CHAINGANGS ABOLISHED BY BILL IN SENATE

Measure Introduced by Foster Provides Sweeping Changes in Prison System.

Sweeping changes in the prison system of the State of Georgia are provided by a bill introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator A. H. Foster, of the Twenty-seventh District.

Senator Foster's bill, which he declares meets with the approval of Senate leaders, contains the following important provisions:

To provide for the inspection of all county jails.

To abolish the county chaingang.

To provide an indeterminate sentence in both felony and misdemeanor cases.

To arrange for the parole and after-care of prisoners.

To define the meaning of and disposition of habitual criminals.

To provide for a system of grades, classifications and credits of convicts while in the penitentiary.

To provide for the appointment and compensation of wardens and guards for the penitentiary.

Indorsed by Reformers.

Senator Foster stated shortly after introducing his bill that in addition to having the support of influential members of the Senate, the measure has the backing of the Georgia Prison Reform Association. The bill, Senator Foster stated, embodies the results of the investigations of the association and Philip Weltner, and in addition contains some ideas of his own.

Senator Foster declared that while he expected that some amendments would be made in the bill before it is passed, he would concentrate his efforts to retaining the wording of the original bill in the section relating to indeterminate sentences. This, he declared, was the most needed reform in Georgia prison methods.

The phrase "to abolish the county chaingang," in the caption of the bill, is confusing, inasmuch as slight reference is made to it in the body of the measure.

Senator Foster stated that his idea was not so much to totally abolish the chaingang system as to make it impossible to work negroes and whites together. He hopes, he says, to abolish the mixed chaingangs and segregate the races.

The sections of the bill set forth that the policy of the State shall hereafter be to so deal with convicts "that their punishment may serve to discipline them to right conceptions of citizenship."

Board Members Inspectors.

The burden of the inspection of prisons and jails is placed upon the State Prison Commission, which, declares the bill, shall provide for "quarterly visitation of all county jails and aid in their just, humane and economic administration." The Commission shall make a report of each visit to the Governor.

Instead of the fixed sentence, Senator Foster's bill declares that when any prisoner is convicted of a felony or misdemeanor the court shall pronounce an indeterminate sentence.

The bill also impresses upon the Prison Commission the necessity of segregating the youthful prisoners from the old and hardened offenders.

One of the strong and unusual features of the bill is a section providing that all moneys earned by the convict shall be paid to his family or others dependent upon him. The payment is placed in the hands of the Prison Commission.

All prisoners save lifers on charge of treason, arson or criminal assault are granted the privilege of applying to the Governor and the Prison Commission for parole three months before the expiration of the minimum time which they may be required to serve.

A resolution authorizing the appointment of a legislative committee of eight to investigate the State's

Mrs. Emmie Baker's Funeral Thursday

The funeral of Mrs. Emmie Louise Baker, who died suddenly of heart failure at her home, 280 North Moreland Avenue, will be held at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening at the residence.

Mrs. Baker, who was the widow of the late P. H. Baker, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stringer, of Talbot County, and lived in Troy, Ala., up to fifteen years ago. She was a member of the Ponce DeLeon Avenue Baptist Church, and had been prominently identified with church work.

Surviving Mrs. Baker are three sons and four daughters, P. D. and Gordon Baker, of Atlanta; Charles Baker, of Birmingham; Mrs. C. H. Richards, of New York; Mrs. C. L. Ruse, Mrs. C. H. Strong and Miss Emmie Baker, of Atlanta.

Atlanta Tennis Players in Front

NEW ORLEANS, LA., June 26.—Considerable progress was made today in the Southern tennis championship matches.

In the most interesting match of the early ones Carleton Smith and Eston Mansfield, of Atlanta, the former the present Southern champion, defeated Pipes and Maginnis, of New Orleans, 6-3, 6-1, 7-5.

In the singles Adoue defeated Shelton, 6-4, 6-4. Both are Memphians.

Many matches were postponed on account of rain.

JUDGE SPEER RAPS U. S. ATTORNEY GENERAL

Georgia Federal Jurist, Before Iowa Bar, Resents Probe of His Office.

SIOUX CITY, IOWA, June 26.—Severe criticism of the Attorney General of the United States for having him investigated by special agents and secret service men in the employ of the Department of Justice was the feature of the address of Judge Emory Speer, of the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia, before the Iowa Bar Association today. He also stated that the detectives are liable for contempt of court for operating in the presence of the court.

Judge Speer spoke to the Iowa lawyers, who are in annual meeting here, on "The Debt the American People Owe the American Judges." When he had finished that subject he discussed the action of the Department of Justice in probing his personal and judicial record.

Questions Right to Probe.

Judge Speer said, in part:

"More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Federal judge is the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the arbitrary espionage or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name? I speak impersonally and with all deference and respect for the distinguished official who is ex-officio the leader of the American bar."

Hints at Contempt of Court.

Judge Speer then stated that the examiner had appeared f court, made copious notes with significant gestures, conferred with disgruntled attorneys, received letters from convicts in the penitentiary, interviewed stubborn debtors who had been forced by the court to pay their obligations and examined newspaper files.

"The examiner, and I speak of him with great respect, even with timid deprecation, works in a mysterious way his wonders to perform," said the Judge, adding:

"He holds the fate of the judge in the hollow of his hand. And all the while, be it remembered, there are no charges pending against the judge, where such charges should be made. The examiner imparts to the judge no information whatever of any complaint. There is no chance for defense.

"This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor. If proper with a district judge, it is equally appropriate with the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States.

"For action less directly in the presence of the court, less interfering with the administration of justice, men have been convicted for contempt of court, and the convictions have been sustained."

MACON, June 26.—D. J. Bailey, chief examiner for the Department of Justice in the Southern States, has augmented the force of inspectors who have been at work in Macon and this district for several weeks in the investigation of the judicial and personal record of Judge Emory Speer. He arrived yesterday afternoon and immediately held a conference with District Attorney Alex Akerman.

Last night he left for Savannah, where Special Examiners Lewis and Jenkins are already engaged. Mr. Bailey declines to state the purpose of his mission, referring all inquirers to the Attorney General.

Senate Confirms All Recess Appointments

The Senate in executive session Thursday morning confirmed all of Governor Brown's recess appointments, including the members of the Board of Education.

Considerable interest was manifested in the latter appointments, but the confirmation by the Senate put an end to discussion.

Urges Underwood For Presidential Candidate in 1916

Oscar Underwood for President of the United States in 1916 is the slogan of Judge G. R. Hutchens, of Rome, who managed the Underwood campaign in Georgia last year. Judge Hutchens stopped Thursday at the Hotel Aragon, where he will remain for several days.

"Underwood is the logical man for the presidency," said Judge Hutchens Thursday afternoon, "and we are going to put him in the race long before the next election rolls around.

"Last year some people and one Atlanta newspaper in particular hotted at us when we proposed Underwood's name for the presidency, but they had nothing whatever to say when the primary vote showed that the Alabama man had swept Georgia by 15,000 votes. We can duplicate that vote in 1916."

If Wifey Balks at Getting Breakfast, Try Broyles' Menu

Recorder Broyles Thursday recommended a special breakfast menu for those husbands whose wives decline to get up early and prepare the meal.

Sliced bananas and apples are the ingredients.

He suggested this menu to E. L. Perkins, of 140 Julian Street, a railroad man, who was up for beating his wife because she had failed to cook his breakfast. Perkins, however, told the Recorder he hardly thought bananas and apples sufficient for a railroad man. He was placed on probation.

Dr. Joseph Jacobs, Atlanta Druggist, Weds in New York

Announcement was made late Thursday of the marriage of Dr. Joseph Jacobs, wealthy Atlanta druggist, to Mrs. M. E. Dickens, of Philadelphia, at high noon at the Plaza Hotel, New York city. Several close friends of Dr. Jacobs and members of his family were present.

The Atlantans in the party were Miss Daisy Jacobs, sister of Dr. Jacobs; his son, Sinclair Jacobs; Mrs. Evelyn Sweet Prescot, Walter Rich, Rudolph Adler and Eugene Oberdofer. They will return to Atlanta immediately.

Dr. Jacobs and his bride will sail Monday for a three months' tour of Europe. Mrs. Jacobs is well known socially in Philadelphia. Dr. Jacobs is one of the best loved men in Atlanta. He is famous as a devotee of Robert Burns.

Cool Weather Just Ahead, Forecaster's Solemn Assurance

Cooler weather is on the way.

"Fair and warm" is the forecast for Thursday, but moderate breezes sifting through the West and Middle West are due to reach Atlanta at no distant date. Possibly Thursday afternoon may bring a little relief from the high temperature of the last two weeks. Thunder showers are anticipated in the Atlanta territory, and if the city is so fortunate as to lie in the path of the rain it may enjoy moderate weather for a day or two.

This announcement was made by the United States Weather Bureau Thursday morning, and it brought joy unlimited. The drop in temperature may be as much as 8 or 10 degrees, according to official dope. Temperature at 7 o'clock Thursday morning was 75 degrees. At 8 it was 30.

1,600,000 Illinois Women Now Voters

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., June 26.—Governor E. F. Dunne to-day signed the woman suffrage bill. His act gave to 1,600,000 women of Illinois the right to take part in the election of all officials except those created by the Constitution.

The signing of the bill marked the culmination of a 23-year fight by women to gain the right to even a limited franchise.

Slayers Get $100,000 In Cash and Jewels

LOS ANGELES, June 26.—Gems and cash amounting to $100,000 were stolen by the robbers who murdered Charles E. Pennell, wealthy money lender and real estate broker, in his office yesterday.

The murder of Pennell was extremely brutal. Hatchets covered with blood stains were found in the room adjoining his office in a busy downtown building. Pennell's diamond ring and diamond shirt stud were stolen.

STOVER GIRL WILL STAR IN FRANK TRIAL

State, However, Must Prove She Entered Factory Before Mary Phagan.

With the selection of the court room made Thursday, all is virtually in readiness for the trial of Leo M. Frank, accused of strangling Mary Phagan. The venire of jurymen has been selected and July 28 fixed as the date, and both sides have announced they are ready to go into court.

A definite decision was reached by Judge L. S. Roan to hold the trial on the first floor of the old City Hall building. The decision was reached after a conference with Solicitor General Dorsey, and it was represented as impracticable to hold the trial in the small and not well-ventilated court room in the Thrower building.

The State is maintaining its determined attitude toward the subpenas duces tecum issued by the defense. Frank A. Hooper, assisting in the prosecution, has branded them as a palpable trick to discredit the testimony of the State's witnesses.

Girl Star Witness.

The witnesses will be present with the affidavits called for, but a hot fight will be put up by Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Hooper to prevent their use by the defense.

Monteen Stover, a timid little 14-year-old girl, will be a star witness in the trial, according to all indications Thursday.

The State, if it is able to establish that Monteen Stover entered the factory on the day of the crime just after Mary Phagan went inside, will have scored a most significant victory. The evidence will still be circumstantial, it is true, but it will be of greater weight even than the weird stories of the negro sweeper, Jim Conley, who has sworn that he aided Frank in disposing of the body.

Adds to Mystery.

Her story, however, until it is substantiated or disproved in court, only adds to the mystery of a crime which already abounds in baffling and mysterious phases. Her appearance on the witness stand may mean everything or nothing—because there is the startling fact that every indication points to Monteen Stover having entered the factory BEFORE Mary Phagan.

Monteen Stover is the daughter of Mrs. Homer Edmonson, of 171 South Forsyth Street. She formerly was employed at the pencil factory, and on the Saturday of the murder went to the building to get her money. She said that she arrived there at 12:05 and remained about five minutes. She said that Frank was not in his office and that she was not able to find him.

Pitted against the declaration of the little girl is the statement of Frank that he was in his office at the time. One of the two apparently has spoken falsely or mistakenly. It is the theory of the State that Mary Phagan had preceded Monteen Stover into the factory; that Frank had attacked her probably in the metal room, and that this is the reason the Stover girl was unable to find Frank in his office when she was in the building from 12:05 to 12:10.

The Phagan girl left her home at 11:50. She lives in Bellwood and the ride to town takes more than 15 minutes. The time that she left the car in the city is fixed by William M. Matthews, Motorman No. 1447, of the Cooper and Hendricks Streets run, who says that his car arrived at Broad and Marietta Streets that day between 12:07 and 12:10 o'clock.

If Mary Phagan had hurried, she barely could have got to the factory by the time the Stover girl was leaving, if this testimony can be relied upon implicity. The Stover girl's story falls down utterly, so far as its value is concerned, therefore, if Mary Phagan did not come into the factory until after the Stover girl had left.

MACON BUSINESS MAN INSANE IN ST. LOUIS

Friend of B. Sanders Walker Falls Victim of Heat While on Northern Trip.

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—Temporarily insane from the effects of the hot weather and alcoholic excesses, Patum Dean, 33 years old, of Macon, Ga., a friend of B. Sanders Walker, the Macon banker who died from the effects of bichloride of mercury taken by mistake for aspirin, is held here in the observation ward at the City Hospital following an attempt to swallow some of the poison which caused his friend's death.

Dean is connected with the Bibb Sewer and Pipe Company, of Macon, and the Evans & Howard Sewer and Pipe Company, of St. Louis. He came to St. Louis Sunday to confer with officials of the latter concern. He remained at the American Hotel until Monday, then checked out. Wednesday he called on his nephew, John Gentry, city passenger agent of the Southern Railroad. He was unable to give any account of his whereabouts since Monday.

Dean has a wife and four children in Macon.

PAINTER FAMILY LOSES IN SUIT FOR ORGANS

Court Asserts Right to Name Receiver—Relatives to Fight Appointment July 15.

BALTIMORE, June 26.—The demurrer offered by the family of Edward O. Painter, the late Jacksonville fertilizer man, against the appointment of a receiver for his viscera, was overruled by Judge Duffy in Circuit Court to-day. The receivership proceedings, however, were continued until July 15, during which time the defendants may show cause why a receiver should not be appointed.

When the case is reopened Judge Duffy will take testimony tending to show why a receiver should be named to take charge of the Painter organs. In the meantime they will remain here in the possession of Dr. Charles Glaser, chemist, to whom they were sent from Jacksonville for analysis.

In overruling the demurrer Judge Duffy said that the attorneys for the Painter family and Coroner Abbott had not shown it was within the jurisdiction of the court to appoint a receiver for the organs. The court, he ruled, had the power to appoint a receiver, but he admitted it was questionable whether the court, after appointing a receiver, had the right to order the receiver to make scientific examinations of the organs as has been asked by the Fidelity and Guaranty Company.

Last Militant of 7 Wins Hunger Strike

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 26.—The last of the seven suffragists sentenced to prison terms June 17 for malicious destruction of property was released from jail to-day because of illness brought on by a hunger strike. She was Miss Harriet Roberta Kerr, aged 54, manager of the headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union.

Six of the seven were women; the seventh was E. A. Clayton, who mixed explosives for the women.

BILL CALLS FOR INVESTIGATION OF W. & A.

railroad, the Western and Atlantic, and determine upon its proper disposal, was introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator J. T. Longino, of the Thirty-sixth District.

The committee is to be composed of three from the Senate and five from the House, and will do its work during the recess of the General Assembly. The members are to be paid their usual per diem and expenses, and shall report at the next meeting of the General Assembly.

Senator Longino's resolution specifically states that the committee shall investigate the best plan for "the renting of the property, and improving the State's property in Chattanooga."

No mention is made of the activities of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, or of the State convention proposed by that body.

Donaldson Would Bar Reformers From Camp.

Prison reformers will be barred from the convict camps in Fulton County, according to a resolution drawn by Superintendent T. J. Donaldson Thursday, which probably will be passed by the County Commission at its next meeting.

The resolution puts the ban on the "small army of ministers" and "all-day Sunday services" as well. A "convict parson" will be employed to preach regularly at each of the six camps. He will be prohibited from bringing more than one person with him. The service will be limited to one hour, from 11 to 12 o'clock each Sunday forenoon.

"I am getting tired of all this reform talk from people who do not know what they are talking about," said Captain Donaldson.

Satisfied Till Reformers Arrive.

"The condition of nine of every ten convicts of the 700 in this county is 100 per cent better than it was before they violated the law and received a sentence. Without an exception, the general health is better.

"The men have clean beds, get wholesome food and live under sanitary conditions that are far superior to anything they have known before. They are usually pretty well satisfied until Sunday, when these ministers and reformers worry them for several hours they could better enjoy in rest.

"Our convict system is about as good as any in the world. The idea that the men leave greater criminals than they were before they came to us is absurd. Some of them don't like work and would welcome the reform and flowery beds of ease, but if there is any good in a man he is willing to pay for what he has done without a murmur.

"The work reforms as many of the men as the ministers do. They leave us in a much better condition than they were when we got them and at least half start a new life.

"Those who do not reform could not be reformed unless a shotgun was used. If the conditions the reformers seek were brought about I would get rid of my property in Fulton County and go to some other State."

Captain Donaldson will urge the county board to adopt his resolution when it is presented, and he thinks it will be adopted.

Committees To Be Announced Next Week.

The various committee assignments in both Houses will not be announced before next week, as the framing of them is perhaps the very hardest and most exacting work that will come before the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House during the entire session.

President Anderson and Speaker Burwell began working on committee assignments immediately after adjournment yesterday, but it will require a week, perhaps, to finish the undertaking.

It seems to be an acceped fact that Representative Blackburn, of Fulton, is to be the House floor leader, inasmuch as he is reported slated to head the Committee on Rules, while it is freely rumored about the Capitol today that President Anderson proposes to evidence his entire friendship and good will toward his late rival, Judge Allen, the Senator from the Twentieth District, by offering him his choice between the chairmanship of the Finance and the Constitutional Amendments Committee in the Senate.

Both these suggested assignments apparently meet with the approval of the Houses involved, for nothing but commendation of them is heard on any hand.

Indeed, the fine feeling in the Senate, following the strenuous struggle for the presidency thereof, is remarked by every one, and it now looks as if the new Legislature is to get away with its work in a spirit of genuine good fellowship and mutual respect all around.

Certainly for the first time in ten years Georgia appears to have on hand a General Assembly that may be classed neither as a "Smith" nor a "Brown" body.

Beyond the suggestion of Blackburn for vice chairman of the Committee on Rules in the House and Allen for either Finance or Constitutional amendments in the Senate, the "dope" on the committee line-ups is pretty bad. Neither President Anderson nor Speaker Burwell will discuss the matter at all.

For the next two days the Legislature will do little more than "mark time," anticipating the inauguration of the new Governor and the winding up of the present administration.

Message Divides Members.

Preparations for Governor Slaton's inauguration on Saturday already are well under way. The ceremony will be quiet and dignified, the new Governor breaking a long line of precedents in Georgia, however, by delivering his message orally to the Legislature in joint session, rather than sending it in separately to both Houses, as a written document.

Short Thursday Session; Canvass Vote for Slaton.

Both the Senate and House of Representatives convened at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, but will have but a short hour in which to transact their individual business, as a joint meeting is scheduled.

At the joint session the vote for Governor will be canvassed and John M. Slaton formally declared elected. Beyond this neither House will hardly handle much business. Friday is expected to be a busy day, while Saturday will be devoted to the inauguration ceremonies.

Flow of Bills Begins in Senate.

The following bills were introduced in the Senate Wednesday morning:

By Senator Pope, of the Forty-fourth District, and Senator Hixon, of the Thirty-seventh—A bill to exempt from taxation farm products, including baled cotton grown in this State.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill to establish the new county of Tate, with Fairmount as the county seat.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill to compel two or more railroads entering a town or city to erect a union passenger station.

By Senator Smith, of the Ninth—A bill to empower judges of the Superior Courts to grant charters to private companies in vacation.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill permitting administrators to sue in homicide cases.

New Bills in Senate.

Among the bills introduced in the Senate to-day were:

By Searcy—To prohibit one person purchasing from another any spirituous or intoxicating liquors.

By Tarver—To give courts of original jurisdiction authority in certain cases to mold sentences so as to allow defendants upon the rendition of the verdict of guilty, to serve same outside the confines of chaingang, jail, etc.

By Tyson—To create the county of Evans.

By Ford—To rearrange the Albany and Southwestern Judicial Circuits, by transferring Dougherty County to the Southwestern Circuit.

By Tyson—To create the county of Hampton.

By Oliff—To amend an act creating a Board of Commissioners of Roads and Revenues for Charlton County.

By Stark—To amend an act creating the City Court of Jefferson.

By Pope and Oliff—To provide for the payment of fees now allowed by law to Ordinary as compensation for pension work.

Fixes Ordinaries' Fees.

By Oliff—To fix fees of ordinaries in this State.

By Elkins—To amend an act creating the City Court of Fitzgerald.

By Elkins—To amend sections of the code relative to mechanics' liens.

By DuBose—A bill to amend the charter of the city of Athens.

By Bush—To regulate insurance companies.

By DuBose—To amend the code relating to building and loan associations.

By Rushin—To repeal an act to establish the City Court of Vienna.

By Elkins—To regulate the meshes of seines, nets and traps.

Kills Man Boarding Train With His Wife

PHILADELPHIA, MISS., June 26. As John Hatcher was getting off a train at the depot here he met his wife, two children and H. Scott about to board it. Hatcher killed Scott.

He charges the dead man was about to abduct his wife and children, basing his charges on previous domestic troubles. The hearing of Hatcher has not been set.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Men

Send Name and Address To-day—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow-men to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest acting restorative, up-building SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4276 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

BROWN ADVISES AGAINST W. & A. EXTENSION

Cost, $20,000,000, Too Great to Be Compatible With State's Policy, Says Message.

Opposition to the extension of the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the sea was expressed in a message sent by Governor Brown to the Legislature. The cost of building such a road, which, it is said, would be about $20,000,000, is the reason given by Governor Brown for his opposition.

That the rental of such an addition, if possible to lease it, would not amount to more than the interest on the bonds, thus leaving nothing with which to pay off the principal, is one of the arguments advanced by him against the building of the road.

Governor Brown suggests that the State of Georgia might forever control its freight rates by obtaining a concession of land from Tennessee, giving it a frontage of a mile on the Tennessee River. A short branch could be built from the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the river and connection made with boats from Ohio and Mississippi River points. This, he states, could be done at a cost of $3,000,000.

That the Governor be authorized to appoint a commission to investigate the re-leasing of the Western and Atlantic is also suggested in the message.

Postal Receipts for Year to Make Gain; Show City's Growth

The annual report of the Atlanta postoffice for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, will show a substantial gain over 1912, according to Postmaster Hugh McKee, who declared Thursday that the past year has been one of the most satisfactory that the local postoffice has ever experienced.

"Atlanta is growing rapidly," said Mr. McKee. "Its growth is almost miraculous. We have been forced since the first of the year to put on a number of additional men in each department, and still we are handicapped.

"The receipts, I predict, will continue to climb each year."

Former Tennessee Governor, McMillin, Minister to Peru

WASHINGTON, June 26.—President Wilson to-day sent to the Senate the following nominations:

Albert G. Schmedemann, of Wisconsin, to be Minister to Norway.

Benton McMillin, of Tennessee, to be Minister to Peru.

Nathaniel B. Stewart, of Georgia, to be Consul at Milan, Italy.

to be a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission.

Armor Retains Job At Industrial Home

MACON, June 26.—W. F. Armor, the farm overseer of the Georgia Industrial Home, who whipped a 10-year-old boy with a rope last Friday, has not resigned, and does not intend to sever connection with the institution. The trustees have exonerated him.

It was stated yesterday by one of the trustees that Mr. Armor's resignation was forthcoming. In a statement sent from St. Simons, where he is spending a vacation, Armor states that he will not resign. However, his wife, Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, appeared before the trustees and offered an oral resignation for him. It appears now that she did this without his authority.

Time Gained by Boys Relaying Letter Lost

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 26.—After gaining five hours on their schedule last night in the Boy Scout relay race from Washington to Chicago, the time was lost early to-day when a delay occurred at Youngstown, Ohio, and the message will not reach Cleveland until the scheduled time, 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Russell Windisch, 6-year-old son of Major Windisch, will be the first Clevelander to run. He will carry the message 100 yards.

$77,000,000 in Junk Collected Last Year

WASHINGTON, June 26—The junk business is growing rapidly. During 1912 the value of secondary metals recovered showed an increase of more than $25,000,000, as compared with the figures for 1911. The total for 1912 was $77,395,843, according to a geological survey report.

The report does not set forth the amount of old iron and steel recovered by junkmen, nor does it take into account the precious metals.

Light Bond Registration.

COLUMBUS.—Registration books for the city hospital bond issue election closed last night, with a total registration of only 640, which is one of the smallest on record for Columbus, notwithstanding the great amount of interest that has been shown in the $60,000 bond issue.

Berries Eaten on Trip Into the Country Make Three Youngsters Ill.

The three children of Captain Lamar Poole, of the Atlanta police department, were reported Thursday morning as having recovered from the effects of ptomaine poisoning which they suffered while on a picnic.

Mrs. Poole said she had taken the children to the country Wednesday, and thought possibly they had been in the hot sun too much, or that the berries and sweet corn they had eaten for lunch had disagreed with them. A hurry call to police headquarters announced that they had been strangely poisoned.

The first signs that the children were suffering became evident at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Wallace, aged 12; Douglas, 8, and Elsie, 3 years old, were taken violently ill simultaneously after they had returned to their home at 255 Glennwood Avenue.

Chief Beavers hastened to the Poole home with a surgeon from the Grady Hospital. When they arrived, however, Captain Poole and Dr. Virgil Cook were there, and the children were soon relieved.

Father Sold Girl, 15, To Husband for $150

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—Teresinia Cotillo, 15, was sold to her husband by her father for $150, according to Deputy Attorney General Armon D. Clayton, of Delaware, who appeared in court here when the girl's father and husband sought to regain possession of her.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by Jacobs' Pharmacy under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

Submarine 'Movies' Taken in Diving Tube

NORFOLK, June 26.—Moving pictures of submarine life have been made possible through the invention by Captain J. H. Williamson of a flexible tube with a windowed chamber, in which three men can work.

A son of the inventor descended 35 feet at night, and with the aid of electric lights took pictures of fish at the bottom of Hampton Roads.

Conscience Sends Man to Chaingang

WAYCROSS, June 26.—Upon a plea of guilty of larceny after trust, Judge McDonald to-day sentenced A. L. Christian to serve twelve months on the chaingang or pay a fine of $150.

Christian surrendered in Richmond, Va., telling the police his conscience would not let him rest. He disappeared with $100 belonging to a Waycross fruit dealer.

Knew Assailants, Dies With Secret

CHICAGO, June 26.—Two men were saved from possible death today by the death of John Walsh, a saloonkeeper. Walsh knew the two men who recently assaulted and robbed him. He refused to tell the police who they were. Even when told that he was about to die he retained his secret, saying:

"I'll take care of them myself. I'm no squealer. I know 'em and I'll get 'em. I want to fight my own battles."

HATRED OF OWN FAMILY LEADS DOOMED CONVICT TO AUCTION OFF HIS BODY

FORSYTH, GA., June 26.—Hatred of his own family has prompted Thomas A. McCullough, a convict in the Monroe County chaingang, to advertise his own body for sale to the highest bidder.

Self-sworn never again to have anything to do with his relatives, he is now in mortal fear that his body after death will be turned over to them for burial. McCullough's fear has been increased by the physician's statement that he is suffering from heart disease and has not long to live.

The money which his body would bring is a secondary matter to the convict. His one real desire is that death shall not seal the breach which he has cherished and broadened in life between himself and his family. Therefore, by disposal of his body to some medical school for experiments he hopes to eliminate this possibility.

"Cut Up While Alive."

"Why shouldn't they buy me?" McCullough exclaimed as he leaned his great, hairy body against his pick and looked down at his interviewer. "I've been cut up while alive and I wouldn't care if they cut me up after I am dead.

"If I've got a thing to do with it, not a single member of my family will get my body when I die. I don't want them to have a thing to do with me. I'd rather be left out for the buzzards than be turned over to them."

McCullough's strange hatred is founded upon his belief that his family "turned him up" when he was in hiding from the officers of the law following his escape from the camp some months ago.

He had been sentenced to eighteen years' penal servitude for the murder of a negro in Spalding County. The deed was the outcome of a quarrel between the two in a gambling game.

Caught After Three Months.

McCullough was sent to the Morgan County convict camp, but escaped three months later. Eluding the officers through briar patches and woods, the fugitive finally made his way back to his home in Spalding County. He remained there in hiding for two months. Then he was discovered by the officers and sent to the State farm at Milledgeville. His last words to his family as he was taken from his home were curses on them for having "turned him up," or betrayed him to the law. Whether they did or not was never proven.

From the Milledgeville institution McCullough was sent to join the Monroe County chaingang. He has now served 15 months of his 18-year term.

McCullough is an extremist in all things. Physically he is a powerful man; mentally he is without moral sense, and while he is the most desperate character in the camp and the only man prisoner over whom a guard keeps watch day and night, still he is the best worker of them all.

In the camp McCullough remains aloof from his fellow prisoners. He suffers from melancholia a great deal and has nursed his hatred against his family until the flame has blazed into almost a mania.

Only Nature Softens Him.

Only the sight of some pet or captured animal about the camp quiets him. Then his nature changes instantly, and from the cursing half-maniac the powerful man becomes a child, and his hatred is drowned in his love for the things of nature.

Only recently did the convict learn of his malady, that he was afflicted with heart disease. When informed of this he was struck with terror, not of death, but the probable disposal of his body. He had visions of his still form surrounded by his family—the ones he hated. Then it was that he wrote out the advertisement and sent it to The Georgian for publication. Here it is:

FOR SALE—To the highest bidder for cash, I offer my body, which is 6 feet high, weighs 175 pounds, is large frame, well proportioned, 40 years of age and Caucasian race.

I have a sentence of 18 years for killing a negro in Griffin in 1911 and have no prospects, no hopes and no friends, hence, being in bad health, I am asking this proposition. Anyone wishing to consummate a trade, address Thomas A. McCullough, Box 271, Care Monroe County Convict Camp.

FREE SUGAR AND WOOL FIRST IN TARIFF BILL

Senate Caucus Ratifies Wilson's Policy—Foodstuff Clause Effective in 1916.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Free sugar in 1916 and free raw wool have been approved by the Democratic caucus of the Senate, after a two-days' fight, and are established in the new tariff bill. The sugar schedule, practically as it passed the House, was approved by a vote of 40 to 6. Free raw wool swept the Senate caucus by a vote of 41 to 6.

This ratification of President Wilson's tariff policy came after a long series of developments since the tariff bill passed the House in which the President had an active participation.

When the fight was getting hot the President declared any suggestion of compromise on the wool and sugar schedule ideas was absolutely out of the question.

Then he stirred administration leaders to action when he made his "insidious lobby" charge, which has brought results regarded as favorable to the tariff bill.

The six Democratic Senators who voted against free sugar on the final vote approving the schedule were Hitchcock, Nebraska; Newlands, Nevada; Ransdell and Thornton, Louisiana; Shafroth, Colorado; Walsh, Montana.

The six who opposed free raw wool were Chamberlain of Oregon, Newlands, Nevada; Ransdell and Thornton, Louisiana; Shafroth and Walsh.

No attempt was made to bind members to the action of the caucus. The question will come up when the entire bill has been passed upon.

MAYOR SCORES HIS ACCUSERS AS 'LIARS'

Abandons "Polite Words" in Denying Charge That He Opposes Crematory to Aid Power Co.

Mayor James G. Woodward Thursday branded as infamous liars all persons who persist in attributing his opposition to the crematory contract to a desire to help the Georgia Railway and Power Company.

Polite and parliamentary denials of the charge that he opposes the crematory because it embraces in its plans an electrical plant and repeated disavowals of any connection with the power company have failed to prevent anonymous charges of ulterior motives against him, the Mayor said.

"If they won't take polite language, I'll have to hand it to them more forcibly," said the Mayor. And he did.

"I have said time and again that the electrical plant had nothing to do with my position regarding the crematory," the Mayor continued. "I have nothing either for or against the electric plant. The power company has fought me, and I have said time and again that I am not trying to help them. I don't owe them anything except a fair deal.

"The situation is this: I want a contract independent of the one the courts enjoined, and I want a waterproof bond to protect the city. I take it that the papers before me now have possible loopholes in them. When the courts enjoined the first contract the General Council asked the Destructor Company for a proposition. The proposition was made and the General Council accepted it. This proposition continually regards the contract of 1912, which the courts enjoined. I don't see why they can't write out a contract complete in itself. If a contract like this is presented to me I will sign it.

"Since I have said repeatedly that this was what I insisted on I see no grounds for repeating the charges that I am acting in the interest of the power company. Those who do repeat them are liars, and I have no objection to your printing that."

On account of Alderman J. H. Harwell's motion to reconsider the crematory proposition will not be officially before the Mayor until July 10. Until that time, the Mayor said, it would be advisable to indulge in less palaver and crimination.

Still at Outs With Humphrey.

The breach between Mayor Woodward and Councilman W. G. Humphrey, chairman of the Council Finance Committee, apparently was as wide as ever Thursday, despite alleged denials.

"I said I had lost patience with the Mayor in his attitude on this matter, and I have," said Councilman Humphrey. "One time he told me he would sign the contract, and the next time he refused. I don't know what else can be done to please him.

"My conclusion is that he is unalterably opposed to the plant, and that whatever favorable attitude he has shown has been a stall and a 'fourflush.'"

Mayor Woodward said Councilman Humphrey used no hot words to him, but that he positively disagreed with him in the crematory contract.

Pictures Slaying In Confessing Crime

COLUMBUS, June 26.—Indications are that there will be no preliminary hearing given Homer Carmack, the young man held in Lee County, Alabama, jail in Opelika, for killing J. J. Folks, Phenix City merchant, but that he will be held for the Grand Jury, which assembles the first Monday in July.

Officers believe that there is no doubt of his guilt. In his partial confession Carmack implicated two other men, who have offered alibis, and pictured the slaying in a graphic manner.

THE SUCCESSFUL WINNERS IN PENMANSHIP CONTEST AT THE SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE

The Department of Penmanship Popularizing the Big Business School.

Good penmanship is one of the greatest aids to Business College students in securing positions, and that is why the Southern Shorthand and Business University, of this city, gives special attention to this important branch.

Miss Minnie Yancey and Mr. J. M. Harding are the tie winners in the Penmanship Contest just closed at the Southern, and they were awarded the prizes.

Another contest is now on, and much interest is being taken by the large and enthusiastic class of students.

Professor R. C. Childs, the principal of the Penmanship and Business Department, is a graduate of the Zanerian Art School, of Columbus, Ohio, the finest school of pen art in the world. The results achieved by the pupils under Professor Childs' direction are something wonderful. The course in penmanship alone is worth the amount charged for the entire business course; but it goes in absolutely free of cost to those taking either the Bookkeeping or Shorthand course.

MISS MINNIE YANCEY,
A Winner in the Penmanship Contest at the S. S. & B. U.

J. M. HARDING,
A Winner in the Penmanship Contest at the S. S. & B. U.

The business men prefer the Southern's graduates, because the Southern has stood for thoroughness; its bookkeepers are expert, and its stenographers are rapid and accurate.

"If several young persons, who were graduates of different business schools, should apply to me for a position at the same time, I would engage the one holding a diploma from the Southern Shorthand and Business University," said a prominent Atlanta business man to a prospective pupil who was making inquiry about business colleges.

Many are entering now and there is no better time to take a business or shorthand course than the present.

Salesmanship Course free to all entering for any other course before July 4. Call or write for catalog. Address, A. C. Briscoe, President, or L. W. Arnold, Vice President, 10 West Mitchell Street, Atlanta, Ga.

YANCEYS YET ARE UNPROVIDED FOR

"Workingman," Inclosing $10, Begs That Deputy's Family May Not Suffer Want.

"It is a blot on the fair name of Atlanta that the widow and six children of Dave Yancey should have to plead for a pittance that they may have bread and meat, and then not get it. I inclose $10 herewith to apply on the fund."

A ten-dollar gold certificate was inclosed with this note Monday from a person signing himself "A Workingman." The money was for the family of Court Deputy Yancey.

There have been few subscriptions to the Yancey fund this week. Although but barely more than enough to pay the mortgage off the little farm on the Jonesboro Road has been subscribed, Atlanta's citizens apparently feel they have done sufficient for the family of their servant who met his death doing his duty.

Compared with the prosperity of the Gate City, the wants of the Yancey family are insignificant, yet they mean everything that the future holds for the widow and her fatherless children.

More money is needed for this worthy cause, and every citizen who has not contributed his mite to the fund is asked now to do so.

The following are subscriptions which previously have not been acknowledged by The Georgian:

TALLEY APPEALS FROM SENTENCE

Man Who Shot Blackstock Gets 29 Days—Is Locked Up in Default of Bonds.

"Hub" Talley, who shot George W. Blackstock during a row in Peters Street several weeks ago, has filed notice of appeal from the sentence of 29 days in the city stockade imposed on him Wednesday afternoon by Judge Broyles, on a charge of discharging firearms in the city limits.

A State case also was brought against Talley before Judge Broyles in which Talley was held to the higher court on $5,000 bond on charges of assault with intent to murder and carrying concealed weapons. Talley's appeal bond was fixed at $500, in default of which he is a prisoner at police headquarters.

Two negro women who testified in Talley's behalf that Blackstock had an open knife in his hand when Talley shot him were held for the Grand Jury on perjury charges. Several white men testified Blackstock had no weapon when the fight occurred.

In an effort to prevent Judge Broyles from binding him over Talley's attorney, William M. Smith, told the court the prisoner had waived examination before Justice Powers and had been held for the Grand Jury in $500 bond. Judge Broyles could find no record that Talley had appeared before Justice Powers.

Attorney C. G. Battle represented Blackstock in the Police Court trial.

QUEEN'S BAN ON RIDING ASTRIDE CAUSES STIR

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 26.—Announcement that King George, Queen Mary and President Poincare of France would attend the International Horse Show at Olympia to-day brought out the biggest crowd since the show began. Among the spectators were many Americans and other foreign tourists.

The royal box was decorated with intertwined British and French colors. Much comment was aroused by Queen Mary's edict that women in the show should not ride astride while she is present. The Queen, the foremost champion of feminine modesty since Queen Victoria, recently issued the same order to her daughter, Princess Mary.

Miss Ruth Boyd, of New York, who has a number of horses entered in the show, threatened to withdraw because of the Queen's edict, saying she could not use a side saddle, having been used to riding astride all her life.

King and Queen Give Ball for Poincaire.

LONDON, June 26—President Poincare of France began the last day of his state visit to England by inspecting the magnificent royal residence at Windsor Castle. The original Windsor Castle was begun by William the Conqueror.

The crowning social event of the French President's visit will be a state ball at Buckingham Palace, given to-night by King George and Queen Mary. It will be the most splendid social event in court circles so far this season.

President Poincare will leave tomorrow morning for Paris.

Younger Set of Millionaire Colony Engages Instructor for New Dances.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—During the coming season, which gives promise of being one of the most brilliant in the history of the fashionable colony, fancy dancing will be one of the popular diversions.

The younger set, of which Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., is a leader, has engaged an instructor, and dancing quite dissimilar to the popular tango and turkey trot will play an important role in the amusements of the millionaire cottage colony.

Mrs. Spencer, who is a member of the Casino Tennis Committee and active in the numerous affairs in which the younger set is interested, is an accomplished dancer herself, and any new forms of dancing inaugurated by her are certain to be taken up and followed by the young people of Newport. The colony is awaiting this innovation with interest.

Mrs. Spencer won particular admiration from society when she danced at the big benefit of the girls' branch of the Public School Athletic League, given at the Waldorf in New York last February. Her artistic Swedish dances in costume won her a tremendous ovation and three times she was asked to repeat them.

Admits Flagler Died In Guarded Cottage

NEW YORK, June 26.—W. H. Beardsley, attorney for the executors of Henry M. Flagler, admits that the cottage in which Mr. Flagler died at Palm Beach was surrounded by detectives during the latter's illness.

"It was necessary," said Mr. Beardsley. "Mr. Flagler himself, as well as the doctors demanded it. Had not officers been there hundreds of persons would have invaded the place."

New Society to Urge Drummers to Pray

The Traveling Men's Prayer Book Society is the latest organization within the Episcopal Church. The society is to encourage the practice of prayer and scripture among travelers. It was founded by Archdeacon Webber.

W. E. Dobbins, of Atlanta, is warden of the society here and Bishop Nelson is one of its patrons.

'Movies' to Show Newport Robbery

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—One of the large villas in the summer colony here is to be used as a central scene in a new moving picture to be produced.

Actors and actresses have arrived here, and it is said that the beginning of the picture will portray a robbery at one of the summer homes

COTTON TARIFF A MESS, SAYS EXPERT

R. K. MacLea Writes O'Gorman Lobby Cry Drove Honest Business Men Away.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Robert K. MacLea, associate editor of Dry Goods and formerly consulting expert of the Tariff Board, has sent to United States Senator James A. O'Gorman a letter in which he criticised the cotton changes in the Underwood tariff bill made by the Senate committee and declared that the sub-committee in making them "has been misled by its experts, as I feared likely."

Mr. MacLea has had 25 years' experience in all branches of the cotton trade and his plain talk to Senator O'Gorman will, it is believed, attract much attention at Washington.

In the letter he says:

"I was greatly surprised to read the changes made by the Senate Finance Committee, and while I realize that attempts have been made presumably to eradicate some of the evils of the Underwood bill in regard to cotton manufactures, they have to my mind in reality made a worse mess of it than I could have imagined possible.

Says Business Men Will Protest.

"There is no excuse for discrediting the cost accounting shown in the tariff board report on Schedule I. I know that Mr. Patton, one of the experts relied upon by the Senate sub-committee, has rejected its facts, for he told me so recently, stating that it was not worth anything to him and that he cared nothing for it.

"I am sure that when the business men appreciate this situation, they will be heard from in no unmistakable voice. They will understand it in the course of a year certainly.

"There is no reason why a proper cotton and yarn schedule should not have been formulated and I wish to protest vigorously against the enactment into law of the Senate amendments without further adequate changes to properly correct the oversight of the House of Representatives' measure as passed by them and the additional oversights of the Senate sub-committee.

Business Men Driven Away.

"Many honest business men have lately turned away from Washington by the 'lobby' insinuations; yet in one of President Wilson's most notable speeches before he took office he appealed to the 'honest business men of the United States' to help him with legislation.

"Hundreds in the cotton industry had accepted the invitation and after depending upon a correct interpretation of facts by the House of Representatives found that recommendations with proofs had in many ways been ignored. They have since been driven away from Washington in their further honest efforts to point out errors made."

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

In these parlous times of political maneuvering, wherein one must be both as wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove, politicians of more or less caliber, who never yet have ventured very far from shore, will do well to learn one lesson from the cases of J. Randolph Anderson, President of the Georgia Senate, and William H. Burwell, Speaker of the House.

Neither man won his fight by way of mere personal popularity alone, albeit each has many warm friends and stout-hearted supporters.

The gentleman who put over both Anderson and Allen is none other than our venerated and esteemed fellow citizen, Old Man Hard Work!

Anderson and Burwell have been tireless in their efforts to succeed in their undertakings. Both men have lived their races for months. Anderson and Burwell were at it hammer and tongs while some of their opponents were seeking membership in the Don't Worry Club.

Politics, unlike kissing, rarely goes by favor. They that seek find, if they seek diligently enough—or, at least, they that do not seek rarely find.

Anderson and Burwell both are experienced legislators. Each has served a long and active term of service. Both are first-class parliamentarians, both good speakers and are both fine diplomats. Neither should in any manner "fall down on his job," and it isn't at all likely that either will.

There is a particularly fine and friendly feeling among members of both Houses, and the chances are that Georgia has on its hands at last a Legislature that will be able to proceed to its work free from partisan bias or internal feuds.

That's saying a good deal—but it looks as if the saying is warranted!

Hon. O. K. Jones, one of Lowndes County's representatives, and a strong believer in tax equalization or reform will introduce a bill in the Legislature providing for the appointment of a board of three tax assessors for every Georgia county.

Mr. Jones believes that valuations can be raised 25 per cent without working any hardships, and the State pulled out of the financial bog within a year, by the work of competent and conscientious assessors. There is no question that millions of dollars of taxable property is never returned. The uncovering of this property would within itself materially increase revenues. Representative Jones says:

"To make the proposed boards of real benefit, the members should be appointed and their tenure of office entirely independent of public suffrage. Many a tax receiver has beaten himself by a conscientious and zealous effort to secure just tax returns in his county, and it takes a pretty brave officer to persist in a course, however right, which he knows will beat him at the polls. That danger is removed when the assessors are made appointive."

Governor Brown literally has been swamped with callers to-day and yesterday. The Governor still is very much of an active agent in politics, and keeps in close touch with his friends, just as very many of his friends insist upon keeping in very close touch with him.

To-day and to-morrow will be his last days as Chief Magistrate, for by Saturday morning, when his successor will be inaugurated, he will have everything in shipshape for the new Governor.

It may be taken as a certainty that the Governor will not retire absolutely from sight politically, although it undoubtedly is his purpose to refrain from meddling in the new Governor's business, if he might.

Governor Brown and Governor-elect Slaton are firm friends of years standing. The new Administration will have no more earnest well wisher than the present Executive.

House bill No. 1 this year is in, by Mr. Cole, of Bartow, and proposes a graduated inheritance tax for Georgia.

House bill No. 1 in the last Legislature was the famous "Tippins bill" of fragrant recollection, which had the stormiest career of any measure introduced.

It weathered the gales in both the House and the Senate, only to go to wreck eventually on the rocks of an executive veto.

House bill No. 1 this year seems destined to a kinder fate. The inheritance tax idea is popular in the Legislature, and the chances that such a measure may become the law are exceedingly bright.

Mr. Cole has this bill very much at heart, and will leave no stone unturned to push its passage.

Cole, by the way, is one of the younger members of the House, sure to take a high stand among his colleagues. He is well on the sunny side of 30, and is one of the most successful business men in North Georgia. He started his career some ten years ago with something like $1.35 capital, and to-day he is worth—well, he's mighty well fixed for his age, and he is progressing every day! All that he has has been accumulated by hard work and sticking everlastingly at it—he never stops on a job he is undertaking to put over.

Cole has made a deep study of inheritance taxation. The law he proposes for Georgia is based upon the best things he could gather from other inheritance tax laws, particularly from the splendid one California has on her statute books.

Two fine young Georgians to whom Speaker Burwell feels heavily indebted for his victory of Wednesday are Thomas F. Fleming, of Sparta, and H. L. Gardner, of Eatonton.

This pair worked in season and out for Burwell, remaining constantly in his headquarters in Atlanta during the last days of his campaign. Both are affable, earnest and sincere workers, and much of the happy outcome of Burwell's fight is due to them and their loyal work.

Grover Edmondson, of Brooks, is the "baby" of the House, but he doesn't look it nearly as much as does Wisdom, of Forsyth.

Edmondson is a big, husky youngster of 22, while Wisdom is an extremely boyish looking kid of 24.

Both are fine chaps, however, and likely will be heard from in the present House.

TEACHERS MEET NEXT WEEK IN CONTESTS

High School Instructors Also Will Hear Experts in Conferences at Athens.

Several hundred high school teachers, college instructors and others interested in the development of the State high schools will visit Athens next week to attend the sixth annual State high school contests and High School Association meetings. Conferences and meetings will begin July 1 and continue until July 5.

Among the conference speakers and lecturers will be a number of high school experts of the United States, including Dr. H. A. Hollister, of the University of Illinois, and Dean Southwick, of the Boston School of Expression.

Dr. Hollister will lecture each morning at 8:45 o'clock in Peabody Hall, beginning Tuesday. Dean Southwick will deliver three lectures Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings at 10:25 o'clock.

Experts to Hold Conferences.

State high school experts will lead conferences on "Methods of Improving the Teaching Force of the High Schools," "Should Georgia Organize a Teacher Training Course in the High Schools?" and "Means of Bringing the High School Closer to Community Life."

Special conferences will be held throughout the week on home economics, science, mathematics, language and English. The conference on home economics will be conducted by Miss Elizabeth Holt, of Augusta; the conference on science will be conducted by Principal W. P. Jones, of Rome; the conferences on mathematics, language and English will be in charge of Dr. R. P. Stephens, Principal N. G. Bartlett, of Dublin, and President F. F. Rowe, of Thomaston.

The high school contests will be inaugurated Wednesday, July 2, with preliminary debating contests in Peabody Hall. Thursday a music contest and a State championship debate on woman suffrage will be held.

Hold Contests Friday.

Declamation, athletic, spelling and recitation contests will be held Friday. Gold medals will be awarded in all events and a $300 scholarship of Brenau Conservatory will be awarded to the State winner in the music contests. The winner in the debate will be awarded a $50 set of books.

Dr. J. W. Riley Ends Successful Revival

Dr. J. W. Riley, noted Minneapolis Evangelist, closed his ten-days campaign for membership at the Tabernacle Wednesday night. Dr. Riley's efforts have met with great success. At the services Tuesday evening the front seats of the auditorium were filled with new members brought into the church through Dr. Riley's work. More than 100 also joined the Sunday school.

The evangelist will return to Minneapolis for a two-weeks' stay, after which he goes to Estill Springs, Tenn., to conduct services there for a week.

Do You Want to Save a Baby Life?

Quart of Milk Daily Is the Means

Mothers' Congress Asks Your Aid

A campaign for pure milk for the poor babies of the Gate City was inaugurated Thursday morning by the Mothers' Congress of Atlanta. The members plan to engage actively in the work of helping the babies who can not help themselves, and through the president, Mrs. John W. Rowlett, have sent out the following appeal:

One hundred persons are wanted each to furnish one quart of milk daily for one child. If you are willing to help save one baby, send your name to Mrs. John W. Rowlett, 186 East Pine Street.

The officers of the congress declare that, when they have obtained the names of the 100 persons willing to save a baby each, it will be but the opening wedge in the work they have undertaken. The ultimate object of the campaign is the establishment of milk stations in sections of the city where they are needed, thus enabling the mother to be instructed as well as helped.

Evans Eager to Help.

The fact that aid for the poor babies of the city is imperative and must be given at once was established by the congress after a conference had been held with City Warden Evans. Mr. Evans furnished the officers of the congress with a long list of children whom it is proposed to make the beneficiaries of the one quart of milk a day plan, and he has offered to co-operate with the congress in every way possible during the campaign.

"The question of caring for the babies of Atlanta during the months when the chances for the baby to survive are few, is a vital and pressing one," declared one of the officers of the congress Thursday morning, "and the question of furnishing pure milk to the children should be taken up in earnest by the people of Atlanta. We are hoping for a hearty and encouraging response to our request for a 100 quarts of milk a day for the babies, and would ask that every person contemplating enlisting in the good work send in their names as soon as possible.

"We hope to show the vital need of this work by the good we can do with the '100 quarts a day plan,' and so arouse the people of Atlanta that pure milk stations can be established.

Blames Improper Feeding.

"Improper feeding is the chief cause of infant mortality, and ignorance is very often the cause of improper feeding. Hence a campaign for the reduction of infant mortality must not only give relief at once, but must also instruct the mother in the care of her child, especially during the summer months."

The Congress of Mothers of Atlanta has for several years been fighting on behalf of the baby, and have aroused a great deal of interest in their work throughout the city. Several years ago they tried to bring to Atlanta a Gordon-Walker Laboratory for the certification and purifying of milk, but failed through lack of financial backing.

The congress co-operated with the City Board of Health, and has been active in the movement to have milk delivered at a temperature of 55 degrees.

Your Aid Is Needed to Save the Babies

Hundreds of poor babies are suffering in Atlanta today, insufficiently and improperly nourished. Hundreds of them will die during the torrid months of July and August unless something is done for them.

The Mothers' Congress of Atlanta has undertaken to save at least one hundred of these babies whose parents are too poor to provide them with proper food and nourishment by supplying each baby with a quart of pure, fresh milk each day. They are calling on one hundred citizens of Atlanta for aid, asking them to each furnish one quart of milk each day.

If you are willing to help save one little life and make one home brighter, send your name at once to Mrs. J. W. Rowlett, 186 East Pine Street.

CALLS COURT TO PROBE LYNCHING

Judge Littlejohn Orders Special Session at Americus to Convene Next Monday.

AMERICUS, June 26.—Judge Z. A. Littlejohn has signed an order calling for a special session of the Sumter County Superior Court to investigate the lynching of Will Redding, a negro, for shooting Chief of Police W. C. Barrow last Saturday night. The order fixes next Monday as the time for court to convene.

It is also ordered that the same Grand Jury that served at the recent term of the court be resummoned to investigate the lynching. This Grand Jury is known as one of the most fearless that ever served the people of Sumter County, having indicted a number of well-known men for gaming and others for violation of the prohibition law.

Sunday morning the city was all agog with talk of the lynching. Now, strange to say, no one can be found, without difficulty, who will speak of the affair except as having been informed by someone else.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst Are Hosts to U. S. And Foreign Officers

NEW YORK, June 26.—Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst entertained the officers of the American, Brazilian and Argentine warships lying in the Hudson River. The naval officers met at Mr. Hearst's home in Riverside Drive, as did some of the women in the party.

From there they were conveyed to the New Amsterdam Theater in theater coaches, attending the performance of Ziegfeld's Follies. Following the performance, the party returned to the Hearst home for supper and dancing.

Among the civilians in the party were John Purroy Mitchel, Collector of the Port, and Justice James W. Gerard, of the Supreme Court.

Accused of Stealing Check While Drunk

Charged with stealing a cashier's check for $126, which, it is said, he wrapped up with his clothes in the Southern Express Company's office, while intoxicated, R. L. Underwood, a former employee of the company, has been placed on trial in the criminal division of the Superior Court.

The letter, it is asserted, was found in Underwood's boarding house.

DRUGGIST GIVES MONEY BACK

Dodson's Liver Tone Gets a Four Square Guarantee From All Drug Stores.

When an article is sold a druggist who is willing to give it his personal guarantee, it's a mighty strong proof of real merit.

That's exactly the case with Dodson's Liver Tone. It is a pleasant-tasting, vegetable remedy for a slow and sluggish liver. Since Dodson's Liver Tone came on the market the sale of calomel has gone 'way down. The reason is simply this: Dodson's Liver Tone is safe and harmless and guaranteed to be satisfactory—Calomel is often uncertain, sometimes dangerous, and no druggist wants to guarantee that it won't knock you out of a day's work and maybe send you to bed.

All druggists sell Dodson's Liver Tone and guarantee it. For you and for your children it's a good thing to keep a bottle always in the house.

All dealers will give you your money back if you think Dodson's Liver Tone is not worth the price. "Keep your liver working and your liver will not keep you from working," is good advice to go by.

DRAW ENDS SHAM BATTLE OF TROOPS

BRUNSWICK, GA., June 26.—Officers of the Georgia State militia and regular army men here to observe the maneuvers are much pleased to-day over the excellent work of the troops in the second sham battle of the encampment yesterday afternoon.

The battle ended in a draw, the infantry under Major Hunter being unable to dislodge Major Seamans' dismounted cavalry from their intrenchments, while the latter had their hands full trying to repulse the attacking forces.

The Orange army, equipped for field duty, marched directly from Camp Brown to the sea, and then proceeded northward about a mile, where intrenchments were thrown up. At places the earthworks were five feet in height, and the defenses were concealed by canes and rushes cut from the neighboring swamps.

The Blue army, under command of Major Hunter, approached from the heavily wooded land side, but was held at bay by the Orange outpost, under command of Captain Rudisail, of Atlanta, long enough for the Orange army to intrench its position. The Blue army took up a position running parallel with the railroad. The battle line was about 2,000 feet long.

A number of Atlanta women were entertained by the officers of the Second Squadron and the Third Battalion yesterday. Most of the visitors formed parties and went fishing, and some good catches were made. Mrs. C. W. Hatcher, of Atlanta, caught and towed to the shore a five-foot shark, which she shot and killed.

$2,000,000 Is Frisco Stockholders' Loss

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—Stockholders of the Frisco System have lost nearly $2,000,000 in the depreciation of the values of common and preferred stock since the railroad went into the hands of a receiver, according to estimates made from the stock books in the last week.

James Campbell, of St. Louis, is holding stock worth $214,220 less than it was before the receivership suit was begun.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Bondholders of the Frisco will suffer no loss in the readjustment of the road's finances, according to Prince Poniatowski, a French banker, who sailed to-day after personally investigating the affairs of the road.

WISE TO RUN FOR CONGRESS AGAIN

J. W. Wise, of Fayette, who was beaten by a scratch last year in the race for Congress from the Sixth District, will enter the race again next year. Mr. Wise says he hopes to get sufficient votes next time to leave not a shadow of doubt of election.

In the last contest in the Sixth the district voted as a whole, the candidate receiving the largest vote to be declared the nominee. When the returns were announced it is said the count showed Mr. Wise to be the winner by about 200 votes over his opponent, Congressman Bartlett.

Later, however, Mr. Wise received information from Macon to the effect that there had been a change in the vote in some of the city precincts.

Mr. Wise says he never has been satisfied with that decision, but has determined to bide his time and get into the race next year. He says he has been overwhelmed with messages urging him to enter the race at the next election.

ICE $1 MORE IN ATLANTA THAN IN MACON

Same Concern Charges 45 Cents Hundred Here, 25 Cents in Bibb County Capital.

Atlanta, with far greater population, is paying more for ice than Macon.

The wholesale price in Atlanta is $4 a ton, or $1 more than the Macon price. The comparison is even more distinctly to the disadvantage of Atlanta, in the prices for small amounts of ice at retail, the price being 30, 35 and 40 cents per hundred in Atlanta compared with a straight 25-cent rate in Macon.

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation is the principal manufacturer and distributor of ice in both Atlanta and Macon, and it also is in Chattanooga, Rome, Augusta and Jacksonville.

Three Dollars Ton in Macon.

As a result of the competition between the two ice companies in Macon, the Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation and the Southern Ice & Coal Company, ice is selling at wholesale in Macon for $3 a ton. At the beginning of the season the rate was $4.50. The retail purchasers, those who buy 10 or 15 cents worth at a time, are now getting their ice in Macon at the rate of $5 a ton, or 25 cents a hundred pounds. Formerly they paid $7.50 a ton, or 37 1-2 cents a hundred.

In Atlanta the wholesale price is $4 a ton. Ice is sold at retail on a graduated scale—30 cents per hundred in amounts over 50 pounds; 35 cents per hundred in 25-pound lots and 40 cents per hundred in 10-pound lots.

The Atlanta customer who buys 10 pounds of ice, pays more than the Macon customer did before the ice war in Macon started. Before the price cutting began in Macon, the price of ice in small lots was 37 1-2 cents per hundred pounds. In Atlanta the price then, as it is now, was 40 cents per hundred pounds.

To get ice as cheap as it sold in Macon before the price war started, the Atlanta purchaser must buy at least 25 pounds. He can not buy any amount of ice as cheap as it sells in Macon to-day.

Says Price Will Be Raised.

When asked why Atlanta had to pay a higher price for ice than Macon, W. B. Baker, vice president and general manager of the Atlantic, said Wednesday that Macon was in the throes of an ice war, started by their competitor, the Southern Ice & Coal Company. The price there was too low, he said, and at the end of the war would be raised to a reasonable figure.

"The Southern started the price cutting," Mr. Baker said. "It is a small company, with 60ton capacity. We have a 300-ton plant, with 14,000 ton storage capacity. They started last summer and had to cut prices to get any business.

"It is simply a question of supply and demand in Macon. Ice will not keep always ,and they they make it they have to sell it. They couldn't get our customers without offering an inducement, and so they began to cut prices. The cut, however, applied only here and there. Our policy is to treat everybody in the city alike. When they cut at a few places, we met the cut, and pursuant to our policy, gave the same cut prices to everybody in the city. We always do that."

In direct reply to this is the charge that the Atlantic is a trust and has suppressed competition in Atlanta, Augusta, Rome and Jacksonville and is attempting to do the same thing in Macon. This charge was brought by the Southern Ice & Coal Company, which has secured an order from the Superior Court enjoining the Atlantic from further reducing prices until a court hearing on July 25. It was charged that because the Southern would not sell out to the "trust", the rates were cut to such an extent that ice was selling at ruinous prices.

Restrained in Chattanooga.

Mr. Baker admitted ice was selling too low in Macon and said it would advance. He laughed at the Southern Company's suit, saying they wished now they had not brought it.

"And as for our having suppressed competition in certain places," he continued, you know yourself that we have three competitors in Atlanta. We also have two competitors in Augusta and two in Jacksonville and one in Rome, because Chattanooga ships ice to Rome against us. We also have another competitor in Macon, because a brewery there sells ice against us."

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation was recently restrained by Chancellor McConnell, of Chattanooga, from selling ice below a stipulated price in a certain zone of that city. The same charge of attempting to kill competition was made against them."

There still remain the conflicting stories of the Stover girl and Frank, even though they can not have a direct bearing on the case. The Stover girl says Frank was not in his office and he declares that he was there until he went to the fourth floor to see Arthur White and Harry Denham.

The defense will be able to say, however, that Frank probably was perfectly sincere in his declaration, but that, as a matter of fact, he might have stepped out of the office for a few minutes and not have recollected it when he was telling his story before the Coroner's inquest. They will argue that it is a very difficult matter for a person to recall every move he made at certain times unless something occurs to impress it on his memory at the time.

Woman Builds Cats' Home Costing $15,000

GREENWICH, CONN., June 26.—Work on a $15,000 home for cats was begun by Mrs. Clifford B. Harmon at Indian Harbor, near here. There are to be eight rooms, electric lights, steam heat and a kitten nursery.

MADISON, WIS., June 26.—Just before the walls on the fourth floor of the new Capitol were closed by marble setters, a cat strayed into the opening. A square of marble was removed, at a cost of $300, to rescue the perishing feline.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

"Ideal" Has Fine Diving Act.

Gertrude Vanderbilt and George Moore, singers and dancers, are registering a hit at the Forsyth this week. "Ideal," the champion lady swimmer and diver, is also a feature, presenting a novelty act that has attracted a world of interest. She shows dives no other water star has exhibited and that the act is a big drawing card is very much in evidence.

The Six Musical Cuttys, in a splendid musical novelty, and Minnie Allen, in an unusually clever act, make things interesting. All the other acts have won attention.

The headliner for next week will be Edward Abeles, the distinguished comedy star, who has been identified with such New York successes as "Officer 666" and productions of that sort.

Many See "Qou Vadis" at Grand.

"Quo Vadis," the wonderfully successful photo-play now in its second week at the Grand, attracts hundreds of people to the daily matinee and evening performances. Of all the thousands of people who saw the pictures last week and who are attending the exhibitions this week, not one has been disappointed.

The presentation of "Quo Vadis" will continue at matinee and night performances the rest of the week.

"The Merry Whirl" Pleases.

Lovers of musical comedy are highly pleased with "The Merry Whirl," this week's attraction at the Bijou. Of the several tabloids that have visited Atlanta, it is safe to say that none has given better satisfaction or drawn larger audiences than this one. Miss Marjorie Lake, in the role of Fifi, is one of the cleverest performers that has ever visited the Bijou. The three comedians, Lew Miller, Harry Loder and Sol Carter, are a show in themselves.

PUSHES DEMAND FOR PAPERS IN M'NAB CASE

Kahn Urges Committee to Favor His Resolution for Accounting From McReynolds.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Representative Kahn, of California, to-day vigorously urged the House Judiciary Committee to make a favorable report on his two resolutions calling for correspondence in possession of the Department of Justice relative to the Caminetti-Diggs white slave case which led to the resignation of District Attorney John L. McNab, of San Francisco.

Mr. Kahn declared that McNab notified McReynolds that witnesses were being tampered with in the Caminetti case.

He pointed out that in McNab's telegram to President Wilson, McNab charged open boasts were made that influence was to be used to prevent the prosecution of Caminetti and Diggs.

Representative Thomas, a member of the committee, wanted to know if Kahn knew what witnesses had been tampered with.

"I expect that to be disclosed by the correspondence," replied Mr. Kahn. "Here is an attorney who, evidently, sought to do his duty and was frustrated. A special attorney probably will be hired and he will get a big fee."

Youth Slays Father To Protect Mother

LAFAYETTE, IND., June 26.—John C. Barger, railroad conductor, was killed by his son, Paul Barger, 18, to-day, when the elder Barger attacked his wife.

The boy said that his father was choking his mother when he fired a revolver three times, holding the muzzle against his father's side.

Shaft Unveiled to Late Congressman

DAWSON, June 26.—A handsome monument to the late Congressman James M. Griggs was unveiled in Dawson to-day. A large crowd was present from all sections of the Second District.

Ex-Congressman William M. Howard, of Lexington, Ga., a colleague and warm personal friend of Judge Griggs, delivered the presentation speech, and little Theodosia Griggs Hollingsworth, a granddaughter, unveiled the monument. M. J. Yeomans delivered the speech of acceptance.

The monument was erected with funds raised by popular subscription.

Sinclair's Divorced Wife Denied License

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 26.—Mrs. Meta Sinclair, the divorced wife of Upton Sinclair, the novelist, and Hubert Halliwell of this city were unable to get a marriage license from City Chamberlain Jesse J. Graham of this city, who refused it because they have been living at Dr. Sahler's sanitarium at Woodstock, whereas Mrs. Sinclair gave her residence as New York City.

After being refused a license Mr. Halliwell and his fiancee went to the home of Mr. Halliwell's mother in this city.

Mr. Halliwell admitted that he would be married within a week, but by whom or where he refused to say.

$8.50 to $12.50 Lingerie Dresses $5.85

Look at these dresses with critical eyes—compare them with the best dresses you have been able to find heretofore for $8.50 to $12.50. Having just arrived Monday, they portray the latest style thought. They have the "new look"—shaping shoulders and sinuous lines.

Something like 200 in all—crepes, soft and crinkly; voiles, winsome, open to the air; crepes, bestrewn with buds and dainty flowers; linens, firm, flaxful; tissues, striped, as sheer as gossamer; ratines, tousled like a Turkish towel.

There are plain one-piece dresses, some entirely of laces and tucking; the new coat dresses; composed dresses, the tunic of floral crepe, the skirt of voile. Many of the dresses have the new crushed silk girdle. All white, colors, or white and colors in combination. Delightfully new $8.50 to $12.50 dresses and only $5.85.

$5 to $8 Lingerie Dresses at $3.85

Crepes, voiles, linens and lingeries. Some are all white; some are bestrewn with dainty flowers; some are in colors. More than one hundred and fifty in all; with choice of more than a dozen styles.

$18 to $25 Afternoon Dresses at $11.85

About one hundred and twenty in all. The largest lot are of an imported hemstitched white crepe, made in the one-piece style, with crushed girdle of charmeuse or velvet. Others are of voile and crepe in elaborate embroidery designs. White and colors.

Exclusive Creations at $13.85, $15.85, $19.85

Beautiful gowns—copies of Paris creations; exclusive New York originations. At each price there are from ten to twenty gowns. Scarcely any two alike. Materials are of imported crepes, eponges and voiles. Every gown worth from a half to twice over the present price.

$1.25 & $1.50 Shirt Waists at $1

All new waists; smart, attractive styles. We've had duplicates of some of these waists here at $1.25 and $1.50; the other styles are now shown for the first time. Voiles and lingeries; square and round necks; short and three-quarter sleeves. Lace and embroidery trimmed. All sizes. Choice $1.

(Ready-to-Wear—Second Floor)

$1 Leather Bags at 69c

Heretofore we've been pleased to get bags as good as these to sell for $1. For they are all leather, in the very smartest shapes. Leather or moire lined.

Choice of many styles with round or creased bottom. Single or double strap handle. Gilt, gun metal or leather covered frames. Medium and large sizes. Black only.

$1.50 to $6 Novelty Bags, only 50c

Clearaway of ladies' novelty bags in colored suedes, silks, braids, black velvets and black moires. Long cord handle. Formerly $1.50 to $6 each, to-morrow at 50c.

GLASS BILL BOND CLAUSE RESTORED

Currency Reform to Provide Retirement of 2 Per Cent Obligations, as Written Originally.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Representative Glass announced to-day that his currency reform bill would be introduced with the 2 per cent bond retirement feature restored, just as it was before the Glass-McAdoo-Wilson conference at the White House previous to the announcement of the contents of the bill.

The bill will provide that all 2 per cent Government bonds shall be retired and 3 per cent bonds shall be issued instead during a period of twenty years.

Says Bank Tried to Ruin Dixie Concern

CHICAGO, June 26.—The Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank to-day was made defendant in a suit filed by John Stuart Watson & Co., farm brokers of Portland, Maine, charging the bank with unjust manipulation of bonds and stocks with a view to ruining the credit of the New Orleans Drainage Company.

The corporation, Watson said, owns land valued at about $2,000,000, and the bank, through threats to foreclose upon this property, induced him to sign an agreement to allow the bank to reorganize the company under the name of Orleans Suburban Farm Company.

'Ego in Pet Child's Cosmos Dangerous'

CHICAGO, June 26.—Dr. H. C. Norris, of Ederlin, N. Dak., a delegate to the Congress of Alienists here, declared that petted children get egomania, which results in a lack of self-control.

This, he asserts, results finally in a nervous and mental breakdown, thus paving the way to an insane asylum.

Manufacturers to Give Banquet July 3

Between 250 and 300 manufacturers will banquet at the Hotel Ansley on the evening of July 3 to perfect plans for the permanent organization of the Atlanta Manufacturers' Association. They will be guests of the Chamber of Commerce.

Two questions will be discussed—the annual manufacturers' exhibition and a permanent manufacturers' exhibit of Atlanta-made goods.

Brooks Morgan will present an organization plan at the banquet.

J. S. Owens, Banker, In Race for Council

John S. Owens, vice president of the Central Bank and Trust Corporation, is in the race for Alderman from the Eighth Ward, to succeed Dr. A. H. VanDyke, who, it is understood, will not offer for re-election. Mr. Owens started his successful career as a bank clerk.

Mr. Owens says he has no platform except that of the welfare of Atlanta, and that he is pledged to no faction or man.

Canadian Physicians Bar Friedmann 'Cure'

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 26.—Unanimous approval was given to-day to the resolution introduced at the meeting of the Canadian Medical Association condemning the Friedmann tuberculosis "cure."

Professor Adami, of Montreal, who introduced the resolution, declared that "we have found the results of the Friedmann treatment disappointing, the claims made for the remedy not proved, and nothing has been found to justify confidence in the remedy."

The Prices Tell the Whole Story
Of To-morrow's Opportunities in the Ready-to-Wear

Just bear this in mind, however, as you read these prices, that in every instance they stand for merchandise that has back of it the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose guaranty of quality and style!

$7.50 For $18.50, $21.75 to $25.00 Woolen Suits

There are only fifteen of these. They will not last long after store-opening time. Splendid suits---judge them by their former prices; they are of serges and corded materials, hardly enough of any one color or style to attempt description, but the first fifteen women who seek a suit for general wear are going to be beautifully rewarded for their hurrying.

$10 For $30.00, $35.00 to $45.00 Woolen Suits

There are thirty of these.

Materials are serges, whipcords, diagonals, Venetian cloths and mixtures. Colors ---grays, tans and a few plain navy and black suits and another few white serges. That these suits were formerly $30, $35 to $45 in the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose stock tells their style and worth, what you may expect.

Half Price For $16.50 to $30 Motor and Traveling Coats

Thirty of these.

Charming styles and various. Materials are serges, whipcords and mixture weaves, gray, black-and-white effects, black and navy. Some lined, others unlined.

$16.50 Coats $ 8.25 — $22.50 Coats $11.25
$18.50 Coats $ 9.25 — $25.00 Coats $12.50
$20.00 Coats $10.00 — $30.00 Coats $15.00

$5.00 For $12.50 to $18.75 Linen Suits

Forty of these. Certainly not so many as this remarkable price would hurry to new owners---for a linen coat suit at this season is all but a necessity.

The linens are those soft, "heavy," loosely-woven kinds in favor just now, in about any color you may fancy. A wealth of styles, smart cutaways, "strictly tailored," jaunty Norfolks, and others that come under the head of Bulgarian effects.

$7.50 For $12.50, $18.75 to $21.75 Linen Dresses

Sixty of these.

This is the general disposal of all linen dresses of this season's choicest styles. And, indeed, there are many styles to choose from. There are plain, tailored dresses touched with a bit of color on cuffs and collars; there are Bulgarian and peplum styles rich with embroideries and showing novel ideas of fashioning. Materials are ramie and crash and yours may be Copenhagen, tan, gray or wistaria.

Who Will Get These Four Exquisite Silk Suits?

They are copies of imported models, made up of imported fabrics---three of them we brought on as show pieces---now they go to four lucky women!

$22.50 This One Was $45.00

It is of silk poplin in a soft shade of wistaria. It is a "fancy" suit, the coat fashioned in a novel cutaway style, with a Bulgarian collar showing shades that both blend in and contrast with the wistaria; the skirt is draped.

$25.00 This One Was $87.50

The material is a wonderfully soft brocaded crepe---an imported fabric in a fine shade of taupe. The coat is a short Russian blouse, trimmed with frogs and laces. The skirt is draped in true Parisian fashion. Hard to imagine $25.00 doing greater service in suit buying.

$35.00 This One Was $125.00

Elegance itself!

A white moire faille silk suit, a copy of a model that would of necessity have been much more than $125.00. The coat is a postillion model, cut away short in front, half-length sleeves, edged with wide shadow lace and folds of black velvet; a draped skirt.

$67.50 This One Was $175.00

A three-piece suit worthy of the most elegant social function; of tan moire faille silk. The waist of the dress is an artistic combination of shadow lace and hand-embroidered bands; the coat is a cutaway style, embroidered collar and cuffs; skirt is draped gracefully.

DIXIE VETERANS DENIED USE OF U. S. TENTS

Resolution, Providing Shelter For Brunswick Reunion, Held Up in Lower House.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The hope of the Confederate veterans of getting United States Army tents for their reunion at Brunswick, Ga., beginning July 10, went glimmering today, when Representative Fowler, of Illinois, objected to the consideration of the resolution authorizing the War Department to lend the tents.

Representative Fowler first called up his resolution to appropriate money to send the veterans in the District of Columbia to the reunion at Gettysburg. Calloway, of Texas, objected. A moment later Howard, of Georgia, called up the resolution to lend tents to the Confederate veterans. He was acting for Walker, of Georgia, who is out of the city. Fowler, smarting because Calloway had defeated his plans, at once interposed his objection and the resolution went over.

Minority Leader Mann, of Illinois, eloquently pleaded for the passage of both resolutions, but Calloway and Fowler insisted on their objections.

"These old soldiers are passing. Soon they will be of no more expense to us," said Mann. "It does seem that if we are a united country, as we hear so often, that the objections to both these resolutions should be withdrawn. Let the reconciliation between the blue and the gray be complete."

Hundreds Offer Skin For Huested Victims

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 26.—Thirteen dead, eleven missing and probably sixty-three in the hospital, many of whom probably will die, is the latest estimate of the toll of the Huested mill explosion.

Federal authorities are to take a hand in the investigation of the mill horror.

Nearly all the injured are terribly burned by the fire which broke out immediately following the explosion. Several thousand square inches of skin will be used in grafting on the injured. Hundreds have volunteered to furnish the healthy cuticle.

Bateman on Trial As Race Swindler

The trial of J. N. Bateman, former Justice of the Peace and wealthy Atlanta land-owner, on three charges—larceny, swindling and larceny after trust—came up before Judge L. S. Roan of the Superior Court Thursday afternoon.

The charges were made by Frank Rothleutner, of Kansas City, who alleges that he was defrauded out of $9,000 in cash in a pool room owned by Bateman on Whitehall Street.

Bateman was arrested in Miama, Fla., and brought back for trial.

Servant Wins Ninth Part of $14,000,000

JOPLIN, MO., June 26.—Mrs. Sachet Carlyle, employed as a maid at $5 a week, retained her job to-day, although she had just learned that she and her mother, Mrs. Martha Wilson, each were heirs to one-ninth of an estate valued at $14,000,000.

She mailed papers to Baltimore today proving her relationship to John Price, who left the estate.

Girl Disappears as Dorothy Arnold Did

NEW YORK, June 26.—The pick of the New York Detective Bureau today took up the mystery of the disappearance of Helen McCarthy, the pretty 16-year-old daughter of a newspaper broker, who vanished Tuesday morning within a stone's throw of her home, the Hotel Hargraves.

The disappearance takes rank with the mystery that still surrounds the Dorothy Arnold case, and in many respects the two are similar.

Mid-Summer Sale of Women's White and Tan Shoes at Allen's

To-morrow and Saturday to 1 P. M.

Women's $3, $3.50 and $4 white canvas and white buckskin pumps at $1.95

Women's $3.50, $4 and some $5 white buckskin and white canvas pumps, lace and button oxfords at $2.45

Women's $4 and $5 tan Russia calf, tan vici kid and brown calfskin pumps, and button lace oxfords at $2.95 and $3.95 a pair

We have simply divided our tan low shoe stock into two classes. You can have your choice of any tan low shoe, tan oxford, pump or colonial at either $2.95 or $3.95 a pair, with the exception of two styles of $5.50 and $6 rubber soled oxfords and pumps. These are selling so fast that we can hardly supply the demand, but in order to make the sale complete we have reduced these to $4.95.

This style in Black or Tan Calf, Leather sole $2.95 Rubber sole $4.95

We have also added the English last black and tan leather sole oxford, formerly sold at $5.50 this sale $4.95 lot; and the English last black and tan pumps with the leather soles that we formerly sold at $5.00, are now $3.95.

This means that every white and tan shoe in Allen's Shoe Department can be bought at a considerable saving, in some instances the reduction will amount to a half or a third less than their former selling prices. We have also added several styles to the black gun metal, patent leather and satin pumps which were reduced to $3.50 last Monday. These were formerly $5.00 and $6.00. The sizes in the $2.45 shoes in black patent leather, gun metal and satin are nearly gone, but here and there you can find your size, and they are certainly big bargains. Some of them sold at $5.00. See our special sale shoe window.

We close Saturday at 1 p. m.

The Best News of Embroideries We Have Told This Season

The Selling Starts at Nine o'Clock

The papers have carried much good news of embroidery sales this season, but, as far as our knowledge goes, none could compare favorably with the values we have prepared for to-morrow.

This, indeed, is an embroidery occasion not to be missed. It is a Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose clearaway, a thorough righting of stocks of certain lines, and, as you shall read below, these lines are very desirable, embroideries that women want at this season, when sheer soft fabrics are an effective defense against Old Sol's persistent attacks. And being a clearaway of our own embroideries, there is not a disappointing yard among them. They are patterns and qualities that have contributed to make this Atlanta's ranking embroidery store. But these generalities do not tell the message of the dainty dresses, the cool waists, the exquisite underwear that are now possible at next-to-nothing cost.

You plan to be here and see for yourself.

For 75c & 95c Flouncings

Think of all white and sheer batiste flouncings, 27 inches wide, showing the daintiest "baby" patterns, eyelet and French, for 19c a yard! Do not hesitate to buy quantities of them. It would be hard to find prettier materials and patterns for children's dresses. With these are embroidered bands, 2 to 4 inches wide, that were 50c to 85c a yard.

Athens Bidding for Week-End Visits by Atlanta Motorists

Athens is making a bid for week-end visitors, and with this end in view Crichton C. Callaway, secretary of the Athens Chamber of Commerce, spent Wednesday in Atlanta arranging for an automobile scout trip next week. A committee of Athens people will make the trip and submit their observations to the Athens Chamber of Commerce, which will publish them, together with other information, in booklet form.

"Atlanta's 3,000 automobile owners always make week-end tours, and we want them to come to Athens," Mr. Callaway said. "The route to Athens is picturesque, while the city itself has many objects of interest and is approached by the best county road system in the State. If we can get Atlanta tourists started to going there, they will keep it up."

The Athens scouting party is due in Atlanta about Monday or Tuesday, in a week or so the little Athens booklets will be printed and distributed among automobilists of Atlanta.

Resinol stops skin troubles

IF you have eczema, rash, pimples, or other distressing, unsightly skin eruption, try Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and see how quickly the trouble disappears, even in severe and stubborn cases. They stop itching instantly.

ATTACK VALIDITY OF SEATING 2 IN HOUSE

Bleckley and Wheeler Members May Be Denied Places—Moss Upholds Unions.

An attack on the validity of seating the representatives from Bleckley and Wheeler Counties featured the opening of the House session Thursday morning.

A resolution was introduced by Representative H. J. Fulbright, of Burke, his claim being that under the Constitution the membership of the House is limited to 184, while these two members made a total of 186. The resolution provided for the appointment of a committee of nine to investigate the matter. It was adopted.

The men representing the two new counties are George A. Browning, of Bleckley, and Douglas McArthur, of Wheeler. The two new counties were formed in 1912.

Unions Praised.

Representative H. B. Moss, of Cobb County, introduced a resolution expressing confidence in the laboring men of Georgia and asking their co-operation in the upbuilding of the State. It was referred to a committee. The resolution is, in effect, a reply to Governor Brown's message of Wednesday which flayed unionism.

At 10:35 o'clock the House adjourned until 3 minutes of 11, at which time it went into joint session with the Senate to canvass the vote for Governor.

Members Not Unanimous.

Calling of the roll and reading of the journal consumed 25 minutes following the opening of the House for the Thursday morning session. C. E. Stewart, of Coffee County, and Grover Cleveland Edmondson, of Brooks, were the two who refused to join in unanimous consent to dispense with calling the roll and reading the journal.

A bill to prohibit county authorities from payin insolvent costs on bills and county officials from the general fund was introduced by Brinson of Jenkins.

A bill providing for the incorporation of the town of Chickamauga was introduced by Farris of Walker.

Cook of Chattahoochee introduced a bill providing for creation of a board of commissioners of roads and revenues in Chattahoochee County.

ANTI-LIQUOR BILL BARS SHIPPING INTO STATE

Another Senate Measure Would Put Marriage Laws on Eugenic Basis.

The first temperance bill of the session was introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator Hixon, of the Thirty-seventh.

Senator Hixon's bill prohibits the shipment into the State of all intoxicating liquors, even though they be disguised under innocent appearing names. It is provided, though, that individuals may bring into the State on their person or as their personal baggage, liquor in quantity not to exceed one gallon in a single package.

The provisions of the bill do not apply to druggists, to whom pure alcohol may be delivered for medicinal purposes.

Marriage Bill Introduced.

A modified application of eugenics will hereafter govern marriages in Georgia if a "marriage bill" introduced by Senator Hixon is enacted into law. Senator Hixon's bill provides that no marriage licenses shall be issued to persons of unsound mind, males under 18 and females under 16 years of age; persons afflicted with tuberculosis, cancer, pellagra and other infectious or chronic diseases; persons addicted to habitual use of intoxicating liquors or drugs.

The bill provides that all applicants for a marriage license shall produce a certificate of health from a physician.

Bible Reading in School.

A bill providing for the reading of at least one chapter of the Bible at the opening each day of every public school in the State was introduced by Senators W. J. Bush, of the Eighth, and W. E. H. Searcy, of the Twenty-sixth.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION FILED.

The firm of Nisbet & McFadden, grocers of Hapeville, Ga., Thursday filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court, giving assets $656.75 and liabilities $1,682.36.

Brilliant Men All Unbalanced, Says Atlanta Alienist

"No brilliant man is perfectly poised mentally. All artists and musicians in a way are mentally unbalanced. They are the highest type of deranged persons. The man who is perfectly poised mentally is not brilliant."—Dr. J. Cheston King, Atlanta, Ga.

CHICAGO, June 26.—This statement was made at the National Convention of Alienists here.

"The perfectly poised man," said Dr. King, "is a very common man. When he falls in love it is purely a matter of the heart. When an artist falls in love it is more a condition of mind. But when a mentally balanced, common man falls in love he sees his sweetheart through the eyes of a genius."

Government to Aid North Georgia Road

DALTON, June 26.—An excellent highway constructed by the Government from Ringgold, in Catoosa County, to Dalton, through Whitfield County, in and probably through Gordon and on into Bartow County is now assured, the road to be built at a cost of $75,000.

Instead of an appropriation of $10,000 from the Government, Congressman Gordon Lee secured $25,000, and this will be supplemented by a fund of $50,000 from the counties interested, each county to pay $2 for every dollar spent by the Government.

Cotton Men Make Millions in Grain

NEW YORK, June 26.—During the dullness in the stock market it is believed that the McFadden interests, which have always been prominent in cotton, have made several millions through a bull campaign in the grain markets.

Not long ago, according to gossip in the grain pit, the McFadden crowd were carrying 10,000,000 bushels of coarse grain and over 1,000,000 bushels of wheat. Since April 1 July corn has advanced to above 62 cents a bushel, July oats from 33 7-8 cents to 43 1-4, and July wheat from 89 7-8 to 93 5-8 cents.

WE ARE OFFERING A 20% REDUCTION FROM THE ORIGINAL PRICE OF ALL DIAMOND GOODS

We are making this reduction in order to convert our present stock into cash before occupying our new store at 49 Whitehall Street. Not so great an opportunity has ever been offered you to get diamonds so much below their actual value. You not only profit from this reduction, but through the fact that they have steadily advanced since the stock we are now offering was purchased.

It is to your interest, if you contemplate purchasing any time in the near future, to do so during this sale, as, at the price, they are bargains in the extreme.

Beginning with Saturday, June 28th, and continuing through July and August our store will close at one o'clock.

KEELY CO.

The Social World

The opening of the Capital City Country Club is being observed Thursday with an informal reception scheduled for the late afternoon and a dance for the evening. The club house is decorated gayly for the event, which marks the taking over of the Brookhaven Club by the new management. The entire club membership will be welcomed by officers of the club.

Many motor parties were arranged for the afternoon and evening. Tennis courts, golf links and the splendid lake drew many for the afternoon, who will remain over for the informal dance. Club members will be received by Mr. Robert F. Maddox, president of the club, with Mrs. Maddox, other officers and their wives and the board of managers.

D. A. R. Garden Party.

The extensive grounds surrounding the summer home of Governor and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton was the scene of a garden party Wednesday afternoon given by members of the Atlanta Chapter, D. A. R. Mrs. Slaton, formerly regent of the chapter and an active worker, tendered the use of her summer home for the affair. Several hundred guests attended.

Mrs. Slaton, with her mother, Mrs. William D. Grant; Mrs. John Grant, Mrs. James Osgood Wynn, regent of the chapter, and other officers, received on the veranda.

From a broad balcony, draped with flags, a musical program was given by Miss Adgate Ellis, Miss Mary Loveless, Mrs. Carthew-Yorstoun and Mr. Wilford Watters. Miss Ellis, who was trained by Oscar Sanger in New York, made her debut. Her singing was enthusiastically received.

Punch was served from tables on the lawn. Each was decorated with sweetpeas. Among the guests were a number of prominent D. A. R. members from others chapters. Besides the program of vocal music, there was music by an orchestra.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Willis Everett, Mrs. Woods White, Mrs. E. D. Kennedy, Mrs. Alfred Newell, Mrs. A. R. Ninninger, Mrs. Elijah A. Brown, Mrs. Charles B. Walker, Mrs. Arch Avery, Mrs. George M. Hope, Misses Frances Connally, Jennie D. Harris, Katherine DuBose, Eloise Robinson, Passie May Ottley, Marjorie Brown, Sara Rawson, Harriet Calhoun, Margaret Northen, Gladys Dunson, Ida Winship, Emily Winship, Virginia Bowman, Elizabeth Morgan, Aimee Hunnicutt, Annie Sykes Rice and Clifford West, with a number of other young women active members of the chapter.

Patterson-Greene.

A wedding on Wednesday evening was that of Miss Annie Mays Patterson to Mr. Calvin Greene which took place at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Judge and Mrs. John R. Wilkinson, in Inman Park, Dr. Charles Daniel officiating.

The house was decorated with palms, ferns and daisies, a chain of Shasta daisies and feverfew forming the aisle through which the bridal party passed to the altar.

The flower girl was little Mary Sue Prim and Master Charles Moody was ring bearer. The chains were held by the bride's little sister, Julia Dent Patterson, of Texas, and her cousins, Flora Bell Reynolds, Miriam Reynolds Patterson and Margaret Wilkinson. The little attendants were all dressed in white lingerie frocks with blue ribbons.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white satin draped in princess lace, and her tulle veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms.

After the ceremony there followed a reception. The bride's table was decorated with a mound of daisies and the wedding cake and other details were in white and yellow.

Mrs. Wilkinson received her guests wearing white embroidered crepe de chine. Mrs. Patterson, the bride's mother, wore white chiffon and satin, and Mrs. A. H. Green, the mother of the bridegroom, wore gray chiffon draped in heliotrope chiffon and lace.

Punch was served on the porch by Misses Anna Mary Fuller, Elizabeth Wood, of Macon; Winnie Davis, Isabel Davis, Susan Stephens and Alice May Mackey.

After a bridal trip East Mr. and Mrs. Greene will be at home with the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Green.

Keese-Cole.

Miss Harriet Cole and Mr. Rogers Keese were married Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. D. H. Cole in Ansley Park. While only a limited number of guests were present, the wedding was of much social interest.

A well shaped canopy of smilax, fringed with valley lilies, starred with tiny electric lights and flanked on either side by cathedral candelabra, formed an effective setting for the ceremony. Vases of Easter lilies were interspersed with greenery, which formed a background. The mantel was banked with ferns and Easter lilies. Smilax formed mural decorations throughout the house.

Little Miss Elizabeth Cole, as maid of honor, wore a dainty frock of white lace and lingerie, with pink roses in a lace paper holder. Miss Sophie Daves and Atwood Cole were ribbon bearers. Mr. Roy Dorsey was best man. The bride entered with her brother, Mr. James Howard Cole, who gave her away.

Rev. Dr. Yarborough, of New Jersey, who has officiated at weddings in the bride's family for three generations, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore white princess lace, made with the new three-tier skirt, falling over a long train of white satin. The corsage of satin was veiled in the same lace, the tulle veil being adjusted from a little cap of lace, wreathed with orange blossoms. Her flowers were lavender orchids and valley lilies.

At a reception and buffet lunch the bride's table was adorned with a large mound of Killarney roses and valley lilies, with pretty decorative details in pink and white and little white satin baskets of rice, tied with white ribbons. The buffet, serving table and mantel were banked with small palms and vases of Killarney roses. Punch was served on the porch. Miss Marie Pappenheimer presided over a bowl imbedded in a mound of Killarney roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Cole, the bride's mother, wore a toilet of white charmeuse satin with corsage of lace.

Mr. Keese and his bride left for a wedding journey East. On their return they will be at home with Mrs. Cole in Ansley Park.

Miss Stoney's Luncheon.

An events of Thursday was the luncheon given by Miss Josephine Stoney to Miss Louise Couper's guests, Misses Katherine Graves and LaGranve Cothran, of Rome.

Great quantities of daisies made into a mound graced the center of the luncheon table. The placecards were hand-painted in daisies and all the details where possible were carried out in white and yellow. Miss Stoney received her guests wearing a frock of white embroidered crepe with sash of lavender satin.

The party included Misses Cothran, Graves, Couper, Jane Tucker Fisher, of Columbia, S. C., who is visiting Mrs. Baxter Moore; Virginia Lipscomb, and her guest, Gladys Teague, of Augusta; Eula Jackson and Pattie McGehee.

Miss Vaughan Hostess.

Miss Marian Vaughan entertained at a bridge party Thursday afternoon at her home in Fourteenth Street. Prizes were hand-embroidered lingerie and a pin cushion.

Miss Vaughan wore white lace and blue ribbons. Her guests were Misses Adgate ElEllis, Theo Prioleau, Virginia Lipscomb and guest, Miss Gladys Teague, of Augusta; Eula Jackson, Josephine Mobley, Margaret Grant, Mamie Ansley, Mary Brown, Lucile Kuhrt, Dorothy Harman, Lyda Nash, Gladys Glover, Ferol Humphries, Estelle Ford, Jan Robinson, Katherine Wyly, Margaret Traylor, Lawson Hines, Alice Parks, Ellen O'Keefe, Jeannette Lowndes, Louise Broyles, Gladys Dunson, Mamie Kirkpatrick and Dorothy High.

Miss Connally's Bridge.

Miss Frances Connally entertained at bridge Thursday morning for Miss Martha Francis, whose wedding to Mr. Claude Douthit will take place Saturday evening.

Bridge was played on the west porch at the Piedmont Club. Prizes were silk hose and a vanity trinket.

Miss Connally wore a becoming model in black and white French crepe with a white Panama hat.

Guests were Misses Francis, Carolyn King, Eloise Oliver, Adeline Thomas, Mrs. John Chapman, Mrs. Joseph Eby, Mrs. Charles Shelton, Mrs. John Spalding, Mrs. William Schroder, Mrs. Henry Troutman and her guest, Miss Lillian Beattey, of Columbus, Ohio.

For Miss Lewis.

Mrs. W. N. Bennett gave a reception Thursday afternoon for her daughter, Miss Laurette Lewis, whose marriage to Mr. Charles Edgar Jones takes place July 17.

Mrs. Bennett wore a pink lingerie gown. Miss Lewis was in white satin and black lace.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Elijah Brown, Mrs. J. S. Griggs, Mrs. W. A. Niall, Mrs. George Shepherd, Mrs. Samuel Greene, Mrs. L. B. Mower, Mrs. E. H. Ginn, Mrs. Jere Taylor, and Miss Elizabeth Dozier.

Misses Clementine LeVert, Beatrice Tyler and Elizabeth Wilson served punch.

Mrs. Prade Hostess.

Mrs. Julian Prade entertained at bridge Thursday afternoon for her sister, Mrs. Charles Dowman, of Birmingham, who is here with her mother, Mrs. George Westmoreland.

The house was decorated with sweetpeas. Pink gladiolas graced the tea table. Prizes were a picture frame and slipper buckles. Guests included 24 young matrons.

Mrs. Prade wore white crepe and lace. Mrs. Dowman wore pink embroidered crepe.

For Miss Callie Hoke Smith.

Miss Callie Hoke Smith, of Washington, D. C., who is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Ronald Ransom, was the honor guest at an informal tea given Thursday afternoon by Miss Sara Rawson. The guests were entertained on the terrace of the Piedmont Driving Club, tea being served from a prettily appointed tea table. Miss Smith wore a French gown of navy blue crepe de chine, with a Leghorn hat.

Miss Powers Hostess.

Miss Mamie Powers entertained members of the Dramatic Club of Decatur Tuesday evening. The club is rehearsing for a play to be given early in July. At the last meeting Miss Mamie Kirkpatrick and Mr. Edward VanValkenberg rendered several vocal duets.

Mrs. Wimbish Hostess.

Mrs. W. A. Wimbish will entertain at an afternoon tea Saturday for her guest, Miss Stewart, of Montgomery; Mrs. Prioleau Ellis, of Springfield, Mass., and Miss Eloise Oliver, whose wedding to Mr. Frampton Ellis will take place June 30.

Sawtell-Lyon.

Mrs. Annie S. Johnson announces the marriage of her sister, Miss Ellen R. Sawtell, to Mr. Roland C. Lyon. The ceremony was performed at her home by the Rev. Mr. Hill, pastor of the West End Presbyterian Church, Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock.

For Miss Webber.

Miss May Baldwin gave a box party at the Forsyth Wednesday for Miss Celeste Webber, of Spartanburg. Other guests were Misses Winnie Ison, Mildred Parks, Sallie McKinnon, Mary Griffith, Ethel Hudson and Mary Hall.

Shower Day for Hospital.

Saturday is the annual shower day for Wesley Memorial Hospital. Persons interested in the comfort of sick people have been requested to give generously toward the children's and charity wards.

At the Driving Club.

Reservations are being made for the informal dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club Saturday evening, and a number of parties are being formed.

The funeral of Charles R. Russell will be held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock from St. Luke's Church. The burial will be private, at Oakland.

SHERLOCK ROLE GETS OFFICER $50

Wise Policeman Plays Part of Drunken Farmer to Capture Fugitive.

The false-whiskered sleuth of fiction has nothing on Policeman G. M. Gorman, the hero Thursday of a real Sherlock Holmes adventure.

Gorman read a notice on the police records that a reward of $50 had been offered for the capture of Paul Mitchell, a negro, who escaped from the convict camps at Rome. He determined to bag the fugitive and the fifty. Knowing it would never do to make the hunt in his police uniform, he didn't want to risk even his regular citizen togs.

There was one reasonable thing to do, and he did it—he disguised himself. And it was a disguise that just fit in with the section he visited—Decatur Street. He "made up" as a drunken farmer, and did it so cleverly that even his best friends didn't know him. Everything about the disguise was real except the "drunk." This was faked, of course. The officer staggered through the crowds of negroes in Decatur Street, watching and listening. In front of a negro saloon he discovered his man. The negro soon was in a police station cell and Gorman was in $50.

Mary Tribble To Be Buried in Westview

Mary Tribble, the 7-year-old schoolgirl who died Wednesday afternoon from the effects of poisoning, will be buried in Westview following funeral services to be held at the East Side Baptist Tabernacle Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

The little girl was taken ill several weeks ago. It was found that she had eaten a quantity of school crayon.

She was the daughter of M. C. Tribble, 7 Porter Street, East Atlanta.

Merz's Relief Driver Killed on Speedway

INDIANAPOLIS, June 26.—Harry Martin, relief driver for Charley Mertz in the 1913 500-mile race, was killed and Frank Agan, mechanician, was badly injured when a Stutz racing car they were testing was ditched on the speedway track.

The car skidded and overturned on the back stretch when going at a speed estimated at 78 miles an hour.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

IT was so windy yesterday that Pa & me dident go fishing. We was going to a littel laik ware thare is a lot of pickerel, but the guide sed it wouddent be any use to go, so Pa sed in the morning, Well, Bobbie, let us taik a stroll about the village & watch the men at thare work. Thare is a grate deel of pleshur in watching sumbody else work, Pa sed, espeshully these simpel craftsmen up here in the woods. I dare say I may be abel to give them a few pointers, Pa sed. The human brain is a wunderful thing, Bobbie. Onst it is highly developed, like mine, it can direct operashuns of all sorts, though its owner nevver had any acktual expeerience in the deetails of the operashuns. Now, for instance, thare is yung Frank Keener planting potatoes. Let us stroll oaver thare & see if he is doing it rite.

Good morning, Mister Keener, sed Pa wen we got thare. I see you are planting potatoes. Thare is nothing like a good crop of potatoes for the Winter's store, Pa sed.

Kidding Pa.

But I aint planting potatoes, sed Mister Keener. I planted these potatoes a month ago. I dident have anything else to do this morning, so I thought I wud stroll around among the potatoes & have a chat with the potato bugs. Thay are friendly littel things, potato bugs, he sed. Speek to one of them & watch it wag its tail.

I cud see that Frank was kidding Pa, but Pa's brain wasent highly developed that way & he cuddent see it. All he sed was Well, I hoap you have success with yure garden, & we walked along.

Thare was a carpenter bilding a house acrost the street. His naim was Mister Bill Thomson. Good-morning, Mister Thomson, sed Pa. I see you are bilding a pritty littel bungalow. I wud like to have one sumthing like it, Pa sed, & maybe if you ain't too busy next month I will go ahed with it. I always thought this wud be a pritty town in wich to have a bungalow in.

This ain't a bungalow I am bilding sed Mister Thomson. This is a ice house. It looks as much like a bungalow as you look like the King of England. Please move along now & doant bother me. It rained all day yesterday so I cuddent work & now that it is nice & sunny I doant want every yap that cums along to stop & ask foolish questuns of me.

Carpenters are generally rude, cross grained persons, sed Pa to me after we had moved along. I cud see that Pa was pritty mad but I dident feel a bit sorry for him, he had no bizness bothering a man who was working.

Jest then we passed a livery stabel —thare was the owner with two littel jackasses.

A Fine Team.

Good morning, Mister Maus, sed Pa. Can I help you to hitch up yure fine team of mules? I used to hitch up mules wen I was in the army, sed Pa. I am vary fond of mules & thay like me, too.

But these isent mules, thay is chackasses, sed Mister Maus, und I wasent going to hitch them up, also. I chust wanted them to make a littel exercise alreddy. Und if I was going to hitch them up anyway, sed Mister Maus, why doant you mind yure own bizness beesides, yet?

Every man that Pa talked to treeted him jest the saim, but it dident faze Pa. Wen we went hoam to dinner he toald Ma that he had been around having a friendly chat with the villagers. Those simpel folks wud lay down thare lives for me, Pa sed.

You doant say, sed Ma. Then thay must be vary simpel folks.

FAVORITE RECIPES OF FAVORITE STAGE STARS

Cherry Roly Poly, by

Katherine De Rohne

THE market this season is displaying some of the most delicious products of the tree whose family was forever made famous by the truthfulness of one G. Washington. "Cherry Roly Poly" is supplied by a pastmistress of the art, Katherine De Rohne, one of the stars of the Rustic Theatre at the Palisades Amusement Park.

Take one pound of suet and chop fine, being careful to pick out all the skin and strings.

Add:—

Three cups of flour,
one teaspoonful of salt,
one teaspoonful of baking powder,
and just enough water to make it adhere and roll out smoothly.

Roll out to the thickness of about a quarter of an inch. Spread a quart of pitted cherries, sugared, on the thin layer of dough and roll them up. Place in a cheesecloth bag and boil for three hours.

Sauce: Butter the size of an egg, melted but not browned. To this add a teaspoonful of flour and a cup and one-half of water, three-quarters of a cup of sugar and a gill of New England rum. Stir together and boil to the consistency of thick cream.

WITHIN THE LAW

A Powerful Story of Adventure, Intrigue and Love

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Take the chairs out of the office, Dan," he directed, "except mine and one other—that one!" He indicated a chair standing a little way from one end of his desk. "Now, have all the shades up." He chuckled as he added: "That Turner woman saved you the trouble with one."

As the doorman went out after having fulfilled these commands, the Inspector lighted a cigar which he had retained still in his mouth, and then seated himself in the chair that was set partly facing the windows opening on the corridor. He smiled with anticipatory triumph as he made sure that the whole length of the corridor with the barred doors of the cells was plainly visible to one sitting thus. With a final glance about to make certain that all was in readiness, he returned to his chair, and, when the door opened, he was, to all appearances, busily engaged in writing.

Garson's Face Showed Fear.

"Here's Garson, Chief," Cassidy announced.

"Hello, Joe!" Burke exclaimed, with a seeming of careless friendliness, as the detective went out, and Garson stood motionless just within the door.

"Sit down, a minute, won't you?" the Inspector continued, affably. He did not look up from his writing as he spoke.

Garson's usually strong face was showing weak with fear. His chin which was commonly very firm, moved a little from uneasy twitchings of his lips. His clear eyes were slightly clouded to a look of apprehension, as they roved the room furtively. He made no answer to the Inspector's greeting for a few moments, but remained standing without movement, poised alertly as if sensing some concealed peril. Finally, however, his anxiety found expression in words. His tone was pregnant with alarm, though he strove to make it merely complaining.

'Say, what am I arrested for?" he protested. "I ain't done anything."

Even now, Burke did not look up, and his pen continued to hurry over the paper.

"Who told you you were arrested?" he remarked, cheerfully, in his blandest voice.

Garson uttered an ejaculation of disgust.

"I don't have to be told," he retorted, huffily. "I'm no college president, but when a cop grabs me and brings me down here, I've got sense enough to know I'm pinched."

The Inspector did not interrupt his work, but answered with the utmost good nature.

"Is that what they did to you, Joe? I'll have to speak to Cassidy about that. Now, just you sit down, Joe, won't you? I want to have a little talk with you. I'll be through here in a second." He went on with the writing.

Garson moved forward slightly, to the single chair near the end of the desk, and there seated himself mechanically. His face thus was turned toward the windows that gave on the corridor, and his eyes grew yet more clouded as they rested on the grim doors of the cells. He writhed in his chair, and his gaze jumped from the cells to the impassive figure of the man at the desk. Now, the forger's nervousness increased momently—it swept beyond his control. Of a sudden, he sprang up, and stepped close to the inspector.

The Door Clanged To.

"Say," he said in a husky voice, "I'd like—I'd like to have a lawyer."

"What's the matter with you, Joe?" the inspector returned, always with that imperturbable air, and without raising his head from the work that so engrossed his attention. "You know, you're not arrested, Joe. Maybe, you never will be. Now, for the love of Mike, keep still, and let me finish this letter."

Slowly, very hesitatingly, Garson went back to the chair, and sank down on it in a limp attitude of dejection wholly unlike his customary posture of strength. Again, his fear fascinated eyes went to the row of cells that stood silently menacing on the other side of the corridor beyond the windows. His face was tinged with gray. A physical sickness was creeping stealthily on him, as his thoughts held insistently to the catastrophe that threatened. His intelligence was too keen to permit a belief that Burke's manner of almost fulsome kindliness hid nothing ominous—ominous with a hint of death for him in return for the death he had wrought.

Then terror crystallized. His eyes were caught by a figure, the figure of Cassidy, advancing there in the corridor. And with the detective went a man whose gait was slinking, craven. A cell door swung open, the prisoner stepped within, the door clanged to, the bolts shot into their sockets noisily.

Garson sat huddled, stricken for he had recognized the victim thrust into the cell before his eyes. . . . It was Dacey, one of his own cronies in crime—Dacey, who, the night before had seen him kill Eddie Griggs. There was something concretely sinister to Garson in this fact of Dacey's presence there in the cell.

Of a sudden, the forger cried out raucously:

"Say, Inspector, if you've got anything on me, I—I would——" The cry dropped into unintelligible mumblings.

Burke retained his manner of serene indifference to the other's agitation. Still his pen hurried over the paper; and he did not trouble to look up as he expostulated, half-banteringly.

"Now, now! what's the matter with you, Joe? I told you that I wanted to ask you a few questions. That's all."

Garson leaped to his feet again resolutely, then faltered, and ultimately fell back into the chair with a groan, as the Inspector went on speaking.

"Now, Joe, sit down, and keep still, I tell you, and let me get through with this job. It won't take me more than a minute more."

But after a moment Garson's emotion forced him to another appeal.

"Say, Inspector——" he began.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SOME CHICKEN!

A Parrot 116 Years Old and Not Yet in Cold Storage

THIS picture is taken from an actual photograph of a parrot that is one hundred and sixteen years old, and still has a lively croak. It belongs to an English family, but spent but fifty years of its feathered life in that country. Its other sixty-six years saw it in Brazil, its original home. Although it is almost "sans everything" Polly can sing in quite a lively manner, and is always cheerful. Perhaps therein lies its secret of longevity. Who knows?

Things Worth Remembering

The possibility of using the Cinema for the identification of criminals is being seriously considered by the New York Police Commissioner. It is suggested that five feet of film, costing 70 cents, will suffice to record the peculiarities of dress and carriage of any person whom it is desired to keep under observation. With photographs, finger prints, motion pictures, and Bertillon measurements a man who has been convicted will have his hands full in making his "get-away" afterward.

Stretching across Western Australia is a rabbit-proof fence, said to be the longest in the world. It extends for a distance of 1,200 miles, without a break, except for gates. It begins in the temperate regions and ends in the tropics, and sometimes for nearly 100 miles it never passes a human habitation.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

YOUR FRIEND IS RIGHT.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 and I have been keeping company with a young man four years. He is 23. I love him more than tongue can tell. I have loved him since the day I first met him. He doesn't show any love for me. Could you tell me if there is any love on his part? I show my love for him, and my friend tells me that is the reason he doesn't show his.

IRENE WATSON.

You are foolish to let him see you care so much for him. Naturally, a man makes no effort to win a girl who lets him see that effort is unnecessary. You are only 17. Give up this man, and the next time you fall in love make an effort to conceal it.

WITHIN HER RIGHTS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with a young lady, whom I have never had the pleasure of seeing in her own home, as her mother is opposed to me. I have known her now for more than 18 months. She is 18. I am 21. She is willing to marry me, only she is afraid of her folks, inasmuch as her mother threatens to have me arrested if I marry her daughter. I have tried every way to win her mother over, but so far I have failed. I can't meet her, as her mother watches her like a cat watches a mouse.

D. D. W.

The mother is wholly within her rights, and as the first and last desire of every mother's heart is for her daughter's happiness, consideration is due her wishes.

If all were favorable, you should not marry, being only 21. Make the most of the assurance that you love each other, and wait a year or two.

Had Every Time.

Smith was a constant worry to his friends. They never knew when to and when not to treat him seriously, since, as he frankly admitted, he delighted in pulling other people's legs.

One day he and Brown met casually in the street, and stopped, as friends often do, to gossip for a while.

"Big blaze—that fire at the factory in Johnson Street last night, wasn't it?" asked Brown.

"Yes," replied Smith, "I went down to have a look at it. And, my word, there were several mighty narrow escapes there, too!"

"Escapes!" cried Brown, excitedly. "But the morning paper said that there was no one in the building."

Smith nodded.

"Oh," he said, "the firemen brought the escapes down with them. So-long, old chap!"

A BACHELOR'S DIARY .:. He Can't Forget That Kiss

By MAX.

JUNE 1.—It is a week since Sally Spencer kissed me and though I have repeatedly since made occasion to be with her alone she has never repeated the offense.

I have sent for her to come over on the shallowest of excuses. If Manette ate too much or too little, I have feigned an alarm that could only be quieted by having Mrs. Spencer take a look at her, and on such occasions I invariably sent Richards and Sarah Ray out of the room. But it has been to no avail.

I make the confession in no great humility. I am a man, and, try as hard as I may, I can not rise above being a man. I make no pretense of being an angel. That claim I leave to the women who tempt us.

I find myself looking at another man's wife with eyes that are not the eyes of the soul. There was a time when it would have been my first impulse to be Sally Spencer's disinterested friend; I will always be that in the future, but I will have to fight myself first.

Only Contempt.

June 2—I have said little about the widow, Diary, but I hope you do not believe it is because I condone her sins, or feel any emotion for her but unmitigated contempt.

She is the vilest of creatures for no other description fits a woman who makes it her sport to undermine some other woman's happiness.

June 3—Life has been compared with a feast, and if there is anything in the comparison, just at present the whole world is partaking of a course that is too highly seasoned to be healthful. That we will all suffer moral indigestion for refusing to pass it by I do not doubt.

We are swinging to a most unhealthy extreme, making public and discussing and devouring topics that are the climax of vulgarity, and we call ourselves progressive because we do it.

The old-fashioned standard of truth to one's self and one's vows seems to be passing away. When one transgresses these days, it is not called a transgression, but disguised under the phrase "Daring to live one's own life."

And when it is said that a woman especially "dares to live her own life," it means that she has dared to violate every civil and moral law. Mrs. Brown has always approved of any woman who dared to live her own life, and has told me many times that it was what she had always done, and always intended to do.

I can see now that it was the modern way of expressing a determination to be governed by no standard or convention. What will become of the world when all women "dare to live their own lives," no man may conjecture.

She buried her first husband, which can not be charged against her. In these days when men are put at the lowest valuation a measure of applause is given any woman who outlives her husband. Should she outlive a dozen, it is a notable deed, but if a man buries as many as two wives Rumor begins to whisper that he killed them by abuse and neglect.

The widow's second husband divorced her because of her infatuation with another woman's husband. She broke up that man's home, and cast him aside when, for pecuniary reasons, her love grew cold.

A Dark Past.

She had, as she expresses it, "dared to live her own life," which means that she refused to let the impulses of her soul be fettered by the shackles of convention. I could express it in plainer language, but plain language, according to Mrs. Brown and her kind, is a mark of a vulgar mind.

I have heard that her second husband's heart was broken because of the scandal, and that it killed him. Of course I do not credit the statement. The men do not die of broken hearts. They love a woman with every bit of their anatomy, but their hearts. This is true, for I have heard soap-box oratorical representatives of the Adorable Sex say so.

June 4—Jack has been gone three days. He writes dutifully and says he will be home soon. He is the sort of a man who will go away with another woman and square it with his conscience by writing faithfully to his wife while away. I have no doubt he took her photograph with him. I always mistrust the man who takes his wife's photograph wherever he goes. So often he uses this mark of devotion as a salve to his conscience for leaving her at home.

June 5—"I think," said Sally, when I called this morning to learn the latest news of her husband, "that my attitude in this matter is a great disapointment to Mrs. Brown. She thought I would rush after Jack, create a scene and a scandal, and that the publicity would wreck my home and give Jack a divorce. I know Jack better than she does. The fact that I give him every opportunity to steal robs the theft of its zest. He is disgusted with her and with himself, and would return any moment I sent for him."

I remembered the kiss. "Don't send for him, Sally. He isn't worth your forgiveness."

Must Take Chances.

"He is as good as any man," she retorted. "He is as good as you are, Max, and, what's more, you know it."

"I hadn't thought of that. Perhaps after all he is better. He had sinned in his acts, and I have sinned in my thoughts. Still, if every man who sins in his thoughts is to be condemned, who among us will escape?

"The woman who marries," she resumed, "must accept all chances of what I am undergoing. There are always other women lurking around to tempt husbands to stray, and they seem endowed with every fascination that would appeal to a man as weak as Jack."

The admission of his weakness seemed disloyal to her, even though he has repeatedly proved it, for she continued rapidly: "Not that he is any weaker than you, Max. I don't want you to think for a moment that you are any better than he. I don't want to give the impression that I believe there is a man living who is better than my husband."

I had the feeling that I had been doubted and attacked when my actions, at least, were innocent, and I resented it.

She had risen as if to suggest it was time I was going. "Sit down," I said, in some temper. "You are hitting all men over my shoulders, taking into no account that it is your own sex that is primarily to blame. Now don't interrupt me"— she had begun to say something about Mrs. Brown—"It is not the bad woman alone who is to blame. It is the good woman, as well; the woman who tempts in her innocence, or ignorance. There's yourself, for instance!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Dainty Lois Meredith Talks on Beneficial Athletics

Lois Meredith's Girlish Beauty.

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

DO you know any little girls? Of course there are quite a few children in the world, and I know numberless young—very young—ladies, but I have just met a very sweet little girl and I am going to introduce her to you. Her name is Lois Meredith; she is eighteen, and is making a great success of the part of Helen Morris in "Within the Law." Off the stage she does not play the part of a sophisticated young lady—or a "Broadway favorite"—but fairly dawns on you in the absolute simplicity of a white middy-blouse, black velvet tam-o'-shanter and the unstudied coiffure effect of a "head sunning over with curls."

Of course the very first question I asked Miss Lois was one anent clothes and her ideal costume.

"I like my middy blouses pretty well," said she, "so well, in fact, that I would sacrifice all the sweeties in the world rather than eat goodies and get too fat to wear sailor-suits. But my ideal costume is Greek drapery. I do love the classical lines of drapery that leave you free and untrammelled, so you can breath, and move naturally, and look natural, too. I'd like to wear layer after layer of chiffon and sandals and give my whole body a chance to breathe. Think how wrapped up and shut away from the health-giving fresh air our poor bodies are. Well, I wear as few layers as I can—dispensing with every unnecessary thing I can—corsets for instance—and I wear white, so I'll feel cool and clean, and I try to give my body a chance to sway and to move freely, so I will feel all through me how good it is to be alive.

No Jewels.

"I don't believe in jewels, either," went on this sensible girl. "If you are pretty, jewels sort of attract attention to themselves and away from you. And if you are not pretty, anyway, showy jewelry makes you conspicuous, and then people notice how unattractive you are."

Dainty little Lois Meredith can afford to believe in "beauty unadorned," but every eighteen-year-old girl and the older sister of twenty ought to ponder the bit of philosophy: "Plain women are always adding some little fancy touches that make you notice how very plain they are!"

"Will you tell me how you spend your day?" I asked. "You must carry out your theory of simplicity in living as well as clothes."

"My theory of living," answered Miss Meredith, "is WORK. For everything worth getting in this world you must work, work, work. To keep well and strong, to look attractive, and to get ahead in the profession you have chosen, you must keep working and striving. In my chosen calling I find that I have to keep developing my brain, so I can do better and better things all the time. I am studying French and music in the interests of my brain.

Plenty of Sleep.

"Then I take care of my body, too. Of course I have to have plenty of sleep, because I am still growing. I have never in all my life been to a restaurant after the theater; most girls would think that an awful sacrifice, wouldn't they? Well then, I get up at about 9, and have a glass of hot water, which is not a bit hard to take when you keep at it, and then for about half an hour I exercise; stretching motions, aesthetic dancing movements and bending over, with my knees held taut and body poised. Sometimes I touch my finger tips to the floor, sometimes I wrap my arms around my legs and see how far down I can bring my head.

"I have one little pet exercise: A very great artist said that I had the most beautiful hand in America! Now I'd like to believe him—even if that would be conceited—but anyway I take care of my hands and try to keep them soft and tapering. I go through an exercise as if I were wringing them and stroking them. I work at my hands as if I were putting on and taking off a new pair of gloves very carefully. I truly can recommend this exercise, for just think what it made Mr. Gibson say to me.

"Would you like to hear about my favorite part?" went on the girl ingenuously. Perhaps it would make a good conclusion to your interview. My favorite part was Modesty in 'Everywoman.' I thought it a compliment to be asked to play that part. I loved doing it—and I felt that the only way to play Modesty was to be modest. That applies to girls everywhere doesn't it?

ty is always the sweetest part—and it has to be true, or people will know."

And I think that is a very good conclusion for the interview—Modesty and the sweet simplicity and charm that follow in her wake are the best parts for all girls—only they must not be parts. Modesty must be true if you want to be a truly charming girl.

Up-to-Date Jokes

Mr. Winston Churchill has often effectively silenced offensive interrupters. It is related that on one occasion, when addressing a large meeting in the North, he was frequently disturbed by a man who persisted in shouting "Liar! Liar!" every few minutes.

Winston bore with him for some time, but eventually broke off his speech to remark, in gentlest accents:

"If the gentleman at the back of the hall who is so anxious that the audience should know his name will write it down on a slip of paper and hand it to the chairman instead of bawling it at the top of his voice, he will save himself a lot of trouble."

No more was heard of the interrupter for the rest of the meeting.

"That house I have rented from you," said the dissatisfied tenant, "is horribly draughty. When I was sitting in the middle of the room my hair blew all over my face. Can't you do something?"

"Don't you think, sir," replied the house agent, suavely, "it would be easier and cheaper for you to get your hair cut?"

A Paris cabman found a splendid turbot that had been left in his cab. He went at once to the Commissary of Police.

"Very good, my friend," said the latter. "Come back again in a year and a day, and if, in the meantime, the turbot has not been claimed, it shall be yours."

He—And won't you give me a kiss?
She—Certainly not. I never kissed a man in my life.
He (emphatically)—Neither have I.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite, and was so nervous I could not sleep; then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work, and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. Hayward Sowers, Cary, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

SYNOPSIS

Gordon Kelly, a mountain boy of Georgia, goes to Atlanta. He becomes the sensation of the baseball world through his marvelous playing, although he said that he had never played a game before arriving in Atlanta. He is bought by the Boston American League Club for $50,000. Kelly incurs the enmity of Forrest Cain, a wealthy ne'er-do-well, at the same time winning the friendship and love of Mildred Deery, daughter of an Atlanta banker. Kelly is hurt in a game and Mildred runs to his assistance. He recovers, leaves the hospital and mysteriously disappears. He is not heard from for months. Mildred admits to herself that she loves Kelly. Her father dislikes the publicity given Mildred's assistance to Kelly on the baseball field. He gets Mildred to agree to go to the mountains. Cain follows Mildred and calls upon her. While Mildred is fishing she suddenly comes upon Gordon Kelly. In the meeting each learns of the other's love. Kelly is sought everywhere by the press. Cain proposes to Mildred and is refused. Kelly meets Cain and the latter tries to shoot Kelly. Elmer saves Kelly's life. Mildred visits Gordon Kelly's home in the mountains and is astonished at the evidences of luxury and refinement she finds there. Gordon is caught in a storm and is made prisoner by four strange men. He is forced to write a letter to Mildred. In it he tries to convey a hint of his whereabouts.

Now go on with the story.

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Copyright, 1913, by International News Service.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Did you git a letter fum Mr. Bud Ah mean Mr. Gordon, Mis' Mildred?" asked the colored boy, after the car was fairly in motion.

"Yes, Steve, I'll read it to you; and I'm going back with you in order to tell Mr. Gray, the superintendent, and Mrs. Ward, the housekeeper, about it."

Arriving at the huge granite edifice, Mildred learned that Gray had rounded up every available man on the place and had started off with them on a systematic hunt for the missing man. Asking Steve to tell Mrs. Ward that she was there, Mildred was soon joined by the housekeeper, to whom she imparted the news and then sat down to breakfast with her while Steve ran off to bring back the searching party.

When Gray returned Mildred read the letter she had received to him. If she had allowed him to read it, the level headed superintendent might have discovered the simple cryptogram and headed a party that would have rescued Gordon in jig time, but Mildred clung to the letter as though it was the most precious thing in the world and would not allow it to go out of her hand.

It was decided that, as Gordon had explicitly told them not to search for him at present, it might be fatal to the captive if they disobeyed orders, so matters were allowed to rest as they were, pending the receipt of further news from Gordon.

Gray Is Cautious.

"Somebody has kidnaped him," declared Gray, "and they expect to make a fortune. If that is the case we will be hearing from them mighty quick, and when we do we will make our plans accordingly."

Gray was a big, hearty man, full of action but cautious when caution was required. "In the meantime, Miss Deery," he said, "I would advise you not to worry. But just as soon as you hear from Mr. Gordan again, please let me know at once. I will have the telephone line fixed right away."

Mildred was driven back to the bungalow by Steve. She was happy to think he was safe and well, yet troubled over the vagueness and uncertainty of things. In the course of a few days another letter came and she promptly informed Gray of its contents. It was apparently written in a cheerful spirit, but again admonished them not to search for him.

"That was put in there by orders of the men who are holding him," was Gray's comment when Mildred read the letter to him. "I wish he could slip in some hint of where he is hidden and I'd have him back here in half a day. They must be guarding him closely, Miss Deery, for I know him well enough to know that he would break away if they gave him the slightest opening."

The days went by. Mildred wrote a letter to Gordon and placed it under a stone at the doorsill, but when his next letter was delivered in the dead of night, the messenger did not take away Mildred's letter. In time Farnsworth came to the bungalow, as has already been told, but Mildred did not inform him of all she knew in connection with Gordon's disappearance. She was afraid that the publicity might work some harm to the man she loved. The newspaper men went away and more letters were received. They were all written in the same spirit. Weeks passed. Mildred's mother returned to Atlanta, urging Mildred to return with her, but the girl refused to leave the mountain region. She had not yet informed her mother of her great secret, but her mother had half guessed it.

One day when Mildred felt that she could stand the suspense no longer and was on the point of yielding to Gray's entreaties to start a business-like hunt for the captive, she discovered the simple cryptogram.

"What a little fool I've been," she cried. She had, of course, noticed that Gordon had begun every line of his letters with a capital letter, but the reason for it had entirely escaped her. Now, of course, it was as plan as day and she almost cried at her own stupidity in not solving the riddle long ago. She had saved every letter and was reading them over for the several hundredth time when she made the discovery. She procured pencil and paper and wrote down the instructions.

"Five miles northwest my home," the first letter said, reading down the lines of capital letters. "Three miles due west road meets creek," read the second letter. "Sharp rise hundred yards then down," said third. "Cabin midst copse few trees; four captors," said the fourth. There were two more letters contining further hints.

Mildred called Elmer and told him to bring the runabout, and together they went to the mansion to find Gray. They were told that he had gone to Atlanta on business, but would return next day. On the way home Elmer said:

"Let's not wait for Mr. Gray. Let's find Gordon and rescue him ourselves."

"You foolish boy," replied Mildred. "They would capture us, too, and then what a fine pickle we would be in. We must wait for Mr. Gray and he will take plenty of men with him."

Elmer Would Fight.

"Oh shucks, Mildred," exclaimed the lad. "Gee whiz, I could take your rifle and you could take your revolver and we could sneak up and catch them off their guard and rescue the prisoner. Come on, Mildred; let's do it."

"I'm afraid your spirit is better than your judgment, Elmer," said Mildred with a sigh. "Goodness knows I hate to wait until Mr. Gray gets back, but I don't see what else we can do."

Elmer kept teasing all the way home and when they arrived he brought forth his father's maps of the region and they spent a long time pouring over them trying to figure out the exact spot where they thought Gordon was held a captive.

"Be game, Mildred," said Elmer, returning to the attack. "Only four men are there. We can get the drop on them easy."

"Stop talking nonsense, child, or you'll make me cross with you," cried Mildred. "If your father was here I would willingly let him get a force at the mansion and start out without waiting for Mr. Gray." Shephard was in Chattanooga and would not return for two days. "Run away now, Elmer and leave me alone. I want to think this all out by myself," added Mildred.

It was only Gordon's cheerful letters that had prevented Mildred from going distracted. The situation had been a most peculiar one. In every one of the letters Gordon had told her not to begin a search for him and she had been afraid to ignore his request. Gray had insisted more than once on taking the matter in his own hands, but Mildred had flatly move.

"He is writing these letters to me, Mr. Gray, and they clearly say not to seek him," she told him the last time they had talked the matter over.

"That is because he was forced to write it, otherwise they wouldn't have delivered the letters," replied the superintendent. "If he doesn't turn up soon, Miss Deery, I'm going to take matters on my own hands."

"To Be His Wife."

"Please don't, Mr. Gray," she pleaded. "I am sure something dreadful would happen if you failed, and we would never see him again."

"That's all right, Miss Deery. But in a way I am responsible for his safety. With you it is different."

"Yes, it is different, Mr. Gray," she replied quietly. "I have promised to be his wife."

Gray's eyes opened wide at this piece of information, and Mildred added: "Please say nothing about it. I only tell you so that you can understand how vitally interested I am in his welfare."

Sitting alone on the porch the day she discovered the hidden meaning in Gordon's letters, Mildred went over the whole situation in her mind. Gray was absent. Shephard was absent. Gordon had long expected help. She knew not where to turn. At last she arose from her chair and going to the telephone, called up the mansion and said:

CHAPTER XLI.

WITH the exception of the news of Gordon Kelly that Farnsworth, the newspaper man, had secured from Mildred Deery at her bungalow, and which was published in his paper, the great baseball public had heard nothing of the $50,000 player since the day late in May when he left the hospital in Atlanta and disappeared. The public knew nothing of his palatial home in the Georgia mountains, it knew nothing of his vast wealth, of his peculiar life, of the tragedy of his father's death. It knew nothing of the grand romance of Gordon and Mildred, or of Gordon's conflicts with Forrest Cain, or of his capture and detention by the mountaineers. All the public knew was that Gordon Kelly, the most widely advertised ball player in the world, the man the Red Sox had paid the stupendous sum of $50,000 for, the player every "fan" on the American League circuit was most anxious to see perform, had mysteriously disappeared.

The name of Gordon Kelly had become a byword wherever baseball was played or discussed. Every time a player on any team in any city or town made a home run he was a "Gordon Kelly." Ball players in the big leagues, college ball players, schoolboy players, and even the urchins playing ball in the back lots were always talking about the great player. This continued all summer long all over the country, so that despite the fact that the public did not know what had become of Gordon Kelly, his name was constantly on everybody's lips and he was constantly referred to in the newspapers.

Gave Up Hope.

The Red Sox management practically gave up hope of ever seeing him again before the season was half over but every pay day a check was drawn to his order and mailed to his last known address in Atlanta. The first half of the season was fraught with injuries to the Red Sox players, and if ever they needed Gordon Kelly it was in the first few months of the championship season. But by the first of July the world's champions got going in their proper stride and won game after game in the same impressive manner that had enabled them to mow down their opponents in the season of 1912 and eventually capture the American League pennant and later the highest honors in baseball—the world's championship.

The Red Sox pitchers—the backbone of a team—began "going good" about the first of July. The heavy hitters took confidence and found their "batting eyes" again. The loyal supporters of the team took heart and flocked to Fenway Park to encourage their favorites and "squeeze" hard for victory.

That rabid Boston organization known far and wide as the "Royal Rooters," forgot the fancied grievances it had against the club's management that dated back to the last world's series, and marched to the baseball grounds en masse and with a brass band playing "Tessie." The old-time Boston spirit—the spirit that made Boston the greatest baseball city in the world—returned as the Red Sox forged triumphantly toward the top of the baseball column.

Red Sox Climb.

By the first of August the Red Sox were in third place, after floundering around among the tail-enders for half the saeson. By the first of September the world's champions were in second place, only the Athletics, of Philadelphia, standing between them and the leadership in the American League pennant fight. The men were playing with a dash and vigor that surpassed their 1912 form. Tris Speaker, the great center fielder, led the league in batting and every day he was getting his two or more safe hits, most of them solid drives for two or three bases or home runs. Duffy Lewis, the left fielder, was close up in his stockwork, and his fielding and throwing were better than ever. Harry Hooper in right field was having his best year, batting better than he had ever done before and running the bases like a deer. Heine Wagner, captain of the team and the man most depended upon for defensive work, played with a steadiness that was the marvel of the baseball world. Larry Gardner, the third baseman, fully recovered from the injury to his ankle, began playing again early in June, and from that time on he surpassed himself at bat and in the field. Steve Yerkes was as steady as a rock at second base, and his batting was timely. He seldom failed to deliver when called upon. Clyde Engle, who had to play first base nearly all the year on account of the injury to Manager Stahl's foot, played the bag in a manner that made the other first basemen jealous. The catchers—Carrigan and Cady—were like stonewalls behind the bat, and the pitchers—Wood, Bedient, Collins and O'Brien, with Hall and Leonard to help out—performed wonders. In short, the whole team played like wildfire and stood the other teams on end as fast as they appeared. From the first of July to the close of the season the Red Sox did not lose but one series to their opponents.

White Sox Terrors.

In the meantime, the Chicago White Sox, managed by the clever Jimmy Callahan (with the owner of the club, Comiskey—the "Old Roman"—in the background to help with his sage advice) were going great guns, too. Big Ed Walsh, the celebrated "spitball" pitcher, seemed unbeatable. Scott, Benz and the other twirlers supported the mainstay nobly. Schalk, the "kid" catcher, proved to be one of the best backstops in either league and held the pitching of the entire staff with elegance and grace, while his right arm was a terror to base stealers. Strengthened by the acquisition of Hal Chase, the great first baseman, the entire infield braced, Rath, Weaver and Lord playing as though their lives depended on it. The outfield developed into one of the strongest in the American League. "Ping" Bodie played fine ball and broke fences with his bat instead of talking about it. Collins, the Newton boy, and Mattick, the other outfielders, covered their territory like ten-second men and batted like fiends. This great Chicago aggregation, while its success was not quite as sensational as the Red Sox, plowed steadily ahead, and when the Boston team reached second place the Windy City rivals were close behind them, only a few points separating the two teams in the percentage column.

In the meantime, the Athletics, managed by the shrewd baseball general, Connie Mack, which had been enjoying a sort of baseball buggy ride the first half of the season and had already begun to count their world's series money in their minds, struck a mighty rough road about the first of August and began to "come back," as they say in horse racing circles. They lost game after game. Their pitchers "went bad" and their sluggers failed to slug. Someone stole Frank Baker's bats and he couldn't hit the ball. Two or three unfortunate accidents put some of their most dependable players on the hospital list temporarily. By the first of September the Philadelphia "fans" were in a panic. Manager Connie Mack lost his Mephistophelean smile, and the subdued swearing he indulged in withered the grass in the immediate vicinity of the players' bench whereon he sat during the gloomy, losing games.

Situation Tense.

The pitchers on whom Mack depended, caused him many sleepless nights. Eddie Plank's cross-fire became crosseyed. Jack Coombs' curves were batted from Dan to Beersheba, and in spite of "Chief" Bender's red-faced twists and black-haired curves, the Indian could not win a game. On September 1 the Athletics were still in the lead, but only two games separated them from the Rex Sox, and the Chicagos were so close up that the Philadelphia players had heart disease every time they looked at a sporting extra. This was the situation when Labor Day rolled around.

But just when the White Elphants, as the Athletics are sometimes called, appeared to be sure of losing the lead they had had held since the opening of the season in April, they took a wonderful brace. They played the Washington team on Labor Day and won both the morning and the afternoon game, knocking the great Walter Johnson from the box in the second session. However, the Red Sox and the White Sox also won both Labor Day games, so the Athletics did not gain a single point on their rivals.

Games Bitterly Fought.

On September 4 the Red Sox arrived in Philadelphia for a three-game series. Every game was bitterly fought, but the Rex Sox won two of them, thereby reducing the lead of the Athletics to one game. In the meantime the White Sox won three straight and the result was that on the evening of September 6 the three leading clubs were nearer together than ever. From that time on it was a desperate fight to the very finish. Interest in the pennant race was tremendous. Crowds packed the ball parks wherever the three teams performed.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the thirty-third installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read the 34th installment of ahe great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

COAST BETTORS FACE PUZZLE IN BIG FIGHT

CHICAGO, ILL., June 26.—They never seem to have any luck at all in picking winners of the lightweight championship bouts out on the Pacific Coast, and it will be interesting to note which of them in the San Francisco battle of July 4 they single out for favoritism. As a matter of fact they haven't picked the right man for favorite in many a long month out there and in consequence the short ends have won with startling regularity. Yet the coast fans, seeing as they do, must be set down as the poorest judges in the world—or is it all accountable for on the ground of native son pride and civic patriotism? A native son is a real favorite at all times out there if it can be figured that he has as good as a fighting chance.

INASMUCH as both Jose Rivers and Willie Ritchie may be tabbed up as real native sons, it looks as if both of them will be made favorites. That paradoxical statement may need a little explanation, and here it is. They will make Rivers the favorite down around the southern portion of the State, where he is so highly regarded. And in San Francisco, where Willie comes from, they will make him the choice. Hence we may see the spectacle of Frisco people doing their betting in Los Angeles, where they can get a better price, and the people from the southern part of the State doing their wagering at the scene of the battle. It should result in a funny mixup.

* * *

AS a sample of the strange way they have of picking out probable winners it may be recalled that when Ad Wolgast battled Lew Powell in a 20-round match in San Francisco they made Powell such a strong choice that the Wolgast adherents got as good as 2 1-2 to 1 for their coin—and won it all the way. Likewise when Wolgast won the title from Bat Nelson—the coast fans simply could not see Ad at all. So it has been in many another of the big battles there. Always the wrong man picked as choice and always the short end winning.

WHATEVER disadvantage Rivers may be found to have in this encounter, one of the points against him will be the fact that he will be an alien and scrapping on the other fellow's own canvas. This may not look to be much of a disadvantage when it is considered that Rivers is as much of a native son as is Ritchie. But Rivers isn't from San Francisco, while Ritchie is, and the cheers of the crowd, or the greater portion of these, will be for Ritchie, which may be decidedly disconcerting for Rivers, who is used to monopolizing such cheers himself, having fought a vast majority of his contests in his own ring at Los Angeles.

THE question of Rivers' gameness doubtless will be given the answer in this battle. It will be a crucial test for the little Mexican because he hasn't met quite such a rapid fire jabber as the Ritchie boy is liable to be in this match. And jabs are points that will be screamingly cheered by the friends of Ritchie, and Joe will find that he will have to do some mighty whaling to even up any sort of a count. It looks to me as if Rivers is a game kid and will give Willie a tremendous battle.

'Thumbless Curve' Invented by Rucker

CINCINNATI, OHIO, June 26.—A two-hit shutout administered by Nap Rucker to the Reds recently may develop a new pitching style and a new ball called "the thumbless delivery."

After the game it was found that Rucker pitched the nine wonderful innings with a crippled left hand. The thumb was badly hurt stopping a batted ball some days ago and Nap could not shut it on the leather.

Nevertheless, the Georgia wonder went in there and proceeded to deliver a slow ball, gripped hard with the fingers and only steadied with the base of the useless thumb.

This ball came up to the batters like Matty's fadeaway, but higher, and man after man took two called strikes on the freak delivery.

Then Nap would drive one with what little speed he could command and the Reds, forced to hit, drove it out as best they could.

Great support saved rucker a dozen times, but the game nevertheless was marvelous for a man in his condition. The new thumbless ball, he says, will hereafter be one of his mainstays.

"I can stop any team," said Rucker, "that does the wait-'em-out act. If they stand up there with bat on shoulder I can toss two of these floats, get two strikes and trust to the field for the next one."

PIRATES.

In days of old
The Pirates bold
Controlled the raging seas,
And honest men
Who traveled then
All trembled at the knees.

For Pirates then
Were low-browed men,
Whose actions were unlawful.
They loved to fight
From morn till night,
And acted something awful.

We do not how
To Pirates now—
They are a crowd of dubs.
For proof of that
Just rubber at

Reports from Poughkeepsie indicate that Wisconsin rowed in its old-time form.

Cornell is peeved because it won only two races out of three, whereas some of the crews considered themselves lucky to finish on the same day.

Vivian Nickalls may be a perfectly good rowing coach, but it surpasseth our imagination to conceive of a man named Vivian coaching a gang of huskies.

Alfred Vanderbilt's victory in the London coaching marathon shows that all the rich are not idle. If Alf were not a millionaire he would make a great little teamster.

I often pause and wonder at my power over him—
One word from me and Heine does
what pleases Heine Zim.

H. Zim may mean well when he promises to be good, but he has an awful job on his hands.

Still, Mr. Zim has qualities which tend to make him a popular idol. For one thing, he never has attempted to burst into vaudeville.

Press agents have various ways to startle the public. For instance, one of them avers that a motorcycle meet was called off for fear the riders would be hurt.

The attempt to restore basketball to the high school curriculum simply shows that some persons have a lot of time to waste.

London papers inform us that "the American innovation of shirtsleeves will undermine the best traditions of golf." And yet there are those who claim that the Times is not a humorous publication.

HUNTING HIRSIG LANDS NO GAME BUT SPINS YARN

NASHVILLE, TENN., June 26.—President William Alibi Hirsig, of the Vanishing Vols, returned from his hunt for ball players through the wilds of Ohio with his game bag as flat as the well-known pancake, and instead of fielders he accumulated a stock of highly interesting tales of .300 wallopers and .999 fielders he would at an early date dress up in Nashville uniforms.

"Author" Hirsig has so rapidly forged to the front as a yarn spinner that quite a number of the six-best-seller publishers are entreating him to turn out a batch of storyettes about "Ball Players I Pretty Near Landed."

Beautiful Dreams.

Calmly brushing away a tear when the announcement came that "Red" Nelson's physician had warned him against inhaling the germs that hobnob around the club houses throughout the South, Hirsig unfolded a story of grabbing either Almeida or Dodge from the Reds. The interesting story-teller held his listeners spellbound, when he launched into the Vols' chances of securing the Cuban, Almeida, or the hard-hitting Dodge to decorate the third cushion for the Schwartzmen, and seeing that he had the bugs groggy, he put them down for the count when he stated that Tinker would probably also ship to Nashville Marty Berghammer, the former Cub, and "Rube" Groh, who came from the Giants in the famous trade for Arthur Fromme.

Hofman Cries to Come.

Recovering from this terrible shock, Hirsig uncorked another on the unsuspecting gabfest he held with Arthur Hofman while in Akron, in which Circus Solly begged the Vols president to take him to the Sunny South, if Kansas City would only release its claim on the ex-Pirate's services.

'Auld Nick' Goes on Rampage

Jap Beats Indian in Hot Race

MAYBE some day Jock McNeil and Tex Richards, the kings of the local Motordrome, will thrash out their speed differences and settle the argument as to whether the imported J. A. P. engine or that in the American-made Indian is the faster. They took still another hack at it Wednesday night before a smashing big crowd, and it is not decided yet. But McNeil put another kink in Richards' reputation by winning the Woodward Sweeptakes in stunning style. Then his machine blew up.

McNeil has named his craft "Auld Nick," and it surely behaves like it. In three race meets run thus far it has not gone through the whole program without springing a splint or developing a Charley hoss. But whenever it has gone right it has developed a speed the like of which the other machines at the Motordrome can not produce.

In the Sweepstakes Wednesday night McNeil and Richards met in the third heat at two miles. It was a tremendously fast race and the riders whirled around and around in dizzy circles at a speed of exactly 86 miles an hour. McNeil took the lead after the contest was well started and held it, with Richards a handy second, to the finish.

"Oh, Richards was just taking it easy to qualify as the second man in the fastest heat," said the wise ones.

In the final heat, however, they had it out for blood. It was at five miles and they started cautiously. Richards, fearing McNeil, went out after a mile with a terrific showing of speed. It looked as though the Indian would run the Jap off its wheels. But then McNeil opened up and like a witch on a broomstick he whirled mysteriously out into the lead and held it. At the finish Richards closed with one of those uncanny bursts of speed that he always seems able to conjure out of his engine for the finish, but McNeil let out another notch and whirled across the chalk line the winner of a truly great race.

With McNeil's machine in no condition the Motordrome Purse was easy for Richards.

The next races will be held Saturday night.

CLEVELAND FANS RALLY TO BIRMINGHAM'S SIDE

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 26.—Petitions and endless chains of letters to President Ban Johnson and President Charles Somers, of the Naps, censuring the president of the American League on the statement credited to him that Manager Birmingham is incompetent, were started in scores of offices and shops by fans to-day.

Many communications were mailed to Johnson's office in Chicago. Many who didn't write called Owner Somers, and his phone was jinging all day. Employees in offices in the Rockefeller Building started an endless chain of letters, every man asking his acquaintances to write. Similar chains were started in other office buildings.

LAW AGAINST HANDBOOKING BADLY NEEDED

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE attention of the men who have gathered for the purpose of making new laws for Georgia is called to the fact that this State needs a law against gambling.

Yes, it has one, but it is not adequate to prevent handbook gambling.

Under the present law, so we are informed by attorneys of great prominence, a man could parade up and down Peachtree Street offering bets on baseball games and horse races, and not be liable to arrest.

So long as he had no fixed place of business and could not be arrested for conducting a gambling house he is immune.

THIS is a wretched state of affairs. Handbook gambling ought to be prohibited by law. It leads to more serious gambling, it gets boys and young men started in the wrong way, it results in petty thievery, wasted money. It lines the purses of the gambling gentry, often at the expense of mothers and children who would have had the benefit of the money except for a foolish flyer on a ball game or a horse race.

* * *

THE worst feature of the handbook gambling, perhaps, is its wretched influence on the sports themselves.

Of course racing isn't worth saving.

No sports that exists for gambling alone is.

But baseball is. That is the great national sport, and thus far it has been kept practically above suspicion.

If gambling on the games continues long it will not escape suspicion and it will doubtless deserve suspicion and worse.

If only to save the greatest of American sports handbook gambling should be stopped.

IT is not presumed that a mere law will prevent betting. But it will at least drive it to cover and yank off the mask of respectability. If it isn't against the law to run a handbook why shouldn't anybody do it? That is what a lot of them ask. And it is a hard question to answer.

If a measure to prevent handbook gambling could be put before the Legislature it would go through flying.

There isn't a man who would vote against it. They would all realize that such a law ought to be on the books.

But will anybody bring such a law before them and see that it comes to a vote?

It would do more good for State of Georgia than many a that will be passed.

Blood Bath Knocks Rheumatism

Remarkable Effect of a Remedy That Actually Irrigates the Entire Blood Supply.

The Hardest Nut of All, Rheumatism, Is Cracked by S. S. S.

It sounds queer to take a blood bath, but that is precisely the effect of a most remarkable remedy known as S. S. S. It has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And, best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store at $1 a bottle. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to the Swift Specific Company, 137 Swift Building, Atlanta, Ga.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, June 26.—It is a race of surprises in the National League this year. Every time it looks as if the Phillies are about to break and ready to drop back they catch their wind and come strong again. Brooklyn has also shown another burst. The Cubs are liable to gain on the three Eastern contenders—New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn—within the next two weeks because these three strong clubs will be playing one another.

The Athletics are still out in front in the American League and will probably stay there. They may fall back during their coming clashes with the Red Sox and Washington and their impending trip through the West. In both leagues the Western contenders will face easier series. Cleveland appeared to be slipping badly in the East a week ago, but the Naps have a fine chance to catch their feet again at home now, especially if the Philadelphia boys slide into a slump. Even the best of them slump. Cleveland has kept the Athletics within hailing distance while crusading through the East, which was a good deal of a trick considering the speed at which the Athletics were moving. That about sums up the situation in the two leagues.

THE Giants' case at this time perhaps deserves a little consideration. The club had a wonderful road trip through the West, gaining on the Phillies and winning twelve games and losing only four.

The silver lining in the showing of the Giants on the road during this last trip can be found by a glance at the schedule. The New York club winds up its season with a swing through the West this year, and, if the final dispute comes down to a battle between the Giants and Phillies to the wire, I look to see New York nose the Philadelphia boys out on this final trip.

THE Cubs now threaten to be factors in the pennant struggle to the end. They won ten games and lost six during the Eastern invasion, and the pitching staff appears to be much better than it was a month or even two weeks ago.

The Pirates fell down sadly and have continued to show bad form. Their case is hard to explain, but it is impossible to go behind returns, and the fact remains that the Pittsburg club is still in the second division and showing no signs of mounting. It is now nearing the first of July, which means the race is about half over. The Pittsburg club is now about a dozen games behind the league leaders, a margin which would require phenomenal playing to overcome. I don't see how the Pirates can be counted in the race at present.

ONLY 10-ROUND BATTLE FOR WHITE AND BRITTON

CHICAGO, June 26.—Charlie White and Jack Britton are to fight ten rounds no decision at New Orleans July 4 instead of twenty rounds with a verdict at the end. Governor Hall, of Louisiana, is responsible for the switch in Promoter Tortorich's plans. He said he would stand for no knockdown, drag-out fight in his State. Frankie Whitney, the Cedar Rapids lightweight, leaves here this morning for New Orleans, where he fights Joe Thomas July 4.

9 PITCHED BALLS BY CONZELMAN STRIKE OUT SIDE

By Joe Agler.

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 26.—With Paul Musser and Dunn as the battery for the Crackers this afternoon we should repeat Wednesday's win, for Paul is going fine and has had a good rest.

Conzelman won his fourth straight game Wednesday, and it looks like there is no heading him off. He looks like the one best bet in the league to me. He has the build, the control and everything else that goes to make a big league pitcher. He is certain to be back in the majors next spring, and I think he'll stick, too.

* * *

JOE probably broke a league record in the seventh inning when he retired the Turtles' side on nine pitched balls. It was just like this:

"Stri-i-ike one!"

"Stri-i-ike tuh!"

"Stri-i-ike thruh! Batter up!"

And then repeat twice more. There wasn't a ball, nor a foul tip—nothing but nine strikes in a row. And that's going some.

Atlantans Closing in On Title Should Win in Big Tennis Meet

NEW ORLEANS, LA., June 26.—Competition in the tennis tourney for the Southern championship Thursday had narrowed down to a few players. Thornton and Grant, of Atlanta, began playing the Worms brothers about 11 o'clock. Pipes and Maginnis were opposed by Smith and Mansfield. Adoue was also carded to meet Shelton before noon.

Phelps will meet Thornton this afternoon. At 4:30 o'clock Grima and Phelps will be opposed by Adoue and Shelton. With this system of elimination the finals go over until Friday.

Saal defaulted to Williams late yesterday after two sets, throwing Williams and Thornton as opponents. It was late for a match, but they decided to play to avoid the morning heat Thursday. Thornton won in straight sets 6-1, 6-0. Thornton let himself out for the first time, and really showed how well he could play tennis. The local man never had a chance.

In the lower half of the game Shelton, of Texas, defeated Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, in straight sets, much to the surprise of nearly everybody at the tournament. Grant was not at his best and Shelton's chop strokes and hard backward drives appeared to worry the Atlantan greatly.

Nat Thornton disposed of Frank Dameron in one of two single matches yesterday. Score: 6-4, 6-4. The Atlantan was not exerting himself and could have reduced the length of the contest at any time he chose.

Good progress was made to-day in the ladies' championship division, but several sets will be thrown to a late afternoon card with finals to-morrow.

LACK OF BUSINESS DEPRESSESCOTTON

Trading Extremely Light Throughout Day—July Center of Discussion—Cables Weak.

NEW YORK, June 26.—At the opening of the cotton market to-day the tone was easier and prices were unchanged to 5 points lower than last night's close. Cables were lower than generally expected. Bear operators had their operations checked by the reports of dry weather over the belt, resulting in August rallying 5 points over the opening, while other positions remained unchanged to 2 points higher.

After the call Liverpool and the continent were reported selling July, but the spot interests were supposed to be buyers. Many operators purchased August and sold July, while commission houses were good buyers of the new crop positions. After moving within a narrow range the market finally developed a sagging tendency and prices dropped some 5 to 9 points under the previous close. Liverpool developed weakness after a good start and closed unchanged to 2 points higher.

It is the current belief now that the market is only an evening up affair, pending the first notice day, Friday, on July delivery. For July contracts naturally was the subject of discussion. Advices from Liverpool stated that the English houses would not take up cotton unless the differences were large enough to assure them profit.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: July, 12.13; August, 12.07; October, 11.55; January, 11.48.

During the late forenoon the market developed a steadier tone, influenced by scattered shorts covering before the Government report next Thursday. Private reports were not so favorable to crop conditions as they have been for some time past. Later the market became weak, based on the strong warning over the middle Gulf, which was considered bearish, as it indicates that rain developments over the Western Rockies will move on the cotton belt in about six days and caused desired general rains. This had a depressing effect on the market, causing prices to reflex to the opening range.

At the close the market was easy with prices showing a net decline of 7 to 15 points from the final quotations of Wednesday.

Following are 10 a. m. bids in New Orleans: July, 12.54; August, 12.19; October, 11.62; January, 11.68.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, June 26.—Due 3½ points higher on July and 2 to 3 points higher on other positions, this market opened quiet, generally 1 point advance. At 12:15 p. m. the market was quiet but steady, at a net advance of 2½ to 3 points on near positions and unchanged to ½ point higher on late months. Later the market advanced ½ point from 12:15 p. m.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—Political news overnight was very unfavorable. War has again broken out in the Balkans, showing that the loud announcements of peace made by the press a short while ago were false and diplomatic to mislead the world.

Weather conditions are favorable. Partly cloudy to fair weather in the belt. A few scattered showers, mostly in the Carolinas. Indications are for stationary conditions. Rain is not desired for a week yet in the central States, owing to the fight made against the weevil, which is more successful in prolonged dry spells between rainy periods.

July here showed aggressive activity for a while after the opening, causing steadiness in new crops, but this was soon followed by a 6-point decline when the bidding for July stopped. The strength and control of the July position are holding the market.

The into-sight for the week looks around 30,000, against 32,112 last year, and we compare with mill takings of 157,000 for this week. Bullish comparisons are expected owing to the May exports from New York and New Orleans stock, which cotton is now landing abroad.

July here had repeated periods of strength and on little bidding sold up to 12.62 shortly before 11 o'clock, causing new crops to rally to 11.66 for December.

COTTON GOSSIP

NEW YORK, June 26.—J. M. Anderson says: "Liverpool did not respond to our advance of yesterday and the selling around the opening was rather general, but the spot people were evidently buying July. Liverpool and the Continent were thought to have sold summer months immediately. The trading throughout the day has been rather small, as tomorrow is notice day and everybody seems to be waiting to see what may be the outcome. Sentiment is more bullish and further advance is anticipated before the Government report next Thursday. Private reports are not so favorable to crop conditions as they have been for some time past.

"Bool weevils are reported in Mississippi in sections where they have not appeared before."

Liverpool, Hentz and scattered longs sold July yesterday and Hentz offered 10,000 bales at 12.25 when the market was 12.21. Some thought this was to reassure shorts for the moment so they would not run away. July had most to do with the strength in the new crop positions, although offerings were limited in the latter. Geran, the Waldorf broker, purchased 15,000 bales of the new crop. McFadden, Springs, Hicks, Dick and Mitchell were good buyers.

The Turners' report was considered bullish and Weld makes the condition 83.3, against 84 last month. Sentiment is turning quite friendly to the market, mainly because of its stubbornness, the way it took 70,000 bales, which Pell sold, and on the idea that the latter will buy the contracts back on the first favorable opportunity.

* * *

Dallas wires: "Texas and Oklahoma are generally clear."

* * *

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—Hayward & Clark: "The weather map is very favorable; partly cloudy to fair over the entire belt, few light showers at scattered points, mostly in the Carolinas and south Louisiana. Stationary temperatures, except some warmer in Memphis districts. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, scattered showers, particularly in the Atlantics."

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "All along price opponents have contended that the cornered condition of July at New York was the dominant factor, and none of them developed any particular attention to July at New Orleans. Now the bear party learns that several men have been quietly buying up July at New Orleans and that they expect to receive cotton on the contracts they hold. The significance of this is apparent when it is remembered that the demand for actual cotton in the South exceeds the offerings, and that actual cotton owners experience no difficulty in selling at full market values. Meanwhile, the bear has discovered fresh cause for market concern over European trade conditions, and sees fresh danger in the reopening of the Balkan conflict.

"On the other hand bool weevil talk is attracting increasing attention, the latest reports being to the effect that the cotton plantations in Mississippi recently purchased by an English syndicate are badly infested. Current crop condition reports do not make quite so good a showing as has been expected by those men who of late have drawn their daily inspiration from the favorableness of the weather map and for this reason high price people found the way clear yesterday to reassert their claim that the plant over a very large area has not made satisfactory progress, because of an adverse start and is now under size."

THE WEATHER.

Conditions.

WASHINGTON, June 26—The weather will be warmer to-night and Friday along the North Atlantic coast and it will continue warm elsewhere east of the Mississippi River during the next 36 hours. There will be local rains to-night in New England, New York, the region of the Great Lakes and Florida, and fair weather elsewhere east of the Mississippi River during the night and Friday.

Forecast.

Forecast until 7 p. m. Friday:

Georgia—Generally fair to-night and Friday.

Virginia—Generally fair to-night and Friday; warmer in east portion Friday.

North and South Carolina—Generally fair to-night and Friday.

Florida—Local showers to-night or Friday.

Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee—Generally fair and continuer warm to-night and Friday.

Louisiana—Fair to-night and Friday, except showers in southeastern portion Friday.

Texas—Fair to-night and Friday.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, June 26.—The cotton seed oil market was firm to-day on further demand from old crop shorts, particularly in August. Old crop months are commanding more attention, their being some new speculative buying in October and November.

Predictions of 14c lard was a further stimulus to the bull side.

MILLER-COTTER COTTON LETTER.

MEMPHIS, June 26.—The market has maintained a steady tone despite some easiness in new months. Outside sentiment is more favorable to the new crop on the theory that the crop has not made June progress as earlier anticipated. July is for sale on bulges, apparently from spot houses. Sentiment is more divided than in weeks and it would appear that the market interest is being evened up for the bureau report.

PROFIT TAKING LOWERS STOCKS

Buying of Harriman Issues Early Feature—Interest Centered on Dissolution Plan.

