"Another effort to drive us from our trenches by means of gas was made north of the Ypres-Comines canal. The Germans here had two batteries of cylinders, placed so that their nozzles projected over the parapet, and for half an hour a cloud of white gas belched forth. It was so dense that when standing in it a man could not see his hands, and its fumes bleached the grass."

PRESIDENT REVIEWS ATLANTIC FLEET IN HUDSON RIVER TODAY

ing point at the foot of Seventy-ninth street. The head of the parade was to reach the reviewing stand at 10:30 o'clock. Here Admiral Fletcher and other high officers of the fleet met the Mayor, Mr. McAnany, and other local notables who were with the president. They were to accompany him after the parade to the Biltmore hotel where he was to make a brief speech.

The program called for Mr. Wilson's return to the Mayflower immediately after the luncheon. Then the raising of the president's flag was to follow. It was the commander-in-chief of the fleet was ready to receive formal calls from the flag officers and captains. This ceremony completed. Probably by 1:30 o'clock, the Mayflower was to weigh anchor for the review. Her course, clear of all other traffic, was north between the battleships and the Manhattan shore. The Mayflower's escort was a division of destroyers, led by the dispatch boat Dolphin, carrying Secretary Daniels, and the tugboat Yonkers, the police boat patrol and the auxiliary cruiser Dixie.

BACKBONE OF THE NAVY The fleet which President Wilson sees today for the first time in his official capacity comprises virtually the strength of the Atlantic naval force. It is the backbone of the fleet. The outbreak of the European war stood second only to Great Britain's alone in making the United States a power to be reckoned with. Sixteen destroyers and the super-dreadnoughts, New York and Texas with their great 14-inch guns and the most powerful armor in the world of the battle squadron in the order in which they were built are the fleet's backbone. It includes Florida, Delaware, North Dakota, Michigan, South Carolina, Kansas, New Hampshire, Louisiana, Virginia, Rhode Island, Nebraska and Georgia. Twelve submarines, three monitors, mine laying, repair, hospital, refrigerator and other auxiliary vessels compose the rest of the fleet.

Tonight the president and his official party will be dinner guests of Admiral Fletcher aboard the coming. The day's program will end with a brief address by the president to the reviewing stand. After 7 o'clock and headed north on Fifth avenue. Soon the parade changed again to a drizzle. A roof of umbrellas sheltered the thousands of spectators who lined the sidewalks and a noisy welcome to the president.

The presidential party traveled at a snail's pace through the street, trailed by three automobiles of secret service and a detachment of mounted police. The secret service guard also was unusually heavy. When the president reached the reviewing stand he found the Seventh regiment, New York national guard, drawn up in salute. The block in which the stand stood was cordoned off by the public and covered with an awning. As the head of the column of the reviewing stand entered into the square, the throng of blocks set up a cheer that did not subside until after the president had taken his place. Then a fanfare of trumpets, almost drowned the president's voice. Within the stand the president was surrounded by naval officers.

A few minutes after the president reached the stand the head of the reviewing line came into view. PRESIDENT SALUTES A battalion of mounted police preceded the marchers. Next came the marine corps band, the warblers themselves, clad in dark blue jackets with light blue trousers, and then the elements of sailors. As each detachment passed, the president was saluted. Throughout the parade the president, silk-hatted, intent on the spectacle, sat on a high-backed chair. In the passing of the masses from the various battalions drew ripples of laughter from the crowd.

The line was not long in passing the stand. When the last detachment passed, the president, accompanied by acting Mayor McAnany, and other local officers of the cabinet, Mr. Butler, representing the citizens' committee, and other officers and members of the committee, led to attend the luncheon at the Hotel Biltmore.

As the president rode from the reviewing stand to the hotel through the avenue, he was surrounded by a wall of blue coats that had difficulty in holding in check the men and women who sought to reach him and shake his hand.

"The wonderful! A great set of men!" were some of the president's exclamations as the blue line tramped past in front of the reviewing stand. Once more the parade became a "blue line" when the sailors from the Florida and Utah marched by, holding aloft a standard on which was written, "Vera Cruz, April 21-22, 1914."

As the president entered the hotel he was given another round of cheers. The Mayflower's arrival in New York harbor last night instead of this morning, as planned, was explained today when it became known she ran in to escape a storm. Nearly seven miles on board became sea sick, and Dr. Grayson, the White House physician, was kept busy. The association has obtained promises of the voyage less than other members of the fleet, but did not feel very well, he said.

"My doctor, too, advised Sanatogen"

PERHAPS it came as a surprise when you learned that your friend was a staunch believer in Sanatogen, and that his doctor has recommended it for him, too.

You thought yours was an isolated case, perhaps -- and instead you found yourself one of the thousands being directed to better digestion, strengthened nerves and reinvigorated energy by the upbuilding and tonic effects of Sanatogen.

But it is not a surprise to us. We know Sanatogen is most -- and best -- advertised by word of mouth. The use of Sanatogen is spread broadcast by the good it does. Its users are its friends -- sincere, enthusiastic, grateful.

Else why should so many famous people -- like John Burroughs, Gilbert Parker, Lady Bonnetnet, Colonel Waterston, Rear Admiral Sigbee, for instance -- people whose very names inspire confidence -- be so willing to tell over their own signatures of the good Sanatogen did them? Why should more than 21,000 physicians who have written, so sincerely, often even enthusiastically of their belief in Sanatogen?

But -- if you know you need the help that Sanatogen gives -- why should you wait for a friend to recommend it to you? Surely the overwhelming testimony in behalf of Sanatogen should convince you that it will help you.

Sanatogen is sold by good druggists everywhere from $1.00 up.

