

L. W. ROGERS' FUNERAL WILL BE HELD TODAY

Well Known Grocer Died Sunday at His Home, 350 West Peachtree

Luther Woodman Rogers, one of the city's leading business men and head of the Rogers grocery stores, died at his home at 350 West Peachtree street Sunday morning at 9:15 o'clock, after an illness of several weeks.

The following gentlemen have been selected to act as pallbearers: R. J. Anderson, J. S. Burges, L. D. Browder, B. H. Arvey, C. H. Ivy and R. W. Allen. Mr. Rogers was fifty-eight years of age. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Rogers, and two sons, Harold Orin and a daughter, Martha Lillian.

He was born in Oldtown, Me., in 1856 and was graduated from the University of Maine. He entered the grocery business at Waterville, Me., in 1876, and later moved to Atlanta, where he established the first Rogers store. This was located at 106 Whitehall street and the stock represented about the entire $200 which was Mr. Rogers' capital at the time.

Under his personal management, the business of the first store grew, now and then to other southern cities. Mr. Rogers continued his way southward until he reached Atlanta in 1892, where he established the first Rogers store. This was located at 106 Whitehall street and the stock represented about the entire $200 which was Mr. Rogers' capital at the time.

Mrs. McCullough was born and raised in Atlanta and is remembered here by many friends who will sympathize with the family in their bereavement.

She is survived by her husband, a crown set, her parents and several sisters. The funeral and interment will take place Tuesday afternoon in Greenville.

COUPLE WED IN JUNE; KEEP SECRET 'TIL JULY

MR. AND MRS. FRED MCJENKINS

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McJenkins marry June 17, but kept it secret from parents until Independence Day

A new kind of Fourth of July bomb was exploded at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Toney this month, manufactured by Dan Cupid and extensively used, not only on such patriotic occasions as Independence day, but at many other times.

The bomb was the announcement of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Grace Toney, to Mr. Fred McJenkins, of Atlanta, and while it came as a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Toney, nearly congratulations followed.

The young people, it seems, had been quietly wedded on June 17 at the Walter Street Baptist church, with only Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Toney, sister-in-law and brother-in-law, and a few intimate friends present.

The glorious Fourth was deemed a fitting occasion to announce the surprise wedding.

Mrs. D'Alvigny was with Mrs. McCullough in Baltimore, and Dr. D'Alvigny left Monday morning to attend the funeral.

GOLDEN RULE UNIVERSAL LAW, DECLARES DR. LYONS

Pastor Gives His Answer to the Teachings of Christ and Labor

At a capital and labor mass meeting in the Baptist tabernacle Sunday afternoon, Dr. J. Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, answered the question of the "man in the galley" asked the previous evening.

This question, shouted just after the meeting, stated that the solution of the problems of capital and labor was to be found in the teachings of Christ, was "Now that we have waited a hundred years for Christ to solve the problems, don't you think we had better get to work and solve them ourselves?"

DR. LYONS GIVES ANSWER. In answering this, Dr. Lyons said that man, seeking a solution of trouble, must be willing to do all he can for himself. He said that it was not the business of Christ to settle labor disputes, but to raise the moral standard of work.

It was the business of the church, he said, to teach this relation of Christ, its principles of justice, love and brotherhood that increase the moral standard of both sides and go into the world to live and work, and that God's golden rule shall be the universal law.

Nearly a thousand persons attended the meeting, which was held under the auspices of the Men and Religion Forum. The meeting was presided over by Martin Jackson.

Dr. Lyons said that there should be a measure of the terms "labor" and "capital" as to include all the people. He said a very small part of the people are in the labor or capital class.

Out of every hundred average men, two would be capitalists, thirteen laborers and eighty-five neither one nor the other. And these eighty-five are the final judges of all issues between labor and capital. These eighty-five represent public opinion, which really settles all issues in the world.

DR. LYONS' LABOR. Dr. Lyons pointed out that organized labor had lately passed out of its infancy and weakness, and is now in the turbulent period of adolescence.

