

NO PHAGAN TRIAL BEFORE LAST OF JUNE DECLARES SOLICITOR

If Indictments Are Returned by Grand Jury When Bills Are Presented There Will Be No Immediate Trial

WM. J. BURNS COMING,
SAYS THOS. B. FELDER

He Calls Upon the Public to Subscribe a Fund to Pay the Expense of Bringing Great Detective to Atlanta

Should the Fulton county grand jury, when it meets next Thursday or Friday, return a true bill against either one or both of the men held by the coroner's jury in the Mary Phagan murder investigation, the state will not attempt to bring them to trial before the latter part of June.

The rumors to the effect that the state would rush the trial at a special court session if Leo M. Frank or Newt Lee is indicted for the killing by the grand jury were set at rest Thursday by this statement from Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey.

The examination of witnesses by the solicitor continued on Thursday, and a number of witnesses in the case appeared at the solicitor's office to make statements, of which a stenographic record is kept.

In working out new theories of the crime the detectives have found no tangible evidence which has yet served to turn the authorities from the theory in which they have held practically since the beginning of the Phagan murder investigation, and it now appears that when the grand jury meets to consider the case the authorities will present no names as suspects except those of the two men who were ordered by the coroner's jury after its exhaustive inquest.

IDENTIFICATION SLIP
Wednesday the solicitor general ordered before him a reporter for a morning paper, who has had in his possession several specimens of the dead girl's handwriting. One of these specimens was a slip of paper on which Mary Phagan had written her name and address and the date, April 20, 1913.

The slip was in the purse she usually carried, and presumably was made out by the girl for the purpose of identifying her body.

The identification slip is simply another point in the perplexing mystery, and no circumstances developed which have as yet made it appear that the slip of paper may help to solve the mystery.

While the handwriting seems to be playing an important part in the probe of the mystery, the investigation developed in the handwriting investigation which throws much light on the tragedy.

Thomas B. Felder is authority for the definite statement that William J. Burns, the famous detective, will in person take up the Phagan murder investigation. While Mr. Burns will not arrive in person for several weeks, Mr. Felder stated that the investigator from the famous sleuth's New York office will be on the ground within a few days to take up the case, and Mr. Burns will come on later.

Mr. Felder has not yet raised the funds necessary to pay for the investigation by Mr. Burns, but hopes to do so by public subscription. Regarding the employment of Mr. Burns, Mr. Felder has made the following written statement:

MR. FELDER'S STATEMENT.
The time is at hand when I deem it not only proper, but necessary, that I take the public into my confidence relative to the further proposed investigation of the Phagan murder case.

"My firm was employed by neighbors and friends of the deceased shortly after the crime was committed to aid in the preparation of the case and the prosecution thereof.

"Without intending to reflect in the slightest degree upon the vigilant detectives engaged upon the case, who were doing the best they could to ferret out the mystery, it occurred to me that the magnitude of the crime justified an effort to secure the services of William J. Burns, a man with a record of successes covering a period of thirty years or more—and without a single failure charged against him.

"A committee of prominent ladies of the city, distinguished for their philanthropic work, called upon me, assuring me that funds sufficient to cover the expenses of Burns' investigation could be raised by public subscription. I assented to contribute out of my own pocket, and some additional amount if necessary. At the conclusion of the work an itemized statement of receipts and disbursements in this behalf will be published by the press of the city for the information of the subscribers to the fund.

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS SAVE MONEY AND NOT SOULS, SAYS BURROWS

Statistical Secretary of Convention Now Gathered in St. Louis, Says There Is Too Much Time Given to Money

DELEGATES WEAR STRAW
HATS, DEFYING CUSTOM

Another Minister Advocates Armed Intervention of U. S. in Mexican Affairs as He Gives Stirring Address

BY REV. ALEX. W. BEALER.
(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 15.—Dr. Lansing Burrows, the statistical secretary, shocked the convention today by giving it as his opinion that southern Baptists were devoting more time to collecting money than saving souls. He did not favor lessening the raising of money, but he did favor increasing the efforts to win souls. The greatest meeting he ever held was begun by putting to the test the cry of Malachi to bring all the tithes into the storehouse. Giving and soul winning always went together.

Dr. Burrows showed that there had been 123,471 baptisms among the churches, but this was 8,925 less than was reported last year. The astounding fact was shown that during the past year 38,182 people had been turned out of the churches of the south; still there was a net increase of 25,093.

There was a net increase in mission offerings of $70,000, and an increase in the value of church property in the sum of $11,890,463. In the face of this only three states showed a normal increase.

In Georgia there was an increase of 2,000; in North Carolina 4,000, and in Tennessee 6,000. In Missouri there had been a decrease of 10,000, and the same was true of Oklahoma.

Dr. Burrows insisted that while we pushed the raising of money, we should not overlook the cultivation of the spiritual side of the work, and devote ourselves to the great work of winning the south for Christ.

The committee on finances of the foreign board recommended that the work be continued for this year on the sole basis as last year, with enough additional money raised to pay off the debt on the board.

R. P. Mahon, of Mexico; J. W. Lowe, of China; A. G. Napier, of China, all missionaries of the board, urged that this should not be done, as the work would be at a standstill. Mr. Mahon said the time was approaching when the United States would make armed intervention in Mexico and then the greatest opportunity ever presented to the Baptists would come.

Mr. Lowe said the revolution in China was due to the efforts of the missionaries, and now that a new day had come there, Baptists could not afford to stand still.

A. G. Napier talked about the efforts that were being made to have the Baptists affiliate with the other denominations in educational work. He showed the advantages of it as Baptists above all people could afford to teach the Bible.

From expressions coming from the audience it was seen that this plan was not favored.

Dr. Willingham explained that the board has decided that it was not best to affiliate in educational work in the foreign theological seminaries. This statement was greeted with hearty "amens" from the floor of the convention.

Dr. C. G. Savage, of Tennessee, broke into the discussion by saying that the First church of Nashville gave $7,000

THREE PRESBYTERIES FAVOR DELAY ABOUT DECISION ON UNION

Presbyteries of Xenia, Chartiers and Arkansas Valley Counsel Debate Upon Undivulged Basis of Union

WOULD SUPPRESS VICE AT PANAMA EXPOSITION

Assembly Urged to Ask Morals of Visitors Be Shielded—No Union of Mission and Church Extension Boards

Memorials requesting that no definite action be taken regarding the proposed union between the United Presbyterian church and the United States Presbyterian church (southern), were presented to the general assembly of the United Presbyterians Thursday morning at their second session in the Central Presbyterian church, and were referred to the standing committee on basis of union.

At the last general assembly of the United Presbyterian church the basis of union committee was created to work jointly with a similar committee of the United States Presbyterian church and report a basis upon which the union of the two could be effected. The reports of those committees have been submitted to their respective assemblies, and the contents have not been divulged.

The memorials presented to the United Presbyterian assembly came from the presbyteries of Xenia, at Dayton, Ohio; Chartiers, at Houston, Pa., and the Arkansas Valley, at Wichita, Kan. Each asked that action be deferred for one year until the next general assembly.

The Xenia memorial recited that "in the absence of definite information in reference to the basis of union prepared by the joint committee, the presbytery does hereby express its judgment that no basis of union should be handed down in overture in assembly, which surrenders the position occupied by our church in all its past history, especially on the subject of the exclusive, divinely inspired and authorized psalmody."

The Chartiers memorial urged the assembly to "refer the basis of union as quoted to the assembly of 1914 in order that a year may be allowed for its discussion in the church."

The Arkansas Valley memorial asked the assembly to defer action on the proposed basis of union at least until the general assembly of 1914.

MEMORIAL NOT DISCUSSED.
Since the memorials were referred immediately to the special committee on basis of union, they were not discussed on the assembly floor. The sentiment of many of the commissioners, freely expressed after the meeting, favored the proposed union, and it was generally predicted that the memorials asking for delay would have little effect. However, it is said that there is a silent contingent determined to make a bitter fight on the proposed union because of the secrecy of the basis adopted by the joint committee.

The committee on basis of union that will consider these memorials is composed of Dr. J. K. McCurran, Dr. W. W. Williamson, Dr. J. C. Scouler and T. S. McMurray.

There were about 300 commissioners present at the morning session, the first to be presided over by newly chosen moderator, Dr. Robert M. Russell.

Immediately after the opening of the session with devotional exercises, Rev. George E. Baez, pastor of the First church, called on Dr. David F. McGill, principal clerk.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted and reports of the

2 ASSEMBLIES TO NAME MODERATORS THURSDAY

CANDIDATES FOR MODERATOR IN U. S. A. AND THE MEN WHO WILL NOMINATE THEM

Rev. Maitland Alexander, D. D., pastor of the First church, of Pittsburgh who will be nominated for moderator of the U. S. assembly Thursday afternoon by John Willis Baez. Dr. Alexander comes of an old and aristocratic family and is a millionaire. Mr. Baez, who will place his name before the assembly, is president of Occident college and was at one time general secretary of the Christian Endeavor society. Rev. S. S. Palmer, D. D., will be nominated for moderator by Rev. William C. Covert, pastor of the First church, of Chicago. Dr. Palmer is pastor of the First church, of Columbus. Present indications are that Dr. Palmer and Dr. Alexander will be the principals in an exciting contest, with the possibility of a "dark horse" being nominated to add interest to the situation.

COMMISSIONERS TO U. S. A. ARE BUZZING LIKE A HIVE OF BEES OVER THE RACE FOR MODERATOR

So Declares William T. Ellis, Who Touches Up "Ecclesiastical Politics"—Some of the Serious Matters That Will Occupy the Commissioners Are Discussed by Him

By William T. Ellis

WILL the big brother's bad manners be copied by the small brothers, or will the little brothers teach the big brother how to be good?

That in a figure of speech, is the "burning question" before the pan-Presbyterian gathering.

The big brother—the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.—is addicted to the bad habit of ecclesiastical politics. Those who feel a concern for the manners of the smaller brothers are afraid that the example set here in Atlanta may be contagious.

Others, more optimistic, believe that the well-behaved little fellows will shame the big brother into better behavior.

At present the commissioners to the U. S. A. assembly are buzzing like a hive in swarming time. The lobby of the Piedmont hotel sounds like the recess of a woman suffrage convention.

Some of the volume of discussion is purely social and fraternal; mostly it is "who's who" in the moderatorial race in the U. S. A. assembly. The various candidates are themselves on hand, smiling upon all comers. No commissioner is too inconsiderable to receive a cordial handshake from the distin-

DR. T. S. CLYCE RETIRES AS SOUTHERN MODERATOR

United States Assembly Opens at North Avenue Church, Successor Unknown

At the first session of the Southern Presbyterian assembly held Thursday morning at North Avenue Presbyterian church, Rev. T. S. Clyce, D. D., president of Austin college, Sherman, Tex., delivered his farewell sermon as moderator of the United States assembly. His successor will be chosen at the afternoon session, which commences at 2:30 o'clock.

Long before 10:30, the hour set for the program to commence, the edifice was filled with commissioners and visitors here for the assemblies and the great joint conferences which commence Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the auditorium-annex.

Dr. Clyce preside at the exercises for the last time as moderator of the southern assembly. In the pulpit with him was Dr. Richard Orme Flynn, pastor of the church.

Following the organ prelude and doxology, Dr. Clyce called the assembly to order. The exercises were purely devotional, consisting of the singing of hymns, scripture readings, prayer and special music by the choir.

After the sermon of the retiring moderator, the communion service was held in accordance with a special order of the last assembly.

Who the successor to Dr. Clyce will be is not only a matter of conjecture but is unknown among the Southern Presbyterians. No name had been put forward and it was generally understood that no mention of any probable candidate would be made until the reconvening of the assembly at 2:30 p. m.

Prominent members of this assembly were emphatic in their declaration that

METHOD OF PROCEDURE.

The members of each section are seated in a group together, with a placard raised above them to denote their number, similar to the grouping of state delegations in a national party convention. The members of each section are expected to occupy their own seats during the business sessions.

The afternoon session will begin with the calling of the roll, which, owing to the size of the assembly, will consume about 40 minutes. Then will

BIG WELCOME GETTING READY FOR THE RETURN OF THE SHRINERS

A royal welcome is awaiting the return of the Shrine patrol which represented and helped to win for Atlanta the Imperial Council for 1914 at the meeting in Dallas, Texas.

Every Atlanta Shriner is back of the movement to make the welcome one long to be remembered. It is predicted that there will be 300 in line at the station as the special rolls in Saturday evening at 9:20 o'clock.

The yearly meeting of the Imperial Council is the biggest Shrine event of each year. There were other cities bidding for the 1914 meeting, but Atlanta won.

Of course the brass band will be on hand, and you can depend upon plenty of music and cheering. A short march led by the principal downtown streets will help to express the appreciation of the work of the patrol during the Dallas meeting. With the patrol is the drum corps. That organization will help to make the arrival at the Terminal a lively occasion.

MRS. KEEFER'S ATTORNEYS CAN SUE FOR THEIR FEE

Intervention Is Withdrawn—Divorce Suit Not Their Recourse, Says High Court

The state supreme court Wednesday evening sustained Judge John T. Pendleton, of the Fulton county superior court, in declining to permit the attorneys for the plaintiff in the divorce suit of Mrs. Grace Macy Keefe vs. D. H. Keefe, a well-known attorney of Atlanta and New York, to intervene in the suit after the principals had become reconciled and sought to have the suit dismissed.

Evins & Spence, of Atlanta, were Mrs. Keefe's lawyers. In the original suit for divorce alimony of $250 a month and counsel fees of $2,000 was asked by Mrs. Keefe. The suit was brought on January 29, 1912, and on April 19 of that year the Keefers were reconciled, and asked that the suit be dismissed and that the receiver who had been appointed to administer Mr. Keefe's Fulton county property be discharged. Judge Pendleton granted the petition, Attorney Evins & Spence, not having received their compensation, sought to intervene and being denied this privilege carried the case to the supreme court.