ATLANTA MINISTERS PAY HIGH TRIBUTE TO WILSON

Note to Germany and Attitude in Present Crisis Given Unstinted Praise

Atlanta ministers in their sermons Sunday paid remarkable tributes to President Woodrow Wilson, his note to Germany and his attitude in the crisis confronting the country.

Speaking on the subject, "Our Country," our President, our duty, Dr. E. A. White told the congregation of the Second Baptist church Sunday night that God has given Woodrow Wilson to this country and to the world for such a time as this.

"He is the hiding place from the wind and a covert from the tempest. In respect of partisan party considerations, I venture to believe that 90 per cent of all the men and women of this country are glad he is our president at this serious hour."

Dr. A. R. Holdery, in his sermon to East Point Presbytery Sunday morning said: "It is a great thing for this nation that President Wilson is our president."

Nothing is to be raised. In several other pulpits reference was made to the president in no other way than there was anything but praise and commendation of him.

Some striking advice to the young society girl just finishing school and entering upon life's journey, in a sermon preached Sunday morning by Dr. W. W. Memminger, pastor of All Saints Episcopal church, to the graduating class of Washington Seminary.

Dr. Memminger exhorted the graduates to believe the influence of women has been more powerful, than that of men, in the history of the world.

"I was a woman who first bore witness to the risen Christ, and many of the women in the church to say, we hear it said sometimes, that the church would have perished long ago but for the influence of women, but it is a splendid tribute to women and more."

SUNDAY IS EXCITING DAY FOR POLICEMEN

Negro Tries to Brain Two of Them and Woman Over Phone 'Cusses' Another

Attempts of a negro to brain two of them with a hatchet and a round 'cussing out' over the telephone by an irate woman, culminated in a charge for patrolmen at police barracks Sunday.

Tom Wilson, colored, charged with being drunk and disorderly, hid in Turney Moore's locker on his way to a cell Sunday night, when the locker door was opened, the negro, grasping a hatchet he had found, sprang upon Officer McKinney and the turnkey. One of the patrolmen pulled a billy and laid the prisoner low.

When call officer McWilliams answered the telephone early Sunday morning, a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Ida Graham, 311 South Pryor street, "cussed him black and blue," he said, when he refused to let her come down and visit the woman, who she said to be her husband, who had been locked in charged with beating her. McWilliams found the number the call came from, got another officer to call the number and hold Mrs. Graham to the wire by "blatney" while McWilliams sped out to South Pryor street on his motorcycle and arrested Mrs. Graham while she was still chatting with the white patrolman at the other end of the wire.

SEVEN MEN ARE KILLED IN ACCIDENT NEAR TOCCOGA

Ten Others Are Injured When Derailed Car Is Overturned

TOCCOGA, Ga., May 17.—Seven men, two of them white, were killed, and ten others were injured, some seriously, when a derailed car overturned on the Southern railway near here Sunday night.

The white men who lost their lives were S. O. Bates, supervisor, Toccoga, and S. E. Griffin, section foreman, Liberty, S. C.

Five of the injured men were white. They are: Thomas Bennett, Flower Branch, Ga.; Ross Cash, Mount Airy, N. C.; J. C. Smith, Mount Airy, Ga.; and S. E. Thomas, Lula, Ga.

PAXON TO GIVE VIEWS ON POLICE DEPARTMENT

Yields to Request to Appear Before Investigating Committee Monday Night

Colonel Frederick J. Paxon, one of the city's leading business men, will be the principal witness before the special committee investigating the efficiency of the police department at Monday night's session of the probers.

Colonel Paxon was requested, not summoned, to appear before the investigating committee and give it the benefit of his knowledge of the workings and the efficiency of the department, and he has accepted the invitation.

In advance of his appearance, Colonel Paxon refused, as a matter of courtesy to the committee, to make any statement of his views of the police situation.

Chairman S. A. Wardlaw, of the special committee, admits that Colonel Paxon will be questioned as to any knowledge that he may have of the relations of Chief of Police J. E. Beavers with the leaders of the Men and Religion Forward Movement.

It has been freely charged by Mayor Woodward and others who are arrayed against the chief, that he pays more attention to suggestions made by the attorneys of the Men and Religion bulletins than to the wishes and the orders of the police commission.

Colonel Paxon has on several occasions criticized the bulletins as harmful to the city.

Other witnesses slated to appear before the committee are several newspaper men, and if their examination is not too lengthy the committee will then hear statements of a number of policemen.

Embroidery

(OF THE EMBROIDERY PATTERNS.) An Embroidery Suggestion for the Linenage.

When it is considered that the effect of a good-looking lingerie blouse is only good with a bit of embroidery and work, an embroidered model seems not only desirable but essential. The embroidery is expressed in daintiness, and the embroidery design offered for the decoration of the fashionable separate waists is dainty to the superlative degree. It works so effectively well with the handkerchief linen, lawn or even crepe material.

The flowers, though small, may be embroidered in a number of stitches that are suited to the abilities of many needleworkers. The small flowers are pretty either in eyelid or solid satin stitch, while the leaves work up in solid with only a slight padding. The divided satin stitch may also be employed for developing the flowers. From stems the blossom stitch is recommended. This is made by bringing the spring stitch, but it is used extensively in embroidering stems, outlines, etc., on the backgrounds. It is possible to make the development of petals of flowers and small leaves. To make the blossom stitch first bring the needle to the surface at the lower end of the line of space to be filled. Wind the needle in the material. Wind the silk around the needle point a sufficient number of times to fill the space to cover the space of material lying on the needle. Hold the coils on the needle point and pull the needle through the materials and coils of thread. Slip the coils down the thread to the material. Turn the needle and insert the tip in the top of the line. Pull the needle through to the surface of the material. This will bring the blossom stitch up over the stamens. When winding the thread around the end of the thread lying at the point of the needle for the coils, and not the thread as the needle eye.

