GOBL'S DEATH IS REPORTED AT 11, 50

Footprint Leads to Arrest of Sus-

THOMASVILLE, Oct. 14.—With T. W. Duane, about 50 years old, held on suspicion, the police are this afternoon continuing their efforts to clear up the mystery surrounding the murder of pretty Miss Dorothy Haug, the 21-year-old Valdosta stenographer who was found slain in her room at the Southern Home, a Thomasville hotel, Monday morning.

Duane, who was arrested this morning, denies any connection with the murder, but his knowledge of it until after the girl's death body had been discovered by her mother, who had gone to her room to analyze her in time to catch a morning train to Valdosta. Duane roomed just across the hall from Miss Haug's apartment. It was to his room that Mrs. Haug went for a match to strike a light when she discovered her daughter dead.

Footprint Chief Claim.

The clues that led to the arrest of Duane were the finding of a bloody footprint and a blood-stained towel in his room. Thus far he has not satisfactorily explained their presence to the police.

Little is known of Duane here. He came to Thomasville a few weeks ago from Tampa, and has been employed in a meat market. So far as is known, he had no acquaintance with Miss Haug.

A rumor that Owen Baxter, of Dothan, Ala., a young man friend of Miss Haug, was seen here Sunday is to-day declared to be without foundation. Baxter, it is stated, did not know Miss Haug was here. She met him here last winter while he was employed at the Tocco Hotel. Baxter, it is said, fell very much in love with her, but she did not reciprocate the affection.

Second Inquest Held.

Thomas Haug, of Knoxville, Tenn., father of the slain girl, arrived here this morning, joining his wife and young son, the children of the slain girl, who Miss Dorothy Haug at the time she was murdered, was visiting. He has made no arrangements for the funeral, as the coroner's jury, which Monday afternoon returned a verdict of murder by an unknown person, he to-day conducting a re-investigation.

The body, however, will be taken to Knoxville, the home of the Haug family, for interment probably to-morrow.

Dr. T. M. McIntosh, who examined the body soon after Miss Haug was found dead, to-day declared that any theory of suicide in the case is untenable, as there was no possibility of the fatal wound having been made by the girl herself.

Blow Struck by Man.

From the nature of it, Dr. McIntosh said, there was no doubt of the blow having been struck with a heavy, blunt instrument in the hand of a man. A woman, he said, could not have struck such a powerful blow. When the girl's body was found lying in a pool of blood Dr. McIntosh was called and promptly made a careful examination, finding that the skull had been crushed and that there was no sign of a bullet wound, although a pistol was found near the body with one cartridge discharged. This pistol is said to have belonged to the dead girl and to have been carried by her mother.

That Miss Haug had been murdered in her sleep was shown by the fact that she had been undressed and was lying on her back and was lying on her side.

Miss Haug had come to Thomasville Saturday night to spend the week-end with her mother and was here when she was murdered, operated by T. C. Duren. She had expected to return to Valdosta Monday morning by A. P. O'Kelly.

Movement to Increase Gifts to Missions Heartily Supported by Atlanta Association.

Pastors and laymen from practically every Baptist church in the Atlanta District are in session Tuesday in the chapel of Cox College at College Park. This is the fifth annual meeting of the Atlanta Association, which was organized with the view of increasing the membership of Baptist churches.

Complete reports of the work done in every Baptist church in the district will be submitted, while the discussion will cover practically every subject in connection with the advancement of church work.

Particular importance among the subjects for discussion is the contribution for foreign missions. An effort to get the churches to contribute more than one-fifth of their income to missions, as is now the case, is receiving strong support.

The report of the Rev. Joan E. White, pastor of the Second Baptist Church and chairman of the executive committee, on missions in the Atlanta Association, is expected to prove unusually interesting.

An association session was delivered by the Rev. Lincoln McConnell at 11:40 a. m. The reports on missions in Georgia will be made Wednesday morning by Frank J. Fleming, and on missions in other lands Thursday morning by A. P. O'Kelly.

MISSION MEETING ENDS.

ATLANTA, Oct. 14.—The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society at Bazaar Vista has closed with a living address was made by the Rev. J. W. White, a returned missionary from Korea.

AGED FATHER CANNOT BELIEVE HIS SON GAVE DRUGS TO KILL WIFE

The investigation into the mysterious death of Mrs. Sallie Lou Barron, wife of Dr. Cary A. Barron who is in the Henry County jail charged with poisoning her, approached its climax in Atlanta Tuesday as the analysis of the contents of her stomach neared completion.

Dr. Edgar Everhart, of the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons, who is conducting the chemical examination, announced that he probably would complete his work by Wednesday forenoon. On the result of Dr. Everhart's analysis the fate of the accused man likely will rest. If traces of poison are found, it will be proof positive in the minds of the dead woman's relatives that her husband is her murderer and they will press his prosecution with all possible vigor.

Dr. Everhart said any report that he had or had not found poison was pure gossip.

Dr. Everhart will make his report directly to Dr. T. H. Maddox, one of the relatives of the dead Mrs. Barron. It was Dr. Maddox and Dr. Huckaby, of Milner, who hastened to Atlanta with the stomach and other vital organs as soon as the body had been exhumed.

By a Staff Correspondent.

GRiffin, Oct. 14.—Dr. J. M. F. Barron, a distinguished physician of this section and father of Dr. Cary A. Barron, in jail in McDonough, charged with poisoning his first wife that he might wed Miss Cora Wheeler, of Conyers, Tuesday morning gave a statement to The Georgian defending his accused son, but at the same time dramatically declaring that should he become convinced that the boy is guilty he would not turn his hand nor spend one penny to prevent the law taking its course. The elder Dr. Barron treated Mrs. Barron in her last illness and diagnosed her ailments as entirely natural.

Dr. Barron is one of the wealthiest and most widely known and highly respected citizens of Pike County, and the first public announcement of his attitude in the poison mystery has brought forth many expressions of admiration and sympathy not only from the community generally, but from the close relatives of the dead Mrs. Barron.

Dr. Barron lives in a beautiful country home on an extensive plantation at Liberty Hill, several miles out from Milner. He owns practically the whole of this settlement. For thirty years he has practiced medicine in Pike and adjoining counties. Every penny of this wealth he to-day The Georgians would be sent, if necessary, to clear this stigma from the family name, so long as he remains satisfied his son is innocent.

In the event the accused is shown to be guilty, however, he must fight alone the battle for his life. He can not depend on the Barron fortune to save him.

When seen at his home Dr. Barron seemed crushed by the arrest of his son and the accusation against him.

As he asserted his firm belief that his son is wrongfully accused and declared he could not conceive of a Barron being capable of committing such a deed, tears welled in the old man's eyes and there was a tremor of emotion in his voice.

Prepared to Fight for Son.

It is impossible for me to believe my boy guilty of such a crime as is charged to him," said Mr. Barron. "I know he must be unjustly accused. Knowing him as I do and realizing that he is a Barron, I couldn't think otherwise. I can't conceive of a boy of his blood and his training sporting with his life through this affair. I want to see him and I want to see the clear family name which before never has been tarnished. I will spend every penny I have in this world to save him, but I wish this understood—should the evidence be so conclusive as to convince me that he committed this crime then I'll wash my hands of him.

