BRYAN DECLARES NOTE WAS REVISED AFTER HE RESIGNED OFFICE

pledged to give Great Britain, France and Russia to have every difference of every character submitted to an international commission of investigation.
Mr. and Mrs. Bryan left tonight for Old Point Comfort to remain until Tuesday, after which he expects to announce his plans for the immediate future.
Senator Smith Commends
Tone of Wilson's Note
By BALPH SMITH.
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12.—Before leaving for the longest General Hoke Smith made the following comment on the president's note to Germany:
"The letter is an agreeable surprise to those who feared it might be an ultimatum. While firm, it is in splendid temper and invites a continuation of cordial relations. Without yielding in the insistence that safety be accorded to our citizens and their property from German submarines, it happily affords opportunity for further consideration of some of the details by which this may be accomplished. Germany has practically agreed to discontinuing the submarine warfare against merchant and passenger vessels if Great Britain will discontinue her illegal interference with neutral commerce. It would be cause indeed for rejoicing if such a result might be accomplished."
German Paper Believes
Bryan is Playing Politics
Berlin, June 12.—(Via London).—The "Vossische Zeitung" alone has published so far what purports to be the original language of the latest American note. The newspaper makes the following statement:
"The note happily contains nothing of that sharpness which, according to speeches from Mr. Bryan, who stands in the front, nor is there even a threat to break off diplomatic relations. On the contrary, the text does not lack a certain warmth and an acknowledgment of the legality to be expected on the German side."
"The line of thought and the tone of the note fall to make it easily understandable how it brought about a break between President Wilson and Mr. Bryan. After the declaration made by Mr. Bryan one expected a note which increases the danger of a German-American crisis. Mr. Bryan, who stands in the head of the American peace societies and likes to hear the people call him the prince of peace, apparently wishes to appear as the rescuer of the nation from this danger. For this sake internal political reasons, in order to win for himself friends among the peace advocates among the German-Americans, the Irish and the Helms, perhaps looking ahead to the next presidential election.
"As for Mr. Wilson, he seems to hope to play the role of arbiter between Germany and England, and through great success in foreign politics to strengthen his position at home."
Referring to Robert Lansing, the "Vossische Zeitung" says: "This gentleman cannot be regarded as an unconditional Anglophile, he once wrote in a letter that he was tired of being England's messenger boy."
Wilson's Note Worth of Great Nation, Paper Says
PARIS, June 12.—(Via London).—The "Liberation" says:
"The note is worthy of a great country conscious of its dignity, its rights and its duties. It has not the tone of an ultimatum, since it is couched in courteous terms, but it is energetic and energetic Germany finally to cease recourse to false expedients."
Austrian Newspaper Makes
Attack Upon United States
By Associated Press.
ZURICH (Via London), June 12.—Official opinion in Austria, which lately has been none too friendly to the United States, is now being expressed in a vehement attack which appears in the leading Vienna newspaper, the "Neue Presse," against America for its leading war munitions to the entente powers.
Additional importance attaches to the article, which is published with the full sanction of the government, if it is not directly officially inspired, since the entire contents of the Austrian newspapers are subjected to a rigid form of censorship before the forms are sent on the press.
Denying that Americans have sold a billion dollars worth of munitions of war to the enemies of Austria and Italy, while the ministers of the American churches are praying for peace, the paper says:
"Those who bring munitions cannot bring peace. The land where so many voices are demanding the breaking of relations with Germany can hardly be a Bethlehem, from which the world can gain a new religion."
"If America refuses to submit the Lusitania dispute to arbitration, she maintains relations with Germany and raises questions of might. She is pursuing a policy which threatens her neutrality. A munitions war is being waged by America, public sentiment is already against Germany. Germany soldiers are being killed or wounded by American ammunition. Millions of Americans are being killed and the difference would be scarcely noticeable."
Bryan's Retirement Taken
Coolly by Austrians
By Associated Press.
ZURICH, Switzerland, June 12.—William J. Bryan's retirement has been taken very coolly in Austria, judging by the Austrian newspapers which have reached Zurich.
These discuss the matter in guarded and moderate tones. Generally they are of the opinion that nothing is likely to happen really to endanger the relations between the United States and Germany. The papers say that if President Wilson really desires peace Germany certainly will do her best to aid him, and that in any event it is better to await developments before expressing further opinions.
First U. S. Note Based Upon
Germany's Own Naval Orders
By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 12.—The reference made by President Wilson in his first note to Germany regarding the sinking of the Lusitania, to the "human and enlightened attitude hitherto assumed by the Imperial German government in matters of international right, and particularly with regard to the freedom of the seas," was based, it was learned today, upon the instructions of August 2, 1914, which the German government sent to its naval commanders. The president's purpose was to show a complete change of the German attitude over the treatment of neutral shipping during the war.
The German press raises now and then the question of the state department and perhaps will figure specifically in

HORSE GUARDS WILL ADVERTISE ATLANTA

The Governor's Horse guard, of which O. L. Ruidmal is captain, will advertise Atlanta from its special train en route to Seattle and the California exposition. The chamber of commerce will cooperate with the Horse Guard in this advertising campaign and will furnish the necessary printed literature.
The chamber has also through the Panama exposition authorities the matter of naming an Atlanta day at the exposition, and it is proposed to have the date come when the Horse guard and Shriners are in San Francisco. The Shriners will go with the Horse guard.
Fred Houser, secretary of the Atlanta convention bureau, has opened an office in San Francisco.
Future diplomatic correspondence on the subject of the Lusitania should there be no breach of relations.
While no mention is made of the rules of submarine warfare, the article does mention the method of the exercise of the right of search and stoppage of ships is prescribed and it is directed that "two successive blank charges are to be fired in succession, the first charge over the ship, if the signals are not obeyed. If the ship does not then stop completely, the second charge will compel her to stop," the instructions continue.
After specifying what ships may be captured, and destroyed, the regulations continue:
"Before destruction all persons on board, with their personal effects, are to be placed in the lifeboats, with the papers and other articles of evidence which, in the opinion of the interested parties are subject to the judgment of the prize court, are to be taken over by the captain."
French Newspapers
Praise President Wilson
By Associated Press.
PARIS, June 12.—The "Temps" in an editorial today on the American note to Germany, says the note brings the Lusitania question back to the ground which German diplomacy endeavored to give it.
"President Wilson maintains firmly and with conviction the same ideas already twice expressed. He refuses to admit that his elevated conception of right may become the subject of compromise, and he exposes it anew in clear and precise terms that permit no more evasive replies." Mr. Wilson repeats in the name of his country: "I do not bargain with the sacred rights of humanity."
The Journal des Debats, in discussing the note, says:
"The United States, representing in the case the civilized world, places the sacred rights of humanity above considerations of military order to which Germany subordinates everything. They are resolved, so far as concerns American subjects, to have those rights respected."
"The essence of the note is, first, measures required by humanity must be taken, and afterward, if it is desired, will come discussion of the relations of Germany subordinates everything. They are resolved, so far as concerns American subjects, to have those rights respected."
"The measures required by humanity must be taken, and afterward, if it is desired, will come discussion of the relations of Germany subordinates everything. They are resolved, so far as concerns American subjects, to have those rights respected."

MRS. B. CASTLETON, who spent two years at the Atlanta Law school in order to help her husband, who is an attorney.

They Will Not Be Allowed to Practice, Although They Receive Diplomas Admitting Them to Bar

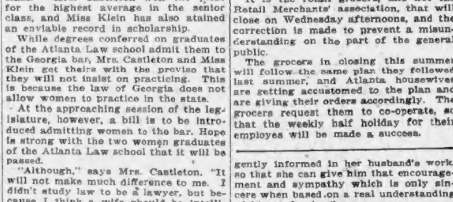

Two women are among the 1915 graduates of the Atlanta Law school who will receive their diplomas Monday night. One is Mrs. B. Castleton, who took law mainly that she might have an understanding sympathy in the work of her husband, an Atlanta attorney.
The other is Miss Agnes L. Klein, who decided that a law career was the best foundation for a career as an insurance actuary, which she intends to follow.
For two years they have been in school here, and both have been leaders in their class. Mrs. Castleton won the prize for the highest average in the senior class, and Miss Klein has also attained an enviable record in scholarship.
While degrees conferred on graduates of the Atlanta Law school admit them to the Georgia bar, Mrs. Castleton and Miss Klein got theirs with the proviso that they will not insist on practicing. This is because the law of Georgia does not allow women to practice in the state.
At the approaching session of the legislature, however, a bill is to be introduced admitting women to the bar. Hope is strong with the two women graduates of the Atlanta Law school that it will be passed.
"Although," says Mrs. Castleton, "I will not make much difference to me. I didn't study law to be a lawyer, but because I think a wife should be intelligently informed in her husband's work so that she can give him that encouragement and sympathy which is only sincere when based on a real understanding of his profession."

RETAIL MERCHANTS WILL NOT CLOSE WEDNESDAY

It is the Retail Grocers Who Will Have Weekly Half-Holiday During Summer
Through a typographical error it was stated in The Journal Friday that the members of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association would close their stores on Wednesday afternoon during the summer season.
It is the retail grocers, and not the Retail Merchants' association, that will close on Wednesday afternoons, and the correction is made to prevent a misunderstanding on the part of the general public.
The grocers in closing this summer will follow the same plan they followed last summer, and Atlanta housewives are getting accustomed to the plan and grocers request them to cooperate, so that the weekly half holiday for their employees will be made a success.
The members of the association were gently informed in her husband's work so that she can give him that encouragement and sympathy which is only sincere when based on a real understanding of his profession."

NEGRO VALUES WIFE'S BODY AT TEN THOUSAND

Dispute Over Undertaker's Claim Taken to Court for Settlement
Sheriff Mangum's office faces the possibility of being turned into a morgue for the $10,000 body of Sylvia Wimble, a negro woman, because of a ball-towner proceeding brought Saturday evening by C. W. Wimble, the dead woman's husband, against J. M. Robinson, a negro undertaker, demanding that Robinson surrender the body, valued at $10,000, to Wimble.
Robinson got the body shortly after Sylvia passed away Friday, and states that he is going to keep it until a bill for 140 for embalming and other things is paid. Mrs. Chambers didn't demand the custody of the contained remains, Robinson says, who said he was going to keep Mrs. Wimble at all costs, was given until Sunday morning to make good the bond in $20,000—twice the $10,000 valuation placed by Wimble upon his late wife.
This bond at the "professional" rate of $15 a $100,000 cost Robinson $1,000 to make, but, come what may, this undertaker stands going to fight the principle above profit and make the bond and hold on to the body until his bill of $40 is paid. If Wimble, on the other hand, makes the $20,000 bond first, he'll get the body; in either case, the corpse will have to be held until a judge of the superior court can settle the dispute Monday. In case neither Wimble nor Robinson make the required bond, it will be the bounden duty of the sheriff to take charge of the remains and hold them in custody until the superior court settles the case."

ATLANTA'S PLAYGROUNDS WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Two thousand little children will be made happy Monday by the opening of Atlanta's thirteen city playgrounds.
At 9 o'clock in the morning the American flag will be raised over each of the playgrounds and the kiddies will begin their business of play with the swings and "shoot-the-shoots" and other things that the city has provided for them. Each playground will be under the personal supervision of a superintendent and an assistant, appointed from among the women teachers of Atlanta's schools.
Mrs. F. M. Tibbets, supervisor of playgrounds, anticipates a most successful season this summer. She is gratified that there are two more playgrounds this year than last—the one at the Ivy street school and the one at the Ivy street school.
Each of the playgrounds will be open each day from 9 to 11:30 in the morning and from 2 to 4:30 in the afternoon.
Mrs. Tibbets says that the parents of the children may use the playgrounds for picnics and outings this season.

THOMAS RIVERS MAKES GREAT RECORD IN SCHOOL

Young Georgian Has Taken Three First Honors in Three Institutions

Thomas M. Rivers, a young Georgian, and almost an Atlanta, has just completed the phenomenal record of taking three first honors in three educational institutions in which at various times he has been a student. At the closing exercises held in the Academy of Music in Baltimore Tuesday, June 8, Mr. Rivers, now Dr. Rivers, graduated with the highest honors in a class of ninety from the Johns Hopkins Medical school.

This record becomes the more remarkable when it is known that every one of the ninety Johns Hopkins graduates went there from class A colleges and universities all over the United States. The fact that he led his class gives Dr. Rivers the refusal of all appointments offered by the institutions to his graduation. With it goes the right to scholarship and intern service in Johns Hopkins hospital, and Dr. Rivers has elected to pursue higher medical studies there for a period of one year, after which he will give another year's attention to study as a specialist in child diseases.

Dr. Rivers is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Rivers, of Jonesboro, Ga., and a nephew of E. Rivers, of Atlanta. He is twenty-six years of age. He began his education in the schools of Jonesboro and went through the Jonesboro academy or high school where he began his class leading record. Leaving the Jonesboro academy, with first honor, he went to Emory college at Oxford and from there graduated with first honor in 1913. In the fall of 1913 he went to Johns Hopkins Medical school, remaining there two years, and then for a two-year period became assistant pathologist in St. Thomas hospital, Panama city, Panama. He went back to Johns Hopkins in 1913 and has just completed his four-year period.

