

CANDLER TO BE CHIEF HARRIS' STAFF, BELIEF

Also Believed Nash Will Be Retained as Adjutant General

It was generally understood in state house circles Thursday that Governor Harris would make formal announcement Friday of at least a part of his staff and that he will also send to the senate for confirmation, his appointee as adjutant general of the Georgia national guard. It is understood that A. G. Candler, of Atlanta, will be chief of staff.

While no official indication has come from the executive office as to who will be named adjutant general it is generally believed that the incumbent, General J. Van Holt Nash, will be re-appointed to serve in that capacity during the administration of Governor Harris.

The governor now has before the general assembly a bill designed to give the chief executive of the state full power in the appointment of his staff, thus enabling him, where he sees fit, to name his friends and supporters irrespective of former military service in the national guard. Under the present law, the governor cannot appoint to his staff any man who has not seen five years military duty in the state.

It is because of this exigency that Governor Harris will give out only a part of his staff at this time, reserving places for civilians who will be appointed only after the present militia bill is amended in accordance with his request to the legislature.

SOLDIERS' HOME PROBE POSTPONED ONE WEEK

Committee Meets to Find It Has No Copy of Charges Made

Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Georgia house of representatives Wednesday morning, a committee of twelve members of the house, one from each congressional district, met at the Confederate Soldiers' home Wednesday afternoon to investigate charges made against the management of the home by Veteran H. H. Colquitt and others.

Because Veteran H. H. Colquitt, leader of 30 protesting veterans was absent, said by Judge Fred G. Foster, to be intoxicated, who said he spoke on the authority of twelve veterans who saw Colquitt leave the home in that condition, and because of the fact that not one of the committee had a copy of the charges with him, the meeting adjourned over until 3 o'clock in the afternoon of Wednesday, July 23. At this time the investigating committee expects to bring with it the charges which it will investigate.

Mr. Drakeford came here about two months ago from Omaha. Mr. Gantt is a native of Alabama.

CHIEF COOY WANTS FIRE CISTERNS PUT IN SHAPE

Supply of Emergency Should Be Kept Up, Says New Head of Department

An investigation into the condition of the cisterns used in emergencies by the fire department has been inaugurated by Chief William B. Cooy, new head of the department.

Out of thirty cisterns, which the city formerly had, nine have been filled up with dirt, seven will be useless until they are repaired and some of the remaining thirteen are not filled with water.

While in the last administration, the cisterns were considered antiquated and not of much importance, Chief Cooy does not share this view and is much interested in getting the old system back into use.

Thursday Chief Cooy will visit the various cisterns with the chief of construction to secure an estimate of the cost of repair, which he will report to the next meeting of the board of firemasters.

CHIEF BEAVERS PULLS OFF PERSONAL POLICE WORK

Arrests Man for Drunkenness and Makes Case Against Greek Club

Chief of Police Beavers met in some personal police work Wednesday.

In the morning he arrested R. L. Cunningham, 292 Lawton street, not far from the chief's house, on a charge of "drunk and disorderly." The chief led Cunningham to a cell box to call the patrol. Cunningham broke loose, but after six blocks of sprinting, he was caught again by the fleet-footed chief, and this time he reached the station safely in the patrol.

Wednesday afternoon the chief visited several locker clubs, and made cases against the Greek club, on Alabama street, charging the unlawful sale of beer.

No--"Tipping" Is Not an Evil

No harm is really done when Mrs. Jones "tips" Mrs. Smith over the back yard fence. Her "tip" has to do with a real red-hot bargain in the store news of The Journal, an article that both of them want.

Thousands of these "tips" are freely given every day concerning the store news of The Journal.

These little situations are a barometer of the intense interest the store news of The Journal holds for the modern housewife.

Such interest as this could be developed and maintained only on the foundation of valuable service rendered.

Journal store news DOES render a valuable service to the housewife.

Empire Tires RED WEAR LONGEST

Mileage Costs Less to Men Who Ride on Empire REDS

If somebody could pass a wand over your tires and make them proof against blow-outs, friction and cuts, you'd want to buy the wand. Buy Empire RED Tires and you'll get practically the same result.

The RED Rubber in Empire REDS stays fresh. Time and travel can't sap its bounce or strength like gray rubber, because it is free of chemicals that disintegrate. Empire REDS don't blow out or give out—only long hard wear can get them.