When the tumultuous talk began by the members of the audience, Dr. Lyons in the face of the hall shouted: "I am all right to talk about God and capital and labor, but you can't serve God on an empty stomach."

Alexander Pearce, released from the federal prison, began a story of a drive and a vision he had one night in his cell. He did not finish, as the two-minute limit cut him off.

William S. Wier, a prominent member of the Atlanta Typographical union, spoke briefly.

The meeting was closed with prayer by Dr. J. Lyons.

GEORGIA TROOPS LEAVE FOR AUGUSTA TUESDAY

Four Special Trains Will Be Necessary to Transport Men and Equipment

Atlanta's militia is making final preparations for the trip to Augusta, where it will take part in the joint maneuvers which begin Wednesday morning.

Tuesday night the militia will leave the city on four special trains, which will reach Augusta early Wednesday morning. On these trains will go both the Fifth Infantry, Atlanta's own regiment, and the Georgia militia.

The Fifth will be joined at camp by the other two infantry regiments of the state and the unattached militia under the command of Major Hurt, leaving Georgia more than a full brigade at the maneuvers, a larger detachment than she has been able to muster for some time.

Under the command of Brigadier General Walter G. Harris, of Macon, who succeeded General Clifford L. Anderson, of this city, retired.

It will take four special trains of militia to transport Atlanta's troops to Augusta. Three of these trains will be required to accommodate the troops, their equipment and baggage, and the fourth will take the baggage of the Georgia troops.

Atlanta's troops will leave Tuesday night, the first of the Georgia troops leaving the depot about 10 o'clock. The others will follow at intervals, the last setting away about 10:20. This is expected.

Early Wednesday morning, which will give the regiment ample time to pitch camp, set the quartermaster and commissary departments running smoothly, and everything in readiness for actual work Thursday morning.

The regiment will break camp on Thursday, July 23, and will reach Atlanta early the following morning.

ROSWELL MAN FALLS IN NET OF ATLANTA POLICE

Arrested at Linden avenue and Peachtree street after neighbors had notified the barracks, a detective night patrol that a riot was in progress, R. O. Adams, of Roswell, charged with being drunk and disorderly, was locked up by Call Officers Marshall and Evans.

Adams was taken to the police station in a machine with four companions. They stopped at Linden and Peachtree to get gasoline. Something annoyed Adams, who pulled a knife and grew angry, saying his companions from the car, it is said. Then the police were called.

Adams' fourteen-year-old son, in the car at the time, insisted on being arrested too. His father was. The boy was taken to the barracks where he remained in Chief Barker's cell until the four friends called and took him away. Adams remained incarcerated.

The suffragists met in executive session yesterday afternoon and drew up a petition which was presented later to Mr. Grossman. He has it under consideration, but said he would not run if his race should conflict with that of the Atlanta Albright of the Labor Legislative League.

VAUDEVILLE ACTOR WINS ATLANTA GIRL AS BRIDE

'Rube' Dickinson Meets, Woos and Weds Miss Laura Grant Within 24 Hours

Walter E. (Rube) Dickinson is a typical, love-moving countryman in his "Rube" act, which was staged at the Fox last week, but he broke all records for a lightning-love courtship when he was married on the roof garden of the Atlanta Club, 52 E. Peachtree street, on Sunday night.

Dickinson hails from Lincoln, Neb., and evidently he is endowed with a persuasive eloquence as an effective as that of the statesman who put Lincoln on the map, for it took the actor just two hours to win the Atlanta girl.

Saturday night, after his act at the Fox, Patterson brought Dickinson to the Atlanta club and there introduced him to Miss Grant.

"MISS GRANT LOSES NO TIME. Her party left the club a few minutes after Dickinson had introduced him to a dinner engagement with her for Sunday evening. Two hours after they met the second time, the couple rushed over to Patterson with calls for a minute and marriage license.