This design is also lovely to use on the lingerie, for it may be altered so that as much of the pattern as may be desired can be omitted, without sacrificing any of the beauty of the motif. For instance, the garlands at either side of the center may be omitted, still leaving a perfect motif, or the upper portion of the center section of the pattern can be left out and just the side sections embroidered. It is quite a desirable feature of the latest fashions to introduce a bit of tasteful coils in lingerie. There is a wide choice of materials in which to make undergarments on which fine hand embroidery is used. Namocoe, lawn, batiste or a fine cambric will wear satisfactorily, and they are within the dress allowance of the average woman. There are also novelty materials which would develop handsomely into lingerie garments, but their cost makes them prohibitive in many instances.

The embroidery pattern illustrated and described herein, together with 40 others covering all possible uses, are included in the new Embroidery Pattern Outfit now being presented by this newspaper. It is explained elsewhere in these columns.

But a word in regard to finishing touches one should apply to the outfit that is hand embroidered. Fine finishing should be used to join the seams. It is really just as easy as a French seam and is effective as well as pretty. In addition to the effect it is also used in finishing up the outfit. Finishing is also used for a shirtwaist unless one wants to a bit more luxurious and employ narrow insertions of baby crochet or other exquisite laces.

JEWISH WOMEN HOLD ANNUAL PEACE SERVICE SAVANNAH TO BE HOST TO HUNDREDS THIS WEEK

Dr. John R. Atkinson Principal Speaker at Meeting Sunday

Dr. John R. Atkinson, dean of St. Philip's cathedral, was the principal speaker Sunday night at the annual peace service of Jewish women at the synagogue. The address was also made by Rabbi David Marx and by Rev. Fred A. Line, pastor of the First Universalist church.

High tributes to the Jewish race in that in every department of life there is one true Father. They have learned democracy, and that they can get along better without kings and priests to rule over them. The race has given to the world many of its greatest ideals. A very strange thing about the race is that in every department of life they have excelled except in the art of war. The word Jerusalem in Hebrew means foundations of peace.

Dr. John R. Atkinson, dean of St. Philip's cathedral, was the principal speaker Sunday night at the annual peace service of Jewish women at the synagogue. The address was also made by Rabbi David Marx and by Rev. Fred A. Line, pastor of the First Universalist church.

BUSINESS BETTER, SAYS HEAD OF SEED CRUSHERS

Address of C. L. Ives Is Feature of Opening Session of Convention at Birmingham

(By Associated Press.) BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 17.—An address of welcome with responses thereto and the annual message of President C. L. Ives of Newbern, N. C. were the features of chief interest at the opening session of the nineteenth annual convention of the Interstate Cotton Seed Crushers' association held here today.

The beginning of the season, he said, found us with a demand for our products entirely cut off, because of war conditions, and our ability to buy seed very limited, through stringency in the money market. The prospects were dark and gloomy. Through the united efforts of the public buyers and the general membership of the association, seed products have been introduced into new markets both at home and in foreign countries.

The value of cotton seed crushed during the past season, said President Ives, probably will reach more than $12,000,000, an increase of $2,000,000 over last year. The estimate for this year's crush, he added, would reach approximately $10,000,000 or $9,000,000 more than last year.

The speaker praised the work of the various committees of the organization and declared that much of the general improvement in the cotton seed industry was due directly to their active efforts.

(Special dispatch to the Journal.) SAVANNAH, Ga., May 17.—Savannah will be the host for hundreds of people this week with a series of conventions and entertainments that will delight all who are expected to arrive tomorrow morning.

The open sessions of the grand lodge are arranged for this event. It includes a trip to Tybee on Friday, which has been set aside as the day of general festivities. There will be no grand lodge session after Thursday. John P. Cheney, of Marietta, present grand chancellor, having announced that he will not be a candidate for grand chancellor. SOUTHERN BAPTISTS END CONVENTION AT HOUSTON

Sunday School Work, Temperance and Social Service Before Convention

(By Associated Press.) HOUSTON, Tex., May 17.—Definite action upon reports of the committee on Sunday school work and on temperance and social service was expected to be taken by the Southern Baptist convention here today. The Sunday school report, already made public, was under discussion. It was expected that the convention would adjourn late today.

At the opening of the session the convention unanimously adopted resolutions of protest against 'the bill introduced, but not passed, at the last session of congress, prohibiting the transportation of congressmen on any form of public conveyance which are, or are presented to be a reflection upon any form of religious worship practiced or held by any citizen of the United States.'

The resolutions were incorporated those passed at the sixty-ninth convention in which the convention stated 'we view with alarm and vigorously protest against the efforts of the Roman Catholic hierarchy to gain control of the government and deplore the granting of a papal legate as representative of the Vatican at our national capital for the purpose of influencing our governmental affairs.'

'We also protest against the presence of the Vatican at the national capital for the purpose of influencing our political and social affairs and against the disposition of the part of some of our politicians to show deference to so-called church dignitaries, and against the suggestion that the Vatican should be used in a religious institution.'

News of Laces and Embroideries Such As We Have Seldom Told

The lace and embroidery buyer's recent trip to New York has brought us so many attractive things—we have done such pricing on some of the most favored laces and embroideries in our own stocks that now this section offers the most engaging possibilities to women who are concerned with summer frocks for themselves, and commencement dresses for the young women.

It is, in other words, a most timely display and sale of laces and embroideries.