When the class standing was posted for the first time Christmas, 1914, covering the four-year period, Dr. Rivers was at the top and there he has remained. Previous to his graduation he offered the most attractive position in leading Baltimore hospitals, but declined them to finish his medical education along the lines indicated. In addition to his other honors Mr. Rivers was recently chosen president of his class, showing the regard in which he is held by the student body.

Dr. Rivers' record of three first honors from three separate institutions of higher learning has won him warm congratulations from many friends. As a result of his fine standing at Johns Hopkins, he has been elected to membership in the Phi Kappa Phi society, which is a national honor society, and also in the Alpha Omega Alpha society, the national medical honor society. No higher honors than these could have come to any graduate.

ATLANTA VETERANS HAD BIG TIME AT RICHMOND

Georgia Delegation Made Great Hit, Says A. C. Bruce Just Home

Atlanta veterans who have returned from the Confederate reunion in Richmond are loud in their praise of the hospitality they received and the good time they had.

"The arrangements were splendidly carried out and everything possible done for our comfort," said A. C. Bruce, one of the veterans. "The city held great historic interest for us, and we enjoyed every minute of our stay, despite the rain and bad weather. The great center of attraction was the Jefferson hotel, headquarters of the veterans, the Daughters of the Confederacy and the Ladies' Memorial association.

"Paymaster General J. M. Williamson, of Memphis, Tenn., had his headquarters in the hotel and it was a unique spectacle to see him discharging his duties. All he required was the name, regiment and rank of the veteran, but so efficient he was that he told me he held out about $5,000 in three days.

"The Georgia delegation made a big hit. Governor-elect Nat E. Harris' speech reflected great glory on our state."

Tax Dogs and Provide Free Text Books for Pupils, Britian Says

Instead of appropriating more funds to make the terms of Georgia grammar schools one or two weeks longer, it would be much wiser if the state legislature would supply with this money free text-books in the primary grades, says state school Superintendent M. L. Brittain in his annual report, now being printed.

"The suggestion will not be heeded unless you are more courageous than some of the past legislatures," the report continues, "but I feel it a duty to say that the school book bill of all our children—white and black—could be paid by a simple dog tax."

In advocating this dog tax Mr. Brittain says it would help in every way, "aid the lagging sheep industry, diminish the danger from rabid dogs, give the comfort and standing of the state's protection to the worth-while dog and take it away from the prowling vagrant cur."

Mr. Brittain's report in this connection continues as follows: "I recommend that as soon as the state is financially able to do so that a beginning be made to furnish the pupils of the first grades with books, and that legislation be enacted now, authorizing all boards of education to rent and supply texts at cost or less, if possible."

I Want More Dealers to Handle My Plant-Ripened Pineapples

They are an different from the ordinary kind as a six-cylinder car is from an ox wagon. Once they have been used, consumers don't want any other pineapples. The satisfaction they give makes them a trade-builder for dealers.

I have some 200 dealers who handle these plant-ripened pineapples regularly. They order from one to five crates a week. Other dealers are wanted—in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama and Tennessee.

Send today for my special dealer's proposition. It is fair, indeed liberal. Full particulars free.

REG. L. GOODWIN, Sans Souci Plantations, INDIAN RIVER BOULEVARD, FORT PIERCE, FLA.

Dealers of this paper who would like to try my expanding plant-ripened pineapples, but are unable to get them from a nearby dealer, will be supplied direct by express. Send for order blank 2x4 prices. Address as above.

PREPARATIONS COMPLETE FOR VACATION SCHOOLS

Summer Institutions Will Be Opened June 21, It Is Announced

Preparations for the opening of vacation schools June 21 have been completed and the board of education is ready for this innovation in the Atlanta public school system, which is expected to save a year's time, each year, for more than a thousand children, who fall of promotion during the regular scholastic year.

The following school buildings will be used for the vacation schools: State street, Georgia avenue, Calhoun, Walker, Moreland avenue, Hill street, and Boulevard.

Miss Laura M. Smith, director of the summer schools, announces that a "senior teacher" will be in charge of each school and will have associated with her several grade teachers.

This corps of workers will be furnished with the necessary information relative to each child's needs and every effort will be made to give individual instruction and fit the child for the next higher grade.

The number of pupils now listed for the vacation schools is 1,100, and that number 187 are coming in order to be able to skip a grade, and thus save time for them and give room in the schools for additional children.

Miss Smith announces that the children who may attend the vacation schools are listed in three groups as follows:

1st. All children who have failed of promotion in one or more subjects, provided there is a strong possibility of their preparing them for the next higher grade. Attendance is required of all children under this head.

2nd. Those children who upon recommendation of the school last attended, are to be given an advance in order to be doing this extra work in the summer. Such children will be strongly urged to avail themselves of the opportunity of this saving a year's time.

3rd. Children who have lost time on account of illness, or some other unavoidable cause, may also apply for admission in the summer schools and be given an admission ticket if there is a chance of their being able to make up the work this year. In such cases, application should be made to the directors of the vacation schools, Chamber of Commerce building.

Before the opening of the summer schools on Monday, June 21, notice will be sent to each pupil who is expected to attend. In event any non-promoted child fails to receive such notice, he is requested to report on the above date to the nearest vacation school.

The teachers who have been selected for the vacation school work will meet at 10 o'clock Monday at the office of the board of education, where the plan of the schools will be mapped out in detail.

The following is the list of the vacation school teachers:

Berry Cohen, nineteen years old, is back in Atlanta, after his first trip of any length away from home. The trip was to New York City and he made it on a motorcycle, carrying another boy on the rear of the machine over half the distance.

Berry is known by local motorcycle fans as the "dare-devil." He won this title in a motorcycle endurance run to Birmingham several months ago. The first time he had been over 200 miles from the city of his birth.

GRAND OFFERS FINE PROGRAM FOR WEEK

A stupendous picture feature in which Edwin Cook, the renowned humorist and author, appears, "The Arab," and a collection of other master photographs, including a reproduction of that amazing "The Juggernaut," is the combination to be offered by the Grand this week.

"The Arab" will be exhibited Monday and Tuesday. It will be followed on Wednesday by "The Millionaire Baby," a sparkling Selig drama released from the Vitagraph-Selig-Lubin-Esnoy combination.

"The Millionaire Baby" is an Anna Katherine Green story, and the leading role is portrayed by Harry Mestayer. Thursday "The Judgment" will return. Thousands of Atlanta theatergoers packed the enormous Grand theater when it was shown several weeks ago. It created a sensation that has not been equaled by any other photographic offering since the day moving pictures were introduced in Atlanta. It is predicted by picture experts that it will draw even bigger crowds on this second engagement.

Jesse L. Lasky's photodramatic production of "The Arab," in which Edgar Selwyn, the author and original star, plays the title role, tells the story of a Christian missionary in Syria. The leading character is that of Jamil, the son of a great desert sheik, who falls in love with the daughter of a Christian missionary and rescues her, her father, and the children of their mission school from the general destruction.

The Turkish governor of the Syrian province, who is in love with Mary, the missionary's daughter, the scheme of the governor is to marry her to a tribe of which Jamil's father is sheik, to ride down on the town after the massacre so that he can blame them for the killing and thus escape the vengeance of the American government.

The old sheik, who has been parted from his son, agrees to this if the governor will return and send him back to the desert, but when Jamil learns the motive of the governor's interest he has already fallen in love with Mary, and for her sake becomes the defiant.

"Hazel Dawn in 'Pink Lady' fame, and more recently seen in the comedy film success, "Nina," returns to the Grand as a notable production. This latest Paramount release presents the girl's success "Nina" returns to the Grand as a notable production. day and Friday; and a Mutual Masterpiece picture, "Up From the Depths." Saturday and Sunday, "The Arab," starring Edwin Cook, the renowned humorist and author, appears, "The Arab," and a collection of other master photographs, including a reproduction of that amazing "The Juggernaut," is the combination to be offered by the Grand this week.

The story of "Wormwood," based on Marie Corelli's famous novel and play, is strikingly dramatic and holds with real grip from start to finish. There is the usual, the lead, mounting the Fox feature is above praise. The Pont Neuf bridge at night, and a portion of Notre Dame cathedral, are both masterpieces of realism. The lighting and photography is exquisite. Ethel Krafftman, a watercolorist, is in the cast, taking the role of Pauline, the winsome, pathetic heroine, suddenly confronted with raw tragedy. John Stimpson, of Canton, Mass., the aborigine fiend, gives a wonderful rendition, and the other parts are equally filled.

"Who's Who in Society" is one of the most rollicking comedies George Kienzler ever produced. The cast is headed by Fannie Connor, a Broadway star, and the story of the plot abounds in laughable situations, finely executed in the picture studios. On the same day, Wednesday, with this feature, the Strand shows "The American Navy in New York Harbor," a Pathe special.

The high road, with Valli Valli, at the Strand Thursday and Friday is the latest release of the B. A. Rolfe company on the Metro program. This romantic play, in which Mrs. Fiske appeared in Atlanta two years ago, is too well known to need retelling. With Valli Valli is the leading role. It is presented with all the intensity and dramatic charm which has made it one of the greatest successes of the film world.

Clayton Brockwell and Courtney Foote are stars in "Up From the Depths," the Mutual Masterpiece picture at the Strand Saturday. "Up From the Depths" is the story of the underdog, in which Miss Brockwell takes the role of Daisy Winslow, the innocent girl whom the revivified betrayed and later, in better moment, rescued from degradation.

"The Huddle of the Silk Stocking," an attraction which is matched with "In the Shadows of the Pyramids" the same day, one of the "Under the Crescent" dramas.

ROBERT EDSON, W. S. HART AND OTHER STARS AT ALAMO 2. Several strong dramas are booked at the Alamo No. 2 this week, beginning Monday with "When the Mind Sleeps," which stars Myrtle Tanshill, and going through Friday when Robert Edson appears in "Man's Prerogative," a three-reel masterpiece.

"When the Mind Sleeps" is a recent Broadway favorite feature, a three-reel release, and no better star could have been picked to portray the subtle tenderness of the leading role than Miss Tanshill, who is one of the most talented actresses that ever played on Broadway.

Tuesday the Alamo No. 2 offers another special of "The Goddess," the wonder serial with Earl Williams and the beautiful Anita Stewart, which is attracting much comment because of the unique plot and the delicate way in which it has been produced.

"On the Night Stage" is the title of the tense drama in which W. S. Hart and Robert Edson are the stars. It is the Alamo No. 2 Wednesday. "On the Night Stage" is a five-reel Mutual masterpiece. The scene in which Hart is shown battling with a gang of thugs is one of the most dramatic that has ever been shown on the screen.

Thursday's picture at the Alamo No. 2 is "His Father's Rifle," one of those thrillers with animal films for which the Selig company is noted. It is in three reels.

"Man's Prerogative," the four-reel

1. W. S. Hart in "On the Night Stage," Alamo Number Two, Wednesday.

2. Jackie Saunders, star at the Alamo Number One.

3. Scene from "Wormwood," Strand Monday and Tuesday.

4. Marguerite Clark in "Wild Flower," Montgomery Monday.

5. John Barrymore in "The Romance of Elaine," Vaudette Tuesday.

6. Hazel Dawn in "Gambler's Advocate" at the Grand.

7. Scene from "The Marked Woman," Victoria Monday.

8. Mary Fuller in "A Daughter of the Nile," Alpha Monday.

Construction News, in Building Summary, Says the Country Is Returning to Normal, May Showing Very Slight Decrease—No Definite Plans for University Club Quarters on Peachtree—Peachtree Lease and Other Notes

Building throughout the country is returning to normal, according to Construction News, which shows operations for May in over a hundred American cities.

In this connection it is interesting to note that Atlanta had only one rival in the south and that was Richmond. She was ahead of every other southern city in value, including New Orleans, Chicago and Cleveland—all big financial centers, which are quick to reflect better business conditions.

It is also significant that out of a total of nearly $84,000,000 worth of business for the whole country, the loss the past May, as compared with May a year ago, was only $107,624.

So far as could be learned Saturday, A. G. Candler has not yet decided the University club quarters at 180 Peachtree street, which will be leased to the club members of the city.

It is said that Mr. Candler would handle this as he does his other property. He did not rent his home, and the club members have to have the property taken up with a long lease.

PEACHTREE LEASE. A. S. Candler, president of the Peachtree Realty Co., has leased to M. Fordon, the tailor, a store room, 128 feet south of Peachtree street, for the term of the lease for five years.

Brotherhood of Carpenters, the well known local real estate firm, has sold three lots, as follows: 145 feet on Church street in East Point, Mrs. B. Wynn, consideration $3,500.