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, June 26—After a period of strength, during which many prominent issues made material gains, the stock market turned weak about half an hour after the opening and prices shaded.

The news that the Union Pacific dissolution plan had been advanced caused vigorous buying of Harriman's in London. In New York Union Pacific opened at 147⅜ for a gain of 1⅜. Later, however, it lost part of its advance.

Dealings in Union Pacific were brisk. Reading also was active. This stock opened ⅝ up at 158⅜, but later declined to 158. Among the other gains were Amalgamated Coper ¾, American Can ⅝, American Smelter ¼, Canadian Pacific 1, St. Paul ¾, Chino Copper ½, United States Steel common ⅜, Southern Pacific ¾, Pennsylvania Railroad ⅛, Lehigh Valley ⅜, Kansas City Southern ¼, Chesapeake and Ohio ¼ and St. Paul ¾. Steel soon lost all its gain. Missouri Pacific declined ⅛ and Baltimore and Ohio shaded ⅜.

The curb market was firm.

The tone in London was steady, despite Berlin and Vienna selling, induced by further reports of fighting in the Balkans. Sentiment in Americans in London was cheerful. Canadian Pacific was repurchased for a good price gain.

After a fractional advance stocks throughout the list showed a wavering tendency and light losses were recorded in Steel, which reacted in a disappointing manner, losing about a point. Reading sold at 157⅜ from the early 158⅜. Union Pacific dropped 1⅜ and Copper was ⅝ down since the opening. The other issues received about the same drop. The tone in the late forenoon was steady. Call money loaning at 2 per cent.

TRADE SELLS OFF WHEAT HOLDINGS

Speculators Follow Bigger Men in Pit in Face of Bad News From Northwest.

ST. LOUIS CASH QUOTATIONS.

Wheat—No. 2 red	97½
Oats—No. 2	39½@39⅞

CHICAGO, June 26.—The local professionals in wheat were heavy sellers during nearly all of to-day's session. These speculators were following the footsteps of the larger men in the trade and this, too, in the face of quite unfavorable reports sent from Williston, N. D., which said that there would not be over 70 per cent of a wheat crop raised there even under the best conditions from this time forward.

Prices reacted ⅛ to ⅜ from the lowest levels, yet the closings were ⅜ to ½c below those of last night. A few boat loads were sold for export, but this was offset by reports of increased sales of the new crop in all positions.

Corn closed ⅜ to ½c higher, while oats were unchanged to ⅛ to ¼c lower. The buying of corn was largely by local professionals and was not considered as strong as the selling. Longs were the principal sellers of oats in the way of securing profits.

Provisions were unchanged to a shade lower for the day.

OPINION ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.: Wheat—The map shows fair rains at several points in South Dakota, light showers in North Dakota and quite general precipitation in Canada and Minnesota. The firmness in the cash situation and the uncertainty regarding the Northwestern situation are apt to give us a steady market.

Corn—Part cloudy with very little precipitation are shown. Look for a steady market.

Oats—The speculative situation appears strong on the belief that the crop will be a moderate one.

Provisions—There seems to be a disposition to take profits on strong spots, but we do not look for any material decline.

HOG PRICES RISE.

CHICAGO, June 26.—With 88,000 hogs at eleven markets to-day, against 78,000 a week ago, speculators elevated prices 5 to 10c, restoring the 8.90 quotation. The bulk sold at 8.75@8.85, strong weights getting 8.80. Lambs sold up to 8.75, an advance of 1.50, compared with the low spot late last week. The general advance was 25c. In the cattle alleys prices were about steady or weak compared with last Monday.

BANKERS TOLD TO ABANDON COERCION

People, Nation's Bulwark, Bound to Have Last Word in Currency Reform, Says Forbes.

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, June 26.—"You pay too much attention to 'the people,' to the man with a vote and little else," a Wall Street man scolded me yesterday, "and don't give enough consideration to the substantial men of the country, the great, big brainy men, the men who have made America what it is, the giants who head our financial and business organizations."

Well, to that I would reply that half the men active in Wall Street are ridiculously ignorant of 'the people's' place in a republic. They have contempt instead of consideration for the unlettered classes. They have an overweening sense of their own importance and power. They move in a dollar-ridden circle. They have neither the inclination nor the breadth of vision to grasp what part "the people" play in the scheme of things.

* * *

Rather than become an exponent of such views I would become a scavenger, for that is an honest, creditable calling.

* * *

Most of New York's ablest bankers are men of broad gauge, not at all the type I have just described. But there are among them numbers of bourbons, short-sighted, unable to discern the forces that govern twentieth century democracy, blind to world-wide developments in the relations of the so-called masses to the so-called classes. They can not realize that humankind has progressed rapidly these recent years toward equality, that manhood has asserted itself against mere money, that caste is being obliterated.

* * *

In the friendliest spirit conceivable I would urge the national bankers who have been in session here to abandon at once all idea of being able to prevent the United States from placing control of the currency system under the Government. They can not turn back the hands of the clock. The railroads tried it and failed—and to-day are heartily glad that they did fail.

* * *

The people will insist upon having, through their representatives, the final say in regulating banking.

* * *

The bankers may better accept this large fact with good grace now. They assuredly will have to accept it later, no matter how much they protest. Threats to seek shelter under State laws will not long avail, for even should such unlikely steps be taken the people of the States would fall into line and demand rigid control of the dodging institutions.

* * *

Let the bankers use their every effort, if they choose, to secure more generous representation on the Federal Reserve Board. They might win a provision in the bill that three of the seven members shall be bankers. But that the Government will insist upon holding the balance of power is a foregone conclusion if ever there was one.

Bonding Company Wins Suit Filed by Defaulter's Victim

Judge William T. Newman Thursday sustained the demurrer of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company against the petition of the Proctor Coal Company, which sued for $5,000, the amount for which C. H. Stanton, an employee, was bonded and the approximate amount he is to have defaulted. The bonding company asserted their contracts are made for one year at a time and that the exact time which Stanton defaulted could not be shown.

They represented that they could be held responsible only from December 1, 1900, to August 8, 1901, when the books were audited competently.

"It is ordered," Judge Newman said, "that the demurrer to the petition be sustained insofar as the petition seeks to recover for losses prior to December 1, 1900, and that the case may proceed for the loss alleged to have been sustained after that date, the demurrer as to this latter having been overruled this 25th day of June, 1913."

Peachtree Paving Starts Soon, Says Smith, Preparing

Chairman Shelby Smith, of the County Commission, began preparations Thursday to start work soon on the improvement of Peachtree Road from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead. The work, he said, probably would start within the next ten days.

"We would have started this work some weeks ago," he said, "but could not get the material nor the labor. The material will be available in a few days. We can get labor from some of the streets that will be completed shortly and put it on the Peachtree road."

Chairman Smith said he would not consent to beginning the work until he had men enough and the right kind of material to make the road a credit to the county.

Absence of Heads Of Pure Milk Body Postpones Report

Owing to the illness of Dr. S. A. Visanska and the absence from Atlanta of Oscar Elsas, the luncheon scheduled for Thursday at the Piedmont Hotel to consider the report of the milk committee of the Chamber of Commerce has been postponed indefinitely.

Dr. Visanska, who is chairman of the committee, is recuperating at a South Carolina sanitarium, and Mr. Elsas, the vice chairman, is at the bedside of his son in a New York hospital.

Featuring the report of the milk committee is a recommendation that the Chamber of Commerce have Dr. Charles North, sanitarian of New York City, come to Atlanta and conduct a week's investigation. Secretary W. G. Cooper, of the Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday an early date would be set for the luncheon, at which time the milk committee's report would be considered.

Burial Service Read Over Bird in Coffin

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 26.—A pet canary, owned by James S. Laughlin, was buried in a small cemetery in the back yard of the McLaughlin summer home in Chelsea.

It was placed in a silk-lined metallic coffin, and Helen McLaughlin read the burial service over her pet. The canary had been in the household fourteen years.

Who's Who In Your House?

Are you the Boss?

Or is it Cook?

Some cooks are jewels. If yours is, you'd better hang on to her. But some cooks are NOT jewels. They take frequent vacations without leave. They strenuously object to dinner parties. And those cozy little midnight lunches and inroads on the pantry are simply out of the question. Perhaps in spite of all her faults you want to keep your cook. But don't keep her if you are not satisfied with her. Don't keep her just because you fear you can't get another. You can, without trouble.

Some good cook who would suit you has a Want Ad in The Georgian. She will be a good cook because the pick and cream of cooks and all other help advertise in The Georgian exclusively. You won't have to waste time looking up some one who is altogether out of the question. She will be all right—the cook you get through The Georgian.

So look her up. Things will go so much smoother with a dependable woman in the kitchen. Meals will be served on time and taste like mother's own. Get the kind of a cook you've always wanted by reading Georgian Want Ads to-day.

Is Poultry Culture And Egg Production Affected by Climate?

Also Question Answered From Raiser Who Has Had Little Chicks to Die Shortly After Hatching.

Edited by Judge F. J. Marshall.

A subscriber to one of the Northern poultry papers asks if poultry culture and egg production could not be made more profitable in a warm climate like Georgia or Florida than a cold one. The editor answers with a big NO. We believe this editor is surely mistaken. And we think we understand why he makes this assertion that he does.

He has evidently concluded because the South does not produce eggs in proportion to its area that the hens do not do their duty.

While the truth of the matter is that in this genial Southern climate our hens can be made to do duty a greater part of the year than in the cold and frozen North and these eggs can be produced at less cost per dozen on an average for the reason that the hens do not have to be housed in expensive houses, and it takes much less food to keep the body in a normal laying condition than it does when it is so cold.

The hens can be out of doors and in the natural sunshine and warmth so conducive to health and egg production. The reason the South is so far behind in the matter of egg production in proportion to her area and population is that hundreds of farmers scarcely raise enough chickens and eggs to supply their own tables, to say nothing of supplying the markets. Of course there are a few limited sections of the South where they make a great business of shipping chickens and eggs to the Eastern markets, but this area is but a small part of the whole South.

But in the East and North the chicken market business has been one of the leading means of a livelihood for small farmers for generations, to say nothing of the immense plants making a specialty of eggs and broilers. We believe it is an accepted fact that warm air and sunshine are the strong factors for egg production, consequently any one who has become at all familiar with the average winters of the Gulf States knows that the natural conditions are ideal for this purpose, but, of course, to make a success at the business even under these most favorable conditions everything that nature affords must be made the most of.

Making the effort that must necessarily be made in the colder States of the North, I see no reason why we should not as a people take the very front ranks in the business. But these favorable natural conditions seem to have had the tendency to make us careless as a class in all classes of agricultural pursuits.

Judge Marshall: Can you tell me what causes my little chicks to die? When they are first hatched off they are as well as they can be, looks like, and seem to do well until they are eight or ten days old. Then they begin to droop and get weak and are soon all dead. They don't have bowel trouble. I have cut several of them open after they died to see if I could find anything that I thought would cause them to die. The gall looked like it was larger than it ought to be. And some of them had turned dark green around the gall. I took out one gall to-day without bursting it, so I could tell you about the size it was and see if you thought it was too large. I laid it on the paper and marked around it with a pencil as close as I could to give you a better idea of the size of it. Now, if you can give me a remedy for the trouble I will thank you very much.

MRS. L. F. B.

Plain Dealing, La.

Answer: The trouble with your chicks is one of two or three things, or, perhaps, a combination of them. It looks a good deal like what we call general debility as the result of the too close inbreeding of the parent stock for generations back. Just letting the same roosters, old and young, that you happen to raise year after year run with your hens. Such a course will eventually put you in such a position that you will hardly be able to raise any young stock and particularly a little late in the season. The eggs will not only not hatch well, but will give you chicks that will live but a short time for a simple lack of vitality to even make a start in life. There is just such trouble upon hundreds of farms throughout the country. Is it any wonder that farmers are heard to complain that it is hard work to raise any chickens and that chicken raising does not pay? It is just that lack of interest to induce him to make good healthy crosses such as he would think he was obliged to make in his cattle or hog breeding to insure health. Then there is the trouble that is a kin to the other and that is hatching from eggs late in the season laid by hens that have been laying almost constantly since early winter time without a rest. Such hens have become quite low in vitality and very naturally their eggs will throw chicks with but little stamina for the race of life and are ready to keel over at the first round.

Then we have the mites that are always with us or rather with our hens unless we make a vigorous protest and assert our rights early in the season. When they are numerous they will not let a lot of young chicks get much of a start in life until they will snuff it out. Look out for them at all events. I am pretty sure that one if not more of these things I have mentioned is your trouble, but you will have to be the judge.

OUR NORTH SIDE AND INMAN PARK DELIVERIES LEAVE THE STORE AT 9:30; SOUTH SIDE AND WEST END AT 2 P. M. GOODS ORDERED BEFORE THESE HOURS WILL BE DELIVERED SAME DAY.

CHICKENS need more care and attention the next two or three months than any other time during the year. It is perfectly natural for chickens to have lice and mites, and unless you look after them they will multiply in such quantities to prove profitable. The little chicks will not reach the growth they should and the hens will not lay if they are covered with these pests. We have ties that you can not expect your flock remedies that will positively get rid of them and the cost is very little. For 35c you can get a can of either Lee's, Conkey's or Pratt's Lice Liquid and we will guarantee either of these preparations to give entire satisfaction.

WE have just gotten in a lot of nice, fresh, clean Red Comb Feed. The price for scratch and mash is $2.25 per 100 pounds.

WE are offering Baby Chick Feed at $2.15 per 100 pounds for the next few days. You know the regular price is $2.50 per 100 pounds. Better take advantage of this.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

14 New Bungalows To Cost $28,000

Fitzhugh Knox to Build—Refusal of $1,400 for Semi-Central Lot. Plans for Big Mill.

Never before in the history of the city has there been so much activity in the construction of small houses. Thursday's announcements brought information, for instance, that Fitzhugh Knox, the well-known builder of apartments and dwellings, had approved of plans for fourteen bungalows to cost an aggregate of $28,000. These are to be located in Mr. Knox's subdivision on South Moreland, Cleland and Kensington Avenues and Hardee and Brantley Streets. Walker & Chase are the architects and the Knox Construction Company has the contract. Part of the material is on the ground and actual construction will start Monday.

Decatur Tennis Club House.

The Decatur Tennis Club will have plans this week from Walker & Chase, architects in the Candler Building, for a $3,500 club house south of the Georgia Railroad tracks and east of Candler Street, directly back of the residence of C. Murphey Candler, chairman of the State Railroad Commission. Work should start in a week or so. The completed structure will represent an investment of about $5,000. The club has three acres of ground and about six tennis courts.

John W. Grant Buys.

Jane Hill has sold to John W. Grant a 39 by 67 foot lot on Calhoun Street, between Pine and Merritts Avenue, for $2,300.

Refusal of Semi-Central Offer.

Investors desiring to pick up a choice piece of semi-central property on the North Side offered $1,400 a front foot Wednesday, but the offer was refused. The price of $1,500 has been fixed by the owner, and a well-known real estate agent is trying to get prospect and seller together.

Stone for Healey Building.

Stone has arrived for the Healey Building, and part of it has been put in place, starting at the ground. The slabs will extend 15 feet upward, and terra cotta will go from thence to the top of the building. The granite is from the quarries at Stone Mountain, furnished by Venable Brothers.

Contract for Cotton Mill.

The plans for the Manchester, Ga., cotton mill addition, one of the largest jobs in this section of the country, has been let to Walker & Chase, architects. Mr. Walker closed the deal Tuesday. The amount was not given out. Several other Atlanta architects, it is understood, were in the competition.

Peachtree Lease Made.

Tom Weaver, the tailor, has subleased the second story of the building at the northwest corner of Peachtree and James Streets from the lessee, Robert E. Riley, at an advance on the price paid by the latter.

Euclid Apartments Ready.

The Euclid Apartments, located at the southeast corner of Euclid Avenue and Hurt Street, Inman Park, have been completed, and the owner and builder, Fitzhugh Knox, has leased several of the 16 apartments. The cost of the Euclid was $40,000. It is two stories and fronts 200 feet on Euclid Avenue and 70 feet on Hurt Street, each room being outside. The rooms have been arranged for disappearing wall beds. Mr. Knox has built several other apartments, among them the Virginian, at the southwest corner of Peachtree and Fifteenth Streets; the Boscobel, on Hurt Street, Inman Park, and the Fairleigh, on Spring Street.

West Tenth Street Buy.

C. A. Tappan has bought from a client of the Smith & Ewing Real Estate Agency a 50 by 150 foot lot on the north side of West Tenth Street, east of State Street and in front of the Home Park School, for $2,000.

To Lease 97 Peachtree.

The removal of the College Co-Op from 97 Peachtree to the new location at 119 and 121 Peachtree will leave the former place open for re-lease. This store is in the Alfriend Building and under the seven-year term just expiring brought $5,000 a year.

Madison Avenue Conveyance.

J. H. Williams has conveyed to the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland a 99 by 80 foot lot on Madison Avenue, being lots 1 and 2 of the home place subdivision of L. L. Landrum, for a consideration not named. The property brought $7,500. June 28, 1912.

Peachtree Work Assured.

Real estate men hailed with much joy Thursday the announcement by County Chairman Shelby Smith that Peachtree Road would soon be improved from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead, work to start in ten days or two weeks. A large proportion of the prospects who are taken to look over property go by way of Peachtree, and the realty dealers declare that rough roads are not very conducive to sales-making.

As soon as some of the forces working in other sections can be shifted to Peachtree, declared Mr. Smith, the Peachtree improvements will be started.

Repairs from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead, by the way, will make of Peachtree one of the best thoroughfares in the State. The street was recently repaved from Sixth Street to Fifteenth and from Buckhead to the DeKalb County line. With the other stretch completed, the entire extent will be approximately nine miles, and Peachtree will serve the most important rural territory in the State.

Chamber of Commerce Home.

A permit for remodeling the old Y. M. C. A. Building at the southeast corner of North Pryor Street and Auburn Avenue is expected to be taken soon at the Building Inspector's office by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. The Y. M. C. A. will move out July 1, awaiting the completion of its new $250,000 building on Luckie Street, and the Chamber of Commerce will make alterations to cost $100,000 or more.

New Realty Firm.

Although the Thornton, Goree & Poyner Real Estate Agency has been in business only a week or ten days at 11 Auburn Avenue ("Real Estate Row"), a number of important listings of subdivision lots, investment property and homes have been received. The new firm is made up of R. L. Thornton, senior member, who was formerly conencted with the Claude E. Sims Realty Company; G. C. Goree, an Atlanta business man who has made a study of real estate, and C. B. Poyner, junior partner, formerly with J. E. McCullough in subdivision work.

Hoping for Tax Reform.

A sympathetic note has been struck in real estate circles through declarations of such political leaders as Governor Brown, W. H. Burwell, Speaker of the House, and J. Randolph Anderson, President of the Senate, that something must be done to improve the tax system of the State. There has long been a conviction that real estate has been saddled with an unfair proportion of tax burden—that rates should be increased and assessments lowered. This is particularly true in Fulton County, where it is claimed that any more legislation raising tax assessments would drive out industries and sadly cripple the real estate business. Furthermore, Fulton County pays, exclusive of corporation and special taxes, about one-seventh of the taxes paid into the State Treasury, which it is held is unfair. Real estate men want more of their tax money spent in the county and less paid into the coffers of the State, and they are seeking legislation along this line.

The Railroads and the Public

A Letter from Mr. Ivy L. Lee, of the Pennsylvania

(Copyright, 1913.)

The Georgian and the other Hearst newspapers, published to protect the public, are aware of the fact that to protect the public thoroughly, ALL legitimate workers must be protected, big men and little men, ditch diggers, railroad builders, street peddlers, department stores, thinkers and big industrial organizations.

Criticism of big and able men because they happen to be rich and intelligent is as stupid and harmful to the public welfare as would be attacks on or unjust treatment of little men because they happen to be poor and badly organized.

We publish gladly a letter which presents the side of the railroads in an important public question.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD COMPANY.
General Office, Broad Street Station.
Philadelphia.
Ivy L. Lee.
Executive Assistant.

Editor The Georgian:

My Dear Sir—Your papers have been commending the law recently passed in New Jersey which places upon the railroad companies the entire burden of removing grade crossings. There is one important phase of this subject, however, which you have not brought out.

There is no doubt that grade crossings are a great public menace and should be removed. But, of course, their removal must be paid for, and those who are benefited are the ones who ought to pay for it. If the entire burden should fall upon the railroads without delay the railroads would be bankrupt.

As you know, in England there are practically no grade crossings, the reason being that when the railroads were first built it was sure that there would be enough traffic to make them pay. Therefore, the Government could take the position that there should be no grade crossings. In this country, if we had taken such position there would not have been so many railroads.

Everybody, railroad officers included, agrees as to the danger and the objectionable character of grade crossings. But it is certainly like the ostrich burying its head in the sand to pass a law placing the whole burden upon the railroad companies and imagining that through such a law the money is going to come out of the bankers of Wall Street.

May I venture to call to your attention the policy which Mr. Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, recently set forth as in his opinion the proper one to be pursued in solving the grade crossing problem?

"Public Service Commissions, on motion either of a municipality, a railroad, or on a commission's own initiative, should have the right to designate such grade crossings as should be removed, and should have power, after hearing all parties in interest, to apportion the cost of such improvements, with due regard for the interest of all parties concerned."

Respectfully,
IVY L. LEE.

Mr. Lee, who is a graduate of the Atlanta Boys' High School, and son of the Rev. J. W. Lee, former pastor of Trinity Church, and who occupies an important position near the president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is right in his statement that the public can not legislate unlimited millions into existence or compel railroads to spend money that they haven't got.

It is an impossibility to abolish immediately ALL of the grade crossings in the United States.

There is not enough money in the United States to do that work immediately. And legislation can not CREATE money.

The trouble, however, as Mr. Lee and Mr. Rea will admit, has been in the past a lack of the fair and reasonable attitude now taken by Mr. Rea, recently elected president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Railroad management until recently has often been as arrogant and unreasonable as the most foolish legislator, or the most ignorant demagogue.

The railroads can exist only by permission of the public, they get their rights and their revenue from the public, and are able to build because the public exercises its right of eminent domain in their behalf, yet the railroads have refused for years to recognize in the public ANY RIGHTS AT ALL.

Stockholders, investors in the railroads, have been robbed in every conceivable way. (It is true that the Pennsylvania has been an honorable exception in this regard.)

Legislation that the railroads WANTED has been bought with money.

And legislation that they did NOT want has been killed with money.

It is not unnatural that representatives of the public should in their turn sometimes follow the example set by the railroads and disregard the railroads' rights as the railroads have disregarded the rights of the public in the past.

This newspaper, however, opposes unjust legislation against the railroads as strongly as it opposes public robbery by the railroads.

It is preposterous to say that every grade crossing should be abolished at once and that the railroads should pay the expense.

The total capitalization of the railroads is about $600,000,000, including stock not yet issued.

AND $600,000,000 WOULD NOT BE ENOUGH TO ABOLISH ALL THE GRADE CROSSINGS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD ALONE!

The United States would not have to-day one-quarter of its railroad mileage if the railroads had been compelled to build without grade crossings. That would mean that the United States would be only one-quarter developed in comparison with its present development.

Mr. Rea's statement and suggestion in regard to railroad crossings, and his address made upon that subject recently in New Jersey are reasonable and display a fair spirit.

The trouble has been in the past that railroads and their officials have used their power to prevent ANY INTERFERENCE EVEN WITH THE MOST DANGEROUS GRADE CROSSINGS.

If other railroad officials will follow Mr. Rea's example and in good faith submit public questions to impartial public officials, railroads and the public contributing their fair and proper share of any expense, THE RAILROADS WILL FIND THAT THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY ARE NOT DISHONEST, WILL NOT DEMAND THE IMPOSSIBLE, AND WILL NOT BE LED INTO PATHS OF CONFISCATION OR UNJUST ASSESSMENT BY THE NEWSPAPERS THAT THEY TRUST.

June Morn

Are We Coming to the Bee Idea of Life

By WINIFRED BLACK.

HAVE you ever read Maeterlinck's marvelous story of the bees?

No?

Go to the library and get it this very day. You can't afford to live another twenty-four hours without knowing that book!

Every time you see a bee in the garden afterward you'll feel like standing, hat in hand, and watching him fly by.

Talk about "man the reasoning animal," the bee reasons so much better and so much more closely than man that he makes us all seem like little blind, blundering beetles booming around in the sunshine, not knowing where we are going or what we are trying to do.

The Wonderful Bee.

The bee—the wonderful bee—no wonder Napoleon chose him for his emblem.

Is that what we are all coming to—some day I wonder—the bee system of living?

Every once in a while I see something in the news that makes me think so. It is a great thing to watch—the daily news of this great, strange, simple, complex world of ours.

The sailors on the ship that Columbus brought across the wide waters spent days standing at the rail watching for the drift of waters, and now and then they found hope of land in the broken branch that floated on the silent sea and now and then some strange bright feather that rose and fell on the waves told their hopeful hearts of bright lands beyond, where the bird that wore the feather waited singing in a spreading tree to welcome their coming.

Driftwood tells strange tales sometimes.

That's what the news is—driftwood—telling stories, old stories that sometimes makes the human hair rise and that turns the blood cold in the veins of the one who watches by the rail to see the drift come by.

Now, there's that little item in the paper this morning—the one about the Judge who told the man that he could not make his wife follow him to a farm, and he could not divorce her because she did not follow.

"She hates country life," said the Judge. "You cannot force her to live it. She has the same right to decide where she wants to live as you have." Drift, drift from strange shores, is that decision.

I wonder how they would think of it in North Carolina, where a man can have you arrested and fined if you give shelter, food, employment or even a word of encouragement to a wife who has left his bed and board without his permission, no matter what it was he did that made her go.

A great artist went with his wife to see her off on a long trip

WINIFRED BLACK.

the other day. "Yes," said the artist to the reporters, "I hate to see her go, but she has chosen the stage for her vocation. Who am I, to stand in her way? She is a human being first of all, you know," and no one was particularly surprised to hear him say it.

She Likes to Work.

A clever writer married a clever business woman a week or so ago, and he told his friends and hers that he did not expect her to give up her business to stay at home for him.

"She likes to work," he said. "Why should I take it upon myself to deny her her own life? Women are something more than the echo of men."

In a high school out West they find that the average height of the high school graduate is lowering for the boys and heightening for the girls.

The boy babies born at the great public hospital in Boston to-day are one inch shorter on the average than they were ten years ago. The girl babies are nearly an inch taller than they were ten years ago and weigh, on an average almost a pound more.

A newspaper in the Middle West interviewed the members of a graduating class of girls in a great school yesterday, and out of thirty girls, twenty-four said that they hoped they would not have to marry. Marriage was narrowing and cramping, they said.

Driftwood, driftwood! From what strange tides does it come these days! The bees—oh, yes—that's what I mean.

The bees have arranged all this affair of the feminine uprising—arranged it years and years ago.

The queen bee rules. She breeds the young, divides the hive into workers and drones. There is no mingling of the two classes at all. One bee is to gather honey, one is selected to found the future of the hive. When his work is done, out he goes. Is that what we are coming to, we humans, some day?

Will there be home women and work women, home men and work men, divided quite definitely into classes like the bees—each having his own special mission in life, and never dreaming of interfering with any other in any way?

"Career" Women.

Mother women and "career" women, work women and beauty women, men workers and men home makers, how else shall we manage this affair of the woman who will not live as her husband wishes—else deal with the man who thinks that a woman should follow him wheresoever he lists to go, and howsoever he intends to do when he gets there? Bu-zz, bu-zz! How do you think of the bee idea, brother philosophers?

The drift, the drift! How pleasant it is to stand in the sunshine at the ship's rail and watch it slipping by, and speculate and dream, and hope, and wonder.

SONG OF THE GOOD ROAD

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner.

I AM a Road; a good road, fair and smooth and broad;
And I link with my beautiful tether
Town and Country together,
Like a ribbon rolled on the earth from the reel of God.
Oh, great the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a long road, leading on and on;
And I cry to the world to follow,
Past meadow and hill and hollow,
Through desolate night, to the open gates of dawn.
Oh, bold the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a kind road, shaped by strong hands.
I make strange cities neighbors;
The poor grow rich with my labors,
And beauty and comfort follow me through the lands.
Oh, glad the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a wise road, knowing all men's ways;
And I know how each heart reaches
For the things dear Nature teaches;
And I am the path that leads into green young Mays.
Oh, sweet the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I speed away from the slums,
Away from desolate places,
Away from unused spaces;
Wherever I go, there order from chaos comes.
Oh, brave the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I would make the whole world one.
I would give hope to duty,
And cover the earth with beauty.
Do you not see, Oh men! how all this might be done?
So vast the power of the Road!

A Trip to the Moon

He Gives Reasons Why It Can Not Be Made by Aeroplane, But Says It Might Be Made With the Aid of Inter-Atomic Energy.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

WITHIN a few weeks past I have been asked to address two different aeronautical societies on the curious subject of the possibilities of a trip to the moon.

As far as I am aware this does not indicate an intention on the part of any aviator to essay a voyage to our satellite, but, at least, it shows that the flying instinct is growing by what it feeds upon, and that, having navigated the air, practical men are giving a little extra rein to their imaginations, and wondering whether the empire of birds marks the ultimate frontier of human conquest.

In fact, the dream of going to the moon, which, in every age, has occupied daring minds, is hardly more impracticable at the present time than would have been a project, springing up in the mind of Balboa, of making ships sail across from the Atlantic to the great Western ocean which he saw from his peak in Darien.

But it is not the invention of either the aeroplane or the dirigible balloon that stimulates thoughtful minds at the present time to consider, half-seriously, the idea of a lunar voyage. The success of those inventions, defying scientific predictions and probabilities, only forms an incentive. It turns men's minds hopefully to things that heretofore they have regarded as lying beyond the limits of human power.

It has always been so. Every great advance has been a marvel at the beginning, derided or laughed at. Each one of them has been a victorious birth of the imagination. The greatest drag on progress is lack of faith in the hidden capacities of man.

"Verily, I say unto you, if ye have faith, as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain: 'Remove hence to yonder place,' and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

Only Beginning.

That is high authority for believing that we are only just beginning to discover the extent of our control over nature, and such things as wireless telegraphy, X-ray photography and the disintegration of atoms, with consequent unlocking of tremendous concealed energy, prove that hitherto we have been like the man who buried his talents in the earth instead of making them produce ten or a hundred fold.

Suppose we look at the subject of visiting the moon in the light of present knowledge. The distance in itself is nothing—240,000 miles! Many a sea captain has sailed much farther than that. It is less than ten times the circuit of the earth.

If the atmosphere extended from the earth to the moon, we could go there now by modifying our present apparatus. At a hundred days! But at a height of five or six miles the atmosphere becomes so rare that we could not live in it without an artificial supply. Yet unmanned balloons have gone ten miles high, and meteors take fire from friction at an elevation of a hundred miles or more.

Still the atmosphere does practically cease to exist at no very great elevation, and cuts short off the road of the balloon and the aeroplane.

We must turn to something else. The buoyant force of air enables us to overcome the gravitative attraction of the earth only up to a moderate height. Beyond that something more is needed. I have learned with surprise that many intelligent persons supose that if we once got outside the air motion would be unimpeded. For instance, a man said to me the other day:

"Suppose an aeroplane could mount straight up until it passed the limits of the atmosphere, then having nothing more to impede its motion, it would go on with whatever velocity it had when it left the air."

In fact, this could only occur in case the velocity of the aeroplane amounted to nearly seven miles per second, for that velocity would be required to completely overcome the pull of the earth's attraction. Otherwise it would fall back to the earth.

This is the reason why Jules Verne, in his amusing story of "A Voyage to the Moon," had his adventurers shot out of an enormous cannon. Only in that way, he thought, could the requisite initial velocity be obtained.

A Bold Plan.

But a bold mind might, in view of recent discoveries, speculate on the illimitable power that may be obtained from unlocking the energies of the atoms of matter. Professor Thomson has calculated that a single gram of hydrogen has within it sufficient energy to lift a million tons a hundred yards high! Does anybody imagine that that unlimited store of energy is going forever to remain uncontrolled by human genius? We have discovered its existence; the next thing is to take it and use it.

Suppose we had it under control, as we shall have it some time. Then reflect upon the close relation between atomic phenomena and electricity, and recall the familiar experiment of making bits of pith fly away from an electrically charged ball. If we could construct some kind of a car that could be powerfully charged with electric energy we might be able to make it fly away from the earth as the pith balls fly from the charged conductor of the electric machine.

The Problem Solved.

Then it would be necessary to establish a system of control by which the speed and direction could be regulated by varying the charge—AND THE PROBLEM OF NAVIGATING SPACE WOULD BE SOLVED. I have developed this (of course purely hypothetical) idea somewhat farther in a story called "A Columbus of Space."

Such a method would avoid all the difficulties, really insuperable, that hampered Jules Verne's plan of a projectile starting at a velocity of almost seven miles per second.

However, when we get the atomic energies under control our first efforts will be directed to making more money out of them, and trips to the moon will only begin to pay after we have got tired of purely earthly things.

A Fine Old Heathen

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

WONDERFUL in a far more useful way than we find it described in the "Arabian Nights" was the fine old heathen known as Haroun Al Raschid, who died eleven hundred and four years ago.

In a time of intense bigotry and cruelty he was tolerant and merciful. In an age of blackest ignorance and brutal indifference to every form of intellectual enlightenment, he was deeply interested in learnings, and employed every aid at his command for the elimination of the superstition that was sitting like an incubus upon the breast of humanity.

While Christian Europe lay in the shadow of its seemingly irremediable ignorance, Bagdad was cultivating the sciences out of which was to come the world's mental resurrection. While the Christian teachers were asserting the flatness of the earth the Mohammedan doctors of Bagdad and Cordova, Seville and Alexandria were teaching geography in the common schools from globes. While in London and Paris they were practicing and professing to cure men's ills through the agency of charms, trinkets and incantations, in the great Mesopotamian capital they were treating the sick upon the principles of science and common sense.

So famous was Al Raschid's medical school at Bagdad that the great and mighty Charlemagne issued a decree that no man should practice medicine in his dominions without first having passed a satisfactory examination before the Bagdad faculty. And th old Mohammedan's heart was as sound as his mind, for be it remembered that at the time Charlemagne was using fire and sword against all who would not, or could not, accept the theological beliefs he had sworn to champion, Haroun Al Raschid was doing all he could to protect Charlemagne's subjects in the full exercise of their religion.

MEMBER OF POSSE SHOT BY BANDITS

CATCH GANG AFTER HOT FIGHT; ONE WOUNDED

Joe E. King, a prominent merchant of Baldwin, Ga., who was badly wounded in a battle with alleged bandits Thursday morning at 11 o'clock near Cornelia, was brought to Atlanta Thursday afternoon and taken to the Atlanta hospital.

King, after being wounded, fired six shots and wounded Dan White, who is being given medical attention at Baldwin.

King was a member of a posse of citizens that had trapped the bandits in the woods near Cornelia. White was the only one wounded. The other two, Jim Ellison and ManuelDuckworth, a negro, were captured and placed in jail.

The three men had been sought for several days, believed to be a gang of burglars that had terrorized that section, robbing various stores.

As the result of the shooting of King, much excitement is reported in the vicinity of Baldwin. King was shot in the thigh. His condition is not considered serious.

Cool Weather Just Ahead, Forecaster's Solemn Assurance

Cooler weather is on the way.

"Fair and warm" is the forecast for Thursday, but moderate breezes sifting through the West and Middle West are due to reach Atlanta at no distant date. Possibly Thursday afternoon may bring a little relief from the high temperature of the last two weeks. Thunder showers are anticipated in the Atlanta territory, and if the city is so fortunate as to lie in the path of the rain it may enjoy moderate weather for a day or two.

This announcement was made by the United States Weather Bureau Thursday morning, and it brought joy unlimited. The drop in temperature may be as much as 8 or 10 degrees, according to official dope. Temperature at 7 o'clock Thursday morning was 75 degrees. At 8 it was 80.

Dr. Joseph Jacobs, Atlanta Druggist, Weds in New York

Announcement was made late Thursday of the marriage of Dr. Joseph Jacobs, wealthy Atlanta druggist, to Mrs. M. E. Dickens, of Philadelphia, at high noon at the Plaza Hotel, New York city. Several close friends of Dr. Jacobs and members of his family were present.

The Atlantans in the party were Miss Daisy Jacobs, sister of Dr. Jacobs; his son, Sinclair Jacobs; Mrs. Evelyn Sweet Prescot, Walter Rich, Rudolph Adler and Eugene Oberdofer. They will return to Atlanta immediately.

Dr. Jacobs and his bride will sail Monday for a three months' tour of Europe. Mrs. Jacobs is well known socially in Philadelphia. Dr. Jacobs is one of the best loved men in Atlanta. He is famous as a devotee of Robert Burns.

1,600,000 Illinois Women Now Voters

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., June 26.—Governor E. F. Dunne to-day signed the woman suffrage bill. His act gave to 1,600,000 women of Illinois the right to take part in the election of all officials except those created by the Constitution.

The signing of the bill marked the culmination of a 23-year fight by women to gain the right to even a limited franchise.

Senate Confirms All Recess Appointments

The Senate in executive session Thursday morning confirmed all of Governor Brown's recess appointments, including the members of the Board of Education.

Considerable interest was manifested in the latter appointments, but the confirmation by the Senate put an end to discussion.

JUDGE SPEER RAPS U. S. ATTORNEY GENERAL

SIOUX CITY, IOWA, June 26.—Severe criticism of the Attorney General of the United States for having him investigated by special agents and secret service men in the employ of the Department of Justice was the feature of the address of Judge Emory Speer, of the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia, before the Iowa Bar Association today. He also stated that the detectives are liable for contempt of court for operating in the presence of the court.

Judge Speer spoke to the Iowa lawyers, who are in annual meeting here, on "The Debt the American People Owe the American Judges." When he had finished that subject he discussed the action of the Department of Justice in probing his personal and judicial record.

Questions Right to Probe.

Judge Speer said, in part:

"More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Federal judge is the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the arbitrary espionage or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name? I speak impersonally and with all deference and respect for the distinguished official who is ex-officio the leader of the American bar."

Hints at Contempt of Court.

Judge Speer then stated that the examiner had appeared in court, made copious notes with significant gestures, conferred with disgruntled attorneys, received letters from convicts in the penitentiary, interviewed stubborn debtors who had been forced by the court to pay their obligations and examined newspaper files.

"The examiner, and I speak of him with great respect, even with timid deprecation, works in a mysterious way his wonders to perform," said the Judge, adding:

"He holds the fate of the judge in the hollow of his hand. And all the while, be it remembered, there are no charges pending against the judge, where such charges should be made. The examiner imparts to the judge no information whatever of any complaint. There is no chance for defense.

"This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor. If proper with a district judge, it is equally appropriate with the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States.

"For action less directly in the presence of the court, less interfering with the administration of justice, men have been convicted for contempt of court, and the convictions have been sustained."

MACON, June 26.—D. J. Bailey, chief examiner for the Department of Justice in the Southern States, has augmented the force of inspectors who have been at work in Macon and this district for several weeks in the investigation of the judicial and personal record of Judge Emory Speer. He arrived yesterday afternoon and immediately held a conference with District Attorney Alex Akerman.

Last night he left for Savannah, where Special Examiners Lewis and Jenkins are already engaged. Mr. Bailey declines to state the purpose of his mission, referring all inquirers to the Attorney General.

CHAINGANGS REFORMED BY BILL IN SENATE

Sweeping changes in the prison system of the State of Georgia are provided by a bill introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator A. H. Foster, of the Twenty-seventh District.

Senator Foster's bill, which he declares meets with the approval of Senate leaders, contains the following important provisions:

To provide for the inspection of all county jails.

To abolish the county chaingang.

To provide an indeterminate sentence in both felony and misdemeanor cases.

To arrange for the parole and after-care of prisoners.

To define the meaning of and disposition of habitual criminals.

To provide for a system of grades, classifications and credits of convicts while in the penitentiary.

To provide for the appointment and compensation of wardens and guards for the penitentiary.

Indorsed by Reformers.

Senator Foster stated shortly after introducing his bill that in addition to having the support of influential members of the Senate, the measure has the backing of the Georgia Prison Reform Association. The bill, Senator Foster stated, embodies the results of the investigations of the association and Philip Weltner, and in addition contains some ideas of his own.

Senator Foster declared that while he expected that some amendments would be made in the bill before it is passed, he would concentrate his efforts to retaining the wording of the original bill in the section relating to indeterminate sentences. This, he declared, was the most needed reform in Georgia prison methods.

The phrase "to abolish the county chaingang," in the caption of the bill, is confusing, inasmuch as slight reference is made to it in the body of the measure.

Senator Foster stated that his idea was not so much to totally abolish the chaingang system as to make it impossible to work negroes and whites together. He hopes, he says, to abolish the mixed chaingangs and segregate the races.

The sections of the bill set forth that the policy of the State shall hereafter be to so deal with convicts "that their punishment may serve to discipline them to right conceptions of citizenship."

Board Members Inspectors.

The burden of the inspection of prisons and jails is placed upon the State Prison Commission, which, declares the bill, shall provide for "quarterly visitation of all county jails and aid in their just, humane and economic administration." The Commission shall make a report of each visit to the Governor.

Instead of the fixed sentence, Senator Foster's bill declares that when any prisoner is convicted of a felony or misdemeanor the court shall pronounce an indeterminate sentence.

The bill also impresses upon the Prison Commission the necessity of segregating the youthful prisoners from the old and hardened offenders.

One of the strong and unusual features of the bill is a section providing that all moneys earned by the convict shall be paid to his family or others dependent upon him. The payment is placed in the hands of the Prison Commission.

All prisoners save lifers on charge of treason, arson or criminal assault are granted the privilege of applying to the Governor and the Prison Commission for parole three months before the expiration of the minimum time which they may be required to serve.

A resolution authorizing the appointment of a legislative committee of eight to investigate the State's railroad, the Western and Atlantic, and determine upon its proper disposal, was introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator J. T. Longino, of the Thirty-sixth District.

The committee is to be composed of three from the Senate and five from the House, and will do its work during the recess of the General Assembly. The members are to be paid their usual per diem and expenses, and shall report at the next meeting of the General Assembly.

Senator Longino's resolution specifically states that the committee shall investigate the best plan for "the renting of the property, and improving the State's property in Chattanooga."

No mention is made of the activities of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, or of the State convention proposed by that body.

Donaldson Would Bar Reformers From Camp.

Prison reformers will be barred from the convict camps in Fulton County, according to a resolution drawn by Superintendent T. J. Donaldson Thursday, which probably will be passed by the County Commission at its next meeting.

The resolution puts the ban on the "small army of ministers" and "all-day Sunday services" as well. A "convict parson" will be employed to preach regularly at each of the six camps. He will be prohibited from bringing more than one person with him. The service will be limited to one hour, from 11 to 12 o'clock each Sunday forenoon.

"I am getting tired of all this reform talk from people who do not know what they are talking about," said Captain Donaldson.

Satisfied Till Reformers Arrive.

"The condition of nine of every ten convicts of the 700 in this county is 100 per cent better than it was before they violated the law and received a sentence. Without an exception, the general health is better.

"The men have clean beds, get wholesome food and live under sanitary conditions that are far superior to anything they have known before. They are usually pretty well satisfied until Sunday, when these ministers and reformers worry them for several hours they could better enjoy in rest.

"Our convict system is about as good as any in the world. The idea that the men leave greater criminals than they were before they came to us is absurd. Some of them don't like work and would welcome the reform and flowery beds of ease, but if there is any good in a man he is willing to pay for what he has done without a murmur.

"The work reforms as many of the men as the ministers do. They leave us in a much better condition than they were when we got them and at least half start a new life.

"Those who do not reform could not be reformed unless a shotgun was used. If the conditions the reformers seek were brought about I would get rid of my property in Fulton County and go to some other State."

Captain Donaldson will urge the county board to adopt his resolution when it is presented, and he thinks it will be adopted.

Committees To Be Announced Next Week.

The various committee assignments in both Houses will not be announced before next week, as the framing of them is perhaps the very hardest and most exacting work that will come before the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House during the entire session.

President Anderson and Speaker Burwell began working on committee assignments immediately after adjournment yesterday, but it will require a week, perhaps, to finish the undertaking.

It seems to be an acceped fact that Representative Blackburn, of Fulton, is to be the House floor leader, inasmuch as he is reported slated to head the Committee on Rules, while it is freely rumored about the Capitol today that President Anderson proposes to evidence his entire friendship and good will toward his late rival, Judge Allen, the Senator from the Twentieth District, by offering him his choice between the chairmanship of the Finance and the Constitutional Amendments Committee in the Senate.

Both these suggested assignments apparently meet with the approval of the Houses involved, for nothing but commendation of them is heard on any hand.

Indeed, the fine feeling in the Senate, following the strenuous struggle for the presidency thereof, is remarked by every one, and it now looks as if the new Legislature is to get away with its work in a spirit of genuine good fellowship and mutual respect all around.

Certainly for the first time in ten years Georgia appears to have on hand a General Assembly that may be classed neither as a "Smith" nor a "Brown" body.

Beyond the suggestion of Blackburn for vice chairman of the Committee on Rules in the House and Allen for either Finance or Constitutional amendments in the Senate, the "dope" on the committee line-ups is pretty bad. Neither President Anderson nor Speaker Burwell will discuss the matter at all.

For the next two days the Legislature will do little more than "mark time," anticipating the inauguration of the new Governor and the winding up of the present administration.

Message Divides Members.

Preparations for Governor Slaton's inauguration on Saturday already are well under way. The ceremony will be quiet and dignified, the new Governor breaking a long line of precedents in Georgia, however, by delivering his message orally to the Legislature in joint session, rather than sending it in separately to both Houses, as a written document.

Short Thursday Session; Canvass Vote for Slaton.

Both the Senate and House of Representatives convened at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, but will have but a short hour in which to transact their individual business, as a joint meeting is scheduled.

At the joint session the vote for Governor will be canvassed and John M. Slaton formally declared elected. Beyond this neither House will hardly handle much business. Friday is expected to be a busy day, while Saturday will be devoted to the inauguration ceremonies.

Flow of Bills Begins in Senate.

The following bills were introduced in the Senate Wednesday morning:

By Senator Pope, of the Forty-fourth District, and Senator Hixon, of the Thirty-seventh—A bill to exempt from taxation farm products, including baled cotton grown in this State.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill to establish the new county of Tate, with Fairmount as the county seat.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill to compel two or more railroads entering a town or city to erect a union passenger station.

By Senator Smith, of the Ninth—A bill to empower judges of the Superior Courts to grant charters to private companies in vacation.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill permitting administrators to sue in homicide cases.

New Bills in Senate.

Among the bills introduced in the Senate to-day were:

By Searcy—To prohibit one person purchasing from another any spirituous or intoxicating liquors.

By Tarver—To give courts of original jurisdiction authority in certain cases to mold sentences so as to allow defendants upon the rendition of the verdict of guilty, to serve same outside the confines of chaingang, jail, etc.

UNION MEN MAKE HOT REPLY TO GOVERNOR

The Atlanta Federation of Trades Thursday issued a formal reply to Governor Brown, denouncing the charges contained in his message as a cruel and clumsy effort to enlist the rural voter against the city toiler. Here is the reply in part:

"The message of Governor Brown to the Legislature yesterday, wherein he took occasion to malign and condemn the labor unions and their members, was a malicious and unwarranted attack upon honorable, law-abiding citizens of the State and deserving of as much consideration as any other class even though they do happen to be working people. He takes an undue advantage of those he slanders and assaults without provocation by embodying this arraignment in his message to the Legislature, knowing that it would be printed by the press of the State and gain widespread publicity, a cheap way of advertising.

Called Campaign Talk.

"To one conversant with the real facts and conditions which were, in garbled fashion, made the subject of this utterly demagogic and specious harangue, this uncalled for and vicious attack upon organized labor, only utter contempt could be excited thereby.

"That the governor has issued this message as a campaign document and attempts to array the country voter against the town and city voter, is demonstrably true. A more cruel yet clumsy effort to enlist the prejudices of the rural voter against his brother in toil upon the railroad, factory and workshop has never been exhibited.

"He attempts to make it appear that unions are exacting a tax from the farmer which he knew was untrue when he wrote the statement, but believing that the farmer had no more sense than to believe this, and with an effort to appeal to them through this tax proposition and array the farmer against the city workmen is vindictive within itself, and at the same time he hopes to gain the good will of the manufacturer that opposes the unions and secure contributions to further his political aspirations, at least it has this appearance and time will make known the true facts in this connection.

"Organized labor stands for the uplift of humanity and its record is an open book for the inspection of the public in general.

Says Unions Sought Peace.

"He proposes that labor go into the courts to adjust their difficulties and we ask what jurisdiction the courts have over wage disputes and grievances affecting the working conditions. He was fully aware that the courts could do no such thing and uses this as a subterfuge to blind the public, or at least hopes to do so.

"He makes no mention at all, in connection with the strikes he refers to, that the employers were even in any way responsible for the conflict and attempts to place the entire responsibility on the unions. It will be remembered that the unions were anxious to arbitrate these differences at all times, but the employers refused to accede to this method of adjustment until public sentiment, through the third party mentioned by Governor Brown, forced them to do so.

"To say that labor unions are a 'trust' is in accord with other misstatements in the message and we direct attention to the rulings of the courts which he requests unions to appeal to.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Men

Send Name and Address To-day—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow-men to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest acting restorative, up-building SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4276 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

Berries Eaten on Trip Into the Country Make Three Youngsters Ill.

The three children of Captain Lamar Poole, of the Atlanta police department, were reported Thursday morning as having recovered from the effects of ptomaine poisoning which they suffered while on a picnic.

Mrs. Poole said she had taken the children to the country Wednesday, and thought possibly they had been in the hot sun too much, or that the berries and sweet corn they had eaten for lunch had disagreed with them. A hurry call to police headquarters announced that they had been strangely poisoned.

The first signs that the children were suffering became evident at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Wallace, aged 12; Douglas, 8, and Elsie, 3 years old, were taken violently ill simultaneously after they had returned to their home at 255 Glennwood Avenue.

Chief Beavers hastened to the Poole home with a surgeon from the Grady Hospital. When they arrived, however, Captain Poole and Dr. Virgil Cook were there, and the children were soon relieved.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—Teresinia Cotillo, 15, was sold to her husband by her father for $150, according to Deputy Attorney General Armon D. Clayton, of Delaware, who appeared in court here when the girl's father and husband sought to regain possession of her.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by Jacobs' Pharmacy under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

Submarine 'Movies' Taken in Diving Tube

NORFOLK, June 26.—Moving pictures of submarine life have been made possible through the invention by Captain J. H. Williamson of a flexible tube with a windowed chamber, in which three men can work.

A son of the inventor descended 35 feet at night, and with the aid of electric lights took pictures of fish at the bottom of Hampton Roads.

Conscience Sends Man to Chaingang

WAYCROSS, June 26.—Upon a plea of guilty of larceny after trust, Judge McDonald to-day sentenced A. L. Christian to serve twelve months on the chaingang or pay a fine of $150.

Christian surrendered in Richmond, Va., telling the police his conscience would not let him rest. He disappeared with $100 belonging to a Waycross fruit dealer.

Knew Assailants, Dies With Secret

CHICAGO, June 26.—Two men were saved from possible death today by the death of John Walsh, a saloonkeeper. Walsh knew the two men who recently assaulted and robbed him. He refused to tell the police who they were. Even when told that he was about to die he retained his secret, saying:

"I'll take care of them myself. I'm no squealer. I know 'em and I'll get 'em. I want to fight my own battles."

HATRED OF OWN FAMILY LEADS DOOMED CONVICT TO AUCTION OFF HIS BODY

FORSYTH, GA., June 26.—Hatred of his own family has prompted Thomas A. McCullough, a convict in the Monroe County chaingang, to advertise his own body for sale to the highest bidder.

Self-sworn never again to have anything to do with his relatives, he is now in mortal fear that his body after death will be turned over to them for burial. McCullough's fear has been increased by the physician's statement that he is suffering from heart disease and has not long to live.

The money which his body would bring is a secondary matter to the convict. His one real desire is that death shall not seal the breach which he has cherished and broadened in life between himself and his family. Therefore, by disposal of his body to some medical school for experiments he hopes to eliminate this possibility.

"Cut Up While Alive."

"Why shouldn't they buy me?" McCullough exclaimed as he leaned his great, hairy body against his pick and looked down at his interviewer. "I've been cut up while alive and I wouldn't care if they cut me up after I am dead.

"If I've got a thing to do with it, not a single member of my family will get my body when I die. I don't want them to have a thing to do with me. I'd rather be left out for the buzzards than be turned over to them."

McCullough's strange hatred is founded upon his belief that his family "turned him up" when he was in hiding from the officers of the law following his escape from the camp some months ago.

He had been sentenced to eighteen years' penal servitude for the murder of a negro in Spalding County. The deed was the outcome of a quarrel between the two in a gambling game.

Caught After Three Months.

McCullough was sent to the Morgan County convict camp, but escaped three months later. Eluding the officers through briar patches and woods, the fugitive finally made his way back to his home in Spalding County. He remained there in hiding for two months. Then he was discovered by the officers and sent to the State farm at Milledgeville. His last words to his family as he was taken from his home were curses on them for having "turned him up," or betrayed him to the law. Whether they did or not was never proven.

From the Milledgeville institution McCullough was sent to join the Monroe County chaingang. He has now served 15 months of his 18-year term.

McCullough is an extremist in all things. Physically he is a powerful man; mentally he is without moral sense, and while he is the most desperate character in the camp and the only man prisoner over whom a guard keeps watch day and night, still he is the best worker of them all.

In the camp McCullough remains aloof from his fellow prisoners. He suffers from melancholia a great deal and has nursed his hatred against his family until the flame has blazed into almost a mania.

Only Nature Softens Him.

Only the sight of some pet or captured animal about the camp quiets him. Then his nature changes instantly, and from the cursing half-maniac the powerful man becomes a child, and his hatred is drowned in his love for the things of nature.

Only recently did the convict learn of his malady, that he was afflicted with heart disease. When informed of this he was struck with terror, not of death, but the probable disposal of his body. He had visions of his still form surrounded by his family—the ones he hated. Then it was that he wrote out the advertisement and sent it to The Georgian for publication. Here it is:

FOR SALE—To the highest bidder for cash, I offer my body, which is 6 feet high, weighs 175 pounds, is large frame, well proportioned, 40 years of age and Caucasian race.

I have a sentence of 18 years for killing a negro in Griffin in 1911 and have no prospects, no hopes and no friends, hence, being in bad health, I am asking this proposition. Anyone wishing to consummate a trade, address Thomas A. McCullough, Box 271, Care Monroe County Convict Camp.

MACON BUSINESS MAN INSANE IN ST. LOUIS

Friend of B. Sanders Walker Falls Victim of Heat While on Northern Trip.

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—Temporarily insane from the effects of the hot weather and alcoholic excesses, Patum Dean, 33 years old, of Macon, Ga., a friend of B. Sanders Walker, the Macon banker who died from the effects of bichloride of mercury taken by mistake for aspirin, is held here in the observation ward at the City Hospital following an attempt to swallow some of the poison which caused his friend's death.

Dean is connected with the Bibb Sewer and Pipe Company, of Macon, and the Evans & Howard Sewer and Pipe Company, of St. Louis. He came to St. Louis Sunday to confer with officials of the latter concern. He remained at the American Hotel until Monday, then checked out. Wednesday he called on his nephew, John Gentry, city passenger agent of the Southern Railroad. He was unable to give any account of his whereabouts since Monday.

Dean has a wife and four children in Macon.

MAYOR SCORES HIS ACCUSERS AS 'LIARS'

Abandons "Polite Words" in Denying Charge That He Opposes Crematory to Aid Power Co.

Mayor James G. Woodward Thursday branded as infamous liars all persons who persist in attributing his opposition to the crematory contract to a desire to help the Georgia Railway and Power Company.

Polite and parliamentary denials of the charge that he opposes the crematory because it embraces in its plans an electrical plant and repeated disavowals of any connection with the power company have failed to prevent anonymous charges of ulterior motives against him, the Mayor said.

"If they won't take polite language, I'll have to hand it to them more forcibly," said the Mayor. And he did.

"I have said time and again that the electrical plant had nothing to do with my position regarding the crematory," the Mayor continued. "I have nothing either for or against the electric plant. The power company has fought me, and I have said time and again that I am not trying to help them. I don't owe them anything except a fair deal.

"The situation is this: I want a contract independent of the one the courts enjoined, and I want a waterproof bond to protect the city. I take it that the papers before me now have possible loopholes in them. When the courts enjoined the first contract the General Council asked the Destructor Company for a proposition. The proposition was made and the General Council accepted it. This proposition continually regards the contract of 1912, which the courts enjoined. I don't see why they can't write out a contract complete in itself. If a contract like this is presented to me I will sign it.

"Since I have said repeatedly that this was what I insisted on I see no grounds for repeating the charges that I am acting in the interest of the power company. Those who do repeat them are liars, and I have no objection to your printing that."

On account of Alderman J. H. Harwell's motion to reconsider the crematory proposition will not be officially before the Mayor until July 10. Until that time, the Mayor said, it would be advisable to indulge in less palaver and crimination.

Still at Outs With Humphrey.

The breach between Mayor Woodward and Councilman W. G. Humphrey, chairman of the Council Finance Committee, apparently was as wide as ever Thursday, despite alleged denials.

"I said I had lost patience with the Mayor in his attitude on this matter, and I have," said Councilman Humphrey. "One time he told me he would sign the contract, and the next time he refused. I don't know what else can be done to please him.

"My conclusion is that he is unalterably opposed to the plant, and that whatever favorable attitude he has shown has been a stall and a 'four-flush.'"

Mayor Woodward said Councilman Humphrey used no hot words to him, but that he positively disagreed with him in the crematory contract.

Pictures Slaying In Confessing Crime

COLUMBUS, June 26.—Indications are that there will be no preliminary hearing given Homer Carmack, the young man held in Lee County, Alabama, jail in Opelika, for killing J. J. Folks, Phenix City merchant, but that he will be held for the Grand Jury, which assembles the first Monday in July.

Officers believe that there is no doubt of his guilt. In his partial confession Carmack implicated two other men, who have offered alibis, and pictured the slaying in a graphic manner.

THE SUCCESSFUL WINNERS IN PENMANSHIP CONTEST AT THE SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE

The Department of Penmanship Popularizing the Big Business School.

Good penmanship is one of the greatest aids to Business College students in securing positions, and that is why the Southern Shorthand and Business University, of this city, gives special attention to this important branch.

Miss Minnie Yancey and Mr. J. M. Harding are the tie winners in the Penmanship Contest just closed at the Southern, and they were awarded the prizes.

Another contest is now on, and much interest is being taken by the large and enthusiastic class of students.

Professor R. C. Childs, the principal of the Penmanship and Business Department, is a graduate of the Zanerian Art School, of Columbus, Ohio, the finest school of pen art in the world. The results achieved by the pupils under Professor Childs' direction are something wonderful. The course in penmanship alone is worth the amount charged for the entire business course; but it goes in absolutely free of cost to those taking either the Bookkeeping or Shorthand course.

The business men prefer the Southern's graduates, because the Southern has stood for thoroughness; its bookkeepers are expert, and its stenographers are rapid and accurate.

"If several young persons, who were graduates of different business schools, should apply to me for a position at the same time, I would engage the one holding a diploma from the Southern Shorthand and Business University," said a prominent Atlanta business man to a prospective pupil who was making inquiry about business colleges.

Many are entering now and there is no better time to take a business or shorthand course than the present.

Salesmanship Course free to all entering for any other course before July 4. Call or write for catalog. Address, A. C. Briscoe, President, or L. W. Arnold, Vice President, 10 West Mitchell Street, Atlanta, Ga.

BROWN ADVISES AGAINST W. & A. EXTENSION

Cost, $20,000,000, Too Great to Be Compatible With State's Policy, Says Message.

Opposition to the extension of the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the sea was expressed in a message sent by Governor Brown to the Legislature. The cost of building such a road, which, it is said, would be about $20,000,000, is the reason given by Governor Brown for his opposition.

That the rental of such an addition, if possible to lease it, would not amount to more than the interest on the bonds, thus leaving nothing with which to pay off the principal, is one of the arguments advanced by him against the building of the road.

Governor Brown suggests that the State of Georgia might forever control its freight rates by obtaining a concession of land from Tennessee, giving it a frontage of a mile on the Tennessee River. A short branch could be built from the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the river and connection made with boats from Ohio and Mississippi River points. This, he states, could be done at a cost of $3,000,000.

That the Governor be authorized to appoint a commission to investigate the re-leasing of the Western and Atlantic is also suggested in the message.

Jordan to Preach Bryan Idea Abroad

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Dr. David Starr Jordan, Chancellor of Leland Stanford University, who is starting on a year's tour of the world to lecture in England, China, Australia and elsewhere on the peace movement, called on Secretary Bryan to-day and told him that he thoroughly approved and would preach the doctrines of Mr. Bryan's proposed peace treaties.

STOVER GIRL IS REAL STAR IN FRANK CASE

State, However, Must Prove She Entered Factory Before Mary Phagan.

With the selection of the court room made Thursday, all is virtually in readiness for the trial of Leo M. Frank, accused of strangling Mary Phagan. The venire of jurymen has been selected and July 28 fixed as the date, and both sides have announced they are ready to go into court.

A definite decision was reached by Judge L. S. Roan to hold the trial on the first floor of the old City Hall building. The decision was reached after a conference with Solicitor General Dorsey, and it was represented as impracticable to hold the trial in the small and not well-ventilated court room in the Thrower building.

The State is maintaining its determined attitude toward the subpenas duces tecum issued by the defense. Frank A. Hooper, assisting in the prosecution, has branded them as a palpable trick to discredit the testimony of the State's witnesses.

Girl Star Witness.

The witnesses will be present with the affidavits called for, but a hot fight will be put up by Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Hooper to prevent their use by the defense.

Monteen Stover, a timid little 14-year-old girl, will be a star witness in the trial, according to all indications Thursday.

The State, if it is able to establish that Monteen Stover entered the factory on the day of the crime just after Mary Phagan went inside, will have scored a most significant victory. The evidence will still be circumstantial, it is true, but it will be of greater weight even than the weird stories of the negro sweeper, Jim Conley, who has sworn that he aided Frank in disposing of the body.

Adds to Mystery.

Her story, however, until it is substantiated or disproved in court, only adds to the mystery of a crime which already abounds in baffling and mysterious phases. Her appearance on the witness stand may mean everything or nothing—because there is the startling fact that every indication points to Monteen Stover having entered the factory BEFORE Mary Phagan.

Monteen Stover is the daughter of Mrs. Homer Edmonson, of 171 South Forsyth Street. She formerly was employed at the pencil factory, and on the Saturday of the murder went to the building to get her money. She said that she arrived there at 12:05 and remained about five minutes. She said that Frank was not in his office and that she was not able to find him.

Pitted against the declaration of the little girl is the statement of Frank that he was in his office at the time. One of the two apparently has spoken falsely or mistakenly. It is the theory of the State that Mary Phagan had preceded Monteen Stover into the factory; that Frank had attacked her probably in the metal room, and that this is the reason the Stover girl was unable to find Frank in his office when she was in the building from 12:05 to 12:10.

The Phagan girl left her home at 11:50. She lives in Bellwood and the ride to town takes more than 15 minutes. The time that she left the car in the city is fixed by William M. Matthews, Motorman No. 1447, of the Cooper and Hendricks Streets run, who says that his car arrived at Broad and Marietta Streets that day between 12:07 and 12:10 o'clock.

If Mary Phagan had hurried, she barely could have got to the factory by the time the Stover girl was leaving, if this testimony can be relied upon implicity. The Stover girl's story falls down utterly, so far as its value is concerned, therefore, if Mary Phagan did not come into the factory until after the Stover girl had left.

Younger Set of Millionaire Colony Engages Instructor for New Dances.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—During the coming season, which gives promise of being one of the most brilliant in the history of the fashionable colony, fancy dancing will be one of the popular diversions.

The younger set, of which Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., is a leader, has engaged an instructor, and dancing quite dissimilar to the popular tango and turkey trot will play an important role in the amusements of the millionaire cottage colony.

Mrs. Spencer, who is a member of the Casino Tennis Committee and active in the numerous affairs in which the younger set is interested, is an accomplished dancer herself, and any new forms of dancing inaugurated by her are certain to be taken up and followed by the young people of Newport. The colony is awaiting this innovation with interest.

Mrs. Spencer won particular admiration from society when she danced at the big benefit of the girls' branch of the Public School Athletic League, given at the Waldorf in New York last February. Her artistic Swedish dances in costume won her a tremendous ovation and three times she was asked to repeat them.

Admits Flagler Died In Guarded Cottage

NEW YORK, June 26.—W. H. Beardsley, attorney for the executors of Henry M. Flagler, admits that the cottage in which Mr. Flagler died at Palm Beach was surrounded by detectives during the latter's illness.

"It was necessary," said Mr. Beardsley. "Mr. Flagler himself, as well as the doctors demanded it. Had not officers been there hundreds of persons would have invaded the place."

'Movies' to Show Newport Robbery

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—One of the large villas in the summer colony here is to be used as a central scene in a new moving picture to be produced.

Actors and actresses have arrived here, and it is said that the beginning of the picture will portray a robbery at one of the summer homes.

Rector Fights Tango With Model Dances

NEW YORK, June 26.—Hoping to stop the tango, the turkey trot and other modern dances, the Rev. George B. Gilbert, rector of the Episcopal Church, at Middletown, Conn., has leased the dancing pavilion at Lake View Park and will conduct it as a model dance hall during the summer.

Leading society women from the city are chaperons for the dances, the first of which was held last night.

COTTON TARIFF A MESS, SAYS EXPERT

R. K. MacLea Writes O'Gorman Lobby Cry Drove Honest Business Men Away.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Robert K. MacLea, associate editor of Dry Goods and formerly consulting expert of the Tariff Board, has sent to United States Senator James A. O'Gorman a letter in which he criticised the cotton changes in the Underwood tariff bill made by the Senate committee and declared that the sub-committee in making them "has been misled by its experts, as I feared likely."

Mr. MacLea has had 25 years' experience in all branches of the cotton trade and his plain talk to Senator O'Gorman will, it is believed, attract much attention at Washington.

In the letter he says:

"I was greatly surprised to read the changes made by the Senate Finance Committee, and while I realize that attempts have been made presumably to eradicate some of the evils of the Underwood bill in regard to cotton manufactures, they have to my mind in reality made a worse mess of it than I could have imagined possible.

Says Business Men Will Protest.

"There is no excuse for discrediting the cost accounting shown in the tariff board report on Schedule I. I know that Mr. Patton, one of the experts relied upon by the Senate sub-committee, has rejected its facts, for he told me so recently, stating that it was not worth anything to him and that he cared nothing for it.

"I am sure that when the business men appreciate this situation, they will be heard from in no unmistakable voice. They will understand it in the course of a year certainly.

"There is no reason why a proper cotton and yarn schedule should not have been formulated and I wish to protest vigorously against the enactment into law of the Senate amendments without further adequate changes to properly correct the oversight of the House of Representatives' measure as passed by them and the additional oversights of the Senate sub-committee.

Business Men Driven Away.

"Many honest business men have lately turned away from Washington by the 'lobby' insinuations; yet in one of President Wilson's most notable speeches before he took office he appealed to the 'honest business men of the United States' to help him with legislation.

"Hundreds in the cotton industry had accepted the invitation and after depending upon a correct interpretation of facts by the House of Representatives found that recommendations with proofs had in many ways been ignored. They have since been driven away from Washington in their further honest efforts to point out errors made."

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

by JAMES B. NEVIN

In these parlous times of political maneuvering, wherein one must be both as wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove, politicians of more or less caliber, who never yet have ventured very far from shore, will do well to learn one lesson from the cases of J. Randolph Anderson, President of the Georgia Senate, and William H. Burwell, Speaker of the House.

Neither man won his fight by way of mere personal popularity alone, albeit each has many warm friends and stout-hearted supporters.

The gentleman who put over both Anderson and Allen is none other than our venerated and esteemed fellow citizen, Old Man Hard Work!

Anderson and Burwell have been tireless in their efforts to succeed in their undertakings. Both men have lived their races for months. Anderson and Burwell were at it hammer and tongs while some of their opponents were seeking membership in the Don't Worry Club.

Politics, unlike kissing, rarely goes by favor. They that seek find, if they seek diligently enough—or, at least, they that do not seek rarely find.

Anderson and Burwell both are experienced legislators. Each has served a long and active term of service. Both are first-class parliamentarians, both good speakers and are both fine diplomats. Neither should in any manner "fall down on his job," and it isn't at all likely that either will.

There is a particularly fine and friendly feeling among members of both Houses, and the chances are that Georgia has on its hands at last a Legislature that will be able to proceed to its work free from partisan bias or internal feuds.

That's saying a good deal—but it looks as if the saying is warranted!

Hon. O. K. Jones, one of Lowndes County's representatives, and a strong believer in tax equalization or reform will introduce a bill in the Legislature providing for the appointment of a board of three tax assessors for every Georgia county.

Mr. Jones believes that valuations can be raised 25 per cent without working any hardships, and the State pulled out of the financial bog within a year, by the work of competent and conscientious assessors. There is no question that millions of dollars of taxable property is never returned. The uncovering of this property would within itself materially increase revenues. Representative Jones says:

"To make the proposed boards of real benefit, the members should be appointed and their tenure of office entirely independent of public suffrage. Many a tax receiver has beaten himself by a conscientious and zealous effort to secure just tax returns in his county, and it takes a pretty brave officer to persist in a course, however right, which he knows will beat him at the polls. That danger is removed when the assessors are made appointive."

Governor Brown literally has been swamped with callers to-day and yesterday. The Governor still is very much of an active agent in politics, and keeps in close touch with his friends, just as very many of his friends insist upon keeping in very close touch with him.

To-day and to-morrow will be his last days as Chief Magistrate, for by Saturday morning, when his successor will be inaugurated, he will have everything in shipshape for the new Governor.

It may be taken as a certainty that the Governor will not retire absolutely from sight politically, although it undoubtedly is his purpose to refrain from meddling in the new Governor's business, if he might.

Governor Brown and Governor-elect Slaton are firm friends of years standing. The new Administration will have no more earnest well wisher than the present Executive.

House bill No. 1 this year is in, by Mr. Cole, of Bartow, and proposes a graduated inheritance tax for Georgia.

House bill No. 1 in the last Legislature was the famous "Tippins bill" of fragrant recollection, which had the stormiest career of any measure introduced.

It weathered the gales in both the House and the Senate, only to go to wreck eventually on the rocks of an executive veto.

House bill No. 1 this year seems destined to a kinder fate. The inheritance tax idea is popular in the Legislature, and the chances that such a measure may become the law are exceedingly bright.

Mr. Cole has this bill very much at heart, and will leave no stone unturned to push its passage.

Cole, by the way, is one of the younger members of the House, sure to take a high stand among his colleagues. He is well on the sunny side of 30, and is one of the most successful business men in North Georgia. He started his career some ten years ago with something like $1.35 capital, and to-day he is worth—well, he's mighty well fixed for his age, and he is progressing every day! All that he has has been accumulated by hard work and sticking everlastingly at it—he never stops on a job he is undertaking to put over.

Cole has made a deep study of inheritance taxation. The law he proposes for Georgia is based upon the best things he could gather from other inheritance tax laws, particularly from the splendid one California has on her statute books.

Two fine young Georgians to whom Speaker Burwell feels heavily indebted for his victory of Wednesday are Thomas F. Fleming, of Sparta, and H. L. Gardner, of Eatonton.

This pair worked in season and out for Burwell, remaining constantly in his headquarters in Atlanta during the last days of his campaign. Both are affable, earnest and sincere workers, and much of the happy outcome of Burwell's fight is due to them and their loyal work.

Grover Edmondson, of Brooks, is the "baby" of the House, but he doesn't look it nearly as much as does Wisdom, of Forsyth.

Edmondson is a big, husky youngster of 22, while Wisdom is an extremely boyish looking kid of 24.

Both are fine chaps, however, and likely will be heard from in the present House.

TEACHERS MEET NEXT WEEK IN CONTESTS

High School Instructors Also Will Hear Experts in Conferences at Athens.

Several hundred high school teachers, college instructors and others interested in the development of the State high schools will visit Athens next week to attend the sixth annual State high school contests and High School Association meetings. Conferences and meetings will begin July 1 and continue until July 5.

Among the conference speakers and lecturers will be a number of high school experts of the United States, including Dr. H. A. Hollister, of the University of Illinois, and Dean Southwick, of the Boston School of Expression.

Dr. Hollister will lecture each morning at 8:45 o'clock in Peabody Hall, beginning Tuesday. Dean Southwick will deliver three lectures Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings at 10:25 o'clock.

Experts to Hold Conferences.

State high school experts will lead conferences on "Methods of Improving the Teaching Force of the High Schools," "Should Georgia Organize a Teacher Training Course in the High Schools?" and "Means of Bringing the High School Closer to Community Life."

Special conferences will be held throughout the week on home economics, science, mathematics, language and English. The conference on home economics will be conducted by Miss Elizabeth Holt, of Augusta; the conference on science will be conducted by Principal W. P. Jones, of Rome; the conferences on mathematics, language and English will be in charge of Dr. R. P. Stephens, Principal N. G. Bartlett, of Dublin, and President F. F. Rowe, of Thomaston.

The high school contests will be inaugurated Wednesday, July 2, with preliminary debating contests in Peabody Hall. Thursday a music contest and a State championship debate on woman suffrage will be held.

Hold Contests Friday.

Declamation, athletic, spelling and recitation contests will be held Friday. Gold medals will be awarded in all events and a $300 scholarship of Brenau Conservatory will be awarded to the State winner in the music contests. The winner in the debate will be awarded a $50 set of books.

Dr. J. W. Riley Ends Successful Revival

Dr. J. W. Riley, noted Minneapolis Evangelist, closed his ten-days campaign for membership at the Tabernacle Wednesday night. Dr. Riley's efforts have met with great success. At the services Tuesday evening the front seats of the auditorium were filled with new members brought into the church through Dr. Riley's work. More than 100 also joined the Sunday school.

The evangelist will return to Minneapolis for a two-weeks' stay, after which he goes to Estill Springs, Tenn., to conduct services there for a week.

Do You Want to Save a Baby Life?

Quart of Milk Daily Is the Means

Mothers' Congress Asks Your Aid

A campaign for pure milk for the poor babies of the Gate City was inaugurated Thursday morning by the Mothers' Congress of Atlanta. The members plan to engage actively in the work of helping the babies who can not help themselves, and through the president, Mrs. John W. Rowlett, have sent out the following appeal:

One hundred persons are wanted each to furnish one quart of milk daily for one child. If you are willing to help save one baby, send your name to Mrs. John W. Rowlett, 186 East Pine Street.

The officers of the congress declare that, when they have obtained the names of the 100 persons willing to save a baby each, it will be but the opening wedge in the work they have undertaken. The ultimate object of the campaign is the establishment of milk stations in sections of the city where they are needed, thus enabling the mother to be instructed as well as helped.

Evans Eager to Help.

The fact that aid for the poor babies of the city is imperative and must be given at once was established by the congress after a conference had been held with City Warden Evans. Mr. Evans furnished the officers of the congress with a long list of children whom it is proposed to make the beneficiaries of the one quart of milk a day plan, and he has offered to co-operate with the congress in every way possible during the campaign.

"The question of caring for the babies of Atlanta during the months when the chances for the baby to survive are few, is a vital and pressing one," declared one of the officers of the congress Thursday morning, "and the question of furnishing pure milk to the children should be taken up in earnest by the people of Atlanta. We are hoping for a hearty and encouraging response to our request for a 100 quarts of milk a day for the babies, and would ask that every person contemplating enlisting in the good work send in their names as soon as possible.

"We hope to show the vital need of this work by the good we can do with the '100 quarts a day plan,' and so arouse the people of Atlanta that pure milk stations can be established.

Blames Improper Feeding.

"Improper feeding is the chief cause of infant mortality, and ignorance is very often the cause of improper feeding. Hence a campaign for the reduction of infant mortality must not only give relief at once, but must also instruct the mother in the care of her child, especially during the summer months."

The Congress of Mothers of Atlanta has for several years been fighting on behalf of the baby, and have aroused a great deal of interest in their work throughout the city. Several years ago they tried to bring to Atlanta a Gordon-Walker Laboratory for the certification and purifying of milk, but failed through lack of financial backing.

The congress co-operated with the City Board of Health, and has been active in the movement to have milk delivered at a temperature of 55 degrees.

Your Aid Is Needed to Save the Babies

Hundreds of poor babies are suffering in Atlanta today, insufficiently and improperly nourished. Hundreds of them will die during the torrid months of July and August unless something is done for them.

The Mothers' Congress of Atlanta has undertaken to save at least one hundred of these babies whose parents are too poor to provide them with proper food and nourishment by supplying each baby with a quart of pure, fresh milk each day. They are calling on one hundred citizens of Atlanta for aid, asking them to each furnish one quart of milk each day.

If you are willing to help save one little life and make one home brighter, send your name at once to Mrs. J. W. Rowlett, 186 East Pine Street.

CALLS COURT TO PROBE LYNCHING

Judge Littlejohn Orders Special Session at Americus to Convene Next Monday.

AMERICUS, June 26.—Judge Z. A. Littlejohn has signed an order calling for a special session of the Sumter County Superior Court to investigate the lynching of Will Redding, a negro, for shooting Chief of Police W. C. Barrow last Saturday night. The order fixes next Monday as the time for court to convene.

It is also ordered that the same Grand Jury that served at the recent term of the court be resummoned to investigate the lynching. This Grand Jury is known as one of the most fearless that ever served the people of Sumter County, having indicted a number of well-known men for gaming and others for violation of the prohibition law.

Sunday morning the city was all agog with talk of the lynching. Now, strange to say, no one can be found, without difficulty, who will speak of the affair except as having been informed by someone else.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst Are Hosts to U. S. And Foreign Officers

NEW YORK, June 26.—Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst entertained the officers of the American, Brazilian and Argentine warships lying in the Hudson River. The naval officers met at Mr. Hearst's home in Riverside Drive, as did some of the women in the party.

From there they were conveyed to the New Amsterdam Theater in theater coaches, attending the performance of Ziegfeld's Follies. Following the performance, the party returned to the Hearst home for supper and dancing.

Among the civilians in the party were John Purroy Mitchel, Collector of the Port, and Justice James W. Gerard, of the Supreme Court.

300 Are Expected at Army's Park Outing

More than 300 poor mothers and children of Atlanta are expected to attend the annual outing of the Salvation Army at Piedmont Park Thursday.

Two chartered cars at 9 o'clock in the morning were filled with people, and many more are expected to go during the day. The Salvation Army will serve lunch and refreshments, and for the youngsters there will be races and athletic games, with all kinds of prizes.

Accused of Stealing Check While Drunk

Charged with stealing a cashier's check for $126, which, it is said, he wrapped up with his clothes in the Southern Express Company's office, while intoxicated, R. L. Underwood, a former employee of the company, has been placed on trial in the criminal division of the Superior Court.

The letter, it is asserted, was found in Underwood's boarding house.

DRUGGIST GIVES MONEY BACK

Dodson's Liver Tone Gets a Four Square Guarantee From All Drug Stores.

When an article is sold a druggist who is willing to give it his personal guarantee, it's a mighty strong proof of real merit.

That's exactly the case with Dodson's Liver Tone. It is a pleasant-tasting, vegetable remedy for a slow and sluggish liver. Since Dodson's Liver Tone came on the market the sale of calomel has gone 'way down. The reason is simply this: Dodson's Liver Tone is safe and harmless and guaranteed to be satisfactory—Calomel is often uncertain, sometimes dangerous, and no druggist wants to guarantee that it won't knock you out of a day's work and maybe send you to bed.

All druggists sell Dodson's Liver Tone and guarantee it. For you and for your children it's a good thing to keep a bottle always in the house.

All dealers will give you your money back if you think Dodson's Liver Tone is not worth the price. "Keep your liver working and your liver will not keep you from working," is good advice to go by.

DRAW ENDS SHAM BATTLE OF TROOPS

BRUNSWICK, GA., June 26.—Officers of the Georgia State militia and regular army men here to observe the maneuvers are much pleased to-day over the excellent work of the troops in the second sham battle of the encampment yesterday afternoon.

The battle ended in a draw, the infantry under Major Hunter being unable to dislodge Major Seamans' dismounted cavalry from their intrenchments, while the latter had their hands full trying to repulse the attacking forces.

The Orange army, equipped for field duty, marched directly from Camp Brown to the sea, and then proceeded northward about a mile, where intrenchments were thrown up. At places the earthworks were five feet in height, and the defenses were concealed by canes and rushes cut from the neighboring swamps.

The Blue army, under command of Major Hunter, approached from the heavily wooded land side, but was held at bay by the Orange outpost, under command of Captain Rudisail, of Atlanta, long enough for the Orange army to intrench its position. The Blue army took up a position running parallel with the railroad. The battle line was about 2,000 feet long.

A number of Atlanta women were entertained by the officers of the Second Squadron and the Third Battalion yesterday. Most of the visitors formed parties and went fishing, and some good catches were made. Mrs. C. W. Hatcher, of Atlanta, caught and towed to the shore a five-foot shark, which she shot and killed.

$2,000,000 Is Frisco Stockholders' Loss

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—Stockholders of the Frisco System have lost nearly $2,000,000 in the depreciation of the values of common and preferred stock since the railroad went into the hands of a receiver, according to estimates made from the stock books in the last week.

James Campbell, of St. Louis, is holding stock worth $214,220 less than it was before the receivership suit was begun.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Bondholders of the Frisco will suffer no loss in the readjustment of the road's finances, according to Prince Poniatowski, a French banker, who sailed to-day after personally investigating the affairs of the road.

WISE TO RUN FOR CONGRESS AGAIN

J. W. Wise, of Fayette, who was beaten by a scratch last year in the race for Congress from the Sixth District, will enter the race again next year. Mr. Wise says he hopes to get sufficient votes next time to leave not a shadow of doubt of election.

In the last contest in the Sixth the district voted as a whole, the candidate receiving the largest vote to be declared the nominee. When the returns were announced it is said the count showed Mr. Wise to be the winner by about 200 votes over his opponent, Congressman Bartlett.

Later, however, Mr. Wise received information from Macon to the effect that there had been a change in the vote in some of the city precincts.

Mr. Wise says he never has been satisfied with that decision, but has determined to bide his time and get into the race next year. He says he has been overwhelmed with messages urging him to enter the race at the next election.

ICE $1 MORE IN ATLANTA THAN IN MACON

Same Concern Charges 45 Cents Hundred Here, 25 Cents in Bibb County Capital.

Atlanta, with far greater population, is paying more for ice than Macon.

The wholesale price in Atlanta is $4 a ton, or $1 more than the Macon price. The comparison is even more distinctly to the disadvantage of Atlanta, in the prices for small amounts of ice at retail, the price being 30, 35 and 40 cents per hundred in Atlanta compared with a straight 25-cent rate in Macon.

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation is the principal manufacturer and distributor of ice in both Atlanta and Macon, and it also is in Chattanooga, Rome, Augusta and Jacksonville.

Three Dollars Ton in Macon.

As a result of the competition between the two ice companies in Macon, the Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation and the Southern Ice & Coal Company, ice is selling at wholesale in Macon for $3 a ton. At the beginning of the season the rate was $4.50. The retail purchasers, those who buy 10 or 15 cents worth at a time, are now getting their ice in Macon at the rate of $5 a ton, or 25 cents a hundred pounds. Formerly they paid $7.50 a ton, or 37 1-2 cents a hundred.

In Atlanta the wholesale price is $4 a ton. Ice is sold at retail on a graduated scale—30 cents per hundreds in amounts over 50 pounds; 35 cents per hundred in 25-pound lots and 40 cents per hundred in 10-pound lots.

The Atlanta customer who buys 10 pounds of ice, pays more than the Macon customer did before the ice war in Macon started. Before the price cutting began in Macon, the price of ice in small lots was 37 1-2 cents per hundred pounds. In Atlanta the price then, as it is now, was 40 cents per hundred pounds.

To get ice as cheap as it sold in Macon before the price war started, the Atlanta purchaser must buy at least 25 pounds. He can not buy any amount of ice as cheap as it sells in Macon to-day.

Says Price Will Be Raised.

When asked why Atlanta had to pay a higher price for ice than Macon, W. B. Baker, vice president and general manager of the Atlantic, said Wednesday that Macon was in the throes of an ice war, started by their competitor, the Southern Ice & Coal Company. The price there was too low, he said, and at the end of the war would be raised to a reasonable figure.

"The Southern started the price cutting," Mr. Baker said. "It is a small company, with 60ton capacity. We have a 300-ton plant, with 14,000 ton storage capacity. They started last summer and had to cut prices to get any business.

"It is simply a question of supply and demand in Macon. Ice will not keep always ,and they they make it they have to sell it. They couldn't get our customers without offering an inducement, and so they began to cut prices. The cut, however, applied only here and there. Our policy is to treat everybody in the city alike. When they cut at a few places, we met the cut, and pursuant to our policy, gave the same cut prices to everybody in the city. We always do that."

In direct reply to this is the charge that the Atlantic is a trust and has suppressed competition in Atlanta, Augusta, Rome and Jacksonville and is attempting to do the same thing in Macon. This charge was brought by the Southern Ice & Coal Company, which has secured an order from the Superior Court enjoining the Atlantic from further reducing prices until a court hearing on July 25. It was charged that because the Southern would not sell out to the "trust", the rates were cut to such an extent that ice was selling at ruinous prices.

Restrained in Chattanooga.

Mr. Baker admitted ice was selling too low in Macon and said it would advance. He laughed at the Southern Company's suit, saying they wished now they had not brought it.

"And as for our having suppressed competition in certain places," he continued, you know yourself that we have three competitors in Atlanta. We also have two competitors in Augusta and two in Jacksonville and one in Rome, because Chattanooga ships ice to Rome against us. We also have another competitor in Macon, because a brewery there sells ice against us."

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation was recently restrained by Chancellor McConnell, of Chattanooga, from selling ice below a stipulated price in a certain zone of that city. The same charge of attempting to kill competition was made against them."

There still remain the conflicting stories of the Stover girl and Frank, even though they can not have a direct bearing on the case. The Stover girl says Frank was not in his office and he declares that he was there until he went to the fourth floor to see Arthur White and Harry Denham.

The defense will be able to say, however, that Frank probably was perfectly sincere in his declaration, but that, as a matter of fact, he might have stepped out of the office for a few minutes and not have recollected it when he was telling his story before the Coroner's inquest. They will argue that it is a very difficult matter for a person to recall every move he made at certain times unless something occurs to impress it on his memory at the time.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

"Ideal" Has Fine Diving Act.

Gertrude Vanderbilt and George Moore, singers and dancers, are registering a hit at the Forsyth this week. "Ideal," the champion lady swimmer and diver, is also a feature, presenting a novelty act that has attracted a world of interest. She shows dives no other water star has exhibited and that the act is a big drawing card is very much in evidence.

The Six Musical Cuttys, in a splendid musical novelty, and Minnie Allen, in an unusually clever act, make things interesting. All the other acts have won attention.

The headliner for next week will be Edward Abeles, the distinguished comedy star, who has been identified with such New York successes as "Officer 666" and productions of that sort.

Many See "Quo Vadis" at Grand.

"Quo Vadis," the wonderfully successful photo-play now in its second week at the Grand, attracts hundreds of people to the daily matinee and evening performances. Of all the thousands of people who saw the pictures last week and who are attending the exhibitions this week, not one has been disappointed.

The presentation of "Quo Vadis" will continue at matinee and night performances the rest of the week.

"The Merry Whirl" Pleases.

Lovers of musical comedy are highly pleased with "The Merry Whirl," this week's attraction at the Bijou. Of the several tabloids that have visited Atlanta, it is safe to say that none has given better satisfaction or drawn larger audiences than this one. Miss Marjorie Lake, in the role of Fifi, is one of the cleverest performers that has ever visited the Bijou. The three comedians, Lew Miller, Harry Loder and Sol Carter, are a show in themselves.

PUSHES DEMAND FOR PAPERS IN M'NAB CASE

Kahn Urges Committee to Favor His Resolution for Accounting From McReynolds.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Representative Kahn, of California, to-day vigorously urged the House Judiciary Committee to make a favorable report on his two resolutions calling for correspondence in possession of the Department of Justice relative to the Caminetti-Diggs white slave case which led to the resignation of District Attorney John L. McNab, of San Francisco.

Mr. Kahn declared that McNab notified McReynolds that witnesses were being tampered with in the Caminetti case.

He pointed out that in McNab's telegram to President Wilson, McNab charged open boasts were made that influence was to be used to prevent the prosecution of Caminetti and Diggs.

Representative Thomas, a member of the committee, wanted to know if Kahn knew what witnesses had been tampered with.

"I expect that to be disclosed by the correspondence," replied Mr. Kahn. "Here is an attorney who, evidently, sought to do his duty and was frustrated. A special attorney probably will be hired and he will get a big fee."

Youth Slays Father To Protect Mother

LAFAYETTE, IND., June 26.—John C. Barger, railroad conductor, was killed by his son, Paul Barger, 18, to-day, when the elder Barger attacked his wife.

The boy said that his father was choking his mother when he fired a revolver three times, holding the muzzle against his father's side.

Shaft Unveiled to Late Congressman

DAWSON, June 26.—A handsome monument to the late Congressman James M. Griggs was unveiled in Dawson to-day. A large crowd was present from all sections of the Second District.

Ex-Congressman William M. Howard, of Lexington, Ga., a colleague and warm personal friend of Judge Griggs, delivered the presentation speech, and little Theodosia Griggs Hollingsworth, a granddaughter, unveiled the monument. M. J. Yeomans delivered the speech of acceptance.

The monument was erected with funds raised by popular subscription.

Sinclair's Divorced Wife Denied License

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 26.—Mrs. Meta Sinclair, the divorced wife of Upton Sinclair, the novelist, and Hubert Halliwell of this city were unable to get a marriage license from City Chamberlain Jesse J. Graham of this city, who refused it because they have been living at Dr. Sahler's sanitarium at Woodstock, whereas Mrs. Sinclair gave her residence as New York City.

After being refused a license Mr. Halliwell and his fiancee went to the home of Mr. Halliwell's mother in this city.

Mr. Halliwell admitted that he would be married within a week, but by whom or where he refused to say.

$8.50 to $12.50 Lingerie Dresses $5.85

Look at these dresses with critical eyes—compare them with the best dresses you have been able to find heretofore for $8.50 to $12.50. Having just arrived Monday, they portray the latest style thought. They have the "new look"—shaping shoulders and sinuous lines.

Something like 200 in all—crepes, soft and crinkly; voiles, winsome, open to the air; crepes, bestrewn with buds and dainty flowers; linens, firm, flaxful; tissues, striped, as sheer as gossamer; ratines, tousled like a Turkish towel.

There are plain one-piece dresses, some entirely of laces and tucking; the new coat dresses; composed dresses, the tunic of floral crepe, the skirt of voile. Many of the dresses have the new crushed silk girdle. All white, colors, or white and colors in combination. Delightfully new $8.50 to $12.50 dresses and only $5.85.

$5 to $8 Lingerie Dresses at $3.85

Crepes, voiles, linens and lingeries. Some are all white; some are bestrewn with dainty flowers; some are in colors. More than one hundred and fifty in all; with choice of more than a dozen styles.

$18 to $25 Afternoon Dresses at $11.85

About one hundred and twenty in all. The largest lot are of an imported hemstitched white crepe, made in the one-piece style, with crushed girdle of charmeuse or velvet. Others are of voile and crepe in elaborate embroidery designs. White and colors.

Exclusive Creations at $13.85, $15.85, $19.85

Beautiful gowns—copies of Paris creations; exclusive New York originations. At each price there are from ten to twenty gowns. Scarcely any two alike. Materials are of imported crepes, eponges and voiles. Every gown worth from a half to twice over the present price.

$1.25 & $1.50 Shirt Waists at $1

All new waists; smart, attractive styles. We've had duplicates of some of these waists here at $1.25 and $1.50; the other styles are now shown for the first time. Voiles and lingeries; square and round necks; short and three-quarter sleeves. Lace and embroidery trimmed. All sizes. Choice $1.

(Ready-to-Wear—Second Floor)

$1 Leather Bags at 69c

Heretofore we've been pleased to get bags as good as these to sell for $1. For they are all leather, in the very smartest shapes. Leather or moire lined.

Choice of many styles with round or creased bottom. Single or double strap handle. Gilt, gun metal or leather covered frames. Medium and large sizes. Black only.

$1.50 to $6 Novelty Bags, only 50c

Clearaway of ladies' novelty bags in colored suedes, silks, braids, black velvets and black moires. Long cord handle. Formerly $1.50 to $6 each, to-morrow at 50c.

(Main Floor—Center)

Sale of Stamped Goods at 10c

Just look at the variety of pretty and practical articles you can buy at 10c.

(Main Floor—Center)

Opera Chains — Imported 54-inch chains. Made of silver with the fashionable platinum finish. 29c
(Main Floor—Center)

25c Beauty Pins — Gold top and heavily gold plated bar and beauty pins to match. Engraved or plain 19c
(Main Floor—Center)

3 Big Tables of Lace Remnants

At a Fourth of the Usual Prices

Three big tables of lace remnants, formerly half price, are again halved for Friday's selling. This means in most instances four yards for the former price of one; one dollar's worth for 25c.

There are laces of all kinds, in allovers, bands, edges and insertings. Widths 1 to 45 inches; lengths ¾ of a yard to 3 yards. From the present prices, which are about half, you take another half, making the laces cost you one-fourth the original price.

(Laces—Main Floor—Right)

New Parasols

A special purchase of summer parasols, 10 brass ribs, covered with silk; hemstitched border. Solid colors or tan center, with contrasting colored border. $1.69

Ribbon Remnants At Half Price

A table of all kinds of ribbons, in lengths from ½ to 3 yards. Were 10c to $1.50; now 5c to 75c.

50c Neckwear 25c

A table of all kinds of neckwear—most of it clean and crisp, a few pieces counter tossed. All attractive 50c neckwear at 25c.

(Main Floor—Right Aisle)

75c Ratine 50c

All white—the season's most popular fabric. Just 7 pieces—it will fairly fly at 50c.

(Main Floor, Left)

GLASS BILL BOND CLAUSE RESTORED

Currency Reform to Provide Retirement of 2 Per Cent Obligations, as Written Originally.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Representative Glass announced to-day that his currency reform bill would be introduced with the 2 per cent bond retirement feature restored, just as it was before the Glass-McAdoo-Wilson conference at the White House previous to the announcement of the contents of the bill.

The bill will provide that all 2 per cent Government bonds shall be retired and 3 per cent bonds shall be issued instead during a period of twenty years.

Says Bank Tried to Ruin Dixie Concern

CHICAGO, June 26.—The Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank to-day was made defendant in a suit filed by John Stuart Watson & Co., farm brokers of Portland, Maine, charging the bank with unjust manipulation of bonds and stocks with a view to ruining the credit of the New Orleans Drainage Company.

The corporation, Watson said, owns land valued at about $2,000,000, and the bank, through threats to foreclose upon this property, induced him to sign an agreement to allow the bank to reorganize the company under the name of Orleans Suburban Farm Company.

'Ego in Pet Child's Cosmos Dangerous'

CHICAGO, June 26.—Dr. H. C. Norris, of Ederlin, N. Dak., a delegate to the Congress of Allenists here, declared that petted children get egomania, which results in a lack of self-control.

This, he asserts, results finally in a nervous and mental breakdown, thus paving the way to an insane asylum.

Manufacturers to Give Banquet July 3

Between 250 and 300 manufacturers will banquet at the Hotel Ansley on the evening of July 3 to perfect plans for the permanent organization of the Atlanta Manufacturers' Association. They will be guests of the Chamber of Commerce.

Two questions will be discussed—the annual manufacturers' exhibition and a permanent manufacturers' exhibit of Atlanta-made goods.

Brooks Morgan will present an organization plan at the banquet.

J. S. Owens, Banker, In Race for Council

John S. Owens, vice president of the Central Bank and Trust Corporation, is in the race for Alderman from the Eighth Ward, to succeed Dr. A. H. VanDyke, who, it is understood, will not offer for re-election. Mr. Owens started his successful career as a bank clerk.

Mr. Owens says he has no platform except that of the welfare of Atlanta, and that he is pledged to no faction or man.

Canadian Physicians Bar Friedmann 'Cure'

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 26.—Unanimous approval was given to-day to the resolution introduced at the meeting of the Canadian Medical Association condemning the Friedmann tuberculosis "cure."

Professor Adami, of Montreal, who introduced the resolution, declared that "we have found the results of the Friedmann treatment disappointing, the claims made for the remedy not proved, and nothing has been found to justify confidence in the remedy."

Auto Hurdles Bridge; Man and Girl Killed

CHICAGO, June 26.—A man and woman were killed and another man and woman painfully injured to-day when an automobile crashed through the railing of a bridge in Lincoln Park.

H. A. Gregory, magazine circulation manager, died soon after the accident. The body of a Miss Bristol was found in the water.

The Prices Tell the Whole Story

Of To-morrow's Opportunities in the Ready-to-Wear

Just bear this in mind, however, as you read these prices, that in every instance they stand for merchandise that has back of it the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose guaranty of quality and style!

$7.50 For $18.50, $21.75 to $25.00 Woolen Suits

There are only fifteen of these. They will not last long after store-opening time. Splendid suits---judge them by their former prices; they are of serges and corded materials, hardly enough of any one color or style to attempt description, but the first fifteen women who seek a suit for general wear are going to be beautifully rewarded for their hurrying.

$10 For $30.00, $35.00 to $45.00 Woolen Suits

There are thirty of these.

Materials are serges, whipcords, diagonals, Venetian cloths and mixtures. Colors ---grays, tans and a few plain navy and black suits and another few white serges. That these suits were formerly $30, $35 to $45 in the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose stock tells their style and worth, what you may expect.

Half Price For $16.50 to $30 Motor and Traveling Coats

Thirty of these.

Charming styles and various. Materials are serges, whipcords and mixture weaves, gray, black-and-white effects, black and navy. Some lined, others unlined.

$16.50 Coats $ 8.25 — $22.50 Coats $11.25
$18.50 Coats $ 9.25 — $25.00 Coats $12.50
$20.00 Coats $10.00 — $30.00 Coats $15.00

$5.00 For $12.50 to $18.75 Linen Suits

Forty of these. Certainly not so many as this remarkable price would hurry to new owners---for a linen coat suit at this season is all but a necessity.

The linens are those soft, "heavy," loosely-woven kinds in favor just now, in about any color you may fancy. A wealth of styles, smart cutaways, "strictly tailored," jaunty Norfolks, and others that come under the head of Bulgarian effects.

$7.50 For $12.50, $18.75 to $21.75 Linen Dresses

Sixty of these.

This is the general disposal of all linen dresses of this season's choicest styles. And, indeed, there are many styles to choose from. There are plain, tailored dresses touched with a bit of color on cuffs and collars; there are Bulgarian and peplum styles rich with embroideries and showing novel ideas of fashioning. Materials are ramie and crash and yours may be Copenhagen, tan, gray or wistaria.

Who Will Get These Four Exquisite Silk Suits?

They are copies of imported models, made up of imported fabrics---three of them we brought on as show pieces---now they go to four lucky women!

$22.50 This One Was $45.00

It is of silk poplin in a soft shade of wistaria. It is a "fancy" suit, the coat fashioned in a novel cutaway style, with a Bulgarian collar showing shades that both blend in and contrast with the wistaria; the skirt is draped.

$25.00 This One Was $87.50

The material is a wonderfully soft brocaded crepe---an imported fabric in a fine shade of taupe. The coat is a short Russian blouse, trimmed with frogs and laces. The skirt is draped in true Parisian fashion. Hard to imagine $25.00 doing greater service in suit buying.

$35.00 This One Was $125.00

Elegance itself!

A white moire faille silk suit, a copy of a model that would of necessity have been much more than $125.00. The coat is a postillion model, cut away short in front, half-length sleeves, edged with wide shadow lace and folds of black velvet; a draped skirt.

$67.50 This One Was $175.00

A three-piece suit worthy of the most elegant social function; of tan moire faille silk. The waist of the dress is an artistic combination of shadow lace and hand-embroidered bands; the coat is a cutaway style, embroidered collar and cuffs; skirt is draped gracefully.

DIXIE VETERANS DENIED USE OF U. S. TENTS

Resolution, Providing Shelter For Brunswick Reunion, Held Up in Lower House.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The hope of the Confederate veterans of getting United States Army tents for their reunion at Brunswick, Ga., beginning July 10, went glimmering today, when Representative Fowler, of Illinois, objected to the consideration of the resolution authorizing the War Department to lend the tents.

Representative Fowler first called up his resolution to appropriate money to send the veterans in the District of Columbia to the reunion at Gettysburg. Calloway, of Texas, objected. A moment later Howard, of Georgia, called up the resolution to lend tents to the Confederate veterans. He was acting for Walker, of Georgia, who is out of the city. Fowler, smarting because Calloway had defeated his plans, at once interposed his objection and the resolution went over.

Minority Leader Mann, of Illinois, eloquently pleaded for the passage of both resolutions, but Calloway and Fowler insisted on their objections.

"These old soldiers are passing. Soon they will be of no more expense to us," said Mann. "It does seem that if we are a united country, as we hear so often, that the objections to both these resolutions should be withdrawn. Let the reconciliation between the blue and the gray be complete."

Hundreds Offer Skin For Huested Victims

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 26.—Thirteen dead, eleven missing and probably sixty-three in the hospital, many of whom probably will die, is the latest estimate of the toll of the Huested mill explosion.

Federal authorities are to take a hand in the investigation of the mill horror.

Nearly all the injured are terribly burned by the fire which broke out immediately following the explosion. Several thousand square inches of skin will be used in grafting on the injured. Hundreds have volunteered to furnish the healthy cuticle.

Bateman on Trial As Race Swindler

The trial of J. N. Bateman, former Justice of the Peace and wealthy Atlanta land-owner, on three charges—larceny, swindling and larceny after trust—came up before Judge L. S. Roan of the Superior Court Thursday afternoon.

The charges were made by Frank Rothleutner, of Kansas City, who alleges that he was defrauded out of $9,000 in cash in a pool room owned by Bateman on Whitehall Street.

Bateman was arrested in Miama, Fla., and brought back for trial.

Servant Wins Ninth Part of $14,000,000

JOPLIN, MO., June 26.—Mrs. Sachet Carlyle, employed as a maid at $5 a week, retained her job to-day, although she had just learned that she and her mother, Mrs. Martha Wilson, each were heirs to one-ninth of an estate valued at $14,000,000.

She mailed papers to Baltimore today proving her relationship to John Price, who left the estate.

Girl Disappears as Dorothy Arnold Did

NEW YORK, June 26.—The pick of the New York Detective Bureau today took up the mystery of the disappearance of Helen McCarthy, the pretty 16-year-old daughter of a newspaper broker, who vanished Tuesday morning within a stone's throw of her home, the Hotel Hargraves.

The disappearance takes rank with the mystery that still surrounds the Dorothy Arnold case, and in many respects the two are similar.

BIG TOBACO CONCERN FORMED.

RALEIGH, June 26.—Virginia and North Carolina capitalists to-day incorporated the Rucker-Penn Company, of Winston-Salem, to manufacture and deal in leaf tobacco, with authorized capital stock of $125,000.

YOUTH KILLS HIMSELF.

RALEIGHT, June 26.—Dorsey Watts, 18 years old, despondent over imaginary troubles, committed suicide at Apex. He was the son of T. H. Watts, a deputy sheriff.

Mid-Summer Sale of Women's White and Tan Shoes at Allen's

To-morrow and Saturday to 1 P. M.

Women's $3, $3.50 and $4 white canvas and white buckskin pumps at $1.95

Women's $3.50, $4 and some $5 white buckskin and white canvas pumps, lace and button oxfords at $2.45

Women's $4 and $5 tan Russia calf, tan vici kid and brown calfskin pumps, and button lace oxfords at $2.95 and $3.95 a pair

We have simply divided our tan low shoe stock into two classes. You can have your choice of any tan low shoe, tan oxford, pump or colonial at either $2.95 or $3.95 a pair, with the exception of two styles of $5.50 and $6 rubber soled oxfords and pumps. These are selling so fast that we can hardly supply the demand, but in order to make the sale complete we have reduced these to $4.95.

This style in Black or Tan Calf, Leather sole $2.95 Rubber sole $4.95

We have also added the English last black and tan leather sole oxford, formerly sold at $5.50 this sale $4.95 lot; and the English last black and tan pumps with the leather soles that we formerly sold at $5.00, are now $3.95.

This means that every white and tan shoe in Allen's Shoe Department can be bought at a considerable saving, in some instances the reduction will amount to a half or a third less than their former selling prices. We have also added several styles to the black gun metal, patent leather and satin pumps which were reduced to $3.50 last Monday. These were formerly $5.00 and $6.00. The sizes in the $2.45 shoes in black patent leather, gun metal and satin are nearly gone, but here and there you can find your size, and they are certainly big bargains. Some of them sold at $5.00. See our special sale shoe window.

We close Saturday at 1 p. m.

The Best News of Embroideries We Have Told This Season

The Selling Starts at Nine o'Clock

The papers have carried much good news of embroidery sales this season, but, as far as our knowledge goes, none could compare favorably with the values we have prepared for to-morrow.

This, indeed, is an embroidery occasion not to be missed. It is a Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose clearaway, a thorough righting of stocks of certain lines, and, as you shall read below, these lines are very desirable, embroideries that women want at this season, when sheer soft fabrics are an effective defense against Old Sol's persistent attacks. And being a clearaway of our own embroideries, there is not a disappointing yard among them. They are patterns and qualities that have contributed to make this Atlanta's ranking embroidery store. But these generalities do not tell the message of the dainty dresses, the cool waists, the exquisite underwear that are now possible at next-to-nothing cost.

You plan to be here and see for yourself.

19c

For 75c & 95c Flouncings

Think of all white and sheer batiste flouncings, 27 inches wide, showing the daintiest "baby" patterns, eyelet and French, for 19c a yard! Do not hesitate to buy quantities of them. It would be hard to find prettier materials and patterns for children's dresses. With these are embroidered bands, 2 to 4 inches wide, that were 50c to 85c a yard.

For $13.50 to $17.50 Dress Patterns

White voiles and crepes embroidered in colors, blue, pink, lavender and black. Many show heavy borders made of the greatly favored ratine. All are rich, elegant affairs so notably underpriced that women will quickly take to them. And all have the charm of newness about them.

For $2.00 to $5.00 Flouncings

Although the price range is from $2.00 to $5.00, most of these were $3.50 and up a yard. They are 27 and 45 inches wide, mull, batiste, voile and linen, open and blind patterns and some of them very rich with Irish point laces. Beautiful dresses they will make!

39c

For 75c to $1.25 Bands

Mull, batiste and linen bands, 2 to 4 inches wide, in white and colors, open and blind patterns very neatly worked.

50c

For $1 to $2 Flouncings

A fine variety of white and colored embroidery flouncings 27 inches wide, blind and eyelet patterns on sheer mulls and batistes.

Take a Hand in This Glove Sale

Prices have not been so low this summer, and all the gloves included are for warm weather wear.

Could you, with any appreciation of economy, leave the glove box unfilled with such an opportunity before you?

19c For 50c to $1.00 Gloves

A miscellany of silk and lisle two-clasp gloves in colors—about all colors, but not every size of every color, although all sizes are represented. With these are a few white lisle gloves in sizes 5 1-2, 7 1-2 and 8. Rich opportunities here!

29c For Kayser's $1.00 Gloves

Sixteen-button silk gloves. The name tells the quality. In these colors, light blue, pink, tan, chamois, brown, lavender and reseda, also at this price are $1.25 sixteen-button lisle gloves in champagne, brown, tan, gray, green and navy. A more serviceable glove could hardly be found.

49c For Kayser's $1.00 Gloves

Kayser's twelve-button silk gloves in black and white. All sizes except No. 6. Buy a half-dozen pairs, as many as you will need the summer through.

98c For Kayser's $1.75 and $3 Gloves

Sixteen-button embroidered silk gloves, all sizes, in these colors, light blue, pink, lavender, champagne, tan, brown, gray and old rose. None was priced at less than $1.75 a pair.

$1.00 For Kayser's $2.25 Gloves

Gloves women will want for evening wear; they are twenty-button length and in these colors, pink, light blue and gray. The silk is a heavy, long-wearing kind.

49c

For $1.00 & $1.50 Veils

Face veils of silk in Chantilly patterns, white, black, navy, brown, and black and white.

15c

For 25c Collars

An odd lot of novel batiste and lawn embroidered collars and Bulgarian collars, in white and colors, 15c!

25c

For 50c Collars

New Bulgarian collars; cotton, crepe and voile. Princess Helene collars—all white and all attractive.

Athens Bidding for Week-End Visits by Atlanta Motorists

Athens is making a bid for week-end visitors, and with this end in view Crichton C. Callaway, secretary of the Athens Chamber of Commerce, spent Wednesday in Atlanta arranging for an automobile scout trip next week. A committee of Athens people will make the trip and submit their observations to the Athens Chamber of Commerce, which will publish them, together with other information, in booklet form.

"Atlanta's 3,000 automobile owners always make week-end tours, and we want them to come to Athens," Mr. Callaway said. "The route to Athens is picturesque, while the city itself has many objects of interest and is approached by the best county road system in the State. If we can get Atlanta tourists started to going there, they will keep it up."

The Athens scouting party is due in Atlanta about Monday or Tuesday. In a week or so the little Athens booklets will be printed and distributed among automobilists of Atlanta.

Resinol stops skin troubles

IF you have eczema, rash, pimples, or other distressing, unsightly skin eruption, try Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and see how quickly the trouble disappears, even in severe and stubborn cases. They stop itching instantly.

Resinol Ointment is so nearly flesh-colored that it can be used on exposed surfaces without attracting undue attention.

Physicians have prescribed Resinol for 18 years, for all sorts of skin troubles, dandruff, sores, ulcers, burns, wounds, and piles. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, but you can try them free, by writing to Dept. 35-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md., for samples.

ATTACK VALIDITY OF SEATING 2 IN HOUSE

Bleckley and Wheeler Members May Be Denied Places—Moss Upholds Unions.

An attack on the validity of seating the representatives from Bleckley and Wheeler Counties featured the opening of the House session Thursday morning.

A resolution was introduced by Representative H. J. Fulbright, of Burke, his claim being that under the Constitution the membership of the House is limited to 184, while these two members made a total of 186. The resolution provided for the appointment of a committee of nine to investigate the matter. It was adopted.

The men representing the two new counties are George A. Browning, of Bleckley, and Douglas McArthur, of Wheeler. The two new counties were formed in 1912.

Unions Praised.

Representative H. B. Moss, of Cobb County, introduced a resolution expressing confidence in the laboring men of Georgia and asking their co-operation in the upbuilding of the State. It was referred to a committee. The resolution is, in effect, a reply to Governor Brown's message of Wednesday which flayed unionism.

At 10:35 o'clock the House adjourned until 3 minutes of 11, at which time it went into joint session with the Senate to canvass the vote for Governor.

Members Not Unanimous.

Calling of the roll and reading of the journal consumed 25 minutes following the opening of the House for the Thursday morning session. C. E. Stewart, of Coffee County, and Grover Cleveland Edmondson, of Brooks, were the two who refused to join in unanimous consent to dispense with calling the roll and reading the journal.

A bill to prohibit county authorities from payin insolvent costs on bills and county officials from the general fund was introduced by Brinson of Jenkins.

A bill providing for the incorporation of the town of Chickamauga was introduced by Farris of Walker.

Cook of Chattahoochee introduced a bill providing for creation of a board of commissioners of roads and revenues in Chattahoochee County.

ANTI-LIQUOR BILL BARS SHIPPING INTO STATE

Another Senate Measure Would Put Marriage Laws on Eugenic Basis.

The first temperance bill of the session was introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator Hixon, of the Thirty-seventh.

Senator Hixon's bill prohibits the shipment into the State of all intoxicating liquors, even though they be disguised under innocent appearing names. It is provided, though, that individuals may bring into the State on their person or as their personal baggage, liquor in quantity not to exceed one gallon in a single package.

The provisions of the bill do not apply to druggists, to whom pure alcohol may be delivered for medicinal purposes.

Marriage Bill Introduced.

A modified application of eugenics will hereafter govern marriages in Georgia if a "marriage bill" introduced by Senator Hixon is enacted into law. Senator Hixon's bill provides that no marriage licenses shall be issued to persons of unsound mind, males under 18 and females under 16 years of age; persons afflicted with tuberculosis, cancer, pellagra and other infectious or chronic diseases; persons addicted to habitual use of intoxicating liquors or drugs.

The bill provides that all applicants for a marriage license shall produce a certificate of health from a physician.

Bible Reading in School.

A bill providing for the reading of at least one chapter of the Bible at the opening each day of every public school in the State was introduced by Senators W. J. Bush, of the Eighth, and W. E. H. Searcy, of the Twenty-sixth.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION FILED.

The firm of Nisbet & McFadden, grocers of Hapeville, Ga., Thursday filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court, giving assets $656.75 and liabilities $1,682.36.

Brilliant Men All Unbalanced, Says Atlanta Alienist

"No brilliant man is perfectly poised mentally. All artists and musicians in a way are mentally unbalanced. They are the highest type of deranged persons. The man who is perfectly poised mentally is not brilliant."—Dr. J. Cheston King, Atlanta, Ga.

CHICAGO, June 26.—This statement was made at the National Convention of Alienists here.

"The perfectly poised man," said Dr. King, "is a very common man. When he falls in love it is purely a matter of the heart. When an artist falls in love it is more a condition of mind. But when a mentally balanced, common man falls in love he sees his sweetheart through the eyes of a genius."

Government to Aid North Georgia Road

DALTON, June 26.—An excellent highway constructed by the Government from Ringgold, in Catoosa County, to Dalton, through Whitfield County, in and probably through Gordon and on into Bartow County is now assured, the road to be built at a cost of $75,000.

Instead of an appropriation of $10,000 from the Government, Congressman Gordon Lee secured $25,000, and this will be supplemented by a fund of $50,000 from the counties interested, each county to pay $2 for every dollar spent by the Government.

Cotton Men Make Millions in Grain

NEW YORK, June 26.—During the dullness in the stock market it is believed that the McFadden interests, which have always been prominent in cotton, have made several millions through a bull campaign in the grain markets.

Not long ago, according to gossip in the grain pit, the McFadden crowd were carrying 10,000,000 bushels of coarse grain and over 1,000,000 bushels of wheat. Since April 1 July corn has advanced to above 62 cents a bushel, July oats from 33 7-8 cents to 43 1-4, and July wheat from 89 7-8 to 93 5-8 cents.

WE ARE OFFERING A 20% REDUCTION FROM THE ORIGINAL PRICE OF ALL DIAMOND GOODS

We are making this reduction in order to convert our present stock into cash before occupying our new store at 49 Whitehall Street. Not so great an opportunity has ever been offered you to get diamonds so much below their actual value. You not only profit from this reduction, but through the fact that they have steadily advanced since the stock we are now offering was purchased.

It is to your interest, if you contemplate purchasing any time in the near future, to do so during this sale, as, at the price, they are bargains in the extreme.

Beginning with Saturday, June 28th, and continuing through July and August our store will close at one o'clock.

KEELY CO.

The Social World

The opening of the Capital City Country Club is being observed Thursday with an informal reception scheduled for the late afternoon and a dance for the evening. The club house is decorated gayly for the event, which marks the taking over of the Brookhaven Club by the new management. The entire club membership will be welcomed by officers of the club.

Many motor parties were arranged for the afternoon and evening. Tennis courts, golf links and the splendid lake drew many for the afternoon, who will remain over for the informal dance. Club members will be received by Mr. Robert F. Maddox, president of the club, with Mrs. Maddox, other officers and their wives and the board of managers.

D. A. R. Garden Party.

The extensive grounds surrounding the summer home of Governor and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton was the scene of a garden party Wednesday afternoon given by members of the Atlanta Chapter, D. A. R. Mrs. Slaton, formerly regent of the chapter and an active worker, tendered the use of her summer home for the affair. Several hundred guests attended.

Mrs. Slaton, with her mother, Mrs. William D. Grant; Mrs. John Grant, Mrs. James Osgood Wynn, regent of the chapter, and other officers, received on the veranda.

From a broad balcony, draped with flags, a musical program was given by Miss Adgate Ellis, Miss Mary Loveless, Mrs. Carthew-Yorstoun and Mr. Wilford Watters. Miss Ellis, who was trained by Oscar Sanger in New York, made her debut. Her singing was enthusiastically received.

Punch was served from tables on the lawn. Each was decorated with sweetpeas. Among the guests were a number of prominent D. A. R. members from others chapters. Besides the program of vocal music, there was music by an orchestra.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Willis Everett, Mrs. Woods White, Mrs. E. D. Kennedy, Mrs. Alfred Newell, Mrs. A. R. Ninninger, Mrs. Elijah A. Brown, Mrs. Charles B. Walker, Mrs. Arch Avery, Mrs. George M. Hope, Misses Frances Connally, Jennie D. Harris, Katherine DuBose, Eloise Robinson, Passie May Ottley, Marjorie Brown, Sara Rawson, Harriet Calhoun, Margaret Northen, Gladys Dunson, Ida Winship, Emily Winship, Virginia Bowman, Elizabeth Morgan, Aimee Hunnicutt, Annie Sykes Rice and Clifford West, with a number of other young women active members of the chapter.

Patterson-Greene.

A wedding on Wednesday evening was that of Miss Annie Mays Patterson to Mr. Calvin Greene which took place at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Judge and Mrs. John R. Wilkinson, in Inman Park, Dr. Charles Daniel officiating.

The house was decorated with palms, ferns and daisies, a chain of Shasta daisies and feverfew forming the aisle through which the bridal party passed to the altar.

The flower girl was little Mary Sue Prim and Master Charles Moody was ring bearer. The chains were held by the bride's little sister, Julia Dent Patterson, of Texas, and her cousins, Flora Bell Reynolds, Miriam Reynolds Patterson and Margaret Wilkinson. The little attendants were all dressed in white lingerie frocks with blue ribbons.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white satin draped in princess lace, and her tulle veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms.

After the ceremony there followed a reception. The bride's table was decorated with a mound of daisies and the wedding cake and other details were in white and yellow.

Mrs. Wilkinson received her guests wearing white embroidered crepe de chine. Mrs. Patterson, the bride's mother, wore white chiffon and satin, and Mrs. A. H. Green, the mother of the bridegroom, wore gray chiffon draped in heliotrope chiffon and lace.

Punch was served on the porch by Misses Anna Mary Fuller, Elizabeth Wood, of Macon; Winnie Davis, Isabel Davis, Susan Stephens and Alice May Mackey.

After a bridal trip East Mr. and Mrs. Greene will be at home with the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Green.

Keese-Cole.

Miss Harriet Cole and Mr. Rogers Keese were married Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. D. H. Cole in Ansley Park. While only a limited number of guests were present, the wedding was of much social interest.

A well shaped canopy of smilax, fringed with valley lilies, starred with tiny electric lights and flanked on either side by cathedral candelabra, formed an effective setting for the ceremony. Vases of Easter lilies were interspersed with greenery, which formed a background. The mantel was banked with ferns and Easter lilies. Smilax formed mural decorations throughout the house.

Little Miss Elizabeth Cole, as maid of honor, wore a dainty frock of white lace and lingerie, with pink roses in a lace paper holder. Miss Sophie Daves and Atwood Cole were ribbon bearers. Mr. Roy Dorsey was best man. The bride entered with her brother, Mr. James Howard Cole, who gave her away.

Rev. Dr. Yarborough, of New Jersey, who has officiated at weddings in the bride's family for three generations, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore white princess lace, made with the new three-tier skirt, falling over a long train of white satin. The corsage of satin was veiled in the same lace, the tulle veil being adjusted from a little cap of lace, wreathed with orange blossoms. Her flowers were lavender orchids and valley lilies.

At a reception and buffet lunch the bride's table was adorned with a large mound of Killarney roses and valley lilies, with pretty decorative details in pink and white and little white satin baskets of rice, tied with white ribbons. The buffet, serving table and mantel were banked with small palms and vases of Killarney roses. Punch was served on the porch. Miss Marie Pappenheimer presided over a bowl imbedded in a mound of Killarney roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Cole, the bride's mother, wore a toilet of white charmeuse satin with corsage of lace.

Mr. Keese and his bride left for a wedding journey East. On their return they will be at home with Mrs. Cole in Ansley Park.

Miss Stoney's Luncheon.

An events of Thursday was the luncheon given by Miss Josephine Stoney to Miss Louise Couper's guests, Misses Katherine Graves and LaGranve Cothran, of Rome.

Great quantities of daisies made into a mound graced the center of the luncheon table. The placecards were hand-painted in daisies and all the details where possible were carried out in white and yellow. Miss Stoney received her guests wearing a frock of white embroidered crepe with sash of lavender satin.

The party included Misses Cothran, Graves, Couper, Jane Tucker Fisher, of Columbia, S. C., who is visiting Mrs. Baxter Moore; Virginia Lipscomb, and her guest, Gladys Teague, of Augusta; Eula Jackson and Pattie McGehee.

Miss Vaughan Hostess.

Miss Marian Vaughan entertained at a bridge party Thursday afternoon at her home in Fourteenth Street. Prizes were hand-embroidered lingerie and a pin cushion.

Miss Vaughan wore white lace and blue ribbons. Her guests were Misses Adgate ElEllis, Theo Prioleau, Virginia Lipscomb and guest, Miss Gladys Teague, of Augusta; Eula Jackson, Josephine Mobley, Margaret Grant, Mamie Ansley, Mary Brown, Lucile Kuhrt, Dorothy Harman, Lyda Nash, Gladys Glover, Ferol Humphries, Estelle Ford, Jan Robinson, Katherine Wyly, Margaret Traylor, Lawson Hines, Alice Parks, Ellen O'Keefe, Jeannette Lowndes, Louise Broyles, Gladys Dunson, Mamie Kirkpatrick and Dorothy High.

Miss Connally's Bridge.

Miss Frances Connally entertained at bridge Thursday morning for Miss Martha Francis, whose wedding to Mr. Claude Douthit will take place Saturday evening.

Bridge was played on the west porch at the Piedmont Club. Prizes were silk hose and a vanity trinket.

Miss Connally wore a becoming model in black and white French crepe with a white Panama hat.

Guests were Misses Francis, Carolyn King, Eloise Oliver, Adeline Thomas, Mrs. John Chapman, Mrs. Joseph Eby, Mrs. Charles Shelton, Mrs. John Spalding, Mrs. William Schroder, Mrs. Henry Troutman and her guest, Miss Lillian Beattey, of Columbus, Ohio.

For Miss Lewis.

Mrs. W. N. Bennett gave a reception Thursday afternoon for her daughter, Miss Laurette Lewis, whose marriage to Mr. Charles Edgar Jones takes place July 17.

Mrs. Bennett wore a pink lingerie gown. Miss Lewis was in white satin and black lace.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Elijah Brown, Mrs. J. S. Griggs, Mrs. W. A. Niall, Mrs. George Shepherd, Mrs. Samuel Greene, Mrs. L. B. Mower, Mrs. E. H. Ginn, Mrs. Jere Taylor, and Miss Elizabeth Dozier.

Misses Clementine LeVert, Beatrice Tyler and Elizabeth Wilson served punch.

Mrs. Prade Hostess.

Mrs. Julian Prade entertained at bridge Thursday afternoon for her sister, Mrs. Charles Dowman, of Birmingham, who is here with her mother, Mrs. George Westmoreland.

The house was decorated with sweetpeas. Pink gladiolas graced the tea table. Prizes were a picture frame and slipper buckles. Guests included 24 young matrons.

Mrs. Prade wore white crepe and lace. Mrs. Dowman wore pink embroidered crepe.

For Miss Callie Hoke Smith.

Miss Callie Hoke Smith, of Washington, D. C., who is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Ronald Ransom, was the honor guest at an informal tea given Thursday afternoon by Miss Sara Rawson. The guests were entertained on the terrace of the Piedmont Driving Club, tea being served from a prettily appointed tea table. Miss Smith wore a French gown of navy blue crepe de chine, with a Leghorn hat.

Miss Powers Hostess.

Miss Mamie Powers entertained members of the Dramatic Club of Decatur Tuesday evening. The club is rehearsing for a play to be given early in July. At the last meeting Miss Mamie Kirkpatrick and Mr. Edward VanValkenberg rendered several vocal duets.

Mrs. Wimbish Hostess.

Mrs. W. A. Wimbish will entertain at an afternoon tea Saturday for her guest, Miss Stewart, of Montgomery; Mrs. Prioleau Ellis, of Springfield, Mass., and Miss Eloise Oliver, whose wedding to Mr. Frampton Ellis will take place June 30.

Sawtell-Lyon.

Mrs. Annie S. Johnson announces the marriage of her sister, Miss Ellen R. Sawtell, to Mr. Roland C. Lyon. The ceremony was performed at her home by the Rev. Mr. Hill, pastor of the West End Presbyterian Church, Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock.

For Miss Webber.

Miss May Baldwin gave a box party at the Forsyth Wednesday for Miss Celeste Webber, of Spartanburg. Other guests were Misses Winnie Ison, Mildred Parks, Sallie McKinnon, Mary Griffith, Ethel Hudson and Mary Hall.

Shower Day for Hospital.

Saturday is the annual shower day for Wesley Memorial Hospital. Persons interested in the comfort of sick people have been requested to give generously toward the children's and charity wards.

At the Driving Club.

Reservations are being made for the informal dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club Saturday evening, and a number of parties are being formed.

SHERLOCK ROLE GETS OFFICER $50

Wise Policeman Plays Part of Drunken Farmer to Capture Fugitive.

The false-whiskered sleuth of fiction has nothing on Policeman G. M. Gorman, the hero Thursday of a real Sherlock Holmes adventure.

Gorman read a notice on the police records that a reward of $50 had been offered for the capture of Paul Mitchell, a negro, who escaped from the convict camps at Rome. He determined to bag the fugitive and the fifty. Knowing it would never do to make the hunt in his police uniform, he didn't want to risk even his regular citizen togs.

There was one reasonable thing to do, and he did it—he disguised himself. And it was a disguise that just fit in with the section he visited—Decatur Street. He "made up" as a drunken farmer, and did it so cleverly that even his best friends didn't know him. Everything about the disguise was real except the "drunk." This was faked, of course. The officer staggered through the crowds of negroes in Decatur Street, watching and listening. In front of a negro saloon he discovered his man. The negro soon was in a police station cell and Gorman was in $50.

Mary Tribble To Be Buried in Westview

Mary Tribble, the 7-year-old schoolgirl who died Wednesday afternoon from the effects of poisoning, will be buried in Westview following funeral services to be held at the East Side Baptist Tabernacle Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

The little girl was taken ill several weeks ago. It was found that she had eaten a quantity of school crayon.

She was the daughter of M. C. Tribble, 7 Porter Street, East Atlanta.

Merz's Relief Driver Killed on Speedway

INDIANAPOLIS, June 26.—Harry Martin, relief driver for Charley Mertz in the 1913 500-mile race, was killed and Frank Agan, mechanician, was badly injured when a Stutz racing car they were testing was ditched on the speedway track.

The car skidded and overturned on the back stretch when going at a speed estimated at 78 miles an hour.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

IT was so windy yesterday that Pa & me dident go fishing. We was going to a littel laik ware thare is a lot of pickerel, but the guide sed it wouddent be any use to go, so Pa sed in the morning, Well, Bobbie, let us talk a stroll about the village & watch the men at thare work. Thare is a grate deel of pleshur in watching sumbody else work, Pa sed, espeshully these simpel craftsmen up here in the woods. I dare say I may be abel to give them a few pointers, Pa sed. The human brain is a wunderful thing, Bobbie. Onst it is highly developed, like mine, it can direct operashuns of all sorts, though its owner nevver had any acktual expeerience in the deetails of the operashuns. Now, for instance, thare is yung Frank Keener planting potatoes. Let us stroll oaver thare & see if he is doing it rite.

Good morning, Mister Keener, sed Pa wen we got thare. I see you are planting potatoes. Thare is nothing like a good crop of potatoes for the Winter's store, Pa sed.

Kidding Pa.

But I aint planting potatoes, sed Mister Keener. I planted these potatoes a month ago. I dident have anything else to do this morning, so I thought I wud stroll around among the potatoes & have a chat with the potato bugs. Thay are friendly littel things, potato bugs, he sed. Speek to one of them & watch it wag its tail.

I cud see that Frank was kidding Pa, but Pa's brain wasent highly developed that way & he cuddent see it. All he sed was Well, I hoap you have success with yure garden, & we walked along.

Thare was a carpenter bilding a house acrost the street. His naim was Mister Bill Thomson. Good-morning, Mister Thomson, sed Pa. I see you are bilding a pritty littel bungalow. I wud like to have one sumthing like it, Pa sed, & maybe if you ain't too busy next month I will go ahed with it. I always thought this wud be a pritty town in wich to have a bungalow in.

This ain't a bungalow I am bilding sed Mister Thomson. This is a ice house. It looks as much like a bungalow as you look like the King of England. Please move along now & doant bother me. It rained all day yesterday so I cuddent work & now that it is nice & sunny I doant want every yap that cums along to stop & ask foolish questuns of me.

Carpenters are generally rude, cross grained persons, sed Pa to me after we had moved along. I cud see that Pa was pritty mad but I dident feel a bit sorry for him, he had no bizness bothering a man who was working.

Jest then we passed a livery stabel —thare was the owner with two littel jackasses.

A Fine Team.

Good morning, Mister Maus, sed Pa. Can I help you to hitch up yure fine team of mules? I used to hitch up mules wen I was in the army, sed Pa. I am vary fond of mules & thay like me, too.

But these isent mules, thay is chackasses, sed Mister Maus, und I wasent going to hitch them up, also. I chust wanted them to make a littel exercise alreddy. Und if I was going to hitch them up anyway, sed Mister Maus, why doant you mind yure own bizness beesides, yet?

Every man that Pa talked to treeted him jest the saim, but it dident faze Pa. Wen we went hoam to dinner he toald Ma that he had been around having a friendly chat with the villagers. Those simpel folks wud lay down thare lives for me, Pa sed.

You doant say, sed Ma. Then thay must be vary simpel folks.

FAVORITE RECIPES OF FAVORITE STAGE STARS

Cherry Roly Poly, by Katherine De Rohne

THE market this season is displaying some of the most delicious products of the tree whose family was forever made famous by the truthfulness of one G. Washington. "Cherry Roly Poly" is supplied by a pastmistress of the art, Katherine De Rohne, one of the stars of the Rustic Theatre at the Palisades Amusement Park.

Take one pound of suet and chop fine, being careful to pick out all the skin and strings.

Add:—

Three cups of flour,
one teaspoonful of salt,
one teaspoonful of baking powder,
and just enough water to make it adhere and roll out smoothly.

Roll out to the thickness of about a quarter of an inch. Spread a quart of pitted cherries, sugared, on the thin layer of dough and roll them up. Place in a cheesecloth bag and boil for three hours.

Sauce: Butter the size of an egg, melted but not browned. To this add a teaspoonful of flour and a cup and one-half of water, three-quarters of a cup of sugar and a gill of New England rum. Stir together and boil to the consistency of thick cream.

WITHIN THE LAW

A Powerful Story of Adventure, Intrigue and Love

By MARVIN DANA from the Play by BAYARD VEILLER.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Take the chairs out of the office, Dan," he directed, "except mine and one other—that one!" He indicated a chair standing a little way from one end of his desk. "Now, have all the shades up." He chuckled as he added: "That Turner woman saved you the trouble with one."

As the doorman went out after having fulfilled these commands, the Inspector lighted a cigar which he had retained still in his mouth, and then seated himself in the chair that was set partly facing the windows opening on the corridor. He smiled with anticipatory triumph as he made sure that the whole length of the corridor with the barred doors of the cells was plainly visible to one sitting thus. With a final glance about to make certain that all was in readiness, he returned to his chair, and, when the door opened, he was, to all appearances, busily engaged in writing.

Garson's Face Showed Fear.

"Here's Garson, Chief," Cassidy announced.

"Hello, Joe!" Burke exclaimed, with a seeming of careless friendliness, as the detective went out, and Garson stood motionless just within the door.

"Sit down, a minute, won't you?" the Inspector continued, affably. He did not look up from his writing as he spoke.

Garson's usually strong face was showing weak with fear. His chin which was commonly very firm, moved a little from uneasy twitchings of his lips. His clear eyes were slightly clouded to a look of apprehension, as they roved the room furtively. He made no answer to the Inspector's greeting for a few moments, but remained standing without movement, poised alertly as if sensing some concealed peril. Finally, however, his anxiety found expression in words. His tone was pregnant with alarm, though he strove to make it merely complaining.

"Say, what am I arrested for?" he protested. "I ain't done anything."

Even now, Burke did not look up, and his pen continued to hurry over the paper.

"Who told you you were arrested?" he remarked, cheerfully, in his blandest voice.

Garson uttered an ejaculation of disgust.

"I don't have to be told," he retorted, huffily. "I'm no college president, but when a cop grabs me and brings me down here, I've got sense enough to know I'm pinched."

The Inspector did not interrupt his work, but answered with the utmost good nature.

"Is that what they did to you, Joe? I'll have to speak to Cassidy about that. Now, just you sit down, Joe, won't you? I want to have a little talk with you. I'll be through here in a second." He went on with the writing.

Garson moved forward slightly, to the single chair near the end of the desk, and there seated himself mechanically. His face thus was turned toward the windows that gave on the corridor, and his eyes grew yet more clouded as they rested on the grim doors of the cells. He writhed in his chair, and his gaze jumped from the cells to the impassive figure of the man at the desk. Now, the forger's nervousness increased momently—it swept beyond his control. Of a sudden, he sprang up, and stepped close to the Inspector.

The Door Clanged To.

"Say," he said in a husky voice, "I'd like—I'd like to have a lawyer."

"What's the matter with you, Joe?" the Inspector returned, always with that imperturbable air, and without raising his head from the work that so engrossed his attention. "You know, you're not arrested, Joe. Maybe, you never will be. Now, for the love of Mike, keep still, and let me finish this letter."

Slowly, very hesitatingly, Garson went back to the chair, and sank down on it in a limp attitude of dejection wholly unlike his customary posture of strength. Again, his fear fascinated eyes went to the row of cells that stood silently menacing on the other side of the corridor beyond the windows. His face was tinged with gray. A physical sickness was creeping stealthily on him, as his thoughts held insistently to the catastrophe that threatened. His intelligence was too keen to permit a belief that Burke's manner of almost fulsome kindliness hid nothing ominous—ominous with a hint of death for him in return for the death he had wrought.

Then terror crystallized. His eyes were caught by a figure, the figure of Cassidy, advancing there in the corridor. And with the detective went a man whose gait was slinking, craven. A cell door swung open, the prisoner stepped within, the door clanged to, the bolts shot into their sockets noisily.

Garson sat huddled, stricken for he had recognized the victim thrust into the cell before his eyes. . . . It was Dacey, one of his own cronies in crime—Dacey, who, the night before had seen him kill Eddie Griggs. There was something concretely sinister to Garson in this fact of Dacey's presence there in the cell.

Of a sudden, the forger cried out raucously:

"Say, Inspector, if you've got anything on me, I—I would——" The cry dropped into unintelligible mumblings.

Burke retained his manner of serene indifference to the other's agitation. Still his pen hurried over the paper; and he did not trouble to look up as he expostulated, half-banteringly.

"Now, now! what's the matter with you, Joe? I told you that I wanted to ask you a few questions. That's all."

Garson leaped to his feet again resolutely, then faltered, and ultimately fell back into the chair with a groan, as the Inspector went on speaking.

"Now, Joe, sit down, and keep still, I tell you, and let me get through with this job. It won't take me more than a minute more."

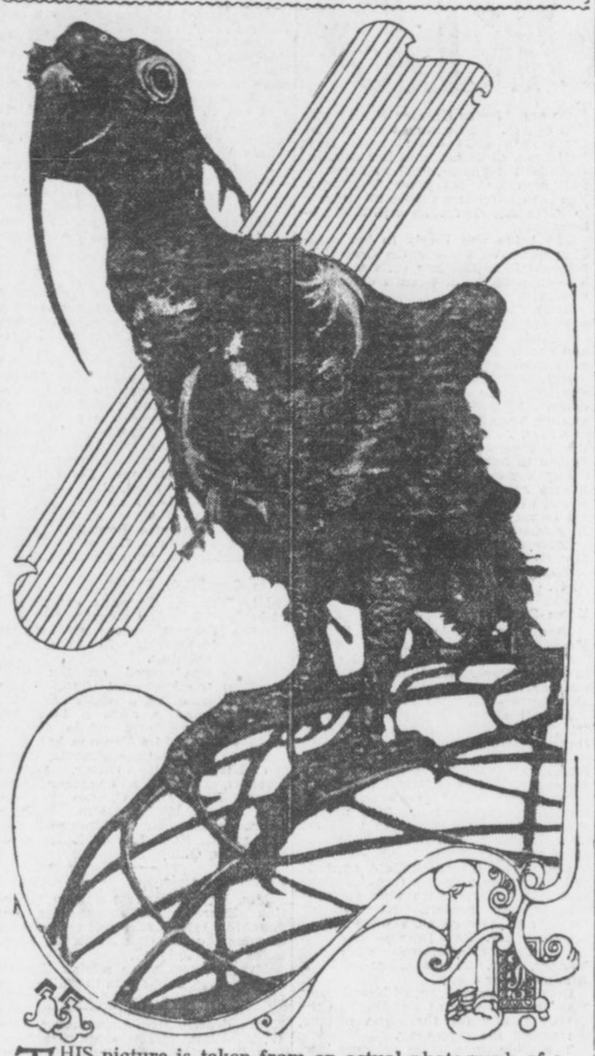
But after a moment Garson's emotion forced him to another appeal.

"Say, Inspector——" he began.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SOME CHICKEN!

A Parrot 116 Years Old and Not Yet in Cold Storage



THIS picture is taken from an actual photograph of a parrot that is one hundred and sixteen years old, and still has a lively croak. It belongs to an English family, but spent but fifty years of its feathered life in that country. Its other sixty-six years saw it in Brazil, its original home. Although it is almost "sans everything" Polly can sing in quite a lively manner, and is always cheerful. Perhaps therein lies its secret of longevity. Who knows?

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

YOUR FRIEND IS RIGHT.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 and I have been keeping company with a young man four years. He is 23. I love him more than tongue can tell. I have loved him since the day I first met him. He doesn't show any love for me. Could you tell me if there is any love on his part? I show my love for him, and my friend tells me that is the reason he doesn't show his.

IRENE WATSON.

You are foolish to let him see you care so much for him. Naturally, a man makes no effort to win a girl who lets him see that effort is unnecessary. You are only 17. Give up this man, and the next time you fall in love make an effort to conceal it.

WITHIN HER RIGHTS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with a young lady, whom I have never had the pleasure of seeing in her own home, as her mother is opposed to me. I have known her now for more than 18 months. She is 18. I am 21. She is willing to marry me, only she is afraid of her folks, inasmuch as her mother threatens to have me arrested if I marry her daughter. I have tried every way to win her mother over, but so far I have failed. I can't meet her, as her mother watches her like a cat watches a mouse.

D. D. W.

The mother is wholly within her rights, and as the first and last desire of every mother's heart is for her daughter's happiness, consideration is due her wishes.

If all were favorable, you should not marry, being only 21. Make the most of the assurance that you love each other, and wait a year or two.

Had Every Time.

Smith was a constant worry to his friends. They never knew when to and when not to treat him seriously, since, as he frankly admitted, he delighted in pulling other people's legs.

One day he and Brown met casually in the street, and stopped, as friends often do, to gossip for a while.

"Big blaze—that fire at the factory in Johnson Street last night, wasn't it?" asked Brown.

"Yes," replied Smith, "I went down to have a look at it. And, my word, there were several mighty narrow escapes there, too!"

"Escapes!" cried Brown, excitedly. "But the morning paper said that there was no one in the building."

Smith nodded.

"Oh," he said, "the firemen brought the escapes down with them. So-long, old chap!"

Not an Auto, Either.

Who carried a plat of mock turtle,
When, strange to relate
She tripped, and the plate

A BACHELOR'S DIARY .:. He Can't Forget That Kiss

By MAX.

JUNE 1.—It is a week since Sally Spencer kissed me and though I have repeatedly since made occasion to be with her alone she has never repeated the offense.

I have sent for her to come over on the shallowest of excuses. If Manette ate too much or too little, I have feigned an alarm that could only be quieted by having Mrs. Spencer take a look at her, and on such occasions I invariably sent Richards and Sarah Ray out of the room. But it has been to no avail.

I make the confession in no great humility. I am a man and, try as hard as I may, I can not rise above being a man. I make no pretense of being an angel. That claim I leave to the women who tempt us.

I find myself looking at another man's wife with eyes that are not the eyes of the soul. There was a time when it would have been my first impulse to be Sally Spencer's disinterested friend; I will always be that in the future, but I will have to fight myself first.

Only Contempt.

June 2—I have said little about the widow, Diary, but I hope you do not believe it is because I condone her sins, or feel any emotion for her but unmitigated contempt.

She is the vilest of creatures for no other description fits a woman who makes it her sport to undermine some other woman's happiness.

June 3—Life has been compared with a feast, and if there is anything in the comparison, just at present the whole world is partaking of a course that is too highly seasoned to be healthful. That we will all suffer moral indigestion for refusing to pass it by I do not doubt.

We are swinging to a most unhealthy extreme, making public and discussing and devouring topics that are the climax of vulgarity, and we call ourselves progressive because we do it.

The old-fashioned standard of truth to one's self and one's vows seems to be passing away. When one transgresses these days, it is not called a transgression, but disguised under the phrase "Daring to live one's own life."

And when it is said that a woman especially "dares to live her own life," it means that she has dared to violate every civil and moral law. Mrs. Brown has always approved of any woman who dared to live her own life, and has told me many times that it was what she had always done, and always intended to do.

I can see now that it was the modern way of expressing a determination to be governed by no standard or convention. What will become of the world when all women "dare to live their own lives," no man may conjecture.

She buried her first husband, which can not be charged against her. In these days when men are put at the lowest valuation a measure of applause is given any woman who outlives her husband. Should she outlive a dozen, it is a notable deed, but if a man buries as many as two wives Rumor begins to whisper that he killed them by abuse and neglect.

The widow's second husband divorced her because of her infatuation with another woman's husband. She broke up that man's home, and cast him aside when, for pecuniary reasons, her love grew cold.

A Dark Past.

She had, as she expresses it, "dared to live her own life," which means that she refused to let the impulses of her soul be fettered by the shackles of convention. I could express it in plainer language, but plain language, according to Mrs. Brown and her kind, is a mark of a vulgar mind.

I have heard that her second husband's heart was broken because of the scandal, and that it killed him. Of course I do not credit the statement. The men do not die of broken hearts. They love a woman with every bit of their anatomy, but their hearts. This is true, for I have heard soap-box oratorical representatives of the Adorable Sex say so.

June 4—Jack has been gone three days. He writes dutifully and says he will be home soon. He is the sort of a man who will go away with another woman and square it with his conscience by writing faithfully to his wife while away. I have no doubt he took her photograph with him. I always mistrust the man who takes his wife's photograph wherever he goes. So often he uses this mark of devotion as a salve to his conscience for leaving her at home.

June 5—"I think," said Sally, when I called this morning to learn the latest news of her husband, "that my attitude in this matter is a great disapointment to Mrs. Brown. She thought I would rush after Jack, create a scene and a scandal, and that the publicity would wreck my home and give Jack a divorce. I know Jack better than she does. The fact that I give him every opportunity to steal robs the theft of its zest. He is disgusted with her and with himself, and would return any moment sent for him."

I remembered the kiss. "Don't send for him, Sally. He isn't worth your forgiveness."

Must Take Chances.

"He is as good as any man," she retorted. "He is as good as you are, Max, and, what's more, you know it."

"I hadn't thought of that. Perhaps after all he is better. He had sinned in his acts, and I have sinned in my thoughts. Still, if every man who sins in his thoughts is to be condemned, who among us will escape?

"The woman who marries," she resumed, "must accept all chances of what I am undergoing. There are always other women lurking around to tempt husbands to stray, and they seem endowed with every fascination that would appeal to a man as weak as Jack."

The admission of his weakness seemed disloyal to her, even though he has repeatedly proved it, for she continued rapidly: "Not that he is any weaker than you, Max. I don't want you to think for a moment that you are any better than he. I don't want to give the impression that I believe there is a man living who is better than my husband."

I had the feeling that I had been doubted and attacked when my actions, at least, were innocent, and I resented it.

She had risen as if to suggest it was time I was going. "Sit down," I said, in some temper. "You are hitting all men over my shoulders, taking into no account that it is your own sex that is primarily to blame. Now don't interrupt me"— she had begun to say something about Mrs. Brown—"It is not the bad woman alone who is to blame. It is the good woman, as well; the woman who tempts in her innocence, or ignorance. There's yourself, for instance!"

Things Worth Remembering

The possibility of using the Cinema for the identification of criminals is being seriously considered by the New York Police Commissioner. It is suggested that five feet of film, costing 70 cents, will suffice to record the peculiarities of dress and carriage of any person whom it is desired to keep under observation. With photographs, finger prints, motion pictures, and Bertillon measurements a man who has been convicted will have his hands full in making his "get-away" afterward.

Stretching across Western Australia is a rabbit-proof fence, said to be the longest in the world. It extends for a distance of 1,200 miles, without a break, except for gates. It begins in the temperate regions and ends in the tropics, and sometimes for nearly 100 miles it never passes a human habitation.

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Dainty Lois Meredith Talks on Beneficial Athletics

Lois Meredith's Girlish Beauty.

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

DO you know any little girls? Of course there are quite a few children in the world, and I know numberless young—very young—ladies, but I have just met a very sweet little girl and I am going to introduce her to you. Her name is Lois Meredith; she is eighteen, and is making a great success of the part of Helen Morris in "Within the Law." Off the stage she does not play the part of a sophisticated young lady—or a "Broadway favorite"—but fairly dawns on you in the absolute simplicity of a white middy-blouse, black velvet tam-o'-shanter and the unstudied coiffure effect of a "head sunning over with curls."

Of course the very first question I asked Miss Lois was one anent clothes and her ideal costume.

"I like my middy blouses pretty well," said she, "so well, in fact, that I would sacrifice all the sweeties in the world rather than eat goodies and get too fat to wear sailor-suits. But my ideal costume is Greek drapery. I do love the classical lines of drapery that leave you free and untrammelled, so you can breath, and move naturally, and look natural, too. I'd like to wear layer after layer of chiffon and sandals and give my whole body a chance to breathe. Think how wrapped up and shut away from the health-giving fresh air our poor bodies are. Well, I wear as few layers as I can—dispensing with every unnecessary thing I can—corsets for instance—and I wear white, so I'll feel cool and clean, and I try to give my body a chance to sway and to move freely, so I will feel all through me how good it is to be alive.

No Jewels.

"I don't believe in jewels, either," went on this sensible girl. "If you are pretty, jewels sort of attract attention to themselves and away from you. And if you are not pretty, anyway, showy jewelry makes you conspicuous, and then people notice how unattractive you are."

Dainty little Lois Meredith can afford to believe in "beauty unadorned," but every eighteen-year-old girl and the older sister of twenty ought to ponder the bit of philosophy: "Plain women are always adding some little fancy touches that make you notice how very plain they are!"

"Will you tell me how you spend your day?" I asked. "You must carry out your theory of simplicity in living as well as clothes."

"My theory of living," answered Miss Meredith, "is WORK. For everything worth getting in this world you must work, work, work. To keep well and strong, to look attractive, and to get ahead in the profession you have chosen, you must keep working and striving. In my chosen calling I find that I have to keep developing my brain, so I can do better and better things all the time. I am studying French and music in the interests of my brain.

Plenty of Sleep.

"Then I take care of my body, too. Of course I have to have plenty of sleep, because I am still growing. I have never in all my life been to a restaurant after the theater; most girls would think that an awful sacrifice, wouldn't they? Well then, I get up at about 9, and have a glass of hot water, which is not a bit hard to take when you keep at it, and then for about half an hour I exercise; stretching motions, aesthetic dancing movements and bending over, with my knees held taut and body poised. Sometimes I touch my finger tips to the floor, sometimes I wrap my arms around my legs and see how far down I can bring my head.

"I have one little pet exercise: A very great artist said that I had the most beautiful hand in America! Now I'd like to believe him—even if that would be conceited—but anyway I take care of my hands and try to keep them soft and tapering. I go through an exercise as if I were wringing them and stroking them. I work at my hands as if I were putting on and taking off a new pair of gloves very carefully. I truly can recommend this exercise, for just think what it made Mr. Gibson say to me.

"Would you like to hear about my favorite part?" went on the girl ingenuously. Perhaps it would make a good conclusion to your interview. My favorite part was Modesty in 'Everywoman.' I thought it a compliment to be asked to play that part. I loved doing it—and I felt that the only way to play Modesty was to be modest. That applies to girls everywhere doesn't it?

ty is always the sweetest part—and it has to be true, or people will know."

And I think that is a very good conclusion for the interview—Modesty and the sweet simplicity and charm that follow in her wake are the best parts for all girls—only they must not be parts. Modesty must be true if you want to be a truly charming girl.

Up-to-Date Jokes

Mr. Winston Churchill has often effectively silenced offensive interrupters. It is related that on one occasion, when addressing a large meeting in the North, he was frequently disturbed by a man who persisted in shouting "Liar! Liar!", every few minutes.

Winston bore with him for some time, but eventually broke off his speech to remark, in gentlest accents:

"If the gentleman at the back of the hall who is so anxious that the audience should know his name will write it down on a slip of paper and hand it to the chairman instead of bawling it at the top of his voice, he will save himself a lot of trouble."

No more was heard of the interrupter for the rest of the meeting.

"That house I have rented from you," said the dissatisfied tenant, "is horribly draughty. When I was sitting in the middle of the room my hair blew all over my face. Can't you do something?"

"Don't you think, sir," replied the house agent, suavely, "it would be easier and cheaper for you to get your hair cut?"

A Paris cabman found a splendid turbot that had been left in his cab. He went at once to the Commissary of Police.

"Very good, my friend," said the latter. "Come back again in a year and a day, and if, in the meantime, the turbot has not been claimed, it shall be yours."

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite, and was so nervous I could not sleep; then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work, and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. Hayward Sowers, Cary, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

SYNOPSIS

Gordon Kelly, a mountain boy of Georgia, goes to Atlanta. He becomes the sensation of the baseball world through his marvelous playing, although he said that he had never played a game before arriving in Atlanta. He is bought by the Boston American League Club for $50,000. Kelly incurs the enmity of Forrest Cain, a wealthy ne'er-do-well, at the same time winning the friendship and love of Mildred Deery, daughter of an Atlanta banker. Kelly is hurt in a game and Mildred runs to his assistance. He recovers, leaves the hospital and mysteriously disappears. He is not heard from for months. Mildred admits to herself that she loves Kelly. Her father dislikes the publicity given Mildred's assistance to Kelly on the baseball field. He gets Mildred to agree to go to the mountains. Cain follows Mildred and calls upon her. While Mildred is fishing she suddenly comes upon Gordon Kelly. In the meeting each learns of the other's love. Kelly is sought everywhere by the press. Cain proposes to Mildred and is refused. Kelly meets Cain and the latter tries to shoot Kelly. Elmer saves Kelly's life. Mildred visits Gordon Kelly's home in the mountains and is astonished at the evidences of luxury and refinement she finds there. Gordon is caught in a storm and is made prisoner by four strange men. He is forced to write a letter to Mildred. In it he tries to convey a hint of his whereabouts.

Now go on with the story.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Did you git a letter fum Mr. Bud Ah mean Mr. Gordon, Mis' Mildred?" asked the colored boy, after the car was fairly in motion.

"Yes, Steve, I'll read it to you; and I'm going back with you in order to tell Mr. Gray, the superintendent, and Mrs. Ward, the housekeeper, about it."

Arriving at the huge granite edifice, Mildred learned that Gray had rounded up every available man on the place and had started off with them on a systematic hunt for the missing man. Asking Steve to tell Mrs. Ward that she was there, Mildred was soon joined by the housekeeper, to whom she imparted the news and then sat down to breakfast with her while Steve ran off to bring back the searching party.

When Gray returned Mildred read the letter she had received to him. If she had allowed him to read it, the level headed superintendent might have discovered the simple cryptogram and headed a party that would have rescued Gordon in jig time, but Mildred clung to the letter as though it was the most precious thing in the world and would not allow it to go out of her hand.

It was decided that, as Gordon had explicitly told them not to search for him at present, it might be fatal to the captive if they disobeyed orders, so matters were allowed to rest as they were, pending the receipt of further news from Gordon.

Gray Is Cautious.

"Somebody has kidnaped him," declared Gray, "and they expect to make a fortune. If that is the case we will be hearing from them mighty quick, and when we do we will make our plans accordingly."

Gray was a big, hearty man, full of action but cautious when caution was required. "In the meantime, Miss Deery," he said, "I would advise you not to worry. But just as soon as you hear from Mr. Gordan again, please let me know at once. I will have the telephone line fixed right away."

Mildred was driven back to the bungalow by Steve. She was happy to think he was safe and well, yet troubled over the vagueness and uncertainty of things. In the course of a few days another letter came and she promptly informed Gray of its contents. It was apparently written in a cheerful spirit, but again admonished them not to search for him.

"That was put in there by orders of the men who are holding him," was Gray's comment when Mildred read the letter to him. "I wish he could slip in some hint of where he is hidden and I'd have him back here in half a day. They must be guarding him closely, Miss Deery, for I know him well enough to know that he would break away if they gave him the slightest opening."

The days went by. Mildred wrote a letter to Gordon and placed it under a stone at the doorsill, but when his next letter was delivered in the dead of night, the messenger did not take away Mildred's letter. In time Farnsworth came to the bungalow, as has already been told, but Mildred did not inform him of all she knew in connection with Gordon's disappearance. She was afraid that the publicity might work some harm to the man she loved. The newspaper men went away and more letters were received. They were all written in the same spirit. Weeks passed. Mildred's mother returned to Atlanta, urging Mildred to return with her, but the girl refused to leave the mountain region. She had not yet informed her mother of her great secret, but her mother had half guessed it.

One day when Mildred felt that she could stand the suspense no longer and was on the point of yielding to Gray's entreaties to start a business-like hunt for the captive, she discovered the simple cryptogram.

