"Gift of the Fairies" Given by Seniors and Undergraduates Friday Morning

Seniors and undergraduates of the Girls' High school joined Friday morning in presenting "The Gift of the Fairies," a dainty play of four scenes, as part of the exercises of Mallon society.

The play was given in Browning hall at the school and was witnessed by a large audience, including the school's entire student body and many invited guests. The actual graduation exercises will be held at the Atlanta theater Friday evening of next week. The seniors of the South-Commercial High school will receive their diplomas at the same time.

Fourteen girls took part in "The Gift of the Fairies." They were prettily costumed and displayed much histrionic ability. In the cast were Lillie May Johnson, four C. as Hans, the Clock-maker; Nell Barron, third B. as Gruchin, his wife; Jean Pickett, third B. as the Princess; Marian Wootton, second B. as Gertrude; Marian Wootton, third C. as Olla; Annie Warner, third A. as the fairy godmother; and the following dream fairies: Jane Kelly, one H.; Marie Almond, third A.; Elizabeth Downing, second C.; Robert Quirk, one H.; Katharine, third A.; Elizabeth Harbrough, one C.; Sarah Wells, one D.; Edna Heard, one H.; Miss Corrie Gill, second C. as the music player; and music between scenes was furnished by the orchestra of the Boys' High school.

Turks Are Reported Shooting Pebbles at Foe at Dardanelles

Shapnel Loaded With Them and Shells Have Wood Casings Because Better Material Is Said to Be Short

LONDON, May 28.—The Times correspondent at Mudros describes the allies' buoyantly optimistic concerning operations in the Dardanelles since the daily arrival of reinforcements. The Turks are said to be short of heavy ammunition and to be using shrapnel filled with pebbles as well as shells from the front of wood instead of more effective projectiles.

Men from the front report that the Turks on May 21 attempted to capture Australian positions at Gaba Tepe. Describing this attack the Times correspondent says:

"The first hour the enemy attacked in several columns in a series of desperate assaults, yet at 2 p. m. the Australians were able to signal that they were holding easily, and at 3 o'clock they counter-attacked, driving the enemy back with the bayonet and purging him in the open to his entrenchments with machine-guns. The Turks lost 2,000 killed and 5,000 wounded. The Australians lost 1,000, though heavy, were light in comparison."

ODD FELLOWS AND RED MEN TO HONOR JUDGE DANIEL

Body of Distinguished Georgian in Atlanta on Way to Griffin for Funeral

The body of Judge R. T. Daniel, of Griffin, grand sovereign of the Odd Fellows of America, who died Thursday night at Fitzgerald following a stroke of apoplexy, will be addressed by 1,200 Odd Fellows attending the grand lodge at Fitzgerald, arrived in Atlanta at 12:30 p. m. today, and was set out at 2:30 p. m. with a special escort of Odd Fellows and Red Men to Griffin, where the funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Grand officers came to Atlanta on an escort to the body. These, with other Odd Fellow officers, went on to Griffin in addition to the Red Men, who held in the Odd Fellows Judge Daniel as one of their most distinguished members, and was the only Georgian to be in the funeral in Griffin. This train will follow the regular 12:30 Central train on Friday.

The detachment which accompanied the body to Griffin met at Patterson's hall at 11:30 o'clock today morning and went from there to the train. In this delegation were K. P. Miller, grand sovereign of the Odd Fellows of Georgia; W. H. Beck, of Griffin, a brother-in-law of the late Judge; and W. M. Patterson, of Atlanta, a friend of Judge Daniel and a Red Man and a 1085 Fellow.

JUDGE DANIEL AND JUDGE
Judge Daniel, one of the most prominent men in fraternal circles in Georgia, was fifty-seven years of age. He was judge of the superior court of Griffin, where he had practiced law until his election to the judgeship five years ago.

Judge Daniel is survived by his wife, one brother, Milton J. Daniel, grand master of the Odd Fellows of Georgia, and one sister, Mrs. Harwell.

Grand Master Harwell
LAGRANGE, Ga., May 28.—The following proclamation has been issued by Grand Master Harwell of Lagrange, grand master of Georgia Odd Fellows: "Whereas, our distinguished and beloved brother, Hon. Robert T. Daniel, of Griffin, sovereign grand sire of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of the city of Fitzgerald, in the zenith of his great usefulness and vital force to his fraternity; and Whereas, his untimely death is an irreparable loss to the Odd Fellows of his home state, I, Frank Harwell, grand master of the grand lodge of Georgia, hereby issue this my official proclamation calling on all members to wear their appropriate insignia of mourning and all lodges to drap their charters for thirty days, and I earnestly request that all grand lodge officers attend the funeral in the city of Griffin, Ga., on Sunday, May 30."

"Given under my official seal and attested."
"T. H. Robertson, Grand Secretary."

Stricken Down Just as He Closed His Address
FITZGERALD, Ga., May 28.—The body of Judge Daniel, who died Thursday evening following a stroke of apoplexy that he suffered in the city of Fitzgerald, was taken to Atlanta for the funeral. Judge Daniel was stricken just at the close of his address before 1,200 delegates to the state convention of Odd Fellows. He had just finished his address in Canada and all parts of the United States, and concluding rather abruptly he reeled backwards and fell into a chair. His whole right side was paralyzed.

Doctors rushed to his side and he was quickly removed to a hotel. His family was brought here by automobile from Fitzgerald. Judge Daniel did not regain consciousness, however.