Empire RED Tires are not sensitive to heat—they stay cool under terrific speed. That keeps friction off the job, and spares your wallet.

Empire RED Rubber, having greater resiliency, contracts on cuts and keeps them from spreading. It doesn't rot or get brittle—it always gives maximum wear.

The Empire Non-skid Tread is extra thick and as safe as it is thick.

Empire REDS are not sold on a mileage basis, but on the basis of your satisfaction. If you don't get your money's worth, we will make good. That's the safe and sure way for you.

Your druggist or dealer sells you a 60-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.
Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular. You will feel like working; you'll be cheerful, full of vigor and ambition.
Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and can not salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of calomel is almost stopped entirely here.—(Adv.)

When Sir Gilbert Parker wrote "The Right of Way," he little thought that some day it would be the subject for an excellent photodrama. With the distinguished American star, William Faversham, in the part of Charlie Steele, the heroic, this celebrated novel, picturized form, was presented at the Strand theater yesterday afternoon and evening to crowded houses and followed by every scene with interest and enjoyment.

Following closely the lines of the novel, the situation develops throughout the play which are exceedingly well handled by director cameraman and players. Particularly impressive are the scenes in the court room, the fight in the barroom and the outdoor fire. From every viewpoint the picture is sure to please. It will be presented again today, and in addition to the regular program the Strand orchestra will play at each performance "Sounds From the Sunny South."

ROOSEVELT WARNS UNITED STATES TO GET READY FOR WAR

Former President, in Speech at Frisco Fair, Advocates Larger Army and Navy and Less Eloquence

(By Associated Press.)
SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—Theodore Roosevelt spoke twice late yesterday at the Panama-Pacific exposition. One address was vigorous in tone on military preparation, and the other was a brief, candid talk to "the men on the line."
The colonel held both willingness and ability to be soldiers as desirable attributes of good citizens. He told the enlisted men, "a man afraid to fight is not fit to vote," and "a mother who is not willing to raise her boy to be a soldier is not fit for citizenship." Before the address at the clubhouse he planted a tree.

"War and Peace" was the topic of Colonel Roosevelt's address to an immense audience gathered in the Court of the Universe.
The address might just as well be called, he said, "Damn the Molluscoides."
Colonel Roosevelt was given a presidential salute of twenty-one guns by warships in the harbor.

For more than an hour and a half, amid constant applause, Colonel Roosevelt declared that at any price and urged an army and navy adequate for the proper defense of the nation. Declaring his own stand on war Roosevelt said:
"I'm not for war; I want peace. But if there is to be peace in Europe, because outsiders don't think him worth kicking."

SWISS MODEL
"I firmly believe that there should be universal military service for our young men on the Swiss model," said the former president, at one point in his speech.

Another, referring to the price which Belgium had paid because of her refusal to give up her neutrality, he said:
"Some day or other it may well be that we shall have to pay on a tenfold greater scale the same price for exactly the same reasons; and, if such should be the case, remember, my fellow countrymen, that whereas the soldiers of the Belgians excited warm sympathy, the soldiers of the United States are despised and scorned; for a rich, powerful, boastful people invites the ridicule of all mankind if, apart from sheer ill-will and short-sightedness, or from soft timidity, or from gross and greedy devotion to the material benefits of the moment, it fails to prepare itself to defend its own rights with its own strength."

Colonel Roosevelt spoke derisively of "democracy as a substitute for the nation," and in his arraignment of those who stood in the way of preparedness for war, he said the "pretentious pacifists, the peace-at-any-price, non-resistance universal arbitration people are seeking to chain this country by refusing to go to the level of impotence to which old China has sunk. The same old China, which had taken the view that China was 'too proud to fight,' and 'in practice made evident its refusal to give up its subject pacifist song, 'I Didn't Raise My Boy To Be a Soldier.'"

DENONCING PEYAN TREATIES
With all of his old-time vigor, Colonel Roosevelt denounced the all-inclusive arbitration treaties which the United States had entered into and said that in declining to apply their provisions in the case of the Lusitania there had been evidence of national hypocrisy or else an utter recklessness of four times the promises. It was necessary to repudiate the principle in the Lusitania case, the colonel agreed, but "a shameful thing to have put ourselves in such a position that it had to be repudiated."
The United States had treated the Hague conventions as mere "scraps of paper," he said, "when the demand was made to show that our signatures meant something."