"What a little fool I've been," she cried. She had, of course, noticed that Gordon had begun every line of his letters with a capital letter, but the reason for it had entirely escaped her. Now, of course, it was as plan as day and she almost cried at her own stupidity in not solving the riddle long ago. She had saved every letter and was reading them over for the several hundredth time when she made the discovery. She procured pencil and paper and wrote down the instructions.

"Five miles northwest my home," the first letter said, reading down the lines of capital letters. "Three miles due west road meets creek," read the second letter. "Sharp rise hundred yards then down," said third. "Cabin midst copse few trees; four captors," said the fourth. There were two more letters contining further hints.

Mildred called Elmer and told him to bring the runabout, and together they went to the mansion to find Gray. They were told that he had gone to Atlanta on business, but would return next day. On the way home Elmer said:

"Let's not wait for Mr. Gray. Let's find Gordon and rescue him ourselves."

"You foolish boy," replied Mildred. "They would capture us, too, and then what a fine pickle we would be in. We must wait for Mr. Gray and he will take plenty of men with him."

Elmer Would Fight.

"Oh shucks, Mildred," exclaimed the lad. "Gee whiz, I could take your rifle and you could take your revolver and we could sneak up and catch them off their guard and rescue the prisoner. Come on, Mildred; let's do it."

"I'm afraid your spirit is better than your judgment, Elmer," said Mildred with a sigh. "Goodness knows I hate to wait until Mr. Gray gets back, but I don't see what else we can do."

Elmer kept teasing all the way home and when they arrived he brought forth his father's maps of the region and they spent a long time pouring over them trying to figure out the exact spot where they thought Gordon was held a captive.

"Be game, Mildred," said Elmer, returning to the attack, "Only four men are there. We can get the drop on them easy."

"Stop talking nonsense, child, or you'll make me cross with you," cried Mildred. "If your father was here I would willingly let him get a force at the mansion and start out without waiting for Mr. Gray." Shephard was in Chattanooga and would not return for two days. "Run away now, Elmer and leave me alone. I want to think this all out by myself," added Mildred.

It was only Gordon's cheerful letters that had prevented Mildred from going distracted. The situation had been a most peculiar one. In every one of the letters Gordon had told her not to begin a search for him and she had been afraid to ignore his request. Gray had insisted more than once on taking the matter in his own hands, but Mildred had flatly move.

"He is writing these letters to me, Mr. Gray, and they clearly say not to seek him," she told him the last time they had talked the matter over.

"That is because he was forced to write it, otherwise they wouldn't have delivered the letters," replied the superintendent. "If he doesn't turn up soon, Miss Deery, I'm going to take matters on my own hands."

"To Be His Wife."

"Please don't, Mr. Gray," she pleaded. "I am sure something dreadful would happen if you failed, and we would never see him again."

"That's all right, Miss Deery. But in a way I am responsible for his safety. With you it is different."

"Yes, it is different, Mr. Gray," she replied quietly. "I have promised to be his wife."

Gray's eyes opened wide at this piece of information, and Mildred added: "Please say nothing about it. I only tell you so that you can understand how vitally interested I am in his welfare."

Sitting alone on the porch the day she discovered the hidden meaning in Gordon's letters, Mildred went over the whole situation in her mind. Gray was absent. Shephard was absent. Gordon had long expected help. She knew not where to turn. At last she arose from her chair and going to the telephone, called up the mansion and said:

CHAPTER XLI.

WITH the exception of the news of Gordon Kelly that Farnsworth, the newspaper man, had secured from Mildred Deery at her bungalow, and which was published in his paper, the great baseball public had heard nothing of the $50,000 player since the day late in May when he left the hospital in Atlanta and disappeared. The public knew nothing of his palatial home in the Georgia mountains, it knew nothing of his vast wealth, of his peculiar life, of the tragedy of his father's death. It knew nothing of the grand romance of Gordon and Mildred, or of Gordon's conflicts with Forrest Cain, or of his capture and detention by the mountaineers. All the public knew was that Gordon Kelly, the most widely advertised ball player in the world, the man the Red Sox had pai the stupendous sum of $50,000 for, the player every "fan" on the American League circuit was most anxious to see perform, had mysteriously disappeared.

The name of Gordon Kelly had become a byword wherever baseball was played or discussed. Every time a player on any team in any city or town made a home run he was a "Gordon Kelly." Ball players in the big leagues, college ball players, schoolboy players, and even the urchins playing ball in the back lots were always talking about the great player. This continued all summer long all over the country, so that despite the fact that the public did not know what had become of Gordon Kelly, his name was constantly on everybody's lips and he was constantly referred to in the newspapers.

Gave Up Hope.

The Red Sox management practically gave up hope of ever seeing him again before the season was half over but every pay day a check was drawn to his order and mailed to his last known address in Atlanta. The first half of the season was fraught with injuries to the Red Sox players, and if ever they needed Gordon Kelly it was in the first few months of the championship season. But by the first of July the world's champions got going in their proper stride and won game after game in the same impressive manner that had enabled them to mow down their opponents in the season of 1912 and eventually capture the American League pennant and later the highest honors in baseball—the world's championship.

The Red Sox pitchers—the backbone of a team—began "going good" about the first of July. The heavy hitters took confidence and found their "batting eyes" again. The loyal supporters of the team took heart and flocked to Fenway Park to encourage their favorites and "squeeze" hard for victory.

That rabid Boston organization known far and wide as the "Royal Rooters," forgot the fancied grievances it had against the club's management that dated back to the last world's series, and marched to the baseball grounds en masse and with a brass band playing "Tessie." The old-time Boston spirit—the spirit that made Boston the greatest baseball city in the world—returned as the Red Sox forged triumphantly toward the top of the baseball column.

Red Sox Climb.

By the first of August the Red Sox were in third place, after floundering around among the tail-enders for half the saeson. By the first of September the world's champions were in second place, only the Athletics, of Philadelphia, standing between them and the leadership in the American League pennant fight. The men were playing with a dash and vigor that surpassed their 1912 form. Tris Speaker, the great center fielder, led the league in batting and every day he was getting his two or more safe hits, most of them solid drives for two or three bases or home runs. Duffy Lewis, the left fielder, was close up in his stockwork, and his fielding and throwing were better than ever. Harry Hooper in right field was having his best year, batting better than he had ever done before and running the bases like a deer. Heine Wagner, captain of the team and the man most depended upon for defensive work, played with a steadiness that was the marvel of the baseball world. Larry Gardner, the third baseman, fully recovered from the injury to his ankle, began playing again early in June, and from that time on he surpassed himself at bat and in the field. Steve Yerkes was as steady as a rock at second base, and his batting was timely. He seldom failed to deliver when called upon. Clyde Engle, who had to play first base nearly all the year on account of the injury to Manager Stahl's foot, played the bag in a manner that made the other first basemen jealous. The catchers—Carrigan and Cady—were like stonewalls behind the bat, and the pitchers—Wood, Bedient, Collins and O'Brien, with Hall and Leonard to help out—performed wonders. In short, the whole team played like wildfire and stood the other teams on end as fast as they appeared. From the first of July to the close of the season the Red Sox did not lose but one series to their opponents.

White Sox Terrors.

In the meantime, the Chicago White Sox, managed by the clever Jimmy Callahan (with the owner of the club, Comiskey—the "Old Roman"—in the background to help with his sage advice) were going great guns, too. Big Ed Walsh, the celebrated "spitball" pitcher, seemed unbeatable. Scott, Benz and the other twirlers supported the mainstay nobly. Schalk, the "kid" catcher, proved to be one of the best backstops in either league and held the pitching of the entire staff with elegance and grace, while his right arm was a terror to base stealers. Strengthened by the acquisition of Hal Chase, the great first baseman, the entire infield braced, Rath, Weaver and Lord playing as though their lives depended on it. The outfield developed into one of the strongest in the American League. "Ping" Bodie played fine ball and broke fences with his bat instead of talking about it. Collins, the Newton boy, and Mattick, the other outfielders, covered their territory like ten-second men and batted like fiends. This great Chicago aggregation, while its success was not quite as sensational as the Red Sox, plowed steadily ahead, and when the Boston team reached second place the Windy City rivals were close behind them, only a few points separating the two teams in the percentage column.

In the meantime, the Athletics, managed by the shrewd baseball general, Connie Mack, which had been enjoying a sort of baseball buggy ride the first half of the season and had already begun to count their world's series money in their minds, struck a mighty rough road about the first of August and began to "come back," as they say in horse racing circles. They lost game after game. Their pitchers "went bad" and their sluggers failed to slug. Someone stole Frank Baker's bats and he couldn't hit the ball. Two or three unfortunate accidents put some of their most dependable players on the hospital list temporarily. By the first of September the Philadelphia "fans" were in a panic. Manager Connie Mack lost his Mephistophelean smile, and the subdued swearing he indulged in withered the grass in the immediate vicinity of the players' bench whereon he sat during the gloomy, losing games.

Situation Tense.

The pitchers on whom Mack depended, caused him many sleepless nights. Eddie Plank's cross-fire became-crosseyed. Jack Coombs' curves were batted from Dan to Beersheba, and in spite of "Chief" Bender's red-faced twists and black-haired curves, the Indian could not win a game. On September 1 the Athletics were still in the lead, but only two games separated them from the Rex Sox, and the Chicagos were so close up that the Philadelphia players had heart disease every time they looked at a sporting extra. This was the situation when Labor Day rolled around.

But just when the White Elphants, as the Athletics are sometimes called, appeared to be sure of losing the lead they had had held since the opening of the season in April, they took a wonderful brace. They played the Washington team on Labor Day and won both the morning and the afternoon game, knocking the great Walter Johnson from the box in the second session. However, the Red Sox and the White Sox also won both Labor Day games, so the Athletics did not gain a single point on their rivals.

Games Bitterly Fought.

On September 4 the Red Sox arrived in Philadelphia for a three-game series. Every game was bitterly fought, but the Rex Sox won two of them, thereby reducing the lead of the Athletics to one game. In the meantime the White Sox won three straight and the result was that on the evening of September 6 the three leading clubs were nearer together than ever. From that time on it was a desperate fight to the very finish. Interest in the pennant race was tremendous. Crowds packed the ball parks wherever the three teams performed.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the thirty-third installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read the 34th installment of ahe great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

COAST BETTORS FACE PUZZLE IN BIG FIGHT

CHICAGO, ILL., June 26.—They never seem to have any luck at all in picking winners of the lightweight championship bouts out on the Pacific Coast, and it will be interesting to note which of them in the San Francisco battle of July 4 they single out for favoritism. As a matter of fact they haven't picked the right man for favorite in many a long month out there and in consequence the short ends have won with startling regularity. Yet the coast fans, seeing as they do, must be set down as the poorest judges in the world—or is it all accountable for on the ground of native son pride and civic patriotism? A native son is a real favorite at all times out there if it can be figured that he has as good as a fighting chance.

INASMUCH as both Jose Rivers and Willie Ritchie may be tabbed up as real native sons, it looks as if both of them will be made favorites. That paradoxical statement may need a little explanation, and here it is. They will make Rivers the favorite down around the southern portion of the State, where he is so highly regarded. And in San Francisco, where Willie comes from, they will make him the choice. Hence we may see the spectacle of Frisco people doing their betting in Los Angeles, where they can get a better price, and the people from the southern part of the State doing their wagering at the scene of the battle. It should result in a funny mixup.

* * *

AS a sample of the strange way they have of picking out probable winners it may be recalled that when Ad Wolgast battled Lew Powell in a 20-round match in San Francisco they made Powell such a strong choice that the Wolgast adherents got as good as 2 1-2 to 1 for their coin—and won it all the way. Likewise when Wolgast won the title from Bat Nelson—the coast fans simply could not see Ad at all. So it has been in many another of the big battles there. Always the wrong man picked as choice and always the short end winning.

WHATEVER disadvantage Rivers may be found to have in this encounter, one of the points against him will be the fact that he will be an alien and scrapping on the other fellow's own canvas. This may not look to be much of a disadvantage when it is considered that Rivers is as much of a native son as is Ritchie. But Rivers isn't from San Francisco, while Ritchie is, and the cheers of the crowd, or the greater portion of these, will be for Ritchie, which may be decidedly disconcerting for Rivers, who is used to monopolizing such cheers himself, having fought a vast majority of his contests in his own ring at Los Angeles.

THE question of Rivers' gameness doubtless will be given the answer in this battle. It will be a crucial test for the little Mexican because he hasn't met quite such a rapid fire jabber as the Ritchie boy is liable to be in this match. And jabs are points that will be screamingly cheered by the friends of Ritchie, and Joe will find that he will have to do some mighty whaling to even up any sort of a count. It looks to me as if Rivers is a game kid and will give Willie a tremendous battle.

Long Hits Stride; Robertson Leads All

Tommy Long ha sagain started to climb in the Southern League batting list. The Cracker outfielder secured three hits out of four times at bat yesterday, and is now hitting at a .340 clip.

Dave Robertson is still at the head of the bunch with a mark of .355. He succeeded in getting two hits out of four times up against Nashville yesterday.

Kid Elberfeld, who has been idle for the past week, still holds second place with an average of .347.

'Thumbless Curve' Invented by Rucker

CINCINNATI, OHIO, June 26.—A two-hit shutout administered by Nap Rucker to the Reds recently may develop a new pitching style and a new ball called "the thumbless delivery."

After the game it was found that Rucker pitched the nine wonderful innings with a crippled left hand. The thumb was badly hurt stopping a batted ball some days ago and Nap could not shut it on the leather.

Nevertheless, the Georgia wonder went in there and proceeded to deliver a slow ball, gripped hard with the fingers and only steadied with the base of the useless thumb.

This ball came up to the batters like Matty's fadeaway, but higher, and man after man took two called strikes on the freak delivery.

Then Nap would drive one with what little speed he could command and the Reds, forced to hit, drove it out as best they could.

Great support saved rucker a dozen times, but the game nevertheless was marvelous for a man in his condition. The new thumbless ball, he says, will hereafter be one of his mainstays.

"I can stop any team," said Rucker, "that does the wait-'em-out act. If they stand up there with bat on shoulder I can toss two of these floats, get two strikes and trust to the field for the next one."

PIRATES.

In days of old
The Pirates bold
Controlled the raging seas,
And honest men
Who traveled then
All trembled at the knees.

For Pirates then
Were low-browed men,
Whose actions were unlawful.
They loved to fight
From morn till night,
And acted something awful.

We do not bow
To Pirates now—
They are a crowd of dubs.
For proof of that
Just rubber at
The Standings of the Clubs.

Reports from Poughkeepsie indicate that Wisconsin rowed in its old-time form.

Cornell is peeved because it won only two races out of three, whereas some of the crews considered themselves lucky to finish on the same day.

Vivian Nickalls may be a perfectly good rowing coach, but it surpasseth our imagination to conceive of a man named Vivian coaching a gang of huskies.

Alfred Vanderbilt's victory in the London coaching marathon shows that all the rich are not idle. If Alf were not a millionaire he would make a great little teamster.

H. Zim may mean well when he promises to be good, but he has an awful job on his hands.

Still, Mr. Zim has qualities which tend to make him a popular idol. For one thing, he never has attempted to burst into vaudeville.

Press agents have various ways to startle the public. For instance, one of them avers that a motorcycle meet was called off for fear the riders would be hurt.

The attempt to restore basketball to the high school curriculum simply shows that some persons have a lot of time to waste.

London papers inform us that "the American innovation of shirtsleeves will undermine the best traditions of golf." And yet there are those who claim that the Times is not a humorous publication.

HUNTING HIRSIG LANDS NO GAME BUT SPINS YARN

NASHVILLE, TENN., June 26.—President William Alibi Hirsig, of the Vanishing Vols, returned from his hunt for ball players through the wilds of Ohio with his game bag as flat as the well-known pancake, and instead of fielders he accumulated a stock of highly interesting tales of .300 wallopers and .999 fielders he would at an early date dress up in Nashville uniforms.

"Author" Hirsig has so rapidly forged to the front as a yarn spinner that quite a number of the six-best-seller publishers are entreating him to turn out a batch of storyettes about "Ball Players I Pretty Near Landed."

Beautiful Dreams.

Calmly brushing away a tear when the announcement came that "Red" Nelson's physician had warned him against inhaling the germs that hobnob around the club houses throughout the South, Hirsig unfolded a story of grabbing either Almeida or Dodge from the Reds. The interesting story-teller held his listeners spellbound, when he launched into the Vols' chances of securing the Cuban, Almeida, or the hard-hitting Dodge to decorate the third cushion for the Schwartzmen, and seeing that he had the bugs groggy, he put them down for the count when he stated that Tinker would probably also ship to Nashville Marty Berghammer, the former Cub, and "Rube" Groh, who came from the Giants in the famous trade for Arthur Fromme.

Hofman Cries to Come.

Recovering from this terrible shock, Hirsig uncorked another on the unsuspecting gabfest he held with Arthur Hofman while in Akron, in which Circus Solly begged the Vols president to take him to the Sunny South, if Kansas City would only release its claim on the ex-Pirate's services.

'Auld Nick' Goes on Rampage

Jap Beats Indian in Hot Race

MAYBE some day Jock McNeil and Tex Richards, the kings of the local Motordrome, will thrash out their speed differences and settle the argument as to whether the imported J. A. P. engine or that in the American-made Indian is the faster. They took still another hack at it Wednesday night before a smashing big crowd, and it is not decided yet. But McNeil put another kink in Richards' reputation by winning the Woodward Sweeptakes in stunning style. Then his machine blew up.

McNeil has named his craft "Auld Nick," and it surely behaves like it. In three race meets run thus far it has not gone through the whole program without springing a splint or developing a Charley hoss. But whenever it has gone right it has developed a speed the like of which the other machines at the Motordrome can not produce.

In the Sweepstakes Wednesday night McNeil and Richards met in the third heat at two miles. It was a tremendously fast race and the riders whirled around and around in dizzy circles at a speed of exactly 86 miles an hour. McNeil took the lead after the contest was well started and held it, with Richards a handy second, to the finish.

"Oh, Richards was just taking it easy to qualify as the second man in the fastest heat," said the wise ones.

In the final heat, however, they had it out for blood. It was at five miles and they started cautiously. Richards, fearing McNeil, went out after a mile with a terrific showing of speed. It looked as though the Indian would run the Jap off its wheels. But then McNeil opened up and like a witch on a broomstick he whirled mysteriously out into the lead and held it. At the finish Richards closed with one of those uncanny bursts of speed that he always seems able to conjure out of his engine for the finish, but McNeil let out another notch and whirled across the chalk line the winner of a truly great race.

With McNeil's machine in no condition the Motordrome Purse was easy for Richards.

The next races will be held Saturday night.

CLEVELAND FANS RALLY TO BIRMINGHAM'S SIDE

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 26.—Petitions and endless chains of letters to President Ban Johnson and President Charles Somers, of the Naps, censuring the president of the American League on the statement credited to him that Manager Birmingham is incompetent, were started in scores of offices and shops by fans to-day.

Many communications were mailed to Johnson's office in Chicago. Many who didn't write called Owner Somers, and his phone was jingling all day. Employees in offices in the Rockefeller Building started an endless chain of letters, every man asking his acquaintances to write. Similar chains were started in other office buildings.

LAW AGAINST HANDBOOKING BADLY NEEDED

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE attention of the men who have gathered for the purpose of making new laws for Georgia is called to the fact that this State needs a law against gambling.

Yes, it has one, but it is not adequate to prevent handbook gambling.

Under the present law, so we are informed by attorneys of great prominence, a man could parade up and down Peachtree Street offering bets on baseball games and horse races, and not be liable to arrest.

So long as he had no fixed place of business and could not be arrested for conducting a gambling house he is immune.

THIS is a wretched state of affairs. Handbook gambling ought to be prohibited by law. It leads to more serious gambling, it gets boys and young men started in the wrong way, it results in petty thievery, wasted money. It lines the purses of the gambling gentry, often at the expense of mothers and children who would have had the benefit of the money except for a foolish flyer on a ball game or a horse race.

* * *

THE worst feature of the handbook gambling, perhaps, is its wretched influence on the sports themselves.

Of course racing isn't worth saving.

No sports that exists for gambling alone is.

But baseball is. That is the great national sport, and thus far it has been kept practically above suspicion.

If gambling on the games continues long it will not escape suspicion and it will doubtless deserve suspicion and worse.

If only to save the greatest of American sports handbook gambling should be stopped.

IT is not presumed that a mere law will prevent betting. But it will at least drive it to cover and yank off the mask of respectability. If it isn't against the law to run a handbook why shouldn't anybody do it? That is what a lot of them ask. And it is a hard question to answer.

If a measure to prevent handbook gambling could be put before the Legislature it would go through flying.

There isn't a man who would vote against it. They would all realize that such a law ought to be on the books.

But will anybody bring such a law before them and see that it comes to a vote?

It would do more good for the State of Georgia than many a law that will be passed.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, June 26.—It is a race of surprises in the National League this year. Every time it looks as if the Phillies are about to break and ready to drop back they catch their wind and come strong again. Brooklyn has also shown another burst. The Cubs are liable to gain on the three Eastern contenders—New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn—within the next two weeks because these three strong clubs will be playing one another.

The Athletics are still out in front in the American League and will probably stay there. They may fall back during their coming clashes with the Red Sox and Washington and their impending trip through the West. In both leagues the Western contenders will face easier series. Cleveland appeared to be slipping badly in the East a week ago, but the Naps have a fine chance to catch their feet again at home now, especially if the Philadelphia boys slide into a slump. Even the best of them slump. Cleveland has kept the Athletics within hailing distance while crusading through the East, which was a good deal of a trick considering the speed at which the Athletics were moving. That about sums up the situation in the two leagues.

THE Giants' case at this time perhaps deserves a little consideration. The club had a wonderful road trip through the West, gaining on the Phillies and winning twelve games and losing only four.

The silver lining in the showing of the Giants on the road during this last trip can be found by a glance at the schedule. The New York club winds up its season with a swing through the West this year, and, if the final dispute comes down to a battle between the Giants and Phillies to the wire, I look to see New York nose the Philadelphia boys out on this final trip.

THE Cubs now threaten to be factors in the pennant struggle to the end. They won ten games and lost six during the Eastern invasion, and the pitching staff appears to be much better than it was a month or even two weeks ago.

The Pirates fell down sadly and have continued to show bad form. Their case is hard to explain, but it is impossible to go behind returns, and the fact remains that the Pittsburg club is still in the second division and showing no signs of mounting. It is now nearing the first of July, which means the race is about half over. The Pittsburg club is now about a dozen games behind the league leaders, a margin which would require phenomenal playing to overcome. I don't see how the Pirates can be counted in the race at present.

ONLY 10-ROUND BATTLE FOR WHITE AND BRITTON

CHICAGO, June 26.—Charlie White and Jack Britton are to fight ten rounds no decision at New Orleans July 4 instead of twenty rounds with a verdict at the end. Governor Hall, of Louisiana, is responsible for the switch in Promoter Tortorich's plans. He said he would stand for no knockdown, drag-out fight in his State. Frankie Whitney, the Cedar Rapids lightweight, leaves here this morning for New Orleans, where he fights Joe Thomas July 4.

9 PITCHED BALLS BY CONZELMAN STRIKE OUT SIDE

By Joe Agler.

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 26.—With Paul Musser and Dunn as the battery for the Crackers this afternoon we should repeat Wednesday's win, for Paul is going fine and has had a good rest.

Conzelman won his fourth straight game Wednesday, and it looks like there is no heading him off. He looks like the one best bet in the league to me. He has the build, the control and everything else that goes to make a big league pitcher. He is certain to be back in the majors next spring, and I think he'll stick, too.

* * *

JOE probably broke a league record in the seventh inning when he retired the Turtles' side on nine pitched balls. It was just like this:

"Stri-i-ike one!"

"Stri-i-ike tuh!"

"Stri-i-ike thruh! Batter up!"

And then repeat twice more. There wasn't a ball, nor a foul tip—nothing but nine strikes in a row. And that's going some.

Atlantans Closing in On Title Should Win in Big Tennis Meet

NEW ORLEANS, LA., June 26.—Competition in the tennis tourney for the Southern championship Thursday had narrowed down to a few players. Thornton and Grant, of Atlanta, began playing the Worms brothers about 11 o'clock. Pipes and Maginnis were opposed by Smith and Mansfield. Adoue was also carded to meet Shelton before noon.

Phelps will meet Thornton this afternoon. At 4:30 o'clock Grima and Phelps will be opposed by Adoue and Shelton. With this system of elimination the finals go over until Friday.

Saal defaulted to Williams late yesterday after two sets, throwing Williams and Thornton as opponents. It was late for a match, but they decided to play to avoid the morning heat Thursday. Thornton won in straight sets 6-1, 6-0. Thornton let himself out for the first time, and really showed how well he could play tennis. The local man never had a chance.

In the lower half of the game Shelton, of Texas, defeated Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, in straight sets, much to the surprise of nearly everybody at the tournament. Grant was not at his best and Shelton's chop strokes and hard backward drives appeared to worry the Atlantan greatly.

Nat Thornton disposed of Frank Dameron in one of two single matches yesterday. Score: 6-4, 6-4. The Atlantan was not exerting himself and could have reduced the length of the contest at any time he chose.

Good progress was made to-day in the ladies' championship division, but several sets will be thrown to a late afternoon card with finals to-morrow.

Blood Bath Knocks Rheumatism

Remarkable Effect of a Remedy That Actually Irrigates the Entire Blood Supply.

The Hardest Nut of All, Rheumatism, Is Cracked by S. S. S.

It sounds queer to take a blood bath, but that is precisely the effect of a most remarkable remedy known as S. S. S. It has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And, best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store at $1 a bottle. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to the Swift Specific Company, 137 Swift Building, Atlanta, Ga.

Evans Goes to Naps; One Day With Barons

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 26.—President Charles W. Sommers, of the Cleveland American League club, has ordered "Rube" Evans, the sensational Southern League left-hand pitcher with New Orleans, in the Southern League, to report immediately. Evans has been the property of the Cleveland club for some time.

A deal was closed Tuesday whereby Evans was sold by New Orleans to Birmingham, but Cleveland's call takes him from the Barons.

LACK OF BUSINESS DEPRESSES COTTON

Trading Extremely Light Throughout Day—July Center of Discussion—Cables Weak.

NEW YORK, June 26.—At the opening of the cotton market to-day the tone was easier and prices were unchanged to 5 points lower than last night's close. Cables were lower than generally expected. Bear operators had their operations checked by the reports of dry weather over the belt, resulting in August rallying 5 points over the opening, while other positions remained unchanged to 2 points higher.

After the call Liverpool and the continent were reported selling July, but the spot interests were supposed to be buyers. Many operators purchased August and sold July, while commission houses were good buyers of the new crop positions. After moving within a narrow range the market finally developed a sagging tendency and prices dropped some 5 to 9 points under the previous close. Liverpool developed weakness after a good start and closed unchanged to 2 points higher.

It is the current belief now that the market is only an evening up affair, pending the first notice day, Friday, on July delivery. For July contracts naturally was the subject of discussion. Advices from Liverpool stated that the English houses would not take up cotton unless the differences were large enough to assure them profit.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: July, 12.13; August, 12.07; October, 11.55; January, 11.48.

Luring the late forenoon the market developed a steadier tone, influenced by scattered shorts covering before the Government report next Thursday. Private reports were not so favorable to crop conditions as they have been for some time past. Later the market became weak, based on the strong warning over the middle Gulf, which was considered bearish, as it indicates that rain developments over the Western Rockies will move on the cotton belt in about six days and caused desired general rains. This had a depressing effect on the market, causing prices to reflex to the opening range.

At the close the market was easy with prices showing a net decline of 7 to 15 points from the final quotations of Wednesday.

Following are 10 a. m. bids in New Orleans: July, 12.54; August, 12.19; October, 11.62; January, 11.68.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—Political news overnight was very unfavorable. War has again broken out in the Balkans, showing that the loud announcements of peace made by the press a short while ago were false and diplomatic to mislead the world.

Weather conditions are favorable. Partly cloudy to fair weather in the belt. A few scattered showers, mostly in the Carolinas. Indications are for stationary conditions. Rain is not desired for a week yet in the central States, owing to the fight made against the weevil, which is more successful in prolonged dry spells between rainy periods.

July here showed aggressive activity for a while after the opening, causing steadiness in new crops, but this was soon followed by a 6-point decline when the bidding for July stopped. The strength and control of the July position are holding the market.

The into-sight for the week looks around 30,000, against 32,112 last year, and we compare with mill takings of 157,000 for this week. Bullish comparisons are expected owing to the May exports from New York and New Orleans stock, which cotton is now landing abroad.

July here had repeated periods of strength and on little bidding sold up to 12.62 shortly before 11 o'clock, causing new crops to rally to 11.66 for December.

COTTON GOSSIP

NEW YORK, June 26.—J. M. Anderson says: "Liverpool did not respond to our advance of yesterday and the selling around the opening was rather general, but the spot people were evidently buying July. Liverpool and the Continent were thought to have sold summer months immediately. The trading throughout the day has been rather small, as tomorrow is notice day and everybody seems to be waiting to see what may be the outcome. Sentiment is more bullish and further advance is anticipated before the Government report next Thursday. Private reports are not so favorable to crop conditions as they have been for some time past.

"Bool weevils are reported in Mississippi in sections where they have not appeared before."

Liverpool, Hentz and scattered longs sold July yesterday and Hentz offered 10,000 bales at 12.25 when the market was 12.21. Some thought this was to reassure shorts for the moment so they would not run away. July had most to do with the strength in the new crop positions, although offerings were limited in the latter. Geran, the Waldorf broker, purchased 15,000 bales of the new crop. McFadden, Springs, Hicks, Dick and Mitchell were good buyers.

The Turners' report was considered bullish and Weld makes the condition 83.3, against 84 last month. Sentiment is turning quite friendly to the market, mainly because of its stubbornness, the way it took 70,000 bales, which Pell sold, and on the idea that the latter will buy the contracts back on the first favorable opportunity.

* * *

* * *

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—Hayward & Clark: "The weather map is very favorable; partly cloudy to fair over the entire belt, few light showers at scattered points, mostly in the Carolinas and south Louisiana. Stationary temperatures, except some warmer in Memphis districts. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, scattered showers, particularly in the Atlantics."

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "All along price opponents have contended that the cornered condition of July at New York was the dominant factor, and none of them developed any particular attention to July at New Orleans. Now the bear party learns that several men have been quietly buying up July at New Orleans and that they expect to receive cotton on the contracts they hold. The significance of this is apparent when it is remembered that the demand for actual cotton in the South exceeds the offerings, and that actual cotton owners experience no difficulty in selling at full market values. Meanwhile, the bear has discovered fresh cause for market concern over European trade conditions, and sees fresh danger in the reopening of the Balkan conflict.

"On the other hand bool weevil talk is attracting increasing attention, the latest reports being to the effect that the cotton plantations in Mississippi recently purchased by an English syndicate are badly infested. Current crop condition reports do not make quite so good a showing as has been expected by those men who of late have drawn their daily inspiration from the favorableness of the weather map and for this reason high price people found the way clear yesterday to reassert their claim that the plant over a very large area has not made satisfactory progress, because of an adverse start and is now under size."

THE WEATHER.

Conditions.

WASHINGTON, June 26—The weather will be warmer to-night and Friday along the North Atlantic coast and it will continue warm elsewhere east of the Mississippi River during the next 36 hours. There will be local rains to-night in New England, New York, the region of the Great Lakes and Florida, and fair weather elsewhere east of the Mississippi River during the night and Friday.

Forecast.

Forecast until 7 p. m. Friday:

Georgia—Generally fair to-night and Friday.

Virginia—Generally fair to-night and Friday; warmer in east portion Friday.

North and South Carolina—Generally fair to-night and Friday.

Florida—Local showers to-night or Friday.

Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee—Generally fair and continuer warm to-night and Friday.

Louisiana—Fair to-night and Friday, except showers in southeastern portion Friday.

Texas—Fair to-night and Friday.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

Joseph Thal, Louchheime & Co.: "We hold to the view that sales are advisable on all sharp turns."

Logan & Bryan: "Favor purchases on all reactions from this level."

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, June 26.—The cotton seed oil market was firm to-day on further demand from old crop shorts, particularly in August. Old crop months are commanding more attention, their being some new speculative buying in October and November.

Predictions of 14c lard was a further stimulus to the bull side.

MILLER-COTTER COTTON LETTER.

MEMPHIS, June 26.—The market has maintained a steady tone despite some easiness in new months. Outside sentiment is more favorable to the new crop on the theory that the crop has not made June progress as earlier anticipated. July is for sale on bulges, apparently from spot houses. Sentiment is more divided than in weeks and it would appear that the market interest is being evened up for the bureau report.

PROFIT TAKING LOWERS STOCKS

Buying of Harriman Issues Early Feature—Interest Centered on Dissolution Plan.

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, June 26—After a period of strength, during which many prominent issues made material gains, the stock market turned weak about half an hour after the opening and prices shaded.

The news that the Union Pacific dissolution plan had been advanced caused vigorous buying of Harriman's in London. In New York Union Pacific opened at 147⅝ for a gain of 1⅝. Later, however, it lost part of its advance.

Dealings in Union Pacific were brisk. Reading also was active. This stock opened ⅝ up at 158⅜, but later declined to 158. Among the other gains were Amalgamated Coper ¾, American Can ⅝, American Smelter ⅛, Canadian Pacific 1, St. Paul ¾, Chino Copper ½, United States Steel common ⅜, Southern Pacific ¾, Pennsylvania Railroad ⅛, Lehigh Valley ⅜, Kansas City Southern ¼, Chesapeake and Ohio ¼ and St. Paul ¾. Steel soon lost all its gain. Missouri Pacific declined ⅛ and Baltimore and Ohio shaded ⅜.

The curb market was firm.

The tone in London was steady, despite Berlin and Vienna selling, induced by further reports of fighting in the Balkans. Sentiment in Americans in London was cheerful. Canadian Pacific was repurchased for a good price gain.

After a fractional advance stocks throughout the list showed a wavering tendency and light losses were recorded in Steel, which reacted in a disappointing manner, losing about a point. Reading sold at 157⅝ from the early 158¾. Union Pacific dropped 1⅜ and Copper was ⅝ down since the opening. The other issues received about the same drop. The tone in the late forenoon was steady. Call money loaning at 2 per cent.

TRADE SELLS OFF WHEAT HOLDINGS

Speculators Follow Bigger Men in Pit in Face of Bad News From Northwest.

ST. LOUIS CASH QUOTATIONS.

Wheat—No. 2 red 97½
Oats—No. 2 .... 39½@39⅞

CHICAGO, June 26.—The local professionals in wheat were heavy sellers during nearly all of to-day's session. These speculators were following the footsteps of the larger men in the trade and this, too, in the face of quite unfavorable reports sent from Williston, N. D., which said that there would not be over 70 per cent of a wheat crop raised there even under the best conditions from this time forward.

Prices reacted ⅛ to ⅜ from the lowest levels, yet the closings were ⅜ to ½c below those of last night. A few boat loads were sold for export, but this was offset by reports of increased sales of the new crop in all positions.

Corn closed ⅜ to ½c higher, while oats were unchanged to ⅛ to ¼c lower. The buying of corn was largely by local professionals and was not considered as strong as the selling. Longs were the principal sellers of oats in the way of securing profits.

Provisions were unchanged to a shade lower for the day.

OPINION ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.: Wheat—The map shows fair rains at several points in South Dakota, light showers in North Dakota and quite general precipitation in Canada and Minnesota. The firmness in the cash situation and the uncertainty regarding the Northwestern situation are apt to give us a steady market.

Corn—Part cloudy with very little precipitation are shown. Look for a steady market.

Oats—The speculative situation appears strong on the belief that the crop will be a moderate one.

Provisions—There seems to be a disposition to take profits on strong spots, but we do not look for any material decline.

HOG PRICES RISE.

CHICAGO, June 26.—With 88,000 hogs at eleven markets to-day, against 73,000 a week ago, speculators elevated prices 5 to 10c, restoring the 8.90 quotation. The bulk sold at 8.75@8.85, strong weights getting 8.80. Lambs sold up to 8.75, an advance of 1.50, compared with the low spot late last week. The general advance was 25c. In the cattle alleys prices were about steady or weak compared with last Monday.

BANKERS TOLD TO ABANDON COERCION

People, Nation's Bulwark, Bound to Have Last Word in Currency Reform, Says Forbes.

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, June 26.—"You pay too much attention to 'the people,' to the man with a vote and little else," a Wall Street man scolded me yesterday, "and don't give enough consideration to the substantial men of the country, the great, big brainy men, the men who have made America what it is, the giants who head our financial and business organizations."

Well, to that I would reply that half the men active in Wall Street are ridiculously ignorant of 'the people's' place in a republic. They have contempt instead of consideration for the unlettered classes. They have an overweening sense of their own importance and power. They move in a dollar-ridden circle. They have neither the inclination nor the breadth of vision to grasp what part "the people" play in the scheme of things.

* * *

Rather than become an exponent of such views I would become a scavenger, for that is an honest, creditable calling.

* * *

Most of New York's ablest bankers are men of broad gauge, not at all the type I have just described. But there are among them numbers of bourbons, short-sighted, unable to discern the forces that govern twentieth century democracy, blind to world-wide developments in the relations of the so-called masses to the so-called classes. They can not realize that humankind has progressed rapidly these recent years toward equality, that manhood has asserted itself against mere money, that caste is being obliterated.

* * *

In the friendliest spirit conceivable I would urge the national bankers who have been in session here to abandon at once all idea of being able to prevent the United States from placing control of the currency system under the Government. They can not turn back the hands of the clock. The railroads tried it and failed—and to-day are heartily glad that they did fail.

* * *

The people will insist upon having, through their representatives, the final say in regulating banking.

* * *

The bankers may better accept this large fact with good grace now. They assuredly will have to accept it later, no matter how much they protest. Threats to seek shelter under State laws will not long avail, for even should such unlikely steps be taken the people of the States would fall into line and demand rigid control of the dodging institutions.

* * *

Let the bankers use their every effort, if they choose, to secure more generous representation on the Federal Reserve Board. They might win a provision in the bill that three of the seven members shall be bankers. But that the Government will insist upon holding the balance of power is a foregone conclusion if ever there was one.

Bonding Company Wins Suit Filed by Defaulter's Victim

Judge William T. Newman Thursday sustained the demurrer of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company against the petition of the Proctor Coal Company, which sued for $5,000, the amount for which C. H. Stanton, an employee, was bonded and the approximate amount he is to have defaulted. The bonding company asserted their contracts are made for one year at a time and that the exact time which Stanton defaulted could not be shown.

They represented that they could be held responsible only from December 1, 1900, to August 8, 1901, when the books were audited competently.

"It is ordered," Judge Newman said, "that the demurrer to the petition be sustained insofar as the petition seeks to recover for losses prior to December 1, 1900, and that the case may proceed for the loss alleged to have been sustained after that date, the demurrer as to this latter having been overruled this 25th day of June, 1913."

Peachtree Paving Starts Soon, Says Smith, Preparing

Chairman Shelby Smith, of the County Commission, began preparations Thursday to start work soon on the improvement of Peachtree Road from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead. The work, he said, probably would start within the next ten days.

"We would have started this work some weeks ago," he said, "but could not get the material nor the labor. The material will be available in a few days. We can get labor from some of the streets that will be completed shortly and put it on the Peachtree road."

Chairman Smith said he would not consent to beginning the work until he had men enough and the right kind of material to make the road a credit to the county.

Absence of Heads Of Pure Milk Body Postpones Report

Owing to the illness of Dr. S. A. Visanska and the absence from Atlanta of Oscar Elsas, the luncheon scheduled for Thursday at the Piedmont Hotel to consider the report of the milk committee of the Chamber of Commerce has been postponed indefinitely.

Dr. Visanska, who is chairman of the committee, is recuperating at a South Carolina sanitarium, and Mr. Elsas, the vice chairman, is at the bedside of his son in a New York hospital.

Featuring the report of the milk committee is a recommendation that the Chamber of Commerce have Dr. Charles North, sanitarian of New York City, come to Atlanta and conduct a week's investigation. Secretary W. G. Cooper, of the Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday an early date would be set for the luncheon, at which time the milk committee's report would be considered.

Burial Service Read Over Bird in Coffin

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jun. 26.—A pet canary, owned by James McLaughlin, was buried in a small cemetery in the back yard of the McLaughlin summer home in Chelsea.

It was placed in a silk-lined metallic coffin, and Helen McLaughlin read the burial service over her pet. The canary had been in the household fourteen years.

Who's Who In Your House?

Are you the Boss?

Or is it Cook?

Some cooks are jewels. If yours is, you'd better hang on to her. But some cooks are NOT jewels. They take frequent vacations without leave. They strenuously object to dinner parties. And those cozy little midnight lunches and inroads on the pantry are simply out of the question. Perhaps in spite of all her faults you want to keep your cook. But don't keep her if you are not satisfied with her. Don't keep her just because you fear you can't get another. You can, without trouble.

Some good cook who would suit you has a Want Ad in The Georgian. She will be a good cook because the pick and cream of cooks and all other help advertise in The Georgian exclusively. You won't have to waste time looking up some one who is altogether out of the question. She will be all right—the cook you get through The Georgian.

So look her up. Things will go so much smoother with a dependable woman in the kitchen. Meals will be served on time and taste like mother's own. Get the kind of a cook you've always wanted by reading Georgian Want Ads to-day.

Is Poultry Culture And Egg Production Affected by Climate?

Also Question Answered From Raiser Who Has Had Little Chicks to Die Shortly After Hatching.

Edited by Judge F. J. Marshall.

A subscriber to one of the Northern poultry papers asks if poultry culture and egg production could not be made more profitable in a warm climate like Georgia or Florida than a cold one. The editor answers with a big NO. We believe this editor is surely mistaken. And we think we understand why he makes this assertion that he does.

He has evidently concluded because the South does not produce eggs in proportion to its area that the hens do not do their duty.

While the truth of the matter is that in this genial Southern climate our hens can be made to do duty a greater part of the year than in the cold and frozen North and these eggs can be produced at less cost per dozen on an average for the reason that the hens do not have to be housed in expensive houses, and it takes much less food to keep the body in a normal laying condition than it does when it is so cold.

The hens can be out of doors and in the natural sunshine and warmth so conducive to health and egg production. The reason the South is so far behind in the matter of egg production in proportion to her area and population is that hundreds of farmers scarcely raise enough chickens and eggs to supply their own tables, to say nothing of supplying the markets. Of course there are a few limited sections of the South where they make a great business of shipping chickens and eggs to the Eastern markets, but this area is but a small part of the whole South.

But in the East and North the chicken market business has been one of the leading means of a livelihood for small farmers for generations, to say nothing of the immense plants making a specialty of eggs and broilers. We believe it is an accepted fact that warm air and sunshine are the strong factors for egg production, consequently any one who has become at all familiar with the average winters of the Gulf States knows that the natural conditions are ideal for this purpose, but, of course, to make a success at the business even under these most favorable conditions everything that nature affords must be made the most of.

Making the effort that must necessarily be made in the colder States of the North, I see no reason why we should not as a people take the very front ranks in the business. But these favorable natural conditions seem to have had the tendency to make us careless as a class in all classes of agricultural pursuits.

Judge Marshall: Can you tell me what causes my little chicks to die? When they are first hatched off they are as well as they can be, looks like, and seem to do well until they are eight or ten days old. Then they begin to droop and get weak and are soon all dead. They don't have bowel trouble. I have cut several of them open after they died to see if I could find anything that I thought would cause them to die. The gall looked like it was larger than it ought to be. And some of them had turned dark green around the gall. I took out one gall to-day without bursting it, so I could tell you about the size it was and see if you thought it was too large. I laid it on the paper and marked around it with a pencil as close as I could to give you a better idea of the size of it. Now, if you can give me a remedy for the trouble I will thank you very much.

MRS. L. F. B.

Plain Dealing, La.

Answer: The trouble with your chicks is one of two or three things, or, perhaps, a combination of them. It looks a good deal like what we call general debility as the result of the too close inbreeding of the parent stock for generations back. Just letting the same roosters, old and young, that you happen to raise year after year run with your hens. Such a course will eventually put you in such a position that you will hardly be able to raise any young stock and particularly a little late in the season. The eggs will not only not hatch well, but will give you chicks that will live but a short time for a simple lack of vitality to even make a start in life. There is just such trouble upon hundreds of farms throughout the country. Is it any wonder that farmers are heard to complain that it is hard work to raise any chickens and that chicken raising does not pay? It is just that lack of interest to induce him to make good healthy crosses such as he would think he was obliged to make in his cattle or hog breeding to insure health. Then there is the trouble that is a kin to the other and that is hatching from eggs late in the season laid by hens that have been laying almost constantly since early winter time without a rest. Such hens have become quite low in vitality and very naturally their eggs will throw chicks with but little stamina for the race of life and are ready to keel over at the first round.

Then we have the mites that are always with us or rather with our hens unless we make a vigorous protest and assert our rights early in the season. When they are numerous they will not let a lot of young chicks get much of a start in life until they will snuff it out. Look out for them at all events. I am pretty sure that one if not more of these things I have mentioned is your trouble, but you will have to be the judge.

OUR NORTH SIDE AND INMAN PARK DELIVERIES LEAVE THE STORE AT 9:30; SOUTH SIDE AND WEST END AT 2 P. M. GOODS ORDERED BEFORE THESE HOURS WILL BE DELIVERED SAME DAY.

CHICKENS need more care and attention the next two or three months than any other time during the year. It is perfectly natural for chickens to have lice and mites, and unless you look after them they will multiply in such quantities to prove profitable. The little chicks will not reach the growth they should and the hens will not lay if they are covered with these pests. We have ties that you can not expect your flock remedies that will positively get rid of them and the cost is very little. For 35c you can get a can of either Lee's, Conkey's or Pratt's Lice Liquid and we will guarantee either of these preparations to give entire satisfaction.

WE have just gotten in a lot of nice, fresh, clean Red Comb Feed. The price for scratch and mash is $2.25 per 100 pounds.

WE are offering Baby Chick Feed at $2.15 per 100 pounds for the next few days. You know the regular price is $2.50 per 100 pounds. Better take advantage of this.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

14 New Bungalows To Cost $28,000

Fitzhugh Knox to Build—Refusal of $1,400 for Semi-Central Lot. Plans for Big Mill.

Never before in the history of the city has there been so much activity in the construction of small houses. Thursday's announcements brought information, for instance, that Fitzhugh Knox, the well-known builder of apartments and dwellings, had approved of plans for fourteen bungalows to cost an aggregate of $28,000. These are to be located in Mr. Knox's subdivision on South Moreland, Cleland and Kensington Avenues and Hardee and Brantley Streets. Walker & Chase are the architects and the Knox Construction Company has the contract. Part of the material is on the ground and actual construction will start Monday.

Decatur Tennis Club House.

The Decatur Tennis Club will have plans this week from Walker & Chase, architects in the Candler Building, for a $3,500 club house south of the Georgia Railroad tracks and east of Candler Street, directly back of the residence of C. Murphey Candler, chairman of the State Railroad Commission. Work should start in a week or so. The completed structure will represent an investment of about $5,000. The club has three acres of ground and about six tennis courts.

John W. Grant Buys.

Jane Hill has sold to John W. Grant a 39 by 67 foot lot on Calhoun Street, between Pine and Merritts Avenue, for $2,300.

Refusal of Semi-Central Offer.

Investors desiring to pick up a choice piece of semi-central property on the North Side offered $1,400 a front foot Wednesday, but the offer was refused. The price of $1,500 has been fixed by the owner, and a well-known real estate agent is trying to get prospect and seller together.

Stone for Healey Building.

Stone has arrived for the Healey Building, and part of it has been put in place, starting at the ground. The slabs will extend 15 feet upward, and terra cotta will go from thence to the top of the building. The granite is from the quarries at Stone Mountain, furnished by Venable Brothers.

Contract for Cotton Mill.

The plans for the Manchester, Ga., cotton mill addition, one of the largest jobs in this section of the country, has been let to Walker & Chase, architects. Mr. Walker closed the deal Tuesday. The amount was not given out. Several other Atlanta architects, it is understood, were in the competition.

Peachtree Lease Made.

Tom Weaver, the tailor, has subleased the second story of the building at the northwest corner of Peachtree and James Streets from the lessee, Robert E. Riley, at an advance on the price paid by the latter.

Euclid Apartments Ready.

The Euclid Apartments, located at the southeast corner of Euclid Avenue and Hurt Street, Inman Park, have been completed, and the owner and builder, Fitzhugh Knox, has leased several of the 16 apartments. The cost of the Euclid was $40,000. It is two stories and fronts 200 feet on Euclid Avenue and 70 feet on Hurt Street, each room being outside. The rooms have been arranged for disappearing wall beds. Mr. Knox has built several other apartments, among them the Virginian, at the southwest corner of Peachtree and Fifteenth Streets; the Boscobel, on Hurt Street, Inman Park, and the Fairleigh, on Spring Street.

West Tenth Street Buy.

C. A. Tappan has bought from a client of the Smith & Ewing Real Estate Agency a 50 by 150 foot lot on the north side of West Tenth Street, east of State Street and in front of the Home Park School, for $2,000.

To Lease 97 Peachtree.

The removal of the College Co-Op from 97 Peachtree to the new location at 119 and 121 Peachtree will leave the former place open for release. This store is in the Alfriend Building and under the seven-year term just expiring brought $5,000 a year.

Madison Avenue Conveyance.

J. H. Williams has conveyed to the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland a 99 by 80 foot lot on Madison Avenue, being lots 1 and 2 of the home place subdivision of L. L. Landrum, for a consideration not named. The property brought $7,500. June 28, 1912.

Peachtree Work Assured.

Real estate men hailed with much joy Thursday the announcement by County Chairman Shelby Smith that Peachtree Road would soon be improved from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead, work to start in ten days or two weeks. A large proportion of the prospects who are taken to look over property go by way of Peachtree, and the realty dealers declare that rough roads are not very conducive to sales-making.

As soon as some of the forces working in other sections can be shifted to Peachtree, declared Mr. Smith, the Peachtree improvements will be started.

Repairs from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead, by the way, will make of Peachtree one of the best thoroughfares in the State. The street was recently repaved from Sixth Street to Fifteenth and from Buckhead to the DeKalb County line. With the other stretch completed, the entire extent will be approximately nine miles, and Peachtree will serve the most important rural territory in the State.

Chamber of Commerce Home.

A permit for remodeling the old Y. M. C. A. Building at the southeast corner of North Pryor Street and Auburn Avenue is expected to be taken soon at the Building Inspector's office by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. The Y. M. C. A. will move out July 1, awaiting the completion of its new $250,000 building on Luckie Street, and the Chamber of Commerce will make alterations to cost $100,000 or more.

New Realty Firm.

Although the Thornton, Goree & Poyner Real Estate Agency has been in business only a week or ten days at 11 Auburn Avenue ("Real Estate Row"), a number of important listings of subdivision lots, investment property and homes have been received. The new firm is made up of R. L. Thornton, senior member, who was formerly conected with the Claude E. Sims Realty Company; G. C. Goree, an Atlanta business man who has made a study of real estate, and C. B. Poyner, junior partner, formerly with J. E. McCullough in subdivision work.

Hoping for Tax Reform.

A sympathetic note has been struck in real estate circles through declarations of such political leaders as Governor Brown, W. H. Burwell, Speaker of the House, and J. Randolph Anderson, President of the Senate, that something must be done to improve the tax system of the State. There has long been a conviction that real estate has been saddled with an unfair proportion of tax burden—that rates should be increased and assessments lowered. This is particularly true in Fulton County, where it is claimed that any more legislation raising tax assessments would drive out industries and sadly cripple the real estate business. Furthermore, Fulton County pays, exclusive of corporation and special taxes, about one-seventh of the taxes paid into the State Treasury, which it is held is unfair. Real estate men want more of their tax money spent in the county and less paid into the coffers of the State, and they are seeking legislation along this line.

The Railroads and the Public

(Copyright, 1913.)

The Georgian and the other Hearst newspapers, published to protect the public, are aware of the fact that to protect the public thoroughly, ALL legitimate workers must be protected, big men and little men, ditch diggers, railroad builders, street peddlers, department stores, thinkers and big industrial organizations.

Criticism of big and able men because they happen to be rich and intelligent is as stupid and harmful to the public welfare as would be attacks on or unjust treatment of little men because they happen to be poor and badly organized.

We publish gladly a letter which presents the side of the railroads in an important public question.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD COMPANY.
General Office, Broad Street Station.
Philadelphia.
Ivy L. Lee.
Executive Assistant.

Editor The Georgian:

My Dear Sir—Your papers have been commending the law recently passed in New Jersey which places upon the railroad companies the entire burden of removing grade crossings. There is one important phase of this subject, however, which you have not brought out.

There is no doubt that grade crossings are a great public menace and should be removed. But, of course, their removal must be paid for, and those who are benefited are the ones who ought to pay for it. If the entire burden should fall upon the railroads without delay the railroads would be bankrupt.

As you know, in England there are practically no grade crossings, the reason being that when the railroads were first built it was sure that there would be enough traffic to make them pay. Therefore, the Government could take the position that there should be no grade crossings. In this country, if we had taken such position there would not have been so many railroads.

Everybody, railroad officers included, agrees as to the danger and the objectionable character of grade crossings. But it is certainly like the ostrich burying its head in the sand to pass a law placing the whole burden upon the railroad companies and imagining that through such a law the money is going to come out of the bankers of Wall Street.

May I venture to call to your attention the policy which Mr. Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, recently set forth as in his opinion the proper one to be pursued in solving the grade crossing problem?

"Public Service Commissions, on motion either of a municipality, a railroad, or on a commission's own initiative, should have the right to designate such grade crossings as should be removed, and should have power, after hearing all parties in interest, to apportion the cost of such improvements, with due regard for the interest of all parties concerned."

Respectfully,
IVY L. LEE.

Mr. Lee, who is a graduate of the Atlanta Boys' High School, and son of the Rev. J. W. Lee, former pastor of Trinity Church, and who occupies an important position near the president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is right in his statement that the public can not legislate unlimited millions into existence or compel railroads to spend money that they haven't got.

It is an impossibility to abolish immediately ALL of the grade crossings in the United States.

There is not enough money in the United States to do that work immediately. And legislation can not CREATE money.

The trouble, however, as Mr. Lee and Mr. Rea will admit, has been in the past a lack of the fair and reasonable attitude now taken by Mr. Rea, recently elected president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Railroad management until recently has often been as arrogant and unreasonable as the most foolish legislator, or the most ignorant demagogue.

The railroads can exist only by permission of the public, they get their rights and their revenue from the public, and are able to build because the public exercises its right of eminent domain in their behalf, yet the railroads have refused for years to recognize in the public ANY RIGHTS AT ALL.

Stockholders, investors in the railroads, have been robbed in every conceivable way. (It is true that the Pennsylvania has been an honorable exception in this regard.)

Legislation that the railroads WANTED has been bought with money.

And legislation that they did NOT want has been killed with money.

It is not unnatural that representatives of the public should in their turn sometimes follow the example set by the railroads and disregard the railroads' rights as the railroads have disregarded the rights of the public in the past.

This newspaper, however, opposes unjust legislation against the railroads as strongly as it opposes public robbery by the railroads.

It is preposterous to say that every grade crossing should be abolished at once and that the railroads should pay the expense.

The total capitalization of the railroads is about $600,000,000, including stock not yet issued.

AND $600,000,000 WOULD NOT BE ENOUGH TO ABOLISH ALL THE GRADE CROSSINGS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD ALONE!

The United States would not have to-day one-quarter of its railroad mileage if the railroads had been compelled to build without grade crossings. That would mean that the United States would be only one-quarter developed in comparison with its present development.

Mr. Rea's statement and suggestion in regard to railroad crossings, and his address made upon that subject recently in New Jersey are reasonable and display a fair spirit.

The trouble has been in the past that railroads and their officials have used their power to prevent ANY INTERFERENCE EVEN WITH THE MOST DANGEROUS GRADE CROSSINGS.

If other railroad officials will follow Mr. Rea's example and in good faith submit public questions to impartial public officials, railroads and the public contributing their fair and proper share of any expense, THE RAILROADS WILL FIND THAT THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY ARE NOT DISHONEST, WILL NOT DEMAND THE IMPOSSIBLE, AND WILL NOT BE LED INTO PATHS OF CONFISCATION OR UNJUST ASSESSMENT BY THE NEWSPAPERS THAT THEY TRUST.

June Morn

Are We Coming to the Bee Idea of Life

By WINIFRED BLACK.

HAVE you ever read Maeterlinck's marvelous story of the bees?

No?

Go to the library and get it this very day. You can't afford to live another twenty-four hours without knowing that book!

Every time you see a bee in the garden afterward you'll feel like standing, hat in hand, and watching him fly by.

Talk about "man the reasoning animal," the bee reasons so much better and so much more closely than man that he makes us all seem like little blind, blundering beetles booming around in the sunshine, not knowing where we are going or what we are trying to do.

The Wonderful Bee.

The bee—the wonderful bee—no wonder Napoleon chose him for his emblem.

Is that what we are all coming to—some day I wonder—the bee system of living?

Every once in a while I see something in the news that makes me think so. It is a great thing to watch—the daily news of this great, strange, simple, complex world of ours.

The sailors on the ship that Columbus brought across the wide waters spent days standing at the rail watching for the drift of waters, and now and then they found hope of land in the broken branch that floated on the silent sea and now and then some strange bright feather that rose and fell on the waves told their hopeful hearts of bright lands beyond, where the bird that wore the feather waited singing in a spreading tree to welcome their coming.

Driftwood tells strange tales sometimes.

That's what the news is—driftwood—telling stories, old stories that sometimes makes the human hair rise and that turns the blood cold in the veins of the one who watches by the rail to see the drift come by.

Now, there's that little item in the paper this morning—the one about the Judge who told the man that he could not make his wife follow him to a farm, and he could not divorce her because she did not follow.

"She hates country life," said the Judge. "You cannot force her to live it. She has the same right to decide where she wants to live as you have." Drift, drift from strange shores, is that decision.

I wonder how they would think of it in North Carolina, where a man can have you arrested and fined if you give shelter, food, employment or even a word of encouragement to a wife who has left his bed and board without his permission, no matter what it was he did that made her go.

A great artist went with his wife to see her off on a long trip

WINIFRED BLACK.

the other day. "Yes," said the artist to the reporters, "I hate to see her go, but she has chosen the stage for her vocation. Who am I, to stand in her way? She is a human being first of all, you know," and no one was particularly surprised to hear him say it.

She Likes to Work.

A clever writer married a clever business woman a week or so ago, and he told his friends and hers that he did not expect her to give up her business to stay at home for him.

"She likes to work," he said. "Why should I take it upon myself to deny her her own life? Women are something more than the echo of men."

In a high school out West they find that the average height of the high school graduate is lowering for the boys and heightening for the girls.

The boy babies born at the great public hospital in Boston to-day are one inch shorter on the average than they were ten years ago. The girl babies are nearly an inch taller than they were ten years ago and weigh, on an average almost a pound more.

A newspaper in the Middle West interviewed the members of a graduating class of girls in a great school yesterday, and out of thirty girls, twenty-four said that they hoped they would not have to marry. Marriage was narrowing and cramping, they said.

Driftwood, driftwood! From what strange tides does it come these days! The bees—oh, yes—that's what I mean.

The bees have arranged all this affair of the feminine uprising—arranged it years and years ago.

The queen bee rules. She breeds the young, divides the hive into workers and drones. There is no mingling of the two classes at all. One bee is to gather honey, one is selected to found the future of the hive. When his work is done, out he goes. Is that what we are coming to, we humans, some day?

Will there be home women and work women, home men and work men, divided quite definitely into classes like the bees—each having his own special mission in life, and never dreaming of interfering with any other in any way?

"Career" Women.

Mother womep and "career" women, work women and beauty women, men workers and men home makers, how else shall we manage this affair of the woman who will not live as her husband wishes—else deal with the man who thinks that a woman should follow him wheresoever he lists to go, and howsoever he intends to do when he gets there? Bu-zz, bu-zz! How do you think of the bee idea, brother philosophers?

The drift, the drift! How pleasant it is to stand in the sunshine at the ship's rail and watch it slipping by, and speculate and dream, and hope, and wonder.

SONG OF THE GOOD ROAD

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner.

I AM a Road; a good road, fair and smooth and broad;
And I link with my beautiful tether
Town and Country together,
Like a ribbon rolled on the earth from the reel of God.
Oh, great the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a long road, leading on and on;
And I cry to the world to follow,
Past meadow and hill and hollow,
Through desolate night, to the open gates of dawn.
Oh, bold the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a kind road, shaped by strong hands.
I make strange cities neighbors;
The poor grow rich with my labors,
And beauty and comfort follow me through the lands.
Oh, glad the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a wise road, knowing all men's ways;
And I know how each heart reaches
For the things dear Nature teaches;
And I am the path that leads into green young Mays.
Oh, sweet the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I speed away from the slums,
Away from desolate places,
Away from unused spaces;
Wherever I go, there order from chaos comes.
Oh, brave the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I would make the whole world one.
I would give hope to duty,
And cover the earth with beauty.
Do you not see, Oh men! how all this might be done?
So vast the power of the Road!

A Trip to the Moon

He Gives Reasons Why It Can Not Be Made by Aeroplane, But Says It Might Be Made With the Aid of Inter-Atomic Energy.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

WITHIN a few weeks past I have been asked to address two different aeronautical societies on the curious subject of the possibilities of a trip to the moon.

As far as I am aware this does not indicate an intention on the part of any aviator to essay a voyage to our satellite, but, at least, it shows that the flying instinct is growing by what it feeds upon, and that, having navigated the air, practical men are giving a little extra rein to their imaginations, and wondering whether the empire of birds marks the ultimate frontier of human conquest.

In fact, the dream of going to the moon, which, in every age, has occupied daring minds, is hardly more impracticable at the present time than would have been a project, springing up in the mind of Balboa, of making ships sail across from the Atlantic to the great Western ocean which he saw from his paak in Darien.

But it is not the invention of either the aeroplane or the dirigible balloon that stimulates thoughtful minds at the present time to consider, half-seriously, the idea of a lunar voyage. The success of those inventions, defying scientific predictions and probabilities, only forms an incentive. It turns men's minds hopefully to things that heretofore they have regarded as lying beyond the limits of human power.

It has always been so. Every great advance has been a marvel at the beginning, derided or laughed at. Each one of them has been a victorious birth of the imagination. The greatest drag on progress is lack of faith in the hidden capacities of man.

"Verily, I say unto you, if ye have faith, as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain: 'Remove hence to yonder place,' and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

Only Beginning.

That is high authority for believing that we are only just beginning to discover the extent of our control over nature, and such things as wireless telegraphy, X-ray photography and the disintegration of atoms, with consequent unlocking of tremendous concealed energy, prove that hitherto we have been like the man who buried his talents in the earth instead of making them produce ten or a hundred fold.

Suppose we look at the subject of visiting the moon in the light of present knowledge. The distance in itself is nothing—240,000 miles! Many a sea captain has sailed much farther than that. It is less than ten times the circuit of the earth.

If the atmosphere extended from the earth to the moon, we could go there now by modifying our present apparatus. At a hundred days! But at a height of five or six miles the atmosphere becomes so rare that we could not live in it without an artificial supply. Yet unmanned balloons have gone ten miles high, and meteors take fire from friction at an elevation of a hundred miles or more.

Still the atmosphere does practically cease to exist at no very great elevation, and cuts short off the road of the balloon and the aeroplane.

We must turn to something else. The buoyant force of air enables us to overcome the gravitative attraction of the earth only up to a moderate height. Beyond that something more is needed. I have learned with surprise that many intelligent persons supose that if we once got outside the air motion would be unimpeded. For instance, a man said to me the other day:

"Suppose an aeroplane could mount straight up until it passed the limits of the atmosphere, then having nothing more to impede its motion, it would go on with whatever velocity it had when it left the air."

In fact, this could only occur in case the velocity of the aeroplane amounted to nearly seven miles per second, for that velocity would be required to completely overcome the pull of the earth's attraction. Otnerwise it would fall back to the earth.

This is the reason why Jules Verne, in his amusing story of "A Voyage to the Moon," had his adventurers shot out of an enormous cannon. Only in that way, he thought, could the requisite initial velocity be obtained.

A Bold Plan.

But a bold mind might, in view of recent discoveries, speculate on the illimitable power that may be obtained from unlocking the energies of the atoms of matter. Professor Thomson has calculated that a single gram of hydrogen has within it sufficient energy to lift a million tons a hundred yards high! Does anybody imagine that that unlimited store of energy is going forever to remain uncontrolled by human genius? We have discovered its existence; the next thing is to take it and use it.

Suppose we had it under control, as we shall have it some time. Then reflect upon the close relation between atomic phenomena and electricity, and recall the familiar experiment of making bits of pith fly away from an electrically charged ball. If we could construct some kind of a car that could be powerfully charged with electric energy we might be able to make it fly away from the earth as the pith balls fly from the charged conductor of the electric machine.

The Problem Solved.

Then it would be necessary to establish a system of control by which the speed and direction could be regulated by varying the charge—AND THE PROBLEM OF NAVIGATING SPACE WOULD BE SOLVED. I have developed this (of course purely hypothetical) idea somewhat farther in a story called "A Columbus of Space."

Such a method would avoid all the difficulties, really insuperable, that hampered Jules Verne's plan of a projectile starting at a velocity of almost seven miles per second.

However, when we get the atomic energies under control our first efforts will be directed to making more money out of them, and trips to the moon will only begin to pay after we have got tired of purely earthly things.

A Fine Old Heathen

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

WONDERFUL in a far more useful way than we find it described in the "Arabian Nights" was the fine old heathen known as Haroun Al Raschid, who died eleven hundred and four years ago.

In a time of intense bigotry and cruelty he was tolerant and merciful. In an age of blackest ignorance and brutal indifference to every form of intellectual enlightenment, he was deeply interested in learnings, and employed every aid at his command for the elimination of the superstition that was sitting like an incubus upon the breast of humanity.

While Christian Europe lay in the shadow of its seemingly irremediable ignorance, Bagdad was cultivating the sciences out of which was to come the world's mental resurrection. While the Christian teachers were asserting the flatness of the earth the Mohammedan doctors of Bagdad and Cordova, Seville and Alexandria were teaching geography in the common schools from globes. While in London and Paris they were practicing and professing to cure men's ills through the agency of charms, trinkets and incantations, in the great Mesopotamian capital they were treating the sick upon the principles of science and common sense.

So famous was Al Raschid's medical school at Bagdad that the great and mighty Charlemagne issued a decree that no man should practice medicine in his dominions without first having passed a satisfactory examination before the Bagdad faculty. And th. old Mohammedan's heart was as sound as his mine, for be it remembered that at the time Charlemagne was using fire and sword against all who would not, or could not, accept the theological beliefs he had sworn to champion, Haroun Al Raschid was doing all he could to protect Charlemagne's subjects in the full exercise of their religion.

MEMBER OF POSSE SHOT BY BANDITS

CATCH GANG AFTER HOT FIGHT; ONE WOUNDED

Joe E. King, a prominent merchant of Baldwin, Ga., who was badly wounded in a battle with alleged bandits Thursday morning at 11 o'clock near Cornelia, was brought to Atlanta Thursday afternoon and taken to the Atlanta hospital.

King, after being wounded, fired six shots and wounded Dan White, who is being given medical attention at Baldwin.

King was a member of a posse of citizens that had trapped the bandits in the woods near Cornelia. White was the only one wounded. The other two, Jim Ellison and ManuelDuckworth, a negro, were captured and placed in jail.

The three men had been sought for several days, believed to be a gang of burglars that had terrorized that section, robbing various stores.

As the result of the shooting of King, much excitement is reported in the vicinity of Baldwin. King was shot in the thigh. His condition is not considered serious.

Cool Weather Just Ahead, Forecaster's Solemn Assurance

Cooler weather is on the way.

"Fair and warm" is the forecast for Thursday, but moderate breezes sifting through the West and Middle West are due to reach Atlanta at no distant date. Possibly Thursday afternoon may bring a little relief from the high temperature of the last two weeks. Thunder showers are anticipated in the Atlanta territory, and if the city is so fortunate as to lie in the path of the rain it may enjoy moderate weather for a day or two.

This announcement was made by the United States Weather Bureau Thursday morning, and it brought joy unlimited. The drop in temperature may be as much as 8 or 10 degrees, according to official dope. Temperature at 7 o'clock Thursday morning was 75 degrees. At 8 it was 80.

Dr. Joseph Jacobs, Atlanta Druggist, Weds in New York

Announcement was made late Thursday of the marriage of Dr. Joseph Jacobs, wealthy Atlanta druggist, to Mrs. M. E. Dickens, of Philadelphia, at high noon at the Plaza Hotel, New York city. Several close friends of Dr. Jacobs and members of his family were present.

The Atlantans in the party were Miss Daisy Jacobs, sister of Dr. Jacobs; his son, Sinclair Jacobs; Mrs. Evelyn Sweet Prescot, Walter Rich, Rudolph Adler and Eugene Oberdofer. They will return to Atlanta immediately.

Dr. Jacobs and his bride will sail Monday for a three months' tour of Europe. Mrs. Jacobs is well known socially in Philadelphia. Dr. Jacobs is one of the best loved men in Atlanta. He is famous as a devotee of Robert Burns.

1,600,000 Illinois Women Now Voters

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., June 26.—Governor E. F. Dunne to-day signed the woman suffrage bill. His act gave to 1,600,000 women of Illinois the right to take part in the election of all officials except those created by the Constitution.

The signing of the bill marked the culmination of a 23-year fight by women to gain the right to even a limited franchise.

Urges Underwood For Presidential Candidate in 1916

Oscar Underwood for President of the United States in 1916 is the slogan of Judge G. R. Hutchens, of Rome, who managed the Underwood campaign in Georgia last year. Judge Hutchens stopped Thursday at the Hotel Aragon, where he will remain for several days.

"Underwood is the logical man for the presidency," said Judge Hutchens Thursday afternoon, "and we are going to put him in the race long before the next election rolls around.

"Last year some people and one Atlanta newspaper in particular hotted at us when we proposed Underwood's name for the presidency, but they had nothing whatever to say when the primary vote showed that the Alabama man had swept Georgia by 15,000 votes. We can duplicate that vote in 1916."

JUDGE SPEER RAPS U. S. ATTORNEY GENERAL

SIOUX CITY, IOWA, June 26.—Severe criticism of the Attorney General of the United States for having him investigated by special agents and secret service men in the employ of the Department of Justice was the feature of the address of Judge Emory Speer, of the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia, before the Iowa Bar Association today. He also stated that the detectives are liable for contempt of court for operating in the presence of the court.

Judge Speer spoke to the Iowa lawyers, who are in annual meeting here, on "The Debt the American People Owe the American Judges." When he had finished that subject he discussed the action of the Department of Justice in probing his personal and judicial record.

Questions Right to Probe.

Judge Speer said, in part:

"More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Federal judge is the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the arbitrary espionage or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name? I speak impersonally and with all deference and respect for the distinguished official who is ex-officio the leader of the American bar."

Hints at Contempt of Court.

Judge Speer then stated that the examiner had appeared in court, made copious notes with significant gestures, conferred with disgruntled attorneys, received letters from convicts in the penitentiary, interviewed stubborn debtors who had been forced by the court to pay their obligations and examined newspaper files.

"The examiner, and I speak of him with great respect, even with timid deprecation, works in a mysterious way his wonders to perform," said the Judge, adding:

"He holds the fate of the judge in the hollow of his hand. And all the while, be it remembered, there are no charges pending against the judge, where such charges should be made. The examiner imparts to the judge no information whatever of any complaint. There is no chance for defense.

"This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor. If proper with a district judge, it is equally appropriate with the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States.

"For action less directly in the presence of the court, less interfering with the administration of justice, men have been convicted for contempt of court, and the convictions have been sustained."

MACON, June 26.—D. J. Bailey, chief examiner for the Department of Justice in the Southern States, has augmented the force of inspectors who have been at work in Macon and this district for several weeks in the investigation of the judicial and personal record of Judge Emory Speer. He arrived yesterday afternoon and immediately held a conference with District Attorney Alex Akerman.

Last night he left for Savannah, where Special Examiners Lewis and Jenkins are already engaged. Mr. Bailey declines to state the purpose of his mission, referring all inquirers to the Attorney General.

CHAINGANGS REFORMED BY BILL IN SENATE

Sweeping changes in the prison system of the State of Georgia are provided by a bill introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator A. H. Foster, of the Twenty-seventh District.

Senator Foster's bill, which he declares meets with the approval of Senate leaders, contains the following important provisions:

To provide for the inspection of all county jails.

To abolish the county chaingang.

To provide an indeterminate sentence in both felony and misdemeanor cases.

To arrange for the parole and after-care of prisoners.

To define the meaning of and disposition of habitual criminals.

To provide for a system of grades, classifications and credits of convicts while in the penitentiary.

To provide for the appointment and compensation of wardens and guards for the penitentiary.

Indorsed by Reformers.

Senator Foster stated shortly after introducing his bill that in addition to having the support of influential members of the Senate, the measure has the backing of the Georgia Prison Reform Association. The bill, Senator Foster stated, embodies the results of the investigations of the association and Philip Weltner, and in addition contains some ideas of his own.

Senator Foster declared that while he expected that some amendments would be made in the bill before it is passed, he would concentrate his efforts to retaining the wording of the original bill in the section relating to indeterminate sentences. This, he declared, was the most needed reform in Georgia prison methods.

The phrase "to abolish the county chaingang," in the caption of the bill, is confusing, inasmuch as slight reference is made to it in the body of the measure.

Senator Foster stated that his idea was not so much to totally abolish the chaingang system as to make it impossible to work negroes and whites together. He hopes, he says, to abolish the mixed chaingangs and segregate the races.

The sections of the bill set forth that the policy of the State shall hereafter be to so deal with convicts "that their punishment may serve to discipline them to right conceptions of citizenship."

Board Members Inspectors.

The burden of the inspection of prisons and jails is placed upon the State Prison Commission, which, declares the bill, shall provide for "quarterly visitation of all county jails and aid in their just, humane and economic administration." The Commission shall make a report of each visit to the Governor.

Instead of the fixed sentence, Senator Foster's bill declares that when any prisoner is convicted of a felony or misdemeanor the court shall pronounce an indeterminate sentence.

The bill also impresses upon the Prison Commission the necessity of segregating the youthful prisoners from the old and hardened offenders.

One of the strong and unusual features of the bill is a section providing that all moneys earned by the convict shall be paid to his family or others dependent upon him. The payment is placed in the hands of the Prison Commission.

All prisoners save lifers on charge of treason, arson or criminal assault are granted the privilege of applying to the Governor and the Prison Commission for parole three months be-

Mrs. Emmie Baker's Funeral Thursday

The funeral of Mrs. Emmie Louise Baker, who died suddenly of heart failure at her home, 280 North Moreland Avenue, will be held at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening at the residence.

Mrs. Baker, who was the widow of the late P. H. Baker, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stringer, of Talbot County, and lived in Troy, Ala., up to fifteen years ago. She was a member of the Ponce DeLeon Avenue Baptist Church, and had been prominently identified with church work.

Surviving Mrs. Baker are three sons and four daughters, P. D. and Gordon Baker, of Atlanta; Charles Baker, of Birmingham; Mrs. C. H. Richards, of New York; Mrs. C. L. Ruse, Mrs. C. H. Strong and Miss Emmie Baker, of Atlanta.

Last Militant of 7 Wins Hunger Strike.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 26.—The last of the seven suffragists sentenced to prison terms June 17 for malicious destruction of property was released from jail to-day because of illness brought on by a hunger strike. She was Miss Harriet Roberta Kerr, aged 64, manager of the headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union.

Six of the seven were women; the seventh was E. A. Clayton, who mixed explosives for the women.

Street Awning Falls, Knocking Out Driver

W. L. Claire, 179 South Pryor Street, driver for the Southern Express Company, was seriously injured early Thursday morning when struck on the head by a falling awning rod in Whitehall Street. He was taken to Grady Hospital.

Eyewitnesses said the top of the express wagon struck the awning, causing it to fall. Claire was rendered unconscious.

Atlanta Tennis Players in Front

NEW ORLEANS, LA., June 26.—Considerable progress was made today in the Southern tennis championship matches.

In the most interesting match of the early ones Carleton Smith and Eston Mansfield, of Atlanta, the former the present Southern champion, defeated Pipes and Maginnis, of New Orleans, 6-3, 6-1, 7-5.

In the singles Adoue defeated Shelton, 6-4, 6-4. Both are Memphians.

Many matches were postponed on account of rain.

If Wifey Balks at Getting Breakfast, Try Broyles' Menu

Recorder Broyles Thursday recommended a special breakfast menu for those husbands whose wives decline to get up early and prepare the meal.

Sliced bananas and apples are the ingredients.

He suggested this menu to E. L. Perkins, of 140 Julian Street, a railroad man, who was up for beating his wife because she had failed to cook his breakfast. Perkins, however, told the Recorder he hardly thought bananas and apples sufficient for a railroad man. He was placed on probation.

Slayers Get $100,000 In Cash and Jewels

LOS ANGELES, June 26.—Gems and cash amounting to $100,000 were stolen by the robbers who murdered Charles E. Pennell, wealthy money lender and real estate broker, in his office yesterday.

The murder of Pennell was extremely brutal. Hatchets covered with blood stains were found in the room adjoining his office in a busy downtown building. Pennell's diamond ring and diamond shirt stud were stolen.

Wilson Assailed as Hypocrite by Mann

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Scoring President Wilson for overruling Attorney General McReynolds in the California white slavery cases, Representative Mann to-day declared the action taken by the President was pure hypocrisy.

"Manliness," continued Mann, "such as I would have expected of a Christian gentleman in the White House, would have led him to ask District Attorney McNab to withdraw the offer of his resignation."

Harris, of Georgia, Gets Census Job

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Senate to-day confirmed W. J. Harris, of Georgia, as Director of the BILL CALLS FOR INVESTIGATION OF W. & A.

Senate Gets Measure Providing That Committee Report on Road at Next Session.

fore the expiration of the minimum time which they may be required to serve.

A resolution authorizing the appointment of a legislative committee of eight to investigate the State's railroad, the Western and Atlantic, and determine upon its proper disposal, was introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator J. T. Longino, of the Thirty-sixth District.

The committee is to be composed of three from the Senate and five from the House, and will do its work during the recess of the General Assembly. The members are to be paid their usual per diem and expenses, and shall report at the next meeting of the General Assembly.

Senator Longino's resolution specifically states that the committee shall investigate the best plan for "the renting of the property, and improving the State's property in Chattanooga."

No mention is made of the activities of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, or of the State convention proposed by that body.

Donaldson Would Bar Reformers From Camp.

Prison reformers will be barred from the convict camps in Fulton County, according to a resolution drawn by Superintendent T. J. Donaldson Thursday, which probably will be passed by the County Commission at its next meeting.

The resolution puts the ban on the "small army of ministers" and "all-day Sunday services" as well. A "convict parson" will be employed to preach regularly at each of the six camps. He will be prohibited from bringing more than one person with him. The service will be limited to one hour, from 11 to 12 o'clock each Sunday forenoon.

"I am getting tired of all this reform talk from people who do not know what they are talking about," said Captain Donaldson.

Satisfied Till Reformers Arrive.

"The condition of nine of every ten convicts of the 700 in this county is 100 per cent better than it was before they violated the law and received a sentence. Without an exception, the general health is better.

"The men have clean beds, get wholesome food and live under sanitary conditions that are far superior to anything they have known before. They are usually pretty well satisfied until Sunday, when these ministers and reformers worry them for several hours they could better enjoy in rest.

"Our convict system is about as good as any in the world. The idea that the men leave greater criminals than they were before they came to us is absurd. Some of them don't like work and would welcome the reform and flowery beds of ease, but if there is any good in a man he is willing to pay for what he has done without a murmur.

"The work reforms as many of the men as the ministers do. They leave us in a much better condition than they were when we got them and at least half start a new life.

"Those who do not reform could not be reformed unless a shotgun was used. If the conditions the reformers seek were brought about I would get rid of my property in Fulton County and go to some other State."

Captain Donaldson will urge the county board to adopt his resolution when it is presented, and he thinks it will be adopted.

Committees To Be Announced Next Week.

The various committee assignments in both Houses will not be announced before next week, as the framing of them is perhaps the very hardest and most exacting work that will come before the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House during the entire session.

President Anderson and Speaker Burwell began working on committee assignments immediately after adjournment yesterday, but it will require a week, perhaps, to finish the undertaking.

It seems to be an acceped fact that Representative Blackburn, of Fulton, is to be the House floor leader, inasmuch as he is reported slated to head the Committee on Rules, while it is freely rumored about the Capitol today that President Anderson proposes to evidence his entire friendship and good will toward his late rival, Judge Allen, the Senator from the Twentieth District, by offering him his choice between the chairmanship of the Finance and the Constitutional Amendments Committee in the Senate.

Both these suggested assignments apparently meet with the approval of the Houses involved, for nothing but commendation of them is heard on any hand.

Indeed, the fine feeling in the Senate, following the strenuous struggle for the presidency thereof, is remarked by every one, and it now looks as if the new Legislature is to get away with its work in a spirit of genuine good fellowship and mutual respect all around.

Certainly for the first time in ten years Georgia appears to have on hand a General Assembly that may be classed neither as a "Smith" nor a "Brown" body.

Beyond the suggestion of Blackburn for vice chairman of the Committee on Rules in the House and Allen for either Finance or Constitutional amendments in the Senate, the "dope" on the committee line-ups is pretty bad. Neither President Anderson nor Speaker Burwell will discuss the matter at all.

For the next two days the Legislature will do little more than "mark time," anticipating the inauguration of the new Governor and the winding up of the present administration.

Message Divides Members.

Preparations for Governor Slaton's inauguration on Saturday already are well under way. The ceremony will be quiet and dignified, the new Governor breaking a long line of precedents in Georgia, however, by delivering his message orally to the Legislature in joint session, rather than sending it in separately to both Houses, as a written document.

Short Thursday Session; Canvass Vote for Slaton.

Both the Senate and House of Representatives convened at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, but will have but a short hour in which to transact their individual business, as a joint meeting is scheduled.

At the joint session the vote for Governor will be canvassed and John M. Slaton formally declared elected. Beyond this neither House will hardly handle much business. Friday is expected to be a busy day, while Saturday will be devoted to the inauguration ceremonies.

Flow of Bills Begins in Senate.

The following bills were introduced in the Senate Wednesday morning:

By Senator Pope, of the Forty-fourth District, and Senator Hixon, of the Thirty-seventh—A bill to exempt from taxation farm products, including baled cotton grown in this State.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill to establish the new county of Tate, with Fairmount as the county seat.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill to compel two or more railroads entering a town or city to erect a union passenger station.

By Senator Smith, of the Ninth—A bill to empower judges of the Superior Courts to grant charters to private companies in vacation.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill permitting administrators to sue in homicide cases.

New Bills in Senate.

Among the bills introduced in the Senate to-day were:

By Searcy—To prohibit one person purchasing from another any spirituous or intoxicating liquors.

By Tarver—To give courts of original jurisdiction authority in certain cases to mold sentences so as to allow defendants upon the rendition of the verdict of guilty, to serve same outside the confines of chaingang, jail, etc.

By Tyson—To create the county of Evans.

By Ford—To rearrange the Albany and Southwestern Judicial Circuits, by transferring Dougherty County to the Southwestern Circuit.

By Tyson—To create the county of Hampton.

By Oliff—To amend an act creating a Board of Commissioners of Roads and Revenues for Charlton County.

By Stark—To amend an act creating the City Court of Jefferson.

By Pope and Oliff—To provide for the payment of fees now allowed by law to Ordinary as compensation for pension work.

Fixes Ordinaries' Fees.

By Oliff—To fix fees of ordinaries in this State.

By Elkins—To amend an act creating the City Court of Fitzgerald.

By Elkins—To amend sections of the code relative to mechanics' liens.

By DuBose—A bill to amend the charter of the city of Athens.

By Bush—To regulate insurance companies.

By DuBose—To amend the code relating to building and loan associations.

By Rushin—To repeal an act to establish the City Court of Vienna.

By Elkins—To regulate the meshes of seines, nets and traps.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Men

Send Name and Address To-day—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow-men to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest acting restorative, up-building SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4276 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

UNION MEN MAKE HOT REPLY TO GOVERNOR

The Atlanta Federation of Trades Thursday issued a formal reply to Governor Brown, denouncing the charges contained in his message as a cruel and clumsy effort to enlist the rural voter against the city toiler. Here is the reply in part:

"The message of Governor Brown to the Legislature yesterday, wherein he took occasion to malign and condemn the labor unions and their members, was a malicious and unwarranted attack upon honorable, law-abiding citizens of the State and deserving of as much consideration as any other class even though they do happen to be working people. He takes an undue advantage of those he slanders and assaults without provocation by embodying this arraignment in his message to the Legislature, knowing that it would be printed by the press of the State and gain widespread publicity, a cheap way of advertising.

Called Campaign Talk.

"To one conversant with the real facts and conditions which were, in garbled fashion, made the subject of this utterly demagogic and specious harangue, this uncalled for and vicious attack upon organized labor, only utter contempt could be excited thereby.

"That the governor has issued this message as a campaign document and attempts to array the country voter against the town and city voter, is demonstrably true. A more cruel yet clumsy effort to enlist the prejudices of the rural voter against his brother in toil upon the railroad, factory and workshop has never been exhibited.

"He attempts to make it appear that unions are exacting a tax from the farmer which he knew was untrue when he wrote the statement, but believing that the farmer had no more sense than to believe this, and with an effort to appeal to them through this tax proposition and array the farmer against the city workmen is vindictive within itself, and at the same time he hopes to gain the good will of the manufacturer that opposes the unions and secure contributions to further his political aspirations, at least it has this appearance and time will make known the true facts in this connection.

"Organized labor stands for the uplift of humanity and its record is an open book for the inspection of the public in general.

Says Unions Sought Peace.

"He proposes that labor go into the courts to adjust their difficulties and we ask what jurisdiction the courts have over wage disputes and grievances affecting the working conditions. He was fully aware that the courts could do no such thing and uses this as a subterfuge to blind the public, or at least hopes to do so.

"He makes no mention at all, in connection with the strikes he refers to, that the employers were even in any way responsible for the conflict and attempts to place the entire responsibility on the unions. It will be remembered that the unions were anxious to arbitrate these differences at all times, but the employers refused to accede to this method of adjustment until public sentiment, through the third party mentioned by Governor Brown, forced them to do so.

"To say that labor unions are a 'trust' is in accord with other misstatements in the message and we direct attention to the rulings of the courts which he requests unions to appeal to.

Berries Eaten on Trip Into the Country Make Three Youngsters Ill.

The three children of Captain Lamar Poole, of the Atlanta police department, were reported Thursday morning as having recovered from the effects of ptomaine poisoning which they suffered while on a picnic.

Mrs. Poole said she had taken the children to the country Wednesday, and thought possibly they had been in the hot sun too much, or that the berries and sweet corn they had eaten for lunch had disagreed with them. A hurry call to police headquarters announced that they had been strangely poisoned.

The first signs that the children were suffering became evident at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Wallace, aged 12; Douglas, 8, and Elsie, 3 years old, were taken violently ill simultaneously after they had returned to their home at 255 Glennwood Avenue.

Chief Beavers hastened to the Poole home with a surgeon from the Grady Hospital. When they arrived, however, Captain Poole and Dr. Virgil Cook were there, and the children were soon relieved.

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by Jacobs' Pharmacy under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

Conscience Sends Man to Chaingang

WAYCROSS, June 26.—Upon a plea of guilty of larceny after trust, Judge McDonald to-day sentenced A. L. Christian to serve twelve months on the chaingang or pay a fine of $150.

Christian surrendered in Richmond, Va., telling the police his conscience would not let him rest. He disappeared with $100 belonging to a Waycross fruit dealer.

Knew Assailants, Dies With Secret

CHICAGO, June 26.—Two men were saved from possible death today by the death of John Walsh, a saloonkeeper. Walsh knew the two men who recently assaulted and robbed him. He refused to tell the police who they were. Even when told that he was about to die he retained his secret, saying:

"I'll take care of them myself. I'm no squealer. I know 'em and I'll get 'em. I want to fight my own battles."

HATRED OF OWN FAMILY LEADS DOOMED CONVICT TO AUCTION OFF HIS BODY

FORSYTH, GA., June 26.—Hatred of his own family has prompted Thomas A. McCullough, a convict in the Monroe County chaingang, to advertise his own body for sale to the highest bidder.

Self-sworn never again to have anything to do with his relatives, he is now in mortal fear that his body after death will be turned over to them for burial. McCullough's fear has been increased by the physician's statement that he is suffering from heart disease and has not long to live.

The money which his body would bring is a secondary matter to the convict. His one real desire is that death shall not seal the breach which he has cherished and broadened in life between himself and his family. Therefore, by disposal of his body to some medical school for experiments he hopes to eliminate this possibility.

"Cut Up While Alive."

"Why shouldn't they buy me?" McCullough exclaimed as he leaned his great, hairy body against his pick and looked down at his interviewer. "I've been cut up while alive and I wouldn't care if they cut me up after I am dead.

"If I've got a thing to do with it, not a single member of my family will get my body when I die. I don't want them to have a thing to do with me. I'd rather be left out for the buzzards than be turned over to them."

McCullough's strange hatred is founded upon his belief that his family "turned him up" when he was in hiding from the officers of the law following his escape from the camp some months ago.

He had been sentenced to eighteen years' penal servitude for the murder of a negro in Spalding County. The deed was the outcome of a quarrel between the two in a gambling game.

Caught After Three Months.

McCullough was sent to the Morgan County convict camp, but escaped three months later. Eluding the officers through briar patches and woods, the fugitive finally made his way back to his home in Spalding County. He remained there in hiding for two months. Then he was discovered by the officers and sent to the State farm at Milledgeville. His last words to his family as he was taken from his home were curses on them for having "turned him up," or betrayed him to the law. Whether they did or not was never proven.

From the Milledgeville institution McCullough was sent to join the Monroe County chaingang. He has now served 15 months of his 18-year term.

McCullough is an extremist in all things. Physically he is a powerful man; mentally he is without moral sense, and while he is the most desperate character in the camp and the only man prisoner over whom a guard keeps watch day and night, still he is the best worker of them all.

In the camp McCullough remains aloof from his fellow prisoners. He suffers from melancholia a great deal and has nursed his hatred against his family until the flame has blazed into almost a mania.

Only Nature Softens Him.

Only the sight of some pet or captured animal about the camp quiets him. Then his nature changes instantly, and from the cursing half-maniac the powerful man becomes a child, and his hatred is drowned in his love for the things of nature.

Only recently did the convict learn of his malady, that he was afflicted with heart disease. When informed of this he was struck with terror, not of death, but the probable disposal of his body. He had visions of his still form surrounded by his family—the ones he hated. Then it was that he wrote out the advertisement and sent it to The Georgian for publication. Here it is:

FOR SALE—To the highest bidder for cash, I offer my body, which is 6 feet high, weighs 175 pounds, is large frame, well proportioned, 40 years of age and Caucasian race.

I have a sentence of 18 years for killing a negro in Griffin in 1911 and have no prospects, no hopes and no friends, hence, being in bad health, I am asking this proposition. Anyone wishing to consummate a trade, address Thomas A. McCullough, Box 271, Care Monroe County Convict Camp.

NEWPORT BEGINS FIGHT ON TROTS AND TANGO

Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., prominent young society matron, who is introducing classic dancing in her set at Newport.

Younger Set of Millionaire Colony Engages Instructor for New Dances.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—During the coming season, which gives promise of being one of the most brilliant in the history of the fashionable colony, fancy dancing will be one of the popular diversions.

The younger set, of which Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., is a leader, has engaged an instructor, and dancing quite dissimilar to the popular tango and turkey trot will play an important role in the amusements of the millionaire cottage colony.

Mrs. Spencer, who is a member of the Casino Tennis Committee and active in the numerous affairs in which the younger set is interested, is an accomplished dancer herself, and any new forms of dancing inaugurated by her are certain to be taken up and followed by the young people of Newport. The colony is awaiting this innovation with interest.

Mrs. Spencer won particular admiration from society when she danced at the big benefit of the girls' branch of the Public School Athletic League, given at the Waldorf in New York last February. Her artistic Swedish dances in costume won her a tremendous ovation and three times she was asked to repeat them.

MACON BUSINESS MAN INSANE IN ST. LOUIS

Friend of B. Sanders Walker Falls Victim of Heat While on Northern Trip.

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—Temporarily insane from the effects of the hot weather and alcoholic excesses, Patum Dean, 33 years old, of Macon, Ga., a friend of B. Sanders Walker, the Macon banker who died from the effects of bichloride of mercury taken by mistake for aspirin, is held here in the observation ward at the City Hospital following an attempt to swallow some of the poison which caused his friend's death.

Dean is connected with the Bibb Sewer and Pipe Company, of Macon, and the Evans & Howard Sewer and Pipe Company, of St. Louis. He came to St. Louis Sunday to confer with officials of the latter concern. He remained at the American Hotel until Monday, then checked out. Wednesday he called on his nephew, John Gentry, city passenger agent of the Southern Railroad. He was unable to give any account of his whereabouts since Monday.

Dean has a wife and four children in Macon.

MAYOR SCORES HIS ACCUSERS AS 'LIARS'

Abandons "Polite Words" in Denying Charge That He Opposes Crematory to Aid Power Co.

Mayor James G. Woodward Thursday branded as infamous liars all persons who persist in attributing his opposition to the crematory contract to a desire to help the Georgia Railway and Power Company.

Polite and parliamentary denials of the charge that he opposes the crematory because it embraces in its plans an electrical plant and repeated disavowals of any connection with the power company have failed to prevent anonymous charges of ulterior motives against him, the Mayor said.

"If they won't take polite language, I'll have to hand it to them more forcibly," said the Mayor. And he did.

"I have said time and again that the electrical plant had nothing to do with my position regarding the crematory," the Mayor continued. "I have nothing either for or against the electric plant. The power company has fought me, and I have said time and again that I am not trying to help them. I don't owe them anything except a fair deal.

"The situation is this: I want a contract independent of the one the courts enjoined, and I want a waterproof bond to protect the city. I take it that the papers before me now have possible loopholes in them. When the courts enjoined the first contract the General Council asked the Destructor Company for a proposition. The proposition was made and the General Council accepted it. This proposition continually regards the contract of 1912, which the courts enjoined. I don't see why they can't write out a contract complete in itself. If a contract like this is presented to me I will sign it.

"Since I have said repeatedly that this was what I insisted on I see no grounds for repeating the charges that I am acting in the interest of the power company. Those who do repeat them are liars, and I have no objection to your printing that."

On account of Alderman J. H. Harwell's motion to reconsider the crematory proposition will not be officially before the Mayor until July 10. Until that time, the Mayor said, it would be advisable to indulge in less palaver and crimination.

Still at Outs With Humphrey.

The breach between Mayor Woodward and Councilman W. G. Humphrey, chairman of the Council Finance Committee, apparently was as wide as ever Thursday, despite alleged denials.

"I said I had lost patience with the Mayor in his attitude on this matter, and I have," said Councilman Humphrey. "One time he told me he would sign the contract, and the next time he refused. I don't know what else can be done to please him.

"My conclusion is that he is unalterably opposed to the plant, and that whatever favorable attitude he has shown has been a stall and a 'four-flush.'"

Mayor Woodward said Councilman Humphrey used no hot words to him, but that he positively disagreed with him in the crematory contract.

Pictures Slaying In Confessing Crime

COLUMBUS, June 26.—Indications are that there will be no preliminary hearing given Homer Carmack, the young man held in Lee County, Alabama, jail in Opelika, for killing J. J. Folks, Phenix City merchant, but that he will be held for the Grand Jury, which assembles the first Monday in July.

Officers believe that there is no doubt of his guilt. In his partial confession Carmack implicated two other men, who have offered alibis, and pictured the slaying in a graphic manner.

THE SUCCESSFUL WINNERS IN PENMANSHIP CONTEST AT THE SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE

The Department of Penmanship Popularizing the Big Business School.

Good penmanship is one of the greatest aids to Business College students in securing positions, and that is why the Southern Shorthand and Business University, of this city, gives special attention to this important branch.

Miss Minnie Yancey and Mr. J. M. Harding are the tie winners in the Penmanship Contest just closed at the Southern, and they were awarded the prizes.

Another contest is now on, and much interest is being taken by the large and enthusiastic class of students.

Professor R. C. Childs, the principal of the Penmanship and Business Department, is a graduate of the Zanerian Art School, of Columbus, Ohio, the finest school of pen art in the world. The results achieved by the pupils under Professor Childs' direction are something wonderful. The course in penmanship alone is worth the amount charged for the entire business course; but it goes in absolutely free of cost to those taking either the Bookkeeping or Shorthand course.

MISS MINNIE YANCEY,
A Winner in the Penmanship Contest at the S. S. & B. U.

J. M. HARDING,
A Winner in the Penmanship Contest at the S. S. & B. U.

The business men prefer the Southern's graduates, because the Southern has stood for thoroughness; its bookkeepers are expert, and its stenographers are rapid and accurate.

"If several young persons, who were graduates of different business schools, should apply to me for a position at the same time, I would engage the one holding a diploma from the Southern Shorthand and Business University," said a prominent Atlanta business man to a prospective pupil who was making inquiry about business colleges.

Many are entering now and there is no better time to take a business or shorthand course than the present.

Salesmanship Course free to all entering for any other course before July 4. Call or write for catalog. Address, A. C. Briscoe, President, or L. W. Arnold, Vice President, 10 West Mitchell Street, Atlanta, Ga.

BROWN ADVISES AGAINST W. & A. EXTENSION

Cost, $20,000,000, Too Great to Be Compatible With State's Policy, Says Message.

Opposition to the extension of the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the sea was expressed in a message sent by Governor Brown to the Legislature. The cost of building such a road, which, it is said, would be about $20,000,000, is the reason given by Governor Brown for his opposition.

That the rental of such an addition, if possible to lease it, would not amount to more than the interest on the bonds, thus leaving nothing with which to pay off the principal, is one of the arguments advanced by him against the building of the road.

Governor Brown suggests that the State of Georgia might forever control its freight rates by obtaining a concession of land from Tennessee, giving it a frontage of a mile on the Tennessee River. A short branch could be built from the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the river and connection made with boats from Ohio and Mississippi River points. This, he states, could be done at a cost of $3,000,000.

That the Governor be authorized to appoint a commission to investigate the re-leasing of the Western and Atlantic is also suggested in the message.

Jordan to Preach Bryan Idea Abroad

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Dr. David Starr Jordan, Chancellor of Leland Stanford University, who is starting on a year's tour of the world to lecture in England, China, Australia and elsewhere on the peace movement, called on Secretary Bryan to-day and told him that he thoroughly approved and would preach the doctrines of Mr. Bryan's proposed peace treaties.

STOVER GIRL IS REAL STAR IN FRANK CASE

State, However, Must Prove She Entered Factory Before Mary Phagan.

With the selection of the court room made Thursday, all is virtually in readiness for the trial of Leo M. Frank, accused of strangling Mary Phagan. The venire of jurymen has been selected and July 28 fixed as the date, and both sides have announced they are ready to go into court.

A definite decision was reached by Judge L. S. Roan to hold the trial on the first floor of the old City Hall building. The decision was reached after a conference with Solicitor General Dorsey, and it was represented as impracticable to hold the trial in the small and not well-ventilated court room in the Thrower building.

The State is maintaining its determined attitude toward the subpenas duces tecum issued by the defense. Frank A. Hooper, assisting in the prosecution, has branded them as a palpable trick to discredit the testimony of the State's witnesses.

Girl Star Witness.

The witnesses will be present with the affidavits called for, but a hot fight will be put up by Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Hooper to prevent their use by the defense.

Monteen Stover, a timid little 14-year-old girl, will be a star witness in the trial, according to all indications Thursday.

The State, if it is able to establish that Monteen Stover entered the factory on the day of the crime just after Mary Phagan went inside, will have scored a most significant victory. The evidence will still be circumstantial, it is true, but it will be of greater weight even than the weird stories of the negro sweeper, Jim Conley, who has sworn that he aided Frank in disposing of the body.

Adds to Mystery.

Her story, however, until it is substantiated or disproved in court, only adds to the mystery of a crime which already abounds in baffling and mysterious phases. Her appearance on the witness stand may mean everything or nothing—because there is the startling fact that every indication points to Monteen Stover having entered the factory BEFORE Mary Phagan.

Monteen Stover is the daughter of Mrs. Homer Edmonson, of 171 South Forsyth Street. She formerly was employed at the pencil factory, and on the Saturday of the murder went to the building to get her money. She said that she arrived there at 12:05 and remained about five minutes. She said that Frank was not in his office and that she was not able to find him.

Pitted against the declaration of the little girl is the statement of Frank that he was in his office at the time. One of the two apparently has spoken falsely or mistakenly. It is the theory of the State that Mary Phagan had preceded Monteen Stover into the factory; that Frank had attacked her probably in the metal room, and that this is the reason the Stover girl was unable to find Frank in his office when she was in the building from 12:05 to 12:10.

The Phagan girl left her home at 11:50. She lives in Bellwood and the ride to town takes more than 15 minutes. The time that she left the car in the city is fixed by William M. Matthews, Motorman No. 1447, of the Cooper and Hendricks Streets run, who says that his car arrived at Broad and Marietta Streets that day between 12:07 and 12:10 o'clock.

If Mary Phagan had hurried, she barely could have got to the factory by the time the Stover girl was leaving, if this testimony can be relied upon implicity. The Stover girl's story falls down utterly, so far as its value is concerned, therefore, if Mary Phagan did not come into the factory until after the Stover girl had left.

COTTON TARIFF A MESS, SAYS EXPERT

R. K. MacLea Writes O'Gorman Lobby Cry Drove Honest Business Men Away.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Robert K. MacLea, associate editor of Dry Goods and formerly consulting expert of the Tariff Board, has sent to United States Senator James A. O'Gorman a letter in which he criticised the cotton changes in the Underwood tariff bill made by the Senate committee and declared that the sub-committee in making them "has been misled by its experts, as I feared likely."

Mr. MacLea has had 25 years' experience in all branches of the cotton trade and his plain talk to Senator O'Gorman will, it is believed, attract much attention at Washington.

In the letter he says:

"I was greatly surprised to read the changes made by the Senate Finance Committee, and while I realize that attempts have been made presumably to eradicate some of the evils of the Underwood bill in regard to cotton manufactures, they have to my mind in reality made a worse mess of it than I could have imagined possible.

Says Business Men Will Protest.

"There is no excuse for discrediting the cost accounting shown in the tariff board report on Schedule I. I know that Mr. Patton, one of the experts relied upon by the Senate sub-committee, has rejected its facts, for he told me so recently, stating that it was not worth anything to him and that he cared nothing for it.

"I am sure that when the business men appreciate this situation, they will be heard from in no unmistakable voice. They will understand it in the course of a year certainly.

"There is no reason why a proper cotton and yarn schedule should not have been formulated and I wish to protest vigorously against the enactment into law of the Senate amendments without further adequate changes to properly correct the oversight of the House of Representatives' measure as passed by them and the additional oversights of the Senate sub-committee.

Business Men Driven Away.

"Many honest business men have lately turned away from Washington by the 'lobby' insinuations; yet in one of President Wilson's most notable speeches before he took office he appealed to the 'honest business men of the United States' to help him with legislation.

"Hundreds in the cotton industry had accepted the invitation and after depending upon a correct interpretation of facts by the House of Representatives found that recommendations with proofs had in many ways been ignored. They have since been driven away from Washington in their further honest efforts to point out errors made."

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

In these parlous times of political maneuvering, wherein one must be both as wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove, politicians of more or less caliber, who never yet have ventured very far from shore, will do well to learn one lesson from the cases of J. Randolph Anderson, President of the Georgia Senate, and William H. Burwell, Speaker of the House.

Neither man won his fight by way of mere personal popularity alone, albeit each has many warm friends and stout-hearted supporters.

The gentleman who put over both Anderson and Allen is none other than our venerated and esteemed fellow citizen, Old Man Hard Work!

Anderson and Burwell have been tireless in their efforts to succeed in their undertakings. Both men have lived their races for months. Anderson and Burwell were at it hammer and tongs while some of their opponents were seeking membership in the Don't Worry Club.

Politics, unlike kissing, rarely goes by favor. They that seek find, if they seek diligently enough—or, at least, they that do not seek rarely find.

Anderson and Burwell both are experienced legislators. Each has served a long and active term of service. Both are first-class parliamentarians, both good speakers and are both fine diplomats. Neither should in any manner "fall down on his job," and it isn't at all likely that either will.

There is a particularly fine and friendly feeling among members of both Houses, and the chances are that Georgia has on its hands at last a Legislature that will be able to proceed to its work free from partisan bias or internal feuds.

That's saying a good deal—but it looks as if the saying is warranted!

Hon. O. K. Jones, one of Lowndes County's representatives, and a strong believer in tax equalization or reform will introduce a bill in the Legislature providing for the appointment of a board of three tax assessors for every Georgia county.

Mr. Jones believes that valuations can be raised 25 per cent without working any hardships, and the State pulled out of the financial bog within a year, by the work of competent and conscientious assessors. There is no question that millions of dollars of taxable property is never returned. The uncovering of this property would within itself materially increase revenues. Representative Jones says:

"To make the proposed boards of real benefit, the members should be appointed and their tenure of office entirely independent of public suffrage. Many a tax receiver has beaten himself by a conscientious and zealous effort to secure just tax returns in his county, and it takes a pretty brave officer to persist in a course, however right, which he knows will beat him at the polls. That danger is removed when the assessors are made appointive."

Governor Brown literally has been swamped with callers to-day and yesterday. The Governor still is very much of an active agent in politics, and keeps in close touch with his friends, just as very many of his friends insist upon keeping in very close touch with him.

To-day and to-morrow will be his last days as Chief Magistrate, for by Saturday morning, when his successor will be inaugurated, he will have everything in shipshape for the new Governor.

It may be taken as a certainty that the Governor will not retire absolutely from sight politically, although it undoubtedly is his purpose to refrain from meddling in the new Governor's business, if he might.

Governor Brown and Governor-elect Slaton are firm friends of years standing. The new Administration will have no more earnest well wisher than the present Executive.

House bill No. 1 this year is in, by Mr. Cole, of Bartow, and proposes a graduated inheritance tax for Georgia.

House bill No. 1 in the last Legislature was the famous "Tippins bill" of fragrant recollection, which had the stormiest career of any measure introduced.

It weathered the gales in both the House and the Senate, only to go to wreck eventually on the rocks of an executive veto.

House bill No. 1 this year seems destined to a kinder fate. The inheritance tax idea is popular in the Legislature, and the chances that such a measure may become the law are exceedingly bright.

Mr. Cole has this bill very much at heart, and will leave no stone unturned to push its passage.

Cole, by the way, is one of the younger members of the House, sure to take a high stand among his colleagues. He is well on the sunny side of 30, and is one of the most successful business men in North Georgia. He started his career some ten years ago with something like $1.35 capital, and to-day he is worth—well, he's mighty well fixed for his age, and he is progressing every day! All that he has has been accumulated by hard work and sticking everlastingly at it—he never stops on a job he is undertaking to put over.

Cole has made a deep study of inheritance taxation. The law he proposes for Georgia is based upon the best things he could gather from other inheritance tax laws, particularly from the splendid one California has on her statute books.

Two fine young Georgians to whom Speaker Burwell feels heavily indebted for his victory of Wednesday are Thomas F. Fleming, of Sparta, and H. L. Gardner, of Eatonton.

This pair worked in season and out for Burwell, remaining constantly in his headquarters in Atlanta during the last days of his campaign. Both are affable, earnest and sincere workers, and much of the happy outcome of Burwell's fight is due to them and their loyal work.

Grover Edmondson, of Brooks, is the "baby" of the House, but he doesn't look it nearly as much as does Wisdom, of Forsyth.

Edmondson is a big, husky youngster of 22, while Wisdom is an extremely boyish looking kid of 24.

Both are fine chaps, however, and likely will be heard from in the present House.

TEACHERS MEET NEXT WEEK IN CONTESTS

High School Instructors Also Will Hear Experts in Conferences at Athens.

Several hundred high school teachers, college instructors and others interested in the development of the State high schools will visit Athens next week to attend the sixth annual State high school contests and High School Association meetings. Conferences and meetings will begin July 1 and continue until July 5.

Among the conference speakers and lecturers will be a number of high school experts of the United States, including Dr. H. A. Hollister, of the University of Illinois, and Dean Southwick, of the Boston School of Expression.

Dr. Hollister will lecture each morning at 8:45 o'clock in Peabody Hall, beginning Tuesday. Dean Southwick will deliver three lectures Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings at 10:25 o'clock.

Experts to Hold Conferences.

State high school experts will lead conferences on "Methods of Improving the Teaching Force of the High Schools," "Should Georgia Organize a Teacher Training Course in the High Schools?" and "Means of Bringing the High School Closer to Community Life."

Special conferences will be held throughout the week on home economics, science, mathematics, language and English. The conference on home economics will be conducted by Miss Elizabeth Holt, of Augusta; the conference on science will be conducted by Principal W. P. Jones, of Rome; the conferences on mathematics, language and English will be in charge of Dr. R. P. Stephens, Principal N. G. Bartlett, of Dublin, and President F. F. Rowe, of Thomaston.

The high school contests will be inaugurated Wednesday, July 2, with preliminary debating contests in Peabody Hall. Thursday a music contest and a State championship debate on woman suffrage will be held.

Hold Contests Friday.

Declamation, athletic, spelling and recitation contests will be held Friday. Gold medals will be awarded in all events and a $300 scholarship of Brenau Conservatory will be awarded to the State winner in the music contests. The winner in the debate will be awarded a $50 set of books.

Dr. J. W. Riley Ends Successful Revival

Dr. J. W. Riley, noted Minneapolis Evangelist, closed his ten-days campaign for membership at the Tabernacle Wednesday night. Dr. Riley's efforts have met with great success. At the services Tuesday evening the front seats of the auditorium were filled with new members brought into the church through Dr. Riley's work. More than 100 also joined the Sunday school.

The evangelist will return to Minneapolis for a two-weeks' stay, after which he goes to Estill Springs, Tenn., to conduct services there for a week.

A campaign for pure milk for the poor babies of the Gate City was inaugurated Thursday morning by the Mothers' Congress of Atlanta. The members plan to engage actively in the work of helping the babies who can not help themselves, and through the president, Mrs. John W. Rowlett, have sent out the following appeal:

One hundred persons are wanted each to furnish one quart of milk daily for one child. If you are willing to help save one baby, send your name to Mrs. John W. Rowlett, 186 East Pine Street.

The officers of the congress declare that, when they have obtained the names of the 100 persons willing to save a baby each, it will be but the opening wedge in the work they have undertaken. The ultimate object of the campaign is the establishment of milk stations in sections of the city where they are needed, thus enabling the mother to be instructed as well as helped.

Evans Eager to Help.

The fact that aid for the poor babies of the city is imperative and must be given at once was established by the congress after a conference had been held with City Warden Evans. Mr. Evans furnished the officers of the congress with a long list of children whom it is proposed to make the beneficiaries of the one quart of milk a day plan, and he has offered to co-operate with the congress in every way possible during the campaign.

"The question of caring for the babies of Atlanta during the months when the chances for the baby to survive are few, is a vital and pressing one," declared one of the officers of the congress Thursday morning, "and the question of furnishing pure milk to the children should be taken up in earnest by the people of Atlanta. We are hoping for a hearty and encouraging response to our request for a 100 quarts of milk a day for the babies, and would ask that every person contemplating enlisting in the good work send in their names as soon as possible.

"We hope to show the vital need of this work by the good we can do with the '100 quarts a day plan,' and so arouse the people of Atlanta that pure milk stations can be established.

Blames Improper Feeding.

"Improper feeding is the chief cause of infant mortality, and ignorance is very often the cause of improper feeding. Hence a campaign for the reduction of infant mortality must not only give relief at once, but must also instruct the mother in the care of her child, especially during the summer months."

The Congress of Mothers of Atlanta has for several years been fighting on behalf of the baby, and have aroused a great deal of interest in their work throughout the city. Several years ago they tried to bring to Atlanta a Gordon-Walker Laboratory for the certification and purifying of milk, but failed through lack of financial backing.

The congress co-operated with the City Board of Health, and has been active in the movement to have milk delivered at a temperature of 55 degrees.

Your Aid Is Needed to Save the Babies

Hundreds of poor babies are suffering in Atlanta today, insufficiently and improperly nourished. Hundreds of them will die during the torrid months of July and August unless something is done for them.

The Mothers' Congress of Atlanta has undertaken to save at least one hundred of these babies whose parents are too poor to provide them with proper food and nourishment by supplying each baby with a quart of pure, fresh milk each day. They are calling on one hundred citizens of Atlanta for aid, asking them to each furnish one quart of milk each day.

If you are willing to help save one little life and make one home brighter, send your name at once to Mrs. J. W. Rowlett, 186 East Pine Street.

CALLS COURT TO PROBE LYNCHING

Judge Littlejohn Orders Special Session at Americus to Convene Next Monday.

AMERICUS, June 26.—Judge Z. A. Littlejohn has signed an order calling for a special session of the Sumter County Superior Court to investigate the lynching of Will Redding, a negro, for shooting Chief of Police W. C. Barrow last Saturday night. The order fixes next Monday as the time for court to convene.

It is also ordered that the same Grand Jury that served at the recent term of the court be resummoned to investigate the lynching. This Grand Jury is known as one of the most fearless that ever served the people of Sumter County, having indicted a number of well-known men for gaming and others for violation of the prohibition law.

Sunday morning the city was all agog with talk of the lynching. Now, strange to say, no one can be found, without difficulty, who will speak of the affair except as having been informed by someone else.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst Are Hosts to U. S. And Foreign Officers

NEW YORK, June 26.—Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst entertained the officers of the American, Brazilian and Argentine warships lying in the Hudson River. The naval officers met at Mr. Hearst's home in Riverside Drive, as did some of the women in the party.

From there they were conveyed to the New Amsterdam Theater in theater coaches, attending the performance of Ziegfeld's Follies. Following the performance, the party returned to the Hearst home for supper and dancing.

Among the civilians in the party were John Purroy Mitchel, Collector of the Port, and Justice James W. Gerard, of the Supreme Court.

300 Are Expected at Army's Park Outing

More than 300 poor mothers and children of Atlanta are expected to attend the annual outing of the Salvation Army at Piedmont Park Thursday.

Two chartered cars at 9 o'clock in the morning were filled with people, and many more are expected to go during the day. The Salvation Army will serve lunch and refreshments, and for the youngsters there will be races and athletic games, with all kinds of prizes.

Accused of Stealing Check While Drunk

Charged with stealing a cashier's check for $126, which, it is said, he wrapped up with his clothes in the Southern Express Company's office, while intoxicated, R. L. Underwood, a former employee of the company, has been placed on trial in the criminal division of the Superior Court.

The letter, it is asserted, was found in Underwood's boarding house.

DRUGGIST GIVES MONEY BACK

Dodson's Liver Tone Gets a Four Square Guarantee From All Drug Stores.

When an article is sold a druggist who is willing to give it his personal guarantee, it's a mighty strong proof of real merit.

That's exactly the case with Dodson's Liver Tone. It is a pleasant-tasting, vegetable remedy for a slow and sluggish liver. Since Dodson's Liver Tone came on the market the sale of calomel has gone 'way down. The reason is simply this: Dodson's Liver Tone is safe and harmless and guaranteed to be satisfactory—Calomel is often uncertain, sometimes dangerous, and no druggist wants to guarantee that it won't knock you out of a day's work and maybe send you to bed.

All druggists sell Dodson's Liver Tone and guarantee it. For you and for your children it's a good thing to keep a bottle always in the house.

All dealers will give you your money back if you think Dodson's Liver Tone is not worth the price. "Keep your liver working and your liver will not keep you from working," is good advice to go by.

DRAW ENDS SHAM BATTLE OF TROOPS

BRUNSWICK, GA., June 26.—Officers of the Georgia State militia and regular army men here to observe the maneuvers are much pleased to-day over the excellent work of the troops in the second sham battle of the encampment yesterday afternoon.

The battle ended in a draw, the infantry under Major Hunter being unable to dislodge Major Seamans' dismounted cavalry from their intrenchments, while the latter had their hands full trying to repulse the attacking forces.

The Orange army, equipped for field duty, marched directly from Camp Brown to the sea, and then proceeded northward about a mile, where intrenchments were thrown up. At places the earthworks were five feet in height, and the defenses were concealed by canes and rushes cut from the neighboring swamps.

The Blue army, under command of Major Hunter, approached from the heavily wooded land side, but was held at bay by the Orange outpost, under command of Captain Rudisail, of Atlanta, long enough for the Orange army to intrench its position. The Blue army took up a position running parallel with the railroad. The battle line was about 2,000 feet long.

A number of Atlanta women were entertained by the officers of the Second Squadron and the Third Battalion yesterday. Most of the visitors formed parties and went fishing, and some good catches were made. Mrs. C. W. Hatcher, of Atlanta, caught and towed to the shore a five-foot shark, which she shot and killed.

$2,000,000 Is Frisco Stockholders' Loss

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—Stockholders of the Frisco System have lost nearly $2,000,000 in the depreciation of the values of common and preferred stock since the railroad went into the hands of a receiver, according to estimates made from the stock books in the last week.

James Campbell, of St. Louis, is holding stock worth $214,220 less than it was before the receivership suit was begun.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Bondholders of the Frisco will suffer no loss in the readjustment of the road's finances, according to Prince Poniatowski, a French banker, who sailed to-day after personally investigating the affairs of the road.

WISE TO RUN FOR CONGRESS AGAIN

J. W. Wise, of Fayette, who was beaten by a scratch last year in the race for Congress from the Sixth District, will enter the race again next year. Mr. Wise says he hopes to get sufficient votes next time to leave not a shadow of doubt of election.

In the last contest in the Sixth the district voted as a whole, the candidate receiving the largest vote to be declared the nominee. When the returns were announced it is said the count showed Mr. Wise to be the winner by about 200 votes over his opponent, Congressman Bartlett.

Later, however, Mr. Wise received information from Macon to the effect that there had been a change in the vote in some of the city precincts.

Mr. Wise says he never has been satisfied with that decision, but has determined to bide his time and get into the race next year. He says he has been overwhelmed with messages urging him to enter the race at the next election.

ICE $1 MORE IN ATLANTA THAN IN MACON

Same Concern Charges 45 Cents Hundred Here, 25 Cents in Bibb County Capital.

Atlanta, with far greater population, is paying more for ice than Macon.

The wholesale price in Atlanta is $4 a ton, or $1 more than the Macon price. The comparison is even more distinctly to the disadvantage of Atlanta, in the prices for small amounts of ice at retail, the price being 30, 35 and 40 cents per hundred in Atlanta compared with a straight 25-cent rate in Macon.

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation is the principal manufacturer and distributor of ice in both Atlanta and Macon, and it also is in Chattanooga, Rome, Augusta and Jacksonville.

Three Dollars Ton in Macon.

As a result of the competition between the two ice companies in Macon, the Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation and the Southern Ice & Coal Company, ice is selling at wholesale in Macon for $3 a ton. At the beginning of the season the rate was $4.50. The retail purchasers, those who buy 10 or 15 cents worth at a time, are now getting their ice in Macon at the rate of $5 a ton, or 25 cents a hundred pounds. Formerly they paid $7.50 a ton, or 37 1-2 cents a hundred.

In Atlanta the wholesale price is $4 a ton. Ice is sold at retail on a graduated scale—30 cents per hundreds in amounts over 50 pounds; 35 cents per hundred in 25-pound lots and 40 cents per hundred in 10-pound lots.

The Atlanta customer who buys 10 pounds of ice, pays more than the Macon customer did before the ice war in Macon started. Before the price cutting began in Macon, the price of ice in small lots was 37 1-2 cents per hundred pounds. In Atlanta the price then, as it is now, was 40 cents per hundred pounds.

To get ice as cheap as it sold in Macon before the price war started, the Atlanta purchaser must buy at least 25 pounds. He can not buy any amount of ice as cheap as it sells in Macon to-day.

Says Price Will Be Raised.

When asked why Atlanta had to pay a higher price for ice than Macon, W. B. Baker, vice president and general manager of the Atlantic, said Wednesday that Macon was in the throes of an ice war, started by their competitor, the Southern Ice & Coal Company. The price there was too low, he said, and at the end of the war would be raised to a reasonable figure.

"The Southern started the price cutting," Mr. Baker said. "It is a small company, with 60ton capacity. We have a 300-ton plant, with 14,000 ton storage capacity. They started last summer and had to cut prices to get any business.

"It is simply a question of supply and demand in Macon. Ice will not keep always, and they they make it they have to sell it. They couldn't get our customers without offering an inducement, and so they began to cut prices. The cut, however, applied only here and there. Our policy is to treat everybody in the city alike. When they cut at a few places, we met the cut, and pursuant to our policy, gave the same cut prices to everybody in the city. We always do that."

In direct reply to this is the charge that the Atlantic is a trust and has suppressed competition in Atlanta, Augusta, Rome and Jacksonville and is attempting to do the same thing in Macon. This charge was brought by the Southern Ice & Coal Company, which has secured an order from the Superior Court enjoining the Atlantic from further reducing prices until a court hearing on July 25. It was charged that because the Southern would not sell out to the "trust", the rates were cut to such an extent that ice was selling at ruinous prices.

Restrained in Chattanooga.

Mr. Baker admitted ice was selling too low in Macon and said it would advance. He laughed at the Southern Company's suit, saying they wished now they had not brought it.

"And as for our having suppressed competition in certain places," he continued, you know yourself that we have three competitors in Atlanta. We also have two competitors in Augusta and two in Jacksonville and one in Rome, because Chattanooga ships ice to Rome against us. We also have another competitor in Macon, because a brewery there sells ice against us."

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation was recently restrained by Chancellor McConnell, of Chattanooga, from selling ice below a stipulated price in a certain zone of that city. The same charge of attempting to kill competition was made against them."

There still remain the conflicting stories of the Stover girl and Frank, even though they can not have a direct bearing on the case. The Stover girl says Frank was not in his office and he declares that he was there until he went to the fourth floor to see Arthur White and Harry Denham.

The defense will be able to say, however, that Frank probably was perfectly sincere in his declaration, but that, as a matter of fact, he might have stepped out of the office for a few minutes and not have recollected it when he was telling his story before the Coroner's inquest. They will argue that it is a very difficult matter for a person to recall every move he made at certain times unless something occurs to impress it on his memory at the time.

MADISON, WIS., June 26.—Just before the walls on the fourth floor of the new Capitol were closed by marble setters, a cat strayed into the opening. A square of marble was removed, at a cost of $300, to rescue the perishing feline.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

"Ideal" Has Fine Diving Act.

Gertrude Vanderbilt and George Moore, singers and dancers, are registering a hit at the Forsyth this week. "Ideal," the champion lady swimmer and diver, is also a feature, presenting a novelty act that has attracted a world of interest. She shows dives no other water star has exhibited and that the act is a big drawing card is very much in evidence.

The Six Musical Cuttys, in a splendid musical novelty, and Minnie Allen, in an unusually clever act, make things interesting. All the other acts have won attention.

The headliner for next week will be Edward Abeles, the distinguished comedy star, who has been identified with such New York successes as "Officer 666" and productions of that sort.

Many See "Qou Vadis" at Grand.

"Quo Vadis," the wonderfully successful photo-play now in its second week at the Grand, attracts hundreds of people to the daily matinee and evening performances. Of all the thousands of people who saw the pictures last week and who are attending the exhibitions this week, not one has been disappointed.

The presentation of "Quo Vadis" will continue at matinee and night performances the rest of the week.

"The Merry Whirl" Pleases.

Lovers of musical comedy are highly pleased with "The Merry Whirl," this week's attraction at the Bijou. Of the several tabloids that have visited Atlanta, it is safe to say that none has given better satisfaction or drawn larger audiences than this one. Miss Marjorie Lake, in the role of Fifi, is one of the cleverest performers that has ever visited the Bijou. The three comedians, Lew Miller, Harry Loder and Sol Carter, are a show in themselves.

PUSHES DEMAND FOR PAPERS IN M'NAB CASE

Kahn Urges Committee to Favor His Resolution for Accounting From McReynolds.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Representative Kahn, of California, to-day vigorously urged the House Judiciary Committee to make a favorable report on his two resolutions calling for correspondence in possession of the Department of Justice relative to the Caminetti-Diggs white slave case which led to the resignation of District Attorney John L. McNab, of San Francisco.

Mr. Kahn declared that McNab notified McReynolds that witnesses were being tampered with in the Caminetti case.

He pointed out that in McNab's telegram to President Wilson, McNab charged open boasts were made that influence was to be used to prevent the prosecution of Caminetti and Diggs.

Representative Thomas, a member of the committee, wanted to know if Kahn knew what witnesses had been tampered with.

"I expect that to be disclosed by the correspondence," replied Mr. Kahn. "Here is an attorney who, evidently, sought to do his duty and was frustrated. A special attorney probably will be hired and he will get a big fee."

Youth Slays Father To Protect Mother

LAFAYETTE, IND., June 26.—John C. Barger, railroad conductor, was killed by his son, Paul Barger, 18, to-day, when the elder Barger attacked his wife.

The boy said that his father was choking his mother when he fired a revolver three times, holding the muzzle against his father's side.

Shaft Unveiled to Late Congressman

DAWSON, June 26.—A handsome monument to the late Congressman James M. Griggs was unveiled in Dawson to-day. A large crowd was present from all sections of the Second District.

Ex-Congressman William M. Howard, of Lexington, Ga., a colleague and warm personal friend of Judge Griggs, delivered the presentation speech, and little Theodosia Griggs Hollingsworth, a granddaughter, unveiled the monument. M. J. Yeomans delivered the speech of acceptance.

The monument was erected with funds raised by popular subscription.

Sinclair's Divorced Wife Denied License

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 26.—Mrs. Meta Sinclair, the divorced wife of Upton Sinclair, the novelist, and Hubert Halliwell of this city were unable to get a marriage license from City Chamberlain Jesse J. Graham of this city, who refused it because they have been living at Dr. Sahler's sanitarium at Woodstock, whereas Mrs. Sinclair gave her residence as New York City.

After being refused a license Mr. Halliwell and his fiancee went to the home of Mr. Halliwell's mother in this city.

Mr. Halliwell admitted that he would be married within a week, but by whom or where he refused to say.

GLASS BILL BOND CLAUSE RESTORED

Currency Reform to Provide Retirement of 2 Per Cent Obligations, as Written Originally.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Representative Glass announced to-day that his currency reform bill would be introduced with the 2 per cent bond retirement feature restored, just as it was before the Glass-McAdoo-Wilson conference at the White House previous to the announcement of the contents of the bill.

The bill will provide that all 2 per cent Government bonds shall be retired and 3 per cent bonds shall be issued instead during a period of twenty years.

Says Bank Tried to Ruin Dixie Concern

CHICAGO, June 26.—The Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank to-day was made defendant in a suit filed by John Stuart Watson & Co., farm brokers of Portland, Maine, charging the bank with unjust manipulation of bonds and stocks with a view to ruining the credit of the New Orleans Drainage Company.

The corporation, Watson said, owns land valued at about $2,000,000, and the bank, through threats to foreclose upon this property, induced him to sign an agreement to allow the bank to reorganize the company under the name of Orleans Suburban Farm Company.

'Ego in Pet Child's Cosmos Dangerous'

CHICAGO, June 26.—Dr. H. C. Norris, of Ederlin, N. Dak., a delegate to the Congress of Alienists here, declared that petted children get egomania, which results in a lack of self-control.

This, he asserts, results finally in a nervous and mental breakdown, thus paving the way to an insane asylum.

Manufacturers to Give Banquet July 3

Between 250 and 300 manufacturers will banquet at the Hotel Ansley on the evening of July 3 to perfect plans for the permanent organization of the Atlanta Manufacturers' Association. They will be guests of the Chamber of Commerce.

Two questions will be discussed—the annual manufacturers' exhibition and a permanent manufacturers' exhibit of Atlanta-made goods.

Brooks Morgan will present an organization plan at the banquet.

J. S. Owens, Banker, In Race for Council

John S. Owens, vice president of the Central Bank and Trust Corporation, is in the race for Alderman from the Eighth Ward, to succeed Dr. A. H. VanDyke, who, it is understood, will not offer for re-election. Mr. Owens started his successful career as a bank clerk.

Mr. Owens says he has no platform except that of the welfare of Atlanta, and that he is pledged to no faction or man.

Canadian Physicians Bar Friedmann 'Cure'

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 26.—Unanimous approval was given to-day to the resolution introduced at the meeting of the Canadian Medical Association condemning the Friedmann tuberculosis "cure."

Professor Adami, of Montreal, who introduced the resolution, declared that "we have found the results of the Friedmann treatment disappointing, the claims made for the remedy not proved, and nothing has been found to justify confidence in the remedy."

Auto Hurdles Bridge; Man and Girl Killed

CHICAGO, June 26.—A man and woman were killed and another man and woman painfully injured to-day when an automobile crashed through the railing of a bridge in Lincoln Park.

H. A. Gregory, magazine circulation manager, died soon after the accident. The body of a Miss Bristol was found in the water.

CHAMBERLIN-JOHNSON-DuBOSE CO. Atlanta---New York---Paris CHAMBERLIN-JOHNSON-DuBOSE CO.

The Prices Tell the Whole Story
Of To-morrow's Opportunities in the Ready-to-Wear

Just bear this in mind, however, as you read these prices, that in every instance they stand for merchandise that has back of it the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose guaranty of quality and style!

$7.50 For $18.50, $21.75 to $25.00 Woolen Suits

There are only fifteen of these. They will not last long after store-opening time. Splendid suits---judge them by their former prices; they are of serges and corded materials, hardly enough of any one color or style to attempt description, but the first fifteen women who seek a suit for general wear are going to be beautifully rewarded for their hurrying.

$10 For $30.00, $35.00 to $45.00 Woolen Suits

There are thirty of these.

Materials are serges, whipcords, diagonals, Venetian cloths and mixtures. Colors ---grays, tans and a few plain navy and black suits and another few white serges. That these suits were formerly $30, $35 to $45 in the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose stock tells their style and worth, what you may expect.

Half Price For $16.50 to $30 Motor and Traveling Coats

Thirty of these.

Charming styles and various. Materials are serges, whipcords and mixture weaves, gray, black-and-white effects, black and navy. Some lined, others unlined.

$16.50 Coats $ 8.25 — $22.50 Coats $11.25
$18.50 Coats $ 9.25 — $25.00 Coats $12.50
$20.00 Coats $10.00 — $30.00 Coats $15.00

$5.00 For $12.50 to $18.75 Linen Suits

Forty of these. Certainly not so many as this remarkable price would hurry to new owners---for a linen coat suit at this season is all but a necessity.

The linens are those soft, "heavy," loosely-woven kinds in favor just now, in about any color you may fancy. A wealth of styles, smart cutaways, "strictly tailored," jaunty Norfolks, and others that come under the head of Bulgarian effects.

$7.50 For $12.50, $18.75 to $21.75 Linen Dresses

Sixty of these.

This is the general disposal of all linen dresses of this season's choicest styles. And, indeed, there are many styles to choose from. There are plain, tailored dresses touched with a bit of color on cuffs and collars; there are Bulgarian and peplum styles rich with embroideries and showing novel ideas of fashioning. Materials are ramie and crash and yours may be Copenhagen, tan, gray or wistaria.

Who Will Get These Four Exquisite Silk Suits?

They are copies of imported models, made up of imported fabrics---three of them we brought on as show pieces---now they go to four lucky women!

$22.50 This One Was $45.00

It is of silk poplin in a soft shade of wistaria. It is a "fancy" suit, the coat fashioned in a novel cutaway style, with a Bulgarian collar showing shades that both blend in and contrast with the wistaria; the skirt is draped.

$25.00 This One Was $87.50

The material is a wonderfully soft brocaded crepe---an imported fabric in a fine shade of taupe. The coat is a short Russian blouse, trimmed with frogs and laces. The skirt is draped in true Parisian fashion. Hard to imagine $25.00 doing greater service in suit buying.

$35.00 This One Was $125.00

Elegance itself!

A white moire faille silk suit, a copy of a model that would of necescity have been much more than $125.00. The coat is a postillion model, cut away short in front, half-length sleeves, edged with wide shadow lace and folds of black velvet; a draped skirt.

$67.50 This One Was $175.00

A three-piece suit worthy of the most elegant social function; of tan moire faille silk. The waist of the dress is an artistic combination of shadow lace and hand-embroidered bands; the coat is a cutaway style, embroidered collar and cuffs; skirt is draped gracefully.

DIXIE VETERANS DENIED USE OF U. S. TENTS

Resolution, Providing Shelter For Brunswick Reunion, Held Up in Lower House.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The hope of the Confederate veterans of getting United States Army tents for their reunion at Brunswick, Ga., beginning July 10, went glimmering today, when Representative Fowler, of Illinois, objected to the consideration of the resolution authorizing the War Department to lend the tents.

Representative Fowler first called up his resolution to appropriate money to send the veterans in the District of Columbia to the reunion at Gettysburg. Calloway, of Texas, objected. A moment later Howard, of Georgia, called up the resolution to lend tents to the Confederate veterans. He was acting for Walker, of Georgia, who is out of the city. Fowler, smarting because Calloway had defeated his plans, at once interposed his objection, and the resolution went over.

Minority Leader Mann, of Illinois, eloquently pleaded for the passage of both resolutions, but Calloway and Fowler insisted on their objections.

"These old soldiers are passing. Soon they will be of no more expense to us," said Mann. "It does seem that if we are a united country, as we hear so often, that the objections to both these resolutions should be withdrawn. Let the reconciliation between the blue and the gray be complete."

Hundreds Offer Skin For Huested Victims

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 26.—Thirteen dead, eleven missing and probably sixty-three in the hospital, many of whom probably will die, is the latest estimate of the toll of the Huested mill explosion.

Federal authorities are to take a hand in the investigation of the mill horror.

Nearly all the injured are terribly burned by the fire which broke out immediately following the explosion. Several thousand square inches of skin will be used in grafting on the injured. Hundreds have volunteered to furnish the healthy cuticle.

Bateman on Trial As Race Swindler

The trial of J. N. Bateman, former Justice of the Peace and wealthy Atlanta land-owner, on three charges—larceny, swindling and larceny after trust—came up before Judge L. S. Roan of the Superior Court Thursday afternoon.

The charges were made by Frank Rothleutner, of Kansas City, who alleges that he was defrauded out of $9,000 in cash in a pool room owned by Bateman on Whitehall Street.

Bateman was arrested in Miama, Fla., and brought back for trial.

Servant Wins Ninth Part of $14,000,000

JOPLIN, MO., June 26.—Mrs. Sachet Carlyle, employed as a maid at $5 a week, retained her job to-day, although she had just learned that she and her mother, Mrs. Martha Wilson, each were heirs to one-ninth of an estate valued at $14,000,000.

She mailed papers to Baltimore today proving her relationship to John Price, who left the estate.

Girl Disappears as Dorothy Arnold Did

NEW YORK, June 26.—The pick of the New York Detective Bureau today took up the mystery of the disappearance of Helen McCarthy, the pretty, 16-year-old daughter of a newspaper broker, who vanished Tuesday morning within a stone's throw of her home, the Hotel Hargraves.

The disappearance takes rank with the mystery that still surrounds the Dorothy Arnold case, and in many respects the two are similar.

Mid-Summer Sale of Women's White and Tan Shoes at Allen's

To-morrow and Saturday to 1 P. M.

Women's $3, $3.50 and $4 white canvas and white buckskin pumps at $1.95

Women's $3.50, $4 and some $5 white buckskin and white canvas pumps, lace and button oxfords at $2.45

Women's $4 and $5 tan Russia calf, tan vici kid and brown calfskin pumps, and button lace oxfords at $2.95 and $3.95 a pair

We have simply divided our tan low shoe stock into two classes. You can have your choice of any tan low shoe, tan oxford, pump or colonial at either $2.95 or $3.95 a pair, with the exception of two styles of $5.50 and $6 rubber soled oxfords and pumps. These are selling so fast that we can hardly supply the demand, but in order to make the sale complete we have reduced these to $4.95.

This style in Black or Tan Calf, Leather sole $2.95. Rubber sole $4.95

We have also added the English last black and tan leather sole oxford, formerly sold at $5.50 this sale $4.95 lot; and the English last black and tan pumps with the leather soles that we formerly sold at $5.00, are now $3.95.

This means that every white and tan shoe in Allen's Shoe Department can be bought at a considerable saving, in some instances the reduction will amount to a half or a third less than their former selling prices. We have also added several styles to the black gun metal, patent leather and satin pumps which were reduced to $3.50 last Monday. These were formerly $5.00 and $6.00. The sizes in the $2.45 shoes in black patent leather, gun metal and satin are nearly gone, but here and there you can find your size, and they are certainly big bargains. Some of them sold at $5.00. See our special sale shoe window.

We close Saturday at 1 p. m.

The Best News of Embroideries We Have Told This Season

The Selling Starts at Nine o'Clock

The papers have carried much good news of embroidery sales this season, but, as far as our knowledge goes, none could compare favorably with the values we have prepared for to-morrow.

This, indeed, is an embroidery occasion not to be missed. It is a Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose clearaway, a thorough righting of stocks of certain lines, and, as you shall read below, these lines are very desirable, embroideries that women want at this season, when sheer soft fabrics are an effective defense against Old Sol's persistent attacks. And being a clearaway of our own embroideries, there is not a disappointing yard among them. They are patterns and qualities that have contributed to make this Atlanta's ranking embroidery store. But these generalities do not tell the message of the dainty dresses, the cool waists, the exquisite underwear that are now possible at next-to-nothing cost.

You plan to be here and see for yourself.

19c

For 75c & 95c Flouncings

Think of all white and sheer batiste flouncings, 27 inches wide, showing the daintiest "baby" patterns, eyelet and French, for 19c a yard! Do not hesitate to buy quantities of them. It would be hard to find prettier materials and patterns for children's dresses. With these are embroidered bands, 2 to 4 inches wide, that were 50c to 85c a yard.

For $13.50 to $17.50 Dress Patterns

White voiles and crepes embroidered in colors, blue, pink, lavender and black. Many show heavy borders made of the greatly favored ratine. All are rich, elegant affairs so notably underpriced that women will quickly take to them. And all have the charm of newness about them.

For $2.00 to $5.00 Flouncings

Although the price range is from $2.00 to $5.00, most of these were $3.50 and up a yard. They are 27 and 45 inches wide, mull, batiste, voile and linen, open and blind patterns and some of them very rich with Irish point laces. Beautiful dresses they will make!

39c

For 75c to $1.25 Bands

Mull, batiste and linen bands, 2 to 4 inches wide, in white and colors, open and blind patterns very neatly worked.

50c

For $1 to $2 Flouncings

A fine variety of white and colored embroidery flouncings 27 inches wide, blind and eyelet patterns on sheer mulls and batistes.

Take a Hand in This Glove Sale

Prices have not been so low this summer, and all the gloves included are for warm weather wear.

Could you, with any appreciation of economy, leave the glove box unfilled with such an opportunity before you?

19c For 50c to $1.00 Gloves

A miscellany of silk and lisle two-clasp gloves in colors—about all colors, but not every size of every color, although all sizes are represented. With these are a few white lisle gloves in sizes 5 1-2, 7 1-2 and 8. Rich opportunities here!

29c For Kayser's $1.00 Gloves

Sixteen-button silk gloves. The name tells the quality. In these colors, light blue, pink, tan, chamois, brown, lavender and reseda, also at this price are $1.25 sixteen-button lisle gloves in champagne, brown, tan, gray, green and navy. A more serviceable glove could hardly be found.

49c For Kayser's $1.00 Gloves

Kayser's twelve-button silk gloves in black and white. All sizes except No. 6. Buy a half-dozen pairs, as many as you will need the summer through.

98c For Kayser's $1.75 and $3 Gloves

Sixteen-button embroidered silk gloves, all sizes, in these colors, light blue, pink, lavender, champagne, tan, brown, gray and old rose. None was priced at less than $1.75 a pair.

$1.00 For Kayser's $2.25 Gloves

Gloves women will want for evening wear; they are twenty-button length and in these colors, pink, light blue and gray. The silk is a heavy, long-wearing kind.

49c

For $1.00 & $1.50 Veils

Face veils of silk in Chantilly patterns, white, black, navy, brown, and black and white.

15c

For 25c Collars

An odd lot of novel batiste and lawn embroidered collars and Bulgarian collars, in white and colors, 15c!

25c

For 50c Collars

New Bulgarian collars; cotton, crepe and voile. Princess Helene collars—all white and all attractive.

Athens Bidding for Week-End Visits by Atlanta Motorists

Athens is making a bid for week-end visitors, and with this end in view Crichton C. Callaway, secretary of the Athens Chamber of Commerce, spent Wednesday in Atlanta arranging for an automobile scout trip next week. A committee of Athens people will make the trip and submit their observations to the Athens Chamber of Commerce, which will publish them, together with other information, in booklet form.

"Atlanta's 3,000 automobile owners always make week-end tours, and we want them to come to Athens," Mr. Callaway said. "The route to Athens is picturesque, while the city itself has many objects of interest and is approached by the best county road system in the State. If we can get Atlanta tourists started to going there, they will keep it up."

The Athens scouting party is due in Atlanta about Monday or Tuesday. In a week or so the little Athens booklets will be printed and distributed among automobilists of Atlanta.

ATTACK VALIDITY OF SEATING 2 IN HOUSE

Bleckley and Wheeler Members May Be Denied Places—Moss Upholds Unions.

An attack on the validity of seating the representatives from Bleckley and Wheeler Counties featured the opening of the House session Thursday morning.

A resolution was introduced by Representative H. J. Fulbright, of Burke, his claim being that under the Constitution the membership of the House is limited to 184, while these two members made a total of 186. The resolution provided for the appointment of a committee of nine to investigate the matter. It was adopted.

The men representing the two new counties are George A. Browning, of Bleckley, and Douglas McArthur, of Wheeler. The two new counties were formed in 1912.

Unions Praised.

Representative H. B. Moss, of Cobb County, introduced a resolution expressing confidence in the laboring men of Georgia and asking their co-operation in the upbuilding of the State. It was referred to a committee. The resolution is, in effect, a reply to Governor Brown's message of Wednesday which flayed unionism.

At 10:35 o'clock the House adjourned until 3 minutes of 11, at which time it went into joint session with the Senate to canvass the vote for Governor.

Members Not Unanimous.

Calling of the roll and reading of the journal consumed 25 minutes following the opening of the House for the Thursday morning session. C. E. Stewart, of Coffee County, and Grover Cleveland Edmondson, of Brooks, were the two who refused to join in unanimous consent to dispense with calling the roll and reading the journal.

A bill to prohibit county authorities from payin insolvent costs on bills and county officials from the general fund was introduced by Brinson of Jenkins.

A bill providing for the incorporation of the town of Chickamauga was introduced by Farris of Walker.

Cook of Chattahoochee introduced a bill providing for creation of a board of commissioners of roads and revenues in Chattahoochee County.

ANTI-LIQUOR BILL BARS SHIPPING INTO STATE

Another Senate Measure Would Put Marriage Laws on Eugenic Basis.

The first temperance bill of the session was introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator Hixon, of the Thirty-seventh.

Senator Hixon's bill prohibits the shipment into the State of all intoxicating liquors, even though they be disguised under innocent appearing names. It is provided, though, that individuals may bring into the State on their person or as their personal baggage, liquor in quantity not to exceed one gallon in a single package.

The provisions of the bill do not apply to druggists, to whom pure alcohol may be delivered for medicinal purposes.

Marriage Bill Introduced.

A modified application of eugenics will hereafter govern marriages in Georgia if a "marriage bill" introduced by Senator Hixon is enacted into law. Senator Hixon's bill provides that no marriage licenses shall be issued to persons of unsound mind, males under 18 and females under 16 years of age; persons afflicted with tuberculosis, cancer, pellagra and other infectious or chronic diseases; persons addicted to habitual use of intoxicating liquors or drugs.

The bill provides that all applicants for a marriage license shall produce a certificate of health from a physician.

Bible Reading in School.

A bill providing for the reading of at least one chapter of the Bible at the opening each day of every public school in the State was introduced by Senators W. J. Bush, of the Eighth, and W. E. H. Searcy, of the Twenty-sixth.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION FILED.

The firm of Nisbet & McFadden, grocers of Hapeville, Ga., Thursday filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court, giving assets $656.75 and liabilities $1,682.36.

Brilliant Men All Unbalanced, Says Atlanta Alienist

"No brilliant man is perfectly poised mentally. All artists and musicians in a way are mentally unbalanced. They are the highest type of deranged persons. The man who is perfectly poised mentally is not brilliant."—Dr. J. Cheston King, Atlanta, Ga.

CHICAGO, June 26.—This statement was made at the National Convention of Alienists here.

"The perfectly poised man," said Dr. King, "is a very common man. When he falls in love it is purely a matter of the heart. When an artist falls in love it is more a condition of mind. But when a mentally balanced, common man falls in love he sees his sweetheart through the eyes of a genius."

Government to Aid North Georgia Road

DALTON, June 26.—An excellent highway constructed by the Government from Ringgold, in Catoosa County, to Dalton, through Whitfield County, in and probably through Gordon and on into Bartow County is now assured, the road to be built at a cost of $75,000.

Instead of an appropriation of $10,000 from the Government, Congressman Gordon Lee secured $25,000, and this will be supplemented by a fund of $50,000 from the counties interested, each county to pay $2 for every dollar spent by the Government.

Cotton Men Make Millions in Grain

NEW YORK, June 26.—During the dullness in the stock market it is believed that the McFadden interests, which have always been prominent in cotton, have made several millions through a bull campaign in the grain markets.

Not long ago, according to gossip in the grain pit, the McFadden crowd were carrying 10,000,000 bushels of coarse grain and over 1,000,000 bushels of wheat. Since April 1 July corn has advanced to above 62 cents a bushel, July oats from 33 7-8 cents to 43 1-4, and July wheat from 89 7-8 to 93 5-8 cents.

WE ARE OFFERING A 20% REDUCTION FROM THE ORIGINAL PRICE OF ALL DIAMOND GOODS

We are making this reduction in order to convert our present stock into cash before occupying our new store at 49 Whitehall Street. Not so great an opportunity has ever been offered you to get diamonds so much below their actual value. You not only profit from this reduction, but through the fact that they have steadily advanced since the stock we are now offering was purchased.

It is to your interest, if you contemplate purchasing any time in the near future, to do so during this sale, as, at the price, they are bargains in the extreme.

Beginning with Saturday, June 28th, and continuing through July and August our store will close at one o'clock.

Remnants of Your Own Making

THANKS TO YOU!

We can report the largest week's sales of WASH FABRICS we have ever known. Now for the clearing of the REMNANTS.

Remember, Please!

That YOU made these REMNANTS in THIS week's business.

The Remnants and Short Pieces of the materials cut, in this great SALE, represent what YOU left when you crowded our POPULAR ANNEX.

These offerings are not PRIZE packages of MILL ENDS (which are usually to be had by the pound), but they are short ends and parts of pieces representative of YOUR FOREMOST FAVORITES.

Had YOU not been so pleased with these alluring WASHABLES in the piece, they would not now be REMNANTS and SHORT ENDS.

By REMNANTS we do not mean UNUSABLE LENGTHS, but pieces suitable for waists, skirts, and, in most cases, whole dresses.

A REMNANT, at any price, is not cheap if not CORRECT in STYLE, DESIRABLE in QUALITY and USABLE in LENGTH.

Included are all Dark and Printed Fabrics, both Foreign and Domestic. Also Dress Linens of every character—Voiles, Crepes, Ratines and Ramies. THIS "SHORT-END" CLEARANCE means ECONOMIES for you.

The Social World

The opening of the Capital City Country Club is being observed Thursday with an informal reception scheduled for the late afternoon and a dance for the evening. The club house is decorated gayly for the event, which marks the taking over of the Brookhaven Club by the new management. The entire club membership will be welcomed by officers of the club.

Many motor parties were arranged for the afternoon and evening. Tennis courts, golf links and the splendid lake drew many for the afternoon, who will remain over for the informal dance. Club members will be received by Mr. Robert F. Maddox, president of the club, with Mrs. Maddox, other officers and their wives and the board of managers.

D. A. R. Garden Party.

The extensive grounds surrounding the summer home of Governor and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton was the scene of a garden party Wednesday afternoon given by members of the Atlanta Chapter, D. A. R. Mrs. Slaton, formerly regent of the chapter and an active worker, tendered the use of her summer home for the affair. Several hundred guests attended.

Mrs. Slaton, with her mother, Mrs. William D. Grant; Mrs. John Grant, Mrs. James Osgood Wynn, regent of the chapter, and other officers, received on the veranda.

From a broad balcony, draped with flags, a musical program was given by Miss Adgate Ellis, Miss Mary Loveless, Mrs. Carthew-Yorstoun and Mr. Wilford Watters. Miss Ellis, who was trained by Oscar Sanger in New York, made her debut. Her singing was enthusiastically received.

Punch was served from tables on the lawn. Each was decorated with sweetpeas. Among the guests were a number of prominent D. A. R. members from others chapters. Besides the program of vocal music, there was music by an orchestra.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Willis Everett, Mrs. Woods White, Mrs. E. D. Kennedy, Mrs. Alfred Newell, Mrs. A. R. Ninninger, Mrs. Elijah A. Brown, Mrs. Charles B. Walker, Mrs. Arch Avery, Mrs. George M. Hope, Misses Frances Connally, Jennie D. Harris, Katherine DuBose, Eloise Robinson, Passie May Ottley, Marjorie Brown, Sara Rawson, Harriet Calhoun, Margaret Northen, Gladys Dunson, Ida Winship, Emily Winship, Virginia Bowman, Elizabeth Morgan, Aimee Hunnicutt, Annie Sykes Rice and Clifford West, with a number of other young women active members of the chapter.

Patterson-Greene.

A wedding on Wednesday evening was that of Miss Annie Mays Patterson to Mr. Calvin Greene which took place at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Judge and Mrs. John R. Wilkinson, in Inman Park, Dr. Charles Daniel officiating.

The house was decorated with palms, ferns and daisies, a chain of Shasta daisies and feverfew forming the aisle through which the bridal party passed to the altar.

The flower girl was little Mary Sue Prim and Master Charles Moody was ring bearer. The chains were held by the bride's little sister, Julia Dent Patterson, of Texas, and her cousins, Flora Bell Reynolds, Miriam Reynolds Patterson and Margaret Wilkinson. The little attendants were all dressed in white lingerie frocks with blue ribbons.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white satin draped in princess lace, and her tulle veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms.

After the ceremony there followed a reception. The bride's table was decorated with a mound of daisies and the wedding cake and other details were in white and yellow.

Mrs. Wilkinson received her guests wearing white embroidered crepe de chine. Mrs. Patterson, the bride's mother, wore white chiffon and satin, and Mrs. A. H. Green, the mother of the bridegroom, wore gray chiffon draped in heliotrope chiffon and lace.

Punch was served on the porch by Misses Anna Mary Fuller, Elizabeth Wood, of Macon; Winnie Davis, Isabel Davis, Susan Stephens and Alice May Mackey.

After a bridal trip East Mr. and Mrs. Greene will be at home with the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Green.

Keese-Cole.

Miss Harriet Cole and Mr. Rogers Keese were married Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. D. H. Cole in Ansley Park. While only a limited number of guests were present, the wedding was of much social interest.

A well shaped canopy of smilax, fringed with valley lilies, starred with tiny electric lights and flanked on either side by cathedral candelabra, formed an effective setting for the ceremony. Vases of Easter lilies were interspersed with greenery, which formed a background. The mantel was banked with ferns and Easter lilies. Smilax formed mural decorations throughout the house.

Little Miss Elizabeth Cole, as maid of honor, wore a dainty frock of white lace and lingerie, with pink roses in a lace paper holder. Miss Sophie Daves and Atwood Cole were ribbon bearers. Mr. Roy Dorsey was best man. The bride entered with her brother, Mr. James Howard Cole, who gave her away.

Rev. Dr. Yarborough, of New Jersey, who has officiated at weddings in the bride's family for three generations, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore white princess lace, made with the new three-tier skirt, falling over a long train of white satin. The corsage of satin was veiled in the same lace, the tulle veil being adjusted from a little cap of lace, wreathed with orange blossoms. Her flowers were lavender orchids and valley lilies.

At a reception and buffet lunch the bride's table was adorned with a large mound of Killarney roses and valley lilies, with pretty decorative details in pink and white and little white satin baskets of rice, tied with white ribbons. The buffet, serving table and mantel were banked with small palms and vases of Killarney roses. Punch was served on the porch. Miss Marie Pappenheimer presided over a bowl imbedded in a mound of Killarney roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Cole, the bride's mother, wore a toilet of white charmeuse satin with corsage of lace.

Mr. Keese and his bride left for a wedding journey East. On their return they will be at home with Mrs. Cole in Ansley Park.

Miss Stoney's Luncheon.

An events of Thursday was the luncheon given by Miss Josephine Stoney to Miss Louise Couper's guests, Misses Katherine Graves and LaGranve Cothran, of Rome.

Great quantities of daisies made into a mound graced the center of the luncheon table. The placecards were hand-painted in daisies and all the details where possible were carried out in white and yellow. Miss Stoney received her guests wearing a frock of white embroidered crepe with sash of lavender satin.

The party included Misses Cothran, Graves, Couper, Jane Tucker Fisher, of Columbia, S. C., who is visiting Mrs. Baxter Moore; Virginia Lipscomb, and her guest, Gladys Teague, of Augusta; Eula Jackson and Pattie McGehee.

Miss Vaughan Hostess.

Miss Marian Vaughan entertained at a bridge party Thursday afternoon at her home in Fourteenth Street. Prizes were hand-embroidered lingerie and a pin cushion.

Miss Vaughan wore white lace and blue ribbons. Miss Connally's Bridge.

Miss Frances Connally entertained at bridge Thursday morning for Miss Martha Francis, whose wedding to Mr. Claude Douthit will take place Saturday evening.

Bridge was played on the west porch at the Piedmont Club. Prizes were silk hose and a vanity trinket.

Miss Connally wore a becoming model in black and white French crepe with a white Panama hat.

Guests were Misses Francis, Carolyn King, Eloise Oliver, Adeline Thomas, Mrs. John Chapman, Mrs. Joseph Eby, Mrs. Charles Shelton, Mrs. John Spalding, Mrs. William Schroder, Mrs. Henry Troutman and her guest, Miss Lillian Beattey, of Columbus, Ohio.