WYLIE SMITH IN TOWER, TO ANSWER INDICTMENT

Elusive Fugitive Brought Back Wednesday From Two Years in Mexico

As thin as a shadow, J. Wylie Smith, president of the Commercial Loan and Discount company, returned Wednesday night to Atlanta from Mexico, where he has fought and starved with the army of Diaz.

He was imprisoned in the Tower to await trial on the charge of forgery. He refused to talk at the time of his arrival, and his first request after his imprisonment was that no one should see him.

Wylie Smith weighs scarcely 100 pounds and is little more than an invalid. He is emaciated, his face is scamed with wrinkles, and his step is halting.

He has undergone the dangers of guerrilla warfare in Mexico, he has been both starved and wounded. At the time of his arrival Wednesday night at 11:40 o'clock from New Orleans he still wore the khaki uniform of the Diaz soldiers.

He was brought to Atlanta in a car which he has fought in order to avoid the Pinkerton men who were bent upon his neck from the moment he touched Mexican soil.

"I've nothing to say," he remarked, wearily. "I need to rest." He was taken to the Hotel Tower, where he has been since his arrival. He has suffered privation upon privation. He has undergone the dangers of guerrilla warfare in Mexico, he has been both starved and wounded.

At the time of the insurrection he was wounded and, being improperly attended, his wound failed to heal and his strength slowly declined. When it seemed that his death was but a question of days, T. M. Hamilton persuaded him to return to Atlanta.

For several months Mr. Hamilton had been in correspondence with Smith, urging him that the wisest course was to leave Mexico.

When he found himself so weakened by his wound and by sickness, the man who has been hunted for two years decided that he would return, and after being home about the border into El Paso, Tex., he placed himself in Mr. Hamilton's hands.

Pinkerton had arrested him frequently since his arrival in Mexico, but they failed in each attempt to extradite him. As a soldier of Diaz, he was beyond their reach.

They could lay hands on him at any moment, and they were equipped with sufficient warrants to authorize extradition, and Wylie Smith returned to Atlanta merely because he wished to do so.

At the time of his arrival he was still a free man. Mr. Hamilton, who had induced him to return, was a companion upon the trip from Mexico, but he had no warrant and was not an officer in charge of a prisoner.

Of his own free will, Smith stepped from a train and gave himself up to City Detectives Sturdivant and Davis, who took him to the Tower in a cab.

SHOWERS ARE FAVORING CROPS IN GEORGIA

Corn and Cotton Held Back by Drouth About Three Weeks

ATHENS, May 15.—Reports from agents in demonstration work in about sixty counties of Georgia, received at the Georgia State College of Agriculture, state that local showers have helped crop conditions where they have fallen, but most of the state has been unvisited by rains for nearly a month during which time much of the cotton and corn have been drouth-stricken.

Corn is generally reported in much better condition than cotton, the stand being better and the growth more satisfactory. Wheat has suffered least and is generally reported promising.

The oat yield has been reduced materially, perhaps 40 per cent over what was promised a month ago, by both the drouth and the frost. Where harvesting has begun, however, reports show that the same has not been as heavy as was anticipated. Farmers generally are planning to sow peas and sorghum to recoup the oat loss on ground from which oats are being taken.

With good general rains the situation will not prove as bad as these adverse reports would indicate. Better stands of corn and cotton may be had after the rain than has been expected. Lack of moisture may simply mean that germination and growth has been held back about three weeks. Soil preparation has been better on the average and the fertilizer bills indicate that with good weather the year may prove, after all, a fair one for corn and cotton.

POLICE ARE AT PICNIC; GREAT TIMES THURSDAY

It took two special trains to carry the big crowd of people to the picnic Thursday, at Warm Springs, Ga. They left the union depot between 7:20 and 8 o'clock in the morning, and are scheduled to leave for home between 5 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

The recorder's court was adjourned Wednesday afternoon until Friday in honor of the event, which is an annual affair and is given yearly for the benefit of the Police Relief association.

Because of the fact that the city is obliged to have the services of the majority of the police force, only a limited number of patrolmen were allowed the privilege of attending the picnic, and they drew lots for their chance.

The prize walk will probably be the biggest event of the day. Prizes will be given to both ladies and gentlemen for the most graceful dancers. There will be three prizes, a first, second and third, in each case.

Chief Newport Lanford, of the city detective department, left with the crowd.

WRESTLING BOUT IN HOTEL ROOM FINISHED IN JAIL

Two wrestlers of the vaudeville stage decided to practice a bit in their room at the Child's hotel at an early hour Wednesday morning, with the result that the other guests thought the roof was coming down over their heads, called the police and had the actors hauled into court Wednesday morning.

G. M. Filly, a Japanese, and P. D. Cochran, an American, were the wrestlers. They stated to the recorder that they had merely decided to find out which was "the best man." The bout started in a friendly humor, they declared, but after tipping over a washstand and a couple of chairs, they went at it in dead earnest.

The racket awoke nearly everyone in the hotel. Officer Turner responded to the call for aid and "judged" the rough-housers. Cochran was fined $15.75 by the recorder and Filly $10.75. They both admitted having drunk freely of "blind tiger" whiskey before the bout started.

WOMAN COULD NOT WALK

She Was So Ill—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Pentwater, Mich.—"A year ago I was very weak and the doctor said I had a serious displacement. I had backache and bearing down pains so bad that I could not sit in a chair or walk across the floor and I was in severe pain all the time. I felt discouraged as I had taken everything I could think of and was no better. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am strong and healthy."—Mrs. ALICE DARLING, R.F.D. "After I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a week I began to improve. My backache was less and that heavy feeling in my side went away. I continued to take the Compound and am cured."

EAST POINT POLICEMAN IS FOUND DEAD ON BEAT

J. C. Cash Believed to Have Dropped Dead From Natural Cause

J. C. Cash, an East Point policeman, was found dead Thursday morning on Main street in front of the Citizens' bank in East Point.

Pending the arrival of Coroner Paul Donohoo, no examination of the body had been made at 8 o'clock, and therefore the cause of death was not known at that hour.

However, the indications are that he dropped dead from some natural cause while walking his beat.

The body was discovered at 4:30 o'clock by Ed Thrallkill, a truck farmer, on his way to Atlanta.

Mr. Thrallkill at once notified B. Phillips, a telegraph operator in the switch tower across the street, and Mr. Phillips notified the East Point chief of police, J. W. Miller.

The body was taken to Hemperly's undertaking establishment to await the coroner.

The dead man leaves a wife and three children, and is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cash, of Ben Hill, and by several brothers.

MISSING GIRL'S BROTHER SEARCHING; CLEW REFUSED

J. W. Mann, a brother of Ella Kate Mann, whom J. L. Wimblish, of 777 Ashby street, is accused of having eloped with, left the city for Columbus, Ga., in search of his sister.

Wimblish, who is now locked up in a cell at the police station, pending his trial, will not tell where the young woman is, but admits that she is alive and well. The girl's brother left with a note from Chief of Police James L. Beavers to the chief of police at Columbus.

Since Wimblish was arrested and charged with bigamy, the family of the young girl have been very anxious to hear from her. They are uneasy concerning her.

SALARY LAW INVALID, IS SUPREME COURT'S DICTUM

Fulton County Measure Transgressed Upon Some Technicality

The state supreme court late Wednesday afternoon handed down a decision in which it held an unconstitutional the law which put the officials of Fulton county on a salary system basis.

In holding the law void the supreme court reversed Judge J. T. Pendleton, of the Fulton county superior court, who sustained the law by his decision in the mandamus action brought by the Fulton county commission to compel Tax Collector A. Stewart, Tax Receiver T. M. Armistead and Ordinary John R. Wilkison to furnish it with statements of the sums required to conduct their offices under the salary system.

The grounds upon which the higher court holds the law unconstitutional are that although it was passed by the legislature as a general act it was in reality a special act applying in effect to only one county in the state.

All county officials, with the exception of the three named, accepted the law and were put on the salary system on January 1. Messrs Stewart, Armistead and Wilkison contended that the law was unconstitutional and, therefore, declined to furnish statements of the amounts needed to place their offices on a salary basis.

AN UNANIMOUS DECISION

The decision of the supreme court was written by Justice Atkinson and was concurred in by all the justices. In part the court says:

"The act of August 22, 1911 (Acts 1911, p. 186), touching the salaries of certain county officers, while employing certain general terms, is so hedged about with provisions, restrictions and limitations that it is in reality a special act; and being in regard to a subject for which provision had previously been made by an existing general law, it is invalid. The act being unconstitutional, it was error to grant a mandamus to compel certain officers of Fulton county to file reports with the county commissioners, as there is provided."

"It is declared in article 1, section 4, paragraph 1 of the constitution (civil code section 6391), that laws of a general nature shall have uniform operation throughout the state, and no special law shall be enacted in any case for which provision has been made by an existing general law. A general law may be repealed or modified by another general law, but it cannot be repealed or modified by a special or local law."

GENERAL OR SPECIAL?

"If the act under consideration is a general law, it is valid as against the contention that it violates the section of the constitution above quoted. If it is a special or local law dealing with a subject as to which provision has already been made by an existing general law, then it is in conflict with that section and invalid. The question, therefore, is whether the act under consideration is a general or special law. Has it uniform operation throughout the state? It does not purport to apply to all counties in the state, but only to such as meet a certain description."

A man living at Auburn, New York, had a severe attack of kidney and bladder trouble. Being a working man, not wanting to lose time, not run up a heavy doctor's bill, he cured himself completely by using Foley Kidney Pills. A year later he says: "It is a pleasure to report that the cure was permanent. He has had no return whatever of the pain, backache and burning. His name is J. A. Farmer, and he says: 'I of course I recommend Foley Kidney Pills as a very effective cure for kidney and bladder trouble.' For sale by all dealers.—(Adv.)"

Sues for Divorce

Inhuman and cruel treatment are the basis of a suit for divorce led in the superior court Wednesday by Mrs. Laura Coffeld against her husband, Oscar Coffeld. The petitioner alleges that at one time she had to appeal to neighbors for help as her husband had left her and their four-year-old child without food with which to cook a meal. She asks for the custody of their boy, Clyde, and for alimony.

Maiden Lady Sees One Empty Shoe Under Bed; Wow! Calls Fire Dept.

Some maiden lady who lives near the corner of Walker and Haynes streets (and modestly forbids even a guess at her age) became so frightened when she spied what appeared to be a man's foot under her bed Saturday night about 7.30 o'clock that she turned in the fire alarm, after arousing the neighborhood with her cries for "help," "police," etc., as she made her way across the street to pull the box in front of the Walker Street school.

The fire department responded, of course, and the first on the scene was Chief Cummings in his "Red Devil." The only excitement he saw was the woman, who was almost hysterical. "It's in there!" she screamed, as she pointed to the house where she roomed. Then the firemen followed, though there was not even a scent of anything burning, much less a rift of smoke or even a tiny blaze.

All the firemen saw was a perfectly orderly room, with the exception of one big tan shoe (evidently made for a bold man) that lay under the bed. It had not even a foot in it, and it was alone. It had no mate. "But, chief, you don't know how it frightened me," the woman tried to explain. "I thought, of course, it was a burglar."

J. B. C. Madden Dead

On Saturday, May 3, at his home in Vineville, Macon, Ga., Mr. J. B. C. Madden, a native of Pike county, and a member of one of Georgia's prominent families, passed away at 5 o'clock in the morning. Concord had been the home of the deceased until two years ago, when he moved to Macon, where he made scores of friends who, together with friends not only throughout Georgia, but other states, deplore his death. Surviving the deceased are a wife and eight children: Mrs. S. E. Aycock, Mrs. M. E. Gardner, Miss Mattie Madden, Mrs. Julian Smith, Mrs. Charles Cook, and Messrs. J. M., T. A. and J. C. Madden.

LAKEWOOD PARK OPEN FOR SUMMER SEASON

New Dancing Professor, and Swimming in Charge of an Expert

Lakewood park has opened for the summer season with a general improvement of the old attractions and with some new attractions which promise to be very popular. Among the latter is the dancing pavilion, which, though it is not new, has been reorganized under new direction. It is now in charge of a dancing professor from New York, who is ably assisted by four musicians. There will be dancing lessons in the afternoon and evening, and the pavilion will be open during those hours.

The swimming is under the direction of Prof. Schloberg, an expert instructor and life-saver who will be on the job all the time. He will give lessons to beginners and will keep a boat at hand for the safety of the swimmers. The boats have been repaired and repainted and there is a fast motor boat which makes regular trips around the lake.

TWO ARE KILLED WHEN A LOCOMOTIVE TURNS OVER

Authorities Investigating the Wounds of Dead Engineer, Flagman Also Met Death

Upon the request of Dr. Pace, of Smyrna, city detectives are making an investigation to ascertain if there is anything unusual or suspicious in connection with the wounds which resulted in the death of Engineer R. B. Brooks, who was killed Wednesday night in the wreck of a Seaboard Air Line train near Rice's station.

Dr. Pace, who made a casual examination of the engineer's body Wednesday night before it was brought to Atlanta, telephoned Police Chief Beavers Thursday morning and suggested that he detail a detective to meet him at the undertaking establishment of Greenberg & Bond. The physician mentioned something about a suspicious wound in the side of the engineer, and stated that he desired to make a more thorough examination of the body.

Detective Bullard was dispatched to the undertaking establishment, and at 5:30 a. m. was there awaiting the arrival of Dr. Pace.

The undertakers report that Engineer Brooks' chest is badly crushed, that he is seriously scalded about the lower limbs and that his left leg is fractured. They are of the opinion that the injuries to his chest resulted in death.

STORY OF WRECK.