That may be hard to say, but I

THE NIGHT FRANK APPEAL REAL IS PUSHED TO CORO

OFFICIALS IN HAND AND HENSLEE

Solicitor, Back From Valdosta, Is Prepared to Go Into Court
Saturday.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey, accompanied by A. E. Stephens, returned Wednesday morning from Valdosta, where they prepared their arguments against a new trial for Leo Frank. It was learned on the return trip that except for a few hours they are practically ready to go to court Saturday before Judge L. S. Battle.

The Solicitor and Attorney Stephens have made a most painstaking review of every paragraph containing the voluminous manuscript comprising the 115 reasons for a new trial submitted by Frank's lawyers. They have carefully prepared themselves to meet every legal point involved.

Source of affidavits also have been obtained and will be used to refute charges of bias and prejudice that have been preferred by the attorneys for the defense against A. H. Henslee and other members of the jury.

Solicitor Dorsey would not express an opinion Wednesday as to the probable outcome of the argument for a new trial except to say that he was well satisfied with the work he had done up to accomplish what in Valdosta, where he went so as not to be subjected to the usual office interruptions. He is still working on the affidavits of bias against Henslee, but would not disclose the results of his investigation.

Frank's lawyers have been ready to go ahead with the hearing for some time, but during the delay necessitated by the Solicitor's review of their reasons they have continued in their investigation of Henslee's attitude toward Frank prior to the trial and claim to have uncovered a great deal of evidence of his bias and prejudice against the defendant.

They assert that on Henslee's remarks before the trial a new trial should be granted without the necessity of producing any other reasons. They are confident they will win in their fight.

Boy Killed on Way To School; Tragedy Shocks Playmates

J. T. Harris, aged 11 years, was run down and instantly killed by a freight train on the Southern Railway at a southbound Southern passenger train, which left Atlanta at 7:45 o'clock. The boy was on his way to school when the accident occurred. His body was horribly mangled.

Young Harris, according to eye-witnesses, was on his way to school with a half dozen boys of his own age. When the boys reached the Southern tracks, they stopped to watch the Southern freight train go by. Young Harris stepped up on the main line track, it is said, just as the fast passenger train darted by in the opposite direction.

The passing freight train obscured the view of the passenger train, and it was too late for the engineer of the passenger train to see the boy.

MYSTERY GIG CASE UNPLEAS

Man Held on Suspicion in Slaying
of Girl in Thomsville Hotel
Freed.

THOMASVILLE, Oct. 15.—With the release of T. W. Duane, arrested Tuesday on suspicion, who connected the police that he had no connection with the murder of pretty Miss Dorothy Hargis, the Valdosta stenographer, Monday morning, the slaying is as much a mystery today as two days ago.

This far there is absolutely no tangible clue to the identity of the slayer, and the police and Coroner are at a loss to know which way to turn to clear the mystery. Detectives are expected here today to take up the investigation and assist the police in finding out.

Funeral services over the body of the slain girl will be held here today, and the body will be taken to Knoxville, Tenn., the home of the Hargis family, for burial, leaving here tonight.

Death Probe Renewed.
Thomas Hargis, her father, who arrived Tuesday from Knoxville, and Mrs. Hargis and their younger daughter, Marguerite, who have been spending more than a year here, will go to Knoxville with the body.

The Coroner's jury today will continue the investigation of the murder which was reopened on Tuesday after a verdict had been returned on Monday.

The bloody footprint and blood-stained towel found in Duane's room at the Southern Hotel, the hotel where the murder took place, were explained by a servant girl, who said she had gone into Duane's room for a towel at the request of the paymaster, who was called when Miss Hargis was discovered beaten to death. She said that later she returned the towel to Duane's room, the footprint being due to blood that had dripped on the floor from Miss Hargis's head.

No murder ever committed in Thomsville has aroused the indignation and sympathy of the people as fast that of Dorothy Hargis.

Last year Miss Hargis and her younger sister, Marguerite, came to Thomsville with their mother, who was traveling in the interest of a publishing house, making her headquarters for this territory.

Mrs. Hargis stated that she had been engaged in some newspaper and magazine work when living in Tennessee, but had taken up the publishing house work as she wanted to spend the winter before South.

Both Girls Popular.
The two daughters were both attractive. They quickly made friends and several of the young men here paid them attention.

When Miss Hargis returned from a summer visit that she made with her mother and sister in Vermont, her mother's home State, she accepted a position with the Citizens Bank of Valdosta, which she had held for about two weeks. Prior to her going away she had been with a law firm in Indianapolis.

Miss Hargis was fond of reading and book and her sister often took books from the public library. Miss Hargis was not here a great deal before she went to Indianapolis, but before going there she had written here for enough to get acquainted with many people. She was a member of the Presbyterian church, having joined when quite young and with her mother and sister was a faithful attendant at the services of that denomination until here.

MYSTERY IN KING CASE DEEPENS

Man Held on Suspicion in Slaying
of Girl in Thomsville Hotel
Freed.

THOMASVILLE, Oct. 15.—When the release of T. W. Duane, arrested Tuesday on suspicion, who continued the police that he had no connection with the murder of pretty Miss Dorothy King, the Valdosta stenographer, Monday morning the slaying is as much a mystery today as two days ago.

Thus far there is absolutely no tangible clue to the identity of the slayer, and the police and coroner are at a loss to know how to proceed to clear the mystery. Detectives are expected here today to take up the investigation and arrest the officers in the slaying.

Patrolmen served over the body of the slain girl will be held here today, and the body will be taken to Knoxville, Tenn., the home of the King family, for burial, leaving here probably this afternoon.

Death Penalty Renounced.
When Duane, her father, who arrived Tuesday from Knoxville, and Mrs. King and their younger daughter, Margie, who have been spending more than a year here, will go to Knoxville with the body.

The coroner's jury today will continue the investigation of the murder which was postponed on Tuesday after a verdict had been returned on Monday.

The bloody footprint and blood-stained towel found in Duane's room at the Southern Hotel, the hotel where the murder took place, were explained by a servant girl, who said she had seen Duane's room, and a towel at the request of the police, which was called when the slaying was discovered in Duane's room.

Tariff Clause That Aids U. S. Shipping To Stand—Underwood

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The 5 per cent clause benefiting American shipping will stand in force, no tariff act even at the risk of trade wars and other commercial considerations, declared Representative Underwood after a visit to the White House today.

The fact that American trade treaties probably will be abrogated by the clause does not worry Mr. Underwood.

He thinks that the United States is well able to care for itself, should European nations attempt commercial reprisals.

Train Kills Boy on His Way to School; Chams See Tragedy

J. T. Harris, 13 years old, was run down and killed on Wednesday morning near Roseland station by a Southern passenger train, which left Atlanta at 7:45 o'clock. The boy was on his way to school when the accident occurred.

Young Harris was with a half dozen boys of his own age. When the train reached the Southern tracks they stopped to watch a freight train as it passed. The boy was on the main line track, it is said, just as the passenger train started by going in the opposite direction.

The boy lived with his parents near Roseland station, which is about five miles from the city.

Young Doctor To Be Freed From Jail as Soon as It Is Legally Possible.

The Barron poison mystery which had aroused three counties collapsed Wednesday with the reading of the report of Dr. Edgar Everhart, the Atlanta chemist, which stated that no poison was found in the stomach or other organs of Mrs. Sallie Barron.

Dr. C. A. Barron, husband of the woman, who has been under arrest at Milner pending the analysis, will be released immediately, and the entire matter dropped.