But, to put it very briefly, here—

- 1 1/2c to 25c Linen Laces 10c
- One of the most remarkable purchases it has been our good fortune to make in many a day—all linen Cluny and Smyrna laces, one-half to one and three-quarter inches wide, edges and insertions to match. They are splendid—not that heavy sort, but fine of thread and mesh to the liking of every woman.
- Buy by the dozen yards and save!
- 75c to $2 Shadow Lace Flouncings 59c
- Shadow lace flouncings, as light as a breeze, and so patterned—12 to 27 inches wide, white and cream, that they are from our own stocks (75c to $2.00 a yard) tells their worth.
- Net Laces, Half Price and Less
- Certain net laces, 9 to 12 inches wide, touched with a bit of color—pale shades were $1.75 to $5.00 a yard; for Tuesday's display they are half these prices or less.
- New Falt Laces
- Among the late arrivals are the wide flet lace like the imported dresses. The edges, 9 to 12 inches wide, are 65c to $1.50 a yard. The flouncings, 18 to 27 inches wide, are $2.25 to $4.50 a yard.
- 59c Embroidery Flouncings 29c
- Batiste flouncing, 24 inches wide, equally desirable for underwear, for children's dresses. Scalloped and hemstitched edges.
- Novelty Embroideries Half Price
- The rare and fine of the embroidery world.
- The imported goods that mark the highest art of the season.
- Flouncings and allover embroideries developed in organdie, aéro cloth, batiste and French crepe.
- Many combined effectively with laces, a hint of color now and then.

Where is the old-fashioned standpatter who talked about the tariff?

When the much exploited "great drive" on the western front amounts to three hundred yards we begin to wonder how long the war is capable of lasting.

Adieu, Dr. Dernburg.

There will be no mourning of the bar when Dr. Dernburg puts out to sea. America has not agreed with the Kaiser, and the Kaiser has not agreed with America. The people of this land are too sentimental for the iron Dernburg. They have certain fond ideas of honor and justice, of chivalry toward women and pity for helpless children, ideas which the Kaiser's stern spokesman cannot understand.

It is well for the people of Atlanta to remember that while the physical side of their public school system is great in need of betterment, its inner character has been wonderfully strengthened during the last twelve months, and bids fair to grow stronger still in the months and years ahead. The changes inaugurated by the Board of Education have borne fruitful results. The principals and the teachers have stood loyally for progress. Intelligent, constructive criticism is helpful and welcome. The public ought to be critical of the schools, but it ought also to recognize the good which the Board and the teachers have actually accomplished, and to encourage the forward trend.

Dr. Dernburg's official status in the United States has never been precisely known. He was formerly Germany's Colonial Secretary, and he stands high in his Emperor's confidence. He is a zealous disciple of "Kultur." His mission in this country was to advocate the German cause and, apparently, to say those things which Germany's accredited ambassador could not say with propriety.

The country is quite unanimous in its wish to leave affairs to President Wilson's discretion.

Another torpedoed passenger ship more or less doesn't seem to be able to rouse the ardor of American tourists.

On Monday morning, as for Monday mornings since the war started, we note breathlessly that Italy is still on the brink of war.

Another Great Wheat Crop.

In the light of the Government's latest crop estimates, it is not improbable that the United States' wheat harvest for the current year will reach a billion bushels. Encouraged by war prices, the farmers planted more wheat last autumn than ever before, the addition being five million, two hundred and ten thousand acres. Of the total forty-one million, two hundred and fifty-three thousand acres, only a million and ninety-four thousand failed, and that is described as "the smallest winter loss in over fifteen years." As to the remainder of the crop, it is conservatively reckoned that its average condition is 92.5, not altogether so good as the record last year, but much better than the ten-year average. The agricultural experts feel safe in forecasting a yield of six hundred and ninety-three million bushels from winter wheat.

Estimates concerning spring wheat are as yet necessarily indefinite. It is noteworthy, however, as the authorities observe, that three Northwestern states report an increase of ten per cent in the area sown, and that the prospect is uncommonly favorable. "To bring the total crop up to the billion mark, there will have to be about three hundred and seven million bushels of spring wheat harvested. Only two hundred and six million bushels were saved last year, but in 1912 the spring wheat harvest was three hundred and thirty million bushels." Evidently, then, the billion bushel hope is not extravagant.

This is a cheering outlook for American prosperity. Prices for grain and for foodstuffs generally are high, and are likely to remain so whether the European war ends soon or is prolonged. With abundant harvests, the country will be prepared for the future, whether the future brings continued opportunity or grave responsibility.

Just Col. Roosevelt's luck, the German note crowding him off the front page at this time.

Germany's solicitude about foodstuffs would indicate that the country is running short even on canned goods.

Atlanta bank clearings last week showed an increase for the first time since the war, and yet some people strive to be pessimists.

Atlanta's Loyal Teachers.

To do exceptionally good work under exceptionally trying conditions is the soundest evidence of faithfulness and ability. The principals and teachers of Atlanta's public schools have earned that distinction during the scholastic year that is now drawing to a close. The term began with a complete change in the courses of study, a reduction of the number of grammar grades from eight to seven, and with other innovations of far-reaching effect. Furthermore, the system has been almost constantly under critical inspection from the opening day. In these circumstances it would not have been unusual had the teachers yielded at not have been unstrat and grown somewhat discouraged in their task. Instead, however, they have gone serenely and diligently forward, doing each day's labor to the limit of their skill.

Major Quinn, president of the Board of Education, regards the record of this term as constituting "the very best year" work the schools of this city have ever done." Despite difficulties and "despite the poor plants in which, unfortunately, a number of the schools are taught," he says, "the principals and teachers have not allowed their attention to be diverted nor their devotion to be swerved, but on the contrary have applied themselves with all the more industry and devotion to the tasks confronting them; and I am proud to say that they have accomplished a work which will afford a basis for growth and continued improvement for all time to come."