Engineer R. B. Brooks, 50 Catherine street, and J. T. Allen, who recently moved here from Alabama, were killed in a wreck on the Seaboard Air Line railroad near Rice's station Wednesday night, when the unattached engine which they were running turned over as it rounded a curve.

The flagman was dead when he was taken from under the wreck, and the engineer, who was suffering terribly from scalds by escaping steam, died on his way to the Atlanta hospital. Lem Heard, a negro fireman, was badly injured, and is now in a serious condition at the Fair Haven hospital.

The first to reach the wreck was a man who gave his name as R. G. Burns, and who stated further that he was a tramp. He was found doing his best to get the pinned engineer free under the big engine, where a stream of steam was playing over his body. The tramp was assisted later in his rescue by passengers from the Birmingham train which had been flagged up the road by a farmer. When the engineer was finally gotten out, the heroic tramp fainted from burns that he had sustained in his efforts, and he was taken to the Atlanta hospital, where he will be for a couple of days. His burns were painful but not serious.

When the passengers of the flagged train reached the locomotive they thought Burns was one of the ill-fated crew, but he promptly told them to help him get the engineer out, saying that he was "nothing but a hobo," and that the man under the engine was the one that needed their help. The tramp said that he was walking down the tracks when he heard the wreck, and hastened to investigate.

The man who flagged the passenger train, and who probably saved many from being injured and probably killed, said that his name was Hall and that he was a farmer. The passengers promptly made up a purse for him.

It took a derrick of the wrecking crew

A MIDNIGHT VIEW OF THE WRECK THAT KILLED TWO

This flashlight photograph shows the locomotive which left the rails on a curve in a cut near Rice's station on the Seaboard Air Line Wednesday night, killing the engineer, R. B. Brooks, and a flagman, J. T. Allen who was riding in the cab, and so badly injuring the negro fireman that he has not given any account of how it happened. The flagman was ground into the bank and his body was extricated just at the upper left corner of the cab roof. The engine was running with nothing but its tender at the moment. A "hobo," who gave his name as R. G. Burns, was the hero of the occasion, being badly scalded in his efforts to save the engineer from escaping steam.

to lift the engine from the ground before the mangled form of the flagman could be reached. He was past all human aid then.

An examination of the tracks showed that the rails were in good condition, and the cause of the wreck is a mystery. The only explanation is that the engine running with only the tender was probably going too fast to take the sharp curve. As the two white men who were on it are dead, and the negro fireman is in such condition that he cannot talk, it is hard to find out just exactly what did happen to cause the engine to jump the track.

The bodies of both the engineer and the flagman were removed to the undertaking place of Greenberg & Bond Co. on Houston street. Engineer Brooks was the son of R. L. Brooks, for over thirty-five years an engineer on the same road. He was thirty years of age and unmarried. Flagman Allen was also a single man and thirty-two years of age.

FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

The dead engineer is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Brooks; three brothers, Harry, Joe and Cecil; two sisters, Mrs. Robert Zimmerman and Miss Amy Brooks, all of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at Greenberg & Bond's chapel Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Thomas, pastor of the East Point Presbyterian church. Interment will be in Atlanta Park cemetery.

A delegation from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of which Mr. Brooks was a member, will be the pallbearers.

ELKS' DANCE TUESDAY WAS ENJOYED BY MANY

The dance attended Tuesday night by members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks and their ladies, in the Elks' home on Ellis street, was one of the most successful and enjoyable that yet has been held in the new home.

A. L. Dunn, exalted ruler, spoke briefly, complimenting all who were present and thanking them—for the dance was a subscription affair; the proceeds going to the fund for purchasing a pipe organ for the lodge room. He appointed all of the ladies there as members of a big committee to take charge of the next subscription dance in the organ fund series, and announced a prize for the one who distributes the greatest number of tickets.

EXCEPTIONS IN COTTON CONTROVERSY DISMISSED

701 Bales Alleged to Have Been Damaged en Route From Atlanta to Liverpool

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 15.—The exceptions to a libel in admiralty filed by the Merchants and Miners' Transportation company against 701 bales of cotton in the Atlanta cotton controversy, were dismissed yesterday by Judge McPherson. The suit was to collect freight charges. The exceptions raised the question whether a common carrier could collect freight charges on goods that had been shipped on a through bill of lading, before the merchandise reached its destination. It appeared that the cotton was accepted by the transportation company for shipment from Atlanta, Ga., to Liverpool, England. As the result of a fire on the company's steamship Berkshire in October, 1902, the cotton was landed here in a burned condition. The American line refused to accept it at this port for transportation to Liverpool. The Merchants and Miners' line held the cotton and later libeled it for the freight charges from Atlanta, Ga., to this port. Watson & Co., the owners, contended that the plaintiff should have either obtained a steamship line to carry the cotton to England or return the goods to the owners.

CATECHISM COMMITTEE SETS FORTH CREED

U. S. A. Assembly Will Probably Adopt the Report as Written

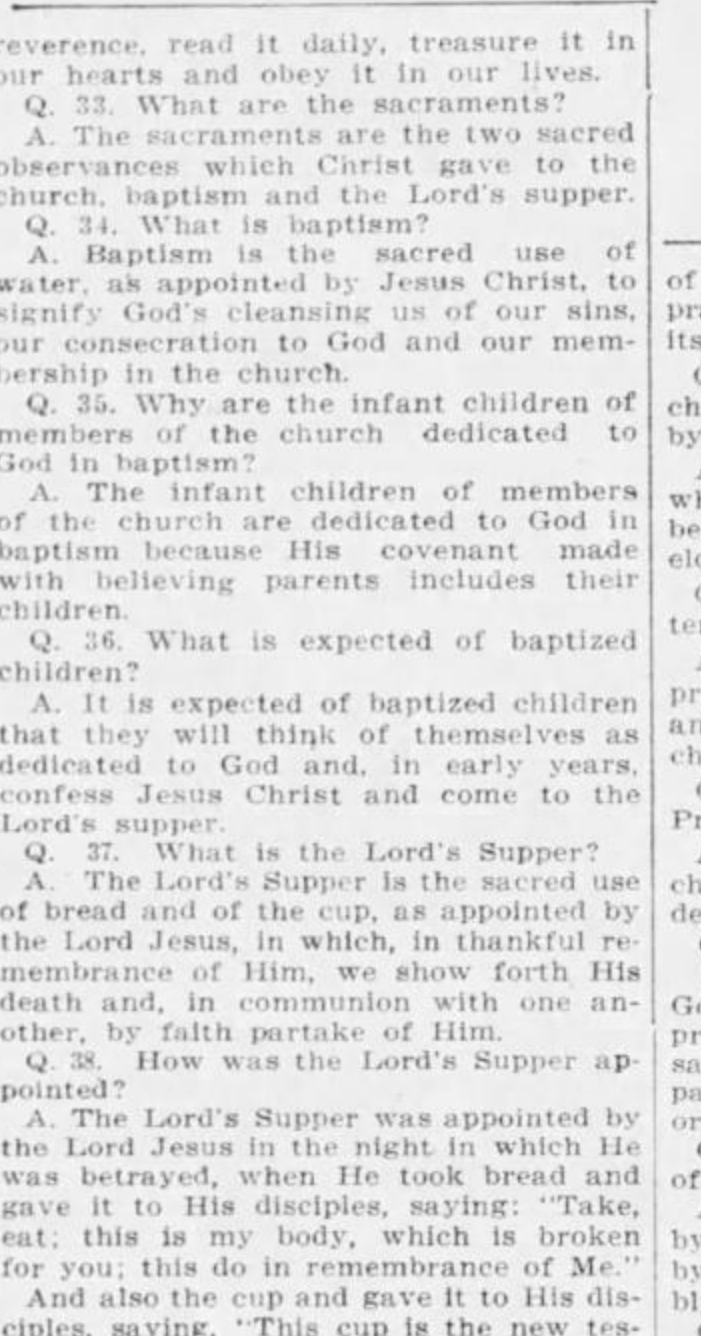

Following is the report on intermediate catechism which will be submitted by the committee on that subject to the U. S. A. assembly and very probably will be adopted by that body. It sets forth in brief the creed of Presbyterians in that division of the church:

Q. 1. What do we most need to know? A. We most need to know what God would have us believe and do. Q. 2. Where do we best learn what God would have us believe and do? A. We best learn what God would have us believe and do in the Bible. Q. 3. What is the Bible? A. The Bible is the Word of God, a collection of books written by men who were guided by God to teach us about Himself and His will. Q. 4. How is the Bible divided? A. The Bible is divided into two parts: the Old Testament containing thirty-nine books and the New Testament containing twenty-seven books. Q. 5. What does the Bible teach about God? A. The Bible teaches that God is our Heavenly Father who made all things and rules over all in wisdom and righteousness and love. Q. 6. Is there more than one God? A. There is only one God, the living and true God, yet in three persons, the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. Q. 7. What does the Bible teach about God's will for us? A. The Bible teaches that it is God's will for us that we love Him with all our heart, strength and mind, and that we love others as ourselves. Q. 8. What is sin? A. Sin is disobeying God or coming short of what He would have us be and do. Q. 9. How does God look upon sin? A. God looks upon sin with holy displeasure and great sorrow, and calls upon every one to repent, warning us of the consequences of His wrath. Q. 10. What are the consequences of sin? A. The consequences of sin are estrangement from God, increasing sinfulness in ourselves and injury to others, and the righteous judgments of God in time and in eternity. Q. 11. How has God provided for our salvation from sin? A. God, of His great mercy, has provided for our salvation from sin by the gift of His Son, Jesus Christ. Q. 12. Who is Jesus Christ? A. Jesus Christ is God's eternal and only-begotten Son who humbled Himself to become man, and so is God and man. Q. 13. How did Jesus Christ become man? A. Jesus Christ became man by being born of the Virgin Mary in Bethlehem of Judaea, and His name was called Jesus, which means Saviour, because He was to save His people from their sins. Q. 14. How did Jesus Christ live on earth? A. Jesus Christ lived on earth a true human life, with its joys and sorrows being tempted as we are yet without being tempted as we are yet without sin, always doing the will of God, and so setting us an example. Q. 15. How did Jesus Christ die? A. Jesus Christ died on the cross, the just for the unjust, that He might reconcile us to God and save us from sin. Q. 16. When did Jesus Christ rise from the dead? A. Jesus Christ rose from the dead the third day after He had been buried, and ascended into heaven. Q. 17. How will Jesus come again? A. Jesus Christ will come again with power and great glory, and will judge us all according to our works. Q. 18. How do we receive Jesus Christ as our Saviour? A. We receive Jesus Christ as our Saviour by repentance and faith. Q. 19. What is it to repent? A. To repent is to be truly sorry for sin and turn from it unto God for forgiveness, with sincere purpose to do God's will. Q. 20. What is faith in Jesus Christ? A. Faith in Jesus Christ is believing on Him and trusting Him as our own Saviour and Lord. Q. 21. How does God lead us to believe on Jesus Christ? A. God leads us to believe on Jesus Christ by the work of the Holy Spirit in our hearts, showing us that we are sinful, and disposing and enabling us to accept Him as He is offered to us in the gospel. Q. 22. What is the work of the Holy Spirit in us who believe? A. The work of the Holy Spirit in us who believe is to give us hatred of sin and love of righteousness, knowledge of the truth, power for service and assurance that we are children of God. Q. 23. What is the duty and privilege of those who believe on Jesus Christ? A. The duty and privilege of those who believe on Jesus Christ is to confess Him before men and to come into the full communion of the church. Q. 24. Is there but one church? A. There is only one church, in which all the saved in heaven and on earth are included, and of which Jesus Christ is the head. Q. 25. What is the church on earth? A. The church on earth is the whole body of those who confess Christ as Lord and Saviour, together with their children. Q. 26. What is the great work of the church on earth? A. The great work of the church on earth is to bear witness to Jesus Christ and so to advance the kingdom of God. Q. 27. What is meant by the kingdom of God? A. By the kingdom of God is meant the rule of God in the hearts of men, so that in love to Him and to their fellow men, they live in righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. Q. 28. What is our sure hope concerning the kingdom of God? A. Our sure hope concerning the kingdom of God is that it will increase until it is fully come in all the earth. Q. 29. What is our Lord's last command concerning the kingdom of God? A. Our Lord's last command concerning the kingdom of God is "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."—Matt. 28:19, 20. Q. 30. What are the special hindrances to our Christian life? A. The special hindrances to our Christian life are temptations to sin which beset us from within and from without and against which we should always watch and pray. Q. 31. What special helps has God appointed for us in our Christian life? A. The special helps which God has appointed for us in our Christian life are the Bible, the sacraments, prayer and fellowship. Q. 32. How should we use the Bible? A. We should use the Bible with omending that the two bodies continue to work independently. The two boards had little in common, the report said, and there was no special reason for the union. It was decided to change the hour of the afternoon session from 2 until 2:30 o'clock. The morning session, which adjourned shortly before noon, at the afternoon session the assembly heard various reports and transacted routine business. U. S. ASSEMBLY PROCEEDINGS. Dr. Robert M. Russell, president of Westminster college, in Wilmington, Pa., was unanimously elected moderator of the fifty-fifth annual assembly of the United Presbyterian church, which opened at the Central Presbyterian church Thursday morning. Dr. Russell succeeds Dr. Hugh H. Bell, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, San Francisco. Dr. Russell was nominated by Dr. C. P. Proudfit, Dr. Des Moines. No other nominations were made and the election was by acclamation. The new moderator was presented with a handsome gavel made from wood taken from the first initial Presbyterian theological seminary at Service, Pa. In making the presentation, Dr. G. A. Beattie, of Atlanta, predicted the union of the United Presbyterian church with the Southern Presbyterian church, and said that if this union comes about, the new church will be called the United Presbyterian. A second gavel was presented by Dr. R. A. Hutchinson in the name of the home board of Pennsylvania. There were about 500 present at the opening session, 125 of whom were registered as commissioners. There were India and one from the presbytery of middle Egypt. Following the usual custom, the assembly was opened with the farewell sermon by the retiring moderator, Dr. Hugh H. Bell, of San Francisco. DR. BELL'S SERMON. Dr. Bell spoke on "The Living Christ," whose "living, personal presence" he termed "our greatest present day need." The vision of John on Patmos was so described as first to articulate its import upon modern life and second to impress the fact that "too much of our theology and religion and preaching today deals with a dead Christ, a dead Christ, a dead Christ; that of art, literature, poetry and music, a dead Christ, German socialism, he said, preaches a dead Christ. A pearl that faces even Protestantism, he declared, is the evasion of the spiritual, the avoidance of the supernatural. The personality of Christ as a living, moving influence of today's world, he said, is the greatest honor in the service its power inspires. In examples to show that this living Christ is now the source of the most universal ideals, Dr. Bell cited recent events in Korea, Egypt, China and other countries. While its note was generally encouraging, Dr. Bell sounded a warning against the materialism of the United States.