$2,800—Mrs. Annie A. Bowen to Nat. Lucile avenue, 53x127 feet. June 7, 1915. $2,800—Paul S. Etheridge to William P. Hardee, lot west side Spruce street, 130 feet south of Edgewood avenue, 137 feet wide. Also lot north side Oakdale avenue 128 feet east of Spruce street, 40x125 feet.

There were no announcements of important real estate news, although there were unofficial reports of some large transactions, including one of two central blocks.

The score that followed the sinking of the Lusitania has been high, and the feeling is much better, although actual performance, except in the case of smaller transactions, is not so bright.

PROPERTY TRANSFERS. WARRANTY DEEDS. $2,500—F. R. Dodd to E. L. Barwell, 218 Grand street, 12x125 feet. June 7, 1915.

$1,500—Freeman A. Bishop to M. F. Ramsey, lot north side Ward avenue, 135 feet east of Highland avenue, 150x145 feet. June 10, 1915. $1,800—E. G. Black to A. A. Watson, lot west side Church street, 125 feet north of Northern avenue, 40x110 feet. February 15, 1915.

$2,440—Johnson to Lithonia Banking company, lot north side John May street, 158 feet east of Highland street, 62x145 feet. June 5, 1915.

$1,000—Mrs. Sarah E. Matthews to W. T. Crisp, lot north side Church street, 125 feet east of Spruce street, 121x100 feet. June 7, 1915. $4,500—Mrs. Willie T. Bennett to Mrs. Georgia A. Sells, No. 469 Capitol avenue, 50x120 feet. September 25, 1914.

$2,000—W. B. Brock to Mrs. M. L. Wadell, 10x81 feet. October 19, 1912. $10,000—Atlanta Banking and Savings company, lot north side Ponce de Leon avenue, 140 feet east of Courtland street, 26x38 feet. September 26, 1915.

Love and Affection—George P. Howard to Mrs. Laura Howard, 100 feet from Thurman street, 46x125 feet. June 11, 1915. $100—W. H. Frizzell to Ruth Frizzell, 4 block west of Barrett street, 14 Oakland cemetery. June 8, 1915.

$485—John S. Owens and C. D. Hant to A. R. Thompson, lot west side Howell Hill road, 50 feet south of White street, 125 feet wide. June 11, 1915. $40—Hill Crest cemetery association to W. R. Harris, lots 1 and 2, block 5, Hill Crest cemetery. June 1, 1915.

$4,500—Frank Edmondson and George Edmondson to Walter McCreath, lot north side Ponce de Leon avenue, 140 feet north of Barnett street, 52x125 feet. May 9, 1915. $1,000—Mrs. Ella S. APPROPRIATIONS ASKED FOR GEORGIA UNIVERSITY

Report of Board of Visitors Is Submitted to Board of Trustees at Athens

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) ATHENS, Ga., June 12.—Next Tuesday, June 15, one of the biggest farmers' union rallies that has ever been held in south Georgia will be held at Milltown. President J. J. Brown and the board of Georgia Farmers' union, and the board of the national organization, Charles S. Barrett, will attend and make addresses.

In connection with the rally the Milltown people propose to have a Lanier county meeting at which the residents of the territory proposed for the new county will discuss plans for the campaign they will wage before the legislature when the question of new counties is reached.

Although the Lanier county movement has been under way only a few months, the fight up to now has been featured by some of the warmest controversies known in south Georgia. A nearby county is outlined, will take 114 square miles from Clinch, 30 from Berrian and 60 from the county of the new county. There is an area of 204 square miles Milltown has made arrangements to furnish a road on the county line. The county officials until such time as the new county is able to erect a court house without the aid of the state.

It is claimed that 90 per cent of the free white population of the county have signed a petition, which will go to the legislature asking for the county of Lanier.

The school of secondary education is praised, and the school of pharmacy without the aid of the state. It is claimed that 90 per cent of the free white population of the county have signed a petition, which will go to the legislature asking for the county of Lanier.

Following the big meeting next Saturday, Milltown people are going to the state to urge the passage of the bill for the establishment of the new county. Several thousand people are expected to attend. The bill is expected to pass.

WAR INSURANCE RATE NOT HIGH FOR ITALY

LONDON, May 30.—From the early days of May contracts for war damage insurance on property in Italy made up considerable part of the daily business at Lloyd's in London. Rates, however, showed no increase between May and June 7, indicating that the market from the first had regarded war as inevitable.

The premiums asked on this class of insurance varied for different Italian cities. For property at Livorno, an Austrian frontier, 5 per cent was asked. The rate for Venice was 1 per cent. Ancona, 2 per cent; Padua, 3 per cent; and Rome, 4 per cent. The rate for the city of Palermo was 5 per cent. The policies were for a period of six months.

MANY COTTON STEAMERS UNLOADED AT MANCHESTER

MANCHESTER, England, May 28.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Owing to pressure to secure cotton to meet the needs of the military cotton firms have been approached by owners of shipping arriving in Liverpool to unload their cargo at Manchester. A trial was made last week with the steamer "Strathclyde" from New Orleans with 5,365 bales for Liverpool and 4,773 bales for Manchester. The steamer coming into Liverpool at the direct and unloading the whole of the cargo here. Liverpool authorities fear this arrangement will be no advantage to other shippers will follow suit and use Manchester more freely thereby reducing Liverpool's income from dock dues, wharfage and ship stores.

WERE ALL SETTLED

BERLIN, May 28.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—An official report on labor conditions in Germany during the year 1914 has just been issued. It summarizes the total number of strikes which occurred in 1914 after the outbreak of the war was twenty-four, involving only 1,100 work people. They were all settled promptly and not a single strike was under way at the end of the year.

In consequence of the practical cessation of labor after the beginning of the war, the total number of workmen involved in labor disputes during the year was 59,000, as against an average of 226,000 for the five years preceding.

Print on Embroidery

Whether it be a scarf for the sidewalk or a pillow-case for the bedchamber, this design would be very effective as a decoration, for not only is it simple and dainty in effect, but lends itself to varied forms of treatment.

The embroidery stitches consist of the very familiar satin-stitch, French knots, long-and-short stitch and buttonholing. The design is arranged in small end of the motif or adding a touch of novelty, especially if it is a scarf or towel end that is being decorated. It is well to work the center flower in solid satin stitch, and the six dots above it in eye or solid satin stitch.

those which come at the small section cross the cord at all, and if these are drawn tightly and a fine soft thread is used in the center cord, the design will be very effective. The embroidery pattern illustrated described herein, together with 400 others covering the possible uses are included in the "Innovation Embroidery Patterns" now being prepared by the American Embroidery Guild. The design is simple and dainty in effect, but lends itself to varied forms of treatment.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

War Stocks the Center of Attraction—Show Good Increase in Quotation, Though Their New Function Is Hardly Unsatisfactory—Steel Corporation Decision One More Link in Important Chain—Money Markets Redundant, Business Unsteady, Bonds Active

NEW YORK, June 12.—Interest in Wall Street seems to be concentrated upon the so-called war stocks, which now include, in addition to the regular ordnance stocks of our more important industrial corporations which have converted their plants into temporary arsenals and are producing munitions of war for the European belligerents.

Some estimate of the enormous demands upon our industrial plants for war supplies is shown by the following table, showing the total value of orders taken by a few of these "converted" arsenals:

Table with 3 columns: Company Name, Price Div., Price June 10. Includes Bethlehem Steel, Westinghouse Electric, American Can, etc.

While these increases in value are somewhat gratifying, for the present at least, they do not represent the normal industrial development of our instruments of production based upon the needs of a prosperous community.

STEEL CORPORATION DECISION. The decision of the federal judges at Trenton, N. J., last week in the government's suit against the United States Steel corporation, while in itself a favorable feature in its effect upon business, must be considered in its relation to other similar developments which have been so encouraging to our financial and commercial interests.

Perhaps most important is the president's recent declaration that all hostilities between government and "big business" as such, would cease, and that size would not be considered the measure of a corporation's legality or illegality.

MONEY AND BUSINESS. Reports from the important financial centers indicate that there has been no important change in the money market since the previous week.

Investment bankers say that there is a continuing demand for high-grade specialties, a new movement evidently succeeding the sudden falling off in security trading following the sinking of the Lusitania.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

MUCH of the social interest this week will center in the East Lake Country club, where the southern championship tournament will be staged. While no ladies will participate in the tournament there are many enthusiastic golfers among the fair sex who will be in the gallery to watch the play throughout the week and for those who are not willing to give up their daily game the Capital City club has arranged a tournament for the ladies over the Brookhaven links. This is in charge of Mrs. William T. H. Mrs. Edwin Johnson and Mrs. Albert Thornton, Jr. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will be given over to the lady golfers at Brookhaven and the privilege of playing is open to all local and visiting women golfers. A silver cup will be presented to the one making the best three out of five net scores. All the clubs of the city have cooperated to make the championship tournament a great success and the social activities will combine to make a very gay week. The Atlanta Athletic club extends an invitation to the membership of the Piedmont club, the Druid Hills golf club and the Capital City club, to visit the East Lake Country club during the tournament, and the management of the club has arranged to have a dinner and music every evening during tournament week, which will culminate in a beautiful dinner dance Saturday evening.

To Mr. and Mrs. Phelan
Mr. Frederick Waterfield Patterson entertained at dinner Saturday evening at the East Lake Country club in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Phelan. Bullard, of Palmato; Miss Sallie Cobb Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Weykiffe Goldsmith, Jr.

VISITOR OF THE WEEK

Vacations For To Celebrate American Children Flag Day Monday

THE past week has been a very busy one for members of the club. Here set who attended the bright round of entertainments that centered about the commencement of the Georgia Tech. Visiting girls from many different points in the state, alumni and former members lent an added brightness to the festivities. The reception given by President K. G. Matheson and Mrs. Matheson was an event of Tuesday afternoon, while the Junior prom on the Tech campus was the occasion of much merriment and amusement on Tuesday evening. Side shows, open air dances and many different forms of entertainment marked the carnival, of which Miss Anne Patterson was chosen by popular vote the queen. She was attended by Miss May Critchton and Miss Margaret Olsen as maids of honor, and the crowning of her majesty was one of the prettiest spectacles of the season. The sophomore german was held Wednesday morning at Seaside's and the senior ball was an event of Wednesday evening at the Druid Hills. The largest ball of the season was the Pan-Hellenic ball Thursday evening at the golf club when the young people assembled and danced the night through. The commencement was voted one of the most successful from every standpoint in the annals of the Georgia School of Technology.

A SLUGGER OF THE OLD SCHOOL

HE'S THE GREATEST IN THE LEAGUE

—AND DON'T YOU DARE SAY IT'S NOT

B'LINE MEER SAIBER—BUT YOU'RE LOOKING GREAT!

WE ARE WITH YOU TILL THE LAST GOSB

I SENT HIM A WARNING NOT TO HIT IT OVER THE FENCE—BUT IT DOESN'T SEEM TO DO ANY GOOD

WE HAS MADE THE CHI-FANS FORGET FRANK CHANCE

THE FIELDSERS PLAY BACK AGAINST THE FENCE FOR HIM

Before the late Harry Pulliam, former president of the National League, died, they used to tell a story of how he employed a bit of strategy one spring to induce the great Hans Wagner to sign a playing contract after the Flying Dutchman had announced that he would retire from the game. As the story goes, Pulliam approached Wagner, by asking him why he supposed Pittsburgh fans jeered out after Forbes held when the Pirates were playing ball at home.

"Why, to see the team play ball," Wagner replied.

"Not at all," answered Pulliam. "They go out to see Wagner hit the ball!"

"Give me those papers," was Honor's answer.

By enlarging the scope so as to include not only Wagner, but the other star hitters of the game, President Pulliam might have widened the range of his claim by stating that the same reason impels fans the country over to go to ball games—to see their favorite hit the ball. It is hitting that enlivens the sport of baseball for the multitude.

Now all we hear any number of fans claim that they do not care to see a club knock the ball all over the lot. But if you will stop to think, in about nineteen cases out of twenty, such a remark has been dropped after a visiting club has jarred the local hurler clear aloof from his family traditions with its clubbing.

True, some few fans claim to take real enjoyment from watching the skillful manipulation of real inside play on the diamond, and other profess to enjoy a neat battle between star hitters. But they form a small percentage. A large majority of the gang want to see hitting; hitting by the home club if possible, and if not, by the other fellows.

When the game was growing into its present popularity ten or fifteen and even twenty years ago, it was the heavy clubbing of men like Ed Delany, Dan Brothers, Cap Anson and a score of others that made the red line tingle. There old war horses may have been rather slow of foot, and not especially brilliant in their fielding work, but they could lambast that baseball for doubles, triples and homers galore.

There aren't a great many of the present generation who have acquired this habit of tearing the cover off the ball, and the generation of stars just coming into their own includes just one or two here and there. The bunching of fans is too highly esteemed in many quarters to give the bunch as much opportunity as they had of years for mauling the ball.

There are still a few great wall-owers and among the youngsters, too, Chief of these is Vic Sauer, the first baseman for the Vols. He is the successor to Frank Chance on the first base for the Bruins, and if he lacks anything in the finished fielding of Husk, he makes up for it with his mighty mauling.