The following dispatch from Milner, where the chemist's report was read, tells the story of the collapse of a generation which has stirred Milner, Ga., Oct. 15.—The official report of Dr. Edgar Everhart, examining chemist of Atlanta, received here at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, showed that his poison was found in the vital organs of Mrs. Sallie Barron, whose husband, Dr. C. A. Barron, has been in jail in McDonough since last Friday on a warrant charging him with her murder.

To Withdraw Charge.
W. R. S. Mann, father of the dead woman, told The Georgian that he would withdraw the murder warrant and order the release of his son-in-law. Dr. Barron probably will be freed just as soon as a coroner's jury has been notified.

Mrs. Mann was disappointed at the report, as he was sure his daughter had been poisoned. The family and friends of Dr. Barron are elated over the news.

"I knew my son was innocent and would be vindicated," cried Dr. J. M. P. Barron, father of the young physician, when the report was telephoned him.

Dr. Everhart in his report explained that he had thoroughly examined the various organs and had obtained only negative results. He described first for volatile poison, such as phosphorus, arsenic and chloroform, then for mineral poisons, such as arsenic, mercury and lead, and finally for organic poisons, such as strychnine, the alkaloids. He found the stomach inflamed, but said this was due to natural causes.

Finding Easily Awaited.
The early completion of the tests made the outlook favorable for Dr. Barron. It was urged by the local friends who are standing by the accused that if the presence of some alkaloid poison had been discovered by Dr. Everhart Tuesday it probably would have required him considerably longer to determine just what the alkaloid it was. Because Dr. Everhart finished so early in the day, his friends believed no case of any kind had been found. A report emanating from McDonough, however, that Dr. Everhart had discovered poison, and the excitement

THE PRISONER EXPOSES PRISON HORROR

Novelist, Free, Calls Atlanta Penitentiary 'Living Hell'

PRISON DID GIVE TO WILSON FUND

Underwood Has Fact Expunged
From Record When It Is Denied at White House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Oscar W. Underwood's charge that Thomas Portant Ryan contributed $10,000 to the campaign fund of President Wilson when he ran for Governor of New Jersey made on the floor of the House does not appear in The Congressional Record today. It was expunged by the Democratic floor leader after he had been told by the White House that Mr. Ryan received nothing from Mr. Ryan.

It can be said on the highest authority, however, that Mr. Underwood made the statement on information that came to him directly from persons so close to the multi-millionaire Wall street man that Mr. Underwood was justified in placing the greatest faith in its reliability and made the statement in his reply to the charges of Representative Hobson, of Alabama, with a full belief in its truth.

Harvey Sought Gift.
Notwithstanding the denial caused from the White House, the Georgian learned from one of its men chiefly instrumental in bringing about the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for Governor of New Jersey that Thomas Portant Ryan did contribute $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial campaign.

Colonel George Harvey, according to this newspaper's informant, sought and obtained the contribution. From the same source it was ascertained that Anne Smith, Jr., formerly United States Senator from New Jersey, who at the time of Dr. Wilson's nomination for Governor was then a dispirited "boss" of the Democratic party in his State, contributed to the neighborhood of $15,000 to elect Dr. Wilson Governor.

Over the long distance telephone James Smith, who is at his home in Elberon, N. J., was asked if Mr. Ryan had contributed $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial campaign. "I would respectfully refer you to Colonel George Harvey," he answered.

When a representative of The Georgian called Colonel Harvey's residence at Deal, N. J., on the telephone, a man who answered said:

"This is Colonel Harvey speaking." Questioned as to whether Mr. Ryan did or did not give $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial fund, he answered: "I am Colonel Harvey's secretary. Colonel Harvey is out dining with friends and will not return until after midnight."

Interest in Row.
President Wilson's break with Senator Smith over the New Jersey Senatorial contest in 1911, when Martin Smith was elected, led to the overthrow of Smith as the State Senator.

Intense interest was created in Congress by the debate between Representative Hobson and Congressman Underwood over charges brought by the former that Wall Street and the liquor interests were generous contributors to Underwood's campaign for the Presidential nomination.

Excerpts from remarks made by both Hobson and Underwood are here reprinted from The Congressional Record.

Boy Under Legal Age, Hurt in Mill, Gets Big Damages

A judgment of $2,000 for the loss of a finger by an 11-year-old boy while employed in a cotton mill was affirmed by the Supreme Court Wednesday morning. The defendant is the E. M. Cotton Mill Company of Whitfield County, and the plaintiff is Charlie Grant.

The decision is important, touching upon the child labor proposition. It was shown that the boy was under the legal age of 12. The company admitted knowing this.

"There can be no defense on the grounds of contributory negligence on the part of the boy, for his employment was illegal on account of him being under age," the decision reads.

Train Kills Boy on His Way to School; Chum Sees Tragedy

Thomas Jackson Harris, an 11-year-old schoolboy living with his parents on the McDonough road near the Federal prison, was killed by a Southern passenger train Wednesday at Sawtell's crossing.

The boy left home with his two brothers to go to the Lakewood Heights School. As a northbound freight train approached the crossing he ran ahead of his brothers and crossed the track. Standing on the track used by southbound trains, he was watching the freight pass and failed to see the passenger train which struck him.

The engineer made every effort to stop the train and after the accident took the body of the boy and backed the train to Woodland Station.

Commander Doolittle investigated the accident. There being eye-witnesses, an inquest will be held.

JULIAN HAWTHORNE, FREE MAN ONCE AGAIN

photographer.

Julian Hawthorne, the novelist, a free man Wednesday, after serving a term in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, told a startling story of his life as a convict, in which he called the Atlanta prison a "living hell," and said Warden Moyer was "quite a unit."

With all the emphasis at his command, Hawthorne arraigned conditions in the penitentiary as oppressive, cruel, and the equal of the most lurid descriptions in fiction.

"They are starving men in the name of economy," he said.

And Dr. W. J. Morton, of New York, his friend and fellow prisoner, nodded his head in corroboration.

"Prisoners are subjected to treatment that is nothing more than slow murder," said Dr. Morton, who is a practicing physician. "There is never enough to eat. The warden attempts to feed strong men on 9 cents a day, and when he succeeds he brags about it."

In the short time they remained in Atlanta after their release, Hawthorne and Dr. Morton talked much of conditions at the penitentiary, jumping from one detail to the other with a dramatic swiftness that made the story harrowing.

"Oh, yes, you hear of the clean cells in which the prisoners sleep," said Hawthorne. "But you never hear of the 'hole,' do you? For the slightest fault, sometimes for breaking a plate, sometimes for a little more or less, a prisoner is sent to the 'hole,' a place under the main building for solitary confinement.

Scores Prison Fare.
"But the element of hell is in the feeding," he continued, his eyes flashing. "There has never a man gone into the prison but who undergoes a steady deterioration, maybe slow, but always sure. The doctor will tell you that."

He waved at Dr. Morton, who nodded acquiescence.

"Men are put in prison to be cared for," said Dr. Morton, "not to be subjected to slow murder."

The two accepted the invitation of a Georgian reporter to ride about Atlanta. But once in the automobile, they forgot the city, and forgot to ask of one place after another. Hawthorne gripped the sides of his seat, and vowed vengeance on the system which he described.

And the treatment is always that of brute or criminal," he went on. "There are always the guards and the rifles, giving the public the impression that the men in prison are wild men, or desperadoes. And now and then men are clubbed for little or nothing. There is a guard named Dean whom I have seen strike a prisoner over the head, and for no justifiable offense."