COMMISSIONERS TO U. S. A. BUZZING LIKE BEES OVER RACE FOR MODERATOR

unless the U. S. church should itself, in the meanwhile, be bitten by the same microbes. A Better Way. Last night Atlanta had an example of the better way of managing general assembly affairs. The United Presbyterian body opened its sessions and elected as its moderator Rev. Dr. R. M. Russell. The election was like a part of the evening's worship. It was in no wise incongruous with the sermon of the retiring moderator, Dr. H. H. Bell. In simple, dignified manner one commissioner after another arose and in a very few words told why he felt it his duty to support Dr. Russell. A viva voce vote settled the matter and Dr. Russell was led to the pulpit by two of his classmates. Everybody was pleased and the religious spirit of the meeting was heightened, rather than diminished. The stated clerk, Dr. McGill, quiet and self-effacing, occupied a seat on the pulpit beside the moderator during the session, even as he alone and unaided had during the day welcomed and registered all the commissioners to the assembly. For such an efficient body the United Presbyterian church gets along with precious little machinery. Southern folk love good speaking, and Atlanta was not in force at the opening session of the United Presbyterian assembly last night. In addition to hearing Dr. Bell's admirable discourse, they had opportunity to appraise these men from "up north" who may one day be an organic part of the church which represents Presbyterianism in Atlanta. Plainly the Atlantians were pleased. The way in which the pulpit was occupied was a revelation to many. There is no United Presbyterian congregation in Atlanta, the one that was tentatively organized having graciously been merged with the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. The whole choir will become familiar with psalm singing at the joint meetings of the churches. The surprise, the United Presbyterians have provided 5,000 copies of their revised psalter. Co-operation in Service. Another great meeting of last night was a union missionary session of the Home and Foreign boards of the U. S. A. church, which filled the First church to its capacity. The speeches were stirring and sounded a note that will be heard often in Atlanta during the next eight days—co-operation in service. Atlanta's interest in this Presbyterian convocation is really widespread and deep. This is one of the unusual gatherings which has gone down into the life of the city. The homes of the people have been opened and families are talking less about what the assemblies may do than about "our delegates." In this close personal contact comes the mutual interpretation which, all unrecorded, is making history for the United States of America. The prodigious task which Atlanta has undertaken may not be lost sight of. Although there is only one small congregation of the U. S. A. church in the city, and none at all of the U. P. church, yet Atlanta has undertaken to extend fraternal hospitality to this army of strangers. This is an example of practical Christian unity, for all denominational lines have been submerged in one common display of Atlanta hospitality. Baptist, Methodist and Episcopalian are learning what manner of man a Presbyterian is. The herculean task which Atlanta has so successfully accomplished appeals to the imagination. The "Elect Infant" Clause. These less obvious phases of the pan-presbyterian meeting are the ones of most abiding influence. They will remain long after the excitement of electing moderators has been forgotten. The most important aspect of the whole great meeting is doctrinal. An undercurrent of concern for the cardinal teachings of the Presbyterian faith flows through all four gatherings. The church in the United States has through its presbyteries, already decided to stand by the "elect infant" clause in the Westminster Confession. Everybody agrees that a more modern and explicit statement of the point at issue would be desirable, for, of course, "elect infants" implies "non-elect infants" but the church is determined not to be understood as receding at all from its fundamental and historic beliefs. Nevertheless it is possible that a brief statement of faith, entirely supplementary to the Westminster Confession, may be adopted at the various standing committees were made. Resolutions were adopted to join the other assemblies in the union meetings at the auditorium on the assurance of the moderator that such would by no means be a committal in favor of organic union. Various memorials, relating chiefly to matters of local interest, in addition to those bearing on the basis of union, were submitted from more than a dozen presbyteries in all sections of the country, and referred to committees. The presbytery of Scranton, Pa., asked that the spot on which the first United Presbyterian theological seminary was founded at Service, Pa., be suitably marked. The administrative committee of the federal council of the Churches of Christ in America memorialized the United Presbyterians to urge the city government of San Francisco and the board of directors of the Pan-American Exposition "to adopt every means to prevent the exploiting of commercialized vice, and to protect the morals of visitors to the 1915 exposition. On the motion of Rev. Dr. D. A. McClenahan, of the Allegheny presbytery, who declared that "titles are nothing more than fixtures stuck on by some college," the assembly voted to put all commissioners on the same footing, designating the commissioners on the floor of the assembly as "minister" or "reverend."

The assembly adopted the report of the special committee appointed last year to consider the advisability of uniting the board of home missions and the board of church extension, recommending that the two bodies continue to work independently. The two boards had little in common, the report said, and there was no special reason for the union. The morning session, which adjourned shortly before noon, at the afternoon session the assembly heard various reports and transacted routine business. U. S. ASSEMBLY PROCEEDINGS. Dr. Robert M. Russell, president of Westminster college, in Wilmington, Pa., was unanimously elected moderator of the fifty-fifth annual assembly of the United Presbyterian church, which opened at the Central Presbyterian church Thursday morning. Dr. Russell succeeds Dr. Hugh H. Bell, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, San Francisco. Dr. Russell was nominated by Dr. C. P. Proudfit, Dr. Des Moines. No other nominations were made and the election was by acclamation. The new moderator was presented with a handsome gavel made from wood taken from the first initial Presbyterian theological seminary at Service, Pa. In making the presentation, Dr. G. A. Beattie, of Atlanta, predicted the union of the United Presbyterian church with the Southern Presbyterian church, and said that if this union comes about, the new church will be called the United Presbyterian. A second gavel was presented by Dr. R. A. Hutchinson in the name of the home board of Pennsylvania. There were about 500 present at the opening session, 125 of whom were registered as commissioners. There were India and one from the presbytery of middle Egypt. Following the usual custom, the assembly was opened with the farewell sermon by the retiring moderator, Dr. Hugh H. Bell, of San Francisco. DR. BELL'S SERMON. Dr. Bell spoke on "The Living Christ," whose "living, personal presence" he termed "our greatest present day need." The vision of John on Patmos was so described as first to articulate its import upon modern life and second to impress the fact that "too much of our theology and religion and preaching today deals with a dead Christ, a dead Christ, a dead Christ; that of art, literature, poetry and music, a dead Christ, German socialism, he said, preaches a dead Christ. A pearl that faces even Protestantism, he declared, is the evasion of the spiritual, the avoidance of the supernatural. The personality of Christ as a living, moving influence of today's world, he said, is the greatest honor in the service its power inspires. In examples to show that this living Christ is now the source of the most universal ideals, Dr. Bell cited recent events in Korea, Egypt, China and other countries. While its note was generally encouraging, Dr. Bell sounded a warning against the materialism of the United States.

DR. J. T. CLYCE RETIRES AS SOUTHERN MODERATOR (Continued From Page 1.) There are no politics in the church and no pre-election campaigning for the high office of moderator.

DR. CLYCE'S SERMON. No reference to the proposed union of the various Presbyterian organizations was made in the sermon of Dr. T. S. Clyce. He took for the text of his sermon "Christ, the Soul's Eternal Satisfaction."

THE MODERATOR'S SERMON. He announced the subject of his sermon, "The victories of Faith versus the Failures of Unbelief," and read numerous passages of scripture.

REJECT THE DOUBTERS. After an exposition on the supernatural powers of the church as against the material Dr. Matthews declared that "we should change the ground of our objections to candidates for the ministry who doubt or deny the deity of Christ. They ought to be rejected not alone because they doubt or deny the deity of Christ, but because their denial is prima facie evidence that they have never been regenerated. No unregenerated man should be permitted to preach."

OFFICE SEEKERS BESIEGE COMMISSIONER J. J. PRICE

Many Candidates for Assistant Agricultural Commissioner—No Choice Yet

Candidates for the position of assistant commissioner of agriculture under Commissioner J. J. Price continue to multiply. Mr. Price has been in Atlanta for the past two days on business and during this time he has been seen by delegations in the interest of several candidates.

J. J. Conner, the present commissioner of agriculture, is an active candidate for the place of assistant and is having his friends throughout the state write Mr. Price in behalf of his support.

Some of the others whose names are mentioned in connection with the assistant commissionership are Martin V. Calvin, former director of the Georgia experiment station; Emmett Cabinn, former president of the Georgia division of the Farmers' union, and W. W. Wilson, congressman representative in the last legislature from Gwinnett county.

It was reported around the agricultural department Thursday morning that in the event Mr. Conner failed to land as assistant commissioner of agriculture he would most likely go after the position of pure food inspector or that of chief oil inspector.

NEW SALARY LAW THAT SUITS COURT, COMING

So Says Charles I. Branam, Leader of Fight to Abolish Fee System Here

Though the supreme court on Wednesday declared the Fulton county salary law unconstitutional, the fight for this system has just started and is sure of success at the coming session of the state legislature, according to Charles I. Branam, who was one of the most earnest advocates of the bill when it was passed by the 1912 legislature.

Here is what Mr. Branam has to say regarding the ruling of the court which declared the bill unconstitutional: "I see by the papers that the supreme court has reversed the decision of Judge Pendleton, who declared the 'salary system' bill unconstitutional.

When that decision of the supreme court is published the people will demand that a bill be introduced at once which will meet with the approval of the supreme court. This bill will be introduced at the coming session of the legislature in July and stronger argument than ever will be brought to bear for its passage."

SOUTHERN PACIFIC MUST DIVORCE CENTRAL PACIFIC

Attorney General McReynolds Reaches Tentative Decision in Dissolution Case

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, May 15.—Attorney General McReynolds has reached a tentative decision that the Central Pacific railroad should be divorced from the Southern Pacific in dissolution of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger. His conclusion, however, is not final, and today he began examination of a memorandum filed by the Southern Pacific to show that it is not necessary for the Southern Pacific to give up the Central Pacific.

Former Attorney General Wickham insisted that the Southern Pacific surrender the Central Pacific under threat of a suit under the Sherman law to accomplish that result. The final attitude of Attorney General McReynolds on the question probably will be a determining feature in the plan of dissolving the Union and Southern Pacific.

Welcome to the Presbyterians now in our midst.

We still have a belief that the Atlanta baseball team will come back.

It remains to be seen what effect Hiram Johnson's imitation big stick will have.

Atlanta Wins.

The oracle is justified. The omens were true. Atlanta has won the Shriners' convention for 1914.

She has won brilliantly and worthily over two stalwart contestants—Memphis, who has long been toiling and planning for the coveted prize and Buffalo who leaped daringly into the field at the eleventh hour with the committee's recommendation in its favor.

This result, though confidently expected, is none the less enthusiastically received. It is a victory of which any city in all the Union would be proud. It means that Atlanta will have as its guests next year tens of thousands of visitors from every State and every section of the country, the flower of one of the greatest fraternal orders in the world, representatives of the best and the highest elements of American citizenship.

For this great victory, especial praise must be given that splendid delegation of Atlanta and Georgia Shriners who, under the leadership of Messrs. Forrest Adair, John A. Hynds, Claude H. Hutcheson and W. A. Foster, were chiefly instrumental in winning the next national convention for the Gate City.

Prof. Taft probably wonders how it is possible to handle a tariff bill as it is being handled now.

The suffragettes are supplying England with the warfare that country has been missing for so many years.

The old fashioned city man who used to laugh at the farmers discussing crops now keeps his ear to the ground.

Now that Scutari has been turned over to the powers, we can face the bill collector with some degree of composure.

Colquitt County's Great Good Roads Campaign.

One of the most interesting good roads enterprises in Georgia today is that of Colquitt county whose commissioners have undertaken to improve within the current year three hundred miles of public highways. This ambitious task has been apportioned among six crews of laborers, each under competent supervision and all working in accordance with a general plan toward a common end.

That is the great value of constructing roads according to a comprehensive design rather than piecemeal or independently. Each stretch of highway should be considered in its relationship to the roads as a whole and to the people's common interests. Roads which are thus developed are permanent and diffusive in their usefulness. They quicken the progress of the entire community and tend to the upbuilding of both commerce and agriculture, of the town as well as of the farm. They create a wider and keener sense of county pride and open the way for all manner of constructive and cooperative endeavors.

A particularly notable feature of the Colquitt county work is its provision of means for maintaining the roads after they are improved. Much labor and money are often wasted by the neglect of this important need. The constant upkeep of roads is as important as their construction; and a comparatively small fund used in prompt repairs will save thousands of dollars to taxpayers.

It is said that the farmers of Colquitt county have been instrumental in the enterprise that is now under way. They realize the vital need of good roads and, as The Journal's correspondent writes, "are demanding them at almost any price." Certain it is that nothing is so costly to agricultural interests as poor roads. It is estimated that the cost of hauling, which amounts to millions of dollars in the United States each year and to great sums of money in each State and county, could be cut in half, if the country were provided with an adequate number of well kept and closely linked highways. It is the part of economy as well as progress for every county to develop its roads. The liberal and far-reaching campaign of Colquitt should be a stimulating example to every community in Georgia.