It is well for the people of Atlanta to remember that while the physical side of their public school system is great in need of betterment, its inner character has been wonderfully strengthened during the last twelve months, and bids fair to grow stronger still in the months and years ahead.

When You Are Ill.

BY H. ADDISON BRUCE. (Author of "The Middle Personality," "Psychology and Parenthood," etc.) "By heavens," an invalid once exclaimed, "how long do you intend to keep me lying here, doctor? There's so much for me to do, and I have already lost so much time through this nervous illness."

"And you'll go on losing time," the physician assured him, "just so long as you continue to fret about it. You'd be up and around now if you hadn't been so impatient that you have kept yourself ill."

"Nobody likes to be ill, but nobody has ever hastened a recovery to health by anything but the sick bed. On the contrary, fuming and fussing are so injurious to the vital processes by their effect on digestion, and so irritating to the movements of the stomach and the whole alimentary tract."

It has, in fact, been proved by careful physiological experiment, that worry and vexation cause a stoppage of the gastric juices, and a disturbance of the stomach and the whole alimentary tract.

Also it has been proved that not only are the movements of the heart interfered with by these mental states, but they throw the nervous system in general out of gear.

"This is bad enough in the case of a person in good health. It may be fatal to a sick person."

When you are ill, reconcile yourself to your illness as much as you possibly can. Try, indeed, to turn it to a real advantage by making the most of the opportunity it gives to secure a rest that you probably greatly need.

Dismiss all thoughts of business from your mind. Realize, no matter how serious the loss of time may be to you from a financial point of view, that the more you are likely to return to your work better fitted to cope with your task the longer you are sure to be kept from your work.

If the illness is not of such a character as to require absolute rest, and you are able to do some of your usual vocation. In the latter event it would be almost certain to cause discordant thinking by reminding you of the loss of time.

Placidity of mind—that is the great aim at which you are to strive, and that is a sure means of shortening your illness.

If you attain placidity, if you subdue all doubt, worry, irritability, you will not only get well sooner, but you are likely to return to your work better fitted for effective accomplishment than you were before illness attacked you.

NO. 211—BATH. One of the more ancient cities in the world is for persons who have no materialism and money to foregather at various springs of hot water and make a social diversion of stewing their afflicted limbs. Laterally every hot spring in the United States is a hot hole enclosed with a particularly black color or gaseous odor, have been capitalized for the purpose of giving fashionable resorts to some extent. Its great and rheumatism, and to a very considerable extent, of its cash.

One of the most famous of these is the Bath in England, which has been the scene of the ancient prestige of this custom, for there are archaeological remains there which prove that the Romans had a fashionable resort to the Bath before the birth of Christ. There are well-preserved ruins of a splendid marble bath house, with its elaborate systems of hot rooms, cool rooms and plunge and the great mosaic conduit which conveyed the water from the spring to this Roman bath was so well constructed that it is still in use.

A current legend places the founding of Bath further back in the ages, before the Romans came to England, to the ancient Britons ruled the island. According to this story, a British king named Bladud discovered the virtues of the waters, and honored the spot with a temple to the goddess Sul, the Roman equivalent of the British deity.

It was in the eighteenth century that Bath reached the heyday of its fame and magnificence. At that time the English public had become so enamored of the waters, designed by famous architects, and the city took on some of its present commanding beauty. In 1734 a great earthquake in the West Indies, which destroyed England's most exclusive society, and accounts for the fact that Smollett, Dickens, Burney and many lesser novelists of the eighteenth century were so fond of the young ladies who write for the magazines in this country like to lend atmosphere to their stories by sending their heroines to Bath.

Molten Bath is a city of gray freestone built in terraces upon the steep hills that shut in the valley of the river, with a wide view of the surrounding country, and the drives shaded by ancient trees—a worthy monument to its storied past.

World's Largest Building. May 3 marked the opening of the new York of the largest building in the world. The great structure is located upon the block opposite the Trinity church yard. The ground upon which it stands is valued at $1,000,000 and a half million dollars, which is the highest valuation ever placed upon a piece of ground of its size.

The building is owned by the Equitable Life Assurance Company, whose former home was destroyed by fire several years ago. It is not the tallest building in the world, but it is the largest in cubic content. The floor space will be considerably more than that of the Woolworth building, which is the largest building in the world devoted to city administration.

Incendiary Plants Against Frost. Dr. Fritz Bachmann, a German scientist, has lately discovered that a sugar treatment given to plants will prevent their freezing or suffering from an excessively low temperature. A careful analysis of the delicate-looking plants which form the bark through the soil in the spring, shows a large proportion of sugar in the chemical composition of their cells.

Experimentation has shown that the plants are exposed to temperatures ranging between 22 degrees and 12 degrees Fahrenheit. It has been proven by this means that the sugar treatment is a very effective means of resisting cold which absolutely overcame the other.

Current Comment. Few will assume to criticize prayer; commendation and fault-finding in most cases are alike inappropriate. Nevertheless, when Ellhu Root, President of the New York Constitutional Convention, in the absence of the clergy, and in the presence of the laity, expressed a desire which will have the sanction of every American: Almighty God, guide us in our deliberations. Make us humble, sincere and devoted to the public service. Make us wise, considerate of the feelings, and opinions and the rights of others. Make us effective and true to the principles of the Constitution. Thy cause, of peace and justice and liberty in the world.

TYPHUS AND QUARANTINE

EARLY in March confidential reports had been received at the Bureau of Public Health Service in Washington concerning the prevalence of typhus fever in Greece. It was reported that the disease might be found among immigrants arriving from these countries, and gave the quarantine officers opportunity to prepare for the possibility of its introduction into this country. The Greek steamer, Christoforo, arrived in New York last week with a typhus case on board there was no panic, but it was in readiness to take prompt action for the protection of the public health, with the shortest possible detention of the vessel.

