Isaak Walton.

Uncle's Sporting Trophies.

Tom Brown and Jack Smith had been schoolmates together, but, as often happens, had drifted apart during the years that followed. Then, quite accidentally, they met again one day, and somehow the conversation turned to the subject of athletics.

"Let me see!" said Brown. "You never came across my brother, did you? He's a fine runner, you know. Why, only last week he won a gold medal in a Marathon race."

"Ah!" said Smith, raising his eyebrows in genuine admiration. Then, a faint smile playing around his lips, he added: "And did I ever tell you about my uncle?"

"Don't think so," replied Brown.

"Well in his day, not only did he get a gold medal for five miles, and one for ten miles, but two sets of carvers for cycling, a silver medal for swimming, two cups for wrestling, to say nothing of badges for boxing and rowing.

"You see," Smith continued, while his friend sat speechless with amazement, "the uncle in question kept a pawnshop."

Her Love For Romance

A HUMOROUS STORY.

AS a little girl Albertine always sat in the chair in the farthest corner when she went to children's parties. She had a meek, pretty little face, abundant yellow hair and large, appealing blue eyes that held a shadow of apology in them for her temerity in presuming to exist. She retained the modest violet atmosphere after she was grown up.

Other girls might blossom into darling coquettes and fascinating belles, but Albertine always kept in the background. Whenever people looked at her they involuntarily thought of lace mitts and hoopskirts and curtseys. They felt that Albertine should be put under glass.

This being the case, it was astonishing that down in her secret heart Albertine had a fierce love of the daring, the wild and gay and the extreme. When she picked out a dress design she always chose the rankest, most alarming atrocity. The dressmaker said, "Oh, certainly!" and then proceeded to modify the pattern to suit Albertine's appearance.

She Suspected.

Things had a way of drooping on her in old-fashioned lines. She wanted to look frightfully smart and somehow she never did. Secretly she suspected the dressmakers, but she never dared accuse them.

It was the same way when it came to the young men. Let a perfectly steady, sober youth who earned a regular salary and was good to his mother come her way and Albertine raised her little nose and sniffed. She simply could not see him. She admired extravagantly the sort of young man who dashed down the street wearing crimson silk socks and a tie to match and the latest cry in waistcoats, and if he was followed by a bulldog so much the better. If people raised their eyebrows and coughed discreetly when his name was mentioned it made the situation perfect.

Albertine always felt loftily then that she was an experienced, worldly wise person and the eyebrow raisers were narrow provincials. Usually the bulldoggy young man never progressed in the acquaintance further than raising his hat and casting an entrancing smile at her; but Albertine was satisfied with just adoring him from a distance.

Her family was quite alarmed when she fell in love with Harry Jungles, because Harry always was in debt and worked only semi-occasionally and Albertine's relatives had a great deal of money. Harry seemed awake to this fact, for he actually called on Albertine and talked poetry to her in the parlor in low, rich tones, and told her how the world misjudged him. Albertine went so far as to powder her already white nose and her mother caught her once using an eyebrow pencil. It was much the same as though an Easter lily had begun to rouge. The situation was saved, however, by the Sheriff's removing Harry for forgery, and after that Albertine wore what she thought was a heartbroken expression and thought she threw into her face deep lines of experience and suffering.

After Harry several others of the same kind followed. Therefore, having long hovered over Albertine in fear that she would do some foolish thing and spoil her life, her family was entranced when she became engaged to Jeffrey. It all happened so suddenly that one was scarcely aware Jeffrey was on earth before he was introducing himself as the future son-in-law and brother.

Jeffrey was absolutely as nearly perfect as he could be for Albertine. Liberal-minded people might say he erred on the side of rigidness and propriety and possible narrowness but one felt that he would always be at home at 6 o'clock sharp for dinner and that Albertine never would have to hang out of the front window trying to distinguish whether it was wavering down the street at 1 o'clock in the morning. Jeffrey choked at the sight of a cigarette, wouldn't be caught dead at a dog show and said his wife never should be permitted to wear decollete gowns in the evening.

What She Said.

The more people considered the matter the more inexplicable it became. Finally her dearest friend flatly asked Albertine to explain Jeffrey's attractions.

"You see," said the dearest friend, "with your ideas I can't understand how you happen to fall in love with Jeffrey, of all men."

"Of all men!" echoed Albertine in pitying astonishment. "Why, I'll tell you, Susie—because I recognized at once that Jeffrey is the most sophisticated sort of person. He's such a man of the world. I can't abide these goody-goody men!"

"WHEN Spring comes laughing by vale and hill,
By windflower dancing and daffodil,
Sing stars of morning—sing morning skies,
Sing blue of speedwell, and my love's eyes,
. . . . . .
And gay birds gossip the orchard long."

The Change in George

"WHEN I first noticed the change in George," said the blond woman, who was no bigger than a minute, "I thought it was indigestion. It is perfectly wonderful how much a man's liver is responsible for! But when I mentioned the doctor he was quite violent. In fact, he was rude and stamped around. It is hard on the rugs when a man acts that way.

"'Don't roar at me, George!' I told him.

"'I've got to!' he said in a regular Bengal tiger sort of way. 'I've got to in order to maintain my supremacy in the home!'

"Now, George has always been such a perfect gentleman and so mild that you may well imagine that I was amazed. 'See here, George Guesser!' I said to him. 'Tell me at once what you mean!'

"This Was Different."

"George frowned awfully. His eyebrows looked like a lilac hedge that hasn't been trimmed since last spring. Then he cleared his throat. 'I've just waked up to the fact,' said he, 'that I have been taking a back seat and allowing you to think I didn't count. Why, when I consider how near I have been to losing your love it makes me shudder! I just read a wonderful article——'

"'Oh!' said I. 'An article!. But do you believe all you read?'

"'This was different,' George said. Then he explained.

"'It was in one of the scientific magazines, and the writer began by saying that every woman sits and waits the coming of her lord and master and is ready to follow when he beckons. He does not woo or beseech; he takes; he——'

"'George Guesser,' I said to him, 'whenever you waste time beckoning me instead of coming where I am I'd like to know it! Do you think I am a little yellow puppy dog?' My, but I was angry!

"George looked sad. 'I see I have allowed you to get away from me,' he mused. Then he roared at me. 'There is never a man brute so brutal but a woman clings to him!'" he quoted and beat the air with his arms. 'That was a fundamental point with the writer. He said that if the man cringed before the woman she had only contempt for him, but that if he beat her she respected him and thanked her stars that her man was so strong. Further, she was completely happy to think that the gentleman who had loosened her front teeth belonged entirely to her. I hate to do it, Evangeline, but you've got to respect me and look up to me, even if I have to follow that writer's advice and beat you! In fact, he says, a great many women require more or less beating to make them loving dutiable wives!'

George Shook His Head.

"'George,' I said when he stopped for breath, 'just what is your intention? Am I to understand that you are about to knock me down in order to make sure of my imperishable affection? Are you contemplating denting my face for the purpose of making me too utterly happy to live? Because if you are——'

"George shook his head as if he were considering something under a microscope. 'What a mistake I've been making,' he confided to himself. 'Why, Evangeline, you are entirely lacking in that devotion which is part fear and which is necessary to make a happy wife! It is all my fault!'

"Right here I concluded that it was time to take George by the hand and lead him forth to safety. 'Darling,' said I, 'if you will tell me how a woman is going to stand in any fear of a man after she has viewed him crawling under the bed after his collar button or trying to light the gas with an already burned match or attempting to answer his child who wants to know what there would have been if there hadn't been anything I shall consider myself in your debt!'

"'Not wishing to thrust myself forward or unduly trumpet my own worth, I still would bet my false hair that if I ever get hold of that scientific friend of yours long enough to whisper a few thoughts into his ear he would shrivel up and blow away! And now if you really yearn to hold my love and affection, go down and shake up the furnace, because the house is getting cold!'

"'Oh, vur-ry well,' said George, peevishly, as he headed for the basement stairs. 'That's the way you always act when I attempt any real progress. Women aren't scientific!'

"'Indeed, they're not!' I told him. 'They're just plain sensible!'"

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"THANKS, very much. I'm having rather a difficult task of it, for our friend, the Constable here, corroborates Miss Renfrew's statement to the hair, and yet I am absolutely positive that there is a mistake."

"There is no mistake—no, not one! The wicked one to say it still!"

"Oh, that's all very well, madame; but I know what I know; and when you tell me that a dead man can ask questions. * * * Pah! The fact of the matter is that the Constable only fancies he heard Mr. Nosworth speak. That's where the mistake comes in. Now, look here. I once knew of an exactly similar case and I'll tell you just how it happened. Let us suppose'—strolling leisurely forward—'let us suppose that this space here is the covered passage and you—step here a moment, please. Thanks, very much—and you are Miss Renfrew, and Gorham here is himself, and standing beside her as he did then."

"Wasn't beside her, sir—at least not just exactly. A bit behind her—like this."

"Oh, very well, then, that will do. Now then. Here's the passage and here are you, and I'll just show you how a mistake could occur and how it did occur under precisely similar circumstances. Once upon a time when I was in Paris—"

"It's a Play."

"In Paris, monsieur?"

"Yes, madame—this little thing I'm going to tell you about happened there. You may or may not have heard that a certain French dramatist wrote a play called 'Chanticler'—or maybe you never heard of it? Didn't, eh? Well, it's a play where all the characters are barnyard creatures—dogs, poultry, birds and the like—and the odd fancy of men and women dressing up like fowls took such a hold on the public that before long there were Chanticler dances and Chanticler parties in all the houses and Chanticler 'turns' on at all the music halls until wherever one went for an evening's amusement one was pretty sure of seeing somebody or another dressed up like a cock or a hen and running the thing to death. But that's another story, and we'll pass over it. Now, it just so happened that one night—when the craze for the thing was dying out and barnyard dresses could be bought for a song, I strolled into a little fourth-rate cafe at Montemartre and there saw the only Chanticler dancer that I ever thought was worth a sou. She was a pretty, dainty little thing—light as a feather and graceful as a fairy. Alone, I think she might have made her mark, but she was one of what in music halldom they call 'a team.' Her partner was a man—a bad dancer, an indifferent singer, but a really passable ventriloquist."

The Expose.

"A ventriloquist, monsieur—er—er."

"Cleek, madam—name's Cleek, if you don't mind!"

"Cleek! Oh, lummy!" blurted out Mr. Nippers. But neither, "Madam" nor Constable Gorham said anything. They merely swung round and made a sudden bolt; and Cleek, making a bolt, too, pounced down on them like a leaping cat, and the sharp click-click of the handcuffs he had borrowed from Mr. Nippers told just when he linked their two wrists together.

"Game's up, Mlle. Fifine, otherwise Mme. Nosworth, the worthless wife of a worthless husband!" he rapped out sharply. "Game's up, Mr. Henry Nosworth, bandit, pickpocket and murderer! There's a hot corner in hell waiting for the brute-beast that could kill his own father, and would, for the simple sake of money. Get at him quick, Mr. Narkom. He's got one free hand! Nip the paper out of his pocket before the brute destroys it! Played, sir, played! Buck up, Miss Renfrew, buck up, little girl!—you'll get your 'Boy' and you'll get Mr. Septimus Nosworth's promised fortune after all! 'God's in his heaven and all's right with the world!'"

"Yes, a very, very clever scheme indeed, Miss Renfrew," agreed Cleek. "Laid with great cunning and carried out with extreme carefulness—as witness the man's coming here and getting appointed constable and biding his time, and the woman serving as cook for six months to get the entree to the house and to be ready to assist when the time of action came round. I don't think I had the least inkling of the truth until I entered this house and saw the woman. She had done her best to pad herself to an unwieldly size, and to blanch portions of her hair, but she couldn't quite make her face appear old without betraying the fact that it was painted—and hers is one of those peculiarly pretty faces that one never forgets when one has ever seen it.

To Be Concluded To-morrow.

The Professor Ate Nuts

"YES," said Professor J. Haddensfield Joy, "I used to be a vegetarian myself. I have seen the time when a big porterhouse steak or a fat and lean slice of ham made me tear my hair, realizing how barbarous is man. Broiled spring chicken made me grate my teeth in rage.

"Not only was I vegetarian, but I was one of those who follow along lines of the most extreme differentiation. I couldn't eat pieplant tops or white oak bark, just because they were vegetable substances. I specialized in cocoanuts.

"I bought a hundred fine, fresh nuts. These I put in a cool and shady place, and thereupon discarded all allegiance to such foods as have dwarfed man's noble intellect. My family ate as usual.

"When morning dawned on my first day of real liberty I got a handsaw and sawed off the top of a nut. Then I drank of the life-giving fluid inside. After that I proceeded to feast on the meat of the nut, as my distant ancestors had done. When I started for the laboratory I took a fine nut under my arm and tried to walk in my usual heavy and methodical stride. It was no use. I felt like hopping along.

A Deep Longing.

"Persons whom I met addressed me as 'professor,' but with a gaze too human to suit me. I found myself looking up into trees with a vague, deep longing. It was as though I had inherited something that had been hidden in my soul's archives all my life. I arrived at the laboratory with my emblem of liberty still under my arm. The rude and thoughtless experimentalists looked and talked as they talk who are in a state of mental slavery. My luncheon made me want to run up and down the halls and passages and climb the posts.

"This glorious life lasted for a week. One night Mrs. Joy had to take a broomstick and punch me down from the picture railing, where I was trying to pass the night. The next day I could nt resist the temptation to climb a tree when I had started to conduct my daily investigation of life's solemn facts at the laboratory. A cocoanut was under my arm. Presently there came speeding along a very big man in a very big automobile. I landed the cocoanut on his head with a precision that I had never learned. In another instant my man was shaking my perch as if he were a concentrated earthquake. All the Joys swarmed around the tree. 'Mrs. Joy shrieked: 'Don't hurt him—he's been living on cocoanuts!'

The End of It.

"'Turned back into a monkey, has he?' said the man. 'I've been living on raw meat, and if I get my hands on him I'll eat him!' Then he departed.

"All the Joys got hold of me and took me back to the dining room and seated me at the table. Soon there was spread before me a repast consisting of one porterhouse steak, one slice of ham, three slices of bacon and a few other things. I could scarcely walk when I started to work.

"Henceforth give me a full dinner of real food or cut down the trees."

Up-to-Date Jokes

"Bronson's wife used to be one of your old flames, didn't she?"

"Yes; I was in real misery when she threw me over for him."

"Well, that makes you square. Now Bronson's the man in misery."

A man having buried his wife, a woman of unusual size, a neighbor a few days afterwards attempted a little in the consolation line by remarking:

"Well, Mr. ——, you have met with a heavy loss."

"Yes," replied the mourner, "she weighed close upon four hundred pounds."

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Final Deliberation On Whitehall Grade

The final arguments, pro and con, in the Whitehall Street grade matter will be heard to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock by the streets committee of Council at the City Hall, and a decision will be reached as to whether or not $50,000 will be raised and appropriated for the work. Some 500 persons are expected to attend the meeting, since various interests are affected. A large majority of the property owners, it is said, favor the proposed grade, while a few are holding out.

The proposition is to cut down eight feet at Trinity Avenue and to fill that much at Brotherton. The extent of the grading will be from Mitchell Street to the intersection of Forsyth and Whitehall, and the effect of it, according to the people who are in favor of it, will be to help the entire South Side.

Property owners have promised $15,000 to $20,000, and Council will be asked to give the balance.

Realty Transfers Show Gain.

Realty transfers took a big jump in the eighteenth week of 1913, as compared with the eighteenth week in 1912, according to The Fulton County Daily Report. In the former week they totaled $1,061,923, while in the latter the aggregate was $937,099. The number in each instance was the same, 233. Mortgage and loan deeds, personalty items and building permits, were less in both number and amount in 1913, but cancellations jumped more than $20,000.

Big Loan Deed Recorded.

A loan deed made April 1 and involving $65,000 has gone to record from the United States Mortgage and Trust Company of New York to the Mutual Life Insurance Company, on the property at the intersection of Peachtree and Ivy Streets. This lot extends 171 feet southward, 97.4 westward and 160 feet northward.

Large Building Permits.

Having examined plans for the Y. M. C. A. building on Luckie Street and the Livingston Wright apartment at East North Avenue and Willow Street, Building Inspector Hays has issued permits to build. The former is to cost $250,000 and the latter $60,000.

Austin Joins Ansley Agency.

J. M. Austin, who started the Maxwell Automobile Agency in Atlanta and who later was agent for the Marion car, has joined the sales force of the Edwin P. Ansley real estate agency. Mr. Austin is well versed in salesmanship and his friends predict that he will do well in real estate. He hails from South Carolina, but has been in Atlanta five or six years.

Church to Start Building.

Although the Central Baptist Church has owned for several months its lot at the corner of Cooper and Whitehall Streets, the erection of the church is not expected to start before 90 days. The board of deacons had a meeting the other night to talk about plans, and will have something definite to announce in a short while.

Manufacturing for Peachtree.

Light manufacturing will soon start in the lofts of the building at the northeast corner of Peachtree and Cain Streets. The Southern Candy Company has leased from J. Carroll Payne, owner, through Fitzhugh Knox, builder, the second story of this building for candy manufacturing and the first floor for retail purposes.

Johnson Motor Co. Lease.

Another automobile concern has located on Peachtree. The Johnson Motor Company, agents for the Stevens-Duryea, the Little Six and the Chevrolet automobiles, has leased from Dr. J. W. Roberts, through Turman, Black & Calhoun agency, half of the two-story and basement building at 455 Peachtree Street. The lease is for five years and the consideration $3,000 a year. This is the south half of the building, the other portions being leased to the Hendee Manufacturing Company, makers of the Indian motorcycle.

Christian Science Church.

The Christian Science Church, at the northeast corner of Peachtree and Fifteenth Streets, is fast assuming definite proportions. Workmen have completed the foundations and have done a good part of the outside brick work. This church will cost about $85,000 and will be one of the handsomest in the city.

Building Permits.

$250,000—Y. M. C. A., 71 Luckie Street, eight-story reinforced concrete building. King Lumber Company.
$60,000—James L. Wright, North Avenue and Willow Street, three-story brick apartment. R. M. Walker.

BUILDING LOTS, BEDFORD PLACE, 10 PER CENT CASH

THESE LOTS are strictly choice, elevated, all improvements and close to Piedmont Park. Go out and look at the lots on the east side of Bedford between Seventh and Eighth. See the money being spent for improvements, note the class of houses going up, then try to find something as close in equally as good for $60 per foot. You CAN'T DO IT.

WE CAN sell nine lots, 51x160, all improvements down, for $2,750 each.

Terms: $275 cash, $275 each year for four years, balance at the end of five years. ONLY SIX PER CENT INTEREST.

Good lots are the sure money-makers. You can't make a mistake in buying such property as this on terms so liberal.

Just remember, it's always the land that advances.

STUDY THE MAP, see what big things are crowded around this particular section, then go out and look the land over, see what little property is not built up, then price that in built-up blocks and you can prove to yourself that a profit is sure on these lots on Bedford Place.

You can double your investment in a year.

If You Are in Debt, You Are a Fly Glued to the Flypaper.

The More You Struggle, the Tighter You Stick. Soon Your Courage Is Gone and You Are a Dead Fly.

Copyright, 1913.

The picture at the top of this page is a picture for more than half of all the people in this country.

More than half the people are in debt—that is to say, they are living beyond their means, or they are spending every cent.

And the man who is spending every cent he gets is actually in debt and running in debt, for he is running in debt TO HIS OLD AGE, when he won't be able to make, and won't be able to spend, and when the spending of to-day means debt later.

Those that are in debt know what debt is. There is no need to tell them about it.

First you owe $50 if you are a little man, or $50,000 if you are a big man.

And then you owe $100—or $100,000 if you are big.

For a while you struggle and plan. You are going to pay it off soon. It is a good thing to use "O P M," that is to say, other people's money, in the effort to get ahead.

You tell yourself that all the big men have used their credit and borrowed and gone ahead rapidly.

It all sounds very nice and plausible.

But remember that YOU KEEP GETTING IN DEEPER.

The fly lights on the fly paper, perhaps with only one leg at first. He says this is nothing, and puts down the other leg to push himself off.

AND THEN HE IS STUCK FAST.

And then he says to himself: "I will fly away from this fly paper," so he begins flapping his wings. And both of his wings stick to the paper.

There he is with his feet stuck and his wings stuck and only his head free.

That fly feels about as independent and hearty as you do if you are in debt. And he says: "I can get off of this paper easily enough when I get ready. I'll just put my head down and push myself off."

He buzzes for a while. THEN HE PUTS HIS HEAD DOWN ON THE FLY PAPER, TO PUSH HIMSELF OFF.

Then his head sticks tight; he begins to choke.

By and by he rolls over on his side, he sinks into the sticky surface—AND THERE IS ANOTHER DEAD FLY.

So it is with men in debt. So it will be with you if you stay in debt.

The only hope for the fly, the moment he feels one foot on the fly paper, is to use those wings and fly away, not putting in the other foot; flying off as quickly as he can.

And a million times wiser and better is the occasional rare fly, who sees the other flies sticking to the fly paper and says: "I don't like the look of those flies; I'll stay away from them."

Look at the people in debt. See their worry. See the anxiety of the mother, reflected in the children.

See the lack of standing, the extravagance and the poverty mixed together.

You can't mistake the human fly stuck on the fly paper of debt.

Since you cannot mistake him, why not keep away from that fly paper?

Debt makes everything worthless.

If you owe a thousand dollars, it seems rather foolish to save ten or twenty.

You feel that you might as well spend it; it won't make any difference.

And so it goes, if you owe two thousand. And then it isn't worth while to save twenty or forty.

And you become a failure. You put down your feet, and then your wings, AND THEN YOUR HEAD, WHICH IS AMBITION, and by and by you roll over and you are a dead fly.

Keep out of debt.

Congratulations We Do Not Want

Lord Welby, speaking in London at the annual dinner of the Cobden Club on the prospects of free trade, said that the members might congratulate themselves on President Wilson's new tariff bill. There is the bare truth about what is thought of the bill by the out-and-out free traders of England.

Richard Cobden died in 1865. The population of Great Britain has almost doubled since. Railroads were in their infancy, and it took weeks to cross the Atlantic. Telegraphy had just begun and ocean-spanning cables did not exist. Cobden could never have even dreamed of the cheap and vast transportation systems, by land and sea, of to-day. He could never even have dreamed of the year when the United States would practically consume all the wheat it would grow. He could never even have dreamed of the development of machinery, changing, as it has, the whole face of world-trade.

Yet they did dream in those days. Cobden's associates dreamed and prophesied, too. They prophesied, and loudly, that within fifty years every civilized nation would have adopted free trade, and they were exactly wrong.

It would take many volumes to tell the whole difference between the conditions of the world's business in 1865 and 1913.

There are some congratulations that may be paid for too dearly.

Rivalry in Religion

THE disappearance of sectarian bitterness is one of the most observable facts of to-day. Whatever may be thought of it, no man can regard it possible to check the movement which is breaking down the old denominational antipathies. It is interpreted by many as the best modern evidence that a Heavenly Power is at work in the world. They believe that the Spirit of its Divine Founder is prevailing in Christianity over the human passions of men, and that the gospel of love is at last conquering completely the hearts of those who preach it.

The large front of this movement appears in religious conventions and in the current religious literature. In reiterated proposals of church federation and missionary co-operation not a few religious leaders ardently believe that the amalgamation of denominations in one great inclusive church is not only desirable but inevitable.

Protesting the Movement.

But this rosy view has its checkmate and counter-blast. There are very many—probably at this time the majority of church communicants, who do not view the loss of the sectarian spirit with sympathy. Large numbers of leaders are flung in violent reaction against it. Within each denomination there are organs, and therefore an organization, of protest. A keen eye observes that the internal antagonisms in the different denominations on the subject is really helping on the movement of fraternity as between the denominations themselves by transferring the emphasis of the old conflict between them as sects to mere family disputes.

The question of denominationalism will not be settled wisely in this fashion. There are profound reasons for the existence and maintenance of divergent groups in Christianity. There are many of the best men in each denomination who observe the tendency of the times, feel its power, and are drawn into it, who still stoutly question, if it is not liable to cost the cause of Truth and the energies of religion more than all its compensating amenities can amount to. The man in the street does not see very far into the problem of denominationalism. It appears to him a plague of wicked envies and a useless waste of power.

The Real Values.

Why is it, then, that those inside the churches, as leaders and laymen, who are manifestly consecrated men of the finest good sense, are strong in their support of separate denominations, especially their own? It is because they know the real value of denominationalism. It is not a narrow sectarian meanness on their part. They lend no encouragement to theological strife and religious bad feeling. They lament the wounds which persecution and bigotry have made and would make again. But they know that after all there are convictions of religious truth worth fighting for, and that the great loyalties of conscience have been the levers of salvation for the human race. As students of church history, they know that the stubborn quality of soul, the heroic mold of character and the magnificent manhood which have fallen out of that history, are not to be lightly set aside or interpreted apart from the great competitions of religion in which they were generated.

New Denominationalism.

So the rapidly evaporating sectarianism of our time, if full of promise, is full of peril also. It is our task to provide a relation of religious groups to each other and toward their common cause which will conserve consecration and aggressiveness, while at the same time it encourages their basal fellowship.

I believe it can be done and that it will be done.

As Christianity stands to-day, the demand for an arrangement of its group forces in a provoking attitude toward each other, but with the supreme objective clear enough to cure the evils of sectarianism. The suggestion for a "New Denominationalism" is offered therefore as a substitute for the tendency toward "No Denominationalism." It is that the theological quarrel shall be subordinated to the logical contest of religious groups engaged constructively for the kingdom of God on earth. It should appeal to anyone that the rivalry of creeds giving way to the rivalry of deeds will be infinitely better than the mere subsidence of all rivalry which is threatened.

TUBERCULOSIS ENEMIES SCORE DR. FRIEDMANN

His Press Agents Blamed for the Increased Difficulty in Getting State Aid.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—President Homer Folks, of New York, to-day opened the ninth international meeting of the National Association for the Study of the Prevention of Tuberculosis. The convention will last until Saturday evening.

Methods used effectively in reducing the death rate from consumption, as well as the progress of the work of the society in prevention, will be discussed.

The Friedmann "cure" for tuberculosis was termed an "adverse factor" in the national campaign against the white plague by President Folks. Folks refrained from expressing any opinion as to the value of the serum, but said the task of securing local and State appropriations "has become vastly more difficult because of the press agents of Dr. Friedmann."

"The Friedmann incident has brought out one useful fact," continued Folks. "The announcement of the Friedmann cure brought to light many tuberculosis cases that we knew to exist, but never could reach."

Surgery Called Coming Cure for Tuberculosis.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The future treatment of progressive cases of tuberculosis must be surgical rather than medical, according to Dr. Mary E. Lapham, of Highlands, N. C., an expert on lung troubles, who spoke before the clinic section of the Ninth Annual Meeting of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which opened here to-day.

