charges of larceny against them in Atlanta. This was indicated here late last afternoon when the Atlanta chief of police, announced no fight would be made against the extradition of the prisoners.

Officer Starnes, of Atlanta, is here with the necessary documents from Georgia and Texas governors calling for the custody of the prisoners, and probably will be permitted to serve them Monday, immediately after Innes and wife have been adjudged not guilty.

Among the prisoners are John and Lola Nelms Dennis. In that event the Innes will leave here in charge of the Atlanta officer either Monday night or Tuesday.

In connection with the announcement that no fight will be made on the extradition of the prisoners, Attorney Ward says his clients, who acknowledge they are not guilty as charged, will not fight with the state, but will sign the requisition papers, and will

Dr. Thomas E. Green, Peace Advocate, May Take His Place

United States Senator, LaPollette, who was to have lectured Wednesday night at the auditorium on the European war and government problems, has postponed this lecture engagement to the summer till the spring and will not visit Atlanta till the second week in March.

But efforts are being made to secure Dr. Thomas E. Green, vice president of the World's Peace society, to take Senator LaPollette's place. The Albanian situation was the subject of his communication with Dr. Green yesterday, but no definite answer has been received from him. The senator's Green will lecture at the auditorium Wednesday.

try as you will you can not find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing out all over your scalp—Danderine is. We believe the only sure hair restorer; destroyer of dandruff; promoter of healthy hair. It never fails to stop falling hair at once. If you want to prove how pretty and healthy your hair can be, try Danderine with a little Danderine and carefully brush it through your hair, until you have small strands at a time. Your hair will grow again, and you will have a lot of new moments—a delightful surprise—awaits every one who tries this—ADVT.

W. C. T. U. SIDELIGHTS

According to the report of the corresponding secretary of the National W. C. T. U., now in session in Atlanta, the organization has nothing to do with more "temperance" in the dictionary.

"Total abstinence," says the secretary, "is the only way to get the drunkard off the back of the neck."

The name of Mrs. William M. Stevens, last president of the National W. C. T. U., was enrolled Saturday, by order of the convention on the memorial list of the Frances E. Willard Memorial fund.

According to the national officers, the convention of the National W. C. T. U. is one of the largest in history.

Today there are 722 accredited delegates on the floor at the Baptist Tabernacle.

A free clinic for the treatment of the tobacco habit, under the auspices of the National W. C. T. U., is now in session.

That Jack London is one of the most active and forceful powers for prohibition in California, there is no doubt.

PROHIBITION WORKERS IN GEORGIA LAUDED BY THE NATIONAL BODY

It was stated that Georgia led the nation in college work, giving temperance programs once a week in every college.

The report of the credentials committee, read Saturday afternoon, showed that there are 722 accredited delegates.

A gorgeous program, "Columbia's Centennial," was presented Saturday night at the Tabernacle under direction of the Atlanta W. C. T. U.

Miss Gordon presiding, the convention then went into a campaign of resolutions.

JACK LONDON MIXES WITH HOTEL SLEUTH

Candidate for Police Commission and Harry Sapphire to Face Recorder Monday

Jack J. Letton, owner of the Winwood hotel, and Harry Sapphire, house detective, will face the recorder Monday.

Mr. Letton was charged with disorderly conduct as the result of an altercation in the hotel bar on Saturday evening about 7:30 o'clock.

The detective started proceedings by swearing out a warrant before Judge J. B. Riley, of the municipal court, charging his employer with assault and battery.

OGLETHORPE CORNERSTONE TO BE LAID, IN JANUARY

Contract Is Let for Stone to Build Great New University

The corner stone of Oglethorpe university will be laid on January 21, 1915. At a full meeting of the executive committee of the university held on Thursday, this date was set and Dr. Thorne-Jones, executive representative of the institution, was directed to go forward with the plans for the opening of the school with the freshmen class of the collegiate department next September.

It was also announced that at the laying of the corner stone in January next there would be some specially interesting features, now being perfected, to be announced later.

At a meeting of the building committee held yesterday twenty-five hundred tons of granite were purchased on most liberal terms from the Atlantic

WITH ALLAH'S HELP TURKS CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

Enver Pasha Issues Noble Trade From the Sultan

(By Associated Press.)
CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 14.—Via Berlin and London 4:40 p. m.—Enver Pasha, Turkish minister of war, has published a proclamation to the Turkish army as follows:
"Comrades: I have the honor to announce to you a noble trade from the sultan. Our army will destroy our enemies with Allah's help and the assistance of the Prophet, and by the pious prayer of the sovereign. Forward, all of you! Victory, glory and paradise are before us; death and disgrace behind. Long live our Padiashah."

Stone company. It was calculated that this will be a sufficient amount to construct the first building.

SWEDEN DECIDES SHE DOESN'T WANT ANY WAR

At First Thought of Joining Germany But Time Has Changed Feeling

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 14.—Sweden's enthusiasm for war, which was marked two months ago, has waned. Today all she desires is to be left out of the conflict. In the early stages of the war the army and the people would, it is said, have welcomed a turn of events which would have made Sweden an ally of Germany.
The change of sentiment is attributed by some to Germany's failure to succeed in her whirlwind campaign in France. By others it is said to be due to her rejection by the Swedish people on the cost of participating. There appears to be no misapprehensions of any hostile act by Germany, such as is hostile by Norway. The cordial relations existing between the two countries is regarded here as sufficient assurance that Sweden's neutrality will be respected.

THREE BOYS IN A BOX TRAVEL FOR A WEEK

Locked Themselves in Piano Case and Traveled by Freight

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Three boys, who shipped themselves in a reinforced, upholstered piano box from Hingham, N. Y., to Colon, Cal., as freight, were discovered tonight when a truckman dropped the box on the floor of the Erie freight house here.
"That's some box," he said.
"You bet it is," said a young man who stuck his head out of a trap door in the side. "Can I get a drink of water?"
The astonished freight handler ran for the watchman who telephoned for several officials of the freight department. The traveler informed them he was William E. Montague. The box was forced open and two other boys were found. The three had been en route a week when found. They said they expected the trip would take three weeks and had provisions to last that time.

BROTHER MASON'S PAY LAST HONOR TO DR. KING

Body of Veteran and Physician Buried at Adairsville, Old Home

The remains of Dr. J. H. King, who died in Atlanta, early Saturday morning, were taken to Adairsville, Ga., Saturday, where they were met by the Masonic lodge. He was laid to rest by the side of his wife in Oothooga cemetery with Masonic ceremonies.
Dr. King had been a resident of Adairsville since before the war and was one of the best known physicians in Bartow county. For the past eleven years he had been a resident of Atlanta, where he had practiced his profession. Those surviving him are one daughter, Mrs. Britton Matthews, of Opelika, Ala.; and a son Dr. J. H. King, Jr., of Atlanta. His only brother living is Hon. W. M. King, of Adairsville. Dr. King was born in Rutherford county, N. C., on July 11, 1843, and his family moved to Georgia when he was 14 years of age, settling in Adairsville.

At about 17 years of age he cast his lot with the Confederacy, joining company H, of the Fortieth Georgia regiment, located at Kila Shanty (now Ken-

Don't Get Caught In the GLOVE JAM

Sooner or later the scarcity of GOOD gloves is coming.

If GOOD gloves are not your kind, please don't read on.

The kind of gloves we want to sell are the kind that can't be reproduced in second-rate skins at first-rate prices.

And when the scarcity comes, there will be none of these better gloves at ANY PRICE, though all prices will be higher.

That's Why We Recommend Buying NOW

For right now we have one of the largest stocks of gloves in our history—in anticipation of conditions to come.

With prices that run evenly from $1 to $3.50 by easy stages.

