

MANY HEAR DISCUSSION ON CAPITAL AND LABOR

Marks Defends Aims of Organized Labor Following Criticism of Unions by Alston

Thousands of 1,000 people gathered at the grand opera house Sunday afternoon to hear the address on the subject of capital and labor and to take part in a general discussion which was scheduled to follow. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Men and Pajamas' Friends' Movement and the Women's Pajamas' Friends' Movement. A widespread interest in the subject under discussion.

The general discussion of labor problem which took place after the conclusion of the regular scheduled program proved the real feature of the evening. The speaker, who was one of the hundred of the crowd took advantage of the opportunity either to present their views or to answer the questions they believed were pertinent. The speaker, particularly the following: John H. Miller, the Colorado mine strike and the case of the McNamee case, were among the subjects touched on in the discussion. A little more than an hour, the general discussion filled almost twice the time.

TALKS ON CAPITAL.

John H. Miller, president of the state labor association, who was the first selected speaker, used "Capital" as his subject.

Outlining the economic principles which underlie the labor problem, Mr. Miller stated that the laborer is not a mere tool, but a human being, and that the employer is not a mere employer, but a human being. He pointed out the fact that the laborer is not a mere tool, but a human being, and that the employer is not a mere employer, but a human being.

TECH COMMITTEES WANT $30,000 BY THURSDAY

Seventy Thousand of One Hundred Thousand Fund Has Been Raised

Additional workers from the chamber of commerce were appointed Monday to assist the "Flying Squadron" already appointed by that body, and the original Greater Tech committee to close up the fund for Greater Tech within the next two or three days.

With seventy thousand of the one hundred thousand dollars to be secured already in hand the committee believe that the matter of finishing the fund may be completed early in the week.

However, the committee have pledged themselves to see that the fund succeeds, and have long it takes to complete the one hundred thousand dollars in the campaign until it is ended.

The luncheon meetings at the Piedmont hotel will be the center of activity in the campaign until it is ended. All the workers and friends of Tech have been invited to attend these meetings. A daily report of the amount of the subscriptions on hand will be made this week, until the fund is completed.

The bulletin sent out from the headquarters of the "Flying Squadron" for Monday was novel. It was in the form of a "problem" as follows:

Problem in lower mathematics: Find the unknown quantity.

Let X equal $70,000 already subscribed by Atlanta toward the $100,000 necessary to erect the building, and install the machinery.

Let Z equal the remaining amount necessary to erect the building and install the machinery.

Then X plus Y plus Z equals the new problem.

Find Z by the subscription method. Come to the luncheon today, 1:15 p. m., Room 123, Piedmont hotel, with you.

RAILROADS MUST PAY FOR BRIDGES AND UNDERPASSES

House Defeats Bill to Let Counties and Cities Help Bear the Expense

The feature of Monday's session of the house of representatives was the defeat of a bill authorizing the state railroad commission to supervise intersections of railroads with public highways in the state, and to order bridges, underpasses, etc., built when deemed necessary for the public safety and to apportion the cost of same between the railroads and the counties and municipalities.

The house killed the bill because it thought the railroads should bear the whole cost of such construction.

The house of representatives after disposing of unimportant measures Monday, adopted a report by the rules committee setting over until Tuesday, on account of the time attendance Monday, the constitutional amendments which were scheduled to be taken up Monday, and putting on the day's calendar a number of general emergency bills which were ready to be placed on third reading and passed on and on which no debate was expected.

The first of these was a bill to amend the act relative to the granting of charters to schools and colleges so as to permit the granting of charters to universities, and so as to permit the granting of charters for more than twenty years when specially prayed.

The passage of this bill was necessary to the chartering of Oglethorpe university in Atlanta. It was introduced by Messrs. Candler, McBratney, and Fullbright and Heath, of Burke. The house passed the bill.

The next was a bill allowing corporations to revive their charters within three years after the date of expiration of same.

Speaker W. H. Burwell took the floor in support of the bill, making a brief speech explaining its provisions and the reasons therefor.

He then explained to him, it opens out that officers of a corporation forget the date of the expiration of their charters until after the date of the expiration of the charter.

Other bills considered were as follows:

To require executions to be liens on land only in the county where recorded.

To provide that the state railroad commission shall supervise all intersections of railroads with public highways, with authority to condemn any grade crossing which it may deem dangerous and to determine the relative share of cost of whatever new crossing is ordered that shall be borne by the railroad and the municipality or county, or both.