"We have been culpably, well-nigh criminally, remiss as a nation in not preparing ourselves and if, with the lessons taught by the world by the dreadful tragedies of the last twelve months, we continue with soft complacency, to stand helpless and naked before the world, we shall excite only contempt and derision if and when disaster ultimately overwhelms us."

"Preparedness against war does not invariably avert war, any more than a fire department in a city will invariably avert a fire, and there are well-meaning foolish people who point out this fact as offering an excuse for unpreparedness. It would be just as sensible if after the Chicago fire Chicago had announced that it would abolish its fire department as for our people to take the same view as regards military preparedness. Some years ago I was looking over some very old newspapers contemporaneous with the early establishment of paid fire departments in this country, and to my amusement I came across a letter which argued against a fire department upon the ground that the knowledge of its existence would tend to make householders careless and therefore would encourage fires."

Synopsis of Chapter 12—"To the Highest Bidder" Arthur, known as "John Powell," in the west, has struck it rich in the oil fields. He wires money east, secretly, to pay expense of an operation for Hagar. Esther, in the east, is surrounded by schemers, who prevent her from going west to join Arthur. Hagar begins to mend. Stanley Hall is auctioned off. Detective Blake, acting for an unknown man, buys it, foiling Blair and his deceitful mother. Luke Lovell finds the diamond on the neck of a pappoose. He buys it for "firewater." Arthur's oil well proves to be a gusher. He becomes immensely rich. Meanwhile Luke Lovell and his companion fight in a rowboat. As they grapple the frail craft overturns, and the struggling men are thrown into the water. But what of the jewel, "the diamond from the sky"? It falls from Luke's hand and is lost—lost in the deep cold waters of Santa Barbara Bay.

$10,000 is offered for the most suitable suggestion for a sequel to this marvelous photoplay. Note full particulars in the story, Sunday.

DOCTORS SAY GRADY SHOULD BE ALL FREE

Resolutions indorsing bonds for Grady hospital as a strictly charitable institution were adopted Wednesday night by the Atlanta Physicians club in session at the Kimball house.

The physicians were agreed that Grady conditions are at present deplorable and facilities for the treatment of the patients are inadequate. The only discussion being whether or not the institution should maintain any wards.

The action of the Atlanta Physicians club follows the enthusiastic indorsement of Grady bonds by the Fulton County Medical society and the Atlanta Rotary club.

MR. G. M. GAISSETT DIES AT HIS HOME IN BUCKHEAD

(Special Dispatch to The Journal) BUCKHEAD, Ga., July 22.—For some ten years a resident of Buckhead, Mr. George M. Gaissett, age 49, died at his home at 6 o'clock Sunday morning, after a severe illness of more than a year.

I. J. CASSETT, for three years advertising manager for M. Rich Brothers and company, who leaves Sunday for Boston, where he will take charge of the advertising of the Shepard-Norwell store, one of the largest stores in the north.

I. J. CASSETT ACCEPTS NEW POSITION IN BOSTON

Rich's Advertising Manager Takes Similar Place With Shepard-Norwell Store

I. J. Cassett, who has directed the advertising of M. Rich & Bros. company for the past three years, leaves Atlanta Sunday night to take charge of the advertising of the Shepard-Norwell department store in Boston, one of the largest stores in that city and one of the notable stores of the country.

Because of the size and reputation of this Boston store, it is looked upon as a compliment both to the high class advertising methods of M. Rich & Bros. company and to Mr. Cassett that he should be selected by this store to be its advertising manager. Mr. Cassett's selection was due to the fact that the big Boston store and M. Rich & Bros. company have the same ideas in advertising, ideas that Mr. Cassett has worked out in Atlanta for the past three years.

"The better class stores throughout the country are working along identical lines today," said Mr. Cassett. "Every successful store must always have a kind ample stocks of clean, fresh merchandise; each store must observe the return privilege of 'money-back' policy on purchases not satisfactory; each store must give a full measure of service and satisfaction for the old idea of taking from the customer—the old idea of taking without adequate giving in piracy."