Escaped Harsh Treatment.
The reporter wondered if Hawthorne himself had come in for such treatment, and asked him.

"No," said the novelist. "I have nothing at which to complain as to my treatment. But Dr. Morton and I were given pleasant work, and were well treated otherwise. But there is

RE-GRADING OF

The regrading and repaving of Whitehall street, between Mitchell and Trinity avenue, involving the expenditure of approximately $15,000, was held up Wednesday morning for the filing of a sensational petition for injunction by W. L. Kelley, proprietor of the Gray Iron company at No. 119 Whitehall street.

Kelley filed an order restraining the city and county from proceeding with the work pending a hearing next Saturday.

Mr. Kelley makes charges that the city officials deliberately framed a resolution ordering the work which is threatened to devote the taxpayers' money to the city of Atlanta is illegally borrowing money.

The County Commissioners, he said, are threatening to use funds of Polk County, which are leased for other purposes, in furthering and carrying out the illegal contract.

According to the petition, the resolution adopted by the city and county in 1911, which authorized the regrading of Whitehall street, provided that the property owners should pay into the city treasury the sum of $7,875, which is the difference between the estimated cost and the appropriation, and that this has never been paid, and further that it is not a payment but a loan, which is held to be illegal on the grounds that the City of Atlanta is without authority to contract such a debt.

"The resolution is so framed," the petitioner says, "and the silence is so complete in regard to the resolution, that it is a violation of the law."

Harvard Student to Seek Sea Treasures

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Oct. 15.—Roland P. Kelley, a Harvard junior, will lead a party of 10 to South American waters in search of two uncharted islands in which, according to the will of R. L. Kelley, his grandfather, lies a treasure of pearls.

The elder Kelley in his will requested his grandson to search for these treasure fields before his third birthday.

and forgot to ask of one place after another. Hawthorne gripped the sides of his seat, and showed vengeance on the watch which he described.

"And the treatment is always that of the bestial criminals," he went on. "There are no guards on the ships, giving the public the impression that the men in prison are wild men, desperadoes. And now and then the men are dubbed for little offenses. There is a guard named 'Old Bill' who is a real old-fashioned prisoner over the head, and few men justifiable offense."

Escaped Harsh Treatment

The reporter wondered if Hawthorne himself had come to any such treatment, and asked him:

MYSTERY IN HAUG CASE OPENS PRISONERS CHAINED IN DUNGEON, CHARGES HAWTHORNE, FREED

Underwood Has Fact Expunged
From Record When It Is Denied at White House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Reports by way of Wall street that the United States court Tacoma when he was arrested, but not credited at the Navy Department to-day, the vessel's captain reported her arrival at Vera Cruz yesterday, but no message from the ship has been received since then.

NASHVILLE, Oct. 15.—The Tennessee Railroad Commission cited the Louisville and Nashville Railroad authorities to appear before it in Nashville October 16 to show cause why it should not put on a 2-12-cent passenger rate in Tennessee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Aviator Anthony Jannus and a passenger, E. B. Hall, were arrested here this afternoon while they were seeking some trace of Arthur J. Javel, the aviator who had been missing since Monday. Their machine caught fire while they were 600 feet in the air, but Jannus and the machine dived 500 feet. Then it turned turtle. It fell into marshy ground.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Henry Spencer, the "Linn" teacher-slayer, refused to accept counsel for defense when he appeared before Judge Mazzini Slosser, a circuit court judge, yesterday noon for the murder of Mrs. Mildred Spencer. He said he did not want any lawyers, declared Spencer.

CHATTANOOGA, Oct. 15.—The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, in a special session here, selected Detroit this afternoon as the next meeting place. The election officers will take place "robably tomorrow."

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Officials of the New York baseball club today notified before the Grand Jury which is investigating the scandalous sale of world series tickets. President Cornelius J. Sullivan and Secretary John B. Foster also brought documentary evidence along with them and declared they were willing to abide by any recommendations of the sale of tickets in the future the jury might make.

GLASGOW, Oct. 15.—Women pelted the preceding magistrate with stones today when he refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus for the arrest of Mrs. M. J. Morrison, who was arrested by the Glasgow police for alleged participation in a strike. The women were shouting "Free M. J. Morrison" and "Free the women."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The House adjourned today when the attempt was made to obtain a writ of habeas corpus for the arrest of Mrs. M. J. Morrison, who was arrested by the Glasgow police for alleged participation in a strike. The women were shouting "Free M. J. Morrison" and "Free the women."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Underwood's charge that Thomas Fortune Ryan contributed $10,000 to the campaign fund of President Wilson when he ran for Governor of New Jersey made on the floor of the House does not appear in the Congressional Record to-day. It was expunged by the Democratic floor leader after he had been told by the White House that Mr. Wilson had received nothing from Mr. Ryan.

It can be said the highest authority, however, that Mr. Underwood made the statement on information that came to him directly from persons so close to the multi-millionaire Wall street man that Mr. Underwood was justified in placing the greatest faith in its reliability and made the statement in his reply to the charges of Representative Hobson, of Alabama, with a full belief in its truth.

Harvey Sought Gift.
Notwithstanding the denial issued from the White House, The Georgian learned from one of its most reliable informants in bringing about the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for Governor of New Jersey that Thomas Fortune Ryan did contribute $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial campaign.

Colonel George Harvey, according to this newspaper's informant, sought and obtained the contribution. From the same source it was ascertained that James Smith, Jr., formerly United States Senator from New Jersey, who at the time of Dr. Wilson's nomination for Governor was the undisputed "boss" of the Democratic party in his State, introduced in the neighborhood of $75,000 to elect Dr. Wilson Governor.

Over the long-distance telephone James Smith, who is at his home in Elmhurst, N. J., was asked if Mr. Ryan had contributed $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial campaign. "I would respectfully refer you to Colonel George Harvey," he answered.

When a representative of The Georgian called Colonel Harvey's residence at Deal, N. J., on the telephone, a man who answered said: "This is Colonel Harvey, speaking." Questioned as to whether Mr. Ryan did or did not give $10,000 to the Wilson gubernatorial fund, he answered: "I am Colonel Harvey's secretary. Colonel Harvey is out dining with friends and will not return until after midnight."

Interest in Rev.
President Wilson's break with Senator Smith over the New Jersey Senator's contract in 1911, when Martin was elected, led to the overthrow of Smith as the State leader.

Intense interest was created in Congress by the debate between Representative Hobson and Congressman Underwood over charges brought by the former that Wall Street and the liquor interests were generous contributors to Underwood's campaign for the Presidential nomination.

Excerpts from remarks made by both Hobson and Underwood are here reprinted from The Congressional Record.

Mr. Hobson, rising to a question of personal privilege, referring to his speech at Vicksburg, Miss., in the preliminary campaign for the Presidency, said: "I am a member of the committee on the part of the President's campaign."

Underwood, in his reply, said: "I am a member of the committee on the part of the President's campaign."

DORSEY GATHERS PROOF AGAINST BIAS CHARGES

Equips Himself for Bitter Fight Against New Trial Demand of Frank's Lawyers.

Armed with affidavits from A. H. Hines and every other member of the Frank jury whose testimony has been placed under suspicion, Solicitor General Hugh A. Dorsey will return to Atlanta Tuesday night to continue the preparation of his answer to the motion for a new trial made by Frank's lawyers.