The Ad Men's Edition Of The Sunday Journal.

Next Sunday's Journal will be distinctively interesting as the annual edition of the Atlanta Ad Men's Club. A liberal percentage of the proceeds from the advertisements in that issue will go to the Ad Men as an aid to their "On To Baltimore Campaign." It is a fact universally known that whatever the Ad Men touch, they make particularly worth while. The Journal of Sunday, May the eighteenth, will reflect the energy and the driving power that characterizes every enterprise of that progressive organization.

The value of the Ad Men's Club to Atlanta's civic and business growth cannot be overgauged. Its members are continually striving with enthusiasm and foresight to upbuild the community's interests and to heighten and extend the city's prestige. They not only originate constructive plans of their own, but they also stand ready at all times to aid every worthy or progressive cause. Indeed, there is no forward-looking movement of recent years in which they have not played a generous and helpful part. They are our everlasting optimists, our never-tiring builders.

The Journal deems it a privilege to turn over to the Ad Men its edition for the coming Sunday. Their share of the advertising proceeds from that issue will assist them materially, we trust, in realizing their ambition to make an especially fine showing at the next annual meeting of the national organization at Baltimore. They are entitled to the heartiest good will and support of their city's business interests and of the public generally.

When the society ball season ends that of the moth ball begins.

The Fight for Direct Primaries in New York.

A particularly interesting campaign in behalf of popular government as opposed to machine rule is now afoot in New York state, where an extra session of the Legislature is soon to meet to deal with the Direct Primary bill. The purpose of this measure is to enable the rank and file of a political party to choose their nominee for any office instead of being compelled, as is now the case, to accept the candidate of a convention which is more often than otherwise dominated by corrupt bosses. Its advocates contend that under the party system of government, the people must control the parties, if they are really to control their government and that to this end they must be permitted to vote on nominees as well as on candidates in the regular election. Otherwise, particular interests can name their representatives as candidates of both or all parties and leave the people to fight out a mock battle at the polls.

This bill was defeated at the regular session of the Legislature by an alliance between Tammany and Republican bosses—the "Barnes-Murphy machine," as it is popularly known. On such an issue as this the self-serving politicians know no party differences. The progressive forces are determined, however, that at the extra session the pressure of public sentiment and public judgment shall be brought to bear as heavily as possible upon those legislators who hesitate between loyalty to the people and the machine.

Governor Sulzer is showing qualities of true leadership by using every influence at his command to break the power of the machine leaders. "The best of it is," comments the New York Evening Post, "that Murphy's hold on his machine now really seems to be loosening. As members of the organization see one federal office after another going to their party enemies, they must again curse the stupidity that marked Murphy's course at Baltimore, to which they are doubtless attributing Wilson's anti-Tammany policy; though others may justly feel that the President's attitude toward Tammany would have been the same had Murphy voted for him at the convention."

The man who is anxious to buy usually gets the worst of the bargain.

THE INCOME TAX VIII.—Effect Upon Other Taxes. BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

One of the principal objections to the imposition of an income tax in the United States has come from the advocates of protection, the ground being that the collection of such a tax would lessen the demand of the treasury for income from customs collections, and, therefore, it would be a blow at the principle of protection. Upon the present basis of expenditures in the United States the amount of money needed from customs ranges around $325,000,000, and anything that tends to reduce this amount, of course, tends to weaken one of the favorite arguments of the protectionists against a lowering of the tariff—that the government needs the money. Their opponents contend that this is no argument in favor of protection at all, since prohibitive duties do not add anything directly to the public treasury, but serve only to keep out foreign goods. On the other hand, it is to be said that not all protectionists agree that an income tax is necessarily an assault upon protection. Those who hold that it is not, declare that under our rapidly expanding governmental activities additional appropriations are needed, and to meet them additional revenues must be forthcoming—additional revenues that can best be supplied by an income tax.

It is probable that no one will deny that as proposed by the Democrats an income tax is an assault upon protection. They propose to use it as a means of revenue raising that not only will permit them to cut out prohibitive duties entirely, but to lower some revenue-producing duties as well. Without this tax the Democrats could not cut tariff duties below a point where they would yield an annual revenue of over $300,000,000. With this income tax they can probably cut them to a point where they will yield $100,000,000 less.

The great expansion of the national demands for revenue that has taken place, shows that if any kind of tax which we choose to levy is kept at even an approximately normal rate, from time to time new methods must be found of raising such revenues. In the early days of the republic, when there was an especial pinch in government finances, a direct tax apportioned among the states, was levied. For nearly a half century before the Civil war the customs receipts were about the only form of taxes that the United States needed to carry on the affairs of the government. Then came the great war, and everything in sight had to be taxed, with the result that the internal-revenue taxes were created. After the war these taxes on production were retained for the purpose of meeting the interest on the national debt, and they have been continued so long that everybody seems now to take them as a matter of course. Now the country has come to a pass where even these two forms of taxation do not yield enough to meet the expenditures of the government in lean years, and Uncle Sam seeks something that will save him from putting up the ordinary internal revenue taxes and the revenue-producing clauses of the tariff law.

Taxing authorities generally agree that the United States taxes its people less heavily than any other principal country in the world. If the American people were willing to bear the same burdens of taxation that are cheerfully borne by the British, the German, the French and the other nations of Europe, a simple system of internal revenue taxation would yield a billion where now it yields a few hundred million dollars.

The one plain lesson of the history of American taxation is that in these latter days, when so much revenue is needed, that no one tax will meet all of the purposes and emergencies of the country, and that supplemental taxation must be rendered possible if national life is to be assured. A national land tax as the engine of raising the national revenues would be outrageously high; a national customs tax to meet them all would demand a tariff wall higher than the highest of all the high points of protection would enact, and an internal revenue tax to keep the treasury solvent would force the price of drinks and smokes up so high or else compel the extension of the tax to so many commonplace subjects, that the people would rise in protest. It is by supplementing one tax with another and understanding them both with a third that sufficient revenue can be raised and the objections of the people forestalled.

The national government has the advantage of the state governments in the matter of taxation—nearly all of its taxes are "unconscious" taxes. The man who buys a suit of clothes made of cloth of English weave cannot tell how much he has contributed to the United States treasury by the transaction. Likewise, the man who smokes a box of Havana cigars knows nothing of what Uncle Sam gets out of the price he paid for them. Perhaps no man in America could calculate within 40 per cent of just how much tax he pays Uncle Sam each year through the customs houses. Not knowing what his burden is, and indeed in many instances ignorant of the fact that he is burdened at all, such taxes do not arouse opposition. No one thinks of objecting to the internal revenue taxes, and the objection made to the tariff taxes are not based upon the amount the government exacts, but upon the alleged fact that home manufacturers use these rates as a shelter from competition.

With the income tax it is different. There a man calculates it in dollars and cents. He knows exactly what his burden is, and that knowledge makes it seem the heavier. It follows that there is more dissatisfaction and often an effort to dodge the burden. It is plain that only a long process of education could lead the American people to stand and be taxed as they are. If they could tell just how much that is, if an income tax were the sole source of raising revenues the rates would have to be so high or the exemption so low that there would be serious trouble.

It has been suggested in some quarters that the American income tax ought to be levied in the same way that the inheritance tax in England is levied—the general government imposing and collecting it and turning a specified part of it over to the states for their use. It is pointed out that the general property tax, to a large degree, has had the worst fortune written across its face. With personal property becoming more and more intangible every year, dodging taxes upon it has become correspondingly easy. The story is told of a former United States senator generally rated as worth a half million dollars in personal property. When the assessor came around that man was so poor in his own goods that he could find only a watch and a saddle horse to assess. If this idea of making the income tax for the joint use of the state and the nation should ever be adopted it would probably do away entirely with the personal property tax.

Under the political situation as it stands today the income tax law, which the next few months promise to place upon the federal statute books, will differ from the corporation tax in its effect upon other sources of federal revenue. While it will not interfere in any particular with the internal taxes or rates, it will result in the lowering of many tariff duties. When the corporation tax was created it was not for the purpose of enabling congress to lower the then existing tariffs but rather to supplement the income from the customs houses in order to prevent a continuing deficit in the treasury. The income tax levied by the Democrats will make the latter end their secondary aim and the lowering of the tariff their primary object.

The Metric System. You've had a lot of verses in lambs, And, really, some of them have been quite nice. But why not change the meter just a little To furnish us the w. k. spice of life?

Just try a short verse done in Alcian Strophe. It gives a sweet touch—one much enjoyed in spring-time. And then it's simple. I'm not kidding; Easy enough so contris can use it.

Maybe you've heard of the meter—the one that I'm using in this verse— 'Tis, really rather hard to write it. Some think it sounds very well—it's known as the First Pythianic— Just try it once, the boss may like it.

All these meters are good; this one especially so. Why? Because it is strange—Novelty's always welcome. Third Asclepiadean, a sort of hard name, but you Needn't put it in verse—I do.

Others may find still another arrangement of syllables easy. Why don't they try the Alcanman Strophe? Not in itself so good, the some excellent poets have used it. Still, it's amusing because of its oddness.

Greatest advantage of all these is that you don't need any rhyming. This makes the task of writing rather simple. Now I am using the Fourth Archilochian (Horace used to use it)— It's great for dashing off your minor efforts.

The, in the past I have tried to get into the colyum with verses. Always I've met with rebuffs, for my rhymes have been shaky and doubtful; Now, since at last I've succeeded, I'll give all due praise to the meter.

That got me at last into print—Dactylic Hexameter did it. Why not have it continued? F. J. C. W.

A COMPRESSED PLAYLET FROM LIFE, BY BROCK. The scene is the women's Night Court. The court room is deserted except for a dozing attendant; and the judge, who sits reading behind the bench; and two women. The latter, richly gowned and plainly from homes of culture and refinement, sit at the rear of the room whispering quietly and watching the door eagerly. As the evening wears on and no one arrives to disturb the serenity of the court the two show their disappointment, and at length, after two hours of vain waiting, the young woman aishes and approaches the judge. Her Paquin gown of blue pan velvet and her black picture hat are in striking contrast to the dinginess of her surroundings.

SHE (timidly to the judge)—Do you suppose there will be any cases to-night? JUDGE (looking down over his glasses with a quizzical smile)—I am afraid, my dear young lady, that it is too cold to-night.

SHE—Oh, I'm so sorry. (Then in confusion she adds)—I mean I'm sorry for the poor girls. The judge resumes his reading, the attendant settles himself for another doze, and the women, with keen disappointment written on their faces, depart.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY By Herbert Corey.

"Theatrical managers," said one of them the other day, "are just as wise as a tree full of owls—dead owls."

He was pawing through a desk drawer filled with receipts. "I've been in this business ten years," said he. "But not until this spring did I discover there's a leak in my meter. It's a wonder I haven't been run down some time by a baby carriage."

Each year he has made from one to ten productions. Each production cost him from $5,000 to $15,000 before the curtain went up. "We all did the same," said he. "No manager can read a play and tell whether it's good. He can't hear one read and tell whether it's good. He has to see it produced before an audience—and then he tells it's good. He don't know why the people like it. He's content to know that they do."

Now managers do it differently. There are scattered over this country several good stock companies, filled with capable he and she actors, with plenty of costumes and scenery in the cellar, and managed by people who know the difference between an owl lunch and a stage brace. So the manager gives the script of his play and $500 or $700 to the boss, before a real audience. It costs about one-tenth of the old plan. "That," said the manager, "is why I insist that we managers have heads like hammers. Why didn't we think of that before?"

Kurt Sternberg has a factory over in Jersey. He is a cousin of Speck von Sternberg, who for ages was the German ambassador at Washington, and is related to every von in the Fatherland. Just because he has a family tree that is all cluttered up with grandfathers, he doesn't care for them. Long ago he dropped the "von" and the "baron." He has become positively passionate in his democracy.

"Mrs. Sternberg is just as determined in her Americanism," said C. S. Huntley, president of the German Publication Society. "Not long ago one of the younger Prince Zu Eulenburg came over here—and there is no heftier family in Germany than the Zu Eulenburgs—and naturally called on Sternberg. It happened that Mrs. Sternberg herself answered the door. Zu Eulenburg clicked his heels together. "The Prince Zu Eulenburg," he announced, "to see the Herr Baron von Sternberg."

"Wrong address," said Mrs. Sternberg, sweetly. "No Baron lives here. And she closed the door. The Prince Zu Eulenburg went away dazed, and thought it out. By and by he won illumination, and rang at the door again. He lifted his hat politely. "Please," said he, "tell Mr. Sternberg that Mr. Eulenburg has come."

There are other ways of making a strike breaker quit than by bouncing rectangular dornicks off his bald spot. One of the new ways is in use over in Paterson—where almost every other sort of way, including the time-tried half brick, is already in use. They call the new scheme "the silence."

"I saw 'em use it the other day," said a New York newspaper man. "A gang of thick-wristed foreigners were doing some work outside one of the silk mills against which a strike had been ordered. They were shove and pickeling along heartily, when the strikers came. Perhaps there were 500 strikers, men, women, and many little boys and girls. They hung their heads over the picket fence and watched the workers inside—in perfect silence."

"After ten minutes it became nerve-breaking. You can't imagine the tension. By and by one of the workers—a big two-fisted chap—straightened his back and shook his fist at the strikers. "Come on," he dared them. "Do us something." "No one said a word. Five minutes later the workers were quitting. They couldn't stand that silent pressure."

One of the important books of the year is Henry T. Finck's "Food and Flavor." In it he calls attention to the manner in which the United States is neglecting the edible opportunities on every side. He places especial stress on the number of food fishes that are being wasted now because of some foolish prejudice.