"Instead of following the haphazard methods of the early store keeper, the modern department store follows exact merchandising laws. Successful stores the country over have ceased playing tag against law; they know that, in order to succeed, they must always have the right merchandise at the right time at the right price. They must also have courteous and trained sales people to present this merchandise and a policy that insures the satisfaction of each customer."

"After a store has formulated its policies, trained its sales people and assembled its merchandise, it is the business of the advertising manager to interpret this policy and to present this merchandise to the store's customers."

It was doing this work so ably for the past three years in Atlanta that brought Mr. Cassett his reward in the broader field of Boston.

Mr. Cassett's associates at Rich's see him with regret, and his many friends in Atlanta will greatly miss him.

RECEIVERSHIP OF ATLANTA CLUB CAUSE OF DISPUTE

Appointees of State and Federal Courts Seek to Oust Each Other

Litigation over the receivership of the Atlanta club in both the state and federal courts has reached the point where two parties are each seeking to have the proceedings of the other stopped.

Monday certain creditors of the club filed a petition in the superior court and Judge Bell appointed Dr. George Brown, president of the club Tuesday members of the club's board of directors filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court and Referee Percy H. Adams named Harry Dodd receiver.

Wednesday Mr. Dodd sought an intervention in the superior court to the creditors' petition, asking that the receiver appointed by Judge Bell turn the club's assets over to him. Judge Bell set a hearing for Thursday morning, but postponed it until next Monday when Thomas B. Felder, Dr. Brown's attorney, stated he was preparing to go before the referee and ask that the voluntary petition in bankruptcy be thrown out as irregular.

Attorney Felder told Judge Bell that the meeting of the board of directors which resulted in the filing of the bankruptcy petition was not fully attended, some of the directors not having been notified. He said the very men who filed the petition are indebted to the club to the sum of $1500 and neither the president nor vice president of the club signed the petition.

What Lady Lost This Purse?

One of our salesmen picked up a purse left on a chair in our store yesterday. It contains over sixty dollars in money and other small articles. We believe it belongs to the lady who bought the five pairs of shoes after she was nearly overcome by the rush and crush of other eager and liberal shoppers at

Our Post-Season Shoe Sale which is attracting so much interest among the ladies of Atlanta. We will gladly turn this purse and contents over to its owner, upon proper identification of same. On account of the record crowds now attending this complete clearance season-end shoe sale, and knowing how busy we will be on Friday and Saturday, because of this sale event, we suggest that all inquiries concerning this purse be made between the hours of 6 and 7 P. M., either by telephoning 78721-L, or calling in person at 52 Peachtree St. (Corner Walton)

Colonel Roosevelt proceeds on the idea that reputation is the secret of successful sermizing. The Turks apparently consider that the guns of the allied fleet may at any time become effective.

Kill This Unjust Measure.

There are hopeful evidences that the pending bill to prohibit white teachers from instructing negro pupils will be crushed by an enlightened public protest, if not by the weight of its own folly and injustice.

Atlanta's Playgrounds.

The fact that fourteen thousand children attended the city playgrounds last week, an increase of six thousand over the week before, attests the growing popularity and service of these recreation centers.

Safeguard Water Supply, Judge Hillier Urges.

The truth is we can hardly realize what a tremendous danger would menace our city in time of an important fire, in case anything had happened or should happen to our waterworks at the same time that the city is beginning to get into the water.

A State Auditor Needed.

The bill to establish a responsible audit system for State departments and institutions which handle public funds is so manifestly proper and needful that it should pass the Legislature without a dissenting vote.

Germany's Problem in Rumania.

The sort of neutrality which Germany has urged upon the United States has arisen to plague her in the case of Rumania. Through Rumanian territory lies the only available route for the shipment of war munitions from the Teutons to the Turks.

Facts About Hypnotism.

An interesting letter of inquiry a correspondent says: "I wish you would tell us just what is known today about hypnotism. I am aware that it is widely used by nerve specialists, but I must confess to a strong prejudice against it."

The prejudice here mentioned is widespread, and is natural enough in view of the ignorance which still prevails even among scientific men with respect to the hypnotic state.

Moreover, it is a wholesome prejudice, since there are certain dangers in hypnotism which ought to be its practice by charlatans and platform exhibitors, or penal officers everywhere.

Atlanta's Playgrounds.