The state convention was turned into a meeting for the home-sick delegates left for their homes, special trains being run to meet them to attend the funeral.

Judge Daniel was inaugurated grand sire of the sovereign grand lodge at the session of the order in Atlanta on May 21. He was superior grand judge on the Flint circuit of Georgia and was famous as an after-dinner speaker.

BALDWIN IS NAMED W. & A. SUPERINTENDENT
J. A. Baldwin has been appointed superintendent of the W. & A. Railway of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad. He has been previously announced in a circular from General Manager D. B. Carson, of the N. C. & St. L. Mr. Baldwin had been acting superintendent of the road for several months.

NEW FORD IS BOUGHT AFTER OLD HOSS SALE
Call officers at police headquarters have a brand new Ford automobile now on hand. It is in various parts of the city. It was bought at the suggestion of Constable Andy King, with the proceeds of the recent "old boss" sale. It was shown at Constable King's office and will be available at all hours.

SMITH TABLET TO BE UNVEILED ON FRIDAY
A bronze tablet to the memory of 30000 H. Smith, for many years the principal of the Fair street school, will be unveiled at 3 o'clock on Friday afternoon at the school. Mayor James G. Woodard, Mayor J. C. Quinn, president of the board of education, and other city officials will be present in the ceremony.

MEMORIAL PILLARS TO BE FORMALLY DEDICATED
The memorial pillars presented the Home for incurables recently by Mrs. R. Y. Tupper will be formally dedicated by exercises to be held at 5:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. Bishop C. K. Nelson will preside at the exercises and Dr. W. W. Wrennister will deliver a short address.

Teachers Elected
GEORGETOWN, Ga., May 25.—At a meeting of the city board of education tonight the following teachers were selected for the city schools: W. H. H. Quinn, principal; Miss Adeline Hines, Miss Ole B. Gardner and Miss Pearl Smith, assistants; Miss Irma Murray, music.

Several Distinguished Financiers Attend Convention and Make Addresses

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 28.—The Georgia State Bankers' association began its annual session at the DeLois hotel for today in the address of Hon. W. P. O. Harding, of Washington, a member of the federal reserve board. Mr. P. J. J. Connelley, of East Point, Ga., read a paper on "Credit and the farmer." The different state groups of bankers were entertained at dinner last night. Tomorrow night there is to be a banquet at which all the visiting and local bankers will be present.

W. H. Toole, of the federal reserve bank, Atlanta; W. S. Whitman, of the Bankers Trust company, Atlanta; E. M. McElvany, state bank examiner of Atlanta, and William M. Smith, of Atlanta, are among the early arrivals.

EXODUS OF CITIZENS FROM FRANCE CHECKED

Provisioning of Region by the American Relief Commission the Cause

(By Associated Press.)
PARIS, May 28.—Non-combatants residing in French territory occupied by the Germans have ceased their departure by way of Switzerland into other sections of their country, says a dispatch to the Petit Journal.

The exodus has been checked because the provisioning of the region has been assured by the American Relief Commission. Since March 20, 45,000 of these civilians have been repatriated through Geneva. The last party to pass through the Swiss city was composed of seventy-five women and children from Belgium who were permitted to leave upon their agreement to pay their own traveling expenses.

COLONEL HENRY BAYLOR WILL MARCH WITH BOYS

Atlantian, 65, Will Hike Over Battlefield With Virginia Cadets

Henry Bedinger Baylор, of San Souci castle, Bedford county, Atlanta, is going with the veterans to the Confederate reunion in Richmond; but more than that, despite his sixty-five years, he will take a hike with the cadets of Virginia Military Institute over the battlefields of the Seven Days.

Colonel Baylор is a graduate of V. M. I. and created his college epaulettes when he found out that the cadets will make a three-day march over the Richmond battlefields, he determined to go along.

He wrote the college authorities and received an enthusiastic reply. And so he expects to don Confederate gray again and tramp with the rest of the boys.

Colonel Baylор was a member of company B, Twelfth Virginia cavalry, during the war. He enlisted in 43 when only twelve years old, and was probably the youngest soldier in the Confederate army. He is a member of R. E. Lee camp, Richmond.

DR. WHITE TELLS WHY HE WILL LEAVE ATLANTA

Second Baptist Pastor Says Duties Here Are More Than Health Can Stand

Dr. John E. White has given The Journal a statement of his reasons for resigning the pastorate of Second Baptist church, which he has held fifteen years, and going to the pastorate of First Baptist church of Anderson, S. C.

"After careful deliberation for several weeks, not conferring even with my intimate friends, I became convinced that my health, my intellectual development and my writing all made it necessary for me to have relief for three or four years from the heavy burdens imposed upon me by the pastorate of Second Baptist church and the wide acquaintance I have Atlanta.

"I have been here fifteen years and the calls upon me by my many confidants to my congregation, I am continuing to attend board meetings, public and semi-public character, aid in the furtherance of worthy enterprises, and perform innumerable other services which it is natural and right that a minister should perform.

"But these demands take up practically all my time in the day and the only time I have for study is at night. I have studied so much that my eyes are beginning to feel the strain and if I continue my studies it will be in the daytime.

"Therefore, I have decided to make change. I am going to a delightful community, the work as pastor will be different in many respects from my work here, and I will have a great deal more time for intellectual activities. I may be back in Atlanta in three or four years, with no loss to me with a great gain, I hope, of stored up material."