"There are two classes of pulmonary tuberculosis, those that recover, and those that from the start manifest an inability to arrest the disease," said Dr. Lapham. "These progressive cases may improve, but they cannot hold what they gain. As soon as this is recognized, the futility and danger of depending alone on good nursing, fresh air, and rest must be admitted and surgical aid employed.

"When a case of pulmonary tuberculosis belongs to the progressive type, to persist medical measures alone may cost the life of the patient. Surgery should be promptly tried before it is too late."

Mehnarto to Give Serum to Humanity.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 8.—"At the moment I claim nothing for my serum. But once I am assured of its beneficial action I shall gladly give it to humanity."

Thus spoke Dr. Frederick Mehnarto, the young but learned German bacteriologist whose reported discovery of a serum that cures tuberculosis, malaria and leprosy, has excited great interest on both sides of the Atlantic.

Dr. Mehnarto said:

"I shall say only this much: My serum involves a totally new principle which was unknown to medical science hitherto. The employment of the serum is only in the experimental stage, but I have several hundred patients in various centers of Europe who are undergoing treatment with it. These tests have been going on several months, but it will be some time yet before I can announce definite results. I repeat that at the moment I claim nothing for my serum."

Dr. Mehnarto seemed annoyed that his researches have been commented on in the public press; as is seen, he assumed the attitude that medical ethics demands professional secrecy and non-commercialism.

Clings to Medical Ethics.

"I have nothing to say," was his first answer. "Publicity will do no good at this time. When the tests of my serum are completed the full results will be published, but in the medical journals. I do not wish to find myself in the same situation as Dr. Friedmann because of undue publicity.

"Anything said now might cause a great deal of harm, by causing harrowing disappointment. Many misleading articles regarding my serum have appeared in the newspapers of Europe, and to offset them I had to issue a disclaimer in The London Lancet. Again I repeat that I must decline to say anything further until there is something tangible to talk about."

Posse Surrounds Austin Desperado

South Carolina Fugitive in Swamp Near Sylvania with 150 Men After Him.

SYLVANIA, GA., May 8.—Richard Henry Austin, the South Carolina negro desperado for whom rewards of $2,500 have been offered, is this afternoon surrounded in Ogeechee Creek swamp near here and his capture is expected at any moment. The pursuing posse of 150 men with bloodhounds has been close on the negro's trail for 24 hours. Co close has the chase been that the negro shot and crippled one of the dogs this morning when he was treed in a swamp near the Brinson Railway.

The negro was located about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon near Newington, but eluded the posse.

The plan is one adopted in a number of cities. It has proved uniformly successful. Young men trained this way are much better acquainted with the cities' needs when they enter business.

The Count is a Catholic while Miss Warfield is a Protestant.

The ceremony was simple, owing to the death of Miss Warfield's grandmother a few weeks ago.

They will live on the ancestral estate of Count Ledochowski near Warsaw.

INQUEST SCENE IS DRAMATIC IN ITS TENSENESS

Crowd in Small, Smoke-Filled Room Breathlessly Follows the Phagan Slaying Inquiry.

In a small, crowded and smoke-filled room at police headquarters, Coroner Donehoo on Thursday morning began what it is thought will be the last session of the jury impaneled to inquire into the death of Mary Phagan, strangled to death in the basement of the National Pencil Factory April 26.

The situation was tense and pregnant with possibilities. The fact that the investigation of the case is rapidly drawing to a close, coupled with the admissions of officials that new and important evidence would develop from the examination of the witnesses to-day, brought out a large and curious crowd.

At one end of the long table, heaped with notebooks and typewriters, sat Coroner Donehoo, flanked on each side by members of the jury. At the foot of the table sat the newspaper reporters and the official stenographers, four in number. Facing Coroner Donehoo and the jury sat the witness. Ranged along the wall were curious spectators, relatives of the dead girl and friends of the witnesses. Long before the inquest was called every available chair in the room was taken, and late comers ensconsed themselves on the window ledges.

Dorsey Takes Active Part.

Prominent among the spectators were the attorneys for Frank, Pinkerton and city detectives and county and State officials. Solicitor Hugh Dorsey sat just behind Coroner Donehoo, and took an active part in the questioning of the witnesses. While Mr. Dorsey asked no questions himself, several times he conferred with the Coroner on the best manner in which to examine the witnesses.

Attorney Luther Rosser also occupied a seat near the Coroner, and took keen interest in the proceedings of the inquest. He did not object to any of the questions asked the witnesses that had bearing on the actions of Leo M. Frank on the day of the murder.

Ranged against the wall behind Coroner Donehoo were Detective John Black, in charge of the city investigating squad; Detective Starnes, and Detective Harry Scott of the Pinkertons. All of the officers paid close attention to the examination of the witnesses. To the left of the Coroner sat Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, who examined the body, and whose testimony is awaited with considerable curiosity.

Father a Pathetic Figure.

J. W. Coleman, father of the dead girl, stood against the wall to the right of Coroner Donehoo, a pathetic figure in his sorrow. Mr. Coleman evinced keen interest in what was transpiring. He kept his eyes fixed constantly on the witness who sat at the foot of the long table, and his eyes filled with tears as the tragic details of the finding of the child's body were related.

The attitudes of the individual members of the jury showed their realization of the responsibility that rests upon them. Each of the six sat with his arms on the table, paying the closest attention to the statements of the witnesses. Most of the questions were asked by the Coroner, but now and then a juror would interrupt to ask the witness to make some point clearer.

The air of tense eagerness with which the jurors awaited the replies of the witnesses was communicated to those whose only interest in the case was the satisfaction of curiosity.

Crowd Tense and Quiet.

The crowd in the room was one of the quietest that has ever attended a session of the inquest. Save for the occasional scratching of a match or the dragging of a chair across the floor, nothing was heard but the voices of the Coroner and the witnesses.

All of the witnesses brought in were subjected to a close examination by Coroner Donehoo, and all bore the ordeal well. "Boots" Rogers, one of the policemen who found the body, was on the stand more than an hour.

FIFTEEN SOCIALISTS ON LOS ANGELES CITY TICKET

LOS ANGELES, May 8.—Complete returns from the primary elections here to-day showed that fifteen Socialists qualified for places on the city ticket for the election on June 3. Job Harriman, Socialist candidate for Mayor, failed to win a nomination by 784 votes.

Wife Looked on as Friend Slew Husband

Woman Declares Her Sweetheart and Another Guilty of Death of Landscape Gardener.

PITTSBURG, May 8.—Valerio Fantezzo, a landscape gardener, was strangled to death in his home early to-day. The widow, Secina, first told a sensational story of burglars killing her husband, but her statement was considered improbable, and she was placed under arrest.

Just before noon, the police say, she confessed that her sweetheart, Frank Mustino, and another man, whose name she does not know, slew her husband while she looked on.

See Frame-Up for Guggenheim Roads

Alaska Railway Head Asserts All Other Lines Were Excluded From Consideration.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—"If the commission which examined the railroad situation in Alaska had intended to compel the purchase of the Guggenheim lines, it would not have been better planned," said O. L. Dickinson, of the White Pass and Yukon Railroad, who appeared to-day before the Senate Committee on Territories.

He said the committee had excluded from consideration all routes except one that would compel the Government to join hands with or purchase the Guggenheim lines.

UNHOBBLED HER HOBBLE TO BOARD A STREET CAR

SOUTH NORWALK, CONN., May 8.—Miss Maude Robinson, member of a leading family, was unable to get her foot upon the step of an open trolley car here this afternoon because of her hobble skirt.

Leaning down, she unbuttoned several buttons on the side and the skirt opened enough to allow the owner to mount the step. The conductor and passengers did not mind the wait.

GO SLOWLY ON TARIFF, SCHWAB WARNS WILSON

Steel Magnate Also Settles Equality of Man and Socialism, but Dodges Suffrage.

BOSTON, May 8.—Charles M. Schwab, president of the Bethlehem Steel Company, who recently was instrumental in the acquisition of the controlling interest in the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, at Quincy, to-day left for Bethlehem, Pa. In an interview Schwab made these statements:

"Let Wilson go slow on the tariff.

"I pay so much attention to business I have no time to arrive at an opinion regarding the threatened war with Japan.

"Woman suffrage is too big a question for me to venture an opinion on.

"Labor is not getting enough of the proceeds of business.

"The masses are running the railroads into the ground.

"Socialism is impracticable because it would not allow sufficient scope for the abilities of big men.

"The steel business is already too big to be capable of further expansion.

"It is a mistake to say that all men are equal. I do not think that they are."

SILVA GETS TWO YEARS FOR CHORUS GIRL'S DEATH

SAVANNAH, GA., May 8.—Isaac Silva, found guilty of involuntary manslaughter in causing the death of Marian Leonard, of Boston, a chorus girl, to-day was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

Silva had injected morphine into the girl's thigh to relieve a pain. The same evening the girl ate a number of sandwiches and drank some beer. Later she took some medicine and the combination caused blood poisoning.

Wilson to Extend Postoffice Exams

Classified Service to Include Second and Third Classes, Also, Within a Year.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—In his order yesterday which threw all fourth-class postmasterships except those paying less than $180 a year open to competitive examinations, Postmaster General Burleson announced that it was the purpose of President Wilson and himself to extend the classified service to include presidential postmasters of the second and third class, probably within a year. This may require legislation by Congress, he said.

His plan, which will be laid before the President, would provide for a qualification test for incumbents and applicants "in keeping with the importance of the offices."

More than 50,000 incumbents are affected by yesterday's order.

Taft Offers Aid in Southern Rate Cases

CINCINNATI, May 8.—Former President William H. Taft has notified the board of trustees of the Cincinnati Southern Railway that he is ready to act as advisory counsel for the railroad in the Chattanooga freight rate cases.

Taft was selected at the time the lease of the road to the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific, which was drafted when he was on the Federal Court bench here.

Experts Tell What Graham Flour Isn't

Bureau of Chemistry Hereafter Will Demand That Mills Furnish 'Unbolted Wheat Meal.'

WASHINGTON, May 8.—When is graham flour something else? The Bureau of Chemistry declared to-day that a large percentage of so-called "graham flour" was made of feed bran, low grade flour, 8 or 10 per cent cracker flour and mill floor sweepings. A standard will be set, the bureau declared, with which all mills will have to comply.

Real graham flour is described as "unbolted wheat meal, made from sound, clean, fully matured, air-dried wheat."

Dippel Paid to Quit Grand Opera Field

'Eet Is Just Like Hammerstein,' Says Campanini, Who Succeeds Him.

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—The directors of the Philadelphia-Chicago Opera Company paid Andreas Dippel $25,000 cash to stay out of grand opera in this city and Chicago for the next three years.

This represents but a part of the settlement with the former general manager, but what more he received in the form of agreements could not be learned. Clefonte Campanini admitted that Mr. Dippel had received more. "Eet is just like Hammerstein," he added.

ROOSEVELT COMPLAINS OF —GUESS WHAT—OVERWORK

LAUSANNE, SWITZERLAND, May 8.—An article by Theodore Roosevelt on "The Vigor of Life" was read here to-day at the Olympic Congress, which will be attended by 400 international sportsmen.

Mr. Roosevelt wrote regretting that it was impossible for him to attend, and stating that overwork had prevented him writing a special Olympic article.

LEO FRANK IS AGAIN QUIZZED BY CORONER

Newt Lee Called to Stand for Further Examination---Coroner Will Put Case in Hands of Jury by 7 o'Clock, It is Predicted.

The Coroner's Jury found that Mary Phagan had come to her death by strangulation and ordered Lee and Frank held for the Grand Jury.

Leo M. Frank, superintendent of the National Pencil Factory, and Newt Lee, night watchman, both of whom are being held in connection with inquiry into the death of Mary Phagan, were recalled to the witness stand late Thursday afternoon at the inquest.

Frank was given a more searching examination as to movements on the day of the tragedy than he underwent his first day on the stand and an apparent endeavor was made to show that he was not at home at the times he had stated in his previous testimony.

Frank, however, answered the questions readily and Coroner Donehoo was not able to trip him.

In Frank's previous testimony he failed to mention several persons who were at his home when he said he was there Saturday night. But when he was questioned in regard to this point Thursday afternoon he gave their names at once.

After Frank's testimony, witnesses were introduced who testified that Frank had at times indulged in familiarities with the girls in his factory.

Following this testimony, the coroner excluded all persons in the room, including the newspaper men and the attorneys for Frank, while Dr. Hurt, county physician made his statement.

Newt Lee preceded Frank on the stand.

Lee's testimony was in regard to the private conversation he had with Frank when Lee was first arrested. He declared that Frank had told him that they would "both go to hell" if they were not careful, but the effect of this testimony was largely nullified by Frank's earlier statement that the remark or a remark to the same effect was suggested by one of the detectives in the hope of getting some information from the night watchman.

The morning session was not prolific. Nothing of consequence was developed.

Miss Hattie Hall and Herbert Schiff, chief clerk in the pencil factory, were the first witnesses at the afternoon session.

Coroner Donehoo called for Lee immediately after Detective John Black had testified, supplementing the important testimony given by Harry Scott, of the Pinkertons.

W. W. ("Boots") Rogers, former county policeman, and Lemmie Quinn, foreman in the tipping department at the National Pencil Factory, were the principal witnesses this morning. Neither gave testimony that was materially damaging to either Leo M. Frank or Newt Lee, who are being held in connection with the crime.

Rogers was questioned closely o fthe events of the morning the crime was discovered, and told of taking the officers to the scene in his automobile. Beyond his belief that Frank appeared nervous when he was visited at his home by the detectives, Rogers had no information that appeared to point suspicion in one direction more than another.

He was sure, however, that the time clock tape on which Newt Lee, the night watchman, registered his half-hour rounds of the factory had no "misses" when it was taken from the clock by Frank that morning. Three misses were found on a tape subsequently brought to Police Headquarters.

Quinn's Story Unchanged.

An effort was made without avail to break down the story of Lemmie Quinn that he was at the factory and talked to Frank between 12:10 and 12:20 the Saturday afternoon of the tragedy. Coroner Donehoo tried to get Quinn to admit that he previously had told officers who interviewed him that he was not at the factory between Friday and the following Sunday.

Quinn steadfastly refused to admit that he had made a statement of the sort. He supported Frank's testimony of last Monday by insisting that he visited the factory for a few minutes and went into Frank's office.

Miss Hattie Hall, the stenographer who was at the factory office Saturday until noon, was another of the witnesses called to the stand during the forenoon. She testified as to Frank's movements while she was there.

Frank Pale, but Calm.

Frank was brought into the Commissioners' Room in the police station before the inquest began, but later was excused and Rogers called.

The factory superintendent was pale, but calm and collected. He whispered a few words to his counsel, Luther Z. Rosser, and smiled faintly at a remark that was made to him. He apeared to show the strain of the days since he has been in a cell.

Lee was not admitted to the room at the beginning of the hearing, but was detained in a nearby office. The night watchman seemed almost indifferent.

Frank Answers Questions Quickly When Recalled

Frank was slightly nervous when he was answering the questions. He was asked:

Q. What kind of an elevator floor have you in the factory on the office floor?—A. A solid sliding door.

Q. Where was the elevator Friday night and Saturday?—A. I didn't notice it.

Q. What protection would there be from a person from falling into the shaft if the door was open?—A. There is a bar across the shaft.

Q. Where was the elevator Saturday?—A. I did not notice it.

NEW EVIDENCE IN PHAGAN CASE NOT YET BROUGHT OUT; DIG CAREFULLY FOR FACTS

Q. Where was it Sunday?—A. On the office floor.

Gave Tape to Police.

Q. What did you do with the tape after you took it out of the clock Sunday morning?—A. Gave it to one of the officers.

Q. Who was at a party at your house Saturday night?—A. Mr. Goldstein and others.

Q. Who else?—A. His wife and Mrs. Isaac Strauss.

Q. What were you doing?—A. Reading the Metropolitan magazine.

Q. Did you greet them?—A. Yes.

Q. You just greeted them?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you get up to greet them?—A. I don't remember.

Q. How about Mrs. Wolfsheimer?—A. She was not there.

Q. What was said about whisky when the officers came?—A. Nothing was said of whisky, but I said I would like to have a drink of something warm and the officer said a drink would do me good.

Dreamed of Phone Call.

Q. What did you say of some one telephoning you later at night?—A. I said I dreamed some one called.

Q. Did you look at the girl when you went to the undertakers?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you go into a toilet?—A. I did not.

Q. When did you first hear the girl's name?—A. I do not remember that accurately.

Q. What time did you get home Sunday?—A. I can't say exactly.

Discussed Murder Little.

Q. Did you discuss the murder at home Sunday?—A. Very little.

Q. When did Quinn refresh your memory about his visit to the factory Saturday?—A. I do not remember the exact date. It was one of the two days that I was at the station house.

Q. Who made the suggestion about keeping the matter quiet until you could communicate with your attorney?—A. I do not remember.

Q. Did Quinn know at that time that you had counsel?—A. I do not know.

Q. How can you lock the door of your office off from the place where the blood spots were found at the dressing room?—A. It has never been locked. There is a spring which closes the door in the partition near the dressing room, but it does not lock it.

Q. Is there any way to lock the doors on the back steps?—A. Yes, but it has been a long time since I have known them to be locked. There was a bar at the back door.

Did Not See Back Door.

Q. Did you see this back door Saturday?—A. No, I was not back there that day at all.

At this point Frank was made to repeat the conversation he had with the detectives when he was notified that the crime had taken place at his factory. The questioning continued:

Q. When was the first time you saw the boxes in the basement?—A. Monday afternoon when I went down in the basement with Mr. Scott, the Pinkerton detective.

Q. Who opened the factory Saturday morning?—A. The night watchman is supposed to stay on until the day watchman comes.

Q. What did the detective ask you when he called up the first time Sunday morning about the girl's body being found?—A. He asked me if I had not paid off a girl Saturday who worked in the tipping department and I told him I thought I had.

Q. Didn't you say the other day that the first time you heard the girl's name was in the automobile?—A. I don't just remember when I heard it the first time.

Blackstock on Stand.

Thomas Blackstock, of 21 Hightower Street, a former employee of the pencil factory, was placed on the witness stand after Frank was dismissed. Blackstock testified that he had seen Frank several times attempting to flirt with the girls in the factory and that the superintendent was accustomed to indulge in familiarities with the women in his employ.

Q. Did the girls complain?—A. They always tried to get out of his way when he came through the plant.

Q. How long since you worked there?—A. A year.

Girl Accuses Frank.

Miss Nellie Wood, of 8 Corput Street, followed Thomas Blackstock on the stand and corroborated Blackstock in much of his testimony, declaring that Frank had made improper advances to her and had tried to embrace her. She also testified that he tried to get her alone in his office and attempt familiarities with her. Her testimony follows:

Q. Did you know Mr. Frank?—A. Yes, I worked there two days.

Q. What was his conduct?—A. He would come around and put his hands on me when it wasn't necessary.

Q. Was that all he said?—A. He came out of his office once and took hold of me and then called me in his office. He said he wanted to talk business. He wanted to close the door and said I nedn't be afraid. He said no one would come into his office. He got too familiar with me.

Q. When was this?—A. Two years ago.

Q. What did you do?—A. I quit right there.

GRAND JURY TO SIFT THE EVIDENCE IN THE PHAGAN CASE WITHIN THE NEXT FEW DAYS

LATE this afternoon the police and detectives engaged on the Phagan case said they were satisfied with the progress being made before the Coroner's Jury.

Apparenty all other clews have been abandoned, and the present line of police activity would seem to center around Lee and Frank.

Whatever evidence the police have they refuse to disclose.

The entire mystery will be taken up by the Grand Jury within the next few days.

Frank of Nervous Nature; Says Superintendent Aide

The inquest was resumed at 2:40. Only a small crowd was present.

Miss Hattie Hall, stenographer for the Pencil Company, was called.

She said she had been connected with the company since December 4.

From a pile of papers taken from the factory records, Miss Hall identified a number that were written by herself. She said she did not think she could identify Frank's writing. Miss Hall selected eight letters that she had written. She said she didn't know how long it had taken her ta write the letters.

Miss Hall looked at the cash book and the book containing the financial sheets and said there was nothing in them she had done on April 26.

Couldn't Identify Writing.

Coroner Donehoo did not explain his interrogation of the witness along these lines. He appeared very anxious to know just what work she had done on the day of the murder, and instructed her to be careful in identifying her own writing. Several questions were asked her regarding Frank's handwriting, but she insisted that she could not identify it.

Herbert Schiff, 38 West Fair Street, chief clerk at the Pencil Factory, was called next. He testified as follows:

Q. What do you do at the factory?—A. Help Mr. Frank, keep the pay roll and other things.

Q. Are you familiar with Frank's handwriting?—A. Yes.

Q. Were you there Saturday, April 26?—A. No, sir.

The witness was here asked several questions relating to the business of the company.

Examines Books and Papers.

He was told to examine the book and papers that were shown Miss Hall, and identify Frank's handwriting. He identified several letters and acknowledgments as having been written by Frank, and also a number of entries in the order book, dated April 26.

Q. Were you at the office Monday morning?—A. Yes.

Q. What was Mr. Frank doing?—A. He wasn't there. He didn't return until about 3:30 Monday afternoon.

Q. What time does Mr. Frank get down?—A. He is usually there about 8. He is usually there when I get there.

Q. Did you see Frank Sunday?—A. I saw him in Bloomfield's with Mr. Darley and some of the other help.

Known Frank Five Years.

Q. Do you know Mr. Frank very well?—A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been with him?—A. Five years.

Q. Have you been close to him?—A. I guess I have been around him as much as anyone.

Q. Is he of nervous temperament?—A. Yes, he is very excitable. I would say very much so.

Q. How long would it have taken you to get up all of the data on the financial sheet which Mr. Frank did?—A. Five or six hours.

Q. How long would it have taken Mr. Frank to do it?—A. He has handled it more often and would be quicker. I would say half an hour less than it would take me.

Q. What else did Frank do?—A. Balanced the cash book.

Q. How long would that take?—A. About an hour and a half.

Black Testifes Quinn Denied Visiting Factory

John Black, city detective, followed Scott.

Q. Tell about the shirt.—A. Sergeant Bullard and I went out to the rear of 40 Henry Street and searched Newt Lee's room.

Q. What did you find?—A. Lots of things.

Q. Tell about finding the shirt?—A. We found it in the bottom of an old barrel.

Q. Was the shirt on the top or in the bottom of the barrel?—A. In the bottom.

Q. When was this?—A. On Wednesday after the murder.

Q. Did you see the shirt Lee wore Sunday morning?—A. Yes.

Q. What kind was it?—A. A brown woolen shirt. The one we found at his home was unlaundered. It was washed, but not ironed.

Q. Have you any positive clews to the person that committed the crime? A. No.

Q. What did Mr. Quinn say to you about his trip to factory Saturday?—A. Mr. Quinn said he was not at the factory on the day of the murder.

Q. How many times did he say it?—A. Two or three times. I heard him tell Detective Starnes that he had not been there.

Q. What did you tell Frank to ask Lee when they had a conference?—A. Nothing in particular, only that he try to get Lee to tell the truth.

Lee Repeats His Private Conversation With Frank

Newt Lee followed Black on the stand.

Q. Tell the jury of your conversation with Frank in private.—A. I was in the room and he came in. I said, Mr. Frank, it is mighty hard to be sitting here handcuffed. He said he thought I was innocent, and I said I didn't know anything except finding the body. "Yes," Mr. Frank said, "and you keep that up we will both go to hell!" I told him that if she had been killed in the basement I would have known it, and he said, "Don't let's talk about that—let that go!"

Frank has declared that he was instructed by the detectives just what to say to Lee in the effort to open his mouth, and said it.

Q. Was the furnace running Saturday night?—A. It was fired up.

Q. Did you say anything about sleeping?—A. Yes, sir. I came to the factory and Mr. Frank came out of his door and rubbed his hands and said he was sorry he had me come so early, when I might have been sleeping. I said I needed sleep.

Never Met Him Before.

Q. Did Frank ever come out to meet you before?—A. No, sir. He usually says "All right," when I say, "All right, Mr. Frank."

Q. Is the trap door usually open?—A. Yes, sir; it's open every evening when I come.

Q. When you went into the machinery room, did you notice anything on the floor?—A. No, sir.

Q. When you came there at 6 o'clock, what happened?—A. Mr. Frank came out and asked me what time it was. He told me not to punch the clock, as he wanted to put on a new tape. I held the lever and he put on the tape.

Sure He Punched Clock.

Q. Did he unlock the door of the clock?—A. No, he just opened the door.

Q. Are you sure you punched the clock every half hour that night?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Whose shirt was that they found at your house?—A. It looked like one of mine. I used to have one like that.

Q. Whose clothes were in that barrel?—A. I had mine in there, and the lady there might have had some of hers there.

Q. Was your shirt store bought?—A. No, sir. Mrs. John Bowen made it.

Pinkerton Detective Tells of Call From Factory Head

Harry Scott, the Pinkerton detective who has been working on the case since the day of the crime, took the stand when Schiff concluded his testimony.

Scott testified that Frank called him up Sunday afternoon before there was any talk of his arrest and asked the Pinkertons to begin work on the case and find the slayer.

Scott testified as follows:

Q. How are you interested in the Phagan case?—A. I was retained by the National Pencil Company to find the guilty man.

Q. Who retained you?—A. I received a call from Mr. Frank and he told me what he knew about the case.

Q. Where did Frank talk to you?—A. Mr. Frank, Mr. Dailey, Mr. Schiff and I went into the private office.

Q. What did Frank say?—A. He said: "I guess you have read of the crime. We feel an interest in the matter and desire to retain the Pinkertons and try to locate the murderer."

Tells He Is Suspected.

Q. What else did he say?—A. He said he had been down to the police headquarters, and that Mr. Black seemed to suspect him of the crime. He told me of his movements on the day of the crime. He told me that about 12:10 Mary Phagan came into the office and drew her money, $1.20. At 12:50, he said, he went up to the fourth floor and saw Mr. White talking to Harry Denham and Arthur White. He said he left at 1:10 and went home, and returned at 3. White and Denham, Frank told me, left about 3:10, leaving him alone in the building. Newt Lee reported at 4, but was sent away. Frank left the building about 6:15, and on the way out saw Newt Lee talking to James Gantt. Mr. Frank allowed Gantt to go inside of the factory to get some shoes and told Lee to go with him. Frank said he became worried over the presence of Gantt in the building and called Lee at 7:30. Frank asked Lee if Gantt had left the building and Lee said yes. Then Frank asked Lee if everything else was all right, and Lee said yes.

Q. Did you ask Frank any questions?—A. No.

Frank Showed Him Building.

Q. What did Frank show you?—A. He showed me the elevator, the room where the blood and hair were found, the basement where the body was found, and also the door.

Q. Have you talked to him since?—A. I talked to him one night, with Detective Black, at headquarters, but did not try to get a statement.

Q. Did he resent any of your questions? Did any one ask you to withhold evidence?—A. Mr. Hubert Haas asked me to keep the police from getting our evidence, and I told him we'd withdraw from the case before we'd do that.