Sauer is leading the battens of the National League by a city block in extra base hitting. It is a rare thing for the summary of a game played by the Cubs to fail to show where Vic has punched out a double or triple or homer. Others may lead him in either one of the three, but when it comes to an aggregate that would compare favorably with Brothers, Delany, Thompson and others of the old school.

Bernhard Gets Job as Umpire

President R. H. Haugh announced today that Bill Bernhard had been appointed an umpire in the Southern League. Bernhard will fill the vacancy caused by the release of Stadford, who was turned out a few days ago. The new arbiter will begin his duties next week.

Bernhard is a former big league star. He was at one time a member of the Philadelphia Nationals and spent his last years as a big leaguer with the Cleveland Americans. He was the first charge of the Nashville Vols in 1908 after they had finished last the previous season, and landed them on top in a great finish his first year, coming out New Orleans in the final series of the season.

After he severed connections with the Vols he took charge of the Memphis club. However, he did not have the success that attended his efforts at Nashville, and was released at the end of the 1912 season. He spent a part of last season with the Salt Lake City team in the Union association, which did not play out its schedule. This spring he helped Manager Harry McCormick in working out his pitchers. Bernhard was popular as a player and manager, and it is believed he will make a satisfactory umpire.

Crackers End Long Trip With Monday's Game

Team Opens at Ponce de Leon Tuesday for Eight Games Against Gulls and Barons. Changes Are Likely by Time Team Takes Road Again

By Innis Brown

With two more games remaining before the crackers will soon be headed home after a faint of twenty days through hostile territory. Their previous wanderings have carried them to the three Tennessee strongholds, the various capital and the ciudad garbosa by the Pelicans, Chattanooga, Nashville, Little Rock. Memphis have been included in the order named.

While the bravery of the locals in making so much stiff opposition away from home in a row may be lauded, it was no matter of choice with them, the record achieved in the undertaking is not such as to call for any of the half-ship-horay yest. As the same while their showing is not what would be considered humbling, barring what returns of the two approaching weeks may be, the similar has been eleven contests against ten which were won four from the Lookouts and seven from the Barons. The crackers have shown an even break in competing with the Gulls. The seven break with the Travelers still left them with a fifty percent showing through that engagement. However, they were hooked in three of the four trips against the Pelicans, by dropping the first to the local team.

The approaching return of the locals to home soil will not mean a very long stay around their own Breeds. Eight games are carried here, including the game with the Gulls, beginning on Tuesday. The Barons are expected to be on the streets by the road again for a similar stay in the home towns of these teams in the same sequence. Then comes a place here at home that lasts something like three weeks.

At the time this article is made here are the home of the crackers for the 1916 pennant race. The team will well high tide. As yet the outfit has failed to show enough to make them formidable contenders, but rather have they sunk into absolute oblivion. So long as they stick along in the home towns, they are not likely to be better than an even break for some and a corresponding deficit from a fifty-fifty showing for others, the game still carries a chance to edge up into the blue.

Sickness Plays Havoc in Ranks Of Moley's Club

Grimes, McBride and Clark Recently Forced Out of Line Up Through Physical Ailments. Baron Manager Declines, However, to Seek Outside Help

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 12.—The mumps, sprained shoulders and things of similar ilk have rendered the Barons unfit for play during the past week and this partly accounts for the slump that Manager Moleworth's marauders have undergone since bidding good-by to the faithful fans of Birmingham and invading foreign fields.

Another thing that has worked against the Sactavillans' chance of winning is the fact that every other club in the league, with the possible exception of New Orleans has strengthened since the season started. Now with the 1915 struggle well under way, it can be seen that other clubs by ransacking their strong boxes and purchasing new material, have suddenly become pennant factors. No club, unless it be Mobilia, is hopelessly out of the race.

But summing the whole thing up in a nutshell, hard luck has been the trail of the Barons since the start of the season. The trusty warriors of Gloomy Gladys are now suffering from the first howler that Dame Fortune called them. The Barons are now suffering from the first howler that Dame Fortune called them. The Barons are now suffering from the first howler that Dame Fortune called them.

Lord Retains Place in Lead

Memphis Manager Shows Way for Southern League Batters—Billy Lee Best of Crackers

In spite of considerable fluctuation in the standing of batters of the Southern league for the past week, Edmond Lord, manager of the Memphis club, holds over from the preceding week as the premier batter of the league. Lord has played in 14 games, with 34 at bats, and has scored 10 runs, 11 hits and 10 runs in 14 games, but seven of these are in the batting order.

Daubert Lands In Lead Again

Dodger First Sacker Leading National League Hitters. Tommy Long Leads All in Triples

It has taken him almost two months to get back to the lead, but Edmond Daubert, who has led the National league in batting for the past two seasons, has now pulled himself back into the lead for the current season. The Dodger captain and first baseman is driving the ball for a mark of .374. Pete Schneider, the Cincinnati pitcher, has by no means pined for Daubert, but seven of his games have been played by Peter.

Cobb Continues His Great Work

Leads League in Hits, Runs, Total Bases, Stolen Bases and Average—Jackson Second in Hitting

For games played through Wednesday the best hitting .416, having boosted his mark to .416 during the preceding week. Joe Jackson, who holds second rank in the league, with 55, the number of hits made, with 72, and in total bases, with 85, some little distinction than the other players.

DOYLE

By ROBERT L. BILEY. The evil that men do lives after them; The good is oft interred with their bones; So let it be with Doyle.

Doyle ought to have been rounding second and on his way to third if Moran had muffed the ball, but instead he halted half way between first and second and caught Moran's throw to the infield. The score was even at the time at four runs. Tarsau, the first batter, had been retired on a fly to Moran. Burns followed with a line drive to center field, which was caught by Moran. Moran caught while on the run. Burns lifted a long fly to deep right that Moran caught while on the run. Burns lifted a long fly to deep right that Moran caught while on the run.

Harvard to Get Early Grid Work

Candidates for Team Will Report Sept. 13, but Kickers Will Practice All During the Summer

BOSTON, June 12.—Word has been passed around by the Harvard football authorities to the players of last year's varsity and freshman squads who are returning to college. The practice will start next fall September 13, two weeks before the opening of college. This early start will give opportunity to whip a team into shape for the opening of the season.

Leader of Athletics Says Under Circumstances, Team Is Drawing as Well as Could Be Expected

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Connie Mack yesterday discussed the slump in attendance all over the country, and said the premature closing of a number of minor leagues and the loss of money by most big league clubs.

Manager Herzog, of the Reds, last week shut down on golf. There are one or two good players on his club, but they don't get paid for that and the manager decided that they'd better play baseball without the golf.

Manager Rowland is very popular, not only with his own players, but with the public as well. He is given credit for having drilled the White Sox into playing a better article of ball than they have shown in recent years and he has shown himself to be a quiet, yet strict leader ever since he took charge of the team.

Few Collegians Will Get Major Trials in 1915

Varsity Records Show a Large List Who Give Great Promise but Policy of Economy Is Likely to Cause Big League Managers to Pass Them Up as a Rule

College baseball for this spring is near its end—and the scouts that have been watching the college boys play report one of the best crops of promising ball players ever turned out by the schools.

The baseball played both east and west this year has been better than the average, and that in the face of as discouraging weather conditions as are encountered.

There are at least a dozen youths playing for their schools who are major league material, but perhaps not more than two or three will be taken on even if they want to play because of the economy being practiced by all the big leagues and the 21-man limit of the National League.

The two best men in the west are Paul Lee, pitcher of the University of Chicago, and Irel, pitcher for Northwestern. Although George Huff's Illinois team was the western champion, the victory was due more to Huff's team work and excellent coaching than to the individual ability of the men.

Joe Jardis is probably the best college pitcher for major league use in the entire country. He is one of the greatest all-around athletes the midway universe ever developed. He thinks he is a pitcher; and he is a pretty fair one of a college pitcher, but he ought to be taken by some good manager and developed into an outfielder for he can hit as well as throw and has a world of speed and strength. The Cubs will give him a tryout.

Paul who really was the sensation of the middle western schools, is a cracking pitcher. He won the honor of being the only pitcher to defeat the Illinois and he is desirous of going into the big show. He is getting a looking over by the Chicago White Sox.

Several other men who might make good in the majors; Bryant, a spring pitcher, and Mallon, a speedy third baseman, who is a slanting hitter, Bill, of Princeton, seems the class of the Tigers.

The scouts report the much-touted Mayo recently would do pitching in fact in the big show. They think better of War, of Yale, the strapping catcher of Lehigh, is deemed to be the best catcher in the eastern schools. Crowell, pitcher, and Babington, third baseman of Brown, are well liked.

Trinity, Penn state, Holy Cross and Pittsburgh all have been looked over. Two of Holy Cross men have received offers, but who they are the scout would not inform me. Georgetown developed one man this year who is considered speedy, and has another almost ripe, who will not play ball.

The scouts report that it is hard to get the college men to talk this year and it is probable they are influenced by the retraining plans of the signers.

Max has taken on Malone Griffith, using Connolly, and the former is said to be on the track of the Boston Red Sox. Koub, of the Michigan Aggies, is practically sure of a trial by the Tigers of Browns, but this about completes the list.

SUMMER CAMP SEASON ON

COACH JOE MOORE

Several of Atlanta's clearest young athletes will again take their summer outing at Camp Greenbrier in the Allegheny mountains, under the personal care of Coach Jim Moore of Gordon.

For several years past a bunch of Atlanta boys have spent the summer at this camp, swimming, rowing, shooting and leading a general all-around outdoor life. There is nothing that appeals to a young boy more than outdoor life and the summer camps of the country offer unsurpassed facilities for the growing youngsters to get all they need under the care of experts in every line of physical sports.

Tennis courts are kept in excellent condition and tennis is one of the main sports of the summer. At the end of the camp season a tournament is held for both doubles and singles and handsome prizes are given to the winners in each class. The boys are classified according to age and competition accordingly keen, but not unbalanced.

Baseball is another sport that takes up a great part of the time. A league is organized composed of teams from each city represented, and at the end of the season the winner of the league is given an elaborate supper for their victory.

Camp Greenbrier has two dozen rowboats and there are over sixty canoes. Boat trips down the beautiful Greenbrier river are taken several times a season. The boys camp on the banks of the river and cook in true western style.

BIGGER AND TRAP

There are certain little courtesies to be observed in every branch of sport. Trapsnooting is no exception to the rule, and no sportsman should have his attention called to such courtesies.

There are, however, two or three other special items which, if observed, help greatly to make things pleasanter all around.

One of the most important of these is promptness at the score. Don't keep the other members of your squad waiting while you finish a conversation. Nobody who is keen to shoot likes to be kept waiting, and you start your squad off in bad shape if you annoy them by dilatoriness. Find out when you are likely to be called to the score, what squad you are in, and be on hand—the first up to the score, if possible, so as to set the others a good example.

Don't talk with members of your squad or with outside while you are shooting. It may not disconcert you (although it will do so sooner or later), but it will surely take the attention of some member or members of the squad from the work in hand, and sorry squads will appear on the score sheet.

There is another point to which attention must be called, and that is the too frequent habit of shooters, members of the same squad, leaving the traps before the last member of that squad has fired at his last target. Setting aside the discourtesy of showing respect to the man who is to shoot next, nothing can be more disconcerting, especially to a beginner, than to have your companion at a disadvantage just because he happened to be No. 5 in the squad while you occupied an earlier position? This point is now so well recognized that it is the exception and not the rule, at important tournaments.

Every boy is taught to swim under the care and instruction of an expert and every element of danger is eradicated. This is the seventeenth year of the camp and there has never yet been a fatal or serious accident. There are dozens of Atlanta boys who testify both physically and otherwise to the all-around benefit of the camp.

The three sons of Dr. Kenneth Moore were at the camp for a total of some eight years. Among the smaller boys who have attended in the past few years are Harry Stearns, Jack Cohen, Cliff Hatcher, Jack Kozis, Tiger Johnson, John Hopkins, Joe McCord, Allan and Bob Whitaker, John McRae and others. Among the older boys who have been at the camp for the summer and who have made their respective colleges good men in the athletic line are Jim Senter of Tech, Henry Collier of Tech, Lee Tolley of Sewanee, Pat Dinkins of Sewanee, Maiden of the University of Virginia, Danman of Brown and others.

Tommy Leach has an 18-year-old son who plays on a high school team. The boy sits in the stand at the Cubs games and says, "That a boy, Pop," when Leach makes a good play.

Meredith Will Try for Record

NEW YORK, June 12.—Some time this summer, either in the east or at the San Francisco exposition, Ted Meredith is going to try for the world's quarter-mile record. It is a question where he will find the best conditions for such a trial. At San Francisco he will find a quarter-mile straightway, but California weather during July and August is as bad as April weather in the east. It is a common saying to see fire and overcast every day in San Francisco during these months. April and May are the warmest months on the coast, and this explains why most of the California records are made at this time.