PLANS TO RETURN

Dr. White is planning, among other work, to visit Europe. One will deal with the south's new principles of education and the nation's new opportunity will be a lecture entitled "Thinking White in the South" from the series, which he delivered some weeks ago at the University of Virginia, under the auspices of the Phelps-Stokes foundation.

The other will be a book of sermons on "The Religion of Jesus." Also, he will continue his engagements as an itinerant preacher at the University of Chicago.

Dr. White's last sermon at Second Baptist church will be on Sunday, July 12. During the month of August, he will be the guest of a dozen of the First Baptist church of Philadelphia at his summer home at Atlantic City, and will preach at this church on the Sundays in August and September at First Baptist church in Anderson will be on the first Sunday in September.

The congregation of Second Baptist church met Wednesday night, and a letter from Dr. White setting forth his reasons for going to Anderson, and resolutions deeply regretting his departure and expressing the hope that he will return in the near future. A movement was without to send a committee to Anderson to ask the First Baptist church to release Dr. White from his acceptance of the pastorate, but this was dropped at Dr. White's request. The congregation at an early date will raise a committee of twenty-five to select Dr. White's successor.

BOYS AND GIRLS HIGH SCHOOLS MAY BE UNITED

Board of Education Names Committee to Consider Proposal With Council

A movement looking to the amalgamation of the Boys' High and the Girls' High schools into a university high school with new buildings and a large campus for a number of outdoor sports for both sexes was under consideration by the board of education Thursday afternoon.

Councilman Claude L. Ashley, of the fourth ward, stated council had recently created a special committee to investigate the proposition. He asked the board to create a special committee to be jointly with the council committee.

This was done and President R. J. Quinn appointed James L. Key, Harvey Hatcher and Aldine Chambers. The council committee consists of Councilman Ashley, Alderman Jesse Brinson and Alderman J. Lee Barnes.

The board had a lively discussion as to whether school teachers should be directed to wear children's against pulling flowers in the parks. Harvey Hatcher declared this was a matter for the parents to handle. Other members of the board contended there was no objection to having the teacher's would issue. The matter was finally left to Superintendent Stanton.

A letter was read by Dan W. Green from Clark university (colored) offering to donate a site for a colored grammar school and urging the board to obtain funds for building the same. It was referred to the finance committee of the board.

Bids for heating, plumbing and wiring of the new East Atlanta school were referred to the building committee of the board.

REMODELING BROOKHAVEN COUNTRY CLUB IS STARTED

Preliminary work on the remodeling of Brookhaven country club house started Friday morning. The house will be undependable and a new wall constructed around the house for the extensive changes to be made in the bath, lockers, kitchen, etc.

As soon as the new superintendent's house is ready for occupancy, which will not be long, he will move out of the rooms he now occupies on the top floor of the club house and this will make way for taking off the roof to build the elaborate roof garden and dance pavilion which is to be one of the finest features of the remodelled building.

Architect A. T. Taylor Brown, who prepared the plans and is supervising the work, states that he expects to have the club house ready by the middle of August.

NEGRO PREACHER IS TRIED ON CHARGE OF FORGERY

Alleged He Tried to Collect Uncle's Insurance Policy by Fraud

Judge Charles H. Brand, of Athens who is taking the place this week of Judge Ben H. Hill, of the Fulton superior court, Thursday presided over the case of Charles Mosely, a negro preacher, from Phipps, Ga., charged with forging the name of his uncle's life insurance policy and with endeavoring to bury the uncle and collect the insurance. The only hitch in the proceedings was the uncle wasn't dead.

Mosely was tried on the specific charge of forging the name of Andrew McDaniel, his uncle, to a $1,000 policy of life insurance taken out in the Atlanta office of the Standard Life Insurance company. The jury found him guilty, but recommended mercy and Judge Brand gave the negro preacher a twelve-month sentence. The policy was made payable to Mosely's wife; after the alleged forgery, Mosely went back to McDonough, Ga., near Phipps, and negotiated with an undertaker to bury McDaniel, leaving the insurance policy with the undertaker all ready that all burial expenses would be paid.

The undertaker became suspicious and telephoned the insurance company in Atlanta. Mosely's arrest followed, and later, his indictment by the Fulton grand jury for forgery. But the thrilling part of the story hasn't been told. According to the contents of the state, Mosely, after making arrangements for the coffin and all the rest of the funeral paraphernalia, then took Uncle McDaniel out into the woods on the banks of the "big pond" near McDonough, for the purpose, it is said, of murdering Uncle McDaniel into the same corpse. But a party of hunters came along. It was stated, and Mosely refrained from "robbing" his uncle. His thoughts then turned to the possibilities of dressing up a sack of salt in Uncle McDaniel's clothes. It was stated. The clothed sack, representing Uncle McDaniel, was then to be placed in the coffin and buried after which Mrs. Mosely would get the $1,000 as beneficiary under the alleged forged insurance policy, and Mosely would then relieve Mrs. Mosely of the cash. What plans Mosely may have had for keeping the living Uncle McDaniel forever hid after his supposed funeral were not disclosed. Friday was Judge Brand's last day in Atlanta, as he left shortly after 12 o'clock to go back to Athens. Judge Brand is well known and well esteemed by members of the Atlanta bar, and many Atlanta attorneys, some of whom had previously had cases before him in the Western circuit, had the pleasure of seeing the judge again.

Pacemaker Stoddard Presented Loving Cup—Remarkable Record Made by Machines. Tour a Success in Every Way

It was all over, but the shouting when the members of the "seeing Georgia" tour stepped into Atlanta through a chilling drizzle at 5:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, but despite the wetness of the weather and the weariness of the travelers there was enthusiasm enough left to proclaim in song and speeches the glorious time everybody has been having since the tourists left here last Saturday and the wonders of the state through which they have passed.