This bill was reported by substitute by the committee on railroads. It was debated at considerable length. The argument used against it was that the railroads ought to bear the whole cost of bridges over crossings, underpasses, etc., instead, as the bill provided, of authorizing the railroad commission to require counties and municipalities to pay a part of the cost.

On the passage of the bill the yeas and nays were called. The bill was defeated by a vote of 38 to 45.

The original then was read and was also voted down. Mr. Cheney of Cobb gave notice of a motion to reconsider.

NEW BILLS IN HOUSE.

The following bills were introduced in the house of representatives Monday:

By Mr. Smith of DeKalb—To make the minimum sentence ten years for burglary when dynamite or other explosive is used.

By Messrs. delegation—To authorize pensions for Confederate soldiers or their widows when they at present reside in Georgia.

By Mr. Melvin of Dodge—To provide that all female misdemeanors convicted shall be sentenced to confinement and labor in the woman's prison at the state farm at Milledgeville.

By Mr. Coleman of Laurens—To amend state game law so as to shorten hunting season.

By Mr. Gilbert of DeKalb—To repeal act prohibiting sale of alcoholic liquors in county, so as to apply to this county the general state prohibition law.

By Mr. Stone of Tallapoosa—To amend charter of city of Crawfordsville.

By Mr. Wisdom of Forsyth—To amend act so that suits may be brought for collection of notes, etc., in county in which indorser resides.

By Mr. Cheney of Cobb and Mr. Melvin of Dodge—To appropriate $500 extra to department of commerce and labor.

By Mr. Griffin of Lowndes—To appropriate $5,000 additional for Confederate soldiers' home.

By Mr. Stovall of McDuffie—To amend charter of town of Deering.

By Mr. Wright of Floyd—To provide for punishment for public indecency.

By Mr. Hayes of Stephens—To require a deposit in court by parties prosecuting for illegal riding on trains.

By Mr. Olive of Richmond—To require corporations to pay employees at least twice a month.

By Mr. Akin of Glynn—To provide for handling of through freight trains loaded with perisibles on the Sabbath day.

WANTS HOUSE ABOLISHED AND SENATE TO DO WORK

Senator Irwin Amazes Colleagues in Debating Biennial Sessions Bill

Members of the state senate were startled Monday morning by the assertion from Senator Irwin of the thirty-fourth that the lower house should be abolished and the senate allowed to enact all legislation alone.

The remarks of Senator Irwin were made during debate on the bill of Senator Olt of the Fourth, providing for the general assembly to change its sessions and meet biennially instead of once a year.

There was so big as to be unwieldy, he said, and for that reason was several weeks in getting under way.

President Anderson of the First spoke in favor of the measure and debate was still in progress when the senate adjourned.

A large number of local house and senate bills were introduced, read and passed in the senate Monday at an eventful, routine session.

Senator Olt of the Fourth introduced a bill to change the present law as to permit freight trains to load and unload on Sundays.

Speaking for his bill to make the legislature only once in two years, Senator Olt said the legislature at present did little or no work in their present yearly sessions of 60 days.

Senator Irwin, of the Thirty-fourth, spoke against the bill. He said the present yearly meetings are necessary. He said also that the state ought to pay each legislator $500 a year for his work.

"I am kind of in favor of abolishing the house. With the house abolished, the senate might get down to business and accomplish more work," said Senator Irwin.

He said, too, such a body as the lower house at least 20 days to get into motion.

Senator J. Randolph Anderson stepped down from the president's chair and spoke most strongly for this bill.

A plank in Senator Anderson's platform for governor advocates biennial sessions.

Other senators spoke for and against the bill, suggesting many modifications and changes.

Senator Allen, of the Twentieth, said Georgia has enough laws now to last for the next ten years.

"This country, and this state—the nation, is today legislated to death," said Senator Allen, speaking most strongly for the bill.

"As sure as you meet, you are going to do business, a great many legislators think they have not done them business unless they introduce a whole raft of bills," Senator Allen said.

Without further measure, the senate adjourned at 12:45 o'clock.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

The following bills were introduced Monday:

By Senator Olt of the Fourth—To amend the law relative to the running of freight trains on Sunday by allowing them to stop at every station to increase or decrease tonnage.

By Senator Watts of the Eleventh—To incorporate the town of Shelman, in Randolph county.

By Senator Peyton, of the Thirty-first—To require all persons prosecuting persons on trains or for committing any misdemeanor on trains to deposit $25 to cover the court costs.