There is no quarter-mile straightway in the east except on horse tracks, and it was on one such track that Maxey Long, the old Columbia man, made the present world mark of 47 seconds. Long's record on a cinder path is 47.84 seconds, made on the five-lap track of the New York Athletic club at Travers Island. That track is supposed to be the fastest of any of the club tracks. That Meredith can break Long's record is certain. On last Saturday he would have broken it had he run a half mile and a half faster, which he could certainly have done. But if he wants the record he ought to try for it in the east first, before he risks the California climate in August.

The Car That Met a Nation's Call

THE MOTOR CAR that stands out pre-eminently above all other motor cars this year is the one that has met all the demands of the American automobile public—and that car is the COLE "8." The Cole Motor is this year the most accessible "Eight" made. It is about 100 pounds lighter than a six-cylinder motor of similar bore and stroke, but delivers from 30 to 50 per cent greater actual horsepower.

The COLE "8" weighs only 3,400 pounds, has 126-inch wheel base, Helical bevel gears—direct drive spring suspension—self lubricating springs—Chummy aisleway front seats—deep, genuine upholstery stuffed with real hair—de luxe body lines, roomy comfort for seven people. In short, the COLE "8" completely equipped—and for $1,785, f. o. b. the factory, has seen it work enthusiastically praised because of its great speed range on roads, for its scientific combination of economy and efficiency.

Knight Springs Year's Surprise In Near Future

Inventor of Famous Motor Says Market Will Soon Be Supplied With Quality Car at a Low Price—Believes Sleeve Valve Motor Will Replace Other Types

What undoubtedly will prove to be the most sensational announcement of the year in automobile circles is promised in the near future by Wm. V. Knight, inventor of the famous Knight motor.

One of America's leading automobile manufacturers is about to produce a Knight motor car to be sold at a figure below $1,200, according to Mr. Knight.

"The price of this newest creation in motor cars will be a surprise to those at all familiar with the Knight motor," says Mr. Knight.

"I have been a close student of motor cars for years both in this country and abroad and have watched with interest the various stages of development through which they have passed.

This is the Model 53 Overland of the 1916 line. Seated in the car are W. B. Becker and A. H. Murrell on the front seat, and R. F. Poole, Frank North and H. M. Burns in the rear seat. Local distributors of these cars expect that this model will prove a great favorite.

The new Overland, Model 53, is a new car, selling at a new price for its kind, and it is creating the favorable impression with its admirers that the builders know it would create.

"But while thousands of improvements have been made in the outward appearance of the car, and its mechanism has been perfected in all directions, the motor itself has remained practically unchanged.

Hotel Equipment Co. Adds Additional Sales Space

WHAT BRINGS SUCCESS IN MERCHANTILE FIELD? Lewis Cites Example of Two Merchants Who Won Their Way

Today I want to explain more fully how the firm referred to in last Sunday's article made such rapid progress. Although they were handicapped for funds with which to operate business, they sought competition by being careful of the smaller things, such as giving careful attention to the window displays and using extreme caution and judgment in buying. They never bought an item because it was cheap, unless they really needed it. And in addition to careful buying, these people watched the understock, and rather than carry an item from season to season they would place the article on sale for less than cost. From the beginning their policy has been "Keep behind the business and live within your means." No man or woman was considered a safe person to leave in their charge if he or she spent more than they earned. The most remarkable part of the story is that the members of this firm left good paying positions to establish a business on a capital of $400, but took from the business the first two years a salary of only $20 each per month. This is a true story and shows what can be accomplished by the united efforts of the members of a firm, and the happy realization resulting from self-confidence. Next Sunday is time to make known the name of the firm and when you have learned it you will wonder why you had not already guessed.

SEWELL ATTAINS GREAT SERV-US REPUTATION

H. A. Sewell, of the Sewell Brothers company, has attained wide reputation as an authority on Serv-US goods. Mr. Sewell is very enthusiastic about this line, handled by his company and his sales on Serv-US goods are very large indeed. Mr. Sewell not long ago received an application from a retailer who lives in the district miles from Atlanta, asking for a visit to control of Serv-US goods in that district. Mr. Sewell referred the application to the heads of his firm, declaring that he was not yet the secretary's boss even though he talked and dreamed Serv-US most of the time.

Takes Over Store Adjoining Their Present Location at 82 Marietta Street—Also Announces Big Sale of Ice Cream Utensils

The Hotel Equipment company have recouped another step in their ever advancing progress. This progressive firm announces the taking over of an additional sales room, namely, 80 Marietta street, next to their present location at 82 Marietta. This will give the firm an increase of sales space of 100 feet front by 150 feet deep. In addition to their enlarged quarters, the firm also has two large warehouses and basements. The progress of the Hotel Equipment company since its organization has been rapid and steady. It supplies a wide territory in the south with everything in the hotel equipment line and also handles large contracts with hotels and other public institutions. A. B. Ware is president and treasurer of the firm and Max Wright is general manager. These gentlemen are among the leading business men of Atlanta and know the equipment business from beginning to end. It has been through the high quality and durability of their goods that they have built up a business that is a credit to any city. In connection with the taking over of the additional space by the firm, they are at present announcing a big sale of goods all suitable for the ice cream trade. They have on hand at present a solid carload of ice cream packing tubs and cans of various sizes, for the manufacturers of ice cream, for hotels, colleges, soda fountains, and institutions of like nature. Everything necessary in the making and handling of ice cream can be found at this company's in noteworthy values. The company also announces that they have over three carloads of refrigerators particularly adapted to the hotel trade.

IRBY NOT YET UNDER RAILROAD COMMISSION

Chris Irby, of the A. M. Robinson company, was at the house last Friday after having had a good week's trade. Mr. Irby makes his calls in a Ford automobile. "It should be stated," said J. H. Morrison, of the Robinson company, that although Mr. Irby is still running a busy, the railroad commission have not seen fit to assume control of him and his operations. That is, this can be set aside for the present, but there may be later developments.

"I have sent out letters to all the members of the association in this division and I have already heard from a majority of them accepting the invitation to be on hand at the meeting," said Mr. Little. "We are assured of the presence of R. V. # His Name Is on File--- Read His Letter

The following letter dated "Atlanta, June the fourth 1915," was received by the J. K. Orr Shoe Company and is on their file:

We print it, not to glorify shoes especially, or the crackers, or the overalls mentioned by the writer, but because it is a good sensible letter.

It has the right ring. It is typical of expressions that are becoming more general every day.

It contains a sound economic principle which we commend to the attention of business men in the South.

Read it: "THE J. K. ORR SHOE COMPANY, Atlanta, Ga., Gentlemen—I am quite sure Atlanta people have never meditated seriously the necessity and benefit of patronizing home institutions.

"October, 1913, I was seized with a patriotic motive. Wanted to buy a pair of Atlanta-made shoes; went into the Red Seal Shoe Store, told the clerk I wanted a good pair with thick soles, etc. I was going to Florida, expected to walk in the swamps, etc., and was subject to colds. I failed to find any with soles as thick as I liked.

"The clerk told me, though, that he could have them made in 36 hours. So he took my measure, and for $5 I got the most comfortable and serviceable shoe I ever had. After wearing them two years, I gave them away without a flaw in them.

"We can get some idea how we would appreciate Home Industries if the United States got into a foreign war and was so unfortunate as to let the enemy capture New England. Then what would SHOES be worth with NO FACTORIES IN THE SOUTH?

"IF EVERYBODY IN ATLANTA WOULD DECIDE ON ONE DAY OF EVERY WEEK, AND EVERY WEEK IN THE YEAR, TO GIVE ATLANTA MADE GOODS THE PREFERENCE, AND IF THE FORTUNATE ONES WHO HAVE BETTER INCOMES WILL DRINK THIS TRULY PATRIOTIC SPIRIT, HARMONY INSTEAD OF DISCORD WILL PREVAIL, AND THERE WILL NOT BE SO MANY OUT OF EMPLOYMENT.

"Atlanta certainly makes as good CRACKERS as Chicago.

"I saw a blacksmith on the Florida line wearing a pair of A. M. Robinson & Co.'s Overalls. He said they were the best in the world.

Respectfully, (Letter on file.)—EDITOR FIRING LINE.

Now this man has "the root of the matter in him." We print him just as he writes and we don't do it to make invidious distinction.

He is just putting into plain, understandable words the biggest fact that confronts the South today---that she is losing her best opportunity when she fails to patronize her VERY OWN.

Penniless Negro Was Swapped for Lot on Whitehall

Ran Peacock Was Purchase Price 60 Years Ago for a Part of the Connally Corner, at Whitehall and Alabama Streets

By Angus Perkinson

ONCE, his price was a chunk of Whitehall frontage; now it's victuals and a dollar a day.

He is a gray, slow-moving old negro, with nothing much but a smile and the kindness that somehow seemed a part of his generation.

But sixty years ago things were different. Whitehall street then was a dab of red clay ambling along through a few stacks and petering out into clumps of woods.

Where there wasn't a faro bank there was a place to quench the thirst; and old-timers tell how at night they carried a lantern in one hand and in the other a pistol as long as your leg.

All in all, Atlanta seemed a likely spot. Business began to look up, and, above the other noises, rose the buzz of Jonathan Norcross's saw-mill, telling the world that Atlanta was on the way.

The village began to get the name-changing habit, and ran through a whole series before it reached the present working title that seems good enough for every-day purposes.

It was just concluding with Slabtown, in commemoration of Mr. Norcross's industry, and was settling down to Marthasville, when Ran Peacock broke into the public talk.

Even then Atlanta was setting the real estate fever with close-in property selling for hundreds of dollars an acre, and the farm lands, beginning at Baker and Peachtree, getting to be very much in demand.

Ran started the town by setting the top-notch price for Marthasville dirt. The most un-baked, unhappy-looking part of the place was the frontage known now as the Connally corner, at Whitehall and Alabama streets, and he knew then in particular as anything.

Itan had a sleek heartiness, a twenty-year-old vigor that gave him a high estimate at $1,200, and he had descended, with other "hungry" to Thomas W. Connally, father of Dr. Thomas W. Connally, one of Atlanta's best-loved men.

Ran came as an inheritance, and he occupied that mixed position of southern negroes before the war. As far as values went, he was classed as property; but in the way of kindness and care he was a member of the household.

But business is business. A part of the Whitehall street frontage now included in the Connally corner was put up for sale. Thomas W. Connally thought the land was a likely investment, he saw a future for Atlanta, and there was Ran.

Today are in evidence deeds which show how Ran, twenty years old, valued at $1,800, served as the purchase price for a part of the Whitehall frontage, now valued at $10,000 a front foot and being used as the site for an office building.

Business men of the town wondered. Tom Connally had exchanged a twenty-year-old farm hand for a shack on the side of the road! Poor Tom. For years they joked him.

Then, the property began to grow in value and Ran began to turn gray. The value of land now is part of one of the most valuable holdings in Atlanta, and Itan has become a bent, bobbling old negro, with accumulating patches on the back part of his pants and an increasing suite.

The red clump of clay that once was site for nothing better than a shack at the roadside is being laid with the foundations of what is to be an office building.

And Ran—he is helping in his rather enterprising way with the "crops" on Mr. Suttles' place between College Park and Reno Hill.

The dirt that people have made important by building around it has increased until a foot would sell for more than Ran could conceive. Meantime, the kind, almost old negro, with the twinkling eyes and the chuckling "Yassir, boss," has decreased in valuation to patched clothes and very plain food.

He and the Whitehall street frontage ran a race, but toward different goals. Itan toward money and Ran toward dirt.

Now and then he comes to town, most often to visit Dr. Connally whose kindness is one of Ran's assets; and, as he comes out, smiling that thank-you-bless-you smile, he very often turns to the left and goes up Whitehall street past the fenced-in corner where a hole is being dug down to the inside of the earth for foundations for the new building.

Tapping along with a hickory stick he goes by the spot, just as thousands of others pass every day; and probably there's very little difference in his feelings. But it is strange, isn't it?

At the old, gray, bent negro working by the dollar a day was once swapped for a good part of the property over on the other side of the fence—property worth $10,000 a front foot today. All he has in his pocket is two-bits, likely; and every chunk of dirt heaved up by the steam shovels on the other side is worth more.

But he smiles, taps along, nods to everyone who looks his way, and even busy people turn to smile back, and follow the bent humorist, kindly old fellow.

Even if it wasn't a money value, just that smile of his is worth more than most Whitehall street frontages.

I've Killed 3,000 Germans, Powell Writes Home Folks

Georgia Boy, Serving With Canadian Artillery in France, Says He's Fired 6,000 Shots and He's Sure He Got a Man Every Other Time

"I HAVE fired 6,000 shots, and saying I got one man every other shot, that would give me 3,000 dead Germans."

From Chichester, England, Grady Powell, of Lincoln, Ga., sends home this message. At the outbreak of the European war, he enlisted with the Canadian artillery, and served in France against the Germans until he was wounded recently at Ypres. A shell, falling back of his gun, blew him fifteen feet into the air and a fragment of metal cut its way round his forehead.