There is a lowering of the pulse-rate when passing into the hypnotic state, and during it there is a general slowing up of the bodily functions. For this reason experts do not attempt to hypnotize persons suffering from heart trouble or certain other organic ailments.

Safeguard Water Supply, Judge Hillier Urges.

As to the supposed mental and moral dangers of hypnotism, repeated experiment has indicated that they are non-existent. The hypnotic state, to be sure, still clings to the idea that it is possible to induce a hypnotized person to commit a crime against his will.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF CRANKS

The well-organized body guard, such as is maintained around John Rockefeller in his country home, sometimes fails to detect the menace of a visitor who at first appearance seems harmless enough.

The attempt upon the life of Russell Sage in the office three Wall Street into a panic of terror. The great financier has been closed to by many persons who would have been admitted but for the presence of an unknown visitor may turn out to be a "crank" of murderous intent.

The Russian government has already acted upon a suggestion of Dr. MacDonald's, and has expended nearly a million rubles on a bureau of collecting medical, psychological and anthropological training.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF CRANKS

The shape of the head, which does not change much after the age of eight, will, in Dr. MacDonald's opinion, give a scientist a basis for discovering the trend toward mattoidism. He regards the identity of Holt with the missing Mueser as impossible, because the photographs of the two cranks, taken side by side, show a distinct difference in facial formation.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF CRANKS

It is hard to distinguish between the mattoid and the genius because every genius has been pronounced a mattoid until the value of his theory or production has been proved. Robert Fulton was regarded as a crank when he launched his steamboat, Cyrus Field was regarded as a madman when he undertook to lay a cable across the Atlantic.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF CRANKS

The passion for the marvellous belongs to one type of mattoid. He feels that he has discovered the world of reality, and hence plunges into religious mysticism, spiritualism, magnetism, the occult sciences and other new cults. Such persons have frequently attracted followers, playing a part in history, saving, saving or destroying nations, and creating new religious sects.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF CRANKS

The mattoid, under proper control, may be of real value to the world. The well-balanced paranoid, even in mind, going through life with dignity and decorum, never becoming unduly excited, is the one upon whose judgment we can safely rely. He is the backbone of society. But he is not likely to make any great progress. The well-balanced faculties alone produce nothing higher than happy mediocrity.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF CRANKS

His plan of government leads directly to such a state of affairs as we see in the case of the European nations. The people of the European nations have had little to say about national business. Affairs have been managed for them by able and servile statesmen, many big game hands have held the helm of state.

THE PSYCHOLOGY OF CRANKS

It is always the way. In America we have already had Napoleon as the reaction from the French Revolution. The latter was full of saving ideas, the former was an unintelligent man of "whiff of grasshopper."

WOMAN IS ELECTROCUTED. ANOTHER BADLY BURNED

Crossed Wires Caused Death of Resident of Decatur Wednesday Afternoon

Mrs. Jennie A. Brown, 27 South Church street, Decatur, was electrocuted at her home when wires got crossed Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Brown, whose husband is a resident manager of the Georgia Power company, was peculiarly particular. She was soon to have become a grandmother when she was taken to the bath room, where she was engaged in her usual evening toilet.

Neighbors, attracted by the maid's screams, rushed into the Brown house, and found the maid in the injured condition on the bed. Physicians were called, and every effort was made to save Mrs. Brown, but she died before the vital spark for recovery could be restored.

Mrs. Brown was a native of Minnesota, where her body will be taken for internment leaving Atlanta Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock via the Western and Atlantic railroad.

WHAT A CUBAN VISITOR FINDS ODD IN ATLANTA

Rev. Mr. Paez Finds Women Beautiful and Porch Chairs Perfectly Safe

The things in Atlanta that impress a Cuban most are the fact that nobody steals porch chairs and automobiles at night; that Peacocks have an architecture all their own; the great respect for law, order and women; and the beauty of Atlanta's skyscrapers and signboards.

This is stated on the word of Rev. F. J. Paez, of Colon, Cuba, a native of the island who was in the city Wednesday with Dr. M. N. McCall, superintendent of the Baptist Home Mission board in Cuba, for a conference with Dr. R. D. Gray, secretary of the board.

Dr. McCall has spent the last ten years on the island, and brought Mr. Paez with him on a visit to Louisville, S. C., where they returned Thursday afternoon. During his stay in the city, Mr. Paez has written several articles to El Derecho, the Havana paper, for which he is correspondent. He wrote what seemed to him peculiar in Atlanta, and he told it again to the reporter, while Dr. McCall interpreted.