By Senator Miller of the Twenty-second—To amend the act of the common commissioners of the city of Columbus by donating the city a tract of land for hospital purposes.

BILLS PASSED.

The following bills were passed Monday:

House bill by Mr. Myrick of Chatham—To authorize the mayor and aldermen of Savannah to close a portion of River street.

House bill by Mr. Ledbetter of Polk—To incorporate the town of Aragon in the county of Polk.

House bill by Mr. Wright of Floyd—To amend the charter of the city of Rome so as to close part of Walters street.

Correggio Masterpiece Is Finest Oil Painting Ever Shown in Atlanta

An 1821 copy of a Correggio masterpiece, said to be the finest oil painting ever shown in Atlanta, is now on exhibition in the window of the W. E. Greene Decorating company, 324-326 Peachtree street, affording Atlanta art lovers a fine opportunity to view a painting which is valued at more than $1,000.

The copy is of the famous picture "Jupiter and Io," now in the Imperial gallery of Vienna. The original was painted in the sixteenth century and is considered the greatest work of the Italian master.

The copy is by Lamant, a Florentine master who did his work in the early part of the sixteenth century. For many years it was in a Russian gallery, but is now part of a private collection in America, the owner of which has kindly consented to its exhibition for a week or so in this city.

The copy is said to be the most wonderful of the masterpieces extant. The picture, incomplete reproductions of which are well known, illustrates with shadowy mysticism the passionate story of Io and the god. The artist, in his copy, has reproduced the soft tones with marvelous understanding, according to art experts, and the whole gives an impression which Atlantians will long remember.

PASSENGER MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARS FROM BOAT

(By Associated Press.)

ST. LOUIS, July 13.—Steamboat officials have been unable to solve the disappearance of Fred Tenney, of Cleveland, who was missed from the steamer Stacker Lee, on its voyage from St. Louis to Memphis Saturday. Tenney left his state room at midnight Friday, complaining of a headache. A deck hand says he saw him on the lower deck early Saturday. He has not been seen since.

The disappearance of the passenger is a mystery. The picture, incomplete reproductions of which are well known, illustrates with shadowy mysticism the passionate story of Io and the god. The artist, in his copy, has reproduced the soft tones with marvelous understanding, according to art experts, and the whole gives an impression which Atlantians will long remember.

The Atlanta Journal,
City.

Gentlemen:

In all our experience in the Retail Shoe business in Atlanta, covering a period of about twenty years, we have never before known of such wonderful results obtained from an advertisement as produced by the advertisement in last Monday's Journal.

In The Journal exclusively on Monday afternoon we ran a five-column advertisement announcing a special sale to commence Tuesday morning. Long before the hour of the sale to commence had arrived, the front of the store was packed and jammed with a crowd covering the sidewalk and extending out into the street, anxious to gain admittance; this kept up for the entire day and has been repeated every day during the entire week with prospects of continuing indefinitely.

This is by far the greatest results ever accorded to an advertisement to our knowledge, and our hats are off to The Journal, as the best advertising medium which we know of.

Its trade-pulling power is simply marvelous, proving that its circulation must be all that is claimed. We are now more convinced than ever that The Journal's circulation covers "Dixie Like the Dew." Accept our congratulations.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) FRED. S. STEWART COMPANY.

DID THE SAME HAND WRITE THESE?

Mrs. Dennis wrote the bottom line. Who wrote the others?
On the identification of signature No. 2, shown above, a vital point in the Nelms mystery is turned. It is the signature of the typewriter to the "murder" note from San Francisco. Signature No. 1 is the validated signature of Mrs. Lewis to the longhand note in her own handwriting, enclosed in the same envelope from San Francisco. This is the name of the typewriter to the longhand note. Signature No. 1, "Levin Hardman," is taken from the Seattle local register of May 15. In 1911 the handwriting of Mrs. Dennis. The guest was assigned to room 112. "Mrs. M. M. Hardman, of Birmingham," registered just above her, the mysterious woman whom Mrs. Dennis went to see at the Seattle, was assigned to room 114. The fact that the lower name on the register was signed "Hardman" is same to indicate the guest was unaccustomed to writing it.