From the military hospital at Chichester, England, he sends his uncle, Captain John B. Flanagan, a farmer living four miles from Lincoln, Ga., a description of a man-hunt with five-mile guns.

MILITARY HOSPITAL, Chichester, England, May 18, 1915.—Dear John:—How are things on your side of the world? I often wonder how it would be back there where you never get shot and seldom ever get more than half shot.

"How are the crops? And how is your prize melon patch? It is about time for fishing on Savannah river, too, and I wish I could be back there, somewhere about the mouth of Soap creek to put out some more trout line. I have had lots of shooting, but little fishing lately. You talk about shooting birds with a shotgun, well, you should try my gun on the Germans once.

"She has a pretty fair range, too, say from your house to Lincoln (about four or five miles). Her shells are beautiful. They have an arrangement to set before you fire. This causes them to burst and makes things hot at any distance you want.

"I have just left Ypres. I guess you have heard of it. Well, I was up pretty close to them there (2,500 yards), and could see them quite plainly through my telescopic sights, and let me tell you beats bird hunting all to pieces. If you have to do is just move a little traveling wheel and the next one will make them "bite the dust."

"I have been skirting it up since I have been here in the hospital and trying to decide how many notches to file in my gun. Here's what I do: I have fired about 6,000 shots (I have that pretty accurate), and each shot, when it bursts, splits 365 round lead bullets about the size of a pigeon egg. Then, of course, there are the fragments of the shell, making the very least 200 little missiles of love for the Germans. This makes three millions of shots, any one of which would entitle me to file another notch on my gun. But, let's say I get one every other shot; that would give me 3,000 dead Germans—quite a bunch to be proud of, don't you think?

"Every time I drop one in their trenches and see a bunch of legs and arms fly about twenty feet up in the air, I can't help feeling mighty nice about it. For I know that at least fifteen or twenty of them will knock off killing women and children."

"I have never but once got so low down as to shoot at one man. This guy I just shot at to try out some new ammunition. The ammunition was O. K.

"Write me all the news and I will get your letter when I get back in Belgium again. Respectfully, BOMBARDIER J. G. POWELL, First Battery, First Brigade Divisional Artillery, First Canadian Contingent, British Expeditionary Force, France.

Started For Frisco; Reached Athens

COMMERCE, Ga.—Liaton Cooper, Joe Hardman and Max Pinson, three Commerce youngsters, have decided not to visit Universal City, California. This decision was reached early Wednesday morning when they were taken in tow within three miles of Athens by Colquitt Hardman and C. K. Cooper, after hoofing it down the road early in the night on the first lap of a 3,500-mile journey to the "Gold-En West."

For a month, these adventurous youths had been planning to visit California, having been inspired by motion pictures, to make the trip out where Billie Ritchie, Mary Fuller, King Baggot, Frances Bushman and other film stars pose for the entertainment of millions of people. With a rucksack as their baggage, they left home, friends and the old town Tuesday night, at 8:30. When they failed to turn in at a reasonable hour the parents just concluded that the boys were off on a fishing trip, such an outing having been talked of for several days.

Someone returning from Athens during the night, passed the boys on the road. Early Wednesday morning a report was made of the fact, resulting in a search for the youths. They were found happy on their way, after a comfortable night's sleep in a grass plot on the roadside, and were brought home in an automobile.

It was reported that Max Pinson had slipped the faithful cow out of his mother's lot with the view of selling her in order to get hold of a little change; but an investigation of the premises proved that "Old Bloss" was in her stall.

The boys would not tell how much money they had to finance the expedition, nor would they answer direct questions asked relative to the anticipated trip.

Dead Man's Will Was Used to Convict His Slayer

IN THIS little town of Salem, Oconee county, Georgia, then Clarke county, there lived Peter Perry, a well known planter and merchant, and Thos. Wells, also a well known merchant, who had a very beautiful wife.

It seems that Perry and Mrs. Wells were intentionally together, or accidentally thrown together more than is ordinary for one man's wife to be in company with another man, so Thos came to be a great deal of talk in the community about K. After a time Wells began to notice this and after an exchange or so of correspondence, Wells met Perry on the street and shot him. Of course there was a great deal of commotion in the community but no one ever blamed Wells in the least for every one seemed to understand that he shot Perry for ruining his home. This happened on August 24, 1820.

only answered by saying, "give me a laconic call and I will give a laconic reply."

"We settled the affair and it was reopened by his letter of August 13. After hearing of my getting religion and no doubt would not denounce his abuse, he has since the 14th of August been exceedingly polite to me and expects that I would not fight him anyway; in that he is very correct for I would not, by the help of God, touch one hair of his head and intend to pray for him to be convinced of his error, for I speak it in the face of Heaven that I know no more of his wife (than that I know her to be a lady as far as I ever saw or believed) than I do of the woman I never saw. If this expression is not the truth I hope not to see the face of my Maker in peace.

Humphrey Pittard, John Jackson, John Dean, James W. Harris, Baister I. Freddie, Mattie Hake, William Mitchell, Robert Fambrough, Peter Puryear, John McAlpin, John Bearden, David Holloway. The following verdict was given out: "In the 8th day of October, in the year of our Lord 1820, we the jury do find the prisoner at the bar guilty of willful murder."

"I have never but once got so low down as to shoot at one man. This guy I just shot at to try out some new ammunition. The ammunition was O. K. # HALF THE WORLD IS AFIRE BECAUSE OF GREED

Bloody and Blasting Warfare in Europe Has Sprung From the Worst Passions of the Human Heart

By Bishop

Warren A. Candier.

THE war in Europe is the most terrible mankind has ever seen. It involves half the world, including some of the nations which have been regarded as the most cultured and civilized peoples on the globe.

The amount of property destroyed is beyond all computation, and the destruction of human life is appalling. Not since man began to live on the earth have so many souls been driven in one year into the spiritual world.

We may well ask, why has this desolating conflict come to pass? A fitting answer to this question contains lessons which the human race should never forget.

This bloody and blasting warfare has sprung from the worst passions of the human heart. It is the outcome of covetousness. However obvious it may have been drawn into the conflict, its originating cause is found in national ambition for political aggrandizement and in greed for commercial gains. Ambition and avarice lie at the bottom of it. The brutal contests of savages for pasture lands, flocks and herds, in the early history of the race, were not morally of a different, or worse character than this war of the nations of Europe.

It is clear, therefore, that what men call civilization has nothing in itself to safeguard its existence. The civilized man when he takes leave of conscience and sets aside the moral law, is no better than the savage. His passions are the same, and he is capable of acting with the same unscrupulous disregard of all high principles and noble purposes. A godless civilization, however apparently refined on the surface, is nothing better than veneered barbarism. The red Indians of North America never perpetrated more horrible acts of murder, rapine and lust than have some of the belligerents of these most civilized nations of the world.

and the larger its accumulations, the greater is its contagion when once it takes fire.

It is obvious also that mere intellectual culture alone is not sufficient to assure the peace of the world. This war was not brought on by the possession of Europe, but by the men who have had the best educational advantages and who have reached the highest intellectual attainments. Philosophical writers like Froitschke, Kuno Fischer, Heine and Nietzsche have taught moral doctrines out of which this fearful conflict has come. From their principles men like Bernhardt have not only inferred "The right to make war," but "The duty to make war."

Goethe proclaimed a doctrine of war in these words:

"Dreams of a peaceful day? Let him dream who may! War is our rallying cry, Onward to victory!"

Schiller also sang in the same war-like strain:

"Man is stained by peaceful days, In idle repose his courage decays. Law is the weakling's game, Law makes the world the same. But in war man's strength is seen; War ennobles all that is mean; Even the coward belies his name."

The inevitable fruit of such teaching is just such a war as has been brought to pass. The operation of the law of gravity is no more certain and inexorable than are the consequences of such utterances.

Some have expressed amazement that this war should have occurred in the twentieth century; but of all the centuries, the present is the very era in which such a conflict might have been anticipated. When men who have been raised to the highest power by the processes of education are controlled by selfish motives, we may expect with certainty that conflicts will arise of a most terrific and bloody character. Why not? An evil disposition, supplied with power, is equal to any crime.

A judgment of condemnation upon that intellectual culture which is without moral purity and religious faith, has been written in flaming lines upon the sky, that the dullist man in the remotest and darkest corner of the earth may read and understand. But will men be warned by the awful lesson which is thus written in this conflagration of nations? It is to be feared they will not. The people of our country are adopting the same principles, which have wrought ruin in Europe; and if they continue on the lines upon which they are now proceeding, we must look for the same results in the end. A pronounced tendency prevails in the United States to secularize education. The institutions of secular learning in which rationalism in religion and liberalism in conduct prevail, are the wealthiest institutions of our country. The secularists seem more willing to invest money in secularism than the religious people are ready to establish and endow institutions of learning in which a pure faith and a lofty morality are expounded and enforced. It is time for men professing and calling themselves christians to awaken from their slumber in this matter. They can save our civilization if they will; for God has given them the means with which to do it. But if they will not, then let them understand that they and their posterity and their possessions will sooner or later be overwhelmed in remediless ruin.

The time is at hand when the world must be a religious world or cease to be at all. And the kind of education given in the colleges and universities of the United States will have much to do with determining whether the world shall be Christianized and saved, or secularized and ruined.

War in Europe has sprung from covetousness.

81 Species of Birds Found On An Island Near Savannah

IN A census just finished by F. N. Irving, federal game warden at Savannah Ga., and Gilbert R. Rossignol, a former deputy state warden, 81 species of birds, some of which were thought to have been almost entirely extinct, were found breeding in large numbers on Ossabaw Island, near Savannah.

Mr. Irving and Mr. Rossignol have just returned from a visit to the island during which time they studied the bird life and compiled a report, copies of which will be furnished Wells M. Cooper, assistant biologist, at Washington, and H. B. Weed, one of the owners of Ossabaw.

The census takers found fifteen hundred birds breeding in and around one pond which covers about three or four acres of the island. Seven different varieties of water birds were found nesting in the pond.

The Ossabaw pond, according to Mr. Rossignol and Mr. Irving, is one of the best rookeries in this section of the country and will undoubtedly be the last stand of certain species which are now becoming extinct.

The census showed that there were fifty pairs of American crows and about thirty of the smaller "moo" crows breeding in the pond. This is the only place along the coast where this latter species has been found they said, and it had been feared these beautiful birds were extinct.

Another rare species which the census-takers found in large numbers on the island was the pileated woodpecker. This bird is unlike his cousin, the gray woodpecker, in that its body is almost entirely black. It has white under its wings and a very pretty red crest on its head. This crest is considerably smaller in the females than the males. The pileated woodpecker has been seen in very few sections of the country during the last few years and there is almost no other place where it is to be found now.

Mr. Rossignol and Mr. Irving found numbers of cranes and herons, both the blue and the white varieties, and also saw several pairs of white-eyed Towhees, more commonly known in this section as "Jo-ees." These birds were once very plentiful throughout the south, but in the last few years have almost entirely disappeared.

Hawks and eagles of several varieties were seen as were also numbers of wild turkeys. Hundreds of the smaller song birds, such as the wren, cat bird, thrush, song sparrow and mocking bird were noted.—Savannah (Ga.) News.

Cherry-ple Season—Really, the way to divide the year is according to pie: mince-pie season, apple-pie season, etc. And this is the happy time of red, red cherries.

Winning Farrar For The Movies At $200 A Minute

Morris Gest Tells How He Induced Prima Donna to Sign Contract Which She Announced Here This Spring

Geraldine Farrar. Who'll Pose for the Movies.

GERALDINE FARRAR, the opera star, while in Atlanta this spring, announced that she had signed a contract to appear in moving pictures this summer in California.

She is to be paid $2 a minute for her work as a moving picture actress, a total of $75,000 for the summer's engagement.

Morris Gest, representative of Lasky's, the big producers of moving pictures, tells in the current issue of the "Photoplay Magazine" how he induced Miss Farrar to sign the contract she announced in Atlanta.

Miss Farrar, Mrs. David Belasco and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gest were at dinner last winter in New York. The topic of moving pictures was broached. It was suggested that they see Mr. Belasco's "Girl of the Golden West," being shown then for the first time in pictures.

"Miss Farrar," says Mr. Gest, "confessed she had never seen but one picture show in her life—'Guo Vadis,' a year before at the Cinema theater, in Paris.

"I've been too busy resting or working," she explained. "No prejudice, I assure you, I rather like them."

"But once we had entered the picture theater her amazement knew no bounds. 'Why, it's almost as big as the Metropolitan opera house,' she exclaimed. 'I had no idea so many people would be interested in seeing me in moving pictures,' she objected. 'No, I'm afraid I'd be a failure.'"

"I said nothing more then. The subject was not mentioned again until I met Miss Farrar at her birthday party. We were talking of the San Francisco exposition.

"Let's all go," urged Mrs. Belasco. "Why not make it a business as well as a pleasure trip," suggested. "The greatest auditor in the world are in Los Angeles."