So—particularly with Christmas just beyond the horizon—doesn't wisdom whisper in your ear to BUY GLOVES NOW?

PROMINENT WAYCROSS
MAN HAS DISAPPEARED
Friends and Relatives of E. O.
Walker Fear He Has Been Slain

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
WAYCROSS, Ga., Nov. 14.—Following a fruitless search officers made today, it is believed E. O. Walker, a prominent member of the local camp of Woodmen of the World, has met his fate. Searchers this afternoon are making a wide sweep of the city for his body, as relatives are confident he has been either badly beaten or killed for a sum of money approximating $500 which he had with him yesterday. He was last seen in Forest park last night, where a revolt broke out and personal effects were found. His father, Joel S. Walker, was elected coroner in the recent election. The missing man has a wife and four children.

JUDGE J. A. HILL DIES
AT HIS HOME AT HOMER
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
LULA, Ga., Nov. 14.—Judge J. A. Hill, of Homer, Ga., died at his residence Friday night at 10 o'clock. He was one of the most prominent citizens of Banks county, having been justice of the peace for twenty years, and is a brother of T. F. Hill, ordinary, and who has held the office for more than forty years. He has been a lifetime Mason and will be buried with Masonic honors Monday at 11 o'clock a. m. at Homer.

CRITICAL MOMENTS

What the war teaches.

Every life has its critical moments. There are times when a man's health is staked upon the care he gives to it within a few hours. His system may be run down, blood laden with bilious poisons and lungs or skin affected.

Twenty-four hours after you start to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, poisonous matter and blood impurities begin to leave your body through the Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and Skin.

So powerfully penetrating is this purely vegetable remedy that through the circulation of the blood it reaches every hair, muscle and joint, dissolves the poisonous secretions and drives them out of the body.

It brings new activity to the liver, stomach and bowels in a short time, thus causing salivary, indigestion and constipation to disappear. It enters the tiny blood vessels of the skin, bringing with it fresh vitality and blood, and abiding faith in its wonderful cleansing power has come to thousands, when pimples, boils, carbuncles, rash, acne, and other skin troubles dry up and disappear.

Good blood means good health; good health means strong men and women, full of vigor and ambition, with minds alert and muscles ever willing. Any medicine dealer will supply you with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in either liquid or tablet form. Remember it is purely vegetable, and free from alcohol or narcotics and is not a secret remedy for all its ingredients are published on wrapper.

CLARK TO SELECT OWN SUBJECT FOR ADDRESS

Speaker of National House Will Reach Atlanta Tuesday Morning

When Hon. Champ Clark, speaker of the United States house of representatives, talks at the West End Christian church next Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Brotherhood Baraca club, he won't have a subject.

On the southern tour, Mr. Clark is making he has been asked to speak on certain topics everywhere except in Atlanta. Here he will be given all the leeway he wants and may choose any subject under the sun.

Mr. Clark will arrive in the city on Tuesday morning and will be escorted to the Wincoff hotel, where he will be the guest of an old friend, Mr. Jack Letton. He will attend the organization of the Missouri society in the afternoon and will be the guest of honor at a banquet at the Wincoff at 6 o'clock, tendered him by the Young Men's Democratic league.

At 8 o'clock he speaks at the First Christian church. He will be introduced by Senator Hoke Smith.

ART SALON TO BE OPEN
THROUGHOUT THIS WEEK
On Account of Great Interest
Displayed, It Was Not Closed
As Was First Planned

On account of the great interest displayed by artists and the general public alike, the art sales at the Fonce de Leon apartments will be continued another week instead of closing last night, as planned.

Some highly interesting exhibits have been added to the sales. Among them is a collection of Royal Doulton porcelain decorated by F. W. Theson, of East Point. He was formerly employed in the Royal Doulton factory in England, and his collection includes two very fine portrait vases of the king and queen of England. He has also entered some pieces made by himself out of Georgia clay.

The attendance last week averaged more than 100 people a day, and quite a number of sales were made.

The Atlanta Art association, under whose auspices the sales are being held, bought a picture by H. H. Osgood, entitled, "Hillside in Van Cortlandt Park, New York," and a picture by Miss Virginia Woolley, entitled, "A Lane, Provincetown," both of which are considered very fine. Mrs. Richard Johnson, a well-known Atlanta woman, who is an enthusiastic patron of art, has bought another of Mr. Osgood's pictures, entitled, "Cedar in Van Cortlandt Park." Mrs. Clark Howell has bought a picture by C. E. Hardy, entitled, "Midsummer." Miss Marie Haines and several other artists have made sales. The sales have greatly encouraged the artists and contributed to the success of the salon.

The sales will be open today and every day this week from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. and will be open on Tuesday and Thursday nights. The latter will be society night, with numbers of the most prominent men and women of the city in attendance.

AVIATOR GOES TO DEATH
AT CHESTERFIELD FAIR
Trying to Avoid Crowd He Plunges Into Fence

CHESTERFIELD, S. C., Nov. 14.—Facing a choice of landing his aeroplane on a track crowded with spectators and endangering the lives of many in a big crowd attending the Chesterfield county fair or risking his own life by attempting a landing on the ground beyond the fence, Frank Terrell, an aviator who has been giving exhibition flights here, was killed this afternoon.

This afternoon was to witness the final flight, and the big crowd surged past the police and on the track as soon as Terrell had ascended, which was accomplished without mishap. He circled the grounds and flew to the outskirts of the town. As he returned his engine was seen to be giving him trouble.

With the engine out of commission, the aviator approached the track probably not seeing the throng in his way on the ground until he was nearly upon it. He gave the machine a quick twist to the left and hurried it to earth a few feet from the fence against which it crashed.

The aeroplane was wrecked and the aviator buried beneath the machinery. He was probably killed instantly.

OTIS SKINNER
COMES NEXT WEEK.

Jules Eckert Goodman is said to have found a big idea and one of great dramatic intensity in one of the short stories of detective fiction, which he has adapted to the stage and in a four act play, "The Silent Voice." It is being most successfully presented this season by the distinguished actor Otis Skinner.
The ingredients of the play are said to make a pulsing story of human suffering, human love, human charity and divine sacrifice, and the character of Montgomery Starr, to offer Mr. Skinner particularly good opportunities. Charles Frohman, who has provided an exceptionally strong supporting company, has cast Otis Skinner in "The Silent Voice," at the Atlanta theatre, Monday and Tuesday evenings, November 23-24.

"The trail of the Lonesome Pine," which opens at the Atlanta Theatre-giving for five performances, is a vivacious romance in book form has been read by 2,000,000 and more of book lovers. In the part of Jones, the primitive mountain man, Miss Eleanor Merrill has a role in which she will make a direct appeal to all those who have already met Jones in Mr. Fox's original story.

VAUDEVILLE
AT THE BIJOU.

The inauguration of the new vaudeville policy at the Bijou is sure to bring to Atlanta some clever acts during the winter. Already the bookings are showing class, and a feature act for the week beginning tomorrow will be the Haskin troupe of Russian singers, dancers and musicians. This is said to be one of the most interesting of novelty acts, as in addition to the singing, dancing and playing on all sorts of rather queer instruments, the troupe will present the Caucasian war dance.

Another feature will be the Cycling
Brynmor, French trick and comedy cy-

Princeton Eleven Stages a Great Up-Hill
Scoring 14 Points After Yale Had Piled Up Lead of 19 Points to Start

Princeton, Nov. 14.—Today's game between the Princeton and Yale football teams was a thrilling exhibition. The Princeton team, under the leadership of Coach H. S. Gifford, staged a great comeback, scoring 14 points after Yale had piled up a lead of 19 points to start.

The game was played at Princeton, N. J., on the Princeton campus. The Princeton team, consisting of eleven players, staged a great comeback, scoring 14 points after Yale had piled up a lead of 19 points to start.