He thinks Atlanta is a wonderful city, and is especially impressed with the deference paid women and the respect for law and order, as illustrated by the aforementioned failure to run off with porch chairs and automobiles left standing overnight.

Of our signboards and neon signs, he said: "I should declare they are beautiful!" Both Mr. Paez and Dr. McCall talked interestingly of Cuba; the new $100,000 drainage system installed in Havana, the fine streets, hotels and buildings that have sprung up in the last fifteen years.

On a trip out to Peachtree Wednesday afternoon Mr. Paez was struck by the fact that the architecture of Atlanta's homes is neither Grecian nor Doric, but has a distinctive American style all its own.

MILNER DOESN'T WANT HER NAME TO BE CHANGED

Doesn't Matter if People Do Get Millen and Milner Mixed Say Residents

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) MILNER, G., July 22.—Milner has a proposal, but does not care to change her name. There is an effort being made on the part of the officials of the Central of Georgia railroad to change the name of Milner. It is claimed by the railroad that owing to the similarity of the name with that of the famous general, it is a source of inconvenience to the railroad, a great deal of inconvenience arises both with regard to passengers and mail bound for this place. The officials state that in view of the fact that Millen is the older of the two names it is up to Milner to make the change.

Aside from the sentimental attachment of the present name on the part of some of the older residents there are others who say they would not object, but for the fact they would not know where to come back to if they ever went away. It is thought, however, that a change cannot be effected without the action of the legislature as the charter name would also have to be changed.

CHOOSES MONEY RATHER THAN HUSBAND'S RELEASE

Too Nervous To Drive a Car? That's too bad, old man, but you know nervousness is largely due to wrong habits of eating and drinking. If you would quit coffee and use Postum your nerves would steady up. Postum tastes much like fine, mild Java, but there's no drug in it—that's where it's got coffee beat a mile. Sound advice. More and more, people are waking up to the harmful effects of caffeine—the drug in coffee—a frequent cause of nervousness, heart flutter, dizziness, headache, and other ailments.

Instant Postum is the soluble form of the original Postum Cereal. A level teaspoonful of the crystalline powder in a cup of hot water makes a delicious food-drink instantly. 30c and 50c tins. The convenience of Instant Postum is seen at a glance, but some prefer the original Postum Cereal which must be thoroughly boiled—15c and 25c packages. Grocers sell both kinds and the cost per cup is about the same. A change from coffee to Postum has been a good thing for thousands. "There's a Reason"

TODAY'S EVENING STORY
WHITE NANCY

JENNY LEE came slowly down the street from the Herrick house on the hill, where she had been sitting all day. The evening was so warm that the coat she had needed in the morning felt uncomfortable now, and she had thrown it back on her shoulders. She was late in getting home because she had stayed to tea. In Westmore a seamstress is entitled to two meals as well as a dollar, which in Jenny's case was a real godsend.

As she walked Jenny thought dreamily of the pretty things she had worked upon all day—the sheer, lace-trimmed blouse which Miss Herrick was to wear under her wedding gown. Jenny had always made Miss Herrick's clothing, and, although the beautiful satin wedding gown was beyond her skill, she was fashioning the things that went with it. She had even seen the gown itself, which had arrived that day from the city—a pretty robe with a veil like morning mist. But it was less the dress she remembered than the lifted radiance of Miss Herrick's young face as she cried: "Oh, Jenny, don't you just wish you were me!"

Jenny Lee was tired tonight—tired in body and spirit. She dragged along like a bird with broken wings, broken. The street streamed with lighted cars, whose occupants were coming after the heat and stress of the day. Jenny had to wait a long time at a crossing before she could get sufficient courage to pass over. Then she moved down a shabby, old, quiet street which grew darker and quieter and shabbier the farther she went. At the very end was her house. Two generations of Lees had occupied the house before it came to Jenny. It was a little gray house like a hornet's nest. On either side of the yard were paths, but the front was open to the street. Here crowded Jenny's flowers, some of which were descendants of her grandmothers' posies. Soft waves of perfume rose into the night air. They came forward to greet Jenny. She could distinguish the odor of 'glorio pink, bush roses, and white nancies for an old, sweet, simple reason of her own. As she went up the narrow path she reached out to feel the petals of the nearest white flower cluster and pressed it to her face. Its sweetness and the memory of Miss Herrick's wedding dress set her heart thumping.