Q. Tell of the interview between Lee and Frank.—A. Mr. Black suggested that Frank talk to Lee, since he employed him, and to try to get Lee to tell all the truth of the matter.

Q. What did Frank say to Lee?—A. I don't know. They were together privately.

Q. What did Lee say?—A. Lee says that Frank didn't want to talk about the murder. Lee says he told Frank he knew the murder was committed in daytime, and Frank hung his head and said "Let's don't talk about that!"

Q. Did Frank tell you what happened at his conference with Lee?—A. No. He said he tried to get something out of Lee, but couldn't.

Asked Lee About Clock.

Q. Do you remember Frank ever asking Lee anything about the clock slip?—A. Yes, it was in Chief Lanford's office. Frank asked Lee about a skip on the record from 9:30 to 10:25. Lee said that he punched the clock regularly and Frank remarked that it looked mighty peculiar.

Q. Tell us if this shirt was found in the back yard?—A. Yes.

Q. When you first saw the shirt was it very bloody?—A. Yes, it was very bloody on the right shoulder. The shirt looked as though it had been freshly washed, but not ironed. The blood spots looked fresh. Fred Bullard and Black said they found the shirt in a rag barrel in Lee's back yard. The shirt looked as though it might not have been worn since being washed.

Couldn't Explain Spots.

Q. Was the shirt torn?—A. We tore a piece out of the shirt and showed it to Lee and he said he had a shirt with a flower design on it like this piece. We showed him the shirt then and he said at first that he thought it might be his shirt, although he had not seen it for two years. He said he did not know how the blood spots got on it. After looking at the shirt again he said he did not believe it was hiss hirt.

Q. What size shirt was it?—A. We could not tell.

Q. Have you any definite clew as to who committed this murder?—A. I would not care to commit myself that far.

Q. Have you any definite suspicion?—A. We are working along a chain of evidence which I would not care to give out.

HOUSE PASSES UNDERWOOD'S TARIFF BILL

Great Demonstration Follows Announcement of 281 to 139 Vote on Measure.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Amid a great demonstration by Democratic members of the House, the Underwood tariff revision bill, which has been under consideration since April 22, was passed by a vote of 281 to 139 at 6:13 o'clock.

The point of order is designed to avoid putting the Democrats on record on the question of the creation of a scientific non-partisan tariff commission.

The Underwood tariff measure repeals the duties of the Payne act, which was passed by a Republican House in 1909. It provides for an income tax on all incomes over $4,000 a year. Corporations and business concerns are taxed also.

The income tax is expected to raise an annual revenue of over $70,000,000 The average reduction in duties from the Payne law is from 40.12 per cent to 29.60.

The biggest cut has been made in the wool manufactures. The annual revenue raised by the Payne bill is $304,000,000, whereas the revenue from the Underwood bill is estimated at $266,701,000.

The Underwood bill puts boots and shoes, flour, meat, raw wool sugar and many of the necessaries of life on the free list. Big reductions are made in the cotton schedule.

In luxuries the rates have been slightly increased over the level of the Payne bill.

Manufacturers Meet To Fight Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—A conference of manufacturers and producers called by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association met here to-day to talk over the tariff situation and formulate plans for pressing forward some amendments when the Senate considers the Underwood bill.

The object of the conference as set out in a statement is to deal with the general proposition of tariff revision as it is presented in the Underwood bill, and to look particularly to the working of the paragraph of the proposed law which empowers the President to negotiate trade agreements of mutual concession with foreign countries.

The manufacturers contend that if the President is given power to negotiate concessions in tariff rates, he also is empowered to negotiate increases, if they are warranted.

ANOTHER CLEW IN PHAGAN CASE IS WORTHLESS

Pinkertons Find No Foundation for Report of Lunch Room Helper's Disappearance.

Harry Scott, of the Pinkertons, said Thursday that the information obtained by his agency to the effect that a Greek helper in a restaurant had disappeared following the killing of Mary Phagan had proved baseless so far as he was able to determine.

"It was a blind clew," he said. "We were unable to find that any one was missing from the restaurant. Neither were we able to locate the supposedly missing person in Anniston, Ala., where our information said he was."

In discussing the alleged mysterious disappearance of one of his employees shortly after the discovery of the murder of little Mary Phagan, this morning, George Pappas, proprietor of the Busy Bee Cafe at Hunter and Forsyth Streets, said that there was no basis for any rumor involving anybody in his place.

"There was no one working in the restaurant at the time of the murder except my brother, Stamates Pappas, and myself, and, as you can see, we are both still here," he said.

Girl Not Known There.

"Furthermore, instead of anyone going away, we have just hired another man to wait in the cafe. He came here last Saturday and is still here.

"So far as the pencil factory and the murder of the girl is concerned I do not know anything about it at all. I didn't even know the girl by sight. Once in a while some of the girls came in here to get a little lunch, but I didn't know any of them by name and could not say positively that they worked over there at all.

"I have never been in the pencil factory but twice in my life—once on the Sunday the girl was found dead and once before that to get some dishes that had been sent over there with some lunch for one of the men at the factory."

When asked about the practice of sending lunches into the factory or the possibility of anyone in his employ getting familiar with the interior of the plant, he said that they very seldom sent anything over there, for the reason that they only had two men, and that the orders usually came at about 12 o'clock when they were too busy in the cafe to send orders out.

Pappas, telling of the movements of himself and his brother at the time of the murder, said:

"My brother left here about 7:30 o'clock in the evening to go and take a sleep, for the next day was our Easter, and we had to go to church that night and be up the greater part of the night, and he was supposed to open up the cafe in the morning.

"I closed up the place about 11:30 o'clock and went out for a little while. I came back and took a bath and dressed and at about 1 o'clock in the morning my brother came by for me and we went to the church to the Easter service.

"He came back here earlier than I did and was in the restaurant and the place was open when I reached here shortly before 8 o'clock. I had not been here long before someone came in and said that something had happened over at the pencil factory. I went outside and asked a policeman, who was standing there, what the trouble was and he told me that something had happened over at the factory that they did not understand —that a robber had been there and killed someone.

Frank There for Cup of Coffee.

"Later on I heard that it was a girl found dead in the place and went over to see. I went in and looked around for a few minutes and saw Mr Frank and some of the other employees in there, but I didn't stay in there long, because they made everyone get outside.

"Of course, I don't know anything about it, and all I hope is that they will catch the man that did it."

Asked if any of the employees of the pencil company had been in his place immediately following the discovery of the body, Pappas said that Mr. Frank had been in there about 8 o'clock Sunday morning and had a cup of coffee.

Greek Consul's Statement.

From the Grecian Vice Consul in Atlanta, The Georgian is in receipt of the following letter, which it prints gladly in justice to a body of citizens of whom the city has always been proud:

To the Editor of The Georgian:

Referring to the article published in yesterday's Georgian that a Greek is trailed in Anniston, Ala., on suspicion that he is connected with the terrible assassination of poor Mary Phagan, I beg to express my deepest indignation, not so much for the mere fact that a Greek is suspected, as for the off-hand conclusions of the "Pinkertons" that a Greek must be the guilty party who committed this atrocious deed because the crime itself bears the style of the Mediterranean criminal.

This accusation is of such a nature and so unjust to the country I have the honor to represent that you will allow me to place a formal and strong protest against any allegation of this kind.

It is the first time that I ever heard that strangulation is common in Greece. I think that before so detrimental a statement is published you ought to have taken into consideration statistical information from the courts of Greece and not entirely rely upon the suppositions of any detective agency.

Yours very truly,
DEMETRE VAFIADES,
Vice Consul.

The article referred to was published in line with The Georgian's policy to give its readers all the news and merely as the theory of detectives.

HAWKES GLASSES

THE DAY OF SPECIALISTS

There recently appeared in an Atlanta paper a splendid editorial on the "Powers of Concentration." It told of the wonderful things that can be accomplished by sticking to one thing—to a finish; and you know it to be true—that if you start out to do a thing, backed by courage and determination, you'll get it done; and when you get it done, you'll be a specialist at that one thing.

We've been sticking to one thing for fifty years; plugging along, studying and learning every point that would add to our efficiency as opticians. For fifty years we have been examining eyes and fitting glasses and we are pretty sure we are able to properly handle the most difficult cases requiring the use of glasses. You get the direct benefit of all these years of experience. Come in and talk to us about your eyes.

The romance had its inception about seven years ago. Coney, traveling in Ireland for his health, met the woman he led to the altar to-day.

Testimony at Early Session of Phagan Inquest

Rogers Tells What Police Found at the Factory

Frank's Stenographer and Girl Employee of Pencil Company Also on Stand.

Following is the testimony of the early witnesses at the Phagan inquest today:

W. W. Rogers was the first witness. He lives at 104 McDonough Road, and operates an automobile for himself. He said he took a party of officers to the National Pencil plant at five minutes past 3 o'clock Sunday morning, April 27.

He corroborated statements of officers regarding the finding of Mary Phagan's body and the notes beside it, and of the body being face downward.

Q. Who telephoned Frank of the murder?—A. Starnes called him and asked him to come to the factory.

Q. How long were you in front of the plant before you were let in?—A. Two or three minutes.

Q. Did you hear him coming?—A. We saw him coming down the steps with a lantern.

Q. What did he say?—A. She's in the basement, white folks.

Q. Was he excited?—A. No, he answered questions coolly.

Q. What did he say when you went downstairs?—A. He thought at first it was something the boys had placed there to frighten him.

Q. How did he say he found the body?—A. On her face.

Q. How did you find it?—A. On her face.

Q. Do you remember any other questions asked him?—A. Yes, but he talked in a straight way.

Q. Who went back upstairs with Lee and Anderson after Lee had been placed under arrest?—A. No one else.

Q. Where did they go?—A. Into office, where Anderson attempted to get Frank over the phone.

Lee Was Not Excited.

Q. Was Lee excited then?—A. No.

Q. What else did you find?—A. We looked all over the place for her hat and shoe. Then Sergeant Brown and myself walked out the back door and down the alley. When we came back I went out on McDonough Road in my machine and got Miss Grace Hicks, who, I knew, worked at the pencil factory. I brought her to town about 5:30 or 5:45. She told us who the girl was.

Q. Did you ever get in touch with Frank while in the office?—A. After I got back with the young lady Mr. Starnes called Frank again and got him. That was a little after 6. It took about five minutes for me to go out to his house.

Q. Who answered the door?—A. Mrs. Frank.

Q. Was Frank there?—A. He was standing in the hall behind the curtains. He was dressed, with the exception of collar, coat and hat. He asked Black what was the matter and Black did not answer, but told him he had better put on his clothes and go to town with us. Frank was hoarse and Black suggested that a drink might do him good. Mrs. Frank went upstairs to see if there was any whisky in the house, but did not find any.

Says Frank Was Nervous.

Q. Was he well groomed?—A. Yes; I noticed particularly that he had on a clean white pleated-bosom shirt. He was nervous, and moved about very nervously.

Q. How do you know he was nervous?—A. By the questions he asked. He asked if anything had happened at the factory and when Black did not reply he asked if the watchman had found anything unusual. Black did not answer them, and he asked if the watchman had called him, and when we did not answer he said that he dreamed the night watchman called him about daybreak. He struck me as being highly nervous.

Q. What did you talk about on the way to town?—A. Black asked him if he knew Mary Phagan and he asked if she worked at the factory. Said he did not know whether he knew her or not.

Q. Where did you go?—A. To the undertaking establishment.

Q. Did Frank see the body?—A. No.

Q. Where did he go?—A. When we went into the room the undertaker turned the child's head and Frank sidestepped into a toilet.

Q. Was Frank trembling?—A. I did not notice that he was.

Q. What questions were asked?—A. He asked us the girl's name and we told him Mary Phagan and asked if he knew her. He said he would have to look on the payroll to find out. We went around to the factory. He opened the safe and got out his books.

Q. Who was in the factory?—A. Several officers and Mr. Darley, the foreman, went in just ahead of us.

Tells When She Was Paid.

Q. What did Frank do?—A. He looked in his books, ran his finger down a column and said: "Yes, she was here." Then he said: "Yes, she was paid off yesterday. I can tell you just when. The stenographer and office boy left at 12 o'clock and she came in here—let's see, I can tell you the exact time—it was 10 minutes past 12. I paid her $1.20." Frank looked nervous and asked if anyone had found the envelope; that it must be around "there somewhere."

Q. Did you take Frank into the basement?—A. Yes, we went down. Frank ran the elevator.

Q. Did he say anything about the negro running the elevator?—A. Yes, he was asked if the negro ever ran it, and he said no.

Q. Had you noticed the elevator before?—A. No, except when we first went into the basement.

Q. Where was it?—A. Above us.

"Boots" Rogers, former county policeman who drove the police to the Pencil Factory when the first news of the Phagan slaying reached headquarters.

Q. Did you inspect the shaft then?—A. Yes.

Q. Did you see anything?—A. No, but I did not have a flashlight.

Q. Was anything found there later?—A. Yes, a parasol.

Q. Did you make a close inspection when Frank went into the basement?—A. No, we just took a casual look around.

Q. When did you see parasol, hat and shoe?—A. I did not see them until nearly 7 o'clock. The officers had them upstairs.

Frank Inspected Building.

Q. Did Frank inspect rest of the building?—A. Yes, and Chief Lanford and Frank, with several officers, went to the other floors and left the negro with me.

Q. Did Frank come back into the office?—A. Yes, he came in twice while I was there with the negro. He spoke to Lee once, shook his head and said "Too bad."

Q. Did you notice the clock?—A. Yes. Frank and Darley were out there by the clock, and Frank said "I guess I had better change the clock." He opened it, took out the slip and placed it by the clock while he went into the office to get another slip. He then called to one of us and I held the lever up and found a pencil sticking in hole. Frank asked Lee what the pencil was doing there. Lee said he put it there so he could be sure of hitting his number. Then Frank locked the box with a key. He had opened it with a key.

Q. What was done with the slip taken out?—A. Frank dated it and took it into his office.

Q. What date did he put on the slip?—A. I think it was April 26; I'm not sure.

Rogers said he looked at the slip and the first punch was at 6:30 and last at 2:30. There were no misses, he said.

Q. Where was the slip taken?—A. Frank took it into the office and put it on file.

Q. Did Chief Lanford take it away?—A. Not then; he may have got it later in the day.

Q. Are you sure there were no misses on the slip?—A. I would have noticed if there were.

Q. Did Darley and Frank have any conversation while on the way to the station house after that?—A. Not that I remember. I was driving the car and Frank was seated in Darley's lap.

Q. Was Frank still nervous?—A. Yes. He still wanted a cup of coffee. He had been anxious all morning to get a cup of coffee. Several times he had asked Chief Lanford if he could spare him to go and get a cup of coffee.

Frank Wrote Nervously.

Q. What was done at the station house?—A. When we got there the officers were having Newt Lee write for them.

Q. Did he look nervous?—A. No, he was writing what they told him.

Q. Did they have Frank write?—A. Yes.

Q. Was he nervous?—A. Yes, his hand was shaking.

Rogers was excused and Lemmie Quinn, foreman of the metal department, was called.

Questioned of Talk With Girl.

Q. Were you alone with Frank when you talked of this?—A. Yes.

Q. Why did you just tell him?—A. Well, I knew he wouldn't question me three or four hours like the officers would.

Questioned as to his duty toward solving the mystery, witness said he thought if the officers were making a thorough investigation they would certainly question him, as he was foreman of the metal department.

"I knew they had three or four men locked up," he said, "and as I had been in the building they might lock me up, too."

DIDN'T SEE GIRL LATE SATURDAY, HE ADMITS

J. L. Watkins, who testified that he saw Mary Phagan Saturday afternoon, April 26, between 4 and 5 o'clock, was called to the witness stand.

He was accompanied to the inquest by a girl, Daisy Brown, who he said was the girl he mistook for Mary Phagan.

He said he became convinced of his mistake when detectives came out to his place and had Daisy Brown to dress as she was Saturday afternoon. Then he discovered, he said, that she was the girl he had mistaken for Mary Phagan.

Daisy Brown was placed on the stand and testified that she had passed along Bellwood Avenue at that time Saturday, April 26.

She said she knew Mary Phagan, but could not understand how Watkins had mistaken her for Mary Phagan, as Mary was a little shorter and heavier.

WHITEHALL STREET GRADING ASSURED

Committee of Property Owners Declare Opposition to Plan Is Fast Vanishing.

Opposition to regrading Whitehall Street between Trinity Avenue and Forsyth Street is fast vanishing, and the success of the big undertaking is now assured, according to a report from the committee of property owners.

Robert R. Otis, chairman, who, with others, has made an investigation and worked out the details of the scheme, said Thursday:

"We now have everything in good shape and the improvement of Whitehall Street is certain. The small opposition to the big improvement which cropped out at first because the plan was not thoroughly understood is fast disappearing."

It is the contention of property owners backing the scheme that regrading will open up that portion of Whitehall for retail trade and that both lots and store houses will be greatly enhanced in value.

A Modern Invention--- A Recipe for Happiness

By EVELYN WREN.

Would you like my recipe for happiness? Here it is:

When weary, when anxious, when almost desperate because of the trials of the day, I do not sit down and bewail my fate—I go to a moving picture show.

Because I often reach the little crises of anxiety and resort to this most efficient remedy, I have grown gradually and unconsciously to be quite a critic. It has become a real responsibility, for I feel, if I say that a certain picture show is good, that a certain number of my friends immediately plan to visit it.

I love the "movies." I enjoy the talent and triumphs of the actors and have learned to regard them as my friends. I appreciate what they have done for me in making my dark days bright. I like the glimpses into untraveled roads which help me in my daily life.

Now, you are going to listen to me, I am sure, when I tell you what I have seen to-day. You won't believe it at first, unless you were fortunate enough to go too.

I have seen moving pictures that talk at the Savoy Theater. "Of course," you will say, "they all talk." No, you are wrong, for this is not a lip-reading contest, but real, loud words which even a child would understand.

The pretty picture I saw was like a miniature Grand Opera, a bit of the prettiest part of an idyllic act. To the grace and charm of the thespian participants were added the marvelous words issuing from their lips.

It was almost unbelievable. I rubbed my eyes and tried to persuade myself that I was not indulging in a remarkably pleasant dream. It was a realistic dream, just as are so many, and the entering of the Savoy Theater was but the memory of many happy little rests. Then, so I theorized, my dream had become fantastic, as dreams will do no matter how practically they begin.

I felt like Alice in Wonderland, to whom all sorts of strange things happened most plausibly. I had even determined to ask the lady who sat next to me whether she were only a dream or real. Then I thought I had best wait, for I must soon awake.

The awakening did not come until I had the very nicest time imaginable listening to the pictures talk. Then I began to enjoy the other films and stayed until the talking pictures appeared again. Then I rushed to see Mr. Jackson, manager of the Savoy Theater.

He was glad to tell me about this new invention. I did not endeavor to learn how the lips of the performers and the words which they uttered were kept in perfect unison. I was only anxious to learn "When?" "Twice a week," was the reply, and I have made another mental note in my happiness book.

That means new talking films every Monday and Thursday. But if you wish to see the charming one which aroused my enthusiasm you may see it to-morrow. Each and every day the Savoy Theater will show these wonderful pictures.

We are accustomed to almost miraculous inventions and to the unusual. We feel almost disturbed if we are surprised out of our indifference. Sometimes we even feign indifference, so afraid are we that we may show appreciation.

Don't do this. Visit the Savoy Theater at once and learn to live and to enjoy. Let your suppressed enthusiasm know no bounds when you see the product of master minds, the stories which are told so artistically as to seem simple, wherein is the highest art.

SUFFRAGETTE BOMB TERROR REIGN GROWS

Whole London Suburb Imperiled by Infernal Machine Bearing "Votes for Women" Label.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 8.—A bomb with a lighted fuse and two detonators attached was found to-day outside of a jeweler's establishment in Tottenham, a suburb of London. It was discovered just in time to prevent a disastrous explosion.

"Votes for women" was painted on the outside of the infernal machine, showing that militant suffragettes were responsible for the attempted outrage.

Dr. Wherry, father of one of the militant suffragette leders, Miss Olive Wherry, alias Hocken, was arraigned in the high court and fined $250 for contempt of court, because he tried to prevent the police from serving a warrant on his daughter.

Miss Wherry is an art student. It was in her studio that the "suffragettes' arsenal," comprising explosives, hammers, implements for incendiarism and other tools used in nefarious practices, was discovered.

Great crowds gathered outside of Bow Street Court during the morning for the resumption of the trial of the militant leaders, who were arrested last week during the raid on the offices of the Women's Social and Political Union in Kingsway.

The trial of the militant leaders had not been under way long before Mrs. Flora Drummond, known as General Drummond for her militant propensities, collapsed in the prisoners' dock. She has been in jail for a week and has refused to eat.

The prosecution of the militant leaders was conducted by Archibald Bodkin. He brought out that the militant suffragettes were conspiring to gain entrance to the House of Lords by accepting positions as typists and clerks. Their purpose was either to interrupt the proceedings or blow up the Parliament building, he said.

Peace Conference Is Called by Swiss

Arrange Franco-German Debate on Policies—Marks New Era in International Affairs.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, May 8.—More than 400 members of the French and German Parliaments are expected to meet in Berne next Sunday and Monday in response to an invitation from the Swiss Parliament to discuss amicably the political questions of the day and especially armaments and the future of Alsace-Lorraine.

This is probably the first event of the kind in the history of the world, and it is hoped that it will mark a new era in international affairs.

The meeting is all the more extraordinary because it comes at a time of unusual tension when the Chauvinists in both countries are shouting their loudest.

Legless Hero Wins $20,000 and Will Wed

Philadelphia Youth Saved Another as He Lay Crushed Under Crane.

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has affirmed the decision of the lower court awarding $20,000 to Carl Edsberg, 21 years old, who saved the life of a fellow mechanic at Baldwin's Locomotive Works, after he himself lay crushed under a ten-ton steam crane.

When Edsberg was crushed and wedged under the crane, fellow workmen went to his assistance. One of them fainted at the sight and toppled off the girder 70 feet above ground. Edsberg, still conscious, grasped at the falling man and held him until others came. He lost both legs.

When he receives his reward Edsberg will marry his fiance, who came from Sweden when she learned of his accident.

Boy Who Climbed Mount Vesuvius to Get Piece of Cloud

PAUL BACHELLER.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Like the little child of the fable, who wanted the moon and thought he had it when he saw it reflected in a looking glass, was Paul, the 7-year-old son of Irving Bacheller, who made a perilous ascent half way up Mt. Vesuvius for the purpose of securing a piece of a low-hanging cloud, wringing it out and bringing it back to his mother in a basket.

But Paul, who is home with his mother and father from abroad, found the journey too much for him, and when half way up the steep side was found by a Government guard and carried back, sound asleep, to his parents' villa.

For days, Mr. Bacheller said the lad had been watching the low hanging clouds, and saw no reason in the world why he couldn't go up to the top of the smoking mountain and grab a piece or two of them. His father, on one pretense or another, postponed the trip from day to day. One morning he woke to find the lad missing.

Early that morning the little fellow, armed with a basket, had left the villa alone and started the long climb. He avoided a number of guards, but finally he could keep his eyes open no longer, and dropped from sheer exhaustion. He was found some time later by the guard peacefully asleep, still clutching the basket.

SHETLANDS ARE HERE; FRISKIEST YOU EVER SAW

Twelve Prizes in Pony Contest Attract Attention of Stock Yards—All Beautiful.

The ponies are here.

Just now they are the talk of the stockyards out Marietta Street. Scores of horseflesh experts have looked them over and pronounced them the best dozen ever seen in Atlanta.

All day long the pen in the auction mart where the Shetlands are kept is the center of interest. Dealers, fanciers, even the hostlers, go out of their way to see the ponies, for they are something of a novelty at the yards.

The twelve ponies for the Georgian and American make up the largest shipment ever received in Atlanta. Ordinarily, not more than a half dozen Shetlands a year are handled through here.

So when our photographer lined them up in one of the streets and had them pose for a picture, there was an interested group that threatened to stop traffic.

A prosperous looking planter, here to buy mules, looked them over and, picking out "Lady Bess," said:

"Lady Bess Worth $350."

"Gentlemen, that pony, right up in my home town, Lexington, Kentucky, would be worth $350. Fine ponies, as fine a lot as I ever saw."

Soon after their arrival, one of Atlanta's expert veterinarians went to the yards with the Georgian and American representatives. He looked at their teeth; tested their sight, made them run briskly and then listened to their breathing; poked inquisitive fingers into places where a pony might not be all right to see if the little fellows would wince.

They didn't wince; their wind was all right; they had good vision and hearing and all were in perfect health.

"Sound as dollars" is his verdict, "and the oldest is only four, most of them are two years old. You know, a Shetland does not stop growing until he's five. They'll grow up with the children."

The ponies were happy to have the exercise they got while under inspection. They kicked up playful heels; jumped friskily around, and rubbed muzzles on the visitors' sleeves. Evidently they are used to being petted, and expect a lot of it.

All Broken to Harness.

Some are black, some are sorrel some are bays, and some are marked with white. They have great shaggy manes, and "bangs" over their eyes in true Shetland style. Their legs are slim and dainty as any thoroughbred's. All are broken to harness, and some are broken to saddle, too.

Everyone who sees them will want one, the only difficulty is to make a choice.

And remember, they will be given away, with beautiful carts and harness, to the boys and girls who win in the Georgian and American contest, already under way.

It's time to start, if you want one of the prettiest ponies that ever came South of the blue grass.

Locomotive on Tear, Wrecks Big Saloon

Building Caves in After Engine 6431 Is Yanked Forcibly From Cleveland Bar.

CLEVELAND, O., May 8.—Engine 6431 did not take the Big Four passenger train to St. Louis this morning because it stopped off at P. S. Berry's saloon on West Eleventh Street on its way to work.

Railroaders on the Big Four are not allowed to patronize saloons on duty, so 6431 having transgressed the rules and lost out on its run, just stayed in the saloon. 6431 couldn't come out, anyway, without the three-story brick building falling in.

Finally the engine was yanked out by another locomotive and the saloon building fell a heap of wreckage.

Unable to contain himself longer, a negro lounging against the counter laughed loudly. He was a ventriloquist.

England Must Fight Higher Living Cost

Increase in Freight Rates Due to Railroad Wages the Cause.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, May 8.—The cost of living in England is already soaring and threatens to go higher. The flight is a consequence of the railroad companies' proposed advance of freight rates by 4 per cent, to take effect July 1.

Manufacturers in all the industrial centers declare the extra expense must be borne by the consumers. The railroads also intend raising the rates of cheap vacation tickets. The upward trend is the direct result of the advances in railroad employees' pay after the great strike of 1911.

Fine Remedy for A Backward Child

Continue It for Only a Brief Period and the Good Results Will Surprise You.

A low state of the general health is now the accepted cause of backwardness in children. So in the case of a backward child it is best to look toward building up its health. It will usually be found that the main trouble is in the food, in lack of assimilation and digestion. Hence care should be taken in the kind of food given to the child. This, with plenty of air and exercise, should bring about a change for the better.