Patterson, who renounced that twenty-four hours before the two people had never seen each other, came near fainting with surprise, but he managed to get the license, and the ceremony was held on the roof garden of the Atlanta club, at 5 o'clock, when the bride and groom stood beside the table where they were being married.

Showered with rice. Quickly the directors came, there was something unusual going on, and they were to be married. The ceremony was held on the roof where the marriage was taking place.

Somebody had raided the club pantry for a whole bucket of rice, and when the simple ceremony was barely completed the rice came down in a most approved fashion over the entire party.

On the license the bride's age is given as twenty years. She had been in Atlanta practically all of her life and was well known here. Dickinson gave his age as twenty-two years.

Walter E. Dickinson, who hails from Lincoln, Neb., but like most vaudeville actors he makes his home in New York.

Counterfeits.

Read what one of the GREATEST NEWSPAPERS IN AMERICA has to say on this subject:

"The manufacturers of Castoria have been compelled to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to familiarize the public with the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. This has been necessitated by reason of pirates counterfeiting the Castoria trademark. This counterfeiting is a crime not only against the proprietors of Castoria, but against the growing generation. All persons should be careful to see that Castoria bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, if they would guard the health of their children. Parents and mothers in particular, ought to carefully examine the Castoria advertisements which have been appearing in this paper, and to remember that the wrapper of every bottle of genuine Castoria bears the fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, under whose supervision it has been manufactured continuously for over thirty years.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Letters from Prominent Druggists addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Conger Bros. of St. Paul, Minn., say: "Fletcher's Castoria is certainly full of merit and worthy of recommendation."

C. G. A. Loder, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "For 20 years we have sold Fletcher's Castoria and are pleased to state that it has given universal satisfaction."

The Scholz Drug Co., of Denver, Colo., says: "Fletcher's Castoria has surely become a household word. Seemingly every family where there are children uses it."

Hosgood & Mansfield, of Boston, Mass., say: "We have nothing but good to say about your Castoria and we do not hesitate to give it our unqualified endorsement."

Riker's Drug Store, of New York City, says: "Fletcher's Castoria is one of the oldest and most popular preparations in our stores. We have nothing but good to say about it."

Wagoner Wilson Drug Co., of St. Louis, Mo., says: "Of the thousands of patent medicines for which we have demand there are a very few of them that we can conscientiously recommend and your Castoria is included in this few."

D. R. Dyche & Co., of Chicago, Ill., say: "The increasing demand for your Castoria shows that a discriminating public is not slow to see and out a word of merit and once convinced that it does all and even more than claimed they do not hesitate to recommend it to their friends."

The Owl Drug Co., of San Francisco, Cal., says: "We have always been a believer in the 'original man protection' and have been particular never to sell anything but the genuine and original Castoria (Fletcher's). We have many calls every day for this article from people who say they would not be without it in their homes."

N. Y. REAL ESTATE MAN PRAISES ATLANTA HOMES

Sol Bloom Declares Residents of Gate City Should Be Happiest in World

Sol Bloom, wealthy New York real estate promoter, has made an intimate study of every large city in the United States, but he is convinced that Atlanta ranks highest of them all in a way not generally boasted of by Atlantians as a city of homes.

Not magnificent mansions or pretentious residences, but homes which combine all the beauties of the country with the conveniences of the city and with retain an atmosphere of domesticity which caused Mr. Bloom to exclaim when he saw them, "The people who live there must be very happy."

He said this Monday morning after an automobile trip out Peachtree, Ponce de Leon avenue to Dr. H. H. H. Bloom, who is the second visit to Atlanta, it is the first time he has had the chance for a critical examination of the city.

HOMES, NOT MANSHIONS.
Mr. Bloom might be called an expert on cities. He has seen them all, each with the eye of a man who knows the architecture and construction, locations and indoor trends, little details and the effect of the whole.

"Cleveland is a city of homes," he says. "Buffalo, New York, is a city of homes. San Francisco, but not one of them is as good as Atlanta as a home town. They may have individual mansions that are finer. I don't mean that. But the average home in Atlanta is better than the average home in any other city. There are so many of them. There seems to be no limit to them."