Jenny opened the door. The close, cozy breath of her home breathed upon her. The room was not more than any dark, for the moon was floating up like a white globe Jenny took off her hat. She started to take off her gray coat, and then she changed her mind. She also removed the chimney from the lamp and started to strike a match, but changed her mind about that also. "I'm always changing my mind," she thought. "It has been my curse."

"She dropped down into the nearest chair and submitted herself to reflection. "I wish I hadn't seen that dress," she thought. "I wish they hadn't asked me to make those kind things. It brings it all back. It has seemed all day as if—A sob came into her throat. She tried to swallow it. "Why, if he was right here in the room with me he couldn't be any nearer than he has been all day!"

The small, warm room choked her. A rift of air came in at the window, freshly scented with the night's distillations. The dark became very dark in the corners, but across the floor under the window the moon's white glance knew Jenny sat staring at it. "It's a pretty night," she thought. "I guess I won't light up at all. I guess I'll just go to bed by the moonlight." She rose to close the door, but paused to look out. The flowers seemed to sigh, the moonlight to sigh, the night air to sigh. "I'm not very sleepy," she thought. "I'm not very sleepy."

to behold a face which long years before had passed out of her life. The moon was right over the house, and its light came down in a broad white flood. Under it the flowers stood still as if waiting for something to happen. Something had happened. A man stood half way down the coal ash path bending over the tangle of white nancies. His hat was in his hand. He stood motionless as if he had forgotten himself. His face, the curve of his head, the square line of his nose, trim shoulders had almost a photographic likeness to Jenny's starting eyes. She knew, of course, that she was asleep and dreaming. She dreamed that John Mortimer stood there in the moonlight gazing at the flowers he had always admired. Oh, if she might die before she awoke! This man moved. She rose to her feet. He came toward her. She heard his say. "They said I should find her here." Then she advanced fully into his view. "I am here," she said. They stood looking at each other, half bewildered, half curious. She heard him draw a deep breath. She saw him forth her hand to meet it. This brought them a little nearer still. "Well, it is a long time since I was here last," he said. She nodded. "Twenty-one years next month. The 17th, Thursday."

"Yes, I hadn't forgotten. The trumpet vine has grown some. That's about the only change I see." He gazed at her eagerly. "About the only change," Jenny replied. She sank down upon the steps. He took his seat beside her. They gazed at the garden in silence. "I notice you're still growing white nancies," he remarked at last. This seemed to drag Jenny out of her daze. "Yes," she replied. "I carried one of those flowers with me clear to Argentina," he said. "It was that brought me back—partly." He drew forth his pocketbook, opened it and showed her a carefully preserved pressed flower. "It's gone wherever I've gone for twenty-one years. I guess it's kept a kind of tallman. You see, they didn't grow white nancies down there. So I kept this one. And now I've brought it back. Punny isn't it? But the catch in his voice did not sound as though he thought so. "Jenny," he asked tentatively, "did you ever wish that—that you'd come with me that time?" "Oh, John!" Her voice came in a sob. "If you knew how I have wished! God only knows what made me change my mind. I wanted to go with you, but that night—" She sighed. He put his arms about her and drew her gently nearer. "That night," she went on more bravely, "it was just such a night as this. Remember?" The white nancies were all out and it was all so sweet and familiar and cozy. "I couldn't bear to leave it. And father and mother were coaxing me to stay. I never did have much mind of my own and when they said that if you really cared you would stay with me instead of making me go with you—" "I guess there was some catch in that," he said sadly. "I was wild for adventure, and I didn't understand all that you were saying to do. I have since found out. I thought probably you'd married. And then I said to myself, 'I'll just go back and look at the white nancies anyhow.'"

IDENTITY OF LUSITANIA VICTIM IS ESTABLISHED

Leonidas Bistis Lived in Athens, Greece, and Not Atlanta, as Reported

Advice from Savannah received in Atlanta Thursday clears up the mystery surrounding Leonidas Bistis, the Lusitania victim whose address was given as Atlanta. His identity has now been thoroughly established and it is evident that a mistake was made in his address when the passenger list of the Lusitania was made up.