With his assistant A. M. Stephens, the Solicitor has been working day and night on the voluminous task of reviewing the hundreds of pages of typewritten manuscripts submitted by the defense in the allocation of the 11 jurors for a new trial. The work, remaining to be done, the Solicitor believes can be accomplished in five days in his Atlanta office. He may ask for another week's postponement of the hearing on the motion.

Dorsey has equipped himself to make a bitter fight upon the charges of prejudice made by Frank's lawyers against Hines, Stephens, Hines and other jurors. He anticipates that the defense will lay greatest stress on the allocation and believes that if effective, it will establish any degree of bias on the part of any of the jurors who will have a new impartial advantage, possibly sufficient to win a new trial.

Hines Denies Prejudice.

Hines' affidavit denies categorically and emphatically that he had any prejudice against Frank before he took the oath to swear before the jury. He says that he has been made aware of the fact that he is being made a party to the trial and that he is being made a party to the trial and that he is being made a party to the trial.

Frank Lawyering.

While Dorsey has been reviewing section by section the affidavits of the jurors, he has been making a motion for a new trial, Frank's lawyers have been making a motion for a new trial, Frank's lawyers have been making a motion for a new trial, Frank's lawyers have been making a motion for a new trial.

Attorneys for the defense have secured that they have an overwhelming mass of evidence showing prejudice and that they therefore make be granted a new trial.

DORSEY BACK TO NEW AFFAIRS; MORE DELAY IN APPEAL FIGHT LIKELY

Solicitor General Dorsey entered at once into the fight to prevent a new trial for Leo M. Frank on his return to Atlanta Wednesday morning. He came to this city to complete his preparation for the arguments and to hear next Saturday before Judge J. L. S. Rouse. For a week and a half he had been working almost continually on the case in Valdosta, where he went with his assistant, A. E. Stephens, to avoid interruption.

The solicitor was interviewed Wednesday in a flood of letters and court documents that had accumulated during his absence. He was fearful that the preparation in time for the hearing Saturday, the indication being that a further delay would be asked until Wednesday or Saturday of next week. He made arrangements soon after his return for a conference with the attorneys for the defense to whom he expected to suggest certain changes in the brief of evidence before it was brought into court.

Will Require More Time.
These changes, if agreed upon, will require some time to complete and the solicitor also has yet to follow up several lines of investigation which the allegations of the defense have compelled him to look into. Those returned to the city with a brief of affidavits relating to the alleged bias of jurors Hendrix and others, and a number of affidavits relating to the matter which is being given extensive publicity in the defense. The solicitor would not say whether he had found any grounds for the charges of prejudice against the jurors, but the forensic manner with which he plunged into the case on his return appeared to indicate that he was prepared to combat every reason and every allegation advanced by the defense.

The large number of affidavits obtained by the defense has complicated the work of the solicitor. Frank's lawyers not only obtained depositions from leading citizens to testify to the trustworthiness and veracity of the affidavits.

It is believed that the solicitor, if he pursues the thoroughgoing policy that marked his conduct of the Frank case, will have made a statement before he goes into court to argue the question of a new trial.

Will Not Make Forecast.
Solicitor Dorsey would not express his opinion Wednesday as to the probable outcome of the argument for a new trial, except to say that he was read satisfied with the work he had been able to accomplish while in Valdosta, where he went with his assistant, A. E. Stephens, to avoid interruption. He said that he was not sure of the chances of his case against Hendrix, but would not disclose the results of his investigation.

Frank's lawyers have been ready to go ahead with the hearing for some time, but during the delay necessary to the solicitor's review of their reasons they have continued in their investigation of alleged affidavits. Frank's lawyers have been ready to go ahead with the hearing for some time, but during the delay necessary to the solicitor's review of their reasons they have continued in their investigation of alleged affidavits.

The event, which was the first royal wedding in England since 1818, when Princess Margaret of Connaught became the bride of the Crown Prince of Sweden, was gorgeous to every report.

An account of the royal wedding suffragettes to break up the wedding, a word line of police and soldiers was drawn about the palace and along the main route traveled by the guests.

Charges to Royal Ceremonies.
The suffragettes gathered on the steps in front of the palace, carrying a banner of suffrage, and sang into the wind. The police and soldiers were ordered to clear the area.

and and queen, Maori of Norway. The women rushed into the street and surrounded the carriage with suffrage literature, demanding to see the king of "Votes for women". The carriage started down the street at this second attempt. A man charged upon the women and a general fight followed.

Parade Plan Blocked.
Suffragette leaders, who were arrested last night, had planned to lead an army of "state-devised" among the suffragettes, into St. James Palace. It was possible, but they were frustrated.

The girls were magnificent, being every variety of color. In keeping with the other imperial appointments of the evening, the girls wore uniforms of various kinds. The wedding party was of white, champagne and gold. The rain was not a hindrance to the ceremony.

The ceremony was held in the Chapel Royal, at St. James Palace. The bride was Alexandra, Duchess of York, and the groom was Prince Arthur of Connaught.

Lewis of Carrollton, who was arrested several months ago and bound over to the Criminal Court after an episode with Miss Lila McCullum, of War, Wednesday issued an informal statement on the attempt to injure him. The Police County Grand Jury will probably meet Friday.

Dr. Lewis charges that the whole affair is a scheme to ruin him and get money out of him. He reiterated the statement that he had brought the girl to Atlanta for treatment with the full knowledge of her parents.

Broyles Said To Be Willing To Admit Guilt

Friend of Stenographer in Letter to Georgian Pleads for Fair Treatment.

In a letter to The Georgian a friend of Emerson Broyles, the stenographer who is being held at police headquarters on 15 charges, including forgery, cheating and stealing, and their plots in behalf of the young man.

The letter declares that the public has been given a wrong impression of Broyles' attitude in the case, which it would be well to have under a marked change since his imprisonment.

The letter in full is as follows: "In behalf of Emerson Broyles, the writer wishes to make some corrections to the articles published in your paper Monday and Tuesday afternoon."

This statement is made because it is evident that Mr. Broyles' case and his attitude in the matter have been misrepresented to the public in several places.

Admitted He Had No Side.
First When Mr. Broyles made a statement to your reporter, this was not done with any sense of pride whatever. In fact, as the writer understands it, he made an open statement, but only answered a few questions asked by your reporter as to what led him into the trouble, and the reporter claiming that he came to get his (Broyles') side of the question. As in there still being as many as 40 clerks unemployed for this is a mistake as also was the statement in Monday's edition that $1,000 was involved.

As yet no case has been made against Broyles, he only being held on suspicion. He was not his way back to Atlanta of his own free will and accord when arrested.

In regard to the Stenographers' Passenger Association charge, this was done while he was in their employ and not after he went to work for Mr. Williamson. The information concerning his work with the association was gained from outside sources, as well as several other statements accredited to Mr. Broyles.

The young man expresses himself as being perfectly willing to make a full and free confession of his mistakes and he fully realizes to what the laws of law brought him. His trial on five charges of forgery was set for Wednesday afternoon.

Will Reform if Pardoned.
Representing in Broyles since his incarceration at the station house. He is looking for a parole and he is confident in the belief that he will be accepted one.

If they will pardon me I will never do it again," he said. "I will show them that I can live within my salary and prove that I can be a man. I am deeply sorry for my acts, for now I realize what I have done. I know that I will be pardoned, so I can show just what I am."

It is understood that the charges against Broyles will be pushed strong.

Several employees of the department were attacked by diphtheria and every effort is being made to prevent a further spreading of the disease.