The cars checked out at the Majestic hotel, where they were greeted by Mayor Woodward, Walter P. Andrews and other Atlantans. Lee Barnes, prizefighter, a hearty welcome for his fellow tourists. They ate the last sandwiches and then the cars drank the last drink and then the last speeches were said before they made each other farewell.

Mounting the deck at the hotel while the Cobb county boatmen were in the water, "We have been to south Georgia," "Charles J. Haden, president of the Georgia chamber of commerce, thanked them all for co-operating to make the tour the great success it has been an expression of hope that everybody had a splendid time.

CUP TO STODDARD. The joyful shouts that greeted him were answer enough. Then Mr. Haden presented a loving cup to the pacemaker "Bill" Stoddard, expressing on behalf of the tourists his appreciation of the efficient manner in which Mr. Stoddard handled the tour. Mr. Stoddard, in turn, made a speech of acceptance. He couldn't, "Perhaps it was because he was so surprised and touched by this token of the genuine regard which every individual on the tour holds for him, perhaps it was because his voice has had a blowout through much speaking to south Georgia, the influence of his "purple parson," but he simply took the cup, blushed a blush that was visible through his sunburnt cheeks, and grinned.

Mr. Stoddard is going to preserve that purple parson. He got it out of a millinery store in America and he trimmed it with miniature cotton, gold dollar bills and babies' socks. At every stop he would mount the pacemaker's car, hold high the parson and make his little speech: "If you get up early in the morning, folks and raise a lot of those," pointing to the cotton balls, "and get a lot of them," pointing to the dollar bills, "and if you have many of these," handing the babies' socks, "you will not keep many of those," pointing to the bills again.

A REMARKABLE RECORD. While no score was kept on the cars, they made a remarkable record. The accidents—what few there were—were of a minor nature, and the time available was small. Thirty-six cars finished the run and of these President Haden, in his talk at the Majestic, had highest praise for the four entered by the Studebaker corporation and the pacemaker donated by the Maxwell company. The Studebaker made the entire trip without a single auto stop and was the record of the four-cylinder Studebaker stand for some time on the road. A little car finished in Atlanta with Atlanta air still in the tires and kept the hot pace the entire route without once losing its place in line. The Maxwell pacemaker, too, was distinctive for speed and endurance. Most of the way but a rickshaw had clipped ploughing through sandy roads and mud, but never having any trouble of any nature.

To those companies and to every person who entered a car in the tour, goes the palm for the spirit of generosity and the Georgia chamber of commerce they extend their best thank-you for the time of their lives. Jackson Sorry Tourists Missed a Big Treat JACKSON, Ga., May 28.—The fact that the "Seeing Georgia" tourists were not able to visit Jackson Thursday afternoon, on account of a rainstorm that rendered the roads well nigh impassable, is a matter of almost regret to the people of this city. An elaborate program of entertainment had been planned and the visitors would have been royally entertained and cordially welcomed to Jackson by the entire community. In the morning a number of cars went to Griffin to meet the tourists to Jackson, but about the time they were due to start the heavy rainstorm came up and made the trip impracticable.

The entire business element of the city had entered into the plans for the entertainment of the visitors and a committee of ladies had active charge of the refreshments and the decorating the armory where the entertainments were to have been held. Mayor W. E. Watkins and Colonel C. L. Haddock went down on the program to welcome the tourists to the city. In being unable to visit Jackson unquestionably the tourists missed one of the most elaborate entertainments that had been arranged in their honor during the swing around the state.

SOUTH TO GET GREATEST SHIP BUILDING PLANT

$4,000,000 Plant to Be Constructed at Mobile, Employing 5,000 Men

NEW YORK, May 28.—Plans for the construction of the "seeing Georgia" of the largest ship building plants in the United States were being perfected in New York today by Edward M. Hyde, former president of the Bath (Maine) Iron works. Mr. Hyde, who has just returned from the south, announced the formation of a $4,000,000 organization to undertake the project, which he hopes to have in operation within six months. The concern will probably be called the Gulf City Ship Building and Dry Dock company and is understood to have the backing of steel interests in Birmingham.

The project will be the only one of its kind in the far south and is chiefly designed to care for and promote the development of American ship building, which is expected to grow out of increasing South American and Panama canal traffic. At present Norfolk and Newport News are the farthest south points for important private ship yards, with equipment for building 500-ton vessels including an 1,800-foot dry dock and marine railroad. Mr. Hyde expected to close contracts in New York today for construction of the latter equipment.

Between 4,000 and 5,000 men will be employed, of whom half will be skilled workmen. In Mr. Hyde's opinion the war will result in the raising of the price of skilled labor in Europe, which will remove the chief handicap which ship building concerns in the country have to meet in competition with foreign concerns. He believes, therefore, that taking this factor into consideration together with the developing Panama canal trade, there should be a great impetus for the ship building industry in the United States and especially in the south.

DINNER AT WASHINGTON FOR CHINESE VISITORS
Commercial Commissioners Will Leave Capital for Baltimore Tonight

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 28.—The members of the honorary commercial commission of China, who are on their second day here tonight, again today visited the various government buildings and the places of historic interest.

The distinguished visitors last night attended a reception given in their honor by Chinese Minister Kai Fu Shieh. A notable company which included members of the cabinet, diplomats and others were present.