Jackets Beat Georgia In Desperate Conflict Final Count Was 7-0

Winners Score Touchdown in First Quarter, Following Nice
Run by Patten-Muddy Field and Rain Made Fast Open Play Impossible—Game Hard-Fought Throughout

By Innis Brown

The two eleven of Georgia and Tech engaged in a football game at Grant Field Saturday afternoon. Tech won 7-0.

To old residents, the followers of football in these parts, this might suffice as a report of this annual combat, allowing for a free range of the imagination, working along the lines of former conflicts. However, there are those who are unacquainted in the procedure of the day when Tech plays Georgia at football, and for those more ramifying details are in order.

It had been four years since the Yellow Jackets had departed from the field of battle between the two teams. The story over Georgia, of rather five years, since such a thing had taken place, as Georgia had emerged from four successive years the victor. The spirit and determination of the Yellow Jackets had therefore been worked up to a frenzy. The Red and Black on the other hand was entering a deadly conflict, with an unwelcome record of four defeats in a row.

So much friend fan, for the state setting and atmosphere which went to make up the game, these conditions, small as it is, is the wonder that a real, tearing, slam-bang battle resulted. It did. For five hours, the game was a real, tearing, slam-bang battle, with the spirit of the two contending forces.

Finally, just before the close of the last quarter, Georgia received a Tech punt on her own seven-yard line. She opened with a desperate attempt to get over a long forward pass. Only a minute remained for their cause, and it was a last desperate attempt. Their plans were apparent, and the Jackets closed in on the play. The game ended with the ball in their position without a score.

Excuses and alibis are not in order. Two teams with no big advantage, no bright either way, Georgia as Georgia, and as desperately as humanly possible, humans will permit, the game was a real, tearing, slam-bang battle, with the spirit of the two contending forces.

The Jackets sustained rather more injuries than did Georgia. Stot, Paddock and Carpenter, at tackles, were forced to leave the game for a while. Carpenter sustained an injury to his side, which appeared to cause internal trouble, while Stot was battered about the knees. None of the others of either team was hurt badly enough to require substitutions.

Here is the way the game went, play by play. Captain Paddock, of Georgia, won the toss and decided to kick to Tech. The ball kicked off fifty yards to Fielder who returned it.

Tech's ball on their 30-yard line. Senter plunged through the line for 5 yards. Georgia's defense was penalized 5 yards for a false start. Gore failed to gain through the line. Senter hit the center of the line for 7 yards. Johnson failed to gain through the line. Morrison punched thirty yards to Paddock, who was downed on his back.

Tennessee Eleven Too Much for Tiger Team

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 14.—Reporting entirely to straight football and failing to execute successful plays, the Tennessee team was defeated by the Orange team in a game played here this afternoon 14 to 7.

The style of play of both teams was a general surprise. The Volunteers had been expected to resort largely to a wide-open offense after it had worked the downfall of both Alabama and Vanderbilt to the opposite extreme. May did not attempt a forward pass until the third quarter, and after three had miserably failed, confined himself almost entirely to line play. It was because that tried the open offense, after defeating Alabama, with an orthodox attack, the adopted typical western strategy. Five forward passes of eight were worked with clockwork precision, and two in the last few minutes of play shot a score into the hands of the Orange team. The game closed with Tennessee in possession of the ball in striking distance of the Orange goal.

Commodores Bow Before Auburn's Rush

Alabama Eleven Pressed Hard by Commodores But in Every Pinch Their Line Held Firm and Auburn's Goal is Still Uncrossed

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 14.—Auburn 6, Vanderbilt 0—that's the story of a great game of football. There are a thousand contest details that might be told, but the whole story is summed up in the first sentence. Auburn's powerful attack and Vanderbilt's gritty defense were both wonderful, but the stoutest blows of Donahue's trip hammer could not push another touchdown over after the first five minutes of play, and Vanderbilt's attack consisted of one Rabbit Curry, assisted occasionally, by Sikes.

Curry fumbled the first kick-off. Auburn recovered. Vanderbilt held for down, but lost the ball on Turner's fumble on the second play following. Then the Orange and Blue started another of those famous marches down the field, strating just on the edge of Vanderbilt territory and carrying the ball over the line in rapid-fire order. He was Harris who turned the trick and he was ably assisted by Pendergast, who failed to kick goal. Only one after that was Auburn able to push the ball back to Auburn's fifteen-yard mark, and then on the fifteen-yard line the Commodores related so stoutly that the ball was there.

One beautiful down forward pass from Sikes to Curry to Cohen, carried the ball forty yards down the gridiron to Auburn's fifteen-yard mark. A penalty for holding, however, cost Vanderbilt the possible chance of a touchdown. Once more the Commodores looked awfully dangerous, when Joan O'Quinn tackled, fell on one of Sikes' punts, and the Commodores related so stoutly that the ball was there.

Curry alone could gain for the Commodores. Time and again, he skirted Auburn's end, skinned away just outside tackle and made splendid returns of punts. He had almost no interference on any of his runs, but he proved himself an artful dodger.

Tarheels Have Very Close Call

RALPHIGH, N. C., Nov. 14.—Wake Forest today celebrated by holding North Carolina to a 11 to 7 score here. Most of the game was played in a driving rain.

The Baptists' line was impregnable. North Carolina making first down only three times without the aid of penalties. Wake Forest was penalized twice when striking distance of Wake Forest's goal. Homestead, Tandy and Taylor were absent from the North Carolina line.

Wake Forest scored in the first quarter on a 11 to 7 score here. Most of the game was played in a driving rain.

Game to Advantage Against

Boys rom Chatham

Playing at their best, the boys' football team, using the open style of Coach Tommie Smith, defeated Tech High 27-0 last Saturday. Tech High was the only team to score over the Sea State line in the last 10 years. Although Tech High had a lead in the first quarter, a touchdown in the second quarter by the boys' team should have ended the game. The boys' team scored touchdowns in the second, third and fourth quarters. The game, which was played in the rain, was a fast and exciting one.

Both teams were repeatedly, and consistently, out of the game during the final period.

Neither side did much in the first period, punts being exchanged several times.

However, in the second half, getting the ball, we started to let them work a little for fifteen yards, Savannah's five, we carried for three downs to over. Unfortunately, we missed, plunged off the line, touchdown. Punt.

The final touchdown came in the following high was forced to the ball, fumbled, and Harlan... before it fell to the ground and, having a clear field, ran fifty yards for a national touchdown. The Los Angeles Rams missed goal.

Savannah's only touchdown came in the last few minutes of play. The Rams' ball on their own 35-yard line. They marched down the field and scored for a touchdown. Penalties and them in this matter as well.

High was penalized half a dozen times for rough tactics.

The stars of the contest for Tech II were Harlan, W. Redell and P. Harlan's long run was the only singular event of the game. The week's best play at quarter for Savannah was by Kelly and Bryson also put up a good game.

The Grindstone Test

The 3,000 visitors to the Good Roads Convention got convincing testimony of the real economy in Red Seal Shoes.

One of our "Once a Year" shoes was up against the turning grindstone eight hours a day for five days.

It took three days, or 24 hours, to get through the outer sole.

Someone figured that one hour on the sand stone equaled a month on the road.
So even if we cut this in half and call it a twelve-months' wearer, the shoe is rightly named "Once a Year."

We have records of six to sixteen months.

If there ever was a time when the merchants of the South should protect their trade by giving them the best shoes, it is now.