Atlanta Woman Sues Alabama Physician

She also charges her husband threatened her life.

DORSEY BACK TO COURT AFFIDAVITS; MORE DELAY IN APPEAL FIGHT LIKELY

Solicitor General Dorsey entered an appeal into the fight to prevent a new trial for Leo M. Frank on his return to Atlanta Wednesday morning. He came to this city to complete his preparation for the arguments set for hearing next Saturday before Judge J. R. Ross. For a week and a half he had been working almost constantly on the case in Valdosta, where he went with his assistant, A. R. Stephens, to avoid interruption.

The Solicitor was immersed Wednesday in a flood of letters and court documents that had accumulated during his absence. He was fearful that he would be unable to complete his preparations in time for the hearing Saturday. The indications being that a further delay would be asked until the second of next week.

He made arrangements soon after his return for a conference with the attorneys for the defense to whom he expected to suggest certain changes in the brief of evidence before it was brought into court.

Will Require More Time.

These changes, if agreed upon, will require some time to complete, and the Solicitor also has yet to follow up several lines of investigation which the allegations of the defense have compelled him to look into.

Dorsey turned to the city with a brief of affidavits relating to the alleged bias of Jurors Hendon and Johnson, but he has still a number of persons to interview on this matter, which he is being given extraordinary stress by the defense. The Solicitor would not say whether he had found any grounds for the charges of prejudice against the jurors, but the energetic manner with which he plunged into the case on his return appeared to indicate that he was prepared to combat every reason and every allegation advanced by the defense.

The large number of affidavits taken by the defense has complicated the work of the Solicitor. Frank's lawyers not only obtained depositions charging that Hendon and other jurors had expressed their belief in Frank's guilt before the trial took place, but they rounded up scores of other leading citizens to testify to the truthfulness and veracity of the original affidavits.

It is believed that the Solicitor, if he pursues the thoroughgoing policy that marked his conduct of the Frank trial, will investigate the character and reputation of practically every man who has made a sworn statement before he goes into court to argue the question of a new trial.

Will Not Make Forecast.

Solicitor Dorsey would not express any opinion as to the probable outcome of the argument for a new trial, except to say that he was well satisfied with the work he had been able to accomplish while in Valdosta, where he went so as not to be subjected to the usual office interruptions. He is still working on the charges of bias against Hendon, but would not disclose the results of his investigation.

Frank's lawyers have been ready to go ahead with the hearing for some time, but during the delay they have been investigating the motives of the persons who have continued to insist on the bias of Hendon's attitude toward Frank prior to the trial and claim to have uncovered a great deal more evidence of the bias and prejudice against the defendant.

They assert that on Hendon's remarks before the trial a new trial should be granted without the necessity of producing any other reasons for the conflict they will win in their fight.

W. P. Venable, Atlanta Banker, Praises Golf Champion, Quimet

"Quimet is not overrated a bit," declared W. P. Venable of the Travelers' Bank and Trust Company, who returned Wednesday from the Boston Business Convention.

When I went up to Boston I was anxious to play with him, and a mutual friend, a Pittsburg man, had the match practically arranged.

The next day we were playing when Quimet and two other men came up from behind. It was plain we were delaying them, and we let them go through. They went by like whirlwinds. I saw him get on the putting green in two on a 150-yard hole.

I decided right then that he would not go far out of playing with me, and we called it off.

AFFINITY CHARGE IS DENIED BY MRS. PIERCE

Dentist's Wife, Sued for Divorce, Calls Husband Weakling—Not to Fight if Given Child.

"I am infatuated with no man. My twenty years of married life with Dr. Pierce was enough to last me until I die. I wouldn't even smile at the finest man in the world. A child burned, dress fire."

So said Mrs. Susan R. Pierce, wife of Dr. J. M. Pierce, a dentist, who brought suit for divorce, charging his wife with being infatuated with another. The petition also sets forth that Mrs. Pierce and a man member of the Pondera Avenue Baptist Church were turned out of the church because of her infatuation.

"My husband was a jealous, raging man—a weakling who would not defend his wife or even try to protect her. Always suspicious, he was ready, and willing to believe anything he heard. When I was turned out of the church Dr. Pierce could have covered my name of the state, but he just stood by and looked on."

Devoted to Daughters.

While Mrs. Pierce was talking her 4-year-old daughter, Jeanette, came home from the grocery, her pump little arms loaded with groceries. Mrs. Pierce, a motherly-looking woman with a checked gingham house dress and wearing glasses, took the groceries from the child.

"One could hardly look upon the gingham apron, the eyeglasses and that pretty little child and connect them with a petition for a divorce."

"What have you to say concerning the trouble at church?" Mrs. Pierce was asked.

Mrs. Pierce hesitated, then sent the child from the room and told the story. There were tears in her eyes.

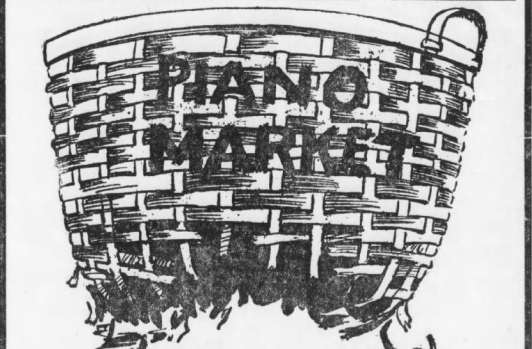

Accused New Deed.

"A man now dead," she started, "went to the minister of the Pondera Avenue Baptist Church, where I belonged and said he had seen Dr. Thomas, also a member of the church, and myself in company at Peter's Park. An investigation followed and we were asked to leave the church."

"On the night I was supposed to have been with that man I was with my husband, and if he had wanted it he could have proved my innocence."

"If my husband will not try to get possession of Jeanette I do not think I will fight the case. I told him who we separated last April that if he would leave me alone he could be a divorcee and I would not fight it. I think he could have been kind enough to have said for one without trying to distance both of us."

BOMB REPORTED TO HAVE FIRED VOLTURNO

Owners Deny, However, That the Vessel Had Been Threatened by Striking Seamen.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Local officials of the Uranium line today refused to put any credence in a sensational cable report from Liverpool that a bomb explosion in the hold of the Volturmo may have set the fire which cost over 100 lives.

General Manager Thomas, of the line, branded the story as "absurd."

According to the report from Liverpool, Captain Timmer, of the Volturmo, Naval Reserve, asserted his belief that the fire had been caused by a disgruntled seaman to place a bomb in the hold of the ship.

First the liner in mid-ocean, Captain Timmer said he received a letter shortly before the Volturmo sailed saying:

"If the Uranium line does not give us our demands their ships will be turned at sea."

The letter purported to come from a seaman on the liner.

Marine labor troubles have aggravated British shipping for a year.

Revised figures of the deaths in the Volturmo disaster, issued today by the Uranium line, reduced the number of dead to 104 and placed the number of saved at 118.

50 Men From Lost Ship Reach Port.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian, LIVERPOOL, Oct. 14.—Bearing 39 survivors of the burned Uranium line Volturmo, the steamer Devonian, one of the vessels in the rescue fleet, arrived here today. Pathetic scenes attended the meeting of survivors with relatives and friends.

Many of the survivors were in the hospital of the ship, suffering from burns, influenza brought on by exposure or from delirium resulting from their terrible experience.

Clothing, funds and other necessities were furnished to the survivors, some of whom saved anything from their effects on the ship.