Tonight the commissioners will be guests of honor at a dinner given by the Southern Commercial congress. The Chinese minister, cabinet members and other government officials will be on the invitation list. Afterward the visitors will leave for Baltimore.

EXPERT ON VOLCANOES LOOKS INTO LASSEN PEAK
Reports Crater Bows Are Filled and Are Still Steaming

(By Associated Press.)
DRAKESBAD, Cal., May 28.—Information brought down from Lassen Peak by Prof. R. S. Holway, of the University of California, who, with a party of four, climbed the volcano yesterday and looked into its crater, was that the mountain was filled with snow melting. The snow was taken to indicate that the deposits left by the last eruption probably did not, as feared, cover the soil of the farm and meadow lands overhead.

Lassen was quiet yesterday when Prof. Holway and his party brought him the report to be filled as though snow upward by lava pressure, were still steaming. But the mountain was quiet yesterday when Prof. Holway was on the mountain and looked into its crater, was that the mountain was filled with snow melting. Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use another four ounces in the morning and rub it gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight and you will find that if not all of your dandruff will be gone, three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single grain and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find that all itching and itching of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be soft, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—(Adv.)

DANIELS IS INVESTIGATING TROUBLES OF SUBMARINES

Secretary Wants to Find Out Why There Are So Many Breakdowns

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 28.—Secretary Daniels was going ahead today with his plan for an extensive inquiry into the disabling of submarines which had been assigned to take part in a recent war game with the Atlantic fleet. Official reports said that half of the twelve underwater craft had been disabled.

The purpose of the inquiry will be to ascertain the cause of, and, if possible, a remedy for, the too frequent breakdowns of the submarines. No effort would be spared, it was announced, to remedy the weaknesses in the navy's underwater craft.

BARACAS AND BAPTISTS IN CLASH IN FLOYD

ROME, Ga., May 28.—A controversy that divided the Baptist denomination of Floyd county will be argued in court on Sunday at the annual meeting of the Baptist Sunday School association. An effort will be made to have the convention go on record as being eliminated in the navy's newer submarines and added that the other troubles were due to faults of construction that should have been remedied or defects in our system of reporting and making repairs.

Secretary Daniels pointed out that all of the submarines in trouble recently were designed before 1913. Various causes are assigned for the ineffectiveness of the submarines in the recent maneuvers including battery and other troubles. The secretary expressed the hope that the battery trouble would be eliminated in the navy's newer submarines and added that the other troubles were due to faults of construction that should have been remedied or defects in our system of reporting and making repairs.

The Nebraska.

The consequence of "the Nebraska" misadventure depends on whether the vessel struck a floating mine or was torpedoed. Until that is determined, public judgment and official action must be suspended. And no grave are the possibilities of the situation that neither the government nor the people of the United States can afford to leap at conclusions.

All accounts of the explosion that disabled the American steamer off the coast of Ireland last Tuesday agree that the evening was calm and that there was sufficient light to identify the nationality of the vessel, whose name was printed in huge letters on her sides. If she was torpedoed, the submarine that fired knew precisely what it was doing, and its act was a repetition of the Guiltlight incident.

It is almost unthinkable that the German government would have directed or authorized such an attack on an American vessel at the present juncture of affairs. The Nebraska was homeward bound in ballast. Whatever cargo she might have carried would not have been contraband so long as its destination was the United States. There could be no excuse, no reason, no provocation to torpedo this neutral ship.

Unless Berlin has abandoned diplomacy entirely, and has no regard whatsoever for the rights of American commerce or the good will of the American people, it could never have permitted a submarine attack on the Nebraska, for such an attack would be nothing short of an act of war.

Pending a complete investigation and definite proof, it is reasonable to assume, therefore, that the Nebraska struck a mine. It is important, however, that every means be taken up the doubt be exhausted. It is a safe bet that while the state of Georgia was being seen by the tourists it also heard from Atlanta.

Germany still seems to be of the opinion that the most effective warfare is that against helpless women and children on passenger steamers.

Latin-American Needs.

Of the many important matters discussed at the Pan-American Conference in Washington, the need for better financial and credit facilities and for more adequate transportation service received special emphasis. The delegates from the South American countries were a unit in recommending the establishment of a "dollar exchange" in order that business with the United States might be transacted in dollars and cents instead of in terms of some foreign exchange. They were keenly interested also in the establishment of branches of United States banks in the principal Latin-American cities to the end that commercial paper representing Pan-American trade may be readily negotiated.

There is good reason to believe that these and kindred facilities will be provided in the near future. Under the Federal Reserve Act, the national banks of the United States are authorized to institute branches in foreign countries, and already some of our banking houses have availed themselves of this opportunity in reference to South America. Furthermore, as Secretary McAdoo pointed out, the credit resources of our banks are now so organized that "for the first time in the history of this country they are prepared to do a large amount of foreign business." It is worth noting in this connection that in recent months several important loans to South American interests have been negotiated in the United States. There is no surer means of developing close trade relationships. The commercial prestige which European merchants and manufacturers hitherto have enjoyed in Latin America has been due very largely to the readiness of European capital to finance Latin-American enterprises.

The need for improved steamship facilities between the two Americas has long been recognized, but never, perhaps, was it so deeply stressed as at the Washington conference. Intercontinental trade depends primarily on adequate transportation service. However eager the Latin-American countries may be to buy from the United States and to sell to the United States, they cannot do so without a dependable merchant marine. By some means, if not by private capital but by government action, this great need must be met.