Mr. Bistis was part owner of a steamship line with offices at 4 St. Mary's avenue, London. He came to America this spring on one of his steamers, the Elent Bistis, remaining in Savannah when that vessel returned. Had he taken his own ship he would have been saved, as the Elent Bistis arrived safely in Liverpool a week after the Lusitania sank.

Savannah friends state that before sailing on the Lusitania Mr. Bistis proposed his sinking, but stated he "knew how to take care of himself." Mr. Bistis lived in Athens, Greece, and was a flag lieutenant in the Greek navy during the Turko-Greek war.

BOARD OF ARBITRATION FIXES TAX VALUATIONS

Tax Value of Lease Hold on Railroads Is Finally Settled

The special arbitration board recently appointed to fix the tax valuation on the leasehold estates held by the Central of Georgia railroad, the Southwestern railroad and the Augusta and Savannah railroad, both of which are under long-term leases to the Central, Thursday afternoon rendered their decision.

The board of arbitration fixed the tax value of the lease hold in the Southwestern railroad at $1,046,869, and that of the Augusta and Savannah railroad at $13,748. In the case of the former property, it is directed that the amount of taxes be apportioned among the counties through which the route runs.

Taxes returned by the Central to the comptroller general on the leasehold in the Southwestern railroad amounted to $208,630. The return on the Augusta and Savannah railroad was $100, while the comptroller general's assessment was placed at $68,180.

For a number of years the taxation of these two properties has been in litigation between the state and the Central of Georgia railroad, the latter winning out in the supreme court on the ground that the roads held a charter exemption, and that they were not a part of the Central system, but simply leased.

After the state lost in the courts, Comptroller General Wright and Tax Commissioner Hart assessed the Central railroad for its leasehold estates in the Southwestern and Augusta and Savannah railroads. The Central railroad then taken for an arbitration on the difference between the assessment and the return.

Chairman C. M. Candler, of the railroad commission, represented the state, and attorney Alex. W. Smith, of Atlanta, the railroad. Failing to agree, these two arbitrators then decided on Colonel William M. Howard, of Augusta, as umpire. The decision followed.

BILL FOR STATE AUDITOR IS TAKEN UP IN SENATE

Amendment That Bond of $20,000 Be Required Is Offered

After several bills had been introduced and resolutions passed, the Thursday bill for passage of the bill by Senator Adams, of the Thirty-third, to create an office of state auditor.

The bill was read by sections, and several amendments were introduced, which were the one by Senator Peacock to provide that the auditor give bond of $20,000, there being no provision in the original bill.

An amendment by Senator Adams, striking out the clause providing that the state auditor shall have control of payment of all special legislative appropriations, was adopted by the Senate. Senator Mangham, authorizing the auditor to appoint two clerks, who shall work either in the auditor's office or the state treasurer's office or elsewhere, as the auditor sees fit, was adopted.

When the senate adjourned at 11 o'clock, it had not reached Senator Peacock's amendment to provide a bond for the auditor, nor had it reached the clause of the bill providing for the salaries of the auditor and his clerks. The bill, as it came to the senate with the approval of the finance committee, provides that the auditor shall get $3,000 a year, and the clerks $1,200 each. Several amendments were introduced as to these points, but will not be acted upon until Friday, when the senate meets at 11 o'clock.

The main provision of the auditor bill is to create the office of auditor of state, whose duties shall be to audit all bills and disbursements of funds made by all state officials; the auditor shall submit these audits to the governor; the governor shall draw warrants on the auditor for these audits, and the auditor shall issue vouchers, in the form of eight drafts, upon the state treasurer. It will be noticed that the auditor thus handles both the bills and the expenditures.

The state auditor bill which failed of passage in the house Thursday is similar to the bill before the senate.

By Senator Persons of the Twenty-second—To amend the code as to conditional pardons.

By Senator Boykin of the Seventeenth—To provide for the assignment of lands held under deed bond for title.

By Senator Mangham of the Thirty-eighth—To validate county warrants.

House resolution to appoint a joint committee of three to the senate and five from house to consider the advisability of adopting the Park code for the state. Senators Haralson, Lawrence and Walker were appointed on this committee.

House resolution for the state to furnish the books to Webster county.