For Miss Lewis.

Mrs. W. N. Bennett gave a reception Thursday afternoon for her daughter, Miss Laurette Lewis, whose marriage to Mr. Charles Edgar Jones takes place July 17.

Mrs. Bennett wore a pink lingerie gown. Miss Lewis was in white satin and black lace.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Elijah Brown, Mrs. J. S. Griggs, Mrs. W. A. Niall, Mrs. George Shepherd, Mrs. Samuel Greene, Mrs. L. B. Mower, Mrs. E. H. Ginn, Mrs. Jere Taylor, and Miss Elizabeth Dozier.

Misses Clementine LeVert, Beatrice Tyler and Elizabeth Wilson served punch.

Mrs. Prade Hostess.

Mrs. Julian Prade entertained at bridge Thursday afternoon for her sister, Mrs. Charles Dowman, of Birmingham, who is here with her mother, Mrs. George Westmoreland.

The house was decorated with sweetpeas. Pink gladiolas graced the tea table. Prizes were a picture frame and slipper buckles. Guests included 24 young matrons.

Mrs. Prade wore white crepe and lace. Mrs. Dowman wore pink embroidered crepe.

For Miss Callie Hoke Smith.

Miss Callie Hoke Smith, of Washington, D. C., who is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Ronald Ransom, was the honor guest at an informal tea given Thursday afternoon by Miss Sara Rawson. The guests were entertained on the terrace of the Piedmont Driving Club, tea being served from a prettily appointed tea table. Miss Smith wore a French gown of navy blue crepe de chine, with a Leghorn hat.

Miss Powers Hostess.

Miss Mamie Powers entertained members of the Dramatic Club of Decatur Tuesday evening. The club is rehearsing for a play to be given early in July. At the last meeting Miss Mamie Kirkpatrick and Mr. Edward VanValkenberg rendered several vocal duets.

Mrs. Wimbish Hostess.

Mrs. W. A. Wimbish will entertain at an afternoon tea Saturday for her guest, Miss Stewart, of Montgomery; Mrs. Prioleau Ellis, of Springfield, Mass., and Miss Eloise Oliver, whose wedding to Mr. Frampton Ellis will take place June 30.

Sawtell-Lyon.

Mrs. Annie S. Johnson announces the marriage of her sister, Miss Ellen R. Sawtell, to Mr. Roland C. Lyon. The ceremony was performed at her home by the Rev. Mr. Hill, pastor of the West End Presbyterian Church, Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock.

For Miss Webber.

Miss May Baldwin gave a box party at the Forsyth Wednesday for Miss Celeste Webber, of Spartanburg. Other guests were Misses Winnie Ison, Mildred Parks, Sallie McKinnon, Mary Griffith, Ethel Hudson and Mary Hall.

Shower Day for Hospital.

Saturday is the annual shower day for Wesley Memorial Hospital. Persons interested in the comfort of sick people have been requested to give generously toward the children's and charity wards.

At the Driving Club.

Reservations are being made for the informal dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club Saturday evening, and a number of parties are being formed.

For Miss Crouch.

In honor of Miss Alice Crouch, of Cartersville, guest of Miss Mona Price, Miss Marian Buck entertained at a matinee party at the Forsyth Thursday afternoon.

SHERLOCK ROLE GETS OFFICER $50

Wise Policeman Plays Part of Drunken Farmer to Capture Fugitive.

The false-whiskered sleuth of fiction has nothing on Policeman G. M. Gorman, the hero Thursday of a real Sherlock Holmes adventure.

Gorman read a notice on the police records that a reward of $50 had been offered for the capture of Paul Mitchell, a negro, who escaped from the convict camps at Rome. He determined to bag the fugitive and the fifty. Knowing it would never do to make the hunt in his police uniform, he didn't want to risk even his regular citizen togs.

There was one reasonable thing to do, and he did it—he disguised himself. And it was a disguise that just fit in with the section he visited—Decatur Street. He "made up" as a drunken farmer, and did it so cleverly that even his best friends didn't know him. Everything about the disguise was real except the "drunk." This was faked, of course. The officer staggered through the crowds of negroes in Decatur Street, watching and listening. In front of a negro saloon he discovered his man. The negro soon was in a police station cell and Gorman was in $50.

Mary Tribble To Be Buried in Westview

Mary Tribble, the 7-year-old schoolgirl who died Wednesday afternoon from the effects of poisoning, will be buried in Westview following funeral services to be held at the East Side Baptist Tabernacle Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

The little girl was taken ill several weeks ago. It was found that she had eaten a quantity of school crayon.

She was the daughter of M. C. Tribble, 7 Porter Street, East Atlanta.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

IT was so windy yesterday that Pa & me dident go fishing. We was going to a littel laik ware thare is a lot of pickerel, but the guide sed it wouddent be any use to go, so Pa sed in the morning, Well, Bobbie, let us talk a stroll about the village & watch the men at thare work. Thare is a grate deel of pleshur in watching sumbody else work, Pa sed, espeshully these simpel craftsmen up here in the woods. I dare say I may be abel to give them a few pointers, Pa sed. The human brain is a wunderful thing, Bobbie. Onst it is highly developed, like mine, it can direct operashuns of all sorts, though its owner nevver had any acktual expeerience in the deetails of the operashufis. Now, for instance, thare is yung Frank Keener planting potatoes. Let us stroll oaver thare & see if he is doing it rite.

Good morning, Mister Keener, sed Pa wen we got thare. I see you are planting potatoes. Thare is nothing like a good crop of potatoes for the Winter's store, Pa sed.

Kidding Pa.

But I aint planting potatoes, sed Mister Keener. I planted these potatoes a month ago. I dident have anything else to do this morning, so I thought I wud stroll around among the potatoes & have a chat with the potato bugs. Thay are friendly littel things, potato bugs, he sed. Speek to one of them & watch it wag its tail.

I cud see that Frank was kidding Pa, but Pa's brain wasent highly developed that way & he cuddent see it. All he sed was Well, I hoap you have success with yure garden, & we walked along.

Thare was a carpenter bilding a house acrost the street. His naim was Mister Bill Thomson. Good-morning, Mister Thomson, sed Pa. I see you are bilding a pritty littel bungalow. I wud like to have one sumthing like it, Pa sed, & maybe if you ain't too busy next month I will go ahed with it. I always thought this wud be a pritty town in wich to have a bungalow in.

This ain't a bungalow I am bilding sed Mister Thomson. This is a ice house. It looks as much like a bungalow as you look like the King of England. Please move along now & doant bother me. It rained all day yesterday so I cuddent work & now that it is nice & sunny I doant want every yap that cums along to stop & ask foolish questuns of me.

Carpenters are generally rude, cross grained persons, sed Pa to me after we had moved along. I cud see that Pa was pritty mad but I dident feel a bit sorry for him, he had no bizness bothering a man who was working.

Jest then we passed a livery stabel —thare was the owner with two littel jackasses.

A Fine Team.

Good morning, Mister Maus, sed Pa. Can I help you to hitch up yure fine team of mules? I used to hitch up mules wen I was in the army, sed Pa. I am vary fond of mules & thay like me, too.

But these isent mules, thay is chackasses, sed Mister Maus, und I wasent going to hitch them up, also. I chust wanted them to make a littel exercise alreddy. Und if I was going to hitch them up anyway, sed Mister Maus, why doant you mind yure own bizness beesides, yet?

Every man that Pa talked to treeted him jest the saim, but it dident faze Pa. Wen we went hoam to dinner he toald Ma that he had been around having a friendly chat with the villagers. Those simpel folks wud lay down thare lives for me, Pa sed.

You doant say, sed Ma. Then thay must be vary simpel folks.

Cherry Roly Poly, by
Katherine De Rohne

THE market this season is displaying some of the most delicious products of the tree whose family was forever made famous by the truthfulness of one G. Washington. "Cherry Roly Poly" is supplied by a pastmistress of the art, Katherine De Rohne, one of the stars of the Rustic Theatre at the Palisades Amusement Park.

Take one pound of suet and chop fine, being careful to pick out all the skin and strings.

Add:—

Three cups of flour,
one teaspoonful of salt,
one teaspoonful of baking powder,
and just enough water to make it adhere and roll out smoothly.

Roll out to the thickness of about a quarter of an inch. Spread a quart of pitted cherries, sugared, on the thin layer of dough and roll them up. Place in a cheesecloth bag and boil for three hours.

Sauce: Butter the size of an egg, melted but not browned. To this add a teaspoonful of flour and a cup and one-half of water, three-quarters of a cup of sugar and a gill of New England rum. Stir together and boil to the consistency of thick cream.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Take the chairs out of the office, Dan," he directed, "except mine and one other—that one!" He indicated a chair standing a little way from one end of his desk. "Now, have all the shades up." He chuckled as he added: "That Turner woman saved you the trouble with one."

As the doorman went out after having fulfilled these commands, the Inspector lighted a cigar which he had retained still in his mouth, and then seated himself in the chair that was set partly facing the windows opening on the corridor. He smiled with anticipatory triumph as he made sure that the whole length of the corridor with the barred doors of the cells was plainly visible to one sitting thus. With a final glance about to make certain that all was in readiness, he returned to his chair, and, when the door opened, he was, to all appearances, busily engaged in writing.

Garson's Face Showed Fear.

"Here's Garson, Chief," Cassidy announced.

"Hello, Joe!" Burke exclaimed, with a seeming of careless friendliness, as the detective went out, and Garson stood motionless just within the door.

"Sit down, a minute, won't you?" the inspector continued, affably. He did not look up from his writing as he spoke.

Garson's usually strong face was showing weak with fear. His chin which was commonly very firm, moved a little from uneasy twitchings of his lips. His clear eyes were slightly clouded to a look of apprehension, as they roved the room furtively. He made no answer to the Inspector's greeting for a few moments, but remained standing without movement, poised alertly as if sensing some concealed peril. Finally, however, his anxiety found expression in words. His tone was pregnant with alarm, though he strove to make it merely complaining.

"Say, what am I arrested for?" he protested. "I ain't done anything."

Even now, Burke did not look up, and his pen continued to hurry over the paper.

"Who told you you were arrested?" he remarked, cheerfully, in his blandest voice.

Garson uttered an ejaculation of disgust.

"I don't have to be told," he retorted, huffily. "I'm no college president, but when a cop grabs me and brings me down here, I've got sense enough to know I'm pinched."

The Inspector did not interrupt his work, but answered with the utmost good nature.

"Is that what they did to you, Joe? I'll have to speak to Cassidy about that. Now, just you sit down, Joe, won't you? I want to have a little talk with you. I'll be through here in a second." He went on with the writing.

Garson moved forward slightly, to the single chair near the end of the desk, and there seated himself mechanically. His face thus was turned toward the windows that gave on the corridor, and his eyes grew yet more clouded as they rested on the grim doors of the cells. He writhed in his chair, and his gaze jumped from the cells to the impassive figure of the man at the desk. Now, the forger's nervousness increased, momently—it swept beyond his control. Of a sudden, he sprang up, and stepped close to the Inspector.

The Door Clanged To.

"Say," he said in a husky voice, "I'd like—I'd like to have a lawyer."

"What's the matter with you, Joe?" the Inspector returned, always with that imperturbable air, and without raising his head from the work that so engrossed his attention. "You know, you're not arrested, Joe. Maybe, you never will be. Now, for the love of Mike, keep still, and let me finish this letter."

Slowly, very hesitatingly, Garson went back to the chair, and sank down on it in a limp attitude of dejection wholly unlike his customary posture of strength. Again, his fear fascinated eyes went to the row of cells that stood silently menacing on the other side of the corridor beyond the windows. His face was tinged with gray. A physical sickness was creeping stealthily on him, as his thoughts held insistently to the catastrophe that threatened. His intelligence was too keen to permit a belief that Burke's manner of almost fulsome kindliness hid nothing ominous—ominous with a hint of death for him in return for the death he had wrought.

Then terror crystallized. His eyes were caught by a figure, the figure of Cassidy, advancing there in the corridor. And with the detective went a man whose gait was slinking, craven. A cell door swung open, the prisoner stepped within, the door clanged to, the bolts shot into their sockets noisily.

Garson sat huddled, stricken for he had recognized the victim thrust into the cell before his eyes. . . . It was Dacey, one of his own cronies in crime—Dacey, who, the night before had seen him kill Eddie Griggs. There was something concretely sinister to Garson in this fact of Dacey's presence there in the cell.

Of a sudden, the forger cried out raucously:

"Say, Inspector, if you've got anything on me, I—I would——" The cry dropped into unintelligible mumblings.

Burke retained his manner of serene indifference to the other's agitation. Still his pen hurried over the paper; and he did not trouble to look up as he expostulated, half-banteringly.

"Now, now! what's the matter with you, Joe? I told you that I wanted to ask you a few questions. That's all."

Garson leaped to his feet again resolutely, then faltered, and ultimately fell back into the chair with a groan, as the Inspector went on speaking.

"Now, Joe, sit down, and keep still. I tell you, and let me get through with this job. It won't take me more than a minute more."

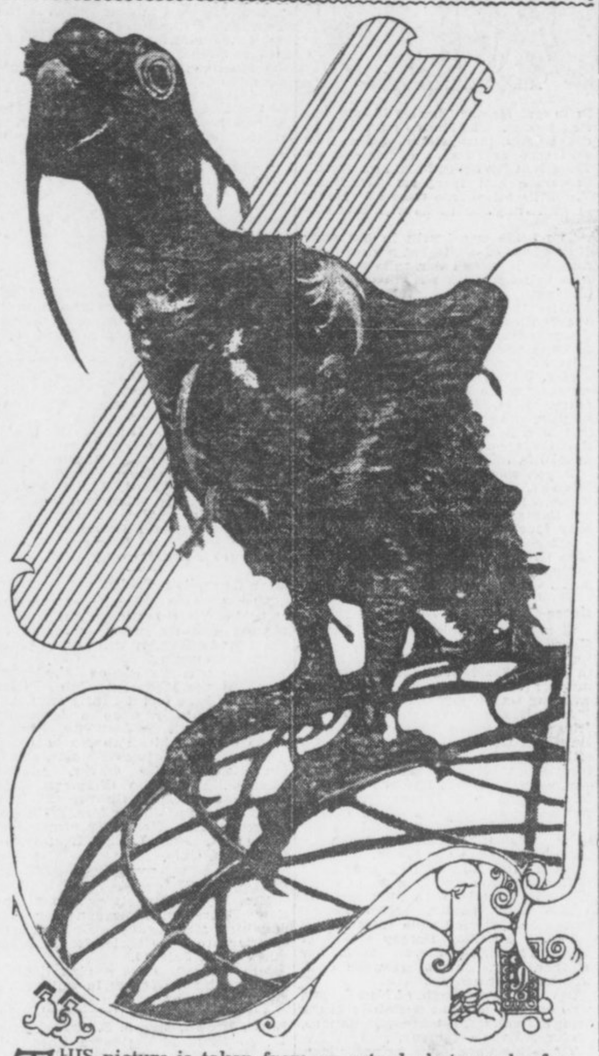
But after a moment Garson's emotion forced him to another appeal.

"Say, Inspector——" he began.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SOME CHICKEN!

A Parrot 116 Years Old and Not Yet in Cold Storage



THIS picture is taken from an actual photograph of a parrot that is one hundred and sixteen years old, and still has a lively croak. It belongs to an English family, but spent but fifty years of its feathered life in that country. Its other sixty-six years saw it in Brazil, its original home. Although it is almost "sans everything" Polly can sing in quite a lively manner, and is always cheerful. Perhaps therein lies its secret of longevity. Who knows?

Things Worth Remembering

The possibility of using the Cinema for the identification of criminals is being seriously considered by the New York Police Commissioner. It is suggested that five feet of film, costing 70 cents, will suffice to record the peculiarities of dress and carriage of any person whom it is desired to keep under observation. With photographs, finger prints, motion pictures, and Bertillon measurements a man who has been convicted will have his hands full in making his "get-away" afterward.

Stretching across Western Australia is a rabbit-proof fence, said to be the longest in the world. It extends for a distance of 1,200 miles, without a break, except for gates. It begins in the temperate regions and ends in the tropics, and sometimes for nearly 100 miles it never passes a human habitation.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

YOUR FRIEND IS RIGHT.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 and I have been keeping company with a young man four years. He is 23. I love him more than tongue can tell. I have loved him since the day I first met him. He doesn't show any love for me. Could you tell me if there is any love on his part? I show my love for him, and my friend tells me that is the reason he doesn't show his.

IRENE WATSON.

You are foolish to let him see you care so much for him. Naturally, a man makes no effort to win a girl who lets him see that effort is unnecessary. You are only 17. Give up this man, and the next time you fall in love make an effort to conceal it.

WITHIN HER RIGHTS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with a young lady, whom I have never had the pleasure of seeing in her own home, as her mother is opposed to me. I have known her now for more than 18 months. She is 18. I am 21. She is willing to marry me, only she is afraid of her folks, inasmuch as her mother threatens to have me arrested if I marry her daughter. I have tried every way to win her mother over, but so far I have failed. I can't meet her, as her mother watches her like a cat watches a mouse.

D. D. W.

The mother is wholly within her rights, and as the first and last desire of every mother's heart is for her daughter's happiness, consideration is due her wishes.

If all were favorable, you should not marry, being only 21. Make the most of the assurance that you love each other, and wait a year or two.

Had Every Time.

Smith was a constant worry to his friends. They never knew when to and when not to treat him seriously, since, as he frankly admitted, he delighted in pulling other people's legs.

One day he and Brown met casually in the street, and stopped, as friends often do, to gossip for a while.

"Big blaze—that fire at the factory in Johnson Street last night, wasn't it?" asked Brown.

"Yes," replied Smith, "I went down to have a look at it. And, my word, there were several mighty narrow escapes there, too!"

"Escapes!" cried Brown, excitedly. "But the morning paper said that there was no one in the building."

Smith nodded.

"Oh," he said, "the firemen brought the escapes down with them. So-long, old chap!"

A BACHELOR'S DIARY .:. He Can't Forget That Kiss

By MAX.

JUNE 1.—It is a week since Sally Spencer kissed me, and though I have repeatedly since made occasion to be with her alone she has never repeated the offense.

I have sent for her to come over on the shallowest of excuses. If Manette ate too much or too little, I have feigned an alarm that could only be quieted by having Mrs. Spencer take a look at her, and on such occasions I invariably sent Richards and Sarah Ray out of the room. But it has been to no avail.

I make the confession in no great humility. I am a man and, try as hard as I may, I can not rise above being a man. I make no pretense of being an angel. That claim I leave to the women who tempt us.

I find myself looking at another man's wife with eyes that are not the eyes of the soul. There was a time when it would have been my first impulse to be Sally Spencer's disinterested friend; I will always be that in the future, but I will have to fight myself first.

Only Contempt.

June 2—I have said little about the widow, Diary, but I hope you do not believe it is because I condone her sins, or feel any emotion for her but unmitigated contempt.

She is the vilest of creatures for no other description fits a woman who makes it her sport to undermine some other woman's happiness.

June 3—Life has been compared with a feast, and if there is anything in the comparison, just at present the whole world is partaking of a course that is too highly seasoned to be healthful. That we will all suffer moral indigestion for refusing to pass it by I do not doubt.

We are swinging to a most unhealthy extreme, making public and discussing and devouring topics that are the climax of vulgarity, and we call ourselves progressive because we do it.

The old-fashioned standard of truth to one's self and one's vows seems to be passing away. When one transgresses these days, it is not called a transgression, but disguised under the phrase "Daring to live one's own life."

And when it is said that a woman especially "dares to live her own life," it means that she has dared to violate every civil and moral law. Mrs. Brown has always approved of any woman who dared to live her own life, and has told me many times that it was what she had always done, and always intended to do.

I can see now that it was the modern way of expressing a determination to be governed by no standard or convention. What will become of the world when all women "dare to live their own lives," no man may conjecture.

She buried her first husband, which can not be charged against her. In these days when men are put at the lowest valuation a measure of applause is given any woman who outlives her husband. Should she outlive a dozen, it is a notable deed, but if a man buries as many as two wives Rumor begins to whisper that he killed them by abuse and neglect.

The widow's second husband divorced her because of her infatuation with another woman's husband. She broke up that man's home, and cast him aside when, for pecuniary reasons, her love grew cold.

A Dark Past.

She had, as she expresses it, "dared to live her own life," which means that she refused to let the impulses of her soul be fettered by the shackles of convention. I could express it in plainer language, but plain language, according to Mrs. Brown and her kind, is a mark of a vulgar mind.

I have heard that her second husband's heart was broken because of the scandal, and that it killed him. Of course I do not credit the statement. The men do not die of broken hearts. They love a woman with every bit of their anatomy, but their hearts. This is true, for I have heard soap-box oratorical representatives of the Adorable Sex say so.

June 4—Jack has been gone three days. He writes dutifully and says he will be home soon. He is the sort of a man who will go away with another woman and square it with his conscience by writing faithfully to his wife while away. I have no doubt he took her photograph with him. I always mistrust the man who takes his wife's photograph wherever he goes. So often he uses this mark of devotion as a salve to his conscience for leaving her at home.

June 5—"I think," said Sally, when I called this morning to learn the latest news of her husband, "that my attitude in this matter is a great disapointment to Mrs. Brown. She thought I would rush after Jack, create a scene and a scandal, and that the publicity would wreck my home and give Jack a divorce. I know Jack better than she does. The fact that I give him every opportunity to steal robs the theft of its zest. He is disgusted with her and with himself, and would return any moment I sent for him."

I remembered the kiss. "Don't send for him, Sally. He isn't worth your forgiveness."

Must Take Chances.

"He is as good as any man," she retorted. "He is as good as you are, Max, and, what's more, you know it."

"I hadn't thought of that. Perhaps after all he is better. He had sinned in his acts, and I have sinned in my thoughts. Still, if every man who sins in his thoughts is to be condemned, who among us will escape?

"The woman who marries," she resumed, "must accept all chances of what I am undergoing. There are always other women lurking around to tempt husbands to stray, and they seem endowed with every fascination that would appeal to a man as weak as Jack."

The admission of his weakness seemed disloyal to her, even though he has repeatedly proved it, for she continued rapidly: "Not that he is any weaker than you, Max. I don't want you to think for a moment that you are any better than he. I don't want to give the impression that I believe there is a man living who is better than my husband."

I had the feeling that I had been doubted and attacked when my actions, at least, were innocent, and I resented it.

She had risen as if to suggest it was time I was going. "Sit down," I said, in some temper. "You are hitting all men over my shoulders, taking into no account that it is your own sex that is primarily to blame. Now don't interrupt me"— she had begun to say something about Mrs. Brown—"It is not the bad woman alone who is to blame. It is the good woman, as well; the woman who tempts in her innocence, or ignorance. There's yourself, for instance!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Dainty Lois Meredith Talks on Beneficial Athletics

Lois Meredith's Girlish Beauty.

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

DO you know any little girls? Of course there are quite a few children in the world, and I know numberless young—very young—ladies, but I have just met a very sweet little girl and I am going to introduce her to you. Her name is Lois Meredith; she is eighteen, and is making a great success of the part of Helen Morris in "Within the Law." Off the stage she does not play the part of a sophisticated young lady—or a "Broadway favorite"—but fairly dawns on you in the absolute simplicity of a white middy-blouse, black velvet tam-o'-shanter and the unstudied coiffure effect of a "head sunning over with curls."

Of course the very first question I asked Miss Lois was one anent clothes and her ideal costume.

"I like my middy blouses pretty well," said she, "so well, in fact, that I would sacrifice all the sweeties in the world rather than eat goodies and get too fat to wear sailor-suits. But my ideal costume is Greek drapery. I do love the classical lines of drapery that leave you free and untrammelled, so you can breath, and move naturally, and look natural, too. I'd like to wear layer after layer of chiffon and sandals and give my whole body a chance to breathe. Think how wrapped up and shut away from the health-giving fresh air our poor bodies are. Well, I wear as few layers as I can—dispensing with every unnecessary thing I can—corsets for instance—and I wear white, so I'll feel cool and clean, and I try to give my body a chance to sway and to move freely, so I will feel all through me how good it is to be alive.

No Jewels.

"I don't believe in jewels, either," went on this sensible girl. "If you are pretty, jewels sort of attract attention to themselves and away from you. And if you are not pretty, anyway, showy jewelry makes you conspicuous, and then people notice how unattractive you are."

Dainty little Lois Meredith can afford to believe in "beauty unadorned," but every eighteen-year-old girl and the older sister of twenty ought to ponder the bit of philosophy: "Plain women are always adding some little fancy touches that make you notice how very plain they are!"

"Will you tell me how you spend your day?" I asked. "You must carry out your theory of simplicity in living as well as clothes."

"My theory of living," answered Miss Meredith, "is WORK. For everything worth getting in this world you must work, work, work. To keep well and strong, to look attractive, and to get ahead in the profession you have chosen, you must keep working and striving. In my chosen calling I find that I have to keep developing my brain, so I can do better and better things all the time. I am studying French and music in the interests of my brain.

Plenty of Sleep.

"Then I take care of my body, too. Of course I have to have plenty of sleep, because I am still growing. I have never in all my life been to a restaurant after the theater; most girls would think that an awful sacrifice, wouldn't they? Well then, I get up at about 9, and have a glass of hot water, which is not a bit hard to take when you keep at it, and then for about half an hour I exercise; stretching motions, aesthetic dancing movements and bending over, with my knees held taut and body poised. Sometimes I touch my finger tips to the floor, sometimes I wrap my arms around my legs and see how far down I can bring my head.

"I have one little pet exercise: A very great artist said that I had the most beautiful hand in America! Now I'd like to believe him—even if that would be conceited—but anyway I take care of my hands and try to keep them soft and tapering. I go through an exercise as if I were wringing them and stroking them. I work at my hands as if I were putting on and taking off a new pair of gloves very carefully. I truly can recommend this exercise, for just think what it made Mr. Gibson say to me.

"Would you like to hear about my favorite part?" went on the girl ingenuously. Perhaps it would make a good conclusion to your interview. My favorite part was Modesty in 'Everywoman.' I thought it a compliment to be asked to play that part. I loved doing it—and I felt that the only way to play Modesty was to be modest. That applies to girls everywhere doesn't it?

"Modesty is always the sweetest part—and it has to be true, or people will know."

And I think that is a very good conclusion for the interview—Modesty and the sweet simplicity and charm that follow in her wake are the best parts for all girls—only they must not be parts. Modesty must be true if you want to be a truly charming girl.

Up-to-Date Jokes

Mr. Winston Churchill has often effectively silenced offensive interrupters. It is related that on one occasion, when addressing a large meeting in the North, he was frequently disturbed by a man who persisted in shouting "Liar! Liar!" every few minutes.

Winston bore with him for some time, but eventually broke off his speech to remark, in gentlest accents:

"If the gentleman at the back of the hall who is so anxious that the audience should know his name will write it down on a slip of paper and hand it to the chairman instead of bawling it at the top of his voice, he will save himself a lot of trouble."

No more was heard of the interrupter for the rest of the meeting.

"That house I have rented from you," said the dissatisfied tenant, "is horribly draughty. When I was sitting in the middle of the room my hair blew all over my face. Can't you do something?"

"Don't you think, sir," replied the house agent, suavely, "it would be easier and cheaper for you to get your hair cut?"

A Paris cabman found a splendid turbot that had been left in his cab. He went at once to the Commissary of Police.

"Very good, my friend," said the latter. "Come back again in a year and a day, and if, in the meantime, the turbot has not been claimed, it shall be yours."

He—And won't you give me a kiss?
She—Certainly not. I never kissed a man in my life.
He (emphatically)—Neither have I.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite, and was so nervous I could not sleep; then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work, and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. Hayward Sowers, Cary, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

SYNOPSIS

Gordon Kelly, a mountain boy of Georgia, goes to Atlanta. He becomes the sensation of the baseball world through his marvelous playing, although he said that he had never played a game before arriving in Atlanta. He is bought by the Boston American League Club for $50,000. Kelly incurs the enmity of Forrest Cain, a wealthy ne'er-do-well, at the same time winning the friendship and love of Mildred Deery, daughter of an Atlanta banker. Kelly is hurt in a game and Mildred runs to his assistance. He recovers, leaves the hospital and mysteriously disappears. He is not heard from for months. Mildred admits to herself that she loves Kelly. Her father dislikes the publicity given Mildred's assistance to Kelly on the baseball field. He gets Mildred to agree to go to the mountains. Cain follows Mildred and calls upon her. While Mildred is fishing she suddenly comes upon Gordon Kelly. In the meeting each learns of the other's love. Kelly is sought everywhere by the press. Cain proposes to Mildred and is refused. Kelly meets Cain and the latter tries to shoot Kelly. Elmer saves Kelly's life. Mildred visits Gordon Kelly's home in the mountains and is astonished at the evidences of luxury and refinement she finds there. Gordon is caught in a storm and is made prisoner by four strange men. He is forced to write a letter to Mildred. In it he tries to convey a hint of his whereabouts.

Now go on with the story.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Did you git a letter fum Mr. Bud Ah mean Mr. Gordon, Mis' Mildred?" asked the colored boy, after the car was fairly in motion.

"Yes, Steve, I'll read it to you; and I'm going back with you in order to tell Mr. Gray, the superintendent, and Mrs. Ward, the housekeeper, about it."

Arriving at the huge granite edifice, Mildred learned that Gray had rounded up every available man on the place and had started off with them on a systematic hunt for the missing man. Asking Steve to tell Mrs. Ward that she was there, Mildred was soon joined by the housekeeper, to whom she imparted the news and then sat down to breakfast with her while Steve ran off to bring back the searching party.

When Gray returned Mildred read the letter she had received to him. If she had allowed him to read it, the level headed superintendent might have discovered the simple cryptogram and headed a party that would have rescued Gordon in jig time, but Mildred clung to the letter as though it was the most precious thing in the world and would not allow it to go out of her hand.

It was decided that, as Gordon had explicitly told them not to search for him at present, it might be fatal to the captive if they disobeyed orders, so matters were allowed to rest as they were, pending the receipt of further news from Gordon.

Gray Is Cautious.

"Somebody has kidnaped him," declared Gray, "and they expect to make a fortune. If that is the case we will be hearing from them mighty quick, and when we do we will make our plans accordingly."

Gray was a big, hearty man, full of action but cautious when caution was required. "In the meantime, Miss Deery," he said, "I would advise you not to worry. But just as soon as you hear from Mr. Gordan again, please let me know at once. I will have the telephone line fixed right away."

Mildred was driven back to the bungalow by Steve. She was happy to think he was safe and well, yet troubled over the vagueness and uncertainty of things. In the course of a few days another letter came and she promptly informed Gray of its contents. It was apparently written in a cheerful spirit, but again admonished them not to search for him.

"That was put in there by orders of the men who are holding him," was Gray's comment when Mildred read the letter to him. "I wish he could slip in some hint of where he is hidden and I'd have him back here in half a day. They must be guarding him closely, Miss Deery, for I know him well enough to know that he would break away if they gave him the slightest opening."

The days went by. Mildred wrote a letter to Gordon and placed it under a stone at the doorsill, but when his next letter was delivered in the dead of night, the messenger did not take away Mildred's letter. In time Farnsworth came to the bungalow, as has already been told, but Mildred did not inform him of all she knew in connection with Gordon's disappearance. She was afraid that the publicity might work some harm to the man she loved. The newspaper men went away and more letters were received. They were all written in the same spirit. Weeks passed. Mildred's mother returned to Atlanta, urging Mildred to return with her, but the girl refused to leave the mountain region. She had not yet informed her mother of her great secret, but her mother had half guessed it.

One day when Mildred felt that she could stand the suspense no longer and was on the point of yielding to Gray's entreaties to start a business-like hunt for the captive, she discovered the simple cryptogram.

"What a little fool I've been," she cried. She had, of course, noticed that Gordon had begun every line of his letters with a capital letter, but the reason for it had entirely escaped her. Now, of course, it was as plan as day and she almost cried at her own stupidity in not solving the riddle long ago. She had saved every letter and was reading them over for the several hundredth time when she made the discovery. She procured pencil and paper and wrote down the instructions.

"Five miles northwest my home," the first letter said, reading down the lines of capital letters. "Three miles due west road meets creek," read the second letter. "Sharp rise hundred yards then down," said third. "Cabin midst copse few trees; four captors," said the fourth. There were two more letters contining further hints.

Mildred called Elmer and told him to bring the runabout, and together they went to the mansion to find Gray. They were told that he had gone to Atlanta on business, but would return next day. On the way home Elmer said:

"Let's not wait for Mr. Gray. Let's find Gordon and rescue him ourselves."

"You foolish boy," replied Mildred. "They would capture us, too, and then what a fine pickle we would be in. We must wait for Mr. Gray and he will take plenty of men with him."

Elmer Would Fight.

"Oh shucks, Mildred," exclaimed the lad. "Gee whiz, I could take your rifle and you could take your revolver and we could sneak up and catch them off their guard and rescue the prisoner. Come on, Mildred; let's do it."

"I'm afraid your spirit is better than your judgment, Elmer," said Mildred with a sigh. "Goodness knows I hate to wait until Mr. Gray gets back, but I don't see what else we can do."

Elmer kept teasing all the way home and when they arrived he brought forth his father's maps of the region and they spent a long time pouring over them trying to figure out the exact spot where they thought Gordon was held a captive.

"Be game, Mildred," said Elmer, returning to the attack. "Only four men are there. We can get the drop on them easy."

"Stop talking nonsense, child, or you'll make me cross with you," cried Mildred. "If your father was here I would willingly let him get a force at the mansion and start out without waiting for Mr. Gray." Shephard was in Chattanooga and would not return for two days. "Run away now, Elmer and leave me alone. I want to think this all out by myself," added Mildred.

It was only Gordon's cheerful letters that had prevented Mildred from going distracted. The situation had been a most peculiar one. In every one of the letters Gordon had told her not to begin a search for him and she had been afraid to ignore his request. Gray had insisted more than once on taking the matter in his own hands, but Mildred had flatly move.

"He is writing these letters to me, Mr. Gray, and they clearly say not to seek him," she told him the last time they had talked the matter over.

"That is because he was forced to write it, otherwise they wouldn't have delivered the letters," replied the superintendent. "If he doesn't turn up soon, Miss Deery, I'm going to take matters on my own hands."

"To Be His Wife."

"Please don't, Mr. Gray," she pleaded. "I am sure something dreadful would happen if you failed, and we would never see him again."

"That's all right, Miss Deery. But in a way I am responsible for his safety. With you it is different."

"Yes, it is different, Mr. Gray," she replied quietly. "I have promised to be his wife."

Gray's eyes opened wide at this piece of information, and Mildred added: "Please say nothing about it. I only tell you so that you can understand how vitally interested I am in his welfare."

Sitting alone on the porch the day she discovered the hidden meaning in Gordon's letters, Mildred went over the whole situation in her mind. Gray was absent. Shephard was absent. Gordon had long expected help. She knew not where to turn. At last she arose from her chair and going to the telephone, called up the mansion and said:

CHAPTER XLI.

WITH the exception of the news of Gordon Kelly that Farnsworth, the newspaper man, had secured from Mildred Deery at her bungalow, and which was published in his paper, the great baseball public had heard nothing of the $50,000 player since the day late in May when he left the hospital in Atlanta and disappeared. The public knew nothing of his palatial home in the Georgia mountains, it knew nothing of his vast wealth, of his peculiar life, of the tragedy of his father's death. It knew nothing of the grand romance of Gordon and Mildred, or of Gordon's conflicts with Forrest Cain, or of his capture and detention by the mountaineers. All the public knew was that Gordon Kelly, the most widely advertised ball player in the world, the man the Red Sox had paid the stupendous sum of $50,000 for, the player every "fan" on the American League circuit was most anxious to see perform, had mysteriously disappeared.

The name of Gordon Kelly had become a byword wherever baseball was played or discussed. Every time a player on any team in any city or town made a home run he was a "Gordon Kelly." Ball players in the big leagues, college ball players, schoolboy players, and even the urchins playing ball in the back lots were always talking about the great player. This continued all summer long all over the country, so that despite the fact that the public did not know what had become of Gordon Kelly, his name was constantly on everybody's lips and he was constantly referred to in the newspapers.

Gave Up Hope.

The Red Sox management practically gave up hope of ever seeing him again before the season was half over but every pay day a check was drawn to his order and mailed to his last known address in Atlanta. The first half of the season was fraught with injuries to the Red Sox players, and if ever they needed Gordon Kelly it was in the first few months of the championship season. But by the first of July the world's champions got going in their proper stride and won game after game in the same impressive manner that had enabled them to mow down their opponents in the season of 1912 and eventually capture the American League pennant and later the highest honors in baseball—the world's championship.

The Red Sox pitchers—the backbone of a team—began "going good" about the first of July. The heavy hitters took confidence and found their "batting eyes" again. The loyal supporters of the team took heart and flocked to Fenway Park to encourage their favorites and "squeeze" hard for victory.

That rabid Boston organization known far and wide as the "Royal Rooters," forgot the fancied grievances it had against the club's management that dated back to the last world's series, and marched to the baseball grounds en masse and with a brass band playing "Tessie." The old-time Boston spirit—the spirit that made Boston the greatest baseball city in the world—returned as the Red Sox forged triumphantly toward the top of the baseball column.

Red Sox Climb.

By the first of August the Red Sox were in third place, after floundering around among the tail-enders for half the saeson. By the first of September the world's champions were in second place, only the Athletics, of Philadelphia, standing between them and the leadership in the American League pennant fight. The men were playing with a dash and vigor that surpassed their 1912 form. Tris Speaker, the great center fielder, led the league in batting and every day he was getting his two or more safe hits, most of them solid drives for two or three bases or home runs. Duffy Lewis, the left fielder, was close up in his stockwork, and his fielding and throwing were better than ever. Harry Hooper in right field was having his best year, batting better than he had ever done before and running the bases like a deer. Heine Wagner, captain of the team and the man most depended upon for defensive work, played with a steadiness that was the marvel of the baseball world. Larry Gardner, the third baseman, fully recovered from the injury to his ankle, began playing again early in June, and from that time on he surpassed himself at bat and in the field. Steve Yerkes was as steady as a rock at second base, and his batting was timely. He seldom failed to deliver when called upon. Clyde Engle, who had to play first base nearly all the year on account of the injury to Manager Stahl's foot, played the bag in a manner that made the other first basemen jealous. The catchers—Carrigan and Cady—were like stonewalls behind the bat, and the pitchers—Wood, Bedient, Collins and O'Brien, with Hall and Leonard to help out—performed wonders. In short, the whole team played like wildfire and stood the other teams on end as fast as they appeared. From the first of July to the close of the season the Red Sox did not lose but one series to their opponents.

White Sox Terrors.

In the meantime, the Chicago White Sox, managed by the clever Jimmy Callahan (with the owher of the club, Comiskey—the "Old Roman"—in the background to help with his sage advice) were going great guns, too. Big Ed Walsh, the celebrated "spitball" pitcher, seemed unbeatable. Scott, Benz and the other twirlers supported the mainstay nobly. Schalk, the "kid" catcher, proved to be one of the best backstops in either league and held the pitching of the entire staff with elegance and grace, while his right arm was a terror to base stealers. Strengthened by the acquisition of Hal Chase, the great first baseman, the entire infield braced, Rath, Weaver and Lord playing as though their lives depended on it. The outfield developed into one of the strongest in the American League. "Ping" Bodie played fine ball and broke fences with his bat instead of talking about it. Collins, the Newton boy, and Mattick, the other outfielders, covered their territory like ten-second men and batted like fiends. This great Chicago aggregation, while its success was not quite as sensational as the Red Sox, plowed steadily ahead, and when the Boston team reached second place the Windy City rivals were close behind them, only a few points separating the two teams in the percentage column.

In the meantime, the Athletics, managed by the shrewd baseball general, Connie Mack, which had been enjoying a sort of baseball buggy ride the first half of the season and had already begun to count their world's series money in their minds, struck a mighty rough road about the first of August and began to "come back," as they say in horse racing circles. They lost game after game. Their pitchers "went bad" and their sluggers failed to slug. Someone stole Frank Baker's bats and he couldn't hit the ball. Two or three unfortunate accidents put some of their most dependable players on the hospital list temporarily. By the first of September the Philadelphia "fans" were in a panic. Manager Connie Mack lost his Mephistophelean smile, and the subdued swearing he indulged in withered the grass in the immediate vicinity of the players' bench whereon he sat during the gloomy, losing games.

Situation Tense.

The pitchers on whom Mack depended, caused him many sleepless nights. Eddie Plank's cross-fire became-crosseyed. Jack Coombs' curves were batted from Dan to Beersheba, and in spite of "Chief" Bender's red-faced twists and black-haired curves, the Indian could not win a game. On September 1 the Athletics were still in the lead, but only two games separated them from the Rex Sox, and the Chicagos were so close up that the Philadelphia players had heart disease every time they looked at a sporting extra. This was the situation when Labor Day rolled around.

But just when the White Elphants, as the Athletics are sometimes called, appeared to be sure of losing the lead they had had held since the opening of the season in April, they took a wonderful brace. They played the Washington team on Labor Day and won both the morning and the afternoon game, knocking the great Walter Johnson from the box in the second session. However, the Red Sox and the White Sox also won both Labor Day games, so the Athletics did not gain a single point on their rivals.

Games Bitterly Fought.

On September 4 the Red Sox arrived in Philadelphia for a three-game series. Every game was bitterly fought, but the Rex Sox won two of them, thereby reducing the lead of the Athletics to one game. In the meantime the White Sox won three straight and the result was that on the evening of September 6 the three leading clubs were nearer together than ever. From that time on it was a desperate fight to the very finish. Interest in the pennant race was tremendous. Crowds packed the ball parks wherever the three teams performed.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the thirty-third installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read the 34th installment of ahe great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

COAST BETTORS FACE PUZZLE IN BIG FIGHT

CHICAGO, ILL., June 26.—They never seem to have any luck at all in picking winners of the lightweight championship bouts out on the Pacific Coast, and it will be interesting to note which of them in the San Francisco battle of July 4 they single out for favoritism. As a matter of fact they haven't picked the right man for favorite in many a long month out there and in consequence the short ends have won with startling regularity. Yet the coast fans, seeing as they do, must be set down as the poorest judges in the world—or is it all accountable for on the ground of native son pride and civic patriotism? A native son is a real favorite at all times out there if it can be figured that he has as good as a fighting chance.

* * *

INASMUCH as both Jose Rivers and Willie Ritchie may be tabbed up as real native sons, it looks as if both of them will be made favorites. That paradoxical statement may need a little explanation, and here it is. They will make Rivers the favorite down around the southern portion of the State, where he is so highly regarded. And in San Francisco, where Willie comes from, they will make him the choice. Hence we may see the spectacle of Frisco people doing their betting in Los Angeles, where they can get a better price, and the people from the southern part of the State doing their wagering at the scene of the battle. It should result in a funny mixup.

* * *

AS a sample of the strange way they have of picking out probable winners it may be recalled that when Ad Wolgast battled Lew Powell in a 20-round match in San Francisco they made Powell such a strong choice that the Wolgast adherents got as good as 2 1-2 to 1 for their coin—and won it all the way. Likewise when Wolgast won the title from Bat Nelson—the coast fans simply could not see Ad at all. So it has been in many another of the big battles there. Always the wrong man picked as choice and always the short end winning.

* * *

WHATEVER disadvantage Rivers may be found to have in this encounter, one of the points against him will be the fact that he will be an alien and scrapping on the other fellow's own canvas. This may not look to be much of a disadvantage when it is considered that Rivers is as much of a native son as is Ritchie. But Rivers isn't from San Francisco, while Ritchie is, and the cheers of the crowd, or the greater portion of these, will be for Ritchie, which may be decidedly disconcerting for Rivers, who is used to monopolizing such cheers himself, having fought a vast majority of his contests in his own ring at Los Angeles.

* * *

THE question of Rivers' gameness doubtless will be given the answer in this battle. It will be a crucial test for the little Mexican because he hasn't met quite such a rapid fire jabber as the Ritchie boy is liable to be in this match. And jabs are points that will be screamingly cheered by the friends of Ritchie, and Joe will find that he will have to do some mighty whaling to even up any sort of a count. It looks to me as if Rivers is a game kid and will give Willie a tremendous battle.

Long Hits Stride; Robertson Leads All

Tommy Long ha sagain started to climb in the Southern League batting list. The Cracker outfielder secured three hits out of four times at bat yesterday, and is now hitting at a .340 clip.

Dave Robertson is still at the head of the bunch with a mark of .355. He succeeded in getting two hits out of four times up against Nashville yesterday.

Kid Elberfeld, who has been idle for the past week, still holds second place with an average of .347.

'Thumbless Curve' Invented by Rucker

CINCINNATI, OHIO, June 26.—A two-hit shutout administered by Nap Rucker to the Reds recently may develop a new pitching style and a new ball called "the thumbless delivery."

After the game it was found that Rucker pitched the nine wonderful innings with a crippled left hand. The thumb was badly hurt stopping a batted ball some days ago and Nap could not shut it on the leather.

Nevertheless, the Georgia wonder went in there and proceeded to deliver a slow ball, gripped hard with the fingers and only steadied with the base of the useless thumb.

This ball came up to the batters like Matty's fadeaway, but higher, and man after man took two called strikes on the freak delivery.

Then Nap would drive one with what little speed he could command and the Reds, forced to hit, drove it out as best they could.

Great support saved rucker a dozen times, but the game nevertheless was marvelous for a man in his condition. The new thumbless ball, he says, will hereafter be one of his mainstays.

"I can stop any team," said Rucker, "that does the wait-'em-out act. If they stand up there with bat on shoulder I can toss two of these floats, get two strikes and trust to the field for the next one."

PLATTS GETS DECISION.

PIRATES.

In days of old
The Pirates bold
Controlled the raging seas,
And honest men
Who traveled then
All trembled at the knees.

For Pirates then
Were low-browed men,
Whose actions were unlawful.
They loved to fight
From morn till night,
And acted something awful.

We do not bow
To Pirates now—
They are a crowd of dubs.
For proof of that
Just rubber at
The Standings of the Clubs.

Reports from Poughkeepsie indicate that Wisconsin rowed in its old-time form.

Cornell is peeved because it won only two races out of three, whereas some of the crews considered themselves lucky to finish on the same day.

Vivian Nickalls may be a perfectly good rowing coach, but it surpasseth our imagination to conceive of a man named Vivian coaching a gang of huskies.

Alfred Vanderbilt's victory in the London coaching marathon shows that all the rich are not idle. If Alf were not a millionaire he would make a great little teamster.

J. EVERS SINGS.

I often pause and wonder at my
power over him—
One word from me and Heine does
what pleases Heine Zim.

H. Zim may mean well when he promises to be good, but he has an awful job on his hands.

Still, Mr. Zim has qualities which tend to make him a popular idol. For one thing, he never has attempted to burst into vaudeville.

Press agents have various ways to startle the public. For instance, one of them avers that a motorcycle meet was called off for fear the riders would be hurt.

The attempt to restore basketball to the high school curriculum simply shows that some persons have a lot of time to waste.

London papers inform us that "the American innovation of shirtsleeves will undermine the best traditions of golf." And yet there are those who claim that the Times is not a humorous publication.

TREASON.

The suffragettes may throw their bricks and smash the window glass
But England calmly slumbers on and lets the matter pass.
The French and German war bal-
loons may fill the summer air,
But England calmly slumbers on and doesn't seem to care.
Their poloists may cross the seas,
and when they fail to cop,
The English only heave a sigh and
let the matter drop.
One way and one alone there is to capture England's goat—
To play on old St. Andrew's links
and do not wear a coat.

PIRATES RELEASE BOOE.

PITTSBURG, June 25.—Outfielder Everett Booe has been released to the Springfield, Ill., club of the Three I League in part payment for Outfielder Fred Kommers, who is to report immediately. Manager Clarke has signed Outfielders Joe Kelly and George Watson, of the St. Joseph, Mo., team.

HUNTING HIRSIG LANDS NO GAME BUT SPINS YARN

NASHVILLE, TENN., June 26.—President William Alibi Hirsig, of the Vanishing Vols, returned from his hunt for ball players through the wilds of Ohio with his game bag as flat as the well-known pancake, and instead of fielders he accumulated a stock of highly interesting tales of .300 wallopers and .999 fielders he would at an early date dress up in Nashville uniforms.

"Author" Hirsig has so rapidly forged to the front as a yarn spinner that quite a number of the six-best-seller publishers are entreating him to turn out a batch of storyettes about "Ball Players I Pretty Near Landed."

Beautiful Dreams.

Calmly brushing away a tear when the announcement came that "Red" Nelson's physician had warned him against inhaling the germs that hobnob around the club houses throughout the South, Hirsig unfolded a story of grabbing either Almeida or Dodge from the Reds. The interesting story-teller held his listeners spellbound, when he launched into the Vols' chances of securing the Cuban, Almeida, or the hard-hitting Dodge to decorate the third cushion for the Schwartzmen, and seeing that he had the bugs groggy, he put them down for the count when he stated that Tinker would probably also ship to Nashville Marty Berghammer, the former Cub, and "Rube" Groh, who came from the Giants in the famous trade for Arthur Fromme.

Hofman Cries to Come.

Recovering from this terrible shock, Hirsig uncorked another on the unsuspecting gabfest he held with Arthur Hofman while in Akron, in which Circus Solly begged the Vols president to take him to the Sunny South, if Kansas City would only release its claim on the ex-Pirate's services.

'Auld Nick' Goes on Rampage

Jap Beats Indian in Hot Race

MAYBE some day Jock McNeil and Tex Richards, the kings of the local Motordrome, will thrash out their speed differences and settle the argument as to whether the imported J. A. P. engine or that in the American-made Indian is the faster. They took still another hack at it Wednesday night before a smashing big crowd, and it is not decided yet. But McNeil put another kink in Richards' reputation by winning the Woodward Sweeptakes in stunning style. Then his machine blew up.

McNeil has named his craft "Auld Nick," and it surely behaves like it. In three race meets run thus far it has not gone through the whole program without springing a splint or developing a Charley hoss. But whenever it has gone right it has developed a speed the like of which the other machines at the Motordrome can not produce.

In the Sweepstakes Wednesday night McNeil and Richards met in the third heat at two miles. It was a tremendously fast race and the riders whirled around and around in dizzy circles at a speed of exactly 86 miles an hour. McNeil took the lead after the contest was well started and held it, with Richards a handy second, to the finish.

"Oh, Richards was just taking it easy to qualify as the second man in the fastest heat," said the wise ones.

In the final heat, however, they had it out for blood. It was at five miles and they started cautiously. Richards, fearing McNeil, went out after a mile with a terrific showing of speed. It looked as though the Indian would run the Jap off its wheels. But then McNeil opened up and like a witch on a broomstick he whirled mysteriously out into the lead and held it. At the finish Richards closed with one of those uncanny bursts of speed that he always seems able to conjure out of his engine for the finish, but McNeil let out another notch and whirled across the chalk line the winner of a truly great race.

With McNeil's machine in no condition the Motordrome Purse was easy for Richards.

The next races will be held Saturday night.

CLEVELAND FANS RALLY TO BIRMINGHAM'S SIDE

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 26.—Petitions and endless chains of letters to President Ban Johnson and President Charles Somers, of the Naps, censuring the president of the American League on the statement credited to him that Manager Birmingham is incompetent, were started in scores of offices and shops by fans to-day.

Many communications were mailed to Johnson's office in Chicago. Many who didn't write called Owner Somers, and his phone was jingling all day. Employees in offices in the Rockefeller Building started an endless chain of letters, every man asking his acquaintances to write. Similar chains were started in other office buildings.

LAW AGAINST HANDBOOKING BADLY NEEDED

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE attention of the men who have gathered for the purpose of making new laws for Georgia is called to the fact that this State needs a law against gambling.

Yes, it has one, but it is not adequate to prevent handbook gambling.

Under the present law, so we are informed by attorneys of great prominence, a man could parade up and down Peachtree Street offering bets on baseball games and horse races, and not be liable to arrest.

So long as he had no fixed place of business and could not be arrested for conducting a gambling house he is immune.

* * *

THIS is a wretched state of affairs. Handbook gambling ought to be prohibited by law. It leads to more serious gambling, it gets boys and young men started in the wrong way, it results in petty thievery, wasted money. It lines the purses of the gambling gentry, often at the expense of mothers and children who would have had the benefit of the money except for a foolish flyer on a ball game or a horse race.

* * *

THE worst feature of the handbook gambling, perhaps, is its wretched influence on the sports themselves.

Of course racing isn't worth saving.

No sports that exists for gambling alone is.

But baseball is. That is the great national sport, and thus far it has been kept practically above suspicion.

If gambling on the games continues long it will not escape suspicion and it will doubtless deserve suspicion and worse.

If only to save the greatest of American sports handbook gambling should be stopped.

* * *

IT is not presumed that a mere law will prevent betting. But it will at least drive it to cover and yank off the mask of respectability. If it isn't against the law to run a handbook why shouldn't anybody do it? That is what a lot of them ask. And it is a hard question to answer.

If a measure to prevent handbook gambling could be put before the Legislature it would go through flying.

There isn't a man who would vote against it. They would all realize that such a law ought to be on the books.

But will anybody bring such a law before them and see that it comes to a vote?

It would do more good for the State of Georgia than many a law that will be passed.

Evans Goes to Naps; One Day With Barons

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 26.—President Charles W. Sommers, of the Cleveland American League club, has ordered "Rube" Evans, the sensational Southern League left-hand pitcher with New Orleans, in the Southern League, to report immediately. Evans has been the property of the Cleveland club for some time.

Blood Bath Knocks Rheumatism

Remarkable Effect of a Remedy That Actually Irrigates the Entire Blood Supply.

The Hardest Nut of All, Rheumatism, Is Cracked by S. S. S.

It sounds queer to take a blood bath, but that is precisely the effect of a most remarkable remedy known as S. S. S. It has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And, best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store at $1 a bottle. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to the Swift Specific Company, 137 Swift Building, Atlanta, Ga.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, June 26.—It is a race of surprises in the National League this year. Every time it looks as if the Phillies are about to break and ready to drop back they catch their wind and come strong again. Brooklyn has also shown another burst. The Cubs are liable to gain on the three Eastern contenders—New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn—within the next two weeks because these three strong clubs will be playing one another.

The Athletics are still out in front in the American League and will probably stay there. They may fall back during their coming clashes with the Red Sox and Washington and their impending trip through the West. In both leagues the Western contenders will face easier series. Cleveland appeared to be slipping badly in the East a week ago, but the Naps have a fine chance to catch their feet again at home now, especially if the Philadelphia boys slide into a slump. Even the best of them slump. Cleveland has kept the Athletics within hailing distance while crusading through the East, which was a good deal of a trick considering the speed at which the Athletics were moving. That about sums up the situation in the two leagues.

THE Giants' case at this time perhaps deserves a little consideration. The club had a wonderful road trip through the West, gaining on the Phillies and winning twelve games and losing only four.

The silver lining in the showing of the Giants on the road during this last trip can be found by a glance at the schedule. The New York club winds up its season with a swing through the West this year, and, if the final dispute comes down to a battle between the Giants and Phillies to the wire, I look to see New York nose the Philadelphia boys out on this final trip.

THE Cubs now threaten to be factors in the pennant struggle to the end. They won ten games and lost six during the Eastern invasion, and the pitching staff appears to be much better than it was a month or even two weeks ago.

The Pirates fell down sadly and have continued to show bad form. Their case is hard to explain, but it is impossible to go behind returns, and the fact remains that the Pittsburg club is still in the second division and showing no signs of mounting. It is now nearing the first of July, which means the race is about half over. The Pittsburg club is now about a dozen games behind the league leaders, a margin which would require phenomenal playing to overcome. I don't see how the Pirates can be counted in the race at present.

9 PITCHED BALLS BY CONZELMAN STRIKE OUT SIDE

By Joe Agler.

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 26.—With Paul Musser and Dunn as the battery for the Crackers this afternoon we should repeat Wednesday's win, for Paul is going fine and has had a good rest.

Conzelman won his fourth straight game Wednesday, and it looks like there is no heading him off. He looks like the one best bet in the league to me. He has the build, the control and everything else that goes to make a big league pitcher. He is certain to be back in the majors next spring, and I think he'll stick, too.

* * *

JOE probably broke a league record in the seventh inning when he retired the Turtles' side on nine pitched balls. It was just like this:

"Stri-i-ike one!"

"Stri-i-ike tuh!"

"Stri-i-ike thruh! Batter up!"

And then repeat twice more. There wasn't a ball, nor a foul tip—nothing but nine strikes in a row. And that's going some.

Atlantans Closing in On Title

Should Win in Big Tennis Meet

NEW ORLEANS, LA., June 26.—Competition in the tennis tourney for the Southern championship Thursday had narrowed down to a few players. Thornton and Grant, of Atlanta, began playing the Worms brothers about 11 o'clock. Pipes and Maginnis were opposed by Smith and Mansfield. Adoue was also carded to meet Shelton before noon.

Phelps will meet Thornton this afternoon. At 4:30 o'clock Grima and Phelps will be opposed by Adoue and Shelton. With this system of elimination the finals go over until Friday.

Saal defaulted to Williams late yesterday after two sets, throwing Williams and Thornton as opponents. It was late for a match, but they decided to play to avoid the morning heat Thursday. Thornton won in straight sets 6-1, 6-0. Thornton let himself out for the first time, and really showed how well he could play tennis. The local man never had a chance.

In the lower half of the game Shelton, of Texas, defeated Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, in straight sets, much to the surprise of nearly everybody at the tournament. Grant was not at his best and Shelton's chop strokes and hard backward drives appeared to worry the Atlantan greatly.

Nat Thornton disposed of Frank Dameron in one of two single matches yesterday. Score: 6-4, 6-4. The Atlantan was not exerting himself and could have reduced the length of the contest at any time he chose.

Good progress was made to-day in the ladies' championship division, but several sets will be thrown to a late afternoon card with finals to-morrow.

LACK OF BUSINESS DEPRESSES COTTON

Trading Extremely Light Throughout Day—July Center of Discussion—Cables Weak.

NEW YORK, June 26.—At the opening of the cotton market to-day the tone was easier and prices were unchanged to 5 points lower than last night's close. Cables were lower than generally expected. Bear operators had their operations checked by the reports of dry weather over the belt, resulting in August rallying 5 points over the opening, while other positions remained unchanged to 2 points higher.

After the call Liverpool and the continent were reported selling July, but the spot interests were supposed to be buyers. Many operators purchased August and sold July, while commission houses were good buyers of the new crop positions. After moving within a narrow range the market finally developed a sagging tendency and prices dropped some 5 to 9 points under the previous close. Liverpool developed weakness after a good start and closed unchanged to 2 points higher.

It is the current belief now that the market is only an evening up affair, pending the first notice day, Friday, on July delivery. For July contracts naturally was the subject of discussion. Advices from Liverpool stated that the English houses would not take up cotton unless the differences were large enough to assure them profit.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: July, 12.13; August, 12.07; October, 11.55; January, 11.48.

Luring the late forenoon the market developed a steadier tone, influenced by scattered shorts covering before the Government report next Thursday. Private reports were not so favorable to crop conditions as they have been for some time past. Later the market became weak, based on the strong warning over the middle Gulf, which was considered bearish, as it indicates that rain developments over the Western Rockies will move on the cotton belt in about six days and caused desired general rains. This had a depressing effect on the market, causing prices to reflex to the opening range.

At the close the market was easy with prices showing a net decline of 7 to 15 points from the final quotations of Wednesday.

Following are 10 a. m. bids in New Orleans: July, 12.54; August, 12.19; October, 11.62; January, 11.68.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—Political news overnight was very unfavorable. War has again broken out in the Balkans, showing that the loud announcements of peace made by the press a short while ago were false and diplomatic to mislead the world.

Weather conditions are favorable. Partly cloudy to fair weather in the belt. A few scattered showers, mostly in the Carolinas. Indications are for stationary conditions. Rain is not desired for a week yet in the central States, owing to the fight made against the weevil, which is more successful in prolonged dry spells between rainy periods.

July here showed aggressive activity for a while after the opening, causing steadiness in new crops, but this was soon followed by a 6-point decline when the bidding for July stopped. The strength and control of the July position are holding the market.

The into-sight for the week looks around 30,000, against 32,112 last year, and we compare with mill takings of 157,000 for this week. Bullish comparisons are expected owing to the May exports from New York and New Orleans stock, which cotton is now landing abroad.

July here had repeated periods of strength and on little bidding sold up to 12.62 shortly before 11 o'clock, causing new crops to rally to 11.66 for December.

COTTON GOSSIP

NEW YORK, June 26.—J. M. Anderson says: "Liverpool did not respond to our advance of yesterday and the selling around the opening was rather general, but the spot people were evidently buying July. Liverpool and the Continent were thought to have sold summer months immediately. The trading throughout the day has been rather small, as tomorrow is notice day and everybody seems to be waiting to see what may be the outcome. Sentiment is more bullish and further advance is anticipated before the Government report next Thursday. Private reports are not so favorable to crop conditions as they have been for some time past.

"Bool weevils are reported in Mississippi in sections where they have not appeared before."

Liverpool, Hentz and scattered longs sold July yesterday and Hentz offered 10,000 bales at 12.25 when the market was 12.21. Some thought this was to reassure shorts for the moment so they would not run away. July had most to do with the strength in the new crop positions, although offerings were limited in the latter. Geran, the Waldorf broker, purchased 15,000 bales of the new crop. McFadden, Springs, Hicks, Dick and Mitchell were good buyers.

The Turners' report was considered bullish and Weld makes the condition 83.3, against 84 last month. Sentiment is turning quite friendly to the market, mainly because of its stubbornness, the way it took 70,000 bales, which Pell sold, and on the idea that the latter will buy the contracts back on the first favorable opportunity.

* * *

* * *

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—Hayward & Clark: "The weather map is very favorable; partly cloudy to fair over the entire belt, few light showers at scattered points, mostly in the Carolinas and south Louisiana. Stationary temperatures, except some warmer in Memphis districts. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, scattered showers, particularly in the Atlantics."

* * *

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "All along price opponents have contended that the cornered condition of July at New York was the dominant factor, and none of them developed any particular attention to July at New Orleans. Now the bear party learns that several men have been quietly buying up July at New Orleans and that they expect to receive cotton on the contracts they hold. The significance of this is apparent when it is remembered that the demand for actual cotton in the South exceeds the offerings, and that actual cotton owners experience no difficulty in selling at full market values. Meanwhile, the bear has discovered fresh cause for market concern over European trade conditions, and sees fresh danger in the reopening of the Balkan conflict.

"On the other hand bool weevil talk is attracting increasing attention, the latest reports being to the effect that the cotton plantations in Mississippi recently purchased by an English syndicate are badly infested. Current crop condition reports do not make quite so good a showing as has been expected by those men who of late have drawn their daily inspiration from the favorableness of the weather map and for this reason high price people found the way clear yesterday to reassert their claim that the plant over a very large area has not made satisfactory progress, because of an adverse start and is now under size."

THE WEATHER.

Conditions.

WASHINGTON, June 26—The weather will be warmer to-night and Friday along the North Atlantic coast and it will continue warm elsewhere east of the Mississippi River during the next 36 hours. There will be local rains to-night in New England, New York, the region of the Great Lakes and Florida, and fair weather elsewhere east of the Mississippi River during the night and Friday.

Forecast.

Forecast until 7 p. m. Friday:

Georgia—Generally fair to-night and Friday.

Virginia—Generally fair to-night and Friday; warmer in east portion Friday.

North and South Carolina—Generally fair to-night and Friday.

Florida—Local showers to-night or Friday.

Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee—Generally fair and continuer warm to-night and Friday.

Louisiana—Fair to-night and Friday, except showers in southeastern portion Friday.

Texas—Fair to-night and Friday.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

Joseph Thal, Louchheime & Co.: "We hold to the view that sales are advisable on all sharp turns."

Logan & Bryan: "Favor purchases on all reactions from this level."

Morris H. Rothschild & Co.: "We believe in higher values."

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, June 26.—The cotton seed oil market was firm to-day on further demand from old crop shorts, particularly in August. Old crop months are commanding more attention, their being some new speculative buying in October and November.

Predictions of 14c lard was a further stimulus to the bull side.

MILLER-COTTER COTTON LETTER.

MEMPHIS, June 26.—The market has maintained a steady tone despite some easiness in new months. Outside sentiment is more favorable to the new crop on the theory that the crop has not made June progress as earlier anticipated. July is for sale on bulges, apparently from spot houses. Sentiment is more divided than in weeks and it would appear that the market interest is being evened up for the bureau report.

PROFIT TAKING LOWERS STOCKS

Buying of Harriman Issues Early Feature—Interest Centered on Dissolution Plan.

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, June 26—After a period of strength, during which many prominent issues made material gains, the stock market turned weak about half an hour after the opening and prices shaded.

The news that the Union Pacific dissolution plan had been advanced caused vigorous buying of Harriman's in London. In New York Union Pacific opened at 147⅝ for a gain of 1⅛. Later, however, it lost part of its advance.

Dealings in Union Pacific were brisk. Reading also was active. This stock opened ⅝ up at 158¾, but later declined to 158. Among the other gains were Amalgamated Coper ¾, American Can ⅝, American Smelter ⅛, Canadian Pacific 1, St. Paul ¾, Chino Copper ½, United States Steel common ⅜, Southern Pacific ⅜, Pennsylvania Railroad ⅛, Lehigh Valley ⅜, Kansas City Southern ¼, Chesapeake and Ohio ¼ and St. Paul ¾. Steel soon lost all its gain. Missouri Pacific declined ⅛ and Baltimore and Ohio shaded ⅜.

The curb market was firm.

The tone in London was steady, despite Berlin and Vienna selling, induced by further reports of fighting in the Balkans. Sentiment in Americans in London was cheerful. Canadian Pacific was repurchased for a good price gain.

After a fractional advance stocks throughout the list showed a wavering tendency and light losses were recorded in Steel, which reacted in a disappointing manner, losing about a point. Reading sold at 157⅜ from the early 158¾. Union Pacific dropped 1⅜ and Copper was ⅝ down since the opening. The other issues received about the same drop. The tone in the late forenoon was steady. Call money loaning at 2 per cent.

TRADE SELLS OFF WHEAT HOLDINGS

Speculators Follow Bigger Men in Pit in Face of Bad News From Northwest.

ST. LOUIS CASH QUOTATIONS.

Wheat—No. 2 red	97½
Corn—No. 2	60 @61
Oats—No. 2	39½@39⅞

CHICAGO, June 26.—The local professionals in wheat were heavy sellers during nearly all of to-day's session. These speculators were following the footsteps of the larger men in the trade and this, too, in the face of quite unfavorable reports sent from Williston, N. D., which said that there would not be over 70 per cent of a wheat crop raised there even under the best conditions from this time forward.

Prices reacted ⅛ to ⅜ from the lowest levels, yet the closings were ⅜ to c below those of last night. A few boat loads were sold for export, but this was offset by reports of increased sales of the new crop in all positions.

Corn closed ⅜ to ½c higher, while oats were unchanged to ⅛ to ¼c lower. The buying of corn was largely by local professionals and was not considered as strong as the selling. Longs were the principal sellers of oats in the way of securing profits.

Provisions were unchanged to a shade lower for the day.

OPINION ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.: Wheat—The map shows fair rains at several points in South Dakota, light showers in North Dakota and quite general precipitation in Canada and Minnesota. The firmness in the cash situation and the uncertainty regarding the Northwestern situation are apt to give us a steady market.

Corn—Part cloudy with very little precipitation are shown. Look for a steady market.

Oats—The speculative situation appears strong on the belief that the crop will be a moderate one.

Provisions—There seems to be a disposition to take profits on strong spots, but we do not look for any material decline.

HOG PRICES RISE.

CHICAGO, June 26.—With 88,000 hogs at eleven markets to-day, against 73,000 a week ago, speculators elevated prices 5 to 10c, restoring the 8.90 quotation. The bulk sold at 8.75@8.85, strong weights getting 8.80. Lambs sold up to 8.75, an advance of 1.50, compared with the low spot late last week. The general advance was 25c. In the cattle alleys prices were about steady or weak compared with last Monday.

BANKERS TOLD TO ABANDON COERCION

People, Nation's Bulwark, Bound to Have Last Word in Currency Reform, Says Forbes.

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, June 26.—"You pay too much attention to 'the people,' to the man with a vote and little else," a Wall Street man scolded me yesterday, "and don't give enough consideration to the substantial men of the country, the great, big brainy men, the men who have made America what it is, the giants who head our financial and business organizations."

* * *

Well, to that I would reply that half the men active in Wall Street are ridiculously ignorant of 'the people's' place in a republic. They have contempt instead of consideration for the unlettered classes. They have an overweening sense of their own importance and power. They move in a dollar-ridden circle. They have neither the inclination nor the breadth of vision to grasp what part "the people" play in the scheme of things.

* * *

Rather than become an exponent of such views I would become a scavenger, for that is an honest, creditable calling.

* * *

Most of New York's ablest bankers are men of broad gauge, not at all the type I have just described. But there are among them numbers of bourbons, short-sighted, unable to discern the forces that govern twentieth century democracy, blind to world-wide developments in the relations of the so-called masses to the so-called classes. They can not realize that humankind has progressed rapidly these recent years toward equality, that manhood has asserted itself against mere money, that caste is being obliterated.

* * *

In the friendliest spirit conceivable I would urge the national bankers who have been in session here to abandon at once all idea of being able to prevent the United States from placing control of the currency system under the Government. They can not turn back the hands of the clock. The railroads tried it and failed—and to-day are heartily glad that they did fail.

* * *

The people will insist upon having, through their representatives, the final say in regulating banking.

* * *

The bankers may better accept this large fact with good grace now. They assuredly will have to accept it later, no matter how much they protest. Threats to seek shelter under State laws will not long avail, for even should such unlikely steps be taken the people of the States would fall into line and demand rigid control of the dodging institutions.

* * *

Let the bankers use their every effort, if they choose, to secure more generous representation on the Federal Reserve Board. They might win a provision in the bill that three of the seven members shall be bankers. But that the Government will insist upon holding the balance of power is a foregone conclusion if ever there was one.

Bonding Company Wins Suit Filed by Defaulter's Victim

Judge William T. Newman Thursday sustained the demurrer of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company against the petition of the Proctor Coal Company, which sued for $5,000, the amount for which C. H. Stanton, an employee, was bonded and the approximate amount he is to have defaulted. The bonding company asserted their contracts are made for one year at a time and that the exact time which Stanton defaulted could not be shown.

They represented that they could be held responsible only from December 1, 1900, to August 8, 1901, when the books were audited competently.

"It is ordered," Judge Newman said, "that the demurrer to the petition be sustained insofar as the petition seeks to recover for losses prior to December 1, 1900, and that the case may proceed for the loss alleged to have been sustained after that date, the demurrer as to this latter having been overruled this 25th day of June, 1913."

Peachtree Paving Starts Soon, Says Smith, Preparing

Chairman Shelby Smith, of the County Commission, began preparations Thursday to start work soon on the improvement of Peachtree Road from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead. The work, he said, probably would start within the next ten days.

"We would have started this work some weeks ago," he said, "but could not get the material nor the labor. The material will be available in a few days. We can get labor from some of the streets that will be completed shortly and put it on the Peachtree road."

Chairman Smith said he would not consent to beginning the work until he had men enough and the right kind of material to make the road a credit to the county.

Absence of Heads Of Pure Milk Body Postpones Report

Owing to the illness of Dr. S. A. Visanska and the absence from Atlanta of Oscar Elsas, the luncheon scheduled for Thursday at the Piedmont Hotel to consider the report of the milk committee of the Chamber of Commerce has been postponed indefinitely.

Dr. Visanska, who is chairman of the committee, is recuperating at a South Carolina sanitarium, and Mr. Elsas, the vice chairman, is at the bedside of his son in a New York hospital.

Featuring the report of the milk committee is a recommendation that the Chamber of Commerce have Dr. Charles North, sanitarian of New York City, come to Atlanta and conduct a week's investigation. Secretary W. G. Cooper, of the Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday an early date would be set for the luncheon, at which time the milk committee's report would be considered.

Burial Service Read Over Bird in Coffin

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 26.—A pet canary, owned by James McLaughlin, was buried in a small cemetery in the back yard of the McLaughlin summer home in Chelsea.

It was placed in a silk-lined metallic coffin, and Helen McLaughlin read the burial service over her pet. The canary had been in the household fourteen years.

Who's Who In Your House?

Are you the Boss?

Or is it Cook?

Some cooks are jewels. If yours is, you'd better hang on to her. But some cooks are NOT jewels. They take frequent vacations without leave. They strenuously object to dinner parties. And those cozy little midnight lunches and inroads on the pantry are simply out of the question. Perhaps in spite of all her faults you want to keep your cook. But don't keep her if you are not satisfied with her. Don't keep her just because you fear you can't get another. You can, without trouble.

Some good cook who would suit you has a Want Ad in The Georgian. She will be a good cook because the pick and cream of cooks and all other help advertise in The Georgian exclusively. You won't have to waste time looking up some one who is altogether out of the question. She will be all right—the cook you get through The Georgian.

So look her up. Things will go so much smoother with a dependable woman in the kitchen. Meals will be served on time and taste like mother's own. Get the kind of a cook you've always wanted by reading Georgian Want Ads to-day.

YOU ARE looking for a position, aren't you, or you would not be reading these ads? Perhaps the position you are looking for is not to be found advertised to-day. Then why not spend a few cents advertising for a position in the "Situation Wanted" columns of this paper to-morrow? There is no need of your walking around in the hot sun or rain, letting your brain go to rust as well as worrying yourself sick looking for a good position when a "Situation Wanted" ad in The Georgian will do the searching for you. An ad in this paper will cost you only a few cents to run several times and relieve your mind of a heavy load. Try it and see.

Is Poultry Culture And Egg Production Affected by Climate?

Also Question Answered From Raiser Who Has Had Little Chicks to Die Shortly After Hatching.

Edited by Judge F. J. Marshall.

A subscriber to one of the Northern poultry papers asks if poultry culture and egg production could not be made more profitable in a warm climate like Georgia or Florida than a cold one. The editor answers with a big NO. We believe this editor is surely mistaken. And we think we understand why he makes this assertion that he does.

He has evidently concluded because the South does not produce eggs in proportion to its area that the hens do not do their duty.

While the truth of the matter is that in this genial Southern climate our hens can be made to do duty a greater part of the year than in the cold and frozen North and these eggs can be produced at less cost per dozen on an average for the reason that the hens do not have to be housed in expensive houses, and it takes much less food to keep the body in a normal laying condition than it does when it is so cold.

The hens can be out of doors and in the natural sunshine and warmth so conducive to health and egg production. The reason the South is so far behind in the matter of egg production in proportion to her area and population is that hundreds of farmers scarcely raise enough chickens and eggs to supply their own tables, to say nothing of supplying the markets. Of course there are a few limited sections of the South where they make a great business of shipping chickens and eggs to the Eastern markets, but this area is but a small part of the whole South.

But in the East and North the chicken market business has been one of the leading means of a livelihood for small farmers for generations, to say nothing of the immense plants making a specialty of eggs and broilers. We believe it is an accepted fact that warm air and sunshine are the strong factors for egg production, consequently any one who has become at all familiar with the average winters of the Gulf States knows that the natural conditions are ideal for this purpose, but, of course, to make a success at the business even under these most favorable conditions everything that nature affords must be made the most of.

Making the effort that must necessarily be made in the colder States of the North, I see no reason why we should not as a people take the very front ranks in the business. But these favorable natural conditions seem to have had the tendency to make us careless as a class in all classes of agricultural pursuits.

Judge Marshall: Can you tell me what causes my little chicks to die? When they are first hatched off they are as well as they can be, looks like, and seem to do well until they are eight or ten days old. Then they begin to droop and get weak and are soon all dead. They don't have bowel trouble. I have cut several of them open after they died to see if I could find anything that I thought would cause them to die. The gall looked like it was larger than it ought to be. And some of them had turned dark green around the gall. I took out one gall to-day without bursting it, so I could tell you about the size it was and see if you thought it was too large. I laid it on the paper and marked around it with a pencil as close as I could to give you a better idea of the size of it. Now, if you can give me a remedy for the trouble I will thank you very much.

MRS. L. F. B.

Plain Dealing, La.

Answer: The trouble with your chicks is one of two or three things, or, perhaps, a combination of them. It looks a good deal like what we call general debility as the result of the too close inbreeding of the parent stock for generations back. Just letting the same roosters, old and young, that you happen to raise year after year run with your hens. Such a course will eventually put you in such a position that you will hardly be able to raise any young stock and particularly a little late in the season. The eggs will not only not hatch well, but will give you chicks that will live but a short time for a simple lack of vitality to even make a start in life. There is just such trouble upon hundreds of farms throughout the country. Is it any wonder that farmers are heard to complain that it is hard work to raise any chickens and that chicken raising does not pay? It is just that lack of interest to induce him to make good healthy crosses such as he would think he was obliged to make in his cattle or hog breeding to insure health. Then there is the trouble that is a kin to the other and that is hatching from eggs late in the season laid by hens that have been laying almost constantly since early winter time without a rest. Such hens have become quite low in vitality and very naturally their eggs will throw chicks with but little stamina for the race of life and are ready to keel over at the first round.

Then we have the mites that are always with us or rather with our hens unless we make a vigorous protest and assert our rights early in the season. When they are numerous they will not let a lot of young chicks get much of a start in life until they will snuff it out. Look out for them at all events. I am pretty sure that one if not more of these things I have mentioned is your trouble, but you will have to be the judge.

OUR NORTH SIDE AND INMAN PARK DELIVERIES LEAVE THE STORE AT 9:30; SOUTH SIDE AND WEST END AT 2 P. M. GOODS ORDERED BEFORE THESE HOURS WILL BE DELIVERED SAME DAY.

CHICKENS need more care and attention the next two or three months than any other time during the year. It is perfectly natural for chickens to have lice and mites, and unless you look after them they will multiply in such quantities to prove profitable. The little chicks will not reach the growth they should and the hens will not lay if they are covered with these pests. We have ties that you can not expect your flock remedies that will positively get rid of them and the cost is very little. For 35c you can get a can of either Lee's, Conkey's or Pratt's Lice Liquid and we will guarantee either of these preparations to give entire satisfaction.

WE have just gotten in a lot of nice, fresh, clean Red Comb Feed. The price for scratch and mash is $2.25 per 100 pounds.

WE are offering Baby Chick Feed at $2.15 per 100 pounds for the next few days. You know the regular price is $2.50 per 100 pounds. Better take advantage of this.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

14 New Bungalows To Cost $28,000

Fitzhugh Knox to Build—Refusal of $1,400 for Semi-Central Lot. Plans for Big Mill.

Never before in the history of the city has there been so much activity in the construction of small houses. Thursday's announcements brought information, for instance, that Fitzhugh Knox, the well-known builder of apartments and dwellings, had approved of plans for fourteen bungalows to cost an aggregate of $28,000. These are to be located in Mr. Knox's subdivision on South Moreland, Cleland and Kensington Avenues and Hardee and Brantley Streets. Walker & Chase are the architects and the Knox Construction Company has the contract. Part of the material is on the ground and actual construction will start Monday.

Decatur Tennis Club House.

The Decatur Tennis Club will have plans this week from Walker & Chase, architects in the Candler Building, for a $3,500 club house south of the Georgia Railroad tracks and east of Candler Street, directly back of the residence of C. Murphey Candler, chairman of the State Railroad Commission. Work should start in a week or so. The completed structure will represent an investment of about $5,000. The club has three acres of ground and about six tennis courts.

John W. Grant Buys.

Jane Hill has sold to John W. Grant a 39 by 67 foot lot on Calhoun Street, between Pine and Merritts Avenue, for $2,300.

Refusal of Semi-Central Offer.

Investors desiring to pick up a choice piece of semi-central property on the North Side offered $1,400 a front foot Wednesday, but the offer was refused. The price of $1,500 has been fixed by the owner, and a well-known real estate agent is trying to get prospect and seller together.

Stone for Healey Building.

Stone has arrived for the Healey Building, and part of it has been put in place, starting at the ground. The slabs will extend 15 feet upward, and terra cotta will go from thence to the top of the building. The granite is from the quarries at Stone Mountain, furnished by Venable Brothers.

Contract for Cotton Mill.

The plans for the Manchester, Ga., cotton mill addition, one of the largest jobs in this section of the country, has been let to Walker & Chase, architects. Mr. Walker closed the deal Tuesday. The amount was not given out. Several other Atlanta architects, it is understood, were in the competition.

Peachtree Lease Made.

Tom Weaver, the tailor, has subleased the second story of the building at the northwest corner of Peachtree and James Streets from the lessee, Robert E. Riley, at an advance on the price paid by the latter.

Euclid Apartments Ready.

The Euclid Apartments, located at the southeast corner of Euclid Avenue and Hurt Street, Inman Park, have been completed, and the owner and builder, Fitzhugh Knox, has leased several of the 16 apartments. The cost of the Euclid was $40,000. It is two stories and fronts 200 feet on Euclid Avenue and 70 feet on Hurt Street, each room being outside. The rooms have been arranged for disappearing wall beds. Mr. Knox has built several other apartments, among them the Virginian, at the southwest corner of Peachtree and Fifteenth Streets; the Boscobel, on Hurt Street, Inman Park, and the Fairleigh, on Spring Street.

West Tenth Street Buy.

C. A. Tappan has bought from a client of the Smith & Ewing Real Estate Agency a 50 by 150 foot lot on the north side of West Tenth Street, east of State Street and in front of the Home Park School, for $2,000.

To Lease 97 Peachtree.

The removal of the College Co-Op from 97 Peachtree to the new location at 119 and 121 Peachtree will leave the former place open for release. This store is in the Alfriend Building and under the seven-year term just expiring brought $5,000 a year.

Madison Avenue Conveyance.

J. H. Williams has conveyed to the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland a 99 by 80 foot lot on Madison Avenue, being lots 1 and 2 of the home place subdivision of L. L. Landrum, for a consideration not named. The property brought $7,500. June 28, 1912.

Peachtree Work Assured.

Real estate men hailed with much joy Thursday the announcement by County Chairman Shelby Smith that Peachtree Road would soon be improved from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead, work to start in ten days or two weeks. A large proportion of the prospects who are taken to look over property go by way of Peachtree, and the realty dealers declare that rough roads are not very conducive to sales-making.

As soon as some of the forces working in other sections can be shifted to Peachtree, declared Mr. Smith, the Peachtree improvements will be started.

Repairs from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead, by the way, will make of Peachtree one of the best thoroughfares in the State. The street was recently repaved from Sixth Street to Fifteenth and from Buckhead to the DeKalb County line. With the other stretch completed, the entire extent will be approximately nine miles, and Peachtree will serve the most important rural territory in the State.

Chamber of Commerce Home.

A permit for remodeling the old Y. M. C. A. Building at the southeast corner of North Pryor Street and Auburn Avenue is expected to be taken soon at the Building Inspector's office by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. The Y. M. C. A. will move out July 1, awaiting the completion of its new $250,000 building on Luckie Street, and the Chamber of Commerce will make alterations to cost $100,000 or more.

New Realty Firm.

Although the Thornton, Goree & Poyner Real Estate Agency has been in business only a week or ten days at 11 Auburn Avenue ("Real Estate Row"), a number of important listings of subdivision lots, investment property and homes have been received. The new firm is made up of R. L. Thornton, senior member, who was formerly conected with the Claude E. Sims Realty Company; G. C. Goree, an Atlanta business man who has made a study of real estate, and C. B. Poyner, junior partner, formerly with J. E. McCullough in subdivision work.

Hoping for Tax Reform.

A sympathetic note has been struck in real estate circles through declarations of such political leaders as Governor Brown, W. H. Burwell, Speaker of the House, and J. Randolph Anderson, President of the Senate, that something must be done to improve the tax system of the State. There has long been a conviction that real estate has been saddled with an unfair proportion of tax burden—that rates should be increased and assessments lowered. This is particularly true in Fulton County, where it is claimed that any more legislation raising tax assessments would drive out industries and sadly cripple the real estate business. Furthermore, Fulton County pays, exclusive of corporation and special taxes, about one-seventh of the taxes paid into the State Treasury, which it is held is unfair. Real estate men want more of their tax money spent in the county and less paid into the coffers of the State, and they are seeking legislation along this line.

The Railroads and the Public

A Letter from Mr. Ivy L. Lee, of the Pennsylvania

(Copyright, 1913.)

The Georgian and the other Hearst newspapers, published to protect the public, are aware of the fact that to protect the public thoroughly, ALL legitimate workers must be protected, big men and little men, ditch diggers, railroad builders, street peddlers, department stores, thinkers and big industrial organizations.

Criticism of big and able men because they happen to be rich and intelligent is as stupid and harmful to the public welfare as would be attacks on or unjust treatment of little men because they happen to be poor and badly organized.

We publish gladly a letter which presents the side of the railroads in an important public question.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD COMPANY.
General Office, Broad Street Station.
Philadelphia.
Ivy L. Lee.
Executive Assistant.

Editor The Georgian:

My Dear Sir—Your papers have been commending the law recently passed in New Jersey which places upon the railroad companies the entire burden of removing grade crossings. There is one important phase of this subject, however, which you have not brought out.

There is no doubt that grade crossings are a great public menace and should be removed. But, of course, their removal must be paid for, and those who are benefited are the ones who ought to pay for it. If the entire burden should fall upon the railroads without delay the railroads would be bankrupt.

As you know, in England there are practically no grade crossings, the reason being that when the railroads were first built it was sure that there would be enough traffic to make them pay. Therefore, the Government could take the position that there should be no grade crossings. In this country, if we had taken such position there would not have been so many railroads.

Everybody, railroad officers included, agrees as to the danger and the objectionable character of grade crossings. But it is certainly like the ostrich burying its head in the sand to pass a law placing the whole burden upon the railroad companies and imagining that through such a law the money is going to come out of the bankers of Wall Street.

May I venture to call to your attention the policy which Mr. Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, recently set forth as in his opinion the proper one to be pursued in solving the grade crossing problem?

"Public Service Commissions, on motion either of a municipality, a railroad, or on a commission's own initiative, should have the right to designate such grade crossings as should be removed, and should have power, after hearing all parties in interest, to apportion the cost of such improvements, with due regard for the interest of all parties concerned."

Respectfully,
IVY L. LEE.

Mr. Lee, who is a graduate of the Atlanta Boys' High School, and son of the Rev. J. W. Lee, former pastor of Trinity Church, and who occupies an important position near the president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is right in his statement that the public can not legislate unlimited millions into existence or compel railroads to spend money that they haven't got.

It is an impossibility to abolish immediately ALL of the grade crossings in the United States.

There is not enough money in the United States to do that work immediately. And legislation can not CREATE money.

The trouble, however, as Mr. Lee and Mr. Rea will admit, has been in the past a lack of the fair and reasonable attitude now taken by Mr. Rea, recently elected president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Railroad management until recently has often been as arrogant and unreasonable as the most foolish legislator, or the most ignorant demagogue.

The railroads can exist only by permission of the public, they get their rights and their revenue from the public, and are able to build because the public exercises its right of eminent domain in their behalf, yet the railroads have refused for years to recognize in the public ANY RIGHTS AT ALL.

Stockholders, investors in the railroads, have been robbed in every conceivable way. (It is true that the Pennsylvania has been an honorable exception in this regard.)

Legislation that the railroads WANTED has been bought with money.

And legislation that they did NOT want has been killed with money.

It is not unnatural that representatives of the public should in their turn sometimes follow the example set by the railroads and disregard the railroads' rights as the railroads have disregarded the rights of the public in the past.

This newspaper, however, opposes unjust legislation against the railroads as strongly as it opposes public robbery by the railroads.

It is preposterous to say that every grade crossing should be abolished at once and that the railroads should pay the expense.

The total capitalization of the railroads is about $600,000,000, including stock not yet issued.

AND $600,000,000 WOULD NOT BE ENOUGH TO ABOLISH ALL THE GRADE CROSSINGS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD ALONE!

The United States would not have to-day one-quarter of its railroad mileage if the railroads had been compelled to build without grade crossings. That would mean that the United States would be only one-quarter developed in comparison with its present development.

Mr. Rea's statement and suggestion in regard to railroad crossings, and his address made upon that subject recently in New Jersey are reasonable and display a fair spirit.

The trouble has been in the past that railroads and their officials have used their power to prevent ANY INTERFERENCE EVEN WITH THE MOST DANGEROUS GRADE CROSSINGS.

If other railroad officials will follow Mr. Rea's example and in good faith submit public questions to impartial public officials, railroads and the public contributing their fair and proper share of any expense, THE RAILROADS WILL FIND THAT THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY ARE NOT DISHONEST, WILL NOT DEMAND THE IMPOSSIBLE, AND WILL NOT BE LED INTO PATHS OF CONFISCATION OR UNJUST ASSESSMENT BY THE NEWSPAPERS THAT THEY TRUST.

June Morn

Are We Coming to the Bee Idea of Life

By WINIFRED BLACK.

HAVE you ever read Maeterlinck's marvelous story of the bees?

No?

Go to the library and get it this very day. You can't afford to live another twenty-four hours without knowing that book!

Every time you see a bee in the garden afterward you'll feel like standing, hat in hand, and watching him fly by.

Talk about "man the reasoning animal," the bee reasons so much better and so much more closely than man that he makes us all seem like little blind, blundering beetles booming around in the sunshine, not knowing where we are going or what we are trying to do.

The Wonderful Bee.

The bee—the wonderful bee—no wonder Napoleon chose him for his emblem.

Is that what we are all coming to—some day I wonder—the bee system of living?

Every once in a while I see something in the news that makes me think so. It is a great thing to watch—the daily news of this great, strange, simple, complex world of ours.

The sailors on the ship that Columbus brought across the wide waters spent days standing at the rail watching for the drift of waters, and now and then they found hope of land in the broken branch that floated on the silent sea and now and then some strange bright feather that rose and fell on the waves told their hopeful hearts of bright lands beyond, where the bird that wore the feather waited singing in a spreading tree to welcome their coming.

Driftwood tells strange tales sometimes.

That's what the news is—driftwood—telling stories, old stories that sometimes makes the human hair rise and that turns the blood cold in the veins of the one who watches by the rail to see the drift come by.

Now, there's that little item in the paper this morning—the one about the Judge who told the man that he could not make his wife follow him to a farm, and he could not divorce her because she did not follow.

"She hates country life," said the Judge. "You cannot force her to live it. She has the same right to decide where she wants to live as you have." Drift, drift from strange shores, is that decision.

I wonder how they would think of it in North Carolina, where a man can have you arrested and fined if you give shelter, food, employment or even a word of encouragement to a wife who has left his bed and board without his permission, no matter what it was he did that made her go.

A great artist went with his wife to see her off on a long trip

WINIFRED BLACK.

the other day. "Yes," said the artist to the reporters, "I hate to see her go, but she has chosen the stage for her vocation. Who am I, to stand in her way? She is a human being first of all, you know," and no one was particularly surprised to hear him say it.

She Likes to Work.

A clever writer married a clever business woman a week or so ago, and he told his friends and hers that he did not expect her to give up her business to stay at home for him.

"She likes to work," he said. "Why should I take it upon myself to deny her her own life? Women are something more than the echo of men."

In a high school out West they find that the average height of the high school graduate is lowering for the boys and heightening for the girls.

The boy babies born at the great public hospital in Boston to-day are one inch shorter on the average than they were ten years ago. The girl babies are nearly an inch taller than they were ten years ago and weigh, on an average almost a pound more.

A newspaper in the Middle West interviewed the members of a graduating class of girls in a great school yesterday, and out of thirty girls, twenty-four said that they hoped they would not have to marry. Marriage was narrowing and cramping, they said.

Driftwood, driftwood! From what strange tides does it come these days! The bees—oh, yes—that's what I mean.

The bees have arranged all this affair of the feminine uprising—arranged it years and years ago.

The queen bee rules. She breeds the young, divides the hive into workers and drones. There is no mingling of the two classes at all. One bee is to gather honey, one is selected to found the future of the hive. When his work is done, out he goes. Is that what we are coming to, we humans, some day?

Will there be home women and work women, home men and work men, divided quite definitely into classes like the bees—each having his own special mission in life, and never dreaming of interfering with any other in any way?

"Career" Women.

Mother women and "career" women, work women and beauty women, men workers and men home makers, how else shall we manage this affair of the woman who will not live as her husband wishes—else deal with the man who thinks that a woman should follow him wheresoever he lists to go, and howsoever he intends to do when he gets there? Bu-zz, bu-zz! How do you think of the bee idea, brother philosophers?

The drift, the drift! How pleasant it is to stand in the sunshine at the ship's rail and watch it slipping by, and speculate and dream, and hope, and wonder.

SONG OF THE GOOD ROAD

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner.

I AM a Road; a good road, fair and smooth and broad;
And I link with my beautiful tether
Town and Country together,
Like a ribbon rolled on the earth from the reel of God.
Oh, great the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a long road, leading on and on;
And I cry to the world to follow,
Past meadow and hill and hollow,
Through desolate night, to the open gates of dawn.
Oh, bold the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a kind road, shaped by strong hands.
I make strange cities neighbors;
The poor grow rich with my labors,
And beauty and comfort follow me through the lands.
Oh, glad the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a wise road, knowing all men's ways;
And I know how each heart reaches
For the things dear Nature teaches;
And I am the path that leads into green young Mays.
Oh, sweet the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I speed away from the slums,
Away from desolate places,
Away from unused spaces;
Wherever I go, there order from chaos comes.
Oh, brave the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I would make the whole world one.
I would give hope to duty,
And cover the earth with beauty.
Do you not see, Oh men! how all this might be done?
So vast the power of the Road!

A Trip to the Moon

He Gives Reasons Why It Can Not Be Made by Aeroplane, But Says It Might Be Made With the Aid of Inter-Atomic Energy.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

WITHIN a few weeks past I have been asked to address two different aeronautical societies on the curious subject of the possibilities of a trip to the moon.

As far as I am aware this does not indicate an intention on the part of any aviator to essay a voyage to our satellite, but, at least, it shows that the flying instinct is growing by what it feeds upon, and that, having navigated the air, practical men are giving a little extra rein to their imaginations, and wondering whether the empire of birds marks the ultimate frontier of human conquest.

In fact, the dream of going to the moon, which, in every age, has occupied daring minds, is hardly more impracticable at the present time than would have been a project, springing up in the mind of Balboa, of making ships sail across from the Atlantic to the great Western ocean which he saw from his peak in Darien.

But it is not the invention of either the aeroplane or the dirigible balloon that stimulates thoughtful minds at the present time to consider, half-seriously, the idea of a lunar voyage. The success of those inventions, defying scientific predictions and probabilities, only forms an incentive. It turns men's minds hopefully to things that heretofore they have regarded as lying beyond the limits of human power.

It has always been so. Every great advance has been a marvel at the beginning, derided or laughed at. Each one of them has been a victorious birth of the imagination. The greatest drag on progress is lack of faith in the hidden capacities of man.

"Verily, I say unto you, if ye have faith, as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain: 'Remove hence to yonder place,' and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

Only Beginning.

That is high authority for believing that we are only just beginning to discover the extent of our control over nature, and such things as wireless telegraphy, X-ray photography and the disintegration of atoms, with consequent unlocking of tremendous concealed energy, prove that hitherto we have been like the man who buried his talents in the earth instead of making them produce ten or a hundred fold.

Suppose we look at the subject of visiting the moon in the light of present knowledge. The distance in itself is nothing—240,000 miles! Many a sea captain has sailed much farther than that. It is less than ten times the circuit of the earth.

If the atmosphere extended from the earth to the moon, we could go there now by modifying our present apparatus. At a hundred days! But at a height of five or six miles the atmosphere becomes so rare that we could not live in it without an artificial supply. Yet unmanned balloons have gone ten miles high, and meteors take fire from friction at an elevation of a hundred miles or more.

Still the atmosphere does practically cease to exist at no very great elevation, and cuts short off the road of the balloon and the aeroplane.

We must turn to something else. The buoyant force of air enables us to overcome the gravitative attraction of the earth only up to a moderate height. Beyond that something more is needed. I have learned with surprise that many intelligent persons supose that if we once got outside the air motion would be unimpeded. For instance, a man said to me the other day:

"Suppose an aeroplane could mount straight up until it passed the limits of the atmosphere, then having nothing more to impede its motion, it would go on with whatever velocity it had when it left the air."

In fact, this could only occur in case the velocity of the aeroplane amounted to nearly seven miles per second, for that velocity would be required to completely overcome the pull of the earth's attraction. Otherwise it would fall back to the earth.

This is the reason why Jules Verne, in his amusing story of "A Voyage to the Moon," had his adventurers shot out of an enormous cannon. Only in that way, he thought, could the requisite initial velocity be obtained.

A Bold Plan.

But a bold mind might, in view of recent discoveries, speculate on the illimitable power that may be obtained from unlocking the energies of the atoms of matter. Professor Thomson has calculated that a single gram of hydrogen has within it sufficient energy to lift a million tons a hundred yards high! Does anybody imagine that that unlimited store of energy is going forever to remain uncontrolled by human genius? We have discovered its existence; the next thing is to take it and use it.

Suppose we had it under control, as we shall have it some time. Then reflect upon the close relation between atomic phenomena and electricity, and recall the familiar experiment of making bits of pith fly away from an electrically charged ball. If we could construct some kind of a car that could be powerfully charged with electric energy we might be able to make it fly away from the earth as the pith balls fly from the charged conductor of the electric machine.

The Problem Solved.

Then it would be necessary to establish a system of control by which the speed and direction could be regulated by varying the charge—AND THE PROBLEM OF NAVIGATING SPACE WOULD BE SOLVED. I have developed this (of course purely hypothetical) idea somewhat farther in a story called "A Columbus of Space."

Such a method would avoid all the difficulties, really insuperable, that hampered Jules Verne's plan of a projectile starting at a velocity of almost seven miles per second.

However, when we get the atomic energies under control our first efforts will be directed to making more money out of them, and trips to the moon will only begin to pay after we have got tired of purely earthly things.

A Fine Old Heathen

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

WONDERFUL in a far more useful way than we find it described in the "Arabian Nights" was the fine old heathen known as Haroun Al Raschid, who died eleven hundred and four years ago.

In a time of intense bigotry and cruelty he was tolerant and merciful. In an age of blackest ignorance and brutal indifference to every form of intellectual enlightenment, he was deeply interested in learnings, and employed every aid at his command for the elimination of the superstition that was sitting like an incubus upon the breast of humanity.

While Christian Europe lay in the shadow of its seemingly irremediable ignorance, Bagdad was cultivating the sciences out of which was to come the world's mental resurrection. While the Christian teachers were asserting the flatness of the earth the Mohammedan doctors of Bagdad and Cordova, Seville and Alexandria were teaching geography in the common schools from globes. While in London and Paris they were practicing and professing to cure men's ills through the agency of charms, trinkets and incantations, in the great Mesopotamian capital they were treating the sick upon the principles of science and common sense.

So famous was Al Raschid's medical school at Bagdad that the great and mighty Charlemagne issued a decree that no man should practice medicine in his dominions without first having passed a satisfactory examination before the Bagdad faculty. And the old Mohammedan's heart was as sound as his mine, for be it remembered that at the time Charlemagne was using fire and sword against all who would not, or could not, accept the theological beliefs he had sworn to champion, Haroun Al Raschid was doing all he could to protect Charlemagne's subjects in the full exercise of their religion.

Judge Emory Speer Attacks Attorney General McReynolds' Espionage System

"More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Federal judge is the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the arbitrary espionage or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name?

"His examiner holds the fate of the judge in the hollow of his hand. And all the while, be it remembered, there are no charges pending against the judge, where such charges should be made. The examiner imparts to the judge no information whatever of any complaint. There is no chance for defense.

"This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor."—Judge Emory Speer, in an address before the Iowa Bar Association.

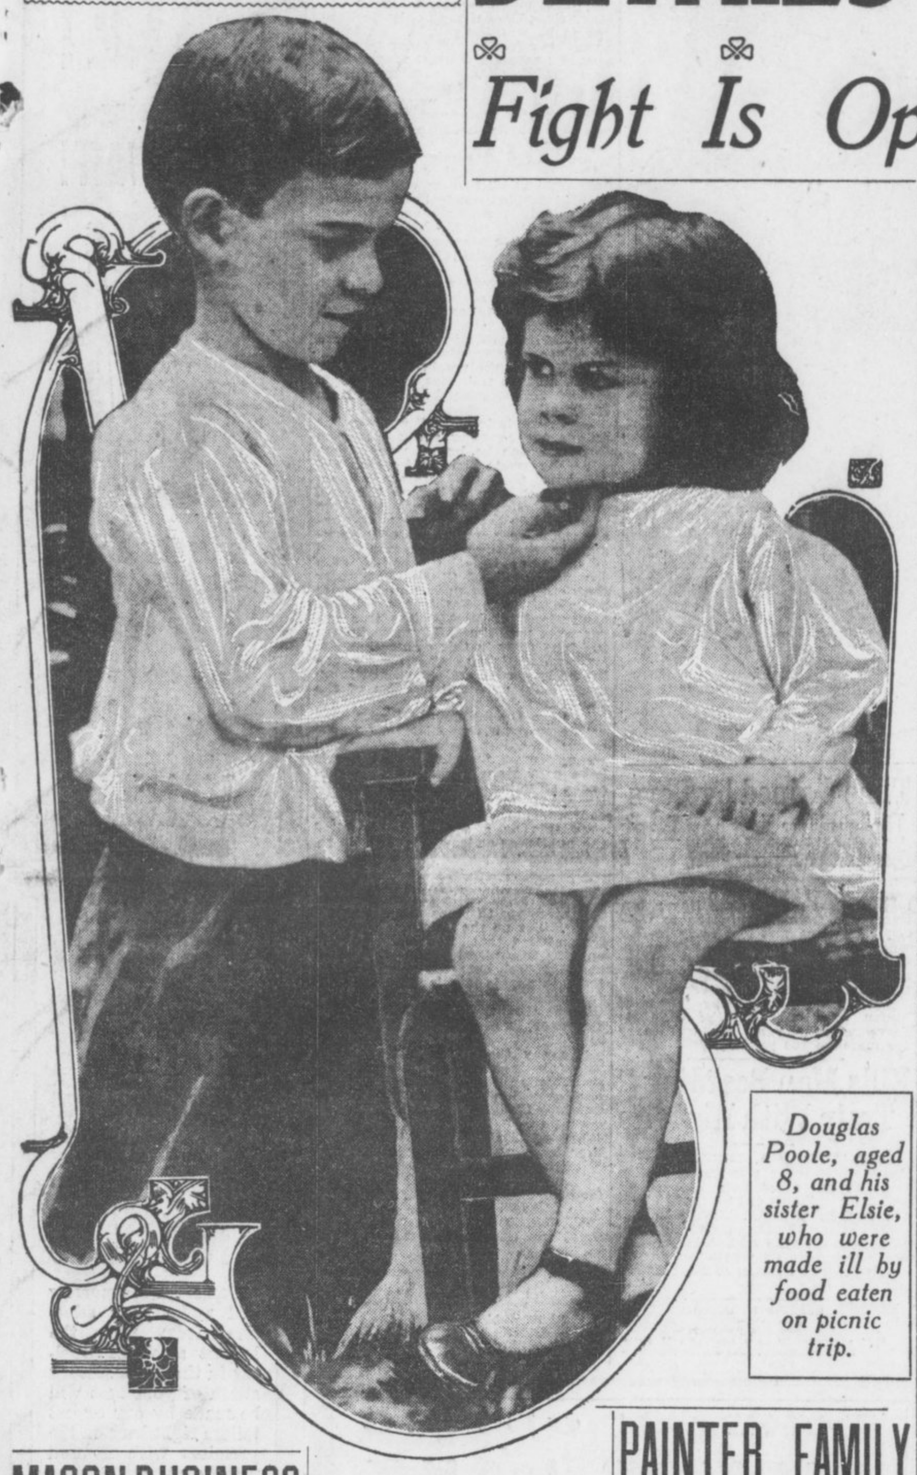
FOOD POISONED POOLE CHILDREN



Douglas Poole, aged 8, and his sister Elsie, who were made ill by food eaten on picnic trip.

MACON BUSINESS MAN INSANE IN ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—Temporarily insane from the effects of the hot weather and alcoholic excesses, Patum Dean, 33 years old, of Macon, Ga., a friend of B. Sanders Walker, the Macon banker who died from the effects of bichloride of mercury taken by mistake for aspirin, is held here in the observation ward at the City Hospital following an attempt to swallow some of the poison which caused his friend's death.

Dean is connected with the Bibb Sewer and Pipe Company, of Macon, and the Evans & Howard Sewer and Pipe Company, of St. Louis. He came to St. Louis Sunday to confer with officials of the latter concern. He remained at the American Hotel until Monday, then checked out. Wednesday he called on his nephew, John Gentry, city passenger agent of the Southern Railroad. He was unable to give any account of his whereabouts since Monday.

Dean has a wife and four children in Macon.

Berries Eaten on Trip Into the Country Make Three Youngsters Ill.

The three children of Captain Lamar Poole, of the Atlanta police department, were reported Thursday morning as having recovered from the effects of ptomaine poisoning which they suffered while on a picnic.

Mrs. Poole said she had taken the children to the country Wednesday, and thought possibly they had been in the hot sun too much, or that the berries and sweet corn they had eaten for lunch had disagreed with them. A hurry call to police headquarters announced that they had been strangely poisoned.

The first signs that the children were suffering became evident at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Wallace, aged 12; Douglas, 8, and Elsie, 3 years old, were taken violently ill simultaneously after they had returned to their home at 255 Glennwood Avenue.

Chief Beavers hastened to the Poole home with a surgeon from the Grady Hospital. When they arrived, however, Captain Poole and Dr. Virgil Cook were there, and the children were soon relieved.

ENGINE PLOWS INTO HOUSE.

PENSOCALO, June 26.—A house, occupied by negroes, was almost demolished to-day when a switch engine split a switch, leaving the track and going into the front door.

CHAINGANGS ABOLISHED BY BILL IN SENATE

Sweeping changes in the prison system of the State of Georgia are provided by a bill introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator A. H. Foster, of the Twenty-seventh District.

Senator Foster's bill, which he declares meets with the approval of Senate leaders, contains the following important provisions:

To provide for the inspection of all county jails.

To abolish the county chaingang.

To provide an indeterminate sentence in both felony and misdemeanor cases.

To arrange for the parole and after-care of prisoners.

To define the meaning of and disposition of habitual criminals.

To provide for a system of grades, classifications and credits of convicts while in the penitentiary.

To provide for the appointment and compensation of wardens and guards for the penitentiary.

Indorsed by Reformers.

Senator Foster stated shortly after introducing his bill that in addition to having the support of influential members of the Senate, the measure has the backing of the Georgia Prison Reform Association. The bill, Senator Foster stated, embodies the results of the investigations of the association and Philip Weltner, and in addition contains some ideas of his own.

Senator Foster declared that while he expected that some amendments would be made in the bill before it is passed, he would concentrate his efforts to retaining the wording of the original bill in the section relating to indeterminate sentences. This, he declared, was the most needed reform in Georgia prison methods.

The phrase "to abolish the county chaingang," in the caption of the bill, is confusing, inasmuch as slight reference is made to it in the body of the measure.

Senator Foster stated that his idea was not so much to totally abolish the chaingang system as to make it impossible to work negroes and whites together. He hopes, he says, to abolish the mixed chaingangs and segregate the races.

The sections of the bill set forth that the policy of the State shall hereafter be to so deal with convicts "that their punishment may serve to discipline them to right conceptions of citizenship."

Board Members Inspectors.

The burden of the inspection of prisons and jails is placed upon the State Prison Commission, which, declares the bill, shall provide for "quarterly visitation of all county jails and aid in their just, humane and economic administration." The Commission shall make a report of each visit to the Governor.

Instead of the fixed sentence, Senator Foster's bill declares that when any prisoner is convicted of a felony or misdemeanor the court shall pronounce an indeterminate sentence.

The bill also impresses upon the Prison Commission the necessity of segregating the youthful prisoners from the old and hardened offenders.

One of the strong and unusual features of the bill is a section providing that all moneys earned by the

PAINTER FAMILY LOSES IN SUIT FOR ORGANS

BALTIMORE, June 26.—The demurrer offered by the family of Edward O. Painter, the late Jacksonville fertilizer man, against the appointment of a receiver for his viscera, was overruled by Judge Duffy in Circuit Court to-day. The receivership proceedings, however, were continued until July 15, during which time the defendants may show cause why a receiver should not be appointed.

When the case is reopened Judge Duffy will take testimony tending to show why a receiver should be named to take charge of the Painter organs. In the meantime they will remain here in the possession of Dr. Charles Glaser, chemist, to whom they were sent from Jacksonville for analysis.

In overruling the demurrer Judge Duffy said that the attorneys for the Painter family and Coroner Abbott had not shown it was within the jurisdiction of the court to appoint a receiver for the organs. The court, he ruled, had the power to appoint a receiver, but he admitted it was questionable whether the court, after appointing a receiver, had the right to order the receiver to make scientific examinations of the organs as has been asked by the Fidelity and Guaranty Company.

Urges Underwood For Presidential Candidate in 1916

Oscar Underwood for President of the United States in 1916 is the slogan of Judge G. R. Hutchens, of Rome, who managed the Underwood campaign in Georgia last year. Judge Hutchens stopped Thursday at the Hotel Aragon, where he will remain for several days.

"Underwood is the logical man for the presidency," said Judge Hutchens Thursday afternoon, "and we are going to put him in the race long before the next election rolls around.

"Last year some people and one Atlanta newspaper in particular hotted at us when we proposed Underwood's name for the presidency, but they had nothing whatever to say when the primary vote showed that the Alabama man had swept Georgia by 15,000 votes. We can duplicate that vote in 1916."

If Wifey Balks at Getting Breakfast, Try Broyles' Menu

Recorder Broyles Thursday recommended a special breakfast menu for those husbands whose wives decline to get up early and prepare the meal.

Sliced bananas and apples are the ingredients.

He suggested this menu to E. L. Perkins, of 140 Julian Street, a railroad man, who was up for beating his wife because she had failed to cook his breakfast. Perkins, however, told the Recorder he hardly thought bananas and apples sufficient for a railroad man. He was placed on probation.

Former Tennessee Governor, McMillin, Minister to Peru

WASHINGTON, June 26.—President Wilson to-day sent to the Senate the following nominations:

Albert G. Schmedemann, of Wisconsin, to be Minister to Norway.

Benton McMillin, of Tennessee, to be Minister to Peru.

Nathaniel B. Stewart, of Georgia, to be Consul at Milan, Italy.

Richard Lee Metcalfe, of Nebraska, to be a member of the Isthmian Canal Commission.

Senate Confirms All Recess Appointments

The Senate in executive session Thursday morning confirmed all of Governor Brown's recess appointments, including the members of the Board of Education.

Considerable interest was manifested in the latter appointments, but the confirmation by the Senate put an end to discussion.

Conscience Sends Man to Chaingang

WAYCROSS, June 26.—Upon a plea of guilty of larceny after trust, Judge McDonald to-day sentenced A. L. Christian to serve twelve months on the chaingang or pay a fine of $150.

Christian surrendered in Richmond, Va., telling the police his conscience would not let him rest. He disappeared with $100 belonging to a Waycross fruit dealer.

1,600,000 Illinois Women Now Voters

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., June 26.—Governor E. F. Dunne to-day signed the woman suffrage bill. His act gave to 1,600,000 women of Illinois the right to take part in the election of all officials except those created by the Constitution.

The signing of the bill marked the culmination of a 23-year fight by women to gain the right to even a limited franchise.

JUDGE SPEER RAPS U. S. ATTORNEY GENERAL

SIOUX CITY, IOWA, June 26.—Severe criticism of the Attorney General of the United States for having him investigated by special agents and secret service men in the employ of the Department of Justice was the feature of the address of Judge Emory Speer, of the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia, before the Iowa Bar Association today. He also stated that the detectives are liable for contempt of court for operating in the presence of the court.

Judge Speer spoke to the Iowa lawyers, who are in annual meeting here, on "The Debt the American People Owe the American Judges." When he had finished that subject he discussed the action of the Department of Justice in probing his personal and judicial record.

Questions Right to Probe.

Judge Speer said, in part:

"More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Federal judge is the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the arbitrary espionage or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name? I speak impersonally and with all deference and respect for the distinguished official who is ex-officio the leader of the American bar."

Hints at Contempt of Court.

Judge Speer then stated that the examiner had appeared in court, made copious notes with significant gestures, conferred with disgruntled attorneys, received letters from convicts in the penitentiary, interviewed stubborn debtors who had been forced by the court to pay their obligations and examined newspaper files.

"The examiner, and I speak of him with great respect, even with timid deprecation, works in a mysterious way his wonders to perform," said the Judge, adding:

"He holds the fate of the judge in the hollow of his hand. And all the while, be it remembered, there are no charges pending against the judge, where such charges should be made. The examiner imparts to the judge no information whatever of any complaint. There is no chance for defense.

"This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor. If proper with a district judge, it is equally appropriate with the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States.

"For action less directly in the presence of the court, less interfering with the administration of justice, men have been convicted for contempt of court, and the convictions have been sustained."

MACON, June 26.—D. J. Bailey, chief examiner for the Department of Justice in the Southern States, has augmented the force of inspectors who have been at work in Macon and this district for several weeks in the investigation of the judicial and personal record of Judge Emory Speer. He arrived yesterday afternoon and immediately held a conference with District Attorney Alex Akerman.

Last night he left for Savannah, where Special Examiners Lewis and Jenkins are already engaged. Mr. Bailey declines to state the purpose of his mission, referring all inquirers to the Attorney General.

Cool Weather Just Ahead, Forecaster's Solemn Assurance

Cooler weather is on the way.

"Fair and warm" is the forecast for Thursday, but moderate breezes sifting through the West and Middle West are due to reach Atlanta at no distant date. Possibly Thursday afternoon may bring a little relief from the high temperature of the last two weeks. Thunder showers are anticipated in the Atlanta territory, and if the city is so fortunate as to lie in the path of the rain it may enjoy moderate weather for a day or two.

This announcement was made by the United States Weather Bureau Thursday morning, and it brought joy unlimited. The drop in temperature may be as much as 8 or 10 degrees, according to official dope. Temperature at 7 o'clock Thursday morning was 75 degrees. At 8 it was 80.

Dr. Joseph Jacobs, Atlanta Druggist, Weds in New York

Announcement was made late Thursday of the marriage of Dr. Joseph Jacobs, wealthy Atlanta druggist, to Mrs. M. E. Dickens, of Philadelphia, at high noon at the Plaza Hotel, New York city. Several close friends of Dr. Jacobs and members of his family were present.

The Atlantans in the party were Miss Daisy Jacobs, sister of Dr. Jacobs; his son, Sinclair Jacobs; Mrs. Evelyn Sweet Prescot, Walter Rich, Rudolph Adler and Eugene Oberdofer. They will return to Atlanta immediately.

Dr. Jacobs and his bride waill sail Monday for a three months' tour of Europe. Mrs. Jacobs is well known socially in Philadelphia. Dr. Jacobs is one of the best loved men in Atlanta. He is famous as a devotee of Robert Burns.

Postal Receipts for Year to Make Gain; Show City's Growth

The annual report of the Atlanta postoffice for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, will show a substantial gain over 1912, according to Postmaster Hugh McKee, who declared Thursday that the past year has been one of the most satisfactory that the local postoffice has ever experienced.

"Atlanta is growing rapidly," said Mr. McKee. "Its growth is almost miraculous. We have been forced since the first of the year to put on a number of additional men in each department, and still we are handicapped.

"The receipts, I predict, will continue to climb each year."

Armor Retains Job At Industrial Home

MACON, June 26.—W. F. Armor, the farm overseer of the Georgia Industrial Home, who whipped a 10-year-old boy with a rope last Friday, has not resigned, and does not intend to sever connection with the institution. The trustees have exonerated him.

It was stated yesterday by one of the trustees that Mr. Armor's resignation was forthcoming. In a statement sent from St. Simons, where he is spending a vacation, Armor states that he will not resign. However, his wife, Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, appeared before the trustees and offered an oral resignation for him. It appears now that she did this without his authority.

STOVER GIRL PLAYS STAR PART IN CASE

With the selection of the court room made Thursday, all is virtually in readiness for the trial of Leo M. Frank, accused of strangling Mary Phagan. The venire of jurymen has been selected and July 28 fixed as the date, and both sides have announced they are ready to go into court.

A definite decision was reached by Judge L. S. Roan to hold the trial on the first floor of the old City Hall building. The decision was reached after a conference with Solicitor General Dorsey, and it was represented as impracticable to hold the trial in the small and not well-ventilated court room in the Thrower building.

The State is maintaining its determined attitude toward the subpenas duces tecum issued by the defense. Frank A. Hooper, assisting in the prosecution, has branded them as a palpable trick to discredit the testimony of the State's witnesses.

Girl Star Witness.

The witnesses will be present with the affidavits called for, but a hot fight will be put up by Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Hooper to prevent their use by the defense.

Monteen Stover, a timid little 14-year-old girl, will be a star witness in the trial, according to all indications Thursday.

The State, if it is able to establish that Monteen Stover entered the factory on the day of the crime just after Mary Phagan went inside, will have scored a most significant victory. The evidence will still be circumstantial, it is true, but it will be of greater weight even than the weird stories of the negro sweeper, Jim Conley, who has sworn that he aided Frank in disposing of the body.

Adds to Mystery.

Her story, however, until it is substantiated or disproved in court, only adds to the mystery of a crime which already abounds in baffling and mysterious phases. Her appearance on the witness stand may mean everything or nothing—because there is the startling fact that every indication points to Monteen Stover having entered the factory BEFORE Mary Phagan.

Monteen Stover is the daughter of Mrs. Homer Edmonson, of 171 South Forsyth Street. She formerly was employed at the pencil factory, and on the Saturday of the murder went to the building to get her money. She said that she arrived there at 12:05 and remained about five minutes. She said that Frank was not in his office and that she was not able to find him.

Pitted against the declaration of the little girl is the statement of Frank that he was in his office at the time. One of the two apparently has spoken falsely or mistakenly. It is the theory of the State that Mary Phagan had preceded Monteen Stover into the factory; that Frank had attacked her probably in the metal room, and that this is the reason the Stover girl was unable to find Frank in his office when she was in the building from 12:05 to 12:10.

The Phagan girl left her home at 11:50. She lives in Bellwood and the ride to town takes more than 15 minutes. The time that she left the car in the city is fixed by William M. Matthews, Motorman No. 1447, of the Cooper and Hendricks Streets run, who says that his car arrived at Broad and Marietta Streets that day between 12:07 and 12:10 o'clock.

If Mary Phagan had hurried, she barely could have got to the factory by the time the Stover girl was leaving, if this testimony can be relied upon implicity. The Stover girl's story falls down utterly, so far as its value is concerned, therefore, if Mary Phagan did not come into the factory until after the Stover girl had left.

BILL CALLS FOR INVESTIGATION OF W. & A.

Senate Gets Measure Providing That Committee Report on Road at Next Session.

convict shall be paid to his family or others dependent upon him. The payment is placed in the hands of the Prison Commission.

All prisoners save lifers on charge of treason, arson or criminal assault are granted the privilege of applying to the Governor and the Prison Commission for parole three months before the expiration of the minimum time which they may be required to serve.

Provides W. and A. Inquiry.

A resolution authorizing the appointment of a legislative committee of eight to investigate the State's railroad, the Western and Atlantic, and determine upon its proper disposal, was introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator J. T. Longino, of the Thirty-sixth District.

The committee is to be composed of three from the Senate and five from the House, and will do its work during the recess of the General Assembly. The members are to be paid their usual per diem and expenses, and shall report at the next meeting of the General Assembly.

Senator Longino's resolution specifically states that the committee shall investigate the best plan for "the renting of the property, and improving the State's property in Chattanooga."

No mention is made of the activities of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, or of the State convention proposed by that body.

Donaldson Would Bar Reformers From Camp.

Prison reformers will be barred from the convict camps in Fulton County, according to a resolution drawn by Superintendent T. J. Donaldson Thursday, which probably will be passed by the County Commission at its next meeting.

The resolution puts the ban on the "small army of ministers" and "all-day Sunday services" as well. A "convict parson" will be employed to preach regularly at each of the six camps. He will be prohibited from bringing more than one person with him. The service will be limited to one hour, from 11 to 12 o'clock each Sunday forenoon.

"I am getting tired of all this reform talk from people who do not know what they are talking about,' said Captain Donaldson.

Satisfied Till Reformers Arrive.

"The condition of nine of every ten convicts of the 700 in this county is 100 per cent better than it was before they violated the law and received a sentence. Without an exception, the general health is better.

"The men have clean beds, get wholesome food and live under sanitary conditions that are far superior to anything they have known before. They are usually pretty well satisfied until Sunday, when these ministers and reformers worry them for several hours they could better enjoy in rest.

"Our convict system is about as good as any in the world. The idea that the men leave greater criminals than they were before they came to us is absurd. Some of them don't like work and would welcome the reform and flowery beds of ease, but if there is any good in a man he is willing to pay for what he has done without a murmur.

"The work reforms as many of the men as the ministers do. They leave us in a much better condition than they were when we got them and at least half start a new life.

"Those who do not reform could not be reformed unless a shotgun was used. If the conditions the reformers seek were brought about I would get rid of my property in Fulton County and go to some other State."

Captain Donaldson will urge the county board to adopt his resolution when it is presented, and he thinks it will be adopted.

Committees To Be Announced Next Week.

The various committee assignments in both Houses will not be announced before next week, as the framing of them is perhaps the very hardest and most exacting work that will come before the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House during the entire session.

President Anderson and Speaker Burwell began working on committee assignments immediately after adjournment yesterday, but it will require a week, perhaps, to finish the undertaking.

It seems to be an acceped fact that Representative Blackburn, of Fulton, is to be the House floor leader, inasmuch as he is reported slated to head the Committee on Rules, while it is freely rumored about the Capitol today that President Anderson proposes to evidence his entire friendship and good will toward his late rival, Judge Allen, the Senator from the Twentieth District, by offering him his choice between the chairmanship of the Finance and the Constitutional Amendments Committee in the Senate.

Both these suggested assignments apparently meet with the approval of the Houses involved, for nothing but commendation of them is heard on any hand.

Indeed, the fine feeling in the Senate, following the strenuous struggle for the presidency thereof, is remarked by every one, and it now looks as if the new Legislature is to get away with its work in a spirit of genuine good fellowship and mutual respect all around.

Certainly for the first time in ten years Georgia appears to have on hand a General Assembly that may be classed neither as a "Smith" nor a "Brown" body.

Beyond the suggestion of Blackburn for vice chairman of the Committee on Rules in the House and Allen for either Finance or Constitutional amendments in the Senate, the "dope" on the committee line-ups is pretty bad. Neither President Anderson nor Speaker Burwell will discuss the matter at all.

For the next two days the Legislature will do little more than "mark time," anticipating the inauguration of the new Governor and the winding up of the present administration.

Message Divides Members.

Preparations for Governor Slaton's inauguration on Saturday already are well under way. The ceremony will be quiet and dignified, the new Governor breaking a long line of precedents in Georgia, however, by delivering his message orally to the Legislature in joint session, rather than sending it in separately to both Houses, as a written document.

Flow of Bills Begins in Senate.

The following bills were introduced in the Senate Wednesday morning:

By Senator Pope, of the Forty-fourth District, and Senator Hixon, of the Thirty-seventh—A bill to exempt from taxation farm products, including baled cotton grown in this State.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill to establish the new county of Tate, with Fairmount as the county seat.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill to compel two or more railroads entering a town or city to erect a union passenger station.

By Senator Smith, of the Ninth—A bill to empower judges of the Superior Courts to grant charters to private companies in vacation.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill permitting administrators to sue in homicide cases.

Short Thursday Session; Canvass Vote for Slaton.

Both the Senate and House of Representatives convened at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, but will have but a short hour in which to transact their individual business, as a joint meeting is scheduled.

At the joint session the vote for Governor will be canvassed and John M. Slaton formally declared elected. Beyond this neither House will hardly handle much business. Friday is expected to be a busy day, while Saturday will be devoted to the inauguration ceremonies.

New Bills in Senate.

Among the bills introduced in the Senate today were:

By Searcy—To prohibit one person purchasing from another any spirituous or intoxicating liquors.

By Tarver—To give courts of original jurisdiction authority in certain cases to mold sentences so as to allow defendants upon the rendition of the verdict of guilty, to serve same outside the confines of chaingang, jail, etc.

By Tyson—To create the county of Evans.

By Ford—To rearrange the Albany and Southwestern Judicial Circuits, by transferring Dougherty County to the Southwestern Circuit.

By Tyson—To create the county of Hampton.

By Oliff—To amend an act creating a Board of Commissioners of Roads and Revenues for Charlton County.

By Stark—To amend an act creating the City Court of Jefferson.

By Pope and Oliff—To provide for the payment of fees now allowed by law to Ordinary as compensation for pension work.

Fixes Ordinaries' Fees.

By Oliff—To fix fees of ordinaries in this State.

By Elkins—To amend an act creating the City Court of Fitzgerald.

By Elkins—To amend sections of the code relative to mechanics' liens.

By DuBose—A bill to amend the charter of the city of Athens.

By Bush—To regulate insurance companies.

By DuBose—To amend the code relating to building and loan associations.

By Rushin—To repeal an act to establish the City Court of Vienna.

By Elkins—To regulate the meshes of seines, nets and traps.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Men

Send Name and Address To-day—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow-men to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest acting restorative, up-building SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4276 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

BROWN ADVISES AGAINST W. & A. EXTENSION

Cost, $20,000,000, Too Great to Be Compatible With State's Policy, Says Message.

Opposition to the extension of the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the sea was expressed in a message sent by Governor Brown to the Legislature. The cost of building such a road, which, it is said, would be about $20,000,000, is the reason given by Governor Brown for his opposition.

That the rental of such an addition, if possible to lease it, would not amount to more than the interest on the bonds, thus leaving nothing with which to pay off the principal, is one of the arguments advanced by him against the building of the road.

Governor Brown suggests that the State of Georgia might forever control its freight rates by obtaining a concession of land from Tennessee, giving it a frontage of a mile on the Tennessee River. A short branch could be built from the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the river and connection made with boats from Ohio and Mississippi River points. This, he states, could be done at a cost of $3,000,000.

Suggests a Commission.

That the Governor be authorized to appoint a commission to investigate the re-leasing of the Western and Atlantic is also suggested in the message, which follows, in part:

To the General Assembly:

There is no subject of more weighty interest to the people of Georgia than that of the future disposition of the Western and Atlantic Railroad. It is not to be considered that the State will seriously entertain a proposition for the sale of this, its most important piece of property.

A large portion of the people, while generally holding in mind the notable commercial worth of this railroad to the State, have not grasped the fact that it is in some respects the most potent of all factors in controlling reasonable rates of freight from other States into Georgia. In fact, in its potency as a rate-fixer and competition-securer, our fathers, in constructing it, builded wiser than they knew.

Calls Extension Visionary Scheme.

Much has been said for years past on the subject of extending the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the sea. My judgment, however, is that the fixed policy of the State as to her finances makes this a visionary scheme. In the first place the extension of the road from Atlanta to the sea would cost, when we include proper terminals, etc., undoubtedly more than $15,000,000. In fact, a report made to your honorable bodies, found on page 829, House Journal, 1909, estimated that the cost of the extension would be $71,650 per mile, making the total cost, if it were about 275 miles long, almost $20,000,000. If, however, the extension is to Savannah, Darien, Brunswick and St. Marys, the main line extension would be at least 125 miles more at a cost of upwards of $3,000,000, it being understood that terminals, rolling stock and other extra items are probably charged in the original estimate per mile. Every dollar of this amount would have to be borrowed.

But, as the Constitution of the State forbids any increase of the public debt, it would first be necessary to amend the Constitution so as to saddle this enormous debt upon the people. At 4 per cent the interest account on $20,000,000 alone would be $800,000 annually.

Whether the State would or would not undertake to run the road herself, it is manifest that she would be a very great loser, expressing it moderately, by spending many millions of dollars in extending the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the sea.

Suggests Terminal on Tennessee.

At Shellmound, in Tennessee, the Tennessee River runs within less than a mile of Nickajack Cave, in Georgia. If the two States would agree that the Georgia boundary line be deflected to the Tennessee River at or near Shellmound, and, after allowing Georgia a frontage of about a mile on the river, to deflect back to the present State line and, either adjoining that point or at some other locality deflect the line inward so as to give to Tennessee an adequate portion of Dade County to compensate for the portion added to Dade County by the State of Tennessee, Georgia would, of course, have a landing on the Tennessee River. Then if she would tunnel Lookout, Sand and Raccoon Mountains and extend a line to the Tennessee River from or near Ringgold or Graysville, Georgia, this would enable her Railroad Commission at all times to hold down the rates from the Tennessee River to Atlanta, to which would be added the low water rates to Shellmound, and in this way make the State absolutely independent of railroad monopolies, inasmuch as a reduction in the rates to Atlanta would bring a reduction to all cities in the State.

This extension, I am told, would call for five or six miles of tunnels costing about $250,000 per mile and possibly upward of thirty miles of additional railroad costing from $20,000 to $25,000 per mile, making a total for these two items of, say, $2,250,000. Therefore, it would appear that $3,000,000 ought to cover the total cost of the suggested extension.

Another Plan for River Point.

There is another alternative method for practically putting the Tennessee River traffic at a landing place in Georgia. This can be done if Chickamauga Creek is widened, deepened and straightened from its mouth near Boyce Station to a point in Catoosa County, so as to allow boats from St. Louis and other Western ports to come up the canal and cross the Georgia-Tennessee boundary line. The canal thus made would not be more than 12 miles long and should not cost $1,000,000.

I will ask you to bear in mind that I am not recommending that the State increase her debt by making an extension of her railroad from either end; but I am indicating that if she decides to adopt this policy she will secure immensely greater benefits for her people by spending, at the most, $3,000,000 in extending it to the banks of the Tennessee River in her own borders than by spending some $20,000,000 extending it to the sea.

Although the State of Georgia has an absolute advantage over her competitors in Chattanooga, it is seriously proposed that she shall abdicate that advantage and allow her competitors to succeed to it. The plan advocated is to ground rent a large portion of the track space in the center of Chattanooga, and enticing figures are shown as a reason why the State should do this.

Would Impair State's Power.

Now, if the State proposes to go into the real estate renting business and for that purpose is willing to impair her power for conducting a great transportation line, she can probably look with favor upon the proposed plan to dismantle the road.

For many years the Western and Atlantic Railroad had almost a monopoly of the business in the center of the city, hence the owners of the above named roads went to the enormous expenditure referred to for the purpose of competing with the Western and Atlantic.

Therefore, the proposition that the State of Georgia remove its present passenger and freight terminals in Atlanta and Chattanooga from their points of vantage really seems a strange one. For the reasons above given, I am firmly convinced that the State should entertain no thought of dismantling her property and thereby putting herself at a disadvantage as compared with her transportation competitors.

Now, as to the future disposition of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, it is well known that the present lease will expire December 27, 1919. It is not too soon, therefore, for the State to begin to consider what steps she will take toward protecting her citizens in determining the future of her railroad.

Doesn't Favor Long Lease.

I am quite clear, however, in my conviction that the State ought not to consent to a lease for a longer period than thirty years. No one knows what may be the conditions, commercially and otherwise, thirty years from now. There may be complications which would result in serious discrimination against her people and great loss to the State if she bound herself to a lease of practically a hundred years.

Therefore, she should hold it within her power to take back her road about once in the life time of each generation and adjust the new lease to the conditions then prevailing.

By this means she could be reasonably sure of protecting her people in the power to hold their own with the people of other States within future decades, for bear in mind that each generation is entitled to solve its own problems in its own way. We know not what complexities will confront our children and grandchildren in handling the affairs of the State, and should not handicap them.

I recommend, therefore, that your honorable bodies provide for a commission consisting of three or five citizens of Georgia, to be appointed by the Governor, whose duty it shall be to formulate a plan for the future leasing of the Western and Atlantic Railroad. Yet, it may be best to defer action on this subject until your session in 1914. This will allow ample time for mature consideration, whereas, if all action were deferred for your successors, the next General Assembly, the matter might not receive the careful thought it merits.

Respectfully submitted,

JOSEPH M. BROWN,
Governor.

Knew Assailants, Dies With Secret

CHICAGO, June 26.—Two men were saved from possible death today by the death of John Walsh, a saloonkeeper. Walsh knew the two men who recently assaulted and robbed him. He refused to tell the police who they were. Even when told that he was about to die he retained his secret, saying:

"I'll take care of them myself. I'm no squealer. I know 'em and I'll get 'em. I want to fight my own battles."

UNION MEN MAKE HOT REPLY TO GOVERNOR

Denounce Charges as Cruel and Clumsy Effort to Line Up Rural Voters.

The Atlanta Federation of Trades Thursday issued a formal reply to Governor Brown, denouncing the charges contained in his message as a cruel and clumsy effort to enlist the rural voter against the city toiler. Here is the reply in part:

"The message of Governor Brown to the Legislature yesterday, wherein he took occasion to malign and condemn the labor unions and their members, was a malicious and unwarranted attack upon honorable, law-abiding citizens of the State and deserving of as much consideration as any other class even though they do happen to be working people. He takes an undue advantage of those he slanders and assaults without provocation by embodying this arraignment in his message to the Legislature, knowing that it would be printed by the press of the State and gain widespread publicity, a cheap way of advertising.

Alleged Campaign Talk.

To one conversant with the real facts and conditions which were, in garbled fashion, made the subject of this utterly demagogic and specious harangue, this uncalled for and vicious attack upon organized labor, only utter contempt could be excited thereby.

That the governor has issued this message as a campaign document and attempts to array the country voter against the town and city voter, is demonstrably true. A more cruel yet clumsy effort to enlist the prejudices of the rural voter against his brother in toil upon the railroad, factory and worship has never been exhibited.

He attempts to make it appear that unions are exacting a tax from the farmer which he knows was untrue when he wrote the statement, but believing that the farmer had no more sense than to believe this and with an effort to appeal to them through this tax proposition and array the farmer against the city workmen is vindictive within itself, and at the same time he hopes to gain the good will of the manufacturer that opposes the unions and secure contributions to further his political aspirations, at least it has this appearance and time will make known the true facts in this connection.

Organized labor stands for the uplift of humanity and its record is an open book for the inspection of the public in general.

Says Unions Sought Peace.

"He proposes that labor go into the courts to adjust their difficulties and we ask what jurisdiction the courts have over wage disputes and grievances affecting the working conditions. He was fully aware that the courts could do no such thing and uses this as a subterfuge to blind the public, or at least hopes to do so.

"He makes no mention at all, in connection with the strikes he refers to, that the employers was even in any way responsible for the conflict and attempts to place the entire responsibility on the unions. It will be remembered that the unions were anxious to arbitrate these differences at all times, but the employers refused to accede to this method of adjustment until public sentiment, through the third party mentioned by Governor Brown, forced them to do so.

"To say that labor unions are a 'trust' is in accord with other misstatements in the message and direct attention to the rulings of the courts which he requests unions to appeal to.

HATRED OF OWN FAMILY LEADS DOOMED CONVICT TO AUCTION OFF HIS BODY

FORSYTH, GA., June 26.—Hatred of his own family has prompted Thomas A. McCullough, a convict in the Monroe County chaingang, to advertise his own body for sale to the highest bidder.

Self-sworn never again to have anything to do with his relatives, he is now in mortal fear that his body after death will be turned over to them for burial. McCullough's fear has been increased by the physician's statement that he is suffering from heart disease and has not long to live.

The money which his body would bring is a secondary matter to the convict. His one real desire is that death shall not seal the breach which he has cherished and broadened in life between himself and his family. Therefore, by disposal of his body to some medical school for experiments he hopes to eliminate this possibility.

"Cut Up While Alive."

"Why shouldn't they buy me?" McCullough exclaimed as he leaned his great, hairy body against his pick and looked down at his interviewer. "I've been cut up while alive and I wouldn't care if they cut me up after I am dead.

"If I've got a thing to do with it, not a single member of my family will get my body when I die. I don't want them to have a thing to do with me. I'd rather be left out for the buzzards than be turned over to them."

McCullough's strange hatred is founded upon his belief that his family "turned him up" when he was in hiding from the officers of the law following his escape from the camp some months ago.

He had been sentenced to eighteen years' penal servitude for the murder of a negro in Spalding County. The deed was the outcome of a quarrel between the two in a gambling game.

Caught After Three Months.

McCullough was sent to the Morgan County convict camp, but escaped three months later. Eluding the officers through briar patches and woods, the fugitive finally made his way back to his home in Spalding County. He remained there in hiding for two months. Then he was discovered by the officers and sent to the State farm at Milledgeville. His last words to his family as he was taken from his home were curses on them for having "turned him up," or betrayed him to the law. Whether they did or not was never proven.

From the Milledgeville institution McCullough was sent to join the Monroe County chaingang. He has now served 15 months of his 18-year term.

McCullough is an extremist in all things. Physically he is a powerful man; mentally he is without moral sense, and while he is the most desperate character in the camp and the only man prisoner over whom a guard keeps watch day and night, still he is the best worker of them all.

In the camp McCullough remains aloof from his fellow prisoners. He suffers from melancholia a great deal and has nursed his hatred against his family until the flame has blazed into almost a mania.

Only Nature Softens Him.

Only the sight of some pet or captured animal about the camp quiets him. Then his nature changes instantly, and from the cursing half-maniac the powerful man becomes a child, and his hatred is drowned in his love for the things of nature.

Only recently did the convict learn of his malady, that he was afflicted with heart disease. When informed of this he was struck with terror, not of death, but the probable disposal of his body. He had visions of his still form surrounded by his family—the ones he hated. Then it was that he wrote out the advertisement and sent it to The Georgian for publication. Here it is:

FOR SALE—To the highest bidder for cash, I offer my body, which is 6 feet high, weighs 175 pounds, is large frame, well proportioned, 40 years of age and Caucasian race.

I have a sentence of 18 years for killing a negro in Griffin in 1911 and have no prospects, no hopes and no friends, hence, being in bad health, I am asking this proposition. Anyone wishing to consummate a trade, address Thomas A. McCullough, Box 271, Care Monroe County Convict Camp.

FREE SUGAR AND WOOL FIRST IN TARIFF BILL

Senate Caucus Ratifies Wilson's Policy—Foodstuff Clause Effective in 1916.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Free sugar in 1916 and free raw wool have been approved by the Democratic caucus of the Senate, after a two-days' fight, and are established in the new tariff bill. The sugar schedule, practically as it passed the House, was approved by a vote of 40 to 6. Free raw wool swept the Senate caucus by a vote of 41 to 6.

This ratification of President Wilson's tariff policy came after a long series of developments since the tariff bill passed the House in which the President had an active participation.

When the fight was getting hot the President declared any suggestion of compromise on the wool and sugar schedule ideas was absolutely out of the question.

Then he stirred administration leaders to action when he made his "insidious lobby" charge, which has brought results regarded as favorable to the tariff bill.

The six Democratic Senators who voted against free sugar on the final vote approving the schedule were Hitchcock, Nebraska; Newlands, Nevada; Ransdell and Thornton, Louisiana; Shafroth, Colorado; Walsh, Montana.

The six who opposed free raw wool were Chamberlain of Oregon, Newlands, Nevada; Ransdell and Thornton, Louisiana; Shafroth and Walsh.

No attempt was made to bind members to the action of the caucus. The question will come up when the entire bill has been passed upon.

MAYOR SCORES HIS ACCUSERS AS 'LIARS'

Abandons "Polite Words" in Denying Charge That He Opposes Crematory to Aid Power Co.

Mayor James G. Woodward Thursday branded as infamous liars all persons who persist in attributing his opposition to the crematory contract to a desire to help the Georgia Railway and Power Company.

Polite and parliamentary denials of the charge that he opposes the crematory because it embraces in its plans an electrical plant and repeated disavowals of any connection with the power company have failed to prevent anonymous charges of ulterior motives against him, the Mayor said.

"If they won't take polite language, I'll have to hand it to them more forcibly," said the Mayor. And he did.

"I have said time and again that the electrical plant had nothing to do with my position regarding the crematory," the Mayor continued. "I have nothing either for or against the electric plant. The power company has fought me, and I have said time and again that I am not trying to help them. I don't owe them anything except a fair deal.

"The situation is this: I want a contract independent of the one the courts enjoined, and I want a waterproof bond to protect the city. I take it that the papers before me now have possible loopholes in them. When the courts enjoined the first contract the General Council asked the Destructor Company for a proposition. The proposition was made and the General Council accepted it. This proposition continually regards the contract of 1912, which the courts enjoined. I don't see why they can't write out a contract complete in itself. If a contract like this is presented to me I will sign it.

"Since I have said repeatedly that this was what I insisted on I see no grounds for repeating the charges that I am acting in the interest of the power company. Those who do repeat them are liars, and I have no objection to your printing that."

On account of Alderman J. H. Harwell's motion to reconsider the crematory proposition will not be officially before the Mayor until July 10. Until that time, the Mayor said, it would be advisable to indulge in less palaver and crimination.

Still at Outs With Humphrey.

The breach between Mayor Woodward and Councilman W. G. Humphrey, chairman of the Council Finance Committee, apparently was as wide as ever Thursday, despite alleged denials.

"I said I had lost patience with the Mayor in his attitude on this matter, and I have," said Councilman Humphrey. "One time he told me he would sign the contract, and the next time he refused. I don't know what else can be done to please him.

"My conclusion is that he is unalterably opposed to the plant, and that whatever favorable attitude he has shown has been a stall and a 'four-flush.'"

Mayor Woodward said Councilman Humphrey used no hot words to him, but that he positively disagreed with him in the crematory contract.

Pictures Slaying In Confessing Crime

COLUMBUS, June 26.—Indications are that there will be no preliminary hearing given Homer Carmack, the young man held in Lee County, Alabama, jail in Opelika, for killing J. J. Folks, Phenix City merchant, but that he will be held for the Grand Jury, which assembles the first Monday in July.

Officers believe that there is no doubt of his guilt. In his partial confession Carmack implicated two other men, who have offered alibis, and pictured the slaying in a graphic manner.

THE SUCCESSFUL WINNERS IN PENMANSHIP CONTEST AT THE SOUTHERN BUSINESS COLLEGE

The Department of Penmanship Popularizing the Big Business School.

Good penmanship is one of the greatest aids to Business College students in securing positions, and that is why the Southern Shorthand and Business University, of this city, gives special attention to this important branch.

Miss Minnie Yancey and Mr. J. M. Harding are the tie winners in the Penmanship Contest just closed at the Southern, and they were awarded the prizes.

Another contest is now on, and much interest is being taken by the large and enthusiastic class of students.

Professor R. C. Childs, the principal of the Penmanship and Business Department, is a graduate of the Zanerian Art School, of Columbus, Ohio, the finest school of pen art in the world. The results achieved by the pupils under Professor Childs' direction are something wonderful. The course in penmanship alone is worth the amount charged for the entire business course; but it goes in absolutely free of cost to those taking either the Bookkeeping or Shorthand course.

The business men prefer the Southern's graduates, because the Southern has stood for thoroughness; its bookkeepers are expert, and its stenographers are rapid and accurate.

"If several young persons, who were graduates of different business schools, should apply to me for a position at the same time, I would engage the one holding a diploma from the Southern Shorthand and Business University," said a prominent Atlanta business man to a prospective pupil who was making inquiry about business colleges.

Many are entering now and there is no better time to take a business or shorthand course than the present.

"Workingman," Inclosing $10, Begs That Deputy's Family May Not Suffer Want.

"It is a blot on the fair name of Atlanta that the widow and six children of Dave Yancey should have to plead for a pittance that they may have bread and meat, and then not get it. I inclose $10 herewith to apply on the fund."

A ten-dollar gold certificate was inclosed with this note Monday from a person signing himself "A Workingman." The money was for the family of Court Deputy Yancey.

There have been few subscriptions to the Yancey fund this week. Although but barely more than enough to pay the mortgage off the little farm on the Jonesboro Road has been subscribed, Atlanta's citizens apparently feel they have done sufficient for the family of their servant who met his death doing his duty.

Compared with the prosperity of the Gate City, the wants of the Yancey family are insignificant, yet they mean everything that the future holds for the widow and her fatherless children.

More money is needed for this worthy cause, and every citizen who has not contributed his mite to the fund is asked now to do so.

TALLEY APPEALS FROM SENTENCE

Man Who Shot Blackstock Gets 29 Days—Is Locked Up in Default of Bonds.

"Hub" Talley, who shot George W. Blackstock during a row in Peters Street several weeks ago, has filed notice of appeal from the sentence of 29 days in the city stockade imposed on him Wednesday afternoon by Judge Broyles, on a charge of discharging firearms in the city limits.

A State case also was brought against Talley before Judge Broyles in which Talley was held to the higher court on $5,000 bond on charges of assault with intent to murder and carrying concealed weapons. Talley's appeal bond was fixed at $500, in default of which he is a prisoner at police headquarters.

Two negro women who testified in Talley's behalf that Blackstock had an open knife in his hand when Talley shot him were held for the Grand Jury on perjury charges. Several white men testified Blackstock had no weapon when the fight occurred.

In an effort to prevent Judge Broyles from binding him over Talley's attorney, William M. Smith, told the court the prisoner had waived examination before Justice Powers and had been held for the Grand Jury in $500 bond. Judge Broyles could find no record that Talley had appeared before Justice Powers.

Attorney C. G. Battle represented Blackstock in the Police Court trial.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 26.—Announcement that King George, Queen Mary and President Poincare of France would attend the International Horse Show at Olympia to-day brought out the biggest crowd since the show began. Among the spectators were many Americans and other foreign tourists.

The royal box was decorated with intertwined British and French colors. Much comment was aroused by Queen Mary's edict that women in the show should not ride astride while she is present. The Queen, the foremost champion of feminine modesty since Queen Victoria, recently issued the same order to her daughter, Princess Mary.

Miss Ruth Boyd, of New York, who has a number of horses entered in the show, threatened to withdraw because of the Queen's edict, saying she could not use a side saddle, having been used to riding astride all her life.

LONDON, June 26—President Poincare of France began the last day of his state visit to England by inspecting the magnificent royal residence at Windsor Castle. The original Windsor Castle was begun by William the Conqueror.

The crowning social event of the French President's visit will be a state ball at Buckingham Palace, given to-night by King George and Queen Mary. It will be the most splendid social event in court circles so far this season.

President Poincare will leave tomorrow morning for Paris.

Younger Set of Millionaire Colony Engages Instructor for New Dances.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—During the coming season, which gives promise of being one of the most brilliant in the history of the fashionable colony, fancy dancing will be one of the popular diversions.

The younger set, of which Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., is a leader, has engaged an instructor, and dancing quite dissimilar to the popular tango and turkey trot will play an important role in the amusements of the millionaire cottage colony.

Mrs. Spencer, who is a member of the Casino Tennis Committee and active in the numerous affairs in which the younger set is interested, is an accomplished dancer herself, and any new forms of dancing inaugurated by her are certain to be taken up and followed by the young people of Newport. The colony is awaiting this innovation with interest.

Mrs. Spencer won particular admiration from society when she danced at the big benefit of the girls' branch of the Public School Athletic League, given at the Waldorf in New York last February. Her artistic Swedish dances in costume won her a tremendous ovation and three times she was asked to repeat them.

Admits Flagler Died In Guarded Cottage

NEW YORK, June 26.—W. H. Beardsley, attorney for the executors of Henry M. Flagler, admits that the cottage in which Mr. Flagler died at Palm Beach was surrounded by detectives during the latter's illness.

"It was necessary," said Mr. Beardsley. "Mr. Flagler himself, as well as the doctors demanded it. Had not officers been there hundreds of persons would have invaded the place."

New Society to Urge Drummers to Pray

The Traveling Men's Prayer Book Society is the latest organization within the Episcopal Church. The society is to encourage the practice of prayer and scripture among travelers. It was founded by Archdeacon Webber.

W. E. Dobbins, of Atlanta, is warden of the society here and Bishop Nelson is one of its patrons.

'Movies' to Show Newport Robbery

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—One of the large villas in the summer colony here is to be used as a central scene in a new moving picture to be produced.

Actors and actresses have arrived here, and it is said that the beginning of the picture will portray a robbery at one of the summer homes

2-Year Sentences Given Boy Thieves

WAYCROSS, June 26.—Three white boys, Homer Henderson, aged 11; Spencer Henderson, 14, and Earl Creel, 14, were convicted of larceny to-day and given two-year sentences at the State Reformatory.

COTTON TARIFF A MESS, SAYS EXPERT

R. K. MacLea Writes O'Gorman Lobby Cry Drove Honest Business Men Away.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Robert K. MacLea, associate editor of Dry Goods and formerly consulting expert of the Tariff Board, has sent to United States Senator James A. O'Gorman a letter in which he criticised the cotton changes in the Underwood tariff bill made by the Senate committee and declared that the sub-committee in making them "has been misled by its experts, as I feared likely."

Mr. MacLea has had 25 years' experience in all branches of the cotton trade and his plain talk to Senator O'Gorman will, it is believed, attract much attention at Washington.

In the letter he says:

"I was greatly surprised to read the changes made by the Senate Finance Committee, and while I realize that attempts have been made presumably to eradicate some of the evils of the Underwood bill in regard to cotton manufactures, they have to my mind in reality made a worse mess of it than I could have imagined possible.

Says Business Men Will Protest.

"There is no excuse for discrediting the cost accounting shown in the tariff board report on Schedule I. I know that Mr. Patton, one of the experts relied upon by the Senate sub-committee, has rejected its facts, for he told me so recently, stating that it was not worth anything to him and that he cared nothing for it.

"I am sure that when the business men appreciate this situation, they will be heard from in no unmistakable voice. They will understand it in the course of a year certainly.

"There is no reason why a proper cotton and yarn schedule should not have been formulated and I wish to protest vigorously against the enactment into law of the Senate amendments without further adequate changes to properly correct the oversight of the House of Representatives' measure as passed by them and the additional oversights of the Senate sub-committee.

Business Men Driven Away.

"Many honest business men have lately turned away from Washington by the 'lobby' insinuations; yet in one of President Wilson's most notable speeches before he took office he appealed to the 'honest business men of the United States' to help him with legislation.

"Hundreds in the cotton industry had accepted the invitation and after depending upon a correct interpretation of facts by the House of Representatives found that recommendations with proofs had in many ways been ignored. They have since been driven away from Washington in their further honest efforts to point out errors made."

300 Are Expected at Army's Park Outing

More than 300 poor mothers and children of Atlanta are expected to attend the annual outing of the Salvation Army at Piedmont Park Thursday.

Two chartered cars at 9 o'clock in the morning were filled with people, and many more are expected to go during the day. The Salvation Army will serve lunch and refreshments, and for the youngsters there will be races and athletic games, with all kinds of prizes.

Accused of Stealing Check While Drunk

Charged with stealing a cashier's check for $126, which, it is said, he wrapped up with his clothes in the Southern Express Company's office, while intoxicated, R. L. Underwood, a former employee of the company, has been placed on trial in the criminal division of the Superior Court.

The letter, it is asserted, was found in Underwood's boarding house.

DRUGGIST GIVES MONEY BACK

Dodson's Liver Tone Gets a Four Square Guarantee From All Drug Stores.

When an article is sold a druggist who is willing to give it his personal guarantee, it's a mighty strong proof of real merit.

That's exactly the case with Dodson's Liver Tone. It is a pleasant-tasting, vegetable remedy for a slow and sluggish liver. Since Dodson's Liver Tone came on the market the sale of calomel has gone 'way down. The reason is simply this: Dodson's Liver Tone is safe and harmless and guaranteed to be satisfactory—Calomel is often uncertain, sometimes dangerous, and no druggist wants to guarantee that it won't knock you out of a day's work and maybe send you to bed.

All druggists sell Dodson's Liver Tone and guarantee it. For you and for your children it's a good thing to keep a bottle always in the house.

All dealers will give you your money back if you think Dodson's Liver Tone is not worth the price. "Keep your liver working and your liver will not keep you from working," is good advice to go by.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

In these parlous times of political maneuvering, wherein one must be both as wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove, politicians of more or less caliber, who never yet have ventured very far from shore, will do well to learn one lesson from the cases of J. Randolph Anderson, President of the Georgia Senate, and William H. Burwell, Speaker of the House.

Neither man won his fight by way of mere personal popularity alone, albeit each has many warm friends and stout-hearted supporters.

The gentleman who put over both Anderson and Allen is none other than our venerated and esteemed fellow citizen, Old Man Hard Work!

Anderson and Burwell have been tireless in their efforts to succeed in their undertakings. Both men have lived their races for months. Anderson and Burwell were at it hammer and tongs while some of their opponents were seeking membership in the Don't Worry Club.

Politics, unlike kissing, rarely goes by favor. They that seek find, if they seek diligently enough—or, at least, they that do not seek rarely find.

Anderson and Burwell both are experienced legislators. Each has served a long and active term of service. Both are first-class parliamentarians, both good speakers and are both fine diplomats. Neither should in any manner "fall down on his job," and it isn't at all likely that either will.

There is a particularly fine and friendly feeling among members of both Houses, and the chances are that Georgia has on its hands at last a Legislature that will be able to proceed to its work free from partisan bias or internal feuds.

That's saying a good deal—but it looks as if the saying is warranted!

Hon. O. K. Jones, one of Lowndes County's representatives, and a strong believer in tax equalization or reform, will introduce a bill in the Legislature providing for the appointment of a board of three tax assessors for every Georgia county.

Mr. Jones believes that valuations can be raised 25 per cent without working any hardships, and the State pulled out of the financial bog within a year, by the work of competent and conscientious assessors. There is no question that millions of dollars of taxable property is never returned. The uncovering of this property would within itself materially increase revenues. Representative Jones says:

"To make the proposed boards of real benefit, the members should be appointed and their tenure of office entirely independent of public suffrage. Many a tax receiver has beaten himself by a conscientious and zealous effort to secure just tax returns in his county, and it takes a pretty brave officer to persist in a course, however right, which he knows will beat him at the polls. That danger is removed when the assessors are made appointive."

Governor Brown literally has been swamped with callers to-day and yesterday. The Governor still is very much of an active agent in politics, and keeps in close touch with his friends, just as very many of his friends insist upon keeping in very close touch with him.

To-day and to-morrow will be his last days as Chief Magistrate, for by Saturday morning, when his successor will be inaugurated, he will have everything in shipshape for the new Governor.

It may be taken as a certainty that the Governor will not retire absolutely from sight politically, although it undoubtedly is his purpose to refrain from meddling in the new Governor's business, if he might.