When a battleship isn't blown up by a torpedo, along comes an accidental explosion to help things along. While the land forces are operating in fifteen-yard dashes, the naval warfare spreads over the waters. The captain of the Nebraska may be uncertain whether it was a mine or a torpedo, but he seems to be under the impression that something struck him.

As They Stand Today.

In a thoughtful comparison of the present status of Germany and Austria with that of the Allies, the New York Evening Post observes that the latter are relatively much stronger than they were during the first three months of the war, "when there was a chance for German victory by lightning tactics," stronger, indeed, than at any time during the entire ten months. Measured in terms of population, the human resources of the belligerent powers last August were approximately as follows: Germany 70,000,000 and Austria 50,000,000—a total of 120,000,000 for the Teutonic empires; Russia, 175,000,000, France 40,000,000, England 47,000,000, Belgium 5,000,000, and Serbia 3,000,000—a total of 273,000,000 for the Allies. Of these figures, the Post well says that the preponderance of numbers against the Teutons was not so great as at first might appear. England's land strength was in no way proportionate to her population. "Her army of 100,000 men was probably smaller than Serbia's. Judged by her army, England might have been a station of five million inhabitants." But, the Post continues:

"Time has been piling up numbers against the Kaiser. To his credit alone goes Turkey, which entered the war during the last days of October. To his debit side must be charged Italy and England. The latter's army in the field today is at least eight times as strong as it was in the battle of Mons. The full national effort has not yet been put forth, but for months there have been at least two million men on the army lists, and the number of volunteers today is close to three millions, if it has not passed that figure. When Berlin admits a postponement of victory, it admits that there will be time for England to put into the battlefield an army approximately to her population."

The Teutonic numbers have been augmented by twenty millions by Turkey, and those of the Allies by thirty-seven millions from Italy and some eleven millions from the British colonies; so that the present strength, on the assumption that the waste of war has been as great for one side as the other, stands approximately thus: The Teutonic empires 140,000,000 and the Allies 313,000,000.

The Post makes due allowance, of course, for the weakening of Russia's forces, but it adds that even if Russia be deducted entirely, the Allies are still numerically equal to the Austro-Germans. As a matter of fact, Russia is still capable, despite her reverses, of keeping from one-third to one-fourth of the Teuton armies employed. To quote again: "Russia must always be reckoned, in terms of efficiency, as a nation of half her numerical strength, so that the Allied preponderance in population cannot be imagined fall below seventy-five millions."

These conditions might have been of slight influence in a war of a few months, but in a prolonged struggle they are weighty and far-reaching. Mere numbers are not decisive, but in a contest of endurance and strength combined, numbers are of vast importance. The longer the Teutonic forces must fight for victory, the less chance for victory they will have. Time is against them and in favor of the Allies. Time has enabled England to increase her army from a mere handful to two millions or more; it has drawn Italy to the support of the Allies, and the probability is that it will draw Rumania, Greece and, perhaps, Bulgaria.

The Germans have the same advantages which they had at the outbreak of hostilities. They have a magnificent military machine with brains and courage behind it. Further, as the Evening Post remarks, "The geographical situation of the Teuton empires, which in times of peace was described as one of enrichment, becomes in war a gain. Germany has been hitting and guarding on two fronts; her admirable organization is undoubtedly prepared to cope with the new enemy to the South. As compared with the beginning of the war, the Teutonic Allies have the advantage of a partly weakened Russia."

It is none the less evident, however, that while the resources and advantages of Germany are today practically what they were six or eight months ago, those of the Allies are continually increasing. Germany's hope lay in a brilliant dash and swift victory. The hope of the Allies is in steady, persistent hammering.

Mexico at least doesn't have to worry about the submarine warfare. The president of Portugal needn't think he is going to change the course of empire by resigning. The knife one girl gives another will not cut friendship—add the odds are it won't even cut melted butter.

"Fagantry," said, not long ago, Constance D'Arcy Mackay, author of the just-published book, "Plays of the Pioneers," "is the new community art of the twentieth century." Miss Mackay herself has recently been asked to plan community recreations, including music and drama, for several towns in the West. "The desire for drama," she believes, "is certainly on the increase. People want to act plays as well as to see them." While many pagans need expert leadership, there is a demand, she finds, for plays which can be acted by schools and communities that cannot afford such leadership. So "Plays of the Pioneers" was the result of her effort to fill this need.—Literary Digest.

Antidotes to Grief.

BY H. ADDINGTON REEVE.

Grief is not, as some recent writers seem to think, an undesirable human trait, fraught only with evil consequences. It is a noble and generous emotion, and, as a rule, the death of a relative, the loss of a friend or a friend, or a national calamity, is much to be pitied.

His ability to view such events with unconcern is conclusive evidence of a colossal selfishness and hardness.

But grief easily may, and often does, become abnormal. There are thousands of men and women the whole current of whose lives has been adversely affected by their surrender to the thrall of some great grief.

Others have had their lives actually cut short by grief; their vital processes have interfered with by its corrosive power that it may truly be said of them that they died of a broken heart.

When, therefore, bereavement and sorrow come, it is well for the friends of the bereaved to know exactly how they should be combined with sympathy and by its corrective power that it may truly be said of them that they died of a broken heart.

When, therefore, bereavement and sorrow come, it is well for the friends of the bereaved to know exactly how they should be combined with sympathy and by its corrective power that it may truly be said of them that they died of a broken heart.