Twenty-five years ago a great typhus epidemic ravaged New York. It cost many lives and filled the hospitals to overflowing. Among the dead were a number of doctors who contracted the disease from their patients. A tablet now stands in Bellevue hospital, erected to the memory of these doctors, whose services during the epidemic of 1890 cost them their lives.

The disease was brought into the country from Europe by passenger ships during the quarantine regulations of that period. As the epidemic grew more serious, these regulations became more rigorous, so that the vessel was held in quarantine outside of the port of New York for over six weeks.

The Christoforo was detained only twelve days and then allowed to proceed upon her course with a proper health certificate. In the meantime, the quarantine procedure in protecting the health of the American public from typhus, and that in vogue twenty-five years ago, has been improved by the use of more modern and better equipment of the quarantine officials.

Accurate knowledge regarding the causes of typhus fever was secured in 1910 by studies conducted by Dr. John P. Anderson, now director of the Hygienic Laboratory of the United States Service, and Dr. J. A. Goldberger, both of whom were at that time stationed in Mexico. They were able to confirm what other scientists had already ascertained, that the disease is caused entirely by the bite of the insect pedicularis vestitus, commonly known as the body louse. The insect carries the infection by going from a person already suffering with the fever, a healthy person who, when bitten, receives the infection in his blood. It sometimes, known as jail fever or ship fever, starts in this way.

Typhus is one of the oldest diseases in the world. It is sometimes known as jail fever or ship fever, and breaks out only when human beings are herded closely together; although, of course, the insect-breding may be carried into other conditions. The Mexican typhus, now causing some alarm to those living in border towns, is identical with the other, although the insect which carries the infection is slightly different. It is slight and easily overcome in the light of present knowledge.

Since the disease centers around the insect, the best preventive measure is the absolute destruction of all these insects. This is done by the use of insecticides, attempted in the right way. Unlike the plague breeding flea, the pedicularis has small power of locomotion, and it may be easily exposed to destruction by the use of bedding and surroundings properly disinfected, the danger of the spread of the disease is practically conquered. After the patient suffering from typhus has been removed to the quarantine station, the vessel and its cargo are fumigated by the best modern methods. All things which have been exposed to contagion are removed and kept under observation for five days. If disease symptoms do not develop within three days from the time the vessel is fumigated, the vessel is allowed to proceed.

Typhus is essentially a disease of the temperate or colder climates. It does not prevail in the tropics, and is not carried by the insect which breeds in the tropics. This fact constitutes the chief hope of the war surgeons of Europe, who, with the Red Cross nurses, are doing their best to relieve the suffering of the wounded and crowded camps and hospitals. It is claimed that a number of doctors and at least fifty nurses have died from the disease in the past two months. The Mexican typhus attacks only the men who are camping in the mountains at high altitudes, and as soon as they go down to the lower altitudes, the disease almost disappears. For this reason the probability of typhus being brought into this country from Mexico is small.

Science has not discovered any means of checking the progress of typhus when it has once been introduced into a community by the bite of the insect. The disease is bound to run its course more or less severely according to the conditions. It develops rapidly, a person may get up in the afternoon and rise the next morning with an aching head, and other symptoms, which will cause a return to bed within a few hours.

Inoculation is now being tried, and has been given to persons who are likely to be exposed to the disease. It is a method of inoculation, as are the nurses and doctors in the war zone. Dr. Plotz, of St. Vincent's Hospital, New York, is now engaged in the cultivation of the organism, to prepare for the possibility of its introduction into this country. He is developing a serum or vaccine, which may be used as a substitute for inoculation. The inoculation is a method of inoculation, as are the nurses and doctors in the war zone. He is developing a serum or vaccine, which may be used as a substitute for inoculation.

Public sentiment has changed completely as regards its attitude to the quarantine service. Formerly, ship passengers were regarded as a necessary evil, and were looked upon as a needless red tape, and the quarantine authorities attempted to conceal disease which was a menace to the ports they entered. Under the new regulations the nation that any epidemic in a ship would be a health risk, as well as an avoidable risk of life and limb to the passengers. The Public Health Service has been organized to prevent this risk and waste so far as possible. Its quarantine service is one of its strongest branches, and the number of diseases likely to be brought in by ships from foreign ports, many of which have no health restrictions.

The maritime quarantine service of this country now includes sixty-four stations, among them the leading ports of Continental United States, the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippines Islands. It is under the direction of the Surgeon General, and is assisted by the Health Officers of the United States, and at each station, general and medical officers and their assistants are prepared to receive and quarantine the passengers. The service has which have proved most efficient in preventing disease being brought into the country from foreign ports. The quarantine stations include such places as New York, San Francisco, and other ports, and are organized for the different classes of passengers, who would be detained if a case of infection or contagious disease were found on board. They would be compelled to leave the vessel in order that they might be fumigated under the direction of the health officers, and the passengers permitted to enter ports under the conditions passengers are regarded as the guests of the United States government, and special laws are made to insure their comfort, and to make their detention as short as is consistent with the absolute safety of the public.

A disinfecting wharf at each quarantine station provides the best known facilities for speedy and thorough disinfection. The passengers taken from an infected vessel are passed through showers and supplied with fresh clothing to wear while they are in the station. Over 90 per cent of the contagious disease brought into this country are brought by stowaway passengers, the utmost care is used to insure their freedom from infection.

The studies continually being made as to the nature of communicable disease have materially lessened its prevalence in this country. The number of deaths from disease has fallen from five to fifteen days, according to the nature of the disease, and also at the discretion of the health officers. Cholera, typhus, and plague are the diseases most often encountered. The plague is most frequently contracted by rats, and the destruction of the rat upon an infected ship is one of the most important of the quarantine measures.