Watch the conditions of the bowels, to note whether the waste is being passed off or not, or whether it is being passed too freely. If either condition prevails give a small dose of that gentlest of all laxative-tonics, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Thousands of mothers will testify to the wonders it has wrought in the lives of their own children, and for that reason legions of families like those of Mrs. J. E. Brunty, 1503 Ninth Ave., Nashville, Tenn., are never without it in the house. Mrs. Brunty writes: "Harry had always been constipated until I gave him Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I am certainly going to keep this medicine in the house in future, for I know it to be good." It is pleasant to the taste and so perfectly safe that it is given to infants, and yet is equally effective for grown people. All druggists sell it, and the price is only fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter for families who need it regularly.

HARRY BRUNTY.

Syrup Pepsin has no equal as a cure for constipation, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, sour stomach, gas on the stomach, liver trouble and kindred complaints. It has so many advantages that those who once use it forever after discard cathartics, salts, pills and other coarse remedies, for they are seldom advisable and should never be given to children.

If no member of your family has ever used Syrup Pepsin and you would like to make a personal trial of it before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, send your address—a postal will do—to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 417 Washington Street, Monticello, Ill., and a free sample bottle will be mailed you.

BROWN BLAMED BY LONGSTREET WIDOW'S ALLIES

Atlantan Is Credited With Landing Gainesville Postmastership for Mrs. H. W. J. Ham.

The nomination of Mrs. H. W. J. Ham to be postmaster at Gainesville and the consequent turning down of Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet and Editor A. S. Hardy have aroused the most intense interest in Georgia, and is being widely discussed to-day.

The popular impression was that Mrs. Longstreet likely would succeed herself, and if she did not, the plum would go to Mr. Hardy, who had the indorsement of Congressman Bell of the Gainesville district.

Mrs. Ham's name never had been mentioned publicly in connection with the Gainesville postoffice, and her nomination was a complete surprise.

The biggest surprise of all in this presidential act, however, was the report given out from the Postoffice Department to the effect that Mrs. Longstreet's administration of the Gainesville postoffice had been found unsatisfactory and inefficient.

Report Called an Excuse.

Her friends already are saying there is no sincerity in that report, but that it was made merely to conform with previous announcements from the White House to the effect that postmasters would not be removed in any event, save where charges of inefficiency were made and sustained.

Primary responsibility for the Presidential rejection of both Mrs. Longstreet and Mr. Hardy is laid at the door of E. T. Brown, of Atlanta, who bitterly opposed Mr. Hardy and more or less passively opposed Mrs. Longstreet. Mr. Brown is a cousin of Mrs. Wilson and a frequent visitor at the White House. He is reported to be closer to the President than any other Georgian.

His opposition to Mr. Hardy is based on partisan grounds, arising out of Mr. Hardy's support of Mr. Underwood in the Georgia primary, and his opposition to Mrs. Longstreet upon the milder partisan grounds that she was a Roosevelt appointee and presumably more of a Republican than Democrat.

Senator Smith Hesitates.

The nomination of Mrs. Ham was announced Wednesday afternoon, notwithstanding the fact that Congressman Bell had an engagement with the President to-day to talk the Gainesville situation over. Mr. Bell conferred, more or less indignantly, so it is reported, with Senator Hoke Smith last night, as to the unexpected nomination of Mrs. Ham. The Senator expressed great surprise that the matter had developed along the line indicated, but said he would hesitate to oppose the nomination when it came up for confirmation.

The flat rejection of Congressman Bell's recommendation for the postmastership in his home town has caused a tremendous flutter in Congressional circles, and has aroused great interest in Georgia. For time immemorial, it has been customary for Congressmen to name, without dispute, their home postmasters. If the President is going to disregard this custom, what influence will a Congressman have on any appointments within his district? That is the big question Representatives are asking themselves to-day, and which thousands of Georgians are pausing to hear answered.

Many are taking the rejection of Hardy to mean that President Wilson is determined not to appoint to office in Georgia any one who opposed him in the Presidential primary, and that if Congressman Bell had named a pro-Wilson man his recommendation might have been followed.

Made a Gallant Fight.

Mrs. Longstreet has made a gallant fight to retain her position. The Postoffice Department, the White House and the Capitol have been flooded with letters and telegrams in her favor. It was thought that she might lose the office through politics, but it never was suspected in Georgia that inefficiency would be charged against her.

Congressman Bell will make an effort to change the presidential mind in respect of the Gainesville postoffice, but the impression is that he will fail to move the White House occupant.

Mrs. Ham is the widow of the late H. W. J. Ham, for years prominent in Georgia politics, and is a popular and estimable woman.

Girl Urged Brothers To Kill Her Betrayer

'Nothing Else To Do,' She Tells Yazoo City Jury—Acquittal Is Expected.

YAZOO CITY, MISS., May 8.—On the testimony of Miss Lucille Dennis, acquittal of her two brothers, accused of the murder of Mannie Watson, was expected to-day.

The girl took the witness stand in their defense.

"They had to do it," she said. "There was nothing else to do. I urged them on. Mannie took me to New Orleans and promised to wed me. He wrote my father that we were married. Then he deserted me. When our baby came I told my brothers to kill Mannie, and they did. They had to."

Japanese 'Sorrowful, RatherThanAngered'

Tokio Paper Says California Alien Bill Is Offense Against Law of Love.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

TOKIO, May 8.—The Yorozu Chohe publishes an appeal to the Christian Japanese and the Christians of America, in which it says:

"It may be a small thing to disinherit the Japanese in California, yet it is of importance in that it causes a friendly nation to distrust America. The land law may succeed in eradicating the so-called evils of Oriental immigration, yet it contains germ of greater troubles. Better put legality aove profit and love above legality. Such legality and such legislation are an offense against the law of love, wherefore the Japanese are rather more sorrowful than indignant."

Miss Elkins' Dog Lost; 'Billy' Hitt Seeks It

WASHINGTON, May 8.—"Duc," the prize bulldog said to have been presented to Miss Katherine Elkins by the Duke of the Abruzzi some years ago and named after him, is missing, and Miss Elkins is inconsolable.

"Duc" wandered away at the Horse Show. The police scoured the town for him.

"Billy" Hitt, with true nobility of character, has joined in the search for his rival's gift. Wagers are being made that if the dog is found it will suffer a change of name to "Sweet William."

"The human soul is like a republic The legislative power is the intellect, the judicial power is the conscience and the executive power is the will. Each of these in the soul of a child demands training.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Men.

Send Name and Address To-day—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow men to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest-acting restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4276 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3 to $5 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

Just Bustled in---Billy Bounce and His Brothers

Watch 'em Bound Out at $2.98

For they're worth $5

Here's Billy Bounce—the Rolyest-Polyest kiddy that ever came to Atlanta.

He is a red-headed, blue-eyed buster, chock full of fun, and so healthy that you can drop him on the floor without hurting him. Billy is unbreakable and unbeatable.

The little rascal has a bisque head and stuffed body. He is 20 inches around the chest, stands 2 feet high on his bow legs, and sits in any position. For Billy's legs and arms are ball-jointed—he can move them at will.

To see Billy is to love him. We distributed 250 of "HIM" last March. Tickled every boy and girl down to their toes to take Billy home. Can't blame them. Billy is just that cute and attractive. Billy is clothed in a waist, diaper and bootees. Worth $5, and only..... $2.98

Billy Bounce and his bustling brothers will be in the window to-morrow. If you don't want your kiddie to have one, for goodness sake don't let him see the window.

All our buyers back from New York. Because of the unsettled money market and impending tariff changes, they were able to pick up much desirable merchandise underprice. We are now distributing these "plums." Some examples:

35c to 75c Shadow Laces at 19c

Didn't think we could do it!

Last week's 12c lace sale seemed the top notch of endeavor. But here is a lace bargain equally good—for many people even better.

"Aren't we over enthusiastic?"

Not a bit of it. The laces are in the window to-day to prove all we say of them.

Moreover, women who have seen the window display have been trooping in all day trying to buy the laces at once—to have them sent out of town—to have them reserved.

But, NO! Not an inch of lace will be sold before to-morrow at 9 a. m.

All shadow laces in cream, white and ecru. Edges and insertions to match. Variously 5 to 12 inches wide. (Think of 12-inch shadow laces for 19c.) Not a yard worth less than 35c; some worth 75c; the average price being easily 50c. Choice, 19c.

Here Is Unusually Fine News of Dresses

And here, too, are the bright days of spring, when a woman gets so much satisfaction and pleasure out of little one-piece dresses.

The savings told of below are a matter of the alertness of our buyer, who is just returned from New York or it would be hard for you to understand why such dresses are so priced.

$6.98 & $7.50 Linen Dresses $5.00

The unexpected has happened—and right now, in the morning of May, linen dresses, cool summery linen dresses, are $5.00 instead of $6.98 and $7.50.

You will note that the linen is a really fine, smoothly woven grade and weighty, and that the styles are beautifully and simply charming—with plaited and tucked waists, low round collars, turn-back collars and turn-back cuffs, sometimes in white and embroidered in colors and sometimes in the color of the dress. Many are belted, others have the raised waist line marked with piping.

Indeed, they make up a likely little lot of linen dresses—and at $5.00.

$10.00 Dresden Crepe Dresses $6.98

How fine they will be for morning wear! They are of the quaint and charming crepe in Dresden patterns and colorings—little florals, pink, blue, green and lavender.

Fashioned with low, round collars, edged with a net frilling, plaited; the same is on the cuffs. A vest effect is obtained by the use of net. Skirts are draped gracefully in the side back—and then there is a wide crushed satin girdle to set off the whole. Truly $10.00 values!

Vudorize Your Sleeping Porch

From the outside Vudor shades give a finish to the porch and an air of hominess to the house that are very attractive. They make the porch a place everyone will seek during the hot, sultry days of summer. But you must not confuse Vudor Shades with ordinary bamboo screens. There is all the difference in the world between them, both in the service and in the comfort they bring.

The light, strong wooden strips of Vudor Shades are lock-stitched together by heavy seine twine so the strips will not work out at the sides of the shades and become broken. The twine is rot-proof and the raising cords will not annoy you by curling up and sticking in the pulleys.

Vudor Shades are indelibly stained (not painted nor dipped) in soft, pleasing colors to harmonize with your house. They will retain their newness and withstand sun and rain for many seasons.

Vudor Shades repel the sun's rays but let in all the light and air you want. You can see out, but no one can see in. They make the porch a delightfully cool and secluded place where your family can spend the long summer days and where you may rest in comfort during nights when the thought of a hot bedroom banishes sleep.

We are exclusive agents for these splendid shades in Atlanta. A telephone call will bring one of our men to measure your porch, to fit the shade just so.

Remnant Day in the Silk Section!

It means dresses, waists, coats and trimmings at part prices instead of whole and worth prices.

Now for the Daintiest of Summer Dresses

A Sale of Sheer and Fine Fabrics

To-morrow at Nine o'Clock

These are the fabrics that women want for their charming summer dresses---for street, for afternoon, for evening wear.

There are voiles so light and airy that it hardly seems possible that they were woven, and yet across these surfaces are dots and spots and great colorful floral patterns.

You will exclaim over them!

And here they are in a sale!

Priced at the very time their appeal is strongest---priced very vigorously.

If there is any way of judging what will attract eager buyers, we record the prediction that there will be a crowd for these!

At 49c French Crepes that were 75c and $1.00 a yard. A fabric in high favor. 32 inches wide. White ground with dots over it in colors—many colors.

At 49c French Piques that were 60c and 85c a yard. 32 inches wide. Plain white and with embroidered dots. Splendid for dresses and skirts.

At 59c French Voiles that were 85c a yard. 48 inches wide. White with a border made up of silk stripes in blue, lavender and pink.

At 89c French Voiles and Crepes that were $1.50 a yard. 38 and 40 inches wide. White, blue lavender and black grounds embroidered with colored dots.

At 89c Voiles that were $1.50 a yard. Among these are white voiles, 45 inches wide, showing a border of embroidered designs in colors, and 40-inch voiles, as dainty as can be, in lavender, pink and light blue embroidered over in self-colored dots.

At 98c Voiles that were $1.50, $2.00, $2.25 and $2.50 a yard. There will be many dresses chosen from among these. The pricing is remarkable, the variety is great—checked voiles, striped voiles in black and white, great floral patterns in rich colors on white grounds—and with these an odd few French crepes that, too, were priced from $1.50 to $2.50 a yard. All 38 inches wide.

it becomes amenable to the rules that govern merchandise. So prices drop in many cases to less than half, in others to a point verging very closely on half.

Some pieces have overstayed their time; others are odd pieces or odd sets---for instance, a set of a half dozen or dozen forks will have no spoons to match, and vice versa. They must all go now.

It is a happy time to select wedding presents, silver for your own home. It is silver you will be proud to give---proud to own!

Gowns

39c for 50c Gowns. The nainsook is better than 50c gowns usually can claim—and the trimmings about the yokes and sleeves are either dainty laces or dainty embroideries. No skimping in the size, either, as is often the case, to make up for the extra quality.

50c for Gowns trimmed with fine hand-loom embroidery, kimono sleeves. We wish we could always offer such gowns at 50c!

79c for $1.25 and $1.50 Gowns, of fine weave nainsook, deep yokes of laces and embroideries; others of crepe, lace trimmed and scalloped finished. Hurry for these!

Combinations

$1.25 for Combinations of rarest beauty. The nainsook is an excellent quality, as sheer and light and silky as could be. Corset cover with drawers, straight princess cut, fine patterns of valenciennes laces and wonderful little embroideries that come from Switzerland.

$1.49 Some fifteen styles to choose from. for $2.00 and $3.00 Combinations. The fact that these are selected from the better trousseau sets tells what you may expect in the matter of quality of nainsooks, laces and embroideries and the fine fashioning of them.

Petticoats

79c for Petticoats of straight lines, without the under flounce—the trimmings are fine filet laces, flat trimmed.

98c for Petticoats of straight lines, with flounce trimmed with hand-loom scalloped embroidery. Others with flounces of five rows of lace insertions and beadings and a three-inch embroidery band at top.

Drawers and Princes Slips

79c for $1.00 Drawers, circular cut, flat trimmed with embroideries and with rows of insertions set in down from the waist.

69c for $1.25 Princess Slips. An odd lot to go very quickly. They are in large sizes only.

French Hand Made Chemises

The prices are lower than you would expect. Did you notice the hand-embroidery—how neatly it is done and the fine little floral patterns—before you looked at the price ticket.

They are priced at 69c (instead of $1.00), 95c, $1.39 and $1.98.

In the Junior Department

Third Floor

Values calculated to warm the hearts of both mothers and daughters have been brought forward for to-morrow's selling in the Junior Department. But the details best tell this—

Junior Suits Regularly $25.00 Are $12.50

And there is a breadth and scope to the variety of styles from which you are bidden to choose that warrant certain satisfaction.

There are shepherd checks, there are navy serges, there are novel striped weaves fashioned into Balkan blouses, Norfolks and plain tailored suits. Some show trimmings of daintiest Dresden silks—odd and very pretty for the young women—others pipings in bright red, others the use of the popular white ratine in collars and cuffs. All the coats are lined with soft peau de cygne and are splendidly tailored. Seldom such suits happen at $12.50.

Girls' Wash Dresses Regularly $6.00 Are $3.75

Sizes six to fourteen years.

It will not be hard to understand their worth—$6.00—once you see them.

The materials are linen, fine French linen, and Anderson's Scotch ginghams. They are covered with new little style points. It may be the way a yoke is set in or the hand embroidery on fronts, or the novel use of one color with another or the elegance of an Irish crochet collar that will attract you, or still other points. You will be attracted to them especially with this new price looming so low.

Children's Dresses Regularly 75c Are 49c

In sizes one to four years. The material is a soft white crepe.

They are the little straight affairs that mothers buy when prices are normal by the half dozens. With these and at the same price are new and fresh white and colored percale dresses in sizes one to six years. These are long waisted and have the little plaited skirts.

HIGHWAY WORK HARD PROBLEM FOR ASSEMBLY

Readjustment of Convict Labor Necessary to Obtain Federal Aid.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

The incoming Legislature will have one or two knotty problems to solve at its forthcoming session in the matter of readjusting the employment of convict labor within the State, and particularly in shaping things so that future road work may not interfere with the State's participation in the forthcoming distribution of the Federal good roads fund.

The Legislature certainly will incline to provide work for convicts that will interfere as little as possible with free labor of the State—it is obviously impossible to work the convicts at all, and not interfere in some degree with free labor—and at the same time, the State will not be able to avail itself of the Federal good roads fund, where such roads are worked by convicts. The Federal Government will specifically require that all aid it extends to the States in the matter of roads construction shall be extended to such roads only as are constructed by contract labor, upon competitive bids.

The Federal Government will help those roads that help themselves, but not otherwise. If Georgia will spend, for instance, $20,000 on good roads construction, the National Government will then supplement that amount with an additional $10,000, and pay an annual rental for the road thus constructed, as a post road.

Sometime ago Governor Brown inquired of the Postoffice Department in Washington whether this State's $20,000 might not be furnished in convict labor, but he was informed that the National Government would not consent to that sort of arrangement. The Governor, as a result of this correspondence, will lay the matter before the incoming Legislature in a special retiring message.

It has been suggested that several of the larger counties may combine and apply for this Federal aid fund, agreeing that the entire work shall be done by contract labor. While it is admitted that this might comply with the letter of the Federal law, it hardly would comply with the spirit, and for that reason likely would not be acceptable to the national authorities.

From every angle one views this question it presents great difficulties, and yet there is a keen desire on the part of incoming Legislators to find some satisfactory way for Georgia to secure its share of the good roads fund.

Former Representative Rufe Baker, who aspired to be the handsomest man in the last Georgia Legislature, but lost the blue ribbon to John Holder, or somebody, came down from the mountain fastness of Lumpkin County Wednesday and had a look-in on things around and about this burg.

The most engaging thing about Rufus B. nowadays is a new and very elaborate mustache recently occumulated. It tends to enhance his already attractive personal appearance no little, and wherever he wandered he was "the synosure of all eyes," or words to that effect.

A mustacheless Rufus B. was handsome enough, as everybody well knows, but this new Rufus B., mustache and all—my—!

It is difficult to conceive how the grand old county of Lumpkin is to wabble through the next Legislature without Rufus B. on the job!

It is understood that a new bill is being considered for presentation in the next General Assembly, looking to the construction of a Pryor Street viaduct across the State's railroad property in Atlanta.

Governor Brown vetoed the measure passed by the last General Assembly, upon the ground that, while it took care of Atlanta well enough, it did not safeguard the State's interests to his liking. In this view, he subsequently was substained by the Legislature, as the bill failed of passage over the executive veto.

It is understood the new measure will undertake to avoid the objectionable features pointed out by the Governor in his veto message, and the bill to be offered this time will undertake to deal fairly and equitably both with the State and the city of Atlanta.

Representative-elect Barry Wright, of Floyd County, who has been elected president of the Cherokee Life Insurance Company, of Rome, will discontinue the active practice of law, but will not resign his seat in the Legislature, so his Rome friends say.

Mr. Wright not only is one of the brainiest young men in Georgia, a cracking good lawyer and Legislator of repute, but generally is credited with being the possessor of a long business head.

His selection to be president of the Cherokee is considered ideal.

The question of Douglas McArthur's right to a seat in the next Legislature as a Representative from the new county of Wheeler, will be one of the things to attract the attention of the incoming House immediately after organization.

Mr. McArthur's election never has been certified to the Secretary of State, and unless it is, it is difficult for some members to see how he is to have himself sworn in. At the same time, an election unquestionably was held in Wheeler, and Mr. McArthur was named its first Representative. The election managers, for fear there was no authority in law for the holding of the election, though, have declined to certify it to Secretary Cook.

The entire matter will be thrashed out early in the next session. The House is the only judge of the qualifications of its own members.

ROUND-ABOUT-TOWN STORIES

Hire Messenger Boys To Romp With Dogs.

"An innocent act of a busy Brooklyn woman has caused a new craze in her neighborhood, which is the fashionable Flatbush section," said a prominent Atlanta club woman, chatting with a friend the other day. "I was stopping with my sister and had occasion to witness the fashion as it developed. This Brooklyn matron fround her household duties too heavy one day to enable her to take her $100 bull dog out for an airing. Her maid was busy, too, so she telephoned to a messenger service company and had a boy detailed to her house. For an hour the boy exercised the dog. Other women thought it a good plan and now strings of uniformed boys may be seen leading costly dogs. Some of the youngsters enjoy the job, and when out of sight of the owner they romp and play in vacant lots with the pets."

Keeping Rats in and Keeping Rats Out.

"The other day when I was in New York," remarked a buyer for one of Atlanta's big stores, "I was on a Thirty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, ferryboat and noticed that the hawsers mooring a liner to the Red Hook pier passed through what looked like big pie plates about four feet in diameter. The disks were about half way between the ship and the pier. I asked the ferryboat captain what they were for."

"'Why,' said he, 'those are to keep the foreign rats aboard and keep the American rats ashore.'"

Things Have Changed Since That Time.

"I have lived in Atlanta for about thirty-eight years," said the bookkeeper for one of the big department stores, "and I never cease to marvel at the greatness of the town. Whenever I get the chance I like to wander about the streets downtown and in some parts of the residence sections, just to note the progress that has been made in improvements. When I arrived in Atlanta there was a swamp along side the old Union depot. My train got in at night. I could hear the frogs croaking in the bullrushes by the tracks as I climbed down out of the passenger coach and looked about for a place to put up for the night. The property where that swamp existed is worth a pretty penny to-day. When I observe the great changes that are taking place I wonder if I am in the same city to which I came more than a quarter of a century ago. I can't remember a time when some big public improvement was not under way. If I'd had a little money when I arrived here to invest in real estate at the prices then existing I'd be a millionaire. But I didn't have it, so there you are. It does beat all time how Atlanta grows!"

SCHWAB TO AUCTION HOUSE.

PROVIDENCE, May 8.—Charles M. Schwab, who owns a house in the exclusive east side section of this city, is to have the place sold at public auction on May 19. It was built at a cost of $250,000.

BESTS FOOTPAD IN BATTLE IN ALLEY

Felled Twice With Brickbats, G. A. Sala Routs Robber After Desperate Fight.

Grappling with a negro highwayman in the darkness of Ryan's Alley at 2 o'clock Thursday morning, G. A. Salla, a "weinie" vender, succeeded in routing his assailant and saving a considerable amount of cash he had on his person. Struck twice in the head, Salla battled valiantly, in spite of his dazed condition. He was later sent to a hospital.

Salla, a well-known figure about town, was on his way home after the day's work. To reach the rear of his residence, 161 South Pryor, his path leads through Ryan's Alley. Just as he entered the darkest part of the alley he was struck on the head by a brickbat.

Knocked down by the blow, but not rendered unconscious, he scrambled to his feet only to be felled by another blow. Again gaining his feet, he clinched with his assailant, meanwhile calling loudly for help. For some time they battled in the darkness, then the bandit fled.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

PLEASING PLAY AT THE ATLANTA.

Comedy and pathos are cleverly blended in "The Girl From Out Yonder," the play which is being given excellent presentation this week at the Atlanta Theater by the Miss Billy Long Company. It is one of the very best of the offerings by the company and the audiences that have attended the performances have gone away well pleased. Miss Long appears to have decided advantage in the role of Floateam and Mr. Vail the leading man, also has a congenial part. Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison, the Atlanta girl, who is in the cast this week, has made a pronounced hit by her work. "The Girl" will be presented each evening the rest of the week, with matinee Saturday.

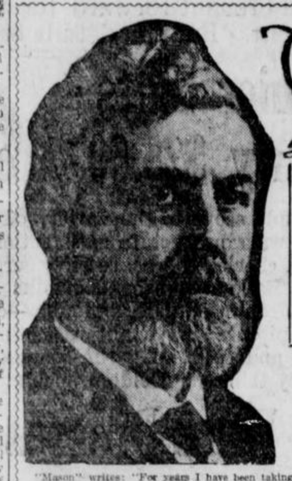
EXCELLENT BILL AT THE FORSYTH.

Every indication points to a wonderful season at the Forsyth. Since the return of Keith vaudeville to the busy theater, the box office men have been forced to work overtime recording advance sales and supplying theatergoers with seats for the daily bargain matinee and the evening performances. The theater is as cool and as comfortable as a seaside resort, and every convenience that is possible to install has been provided for the patrons.

The offering this week is one of exceptional quality and of more than ordinary interest. The program has been well selected and is being presented to the very best advantage.

Of course the big feature is Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret, a company of fifteen clever girls and boys, who sing and dance and do the sort of comedy stunts that please people generally. Belle Story is winning well-merited applause with a series of real songs, while Williams, Thompson and Copeland are scoring a comedy hit that will last a long time. There has never been a better impersonation of the real negro than the work of Willims, and that the act is a hit, is evidenced at all performances.

The featured headliner for the coming week will be Paul Dickey and his company in "The Come Back." Mr. Dickey is a famous football star. He was an "end" for Michigan, and is well known to a number of college members.



The DOCTOR'S ADVICE

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character; the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Mason" writes: "For years I have been taking medicine to cure constipation, liver trouble and the usual diseases that come from that source. Headaches, sallow skin, kidney trouble, dark spots before my eyes, dizzy spells and twinges of rheumatism are getting worse."

Answer: Take three grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur). They are packed in sealed tubes with directions and are convenient, effective and highly curative for such ailments as arise from chronic constipation. If you are dyspeptic, also take tablets tripepsine.

"Mrs. A. D."—"Incontinence of urine can be curbed by using the following: Tincture cubeba, 1 dram; tincture rhus aromatic, 2 drams, and comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz. Give from 10 to 15 drops in water one hour before meals.

"Oma W." writes: "I have suffered with catarrh of the head for many years. This has become so bad that it has affected my blood, also my stomach and bowels to a very great extent. I shall appreciate an immediate answer as I suffer greatly."

Answer: I would advise you to purchase a 2 oz. package of Vilane powder; take one-half teaspoonful of the powder and add to this a pint of warm water, snuff the water from the palm of the hand through the nostrils several times a day. Make a catarrh balm by mixing one teaspoonful of powder with one ounce of vaseline, or lard will do, and apply as far up the nostrils as possible. For the stomach, bowels and blood I would recommend the following tonic: Syrup sarsaparilla comp., 4 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz., and 1 oz. of fluid ext. buchu. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take one teaspoonful after each meal and at bed time.

"Gloria" writes: "I would like you to prescribe a good hair and scalp treatment. I am bothered with itching scalp and dandruff. My hair is faded and falling and none of the remedies I have tried have done any permanent good."

Answer: Go to your druggist and obtain a 4 oz. jar of plain yellow Minyol. Apply as per directions. This treatment differs from all and I have actually seen the astonishing transformations which result from its use. The dandruff and itching are cured with two or three applications, while it makes the hair glossy, wavy and full of intense natural color.

"Myrtle" writes: "Owing to my extreme thinness I am frequently embarrassed by slighting remarks of young people. Can you prescribe a safe remedy to increase my weight?"