You take no chances when you decide upon "Once a Year" shoes. Ask your

WILLINGHAM'S LETTER WIDELY COMMENTED ON

Head of Rome Commerce
Chamber Sent Out Interesting Document

Among the most interesting business communications with reference to the war was the circular letter widely distributed throughout the south by Wright Willingham, president of the Rome Chamber of Commerce. In his letter Mr. Willingham called upon the southern people to stand up and meet conditions like men and not succumb to hard times talk or to the war fear. A copy of the letter was sent to H. E. Choate, credit man of the J. K. Orr shoe company. Mr. Choate replied congratulating Mr. Willingham upon his statement and declaring that if everybody would stop talking war and get down to brass tacks, everything would soon be adjusted. In reply to his letter of congratulation, Mr. Choate received a letter from Mr. Willingham in which he stated that his war communication had been published in nearly all the big commercial centers east of the Rocky mountains and is still being circulated, and that it had been commented on editorially by such papers as the Baltimore Sun, the Journal of Commerce of New York City, the Manufacturers Record, the New York Sun, and the leading papers of Louisville, St. Louis, Memphis, Birmingham, Texas, Arkansas and West Virginia.

Mr. Willingham in his original communication advised economy, declaring that the south might have to buy fewer automobiles but that they could still "raise mule colts and Jersey bulls and get there somehow, even though it be at a lower rate of speed."
"True it may be," continued he, "that our women folks may have to suspend their suffragette convocations for a brief spell and resume the monotonous busi-

Down at McCord-Stewart company's headquarters H. J. Atwood, one of this company's popular traveling salesmen, is being commended as a man of much originality. "Most people, you know," said E. M. ness of looking after the babies and knitting socks for the men, but this is the way they used to do, and they managed to live through it. True it may be that our rich dads won't have quite as much money to spend on their boys in the way of Piedmont cigarettes, patent leather shoes, ice cream clothes, and it may even be possible that the boys will have to learn something about sentimental and physical labor.

BUSINESS QUITE ACTIVE ON COFFEE AND FLOUR

Cool Weather Brings Demand for Coffee-Retailers Are Reordering Flour

"All our salesmen report that things are looking better," said E. M. Hudson, of McCord-Stewart company, "and all of them are sending in some good orders. Especially good has been business on coffee. The cold mornings we have had and are to have have made everybody think of steaming hot coffee, and good coffee at that. I might say that our coffee business has been unusually good."

"The flour business is also quite steady now. Buying is much freer in this department of the wholesale grocery trade than has been the case for some time. Retailers are now about sold out of the coffee which was bought previous to the high prices caused by the war, and they are now buying for their present wants and as I say they are buying more freely because it is the general opinion throughout the country that the price of flour will move to higher levels as time goes on on account of the fact that nearly all the European countries are now engaged in war.

"Bread, as you know, is the cheapest and most sustaining form of food. All European armies are being fed to a large extent on bread, therefore there is no chance of the price of flour being anything but higher."

Western League A Heavy Loser

...the Western world's right losses of $12-15 million through the depredations of the bold assemblage of O'Neill's "hired thugs" who are "stealing the most dramatic cards in the deck" from Ginnore's organization. He says with "tip" twinkle, "I go to the dancing group where the girls are limited to 140 guests. I tell that the same as O'Neill's way of thinking. I tell her when winning is off and losing is on, I've reached the

HUGGINS' SIGNAL CODE

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 14.—Two members of the St. Louis American League team who are certain to hold their jobs next season in new uniforms are Ed Miller, right fielder, and Eddie Miller, left fielder. The two Wares and Eddie Miller, who were the only players on the Branch Rickey principal signal stealers. Both players possess extraordinary ability at stealing bases and are known for transmitting them to their teammates. They are not only adept at getting the bases but also are very intelligent, able to detect when the opposition is about to steal. In the past season, Miller was the infielder who signaled the steal. He made every pitched ball count for the team. He was the only player for many days developed after the season. He was the only player in his hands behind his back and motioned the outfielders whether the next pitch was a steal or not. He was the only player who caught the ball and whatever the catcher had called for. It did not take Eddie Miller long to

Hendee Branch Gets Supply of 1915 Machines

Latest Model Indians Just Received, Show Many Radical Changes in Construction Over Old Types - Manager Johnston Pleased

The arrival of the new 1915 models of the Indian Motorcycle line has started a great rush of business at the Hendee Manufacturing company's Atlanta branch. The new machines are the first in Atlanta to show a number of radical departures in motorcycle construction, and as a result, the display rooms at 457 Peachtree street are thronged

Another feature that has never before appeared in a new principle of kick start is the use of a special kind of machine by pedalling off in bicycle fashion is done away with entirely, the kick start is done by the use of a special clutch. With this is used a new type of clutch, especially for the big, heavy weight machines, which gives the rider tremendous gripping power of this clutch, and the use of sand in the clutch will be greatly appreciated by local riders who have to make the steep grades and the use of sand in the surrounding country.

For the first time in several years, the Indian line includes a lightweight twin. There is a new model in the line concerning this reversion to a former model, which is a 125 cc. model, which is generally admitted that such a model is destined to fill a much felt need in the market. This model is a 125 cc. model, five pounds less than the big twin, and thus can be handled with greater ease, and it is a very good model for the city use especially it will be used for Delivery service and by those riders who have been able to find the Big twin too heavy to handle comfortably.

It is notable for the appearance of the three speed gear. It is remembered that the Indian employed the two-speed gear before the war, but this became general and it is not surprising to learn that the new three-speed has been fitted to the Big twin in the factory during the past eighteen months. The new device does not differ in principle from the two-speed, but it has a third speed, which is also continued during the coming year.

It is also notable that the Big twin has been gratified with the reception of the 1918 model. His states that November orders have been placed for 1918 models some period last year; and the only way he can be reminded of the war is by their third order. The machine is the only one company is now shipping to the scene.

MOTORCYCLE RIDERS TO RACE THANKSGIVING DAY

A black and white photograph of a dirt track race. In the foreground, a motorcycle is leaning into a turn on a dirt track. In the background, a large crowd of spectators is gathered on the sides of the track, and a long, low building is visible in the distance. The scene is captured from a low angle, emphasizing the speed and action of the race.

The final climax of motorcycle events for the year of 1914 will be brought to a close on Thanksgiving day, November 27, when the 35th annual Canadian Grand Prix of the Savannah grand prize motorcycle road race will take place. This year's race will be held on the same grounds as the Savannah Motorcycle Club. What the grand prize race is to the automobile world, the Savannah motorcycle race is to the motorcycle world.

Last year this event had fifty-one entrants, and it was the first time that motorcycle drivers of the country. The contest was noted for its exciting nature, and it was won by J. H. Perry, who averaged practically first-five mile laps in 1:10. The race was held on a 3.5 mile track.

With the wonderful improvements in the design of motorcycles, and the present-day motorcycles, the event that will take place on Thanksgiving day is expected to be the most exciting of the year, and experts in the game predict that it will be the best yet.

For the single on half-mile track, the 35th annual Canadian Grand Prix will be held on the same grounds at Toronto September 27, 1914. When he won the five, ten and fifteen mile races, he was the champion of the world.

So great is the importance of the Savannah event that special trains from all parts of the country will be sent to carry a large crowd to Savannah. A special train from the Central Ontario Hotel will leave for Savannah that night, the 25th, reaching Savannah at 10:30 p.m. The race will start promptly at 8 o'clock, and will be over in about thirty minutes. The race will be over in about thirty minutes. The race will be over in about thirty minutes.

Chairman of racing committee, J. H. Perry, will be in charge of the race. The race will be in charge of the official and end of the big race. The race will be in charge of the official and end of the big race.

With keen interest all over the world.

The average of over sixty-two miles per hour will be maintained.