Governor Brown and Governor-elect Slaton are firm friends of years standing. The new Administration will have no more earnest well wisher than the present Executive.

House bill No. 1 this year is in, by Mr. Cole, of Bartow, and proposes a graduated inheritance tax for Georgia.

House bill No. 1 in the last Legislature was the famous "Tippins bill" of fragrant recollection, which had the stormiest career of any measure introduced.

It weathered the gales in both the House and the Senate, only to go to wreck eventually on the rocks of an executive veto.

House bill No. 1 this year seems destined to a kinder fate. The inheritance tax idea is popular in the Legislature, and the chances that such a measure may become the law are exceedingly bright.

Mr. Cole has this bill very much at heart, and will leave no stone unturned to push its passage.

Cole, by the way, is one of the younger members of the House, sure to take a high stand among his colleagues. He is well on the sunny side of 30, and is one of the most successful business men in North Georgia. He started his career some ten years ago with something like $1.35 capital, and to-day he is worth—well, he's mighty well fixed for his age, and he is progressing every day! All that he has has been accumulated by hard work and sticking everlastingly at it—he never stops on a job he is undertaking to put over.

Cole has made a deep study of inheritance taxation. The law he proposes for Georgia is based upon the best things he could gather from other inheritance tax laws, particularly from the splendid one California has on her statute books.

Two fine young Georgians to whom Speaker Burwell feels heavily indebted for his victory of Wednesday are Thomas F. Fleming, of Sparta, and H. L. Gardner, of Eatonton.

This pair worked in season and out for Burwell, remaining constantly in his headquarters in Atlanta during the last days of his campaign. Both are affable, earnest and sincere workers, and much of the happy outcome of Burwell's fight is due to them and their loyal work.

Grover Edmondson, of Brooks, is the "baby" of the House, but he doesn't look it nearly as much as does Wisdom, of Forsyth.

Edmondson is a big, husky youngster of 22, while Wisdom is an extremely boyish looking kid of 24.

Both are fine chaps, however, and likely will be heard from in the present House.

TEACHERS MEET NEXT WEEK IN CONTESTS

High School Instructors Also Will Hear Experts in Conferences at Athens.

Several hundred high school teachers, college instructors and others interested in the development of the State high schools will visit Athens next week to attend the sixth annual State high school contests and High School Association meetings. Conferences and meetings will begin July 1 and continue until July 5.

Among the conference speakers and lecturers will be a number of high school experts of the United States, including Dr. H. A. Hollister, of the University of Illinois, and Dean Southwick, of the Boston School of Expression.

Dr. Hollister will lecture each morning at 8:45 o'clock in Peabody Hall, beginning Tuesday. Dean Southwick will deliver three lectures Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings at 10:25 o'clock.

Experts to Hold Conferences.

State high school experts will lead conferences on "Methods of Improving the Teaching Force of the High Schools," "Should Georgia Organize a Teacher Training Course in the High Schools?" and "Means of Bringing the High School Closer to Community Life."

Special conferences will be held throughout the week on home economics, science, mathematics, language and English. The conference on home economics will be conducted by Miss Elizabeth Holt, of Augusta; the conference on science will be conducted by Principal W. P. Jones, of Rome; the conferences on mathematics, language and English will be in charge of Dr. R. P. Stephens, Principal N. G. Bartlett, of Dublin, and President F. F. Rowe, of Thomaston.

The high school contests will be inaugurated Wednesday, July 2, with preliminary debating contests in Peabody Hall. Thursday a music contest and a State championship debate on woman suffrage will be held.

Hold Contests Friday.

Declamation, athletic, spelling and recitation contests will be held Friday. Gold medals will be awarded in all events and a $300 scholarship of Brenau Conservatory will be awarded to the State winner in the music contests. The winner in the debate will be awarded a $50 set of books.

Dr. J. W. Riley Ends Successful Revival

Dr. J. W. Riley, noted Minneapolis Evangelist, closed his ten-days campaign for membership at the Tabernacle Wednesday night. Dr. Riley's efforts have met with great success. At the services Tuesday evening the front seats of the auditorium were filled with new members brought into the church through Dr. Riley's work. More than 100 also joined the Sunday school.

The evangelist will return to Minneapolis for a two-weeks' stay, after which he goes to Estill Springs, Tenn., to conduct services there for a week.

DRAW ENDS SHAM BATTLE OF TROOPS

BRUNSWICK, GA., June 26.—Officers of the Georgia State militia and regular army men here to observe the maneuvers are much pleased to-day over the excellent work of the troops in the second sham battle of the encampment yesterday afternoon.

The battle ended in a draw, the infantry under Major Hunter being unable to dislodge Major Seamans' dismounted cavalry from their intrenchments, while the latter had their hands full trying to repulse the attacking forces.

The Orange army, equipped for field duty, marched directly from Camp Brown to the sea, and then proceeded northward about a mile, where intrenchments were thrown up. At places the earthworks were five feet in height, and the defenses were concealed by canes and rushes cut from the neighboring swamps.

The Blue army, under command of Major Hunter, approached from the heavily wooded land side, but was held at bay by the Orange outpost, under command of Captain Rudisail, of Atlanta, long enough for the Orange army to intrench its position. The Blue army took up a position running parallel with the railroad. The battle line was about 2,000 feet long.

A number of Atlanta women were entertained by the officers of the Second Squadron and the Third Battalion yesterday. Most of the visitors formed parties and went fishing, and some good catches were made. Mrs. C. W. Hatcher, of Atlanta, caught and towed to the shore a five-foot shark, which she shot and killed.

$2,000,000 Is Frisco Stockholders' Loss

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—Stockholders of the Frisco System have lost nearly $2,000,000 in the depreciation of the values of common and preferred stock since the railroad went into the hands of a receiver, according to estimates made from the stock books in the last week.

James Campbell, of St. Louis, is holding stock worth $214,220 less than it was before the receivership suit was begun.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Bondholders of the Frisco will suffer no loss in the readjustment of the road's finances, according to Prince Poniatowski, a French banker, who sailed to-day after personally investigating the affairs of the road.

WISE TO RUN FOR CONGRESS AGAIN

J. W. Wise, of Fayette, who was beaten by a scratch last year in the race for Congress from the Sixth District, will enter the race again next year. Mr. Wise says he hopes to get sufficient votes next time to leave not a shadow of doubt of election.

In the last contest in the Sixth the district voted as a whole, the candidate receiving the largest vote to be declared the nominee. When the returns were announced it is said the count showed Mr. Wise to be the winner by about 200 votes over his opponent, Congressman Bartlett.

Later, however, Mr. Wise received information from Macon to the effect that there had been a change in the vote in some of the city precincts.

Mr. Wise says he never has been satisfied with that decision, but has determined to bide his time and get into the race next year. He says he has been overwhelmed with messages urging him to enter the race at the next election.

Do You Want to Save a Baby Life?

Quart of Milk Daily Is the Means

Mothers' Congress Asks Your Aid

A campaign for pure milk for the poor babies of the Gate City was inaugurated Thursday morning by the Mothers' Congress of Atlanta. The members plan to engage actively in the work of helping the babies who can not help themselves, and through the president, Mrs. John W. Rowlett, have sent out the following appeal:

One hundred persons are wanted each to furnish one quart of milk daily for one child. If you are willing to help save one baby, send your name to Mrs. John W. Rowlett, 186 East Pine Street.

The officers of the congress declare that, when they have obtained the names of the 100 persons willing to save a baby each, it will be but the opening wedge in the work they have undertaken. The ultimate object of the campaign is the establishment of milk stations in sections of the city where they are needed, thus enabling the mother to be instructed as well as helped.

Evans Eager to Help.

The fact that aid for the poor babies of the city is imperative and must be given at once was established by the congress after a conference had been held with City Warden Evans. Mr. Evans furnished the officers of the congress with a long list of children whom it is proposed to make the beneficiaries of the one quart of milk a day plan, and he has offered to co-operate with the congress in every way possible during the campaign.

"The question of caring for the babies of Atlanta during the months when the chances for the baby to survive are few, is a vital and pressing one," declared one of the officers of the congress Thursday morning. "and the question of furnishing pure milk to the children should be taken up in earnest by the people of Atlanta. We are hoping for a hearty and encouraging response to our request for a 100 quarts of milk a day for the babies, and would ask that every person contemplating enlisting in the good work send in their names as soon as possible.

"We hope to show the vital need of this work by the good we can do with the '100 quarts a day plan,' and so arouse the people of Atlanta that pure milk stations can be established.

Blames Improper Feeding.

"Improper feeding is the chief cause of infant mortality, and ignorance is very often the cause of improper feeding. Hence a campaign for the reduction of infant mortality must not only give relief at once, but must also instruct the mother in the care of her child, especially during the summer months."

The Congress of Mothers of Atlanta has for several years been fighting on behalf of the baby, and have aroused a great deal of interest in their work throughout the city. Several years ago they tried to bring to Atlanta a Gordon-Walker Laboratory for the certification and purifying of milk, but failed through lack of financial backing.

The congress co-operated with the City Board of Health, and has been active in the movement to have milk delivered at a temperature of 55 degrees.

Your Aid Is Needed to Save the Babies

Hundreds of poor babies are suffering in Atlanta today, insufficiently and improperly nourished. Hundreds of them will die during the torrid months of July and August unless something is done for them.

The Mothers' Congress of Atlanta has undertaken to save at least one hundred of these babies whose parents are too poor to provide them with proper food and nourishment by supplying each baby with a quart of pure, fresh milk each day. They are calling on one hundred citizens of Atlanta for aid, asking them to each furnish one quart of milk each day.

If you are willing to help save one little life and make one home brighter, send your name at once to Mrs. J. W. Rowlett, 186 East Pine Street.

CALLS COURT TO PROBE LYNCHING

Judge Littlejohn Orders Special Session at Americus to Convene Next Monday.

AMERICUS, June 26.—Judge Z. A. Littlejohn has signed an order calling for a special session of the Sumter County Superior Court to investigate the lynching of Will Redding, a negro, for shooting Chief of Police W. C. Barrow last Saturday night. The order fixes next Monday as the time for court to convene.

It is also ordered that the same Grand Jury that served at the recent term of the court be resummoned to investigate the lynching. This Grand Jury is known as one of the most fearless that ever served the people of Sumter County, having indicted a number of well-known men for gaming and others for violation of the prohibition law.

Sunday morning the city was all agog with talk of the lynching. Now, strange to say, no one can be found, without difficulty, who will speak of the affair except as having been informed by someone else.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst Are Hosts to U. S. And Foreign Officers

NEW YORK, June 26.—Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst entertained the officers of the American, Brazilian and Argentine warships lying in the Hudson River. The naval officers met at Mr. Hearst's home in Riverside Drive, as did some of the women in the party.

From there they were conveyed to the New Amsterdam Theater in theater coaches, attending the performance of Ziegfeld's Follies. Following the performance, the party returned to the Hearst home for supper and dancing.

Among the civilians in the party were John Purroy Mitchel, Collector of the Port, and Justice James W. Gerard, of the Supreme Court.

ICE $1 MORE IN ATLANTA THAN IN MACON

Same Concern Charges 45 Cents Hundred Here, 25 Cents in Bibb County Capital.

Atlanta, with far greater population, is paying more for ice than Macon.

The wholesale price in Atlanta is $4 a ton, or $1 more than the Macon price. The comparison is even more distinctly to the disadvantage of Atlanta, in the prices for small amounts of ice at retail, the price being 30, 35 and 40 cents per hundred in Atlanta compared with a straight 25-cent rate in Macon.

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Carporation is the principal manufacturer and distributor of ice in both Atlanta and Macon, and it also is in Chattanooga, Rome, Augusta and Jacksonville.

Three Dollars Ton in Macon.

As a result of the competition between the two ice companies in Macon, the Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation and the Southern Ice & Coal Company, ice is selling at wholesale in Macon for $3 a ton. At the beginning of the season the rate was $4.50. The retail purchasers, those who buy 10 or 15 cents worth at a time, are now getting their ice in Macon at the rate of $5 a ton, or 25 cents a hundred pounds. Formerly they paid $7.50 a ton, or 37 1-2 cents a hundred.

In Atlanta the wholesale price is $4 a ton. Ice is sold at retail on a graduated scale—30 cents per hundreds in amounts over 50 pounds; 35 cents per hundred in 25-pound lots and 40 cents per hundred in 10-pound lots.

The Atlanta customer who buys 10 pounds of ice, pays more than the Macon customer did before the ice war in Macon started. Before the price cutting began in Macon, the price of ice in small lots was 37 1-2 cents per hundred pounds. In Atlanta the price then, as it is now, was 40 cents per hundred pounds.

To get ice as cheap as it sold in Macon before the price war started, the Atlanta purchaser must buy at least 25 pounds. He can not buy any amount of ice as cheap as it sells in Macon to-day.

Says Price Will Be Raised.

When asked why Atlanta had to pay a higher price for ice than Macon, W. B. Baker, vice president and general manager of the Atlantic, said Wednesday that Macon was in the throes of an ice war, started by their competitor, the Southern Ice & Coal Company. The price there was too low, he said, and at the end of the war would be raised to a reasonable figure.

"The Southern started the price cutting," Mr. Baker said. "It is a small company, with 60ton capacity. We have a 300-ton plant, with 14,000 ton storage capacity. They started last summer and had to cut prices to get any business.

"It is simply a question of supply and demand in Macon. Ice will not keep always ,and they they make it they have to sell it. They couldn't get our customers without offering an inducement, and so they began to cut prices. The cut, however, applied only here and there. Our policy is to treat everybody in the city alike. When they cut at a few places, we met the cut, and pursuant to our policy, gave the same cut prices to everybody in the city. We always do that."

In direct reply to this is the charge that the Atlantic is a trust and has suppressed competition in Atlanta, Augusta, Rome and Jacksonville and is attempting to do the same thing in Macon. This charge was brought by the Southern Ice & Coal Company, which has secured an order from the Superior Court enjoining the Atlantic from further reducing prices until a court hearing on July 25. It was charged that because the Southern would not sell out to the "trust", the rates were cut to such an extent that ice was selling at ruinous prices.

Restrained in Chattanooga.

Mr. Baker admitted ice was selling too low in Macon and said it would advance. He laughed at the Southern Company's suit, saying they wished now they had not brought it.

"And as for our having suppressed competition in certain places," he continued, you know yourself that we have three competitors in Atlanta. We also have two competitors in Augusta and two in Jacksonville and one in Rome, because Chattanooga ships ice to Rome against us. We also have another competitor in Macon, because a brewery there sells ice against us."

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation was recently restrained by Chancellor McConnell, of Chattanooga, from selling ice below a stipulated price in a certain zone of that city. The same charge of attempting to kill competition was made against them."

There still remain the conflicting stories of the Stover girl and Frank, even though they can not have a direct bearing on the case. The Stover girl says Frank was not in his office and he declares that he was there until he went to the fourth floor to see Arthur White and Harry Denham.

The defense will be able to say, however, that Frank probably was perfectly sincere in his declaration, but that, as a matter of fact, he might have stepped out of the office for a few minutes and not have recollected it when he was telling his story before the Coroner's inquest. They will argue that it is a very difficult matter for a person to recall every move he made at certain times unless something occurs to impress it on his memory at the time.

Woman Builds Cats' Home Costing $15,000

GREENWICH, CONN., June 26.—Work on a $15,000 home for cats was begun by Mrs. Clifford B. Harmon at Indian Harbor, near here. There are to be eight rooms, electric lights, steam heat and a kitten nursery.

MADISON, WIS., June 26.—Just before the walls on the fourth floor of the new Capitol were closed by marble setters, a cat strayed into the opening. A square of marble was removed, at a cost of $300, to rescue the perishing feline.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

"Ideal" Has Fine Diving Act.

Gertrude Vanderbilt and George Moore, singers and dancers, are registering a hit at the Forsyth this week. "Ideal," the champion lady swimmer and diver, is also a feature, presenting a novelty act that has attracted a world of interest. She shows dives no other water star has exhibited and that the act is a big drawing card is very much in evidence.

The Six Musical Cuttys, in a splendid musical novelty, and Minnie Allen, in an unusually clever act, make things interesting. All the other acts have won attention.

The headliner for next week will be Edward Abeles, the distinguished comedy star, who has been identified with such New York successes as "Officer 666" and productions of that sort.

Many See "Qou Vadis" at Grand.

"Quo Vadis," the wonderfully successful photo-play now in its second week at the Grand, attracts hundreds of people to the daily matinee and evening performances. Of all the thousands of people who saw the pictures last week and who are attending the exhibitions this week, not one has been disappointed.

The presentation of "Quo Vadis" will continue at matinee and night performances the rest of the week.

"The Merry Whirl" Pleases.

Lovers of musical comedy are highly pleased with "The Merry Whirl," this week's attraction at the Bijou. Of the several tabloids that have visited Atlanta, it is safe to say that none has given better satisfaction or drawn larger audiences than this one. Miss Marjorie Lake, in the role of Fifi, is one of the cleverest performers that has ever visited the Bijou. The three comedians, Lew Miller, Harry Loder and Sol Carter, are a show in themselves.

PUSHES DEMAND FOR PAPERS IN M'NAB CASE

Kahn Urges Committee to Favor His Resolution for Accounting From McReynolds.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Representative Kahn, of California, to-day vigorously urged the House Judiciary Committee to make a favorable report on his two resolutions calling for correspondence in possession of the Department of Justice relative to the Caminetti-Diggs white slave case which led to the resignation of District Attorney John L. McNab, of San Francisco.

Mr. Kahn declared that McNab notified McReynolds that witnesses were being tampered with in the Caminetti case.

He pointed out that in McNab's telegram to President Wilson, McNab charged open boasts were made that influence was to be used to prevent the prosecution of Caminetti and Diggs.

Representative Thomas, a member of the committee, wanted to know if Kahn knew what witnesses had been tampered with.

"I expect that to be disclosed by the correspondence," replied Mr. Kahn. "Here is an attorney who, evidently, sought to do his duty and was frustrated. A special attorney probably will be hired and he will get a big fee."

Youth Slays Father To Protect Mother.

LAFAYETTE, IND., June 26.—John C. Barger, railroad conductor, was killed by his son, Paul Barger, 18, to-day, when the elder Barger attacked his wife.

The boy said that his father was choking his mother when he fired a revolver three times, holding the muzzle against his father's side.

Shaft Unveiled to Late Congressman

DAWSON, June 26.—A handsome monument to the late Congressman James M. Griggs was unveiled in Dawson to-day. A large crowd was present from all sections of the Second District.

Ex-Congressman William M. Howard, of Lexington, Ga., a colleague and warm personal friend of Judge Griggs, delivered the presentation speech, and little Theodosia Griggs Hollingsworth, a granddaughter, unveiled the monument. M. J. Yeomans delivered the speech of acceptance.

The monument was erected with funds raised by popular subscription.

Sinclair's Divorced Wife Denied License

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 26.—Mrs. Meta Sinclair, the divorced wife of Upton Sinclair, the novelist, and Hubert Halliwell of this city were unable to get a marriage license from City Chamberlain Jesse J. Graham of this city, who refused it because they have been living at Dr. Sahler's sanitarium at Woodstock, whereas Mrs. Sinclair gave her residence as New York City.

After being refused a license Mr. Halliwell and his fiancee went to the home of Mr. Halliwell's mother in this city.

Mr. Halliwell admitted that he would be married within a week, but by whom or where he refused to say.

Country Clubs are the City Man's answer to life. The business builders of Atlanta have answered this need for out-of-doors with the "4-C's" club.

$8.50 to $12.50 Lingerie Dresses $5.85

Look at these dresses with critical eyes—compare them with the best dresses you have been able to find heretofore for $8.50 to $12.50. Having just arrived Monday, they portray the latest style thought. They have the "new look"—shaping shoulders and sinuous lines.

Something like 200 in all—crepes, soft and crinkly; voiles, winsome, open to the air; crepes, bestrewn with buds and dainty flowers; linens, firm, flaxful; tissues, striped, as sheer as gossamer; ratines, tousled like a Turkish towel.

There are plain one-piece dresses, some entirely of laces and tucking; the new coat dresses; composed dresses, the tunic of floral crepe, the skirt of voile. Many of the dresses have the new crushed silk girdle. All white, colors, or white and colors in combination. Delightfully new $8.50 to $12.50 dresses and only $5.85.

$5 to $8 Lingerie Dresses at $3.85

Crepes, voiles, linens and lingeries. Some are all white; some are bestrewn with dainty flowers; some are in colors. More than one hundred and fifty in all; with choice of more than a dozen styles.

$18 to $25 Afternoon Dresses at $11.85

About one hundred and twenty in all. The largest lot are of an imported hemstitched white crepe, made in the one-piece style, with crushed girdle of charmeuse or velvet. Others are of voile and crepe in elaborate embroidery designs. White and colors.

Exclusive Creations at $13.85, $15.85, $19.85

Beautiful gowns—copies of Paris creations; exclusive New York originations. At each price there are from ten to twenty gowns. Scarcely any two alike. Materials are of imported crepes, eponges and voiles. Every gown worth from a half to twice over the present price.

$1.25 & $1.50 Shirt Waists at $1

All new waists; smart, attractive styles. We've had duplicates of some of these waists here at $1.25 and $1.50; the other styles are now shown for the first time. Voiles and lingeries; square and round necks; short and three-quarter sleeves. Lace and embroidery trimmed. All sizes. Choice $1.

(Ready-to-Wear—Second Floor)

$1 Leather Bags at 69c

Heretofore we've been pleased to get bags as good as these to sell for $1. For they are all leather, in the very smartest shapes. Leather or moire lined. Choice of many styles with round or creased bottom. Single or double strap handle. Gilt, gun metal or leather covered frames. Medium and large sizes. Black only.

$1.50 to $6 Novelty Bags, only 50c

GLASS BILL BOND CLAUSE RESTORED

Currency Reform to Provide Retirement of 2 Per Cent Obligations, as Written Originally.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Representative Glass announced to-day that his currency reform bill would be introduced with the 2 per cent bond retirement feature restored, just as it was before the Glass-McAdoo-Wilson conference at the White House previous to the announcement of the contents of the bill.

The bill will provide that all 2 per cent Government bonds shall be retired and 3 per cent bonds shall be issued instead during a period of twenty years.

Says Bank Tried to Ruin Dixie Concern

CHICAGO, June 26.—The Continental and Commercial Trust and Savings Bank to-day was made defendant in a suit filed by John Stuart Watson & Co., farm brokers of Portland, Maine, charging the bank with unjust manipulation of bonds and stocks with a view to ruining the credit of the New Orleans Drainage Company.

The corporation, Watson said, owns land valued at about $2,000,000, and the bank, through threats to foreclose upon this property induced him to sign an agreement to allow the bank to reorganize the company under the name of Orleans Suburban Farm Company.

'Ego in Pet Child's Cosmos Dangerous'

CHICAGO, June 26.—Dr. H. C. Norris, of Elderin, N. Dak., a delegate to the Congress of Alienists here, declared that petted children get egomania, which results in a lack of self-control.

This, he asserts, results finally in a nervous and mental breakdown, thus paving the way to an insane asylum.

Manufacturers to Give Banquet July 3

Between 250 and 300 manufacturers will banquet at the Hotel Ansley on the evening of July 3 to perfect plans for the permanent organization of the Atlanta Manufacturers' Association. They will be guests of the Chamber of Commerce.

Two questions will be discussed—the annual manufacturers' exhibition and a permanent manufacturers' exhibit of Atlanta-made goods.

Brooks Morgan will present an organization plan at the banquet.

J. S. Owens, Banker, In Race for Council

John S. Owens, vice president of the Central Bank and Trust Corporation, is in the race for Alderman from the Eighth Ward, to succeed Dr. A. H. VanDyke, who, it is understood, will not offer for re-election. Mr. Owens started his successful career as a bank clerk.

Mr. Owens says he has no platform except that of the welfare of Atlanta, and that he is pledged to no faction or man.

Canadian Physicians Bar Friedmann 'Cure'

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 26.—Unanimous approval was given to-day to the resolution introduced at the meeting of the Canadian Medical Association condemning the Friedmann tuberculosis "cure."

Professor Adami, of Montreal, who introduced the resolution, declared that "we have found the results of the Friedmann treatment disappointing, the claims made for the remedy not proved, and nothing has been found to justify confidence in the remedy."

Auto Hurdles Bridge; Man and Girl Killed

CHICAGO, June 26.—A man and woman were killed and another man and woman painfully injured to-day when an automobile crashed through the railing of a bridge in Lincoln Park.

H. A. Gregory, magazine circulation manager, died soon after the accident. The body of a Miss Bristol was found in the water.

The Prices Tell the Whole Story

Of To-morrow's Opportunities in the Ready-to-Wear

Just bear this in mind, however, as you read these prices, that in every instance they stand for merchandise that has back of it the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose guaranty of quality and style!

$7.50 For $18.50, $21.75 to $25.00 Woolen Suits

There are only fifteen of these. They will not last long after store-opening time. Splendid suits---judge them by their former prices; they are of serges and corded materials, hardly enough of any one color or style to attempt description, but the first fifteen women who seek a suit for general wear are going to be beautifully rewarded for their hurrying.

$10 For $30.00, $35.00 to $45.00 Woolen Suits

There are thirty of these.

Materials are serges, whipcords, diagonals, Venetian cloths and mixtures. Colors ---grays, tans and a few plain navy and black suits and another few white serges. That these suits were formerly $30, $35 to $45 in the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose stock tells their style and worth, what you may expect.

Half Price For $16.50 to $30 Motor and Traveling Coats

Thirty of these.

Charming styles and various. Materials are serges, whipcords and mixture weaves, gray, black-and-white effects, black and navy. Some lined, others unlined.

$16.50 Coats $ 8.25 — $22.50 Coats $11.25
$18.50 Coats $ 9.25 — $25.00 Coats $12.50
$20.00 Coats $10.00 — $30.00 Coats $15.00

$5.00 For $12.50 to $18.75 Linen Suits

Forty of these. Certainly not so many as this remarkable price would hurry to new owners---for a linen coat suit at this season is all but a necessity.

The linens are those soft, "heavy," loosely-woven kinds in favor just now, in about any color you may fancy. A wealth of styles, smart cutaways, "strictly tailored," jaunty Norfolks, and others that come under the head of Bulgarian effects.

$7.50 For $12.50, $18.75 to $21.75 Linen Dresses

Sixty of these.

This is the general disposal of all linen dresses of this season's choicest styles. And, indeed, there are many styles to choose from. There are plain, tailored dresses touched with a bit of color on cuffs and collars; there are Bulgarian and peplum styles rich with embroideries and showing novel ideas of fashioning. Materials are ramie and crash and yours may be Copenhagen, tan, gray or wistaria.

Who Will Get These Four Exquisite Silk Suits?

They are copies of imported models, made up of imported fabrics---three of them we brought on as show pieces---now they go to four lucky women!

$22.50 This One Was $45.00

It is of silk poplin in a soft shade of wistaria. It is a "fancy" suit, the coat fashioned in a novel cutaway style, with a Bulgarian collar showing shades that both blend in and contrast with the wistaria; the skirt is draped.

$25.00 This One Was $87.50

The material is a wonderfully soft brocaded crepe---an imported fabric in a fine shade of taupe. The coat is a short Russian blouse, trimmed with frogs and laces. The skirt is draped in true Parisian fashion. Hard to imagine $25.00 doing greater service in suit buying.

$35.00 This One Was $125.00

Elegance itself!

A white moire faille silk suit, a copy of a model that would of necessity have been much more than $125.00. The coat is a postillion model, cut away short in front, half-length sleeves, edged with wide shadow lace and folds of black velvet; a draped skirt.

$67.50 This One Was $175.00

A three-piece suit worthy of the most elegant social function; of tan moire faille silk. The waist of the dress is an artistic combination of shadow lace and hand-embroidered bands; the coat is a cutaway style, embroidered collar and cuffs; skirt is draped gracefully.

VIOLENCE MARKS BIRMINGHAM CAR STRIKE

Bricks Hurled and Dynamite Placed on Track—Guard Hurt. Union Tries Boycott.

BIRMINGHAM, June 26.—Acts of violence last night and to-day marked the strike of motormen and conductors of the Birmingham Railway, Light and Power Company, strikers or sympathizers resorting to force in their efforts to keep passengers from riding the cars and in protest of the action of city officials in providing police guards for cars.

To-day a workman on the Jefferson County Trust Company's building, now under construction, hurled a brick into a passing car. No serious damage was done. This was the third act of this kind from the same building. Wednesday night a brick was thrown into a passing car. Although a policeman on the car fired several shots at the man he escaped.

Dynamite on Tracks.

Dynamite was placed on the track of the East Lake line Wednesday night. It was exploded by a car, which was damaged. However, none of the passengers was injured, although Policeman Z. F. Hollums, who was riding the car as a guard, was struck in one eye by flying gravel. He may lose his sight in the injured optic.

Every car operated carries one or more police officers. Special policemen and deputies in citizens' clothes patrol all streets on which cars are operated. The regular uniformed police patrols are maintained throughout the city.

Boycott Another Weapon.

The boycott is another weapon with which street railway and other union men are fighting the traction company. Union men are cutting out electric lights in their homes, while they and their families refuse to ride the cars.

Motor trucks have been converted into omnibuses to take the place of street cars and transport members of the "I-will-walk" Club of strike sympathizers.

Union officials declare that more car men are joining the union and the strike each day, and that the strike will continue for months if necessary. President Ford, of the traction company, declares the strike is broken, and in a few days normal conditions will be restored.

Hundreds Offer Skin For Huested Victims

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 26.—Thirteen dead, eleven missing and probably sixty-three in the hospital, many of whom probably will die, is the latest estimate of the toll of the Huested mill explosion.

Federal authorities are to take a hand in the investigation of the mill horror.

Nearly all the injured are terribly burned by the fire which broke out immediately following the explosion. Several thousand square inches of skin will be used in grafting on the injured. Hundreds have volunteered to furnish the healthy cuticle.

Ex-Minstrel Dies in Water.

AUGUSTA.—Frank Hughes, 30 years of age and formerly a tenor singer with Al G. Field's minstrels, died of heart failure while swimming at a local bathing pool. He had been suffering from chronic heart trouble. He leaves a wife, mother, two sisters and three brothers.

Girl Disappears as Dorothy Arnold Did

NEW YORK, June 26.—The pick of the New York Detective Bureau today took up the mystery of the disappearance of Helen McCarthy, the pretty 16-year-old daughter of a newspaper broker, who vanished Tuesday morning within a stone's throw of her home, the Hotel Hargraves.

The disappearance takes rank with the mystery that still surrounds the Dorothy Arnold case, and in many respects the two are similar.

Mid-Summer Sale of Women's White and Tan Shoes at Allen's

To-morrow and Saturday to 1 P. M.

Women's $3, $3.50 and $4 white canvas and white buckskin pumps at $1.95

Women's $3.50, $4 and some $5 white buckskin and white canvas pumps, lace and button oxfords at $2.45

Women's $4 and $5 tan Russia calf, tan vici kid and brown pcalf skin pumps, and button lace oxfords at $2.95 and $3.95 a pair

We have simply divided our tan low shoe stock in two classes. You can have your choice of any tan low shoe, tan oxford, pump or colonial at either $2.95 or $3.95 a pair, with the exception of two styles of $5.50 and $6.00 rubber sole oxfords and pumps. These are selling so fast that we can hardly supply the demand, but in order to make the sale complete we have reduced them to $4.95.

This style in Black or Tan Calf, Leather sole $2.95 Rubber sole $4.95

We have also added the English last black and tan leather sole oxford, formerly sold at $5.50 this sale $4.95 lot; and the English last black and tan pumps with the leather soles that we formerly sold at $5.00, are now $3.95.

This means that every white and tan shoe in Allen's Shoe Department can be bought at a considerable saving, in some instances the reduction will amount to a half or a third less than their former selling prices. We have also added several styles to the black gun metal, patent leather and satin pumps which were reduced to $3.50 last Monday. These were formerly $5.00 and $6.00. The sizes on the $2.45 shoes in black patent leather, gun metal and satin are nearly gone, but here and there you can find your size, and there are certainly bargains. Some of them sold at $5.00. See our special sale shoe window.

We close Saturday at 1 p. m.

The Best News of Embroideries We Have Told This Season

The Selling Starts at Nine o'Clock

The papers have carried much good news of embroidery sales this season, but, as far as our knowledge goes, none could compare favorably with the values we have prepared for to-morrow.

This, indeed, is an embroidery occasion not to be missed. It is a Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose clearaway, a thorough righting of stocks of certain lines, and, as you shall read below, these lines are very desirable, embroideries that women want at this season, when sheer soft fabrics are an effective defense against Old Sol's persistent attacks. And being a clearaway of our own embroideries, there is not a disappointing yard among them. They are patterns and qualities that have contributed to make this Atlanta's ranking embroidery store. But these generalities do not tell the message of the dainty dresses, the cool waists, the exquisite underwear that are now possible at next-to-nothing cost.

You plan to be here and see for yourself.

19c

For 75c & 95c Flouncings

Think of all white and sheer batiste flouncings, 27 inches wide, showing the daintiest "baby" patterns, eyelet and French, for 19c a yard! Do not hesitate to buy quantities of them. It would be hard to find prettier materials and patterns for children's dresses. With these are embroidered bands, 2 to 4 inches wide, that were 50c to 85c a yard.

For $13.50 to $17.50 Dress Patterns

White voiles and crepes embroidered in colors, blue, pink, lavender and black. Many show heavy borders made of the greatly favored ratine. All are rich, elegant affairs so notably underpriced that women will quickly take to them. And all have the charm of newness about them.

$1.00

For $2.00 to $5.00 Flouncings

Although the price range is from $2.00 to $5.00, most of these were $3.50 and up a yard. They are 27 and 45 inches wide, mull, batiste, voile and linen, open and blind patterns and some of them very rich with Irish point laces. Beautiful dresses they will make!

39c

For 75c to $1.25 Bands

Mull, batiste and linen bands, 2 to 4 inches wide, in white and colors, open and blind patterns very neatly worked.

50c

For $1 to $2 Flouncings

A fine variety of white and colored embroidery flouncings 27 inches wide, blind and eyelet patterns on sheer mulls and batistes.

Athens Bidding for Week-End Visits by Atlanta Motorists

Athens is making a bid for week-end visitors, and with this end in view Crichton C. Callaway, secretary of the Athens Chamber of Commerce, spent Wednesday in Atlanta arranging for an automobile scout trip next week. A committee of Athens people will make the trip and submit their observations to the Athens Chamber of Commerce, which will publish them, together with other information, in booklet form.

"Atlanta's 3,000 automobile owners always make week-end tours, and we want them to come to Athens," Mr. Callaway said. "The route to Athens is picturesque, while the city itself has many objects of interest and is approached by the best county road system in the State. If we can get Atlanta tourists started to going there, they will keep it up."

The Athens scouting party is due in Atlanta about Monday or Tuesday. In a week or so the little Athens booklets will be printed and distributed among automobilists of Atlanta.

Resinol stops skin troubles

IF you have eczema, rash, pimples, or other distressing, unsightly skin eruption, try Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and see how quickly the trouble disappears, even in severe and stubborn cases. They stop itching instantly.

Resinol Ointment is so nearly flesh-colored that it can be used on exposed surfaces without attracting undue attention.

Physicians have prescribed Resinol for 18 years, for all sorts of skin troubles, dandruff, sores, ulcers, burns, wounds, and piles. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, but you can try them free, by writing to Dept. 35-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md., for samples.

ATTACK VALIDITY OF SEATING 2 IN HOUSE

Bleckley and Wheeler Members May Be Denied Places—Moss Upholds Unions.

An attack on the validity of seating the representatives from Bleckley and Wheeler Counties featured the opening of the House session Thursday morning.

A resolution was introduced by Representative H. J. Fulbright, of Burke, his claim being that under the Constitution the membership of the House is limited to 184, while these two members made a total of 186. The resolution provided for the appointment of a committee of nine to investigate the matter. It was adopted.

The men representing the two new counties are George A. Browning, of Bleckley, and Douglas McArthur, of Wheeler. The two new counties were formed in 1912.

Unions Praised.

Representative H. B. Moss, of Cobb County, introduced a resolution expressing confidence in the laboring men of Georgia and asking their co-operation in the upbuilding of the State. It was referred to a committee. The resolution is, in effect, a reply to Governor Brown's message of Wednesday which flayed unionism.

At 10:35 o'clock the House adjourned until 3 minutes of 11, at which time it went into joint session with the Senate to canvass the vote for Governor.

Members Not Unanimous.

Calling of the roll and reading of the journal consumed 25 minutes following the opening of the House for the Thursday morning session. C. E. Stewart, of Coffee County, and Grover Cleveland Edmondson, of Brooks, were the two who refused to join in unanimous consent to dispense with calling the roll and reading the journal.

A bill to prohibit county authorities from payin insolvent costs on bills and county officials from the general fund was introduced by Brinson of Jenkins.

A bill providing for the incorporation of the town of Chickamauga was introduced by Farris of Walker.

Cook of Chattahoochee introduced a bill providing for creation of a board of commissioners of roads and revenues in Chattahoochee County.

ANTI-LIQUOR BILL BARS SHIPPING INTO STATE

Another Senate Measure Would Put Marriage Laws on Eugenic Basis.

The first temperance bill of the session was introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator Hixon, of the Thirty-seventh.

Senator Hixon's bill prohibits the shipment into the State of all intoxicating liquors, even though they be disguised under innocent appearing names. It is provided, though, that individuals may bring into the State on their person or as their personal baggage, liquor in quantity not to exceed one gallon in a single package.

The provisions of the bill do not apply to druggists, to whom pure alcohol may be delivered for medicinal purposes.

Marriage Bill Introduced.

A modified application of eugenics will hereafter govern marriages in Georgia if a "marriage bill" introduced by Senator Hixon is enacted into law. Senator Hixon's bill provides that no marriage licenses shall be issued to persons of unsound mind, males under 18 and females under 16 years of age; persons afflicted with tuberculosis, cancer, pellagra and other infectious or chronic diseases; persons addicted to habitual use of intoxicating liquors or drugs.

The bill provides that all applicants for a marriage license shall produce a certificate of health from a physician.

Bible Reading in School.

A bill providing for the reading of at least one chapter of the Bible at the opening each day of every public school in the State was introduced by Senators W. J. Bush, of the Eighth, and W. E. H. Searcy, of the Twenty-sixth.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION FILED.

The firm of Nisbet & McFadden, grocers of Hapeville, Ga., Thursday filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court, giving assets $656.75 and liabilities $1,682.36.

Brilliant Men All Unbalanced, Says Atlanta Alienist

"No brilliant man is perfectly poised mentally. All artists and musicians in a way are mentally unbalanced. They are the highest type of deranged persons. The man who is perfectly poised mentally is not brilliant."—Dr. J. Cheston King, Atlanta, Ga.

CHICAGO, June 26.—This statement was made at the National Convention of Alienists here.

"The perfectly poised man," said Dr. King, "is a very common man. When he falls in love it is purely a matter of the heart. When an artist falls in love it is more a condition of mind. But when a mentally balanced, common man falls in love he sees his sweetheart through the eyes of a genius."

Government to Aid North Georgia Road

DALTON, June 26.—An excellent highway constructed by the Government from Ringgold, in Catoosa County, to Dalton, through Whitfield County, in and probably through Gordon and on into Bartow County is now assured, the road to be built at a cost of $75,000.

Instead of an appropriation of $10,000 from the Government, Congressman Gordon Lee secured $25,000, and this will be supplemented by a fund of $50,000 from the counties interested, each county to pay $2 for every dollar spent by the Government.

Cotton Men Make Millions in Grain

NEW YORK, June 26.—During the dullness in the stock market it is believed that the McFadden interests, which have always been prominent in cotton, have made several millions through a bull campaign in the grain markets.

Not long ago, according to gossip in the grain pit, the McFadden crowd were carrying 10,000,000 bushels of coarse grain and over 1,000,000 bushels of wheat. Since April 1 July corn has advanced to above 62 cents a bushel, July oats from 33 7-8 cents to 43 1-4, and July wheat from 83 7-8 to 93 5-8 cents.

WE ARE OFFERING A 20% REDUCTION FROM THE ORIGINAL PRICE OF ALL DIAMOND GOODS

We are making this reduction in order to convert our present stock into cash before occupying our new store at 49 Whitehall Street. Not so great an opportunity has ever been offered you to get diamonds so much below their actual value. You not only profit from this reduction, but through the fact that they have steadily advanced since the stock we are now offering was purchased.

It is to your interest, if you contemplate purchasing any time in the near future, to do so during this sale, as, at the price, they are bargains in the extreme.

Beginning with Saturday, June 28th, and continuing through July and August our store will close at one o'clock.

KEELY CO.

The Social World

The opening of the Capital City Country Club is being observed Thursday with an informal reception scheduled for the late afternoon and a dance for the evening. The club house is decorated gayly for the event, which marks the taking over of the Brookhaven Club by the new management. The entire club membership will be welcomed by officers of the club.

Many motor parties were arranged for the afternoon and evening. Tennis courts, golf links and the splendid lake drew many for the afternoon, who will remain over for the informal dance. Club members will be received by Mr. Robert F. Maddox, president of the club, with Mrs. Maddox, other officers and their wives and the board of managers.

D. A. R. Garden Party.

The extensive grounds surrounding the summer home of Governor and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton was the scene of a garden party Wednesday afternoon given by members of the Atlanta Chapter, D. A. R. Mrs. Slaton, formerly regent of the chapter and an active worker, tendered the use of her summer home for the affair. Several hundred guests attended.

Mrs. Slaton, with her mother, Mrs. William D. Grant; Mrs. John Grant, Mrs. James Osgood Wynn, regent of the chapter, and other officers, received on the veranda.

From a broad balcony, draped with flags, a musical program was given by Miss Adgate Ellis, Miss Mary Loveless, Mrs. Carthew-Yorstoun and Mr. Wilford Watters. Miss Ellis, who was trained by Oscar Sanger in New York, made her debut. Her singing was enthusiastically received.

Punch was served from tables on the lawn. Each was decorated with sweetpeas. Among the guests were a number of prominent D. A. R. members from others chapters. Besides the program of vocal music, there was music by an orchestra.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Willis Everett, Mrs. Woods White, Mrs. E. D. Kennedy, Mrs. Alfred Newell, Mrs. A. R. Ninninger, Mrs. Elijah A. Brown, Mrs. Charles B. Walker, Mrs. Arch Avery, Mrs. George M. Hope, Misses Frances Connally, Jeanie D. Harris, Katherine DuBose, Eloise Robinson, Passie May Ottley, Marjorie Brown, Sara Rawson, Harriet Calhoun, Margaret Northen, Gladys Dunson, Ida Winship, Emily Winship, Virginia Bowman, Elizabeth Morgan, Aimee Hunnicutt, Annie Sykes Rice and Clifford West, with a number of other young women active members of the chapter.

Patterson-Greene.

A wedding on Wednesday evening was that of Miss Annie Mays Patterson to Mr. Calvin Greene which took place at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Judge and Mrs. John R. Wilkinson, in Inman Park, Dr. Charles Daniel officiating.

The house was decorated with palms, ferns and daisies, a chain of Shasta daisies and feverfew forming the aisle through which the bridal party passed to the altar.

The flower girl was little Mary Sue Prim and Master Charles Moody was ring bearer. The chains were held by the bride's little sister, Julia Dent Patterson, of Texas, and her cousins, Flora Bell Reynolds, Miriam Reynolds Patterson and Margaret Wilkinson. The little attendants were all dressed in white lingerie frocks with blue ribbons.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white satin draped in princess lace, and her tulle veil was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms.

After the ceremony there followed a reception. The bride's table was decorated with a mound of daisies and the wedding cake and other details were in white and yellow.

Mrs. Wilkinson received her guests wearing white embroidered crepe de chine. Mrs. Patterson, the bride's mother, wore white chiffon and satin, and Mrs. A. H. Green, the mother of the bridegroom, wore gray chiffon draped in heliotrope chiffon and lace.

Punch was served on the porch by Misses Anna Mary Fuller, Elizabeth Wood, of Macon; Winnie Davis, Isabel Davis, Susan Stephens and Alice May Mackey.

After a bridal trip East Mr. and Mrs. Greene will be at home with the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Green.

Keese-Cole.

Miss Harriet Cole and Mr. Rogers Keese were married Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. D. H. Cole in Ansley Park. While only a limited number of guests were present, the wedding was of much social interest.

A well shaped canopy of smilax, fringed with valley lilies, starred with tiny electric lights and flanked on either side by cathedral candelabra, formed an effective setting for the ceremony. Vases of Easter lilies were interspersed with greenery, which formed a background. The mantel was banked with ferns and Easter lilies. Smilax formed mural decorations throughout the house.

Little Miss Elizabeth Cole, as maid of honor, wore a dainty frock of white lace and lingerie, with pink roses in a lace paper holder. Miss Sophie Daves and Atwood Cole were ribbon bearers. Mr. Roy Dorsey was best man. The bride entered with her brother, Mr. James Howard Cole, who gave her away.

Rev. Dr. Yarborough, of New Jersey, who has officiated at weddings in the bride's family for three generations, performed the ceremony.

The bride wore white princess lace, made with the new three-tier skirt, falling over a long train of white satin. The corsage of satin was veiled in the same lace, the tulle veil being adjusted from a little cap of lace, wreathed with orange blossoms. Her flowers were lavender orchids and valley lilies.

At a reception and buffet lunch the bride's table was adorned with a large mound of Killarney roses and valley lilies, with pretty decorative details in pink and white and little white satin baskets of rice, tied with white ribbons. The buffet, serving table and mantel were banked with small palms and vases of Killarney roses. Punch was served on the porch. Miss Marie Pappenheimer presided over a bowl imbedded in a mound of Killarney roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Cole, the bride's mother, wore a toilet of white charmeuse satin with corsage of lace.

Mr. Keese and his bride left for a wedding journey East. On their return they will be at home with Mrs. Cole in Ansley Park.

Miss Stoney's Luncheon.

An events of Thursday was the luncheon given by Miss Josephine Stoney to Miss Louise Couper's guests, Misses Katherine Graves and LaGranve Cothran, of Rome.

Great quantities of daisies made into a mound graced the center of the luncheon table. The placecards were hand-painted in daisies and all the details where possible were carried out in white and yellow. Miss Stoney received her guests wearing a frock of white embroidered crepe with sash of lavender satin.

The party included Misses Cothran, Graves, Couper, Jane Tucker Fisher, of Columbia, S. C., who is visiting Mrs. Baxter Moore; Virginia Lipscomb, and her guest, Gladys Teague, of Augusta; Eula Jackson and Pattie McGehee.

Miss Vaughan Hostess.

Miss Marian Vaughan entertained at a bridge party Thursday afternoon at her home in Fourteenth Street. Prizes were hand-embroidered lingerie and a pin cushion.

Miss Vaughan wore white lace and blue ribbons. Her guests were Misses Adgate ElEllis, Theo Prioleau, Virginia Lipscomb and guest, Miss Gladys Teague, of Augusta; Eula Jackson, Josephine Mobley, Margaret Grant, Mamie Ansley, Mary Brown, Lucile Kuhrt, Dorothy Harman, Lyda Nash, Gladys Glover, Ferol Humphries, Estelle Ford, Jan Robinson, Katherine Wyly, Margaret Traylor, Lawson Hines, Alice Parks, Ellen O'Keefe, Jeannette Lowndes, Louise Broyles, Gladys Dunson, Mamie Kirkpatrick and Dorothy High.

Miss Connally's Bridge.

Miss Frances Connally entertained at bridge Thursday morning for Miss Martha Francis, whose wedding to Mr. Claude Douthit will take place Saturday evening.

Bridge was played on the west porch at the Piedmont Club. Prizes were silk hose and a vanity trinket.

Miss Connally wore a becoming model in black and white French crepe with a white Panama hat.

Guests were Misses Francis, Carolyn King, Eloise Oliver, Adeline Thomas, Mrs. John Chapman, Mrs. Joseph Eby, Mrs. Charles Shelton, Mrs. John Spalding, Mrs. William Schroder, Mrs. Henry Troutman and her guest, Miss Lillian Beattey, of Columbus, Ohio.

For Miss Lewis.

Mrs. W. N. Bennett gave a reception Thursday afternoon for her daughter, Miss Laurette Lewis, whose marriage to Mr. Charles Edgar Jones takes place July 17.

Mrs. Bennett wore a pink lingerie gown. Miss Lewis was in white satin and black lace.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Elijah Brown, Mrs. J. S. Griggs, Mrs. W. A. Niall, Mrs. George Shepherd, Mrs. Samuel Greene, Mrs. L. B. Mower, Mrs. E. H. Ginn, Mrs. Jere Taylor, and Miss Elizabeth Dozier.

Misses Clementine LeVert, Beatrice Tyler and Elizabeth Wilson served punch.

Mrs. Prade Hostess.

Mrs. Julian Prade entertained at bridge Thursday afternoon for her sister, Mrs. Charles Dowman, of Birmingham, who is here with her mother, Mrs. George Westmoreland.

The house was decorated with sweetpeas. Pink gladiolas graced the tea table. Prizes were a picture frame and slipper buckles. Guests included 24 young matrons.

Mrs. Prade wore white crepe and lace. Mrs. Dowman wore pink embroidered crepe.

For Miss Callie Hoke Smith.

Miss Callie Hoke Smith, of Washington, D. C., who is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Ronald Ransom, was the honor guest at an informal tea given Thursday afternoon by Miss Sara Rawson. The guests were entertained on the terrace of the Piedmont Driving Club, tea being served from a prettily appointed tea table. Miss Smith wore a French gown of navy blue crepe de chine, with a Leghorn hat.

Miss Powers Hostess.

Miss Mamie Powers entertained members of the Dramatic Club of Decatur Tuesday evening. The club is rehearsing for a play to be given early in July. At the last meeting Miss Mamie Kirkpatrick and Mr. Edward VanValkenberg rendered several vocal duets.

Mrs. Wimbish Hostess.

Mrs. W. A. Wimbish will entertain at an afternoon tea Saturday for her guest, Miss Stewart, of Montgomery; Mrs. Prioleau Ellis, of Springfield, Mass., and Miss Eloise Oliver, whose wedding to Mr. Frampton Ellis will take place June 30.

Sawtell-Lyon.

Mrs. Annie S. Johnson announces the marriage of her sister, Miss Ellen R. Sawtell, to Mr. Roland C. Lyon. The ceremony was performed at her home by the Rev. Mr. Hill, pastor of the West End Presbyterian Church, Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock.

For Miss Webber.

Miss May Baldwin gave a box party at the Forsyth Wednesday for Miss Celeste Webber, of Spartanburg. Other guests were Misses Winnie Ison, Mildred Parks, Sallie McKinnon, Mary Griffith, Ethel Hudson and Mary Hall.

Shower Day for Hospital.

Saturday is the annual shower day for Wesley Memorial Hospital. Persons interested in the comfort of sick people have been requested to give generously toward the children's and charity wards.

At the Driving Club.

Reservations are being made for the informal dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club Saturday evening, and a number of parties are being formed.

For Miss Crouch.

In honor of Miss Alice Crouch, of Cartersville, guest of Miss Mona Price, Miss Marian Buck entertained at a matinee party at the Forsyth Thursday afternoon.

The funeral of Carl Adolph Richard Anschutz will be held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Barclay & Brandon chapel. Interment at Westview.

The funeral of Charles R. Russell will be held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock from St. Luke's Church. The burial will be private, at Oakland.

SHERLOCK ROLE GETS OFFICER $50

Wise Policeman Plays Part of Drunken Farmer to Capture Fugitive.

The false-whiskered sleuth of fiction has nothing on Policeman G. M. Gorman, the hero Thursday of a real Sherlock Holmes adventure.

Gorman read a notice on the police records that a reward of $50 had been offered for the capture of Paul Mitchell, a negro, who escaped from the convict camps at Rome. He determined to bag the fugitive and the fifty. Knowing it would never do to make the hunt in his police uniform, he didn't want to risk even his regular citizen togs.

There was one reasonable thing to do, and he did it—he disguised himself. And it was a disguise that just fit in with the section he visited—Decatur Street. He "made up" as a drunken farmer, and did it so cleverly that even his best friends didn't know him. Everything about the disguise was real except the "drunk." This was faked, of course. The officer staggered through the crowds of negroes in Decatur Street, watching and listening. In front of a negro saloon he discovered his man. The negro soon was in a police station cell and Gorman was in $50.

Mary Tribble To Be Buried in Westview

Mary Tribble, the 7-year-old schoolgirl who died Wednesday afternoon from the effects of poisoning, will be buried in Westview following funeral services to be held at the East Side Baptist Tabernacle Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

The little girl was taken ill several weeks ago. It was found that she had eaten a quantity of school crayon.

She was the daughter of M. C. Tribble, 7 Porter Street, East Atlanta.

Merz's Relief Driver Killed on Speedway

INDIANAPOLIS, June 26.—Harry Martin, relief driver for Charley Mertz in the 1913 500-mile race, was killed and Frank Agan, mechanician, was badly injured when a Stutz racing car they were testing was ditched on the speedway track.

The car skidded and overturned on the back stretch when going at a speed estimated at 78 miles an hour.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

IT was so windy yesterday that Pa & me dident go fishing. We was going to a littel laik ware thare is a lot of pickerel, but the guide sed it wouddent be any use to go, so Pa sed in the morning, Well, Bobbie, let us talk a stroll about the village & watch the men at thare work. Thare is a grate deel of pleshur in watching sumbody else work, Pa sed, espeshully these simpel craftsmen up here in the woods. I dare say I may be abel to give them a few pointers, Pa sed. The human brain is a wunderful thing, Bobbie. Onst it is highly developed, like mine, it can direct operashuns of all sorts, though its owner nevver had any acktual expeerience in the deetails of the operashuns. Now, for instance, thare is yung Frank Keener planting potatoes. Let us stroll oaver thare & see if he is doing it rite.

Good morning, Mister Keener, sed Pa wen we got thare. I see you are planting potatoes. Thare is nothing like a good crop of potatoes for the Winter's store, Pa sed.

Kidding Pa.

But I aint planting potatoes, sed Mister Keener. I planted these potatoes a month ago. I dident have anything else to do this morning, so I thought I wud stroll around among the potatoes & have a chat with the potato bugs. Thay are friendly littel things, potato bugs, he sed. Speek to one of them & watch it wag its tail.

I cud see that Frank was kidding Pa, but Pa's brain wasent highly developed that way & he cuddent see it. All he sed was Well, I hoap you have success with yure garden, & we walked along.

Thare was a carpenter bilding a house acrost the street. His naim was Mister Bill Thomson. Good-morning, Mister Thomson, sed Pa. I see you are bilding a pritty littel bungalow. I wud like to have one sumthing like it, Pa sed, & maybe if you ain't too busy next month I will go ahed with it. I always thought this wud be a pritty town in wich to have a bungalow in.

This ain't a bungalow I am bilding sed Mister Thomson. This is a ice house. It looks as much like a bungalow as you look like the King of England. Please move along now & doant bother me. It rained all day yesterday so I cuddent work & now that it is nice & sunny I doant want every yap that cums along to stop & ask foolish questuns of me.

Carpenters are generally rude, cross grained persons, sed Pa to me after we had moved along. I cud see that Pa was pritty mad but I dident feel a bit sorry for him, he had no bizness bothering a man who was working.

Jest then we passed a livery stabel —thare was the owner with two littel jackasses.

A Fine Team.

Good morning, Mister Maus, sed Pa. Can I help you to hitch up yure fine team of mules? I used to hitch up mules wen I was in the army, sed Pa. I am vary fond of mules & thay like me, too.

But these isent mules, thay is chackasses, sed Mister Maus, und I wasent going to hitch them up, also. I chust wanted them to make a littel exercise alreddy. Und if I was going to hitch them up anyway, sed Mister Maus, why doant you mind yure own bizness beesides, yet?

Every man that Pa talked to treeted him jest the saim, but it dident faze Pa. Wen we went hoam to dinner he toald Ma that he had been around having a friendly chat with the villagers. Those simpel folks wud lay down thare lives for me, Pa sed.

You doant say, sed Ma. Then thay must be vary simpel folks.

FAVORITE RECIPES OF FAVORITE STAGE STARS

Cherry Roly Poly, by Katherine De Rohne

THE market this season is displaying some of the most delicious products of the tree whose family was forever made famous by the truthfulness of one G. Washington. "Cherry Roly Poly" is supplied by a pastmistress of the art, Katherine De Rohne, one of the stars of the Rustic Theatre at the Palisades Amusement Park.

Take one pound of suet and chop fine, being careful to pick out all the skin and strings.

Add:—

Three cups of flour,
one teaspoonful of salt,
one teaspoonful of baking powder,
and just enough water to make it adhere and roll out smoothly.

Roll out to the thickness of about a quarter of an inch. Spread a quart of pitted cherries, sugared, on the thin layer of dough and roll them up. Place in a cheesecloth bag and boil for three hours.

Sauce: Butter the size of an egg, melted but not browned. To this add a teaspoonful of flour and a cup and one-half of water, three-quarters of a cup of sugar and a gill of New England rum. Stir together and boil to the consistency of thick cream.

WITHIN THE LAW

A Powerful Story of Adventure, Intrigue and Love

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Take the chairs out of the office, Dan," he directed, "except mine and one other—that one!" He indicated a chair standing a little way from one end of his desk. "Now, have all the shades up." He chuckled as he added: "That Turner woman saved you the trouble with one."

As the doorman went out after having fulfilled these commands, the Inspector lighted a cigar which he had retained still in his mouth, and then seated himself in the chair that was set partly facing the windowe opening on the corridor. He smiled with anticipatory triumph as he made sure that the whole length of the corridor with the barred doors of the cells was plainly visible to one sitting thus. With a final glance about to make certain that all was in readiness, he returned to his chair, and, when the door opened, he was, to all appearances, busily engaged in writing.

Garson's Face Showed Fear.

"Here's Garson, Chief," Cassidy announced.

"Hello, Joe!" Burke exclaimed, with a seeming of careless friendliness, as the detective went out, and Garson stood motionless just within the door. "Sit down, a minute, won't you?" the Inspector continued, affably. He did not look up from his writing as he spoke.

Garson's usually strong face was showing weak with fear. His chin which was commonly very firm, moved a little from uneasy twitchings of his lips. His clear eyes were slightly clouded to a look of apprehension, as they roved the room furtively. He made no answer to the Inspector's greeting for a few moments, but remained standing without movement, poised alertly as if sensing some concealed peril. Finally, however, his anxiety found expression in words. His tone was pregnant with alarm, though he strove to make it merely complaining.

"Say, what am I arrested for?" he protested. "I ain't done anything."

Even now, Burke did not look up, and his pen continued to hurry over the paper.

"Who told you you were arrested?" he remarked, cheerfully, in his blandest voice.

Garson uttered an ejaculation of disgust.

"I don't have to be told," he retorted, huffily. "I'm no college president, but when a cop grabs me and brings me down here, I've got sense enough to know I'm pinched."

The Inspector did not interrupt his work, but answered with the utmost good nature.

"Is that what they did to you, Joe? I'll have to speak to Cassidy about that. Now, just you sit down, Joe, won't you? I want to have a little talk with you. I'll be through here in a second." He went on with the writing.

Garson moved forward slightly, to the single chair near the end of the desk, and there seated himself mechanically. His face thus was turned toward the windows that gave on the corridor, and his eyes grew yet more clouded as they rested on the grim doors of the cells. He writhed in his chair, and his gaze jumped from the cells to the impassive figure of the man at the desk. Now, the forger's nervousness increased momently—it swept beyond his control. Of a sudden, he sprang up, and stepped close to the inspector.

The Door Clanged To.

"Say," he said in a husky voice, "I'd like—I'd like to have a lawyer."

"What's the matter with you, Joe?" the inspector returned, always with that imperturbable air, and without raising his head from the work that so engrossed his attention. "You know, you're not arrested, Joe. Maybe, you never will be. Now, for the love of Mike, keep still, and let me finish this letter."

Slowly, very hesitatingly, Garson went back to the chair, and sank down on it in a limp attitude of dejection wholly unlike his customary posture of strength. Again, his fear fascinated eyes went to the row of cells that stood silently menacing on the other side of the corridor beyond the windows. His face was tinged with gray. A physical sickness was creeping stealthily on him, as his thoughts held insistently to the catastrophe that threatened. His intelligence was too keen to permit a belief that Burke's manner of almost fulsome kindliness hid nothing ominous—ominous with a hint of death for him in return for the death he had wrought.

Then terror crystallized. His eyes were caught by a figure, the figure of Cassidy, advancing there in the corridor. And with the detective went a man whose gait was slinking, craven. A cell door swung open, the prisoner stepped within, the door clanged to, the bolts shot into their sockets noisily.

Garson sat huddled, stricken for he had recognized the victim thrust into the cell before his eyes. . . . It was Dacey, one of his own cronies in crime—Dacey, who, the night before had seen him kill Eddie Griggs. There was something concretely sinister to Garson in this fact of Dacey's presence there in the cell.

Of a sudden, the forger cried out raucously:

"Say, Inspector, if you've got anything on me, I—I would——" The cry dropped into unintelligible mumblings.

Burke retained his manner of serene indifference to the other's agitation. Still his pen hurried over the paper; and he did not trouble to look up as he expostulated, half-banteringly.

"Now, now! what's the matter with you, Joe? I told you that I wanted to ask you a few questions. That's all."

Garson leaped to his feet again resolutely, then faltered, and ultimately fell back into the chair with a groan, as the Inspector went on speaking.

"Now, Joe, sit down, and keep still, I tell you, and let me get through with this job. It won't take me more than a minute more."

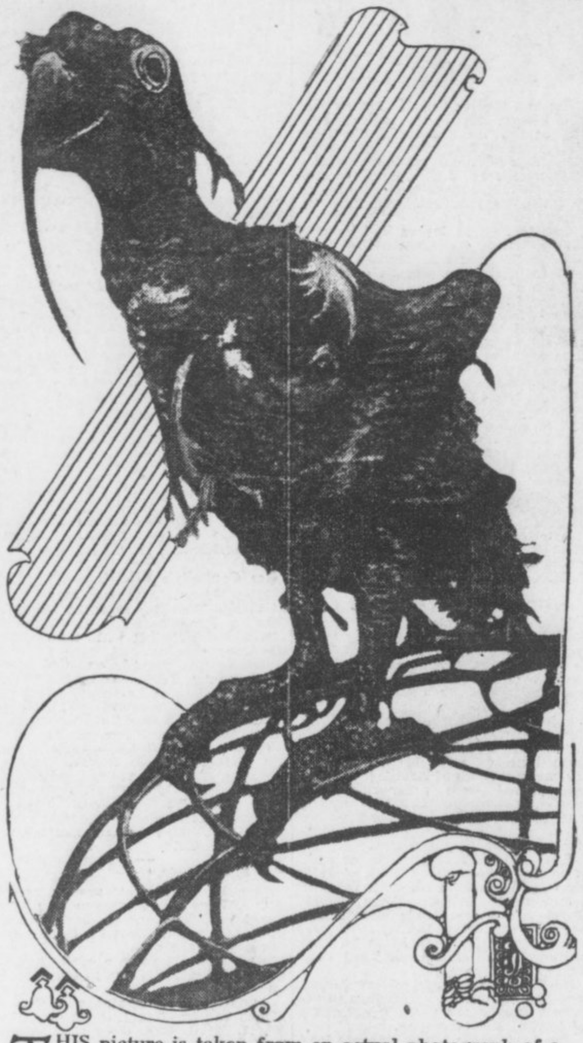
But after a moment Garson's emotion forced him to another appeal.

"Say, Inspector——" he began.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SOME CHICKEN!

A Parrot 116 Years Old and Not Yet in Cold Storage



THIS picture is taken from an actual photograph of a parrot that is one hundred and sixteen years old, and still has a lively croak. It belongs to an English family, but spent but fifty years of its feathered life in that country. Its other sixty-six years saw it in Brazil, its original home. Although it is almost "sans everything" Polly can sing in quite a lively manner, and is always cheerful. Perhaps therein lies its secret of longevity. Who knows?

Things Worth Remembering

The possibility of using the Cinema for the identification of criminals is being seriously considered by the New York Police Commissioner. It is suggested that five feet of film, costing 70 cents, will suffice to record the peculiarities of dress and carriage of any person whom it is desired to keep under observation. With photographs, finger prints, motion pictures, and Bertillon measurements a man who has been convicted will have his hands full in making his "get-away" afterward.

Stretching across Western Australia is a rabbit-proof fence, said to be the longest in the world. It extends for a distance of 1,200 miles, without a break, except for gates. It begins in the temperate regions and ends in the tropics, and sometimes for nearly 100 miles it never passes a human habitation.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

YOUR FRIEND IS RIGHT.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 and I have been keeping company with a young man four years. He is 23. I love him more than tongue can tell. I have loved him since the day I first met him. He doesn't show any love for me. Could you tell me if there is any love on his part? I show my love for him, and my friend tells me that is the reason he doesn't show his.

IRENE WATSON.

You are foolish to let him see you care so much for him. Naturally, a man makes no effort to win a girl who lets him see that effort is unnecessary. You are only 17. Give up this man, and the next time you fall in love make an effort to conceal it.

WITHIN HER RIGHTS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with a young lady, whom I have never had the pleasure of seeing in her own home, as her mother is opposed to me. I have known her now for more than 18 months. She is 18. I am 21. She is willing to marry me, only she is afraid of her folks, inasmuch as her mother threatens to have me arrested if I marry her daughter. I have tried every way to win her mother over, but so far I have failed. I can't meet her, as her mother watches her like a cat watches a mouse.

D. D. W.

The mother is wholly within her rights, and as the first and last desire of every mother's heart is for her daughter's happiness, consideration is due her wishes.

If all were favorable, you should not marry, being only 21. Make the most of the assurance that you love each other, and wait a year or two.

Had Every Time.

Smith was a constant worry to his friends. They never knew when to and when not to treat him seriously, since, as he frankly admitted, he delighted in pulling other people's legs.

One day he and Brown met casually in the street, and stopped, as friends often do, to gossip for a while.

"Big blaze—that fire at the factory in Johnson Street last night, wasn't it?" asked Brown.

"Yes," replied Smith, "I went down to have a look at it. And, my word, there were several mighty narrow escapes there, too!"

"Escapes!" cried Brown, excitedly. "But the morning paper said that there was no one in the building."

Smith nodded.

"Oh," he said, "the firemen brought the escapes down with them. So-long, old chap!"

A BACHELOR'S DIARY .:. He Can't Forget That Kiss

By MAX.

JUNE 1.—It is a week since Sally Spencer kissed me, and though I have repeatedly since made occasion to be with her alone she has never repeated the offense.

I have sent for her to come over on the shallowest of excuses. If Manette ate too much or too little, I have feigned an alarm that could only be quieted by having Mrs. Spencer take a look at her, and on such occasions I invariably sent Richards and Sarah Ray out of the room. But it has been to no avail.

I make the confession in no great humility. I am a man and, try as hard as I may, I can not rise above being a man. I make no pretense of being an angel. That claim I leave to the women who tempt us.

I find myself looking at another man's wife with eyes that are not the eyes of the soul. There was a time when it would have been my first impulse to be Sally Spencer's disinterested friend; I will always be that in the future, but I will have to fight myself first.

Only Contempt.

June 2—I have said little about the widow, Diary, but I hope you do not believe it is because I condone her sins, or feel any emotion for her but unmitigated contempt.

She is the vilest of creatures for no other description fits a woman who makes it her sport to undermine some other woman's happiness.

June 3—Life has been compared with a feast, and if there is anything in the comparison, just at present the whole world is partaking of a course that is too highly seasoned to be healthful. That we will all suffer moral indigestion for refusing to pass it by I do not doubt.

We ate swinging to a most unhealthy extreme, making public and discussing and devouring topics that are the climax of vulgarity, and we call ourselves progressive because we do it.

The old-fashioned standard of truth to one's self and one's vows seems to be passing away. When one transgresses these days, it is not called a transgression, but disguised under the phrase "Daring to live one's own life."

And when it is said that a woman especially "dares to live her own life," it means that she has dared to violate every civil and moral law. Mrs. Brown has always approved of any woman who dared to live her own life, and has told me many times that it was what she had always done, and always intended to do.

I can see now that it was the modern way of expressing a determination to be governed by no standard or convention. What will become of the world when all women "dare to live their own lives," no man may conjecture.

She buried her first husband, which can not be charged against her. In these days when men are put at the lowest valuation a measure of applause is given any woman who outlives her husband. Should she outlive a dozen, it is a notable deed, but if a man buries as many as two wives Rumor begins to whisper that he killed them by abuse and neglect.

The widow's second husband divorced her because of her infatuation with another woman's husband. She broke up that man's home, and cast him aside when, for pecuniary reasons, her love grew cold.

A Dark Past.

She had, as she expresses it, "dared to live her own life," which means that she refused to let the impulses of her soul be fettered by the shackles of convention. I could express it in plainer language, but plain language, according to Mrs. Brown and her kind, is a mark of a vulgar mind.

I have heard that her second husband's heart was broken because of the scandal, and that it killed him. Of course I do not credit the statement. The men do not die of broken hearts. They love a woman with every bit of their anatomy, but their hearts. This is true, for I have heard soap-box oratorical representatives of the Adorable Sex say so.

June 4—Jack has been gone three days. He writes dutifully and says he will be home soon. He is the sort of a man who will go away with another woman and square it with his conscience by writing faithfully to his wife while away. I have no doubt he took her photograph with him. I always mistrust the man who takes his wife's photograph wherever he goes. So often he uses this mark of devotion as a salve to his conscience for leaving her at home.

June 5—"I think," said Sally, when I called this morning to learn the latest news of her husband, "that my attitude in this matter is a great disapointment to Mrs. Brown. She thought I would rush after Jack, create a scene and a scandal, and that the publicity would wreck my home and give Jack a divorce. I know Jack better than she does. The fact that I give him every opportunity to steal robs the theft of its zest. He is disgusted with her and with himself, and would return any moment I sent for him."

I remembered the kiss. "Don't send for him, Sally. He isn't worth your forgiveness."

Must Take Chances.

"He is as good as any man," she retorted. "He is as good as you are, Max, and, what's more, you know it."

"I hadn't thought of that. Perhaps after all he is better. He had sinned in his acts, and I have sinned in my thoughts. Still, if every man who sins in his thoughts is to be condemned, who among us will escape?

"The woman who marries," she resumed, "must accept all chances of what I am undergoing. There are always other women lurking around to tempt husbands to stray, and they seem endowed with every fascination that would appeal to a man as weak as Jack."

The admission of his weakness seemed disloyal to her, even though he has repeatedly proved it, for she continued rapidly: "Not that he is any weaker than you, Max. I don't want you to think for a moment that you are any better than he. I don't want to give the impression that I believe there is a man living who is better than my husband."

I had the feeling that I had been doubted and attacked when my actions, at least, were innocent, and I resented it.

She had risen as if to suggest it was time I was going. "Sit down," I said, in some temper. "You are hitting all men over my shoulders, taking into no account that it is your own sex that is primarily to blame. Now don't interrupt me"— she had begun to say something about Mrs. Brown—"It is not the bad woman alone who is to blame. It is the good woman, as well; the woman who tempts in her innocence, or ignorance. There's yourself, for instance!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Dainty Lois Meredith Talks on Beneficial Athletics

Lois Meredith's Girlish Beauty.

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

DO you know any little girls? Of course there are quite a few children in the world, and I know numberless young—very young—ladies, but I have just met a very sweet little girl and I am going to introduce her to you. Her name is Lois Meredith; she is eighteen, and is making a great success of the part of Helen Morris in "Within the Law." Off the stage she does not play the part of a sophisticated young lady—or a "Broadway favorite"—but fairly dawns on you in the absolute simplicity of a white middy-blouse, black velvet tam-o'-shanter and the unstudied coiffure effect of a "head sunning over with curls."

Of course the very first question I asked Miss Lois was one anent clothes and her ideal costume.

"I like my middy blouses pretty well," said she, "so well, in fact, that I would sacrifice all the sweeties in the world rather than eat goodies and get too fat to wear sailor-suits. But my ideal costume is Greek drapery. I do love the classical lines of drapery that leave you free and untrammelled, so you can breath, and move naturally, and look natural, too. I'd like to wear layer after layer of chiffon and sandals and give my whole body a chance to breathe. Think how wrapped up and shut away from the health-giving fresh air our poor bodies are. Well, I wear as few layers as I can—dispensing with every unnecessary thing I can—corsets for instance—and I wear white, so I'll feel cool and clean, and I try to give my body a chance to sway and to move freely, so I will feel all through me how good it is to be alive.

No Jewels.

"I don't believe in jewels, either," went on this sensible girl. "If you are pretty, jewels sort of attract attention to themselves and away from you. And if you are not pretty, anyway, showy jewelry makes you conspicuous, and then people notice how unattractive you are."

Dainty little Lois Meredith can afford to believe in "beauty unadorned," but every eighteen-year-old girl and the older sister of twenty ought to ponder the bit of philosophy: "Plain women are always adding some little fancy touches that make you notice how very plain they are!"

"Will you tell me how you spend your day?" I asked. "You must carry out your theory of simplicity in living as well as clothes."

"My theory of living," answered Miss Meredith, "is WORK. For everything worth getting in this world you must work, work, work. To keep well and strong, to look attractive, and to get ahead in the profession you have chosen, you must keep working and striving. In my chosen calling I find that I have to keep developing my brain, so I can do better and better things all the time. I am studying French and music in the interests of my brain.

Plenty of Sleep.

"Then I take care of my body, too. Of course I have to have plenty of sleep, because I am still growing. I have never in all my life been to a restaurant after the theater; most girls would think that an awful sacrifice, wouldn't they? Well then, I get up at about 9, and have a glass of hot water, which is not a bit hard to take when you keep at it, and then for about half an hour I exercise; stretching motions, aesthetic dancing movements and bending over, with my knees held taut and body poised. Sometimes I touch my finger tips to the floor, sometimes I wrap my arms around my legs and see how far down I can bring my head.

"I have one little pet exercise: A very great artist said that I had the most beautiful hand in America! Now I'd like to believe him—even if that would be conceited—but anyway I take care of my hands and try to keep them soft and tapering. I go through an exercise as if I were wringing them and stroking them. I work at my hands as if I were putting on and taking off a new pair of gloves very carefully. I truly can recommend this exercise, for just think what it made Mr. Gibson say to me.

"Would you like to hear about my favorite part?" went on the girl ingenuously. Perhaps it would make a good conclusion to your interview. My favorite part was Modesty in 'Everywoman.' I thought it a compliment to be asked to play that part. I loved doing it—and I felt that the only way to play Modesty was to be modest. That applies to girls everywhere doesn't it?

ty is always the sweetest part—and it has to be true, or people will know."

And I think that is a very good conclusion for the interview—Modesty and the sweet simplicity and charm that follow in her wake are the best parts for all girls—only they must not be parts. Modesty must be true if you want to be a truly charming girl.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite, and was so nervous I could not sleep; then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work, and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. Hayward Sowers, Cary, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Up-to-Date Jokes

Mr. Winston Churchill has often effectively silenced offensive interrupters. It is related that on one occasion, when addressing a large meeting in the North, he was frequently disturbed by a man who persisted in shouting "Liar! Liar!" every few minutes.

Winston bore with him for some time, but eventually broke off his speech to remark, in gentlest accents:

"If the gentleman at the back of the hall who is so anxious that the audience should know his name will write it down on a slip of paper and hand it to the chairman instead of bawling it at the top of his voice, he will save himself a lot of trouble."

No more was heard of the interrupter for the rest of the meeting.

"That house I have rented from you," said the dissatisfied tenant, "is horribly draughty. When I was sitting in the middle of the room my hair blew all over my face. Can't you do something?"

"Don't you think, sir," replied the house agent, suavely, "it would be easier and cheaper for you to get your hair cut?"

A Paris cabman found a splendid turbot that had been left in his cab. He went at once to the Commissary of Police.

"Very good, my friend," said the latter. "Come back again in a year and a day, and if, in the meantime, the turbot has not been claimed, it shall be yours."

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

SYNOPSIS

Gordon Kelly, a mountain boy of Georgia, goes to Atlanta. He becomes the sensation of the baseball world through his marvelous playing, although he said that he had never played a game before arriving in Atlanta. He is bought by the Boston American League Club for $50,000. Kelly incurs the enmity of Forrest Caln, a wealthy ne'er-do-well, at the same time winning the friendship and love of Mildred Deery, daughter of an Atlanta banker. Kelly is hurt in a game and Mildred runs to his assistance. He recovers, leaves the hospital and mysteriously disappears. He is not heard from for months. Mildred admits to herself that she loves Kelly. Her father dislikes the publicity given Mildred's assistance to Kelly on the baseball field. He gets Mildred to agree to go to the mountains. Caln follows Mildred and calls upon her. While Mildred is fishing she suddenly comes upon Gordon Kelly. In the meeting each learns of the other's love. Kelly is sought everywhere by the press. Caln proposes to Mildred and is refused. Kelly meets Caln and the latter tries to shoot Kelly. Elmer saves Kelly's life. Mildred visits Gordon Kelly's home in the mountains and is astonished at the evidences of luxury and refinement she finds there. Gordon is caught in a storm and is made prisoner by four strange men. He is forced to write a letter to Mildred. In it he tries to convey a hint of his whereabouts.

Now go on with the story.

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Copyright, 1913, by International News Service.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Did you git a letter fum Mr. Bud Ah mean Mr. Gordon, Mis' Mildred?" asked the colored boy, after the car was fairly in motion.

"Yes, Steve, I'll read it to you; and I'm going back with you in order to tell Mr. Gray, the superintendent, and Mrs. Ward, the housekeeper, about it."

Arriving at the huge granite edifice, Mildred learned that Gray had rounded up every available man on the place and had started off with them on a systematic hunt for the missing man. Asking Steve to tell Mrs. Ward that she was there, Mildred was soon joined by the housekeeper, to whom she imparted the news and then sat down to breakfast with her while Steve ran off to bring back the searching party.

When Gray returned Mildred read the letter she had received to him. If she had allowed him to read it, the level headed superintendent might have discovered the simple cryptogram and headed a party that would have rescued Gordon in jig time, but Mildred clung to the letter as though it was the most precious thing in the world and would not allow it to go out of her hand.

It was decided that, as Gordon had explicitly told them not to search for him at present, it might be fatal to the captive if they disobeyed orders, so matters were allowed to rest as they were, pending the receipt of further news from Gordon.

Gray Is Cautious.

"Somebody has kidnaped him," declared Gray, "and they expect to make a fortune. If that is the case we will be hearing from them mighty quick, and when we do we will make our plans accordingly."

Gray was a big, hearty man, full of action but cautious when caution was required. "In the meantime, Miss Deery," he said, "I would advise you not to worry. But just as soon as you hear from Mr. Gordan again, please let me know at once. I will have the telephone line fixed right away."

Mildred was driven back to the bungalow by Steve. She was happy to think he was safe and well, yet troubled over the vagueness and uncertainty of things. In the course of a few days another letter came and she promptly informed Gray of its contents. It was apparently written in a cheerful spirit, but again admonished them not to search for him.

"That was put in there by orders of the men who are holding him," was Gray's comment when Mildred read the letter to him. "I wish he could slip in some hint of where he is hidden and I'd have him back here in half a day. They must be guarding him closely, Miss Deery, for I know him well enough to know that he would break away if they gave him the slightest opening."

The days went by. Mildred wrote a letter to Gordon and placed it under a stone at the doorsill, but when his next letter was delivered in the dead of night, the messenger did not take away Mildred's letter. In time Farnsworth came to the bungalow, as had already been told, but Mildred did not inform him of all she knew in connection with Gordon's disappearance. She was afraid that the publicity might work some harm to the man she loved. The newspaper men went away and more letters were received. They were all written in the same spirit. Weeks passed. Mildred's mother returned to Atlanta, urging Mildred to return with her, but the girl refused to leave the mountain region. She had not yet informed her mother of her great secret, but her mother had half guessed it.

One day when Mildred felt that she could stand the suspense no longer and was on the point of yielding to Gray's entreaties to start a business-like hunt for the captive, she discovered the simple cryptogram.

"What a little fool I've been," she cried. She had, of course, noticed that Gordon had begun every line of his letters with a capital letter, but the reason for it had entirely escaped her. Now, of course, it was as plan as day and she almost cried at her own stupidity in not solving the riddle long ago. She had saved every letter and was reading them over for the several hundredth time when she made the discovery. She procured pencil and paper and wrote down the instructions.

"Five miles northwest my home," the first letter said, reading down the lines of capital letters. "Three miles due west road meets creek," read the second letter. "Sharp rise hundred yards then down," said third. "Cabin midst copse few trees; four captors," said the fourth. There were two more letters contining further hints.

Mildred called Elmer and told him to bring the runabout, and together they went to the mansion to find Gray. They were told that he had gone to Atlanta on business, but would return next day. On the way home Elmer said:

"Let's not wait for Mr. Gray. Let's find Gordon and rescue him ourselves."

"You foolish boy," replied Mildred. "They would capture us, too, and then what a fine pickle we would be in. We must wait for Mr. Gray and he will take plenty of men with him."

Elmer Would Fight.

"Oh shucks, Mildred," exclaimed the lad. "Gee whiz, I could take your rifle and you could take your revolver and we could sneak up and catch them off their guard and rescue the prisoner. Come on, Mildred; let's do it."

"I'm afraid your spirit is better than your judgment, Elmer," said Mildred with a sigh. "Goodness knows I hate to wait until Mr. Gray gets back, but I don't see what else we can do."

Elmer kept teasing all the way home and when they arrived he brought forth his father's maps of the region and they spent a long time pouring over them trying to figure out the exact spot where they thought Gordon was held a captive.

"Be game, Mildred," said Elmer, returning to the attack. "Only four men are there. We can get the drop on them easy."

"Stop talking nonsense, child, or you'll make me cross with you," cried Mildred. "If your father was here I would willingly let him get a force at the mansion and start out without waiting for Mr. Gray." Shephard was in Chattanooga and would not return for two days. "Run away now, Elmer and leave me alone, I want to think this all out by myself," added Mildred.

It was only Gordon's cheerful letters that had prevented Mildred from going distracted. The situation had been a most peculiar one. In every one of the letters Gordon had told her not to begin a search for him and she had been afraid to ignore his request. Gray had insisted more than once on taking the matter in his own hands, but Mildred had flatly move.

"He is writing these letters to me, Mr. Gray, and they clearly say not to seek him," she told him the last time they had talked the matter over.

"That is because he was forced to write it, otherwise they wouldn't have delivered the letters," replied the superintendent. "If he doesn't turn up soon, Miss Deery, I'm going to take matters on my own hands."

"To Be His Wife."

"Please don't, Mr. Gray," she pleaded. "I am sure something dreadful would happen if you failed, and we would never see him again."

"That's all right, Miss Deery. But in a way I am responsible for his safety. With you it is different."

"Yes, it is different, Mr. Gray," she replied quietly. "I have promised to be his wife."

Gray's eyes opened wide at this piece of information, and Mildred added: "Please say nothing about it. I only tell you so that you can understand how vitally interested I am in his welfare."

Sitting alone on the porch the day she discovered the hidden meaning in Gordon's letters, Mildred went over the whole situation in her mind. Gray was absent. Shephard was absent. Gordon had long expected help. She knew not where to turn. At last she arose from her chair and going to the telephone, called up the mansion and said:

CHAPTER XLI.

WITH the exception of the news of Gordon Kelly that Farnsworth, the newspaper man, had secured from Mildred Deery at her bungalow, and which was published in his paper, the great baseball public had heard nothing of the $50,000 player since the day late in May when he left the hospital in Atlanta and disappeared. The public knew nothing of his palatial home in the Georgia mountains, it knew nothing of his vast wealth, of his peculiar life, of the tragedy of his father's death. It knew nothing of the grand romance of Gordon and Mildred, or of Gordon's conflicts with Forrest Caln, or of his capture and detention by the mountaineers. All the public knew was that Gordon Kelly, the most widely advertised ball player in the world, the man the Red Sex had paid the stupendous sum of $50,000 for, the player every "fan" on the American League circuit was most anxious to see perform, had mysteriously disappeared.

The name of Gordon Kelly had become a byword wherever baseball was played or discussed. Every time a player on any team in any city or town made a home run he was a "Gordon Kelly." Ball players in the big leagues, college ball players, schoolboy players, and even the urchins playing ball in the back lots were always talking about the great player. This continued all summer long all over the country, so that despite the fact that the public did not know what had become of Gordon Kelly, his name was constantly on everybody's lips and he was constantly referred to in the newspapers.

Gave Up Hope.

The Red Sox management practically gave up hope of ever seeing him again before the season was half over but every pay day a check was drawn to his order and mailed to his last known address in Atlanta. The first half of the season was fraught with injuries to the Red Sox players, and if ever they needed Gordon Kelly it was in the first few months of the championship season. But by the first of July the world's champions got going in their proper stride and won game after game in the same impressive manner that had enabled them to mow down their opponents in the season of 1912 and eventually capture the American League pennant and later the highest honors in baseball—the world's championship.

The Red Sox pitchers—the backbone of a team—began "going good" about the first of July. The heavy hitters took confidence and found their "batting eyes" again. The loyal supporters of the team took heart and flocked to Fenway Park to encourage their favorites and "squeeze" hard for victory.

That rabid Boston organization known far and wide as the "Royal Rooters," forgot the fancied grievances it had against the club's management that dated back to the last world's series, and marched to the baseball grounds en masse and with a brass band playing "Tessie." The old-time Boston spirit—the spirit that made Boston the greatest baseball city in the world—returned as the Red Sox forged triumphantly toward the top of the baseball column.

Red Sox Climb.

By the first of August the Red Sox were in third place, after floundering around among the tail-enders for half the saeson. By the first of September the world's champions were in second place, only the Athletics, of Philadelphia, standing between them and the leadership in the American League pennant fight. The men were playing with a dash and vigor that surpassed their 1912 form. Tris Speaker, the great center fielder, led the league in batting and every day he was getting his two or more safe hits, most of them solid drives for two or three bases or home runs. Duffy Lewis, the left fielder, was close up in his stockwork, and his fielding and throwing were better than ever. Harry Hooper in right field was having his best year, batting better than he had ever done before and running the bases like a deer. Heine Wagner, captain of the team and the man most depended upon for defensive work, played with a steadiness that was the marvel of the baseball world. Larry Gardner, the third baseman, fully recovered from the injury to his ankle, began playing again early in June, and from that time on he surpassed himself at bat and in the field. Steve Yerkes was as steady as a rock at second base, and his batting was timely. He seldom failed to deliver when called upon. Clyde Engle, who had to play first base nearly all the year on account of the injury to Manager Stahl's foot, played the bag in a manner that made the other first basemen jealous. The catchers—Carrigan and Cady—were like stonewalls behind the bat, and the pitchers—Wood, Bedient, Collins and O'Brien, with Hall and Leonard to help out—performed wonders. In short, the whole team played like wildfire and stood the other teams on end as fast as they appeared. From the first of July to the close of the season the Red Sox did not lose but one series to their opponents.

White Sox Terrors.

In the meantime, the Chicago White Sox, managed by the clever Jimmy Callahan (with the owner of the club, Comiskey—the "Old Roman"—in the background to help with his sage advice) were going great guns, too. Big Ed Walsh, the celebrated "spitball" pitcher, seemed unbeatable. Scott, Benz and the other twirlers supported the mainstay nobly. Schalk, the "kid" catcher, proved to be one of the best backstops in either league and held the pitching of the entire staff with elegance and grace, while his right arm was a terror to base stealers. Strengthened by the acquisition of Hal Chase, the great first baseman, the entire infield braced, Rath, Weaver and Lord playing as though their lives depended on it. The outfield developed into one of the strongest in the American League. "Ping" Bodie played fine ball and broke fences with his bat instead of talking about it. Collins, the Newton boy, and Mattick, the other outfielders, covered their territory like ten-second men and batted like fiends. This great Chicago aggregation, while its success was not quite as sensational as the Red Sox, plowed steadily ahead, and when the Boston team reached second place the Windy City rivals were close behind them, only a few points separating the two teams in the percentage column.

In the meantime, the Athletics, managed by the shrewd baseball general, Connie Mack, which had been enjoying a sort of baseball buggy ride the first half of the season and had already begun to count their world's series money in their minds, struck a mighty rough road about the first of August and began to "come back," as they say in horse racing circles. They lost game after game. Their pitchers "went bad" and their sluggers failed to slug. Someone stole Frank Baker's bats and he couldn't hit the ball. Two or three unfortunate accidents put some of their most dependable players on the hospital list temporarily. By the first of September the Philadelphia "fans" were in a panic. Manager Connie Mack lost his Mephistophelean smile, and the subdued swearing he indulged in withered the grass in the immediate vicinity of the players' bench whereon he sat during the gloomy, losing games.

Situation Tense.

The pitchers on whom Mack depended, caused him many sleepless nights. Eddie Plank's cross-fire became crosseyed. Jack Coombs' curves were batted from Dan to Beersheba, and in spite of "Chief" Bender's red-faced twists and black-haired curves, the Indian could not win a game. On September 1 the Athletics were still in the lead, but only two games separated them from the Rex Sox, and the Chicagos were so close up that the Philadelphia players had heart disease every time they looked at a sporting extra. This was the situation when Labor Day rolled around.

But just when the White Elphants, as the Athletics are sometimes called, appeared to be sure of losing the lead they had had held since the opening of the season in April, they took a wonderful brace. They played the Washington team on Labor Day and won both the morning and the afternoon game, knocking the great Walter Johnson from the box in the second session. However, the Red Sox and the White Sox also won both Labor Day games, so the Athletics did not gain a single point on their rivals.

Games Bitterly Fought.

On September 4 the Red Sox arrived in Philadelphia for a three-game series. Every game was bitterly fought, but the Rex Sox won two of them, thereby reducing the lead of the Athletics to one game. In the meantime the White Sox won three straight and the result was that on the evening of September 6 the three leading clubs were nearer together than ever. From that time on it was a desperate fight to the very finish. Interest in the pennant race was tremendous. Crowds packed the ball parks wherever the three teams performed.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the thirty-third installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read the 34th installment of ahe great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

COAST BETTORS FACE PUZZLE IN BIG FIGHT

CHICAGO, ILL., June 26.—They never seem to have any luck at all in picking winners of the lightweight championship bouts out on the Pacific Coast, and it will be interesting to note which of them in the San Francisco battle of July 4 they single out for favoritism. As a matter of fact they haven't picked the right man for favorite in many a long month out there and in consequence the short ends have won with startling regularity. Yet the coast fans, seeing as they do, must be set down as the poorest judges in the world—or is it all accountable for on the ground of native son pride and civic patriotism? A native son is a real favorite at all times out there if it can be figured that he has as good as a fighting chance.

* * *

INASMUCH as both Jose Rivers and Willie Ritchie may be tabbed up as real native sons, it looks as if both of them will be made favorites. That paradoxical statement may need a little explanation, and here it is. They will make Rivers the favorite down around the southern portion of the State, where he is so highly regarded. And in San Francisco, where Willie comes from, they will make him the choice. Hence we may see the spectacle of Frisco people doing their betting in Los Angeles, where they can get a better price, and the people from the southern part of the State doing their wagering at the scene of the battle. It should result in a funny mixup.

* * *

AS a sample of the strange way they have of picking out probable winners it may be recalled that when Ad Wolgast battled Lew Powell in a 20-round match in San Francisco they made Powell such a strong choice that the Wolgast adherents got as good as 2 1-2 to 1 for their coin—and won it all the way. Likewise when Wolgast won the title from Bat Nelson—the coast fans simply could not see Ad at all. So it has been in many another of the big battles there. Always the wrong man picked as choice and always the short end winning.

* * *

WHATEVER disadvantage Rivers may be found to have in this encounter, one of the points against him will be the fact that he will be an alien and scrapping on the other fellow's own canvas. This may not look to be much of a disadvantage when it is considered that Rivers is as much of a native son as is Ritchie. But Rivers isn't from San Francisco, while Ritchie is, and the cheers of the crowd, or the greater portion of these, will be for Ritchie, which may be decidedly disconcerting for Rivers, who is used to monopolizing such cheers himself, having fought a vast majority of his contests in his own ring at Los Angeles.

* * *

THE question of Rivers' gameness doubtless will be given the answer in this battle. It will be a crucial test for the little Mexican because he hasn't met quite such a rapid fire jabber as the Ritchie boy is liable to be in this match. And jabs are points that will be screamingly cheered by the friends of Ritchie, and Joe will find that he will have to do some frighty whaling to even up any sort of a count. It looks to me as if Rivers is a game kid and will give Willie a tremendous battle.

Long Hits Stride; Robertson Leads All

Tom ny Long ha sagain started to climb in the Southern League batting list. The Cracker outfielder secured three hits out of four times at bat yesterday, and is now hitting at a .340 clip.

Dave Robertson is still at the head of the bunch with a mark of .355. He succeeded in getting two hits out of four times up against Nashville yesterday.

Kid Elberfeld, who has been idle for the past week, still holds second place with an average of .347.

'Thumbless Curve' Invented by Rucker

CINCINNATI, OHIO, June 26.—A two-hit shutout administered by Nap Rucker to the Reds recently may develop a new pitching style and a new ball called "the thumbless delivery."

After the game it was found that Rucker pitched the nine wonderful innings with a crippled left hand. The thumb was badly hurt stopping a batted ball some days ago and Nap could not shut it on the leather.

Nevertheless, the Georgia wonder went in there and proceeded to deliver a slow ball, gripped hard with the fingers and only steadied with the base of the useless thumb.

This ball came up to the batters like Matty's fadeaway, but higher, and man after man took two called strikes on the freak delivery.

Then Nap would drive one with what little speed he could command and the Reds, forced to hit, drove it out as best they could.

Great support saved rucker a dozen times, but the game nevertheless was marvelous for a man in his condition. The new thumbless ball, he says, will hereafter be one of his mainstays.

"I can stop any team," said Rucker, "that does the wait-'em-out act. If they stand up there with bat on shoulder I can toss two of these floats, get two strikes and trust to the field for the next one."

PIRATES.

In days of old
The Pirates bold
Controlled the raging seas,
And honest men
Who traveled then
All trembled at the knees.

For Pirates then
Were low-browed men,
Whose actions were unlawful.
They loved to fight
From morn till night,
And acted something awful.

We do not bow
To Pirates now—
They are a crowd of dubs.
For proof of that
Just rubber at
The Standings of the Clubs.

Reports from Poughkeepsie indicate that Wisconsin rowed in its old-time form.

Cornell is peeved because it won only two races out of three, whereas some of the crews considered themselves lucky to finish on the same day.

Vivian Nickalls may be a perfectly good rowing coach, but it surpasseth our imagination to conceive of a man named Vivian coaching a gang of huskies.

Alfred Vanderbilt's victory in the London coaching marathon shows that all the rich are not idle. If Alf were not a millionaire he would make a great little teamster.

J. EVERS SINGS.

I often pause and wonder at my
power over him—
One word from me and Heine does
what pleases Heine Zim.

H. Zim may mean well when he promises to be good, but he has an awful job on his hands.

Still, Mr. Zim has qualities which tend to make him a popular idol. For one thing, he never has attempted to burst into vaudeville.

Press agents have various ways to startle the public. For instance, one of them avers that a motorcycle meet was called off for fear the riders would be hurt.

The attempt to restore basketball to the high school curriculum simply shows that some persons have a lot of time to waste.

London papers inform us that "the American innovation of shirtsleeves will undermine the best traditions of golf." And yet there are those who claim that the Times is not a humorous publication.

TREASON.

The French and German war balloons may fill the summer air,
But England calmly slumbers on and
doesn't seem to care.
Their poloists may cross the seas,
and when they fail to cop,
The English only heave a sigh and
let the matter drop.
One way and one alone there is to
capture England's goat—
To play on old St. Andrew's links
and do not wear a coat.

PITTSBURG, June 25.—Outfielder Everett Booe has been released to the Springfield, Ill., club of the Three I League in part payment for Outfielder Fred Kommers, who is to report immediately. Manager Clarke has signed Outfielders Joe Kelly and George Watson, of the St. Joseph, Mo., team.

HUNTING HIRSIG LANDS NO GAME BUT SPINS YARN

NASHVILLE, TENN., June 26.—President William Alibi Hirsig, of the Vanishing Vols, returned from his hunt for ball players through the wilds of Ohio with his game bag as flat as the well-known pancake, and instead of fielders he accumulated a stock of highly interesting tales of .300 wallopers and .999 fielders he would at an early date dress up in Nashville uniforms.

"Author" Hirsig has so rapidly forged to the front as a yarn spinner that quite a number of the six-best-seller publishers are entreating him to turn out a batch of storyettes about "Ball Players I Pretty Near Landed."

Beautiful Dreams.

Calmly brushing away a tear when the announcement came that "Red" Nelson's physician had warned him against inhaling the germs that hobnob around the club houses throughout the South, Hirsig unfolded a story of grabbing either Almeida or Dodge from the Reds. The interesting story-teller held his listeners spellbound, when he launched into the Vols' chances of securing the Cuban, Almeida, or the hard-hitting Dodge to decorate the third cushion for the Schwartzmen, and seeing that he had the bugs groggy, he put them down for the count when he stated that Tinker would probably also ship to Nashville Marty Berghammer, the former Cub, and "Rube" Groh, who came from the Giants in the famous trade for Arthur Fromme.

Hofman Cries to Come.

Recovering from this terrible shock, Hirsig uncorked another on the unsuspecting gabfest he held with Arthur Hofman while in Akron, in which Circus Solly begged the Vols president to take him to the Sunny South, if Kansas City would only release its claim on the ex-Pirate's services.

'Auld Nick' Goes on Rampage

Jap Beats Indian in Hot Race

MAYBE some day Jock McNeil and Tex Richards, the kings of the local Motordrome, will thrash out their speed differences and settle the argument as to whether the imported J. A. P. engine or that in the American-made Indian is the faster. They took still another hack at it Wednesday night before a smashing big crowd, and it is not decided yet. But McNeil put another kink in Richards' reputation by winning the Woodward Sweeptakes in stunning style. Then his machine blew up.

McNeil has named his craft "Auld Nick," and it surely behaves like it. In three race meets run thus far it has not gone through the whole program without springing a splint or developing a Charley hoss. But whenever it has gone right it has developed a speed the like of which the other machines at the Motordrome can not produce.

In the Sweepstakes Wednesday night McNeil and Richards met in the third heat at two miles. It was a tremendously fast race and the riders whirled around and around in dizzy circles at a speed of exactly 86 miles an hour. McNeil took the lead after the contest was well started and held it, with Richards a handy second, to the finish.

"Oh, Richards was just faking it easy to qualify as the second man in the fastest heat," said the wise ones.

In the final heat, however, they had it out for blood. It was at five miles and they started cautiously. Richards, fearing McNeil, went out after a mile with a terrific showing of speed. It looked as though the Indian would run the Jap off its wheels. But then McNeil opened up and like a witch on a broomstick he whirled mysteriously out into the lead and held it. At the finish Richards closed with one of those uncanny bursts of speed that he always seems able to conjure out of his engine for the finish, but McNeil let out another notch and whirled across the chalk line the winner of a truly great race.

With McNeil's machine in no condition the Motordrome Purse was easy for Richards.

The next races will be held Saturday night.

CLEVELAND FANS RALLY TO BIRMINGHAM'S SIDE

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 26.—Petitions and endless chains of letters to President Ban Johnson and President Charles Somers, of the Naps, censuring the president of the American League on the statement credited to him that Manager Birmingham is incompetent, were started in scores of offices and shops by fans to-day.

Many communications were mailed to Johnson's office in Chicago. Many who didn't write called Owner Somers, and his phone was jingling all day. Employees in offices in the Rockefeller Building started an endless chain of letters, every man asking his acquaintances to write. Similar chains were started in other office buildings.

LAW AGAINST HANDBOOKING BADLY NEEDED

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE attention of the men who have gathered for the purpose of making new laws for Georgia is called to the fact that this State needs a law against gambling.

Yes, it has one, but it is not adequate to prevent handbook gambling.

Under the present law, so we are informed by attorneys of great prominence, a man could parade up and down Peachtree Street offering bets on baseball games and horse races, and not be liable to arrest.

So long as he had no fixed place of business and could not be arrested for conducting a gambling house he is immune.

* * *

THIS is a wretched state of affairs. Handbook gambling ought to be prohibited by law. It leads to more serious gambling, it gets boys and young men started in the wrong way, it results in petty thievery, wasted money. It lines the purses of the gambling gentry, often at the expense of mothers and children who would have had the benefit of the money except for a foolish flyer on a ball game or a horse race.

* * *

THE worst feature of the handbook gambling, perhaps, is its wretched influence on the sports themselves.

Of course racing isn't worth saving.

No sports that exists for gambling alone is.

But baseball is. That is the great national sport, and thus far it has been kept practically above suspicion.

If gambling on the games continues long it will not escape suspicion and it will doubtless deserve suspicion and worse.

If only to save the greatest of American sports handbook gambling should be stopped.

* * *

IT is not presumed that a mere law will prevent betting. But it will at least drive it to cover and yank off the mask of respectability. If it isn't against the law to run a handbook why shouldn't anybody do it? That is what a lot of them ask. And it is a hard question to answer.

If a measure to prevent handbook gambling could be put before the Legislature it would go through flying.

There isn't a man who would vote against it. They would all realize that such a law ought to be on the books.

But will anybody bring such a law before them and see that it comes to a vote?

It would do more good for State of Georgia than many a that will be passed.

Blood Bath Knocks Rheumatism

Remarkable Effect of a Remedy That Actually Irrigates the Entire Blood Supply.

The Hardest Nut of All, Rheumatism, is Cracked by S. S. S.

It sounds queer to take a blood bath, but that is precisely the effect of a most remarkable remedy known as S. S. S. It has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And, best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store at $1 a bottle. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to the Swift Specific Company, 137 Swift Building, Atlanta, Ga.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, June 26.—It is a race of surprises in the National League this year. Every time it looks as if the Phillies are about to break and ready to drop back they catch their wind and come strong again. Brooklyn has also shown another burst. The Cubs are liable to gain on the three Eastern contenders—New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn—within the next two weeks because these three strong clubs will be playing one another.

The Athletics are still out in front in the American League and will probably stay there. They may fall back during their coming clashes with the Red Sox and Washington and their impending trip through the West. In both leagues the Western contenders will face easier series. Cleveland appeared to be slipping badly in the East a week ago, but the Naps have a fine chance to catch their feet again at home now, especially if the Philadelphia boys slide into a slump. Even the best of them slump. Cleveland has kept the Athletics within hailing distance while crusading through the East, which was a good deal of a trick considering the speed at which the Athletics were moving. That about sums up the situation in the two leagues.

THE Giants' case at this time perhaps deserves a little consideration. The club had a wonderful road trip through the West, gaining on the Phillies and winning twelve games and losing only four.

The silver lining in the showing of the Giants on the road during this last trip can be found by a glance at the schedule. The New York club winds up its season with a swing through the West this year, and, if the final dispute comes down to a battle between the Giants and Phillies to the wire, I look to see New York nose the Philadelphia boys out on this final trip.

THE Cubs now threaten to be factors in the pennant struggle to the end. They won ten games and lost six during the Eastern invasion, and the pitching staff appears to be much better than it was a month or even two weeks ago.

The Pirates fell down sadly and have continued to show bad form. Their case is hard to explain, but it is impossible to go behind returns, and the fact remains that the Pittsburg club is still in the second division and showing no signs of mounting. It is now nearing the first of July, which means the race is about half over. The Pittsburg club is now about a dozen games behind the league leaders, a margin which would require phenomenal playing to overcome. I don't see how the Pirates can be counted in the race at present.

ONLY 10-ROUND BATTLE FOR WHITE AND BRITTON

CHICAGO, June 26.—Charlie White and Jack Britton are to fight ten rounds no decision at New Orleans July 4 instead of twenty rounds with a verdict at the end. Governor Hall, of Louisiana, is responsible for the switch in Promoter Tortorich's plans. He said he would stand for no knockdown, drag-out fight in his State. Frankie Whitney, the Cedar Rapids lightweight, leaves here this morning for New Orleans, where he fights Joe Thomas July 4.

9 PITCHED BALLS BY CONZELMAN STRIKE OUT SIDE

By Joe Agler.

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 26.—With Paul Musser and Dunn as the battery for the Crackers this afternoon we should repeat Wednesday's win, for Paul is going fine and has had a good rest.

Conzelman won his fourth straight game Wednesday, and it looks like there is no heading him off. He looks like the one best bet in the league to me. He has the build, the control and everything else that goes to make a big league pitcher. He is certain to be back in the majors next spring, and I think he'll stick, too.

* * *

JOE probably broke a league record in the seventh inning when he retired the Turtles' side on nine pitched balls. It was just like this:

"Stri-i-ike one!"
"Stri-i-ike tuh!"
"Stri-i-ike thruh! Batter up!"

And then repeat twice more. There wasn't a ball, nor a foul tip—nothing but nine strikes in a row. And that's going some.

Atlantans Closing in On Title

Should Win in Big Tennis Meet

NEW ORLEANS, LA., June 26.—Competition in the tennis tourney for the Southern championship Thursday had narrowed down to a few players. Thornton and Grant, of Atlanta, began playing the Worms brothers about 11 o'clock. Pipes and Maginnis were opposed by Smith and Mansfield. Adoue was also carded to meet Shelton before noon.

Phelps will meet Thornton this afternoon. At 4:30 o'clock Grima and Phelps will be opposed by Adoue and Shelton. With this system of elimination the finals go over until Friday.

Saal defaulted to Williams late yesterday after two sets, throwing Williams and Thornton as opponents. It was late for a match, but they decided to play to avoid the morning heat Thursday. Thornton won in straight sets 6-1, 6-0. Thornton let himself out for the first time, and really showed how well he could play tennis. The local man never had a chance.

In the lower half of the game Shelton, of Texas, defeated Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, in straight sets, much to the surprise of nearly everybody at the tournament. Grant was not at his best and Shelton's chop strokes and hard backward drives appeared to worry the Atlantan greatly.

Nat Thornton disposed of Frank Dameron in one of two single matches yesterday. Score: 6-4, 6-4. The Atlantan was not exerting himself and could have reduced the length of the contest at any time he chose.

Good progress was made to-day in the ladies' championship division, but several sets will be thrown to a late afternoon card with finals to-morrow.

LACK OF BUSINESS DEPRESS COTTON

Trading Extremely Light Throughout Day—July Center of Discussion—Cables Weak.

NEW YORK, June 26.—At the opening of the cotton market to-day the tone was easier and prices were unchanged to 5 points lower than last night's close. Cables were lower than generally expected. Bear operators had their operations checked by the reports of dry weather over the belt, resulting in August rallying 5 points over the opening, while other positions remained unchanged to 2 points higher.

After the call Liverpool and the continent were reported selling July, but the spot interests were supposed to be buyers. Many operators purchased August and sold July, while commission houses were good buyers of the new crop positions. After moving within a narrow range the market finally developed a sagging tendency and prices dropped some 5 to 9 points under the previous close. Liverpool developed weakness after a good start and closed unchanged to 2 points higher.

It is the current belief now that the market is only an evening up affair, pending the first notice day, Friday, on July delivery. For July contracts naturally was the subject of discussion. Advices from Liverpool stated that the English houses would not take up cotton unless the differences were large enough to assure them profit.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: July, 12.13; August, 12.07; October, 11.55; January, 11.48.

During the lateforenoon the market developed a steadier tone, influenced by scattered shorts covering before the Government report next Thursday. Private reports were not so favorable to crop conditions as they have been for some time past. Later the market became weak, based on the strong warning over the middle Gulf, which was considered bearish as it indicates that rain developments over the Western Rockies will move on the cotton belt in about six days and caused desired general rains. This had a depressing effect on the market, causing prices to reflex back to the opening range.

Following are 10 a. m. bids in New Orleans: July, 12.54; August, 12.19; October, 11.62; January, 11.68.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, June 26.—Due 3½ points higher on July and 2 to 3 points higher on other positions, this market opened quiet, generally 1 point advance. At 12:15 p. m. the market was quiet but steady, at a net advance of 2½ to 3 points on near positions and unchanged to ½ point higher on late months. Later the market advanced ½ point from 12:15 p. m.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—Political news overnight was very unfavorable. War has again broken out in the Balkans, showing that the loud announcements of peace made by the press a short while ago were false and diplomatic to mislead the world.

Weather conditions are favorable. Partly cuody to fair weather in the belt, few scattered showers, mostly in the Carolinas. Indications are for stationary conditions. Rain is not desired for a week yet in the central States, owing to the fight made against the weevil, which is more successful in prolonged dry spells between rainy periods.

July here showed aggressive activity for a while after the opening, causing steadiness in new crops, but this was soon followed by a 6-point decline when the bidding for July stoped. The strength and control of the July position are holding the market.

The into-sight for the week looks around 30,000, against 32,112 last year and wecompare with mill takings of 157,000 for this week. Bullish comparisons are expected owing to the May exports from New York and New Orleans stock, which cotton is now landing abroad.

July here had repeated periods of strength and on little bidding sold up to 12.62 shortly before 11 o'clock, causing new crops to rally to 11.66 for December.

Texas—Fair to-night and Friday.

COTTON GOSSIP

Liverpool, Hentz and scattered longs sold July yesterday and Hentz offered 10,000 bales at 12.25 when the market was 12.21. Some thought this was to reassure shorts for the moment so they would not run away. July had most to do with the strength in the new crop positions, although offerings were limited in the latter. Geran, the Waldorf broker, purchased 15,000 bales of the new crop. McFadden, Springs, Hicks, Dick and Mitchell were good buyers.

* * *

The Turners' report was considered bullish and Weld makes the condition 83.3, against 84 last month. Sentiment is turning quite friendly to the market, mainly because of its stubbornness, the way it took 70,000 bales, which Pell sold, and on the idea that the latter will buy the contracts back on the first favorable opportunity.

* * *

Dallas wires: "Texas and Oklahoma are generally clear."

* * *

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—Hayward & Clark: "The weather map is very favorable; partly cloudy to fair over the entire belt, few light showers at scattered points, mostly in the Carolinas and south Louisiana. Stationary temperatures, except some warmer in Memphis districts. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, scattered showers, particularly in the Atlantics."

* * *

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "All along price opponents have contended that the cornered condition of July at New York was the dominant factor, and none of them developed any particular attention to July at New Orleans. Now the bear party learns that several men have been quietly buying up July at New Orleans and that they expect to receive cotton on the contracts they hold. The significance of this is apparent when it is remembered that the demand for actual cotton in the South exceeds the offerings, and that actual cotton owners experience no difficulty in selling at full market values. Meanwhile, the bear has discovered fresh cause for market concern over European trade conditions, and sees fresh danger in the reopening of the Balkan conflict.

"On the other hand boll weevil talk is attracting increasing attention, the latest reports being to the effect that the cotton plantations in Mississippi recently purchased by an English syndicate are badly infested. Current crop condition reports do not make quite so good a showing as has been expected by those men who of late have drawn their daily inspiration from the favorableness of the weather map and for this reason high price people found the way clear yesterday to reassert their claim that the plant over a very large area has not made satisfactory progress, because of an adverse start and is now under size."

INSUFFICIENT RAIN.

CHICAGO, June 26.—B. M. Snow wires from Aberdeen June 25: "The weather continues warm and threatening, but rain so far strictly local and not enough to help any except in a small area in this county, Grant, Roberts, Day and Marshall counties. Crop in first two almost perfect, while dry but no sign of burning. In west part of other two burned spots beginning to show. Crops heading prematurely; must have general rain. These showers only relieve little patches."

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, June 26.—The cotton seed oil market was firm to-day on further demand from old crop shorts, particularly in August. Old crop months are commanding more attention, their being some new speculative buying in October and November.

Predictions of 14c lard was a further stimulus to the bull side.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

Joseph Thal, Louchheime & Co.: "We hold to the view that sales are advisable on all sharp turns."

Logan & Bryan: "Favor purchases on all reactions from this level."

Morris H. Rothschild & Co.: "We believe in higher values."

First Steel Coach Train Goes Through

For the first time an all-steel railroad train passed through Atlanta Wednesday afternoon over the Seaboard Air Line. No. 5, from Birmingham to Washington, had steel sleepers, but not until yesterday was the entire train made up of steel cars.

Assistant General Passenger Agent Geissler says Nos. 5 and 6 will be equipped with steel cars, and that the aim of the road is to replace all wooden coaches with steel.

PROFIT TAKING LOWER STOCKS

Buying of Harriman Issues Early Feature—Interest Centered on Dissolution Plan.

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, June 26—After a period of strength, during which many prominent issues made material gains, the stock market turned weak about half an hour after the opening and prices shaded.

The news that the Union Pacific dissolution plan had been advanced caused vigorous buying of Harriman's in London. In New York Union Pacific opened at 147⅜ for a gain of 1⅛. Later, however, it lost part of its advance.

Dealings in Union Pacific were brisk. Reading also was active. This stock opened ⅝ up at 158⅜, but later declined to 158. Among the other gains were Amalgamated Coper ⅜, American Can ⅜, American Smelter ⅛, Canadian Pacific 1, St. Paul ¾, Chino Copper ½, United States Steel common ⅜, Southern Pacific ⅜, Pennsylvania Railroad ⅜, Lehigh Valley ⅜, Kansas City Southern ¼, Chesapeake and Ohio ½ and St. Paul ¾. Steel soon lost all its gain. Missouri Pacific declined ⅛ and Baltimore and Ohio shaded ⅜.

The curb market was firm.

The tone in London was steady, despite Berlin and Vienna selling, induced by further reports of fighting in the Balkans. Sentiment in Americans in London was cheerful. Canadian Pacific was repurchased for a good price gain.

After a fractional advance stocks through at the list showed a wavering tendency and light losses were recorded in Steel, which reacted in a disappointing manner, losing about a point. Reading sold at 157⅜ from the early 158⅜. Union Pacific dropped 1⅜ and Copper was ⅝ down since the opening. The other issues received about the same drop. The tone in the late forenoon was steady. Call money loaning at 2 per cent.

HOG PRICES RISE.

CHICAGO, June 26.—With 88,000 hogs at eleven markets to-day, against 73,000 a week ago, speculators elevated prices 5 to 10c, restoring the 8.90 quotation. The bulk sold at 8.75@8.85, strong weights getting 8.80. Lambs sold up to 8.75, an advance of 1.50, compared with the low spot late last week. The general advance was 25c. In the cattle alleys prices were about steady or weak compared with last Monday.

TRADE SELLS OFF WHEAT HOLDINGS

Speculators Follow Bigger Men in Pit in Face of Bad News From Northwest.

ST. LOUIS CASH QUOTATIONS.

Wheat—No. 2 red	97½
Corn—No. 2	60 @61
Oats—No. 2	39½@39⅞

CHICAGO, June 26.—The local professionals in wheat were heavy sellers during nearly all of to-day's session. These speculators were following the footsteps of the larger men in the trade and this, too, in the face of quite unfavorable reports sent from Williston, N. D., which said that there would not be over 70 per cent of a wheat crop raised there even under the best conditions from this time forward.

Prices reacted ⅛ to ⅝ from the lowest levels, yet the closings were ⅜ to ½c below those of last night. A few boat loads were sold for export, but this was offset by reports of increased sales of the new crop in all positions.

Corn closed ⅜ to ½c higher, while oats were unchanged to ⅛ to ¼c lower. The buying of corn was largely by local professionals and was not considered as strong as the selling. Longs were the principal sellers of oats in the way of securing profits.

Provisions were unchanged to a shade lower for the day.

OPINION ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.: Wheat—The map shows fair rains at several points in South Dakota, light showers in North Dakota and quite general precipitation in Canada and Minnesota. The firmness in the cash situation and the uncertainty regarding the Northwestern situation are apt to give us a steady market.

Corn—Part cloudy with very little precipitation are shown. Look for a steady market.

Oats—The speculative situation appears strong on the belief that the crop will be a moderate one.

Provisions—There seems to be a disposition to take profits on strong spots, but we do not look for any material decline.

BANKERS TOLD TO ABANDON COERCION

People, Nation's Bulwark, Bound to Have Last Word in Currency Reform, Says Forbes.

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, June 26.—"You pay too much attention to 'the people,' to the man with a vote and little else," a Wall Street man scolded me yesterday, "and don't give enough consideration to the substantial men of the country, the great, big brainy men, the men who have made America what it is, the giants who head our financial and business organizations."

* * *

Well, to that I would reply that half the men active in Wall Street are ridiculously ignorant of 'the people's' place in a republic. They have contempt instead of consideration for the unlettered classes. They have an overweening sense of their own importance and power. They move in a dollar-ridden circle. They have neither the inclination nor the breadth of vision to grasp what part "the people" play in the scheme of things.

* * *

Rather than become an exponent of such views I would become a scavenger, for that is an honest, creditable calling.

* * *

Most of New York's ablest bankers are men of broad gauge, not at all the type I have just described. But there are among them numbers of bourbons, short-sighted, unable to discern the forces that govern twentieth century democracy, blind to world-wide developments in the relations of the so-called masses to the so-called classes. They can not realize that humankind has progressed rapidly these recent years toward equality, that manhood has asserted itself against mere money, that caste is being obliterated.

* * *

In the friendliest spirit conceivable I would urge the national bankers who have been in session here to abandon at once all idea of being able to prevent the United States from placing control of the currency system under the Government. They can not turn back the hands of the clock. The railroads tried it and failed—and to-day are heartily glad that they did fail.

* * *

The people will insist upon having, through their representatives, the final say in regulating banking.

* * *

The bankers may better accept this large fact with good grace now. They assuredly will have to accept it later, no matter how much they protest. Threats to seek shelter under State laws will not long avail, for even should such unlikely steps be taken the people of the States would fall into line and demand rigid control of the dodging institutions.

* * *

Let the bankers use their every effort, if they choose, to secure more generous representation on the Federal Reserve Board. They might win a provision in the bill that three of the seven members shall be bankers. But that the Government will insist upon holding the balance of power is a foregone conclusion if ever there was one.

Bonding Company Wins Suit Filed by Defaulter's Victim

Judge William T. Newman Thursday sustained the demurrer of the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company against the petition of the Proctor Coal Company, which sued for $5,000, the amount for which C. H. Stanton, an employee, was bonded and the approximate amount he is to have defaulted. The bonding company asserted their contracts are made for one year at a time and that the exact time which Stanton defaulted could not be shown.

They represented that they could be held responsible only from December 1, 1900, to August 8, 1901, when the books were audited competently.

"It is ordered," Judge Newman said, "that the demurrer to the petition be sustained insofar as the petition seeks to recover for losses prior to December 1, 1900, and that the case may proceed for the loss alleged to have been sustained after that date, the demurrer as to this latter having been overruled this 25th day of June, 1913."

Peachtree Paving Starts Soon, Says Smith, Preparing

Chairman Shelby Smith, of the County Commission, began preparations Thursday to start work soon on the improvement of Peachtree Road from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead. The work, he said, probably would start within the next ten days.

"We would have started this work some weeks ago," he said, "but could not get the material nor the labor. The material will be available in a few days. We can get labor from some of the streets that will be completed shortly and put it on the Peachtree road."

Chairman Smith said he would not consent to beginning the work until he had men enough and the right kind of material to make the road a credit to the county.

Absence of Heads Of Pure Milk Body Postpones Report

Owing to the illness of Dr. S. A. Visanska and the absence from Atlanta of Oscar Elsas, the luncheon scheduled for Thursday at the Piedmont Hotel to consider the report of the milk committee of the Chamber of Commerce has been postponed indefinitely.

Dr. Visanska, who is chairman of the committee, is recuperating at a South Carolina sanitarium, and Mr. Elsas, the vice chairman, is at the bedside of his son in a New York hospital.

Featuring the report of the milk committee is a recommendation that the Chamber of Commerce have Dr. Charles North, sanitarian of New York City, come to Atlanta and conduct a week's investigation. Secretary W. G. Cooper, of the Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday an early date would be set for the luncheon, at which time the milk committee's report would be considered.

Burial Service Read Over Bird in Coffin

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 26.—A pet canary, owned by James McLaughlin, was buried in a small cemetery in the back yard of the McLaughlin summer home in Chelsea.

It was placed in a silk-lined metallic coffin, and Helen McLaughlin read the burial service over her pet. The canary had been in the household fourteen years.

Is Poultry Culture And Egg Production Affected by Climate?

Also Question Answered From Raiser Who Has Had Little Chicks to Die Shortly After Hatching.

Edited by Judge F. J. Marshall.

A subscriber to one of the Northern poultry papers asks if poultry culture and egg production could not be made more profitable in a warm climate like Georgia or Florida than a cold one. The editor answers with a big NO. We believe this editor is surely mistaken. And we think we understand why he makes this assertion that he does.

He has evidently concluded because the South does not produce eggs in proportion to its area that the hens do not do their duty.

While the truth of the matter is that in this genial Southern climate our hens can be made to do duty a greater part of the year than in the cold and frozen North and these eggs can be produced at less cost per dozen on an average for the reason that the hens do not have to be housed in expensive houses, and it takes much less food to keep the body in a normal laying condition than it does when it is so cold.

The hens can be out of doors and in the natural sunshine and warmth so conducive to health and egg production. The reason the South is so far behind in the matter of egg production in proportion to her area and population is that hundreds of farmers scarcely raise enough chickens and eggs to supply their own tables, to say nothing of supplying the markets. Of course there are a few limited sections of the South where they make a great business of shipping chickens and eggs to the Eastern markets, but this area is but a small part of the whole South.

But in the East and North the chicken market business has been one of the leading means of a livelihood for small farmers for generations, to say nothing of the immense plants making a specialty of eggs and broilers. We believe it is an accepted fact that warm air and sunshine are the strong factors for egg production, consequently any one who has become at all familiar with the average winters of the Gulf States knows that the natural conditions are ideal for this purpose, but, of course, to make a success at the business even under these most favorable conditions everything that nature affords must be made the most of.

Making the effort that must necessarily be made in the colder States of the North, I see no reason why we should not as a people take the very front ranks in the business. But these favorable natural conditions seem to have had the tendency to make us careless as a class in all classes of agricultural pursuits.

Judge Marshall: Can you tell me what causes my little chicks to die? When they are first hatched off they are as well as they can be, looks like, and seem to do well until they are eight or ten days old. Then they begin to droop and get weak and are soon all dead. They don't have bowel trouble. I have cut several of them open after they died to see if I could find anything that I thought would cause them to die. The gall looked like it was larger than it ought to be. And some of them had turned dark green around the gall. I took out one gall to-day without bursting it, so I could tell you about the size it was and see if you thought it was too large. I laid it on the paper and marked around it with a pencil as close as I could to give you a better idea of the size of it. Now, if you can give me a remedy for the trouble I will thank you very much.

MRS. L. F. B.

Plain Dealing, La.

Answer: The trouble with your chicks is one of two or three things, or, perhaps, a combination of them. It looks a good deal like what we call general debility as the result of the too close inbreeding of the parent stock for generations back. Just letting the same roosters, old and young, that you happen to raise year after year run with your hens. Such a course will eventually put you in such a position that you will hardly be able to raise any young stock, and particularly a little late in the season. The eggs will not only not hatch well, but will give you chicks that will live but a short time for a simple lack of vitality to even make a start in life. There is just such trouble upon hundreds of farms throughout the country. Is it any wonder that farmers are heard to complain that it is hard work to raise any chickens and that chicken raising does not pay? It is just that lack of interest to induce him to make good healthy crosses such as he would think he was obliged to make in his cattle or hog breeding to insure health. Then there is the trouble that is a kin to the other and that is hatching from eggs late in the season laid by hens that have been laying almost constantly since early winter time without a rest. Such hens have become quite low in vitality and very naturally their eggs will throw chicks with but little stamina for the race of life and are ready to keel over at the first round.

Then we have the mites that are always with us or rather with our hens unless we make a vigorous protest and assert our rights early in the season. When they are numerous they will not let a lot of young chicks get much of a start in life until they will snuff it out. Look out for them at all events. I am pretty sure that one if not more of these things I have mentioned is your trouble, but you will have to be the judge.

OUR NORTH SIDE AND INMAN PARK DELIVERIES LEAVE THE STORE AT 9:30; SOUTH SIDE AND WEST END AT 2 P. M. GOODS ORDERED BEFORE THESE HOURS WILL BE DELIVERED SAME DAY.

CHICKENS need more care and attention the next two or three months than any other time during the year. It is perfectly natural for chickens to have lice and mites, and unless you look after them they will multiply in such quantities to prove profitable. The little chicks will not reach the growth they should and the hens will not lay if they are covered with these pests. We have ties that you can not expect your flock remedies that will positively get rid of them and the cost is very little. For 35c you can get a can of either Lee's, Conkey's or Pratt's Lice Liquid and we will guarantee either of these preparations to give entire satisfaction.

WE have just gotten in a lot of nice, fresh, clean Red Comb Feed. The price for scratch and mash is $2.25 per 100 pounds.

WE are offering Baby Chick Feed at $2.15 per 100 pounds for the next few days. You know the regular price is $2.50 per 100 pounds. Better take advantage of this.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

14 New Bungalows To Cost $28,000

Fitzhugh Knox to Build—Refusal of $1,400 for Semi-Central Lot. Plans for Big Mill.

Never before in the history of the city has there been so much activity in the construction of small houses. Thursday's announcements brought information, for instance, that Fitzhugh Knox, the well-known builder of apartments and dwellings, had approved of plans for fourteen bungalows to cost an aggregate of $28,000. These are to be located in Mr. Knox's subdivision on South Moreland, Cleland and Kensington Avenues and Hardee and Brantley Streets. Walker & Chase are the architects and the Knox Construction Company has the contract. Part of the material is on the ground and actual construction will start Monday.

Decatur Tennis Club House.

The Decatur Tennis Club will have plans this week from Walker & Chase, architects in the Candler Building, for a $3,500 club house south of the Georgia Railroad tracks and east of Candler Street, directly back of the residence of C. Murphey Candler, chairman of the State Railroad Commission. Work should start in a week or so. The completed structure will represent an investment of about $5,000. The club has three acres of ground and about six tennis courts.

John W. Grant Buys.

Jane Hill has sold to John W. Grant a 39 by 67 foot lot on Calhoun Street, between Pine and Merritts Avenue, for $2,300.

Refusal of Semi-Central Offer.

Investors desiring to pick up a choice piece of semi-central property on the North Side offered $1,400 a front foot Wednesday, but the offer was refused. The price of $1,500 has been fixed by the owner, and a well-known real estate agent is trying to get prospect and seller together.

Stone for Healey Building.

Stone has arrived for the Healey Building, and part of it has been put in place, starting at the ground. The slabs will extend 15 feet upward, and terra cotta will go from thence to the top of the building. The granite is from the quarries at Stone Mountain, furnished by Venable Brothers.

Contract for Cotton Mill.

The plans for the Manchester, Ga., cotton mill addition, one of the largest jobs in this section of the country, has been let to Walker & Chase, architects. Mr. Walker closed the deal Tuesday. The amount was not given out. Several other Atlanta architects, it is understood, were in the competition.

Peachtree Lease Made.

Tom Weaver, the tailor, has subleased the second story of the building at the northwest corner of Peachtree and James Streets from the lessee, Robert E. Riley, at an advance on the price paid by the latter.

Euclid Apartments Ready.

The Euclid Apartments, located at the southeast corner of Euclid Avenue and Hurt Street, Inman Park, have been completed, and the owner and builder, Fitzhugh Knox, has leased several of the 16 apartments. The cost of the Euclid was $40,000. It is two stories and fronts 200 feet on Euclid Avenue and 70 feet on Hurt Street, each room being outside. The rooms have been arranged for disappearing wall beds. Mr. Knox has built several other apartments, among them the Virginian, at the southwest corner of Peachtree and Fifteenth Streets; the Boscobel, on Hurt Street, Inman Park, and the Fairleigh, on Spring Street.

West Tenth Street Buy.

C. A. Tappan has bought from a client of the Smith & Ewing Real Estate Agency a 50 by 150 foot lot on the north side of West Tenth Street, east of State Street and in front of the Home Park School, for $2,000.

To Lease 97 Peachtree.

The removal of the College Co-Op from 97 Peachtree to the new location at 119 and 121 Peachtree will leave the former place open for release. This store is in the Alfriend Building and under the seven-year term just expiring brought $5,000 a year.

Madison Avenue Conveyance.

J. H. Williams has conveyed to the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland a 99 by 80 foot lot on Madison Avenue, being lots 1 and 2 of the home place subdivision of L. L. Landrum, for a consideration not named. The property brought $7,500. June 28, 1912.

Peachtree Work Assured.

Real estate men hailed with much joy Thursday the announcement by County Chairman Shelby Smith that Peachtree Road would soon be improved from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead, work to start in ten days or two weeks. A large proportion of the prospects who are taken to look over property go by way of Peachtree, and the realty dealers declare that rough roads are not very conducive to sales-making.

As soon as some of the forces working in other sections can be shifted to Peachtree, declared Mr. Smith, the Peachtree improvements will be started.

Repairs from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead, by the way, will make of Peachtree one of the best thoroughfares in the State. The street was recently repaved from Sixth Street to Fifteenth and from Buckhead to the DeKalb County line. With the other stretch completed, the entire extent will be approximately nine miles, and Peachtree will serve the most important rural territory in the State.

Chamber of Commerce Home.

A permit for remodeling the old Y. M. C. A. Building at the southeast corner of North Pryor Street and Auburn Avenue is expected to be taken soon at the Building Inspector's office by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. The Y. M. C. A. will move out July 1, awaiting the completion of its new $250,000 building on Luckie Street, and the Chamber of Commerce will make alterations to cost $100,000 or more.

New Realty Firm.

Although the Thornton, Goree & Poyner Real Estate Agency has been in business only a week or ten days at 11 Auburn Avenue ("Real Estate Row"), a number of important listings of subdivision lots, investment property and homes have been received. The new firm is made up of R. L. Thornton, senior member, who was formerly conencted with the Claude E. Sims Realty Company; G. C. Goree, an Atlanta business man who has made a study of real estate, and C. B. Poyner, junior partner, formerly with J. E. McCullough in subdivision work.

Hoping for Tax Reform.

A sympathetic note has been struck in real estate circles through declarations of such political leaders as Governor Brown, W. H. Burwell, Speaker of the House, and J. Randolph Anderson, President of the Senate, that something must be done to improve the tax system of the State. There has long been a conviction that real estate has been saddled with an unfair proportion of tax burden—that rates should be increased and assessments lowered. This is particularly true in Fulton County, where it is claimed that any more legislation raising tax assessments would drive out industries and sadly cripple the real estate business. Furthermore, Fulton County pays, exclusive of corporation and special taxes, about one-seventh of the taxes paid into the State Treasury, which it is held is unfair. Real estate men want more of their tax money spent in the county and less paid into the coffers of the State, and they are seeking legislation along this line.

The Railroads and the Public

A Letter from Mr. Ivy L. Lee, of the Pennsylvania

(Copyright, 1913.)

The Georgian and the other Hearst newspapers, published to protect the public, are aware of the fact that to protect the public thoroughly, ALL legitimate workers must be protected, big men and little men, ditch diggers, railroad builders, street peddlers, department stores, thinkers and big industrial organizations.

Criticism of big and able men because they happen to be rich and intelligent is as stupid and harmful to the public welfare as would be attacks on or unjust treatment of little men because they happen to be poor and badly organized.

We publish gladly a letter which presents the side of the railroads in an important public question.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD COMPANY.
General Office, Broad Street Station.
Philadelphia.
Ivy L. Lee.
Executive Assistant.

Editor The Georgian:

My Dear Sir—Your papers have been commending the law recently passed in New Jersey which places upon the railroad companies the entire burden of removing grade crossings. There is one important phase of this subject, however, which you have not brought out.

There is no doubt that grade crossings are a great public menace and should be removed. But, of course, their removal must be paid for, and those who are benefited are the ones who ought to pay for it. If the entire burden should fall upon the railroads without delay the railroads would be bankrupt.

As you know, in England there are practically no grade crossings, the reason being that when the railroads were first built it was sure that there would be enough traffic to make them pay. Therefore, the Government could take the position that there should be no grade crossings. In this country, if we had taken such position there would not have been so many railroads.

Everybody, railroad officers included, agrees as to the danger and the objectionable character of grade crossings. But it is certainly like the ostrich burying its head in the sand to pass a law placing the whole burden upon the railroad companies and imagining that through such a law the money is going to come out of the bankers of Wall Street.

May I venture to call to your attention the policy which Mr. Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, recently set forth as in his opinion the proper one to be pursued in solving the grade crossing problem?

"Public Service Commissions, on motion either of a municipality, a railroad, or on a commission's own initiative, should have the right to designate such grade crossings as should be removed, and should have power, after hearing all parties in interest, to apportion the cost of such improvements, with due regard for the interest of all parties concerned."

Respectfully,
IVY L. LEE.

Mr. Lee, who is a graduate of the Atlanta Boys' High School, and son of the Rev. J. W. Lee, former pastor of Trinity Church, and who occupies an important position near the president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is right in his statement that the public can not legislate unlimited millions into existence or compel railroads to spend money that they haven't got.

It is an impossibility to abolish immediately ALL of the grade crossings in the United States.

There is not enough money in the United States to do that work immediately. And legislation can not CREATE money.

The trouble, however, as Mr. Lee and Mr. Rea will admit, has been in the past a lack of the fair and reasonable attitude now taken by Mr. Rea, recently elected president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Railroad management until recently has often been as arrogant and unreasonable as the most foolish legislator, or the most ignorant demagogue.

The railroads can exist only by permission of the public, they get their rights and their revenue from the public, and are able to build because the public exercises its right of eminent domain in their behalf, yet the railroads have refused for years to recognize in the public ANY RIGHTS AT ALL.

Stockholders, investors in the railroads, have been robbed in every conceivable way. (It is true that the Pennsylvania has been an honorable exception in this regard.)

Legislation that the railroads WANTED has been bought with money.

And legislation that they did NOT want has been killed with money.

It is not unnatural that representatives of the public should in their turn sometimes follow the example set by the railroads and disregard the railroads' rights as the railroads have disregarded the rights of the public in the past.

This newspaper, however, opposes unjust legislation against the railroads as strongly as it opposes public robbery by the railroads.

It is preposterous to say that every grade crossing should be abolished at once and that the railroads should pay the expense.

The total capitalization of the railroads is about $600,000,000, including stock not yet issued.

AND $600,000,000 WOULD NOT BE ENOUGH TO ABOLISH ALL THE GRADE CROSSINGS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD ALONE!

The United States would not have to-day one-quarter of its railroad mileage if the railroads had been compelled to build without grade crossings. That would mean that the United States would be only one-quarter developed in comparison with its present development.

Mr. Rea's statement and suggestion in regard to railroad crossings, and his address made upon that subject recently in New Jersey are reasonable and display a fair spirit.

The trouble has been in the past that railroads and their officials have used their power to prevent ANY INTERFERENCE EVEN WITH THE MOST DANGEROUS GRADE CROSSINGS.

If other railroad officials will follow Mr. Rea's example and in good faith submit public questions to impartial public officials, railroads and the public contributing their fair and proper share of any expense, THE RAILROADS WILL FIND THAT THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY ARE NOT DISHONEST, WILL NOT DEMAND THE IMPOSSIBLE, AND WILL NOT BE LED INTO PATHS OF CONFISCATION OR UNJUST ASSESSMENT BY THE NEWSPAPERS THAT THEY TRUST.

Are We Coming to the Bee Idea of Life

By WINIFRED BLACK.

HAVE you ever read Maeterlinck's marvelous story of the bees?

No?

Go to the library and get it this very day. You can't afford to live another twenty-four hours without knowing that book!

Every time you see a bee in the garden afterward you'll feel like standing, hat in hand, and watching him fly by.

Talk about "man the reasoning animal," the bee reasons so much better and so much more closely than man that he makes us all seem like little blind, blundering beetles booming around in the sunshine, not knowing where we are going or what we are trying to do.

The Wonderful Bee.

The bee—the wonderful bee—no wonder Napoleon chose him for his emblem.

Is that what we are all coming to—some day I wonder—the bee system of living?

Every once in a while I see something in the news that makes me think so. It is a great thing to watch—the daily news of this great, strange, simple, complex world of ours.

The sailors on the ship that Columbus brought across the wide waters spent days standing at the rail watching for the drift of waters, and now and then they found hope of land in the broken branch that floated on the silent sea and now and then some strange bright feather that rose and fell on the waves told their hopeful hearts of bright lands beyond, where the bird that wore the feather waited singing in a spreading tree to welcome their coming.

Driftwood tells strange tales sometimes.

That's what the news is—driftwood—telling stories, old stories that sometimes makes the human hair rise and that turns the blood cold in the veins of the one who watches by the rail to see the drift come by.

Now, there's that little item in the paper this morning—the one about the Judge who told the man that he could not make his wife follow him to a farm, and he could not divorce her because she did not follow.

"She hates country life," said the Judge. "You cannot force her to live it. She has the same right to decide where she wants to live as you have." Drift, drift from strange shores, is that decision.

I wonder how they would think of it in North Carolina, where a man can have you arrested and fined if you give shelter, food, employment or even a word of encouragement to a wife who has left his bed and board without his permission, no matter what it was he did that made her go.

A great artist went with his wife to see her off on a long trip

WINIFRED BLACK.

the other day. "Yes," said the artist to the reporters, "I hate to see her go, but she has chosen the stage for her vocation. Who am I, to stand in her way? She is a human being first of all, you know," and no one was particularly surprised to hear him say it.

She Likes to Work.

A clever writer married a clever business woman a week or so ago, and he told his friends and hers that he did not expect her to give up her business to stay at home for him.

"She likes to work," he said. "Why should I take it upon myself to deny her her own life? Women are something more than the echo of men."

In a high school out West they find that the average height of the high school graduate is lowering for the boys and heightening for the girls.

The boy babies born at the great public hospital in Boston to-day are one inch shorter on the average than they were ten years ago. The girl babies are nearly an inch taller than they were ten years ago and weigh, on an average, almost a pound more.

A newspaper in the Middle West interviewed the members of a graduating class of girls in a great school yesterday, and out of thirty girls, twenty-four said that they hoped they would not have to marry. Marriage was narrowing and cramping, they said.

Driftwood, driftwood! From what strange tides does it come these days! The bees—oh, yes—that's what I mean.

The bees have arranged all this affair of the feminine uprising—arranged it years and years ago.

The queen bee rules. She breeds the young, divides the hive into workers and drones. There is no mingling of the two classes at all. One bee is to gather honey, one is selected to found the future of the hive. When his work is done, out he goes. Is that what we are coming to, we humans, some day?

Will there be home women and work women, home men and work men, divided quite definitely into classes like the bees—each having his own special mission in life, and never dreaming of interfering with any other in any way?

"Career" Women.

Mother women and "career" women, work women and beauty women, men workers and men home makers, how else shall we manage this affair of the woman who will not live as her husband wishes—else deal with the man who thinks that a woman should follow him wheresoever he lists to go, and howsoever he intends to do when he gets there? Bu-zz, bu-zz! How do you think of the bee idea, brother philosophers?

The drift, the drift! How pleasant it is to stand in the sunshine at the ship's rail and watch it slipping by, and speculate and dream, and hope, and wonder.

SONG OF THE GOOD ROAD

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by A merican-Journal-Examiner.

I AM a Road; a good road, fair and smooth and broad;
And I link with my beautiful tether
Town and Country together,
Like a ribbon rolled on the earth from the reel of God.
Oh, great the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a long road, leading on and on;
And I cry to the world to follow,
Past meadow and hill and hollow,
Through desolate night, to the open gates of dawn.
Oh, bold the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a kind road, shaped by strong hands.
I make strange cities neighbors;
The poor grow rich with my labors,
And beauty and comfort follow me through the lands.
Oh, glad the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a wise road, knowing all men's ways;
And I know how each heart reaches
For the things dear Nature teaches;
And I am the path that leads into green young Mays.
Oh, sweet the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I speed away from the slums,
Away from desolate places,
Away from unused spaces;
Wherever I go, there order from chaos comes.
Oh, brave the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I would make the whole world one.
I would give hope to duty,
And cover the earth with beauty.
Do you not see, Oh men! how all this might be done?
So vast the power of the Road!

A Trip to the Moon

He Gives Reasons Why It Can Not Be Made by Aeroplane, But Says It Might Be Made With the Aid of Inter-Atomic Energy.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

WITHIN a few weeks past I have been asked to address two different aeronautical societies on the curious subject of the possibilities of a trip to the moon.

As far as I am aware this does not indicate an intention on the part of any aviator to essay a voyage to our satellite, but, at least, it shows that the flying instinct is growing by what it feeds upon, and that, having navigated the air, practical men are giving a little extra rein to their imaginations, and wondering whether the empire of birds marks the ultimate frontier of human conquest.

In fact, the dream of going to the moon, which, in every age, has occupied daring minds, is hardly more impracticable at the present time than would have been a project, springing up in the mind of Balboa, of making ships sail across from the Atlantic to the great Western ocean which he saw from his peak in Darien.

But it is not the invention of either the aeroplane or the dirigible balloon that stimulates thoughtful minds at the present time to consider, half-seriously, the idea of a lunar voyage. The success of those inventions, defying scientific predictions and probabilities, only forms an incentive. It turns men's minds hopefully to things that heretofore they have regarded as lying beyond the limits of human power.

It has always been so. Every great advance has been a marvel at the beginning, derided or laughed at. Each one of them has been a victorious birth of the imagination. The greatest drag on progress is lack of faith in the hidden capacities of man.

"Verily, I say unto you, if ye have faith, as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain: 'Remove hence to yonder place,' and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

Only Beginning.

That is high authority for believing that we are only just beginning to discover the extent of our control over nature, and such things as wireless telegraphy, X-ray photography and the disintegration of atoms, with consequent unlocking of tremendous concealed energy, prove that hitherto we have been like the man who buried his talents in the earth instead of making them produce ten or a hundred fold.

Suppose we look at the subject of visiting the moon in the light of present knowledge. The distance in itself is nothing—240,000 miles! Many a sea captain has sailed much farther than that. It is less than ten times the circuit of the earth.

If the atmosphere extended from the earth to the moon, we could go there now by modifying our present apparatus. At a hundred days! But at a height of five or six miles the atmosphere becomes so rare that we could not live in it without an artificial supply. Yet unmanned balloons have gone ten miles high, and meteors take fire from friction at an elevation of a hundred miles or more.

Still the atmosphere does practically cease to exist at no very great elevation, and cuts short off the road of the balloon and the aeroplane.

We must turn to something else. The buoyant force of air enables us to overcome the gravitative attraction of the earth only up to a moderate height. Beyond that something more is needed. I have learned with surprise that many intelligent persons supose that if we once got outside the air motion would be unimpeded. For instance, a man said to me the other day:

"Suppose an aeroplane could mount straight up until it passed the limits of the atmosphere, then having nothing more to impede its motion, it would go on with whatever velocity it had when it left the air."

In fact, this could only occur in case the velocity of the aeroplane amounted to nearly seven miles per second, for that velocity would be required to completely overcome the pull of the earth's attraction. Otherwise it would fall back to the earth.

This is the reason why Jules Verne, in his amusing story of "A Voyage to the Moon," had his adventurers shot out of an enormous cannon. Only in that way, he thought, could the requisite initial velocity be obtained.

A Bold Plan.

But a bold mind might, in view of recent discoveries, speculate on the illimitable power that may be obtained from unlocking the energies of the atoms of matter. Professor Thomson has calculated that a single gram of hydrogen has within it sufficient energy to lift a million tons a hundred yards high! Does anybody imagine that that unlimited store of energy is going forever to remain uncontrolled by human genius? We have discovered its existence; the next thing is to take it and use it.

Suppose we had it under control, as we shall have it some time. Then reflect upon the close relation between atomic phenomena and electricity, and recall the familiar experiment of making bits of pith fly away from an electrically charged ball. If we could construct some kind of a car that could be powerfully charged with electric energy we might be able to make it fly away from the earth as the pith balls fly from the charged conductor of the electric machine.

The Problem Solved.

Then it would be necessary to establish a system of control by which the speed and direction could be regulated by varying the charge—AND THE PROBLEM OF NAVIGATING SPACE WOULD BE SOLVED. I have developed this (of course purely hypothetical) idea somewhat farther in a story called "A Columbus of Space."

Such a method would avoid all the difficulties, really insuperable, that hampered Jules Verne's plan of a projectile starting at a velocity of almost seven miles per second.

However, when we get the atomic energies under control our first efforts will be directed to making more money out of them, and trips to the moon will only begin to pay after we have got tired of purely earthly things.

A Fine Old Heathen

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

WONDERFUL in a far more useful way than we find it described in the "Arabian Nights" was the fine old heathen known as Haroun Al Raschid, who died eleven hundred and four years ago.

In a time of intense bigotry and cruelty he was tolerant and merciful. In an age of blackest ignorance and brutal indifference to every form of intellectual enlightenment, he was deeply interested in learnings, and employed every aid at his command for the elimination of the superstition that was sitting like an incubus upon the breast of humanity.

While Christian Europe lay in the shadow of its seemingly irremediable ignorance, Bagdad was cultivating the sciences out of which was to come the world's mental resurrection. While the Christian teachers were asserting the flatness of the earth the Mohammedan doctors of Bagdad and Cordova, Seville and Alexandria were teaching geography in the common schools from globes. While in London and Paris they were practicing and professing to cure men's ills through the agency of charms, trinkets and incantations, in the great Mesopotamian capital they were treating the sick upon the principles of science and common sense.

So famous was Al Raschid's medical school at Bagdad that the great and mighty Charlemagne issued a decree that no man should practice medicine in his dominions without first having passed a satisfactory examination before the Bagdad faculty. And the old Mohammedan's heart was as sound as his mind, for be it remembered that at the time Charlemagne was using fire and sword against all who would not, or could not, accept the theological beliefs he had sworn to champion, Haroun Al Raschid was doing all he could to protect Charlemagne's subjects in the full exercise of their religion.

Judge Speer Attacks McReynolds' Espionage System

"More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Federal judge is the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the arbitrary espionage or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name?

"His examiner holds the fate of the judge in the hollow of his hand. And all the while, be it remembered, there are no charges pending against the judge, where such charges should be made. The examiner imparts to the judge no information whatever of any complaint. There is no chance for defense.

"This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor."—Judge Emory Speer, in an address before the Iowa Bar Association.

FRANK PROSECUTION BANKING HEAVILY ON GIRL'S STORY

FIGHT OPENS TO REFORM STATE PRISON SYSTEM

CHAINGANGS ABOLISHED BY BILL IN SENATE

Sweeping changes in the prison system of the State of Georgia are provided by a bill introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator A. H. Foster, of the Twenty-seventh District.

Senator Foster's bill, which he declares meets with the approval of Senate leaders, contains the following important provisions:

To provide for the inspection of all county jails.

To abolish the county chaingang.

To provide an indeterminate sentence in both felony and misdemeanor cases.

To arrange for the parole and after-care of prisoners.

To define the meaning of and disposition of habitual criminals.

To provide for a system of grades, classifications and credits of convicts while in the penitentiary.

To provide for the appointment and compensation of wardens and guards for the penitentiary.

Indorsed by Reformers.

Senator Foster stated shortly after introducing his bill that in addition to having the support of influential members of the Senate, the measure has the backing of the Georgia Prison Reform Association. The bill, Senator Foster stated, embodies the results of the investigations of the association and Philip Weltner, and in addition contains some ideas of his own.

Senator Foster declared that while he expected that some amendments would be made in the bill before it is passed, he would concentrate his efforts to retaining the wording of the original bill in the section relating to indeterminate sentences. This, he declared, was the most needed reform in Georgia prison methods.

The phrase "to abolish the county chaingang," in the caption of the bill, is confusing, inasmuch as slight reference is made to it in the body of the measure.

Senator Foster stated that his idea was not so much to totally abolish the chaingang system as to make it impossible to work negroes and whites together. He hopes, he says, to abolish the mixed chaingangs and segregate the races.

The sections of the bill set forth that the policy of the State shall hereafter be to so deal with convicts "that their punishment may serve to discipline them to right conceptions of citizenship."

Board Members Inspectors.

The burden of the inspection of prisons and jails is placed upon the State Prison Commission, which, declares the bill, shall provide for "quarterly visitation of all county jails and aid in their just, humane and economic administration." The Commission shall make a report of each visit to the Governor.

Instead of the fixed sentence, Senator Foster's bill declares that when any prisoner is convicted of a felony or misdemeanor the court shall pronounce an indeterminate sentence.

The bill also impresses upon the Prison Commission the necessity of segregating the youthful prisoners from the old and hardened offenders.

One of the strong and unusual features of the bill is a section providing that all moneys earned by the

JUDGE SPEER RAPS U. S. ATTORNEY GENERAL

SIOUX CITY, IOWA, June 26.—Severe criticism of the Attorney General of the United States for having him investigated by special agents and secret service men in the employ of the Department of Justice was the feature of the address of Judge Emory Speer, of the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia, before the Iowa Bar Association today. He also stated that the detectives are liable for contempt of court for operating in the presence of the court.

Judge Speer spoke to the Iowa lawyers, who are in annual meeting here, on "The Debt the American People Owe the American Judges." When he had finished that subject he discussed the action of the Department of Justice in probing his personal and judicial record.

Questions Right to Probe.

Judge Speer said, in part:

"More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Federal judge is the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the arbitrary espionage or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name? I speak impersonally and with all deference and respect for the distinguished official who is ex-officio the leader of the American bar."

Hints at Contempt of Court.

Judge Speer then stated that the examiner had appeared in court, made copious notes with significant gestures, conferred with disgruntled attorneys, received letters from convicts in the penitentiary, interviewed stubborn debtors who had been forced by the court to pay their obligations and examined newspaper files.

"The examiner, and I speak of him with great respect, even with timid deprecation, works in a mysterious way his wonders to perform," said the Judge, adding:

"He holds the fate of the judge in the hollow of his hand. And all the while, be it remembered, there are no charges pending against the judge, where such charges should be made. The examiner imparts to the judge no information whatever of any complaint. There is no chance for defense.

"This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor. If proper with a district judge, it is equally appropriate with the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States.

"For action less directly in the presence of the court, less interfering with the administration of justice, men have been convicted for contempt of court, and the convictions have been sustained."

Street Awning Falls, Knocking Out Driver

W. L. Claire, 179 South Pryor Street, driver for the Southern Express Company, was seriously injured early Thursday morning when struck on the head by a falling awning rod in Whitehall Street. He was taken to Grady Hospital.

Eyewitnesses said the top of the express wagon struck the awning, causing it to fall. Claire was rendered unconscious.

MACON BUSINESS MAN INSANE IN ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—Temporarily insane from the effects of the hot weather and alcoholic excesses, Patum Dean, 33 years old, of Macon, Ga., a friend of B. Sanders Walker, the Macon banker who died from the effects of bichloride of mercury taken by mistake for aspirin, is held here in the observation ward at the City Hospital following an attempt to swallow some of the poison which caused his friend's death.

Dean is connected with the Bibb Sewer and Pipe Company, of Macon, and the Evans & Howard Sewer and Pipe Company, of St. Louis. He came to St. Louis Sunday to confer with officials of the latter concern. He remained at the American Hotel until Monday, then checked out. Wednesday he called on his nephew, John Gentry, city passenger agent of the Southern Railroad. He was unable to give any account of his whereabouts since Monday.

Dean has a wife and four children in Macon.

Absence of Heads Of Pure Milk Body Postpones Report

Owing to the illness of Dr. S. A. Visanska and the absence from Atlanta of Oscar Elsas, the luncheon scheduled for Thursday at the Piedmont Hotel to consider the report of the milk committee of the Chamber of Commerce has been postponed indefinitely.

Dr. Visanska, who is chairman of the committee, is recuperating at a South Carolina sanitarium, and Mr. Elsas, the vice chairman, is at the bedside of his son in a New York hospital.

Featuring the report of the milk committee is a recommendation that the Chamber of Commerce have Dr. Charles North, sanitarian of New York City, come to Atlanta and conduct a week's investigation. Secretary W. G. Cooper, of the Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday an early date would be set for the luncheon, at which time the milk committee's report would be considered.

Priest Will Conduct Boxing Bouts July 4

NEW YORK, June 26.—The Rev. Father M. P. Heffnan, rector of the Catholic Church at Sayville, L. I., has been granted a license to conduct the Sayville Athletic Club.

The license was issued by the New York State Athletic Commission at its regular weekly meeting.

Father Heffnan will open his new club house for the young men of all creeds and denominations on July 4, when he will present a series of boxing matches. The priest is collaborated by clergymen of different denominations.

QUEEN'S BAN ON RIDING ASTRIDE CAUSES STIR

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 26.—Announcement that King George, Queen Mary and President Poincare of France would attend the International Horse Show at Olympia to-day brought out the biggest crowd since the show began. Among the spectators were many Americans and other foreign tourists.

The royal box was decorated with intertwined British and French colors. Much comment was aroused by Queen Mary's edict that women in the show should not ride astride while she is present. The Queen, the foremost champion of feminine modesty since Queen Victoria, recently issued the same order to her daughter, Princess Mary.

Miss Ruth Boyd, of New York, who has a number of horses entered in the show, threatened to withdraw because of the Queen's edict, saying she could not use a side saddle, having been used to riding astride all her life.

Cool Weather Just Ahead, Forecaster's Solemn Assurance

Cooler weather is on the way.

"Fair and warm" is the forecast for Thursday, but moderate breezes sifting through the West and Middle West are due to reach Atlanta at no distant date. Possibly Thursday afternoon may bring a little relief from the high temperature of the last two weeks. Thunder showers are anticipated in the Atlanta territory, and if the city is so fortunate as to lie in the path of the rain it may enjoy moderate weather for a day or two.

This announcement was made by the United States Weather Bureau Thursday morning, and it brought joy unlimited. The drop in temperature may be as much as 8 or 10 degrees, according to official dope. Temperature at 7 o'clock Thursday morning was 75 degrees. At 8 it was 80.

Armor Retains Job At Industrial Home

MACON, June 26.—W. F. Armor, the farm overseer of the Georgia Industrial Home, who whipped a 10-year-old boy with a rope last Friday, has not resigned, and does not intend to sever connection with the institution. The trustees have exonerated him.

It was stated yesterday by one of the trustees that Mr. Armor's resignation was forthcoming. In a statement sent from St. Simons, where he is spending a vacation, Armor states that he will not resign. However, his wife, Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, appeared before the trustees and offered an oral resignation for him. It appears now that she did this without his authority.