"Each one is more than a house, it is a home. A man doesn't want to live in a great residence with stacks and stacks of rooms where he wastes his life. He wants a house of the bungalow plan and that's what Atlanta has. I don't mean that the inside of all your houses, but I mean that outside, you don't see a house as home-like on the outside with the same inside."

Atlanta has something that no other city has. New York or any other city, excepted. In New York it takes me longer to get from my downtown office to my home on Riverside drive than it takes a man here to go from his office to his home in Druid Hills.

PRAISES GROUNDS.
"And after I get there, what have I got? A beautiful drive and view of the Hudson and the palisades; but only the top floor of a magnificent apartment house for a home. We have a window here and a window there, and we are up in it, it is considered a marvel."

"But here in Atlanta a man goes out to his home and he has acres all around him, well kept, farm land if he wants it, or just wide stretches of beautiful lawn. That is what makes a home. We have country homes like that in the west, but you have them here and live with them every day. In Druid Hills yesterday and I didn't want to leave. In New York we have the sea all the time, but here you have the freest view of the mountains that hits a stranger's eye like yours. You don't see the city, but you see the sea. The only comparison I can think of would be the setting, but here all his life."

"I tell you, I want to move to Atlanta. I want to live in a house that is a home. It is to be a home that makes happiness, you know, and from that I would say that Atlanta people are the happiest in the world."

ERNEST RAMSPECK NEAR DEATH IN EAST LAKE

Sinks in Attempt to Swim Lake and Is Rescued by Boyce Worthing

Ernest Ramspeck, paying teller at the Lower National bank, had a narrow escape from drowning Sunday afternoon while swimming at East Lake.

He went directly from the tennis courts where he had played several sets to the lake, and, not being very expert, he was exhausted when he entered the water.

He and Miss Ellen O'Keefe, of Atlanta, and Miss Mary Anne O'Donnell, of New Orleans, started in a rowing boat house across the lake to the island, which is a distance of more than two miles.

Some twenty yards from the boat house young Ramspeck, who was exhausted, probably from the action of the cold water, fell overboard, and was rescued by the young ladies swimming nearby.

Boyce Worthing, who was swimming close by, went to Ramspeck's rescue and pulled him back toward the shore. He then called for help, and the boat house across the lake to the island, which is a distance of more than two miles.

When Mr. Ramspeck was rescued, he was unconscious, and the young ladies called for help, and the boat house across the lake to the island, which is a distance of more than two miles.

MEXICAN PEACE PROGRAM IS RAPIDLY TAKING SHAPE

Washington Officials Confident Parleys Will Result in Agreement

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 20.—With developments apparently taking shape for a peace settlement of the Mexican situation, officials today looked forward to the outcome of the meeting now to take place at Monterey between Carranza and Huerta.

The first in a series of parleys between Carranza and Huerta, the two men are now on the way to Monterey to discuss with the constitutional leader conditions for the transfer of the Mexico City administration.

Washington officials were confident the parleys would result in an agreement for the establishment of a new government. Carranza's overtures to the followers of Zapata were dangerous because the capital was somewhat relieved by dispatches from Mexico City declaring recent statements of the activities of the Zapatistas were exaggerated.

It was declared there was a sufficient force of soldiers to maintain order in the capital. Carranza, however, was in touch with him and turned his sympathy toward the constitutional cause.

Another demonstration of the attitude assumed by Carranza in his role of provisional president was seen in the announcement of a federal commander leaving Vera Cruz that the administration does not recognize the violence of a revolution and considers all Mexicans as an equal before the law.

The commander, Lieutenant Colonel Tumbler, was in touch with him and turned his sympathy toward the constitutional cause.