All the motorcycle makers all over the country have picked up the cream of their drivers for entering this contest, as there is $550 worth of cash prizes, not including the $1,000 trophy cup offered by the city of Savannah. The first prize will be $500; second prize $250; third prize $50 in gold and the Bosch magneto people have offered an additional cash prize of $100 in gold to the rider crossing the tape first, winning the event using a Bosch magneto, and an additional $50 in gold if the road record is broken.

Among the top ten entries will be: Bill Cunningham, who posted a 100-mile in 1:15 minutes on July 4 at Dodge City, and also recently won the 100-mile event at Milwaukee; Red Parkhurst, who recently, at Birmingham, won the one-hour F. A. M. national championship, and quite a number of other events during the State fair in September; Bill Brier, who broke quite a number of records and who has won some of the biggest long distance events at the Blue Ship; the well known southern motorcycle champion; Erwin Janke, of Milwaukee, a newcomer in the field, who has developed wonderful playing qualities; Yerkes, the Jacksonville crack rider who last year was the sensation of the Grand National prize, finishing in fourth place, and having had only one day's practice previous to the race; Martin Schroeder, the Savannah rider, who also made a good showing last year in the same event, and recently at the Isle of Palms, Charleston, S. C., made a wonderful performance.

Another rider is "Bud" Gardner, of Ohio. Gardner rode in the Savannah race prize last year, but having had much trouble was forced out, but up to the time he got the well in he was in and was considered a dangerous factor in the event. He is considered one of the best half-mile race riders in America, his record being 1:11.2 in the 30.0 class at Toledo in August, 1913, being likely to stand for a long time to come. His five-mile record remains at Michigan and escapes injury his work will rival that of Weston.

To be sent against Horwerth's time is the supreme test for any tackler, and to regain the way Mautebach did was heretofore regarded as a physical impossibility, and accomplishment beyond the limit of human endeavor.

It is next to impossible to tackle Mautebach from the side, and completely stop him. To halt his progress the tackler has to be in front. "Mauly" runs at a peculiar angle and "shoots" lower than probably any man playing on a big eleven. It is no wizard at picking openings. In a free space his team show plenty of speed. In close quarters he wriggles and slides, often using his free hand besides both feet to gain ground.

Ray Boyd Will Play on Coast

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 14.—Ray Boyd, old Birmingham pitcher and leader of the "Birmingham Baseball League" in Noblesville, Ind., that he has signed a contract to pitch for the Oakland Athletics in the Pacific Coast league.

Boyd will try to pull a clean back. He played with the Cannons club part of last summer and for a while gave them good work. His arm went slightly lame in the summer and he has been in trouble with the manager and McCormick the last year.

He is 34, has been married and has two children. He pitched for the Oakland A's banner year in baseball, but the manager of the Oakland A's told him to go and after carrying him a good part of the season, Moley decided that he was not good enough to pitch for the papers. The California climate may bring the arm back to stress again.

Dartmouth Smothers Red and Blue Eleven
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—Dartmouth defeated Pennsylvania today 41 to 6, the highest score ever registered against a Red and Blue team on Franklin field. Pennsylvania was outplayed in every department, and the Green's goal never was in danger. Dartmouth used a fake pass successfully for many gains, while forward passes resulted in several touchdowns.

the students of the warm countries South us, and the students of Japan, and Southern China will prefer to study in the South. They do not like the rigorous climate of New England and the Northwest.
But they will not come all the long way to a foreign land for education, and then seek the strongest institutions for teaching America. They cannot be deceived into believing that a poverty-stricken institution with high-sounding name is worthy of their patronage. We cannot delude or defraud them, and we ought not to wish to do so.

We may, if we will, have in Atlanta edu-national facilities as good as the best of any part of the world. We already have a fine start in this direction, but it is only a beginning. We must go further, and that without delay. Ample endowments are required, and the finest facilities may be only quired that the subject reduces "only" to a bare plural; great men in professors' chairs are more important than big buildings. But suitable buildings must be erected speedily. Libraries and apparatus also must be gathered. All these things will cost much money; but what is expended for them will be the best possible investment, even though we take no higher view of the subject than a selfish, commercial view. Money invested in factories cannot possibly yield such a rich and valuable return as a really great university, located in this district, butative center of the South, would yield. If any business man of the South would yield.

For the foregoing statement, I only ask that the investigator, the subject carefully to dispel this doubt.

The city of Glasgow, almost without any resources drawn from contributions beyond the city's limits, has made the University of Glasgow great, and maintains the institution at a high level of efficiency. Atlanta could do likewise, if necessary. But thousands of good people living outside Atlanta and beyond the limits of the State of Georgia are ready to unite with us in making here a really great University. It is our day of supreme opportunity. Will we rise to the height of our opportunity and make the most of it?

The South must no longer lag behind other sections in the matter of higher education, and Atlanta's position in the South puts upon the city a solemn and sacred responsibility to lead in achieving the educational indeunder the water. The station has the latest of modern improvements, including a large electric machine shop, electric cranes and all the necessary machinery for handling great weights.

The Chileans are proud of their navy. They have two dreadnoughts of 28,000 tons each now building. They have two armored cruisers, the Esmeralda and the O'Higgins, which are of seven or eight thousand tons,

And three protected cruisers. They have two torpedo gunboats, thirteen destroyers, and a fleet of minesweepers and auxiliary ships. There is also a mine ship and a hospital ship. The total strength of the navy is about 6,000 officers and men and 100,000 sailors.

The Emeralda now in the dry dock is the largest of the cruisers. She was in action on occasions which fought so well in the great engagements with Peru about 35 years ago. She was built in England. The Emeralda and the Cavadoque were lying off the coast of Peru when the Cavadoque when two much larger vessels belonging to the United States and independent nations attacked them. The Emeralda and Cavadoque were made of wood and the armament of the Cavadoque was of the old type of four pound guns. Neither was over 800 tons.

The Emeralda had more than 1,000 tons and its guns shot 800-pound shells. The Independencia was built in England and was of the same type. She had twelve seventy-pound guns. Notwithstanding, the Emeralda blazed away at the Cavadoque and the Cavadoque was blown up. The other three hundred-pound shells she continued until she was almost completely disabled. She finally blew up.

She was a fine ship. She had a fine ironclad prow the Chilean captain, Araya, was on the deck of the Huascar and called to her to follow him. Before they could do so the Emeralda was shot to pieces by the Peruvian bullets and the Emeralda was fought on without a commander. She was blown up.

The Chilean coats still flying.

At first sight it seems impossible that the above-mentioned statistics are correct. The examination of the available statistics brings us face to face with a most disconcerting fact.

As this country stands almost alone among the nations of the world in having no detailed and comprehensive statistics in relation to crime, it is difficult to make a close comparison with the statistics of other countries. In the matter of the number of murders committed each year, recent investigations by the U. S. Hoffman Commission tend to present a general review of the facts. The following figures are given for the years 1925-1929:

Number of murders in three American cities of the question, dared that, while in Canada only 7 persons in every 1,000,000 were murdered, in the United States 1,000,000 in the United States is 128.

It is further to be noted that within the United States the rate of murder is more common in every part of the country. The average number of murders per 100,000 of the population is 1.28. In 1903-1912 was 7.5; during 1913 it rose to 8.7. The following figure shows the increase in the rate of murder in the United States:

We need look no further for an explanation of our low standing among the nations in the matter of murder. As some one has wittily remarked, hanging a murderer appears to be the only form of lynch law which the American people have any objection.

and only taking out citizens of foreign parents and of character training to be observed. The whole body of mature men in the country is small, and the rest of the other, so far as it is intelligent and thoughtful, is constantly giving voice to its desire to get rid of the parasites. Fortunately, even these adult citizens do less than nothing to avert the consequences of the enormous growth of the country to a decent conception of its own manners.