Most of the quarantine work of this country is now in the hands of the federal authorities. As the result of the war, the quarantine service has been reorganized for the public health service to take over the quarantine work of Boston. A similar arrangement has been made for the health of the nation. The increase in disease resulting from the European war renders it imperative that the utmost vigilance shall be maintained in this respect. The health of the nation, the advantages to be secured from federal, rather than local, control are becoming well understood. The people are beginning to realize that the health of the nation is a national rather than a local matter. When the quarantine arrangements are under the direction of the public health service, a unity of regulations and protection is secured which would be impossible under state or city control. Through the co-operation of the quarantine departments, especially the department of state, the health service bureau secures a thorough knowledge of the health conditions in all parts of the world, and is able to make possible disease measures calling for special precautions, as in the Greek vessel referred to. As this service is under military control, it is able to take such measures as may be necessary to insure the safety of the large American cities is now under the national public health service.

WHAT TO DO

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1915, by Frank Crane.) We are fortunate in having as our chief magistrate a man whose name is so well known to the people, and who is likely to be swept into inconsiderate violence by the popular clamor. Let us trust him. Let us not doubt that he will duly collect all the facts, carefully weigh them, and then act in the interests of the people and the proper protection of our rights.

We are confronted with an appalling situation as never before in the history of our country. The military and kindly people, have allowed themselves to be taken under the control of a military class that disregards the rights of the people, and the humanity in the violent exigency of its lust for power.

Its doom is sealed. The world can not and will not stand by while the pale of Christendom, whether in the South sea or in Europe. The ruthless massacre of unarmed and unoffending citizens, the blood of the innocent, the suffering of the people who are going about their lawful business upon the open sea, unquestionably calls for some concerted action on the part of all civilized nations to suppress the common enemies of mankind.

With one wanion stroke the German government has placed itself outside the pale of Christendom. Such a power must be curbed if it takes the last man and the last dollar of the whole earth. The triumph of such an inhuman monster is inconceivable.

The excuses the German bureaucracy gives for its actions are as unconvincing as the excuses of any nation. No excuses can be found for murdering in cold blood numbers of innocent non-combatants. The only excuse is that the German government is a civilized nation pursuing such a course unblushingly and with deliberate intent.

It is not to be expected at once for the termination of Russian militarism. But such steps must not be taken which would weaken the influence of the United States. The United States must stand with all the dignity worthy of our position. What we need, what we need in time of government made so apparent. What we need, what we need in time of government made so apparent. What we need, what we need in time of government made so apparent. What we need, what we need in time of government made so apparent.

Out of this union, there may and doubtless will grow that longed-for world federation, with its new international court, and the disarmament of the individual nations. May God, who maketh the wrath of man to praise him, bring out of this shattering horror, that accords earth and heaven, those peaceful fruits that unimpeded intelligence has not been able to produce.

QUIPS AND QUIDDITIES

A Glasgow hawkster was touring the provinces, offering for sale his manure-cure mixture, and was asked about to incur a fine for selling the mixture to a man who was a member of the audience to sample, he found to his disgust that his corkcask was missing.

"Is there any gentleman in this crowd belongs to Glasgow?" he asked, looking over his audience.

"Yes, I do," came a reply, in an unmistakably Glasgow accent.

"Then lend me your corkcask," was the quick rejoinder.

Some time ago an old Indian in the west broke his leg, and was a farmer, taking pity on him, and the tool with a new one from his own shop. The farmer, noticing that the axe was flat, Uncle Josh decided to sharpen it, and the Indian to turn the grindstone.

"Well, what is it?" wonderingly asked the farmer, noticing that the Indian persisted in using the grindstone after the job was done.

SUNDAY WAS HOT DAY DESPITE COOLING BREEZE

Mercury Climbed Up to 87 Degrees, According to Official Thermometer

Because of a rippling, cooling breeze that traveled in and out over Atlanta Sunday at the rate of thirty miles an hour, few people realized that the mercury climbed within 2 degrees of the nineties Sunday afternoon.

It was an ideal day for swimming and motoring, and the roads and lakes around Atlanta were filled with people. The official thermometer of the weather man's registered 87 degrees Sunday at 4 o'clock, and during the greater part of the day hovered well up in the 80's.

Toward evening, when the sun sank, the temperature dropped, although the stiff breeze continued. At 7 o'clock the thermometer registered 83; by 9 o'clock at night the mercury had sunk to 76, and it kept on sliding for the benefit of sleeping Atlanta, until a delightful 67 was reached at 5 o'clock Monday morning.

Continued sunshine is the prediction for Monday and Tuesday, with cooler weather arriving Tuesday night. The temperatures for the past few days, says the forecaster, have been a little above normal.

Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company Atlanta--New York--Paris Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company The Real Suit Event of the Season Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co.'s Well Known Clearaway Methods in Full Power Occasionally, very, very occasionally, the reading and shopping public have thrust before them news that pales and dims all other through sheer force of its bigness--but here, we are drawing conclusions before we state our premises--suppose we let you draw the conclusions from these plainly stated facts. Having decided to effect a clearaway on practically all our woollen suits, and to effect it at once, we have taken the way that leads directly to our objective. It is the price way, the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. price way, that being fraught with losses few stores will hazard. But the immediate loss in this instance brings future gain, in that we keep things fresh and therefore interesting. So Tuesday Atlanta will have an opportunity to select from-- 63 Suits that were $17.85, $19.50, $21.75 to $25.00 at $9.75 95 Suits that were $25.00, $29.75, $33.50 to $35.00 at $12.75 65 Suits that were $35.00, $37.50 to $45.00 at $17.50 60 Suits that were $40.00, $45.00 to $58.00 at $21.75 And mark you, this covers the suit question as it has been developed this season. Serges, Gabardines, Poplins, Checks Choose your own color, it is here--choose your own style, it is here--plain tailored styles, belted styles, styles after the military effects--in navy, black, grays, sands and the like. Why, at these prices women could economically, in many cases, buy the suits just for the skirts, and for those who are planning to travel this summer, these are the suits they will be seeking. Take this, then, as our ultimatum, our note of warning--so to speak. The selling starts at 8:30. It will not be wise to be late. Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co.