Tribute to the bravery of Captain Francis Inch of the Volturmo, as paid by Captain Burr, of the Devonian, the first ship to answer the S. O. S. calls of the distressed liner.

Volturmo Survivors Hold Praise Service.

HAVER, FRANCE, Oct. 14.—Immediately after the French liner Devonian, bearing 41 survivors from the Volturmo disaster, arrived in port today the refugees from the burned liner knelt upon the pier and gave thanks to God for safe delivery from death on the high seas.

All of the survivors were showing in some way the effects of their terrible and tragic experience.

FEW INJURIES NOW HAMPER TECH SQUAD

THE Yellow Jackets came through the game with Chattanooga in pretty good condition. The only injuries were to Patten, who sprained his ankle, and Lucas and Cushman, who sprained their elbows. All of these will be back in the game Saturday, as the injuries are not serious. Lucas' shoulder is coming along nicely also, and is expected to get out in uniform yesterday afternoon.

Coach Hoffman says he is satisfied with the offensive strength the team showed, but that their defense was woefully weak. He intends to scrimmage the varsity on defense all this week. The only offensive work will be on some new plays that will be used in the November games.

The second half was a little against the scrum. Monday afternoon, and showed that they could play the game nearly as well as the regulars. The first half against the season began in the scrimmage yesterday afternoon, when one of the scrum broke his collarbone. This is the first time that has happened in the scrum since the first game.

MERCER PLANS DEFENSIVE GAME AGAINST TECH

MACON, Ga., Oct. 14.—Coach Lewis Harbage of the Mercer football team, stated yesterday that he would probably defeat a great deal of the defensive abilities to stop Coach Harbage's Yellow Jackets in the game at Tech. Saturday afternoon.

Harbage's position on this point is further strengthened by the fact that during the practice yesterday afternoon he based most of the work on the defense and depended very little on his offense.

The Mercer squad has improved considerably since the game with Atlanta ten days ago and it is expected that Mercer will make an excellent showing against the Mercer team in Atlanta Saturday morning.

A large crowd of Mercer fans is expected to be in the stands at the game at Tech. Saturday morning. The Mercer team is expected to be in the stands at the game at Tech. Saturday morning.

The Long, Tenacious Life of the Smoke Nuisance

It Still Hovers Over Atlanta, But Determined Action by Council Could Kill It Quickly.

Atlanta's smoke nuisance is as old as the city itself. For years it thrived on lax laws and polluted the finest air enjoyed by any city east of the Mississippi river.

During the last twelve months the cloud that once hovered over us has constantly become thinner and weaker.

For such work of relief as has been accomplished, the citizens of Atlanta should give the authorities thanks.

Having been relieved partially, however, it will not do for the city to permit either itself or the City Council to think that Atlanta is satisfied, and that the smoke problem, even partially solved, is a thing of the past.

The smoke laws are not all they should be, of course. The work consummated under them, therefore, necessarily would be incomplete, in any event.

A number of office buildings, apartment houses, hotels, and industrial plants have complied with the ordinance. All flagrant violators, with a few exceptions, have been brought within reasonable limits of submission, relatively speaking. Others are making such changes as soon will make submission upon their part more nearly an accomplished fact.

For these things, Atlanta should render thanks and appreciation to whomsoever the same are due. The smoke nuisance has been relieved to some extent—that admission may be made ungrudgingly.

Experts believe that additional ordinances should be passed, AND THE SOONER THE BETTER!

The limits in which black smoke may be released should be cut down from twelve to six minutes in each hour. These same experts say further that residences with 1,000 feet of radiation, or more, should be included within the new ordinance.

The railroads are reported to be "considering" still what they may do to help Atlanta in getting rid of its superabundance of smoke and grime, but beyond "considering," the roads do not seem to have performed extensively.

Finally, the City Council appears to have more or less forgotten the smoke problem, and since last year's agitation—vehement enough, while it lasted—that honorable body has left the Smoke Board to proceed along the lonesome road to reform rather to itself! But for the fact that council had a little more to say than anybody about the smoke nuisance originally, its late indifference might not be so marked.

Over and beyond all that has been done, however—which isn't so very much—the big, compelling, and annoying fact remains that Atlanta STILL SUFFERS FAR BEYOND HER DESERVE BY REASON OF THE SMOKE NUISANCE!

The mere circumstance that the trouble isn't as acute as it was a year ago—not quite so acute, anyway—doesn't set off the larger circumstance that IT YET IS ACUTE BEYOND REASON.

Atlanta can get rid of its smoke—surely Atlanta CAN do that.

Atlanta must go the limit in the effort, at least!

Appearance, comfort and health demand that this beautiful city be freed of this smoke nuisance—freed utterly and for all time!

The Smoke Board's expressed opinion that it "may be years yet before Atlanta is freed of its unnecessary smoke" will not do. It fails to satisfy in any measure even the most highly appreciative ones with respect to the work already effected.

In one's honest and more or less strenuous endeavor to keep his eye on the good already accomplished, it is still impossible for him not to see that a vast work yet remains to be done!

WHAT WILL THE AUTHORITIES DO ABOUT IT?

The smoke we have with us always—or have had, too far. What the people want is to see it removed from the attention of their senses generally.

Atlanta should be so overwhelmingly ASHAMED of its smoke nuisance that the question of its rapid abatement should go unchallenged!

And while duly appreciative, as aforesaid, of what has gone before—the City Council should renew its anti-smoke endeavor, AND SHOW THE PEOPLE OF THIS CITY THE WAY TO A QUICK END OF THE LONG AND TORTUOUS ROAD THEY TOO LONG HAVE TRAVELED!

The Red Coats in Boston

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

WHEN 141 years ago, the two regiments of British regulars landed at Boston, it was written down in the Book of Fate that the War of the Revolution was on. To be sure, the meeting of the Continental Congress was full six years in the future, and Lexington battle was not to be for nearly seven years, but the coming of the redcoats was King George's challenge to the colonists, which they were sure to pick up, answering the King's arguments in kind, giving him bullet for bullet and sword-thrust for sword-thrust.

The affairs of men, no less than the phenomena of the material world, are determined by law. Something happens—and then, in consequence of that something, something else happens. It is quite possible that but for the sailing of the redcoats the Peace of St. Germain would have been waving over the whole of the North American continent. It was the King's attempt to awaken the reasonable arguments of the colonies with cannon and musketry that made the breach permanent and the separation inevitable.

It was the way that had been popular for countless years, the way by which despots had been settling things from the beginning of history, and the stubborn, thick-headed King did not realize that a new time had come, a time in which reason rather than brute force was to be the final judge in all great disputes, and be blindly wedded on to its doom.

As Americans, the proud citizens of the world's greatest and noblest nation, we are very glad that the regulars came to Boston, for it has turned out that the separation from the mother country was the best thing that could have happened for America, for England and for the whole human race. Nevertheless, we can not help thinking of what might have been but for the transiting of the redcoats through Boston streets.

The Invisible Highways of the Air

"Long Observation Has Shown That There Exists Well-Marked Tracks Which Migrating Birds Followed Year After Year and They Evidently Have Landmarks to Guide Them."

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

I HAVE just learned of a singular thing which happened this autumn on the famous pass of the Great St. Bernard over the Alps.

The hospitable monks in the monastery at the summit of the pass, at an elevation of more than 8,000 feet above sea-level, were astonished one evening to see, in the midst of a sudden snowstorm, a black cloud approaching from the north.