Answer: I have so many gratifying reports from the users of three grain Hypo-Nuclane tablets, that I have become to regard these valuable little tablets as a specific and prescribe them to all who are anemic, thin, wasting, nervous and debilitated. I recommend that you begin their use at once and continue regularly until your system is able to assimilate the fatty elements of your food; then you will grow plump and have plenty of red blood, with color in your complexion and bright sparkling eyes of health.

"Sick M. G." writes: "I have been affected for some months with rheumatism and have taken much medicine in vain. Please give prescription that will cure."

Answer: The most efficient prescription I have ever given for rheumatism is: Iodide of potassium, 2 drams; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; wine of colchicum, one-half ounce; comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz., and syrup sarsaparilla comp., 5 ozs. Mix and take a teaspoonful at meal time and at bed time.

"Parmette" writes: "You once recommended a home-made cough syrup. I tried it and found it the best cough and cold syrup that I ever heard of. It was so prompt in relieving the severest coughs and colds and a pint bottle made at home lasted so long that I have forgotten the ingredients. Kindly publish again."

Answer: The splendid laxative, home-made cough syrup is made by mixing a 2½ oz. bottle of concentrated essence mentho-laxene with a home-made sugar syrup. Directions on the bottle tells how to make and use. It is a fine, cheap remedy.

"Johnson" writes: "I am bothered greatly with indigestion. Things I like to eat nearly always cause a heavy ill-at-ease feeling in my stomach, and my breath is bad, while I am nervous, irritable and frequently can not sleep."

Answer: A very excellent treatment which is widely prescribed for its gradual curative action, as well as the instant relief it affords, is tablets triopeptine, packed in sealed cartons. Take a pink tablet after breakfast, white tablet after dinner and blue tablet after supper. Continue and the curative agencies will soon restore natural digestion.

"Mrs. M. C." writes: "I am recovering from a long illness, but am very weak, nervous, sleepless and have little appetite. Can you give me a good tonic restorative treatment?"

Answer: Have the following prescription filled and take a teaspoonful before meals: Syrup of hypophosphites comp., 5 ozs.; tincture cardomene comp., 1 oz. (not cardamon). Mix and shake well before using. This is a fine nerve tonic and system tonic for old and young.

ANARCHY'S RED FLAG UNFURLED BY REBEL FORCE

Insurrectos Under Salazar and Marciel Capture Panuco, Vera Cruz, and Defy All Laws.

MEXICO CITY, May 8.—Rebels under Viciento Salazar and Francisco Marciel to-day captured the town of Panuco, in the northern part of the State of Vera Cruz, and raised the red flag over the government building. This is the first outbreak of actual anarchy since the uprising in Lower California during the Madero revolution.

Insurgents also have captured Chicontepec, in the State of Jalapa.

After being at a standstill for 24 hours because of the celebration of Saints' Day, the wheels of government were once more in motion today. President Huerta remained at home all day yesterday and did not visit the national palace. He faithfully observed the religious requirements of the occasion.

The War Office denies that Cuernavaca has fallen before a night attack of the insurgents.

The Government claims that 200 Zapatista rebels were killed in the fighting around Santa Domingo, San Andreas and Santa Catarina yesterday and last night. The federal loss was put at four killed.

Pascual Orozco, Jr., who renounced the rebel cause, is chafing under its inactivity in this city, where he is being kept by the Government. He wants to take the field.

The post of Minister of the Interior has been offered to Felix Diaz, but he refused it.

Rebels Flock to Aid Of Zapatista Bands.

MEXICO CITY, May 8.—Rebels in the State of Guerrero are reinforcing the Zapatista bands in Morelos and a formidable army is being arrayed in the mountains south of Cuernavaca to meet the attack of the Federals.

It was reported that Emiliano Zapata, the insurrecto leader, had been killed, but this proved untrue.

Indians in Oaxaca have gone on the warpath.

Swindler Suspect, Arrested, Confesses

Appeal for Help to Masonic Official Here Ends in Capture of Florida Man.

Arrested on suspicion of having swindled business men in Jacksonville, a man who gave his name as J. H. Weaver and his home as Belview, Fla., Thursday confessed to the police that he is the man wanted and announced his willingness to return to Florida.

Weaver was arrested by Call Officers O. R. Jones and Anderson in a downtown hotel on information furnished by Dr. Horace Grant, secretary of the Masonic Relief Association. Weaver is said to have appealed to Dr. Grant for aid, under the name of "Wall," and Dr. Grant recognized him from a circular as the man wanted in Florida. Weaver had been here two or three days.

Government Ships Explosive to Pacific

War Department Denies Load of Trotol Has Any Connection With Jap Trouble.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Several thousand pounds of trintrotoluol, comonly called trotol, and used as an explosive for harbor mines, were shipped from the Dupont Powder Works in Delaware by rail to San Francisco under orders of the War Department.

The shipment, it was declared at the department, has no connection with the controversy with Japan over the alien land law in California.

Glenn Sentence $100 Fine or Jail

Eloper Confesses Guilt in Court

L. J. Glenn, eloper, fined for deserting children.

Without passing comment on the features of the case, City Judge Calhoun Thursday imposed sentence of $100 fine or an alternative of twelve months in jail on Luther J. Glenn, former Atlanta contractor, whose elopement with Mrs. C. W. Pidcock, of Moultrie, wife of the millionaire president of the Georgia and Northern Railroad, created a stir throughout the South.

Glenn came into court shortly before noon and at the motion of his attorneys entered a plea of guilty. A plea of not guilty, made by the prisoner last Monday, was withdrawn. L. F. McClelland, his lawyer, called the court's attention to the fact that Glenn had been held in jail in default of $1,000 bond required by Superior Court in alimony proceedings instituted by Mrs. Glenn. Judge Calhoun's small fine, it is understood, was imposed for that reason.

Mrs. Pidcock Not Present.

Neither Mrs. Pidcock, who has asserted repeatedly that she would be at Glenn's side when he was arraigned in court on the charge of abandoning his children, nor her father, S. W. Reid, who was instrumental in bringing the eloping pair back to Georgia, appeared Thursday.

Mrs. Glenn and her two children sat in Judge Calhoun's chambers and received every detail of the proceedings eagerly.

The wife declared she had no plans for the future, but asserted that she would push her alimony suit against Glenn to the end.

Still Under Bond.

The action of City Court means that unless Glenn can raise $1,100—$100 to pay the fine and $1,000 to make the bond required in the alimony suit—he must remain in the Fulton jail facing a twelve months' sentence.

It is expected that S. W. Reid, Mrs. Pidcock's father, will bend every effort to institute white slavery charges against Glenn under the Mann act.

Following his sentence, Glenn was taken back to the Tower. He refused to talk, but was cool and appeared to be satisfied with the sentence. His attorney intimated that his client would be unable to pay the fine and really faced a jail sentence. He declined to discuss whether or not would attempt to appeal the judgment.

25 CENT "DANDERINE" FOR FALLING HAIR AND DANDRUFF---GROWS HAIR

Don't Pay 50 cents for worthless hair tonics—Use old, reliable, harmless "Danderine"—Get results.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness, and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast.

A little Danderine to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair. Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application you will say it was the best investment you ever made. Your hair will immediately take on that life, luster and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

YOUTH DIES FROM MYSTERIOUS HURT

Went for Days Before Telling of Fractured Skull—Manner of Injury Not Known.

As a result of a mysterious fracture of the skull, which he is supposed to have suffered about ten days ago, Carl Bartlett, 14 years old, son of A. O. Bartlett, of Forest Park, is dead, and his parents and relatives are making efforts to determine how he was hurt.

Two theories have been advanced by the parents as to the cause of the wound. One is that the boy was struck on the head with a soda water bottle in a fight with a neighborhood boy. Another is that he fell from a tree when playing.

Young Bartlett, though he must have been suffering from the wound for several days, did not complain until Tuesday morning when he came down to breakfast. He said he had a terrible headache. Dr. J. R. Barton, the family physician, who was summoned, pronounced the injury a fractured skull, and ordered the boy to Wesley Memorial Hospital. There the youth was operated upon, and died Wednesday.

Surgeons found two wounds on the boy's head. Dr. Frank Boland, who performed the operation, declared the nature of the wounds sustain the theory that he fell out of a tree the more plausible one.

WOMEN, RAIDED, ACCUSE DETECTIVE

James Kirk, "Vice Squad" Member, Faces Charge of Making Improper Proposals.

Sensational testimony that James Kirk, a member of Police Chief Beavers' "vice squad," has threatened a number of women with arrest unless they complied with his demands, will develop in the trial Friday morning before Judge Broyles of Mrs. N. P. Powell, Mrs. Lena Bernard and Mrs. John Bryant, according to Attorneys Gober and Jackson, who represent them. The three women were arrested by the "vice squad" last week on charges of running a disorderly house at 95 Spring Street.

Mrs. Powell asserts that Kirk raided her home because she refused to consent to his improper proposals. Her attorneys declare they will show that Kirk has made advances to a number of women of that vicinity.

The women also assert that Kirk has made the house at 95 Spring Street his headquarters when not on duty, and that he has spent entire afternoons there, drinking wine and chatting with Mrs. Powell and her friends.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Powell, through her attorneys, secured from Judge Bell of the Superior Court an order temporarily restraining the police from carrying out their alleged threat to evict her. The hearing of the injunction is set for Saturday morning.

The injunction of William D. Haywood, the Industrial Workers of the World leader—"Let neither owners nor strikebreakers enter the mills unless over your dead bodies"—stirred the strikers to a high pitch, and everywhere threats to carry out Haywood's advice were heard.

JACKETS WILL TAKE CHANCES IN BIG SERIES

THAT the Yellow Jackets have their work mapped out for them is demonstrated by the gruelling practice that is daily taking place at the Tech camp. Coach Heisman is giving his men the last word in baseball in an attempt that the solution to the defeat of the wearers of the Red and and Black might possibly be reached before Friday's game. However, it is a safe bet that unless the unexpected happens, the series will be an even break. Tech supporters are grabbing the short end of the bets offered by the Georgia supporters, and are making small bets against odds that they will not cop all the games as some of the Athens boys are predicting.

That Georgia is confident of taking the series by a large majority is shown by some of the wild bets that are coming from some of her most ardent supporters. Among these wagers are ones that Georgia will take the series with a total of 40 runs for the four games, and that Tech will not make 16 hits during the series. This is indicative of the confidence of the Georgia team, and they well have reason for being so.

Having won practically every game played this year, all with good margins and touted as "McWhorter's Southern Champs," they are determined to take the last games of the season, and these too from their hated rival, Tech.

Georgia Weak at Third.

Georgia has a bad hole to fill on third base, caused by the ruling off of Covington, who is a veteran of two seasons. This means the picking of a scrub to take his place, who will in no way be as steady as Covington, on account of inexperience and playing on foreign ground in a great contest. Who will be placed on this sack has yet to be determined but it is likely to be Holden, the captain of the scrubs.

This will be a great point in the favor of the Techites, for they will undoubtedly lay their plays for him and do their best to get him in the air. Unless the rest of the team is exceedingly well balanced, one weak spot like this on third is apt to prove their undoing, and Tech will have a chance to forge ahead.

Georgia's main factor in winning so many games is due to their knowledge and use of the hit and run game. They use it continually and are able to do so on account of their developed batters. However, the Jackets are endeavoring to fathom this and will no doubt have it down in time.

In Pound, Wooten and Pitts, Tech has a trio of fielders that are fast, use good judgment and cover plenty of ground, so if the Georgia lads should chance to clout the ball, there will be able receivers waiting for it to drop.

Tech's real weakness seems to be with the willow. They have no real swatters, but the entire team is composed of good steady hitters and show up well in the pinches. Pitts, who occupies right garden when not on the pitching mound, leads the batters with an average of .413, and Captain Montague follows with an average of .328.

Will Find Pitts Hard.

With Pitts in the box the Red and Black aggregation will be given a hard run for their money. Pitts is a southpaw who has plenty of speed and control, and this coupled with the fact that Georgia has run up against very few side-wheelers during the season and naturally cannot bat one to advantage should pull strongly in the Jackets' favor.

Gambill and Fielder will be used as pinch men for the pitchers and may possibly get in for a full game. They have not been doing much so far this season, but luck might break with them if given a chance.

The Techites will take all manner of chances at whatever comes up, for if they cannot get away with the games at steady grinding there is a possible chance of combining it with luck and winning out.

Following shows how the Tech batters are clouting up to date:

Name—	A.B.	Hits.	P.C.
Moore, 3b	46	10	.217
Donaldson, ss	43	8	.186
F. Montague, 2b	56	18	.321
Pound, lf	48	8	.166
Amason, 1b	32	7	.218
Attridge, c	25	2	.080
Pitts, p	30	13	.433
Eubanks, p	30	5	.166
Wooten, cf	23	5	.215
T. Montague, rf	30	6	.200

The batting average of the Yellow Jackets as a team is .208.

Three Prep Schools Fail to Enter Meet

Peacock, Boys' High and Donald Fraser Not To Be Represented Friday.

IT is very evident that track and field sports are a dead issue in some of the prep schools in this section of the country. On Friday the annual prep athletic meet will be held on the Marist field. In most parts of the country such an event would attract widespread interest among all schools concerned and would be looked forward to for months, and yet right here in Fulton County there are only three of the six prep schools that have entered men in the meet Friday.

The three schools which have not entered the meet are Peacock Boys' High and Donald Fraser. Peacock could easily have a dozen men entered. Boys' High had intended to enter, but a disagreement between the students and the faculty caused them to withdraw. Donald Fraser could have entered half a dozen athletes, although the school is a small one.

After losing fifteen of the seventeen games played in the East, the Yankees invaded Detroit yesterday and grabbed off an easy victory.

Ray Keating, the recruit box man of the Yankees, who pitched yesterday, not only secured a shut out but accomplished the seemingly impossible—he fanned Ty Cobb twice. The Yanks now have three victories to their credit and Keating has won them all.

• • •

It required ten innings yesterday for the Phillies to land a 4-to-3 victory over the Cardinals.

• • •

Old man Lajoie, of the Naps, continues to "go back." He made an error the other day and can not hit any better than .403.

The Senators won from the White Sox yesterday by superior hitting.

"Good Night" Baker, the Athletic's third sacker, resumed his old tricks yesterday—he smashed out a home run.

C. Webb Murphy, who owns the Cubs, is a much worried man these days. When he was inspecting the new Ebbetts Field, Brooklyn, the owner of the Dodgers jokingly asserted that the Dodgers were going to be the Cubs' jinx this year. "If your team wins even one series from my team this year," said Murphy to Ebbetts, "I'll jump off the highest spot in your grand stand."

The highest spot is very, very far from terra firma and the Dodgers are playing a brand of ball that makes it look as if they will surely grab one if not more series from the Cubs.

Falkenburg, of the Naps, won his fifth straight game yesterday when he pitched his team to a 4-to-1 victory over the Red Sox.

Marty O'Toole, the $22,000 beauty of the Pirates, was beaten yesterday in a pitchers' duel with Tyler, of the Braves; the game going ten innings.

The Athletics tightened their grip on first place in the American League yesterday by defeating the Browns in a close game.

Brooklyn lost to the Cubs yesterday 4 to 3, and there isn't a fan in Brooklyn who isn't declaring that the Dodgers were robbed of victory by a few weird decisions toward the close of the game.

• • •

Matty, the "old master," took up the twirling duties for the Giants yesterday after Ames had wabbled in the second inning and, of course, the Reds lost.

• • •

Brief, a recruit, assumed first base roles for the Browns yesterday and the way he handled the job gives rise to the belief that his stay in the major leagues isn't going to be very brief. He handled difficult throws like a veteran and figured in two lightning double plays.

"Casey" Stengel, the demon clouter of the Dodgers, is coining money these days. Tuesday he slammed the ball against the big Bull in the right field fence, thereby acquiring a $50 prize, and he repeated the stunt yesterday.

• • •

Stengel's first name really isn't Casey. He came from Kansas City (KC) and immediately the fans christened him "Casey."

• • •

Another thing that adds to the gleefulness of Ebbets is the fact that transient fans who used to patronize only the Polo Grounds have enthused over the game and wonderful showing made by the Dodgers and are making the turnstiles at Ebbets Field whiz as never before.

Jack Britton is getting it from every side. His former manager, Jack Costello, has filed a suit against him. It only amounts to a little over $2,000. Hope Costello gets it.

• • •

Unless there is some hitch in the proceedings, Chicagoans are to be treated to some ring contest on May 16 at Hammond, Ind. Jimmy Clabby, the Milwaukee middleweight, agreed to take on Tim O'Neill yesterday, and all that is needed now is the signing of articles.

O'Neill has fought some of the toughest boys in Racine, Kenosha and Milwaukee, and is rated as a pretty good battler.

Willie Ritchie wants $15,000 to box Freddie Welsh in New York. Some price for a ten-round bout. Billy Nolan must have had something to say about the amount.

• • •

Articles will probably be signed in a few days calling for a twenty-round battle at Vernon in June between Ad Wolgast and Johnny Dundee.

• • •

St. Louis boxing followers are going wild over the Leach Cross-Harry Trendall scrap Thursday night. Trendall is a great card in the Missouri city, having defeated every boy he has met in the last two years.

Mickey Sheridan and Danny Goodman were matched yesterday to meet in a ten-round tilt at Terre Haute, Ind., Friday night.

• • •

Jimmy Clabby is anxious to meet Eddie McGoorty in a return bout. Jimmy thinks he can beat the Oshkosh boy the next time, and has asked the Denver promoters for a date. Their former battle was a draw.

PROSECUTOR TRYING TO PROVED JOHNSON FAKED

CHICAGO, May 8.—Government agents aiding in the prosecution of Jack Johnson, negro pugilist, charged with being a white slaver, to-day were preparing evidence to show that at least two of Johnson's prize fights were "faked." One of the alleged fake bouts was with Al Kaufmann, at Colma, Cal., on September 9, 1909.

Assistant District Attorney Parkin said he has a copy of a contract for a ten-round fight to a draw, and the posting of $2,000 by each fighter as a forfeit.

BOYS HIGH NOW SURE OF PREP LEAGUE TITLE

BOYS' HIGH practically clinched the local prep title when the team beat Marist Wednesday by a score of 13 to 4. It was the same old story with Marist—they started out like a whirlwind, but as soon as one man made an error the whole team went up in the air and the game was lost.

Callahan, Marist pitcher, was yanked out of the box in the sixth, after he had fanned 11 batters. Until the sixth inning not a Boys' High man saw first, but Cally evidently lost heart in the sixth when his teammates supported him so poorly and he was hit freely in that inning.

The High School lads hit everything in the sixth inning and ran wild on the bases. Sam Armistead got two hits in this spasms. Pace took Callahan's place on the mound for Marist, but he could not check the fierce slugging, and before the inning was over Boys' High had chalked up eight runs.

Charlie Allen's home run in the eighth was the feature. Spurlock and Armistead, of B. H. S., each got two-baggers.

Great credit is due Fox, the Boys' High twirler, for the victory of his team. Fox was touched up for two hits in the first inning and two more in the second, and two runs were made. It looked as if Marist would have an easy time of it, but Fox just settled down and pitched swell ball, and held the Marist team safe at all times thereafter. Fox fanned 15 and gave 8 hits.

The two teams will play off a tie game next week. Boys' High now has a safe lead in the pennant race, with five straight victories and not a defeat.

WHITE SOX AFTER JASPER.

DUBUQUE, IA., May 8.—President Comiskey, of the Chicago White Sox, to-day wired Manager Rowland, of Dubuque, asking him to name his price for pitcher Jasper, who struck out seventeen men the other day. President Murphy, of the Cubs, put in a bid for Jasper yesterday.

Wan, Weary, and Worn Out

If You Feel Fagged to a Finish and Utterly Used Up Here is Quick Relief.

S. S. S. Makes Your Blood Corpuscles Unite for Mutual Protection.

Half the people you meet complain of weary muscles, stagnant brain, jangled nerves, and a wonderful desire to lay down and just quit. Most of these people have been using nervines that spasmodically flare up the nerves only to die down again, as die they must. Avoid nerve stimulants. Bear in mind that this worn-out feeling is due to poor blood, to bacteria in the water you drink; to the multiplying of destructive germs in the blood faster than they can be overcome by the white corpuscles; and to what is known as auto-toxemia, that condition where the venous or impure blood accumulates faster than it can be replaced by the red arterial blood.

The medicinal value of the components of S. S. S. is relatively just as vital and essential to well-balanced health as those of the grains, meats, fats and sugars of our food.

If you feel played-out, go to any drug store and ask for a bottle of S. S. S., Swift's Sure Specific. Here is a remedy that gets at work in a twinkling; it just naturally rushes right into your blood, scatters germs right and left, up and down and sideways.

You feel better at once, not from a stimulant, not from the action of drugs, but from the rational effect of a natural medicine just as active and just as timely as to a man who has been lost in the mountains, is about starved and comes across a settler just cooking a savory meal of good, honest beef. Do not neglect to get a bottle of S. S. S. to-day. It will make you feel better in just a few minutes. It is prepared only in the laboratory of The Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. GEORGIA'S MEN, FEARING PITTS, FACE W. BROWN

ATHENS, GA., May 8.—Georgia had its liveliest and most strenuous practice since the season opened yesterday afternoon, and with another one this afternoon everything will be in readiness for the great series to begin Friday. Old grads and fans of the Red and Black are already beginning to gather in the Classic City and by Friday morning every chapter house and hotel here will be crowded with visitors who come to Athens annually to see Georgia and Tech fight for supremacy.

More Georgia men than ever before will be on hand this time and they expect to see their alma mater triumph. To every section of the country has gone the news of Georgia's marvelous victories all season, and if there is one thing that a Georgian or Techite longs for it is to see their opponents swept from the field of battle and no game is ever too one-sided to be uninteresting.

Musters in a Southpaw.

Coach Cunningham mustered in a recruit left-hander for batting practice yesterday, in anticipation of Pitts. Web Brown, one of the greatest pitchers Georgia ever had, answered to the call of the Red and Black coach. But few southpaws have faced Georgia this season, and whether the bunch can keep up its terrific hitting against Pitts is problematical, although he was rather easy last year.

Brown steamed 'em over like a regular yesterday and had the batters guessing, and if the Yellow Jacket port-sider can buffalo his Red and Black opponents as did the former Georgia captain, he will earn many a shekel for his fellow collegians.

Henderson was back at his old stand on first for a part of the workout and still retains his sure batting eye. He broke a couple of bats during the afternoon and was one of the few who could connect safely. "Tiny's" long suit is putting left-hand pitchers to sleep and unless his mumps give him the "big head" again he will be scampering around the initial sack when Pitts occupies the mound.

Bowden has been leading the team in batting since he broke into the game a couple of weeks ago, and it is worrying Cunningham not a little bit as to where to place him when Henderson goes to first. It's a cinch, though, that his name will be in the line-up somewhere, and it is more than probable that Henderson will go to third, since there seems to be no hope for Covington to be reinstated.

No Umpire Selected Yet.

No umpire has been selected for the series yet, though both managers are keeping the wires warm trying to agree. Harris Cope, of Sewanee, was selected, but has declined to serve, and Turner, who has given such perfect satisfaction in past series, is out West. It is preferred that one man to handle the indicator be agreed on and that the two-player system be not pressed into service, as it has never worked well with Tech and Georgia.

BUCK BECKER MAY SIGN WITH LYNCHBURG CLUB

LYNCHBURG, VA., May 8.—Buck Becker, the Washington lad, who bought his release from Atlanta several days ago, is now considering a proposition from Manager MacKinnon, of the Lynchburg Club in the United States League. It is stated that the salary offered him is larger than that which was paid him in Atlanta. It is believed here that Becker will decide to accept the proposition before the season opens May 10.

The locals will be captained by Harry Steinfeldt, formerly of the Chicago Cubs, who has been rounding into shape in Cincinnati for the last several weks. He is expected here to-day.

Lynchburg is the only Virginia city in the outlaw League.

HARRY MATTHEWS EXPECTED IN NEWPORT NEWS TO-DAY

NEWPORT NEWS, VA., May 8.—Harry Matthews, formerly catcher of the New Orleans Club, who managed the Rome, Ga. team of the South Atlantic League last season, has been signed to manage the Newport News Club in the Virginia League and is expected to report here to-day for duty.

Matthews will succeed Matthew Broderick under whose management this team has earned the title of Jonah, having lost a total of fifteen games out of fifteen played since the season opened three weeks ago.

ELBERFELD TO MAKE MORE CHANGES WITH LOOKOUTS

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., May 8.—Elberfeld is to make two more changes with the Lookouts before he settles on his regular line-up for the race. One change will take place in left and the other in the pitching department.

Just at present the left garden is being covered by Elberfeld, Harbison, or Gillespie, just as the notion strikes the first named. The Lookout pilot wants a sterling class A man in left so he can return to short permanently, leave Gillespie regularly at third, and Harbison a regular utility man. Lines are out in several directions.

MORGAN AND M'KETRICK TO ANSWER "FAKE" CHARGES

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.—Dan Morgan and Dan McKetrick, managers of pugilists, are here to-day making an effort to have the ban on Jack Britton and Pal Moore, their proteges, lifted. Both fighters are forbidden to reappear in the ring here. They were charged with putting up a fake fight.

AUBURN READY FOR STRUGGLE WITH CLEMSON

By Mike Donahue.

AUBURN, May 8.—With the playing of the Clemson series this week Auburn will wind up its baseball schedule for the year. A victory over Clemson would wind up a very satisfactory season. So far twelve S. I. A. A. games have been played and of these nine have been won and three lost.

What makes Auburn's record appear still better is the fact that nine of these games were played off the campus and seven won. These games included series against such strong teams as Mercer, Florida and Georgia. The Georgians have had a decided advantage over the other S. I. A. A. teams on the small number of S. I. A. A. games that they have played away from home. They have played only three, splitting even with Clemson and beating Tennessee.

With Davis again rounding into shape the outlook for a victory over Clemson is rather favorable. Davis is a hard pitcher to beat and in spite of his crippled condition has lost but one game and has been so far the only pitcher to defeat the Georgia team in Athens.

The heavy hitters on the team are Harris, Williams and Loche, all of whom are batting in the neighborhood of .350. The timeliest batters are Moulton and Davenport. In fact the most remarkable feature of the team's work has been its ability to send runners around once they got on the bases. And if no one got on then someone would come up and line out a home-run. It is the best scoring team that Auburn has had in some time.

The pitching department has been somewhat uncertain. Davis was not in shape to go a double-header against Georgia at that time of the year and in such cold weather. Davis is an outfielder that is being developed into a pitcher and is very short on experience. Loche is in somewhat the same condition and has been bothered by lack of control. It will be Davis against Ezell Thursday.

Two other series have been played and won and in one of them, Marion Institute, Auburn played a team that would compare favorably with any of the S. I. A. A. teams.