Newnan Springs Sensation In Ga.-Ala. League

Team Has Dropped Only One Game in Last Two Series. Rome Club Also Played Great. Ball Past Week—Boost for Jack Reidy

ANNISTON, Ala., July 20.—Another week of the Georgia-Alabama league ended Saturday. The playing of the Newnan club has caused an arm all over the league, as they have only lost one game in the last two series they have played. In the Ocala series when the team met in Ocala, both came to Newnan having won two games each in Ocala, and Ocala was leading the league. Newnan won all four games and Ocala is now in fifth place, lower than they have been since the season opened after that series. LaGrange and Newnan met Saturday and the first game of the series was raised out. The Rome club has also been playing great ball this week, as they have up until Saturday failed to lose a game. They won two from LaGrange and three from Ocala. The Ocala club has been extra hot. They have won all four games in the series and have won two straight from the Atlanta club in Seale. The Rome club is indeed out of the league as no one else is in the league. It is indeed a pity that the team, which has been so good, should be out of the league. The team has been so good, it is indeed a pity that the team, which has been so good, should be out of the league.

THE SPORTLIGHT BY GRANTLAND RICE

Now that the tumult and the shouting and the effervescence and the frenzy have all died away, producing a soothing calm, we'd like to subjoin a few closing words to that look-at-the-ball look-at-the-hole discussion introduced by the eminently honorable B. L. T.

George O'Neill, the Beverly boy, and one of the finest instructors in America, says that, in his opinion, B. L. T. is nearer right than Travis. Travis and other experts who believe in looking at the ball. But, according to O'Neill's theory, both sides are wrong, as he figures the eye shifts just as the stroke is being made.

ONE BIG HELP. There are several ways in which looking at the hole helps the ordinarily bad putter within ten feet of the cup. One of these is that by looking at the hole the head is held perfectly still, with no temptation to look up, since one is already looking up. The trouble isn't so much in not looking at the ball as it is in shifting the head.

The second aid comes to the golfer who is nervously inclined or is in the habit of stabbing his putts. This habit passes when one looks at the hole. The eye doesn't see the ball, so the club head comes on with a steady sweep and a nice follow through. The same principle is involved when one takes a practice swing with no ball to hit at. This swing is generally perfect, because there is no rigid tightening up, no nervous jerk and no tendency to look up, due to the absence of the ball.

Any man who is a good putter, or a fairly consistent putter, would be foolish to shift. But a poor putter might take a chance on the generally accepted theory that you can subtract nothing from zero nor lower the southerly aspect of the south pole.

ZIM'S SYSTEM. We interviewed the great Zim along these lines. "When tagging a runner or swinging at the ball," says Heinie, "I always keep my eye on the umpire. If he calls it wrong I won't lose any precious time then telling him a few things he should know." Heinie also keeps his eye on the clubhouse, and his follow through from third base to the clubhouse is generally perfect.

When a contender's mind is set too firmly upon the accomplishment of some undertaking he is more than likely to lose all control of his muscular sweep and become rigid. This goes not only for baseball but for golf and tennis. When a pitcher loses confidence in his control and begins to aim for the plate he hasn't a chance to get by. Conscious effort generally means rigidity and lack of confidence.

FINDING PITCHERS! "Why hasn't Connie Mack been able to discover any first-class pitchers these last few years?" is a query that comes in from F. L. J. And Connie Mack draws his share of lucky discoveries in other departments of play. He discovered in turn Plank, Bender and Coombs, which were enough to sweep away the title of "the best pitcher in the league" from Davis, Murphy and the two Croses. He also has broken against him in landing high-grade young pitchers.

THE LUCK OF IT. These who contend that no luck enters into the discovery of a star pitcher might think this over. Any number of life-eyed scouts watched Marty O'Toole and reported that he was a wonder. The same class of scouts saw Grover Alexander and most of them reported that the Philly start was mostly chance. Yet Alexander has been as good as O'Toole has been erratic.