Of 100 criminals, foreigners furnish about 15 per cent of the total; the number of foreign-born murderers is about 16 per cent of the total number of murders. This means that 84 per cent of the murders are committed by native persons born in this country and 16 by alien immigrants, and that if the 16 per cent of the murders committed by equally murderous the figures would be 85 for the native and 15 for the foreigner.

It is a striking illustration of the contrast, without particular reference to murder, run across a fact which may have an important bearing on the future of the country.

ANSWERS TO BEAUTY QUERIES

REPLIES to letters to the writer of this department will be printed in regular order, but no replies in print may be expected in less than three or four weeks.

Correspondents desiring immediate replies to queries may get them by inclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope. Personal inquiries will receive prompt attention if accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

To Curl the Hair

Dear Mr. Symes,
Do you know of anything harmless which I could use to curl the hair? ALICE

I do not know of anything that will give the hair a permanent curl, but I am giving you the formula for a hair curling fluid which many of my correspondents have used with success.

Curling Fluid for the Hair

Add a tablespoonful of bruised quince seed to a pint of hot water. The water is poured over the seeds and the whole allowed to stand for a few hours. The resultant mucilage may then be thinned with a few drops of essence of violet. The hair is moistened with the fluid before curling.

Falling Hair

Dear Mrs. Symes,
I wish you would give me something to use to stop my hair from falling out. It is slightly oily. GRACE.

To correct the falling of the hair give your scalp half-hour massage treatment each evening. Use the quintine tonic for which the formula is here given:

Mix, then further add Glycerin,  $\frac{1}{2}$  ounce; essence of S. yale or essence musk, 8 or 6 minims. Agitate until solution is complete. Apply to the roots every day.

Superfluous Hairs

You should have the hairs removed by one who is an expert in the use of electricity. This is the best and surest way to get rid of the superfluous growth.

Brilliantine

By using brilliantine on your hair you can keep the ends in place. After your hair is arranged pour a little of the brilliantine into the palms of the hands and then smooth the hair gently with

Problems and Dilemmas

YOU AND YOUR SERVANT

MANY women are very particular about their conduct toward people in their own circle of society. They ask various questions about the correct way to act and speak and to treat different things that occur. I have very few letters concerning the treatment of servants, but I do not because it is unimportant to me. It is an index of the thoughtlessness of women about their part of their home life. If you

When and how long. You should be honest about the amount of work that you expect her to do. Do not forget to say that the servant is to be paid for the work that she does. It is only fair for the children, or for the wife to take charge of the garden, or the marketing, and then reap these duties on the woman who has to do the work. It is only fair to tell her that she knows what she is undertaking. Many "notices" are given in a short time because the servant has not been told that she is to do the mistress's former duties. It is better that the mistress forget to mention that a household can run smoothly with its constant changing of its working force.

When your servant has entered on her duties it is well to consult her about her plan of work. Divide the work among the working days. Let her know that she is to be paid for it, and not a slipshod round of drudgery. When she is a quick, efficient worker, make it plain to her that the time left over is her own.

Do not make the day of your servant a long one, from sunrise to 3 o'clock. The labor laws have been established. If this continues, remember that the servant is a human being, anxious for relaxation and rest, and will give better work as a result. The servant's home should be attractive. The day of clean, cheap materials, the task of making it livable is not a difficult one. It is the place where he would wish to go to for a little rest each day.

Be courteous to your servant. Thank him when his day is drawing to a close, and remember that a very efficacious word is the little word "please."

If women will regard the servant as a human being, there will be better results and greater satisfaction on all sides. Soon I shall give a few points on the training of a servant. Which I am sure you will like.

LIVING DEATH IN THE HOSPITALS OF EUROPE

American Women Headed by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Are Nursing in European Hospitals, Where the Horror is Greater Than on Battle Line

The following experiences of an American nurse in France are reprinted by permission from Harper's Weekly, where they were published under the title "Plains Hell."

I am so tired when night comes I crawl into bed and to sleep. Today I called a halt and have had a half day, as my back and legs were getting beyond use. I am working with the "American Ambulance." We have now fully three hundred—or bad when I came off at 1 o'clock, but the ambulances, ten in all, left for the front—so by this time, 8 p. m., we may have forty more, as that is the number they can bring at one time. It is very interesting, but I will not give you many particulars—they are too terrible. I was "relieving" for dinner in a room for Englishmen. They were brought in yesterday.

I asked: "When were you shot?"
"Last Sunday."
"Where have you been since, as it is just a week?"
"Oh, lying around here and there."

They had not had their shirts or clothes off for five weeks; their legs were shot to pieces; some were shot through the chest; others through the eyes or jaws; each one so bad it is hard to say which is worst, dirt, neglect, no food. I found one poor little Englishman with a piece of dirty biscuit and two little green apples in his pocket, and was told that was all any of them had had to eat for four days, as the Germans kept them busy night and day.

One man, hit by a shrapnel, paralyzed from his neck down, thinks he is all there is left of his regiment. They were blown up by bombs from German aeroplanes. I am trying to think which one of the three hundred has a chance to go out of here unscathed. Not one, I fear. We have had five deaths, so far. Let us hope we shall have many more. We are all working without pay, and it is certainly a fine sight. Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt is one of the foremost. She is on duty at 7:30 a. m. and one of the last to leave. She serves food, helps arrange the men, feeds them, does in fact anything she can, and is a woman of resources and great energy.

Other men and women of culture and means are here, cleaning up the beds of those paralyzed, tugging heavy trays of dishes and food, helping with operations and dressings, always ready, alert, anxious, sympathetic, and so gentle with some poor old black Algerian or member of the Coldstream Guards. The opportunity to help, to cheer, to support and encourage, how can I tell you what it is? We had news on Sunday that there were eight thousand, seven hundred at Limoges, lying on stretchers or straw, and one of twenty nurses and three doctors to look after them. We came out here the last of August. Then, after about a week, in which we put things in order, our work began. Sometimes we have fifty or eighty brought in at one time. Picture the work. Each man to be undressed, bathed, washed, examined and dressed, fed, operated on. Each and all say, "No, we do not want to return to the front. We have had enough."

Now if there ever is another war after this massacre, then the whole human race should be blown to pieces, and completely wiped out of existence! Sentiment and decoration are fine things, perhaps, if one likes wind and talk, but some one and see the suffering, mangled, and for what? They tell me expansion. Christianity is certainly a fine failure as far as I can make out. Where am I going next? Heaven knows. I must go to sleep. One of my poor little men, only twenty-three, has a ball in his brain. He is paralyzed on one side. He realizes his condition, and although he tries to be calm, I see many a tear as it seeps out of the corner of his eye. I hope he will die soon. I must try to sleep, but it is raining and I can't help but picture all those thousands and thousands of miserable men, wet, tired and hungry. It is useless. Good night. I hate being a human animal. I wish I were a cat or something.

Where Children Play

How much attention, father and mother, are you giving to your children's play?

You take pains with their food, with their clothing. You make sure that they go to school. But have you fixed up a playroom for them? Do you encourage them to have parties and dances and frolics at home, where the surroundings are clean?

One of the new things of recent times is called the "social survey"—a census of the facts about how folks live. When carefully taken it gives food for thought.

Springfield, Ill., has just had one. A phase of it is especially interesting. Boys and girls of high school age are in a critical time of life. The Springfield survey made a study of the high school youngsters.

Practically all of them go to the movies. Four-fifths like the theaters and go when they can. Half are fond of dancing. But in more than half of the young people's homes social gatherings are never held. These budding men and women, when most in need of wholesome play, have to seek it away from home—in public dance halls, in theaters, on the street.

Who is to blame if some of them go wrong?

Right around the corner is the public school house, each night dark and idle. If home isn't big enough for dances or parties, they might be held there. A little extra tax would equip it as a people's club house, open to all.