RED SOX AND NAPS CLASH IN FREE-FOR-ALL FIGHT

CLEVELAND, OHIO, May 8.—Ill-feeling that cropped out between the Red Sox and Naps during the play here ended in a free-for-all fight under the grandstand after yesterday's contest was over. While no one was seriously hurt, there was quite a little blood spilled, and Tris Speaker was spiked three times during a rough-and-tumble mix-up.

An attempt was made to hush the matter and none of the players would talk about it to-day, but the facts leaked out.

The trouble began when Carrigan blocked Graney off the plate and knocked him almost unconscious early in the game. This angered the Naps, who no longer are the meek and lowly players of yore, and they played like fiends after that.

HOUCK WALLOPS BROWN IN TEN-ROUND FIGHT

NEW YORK, May 8.—Leo Houck, of Lancaster, Pa., gave George Knockout Brown, of Chicago, a walloping for ten rounds at the St. Nicholas Athletic Club last night. Houck weighed 162 pounds and Brown two pounds legs. Brown's rough tactics did not meet with the approval of the crowd. Houck was the cleaner puncher.

YANKEES RELEASE CATCHER.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The New York American League club announced to-day that Catcher Robert Williams has been released to the Rochester club of the International League.

TICKER DAY

The day is dark
At the baseball park
And the office is cold and glum.
We stand and gape
At the roll of tape
As we wait for the news to come.

We read the dope
And we wait and hope
As the tidings come rolling in,
And our pulses burn
As we stand and yearn
That the Crackers will up and win.

The report that Bat Nelson will terminate his ring career on Labor Day is news to those who thought he had terminated same when he entered into a conflict with one A. Wolgast.

Messrs Nelson and Waddell have decided to quit their respective professions, but Tom Jones never will quit his until some one wishes a Maxim silencer on him.

It is proposed to investigate the charge that convict labor was used during the Cub sojourn in Tampa. Having seen said convicts in action, we are willing to swear that they never were guilty of labor.

We note by the public prints that Johnny Kling is off to join the Reds. A man must be off, to join the Reds.

We have it from Ban Johnson that the American League will not tolerate disorderly conduct. This is a laudable ambition, but will it hold good on festive occasions when American League magnates hold meetings?

P. S. S.—We have picked the Phillies to win, not by exercising our marvelous brain, but by depositing two (2) dollars and picking a name out of a hat. If said Phillies do not win it is not our fault.

Frank Chance arises to vouchsafe that Walter Johnson is the fastest pitcher in baseball. Mr. Chance evidently has never seen R. Waddell at 3:45 a. m.

Jim Corbett thinks well of both Gunboat Smith and Jess Willard. Hence the one best bet is that both will lose.

Possibly Ty Cobb's batting slump is due to the fact that he has not ceased laughing at the National Commission.

THEM WERE THE GOOD OLD DAYS

I remember, I remember,
The place where once I sat.
I paid two bits and I could see
What I was looking at.
A quarter then could get a seat
Where you could see them play.
Two bits to-day will buy a seat
..About a mile away.

THIS IS NOT TRUE.

A fan enjoyed a baseball game
Until a peddler's husky frame
Hove into view and quered the same.

The rooter saids "Pray step aside!"
"Oh, very well," the youth replied.
The rooter laid him down and died.

Aside from a chess tournament, it would be hard to find a more strenuous exhibition of athletics than a conflict between Messrs. McGoorty and Clabby.

McGorty and Clabby fought with such abandoned ferocity that they threatened at times to muss each other's hair.

Still, one is forced to admit that as a manager, Joe Tinker is a great little shortstop.

There are various redeeming features about a wrestling match, one of which is that there is no law compelling a citizen to watch one.

When the National Commission speaks of ethics, one takes it for granted that none of its members has a split lip.

A glance at the standing of the teams leads a person to wonder what has become of the horseshoe that Jake Stahl carried last season.

Baseball may be a losing proposition, but it would be hard to find a more desolate spot than a home for indigent baseball magnates.

IN CINCINNATI

"'Tis false," he said.. "It cannot be.
Methinks that thou art kidding me,
Or else thou hast a bun.
But it would make me blithe and gay
And I would sing the livelong day
Could I believe you when you say
Joe Tinker's team has won."

Twenty-seven daredevil death defying demons will start in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis. But, not being a mortician, we decline to become enthusiastic.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 8.—The National League race at present is in a turbulent state. The Giants and Pirates, who were rated to be the two contenders before the season opened, are not doing very much contending just now.

Two teams to which little attention was paid at the beginning of the race are making the pace, and will cause a lot of trouble before the pennant is won. These two are Chicago and Philadelphia, but I look to see them both crack. The Cubs lack the pitching staff, and the Phillies have the pitching staff, but not the latent strength. Philadelphia, to my mind, has a better chance of holding up than Chicago.

The Quakers look more formidable this year than they have for several seasons. Three star pitchers will keep them stringing along in the race for most of the distance. The infield is good, but not a brilliant one. The outfield has one great hitter, Sherwood Magee, and the other two men are just fair. But Alexander, Seaton and Chalmers are fine pitchers.

There should be some changes in the present standing beginning this week, and the teams will straighten out into something like the order that will mark the finish within a month. When the Western clubs battle with the Easterners that is always a test. Now that the disastrous series with Philadelphia is off the Giants' schedule, I hope the Quakers will maintain the form displayed by them against us until they meet the Cubs and Pirates. The East and West are better balanced for strength this season than has been the case for years. If anything, the East has a slight edge in the National. It has a distinct one in the American League. A few years ago it was all the other way.

THE two best National League teams in the West are the Pittsburg and Chicago clubs, as usual, even though the Pirates have been performing badly so far. St. Louis has jumped away to a good start, but it is my notion the team is going to encounter a hope-crusher when it digs into the East. Cincinnati is still a very uncertain ball club, with "Joe" Tinker doing his best to put an edge on his team. Whether he will accomplish this or not is beyond me. The Reds have improved slightly the past week, winning a couple more games and being crowded by Boston for last place. Pittsburg has the natural robustness, and is bound to come through later in the season. Whether the club will brace on this impending Eastern trip or not is doubtful. The team did much better on the road last season for the most part than at home. Clarke has an excellent pitching staff, which has so far failed to get going.

All the Eastern teams in the National League are stronger this year than last, judging from the showing to date. Philadelphia, as I have said, is an improved ball club. None knows it better than the Giants. Brooklyn has mounted to the first division, and will give the Westerners a good battle. Boston is about the same, perhaps a trifle better. The Giants are not going at a normal stride yet, the club being particularly weak with the stick. The pitching staff is also faltering, Tesreau not finding the weather warm enough and "Rube" Marquard just recovering from an attack of tonsilitis.

THE Western clubs will be crowded down by their visits to the East, according to my notions. I expect to see the Cubs tumbled out of their high place, because they are going to run into better pitching than they have faced so far in the West, and the Chicago twirlers have not the finish to hold opposing teams to small scores that will be necessary to beat the good twirling they will meet. In Philadelphia, particularly, this will be true. Right now Dooin is getting the best pitching in the league. The Giants' pitching staff should also be in better form when the Westerners arrive. Marquard is rounding, too, and his return to his regular place in the pitching schedule is going to help things.

Pittsburg should profit by the trip. All that the club needs is work and polishing. Cincinnati and St. Louis will be victims of the East. I cannot see the possibility in the Cardinals. They are early-season spurters, but, as the race wears along, they will drop back like the Reds did last year.

THE Giants must profit by the Western invasion. The jump we were to acquire in the first weeks of the race has not developed, but this is explained by the fact that the club has met better baseball in the East than was being played in this section last season. Every Eastern club is stronger, I believe, including even Boston. The New York team is just as healthy this year as it was last, if not slightly improved, but the great thing the Giants will be forced to overcome is too much self-assurance. This quality is always dangerous in a ball club, and the fact the team has won the pennant for the past two years makes the men feel overly confident. The addition of the new blood in the club should help to eliminate this. Burns and Shafer were substitutes last year. They have improved enough to push a couple of regulars out of their jobs this summer. They are both great ball players, and very fast and ambitious. Demaree has been added to the pitching staff. It is therefore evident the club is stronger than it was last season, because none of the veterans have gone back. But still I think the whole fight will be harder, because several other teams have been bolstered up, notably Philadelphia and Chicago. If Evers had a couple of airtight pitchers, he would have a great chance for the championship.

The invasion of the Westerners will answer some questions that are still hanging in the air. One of these, and the most important, is:

"Can the Cubs hold up?"

I do not believe that they can, but if Evers rolls through his Eastern campaign and is in first place, they are going to be dangerous boys.

PREP LEAGUE NOTES

Peacock students are holding a tennis tournament at East Lake this week. One match is still to be played. In the singles on Tuesday Roff Simms defeated Louis Sams in a very close match by the score of 6-4, 2-6, 9-7. His opponent in the finals will be the winner of a match between Beall and Black.

* * *

In the doubles Sims and Black won a place in the finals by defeating Hunnicutt and Knox, 6-1, 6-2. The pair who will meet these two are Hopkins and Orme. The tournament will be finished on Thursday.

* * *

It looks as if G. M. A. has given up all hope of doing anything in the Prep League this year. On Tuesday they forfeited a game to Tech High, rather than go to the trouble of playing it.

* * *

Following is the standing of the teams in the local Prep League:

Boys High	4	0	1.000
Marist	3	1	.750
Tech High	4	2	.667
Peacock	1	4	.200
G. M. A.	1	5	.167

* * *

Members of the Boys High track team officially announced Wednesday that they would not enter the Prep meet Friday. This decision robs the meet of much interest as Boys High was regarded as a probable winner.

* * *

Here is the list of the events which will be run in the meet at Marist Friday:

100-yard dash; 200-yard low hurdles; 440-yard dash; 880-yard run; mile run; running broad jump; running high jump; pole vault; shot put (12 pound); hammer throw (12-pound).

* * *

Riverside is leading the other schools entered in the S. I. A. A. by a large majority. Following is the present standing of these teams:

Riverside	7	0	1000
Stone Mountain	2	1	.667
G. M. C.	1	4	.200
Gordon	1	6	.143

* * *

Charlie Allen, of Marist, looks best in the hundred-yard dash Friday in the track meet at Marist. Jim Parks, of Tech High, should give him a good argument.

* * *

Bill Bedell, of Tech High, is a sure point winner and it will not surprise anyone if Bill cops the prize for highest number of points made by one man. He looks good for a first in the hurdles and in the quarter.

* * *

Marist has developed a new sprinter. His name is Lewis and in practice he has been showing his heels to all the other sprinters. Lewis may prove a dark horse in the hundred-yard dash Friday.

Papers of To-Day Spend Fortunes to Get Baseball News

All authorities to the contrary, notwithstanding, baseball is a burden to the newspapers according to the magazine Outlook.

To-day every press association of importance is carrying over its leased wires full box scores of every game in the National and American leagues. And that's not the end. In addition to the major league box scores there are the minor league and college games to be reported and handled. Thus, on a wire running from New York City to Albany, for instance, there are sent every playing night during the season eight major league box scores, four boxes of the New York State League and the results of the International League and the American Association. Southern Circuits must carry Southern League box scores and those of the middle West has the American Association and the major league box scores; and so on.

And baseball is "must" news, too. It must go promptly and go ahead of everything except markets. Of course, in case of a national disaster it would be superseded, but it is sidetracked only for news happenings of world-wide interest.

ZBYSZKO WINS MAT GO; THROWS TWO IN ONE HOUR

MONTREAL, May 8.—Stanilaus Zbyszko, champion wrestler of Poland, fulfilled conditions imposed upon him last night by throwing two opponents within an hour. The Pole threw Vincent in 24 minutes with a toe hold and Caseau in 26 minutes with a body hold.

RITCHIE THINKS LEACH CROSS IS CLOSEST RIVAL

SPOKANE, WASH., May 8.—"Before we leave Spokane this week I am confident I shall be able to announce definitely Willie Ritchie's July Fourth engagement," said Billy Nolan, manager of the lightweight champion, shortly after his arrival in Spokane.

"Promoters in New York and California have been keeping the wires pretty hot since we left Denver, and we are really very near to an agreement. There is only one man in New York that I consider a good match for Ritchie. That is Leach Cross. Britton is not to be considered, for he has been beaten by other fighters and particularly by Ritchie himself when the latter first broke into the professional game.

"Cross is the biggest New York card and really the only one back there that deserves a chance. McFarland simply won't make weight, and it is unnecessary to go into the many reasons why we will simply take the stand on the weight question that all other champions ahead of us have taken.

"California fans want to see Ritchie in action against Rivers, and I am of the opinion this is our best proposition, but that also hangs fire. Rivers is undoubtedly our greatest drawing card in California."

By the Sweat of His Brow

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"WILL you be good enough," asks M. E., "to tell me if it is proper for a girl to kiss a young man who tells her he loves her but can not marry her for some time to come owing to the fact that he is not in a position to support her at the present time, and may never be able to do so?"

If kisses be classed as luxuries or necessities depends solely on the years of the one making the classification. Youth regards them as necessities, and Age knows they are but idle luxuries, meaningless though not unpleasant, and an altogether unsanitary method of expressing an affection that sometimes lasts little longer than the kiss itself.

But, be they luxuries or necessities, they should be classed among the many things which a man should be compelled to earn by the sweat of his brow. Unless he can earn a living, and by the sweat of his brow provide bread, he is not entitled to kisses. Unless he can go forth and with muscle and brain produce the price of a nest for his bride, he hasn't earned the right to be kissed by anybody in the world but his mother.

Is an Insult.

The kiss that is given to a girl with the declaration, "I love you, but I can not afford to marry you; I am not in position to support you now, and may never be able to do so," is an insult.

It is as if he said to her: "It gratifies me to kiss you, and for that reason I seek the privilege. I can do nothing for you and my monopoly of your affection will serve no other purpose than to place you in an embarrassing position, and to keep other lovers away whose intentions are more honorable. But it pleases me to kiss you, and when I grow tired of kissing you I can take my avowals of love to some other girl. They carry no promise with them, no obligation, no duty, and so long as there are girls in the world who will kiss me, I can enjoy myself without paying the price."

He Is a Loafer.

I take it that this young man is a loafer, and who is there who thinks that the man who loafs when there is so much work to do, is entitled to any girl's kisses? A self-respecting man will seek work, and a self-respecting girl will refuse to bestow any mark of affection on a man who is a professional hobo in the Kingdom of Love.

To care for such a man is a weakness that carries tragedy in its wake. It is the same kind of weakness that marks the woman who supports her husband, finding recompense for her toil in the fact that he never abuses her or speaks cross to her, while other women's husbands who work hard and earn a good living are sometimes fretted and angry.

The girl who permits such a man to kiss her shows a heart that is soft and a brain that is weak. She has two choices of degradation: Either she kisses the man to no other purpose than a waste of time and an unsavory memory, or she marries him and takes upon her shoulders the burden of his support.

There is no other alternative.

A Prince Who Plays Bagpipes

THE announcement made recently that the Prince of Wales, in the interval of his studies at Oxford, is learning to play the bagpipes under the tuition of Pipe Major W. Rose, of the Second Scots Guards, surprised many people, and particularly those who have an inherent dislike to the much-abused instrument. But his royal highness, in taking up the bagpipe as a musical accomplishment, is merely carrying on a tradition of the royal house, many of the members of which have always had a liking for the merry chant of the pipes. Queen Victoria had her piper at Balmoral, and so had King Edward, and to-day there is one attached to the royal establishment, for King George is fond of bagpipe music as his father and his royal grandmother were.

Early Morning Skirt.

When the court is in residence in the Highlands it is customary for the royal piper, dressed in full Highland costume, to march backward and forward in front of the royal apartments every morning and awaken the household with the "skirl" of his pipes. On official occasions, too, when the Balmoral Highlanders are welcoming the king and queen on their arrival at their Scottish residence, or when the retainers on the royal estate are taking part in any function, the king's piper invariably heads the procession of kilted men.

At the Braemar Highland gathering, the great social event of the season on Deeside, which is patronized by royalty, this official always "plays" the king's clansmen around the arena. On a memorable occasion at New Mar Lodge, the seat of the late Duke of Fife, King Edward, along with the princess royal, her two daughters and his grace, marched at the head of a body of Highlanders to the accompaniment of the music of the bagpipes, for which his majesty had as much liking as he had for the kilt when he was in the Highlands.

Highland Garb.

As soon as he reached Balmoral on his periodical visits King Edward—just as King George does to-day—donned the kilt, and, as was often remarked, no Highlander could carry it better than did his majesty. Queen Victoria, too, had as great an admiration for the tartan as she had for the bagpipes. In her majesty's time the walls of Balmoral Castle were draped with the Stuart colors. They have since been replaced by less somber decorations! But neither the wearing of the kilt nor the retaining of a piper is dictated by royal fashion, for every nobleman whose ancestral home is in the Highlands dons the traditional garb as much out of compliment to his ancestry as for any other reason. His guests, as a rule, follow his example as a matter of courtesy, but it does not always happen that they have the necessary habiliments with which to convert themselves for the time being into "Highlanders."

An Amusing Story.

An amusing but well-authenticated story is told of a German prince who was the guest of a Scottish nobleman, and who was so fascinated with the Highland dress that he determined to have a kilt made. He placed the order with a well-known firm of tailors for a complete outfit, richly adorned with silver buckles, and gold-mounted sporran or pouch. He paid something like a hundred guineas for it. The kilt was delivered in due course, and the prince was rigged out the next day in all the splendor of a Highland chieftain! But his highness was unfamiliar with the wearing of the sporran, and to the consternation of his host and hostess and their other guests he appeared with it attached to the back instead of the front of the kilt! Taking the prince quietly aside, Lord ——— suggested that his sporran should be reversed, and with profound apologies for the mistake he had made, his highness placed the pouch in its proper position.

Shoes of the Scot.

It is not only in Scotland that the bagpipes are regarded with favor. The Englishman certainly likes them best at a distance, but they are a very popular instrument among the natives of the Punjab, in India. The late Maharajah of Patiala had a fine band of pipers, wholly composed of Sikhs and other natives, who had been trained by a piper from one of the British Highland regiments. Many of the Indian frontier forces—notably the Gurkha regiments—have bagpipe bands of their own. An amusing instance of Scottish pride is told by a retired Indian officer in this connection. He was one day visiting the Court of the Rajah of Jeend, and noticed that the only person who broke through the rigid rule of etiquette, which forbids the wearing of shoes in the presence of the Rajah, was his bagpiper. Judicious inquiry elicited the fact that the sturdy Scot, when being engaged as the court musician, had stipulated that he was not to be obliged to go about the court in bare feet, as he regarded it as derogatory to his native country that he should do such a thing.

Do You Know That—

About a year ago four students of Boston University started out with a tuning fork to sing their way round the world. They have arrived in London by way of San Francisco, Honolulu, Japan, China, Manchuria and India, and are appearing under the title of the "University Quartette," or the "Four Singing Evangelists." Each can preach a sermon, lead a young men's Sunday school class or blend his voice with the others in the four-part setting of a hymn. Sometimes they make a complete change of program and give a secular entertainment, with humorous songs, Southern coon songs and piano solos.

A rudder with a doorway into the interior is a feature of the Cunarder Aquitania, recently finished. The rudder is so large that a doorway has been constructed in the lower part to admit workmen, so that they can remove the pin which connects the rudder to the ship. This pin is four feet long, and bigger than the heaviest projectile made for modern artillery. When delivered at the builders' yard the rudder was in three parts. After they had been connected and laid upon the ground the distance that had to be walked to pass around the rudder was over 100 feet.

The "homeless" population of London, according to the latest census of the County Council, numbers nearly 22,000. Some time ago a scheme was started by which the police gave lodging tickets to these night wanderers. This has somewhat depleted the Embankment and the streets, but the fact is noted that only about half of the people who are given tickets make use of them. They clearly prefer the wandering life.

False Gratitude

Little Molly May was only six, and on the morning of the story was sobbing her heart out because she had lost a penny. Many looked and sympathized as she trotted down the street; but it was an old gentleman who played the role of practical Samaritan.

"Well, my little maid," he asked, as he patted Molly May's heaving shoulder, "what's the trouble?"

"Boo-hoo! I've lost a penny!" came the muffled answer.

Without a word the old gentleman thrust his hand into his pocket, and handed Molly a penny to replace the one she had lost, saying:

"There—there, now everything will be all right."

But to his utter confusion, the little girl dropped her damp pinafore, gazing at him with an expression in which sorrow strove vallantly with anger, and said:

"Oh, you wicked old man, 'oo had it all the time."

Some Up-to-Date Gowns and How They Are Fashioned

On the left an afternoon dress composed of a small, loose coat of "orange" velvetine and of a skirt of pale gray silk cloth.

The coat is cut kimono style, fastened on the side by a hook. A broad shawl collar is faced with gray silk cloth and the cuffs which finish the sleeves are also lined with gray-silk cloth. There is a pocket on each side.

A small blouse of white net shows ruching at the neck and at the wrists.

The skirt is a long tunic, crossed in the front and caught up at the waist by large gatherings. The left side of the tunic is caught up by a few folds under the other. The underskirt is plain.

On the right a small afternoon coat of "Havana" taffeta. It is gathered over an emplecement making points over the shoulders and falling rather low over the arms. Broad openings make the armholes, which are edged by a small flat ruching which hides the setting of a second sleeve of Chantilly lace, tightened at the wrists by three ruchings of taffeta, and finished by a high flounce over the hand. The fullness of the coat is caught up at the bottom, giving a curved effect and finishing in back in a small tail and edged by a small flat ruching.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

HE SHOULD ATONE.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a young man a few months ago with whom I am very much in love. I have had an appointment with him, but he failed to come. He phoned the next day, but I was not at home. Shall I call him up and ask him to call?

JESTINE.

Having failed to keep his engagement, it is due you from him that he make another, and atone for his failure to keep it by being prompt and particularly attentive. You do not owe him the courtesy of asking him to call.

A Golden One.

"Why, Bill, ol' man, what's happened—bin left some money?"

"No, no," said Bill. "It's me goldin weddin'; I'm celebratin' me goldin weddin'!"

"But why ain't your wife celebratin' it, too?" inquired his friend. "I see 'er goin' to work as usual this mornin'. Why ain't she got a white rose and noo gloves?"

"Er!" muttered Bill, as he grunted reflectively. "She ain't got nuthin' to do wiv it! She's me fourth!"

What the Master Used.

The inspector was talking about adverbs and adjectives.

"Does your master use adverbs and adjectives?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," chorused the scholars.

"Well, what does he use when he does not use adverbs and adjectives?"

There was a silence. Finally a little fellow waved his hand.

"He generally uses a ruler, sir."

THREE QUESTIONS.

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"WHAT is Modesty?" I asked
Of a violet that basked
In a swamp one summer day
Where a sunbeam chanced to stray.
Then the purple violet,
Squandering fragrance, dewy wet,
Spoke from out the swampland low:
"Modesty? I do not know."

Then I asked a lily white,
Paler than an altar-light,
Sinless as a vestal's day;
"What is Purity, I pray?"
And the lily in the dell
Answered me, "I cannot tell."

"What is beauty?" I inquired
Of a rose with crimson fired.
"Beauty, Cleopatra's gift,
Casting Antony adrift,
Beauty? Tell me ere I go."
Said the rose, "I do not know."

Then I asked a girl aged three,
Who explained it all to me.

Hints For the Household

When rinsing flannels and woolens it is best to do so in warm soapy water, as pure warm water makes them hard; also when hanging curtains out to dry, hang them double, as it makes them even and prevents them getting torn so easily.

When about to make a pudding, well flour your board and rolling pin and roll the suet out to a thin sheet. Take between your hands and rub down, when you will find the suet as fine as breadcrumbs.

Hot water marks may be removed from japanned trays by the simple process of rubbing them over well with sweet oil, and then polishing with a little dry flour on a soft duster.

To curl a feather that has become damaged with rain or dew, sprinkle it thickly with common salt and shake before a bright fire until dry, when you will find it as good as new.

When washing pudding cloths throw some orange peelings into the water. This collects the grease and helps to make the cloths white and clean-looking.

Soap that is allowed to dry and harden lasts twice as long as if used when fresh. Therefore it is cheaper to buy it in quantity and keep it in a dry place.

To prevent custard dishes or glasses from cracking when pouring boiled custard into them, place the dish on a damp cloth. This plan is most effective.

To thread a darning-needle, take a length of cotton, put the two ends together, and thread through the eye, put wool through loop and draw it.

A teaspoonful of borax to a quart of water will make hard water soft, so that it can be used for washing the most delicate skin.

If a white shirt is scorched when ironed the brown marks may be removed by rubbing them with a little dry borax.

The Soft Answer.

He was really growing tired of paying off his son's bills—the boy was an undergraduate at one of the big universities. However, after much thought, he decided to be indulgent just once more.

Boys will be boys, he thought. Accordingly, as requested, he sent a check for $250, but accompanied it with stern admonitions to live more wisely and more economically.

"My son," he wrote, "you must remember that your studies are costing me a great deal of money—very much more than I can honestly afford."

"I know it, father—I know it," replied his incorrigible hopeful; "and the tragedy is that I don't study very hard, either."

Long Time for Both.

Affable Passenger—Indeed, and you are a music hall artiste! I am a banker, and I think it must be at least twenty years since I was in a music hall.

Music Hall Artiste (regretfully)—And I'm quite certain, sir, it's twenty years since I was in a bank.

But Aggie was not one to be ignored under any circumstances. Now she spoke with some acerbity in her voice, which could at will be wondrous soft and low.

"Say!" she retorted viciously, "you can't throw any scare into us. You hain't got anything on us. See?"

Cassidy, in response to this outburst, favored the girl with a long stare, and there was hearty amusement in his tones as he answered:

"Nothing on you, eh? Well, well, let's see." He regarded Garson with a grin. "You are Joe Garson, forger." As he spoke, the detective took a note-book from a pocket, found a page and then read: "First arrested in 1891 for forging the name of Edwin Goodsell to a check for ten thousand dollars. Again rearrested June 19, 1893, for forgery. Arrested in April, 1898, for forging the signature of Oscar Hemmenway to a series of bonds that were counterfeit. Arrested as the man back of the Reilly gang in 1903. Arrested in 1908 for forgery."

There was no change in the face or pose of the man who listened to the reading. When it was done, and the officer looked up with a resumption of his triumphant grin, Garson spoke quietly.

"Haven't any records of convictions, have you?"

The grin died and a snarl sprang in its stead.

"No," he snapped, vindictively. "But we've got the right dope on you, all right, Joe Garson." He turned savagely on the girl, who now had regained her usual expression of demure innocence, but with her rather too heavy brows drawn a little lower than their wont under the influence of an emotion otherwise concealed.

"And you're little Aggie Lynch," Cassidy declared as he thrust the note-book back into his pocket. "Just now you're posing as Mary Turner's cousin. You served two years in Burnsing for blackmail. You were arrested in Buffalo, convicted and served your stretch. Nothing on you? Well, well!" Again there was triumph in the officer's chuckle.

Aggie showed no least sign of perturbation in the face of this revelation of her unsavory record. Only an expression of half-incredulous wonder and delight beamed from her widely opened blue eyes and was emphasized in the rounding of the little mouth.