Work, hard work, and plenty of it, is one of the best antidotes to grief. It is brooding over one's loss that is most to be avoided, and, by keeping the mind occupied, prevents brooding.

Also, it is important to build up the physical condition of the mind. The mind is the seat of grief, and to assist the organism to look at life normally one must be physically run down as far as possible to clear abnormality of grief, reflecting a more vigorous condition of the organism, well nourished.

Tonics should be ordered when necessary; and in any event there should be insistence on plenty of exercise, especially in the open air.

In applying these remedial measures, however, it must be clearly understood that great facilities need to be used without these remedies.

NO. 203—THE NAVJO reservation.

Probably few Americans know that there is in the southwest an Indian domain about twice the size of the state of Connecticut, where some 10,000 Red Men lead an independent existence upon the lands they have always occupied.

The Navajo reservation, which is the largest in the United States, occupies most of the northwest corner of New Mexico and laps over into Arizona. The Navajos are a unique people, unlike other American Indians, and have a civilization vastly superior to all others. They are as nomadic as gypsies, and are born horsemen, all. It is hard to imagine how the Navajo got along before the Spaniards came to this section of the world. The way of a home, the Navajo builds a structure of twigs and mud, which he calls a "hogan," and this being quick and inexpensive to build, he frequently moves three or four times a year.

In the days before Kit Carson conquered them, the Navajos roamed all over New Mexico and Arizona, and were feared by white men, Mexicans and the white traders, and led the free, adventurous life of free-booters. Today they remain a wandering people, but have given up pillage for sheep raising. The wide, barren uplands of the Navajo reservation are ideal sheep ranges, and the Indians are the most careful of shepherds. In the spring months they bring their little lambs into the hogans for warmth, and sometimes when the ewes die, the squaws nurse the lambs at their own breasts.

Leading, as they do, very independent lives, the Navajos have customs of their own which hardly be appreciated by white men. They are very particular as to a matter of barter and sale. The Navajo market sells her debaute daughter to the highest bidder, and a couple of ponies are sold for the price of a horse. The Navajo damsel.

How the Oyster Makes a Pearl.

When the oyster is very tiny it floats about on top of the sea or river like a piece of jelly. Then its shell begins to grow, and it gets a little larger. Pulling Taffy White.

Wise little chap, Herman, to study science while you "pull" taffy. The boy who "wonders why" and finds out "why" will some day have useful knowledge to give the world.

When Isaac Newton was a boy he "wondered why" apples fall downward instead of upward. James Watt was only a little boy when he "wondered" about the tea kettle steam. Newton gave us the law of gravitation; Watt taught us how steam gets its power. There's much more to the world to learn, and the more you know today has it needed boys who "wonder why" and study "why."

Now as to the taffy that turns white when your butter melts. The taffy that turns white when your butter melts. The taffy that turns white when your butter melts. The taffy that turns white when your butter melts.

Quips and Quiddities

A California youngster had been permitted to visit a boy friend on the strict condition that he was to leave there at 5 o'clock. He did not arrive home until 11 o'clock, and his mother was very angry. The youngster inquired, however, that he had obeyed her and had not lingered unnecessarily.

"Do you expect me to believe," said his mother, "that it took you two hours to walk a quarter of a mile?" She reached for the whip. "Now, sir, will you tell me the truth?"

"Yes, mamma," sobbed the boy. "Charlie Wilson gave me a mud turtle—and I was afraid to carry it—so I led it home."

Mrs. Gibbs had only recently returned from her honeymoon trip and was enjoying the delightful novelty of making up morning.

"Oh, yes, and I wish some butter, too, please," she added, as she was about to leave the store.

"No," returned she promptly; "we wish to eat it on toast. My husband doesn't care for rolls."—Harper's Magazine.

THE FLEET IN ACTION—Submarines and Torpedoes

BY FREDERICK HASKIN.

The submarine and the torpedo are distinctly the sensations in the development of warfare as evolved since the days of the first compressed air-propelled air gun which hammers down the target. The submarine is a more recent development, but has been used before. French was the first to use it in the development of the simple device of digging a hole and dropping a bomb. Zepplins have fallen short of what was expected of them. But the submarine and the torpedo have gone with a vengeance. It is a new era of warfare, of imagination and throw down the gauntlet to the navies of the world.

Our navy department has begun to build three great, sea-going submarines that are bigger than any other. They are planned or fitted with a new class of engine. It developed it usually grows more quickly to the maximum of size and power in the American navy than elsewhere. But submarines may not yet leap upon their heels nor operate at great distances from their bases. Therefore the United States maintains that their use over here would be confined to a coast defense, and that as yet there is little to be feared from them as part of an attacking force. It is therefore sticking more closely to the battleship as an instrument with which to attack.

The American navy is, however, by no means without submarines. The first of the present year there were thirty of these vessels in commission. They are being built at Newport, at Groton, at Groton, on the Pacific coast, and twelve of them are maneuvering with the Atlantic fleet now off Newport. Some of these are the latest type, designed by the inventor of the steamboat, designed by the inventor of the steamboat, designed by the inventor of the steamboat.

Also, it is important to build up the physical condition of the mind. The mind is the seat of grief, and to assist the organism to look at life normally one must be physically run down as far as possible to clear abnormality of grief, reflecting a more vigorous condition of the organism, well nourished.

Tonics should be ordered when necessary; and in any event there should be insistence on plenty of exercise, especially in the open air.

In applying these remedial measures, however, it must be clearly understood that great facilities need to be used without these remedies.