PAINTER FAMILY LOSES IN SUIT FOR ORGANS

BALTIMORE, June 26.—The demurrer offered by the family of Edward O. Painter, the late Jacksonville fertilizer man, against the appointment of a receiver for his viscera, was overruled by Judge Duffy in Circuit Court to-day. The receivership proceedings, however, were continued until July 15, during which time the defendants may show cause why a receiver should not be appointed.

When the case is reopened Judge Duffy will take testimony tending to show why a receiver should be named to take charge of the Painter organs. In the meantime they will remain here in the possession of Dr. Charles Glaser, chemist, to whom they were sent from Jacksonville for analysis.

In overruling the demurrer Judge Duffy said that the attorneys for the Painter family and Coroner Abbott had not shown it was within the jurisdiction of the court to appoint a receiver for the organs. The court, he ruled, had the power to appoint a receiver, but he admitted it was questionable whether the court, after appointing a receiver, had the right to order the receiver to make scientific examinations of the organs as has been asked by the Fidelity and Guaranty Company.

The Painter family contended that the viscera of Painter, being parts of a human body, could not be considered in the ligh tof personal property and chattel to be disposed of at the will of the courts.

STOVER GIRL PLAYS STAR PART IN TRIAL

Monteen Stover, a timid little 14½ year-old girl, will be a star witness in the trial of Leo M. Frank July 28 on the charge of strangling Mary Phagan in the National Pencil Factory, according to all indications Thursday.

The frequency with which she has been called upon to repeat her story of going to the factory on the day of the crime and finding Frank absent from his office is taken as an almost certain indication that the prosecution regards her statements of the utmost importance.

The State, if it is able to establish that Monteen Stover entered the factory on the day of the crime just after Mary Phagan went inside, will have scored a most significant victory. The evidence will still be circumstantial, it is true, but it will be of greater weight even than the weird stories of the negro sweeper, Jim Conley, who has sworn that he aided Frank in disposing of the body.

Adds to Mystery.

Her story, however, until it is substantiated or disproved in court, only adds to the mystery of a crime which already abounds in baffling and mysterious phases. Her appearance on the witness stand may mean everything or nothing—because there is the startling fact that every indication points to Monteen Stover having entered the factory BEFORE Mary Phagan.

Monteen Stover is the daughter of Mrs. Homer Edmonson, of 171 South Forsyth Street. She formerly was employed at the pencil factory, and on the Saturday of the murder went to the building to get her money. She said that she arrived there at 12:05 and remained about five minutes. She said that Frank was not in his office and that she was not able to find him.

Pitted against the declaration of the little girl is the statement of Frank that he was in his office at the time. One of the two apparently has spoken falsely or mistakenly. It is the theory of the State that Mary Phagan had preceded Monteen Stover into the factory; that Frank had attacked her probably in the metal room, and that this is the reason the Stover girl was unable to find Frank in his office when she was in the building from 12:05 to 12:10.

Where the Case Is Hit.

Should the State be able to impress the jury that this was the actual sequence of events, the prosecution will argue that Mary Phagan left the office in company with Frank and went to the metal room.

But the theory of the State is at once assailed by what appears to be practically certain evidence that, as a matter of fact, Monteen Stover was at the factory before Mary Phagan entered. If this is the case, Frank's absence from his office could not have had any significance, for Mary Phagan was not yet there.

The Phagan girl left her home at 11:50. She lives in Bellwood and the ride to town takes more than 15 minutes. The time that she left the car in the city is fixed by William M. Matthews, Motorman No. 1447, of the Cooper and Hendricks Streets run, who says that his car arrived at Broad and Marietta Streets that day between 12:07 and 12:10 o'clock.

If Mary Phagan had hurried, she barely could have got to the factory by the time the Stover girl was leaving, if this testimony can be relied upon implicity. The Stover girl's story falls down utterly, so far as its value is concerned, therefore, if Mary Phagan did not come into the factory until after the Stover girl had left.

All prisoners save lifers on charge of treason, arson or criminal assault are granted the privilege of applying to the Governor and the Prison Commission for parole three months before the expiration of the minimum time which they may be required to serve.

Provides W. and A. Inquiry.

A resolution authorizing the appointment of a legislative committee of eight to investigate the State's railroad, the Western and Atlantic, and determine upon its proper disposal, was introduced in the Senate Thursday morning by Senator J. T. Longino, of the Thirty-sixth District.

The committee is to be composed of three from the Senate and five from the House, and will do its work during the recess of the General Assembly. The members are to be paid their usual per diem and expenses, and shall report at the next meeting of the General Assembly.

Senator Longino's resolution specifically states that the committee shall investigate the best plan for "the renting of the property, and improving the State's property in Chattanooga."

No mention is made of the activities of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, or of the State convention proposed by that body.

Donaldson Would Bar Reformers From Camp.

Prison reformers will be barred from the convict camps in Fulton County, according to a resolution drawn by Superintendent T. J. Donaldson Thursday, which probably will be passed by the County Commission at its next meeting.

The resolution puts the ban on the "small army of ministers" and "all-day Sunday services" as well. A "convict parson" will be employed to preach regularly at each of the six camps. He will be prohibited from bringing more than one person with him. The service will be limited to one hour, from 11 to 12 o'clock each Sunday forenoon.

"I am getting tired of all this reform talk from people who do not know what they are talking about," said Captain Donaldson.

Satisfied Till Reformers Arrive.

"The condition of nine of every ten convicts of the 700 in this county is 100 per cent better than it was before they violated the law and received a sentence. Without an exception, the general health is better.

"The men have clean beds, get wholesome food and live under sanitary conditions that are far superior to anything they have known before. They are usually pretty well satisfied until Sunday, when these ministers and reformers worry them for several hours they could better enjoy in rest.

"Our convict system is about as good as any in the world. The idea that the men leave greater criminals than they were before they came to us is absurd. Some of them don't like work and would welcome the reform and flowery beds of ease, but if there is any good in a man he is willing to pay for what he has done without a murmur.

Says They Start New Lives.

"The work reforms as many of the men as the ministers do. They leave us in a much better condition than they were when we got them and at least half start a new life.

"Those who do not reform could not be reformed unless a shotgun was used. If the conditions the reformers seek were brought about I would get rid of my property in Fulton County and go to some other State."

Captain Donaldson will urge the county board to adopt his resolution when it is presented, and he thinks it will be adopted.

Committees To Be Announced Next Week.

The various committee assignments in both Houses will not be announced before next week, as the framing of them is perhaps the very hardest and most exacting work that will come before the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House during the entire session.

President Anderson and Speaker Burwell began working on committee assignments immediately after adjournment yesterday, but it will require a week, perhaps, to finish the undertaking.

It seems to be an accepted fact that Representative Blackburn, of Fulton, is to be the House floor leader, inasmuch as he is reported slated to head the Committee on Rules, while it is freely rumored about the Capitol today that President Anderson proposes to evidence his entire friendship and good will toward his fate rival, Judge Allen, the Senator from the Twentieth District, by offering him his choice between the chairmanship of the Finance and the Constitutional Amendments Committee in the Senate.

Both these suggested assignments apparently meet with the approval of the Houses involved, for nothing but commendation of them is heard on any hand.

Indeed, the fine feeling in the Senate, following the strenuous struggle for the presidency thereof, is remarked by every one, and it now looks as if the new Legislature is to get away with its work in a spirit of genuine good fellowship and mutual respect all around.

Certainly for the first time in ten years Georgia appears to have on hand a General Assembly that may be classed neither as a "Smith" nor a "Brown" body.

Beyond the suggestion of Blackburn for vice chairman of the Committee on Rules in the House and Allen for either Finance or Constitutional amendments in the Senate, the "dope" on the committee line-ups is pretty bad. Neither President Anderson nor Speaker Burwell will discuss the matter at all.

For the next two days the Legislature will do little more than "mark time," anticipating the inauguration of the new Governor and the winding up of the present administration.

Message Divides Members.

Preparations for Governor Slaton's inauguration on Saturday already are well under way. The ceremony will be quiet and dignified, the new Governor breaking a long line of precedents in Georgia, however, by delivering his message orally to the Legislature in joint session, rather than sending it in separately to both Houses, as a written document.

Flow of Bills Begins in Senate.

The following bills were introduced in the Senate Wednesday morning:

By Senator Pope, of the Forty-fourth District, and Senator Hixon, of the Thirty-seventh—A bill to exempt from taxation farm products, including baled cotton grown in this State.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill to establish the new county of Tate, with Fairmount as the county seat.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill to compel two or more railroads entering a town or city to erect a union passenger station.

By Senator Smith, of the Ninth—A bill to empower judges of the Superior Courts to grant charters to private companies in vacation.

By Senator Tarver, of the Forty-third—A bill permitting administrators to sue in homicide cases.

Short Thursday Session; Canvass Vote for Slaton.

Both the Senate and House of Representatives convened at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, but will have but a short hour in which to transact their individual business, as a joint meeting is scheduled.

At the joint session the vote for Governor will be canvassed and John M. Slaton formally declared elected. Beyond this neither House will hardly handle much business. Friday is expected to be a busy day, while Saturday will be devoted to the inauguration ceremonies.

Mystery in Trip of Mackay to Europe

NEW YORK, June 26.—Mystery attends the sailing of Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph Company, on the Imperator yesterday, accompanied by his three children.

Mrs. Mackay was at her home in Roslyn, Lang Island, when her husband with his children hurried on board the Imperator. Mrs. Mackay expressed great surprise when she learned that her husband had gone abroad.

PUSHES DEMAND FOR PAPERS IN M'NAB CASE

Kahn Urges Committee to Favor His Resolution for Accounting From McReynolds.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Representative Kahn, of California, to-day vigorously urged the House Judiciary Committee to make a favorable report on his two resolutions calling for correspondence in possession of the Department of Justice relative to the Caminetti-Diggs white slave case which led to the resignation of District Attorney John L. McNab, of San Francisco.

Mr. Kahn declared that McNab notified McReynolds that witnesses were being tampered with in the Caminetti case.

He pointed out that in McNab's telegram to President Wilson, McNab charged open boasts were made that influence was to be used to prevent the prosecution of Caminetti and Diggs.

Representative Thomas, a member of the committee, wanted to know if Kahn knew what witnesses had been tampered with.

"I expect that to be disclosed by the correspondence," replied Mr. Kahn. "Here is an attorney who, evidently, sought to do his duty and was frustrated. A special attorney probably will be hired and he will get a big fee."

Brilliant Men All Unbalanced, Says Atlanta Alienist

"No brilliant man is perfectly poised mentally. All artists and musicians in a way are mentally unbalanced. They are the highest type of deranged persons. The man who is perfectly poised mentally is not brilliant."—Dr. J. Cheston King, Atlanta, Ga.

CHICAGO, June 26.—This statement was made at the National Convention of Alienists here.

"The perfectly poised man," said Dr. King, "is a very common man. When he falls in love it is purely a matter of the heart. When an artist falls in love it is more a condition of mind. But when a mentally balanced, common man falls in love he sees his sweetheart through the eyes of a genius."

Peachtree Paving Starts Soon, Says Smith, Preparing

Chairman Shelby Smith, of the County Commission, began preparations Thursday to start work soon on the improvement of Peachtree Road from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead. The work, he said, probably would start within the next ten days.

"We would have started this work some weeks ago," he said, "but could not get the material nor the labor. The material will be available in a few days. We can get labor from some of the streets that will be completed shortly and put it on the Peachtree road."

Chairman Smith said he would not consent to beginning the work until he had men enough and the right kind of material to make the road a credit to the county.

Former Tennessee Governor, McMillin, Minister to Peru

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Benton McMillin, former Governor of Tennessee, has been decided on as Minister to Peru. His nomination probably will go to the Senate to-day.

Justice J. W. Girard, of New York, probably will be the next American ambassador to Germany, according to information current at the White House to-day.

The State Department confirmed reports that Frederick C. Penfield, of Pennsylvania, will be the next American Ambassador to Austria.

BROWN ADVISES AGAINST W. & A. EXTENSION

Cost, $20,000,000, Too Great to Be Compatible With State's Policy, Says Message.

Opposition to the extension of the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the sea was expressed in a message sent by Governor Brown to the Legislature. The cost of building such a road, which, it is said, would be about $20,000,000, is the reason given by Governor Brown for his opposition.

That the rental of such an addition if possible to lease it, would not amount to more than the interest on the bonds, thus leaving nothing with which to pay off the principal, is one of the arguments advanced by him against the building of the road.

Governor Brown suggests that the State of Georgia might forever control its freight rates by obtaining a concession of land from Tennessee, giving it a frontage of a mile on the Tennessee River. A short branch could be built from the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the river and connection made with boats from Ohio and Mississippi River points. This, he states, could be done at a cost of $3,000,000.

Suggests a Commission.

That the Governor be authorized to appoint a commission to investigate the re-leasing of the Western and Atlantic is also suggested in the message, which follows, in part:

To the General Assembly:

There is no subject of more weighty interest to the people of Georgia than that of the future disposition of the Western and Atlantic Railroad. It is not to be considered that the State will seriously entertain a proposition for the sale of this, its most important piece of property.

A large portion of the people, while generally holding in mind the notable amercial worth of this railroad to the State, have also accepted the fact that it is in some respects the most potent of all factors in controlling reasonable rates of freight from other States into Georgia. In fact, in its potency as a rate-fixer and competition-securer, our fathers, in constructing it, builded wiser than they knew.

Calls Extension Visionary Scheme.

Much has been said for years past on the subject of extending the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the sea. My judgment, however, is that the fixed policy of the State as to her finances makes this a visionary scheme. In the first place the extension of the road from Atlanta to the sea would cost, when we include proper terminals, etc., undoubtedly more than $15,000,000. In fact, a report made to your honorable bodies, found on page 829, House Journal, 1909, estimated that the cost of the extension would be $71,650 per mile, making the total cost, if it were about 275 miles long, almost $20,000,000. If, however, the extension is to Savannah, Darien, Brunswick and St. Marys, the main line extension would be at least 125 miles more at a cost of upwards of $3,000,000, it being understood that terminals, rolling stock and other extra items are probably charged in the original estimate per mile. Every dollar of this amount would have to be borrowed.

But, as the Constitution of the State forbids any increase of the public debt, it would first be necessary to amend the Constitution so as to saddle this enormous debt upon the people. At 4 per cent the interest account on $20,000,000 alone would be $800,000 annually.

Whether the State would or would not undertake to run the road herself, it is manifest that she would be a very great loser, expressing it moderately, by spending many millions of dollars in extending the Western and Atlantic Railroad to the sea.

Suggests Terminal on Tennessee.

At Shellmound, in Tennessee, the Tennessee River runs within less than a mile of Nickajack Cave, in Georgia. If the two States would agree that the Georgia boundary line be deflected to the Tennessee River at or near Shellmound, and, after allowing Georgia a frontage of about a mile on the river, to deflect back to the present State line and, either adjoining that point or at some other locality deflect the line inward so as to give to Tennessee an adequate portion of Dade County to compensate for the portion added to Dade County by the State of Tennessee, Georgia would, of course, have a landing on the Tennessee River. Then if she would tunnel Lookout, Sand and Raccoon Mountains and extend a line to the Tennessee River from or near Ringgold or Graysville, Georgia, this would enable her Railroad Commission at all times to hold down the rates from the Tennessee River to Atlanta, to which would be added the low water rates to Shellmound, and in this way make the State absolutely independent of railroad monopolies, inasmuch as a reduction in the rates to Atlanta would bring a reduction to all cities in the State.

This extension, I am told, would call for five or six miles of tunnels costing about $250,000 per mile and possibly upward of thirty miles of additional railroad costing from $20,000 to $25,000 per mile, making a total for these two items of, say, $2,250,000. Therefore, it would appear that $3,000,000 ought to cover the total cost of the suggested extension.

Another Plan for River Point.

There is another alternative method for practically putting the Tennessee River traffic at a landing place in Georgia. This can be done if Chickamauga Creek is widened, deepened and straightened from its mouth near Boyce Station to a point in Catoosa County, so as to allow boats from St. Louis and other Western ports to come up the canal and cross the Georgia-Tennessee boundary line. The canal thus made would not be more than 12 miles long and should not cost $1,000,000.

I will ask you to bear in mind that I am not recommending that the State increase her debt by making an extension of her railroad from either end; but I am indicating that if she decides to adopt this policy she will secure immensely greater benefits for her people by spending, at the most, $3,000,000 in extending it to the banks of the Tennessee River in her own borders than by spending some $20,000,000 extending it to the sea.

Although the State of Georgia has an absolute advantage over her competitors in Chattanooga, it is seriously proposed that she shall abdicate that advantage and allow her competitors to succeed to it. The plan advocated is to ground rent a large portion of the track space in the center of Chattanooga, and enticing figures are shown as a reason why the State should do this.

Would Impair State's Power.

Now, if the State proposes to go into the real estate renting business and for that purpose is willing to impair her power for conducting a great transportation line, she can probably look with favor upon the proposed plan to dismantle the road.

For many years the Western and Atlantic Railroad had almost a monopoly of the business in the center of the city, hence the owners of the above named roads went to the enormous expenditure referred to for the purpose of competing with the Western and Atlantic.

Therefore, the proposition that the State of Georgia remove its present passenger and freight terminals in Atlanta and Chattanooga from their points of vantage really seems a strange one. For the reasons above given, I am firmly convinced that the State should entertain no thought of dismantling her property and thereby putting herself at a disadvantage as compared with her transportation competitors.

Now, as to the future disposition of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, it is well known that the present lease will expire December 27, 1919. It is not too soon, therefore, for the State to begin to consider what steps she will take toward protecting her citizens in determining the future of her railroad.

Doesn't Favor Long Lease.

I am quite clear, however, in my conviction that the State ought not to consent to a lease for a longer period than thirty years. No one knows what may be the conditions, commercially and otherwise, thirty years from now. There may be complications which would result in serious discrimination against her people and great loss to the State if she bound herself to a lease of practically a hundred years.

Therefore, she should hold it within her power to take back her road about once in the life time of each generation and adjust the new lease to the conditions then prevailing.

By this means she could be reasonably sure of protecting her people in the power to hold their own with the people of other States within future decades, for bear in mind that each generation is entitled to solve its own problems in its own way. We know not what complexities will confront our children and grandchildren in handling the affairs of the State, and should not handicap them.

I recommend, therefore, that your honorable bodies provide for a commission consisting of three or five citizens of Georgia, to be appointed by the Governor, whose duty it shall be to formulate a plan for the future leasing of the Western and Atlantic Railroad. Yet, it may be best to defer action on this subject until your session in 1914. This will allow ample time for mature consideration, whereas, if all action were deferred for your successors, the next General Assembly, the matter might not receive the careful thought it merits.

Respectfully submitted,
JOSEPH M. BROWN,
Governor.

Knew Assailants, Dies With Secret

CHICAGO, June 26.—Two men were saved from possible death today by the death of John Walsh, a saloonkeeper. Walsh knew the two men who recently assaulted and robbed him. He refused to tell the police who they were. Even when told that he was about to die he retained his secret, saying:

"I'll take care of them myself. I'm no squealer. I know 'em and I'll get 'em. I want to fight my own battles."

Time Gained by Boys Relaying Letter Lost

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 26.—After gaining five hours on their schedule last night in the Boy Scout relay race from Washington to Chicago, the time was lost early to-day when a delay occurred at Youngstown, Ohio, and the message will not reach Cleveland until the scheduled time, 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Russell Windisch, 6-year-old son of Major Windisch, will be the first Clevelander to run. He will carry the message 100 yards.

Policeman's Right to Shoot To Be Settled

The right of policemen to shoot down a fleeing citizen who does not halt when ordered, will be determined by the trial of Policeman E. H. Parham, charged with the murder of John Wright, a white boy, last December. The trial was scheduled for this week, but was postponed Wednesday afternoon, and probably will not be taken up for another week.

Parham, it is asserted, ordered Wright to halt, then fired and killed him when he kept on running.

ATTACK VALIDITY OF SEATING 2 IN HOUSE

Bleckley and Wheeler Members May Be Denied Places—Moss Upholds Unions.

An attack on the validity of seating the representatives from Bleckley and Wheeler Counties featured the opening of the House session Thursday morning.

A resolution was introduced by Representative H. J. Fulbright, of Burke, his claim being that under the Constitution the membership of the House is limited to 184, while these two members made a total of 186. The resolution provided for the appointment of a committee of nine to investigate the matter. It was adopted.

The men representing the two new counties are George A. Browning, of Bleckley, and Douglas McArthur, of Wheeler. The two new counties were formed in 1912.

Unions Praised.

Representative H. B. Moss, of Cobb County, introduced a resolution expressing confidence in the laboring men of Georgia and asking their cooperation in the upbuilding of the State. It was referred to a committee. The resolution is, in effect, a reply to Governor Brown's message of Wednesday which flayed unionism.

At 10:35 o'clock the House adjourned until 3 minutes of 11, at which time it went into joint session with the Senate to canvass the vote for Governor.

Members Not Unanimous.

Calling of the roll and reading of the journal consumed 25 minutes following the opening of the House for the Thursday morning session. C. E. Stewart, of Coffee County, and Grover Cleveland Edmondson, of Brooks, were the two who refused to join in unanimous consent to dispense with calling the roll and reading the journal.

A bill to prohibit county authorities from payin insolvent costs on bills and county officials from the general fund was introduced by Brinson of Jenkins.

A bill providing for the incorporation of the town of Chickamauga was introduced by Farris of Walker.

Cook of Chattahoochee introduced a bill providing for creation of a board of commissioners of roads and revenues in Chattahoochee County.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Men

Send Name and Address To-day—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow-men to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest acting restorative, up-building SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4276 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the Othine Prescription.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by Jacobs' Pharmacy under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

HATRED OF OWN FAMILY LEADS DOOMED CONVICT TO AUCTION OFF HIS BODY

FORSYTH, GA., June 26.—Hatred of his own family has prompted Thomas A. McCullough, a convict in the Monroe County chaingang, to advertise his own body for sale to the highest bidder.

Self-sworn never again to have anything to do with his relatives, he is now in mortal fear that his body after death will be turned over to them for burial. McCullough's fear has been increased by the physician's statement that he is suffering from heart disease and has not long to live.

The money which his body would bring is a secondary matter to the convict. His one real desire is that death shall not seal the breach which he has cherished and broadened in life between himself and his family. Therefore, by disposal of his body to some medical school for experiments he hopes to eliminate this possibility.

"Cut Up While Alive."

"Why shouldn't they buy me?" McCullough exclaimed as he leaned his great, hairy body against his pick and looked down at his interviewer. 'I've been cut up while alive and I wouldn't care if they cut me up after I am dead.

"If I've got a thing to do with it, not a single member of my family will get my body when I die. I don't want them to have a thing to do with me. I'd rather be left out for the buzzards than be turned over to them."

McCullough's strange hatred is founded upon his belief that his family "turned him up" when he was in hiding from the officers of the law following his escape from the camp some months ago.

He had been sentenced to eighteen years' penal servitude for the murder of a negro in Spalding County. The deed was the outcome of a quarrel between the two in a gambling game.

Caught After Three Months.

McCullough was sent to the Morgan County convict camp, but escaped three months later. Eluding the officers through briar patches and woods, the fugitive finally made his way back to his home in Spalding County. He remained there in hiding for two months. Then he was discovered by the officers and sent to the State farm at Milledgeville. His last words to his family as he was taken from his home were curses on them for having "turned him up," or betrayed him to the law. Whether they did or not was never proven.

From the Milledgeville institution McCullough was sent to join the Monroe County chaingang. He has now served 15 months of his 18-year term.

McCullough is an extremist in all things. Physically he is a powerful man; mentally he is without moral sense, and while he is the most desperate character in the camp and the only man prisoner over whom a guard keeps watch day and night, still he is the best worker of them all.

In the camp McCullough remains aloof from his fellow prisoners. He suffers from melancholia a great deal and has nursed his hatred against his family until the flame has blazed into almost a mania.

Only Nature Softens Him.

Only the sight of some pet or captured animal about the camp quiets him. Then his nature changes instantly, and from the cursing half-maniac the powerful man becomes a child, and his hatred is drowned in his love for the things of nature.

Only recently did the convict learn of his malady, that he was afflicted with heart disease. When informed of this he was struck with terror, not of death, but the probable disposal of his body. He had visions of his still form surrounded by his family—the ones he hated. Then it was that he wrote out the advertisement and sent it to The Georgian for publication. Here it is:

FOR SALE—To the highest bidder for cash, I offer my body, which is 6 feet high, weighs 175 pounds, is large frame, well proportioned, 40 years of age and Caucasian race.

I have a sentence of 18 years for killing a negro in Griffin in 1911 and have no prospects, no hopes and no friends, hence, being in bad health, I am asking this proposition. Anyone wishing to consummate a trade, address Thomas A. McCullough, Box 271, Care Monroe County Convict Camp.

YANCEYS YET ARE UNPROVIDED FOR

"Workingman," Inclosing $10, Begs That Deputy's Family May Not Suffer Want.

"It is a blot on the fair name of Atlanta that the widow and six children of Dave Yancey should have to plead for a pittance that they may have bread and meat, and then not get it. I inclose $10 herewith to apply on the fund."

A ten-dollar gold certificate was inclosed with this note Monday from a person signing himself "A Workingman." The money was for the family of Court Deputy Yancey.

There have been few subscriptions to the Yancey fund this week. Although but barely more than enough to pay the mortgage off the little farm on the Jonesboro Road has been subscribed, Atlanta's citizens apparently feel they have done sufficient for the family of their servant who met his death doing his duty.

Compared with the prosperity of the Gate City, the wants of the Yancey family are insignificant, yet they mean everything that the future holds for the widow and her fatherless children.

More money is needed for this worthy cause, and every citizen who has not contributed his mite to the fund is asked now to do so.

The following are subscriptions which previously have not been acknowledged by The Georgian:

Jordan to Preach Bryan Idea Abroad

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Dr. David Starr Jordan, Chancellor of Leland Stanford University, who is starting on a year's tour of the world to lecture in England, China, Australia and elsewhere on the peace movement, called on Secretary Bryan to-day and told him that he thoroughly approved and would preach the doctrines of Mr. Bryan's proposed peace treaties.

THE MODERN WAY.

TALLEY APPEALS FROM SENTENCE

Man Who Shot Blackstock Gets 29 Days—Is Locked Up in Default of Bonds.

"Hub" Talley, who shot George W. Blackstock during a row in Peters Street several weeks ago, has filed notice of appeal from the sentence of 29 days in the city stockade imposed on him Wednesday afternoon by Judge Broyles, on a charge of discharging firearms in the city limits.

A State case also was brought against Talley before Judge Broyles in which Talley was held to the higher court on $5,000 bond on charges of assault with intent to murder and carrying concealed weapons. Talley's appeal bond was fixed at $500, in default of which he is a prisoner at police headquarters.

Two negro women who testified in Talley's behalf that Blackstock had an open knife in his hand when Talley shot him were held for the Grand Jury on perjury charges. Several white men testified Blackstock had no weapon when the fight occurred.

In an effort to prevent Judge Broyles from binding him over Talley's attorney, William M. Smith, told the court the prisoner had waived examination before Justice Powers and had been held for the Grand Jury in $500 bond. Judge Broyles could find no record that Talley had appeared before Justice Powers.

Attorney C. G. Battle represented Blackstock in the Police Court trial.

Rector Fights Tango With Model Dances

NEW YORK, June 26.—Hoping to stop the tango, the turkey trot and other modern dances, the Rev. George B. Gilbert, rector of the Episcopal Church, at Middletown, Conn., has leased the dancing pavilion at Lake View Park and will conduct it as a model dance hall during the summer.

Leading society women from the city are chaperons for the dances, the first of which was held last night.

Submarine 'Movies' Taken in Diving Tube

NORFOLK, June 26.—Moving pictures of submarine life have been made possible through the invention by Captain J. H. Williamson of a flexible tube with a windowed chamber, in which three men can work.

A son of the inventor descended 35 feet at night, and with the aid of electric lights took pictures of fish at the bottom of Hampton Roads.

Younger Set of Millionaire Colony Engages Instructor for New Dances.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—During the coming season, which gives promise of being one of the most brilliant in the history of the fashionable colony, fancy dancing will be one of the popular diversions.

The younger set, of which Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., is a leader, has engaged an instructor, and dancing quite dissimilar to the popular tango and turkey trot will play an important role in the amusements of the millionaire cottage colony.

Mrs. Spencer, who is a member of the Casino Tennis Committee and active in the numerous affairs in which the younger set is interested, is an accomplished dancer herself, and any new forms of dancing inaugurated by her are certain to be taken up and followed by the young people of Newport. The colony is awaiting this innovation with interest.

Mrs. Spencer won particular admiration from society when she danced at the big benefit of the girls' branch of the Public School Athletic League, given at the Waldorf in New York last February. Her artistic Swedish dances in costume won her a tremendous ovation and three times she was asked to repeat them.

FREE SUGAR AND WOOL FIRST IN TARIFF BILL

Senate Caucus Ratifies Wilson's Policy—Foodstuff Clause Effective in 1916.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Free sugar in 1916 and free raw wool have been approved by the Democratic caucus of the Senate, after a two-days' fight, and are established in the new tariff bill. The sugar schedule, practically as it passed the House, was approved by a vote of 40 to 6. Free raw wool swept the Senate caucus by a vote of 41 to 6.

This ratification of President Wilson's tariff policy came after a long series of developments since the tariff bill passed the House in which the President had an active participation.

When the fight was getting hot the President declared any suggestion of compromise on the wool and sugar schedule ideas was absolutely out of the question.

Then he stirred administration leaders to action when he made his "insidious lobby" charge, which has brought results regarded as favorable to the tariff bill.

The six Democratic Senators who voted against free sugar on the final vote approving the schedule were Hitchcock, Nebraska; Newlands, Nevada; Ransdell and Thornton, Louisiana; Shafroth, Colorado; Walsh, Montana.

The six who opposed free raw wool were Chamberlain of Oregon, Newlands, Nevada; Ransdell and Thornton, Louisiana; Shafroth and Walsh.

No attempt was made to bind members to the action of the caucus. The question will come up when the entire bill has been passed upon.

$8.50 to $12.50 Lingerie Dresses $5.85

Look at these dresses with critical eyes—compare them with the best dresses you have been able to find heretofore for $8.50 to $12.50. Having just arrived Monday, they portray the latest style thought. They have the "new look"—shaping shoulders and sinuous lines.

Something like 200 in all—crepes, soft and crinkly; voiles, winsome, open to the air; crepes, bestrewn with buds and dainty flowers; linens, firm, flaxful; tissues, striped, as sheer as gossamer; ratines, tousled like a Turkish towel.

There are plain one-piece dresses, some entirely of laces and tucking; the new coat dresses; composed dresses, the tunic of floral crepe, the skirt of voile. Many of the dresses have the new crushed silk girdle. All white, colors, or white and colors in combination. Delightfully new $8.50 to $12.50 dresses and only $5.85.

$5 to $8 Lingerie Dresses at $3.85

Crepes, voiles, linens and lingeries. Some are all white; some are bestrewn with dainty flowers; some are in colors. More than one hundred and fifty in all; with choice of more than a dozen styles.

$18 to $25 Afternoon Dresses at $11.85

About one hundred and twenty in all. The largest lot are of an imported hemstitched white crepe, made in the one-piece style, with crushed girdle of charmeuse or velvet. Others are of voile and crepe in elaborate embroidery designs. White and colors.

Exclusive Creations at $13.85, $15.85, $19.85

Beautiful gowns—copies of Paris creations; exclusive New York originations. At each price there are from ten to twenty gowns. Scarcely any two alike. Materials are of imported crepes, eponges and voiles. Every gown worth from a half to twice over the present price.

COTTON TARIFF A MESS, SAYS EXPERT

R. K. MacLea Writes O'Gorman Lobby Cry Drove Honest Business Men Away.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Robert K. MacLea, associate editor of Dry Goods and formerly consulting expert of the Tariff Board, has sent to United States Senator James A. O'Gorman a letter in which he criticised the cotton changes in the Underwood tariff bill made by the Senate committee and declared that the sub-committee in making them "has been misled by its experts, as I feared likely."

Mr. MacLea has had 25 years' experience in all branches of the cotton trade and his plain talk to Senator O'Gorman will, it is believed, attract much attention at Washington.

In the letter he says:

"I was greatly surprised to read the changes made by the Senate Finance Committee, and while I realize that attempts have been made presumably to eradicate some of the evils of the Underwood bill in regard to cotton manufactures, they have to my mind in really made a worse mess of it than I could have imagined possible.

Says Business Men Will Protest.

"There is no excuse for discrediting the cost accounting shown in the tariff board report on Schedule I. I know that Mr. Patton, one of the experts relied upon by the Senate sub-committee, has rejected its facts, for he told me so recently, stating that it was not worth anything to him and that he cared nothing for it.

"I am sure that when the business men appreciate this situation, they will be heard from in no unmistakable voice. They will understand it in the course of a year certainly.

"There is no reason why a proper cotton and yarn schedule should not have been formulated and I wish to protest vigorously against the enactment into law of the Senate amendments without further adequate changes to properly correct the oversight of the House of Representatives' measure as passed by them and the additional oversights of the Senate sub-committee.

Business Men Driven Away.

"Many honest business men have lately turned away from Washington by the 'lobby' insinuations; yet in one of President Wilson's most notable speeches before he took office he appealed to the 'honest business men of the United States' to help him with legislation.

"Hundreds in the cotton industry had accepted the invitation and after depending upon a correct interpretation of facts by the House of Representatives found that recommendations with proofs had in many ways been ignored. They have since been driven away from Washington in their further honest efforts to point out errors made."

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

by JAMES B. NEVIN

In these parlous times of political maneuvering, wherein one must be both as wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove, politicians of more or less caliber, who never yet have ventured very far from shore, will do well to learn one lesson from the cases of J. Randolph Anderson, President of the Georgia Senate, and William H. Burwell, Speaker of the House.

Neither man won his fight by way of mere personal popularity alone, albeit each has many warm friends and stout-hearted supporters.

The gentleman who put over both Anderson and Allen is none other than our venerated and esteemed fellow citizen, Old Man Hard Work!

Anderson and Burwell have been tireless in their efforts to succeed in their undertakings. Both men have lived their races for months. Anderson and Burwell were at it hammer and tongs while some of their opponents were seeking membership in the Don't Worry Club.

Politics, unlike kissing, rarely goes by favor. They that seek find, if they seek diligently enough—or, at least, they that do not seek rarely find.

Anderson and Burwell both are experienced legislators. Each has served a long and active term of service. Both are first-class parliamentarians, both good speakers and are both fine diplomats. Neither should in any manner "fall down on his job," and it isn't at all likely that either will.

There is a particularly fine and friendly feeling among members of both Houses, and the chances are that Georgia has on its hands at last a Legislature that will be able to proceed to its work free from partisan bias or internal feuds.

That's saying a good deal—but it looks as if the saying is warranted!

Hon. O. K. Jones, one of Lowndes County's representatives, and a strong believer in tax equalization or reform will introduce a bill in the Legislature providing for the appointment of a board of three tax assessors for every Georgia county.

Mr. Jones believes that valuations can be raised 25 per cent without working any hardships, and the State pulled out of the financial bog within a year, by the work of competent and conscientious assessors. There is no question that millions of dollars of taxable property is never returned. The uncovering of this property would within itself materially increase revenues. Representative Jones says:

"To make the proposed boards of real benefit, the members should be appointed and their tenure of office entirely independent of public suffrage. Many a tax receiver has beaten himself by a conscientious and zealous effort to secure just tax returns in his county, and it takes a pretty brave officer to persist in a course, however right, which he knows will beat him at the polls. That danger is removed when the assessors are made appointive."

Governor Brown literally has been swamped with callers to-day and yesterday. The Governor still is very much of an active agent in politics, and keeps in close touch with his friends, just as very many of his friends insist upon keeping in very close touch with him.

To-day and to-morrow will be his last days as Chief Magistrate, for by Saturday morning, when his successor will be inaugurated, he will have everything in shipshape for the new Governor.

It may be taken as a certainty that the Governor will not retire absolutely from sight politically, although it undoubtedly is his purpose to refrain from meddling in the new Governor's business, if he might.

Governor Brown and Governor-elect Slaton are firm friends of years standing. The new Administration will have no more earnest well wisher than the present Executive.

House bill No. 1 this year is in, by Mr. Cole, of Bartow, and proposes a graduated inheritance tax for Georgia.

House bill No. 1 in the last Legislature was the famous "Tippins bill" of fragrant recollection, which had the stormiest career of any measure introduced.

It weathered the gales in both the House and the Senate, only to go to wreck eventually on the rocks of an executive veto.

House bill No. 1 this year seems destined to a kinder fate. The inheritance tax idea is popular in the Legislature, and the chances that such a measure may become the law are exceedingly bright.

Mr. Cole has this bill very much at heart, and will leave no stone unturned to push its passage.

Cole, by the way, is one of the younger members of the House, sure to take a high stand among his colleagues. He is well on the sunny side of 30, and is one of the most successful business men in North Georgia. He started his career some ten years ago with something like $1.35 capital, and to-day he is worth—well, he's mighty well fixed for his age, and he is progressing every day! All that he has has been accumulated by hard work and sticking everlastingly at it—he never stops on a job he is undertaking to put over.

Cole has made a deep study of inheritance taxation. The law he proposes for Georgia is based upon the best things he could gather from other inheritance tax laws, particularly from the splendid one California has on her statute books.

Two fine young Georgians to whom Speaker Burwell feels heavily indebted for his victory of Wednesday are Thomas F. Fleming, of Sparta, and H. L. Gardner, of Eatonton.

This pair worked in season and out for Burwell, remaining constantly in his headquarters in Atlanta during the last days of his campaign. Both are affable, earnest and sincere workers, and much of the happy outcome of Burwell's fight is due to them and their loyal work.

Grover Edmondson, of Brooks, is the "baby" of the House, but he doesn't look it nearly as much as does Wisdom, of Forsyth.

Edmondson is a big, husky youngster of 22, while Wisdom is an extremely boyish looking kid of 24.

Both are fine chaps, however, and likely will be heard from in the present House.

TEACHERS MEET NEXT WEEK IN CONTESTS

High School Instructors Also Will Hear Experts in Conferences at Athens.

Several hundred high school teachers, college instructors and others interested in the development of the State high schools will visit Athens next week to attend the sixth annual State high school contests and High School Association meetings. Conferences and meetings will begin July 1 and continue until July 5.

Among the conference speakers and lecturers will be a number of high school experts of the United States, including Dr. H. A. Hollister, of the University of Illinois, and Dean Southwick, of the Boston School of Expression.

Dr. Hollister will lecture each morning at 8:45 o'clock in Peabody Hall, beginning Tuesday. Dean Southwick will deliver three lectures Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings at 10:25 o'clock.

Experts to Hold Conferences.

State high school experts will lead conferences on "Methods of Improving the Teaching Force of the High Schools," "Should Georgia Organize a Teacher Training Course in the High Schools?" and "Means of Bringing the High School Closer to Community Life."

Special conferences will be held throughout the week on home economics, science, mathematics, language and English. The conference on home economics will be conducted by Miss Elizabeth Holt, of Augusta; the conference on science will be conducted by Principal W. P. Jones, of Rome; the conferences on mathematics, language and English will be in charge of Dr. R. P. Stephens, Principal N. G. Bartlett, of Dublin, and President F. F. Rowe, of Thomaston.

The high school contests will be inaugurated Wednesday, July 2, with preliminary debating contests in Peabody Hall. Thursday a music contest and a State championship debate on woman suffrage will be held.

Hold Contests Friday.

Declamation, athletic, spelling and recitation contests will be held Friday. Gold medals will be awarded in all events and a $300 scholarship of Brenau Conservatory will be awarded to the State winner in the music contests. The winner in the debate will be awarded a $50 set of books.

Dr. J. W. Riley Ends Successful Revival

Dr. J. W. Riley, noted Minneapolis Evangelist, closed his ten-days campaign for membership at the Tabernacle Wednesday night. Dr. Riley's efforts have met with great success. At the services Tuesday evening the front seats of the auditorium were filled with new members brought into the church through Dr. Riley's work. More than 100 also joined the Sunday school.

The evangelist will return to Minneapolis for a two-weeks' stay, after which he goes to Estill Springs, Tenn., to conduct services there for a week.

Do You Want to Save a Baby Life?

Quart of Milk Daily Is the Means

Mothers' Congress Asks Your Aid

A campaign for pure milk for the poor babies of the Gate City was inaugurated Thursday morning by the Mothers' Congress of Atlanta. The members plan to engage actively in the work of helping the babies who can not help themselves, and through the president, Mrs. John W. Rowlett, have sent out the following appeal:

> One hundred persons are wanted each to furnish one quart of milk daily for one child. If you are willing to help save one baby, send your name to Mrs. John W. Rowlett, 186 East Pine Street.

The officers of the congress declare that, when they have obtained the names of the 100 persons willing to save a baby each, it will be but the opening wedge in the work they have undertaken. The ultimate object of the campaign is the establishment of milk stations in sections of the city where they are needed, thus enabling the mother to be instructed as well as helped.

Evans Eager to Help.

The fact that aid for the poor babies of the city is imperative and must be given at once was established by the congress after a conference had been held with City Warden Evans. Mr. Evans furnished the officers of the congress with a long list of children whom it is proposed to make the beneficiaries of the one quart of milk a day plan, and he has offered to co-operate with the congress in every way possible during the campaign.

"The question of caring for the babies of Atlanta during the months when the chances for the baby to survive are few, is a vital and pressing one," declared one of the officers of the congress Thursday morning, "and the question of furnishing pure milk to the children should be taken up in earnest by the people of Atlanta. We are hoping for a hearty and encouraging response to our request for a 100 quarts of milk a day for the babies, and would ask that every person contemplating enlisting in the good work send in their names as soon as possible.

"We hope to show the vital need of this work by the good we can do with the '100 quarts a day plan,' and so arouse the people of Atlanta that pure milk stations can be established.

Blames Improper Feeding.

"Improper feeding is the chief cause of infant mortality, and ignorance is very often the cause of improper feeding. Hence a campaign for the reduction of infant mortality must not only give relief at once, but must also instruct the mother in the care of her child, especially during the summer months."

The Congress of Mothers of Atlanta has for several years been fighting on behalf of the baby, and have aroused a great deal of interest in their work throughout the city. Several years ago they tried to bring to Atlanta a Gordon-Walker Laboratory for the certification and purifying of milk, but failed through lack of financial backing.

The congress co-operated with the City Board of Health, and has been active in the movement to have milk delivered at a temperature of 55 degrees.

Your Aid Is Needed to Save the Babies

Hundreds of poor babies are suffering in Atlanta today, insufficiently and improperly nourished. Hundreds of them will die during the torrid months of July and August unless something is done for them.

The Mothers' Congress of Atlanta has undertaken to save at least one hundred of these babies whose parents are too poor to provide them with proper food and nourishment by supplying each baby with a quart of pure, fresh milk each day. They are calling on one hundred citizens of Atlanta for aid, asking them to each furnish one quart of milk each day.

If you are willing to help save one little life and make one home brighter, send your name at once to Mrs. J. W. Rowlett, 186 East Pine Street.

CALLS COURT TO PROBE LYNCHING

Judge Littlejohn Orders Special Session at Americus to Convene Next Monday.

AMERICUS, June 26.—Judge Z. A. Littlejohn has signed an order calling for a special session of the Sumter County Superior Court to investigate the lynching of Will Redding, a negro, for shooting Chief of Police W. C. Barrow last Saturday night. The order fixes next Monday as the time for court to convene.

It is also ordered that the same Grand Jury that served at the recent term of the court be resummoned to investigate the lynching. This Grand Jury is known as one of the most fearless that ever served the people of Sumter County, having indicted a number of well-known men for gaming and others for violation of the prohibition law.

Sunday morning the city was all agog with talk of the lynching. Now, strange to say, no one can be found, without difficulty, who will speak of the affair except as having been informed by someone else.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst Are Hosts to U. S. And Foreign Officers

NEW YORK, June 26.—Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst entertained the officers of the American, Brazilian and Argentine warships lying in the Hudson River. The naval officers met at Mr. Hearst's home in Riverside Drive, as did some of the women in the party.

From there they were conveyed to the New Amsterdam Theater in theater coaches, attending the performance of Ziegfeld's Follies. Following the performance, the party returned to the Hearst home for supper and dancing.

Among the civilians in the party were John Purroy Mitchel, Collector of the Port, and Justice James W. Gerard, of the Supreme Court.

300 Are Expected at Army's Park Outing

More than 300 poor mothers and children of Atlanta are expected to attend the annual outing of the Salvation Army at Piedmont Park Thursday.

Two chartered cars at 9 o'clock in the morning were filled with people, and many more are expected to go during the day. The Salvation Army will serve lunch and refreshments, and for the youngsters there will be races and athletic games, with all kinds of prizes.

Accused of Stealing Check While Drunk

Charged with stealing a cashier's check for $126, which, it is said, he wrapped up with his clothes in the Southern Express Company's office, while intoxicated, R. L. Underwood, a former employee of the company, has been placed on trial in the criminal division of the Superior Court.

The letter, it is asserted, was found in Underwood's boarding house.

DRUGGIST GIVES MONEY BACK

Dodson's Liver Tone Gets a Four Square Guarantee From All Drug Stores.

When an article is sold a druggist who is willing to give it his personal guarantee, it's a mighty strong proof of real merit.

That's exactly the case with Dodson's Liver Tone. It is a pleasant-tasting, vegetable remedy for a slow and sluggish liver. Since Dodson's Liver Tone came on the market the sale of calomel has gone 'way down. The reason is simply this: Dodson's Liver Tone is safe and harmless and guaranteed to be satisfactory—Calomel is often uncertain, sometimes dangerous, and no druggist wants to guarantee that it won't knock you out of a day's work and maybe send you to bed.

All druggists sell Dodson's Liver Tone and guarantee it. For you and for your children it's a good thing to keep a bottle always in the house.

All dealers will give you your money back if you think Dodson's Liver Tone is not worth the price. "Keep your liver working and your liver will not keep you from working," is good advice to go by.

DRAW ENDS SHAM BATTLE OF TROOPS

BRUNSWICK, GA., June 26.—Officers of the Georgia State militia and regular army men here to observe the maneuvers are much pleased to-day over the excellent work of the troops in the second sham battle of the encampment yesterday afternoon.

The battle ended in a draw, the Infantry under Major Hunter being unable to dislodge Major Seamans' dismounted cavalry from their intrenchments, while the latter had their hands full trying to repulse the attacking forces.

The Orange army, equipped for field duty, marched directly from Camp Brown to the sea, and then proceeded northward about a mile, where intrenchments were thrown up. At places the earthworks were five feet in height, and the defenses were concealed by canes and rushes cut from the neighboring swamps.

The Blue army, under command of Major Hunter, approached from the heavily wooded land side, but was held at bay by the Orange outpost, under command of Captain Rudisail, of Atlanta, long enough for the Orange army to intrench its position. The Blue army took up a position running parallel with the railroad. The battle line was about 2,000 feet long.

A number of Atlanta women were entertained by the officers of the Second Squadron and the Third Battalion yesterday. Most of the visitors formed parties and went fishing, and some good catches were made. Mrs. C. W. Hatcher, of Atlanta, caught and towed to the shore a five-foot shark, which she shot and killed.

$2,000,000 Is Frisco Stockholders' Loss

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—Stockholders of the Frisco System have lost nearly $2,000,000 in the depreciation of the values of common and preferred stock since the railroad went into the hands of a receiver, according to estimates made from the stock books in the last week.

James Campbell, of St. Louis, is holding stock worth $214,220 less than it was before the receivership suit was begun.

YORK, June 26.—Bondholders of the Frisco will suffer no loss in the readjustment of the road's finances, according to Prince Poniatowski, a French banker, who sailed to-day after personally investigating the affairs of the road.

WISE TO RUN FOR CONGRESS AGAIN

J. W. Wise, of Fayette, who was beaten by a scratch last year in the race for Congress from the Sixth District, will enter the race again next year. Mr. Wise says he hopes to get sufficient votes next time to leave not a shadow of doubt of election.

In the last contest in the Sixth the district voted as a whole, the candidate receiving the largest vote to be declared the nominee. When the returns were announced it is said the count showed Mr. Wise to be the winner by about 200 votes over his opponent, Congressman Bartlett.

Later, however, Mr. Wise received information from Macon to the effect that there had been a change in the vote in some of the city precincts.

Mr. Wise says he never has been satisfied with that decision, but has determined to bide his time and get into the race next year. He says he has been overwhelmed with messages urging him to enter the race at the next election.

ICE $1 MORE IN ATLANTA THAN IN MACON

Same Concern Charges 45 Cents Hundred Here, 25 Cents in Bibb County Capital.

Atlanta, with far greater population, is paying more for ice than Macon.

The wholesale price in Atlanta is $4 a ton, or $1 more than the Macon price. The comparison is even more distinctly to the disadvantage of Atlanta, in the prices for small amounts of ice at retail, the price being 30, 35 and 40 cents per hundred in Atlanta compared with a straight 25-cent rate in Macon.

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation is the principal manufacturer and distributor of ice in both Atlanta and Macon, and it also is in Chattanooga, Rome, Augusta and Jacksonville.

Three Dollars Ton in Macon.

As a result of the competition between the two ice companies in Macon, the Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation and the Southern Ice & Coal Company, ice is selling at wholesale in Macon for $3 a ton. At the beginning of the season the rate was $4.50. The retail purchasers, those who buy 10 or 15 cents worth at a time, are now getting their ice in Macon at the rate of $5 a ton, or 25 cents a hundred pounds. Formerly they paid $7.50 a ton, or 37 1-2 cents a hundred.

In Atlanta the wholesale price is $4 a ton. Ice is sold at retail on a graduated scale—30 cents per hundreds in amounts over 50 pounds; 35 cents per hundred in 25-pound lots and 40 cents per hundred in 10-pound lots.

The Atlanta customer who buys 10 pounds of ice, pays more than the Macon customer did before the ice war in Macon started. Before the price cutting began in Macon, the price of ice in small lots was 37 1-2 cents per hundred pounds. In Atlanta the price then, as it is now, was 40 cents per hundred pounds.

To get ice as cheap as it sold in Macon before the price war started, the Atlanta purchaser must buy at least 25 pounds. He can not buy any amount of ice as cheap as it sells in Macon to-day.

Says Price Will Be Raised.

When asked why Atlanta had to pay a higher price for ice than Macon, W. B. Baker, vice president and general manager of the Atlantic, said Wednesday that Macon was in the throes of an ice war, started by their competitor, the Southern Ice & Coal Company. The price there was too low, he said, and at the end of the war would be raised to a reasonable figure.

"The Southern started the price cutting," Mr. Baker said. "It is a small company, with 60ton capacity. We have a 300-ton plant, with 14,000 ton storage capacity. They started last summer and had to cut prices to get any business.

"It is simply a question of supply and demand in Macon. Ice will not keep always, and they they make it they have to sell it. They couldn't get our customers without offering an inducement, and so they began to cut prices. The cut, however, applied only here and there. Our policy is to treat everybody in the city alike. When they cut at a few places, we met the cut, and pursuant to our policy, gave the same cut prices to everybody in the city. We always do that."

In direct reply to this is the charge that the Atlantic is a trust and has suppressed competition in Atlanta, Augusta, Rome and Jacksonville and is attempting to do the same thing in Macon. This charge was brought by the Southern Ice & Coal Company, which has secured an order from the Superior Court enjoining the Atlantic from further reducing prices until a court hearing on July 25. It was charged that because the Southern would not sell out to the "trust", the rates were cut to such an extent that ice was selling at ruinous prices.

Restrained in Chattanooga.

Mr. Baker admitted ice was selling too low in Macon and said it would advance. He laughed at the Southern Company's suit, saying they wished now they had not brought it.

"And as for our having suppressed competition in certain places," he continued, you know yourself that we have three competitors in Atlanta. We also have two competitors in Augusta and two in Jacksonville and one in Rome, because Chattanooga ships ice to Rome against us. We also have another competitor in Macon, because a brewery there sells ice against us."

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation was recently restrained by Chancellor McConnell, of Chattanooga, from selling ice below a stipulated price in a certain zone of that city. The same charge of attempting to kill competition was made against them."

There still remain the conflicting stories of the Stover girl and Frank, even though they can not have a direct bearing on the case. The Stover girl says Frank was not in his office and he declares that he was there until he went to the fourth floor to see Arthur White and Harry Denham.

The defense will be able to say, however, that Frank probably was perfectly sincere in his declaration, but that, as a matter of fact, he might have stepped out of the office for a few minutes and not have recollected it when he was telling his story before the Coroner's inquest. They will argue that it is a very difficult matter for a person to recall every move he made at certain times unless something occurs to impress it on his memory at the time.

MAYOR SCORES HIS ACUSCERS AS 'LIARS'

Abandons "Polite Words" in Denying Charge That He Opposes Crematory to Aid Power Co.

Mayor James G. Woodward Thursday branded as infamous liars all persons who persist in attributing his opposition to the crematory contract to a desire to help the Georgia Railway and Power Company.

Polite and parliamentary denials of the charge that he opposes the crematory because it embraces in its plans an electrical plant and repeated disavowals of any connection with the power company have failed to prevent anonymous charges of ulterior motives against him, the Mayor said.

"If they won't take polite language, I'll have to hand it to them more forcibly," said the Mayor. And he did.

"I have said time and again that the electrical plant had nothing to do with my position regarding the crematory," the Mayor continued. "I have nothing either for or against the electric plant. The power company has fought me, and I have said time and again that I am not trying to help them. I don't owe them anything except a fair deal.

"The situation is this: I want a contract independent of the one the courts enjoined, and I want a waterproof bond to protect the city. I take it that the papers before me now have possible loopholes in them. When the courts enjoined the first contract the General Council asked the Destructor Company for a proposition. The proposition was made and the General Council accepted it. This proposition continually regards the contract of 1912, which the courts enjoined. I don't see why they can't write out a contract complete in itself. If a contract like this is presented to me I will sign it.

"Since I have said repeatedly that this was what I insisted on I see no grounds for repeating the charges that I am acting in the interest of the power company. Those who do repeat them are liars, and I have no objection to your printing that."

On account of Alderman J. H. Harwell's motion to reconsider the crematory proposition will not be officially before the Mayor until July 10. Until that time, the Mayor said, it would be advisable to indulge in less palaver and crimination.

Cotton Men Make Millions in Grain

NEW YORK, June 26.—During the dullness in the stock market it is believed that the McFadden interests, which have always been prominent in cotton, have made several millions through a bull campaign in the grain markets.

Not long ago, according to gossip in the grain pit, the McFadden crowd were carrying 10,000,000 bushels of coarse grain and over 1,000,000 bushels of wheat. Since April 1 July corn has advanced to above 62 cents a bushel, July oats from 33 7-8 cents to 43 1-4, and July wheat from 89 7-8 to 93 5-8 cents.

Canadian Physicians Bar Friedmann 'Cure'

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 26.—Unanimous approval was given to-day to the resolution introduced at the meeting of the Canadian Medical Association condemning the Friedmann tuberculosis "cure."

Professor Adami, of Montreal, who introduced the resolution, declared that "we have found the results of the Friedmann treatment disappointing, the claims made for the remedy not proved, and nothing has been found to justify confidence in the remedy."

The funeral of Carl Adolph Richard Anschutz will be held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Barclay & Brandon chapel. Interment at Westview.

The funeral of Charles R. Russell will be held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock from St. Luke's Church. The burial will be private, at Oakland.

'Ego in Pet Child's Cosmos Dangerous'

CHICAGO, June 26.—Dr. H. C. Norris, of Ederlin, N. Dak., a delegate to the Congress of Alienists here, declared that petted children get egomania, which results in a lack of self-control.

This, he asserts, results finally in a nervous and mental breakdown, thus paving the way to an insane asylum.

Auto Hurdles Bridge; Man and Girl Killed

CHICAGO, June 26.—A man and woman were killed and another man and woman painfully injured to-day when an automobile crashed through the railing of a bridge in Lincoln Park.

H. A. Gregory, magazine circulation manager, died soon after the accident. The body of a Miss Bristol was found in the water.

Youth Slays Father To Protect Mother

LAFAYETTE, IND., June 26.—John C. Barger, railroad conductor, was killed by his son, Paul Barger, 18, to-day, when the elder Barger attacked his wife.

The boy said that his father was choking his mother when he fired a revolver three times, holding the muzzle against his father's side.

All Indians to Touch Flag for Monument

NEW YORK, June 26.—Dr. Joseph Kossuth Dixon, of Philadelphia, will visit every Indian tribe in the United States to afford all Indians the opportunity of participating indirectly in the dedication of the proposed North American Indian monument in New York harbor.

Dr. Dixon goes with the special authority of President Wilson. The flag over the monument, after all the tribes have touched it, will be placed in the galleries beneath the memorial monument.

DIES OF WOUNDS; SLAYER HELD

ANNISTON, June 26.—C. W. Sanders, shot Saturday night by G. H. Bailey, died to-day at a hospital. He leaves a wife and children. Bailey is held in the county jail on a charge of murder.

Shaft Unveiled to Late Congressman

DAWSON, June 26.—A handsome monument to the late Congressman James M. Griggs was unveiled in Dawson to-day. A large crowd was present from all sections of the Second District.

Ex-Congressman William M. Howard, of Lexington, Ga., a colleague and warm personal friend of Judge Griggs, delivered the presentation speech, and little Theodosia Griggs Hollingsworth, a granddaughter, unveiled the monument. M. J. Yeomans delivered the speech of acceptance.

The monument was erected with funds raised by popular subscription.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

"Ideal" Has Fine Diving Act.

Gertrude Vanderbilt and George Moore, singers and dancers, are registering a hit at the Forsyth this week. "Ideal," the champion lady swimmer and diver, is also a feature, presenting a novelty act that has attracted a world of interest. She shows dives no other water star has exhibited and that the act is a big drawing card is very much in evidence.

The Six Musical Cuttys, in a splendid musical novelty, and Minnie Allen, in an unusually clever act, make things interesting. All the other acts have won attention.

The headliner for next week will be Edward Abeles, the distinguished comedy star, who has been identified with such New York successes as "Officer 666" and productions of that sort.

Many See "Qou Vadis" at Grand.

"Quo Vadis," the wonderfully successful photo-play now in its second week at the Grand, attracts hundreds of people to the daily matinee and evening performances. Of all the thousands of people who saw the pictures last week and who are attending the exhibitions this week, not one has been disappointed.

The presentation of "Quo Vadis" will continue at matinee and night performances the rest of the week.

"The Merry Whirl" Pleases.

Lovers of musical comedy are highly pleased with "The Merry Whirl," this week's attraction at the Bijou. Of the several tabloids that have visited Atlanta, it is safe to say that none has given better satisfaction or drawn larger audiences than this one. Miss Marjorie Lake, in the role of Fifi, is one of the cleverest performers that has ever visited the Bijou. The three comedians, Lew Miller, Harry Loder and Sol Carter, are a show in themselves.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

IT was so windy yesterday that Pa & me dident go fishing. We was going to a littel laik ware thare is a lot of pickerel, but the guide sed it wouddent be any use to go, so Pa sed in the morning, Well, Bobbie, let us talk a stroll about the village & watch the men at thare work. Thare is a grate deel of pleshur in watching sumbody else work, Pa sed, espeshully these simpel craftsmen up here in the woods. I dare say I may be abel to give them a few pointers, Pa sed. The human brain is a wunderful thing, Bobbie. Onst it is highly developed, like mine, it can direct operashuns of all sorts, though its owner nevver had any acktual expeerience in the deetails of the operashuns. Now, for instance, thare is yung Frank Keener planting potatoes. Let us stroll oaver thare & see if he is doing it rite.

Good morning, Mister Keener, sed Pa wen we got thare. I see you are planting potatoes. Thare is nothing like a good crop of potatoes for the Winter's store, Pa sed.

Kidding Pa.

But I aint planting potatoes, sed Mister Keener. I planted these potatoes a month ago. I dident have anything else to do this morning, so I thought I wud stroll around among the potatoes & have a chat with the potato bugs. Thay are friendly littel things, potato bugs, he sed. Speek to one of them & watch it wag its tail.

I cud see that Frank was kidding Pa, but Pa's brain wasent highly developed that way & he cuddent see it. All he sed was Well, I hoap you have success with yure garden, & we walked along.

Thare was a carpenter bilding a house acrost the street. His naim was Mister Bill Thomson. Goodmorning, Mister Thomson, sed Pa. I see you are bilding a pritty littel bungalow. I wud like to have one sumthing like it, Pa sed, & maybe if you ain't too busy next month I will go ahed with it. I always thought this wud be a pritty town in wich to have a bungalow in.

This ain't a bungalow I am bilding sed Mister Thomson. This is a ice house. It looks as much like a bungalow as you look like the King of England. Please move along now & doant bother me. It rained all day yesterday so I cuddent work & now that it is nice & sunny I doant want every yap that cums along to stop & ask foolish questuns of me.

Carpenters are generally rude, cross grained persons, sed Pa to me after we had moved along. I cud see that Pa was pritty mad but I dident feel a bit sorry for him, he had no bizness bothering a man who was working.

Jest then we passed a livery stabel —thare was the owner with two littel jackasses.

A Fine Team.

Good morning, Mister Maus, sed Pa. Can I help you to hitch up yure fine team of mules? I used to hitch up mules wen I was in the army, sed Pa. I am vary fond of mules & thay like me, too.

But these isent mules, thay is chackasses, sed Mister Maus, und I wasent going to hitch them up, also. I chust wanted them to make a littel exercise alreddy. Und if I was going to hitch them up anyway, sed Mister Maus, why doant you mind yure own bizness beesides, yet?

Every man that Pa talked to treeted him jest the saim, but it dident faze Pa. Wen we went hoam to dinner he toald Ma that he had been around having a friendly chat with the villagers. Those simpel folks wud lay down thare lives for me, Pa sed.

You doant say, sed Ma. Then thay must be vary simpel folks.

FAVORITE RECIPES OF FAVORITE STAGE STARS

Cherry Roly Poly, by

Katherine De Rohne

THE market this season is displaying some of the most delicious products of the tree whose family was forever made famous by the truthfulness of one G. Washington. "Cherry Roly Poly" is supplied by a pastmistress of the art, Katherine De Rohne, one of the stars of the Rustic Theatre at the Palisades Amusement Park.

Take one pound of suet and chop fine, being careful to pick out all the skin and strings.

Add:—

Three cups of flour,
one teaspoonful of salt,
one teaspoonful of baking powder,
and just enough water to make it adhere and roll out smoothly.

Roll out to the thickness of about a quarter of an inch. Spread a quart of pitted cherries, sugared, on the thin layer of dough and roll them up. Place in a cheesecloth bag and boil for three hours.

Sauce: Butter the size of an egg, melted but not browned. To this add a teaspoonful of flour and a cup and one-half of water, three-quarters of a cup of sugar and a gill of New England rum. Stir together and boil to the consistency of thick cream.

WITHIN THE LAW

A Powerful Story of Adventure, Intrigue and Love

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Take the chairs out of the office, Dan," he directed, "except mine and one other—that one!" He indicated a chair standing a little way from one end of his desk. "Now, have all the shades up." He chuckled as he added: "That Turner woman saved you the trouble with one."

As the doorman went out after having fulfilled these commands, the Inspector lighted a cigar which he had retained still in his mouth, and then seated himself in the chair that was set partly facing the windows opening on the corridor. He smiled with anticipatory triumph as he made sure that the whole length of the corridor with the barred doors of the cells was plainly visible to one sitting thus. With a final glance about to make certain that all was in readiness, he returned to his chair, and, when the door opened, he was, to all appearances, busily engaged in writing.

Garson's Face Showed Fear.

"Here's Garson, Chief," Cassidy announced.

"Hello, Joe!" Burke exclaimed, with a seeming of careless friendliness, as the detective went out, and Garson stood motionless just within the door.

"Sit down, a minute, won't you?" the Inspector continued, affably. He did not look up from his writing as he spoke.

Garson's usually strong face was showing weak with fear. His chin, which was commonly very firm, moved a little from uneasy twitchings of his lips. His clear eyes were slightly clouded to a look of apprehension, as they roved the room furtively. He made no answer to the Inspector's greeting for a few moments, but remained standing without movement, poised alertly as if sensing some concealed peril. Finally, however, his anxiety found expression in words. His tone was pregnant with alarm, though he strove to make it merely complaining.

"Say, what am I arrested for?" he protested. "I ain't done anything."

Even now, Burke did not look up, and his pen continued to hurry over the paper.

"Who told you you were arrested?" he remarked, cheerfully, in his blandest voice.

Garson uttered an ejaculation of disgust.

"I don't have to be told," he retorted, huffily. "I'm no college president, but when a cop grabs me and brings me down here, I've got sense enough to know I'm pinched."

The Inspector did not interrupt his work, but answered with the utmost good nature.

"Is that what they did to you, Joe? I'll have to speak to Cassidy about that. Now, just you sit down, Joe, won't you? I want to have a little talk with you. I'll be through here in a second." He went on with the writing.

Garson moved forward slightly, to the single chair near the end of the desk, and there seated himself mechanically. His face thus was turned toward the windows that gave on the corridor, and his eyes grew yet more clouded as they rested on the grim doors of the cells. He writhed in his chair, and his gaze jumped from the cells to the impassive figure of the man at the desk. Now, the forger's nervousness increased momently—it swept beyond his control. Of a sudden, he sprang up, and stepped close to the inspector.

The Door Clanged To.

"Say," he said in a husky voice, "I'd like—I'd like to have a lawyer."

"What's the matter with you, Joe?" the Inspector returned, always with that imperturbable air, and without raising his head from the work that so engrossed his attention. "You know, you're not arrested, Joe. Maybe, you never will be. Now, for the love of Mike, keep still, and let me finish this letter."

Slowly, very hesitatingly, Garson went back to the chair, and sank down on it in a limp attitude of dejection wholly unlike his customary posture of strength. Again, his fear fascinated eyes went to the row of cells that stood silently menacing on the other side of the corridor beyond the windows. His face was tinged with gray. A physical sickness was creeping stealthily on him, as his thoughts held insistently to the catastrophe that threatened. His intelligence was too keen to permit a belief that Burke's manner of almost fulsome kindliness hid nothing ominous—ominous with a hint of death for him in return for the death he had wrought.

Then terror crystallized. His eyes were caught by a figure, the figure of Cassidy, advancing there in the corridor. And with the detective went a man whose gait was slinking, craven. A cell door swung open, the prisoner stepped within, the door clanged to, the bolts shot into their soekets noisily.

Garson sat huddled, stricken for he had recognized the victim thrust into the cell before his eyes. . . . It was Dacey, one of his own cronies in crime—Dacey, who, the night before had seen him kill Eddie Griggs. There was something concretely sinister to Garson in this fact of Dacey's presence there in the cell.

Of a sudden, the forger cried out raucously:

"Say, Inspector, if you've got anything on me, I—I would——" The cry dropped into unintelligible mumblings.

Burke retained his manner of serene indifference to the other's agitation. Still his pen hurried over the paper; and he did not trouble to look up as he expostulated, half-banteringly.

"Now, now! what's the matter with you, Joe? I told you that I wanted to ask you a few questions. That's all."

Garson leaped to his feet again resolutely, then faltered, and ultimately fell back into the chair with a groan, as the Inspector went on speaking.

"Now, Joe, sit down, and keep still, I tell you, and let me get through with this job. It won't take me more than a minute more."

But after a moment Garson's emotion forced him to another appeal.

"Say, Inspector——" he began.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SOME CHICKEN!

A Parrot 116 Years Old and Not Yet in Cold Storage

THIS picture is taken from an actual photograph of a parrot that is one hundred and sixteen years old, and still has a lively croak. It belongs to an English family, but spent but fifty years of its feathered life in that country. Its other sixty-six years saw it in Brazil, its original home. Although it is almost "sans everything" Polly can sing in quite a lively manner, and is always cheerful. Perhaps therein lies its secret of longevity. Who knows?

Things Worth Remembering

The possibility of using the Cinema for the identification of criminals is being seriously considered by the New York Police Commissioner. It is suggested that five feet of film, costing 70 cents, will suffice to record the peculiarities of dress and carriage of any person whom it is desired to keep under observation. With photographs, finger prints, motion pictures, and Bertillon measurements a man who has been convicted will have his hands full in making his "get-away" afterward.

Stretching across Western Australia is a rabbit-proof fence, said to be the longest in the world. It extends for a distance of 1,200 miles, without a break, except for gates. It begins in the temperate regions and ends in the tropics, and sometimes for nearly 100 miles it never passes a human habitation.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

YOUR FRIEND IS RIGHT.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 and I have been keeping company with a young man four years. He is 23. I love him more than tongue can tell. I have loved him since the day I first met him. He doesn't show any love for me. Could you tell me if there is any love on his part? I show my love for him, and my friend tells me that is the reason he doesn't show his.

IRENE WATSON.

You are foolish to let him see you care so much for him. Naturally, a man makes no effort to win a girl who lets him see that effort is unnecessary. You are only 17. Give up this man, and the next time you fall in love make an effort to conceal it.

WITHIN HER RIGHTS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with a young lady, whom I have never had the pleasure of seeing in her own home, as her mother is opposed to me. I have known her now for more than 18 months. She is 18. I am 21. She is willing to marry me, only she is afraid of her folks, inasmuch as her mother threatens to have me arrested if I marry her daughter. I have tried every way to win her mother over, but so far I have failed. I can't meet her, as her mother watches her like a cat watches a mouse.

D. D. W.

The mother is wholly within her rights, and as the first and last desire of every mother's heart is for her daughter's happiness, consideration is due her wishes.

If all were favorable, you should not marry, being only 21. Make the most of the assurance that you love each other, and wait a year or two.

Had Every Time.

Smith was a constant worry to his friends. They never knew when to and when not to treat him seriously, since, as he frankly admitted, he delighted in pulling other people's legs.

One day he and Brown met casually in the street, and stopped, as friends often do, to gossip for a while.

"Big blaze—that fire at the factory in Johnson Street last night, wasn't it?" asked Brown.

"Yes," replied Smith, "I went down to have a look at it. And, my word, there were several mighty narrow escapes there, too!"

"Escapes!" cried Brown, excitedly. "But the morning paper said that there was no one in the building."

Smith nodded.

"Oh," he said, "the firemen brought the escapes down with them. So-long, old chap!"

A BACHELOR'S DIARY .:. He Can't Forget That Kiss

By MAX.

JUNE 1.—It is a week since Sally Spencer kissed me, and though I have repeatedly since made occasion to be with her alone she has never repeated the offense.

I have sent for her to come over on the shallowest of excuses. If Manette ate too much or too little, I have feigned an alarm that could only be quieted by having Mrs. Spencer take a look at her, and on such occasions I invariably sent Richards and Sarah Ray out of the room. But it has been to no avail.

I make the confession in no great humility. I am a man, and, try as hard as I may, I can not rise above being a man. I make no pretense of being an angel. That claim I leave to the women who tempt us.

I find myself looking at another man's wife with eyes that are not the eyes of the soul. There was a time when it would have been my first impulse to be Sally Spencer's disinterested friend; I will always be that in the future, but I will have to fight myself first.

Only Contempt.

June 2—I have said little about the widow, Diary, but I hope you do not believe it is because I condone her sins, or feel any emotion for her but unmitigated contempt.

She is the vilest of creatures for no other description fits a woman who makes it her sport to undermine some other woman's happiness.

June 3—Life has been compared with a feast, and if there is anything in the comparison, just at present the whole world is partaking of a course that is too highly seasoned to be healthful. That we will all suffer moral indigestion for refusing to pass it by I do not doubt.

We are swinging to a most unhealthy extreme, making public and discussing and devouring topics that are the climax of vulgarity, and we call ourselves progressive because we do it.

The old-fashioned standard of truth to one's self and one's vows seems to be passing away. When one transgresses these days, it is not called a transgression, but disguised under the phrase "Daring to live one's own life."

And when it is said that a woman especially "dares to live her own life," it means that she has dared to violate every civil and moral law. Mrs. Brown has always approved of any woman who dared to live her own life, and has told me many times that it was what she had always done, and always intended to do.

I can see now that it was the modern way of expressing a determination to be governed by no standard or convention. What will become of the world when all women "dare to live their own lives," no man may conjecture.

She buried her first husband, which can not be charged against her. In these days when men are put at the lowest valuation a measure of applause is given any woman who outlives her husband. Should she outlive a dozen, it is a notable deed, but if a man buries as many as two wives Rumor begins to whisper that he killed them by abuse and neglect.

The widow's second husband divorced her because of her infatuation with another woman's husband. She broke up that man's home, and cast him aside when, for pecuniary reasons, her love grew cold.

A Dark Past.

She had, as she expresses it, "dared to live her own life," which means that she refused to let the impulses of her soul be fettered by the shackles of convention. I could express it in plainer language, but plain language, according to Mrs. Brown and her kind, is a mark of a vulgar mind.

I have heard that her second husband's heart was broken because of the scandal, and that it killed him. Of course I do not credit the statement. The men do not die of broken hearts. They love a woman with every bit of their anatomy, but their hearts. This is true, for I have heard soap-box oratorical representatives of the Adorable Sex say so.

June 4—Jack has been gone three days. He writes dutifully and says he will be home soon. He is the sort of a man who will go away with another woman and square it with his conscience by writing faithfully to his wife while away. I have no doubt he took her photograph with him. I always mistrust the man who takes his wife's photograph wherever he goes. So often he uses this mark of devotion as a salve to his conscience for leaving her at home.

June 5—"I think," said Sally, when I called this morning to learn the latest news of her husband, "that my attitude in this matter is a great disapointment to Mrs. Brown. She thought I would rush after Jack, create a scene and a scandal, and that the publicity would wreck my home and give Jack a divorce. I know Jack better than she does. The fact that I give him every opportunity to steal robs the theft of its zest. He is disgusted with her and with himself, and would return any moment I sent for him."

I remembered the kiss. "Don't send for him, Sally. He isn't worth your forgiveness."

Must Take Chances.

"He is as good as any man," she retorted. "He is as good as you are, Max, and, what's more, you know it."

"I hadn't thought of that. Perhaps after all he is better. He had sinned in his acts, and I have sinned in my thoughts. Still, if every man who sins in his thoughts is to be condemned, who among us will escape?

"The woman who marries," she resumed, "must accept all chances of what I am undergoing. There are always other women lurking around to tempt husbands to stray, and they seem endowed with every fascination that would appeal to a man as weak as Jack."

The admission of his weakness seemed disloyal to her, even though he has repeatedly proved it, for she continued rapidly: "Not that he is any weaker than you, Max. I don't want you to think for a moment that you are any better than he. I don't want to give the impression that I believe there is a man living who is better than my husband."

I had the feeling that I had been doubted and attacked when my actions, at least, were innocent, and I resented it.

She had risen as if to suggest it was time I was going. "Sit down," I said, in some temper. "You are hitting all men over my shoulders, taking into no account that it is your own sex that is primarily to blame. Now don't interrupt me"—she had begun to say something about Mrs. Brown—"It is not the bad woman alone who is to blame. It is the good woman, as well; the woman who tempts in her innocence, or ignorance. There's yourself, for instance!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Dainty Lois Meredith Talks on Beneficial Athletics

Lois Meredith's Girlish Beauty.

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

DO you know any little girls? Of course there are quite a few children in the world, and I know numberless young—very young—ladies, but I have just met a very sweet little girl and I am going to introduce her to you. Her name is Lois Meredith; she is eighteen, and is making a great success of the part of Helen Morris in "Within the Law." Off the stage she does not play the part of a sophisticated young lady—or a "Broadway favorite"—but fairly dawns on you in the absolute simplicity of a white middy-blouse, black velvet ta-o'-shanter and the unstudied coiffure effect of a "head sunning over with curls."

Of course the very first question I asked Miss Lois was one anent clothes and her ideal costume.

"I like my middy blouses pretty well," said she, "so well, in fact, that I would sacrifice all the sweeties in the world rather than eat goodies and get too fat to wear sailor-suits. But my ideal costume is Greek drapery. I do love the classical lines of drapery that leave you free and untrammelled, so you can breath, and move naturally, and look natural, too. I'd like to wear layer after layer of chiffon and sandals and give my whole body a chance to breathe. Think how wrapped up and shut away from the health-giving fresh air our poor bodies are. Well, I wear as few layers as I can—dispensing with every unnecessary thing I can—corsets for instance—and I wear white, so I'll feel cool and clean, and I try to give my body a chance to sway and to move freely, so I will feel all through me how good it is to be alive.

No Jewels.

"I don't believe in jewels, either," went on this sensible girl. "If you are pretty, jewels sort of attract attention to themselves and away from you. And if you are not pretty, anyway, showy jewelry makes you conspicuous, and then people notice how unattractive you are."

Dainty little Lois Meredith can afford to believe in "beauty unadorned," but every eighteen-year-old girl and the older sister of twenty ought to ponder the bit of philosophy: "Plain women are always adding some little fancy touches that make you notice how very plain they are!"

"Will you tell me how you spend your day?" I asked. "You must carry out your theory of simplicity in living as well as clothes."

"My theory of living," answered Miss Meredith, "is WORK. For everything worth getting in this world you must work, work, work. To keep well and strong, to look attractive, and to get ahead in the profession you have chosen, you must keep working and striving. In my chosen calling I find that I have to keep developing my brain, so I can do better and better things all the time. I am studying French and music in the interests of my brain.

Plenty of Sleep.

"Then I take care of my body, too. Of course I have to have plenty of sleep, because I am still growing. I have never in all my life been to a restaurant after the theater; most girls would think that an awful sacrifice, wouldn't they? Well then, I get up at about 9, and have a glass of hot water, which is not a bit hard to take when you keep at it, and then for about half an hour I exercise; stretching motions, aesthetic dancing movements and bending over, with my knees held taut and body poised. Sometimes I touch my finger tips to the floor, sometimes I wrap my arms around my legs and see how far down I can bring my head.

"I have one little pet exercise: A very great artist said that I had the most beautiful hand in America! Now I'd like to believe him—even if that would be conceited—but anyway I take care of my hands and try to keep them soft and tapering. I go through an exercise as if I were wringing them and stroking them. I work at my hands as if I were putting on and taking off a new pair of gloves very carefully. I truly can recommend this exercise, for just think what it made Mr. Gibson say to me.

"Would you like to hear about my favorite part?" went on the girl ingenuously. Perhaps it would make a good conclusion to your interview. My favorite part was Modesty in 'Everywoman.' I thought it a compliment to be asked to play that part. I loved doing it—and I felt that the only way to play Modesty was to be modest. That applies to girls everywhere doesn't it?

(y is always the sweetest part—and it has to be true, or people will know."

And I think that is a very good conclusion for the interview—Modesty and the sweet simplicity and charm that follow in her wake are the best parts for all girls—only they must not be parts. Modesty must be true if you want to be a truly charming girl.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Gary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite, and was so nervous I could not sleep; then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work, and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. Hayward Sowers, Cary, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Up-to-Date Jokes

Mr. Winston Churchill has often effectively silenced offensive interrupters. It is related that on one occasion, when addressing a large meeting in the North, he was frequently disturbed by a man who persisted in shouting "Liar! Liar!" every few minutes.

Winston bore with him for some time, but eventually broke off his speech to remark, in gentlest accents:

"If the gentleman at the back of the hall who is so anxious that the audience should know his name will write it down on a slip of paper and hand it to the chairman instead of bawling it at the top of his voice, he will save himself a lot of trouble."

No more was heard of the interrupter for the rest of the meeting.

"Don't you think, sir," replied the house agent, suavely, "it would be easier and cheaper for you to get your hair cut?"

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

SYNOPSIS

Gordon Kelly, a mountain boy of Georgia, goes to Atlanta. He becomes the sensation of the baseball world through his marvelous playing, although he said that he had never played a game before arriving in Atlanta. He is bought by the Boston American League Club for $50,000. Kelly incurs the enmity of Forrest Cain, a wealthy ne'er-do-well, at the same time winning the friendship and love of Mildred Deery, daughter of an Atlanta banker. Kelly is hurt in a game and Mildred runs to his assistance. He recovers, leaves the hospital and mysteriously disappears. He is not heard from for months. Mildred admits to herself that she loves Kelly. Her father dislikes the publicity given Mildred's assistance to Kelly on the baseball field. He gets Mildred to agree to go to the mountains. Cain follows Mildred and calls upon her. While Mildred is fishing she suddenly comes upon Gordon Kelly. In the meeting each learns of the other's love. Kelly is sought everywhere by the press. Cain proposes to Mildred and is refused. Kelly meets Cain and the latter tries to shoot Kelly. Elmer saves Kelly's life. Mildred visits Gordon Kelly's home in the mountains and is astonished at the evidences of luxury and refinement she finds there. Gordon is caught in a storm and is made prisoner by four strange men. He is forced to write a letter to Mildred. In it he tries to convey a hint of his whereabouts.

Now go on with the story.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Did you git a letter fum Mr. Bud Ah mean Mr. Gordon, Mis' Mildred?" asked the colored boy, after the car was fairly in motion.

"Yes, Steve, I'll read it to you; and I'm going back with you in order to tell Mr. Gray, the superintendent, and Mrs. Ward, the housekeeper, about it."

Arriving at the huge granite edifice, Mildred learned that Gray had rounded up every available man on the place and had started off with them on a systematic hunt for the missing man. Asking Steve to tell Mrs. Ward that she was there, Mildred was soon joined by the housekeeper, to whom she imparted the news and then sat down to breakfast with her while Steve ran off to bring back the searching party.

When Gray returned Mildred read the letter she had received to him. If she had allowed him to read it, the level headed superintendent might have discovered the simple cryptogram and headed a party that would have rescued Gordon in jig time, but Mildred clung to the letter as though it was the most precious thing in the world and would not allow it to go out of her hand.

It was decided that, as Gordon had explicitly told them not to search for him at present, it might be fatal to the captive if they disobeyed orders, so matters were allowed to rest as they were, pending the receipt of further news from Gordon.

Gray Is Cautious.

"Somebody has kidnaped him," declared Gray, "and they expect to make a fortune. If that is the case we will be hearing from them mighty quick, and when we do we will make our plans accordingly."

Gray was a big, hearty man, full of action but cautious when caution was required. "In the meantime, Miss Deery," he said, "I would advise you not to worry. But just as soon as you hear from Mr. Gordan again, please let me know at once. I will have the telephone line fixed right away."

Mildred was driven back to the bungalow by Steve. She was happy to think he was safe and well, yet troubled over the vagueness and uncertainty of things. In the course of a few days another letter came and she promptly informed Gray of its contents. It was apparently written in a cheerful spirit, but again admonished them not to search for him.

"That was put in there by orders of the men who are holding him," was Gray's comment when Mildred read the letter to him. "I wish he could slip in some hint of where he is hidden and I'd have him back here in half a day. They must be guarding him closely, Miss Deery, for I know him well enough to know that he would break away if they gave him the slightest opening."

The days went by. Mildred wrote a letter to Gordon and placed it under a stone at the doorsill, but when his next letter was delivered in the dead of night, the messenger did not take away Mildred's letter. In time Farnsworth came to the bungalow, as has already been told, but Mildred did not inform him of all she knew in connection with Gordon's disappearance. She was afraid that the publicity might work some harm to the man she loved. The newspaper men went away and more letters were received. They were all written in the same spirit. Weeks passed. Mildred's mother returned to Atlanta, urging Mildred to return with her, but the girl refused to leave the mountain region. She had not yet informed her mother of her great secret, but her mother had half guessed it.

One day when Mildred felt that she could stand the suspense no longer and was on the point of yielding to Gray's entreaties to start a business-like hunt for the captive, she discovered the simple cryptogram.

"What a little fool I've been," she cried. She had, of course, noticed that Gordon had begun every line of his letters with a capital letter, but the reason for it had entirely escaped her. Now, of course, it was as plan as day and she almost cried at her own stupidity in not solving the riddle long ago. She had saved every letter and was reading them over for the several hundredth time when she made the discovery. She procured pencil and paper and wrote down the instructions.

"Five miles northwest my home," the first letter said, reading down the lines of capital letters. "Three miles due west road meets creek," read the second letter. "Sharp rise hundred yards then down," said third. "Cabin midst copse few trees; four captors," said the fourth. There were two more letters contining further hints.

Mildred called Elmer and told him to bring the runabout, and together they went to the mansion to find Gray. They were told that he had gone to Atlanta on business, but would return next day. On the way home Elmer said:

"Let's not wait for Mr. Gray. Let's find Gordon and rescue him ourselves."

"You foolish boy," replied Mildred. "They would capture us, too, and then what a fine pickle we would be in. We must wait for Mr. Gray and he will take plenty of men with him."

Elmer Would Fight.

"Oh shucks, Mildred," exclaimed the lad. "Gee whiz, I could take your rifle and you could take your revolver and we could sneak up and catch them off their guard and rescue the prisoner. Come on, Mildred; let's do it."

"I'm afraid your spirit is better than your judgment, Elmer," said Mildred with a sigh. "Goodness knows I hate to wait until Mr. Gray gets back, but I don't see what else we can do."

Elmer kept teasing all the way home and when they arrived he brought forth his father's maps of the region and they spent a long time pouring over them trying to figure out the exact spot where they thought Gordon was held a captive.

"Be game, Mildred," said Elmer, returning to the attack. "Only four men are there. We can get the drop on them easy."

"Stop talking nonsense, child, or you'll make me cross with you," cried Mildred. "If your father was here I would willingly let him get a force at the mansion and start out without waiting for Mr. Gray." Shephard was in Chattanooga and would not return for two days. "Run away now, Elmer and leave me alone. I want to think this all out by myself," added Mildred.

It was only Gordon's cheerful letters that had prevented Mildred from going distracted. The situation had been a most peculiar one. In every one of the letters Gordon had told her not to begin a search for him and she had been afraid to ignore his request. Gray had insisted more than once on taking the matter in his own hands, but Mildred had flatly move.

"He is writing these letters to me, Mr. Gray, and they clearly say not to seek him," she told him the last time they had talked the matter over.

"That is because he was forced to write it, otherwise they wouldn't have delivered the letters," replied the superintendent. "If he doesn't turn up soon, Miss Deery, I'm going to take matters on my own hands."

"To Be His Wife."

"Please don't, Mr. Gray," she pleaded. "I am sure something dreadful would happen if you failed, and we would never see him again."

"That's all right, Miss Deery. But in a way I am responsible for his safety. With you it is different."

"Yes, it is different, Mr. Gray," she replied quietly, "I have promised to be his wife."

Gray's eyes opened wide at this piece of information, and Mildred added: "Please say nothing about it. I only tell you so that you can understand how vitally interested I am in his welfare."

Sitting alone on the porch the day she discovered the hidden meaning in Gordon's letters, Mildred went over the whole situation in her mind. Gray was absent. Shephard was absent. Gordon had long expected help. She knew not where to turn. At last she arose from her chair and going to the telephone, called up the mansion and said:

CHAPTER XLI.

WITH the exception of the news of Gordon Kelly that Farnsworth, the newspaper man, had secured from Mildred Deery at her bungalow, and which was published in his paper, the great baseball public had heard nothing of the $50,000 player since the day late in May when he left the hospital in Atlanta and disappeared. The public knew nothing of his palatial home in the Georgia mountains, it knew nothing of his vast wealth, of his peculiar life, of the tragedy of his father's death. It knew nothing of the grand romance of Gordon and Mildred, or of Gordon's conflicts with Forrest Cain, or of his capture and detention by the mountaineers. All the public knew was that Gordon Kelly, the most widely advertised ball player in the world, the man the Red Sox had pai the stupendous sum of $50,000 for, the player every "fan" on the American League circuit was most anxious to see perform, had mysteriously disappeared.

The name of Gordon Kelly had become a byword wherever baseball was played or discussed. Every time a player on any team in any city or town made a home run he was a "Gordon Kelly." Ball players in the big leagues, college ball players, schoolboy players, and even the urchins playing ball in the back lots were always talking about the great player. This continued all summer long all over the country, so that despite the fact that the public did not know what had become of Gordon Kelly, his name was constantly on everybody's lips and he was constantly referred to in the newspapers.

Gave Up Hope.

The Red Sox management practically gave up hope of ever seeing him again before the season was half over but every pay day a check was drawn to his order and mailed to his last known address in Atlanta. The first half of the season was fraught with injuries to the Red Sox players, and if ever they needed Gordon Kelly it was in the first few months of the championship season. But by the first of July the world's champions got going in their proper stride and won game after game in the same impressive manner that had enabled them to mow down their opponents in the season of 1912 and eventually capture the American League pennant and later the highest honors in baseball—the world's championship.

The Red Sox pitchers—the backbone of a team—began "going good" about the first of July. The heavy hitters took confidence and found their "batting eyes" again. The loyal supporters of the team took heart and flocked to Fenway Park to encourage their favorites and "squeeze" hard for victory.

That rabid Boston organization known far and wide as the "Royal Rooters," forgot the fancied grievances it had against the club's management that dated back to the last world's series, and marched to the baseball grounds en masse and with a brass band playing "Tessie." The old-time Boston spirit—the spirit that made Boston the greatest baseball city in the world—returned as the Red Sox forged triumphantly toward the top of the baseball column.

Red Sox Climb.

By the first of August the Red Sox were in third place, after floundering around among the tail-enders for half the saeson. By the first of September the world's champions were in second place, only the Athletics, of Philadelphia, standing between them and the leadership in the American League pennant fight. The men were playing with a dash and vigor that surpassed their 1912 form. Tris Speaker, the great center fielder, led the league in batting and every day he was getting his two or more safe hits, most of them solid drives for two or three bases or home runs. Duffy Lewis, the left fielder, was close up in his stockwork, and his fielding and throwing were better than ever. Harry Hooper in right field was having his best year, batting better than he had ever done before and running the bases like a deer. Heine Wagner, captain of the team and the man most depended upon for defensive work, played with a steadiness that was the marvel of the baseball world. Larry Gardner, the third baseman, fully recovered from the injury to his ankle, began playing again early in June, and from that time on he surpassed himself at bat and in the field. Steve Yerkes was as steady as a rock at second base, and his batting was timely. He seldom failed to deliver when called upon. Clyde Engle, who had to play first base nearly all the year on account of the injury to Manager Stahl's foot, played the bag in a manner that made the other first basemen jealous. The catchers—Carrigan and Cady—were like stonewalls behind the bat, and the pitchers—Wood, Bedient, Collins and O'Brien, with Hall and Leonard to help out—performed wonders. In short, the whole team played like wildfire and stood the other teams on end as fast as they appeared. From the first of July to the close of the season the Red Sox did not lose but one series to their opponents.

White Sox Terrors.

In the meantime, the Chicago White Sox, managed by the clever Jimmy Callahan (with the owner of the club, Comiskey—the "Old Roman"—in the background to help with his sage advice) were going great guns, too. Big Ed Walsh, the celebrated "spitball" pitcher, seemed unbeatable. Scott, Benz and the other twirlers supported the mainstay nobly. Schalk, the "kid" catcher, proved to be one of the best backstops in either league and held the pitching of the entire staff with elegance and grace, while his right arm was a terror to base stealers. Strengthened by the acquisition of Hal Chase, the great first baseman, the entire infield braced, Rath, Weaver and Lord playing as though their lives depended on it. The outfield developed into one of the strongest in the American League. "Ping" Bodie played fine ball and broke fences with his bat instead of talking about it. Collins, the Newton boy, and Mattick, the other outfielders, covered their territory like ten-second men and batted like fiends. This great Chicago aggregation, while its success was not quite as sensational as the Red Sox, plowed steadily ahead, and when the Boston team reached second place the Windy City rivals were close behind them, only a few points separating the two teams in the percentage column.

In the meantime, the Athletics, managed by the shrewd baseball general, Connie Mack, which had been enjoying a sort of baseball buggy ride the first half of the season and had already begun to count their world's series money in their minds, struck a mighty rough road about the first of August and began to "come back," as they say in horse racing circles. They lost game after game. Their pitchers "went bad" and their sluggers failed to slug. Someone stole Frank Baker's bats and he couldn't hit the ball. Two or three unfortunate accidents put some of their most dependable players on the hospital list temporarily. By the first of September the Philadelphia "fans" were in a panic. Manager Connie Mack lost his Mephistophelean smile, and the subdued swearing he indulged in withered the grass in the immediate vicinity of the players' bench whereon he sat during the gloomy, losing games.

Situation Tense.

The pitchers on whom Mack depended, caused him many sleepless nights. Eddie Plank's cross-fire became crosseyed, Jack Coombs' curves were batted from Dan to Beersheba, and in spite of "Chief" Bender's red-faced twists and black-haired curves, the Indian could not win a game. On September 1 the Athletics were still in the lead, but only two games separated them from the Rex Sox, and the Chicagos were so close up that the Philadelphia players had heart disease every time they looked at a sporting extra. This was the situation when Labor Day rolled around.

But just when the White Elphants, as the Athletics are sometimes called, appeared to be sure of losing the lead they had had held since the opening of the season in April, they took a wonderful brace. They played the Washington team on Labor Day and won both the morning and the afternoon game, knocking the great Walter Johnson from the box in the second session. However, the Red Sox and the White Sox also won both Labor Day games, so the Athletics did not gain a single point on their rivals.

Games Bitterly Fought.

On September 4 the Red Sox arrived in Philadelphia for a three-game series. Every game was bitterly fought, but the Rex Sox won two of them, thereby reducing the lead of the Athletics to one game. In the meantime the White Sox won three straight and the result was that on the evening of September 6 the three leading clubs were nearer together than ever. From that time on it was a desperate fight to the very finish. Interest in the pennant race was tremendous. Crowds packed the ball parks wherever the three teams performed.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the thirty-third installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read the 34th installment of ahe great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

COAST BETTORS FACE PUZZLE IN BIG FIGHT

CHICAGO, ILL., June 26.—They never seem to have any luck at all in picking winners of the lightweight championship bouts out on the Pacific Coast, and it will be interesting to note which of them in the San Francisco battle of July 4 they single out for favoritism. As a matter of fact they haven't picked the right man for favorite in many a long month out there and in consequence the short ends have won with startling regularity. Yet the coast fans, seeing as they do, must be set down as the poorest judges in the world—or is it all accountable for on the ground of native son pride and civic patriotism? A native son is a real favorite at all times out there if it can be figured that he has as good as a fighting chance.

* * *

INASMUCH as both Jose Rivers and Willie Ritchie may be tabbed up as real native sons, it looks as if both of them will be made favorites. That paradoxical statement may need a little explanation, and here it is. They will make Rivers the favorite down around the southern portion of the State, where he is so highly regarded. And in San Francisco, where Willie comes from, they will make him the choice. Hence we may see the spectacle of Frisco people doing their betting in Los Angeles, where they can get a better price, and the people from the southern part of the State doing their wagering at the scene of the battle. It should result in a funny mixup.

* * *

AS a sample of the strange way they have of picking out probable winners it may be recalled that when Ad Wolgast battled Lew Powell in a 20-round match in San Francisco they made Powell such a strong choice that the Wolgast adherents got as good as 2 1-2 to 1 for their coin—and won it all the way. Likewise when Wolgast won the title from Bat Nelson—the coast fans simply could not see Ad at all. So it has been in many another of the big battles there. Always the wrong man picked as choice and always the short end winning.

* * *

WHATEVER disadvantage Rivers may be found to have in this encounter, one of the points against him will be the fact that he will be an alien and scrapping on the other fellow's own canvas. This may not look to be much of a disadvantage when it is considered that Rivers is as much of a native son as is Ritchie. But Rivers isn't from San Francisco, while Ritchie is, and the cheers of the crowd, or the greater portion of these, will be for Ritchie, which may be decidedly disconcerting for Rivers, who is used to monopolizing such cheers himself, having fought a vast majority of his contests in his own ring at Los Angeles.

* * *

THE question of Rivers' gameness doubtless will be given the answer in this battle. It will be a crucial test for the little Mexican because he hasn't met quite such a rapid fire jabber as the Ritchie boy is liable to be in this match. And jabs are points that will be screamingly cheered by the friends of Ritchie, and Joe will find that he will have to do some mighty whaling to even up any sort of a count. It looks to me as if Rivers is a game kid and will give Willie a tremendous battle.

Long Hits Stride; Robertson Leads All

Tommy Long ha sagain started to climb in the Southern League batting list. The Cracker outfielder secured three hits out of four times at bat yesterday, and is now hitting at a .340 clip.

Dave Robertson is still at the head of the bunch with a mark of .355. He succeeded in getting two hits out of four times up against Nashville yesterday.

Kid Elberfeld, who has been idle for the past week, still holds second place with an average of .347.

'Thumbless Curve' Invented by Rucker

CINCINNATI, OHIO, June 26.—A two-hit shutout administered by Nap Rucker to the Reds recently may develop a new pitching style and a new ball called "the thumbless delivery."

After the game it was found that Rucker pitched the nine wonderful innings with a crippled left hand. The thumb was badly hurt stopping a batted ball some days ago and Nap could not shut it on the leather.

Nevertheless, the Georgia wonder went in there and proceeded to deliver a slow ball, gripped hard with the fingers and only steadied with the base of the useless thumb.

This ball came up to the batters like Matty's fadeaway, but higher, and man after man took two called strikes on the freak delivery.

Then Nap would drive one with what little speed he could command and the Reds, forced to hit, drove it out as best they could.

Great support saved rucker a dozen times, but the game nevertheless was marvelous for a man in his condition. The new thumbless ball, he says, will hereafter be one of his mainstays.

"I can stop any team," said Rucker, "that does the wait-'em-out act. If they stand up there with bat on shoulder I can toss two of these floats, get two strikes and trust to the field for the next one."

PIRATES.

In days of old
The Pirates bold
Controlled the raging seas,
and honest men
Who traveled then
All trembled at the knees.

For Pirates then
Were low-browed men,
Whose actions were unlawful.
They loved to fight
From morn till night,
And acted something awful.

We do not bow
To Pirates now—
They are a crowd of dubs.
For proof of that
Just rubber at
The Standings of the Clubs.

Reports from Poughkeepsie indicate that Wisconsin rowed in its old-time form.

Cornell is peeved because it won only two races out of three, whereas some of the crews considered themselves lucky to finish on the same day.

Vivian Nickalls may be a perfectly good rowing coach, but it surpasseth our imagination to conceive of a man named Vivian coaching a gang of huskies.

Alfred Vanderbilt's victory in the London coaching marathon shows that all the rich are not idle. If Alf were not a millionaire he would make a great little teamster.

J. EVERS SINGS.

I often pause and wonder at my
power over him—
One word from me and Heine does
what pleases Heine Zim.

H. Zim may mean well when he promises to be good, but he has an awful job on his hands.

Still, Mr. Zim has qualities which tend to make him a popular idol. For one thing, he never has attempted to burst into vaudeville.

Press agents have various ways to startle the public. For instance, one of them avers that a motorcycle meet was called off for fear the riders would be hurt.

The attempt to restore basketball to the high school curriculum simply shows that some persons have a lot of time to waste.

London papers inform us that "the American innovation of shirtsleeves will undermine the best traditions of golf." And yet there are those who claim that the Times is not a humorous publication.

TREASON.

The suffragettes may throw their bricks and smash the window
glass
But England calmly slumbers on and
lets the matter pass.
The French and German war bal-
loons may fill the summer air,
But England calmly slumbers on and
doesn't seem to care.
Their poloists may cross the seas,
and when they fail to cop,
The English only heave a sigh and
let the matter drop.
One way and one alone there is to
capture England's goat—
To play on old St. Andrew's links
and do not wear a coat.

PIRATES RELEASE BOOE.

PITTSBURG, June 25.—Outfielder Everett Booe has been released to the Springfield, Ill., club of the Three I League in part payment for Outfielder Fred Kommers, who is to report immediately. Manager Clarke has signed Outfielders Joe Kelly and George Watson, of the St. Joseph, Mo., team.

HUNTING HIRSIG LANDS NO GAME BUT SPINS YARN

NASHVILLE, TENN., June 26.—President William Alibi Hirsig, of the Vanishing Vols, returned from his hunt for ball players through the wilds of Ohio with his game bag as flat as the well-known pancake, and instead of fielders he accumulated a stock of highly interesting tales of .300 wallopers and .999 fielders he would at an early date dress up in Nashville uniforms.

"Author" Hirsig has so rapidly forged to the front as a yarn spinner that quite a number of the six best-seller publishers are entreating him to turn out a batch of storyettes about "Ball Players I Pretty Near Landed."

Beautiful Dreams.

Calmly brushing away a tear when the announcement came that "Red" Nelson's physician had warned him against inhaling the germs that hobnob around the club houses throughout the South, Hirsig unfolded a story of grabbing either Almeida or Dodge from the Reds. The interesting story-teller held his listeners spellbound, when he launched into the Vols' chances of securing the Cuban, Almeida, or the hard-hitting Dodge to decorate the third cushion for the Schwartzmen, and seeing that he had the bugs groggy, he put them down for the count when he stated that Tinker would probably also ship to Nashville Marty Berghammer, the former Cub, and "Rube" Groh, who came from the Giants in the famous trade for Arthur Fromme.

Hofman Cries to Come.

Recovering from this terrible shock, Hirsig uncorked another on the unsuspecting gabfest he held with Arthur Hofman while in Akron, in which Circus Solly begged the Vols president to take him to the Sunny South, if Kansas City would only release its claim on the ex-Pirate's services.

'Auld Nick' Goes on Rampage

Jap Beats Indian in Hot Race

MAYBE some day Jock McNeil and Tex Richards, the kings of the local Motordrome, will thrash out their speed differences and settle the argument as to whether the imported J. A. P. engine or that in the American-made Indian is the faster. They took still another hack at it Wednesday night before a smashing big crowd, and it is not decided yet. But McNeil put another kink in Richards' reputation by winning the Woodward Sweeptakes in stunning style. Then his machine blew up.

McNeil has named his craft "Auld Nick," and it surely behaves like it. In three race meets run thus far it has not gone through the whole program without springing a splint or developing a Charley hoss. But whenever it has gone right it has developed a speed the like of which the other machines at the Motordrome can not produce.

In the Sweepstakes Wednesday night McNeil and Richards met in the third heat at two miles. It was a tremendously fast race and the riders whirled around and around in dizzy circles at a speed of exactly 86 miles an hour. McNeil took the lead after the contest was well started and held it, with Richards a handy second, to the finish.

"Oh, Richards was just taking it easy to qualify as the second man in the fastest heat," said the wise ones.

In the final heat, however, they had it out for blood. It was at five miles and they started cautiously. Richards, fearing McNeil, went out after a mile with a terrific showing of speed. It looked as though the Indian would run the Jap off its wheels. But then McNeil opened up and like a witch on a broomstick he whirled mysteriously out into the lead and held it. At the finish Richards closed with one of those uncanny bursts of speed that he always seems able to conjure out of his engine for the finish, but McNeil let out another notch and whirled across the chalk line the winner of a truly great race.

With McNeil's machine in no condition the Motordrome Purse was easy for Richards.

The next races will be held Saturday night.

CLEVELAND FANS RALLY TO BIRMINGHAM'S SIDE

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 26.—Petitions and endless chains of letters to President Ban Johnson and President Charles Somers, of the Naps, censuring the president of the American League on the statement credited to him that Manager Birmingham is incompetent, were started in scores of offices and shops by fans to-day.

Many communications were mailed to Johnson's office in Chicago. Many who didn't write called Owner Somers, and his phone was jingling all day. Employees in offices in the Rockefeller Building started an endless chain of letters, every man asking his acquaintances to write. Similar chains were started in other office buildings.

LAW AGAINST HANDBOOKING BADLY NEEDED

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE attention of the men who have gathered for the purpose of making new laws for Georgia is called to the fact that this State needs a law against gambling.

Yes, it has one, but it is not adequate to prevent handbook gambling.

Under the present law, so we are informed by attorneys of great prominence, a man could parade up and down Peachtree Street offering bets on baseball games and horse races, and not be liable to arrest.

So long as he had no fixed place of business and could not be arrested for conducting a gambling house he is immune.

* * *

THIS is a wretched state of affairs. Handbook gambling ought to be prohibited by law. It leads to more serious gambling, it gets boys and young men started in the wrong way, it results in petty thievery, wasted money. It lines the purses of the gambling gentry, often at the expense of mothers and children who would have had the benefit of the money except for a foolish flyer on a ball game or a horse race.

* * *

THE worst feature of the handbook gambling, perhaps, is its wretched influence on the sports themselves.

Of course racing isn't worth saving.

No sports that exists for gambling alone is.

But baseball is. That is the great national sport, and thus far it has been kept practically above suspicion.

If gambling on the games continues long it will not escape suspicion and it will doubtless deserve suspicion and worse.

If only to save the greatest of American sports handbook gambling should be stopped.

* * *

IT is not presumed that a mere law will prevent betting. But it will at least drive it to cover and yank off the mask of respectability. If it isn't against the law to run a handbook why shouldn't anybody do it? That is what a lot of them ask. And it is a hard question to answer.

If a measure to prevent handbook gambling could be put before the Legislature it would go through flying.

There isn't a man who would vote against it. They would all realize that such a law ought to be on the books.

But will anybody bring such a law before them and see that it comes to a vote?

It would do more good for the State of Georgia than many a law that will be passed.

Evans Goes to Naps; One Day With Barons

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 26.—President Charles W. Sommers, of the Cleveland American League club, has ordered "Rube" Evans, the sensational Southern League left-hand pitcher with New Orleans, in the Southern League, to report immediately. Evans has been the property of the Cleveland club for some time.

A deal was closed Tuesday whereby Evans was sold by New Orleans to Birmingham, but Cleveland's call takes him from the Barons.

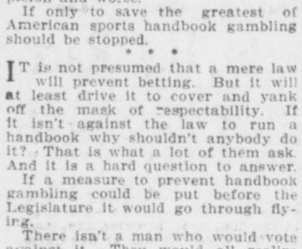
Blood Bath Knocks Rheumatism

Remarkable Effect of a Remedy That Actually Irrigates the Entire Blood Supply.



The Hardest Nut of All, Rheumatism, is Cracked by S. S. S.

It sounds queer to take a blood bath, but that is precisely the effect of a most remarkable remedy known as S. S. S. It has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And, best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store at $1 a bottle. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to the Swift Specific Company, 137 Swift Building, Atlanta, Ga.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, June 26.—It is a race of surprises in the National League this year. Every time it looks as if the Phillies are about to break and ready to drop back they catch their wind and come strong again. Brooklyn has also shown another burst. The Cubs are liable to gain on the three Eastern contenders—New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn—within the next two weeks because these three strong clubs will be playing one another.

The Athletics are still out in front in the American League and will probably stay there. They may fall back during their coming clashes with the Red Sox and Washington and their impending trip through the West. In both leagues the Western contenders will face easier series. Cleveland appeared to be slipping badly in the East a week ago, but the Naps have a fine chance to catch their feet again at home now, especially if the Philadelphia boys slide into a slump. Even the best of them slump. Cleveland has kept the Athletics within hailing distance while crusading through the East, which was a good deal of a trick considering the speed at which the Athletics were moving. That about sums up the situation in the two leagues.

THE Giants' case at this time perhaps deserves a little consideration. The club had a wonderful road trip through the West, gaining on the Phillies and winning twelve games and losing only four.

The silver lining in the showing of the Giants on the road during this last trip can be found by a glance at the schedule. The New York club winds up its season with a swing through the West this year, and, if the final dispute comes down to a battle between the Giants and Phillies to the wire, I look to see New York nose the Philadelphia boys out on this final trip.

* * *

THE Cubs now threaten to be factors in the pennant struggle to the end. They won ten games and lost six during the Eastern invasion, and the pitching staff appears to be much better than it was a month or even two weeks ago.

The Pirates fell down sadly and have continued to show bad form. Their case is hard to explain, but it is impossible to go behind returns, and the fact remains that the Pittsburg club is still in the second division and showing no signs of mounting. It is now nearing the first of July, which means the race is about half over. The Pittsburg club is now about a dozen games behind the league leaders, a margin which would require phenomenal playing to overcome. I don't see how the Pirates can be counted in the race at present.

9 PITCHED BALLS BY CONZELMAN STRIKE OUT SIDE

By Joe Agler.

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 26.—With Paul Musser and Dunn as the battery for the Crackers this afternoon we should repeat Wednesday's win, for Paul is going fine and has had a good rest.

Conzelman won his fourth straight game Wednesday, and it looks like there is no heading him off. He looks like the one best bet in the league to me. He has the build, the control and everything else that goes to make a big league pitcher. He is certain to be back in the majors next spring, and I think he'll stick, too.

* * *

JOE probably broke a league record in the seventh inning when he retired the Turtles' side on nine pitched balls. It was just like this:

"Stri-i-ike one!"

"Stri-i-ike tuh!"

"Stri-i-ike thruh! Batter up!"

And then repeat twice more. There wasn't a ball, nor a foul tip—nothing but nine strikes in a row. And that's going some.

Atlantans Closing in On Title Should Win in Big Tennis Meet

NEW ORLEANS, LA., June 26.—Competition in the tennis tourney for the Southern championship Thursday had narrowed down to a few players. Thornton and Grant, of Atlanta, began playing the Worms brothers about 11 o'clock. Pipes and Maginnis were opposed by Smith and Mansfield. Adoue was also carded to meet Shelton before noon.

Phelps will meet Thornton this afternoon. At 4:30 o'clock Grima and Phelps will be opposed by Adoue and Shelton. With this system of elimination the finals go over until Friday.

Saal defaulted to Williams late yesterday after two sets, throwing Williams and Thornton as opponents. It was late for a match, but they decided to play to avoid the morning heat Thursday. Thornton won in straight sets 6-1, 6-0. Thornton let himself out for the first time, and really showed how well he could play tennis. The local man never had a chance.

In the lower half of the game Shelton, of Texas, defeated Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, in straight sets, much to the surprise of nearly everybody at the tournament. Grant was not at his best and Shelton's chop strokes and hard backward drives appeared to worry the Atlantan greatly.

Nat Thornton disposed of Frank Dameron in one of two single matches yesterday. Score: 6-4, 6-4. The Atlantan was not exerting himself and could have reduced the length of the contest at any time he chose.

Good progress was made to-day in the ladies' championship division, but several sets will be thrown to a late afternoon card with finals to-morrow.

BANKERS TOLD TO ABANDON COERCION

People, Nation's Bulwark, Bound to Have Last Word in Currency Reform, Says Forbes.

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, June 26.—"You pay too much attention to 'the people,' to the man with a vote and little else," a Wall Street man scolded me yesterday, "and don't give enough consideration to the substantial men of the country, the great, big brainy men, the men who have made America what it is, the giants who head our financial and business organizations."

* * *

Well, to that I would reply that half the men active in Wall Street are ridiculously ignorant of 'the people's' place in a republic. They have contempt instead of consideration for the unlettered classes. They have an overweening sense of their own importance and power. They move in a dollar-ridden circle. They have neither the inclination nor the breadth of vision to grasp what part "the people" play in the scheme of things.

* * *

Rather than become an exponent of such views I would become a scavenger, for that is an honest, creditable calling.

* * *

Most of New York's ablest bankers are men of broad gauge, not at all the type I have just described. But there are among them numbers of bourbons, short-sighted, unable to discern the forces that govern twentieth century democracy, blind to world-wide developments in the relations of the so-called masses to the so-called classes. They can not realize that humankind has progressed rapidly these recent years toward equality, that manhood has asserted itself against mere money, that caste is being obliterated.

* * *

In the friendliest spirit conceivable I would urge the national bankers who have been in session here to abandon at once all idea of being able to prevent the United States from placing control of the currency system under the Government. They can not turn back the hands of the clock. The railroads tried it and failed—and to-day are heartily glad that they did fail.

* * *

The people will insist upon having, through their representatives, the final say in regulating banking.

* * *

The bankers may better accept this large fact with good grace now. They assuredly will have to accept it later, no matter how much they protest. Threats to seek shelter under State laws will not long avail, for even should such unlikely steps be taken the people of the States would fall into line and demand rigid control of the dodging institutions.

* * *

Let the bankers use their every effort, if they choose, to secure more generous representation on the Federal Reserve Board. They might win a provision in the bill that three of the seven members shall be bankers. But that the Government will insist upon holding the balance of power is a foregone conclusion if ever there was one.

* * *

Other changes of an administrative nature may also be gained by the bankers if they exhibit a genuine desire to co-operate in formulating the best possible measure. But they need not expect to win one iota by bluster, by coercion, by empty threats. Some of the protestants, I know, are deeply sincere. They really believe the handing over of bank and currency control to "the politicians" would bring incalculable disaster. With such men one can sympathize. But on calmer reflection they will reach the conclusion that the heavens will not fall, that the United States will not be engulfed in one mortal cataclysm.

* * *

It is a time for calm counsel, for co-operation, for argument, but not a time for intimidation. The people will have none of it.

* * *

If the bankers accept the situation as it is—and which they may be assured they can not change—if they strive to obtain changes calculated to insure the smooth working of the system, they will benefit themselves and benefit the country. But if they sulk, if they adopt an "I-won't-play-in-your-back-yard" attitude they are doomed to ignominious defeat.

* * *

The rising tide of Government regulation of public services can not be brushed back by bankers or by any other set of human beings.

LITTLE STORIES of the TOWN

Taking the Wind Out of His Sails.

He came into the office in the Empire Building, sat down, tilted his hat upon the back of his head and said:

"Mr. Jones, I've stopped in to inform you that I have decided to become your son-in-law."

After a gasp or two the old gentleman pulled himself together and replied:

"My boy, you have caught the idea. Now run down to the railroad office in which you have been employed. Call a meeting of the directors and tell them you have decided to become their president. If they elect you, come back and my daughter shall be yours."

Wanted to Save Light on Subject.

It was about supper time when a man with a toothache climbed the stairs to a dentist's office.

"How much do you charge to pull a tooth?" asked the sufferer.

"A dollar, with gas," answered the torturer, and 50 cents without gas."

"I'll wait till to-morrow and have it done in the daytime," said the patient, making his escape.

A Mean Girl; He's Running Yet.

"If you kiss me again," declared Miss Peachtree firmly, "I shall tell father."

"That's an old tale," replied the bold, bad young man. "Anyway, it's worth it," and he kissed her.

Miss Peachtree sprang to her feet. "I shall tell father," she said, and left the room.

"Father," she said softly to her parent when she got outside. "Mr. Bolder wants to see your new gun."

"All right. I'll take it in to him," said her father, and two minutes later he appeared in the doorway with his gun in his hand.

London Papers Laud Mahan's Jap Views

LONDON, June 26.—The London Globe says that Admiral Mahan's letter to The Times reveals the American view of Japanese immigration more clearly than any document yet seen, and Englishmen can not afford to disregard it.

"No people have greater pride of race than the Japanese, and a Japanese colony in America would remain as far apart as the English in India. This explains and excuses the distinction the Americans seek to draw."

Would Make Greek Compulsory Study

NEW YORK, June 26.—Letters have been sent to the presidents of the leading colleges and universities of the country and to public men asking them to accept membership on the advisory board of the Society of American Philhellenes.

The chief purpose of the society is to induce the educational institutions to take the study of Greek out of the elective courses and make it compulsory, especially in a classical course.

ADE BOASTS OF HIS PROWESS AS FARMER

Doesn't Have to Write to Make a Living — Goes Abroad for Vacation Trip.

NEW YORK, June 26.—George Ade sailed for Europe on the Imperator. This time he is not going abroad as a humorist and writer to hunt for local color for a story or a comic opera, but as an Indiana agriculturist whose corn and oats have done so well by him that he looks forward to a restful two months to be divided between a motor trip through the chateau district of France and a study of the "little horses," menu cards and automobile tariffs that help to make a season at Aix-les-Bains.

Mr. Ade disposed of any suggestion that he was working.

Mr. Ade, unlike many persons in New York who have "farms" in the country hereabouts, doesn't have to keep writing in order to keep his farm going. He said he had one of the finest crops of corn and oats that he had ever seen, and spoke of the tremendous advance in the price of farms in Indiana since he went back to the land, fifteen years ago, though he modestly deprecated a suggestion that that venture might have had anything to do with raising the price from $50 to $200 an acre.

"What has undoubtedly put up the price of land in Indiana so enormously is that it has been decided that the corn belt can not be extended farther," said Mr. Ade. "Beef is high and corn is high, and it looks as if neither was going to be any cheaper. A great factor also has been the increasing popularity of the agricultural college through the Middle West, the University of Wisconsin setting the pace.

"Twenty years ago agricultural colleges were struggling for existence. Boys who came from farms simply would not be persuaded to take agricultural courses; they wanted to learn something which would take them to the cities and give them an excuse for not working with their hands, as pa had always done, and as they had been compelled to do up to the time they first left home.

"I happen to be a trustee of Purdue, and we have decided to go extensively into agricultural education."

Admits Flagler Died In Guarded Cottage

NEW YORK, June 26.—W. H. Beardsley, attorney for the executors of Henry M. Flagler, admits that the cottage in which Mr. Flagler died at Palm Beach was surrounded by detectives during the latter's illness.

"It was necessary," said Mr. Beardsley. "Mr. Flagler himself, as well as the doctors demanded it. Had not officers been there hundreds of persons would have invaded the place."

New Society to Urge Drummers to Pray

The Traveling Men's Prayer Book Society is the latest organization within the Episcopal Church. The society is to encourage the practice of prayer and scripture among travelers. It was founded by Archdeacon Webber.

W. E. Dobbins, of Atlanta, is warden of the society here and Bishop Nelson is one of its patrons.

Athens Bidding for Week-End Visits by Atlanta Motorists

Athens is making a bid for week-end visitors, and with this end in view Crichton C. Callaway, secretary of the Athens Chamber of Commerce, spent Wednesday in Atlanta arranging for an automobile scout trip next week. A committee of Athens people will make the trip and submit their observations to the Athens Chamber of Commerce, which will publish them, together with other information, in booklet form.

"Atlanta's 3,000 automobile owners always make week-end tours, and we want them to come to Athens," Mr. Callaway said. "The route to Athens is picturesque, while the city itself has many objects of interest and is approached by the best county road system in the State. If we can get Atlanta tourists started to going there, they will keep it up."

The Athens scouting party is due in Atlanta about Monday or Tuesday. In a week or so the little Athens booklets will be printed and distributed among automobilists of Atlanta.

Pictures Slaying In Confessing Crime

COLUMBUS, June 26.—Indications are that there will be no preliminary hearing given Homer Carmack, the young man held in Lee County, Alabama, jail in Opelika, for killing J. J. Folks, Phenix City merchant, but that he will be held for the Grand Jury, which assembles the first Monday in July.

Officers believe that there is no doubt of his guilt. In his partial confession Carmack implicated two other men, who have offered alibis, and pictured the slaying in a graphic manner.

Tennessee Notes Hawked in Street

NEW YORK, June 26.—Tennessee notes amounting to between $11,000,000 and $12,000,000 were again hawked about the financial district yesterday by W. P. Hickerson, State Treasurer.

He was accompanied by R. R. Sneede, State Secretary of Tennessee.

Tennessee has $9,500,000 bonds maturing on July 1. Yesterday's visit closely follows that of Governor Hooper, who recently tried to secure bids for 4 per cent bonds.

Burial Service Read Over Bird in Coffin

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 26.—A pet canary, owned by James McLaughlin, was buried in a small cemetery in the back yard of the McLaughlin summer home in Chelsea.

It was placed in a silk-lined metallic coffin, and Helen McLaughlin read the burial service over her pet. The canary had been in the household fourteen years.

'Movies' to Show Newport Robbery

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—One of the large villas in the summer colony here is to be used as a central scene in a new moving picture to be produced.

Actors and actresses have arrived here, and it is said that the beginning of the picture will portray a robbery at one of the summer homes.

POET IN CONTEST TELLS HOPES IN VERSE

Its: "You'll Never Cop a Pony if You Don't Turn in the Votes."

Every great occasion brings its poet, and The Georgian and American's pony contest seems to be no exception.

It may not be poetry of the sublimest style, but at least it contains some great truths, and the contestant who wrote it is very likely to turn out a winner.

Here is the poem—Walt Mason style, it seems to be:

"You may long for all the prizes The Georgian gives away; you may guess and make surmises as to final victory; you may dream of welcome laurels where your flag of triumph floats, but you'll never win a pony if you don't turn in the votes.

"You may speculate on this thing; you may make a guess at that; but if others are a-hustling, who should you be standing back? Make a noise like something doing, get the other fellows' goats, for you'll never cop a pony if you don't turn in the votes.

"L'Envoi:

"Just remember, hopeful workers, you have got to shed your coats, roll your sleeves up, keep a-humping, if you want to get the votes."

The contest manager suggested that the contestant-poet might have spent some of the time he devoted to writing the rhyme to getting a few votes for himself.

The poet said it was no trouble at all to woo the muse, and that putting down the sentiments on paper helped him next day and all the following days in his work of soliciting subscriptions.

Just to be generous he passes it along.

Government to Aid North Georgia Road

DALTON, June 26.—An excellent highway constructed by the Government from Ringgold, in Catoosa County, to Dalton, through Whitfield County, in and probably through Gordon and on into Bartow County is now assured, the road to be built at a cost of $75,000.

Instead of an appropriation of $10,000 from the Government, Congressman Gordon Lee secured $25,000, and this will be supplemented by a fund of $50,000 from the counties interested, each county to pay $2 for every dollar spent by the Government.

Atlanta Sigma Nu to Hold Annual Dinner

The annual meeting of the Atlanta Alumni Chapter of the Sigma Nu fraternity will be held at the Cafe Durand Saturday evening, June 28. Following the banquet, the election of officers will be held.

Officers of the chapter have requested that every member who can be present communicate at once with Low Reynolds, in the Fourth National Bank Building, or A. C. Riley, Jr., in the Third National Bank Building.

$77,000,000 in Junk Collected Last Year

WASHINGTON, June 26—The junk business is growing rapidly. During 1912 the value of secondary metals recovered showed an increase of more than $25,000,000, as compared with the figures for 1911. The total for 1912 was $77,395,843, according to a geological survey report.

The report does not set forth the amount of old iron and steel recovered by junkmen, nor does it take into account the precious metals.

Resinol stops skin troubles

IF you have eczema, rash, pimples, or other distressing, unsightly skin eruption, try Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and see how quickly the trouble disappears, even in severe and stubborn cases. They stop itching instantly.

Sinclair's Divorced Wife Denied License

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 26.—Mrs. Meta Sinclair, the divorced wife of Upton Sinclair, the novelist, and Hubert Halliwell of this city were unable to get a marriage license from City Chamberlain Jesse J. Graham of this city, who refused it because they have been living at Dr. Sahler's sanitarium at Woodstock, whereas Mrs. Sinclair gave her residence as New York City.

After being refused a license Mr. Halliwell and his fiancee went to the home of Mr. Halliwell's mother in this city.

Mr. Halliwell admitted that he would be married within a week, but by whom or where he refused to say.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, June 26.—At the opening of the cotton market to-day the tone was easier and prices were unchanged to 5 points lower than last night's close. Cables were lower than generally expected. Bear operators had their operations checked by the reports of dry weather over the belt, resulting in August rallying 5 points over the opening, while other positions remained unchanged to 2 points higher.

After the call Liverpool and the continent were reported selling July, but the spot interests were supposed to be buyers. Many operators purchased August and sold July, while commission houses were good buyers of the new crop positions. After moving within a narrow range the market finally developed a sagging tendency and prices dropped some 5 to 9 points under the previous close. Liverpool developed weakness after a good start and closed unchanged to 2 points higher.

It is the current belief now that the market is only an evening up affair, pending the first notice day, Friday, on July delivery. For July contracts naturally was the subject of discussion. Advices from Liverpool stated that the English houses would not take up cotton unless the differences were large enough to assure them profit.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: July, 12.13; August, 12.07; October, 11.55; January, 11.48.

Following are 10 a. m. bids in New Orleans: July, 12.54; August, 12.19; October, 11.62; January, 11.68.

SHORT INTEREST IN CORN REDUCED; RECEPTS LIGHT

CHICAGO, June 26.—The Inter Ocean says: "Wheat traders said that so long as there are supporting orders on break to the 90-cent level and the condition of Northwest spring crop is so uncertain, it is not safe to sell wheat short, except on sharp bulges.

"Corn traders called attention to heavy reduction in the short interest on the part of the local professionals, also to firmer premiums for cash lots and lighter receipts. They also made the point that December continues to widen its discount under September 1. It is also claimed that the crop was improved."

STOCK MARKET

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, June 26—After a period of strength, during which many prominent issues made material gains, the stock market turned weak about half an hour after the opening and prices shaded.

The news that the Union Pacific dissolution plan had been advanced caused vigorous buying of Harriman's in London. In New York Union Pacific opened at 147⅝ for a gain of 1⅝. Later, however, it lost part of its advance.

Dealings in Union Pacific were brisk. Reading also was active. This stock opened ⅝ up at 158⅜, but later declined to 158. Among the other gains were Amalgamated Coper ¾, American Can ⅝, American Smelter ⅛, Canadian Pacific 1, St. Paul ¾, Chino Copper ½, United States Steel common ⅜, Southern Pacific ⅝, Pennsylvania Railroad ⅛, Lehigh Valley ⅜, Kansas City Southern ¼, Chesapeake and Ohio ¼ and St. Paul ¾. Steel soon lost all its gain. Missouri Pacific declined ⅛ and Baltimore and Ohio shaded ⅜.

The curb market was firm.

The tone in London was steady, despite Berlin and Vienna selling, induced by further reports of fighting in the Balkans. Sentiment in Americans in London was cheerful. Canadian Pacific was repurchased for a good price gain.

After a fractional advance stocks throughout the list showed a wavering tendency and light losses were recorded in Steel which reacted in a disappointing manner, losing about a point. Reading sold at 157⅜ from the early 158⅜. Union Pacific dropped 1⅜ and Copper was ⅝ down since the opening. The other issues receives about the same drop. The tone in the late forenoon was steady. Call money loaning at 2 per cent.

First Steel Coach Train Goes Through

For the first time an all-steel railroad train passed through Atlanta Wednesday afternoon over the Seaboard Air Line. No. 5, from Birmingham to Washington, had steel sleepers, but not until yesterday was the entire train made up of steel cars.

Assistant General Passenger Agent Geissler says Nos. 5 and 6 will be equipped with steel cars, and that the aim of the road is to replace all wooden coaches with steel.

Father Sold Girl, 15, To Husband for $150

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—Teresina Cotillo, 15, was sold to her husband by her father for $150, according to Deputy Attorney General Armon D. Clayton, of Delaware, who appeared in court here when the girl's father and husband sought to regain possession of her.

COTTON GOSSIP

Liverpool, Hentz and scattered longs sold July yesterday and Hentz offered 10,000 bales at 12.25 when the market was 12.21. Some thought this was to reassure shorts for the moment so they would not run away. July had most to do with the strength in the new crop positions, although offerings were limited in the latter. Geran, the Waldorf broker, purchased 15,000 bales of the new crop. McFadden, Springs, Hicks, Dick and Mitchell were good buyers.

* * *

The Turners' report was considered bullish and Weld makes the condition 83.3, against 84 last month. Sentiment is turning quite friendly to the market, mainly because of its stubbornness, the way it took 70,000 bales, which Pell sold, and on the idea that the latter will buy the contracts back on the first favorable opportunity.

* * *

* * *

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—Hayward & Clark: "The weather map is very favorable: partly cloudy to fair over the entire belt, few light showers at scattered points, mostly in the Carolinas and south Louisiana. Stationary temperatures, except some warmer in Memphis districts. Indications are for increasing cloudiness generally, scattered showers, particularly in the Atlantics."

* * *

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "All along price opponents have contended that the cornered condition of July at New York was the dominant factor, and none of them developed any particular attention to July at New Orleans. Now the bear party learns that several men have been quietly buying up July at New Orleans and that they expect to receive cotton on the contracts they hold. The significance of this is apparent when it is remembered that the demand for actual cotton in the South exceeds the offerings, and that actual cotton owners experience no difficulty in selling at full market values. Meanwhile, the bear has discovered fresh cause for market concern over European trade conditions, and sees fresh danger in the reopening of the Balkan conflict.

"On the other hand bool weevil talk is attracting increasing attention, the latest reports being to the effect that the cotton plantations in Mississippi recently purchased by an English syndicate are badly infested. Current crop condition reports do not make quite so good a showing as has been expected by those men who of late have drawn their daily inspiration from the favorableness of the weather map and for this reason high price people found the way clear yesterday to reassert their claim that the plant over a very large area has not made satisfactory progress, because of an adverse start and is now under size."

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 26.—While July wheat was steady and unchanged because of smaller receipts and a fair demand from shorts, September was off ⅝ and December was as much as ⅞c lower. The two latter months were under pressure because of the increase in the offerings of new crop, coupled with better crop reports from the spring wheat fields.

Northwestern cars were more than double those of a year ago and Winnipeg receipts were considerably in excess of the same day in 1912. Argentine shipments were 500,000 bushels less than the previous week and 1,300,000 bushels less than the corresponding week a year ago at 1,200,000 bushels for the week.

Corn was ⅛@¼c higher to unchanged with weather favorable for the crop and country offerings larger.

Oats unchanged to ⅛@¼c higher in sympathy with the strength in corn.

Provisions were stronger in sympathy with the advance in the price of hogs at the yards.

OPINION ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.: Wheat—The map shows fair rains at several points in South Dakota, light showers in North Dakota and quite general precipitation in Canada and Minnesota. The firmness in the cash situation and the uncertainty regarding the Northwestern situation are apt to give us a steady market.

Corn—Part cloudy with very little precipitation are shown. Look for a steady market.

Oats—The speculative situation appears strong on the belief that the crop will be a moderate one.

Provisions—There seems to be a disposition to take profits on strong spots, but we do not look for any material decline.

INSUFFICIENT RAIN.

CHICAGO, June 26.—B. M. Snow wires from Aberdeen June 25: "The weather continues warm and threatening, but rain so far strictly local and not enough to help any except in a small area in this county, Grant, Roberts, Day and Marshall counties. Crop in first two almost perfect, while dry but no sign of burning. In west part of other two burned spots beginning to show. Crops heading prematurely; must have general rain. These showers only relieve little patches."

Rush for Reno; Last Chance for Divorce

RENO, NEV., June 26.—Eight stylishly dressed women who arrived here on the Overland Limited train from the East were established in cottages here to-day, starting their residence here in time to be eligible for divorces before January 1, 1914, when the present divorce law expires.

Attorneys who met the women at the train refused to divulge their identity.

Good Time to Cull Out the Weaklings From Your Flock

Some Fine Pointers Regarding the Culling Out of Your Chickens. Suggestions Worth Lots to You.

Edited by Judge F. J. Marshall.

It is not the season of the year when we are doing our regular mating for breeding; it is a little too late, but it is a good time to do culling nevertheless. It is a good time to cull the hens. You will by this time, no doubt, have noticed that some of your pullets have not been laying regularly during this the great laying period of their lives. They may be laying small eggs or ill shaped ones all the time and that, too, in irregular numbers. It is a good plan and a good time to weed that kind out. Market them right now when the prices are good, and before they moult. Sometimes the breeder of exhibition stock is so anxious to perpetuate certain fancy traits that he is willing to forego short laying and things of that kind, but the utility man con not stand any such foolishness. He must have strength, vigor and good supply of eggs or it should go to the pot without delay. A good hen is expected to lay in a year about five times her weight in eggs. Professor Jordon, of the New York Experiment Station, has well put it, when he says: "Did you ever stop to note the difference in the production of the little Leghorn hen and the small Jersey cow? The Leghorn hen weighing 3½ pounds will lay 200 eggs weighing 25 pounds; the Jersey cow weighing 1,000 pounds will produce about 7,000 pounds of milk." He states "that if you will take the dry matter of the hen and compare it with the dry matter of the eggs she produces in a year, there will be 5½ times as much dry matter in the eggs as in her body. On the other hand, compare the dry matter in the cow's body to that of the milk that she produces and it will be as 1 to 2.9." In other words, the hen does twice as well as the cow. It is this high standing of the hen in mind that we must aim to keep our standard of utility up to.

In looking over your fully developed laying pullets if you see any that are small in the head for the size of the body, or has a slim, long beak, cull it out. It shows a weakness that should not be tolerated in a healthy flock. Those with the thin necks or pinched tails and narrow across the breast should go, too. Anything that shows a tendency to weakness. You can soon learn to detect these things if you will look your stock over carefully with that end in view. You will say that these things should be detected when the pens are first mated early in the spring, but at that time you can not tell all of them as well as you can after they have had a period of laying and begin to let down on their weak points. That is the reason that this is the very best time to do the culling. The males should be looked over for the same faults and those that do not measure up to the best that can be expected should be let go to the block rather than feeding them all the season for next year's use. The very strong and robust should not be disposed of at any price; keep them. Turning to the youngsters that are coming up watch them as they are developing to get at their weak points. Whenever you detect one in the flock as it grows it is a good plan to mark it with a brush and a little Diamond dye, so that when it gets old enough to eat there will be no trouble to tell it and get it out of the flock as soon as possible. The common points to detect the weak ones by are the drooping of the wings. Not necessarily clear to the ground, but they are not held in place as does a healthy chick have his. You will find that kind often sitting upon the ground while all its mates are out foraging.

It is the last to leave the roost in the morning and the first to get to it at night. The front part of its body is carried low, while in a vigorous one it is carried erect. As the comb begins to develop it should be a bright red and strong and vigorous looking. As we used to say the chicken carries his health certificate on top of his head.

The shanks are a very striking indication of the constitution of the specimen they carry. On the weaking the shanks are slim and bony; almost sunken, as we would call them. Note this fact closely as it is one of the surest indications. When the chicks are quite young you will note a great difference in the eyes. The eyes of the healthy one will be very bright and stand out like shoe buttons, while the weakling will have apparently flat and unimportant eyes.

Any one can soon train themselves to be an expert in the detecting of the weak ones that should come out of the flock, and the sooner they are put on the market the better for the rest of the flock. Of course, this has reference to those that show no sickness but are just not robust.

H. G. HASTINGS & CO.

OUR NORTH SIDE AND INMAN PARK DELIVERIES LEAVE THE STORE AT 9:30; SOUTH SIDE AND WEST END AT 2 P. M. GOODS ORDERED BEFORE THESE HOURS WILL BE DELIVERED SAME DAY.

CHICKENS need more care and attention the next two or three months than any other time during the year. It is perfectly natural for chickens to have lice and mites, and unless you look after them they will multiply in such quantities to prove profitable. The little chicks will not reach the growth they should and the hens will not lay if they are covered with these pests. We have ties that you can not expect your flock remedies that will positively get rid of them and the cost is very little. For 35c you can get a can of either Lee's, Conkey's or Pratt's Lice Liquid and we will guarantee either of these preparations to give entire satisfaction.

WE have just gotten in a lot of nice, fresh, clean Red Comb Feed. The price for scratch and mash is $2.25 per 100 pounds.

WE are offering Baby Chick Feed at $2.15 per 100 pounds for the next few days. You know the regular price is $2.50 per 100 pounds. Better take advantage of this.

Poultry—Disinfectants.

AGASCO-SPRAY

WILL RID your premises of mites, lice, fleas and ants. It is ready for immediate use with brush or spray pump. When applied to poles and nests it eradicates lice and mites so effectually that fowls do not have to be carried through that inconvenient and nerve-racking process of dipping. Manufactured by Atlanta Gas Light Company, Atlanta, Ga.

BOARD WANTED.

YOUNG MAN would like to get board for a week or ten days somewhere in North Georgia or Carolina. Write full particulars to P. O. Box 570, Atlanta, Ga. 6-24-43

WANTED—Accommodations for the Georgia legislators. They are coming in now and will be in session at the State Capitol from June 25 for FIFTY days. All of them are on the outlook for nice, comfortable and home-like places to eat their meals, or to board or to rent. Many of the places these legislators had last year did not suit them and they desire to find something better. All the legislators will read The Georgian—that's certain. Their attention will be called day after day to the "Legislators' Accommodations" column on the Want Ad pages of The Georgian. This will be a big advantage to you. So if you have eating or boarding places or have rooms, apartments or houses for rent, your ad should be under the "Legislators' Accommodations" heading. An investment of a few cents will keep your house full for the next three months. Phone or send in your ad at once.

DESIRABLE PEACHTREE LOTS.

THERE is no use in going into detail in regard to Peachtree Street property. Every person in Atlanta knows Peachtree Street, knows its desirability, and also knows its PRICE, which, as a rule, is just a little beyond some of us.

We have had listed with us some unusually pretty building lots, some this side of Buckhead and some just beyond. These lots have a frontage of 100 feet on Peachtree with a depth of about 425 feet, being beautifully shaded.

The price on these particular lots is from $10 to $15 under the market, making the PRICE within the reach of any one who contemplates a Peachtree home.

DeLeon Properties Sold for $40,000

Fulton National Buys and Subdivides. Church to Improve Property?—Echoes of Peachtree Paving.

The sale of the Moise DeLeon properties on Whitehall and South Forsyth Streets was closed Wednesday, the purchaser being the Fulton National Bank, through Dr. W. J. Blalock, president, and the price approximately $40,000. The deal was handled through Andrew Calhoun, of the Turman, Black & Calhoun agency, and the property has been subdivided and placed with C. L. DeFoor and the above agency for resale.

The property is located on the west side of Whitehall Street, north of East Fair Street, where the total frontage is 52 1-3 feet, and on the east side of South Forsyth Street, in the rear of the Whitehall property, where the total frontage is 107 1-2 feet. In the new subdivision are two Whitehall lots 26.16 by 100 to an alley, and the Forsyth lots 21 by 22.5 by 100 feet to an alley.

It will be recalled that certain DeLeon equities were put up for sale before the court house door about two months ago. A Whitehall equity was bid in at $1,500, but Percy H. Adams, referee in bankruptcy, rejected the bid, and at private sale the equity brought $5,000. Wednesday's sale was for the entire properties.

Presbyterian Church Plans.

Members of the property committee of the First Presbyterian Church have a new scheme for disposition of the church's valuable lot on the south side of Marietta Street, near Spring Street. They want the church members to form a corporation and buy in the lot and erect substantial income-bearing improvements. In this way, pointed out by a prominent churchman Wednesday, the church would not be obliged to sell at a sacrifice.

There is still another proposition, in the nature of a cash offer which the property committee is considering. A land developer wants the lot to subdivide.

The congregation owns 90 feet of frontage on Marietta Street which has been held at $180,000. Some time ago they bought a large lot at the northwest corner of Peachtree and Sixteenth Streets, where it is planned to put the new church and manse at a total cost of about $100,000. It is the desire of the property committee to go ahead with the erection of the new church irrespective of the sale of the downtown location, and it is probable that a move will be made toward erecting the edifice.

Healey Building Six Stories.

Steel work on the Healey Building has gone six stories and some of the uprights are in place for two more floors. The two monster derricks used to lift the stel are being carried up as the steel work progresses. At first they were located in the basement, but now they are high above the sidewalk and going higher. The Healey Building will soon be as high as the Grant Building to the south, and its seventeen stories will eventually cause it to tower over its neighbor.

Peachtree Paving Needed.

Members of the Board of County Commissioners declared Wednesday that something would be done as soon as possible to repair Peachtree Street from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead. What action would be taken was not stated definitely, but the Commissioners are at work on a plan and expect to announce it soon.

It will be recalled that the Commissioners met recently and agreed to remedy conditions "at once," but that a postponement was later ordered. In the meantime the paving is bad and property owners and travelers are beginning to complain.

Peachtree is used to reach town by all the people in the upper portion of Fulton County and of adjacent counties who do not use Piedmont Avenue or Marietta Street, and the volume of traffic is such that there is always a demand for a travelable thoroughfare. The condition of the street is now almost intolerable, and that is why ready relief is sought. The present paving is several years old, and the opinion is expressed that the commission will soon be obliged to lay entirely new paving.

The Railroads and the Public

A Letter from Mr. Ivy L. Lee, of the Pennsylvania

(Copyright, 1913.)

The Georgian and the other Hearst newspapers, published to protect the public, are aware of the fact that to protect the public thoroughly, ALL legitimate workers must be protected, big men and little men, ditch diggers, railroad builders, street peddlers, department stores, thinkers and big industrial organizations.

Criticism of big and able men because they happen to be rich and intelligent is as stupid and harmful to the public welfare as would be attacks on or unjust treatment of little men because they happen to be poor and badly organized.

We publish gladly a letter which presents the side of the railroads in an important public question.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD COMPANY.
General Office, Broad Street Station.
Philadelphia.
Ivy L. Lee.
Executive Assistant.

Editor The Georgian:

My Dear Sir—Your papers have been commending the law recently passed in New Jersey which places upon the railroad companies the entire burden of removing grade crossings. There is one important phase of this subject, however, which you have not brought out.

There is no doubt that grade crossings are a great public menace and should be removed. But, of course, their removal must be paid for, and those who are benefited are the ones who ought to pay for it. If the entire burden should fall upon the railroads without delay the railroads would be bankrupt.

As you know, in England there are practically no grade crossings, the reason being that when the railroads were first built it was sure that there would be enough traffic to make them pay. Therefore, the Government could take the position that there should be no grade crossings. In this country, if we had taken such position there would not have been so many railroads.

Everybody, railroad officers included, agrees as to the danger and the objectionable character of grade crossings. But it is certainly like the ostrich burying its head in the sand to pass a law placing the whole burden upon the railroad companies and imagining that through such a law the money is going to come out of the bankers of Wall Street.

May I venture to call to your attention the policy which Mr. Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, recently set forth as in his opinion the proper one to be pursued in solving the grade crossing problem?

"Public Service Commissions, on motion either of a municipality, a railroad, or on a commission's own initiative, should have the right to designate such grade crossings as should be removed, and should have power, after hearing all parties in interest, to apportion the cost of such improvements, with due regard for the interest of all parties concerned."

Respectfully,
IVY L. LEE.

Mr. Lee, who is a graduate of the Atlanta Boys' High School, and son of the Rev. J. W. Lee, former pastor of Trinity Church, and who occupies an important position near the president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is right in his statement that the public can not legislate uniimited millions into existence or compel railroads to spend money that they haven't got.

It is an impossibility to abolish immediately ALL of the grade crossings in the United States.

There is not enough money in the United States to do that work immediately. And legislation can not CREATE money.

The trouble, however, as Mr. Lee and Mr. Rea will admit, has been in the past a lack of the fair and reasonable attitude now taken by Mr. Rea, recently elected president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Railroad management until recently has often been as arrogant and unreasonable as the most foolish legislator, or the most ignorant demagogue.

The railroads can exist only by permission of the public, they get their rights and their revenue from the public, and are able to build because the public exercises its right of eminent domain in their behalf, yet the railroads have refused for years to recognize in the public ANY RIGHTS AT ALL.

Stockholders, investors in the railroads, have been robbed in every conceivable way. (It is true that the Pennsylvania has been an honorable exception in this regard.)

Legislation that the railroads WANTED has been bought with money.

And legislation that they did NOT want has been killed with money.

It is not unnatural that representatives of the public should in their turn sometimes follow the example set by the railroads and disregard the railroads' rights as the railroads have disregarded the rights of the public in the past.

This newspaper, however, opposes unjust legislation against the railroads as strongly as it opposes public robbery by the railroads.

It is preposterous to say that every grade crossing should be abolished at once and that the railroads should pay the expense.

The total capitalization of the railroads is about $600,000,000, including stock not yet issued.

AND $600,000,000 WOULD NOT BE ENOUGH TO ABOLISH ALL THE GRADE CROSSINGS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD ALONE!

The United States would not have to-day one-quarter of its railroad mileage if the railroads had been compelled to build without grade crossings. That would mean that the United States would be only one-quarter developed in comparison with its present development.

Mr. Rea's statement and suggestion in regard to railroad crossings, and his address made upon that subject recently in New Jersey are reasonable and display a fair spirit.

The trouble has been in the past that railroads and their officials have used their power to prevent ANY INTERFERENCE EVEN WITH THE MOST DANGEROUS GRADE CROSSINGS.

If other railroad officials will follow Mr. Rea's example and in good faith submit public questions to impartial public officials, railroads and the public contributing their fair and proper share of any expense, THE RAILROADS WILL FIND THAT THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY ARE NOT DISHONEST, WILL NOT DEMAND THE IMPOSSIBLE, AND WILL NOT BE LED INTO PATHS OF CONFISCATION OR UNJUST ASSESSMENT BY THE NEWSPAPERS THAT THEY TRUST.

June Morn

Are We Coming to the Bee Idea of Life

By WINIFRED BLACK.

HAVE you ever read Maeterlinck's marvelous story of the bees?

No?

Go to the library and get it this very day. You can't afford to live another twenty-four hours without knowing that book!

Every time you see a bee in the garden afterward you'll feel like standing, hat in hand, and watching him fly by.

Talk about "man the reasoning animal," the bee reasons so much better and so much more closely than man that he makes us all seem like little blind, blundering beetles booming around in the sunshine, not knowing where we are going or what we are trying to do.

The Wonderful Bee.

The bee—the wonderful bee—no wonder Napoleon chose him for his emblem.

Is that what we are all coming to—some day I wonder—the bee system of living?

Every once in a while I see something in the news that makes me think so. It is a great thing to watch—the daily news of this great, strange, simple, complex world of ours.

The sailors on the ship that Columbus brought across the wide waters spent days standing at the rail watching for the drift of waters, and now and then they found hope of land in the broken branch that floated on the silent sea and now and then some strange bright feather that rose and fell on the waves told their hopeful hearts of bright lands beyond, where the bird that wore the feather waited singing in a spreading tree to welcome their coming.

Driftwood tells strange tales sometimes.

That's what the news is—driftwood—telling stories, old stories that sometimes makes the human hair rise and that turns the blood cold in the veins of the one who watches by the rail to see the drift come by.

Now, there's that little item in the paper this morning—the one about the Judge who told the man that he could not make his wife follow him to a farm, and he could not divorce her because she did not follow.

"She hates country life," said the Judge. "You cannot force her to live it. She has the same right to decide where she wants to live as you have." Drift, drift from strange shores, is that decision.

I wonder how they would think of it in North Carolina, where a man can have you arrested and fined if you give shelter, food, employment or even a word of encouragement to a wife who has left his bed and board without his permission, no matter what it was he did that made her go.

A great artist went with his wife to see her off on a long trip

WINIFRED BLACK.

the other day. "Yes," said the artist to the reporters, "I hate to see her go, but she has chosen the stage for her vocation. Who am I, to stand in her way? She is a human being first of all, you know," and no one was particularly surprised to hear him say it.

She Likes to Work.

A clever writer married a clever business woman a week or so ago, and he told his friends and hers that he did not expect her to give up her business to stay at home for him.

"She likes to work," he said. "Why should I take it upon myself to deny her her own life? Women are something more than the echo of men."

In a high school out West they find that the average height of the high school graduate is lowering for the boys and heightening for the girls.

The boy babies born at the great public hospital in Boston to-day are one inch shorter on the average than they were ten years ago. The girl babies are nearly an inch taller than they were ten years ago and weigh, on an average almost a pound more.

A newspaper in the Middle West interviewed the members of a graduating class of girls in a great school yesterday, and out of thirty girls, twenty-four said that they hoped they would not have to marry. Marriage was narrowing and cramping, they said.

Driftwood, driftwood! From what strange tides does it come these days! The bees—oh, yes—that's what I mean.

The bees have arranged all this affair of the feminine uprising,—arranged it years and years ago.

The queen bee rules. She breeds the young, divides the hive into workers and drones. There is no mingling of the two classes at all. One bee is to gather honey, one is selected to found the future of the hive. When his work is done, out he goes. Is that what we are coming to, we humans, some day?

Will there be home women and work women, home men and work men, divided quite definitely into classes like the bees—each having his own special mission in life, and never dreaming of interfering with any other in any way?

"Career" Women.

Mother women and "career" women, work women and beauty women, men workers and men home makers, how else shall we manage this affair of the woman who will not live as her husband wishes—else deal with the man who thinks that a woman should follow him wheresoever he lists to go, and howsoever he intends to do when he gets there? Bu-zz, bu-zz! How do you think of the bee idea, brother philosophers?

The drift, the drift! How pleasant it is to stand in the sunshine at the ship's rail and watch it slipping by, and speculate and dream, and hope, and wonder.

SONG OF THE GOOD ROAD

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner.

I AM a Road; a good road, fair and smooth and broad;
And I link with my beautiful tether
Town and Country together,
Like a ribbon rolled on the earth from the reel of God.
Oh, great the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a long road, leading on and on;
And I cry to the world to follow,
Past meadow and hill and hollow,
Through desolate night, to the open gates of dawn.
Oh, bold the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a kind road, shaped by strong hands;
I make strange cities neighbors;
The poor grow rich with my labors,
And beauty and comfort follow me through the lands.
Oh, glad the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a wise road, knowing all men's ways;
And I know how each heart reaches
For the things dear Nature teaches;
And I am the path that leads into green young Mays.
Oh, sweet the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I speed away from the slums,
Away from desolate places,
Away from unused spaces;
Wherever I go, there order from chaos comes.
Oh, brave the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I would make the whole world one.
I would give hope to duty,
And cover the earth with beauty.
Do you not see, Oh men! how all this might be done?
So vast the power of the Road!

Writes on

A Trip to the Moon

He Gives Reasons Why It Can Not Be Made by Aeroplane, But Says It Might Be Made With the Aid of Inter-Atomic Energy.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

WITHIN a few weeks past I have been asked to address two different aeronautical societies on the curious subject of the possibilities of a trip to the moon.

As far as I am aware this does not indicate an intention on the part of any aviator to essay a voyage to our satellite, but, at least, it shows that the flying instinct is growing by what it feeds upon, and that, having navigated the air, practical men are giving a little extra rein to their imaginations, and wondering whether the empire of birds marks the ultimate frontier of human conquest.

In fact, the dream of going to the moon, which, in every age, has occupied daring minds, is hardly more impracticable at the present time than would have been a project, springing up in the mind of Balboa, of making ships sail across from the Atlantic to the great Western ocean which he saw from his paak in Darien.

But it is not the invention of either the aeroplane or the dirigible balloon that stimulates thoughtful minds at the present time to consider, half-seriously, the idea of a lunar voyage. The success of those inventions, defying scientific predictions and probabilities, only forms an incentive. It turns men's minds hopefully to things that heretofore they have regarded as lying beyond the limits of human power.

It has always been so. Every great advance has been a marvel at the beginning, derided or laughed at. Each one of them has been a victorious birth of the imagination. The greatest drag on progress is lack of faith in the hidden capacities of man.

"Verily, I say unto you, if ye have faith, as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain: 'Remove hence to yonder place,' and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

Only Beginning.

That is high authority for believing that we are only just beginning to discover the extent of our control over nature, and such things as wireless telegraphy, X-ray photography and the disintegration of atoms, with consequent unlocking of tremendous concealed energy, prove that hitherto we have been like the man who buried his talents in the earth instead of making them produce ten or a hundred fold.

Suppose we look at the subject of visiting the moon in the light of present knowledge. The distance in itself is nothing—240,000 miles! Many a sea captain has sailed much farther than that. It is less than ten times the circuit of the earth.

If the atmosphere extended from the earth to the moon, we could go there now by modifying our present apparatus. At a hundred days! But at a height of five or six miles the atmosphere becomes so rare that we could not live in it without an artificial supply. Yet unmanned balloons have gone ten miles high, and meteors take fire from friction at an elevation of a hundred miles or more.

Still the atmosphere does practically cease to exist at no very great elevation, and cuts short off the road of the balloon and the aeroplane.

We must turn to something else. The buoyant force of air enables us to overcome the gravitative attraction of the earth only up to a moderate height. Beyond that something more is needed. I have learned with surprise that many intelligent persons supose that if we once got outside the air motion would be unimpeded. For instance, a man said to me the other day:

"Suppose an aeroplane could mount straight up until it passed the limits of the atmosphere, then having nothing more to impede its motion, it would go on with whatever velocity it had when it left the air."

In fact, this could only occur in case the velocity of the aeroplane amounted to nearly seven miles per second, for that velocity would be required to completely overcome the pull of the earth's attraction. Otherwise it would fall back to the earth.

This is the reason why Jules Verne, in his amusing story of "A Voyage to the Moon," had his adventurers shot out of an enormous cannon. Only in that way, he thought, could the requisite initial velocity be obtained.

A Bold Plan.

But a bold mind might, in view of recent discoveries, speculate on the illimitable power that may be obtained from unlocking the energies of the atoms of matter. Professor Thomson has calculated that a single gram of hydrogen has within it sufficient energy to lift a million tons a hundred yards high! Does anybody imagine that that unlimited store of energy is going forever to remain uncontrolled by human genius? We have discovered its existence; the next thing is to take it and use it.

Suppose we had it under control, as we shall have it some time. Then reflect upon the close relation between atomic phenomena and electricity, and recall the familiar experiment of making bits of pith fly away from an electrically charged ball. If we could construct some kind of a car that could be powerfully charged with electric energy we might be able to make it fly away from the earth as the pith balls fly from the charged conductor of the electric machine.

The Problem Solved.

Then it would be necessary to establish a system of control by which the speed and direction could be regulated by varying the charge—AND THE PROBLEM OF NAVIGATING SPACE WOULD BE SOLVED. I have developed this (of course purely hypothetical) idea somewhat farther in a story called "A Columbus of Space."

Such a method would avoid all the difficulties, really insuperable, that hampered Jules Verne's plan of a projectile starting at a velocity of almost seven miles per second.

However, when we get the atomic energies under control our first efforts will be directed to making more money out of them, and trips to the moon will only begin to pay after we have got tired of purely earthly things.

A Fine Old Heathen

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

WONDERFUL in a far more useful way than we find it described in the "Arabian Nights" was the fine old heathen known as Haroun Al Raschid, who died eleven hundred and four years ago.

In a time of intense bigotry and cruelty he was tolerant and merciful. In an age of blackest ignorance and brutal indifference to every form of intellectual enlightenment, he was deeply interested in learnings, and employed every aid at his command for the elimination of the superstition that was sitting like an incubus upon the breast of humanity.

While Christian Europe lay in the shadow of its seemingly irremediable ignorance, Bagdad was cultivating the sciences out of which was to come the world's mental resurrection. While the Christian teachers were asserting the flatness of the earth, the Mohammedan doctors of Bagdad and Cordova, Seville and Alexandria were teaching geography in the common schools from globes. While in London and Paris they were practicing and professing to cure men's ills through the agency of charms, trinkets and incantations, in the great Mesopotamian capital they were treating the sick upon the principles of science and common sense.

So famous was Al Raschid's medical school at Bagdad that the great and mighty Charlemagne issued a decree that no man should practice medicine in his dominions without first having passed a satisfactory examination before the Bagdad faculty. And th- old Mohammedan's heart was as sound as his mind, for be it remembered that at the time Charlemagne was using fire and sword against all who would not, or could not, accept the theological beliefs he had sworn to champion, Haroun Al Raschid was doing all he could to protect Charlemagne's subjects in the full exercise of their religion.