"Miss Farrar drew me to one side. 'I've been thinking seriously over what you said the other night,' she told me. 'I've been looking at other pictures, and I believe a new and a great art has been born. Suppose we make a real business appointment and talk this over.'"

"In all my experience of ten years with Hammerstein's Victoria theater, where I had to handle everything from a Caucasus bear to a Russian giant, I had never been so nervous as when I called on Geraldine Farrar the following night.

"We chatted of various affairs; of my play 'Experience' at the Casino; of everything except the subject in hand.

"At length I endeavored to show her what a wonderful thing it would be if her performance of 'Carmen' could be perfected in motion photography.

"There are nine million records of your voice today, I declared, and everyone who owns Farrar records has a 'Carmen' record. Every one of those people, as well as many others, would be more than glad to see you as an actress even as they now hear you as a singer. Your voice is heard in every American town and city of consequence, and yet you've been in comparatively few of these places. Do you think that your actual moving personality would have less appeal?"

"Do you really think that I would be good in moving pictures?" She asked.

"In music drama," she added, "I always give the best that is in me, but this is a new thing. I might be an absolute failure posing before the camera. How can I possibly get up any thrills or enthusiasm before a lot of blinding lights and a man turning a crank?"

"I began to walk up and down the floor in excited fashion. I told her that she was a national character as well as an international artist, and that it was her duty as an American to preserve her art for future American edification. When she protested—wondering—that she would probably be hailed as a bad actress, I indignantly recalled her tremendous impersonation of Butcher, her incomparable Madame Butterfly, her wonderful Maion.

"I slept little that night. The next morning I called up Jesse Laaky, and made an appointment for luncheon at the Hotel Astor. I told Mr. Laaky that I had a very big proposition of which I wished to talk later—meanwhile, I invited him to the Metropolitan that night, to see Miss Farrar in 'Madam Butterfly.'"

"He attended, and was enthusiastic.

"Later, at supper in the Kulkerebocker, I said suddenly: 'What would you say if I told you that I could get Miss Farrar for your photoplays?'"

"I should say you were a liar," returned Mr. Laaky, promptly and cheerfully.

"Well, what would you do if I did get her?"

"You put the question wrong. What wouldn't we do?" returned Mr. Laaky. "Give me some proposition that I can take to her," I answered.

"You can say to Miss Farrar," continued Mr. Laaky, "that we will sign her not by the month, or by the week, or by the day, but by the minute, and is necessary by the second. You can tell her that for every minute of daylight she is in the southern California, whether she is in the studio or not, I will pay her two dollars—and a royalty, and a share of all profits."

"Unlike a great many opera stars, Miss Farrar is not mercenary. In all our conversations only the artistic side of her pictures had been discussed.

"I'll go—provided you and Mr. Gest go with me on my private car," she said at length. "Agreed," I answered. "If you will please yourself to play me three numbers of Rimsky Korsakoff's 'Sheherazade' ballet on the piano every day."

"And she agreed."

How Andrews' Raiders Were Hanged in Atlanta, Is Told

By Alex B. Sibley

OSULLA GA.—I read in a recent issue of The Atlanta Journal a statement in which it is related that there are five of the celebrated Andrews Raiders yet alive. It may be interesting to know that I was one of the guard that escorted the prisoners to the place of execution, which was in a wood near the road in the outskirts of Atlanta.

The article in question in a recent issue of The Journal gives the number as eight that were executed. It may be true that eight were executed as spies, or otherwise connected with this historic raid, but the number executed at the time and place I witnessed were seven by hanging. They were placed as follows:

Three posts were set up and traps were erected between these posts and our men were placed on the trap between two of the posts and three men were placed on the trap between the second and third posts.

All the men were faced in the same direction, and when everybody was ready, the officer in charge interrogated the first man on the right, asking if he desired to make any statement or send any word to relatives or friends. The reply was, that the condemned man had no statement to make. So answered all until the officer reached Andrews, who stood with his head lowered, seeming to meditate, then raised his head and replied: "I have nothing to say at present."

At a signal black caps were placed over their heads and eyes and the traps, which were a combination, were all sprung at once.

The necks of three, including Andrews, which were on one trap were broken, as also were two of the four men on the other trap, but the ropes of the remaining two broke and the men fell to the ground badly stunned, but they soon revived. While the dead bodies were being removed, these two men were placed with their backs to the scene until they had sufficiently recovered to again take their place on the trap for execution. Before the ropes were again adjusted, the officers in charge once more asked the two men if they desired to send any communication to relatives or friends. One said: "None," the other man who was less hurt by his recent experience, held his head up and said, "I have one request to make from the ropes, and it was: to see, and the next leap was into eternity.

MAKING CITY HOME COMFORTABLE SUMMER.

When I talked last week of plans for going to the country, and I urged the desirability of making such a change whenever possible, I am not going back on those statements this week, and yet I would be unfair to a large proportion of my constituency did I fail to recognize the needs of those who cannot get away from home in the hot weather.

In the families where there are little children, the summer is the purest pleasure almost an essential. As I have said before, it is undoubtedly beneficial to children and adults alike. If a man's business keeps him in the city all during the heated term; if there are no delicate people in the family, no babies or growing children, it is sometimes possible to get away for the rural expedition to be given up and for the housekeeper to abide at her post and look after the members of the household who must stand to their work, no matter what the temperature.

Probably the house is to be kept open during the season and the different persons making up the family may take their vacations in relay, one or two at a time. The house, therefore, is the place where every one goes away at once. Those who stay must be fed and made comfortable and the best plan for the housekeeper to make ready for this by the time the hot weather is fairly upon her.

For the house that is attractive and cozy during the winter may be unspacious and close in summer for the very reasons that render it pleasant when the mercury is low down in the tube. The handsome upholstered chairs, the rich and heavy hangings, the thick rugs and carpets all help to create and preserve an impression of warmth and lack of airiness. To render the house a fair substitute for a vacation outfit certain decisions must be made.

The owner of a long purse and plenty of space has no difficulty in compensating for the ailments of the summer on the floor matting can be laid down over these; when the floors are bare and polished the heavy rugs may be banished and their places taken by others of lighter quality. Light wicker and willow furniture may be substituted for the upholstered articles, and similar cooling changes made throughout the establishment.

Few of us are able to do this, however, and so we must set our brains to work to see what can be done with a small amount of money and labor to produce the same effect of airiness and lightness that may be won by the means just outlined.

The floors first. Most of the rugs can be taken up. The bare floors may show dust, but this is more easily removed with a hair broom than dirt is swept and beaten from the carpet. In the bedrooms, especially, no rug should be left except a strip of carpet or matting by the bed and another before the dresser. Matting rugs at low figures and the rag rugs can be washed with soap suds and excellent for summer use and cooler in appearance than those of wool.

The polished hardwood floor is, of course, the ideal; but even plain board floors, if well laid and rubbed with crude oil and turpentine to a smooth and even surface, are better than those covered with carpets which harbor dust and provide a breeding place for moths and other vermin.

Next as to the hangings. Portieres must come down, not only that they may be put away and kept from dust and moth but also because their absence permits a freer sweep of air through the house. Curtains which will be obscured by the alternate dampness and dryness of the summer must be removed, the dirt washed out of them, and the draperies laid away, dry and without airing, until it is time to do them up or send them to the cleaners in the fall.

In many homes it will be known curtains are never left up during the summer. The ordinary shades take their place and draperies of all kinds are conspicuous by their absence. This plan has its advantages, and yet I confess to a liking for the daintiness of appearance imparted by light curtains at the windows. These may be purchased now at so small a figure that they cannot be called an extravagance unless there are many windows to be draped or the material of which the hangings are made are destructive.

The woman who is ready with her sewing machine can buy sheer fabrics which will not be injured by washing and run them up in a brief space of time. Or she can buy ready-made curtains which require no work except that of running a rod or a tape through the piece prepared for it and cost little or no more than the unmade material. In the bedrooms, now curtains which cost $1.50 a pair that were in use for two or three years and go into the tub whenever they need it, as would a soiled white petticoat or an apron. The ordinary shades take their place and draperies of all kinds are conspicuous by their absence. This plan has its advantages, and yet I confess to a liking for the daintiness of appearance imparted by light curtains at the windows. These may be purchased now at so small a figure that they cannot be called an extravagance unless there are many windows to be draped or the material of which the hangings are made are destructive.

always wears well, and madras possesses the great advantage of demanding no ironing after washing. Use of one looks into the matter one has no idea of how many pretty and inexpensive curtains are on the market, either made in the old way to which we are accustomed or in the more recent Dutch style, which permits the curtains to hang straight, with an open space in the middle, finished off at the top by a ruffle which runs the width of the window.

The furniture is a good deal of a problem in hot weather and those who are not fortunate in attics or extra rooms in which to store large and heavy pieces. Lacking such resources and the ability to put "wider furniture in the place of the stuffed articles, covers of linen or duck or cretonne should be made for the latter. These are more than a aid to producing a cool effect and rendering the chairs and sofas more comfortable. They protect the more expensive furniture material from dust and dirt and keep it from fading. Such covers cannot be called an extravagance; rather they are a genuine economy.

Furniture makers manufacture such slips to order, but the woman who is clever with her needle can make them for herself at a good saving of cost. Materials should be chosen which will wear well and not fade, and a set of the covers is well worth the expense. There is no reason why the slips should be as ugly as they sometimes are, any more than there is an excuse for their always justifying their name by fraying and sliding off the chairs they profess to cover. If they are properly made and fastened on the back, they may be neat as well as economical.

All unnecessary ornaments should be taken down, washed, and put out of the way for the summer. Left out, they not only catch the dirt, but add greatly to the work of the woman who takes care of the house, increasing her dusting and cleaning. Moreover, they make the house look hotter. There is a refreshment to the eye and spirit in the sight of bare and empty spaces instead of cluttered and cluttered shelves, tables, and bookcases.

I confess that the books are more or less of a problem in the summer. Unless one is possessed of closed shelves, the volumes are injured by the constant accumulation of dust upon them. They cannot all be wiped off every day or even every week. Yet the sight of books covered with pepers or cloths is not cheering to those who must share the rooms with them during the hot summer months. Substitutes may be found perhaps in curtains which run on a rod and can be kept closed. Such curtains may be made of attractive material and the books are in a measure protected by them. In rooms which are not in constant use papers or cotton cloth should serve to cover the volumes closely and keep out as much dust as possible.

I have spoken of banishing ornaments, but this does not mean that a few pieces may not be left to impart a lived-in look to the room. Such articles should be of glass or porcelain rather than of metal which will have to be cleaned and kept bright. The daisies used in summer and which are necessarily placed in glass vases permits to enter the house larnishes and clouds of dust and brass. Better not to have them about at all than to have them dirty and soiled. On the same account silver should not be left to stand on the endboard and blacken.

Having sensible housekeepers I know pack off their solid silver to the bank with the beginning of summer and use only plated ware. There is no so great a few days with no fear of damage that will be done by meek thieves and the peace of mind thus gained is worth more than the enjoyment of their costly belongings.

A number of little touches may be given to produce the effect of coolness to which I have referred two or three times. Handsome table covers and scarfs should be banished. Beautiful and attractive covers of their places taken by white linen or grass cloth which can be thrown into the tub when soiled. Lace frills which cannot be easily laundered should be eliminated, along with ribbons, bows, tassels, and the like. All these are well known in their places, but the most of a city house during the dust and heat of the summer. The effort should be made to have, so far as possible, only such articles as can be submitted to soap and water without injury.

Pictures are a little of a puzzle. Town houses are seldom free from the pictures, shrouded in cloth and paper and I think I live even less the sight of mosquito netting with which some careful housekeepers protect them from the flies, but I believe that personally I would rather take the pictures down altogether and have the bare wall.

Yet this is not necessary in many cases. Pictures with gilt frames may be injured by flies and dust, but those in wooden frames are not likely to be so. A covering with a damp or oiled cloth in the fall will restore them with little trouble or expense. Pictures which are left in place and the others removed will be brought forth when the cooler weather comes and give almost the joy of a new having been laid down and the volume of rehanging, like the other efforts I have advised, will pay for themselves in the comfort and attractiveness won by the expenditure of time and labor.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

MORE than two years ago a letter was published in the Corner by the mother of several girls. She wrote of the happiness and contentment which she and her husband and children found in their home.

Needs a Baby Buggy. I am writing to ask a great favor of the Corner. I have a baby who is nearly a year old and I am not able to buy one, and, as I live out of town, I am not able to carry my baby back and forth every Sunday when I have to attend business and church.

Keeps Hair Brush Clean. I see that Mrs. W. S. asks how to keep hair brushes clean. I have solved this problem and would like to pass my method along if it will help anyone else.

To Finish a Quilt. I would like a few light and dark colored pieces to finish a quilt. I am making, if any of the Corner's readers has some stray pieces to spare to me for that purpose.

In Government Bulletin. I hope A. R. will see this and I am sure she will be grateful for the information given. Only those who follow the work done by our government in favor of free bulletins which are of value to the people at large know how great is the scope of the information given and which can be obtained by a simple request.