"We might almost double our consumption of fish," said Hugh Smith, the new head of the fisheries bureau, shortly before he was named for that post. "There are scores of varieties of fish that never reach the market now. No one knows why exactly."

Mr. Smith instanced the dog fish. This is simply a young shark and a confirmed and habitual pest to professional fishermen. It is never eaten, and of course, never put on the market. "There is no better fish for table use," said Mr. Smith. "The flesh is sweet, tender and delicate—far better than some of our recognized food fishes because of its method of feeding—and yet it is scorned. In ten more years we will be eating full-sized sharks, and scores of other fishes that we shudder at now. The fish are all right. We don't know they are good. That's all."

That most incomparable of grandmothers, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, thinks that America is one fine place. All except the scorpions. If she had to live on American food, she fears her digestion would be just a mess of wrinkles.

"This isn't right," said the serious gastronomer. "Mme. Bernhardt doubtless never ate a real American meal. It isn't likely now that she ever will."

He pointed out that not in all New York is there a hotel or restaurant in which real American dishes, cooked in the real American way, are served exclusively.

"Think of terrapin," he said. "Not four hotel cooks in town could do it justice. New York dopes beans with sugar and Italian paste and blames Boston with 'em. The mince pie you get nowadays would ruin a dog. What has become of the crisp, flaky, deliciously rich doughnut of yesterday? These soggy automobile wheels dipped in oil and sprinkled in sugar were never invented in New England. Where can you get chicken gumbo of the sort that bred fighting men and pretty women? Ham—Ham!"

Once they cured ham in the smoke of a hickory fire—and scented it with honey, and let it ripen for three years under the blackened rafters before the cook touched it with his gray blade. Now it is embalmed by an undertaker and fried by an assassin. Ever try to break into a turkey varnished and petrified in a Versailles—and, then think of the big, tender, toothsome bird that used to be put down before grandfather at noon of Christmas day? Wonder if Mme. Sarah ever tasted her cake—the real hoe cake?"

The gastronomer thought that in seven hours, and with about twelve miles of taxi fares, he could give Mme. Sarah a real American dinner. But it would involve visiting nine different New York eating houses for the various courses.

"Think of it," he mourned. "A town of 5,000,000 people—and not a dozen American cooks!"

SENATE'S WRANGLE MAY RUIN UNDERWOOD BILL

Wilson Withholding Patronage to Drive Democratic Senators to Support

WASHINGTON, May 15.—For four days now the senate has been wrestling with the tariff bill and has made absolutely no progress. The Democrats with their uncertain working majority have not even succeeded in referring the measure to the finance committee. Until this is done the legislative wheels of the upper chamber can not be set in motion.

Senator Penrose's motion to throw open the bill to further public hearings is the stumbling block that confronts the dominant party and notwithstanding President Wilson's professions of confidence, the situation is admittedly more critical today than it was forty-eight hours ago. Some of the administration's strongest friends admit privately a fear that the measure will be emasculated. Here is a dire prediction of one of Mr. Wilson's warmest admirers in the senate: "I am not a prophet or the son of a prophet nor am I one of the elder statesmen who is supposed to shape matters, but I have seen enough and I have heard enough to arouse a belief in my head that the bill will be badly cut up in the senate. The finance committee will make enough changes in the measure to let down the bars and open the way for a lot of log rolling that could have been prevented if we had undertaken our revision schedule by schedule, instead of by an omnibus bill.

The senate and the president wanted schedule by schedule changes but Mr. Underwood, whom I admire, wanted to perpetuate his name in history and so we have the present undesirable situation.

PATRONAGE WITHHELD.
While senators and representatives hesitate to admit that such sordid motives as patronage greed animate them it is unquestionably true that the present situation is aggravated by what many members believe to be the president's lassitude in the distribution of federal patronage. In other words the president is not supplying enough oil to lubricate the machinery. Already there can be heard echoes of a growing suspicion that the president is holding his patronage as a big stick to whip through the tariff legislation.

This has aroused much resentment and some of the president's friends on Capitol Hill believe that he would fare better if he spread on a little patronage salve. The experience quoted by Representative Cordell Hull, of Tennessee, who is the author of the income tax, is regarded as typical of what is being said about the president at the capitol. "I've not been much concerned about patronage," said Mr. Hull, "because I have been engrossed with the income tax. At odd times, however, I have visited the departments and worn out a pair of shoes trying to do something for my constituents.

"One rural carrier represents the sum total of my appointments, Mr. Underwood, and he stood first on the eligible list. When Cleveland was president he had reorganized the diplomatic corps and the consular service within two months after his inauguration. Mr. Wilson has made only three diplomatic appointments and hasn't touched the consular service yet. He has been in going on three months."

It is easy to see that the congressmen are now obsessed with thoughts about patronage. They are under pressure from the folks at home. Yet they do not seem to realize the pressure that the president has been under in the last two months in regard to questions of state transcending patronage matters so far as the welfare of the country has been concerned.

Another aggravating factor in the senate situation is the lack of leadership such as the house had under the guidance of Mr. Underwood. Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, although earnest and sincere, is not equal to the extraordinary demand of the occasion with its many peculiar elements. He does not seem to be able to reconcile the conflicting elements that the administration has to contend with and falls far short of displaying in debate that masterly which is such a help to Mr. Underwood.

Mr. Simmons' former record as a tariff protectionist is also embarrassing, as was illustrated in a colloquy he had Tuesday with Senator Penrose. In comparing Mr. Simmons with Underwood it is only fair to say that Mr. Simmons is hampered by the roary traditions of senatorial oratory and unlimited debate, whereas Mr. Underwood had at his command the flexible rules of the house which can be shaped to cut off debate and railroad any measure. Besides, Mr. Underwood had, relatively speaking, a docile membership in back of him when it came to roll calls.

SUGAR SENATORS FEEL BETTER.
The sugar senators, although they are being branded as traitors to the party, are feeling much better over the outlook now than they have at any time since the president laid it down that he wanted free sugar within three years. They are beginning to believe that they will be able to force a compromise, providing for the rate that is now proposed in the Underwood bill and eliminating the provision that this duty be removed within three years.

In reflecting on the seriousness of the situation it must be remembered that President Wilson has not yet attempted to exert the full force of his leadership on the senate. That is to say, he has done nothing since the bill was sent over by the house and it is hardly probable that he will get into action until it becomes more evident that the senate leaders, themselves, are unable to control the situation.

He is said to be rather indifferent about intervening with a lot of men who are so jealous of their prerogatives as are the senators. The Republicans, of course, are in high feather over the conditions that confront the administration. Things are breaking their way, and they are making the most of it. The confirmed nominations of the president are offering them an opportunity to add to the embarrassment of the situation. When the tariff bill came up in the senate again today there was a wrangle over whether it or Senator Kern's resolutions for an investigation of the West Virginia coal strike situation should have the right if way. Mr. Kern finally agreed to defer his resolution until 5 o'clock.

An agreement to vote on the question of public hearings after five hours' debate was about to be made by unanimous consent when Senator William Alden Smith blocked it.

"The attitude of the other side of the chamber," said he, "is so arbitrary in this matter that I don't feel it calls for any generosity from this side."

Debate was then resumed on the Penrose-La Follette amendment to the motion to refer the bill to the finance committee. The amendment was to instruct the committee to give public hearings.

SHARP TILT IN HOUSE.
Secretary Redfield's broad intimation to the business that the federal government would investigate cuts in wages that looked like reprisals for the passage of the tariff bill brought out a sharp cross-fire of speeches today between Chairman Underwood and Representative Mondell, Republican of Wyoming.

WILL ATTEND U. C. V. REUNION

Miss Jessie Blacker, sponsor, and Miss Francis Weinmeister, maid of honor who will go with Joseph E. Brown camp, No. 1776, United Confederate Veterans, to the Confederate reunion in Chattanooga on May 27, 28 and 29.

"Every right minded citizen," continued Mondell, "hopes for the favorable conduct of the country's industries, but I know of no law which says any man shall continue to give employment to labor under adverse conditions and continue his business at a loss."

The Democrats, he declared, were revising the tariff with the people in a most favorable frame of mind, and it was "ungracious to warn manufacturers that unless they continue to conduct their business at a possible loss, they will be investigated to satisfy the high and mighty secretary of commerce."

UNDERWOOD TAKES HAND.
"The situation is just this," rejoined Mr. Underwood amid applause by the Democrats. "If you look through the tariff hearings you will find statement after statement of manufacturers that if a Democratic house reduced the tariff in the interests of the people they would take the reduction out of the labor in the factories and mills. "Man after man said 'what reduction you make will come out of labor.' We intend that where these industries are making enormous profits, and many of them are, that reductions shall come out of the unreasonable profits and they shall not continue to make those profits at the expense of their labor. "A short time ago you Republicans contended for a tariff board to ascertain the facts, that industry and labor might be safeguarded in making a tariff. Now that the machinery has started to ascertain the facts, you run to cover, you show the white feather because you are afraid of a fair investigation. We won't interfere with labor, but when a manufacturer says he is cutting wages because of tariff reductions we want to know if he is telling the truth. If he is not and he is simply punishing labor, then the fact should be made public. If he is telling the truth we want to know it."

MR. M'CONNELL CALLED AS TABERNACLE PASTOR

Congregation Chooses Him as Dr. MacArthur's Successor, Believed He'll Accept

By a unanimous vote of the congregation, Rev. Lincoln McConnell, a native of Tennessee, and known throughout the religious world as a noted lecturer and evangelist, was Wednesday night called to the pastorate of the Baptist Tabernacle.

The name of Dr. McConnell was placed in nomination before the membership of the church by A. C. Boatman, chairman of a committee of five that has had the selection of a successor to Dr. MacArthur in its hands for several weeks.

It is the belief of the committee and members of the congregation that Dr. McConnell will accept the call, though no definite statement has ever been gained from him.

Mr. McConnell is now conducting a meeting at Higginville, Mo., and telegrams were sent to him at that place from Atlanta on Wednesday night. The formal call will go to him Thursday, in which he will be asked to fill the place formerly occupied by Dr. Len G. Broughton and later by Dr. R. S. MacArthur. Mr. McConnell is well known here as the pastor in 1903 and 1904 of the Wesley Memorial church. Later he joined the Baptist church at Kansas City.

Of late Mr. McConnell has been engaged in lecture and evangelistic work, and has several lecture engagements which must be met before he could assume his new duties.

He is forty-seven years old, a man of fine stature and address, and a great deal of personal popularity.

At the same meeting, the members of the church raised the remainder of the $2,000 necessary to secure the donation of $3,000 from Andrew Carnegie and finish paying for the big organ in the church auditorium.

THANKS ATLANTIAN FOR COMING TO HIS AID

Editor The Journal: I wish to acknowledge through the columns of your paper my great appreciation of the kindness shown to me by one of your citizens, young Mr. Rawson Collier. I was on my way as guest to the home of Colonel Traylor, who was and is to be my host as a commissioner to the southern general assembly during my stay in Atlanta. The colored man while carefully driving the cab, was suddenly confronted by two approaching automobile cars, which converging together smashed the cab and gave me a painful cut in the forehead.

Mr. Rawson Collier, though a total stranger, came to my relief, took me to the sanitarium of Dr. Elkin, who neatly dressed my wound, waited for me during the operation, and then kindly took me to the home of Colonel Traylor. For this golden deed to a perfect stranger I thank my benefactor. All honor to Atlanta's citizen, May the Lord reward him. XENOPHON RYLAND.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

THERE is so much talk among those who are trying out new fashions that it is interesting to watch the success of the introduction of colored blouses which do not match the suits.

This is a fashion that has had its chances for success more than once, sometimes it made good, sometimes it did not. Whether or not it will succeed this summer is all in the air, but the times are right for it. No matter what next autumn will bring forth in the way of dress and sedate colorings the atmosphere of the moment is charged with vivid colors. This in itself argues a season ahead of us full of inartistic clothes worn by the many.

The well dressed woman takes care of herself no matter how delirious are the fashions. From the manner in which the shops are exploiting the colored blouse and fashioning it in alluring materials it is likely that such talk will catch many a fish. Even the minority who may prefer to cling to simple white blouses during warm weather may be enticed into buying a colored blouse that is more white in it to give delicacy.

We all become weary of the same kind of waist day in and day out through the summer months, because many of us wear them all winter, and it is human nature to want to change.

The first of these colored blouses came in striped silks, which are very much more worn abroad than here. Over there they are used for wide, long waists in dark suits, which is a revival of the directoire costume for men. Over here the only touches that we have seen of striped silks are in the sashes of Roman ribbon which young girls are wearing across the hips on black and dark blue suits, and which older women are wearing as tight girders, as revers and as facings to loose three-quarter sleeves.

Now these broad stripes have been made up into shortwaists. They give an enlivening dash of color to any kind of coat and skirt and are especially popular in the successful waists which women will wear instead of blouses. These stripes are not always vivid; the first choice is in yellow and blue, the colors so much worn during the Revolution in women's skirts.

Brilliant Colored Blouses.

THERE are half and half waists, as they are called, which are made of satin and cloth, or of the one material. The deep yoke with sleeves is in one color and the lower half in another color. Harmonious contrast is sought, but the most vivid contrast is chosen. Cherry red with Chinese blue and kinks' blue and half blouses and kinks' blue and grass green form another. White and black are put together less often than white and red, white and yellow and white and pink.

There are white moire blouses to correspond with the fashion for white and tan moire suits. These are trimmed with a good deal of decorative Persian and Turkish embroidery which is carried out to give the line of a Turkish bolero. There is a belt of Roman or Cubist ribbon which is fastened in an ostentatious bow.