HOW WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS
By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my back and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could do to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of. I am thankful for such a good medicine and it always gives it the highest praise."
—Mrs. C. H. GRIPPIE, 1568 Constant St., Cleveland, Ohio.

Hanover, Pa.—"I suffered from face trouble and the pains were so bad at times that I could not sit down. The doctor advised a severe operation but my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I experienced great relief in a short time. Now I feel like a new person and can do a hard day's work and not mind it. My joy and happiness it is to well on more. I am always ready to be willing to speak a good word for the Compound."

FARMERS HOLD GREAT CONFERENCE IN AUGUSTA

Bankers and Business Men Urged to Provide for Financing Grain Crop

(Special Dispatch to The Journal) AUGUSTA, Ga., May 17.—A farmers rally, the like of which has not before been in Georgia, according to Charles J. Haden, president of the chamber of commerce, was held at the court house here Saturday.

There were addresses by prominent speakers from both states, including State Veterinarian Bahnen, Charles J. Haden, Judge Cobb, of Americus, Judge E. H. Callaway, of Augusta, and others from this side of the river, while from South Carolina, E. J. Watson, commissioner of agriculture, H. D. Calhoun, a prominent banker at Barrow, M. M. Nixon, a member of the South Carolina legislature and other speakers.

The keynote of the meeting was expressed in a resolution, Commissioner E. Watson introduced, which was seconded by Judge E. H. Callaway, passed unanimously, and which was as follows:

Whereas, there is now in the soil of Georgia and South Carolina almost ready for harvest, large crops of grain which have been undertaken in furtherance of the vitally important live-at-home movement;

Whereas, it is of supreme concern that this crop of grain be handled on a money basis so that the farmer can get the bulk of cash upon shipment to market;

Therefore, be it resolved, that this conference call upon the bankers and business men to use every effort to provide for such financing of the grain crop as shall enable our rural merchants to give preference to some inland grain when prepared for market upon a competitive basis.

Resolved, further that our state railroad commissions are hereby urged to immediately promulgate interstate rates on grain which will enable any town in either state to get its grain from some inland point at a rate not greater than the rate from any interstate point to that town.

Resolved, further that our appreciation is hereby expressed to the citizens of both states who have labored to make this conference a success.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THEORATOR W. BURGESS.

Of course Peter Rabbit hadn't been able to keep up his end of the bargain. Little Joe Otter had a home and wife and the other kiddies. Those who didn't could go so far into the Green Forest. Right then something so funny happened that Sammy Jay nearly gave himself away by laughing right out. The other little Otter gave the first one a push and down he went. You see, when he once started he couldn't stop. He clawed and tried frantically to stop, but down he went and splash into the water. It was very, very funny. It was still more funny to see his face when he came up and shook the water from his eyes. He was proud and excited and he had lost all fear. In another minute he was scrambling up the bank and was laughing again.

He had slid down the slippery slide five times before the other had found courage enough to try it. And then, such fun! First Little Joe Otter, then Mrs. Joe and after her the two youngsters, one right at the heels of another, slid down and splashed into the little pool until they were so tired that they just had to lie down to rest. Never was there such fun. Sammy Jay was almost envious again. He actually wished that it was an Otter and could go down a slippery slide.

A Lesson of the European War

Once more, among countless times, has the great food value of chocolate and cocoa been demonstrated, both serving as a part of the rations of the troops in ACTIVE SERVICE.

Baker's Sweet Chocolate

has always had this guarantee

"The ingredients of this Chocolate are guaranteed to be pure cocoas of superior blend and sugar."

The genuine has this trade-mark on the package, and is made only by

Walter Baker & Co. Ltd. Established 1780 DORCHESTER, MASS.

Modern Methods Are Best

Many now use Calumet Baking Powder instead of sour milk and soda, or the cheap and big-can kind, because it is more convenient—because she knows from experience that the baking will be lighter, daintier and more uniformly raised—that it will keep fresh longer.

Calumet is certain of good results—it is purer and more wholesome than the cheap big-can kind, and more economical in the end. Give Calumet one trial. If it fails to give you absolute satisfaction return it and get your money back. If you don't get Calumet you don't get the best.

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

You don't save money when you buy cheap or big-can baking powder. Don't be misled. Buy Calumet. It's more economical—more wholesome—gives best results. Calumet is far superior to sour milk and soda.

Our Adaptations of Useful Embroidery Patterns

Today's illustration is an embroidered design for table runner. It may be copied from this paper sheet. If your material is sheer the simplest method is to lay the material over the design below and with a sharply pointed pencil draw over each line. If the material is heavy, secure from any stationery store a piece of carbon impression paper. Lay it face down on the design below, then draw over each line of the paper design with a hard pencil or the point of a steel knitting needle.

The free design below—together with over four hundred other embroidery and initial patterns for every conceivable purpose—may also be had at the office of this newspaper in form of an illustrated and annotated set of beautiful embroidery transfer patterns, each one of the 400 new designs capable of being transferred six to fifteen times without loss of brilliancy. Money back instantly if not satisfied. Call on or address Embroidery Dept., The Atlanta Journal, Atlanta, Ga.

ENTIRELY FREE—With this package of over 400 transfer patterns we also present to you entirely free one set (valued at 40 cents) from this paper sheet.