Working for Her Children. I am writing to ask a great favor of the Corner. I am the mother of three children and have to work to help out so that my children can go to school, as I want them to have a good education.

Want Reading Matter. I would be glad to get some of the magazines offered by a kind woman in a recent number of the Corner. My husband and I both love to read magazines, but as we are poor and my husband is out of work for a whole month and even now barely make enough for our living, and a poor one at that, we cannot afford to buy reading matter.

How to Can Mushrooms. I would be greatly obliged if you or your Corner's readers would tell me in the paper how to can mushrooms.

Polish Formula for Floors. Will you kindly give me a recipe for a polish for a cedar mop to be used on hard wood floors?

Two Sides to Servant Problem. I enjoyed your recent talk on dishwashing so much, because you uphold washing so much, not only on the cusps but on all the things. I employ every method I can to lighten the work, so that it does not become drudgery, but remains a good way to earn one's living and keep well while doing so.

Need Almost Everything. I cannot refrain any longer from writing to you. For I have received so many good words from you that I must say a word of thanks.

Bran Muffins. I give the following recipe for bran muffins, which are good and wholesome: Break together two eggs, one teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of sugar, add two cups of white flour, one large teaspoon of baking powder, half a teaspoon of soda, and mix well.

Green Peppers Stuffed with Lettuce. Heat a large pan of water, add a little salt, and boil for ten minutes. Drain the peppers, and stuff them with lettuce, onion, and cheese.

Hot and Cold. I have had rheumatism for years and at times I am so crippled with it that I am not able to dress myself. I

Does Atlanta Pay a Man to Keep Him From Suicide?

This Queer Story Has Been Printed and Reprinted Throughout the Country. What is the Truth of this Strange Situation?

A N old man works for the city of Atlanta, who, all unknown to himself, has been made the subject of a curious story that seems to have spread everywhere. It is one of those queer items that are caught up and printed by paper after paper.

This old fellow, so it was said, is paid $10 a week by the city to keep him from committing suicide. He is employed in the city's hospital for contagious diseases, at 52 College street, but his name isn't going to be given here, for a reason to be brought out later. The story of this old man starts years ago.

He was hopelessly addicted to drugs, and the city had just passed an ordinance which was being enforced so vigorously that the sale of narcotics was almost stopped. There was a great deal of suffering among a class of unfortunates, and in the number was this old fellow, but not really so old then.

A group were taken to the almshouse to be treated, and he was one of them. The others stayed only a short while and, then, drifted back to town and to their old ways. But he tried harder and seemed almost to have shaken off the habit.

Anything he was given to do he did with his best effort, and he got to be a valuable part of the place. He worked hard and he was apt at a good many things. But, somehow, the old habit began to come back on him.

It was about this time he got out from under the city's care for awhile, and he seemed to run out of money and strength and courage. At any rate when an emergency call was received at Grady hospital it was found that this old man was the badly injured patient who was brought in.

It was said that he had tried to kill himself in a downtown store, and it was certain that he was very low-spirited and miserable even after his recovery was assured.

It was then he got the job at the contagious hospital that he has had ever since. He isn't strong, he is about sixty-five years old, and it's certain that he hasn't much longer to live. But he earns the $10 a week he is paid. He tries very hard, and everyone at the hospital looks on him as one to be helped and protected.

Because of this a special plea was made for him when the finance sheet was being prepared. The result had been offered that the old fellow be cut off from the payroll. One of the city physicians then explained to the finance committee what the old fellow's condition is.

"If we discharge him," said this physician, "he'll either die or kill himself. What else could he do?"

This was what caused the story that Atlanta is paying $10 a week to a man to keep him from committing suicide. It was reprinted first in the New York World and spread from there to paper after paper.

But the old man heard nothing of all this. He went on pottering around at odd jobs, taking longer over them than anyone else would, but doing them a little better. He seems to have grown a good deal feebler in the last year, but if anything, he has grown cheerier, along with his increasing weakness.

He whistles about his work, he nods rather brightly, and he is always ready to help. When any little thing is to be done, they send for him. He is very handy.

But he doesn't read much, for his eyes are not good, and no one spoke to him of the queer comment he has aroused. He won't see this. He didn't see the other news items. And everyone at the hospital seemed to realize instantly that it shouldn't be mentioned to him.

Last week when the request was made to see the old man it was denied. A nurse explained why.

"He's very old," she said. "He hasn't a great deal longer to live, and he's right happy now. What's the good of bothering him? Don't print his name. Don't say anything unkind about him. And wasn't she right?"

Family Parrot is Perry's Companion

WACYROSS, Ga.—Monday evening at the Union station the sight of a man walking from one train to another with a parrot perched on his shoulders attracted considerable attention. The man was O. O. Perry, of Jacksonville, en route home from Fitzgerald.

The parrot, just over two years old, is a great pet, and whenever Mrs. Perry is away from home Mr. Perry takes Pol around with him. He has never found it necessary to have a cage for his pet. At the station Monday evening the parrot got off Mr. Perry's shoulder and strutted around a few minutes, taking in Wacyross as much as possible from the station. Mr. Perry had the train stopped and went back for his pet. Pol was sitting on a crate and Mr. Perry said when he got near it the parrot began to show its delight in every imaginable way. "Come here," called the parrot. And when Mr. Perry obeyed the parrot eyed him approvingly and said "right, let's go." And they went back to the train and came on to Wacyross.

The parrot is considered a very valuable one and has frequently appeared in moving pictures made in Jacksonville.

CAMPAIGN FOR PERFECT CHILDREN

At the top, Frances Braselton, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Braselton, of 340 Ponce de Leon avenue; in the center, showing only the head, Clarence Woodward Blosser, Jr., 2-1/2 years old, son of Dr. and Mrs. Blosser, of 192 Myrtle street; on the left at the bottom, sitting down, Maecelle Thomas Burke, of 4 Howard street.

THERE are among the "perfect" children in Atlanta. They have the health, the strength, the beauty that the Atlanta branch of the Mothers' congress wishes to secure for all Atlanta children.

A campaign of education has been begun by which the congress hopes to prevent sickness among babies, and to make older children more vigorous.

During the summer this splendid effort will be largely confined to securing pure milk for all children. To this end a fund is being raised to establish two milk depots, from which pure milk will be sold at a minimum price and will be given away. Five hundred dollars is needed for the establishment of this depot.

The congress will also co-operate with the children's bureau of the United States department of labor, in educating mothers in the care of babies. Particular attention is called by the Mothers' congress to the following directions issued recently by the bureau:

"A baby must be kept as cool as possible in summer. Even breast-fed babies find it hard to resist the weakening effects of excessive heat. Records show that thousands of babies, most of whom are bottle-fed, die every year in July and August, because of the direct or indirect effects of the heat.

Next in importance to right food in summer are measures for keeping the baby cool and comfortable: frequent baths, light clothing, and the selection of the coolest available place for him to play and sleep.

"A baby should have a full tub bath every morning. If he is restless and the weather is very hot, he may have in addition one or two sponge baths a day. A cool bath at bedtime sometimes makes the baby sleep more comfortably. For a young baby the water should be tepid, that is, it should feel neither hot nor cold to the mother's elbow. For an older baby it may be slightly cooler, but should not be cold enough to chill or frighten him.

"When the bath is finished the baby should be patted dry, and the mother should take great care to see that the folds and creases of the skin are dry. Use a little pure talcum powder or sifted corn starch under the arms and in the groin to prevent chafing. If any redness, chafing, or eruption like prickly heat, develops on the skin, no soap at all should be used in the bath. Sometimes a starch, or bran, or soda bath will relieve such conditions.

"Bran Bath—Make a little bag of cheesecloth and put a cupful of ordinary bran in it and sew or tie the top. Let this bag soak in the bath, successively until the water is milky.

"Starch Bath—Use a cupful of ordinary cooked starch to a gallon of water. (If the laundry starch has had anything added to it, such as salt, lard, oil, bluing, it must not be used for this purpose.)

"Soda Bath—Dissolve a tablespoonful of ordinary baking soda in a little water, and add it to four quarts of water.

"Cotton garments are best for the baby in summer. All-wool bands, shirts and stockings should not be worn at any time of the year, and in hot summer weather only the thinnest and the lightest clothing should touch the baby's skin, unless he is sick, when a very light part-wool band may be needed. In general, neither wool nor starch should be allowed in the baby's clothing in summer. Wool is too hot and irritating, and starched garments scratch the baby's flesh.

"A screened porch on the shady side of the house if a boon to every mother, affording a cool, secure place for the baby to play and also to sleep. Let him have his daytime naps on the porch, and sleep there at night during the heat.

"Do not be afraid of fresh air for the baby. He cannot have too much of it. Night air is sometimes even better than day air, because it has been cooled and cleansed of dust by the dew.

"Lost in Battle" Ends Romance of Georgia Girl

Miss Lucy Hilton, Who Had Gone to London to Be Near Charles Tennant, Her Fiance, Learns of His Death in Battle

CHARLES TENNANT, killed in action.

From "somebody" in France came this message to a Georgia girl, waiting in London, scanning the safety lists, dreading just such news.

From Savannah, Ga., she had traveled the distance to London, by way of the Lusitania on the trip before the German torpedoes; and was in training for a Red Cross nurse to be near the man she was to marry.

Months before, Miss Lucy Hilton, daughter of the wealthy Savannah lumberman, of the Hilton-Bodge, lumber company, met Charles Tennant on shipboard, bound for South America, both members of parties bent on touring the great country to the south of the Panama canal.

Through wonderful days and evenings as soft as the twilight along the Mediterranean this southward-bound steamer took its way, and firmer and firmer came the friendship between the handsome young Englishman and the pretty southern girl.

He told her she spoke her work like the winsome maids in quaint English towns where the old customs of gentleness and of manner remain. And to her he was like a figure in a story book.

No romance could have been sweeter, none could have held greater promise of happiness than this meeting and the love-making of pretty Miss Hilton, of Savannah, and handsome Charles Tennant, of the English army.

But Europe's business of murder and rapine has had no time to smooth a way for romances. How many have been good-byes, the days of waiting, and the news "killed in action!" Weeping with the Savannah girl in London are sisters in sorrow.

Scarcely had she and Charles Tennant become engaged when the war clouds broke. For him there was nothing but good-bye and the next ship back to England. For her there seemed only the bitter torture of waiting with every day bringing the possibility of sad news.

But Miss Hilton chose another course. She determined to enlist as a nurse in the Red Cross that she might be near Charles Tennant.

She had the fanciful notion that if he was wounded she might be allowed to nurse him. The wounded in Europe, of course, are sent to the nearest hospitals, and are handled with the same method that characterizes every other aspect of this savage and businesslike war.

But it was her fond hope that if she were in France she could help him. At least, it would be better than having the sea between them; and, they would meet again before he left for the front.

When she sailed, Tennant, an officer in the Seaforth Highlanders, a Scottish regiment was in training camp in England. When she arrived, he was hurrying to increase the British forces at the front, had sent the Seaforth Highlanders across the channel, and he was not with his men.

Miss Hilton had planned how he would be at the dock in Manchester to greet her, how he would assure her the war would soon be ended, and he would return, how he would coax her out of her fears and dreads that had made the long voyage a nightmare.

Instead, she stepped ashore, on strange soil with none to help her. She went to London to begin at once her study as a Red Cross nurse, that she might lose no time in going to the front.

The English papers were full of the news of bitter fighting, and every day appeared long lists "Dead on the Field of Honor."

The work of the German submarines was talked on all sides, and American friends suggested that her voyage over on the Lusitania had not been without danger. Time passed. Little news came directly from the battlefields, and there a stunning announcement:

The Lusitania on which she had crossed, and which had returned safely to America, lay sunken off the Irish coast, men and women were dead, and one of the striking and heartrending catastrophes of the war had been enacted.

Then, like a trickie of bad news, like a whisper aftermath, came a five-word message:

"Charles Tennant, killed in action."

Late last month Miss Hilton cabled to her relatives in Savannah of Tennant's death. Since then no news has been received from her.

Is War Forecast By Hen at Rome?

ROME, Ga.—A hen's egg, laid Saturday on the Lewis farm, leased by T. B. Peyton, about three miles from Rome, on the River road, was brought to the Tribune-Herald office last night by H. L. Barnes. The egg is colored yellow and white, and the coloring is the distinct outline of a war ship. The letter K is also outlined on the egg. Just what the significance of the incident may be is not known, but it is hardly probable that the hen which laid the egg intended to warn of the striking and heartrending catastrophes of the war had been enacted.

Hosbach's Bird Dog Scents Three Thieves

HENDERSON, Ky.—Fred Ellis, former councilman, Alfred Nelson and Bernie Dodson, were held under a $200 bond to await the action of the September grand jury on the charge of breaking into Oliver Hosbach's saloon last Friday night and stealing a case of whiskey. Hosbach's bird dog furnished the officers a clue, as the animal followed the men and lay in wait on the outside of an old stable.