The shops have made a good deal of the rose fabric designed by Irlbe for Paul Poiret, who, as you may remember, created a rather wonderful gown of it for the American buyers this spring; that fabric is now used with its single American Beauty rose and green leaves and stem stamped on it for the making of blouses. There is much of white lace put with it, which is necessary if one would choose not to look like a piece of wall paper; in truth, nearly all the new waists have soft vests in them of folded wash tulle and lace running from shoulder to waist. Sometimes there is a high collar; often there is a ruffled collar.

Some women who can dare much have gone in for brilliant red or green or yellow satin blouses with suits of dark colors. The effect is really interesting to the eye given by a white blouse. Brilliant colors had their birth in tropical countries, but they can only be tolerated by tropical people in hot weather for any length of time, and the American woman who tries to wear a blood red gown on a day when the thermometer marks blood red heat is liable to lose her mind in the process. The combination makes one hysterical.

Cotton Blouses in Gay Tones.

THIS madness for color has not been confined to costly and ornamental waists, but it has reached the commoner fabrics. Muslins, and especially fine cotton sponge and Chinese crepe and poplin, are made up in colors or in white lavishly touched with color. Turquoise blue, batiste and deep rose pink will both be used for morning shirt waists with white and tan linen suits.

In their making there is a strong likeness to an old fashion in which we once liked very much, a shoulder yoke, lowered armholes, seam heading everywhere, and the lower part of the blouse planned to the edge of the yoke, which runs straight around the figure under the arms. There is a rolling collar more or less wide, finished with hemstitching instead of lace and long sleeves, gathered into hemstitched turnover cuffs.

With many of these colored blouses go brilliant circles of Roman striped silk, directoire silk and the so-called Cubist silk, which have resolved themselves into that set design the Vienna workshouse has made a specialty of, and which is used so much in decorating. The design has a flat color for background and large round balls in vivid colors placed at regular intervals on the surface.

THE EVENING STORY NOBODY'S DOG

(Copyright, 1912, by W. Werner.)

"POAH them! Poah them! Doan you gib up 'caze dem omamrful Gypsies went off and lef you in yosh 'flections. Sandy, he's gwine 'tend to you!"

The saunt black-and-tan hound, that, with three broken ribs and a broken leg, had yet managed to drag himself to the long dead grass under the poked-weed stalks beside the creek's bridge, had reached the scale in misery that makes the near approach of death desirable. But the voice coming from the small bundle of tatters and tar-black flesh and kneeling beside him were tenderness, sympathy, encouragement and love.

The dog opened his eyes and attempted to respond.

"Da now, da now," the cheering voice went on, "nemmine tryin' to sheek youn tail. Des lhp dis heah water, and den Sandy's gwine fix up dat broke leg, an' arter a while he's gwine tote you wha nothin' won't pester you."

Six months before, when the gypsy caravan led by Black John turned northward, he had stolen from a Texas plantation a blooded yearling hound. The dog had been reasonably happy in following the wagons of the dark people, but at the moment of breaking camp on Elam creek a fractious pony had twice kicked him before he could evade his heels.

Later the hound was beginning to sniff the air and howl, when he heard the baying of hounds in the chase at night, a fact not to the gypsy's liking. The sense of justice and mercy was not highly developed in Black John. When he saw the dog was maimed and helpless he first struck the pony and then kicked the hound when he tried to struggle up and follow the wagons. Ripped, a half-grown lad, stooped to pick up the wounded dog, but the master forbade him with an oath.

Lysander, the nine-year-old foster son of Neptune Backwater, water carrier to his parents, and three other negroes cutting corn just over the fence, looked with pitying eyes upon this canine tragedy, and in an interim of his water-carrying stole across the road to the injured dog.

With skilful fingers he whittled some splints, and with a section of the tail of his decrepit shirt, that he reasoned Georgian, his foster mother, would never miss, he bound up the leg. Sandy had been a "gift child." His mother had assisted Georgian in an unusually large washing, and suddenly stricken, had died the same day. Her last words had been the solemn injunction that the Backwaters would keep her orphan. According to Georgian: "Whut da fuh us do but keep and feed de young us? Huh ghost'd come back and hant us forever kin we didn't!"

An unwelcome member of a household is not weighed down with privileges. Lysander's realization of this fact was both wide and deep. He had been born with a mighty love for dogs in general, but for a long time, ever since the Backwaters had come to live on the farm young Tybalt Helm, who kept foxhounds, the burning desire of Lysander for a dog of his own had been too great for utterance had he dared to attempt to utter it.

It was that evening Sandy carried the hound to a dilapidated tumble-down cabin, in a field a quarter of a mile from his parents' house. Here he made a comfortable bed of leaves and dry grass for him and gave him the half of a corn pone.

"I'd a fatched you soppin' moan, honey," he whispered, "but de chiluns likt up ubbah mouffe, and half you mouffe to do but keep and feed de young us? Mebbe in de mawnin', dough, I kin retch you a bacon rine! You' hab 'scuse me a keepin' you away out heah by yoan-se' ontel you gits well." Sandy's tones were full of apologetic regret: "h'd kind o' tubn pap's stomach to hab a sick dog arroun', I'm feeded; when you gits well da'll be some way run me to keep you widout hidin' you." Sandy always had been humbly obedient and a willing servant, but in the days following the accidental acquisition of his heart's desire he well might run his feet off in continuous pitiful efforts to please Georgian. And when he occasionally asked her meekly for a big "cawn pone," she had not the heart to refuse him.

"Da ain't no price da'd make me sell him."

"You don't bring in no moah young rabbits, Sandy, like you ust to," she complained one day. "Looks like somethin' when you' out in de fields you mout run up on dey nestles. Dey makes sich good flavorn' fer brekfus' gravy." If skin that is the color of pitch could redder, Sandy would have blushed scarlet. His prowess was unchanged, but the victims of his hunting skill went into the breakfast plate of a black and tan hound.

"Whered dat fellow come from, Sandy?"

Sandy had brought his dog out in the mild sunshine in front of the old cabin, one morning early in December, and taken the splints from his leg. In his delight that the dog could walk, apparently as well as ever, he failed to observe the keen, quizzical gray eyes that studied him and the hound. But at the voice, the little negro sprang up, his ears fluttering, even his bare toes quivering in consternation.

"I—Mistuh Tybalt, dis heah is a dog whut—whut—jes' come to me, suh." Helm laughed. "Well, he's the best shaped hound I've seen since the national meet in November. I haven't got a dog in the park that beats him for ears and nose and general build, unless it's Old Baldy. Whered you get him, Sandy?"

Sandy told him "I—I wants to keep him, Mistuh Ty." He faltered at the end of his recital. "But I's terrible feerd pap and mammy won't lemme keep him 'count o' de eats!"

Helm laughed again. "You come 'round to the house every day and get scraps for him and plump out his hide a little! I'll tell Nep to let you keep him."

To Sandy the days that followed until the end of January were filled with bliss. That black humanity seldom knows. As soon as Fats' leg was entirely strong Tybalt Helm "borrowed" him "to see what he could do." The hound proved his blood and training on the first run and before three weeks Helm declared with a few more nights' runs he would be the equal of Old Baldy, his prize winning hound. When he offered to buy him the little negro owner burst into tears.

"I—I can't sell him, Mistuh Ty. He's jest de same as a part o' me." Helm was expecting Melbourn Rodney—a friend from Louisiana—a mighty lover of the hounds, for a month's visit in the spring, and he was anxious for his hounds to make a good showing in the friend's eyes.

"Come, Sandy," he went on persuasively, "I'll give you $20 for him." Sandy's answer was almost a moan. "Pleasee don't tell pap you wants to buy him, Mistuh Ty! Da ain't no price dat'd make me sell him, but pap'd hand him over to you 'foah you could say 'scuse.' " "I'll not tell Nep," the young man promised, "and I'll give you another week to think it over."

Next day the information that the state had imposed a yearly tax of $1 on every dog with its borders came to Sandy. From that moment he could neither eat nor sleep. He could never get a dollar. The next five days were days of soaking rain. On the sixth day he partially cleared and Sandy, wandor'ing disconsolately across the Helm farm, heard a dog's long, complaining howl under the cliff. A white hound, with lemon spots—Helm's Old Baldy—dragged and pulled at a trap—a trap set for a skunk under an overhanging spur of the cliff.

"Him sees da's gwine be a landslide terrectly—dat's de reason him's getting so rambunctious!" thought Sandy as he deftly released the hound's poor, swollen foot.

The dog leaped aside, but Sandy, hampered with brogans, stumbled. The water-soaked dirt and the hound's howl to the earth, Helm, searching anxiously for his missing dog, a half-hour later, discovered Sandy bruised and unconscious.

"The rock kin in a inch o' gittin' Old Baldy, Mistuh Ty," he told him, when his senses returned. "I jes' had got his foot out'n de trap when de slide come. Last I seed o' him he was timplin' along makin' tracks tode home." He had thrown him into a sort of fever, sent for Helm. "I been studin' hit out, Mistuh Ty," he said, his eyes full of despairing resignation. "I won't nubb-be able to pay $1 tax on my dog, let alone a dollar ebah yeah endurin' his nachel lifetime. I ain't got no business wid him, no way! I ain't no body, and he's jest nobody's dog! I gwine put him wha da's plenty to eat, and wha' taxes kin be paid. I gwine gib him to you, Mistuh Ty!"

"How'd you like to come to the house along with Eats and be my nigger, Sandy?" the young man asked. "You could feed the dogs and tend to 'em, and you and Eats needn't be separated."

Sandy's bruises and his broken ribs could not hold him on his back. "De fuh minute dese cracks in my side grows terger, Mistuh Ty," he cried, his eyes wells of happiness. "I gwine be da! Ez fuh Eats—ef you say de word he kin go dis minute!"

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

"Peter Rabbit! Peter Rabbit! I don't see what Mother Nature ever gave me such a common sounding name as that for. People laugh at me, but if I had a fine sounding name they wouldn't laugh. Some folks say that a name doesn't amount to anything, but it does. If I should do some wonderful thing nobody would think anything of it. No, sir; nobody would think anything of it at all, just because—why, just because it was done by Peter Rabbit!"

Peter was talking out loud, but he was talking to himself. He sat in the dear old briar patch with an ugly scowl on his usually happy face. The sun was shining, the Merry Little Breezes of Old Mother West Wind were dancing over the Green Meadows, the birds were singing, and happiness, the glad, joyous happiness of spring time, was everywhere, everywhere but in Peter Rabbit's heart. There there seemed to be no room for anything but discontent. And such foolish discontent—discontent with his name. And yet, do you know, there are lots of people just as foolish as Peter Rabbit.

"Well, what are you going to do about it?" The voice made Peter Rabbit jump and turn around hastily. There was Jimmy Skunk poking his head in at the opening of one of Peter's private little paths. He was grinning, and Peter knew by that grin that Jimmy had heard what he had said. Peter didn't know what to say. He hung his head in a very shamefaced way. "You've got something to learn."

didn't know what to say. He hung his head in a very shamefaced way. "You've got something to learn."

you told you ought to know without being told," replied Jimmy Skunk. "If you don't like your name, why don't you change it?" "What's that?" cried Peter sharply. "I said, if you don't like your name, why don't you change it?" replied Jimmy. Peter sat up and the disagreeable frown had left his face. "I—dear thought of that," he said slowly. "Do you suppose I could, Jimmy Skunk?" "Easiest thing in the world," replied Jimmy Skunk. "Just decide what name you like and then go tell all your friends that that is your new name and ask them to call you by it." "I believe I will," cried Peter Rabbit. "Well, let me know what it is when you have decided," said Jimmy as he started for home. And all the way up the Crooked Little Path Jimmy Skunk chuckled to himself as he thought of foolish Peter Rabbit trying to change his name.

To the Housewife

Now while the fever's on, when you're determined to give the house a thorough cleaning from attic to cellar, why not dispose of the odd pieces of furniture that are stowed away? Would nice, clean money feel and look better to you than the "junk," as your husband terms it? Use a Journal Want and sell it quick.

For 17 years, I had been afflicted with womanly troubles, and had tried different treatments, but none of them helped me any. I suffered so much I could hardly bear it.

I had such drawing-down pains, and a pain in my side. Also headache and those awful dizzy spells. I was very weak, and could not be up, at times. I decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I will say I am not sorry that I did, for it helped me wonderfully. I feel like an entirely new person. I can wash all day now, and attend to my other household duties, and not feel tired when night comes.

BALLEDE OF THE BULGING DODGERS.
They may not lead October's play—
By July even, far and wide,
They may be jammed across the way
Which edges on the Great Divide;
May meet again the ebbing tide,
Where no wreath grips their clammy brow—
But though by June you may decide—
YougotterspittoemNOW.

When summer's sun has come to stay
And in the stands we sit, half-fried—
Those whom the cheering hits today
As thousands look on, wonder-eyed,
May meet again the ebbing tide,
No more beneath the ebbing hough,
But though by June their stuff is aside,
YougotterspittoemNOW.

You may not find, amid the fray,
Their names in any pennant guides;
You may not find their actions away
The frothing clans when Spring has died;
Cracked soon, perhaps, their dashing stride
As training rivals show them how,
But say some day they hit the slide—
YougotterspittoemNOW.

If Cub Star but Had More Confidence in His Ability He Would Set Higher Mark at the Batting Game

Heinie Zimmerman, heaviest batter in the National league last season, has a weakness which, if he could overcome, might make him a greater slugger than Ty Cobb.

Any time Heinie makes two trips to the plate without getting a safe single he loses heart, becomes discouraged and after that appears easy for a pitcher who could not baffle him earlier in the game, according to one of Zimmerman's teammates.

Zimmerman's superb athletic appearance, his wonderful activity at third base, his fame as the leading batter in his league, naturally lead one to believe that he is a man of abundant courage. So he is, but he has his weakness. On the field with the Chicago Cubs he struggles valiantly until the last man is out. He is true blue to the club, and off the field will battle with his fists until forced to take the count. He really does not know what fear is and would not back an inch for any man.