TAX REFORM FIGHT BEGINS

BATTLE ON TO IMPROVE STATE TAX SYSTEM

Problem of Supplying Additional Revenue Without Raising Rate Looms Above All Others.

The new Legislature will make the matter o ftax reform the paramount business of the session that opened Wednesday.

With all preliminary fights out of the way and both branches compactly organized, the members already have turned their minds to the legislative business ahead, and far bigger than any other question confronting the General Assembly looms the problem of supplying the State with absolutely necessary additional revenue, without, at the same time, putting up the rate of taxation.

Many of the brightest, most consructive and statesmanlike minds in the new Legislature are considering this matter exhaustively, and it will be given the right of way over everything else.

Two Measures Introduced.

Already two measures looking to more revenue—Mr. Cole's inheritance tax bill and Mr. Lipscomb's board of tax equalization bill—have been introduced in the House, and others will follow rapidly.

Tax reform, beyond the shadow of a doubt, is to be the big Legislative issue of the present session.

Completely and harmoniously organized in both branches, the Georgia Legislature for 1913-14 met Thursday morning ready for such business as might come before it.

The various committee assignments will not be announced before next week, as the framing of them is perhaps the very hardest and most exacting work that will come before the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House during the entire session.

Blackburn House Leader.

President Anderson and Speaker Burwell began working on committee assignments immediately after adjournment yesterday, but it will require a week, perhaps, to finish the undertaking.

It seems to be an acceped fact that Representative Blackburn, of Fulton, is to be the House floor leader, inasmuch as he is reported slated to head the Committee on Rules, while it is freely rumored about the Capitol today that President Anderson proposes to evidence his entire friendship and good will toward his late rival, Judge Allen, the Senator from the Twentieth District, by offering him his choice between the chairmanship of the Finance and the Constitutional Amendments Committee in the Senate.

Both these suggested shrdletaois

Both these suggested assignments apparently meet with the approval of the Houses involved, for nothing but commendation of them is heard on any hand.

Good Will in Senate.

Indeed, the fine feeling in the Senate, following the strenuous struggle for the presidency thereof, is remarkd by every one, and it now looks as if the new Legislature is to get away with its work in a spirit of genuine good fellowship and mutual respect all around.

Certainly for the first time in ten years Georgia appears to have on hand a General Assembly that may be classed neither as a "Smith" nor a "Brown" body.

Beyond the suggestion of Blackburn for vice chairman of the Committee on Rules in the House and Allen for either Finance or Constitutional amendments in the Senate, the "dope" on the committee line-ups is pretty bead. Neither President Anderson nor Speaker Burwell will discuss the matter at all.

For the next two days the Legislature will do little more than "mark time," anticipating the inauguration

Cool Weather Just Ahead, Forecaster's Solemn Assurance

Cooler weather is on the way.

"Fair and warm" is the forecast for Thursday, but moderate breezes sifting through the West and Middle West are due to reach Atlanta at no distant date. Possibly Thursday afternoon may bring a little relief from the high temperature of the last two weeks. Thunder showers are anticipated in the Atlanta territory, and if the city is so fortunate as to lie in the path of the rain it may enjoy moderae weather for a day or two.

This announcement was made by the United States Weather Bureau Thursday morning, and it brought joy unlimited. The drop in temperature may be as much as 8 or 10 degrees, according to official dope. Temperature at 7 o'clock Thursday morning was 75 degrees. At 8 it was 80.

Brilliant Men All Unbalanced, Says Atlanta Alienist

"No brilliant man is perfectly poised mentally. All artists and musicians in a way are mentally unbalanced. They are the highest type of deranged persons. The man who is perfectly poised mentally is not brilliant."—Dr. J. Cheston King, Atlanta, Ga.

CHICAGO, June 26.—This statement was made at the National Convention of Alienists here.

"The perfectly poised man," said Dr. King, "is a very common man. When he falls in love it is purely a matter of the heart. When an artist falls in love it is more a condition of mind. But when a mentally balanced, common man falls in love he sees his sweetheart through the eyes of a genius."

Priest Will Conduct Boxing Bouts July 4

NEW YORK, June 26.—The Rev. Father M. P. Heffnan, rector of the Catholic Church at Sayville, L. I., has been granted a license to conduct the Sayville Athletic Club.

The license was issued by the New York State Athletic Commission at its regular weekly meeting.

Father Heffnan will open his new club house for the young men of all creeds and denominations on July 4, when he will present a series of boxing matches. The priest is collaborated by clergymen of different denominations.

Last Militant of 7 Wins Hunger Strike

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 26.—The last of the seven suffragists sentenced to prison terms June 17 for malicious destruction of property was released from jail to-day because of illness brought on by a hunger strike. She was Miss Harriet Roberta Kerr, aged 54, manager of the headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union.

Six of the seven were women; the seventh was E. A. Clayton, who mixed explosives for the women.

Atlanta Sigma Nu to Hold Annual Dinner

The annual meeting of the Atlanta Alumni Chapter of the Sigma Nu fraternity will be held at the Cafe Durand Saturday evening, June 28. Following the banquet, the election of officers will be held.

Officers of the chapter have requested that every member who can be present communicate at once with Low Reynolds, in the Fourth National Bank Building, or A. C. Riley, Jr., in the Third National Bank Building.

Rush for Reno; Last Chance for Divorce

RENO, NEV., June 26.—Eight stylishly dressed women who arrived here on the Overland Limited train from the East were established in cottages here to-day, starting their residence here in time to be eligible for divorces before January 1, 1914, when the present divorce law expires.

Attorneys who met the women at the train refused to divulge their identity.

ICE 15 CENTS MORE HERE THAN IN MACON

Atlanta Pays Forty and Bibb Metropolis Twenty-five--Same Concern Serves Two Cities.

Atlanta, with far greater population, is paying more for ice than Macon.

The wholesale price in Atlanta is $4 a ton, or $1 more than the Macon price. The comparison is even more distinctly to the disadvantage of Atlanta, in the prices for small amounts of ice at retail, the price being 30, 35 and 40 cents per hundred in Atlanta compared with a straight 25-cent rate in Macon.

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation is the principal manufacturer and distributor of ice in both Atlanta and Macon, and it also is in Chattanooga, Rome, Augusta and Jacksonville.

Three Dollars Ton in Macon.

As a result of the competition between the two ice companies in Macon, the Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation and the Southern Ice & Coal Company, ice is selling at wholesale in Macon for $3 a ton. At the beginning of the season the rate was $4.50. The retail purchasers, those who buy 10 or 15 cents worth at a time, are now getting their ice in Macon at the rate of $5 a ton, or 25 cents a hundred pounds. Formerly they paid $7.50 a ton, or 37 1-2 cents a hundred.

In Atlanta the wholesale price is $4 a ton. Ice is sold at retail on a graduated scale—30 cents per hundreds in amounts over 50 pounds; 35 cents per hundred in 25-pound lots and 40 cents per hundred in 10-pound lots.

The Atlanta customer who buys 10 pounds of ice, pays more than the Macon customer did before the ice war in Macon started. Before the price cutting began in Macon, the price of ice in small lots was 37 1-2 cents per hundred pounds. In Atlanta the price then, as it is now, was 40 cents per hundred pounds.

To get ice as cheap as it sold in Macon before the price war started, the Atlanta purchaser must buy at least 25 pounds. He can not buy any amount of ice as cheap as it sells in Macon to-day.

Says Price Will Be Raised.

When asked why Atlanta had to pay a higher price for ice than Macon, W. B. Baker, vice president and general manager of the Atlantic, said Wednesday that Macon was in the throes of an ice war, started by their competitor, the Southern Ice & Coal Company. The price there was too low, he said, and at the end of the war would be raised to a reasonable figure.

"The Southern started the price cutting," Mr. Baker said. "It is a small company, with 60ton capacity. We have a 300-ton plant, with 14,000 ton storage capacity. They started last summer and had to cut prices to get any business.

"It is simply a question of supply and demand in Macon. Ice will not keep always, and they they make it they have to sell it. They couldn't get our customers without offering an inducement, and so they began to cut prices. The cut, however, applied only here and there. Our policy is to treat everybody in the city alike. When they cut at a few places, we met the cut, and pursuant to our policy, gave the same cut prices to everybody in the city. We always do that."

In direct reply to this is the charge that the Atlantic is a trust and has suppressed competition in Atlanta, Augusta, Rome and Jacksonville and is attempting to do the same thing in Macon. This charge was brought by the Southern Ice & Coal Company, which has secured an order from the Superior Court enjoining the Atlantic from further reducing prices

Absence of Heads Of Pure Milk Body Postpones Report

Owing to the illness of Dr. S. A. Visanska and the absence from Atlanta of Oscar Elsas, the luncheon scheduled for Thursday at the Piedmont Hotel to consider the report of the milk committee of the Chamber of Commerce has been postponed indefinitely.

Dr. Visanska, who is chairman of the committee, is recuperating at a South Carolina sanitarium, and Mr. Elsas, the vice chairman, is at the bedside of his son in a New York hospital.

Featuring the report of the milk committee is a recommendation that the Chamber of Commerce have Dr. Charles North, sanitarian of New York City, come to Atlanta and conduct a week's investigation. Secretary W. G. Cooper, of the Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday an early date would be set for the luncheon, at which time the milk committee's report would be considered.

Tennessee Notes Hawked in Street

NEW YORK, June 26.—Tennessee notes amounting to between $11,000,000 and $12,000,000 were again hawked about the financial district yesterday by W. P. Hickerson, State Treasurer.

He was accompanied by R. R. Sneede, State Secretary of Tennessee.

Tennessee has $9,500,000 bonds maturing on July 1. Yesterday's visit closely follows that of Governor Hooper, who recently tried to secure bids for 4 per cent bonds.

$77,000,000 in Junk Collected Last Year

WASHINGTON, June 26—The junk business is growing rapidly. During 1912 the value of secondary metals recovered showed an increase of more than $25,000,000, as compared with the figures for 1911. The total for 1912 was $77,395,843, according to a geological survey report.

The report does not set forth the amount of old iron and steel recovered by junkmen, nor does it take into account the precious metals.

London Papers Laud Mahan's Jap Views

LONDON, June 26.—The London Globe says that Admiral Mahan's letter to The Times reveals the American view of Japanese immigration more clearly than any document yet seen, and Englishmen can not afford to disregard it.

"No people have greater pride of race than the Japanese, and a Japanese colony in America would remain as far apart as the English in India. This explains and excuses the distinction the Americans seek to draw."

Rector Fights Tango With Model Dances

NEW YORK, June 26.—Hoping to stop the tango, the turkey trot and other modern dances, the Rev. George B. Gilbert, rector of the Episcopal Church, at Middletown, Conn., has leased the dancing pavilion at Lake View Park and will conduct it as a model dance hall during the summer.

Leading society women from the city are chaperons for the dances, the first of which was held last night.

Submarine 'Movies' Taken in Diving Tube

NORFOLK, June 26.—Moving pictures of submarine life have been made possible through the invention by Captain J. H. Williamson of a flexible tube with a windowed chamber, in which three men can work.

A son of the inventor descended 35 feet at night, and with the aid of electric lights took pictures of fish at the bottom of Hampton Roads.

THE WEATHER.

Forecast for Atlanta and Georgia—Generally fair Thursday and Friday.

JUDGE SPEER RAPS U. S. ATTORNEY GENERAL

Georgia Federal Jurist, Before Iowa Bar, Resents Probe of His Office.

SIOUX CITY, IOWA, June 26.—Severe criticism of the Attorney General of the United States for having him investigated by special agents and secret service men in the employ of the Department of Justice was the feature of the address of Judge Emory Speer, of the United States Court for the Southern District of Georgia, before the Iowa Bar Association today. He also stated that the detectives are liable for contempt of court for operating in the presence of the court.

Judge Speer spoke to the Iowa lawyers, who are in annual meeting here, on "The Debt the American People Owe the American Judges." When he had finished that subject he discussed the action of the Department of Justice in probing his personal and judicial record.

Questions Right to Probe.

Judge Speer said, in part:

"More dangerous than the power to disqualify a Federal judge is the power to disgrace and defame him. In the utter absence of all charges against him, is not the arbitrary espionage or investigation of a judge by the Department of Justice, under the direct order of the Attorney General, to treat him as if he were wholly careless of his reputation and good name. I speak impersonally and with all deference and respect for the distinguished official who is ex-officio the leader of the American bar."

Hints at Contempt of Court.

Judge Speer then stated that the examiner had appeared in court, made copious notes with significant gestures, conferred with disgruntled attorneys, received letters from convicts in the penitentiary, interviewed stubborn debtors who had been forced by the court to pay their obligations and examined newspaper files.

"The examiner, and I speak of him with great respect, even with timid deprecation, works in a mysterious way his wonders to perform," said the Judge, adding:

"He holds the fate of the judge in the hollow of his hand. And all the while, be it remembered, there are no charges pending against the judge, where such charges should be made. The examiner imparts to the judge no information whatever of any complaint. There is no chance for defense.

"This method is very recent. I dare declare that no other could be more offensive to the chastity of judicial honor. If proper with a district judge, it is equally appropriate with the judges of the Supreme Court of the United States.

"For action less directly in the presence of the court, less interfering with the administration of justice, men have been convicted for contempt of court, and the convictions have been sustained.

Judciary Above Party.

"Dependent upon party and party partisans, crushed by the ill will of the politicains, shall the judges fluctuate with the tide of public opinion? Shall the judges, like empty bottles on the waves, float in and out with recurring tides of party victory and defeat? Will their bosses, as a reward for election, seek from them immunity for the crime, the violence, the fraud they may commit?

"If the judges must be subservient to the politicians who hold departmental offices then truly the noble motto, 'Let justice be done though the heavens fall,' will be supplanted by the odious slogan, 'To the victors belong the spoils.'

"Your courts degraded and enthralled, your judges prejudged, uncertain, timorous, cringing before the partisans in office, and before that many-headed monster, the mob, where is your safety, your repose of mind, the glory and honor of your noble profession?

"At least see to it that your judges have what we in Dixie call 'a white man's chance.'"

TRIAL JUDGE IN LEO FRANK CASE

Judge L. S. Roan, who will preside at trial of alleged slayer of Mary Phagan.

CALLS COURT TO PROBE LYNCHING

AMERICUS, June 26.—Judge Z. A. Littlejohn has signed an order calling for a special session of the Sumter County Superior Court to investigate the lynching of Will Redding, a negro, for shooting Chief of Police W. C. Barrow last Saturday night. The order fixes next Monday as the time for court to convene.

It is also ordered that the same Grand Jury that served at the recent term of the court be resummoned to investigate the lynching. This Grand Jury is known as one of the most fearless that ever served the people of Sumter County, having indicted a number of well-known men for gaming and others for violation of the prohibition law.

Sunday morning the city was all agog with talk of the lynching. Now, strange to say, no one can be found, without difficulty, who will speak of the affair except as having been informed by someone else.

Judge Littlejohn would make no comment relative to the order for the special session of the court other than to say that he had given the people a chance to vindicate their laws, and that it is now their duty to do so.

Street Awning Falls, Knocking Out Driver

W. L. Claire, 179 South Pryor Street, driver for the Southern Express Company, was seriously injured early Thursday morning when struck on the hand by a falling awning rod in Whitehall Street. He was taken to Grady Hospital.

Eyewitnesses said the top of the express wagon struck the awning, causing it to fall. Claire was rendered unconscious.

WISE TO RUN FOR CONGRESS AGAIN

J. W. Wise, of Fayette, who was beaten by a scratch last year in the race for Congress from the Sixth District, will enter the race again next year. Mr. Wise says he hopes to get sufficient votes next time to leave not a shadow of doubt of election.

In the last contest in the Sixth the district voted as a whole, the candidate receiving the largest vote to be declared the nominee. When the returns were announced it is said the count showed Mr. Wise to be the winner by about 200 votes over his opponent, Congressman Bartlett.

Later, however, Mr. Wise received information from Macon to the effect that there had been a change in the vote in some of the city precincts.

Mr. Wise says he never has been satisfied with that decision, but has determined to bide his time and get into the race next year. He says he has been overwhelmed with messages urging him to enter the race at the next election.

Pictures Slaying In Graphic Manner

COLUMBUS, June 26.—Indications are that there will be no preliminary hearing given Homer Carmack, the young man held in Lee County, Alabama, jail in Opelika, for killing J. J. Folks, Phenix City merchant, but that he will be held for the Grand Jury, which assembles the first Monday in July.

Officers believe that there is no doubt of his guilt. In his partial confession Carmack implicated two other men, who have offered alibis, and pictured the slaying in a graphic manner.

STOVER GIRL PLAYS STAR PART IN TRIAL

But State Must Prove She Entered Factory Before Mary Phagan.

Monteen Stover, a timid little year-old girl, will be a star witne the trial of Leo M. Frank July 2 the charge of strangling Mary P gan in the National Pencil Factor according to all indications Thurs day.

The frequency with which she ha been called upon to repeat her sto of going to the factory on the day the crime and finding Frank abse from his office is taken as an almo certain indication that the prosecutio regards her statements of the utmo importance.

The State, if it is able to estab that Monteen Stover entered the f tory on the day of the crime ju after Mary Phagan went inside, w have scored a most significant vi tory. The evidence will still be cir cumstantial, it is true, but it will b of greater weight even than the weir stories of the negro sweeper, Jim Co ley, who has sworn that he saw Frank in disposing of the body.

Adds to Mystery.

Her story, however, until it is a stantiated or disproved in court, adds to the mystery of a crime w already abounds in baffling and m terious phases. Her appearance the witness stand may mean ever thing or nothing—because there is th startling fact that every indication points to Monteen Stover having en tered the factory BEFORE Mar Phagan.

Monteen Stover is the daughter Mrs. Homer Edmonson, of 171 Sou Forsyth Street. She formerly wa employed at the pencil factory, an on the Saturday of the murder wen to the building to get her money. S said that she arrived there at 1 and remained about five minutes said that Frank was not in his of and that she was not able to fin him.

Pitted against the declara the little girl is the state ment Frank that he was in his offi at the time. One of the two apparently spoken falsely or mistaken the theory of the State that Phagan had preceded Monteen S into the factory; that Frank tac tacked her probably in the m room, and that this is the reas Stover girl was unable to find Fr in his office when she was in building from 12:05 to 12:10.

Where the Case Is Hit.

Should the State be able to imp the jury that this was the se sequence of events, the prosecu will argue that Mary Phagan left office in company with Frank went to the metal room.

But the theory of the State is once assailed by what appears to practically certain evidence that a matter of fact, Monteen Stover at the factory before Mary Pha entered. If this is the case, Fra absence from his office could not had any significance, for Mary gan was not yet there.

The Phagan girl left her 11:50. She lives in Bellwood ride to town takes more than utes. The time that she left in the city is fixed by Willi Matthews, Motorman No. 1447, Cooper and Hendricks Streets who says that his car arrive Broad and Marietta Streets bet between 12:07 and 12:10 o'clock

If Mary Phagan had hurried barely could have got to the fa by the time the Stover girl was ing, if this testimony can be re upon implicity. The Stover story falls down utterly, so far value is concerned, therefore, if Mary Phagan did not come into the fac until after the Stover girl had le

There still remain the conflic stories of the Stover girl and Fra even though they can not have a d rect bearing on the case. The Stover girl says Frank was not in his office and he declares that he was there until he went to the fourth floor to se Arthur White and Harry Denham.

Problem of Increasing Revenue Overshadows All Others Confronting Georgia Assembly.

of the new Governor and the winding up of the present administration.

Message Divides Members.

The sentiment of the membership is rather sharply divided as to the retiring Governor's message of Wednesday. Some members openly approve it, while others as openly disapprove it.

In the main, however, the discussion is guarded and in a way noncommittal.

Many recommendations in it are all but unanimously indorsed, but its recitals and conclusions as to union labor unquestionably created a geneuine stir in the House, and with respect to that not many members incline either to view with alarm or point with pride.

The question seems rather a ticklish one, in the minds of most members, and most of them, accordingly, avoid committing themselves one way or the other concerning the same.

All agree that the Governor displayed great courage in saying what he did, but not a few of them doubt the political wisdom of it. Others, however, declare it to be the best politics, if there is politics in it, the Governor ever has played.

Roll Call Not Unusual.

Yesterday's calling of the roll of counties for the introduction of new business was not such an innovation as some people appear to have thought. As a matter of fact, the Constitution requires that the roll be called on the first day for this purpose, and Legislatures that have failed to do it have failed to comply with the law.

The roll likely will not be called again before Friday, however, and there is no practical reason why it should be, as the bills introduced necessarily will have to remain on the Clerk's desk, pending the appointment of committees.

Accused of Stealing Check While Drunk

Charged with stealing a cashier's check for $126, which, it is said, he wrapped up with his clothes in the Southern Express Company's office, while intoxicated, R. L. Underwood, a former employee of the company, has been placed on trial in the criminal division of the Superior Court.

The letter, it is asserted, was found in Underwood's boarding house.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

by JAMES B. NEVIN

In these parlous times of political maneuvering, wherein one must be both as wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove, politicians of more or less caliber, who never yet have ventured very far from shore, will do well to learn one lesson from the cases of J. Randolph Anderson, President of the Georgia Senate, and William H. Burwell, Speaker of the House.

Neither man won his fight by way of mere personal popularity alone, albeit each has many warm friends and stout-hearted supporters.

The gentleman who put over both Anderson and Allen is none other than our venerated and esteemed fellow citizen, Old Man Hard Work!

Anderson and Burwell have been tireless in their efforts to succeed in their undertakings. Both men have lived their races for months. Anderson and Burwell were at it hammer and tongs while some of their opponents were seeking membership in the Don't Worry Club.

Politics, unlike kissing, rarely goes by favor. They that seek find, if they seek diligently enough—or, at least, they that do not seek rarely find.

Anderson and Burwell both are experienced legislators. Each has served a long and active term of service. Both are first-class parliamentarians, both good speakers and are both fine diplomats. Neither should in any manner "fall down on his job," and it isn't at all likely that either will.

There is a particularly fine and friendly feeling among members of both Houses, and the chances are that Georgia has on its hands at last a Legislature that will be able to proceed to its work free from partisan bias or internal feuds.

That's saying a good deal—but it looks as if the saying is warranted!

Hon. O. K. Jones, one of Lowndes County's representatives, and a strong believer in tax equalization or reform will introduce a bill in the Legislature providing for the appointment of a board of three tax assessors for every Georgia county.

Mr. Jones believes that valuations can be raised 25 per cent without working any hardships, and the State pulled out of the financial bog within a year, by the work of competent and conscientious assessors. There is no question that millions of dollars of taxable property is never returned. The uncovering of this property would within itself materially increase revenues. Representative Jones says:

"To make the proposed boards of real benefit, the members should be appointed and their tenure of office entirely independent of public suffrage. Many a tax-receiver has beaten himself by a conscientious and zealous effort to secure just tax returns in his county, and it takes a pretty brave officer to persist in a course, however right, which he knows will beat him at the polls. That danger is removed when the assessors are made appointive."

Governor Brown literally has been swamped with callers to-day and yesterday. The Governor still is very much of an active agent in politics, and keeps in close touch with his friends, just as very many of his friends insist upon keeping in very close touch with him.

To-day and to-morrow will be his last days as Chief Magistrate, for by Saturday morning, when his successor will be inaugurated, he will have everything in shipshape for the new Governor.

It may be taken as a certainty that the Governor will not retire absolutely from sight politically, although it undoubtedly is his purpose to refrain from meddling in the new Governor's business, if he might.

Governor Brown and Governor-elect Slaton are firm friends of years standing. The new Administration will have no more earnest well wisher than the present Executive.

House bill No. 1 this year is in, by Mr. Cole, of Bartow, and proposes a graduated inheritance tax for Georgia.

House bill No. 1 in the last Legislature was the famous "Tippins bill" of fragrant recollection, which had the stormiest career of any measure introduced.

It weathered the gales in both the House and the Senate, only to go to wreck eventually on the rocks of an executive veto.

House bill No. 1 this year seems destined to a kinder fate. The inheritance tax idea is popular in the Legislature, and the chances that such a measure may become the law are exceedingly bright.

Mr. Cole has this bill very much at heart, and will leave no stone unturned to push its passage.

Cole, by the way, is one of the younger members of the House, sure to take a high stand among his colleagues. He is well on the sunny side of 30, and is one of the most successful business men in North Georgia. He started his career some ten years ago with something like $1.35 capital, and to-day he is worth—well, he's mighty well fixed for his age, and he is progressing every day! All that he has has been accumulated by hard work and sticking everlastingly at it—he never stops on a job he is undertaking to put over.

Cole has made a deep study of inheritance taxation. The law he proposes for Georgia is based upon the best things he could gather from other inheritance tax laws, particularly from the splendid one California has on her statute books.

Two fine young Georgians to whom Speaker Burwell feels heavily indebted for his victory of Wednesday are Thomas F. Fleming, of Sparta, and H. L. Gardner, of Eatonton.

This pair worked in season and out for Burwell, remaining constantly in his headquarters in Atlanta during the last days of his campaign. Both are affable, earnest and sincere workers, and much of the happy outcome of Burwell's fight is due to them and their loyal work.

Grover Edmondson, of Brooks, is the "baby" of the House, but he doesn't look it nearly as much as does Wisdom, of Forsyth.

Edmondson is a big, husky youngster of 22, while Wisdom is an extremely boyish looking kid of 24.

Both are fine chaps, however, and likely will be heard from in the present House.

Burial Service Read Over Bird in Coffin

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 26.—A pet canary, owned by James McLaughlin, was buried in a small cemetery in the back yard of the McLaughlin summer home in Chelsea.

It was placed in a silk-lined metallic coffin, and Helen McLaughlin read the burial service over her pet. The canary had been in the household fourteen years.

NEWPORT BEGINS FIGHT ON TROTS AND TANGO

Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., prominent young society matron, who is introducing classic dancein g in her set at Newport.

Younger Set of Millionaire Colony Engages Instructor for New Dances.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 26.—During the coming season, which gives promise of being one of the most brilliant in the history of the fashionable colony, fancy dancing will be one of the popular diversions.

The younger set, of which Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, Jr., is a leader, has engaged an instructor, and dancing quite dissimilar to the popular tango and turkey trot will play an important role in the amusements of the millionaire cottage colony.

Mrs. Spencer, who is a member of the Casino Tennis Committee and active in the numerous affairs in which the younger set is interested, is an accomplished dancer herself, and any new forms of dancing inaugurated by her are certain to be taken up and followed by the young people of Newport. The colony is awaiting this innovation with interest.

Mrs. Spencer won particular admiration from society when she danced at the big benefit of the girls' branch of the Public School Athletic League, given at the Waldorf in New York last February. Her artistic Swedish dances in costume won her a tremendous ovation and three times she was asked to repeat them.

$2,000,000 Is Frisco Stockholders' Loss

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—Stockholders of the Frisco System have lost nearly $2,000,000 in the depreciation of the values of common and preferred stock since the railroad went into the hands of a receiver, according to estimates made from the stock books in the last week.

James Campbell, of St. Louis, is holding stock worth $214,220 less than it was before the receivership suit was begun.

Jordan to Preach Bryan Idea Abroad

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Dr. David Starr Jordan, Chancellor of Leland Stanford University, who is starting on a year's tour of the world to lecture in England, China, Australia and elsewhere on the peace movement, called on Secretary Bryan to-day and told him that he thoroughly approved and would preach the doctrines of Mr. Bryan's proposed peace treaties.

Athens Bidding for Week-End Visits by Atlanta Motorists

Athens is making a bid for week-end visitors, and with this end in view Crichton C. Callaway, secretary of the Athens Chamber of Commerce, spent Wednesday in Atlanta arranging for an automobile scout trip next week. A committee of Athens people will make the trip and submit their observations to the Athens Chamber of Commerce, which will publish them, together with other information, in booklet form.

"Atlanta's 3,000 automobile owners always make week-end tours, and we want them to come to Athens," Mr. Callaway said. "The route to Athens is picturesque, while the city itself has many objects of interest and is approached by the best county road system in the State. If we can get Atlanta tourists started to going there, they will keep it up."

The Athens scouting party is due in Atlanta about Monday or Tuesday. In a week or so the little Athens booklets will be printed and distributed among automobilists of Atlanta.

FREE SUGAR AND WOOL FIRST IN TARIFF BILL

Senate Caucus Ratifies Wilson's Policy—Foodstuff Clause Effective in 1916.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Free sugar in 1916 and free raw wool have been approved by the Democratic caucus of the Senate, after a two-days' fight, and are established in the new tariff bill. The sugar schedule, practically as it passed the House, was approved by a vote of 40 to 6. Free raw wool swept the Senate caucus by a vote of 41 to 6.

This ratification of President Wilson's tariff policy came after a long series of developments since the tariff bill passed the House in which the President had an active participation.

When the fight was getting hot the President declared any suggestion of compromise on the wool and sugar schedule ideas was absolutely out of the question.

Then he stirred administration leaders to action when he made his "insidious lobby" charge, which has brought results regarded as favorable to the tariff bill.

The six Democratic Senators who voted against free sugar on the final vote approving the schedule were Hitchcock, Nebraska; Newlands, Nevada; Ransdell and Thornton, Louisiana; Shafroth, Colorado; Walsh, Montana.

The six who opposed free raw wool were Chamberlain of Oregon, Newlands, Nevada; Ransdell and Thornton, Louisiana; Shafroth and Walsh.

No attempt was made to bind members to the action of the caucus. The question will come up when the entire bill has been passed upon.

Servant Wins Ninth Part of $14,000,000

JOPLIN, MO., June 26.—Mrs. Sachet Carlyle, employed as a maid at $5 a week, retained her job to-day, although she had just learned that she and her mother, Mrs. Martha Wilson, each were heirs to one-ninth of an estate valued at $14,000,000.

She mailed papers to Baltimore to-day proving her relationship to John Price, who left the estate.

until a court hearing on July 25. It was charged that because the Southern would not sell out to the "trust", the rates were cut to such an extent that ice was selling at ruinous prices.

Restrained in Chattanooga.

Mr. Baker admitted ice was selling too low in Macon and said it would advance. He laughed at the Southern Company's suit, saying they wished now they had not brought it.

"And as for our having suppressed competition in certain places," he continued, you know yourself that we have three competitors in Atlanta. We also have two competitors in Augusta and two in Jacksonville and one in Rome, because Chattanooga ships ice to Rome against us. We also have another competitor in Macon, because a brewery there sells ice against us."

The Atlantic Ice & Coal Corporation was recently restrained by Chancellor McConnell, of Chattanooga, from selling ice below a stipulated price in a certain zone of that city. The same charge of attempting to kill competition was made against them."

TEACHERS MEET NEXT WEEK IN CONTESTS

High School Instructors Also Will Hear Experts in Conferences at Athens.

Several hundred high school teachers, college instructors and others interested in the development of the State high schools will visit Athens next week to attend the sixth annual State high school contests and High School Association meetings. Conferences and meetings will begin July 1 and continue until July 5.

Among the conference speakers and lecturers will be a number of high school experts of the United States, including Dr. H. A. Hollister, of the University of Illinois, and Dean Southwick, of the Boston School of Expression.

Dr. Hollister will lecture each morning at 8:45 o'clock in Peabody Hall, beginning Tuesday. Dean Southwick will deliver three lectures Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings at 10:25 o'clock.

Experts to Hold Conferences.

State high school experts will lead conferences on "Methods of Improving the Teaching Force of the High Schools," "Should Georgia Organize a Teacher Training Course in the High Schools?" and "Means of Bringing the High School Closer to Community Life."

Special conferences will be held throughout the week on home economics, science, mathematics, language and English. The conference on home economics will be conducted by Miss Elizabeth Holt, of Augusta; the conference on science will be conducted by Principal W. P. Jones, of Rome; the conferences on mathematics, language and English will be in charge of Dr. R. P. Stephens, Principal N. G. Bartlett, of Dublin, and President F. F. Rowe, of Thomaston.

The high school contests will be inaugurated Wednesday, July 2, with preliminary debating contests in Peabody Hall. Thursday a music contest and a State championship debate on woman suffrage will be held.

Hold Contests Friday.

Declamation, athletic, spelling and recitation contests will be held Friday. Gold medals will be awarded in all events and a $300 scholarship of Brenau Conservatory will be awarded to the State winner in the music contests. The winner in the debate will be awarded a $50 set of books.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst Are Hosts to U. S. And Foreign Officers

NEW YORK, June 26.—Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst entertained the officers of the American, Brazilian and Argentine warships lying in the Hudson River. The naval officers met at Mr. Hearst's home in Riverside Drive, as did some of the women in the party.

From there they were conveyed to the New Amsterdam Theater in theater coaches, attending the performance of Ziegfeld's Follies. Following the performance, the party returned to the Hearst home for supper and dancing.

Among the civilians in the party were John Purroy Mitchel, Collector of the Port, and Justice James W. Gerard, of the Supreme Court.

Cotton Men Make Millions in Grain

NEW YORK, June 26.—During the dullness in the stock market it is believed that the McFadden interests, which have always been prominent in cotton, have made several millions through a bull campaign in the grain markets.

Not long ago, according to gossip in the grain pit, the McFadden crowd were carrying 10,000,000 bushels of coarse grain and over 1,000,000 bushels of wheat. Since April 1 July corn has advanced to above 62 cents a bushel, July oats from 33 7-8 cents to 43 1-4, and July wheat from 89 7-8 to 93 5-8 cents.

LITTLE STORIES of the TOWN

Taking the Wind Out of His Sails.

He came into the office in the Empire Building, sat down, tilted his hat upon the back of his head and said:

"Mr. Jones, I've stopped in to inform you that I have decided to become your son-in-law."

After a gasp or two the old gentleman pulled himself together and replied:

"My boy, you have caught the idea. Now run down to the railroad office in which you have been employed. Call a meeting of the directors and tell them you have decided to become their president. If they elect you, come back and my daughter shall be yours."

Wanted to Save Light on Subject.

It was about supper time when a man with a toothache climbed the stairs to a dentist's office.

"How much do you charge to pull a tooth?" asked the sufferer.

"A dollar, with gas," answered the torturer, and 50 cents without gas."

"I'll wait till to-morrow and have it done in the daytime," said the patient, making his escape.

A Mean Girl; He's Running Yet.

"If you kiss me again," declared Miss Peachtree firmly, "I shall tell father."

"That's an old tale," replied the bold, bad young man. "Anyway, it's worth it," and he kissed her.

Miss Peachtree sprang to her feet. "I shall tell father," she said, and left the room.

"Father," she said softly to her parent when she got outside. "Mr. Bolder wants to see your new gun."

"All right. I'll take it in to him," said her father, and two minutes later he appeared in the doorway with his gun in his hand.

Would Make Greek Compulsory Study

NEW YORK, June 26.—Letters have been sent to the presidents of the leading colleges and universities of the country and to public men asking them to accept membership on the advisory board of the Society of American Philhellenes.

The chief purpose of the society is to induce the educational institutions to take the study of Greek out of the elective courses and make it compulsory, especially in a classical course.

Admits Flagler Died In Guarded Cottage

NEW YORK, June 26.—W. H. Beardsley, attorney for the executors of Henry M. Flagler, admits that the cottage in which Mr. Flagler died at Palm Beach was surrounded by detectives during the latter's illness.

"It was necessary," said Mr. Beardsley. "Mr. Flagler himself, as well as the doctors demanded it. Had not officers been there hundreds of persons would have invaded the place."

$1,000,000 IN GOLD FROM ALASKA.

SEATTLE, June 26.—A million dollars in gold, the first shipment from Nome, Alaska, this year, was received by the steamers Senator and Victoria, which arrived from Bering Sea on their first trip of the season to-day.

DRAW ENDS SHAM BATTLE OF TROOPS

Maneuvers on at Annual Camp. Mrs. C. W. Hatcher Catches 5-Foot Shark.

BRUNSWICK, GA., June 26.—Officers of the Georgia State militia and regular army men here to observe the maneuvers are much pleased to-day over the excellent work of the troops in the second sham battle of the encampment yesterday afternoon.

The battle ended in a draw, the infantry under Major Hunter being unable to dislodge Major Seamans' dismounted cavalry from their intrenchments, while the latter had their hands full trying to repulse the attacking forces.

The Orange army, equipped for field duty, marched directly from Camp Brown to the sea, and then proceeded northward about a mile, where intrenchments were thrown up. At places the earthworks were five feet in height, and the defenses were concealed by canes and rushes cut from the neighboring swamps.

The Blue army, under command of Major Hunter, approached from the heavily wooded land side, but was held at bay by the Orange outpost, under command of Captain Rudisill, of Atlanta, long enough for the Orange army to intrench its position. The Blue army took up a position running parallel with the railroad. The battle line was about 2,000 feet long.

A number of Atlanta women were entertained by the officers of the Second Squadron and the Third Battalion yesterday. Most of the visitors formed parties and went fishing, and some good catches were made. Mrs. C. W. Hatcher, of Atlanta, caught and towed to the shore a five-foot shark, which she shot and killed.

Resinol stops skin troubles

Dr. J. W. Riley Ends Successful Revival

Dr. J. W. Riley, noted Minneapolis Evangelist, closed his ten-days campaign for membership at the Tabernacle Wednesday night. Dr. Riley's efforts have met with great success. At the services Tuesday evening the front seats of the auditorium were filled with new members brought into the church through Dr. Riley's work. More than 100 also joined the Sunday school.

The evangelist will return to Minneapolis for a two-weeks' stay, after which he goes to Estill Springs, Tenn., to conduct services there for a week.

DRUGGIST GIVES MONEY BACK

Dodson's Liver Tone Gets a Four Square Guarantee From All Drug Stores.

When an article is sold a druggist who is willing to give it his personal guarantee, it's a mighty strong proof of real merit.

That's exactly the case with Dodson's Liver Tone. It is a pleasant-tasting, vegetable remedy for a slow and sluggish liver. Since Dodson's Liver Tone came on the market the sale of calomel has gone 'way down. The reason is simply this: Dodson's Liver Tone is safe and harmless and guaranteed to be satisfactory—Calomel is often uncertain, sometimes dangerous, and no druggist wants to guarantee that it won't knock you out of a day's work and maybe send you to bed.

All druggists sell Dodson's Liver Tone and guarantee it. For you and for your children it's a good thing to keep a bottle always in the house.

All dealers will give you your money back if you think Dodson's Liver Tone is not worth the price. "Keep your liver working and your liver will not keep you from working," is good advice to go by.

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Men

Send Name and Address To-day—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains, or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow-men to send them a copy in confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest acting restorative, up-building SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 4276 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

The human brain is a wunderful thing, Bobbie. Onst it is highly developed, like mine, it can direct operashuns of all sorts, though its owner nevver had any acktual expeerience in the deetails of the operashuns. Now, for instance, thare is yung Frank Keener planting potatoes. Let us stroll oaver thare & see if he is doing it rite.

Good morning, Mister Keener, sed Pa wen we got thare. I see you are planting potatoes. Thare is nothing like a good crop of potatoes for the Winter's store, Pa sed.

Kidding Pa.

But I aint planting potatoes, sed Mister Keener. I planted these potatoes a month ago. I dident have anything else to do this morning, so I thought I wud stroll around among the potatoes & have a chat with the potato bugs. Thay are friendly littel things, potato bugs, he sed. Speek to one of them & watch it wag its tail.

I cud see that Frank was kidding Pa, but Pa's brain wasent highly developed that way & he cuddent see it. All he sed was Well, I hoap you have success with yure garden, & we walked along.

Thare was a carpenter bilding a house acrost the street. His naim was Mister Bill Thomson. Goodmorning, Mister Thomson, sed Pa. I see you are bilding a pritty littel bungalow. I wud like to have one sumthing like it, Pa sed, & maybe if you ain't too busy next month I will go ahed with it. I always thought this wud be a pritty town in wich to have a bungalow in.

This ain't a bungalow I am bilding sed Mister Thomson. This is a ice house. It looks as much like a bungalow as you look like the King of England. Please move along now & doant bother me. It rained all day yesterday so I cuddent work & now that it is nice & sunny I doant want every yap that cums along to stop & ask foolish questuns of me.

Carpenters are generally rude, cross grained persons, sed Pa to me after we had moved along. I cud see that Pa was pritty mad but I dident feel a bit sorry for him, he had no bizness bothering a man who was working.

Jest then we passed a livery stabel —thare was the owner with two littel jackasses.

A Fine Team.

Good morning, Mister Maus, sed Pa. Can I help you to hitch up yure fine team of mules? I used to hitch up mules wen I was in the army, sed Pa. I am vary fond of mules & thay like me, too.

But these isent mules, thay is chackasses, sed Mister Maus, und I wasent going to hitch them up, also. I chust wanted them to make a littel exercise alreddy. Und if I was going to hitch them up anyway, sed Mister Maus, why doant you mind yure own bizness beesides, yet?

Every man that Pa talked to treeted him jest the saim, but it dident faze Pa. Wen we went hoam to dinner he toald Ma that he had been around having a friendly chat with the villagers. Those simpel folks wud lay down thare lives for me, Pa sed.

You doant say, sed Ma. Then thay must be vary simpel folks.

Cherry Roly Poly, by

Katherine De Rohne

THE market this season is displaying some of the most delicious products of the tree whose family was forever made famous by the truthfulness of one G. Washington. "Cherry Roly Poly" is supplied by a pastmistress of the art, Katherine De Rohne, one of the stars of the Rustic Theatre at the Palisades Amusement Park.

Take one pound of suet and chop fine, being careful to pick out all the skin and strings.

Add:—

Three cups of flour,
one teaspoonful of salt,
one teaspoonful of baking powder,
and just enough water to make it adhere and roll out smoothly.

Roll out to the thickness of about a quarter of an inch. Spread a quart of pitted cherries, sugared, on the thin layer of dough and roll them up. Place in a cheesecloth bag and boil for three hours.

Sauce: Butter the size of an egg, melted but not browned. To this add a teaspoonful of flour and a cup and one-half of water, three-quarters of a cup of sugar and a gill of New England rum. Stir together and boil to the consistency of thick cream.

WITHIN THE LAW

A Powerful Story of Adventure, Intrigue and Love

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Take the chairs out of the office, Dan," he directed, "except mine and one other—that one!" He indicated a chair standing a little way from one end of his desk. "Now, have all the shades up." He chuckled as he added: "That Turner woman saved you the trouble with one."

As the doorman went out after having fulfilled these commands, the Inspector lighted a cigar which he had retained still in his mouth, and then seated himself in the chair that was set partly facing the windows opening on the corridor. He smiled with anticipatory triumph as he made sure that the whole length of the corridor with the barred doors of the cells was plainly visible to one sitting thus. With a final glance about to make certain that all was in readiness, he returned to his chair, and, when the door opened, he was, to all appearances, busily engaged in writing.

Garson's Face Showed Fear.

"Here's Garson, Chief," Cassidy announced.

"Hello, Joe!" Burke exclaimed, with a seeming of careless friendliness, as the detective went out, and Garson stood motionless just within the door.

"Sit down, a minute, won't you?" the Inspector continued, affably. He did not look up from his writing as he spoke.

Garson's usually strong face was showing weak with fear. His chin, which was commonly very firm, moved a little from uneasy twitchings of his lips. His clear eyes were slightly clouded to a look of apprehension, as they roved the room furtively. He made no answer to the Inspector's greeting for a few moments, but remained standing without movement, poised alertly as if sensing some concealed peril. Finally, however, his anxiety found expression in words. His tone was pregnant with alarm, though he strove to make it merely complaining.

"Say, what am I arrested for?" he protested. "I ain't done anything."

Even now, Burke did not look up, and his pen continued to hurry over the paper.

"Who told you you were arrested?" he remarked, cheerfully, in his blandest voice.

Garson uttered an ejaculation of disgust.

"I don't have to be told," he retorted, huffily. "I'm no college president, but when a cop grabs me and brings me down here, I've got sense enough to know I'm pinched."

The Inspector did not interrupt his work, but answered with the utmost good nature.

"Is that what they did to you, Joe? I'll have to speak to Cassidy about that. Now, just you sit down, Joe, won't you? I want to have a little talk with you. I'll be through here in a second." He went on with the writing.

Garson moved forward slightly, to the single chair near the end of the desk, and there seated himself mechanically. His face thus was turned toward the windows that gave on the corridor, and his eyes grew yet more clouded as they rested on the grim doors of the cells. He writhed in his chair, and his gaze jumped from the cells to the impassive figure of the man at the desk. Now, the forger's nervousness increased momently—it swept beyond his control. Of a sudden, he sprang up, and stepped close to the inspector.

The Door Clanged To.

"Say," he said in a husky voice, "I'd like—I'd like to have a lawyer."

"What's the matter with you, Joe?" the inspector returned, always with that imperturbable air, and without raising his head from the work that so engrossed his attention. "You know, you're not arrested, Joe. Maybe, you never will be. Now, for the love of Mike, keep still, and let me finish this letter."

Slowly, very hesitatingly, Garson went back to the chair, and sank down on it in a limp attitude of dejection wholly unlike his customary posture of strength. Again, his fear fascinated eyes went to the row of cells that stood silently menacing on the other side of the corridor beyond the windows. His face was tinged with gray. A physical sickness was creeping stealthily on him, as his thoughts held insistently to the catastrophe that threatened. His intelligence was too keen to permit a belief that Burke's manner of almost fulsome kindliness hid nothing ominous—ominous with a hint of death for him in return for the death he had wrought.

Then terror crystallized. His eyes were caught by a figure, the figure of Cassidy, advancing there in the corridor. And with the detective went a man whose gait was slinking, craven. A cell door swung open, the prisoner stepped within, the door clanged to, the bolts shot into their sockets noisily.

Garson sat huddled, stricken for he had recognized the victim thrust into the cell before his eyes. . . . It was Dacey, one of his own cronies in crime—Dacey, who, the night before had seen him kill Eddie Griggs. There was something concretely sinister to Garson in this fact of Dacey's presence there in the cell.

Of a sudden, the forger cried out raucously:

"Say, Inspector, if you've got anything on me, I—I would——" The cry dropped into unintelligible mumblings.

Burke retained his manner of serene indifference to the other's agitation. Still his pen hurried over the paper; and he did not trouble to look up as he expostulated, half-banteringly.

"Now, now! what's the matter with you, Joe? I told you that I wanted to ask you a few questions. That's all."

Garson leaped to his feet again resolutely, then faltered, and ultimately fell back into the chair with a groan, as the Inspector went on speaking.

"Now, Joe, sit down, and keep still, I tell you, and let me get through with this job. It won't take me more than a minute more."

But after a moment Garson's emotion forced him to another appeal.

"Say, Inspector——" he began.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SOME CHICKEN!

A Parrot 116 Years Old and Not Yet in Cold Storage

THIS picture is taken from an actual photograph of a parrot that is one hundred and sixteen years old, and still has a lively croak. It belongs to an English family, but spent but fifty years of its feathered life in that country. Its other sixty-six years saw it in Brazil, its original home. Although it is almost "sans everything" Polly can sing in quite a lively manner, and is always cheerful. Perhaps therein lies its secret of longevity. Who knows?

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

YOUR FRIEND IS RIGHT.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 and I have been keeping company with a young man four years. He is 23. I love him more than tongue can tell. I have loved him since the day I first met him. He doesn't show any love for me. Could you tell me if there is any love on his part? I show my love for him, and my friend tells me that is the reason he doesn't show his.

IRENE WATSON.

You are foolish to let him see you care so much for him. Naturally, a man makes no effort to win a girl who lets him see that effort is unnecessary. You are only 17. Give up this man, and the next time you fall in love make an effort to conceal it.

WITHIN HER RIGHTS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with a young lady, whom I have never had the pleasure of seeing in her own home, as her mother is opposed to me. I have known her now for more than 18 months. She is 18. I am 21. She is willing to marry me, only she is afraid of her folks, inasmuch as her mother threatens to have me arrested if I marry her daughter. I have tried every way to win her mother over, but so far I have failed. I can't meet her, as her mother watches her like a cat watches a mouse.

D. D. W.

The mother is wholly within her rights, and as the first and last desire of every mother's heart is for her daughter's happiness, consideration is due her wishes.

If all were favorable, you should not marry, being only 21. Make the most of the assurance that you love each other, and wait a year or two.

Had Every Time.

Smith was a constant worry to his friends. They never knew when to and when not to treat him seriously, since, as he frankly admitted, he delighted in pulling other people's legs.

One day he and Brown met casually in the street, and stopped, as friends often do, to gossip for a while.

"Big blaze—that fire at the factory in Johnson Street last night, wasn't it?" asked Brown.

"Yes," replied Smith, "I went down to have a look at it. And, my word, there were several mighty narrow escapes there, too!"

"Escapes!" cried Brown, excitedly. "But the morning paper said that there was no one in the building."

Smith nodded.

"Oh," he said, "the firemen brought the escapes down with them. So-long, old chap!"

A BACHELOR'S DIARY .:. He Can't Forget That Kiss

By MAX.

JUNE 1.—It is a week since Sally Spencer kissed me, and though I have repeatedly since made occasion to be with her alone she has never repeated the offense.

I have sent for her to come over on the shallowest of excuses. If Manette ate too much or too little, I have feigned an alarm that could only be quieted by having Mrs. Spencer take a look at her, and on such occasions I invariably sent Richards and Sarah Ray out of the room. But it has been to no avail.

I make the confession in no great humility. I am a man and, try as hard as I may, I can not rise above being a man. I make no pretense of being an angel. That claim I leave to the women who tempt us.

I find myself looking at another man's wife with eyes that are not the eyes of the soul. There was a time when it would have been my first impulse to be Sally Spencer's disinterested friend; I will always be that in the future, but I will have to fight myself first.

Only Contempt.

June 2—I have said little about the widow, Diary, but I hope you do not believe it is because I condone her sins, or feel any emotion for her but unmitigated contempt.

She is the vilest, of creatures for no other description fits a woman who makes it her sport to undermine some other woman's happiness.

June 3—Life has been compared with a feast, and if there is anything in the comparison, just at present the whole world is partaking of a course that is too highly seasoned to be healthful. That we will all suffer moral indigestion for refusing to pass it by I do not doubt.

We are swinging to a most unhealthy extreme, making public and discussing and devouring topics that are the climax of vulgarity, and we call ourselves progressive because we do it.

The old-fashioned standard of truth to one's self and one's vows seems to be passing away. When one transgresses these days, it is not called a transgression, but disguised under the phrase "Daring to live one's own life."

And when it is said that a woman especially "dares to live her own life," it means that she has dared to violate every civil and moral law. Mrs. Brown has always approved of any woman who dared to live her own life, and has told me many times that it was what she had always done, and always intended to do.

I can see now that it was the modern way of expressing a determination to be governed by no standard or convention. What will become of the world when all women "dare to live their own lives," no man may conjecture.

She buried her first husband, which can not be charged against her. In these days when men are put at the lowest valuation a measure of applause is given any woman who outlives her husband. Should she outlive a dozen, it is a notable deed, but if a man buries as many as two wives Rumor begins to whisper that he killed them by abuse and neglect.

The widow's second husband divorced her because of her infatuation with another woman's husband. She broke up that man's home, and cast him aside when, for pecuniary reasons, her love grew cold.

A Dark Past.

She had, as she expresses it, "dared to live her own life," which means that she refused to let the impulses of her soul be fettered by the shackles of convention. I could express it in plainer language, but plain language, according to Mrs. Brown and her kind, is a mark of a vulgar mind.

I have heard that her second husband's heart was broken because of the scandal, and that it killed him. Of course I do not credit the statement. The men do not die of broken hearts. They love a woman with every bit of their anatomy, but their hearts. This is true, for I have heard soap-box oratorical representatives of the Adorable Sex say so.

June 4—Jack has been gone three days. He writes dutifully and says he will be home soon. He is the sort of a man who will go away with another woman and square it with his conscience by writing faithfully to his wife while away. I have no doubt he took her photograph with him. I always mistrust the man who takes his wife's photograph wherever he goes. So often he uses this mark of devotion as a salve to his conscience for leaving her at home.

June 5—"I think," said Sally, when I called this morning to learn the latest news of her husband, "that my attitude in this matter is a great disapointment to Mrs. Brown. She thought I would rush after Jack, create a scene and a scandal, and that the publicity would wreck my home and give Jack a divorce. I know Jack better than she does. The fact that I give him every opportunity to steal robs the theft of its zest. He is disgusted with her and with himself, and would return any moment I sent for him."

I remembered the kiss. "Don't send for him, Sally. He isn't worth your forgiveness."

Must Take Chances.

"He is as good as any man," she retorted. "He is as good as you are, Max, and, what's more, you know it."

"I hadn't thought of that. Perhaps after all he is better. He had sinned in his acts, and I have sinned in my thoughts. Still, if every man who sins in his thoughts is to be condemned, who among us will escape?

"The woman who marries," she resumed, "must accept all chances of what I am undergoing. There are always other women lurking around to tempt husbands to stray, and they seem endowed with every fascination that would appeal to a man as weak as Jack."

The admission of his weakness seemed disloyal to her, even though he has repeatedly proved it, for she continued rapidly: "Not that he is any weaker than you, Max. I don't want you to think for a moment that you are any better than he. I don't want to give the impression that I believe there is a man living who is better than my husband."

I had the feeling that I had been doubted and attacked when my actions, at least, were innocent, and I resented it.

She had risen as if to suggest it was time I was going. "Sit down," I said, in some temper. "You are hitting all men over my shoulders, taking into no account that it is your own sex that is primarily to blame. Now don't interrupt me"—she had begun to say something about Mrs. Brown—"It is not the bad woman alone who is to blame. It is the good woman, as well; the woman who tempts in her innocence, or ignorance. There's yourself, for instance!"

Things Worth Remembering

The possibility of using the Cinema for the identification of criminals is being seriously considered by the New York Police Commissioner. It is suggested that five feet of film, costing 70 cents, will suffice to record the peculiarities of dress and carriage of any person whom it is desired to keep under observation. With photographs, finger prints, motion pictures, and Bertillon measurements a man who has been convicted will have his hands full in making his "get-away" afterward.

Stretching across Western Australia is a rabbit-proof fence, said to be the longest in the world. It extends for a distance of 1,200 miles, without a break, except for gates. It begins in the temperate regions and ends in the tropics, and sometimes for nearly 100 miles it never passes a human habitation.

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Dainty Lois Meredith Talks on Beneficial Athletics

Lois Meredith's Girlish Beauty.

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

DO you know any little girls? Of course there are quite a few children in the world, and I know numberless young—very young—ladies, but I have just met a very sweet little girl and I am going to introduce her to you. Her name is Lois Meredith; she is eighteen, and is making a great success of the part of Helen Morris in "Within the Law." Off the stage she does not play the part of a sophisticated young lady—or a "Broadway favorite"—but fairly dawns on you in the absolute simplicity of a white middy-blouse, black velvet tam-o'-shanter and the unstudied coiffure effect of a "head sunning over with curls."

Of course the very first question I asked Miss Lois was one anent clothes and her ideal costume.

"I like my middy blouses pretty well," said she, "so well, in fact, that I would sacrifice all the sweeties in the world rather than eat goodies and get too fat to wear sailor-suits. But my ideal costume is Greek drapery. I do love the classical lines of drapery that leave you free and untrammelled, so you can breath, and move naturally, and look natural, too. I'd like to wear layer after layer of chiffon and sandals and give my whole body a chance to breathe. Think how wrapped up and shut away from the health-giving fresh air our poor bodies are. Well, I wear as few layers as I can—dispensing with every unnecessary thing I can—corsets for instance—and I wear white, so I'll feel cool and clean, and I try to give my body a chance to sway and to move freely, so I will feel all through me how good it is to be alive.

No Jewels.

"I don't believe in jewels, either," went on this sensible girl. "If you are pretty, jewels sort of attract attention to themselves and away from you. And if you are not pretty, anyway, showy jewelry makes you conspicuous, and then people notice how unattractive you are."

Dainty little Lois Meredith can afford to believe in "beauty unadorned," but every eighteen-year-old girl and the older sister of twenty ought to ponder the bit of philosophy: "Plain women are always adding some little fancy touches that make you notice how very plain they are!"

"Will you tell me how you spend your day?" I asked. "You must carry out your theory of simplicity in living as well as clothes."

"My theory of living," answered Miss Meredith, "is WORK. For everything worth getting in this world you must work, work, work. To keep well and strong, to look attractive, and to get ahead in the profession you have chosen, you must keep working and striving. In my chosen calling I find that I have to keep developing my brain, so I can do better and better things all the time. I am studying French and music in the interests of my brain.

Plenty of Sleep.

"Then I take care of my body, too. Of course I have to have plenty of sleep, because I am still growing. I have never in all my life been to a restaurant after the theater; most girls would think that an awful sacrifice, wouldn't they? Well then, I get up at about 9, and have a glass of hot water, which is not a bit hard to take when you keep at it, and then for about half an hour I exercise; stretching motions, aesthetic dancing movements and bending over, with my knees held taut and body poised. Sometimes I touch my finger tips to the floor, sometimes I wrap my arms around my legs and see how far down I can bring my head.

"I have one little pet exercise: A very great artist said that I had the most beautiful hand in America! Now I'd like to believe him—even if that would be conceited—but anyway I take care of my hands and try to keep them soft and tapering. I go through an exercise as if I were wringing them and stroking them. I work at my hands as if I were putting on and taking off a new pair of gloves very carefully. I truly can recommend this exercise, for just think what it made Mr. Gibson say to me.

"Would you like to hear about my favorite part?" went on the girl ingenuously. Perhaps it would make a good conclusion to your interview. My favorite part was Modesty in 'Everywoman.' I thought it a compliment to be asked to play that part. I loved doing it—and I felt that the only way to play Modesty was to be modest. That applies to girls everywhere doesn't it? ...ty is always the sweetest part—and it has to be true, or people will know."

And I think that is a very good conclusion for the interview—Modesty and the sweet simplicity and charm that follow in her wake are the best parts for all girls—only they must not be parts. Modesty must be true if you want to be a truly charming girl.

Up-to-Date Jokes

Mr. Winston Churchill has often effectively silenced offensive interrupters. It is related that on one occasion, when addressing a large meeting in the North, he was frequently disturbed by a man who persisted in shouting "Liar! Liar!" every few minutes.

Winston bore with him for some time, but eventually broke off his speech to remark, in gentlest accents:

"If the gentleman at the back of the hall who is so anxious that the audience should know his name will write it down on a slip of paper and hand it to the chairman instead of bawling it at the top of his voice, he will save himself a lot of trouble."

No more was heard of the interrupter for the rest of the meeting.

"That house I have rented from you," said the dissatisfied tenant, "is horribly draughty. When I was sitting in the middle of the room my hair blew all over my face. Can't you do something?"

"Don't you think, sir," replied the house agent, suavely, "it would be easier and cheaper for you to get your hair cut?"

A Paris cabman found a splendid turbot that had been left in his cab. He went at once to the Commissary of Police.

"Very good, my friend," said the latter. "Come back again in a year and a day, and if, in the meantime, the turbot has not been claimed, it shall be yours."

He—And won't you give me a kiss?
She—Certainly not. I never kissed a man in my life.
He (emphatically)—Neither have I.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite, and was so nervous I could not sleep; then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work, and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. Hayward Sowers, Cary, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

SYNOPSIS

Gordon Kelly, a mountain boy of Georgia, goes to Atlanta. He becomes the sensation of the baseball world through his marvelous playing, although he said that he had never played a game before arriving in Atlanta. He is bought by the Boston American League Club for $50,000. Kelly incurs the enmity of Forrest Cain, a wealthy ne'er-do-well, at the same time winning the friendship and love of Mildred Deery, daughter of an Atlanta banker. Kelly is hurt in a game and Mildred runs to his assistance. He recovers, leaves the hospital and mysteriously disappears. He is not heard from for months. Mildred admits to herself that she loves Kelly. Her father dislikes the publicity given Mildred's assistance to Kelly on the baseball field. He gets Mildred to agree to go to the mountains. Cain follows Mildred and calls upon her. While Mildred is fishing she suddenly comes upon Gordon Kelly. In the meeting each learns of the other's love. Kelly is sought everywhere by the press. Cain proposes to Mildred and is refused. Kelly meets Cain and the latter tries to shoot Kelly. Elmer saves Kelly's life. Mildred visits Gordon Kelly's home in the mountains and is astonished at the evidences of luxury and refinement she finds there. Gordon is caught in a storm and is made prisoner by four strange men. He is forced to write a letter to Mildred. In it he tries to convey a hint of his whereabouts.

Now go on with the story.

"Did you git a letter fum Mr. Bud Ah mean Mr. Gordon, Mis' Mildred?" asked the colored boy, after the car was fairly in motion.

"Yes, Steve, I'll read it to you; and I'm going back with you in order to tell Mr. Gray, the superintendent, and Mrs. Ward, the housekeeper, about it."

Arriving at the huge granite edifice, Mildred learned that Gray had rounded up every available man on the place and had started off with them on a systematic hunt for the missing man. Asking Steve to tell Mrs. Ward that she was there, Mildred was soon joined by the housekeeper, to whom she imparted the news and then sat down to breakfast with her while Steve ran off to bring back the searching party.

When Gray returned Mildred read the letter she had received to him. If she had allowed him to read it, the level headed superintendent might have discovered the simple cryptogram and headed a party that would have rescued Gordon in jig time, but Mildred clung to the letter as though it was the most precious thing in the world and would not allow it to go out of her hand.

It was decided that, as Gordon had explicitly told them not to search for him at present, it might be fatal to the captive if they disobeyed orders, so matters were allowed to rest as they were, pending the receipt of further news from Gordon.

Gray Is Cautious.

"Somebody has kidnaped him," declared Gray, "and they expect to make a fortune. If that is the case we will be hearing from them mighty quick, and when we do we will make our plans accordingly."

Gray was a big, hearty man, full of action but cautious when caution was required. "In the meantime, Miss Deery," he said, "I would advise you not to worry. But just as soon as you hear from Mr. Gordan again, please let me know at once. I will have the telephone line fixed right away."

Mildred was driven back to the bungalow by Steve. She was happy to think he was safe and well, yet troubled over the vagueness and uncertainty of things. In the course of a few days another letter came and she promptly informed Gray of its contents. It was apparently written in a cheerful spirit, but again admonished them not to search for him.

"That was put in there by orders of the men who are holding him," was Gray's comment when Mildred read the letter to him. "I wish he could slip in some hint of where he is hidden and I'd have him back here in half a day. They must be guarding him closely, Miss Deery, for I know him well enough to know that he would break away if they gave him the slightest opening."

The days went by. Mildred wrote a letter to Gordon and placed it under a stone at the doorsill, but when his next letter was delivered in the dead of night, the messenger did not take away Mildred's letter. In time Farnsworth came to the bungalow, as has already been told, but Mildred did not inform him of all she knew in connection with Gordon's disappearance. She was afraid that the publicity might work some harm to the man she loved. The newspaper men went away and more letters were received. They were all written in the same spirit. Weeks passed. Mildred's mother returned to Atlanta, urging Mildred to return with her, but the girl refused to leave the mountain region. She had not yet informed her mother of her great secret, but her mother had half guessed it.

One day when Mildred felt that she could stand the suspense no longer and was on the point of yielding to Gray's entreaties to start a business-like hunt for the captive, she discovered the simple cryptogram.

"What a little fool I've been," she cried. She had, of course, noticed that Gordon had begun every line of his letters with a capital letter, but the reason for it had entirely escaped her. Now, of course, it was as plan as day and she almost cried at her own stupidity in not solving the riddle long ago. She had saved every letter and was reading them over for the several hundredth time when she made the discovery. She procured pencil and paper and wrote down the instructions.

"Five miles northwest my home," the first letter said, reading down the lines of capital letters. "Three miles due west road meets creek," read the second letter. "Sharp rise hundred yards then down," said third. "Cabin midst copse few trees; four captors," said the fourth. There were two more letters contining further hints.

Mildred called Elmer and told him to bring the runabout, and together they went to the mansion to find Gray. They were told that he had gone to Atlanta on business, but would return next day. On the way home Elmer said:

"Let's not wait for Mr. Gray. Let's find Gordon and rescue him ourselves."

"You foolish boy," replied Mildred. "They would capture us, too, and then what a fine pickle we would be in. We must wait for Mr. Gray and he will take plenty of men with him."

Elmer Would Fight.

"Oh shucks, Mildred," exclaimed the lad. "Gee whiz, I could take your rifle and you could take your revolver and we could sneak up and catch them off their guard and rescue the prisoner. Come on, Mildred; let's do it."

"I'm afraid your spirit is better than your judgment, Elmer," said Mildred with a sigh. "Goodness knows I hate to wait until Mr. Gray gets back, but I don't see what else we can do."

Elmer kept teasing all the way home and when they arrived he brought forth his father's maps of the region and they spent a long time pouring over them trying to figure out the exact spot where they thought Gordon was held a captive.

"Be game, Mildred," said Elmer, returning to the attack. "Only four men are there. We can get the drop on them easy."

"Stop talking nonsense, child, or you'll make me cross with you," cried Mildred. "If your father was here I would willingly let him get a force at the mansion and start out without waiting for Mr. Gray." Shephard was in Chattanooga and would not return for two days. "Run away now, Elmer and leave me alone. I want to think this all out by myself," added Mildred.

It was only Gordon's cheerful letters that had prevented Mildred from going distracted. The situation had been a most peculiar one. In every one of the letters Gordon had told her not to begin a search for him and she had been afraid to ignore his request. Gray had insisted more than once on taking the matter in his own hands, but Mildred had flatly move.

"He is writing these letters to me, Mr. Gray, and they clearly say not to seek him," she told him the last time they had talked the matter over.

"That is because he was forced to write it, otherwise they wouldn't have delivered the letters," replied the superintendent. "If he doesn't turn up soon, Miss Deery, I'm going to take matters on my own hands."

"To Be His Wife."

"Please don't, Mr. Gray," she pleaded. "I am sure something dreadful would happen if you failed, and we would never see him again."

"That's all right, Miss Deery. But in a way I am responsible for his safety. With you it is different."

"Yes, it is different, Mr. Gray," she replied quietly. "I have promised to be his wife."

Gray's eyes opened wide at this piece of information, and Mildred added: "Please say nothing about it. I only tell you so that you can understand how vitally interested I am in his welfare."

Sitting alone on the porch the day she discovered the hidden meaning in Gordon's letters, Mildred went over the whole situation in her mind. Gray was absent. Shephard was absent. Gordon had long expected help. She knew not where to turn. At last she arose from her chair and going to the telephone, called up the mansion and said:

CHAPTER XLI.

WITH the exception of the news of Gordon Kelly that Farnsworth, the newspaper man, had secured from Mildred Deery at her bungalow, and which was published in his paper, the great baseball public had heard nothing of the $50,000 player since the day late in May when he left the hospital in Atlanta and disappeared. The public knew nothing of his palatial home in the Georgia mountains, it knew nothing of his vast wealth, of his peculiar life, of the tragedy of his father's death. It knew nothing of the grand romance of Gordon and Mildred, or of Gordon's conflicts with Forrest Cain, or of his capture and detention by the mountaineers. All the public knew was that Gordon Kelly, the most widely advertised ball player in the world, the man the Red Sex had pai the stupendous sum of $50,000 for, the player every "fan" on the American League circuit was most anxious to see perform, had mysteriously disappeared.

The name of Gordon Kelly had become a byword wherever baseball was played or discussed. Every time a player on any team in any city or town made a home run he was a "Gordon Kelly." Ball players in the big leagues, college ball players, schoolboy players, and even the urchins playing ball in the back lots were always talking about the great player. This continued all summer long all over the country, so that despite the fact that the public did not know what had become of Gordon Kelly, his name was constantly on everybody's lips and he was constantly referred to in the newspapers.

Gave Up Hope.

The Red Sox management practically gave up hope of ever seeing him again before the season was half over but every pay day a check was drawn to his order and mailed to his last known address in Atlanta. The first half of the season was fraught with injuries to the Red Sox players, and if ever they needed Gordon Kelly it was in the first few months of the championship season. But by the first of July the world's champions got going in their proper stride and won game after game in the same impressive manner that had enabled them to mow down their opponents in the season of 1912 and eventually capture the American League pennant and later the highest honors in baseball—the world's championship.

The Red Sox pitchers—the backbone of a team—began "going good" about the first of July. The heavy hitters took confidence and found their "batting eyes" again. The loyal supporters of the team took heart and flocked to Fenway Park to encourage their favorites and "squeeze" hard for victory.

That rabid Boston organization known far and wide as the "Royal Rooters," forgot the fancied grievances it had against the club's management that dated back to the last world's series, and marched to the baseball grounds en masse and with a brass band playing "Tessie." The old-time Boston spirit—the spirit that made Boston the greatest baseball city in the world—returned as the Red Sox forged triumphantly toward the top of the baseball column.

Red Sox Climb.

By the first of August the Red Sox were in third place, after floundering around among the tail-enders for half the saeson. By the first of September the world's champions were in second place, only the Athletics, of Philadelphia, standing between them and the leadership in the American League pennant fight. The men were playing with a dash and vigor that surpassed their 1912 form. Tris Speaker, the great center fielder, led the league in batting and every day he was getting his two or more safe hits, most of them solid drives for two or three bases or home runs. Duffy Lewis, the left fielder, was close up in his stockwork, and his fielding and throwing were better than ever. Harry Hooper in right field was having his best year, batting better than he had ever done before and running the bases like a deer. Heine Wagner, captain of the team and the man most depended upon for defensive work, played with a steadiness that was the marvel of the baseball world. Larry Gardner, the third baseman, fully recovered from the injury to his ankle, began playing again early in June, and from that time on he surpassed himself at bat and in the field. Steve Yerkes was as steady as a rock at second base, and his batting was timely. He seldom failed to deliver when called upon. Clyde Engle, who had to play first base nearly all the year on account of the injury to Manager Stahl's foot, played the bag in a manner that made the other first basemen jealous. The catchers—Carrigan and Cady—were like stone-walls behind the bat, and the pitchers—Wood, Bedient, Collins and O'Brien, with Hall and Leonard to help out—performed wonders. In short, the whole team played like wildfire and stood the other teams on end as fast as they appeared. From the first of July to the close of the season the Red Sox did not lose but one series to their opponents.

White Sox Terrors.

In the meantime, the Chicago White Sox, managed by the clever Jimmy Callahan (with the owner of the club, Comiskey—the "Old Roman"—in the background to help with his sage advice) were going great guns, too. Big Ed Walsh, the celebrated "spitball" pitcher, seemed unbeatable. Scott, Benz and the other twirlers supported the mainstay nobly. Schalk, the "kid" catcher, proved to be one of the best backstops in either league and held the pitching of the entire staff with elegance and grace, while his right arm was a terror to base stealers. Strengthened by the acquisition of Hal Chase, the great first baseman, the entire infield braced, Rath, Weaver and Lord playing as though their lives depended on it. The outfield developed into one of the strongest in the American League. "Ping" Bodie played fine ball and broke fences with his bat instead of talking about it. Collins, the Newton boy, and Mattick, the other outfielders, covered their territory like ten-second men and batted like fiends. This great Chicago aggregation, while its success was not quite as sensational as the Red Sox, plowed steadily ahead, and when the Boston team reached second place the Windy City rivals were close behind them, only a few points separating the two teams in the percentage column.

In the meantime, the Athletics, managed by the shrewd baseball general, Connie Mack, which had been enjoying a sort of baseball buggy ride the first half of the season and had already begun to count their world's series money in their minds, struck a mighty rough road about the first of August and began to "come back," as they say in horse racing circles. They lost game after game. Their pitchers "went bad" and their sluggers failed to slug. Someone stole Frank Baker's bats and he couldn't hit the ball. Two or three unfortunate accidents put some of their most dependable players on the hospital list temporarily. By the first of September the Philadelphia "fans" were in a panic. Manager Connie Mack lost his Mephistophelean smile, and the subdued swearing he indulged in withered the grass in the immediate vicinity of the players' bench whereon he sat during the gloomy, losing games.

Situation Tense.

The pitchers on whom Mack depended, caused him many sleepless nights. Eddie Plank's cross-fire became crosseyed. Jack Coombs' curves were batted from Dan to Beersheba, and in spite of "Chief" Bender's red-faced twists and black-haired curves, the Indian could not win a game. On September 1 the Athletics were still in the lead, but only two games separated them from the Rex Sox, and the Chicagos were so close up that the Philadelphia players had heart disease every time they looked at a sporting extra. This was the situation when Labor Day rolled around.

But just when the White Elphants, as the Athletics are sometimes called, appeared to be sure of losing the lead they had had held since the opening of the season in April, they took a wonderful brace. They played the Washington team on Labor Day and won both the morning and the afternoon game, knocking the great Walter Johnson from the box in the second session. However, the Red Sox and the White Sox also won both Labor Day games, so the Athletics did not gain a single point on their rivals.

Games Bitterly Fought.

On September 4 the Red Sox arrived in Philadelphia for a three-game series. Every game was bitterly fought, but the Rex Sox won two of them, thereby reducing the lead of the Athletics to one game. In the meantime the White Sox won three straight and the result was that on the evening of September 6 the three leading clubs were nearer together than ever. From that time on it was a desperate fight to the very finish. Interest in the pennant race was tremendous. Crowds packed the ball parks wherever the three teams performed.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the thirty-third installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read the 34th installment of ahe great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

COAST BETTORS FACE PUZZLE IN BIG FIGHT

CHICAGO, ILL., June 26.—They never seem to have any luck at all in picking winners of the lightweight championship bouts out on the Pacific Coast, and it will be interesting to note which of them in the San Francisco battle of July 4 they single out for favoritism. As a matter of fact they haven't picked the right man for favorite in many a long month out there and in consequence the short ends have won with startling regularity. Yet the coast fans, seeing as they do, must be set down as the poorest judges in the world—or is it all accountable for on the ground of native son pride and civic patriotism? A native son is a real favorite at all times out there if it can be figured that he has as good as a fighting chance.

* * *

INASMUCH as both Jose Rivers and Willie Ritchie may be tabbed up as real native sons, it looks as if both of them will be made favorites. That paradoxical statement may need a little explanation, and here it is. They will make Rivers the favorite down around the southern portion of the State, where he is so highly regarded. And in San Francisco, where Willie comes from, they will make him the choice. Hence we may see the spectacle of Frisco people doing their betting in Los Angeles, where they can get a better price, and the people from the southern part of the State doing their wagering at the scene of the battle. It should result in a funny mixup.

* * *

AS a sample of the strange way they have of picking out probable winners it may be recalled that when Ad Wolgast battled Lew Powell in a 20-round match in San Francisco they made Powell such a strong choice that the Wolgast adherents got as good as 2 1-2 to 1 for their coin—and won it all the way. Likewise when Wolgast won the title from Bat Nelson—the coast fans simply could not see Ad at all. So it has been in many another of the big battles there. Always the wrong man picked as choice and always the short end winning.

* * *

WHATEVER disadvantage Rivers may be found to have in this encounter, one of the points against him will be the fact that he will be an alien and scrapping on the other fellow's own canvas. This may not look to be much of a disadvantage when it is considered that Rivers is as much of a native son as is Ritchie. But Rivers isn't from San Francisco, while Ritchie is, and the cheers of the crowd, or the greater portion of these, will be for Ritchie, which may be decidedly disconcerting for Rivers, who is used to monopolizing such cheers himself, having fought a vast majority of his contests in his own ring at Los Angeles.

* * *

THE question of Rivers' gameness doubtless will be given the answer in this battle. It will be a crucial test for the little Mexican because he hasn't met quite such a rapid fire jabber as the Ritchie boy is liable to be in this match. And jabs are points that will be screamingly cheered by the friends of Ritchie, and Joe will find that he will have to do some mighty whaling to even up any sort of a count. It looks to me as if Rivers is a game kid and will give Willie a tremendous battle.

'Thumbless Curve' Invented by Rucker

CINCINNATI, OHIO, June 26.—A two-hit shutout administered by Nap Rucker to the Reds recently may develop a new pitching style and a new ball called "the thumbless delivery."

After the game it was found that Rucker pitched the nine wonderful innings with a crippled left hand. The thumb was badly hurt stopping a batted ball some days ago and Nap could not shut it on the leather.

Nevertheless, the Georgia wonder went in there and proceeded to deliver a slow ball, gripped hard with the fingers and only steadied with the base of the useless thumb.

This ball came up to the batters like Matty's fadeaway, but higher, and man after man took two called strikes on the freak delivery.

Then Nap would drive one with what little speed he could command and the Reds, forced to hit, drove it out as best they could.

Great support saved rucker a dozen times, but the game nevertheless was marvelous for a man in his condition. The new thumbless ball, he says, will hereafter be one of his mainstays.

"I can stop any team," said Rucker, "that does the wait-'em-out act. If they stand up there with bat on shoulder I can toss two of these floats, get two strikes and trust to the field for the next one."

PIRATES.

In days of old
The Pirates bold
Controlled the raging seas,
And honest men
Who traveled then
All trembled at the knees.

For Pirates then
Were low-browed men,
Whose actions were unlawful.
They loved to fight
From morn till night,
And acted something awful.

We do not bow
To Pirates now—
They are a crowd of dubs.
For proof of that
Just rubber at
The Standings of the Clubs.

Reports from Poughkeepsie indicate that Wisconsin rowed in its old-time form.

Cornell is peeved because it won only two races out of three, whereas some of the crews considered themselves lucky to finish on the same day.

Vivian Nickalls may be a perfectly good rowing coach, but it surpasseth our imagination to conceive of a man named Vivian coaching a gang of huskies.

Alfred Vanderbilt's victory in the London coaching marathon shows that all the rich are not idle. If Alf were not a millionaire he would make a great little teamster.

J. EVERS SINGS.

I often pause and wonder at my power over him—
One word from me and Heine does what pleases Heine Zim.

H. Zim may mean well when he promises to be good, but he has an awful job on his hands.

Still, Mr. Zim has qualities which tend to make him a popular idol. For one thing, he never has attempted to burst into vaudeville.

Press agents have various ways to startle the public. For instance, one of them avers that a motorcycle meet was called off for fear the riders would be hurt.

The attempt to restore basketball to the high school curriculum simply shows that some persons have a lot of time to waste.

London papers inform us that "the American innovation of shirtsleeves will undermine the best traditions of golf." And yet there are those who claim that the Times is not a humorous publication.

TREASON.

The suffragettes may throw their bricks and smash the window glass
But England calmly slumbers on and lets the matter pass.
The French and German war balloons may fill the summer air,
But England calmly slumbers on and doesn't seem to care.
Their poloists may cross the seas, and when they fail to cop,
The English only heave a sigh and let the matter drop.
One way and one alone there is to capture England's goat—
To play on old St. Andrew's links and do not wear a coat.

PITTSBURG, June 25.—Outfielder Everett Booe has been released to the Springfield, Ill., club of the Three I League in part payment for Outfielder Fred Kommers, who is to report immediately. Manager Clarke has signed Outfielders Joe Kelly and George Watson, of the St. Joseph, Mo., team.

HUNTING HIRSIG LANDS NO GAME BUT SPINS YARN

NASHVILLE, TENN., June 26.—President William Alibi Hirsig, of the Vanishing Vols, returned from his hunt for ball players through the wilds of Ohio with his game bag as flat as the well-known pancake, and instead of fielders he accumulated a stock of highly interesting tales of .300 wallopers and .999 fielders he would at an early date dress up in Nashville uniforms.

"Author" Hirsig has so rapidly forged to the front as a yarn spinner that quite a number of the six-best-seller publishers are entreating him to turn out a batch of storyettes about "Ball Players I Pretty Near Landed."

Beautiful Dreams.

Calmly brushing away a tear when the announcement came that "Red" Nelson's physician had warned him against inhaling the germs that hobnob around the club houses throughout the South, Hirsig unfolded a story of grabbing either Almeida or Dodge from the Reds. The interesting story-teller held his listeners spellbound, when he launched into the Vols' chances of securing the Cuban, Almeida, or the hard-hitting Dodge to decorate the third cushion for the Schwartzmen, and seeing that he had the bugs groggy, he put them down for the count when he stated that Tinker would probably also ship to Nashville Marty Berghammer, the former Cub, and "Rube" Groh, who came from the Giants in the famous trade for Arthur Fromme.

Hofman Cries to Come.

Recovering from this terrible shock, Hirsig uncorked another on the unsuspecting gabfest he held with Arthur Hofman while in Akron, in which Circus Solly begged the Vols president to take him to the Sunny South, if Kansas City would only release its claim on the ex-Pirate's services.

'Auld Nick' Goes on Rampage

Jap Beats Indian in Hot Race

MAYBE some day Jock McNeil and Tex Richards, the kings of the local Motordrome, will thrash out their speed differences and settle the argument as to whether the imported J. A. P. engine or that in the American-made Indian is the faster. They took still another hack at it Wednesday night before a smashing big crowd, and it is not decided yet. But McNeil put another kink in Richards' reputation by winning the Woodward Sweepstakes in stunning style. Then his machine blew up.

McNeil has named his craft "Auld Nick," and it surely behaves like it. In three race meets run thus far it has not gone through the whole program without springing a splint or developing a Charley hoss. But whenever it has gone right it has developed a speed the like of which the other machines at the Motordrome can not produce.

In the Sweepstakes Wednesday night McNeil and Richards met in the third heat at two miles. It was a tremendously fast race and the riders whirled around and around in dizzy circles at a speed of exactly 86 miles an hour. McNeil took the lead after the contest was well started and held it, with Richards a handy second, to the finish.

"Oh, Richards was just taking it easy to qualify as the second man in the fastest heat," said the wise ones.

In the final heat, however, they had it out for blood. It was at five miles and they started cautiously. Richards, fearing McNeil, went out after a mile with a terrific showing of speed. It looked as though the Indian would run the Jap off its wheels. But then McNeil opened up and like a witch on a broomstick he whirled mysteriously out into the lead and held it. At the finish Richards closed with one of those uncanny bursts of speed that he always seems able to conjure out of his engine for the finish, but McNeil let out another notch and whirled across the chalk line the winner of a truly great race.

With McNeil's machine in no condition the Motordrome Purse was easy for Richards.

The next races will be held Saturday night.

CLEVELAND FANS RALLY TO BIRMINGHAM'S SIDE

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 26.—Petitions and endless chains of letters to President Ban Johnson and President Charles Somers, of the Naps, censuring the president of the American League on the statement credited to him that Manager Birmingham is incompetent, were started in scores of offices and shops by fans to-day.

Many communications were mailed to Johnson's office in Chicago. Many who didn't write called Owner Somers, and his phone was jingling all day. Employees in offices in the Rockefeller Building started an endless chain of letters, every man asking his acquaintances to write. Similar chains were started in other office buildings.

LAW AGAINST HANDBOOKING BADLY NEEDED

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE attention of the men who have gathered for the purpose of making new laws for Georgia is called to the fact that this State needs a law against gambling.

Yet it has one, but it is not adequate to prevent handbook gambling.

Under the present law, so we are informed by attorneys of great prominence, a man could parade up and down Peachtree Street offering bets on baseball games and horse races, and not be liable to arrest.

So long as he had no fixed place of business and could not be arrested for conducting a gambling house he is immune.

* * *

THIS is a wretched state of affairs. Handbook gambling ought to be prohibited by law. It leads to more serious gambling, it gets boys and young men started in the wrong way, it results in petty thievery, wasted money. It lines the purses of the gambling gentry, often at the expense of mothers and children who would have had the benefit of the money except for a foolish flyer on a ball game or a horse race.

* * *

THE worst feature of the handbook gambling, perhaps, is its wretched influence on the sports themselves.

Of course racing isn't worth saving.

No sports that exists for gambling alone is.

But baseball is. That is the great national sport, and thus far it has been kept practically above suspicion.

If gambling on the games continues long it will not escape suspicion and it will doubtless deserve suspicion and worse.

If only to save the greatest of American sports handbook gambling should be stopped.

* * *

IT is not presumed that a mere law will prevent betting. But it will at least drive it to cover and yank off the mask of respectability. If it isn't against the law to run a handbook why shouldn't anybody do it? That is what a lot of them ask. And it is a hard question to answer.

If a measure to prevent handbook gambling could be put before the Legislature it would go through flying.

There isn't a man who would vote against it. They would all realize that such a law ought to be on the books.

But will anybody bring such a law before them and see that it comes to a vote?

It would do more good for the State of Georgia than many a law that will be passed.

Barons Didn't Keep Rube Evans but Day

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 26.—President Charles W. Sommers, of the Cleveland American League club, has ordered "Rube" Evans, the sensational Southern League left-hand pitcher with New Orleans, in the Southern League, to report immediately. Evans has been the property of the Cleveland club for some time.

A deal was closed Tuesday whereby Evans was sold by New Orleans to Birmingham, but Cleveland's call takes him from the Barons.

PUGILIST'S PLEA GRANTED.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Jack Johnson's request that his prison sentence of one year and a day for violation of the white slave law be changed from Joliet Penitentiary to the Government prison at Leavenworth, Kans., was granted by Federal Judge Carpenter.

Blood Bath Knocks Rheumatism

Remarkable Effect of a Remedy That Actually Irrigates the Entire Blood Supply.

The Hardest Nut of All, Rheumatism, is Cracked by S. S. S.

It sounds queer to take a blood bath, but that is precisely the effect of a most remarkable remedy known as S. S. S. It has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In five minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the nerve centers that cause such mystifying and often baffling rheumatic pains.

And, best of all, this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach. If you have drugged yourself until your stomach is nearly paralyzed, you will be astonished to find that S. S. S. gives no sensation but goes right to work. This is because it is a pure vegetable infusion, is taken naturally into your blood just as pure air is inhaled naturally into your lungs.

You can get S. S. S. at any drug store at $1 a bottle. It is a standard remedy, recognized everywhere as the greatest blood antidote ever discovered. If yours is a peculiar case and you desire expert advice, write to the Swift Specific Company, 137 Swift Building, Atlanta, Ga.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

NEW YORK, June 26.—It is a race of surprises in the National League this year. Every time it looks as if the Phillies are about to break and ready to drop back they catch their wind and come strong again. Brooklyn has also shown another burst. The Cubs are liable to gain on the three Eastern contenders—New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn—within the next two weeks because these three strong clubs will be playing one another.

The Athletics are still out in front in the American League and will probably stay there. They may fall back during their coming clashes with the Red Sox and Washington and their impending trip through the West. In both leagues the Western contenders will face easier series. Cleveland appeared to be slipping badly in the East a week ago, but the Naps have a fine chance to catch their feet again at home now, especially if the Philadelphia boys slide into a slump. Even the best of them slump. Cleveland has kept the Athletics within hailing distance while crusading through the East, which was a good deal of a trick considering the speed at which the Athletics were moving. That about sums up the situation in the two leagues.

THE Giants' case at this time perhaps deserves a little consideration. The club had a wonderful road trip through the West, gaining on the Phillies and winning twelve games and losing only four.

The silver lining in the showing of the Giants on the road during this last trip can be found by a glance at the schedule. The New York club winds up its season with a swing through the West this year, and, if the final dispute comes down to a battle between the Giants and Phillies to the wire, I look to see New York nose the Philadelphia boys out on this final trip.

* * *

THE Cubs now threaten to be factors in the pennant struggle to the end. They won ten games and lost six during the Eastern invasion, and the pitching staff appears to be much better than it was a month or even two weeks ago.

The Pirates fell down sadly and have continued to show bad form. Their case is hard to explain, but it is impossible to go behind returns, and the fact remains that the Pittsburg club is still in the second division and showing no signs of mounting. It is now nearing the first of July, which means the race is about half over. The Pittsburg club is now about a dozen games behind the league leaders, a margin which would require phenomenal playing to overcome. I don't see how the Pirates can be counted in the race at present.

ONLY 10-ROUND BATTLE FOR WHITE AND BRITTON

CHICAGO, June 26.—Charlie White and Jack Britton are to fight ten rounds no decision at New Orleans July 4 instead of twenty rounds with a verdict at the end. Governor Hall, of Louisiana, is responsible for the switch in Promoter Tortorich's plans. He said he would stand for no knockdown, drag-out fight in his State. Frankie Whitney, the Cedar Rapids lightweight, leaves here this morning for New Orleans, where he fights Joe Thomas July 4.

YANKS BUY TWO MORE.

TERRE HAUTE, IND., June 26.—"Toddy" Kroy, an outfielder, and Charles Pick, a third baseman, members of the Terre Haute Central League club, were sold to the New York Americans for $2,000. They will report at the end of the season.

FODDER FOR FANS

The plan of Frank Chance, manager of the Yankees, to send Infielder Claud E. Derrick to the Rochester, N. Y., team has been balked by Connie Mack, of the Athletics, who refuses to waive on Derrick.

* * *

John McGraw, of the Giants, and Joe Tinker, of the Reds, are out with emphatic denials of the report that Burns, outfielder, and Herzog, infielder, of the Giants, were to be traded to the Reds for Bob Bescher, the speedy outfielder.

* * *

Manager Birmingham, of the Naps, has turned over Pitcher Hinton to the Waterbury, Conn., team, and Pitcher Swindell to the New Orleans club.

* * *

The thoughts of John McGraw have been oozing onto the printing presses in a New York newspaper shop about three times a week lately, and through this medium "Jawn" assures the public that the world's series games will be between the Giants and the Athletics.

* * *

In the American, take it from "Jawn," the Athletics have the pennant already won and nothing now remains but for Connie Mack to make his selection of his batteries for the first world's series games.

* * *

The fact that the Phillies are leading the Giants in the National by a large number of points, that their batters are hitting like fiends and their pitchers working in fine style, worries "Jawn" not at all. "Jawn" sees in the near future a terrific slump for the Phillies that will send them skidding cellarward with the speed of a chute the shute at the pleasure resort.

* * *

The Naps and the Tigers grappled in a double-header yesterday that furnished a multiture of thrills and which finally was divided on the "50-50" basis.

* * *

With the score 4 to 2 against them when they came to bat in the ninth inning of the first game, the Naps clouted out enough hits to even up the score and then banged out two more runs in th twelfth, which gave them the game.

* * *

In the second game the score was 5 to 1 in favor of the Naps when the Tigers went to bat. Mitchell, the Nap pitcher, at once tried to execute a few aerial stunts with the result that he was yanked from the box after four Tigers had crossed the plate and the bases were loaded. Then Gregg went in, issued a base on balls and forced in the winning run.

* * *

The Phillies made it four straights from the Braves yesterday, annexing an easy victory, aided and abetted by 11 healthy swats.

* * *

One of the strangest games on record was played in St. Louis yesterday when the Cardinals scored but 1 run on 11 hits, 3 bases on balls and 2 errors, and the Cubs went runless despite their 11 hits and 1 base on balls. Several Cardinals and Cubs were left on bases.

* * *

The Browns trimmed the White Sox yesterday to the tune of 8 to 0, whaling the joint offerings of Lange and White for two doubles, two triples and nine singles.

* * *

Boehling, the sensational pitching recruit of the Senators, shut out the Yankees with five widely scattered hits yesterday.

* * *

The Dodgers made fourteen singles, a double, got three men on bases by virtue of erors, another through the medium of a base on balls, stole two bases, scored eight runs in the first three innings and yet lost yesterday's game.

* * *

The reason the Dodgers lost is because they played against the Phillies, who just now are playing the most consistent baseball of any team in the old league. With the score 8 to 3 against them the Phillies put their shoulders to the wheel and before the eighth inning was over they had shoved the Quakertown vehicle over the line for a victory.

9 PITCHED BALLS BY CONZELMAN STRIKE OUT SIDE

By Joe Agler.

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 26.—With Paul Musser and Dunn as the battery for the Crackers this afternoon we should repeat Wednesday's win, for Paul is going fine and has had a good rest.

Conzelman won his fourth straight game Wednesday, and it looks like there is no heading him off. He looks like the one best bet in the league to me. He has the build, the control and everything else that goes to make a big league pitcher. He is certain to be back in the majors next spring, and I think he'll stick, too.

* * *

JOE probably broke a league record in the seventh inning when he retired the Turtles' side on nine pitched balls. It was just like this:

"Stri-i-ike one!"

"Stri-i-ike tuh!"

"Stri-i-ike thruh! Batter up!"

And then repeat twice more. There wasn't a ball, nor a foul tip—nothing but nine strikes in a row. And that's going some.

* * *

TOMMY LONG found his lost goat and broke his batting slump. He landed on one for a three-bagger and also put over two singles and scored the only run of the game. Shawnee Bill Bailey drove him in with a triple to left.

Harrell pitched good ball in the pinches, but had the luck to help.

NEW YORK YACHT CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL REGATTA

NEW YORK, June 26.—Shortly after noon to-day a large fleet of yachts were sent away over the New York Yacht Club's course off Glen Cove, L. I., for the first event of the club's sixty-sixth annual regatta. Many interesting races will be run off during the afternoon. The club is also arranging some special events to take place later in the season.

Atlantans Closing in On Title

Should Win in Big Tennis Meet

NEW ORLEANS, LA., June 26.—Competition in the tennis tourney for the Southern championship Thursday had narrowed down to a few players. Thornton and Grant, of Atlanta, began playing the Worms brothers about 11 o'clock. Pipes and Maginnis were opposed by Smith and Mansfield. Adoue was also carded to meet Shelton before noon.

Phelps will meet Thornton this afternoon. At 4:30 o'clock Grima and Phelps will be opposed by Adoue and Shelton. With this system of elimination the finals go over until Friday.

Saal defaulted to Williams late yesterday after two sets, throwing Williams and Thornton as opponents. It was late for a match, but they decided to play to avoid the morning heat Thursday. Thornton won in straight sets 6-1, 6-0. Thornton let himself out for the first time, and really showed how well he could play tennis. The local man never had a chance.

In the lower half of the game Shelton, of Texas, defeated Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, in straight sets, much to the surprise of nearly everybody at the tournament. Grant was not at his best and Shelton's chop strokes and hard backward drives appeared to worry the Atlantan greatly.

Nat Thornton disposed of Frank Dameron in one of two single matches yesterday. Score: 6-4, 6-4. The Atlantan was not exerting himself and could have reduced the length of the contest at any time he chose.

Good progress was made to-day in the ladies' championship division, but several sets will be thrown to a late afternoon card with finals to-morrow.

Coulon and Murphy Weaken on Fighting

LOS ANGELES, June 26.—Two of Promoter McCarey's summer cards are threatened.

"Harlem" Tommy Murphy, matched to box Johnny Dundee at Vernon on July 15, telegraphed that he has injured one of his hands and might be obliged to call off his coast date.

Johnny Coulon wired asking that his proposed July 29 battle with Johnny Williams, of Baltimore, be postponed until Labor Day.

It is considered possible that Charley White may be sent against Dundee in case the Chicago lightweight wins over Jack Britton in their New Orleans meeting on July 4.

The Los Angeles ring critics are frank in referring to Coulon as a "chicken-hearted champion."

"Coulon is a rank coward," said Sammy Harris, manager of Williams. It is probable that Charley Ledoux, the Frenchman, may be given the date against Williams. Leach Cross and Bud Anderson, matched to box 20 rounds on July 4, have opened their training camps.

Low round trip fares North and West

Commencing June 1st and daily thereafter round trip tickets over the Louisville & Nashville Railroad will be sold at greatly reduced fares to all the principal lake, mountain and sea shore resorts and to many of the larger cities in the North and West. Good Time to Cull Out the Weaklings From Your Flock

Some Fine Pointers Regarding the Culling Out of Your Chickens. Suggestions Worth Lots to You.

Edited by Judge F. J. Marshall.

It is not the season of the year when we are doing our regular mating for breeding; it is a little too late, but it is a good time to do culling nevertheless. It is a good time to cull the hens. You will by this time, no doubt, have noticed that some of your pullets have not been laying regularly during this the great laying period of their lives. They may be laying small eggs or ill shaped ones all the time and that, too, in irregular numbers. It is a good plan and a good time to weed that kind out. Market them right now when the prices are good, and before they moult. Sometimes the breeder of exhibition stock is so anxious to perpetuate certain fancy traits that he is willing to forego short laying and things of that kind, but the utility man con not stand any such foolishness. He must have strength, vigor and good supply of eggs or it should go to the pot without delay. A good hen is expected to lay in a year about five times her weight in eggs. Professor Jordon, of the New York Experiment Station, has well put it, when he says: "Did you ever stop to note the difference in the production of the little Leghorn hen and the small Jersey cow? The Leghorn hen weighing 3½ pounds will lay 200 eggs weighing 25 pounds; the Jersey cow weighing 1,000 pounds will produce about 7,000 pounds of milk." He states "that if you will take the dry matter of the hen and compare it with the dry matter of the eggs she produces in a year, there will be 5½ times as much dry matter in the eggs as in her body. On the other hand, compare the dry matter in the cow's body to that of the milk that she produces and it will be as 1 to 2.8." In other words, the hen does twice as well as the cow. It is this high standing of the hen in mind that we must aim to keep our standard of utility up to.

In looking over your fully developed laying pullets if you see any that are small in the head for the size of the body, or has a slim, long beak, cull it out. It shows a weakness that should not be tolerated in a healthy flock. Those with the thin necks or pinched tails and narrow across the breast should go, too. Anything that shows a tendency to weakness. You can soon learn to detect these things if you will look your stock over carefully with that end in view. You will say that these things should be detected when the pens are first mated early in the spring, but at that time you can not tell all of them as well as you can after they have had a period of laying and begin to let down on their weak points. That is the reason that this is the very best time to do the culling. The males should be looked over for the same faults and those that do not measure up to the best that can be expected should be let go to the block rather than feeding them all the season for next year's use. The very strong and robust should not be disposed of at any price; keep them. Turning to the youngsters that are coming up watch them as they are developing to get at their weak points. Whenever you detect one in the flock as it grows it is a good plan to mark it with a brush and a little Diamond dye, so that when it gets old enough to eat there will be no trouble to tell it and get it out of the flock as soon as possible. The common points to detect the weak ones by are the drooping of the wings. Not necessarily clear to the ground, but they are not held in place as does a healthy chick have his. You will find that kind often sitting upon the ground while all its mates are out foraging.

It is the last to leave the roost in the morning and the first to get to it at night. The front part of its body is carried low, while in a vigorous one it is carried erect. As the comb begins to develop it should be a bright red and strong and vigorous looking. As we used to say the chicken carries his health certificate on top of his head.

The shanks are a very striking indication of the constitution of the specimen they carry. On the weaking the shanks are slim and bony; almost sunken, as we would call them. Note this fact closely as it is one of the surest indications. When the chicks are quite young you will note a great difference in the eyes. The eyes of the healthy one will be very bright and stand out like shoe buttons, while the weakling will have apparently flat and unimportant eyes.

Any one can soon train themselves to be an expert in the detecting of the weak ones that should come out of the flock, and the sooner they are put on the market the better for the rest of the flock. Of course, this has reference to those that show no sickness but are just not robust.

OUR NORTH SIDE AND INMAN PARK DELIVERIES LEAVE THE STORE AT 9:30; SOUTH SIDE AND WEST END AT 2 P. M. GOODS ORDERED BEFORE THESE HOURS WILL BE DELIVERED SAME DAY.

CHICKENS need more care and attention the next two or three months than any other time during the year. It is perfectly natural for chickens to have lice and mites, and unless you look after them they will multiply in such quantities to prove profitable. The little chicks will not reach the growth they should and the hens will not lay if they are covered with these pests. We have ties that you can not expect your flock remedies that will positively get rid of them and the cost is very little. For 35c you can get a can of either Lee's, Conkey's or Pratt's Lice Liquid and we will guarantee either of these preparations to give entire satisfaction.

WE have just gotten in a lot of nice, fresh, clean Red Comb Feed. The price for scratch and mash is $2.25 per 100 pounds.

BOARD WANTED.

YOUNG MAN would like to get board for a week or ten days somewhere in North Georgia or Carolina. Write full particulars to P. O. Box 570, Atlanta, Ga. 6-24-43

WANTED—Accommodations for the Georgia legislators. They are coming in now and will be in session at the State Capitol from June 25 for FIFTY days. All of them are on the outlook for nice, comfortable and home-like places to eat their meals, or to board or to rent. Many of the places these legislators had last year did not suit them and they desire to find something better. All the legislators will read The Georgian—that's certain. Their attention will be called day after day to the "Legislators' Accommodations" column on the Want Ad pages of The Georgian. This will be a big advantage to you. So if you have eating or boarding places or have rooms, apartments or houses for rent, your ad should be under the "Legislators' Accommodations" heading. An investment of a few cents will keep your house full for the next three months. Phone or send in your ad at once.

DESIRABLE PEACHTREE LOTS.

THERE is no use in going into detail in regard to Peachtree Street property. Every person in Atlanta knows Peachtree Street, knows its desirability, and also knows its PRICE, which, as a rule, is just a little beyond some of us.

We have had listed with us some unusually pretty building lots, some this side of Buckhead and some just beyond. These lots have a frontage of 100 feet on Peachtree with a depth of about 425 feet, being beautifully shaded.

The price on these particular lots is from $10 to $15 under the market, making the PRICE within the reach of any one who contemplates a Peachtree home.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

DeLeon Properties Sold for $40,000

Fulton National Buys and Subdivides. Church to Improve Property?—Echoes of Peachtree Paving.

The sale of the Moise DeLeon properties on Whitehall and South Forsyth Streets was closed Wednesday, the purchaser being the Fulton National Bank, through Dr. W. J. Blalock, president, and the price approximately $40,000. The deal was handled through Andrew Calhoun, of the Turman, Black & Calhoun agency, and the property has been subdivided and placed with C. L. DeFoor and the above agency for resale.

The property is located on the west side of Whitehall Street, north of East Fair Street, where the total frontage is 52 1-3 feet, and on the east side of South Forsyth Street, in the rear of the Whitehall property, where the total frontage is 107 1-2 feet. In the new subdivision are two Whitehall lots 26.16 by 100 to an alley, and the Forsyth lots 21 by 22.5 by 100 feet to an alley.

It will be recalled that certain DeLeon equities were put up for sale before the court house door about two months ago. A Whitehall equity was bid in at $1,500, but Percy H. Adams, referee in bankruptcy, rejected the bid, and at private sale the equity brought $5,000. Wednesday's sale was for the entire properties.

Presbyterian Church Plans.

Members of the property committee of the First Presbyterian Church have a new scheme for disposition of the church's valuable lot on the south side of Marietta Street, near Spring Street. They want the church members to form a corporation and buy in the lot and erect substantial income-bearing improvements. In this way, pointed out by a prominent churchman Wednesday, the church would not be obliged to sell at a sacrifice.

There is still another proposition, in the nature of a cash offer which the property committee is considering. A land developer wants the lot to subdivide.

The congregation owns 90 feet of frontage on Marietta Street which has been held at $180,000. Some time ago they bought a large lot at the northwest corner of Peachtree and Sixteenth Streets, where it is planned to put the new church and manse at a total cost of about $100,000. It is the desire of the property committee to go ahead with the erection of the new church irrespective of the sale of the downtown location, and it is probable that a move will be made toward erecting the edifice.

Healey Building Six Stories.

Steel work on the Healey Building has gone six stories and some of the uprights are in place for two more floors. The two monster derricks used to lift the stel are being carried up as the steel work progresses. At first they were located in the basement, but now they are high above the sidewalk and going higher. The Healey Building will soon be as high as the Grant Building to the south, and its seventeen stories will eventually cause it to tower over its neighbor.

Peachtree Paving Needed.

Members of the Board of County Commissioners declared Wednesday that something would be done as soon as possible to repair Peachtree Street from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead. What action would be taken was not stated definitely, but the Commissioners are at work on a plan and expect to announce it soon.

It will be recalled that the Commissioners met recently and agreed to remedy conditions "at once," but that a postponement was later ordered. In the meantime the paving is bad and property owners and travelers are beginning to complain.

Peachtree is used to reach town by all the people in the upper portion of Fulton County and of adjacent counties who do not use Piedmont Avenue or Marietta Street, and the volume of traffic is such that there is always a demand for a travelable thoroughfare. The condition of the street is now almost intolerable, and that is why ready relief is sought. The present paving is several years old, and the opinion is expressed that the commission will soon be obliged to lay entirely new paving.

The Railroads and the Public

A Letter from Mr. Ivy L. Lee, of the Pennsylvania

(Copyright, 1913.)

The Georgian and the other Hearst newspapers, published to protect the public, are aware of the fact that to protect the public thoroughly, ALL legitimate workers must be protected, big men and little men, ditch diggers, railroad builders, street peddlers, department stores, thinkers and big industrial organizations.

Criticism of big and able men because they happen to be rich and intelligent is as stupid and harmful to the public welfare as would be attacks on or unjust treatment of little men because they happen to be poor and badly organized.

We publish gladly a letter which presents the side of the railroads in an important public question.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD COMPANY.
General Office, Broad Street Station.
Philadelphia.
Ivy L. Lee.
Executive Assistant.

Editor The Georgian:

My Dear Sir—Your papers have been commending the law recently passed in New Jersey which places upon the railroad companies the entire burden of removing grade crossings. There is one important phase of this subject, however, which you have not brought out.

There is no doubt that grade crossings are a great public menace and should be removed. But, of course, their removal must be paid for, and those who are benefited are the ones who ought to pay for it. If the entire burden should fall upon the railroads without delay the railroads would be bankrupt.

As you know, in England there are practically no grade crossings, the reason being that when the railroads were first built it was sure that there would be enough traffic to make them pay. Therefore, the Government could take the position that there should be no grade crossings. In this country, if we had taken such position there would not have been so many railroads.

Everybody, railroad officers included, agrees as to the danger and the objectionable character of grade crossings. But it is certainly like the ostrich burying its head in the sand to pass a law placing the whole burden upon the railroad companies and imagining that through such a law the money is going to come out of the bankers of Wall Street.

May I venture to call to your attention the policy which Mr. Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, recently set forth as in his opinion the proper one to be pursued in solving the grade crossing problem?

"Public Service Commissions, on motion either of a municipality, a railroad, or on a commission's own initiative, should have the right to designate such grade crossings as should be removed, and should have power, after hearing all parties in interest, to apportion the cost of such improvements, with due regard for the interest of all parties concerned."

Respectfully,

IVY L. LEE.

Mr. Lee, who is a graduate of the Atlanta Boys' High School, and son of the Rev. J. W. Lee, former pastor of Trinity Church, and who occupies an important position near the president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is right in his statement that the public can not legislate unlimited millions into existence or compel railroads to spend money that they haven't got.

It is an impossibility to abolish immediately ALL of the grade crossings in the United States.

There is not enough money in the United States to do that work immediately. And legislation can not CREATE money.

The trouble, however, as Mr. Lee and Mr. Rea will admit, has been in the past a lack of the fair and reasonable attitude now taken by Mr. Rea, recently elected president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Railroad management until recently has often been as arrogant and unreasonable as the most foolish legislator, or the most ignorant demagogue.

The railroads can exist only by permission of the public, they get their rights and their revenue from the public, and are able to build because the public exercises its right of eminent domain in their behalf, yet the railroads have refused for years to recognize in the public ANY RIGHTS AT ALL.

Stockholders, investors in the railroads, have been robbed in every conceivable way. (It is true that the Pennsylvania has been an honorable exception in this regard.)

Legislation that the railroads WANTED has been bought with money.

And legislation that they did NOT want has been killed with money.

It is not unnatural that representatives of the public should in their turn sometimes follow the example set by the railroads and disregard the railroads' rights as the railroads have disregarded the rights of the public in the past.

This newspaper, however, opposes unjust legislation against the railroads as strongly as it opposes public robbery by the railroads.

It is preposterous to say that every grade crossing should be abolished at once and that the railroads should pay the expense.

The total capitalization of the railroads is about $600,000,000, including stock not yet issued.

AND $600,000,000 WOULD NOT BE ENOUGH TO ABOLISH ALL THE GRADE CROSSINGS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD ALONE!

The United States would not have to-day one-quarter of its railroad mileage if the railroads had been compelled to build without grade crossings. That would mean that the United States would be only one-quarter developed in comparison with its present development.

Mr. Rea's statement and suggestion in regard to railroad crossings, and his address made upon that subject recently in New Jersey are reasonable and display a fair spirit.

The trouble has been in the past that railroads and their officials have used their power to prevent ANY INTERFERENCE EVEN WITH THE MOST DANGEROUS GRADE CROSSINGS.

If other railroad officials will follow Mr. Rea's example and in good faith submit public questions to impartial public officials, railroads and the public contributing their fair and proper share of any expense, THE RAILROADS WILL FIND THAT THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY ARE NOT DISHONEST, WILL NOT DEMAND THE IMPOSSIBLE, AND WILL NOT BE LED INTO PATHS OF CONFISCATION OR UNJUST ASSESSMENT BY THE NEWSPAPERS THAT THEY TRUST.

Are We Coming to the Bee Idea of Life

By WINIFRED BLACK.

HAVE you ever read Maeterlinck's marvelous story of the bees?

No?

Go to the library and get it this very day. You can't afford to live another twenty-four hours without knowing that book!

Every time you see a bee in the garden afterward you'll feel like standing, hat in hand, and watching him fly by.

Talk about "man the reasoning animal," the bee reasons so much better and so much more closely than man that he makes us all seem like little blind, blundering beetles booming around in the sunshine, not knowing where we are going or what we are trying to do.

The Wonderful Bee.

The bee—the wonderful bee—no wonder Napoleon chose him for his emblem.

Is that what we are all coming to—some day I wonder—the bee system of living?

Every once in a while I see something in the news that makes me think so. It is a great thing to watch—the daily news of this great, strange, simple, complex world of ours.

The sailors on the ship that Columbus brought across the wide waters spent days standing at the rail watching for the drift of waters, and now and then they found hope of land in the broken branch that floated on the silent sea and now and then some strange bright feather that rose and fell on the waves told their hopeful hearts of bright lands beyond, where the bird that wore the feather waited singing in a spreading tree to welcome their coming.

Driftwood tells strange tales sometimes.

That's what the news is—driftwood—telling stories, old stories that sometimes makes the human hair rise and that turns the blood cold in the veins of the one who watches by the rail to see the drift come by.

Now, there's that little item in the paper this morning—the one about the Judge who told the man that he could not make his wife follow him to a farm, and he could not divorce her because she did not follow.

"She hates country life," said the Judge. "You cannot force her to live it. She has the same right to decide where she wants to live as you have." Drift, drift from strange shores, is that decision.

I wonder how they would think of it in North Carolina, where a man can have you arrested and fined if you give shelter, food, employment or even a word of encouragement to a wife who has left his bed and board without his permission, no matter what it was he did that made her go.

A great artist went with his wife to see her off on a long trip

WINIFRED BLACK.

the other day. "Yes," said the artist to the reporters, "I hate to see her go, but she has chosen the stage for her vocation. Who am I, to stand in her way? She is a human being first of all, you know," and no one was particularly surprised to hear him say it.

She Likes to Work.

A clever writer married a clever business woman a week or so ago, and he told his friends and hers that he did not expect her to give up her business to stay at home for him.

"She likes to work," he said. "Why should I take it upon myself to deny her her own life? Women are something more than the echo of men."

In a high school out West they find that the average height of the high school graduate is lowering for the boys and heightening for the girls.

The boy babies born at the great public hospital in Boston to-day are one inch shorter on the average than they were ten years ago. The girl babies are nearly an inch taller than they were ten years ago and weigh on an average almost a pound more.

A newspaper in the Middle West interviewed the members of a graduating class of girls in a great school yesterday, and out of thirty girls, twenty-four said that they hoped they would not have to marry. Marriage was narrowing and cramping, they said.

Driftwood, driftwood! From what strange tides does it come these days! The bees—oh, yes—that's what I mean.

The bees have arranged all this affair of the feminine uprising—arranged it years and years ago.

The queen bee rules. She breeds the young, divides the hive into workers and drones. There is no mingling of the two classes at all. One bee is to gather honey, one is selected to found the future of the hive. When his work is done, out he goes. Is that what we are coming to, we humans, some day?

Will there be home women and work women, home men and work men, divided quite definitely into classes like the bees—each having his own special mission in life, and never dreaming of interfering with any other in any way?

"Career" Women.

Mother women and "career" women, work women and beauty women, men workers and men home makers, how else shall we manage this affair of the woman who will not live as her husband wishes—else deal with the man who thinks that a woman should follow him wheresoever he lists to go, and howsoever he intends to do when he gets there? Bu-zz, bu-zz! How do you think of the bee idea, brother philosophers?

The drift, the drift! How pleasant it is to stand in the sunshine at the ship's rail and watch it slipping by, and speculate and dream, and hope, and wonder.

SONG OF THE GOOD ROAD

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by A merican-Journal-Examiner.

I AM a Road; a good road, fair and smooth and broad;
And I link with my beautiful tether
Town and Country together,
Like a ribbon rolled on the earth from the reel of God.
Oh, great the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a long road, leading on and on;
And I cry to the world to follow,
Past meadow and hill and hollow,
Through desolate night, to the open gates of dawn.
Oh, bold the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a kind road, shaped by strong hands.
I make strange cities neighbors;
The poor grow rich with my labors,
And beauty and comfort follow me through the lands.
Oh, glad the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a wise road, knowing all men's ways;
And I know how each heart reaches
For the things dear Nature teaches;
And I am the path that leads into green young Mays.
Oh, sweet the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I speed away from the slums,
Away from desolate places,
Away from unused spaces;
Wherever I go, there order from chaos comes.
Oh, brave the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I would make the whole world one.
I would give hope to duty,
And cover the earth with beauty.
Do you not see, Oh men! how all this might be done?
So vast the power of the Road!

A Trip to the Moon

He Gives Reasons Why It Can Not Be Made by Aeroplane, But Says It Might Be Made With the Aid of Inter-Atomic Energy.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

WITHIN a few weeks past I have been asked to address two different aeronautical societies on the curious subject of the possibilities of a trip to the moon.

As far as I am aware this does not indicate an intention on the part of any aviator to essay a voyage to our satellite, but, at least, it shows that the flying instinct is growing by what it feeds upon, and that, having navigated the air, practical men are giving a little extra rein to their imaginations, and wondering whether the empire of birds marks the ultimate frontier of human conquest.

In fact, the dream of going to the moon, which, in every age, has occupied daring minds, is hardly more impracticable at the present time than would have been a project, springing up in the mind of Balboa, of making ships sail across from the Atlantic to the great Western ocean which he saw from his paak in Darien.

But it is not the invention of either the aeroplane or the dirigible balloon that stimulates thoughtful minds at the present time to consider, half-seriously, the idea of a lunar voyage. The success of those inventions, defying scientific predictions and probabilities, only forms an incentive. It turns men's minds hopefully to things that heretofore they have regarded as lying beyond the limits of human power.

It has always been so. Every great advance has been a marvel at the beginning, derided or laughed at. Each one of them has been a victorious birth of the imagination. The greatest drag on progress is lack of faith in the hidden capacities of man.

"Verily, I say unto you, if ye have faith, as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain: 'Remove hence to yonder place,' and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

Only Beginning.

That is high authority for believing that we are only just beginning to discover the extent of our control over nature, and such things as wireless telegraphy, X-ray photography and the disintegration of atoms, with consequent unlocking of tremendous concealed energy, prove that hitherto we have been like the man who buried his talents in the earth instead of making them produce ten or a hundred fold.

Suppose we look at the subject of visiting the moon in the light of present knowledge. The distance in itself is nothing—240,000 miles! Many a sea captain has sailed much farther than that. It is less than ten times the circuit of the earth.

If the atmosphere extended from the earth to the moon, we could go there now by modifying our present apparatus. At a hundred days! But at a height of five or six miles the atmosphere becomes so rare that we could not live in it without an artificial supply. Yet unmanned balloons have gone ten miles high, and meteors take fire from friction at an elevation of a hundred miles or more.

Still the atmosphere does practically cease to exist at no very great elevation, and cuts short off the road of the balloon and the aeroplane.

We must turn to something else. The buoyant force of air enables us to overcome the gravitative attraction of the earth only up to a moderate height. Beyond that something more is needed. I have learned with surprise that many intelligent persons supose that if we once got outside the air motion would be unimpeded. For instance, a man said to me the other day:

"Suppose an aeroplane could mount straight up until it passed the limits of the atmosphere, then having nothing more to impede its motion, it would go on with whatever velocity it had when it left the air."

In fact, this could only occur in case the velocity of the aeroplane amounted to nearly seven miles per second, for that velocity would be required to completely overcome the pull of the earth's attraction. Otherwise it would fall back to the earth.

This is the reason why Jules Verne, in his amusing story of "A Voyage to the Moon," had his adventurers shot out of an enormous cannon. Only in that way, he thought, could the requisite initial velocity be obtained.

A Bold Plan.

But a bold mind might, in view of recent discoveries, speculate on the illimitable power that may be obtained from unlocking the energies of the atoms of matter. Professor Thomson has calculated that a single gram of hydrogen has within it sufficient energy to lift a million tons a hundred yards high! Does anybody imagine that that unlimited store of energy is going forever to remain uncontrolled by human genius? We have discovered its existence; the next thing is to take it and use it.

Suppose we had it under control, as we shall have it some time. Then reflect upon the close relation between atomic phenomena and electricity, and recall the familiar experiment of making bits of pith fly away from an electrically charged ball. If we could construct some kind of a car that could be powerfully charged with electric energy we might be able to make it fly away from the earth as the pith balls fly from the charged conductor of the electric machine.

The Problem Solved.

Then it would be necessary to establish a system of control by which the speed and direction could be regulated by varying the charge—AND THE PROBLEM OF NAVIGATING SPACE WOULD BE SOLVED. I have developed this (of course purely hypothetical) idea somewhat farther in a story called "A Columbus of Space."

Such a method would avoid all the difficulties, really insuperable, that hampered Jules Verne's plan of a projectile starting at a velocity of almost seven miles per second.

However, when we get the atomic energies under control our first efforts will be directed to making more money out of them, and trips to the moon will only begin to pay after we have got tired of purely earthly things.

A Fine Old Heathen

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

WONDERFUL in a far more useful way than we find it described in the "Arabian Nights" was the fine old heathen known as Haroun Al Raschid, who died eleven hundred and four years ago.

In a time of intense bigotry and cruelty he was tolerant and merciful. In an age of blackest ignorance and brutal indifference to every form of intellectual enlightenment, he was deeply interested in learnings, and employed every aid at his command for the elimination of the superstition that was sitting like an incubus upon the breast of humanity.

While Christian Europe lay in the shadow of its seemingly irremediable ignorance, Bagdad was cultivating the sciences out of which was to come the world's mental resurrection. While the Christian teachers were asserting the flatness of the earth the Mohammedan doctors of Bagdad and Cordova, Seville and Alexandria were teaching geography in the common schools from globes. While in London and Paris they were practicing and professing to cure men's ills through the agency of charms, trinkets and incantations, in the great Mesopotamian capital they were treating the sick upon the principles of science and common sense.

So famous was Al Raschid's medical school at Bagdad that the great and mighty Charlemagne issued a decree that no man should practice medicine in his dominions without first having passed a satisfactory examination before the Bagdad faculty. And the old Mohammedan's heart was as sound as his mind, for be it remembered that at the time Charlemagne was using fire and sword against all who would not, or could not, accept the theological beliefs he had sworn to champion, Haroun Al Raschid was doing all he could to protect Charlemagne's subjects in the full exercise of their religion.

PAULINE WELCH, actress-bride of "Bud" Fisher, famous creator of "Mutt and Jeff," who narrowly escaped death when she gashed her throat by falling upon the jagged edge of a broken water pitcher in an unlighted Piedmont Hotel bath room. She was rendered unconscious, and has been forced to cancel her vaudeville engagements.

'BUD' FISHER'S BRIDE HAS NARROW ESCAPE

That Mrs. Bud Fisher, who is better known to Atlanta as Pauline Welch, narrowly escaped death late Sunday night became known to-day.

The wife of the famous creator of "Mutt and Jeff" lies in her apartments at the Piedmont Hotel with a gash five inches long in her throat as the result of an accident which only great good fortune prevented from being fatal.

Mrs. Fisher, whose clever singing won great applause at the Forsyth Theater last week, retired about midnight Sunday night. About an hour later she arose and started into the bath room to fill a pitcher, containing some ice, with water. The lights were not turned on in the apartment, and as Mrs. Fisher entered the bath room she stumbled and fell against the bath tub.

The pitcher she held in her hand crashed against the tub, and she fell against a jagged piece of the glass, cutting a deep gash in the throat. She screamed and fainted, and Mr. Fisher picked her up and carried her to a bed.

Twenty Stitches in Wound.

Mrs. Fisher lost a great deal of blood. There was considerable delay in getting medical assistance, and when Drs. Worth E. Yankey and C. L. Rougian arrived an hour later she was unconscious. The flow of blood was stopped and 20 stitches were taken in the wound, nine aluminum clamps being necessary to hold the severed flesh in place during the operation.

A third physician was called into consultation, and the doctors remained with Mrs. Fisher during the remainder of the night. For several hours it was feared that she would not recover from the shock and loss of blood, but early Tuesday morning she regained consciousness and rallied rapidly.

Must Remain in Atlanta.

Mr. Fisher stated Wednesday morning that it will be impossible to move Mrs. Fisher for a week or ten days. They have canceled a vaudeville engagement at Brighton Beach for week after next and intend to remain in Atlanta until Mrs. Fisher is completely recovered.

The attending physicians declare that Mrs. Fisher had a miraculous escape from death.

The cornerstone of the new building of the Home for Old Women will be laid Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock with Masonic honors.

After the ceremony the directors will serve refreshments on the lawn.

'Hub' Talley Faces Trial for Shooting

"Hub" Talley will have to answer to Recorder Broyles Wednesday afternoon for the shooting and serious wiunding of George Blackstock a few weeks ago in Peters Street. A case of disorderly conduct also has been docketed against Blackstock.

At the time of Talley's arrest some time ago he was placed in the Tower and later released on bond, but no city case was made. The officials decided that he also should answer to the city.

Woman Prosecutor Convicts Embezzler

Judge L. S. Roan Wednesday will sentence Oscar A. Donehoo for embezzling $200. The jury returned a verdict of guilty late yesterday.

Mrs. Alice Donehoo, a sister-in-law, who appeared in the role of prosecutor, declared Oscar Donehoo was executor of his father, C. M. Donehoo, and that she was due $200 which she had been unable to get.

Brown's Attack Stirs Unions

Anderson Is Elected President of the Senate

Both Branches of the Legislature Get Down to Real Work---Flood of Bills Begins in Upper and Lower Houses Soon After Lawmakers Convene.

The full text of Governor Brown's message to the Legislature will be found on page 12.

With the reading of a sensational message by Governor Brown flaying the labor unions, the election of J. Randolph Anderson, of the First District, to the Presidency of the Senate, the election of William H. Burwell, of Hancock, to the Speakership of the House and the introduction of the preliminary grist of bills, the Georgia Legislature began its session Wednesday.

Pledges made by Senator Anderson had appeased the hostility of the "drys" throughout the State and quieted the opposition to his candidacy. He was elected to the Presidency by a unanimous vote of the members, Judge Allen's name being withdrawn.

Representative Burwell, in accepting his unanimous election to the Speakership, spoke of the need of tax reforms in the State and expressed the hope that bills would be passed which would remedy the present inequable features of the system.

As soon as the House got down to work, the introduction of bills was begun. They had a wide range of subjects, and the indications from the first day of the session were that 50 days would be crowded with legislation.

Labor leaders issued a bitter reply to the charges made in the Governor's message.

LABOR LEADERS SCORE MESSAGE

Governor Brown's spirited attack upon labor unions and their tactics in his farewell message to the Legislature aroused widespread comment Wednesday, stirring up a hornets' nest among the labor union officials.

The Governor branded the unions an agency for anarchy and said that even in their gentler aspects they took on the nature of a gigantic labor trust out of all accord with the modern movement toward the suppression of big combinations.

He did not mince words in describing the unions as a menace to the people and to the principles of government. They struck their severest blows, he said, not at the rich people, but at the poor for whose protection they were supposed to be organized. The members, he said, regarded their organization as above the law, above the State and above the Constitution.

Says State Must Act.

The State of Georgia, declared the Governor, must assert itself and demonstrate that no person or group of persons can with impunity disregard the laws of the Commonwealth. As one of the panaceas for labor troubles, he suggested compulsory arbitration as a law on the statute books.

In referring to the Augusta car strike and the Georgia Railroad strike the Governor said the railroads had been given a charter to furnish transportation. The charter carried the effect of a contract. Neither the railroad company nor its employees had the right to commit any deed abrogating this contract. The State was privileged to call upon the railroad to fulfill the agreement, and the State's duty was to protect the railroad in operating its trains. By its disregard of the rights of the State and the people, the unions, he said, had made the union label mightier than the seal of State.

Labor union officials as a unit were bitter in their criticisms. Jerome Jones, editor of The Journal of Labor, branded it as "balderhash" and "rot," and characterized the Governor as a disturber and a person seeking to restore the old order of things under the guise of reform.

Jerome Jones Criticises Brown.

"Governor Brown can see only within a narrowly circumscribed circle," said Jerome Jones, editor of The Journal of Labor, in bitterly assailing Governor Brown's attack on labor. "Either he has no knowledge of the conditions of labor and the rights of those who work, or he deliberately is closing his eyes to the truth.

"Much that he says in his farewell message he has said before. He would have the laborer and his work the absolute chattel of the master—the employer. The day of such conditions rapidly is passing, and he is foolish who would restore the conditions of a half century ago.

"His suggestions might be carried out in some of the European coun-

LEADERS NAMED WITHOUT FIGHT

The Georgia Legislature for 1913-14 was organized in both branches Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Senator J. Randolph Anderson, of the First District, was elected president of the Senate, and Representative William H. Burwell, of Hancock County, was named Speaker of the House.

Neither man had any opposition in the balloting, and both were elected unanimously.

The rather unexpected termination of the heretofore uncertain and strenuous fight for the presidency of the Senate undoubtedly surprised the packed galleries and lobbies.

Allen Withdraws His Name.

Senator Spinks, who was expected to nominate Judge Allen, arose immediately after the Senate had been called to order by Secretary Northen, and instead of nominating his man, withdrew his name.

In doing this he delivered a fine and friendly little speech, praised his own man and his opponent, and said that, while Judge Allen had 19 votes ready to stand by him, it was not sufficient to elect, and the Senator from the Twentieth—Judge Allen—preferred to do the graceful thing and retire, rather than proceed with his friends to a fruitless struggle.

When Senator Spinks sat down Senator Stark arose and nominated Mr. Anderson in a spech every bit as good natured as the one preceding it.

Rival Votes for Anderson.

When the roll was called, Allen's name came first, and when he started the balloting in favor of his victorious rival, he was generously applauded by his colleagues.

On assuming the chair, President Anderson delivered a brief address, particularly calling attention to the much necessary legislation that the new General Assembly likely would have to undertake.

He got a good laugh when, in a facitious manner, he referred to the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce's work on behalf of the Western and Atlantic Railroad, the State's property. He said "it evidently would not be the Legislature's work to say what should be done with that property, as the Atlanta trade body seemingly proposed taking care of that little matter itself."

Senate Happy Over Outcome.

The feeling in the Senate, after the settlement of the Allen-Anderson fight was very happy. The way in which that issue was solved evidently lifted a heavy load off many a Senatorial mind, and Judge Allen's frank and manly attitude won him many friends.

Mr. Anderson, in accepting the Presidency, paid an eloquent tribute to the ability and integrity of his late opponent.

The efforts of the prohibition leaders to get into the game at the last minute seems to have been entirely futile, so far as results were concerned.

Both Senators Anderson and Allen

Mexican Proposes U. S. Protectorate; Troops Eat Snakes

EL PASO, TEXAS, June 25.—The El Paso constitutionalist junta today received a message from Governor Carranza in Coahuila proposing that the United States be asked to establish a protectorate over the Republic of Mexico, pending the permanent restoration of peace.

At the same time word was received here that General Villa's constitutionalist army will be concentrated near Juarez within two days.

Reports received here from United States troops along the border of Sonora State said that Mexican Federals were eating snakes since the insurgent State troops have cut off their food supply.

MEXICO CITY, June 25.—The Mexican Government to-day commenced the concentration of all its armed forces in the northern military zone to restore railway traffic with the United States border over the National system. This step is taken to prevent the capital from complete isolation.

Decatur Organizes Beautifying Clubs

The civic beauty committees of the Decatur Board of Trade and the Decatur Woman's Club will, it was decided, organize a neighborhood club in the town to beautify Decatur.

Several clubs were started on the spot. Mrs. Thomas H. Fulton started the Oak Street Club; Mrs. A. L. Brooks and Mrs. J. G. Addy, College Avenue; Mrs. Jennie Findley, North Candler; Mrs. F. H. Hollister and Mrs. H. W. Cantrell, Jefferson Place; Mrs. R. M. Lightfoot and Mrs. George Watts, Adams Street.

Going on Vacation? Leave P. O. Address

Postmaster Hugh McKee announced Tuesday that during the past two weeks much annoyance has been occasioned by the fact that citizens leaving the city on short vacation or business trips have neglected to supply the local postoffice with their forwarding or change of address order.

Blank cards for this purpose can be obtained at the postoffice or from carriers, and the postmaster urges that everyone intending to leave the city supply him with notice as to disposition of mail.

CONLEY PUT ON GRILL STICKS TO STORY

Puzzled by several of the statements of Jim Conley in regard to his part in the happenings the day that Mary Phagan was killed, the police have resumed the questioning from which the negro had been free since he was taken to the police station by the detectives.

One point that has not been cleared up is why Conley saw every one else that went into or left the factory and yet failed to see Mary Phagan.

Conley, on Sunday, was confronted by Monteen Stover. He identified her as the girl he saw enter the factory shortly after 12 o'clock on the day of the crime. Yet he still maintains that he did not see Mary Phagan, although Mary must have entered the factory either just before or just after the Stover girl was in the building. The evidence in the possession of the State shows that there could hardly have been more than three to five minutes intervening between the times that the two girls were in the factory.

Want Clearer Statement.

Conley has been asked to explain this apparently improbable circumstance. Conley at first denied that he had seen Lemmie Quinn in the factory on the Saturday of the murder. Later he said he had seen the factory foreman. Which statement is believed by the State is not known. What explanation is made by the negro for lying in regard to the matter also is conjectural.

Mary Phagan left her nome on April 26 at about 11:50 o'clock. Living in Bellwood, it is regarded as unlikely that she reached the factory in less than 25 minutes, or at 12:15. Monteen Stover has testified that she visited the factory at about 12:10, which would be just before Mary Phagan had entered the factory, if the times testified to are correct.

Conley, on this account, has been asked if he saw, from his vantage point behind the boxes, Monteen Stover enter the factory at 12:10 o'clock, and Lemmie Quinn enter at 12:20, why he did not see Mary Phagan when she entered in the interval between the visits of the Stover girl and Lemmie Quinn.

Sticks to His Story.

Another point on which he has been questioned is as to how he could have left his home at the time he has testified and visit all the saloons of which he has told and still meet Frank at Nelson and Forsyth Streets as Frank was on his way to Montag Bros. factory. Frank, according to the statements of members of the Montag firm, was in their building by 10 o'clock. Yet the things that Conley has testified to doing would have taken him until considerably after 10 o'clock, according to a conservative estimate.

He also has been quizzed on other points in his testimony which appear at variance with the facts, but he has stuck steadfastly to the story told in his last affidavit. Solicitor Dorsey has said that he has been unable to shake the negro in any important particular.

Deny Hoke Smith Story.

Attorney Luther Z. Rosser, chief of counsel for Frank, made strenuous denial Wednesday that any effort had been made to connect Senator Hoke Smith with the defense. A similar denial was made by Herbert Haas, associated with Mr. Rosser in the defense. Neither was able to say how the rumor had started.

Frank A. Hooper, who is assisting Solicitor Dorsey in the prosecution, said that the State would be prepared Monday to fight the subpenas duces tecum issued by the lawyers for the defense. It is regarded as improbable, however, that the defense will bring the matter to an issue until the trial begins July 28.

Convict Offers to Sell His Body to The Highest Bidder

Thomas A. McCullough, a convict in the Monroe County camp, wants to sell his own body. He expresses that desire in a letter dated Griffin, Ga., sent for insertion Wednesday in the ad columns of The Georgian.

FOR SALE—To the highest bidder for cash—I offer my body, which is 6 feet high, weighs 175 pounds, is large frame, well proportioned, 40 years of age and Caucasian race.

"I have a sentence of 18 years for killing a negro in Griffin in 1911 and have no prospects, no hopes and no friends, hence, being in bad health, I am asking this proposition. Anyone wishing to consummate a trade, address Thomas A. McCullough, Box 271, Care Monroe County Convict Camp.

Mercury Reaches 91; Showers May Abate Heat This Evening

The usual mark, 91 degrees, was the maximum temperature Wednesday. It was attained shortly before 2 o'clock.

The thermometer reached 84 at 10 o'clock and 88 at noon.

"It is remarkable how the same kind of weather prevails over the entire country," said C. F. VonHerrmann, the Atlanta forecaster. "It is 90 or thereabouts in Atlanta day after day, and the same nearly everywhere else. Although it seems pretty warm here, Atlanta is no hotter than other places."

"Continued fair, with possibly showers late in the afternoon," is the forecast for Thursday.

Switchman Values His Foot at $40,000

A. L. Kirbo, a former Southern Railway switchman, filed a suit for $40,000 against the company Wednesday for the loss of his foot, crushed when he was caught between two cars.

Kirbo said he was standing between two tracks on which the clearance was only twelve inches when cars backing into one of the tracks crushed him against cars on the other track, and that he fell under the moving cars.

Held for Trial for Flogging Daughter

AUGUSTA, June 25.—J. J. Johnson, arrested for cruelty to his 15-year-old daughter, was admitted to bond of $1,000 to appear before the Recorder Friday morning and answer the charge of disorderly conduct.

Warrants charging him with assault with intent to murder and cruelty to a child have been sworn out by officers of the State courts.

Militants Fire Rail Station; Halt Traffic

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BIRMINGHAM, ENGLAND, June 25.—Militant suffragettes to-day burned the railway station at Hazelwell, near here, doing considerable damage and blocking traffic for a time.

Suffrage literature in the ruins revealed the identiy of the incendiaries.

Augusta Likely Will Win Commission Rule

AUGUSTA, June 25.—Augusta will vote on the commission government plan Saturday. It is believed the movement will win.

Members of the present city administration and their friends do not wish commission government this time. They wanted it last year when not in power. The present anti-administration people did not want it last year.

THE WEATHER.

Forecast—Fair Wednesday night, with showers Thursday. Temperatures—8 o'clock, 80 degrees; 10 o'clock, 86; 12 o'clock, 88; 2 o'clock, 91. Sunrise, 4:28; sunset, 6:53.

ASSEMBLY GETS DOWN TO REAL BUSINESS

Anderson Wins Fight for Senate Presidency, Burwell for the Speaker of House.

answered the query propounded to them, as to whether they would favor legislation to perfect the Webb law, in the affirmative, and that flattened out all chance for excitement along that line.

"Drys" Fail to Change Vote.

It is evident that the injection of the prohibition issue did not change a vote.

Senator E. L. Smith, of the Ninth District, was elected President pro tem of the Senate. He is a new member, and has achieved a large measure of popularity during the past few days. He defeated Senator W. J. Bush by a vote of 37 to 6.

Charles S. Northen was elected, without opposition, to his old position of secretary of the Senate.

After the election of officers the Senate heard the Governor's message read and adjourned for the day.

Burwell's Speech Marks House Opening.

Promptly at 10 o'clock Secretary Boifeuillet called the House to order. Prayer was offered by the Rev. John E. White, of the Second Baptist Church, chaplain of the House. This was followed by the administering of the oath to each member by Chief Justice W. H. Fish.

A large crowd witnessed the opening of the 50-day session. The galleries were filled.

Long before the opening hour the House chamber was filled with a good-humored crowd of legislators. With the Speakership settled by the withdrawal of Sheppard and Hardeman, members of the House found themselves devoid of anything to cause excitement. For a few minutes the lobbyists forgot their lobbying and the only thing to indicate that it was a political gathering was the soliciting of votes of the various candidates for the smaller offices.

Standing Room Only.

By 10:30 o'clock standing room in the House was at a premium. Every seat was taken, while the crowd lined the walls.

During the administering of the oath the lobbyists returned to their natural state, and the buttonholing began again.

Election of William H. Burwell, of Hancock County, as Speaker of the House was a somewhat quiet affair. No name was offered in opposition, while a score of Representatives were on their feet to second his nomination by L. R. Akin, of Glenn County, as Speaker. Harris, of Washington; J. D. Slade, of Muscogee; Shelby Myrick, of Chatham, and Adams, of Hall, were the first men to spring to their feet.

Burwell Without Opposition.

The roll call showed 170 votes for Burwell. Temporary Chairman Boifeuillet appointed Burwell's three rivals for the Speakership to escort him to the rostrum. They were Hardeman, Fullbright and Sheppard.

Great applause greeted their procedure down the hall with him. The appointment of his rivals as an escort caused a ripple of merriment to pass around the House.

Applause greeted Speaker Burwell's address throughout.

Minter Wimberly, of Bibb, placed in nomination John T. Boifeuillet as Clerk of the House, referring to him as the "Golden-hearted gentleman from Bibb," and the "handsomest man in Georgia." For fifteen minutes members of the House indulged in the making of complimentary speeches extolling the virtues and manly pulchritude of Boifeuillet, whose intimate friends affectionately call him "John Bullyfoot," and who has been Clerk of the House since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary. No name was offered in opposition to Boifeuillet.

Tax Reform Urged.

Burwell, in assuming the Speakership, urged tax reforms, saying, among other things:

"There are, with me, no scars to heal or enemies to pulish; and I sincerely trust that you can and will reciprocate the feelings of sincere personal regard and friendship that I entertain for every member of this House.

"For the past several years since the limitation of 5 mills was wisely placed upon the taxing power of the General Assembly, appropriations have been from time to time increased beyond the revenues of the State, until to-day we find a deficit in our State Treasury which the honor and integrity of the State demands we should correct.

"To do this, and to do it wisely, will requife our best thought and highest patriotism. In its consideration we should on the one hand keep in mind the demands and needs of the State and her various institutions, and with liberal justice provide for all, in order that the dignity of the State may be preserved and her institutions fostered, protected and developed; but, on the other hand, I can but beg you remember the present condition of our people.

Taxes High Enough.

"Let me assure you I am no pessimist and I fully realize and appreciate that Georgia is rich and prosperous in the possession of boundless natural resources, more varied perhaps than any of her sister States, and that her basic credit is well founded and established beyond the thought of criticism; yet it is a manifest fact to all in close touch with our constituency that the crop conditions of the past two years have placed unusual burdens upon our people and there is no business or interest in Georgia, whether farmer, merchant, banker, manufacturer, laborer or man of the professions, which has not felt its serious consequences.

"Therefore, to lay additional burdens upon our people at this time will be disastrous and unwise, and I sincerely trust that in providing for this deficit in the treasury you will find other means than that of increase in the various taxes of the State.

"We will be called upon to correct the present evils in our taxing system, a system which is now so antiquated, in many instances so inadequate and so unjust, and to correct these evils in such manner as will equalize the burdens of taxation and adjust the present inequities and inequalities of our law, offers to us the highest opportunity for the exercise of wise statesmanship and real service to the State."

Boifeuillett Gets 170 Votes.

A total of 170 votes was recorded for Boifeuillett. A committee of three was appointed to escort him to the clerk's desk.

Immediately following this a message was sent to the Senate informing that body that the House was in order, and that a committee of five, to meet with a committee of three from the Senate, to inform the Governor that the General Assembly was in order, was appointed.

A resolution for the appointment of success unanimous consent being the committee of three from the Senate to arrange for the inauguration of Governor Slaton then was adopted.

Nominations for Speaker Pro Tem were called for. E. H. McMichael, of Marion, and A. S. J. Stovall, of Elbert, were the only two men nominated, there being a large number of seconds for each man.

This vote was one of the most exciting in the history of the House, being neck and neck throughout. As the roll call progressed the vote stood 4-4, 10-10, 14-14, 18-18, 20-20.

Then McMichael began to forge ahead, the vote going McMichael 35, Stovall 31, then 45-36, 50-42, 52-46, 57-53, 60-54, 64-56, 66-60, 71-64, 73-71, 79-74, 86-81, 98-85. McMichael wins.

Speaker Raps for Order.

Mrs. Rosa Tolbert Reid was announced as postmistress of the House. D. T. Paulk, of Ben Hill County, was re-elected messenger without opposition.

Speaker Burwell was forced to rap for order repeatedly. Upon order of the Speaker the aisles were cleared and the members ordered to remain in their own seats while in the chamber.

W. T. Morris, of Tolbert County, was re-elected doorkeeper. There was no opposition and the Rev. H. J. Ellis, of Fulton County, was elected chaplain of the House.

An effort to dispense with the filing of bills during the opening day failed to success, unanimous consent being required, and several objections being voiced.

Following the filing of new bills the reading of the Governor's message was announced. Representative C. R. McCrory, of Schley County, moved that the House adjourn without the reading of the message, but the motion was lost by a heavy roll of "noes."

Immediately following the conclusion of the reading of the Governor's message the House was declared adjourned until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

House Gets Many Bills on First Day.

The following bills were submitted in the House:

Edmondson, of Brooks—Bill providing for a constitutional convention:

Cole, of Bartow—Bill providing for inheritance tax;

Slater, of Bryan—Bill to establish a public highway from the beginning of King's Ferry Bridge on the Ogeechee River in Bryan County, through the counties of Bryan, Liberty, McIntosh, Glynn or Wayne and Camden to some suitable point on the line between Florida and Georgia;

Turner, of Bulloch—Bill providing for establishment of Candler County;

Lynch, of Clarke—Bill to provide for system of equalization of tax assessments;

Clark, of Dougherty—Bill allowing County Commissioners to provide funds for support of Albany hospital;

Adams, of Hall—Providing for establishment of Barrow County;

Blackburn, of Fulton—Bill providing for the appointment of a public highway commission;

Akin, of Glynn—Bill providing for appropriation of $5,000 annually to geological survey;

Meaders, of Oconee—Bill requiring stamping of boots and shoes when substitute for leather is used;

Swift, of Muscogee—Bill requiring payment of special taxes when property is transferred under will or other inheritance;

McCrory, of Schley—Bill providing for appointment of text book commission;

Wheatley, of Sumter—Bill providing for the Speaker of the House succeeding to the governorship in the event of death of President and President Pro Tempore of the Senate;

Tootle, of Tatnall—Bill providing for establishment of Hampton County;

Harris, of Washington—Bill to amend sections 1512-1513 of second volume, Code of Georgia, by striking out both sections and adding in lieu thereof a section authorizing the State to pay the fee fixed by section 1511 to the ordinaries for their pension work and for other purposes;

Ellis, of Tift—Bill to provide an act to establish an experiment farm, to be known as the South Georgia Experiment Station.

'DRYS' DECLARE ANDERSON WILL AID THEM

Pre-Election Statement Assures Prohibitionists of His Help, They Say.

Officials of the Georgia Anti-Saloon League will hold a conference Wednesday night to perfect plans for presenting a bill in the Legislature prohibiting shipments of liquor into the State. An additional bill or clause also will be prepared prohibiting the publication of liquor advertisements in Georgia newspapers.

The conference follows fast upon the heels of the election of Randolph Anderson to the presidency of the Senate, which the temperance people regard as a victory inasmuch as Mr. Anderson has said that, as an individual Senator, he considers such a bill proper legislation. President Anderson further said, temperance people point out, that he would consider it proper to prohibit the publication of liquor advertisements.

Dr. G. W. Young, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, spokesman for the league Wednesday morning, had the following to say:

Have Anderson "Sewed."

"We regard Mr. Anderson's election as a virtual victory for the temperance cause, for he has practically committed himself to our views by his statements in regard to the Webb bill, as well as that concerning the passage of a bill prohibiting the publication of liquor advertisements.

"In other words, we have Mr. Anderson, who has been more or less antagonistic to our cause, practically sewed up in a rag, and we will proceed to push our cause with more vigor than ever.

"We believe the public expressions from the two candidates for the Presidency of the Senate did us far more good than if we had put out a candidate, for then many prohibitionists who favored personally either Mr Allen, a lukewarm prohibitionist, or Mr. Anderson, antagonistic, would have been disgruntled to such an extent that perfect harmony would not have prevailed in our fight for the bill. We have every hope of getting the bill through.

Both Favored Bill.

The letter of Dr. DuBose, president of the Anti-Saloon League, was sent out by messenger to the two candidates Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Allen replied early in the afternoon saying the legislation met with his approval. The reply of Mr. Anderson was received Tuesday night.

Mr. Anderson said that in view of the enactment of the Webb bill and in consideration of the fact that the fixed present policy of the State is in favor of prohibition, he would, as an individual Senator, consider such a bill proper legislation.

He added that he would not commit himself to a bill he had never seen, nor would he pledge his official action either to the support or to the opposition of any particular measure. He pledged absolute fair and impartial treatment if the bill should be introduced.

Chicago Noise Peril Shown by Atlantan

CHICAGO, June 25.—The incessant noise of the downtown district of Chicago has a distinct effect on Chicagoans, and they do not know what relaxation means, Dr. J. Cheston King, of Atlanta, Ga., last night told the conference of alienists and neurologists who are considering ways and means of decreasing degeneracy and dementia.

"The loop is guilty of more and longer continued noise than any similar area in the world," declared Dr. King.

Shortly after she married W. M. Groves he took to joy riding with fair young neighbors and told them he had secured a divorce from her, according to Mrs. Annie Groves' petition for divorce filed with the Superior Court Wednesday.

She said he was a model young man until after the honeymoon, when he began drinking, treated her cruelly, and finally deserted her.

Tennessee Military School Hit by Fire

KNOXVILLE, June 25.—The buildings of the Tennessee Military Institute at Sweetwater were threatened with destruction in a fire that started early to-day. The buildings were at the mercy of the flames because the town of Sweetwater has no fire protection.

The loss will exceed $75,000.

Dead in Explosion Likely to Exceed 30

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 25.—The number of missing men in the Huested fire now totals twenty-six. The police at noon said six more men, in addition to these twenty believed to be killed, have not returned to their homes. Seven bodies have been recovered, so that the list of dead in the explosion of yesterday afternoon very likely will exceed thirty.

A number of the 45 injured probably will die.

tries, even in some of the States of the Union, but in Georgia, never.

Ideas Approach Imbecility.

"His ideas border on the imbecilic. It is utter nonsense to say that the increased wages obtained by the members of the labor unions has imposed a tax on those who happen not to be members. It is a matter of industrial history that where the labor unions have procured better wages those outside the union have been similarly benefited, if not quite in the same degree.

"The foremost economists of the country, those who look at the subject without the bias which might be accredited to the labor unionist himself, are pretty generally agreed that the labor union not only has set the standard of wages and the hours of labor, but also has set the standard of living among the working people, who in the final analysis are one of the strongest bulwarks of the State. They not only admit, but declare freely, that the reforms obtained by the unionists have been of benefit to the people at large.

"How foolish, then, is it to assert that the activities of the labor unions are imposing a tax on the remainder of the State's citizens.

Assails Compulsory Arbitration.

"His suggestion that compulsory arbitration be one of the laws placed upon our statute books constitutes a most dangerous principle. Who has a right to say that I shall arbitrate? I believe in arbitration, but no one has the power to make me arbitrate. Suppose, following out the Governor's suggestion, a dispute between a railroad company and its employees is arbitrated. Suppose that the award of the arbitration board is in favor of the employees. Is there any power that can make the railroad company keep me or any of my fellow employees on the company's payroll? Is there any way to stop the hundred and one similar methods of reprisal that the railroads may adopt under the compulsory arbitration system?

O. K.'s Sympathetic Strikes.

"Because the labor unionists are a small group in the population is no reason why their rights should have less weight than the rights of the others. Neither can there be any objection to the practice of sympathetic strikes, against which the Governor inveighs.

"If it should be only one man whose rights are attacked, the whole union is bound to fight in his behalf until its treasury is exhausted. That man's rights established, the decision has an effect on the whole body of laborers.

"The Governor speaks of courts and juries, but I would ask him at what courts and at the hands of what juries can the laboring man get equable decisions on the questions that arise from time to time?"

PAINTER FAMILY STARTS FIGHT FOR ORGANS

Demurrer Is Filed in Baltimore to Petition Asking a Receiver for Viscera.

BALTIMORE, June 25.—A demurrer offered in the Circuit Court today by Mrs. Martha S. Painter, widow of Edward O. Painter, the Jacksonville fertilizer man, and his daughter, Miss Okie C. Painter, may delay for several days consideration of the petition for a receiver asked for the viscera of the late fertilizer king.

The demurrer declares those instituting the proceedings have no constitutional right to do so.

Before hearing witnesses Judge Duffy asked Dr. Charles Glaser, who conducted the analysis, if they could be preserved pending the time the case might be in litigation. Dr. Glaser replied that they might be kept in a good state until next fall.

Attorneys for the family argued that they were entitled to possession of the remains of Painter, under rulings of courts in different States.

"The organs of the human body are not property," the attorneys argued. "The courts have said a human body is only quasi-property, and it can only be considered in the light of property when the next of kin are making a claim for it."

WHY SWELTER? KEEP COOL

You can do so these hot days by using an Oil Stove for your cooking. Especially acceptable are they during the canning season. Is it too hot in the kitchen? That's all right; just move the stove to the back porch. Not comfortable there? Then just try the butler's pantry and they won't heat up the rest of the house nor you, either.

Come in and let us give you a lesson on keeping cool while cooking in the summer time. We carry in stock one, two and three-burner stoves, with or without cabinets; and you can buy these with or without ovens.

Our King Bee line has many points of superiority over any other oil stove on the market.

CUYLER LOCATED FOR HIS WIFE BY WOMAN

Farmer's Spouse Located Georgia's Famous Cosmopolite After Sleuths Failed.

WAYSIDE, GA., June 25.—It developed to-day that a woman, indigenous to the red hills of Jones County, succeeded where detectives of the world's most famous agencies failed in informing Mrs. Grace Barton Cuyler of the whereabouts of her husband, Telemon Cruger Smith Cuyler, Georgia's most famous cosmopolite and delitante, after sleuths had sought him in vain everywhere from the wildest regions of war-torn Mexico to the gayest boulevards of Paris.

The woman is Mrs. D. B. Chiles, a neighbor of Cuyler, and she is a friend of Mrs. Cuyler in the divorce action inaugurated by her in California courts after the quest for the cosmopolite proved vain and his wife was compelled to serve notice of her suit by publication.

Mrs. Chiles is not a woman detective of the type now so favored by fiction writers. She is the wife of a Jones County farmer and has probably never seen a sleuth, but she has a well-developed power of reasoning.

Finds Him at Plantation.

Two weeks ago when she received a letter from Mrs. Cuyler asking her to try to find from Jones County sources the present abiding place of the much-sought-for husband, she took the rather prosaic method of gathering the information by going to Cuyler's home and seeing him with her own eyes. Then she went to the Wayside telegraph office and informed Mrs. Cuyler by wire.

According to Mrs. Chiles' information, received from Mrs. Cuyler, Cuyler has been playing hide-and-seek with officers endeavoring to serve him with the notice of divorce proceedings for months. She had reports that he was hiding in Mexico, that he had caused letters of his to her to be mailed from San Francisco to throw the sleuths off the trail, that he had gone to Europe or was making a trip to the Orient.

Perhaps Mrs. Chiles reasoned that if a cosmopolite and a dilettante wanted to hide, abviously the best place for him to secrete himself would be his Jones County cotton plantation, for a cosmopolite is supposed to be anywhere but at home.

Perhaps she didn't reason at all, but she found the cosmopolite seated on the front verdanda of his ancestral hall and he was turning his toes out to greet the glow of the sun, as is customary for Jones County farmers to do.

In a letter received from Mrs. Cuyler yesterday, Mrs. Chiles was told of the long chase of Cuyler. According to Mrs. Cuyler, the probability of divorce was first discussed at a conference between her husband and Attorney Powers, her counsel, in the latter part of 1912 in Alameda, California, where Mrs. Cuyler now is with her mother, Mrs. John Barton. No decision was reached at that time, and Cuyler soon left for Calexico, Cal., on the Mexican border, where he had organized the Southern Cotton Company to grow long staple cotton on a vast plantation just across the United States line.

"I don't know what he did there," writes Mrs. Cuyler, "but I am told that his extravagance was shocking. Anyhow, I know that he left there in a hurry."

This she found from officers she had sent to serve the divorce papers, having decided on this action after their Alameda conference. A copy of the summons was sent to Calexico, but according to the officers Cuyler promptly disappeared across the border and the sheriff had to return with the papers not served.

Later he was traced, according to Mrs. Cuyler's information, through Arizona and then East to New York. She had also been told that he was reported variously in Europe and the Orient.

Leading Life of Recluse.

About two weeks ago, according to Mrs. Chiles' information, on the birthday of Telemon Cuyler, Jr., the five-year-old son of the torn pair, a package of presents was received at the California home of the mother. It was addressed in Cuyler's handwriting and postmarked San Francisco. Wayside people say that Cuyler has been at his mother's plantation for at least three weeks.

How much longer he has been there they do not know. Since his return he has been leading the life of a recluse. On his former visits to his Jones County place he made daily trips to the Wayside Station and showed considerable interest in discussions, so universal on the porches of rural general stores.

Cuyler is taking the news of the proceedings with the utmost nonchalance. He apparently is in no hurry to decide on the exact nature of his action in the matter.

"The affair is very complex," he says, "and very interesting, too, no doubt," he added as an afterthought.

"I may come to Atlanta in a few weeks to consult my counsel. I hardly know exactly when. In the meantime, I am very busy here. Our farming is quite extensive and I am preparing to build a new house. In fact, I have drawn the plans myself and will superintend the construction. Then the fish are biting splendidly now and I spend an hour or so each day with my rod. My days are thus rather completely employed, and this matter's coming up may alter my present plans. As I said before, it has many sides. It is extremely complex, and interesting."

$30,000 RAILROAD JOB FOR BRANTLEY

Former Congressman to Represent 100 Systems of the South. Will Keep Atlanta Offices.

Former Congressman William G. Brantley, of Atlanta, has been appointed as one of three men to represent the railroads of the United States before the Interstate Commerce Commission, according to information that has come to Atlanta. Mr. Brantley will represent the roads of the Southeast territory, comprising 100 systems south of the Mason and Dixon line. The other two men will represent the railroads of the Eastern and Western States.

The details of the appointment and the salary connected with the position have not been given out. It is generally understood, however, that the Western representative of the railroads has signed a five-year contract at an annual salary of about $30,000. It is supposed that the contracts of Mr. Brantley and the Eastern representative are virtually the same.

It is probable that Mr. Brantley's work, for at least the first five years, will be to represent the roads in an advisory capacity during the finding of a physical valuation of the railroads of the United States, which the Interstate Commerce Commission is now undertaking. It is estimated that the commission will pass on $15,000,000,000 worth of railroad property, and the valuation arrived at will be the basis for future taxation and rate making.