Then the small parties could be held at home and the larger ones in the next best place.

Who Are the Undeserving?

The mayor of Chicago says he believes in "prompt relief for the deserving poor," but that bums and loafers must keep away.

Perhaps the mayor classes as an undeserving the brute-faced bum who scoffs at work and boasts that the world has got to provide him with a living on his terms.

But that bum was once a dimpled baby, smiling angel-like, to a mother's caress. The difference is not wholly of his willful making. Somewhere, somehow, the best of us is tormented, by act or neglect, to make him what he is.

If in the mayor's home circle one had been born a weakling or a cripple, he had been started in life's race with less than the average chance, we're quite sure his honor would say to this unfortunate: "I stand for the survival of the fittest; you must starve."

Where, then, are the undeserving poor?
Where, among all the sons and daughters of men, high or lowly, rich or poor, is there a human soul of whom it can be justly said: "You deserve nothing but to famish and die?"

We shouldn't care to assume the responsibility of making such a selection.

Would you?

History of Public Schools Here

By Gordon Noel Hurtel

The history of Atlanta's schools is interesting. The first teacher was Miss Martha Reed who taught in Marshville for one year. In 1847 Dr. White, of New York opened a private school. Then came Dr. and Mrs. William H. Fernorden and Professor W. N. Jones, in 1848. In 1851 Mrs. T. S. Oulby taught a school at the corner of Hunter and Pryor streets. In August of the same year Miss C. W. Dewa and Miss Nevers taught a school in the J. W. Bridwell house on Marietta street. Still later Rev. T. D. Adair opened an "Academy." Then came the Atlanta Military academy, taught by G. A. Austin and Alex. N. Wilson. In 1853 Miss E. S. Reed and Mrs. A. L. Wright started a "select" school, located in the basement of the First Presbyterian church.

The free school movement began in 1852 when a mass meeting was held in the old city hall on October 6. The project fell through, but a college to educate the girls in the higher branches was determined upon. The school was located at the corner of Ellis and Courtland streets, with Prof. J. R. Mason principal.

The present system of public schools was established in 1862 largely through the efforts of Dr. S. H. Stout and Dr. D. C. O'Keefe. The following committee took the matter in charge with great success: William H. Hulsey, mayor, Dr. O'Keefe, E. R. Carr, J. P. Logan, W. M. James, J. H. Flynn, E. E. Rawson, David Mayer, L. J. Gartrill and Dr. Jout.

The schools were formally opened on November, 1870, with Bernard Mallon, of Savannah, principal. Twenty-six teachers were elected.

Atlanta's First Bridge

If you were asked where Atlanta's first bridge was built, what city would you answer?

Atlanta has been called "A City of Bridges" and every citizen should know the true history of its bridges.

According to best authenticated early history, the first bridge in Atlanta was built on Hunter street between Pryor and Central avenue (formerly Lloyd street). On November 11, 1847, before Atlanta was chartered and when the village was still Marshville, the city council ordered the Hunter street bridge raised and widened.

The first bridge between north and south Atlanta was built in 1852 to extend Broad street. The street was first called Market street, because the city market was located on it near the railroad. Other smaller bridges followed, such as Jones avenue, Foundry and Whitehall (near West End).

Lastly, came the big viaducts at the Whitehall, Mitchell, Forsyth, Nelson, Peters and Washington street crossings.

Judge Hoyt's Story

One of the most interesting stories told of the early days of Atlanta was that which was related by Judge Samuel D. Hoyt, who settled in Marshville in 1845. Judge Hoyt said: "I came to Atlanta, or rather Marshville, in April, 1845, and rode on horseback all the way from my home in east Tennessee. I came to clerk for Jonathan Norcross and remained with him six months. I saw one of the smallest and most unpromising crossroads towns grow into a great city in a few years despite the ravages of the war and Sherman's torch."

"As an illustration of the way in which property enhanced in value I will give you a single example. Samuel Mitchell was the owner of the land lot No. 77, now including the central part of Atlanta and worth about $29,000,000. Mitchell bought the lot for $100,000 in 1845, and sold it for $1,000,000 in 1850."

"The land was almost covered with trees. I myself gathered chinquapins many times in that section of the city."

A Song of the Sea

A Song of the Sea

By H. E. Harman

I long for the magical sight and the mist of the sea;
For the smell of the wind-swept brine
And the deep where the breakers swirl,
With the pleading grief of a lost soul's mystery.
I long for the smooth-woven silvery sands of the shore,
With woods to the West, and the main
Going far to the East, like a chain,
Whose links run on to the latch of a dreamer's door.
I long for the sheen of the afternoon sun on the sand,
Smooth, white, when the tide is low,
And the West with its gold a-glow,
When the blessing of rest comes down, 'twixt the sea and the land.
The marsh stretches far to the west with its sad mystery,
Where the sentinel pines rise high
To mark where its endings lie;
To the East is the mist and the gloom of thy endless leagues, O sea!

II.
I long for a sight of the sea when the daylight breaks;
When the sun, like a mystery things,
Fly seaward to try, their wings;
When the marsh and the wood arouse and the dream of a new day wakes
From the far off beach, where shore is broken and torn,
And the adamant rocks abide,
That embitter the restless tide,
Comes an endless cry, like a soul that is weary and worn.

III.
In sorrow I come to the shore when the long, rolling waves, half spent,
Dweep in, like an echo of grief,
Extracting the beach for relief,
Then break, and weep, and moan, outpouring their sad lament.
On the welcoming sands, that spread and stretch in the afternoon sun:
So strong for the lips of the tide,
So eager to hold and to hide
The grief of the sea, when its uttermost toil and sorrowing has been done.

IV.
And why should I come to the sad-sounding sea, with its wail and its woe?
With its moan on the silvery shore,
Like a hope that is lost and evermore?
And why should I ask of this weary tide the things I already know?
There is fellowship, kindred and kind, a linking of comrades in pain
With a soul that's sad and the sea—
A mystery ever to me—
Yet a bond 'twixt the seeker of comfort and the unceasing wail of the main.

V.
For peace I would come at the time, when a low ebbing tide is asleep;
When the master, the sea, is a-dream,
Touched now by the long slanting beam
Of the sun in the west, as he warms every crest of the fathomless deep.
When courage I seek and for conflict would steady my soul for the world
I come, when the sea leaps high,
In its limitless wrath to the sky,
And threatens the rocks to withstand a soul that's accur'd.

VI.
When my soul reaches out for that unexplained longing for prayer
I come to the sea, and behold
The deeps and distance unfold
A God who is near, and who listens and answers me there.

For the sea is akin unto God, like the marsh and the wood;
And softens the soul of him
Who prays for the endless hymn
That it sings in melody sweet and seals the heart for good.
Who prays at the feet of the sea, when the ebb is low,
Prays twice for a Godlike calm
Turas simple prayer to psalm,
And swift the plea, sea-bless'd, to answering Heaven goes.

VII.
I long for a night by the sea, with its silence and waves,
And its stars in the low-bent blue;
Just these and a thought of you,
To ease the human unrest of a soul that craves.

No One There
"No one was at the distillery, so we took the 'working path' from the distillery and followed it up to Widow Snow's house. It was now about 1 o'clock in the morning, dark, and a drizzling rain was falling. As we approached the premises everything was dark except a small barn building, from which dim light shed its rays. We peeped through the cracks of the barn and saw within Bart Snow and Andy Evans, sitting with a doubling keg of whisky between them and a bottle of whisky from which they were drinking.

"We let our presence be known and demanded entrance. They refused and we broke in the door and seized the keg of whisky and a jug we found in the building.

"WE had the lighted lantern and were coming up the bluff to the team when shotguns blazed at us from a distance of fifty yards.