HAS ONE WEAKNESS.

Fans seated in the grandstand at the west side park probably never would notice Zimmie's weakness unless their attention was called to it. Even the expert baseball men overlooked it. The player who points out the slugger's weakness has been with him four years, is friendly with him and believes him one of the greatest ball players the game has ever produced.

The Cub athlete does not point out the defect with the idea of "knocking" his teammate, but just to show how even a great player may have a flaw. This player says Zimmerman is a perfect fielder, speedy base runner and while at bat steps into the ball with as much courage as any man who ever wore a uniform, and probably swings harder than Ty Cobb, Hans Wagner or Joe Jackson.

The Cub player, who unintentionally criticizes Zimmerman, says the big third baseman becomes discouraged if he does not slug the horsehide for a single or an extra base hit in his first two trips to the plate.

BECOMES DISCOURAGED.

This is the weakness that is depriving him of attaining even a higher average than he finished with last season. Often he is compelled to take three healthy swings at the ball and walk back to the bench to make room for the next batter.

When this happens he ceases to be the tower of strength to the club he ordinarily would be if he had nearly taken the hand out of an infielder or chased one of the outfielders back to the fence.

He loses that determination to achieve something wonderful, unless he succeeds in connecting with one of his terrific swings on his later appearance at the plate.

"Zimmerman is valuable to the club when he starts off the game with a hit," said the Cub player who pointed out Heinie's fault. "I honestly believe he would rather miss three meals a day and even a good night's rest than go to the plate and be struck out. I do not think in all my experience in baseball that I ever saw a man who

THERE OR NOT?

The most hectic discussion we have heard all spring among the Bug Community was centered around these same Dodgers.

One fanatic advanced the pet idea that within five weeks the now hustling Dodgers would be back in the second division. This brought a wild roar from Fanatic No. Two who came near blowing wide open from a rush of words.

"Why shouldn't they be up there?" he remarked. "They have one of the best outfielders in the league; they have a steady, hard hitting infield, a good catcher and at least three first-class pitchers. Your dope is full of cheese. Dahlen has a regular ball club now and will be 1-2-3 with any sort of luck."

For all that, Brooklyn may be pulling a Washington uprising on us. The Senators were mostly junk for eight or ten years. Then suddenly, without the slightest warning, they arose from seventh place, dusted off the ashes and tore the league into shreds, nosing out the world's series winners of the year before.

Brooklyn may be coming along the same highway. There are times when one or two additions may turn a second division club into a flag contender. Dahlen has undoubtedly added to his strength and any one who laments that Dodger crew at work can figure no freak start to date.

They are up there because they belong there by playing ball good enough to get there. Beyond their added strength they are fighting now with a spirit they haven't shown for a matter of twelve or thirteen years.

The club is well balanced, and unless hard luck assails it or its spirit sage should certainly finish well up.

Just how high up is another matter. There are three clubs to be remembered in the October counting who may insist upon reassembling tradition. These are New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago. And then again, there are the Phillies. To beat out any one of these four clubs will be an achievement of more than passing note—yet Dahlen must choke off one to finish among the first four. He shouldn't have any great amount of trouble heading off St. Louis, Cincinnati or Boston.

But keeping in front of New York, Chicago and Pittsburg is a different problem with a matter of added complexities.

Mathewson is away on better shape this spring with his people playing second division ball than he was last spring in a runaway faunt. As he is working now it isn't improbable that 193 will be the best season from a percentage viewpoint that he has ever known. The same is true of Plank, who is also embroiled in his thirteenth campaign. This pair—the longest serving in the service—were good enough to stalk home with ten of their first twelve games.

In the meanwhile there is no streak of purple fire flaring around a certain Mr. Stallings and his Braves, but no club is visiting that commonwealth today in pursuit of any cream-coated cinch. Where a clean sweep once prevailed for the visitors, anything better than an even break now is considered worthy of a number of cheers.

STOVALL TREATED BIT HARSH

CHICAGO, May 15.—Among the ball players here there is an apparently well-founded rumor that George Stovall is to be reinstated as manager of the St. Louis Browns the position he has lost temporarily, at least, because of the trouble he had with Umpire Ferguson.

Stovall was here recently and talked with several members of the Washington party. He came to have a personal conference with Ban Johnson, who, however, was not at his office.

"I am sorry the thing happened, but that's about all I can say," was the former manager's line of talk when the subject was broached. Stovall is ready and anxious to make restitution, but his future course will be dependent entirely upon the result of his talk with Johnson.

It is said that Charley Comiskey, owner of the Chicago club, and one of the most powerful factors in the American league, has gone to the front for Stovall, and has asked Johnson to reconsider his action. Comiskey, so goes the report, is uncompromisingly opposed to allow-

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK
Why Does the English Pen Lead Our American Birds?

There must be a reason. Just what is responsible for this difference is yet to be determined. But when any one breeder in England or elsewhere can pick out a single pen of birds which will outlay 65 pens of American birds...

The average person wants to know right away whether the English White Leghorns look any different from the American White Leghorns. Yes, they do.

Other observers of the contest declare that it is all a matter of breeding, that while utility poultry breeding in America is just in its infancy...

Still other investigators strongly assert that it is neither a matter of type nor breeding, but that the high records which the English Leghorns are making at Mountain Grove...

The owner of the English pen which is leading at the State Poultry Experiment Station at Mountain Grove, Mo., states that this pen of pullets was bred from females with high records and also sired by males bred from laying hens.

We have been urging Missouri farmers and poultry raisers for several years to breed from high layers, or at least from good layers, and he also insisted that the males which head the flocks should be sons of high layers.

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED. QUESTION: Rome, Ga. Will you kindly answer through your paper...

ANSWER: There is no difference in the quantity of cream from a given amount of milk regardless of where it is placed.

QUESTIONS: Lakeland, Fla. We are subscribers to The Atlanta Journal and enjoy your pieces on poultry raising...

ANSWER: You will find it far more profitable and much better to keep your chickens in a house of this kind in your climate.

QUESTIONS: Can you put me in touch with a sanitarian where I might dispose of several chickens each week?

ANSWER: Thanking you in advance, I am, MRS. M. R. HALL.

QUESTIONS: If you had given me your post-office address I could have put you in touch with some one who could use your eggs.

QUESTIONS: I have a small pen of birds which I have been raising for several months. I am a beginner and would like to know...

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE

ONE of the best opportunities in Atlanta real estate today is in the large section lying between the Southern and A. B. & A. railroads. This section is about four blocks wide and it extends from Magnolia street out as far as Bellwood avenue.

TERMINAL DISTRICT

IN THIS QUARTER you can buy good sized pieces of land, improved with renting houses, security that yields a fair income and has speculative possibilities.

ON SIMPSON STREET we can sell an entire block of frontage for $5,000. It lies in between Davis and Edwards streets, fronting 214 feet on Simpson street and extending back 150 feet. All three streets are paved and have all improvements down. This is the block with the old stone house on it.

HERE is a choice little factory site bordering directly on A. B. & A. railroad. The southeast corner of this site and Wilson streets. It fronts 220 feet on the railroad and has three renting houses. Price $2,500.

WEST SIDE values are low in comparison with other sections, and they are sure to go up in the process of equalization. All forward-looking men should lay in a few west side investments for future use.

HEAR PARDON PETITION MADE BY J. J. MANGHAM

Former Treasurer Boyd-Mangham Manufacturing Co. Asks for Freedom

A hearing on the pardon petition of J. J. Mangham, former treasurer of the Boyd-Mangham Manufacturing company, of Griffin, was held by the state prison commission Thursday morning.

Attorney Eugene Black, of Atlanta, argued the petition for Mangham, and Attorney Reuben R. Arnold and W. A. Fuller, of Atlanta, who represented Mangham in his trial, were called to make statements regarding the action against him.

Mangham was sentenced in two cases growing out of the failure of the Boyd-Mangham company. In one case he was given four years and in the other one year. He is serving his sentence at the state farm near Milledgeville. Through his attorneys and in his petition he contends that he is innocent of the charge of public intoxication and declares that the action against him was the result of public sentiment which followed the failure of his company.

The prison commission is asked to recommend a pardon for J. J. Mangham. At 1 o'clock, after hearing the argument of counsel, it took the petition under consideration, and it may be a day or two before a decision is reached.

M'CANDESS IS ELECTED IMPERIAL OUTER GUARD

Shriners Choose Honolulu Man to Succeed Ernest Kutts, of Savannah

BY RAYMUND DANIEL.
(Journal Staff Correspondent.)

DALLAS, Tex., May 15.—After electing Atlanta as the 1914 meeting place over Buffalo, N. Y., and Memphis, Tenn., and electing James Sutton McCandless, of Alcha temple, Honolulu, imperial outer guard, the imperial council, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, today completed its labors and the thousands of Shriners turned their weary camels homeward.

The council granted a dispensation to the Mobile, Ala., temple and a charter to Montgomery, Ala.

The election of an imperial outer guard, usually the only contest as the other members of the imperial divan advanced one office each year, developed nine candidates and an election was not had until the third ballot, when Jack Jones, of Oklahoma City, former imperial potentate, withdrew in favor of Mr. McCandless and made his election certain. The Honolulu man had led in the first two ballots but lacked the necessary majority.

A precedent was broken today when John Boyle, of Utica, N. Y., was nominated for imperial potentate against Deputy Imperial Potentate W. W. Irwin, of Oquirrh temple, Wheeling, W. Va. Formerly the custom has been to advance the junior imperial potentate to the highest office without opposition. Irwin won easily, receiving 347 votes to 86 for Boyle.

The warmest contest of the day, however, came with the selection of the 1914 convention city. The report of a special committee, recommending Buffalo, N. Y., was amended to include Atlanta and Memphis in the voting, and the Georgia city won handsily on the first ballot, receiving 269 votes as against 67 for Memphis.

A new feature in the parade line was added this afternoon when the El Mina temple band, of Galveston, Tex., appeared in the streets in bathing suits. Some wore women's suits, while others were in male attire. They spent the afternoon serenading the local newspaper office.

The temple at Calgary, Alberta, Canada, organized in a substantial way the services of Jake Hartson, of Dallas, who was appointed by the Hella temple as official guide for the Canadians. They deeded him 160 acres of wheat land in their province.

While Al Chyma temple, of Memphis, lost the 1914 meeting tonight they showed they were game losers. The Memphis nobles paraded the streets bearing a black coffin while their band played funeral marches. Then they serenaded the Atlanta nobles.

The convention closed tonight with a grand ball at the "Garden of Allah" at Fair park.

OLIVE BRANCH OFFERED UNDERWOOD DEMOCRATS

Colonel Ed T. Brown Urges Underwood Convention Delegate for Appointment

BY RALPH SMITH.
WASHINGTON, May 15.—The adoption of a policy of harmony and conciliation toward the Underwood forces of the Georgia Democracy is believed to be foreshadowed by the visit here today of Colonel Ed T. Brown, of Atlanta, who was one of the Wilson managers in the Georgia presidential primary.

Colonel Brown is urging the recognition by the administration of Jake Tweedy, of Eatonton, who was an Underwood delegate from the Eighth congressional district, to the Baltimore convention. It is believed that he will succeed in landing a desirable place for Tweedy in the government service in the city of Washington.

The attitude of Colonel Brown, who conferred today with President Wilson, Senators Smith and Bacon and several Georgia congressmen, is regarded as sufficient refutation of the assertion that a policy of proscription has been adopted by the administration with reference to the distribution of federal patronage in Georgia.

The rejection of Albert S. Hardy for the postoffice at Gainesville is far from typical or representative of the administration's attitude toward the Underwood people, it is stated. The objection to Hardy came not from his mere advocacy of Mr. Underwood, but from the alleged objectionable tactics used in sending his opposition to President Wilson.

The great calamity in Omaha was quickly overshadowed by the terribly disastrous floods in Ohio. Great suffering and sickness from colds and exposure resulted which Foley's Honey and Tar Compound helped to alleviate. L. Poole, 2217 California St., Omaha, writes: "My daughter had a severe cough and cold but Foley's Honey and Tar Compound knocked it out in no time. My wife would not keep house without it. We have used it for years, always with good results." For sale by all dealers.—(Adv.)

WHO WROTE THIS POEM?
A poem recently published in two Atlanta newspapers as "said to have been written by Mary Phagan," has caused considerable comment. The poem in question first appeared in the "Household Guest," and has since been reproduced and accredited to that magazine by the April "Successful Farmer" and by other publications.

The poem follows:

MY PA.
My pa ain't any millionaire,
But Gee! He's offul smart;
He ain't no carpenter, but he
Can fix a feller's cart.
He ain't no doctor, but you bet
My pa, he allus knows
Just what to do to fix a boy
What's got a bloody nose.
My pa ain't president, becoz
He says he never run;
But he could do it just as well as
Any president has done.
A president may beat my pa
At piling up a vote;
But he can't beat him, I will bet,
A-whittlin' on a boat.
My pa ain't rich, but that's becoz
He never tried to be;
He's no 'lectrician, but he fixed
A telephone for me.
My pa ain't never wrote a book,
But I know that he could Becoz the stories that he tells
To me are allus good.
My pa knows everything, I guess,
An' you bet I don't care
'Coz he ain't president or rich
As any millionaire;
Whenever things go wrong, my pa
Can make 'em right, you see;
An' 'tough he ain't a president,
Pa's good enough for me.
—Household Guest.

CHIEF CAUTIONS NEW POLICE ON SHOOTING

Promiscuous shooting of revolvers by officers of the law was condemned by Chief of Police Beavers Wednesday morning in his talk to the twelve new patrolmen who were sworn in for duty.

The men, who were given their new badges, uniforms and guns, were cautioned by the chief not to re their revolvers unless their life or the life of some one else is in danger. The chief told them that it is a criminal offense for a policeman to shoot at an escaping prisoner.