BIDS FOR UNIVERSITY TO BE SUBMITTED TUESDAY

Methodist Educational Commission Will Hear Committee Report Wednesday

When the educational commission of the Methodist Episcopal church conference, south, meets in Atlanta Wednesday to decide in what southern city the new university recently authorized by the conference shall be established, they will be met with a warm welcome from local Methodists and an offer of nearly two million dollars in property and pledges to secure the location of the institution here.

At the same time other cities will send delegations, empowered to make strong bids for the university. Word comes from Birmingham that fifty citizens will send a Monday night for Atlanta, prepared to offer the Birmingham college property, pledges valued at $350,000 and cash subscriptions aggregating nearly $100,000.

All bids will be presented Tuesday to a committee of five appointed by the commission. Bishop Warren A. Candler is chairman of both the commission and the committee.

Tuesday the committee will receive bids and make a report on them to the commission on Wednesday. The commission may then take several days to decide the university site. All decisions will be held at the Methodist hall.

Atlanta's attractive offer for the university has been authorized by a committee of fifteen, appointed by Methodist laymen and ministers to confer with officials of the chamber of commerce and formulate the amount of a pledge.

As a result of such conference, the committee drew up resolutions in which Atlanta's desirability as a university site is set forth and these inducements made $125,000 cash pledge by Atlanta Methodists and their friends and Methodist churches and Wesley Memorial church property, valued at $150,000.

THE EMPIRE LIFE'S
EXCELLENT REPORT

Actuary Copeland's Report on Company for Georgia Insurance Department Very Satisfactory

The Georgia insurance department has recently completed an examination of the Empire Life of Atlanta, covering in detail its operations from organization to December 31, 1913. The report shows the company to have gross assets of $1,021,378 and net assets amounting to $1,179,638.

During the period from March 8, 1912, to December 31, 1913, the income exceeded the disbursements by $785,237. On the former date the present company replaced the business of a mutual of the same name and also assumed certain contingent liabilities not theretofore considered actual by the mutual company. After paying all current claims promptly and providing ample reserves to protect policy contracts, besides discharging inherited liabilities over $260,000, there remains a net surplus to policyholders of $141,142.

Actuary John A. Copeland and Public Accountant George N. Spring conducted the examination for the Georgia department and their report shows every item of income, disbursement and investment fully accounted for and investigated. The assets are listed at rock-bottom figures and the report shows that all possible charges that could even remotely become a claim. Taking into consideration the cost of establishing an agency plant, the addition to the reserves on account of the increased amount of new business written and the parsimony of renewals, the management of the Empire Life is so completely gratified on the strength shown by the company's report.

The company is gradually retiring the income certificates issued by the old company to the mutual satisfaction of all concerned and the vote of the directors regarding the additional capital is being carried out as expeditiously as possible. On the whole, this examination shows results that should be eminently satisfactory to the policyholders, stockholders, officers and agents of the company.—Insurance Herald-Argus, Atlanta, Ga., April 9, 1914.—(Adv.)

There let me creep,

No more the light on singing streams;
Though all life's music fades and dies—
The yellow sun, the summer skies—
For, lost or won,
The fight is done
Where here the weary sleeper lies.

Let me but rest,
Though it shall be

No more perhaps Fame at life's gates;
No more life's dream of vanquished fate;
But lost or won,

While admitting that British golf is upon a higher average than American, the margin is not nearly so great as many Britons seem to think. It is true that America this season failed to make any dent in British golf supremacy. But golf is a game of quies and sudden shifts. Last season Helmut Schurer, who failed to qualify for the United States amateur championship, sailed on into the sixth round and gave Hilton, the English title holder, an even battle until a twenty-five-foot putt on the last green added the match.

And it is well enough to remember that England hasn't torn up any golf scenery in America. Hilton won one championship, matching a victory for Travis abroad. But Hilton, under a thirty-six-hole test—a fairer one than Travis drew—passed out at the start in the United States championship of 1913.

Summed up, America has won one British amateur championship and England has won one United States amateur title. Which is not, as a matter of record and actual achievement, anything to show any wide superiority.

And, as a whole, plays better golf than the United States can. That is, to quote Ralph Waldo Emerson, suchablowus lot bett-er golf.

CONSIDERABLE RACE

Under normal financial conditions the American league race this season each club has a better chance to the gunwale day by day. There has never been a season so evenly balanced at work from first to sixth place in the American league. The eight clubs, six are between 500 and 600.

What is more to the point, each section carries three clubs and the distance of the top.