Sarcasm Without Effect.

"Why," she cried, and now there was softness enough in the cooing notes, "my Gawd! It looks as though you had actually been workin'!"

The sarcasm was without effect on the dull sensibilities of the officer. He went on speaking with obvious enjoyment of the extent to which his knowledge reached.

"And the head of the gang is Mary Turner. Arrested four years ago for robbing the Emporium. Did her stretch of three years."

"Is that all you've got about her?" Garson demanded with such abruptness that Cassidy forgot his dignity sufficiently to answer with an unqualified yes.

The forger continued speaking rapidly, and now there was an undercurrent of feeling in his voice.

"Nothing in your record of her about her coming out without a friend in the world and trying to go straight? You ain't got nothing in that pretty little book of your'n about your going to the millinery store where she finally got a job and tipping them off to where she come from?"

"Sure they was tipped off," Cassidy answered, quite unmoved. And he added, swelling visibly with importance: "We got to protect the city."

"Got anything in that record of your'n," Garson went on, venomously, "about her getting another job, and your following her up again and having her thrown out? Got it there about the letter you had old Gilder write, so that his influence would get her canned?"

"Oh, we had her right the first time," Cassidy admitted, complacently.

Then the bitterness of Garson's soul was revealed by the fierceness in his voice as he replied:

"You did not! She was railroaded for a job she never done. She went in honest and she came out honest."

The detective indulged himself in a cackle of sneering merriment.

"And that's why she's here now with a gang of crooks," he retorted.

Mr. Cassidy Laughs.

Garson met the implication fairly.

"Where else should she be?" he demanded, violently. "You ain't got nothing in that record about my jumping into the river after her?" The forger's voice deepened and trembled with the intensity of his emotion, which was now grown so strong that any who listened and looked might guess something of the truth as to his feeling toward this woman of whom he spoke. "That's where I found her—a girl that never done nobody any harm, starving because you police wouldn't give her a chance to work. In the river because she wouldn't take the only other way that was left her to make a living, because she was keeping straight! . . . Have you got any of that in your book?"

Cassidy, who had been scowling in the face of this arraignment, suddenly gave vent to a croaking laugh of derision.

"Huh!" he said, contemptuously. "I guess you's stuck on her, eh?"

At the words, an instantaneous change swept over Garson. Hitherto he had been tense, his face set with emotion, a man strong and sullen, with eyes as clear and heartless as those of a beast in the wild. Now, without warning, a startling transformation was wrought. His form stiffened to rigidity after one lightning-swift step forward, and his face grayed. The eyes glowed with the fires of a man's heart in a spasm of hate. He was the embodiment of rage as he spoke huskily, his voice a whisper that was yet louder than any shout.

"Cut that!"

The eyes of the two men locked. Cassidy struggled with all his pride against the dominant fury this man hurled on him.

"What?" he demanded, blusteringly. But his tone was weaker than its wont.

"I mean," Garson repeated, and there was finality in his accents, a deadly quality that was appalling, "I mean, cut it out—now, here, and all the time! It don't go!" The voice rose slightly. The effect of it was more penetrant than a scream. "It don't go . . . Do you get me?"

There was a short interval of silence, then the officer's eyes at last fell. It was Aggie who relieved the tension of the scene.

"He's got you," she remarked, airily. "Oi, oi! He's got you!"

There were again a few seconds of pause, and then Cassidy made an observation that revealed in some measure the shock of the experience he had just undergone.

"You would have been a big man, Joe, if it hadn't been for that temper of yours. It's got you into trouble once or twice already. Some take it's likely to prove your finish."

Garson relaxed his immobility, and a little color crept into his cheeks.

"That's my business," he responded, dully.

"Anyway," the officer went on, with a new confidence, now that his eyes were free from the gaze that had burned into his soul, "you've got to clear out, the whole gang of you and do it quick."

Aggie, who as a matter of fact began to feel that she was not receiving her due share of attention, now interposed, moving forward till her face was close to the detective's.

"We don't scare worth a cent," she snapped, with the virulence of a vixen. "You can't do anything to us. We ain't broke the law." There came a sudden ripple of laughter, and the charming lips curved joyously as she added: "Though perhaps we have bent it a bit."

Cassidy sneered, outraged by such impudence on the part of an ex-convict.

"Don't make no difference what you've done," he growled. "Gee!" he went on with a heavy sneer. "But things are coming to a pretty pass when a gang of crooks gets to arguing about their rights. That's funny, that is!"

"Then laugh!" Aggie exclaimed, insolently, and made a face at the officer. "Ha, ha, ha!"

"Well, you've got the tip," Cassidy returned, somewhat disconcerted, after a stolid fashion of his own. "It's up to you to take it, that's all. If you don't, one of you will make a long visit with some people out of town, and it'll probably be Mary. Remember, I'm giving it to you straight."

Aggie assumed her formal society manner, exaggerated to the point of extravagance.

"Do come again, little one," she chirruped, caressingly. "I've enjoyed your visit so much!"

But Cassidy paid no apparent attention to her frivolousness; only turned and went noisily out of the drawing room, offering no return to her daintily inflected good-afternoon.

For her own part, as she heard the outer door close behind the detective, Aggie's expression grew vicious, and the heavy brows drew very low, until the level line almost made her prettiness vanish.

"The truck-horse detective!" she sneered. "An eighteen collar and a six-and-a-half hat! He sure had his nerve, trying to bluff us!"

But it was plain that Garson was of another mood. There was anxiety in his face as he stood staring vaguely out of the window.

"What Have We Done."

"Perhaps it wasn't a bluff, Aggie," he suggested.

"Well, what have we done. I'd like to know?" the girl demanded, confidently. She took a cigarette and a match from the tabouret beside her and stretched her feet comfortably, if very inelegantly, on a chair opposite.

Garson answered with a note of weariness that was unlike him.

"It ain't what you have done," he said, quietly. "It's what they can make a jury think you've done. And, once they set out to get you—God, how they can frame things! If they ever start out after Mary——" He did not finish the sentence, but sank down into his chair with a groan that was almost of despair.

The girl replied with a burst of careless laughter.

"Joe," she said gayly, "you're one grand little forger, all right, all right. But Mary's got the brains. Pooh, I'll string along with her as far as she wants to go. She's educated, she is. She ain't like you and me, Joe. She talks like a lady and, what's a damned sight harder, she acts like a lady. I guess I know. Wake me up any old night, and ask me—just ask me, that's all. She's been tryin' to make a lady out of me!"

The vivaciousness of the girl distracted the man for the moment from the gloom of his thoughts, and he turned to survey the speaker with a cynical amusement.

"Swell chance!" he commented dryly.

"Oh, I'm not so worse! Just you watch out." The lively girl sprang up, discarded the cigarette adjusted an imaginary train and spoke lispingly in a society manner much more moderate and convincing than that with which she had favored the retiring Cassidy. Voice, pose and gesture proclaimed at least the excellent mimic.

"How do you do, Mrs. Jones! So good of you to call! . . . . My dear Miss Smith, this is indeed a pleasure." She seated herself again, quite primly, now, and moved her hands over the tabouret appropriately to her words. "One lump or two? . . . Yes, I just love bridge. No, I don't play," she continued, simpering; "but, just the same, I love it." With this absurd ending, Aggie again arranged her feet according to her liking on the opposite chair. "That's the kind of stuff she's had me doing," she rattled on in her coarser voice, "and believe me, Joe, it's damned near killing me. But all the same," she hurried on, with a swift revulsion of mood to the former serious topic. "I'm for Mary strong! You stick to her, Joe, and you'll wear diamonds. . . . And that reminds me! I wish she'd let me wear mine, but she won't. She says they're vulgar for an innocent country girl like her cousin, Agnes Lynch. Ain't that fierce? . . . How can anything be vulgar that's worth a hundred and fifty a carat?

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Turner, becoming an orphan, is thrown on her own resources. She finds work at the Emporium, a department store owned by Edward Gilder; is accused of the theft of silks, and sent to prison, though innocent. She tells George Demarest, Gilder's head lawyer, that the way to stop thievery is to pay a living wage. In prison she learned from fellow convicts why girls go wrong. She understands their point of view and sympathizes with them. Aggie Lynch, a convict friend of Mary's at Burnsing, sees good "possibilities" for her in the world of crime. Upon Mary's release the slogan "once a criminal always one," prevents her from securing work. She is continually hounded and in desperation throws herself into the North River. Joe Garson, a forger, rescues her and keeps her and Aggie in luxury, though living chaste lives. Mary reads that a famous financier escapes prison through keeping within the letter of the law. She follows his example and becomes the leader of a band of swindlers, robbing only the unscrupulous. Gilder's son Dick meets and loves Mary, who seeks to wreak vengeance on the father through the son. Aggie poses as her cousin, and they pretend to be respectable.

PA took me fishing yesterday. It was a beautiful day wen we started out & Pa sed it was jest the kind of a day to catch a lot of fish.

Doant you think you ought to take a guide, deerest, sed Ma. You know we are strangers to this seckshun & you mite not be abel to find the right places to fish. My father used to always talk a guide with him wen he went fishing in a strange country. He was always afrade that he mite git lost.

Thare is no danger of you losing me that eesy, said Pa. Doant you worry about that.

I know thare is no chanst to lose you, sed Ma, but I shud hate to lose littel Bobbie. Pleese talk a guide.

Thare is no danger around this open country, sed Pa, we doant need a guide; cum on, Bobbie. Doant fergit to hang onto that lunch. We will need it by noon.

He Got Tired.

After we had walked for about two hours I began to git kind of tired & I cud see that Pa was gitting tired, too. How far is this stream? I asked Pa. I doant want to walk all day. It cant be very much further, said Pa. The man at the hotel toald us to keep walking thru this patch of hard wood, due north, till we caim to a big pine tree and then to go about two miles thru a spruce patch until we caim to the stream. Bobbie, sed Pa, doant you hear a littel trout stream purling anywhere?

No, I sed, & I am lissening as hard as I can.

Doant you hear any kind of a stream purl at all? sed Pa.

No, I sed, not any kind of a stream, & I aint going to walk much further, eether.

Then Pa began talking to me about one time wen he took sum frends along trout fishing in upper Misbigan. Thay all thot I was lost, sed Pa. Thare was two ladies in the crowd & thay was the bravest in the party. The men looked awful worried, sed Pa; thay kep telling how we was up aggenst it, but the ladies jest kep on laffing and cheering thare husbands. Thay had perfeck faith in me beekaus I herd one of them tell the other that I looked so self-reliant that she wud trust me anyware to keep peepul from danger. Yes, sed Pa, those ladies trusted me & thare faith in me was justified. Presently we caim to our destination, Pa sed, & the ladies sed thay felt like hugging me.

I cud see that Pa was talking kind of absent-minded beekaus all the time he was talking he kep looking around in the woods & I knew he dident know his way.

Jest then Pa sed Bobbie, Bobbie, I hear it. I hear it. It is the sound of running water that I hear. Dident I tell you, Bobbie?

They Hear It.

Sure enuff, I herd the running water, too, so both of us began to walk faster toward a cleering. After we git to the brook, Bobbie, sed Pa, we will arrange our tackel & go after the speckled buties.

Jest then we caim out into the cleering ware we had herd the running water & Pa & me neerly fell over. We was back to the littel hotel from wich we had started out from. We had went in a cirkel. Ma was setting on the porch grinning at Pa, & the sound of the running water was water cumming from a hose. The hired man was washing the barn.

Now Ma calls Pa Isaak Walton.

Uncle's Sporting Trophies.

Tom Brown and Jack Smith had been schoolmates together, but, as often happens, had drifted apart during the years that followed. Then, quite accidentally, they met again one day, and somehow the conversation turned to the subject of athletics.

"Let me see!" said Brown. "You never came across my brother, did you? He's a fine runner, you know. Why, only last week he won a gold medal in a Marathon race."

"Ah!" said Smith, raising his eyebrows in genuine admiration. Then, a faint smile playing around his lips, he added: "And did I ever tell you about my uncle?"

"Don't think so," replied Brown.

"Well in his day, not only did he get a gold medal for five miles, and one for ten miles, but two sets of carvers for cycling, a silver medal for swimming, two cups for wrestling, to say nothing of badges for boxing and rowing.

"You see," Smith continued, while his friend sat speechless with amazement, "the uncle in question kept a pawnshop."

Her Love For Romance

A HUMOROUS STORY.

AS a little girl Albertine always sat in the chair in the farthest corner when she went to children's parties. She had a meek, pretty little face, abundant yellow hair and large, appealing blue eyes that held a shadow of apology in them for her temerity in presuming to exist. She retained the modest violet atmosphere after she was grown up.

Other girls might blossom into daring coquettes and fascinating belles, but Albertine always kept in the background. Whenever people looked at her they involuntarily thought of lace mitts and hoopskirts and curtseys. They felt that Albertine should be put under glass.

This being the case, it was astonishing that down in her secret heart Albertine had a fierce love of the daring, the wild and gay and the extreme. When she picked out a dress design she always chose the rankest, most alarming atrocity. The dressmaker said, "Oh, certainly!" and then proceeded to modify the pattern to suit Albertine's appearance.

She Suspected.

Things had a way of drooping on her in old-fashioned lines. She wanted to look frightfully smart and somehow she never did. Secretly she suspected the dressmakers, but she never dared accuse them.

It was the same way when it came to the young men. Let a perfectly steady, sober youth who earned a regular salary and was good to his mother come her way and Albertine raised her little nose and sniffed. She simply could not see him. She admired extravagantly the sort of young man who dashed down the street wearing crimson silk socks and a tie to match and the latest cry in waistcoats, and if he was followed by a bulldog so much the better. If people raised their eyebrows and coughed discreetly when his name was mentioned it made the situation perfect.

Albertine always felt loftily then that she was an experienced, worldly wise person and the eyebrow raisers were narrow provincials. Usually the bulldoggy young man never progressed in the acquaintance further than raising his hat and casting an entrancing smile at her; but Albertine was satisfied with just adoring him from a distance.

Her family was quite alarmed when she fell in love with Harry Jungles, because Harry always was in debt and worked only semi-occasionally and Albertine's relatives had a great deal of money. Harry seemed awake to this fact, for he actually called on Albertine and talked poetry to her in the parlor in low, rich tones, and told her how the world misjudged him. Albertine went so far as to powder her already white nose and her mother caught her once using an eyebrow pencil. It was much the same as though an Easter lily had begun to rouge. The situation was saved, however, by the Sheriff's removing Harry for forgery, and after that Albertine wore what she thought was a heart-broken expression and thought she threw into her face deep lines of experience and suffering.

After Harry several others of the same kind followed. Therefore, having long hovered over Albertine in fear that she would do some foolish thing and spoil her life, her family was entranced when she became engaged to Jeffrey. It all happened so suddenly that one was scarcely aware Jeffrey was on earth before he was introducing himself as the future son-in-law and brother.

Jeffrey was absolutely as nearly perfect as he could be for Albertine. Liberal-minded people might say he erred on the side of rigidness and propriety and possible narrowness, but one felt that he would always be at home at 6 o'clock sharp for dinner and that Albertine never would have to hang out of the front window trying to distinguish whether it was wavering down the street at 1 o'clock in the morning. Jeffrey choked at the sight of a cigarette, wouldn't be caught dead at a dog show and said his wife never should be permitted to wear decollete gowns in the evening.

What She Said.

The more people considered the matter the more inexplicable it became. Finally her dearest friend flatly asked Albertine to explain Jeffrey's attractions.

"You see," said the dearest friend, "with your ideas I can't understand how you happen to fall in love with Jeffrey, of all men."

"Of all men!" echoed Albertine in pitying astonishment. "Why, I'll tell you, Susie—because I recognized at once that Jeffrey is the most sophisticated sort of person. He's such a man of the world. I can't abide these goody-goody men!"

The Change in George

"WHEN I first noticed the change in George," said the blond woman, who was no bigger than a minute, "I thought it was indigestion. It is perfectly wonderful how much a man's liver is responsible for! But when I mentioned the doctor he was quite violent. In fact, he was rude and stamped around. It is hard on the rugs when a man acts that way.

"'Don't roar at me, George!' I told him.

"'I've got to!' he said in a regular Bengal tiger sort of way. 'I've got to in order to maintain my supremacy in the home!'

"Now, George has always been such a perfect gentleman and so mild that you may well imagine that I was amazed. 'See here, George Guesser!' I said to him. 'Tell me at once what you mean!'

"This Was Different."

"George frowned awfully. His eyebrows looked like a lilac hedge that hasn't been trimmed since last spring. Then he cleared his throat. 'I've just waked up to the fact,' said he, 'that I have been taking a back seat and allowing you to think I didn't count. Why, when I consider how near I have been to losing your love it makes me shudder! I just read a wonderful article——'

"'Oh!' said I. 'An article! But do you believe all you read?'

"'This was different,' George said. Then he explained.

"'It was in one of the scientific magazines, and the writer began by saying that every woman sits and waits the coming of her lord and master and is ready to follow when he beckons. He does not woo or beseech; he takes; he——'

"'George Guesser,' I said to him, 'whenever you waste time beckoning me instead of coming where I am I'd like to know it! Do you think I am a little yellow puppy dog?' My, but I was angry!

"George looked sad. 'I see I have allowed you to get away from me,' he mused. Then he roared at me. 'There is never a man brute so brutal but a woman clings to him!'" he quoted and beat the air with his arms. 'That was a fundamental point with the writer. He said that if the man cringed before the woman she had only contempt for him, but that if he beat her she respected him and thanked her stars that her man was so strong. Further, she was completely happy to think that the gentleman who had loosened her front teeth belonged entirely to her. I hate to do it, Evangeline, but you've got to respect me and look up to me, even if I have to follow that writer's advice and beat you! In fact, he says, a great many women require more or less beating to make them loving dutiable wives!'

George Shook His Head.

"'George,' I said when he stopped for breath, 'just what is your intention? Am I to understand that you are about to knock me down in order to make sure of my imperishable affection? Are you contemplating denting my face for the purpose of making me too utterly happy to live? Because if you are——'

"George shook his head as if he were considering something under a microscope. 'What a mistake I've been making,' he confided to himself. 'Why, Evangeline, you are entirely lacking in that devotion which is part fear and which is necessary to make a happy wife! It is all my fault!'

"Right here I concluded that it was time to take George by the hand and lead him forth to safety. 'Darling,' said I, 'if you will tell me how a woman is going to stand in any fear of a man after she has viewed him crawling under the bed after his collar button or trying to light the gas with an already burned match or attempting to answer his child who wants to know what there would have been if there hadn't been anything I shall consider myself in your debt!

"'Not wishing to thrust myself forward or unduly trumpet my own worth, I still would bet my false hair that if I ever get hold of that scientific friend of yours long enough to whisper a few thoughts into his ear he would shrivel up and blow away! And now if you really yearn to hold my love and affection, go down and shake up the furnace, because the house is getting cold!'

"'Oh, vur-ry well,' said George, peevishly, as he headed for the basement stairs. 'That's the way you always act when I attempt any real progress. Women aren't scientific!'

"'Indeed, they're not!' I told him. 'They're just plain sensible!'"

"THANKS, very much. I'm having rather a difficult task of it, for our friend, the Constable here, corroborates Miss Renfrew's statement to the hair, and yet I am absolutely positive that there is a mistake."

"There is no mistake—no, not one! The wicked one to say it still!"

"Oh, that's all very well, madame; but I know what I know; and when you tell me that a dead man can ask questions. * * * Pah! The fact of the matter is that the Constable only fancies he heard Mr. Nosworth speak. That's where the mistake comes in. Now, look here. I once knew of an exactly similar case and I'll tell you just how it happened. Let us suppose"—strolling leisurely forward—"let us suppose that this space here is the covered passage and you—step here a moment, please. Thanks, very much—and you are Miss Renfrew, and Gorham here is himself, and standing beside her as he did then."

"Wasn't beside her, sir—at least not just exactly. A bit behind her—like this."

"Oh, very well, then, that will do. Now then. Here's the passage and here are you, and I'll just show you how a mistake could occur and how it did occur under precisely similar circumstances. Once upon a time when I was in Paris—"

"It's a Play."

"In Paris, monsieur?"

"Yes, madame—this little thing I'm going to tell you about happened there. You may or may not have heard that a certain French dramatist wrote a play called 'Chanticler'—or maybe you never heard of it? Didn't, eh? Well, it's a play where all the characters are barnyard creatures—dogs, poultry, birds and the like—and the odd fancy of men and women dressing up like fowls took such a hold on the public that before long there were Chanticler dances and Chanticler parties in all the houses and Chanticler 'turns' on at all the music halls until wherever one went for an evening's amusement one was pretty sure of seeing somebody or another dressed up like a cock or a hen and running the thing to death. But that's another story, and we'll pass over it. Now, it just so happened that one night—when the craze for the thing was dying out and barnyard dresses could be bought for a song, I strolled into a little fourth-rate cafe at Montemartre and there saw the only Chanticler dancer that I ever thought was worth a sou. She was a pretty, dainty little thing—light as a feather and graceful as a fairy. Alone, I think she might have made her mark, but she was one of what in music halldom they call 'a team.' Her partner was a man—a bad dancer, an indifferent singer, but a really passable ventriloquist."

The Expose.

"A ventriloquist, monsieur—er—er."

"Cleek, madam—name's Cleek, if you don't mind!"

"Cleek! Oh, lummy!" blurted out Mr. Nippers. But neither, "Madam" nor Constable Gorham said anything. They merely swung round and made a sudden bolt; and Cleek, making a bolt, too, pounced down on them like a leaping cat, and the sharp click-click of the handcuffs he had borrowed from Mr. Nippers told just when he linked their two wrists together.

"Game's up, Mlle. Fifine, otherwise Mme. Nosworth, the worthless wife of a worthless husband!" he rapped out sharply. "Game's up, Mr. Henry Nosworth, bandit, pickpocket and murderer! There's a hot corner in hell waiting for the brute-beast that could kill his own father, and would, for the simple sake of money. Get at him quick, Mr. Narkom. He's got one free hand! Nip the paper out of his pocket before the brute destroys it! Played, sir, played! Buck up, Miss Renfrew, buck up, little girl!—you'll get your 'Boy' and you'll get Mr. Septimus Nosworth's promised fortune after all! 'God's in his heaven and all's right with the world!'"

"Yes, a very, very clever scheme indeed, Miss Renfrew," agreed Cleek. "Laid with great cunning and carried out with extreme carefulness—as witness the man's coming here and getting appointed constable and biding his time, and the woman serving as cook for six months to get the entree to the house and to be ready to assist when the time of action came round. I don't think I had the least inkling of the truth until I entered this house and saw the woman. She had done her best to pad herself to an unwieldly size, and to blanch portions of her hair, but she couldn't quite make her face appear old without betraying the fact that it was painted—and hers is one of those peculiarly pretty faces that one never forgets when one has ever seen it.

To Be Concluded To-morrow.

The Professor Ate Nuts

"YES," said Professor J. Haddensfield Joy, "I used to be a vegetarian myself. I have seen the time when a big porterhouse steak or a fat and lean slice of ham made me tear my hair, realizing how barbarous is man. Broiled spring chicken made me grate my teeth in rage.

"Not only was I vegetarian, but I was one of those who follow along lines of the most extreme differentiation. I couldn't eat pieplant tops or white oak bark, just because they were vegetable substances. I specialized in cocoanuts.

"I bought a hundred fine, fresh nuts. These I put in a cool and shady place, and thereupon discarded all allegiance to such foods as have dwarfed man's noble intellect. My family ate as usual.

"When morning dawned on my first day of real liberty I got a handsaw and sawed off the top of a nut. Then I drank of the life-giving fluid inside. After that I proceeded to feast on the meat of the nut, as my distant ancestors had done. When I started for the laboratory I took a fine nut under my arm and tried to walk in my usual heavy and methodical stride. It was no use. I felt like hopping along.

A Deep Longing.

"Persons whom I met addressed me as 'professor,' but with a gaze too human to suit me. I found myself looking up into trees with a vague, deep longing. It was as though I had inherited something that had been hidden in my soul's archives all my life. I arrived at the laboratory with my emblem of liberty still under my arm. The rude and thoughtless experimentalists looked and talked as they talk who are in a state of mental slavery. My luncheon made me want to run up and down the halls and passages and climb the posts.

"This glorious life lasted for a week. One night Mrs. Joy had to take a broomstick and punch me down from the picture railing, where I was trying to pass the night. The next day I could nt resist the temptation to climb a tree when I had started to conduct my daily investigation of life's solemn facts at the laboratory. A cocoanut was under my arm. Presently there came speeding along a very big man in a very big automobile. I landed the cocoanut on his head with a precision that I had never learned. In another instant my man was shaking my perch as if he were a concentrated earthquake. All the Joys swarmed around the tree. Mrs. Joy shrieked: 'Don't hurt him—he's been living on cocoanuts!'

The End of It.

"'Turned back into a monkey, has he?' said the man. 'I've been living on raw meat, and if I get my hands on him I'll eat him!' Then he departed.

"All the Joys got hold of me and took me back to the dining room and seated me at the table. Soon there was spread before me a repast consisting of one porterhouse steak, one slice of ham, three slices of bacon and a few other things. I could scarcely walk when I started to work.

"Henceforth give me a full dinner of real food or cut down the trees."

"Yes; I was in real misery when she threw me over for him."

"Well, that makes you square. Now Bronson's the man in misery."

TEXTILE TRADE CONDITIONS ARE O. K. IN GEORGIA

Mills Will Not Follow Example of Fall River Plants and Close.

Textile trade conditions in Georgia are satisfactory. There is no danger that mills in this section will follow the example of the Fall River Iron Works Mills, and close. This is the consensus of opinion of the leading cotton mill men of Atlanta.

While tariff agitation is under way, trade is slack. Whichever way the tariff is settled, whether favoring or hampering the mills, demand will pick up at once. Meanwhile, the spindles are, and probably will continue to run at full time all summer.

Not Taken Seriously Here.

The Eastern Press has been much excited over the closing of the Fall River Iron Works Mills. Here, the closing of these mills is not taken seriously.

The Fall River Iron Works Mills never were well organized, and never were run economically, say Atlanta textile men. The result has been that just now it is cheaper for the American Print Cloth Company to buy goods in the gray from better managed mills than it is to produce goods in the gray in their own plant, the Fall River concern.

"Of course, this is being used as a weapon to prevent serious cuts in the tariff, but those who are well informed are not deceived by the move," says A. F. Johnson, President of the Exposition Mills.

Denies Tariff Charges.

"The truth of the matter is that it has proved cheaper to buy gray goods from other looms rather than operate the looms at Fall River.

"As to the charge which is being aired in the East to the effect that the tariff bill has been framed in the benefit of Southern mills, that is ridiculous. If a tariff were framed to favor the coarser numbers which the Southern mills spin, isn't it reasonable to suppose that the Eastern mills would turn to coarser numbers, thus increasing competition in those grades, and that the bill would end by defeating its object?

"Many strange things come out of the East, as soon as a tariff bill comes up for discussion."