Work, hard work, and plenty of it, is one of the best antidotes to grief. It is brooding over one's loss that is most to be avoided, and, by keeping the mind occupied, prevents brooding.

In the days before Kit Carson conquered them, the Navajos roamed all over New Mexico and Arizona, and were feared by white men, Mexicans and the white traders, and led the free, adventurous life of free-booters. Today they remain a wandering people, but have given up pillage for sheep raising. The wide, barren uplands of the Navajo reservation are ideal sheep ranges, and the Indians are the most careful of shepherds. In the spring months they bring their little lambs into the hogans for warmth, and sometimes when the ewes die, the squaws nurse the lambs at their own breasts.

Leading, as they do, very independent lives, the Navajos have customs of their own which hardly be appreciated by white men. They are very particular as to a matter of barter and sale. The Navajo market sells her debaute daughter to the highest bidder, and a couple of ponies are sold for the price of a horse. The Navajo damsel.

Less Danger in the Air Than in Trenches, Says British Flyer

PARIS. He sat down at the next table in the Restaurant Viel—you know, the one down near the Madeleine—and in ten minutes he had destroyed half a dozen illusions. We knew him for an aviator of the first rank, and he was now speaking of his struggles with the menu—a struggle which finally ended by a selection of roast beef and an English Frezle, spiced with a dash of the sauce which he recognized him as a cheerful lionheart. He is perfectly certain that the allies will win the war. But he is equally certain that the winning will take a long time.

"I see the Germans have finally been driven out of the air, according to the London papers," said the English aviator. "But they're still at work on the front. Seven dropped bombs on Bedford today. They were very well aimed, but they were not secured by the English at Neuve Chapelle was due to the fact that the German planes could not stay up long enough to drop their bombs. They were driven out of troops and guns without the knowledge of the Germans became possible."

"The condition may often be repeated. Our planes carry guns. The planes of the Germans do not. Therefore they are no match for us. However, we use one gun and they use four of us chase him. Of course he has to come down. His prime duty is to reconnoiter. His next duty is to get home with the results of his observations. He would be a fool if he went on circling about up there until we brought him down. It is quite true that the Germans are not able to keep the air on the English front, nor to go up as often as they would desire. It is also true that they get up more often than we want them to, and that they continually secure valuable information."

"We mulled over that for a time. Then one of us said: 'Anyhow, my hat is off to the aviator in time of war. He makes more chances than any other venturer in this war.'"

"The amazing young Englishman said this wasn't true at all. He said the aviator really took very few chances."

"We have no fatalities, of course," said he, "but in proportion to the number of machines and the number of hours' flying that has been done the fatalities are not many. Not many more than would have been registered in times of peace. The slaughter is in the trenches."

MIMS AND COLE SPEAK TO VANDERBILT ALUMNI

First Annual Celebration of Founders' Day Held at Piedmont-Driving Club

Declaring that "there should be no unhealthy competition between light-houses," Dr. Edwin Mims, head of the department of English at Vanderbilt University, summarized the attitude of the university toward the new institutions of learning that are being erected as a result of the final adjustment of the controversy over the control of Vanderbilt.

Dr. Mims was speaking to Georgia alumni of Vanderbilt at their first celebration of Founders' day at the Piedmont-Driving club Thursday night.

"Vanderbilt alumni of Atlanta," said he, "are naturally loyal to the institutions of this city—you have the pride in them that patriotic citizens ought to have. Vanderbilt rejoiced with you in their success. If I interpret the spirit of Vanderbilt, it is not an exclusive one, but one that takes the success of institutions to wage battle for intelligence and righteousness. There ought to be a common purpose dominating us all in this long warfare for the emancipation of man."

But while you richly cherish these institutions that flourish by your aid, be sure that you be a member of your alma mater and that this tie is one of the most important in your life. NO BREAK IN TRADITIONS. There has been no break in the traditions of the university, no revolution in our ideals. If some have misinterpreted or misunderstood us, we can make it clear to the new Vanderbilt in the old Vanderbilt working in the spirit of a new day. The fact that now a member of the faculty has resigned, nor a member of the board of trustees, that our constituency has remained unshaken in its loyalty, that our student body has manifested increasing devotion, goes to show that the policies that have dominated us in the past will continue to be ours.

Spelling Bee Is on Program at Second Baptist Church Tonight

Judge Nash R. Brydies, Dr. W. B. Campbell and other prominent Atlanta men got out the old-blue-backed spelling bee and commenced it thoroughly, fixed whether separate is spelled with an a or an e and settled in their minds the proper places for F and S.

Friday evening at the Second Baptist church will witness the fruits of their labors when they captain two sides in an old-fashioned spelling bee. A beauty contest and musical entertainment will also lead to the occasion.

Kayser Silk Gloves wear so much better

The very foundation of the Kayser Gloves—the Kayser Silk—is pure and strong. Fine workmanship alone could not make Kayser Silk Gloves wear longer if the silk itself were not right. In 30 years of silk spinning, we have learned how to make use of a heavier pure silk thread (not weighted), without interfering with the delightful coolness of the gloves. This makes Kayser Silk Gloves wear so much longer that millions of women have learned that the one thing to look for in a silk glove is the trademark "Kayser." Two clasp gloves are always 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 and up; twelve and sixteen button lengths are always 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and up. The name "Kayser" is in the hem and with each pair is a guarantee ticket that the tips will outwear the gloves. Kayser Silk Gloves More sold than all other silk gloves combined.