There is a better chance than the west—with Philadelphia, Boston and New York set up against Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis. But the three western clubs are not to be overlooked, especially the raucous St. Paul, who for a month have lost all control of themselves. Maybe the St. Paul Sox are bent upon following their famous predecessors who came from seventh place in July to a world championship in October. Or maybe they are not.

The only people not figuring in any updates this Upset Year are the White Sox. But then there has to be some limit, even to infinity, if one should keep on going two days on beyond forever.

In the minor leagues, Carpenter and G. B. Smith on the day before the season, the two men are confident of winning. We are old-fashioned enough to like to see the ancient mounds and methods changed.

When one thinks of Miner Brown's pitching days being over and then looking on Ed Walsh struggling to come back it is hard to blame any ball player for anything in sight while the grabbing is in reach. But the man who has the record will show that the owner has got a better idea of the player than the player ever got from the owner. A word to the wise is sufficient.

rounds by having to go only ten, and, in addition, at fifteen rounds there will undoubtedly be a decisive showing, one way or another.

"I believe that there are many boys in and about New Orleans who will develop quicker and probably show to better advantage at twenty than at ten rounds. The fans want the longer bouts; they want a referee's decision, and the fans are the ones to please. We will, then, begin with the fifteen-round bouts and later on will start a series of twenty-round bouts, in which the best boys in the country will be seen."

The Boston Braves are a greatly improved team over what they were a month or six weeks ago. The playing of Johnny Evers and Rabbit Maraville at second and short has had much to do with this improvement.

Crescent City Fans Will See Long Bouts Soon

NEW ORLEANS, July 12.—Local boxing fans will not be compelled to wait until fall to see long boxing bouts and to see them decided by the referee's decision.

This was the news that trickled out of the office of Promoter Dom. Tortorich yesterday afternoon.

Instead of waiting until autumn, when it was planned to put on nine first of a series of twenty-round matches between well known boxers, it was decided yesterday afternoon to inaugurate the "real thing" in ring battles at the Orleans Athletic club Monday evening, August 2.

On this occasion Phil Vigets and Vic Moran will meet in one fifteen-round bout and Eddie Coulton and Red Dolan in another. Both of these will be to referee decisions.

"After thinking of putting on another series of ten-round no-decision bouts, I decided that there would be little if anything gained by doing so," said Promoter Tortorich yesterday. "I have come to the conclusion that in order to develop local talent for the twenty-round game that the best thing to do is to have the boys work up to the long bouts by extending the distance. They will not get used to going twenty

BISLAND HAD NO TROUBLE IN GETTING TRUNK TO PARK

When E. Livingston Bisland arrived in Atlanta Saturday shortly before noon, he did not find any brass band awaiting him. But at the same time Atlanta was glad to welcome him back. As evidence of the fact, listen to this one that Bisland told himself. He said:

"You can bet I am glad to get back. This thing of sitting on the bench day in and day out, even with a big winning team, doesn't suit me. And besides I have a lot of friends. The fans have certainly been good to me here. Why, when I got in on the train a little while ago, the first thing I did after getting off was to hustle around to the baggage room and ask the man in charge if he would rush my trunk out right away. I told him I wanted it sent to the ball park, so I could get out some things I wanted. 'Who in this?' he asked me. 'Bisland.' When I told him it was he said, 'You can bet your life I'll get it out. It'll be there before you get there.'"

"I guess a fellow that wouldn't play ball, when the fans treat him like that, is a pretty bad sort, eh? Well, you can say a little bit that I'll be in there every day, giving them my best, and if we don't land another rag for old Atlanta, it won't be Bisland's fault."

You lay an odds-on bet that Prince Albert is the best pipe and cigarette smoke any man ever put a match to. You'll cash in before you clean out your first tidy red tin.

Here's tobacco that's got real red-blooded man punch, but it can't bite your tongue and it can't parch your throat. That's thrown into the discard by a patented process owned exclusively by the manufacturers. You stick a pin here—no other tobacco can be like Prince Albert; nor has P. A. any "near" relatives! Follow the thought?

Just put it right up to yourself for a test-out. Lay a dime against a tin of Prince Albert and get tipped off from the home plate as to how close to cards this talk is.

You get wise to that P. A. flavor and fragrance. Because it's just one of those little things in life that smooths out ruffles and wrinkles in the day's work and sends you along right cheerful like.

Prince Albert is sold everywhere. In copy red bags, 5c handy for rolling em; in tidy red tins, 10c; also handsome pound and half-pound humors that make a bit around home or the office.