COTTON GOSSIP

NEW YORK, May 8.—The Liverpool cotton exchanges will be closed May 10, 12, 16 and 17.

Liverpool cables: "American forward 48,889 bales, total 5,865, American decrease 15,530 bales."

Newnan, Ga., wires: "Steady rains all night. Look general."

* * *

The market was sold heavily to-day on some reports of good rains in the eastern belt and prospects for more.

* * *

Augusta, Ga., wires: "We hear of scattered rains. Showers are predicted in the next 48 hours."

Charleston wires: "God rains in this territory yesterday and last night."

* * *

According to a correspondent of H. F. Bachmann acreage in the Fort Smith section of Arkansas is fully 10 per cent larger than last year. Ninety per cent of the crop is planted and indications point to a good stand. This report applies to western Arkansas and Oklahoma.

* * *

It was said yesterday that Carolina mills were calling for cotton in rather large lots.

* * *

Emphasis is centered on new crop positions. The fear of the predicted "squeeze" in July option has been discounted for the moment.

* * *

NEW ORLEANS, May 8.—Hayward & Clark: "The weather map is favorable. It shows cloudy in Alabama and the Atlantics, generally fair in the rest of the belt with warm and seasonable temperatures. Nice rains at Meridian, Miss., and scattered showers in Alabama and the Atlantics, mostly light, are shown; no general rain yet. Indications are for unsettled weather and scattered showers in the Eastern States, Oklahoma and west Texas; generally fair in east Texas and the central belt."

* * *

Washington announces that the cotton acreage report will be issued July 3.

* * *

Vicksburg, Miss., says: "With the river falling daily hopes are centered now on having planting operations in full force next week in many places."

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "Preponderance of professional opinion still favors the short side, consequently the cotton market is called by the majority 'right' when it declines, and 'wrong' when it advances.

"For this reason the loudest explanations of yesterday's advance were that the manipulator was again at work; that the new crop is doing as well as at this time in the big crop year; that temperatures are more favorable than last year, and that the underlying bearishness of the general situation is being overshadowed by other things. The bull replied: 'It is a mistake to imagine the crop is doing as well as in the big crop year, thus, the fate of the new crop is still in the balance. As for the old crop, there can not be much danger to the long side when there is a demand for actual cotton at prices well above a future parity.'

"In other words, the man on the fence may take his choice of the conflicting arguments. But the man on the fence seems to prefer to regard the market as a scalping affair, and to act accordingly.

"Up to last night, rains east of the Mississippi River had not reached many of the dry places. Rain seems to be on the way, but until it comes, new crop shorts must inwardly remain on the anxious seat, no matter how confident they may appear outwardly."

GRAVE DANGER IN OUR SHORT GOLD SUPPLY

France and Germany are Forcing National Banks to Accumulate Tremendous Reserve.

By B. C. FORBES.

President Wilson has nothing but contempt for bankers—he scorned the idea of having one in his Cabinet, since he wanted only honest colleagues—and now the Treasury Department is obediently snapping its fingers at experienced bankers who are raising warnings that the banking situation needs careful handling. Secretary McAdoo's sudden and inexplicable decision to scatter $10,000,000 Government cash among the national banks is roundly condemned by bankers, who declare that such action is simply an incentive to credit inflation already alarming, and that the Treasury may have need for a distributable surplus before the year ends.

The Bank of France on Monday paid a premium of $10,000 to force $2,000,000 American gold out of this country and into its vaults. It has taken $25,000,000 of our gold since New Year.

* * *

Germany has given orders that the Reichsbank's stock of gold must be increased at any cost. The institution has piled up fully $250,000,000 for the first time in its history, and is hungry for more.

The Bank of England has not one-quarter the amount of specie already collected by the Bank of France and has not a great deal more than half as much as the German Imperial Bank. Both France and Germany hold more gold than a year ago, but England reports less.

An American visitor recently presented a letter of credit to first one French bank and then another and asked 500 francs ($100) in gold. All refused. Not a grain of the yellow metal is willingly parted with by either French or German banks. Hoarding has been carried to lengths unimagined here. Says President Alexander, of the Bank of Commerce, in a special cable to The Georgian from London: "It is almost impossible to obtain gold in France at present, while there is an equal scarcity in Germany." The conditions are similar to those ruling in America during the panic of 1907 and other memorable financial crises. Gold is at a premium, yet both France and Germany are adding to their bank surpluses regardless of cost, so anxious are they to pile up the metal.

At home, how goes it? Our National banks have expanded loans some $300,000,000 within the last twelve months, but instead of justifying this by strengthening their reserve they have lost more than $50,000,000 cash. In other words, loans are inflated one million dollars every business day, despite a shrinkage in cash of a million dollars every week. This alarming process is still going on—merrily, so far, but tragedy is courted. New York, be it said, is taking no part in the inflationary movement, for it is aware of the danger involved.

* * *

How does the Treasury Department act in face of threatened trouble during the autumn? Does it buttress its position so as to be able to meet emergencies? No. It incites further loan expansion by taking $10,000,000 from the nation's vaults and scattering it among hundreds of banks—this, too, without any known suggestion from the banks that Treasury funds should be depleted. Gold that will do positive harm now might have been kept in readiness to stem trouble later.

* * *

Bankers call this deplorable. But, then, bankers are knaves, according to President Wilson and his advisers. Were they as anxious to "put the Administration in a hole" as is sometimes alleged, these bankers would encourage the complete emptying of the Treasury now, thereby destroying the only weapon available to fight the real trouble that is feared when record-breaking crops have to be harvested and marketed. Knowledge that the Government's reserve had all been used—misused—to foster credit expansion would effectively incite disaster should emergencies arise.

Are bankers acting the part of unscrupulous schemers when they urge that the United States Treasury Department should conserve its resources at present, that the department should look across the Atlantic and study what is going on there; that it should take note of the arbitrary withdrawal of millions of gold from America to Europe when exchange quotations do not justify such action, and that the Secretary of the Treasury should seek counsel from those who have spent their lives in diagnosing domestic and international monetary developments?

* * *

The one saving feature of the position is that, despite certain published dispatches to the contrary, currency legislation WILL be brought forward this session.

SMALL CHANGE IN PRICE OF COTTON

Market Steady on Firm Cables and Professional Support, but Sentiment Is Against It.

NEW YORK, May 8.—There was good buying at the opening of the cotton market to-day and first prices were 4 to 8 points better than last night's close. The market was at first strengthened on continental buying, but later weakened on heavy selling, inspired chiefly by reported rains in the eastern and central belt, where rains are badly needed. Prices immediately fell 6 to 7 points from the opening level and received very little support. The bulls, however, predicted further upturns in case rains are not as good as first reported.

Further weakness in the spot situation also was a factor in depressing prices. The weakness in the actual came in the face of reports that the Carolina mills were asking for cotton. The report was given very little attention and fell flat on the market.

The weather map was very favorable overnight and the detailed Government records show pretty good rains in the Eastern States. Indications are for fair, warmer to showery weather over the larger part of the belt for the next 48 hours.

The week-end figures to-morrow are expected to be unfavorable for comparison. Mill takings to-morrow will be compared with 317,000 bales for the same week last year.

The market during the afternoon session was rather quiet with the trading attributed mainly to professionals. Wall Street continued to sell, also the ring scalpers. Price movement was narrow and practically unchanged from the low level.

At the close the market was steady with prices net unchanged to 6 points higher than the final quotations of Wednesday.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, May 8.—Liverpool was good on futures on the buying of new crops by the continent, but spot sales dropped to a total of 7,000 bales, at 4 points higher quotations. A cable said: "Have no decided opinion, but rather against the market, although purchases are being made by the continent at present prices of winter months."

European government securities are higher and there was no political news. Political affairs now seem to be in a waiting attitude. There is undoubtedly more optimism, which explains the better European demand for new crops at this level.

A Memphis wire said spots were selling freely and considerably under quotations. Our market opened a few points higher on the good Liverpool and strength in New York, but soon eased on private rain reports from the East. Prospects of an unfavorable visible supply statement to-morrow also affected support. There is a suspicion, however, of professional intentions in New York against the technical condition, the market having supposedly become oversold during the late period of menacing politics. Liverpool forwardings for the week are not even half as large as those of last year, which points to a bearish visible statement to-morrow.

Owing to the coming Whitsuntide holidays in England, takings will be small next week also, and visible comparisons, consequently, unfavorable.

GRAIN TRADERS AWAIT REPORT

Bearish Census Figures Expected, Causing Freer Offerings, but Buying Is Light.

CHICAGO, May 8.—Wheat was firmer this morning on the reported export takings of 640,000 bushels of wheat for export yesterday, coupled with the smaller offerings in the pit and the strength shown at Liverpool, Northwestern receipts were considerably in excess of a year ago, but smaller than a week ago, and Winnipeg receipts were smaller than a year ago.

Corn was a trifle lower on increased offerings in the pit, but this was only for deferred months.

Oats showed but little change, yet the feeling was easier.

Provisions were 2½ to 7½c lower.

Wheat closed with losses of ⅛@½c. There was considerable grain sold on the belief that the Government crop report would be a bearish document. The condition on May 1 was placed at 91.9 for winter wheat against 79.7 a year ago. The indicated yield a year ago was 370,714,000 bushels, against 513,000,000 bushels this year.

The corn market was ¼@⅜c higher and oats were up a small fraction for the nearby months but a shade lower for the deferred. There were many rumors of a big export business at the seaboard.

Provisions were without any marked change.

OPINIONS ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO May 8.—Barlett, Frazier & Co.: "Wheat: We look for a steady market with probably narrow fluctuations pending the issuance of the Government report.

"Corn: We do not find that there is any pressure from the country in the way of hedging sales, and look for a falling off in receipts shortly.

"Oats: The market seems to be gaining friends all the time, and there is more or less buying of the deferred futures on a semi-investment basis.

"Provisions: The market continues to show a firm undertone and meets with good buying on all little depressions."

Condition of Winter Wheat Excellent

Area This Year Far Exceeds Acreage Harvested Last Summer—Government Makes Report.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The crop reporting board of the Department of Agriculture to-day made the following estimates:

On May 1 the area of winter wheat to be harvested was about 30,938,000 acres, or 4.5 per cent (1,449,000 acres) less than the area planted last autumn, but 16.4 per cent (4,367,000 acres) more than the area harvested last year, viz: 26,571,000 acres.

The average condition of winter wheat on May 1 was 91.9, compared with 91.6 on April 1, 79.1 on May 1, 1912, and 58.6, the average for the past ten years on May 1.

RANGE IS NARROW IN STOCK MARKET

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, May 8.—A heavy tone prevailed in the stock market at the opening to-day and most issues showed declines. Southern Pacific was ½ lower at the outset, but made a partial recovery later. Brooklyn Rapid Transit was the strongest on the list, rising one point to 90¾. This buying was induced by a belief that the dividend rate would be increased at the next meeting of the directors.

New York Central, which broke through par yesterday for the second time since 1908, opened at 100¼ for a loss of ⅛.

American Can showed a slight gain on dividend prospects. New York, New Haven and Hartford, which is now under fire in an interstate commerce investigation, made a slight fractional gain.

Among the losses were United States Rubber common ¼; United States Steel common ⅛; Union Pacific ½; Chesapeake and Ohio ⅛, and Amalgamated Copper ⅛.

The curb was quiet.

Americans in London were colorless.

A firmer tone prevailed after the first half hour, and most of the list made gains. Atchison, Reading and St. Paul made moderate advances. Copper was up ⅛ at 75⅛½ New York, New Haven and Hartford, up ⅛; Lehigh Valley, up ¼ at 155. Steel remained firm at 60⅜. Call money loaned at 2¾.

Trading was quiet in the last hour. Canadian Pacific fell below 241 for a loss of 1¼ from the mid-day level, but fractional gains were scored by Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Amalgamated Copper. Lehigh Valley shaded.

The market closed steady. Governments unchanged; other bonds firm.

Taft Ready to See Free Trade Tested

'Let's Try It Out,' Former President Says in Address to Yale Students.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., May 8.—"If we are to have free trade, let's have it," said William H. Taft in the second of his Yale lectures on modern government this afternoon. "Let the party that favors it vote for it. Let's try it."

His statement was incidental to a discussion of the necessity of the political party to efficient legislation.

"The three objects of the new school of political thinkers who style themselves Progressives," said the former President, "are to prevent corruption of government by corporation interests, to create an equality of opportunity for all men, and to equalize property holdings to some degree. Persons who do not concur with this school in the exact method of arriving at the true purpose of popular government, which is to make for the happiness of all the people, are called reactionaries.

"Those of us who fall in this category must be content, but we must never cease fighting."

A Mistaken Idea

SOME PEOPLE MAY THINK THAT because the ATLANTA NATIONAL BANK is one of the strongest and most influential banks in the South it wants only large accounts.

This is distinctly a mistaken idea. Although this is in every sense a "big" bank, and many "big" accounts are handled here, small accounts are most cordially invited. The new depositor is assured of prompt, courteous attention; and his account, however small, is given as careful attention as the largest.

POULTRY, PET and LIVE STOCK

Poultry Can Be Made To Pay If Leaks and Waste Are Stopped

Spend Money Judiciously and Look After the Small Things.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

In these times of keen competition in all lines of business it is the looking after the little things that are usually allowed to go to waste that is responsible for that particular concern having a profitable business.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars are annually wasted by enthusiastic poultry people who go it too fast in their efforts to establish a paying business. These people build houses that are more expensive than are necessary, and are at that not at all adapted to the needs of the flocks to be housed. Failure results and the business is blamed as not being of sufficient importance to be a paying investment.

Frequently people are enthused with the idea that they can establish a great poultry plant that will be greatly admired by all who see it. Even men who show good judgment in other things will get foolish ideas into their heads and waste good money in carrying out odd notions which they have. Money is extravagantly expended for exhibition specimens to be used in the breeding yard when the chances are that they have been bred for some of the superfluous fancy points for the show room, to the exclusion of some decidedly more beneficial points in the breeding yard.

Much Labor Lost.

MUCH labor is lost by not having things to your hand in and around the poultry buildings. Hundreds of steps are daily wasted that should be put to better account. In planning houses for the poultry business one should study thoroughly the ins and outs of the daily round to see how many things can be put right to the attendant's hand so that he will not be obliged to make special trips for things that should be better arranged.

Much food is annually wasted in many poultry yards by feeding carelessly upon the ground soft feeds of various kinds. Overfeeding of soft food results in a lot of it being left over to sour and be picked up later in the day when it is not fit to be used as food at all. Then it is worse than lost in the harm it is likely to do to the stock eating it.

Raise Feed Stuffs.

If possible raise a lot of your feed stuff, which will help to lower the feed bill expense very materially. In that way you can increase the profits, both a-coming and a-going, by making a good compost heap of the droppings, mixing them with soil as they are taken from the house. This applied to the land where you are to raise the food crops will cause them to bring forth in greater abundance. Study to use all the possible home sources of food supplies, by feeding all the refuse or small stuff from the root crops, such as the small potatoes, either sweet or Irish, turnips, carrots, cabbage, etc. Some of it can be fed raw, other parts can be cooked, and while hot thickened with bran enough to take up all the surplus liquid. Seasoned a little, it makes a splendid food out of an otherwise waste product.

A mill to grind fresh bones will prove a means of great saving, in that you can use it to grind up all bones and scraps from the table. It can also be used to cut up vegetables when it is desired to feed them raw; in fact, it will be found to be an article that is ever ready to do a good turn. In dressing fowls for table use all the heads and shanks can be ground for chicken food. It is surprising how much stuff can be utilized and made to do duty as good food stuff, and save something that is more expensive and no better for the stock. We have only mentioned a few of the many things that can be done to save labor and expense, but which can be carried out to the limit by any enterprising person so inclined.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Final Deliberation On Whitehall Grade

The final arguments, pro and con, in the Whitehall Street grade matter will be heard to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock by the streets committee of Council at the City Hall, and a decision will be reached as to whether or not $50,000 will be raised and appropriated for the work. Some 500 persons are expected to attend the meeting, since various interests are affected. A large majority of the property owners, it is said, favor the proposed grade, while a few are holding out.

The proposition is to cut down eight feet at Trinity Avenue and to fill that much at Brotherton. The extent of the grading will be from Mitchell Street to the intersection of Forsyth and Whitehall, and the effect of it, according to the people who are in favor of it, will be to help the entire South Side.

Property owners have promised $15,000 to $20,000, and Council will be asked to give the balance.

Realty Transfers Show Gain.

Realty transfers took a big jump in the eighteenth week of 1913, as compared with the eighteenth week in 1912, according to The Fulton County Daily Report. In the former week they totaled $1,061,923, while in the latter the aggregate was $937,099. The number in each instance was the same, 233. Mortgage and loan deeds, personalty items and building permits, were less in both number and amount in 1913, but cancellations jumped more than $20,000.

Big Loan Deed Recorded.

A loan deed made April 1 and involving $65,000 has gone to record from the United States Mortgage and Trust Company of New York to the Mutual Life Insurance Company, on the property at the intersection of Peachtree and Ivy Streets. This lot extends 171 feet southward, 97.4 westward and 160 feet northward.

Large Building Permits.

Having examined plans for the Y. M. C. A. building on Luckie Street and the Livingston Wright apartment at East North Avenue and Willow Street, Building Inspector Hays has issued permits to build. The former is to cost $250,000 and the latter $60,000.

Austin Joins Ansley Agency.

J. M. Austin, who started the Maxwell Automobile Agency in Atlanta and who later was agent for the Marion car, has joined the sales force of the Edwin P. Ansley real estate agency. Mr. Austin is well versed in salesmanship and his friends predict that he will do well in real estate. He hails from South Carolina, but has been in Atlanta five or six years.

Church to Start Building.

Although the Central Baptist Church has owned for several months its lot at the corner of Cooper and Whitehall Streets, the erection of the church is not expected to start before 90 days. The board of deacons had a meeting the other night to talk about plans, and will have something definite to announce in a short while.

Manufacturing for Peachtree.

Light manufacturing will soon start in the lofts of the building at the northeast corner of Peachtree and Cain Streets. The Southern Candy Company has leased from J. Carroll Payne, owner, through Fitzhugh Knox, builder, the second story of this building for candy manufacturing and the first floor for retail purposes.

Johnson Motor Co. Lease.

Another automobile concern has located on Peachtree. The Johnson Motor Company, agents for the Stevens-Duryea, the Little Six and the Chevrolet automobiles, has leased from D. J. W. Roberts, through Turman, Black & Calhoun agency, half of the two-story and basement building at 455 Peachtree Street. The lease is for five years and the consideration $3,000 a year. This is the south half of the building, the other portions being leased to the Hendee Manufacturing Company, makers of the Indian motorcycle.

Christian Science Church.

The Christian Science Church, at the northeast corner of Peachtree and Fifteenth Streets, is fast assuming definite proportions. Workmen have completed the foundations and have done a good part of the outside brick work. This church will cost about $85,000 and will be one of the handsomest in the city.

Building Permits.

$250,000—Y. M. C. A., 71 Luckie Street, eight-story reinforced concrete building. King Lumber Company.

$60,000—James L. Wright, North Avenue and Willow Street, three-story brick apartment. R. M. Walker.

$4,000—C. H. Black, Hayden, Luckie and Harris Streets, one-story brick building. Day work.

$700 each—A. H. Almand, 264-266 South Humphries Street, two one-story frame dwellings. Day work.

BUILDING LOTS, BEDFORD PLACE, 10 PER CENT CASH

THESE LOTS are strictly choice, elevated, all improvements and close to Piedmont Park. Go out and look at the lots on the east side of Bedford between Seventh and Eighth. See the money being spent for improvements, note the class of houses going up, then try to find something as close in equally as good for $60 per foot. You CAN'T DO IT.

WE CAN sell nine lots, 51x160, all improvements down, for $2,750 each.

Terms: $275 cash, $275 each year for four years, balance at the end of five years. ONLY SIX PER CENT INTEREST.

Good lots are the sure money-makers. You can't make a mistake in buying such property as this on terms so liberal.

Just remember, it's always the land that advances.

STUDY THE MAP, see what big things are crowded around this particular section, then go out and look the land over, see what little property is not built up, then price that in built-up blocks and you can prove to yourself that a profit is sure on these lots on Bedford Place.

You can double your investment in a year.

If You Are in Debt, You Are a Fly Glued to the Flypaper.

The More You Struggle, the Tighter You Stick. Soon Your Courage Is Gone and You Are a Dead Fly.

Copyright, 1913.

The picture at the top of this page is a picture for more than half of all the people in this country.

More than half the people are in debt—that is to say, they are living beyond their means, or they are spending every cent.

And the man who is spending every cent he gets is actually in debt and running in debt, for he is running in debt TO HIS OLD AGE, when he won't be able to make, and won't be able to spend, and when the spending of to-day means debt later.

Those that are in debt know what debt is. There is no need to tell them about it.

First you owe $50 if you are a little man, or $50,000 if you are a big man.

And then you owe $100—or $100,000 if you are big.

For a while you struggle and plan. You are going to pay it off soon. It is a good thing to use "O P M," that is to say, other people's money, in the effort to get ahead.

You tell yourself that all the big men have used their credit and borrowed and gone ahead rapidly.

It all sounds very nice and plausible.

But remember that YOU KEEP GETTING IN DEEPER.

The fly lights on the fly paper, perhaps with only one leg at first. He says this is nothing, and puts down the other leg to push himself off.

AND THEN HE IS STUCK FAST.

And then he says to himself: "I will fly away from this fly paper," so he begins flapping his wings. And both of his wings stick to the paper.

There he is with his feet stuck and his wings stuck and only his head free.

That fly feels about as independent and hearty as you do if you are in debt. And he says: "I can get off of this paper easily enough when I get ready. I'll just put my head down and push myself off."

He buzzes for a while. THEN HE PUTS HIS HEAD DOWN ON THE FLY PAPER, TO PUSH HIMSELF OFF.

Then his head sticks tight; he begins to choke.

By and by he rolls over on his side, he sinks into the sticky surface—AND THERE IS ANOTHER DEAD FLY.

So it is with men in debt. So it will be with you if you stay in debt.

The only hope for the fly, the moment he feels one foot on the fly paper, is to use those wings and fly away, not putting in the other foot; flying off as quickly as he can.

And a million times wiser and better is the occasional rare fly, who sees the other flies sticking to the fly paper and says: "I don't like the look of those flies; I'll stay away from them."

Look at the people in debt. See their worry. See the anxiety of the mother, reflected in the children.

See the lack of standing, the extravagance and the poverty mixed together.

You can't mistake the human fly stuck on the fly paper of debt.

Since you cannot mistake him, why not keep away from that fly paper?

Debt makes everything worthless.

If you owe a thousand dollars, it seems rather foolish to save ten or twenty.

You feel that you might as well spend it; it won't make any difference.

And so it goes, if you owe two thousand. And then it isn't worth while to save twenty or forty.

And you become a failure. You put down your feet, and then your wings, AND THEN YOUR HEAD, WHICH IS AMBITION, and by and by you roll over and you are a dead fly.

Keep out of debt.

Congratulations We Do Not Want

Lord Welby, speaking in London at the annual dinner of the Cobden Club on the prospects of free trade, said that the members might congratulate themselves on President Wilson's new tariff bill. There is the bare truth about what is thought of the bill by the out-and-out free traders of England.

Richard Cobden died in 1865. The population of Great Britain has almost doubled since. Railroads were in their infancy, and it took weeks to cross the Atlantic. Telegraphy had just begun and ocean-spanning cables did not exist. Cobden could never have even dreamed of the cheap and vast transportation systems, by land and sea, of to-day. He could never even have dreamed of the year when the United States would practically consume all the wheat it would grow. He could never even have dreamed of the development of machinery, changing, as it has, the whole face of world-trade.

Yet they did dream in those days. Cobden's associates dreamed and prophesied, too. They prophesied, and loudly, that within fifty years every civilized nation would have adopted free trade, and they were exactly wrong.

It would take many volumes to tell the whole difference between the conditions of the world's business in 1865 and 1913.

There are some congratulations that may be paid for too dearly.

Rivalry in Religion

THE disappearance of sectarian bitterness is one of the most observable facts of to-day. Whatever may be thought of it, no man can regard it possible to check the movement which is breaking down the old denominational antipathies. It is interpreted by many as the best modern evidence that a Heavenly Power is at work in the world. They believe that the Spirit of its Divine Founder is prevailing in Christianity over the human passions of men, and that the gospel of love is at last conquering completely the hearts of those who preach it.

The large front of this movement appears in religious conventions and in the current religious literature. In reiterated proposals of church federation and missionary co-operation not a few religious leaders ardently believe that the amalgamation of denominations in one great inclusive church is not only desirable but inevitable.

Protesting the Movement.

But this rosy view has its checkmate and counter-blast. There are very many—probably at this time the majority of church communicants, who do not view the loss of the sectarian spirit with sympathy. Large numbers of leaders are flung in violent reaction against it. Within each denomination there are organs, and therefore an organization, of protest. A keen eye observes that the internal antagonisms in the different denominations on the subject is really helping on the movement of fraternity as between the denominations themselves by transferring the emphasis of the old conflict between them as sects to mere family disputes.

The question of denominationalism will not be settled wisely in this fashion. There are profound reasons for the existence and maintenance of divergent groups in Christianity. There are many of the best men in each denomination who observe the tendency of the times, feel its power, and are drawn into it, who still stoutly question, if it is not liable to cost the cause of Truth and the energies of religion more than all its compensating amenities can amount to. The man in the street does not see very far into the problem of denominationalism. It appears to him a plague of wicked envies and a useless waste of power.

The Real Values.

Why is it, then, that those inside the churches, as leaders and laymen, who are manifestly consecrated men of the finest good sense, are strong in their support of separate denominations, especially their own? It is because they know the real value of denominationalism. It is not a narrow sectarian meanness on their part. They lend no encouragement to theological strife and religious bad feeling. They lament the wounds which persecution and bigotry have made and would make again. But they know that after all there are convictions of religious truth worth fighting for, and that the great loyalties of conscience have been the levers of salvation for the human race. As students of church history, they know that the stubborn quality of soul, the heroic mold of character and the magnificent manhood which have fallen out of that history, are not to be lightly set aside or interpreted apart from the great competitions of religion in which they were generated.

New Denominationalism.

So the rapidly evaporating sectarianism of our time, if full of promise, is full of peril also. It is our task to provide a relation of religious groups to each other and toward their common cause which will conserve consecration and aggressiveness, while at the same time it encourages their basal fellowship.

I believe it can be done and that it will be done.

As Christianity stands to-day, the demand for an arrangement of its group forces in a provoking attitude toward each other, but with the supreme objective clear enough to cure the evils of sectarianism. The suggestion for a "New Denominationalism" is offered therefore as a substitute for the tendency toward "No Denominationalism." It is that the theological quarrel shall be subordinated to the logical contest of religious groups engaged constructively for the kingdom of God on earth. It should appeal to anyone that the rivalry of creeds giving way to the rivalry of deeds will be infinitely better than the mere subsidence of all rivalry which is threatened.