THE MAGNATE'S SIDE. "Some days ago," writes a certain major league magnate, "you had a long statement from an old ball player as to the treatment of players. Would you mind giving some space to the magnate's side of things? I am referring here to the ten-day clause. This clause is essential to baseball success. It is the one thing that keeps the player on the job and prevents the anticommitment of players. If all players were signed to three-year terms and the club was bound to carry them regardless of what they did, there is too great a percentage of players sure to take advantage of the situation and either loaf or refuse to keep training.

There are any number of smart, loyal, hardworking ball players, but as every one knows connected with the game, there are any number who are just the opposite. If a ball club was cluttered up to long term contracts with many of this type it would soon be wrecked. Our contention is that the ball player has been better treated as a class than any other class now in existence. If there is a class that is better treated and gets a better average of remuneration I would like to have the answer.

ANOTHER CONVERT. Speaking of this looking-at-the-ball-looking-at-the-hole controversy, it is being wharped in exclusive national circles that Mr. Lipton believes in keeping his eye on the cup. In fact, he is said to be lamping it with unusual keenness.

Freddie Welsh is planning to write a history of his life, but we see by certain legal statutes that reading it isn't compulsory. Our idea of nothing to fret about or ponder over is Freddie's Welsh's life.

"Willie Ritchie will beat Welsh to death the next time they meet," comments an exchange. Willie?

SMITH BECAME A SAILOR AND A FIGHTER AT THE SAME TIME

Gunboat Smith became a sailor and a fighter at the same time. That was a spontaneous, simultaneous action. He had never enjoyed any fond dreams of a prize ring career until the day he walked up the gang-plank to enlist as one of Uncle Sam's hired men.

All the dreams he ever had prior to this concerned such pretentious subjects as beef stew and mulligan hash. He wasn't looking for any stars to hitch his wagon to. He was perfectly satisfied to let his little keel float along behind one of your "Curly Sam's" boats. As a matter of fact, he wasn't so particularly concerned about this blooming new navy. He would carry all of his ex-cess baggage in the old bandanna handkerchief anyway.

But he did want to get on a boat. Boating being farming, in his estimation, and that was what the Gunner was looking for—something to beat farming. Besides a boat moves around a little, but where can you get on a farm—unless the farm happened to be located on one of Mark Twain's glaciers?

You see, Edward J. Smith was born in Philadelphia back in 1858, but he got out of that place as soon as he was old enough to realize what he had done. He went up New York state from land to even worse, for his parents immediately proceeded to raise him up on hard work and a farm. We say "up" to be specific. That was the only direction he grew.

But, just as the innocent, unexpecting Edward J. Smith guided his feet up the gangplank and on board the deck of the Pennsylvania and along the deck before the scrutiny of the sulley, why some one of them shouted: "Hullo, Rub!"

"Was 'Smo' much!" New 'Smo' might have had extreme, and his hair might have been a trim, and there might have been freckles on his nose, and a tall straw hat on his head, and his clothes may have been frayed, and many times too brief, and he may have lived in the country all of his life, but he wouldn't any "Rub!"

You see, Edward J. Smith was born in Philadelphia back in 1858, but he got out of that place as soon as he was old enough to realize what he had done. He went up New York state from land to even worse, for his parents immediately proceeded to raise him up on hard work and a farm. We say "up" to be specific. That was the only direction he grew.

But, just as the innocent, unexpecting Edward J. Smith guided his feet up the gangplank and on board the deck of the Pennsylvania and along the deck before the scrutiny of the sulley, why some one of them shouted: "Hullo, Rub!"

"Was 'Smo' much!" New 'Smo' might have had extreme, and his hair might have been a trim, and there might have been freckles on his nose, and a tall straw hat on his head, and his clothes may have been frayed, and many times too brief, and he may have lived in the country all of his life, but he wouldn't any "Rub!"

ATLANTA, Ga., July 20.—The proposition to shorten the schedule of the Georgia State League has received the sanction of the Thomaston club and if the other clubs in the league also agree the season will be cut down ten games. The state receipts for the second half of the series have also dropped a good deal in all of the towns of the league, which tends to make the association willing that the season be shortened.