"Put out the lantern," I said to Dickerson at the first shot, and he answered: 'I'm hit.'"

A north Georgian who destroyed 555 illicit distilleries in his time, wrote this in his diary.

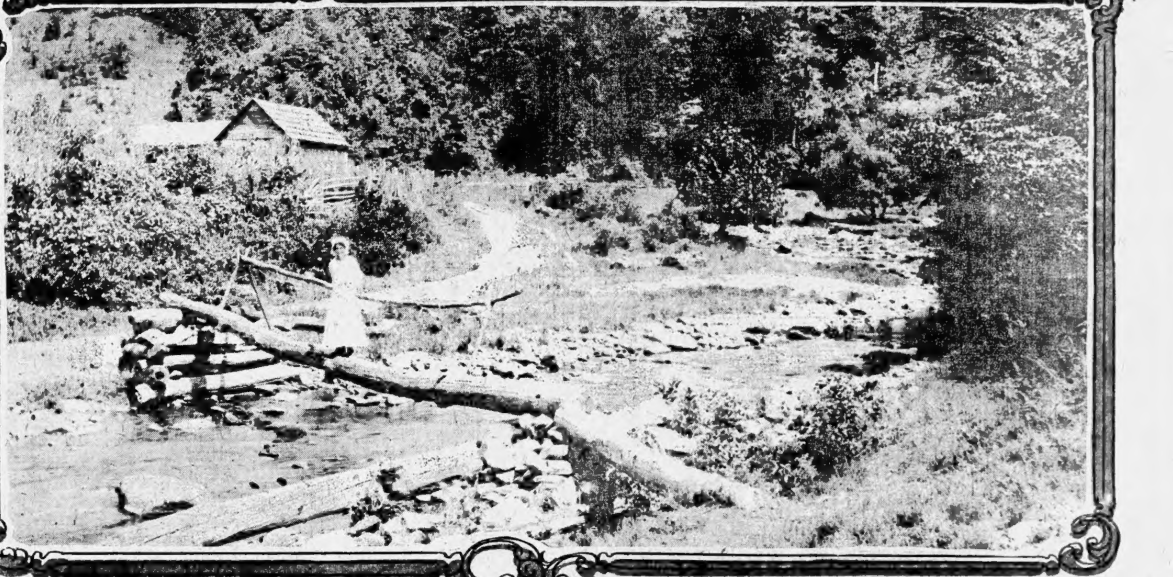

In all the south there was no man who waged such war on the moonshining mountaineers as this quiet, gun-tanned, steel-nerved fellow, H. L. Richardson.

Until his death recently at Gainesville, Ga., he had firm faith that half the world's evil comes of liquor, and he worked to free the Georgia mountains of distilleries.

You've never heard of him, and, yet, he was one of the most remarkable men in the state. On the pay lists of the government revenue service was not another with his record.

Single-handed he wiped out moonshining in one whole section of Georgia, but we have the exact account of only one of his raids. Seldom has remarkable achievement been so overlooked.

He was one of the most daring men in the government service, and it is a venturesome business, this hunting illicit distilleries in north Georgia mountains. There were pitched battles in the old days; and time was with my gun ready, and the three wheeled, but I stopped them. It was then Dickerson came up with the back. I let the men go, because there was no reason for holding them, and we started toward Hartwell, and in the general direction of the distillery. It was in a deep gorge behind a bluff.

Battle in the Dark
"We had the lighted lantern and were coming up the bluff back to the team when shotguns blazed at us from a distance of fifty yards. 'Put out the lantern,' I said to Dickerson at the first shot, and he answered, 'I'm hit.'

"About that time they fired again and we returned the fire, shooting at the blacks from their guns, and they fired back the third volley. I continued to shoot till I had exhausted two rounds from a six-shooting revolver, with only the blaze from their guns to direct my aim. We fired and advanced till they retreated in an open field and broke away. When they delivered the last shot they were 300 or 400 yards distant, and there was then little danger, the bullets falling harmlessly about us, Dickerson and I had become separated and I went straight ahead toward the team. And as I did so saw some one in the open in front, who proved to be Bart Snow. He ran, with me in pursuit till I caught him. I took him back with me.

"He had no arms and denied having anything to do with the shooting. I had him by the waistband all the time, and took him to the back. Dickerson was nowhere to be seen. He had the lantern and it was dark, and I went in search of him. I whistled and shouted till I found him and discovered he was shot in the side of the head with the blood well-nigh covering him.

gone the wrong way. We didn't light the lantern, and had Bart with us all the time and knew they wouldn't shoot while he was there. We had difficulty in finding the back as dark as it was.

"Now we started back to Hartwell, carrying Bart Snow with us about two miles till we were satisfied we were out of danger, then we put him out and told him to go home.

"We locked up the whisky and apparatus in the calaboose at Hartwell and went back to the hotel. Both of us were bloody as if we had been killing hogs. Dickerson had been hit in the head, several shots above the ear, but he picked them out and said they didn't go through the skull. I had been cut across the nose with one shot. Dickerson had as firm nerve as any man I ever saw. Warrants were sworn out for four of the Snow boys, who were the sons of Widow Snow, and for Andy Evans, charged with operating the distillery and shooting at us. They were arrested and gave bond for so. Bart Snow died of paralysis at home before he was ever tried. Columbus Snow was killed by his brother, Van Van Snow was a fugitive from justice for a long time, till his bonds broke. The case against him was not pressed. Warren Snow, the youngest one, proved that he had no gun and did so shooting. Andy Evans was found guilty of operating the distillery, but was cleared of the shooting.

Markets Lower Cost of Living

NEW YORK.—This city has taken its place now among those which are successfully fighting the high cost of living by establishing open municipal markets.

The middlemen claimed that they were absolutely indispensable, in the distribution of food, especially in the case of such an enormous concentration of people as makes up the city of New York.

But the open markets were established to eliminate the middlemen. A party of 200 citizens has just made the first inspection tour of the new markets, under the guidance of Marcus Marks, president of the borough of Manhattan. Here is what they found, as told by Mrs. Julian Heath, president of the National Housewives league:

"There is not a single article of food that is not sold cheaper in the open markets than in the retail stores. I bought fish for 12 cents a pound at the market last Friday after I was quoted 18 cents a pound in a number of fish stores that I called up. You can get real farmers' celery at 5 cents a bunch in the markets for which the storekeepers charge 10 cents. I estimate that the markets have brought about a reduction of 20 per cent in the cost of meat and 20 per cent in the cost of fish."

Leaf From His Diary.

By chance, a leaf from the diary of Mr. Richardson came to The Journal last week, telling of one of the most vivid encounters in the history of the revenue service—that of the Bull Short raid in Hart county, one July, and is printed here as noteworthy in the life of the man who alone destroyed 555 illicit distilleries.

"On the day before the fight," begins the diary, "I received a wire from the revenue agent to report to John Dickerson at Hartwell, after night. I dropped off the train before getting to Hartwell depot, so that no one but the conductor, who was my friend, would know of my presence. Together with Dickerson and the informer we went to the Bobo hotel, where the informer told us at once he could carry us directly to the still then in operation. Dickerson slipped out and found Worthy Chapman, a liveryman and the only one not afraid to drive us in these risky jobs.

"We went around back ways and met him on the outskirts, as they had 'pale' in town who would report to the moonshiners that we were coming. We succeeded in dodging all that. Then followed a six-mile drive south of Hartwell in that section of the country known as Bull Short. We hid our driver and team in a little clump of woods, and the informer took us down in a hollow on the Widow Snow farm, to where we could see the fire in the furnace of the distillery. We left the informer there and Dickerson and myself slipped in on the distillery and found they had just run off a doubling.