The strange apparition soon resolved itself into a vast flock of swallows, which had apparently been driven from their road near the beginning of their annual migration toward the sunnier lands on the south of the great mountains. Probably they had been confused, by the driving storm.

The monks instantly opened wide all their doors and windows, and the poor birds, accepting the invitation in the spirit in which it was offered, immediately swarmed into the warm halls by thousands, and even flew into the bedrooms, quickly descending into the genial atmosphere of Italy.

Then the good monks went forth amid the newly fallen snow, and with heavy hearts found hundreds of birds scattered about on the mountain side, where they had perished, being unable in the blinding storm to find their way, with their comrades, into the hospitable shelter of the monastery.

This incident, so full of the milk of human kindness, recalls one of the great mysteries of bird life. It is known that few species of birds remain in northern climes during the winter. With unerring instinct they discern the approaching close of the warm season, and start in time to reach more sunny lands before they are overtaken by the invading snows.

Long observation has shown that there exist well-marked tracks which these migrating birds follow year after year on their way both to the south in autumn and back to the north in spring. They go in immense flocks, travel thousands of miles, and only a few of their aerial road-travelers take the same invisible way through the air. Many of them fly at great heights, and evidently they have landmarks to guide them.

When an aviator starts in his aeroplane on a long voyage he has on a proved road before him a map of the country that intends to traverse, without which he would inevitably lose his way.

Even with his map he often becomes helpless when darkness covers the land. The birds have no maps, but night can not lead them astray. They must possess a topographic, or geographic, sense superior to ours. They know the mountains and plains and the points of the compass better than we do.

Sometimes their way lies for long distances over the sea. That does not disconcert them. If they encounter a ship they will, occasionally, rest their weary wings on its spars, but when they resume their course there is no hesitation. They are not troubled, like the mariner, who looks with equal wonder upon their arrival and departure, with questions of latitude and longitude.

They have no need to consult the pole star, or to "shoot the sun," in order to find out where they are. They carry no chronometers, and their laborer science exceeds the knowledge of the Nautical Almanac.

There are spots on the earth which are the great crossroads for the aerial travelers. The Rock of Gibraltar is one of these. There the routes of the birds come to a focus. Before they transit the straits to spread over Africa, the winged invaders take the impregnable fortress rock by storm. From north, northeast, northwest, they pass after the constant line of long land lying on the Mediterranean shore, and make it their rendezvous for the final flight to the south. Many nations of birds encounter there, as at a great caravan, where meeting caravans pass the night and refresh themselves. A hundred avian tongues are spoken at once among the flower gardens and precipitous rocks of the town and citadel.

The Bosphorus is another center of bird roads. They come from Germany, Austria and even Sweden. In our country the Mississippi Valley is a great route for bird migration. Other routes lie along the Atlantic Coast.

It was long before many naturalists could persuade themselves that birds really traveled so far, though the air twice every year. Even the great observer Gilbert White was misled, all his life, by the false notion that many swallows instead of quitting England for the winter passed the frosty months slumbering, like hibernating animals, in sheltered spots, and even buried in mud!

Those who know most about the life of the inhabitants of the air find the most mystery in it. Says Henri Fabre, the veteran naturalist, whom France has recently honored with honors: "We talk wonderfully about the X-rays which traverse opaque bodies and photograph hidden things. A fine discovery!"

But how insignificant in comparison with the astonishment that the future holds in store for us when better instructed in the reasons of things and supplementing by art the feebleness of our senses, we shall rival, however imperfectly, the sensuous acuteness of wild animals.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox on Protecting Birds

Boys Should Be Taught Not to Shoot Them, and Schools and Mothers Should Combine to This End.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

(Copyright, 1913, EAR FRIEND)

"Please permit us to call your attention to a great and serious evil now menacing our insect-eating birds. Millions of small birds in migration are destroyed yearly by the people of the Southern States and used as food. This destruction, now increasing, is having serious effect on the numbers of song birds in the North. Songbirds are armed with guns, and many are proficient in other means of destruction. In the North, also, large numbers of foreign laborers coming from Europe kill small birds for food. It is only recently that little birds were sold in large quantities in New York City, and they are still sold by thousands in the South."

The Audubon societies, which have already checked the killing of native birds for military purposes, now propose to stop the slaughter of song birds for food in this country. This is a stupendous task. It must be done by educating the public through the schools, the press and the clergy, and by securing better laws and better enforcement of THE LAWS now on the statute books. The scarcity of robins, bluebirds and bobolinks is becoming noticeable over wide areas. Will you not help us to the best of your ability to stop the slaughter which is now depopulating our fields and woods of feathered songsters? A word of encouragement will be appreciated.

Yours sincerely,

"T. GILBERT PEARSON, Secretary."

It ought to reach the hearts of mothers of young sons who have arrived at an age where they want

Not one boy in a thousand receives this preparation and guidance.

The average boy teases for a gun, and receives it as a birthday or Christmas gift, and proceeds to use it after being told to "be careful by the 'loving parent,' who goes away and leaves him to his amusement."

At one of the resorts not far from the city, a woman made her neighborly unpopularity with her neighbors (mothers of sons of the same age), by telling the boys they must not aim at or shoot birds of any kind on her grounds. Her advice was considered unneighborly and her words of advice to the boys to study bird lore and learn kindness were considered impertinent.

There is nothing our public schools need more than to include this education which the Audubon Society offers in the school courses. If you, dear madam, who peruse these lines, want to help make this beautiful world more beautiful and less sad, if you want to aid in forming higher ideals and kinder instincts in the rising generation, in ordering or trimming your autumn hat try and use good common sense, and a little individual taste, and wear a hat which is becoming and beautiful and entirely devoid of any part of a dead bird. Plumes from the ostrich do not mean the destruction of that bird, for the ostrich is a robust fowl and the plumes grow while the ostrich exists, just as the goose grows new down each year, but beak plumes, those are exquisite grasses and flowers, and loose and jets, and velvets and ribbons and other trimmings which can make headgear attractive.

Use your good taste and ask your milliner to build you a hat that is beautiful and fast.

Remember the copper and silver grates mean the death and torture of the mother birds, and the slow starvation of their young as a rule. Any refined woman should be ashamed to be seen wearing a silver grates. Spun glass and preserved grasses and ferns produce quite as artistic effects.

Help the Audubon Society save birds.

Stars and Stripes

Don't hear of any one cutting the price of the Stars and Stripes since the tariff was lowered.

Arkansas compels citizens to give free range of land for the use of the Stars and Stripes. Who wants a defeated cause?

Who has been a "Loyalist" (firm has been sent to college by the Stars and Stripes). Think if the penalty is constitutional.

REACHING

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

A baby might reach for its mother's hand When it hears the well-known voice:

As a pilgrim might reach in a foreign land For a friend with whom to rejoice;

Roaming about o'er a desert bare I reach for you—and you are not there.

I have tried so long for a second choice That I know 'tis a fruitless quest;

I have slaved so long for your gentle voice That I pray for the endless rest.

Even in dreams and delirium I reach for you—and you never come.

The endless rest! 'Tis the only boon I ask of the powers that be;

The rest that follows the mystic swoon This side of Eternity.

Out in the Star Land vague and vast, If I reach for you, will you come at last?

Every man should know how to use a gun and revolver. There are occasions when such knowledge is important.

But there is no part of a youth's education which needs a more careful and wise preparation, and guidance, than this.