Mr. Brantley will soon open offices in Washington to facilitate the handling of his work, though he will retain his offices in Atlanta and spend a portion of his time here.

OWLS OPEN HOME FOR YANCEY BALL

Court House Attaches Sell Hundreds of Tickets—Contributions Still Are Needed.

The club rooms and dance floor on the roof garden of the Owls' Club have been offered for the Dave Yancey benefit ball Friday night.

Practically every attache of the Sheriff's office and the court house has lent his efforts to boosting the affair, and already hundreds of tickets have been sold. Men will be charged 25 cents for admission. Women will be admitted free of charge.

The proceeds will go toward the Yancey fund to brighten the future of the dead deputy's widow and six children.

Additional subscriptions to this cause are badly needed. Provision for the life of the Yancey family has been but poorly made so far. A plea was issued Wednesday to the thousands of persons who have not yet contributed their mite to do so immediately. A dime, a quarter or a half-dollar is desired from each. The amount is insignificant, yet it means happiness to the stricken family.

HENEY EXPECTED TO BE M'NAB'S SUCCESSOR

Believed Wilson Won't Heed Fact That He's Bull Moose—Retirement of McReynolds Hinted.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—It was stated at the White House to-day as practically certain that Francis J. Heney, the San Francisco prosecutor who convicted Abe Ruef of graft and successfully conducted a number of other important criminal cases, will be placed in charge of the Diggs-Caminetti white slave case.

The only obstacle to Heney's appointment as special counsel in this case is a political one. It is admitted that his appointment to take charge of the white slave cases at this time will tremendously help Heney's candidacy for the Senate, and as the prosecutor is a rabid Progressive, it is understood that this course will endanger the Democratic chances in California.

However, as President Wilson is being informed on all sides that Heney is the man to manage the Government side of the case it is probable he will cast aside all politics and appoint the Progressive as special counsel.

The President to-day conferred with Attorney General McReynolds and Representative Kahn, of California, on the Caminetti matter, but neither side would make any statement.

The White House and the Department of Justice said the McNab matter is closed so far as Washington is concerned, and the Government is only interested in obtaining justice, swift and sure, for Diggs and Caminetti.

Rumors that Attorney General McReynolds is about to leave the cabinet have been strengthened by the developments in the Caminetti case.

Elder Caminetti Gets Leave to Attend Trial.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Antonio Caminetti, Commissioner General of Immigration and father of one of the alleged white slavers, now awaiting trial at San Francisco, will be allowed to be present at his son's trial.

President Wilson has informed the Secretary of Labor he thinks it best to allow Commissioner Caminetti to go West at once instead of waiting until fall.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

The new Legislature seems to average up pretty high in the quality of its membership.

The general impression is that it is a first-class body of men, and may be looked upon as apt to acquit itself well of the important work there is ahead.

After both Houses are well under way, it will be found, so this writer thinks, that the contests for the Speakership of the House and the Presidency of the Senate will leave few if any scars.

The contests have been waged, in the main, in a manly way, and the results will be accepted unquestioningly and uncomplainingly.

To be sure, there will be for a time a little soreness here and there, and maybe there will be a few who fail to recover rapidly from their naturally keen disappointments, but eventually things will settle down to a friendly basis and the work of the General Assembly is sure to go forward in mutual respect and consideration among the members.

After all, only one man could win the Presidency of the Senate and only one man could be Speaker. Experienced and able men have been picked out to preside in both Houses.

The General Assembly will make a big hit with the people now, if it gets right down to business, forgets the preliminary battles, and enacts those reforms the people are expecting, and have been given the right to expect, of it.

Judge William Josiah Nunnally of Floyd, although he has been in Atlanta only a day or so, already is well acquainted with half of the Legislature and is making himself known to the other half just as fast as he can.

Not only is Judge Nunnally sure to take high rank as a constructive Legislator, but he is evidently going to become immensely popular with his colleagues. He is a "fine fellow," all right, and everybody seems to have found it out early in the game.

Tinsley Ragland of Talbot, has his trusty little snickersnee out for the proposed new county of Warner.

Ragland lives in Talbot, from which a section of the new county is proposed to be taken, and he will not listen. He says his county needs in its business all the territory it now has and that he will fight 'em to a finish, and if necessary die, before anything shall be whacked from grand old Talbot.

Believe Tinsley, there will be nothing doing in the county of Warner line this year.

Representative W. H. Connor of Spalding, proposes to introduce some highly important legislation in the present House.

For one thing, he proposes to have a uniform school system over the State and to use the same books in all public schools. He thinks that the printing contract should be let out to the lowest bidder, and that the books shall be supplied to the pupils at the actual cost to the State.

According to Mr. Connor's arguments the average cost of text books annually per pupil now is about $6.20; and that, if his provision should be enacted, the price would be brought down to about 75 cents per pupil, which would effect a saving in Georgia each year of some $4,000,000. In his studies of this question, Mr. Connor has learned that many other States in the United States are operating identically the very law that he proposes and that their experience has been that a tremendous saving was effected. Since these principles have been tried out in Spalding County, Mr. Connor thinks the State should give heed to them.

In the State of Ohio, where this law is in operation, the school books cost each pupil annually 62 cents; in Pennsylvania, 70 cents; in Maryland, 63 cents; in Maine, 88 cents.

Since this is the year when the State Board of Education is to sign contracts for the public school books for another five years, and also since the board has determined not to sign any contract till after the Legislature has passed, Mr. Connor intends to push his measure with all his might, until it shall have been considered by the representatives of the people of Georgia.

The Honorable Joe Hill Hall, of the free State of Bibb, blew—that's exactly the right word—into the Kimball House lobby to-day, and began passing the time o' day with everybody.

Hither and yon, and also everywhere he went, he got the glad hand, palm up! Everybody was doing it—shaking hands with "Uncle Joe" and wishing him mighty well!

He is one of the real leaders who will be missed this year from the floor of the House. For years he was a member, and the imprint of his fine mind and courage is upon the statute books forever.

A member of the House who already has made himself solid with everybody is "Charlie" Picquet, of Augusta.

He is not much over four feet tall, but he is all there, what there is of him.

He formerly was City Recorder of Augusta, and in that office he made himself so popular with all sorts of folks that his election to the Legislature was the result.

He is likely to be heard from in the House in more ways than one.

Unless it declares a number of non-legislative days as it goes along, the Legislature should be in Atlanta's appreciative midst until August 13.

It is limited by the constitution of the State to 50 days in its annual sittings, but it has upon occasions declared a number of days "non-legislative," and thus stretched out its sittings.

Once it left one day unused, and adjourned from December 14 to the following March. As a rule, however, it runs through its 50 days without any omissions.

There has been talk from time to time of changing the date of the Legislature's meeting from June back to October, but that likely will not be done soon, if ever.

SEASIDE HOLIDAY FOR THE FIFTH'S 1913 CAMP

Atlanta Regiment Will Have "Off Year" With Little Work at Saint Simons Outing.

A score or so officers and nearly 600 men of the line composing the Fifth Regiment of Georgia will leave Atlanta on the night of July 8 for an eight-day camp at St. Simons Island, off the coast near Brunswick, and the boys in khaki expect to make it the greatest camping trip in the history of the regiment.

Two special trains over the A., B. & A. Railroad have been engaged for the trip, and the commissary department has placed orders for enough food to fill all Atlanta for at least one meal. It will be one vacation trip, too, which doesn't mean extra expense, for khaki uniforms and flannel shirts will be the rule, and no white ducks, silk hosiery or Panamas will be needed.

Uncle Sam will foot the bills. This will be the regular "off year" camp of the regiment. One summer it goes to maneuvers, which are all hard work. The next it takes a seashore holiday, with only a few hours of drill in the cool of the morning.

Colonel E. E. Pomeroy has been in correspondence with the merchants and manufacturers who have employees in the regiment, urging that they arrange vacation schedules so the soldiers can take their holidays at the right time for the camp. He has met with an unusually hearty response. One Whitehall Street merchant wrote:

"I have ten men of the regiment in my store, and I'm going to get them all at once, though it practically will close one department. I believe in the Fifth Regiment and believe Atlanta business men should encourage it."

2 NEW AMERICAN CARDINALS LIKELY Consistory To Be Held in October—Pope Distressed by Rumors of Dissension.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ROME, June 25.—It was learned to-day from a source close to the Vatican that Pope Pius X has decided to call another consistory in October, when nine new Cardinals will be created. One American prelate, and perhaps two, are almost certain to be elevated to the sacred college.

Pope Pius is much distressed by reports of dissension among the heads of the Roman Catholic Church.

According to these reports, the Liberals, led by Cardinal Rampolla, are trying to bring about the removal of Cardinal Merry Del Val from his office of Papal Secretary of State.

If they are successful, Cardinal Falconio, former papal delegate to the United States, probably will be chosen on a compromise.

INCOME TAX SETS $3,000 MINIMUM

Amendment to Section Making $4,000 Low Limit Also Provides Exemptions.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Incomes of more than $3,000 a year will be taxed by the Underwood tariff bill, according to a draft of the amended section just made public by the Senate Finance Committee.

An exemption of $1,000 is made for a dependent wife or husband and $500 additional for each of not more than two children. The Underwood bill, as passed by the House, taxed incomes of more than $4,000.

Mutual insurance company incomes are relieved from taxation to whatever degree the companies are genuinely mutual. The inquisitorial clauses, the dumping clause and right of the secretary and treasury to determine the existence of a foreign market are stricken from the administrative features.

The draft is that which will be presented to the Democratic caucus.

Average Weight Jury Hears Anti-fat Case

DENVER, COLO., June 24.—Standing room was at a premium in the United States Federal Court to-day when twelve men of average weight were sworn in as jurors in the case of the Government against Marjorie Hamilton, the "calendar girl," and her husband, Walter C. Cunningham, accused of using the mails to defraud by advertising anti-fat remedies.

Interest centers in the eighteen fat women whom Federal agents have brought to Denver to testify that they tried the fat cure and grew more corpulent. They have asked the Government to quarter them at different hotels and to furnish guards to keep reporters and photographers away.

Bride Given Ground Facing Alamo Field

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., June 25.—Among the wedding presents received by Miss Bessie Yoakum when she became Mrs. Larkin on June 4 was a piece of property fronting on the Alamo plaza, within a stone's throw from the historic old Alamo. It was given to her by her father, B. F. Yoakum.

Much of the battle in which the heroes of the Alamo were killed was fought on the spot.

BULLETIN OPENS 50-DAY WAR ON CHAINGANGS

Churches of Georgia Are Allied With Prison Reformers in Great Crusade.

Marion M. Jackson, of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, explained Wednesday the stirring "chaingang bulletin" in Tuesday's newspapers as the first gun in a 50-day warfare on a penal system "unrivaled outside of Russia for revolting and demoralizing features."

It was fired as the members of the Legislature were gathering for the opening of the session, and the campaign will be continued determinedly and unremittingly until the last bill is introduced and the last vote taken.

No such plan of battle ever has been mapped out against Georgia's notorious chaingangs. Its strength is due to an alliance between the forces of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, which represents all of the evangelical churches of Atlanta, and the Prison Association of Georgia, which has Philip Weltner as its secretary and moving spirit.

Every Church Is Enlisted.

Every church and every penal reform organization in the State will be enlisted in the fight. Sunday, July 6, will be set apart in the churches throughout Georgia for sermons and addresses to acquaint people with the conditions which are described by those who have investigated them as a disgraceful commentary on the civilization and humanity of the South's foremost Commonwealth.

And this year Mr. Weltner and Mr. Jackson and their aides are assured of victory. They are confident that the great wave of horror that will sweep over the State at the shocking revelations will force the legislators to submit to the unmistakable sentiment of their constituents, if, indeed, they do not inaugurate a movement for reform on their own account.

A dark picture of the environment of Georgia's chaingang convicts was painted by Mr. Jackson in his opening bulletin. He said Wednesday that he had not dared portray half the horrors and demoralizing features. He declared that the conditions were a shame and a disgrace to any enlightened people.

Brands System as Rotten.

"Outside the actual physical suffering visited upon the men and the repulsive and insanitary conditions in which they are forced to live, the whole system is rotten and demoralizing," said Mr. Jackson.

"If a man goes into the chaingang with any manhood and goodness in his makeup he is pretty likely to be rid of these qualities by the time he has passed through his dark-age imprisonment. Boys and first offenders, many of whom are not really bad, but who have made a mistake, a slip, are chained to the hardened criminals, and by the time they are released they have received an effective schooling in all forms of vice and crime.

"One has only to go to the chaingangs in some of the counties to see boys in their 'teens chained next to some beast who has been guilty of the most vicious and heinous of crimes. Such an outrageous system, instead of acting as a reformatory, has exactly the opposite effect. The State is thus thwarting its own purposes.

No Provision for Women.

"Neither has Georgia made any adequate provision for its women wrongdoers and its delinquent girls. The stockade is the only place that Fulton County has to send its female offenders, and no one will attempt to say that this is a proper place to imprison a girl or a woman.

"The Prison Association of Georgia, enlisting the support of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, proposes to change these conditions—at this session of the Legislature if possible. I am confident that much will be done this year.

"We intend to have the chaingang abolished. We do not mean to take the men off the roads—work is good for them—but we shall fight to have those conditions wiped out which wreck the health, which destroy the moral fiber, which blunt the sensibilities and which make habitual criminals out of boys and first offenders.

"We want to do away with the stripes and the chains and the insanitary, disgusting conditions.

Compensation for Families.

"We will advocate some sort of compensation for the wives and children of the men who are serving time. As it is at present the families of the convicts are made to suffer almost as much as the prisoners themselves.

"It will be our suggestion that a parole or probation system be introduced with the indeterminate sentence. Accompanying this will be the grades and classification of prisoners, with merits and demerits.

"The boys and first offenders should be segregated from the vicious and habitual criminals.

"A State industrial school for girls should be established and more adequate provision made for the boys and the women.

"We will propose that stripes be abolished except for the lowest grade of prisoners and that the others be clothed so as not to make them ridiculous.

Would Teach Illiterate.

"Instruction during a short period of the day will be suggested for the illiterate prisoners.

"This is only an incomplete outline of some of the reforms that will be submitted for the approval of the Legislature. In brief, we will combat everything in the present system that militates against the reclamation of the prisoner or which threatens his health or lowers his self-respect.

"Several bills already have been drafted and others are in preparation. We expect that the Legislature this year will be impressed by their necessity and will pass them without opposition."

BONUS OFFER IN PONY CONTEST GIVES 1 WEEK MORE OF OPPORTUNITY

Wanting to win and working to win differ widely. Working to win is what counts, and working to win now, while the special bonus vote offers are in effect in The Georgian and American pony contest.

July 4 means more than cannon crackers, picnics and general celebrations to the pony contestants. It means, to them, the end of one of the bonus offers, and July 4 is little more than a week away.

Clubs of five subscriptions, yearly, half-yearly, or for three months, bring great rewards until the expiration of the period thus limited. And "when the polls close" for these club bonus votes the office force of the contest manager expects an all-night session reckoning up the strength of the many candidates.

Some have brought in five subscriptions at a time to take advantage of the bonus. Others have brought them in one, two or three at a time. In either case, the clubs will be credited accurately. And overnight the standings will seem to have doubled, though the bonus votes represent weeks of work.

The ponies now are at 55 Loomis Avenue, where contestants are welcome. If they arrive at the right time they will see the ponies being exercised.

John D. Sees Fruit of 'Save Pennies' Advice

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., June 25.—When John D. Rockefeller, with Mrs. Rockefeller, attended the Children's Day exercises in the First Baptist Church he saw his advice about saving pennies carried to a fruitful end.

The little girls of the primary class earned and saved their pennies for the Baptist chapel car, and when the bank was opened by the pastor 130 pennies were found. Mr. Rockefeller appeared much pleased.

DEAD KILL BOND ISSUES, SAYS CANDLER

Wants Law Changed So Living Alone Can Have Voice in Municipal Elections.

"Of course, the city of Atlanta needs a bond issue. The only question is what departments of the city government are most in need and how much they need."

In these words Judge John S. Candler, chairman of the subcommittee of a general committee from the General Council, outlined his position. Judge Candler's subcommittee will suggest to the general committee the amount of bonds needed by the city and recommend an equitable apportionment between the departments.

"As I understand it," Judge Candler explained, "there is no question about the need of more money than the tax levy provides. Public improvements can not be carried on without additional funds, and the funds can not be provided except by bond issue. Our duty as subcommitteemen consists only in ascertaining how much money the different departments need. That is the way I understand it."

Judge Candler believes the Legislature, which assembles Wednesday, will adopt a constitutional amendment for submission to the people making it impossible for dead men and stay-at-homes to kill proposed bond issues.

"I want a constitutional amendment adopted giving cities the power to issue bonds upon an affirmative vote of two-thirds of those voting," he said. "The way it is now, an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the total enrollment at the last preceding registration is required. Say, for instance, we were holding a bond election now. Well, the registration was last year. Several men who registered last year have died, and the way the law is now every one of those dead men kills the votes of two live men who favor the bond issue. I think that is wrong."

Judge Candler pointed out that stay-at-homes, or men out of the State, exerted the same influence.

"It looks to me as if there is no question about the adoption of the amendment by the present Legislature," said Judge Candler.

Zionists Tell Plan of Palestine Colony

CINCINNATI, O., June 25.—At the sixteenth annual convention of the Federation of American Zionists here the annual message of the honorary president, Dr. Harry Freidenwald, explained fully the purpose of the federation.

"It is not our idea to send all Jews back to Palestine," he said, "but to place all Jews in a position where independence is assured them. Primarily, the move is for the relief of the Russian Jew."

Girls Writing Book Will Simplify Laws

CLEVELAND, O., June 25.—The embryo lawyer of to-day, who will be the brilliant pleader of to-morrow, will owe a debt of gratitude to two Cleveland girls for a massive volume filled with simple interpretations of Ohio's laws. The girls are Miss Ruth Winch, 22, daughter of Judge Louis H. Winch, and Miss Ruth Jenkins, 18.

The book is being prepared by the girls under the supervision of Judge Winch, and will be known as "The History of the Laws of Ohio."

1,500 Milwaukee's Bars Face Closing

MILWAUKEE, WIS., June 25.—Milwaukee saloons to the number of 1,500 may be forced to close July 1, because of the rejection by the Wisconsin Legislature of a bill to legalize the number of saloon licenses now in existence. The rejection by the Legislature of the proposed saloon measure means saloons which have changed locations are illegally licensed.

MOTHER'S FRIEND IN EVERY HOME

Comfort and Safety Assured Before the Arrival of the Stork.

The old saying—what is home without a mother—should add "Mother's Friend."

In thousands of American homes there is a bottle of this splendid and famous remedy that has aided many a woman through the trying ordeal, saved her from suffering and pain, kept her in health of mind and body in advance of baby's coming and had a most wonderful influence in developing a healthy, lovely disposition in the child.

There is no other remedy so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant those fibers and muscles which nature is expanding and soothes the inflammation of breast glands.

Mother's Friend is an external remedy, acts quickly and not only banishes all distress in advance, but assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother. Thus she becomes a healthy woman with all her strength preserved to thoroughly enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend can be had at any drug store at $1.00 a bottle, and is really one of the greatest blessings ever discovered for expectant mothers. Lad Plays Ball on Piedmont Roof

Hits Homer From Aerial Ball Lot

Sphere Cracks Cabman in Street

Manager Dutton's Young Son Presses Nurses Into Service in His Practice Games.

Eight-year-old Lear Dutton spat on his hands, rubbed them in the dirt, and pounded vigorously on the home plate with his bat.

The pitcher wound up carefully. The ball came shooting across the plate. Lear started running with the crack of the bat against the leather. He rounded first base and stopped, watching the flight of the ball. He had knocked it out of the lot!

While the embryo Wagner stood amazed, there came the sound of a subdued crack, and a frightened darky voice floated up to the ball diamond.

"Who done dat? Laws-a-massy, it's rainin' baseballs!"

That was merely one of the incidents in a game on the most remarkable baseball grounds in Atlanta—the roof of the ten-story Piedmont Hotel. The grounds are those of Lear Dutton, the son of Manager H. N. Dutton, of the hotel, and his team is composed of his nurse and employees of the hotel.

Occupants of offices in the Candler Building and other skyscrapers overlooking the hotel often have watched the little figure darting like mad about the bases, while the older and stiffer ones chased the ball from end to end of the roof.

Since the incident of the home run over the roof, when the ball struck a negro cab driver in the street below, Lear has about closed his roof league season.

However, for the benefit of Georgian readers, Lear staged a game on the roof Tuesday afternoon, and says if the police don't interfere with him he'll play every day from now until the close of the season.

Lear is an unusual boy in a great many ways. Not only did he conceive and put into execution the idea of playing baseball on the roof of his father's hotel, but he, is the one boy in a thousand who does not want to be a baseball player, a soldier, a policeman or a fireman when he grows up.

"I'm going to be a mechanical engineer," Lear said. "Papa says it is a very useful occupation."

Lear is one of the pitchers on a team of boys who call themselves the "Courtlands," and says his club has won only fifty games so far this year.

BRAVES DEATH TO BE NOBLE'S BRIDE

English Girl Weds Sir Joseph Tichborne Despite Threat of Claimant to Estates.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 25.—Miss Denise Greville, whose life was threatened if she married Sir Joseph Tichborne, was wedded to Sir Joseph in Brompton Oratory to-day without incident.

Miss Greville's life was threatened by Theresa Doughty Tichborne, who claimed first to be a daughter of Arthur Orton, claimant of the Tichborne baronetcy and estates. Later she declared herself a daughter of Sir Roger Tichborne, who mysteriously disappeared half a century ago and about whose absence a romantic cloud of mystery had been woven.

Orton, in 1869, claimed to be Roger Tichborne and demanded the title and estates of the twelfth baronet. He came from Australia and the Tichborne family, convinced that Sir Roger had been lost at sea, refused to acknowledge the Australian chimant. Then came a long and celebrated trial, but Orton's case was nonsuited. He was convicted of perjury and sent to jail for 14 years.

Orton, before he died in 1898, confessed he had been a butcher in London's East End.

The woman who posed as a daughter of Sir Roger and who was arrested yesterday has been remanded until Friday.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

"Quo Vadis" at the Grand.

"Quo Vadis" is in its second week at the Grand, and gives every promise that the attendance records of last week, when more than 25,000 paid admissions will be eclipsed. The picture is not only an educational classic, dealing with a story that has been read by millions of people, but it is the most thrilling entertainment that has been enacted on a stage.

The pictures are magnificent, just the proper size, and produced in such an expert fashion that the scenes are thoroughly realistic. There's not a flicker, only a soft and pleasing light, and though the exhibition requires two and one-quarter hours to present, there is nothing that is in the slightest tiresome.

There will be matinee performances daily and evening exhibitions daily the rest of the week.

THIS WILLIAM TELL SLAIN.

BERLIN, June 25.—A student named Kruseknopf of Halle was shot and killed while trying to imitate William Tell's feat with the apple. He placed a glass of beer on his head and dared four of his fellow students to shoot at it with revolvers.

FANS, ALSO, MUST OBSERVE SUNDAYS

Recorder Closes "Baseball Parlor" With a Bang—In Class With Movies.

That phase of the Atlanta spirit so pronounced in baseball fans and that causes them to root for the home team as no other set of fans ever rooted must be placed in the ice chest Sundays.

Recorder Nash Broyles so decreed Tuesday afternoon when he ruled that the baseball parlors of "Caller" R. H. King at 9 Viaduct Way will not be permitted to open Sundays. This is the hall in which Atlanta fans assemble to witness the battle by innings flashed by telegraph when the Crackers are scrapping in foreign fields.

The baseball parlor is in the same class as moving picture theaters, penny arcades, and other such amusements, according to the Recorder.

King threw open his parlors for the game last Sunday, and a test case was promptly made against him.

Judge Broyles dismissed the case on the agreement of King to keep his place closed on Sunday.

Congressman Adopts 2 Children on Train

WASHINGTON, June 25.—When Mrs. William P. Borland, wife of Representative Borland, of Missouri, met her husband at the Union Station she nearly swooned. For Borland, smiling happily, emerged from the train shed with two chubby, giggling little girls.

The representative informed his wife he had adopted the youngsters at Kansas City when he found they were about to be sent to an orphan asylum.

ANTI-FREE SUGAR SENATORS IN LAST DITCH

Ransdell Leads Desperate Fight in Caucus — Defeat Also Means Wool Victory."

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Senator Ransdell, of Louisiana, and the other anti-free sugar Senators to-day in the Democratic caucus made their last stand against the Administration. Senator Ollie James, of Kentucky, defended the free sugar provision of the Underwood-Simmons bill.

The disposition of the sugar schedule will carry with it the fight on free wool, a victory or defeat for sugar meaning a victory or defeat for wool.

The rest of the bill then will be put through before the end of this week and go to the full Finance Committee for final consideration early next week.

ENGLISHWOMEN PELT POINCARE WITH ROSES

French President Is Given Great Ovation as He Drives Through Streets of London.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 25.—A remarkable demonstration of friendship was given in the streets of London today when President Raymond Poincare of France was driven from York House to Guild Hall, where he was entertained at luncheon by the Lord Mayor of London, and the corporation of the City of London.

The French executive was driven through troop lined streets and was escorted by the horse guards. The route was lined with spectators, who kept up a continual cheer for the French president.

This was "Alexandra Day" in London and many society women, dressed in white, sold flowers in the streets for charity. Purchasers along the route taken by President Poincare on his way to Guild Hall pelted the French executive with roses.

Following her custom, Dowager Queen Alexandra drove through the city.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt entertained at luncheon the rose sellers stationed outside of Gloucester House, where he lives.

Aerial Courier Takes Dispatches to Poincare.

LONDON, June 25.—Bearing dispatches from the French Government to President Poincare of France, Aviator Slack, a British airman, arrived here from Paris to-day in his aeroplane. The courier made the trip without mishap, beating the regular mail time by many hours.

Bulgars Want Peace Or War to a Finish

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BELGRADE, SERVIA, June 25.—The Servian Government sent another note to St. Petersburg to-day relating to Czar Nicholas' offer to arbitrate the territorial dispute between Servia and Bulgaria.

At the same time dispatches from Sofia reported that Bulgaria would adopt more aggressive measures than have been taken if the Servian note does not accept Russia's offer of arbitration unconditionally.

Skirmishing between the outposts of the Servian and Bulgarian armies south of Uskub again was reported.

Fossil Camel Bones Found in the Yukon

WASHINGTON, June 25—The discovery of fossil bones of a camel within the Arctic circle in Alaska has been announced by the Smithsonian Institution. The find tends to support the theory, experts say, of the existence of a wide Asiatic-Alaskan land connection of comparatively recent date.

Copely Amory, Jr., found the fossils last summer while collecting specimens for the United States Alaskan Museum.

RESINOL HEALS BABY'S SUMMER SKIN TROUBLES

If baby is suffering with summer eczema, prickly heat, heat rash, chafing, insect bites, or any of the other distressing hot weather skin irritations, give him a warm bath with Resinol Soap and put a little Resinol Ointment on the sore places. The itching and smarting stop at once, sleep becomes possible, and, under this gentle, easy treatment, the trouble soon disappears.

After that, a daily bath with Resinol Soap is usually enough to keep baby's delicate, easily irritated skin clear and healthy through the hottest summer weather.

You need never hesitate to use Resinol. It is a doctor's prescription that has been used by other physicians for eighteen years in the treatment of all sorts of skin affections. It contains absolutely nothing that could injure the tenderest skin. Practically every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, but you can test them at our expense if you prefer. Send to Dept. 48-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md., for liberal samples.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. J McOtann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

THE SOCIAL WORLD

Members of the Capital City Club, their wives and friends, are eagerly anticipating the formal opening of the Capital City Country Club Thursday afternoon and evening when the entire club membership will assemble to declare the summer season open at this new branch of the club.

Since taking over the Brookhaven Club the Capital City Club has added a new feature. The Country Club will be largely an athletic club.

There are three fine tennis courts and golf links are in good condition. Each afternoon sees twenty or thirty persons in or on the water many members having private canoes. Flower beds and flower boxes add to the attractiveness of the verandas.

The entire club house will be thrown open from 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, officers and their wives holding an informal reception at that hour. Later refreshments will be served al fresco. In the evening there will be dancing.

Mr. Robert F. Maddox, president, and Mrs. Maddox will act as official host and hostess. Receiving with them will be other officers of the club and their wives: Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Gentry, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Spalding, Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Elkin, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Brutus Clay, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Inman, Messrs. Charles I. Ryan, Robert Clarke and Edward Austin.

At St. Simons Island.

Among the Atlantans registered at the new St. Simon's Hotel are Mr. Martin Amorous, Misses Emma Kate, Isabel, Rosalind, Janice and William Amorous, Mrs. Stephen Barnett, Mrs. W. B. Armstrong and children, Mr. and Mrs. St. Elmo Massengale and family, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Newell and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Irving S. Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. McRae and family, Mrs. Mary F. Boynton, Mrs. Walter G. Smith, Miss Louise Mell, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Callaway, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Armistead, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn and family, Mr. C. G. Thorn, Dr. and Mrs. John S. Derr, and many others.

Large numbers of Macon, Atlanta, Birmingham and other cities are represented at the hotel. The Governor's Horse Guards of Atlanta and other military companies are in camp near the light house.

For Miss Francis.

Mrs. William Schroder gave a bridge party Wednesday at her home in Fourteenth Street for Miss Martha Francis, a bride-elect.

The house was decorated with pink sweetpeas and Shasta daisies. In the dining room the tea table had as its centerpiece a mound of pink sweetpeas. Pink candle shades and pink mints completed the color motif.

Prizes were a parasol and pieces of shadow lace lingerie, trimmed in French roses.

Mrs. Schroder's guests were twelve of her young married friends.

Mrs. Massenburg Entertains.

Mrs. Frank Massenburg entertained at bridge Wednesday afternoon for Mrs. G. R. Bethune, of Rome, formerly Miss Gladys Kirk. The game was played on the porch, decorated with plants and sweetpeas, and prizes were white and gold china for top score, a pin tray for consolation and crystal candlesticks for the honor guest.

Tea was served from a table covered with lace over pink satin and adorned with pink and white sweetpeas, a color scheme of pink and white being observed in detail. Punch was served from a bowl imbedded in fruits. Mrs. Massenburg wore pink embroidered voile.

Guests were Mrs. Bethune, Mrs. D. Y. Sage, Mrs. G. A. Harbour, Mrs. T. C. Mell, Mrs. B. O. Jackson, Mrs. H. B. Rogers, Mrs. F. E. Markel, Mrs. W. H. Letton, Mrs. H. C. Chapman, Mrs. G. R. Glenn, Mrs. Carl DuPuy, Mrs. Harry Poole, Mrs. J. M. Daniel, Mrs. T. R. Smith, Misses Bess Smith, Willie Adher and Jennie Sue Bell.

For Miss Oliver.

Miss Lula Dean Jones gave a tea at the Driving Club Wednesday afternoon for Miss Eloise Oliver, whose wedding to Mr. Frampton Ellis will take place June 30.

Tea was served on the terrace and the table had a centerpiece of Gloire de Dijon roses. All the details were in yellow. Miss Jones' guests included the girls in the wedding party.

Miss Oliver wore a buff-colored silk suit trimmed in blue, and her hat was ciel blue to match.

Miss Broyles Hostess.

Miss Louise Broyles will have as her guests for the week-end Misses Harriet Benedict and Nellie Phinizy, of Athens. Many informal affairs are planned for the visitors. A tea will be given at the Driving Club by Miss Helen McCarty.

Miss Traylor Entertains.

Miss Margaret Traylor entertained informally at bridge Wednesday afternoon for Miss Louise Couper's guests, Misses Katharine Graves and LaGrange Cochran, of Rome. There were two tables of bridge, and the prizes were silk hose for top score and consolation, and gauze fans for the honor guests. Pink roses formed the decorations. Miss Traylor wore white lace with overdress of pink chiffon.

Vesper Club Dance.

The Vesper Club will give a dance in the club rooms Friday evening, July 4. A number of visitors will be the honor guests.

For Mrs. Dowman.

Mrs. Julian Prade will entertain a group of young matrons at tea Thursday afternoon for her sister, Mrs. Charles Dowman, Jr., of Birmingham.

Mrs. Marye Entertains.

Mrs. Thornton Marye was hostess at an informal tea Wednesday afternoon at the Piedmont Club, entertaining a group of married friends. The guests were received on the piazza at the rear of the ball room, which provided a charming setting for the prettily gowned guests. Tea was served from a long table, adorned with a large basket of daisies, tied with yellow ribbons. Mrs. Marye wore white cotton crepe combined with Florentine lace, with girdle of pale blue, her white hat adorned with blue ribbons and clusters of tiny French flowers.

Children's Party.

Mrs. Frank Orme gave a children's party Wednesday afternoon, celebrating the sixth birthday anniversary of her daughter, Mark. A grab bag afforded amusement. A heart-shaped birthday cake, bearing six pink tapers in rosebud holders, alternating with silver vases of pink roses, adorned the table. Refreshments were in pink and white. The honor guest wore Irish lace over a pink slip, with pink slippers, stockings and ribbons. Receiving with her were her cousins, Mary Phillips and Nancy Belle Keeler.

INAUGURATION WILL BE FREE FROM POMP

Oath To Be Administered Simply Saturday—Slaton Will Read Message to Legislature.

Simplicity will mark the inauguration Saturday of John M. Slaton as Governor of Georgia. The ceremony will not vary materially from that attending the taking of a smaller office. Formerly the inauguration was the most pompous occasion Atlanta knew.

Chief Justice W. H. Fish will administer the oath. In accordance with custom, the oath will be taken at high noon and will be followed by Governor Slaton's address.

The address will be short, compared with inaugural addresses in the past. It will require about 30 minutes to deliver. But Governor Slaton puts much in a few words, and his address will be complete.

There will be no ceremonies beyond the administering of the oath. Governor Brown and Governor-elect Slaton will meet in the Governor's reception room and remain there until notified that the House and Senate are in joint session in the House chamber. Then they will go to the hall, where the oath will be administered.

The inaugural reception will be held at the Governor's Mansion next week.

Governor Slaton will deliver his message orally. He, like President Wilson, believes an oral presentation of a message has greater weight than a written one.

Following the inaugural address, Governor and Mrs. Slaton will accompany Governor and Mrs. Brown to the mansion, where Governor Brown will give his last official dinner and formally turn over the home to Governor Slaton.

There is a remote possibility the inauguration will not be held Saturday. It hinges upon the election of the President of the Senate, as the election returns can not be canvassed until the two houses are formally organized. With J. Randolph Anderson and Judge John T. Allen claiming they will win the office, many believe there will be a deadlock for several days.

B. Y. P. U. TO MEET.

The city B. Y. P. U. will hold its regular meeting at the Second Baptist Church Thursday night at 8 o'clock. This will be an echo meeting of the State B. Y. P. U. Convention at Macon last week.

A Sale of Brass Wares

In Which Jardinieres, Window Boxes, Fern Dishes, Andirons and Novelties Are Priced at Half and Less

There is always a place in a well regulated household for an artistic piece of brassware, or, perhaps we should say, for another piece of brassware.

Now is your time to secure another piece at a price never more than half and very often less than half. It is our June disposal, which alone accounts for such prices.

The brasswares are elegant, usually those heavy hand-wrought pieces that lend distinction and grace wherever they are placed—such, too, as seldom find their way into such a sale. But all merchandise, be it ever so artistic and beautiful, is only merchandise at Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co., and so must be disposed of in good season.

This time it is brasswares.

The sale gets under way with the opening of the store at 8 o'clock.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

IT was so windy yesterday that Pa & me dident go fishing. We was going to a littel laik ware thare is a lot of pickerel, but the guide sed it wouddent be any use to go, so Pa sed in the morning, Well, Bobbie, let us talk a stroll about the village & watch the men at thare work. Thare is a grate deel of pleshur in watching sumbody else work, Pa sed, espeshully these simpel craftsmen up here in the woods. I dare say I may be abel to give them a few pointers, Pa sed. The human brain is a wunderful thing, Bobbie. Onst it is highly developed, like mine, it can direct operashuns of all sorts, though its owner nevver had any acktual expeerience in the deetails of the operashuns. Now, for instance, thare is yung Frank Keener planting potatoes. Let us stroll oaver thare & see if he is doing it rite.

Good morning, Mister Keener, sed Pa wen we got thare. I see you are planting potatoes. Thare is nothing like a good crop of potatoes for the Winter's store, Pa sed.

Kidding Pa.

But I aint planting potatoes, sed Mister Keener. I planted these potatoes a month ago. I dident have anything else to do this morning, so I thought I wud stroll around among the potatoes & have a chat with the potato bugs. Thay are friendly littel things, potato bugs, he sed. Speek to one of them & watch it wag its tail.

I cud see that Frank was kidding Pa, but Pa's brain wasent highly developed that way & he cuddent see it. All he sed was Well, I hoap you have success with yure garden, & we walked along.

Thare was a carpenter bilding a house acrost the street. His naim was Mister Bill Thomson. Good-morning, Mister Thomson, sed Pa. I see you are bilding a pritty littel bungalow. I wud like to have one sumthing like it, Pa sed, & maybe if you ain't too busy next month I will go ahed with it. I always thought this wud be a pritty town in wich to have a bungalow in.

This ain't a bungalow I am bilding sed Mister Thomson. This is a ice house. It looks as much like a bungalow as you look like the King of England. Please move along now & doant bother me. It rained all day yesterday so I cuddent work & now that it is nice & sunny I doant want every yap that cums along to stop & ask foolish questuns of me.

Carpenters are generally rude, cross grained persons, sed Pa to me after we had moved along. I cud see that Pa was pritty mad but I dident feel a bit sorry for him, he had no bizness bothering a man who was working.

Jest then we passed a livery stabel—thare was the owner with two littel jackasses.

A Fine Team.

Good morning, Mister Maus, sed Pa. Can I help you to hitch up yure fine team of mules? I used to hitch up mules wen I was in the army, sed Pa. I am vary fond of mules & thay like me, too.

But these isent mules, thay is chackasses, sed Mister Maus, und I wasent going to hitch them up, also. I chust wanted them to make a littel exercise alreddy. Und if I was going to hitch them up anyway, sed Mister Maus, why doant you mind yure own bizness beesides, yet?

Every man that Pa talked to treeted him jest the saim, but it dident faze Pa. Wen we went hoam to dinner he toald Ma that he had been around having a friendly chat with the villagers. Those simpel folks wud lay down thare lives for me, Pa sed.

You doant say, sed Ma. Then thay must be vary simpel folks.

FAVORITE RECIPES OF FAVORITE STAGE STARS

Cherry Roly Poly, by

Katherine De Rohne

THE market this season is displaying some of the most delicious products of the tree whose family was forever made famous by the truthfulness of one G. Washington. "Cherry Roly Poly" is supplied by a pastmistress of the art, Katherine De Rohne, one of the stars of the Rustic Theatre at the Palisades Amusement Park.

Take one pound of suet and chop fine, being careful to pick out all the skin and strings.

Add:—

Three cups of flour,
one teaspoonful of salt,
one teaspoonful of baking powder,
and just enough water to make it adhere and roll out smoothly.

Roll out to the thickness of about a quarter of an inch. Spread a quart of pitted cherries, sugared, on the thin layer of dough and roll them up. Place in a cheesecloth bag and boil for three hours.

Sauce: Butter the size of an egg, melted but not browned. To this add a teaspoonful of flour and a cup and one-half of water, three-quarters of a cup of sugar and a gill of New England rum. Stir together and boil to the consistency of thick cream.

WITHIN THE LAW

A Powerful Story of Adventure, Intrigue and Love

By MARVIN DANA from the Play by BAYARD VEILLER.

Copyright, 1912, by the H. K. Fly Company. The play "Within the Law" is copyrighted by Mr. Veiller and this novelization of it is published by his permission. TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Take the chairs out of the office, Dan," he directed, "except mine and one other—that one!" He indicated a chair standing a little way from one end of his desk. "Now, have all the shades up." He chuckled as he added: "That Turner woman saved you the trouble with one."

As the doorman went out after having fulfilled these commands, the Inspector lighted a cigar which he had retained still in his mouth, and then seated himself in the chair that was set partly facing the windows opening on the corridor. He smiled with anticipatory triumph as he made sure that the whole length of the corridor with the barred doors of the cells was plainly visible to one sitting thus. With a final glance about to make certain that all was in readiness, he returned to his chair, and, when the door opened, he was, to all appearances, busily engaged in writing.

Garson's Face Showed Fear.

"Here's Garson, Chief," Cassidy announced.

"Hello, Joe!" Burke exclaimed, with a seeming of careless friendliness, as the detective went out, and Garson stood motionless just within the door.

"Sit down, a minute, won't you?" the Inspector continued, affably. He did not look up from his writing as he spoke.

Garson's usually strong face was showing weak with fear. His chin which was commonly very firm, moved a little from uneasy twitchings of his lips. His clear eyes were slightly clouded to a look of apprehension, as they roved the room furtively. He made no answer to the Inspector's greeting for a few moments, but remained standing without movement, poised alertly as if sensing some concealed peril. Finally, however, his anxiety found expression in words. His tone was pregnant with alarm, though he strove to make it merely complaining.

"Say, what am I arrested for?" he protested. "I ain't done anything."

Even now, Burke did not look up, and his pen continued to hurry over the paper.

"Who told you you were arrested?" he remarked, cheerfully, in his blandest voice.

Garson uttered an ejaculation of disgust.

"I don't have to be told," he retorted, huffily. "I'm no college president, but when a cop grabs me and brings me down here, I've got sense enough to know I'm pinched."

The Inspector did not interrupt his work, but answered with the utmost good nature.

"Is that what they did to you, Joe? I'll have to speak to Cassidy about that. Now, just you sit down, Joe, won't you? I want to have a little talk with you. I'll be through here in a second." He went on with the writing.

Garson moved forward slightly, to the single chair near the end of the desk, and there seated himself mechanically. His face thus was turned toward the windows that gave on the corridor, and his eyes grew yet more clouded as they rested on the grim doors of the cells. He writhed in his chair, and his gaze jumped from the cells to the impassive figure of the man at the desk. Now, the forger's nervousness increased momently—it swept beyond his control. Of a sudden, he sprang up, and stepped close to the inspector.

The Door Clanged To.

"Say," he said in a husky voice, "I'd like—I'd like to have a lawyer."

"What's the matter with you, Joe?" the inspector returned, always with that imperturbable air, and without raising his head from the work that so engrossed his attention. "You know, you're not arrested, Joe. Maybe, you never will be. Now, for the love of Mike, keep still, and let me finish this letter."

Slowly, very hesitatingly, Garson went back to the chair, and sank down on it in a limp attitude of dejection wholly unlike his customary posture of strength. Again, his fear fascinated eyes went to the row of cells that stood silently menacing on the other side of the corridor beyond the windows. His face was tinged with gray. A physical sickness was creeping stealthily on him, as his thoughts held insistently to the catastrophe that threatened. His intelligence was too keen to permit a belief that Burke's manner of almost fulsome kindliness hid nothing ominous—ominous with a hint of death for him in return for the death he had wrought.

Then terror crystallized. His eyes were caught by a figure, the figure of Cassidy, advancing there in the corridor. And with the detective went a man whose gait was slinking, craven. A cell door swung open, the prisoner stepped within, the door clanged to, the bolts shot into their sockets noisily.

Garson sat huddled, stricken for he had recognized the victim thrust into the cell before his eyes. . . . It was Dacey, one of his own cronies in crime—Dacey, who, the night before had seen him kill Eddie Griggs. There was something concretely sinister to Garson in this fact of Dacey's presence there in the cell.

Of a sudden, the forger cried out raucously:

"Say, Inspector, if you've got anything on me, I—I would——" The cry dropped into unintelligible mumblings.

Burke retained his manner of serene indifference to the other's agitation. Still his pen hurried over the paper; and he did not trouble to look up as he expostulated, half-banteringly.

"Now, now! what's the matter with you, Joe? I told you that I wanted to ask you a few questions. That's all."

Garson leaped to his feet again resolutely, then faltered, and ultimately fell back into the chair with a groan, as the Inspector went on speaking.

"Now, Joe, sit down, and keep still, I tell you, and let me get through with this job. It won't take me more than a minute more."

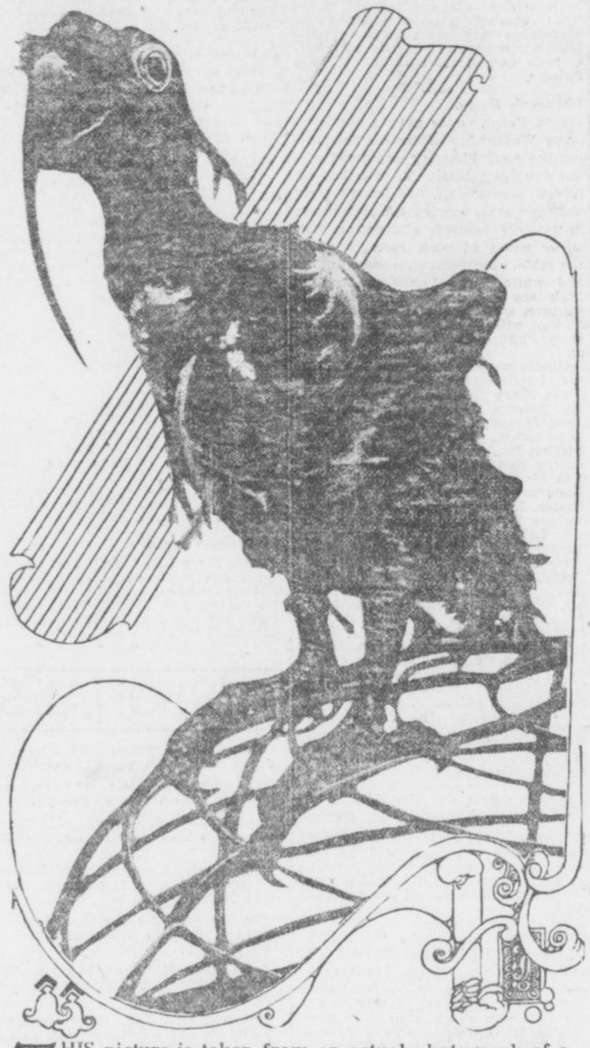
But after a moment Garson's emotion forced him to another appeal.

"Say, Inspector——" he began.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

SOME CHICKEN!

A Parrot 116 Years Old and Not Yet in Cold Storage



THIS picture is taken from an actual photograph of a parrot that is one hundred and sixteen years old, and still has a lively croak. It belongs to an English family, but spent but fifty years of its feathered life in that country. Its other sixty-six years saw it in Brazil, its original home. Although it is almost "sans everything" Polly can sing in quite a lively manner, and is always cheerful. Perhaps therein lies its secret of longevity. Who knows?

Things Worth Remembering

The possibility of using the Cinema for the identification of criminals is being seriously considered by the New York Police Commissioner. It is suggested that five feet of film, costing 70 cents, will suffice to record the peculiarities of dress and carriage of any person whom it is desired to keep under observation. With photographs, finger prints, motion pictures, and Bertillon measurements a man who has been convicted will have his hands full in making his "get-away" afterward.

Stretching across Western Australia is a rabbit-proof fence, said to be the longest in the world. It extends for a distance of 1,200 miles, without a break, except for gates. It begins in the temperate regions and ends in the tropics, and sometimes for nearly 100 miles it never passes a human habitation.

Silver is the best conductor of heat and electricity; copper is a good second.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

YOUR FRIEND IS RIGHT.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 and I have been keeping company with a young man four years. He is 23. I love him more than tongue can tell. I have loved him since the day I first met him. He doesn't show any love for me. Could you tell me if there is any love on his part? I show my love for him, and my friend tells me that is the reason he doesn't show his.

IRENE WATSON.

You are foolish to let him see you care so much for him. Naturally, a man makes no effort to win a girl who lets him see that effort is unnecessary. You are only 17. Give up this man, and the next time you fall in love make an effort to conceal it.

WITHIN HER RIGHTS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with a young lady, whom I have never had the pleasure of seeing in her own home, as her mother is opposed to me. I have known her now for more than 18 months. She is 18. I am 21. She is willing to marry me, only she is afraid of her folks, inasmuch as her mother threatens to have me arrested if I marry her daughter. I have tried every way to win her mother over, but so far I have failed. I can't meet her, as her mother watches her like a cat watches a mouse.

D. D. W.

The mother is wholly within her rights, and as the first and last desire of every mother's heart is for her daughter's happiness, consideration is due her wishes.

If all were favorable, you should not marry, being only 21. Make the most of the assurance that you love each other, and wait a year or two.

Had Every Time.

Smith was a constant worry to his friends. They never knew when to and when not to treat him seriously, since, as he frankly admitted, he delighted in pulling other people's legs.

One day he and Brown met casually in the street, and stopped, as friends often do, to gossip for a while.

"Big blaze—that fire at the factory in Johnson Street last night, wasn't it?" asked Brown.

"Yes," replied Smith, "I went down to have a look at it. And, my word, there were several mighty narrow escapes there, too!"

"Escapes!" cried Brown, excitedly. "But the morning paper said that there was no one in the building."

Smith nodded.

"Oh," he said, "the firemen brought the escapes down with them. So-long, old chap!"

A BACHELOR'S DIARY .:. He Can't Forget That Kiss

By MAX.

JUNE 1.—It is a week since Sally Spencer kissed me, and though I have repeatedly since made occasion to be with her alone she has never repeated the offense.

I have sent for her to come over on the shallowest of excuses. If Manette ate too much or too little, I have feigned an alarm that could only be quieted by having Mrs. Spencer take a look at her, and on such occasions I invariably sent Richards and Sarah Ray out of the room. But it has been to no avail.

I make the confession in no great humility. I am a man and, try as hard as I may, I can not rise above being a man. I make no pretense of being an angel. That claim I leave to the women who tempt us.

I find myself looking at another man's wife with eyes that are not the eyes of the soul. There was a time when it would have been my first impulse to be Sally Spencer's disinterested friend; I will always be that in the future, but I will have to fight myself first.

Only Contempt.

June 2—I have said little about the widow, Diary, but I hope you do not believe it is because I condone her sins, or feel any emotion for her but unmitigated contempt.

She is the vilest of creatures for no other description fits a woman who makes it her sport to undermine some other woman's happiness.

June 3—Life has been compared with a feast, and if there is anything in the comparison, just at present the whole world is partaking of a course that is too highly seasoned to be healthful. That we will all suffer moral indigestion for refusing to pass it by I do not doubt.

We are swinging to a most unhealthy extreme, making public and discussing and devouring topics that are the climax of vulgarity, and we call ourselves progressive because we do it.

The old-fashioned standard of truth to one's self and one's vows seems to be passing away. When one transgresses these days, it is not called a transgression, but disguised under the phrase "Daring to live one's own life."

And when it is said that a woman especially "dares to live her own life," it means that she has dared to violate every civil and moral law. Mrs. Brown has always approved of any woman who dared to live her own life, and has told me many times that it was what she had always done, and always intended to do.

I can see now that it was the modern way of expressing a determination to be governed by no standard or convention. What will become of the world when all women "dare to live their own lives," no man may conjecture.

She buried her first husband, which can not be charged against her, in these days when men are put at the lowest valuation a measure of applause is given any woman who outlives her husband. Should she outlive a dozen, it is a notable deed, but if a man buries as many as two wives Rumor begins to whisper that he killed them by abuse and neglect.

The widow's second husband divorced her because of her infatuation with another woman's husband. She broke up that man's home, and cast him aside when, for pecuniary reasons, her love grew cold.

A Dark Past.

She had, as she expresses it, "dared to live her own life," which means that she refused to let the impulses of her soul be fettered by the shackles of convention. I could express it in plainer language, but plain language, according to Mrs. Brown and her kind, is a mark of a vulgar mind.

I have heard that her second husband's heart was broken because of the scandal, and that it killed him. Of course I do not credit the statement. The men do not die of broken hearts. They love a woman with every bit of their anatomy, but their hearts. This is true, for I have heard soap-box oratorical representatives of the Adorable Sex say so.

June 4—Jack has been gone three days. He writes dutifully and says he will be home soon. He is the sort of a man who will go away with another woman and square it with his conscience by writing faithfully to his wife while away. I have no doubt he took her photograph with him. I always mistrust the man who takes his wife's photograph wherever he goes. So often he uses this mark of devotion as a salve to his conscience for leaving her at home.

June 5—"I think," said Sally, when I called this morning to learn the latest news of her husband, "that my attitude in this matter is a great disapointment to Mrs. Brown. She thought I would rush after Jack, create a scene and a scandal, and that the publicity would wreck my home and give Jack a divorce. I know Jack better than she does. The fact that I give him every opportunity to steal robs the theft of its zest. He is disgusted with her and with himself, and would return any moment I sent for him."

I remembered the kiss. "Don't send for him, Sally. He isn't worth your forgiveness."

Must Take Chances.

"He is as good as any man," she retorted. "He is as good as you are, Max, and, what's more, you know it."

"I hadn't thought of that. Perhaps after all he is better. He had sinned in his acts, and I have sinned in my thoughts. Still, if every man who sins in his thoughts is to be condemned, who among us will escape?

"The woman who marries," she resumed, "must accept all chances of what I am undergoing. There are always other women lurking around to tempt husbands to stray, and they seem endowed with every fascination that would appeal to a man as weak as Jack."

The admission of his weakness seemed disloyal to her, even though he has repeatedly proved it, for she continued rapidly: "Not that he is any weaker than you, Max. I don't want you to think for a moment that you are any better than he. I don't want to give the impression that I believe there is a man living who is better than my husband."

I had the feeling that I had been doubted and attacked when my actions, at least, were innocent, and I resented it.

She had risen as if to suggest it was time I was going. "Sit down," I said, in some temper. "You are hitting all men over my shoulders, taking into no account that it is your own sex that is primarily to blame. Now don't interrupt me"—she had begun to say something about Mrs. Brown—"It is not the bad woman alone who is to blame. It is the good woman, as well; the woman who tempts in her innocence, or ignorance. There's yourself, for instance!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Dainty Lois Meredith Talks on Beneficial Athletics

Lois Meredith's Girlish Beauty.

By LILLIAN LAUFFERTY.

DO you know any little girls? Of course there are quite a few children in the world, and I know numberless young—very young—ladies, but I have just met a very sweet little girl and I am going to introduce her to you. Her name is Lois Meredith; she is eighteen, and is making a great success of the part of Helen Morris in "Within the Law." Off the stage she does not play the part of a sophisticated young lady—or a "Broadway favorite"—but fairly dawns on you in the absolute simplicity of a white middy-blouse, black velvet tam-o'-shanter and the unstudied coiffure effect of a "head sunning over with curls."

Of course the very first question I asked Miss Lois was one anent clothes and her ideal costume.

"I like my middy blouses pretty well," said she, "so well, in fact, that I would sacrifice all the sweeties in the world rather than eat goodies and get too fat to wear sailor-suits. But my ideal costume is Greek drapery. I do love the classical lines of drapery that leave you free and untrammelled, so you can breath, and move naturally, and look natural, too. I'd like to wear layer after layer of chiffon and sandals and give my whole body a chance to breathe. Think how wrapped up and shut away from the health-giving fresh air our poor bodies are. Well, I wear as few layers as I can—dispensing with every unnecessary thing I can—corsets for instance—and I wear white, so I'll feel cool and clean, and I try to give my body a chance to sway and to move freely, so I will feel all through me how good it is to be alive.

No Jewels.

"I don't believe in jewels, either," went on this sensible girl. "If you are pretty, jewels sort of attract attention to themselves and away from you. And if you are not pretty, anyway, showy jewelry makes you conspicuous, and then people notice how unattractive you are."

Dainty little Lois Meredith can afford to believe in "beauty unadorned," but every eighteen-year-old girl and the older sister of twenty ought to ponder the bit of philosophy: "Plain women are always adding some little fancy touches that make you notice how very plain they are!"

"Will you tell me how you spend your day?" I asked. "You must carry out your theory of simplicity in living as well as clothes."

"My theory of living," answered Miss Meredith, "is WORK. For everything worth getting in this world you must work, work, work. To keep well and strong, to look attractive, and to get ahead in the profession you have chosen, you must keep working and striving. In my chosen calling I find that I have to keep developing my brain, so I can do better and better things all the time. I am studying French and music in the interests of my brain.

Plenty of Sleep.

"Then I take care of my body, too. Of course I have to have plenty of sleep, because I am still growing. I have never in all my life been to a restaurant after the theater; most girls would think that an awful sacrifice, wouldn't they? Well then, I get up at about 9, and have a glass of hot water, which is not a bit hard to take when you keep at it, and then for about half an hour I exercise; stretching motions, aesthetic dancing movements and bending over, with my knees held taut and body poised. Sometimes I touch my finger tips to the floor, sometimes I wrap my arms around my legs and see how far down I can bring my head.

"I have one little pet exercise: A very great artist said that I had the most beautiful hand in America! Now I'd like to believe him—even if that would be conceited—but anyway I take care of my hands and try to keep them soft and tapering. I go through an exercise as if I were wringing them and stroking them. I work at my hands as if I were putting on and taking off a new pair of gloves very carefully. I truly can recommend this exercise, for just think what it made Mr. Gibson say to me.

"Would you like to hear about my favorite part?" went on the girl ingenuously. Perhaps it would make a good conclusion to your interview. My favorite part was Modesty in 'Everywoman.' I thought it a compliment to be asked to play that part. I loved doing it—and I felt that the only way to play Modesty was to be modest. That applies to girls everywhere doesn't it? It is always the sweetest part—and it has to be true, or people will know."

And I think that is a very good conclusion for the interview—Modesty and the sweet simplicity and charm that follow in her wake are the best parts for all girls—only they must not be parts. Modesty must be true if you want to be a truly charming girl.

Up-to-Date Jokes

Mr. Winston Churchill has often effectively silenced offensive interrupters. It is related that on one occasion, when addressing a large meeting in the North, he was frequently disturbed by a man who persisted in shouting "Liar! Liar!" every few minutes.

Winston bore with him for some time, but eventually broke off his speech to remark, in gentlest accents:

"If the gentleman at the back of the hall who is so anxious that the audience should know his name will write it down on a slip of paper and hand it to the chairman instead of bawling it at the top of his voice, he will save himself a lot of trouble."

No more was heard of the interrupter for the rest of the meeting.

"That house I have rented from you," said the dissatisfied tenant, "is horribly draughty. When I was sitting in the middle of the room my hair blew all over my face. Can't you do something?"

"Don't you think, sir," replied the house agent, suavely, "it would be easier and cheaper for you to get your hair cut?"

A Paris cabman found a splendid turbot that had been left in his cab. He went at once to the Commissary of Police.

"Very good, my friend," said the latter. "Come back again in a year and a day, and if, in the meantime, the turbot has not been claimed, it shall be yours."

He—And won't you give me a kiss? She—Certainly not. I never kissed a man in my life.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite, and was so nervous I could not sleep; then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work, and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. Hayward Sowers, Cary, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

SYNOPSIS

Gordon Kelly, a mountain boy of Georgia, goes to Atlanta. He becomes the sensation of the baseball world through his marvelous playing, although he said that he had never played a game before arriving in Atlanta. He is bought by the Boston American League Club for $50,000. Kelly incurs the enmity of Forrest Cain, a wealthy ne'er-do-well, at the same time winning the friendship and love of Mildred Deery, daughter of an Atlanta banker. Kelly is hurt in a game and Mildred runs to his assistance. He recovers, leaves the hospital and mysteriously disappears. He is not heard from for months. Mildred admits to herself that she loves Kelly. Her father dislikes the publicity given Mildred's assistance to Kelly on the baseball field. He gets Mildred to agree to go to the mountains. Cain follows Mildred and calls upon her. While Mildred is fishing she suddenly comes upon Gordon Kelly. In the meeting each learns of the other's love. Kelly is sought everywhere by the press. Cain proposes to Mildred and is refused. Kelly meets Cain and the latter tries to shoot Kelly. Elmer saves Kelly's life. Mildred visits Gordon Kelly's home in the mountains and is astonished at the evidences of luxury and refinement she finds there. Gordon is caught in a storm and is made prisoner by four strange men. He is forced to write a letter to Mildred. In it he tries to convey a hint of his whereabouts.

Now go on with the story.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"Did you git a letter fum Mr. Bud Ah mean Mr. Gordon, Mis' Mildred?" asked the colored boy, after the car was fairly in motion.

"Yes, Steve, I'll read it to you; and I'm going back with you in order to tell Mr. Gray, the superintendent, and Mrs. Ward, the housekeeper, about it."

Arriving at the huge granite edifice, Mildred learned that Gray had rounded up every available man on the place and had started off with them on a systematic hunt for the missing man. Asking Steve to tell Mrs. Ward that she was there, Mildred was soon joined by the housekeeper, to whom she imparted the news and then sat down to breakfast with her while Steve ran off to bring back the searching party.

When Gray returned Mildred read the letter she had received to him. If she had allowed him to read it, the level headed superintendent might have discovered the simple cryptogram and headed a party that would have rescued Gordon in jig time, but Mildred clung to the letter as though it was the most precious thing in the world and would not allow it to go out of her hand.

It was decided that, as Gordon had explicitly told them not to search for him at present, it might be fatal to the captive if they disobeyed orders, so matters were allowed to rest as they were, pending the receipt of further news from Gordon.

Gray Is Cautious.

"Somebody has kidnaped him," declared Gray, "and they expect to make a fortune. If that is the case we will be hearing from them mighty quick, and when we do we will make our plans accordingly."

Gray was a big, hearty man, full of action but cautious when caution was required. "In the meantime, Miss Deery," he said, "I would advise you not to worry. But just as soon as you hear from Mr. Gordan again, please let me know at once. I will have the telephone line fixed right away."

Mildred was driven back to the bungalow by Steve. She was happy to think he was safe and well, yet troubled over the vagueness and uncertainty of things. In the course of a few days another letter came and she promptly informed Gray of its contents. It was apparently written in a cheerful spirit, but again admonished them not to search for him.

"That was put in there by orders of the men who are holding him," was Gray's comment when Mildred read the letter to him. "I wish he could slip in some hint of where he is hidden and I'd have him back here in half a day. They must be guarding him closely, Miss Deery, for I know him well enough to know that he would break away if they gave him the slightest opening."

The days went by. Mildred wrote a letter to Gordon and placed it under a stone at the doorsill, but when his next letter was delivered in the dead of night, the messenger did not take away Mildred's letter. In time Farnsworth came to the bungalow, as has already been told, but Mildred did not inform him of all she knew in connection with Gordon's disappearance. She was afraid that the publicity might work some harm to the man she loved. The newspaper men went away and more letters were received. They were all written in the same spirit. Weeks passed. Mildred's mother returned to Atlanta, urging Mildred to return with her, but the girl refused to leave the mountain region. She had not yet informed her mother of her great secret, but her mother had half guessed it.

One day when Mildred felt that she could stand the suspense no longer and was on the point of yielding to Gray's entreaties to start a business-like hunt for the captive, she discovered the simple cryptogram.

"What a little fool I've been," she cried. She had, of course, noticed that Gordon had begun every line of his letters with a capital letter, but the reason for it had entirely escaped her. Now, of course, it was as plan as day and she almost cried at her own stupidity in not solving the riddle long ago. She had saved every letter and was reading them over for the several hundredth time when she made the discovery. She procured pencil and paper and wrote down the instructions.

"Five miles northwest my home," the first letter said, reading down the lines of capital letters. "Three miles due west road meets creek," read the second letter. "Sharp rise hundred yards then down," said third. "Cabin midst copse few trees; four captors," said the fourth. There were two more letters contining further hints.

Mildred called Elmer and told him to bring the runabout, and together they went to the mansion to find Gray. They were told that he had gone to Atlanta on business, but would return next day. On the way home Elmer said:

"Let's not wait for Mr. Gray. Let's find Gordon and rescue him ourselves."

"You foolish boy," replied Mildred. "They would capture us, too, and then what a fine pickle we would be in. We must wait for Mr. Gray and he will take plenty of men with him."

Elmer Would Fight.

"Oh shucks, Mildred," exclaimed the lad. "Gee whiz. I could take your rifle and you could take your revolver and we could sneak up and catch them off their guard and rescue the prisoner. Come on, Mildred; let's do it."

"I'm afraid your spirit is better than your judgment, Elmer," said Mildred with a sigh. "Goodness knows I hate to wait until Mr. Gray gets back, but I don't see what else we can do."

Elmer kept teasing all the way home and when they arrived he brought forth his father's maps of the region and they spent a long time pouring over them trying to figure out the exact spot where they thought Gordon was held a captive.

"Be game, Mildred," said Elmer, returning to the attack. "Only four men are there. We can get the drop on them easy."

"Stop talking nonsense, child, or you'll make me cross with you," cried Mildred. "If your father was here I would willingly let him get a force at the mansion and start out without waiting for Mr. Gray." Shephard was in Chattanooga and would not return for two days. "Run away now, Elmer and leave me alone. I want to think this all out by myself," added Mildred.

It was only Gordon's cheerful letters that had prevented Mildred from going distracted. The situation had been a most peculiar one. In every one of the letters Gordon had told her not to begin a search for him and she had been afraid to ignore his request. Gray had insisted more than once on taking the matter in his own hands, but Mildred had flatly move.

"He is writing these letters to me, Mr. Gray, and they clearly say not to seek him," she told him the last time they had talked the matter over.

"That is because he was forced to write it, otherwise they wouldn't have delivered the letters," replied the superintendent. "If he doesn't turn up soon, Miss Deery, I'm going to take matters on my own hands."

"To Be His Wife."

"Please don't, Mr. Gray," she pleaded. "I am sure something dreadful would happen if you failed, and we would never see him again."

"That's all right, Miss Deery. But in a way I am responsible for his safety. With you it is different."

"Yes, it is different, Mr. Gray," she replied quietly. "I have promised to be his wife."

Gray's eyes opened wide at this piece of information, and Mildred added: "Please say nothing about it. I only tell you so that you can understand how vitally interested I am in his welfare."

Sitting alone on the porch the day she discovered the hidden meaning in Gordon's letters, Mildred went over the whole situation in her mind. Gray was absent. Shephard was absent. Gordon had long expected help. She knew not where to turn. At last she arose from her chair and going to the telephone, called up the mansion and said:

CHAPTER XLI.

WITH the exception of the news of Gordon Kelly that Farnsworth, the newspaper man, had secured from Mildred Deery at her bungalow, and which was published in his paper, the great baseball public had heard nothing of the $50,000 player since the day late in May when he left the hospital in Atlanta and disappeared. The public knew nothing of his palatial home in the Georgia mountains, it knew nothing of his vast wealth, of his peculiar life, of the tragedy of his father's death. It knew nothing of the grand romance of Gordon and Mildred, or of Gordon's conflicts with Forrest Cain, or of his capture and detention by the mountaineers. All the public knew was that Gordon Kelly, the most widely advertised ball player in the world, the man the Red Sox had paid the stupendous sum of $50,000 for, the player every "fan" on the American League circuit was most anxious to see perform, had mysteriously disappeared.

The name of Gordon Kelly had become a byword wherever baseball was played or discussed. Every time a player on any team in any city or town made a home run he was a "Gordon Kelly." Ball players in the big leagues, college ball players, schoolboy players, and even the urchins playing ball in the back lots were always talking about the great player. This continued all summer long all over the country, so that despite the fact that the public did not know what had become of Gordon Kelly, his name was constantly on everybody's lips and he was constantly referred to in the newspapers.

Gave Up Hope.

The Red Sox management practically gave up hope of ever seeing him again before the season was half over but every pay day a check was drawn to his order and mailed to his last known address in Atlanta. The first half of the season was fraught with injuries to the Red Sox players, and if ever they needed Gordon Kelly it was in the first few months of the championship season. But by the first of July the world's champions got going in their proper stride and won game after game in the same impressive manner that had enabled them to mow down their opponents in the season of 1912 and eventually capture the American League pennant and later the highest honors in baseball—the world's championship.

The Red Sox pitchers—the backbone of a team—began "going good" about the first of July. The heavy hitters took confidence and found their "batting eyes" again. The loyal supporters of the team took heart and flocked to Fenway Park to encourage their favorites and "squeeze" hard for victory.

That rabid Boston organization known far and wide as the "Royal Rooters," forgot the fancied grievances it had against the club's management that dated back to the last world's series, and marched to the baseball grounds en masse and with a brass band playing "Tessie." The old-time Boston spirit—the spirit that made Boston the greatest baseball city in the world—returned as the Red Sox forged triumphantly toward the top of the baseball column.

Red Sox Climb.

By the first of August the Red Sox were in third place, after floundering around among the tail-enders for half the saeson. By the first of September the world's champions were in second place, only the Athletics, of Philadelphia, standing between them and the leadership in the American League pennant fight. The men were playing with a dash and vigor that surpassed their 1912 form. Tris Speaker, the great center fielder, led the league in batting and every day he was getting his two or more safe hits, most of them solid drives for two or three bases or home runs. Duffy Lewis, the left fielder, was close up in his stockwork, and his fielding and throwing were better than ever. Harry Hooper in right field was having his best year, batting better than he had ever done before and running the bases like a deer. Heine Wagner, captain of the team and the man most depended upon for defensive work, played with a steadiness that was the marvel of the baseball world. Larry Gardner, the third baseman, fully recovered from the injury to his ankle, began playing again early in June, and from that time on he surpassed himself at bat and in the field. Steve Yerkes was as steady as a rock at second base, and his batting was timely. He seldom failed to deliver when called upon. Clyde Engle, who had to play first base nearly all the year on account of the injury to Manager Stahl's foot, played the bag in a manner that made the other first basemen jealous. The catchers—Carrigan and Cady—were like stonewalls behind the bat, and the pitchers—Wood, Bedient, Collins and O'Brien, with Hall and Leonard to help out—performed wonders. In short, the whole team played like wildfire and stood the other teams on end as fast as they appeared. From the first of July to the close of the season the Red Sox did not lose but one series to their opponents.

White Sox Terrors.

In the meantime, the Chicago White Sox, managed by the clever Jimmy Callahan (with the owner of the club, Comiskey—the "Old Roman"—in the background to help with his sage advice) were going great guns, too. Big Ed Walsh, the celebrated "spitball" pitcher, seemed unbeatable. Scott, Benz and the other twirlers supported the mainstay nobly. Schalk, the "kid" catcher, proved to be one of the best backstops in either league and held the pitching of the entire staff with elegance and grace, while his right arm was a terror to base stealers. Strengthened by the acquisition of Hal Chase, the great first baseman, the entire infield braced, Rath, Weaver and Lord playing as though their lives depended on it. The outfield developed into one of the strongest in the American League. "Ping" Bodie played fine ball and broke fences with his bat instead of talking about it. Collins, the Newton boy, and Mattick, the other outfielders, covered their territory like ten-second men and batted like fiends. This great Chicago aggregation, while its success was not quite as sensational as the Red Sox, plowed steadily ahead, and when the Boston team reached second place the Windy City rivals were close behind them, only a few points separating the two teams in the percentage column.

In the meantime, the Athletics, managed by the shrewd baseball general, Connie Mack, which had been enjoying a sort of baseball buggy ride the first half of the season and had already begun to count their world's series money in their minds, struck a mighty rough road about the first of August and began to "come back," as they say in horse racing circles. They lost game after game. Their pitchers "went bad" and their sluggers failed to slug. Someone stole Frank Baker's bats and he couldn't hit the ball. Two or three unfortunate accidents put some of their most dependable players on the hospital list temporarily. By the first of September the Philadelphia "fans" were in a panic. Manager Connie Mack lost his Mephistophelean smile, and the subdued swearing he indulged in withered the grass in the immediate vicinity of the players' bench whereon he sat during the gloomy, losing games.

Situation Tense.

The pitchers on whom Mack depended, caused him many sleepless nights. Eddie Plank's cross-fire became-crosseyed. Jack Coombs' curves were batted from Dan to Beersheba, and in spite of "Chief" Bender's red-faced twists and black-haired curves, the Indian could not win a game. On September 1 the Athletics were still in the lead, but only two games separated them from the Rex Sox, and the Chicagos were so close up that the Philadelphia players had heart disease every time they looked at a sporting extra. This was the situation when Labor Day rolled around.

But just when the White Elphants, as the Athletics are sometimes called, appeared to be sure of losing the lead they had had held since the opening of the season in April, they took a wonderful brace. They played the Washington team on Labor Day and won both the morning and the afternoon game, knocking the great Walter Johnson from the box in the second session. However, the Red Sox and the White Sox also won both Labor Day games, so the Athletics did not gain a single point on their rivals.

Games Bitterly Fought.

On September 4 the Red Sox arrived in Philadelphia for a three-game series. Every game was bitterly fought, but the Rex Sox won two of them, thereby reducing the lead of the Athletics to one game. In the meantime the White Sox won three straight and the result was that on the evening of September 6 the three leading clubs were nearer together than ever. From that time on it was a desperate fight to the very finish. Interest in the pennant race was tremendous. Crowds packed the ball parks wherever the three teams performed.

To Be Continued To-morrow.

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the thirty-third installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read the 34th installment of ahe great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

Joe Jackson Laid Off; Too Rough on Sunday

CHICAGO, June 2.—President Johnson, of the American League, announced the indefinite suspension of Joe Jackson, the Cleevland batting hero, for his conduct in the double-header with Detroit at Cleveland last Sunday, and declared he would write Manager Birmingham severely censuring him for the affair.

"Cleveland is a peculiar city," said Mr. Johnson. "The trouble provoked by Jackson might have started a riot, and anything approaching that would result in the abolition of Sunday baseball in Cleveland.

"It is only recently that we have been able to play Sunday games there. The failure of Birmingham to realize this and to handle his players so as to prevent danger of disturbances on the field on big days convinces me he is not competent to manage an American League team.

"I have not fixed the length of Jackson's suspension, but his punishment should be severe under the circumstances."

ATLANTA LAD MAY BREAK IN WORLD SERIES

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE city of Atlanta may be represented in the next world's series. Of course several things will have to "go through" to make it turn out this way, but anyhow Milton Reed, Jr., of Atlanta, shortstop of the Davenport Club of the Three I League, has been sold to the Philadelphia Nationals for the largest price ever paid for a Three I League player.

If the Philadelphia team wins the National League pennant—and it might happen—"Milt" will surely be entitled to a slice of the world's championship money. He joins the Phillies August 19, and if he is kept to the end of the season, as of course he will be, he will be in on the big division. And it might just happen that he would get in a game—even if only as a pinch hitter.

* * *

REED will not go to the big leagues for the first time this fall. Though only a kid, he has been tried in a half-hearted way by the St. Louis Nationals. He was with that club when internal ructions had everybody in the air and he got only half a chance. He was too young and too erratic to make a go of it.

This season with Davenport Reed has been going like wildfire.

Here is the way Deacon Davis of the Davenport Democrat and Leader tells of the sale and career of Reed:

Reed will join Red Dooln and his league-leaders August 19. The contract provides for a 60-day option and the Blue Sox management wish to keep the clever Southerner here as long as possible in order that they may have more time to secure a man to fill the position.

Love at First Sight.

Here is the story of Reed's captivity of the heart of Billy Neal, the Philly scout: Billy blew into Peoria Friday. He registered and hied himself immediately to the ball park, where the Hose and Distillers were mixing it.

There he sat, a disinterested spectator, and watched the game until he noticed, when the Hose took the field, the rangy, springy daring short fielder.

"Who can this be," muttered Billy to himself, for he had never heard of Reed before.

Then Billy declares that he enjoyed about an hour and a half as well as he ever did in his life.

"It was fun for me to watch that boy work. He is one of the speediest infielders I have ever seen. He has nerve, 'pep,' confidence—in fact, I think he has everything," said Billy after he had Hayes' name securely affixed to a contract.

After the game the veteran skull-hunter broke for the Fey Hotel and talked to Battling Tom O'Leary (ex-Cracker, by the way) about Reed. Dan referred him to Hayes, and after staying in Peoria Saturday he went to Chicago Sunday and came to Davenport Monday for the conference which resulted as stated above.

Neal Tickled With Deal.

Neal told Hayes while he was here Monday that he had never conducted a deal as long as he had been scouting that gave him the pleasure this one does. "He's a marvel," is the way he expressed it.

According to their custom the local club officials refuse to divulge the price paid for Reed. Jim sits tight, grins appreciatively and says nothing about the price, but he has a habit of slipping ball players up every year. All he murmurs is this: "We got our own price for him."

Reed played some college ball and started his professional career in the Cotton States. Here he attracted the attention of a Cardinal scout and was purchased by the St. Louis Club in the fall of 1911. He was sold in the spring without a try-out to the Springfield Club, where he stayed until August 15 last year when he was sold to the Hose for $500.

Early this spring he was in fine form, but for a few weeks after the season opened he was handicapped by a bad "charley-horse." During the last month he has hit his stride and has been burning up the league since that time.

* * *

IT is understood that the price paid for Reed was $2,700. If so, the Davenport Club gathered in a nice profit on the deal.

Reed has been a promising ball player ever since he was a bit of a kid. His work with Marist was sensational. He has always been a wonderful hitter.

Wife a Coney Fan, Man's Divorce Plea

A good time until 4 o'clock every morning at Coney Island while he had to remain at home to nurse the baby and cook his own breakfast, was the allegation made by W. T. Gould in his petition for divorce against Mrs. Melia R. Gould, filed with the Superior Court Wednesday.

Gould said his wife led a gay life in New York while he was left alone in their flat.

Augusta Likely Will Win Commission Rule

AUGUSTA, June 25.—Augusta will vote on the commission government plan Saturday. It is believed the movement will win.

Members of the present city administration and their friends do not wish commission government this time. They wanted it last year when not in power. The present anti-administration people did not want it last year.

HEINE.

The afternoon was waning fast
When from the baseball yard there passed
A youth whose heart was sad and sore,
And at his boss these words he swore:

("————")

"Try not that stuff!" John Evers said,
"'Twill bring a fine upon your head!"
He beat it toward the shower bath
And said in accents full of wrath:

("————")

And as he beat it from the place
He answered with a smiling face:
"Although I am the worst of chumps
I have not said unto the umps:

("————'")

We have it from various sources that Prof. Zim speaks two languages fluently —Bronx and Profane.

We note by the sporting papers that the high cost of living has hit ball players. Boyish pranks on the Cub menu card are now quoted at $200 per throw.

There are thirty-third degree fight fans in our midst, but it takes one who has been raised (or lowered) to the nth degree to become enthused over the news that Carl Morris and Marty Cutler are engaged to perform an alleged battle.

Reading reports from St. Louis and remembering what happened to Jim Scott, one is led to suspect that Orvie Overall has been riding a motorcycle.

Possibly H. Zim has been celebrating his alma mater's victory over Yale on water. At the same time, it would be hard to imagine H. Zim celebrating a victory on water.

CATFISH.

(Being inside baseball which C. Dryden has been kind enough to hand to us.)

Al Bridwell smiled at Mister Klem;
He merely looked and said:
"Ahem!"
Or some such break as that he chanced to make,
And Klem remarked in accents hard
"You beat it from this baseball yard—
I'm simply chasing you for old-time's sake."

BURNS LIKELY TO SUFFER FROM CANADIAN FIGHT LAW

CALGARY, ALBERTA, June 25.—The charge of manslaughter against Tommy Burns will not be dropped as a result of yesterday's verdict in the Pelky case. The finding of the jury that the bout was a prize fight will give the prosecution a powerful lever against the promoter, and the Canadian law makes the promoter guilty of manslaughter in a fatal prize fight.

GOVERNOR, IN HIS FAREWELL MESSAGE, ASSAILS LABOR UNIONS

New Legislature Is Asked to Provide for a State Highways Commission

Double-Tracking of Railways Owned by the State Is Urged by Brown.

The farewell message of Governor Brown follows:

To the Genera. Assembly:

Upon your assumption of the responsibilities of legislation for the welfare of the people of this great Commonwealth, I extend to you a cordial greeting, with the heartfelt hope that our Almighty Guide will lead your minds into the channels of wisdom and deliberation. I can not doubt that the people have shown careful discernment in the choice of members of both of your houses, hence it is with confidence that I lay before you the views which I deem worthy your consideration, recommending their enactment into laws which I believe will enhance the well-being of the State.

These views affecting the proper use of the ballot—the freeman's inherited right—the safety of person from disease and casualty, the economical, but judicious, expenditure of the people's money and the equitable levying of taxes for collecting the same, and other matters are such as experience and observation in the Executive Office have convinced me are necessary for the protection of the people and their progress on orderly lines.

I can not refrain from premising with the statement that the words "Justice" and "Equality" are the bases upon which is built our governmental structure. Without justice government is a mockery, without equality we can not have a republic. Therefore, if we be patriots, our life lines, our ambitions and endeavors cluster around these fateful words.

Registration Laws Defective.

First for consideration, I call your attention to the serious defects and unnecessary barriers in the registration law now upon the statute book. The requirement that the registration lists shall be closed six months in advance of regular elections is more drastic than that in any other State in the Union, and imposes unnecessary hardships upon the country people of this State.

The same barrier to franchise rights for the choice of State and County officers prevails in only a less degree against the voters in the cities. Yet, in their municipal elections, the latter are allowed as short a time as they desire for registration. With some of them this limit is less than 30 days. Hence, I earnestly recommend that your honorable bodies make such changes in the registration laws as well protect all voters alike in their proper rights for exercising the franchise.

Under the present law upward of 20,000 white voters in Fulton County alone are deprived of the right to vote by the operation of the law in question. And the total number of disfranchised throughout the State exceeds 75,000. The continuance of the law, as framed, on the statute book will bring reproach upon the State.

Farm Credit System.

The farm credit system which has wrought such extraordinary results for good to the dwellers upon the farms in Germany and some other European countries has attracted wide attention within the past twelve months in this country.

I attended a conference of the Governors at the White House, called by President Taft, in December, 1912, for the purpose of discussing this system. Experts appointed by the United States Government and by the Governors of some of the States are now investigating this subject in foreign countries. Georgia is represented in this investigation.

That our people may have direct information uopn this subject, I recommend that your honorable bodies appoint a joint committee to whom shall be added about three or five other citizens of Georgia to be named by the Governor, for the purpose of securing and placing before our people the most available plan of securing for our farmers at the lowest rates of interest such money as they may need for the conduct of their affairs.

When we realize that in Germany a farmer can borrow money at a rate of interest not exceeding 5 per cent, whereas in Georgia the gross rate paid runs from 12 per cent sometimes to even 20 per cent, the importance of this subject can be readily realized as being paramount.

Near Beer Tax Evasion.

The law providing for the collection of a license tax for the sale of near beer is so drawn that the payment of this tax has been delayed or evaded by very many dealers.

To prevent excuses for delay in paying this tax in future, I recommend that you place the duty of its collection upon some of the county officers with proper compensation therefor and also provide adequate penalties for failure to make prompt payment.

Prison Commission.

I would suggest that the Prison Commission be given authority and directed to inspect jails. It is more important that persons detained merely for trial be properly cared for than that those already convicted of crime be treated well.

Many good women have urged me to advocate the enactment of a law providing for the inspection by women of those quarters occupied by female prisoners. I deem the suggestion a good one and well in keeping with the demands of actual propriety and broad humanity, and as such commend it to you.

In this connection I will state that it has been proposed in some circles to restore the practice of whipping female convicts in order to maintain discipline. I respectfully suggest that such a return to a practice semi-barbarous in its nature would not be in keeping with the enlightened spirit of our modern civilization.

The point has been raised in the public press and in some other circles that the State ought to allow moderate wages to convicts in the penitentiary, such wages to be paid to the families of these convicts whose protector and provider the State holds in confinement. I scarcely think that we are ready to take such a step; but in the event it be seriously considered, I respectfully suggest that, inasmuch as the convict is immured because of his taking the life of another, or of some damage done to others, if wages be allowed by the State they should be paid mostly, if not entirely, to the family whom the convict has deprived of its protector and supporter.

Charge to Juries.

Experience having shown that in capital cases trial juries from time to time have requested the presiding judge to recharge them upon certain points where their memory had failed to retain the instructions in his charge, I respectfully suggest that it be required that in all capital cases the presiding judge shall, after reading his charge to the jury, hand a copy of it to the foreman to be taken into the jury room for consideration in their deliberations.

It is a known fact that a number of the trial judges of this State, after conviction by juries, pass sentences in conformity with the law and then suspend such suspension to last during the pleasure of the judge. Although this procedure by these judges has been declared unlawful by the Supreme Court, yet the practice is persisted in. I do not assert that this practice is in itself against public policy, but undoubtedly it should be in conformity with the law if it is to be continued. Hence, I recommend that your honorable bodies enact such legislation upon this subject as your wisdom suggests.

District Agricultural Schools.

The District Agricultural and Mechanical Schools having been taken into the University system of the State, I respectfully suggest that the co-operative relationship between the State University, through the State College of Agriculture, and the above district schools be made closer than they have heretofore been. To this end I suggest that the Board of Trustees of the State College of Agriculture appoint at least one member from its Board of Trustees to be an ex-officio member of the Board of Trustees of the District Agricultural and Mechanical School in his Congressional District; whereby each of said district schools will have thereon one trustee of the State College of Agriculture. Such member should be required to attend the annual commencement exercises of the district school to which he is assigned and should have full privilege and authority to act with the Board of Trustees of the district school at that and all other meetings of the said district school, and should make to the trustees of the State College of Agriculture, after said commencement exercises, a full report of the conditions, progress, etc., of the said District Agricultural and Mechanical Schools.

The Board of Trustees of the State College of Agriculture should also be clothed with power to exercise such authority over the district schools as will cause them to conform to a general plan.

State University Support.

The demands of modern civilization are trending toward the greatest development of the human mind. That State which trains the brains of its young manhood and womanhood to the exercise of the highest powers is the State which by natural process takes and holds the leadership over her civic sisters. The strongly developed mental faculties of a people have greater weight in the control of world powers than the broadsides of battleships. Genius makes conquests more abiding than are made by guns, and the strength in the trained brains of a people holds greater security than strength in the most elaborately constructed forts.

And while you are appropriating money and enacting laws for the more efficient and extended cultivation of the soil of our State, hold ever in mind that the cultivation which will bring the greatest crops and choicest fruits is the cultivation of the minds of her youth.

Hence, I urge you to build up as rapidly as Georgia's resources will admit the State University which our forefathers created and which, with its branch colleges and other high educational institutions, can develop the mental powers of our young people of both sexes for keeping this great State abreast of her most ambitious rivals.

Before passing from this subject I can not refrain from the statement that the charm of the University of Georgia is its democracy. From a close observation of the conduct of its affairs for the past four years, I am prepared to assert with pride that the son of the poorest parents in the State has equal consideration by the faculty with the son of the richest.

Merit and application open the gates of opportunity to all alike, and it is especially pleasing to note that the citizens of Athens extend impartial kindness to all the students regardless of rank or wealth.

The State, therefore, has a selfish interest, and pardonably so, in every dollar she appropriates to maintain to highest efficiency this, her great braintrainer.

School of Technology.

It is impossible to measure the value to the State of the School of Technology. The high standard which its graduates hold is finding its reflex in the technical development of the Commonwealth from the mountains to the seaboard. The modern demands for education of this character in the architectural and mechanical development of our people are so imperative that we can not afford to let this great institution of learning lose aught of the high grade of efficiency now characterizing it.

It undoubtedly is true that this school has lost several of its leading instructors by reason of the inadequate compensation they received. I, therefore, urge you to appropriate the sum of $10,000 as an addition to the annual maintenance fund of the said school, making same immediately available.

I also recommend the addition of $7,500 each to the annual maintenance funds of the Georgia Normal School and the Georgia Normal and Industrial School.

Payment of School Teachers.

In my annual message to your predecessors last year I stated that the condition of the treasury had permitted the payment of but 10 per cent of the amount due for expenses of the common schools. I regret to report that, the appropriations having increased in greater proportion than the State's income, it has been impossible to pay any amount as yet of the common school appropriation for this year.

During the past three months we have made inquiry into the question of the payment of teachers; that is, we have sought to get the truth of conditions as they are.

The result of the investigation proves that the evil has not been exaggerated by those who have decried it.

Briefly, we found that approximately one-third of all the teachers in the public schools of the State in 1912 were forced to wait from two to twelve months for their pay, or, in lieu of waiting, had to discount their claims at from 8 to 25 per cent.

A great proportion of those who received prompt payments were paid with funds borrowed by local boards of education, who were required to pay from 6 to 12 per cent for the money.

Concretely, we estimate from the reports received that advances made to boards or teachers during 1912 amounted to approximately $2,000,000, and that these advances cost at least $75,000 in interest or discount.

Loss of Efficiency.

Thus it is clear that the waste in money due to delayed remittances from the State is great, and there must be an equal loss in efficiency resulting from the indifference fostered by the faulty and difficult method of financing the schools.

With $1,000,000 more revenue available during the spring and summer months the State would be able to make prompt monthly remittances to the school systems, and thus would practically overcome the difficulties now labored under, and growing worse.

Therefore, I urge upon you the necessity for taking such steps as will enable the Executive Office to make prompt monthly payments as due on the appropriation to the public schools.

The information gathered as the result of the investigation above referred to is on file in the Executive Office subject to your wishes.

Economy in Appropriations.

While there has been a gratifying increase in the taxable valuations of the property in the State, yet the demands for expenses to maintain schools and other educational institutions and the civil list require more than the present income of the State. Hence, I urge your honorable bodies to exercise great discernment and care in the matter of appropriating the people's money; and that, so far as can be made practicable without militating against the actual needs of the State's institutions and the conduct of the government, you exercise the strictest economy.

Lawlessness in Certain Counties.

Within the past few months certain lawless persons have posted notices in Forsyth, Dawson, Cobb and other counties, warning all negroes to move from those counties under penalty of destruction of their homes and lives. Several of such threatened outrages have been perpetrated through the dynamiting of houses, besides the burning of one store.

I am reliably informed that quite a number of farms in Forsyth County have been practically abandoned this year for lack of labor, which has fled before these threats. The State can not tolerate such a condition of affairs. She can not allow even a just resentment against lawless individuals to take the shape of wholesale intimidation of labor necessary for the conduct of farms and industrial enterprises.

There is no reason why farms should lost their productive power and why the white women of this State should be driven to the cook stoves and wash pots simply because certain people blindly strike down all of one class in retaliation for the nefarious deeds of individuals in that class. The application of the law is to the individual who violates it, and all who are law-abiding are entitled to and must have the protection of the law.

I, therefore, recommend the enactment of a statute which will meet the situation above indicated, and punish all who would impair the powers of honest labor. The penalty for dynamiting or burning residences should be fixed at $500 for each offense, and rewards of such amounts, not greater than $200 per person, should be authorized for the arrest, with proof to convict, of every one guilty of posting threatening notices or using other measures for intimidating people and driving them from their homes.

Railroad Commission Reduction.

Unnecessary offices which levy additional taxes upon the people should be abolished. It is against public polity to maintain sinecures. I, therefore, respectfully recommend to your honorable bodies the reduction of the membership of the Railroad Commission from five members to three.

When it is considered that only one member of the five is required by law to devote his entire time to the service of the office, and that the larger number of members makes that body cumbersome, as well as needlessly expensive, it is patent that it is to the State's interest to reduce the number of Commissioners, and also to dispense with the office of special attorney for the Railroad Commission.

I will add that the Interstate Commerce Commission has assumed the authority to raise intrastate rates when it seems that these rates injuriously affect interstate rates. The lower courts have upheld that Commission in this action. The Supreme Court of the United States has practically upheld this position in a recent decision, hence it would appear that a blow has been struck the Railroad Commissions of the States. In such event it would clearly be a waste of the people's money to maintain as many as five members on this Commission for the purpose mainly of supervising the occasional building of depots and the collection of statistical information.

Furthermore, it is well known that the number of members of this Commission was increased in 1907 for the purpose of installing what were termed "port rates." Yet, although the advocates of "port rates" have been in the majority on the commission from September, 1907, to June, 1909, and from November, 1911, to this date, there has been no effort made by the Commission to even promulgate "port rates." Hence, as "port rates" have been proven to be a campaign theory, which it is impracticable to make effective, it is manifestly contrary to the public interest to maintain five members on this board at the expense of the taxpayers.

Criminal Law Reform.

Inasmuch as our penal laws have undergone little change during the past half century, it might be timely for you to make inquiry looking to amendments necessitated by changed conditions and modern developments.

I wish to direct your attention to one important change that is needed. In misdemeanor cases where prison penalties with alternative fines are imposed leave should be given for payment of the fine, or the pro rata portion of the fine due at any time before the completion of the prison or chaingang sentence. In most court jurisdictions it is held that once the fine alternative is rejected, and the period for accepting it elapsed, the fine can not be paid except by commutation from this office. In no case will they pro rate the penalty, deducting, as they do in cities, for the period of time served by the prisoner.

This is manifestly unjust, amounting to a special penalty on poverty and misfortune. A great many persons are unable to raise the amount of the alternative fine when it is imposed upon them, but later do raise it, or a sufficient amount, allowing for the time served to meet the intent of the sentence imposed. The only way they can get relief is by coming to the Executive Office with applications for clemency, which puts them to unnecessary expense and this office to much trouble, all of which could be obviated by your providing an automatic method for prisoners to pay their fines at any time before sentence is completed.

Pardon Clerk Recommended.

Applications for executive clemency are becoming more and more burdensome on the Executive Office. During the past eighteen months this office has been forced to consider nearly 1,000 of such appeals. Outside the assistance rendered by the Prison Commission, the Executive Office each week is forced to read and answer scores of letters, and see or otherwise deal with scores of callers relating to such applications. Inasmuch as the Constitution places full responsibility in these matters on the Governor, he is in duty bound to examine each record and to make such investigations and inquiries in addition to those made by the Commission as he thinks proper.

The result is that this work takes up a large proportion of the time of the Executive Office, precluding attention to other important business. In addition to this, lack of time makes it impossible for this office to pursue investigation of many cases as thoroughly as their importance demands.

Therefore, I recommend that you provide the Governor with a pardon clerk, or attorney, who shall devote his entire time to assisting in handling applications for executive clemency.

Better Tax Assessing.

Again permit me to repeat the recommendation made in my general message of last year, and previous ones during a former administration, relative to the urgent need of a better method of assessing property for taxation.

All who have studied the question agree that if property now escaping taxation, and other property bearing less than its equitable burden, were required to contribute their just part to the support of the State government our revenues would be augmented to the extent of the deficit, which is now of serious consequence.

It is but simple honesty to demand that all property be required to bear its just share of the expenses of the government which gives it protection. Therefore, I recommend that you amend the tax law so as to provide a method of assessment for, and equalizing of, taxes more just than now prevails.

Compulsory Arbitration Necessary.

During the fall of last year there occurred a strike by the employees of the street car company in Augusta, and another strike by certain employees of the Georgia Railroad, which, for a number of days, prevented the public from having the benefit of the operation of these common carriers.

By the census of 1910, the city of Augusta had a population of 41,040 people, and the counties served by the Georgia Railroad had an aggregate of 582,182. These figures give an idea of the widespread wrong which these striking employees committed.

These two corporations were chartered by the State for the purpose of conducting commerce and the carriage of passengers. The primary object of their charters was service to the public. Consequently, when the charters were granted and these roads were built a contract was virtually entered into by the owners of these properties and the State whereby the former bound themselves to perform the duties of common carriers for the public, and the latter bound herself to protect them in the peaceable performance of those duties.

Not one word was said in those charters giving the owners the right to suspend operation of the roads to the detriment of public convenience, or giving the employees the same right. So long, therefore, as either of those companies attempts to perform the duty it assumed the State is under obligation to use extreme force, if necessary, to protect it in thus serving the public.

WARNS OF PERILS OF ANARCHY

Some of the happenings in Georgia during the present year have trended inevitably toward bringing your Constitution into contempt.

It is for you, therefore, to say whether you are going to surrender this State to anarchy or whether you are going to preserve it for law.

Compulsory arbitration should be required and neither the management nor the employees of a public service corporation should be permitted to paralyze the powers of the public. As to the killing in Augusta of the three men, who by their deeds defied the militia, the suppression of anarchy is the right and duty of all and there comes times when they must shoot it to death just as they shoot down foreign invaders.

Upward of two millions of people in Georgia will look with no patience upon the continuance of a condition which leaves their basic rights in life at the mercy of the star chamber of the labor union.

The laws of Georgia should be deliberately framed and so broad and just as to inspire confidence and make it the proudest boast to say: "I, too, am a Georgian."—From Governor Brown's Message.

"Labor Trust" Scored.

Furthermore, in the amended Railroad Commission law, as embodied in Sections 2663 and 2664 of the Code of Georgia, the Railroad Commission is authorized to require all common carriers and other public service companies under its supervision "to establish and maintain such public service and facilities as may be reasonable and just." Also, "to order and compel the operation of sufficient and proper passenger service when in its judgment inefficient or insufficient service is being rendered the public or any community."

Again, it has been very aptly said by one writing on the status of the State in relationship to the common carriers:

"The power to fix rates and charges for transportation is an attribute of sovereignty, because in operating a public highway a transportation corporation exercises the power of a sovereign. This power over public highways constructed for public use to accommodate public travel and secure public convenience is a matter of public concern and is absolutely essential to government."

Hence, it necessarily follows that any person or combination of persons who obstructs, intimidates or otherwise prevents the operation of the common carriers strikes a blow at the interests of the public and puts his or their will in conflict with the mandate of the sovereign.

Augusta Strike Rebellion.

There is no escape, therefore, from the conclusion that those employees of the street car company in Augusta and of the Georgia Railroad put themselves in a state of open rebellion to the laws of Georgia. They ignored the cardinal tenet of republican government, viz.: "There shall be equal rights to all, special privileges to none," and arrogated to themselves the exercise of special privileges for settling their quarrels with their respective managements at the expense and serious inconvenience of the public, and in a manner which embodied defiance of the law which requires all dwellers in the State having differences which they can not peaceably adjust to submit them to the State's courts.

Again, their acts in leaving the service of the employing companies, and in virtually encouraging the formation of mobs to intimidate and personally assault those citizens whom these common carriers induced to take the places they had vacated, that the carriers might obey the law which created them, was logically a claim which can be expressed in these words: "This is your property, but it is my job on it. I and my partners, the union, will defend our mutual rights to exclusive ownership of the position which we hold on your property. We will determine for you whom you shall hire and whom you shall not hire, and what wages you shall pay. While it is true that we have not invested a dollar in this public service utility and you have invested millions in it, yet we have vested rights in these positions, rights which we have acquired by usurpation, and we will hold them, while defying the laws of the State and subjecting the public to serious inconvenience and loss, even against you. On your property chartered to serve the public we are supreme over you, supreme over the public, supreme over the law. The union label carries more authority than does your Great Seal of State."

"Labor Exacts Tax."

In considering the status of the public service corporations and their employees, there is one factor which can not be ignored. This is embodied in the following words found in the last annual report of the Railroad Commission of Georgia:

"In 1908, the railroads operating in Georgia employed in Georgia, 34,809 persons; in 1912, they employed 39,691.

"The wages paid these 39,691 employees in 1912 exceeded the wages paid the 34,809 employees in 1908, $5,771,104.93 more than in 1908. This, however, was to a larger number of employees. The individual wage scales show that had the number of employees for 1912 been kept the same as in 1908, they are being paid $3,668,725.21 more than in 1908.

"In other words, the 34,809 employees in 1908 received $3,668,725.21 more in 1912, which is an average increase to each railroad employee in Georgia in 1912 over 1908 of more than $105 fer annum.

"The Commission has taken ten trunk line roads in the State, to dit: the Southern, the Seaboard, the Atlantic Coast Line, the Louisville and Nashville, the Georgia, Southern and Florida, the Georgia Railroad, the Atlanta and West Point, the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, the Central of Georgia and the Western and Atlantic and their wage accounts show that they paid in 1912, to the same number of employees as in 1908, in wages, $2,604,794.90 more than in 1908.

"The individual wage scale further shows that by far the largest increase in wages has been paid to employees belonging to labor unions, such as engineers, firemen, conductors, train hands, etc."

In other words, while the average increase to each of the 34,809 employees in 1912 over 1908 was $105.00 per annum, the average increase to each member of a labor union was larger by far, in some instances, doubtless approximating $300 or more.

Holds Unions Menace.

Hence, we are brought race to face with the fact that these unions, or combinations of employees, not only on public service corporations but, as is generally known, on practically all other corporations have forced their wages up above those received by workmen in all other departments of life who have not formed these aggressively militant combinations. Tens of thousands of other citizens who are not in these unions, therefore, are confronted by the fact that the unions are levying a tax upon them to the extent that they are forcing from the employers an inequitable proportion of the wages paid to the general classes in the State.

If the State not only authorizes these unions, or combinations, to exact higher wages than others receive, but also permits them by authority of law or by winking at their violations of it to hold up the general public and rob it of the facilities for transportation, then she can not claim the right to protect any farmer or other person employing labor against his employees who might strike and proclaim to him that nobody else should work his crop for him; that if he hired any other employees they would burn his dwelling and barns, and, if needs be, kill him and his new employees to establish their supremacy over him and his property.

And if the State says to owners of railroads, factories, etc., "You shall pay tax on this property which you have created or bought, but another class shall control it. I hold you responsible for keeping it in condition for safely serving the public, but I allow them the privilege of wrecking it, or of deprivng the public of the use of it," then how can she protect a farmer or any other citizen in the right to control his property?

Settlement of Strikes.

The same courts established by the Constitution and composed of judges elected by the people and jurors chosen from the people are open to the members of labor unions on the same guarantee of equality as they are to farmers and all other classes in the State, and no method of settlement of quarrels by labor unions which results in inconvenience and damage to the public should be tolerated.

Again, upon this point, it is generally understood that when the members of one of these unions strike against the employing company, the members of the same union on other companies are assessed to support the strikers until the strike is ended. If this be true, the organization in question could assess one-tenth or one-fortieth of the amount and employ counsel to take the cause of the controversy into court and could have justice secured without damaging any of the interests of the public.

Or, if the strikers are not thus supported by their brother members, they could assess themselves a sum insignificant beside the gross amount of wages lost during the period of the strike and could have their case adjudicated in the courts without inflicting damage upon the unoffending public.

In either case they would go before judges and juries of their fellow citizens in precisely the same manner as every other one is required and compelled to do; and it is impossible for all other classes to concede that the members of labor unions have any preferential privileges suggesting, if not actually applying the process of anarchy when they—the masses—are required to submit to the process of law.

Justice Not Measured by Votes.

The mere fact that the laborers on a public service utility or in a factory have more votes than the owners of these properties have, has no bearing on the legal status of the case. Justice is not measured by the number of votes any more than by the weight of dollars. Each party is under the law. Each is entitled to the protection of its own rights in court. Neither is entitled to interfere with the rights of the other either in court or out of court.

It should be further borne in mind in this connection that it is primarily the poor people who are subjected to inconvenience and damage by the acts of strikers. In Augusta, for example, the rich could use their own conveyances or hire others for the purpose of coming into town and going out to their homes, but the poorer classes in some instances were compelled to walk two miles each way to reach their places of employment and to return home; whereas, had these striking employees of the street car company abstained from the unlawful acts they committed in preventing the operation of that public utility, these laborers in the humbler ranks of life could have come from and returned to their homes at trifling cost. And the poorer people at the stations on the Georgia Railroad were subjected at many points, to great privations which the rich were able to protect themselves against.

Therefore, in such cases it is the striker, who, in his blind recklessness, puts his feet in the bread tray of the poor man and interferes with or deprives him of the right to live—the cardinal right of humanity.

Public Has Rights.

Summing up the status of a strike by employees on a public service corporation, we can not fail to know that there are more than two parties to such strikes. There is a third party, the public, which is subjected to unmerited and unnecessary inconvenience and loss. And above all, there is a fourth party, viz, the State, whose Constitution the strikers have ignored and whose laws they have trampled under foot. Concerning this fourth, and greatest, party, I will add:

The criss which a strike on a public service corporation brings upon the masses of the people is not only a menace to their power to procure the necessities of life, but is also a challenge to the very sovereignty of the State in that it arrogates to itself the power to prevent the railroads from performing the special functions for which the State granted their charters, viz, those of being common carriers of persons and property.

There is no power in Georgia greater than the power of the State herself, and that power holds mastery over and gives direction to every other power which she permits within her borders. She is supreme in potential activites, whenever she finds it needful to exert them. She exacts allegiance and will not divide it. She ordains one process for all, and holds any rival process as rebellion. She is no respecter of persons in the enforcement of her laws.

State Greater Than Man.

It is needless then to say that the State would not permit the management to shut down the operation of a street car line or a railroad. It is manifest, therefore, that the acts of the employees in preventing such operation is equally indefensible, equally condemnable, and that they should be just as inflexibly held accountable to the laws of the State. No man, no combination of men, is greater than the State and her laws.

I have stressed the views herein advanced because the object lessons given by the striking employees of the street car company in Augusta and of the Georgia Railroad have been a practical service of notice by the labor union to the State of Georgia that its law within her borders is greater than her law; that the allegiance of its members to it is more binding than the allegiance they owe to her.

The Executive Office has not made this issue; the State of Georgia has not made it. The labor union has openly and recklessly thrown down the gauntlet. The State, therefore, can not shrink from her duty to her Constitution and her people.

Public Welfare Threatened.

It is a matter of current note that the power of the labor union to hurt the general public and to terrorize public men anxious to retain offices of honor and trust has been found in the fact that in several communities it votes solidly in blocks of scores or hundreds for those who cater to it and against those who refuse to bow to its demands; but I call your attention to the fact that, besides multitudes in the cities and towns whose interests are jeopardized by its exactions, there are upward of 200,000 voters in the rural portions of this State whose welfare can only be protected by holding the members of the labor union to the same non-interference with the rights of others and the same accountability to law which they admit as governing themselves. They will certainly claim that the labor union men, individually and collectively, are no better and have no greater rights than they.

I will add that it is no answer at all to say that labor can not get its rights in any other way than by a strike and boycott. The courts are as open to the labor union man as to the farmer, and there is not the slightest reason why the latter should be required to settle his difference in the State's way, which injures no third party, and that the labor union man be left free to damage everybody else while settling his difference by a strike.

He, therefore, who would remain in public life would do well to merit the approval of those myriads of law-abiding and peace-loving citizens beside whose numbers the labor union's is a trifle.

Calls It "Labor Trust."

Finally, on this subject, I will observe that the trend of the laws of the present day is to the suppression of combinations, generally styled trusts, organized for the restraint of trade. These trusts are condemned by law because they endeavor to force from business all competitors save those in their guild and to exact out of the people unduly high prices for products they handle.

Yet, while it is a matter of public note that the labor trust is the most widespread and aggressively exacting trust in America, politicians pander to it, statesmen stand in awe of it, and the public seems helpless in its grasp. Why? Because it votes in blocks of thousands in almost every State in the Union. It is composed of allied organizations which stand as one man against all other elements of society.

Recent events have shown that some of the leaders of one of these organizations have been sentenced by a United States Court to imprisonment for crimes or violence against those who did not yield to their exactions, and the members have bailed them out and reelected them to high offices in the organization. Such a development is appalling to every lover of law. Yet it is an object lesson which tells more vividly than words that the labor union holds itself as being higher than the law.

Unions in Minority.

The labor unions have but a small minority of the people of Georgia, yet, by combinations which work through strikes and kindred methods, they are aggressively levying a toll upon all the other elements of our citizenship. In other words, they have organized a trust and demand that all other people buy labor at whatever price they choose to put upon it—and that price is higher than other workmen in like occupations receive and higher by far than the people have ever paid before. And contemporaneously, they are endeavoring to force from employment all similar workmen who do not join their orders. To attempt, as non-union men, to compete with them as laborers means to be treated with open contumely, attended sometimes by personal violence. To hire non-union men means for employers to be boycotted and not infrequently to suffer serious damage to their property.

Equal Oportunity Choked.

Therefore, as the labor unions have combined against all other classes in their determination to defeat the equality of opportunity assured by the laws of the State the necessity is forced all other classes to stand together in the refusal to concede to the unions the preferential privileges they are endeavoring to exact for themselves alone. And, as the unions have their passwords, the password of all other citizens should be: "The Law."

It is not improper here for me to declare that not all of the members of the labor unions are wilful violators of law. A very large percentage of them love their State and would not knowingly do any one an injustice. Yet they are the victims of a system which is breeding anarchy, which has already put the State's Constitution in contempt, which has relentlesly wronged hundreds of thousands of their fellow citizens who have not offended them, which, in plain words, has applied lynch law methods to milions of dollars worth of property. I pass no harsh criticism on them, but every person who reverences the law must condemn the reckless disregard of the rights of the public which has characterized their leaders. And the State must, with unmistakable clearnes, not only condemn these acts, but must force the doers of them as clearly to know that she will not suffer such occurrences to be repeated.

"Law Should Protect."

It is a cardinal principle of civilization that law-abiding people should be protected in the enjoyments of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. The State does not interfere with her orderly citizens in the possession of these rights, and it is the intent of her Constitution that no one within her borders shall be permitted so to interfere.

I have no more interest in this matter than has any other average citizen of Georgia; but, as her Chief Executive, whose duty to obey her laws by enforcing them is supreme over every ambition and personal interest, I have noted the recurring instances of open contempt of her Constitution, of inconvenience and damage recklessly inflicted upon multitudes of her citizens by one class, and of brutal assaults upon working men who were engaged in obeying her laws and serving the people by operating the public utilities which she had chartered and whose operation she had commanded, and I would be unworthy of the confidence with which the electorate has honored me should I fail to lay these facts before you and call upon you to enact such statutes as will force all classes and all individuals to equal allegiance to the State and equal obedience to her laws.

Upwards of two millions of people in Georgia will look with no patience upon the continuance of a condition which leaves their basic rights in life at the mercy of the star chamber of the labor union.

Compulsory Arbitration.

Under the conditions I have portrayed it has been made the duty of the State, therefore, to protect her citizens from such unlawful happenings in the future. Compulsory arbitration should be required by law, and neither the management nor the employees of a public service corporation should under any circumstances be permitted to paralyze or otherwise interfere with the powers of the public for the transportation of persons and property, or for any other service for which the corporation was chartered.

I, therefore, respectfully impress upon you the importance of enacting such laws at your present session to the end that the masses of the people shall not again suffer from the acts of any who, for their own selfish interest, would impede commerce, travel or other public need or convenience. And the same law should govern every factory wherein capital and labor come in conflict.

I also respectfully suggest that you amend Section 2664 of the Code of Georgia by requiring the Railroad Commission to promptly advise the Governor of the stoppage of performance of the duties for which it was chartered by any public service corporation when combinations of persons unlawfully prevent its operation, thus damaging the interests of the public, and that he thereupon issue a proclamation requiring the sheriffs of all counties in which said public service corporation's working property lies to summon posse comitatus to protect said corporation in the performance of its chartered duties; and that, in the event the resistance to law by disorderly parties be too great for the civil authorities in any county or counties to overcome, the judge or judges, sheriff or sheriffs shall promptly notify the Governor, who shall thereupon use the militia, or such portions of it as may be needed, to enforce the State's laws which require the operation of said public service corporation or corporations for the welfare of the people.

Suspension of Sheriffs.

I also respectfully suggest that you enact a law authorizing the Governor to suspend a sheriff whenever he finds it proven that said sheriff has willfully failed to do his duty in protecting the people of his county against acts of lawbreakers, and to appoint a sheriff to serve until after a new sheriff is chosen by the people at the next regular election.

Such a law prevails in several other States, and that it is needed in Georgia was proven in at least one glaring instance during the period of the strike on the Georgia Railroad last year.

It should be furthermore provided that a sheriff thus removed shall not be eligible for election to any office in the county of his residence until at least two years after he has been thus removed by the Governor.

Laws Affecting the Militia.

The Constitution of Georgia, Article 10, Section 1, says:

"A well regulated militia being essential to the peace and security of the State, the General Assembly shall have authority to provide by law how the militia of this State shall be organized, officered, trained, armed and equipped; and of whom it shall consist."

The words "essential to the peace and security of the State," are proof that the makers of this Constitution, which we have taken an oath to execute, deemed that there were likely to come crises in which the civil authorities would not be able to maintain peace and protect life and property. The genius, the very soul, of that Constitution is democracy, yet its every paragraph proves that it is a self-bridled democracy. Its provisions leave every law-abiding citizen fullest liberty for exerting his powers in any legitimate occupation, but places a constant curb on crime, with penalties to be applied to every one who will interfere with the rights of those who obey it.

The great minds which made it realized that attempts to supplant or dethrone the law must not be temporized with, but must be promptly met by trained force which would maintain protection to the people through the supremacy and majesty of the law.

Creation of Militarism.

Hence they have clothed your honorable bodies with the authority above indicated and by plain inference have made the same your duty.

Therefore, if the use of the militia of the State be "militarism" it is clear that the Constitution creates "militarism" and ordains that such shall be the instrument of its enforcement when lawless elements in any community, contending only with the civil authorities, set that Constitution and the statutes at defiance and imperil the lives and property of the people. The same Constitution declares that "protection to person and property is the paramount duty of government and shall be impartial and complete." This is but an amplification of the ancient maxim: "The safety of the people is the supreme law."

And we must not ignore the fact that on her Great Seal of State, amid the columns, "Wisdom, Justice and Moderation" which uphold the arch of the Constitution, Georgia presents to the world's view the figure of a soldier holding a drawn sword, thus symbolizing the fact that inside the very temple of peace she holds the type of martial power, power loyal and ever ready to protect that Constitution and the peace which it commands.

Use of the Militia.

During the past summer and fall, the use of the military was called for, in the manner prescribed by law, to protect the public against lawlessness resulting from the strike by street car employees in Augusta; and also from threatened attempts to prevent the process of the State's laws in Cumming, Ga.

It was a deplorable fact that in Augusta three persons put themselves in insubordination to the military law, one, if not two, of them in an open and defiant manner intended to lead to destruction, by a mob, of property in custody of soldiery placed by the State to guard it; hence, were killed in the exercise of their unlawful acts. No one except these can be blamed for their deaths.

Deeds done in defiance of the military law must necessarily meet penalties just as deeds done against the civil laws must meet the same. It is well known that extreme acts of violation of the civil laws have for their penalty death, and this, when dire necessity comes, the State inflicts.

Militia Not a Bluff.

It can not be admitted, therefore, that when lawless parties, by threats of incendiarism and personal violence, terrorize a community and prevent the civil authorities from enforcing the laws, and the military is called out, that the latter should be instructed to refrain from rigorous measures, even from the infliction of death, for the protection of the peaceable and law-abiding members of the community. The Constitution manifestly does not intend that the militia will be used simply as a bluff.

Such use would put the Constitution itself in contempt and absolutely invite anarchy. The very word "militia" carries with it the knowledge that its weapons are guns and other means of destroying life if extreme necessity for securing impartial and complete protection for the law-abiding so demands.

We must not overlook the fact that the Constitution provides that the sheriff of any county may summon posse comitatus when the elements of violence threaten to subvert the law in his county. But the militia is the State's posse comitatus, to be used when the sheriff's posse comitatus is too weak to protect the peace and good name of the State. If then the posse comitatus of the Sheriff of Richmond County had have killed the three men before referred to, in Augusta, no law-abiding citizen would have condemned it. There is, therefore, absolutely no reason for condemning the State's militia for a like defense of the State's authority. No man must give a dare to the State.

Trial by Military.

As to the trial by a military court of the officers and men concerned in the killing in Augusta of the three men who by their deeds defied the militia whom the State had put in charge of the city, for the preservation of life and property, I will say that the State has both the legal and the moral right to fix whatever process she deems appropriate. In some of her civil courts she requires trial by jury, in others juries are omitted. In municipal courts persons are deprived of liberty without the verdict of juries. She, therefore, ordains such court procedure as she deems fitting to the crime, the local conditions or the emergency.

In her law governing the case under review she did not choose to fix a status, half fish and half fowl, to adjudicate in a civil court acts done under military government which the civil authorities had requested to supersede their own. Here was no usurpation of the rights of a free people; they made the status themselves.

There was no degredation of their manhood. That manhood is as upright and as self-respecting in decreeing the temporary supremacy of the military to stamp out anarchy as it is in times of peace when the civil process is properly the only authority. The suppression of anarchy is the right and duty of a free, law-loving people, and there come times when they must shoot it to death just as they shoot down foreign invaders.

Enemies of Law.

And no specious pleas by enemies of law and no theoretical treatises by alarmed sentimentalists should weigh against the logical process which law, in times of peril, must take to insure its supremacy over the hydra of anarchy. And, while I hold in high honor the patriotic devotion of some of our best citizens who have deemed the use of the military as a menace to the security of our institutions, yet I must say firmly that the man at headquarters, who, the Constitution declares, shall be a conservator of the peace throughout the State, and the man on the scene of danger, are better fitted to judge whether the soldiery is needed to protect life and property, as is provided by the Constitution and the statutes, than can be any people living many miles from the zone of peril.

Now, as to the personnel of the militia, I call your attention to the fact that its members are not foreigners or hirelings. They are not the Governor's soldiers, organized by his order to display his power; they are your soldiers, by the mandate of your Constitution, organized to protect your homes, your lives, your civilization. They are your own flesh and blood, your sons or brothers, who, thrusting not themselves into the arena of danger, but called thither by the operation of your statutes, leave their occupations, sometimes losing their present income, and submit to inconvenience, endure privations, and stand ready to sacrifice even life itself to shield you and to uphold the dignity of your laws.

Part of Government.

Instead, therefore, of being held as a thing apart, the Constitution makes them an integral factor of your government; instead of being an excrescence, they are your strong arm never to be exerted save when your other elements of strength are inadequate or helpless; then, with the force of a thunderbolt.

And in their patriotic willingness to lay down even life itself to protect you and your laws, they embody the words of our Divine Lord: "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend:" (John 15-13.) And should any of them lose lives in the service for which your very Constitution has ordained their organization, they merit the paraphrase of the simple, yet sublime, epitaph which his countrymen placed over Leonidas and the Spartan band who fell at Thermopylæ in defense of their country, viz.: "Go, stranger, tell it in lacedæmon that we died in obedience to her laws."

Let me say, therefore, that Georgia's name should be the synonym of good faith; that when she guarantees impartial and complete protection she must make her guarantee good; that the uniform of a soldier who unselfishly leaves home comforts and hazards his life for the protection of the laws of the State and the lives of her people is a badge of honor. And a twenty-year-old youth, standing in uniform with gun in hand for the protection of the law, is more to be honored than are 10,000 men who directly or indirectly lift hands for anarchy, class preference, or class tyranny, for that youth represents not militarism in its formal sense, but he is the ultimate resort of the law.

Upholding the Law.

The present law prescribing the manner of using the militia of the State was passed unanimously by the Senate and almost unanimously by the House of Representatives. Both factions united in enacting it after considering it for more than a year. Undoubtedly a potent factor in securing the enactment of the law was the knowledge that, while many good people are moving into Georgia, yet there are also elements with practices and views widely at variance with these adhered to by our native population.

Consequently we must assume that it is the judgment of a vast majority of the people of Georgia that the military must be used as military when emergencies demand. The General Assembly, therefore, does not have to apologize for making this law; and the Governor does not have to apologize for ordering its enforcement. And the militia does not have to apologize for obeying the order the Governor transmitted to it. Each performed a high duty which the people for their protection had ordained.

Some of the happenings in Georgia during the present year have trended inevitably toward bringing your Constitution into contempt. It is for you, therefore, to say whether you are going to surrender this State to anarchy or whether you are going to preserve it for law. It is for you to say whether you are going to allow one class, with less than 30,000 members, preferential privileges to the detriment and danger of the remainder of the public with upwards of 330,000 voters or whether you will enforce your process against all law-breakers alike.

Mobs and Lynchings.

It is for you to say whether you will allow barns to be burned, residences dynamited and people driven from their homes, thus destroying property valuations and depriving certain counties of needed laborers; and whether you will allow mobs to force sheriffs and jailers, before the muzzles of guns, to surrender prisoners in the State's custody, who are then taken out and unlawfully killed. It is for you to say whether you will allow the statutes you enact to be made a mockery or whether all men in all classes shall obey them in the same manner. You have the power to enact laws which will control every situation I have portrayed.

Yet, I am in the line of duty and self-respect when I say: Do not make it the Governor's duty to enforce a law and then condemn him for doing it. Any Governor, true to his oath, will enforce it regardless of condemnation. And do not, even by inference, command a militiaman, a sheriff or other agent of the State to imperil his life and possibly lose it, to protect your lives and property and uphold the dignity of your Constitution, and then fire into his back from the State House whence his orders came. Do not enact laws which you intend shall not be enforced, or which you would allow to be tampered with. There is no middle ground between law and anarchy.

The people of Georgia are jealous of their liberties, but they are not going to suffer their statutes defeated and their Constitution made contemptible under the false plea of liberty. That license which styles itself liberty, which would subordinate the rights of the public to the selfish interests of classes or which would substitute the process of anarchy for the process of law, has no place in any State inhabited by freemen. True liberty sits side by side with the enthroned law.

Enactment of Laws.

In conclusion, allow me to urge upon you thoughtful care in the enactment of statutes for the public welfare. The laws of Georgia should be deliberately framed and so broad and just as to be graven on the very hearts of her people; they should inspire confidence and willing loyalty which would make it the proudest boast to say: "I too am a Georgian!" And the authority of the State and of her municipalities should be so reverenced that a Sheriff's badge and a policeman's club would command as great respect as does the baton of a marshal of France.

Wheat—No. 2 red ..... 98 @100
Corn —No. 2 39
Oats—No. 2 ..... 38 @ 38½

CHICAGO, June 25.—The crop killer who has been in the spring wheat country will now be obliged to turn his attention to other factors than dry weather, as the entire country was visited with a thorough wetting down during the past 24 hours and this was reflected by the loss of ⅝ to ¾ in the wheat market at Chicago early this morning. Northwestern receipts were more than double those of a year ago at 280 cars, but those at Winnipeg were less than half for the same time in 1912.

There was a weak feeling in the wheat market at Liverpool, owing to favorable weather conditions abroad.

Corn was ¼ to ½ cent lower under favorable weather conditions and oats were off ¼ to ⅜.

Provisions were 2½ cents lower early in sympathy with the decline of 5 cents in the price of hogs at the yards.

STOCKS DULL BUT FIRM ENTIRE DAY

Big Interests Support Market on Easier Money and Improved Speculative Situation.

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, June 25—A confused appearance obtained in the stock list at the opening of the market to-day and prices showed a division of sentiment. Trading was fairly active in United States Steel common and Union Pacific, the former losing ⅝ and the latter, after beginning ¼ lower, making a net gain of ¾. Amalgamated Copper was ⅝ lower, but subsequently rallied fractionally. American Can was under pressure as the result of the unfavorable bond showing it had made and shaded.

Atchison lost ⅛. Canadian Pacific at the outset was ¼ higher, but subsequently increased this to ¾. Chesapeake and Ohio was again weak, declining ⅛. Among the other advances were Utah Copper ⅛, Southern Pacific ⅝, Northern Pacific ⅛, Reading ⅝, Pennsylvania ⅛, Norfolk and Western ⅛, Mexican Petroleum 1, Lehigh Valley ⅛, American Car and Foundry ⅛. New York Central lost ⅛.

The curb was steady.

Sentiment in London was cheerful. Americans in the London market was steady above New York parity. Canadian Pacific was harder on earnings. Other forgiveness on the London Exchange were irregular.

A wavering tendency developed after the first half hour, and several of the leading issues recorded fractional losses. Chesapeake and Ohio declined over 2 points to 53¼, and Amalgamated Copper yielded 1 point. Union Pacific lost a good part of its early gain with Steel, Can and Lehigh Valley. Southern Pacific advanced 1¼ to 96½. At 146¼ Union Pacific was up ½. Reading was off ⅜.

Call money loaned at 2 per cent.

Price changes in the last hour showed little change from either the morning or midday quotations. Amalgamated Copper sold around 64¾ and Atchison at 96¼. Canadian Pacific ruled around 217½. Union Pacific rose to 146¾ for a net gain of 1 point on the day. Steel gained ⅛ on the day, going to 53½. Pennsylvania was unchanged at 111. Trading was quiet.

The market closed steady. Government bonds unchanged; other bonds firm.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Money on call 2 per cent. Time money unchanged; 60 days, 3⅜; 90 days, 4½; six months, 5@5½ per cent.

SOUTH DAKOTA WHEAT CROP 50 POINTS BELOW AVERAGE

CHICAGO, June 25.—B. W. Snow wires from Millbank, S. Dak: "From Jim River to Minnesota line to-day, east half Jim valley fully as bad as west. Eight counties are in burnt district, involving 1,100,000 acres. The average condition reported by these counties June 1 was 97 per cent. Their average is now lowered 50 points. There is still some wheat in Brown and Spink Counties that good rains now would save for fair yields, having forced in heading at 8 inches high.

"From Clark County east the situation is reversed. Stand is fair and crop green and vigorous. Much of it perfect to heading. This includes the eight northeast counties with little above 1,000,000 acres, which will average at least 95 for condition. No drouth damage here, but ground very dry clear to bottom of roots and plant would go to pieces with a few days of hot, windy weather. At best the State will fall much short of last year."

OAT CROP ESTIMATE.

CHICAGO, June 25.—Price Current estimates the oats crop as follows:

Ohio, 50,716,000; Indiana, 28,758,000; Illinois, 90,643,000; Wisconsin, 73,317,000; Missouri, 16,605,000; Iowa 135,610,000; Minnesota, 93,669,000; North Dakota, 80,080,000; South Dakota, 40,810,000; Nebraska, 62,463,000; Kansas, 32,338,000 bushels.

The growth condition of corn as compared with the (Government term) normal, based at 100: Ohio, 88.9; Indiana, 83.1; Illinois, 80.8; Michigan, 58.3; Wisconsin, 86.6; Oklahoma, 89.4; Missouri, 78; Iowa, 86.3; Minnesota, 85; North Dakota, 82; South Dakota, 83.8; Nebraska, 96.1; Kansas, 84.5.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The indications are that there will be thunderstorms during the next thirty-six hours in the Lake Region and the Ohio Valley and widely scattered showers in the Middle Atlantic States and the Florida Peninsula. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi River, the weather will be fair to-night and Thursday. Warmer weather will continue to-night and Thursday over the eastern half of the country, except that moderate temperature will prevail on the North Atlantic coast.

Forecast.

Forecast until 7 p. m. Thursday.

Georgia, North and South Carolina, Alabama and Mississippi: Generally fair to-night and Thursday.

Virginia: Cloudy and warm, probably light showers to-night or Thursday.

Florida: Probably fair in north, showers in south and central portions to-night or Thursday.

Tennessee: Probably fair and continued warm weather to-night and Thursday.

Louisina: Fair to-night and Thursday.

Texas: Generally fair to-night and Thursday.

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The cotton seed oil market was active to-day, early months showing firmness, while late positions were easier. Refiners were buyers of old crop and sellers of new crop. A large part of the buying was for short account. Speculative longs were good sellers.

SHORTS STRUGGLE FOR JULY OPTION

Spot Houses and Wall Street Big Buyers—Turner's Report Is Construed as Bullish.

NEW YORK, June 25.—There was considerable commission house buying at the opening of the cotton market today, and first prices were 2 to 9 points higher than Tuesday's final. Weather advices reported a lack of rain over the Western belt. Liverpool cables failed to make a strong showing at the opening, but quickly gained strength and closed with a sharp advance.

Interest was more plainly centered on new crops, which caused considerable strength in every option on the list. July and August, however, only opened 2 to 3 points higher. After the call new crops advanced still further, exercising a bullish influence upon old positions, with the results of July jumping 14 points over the opening, to 11.15, and August 13 points to 11.05.

Liverpool was reported a seller of January, but purchased July. Spot houses also bought July and August. The South was booked as a good buyer. Selling was scattered with very little for sale and the demand good. The ring was thought to be short and it took very little buying to put the market up.

The map indicates general rains in the belt in about 6 days, proceeded by moderate heat spell in the Northern quarter.

During the forenoon the market was inflexible with prices fluctuating narrowly, but firmly maintained at the early high point.

Scarcity of offerings and continued buying by big spot houses, resulted in a general short covering movement during the afternoon session. The market was flooded with buying orders from every source. July was rushed up to 12.22, against 1.99 previous close. The on was directed at some big Wall Street shorts.

Turner's report makes condition of the crop to June 22 at 81.3 per cent, showing an increase of 2.2 per cent over last month's report. The report was construed as bullish, owing to the big increase in condition showed by the National Ginners' report a few days ago.

At the close the market was steady with prices at a net gain of 15 to 22 points from the final quotations of Tuesday.

Following are 11 a. m. bids in New York: July, 12.13; August, 12.04; October, 11.55; January, 11.48.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, June 25.—Liverpool shows larger spot sales; total 10,000 bales at 1 point advance. Futures were as due. The advance yesterday of 1-16 to 12⅝ for middling in spot here and the continued high prices for July show that bullish conditions and control for the near future are at work and exercise a sustaining effect on new crops. July in New York advanced this morning 29 points and carried new crops here to 11.66. Sellers were scarce, realizing the bullish advantage at present and fearing the possibility of a low July bureau, owing to crop progress in the Atlantic States not being up to expectations.

The Wall Street Journal in a review of the general situation says: "The gen- that as a result in industrial circles is that as a result of developments past and pending, a trade reaction is not far off."

The map shows partly cloudy to fair weather; scattered showers, mostly light. Range of temperatures unchanged, except somewhat warmer in western Arkansas. Indications are stationary conditions, but the map shows the important pressure in the distribution according to which general rains are likely to come on the belt in about a week, preceded, as usual, by a short spell of heat, which, from present indications, will be of only moderate intensity and confined principally to the northwestern quarter of the belt.

Trading was quiet and settled around 11.62 for October and December. The larger receipts at interior towns for the half week, 4,965 against 3,742 last year, sustains the claim that interior holdings are larger than last year, but the high July prices and large shipments show that the cotton is either already engaged or sold at very full prices.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

Morris Rothschold & Co.: "We continue to be friendly to cotton."

Hayden Stone & Co.: "As the market is easily influenced by any unfavorable news the need of rain over a large central area will be a factor for the moment."

Logan & Bryan: "Would take advantage of reactions to make moderate purchase."

Condition of Cotton Shows Increase

MEMPHIS, June 25.—Reports of June 10th date showed a condition of 81.2. It is evident, therefore, that all the improvement for the month took place during the first two weeks. This was due to the fact that rains in that first period gave the Eastern States the desired stands and that elsewhere the ground was put into good cultivation. Nothing appears to have been added to either condition since and as the growth of the plant has not been generally rapid no gain above normal progress for the season is shown.

At this date last year this bureau's report was 80.1 per cent as compared with the official report to June 25 of 80.4 J. E. Turner's condition report through Miller & Cotter shows the following results on the condition of cotton as of June 22 as 81.3, compared to normal using government's basis as of May 25:

Good Time to Cull Out the Weaklings From Your Flock

Some Fine Pointers Regarding the Culling Out of Your Chickens. Suggestions Worth Lots to You.

Edited by Judge F. J. Marshall.

It is not the season of the year when we are doing our regular mating for breeding; it is a little too late, but it is a good time to do culling nevertheless. It is a good time to cull the hens. You will by this time, no doubt, have noticed that some of your pullets have not been laying regularly during this the great laying period of their lives. They may be laying small eggs or ill shaped ones all the time and that, too, in irregular numbers. It is a good plan and a good time to weed that kind out. Market them right now when the prices are good, and before they moult. Sometimes the breeder of exhibition stock is so anxious to perpetuate certain fancy traits that he is willing to forego short laying and things of that kind, but the utility man con not stand any such foolishness. He must have strength, vigor and good supply of eggs or it should go to the pot without delay. A good hen is expected to lay in a year about five times her weight in eggs. Professor Jordon, of the New York Experiment Station, has well put it, when he says: "Did you ever stop to note the difference in the production of the little Leghorn hen and the small Jersey cow? The Leghorn hen weighing 3½ pounds will lay 200 eggs weighing 25 pounds; the Jersey cow weighing 1,000 pounds will produce about 7,000 pounds of milk." He states "that if you will take the dry matter of the hen and compare it with the dry matter of the eggs she produces in a year, there will be 5½ times as much dry matter in the eggs as in her body. On the other hand, compare the dry matter in the cow's body to that of the milk that she produces and it will be as 1 to 2.9." In other words, the hen does twice as well as the cow. It is this high standing of the hen in mind that we must aim to keep our standard of utility up to.

In looking over your fully developed laying pullets if you see any that are small in the head for the size of the body, or has a slim, long beak, cull it out. It shows a weakness that should not be tolerated in a healthy flock. Those with the thin necks or pinched tails and narrow across the breast should go, too. Anything that shows a tendency to weakness. You can soon learn to detect these things if you will look your stock over carefully with that end in view. You will say that these things should be detected when the pens are first mated early in the spring, but at that time you can not tell all of them as well as you can after they have had a period of laying and begin to let down on their weak points. That is the reason that this is the very best time to do the culling. The males should be looked over for the same faults and those that do not measure up to the best that can be expected should be let go to the block rather than feeding them all the season for next year's use. The very strong and robust should not be disposed of at any price; keep them. Turning to the youngsters that are coming up watch them as they are developing to get at their weak points. Whenever you detect one in the flock as it grows it is a good plan to mark it with a brush and a little Diamond dye, so that when it gets old enough to eat there will be no trouble to tell it and get it out of the flock as soon as possible. The common points to detect the weak ones by are the drooping of the wings. Not necessarily clear to the ground, but they are not held in place as does a healthy chick have his. You will find that kind often sitting upon the ground while all its mates are out foraging.

It is the last to leave the roost in the morning and the first to get to it at night. The front part of its body is carried low, while in a vigorous one it is carried erect. As the comb begins to develop it should be a bright red and strong and vigorous looking. As we used to say the chicken carries his health certificate on top of his head.

The shanks are a very striking indication of the constitution of the specimen they carry. On the weakling the shanks are slim and bony; almost sunken, as we would call them. Note this fact closely as it is one of the surest indications. When the chicks are quite young you will note a great difference in the eyes. The eyes of the healthy one will be very bright and stand out like shoe buttons, while the weakling will have apparently flat and unimportant eyes.

Any one can soon train themselves to be an expert in the detecting of the weak ones that should come out of the flock, and the sooner they are put on the market the better for the rest of the flock. Of course, this has reference to those that show no sickness but are just not robust.

H. G. HASTINGS & CO.

OUR NORTH SIDE AND INMAN PARK DELIVERIES LEAVE THE STORE AT 9:30; SOUTH SIDE AND WEST END AT 2 P. M. GOODS ORDERED BEFORE THESE HOURS WILL BE DELIVERED SAME DAY.

CHICKENS need more care and attention the next two or three months than any other time during the year. It is perfectly natural for chickens to have lice and mites, and unless you look after them they will multiply in such quantities to prove profitable. The little chicks will not reach the growth they should and the hens will not lay if they are covered with these pests. We have ties that you can not expect your flock remedies that will positively get rid of them and the cost is very little. For 35c you can get a can of either Lee's, Conkey's or Pratt's Lice Liquid and we will guarantee either of these preparations to give entire satisfaction.

WE have just gotten in a lot of nice, fresh, clean Red Comb Feed. The price for scratch and mash is $2.25 per 100 pounds.

WE are offering Baby Chick Feed at $2.15 per 100 pounds for the next few days. You know the regular price is $2.50 per 100 pounds. Better take advantage of this.

Poultry—Disinfectants.

AGASCO-SPRAY

WILL RID your premises of mites, lice, fleas and ants. It is ready for immediate use with brush or spray pump. When applied to poles and nests it eradicates lice and mites so effectually that fowls do not have to be carried through that inconvenient and nerve-racking process of dipping. BOARD WANTED.

YOUNG MAN would like to get board for a week or ten days somewhere in North Georgia or Carolina. Write full particulars to P. O. Box 570, Atlanta, Ga. 6-24-43

WANTED—Accommodations for the Georgia legislators. They are coming in now and will be in session at the State Capitol from June 25 for FIFTY days. All of them are on the outlook for nice, comfortable and home-like places to eat their meals, or to board or to rent. Many of the places these legislators had last year did not suit them and they desire to find something better. All the legislators will read The Georgian—that's certain. Their attention will be called day after day to the "Legislators' Accommodations" column on the Want Ad pages of The Georgian. This will be a big advantage to you. So if you have eating or boarding places or have rooms, apartments or houses for rent, your ad should be under the "Legislators' Accommodations" heading. An investment of a few cents will keep your house full for the next three months. Phone or send in your ad at once.

DeLeon Properties Sold for $40,000

Fulton National Buys and Subdivides. Church to Improve Property?—Echoes of Peachtree Paving.

The sale of the Moise DeLeon properties on Whitehall and South Forsyth Streets was closed Wednesday, the purchaser being the Fulton National Bank, through Dr. W. J. Blalock, president, and the price approximately $40,000. The deal was handled through Andrew Calhoun, of the Turman, Black & Calhoun agency, and the property has been subdivided and placed with C. L. DeFoor and the above agency for resale.

The property is located on the west side of Whitehall Street, north of East Fair Street, where the total frontage is 52 1-3 feet, and on the east side of South Forsyth Street, in the rear of the Whitehall property, where the total frontage is 107 1-2 feet. In the new subdivision are two Whitehall lots 26.16 by 100 to an alley, and the Forsyth lots 21 by 22.5 by 100 feet to an alley.

It will be recalled that certain DeLeon equities were put up for sale before the court house door about two months ago. A Whitehall equity was bid in at $1,500, but Percy H. Adams, referee in bankruptcy, rejected the bid, and at private sale the equity brought $5,000. Wednesday's sale was for the entire properties.

Presbyterian Church Plans.

Members of the property committee of the First Presbyterian Church have a new scheme for disposition of the church's valuable lot on the south side of Marietta Street, near Spring Street. They want the church members to form a corporation and buy in the lot and erect substantial income-bearing improvements. In this way, pointed out by a prominent churchman Wednesday, the church would not be obliged to sell at a sacrifice.

There is still another proposition, in the nature of a cash offer which the property committee is considering. A land developer wants the lot to subdivide.

The congregation owns 90 feet of frontage on Marietta Street which has been held at $180,000. Some time ago they bought a large lot at the northwest corner of Peachtree and Sixteenth Streets, where it is planned to put the new church and manse at a total cost of about $100,000. It is the desire of the property committee to go ahead with the erection of the new church irrespective of the sale of the downtown location, and it is probable that a move will be made toward erecting the edifice.

Healey Building Six Stories.

Steel work on the Healey Building has gone six stories and some of the uprights are in place for two more floors. The two monster derricks used to lift the stel are being carried up as the steel work progresses. At first they were located in the basement, but now they are high above the sidewalk and going higher. The Healey Building will soon be as high as the Grant Building to the south, and its seventeen stories will eventually cause it to tower over its neighbor.

Peachtree Paving Needed.

Members of the Board of County Commissioners declared Wednesday that something would be done as soon as possible to repair Peachtree Street from Fifteenth Street to Buckhead. What action would be taken was not stated definitely, but the Commissioners are at work on a plan and expect to announce it soon.

It will be recalled that the Commissioners met recently and agreed to remedy conditions "at once," but that a postponement was later ordered. In the meantime the paving is bad and property owners and travelers are beginning to complain.

Peachtree is used to reach town by all the people in the upper portion of Fulton County and of adjacent counties who do not use Piedmont Avenue or Marietta Street, and the volume of traffic is such that there is always a demand for a travelable thoroughfare. The condition of the street is now almost intolerable, and that is why ready relief is sought. The present paving is several years old, and the opinion is expressed that the commission will soon be obliged to lay entirely new paving.

The Railroads and the Public

A Letter from Mr. Ivy L. Lee, of the Pennsylvania

(Copyright, 1913.)

The Georgian and the other Hearst newspapers, published to protect the public, are aware of the fact that to protect the public thoroughly, ALL legitimate workers must be protected, big men and little men, ditch diggers, railroad builders, street peddlers, department stores, thinkers and big industrial organizations.

Criticism of big and able men because they happen to be rich and intelligent is as stupid and harmful to the public welfare as would be attacks on or unjust treatment of little men because they happen to be poor and badly organized.

We publish gladly a letter which presents the side of the railroads in an important public question.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD COMPANY.
General Office, Broad Street Station.
Philadelphia.
Ivy L. Lee.
Executive Assistant.

Editor The Georgian:

My Dear Sir—Your papers have been commending the law recently passed in New Jersey which places upon the railroad companies the entire burden of removing grade crossings. There is one important phase of this subject, however, which you have not brought out.

There is no doubt that grade crossings are a great public menace and should be removed. But, of course, their removal must be paid for, and those who are benefited are the ones who ought to pay for it. If the entire burden should fall upon the railroads without delay the railroads would be bankrupt.

As you know, in England there are practically no grade crossings, the reason being that when the railroads were first built it was sure that there would be enough traffic to make them pay. Therefore, the Government could take the position that there should be no grade crossings. In this country, if we had taken such position there would not have been so many railroads.

Everybody, railroad officers included, agrees as to the danger and the objectionable character of grade crossings. But it is certainly like the ostrich burying its head in the sand to pass a law placing the whole burden upon the railroad companies and imagining that through such a law the money is going to come out of the bankers of Wall Street.

May I venture to call to your attention the policy which Mr. Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, recently set forth as in his opinion the proper one to be pursued in solving the grade crossing problem?

"Public Service Commissions, on motion either of a municipality, a railroad, or on a commission's own initiative, should have the right to designate such grade crossings as should be removed, and should have power, after hearing all parties in interest, to apportion the cost of such improvements, with due regard for the interest of all parties concerned."

Respectfully,
IVY L. LEE.

Mr. Lee, who is a graduate of the Atlanta Boys' High School, and son of the Rev. J. W. Lee, former pastor of Trinity Church, and who occupies an important position near the president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is right in his statement that the public can not legislate unlimited millions into existence or compel railroads to spend money that they haven't got.

It is an impossibility to abolish immediately ALL of the grade crossings in the United States.

There is not enough money in the United States to do that work immediately. And legislation can not CREATE money.

The trouble, however, as Mr. Lee and Mr. Rea will admit, has been in the past a lack of the fair and reasonable attitude now taken by Mr. Rea, recently elected president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Railroad management until recently has often been as arrogant and unreasonable as the most foolish legislator, or the most ignorant demagogue.

The railroads can exist only by permission of the public, they get their rights and their revenue from the public, and are able to build because the public exercises its right of eminent domain in their behalf, yet the railroads have refused for years to recognize in the public ANY RIGHTS AT ALL.

Stockholders, investors in the railroads, have been robbed in every conceivable way. (It is true that the Pennsylvania has been an honorable exception in this regard.)

Legislation that the railroads WANTED has been bought with money.

And legislation that they did NOT want has been killed with money.

It is not unnatural that representatives of the public should in their turn sometimes follow the example set by the railroads and disregard the railroads' rights as the railroads have disregarded the rights of the public in the past.

This newspaper, however, opposes unjust legislation against the railroads as strongly as it opposes public robbery by the railroads.

It is preposterous to say that every grade crossing should be abolished at once and that the railroads should pay the expense.

The total capitalization of the railroads is about $600,000,000, including stock not yet issued.

AND $600,000,000 WOULD NOT BE ENOUGH TO ABOLISH ALL THE GRADE CROSSINGS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD ALONE!

The United States would not have to-day one-quarter of its railroad mileage if the railroads had been compelled to build without grade crossings. That would mean that the United States would be only one-quarter developed in comparison with its present development.

Mr. Rea's statement and suggestion in regard to railroad crossings, and his address made upon that subject recently in New Jersey are reasonable and display a fair spirit.

The trouble has been in the past that railroads and their officials have used their power to prevent ANY INTERFERENCE EVEN WITH THE MOST DANGEROUS GRADE CROSSINGS.

If other railroad officials will follow Mr. Rea's example and in good faith submit public questions to impartial public officials, railroads and the public contributing their fair and proper share of any expense, THE RAILROADS WILL FIND THAT THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY ARE NOT DISHONEST, WILL NOT DEMAND THE IMPOSSIBLE, AND WILL NOT BE LED INTO PATHS OF CONFISCATION OR UNJUST ASSESSMENT BY THE NEWSPAPERS THAT THEY TRUST.

June Morn

Are We Coming to the Bee Idea of Life

By WINIFRED BLACK.

HAVE you ever read Maeterlinck's marvelous story of the bees?

No?

Go to the library and get it this very day. You can't afford to live another twenty-four hours without knowing that book!

Every time you see a bee in the garden afterward you'll feel like standing, hat in hand, and watching him fly by.

Talk about "man the reasoning animal," the bee reasons so much better and so much more closely than man that he makes us all seem like little blind, blundering beetles booming around in the sunshine, not knowing where we are going or what we are trying to do.

The Wonderful Bee.

The bee—the wonderful bee—no wonder Napoleon chose him for his emblem.

Is that what we are all coming to—some day I wonder—the bee system of living?

Every once in a while I see something in the news that makes me think so. It is a great thing to watch—the daily news of this great, strange, simple, complex world of ours.

The sailors on the ship that Columbus brought across the wide waters spent days standing at the rail watching for the drift of waters, and now and then they found hope of land in the broken branch that floated on the silent sea and now and then some strange bright feather that rose and fell on the waves told their hopeful hearts of bright lands beyond, where the bird that wore the feather waited singing in a spreading tree to welcome their coming.

Driftwood tells strange tales sometimes.

That's what the news is—driftwood—telling stories, old stories that sometimes makes the human hair rise and that turns the blood cold in the veins of the one who watches by the rail to see the drift come by.

Now, there's that little item in the paper this morning—the one about the Judge who told the man that he could not make his wife follow him to a farm, and he could not divorce her because she did not follow.

"She hates country life," said the Judge. "You cannot force her to live it. She has the same right to decide where she wants to live as you have." Drift, drift from strange shores, is that decision.

I wonder how they would think of it in North Carolina, where a man can have you arrested and fined if you give shelter, food, employment or even a word of encouragement to a wife who has left his bed and board without his permission, no matter what it was he did that made her go.

A great artist went with his wife to see her off on a long trip

WINIFRED BLACK.

the other day. "Yes," said the artist to the reporters, "I hate to see her go, but she has chosen the stage for her vocation. Who am I, to stand in her way? She is a human being first of all, you know," and no one was particularly surprised to hear him say it.

She Likes to Work.

A clever writer married a clever business woman a week or so ago, and he told his friends and hers that he did not expect her to give up her business to stay at home for him.

"She likes to work," he said. "Why should I take it upon myself to deny her her own life? Women are something more than the echo of men."

In a high school out West they find that the average height of the high school graduate is lowering for the boys and heightening for the girls.

The boy babies born at the great public hospital in Boston to-day are one inch shorter on the average than they were ten years ago. The girl babies are nearly an inch taller than they were ten years ago and weigh, on an average almost a pound more.

A newspaper in the Middle West interviewed the members of a graduating class of girls in a great school yesterday, and out of thirty girls, twenty-four said that they hoped they would not have to marry. Marriage was narrowing and cramping, they said.

Driftwood, driftwood! From what strange tides does it come these days! The bees—oh, yes—that's what I mean.

The bees have arranged all this affair of the feminine uprising—arranged it years and years ago.

The queen bee rules. She breeds the young, divides the hive into workers and drones. There is no mingling of the two classes at all. One bee is to gather honey, one is selected to found the future of the hive. When his work is done, out he goes. Is that what we are coming to, we humans, some day?

Will there be home women and work women, home men and work men, divided quite definitely into classes like the bees—each having his own special mission in life, and never dreaming of interfering with any other in any way?

"Career" Women.

Mother women and "career" women, work women and beauty women, men workers and men home makers, how else shall we manage this affair of the woman who will not live as her husband wishes—else deal with the man who thinks that a woman should follow him wheresoever he lists to go, and howsoever he intends to do when he gets there? Bu-zz, bu-zz! How do you think of the bee idea, brother philosophers?

The drift, the drift! How pleasant it is to stand in the sunshine at the ship's rail and watch it slipping by, and speculate and dream, and hope, and wonder.

SONG OF THE GOOD ROAD

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner.

I AM a Road; a good road, fair and smooth and broad;
And I link with my beautiful tether
Town and Country together,
Like a ribbon rolled on the earth from the reel of God.
Oh, great the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a long road, leading on and on;
And I cry to the world to follow,
Past meadow and hill and hollow,
Through desolate night, to the open gates of dawn.
Oh, bold the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a kind road, shaped by strong hands.
I make strange cities neighbors;
The poor grow rich with my labors,
And beauty and comfort follow me through the lands.
Oh, glad the life of a Road!

I am a Road; a wise road, knowing all men's ways;
And I know how each heart reaches
For the things dear Nature teaches;
And I am the path that leads into green young Mays.
Oh, sweet the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I speed away from the slums,
Away from desolate places,
Away from unused spaces;
Wherever I go, there order from chaos comes.
Oh, brave the life of a Road!

I am a Road; and I would make the whole world one.
I would give hope to duty,
And cover the earth with beauty.
Do you not see, Oh men! how all this might be done?
So vast the power of the Road!

A Trip to the Moon

He Gives Reasons Why It Can Not Be Made by Aeroplane, But Says It Might Be Made With the Aid of Inter-Atomic Energy.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

WITHIN a few weeks past I have been asked to address two different aeronautical societies on the curious subject of the possibilities of a trip to the moon.

As far as I am aware this does not indicate an intention on the part of any aviator to essay a voyage to our satellite, but, at least, it shows that the flying instinct is growing by what it feeds upon, and that, having navigated the air, practical men are giving a little extra rein to their imaginations, and wondering whether the empire of birds marks the ultimate frontier of human conquest.

In fact, the dream of going to the moon, which, in every age, has occupied daring minds, is hardly more impracticable at the present time than would have been a project, springing up in the mind of Balboa, of making ships sail across from the Atlantic to the great Western ocean which he saw from his paak in Darien.

But it is not the invention of either the aeroplane or the dirigible balloon that stimulates thoughtful minds at the present time to consider, half-seriously, the idea of a lunar voyage. The success of those inventions, defying scientific predictions and probabilities, only forms an incentive. It turns men's minds hopefully to things that heretofore they have regarded as lying beyond the limits of human power.

It has always been so. Every great advance has been a marvel at the beginning, derided or laughed at. Each one of them has been a victorious birth of the imagination. The greatest drag on progress is lack of faith in the hidden capacities of man.

"Verily, I say unto you, if ye have faith, as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain: 'Remove hence to yonder place,' and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

Only Beginning.

That is high authority for believing that we are only just beginning to discover the extent of our control over nature, and such things as wireless telegraphy, X-ray photography and the disintegration of atoms, with consequent unlocking of tremendous concealed energy, prove that hitherto we have been like the man who buried his talents in the earth instead of making them produce ten or a hundred fold.

Suppose we look at the subject of visiting the moon in the light of present knowledge. The distance in itself is nothing—240,000 miles! Many a sea captain has sailed much farther than that. It is less than ten times the circuit of the earth.

If the atmosphere extended from the earth to the moon, we could go there now by modifying our present apparatus. At a hundred days! But at a height of five or six miles the atmosphere becomes so rare that we could not live in it without an artificial supply. Yet unmanned balloons have gone ten miles high, and meteors take fire from friction at an elevation of a hundred miles or more.

Still the atmosphere does practically cease to exist at no very great elevation, and cuts short off the road of the balloon and the aeroplane.

We must turn to something else. The buoyant force of air enables us to overcome the gravitative attraction of the earth only up to a moderate height. Beyond that something more is needed. I have learned with surprise that many intelligent persons supose that if we once got outside the air motion would be unimpeded. For instance, a man said to me the other day:

"Suppose an aeroplane could mount straight up until it passed the limits of the atmosphere, then having nothing more to impede its motion, it would go on with whatever velocity it had when it left the air."

In fact, this could only occur in case the velocity of the aeroplane amounted to nearly seven miles per second, for that velocity would be required to completely overcome the pull of the earth's attraction. Otherwise it would fall back to the earth.

This is the reason why Jules Verne, in his amusing story of "A Voyage to the Moon," had his adventurers shot out of an enormous cannon. Only in that way, he thought, could the requisite initial velocity be obtained.

A Bold Plan.

But a bold mind might, in view of recent discoveries, speculate on the illimitable power that may be obtained from unlocking the energies of the atoms of matter. Professor Thomson has calculated that a single gram of hydrogen has within it sufficient energy to lift a million tons a hundred yards high! Does anybody imagine that that unlimited store of energy is going forever to remain uncontrolled by human genius? We have discovered its existence; the next thing is to take it and use it.

Suppose we had it under control, as we shall have it some time. Then reflect upon the close relation between atomic phenomena and electricity, and recall the familiar experiment of making bits of pith fly away from an electrically charged ball. If we could construct some kind of a car that could be powerfully charged with electric energy we might be able to make it fly away from the earth as the pith balls fly from the charged conductor of the electric machine.

The Problem Solved.

Then it would be necessary to establish a system of control by which the speed and direction could be regulated by varying the charge—AND THE PROBLEM OF NAVIGATING SPACE WOULD BE SOLVED. I have developed this (of course purely hypothetical) idea somewhat farther in a story called "A Columbus of Space."

Such a method would avoid all the difficulties, really insuperable, that hampered Jules Verne's plan of a projectile starting at a velocity of almost seven miles per second.

However, when we get the atomic energies under control our first efforts will be directed to making more money out of them, and trips to the moon will only begin to pay after we have got tired of purely earthly things.

A Fine Old Heathen

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

WONDERFUL in a far more useful way than we find it described in the "Arabian Nights" was the fine old heathen known as Haroun Al Raschid, who died eleven hundred and four years ago.

In a time of intense bigotry and cruelty he was tolerant and merciful. In an age of blackest ignorance and brutal indifference to every form of intellectual enlightenment, he was deeply interested in learnings, and employed every aid at his command for the elimination of the superstition that was sitting like an incubus upon the breast of humanity.

While Christian Europe lay in the shadow of its seemingly irremediable ignorance, Bagdad was cultivating the sciences out of which was to come the world's mental resurrection. While the Christian teachers were asserting the flatness of the earth the Mohammedan doctors of Bagdad and Cordova, Seville and Alexandria were teaching geography in the common schools from globes. While in London and Paris they were practicing and professing to cure men's ills through the agency of charms, trinkets and incantations, in the great Mesopotamian capital they were treating the sick upon the principles of science and common sense.

So famous was Al Raschid's medical school at Bagdad that the great and mighty Charlemagne issued a decree that no man should practice medicine in his dominions without first having passed a satisfactory examination before the Bagdad faculty. And th. old Mohammedan's heart was as sound as his mind, for be it remembered that at the time Charlemagne was using fire and sword against all who would not, or could not, accept the theological beliefs he had sworn to champion, Haroun Al Raschid was doing all he could to protect Charlemagne's subjects in the full exercise of their religion.
